“ In the coming war we shall fight not only on land, on sea, and in the air. There will be a fourth theatre of operations—the Inner Front. That front will decide on the continued existence or the irrevocable death of the German Nation.”

These were HIMMLER's words in September, 1937, and the Inner Front which he predicted is that which his police forces are now ordered to maintain to the last. To continue the fight on that front, even beyond the duration of actual hostilities, is undoubtedly the task HIMMLER has allotted to the German Police in conjunction with the SS.

In the EDS series of Basic Handbooks on German para-military formations and related subjects, this handbook—together with that on the Allgemeine SS—may well be described as the most important. It not only deals with organisation, administration and functions, but also attempts, by underlining the fundamental difference between the Allied and the Nazi concepts of “ Police,” to throw some light on the difficult problem of distinguishing those German Policemen who can, those who might, and those who should not be employed by an occupying Power. The citizen of a democracy knows the Police only as the servant and guardian of the people, and since a democratic government carries out the policies desired by the popular majority, it needs no deliberately created force to maintain its power. The Nazi dictatorship has never been bound by the will of the people ; the will of the Leader alone is both the law and the aim of the Totalitarian State. In such a State the Police is the instrument of oppression in the hands of its leaders.

Allied Armies in the course of their advance into German territory will as in the past, encounter the field forces of the German Police ; knowledge of their organisation and background is therefore an operational necessity.

In areas occupied by Allied troops the task of stamping out opposition and subversive activities will arise. The Nazi Police, the SS, and the intelligence services controlled by the two organisations will undoubtedly form the nucleus of resistance movements.

Finally, in the period of occupation, control and administration, it will be found necessary to render powerless, and to bring to justice, many dangerous and guilty members of the German Police. Even after the process of neutralisation and selection, the secure employment of the existing German Police machinery will be facilitated by an insight into its workings, and an understanding of its domination by the Nazi Party.

This handbook has therefore been compiled with the aim of providing an intelligence background for each of these three stages in the subjugation of Germany.

FOREWORD

This Handbook attempts to present as complete a study on the German Police as possible. It should be pointed out, however, that no book can hope to deal exhaustively with subject matter of such magnitude, and to answer completely all questions that might arise. The German Police is not a static organisation, and the Nazis were still in the process of re-modelling both German administration and the German Police when war broke out. Since then wartime necessities have brought about a large number of further changes rendering the task of preparing a complete and up-to-date study even more difficult.

The main facts concerning the development of the German Police during the past twelve years are given in PART ONE of the text, but a number of lesser details of an historical nature appear throughout. PARTS TWO, THREE, FOUR and FIVE describing the organisation, functions and methods of the German Police should be considered as a whole, and for a better understanding of its organisation the two charts (in German and English) at the end of the book should be consulted. PART SIX, dealing with Legal Aspects, does not by any means constitute a complete study of the laws and regulations affecting the German Police; it is a simple guide for laymen in the maze of legal details which exist in Germany, giving at the same time a number of definitions of legal terms that will constantly be encountered in connection with the German Police. PART SEVEN gives an outline of the principal features of the German Civil Service as far as this concerns the personnel of the Police. Comparative tables of Police ranks shown at the end of PART SEVEN should facilitate the understanding of that Part. Descriptions of Police uniforms and identity documents are given in PART EIGHT.

Strength estimates are not generally included owing to the difficulty of arriving at any reliable results.

All available details on identified Police headquarters and units within Germany and German-occupied territory are listed in the various Annexes, but facts referring to the German Police headquarters in occupied countries are not dealt with exhaustively. Even with regard to the headquarters inside Germany it should be understood that none of the Annexes can be completely up-to-date. Owing to Allied bombing, the manpower shortage and other exigencies of war, changes in addresses and personalities occur constantly. For this reason the number of personalities included in the book has been kept to a minimum. In order to find a given Police headquarters use should be made of the Gazetteer of German towns and Police headquarters (Annexe K). Throughout the Annexes the liberation of formerly occupied countries and the conquest of Germany by the Allies have been ignored for purposes of compilation.

German official terminology and abbreviations have been used throughout the book, unless otherwise stated, and reference should be made to the list of abbreviations and to the Index of Subjects appearing at the end of the book.

Sources used include a great many German manuals, periodicals, telephone books, correspondence files, official orders, and other documents, as well as interrogations of PW and other intelligence reports. As far as is known, no single comprehensive German book on the Police exists, partly owing to the complicated nature of the subject matter, and partly to its confidential details.

The following MIRS publications have been incorporated into this book in revised forms and are therefore superseded:

- MIRS/OCC-CI/1/44 Gestapo Headquarters in Greater Germany (see Annexe F).
- MIRS/OCC-CI/2/44 SD (Security Service) Headquarters in Greater Germany (see Annexe H).
- MIRS/OCC-CI/5/44 Headquarters of the Kripo (Criminal Police) in Greater Germany (see Annexe G).

HISTORY AND EVOLUTION OF THE GERMAN POLICE

1. German Police before 1933

The German Police force is probably the most powerful organisation of its kind in the world. It is also the most ruthless—the operations of the Gestapo furnish ample evidence of that fact.

It is the purpose of this Part to trace the development of the German police, during the eleven years of the Nazi régime, from a number of loosely organised groups without central authority into a disciplined machine whose principal function is to maintain Nazi rule over the German people.

When the National Socialists obtained power on 30th January, 1933, there was no over-all police authority in Germany. The country was divided into Länder (states), as it had been under the monarchy and under the Weimar Republic, and each state had control of the police units (Landespolizei) within its own area.

These various police groups, being largely independent of one another and without a definite relationship, had their own individual systems of administration, pay, uniforms, and even their own legal codes.

Neither the Versailles Treaty nor the Weimar Republic changed the provincial nature of the German police, although the Weimar Constitution provided for financial control of the police by the Reich Minister of the Interior. Thus, by refusing to approve appropriations for the police force of a certain Land, the Minister could exercise a modicum of restraint upon a particular group. Otherwise, however, the Länder continued to administer their own police units.

Earlier attempts to unify the police force in Germany met with strong opposition from the States, especially from Catholic Bavaria, which traditionally feared encroachment on her rights by the more powerful and Protestant Prussia.

2. Gleichschaltung (Co-ordination and Assimilation)

To implement their plans, the National Socialists needed a uniform German administration and a strong, united police force rigidly controlled by the central government. But they could not immediately arrogate to themselves the powers of the various police agencies within the entire country, as they had to fight the still existing opposition of the other political parties, the church groups, the trades unions and various State interests.

With the police to aid them, the Nazis could more quickly subdue opposition groups, but at the time of the Machtübernahme (advent to power) they could not afford to upset the organisation of the police. They did, however, take immediate steps to change its personnel.

The first few months after the Machtübernahme were known as the period of Gleichschaltung, i.e. the assimilating and co-ordinating of all organisations in accordance with the changes which had taken place in the Reich government itself.

During that period all the governments of the Länder were taken over by the Nazis, and with them all the executive positions controlling the Police (Ministers of the Interior of the States, etc.). These newly appointed executives in turn began immediately a ruthless purge within their regions, to remove all the lesser members of the Police who had been in any way connected with a republican or democratic party, or whose loyalty towards the Nazi cause was open to question. Such men were mostly replaced by "Alte Kämpfer" ("Old fighters" for Nazism) whose loyalty was beyond all shadow of doubt. Thus the police forces were nazified simultaneously from above and below. In addition, large numbers of the SA and SS were temporarily employed as auxiliary police.

3. Political Police : Birth of the Gestapo

The first important steps towards an organisational change in the German Police system were taken in the field of the Politische Polizei (Political Police)—known in Prussia as the Staatspolizei or Stapo—a limited force of which had been permitted in the Weimar period. The powers of this force, however, had been as strictly curtailed as its numbers and funds.

A "Secret State Police" existed neither under the Monarchy nor under the Weimar Republic and Germans had not become as they have to-day "mere Police Objects."

The National Socialists had not failed to study the technique of the Secret Police systems in other totalitarian states, and they were quick to seize upon and expand such an obvious weapon of repression as a Political Police organisation.

Above all they studied the exploitation of fear, transforming it into their most potent political weapon, and reducing mass and individual terrorism to a fine art.

They also saw the advantages of controlling and utilising the activities of Auslandsdeutsche, for Germans abroad clearly could not be neglected by the new régime.

Prussia, Germany's most militaristic state, was the first to establish an official secret police, though there are grounds for believing that the Braunes Haus (Party Headquarters) in Munich was the setting for the earliest conferences on the subject.

GÖRING, as Prime Minister of Prussia, and in control of the Prussian police, was out to increase his personal power as much as possible, and it is also known that RÖHM, chief of the then politically powerful SA (Storm Troops), aspired to a large measure of control over this new police system.

Die Geheime Staatspolizei (Gestapo or Secret State Police) which replaced the former Prussian Political Police was officially established by GÖRING on 26th April, 1933.

GÖRING retained the title of Chief of the Gestapo but delegated the active direction of this organisation to Oberregierungsrat DIELS, who until then had been in charge of the section for the Observation of Communism in the Reich Ministry of the Interior.

Thus the Gestapo emerged as a Prussian institution, and even to-day it is not technically a Reich organisation, though the question is now purely academic, since according to the Reich Decree of 17th June, 1936 (see para. 6) and the HIMMLER decree of 26th June, 1936 (see para. 7) the Gestapo forms part of the Reich Security Police.

Shortly after the Machtübernahme HIMMLER had become Commander of the Political Police in Bavaria, having with him HEYDRICH, then

UNCLASSIFIED

Political Police Chief in Munich. But, far more important, HEYDRICH was also chief of the Sicherheitsdienst des Reichsführers-SS (SD d RFSS— Security Service of the Commander in Chief of the SS), and therefore again subordinate to HIMMLER in the latter's capacity as Reichsführer-SS (Commander in Chief of the SS).

The importance and influence of the SD in the early history of the formation of the Gestapo cannot be overestimated. It already formed the nucleus of a Gestapo since its exclusive mission was to spy upon the activities of the members of the National Socialist Party.

Thus a scientifically organised Party intelligence service was at hand to form the basis of a similar intelligence system run on government lines. The party SD was to continue as a separate entity, but it became indissolubly allied with the Secret State Police, all the personnel of the former, and to a large extent that of the latter, being drawn from the SS.

The most important executive arm during the early stages of the development of the Gestapo was the Schutzpolizeiabteilung z.b.V. (Safety Police Unit for Special Assignments), which subsequently became the Polizeigruppe GENERAL GÖRING. It consisted of selected officers and was commanded by Police Major WECKE. This unit was the nucleus of the present Fallschirm Panzer Division HERMANN GÖRING of the Luftwaffe.

The Schutzpolizeiabteilung z.b.V. was made up of uniformed squads and detachments, whose members wore a silver-embroidered brassard on the left lower sleeve to show that they were at the special disposal (zur besonderen Verwendung, abbr. z.b.V.) of GÖRING, and thereby, of his new police force, the Gestapo.

4. HIMMLER becomes Deputy Chief of the Gestapo

HIMMLER, casting an envious eye from his headquarters in Munich on GÖRING'S new Prussian Secret Police, was not to be outdone in the competition for personal power. As Commander in Chief of the SS, who above all was responsible for the life and safety of the Führer, and as ultimate Chief of the SD, whose espionage system enabled him to obtain a hold on all the other prominent members of the Party, he felt that he should have some say in the formation of a secret police.

But nearly a year passed before HIMMLER managed to realise his desire. During that time he had gradually but purposefully obtained control of the political police forces of all the Länder except Prussia, and held the title of Politischer Polizeikommandeur der Länder (Political Police Commander of the German States).

In the spring of 1934 HIMMLER brought several Prussian Gestapo officials under his sway, and "discovered" a plot against GÖRING, thus seemingly proving the inefficiency of the Prussian Gestapo. In typical Nazi style, therefore, HIMMLER forced GÖRING'S hand, and the latter appointed him deputy chief of the Prussian Gestapo in place of DIELS, who was dismissed.

At the same time HIMMLER retained his posts as head of the political police forces of the other German States, and in that way managed as deputy chief of the Gestapo to become more powerful than his chief.

His first care was to purge the police of all officials suspected of a lukewarm attitude towards the régime. Then he rapidly replaced the dismissed officials by members of the SS, thus starting the amalgamation of the SS and the Police, which was to find its full expression some two years later.

5. Centralisation of Government and its effect on the Police

The first step towards centralised control was taken on 30th January, 1934, exactly one year after the Machtübernahme, when the decree for the reconstruction of the Reich (Gesetz über den Neuaufbau des Reiches) was published.

Article 2 of this law laid down that the sovereign rights of the Länder (States) were to be transferred to the Reich. All State governments were henceforth subordinated to the central Reich Government, including, of course, the police forces of each State. Thus one of the major aims, one of the major necessities of the National Socialist Party was achieved.

This sweeping development did not, however, produce any obvious change in the routine conduct of police work. In fact a subsequent ordinance dated 2nd February, 1934, stated that the execution of those sovereign rights transmitted to the Reich by Article 2 should remain in the hands of the States, which would act on behalf of the Reich Government in those cases where the latter did not choose, in a general or particular sense, to make full use of its rights under the new act. This left the central Government freedom of choice in the absorption of police functions, and it is this freedom which is responsible for the complicated structure of the German Police system and for the anomalous conditions under which the German Police operates to-day.

Outwardly, the Länder retain their individual control, but the real power is centred in Berlin.

A definite step in the unification and centralisation (Verreichlichung) of the police was the creation of the Kasernierte Landespolizei (Lapo or militarised barrack police), which was trained and equipped as infantry.

Prussia had already taken the lead in this matter and by a decree of 26th March, 1933, had established a number of Landespolizei-Inspektionen (Police Inspectorates) "with the object of preparing and implementing defensive measures directed against internal strife."

The Prussian example was followed by the governments of the other Länder, and finally, by a decree published on 29th March, 1935, the entire administration of the Landespolizei was handed over to the Reich Ministers of the Interior and of Finance for co-ordination.

This decree was speedily followed by additional legislation, which ordered that, as from 1st April, 1935, the combined Landespolizei formations of all the State governments should be taken over by the Reich.

With the introduction of national conscription in March, 1935, the majority of the men in the "Lapo" were drafted into the Army where they formed a useful nucleus of well-trained, well-disciplined soldiers.

Some continuity in the structure and purpose of the Landespolizei formations is to be seen in the barrack police battalions and regiments of to-day.

Attention was then directed to the question of the Gemeindepolizei (Municipal Police). The reorganisation of the Staatliche Polizei (State Police Forces) in the States had already produced a certain degree of uniformity, but there existed substantial differences in the sphere of the Gemeindepolizei, not merely between State and State but even between one area and another in the same State.

Prussia again took the lead by tightening up the position of her own Municipal Police, and raising them to the status of State Police. And in a decree issued on 25th October, 1935, the Reich and Prussian Minister of the Interior laid down various principles covering the entire administration of this section of the Police.

A particular innovation was the creation of a Chef der Gemeindepolizei (Chief of Municipal Police), whose duty it was to unify and direct all municipal police activities in the various towns throughout the Reich.

The German Police Officials Law of 24th June, 1937, gave a new title to this body—Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden (Municipal Protection Police). The unification of this group with the State Schutzpolizei or Schutzpolizei des Reiches (Reich Protection Police) was further extended by various decrees which laid down, among other things, that in larger centres of population the Municipal Police were to be commanded by Police Officers, the area command being classed as a Kommando der Schutzpolizei (if commanded by a Major) or as a Schutzpolizeidienstabteilung (if commanded by a captain or lower ranking officer).

6. Appointment of a Chef der deutschen Polizei

The process of centralisation reached its peak on 17th June, 1936. On this date, HITLER created a new post, that of Chef der deutschen Polizei (Chief of the German Police) in the Reich Ministry of the Interior.

The man selected to fill this all-important position of supreme head of the Police forces of the Reich was HIMMLER, already, as we have seen, Commander of the SS and, more notoriously, deputy Chief of the Gestapo.

The law of 30th January, 1934, had already transferred State and police sovereignty from the Länder to the Reich, and this organic shift of power was now considerably strengthened by the appointment of a supreme police dictator who happened also to be one of the most powerful men in the Government and in the Party.

His position and responsibilities are clearly defined by the new decree: as Reichsführer SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei im Reichsministerium des Innern HIMMLER was made directly responsible to the Ministry of the Interior. He was, therefore, in the exercise of his Police office, both the representative of the Reich Minister of the Interior, and the representative of GÖRING, the Prime Minister of Prussia. The position of Prussia as a distinct entity within the structure of the Reich should be noted.

As Commander in Chief of the SS, however, HIMMLER was directly responsible to HITLER alone, the Supreme Commander of the SS, and was, therefore, in a position to circumvent the authority of FRICK, the Minister of the Interior.

HIMMLER's status is made clear in a decree issued by the Reich and Prussian Minister of the Interior dated 15th May, 1937, which states in unequivocal terms that there is no difference in the authority for any ruling, whether it bears the signatures of officials in the Ministry of the Interior or whether it is issued by HIMMLER's office.

In either case it is a Ministerial decision.

7. Reorganisation of the Police under HIMMLER

HIMMLER lost no time in employing his new powers. His first task was to determine the division of functions within the Reich Police. A decree was therefore issued on the 26th June, 1936, entitled "Geschäftsverteilung im Geschäftsbereich des Chefs der Deutschen Polizei" (Division of Duties in the Office of the Chief of the German Police.)

This divided the police into two principal branches:

- (a) Ordnungspolizei (Orpo or Regular Police)
- (b) Sicherheitspolizei (Sipo or Security Police).

Into the Ordnungspolizei went all the existing branches of the Uniformed Police such as the Schutzpolizei (Protection Police) and the Gendarmerie (Rural Police) plus the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police). The new Sicherheitspolizei was made up by the Reichskriminalpolizei (Kripo—Reich Criminal Police) and the Geheime Staatspolizei (Gestapo—Secret State Police).

Whatever doubts might have remained regarding the duties of this or that branch of the Police were completely dispelled by this decree which listed in detail the respective duties of the two principal divisions of the Police.

SS Oberst-Gruppenführer und Generaloberst der Polizei Kurt DALUEGE and SS Obergruppenführer Reinhard HEYDRICH (then only SS-Gruppenführer) were appointed heads of the Ordnungspolizei and the Sicherheitspolizei respectively.

The local and central direction of the police throughout the Reich was not disturbed by these innovations, but the superficial character of local administration was further emphasised by the creation of certain high police officials to supervise the regional forces of the Orpo and Sipo and act as their authoritative liaison officers with the local Governments as well as the central police departments in Berlin. To each Wehrkreis (Military District), therefore, were assigned an Inspekteur der Orpo (Inspector of the Orpo) and an Inspekteur der Sipo (Inspector of the Sipo).

They were appointed by a decree dated the 20th September, 1936.

Their tasks included co-operation with the Nazi Party Gauleiter, with the Commander of the Wehrkreis and with the administrative authorities of the Province or State to which they were appointed.

Unless bound by special instructions from the Head of the Sipo or Orpo, the Inspektoren are expected to carry out the requirements of the local Government Administrators.

In addition, HIMMLER appointed three General Inspectors for the Ordnungspolizei, viz:—

- (a) Der Generalinspekteur der Schutzpolizei des Reiches
- (b) Der Generalinspekteur der Gendarmerie und der Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden
- (c) Der Generalinspekteur der Polizeischulen.

In the course of the following years, further General Inspectors were created. (See para. 28.)

The principal duty of these General Inspectors is to bring forward proposals for the effective development of their respective branches, and generally maintain a careful check on the performance of duties.

A further step towards unification resulted from the edict of 25th June, 1936, which also prescribed the wearing of the same uniforms by the whole of the Police Force, and the adoption of standard rank titles and badges.

8. Höhere SS und Polizeiführer (Superior SS and Police Commanders)

Not content with these new measures, and doubtless having in mind the importance of the rapidly expanding Army, HIMMLER later created another type of high Police official.

In each of the SS-Oberabschnitte (main territorial divisions of the SS in the Reich corresponding with the Wehrkreise or Military Districts into which Germany is divided) there existed already an SS

Führer (Leader of the SS forces in that District). It was, therefore, a simple and logical step to place this SS Führer at the head also of the Police.

Die Höhere SS und Polizeiführer (HSSPf or Superior SS and Police Commanders) as they were called, were the direct and personal representatives in each Wehrkreis—and later on, during the War, in all occupied territories—of HIMMLER himself, the Commander-in-Chief of the SS and of the German police. In addition the HSSPf acted as HIMMLER's principal liaison officers with the Wehrkreis commanders, and other higher regional authorities.

9. New Organisation of the Sipo—General

Other measures directed towards the unification of the German Police concerned the new Sicherheitspolizei (Security Police), the more powerful of the two main branches of police laid down by HIMMLER on 26th June, 1936.

The first was a decree published on 10th July, 1936, which empowered officers of the Gestapo (Secret State Police) and Kripo (Criminal Police) which together constitute the Sipo (Security Police), to conduct their activities in any part of the Reich independently of the area covered by their bureaux.

This decree revived in fact the provisions of a still-born law of the 21st July, 1922, which had provided for a central Criminal Police Department responsible to the Reich Minister of the Interior, and represented in the Länder by similar departments. The Central Office was to lay down common principles of action, and its officers and those in the allied provincial offices were to be empowered, by virtue of this office, to exercise their functions in any part of the Reich. This law, however, was never promulgated in the Reich owing to opposition by the States.

10. New Organisation of the Gestapo

The incorporation of the re-moulded Political Police into the new organisation of the Secret State Police was clearly the next step.

On the 20th September, 1936, a new decree made the Gestapo-Amt (Office) in Prussia responsible for the duties of the Political Police Commanders in all the States of Germany.

On the 1st October, 1936, a further decree closed the gap completely by stating that the Political Police forces were to be called Geheime Staatspolizei (Secret State Police).

The creation of a network of Gestapo head offices and subsidiary offices, Stapoleitstellen (Regional Headquarters) and Stapostellen (Sub-regional Headquarters) throughout the Reich followed as a matter of course.

The Gestapo functioned for nearly three years before its position was defined by law. Though decrees dated 28th February, 1933, and 8th March, 1934, sanctioned the practice of protective custody, and a ruling of the Prussian Court on 2nd May, 1935, stated that the Secret State Police were not subject to judicial control, the fundamental legal basis on which the power of the Gestapo reposes is the famous Prussian (not Reich) Law of 10th February, 1936, entitled Gesetz für die Geheime Staatspolizei (Law concerning the Secret State Police).

This law, which consists of ten brief clauses, is so framed as to allow the very widest span of action to the Secret State Police; it is, in fact, nothing more than legal camouflage for unbridled police despotism of the most ruthless and sweeping nature.

The essence of the decree is contained in the seventh clause, which is barely three lines long. It states that decisions in affairs conducted by the Gestapo may not be re-examined by the Judiciary. This means in effect that persons may be arrested and imprisoned without just warrant or cause. It also means that persons tried and found "not guilty" in court, may be re-arrested by the Gestapo, the most famous example of this kind being the case of Pastor NIEMÖLLER.

In the course of their duties officers of the Gestapo may also invoke the co-operation of all types and branches of the local Police, whose personnel then enjoy the same legal protection as the Gestapo personnel.

Instructions for the application of this law, issued on the same date, i.e. 10th February, 1936, laid down in greater detail the functions and attributes of the Gestapo. Some of these are as follows:

- (a) Measures instituted by the Gestapo are equally effective in all parts of the Reich.
- (b) The Gestapo is the controlling authority for Political Police information.
- (c) The Gestapo controls and supervises all State concentration camps.

The local Gestapo office is kept informed by all State, provincial and local authorities, including even the Ministers of the Interior of the Länder, of all important political moves and speeches.

It is interesting to note that according to the law of the 10th February, 1936, the Chief of the Gestapo is the Prime Minister of Prussia (i.e. GÖRING). Technically, therefore, HIMMLER has never been, and is not even to-day, Chief of the Gestapo, though in effect this technicality is of no real importance—except possibly to GÖRING.

11. New Organisation of the Kripo

As the Kriminalpolizei or Kripo (Criminal Police) now forms part of the Sicherheitspolizei it is important to mention at this point the unification, parallel to that of the Gestapo, which was effected in the organisation of the Kripo.

The principal changes were set out in a series of decrees affecting the officials, the duties, the reporting and the detective services of the Criminal Police.

The Prussian Landeskriminalamt (State Criminal Police Department) became the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt (RKPA—National Headquarters of the Reich Criminal Police).

The activities of the Criminal Police throughout Germany now radiate from a network of Kriminalpolizeileitstellen (Criminal Police Regional Headquarters). These were, until 1943, attached to the National Police Administrations in their respective localities. They act as channels for passing instructions and reports from the central Criminal Police Department to the local Police stations in their area.

These local stations collect and classify crime statistics, and forward appreciations of local criminal activity; their operations in fact resemble those of any well ordered criminal police organisation. Any comparison, however, between the German Kripo and the criminal police of the democratic countries must take into account the wide powers of "preventive arrest" enjoyed by the Kripo, comparable only to those vested in the Gestapo.

12. Final Concentration of the German Security Forces

One of the most important changes in the history of the Police was the linking up of the Sipo with the Sicherheitsdienst (Security Service) des Reichsführers-SS (SD d. RFSS), the most powerful intelligence and counter-intelligence unit of the Nazi Party.

UNCLASSIFIED

The decree issued by the Reich Minister of the Interior on 11th November, 1938, made the SD officially responsible for the control of all persons, activities and events which might interfere with the dominance of the National Socialist idea. It stated :—

“ The Sicherheitsdienst of the RFSS, as the Party and Reich Government organisation, has to carry out important tasks ; in particular it must assist the Security Police (i.e. the Gestapo and the Kripo). The SD is consequently active on behalf of the Reich and this demands close and intelligent co-operation between the SD and the officials of the General and Interior Administration.”

The two branches of the Sipo, therefore, emerging from the 1936 reorganisation of the Police as new instruments of power, were now joined, i.e. ultimately dominated and controlled, by the SD. The consolidation of that control, finally placing the Gestapo and Kripo completely in the hands of the SD, was achieved by a decree of 23rd June, 1938, ordering the enrolment of all Sipo personnel in the ranks of the SS, if they were not already members.

The combined Gestapo, Kripo, and SD came to be known as the “ Staatsschutzkorps,”—an unofficial Nazi term signifying the combination of forces for the “ protection of the State.” In terms of organisation the process was expressed in 1939 by the merging of the Hauptamt Sicherheitspolizei in the Reich Ministry of the Interior with the SS-Sicherheitshauptamt.

Together they formed the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (RSHA—National Department of Security), the SD-Hauptamt, the Gestapoamt and the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt becoming parts of this new creation.

In 1944 HIMMLER took the final step in the seizure of complete police power by taking away practically all functions of Military Intelligence from the Armed Forces and handing them over to the SD. Controlling all political and military intelligence, the net of the SD has thus been thrown over the entire population and Armed Forces of Germany and German-occupied Europe, and even extends—through all German agents with missions of sabotage and espionage against the Allies—into territories beyond HIMMLER’s actual jurisdiction.

13. HIMMLER's Early Career and the Rise of the SS

Any description of the organisation of the German Police in its present-day form must start with the career of Heinrich HIMMLER, Reichsführer-SS und Chef der deutschen Polizei (RFSS u Ch d Dt P—Commander-in-Chief SS and Commander-in-Chief of the German Police). He is not only the leader of the German Police today, but he is the real dictator of Germany.

HIMMLER was born in 1900 and served for a brief period in the last war, attaining the rank of Fähnjunker (Officer cadet). Afterwards he studied agriculture in Munich and unsuccessfully tried his luck in various types of business, including chicken farming. For a time he was also a clerk in an artificial manure factory.

He joined the original Nazi Party and became standardbearer to RÖHM, chief of the SA, the Nazi Party Brownshirted Stormtroopers. Later on, he was secretary to Gregor STRASSER and took part in the HITLER beerhall-putsch of 1923.

On revival of the Party in 1925, after it had been banned and HITLER had been imprisoned, HIMMLER for a while conducted the affairs of the Party Gau NIEDERBAYERN as Geschäftsführer. Later on he became deputy Gauleiter, first of that Gau and afterwards of Gau OBERBAYERN (Munich).

In 1926 HIMMLER was made one of the original members of the Reichsleitung der NSDAP (National Socialist Party Directorate). It is also noteworthy that during the important years from 1926-1930, when the Party was campaigning throughout the country in order to regain lost ground, HIMMLER held the position of stellvertretender Reichspropagandaleiter (Deputy Propaganda Chief of the Party).

In 1927 HITLER appointed him deputy leader of the SS, then a subdivision of the much more powerful SA. It seems to be characteristic of HIMMLER that repeatedly throughout his career he has begun as deputy leader of an organisation, and in a short time managed to work his way into the leading position. Thus in 1929 we find him appointed by HITLER as Reichsführer-SS.

At that time the SS, HITLER's small body-guard, consisted of only 270 men, but by 1933 HIMMLER had increased this praetorian guard to roughly 50,000.

Their prestige was greatly advanced by the blood purge of the SA on 30th June, 1934, when the SS became independent of the Brownshirted Stormtroopers. The increase in powers of the SS was further accelerated by the emergence of the Waffen-SS (Armed SS).

At the beginning of the war the SS consisted of approximately 300,000 men, but the number of the members of the Allgemeine-SS (General SS) is now much smaller owing to the fact that many of its members have transferred into the Waffen-SS, the Police and the Armed Forces, or are employed as Concentration Camp guards.

The power of the SS, however, has still further increased, due to the enrolment of hundreds of thousands of men into the Waffen-SS, and owing to the fact that members of the SS today hold thousands of executive positions, not only in the Police, but in all branches of the Party, the German administration, business, industry, and official and private life in general. (The Basic Handbook of the SS, EDS/G/8, should be consulted.)

14. HIMMLER's Career in the Nazi Government

In 1933 HIMMLER became Chief of the Bavarian Political Police and in 1934 Deputy Chief of the Prussian Gestapo which later expanded into the Gestapo of today, spreading its tentacles over the whole of Germany and later, over Occupied Europe.

In June, 1936 HITLER created the new position of C-in-C of the German Police in the Reich Ministry of the Interior, and appointed HIMMLER to this post, thus making him Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei.

In 1939 HIMMLER was appointed Reichskommissar für die Festigung des Deutschen Volkstums (Reich Commissioner for the Strengthening of Germanism). As such he is responsible for the re-settlement of Volksdeutsche ("racial" Germans)—from the Volga, the Black Sea, Transylvania, Wallachia, etc.—in newly acquired territory, such as the Reichsgaue Wartheland and Danzig-Westpreussen, which had been taken from Poland, and were, prior to 1939, comparatively thinly populated by Germans.

This task is performed through the Volksdeutsche Mittelstelle, an office closely associated with the SS High Command and largely staffed by SS personnel.

Since the beginning of the war HIMMLER has acquired the positions of Generalkommissar für die Innere Verteidigung (Commissioner General for Internal Defence) and of Generalbevollmächtigter für die Verwaltung (G.B.V.—General-Plenipotentiary for Administration).

In this latter capacity he has under his supervision the Ministry of the Interior, the Ministries of Education, Church Affairs, and Space and Planning (Raumordnung), thereby controlling almost the entire bureaucratic machine of the Reich and its subordinate regional administrations. For some time the Ministry of Justice also belonged to this sphere of influence until THIERACK was appointed Reich Minister of Justice.

A major increase in HIMMLER's power occurred in August, 1943, when he was appointed Reichsinnenminister (Reich Minister of the Interior) succeeding Dr. FRICK, who became Reich Protector of Bohemia-Moravia. Until then HIMMLER had manoeuvred himself more and more into a leading position within the Ministry; but even though he found ways and means of circumventing the authority of his superior, FRICK was still technically his chief. From August, 1943 on, however, he was not only in fact, but also in name, the chief of Germany's Inner Affairs.

This development of his power came to a climax after the attempt on HITLER's life on 20th July, 1944, when HIMMLER succeeded Generaloberst FROMM as Chef der Heeresrüstung und Befehlshaber des Ersatzheers (Chief of Army Equipment and Commander of the Training Army). He is, therefore, Commander in Chief of all Home Forces.

~~UNCLASSIFIED~~

Thus, while the Führer concerned himself more and more with military affairs, HIMMLER became the ruling power in Germany itself.

As HIMMLER rose to power the SS High Command and its executives increased their power likewise, and gradually superseded government agencies in many if not in all respects.

As outlined in PART ONE, the Reichsführung-SS absorbed step by step the functions of the Hauptamt Sicherheitspolizei (National Department of the Security Police), until finally, in 1939, the latter department was officially merged with the SS-Sicherheitshauptamt der Reichsführung-SS (Reich Headquarters of the SD, i.e. the Security Service) to form the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (RSHA—National Department of Security).

Thus the SS established its extra-legal status within the German administration in general and specifically in the German police, over which HIMMLER himself wields absolute power.

B. HIMMLER'S IMMEDIATE REPRESENTATIVES

15. Central Control of the Police

HIMMLER exercises close control over his vast police empire through three chief assistants in Berlin, each in charge of one primary phase of police work. These are :—

(a) Chef der Ordnungspolizei (Chief of the Regular Police), who is in charge of the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei (National Department of Regular Police).

This position is held today by SS-OGF, General der Waffen-SS und General der Polizei Alfred WÜNNENBERG, who in 1943 succeeded Generaloberst der Polizei SS-Oberst-Gruppenführer Kurt DALUEGE.

(b) Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD des RFSS (Chief of the Security Police and the Security Service of the Commander-in-Chief of the SS), who is in command of the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (National Department of Security).

The present holder of this position is SS-OGF, General der Polizei, Staatssekretär Dr. Ernst KALTENBRUNNER. His predecessor in both appointments was SS-OGF Reinhardt HEYDRICH, who was killed by Czech patriots in 1942, at a time when he also held the position of Deputy Reich Protector of Bohemia-Moravia.

(c) Chef des Hauptamts Haushalt und Bauten (Chief of the Department of Budget and Buildings), whose office has now been taken over by the *SS-Wirtschafts- und Verwaltungshauptamt (WVHA—*the SS Economic and Administrative Department).

Nothing definite is known about the manner in which this amalgamation has taken place, but it is known that the man in charge of the WVHA, SS-OGF, General der W-SS Oswald POHL, also holds the rank and function of a Ministerialdirektor (rank of Generalleutnant in the Administration) in the Reich Ministry of the Interior. It therefore appears almost certain that this man is the Chief of the Hauptamt Haushalt und Bauten, which is part of that Ministry.

Under him are the two Ämter belonging both to the Ministry of the Interior (Office of the Chef der Deutschen Polizei) and the SS-WVHA. They are :

Amt Haushalt, identical with Amtsgruppe A of the WVHA, whose chief is not known, and Amt Bauten, identical with Amtsgruppe C of the WVHA, whose chief is SS-Gruppenführer, Generalleutnant der W-SS Dr. Ing. KÄMMLER.

Amtsgruppe A has offices at Munich and Fürstenberg (Mecklenburg). Amtsgruppe C has an office at Berlin-Lichterfelde West, Schlossstr 60. Both Amtsgruppen may have offices in other regions, but if so, they have not been identified.

16. Regional Control of the Police through HSSPf

Regional control of the Police is exercised by HIMMLER through the Höhere SS- und Polizeiführer (Superior SS and Police Commanders). These posts are a National Socialist innovation, and according to reliable evidence the office was created as early as 1937 at a time when HIMMLER, FRICK and GÖRING (the last in his capacity as *Präsident des Ministerrates für die Reichsverteidigung—*President of the Ministerial Council for National Defence), doubtless envisaged the possibility of war and the consequent need to strengthen the machinery of civil defence and internal security by appointing a personal representative of the Chief of the SS and Police with wide executive powers—a "little HIMMLER"—in each Wehrkreis (Military District or Armed Forces Corps Command). There are grounds for the assertion that this was a secret innovation and that the creation of this important office was not made known to the German public until shortly after the outbreak of hostilities.

Before the war the system of HSSPf was conceived as a "shadow" police organisation, their activities being limited to certain eventualities. On the outbreak of war, however, all police forces and formations in each Wehrkreis were subordinated to an HSSPf.

There are three categories of Superior SS and Police Commanders :—

(a) HSSPf installed in each of the eighteen SS-Oberabschnitte, which are almost identical with the eighteen Wehrkreise in Greater Germany. (This includes Wehrkreis Böhmen-Mähren, the former Protectorate.)

Since the Wehrkreis, i.e. the area over which an HSSPf has jurisdiction, is not identical with any administrative subdivision of Germany, the HSSPf is accredited to each higher administrative authority whose territory belongs partly or completely to that Wehrkreis. This is expressed in the title of an HSSPf. For example, the bulk of Wehrkreis IV (i.e. SS-Oberabschnitt ELBE) consists of Land Sachsen, plus parts of the surrounding administrative regions. Therefore the title of the HSSPf in Dresden reads as follows :

"Der HSSPf bei den Reichsstatthaltern und Oberpräsidenten in Sachsen, den Provinzen Halle-Merseburg, im Sudetengau, in Schlesien und in Thüringen im Wehrkreis IV."

Another good example is the HSSPf im Wehrkreis XIII (SS-Oberabschnitt MAIN), whose territory mainly consists of Northern Bavaria, plus the Regierungsbezirk Karlsbad of the Reichsgau Sudetenland and a few odd Landkreise of other German Länder. His title therefore reads :

"Der HSSPf beim Bayrischen Staatsministerium des Innern und bei den Reichsstatthaltern in Baden, im Sudetengau, in Thüringen und in Württemberg im Wehrkreis XIII."

(b) HSSPf outside Greater Germany, but in territory populated by people considered "Nordic and Aryan," and therefore organised into SS-Oberabschnitte.

~~UNCLASSIFIED~~

UNCLASSIFIED

UNCLASSIFIED

There are three such SS-Oberabschnitte :—
SS-Oa NORD (Norway).
SS-Oa NORDWEST (Holland).
SS-Oa OSTLAND (Baltic Countries).

The titles of these HSSPf are somewhat simpler than those located inside Germany because there is only one Higher Administrative Authority in occupied territory, namely the Reichskommissar. For example the title of the HSSPf in Holland reads as follows :

“ Der HSSPf beim Reichskommissar für die besetzten Niederländischen Gebiete. ”

(c) HSSPf in other occupied areas such as the General Gouvernement, Serbia, Greece, France, and the various Russian sectors. Virtually all these territories are already liberated, or about to be liberated by the United Nations, and little attention need therefore be paid to this group of HSSPf.

In Italy the German police administration is slightly different. Since the BADOGGIO Armistice in September, 1943, between the Italians and the Allies, SS-OGF, Gen. d W-SS Karl WOLFF has been installed in the German held part of the country as Höchster SS- u. Polizeiführer. He is HIMMLER'S representative and military plenipotentiary for all Italy with Headquarters at Verona.

WOLFF is the immediate superior to the HSSPf Adriatische Küste (Adriatic Coastal Zone) at Trieste and possibly also to one or two other HSSPf established for the Western and Central parts of Northern Italy. This, however, is not confirmed, and it is possible that WOLFF himself may administer these parts of Italy as HSSPf, his title as Höchster-SSPf merely expressing that he is the superior of one other HSSPf, namely the one located at Trieste. In addition, several SSPf (see para. 18 below) are known to be established in Italy.

WOLFF is also Chef des Persönlichen Stabes (Chief of HIMMLER'S Personal Staff) and was, until recently, HIMMLER'S representative at the Führerhauptquartier, i.e. the OKW (The Armed Forces High Command).

A situation similar to the one described above for Italy existed in the Ukraine, where until summer, 1944, SS-OGF Gen. d. Pol. Hans PRÜTZMANN was known as Höchster-SSPf, administering that territory himself like any other HSSPf, but being, at the same time, superior to another HSSPf, namely the HSSPf Schwarzes Meer (Black Sea) at Odessa—who has now moved to Tarnow (Tarnava) in Transylvania.

17. Powers of the HSSPf

The principal functions of the HSSPf today are to ensure smooth co-operation between the regional SS and Police Offices and the local military and civil authorities, and, in the event of an emergency, to take over command of the combined SS and Police forces in his area.

As senior responsible police official representing Headquarters in Berlin the HSSPf has a seat on the Defence Committee set up by the Ministerrat für die Reichsverteidigung (Ministerial Council for National Defence) in each Reichsverteidigungsbezirk (Reich Defence Region). These Defence Regions were originally identical with the Wehrkreise, but as a result of the decree of 17th November, 1942, they are now identical with the 42 Party Gaue in Greater Germany (see list of Reichsverteidigungskommissare in Annexe B).

The Superior SS and Police Commanders are also HIMMLER'S representatives with the Wehr- macht and work in close co-operation with the Acting Corps commanders, who are the military chiefs and commanding Generals of the Wehrkreise. Collaboration between these two high commanders in each area has become more and more important, because, since about June, 1943, “volunteers” have been drafted regularly and at an accelerated pace, partly through Wehrmacht channels, into the Waffen-SS, instead of into the regular Army, Navy or Air Force.

The forces at the disposal of the HSSPf include the Allgemeine-SS Standarten (Regiments)—i.e. the part-time voluntary members of the SS—units of the Waffen-SS in the local garrison and Waffen-SS depot units, all branches of the Regular Police (Orpo) and security police (Sipo) and the forces of the Security Service (SD).

An HSSPf usually holds the rank of SS Gruppenführer und Generalleutnant der Polizei. He has, as principal advisers and members of his staff, the Regional Commander of the Sipo and SD (BdS or IdS : see para 90), the Regional Commander of the Orpo (BdO : see para. 30), the Stabsführer (Chief of Staff) of the Allgemeine-SS, and any other official who may be nominated for a specific task.

In occupied territory the HSSPf may also command the units of the Waffen-SS if they are not under direct Waffen-SS or Army Command. For example, the HSSPf in Norway, SS-Obergruppenführer, General der Polizei Wilhelm REDISS was appointed HIMMLER'S special representative at the Norway Headquarters of the Army General Staff, and presumably commands the Waffen-SS units in Norway.

Two other recent incidents strikingly illuminate the growing potentialities of the post Höhere-SS und Polizeiführer.

SS-OGF, General der Polizei und der Waffen-SS Erich von dem BACH-ZELEWSKI, formerly HSSPf in Wehrkreis VIII (SS-Oberabschnitt SÜD-OST) and later HSSPf in several Eastern occupied territories, was recently appointed Commander in Chief of all German forces in the Warsaw sector, thereby commanding not only all SS, Waffen-SS and Police Forces, but the forces of the Wehrmacht, including even the Luftwaffe.

One day later, SS-OGF, General der Polizei, NSKK-OGF Hermann HÖFLE, the HSSPf of Wehrkreis XI (SS Oberabschnitt MITTE) was appointed Commander in Chief of all German forces in Slovakia. Hitherto SS and Police Forces employed at the front have always been under the command of Army or Air Force Generals : now, for the first time Wehrmacht forces have come under the command of SS and Police Generals.

18. SS-und Polizeiführer

Certain occupied territories such as the General Gouvernement, Norway, the Baltic countries, and other Eastern and Western territories (many, of course, having since been liberated by the Allies), are known as Reichskommissariate. In a Reichskommissariat all Police and SS forces are commanded by an HSSPf, with his assistant BdO and BdS. Most of the Reichskommissariate are again administratively subdivided into General-kommissariate, and in these areas the Germans have established SS- und Polizeiführer (SSPf—SS and Police Commanders). As subregional executives these men combine full SS and Police command in their areas, and come under the HSSPf responsible for the entire territory.

Under the HSSPf of the Government General at Krakau for example, there exist, or existed, SSPf in Lublin, Radom, Warsaw, Lemberg and Krakau.

An SSPf has, as his chief assistants and members of his staff, a Kommandeur der Orpo (Subdistrict Commander of the Regular Police) and a Kommandeur der Sipo und des SD (Subdistrict Commander of the Security Police and the Security Service); and these two offices are discussed in para. 32 and para. 93 respectively.

Thus, in the organisation of his staff as well as in his functions, the SSPf is a smaller scale version of the HSSPf.

REGIONAL ADMINISTRATION AND THE POLICE

19. Dual Nature of the Police System

The direct chain of command which leads from HIMMLER, as Chief of German Police, through his immediate representatives, to the Police Forces, has been outlined in PART TWO. Side by side with this chain of command there exist channels of Police administration, based on Germany's general administration.

In para. 5 it was explained that the various German Länder were compelled by a decree of 1934 to surrender their Hoheitsrechte (sovereign rights) to the Reich, but were empowered by the Reich Government to execute these rights on its behalf. The authorities of the Länder and their subdivisions were therefore left in a position to administer and implement the decrees and directives of the Reich Ministers. This included responsibility for administrative Police routine.

The result of the 1934 decree was a complex hierarchy formed by the administrative officials of the Länder, outwardly functioning as though the Reich were still a collection of semi-independent States, but in fact subject at all times to the powerful influence of the Reich authorities. For the purpose of dealing with the administrative Police routine some of these officials, in addition to their ordinary functions are, ex officio, police administrators. In this capacity they are known as Polizeibehörden (Police Authorities), or sometimes as Polizeiaufsichtsbehörden (Police Supervisory Authorities).

These Authorities administer the Ordnungspolizei side by side with the direct representatives of the central SS and Police autocracy.

The dual nature of this system is at times puzzling to the student of German affairs; indeed German writers themselves admit its anomalies and hint at a future simplification.

20. General Administrative Authorities

The ordinary regional administration of Germany today is the most complicated and least uniform of any country; it varies with every part of the Reich. Greater Germany itself—excluding the Protectorate and the Government General—is divided administratively into 15 Länder (the traditional States) and 11 Reichsgaue made up of territory annexed by Germany since 1933, and directly subordinate to the Reich Government.

(Note.—The pre-1918 Prussian Provinces, e.g. Posen and Westpreussen, were not reincorporated into Prussia.)

The German administration is headed by the Reichsminister des Innern (Reich Minister of the Interior), i.e. HIMMLER.

Under him the senior executive official of each Land or Reichsgau is the Reichsstatthalter (Reich Governor) who is the direct representative of the Reichsregierung (Reich Government) and thus of HITLER himself.

Under the Reichsstatthalter each Land is administered by its own Government, known as the Landesregierung or Staatsverwaltung, while in the Reichsgaue the Reichsstatthalter is the direct head of the Staatliche Verwaltung which administers the affairs of the Reichsgau.

21. Administration in the Länder and Reichsgaue

The administrative organisations of the Länder and Reichsgaue are as follows:—

(i) Land Preussen

In Prussia a Preussische Staatsregierung (Prussian State Government) exists in name only, as all ministerial positions are merged with the corresponding posts in the Reichsregierung. Since, therefore, the Prussian Ministry of the Interior is now completely merged with the Reich Ministry of the Interior—as shown in the title "Reichs und Preussischer Minister des Innern" (R u Pr M d I)—the Prussian Provinces are directly controlled by the Reichsinnenminister (HIMMLER).

There are 14 Prussian Provinces, each headed by an Oberpräsident (Provincial Chief Administrator).

Each Prussian Province is again divided into several Regierungsbezirke (Administrative Districts), each headed by a Regierungspräsident. There are, at the present time, 35 Prussian Regierungsbezirke (See Annexe B).

In addition to the 14 Oberpräsidenten there are three administrators who also rank as Prussian Oberpräsidenten, bringing the total to 17. They are:—

The Stadtpräsident of Berlin (City President, or Chief Administrator for Greater Berlin).

The Reichsstatthalter of Thüringen, in his capacity as superior of the Regierungspräsident of the semi-independent Prussian Regierungsbezirk Erfurt.

The Reichsstatthalter of Land Oldenburg and Hansestadt Bremen, in his capacity as superior of the Regierungspräsidenten of Osnabrück and Aurich.

Note.—On the 1st April, 1944, the Prussian Provinz Sachsen was divided into two Provinces:—

Provinz Halle-Merseburg (the former Regierungsbezirk Merseburg) and Provinz Magdeburg (the former Regierungsbezirk Magdeburg).

Similarly, the Provinz Hessen-Nassau was divided into:—

Provinz Kurhessen (the former Regierungsbezirk Kassel), and Provinz Nassau (the former Regierungsbezirk Wiesbaden).

These four new Provinces consist each of only one Regierungsbezirk, and the Stellvertretender (Deputy) Oberpräsident of each of these Provinces has the rank and function of an acting Regierungspräsident.

The Regierungsbezirke Osnabrück and Aurich properly belong to the Province of Hannover, and as far as can be ascertained, still continue to do so, but administratively they have, since the 1st April, 1944, been separated for the time being from the province Hannover in order to bring them into accord with the borders of the Reichsverteidigungsbezirke (Reich Defence Regions).

Similar reasons may have existed for splitting the provinces of Sachsen and Hessen-Nassau.

(ii) Land Bayern

Before 1933, Bavaria consisted of 8 Regierungs-

UNCLASSIFIED

bezirke, but today it consists of only 5, owing to the fact that in two instances two former Regierungsbezirke have been combined into one, while one Regierungsbezirk, the Bavarian Exclave Rheinpfalz, has been included for administrative purposes in the Reichsgau Westmark for the duration of the war.

(iii) Land Sachsen

Saxony formerly consisted of 4 Regierungsbezirke, which were dissolved at the end of 1942. Their functions were centralised and taken over by Saxony's Ministry of the Interior.

(iv) Land Baden

Baden is divided into 4 Landeskommissariate (comparable in some respects to Regierungsbezirke) to which must be added 2 Landeskommissariate in the Zivilverwaltungsgebiet (Civil Administration Region) of Alsace, which are administratively attached to Baden.

(v) The other Länder

The remaining Länder are not divided into Regierungsbezirke but directly into Kreise (see below).

(vi) The "Austrian" Reichsgaue

The seven Reichsgaue Wien, Oberdonau, Niederdonau, Salzburg, Kärnten, Steiermark and Tirol-Vorarlberg cover the former Austria plus some border regions of former Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia. (Until shortly after the Anschluss Austria was frequently referred to as the "Ostmark." This designation, however, has now been dropped entirely in favour of the term "die Donau und Alpen-gaue," in order to exclude any perpetuation of the idea of an independent Austria).

These 7 Reichsgaue are not subdivided into Regierungsbezirke. The Reichsstatthalter has the functions of a Regierungspräsident and delegates duties connected with this office to his deputy, who thereby becomes Acting Regierungspräsident.

(vii) Reichsgaue Sudetenland, Danzig-Westpreussen and Wartheland

Each of these three Reichsgaue is subdivided into three Regierungsbezirke.

(viii) Reichsgau Westmark

The Reichsgau Westmark is subdivided into the Bayerische Pfalz or Rhein-Pfalz (Rhenish Palatinate), the Saarland and Zivilverwaltungsgebiet Lothringen (Civil Administration Region of Lorraine).

Below the level of Regierungsbezirke or the level of the smaller Länder all Germany (the old Reich as well as the newly acquired territories) is divided into Land- und Stadtkreise (rural and urban districts corresponding to American counties) headed by a Landrat (Rural Councillor) or an (Ober-) Bürgermeister (Mayor) respectively.

22. Police Authorities (Polizeibehörden)

As explained in para 19 certain officials of the regional administrative system have the additional task of administering their local Orpo Forces, and are known in this capacity as Polizeibehörden (Police Authorities).

A number of decrees determine which officials shall constitute the Polizeibehörden in each territorial division of Germany. Police Authorities are classified in descending order, as follows :—

Höhere Polizeibehörden Higher Police Authorities, also referred to by their pre-1933 name of Landespolizeibehörden (State Police Authorities).

Kreispolizeibehörden District Police Authorities.

Ortspolizeibehörden Local Police Authorities.

In addition to these authorities who, ex officio, administer Police affairs, there are other authorities staffed by full-time Police officials. These are the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen (HQs of the National Police Administration) and they are classified as :—

Besondere Polizei Behörden Special Police Authorities.

Such Police Headquarters are established in almost all larger towns, where they combine the functions of the Kreis- and Ortspolizeibehörden. They are the backbone of the administrative system of the Ordnungspolizei.

These four categories of Police Authorities are discussed in the next two paragraphs.

23. The Higher, District and Local Police Authorities

(i) Höhere Polizeibehörden

The higher Police Authorities in the various administrative areas of Germany are as follows :—

Administrative Areas	Höhere Polizeibehörden
Prussia, Bavaria, Reichsgaue Sudetenland, Danzig Westpreussen and Wartheland.	The Regierungspräsidenten (total 49).
Sachsen, Württemberg, Baden, Thüringen, Oldenburg, Braunschweig.	The Innenministerien (Ministries of the Interior).
Mecklenburg	The Staatsministerium, Abteilung Inneres (Ministry of State, Department of Internal Affairs).
Hessen, Anhalt, Lippe	The Reichsstatthalter , acting through the Landesregierung (State Government).
Schaumburg-Lippe ...	The Landesregierung .
Hamburg	The Reichsstatthalter , acting through the Staatsverwaltung (State Administration).
Bremen	The Regierende Bürgermeister (Governing Mayor)
The Reichsgaue Westmark, Wien, Niederdonau, Oberdonau, Salzburg, Steiermark, Kärnten and Tirol-Vorarlberg	The Reichsstatthalter , through his Stellvertreter (deputy) who acts as Regierungspräsident , head of the Staatliche Verwaltung .

(ii) Kreispolizeibehörden

The Kreispolizeibehörden (District Police Authorities) are controlled by the appropriate Höhere Polizeibehörden.

In a Landkreis (Rural District) the Landrat functions as Kreispolizeibehörde; in a Stadtkreis (Urban District formed by a large town) it is the Bürgermeister or Oberbürgermeister (Mayor), or where applicable (see para. 24) the Staatliche Polizeiverwalter. The area under the jurisdiction of a Kreispolizeibehörde is called a Kreispolizeibe-zirk.

The Kreispolizeibehörden in turn supervise and control the Ortspolizeibehörden.

(iii) Ortspolizeibehörden

These Local Police Authorities, consist in the main of the Bürgermeister of smaller towns and rural communities or the Oberbürgermeister of larger towns (cf. Kreispolizeibehörden).

In those towns and cities which have a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung (see para. 24 below), the Staatliche Polizeiverwalter (National Police Administrator) assumes most of the functions of the Ortspolizeibehörden (see para. 81 on the Verwaltungspolizei).

In certain exceptional instances the authority of the Ortspolizeibehörden rests with such Police Officials as the following :

Areas	Ortspolizeibehörden
Those of the Preussische Ostprovinzen (Prussian Eastern Provinces) in which several Landgemeinden (Rural Communities) are combined into one Amtsbezirk .	The Amtsvorsteher (the chief administrator)
Those parts of the Regierungsbezirke Schneidemühl, Frankfurt/Oder and Liegnitz (excluding the towns) which, before 1918, belonged to the Province Posen	The Polizeidistrikt-kommissar (Police District Commissioner)
The provinces Rheinland and Westfalen.	The Amtsbürgermeister
The province Hannover and Helgoland	The Landrat (Rural Subdistrict Councillor)
Cases where the police authority does not rest with the Bürgermeister in the newly incorporated Ostgebiete (Eastern Districts)	The Amtskommissar (Commissioner)

The area under the jurisdiction of an Ortspolizeibehörde is known as an Ortspolizeibe-zirk.

All the above mentioned Police administrations rank as Regional Authorities in that they constitute chains of command, channels of reporting and administrative authorities for routine police work.

They are for the extent of such police work technically subordinate (sachlich unterstellt) to the Headquarters of the Chief of the German Police, and it depends on the matter in hand whether their orders will be issued by the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei (National Department of Regular Police) or the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (National Department of Security) as will be discussed in PARTS FOUR and FIVE.

24. The Special Police Authorities

Besondere Polizeibehörden (Special Police Authorities) are the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen (see para. 79 et seq.). They are established in larger towns and cities and combine the police functions of an Ortspolizeibehörde with those of a Kreispolizeibehörde in the Stadtkreis.

Thus the official in charge, the Staatlicher Polizeiverwalter (National Police Administrator) takes the place of the appropriate administrative official described in the previous paragraph.

According to their relative importance and personnel strength, the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen are classified as follows :—

(a) Polizeipräsidiën

Headed by a Polizeipräsident, and divided into four categories, viz :—

- (i) Sonderklasse (Special Category), existing only in Berlin, Hamburg and Wien.
- (ii) Grosse Polizeipräsidiën (large).
- (iii) Mittlere Polizeipräsidiën (medium).
- (iv) Kleine Polizeipräsidiën (small).

(b) Polizeidirektionen

Headed by a Polizeidirektor.

(c) Polizeiämter

Divided into two categories, viz :—

- (i) Branch Offices of (a) or (b) above, and controlled by (a) or (b). These are headed by a Polizeirat.
- (ii) Independent Polizeiämter, controlled by the local Landrat. These are headed by a Polizeirat or Polizeioberinspekteur.

A list of all Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen in Greater Germany with their street addresses, personalities and other details is given in Annexe C.

For both technical and personnel matters, the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen are subordinate (personnell und fachlich unterstellt) to the Chef der Ordnungspolizei (WÜNNENBERG).

In those instances, however, where their tasks are in the field of the Sicherheitspolizei, they are subordinate for technical, but never for personnel matters to the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD (KALTENBRÜNNER).

NOTE.—Police Administration in Berlin

Berlin is a special case ; here the functions of the Höhere Polizeibehörden, in addition to the Kreis- und Ortspolizeibehörden, are combined in the person of the Polizeipräsident. The latter is equal in rank to a Prussian Regierungspräsident in the same way as the Stadtpräsident of Berlin is equal in rank to the Prussian Oberpräsident.

Thus Berlin's administration has a double nature. It is at once a Landesverwaltungsbezirk (State Administrative District) and a Selbstverwaltende Körperschaft (Autonomous Administrative Body), like a Regierungsbezirk.

As a Landesverwaltungsbezirk Berlin then assumes the exceptional position of including the functions of a Provinz, a Regierungsbezirk, a Kreispolizeibe-zirk and an Ortspolizeibe-zirk.

It should be noted that Berlin has several, probably twenty, Bezirksbürgermeister (District Mayors).

25. Conclusion

Thus we see that the Polizeibehörden, which are manned either by regional administrative officials acting ex officio or by full-time police officials, constitute the administrative and partly the command channels of the Orpo. The manner in which this system works in practice is discussed throughout PART FOUR (Orpo) especially in the Section dealing with the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police).

On the other hand the branches of the Sipo and SD, as their designation Sonder- oder Fachpolizei (Special or Technical Police) suggests, are in theory, if not always in practice, completely divorced from this regional system of administration. They have their own chains of command and their own administrative machine.

UNCLASSIFIED

We are faced therefore today in the German police with certain chains of command which are direct and independent and others, which, though ultimately subject to the same central control, are interlocked with the remnants of a regionally dispersed system of state and local administration.

The complexity of this system, which may well be said to confuse even German officials themselves, might easily prove a means of creating difficulties for an Allied occupation government. It might even serve to cover up details which would otherwise be inconveniently revealing.

Part Four

THE ORDNUNGSPOLIZEI

A. HIGHER ORGANISATION AND GENERAL STRUCTURE OF THE ORPO

26. General

All Police activities concerned with the maintenance of order and the protection of public safety are today combined in the Ordnungspolizei (Regular Police), abbreviated Orpo.

A literal translation of the word Ordnungspolizei would be "Police for the maintenance of Law and Order." Throughout this book the word Ordnungspolizei is for simplicity translated as "Regular Police," but this does not imply that those branches of the German police which do not belong to the Orpo are irregular, wartime, or part-time services.

In an analysis of the Orpo the complete centralisation of this body of fully militarised and armed policemen must constantly be kept in mind.

The regular uniformed German policeman, his functions, powers and status in the community can hardly be compared with his so-called equivalent in the Western countries. The Orpo is far more a Military Force of the Interior than an organisation of public servants.

The Allies, therefore, must exercise extreme caution in the employment of any members of the Orpo. Their reliability is, to say the least, highly doubtful and the character and past history of each man needs close scrutiny as to former Party affiliation, SS-membership, pre-Hitler service in the police, and individual record.

Only the most careful weeding out and the most rigorous individual investigations of German police personnel down to the patrolman on the suburban street corner will leave the occupation authorities with a dependable German police force.

27. The Orpo HQ (Hauptamt Orpo)

The Orpo Headquarters, officially known as the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei (National Department of Regular Police) are in Berlin. They form part of the Office of the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei, in the Reich Ministry of the Interior.

The Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei is headed by Alfred WÜNNENBERG (Chef der Ordnungspolizei). Originally that position had been held by SS-Oberst-Gruppenführer, Generaloberst d. Pol. Kurt DALUEGE until his habitual heavy drinking came to be considered too serious an interference with his official duties. In 1943, therefore, HIMMLER decided that the rudder of the Hauptamt Orpo was to be placed into steadier hands, but as a jealous guardian of the "reputation" of his organisation, he quietly shelved DALUEGE for "reasons of health" without ever publicly and officially ousting him from his position. As a result of this face-saving technicality DALUEGE is still, in name, Chief of the Hauptamt Orpo with WÜNNENBERG appearing only as Chef der Ordnungspolizei m.d.F.b. (mit der Führung beauftragt, i.e. charged with the conduct of affairs).

The Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei is divided into seven Ämter—consisting of three main divisions (I, II, III) and four lesser bureaux (IV, V, VI, VII)—which specialise in various functions of the Ordnungspolizei.

These Ämter, given with what are believed to be the official German numbers, are as follows :

I. Das Kommandoamt

The Chef des Kommandoamtes (Chief of the High Command or Operational Headquarters of the Regular Police) since November 1944 is SS-BF Genmaj. d. Pol. FLADE. He replaced SS-BF Genmaj. d. Pol. Anton DIERMANN. The Kommandoamt consists of three Amtsgruppen, each containing several Ämter (bureaux)—also called Gruppen (Groups)—as follows :—

Amtsgruppe I

Ämter :—

Verwendung	Employment
Organisation	Organisation
Wirtschaft	Finance, Pay, etc.
Bekleidung und Verpflegung	Clothing and Rations
Reichsverteidigung und Luftschutz	Defence of the Reich and Air Raid Protection
Feuerschutzpolizei	Fire Protection Police
Ausbildung	Training
Körperschulung	Physical Training
Nachrichtenverbindungswesen	Signals and the Police Communications network
Kraftfahrwesen	Motor Transport
Waffen und Gerätewesen	Police Ordnance and Equipment

Amtsgruppe II

Ämter :—

Personalangelegenheiten	Personnel
Weltanschauliche Erziehung	Ideological Indoctrination

Note.—The Publication "Politischer Informationsdienst" (Political Information Service) issued by the Chef der Ordnungspolizei was formerly published by the Amt Weltanschauliche Erziehung.

Some time between 10th March and 1st July, 1941 the title of this publication was changed to "Mitteilungsblätter für die Weltanschauliche Schulung der Ordnungspolizei" (Information for the Ideological Indoctrination of the Regular Police).

The Publishing Office is now listed as Gruppe instead of Amt Weltanschauliche Erziehung.

This publication can be compared to a similar one issued to the Armed Forces entitled: "Mitteilungen für die Truppe" (Information for the Armed Forces). Its contents are of the usual morale-building type and are designed for the lowest level of understanding.

Veterinärwesen	Veterinary Service
-----------------------	--------------------

Amtsgruppe III

Amt Sanitätswesen	Medical and Hygienic Services

11. Das Amt Verwaltung und Recht

The Amt Verwaltung und Recht (Office of Administration and Judicial Matters) originally handled all budget, legal and administrative affairs (see III below). It is headed by SS-GF Ministerialdirektor BRACHT.

It consists of three Amtsgruppen each of which contains several Ämter (or Gruppen) as follows:—

	Amtsgruppe I
Ämter:—
Verreichlichung der Polizei	Unification and Centralisation of the Police
Haushaltswesen	Budget and Economy
Dienststrafrecht	Official Police Disciplinary and Penal Code
Deutsches Polizeibeamtengesetz	Legal Code of the German Police Officials
Personalangelegenheiten der Polizeiverwaltungsbeamten	Personnel questions of the Police Administrative officials
Besoldung und Versorgung	Pay, Allowances and Pensions

	Amtsgruppe II
Ämter:—
Allgemeine Organisation der Polizei	General Organisation of the Police
Allgemeines Polizeirecht	General Police Law
Theaterpolizei	Police functions regarding places of entertainment (theatres etc.)
Feuerpolizei	Fire Police
Gewerbepolizei	Police controlling handicrafts and trades
Meldewesen	Police Registry and Reports
Volkskartei	The National Population Register
Straftilgung	Annulment of penalties
Verkehrspolizei	Traffic Police

	Amtsgruppe III
Ämter:—
Unterkunftsbesen der Polizei	Quarterming and billeting of the Police

III. Das Wirtschaftsverwaltungsamt

The war has brought about an enormous increase in the administration and supply problems of the Police.

The creation of field units and the constant flow of replacements for the home front from the Police Reserve added to the work of the Kommandoamt and the Amt Verwaltung und Recht. It appears that, some time in 1943, a new office, the Wirtschaftsverwaltungsamt (Office for the Administration of Budget and Supply) was added to the Hauptamt Orpo to deal with some of this extra work. The name of this new Bureau, as well as other pieces of evidence, indicate a close relationship between the Wirtschaftsverwaltungsamt of the Police and the SS-Wirtschafts- und Verwaltungshauptamt (WVHA), another manifestation of the ever-increasing tendency towards amalgamation of the Police with the SS.

It is of interest to note that the Hauptamt Orpo was damaged in an air raid in February 1914, and that as a result three of the Amtsgruppen of the Wirtschaftsverwaltungsamt were temporarily housed with one of the WVHA offices in Berlin-Lichterfelde West, Unter den Eichen 126.

The Wirtschaftsverwaltungsamt is headed by SS-Obergruppenführer, Generalleutnant der Waffen-SS und Polizei August FRANK. It consists of the Amtschef and the following five Amtsgruppen:

Amtsgruppe I

Bekleidung und Verpflegung Clothing and Rations.

Amtsgruppe II

Kassen und Besoldungswesen Finance and Pay.

Amtsgruppe III

Unterbringung Quarters and Billeting.

Amtsgruppe IV

Versorgung und Recht Allowances, Pensions and Legal Matters.

Gruppe Pers.

Personal Personnel

The four lesser bureaux are as follows:—

IV. Das Amt Technische Nothilfe (Bureau of the Technical Emergency Corps). At Berlin-Steglitz, Birkbuschstrasse 18.

Headed by SS-GF Genlt. d. Pol. Willy SCHMELCHER.

V. Das Amt Feuerwehren (Bureau of Fire Brigades). At Berlin, Lindenstrasse 40-42. Headed by Genmaj. d. Pol. SCHNELL.

VI. Das Kolonialpolizeiamt (Bureau of the Colonial Police). In Berlin, Hegelplatz 2.

Headed until the middle of 1944 by SS-OGF Gen. d. W-SS u. d. Pol. Karl von PFEFFER-WILDENBRUCH, who was also General-Inspekteur d. Polizeischulen (see next paragraph).

VII. Das Amt Technische SS und Polizeiakademie (Bureau of the Technical SS and Police Academy). In Berlin-Zehlendorf, Potsdamer Chaussee.

Headed by SS-BF Genmaj d. Pol. Professor Dr. H. GERLOFF.

28. The Inspectorates in the Hauptamt Orpo

The Hauptamt Orpo also includes the following Inspectors who supervise the activities of the Orpo and are directly responsible to its head:—

Der General-Inspekteur der Schutzpolizei des Reiches (Inspector General of the Reich Protection Police). SS-GF Genlt. d. Pol. Georg SCHREYER.

Der General-Inspekteur der Gendarmerie und der Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden (Inspector General of Rural Police and of Municipal Protection Police).

This position was held by SS-OGF Gen. d. Pol. Jürgen von KAMPTZ, until he was made BdO Italy some time in 1944.

Der General-Inspekteur der Polizeischulen (Inspector General of Police Schools).

Also known as General-Inspekteur für das Ausbildungswesen (Inspector Gen. of Training). Until the middle of 1944 this office was held by SS-OGF, Gen. d. W-SS und d. Pol. Karl von PFEFFER-WILDENBRUCH, who was also Chief of the Kolonialpolizeiamt (see previous paragraph).

Der General-Inspekteur der Feuerschutzpolizei und

UNCLASSIFIED

Feuerwehren (Inspector General of the Fire Protection Police and of the Fire Brigades).

This office is now held by SS-BF Genmaj. d. Pol. RUMPF, who succeeded SS-GF Genlt. d. Pol. Dr. Ing. MEYER.

This appointment is also known as the "Inspekteur für das Feuerlöschwesen für Stadt und Land" (Inspector of all Urban and Rural Fire Fighting Forces). The re-naming probably took place in 1939 when the Feuerschutzpolizei was instituted and the Feuerwehren came more or less under the control of that organisation.

Der General-Inspekteur für das Sanitätswesen (Inspector General of Police Medical Services).

It is not exactly known who holds this position at present. SS-OGF, Prof. Dr. Ernst R. GRAWITZ may possibly combine it with his position as Reichsarzt der SS und Polizei.

Der Inspekteur für das Nachrichtenwesen (Inspector of Signals).

This office is held by Genmaj. d. Pol. SCHLAKE.

Der Inspekteur für Weltanschauliche Schulung (Inspector for Ideological Indoctrination).

This office was held until 1942 by SS-OF Dr. Joachim CAESAR. It was subsequently vacant for a considerable period, but it is possible that it was held for a time by SS-GF Genlt. d. Pol. Adolf Th. E. von BOMHARD.

On 1st January 1944, an Inspekteur für die gesamte Weltanschauliche Erziehung in der SS und Polizei (Inspector for all Ideological Indoctrination of SS and Police) was appointed, the position being given to SS-BF Ernst FICK, who is directly subordinate to the SS Hauptamt.

Der Inspekteur der Wasserschutzpolizei (Inspector of the Waterways Protection Police).

This office with Headquarters at Kiel was founded on 15th September 1943 by order of the RFSS u Ch d Dt Pol. SS-BF Genmaj. d. Pol. KRUMHAAR was appointed to this post. On 1st July 1944 he was succeeded by Oberst der Schupo Ernst SCHRÖTER, and the office moved to Berlin, N.W.7, Unter den Linden 74.

In addition the following Inspectorates exist:—

Inspektion für das Kraftfahr- und Verkehrswesen (Jn K—Inspectorate of M/T and Traffic Control).

Inspektion für Waffen und Geräte (Jn WG—Inspectorate of Arms and Equipment).

Inspektion für die Luftschutzpolizei und den Luftschutzeinsatz (Jn L—Inspectorate of Air Raid Protection and Air Raid Protection Police).

Inspektion für das Veterinärwesen (Jn Vet—Inspectorate of Police Veterinary Services).

29. Establishments controlled by the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei

The following institutions and schools are under direct administration and supervision of the Hauptamt Orpo:—

Das Staatskrankenhaus der Polizei (Government Hospital for the Police)

In Berlin. Also several other sanatoria and convalescent homes for policemen.

Die Staatliche Lehr- und Versuchsanstalt für Polizeihunde (Government Institute for Police Dog Training and Research)

Berlin-Grünheide.

Die Polizei-Offizier-Schule (Police Officers' School)

In Berlin-Köpenick.

Die Polizei-Offizier- und Schutzpolizei-Schule (Police Officers' and Protection Police School)

In Fürstenfeldbruck, Bavaria.

Die Schutzpolizei-Schulen (Protection Police Schools)

In Berlin, Hellerau bei Dresden, Heidenheim, Bottrop, Köln, München, Königshütte, Frankfurt a/M, Hamburg, Porlitz, Pelplin and Gnesen.

Die Polizei-Schule für Leibesübungen (Physical Training College for Policemen)

In Berlin-Spandau.

Die Technische Polizei-Schule (Technical Police School)

In Berlin.

Die Kraftfahr-Schule (M/T School)

In Dresden.

Die Wasserschutzpolizei-Schule (School for Waterways Protection Police)

Formerly in Stettin, now at Lauterbach/Rügen.

Die Polizeireit-Schulen (Police Cavalry Schools)

In Rathenau (Mark Brandenburg) and Bendzin (Upper Silesia.)

Die Kolonialpolizei-Schule (School for Colonial Police)

In Oranienburg. Also known as Schule für den auswärtigen Einsatz (School for Service Abroad).

Die Sanitätsschule beim Staatskrankenhaus der Polizei (Medical School at the Government Hospital for the Police)

In Berlin.

Die Polizei-Ski-Schulen (Police Schools for Ski-training)

In Oberjoch (Allgäu), Sudelfeld (Upper-Bavaria) and Kitzbühel (Tyrol).

Die Gendarmerie-Schulen (Schools for Rural Police)

In Hildesheim, Suhl, Bad Ems, Freiburg (Br.), Deggingen (Württemberg), Wien-Mödling, Hollabrunn (N/D), and Fraustadt.

Die Polizei-Akademie für Luftschutzführung (Police Academy for ARP Tactics)

In Oranienburg. This school was originally called Polizei-Schule für Luftschutzführer (Police School for ARP officers), and was then in Berlin-Schöneberg.

30. Regional Control : Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei

As previously explained, the highest Commander of the Orpo in each Wehrkreis is the Befehlshaber der Ordnungspolizei (Commander of Regular Police, abbr. BdO).

HIMMLER originally installed these men as Inspektoren der Ordnungspolizei (IdO) in which capacity they were charged with supervising and co-ordinating all activities of the various branches of the Regular Police in their region. Only in emergencies were they to take actual command of all the forces under them.

Subsequently however, many war-time and political problems forced HIMMLER to concentrate Police power in the hands of a small number of trusted followers. In this process all the Inspektoren der Orpo were, in Oct., 1943, elevated to the position and status of Befehlshaber der Orpo (BdO).

They are today in full charge of all Orpo activities within their military district, and are within their Wehrkreis direct representatives of the Hauptamt Orpo.

A BdO is also the representative of the Orpo on the staff of the HSSPf, the Regional Chief of all Police and SS work. In the absence of the HSSPf, the BdO becomes the independent chief in the Wehrkreis as far as questions pertaining to the Orpo are concerned.

UNCLASSIFIED

To what extent the BdO and above them the HSSPf will encroach upon the powers of the Corps Commander of each Wehrkreis is a matter of speculation. It must however be remembered that the BdO in occupied countries bordering Germany have often been in complete charge of large scale anti-partisan and anti-guerrilla warfare. In fact entire campaigns have been waged by fully militarised Orpo forces under their regional Commanders. Thus, while the HSSPf must be viewed as a regional "little HIMMLER," the BdO is his field commander.

Special tasks of the BdO are :—

(a) The supervision of basic and advanced training.

(b) The supervision of tactical Police and ARP Training.

(c) The supervision of the advanced technical training of Police Officers of all branches of the Orpo.

(d) The co-ordination of defensive preparations (Reichsverteidigung) in so far as they pertain to the work of the Orpo.

(e) Training of all auxiliary formations of the Orpo for ARP and similar war-time tasks.

It is not known whether the offices of all BdO are organised in a uniform manner, but the office organisation of the BdO in Paris can probably be considered as typical. It was organised in accordance with the basic pattern of a Schutzpolizeikommando (see para. 39) as follows :—

Adjutantur	Central Office
Abt. Ia	Plans, training and operations
Abt. Ib	Supply and equipment
Abt. Ic	Control of French police forces
	Counter-intelligence
	Security of zone of communications
Abt. II	Personnel and welfare
Abt. Registratur	Documents and files
Abt. K	M/T (Kraftfahrwesen)
Abt. LS	ARP (Luftschutz)
Abt. N	Communications; signals intelligence (Nachrichten)
Abt. Feuerschutzpolizei	Fire-fighting
Abt. SAN	Medical services (Sanitätsdienste)
Abt. WE	Ideology (Weltanschauung); party charities. See also next paragraph
Abt. IV	Cashier; bookkeeping and accounting; quarters and buildings

Abt. III did not exist in France. Apparently the number was reserved for one of the sections now known by letters or names. In other countries Abteilung III was definitely identified, sometimes attending to certain aspects of recruiting for the field forces of the police, sometimes handling a variety of other subjects. No fixed conclusion can therefore be drawn concerning this Abteilung.

It should also be mentioned that Abteilung SAN (Medical Services) sometimes appeared as Abt. IV B, and in other places Abteilungen numbered between V and VIII were reported. Thus while the basic plan for the office of a BdO is standard, a certain amount of variation according to local requirements must be expected.

A full description of the organisation of the BdO Paris will be found in Annexe A.

According to the example of the office of the BdO in Paris, the filing system used in the offices of the BdO is the same as that used in all Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen (National Police Administration). It is based on the Einheitsaktenplan (EAPL—Uniform Filing System), which was issued in 1934. For further details see para. 80 in the Section on Verwaltungspolizei.

31. Police Indoctrination Officers

In connection with the BdO a special type of officer deserves mention, the Polizei-Schulungsleiter (Indoctrination Officer of the Police). It appears that there is one assigned to the staff of each BdO.

Not very much is known about his function, but he seems to be charged with the supervision of morale and with National-Socialist education of the Regular Police personnel in the area of the BdO, to whose staff he is assigned.

He is comparable to the NSFO (National-Sozialistische Führungsoffizier—National Socialist Indoctrination Officer) of the Wehrmacht.

Polizei-Schulungsleiter are known to have existed since 1943. They are, like the NSFO, another striking indication of the endeavour of the Party to "nazify" and "fanaticise" all Germans.

Ten of these Polizei-Schulungsleiter have been identified so far. Their ranks range from SS-Hauptsturmführer (Captain) to SS-Obersturmbannführer (Lt. Colonel). Three of them come directly from the staff of the SS-Hauptamt. The names of those identified appear in Annexe A under the list of personalities mentioned in connection with the offices of the Befehlshaber der Orpo.

32. Kommandeure der Orpo

In the Generalkommissariate, which are sub-districts in certain occupied areas, there exist subregional Commanders of the Orpo known as Kommandeure der Ordnungspolizei (KdO). These should not be confused with the Kommandeure der Schutzpolizei (see para. 38), who are local Commanders of the forces of the Protection Police.

A Kommandeur der Orpo, as noted in para. 18 (q.v.), is a member of the staff of the SSPf in the particular sub-district. For this area he commands all Orpo forces in the same manner as his superior, the BdO, does for the entire occupied territory.

In the course of the war a number of these KdO have also been identified inside Germany, where they do not serve under an SSPf. Apparently they are established wherever there is need for local coordination of all Orpo forces, especially the forces of the urban and rural police.

Other reports mention an official known as the Stabsoffizier der Orpo at the office of the Regierungspräsident or similar higher police authority, who attends to such coordination and liaison in an allotted area. It is not clear whether or not Stabsoffizier der Orpo is simply another name for Kommandeur der Orpo. (See also para. 38 on the Stabsoffizier der Schutzpolizei).

33. The two categories of the Orpo

The Ordnungspolizei has two primary functions, carried out by two categories of police :—

Firstly, the duties usually connected with the concept of Police—but on a "German scale"—such as maintaining order, directing traffic, protecting the public safety, etc. This work is done by Polizeivollzugsbeamte (Regular Uniformed Police, literally Police executive officials).

The Regular Uniformed Police are discussed fully in Section B (paras 34-77).

Secondly, the administrative police work which in other countries would be done by civilian clerks. This is handled by the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police), whose members are known as Polizeiverwaltungsbeamte, and may or may not wear uniform. Where, however, in a small locality, the same man discharges the duties of both the above classes of official, he will undoubtedly be in uniform at all times.

The Administrative Police are treated in Section C (paras. 78-86).

B. THE REGULAR UNIFORMED POLICE

I

General Introduction

34. Branches and Functions

The High Command of the Regular Uniformed Police is the division known as the Kommandoamt (literally Command Headquarters) in the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei. All chains of command in the entire network of Uniformed Police officials lead back to this Office.

The following are the different types and duties of the Uniformed Police :—

(i) Ordinary Branches of the Regular Uniformed Police :

Schutzpolizei (Schupo) des Reiches	Reich Protection Police
Schutzpolizei (Schupo) der Gemeinden	Municipal Protection Police
Gendarmerie (Gend.)	Rural Police
Kolonialpolizei	Colonial Police
Wasserschutzpolizei (SW)	Waterways Protection Police
Feuerschutzpolizei (FP or FS Pol.)	Fire Protection Police

(These branches are discussed under II, paras 38-61)

(ii) Branches of the Regular Uniformed Police known as Technische Hilfspolizeien (Technical Auxiliary Police) :

Feuerwehren	Fire Brigades
Luftschutzpolizei (LSPol.)	Air Raid Protection Police
Technische Nothilfe (TN or Teno)	Technical Emergency Corps

(These branches are discussed under III, paras 62-75)

In addition there are auxiliary services to the Regular Uniformed Police, falling into the following two categories :—

- Sonderpolizeien* (Special Police)
- Hilfspolizeien* (Auxiliary Police)

These services, discussed under IV, paras 76, 77, are not integral parts of the Orpo, but they are frequently called upon to assist branches of the Orpo in the execution of their duties.

35. Militarisation of the Regular Uniformed Police.

The regular Schutzpolizei and the Gendarmerie are no Nazi innovations, although a centralised command as it exists today was not known prior to 1936.

The Schutzpolizist or Schupo, as he is called in Germany, roughly represents to the German public what a "Bobby" means to the Londoners, or a "Cop" to the New Yorkers.

A Gendarm can be compared in some respects to a rural policeman in England and to a State Trooper in America.

The important difference is, however, that the German Schupos and Gendarmes are thoroughly militarised. Even under the Republic they were always looked upon as a military body although the Nazis have, of course, enormously increased the emphasis on this aspect of German Police life.

Prior to World War I uniformed policemen were usually recruited from among ex-Service men who had finished their term of military service and were looking for civil service employment. Similarly, the Gendarmerie, who in rural districts used to tour their areas on horseback, were usually taken from former members of cavalry units in the Army.

This trend continued under the Weimar Republic for a twofold reason. The Versailles Treaty compelled the Germans to reduce their regular Army to one hundred thousand men: many who had made up their minds to become professional soldiers thus found themselves without employment. By placing these men in the Police Forces the States, who then administered the Police, not only solved one aspect of their unemployment problem, but also built up in the shortest possible time a military instrument with which to combat what they considered the enemies of the republican régime within the Reich, namely the extremist parties of the Left and Right.

This was undoubtedly favoured by the leading men in the Reichswehrministerium (the Ministry of War of that period), who saw in this militarisation of the Police a means of building up a large cadre which would some day be available for the organisation and expansion of a powerful German Army.

The Nazis were not slow in speeding up this development. From 1933 on, intensified regular infantry training with all types of weapons became routine for the Police. A great deal of time was spent on familiarising the men with the use of automatic weapons, and it was not long before instruction in the use of armoured vehicles and heavy weapons also appeared on their training schedule.

Thus when, beginning in 1935, the Reichswehr was expanded it is estimated that the Police was able to supply the newly created Wehrmacht with some 60,000 well-trained men, mostly of NCO and Officer calibre.

Finally in 1941, the Police was made subject to the military law of the SS, and the courts of the SS became known as SS- und Polizeigerichte (SS and Police Tribunals).

36. Nazification of the Regular Uniformed Police

This last-mentioned fact introduces another aspect of the Regular Uniformed Police of today; the thorough nazification of the system.

It has already been mentioned (PART ONE) that right from the beginning the Nazis conducted a long-lasting purge of the Police, as indeed they did in every sphere of German life. In the course of this process they expelled all policemen who were in any way compromised as members of a former Democratic or other Opposition party, or who seemed otherwise suspicious to them.

If the number of dismissed members of the Police forces was not as large as one might have expected, this was primarily due to the fact that, even under the Liberal Republic, owing to their background as ex-Service men, the bulk of German policemen leaned politically towards the Right. Indeed, a high percentage of them professed strong Nazi sympathies, even as early as the nineteen twenties.

All the vacancies created by the Nazis in the ranks of the Police were of course filled with loyal followers of the Party, many of whom had been unemployed for a considerable period of time and were now anxious to share in the spoils and get themselves good jobs. This new enrolment may not have amounted to much in the beginning, but when the Police transferred many of its men to the expanding Army in 1935, large numbers of Party members, mostly taken from the SS, entered the ranks of the Police as replacements. Furthermore, when HIMMLER took over control of the German Police, he saw to it that all the leading positions were given to members of his own clan, the SS, and ever since, members of the Waffen- and Allgemeine-SS have been given preference among applicants for police posts, virtually to the exclusion of all others.

Since, however, it remained technically impossible to replace with SS personnel all existing members of the police forces, pressure was brought to bear upon them to enter the Allgemeine-SS. Indeed, membership of the SS became inevitable for officers and advisable, to say the least, for NCO's of the Uniformed Police; a majority, doubtless, entered the SS without objection or compunction.

In some cases this process was rendered even more complete by the automatic enrolment into the Allgemeine-SS of all Police personnel who had previously been members of the Nazi Party. In the course of such enrolment, they received SS ranks equivalent to their Police ranks.

As a result of this development the influence of the SS within the ranks of the Regular Police increased rapidly and drastically. In Vienna, for instance, it is reported that well over 50 per cent of the Orpo are members of the Allgemeine-SS: higher percentages are likely to exist in Germany proper.

37. Effects of the War on Police Personnel

Of late, the process of placing members of the SS into the Police may have somewhat slowed down. With the outbreak of war policemen of the age classes 1901 and younger were sent into the field, where they formed various police combat units.

An SS Polizeidivision was formed within the framework and under the auspices of the Waffen-SS. This unit participated in practically all campaigns since the beginning of the war. In addition, other field units, such as SS Police Battalions and Regiments were formed (see para. 40) and sent to the front lines, where they suffered heavy losses. Thus, while most of the younger and middle-aged policemen were fighting at the front, replacements had to be found for them at home. For this purpose a Polizei-Reserve Korps was formed in order to draft in the Police Service men who had been rejected by the Armed Forces as well as physically unfit. Today a large percentage of the Regular Uniformed Police in Germany consists of Polizeireservisten.

The average age of these men is between 45 and 50. They are drafted for the Police through the normal recruiting channels of the Armed Forces. Since they are not professional policemen, but only drafted to do police work for the duration, they will return to their civilian occupations after the war, with the exception of those who might wish to be transferred to the active ranks of the peacetime police.

Some of those men who were purged in 1933 and 1934 may possibly have been recalled to service, but it is not possible to determine to what extent this process has taken place. Even if some members of the Police should not sympathise with the Nazis, they certainly would not dare to show their sympathies in public since they, more than any other group of Germans, are watched and spied upon by the SD, Gestapo and Party zealots. In any event, it may be said with certainty that even today a large majority of German policemen are fully reliable from HIMMLER'S point of view.

The process of nazification of the German Police was further advanced by the formation or absorption of such present day branches of the Orpo as the Wasserschutzpolizei, Luftschutzpolizei, Kolonialpolizei and Technische Nothilfe. These organisations are either Nazi innovations or else they did not previously exist in their present form. They are discussed later.

II

Ordinary Branches

(a) SCHUTZPOLIZEI (SCHUPO) DES REICHES

38. Command of the Schupo

The Schutzpolizei des Reiches (Protection Police of the Reich) is the "executive police branch" (Uniformed Police) in those larger towns and cities where Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen (National Police Administrations) have been established.

The Uniformed Police force under each National Police Administration Headquarters is commanded by a Kommandeur der Schutzpolizei (Commander of the Protection Police), who is executive assistant to the Polizeiverwalter, the local head of the National Police Administration. The Polizeiverwalter may be either Polizeipräsident, Polizeidirektor, or Polizeirat (see para. 24). He wields disciplinary powers over the Kommandeur der Schutzpolizei and decides on all police actions. In the absence of the Polizeiverwalter command is exercised by his deputy, who does not, however, exercise disciplinary powers over the Kommandeur.

The tactical methods to be employed are decided on by the Kommandeur independently of the Polizeiverwalter, who has no authority over that decision. The Polizeiverwalter nevertheless has the power to cancel his original order for police action, and thereby retains some measure of control over the powers of the Kommandeur.

Liaison between the Kommandeur der Schupo of a city and the Befehlshaber der Orpo in the Wehrkreis is carried out through a Stabsoffizier der Schupo (Staff Officer of the Protection Police), who is attached to the Office of the Regierungspräsident or similar Höhere Polizeibehörde, to whom he is responsible for the conduct of the work of the Schupo in his area.

UNCLASSIFIED

UNCLASSIFIED

These Stabsoffiziere der Schupo, one from each Regierungsbezirk, smaller Land or Reichsgau, may be advisory members of the staff of the Befehlshaber der Orpo in the Wehrkreis (Military District), in which their governmental sub-areas are located. The highest supervisory authority of the Schupo des Reiches is the General-Inspekteur der Schutzpolizei des Reiches in the Hauptamt Orpo.

39. Local Organisation of the Schutzpolizei

The Headquarters of the Kommandeur der Schutzpolizei is organised in the same manner as the office of the BdO (see para. 30). The local Schupo forces under the Kommandeur are known as a Schutzpolizeikommando (Schupo Command), and fall into two categories.

First there are those policemen who serve in Polizeireviere (Precincts or Wards), direct traffic and patrol a regular beat. This service is called Einzeldienst (single service), and members of this branch are organised into Schutzpolizeigruppen (Groups), Schutzpolizeiabschnitte (Sections) and Schutzpolizeireviere (Precincts or Wards).

One Revier, made up of some 20-40 policemen, is normally established for every 20,000 to 30,000 inhabitants. Five or more Reviere make up one Abschnitt, and three to five Abschnitte one Gruppe, though only Berlin, Hamburg and Vienna are large enough to have Schutzpolizeigruppen.

Secondly, the Kommandeur der Schutzpolizei is responsible for the employment of large formations of uniformed Police at demonstrations, in air raids and emergencies of all kinds, for which purpose there exist the Kasernierte Polizeieinheiten (Barrack Police Units). These are organised into Kompanien (Companies), formerly called Hundertschaften. Wherever there are several companies under one Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung they are permanently organised into Police Battalions. Otherwise companies are usually independent, but for action in one specific area (e.g. Regierungsbezirk or Wehrkreis), the higher officers, such as the Stabsoffizier der Schupo or the Befehlshaber der Orpo, may temporarily combine the Barrack Police within their territory into Police Battalions and Regiments.

These units, largely made up of the younger age classes, are far more thoroughly militarised in appearance and equipment than those serving in the Einzeldienst, and may be employed at any time as regular infantry, for which purpose they have at their disposal all the necessary weapons and equipment.

The main tasks of these regular barrack Schupo units are as follows :

(a) To provide guards for Party meetings and other "festive occasions." (In this function they co-operate with the SS.)

(b) To deal with internal unrest in unison with Nazi Party formations.

(c) To maintain order during and after air raids, and to prevent looting.

(d) To maintain normal traffic control after any major disturbance or catastrophe.

The Barrack Police units may be regarded as an outgrowth of the former Landespolizei (Lapo or militarised barrack police), already discussed in para 5.

40. Barrack Police Units in the Field

With the outbreak of war, the need for fully militarised units became more acute, and continued to increase as additional territory was occupied and police functions had to be extended.

The new wartime duties of the Barrack Police include the guarding of lines of communications in occupied territory, the patrolling and safeguarding of guerrilla-infested areas, task force operations against partisans, and the general maintenance of law and order in co-operation with SS or Army formations and other security organisations.

Additional units of Barrack Police were therefore created by incorporating Polizeireservisten (Police Reservists) into this branch to form further police battalions. The personnel of these units includes therefore large numbers of ex-Service men, ex-policemen and pre- and post-conscription year classes.

Thus the constantly increasing need for police in occupied territory has brought about the re-establishment of a body of police both at home and abroad, which is almost indistinguishable from its predecessor, the fully militarised Landespolizei.

The gradual organisation of these units into regiments as a result of their wartime duties followed their increasing adaptation to purely military functions.

During the occupation of Austria in 1938 approximately 120 to 150 Motorised Barrack Police Hundertschaften were mobilised and available for action within 6 hours. Such companies or combined Marschgruppen (March groups) as were employed were fully equipped for field service with the regular Armed Forces.

Beginning with the Polish campaign Polizeikompanien were combined into and committed to action as Polizei-Bataillone. Each of these battalions, however, still belonged to a particular town or rather Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung, and the Polizeipräsident was responsible for their pay and supply as well as for their reinforcements. There were 84 of these original Polizei-Bataillone, each consisting of about 550 men, organised into a HQ and 4 companies.

In 1941 conditions in the Balkans began to make it necessary for regimental staffs to be set up in order to control a larger area where several police battalions were dispersed. Eventually regular and permanent Polizei-Regimenter were created, first in Russia, then in other Eastern and South-Eastern areas, until all the original 84 Battalions were organised into 28 Regiments (numbered 1-28) of 3 Battalions each. At the same time the Battalions were renumbered in the orthodox way, i.e. I, II and III within each regiment, retaining however, in addition, the original Arabic numbers which they held as independent battalions.

In the course of the war, as the need for additional police field units increased, further police regiments were formed. They were called Polizei-Schützen-Regimenter and received numbers from 30 onward, 38 being the highest identified number.

Since March, 1943, all the above police units have been renamed SS-Polizei-(Schützen)-Regimenter and SS-Polizei-(Schützen)-Bataillone. This change of designation falls in line with the amalgamation of Police and SS forces. Moreover, the change of name may well indicate that it has been found expedient for the police field formations to draw on the supplies of the SS rather than continue the cumbersome system of obtaining all supplies through the units' home stations. But it must be emphasised that these Battalions and Regiments are not Waffen-SS units and should not be confused with the components of the SS-Polizeidivision of the Waffen-SS, now known as the (Waffen-)SS-Polizei-Panzer-Division. SS-Polizeiregimenter and -Bataillone are rather integral formations of the Police and their men are not all SS members.

UNCLASSIFIED²⁰

While the Waffen-SS was more and more diluted by forcibly conscripted youths, by "racial" Germans and by various types of foreigner, the SS-Police units remained to a much larger extent homogeneous.

Many of them are among the most nazified, fanatical and brutal German field units. Their participation in "punitive" actions has made them the terror of Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia, Greece, Czechoslovakia and Italy.

Certain other types of police field formation, staffed by Volksdeutsche and non-Germans, with German officers and NCO's, deserve mention. There were upwards of 100 Schutzmannschafts-bataillone (Schumabataillone) composed of Ukrainians and Baltic elements. These battalions were numbered in a separate system, thus duplicating many numbers which had been used before for the original police battalions. They were used all over occupied Russia, especially the Central and Southern sectors. But in the face of Russian advances many of them proved to be most unreliable: for this reason a considerable number were disbanded, their personnel being probably used for forced labour in Germany.

In Yugoslavia the police formed Hilfspolizei-Regimenter (Hiporegimenter), which were at the beginning of 1944 re-named Polizei Freiwilligen-Regimenter. Five of them were identified in Serbia (Pol. Freiw.-Rgt. 1-5 Serbien), and 5 others in Croatia (Pol. Freiw. Rgt. 1-5 Kroatien).

In Italy six Polizei-Freiwilligen-Bataillone have been identified (Pol. Freiw. Btl. 1-6 Italien). In addition there are certain Czech police units in Italy called Regierungsgruppen; they are believed to be numbered I to XII. Their personnel appears to come from the Protectorate police and is composed of Sudeten Germans and other volunteers. Each of the 12 Truppen is of about battalion strength. Mention should also be made in this connection of considerable forces of the Italian Fascist Army, who, though not belonging to the police or SS, are operating under the HSSPf in Italy.

A table of organisation (War Establishment) of a typical Barrack Police Battalion, and the Order of Battle of identified SS-Polizei-Regimenter and Bataillone is given in Annexe E.

41. Polizei-Wachbataillone

There is another type of Kasernierte Polizei which is strictly a wartime innovation and must not be confused with the Barrack Police units discussed above,—namely the Polizei-Wachbataillone (Police Guard Battalions) organised by Wehrkreise. Their principal task is to maintain order and to direct and re-route traffic in bombed-out areas.

About 4 to 5 such battalions exist in each Wehrkreis. They are designated by Arabic numbers and by the Roman numeral of the Wehrkreis. e.g., 4. Polizeiwachbataillon VI, Köln.

These units are almost exclusively composed of civilians of post-conscription age classes, who have been drafted into the police as Polizei-Reservisten for the duration of the war. The average age in the battalion named above was reported to be 52, the oldest man in the unit being 58.

Only the officers and cadre are trained policemen; the rest are draftees who receive only short, basic police training.

There are 3 to 4 companies per battalion, 2 to 3 platoons per company, and 4 sections (US squads) per platoon. The total strength of a battalion ranges from 350—500 men.

These Polizei-Wachbataillone are constantly kept on the alert for duty in case of air raids. They are not motorised, but receive the necessary vehicles from the Schupo-Kommando of the town where they are located. Their armament consists of rifles and a few light machine guns. In contrast to the other barrack police units they cannot be considered fully-fledged infantry because of their poor training and high average age. One of these battalions was sent into the front line near Aachen and completely wiped out within a day.

42. MT Columns

The following paragraphs (42—46) deal with other units which are components of a Schutzpolizeikommando.

The first of these are the Kraftfahrstaffeln (MT Columns), which are organised into:—

- Kraftfahrbereitschaften* (MT Detachments)
- Motorisierte Verkehrsbereitschaften* (Motorised Traffic Detachments)
- Verkehrsunfallbereitschaften* (Road Accident Detachments).

The Kraftfahrbereitschaften take care of all duty travel as well as of the maintenance of all motor transport vehicles assigned to their Schupo command.

The Motorisierte Verkehrsbereitschaften were created in 1937 for the direction and supervision of traffic in the larger cities. Originally 51 units of this kind were formed, but it must be assumed that after the occupation of Austria in 1938, and again after subsequent conquests, additional units were created to operate in the newly acquired territories.

For the execution of their duties they have at their disposal patrol vehicles, staff cars and motor cycles with and without sidecars. Personnel of the Motorisierte Verkehrsbereitschaften are usually employed as small patrols, but in special instances entire detachments may be used. The strength of a full detachment consists of 48 men (known as a 4/4 unit). As local conditions demand, fractions of that figure may make up smaller, but still autonomous, detachments, such as units of 12, 24, or 36 men (referred to as 1/4, 2/4 or 3/4 units respectively).

As this service called for a considerable number of especially well-trained motor cyclists, a high percentage of its personnel was taken from the ranks of the Nationalsozialistische Kraftfahrkorps (NSKK—National Socialist Motor Corps). For an Order of Battle of the Motorisierte Verkehrsbereitschaften der Schutzpolizei see Annexe D.

The Verkehrsunfallbereitschaften (Road Accident Detachments), sometimes known as Verkehrsunfallkommandos (Road Accident Squads) also have at their disposal special cars and trucks in order to perform all tasks which arise in connection with traffic accidents. These accident detachments are established in the larger Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen in towns of 200,000 inhabitants and above. Their strength is largely dependent on local conditions, but will, in most instances (with the exception of Berlin, Vienna and Hamburg) range from 10 to 20 men.

It should be noted that all vehicles of the German Police carry the Kennzeichen (Insignia) "Pol" preceding the licence number on the licence plate.

43. Verkehrskompanie (mot.) z.b.V.

In November, 1941, the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei created a Motorisierte Verkehrskompanie z.b.V. (Motorised Traffic Company for Special Employment) to perform functions essential to the prosecution of the war.

This unit is charged with the supervision of wartime traffic in the Reich, excluding the Protectorate Böhmen und Mähren and the General-gouvernement.

UNCLASSIFIED

Its duties include :

(a) Supervision of all measures ordered for the preservation of tyres.

(b) Supervision of the lawful use of vehicles operated under special wartime licences.

(c) Supervision of maintenance of vehicles in the interest of public safety.

(d) General supervision of traffic as well as any additional police duties necessitated by extraordinary wartime conditions.

The Verkehrskompanie is under the direct command of the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei, who, in the original decree instituting the organisation, placed special emphasis on its importance.

It consists of specially trained police personnel, and is organised into five Züge (Platoons) each of which is assigned to a specific area. Following is a list of the platoons, with names and definitions of their areas.

No. and Headquarters of Zug (Platoon)	Platoon Area known as	Covers territories of :—
		Wehrkreis	HSSPf and BdO

2. Berlin	MITTE	II III IV	Stettin Berlin Dresden
3. Hannover	NORD	VI IX X XI	Münster Kassel Hamburg Hannover
4. Stuttgart	SÜD	V VII XII XIII	Stuttgart München Wiesbaden Nürnberg
5. Wien	SÜDOST	XVII XVIII	Wien Salzburg

44. Signals Columns

The Polizei-Nachrichtenstaffeln (Police Signal Columns) are responsible for Police communications, all of which are maintained at readiness throughout the twenty-four hours of the day. Both the radio and telephone nets are divided into trunk lines and secondary circuits.

The communications control headquarters is the Police wireless station in Berlin, which represents the centre of all principal Police trunk lines in Germany. For control of the borders, the Orpo has at its disposal Grenzfunkstellen (Frontier Wireless Stations).

In the largest towns and on highways the Orpo owns and operates exceptionally well-equipped mobile transmitters and receivers which are handled by the Nachrichtenbereitschaften (Signal Squads). Radio communication lines are further supplemented by an inter-urban and road network of two-way channels over permanent stations. All equipment (largely manufactured by Telefunken and AEG) is qualitatively at least equal to that of the German Armed Forces. Thus the Orpo has at its disposal what may perhaps be termed the best and densest net of police radio communications in the world, surpassed—as to efficiency though not as to coverage and density—only by the communication lines owned by the Sipo and SD.

The Orpo wireless network is linked with the system of universal stations, which is composed of permanent propaganda, military, police, railway, postal and naval centres for transmitting, receiving and monitoring. Police signals personnel therefore is trained to co-operate with all these other wireless stations.

Alongside its own telephone wires, the Orpo also operates its own teletype system composed of both above-ground open-wire lines and overland cable lines.

Its central exchange is the Reichsvermittlungsstelle (Rvst.) in the Hauptamt Orpo. Other exchanges, known as Leitvermittlungsstellen (Lvst.), are located at the offices of the BdO and the headquarters of the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen, which have locally their own teletype lines connecting them with the headquarters of the Gruppen- und Abschnitts-kommandos and with the individual Reviere of their city or town. Most of these exchanges are also connected with the teletype net operated by the German Postal Authorities. Thus the Orpo, in addition to its own networks, may avail itself of the government-owned general telephone and teletype net, enjoying highest priority.

For further details on German Police communication lines see paras. 94 and 95.

As part of the field forces of the Police there exist SS-Polizei-Nachrichtenkompanien (SS-Police Signals Companies). 49 have been identified, some as component units of SS-Polizei-Regimenter, others as Signals units of the Police in occupied countries (see Annexe E).

45. Mounted Police Troops

Until April, 1941, mounted detachments were known as Reitstaffeln, but were later renamed Polizei-Reiterstaffeln (Mounted Police Troops).

The Reiterstaffel is the basic unit of the Mounted Police regardless of numerical strength. According to need, Reiterstaffeln are either in existence as autonomous mounted units or are combined into mixed detachments with the regular Schutzpolizei. The following combined detachments were known to exist in 1938 :—

Mounted Detachments in Berlin, Königsberg, Stettin, Breslau and Gleiwitz, where there are always three detachments combined under one command.

Mixed Detachments in Frankfurt a.M., Bochum, Düsseldorf, Halle and Magdeburg, composed of two-thirds mounted and one-third foot police.

Mixed Detachments in Tilsit, Elbing, Schneidemühl, Oppeln, Erfurt, Kassel, Koblenz and Aachen composed of one-third mounted and two-thirds foot police.

Mixed Detachments in Wiesbaden composed half of mounted and half of foot police.

In the Ukraine, a Polizei-Reiter-Regiment, composed of locally recruited Volksdeutsche, was in operation. Two or three Polizei-Reiter-Abteilungen (Battalions) were also identified on L of C duties in Russia.

46. Other Units of the Schutzpolizeikommando

The Sanitätsdienst (Medical Service) operates under the Polizei-Ärzte (Medical Officers of the Police), who have their own Sanitätsstellen (Medical and First Aid Posts).

The Veterinärdienst (Veterinary Service) operates under Polizeiveterinäroffiziere (Veterinary Officers of the Police). In addition to the care of horses and dogs used by the Police, they are charged with the combatting of animal epidemics and the inspection of meat and other animal products.

The Motorisierte Überfallkommandos (Motorised Riot Squads) are established in every town which has a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung. They are kept in readiness at all times and are used for prompt assistance in case of any type of emergency which may arise in a larger city. The number of such squads depends on the size of the town.

These riot squads, equipped with light, armoured high-speed cars mounting revolving MG turrets, are known to have been brought from Germany to Denmark, Holland and Belgium to quell larger demonstrations. Units from Austria have been dispatched to Slovenia to track down partisans and stamp out guerrilla strongholds, and to act independently on such duties as the patrol of roads leading through mountain passes.

Such commitment leaves no doubt as to the character of these units. A cursory survey of their personnel suggests that it continues to be composed of younger SS-men rather than of reservists.

For more effective supervision of urban and rural traffic, and especially for the enforcement of speed laws, the Schutzpolizei des Reiches (as well as the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden and the Gendarmerie) employ Zivilstreifen (Patrols in Plain Clothes, abbr. Zstr).

These patrols may operate on foot (ZStrF—Fusszivilstreifen), on bicycles (ZStrR—Radzivilstreifen) or motorised (ZStr mot.—Motorisierte Zivilstreifen). Vehicles are, if necessary, supplied by the NSKK.

Employment of these patrols is decided on by the Kommandeur der Schutzpolizei (in the case of the Gendarmerie by the Hauptmannschaftsführer). Each patrol consisting of more than one man is headed by a Streifenführer (Patrol leader).

47. NSKK Assistance to the Schupo

The Regular Uniformed Police is assisted in its duties in many instances by Party Organisations.

The NSKK Verkehrsdienst (Traffic Control Service) has assumed the function of an auxiliary police force, because of the increase in military traffic and the drain on the regular Police personnel as more and more of the latter were called to the colours of the Waffen-SS, the Wehrmacht and the Police Field Units.

It appeared for the first time in this role when the bulk of the German Army was moved from the East to the West following the conclusion of the Polish campaign. Identified units of this type include:

NSKK Verkehrsstandarte (Traffic Control Regiment) Wien
 NSKK Verkehrsstaffeln (Battalions) Berlin and Hamburg
Verkehrskompanie Lemberg
 NSKK Polizeiverkehrskompanie on the Eastern Front.

When the need arose these units were sent bodily into front line service.

These units were also engaged in Verkehrserziehungsdienst (Traffic Educational Service) especially under wartime conditions, by means of films, exhibitions and the posting of road warning signs.

In its capacity as Verkehrshilfsdienst (Road Aid or Traffic Assistance Service), the NSKK posts square white signs in blue frames from 6 kilometres to 8 kilometres apart along all main roads. The centre of these signs shows a red dial with the insignia of the NSKK above and a red cross below. The signs are illuminated, and indicate the nearest telephone by which the NSKK-Zonenführer (Road Zone Controller) may be called. It is the latter's duty, in case of accident, to arrange for a doctor, for police assistance, for ambulance, tows, and similar services, including even funeral vehicles.

This service is mainly an accident reporting system organised in road zones. For instance, the NSKK Motorgruppe HESSEN reported in 1942 that its unit directed 525 call posts. The area of this regional command at the time was divided into 35 zones, and the Motorgruppe served 30 main roads, and 2,650 kilometres of secondary roads.

In addition to the above functions the NSKK is charged with the Transportkontrolle des Motorisierten Transportes der Kriegswirtschaft (Cargo Inspection Service of Motorised Wartime Transport). Drivers of commercial vehicles have to obtain permits from a special NSKK official (Fahrbereitschaftsleiter) for journeys exceeding certain distances, details of which are fixed regionally. This NSKK official is also responsible for proper utilisation of vehicles, as well as for the efficient employment of the most suitable means of transport. In the interests of maximum economy he will also provide cargo for the return trip.

As a logical adjunct to these functions the Reichsverkehrsblatt (Official Traffic Regulations Gazette), dated 10th June, 1944, entrusts the NSKK exclusively with the testing of applicants for, and the issue of, drivers' licences. Similarly the certificate for operation of producer gas driven vehicles (BB-Schein or Betriebsberechtigungsschein) is only issued by the NSKK, under the direction of the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police).

For further details on the NSKK, reference should be made to the Basic Handbook EDS/G/3 in this series.

48. HJ Assistance to the Schupo

The other Party organisation assisting the Regular Uniformed Police is the HJ-SRD (HJ-Streifendienst) a local patrol service instituted by the Hitler Youth Organisation. It started in 1934 as a junior police organisation controlling activities of the members of the HJ, in a manner comparable to American or British MPs checking the conduct of their Service men, but its scope has since widened.

The service is particularly concerned with carrying out the provisions of the Reichspolizeigesetz zum Schutze der Deutschen Jugend (Reich Police Law for the protection of German Youth) of 1943. This law imposes many restrictions on boys and girls in Germany, such as prohibiting smoking, drinking, public dancing, etc.

By now, however, the HJ-SRD has been extended into a semi-military organisation supervised and commanded by SS personnel. A board of HJ and SS leaders considers individual applications for service in the SRD, applying the rigorous standards of the Allgemeine-SS. In the SRD today are combined all the various tasks of a supplementary SS and Police force. In that capacity SRD personnel operate in close collaboration with the police authorities including the Gestapo. Indeed the SRD may be considered a major problem for Allied occupation forces as its 14-16 year old members are of the most dangerous and unscrupulous Nazi type. For instance, they have been extensively used as raiding squads and as informers; in Poland the SRD is even known to have furnished execution squads.

A branch of this organisation is known as the Schnellkommando or Rollkommando (Mobile Emergency Squad), a motorised patrol which is at the constant disposal of the German Police. It is kept in readiness to assist or take the place of the Regular Police in any emergency, especially in the case of air raids and Grossfahndungen (see para. 124. Further details on this subject may be found in the publication EDS/G/5, Basic Handbook on the HJ Movement).

(b) SCHUTZPOLIZEI DER GEMEINDEN

49. Organisation of the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden

In those communities of more than 2,000 inhabitants in which a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung has not been established, the executive Police functions of the Orpo are carried out by units of the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden (Municipal Protection Police).

Their local administrative Chief is the Bürgermeister (Mayor) or Oberbürgermeister (Lord Mayor). In communities of less than 2,000 inhabitants the executive Police authority rests with the Gendarmerie (Rural Police). It is planned to extend the Police authority of the Gendarmerie to all communities below 5,000 inhabitants, but up to the present time this has only been achieved in the newly annexed territories such as the Reichsgaue, and in a few communities of the old Reich. Statistics of 1942 mention that Gemeindepolizeiverwaltungen (Municipal Police Administrations) exist in 1,338 municipalities of over 5,000 inhabitants, all of them without Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen. Of these :

- 5 have over 100,000 inhabitants
- 22 have between 50,000 and 100,000 inhabitants
- 591 have between 10,000 and 50,000 inhabitants
- 720 have between 5,000 and 10,000 inhabitants

In the larger municipalities without Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen the Schutzpolizei is headed by a Stabsoffizier der Schupo and the unit is known as a Kommando der Schutzpolizei (the same term as for the Schupo des Reiches). In small communities the officer in charge of the Schupo is a Captain or Lieutenant, and his unit is known as a Schutzpolizei-Dienstabteilung (Schupo Service Detachment).

Prior to the formation of a unified Schupo der Gemeinden considerable variation existed in the police organisation in different areas and even in adjacent townships, but now a number of decrees regulate and co-ordinate the strength of these units (in relation to the population), uniformity of rank, pay, replacement, and training all over the Reich.

Although members of the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden are technically municipal civil servants, they were made subject to the same regulations of the Reich Authorities as the members of the Schutzpolizei des Reiches. As a matter of fact the personnel of the Schupo der Gemeinden is taken exclusively from personnel of the Schupo des Reiches, and one of the decrees states that members of the Schupo des Reiches can be transferred to the Schupo der Gemeinden and vice versa, or from one community to another without the individual's consent.

Thus very little difference exists today between the Schupo der Gemeinden and the Schupo des Reiches.

50. Command of the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden

The activities of all units of the Schupo der Gemeinden are supervised by the Generalinspekteur der Gendarmerie und der Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden.

Below him the units of the Schupo der Gemeinden are under the command and supervision of the Befehlshaber der Orpo in the particular Wehrkreis.

The heads of the local Kommandos der Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden, who hold ranks from Major der Schutzpolizei upwards, and who are known as Stabsoffiziere, are directly responsible to the Higher Police Authorities (Regierungspräsidenten, etc.) of the area. In addition they may be advisory members on the Staff of the Befehlshaber der Orpo.

The heads of the Schutzpolizei-Dienstabteilungen in communities of over 5,000 inhabitants are subject to the supervision of the Stabsoffiziere der Schutzpolizei attached to the Higher Police Authorities. These officers represent the Schupo-Dienstabteilungen at the Headquarters of the Regierungspräsident, etc. as well as on the Staff of the BdO of the Wehrkreis. In communities of less than 5,000 the Schupo-Dienstabteilungen are subject to supervision by the Commanders of the Gendarmerie who are attached to the Headquarters of the Regierungspräsidenten or other Higher Police Authorities.

Otherwise, units of the Schupo der Gemeinden are organised in much the same way as units of the Schupo des Reiches, except that they are smaller, not so elaborately equipped, and are directly at the disposal of the Mayor of the town instead of the Polizeiverwalter.

(c) GENDARMERIE

51. Gendarmerie : General

The Gendarmerie constitutes the uniformed police in the open country, and in communities of less than 2,000 inhabitants. It has been planned to extend the field of action of the Gendarmerie to all communities up to 5,000 inhabitants, but so far this has only been achieved in certain parts of the country (see para. 49).

The principal difference between the Gendarmerie and the Schutzpolizei is that, owing to the nature of the territory in which they serve, the members of the Gendarmerie in addition to their ordinary functions as Polizeivollzugsbeamte (Police Executive Officials) are also trained and equipped to "help and advise" the rural population in matters of general administration, and in the manifold dealings which in Germany concern the "authorities," and all too frequently the police.

The individual Gendarm who makes his daily tour of duty on foot, bicycle, motorcycle or on horseback is very often the only representative of the government in his small area in direct and constant touch with the population. His office is in his home, where he maintains files and where he is reached by telephone or sometimes only by messenger. This wider scope of the Gendarmerie is expressed in its entire organisation which, of necessity is more decentralised than that of the Schupo, but by no means less militarised.

Two main categories of the Gendarmerie, which are discussed in following paragraphs, must be distinguished :—

The Gendarmerie des Einzeldienstes ("Single Service" Gendarmerie).

The Motorisierte Gendarmerie (Motorised Gendarmerie) or Gend. (Mot.).

52. Gendarmerie des Einzeldienstes

The smallest unit of the Einzeldienst is the Gendarmerie-Einzelposten (Single Post), consisting of only one Gendarm assigned to a thinly populated area. More densely populated country districts which include larger villages have Gendarmerie-Posten manned by several Gendarmen, and led by a Gendarmerie Hauptwachtmeister or Meister (senior NCO). Several Gendarmerie-Einzelposten are organised to form a Gendarmerie-Gruppenposten (Group Post) headed normally by a Gendarmerie Meister. The latter, however, does not exercise full command over the men of the Einzelposten within his district, as they retain a fair amount of independence to enable them to cope with strictly local matters.

This partial independence in no way conflicts with the centralisation of the German rural police. It does, however, stress the particular status of the individual Gendarm, who exercises a considerable amount of control over the population in his district, in which he constitutes the immediate representative of the law, both as "adviser" and as "Staatsgewalt," the strong arm of the regime.

All the members of the Gendarmerie in a Landkreis constitute a unit termed a Gendarmeriekreis and led by a Gendarmeriekreisführer whose rank is normally that of a Gendarmerie-Bezirksleutnant or Oberleutnant.

The Gendarmerie-Kreis, which is headed by a Gendarmerie-Oberleutnant, should have a minimum strength of about 40 men. In matters pertaining to the Gendarmerie, the Gendarmeriekreisführer is also the police advisor to the Landrat (Rural Councillor or Executive) and as such is responsible to him for the execution of locally issued orders affecting the Landkreis.

If a Landkreis covers a larger than average area the Gendarmeriekreis may be subdivided into Gendarmerieabteilungen consisting each of a number of Gendarmerieposten of all sizes, such as regular Posten, Einzelposten and Gruppenposten, and commanded by a Gendarmerie-Abteilungsführer.

A Gendarmerie-Abteilung comprises, on the average, from 15 to 20 men. However, special conditions such as a dense network of Gendarmerie stations in the vicinity of large cities, in industrial regions or near the National frontier may necessitate the formation of stronger Abteilungen.

Several Gendarmeriekreise form a Gendarmeriehauptmannschaft with an average of 140 to 150 men, commanded by a Major or a Hauptmann (Captain) der Gendarmerie, who, in turn, is subordinate to a Kommandeur der Gendarmerie (Commander of Rural Police) of the Regierungsbezirk or similar Higher Police Authority.

The Kommandeur der Gendarmerie, who also represents the Gendarmerie of his Regierungsbezirk on the staff of the Befehlshaber der Orpo at Wehrkreis Headquarters is responsible to the latter for all Gendarmerie activities within his district. The Kommandeur der Gendarmerie and all units subordinate to him are furthermore supervised by the General-Inspekteur der Gendarmerie und der Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden in the Hauptamt Orpo of the Reichsministerium des Innern.

A special branch of the Gendarmerie is the Hochgebirgs-Gendarmerie (Mountain Gendarmerie). It was created in August 1941 and is, in the main, organised along the same lines as the regular Gendarmerie. Its personnel, however, undergoes special training for duty in Alpine regions and as mountain guides. Gendarmerie-Posten, situated in mountainous areas of more than 1,500 metres (about 4,500 ft.) in altitude, are referred to as Gend. Hochgebirgsposten.

Recent developments as well as public utterances by German leaders clearly indicate that these mountainous regions may be expected to be turned into strong centres of resistance for regular, as well as guerrilla warfare. The territories policed by the Hochgebirgsgendarmerie, therefore, become of special interest to Allied advancing and occupying armies. The following areas policed by these units as mapped out in the decree of 1941 should be noted in this connection :—

- Reichsgau* Salzburg.
- Reichsgau* Tirol-Vorarlberg.
- Reichsgau* Steiermark (including Untersteiermark).
- Reichsgau* Kärnten (including Südkärnten and Krain).
- Gend. Kreise* Gmünden, Kirchdorf a.d. Krems, Vöcklabruck and Steyr of the Reichsgau Oberdonau.
- Gend. Kreise* Scheibbs, Lilienfeld, Neunkirchen and Wiener-Neustadt of the Reichsgau Niederdonau.
- Gend. Kreise* Füssen and Sonthofen of the Reg. Bezirk Schwaben.
- Gend. Kreise* Garmisch, Bad Tölz, Miesbach, Rosenheim and Berchtesgaden as well as the Gend. Abt. Traunstein of the Gend. Kreis Traunstein of the Reg. Bezirk Oberbayern.
- Gend. Zug* Neumark (Distrikt Krakau).

53. Landwacht and Stadtwacht

In January, 1942, the Landwacht (Auxiliary Rural Police) was set up by DALUEGE, then Chief of the Orpo, to assist the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden and, especially, the Gendarmerie.

Its members are mainly recruited from SA-Wehrmannschaften (Germans between the ages of 18 and 65 not otherwise mustered, but provided with basic military training by the Nazi Party Storm Troops) and ex-Service men of the last war. While recruits for the SA-Wehrmannschaften are conscripted under an Emergency Service Decree, enlistment for the Landwacht was originally voluntary and on a part-time basis, only later developing into compulsory service.

Military training is provided by the SA and personnel of the Landwacht are not uniformed, wearing only a white armband with the inscription "Landwacht." They are issued with light arms such as pistols, rifles, etc.

The Landwacht is responsible to the Chief of the Regular Uniformed Police, SS-Obergruppenführer WÜNNENBERG and through him to HIMMLER. The present commander of the entire German Landwacht is SS-Obergruppenführer Friederich ALPERS, State Secretary, Forester General, and a member of GÖRING'S Economic Council.

When on duty, the Landwacht are under the orders of the Police and Gendarmerie and are attached to their regular police posts.

Even though the Landwacht was instituted at a period of increasing delinquency in rural areas, its present primary concern is the supervision of the activities of almost 12 million foreign workers, prisoners of war, and those "anti-social" German elements employed or residing in rural districts. Under prevailing conditions it is obvious that a strong network, such as is represented by the Landwacht, has become necessary to cover the entire Reich.

The formation of the Landwacht was kept secret by the Germans for over a year. It was never mentioned until the beginning of 1943, when a similar organisation, the Stadtwacht (Auxiliary Urban Police) was created; the Stadtwacht was also derived from the SA-Wehrmannschaften. Its function is to assist the Schutzpolizei des Reiches in cities in the same manner as the Landwacht is at the disposal of the Schutzpolizei der Gemeinden and Gendarmerie in the country.

In October, 1943, HIMMLER issued a decree for the expansion of both the Stadtwacht and the Landwacht. Whereas previously only those Germans who were not members of other Nazi Party organisations were subject to service with the urban or rural guard formations, the new edict made every German, regardless of affiliation, liable to be called up.

The tremendous and rapid growth of these organisations necessitated their sub-division into three classes :—

(a) Aktive Stadt- or Landwacht : personnel of this category are liable to do duty for extended periods of time. They are constantly at the disposal of the police and subject to immediate call. Not included are members of the ARP and similar passive defence services.

(b) Reserve I : includes personnel who, because of their civilian or official occupations, are not immediately available for duty, but may be called in on special occasions.

(c) Reserve II : includes all personnel who, owing to the special importance of their occupations, are available for police duty in extreme emergencies only, e.g. Grossfahndungen (National Searches).

As preparations for Nazi resistance and for guerrilla warfare within Germany are rapidly accelerated, militarisation of these auxiliary police formations is reaching its peak.

On 18th October, 1944, HIMMLER announced the formation of a "Volkssturm" (People's Militia) under the auspices of the SA to include all able-bodied men from 16 to 60 years of age not so far members of the Armed Forces. Under existing circumstances the difference between such newly formed field units and the similarly organised auxiliary police forces of the Stadt- und Landwacht will become increasingly smaller and indeed negligible.

For further information on the SA-Wehrmannschaften, Stadtwacht and Landwacht see publication EDS/G/1 (SA of the NSDAP).

54. The Motorised Gendarmerie

In the heyday of their power, the Sturm Abteilungen (SA—Storm Troops) included a special shock formation, the Feldjägerkorps. It was comparable to a military provost corps and was apparently to act as such in the event of war.

Its great defect—the fact that it was an SA organisation recruited not from established Nazi Party members and not from regular conscripts—brought about its eventual eclipse after the 1934 purge of the SA. Finally, on 1st April, 1935, the Feldjägerkorps was dissolved. Some of its units were transferred bodily to the new Kasernierte Polizei, replacing the Landespolizei, which was incorporated into the newly created Wehrmacht. Other Feldjägerkorps units went to form the Motorisierte Gendarmerie (Motorised Gendarmerie), abbr. Gend. (Mot.). The men exchanged their SA badges for the standard police insignia and badges of rank. This was a change of some political importance, marking still more clearly the then declining power of the SA and the growing confidence of the régime in the regular Police forces from which all "undesirables" had been removed; it meant, too, an influx of 100 per cent. Nazi units into the most militarised branches of the Police.

A decree issued on 30th June, 1937, by the RFSS u Ch d Dt Pol i RM d I declared the newly created Motorisierte Gendarmerie to be a "special service branch of the Gendarmerie operating throughout the entire territory of the Reich, with the control of traffic both on Landstrassen (First class roads) and on the Autobahnen (National Highways) as its main function."

Differing from the regular Gendarmerie, the Motorisierte Gendarmerie are Kasernierte Einheiten (Barrack Units), and are organised along purely military lines into Motorisierte Kompanien (Companies) and Motorisierte Züge (Platoons). Like the regular Gendarmerie, however, they are subordinate to the Kommandeur der Gendarmerie, who is attached to the Höhere Polizeibehörde (Regierungspräsident, etc.) of the area.

Apart from patrolling the highways, the duties of the Motorisierte Gendarmerie comprise the reporting of all accidents, the rendering of First Aid, the apprehension of stolen vehicles, the reporting to their administrative authorities on the state and condition of roads and on the need for new traffic signs; for the last-mentioned functions, see also paragraph 47 above on the NSKK Verkehrshilfsdienst.

In the interest of more effective supervision of the Reichsautobahnen, Reichsautobahnen-Kommandos (RAB Kdos) were created in October, 1941. These units are furnished by the Motorisierte Gendarmerie, the strength of each consisting of 5 Gendarmen and 1 Kommandoführer (squad leader). They are equipped with 1 patrol car and 2 motor cycles with sidecar.

On special occasions, the Motorisierte Gendarmerie may be employed to perform tasks outside their normal sphere of duty. While they generally operate in small patrols, they may, in emergencies be committed in full strength as units. The Gendarmerie officers will determine whether any need exists for such Grosseinsätze (Total commitments). In such instances, a request must be made to the Higher Police Authorities which administer the unit. Whenever entire units or component parts of units are to be employed on special tasks for more than three days, approval must be obtained from the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei.

The authority of the Motorisierte Gendarmerie extends throughout the entire Reich and is not bound by the political boundaries within the country. The only exceptions are the areas of those cities in which are located Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen; there the authority of the Gend. (mot.) is restricted to the Reichsautobahnen passing through the city limits.

Men selected for the Motorisierte Gendarmerie are trained in the following special centres :

Gend. Schule Suhl
Gend. Schule Deggingen
Gend. Schule Fraustadt
Gend. Schule Hollabrunn

In the ordinary course of events and with the necessary vacancies, members of the Motorisierte Gendarmerie are, after approximately 5 to 6 years service, transferred into the Gend. Einzeldienst.

55. Organisation of the Motorised Gendarmerie

The Motorisierte Gendarmerie is organised on the basis of a so-called 3/3 unit containing 108 men and 3 officers. Such basic units can be subdivided into 1/3 units (36 men and 1 officer), or 2/3 units (72 men and 2 officers), or extended into overstrength 4/3 units* (144 men and 4 officers), and will then function as independently operative units. In 1937 a total of 42 units were created and organised as follows :—

Two 4/3 Bereitschaften, also termed Motorisierte Gend. Abteilungen—4 officers and 144 men each.

Twelve 3/3 Bereitschaften, also termed Gend. Kompanie mot.—3 officers and 108 men each.

UNGLASSIFIED

Eighteen 2/3 Bereitschaften, also termed Kleine Gend. Kompanie mot.—2 officers and 72 men each.

Ten 1/3 Bereitschaften, also termed Gend. Züge (platoons) mot.—1 officer and 36 men each.

By 1942, a great number of additional units had been formed to police Austria and other newly-acquired territories. By that time, the term Bereitschaft had been dropped, and the term Gendarmerie-Abteilung (mot) had been replaced by Verstärkte (Verst.—reinforced) Gendarmerie-Kompanie (mot). A corps of 66 units with a total personnel of 5,931 officers and other ranks was formed. This new organisation includes the following units:—

Three 4/3 Verst. Gend. Komp. (mot.) of 4 officers and 144 men each.

Twenty-four 3/3 Gend. Komp. (mot.) of 3 officers and 108 men each.

Thirty-one 2/3 Kl. Gend. Komp. (mot.) of 2 officers and 72 men each.

Eight 1/3 Gend. Züge (mot.) of 1 officer and 36 men each.

It must be borne in mind that the units and strengths mentioned above are valid only for 1942 and it must be assumed that a number of additional units have since been formed and are now in operation.

An Order of Battle arranged according to Wehrkreise (Military Districts) of all identified units of the Motorisierte Gendarmerie will be found in Annexe D.

Since the Motorisierte Gendarmerie is a fully militarised and mobile formation, its importance increases in the light of the present trend to prepare the Police forces for their employment in National Defence and resistance inside Germany. Indeed, since the outbreak of war, large numbers of Motorisierte Gendarmerie personnel have been incorporated into Feldgendarmerie units (Army Military Police) and as such are attached to divisions, corps and armies of the Field Forces.

Motorisierte Gendarmerie units furthermore are being sent to the zones of communications immediately adjacent to the theatres of operations and to occupied territories, to assist other Police formations in traffic control, as well as in the prevention of sabotage and partisan warfare.

From 70 to 80 Gendarmerie-Züge (mot.), i.e. platoons of the normal strength of 1 officer and 36 men, have been identified in Russia and Italy. In addition, two Gendarmerie-Bataillone (mot.) are known to exist, one of them having been identified in France.

The Motorisierte Gendarmerie is armed with carbines, pistols and machine pistols. Its weapons and equipment are supplied and maintained by the special Waffenmeistereien der deutschen Polizei (Ordnance and Maintenance Shops) which serve all branches of the German Police. A table of weapons and vehicles, and a list of the locations of the Waffenmeistereien will be found in Annexe D.

A definite system of licence plate numbers for all vehicles of the Motorisierte Gendarmerie with special numbers assigned to each regional headquarters as well as to each category of vehicles has been set up. The tabulation of these licence numbers for the original 42 units (i.e. not to include the units added in 1942 and later) will be found in Annexe D.

It can be assumed that similar numbering systems exist for police licence plates of all police vehicles.

(d) KOLONIALPOLIZEI

56. HIMMLER's plans for a Colonial Police

From the very beginning the Nazi government took great interest in fanning the smouldering ashes of German colonial aspirations. This is demonstrated by the fact that in 1936 certain units of the Schutzpolizei were charged with the continuation of the colonial tradition.

Thus the Schutzpolizei of Bremen was selected to perpetuate the ghost of the police force of former German South West Africa, the Schutzpolizei of Kiel was to serve as a reminder of Kamerun (Cameroon) and the Schutzpolizei of Hamburg was identified with the memories of Kiautschau.

These traditional units were distinguished with the Kreuz des Südens (Southern Cross) worn on the left sleeve.

In January, 1941, the Nazis began to take some interest in the Italian campaign in North Africa, and HIMMLER therefore founded the Kolonialpolizei (Colonial Police) and instituted the Kolonialpolizeiamt (Bureau of the Colonial Police) within the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei. The purpose of this newly founded bureau was, in the words of the decree, "the uniform preparation and eventual employment of the Ordnungspolizei in future German Colonies and Mandates."

The General-Inspekteur der Polizeischulen (Inspector General of the Police Schools), Generalleutnant der Polizei von PFEFFER-WILDENBRUCH, was appointed chief of the Kolonialpolizeiamt, and held this position until the middle of 1944.

A Kolonialpolizeischule (Colonial Police School) was established at Oranienburg near Berlin. Since intimate cooperation with the Nazi Party was regarded as essential, the SS-Kolonialpolitische Schulungshaus (SS Colonial Political Institute) at Ladenburg near Berlin, as well as the Führerschule der Sicherheitspolizei (Officers' School of the Security Police) in Berlin-Charlottenburg furnished a considerable part of the training of the Colonial Police.

In addition to the courses given in Germany, specially selected SS and police officers were sent to the Italian Colonial Police College at Tivoli, near Rome, for special training.

Personnel of the police selected for any of the colonial training courses were returned to their units or stations after completion of their schooling, but were hopefully earmarked for colonial service at some future date. A small number of them are reported to have made their appearance in North Africa in 1942 and 1943. It can, therefore, be said that the Colonial Police has never been much more than a name.

Just how far the Nazis progressed in their plans for future colonial splendour is immaterial, but, at any rate, the very existence of the Kolonialpolizei is indicative of the thoroughness of Germany's preparations for, and former confidence in the outcome of the war and the attainment of her colonial aspirations. It may, therefore, be added with some satisfaction that by now the Kolonialpolizeiamt and its staff have probably for the most part been disbanded. If it is still lingering on in any form at all, it is certainly on a most insignificant scale and with no great prospects for the future.

(e) WASSERSCHUTZPOLIZEI

57. The Wasserschutzpolizei : General

The Regular Uniformed Police includes among its duties the control of inland waterways and harbour traffic.

Following an agreement of 21st January, 1937, between the RFSS u Ch d Dt Pol and the Reichsverkehrsministerium (Ministry of Transport), HIMMLER took over on 1st March, 1937, the responsibilities of the existing Schiffahrtspolizei (Water Traffic Police) and Hafenpolizei (Harbour Police), whose tasks were henceforth to be discharged by a branch of the Regular Uniformed Police, i.e. the Wasserschutzpolizei (Waterways Protection Police).

Subsequently a decree of 26th July, 1937, declared the Waterways Protection Police to be a "special service branch of the Schutzpolizei, with the official abbreviation "SW." It is not quite clear why the abbreviation "SW" was used instead of "WS." The most plausible explanation is that the Wasserschupo is—unlike the Feuerschupo—considered an integral part of the Schupo and may originally have been known as Schutzpolizei (Wasser). In connection with ranks the abbreviation "WSchP" is often used, e.g. in "Hauptmann d. WSchP."

From the point of view of the invading Allied forces, the SW, patrolling the rivers and canals of Germany, may well be regarded as a military formation.

The SW is part of HIMMLER's widespread system and must, therefore, also be reckoned with as a potentially troublesome source of disaffection in territory under Allied control, representing as it does an effective instrument available to the Nazis; its posts and vessels on German waterways could easily become vantage points and escape channels for a future underground movement.

58. Organisation of the Wasserschutzpolizei

The principal task of the SW is to maintain law and order on waterways, in harbours and in harbour approaches. Its units are at the disposal of the local authorities, who may at all times call upon them for technical assistance. They may also act in certain circumstances on behalf of the Sipo (Security Police).

The Wasserschutzpolizei is organised into the following units:—

Gruppenkommandos	Group Commands.
Kommandos ...	Commands.
Abschnitte ...	Sectors.
Reviere ...	Brit.—Wards: U.S.— Precincts.
Revier-Zweigstellen	Revier Branches.
Stationen ...	Stations.
Wachen ...	Squads.
Fliegende Wachen	Patrols.
Posten ...	Posts.

These units are located wherever their duties require and in a strength commensurate with the size and importance of their areas. Their organisation is highly flexible: not all levels necessarily exist in each area, and there is little regularity. A Kommando may not include any Abschnitte, but may instead have only a number of independent Reviere and Stationen, some of them not further subdivided, others consisting of two, three or more Wachen or Posten, etc.

Wasserschutzpolizei Kommandos were also established in occupied territories for patrol duty in ports and on inland waterways.

Higher administrative authorities such as Oberpräsidenten of the Prussian Provinces, Innenminister of the Länder, BdO of the Wehrkreise or the Headquarters of the Staatliche Polizeiver- waltungen (National Police Administration Headquarters) are responsible for the Police on the rivers and waterways in or nearest their area. Such offices include a special section, Abteilung Wasserschutzpolizei, as part of the Headquarters of the Staff Officer or Commander, as the case may be, of the Schutzpolizei, who controls the Wasserschutzpolizei administratively through this section. In special emergencies he may assume direct command.

The highest supervisory authority rests since 15th September, 1943, with the Inspekteur der Wasserschutzpolizei (Inspector of the Waterways Protection Police). SS-BF, Genmaj. d. Pol. KRUMHAAR held this position until 1st July, 1944, when he was succeeded by Oberst d. Schupo Ernst SCHRÖTER. Simultaneously the office was moved from Kiel to Berlin N.W.7, Unter den Linden 74.

For their actual police duties, these units are subordinated to the local authorities, and perform police functions within their field at the request of those authorities. They will, for instance, exercise revenue control at the order of the regional Finance and Customs office by boarding ships and barges and searching for contraband and black market goods, or they will instruct their patrols to check unauthorised fishing at the request of the local Fishery and Game Police.

The Wasserschutzpolizei operates in patrols of varying types. Alongside the waterways, foot and bicycle patrols are used wherever they are deemed sufficient, but, when needed, motor vehicles are also available.

On the waterways the Wasserschutzpolizei employs boats of all types, but mostly small Hafenboote (patrol craft). Larger SW units have Streckenboote (long-range boats) at their disposal, most of which are capable of performing coastal and even sea patrols.

The submerged part of the hulls of these craft is painted black or red, their waterline is marked in white and the upper hull is painted grey.

All boats fly the Reichsdienstflagge (official Reich Government Service flag), and have the designation of their home station painted on the stern and the word "Wasserschutzpolizei" together with an arabic numeral painted on the bows. This numeral is the serial number of the craft as registered with the particular Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung regardless of the vessels' Station or Revier. In addition, each boat carries on its bow another number, assigned to it by the Ministry of the Interior.

The personnel of the SW units is made up of Police NCOs (Oberwachtmeister, Revieroberwachtmeister, Hauptwachtmeister and Meister) and Police Officers (Revier-Leutnant, Oberleutnant, Hauptmann, Major and Oberstleutnant). Two administrative officers (Pol. Inspektor and Pol. Assistent) are usually included in the personnel of an SW Kommando.

Large Headquarters like Stettin or Bremen have a Major as their highest ranking officer, and only SW Gruppe Hamburg is commanded by an Oberstleutnant (Lt.-Col.). It is, however, possible that in wartime SW ranks have been raised beyond the limits of the peace-time establishments (U.S.—T/O).

59. Related and Auxiliary Units

Close cooperation exists between the Wasserschutzpolizei and the Marine-Küstenpolizei (Naval Coastal Police, abbr. MKP). The personnel of the MKP may be drawn from the Waterways Protection Police and an agreement to this effect was reached on 26th April, 1940, between the OKM (High Command of the Navy) and the RFSS u Ch d Dt Pol, in which the terms of employment of officers and men of the Wasserschutzpolizei as Marine-Küstenpolizei are laid down.

Before D-Day, units of MKP operating motorboat patrols were stationed at points along the entire coast line of occupied Europe from northern Norway to the Bay of Biscay.

Their duties include the inspection of all fishing vessels, the control of small craft movement and of sailing permits and the pursuit of smugglers, deserters and fugitives. MKP units are under the orders of Küsten- und Hafenuberwachungsstellen (Coastal and Port Authorities).

Members of the SW serving in the MKP are temporarily classed as naval personnel and are subject to naval regulations. The MKP has regular Marinesoldaten (naval soldiers or marines), who in most cases are under the supervision of SW personnel entrusted with these duties because of their special police experience.

The ranks of the MKP are Wehrmacht terms with the words "der MKP" added (e.g. "Maat, Feldwebel der MKP"). The MKP is commanded by its own officers and its employment is directed by the naval commander of the area in which it operates.

The NSKK has established NSKK-Motorbooteinheiten (Motorboat Units) which operate on Germany's main rivers, waterways and lakes, e.g. the Danube and the Rhine. They function as auxiliaries to the Wasserschutzpolizei, assisting in the control of traffic and maintenance of a permanent patrol service. Some of these NSKK units are of regimental size (Motorbootstandarten 1, 3, and 4 have been identified), but most of them are Motorbootstürme (Companies).

In larger ports the Wasserschutzpolizei is also reinforced by special units of the Allgemeine-SS who are at the disposal of the Chiefs of the Coastal SS-Oberabschnitte NORDWEST, NORDSEE, OSTSEE and NORDOST. These units are known as SS-Hafensicherungstruppen (Port Security Troops). They patrol the waterfronts and major ports in cooperation with Police authorities and the Sicherheitsdienst, especially during and after air raids.

(f) FEUERSCHUTZPOLIZEI

60. Organisation of the Feuerschutzpolizei

Before 1933 fire protection and fire fighting in Germany were the concern of two organisations. Larger cities had professional Fire Brigades, whose members were municipal civil servants; smaller towns and villages maintained voluntary fire brigades. At no time was fire fighting considered a Police function.

The Nazis, soon after their advent to power, changed this concept by subordinating the existing fire brigades to the Ortspolizeibehörden (Local Police Authorities). Later on, the administration of fire brigades was also subordinated to the Höhere Polizeibehörden, and, since the latter are directly under the Reich Government, control was completely centralised.

Shortly after the outbreak of war, on 27th September, 1939, a Feuerschutzpolizei (Fire Protection Police, abbr. FP) was created by the Reich Government in agreement with the Chiefs of the Army and Air Force (BRAUCHITSCH and GÖRING). All larger German cities were ordered to organise Fire Protection Police formations and to transfer their former Fire Brigades into the new organisation.

Some German towns, however, which had professional fire fighting services, were not called upon to form units of the Feuerschutzpolizei. In such instances the old Fire Fighting Brigades continued to exist.

The members of the new Feuerschutzpolizei were termed Polizeivollzugsbeamte (police executive officials), just as are the members of the Schupo, and were made subject to all laws and regulations governing the officials of all other branches of the Reich Police.

The controlling bureau of the FP and its organisational apex is the Amt Feuerschutzpolizei of Amtsgruppe I in the Kommandoamt of the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei (see para. 27).

All units of the FP in the entire Reich are supervised by the General-Inspekteur der Feuerschutzpolizei und Feuerwehren (Inspector General of the Fire Protection Police and Fire Brigades) who reports directly to the Chief of the Orpo on the state of training of personnel and on technical details of equipment. He also makes recommendations and submits observations on new methods and developments of fire fighting to the Chief of the Orpo (WÜNNENBERG).

Regionally the FP, like all other branches of the Orpo, is controlled by the Befehlshaber der Orpo of each Wehrkreis to whose staff is attached a Stabsoffizier (Staff Officer) of the Feuerschutzpolizei serving as specialist and technical adviser.

Locally the Feuerschutzpolizei is administered by the (Ober-) Bürgermeister of the town, but it is known that in towns with a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung a considerable amount of the administration rests with the Polizeipräsidien, -direktionen and -ämter. In any case, all expenses of the Feuerschutzpolizei, including those for the purchase and maintenance of equipment, are borne by the community. Personnel matters are handled directly by the Reich Ministry of the Interior, i.e. the Kommandoamt in the Hauptamt Orpo, and in certain instances by the Higher Police Authorities, but never by the Mayors of the towns where Feuerschupo units are stationed.

The decision whether a town has to form a Feuerschutzpolizei unit does not only depend on the number of inhabitants, but on certain characteristics and conditions of the locality such as the type and volume of a town's industrial activity, its buildings and constructions, its potential exposure to air raids, etc.

The local chief of the FP is the Kommandeur der Feuerschutzpolizei, who is responsible for the organisation and the operation of the entire unit stationed in the municipality. He allots operational areas to the various subsections of his unit, and issues orders concerning fire prevention. At least in the larger towns the Kommandeur der Feuerschutzpolizei is tactically subordinate to the Kommandeur der Schupo.

Subsections of the local Feuerschutzpolizei are called Abschnittskommandos (District Commands) and Feuerwachen (Fire-fighting Detachments). In Berlin, Hamburg and Vienna, several Abschnittskommandos form a Gruppenkommando.

The smallest unit called out by a regular alarm is known as a Feuerlöschzug (fire-fighting platoon). It consists of two to three trucks carrying about ten to twelve men. There are normally several Züge allotted to each Feuerwache.

One Feuerwache, as a rule, covers an area of several Polizei-Reviere (Police Wards or Precincts), but wide variations exist, depending on the constructional characteristics and the layout of the town and immediate vicinity.

The FP has its own teleprinter and alarm systems.

A list of the towns in which units of the FP are known to exist is given in Annexe D.

61. Military Aspects of the FP

In addition to their normal functions, it is the duty of officials of the Feuerschutzpolizei to take action and exercise full police powers in matters outside their specific technical sphere, whenever officials of the Schupo or Gendarmerie cannot be reached. In the light of this fact it is of greatest importance to keep in mind how thoroughly centralised and militarised the Feuerschutzpolizei has become under the Nazi regime. It would, therefore, be misleading to treat it as a parallel to organisations of equivalent functions in democratic countries or to forget that, just like every other branch of the German police, the FP must be regarded as an instrument of Nazi power.

The Feuerschutzpolizei has even been organised into larger units as field formations. There exist several Feuerschutzpolizei-Abteilungen (mot), i.e. motorised battalions, of which Nos. 3 to 7 have been identified. There are also various Feuerschutzpolizei-Regimenter; those identified are given in Annexe E.

These units are fire-fighting shock troops. The Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment SACHSEN, for instance, operated in France and at Rotterdam with advance units of the Wehrmacht in order to prevent any possible "scorched earth" policy by the retreating Allied Forces. Towards the end of 1941, when an advance into the Caucasus by the German Army seemed imminent, the Regiment SACHSEN was again held in readiness to save the Russian oil wells for the Reich war effort.

Units of this regiment were also stationed at Ploesti in Rumania, when the oilfields were bombed in 1944 by the American Air Forces.

III

Technical Auxiliary Branches

62. Status of the Technische Hilfspolizeien

So far the various ordinary branches of the Regular Uniformed Police have been discussed. As previously noted, however, these are augmented in many instances by the Technische Hilfspolizeien (Technical Auxiliary Police Services), who, for the most part have been created as a direct result of the war and are an integral part of the Orpo.

While even the regular police had to find some replacements for its personnel of younger age classes among the Polizeireserve, the Technische Hilfspolizeien had to resort almost exclusively to the employment of Polizeireservisten.

Thus, personnel of the Technische Hilfspolizeien are not necessarily professional members of the police. They have, however, in many instances, become full-time police personnel for the duration of the war. Thereafter most of them will return to their civilian occupations, although it may be expected that some will try to transfer to the active ranks of their branch of the Police.

It should be especially noted that members of the Feuerwehren (see below) are in many instances not full-time members of the Police, but are merely called away from their civilian occupations for duty whenever the need for their services arises. Their status, therefore, very closely resembles that of the ordinary Hilfspolizeien (Auxiliary Police) which will be discussed in greater detail in para. 77; but they are nevertheless officially termed Technische Hilfspolizeien.

The Technische Hilfspolizeien include the Feuerwehren (Fire Brigades), the Luftschutzpolizei (ARP Police), and the Technische Nothilfe (Technical Emergency Corps). These organisations are discussed in detail below under (g), (h) and (j) respectively.

(g) FEUERWEHREN

63. Organisation of the Feuerwehren

As noted in para. 60 above, in September, 1939 most of the former Berufsfeuerwehren (Professional Fire Brigades) were incorporated as units into the newly-created Feuerschutzpolizei. In all communities where no units of the FP were established the Berufsfeuerwehren were transferred into the already existing or newly formed Freiwillige Feuerwehren (Voluntary Fire Brigades).

While many of the municipal Feuerwehren were thus absorbed by the Feuerschutzpolizei, it was deemed preferable in some localities to retain the well-established and smoothly functioning Feuerwehren, partly in place of, partly as an auxiliary to the Feuerschutzpolizei.

It would, of course, be erroneous to assume that such Feuerwehren as continued to exist, retained their former independence. Like every other organisation in Nazi Germany, they too were completely coordinated, centralised and militarised throughout the Reich. Accordingly they are now classified as Technische Hilfspolizei, and have therefore become directly subordinated to the Ordnungspolizei.

Four categories of this organisation must be distinguished:

- (1) Freiwillige Feuerwehren (Voluntary Fire Brigades).
- (2) Pflichtfeuerwehren (Compulsory Fire Brigades).
- (3) Werkfeuerwehren (Factory Fire Brigades).
- (4) HJ-Feuerweherscharen (Fire-fighting platoons of the Hitler Youth).

Any community or municipality which was not compelled by decree of the Reich Minister of the Interior to establish a unit of the Feuerschutzpolizei is instead required to form a fire brigade which must be trained and equipped to combat fires and meet other emergencies caused by fire in its area.

As a rule, such units were, and frequently still are, formed on a voluntary basis. In places where voluntary enlistment does not suffice, the authorities (Bürgermeister or Landrat) may establish a Pflichtfeuerwehr by drafting personnel for service in the fire brigade.

Wartime manpower shortage especially went far in depleting the ranks of the voluntary fire brigades, and the authorities had to resort more and more to the employment of Pflichtfeuerwehren to fill the gaps.

In areas comprising mainly small villages where the formation of individual fire brigades would constitute a distinct hardship and waste of manpower, the Kreis authorities (Landrat) may organise one fire brigade for several villages or for an entire Landkreis. Organisations of this kind are known as Feuerschutzverbände (Fire Protection Groups) and do not in principle differ from regular Freiwillige or Pflichtfeuerwehren.

Even though a unit of the Feuerschutzpolizei may already exist in a town, the Ortspolizeibehörde (Local Police Authority, e.g. the Mayor) may decide that it is inadequate to meet all contingencies, and may therefore supplement the

Feuerschutzpolizei by a Freiwillige or Pflichtfeuerwehr or both. While such auxiliary fire brigades retain administrative independence, they are for all tactical purposes operationally attached to the Feuerschutzpolizei, and for training and employment subordinated to the direction of the local commander of the Feuerschutzpolizei.

Recruits for both the Freiwillige and Pflichtfeuerwehren must, in addition to the required minimum physical qualifications, be known to be "at the disposal of the National Socialist State at all times and without reservations." They may not be drawn from the personnel of either the Technische Nothilfe (Technical Emergency Corps), the Red Cross, or a Werkfeuerwehr (see below). Except for these limitations, all Germans between the ages of 17 and 65 are eligible for the Freiwillige and Pflichtfeuerwehren.

At the age of 60 members of the Pflichtfeuerwehr are placed in the Reserve where they remain informed of all matters pertaining to fire-fighting and fire protection so that they can be recalled in the event of an emergency.

64. Command of the Feuerwehren

Individual units of both Freiwillige and Pflichtfeuerwehren are headed by a Wehrführer (contingent leader) who is appointed by the Ortspolizeibehörde.

Each Kreis has a Kreisführer and below him several Unterkreisführer of the Freiwillige Feuerwehr. On the level of the Regierungsbezirk there is a Bezirksführer (District Commander) and on the staff of a BdO in each Wehrkreis an Abschnittsinspekteur der Freiwilligen Feuerwehr (Regional Inspector of the Voluntary Fire Brigades).

Bezirksführer are appointed by the Higher Administrative Authorities (e.g. Reg. Präs.) with the consent of the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei (HIMMLER). They supervise and command the activities of all voluntary fire brigades within their respective districts, coordinate their activities and issue general directives concerning training and employment.

In the case of the Pflichtfeuerwehren the functions, appointments, and offices of the Kreisführer, Bezirksführer, and the Abschnittsinspekteur are non-existent. On those levels (Kreis, Regierungsbezirk, and Wehrkreis) all compulsory fire brigades are tactical units of the Feuerschutzpolizei, attached and subordinated to the latter.

The highest supervisor for the entire Reich is the General-Inspekteur der Feuerschutzpolizei und Feuerwehren (Inspector General of the Fire Protection Police and Fire Brigades) already mentioned in paras. 28 and 60. His office is also referred to as that of the Inspekteur für das Feuerlöschwesen für Stadt und Land (Inspector of all Urban and Rural Fire-fighting Forces).

The highest Headquarters of all fire-fighting brigades in Germany is the Amt Feuerwehren (Bureau of Fire Brigades), which is Amt V in the Hauptamt Orpo. This bureau does not, however, control the Feuerschutzpolizei, whose highest Headquarters is in the Kommandoamt of the Hauptamt Orpo (see paras. 27 and 60).

It should be noted that before the incorporation of the Feuerwehren into the Orpo the bureau responsible for them as their highest Headquarters was known as the Reichsamt Freiwillige Feuerwehren (National Bureau of Voluntary Fire Brigades).

65. Werkfeuerwehren and HJ-Feuerweherscharen

In wartime, with increased fire hazards due to air raids, Werkfeuerwehren (Factory Fire Brigades) have rapidly gained in importance. To all intents and purposes, they resemble the Freiwillige or Pflichtfeuerwehren: just as the latter are organized by a village or rural sub-district (Kreis), the Werkfeuerwehren are established by the management of industrial factories, etc., and are staffed by their employees.

The decision as to the formation of Werkfeuerwehren, however, is not left with the individual management of a factory. Instead, the Higher Administrative Authorities (e.g. the Reg. Präs.) in conjunction with the Reich Ministry of the Interior and the Luftschutzdienststelle (local ARP Headquarters) in the Reichsgruppe Industrie (National League of Industry, an obligatory association of all industries) determines where Werkfeuerwehren are to be established. In addition, a factory desiring to organize a Werkfeuerwehr may seek the approval of the above mentioned authorities by filing a request through the local ARP unit, also notifying the Ortspolizeibehörde or Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung.

Each unit of the Werkfeuerwehr must consist of at least 18 members and must be equipped with a minimum of one power-driven pump.

These organizations exist in manufacturing concerns such as munitions factories and synthetic oil plants. They are much the same as the ARP units which similar undertakings in England have organized for the protection of their property.

To counter the manpower shortage within the ranks of the Feuerschutzpolizei and Feuerwehren at a time of increased wartime fire hazards, the Hitler Jugend (Hitler Youth Organisation) founded the so-called HJ-Feuerweherscharen (HJ Fire Fighting Platoons). Normally, they are organized as components of a HJ-Bann (Regiment), a local unit of the HJ.

A HJ-Feuerweherscharen consists of approximately 50 youths and is divided into 3 Kameradschaften (Squads).

The Feuerweherscharen are equipped and trained by the local Feuerschutzpolizei, Pflichtfeuerwehr or Freiwillige Feuerwehr, as the case may be. They then operate under the direct command of the local chief of the respective organization.

Larger localities may have more than one Feuerweherscharen, according to particular local needs. In other towns where no Feuerweherscharen have been formed, the local HJ Headquarters may detail boys from the HJ-SRD (Streifendienst) for fire-fighting duty. For further information on the SRD as a police auxiliary force, see para. 48.

66. Maintenance of Fire Services

All expenses of the Fire Protection Services, whether it be the Feuerschutzpolizei, the Freiwillige or Pflichtfeuerwehren, or the HJ-Feuerweherscharen, are met entirely by the local community. In the case of Werkfeuerwehren, the factories which organize them share some of the burden with the community.

Only for the maintenance of the Feuerweherschulen (Fire Brigade Schools) of the Länder and Provinzen does the Reich Government contribute half of the expenses, the remaining half being covered by the Länder and Provinzen. An exception to this financial arrangement is one Reichsfeuerweherschule in Eberswalde; this school is fully under the control of the national Government and its expenses are paid entirely by the Reich.

For purely technical matters the fire fighting organizations rely on the specialised knowledge of an association of technicians known as the Reichsverein Deutscher Feuerwehringenieure (RDF-National League of German Fire Protection Engineers).

UNCLASSIFIED

67. Original Air Defence Measures : the RLB

Before the outbreak of war, preparations for air raid protection in Germany were controlled by the Reichsluftschutzbund (RLB—Reich Association for Air Raid Protection). This organisation had the character of a private institution but was, of course, sponsored and supported by the Nazi Party, the Reich Government, the Military and, in particular, the Air Force.

After the Polish campaign, the organisation obtained a semi-official status when the authorities of the general administration as well as those of the police were directed to co-operate closely with the RLB.

A year later the RLB was completely taken over by the Reichsminister der Luftfahrt und Oberbefehlshaber der Luftwaffe (RM d L u Ob d L—Reich Minister for Aviation and C-in-C of the GAF) GÖRING, who is in supreme command of all active air defences, such as A.A. and barrage balloons.

The President of the RLB was then officially appointed Inspekteur des Selbstschutzes im Reichsministerium der Luftfahrt (Inspector of Civilian Passive Air Defence in the Reich Air Ministry). Similarly in the Luftgaue (Administrative Districts of the GAF) RLB Gruppenführer were appointed to cooperate with the regional Command Headquarters of the Army, the Air Force, and the Police.

The organisation attained the character of a Hilfspolizei (Auxiliary Police), when the police were ordered to delegate official authority to the RLB members as regards the inspection of buildings, black-out, erection of air raid shelters and "Entrümpelung" (i.e. removal of inflammable scrap material from buildings, a compulsory precaution against fire).

Work in the RLB is largely unpaid and part-time. It is divided into Gruppen (Groups), Untergruppen (Sub-groups), Ortsgruppen (Local Units) and Reviere (Wards).

68. Institution of the Luftschutzpolizei

Up to that time the Sicherheits- und Hilfsdienst (SHD—Security and Assistance Service) formed the professional nucleus of all defensive ARP services and as such was responsible for the execution of all major tasks arising in emergencies caused by air raids. It consisted of full-time members with the status of auxiliary policemen.

After the first 1,000 bomber raid by the RAF on Cologne, on 30th May, 1942, the SHD proved completely incapable of coping with any such major emergency. It was at that time that the Luftschutzpolizei (Air Raid Protection Police) was instituted and placed under the direct command of HIMMLER. Thus it became a branch of the Ordnungspolizei in general and a Technische Hilfspolizei (Technical Auxiliary Police) in particular.

The newly created organisation became the professional air raid protection service, responsible for rescue and repair work, demolition, decontamination, and a large share of the fire-fighting. The nature of its work necessitated, of course, very close co-operation with the Feuerschutzpolizei and the Technische Nothilfe. As a result of these developments two distinct types of ARP service must now be recognised. One is the full-time service of the Luftschutzpolizei; the other is the part-time service of various auxiliary organisations (discussed in the next paragraph) as well as the network of house and block wardens.

In the main the Luftschutzpolizei has taken over all the functions and personnel of the SHD, reinforcing them with the personnel of the Technische Nothilfe. It therefore includes the following full time services, formerly branches of the SHD or TN :—

Feuer- und Entgiftungsdienst (Fire-fighting and decontamination service)—abbreviated F.u.E-Dienst. This service in particular is still frequently referred to by the obsolete term "SHD," the service from which it has developed. Personnel is trained mainly by the Feuerschutzpolizei.

Instandsetzungsdienst (Repair, demolition and rescue services)—abbreviated J-Dienst.

This service includes emergency engineering as well as bomb-disposal work. It was originally furnished by the Technische Nothilfe and has been derived from the Luftschutzdienst of that organisation (See para. 74).

Luftschutzsanitätsdienst (Medical and First Aid Service)—abbreviated San-Dienst.

Luftschutzveterinärdienst (Veterinary First Aid Service).

Fachtrupps (Specialised technical squads).

These units are charged with the repair of damaged gas and water mains, electrical installations, sewers, drains, and smaller water ducts; they have developed out of the Bereitschaftsdienst of the TN (See para. 74).

It must be noted that the Luftschutzpolizei in its capacity as a Technische Hilfspolizei has been created as a technically specialised supplement to the regular police. Its personnel is therefore not entitled to take independent action.

Thus, in the event of air raids, the Regular Police takes full charge of all ARP operations and directly determines the employment and commands the forces of the Luftschutzpolizei. Through the latter, it controls all the various auxiliary ARP services. At no time does the Luftschutzpolizei assume the independent power of arrest; however, co-operation with the regular police is so close that no problem arises out of this lack of authority.

As a consequence of this auxiliary character of the Luftschutzpolizei, its members are not subject to the jurisdiction of the SS- und Polizei-Gerichte (SS and Police Tribunals) unless they are simultaneously members of the Regular Police or any branch thereof.

Most men of the Luftschutzpolizei are recruited from the Polizeireserve and are, therefore, not professional police personnel. On 1st June, 1942, when the SHD was incorporated into the Luftschutzpolizei, its entire personnel, not previously holding any police status, was bodily transferred into the Polizeireserve.

Officers of the Luftschutzpolizei are trained at the Polizeiakademie für Luftschutzführung (Police Academy for ARP Tactics) at Oranienburg, formerly known as the Polizeischule für Luftschutzführer at Berlin-Schöneberg.

As a result of an increasing manpower shortage, women are now being employed to replace men in the Luftschutzpolizei. Directives have lately been issued to accelerate this process in order to free as many men as possible for active field service.

As the air war intensified, mobile ARP field units were formed, which could be quickly transported from one place to another, wherever they were needed. Originally they were known as SHD Abteilungen (mot), but are now called LS Abteilungen (mot). Approximately 50 such battalions have been identified. Some of them have even appeared behind the front in Russia and at Ploesti in Rumania, where they were employed to save strategic targets from destruction.

UNCLASSIFIED

69. Auxiliary ARP formations

The Luftschutzpolizei is assisted in its functions by various auxiliary ARP organisations such as:—
Werkluftschutzdienst (Factory ARP Services).
Werkschutzpolizei (Factory Protection Police).
Selbstschutz (Self-Protection Service).
Erweiterter Selbstschutz (Extended Self-Protection Service).

Luftschutzwarndienst (ARP Warning Service).

The Werkluftschutzdienst is organised in all larger and war-essential plants by the Reichsgruppe Industrie (National League of Industry—an obligatory association of all industries) according to instructions from the Reichsluftfahrtministerium. It is formed and supervised by the management of each factory and staffed by the workers and employees.

The Werkschutzpolizei is found in most of those factories which have also organised a Werkluftschutzdienst. It is organised to provide for "maximum" protection of industrial plants and workers. Employees are conscripted for this service and are registered with the Luftschutzpolizei which is operationally in charge of the organisation.

While the Werkschutzpolizei was originally created, not for ARP purposes, but for the protection of factories and workers in general, e.g. against sabotage and theft, it does now take an active part in ARP work. The organisation—or at any rate its key personnel—is believed to be identical with the SS-Werkspolizei (SS Industrial Police), the officers being under the command of the Führer of the SS-Oberabschnitt in which they function.

At this point it should also be noted that the Werkfeuerwehren (Factory Fire Brigades), discussed in para. 65, cooperate tactically with the Werkluftschutzdienst and the Werkschutzpolizei.

The Selbstschutz might well be termed the basis for all civilian ARP activities. It includes air-raid wardens, block wardens, roof spotters, and all other essential civilian ARP workers, not unlike those in Allied ARP organisations but more thoroughly militarised, as might be expected in Nazi Germany.

The Erweiterter Selbstschutz is organised in all official buildings, hotels, restaurants, department stores, theatres, and other public and semi-public buildings where large crowds congregate. As in the case of the Selbstschutz its members are conscripted from among the employees of the buildings concerned.

The function of the Luftschutzwarndienst is to observe approaching enemy planes and to place the threatened population on the alert—along similar lines to the Observer Corps in the U.K. Increased Allied air attacks, however, have caused this organisation to become largely obsolete. Most of its former functions are now performed by specialised German Air Force personnel with the remnants of the civilian Luftschutzwarndienst, including women and juveniles, merely assisting and supplementing the technically trained and specially equipped Air Force personnel.

Werkluftschutz, Selbstschutz, Erweiterter Selbstschutz and Luftschutzwarndienst are also referred to as the services of the Luftschutzbereitschaftsdienst (Air Protection Emergency Service). Service in these organisations is compulsory, but on a part-time basis and unpaid except for certain small reimbursements covering meals and expenses. Today many Ost-Arbeiter (foreign workers, including PW from the Eastern occupied territories) are pressed into service in these auxiliary ARP organisations. Some of the Schutzmannschaftsbataillone (para. 40) have also been identified performing ARP duties and guard duties after air raids in Germany.

All civilian auxiliary ARP services discussed above are supervised and trained by the RLB. That organisation, still advisory agency for all civilian ARP services, is itself now supervised by the Luftschutzpolizei, so that the entire system of German ARP services is effectively centralised and co-ordinated, while at the same time reaching down into the smallest sector of the community. It is under complete control of the Regular Police whose technically specialised agency for ARP work is the Luftschutzpolizei.

It has previously been pointed out that the Luftschutzpolizei and its auxiliaries do not possess regular police powers: the complete control of all these services by the Orpo, however, makes this efficiently militarised organisation a useful and constantly available tool of the German police.

Lately the term Luftschutzpolizei has to some extent come to be an all-inclusive designation of all Police and auxiliary police forces whenever these are employed during and after air raids. Thus the Schutzpolizei, Feuerschutzpolizei, and Technische Nothilfe are all referred to as "Luftschutzpolizei" whenever they are functionally employed in that capacity.

The Luftschutzpolizei is assisted in the discharge of its duties by various volunteer Party formations, e.g. the SA Katastrophen-Stürme (Emergency Companies). These and similar units are specially trained under the SA command, but are not necessarily composed entirely of SA men, and serve less as police units than as ARP squads engaged in clearance of debris, traffic regulation and fire watching. The German press stresses the special training these units receive, and the important role they play in Allied air raids.

SS Industrieschutzmannschaften (Industrial Safety Crews) are described as cadres of SS Officers, who are in charge of employees of plants and serve as liaison officers with the various forces of the Orpo which are concerned with fire-fighting and air-raid precautions.

(j) TECHNISCHE NOTHILFE

70. Scope of the Technische Nothilfe

The Technische Nothilfe (Technical Emergency Corps), often referred to as Teno and officially abbreviated TN, is a Technical Auxiliary Police formation of the Ordnungspolizei (Regular Police). It is a corps of engineers, technicians, and skilled and semi-skilled specialists in construction work, public utilities operation, communications, metal salvage, and other related fields. As engineer corps of the German Police the TN is to-day one of the principal agencies in combatting the effects of Allied air raids.

The TN has been called upon to remove mines, clear fields of fire, repair roads, restore communications, repair electrical installations, dismantle plants and boilers in factories, build bridges, demolish damaged buildings, as well as to perform many other tasks of demolition and restoration made necessary by natural catastrophes and the war.

UNCLASSIFIED

The Armed Forces have made extensive use of the TN. Its field formations have been attached to the Army and Air Force ever since the annexation of Austria. As a rule TN Battalions, known as Technische Bataillone or Abteilungen are attached to an Army Group, sending Technische Kommandos (Technical Detachments) to lower formations. In Russia all Technische Abteilungen were controlled at the highest Headquarters by a TN-Einsatzgruppe (Group Command).

On occasions fully armed members of the TN have been assigned to defensive positions in the field and even been employed as reinforcements for depleted infantry units. TN field units have also been assigned to police formations in occupied territories to assist in the rebuilding of public utilities and other installations.

The depot for the TN field formations is the Ersatz-Abteilung der Technischen Nothilfe in Köln-Dünnwald.

TN Abteilungen are formed on a Landesgruppe basis, and are therefore designated each by the same Roman numeral as its parent Landesgruppe. Thus, TN Abteilungen I, III, IV, V, VI, VIII, IX, X and XIII have been identified.

A TN Abteilung generally consists of five companies, each again sub-divided into specialist sections' such as :—

Bautruppp (Construction Section).

Rohrtruppp (Pipeline Section).

Leitungstruppp (Electrical Circuit Section).

Wasserwerktruppp (Waterworks Maintenance Section).

Krantruppp (Crane Section).

Brücken- u. Schleusentruppp (Bridges and Water Locks Section).

In army rear areas, TN units are allotted to the HSSPf who, as their commander, may employ them for tasks of a technical nature. Allied Armies now fighting on German soil will, therefore, even before the phase of occupation, encounter TN forces as part of the units under the command of HSSPf of Germany proper. In addition it should be borne in mind that a considerable proportion of the senior officers of the TN hold high ranks in the SS and German Police.

Thus the TN is to-day a problem both for Allied operational intelligence and for Allied occupation counter-intelligence.

71. History of the TN

The Technische Nothilfe was instituted in 1919 under the auspices of Generaloberst von SEECKT, the founder of the old Reichswehr. It was originally meant to be just what its name implies—a technical organisation to be used in emergencies.

During the first years of the Weimar Republic when violent political strikes, instigated by the extremist parties of the Right and Left, shook the life of the country, the TN kept public utilities and essential industries running. Thus, although its character was distinctly that of a strike-breaking organisation, it served the democratic parties then in power.

Between 1925 and 1930, during the period of pseudo-prosperity, the TN lost much of its importance, without ever ceasing to exist.

In 1930 the TN introduced a gas and air protection service and enlarged its Bereitschaftsdienst (Emergency Service Branch) into an organisation equipped to fight natural catastrophes.

This offspring of the Bereitschaftsdienst was called Hilfspionierdienst (Auxiliary Engineer Service).

When HITLER came to power, any strike-breaking organisation lost its raison d'être. But rather than dissolve the TN, the Nazi Party decided to remodel it completely and use it as a tool for its own ends. It became a "Machtmittel des Staates zur Beseitigung öffentlicher Notstände," i.e. a powerful tool of the Government to deal with public emergencies.

Thus, in 1934, the TN was converted into a fully-fledged Party formation. Its National Headquarters and apex was named the "Reichsamt Technische Nothilfe" (RATN—National Department of the TN).

In March, 1935 the Reich Minister of the Interior FRICK referred to the TN as a Hilfsformation der Polizei (Auxiliary Formation of the Police Force). The year 1936 saw the opening of the TN Reichsschule (TN National Academy) in Belzig, Mark Brandenburg, which was to train TN officers between the ages of 30 and 55; its head in 1943 was Hauptbereitschaftsführer HUGEN-DUBEL.

The year 1937 marks a big step towards the centralisation of the TN and its complete incorporation into the Police. It became a ständiges technisches Hilfsorgan der Polizei (permanent technical auxiliary corps of the Police). To its chief was given the title "Chef der TN" and the National Headquarters which he commanded was made part of the Hauptamt Ordnungspolizei and as such called "Amt Technische Nothilfe" (Amt TN—Department of the TN). The original designation Reichsamt Technische Nothilfe, however, is still officially used by the TN.

In March, 1939, members of the TN were given the right to carry sidearms and firearms. In June of the same year, the TN Law was made public. It laid down as basic function of the TN to render technical assistance in the following three fields :—

(a) Keeping essential public utilities operating under all circumstances.

(b) ARP work.

(c) Dealing with major emergencies.

This law also changed the organisation from a Verein (membership association) to a Körperschaft des öffentlichen Rechtes (a legal, registered, state-controlled corporation).

In 1941, WEINREICH, its C-in-C, became first Generalmajor and later Generalleutnant der Polizei.

In 1942, the TN was placed under the SS-und Polizeigerichtsbarkeit (SS and Police Jurisdiction and Disciplinary code).

72. Membership, Strength, and General Organisation

Members of the TN must, because of their functions as a Technische Hilfspolizei, be completely reliable from the Nazi point of view. They must be Germans or "racial" Germans and "must be able to prove that they are loyal to the National Socialist State." For example, no one who has been expelled from the Nazi Party can be accepted by the TN.

The majority of members of the TN (known as Nothelfer) are men over military age (45-70). They joined the organisation voluntarily, but can no longer withdraw at will. Notdienstpflichtige (persons required to serve in an emergency on the home front) can at any time be assigned to the TN.

Only the key positions in higher headquarters are filled by full-time TN officers. The ordinary

UNCLASSIFIED

Nothelfer serves only in his TN capacity when called up in an emergency.

In addition a provision is made under which specialists, both within and outside the TN, may be appointed Sonderführer (specialist officers) for the execution of particularly responsible tasks. Such TN Sonderführer may be granted any TN rank for the duration of the war. This provision points clearly to the possibility of further infiltration into the TN of SS and Party men wishing to conceal their past activities.

The strength of the TN is difficult to estimate but will hardly exceed 200,000 men. The Germans reported that by 1939, 105,154 TN men had at one time or another been employed; and that in the first twenty months of the war 150,000 Nothelfer had worked at 7,500 places in the Heimatgebiet (Greater Germany).

Many TN members will have joined the Armed Forces, but on the other hand the organisation will undoubtedly have recruited new members compulsorily.

In occupied countries the Germans have created organisations similar to the German TN such as the "Secours Technique" in France, the "Teknisk Nodhjelp" in Norway, or the "Technische Nodhulp" in the Netherlands. In Eastern Europe and the Baltic, the population was pressed into emergency units known as "Pioniermannschaften".

The Technische Nothilfe is organised from two different points of view. It has a regional organisation and chain of command leading from the National Headquarters to its Landesgruppen, Bezirksgruppen, and Ortsgruppen. This form of organisation may best be described as "vertical." According to its various functions and purposes, however, the TN is also sub-divided on all levels into Dienste (services), which is to say that it is organised in units trained and equipped to perform a specific technical task. This structure is best termed a "horizontal" one. In following paragraphs both forms of organisation are described.

73. Vertical Structure of the TN

At the top of the vertical structure of the TN comes its highest agency, the Amt Technische Nothilfe in the Hauptamt Orpo.

The Amt TN is located at Berlin-Steglitz, Birkbuschstrasse 18; Tel. 791101.

The Chef der TN (C-in-C of the TN) exercises his authority over the subordinated Landesgruppen, Bezirksgruppen, and Ortsgruppen through the Amt TN, which consists of his personal staff and several sections, as follows:—

Personal Staff of the C-in-C

Chef der TN (C-in-C of the TN)	SS-GF, Genlt. d. Pol. SCHMELCHER (since end of 1943)

-----------------	-------------------------------------

It is not quite clear what the functions of this office are. It probably deals with the testing and checking of technical equipment and of installations before they are accepted by the TN from the manufacturers and again before the TN hands them over to the Army, Air Force, Police or other authorities after completion of their work. The proper translation, perhaps would be "Contract Acceptance Bureau" or "Bureau of Technical Specifications and Tests."

The highest territorial command of the TN is the Landesgruppe (LG—district group unit). Landesgruppen coincide with the territorial boundaries of the Wehrkreise (Armed Forces Military Districts) and each Landesgruppe carries the Roman numeral of the corresponding Wehrkreis. In addition to the Landesgruppen there are the TN Befehlsstellen (Command Areas) Oberschlesien, General Gouvernement, Niederlande, and Norwegen.

At the head of each Landesgruppe is the Commander (Führer der Landesgruppe).

Under the commander, a Stabsführer (C of S) appointed by the Amt TN is charged with the overall administrative direction of the Landesgruppe. He may, in addition, take over the conduct of certain Einzelsachgebiete (Special Sub-sections). In general, however, such sub-sections are directed by specialists (Sachbearbeiter) who, with their staffs, work out technical problems arising in the administration of the Landesgruppe.

Purely administrative as well as financial matters are in the hands of a Verwaltungsführer (administrative officer) and his staff. In addition to this directing staff of the Landesgruppe, the Headquarters includes of course such additional personnel as draughtsmen, technical employees and clerks.

Bezirksgruppen (BG—sub-district group units), each commanded by a Führer der Bezirksgruppe, sometimes form the intermediate echelon between Landesgruppen and Ortsgruppen. As with the Landesgruppe, the various sub-sections in the BG Headquarters are handled by specialists and all administrative and financial matters by the Verwaltungsführer. These officials, however, are not necessarily full-time personnel.

The Ortsgruppen (OG—local units) are the basic units for TN activities. They should not be confused with the Nazi Party Ortsgruppen.

1,500 TN Ortsgruppen are said to exist in Germany. In addition there are an unidentified number of smaller local TN groups known as Zweigstellen (branches) or Unterguppen (local sub-units) of the Ortsgruppen. Functionally each Ortsgruppe is divided into various Dienste (services), which are dealt with below in the discussion of the TN horizontal structure.

At the head of each Ortsgruppe stands the Ortsführer (local unit commander). The designation Ortsführer (H) indicates that in this capacity he is a full-time (hauptamtlich) TN official.

All local business matters arising within the Ortsgruppe are handled by the Sachwalter (specialised sub-section official) who is a full-time employee of the Ortsgruppe. He in turn is assisted by a number of honorary Stabsgehilfen (staff assistants) who handle such matters as recruiting and training, administration and auditing, and medical and legal aid.

In Ortsgruppen with gas and air raid protection schools, heads of such schools are members of the OG staff.

74. Horizontal Structure—the TN Service Branches

To accomplish the various tasks with which the TN is charged it is horizontally organised into Dienste (Service Branches). Four of these exist in every Ortsgruppe, viz:—

Technischer Dienst
Luftschutzdienst
Bereitschaftsdienst
Allgemeiner Dienst

The Dienste are organised as follows:—

Schar, 8-15 men.
Kameradschaft, 2-4 Scharen, 25-50 men
Gemeinschaft, 2-4 Kameradschaften, 50-100 men
Gefolgschaft, 2-4 Gemeinschaften, 100-200 men
Bereitschaft, 2-4 Gefolgschaften, 200-400 men
Hauptbereitschaft, several Bereitschaften, 400-1,000 men.

When actively employed, however, the Dienste are divided into Züge (Platoons) and Trupps (Sections). This apparent overlapping of sub-sections can best be explained by the fact that the Scharen, Kameradschaften, etc. are administrative entities, whereas Züge and Trupps are functional units.

The Technischer Dienst (Technical Service Branch, abbr. TD) is employed in important factories and public utility works when sabotage or natural catastrophes interfere with their operation and the employees are unable to cope with the situation. The factory supervisors themselves regulate the employment of the TN personnel. According to its tasks, the TD consists of:—

Betriebstrupps, who specialise in electric, gas, water, sewage, and drains work
Fachreservetrupps who are the reserve group for the same type of work as the Betriebstrupps
Leitungstrupps, sections which work on lines and circuits. These are sub-divided into Hochspannungstrupps (high tension sections), Rohrtrupps "Gas" (gas pipeline sections), and Rohrtrupps "Wasser" (water pipeline sections).

The strength of Betriebstrupps depends on local needs; that of the Leitungstrupps on the extent of local lines. Betriebstrupps are trained as replacement personnel for specialised tasks in factories; the Leitungstrupps are trained for the maintenance and repair of lines and circuits.

Generally speaking, only experts who have been trained for the particular task are used in the TD. Public utilities and industrial installations requiring TD personnel must inform the Headquarters of the TN as to their exact requirements. The working organisation of the TD is not rigid and will be modified according to the nature of the work in hand. Sub-units are kept to a minimum and complicated chains of command are avoided.

The Luftschutzdienst (Air Raid Protection Service Branch, abbr. LD) of the TN was originally created with the specific function of organising, training, and maintaining the Instandsetzungsdienst (JD—Repair, Demolition and Rescue Services). However, in 1942, the Instandsetzungsdienst was incorporated into the Luftschutzpolizei and is now an integral part of that organisation. While, therefore, its personnel is still derived from the ranks of the TN, its training and employment are now under the command of the Air Raid Protection Police.

In detail, the special functions of the JD include removal of traffic obstructions, particularly difficult rescue work, furnishing of temporary shelters, bomb disposal work and emergency demolitions in case of large scale fires or collapsing buildings.

The Bereitschaftsdienst (Emergency Service Branch, abbr. BD) deals with natural catastrophes and consists of motorised Bereitschaftszüge (mot. BZ—emergency platoons), equipped with special motor vehicles developed by the Amt TN, and auxiliary motorised Bereitschaftszüge equipped as completely as possible.

These platoons are composed of Bereitschaftstrupps, which are sub-divided as follows:

1 Führer (Leader)

UNCLASSIFIED

- 1 Führerstellvertreter (Assistant Leader)
- 2 Arbeitsgruppenführer (Detail Leaders)
- 2 Arbeitsgruppen (Details) of 8 men each
- 2 Kraftfahrer (Drivers)
- 2 Melder (Messengers).

The Headquarters locations of BZ are situated so that they are in or near danger areas. The BD also takes on the duties of the Instandsetzungsdienst (Utilities Maintenance Service) in those locations where the Luftschutzpolizei (ARP police) is not equipped to perform repair services.

The Allgemeine Dienst (General Service Branch, abbr. AD) includes all the TN men who are not in the specialised Dienste listed above and represents a general reserve, including, however, the following special units:—

- Signal Platoons
- Sprengtrupps* (demolition sections)
- Musik- und Spielmannzüge* (band platoons)
- Parktrupps* (motor maintenance sections)
- Lichtzüge* (searchlight platoons).

All men who are available only for limited service or who are members of the Armed Forces, as well as all TN Verfügungsreserve (TN VR—Active Reserve), are part of the AD. Nothelferanwärter (candidates for TN membership) are also organised as part of the AD.

75. Future Significance of the TN

The full potentialities of the TN for the future can be pictured only by considering the combination which arises now that the TN field units, retreating with the Armed Forces into the Reich, are merging with the TN units of the home front.

From preceding paragraphs it will be clear that the TN field units have a wide range of technical experience, while the home front units must, in their specialist capacity, have become thoroughly familiar with the working details of all essential industries as well as with the precise locations of industrial installations, public utilities, water mains, gas mains, sewers, telephones, etc.

When these two elements of the organisation combine forces on an inner German front, their danger as a synchronised team must be fully reckoned with.

As the Allied Armed Forces continue to narrow the ring around Germany, the TN will undoubtedly be charged with the transfer of vital machinery to the safer areas in the interior of the Reich. As the "safer areas" too are overrun by the Allied advance, it would be only logical for the Nazis to call upon the TN to dismantle and hide some of this machinery for use later by the already clearly foreshadowed underground movement.

The TN, officered largely by SS personnel, will then be ready to spring into action as a thoroughly "nazified" technical shock-formation of industrial saboteurs.

Considering the TN in this light, therefore, Allied occupation forces need to pay close attention to this efficiently devised and powerful weapon of the Nazis. Indeed, a knowledge of, and careful control over the TN might assist the Allied forces considerably in countering the sabotage preparations of German resistance movements.

IV

Auxiliaries to the Regular Uniformed Police

76. Sonderpolizei

Certain categories of uniformed police in Germany are not an integral part of the Ordnungspolizei. They do not therefore come under the jurisdiction of the Hauptamt Orpo, although their duties are similar to those of the Ordnungspolizei. They are known under the general term of Sonderpolizei (Special Police), and include:—

The Bahnpolizei (State Railway Police) with its branches, the Bahnschutzpolizei (Railway Protection Police)—and the Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst (Railway Criminal Investigation Service)

The SS-Bahnschutz

The SS-Postschutz (Postal Guards)

The SS-Funkschutz (Radio Installation Guards)

The Bergpolizei (Police for the Supervision of Mines)

The Deichpolizei (Dam and Dyke Police).

The Bahnpolizei is maintained by the Deutsche Reichsbahn (State Railways), and is primarily subordinated to the Reichsverkehrsministerium (RVM—Ministry of Transport). When, however, the Bahnpolizei exceeds its technical specialised functions in order to assume some of the duties of the Ordnungspolizei, it acts under the command of the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei. Specific instructions are then transmitted by the Chief of the Ordnungspolizei through the Kommandoamt of the Hauptamt Orpo, "in agreement with the Reichsverkehrsministerium." In such instances, personnel of the Bahnpolizei are accorded the status of Hilfpolizei (see next para.).

In special emergencies which necessitate the employment of Bahnpolizei for general police tasks the Reichsverkehrsministerium will, upon request of the Orpo, place the Bahnpolizei at the disposal of the RFSS u Ch d Dt P for combined employment with units of the Orpo. To facilitate cooperation between the Reichsverkehrsministerium and the Police the Reichsverkehrsministerium appoints a Verbindungsreferent to establish liaison with the RFSS.

In addition Reichsbahnangestellte (employees of the State Railways), such as stationmasters, conductors and engineers, have been entrusted with Police power on trains.

The Postschutz and Funkschutz function under the Reichspostministerium and their primary duty is to guard property belonging to the Postal and Broadcasting authorities. The Bahnschutz similarly functions under the railway authorities. (See paras. 122 f.f.).

Most of the branches of the Sonderpolizei are today closely affiliated with and to a large extent taken over by the SS. It becomes evident, in fact, that although the outward appearance of these branches of Police, as well as the bulk of their duties, are of an Orpo nature, their real significance is predominantly of a security police character. They are, therefore, discussed later in greater detail in connection with the Sicherheitspolizei and the SD. The Bergpolizei and Deichpolizei—which come under the Reichswirtschaftsministerium (RWM—Ministry of Economics)—are discussed in para. 86 in connection with the Verwaltungspolizei.

77. Hilfpolizei

The Hilfpolizei (Hipo—Auxiliary Police) consists of various auxiliary services—largely recruited from Nazi Party formations (Gliederungen)—which may be called upon to assist the Regular Police on a part-time basis. They have been discussed in various places in preceding parts of this book.

The Sonderpolizei—discussed in the previous paragraph—which is staffed by full-time personnel, should not be confused with the various types of Hilfspolizei. At times, however, members of the Sonderpolizei may be appointed Hilfspolizisten and will then assist the Regular Police in their functions.

The most important category of the Hilfspolizei is formed by the Landwacht and the Stadtwacht (Rural and Urban Guards), recruited mainly from among the SA-Wehrmannschaften. When on duty as Auxiliary Policemen, they wear an armband, usually white with the black inscription "Hilfspolizei." For further details see para. 53.

Other Services sometimes given the status of Hilfspolizeien are :—

C. THE ADMINISTRATIVE POLICE

78. Verwaltungspolizei : General

Even before the foundation of the German Reich in 1871, the Police was a powerful factor in the administration of both Prussia under STEIN and HARDENBERG, and Austria under METTERNICH. Thus for a century and a half the tradition has existed which makes Germany a "Polizeistaat," a country controlled and governed by the Police. Today the Police in the Third Reich is immeasurably more powerful and closer to the life of the individual than is the case in England or the United States.

The present-day German concept of "Police" is, as becomes apparent from those branches discussed so far, extremely wide. On the administrative side also it will be seen that the German Police does not attend merely to the great volume of paper work connected with its regular duties of maintaining order and protecting public safety, but has in addition taken over a great many administrative functions, which in other countries are performed by purely civilian clerical staffs. In Germany it is the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police) which handles these duties.

While personnel of the other branches of the Orpo are referred to as Polizeivollzugsbeamte (Police Executive Officials), members of the various sections of the Verwaltungspolizei are called Polizeiverwaltungsbeamte (Police Administrative Officials). They are not necessarily uniformed. As a rule, they are men of older age classes and many of them may have risen to their administrative positions after having completed a stretch of service as Polizeivollzugsbeamte. At any rate, since the Nazis came to power, these men, too, are more or less militarised. Even if they do not always wear uniforms, they have normally had some military training and experience in the past, and are now frequently "combed out" and conscripted.

The Verwaltungspolizei is a branch of the Orpo, as are all the branches previously discussed in this part. The apex of its command structure, however, is not Amt I, the Kommandoamt in the Hauptamt Orpo, as is the case with all ordinary branches of the Regular Uniformed Police, but rather Amt II, Amt Verwaltung und Recht (Bureau of Administration, Law and Legal Affairs).

The Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen throughout Germany are the local centres where most of the duties and functions of the Verwaltungspolizei are performed. The organisation of the Verwaltungspolizei within the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen has been standardised throughout Germany. Its wide scope is indicated by the list, in the next paragraph, of the various divisions within each Polizeiverwaltung.

79. Standard Organisation of a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung

The Administrative Police within a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung are organised into 5 principal sections (Abteilungen) and a Sekretariat consisting of three bureaux, viz :—

1. Präsidialgeschäftsstelle (P)
(Office of the Chief of the Polizeiverwaltung).
2. Polizeikasse (Ka)
(Office of the Police Cashier).
3. Polizeirechnungsrevisor (Rv)
(Office of the Police Auditor and Controller).

The five principal sections are organised as follows :—

Abt. I (Abt. W)

Wirtschaftsabteilung (Financial Administration)

This section deals with :—

Haushalts- und Rechnungswesen (Budget, Book-keeping and Accounting)

Besoldungsangelegenheiten der Beamten, Angestellten und Lohnempfänger (Pay of Officials, Clerks and others on the Police payroll)

Versorgungsangelegenheiten (Allowances, Allotments and Pensions)

Wirtschaftsangelegenheiten der Schutzpolizei— Bekleidung, Verpflegung, Unterkunft (Budget matter of the Protection Police such as Uniforms, Subsistence and Billets).

Abt. II

Passwesen, Ausländerpolizei, Meldewesen, Wehrersatzwesen (Passports, Control of Foreigners, Police Registration, Recruiting of the Armed Forces)

This section deals with :—

Durchführung der Passvorschriften (Execution of Passport Regulations)

Ausländerpolizei—Überwachung, Aufenthalts-erlaubnis und -verbot usw (Supervision and Registration of Foreigners, issue and refusal of permission to reside, etc.)

Meldewesen, Meldevorschriften, Melderegister (Police Registration Regulations, forms, etc.)

Volkskartei (National Population Register)

Wehrersatzwesen—Wehrerfassung, Wehrstammrollen, Musterung (Registration of Recruits for the Armed Forces and other Police assistance in the call-up of age groups)

Staatsangehörigkeitssachen (Matters of citizenship)

Zeugnisse und polizeiliche Bescheinigungen (Attestations and Police Certificates)

Durchführung der Nürnberger Gesetze und Judengesetze (Nürnberg Racial Discrimination and anti-Jewish Laws)

Auswanderungswesen (Emigration)

Namen, Namensänderungen, Titel (Names, changes of name, titles).

Abt. III

Verkehrs-, Wasser-, und Feuerpolizei (Traffic, Waterways and Fire Police)

This section deals with :—

Verkehrspolizeiangelegenheiten — Strassen, und Strassenordnung, Verhalten im Verkehr und Verkehrsregelung, und Zulassung zum Strassenverkehr (Roads, Road Control and anything connected with Traffic Police, such as street permits for vehicles)

Ausstellung von Führerscheinen (Issue of Driving Licences, with the assistance of the NSKK ; see para. 47)

Fahrlehrerwesen (Supervision of Driving Instruction)

Genehmigungspflichtiger Beförderungsverkehr (Licences for Taxis, Buses and other Commercial vehicles)

Feuerpolizeiliche Vorschriften (Fire Police Regulations and Preventive measures)

Wasserpolizeiliche Vorschriften (Water Police Regulations)

Enteignungsangelegenheiten (Confiscation and Expropriation)

Abt. IV

Gewerbepolizei (Administrative Police for the control of Trade Establishments and their licences.)

This section is the competent authority for the handling of matters pertaining to Trades and Licences on the basis of the Reichsgewerbeordnung (a code of Reich decrees governing the licensing of trades and crafts). It deals with the following matters :—

Preisüberwachung (Enforcement of Price Control)

Lichtspiel und Theaterwesen (Supervision of theatres and cinemas)

Ausstellung von Wandergewerbebescheinigen und Reiselegitimationskarten (Licences for Pedlars and Commercial Travellers, Travel Permits)

Regelung der Sonntags- und Festtagsruhe und von Lustbarkeiten (Supervision of Sunday peace, curfew hours for places of entertainment)

Überwachung der Gewerbebetriebe, der Fremdenheime und Gaststätten (Supervision of trades, hotels, inns and restaurants)

Wirtschaftswerbung, Sammlungen (Supervision of Advertisements and Street Collections)

Schutz Nationaler Symbole (Protection of National Symbols and Emblems).

Abt. V

Strafverfügungen, Amtshilfesachen, Gesundheits-, Lebensmittel und Veterinärpolizei (Regulations on punishable offences, Welfare matters, Health, Food and Veterinary Police.)

This section deals with :—

Polizeistrafrecht (Police Courts, Penal Code and Police Regulations)

Amtshilfesachen (Inter-Office Assistance)

Polizeiverwaltungsgesetz und Polizeistrafverfügungen (Police Administrative Code and Penal Orders)

Verwaltungszwangsverfahren (Compulsory Administration, i.e. Receivership, Condemnation, Administration of Confiscated Property, and other compulsory proceedings)

Volks-, Vieh- und Betriebszählungen usw (Census of Population, Cattle, Commercial and Industrial Establishments)

Polizeiliche Mitwirkung in Fürsorge und Wohlfahrtsangelegenheiten (Police Assistance in Public Welfare)

Gesundheits- und Lebensmittelpolizei, Medizinalpersonen, Apothekerwesen, Heilmittel, Handel mit Giften, Badewesen, Leichen, Bestattungen (Health and Food Administration, Supervision of Doctors and Nurses, Pharmacists, Trade in Drugs and Poisons, Inspection of Public Baths, Regulations regarding Corpses and Funerals)

Überwachung des Verkehrs mit Lebensmitteln (Supervision of Trade in Foodstuffs)

Tierseuchen, Schlachtvieh- und Fleischbeschau (Animal Epidemics, Inspection of Slaughter Houses and Meat)

Waffen- und Jagdwesen (Fire-arms and Hunting Licences)

80. Records and Documents

Like the German Armed Forces, the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen use a uniform filing system for all records—the Einheitsaktenplan (Standard Filing System, abbr. EAP). This system was instituted on the 9th November, 1934.

A representative condensation of the system, tabulated in ranges of numbers according to subject headings, will be found in annexe C. The complete carding key has not been reproduced as it consists of a series from 1,000 to over 10,000. This most voluminous bureaucratic system goes into great detail with specific filing numbers for such subjects as signal whistles and the training of police horses.

One of the functions of the Verwaltungspolizei is the supervision of the security classification system of civil documents and publications. In detail, the classifications in use are :—

Nur für den Dienstgebrauch (NfäD) or

Nur für deutsche Behörden (NfäB) : For official use only.

This classification is the equivalent of "Restricted."

Vertraulich (Vertr.) : Confidential.

Geheim (Geh.) : Secret.

Geheime Kommandosache (Geh KdoS) : Literally "Secret command matter." The equivalent of this classification would be slightly below our "Top Secret," approximating to "Secret and Registered." It is used for documents pertaining only to command and operational matters for highest headquarters.

Geheime Reichssache (Geh RchS): Secret matter relating to national affairs. Its approximate equivalent would be slightly higher than our "Top Secret." It is used for matters of major national or diplomatic importance and is comparatively rare.

While these are the official classifications for German police documents, others may occasionally be found. Such unofficial classifications as "streng vertraulich" (strictly confidential), or other variations and combinations do occur, but they are, as a rule self-explanatory.

81. Police Duties carried out by Local Authorities

It is noteworthy that even in towns with a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung not all matters of police administration are handled by these authorities. A limited number of police functions is left to the municipalities, i.e. to the Mayor or Lord Mayor and his office. These duties are referred to as Restpolizeiliche Aufgaben ("residual police tasks").

The jurisdiction of both national and local authorities (Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung and Gemeindepolizeibehörde) has been regulated in Prussia in a set of decrees dated 31st March, 1938 and entitled "Verordnung über die sachliche Zuständigkeit der Staatlichen Polizeiverwaltung in Preussen" (Decree concerning the jurisdiction of the National Police Authorities in Prussia). Similar decrees have been issued in the other Länder.

A system of this kind leads inevitably to a certain amount of over-lapping and duplication, but the following fields of action are clearly defined as the responsibility of the Gemeindepolizeibehörden (Police Authorities of the Municipalities):—

Baupolizei (Police in charge of enforcement of the Building and Construction Code).

Feld- und Forstpolizei (Field and Forest Police).

Naturschutz (Protection of plants and animal life).

Feuerpolizei (Fire Police), as far as their activities are affected by the Building and Construction Code.

Certain aspects of the Gewerbepolizei.

Gesundheits-, Veterinär- und Lebensmittelpolizei (Health, Veterinary and Food Administration) unless in certain cities the Reich Ministry of the Interior has specifically transferred these functions to the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung.

Marktpolizei (Police for the Supervision of Public Markets and Fairs), which includes in its duties the examination of cattle and meat.

Wasserpolizei (Waterways Police), not to be confused with the Wasserschutzpolizei (Waterways Protection Police, discussed in para. 57, et seq).

Wege- und Strassenpolizei (Road Police), which concerns itself with the maintenance, illumination and cleaning of streets.

Bergpolizei (Police for the Supervision of Mines).

Jagdpolizei und Fischereipolizei (Police administering hunting and fishing rights).

Wohnungspolizei (Police for the supervision of Buildings, Tenements, Residential Houses and other Dwellings).

Obdachlosenpolizei (Police for the supervision of the Homeless and Vagrants).

Schulpolizei (Police for the supervision of Schools and School Attendance).

Other functions which may have been added to the authority of the Gemeindepolizei by special decree.

Most of the above functions are discussed in later paragraphs.

Only larger communities have a special staff of Gemeindeverwaltungsbeamten (Municipal Administrative Police Officials) to attend to the above listed duties. In medium sized and smaller communities all these administrative police functions are handled by the personnel of the regular civil municipal administration. In addition, in localities without a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung, the same personnel take care of those administrative activities which in cities with Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen are assigned to the staffs of the Polizeipräsidien, -direktionen or -ämter. (See also paras. 24, 79.)

82. Police Registration

Of the many varied activities of the Verwaltungspolizei some must be particularly emphasised. Among the most important, from the Allied occupation and Counter-Intelligence point of view are Meldewesen (Police Registration) and the Volkskartei (National Population Register).

Registration of the population has always been compulsory in Germany since the last century. Using the existing laws as a basis for an even more rigid control, the Nazi government remodelled and reinforced previous provisions, in decrees issued in 1938 and 1940. Thus, for instance, the new edicts ordered all Germans to register with the police within three days of any change of residence. Foreigners were governed by the same decree, but their registration had to take place within 24 hours.

The basis of this police registration is a certificate from the appropriate police authority giving the place of former residence and stating that the particular person was registered there until his or her change of residence. The certificate is called the Abmeldeschein (Certificate of change of Residence). In return, on re-registering, the registrant receives his new Meldeschein (Certificate of Residence), which shows that he is properly registered in the new locality. In order to keep the authorities fully informed, all persons are required to advise the police even if they only move within their own community. In that case a new Meldeschein is not issued, but an entry as to the change of address is made on the existing certificate of residence.

Duplicates of all Meldescheine and Abmeldescheine are forwarded to the regional Finanzamt (Internal Revenue Office) concerned. That office then turns them over to the Statistische Reichsamt (Reich Bureau of Statistics) in Berlin. There they are used primarily for statistical and census tabulations, but it may be assumed that the duplicate certificates of registration can be found on permanent file with that office.

As a development of this registration, the Police keep alphabetical Melderegister (card file registers) of all residents in the community. The office maintaining this register is called the Einwohnermeldeamt or Einwohneramt (Bureau of Population Registry). The individual records are called Personenregisterkarten (Personal Registration File Cards).

The colour of the Personenregisterkarte is white for men and blue for women. The personal data contained on the card include the registered person's name, date of birth, place of birth, marital status, religion, race, occupation, nationality and citizenship, military status and criminal record. Additional information found on this card includes name, date of birth, place of birth and religion of the registered person's parents, husband or wife and parents-in-law. Further remarks refer to possession of a passport and licences for weapons, hunting, driving or piloting.

Unmarried juveniles living with their father or mother are listed on the Registration Card of the parent. They obtain their own Personal Registration Card when they come of age, marry or take up their own residence.

On the reverse side of the Personal Registration card are recorded the address and any subsequent changes of address.

Foreigners who do not take up permanent residence in a German community, but who intend to stay in the Reich only for a short period, are issued with a Passbegleitschein (Supplementary Paper to the Passport) instead of a Meldeschein. This Passbegleitschein shows the exact route of travel, and must be shown by the foreigners wherever they stay overnight or whenever requested by the authorities to identify themselves.

A special Ausländerkartei (Card Index for foreigners) is kept by the Ausländerpolizei (Police handling all matters regarding non-Germans); the Ausländerpolizei is represented at all Polizei-behörden and it is part of the Verwaltungspolizei. This file is divided into Ausländerkartei A and Ausländerkartei B.

Ausländerkartei A contains a card for every foreigner residing for any long period within the area of the particular Kreispolizeibehörde. The file is arranged alphabetically according to surnames. Four colours (green, yellow, blue and red) are used to indicate certain groupings of nationalities. Each nationality within the group is again designated by a number ranging from 1 to 12. Thus, the names of citizens or subjects of each country are kept on cards coloured and numbered according to a combination which will identify each card unmistakably as belonging to a definite country. (A chart showing this scheme of registration of foreigners will be found in Annexe C.)

Included in this system of registry are all residents of Germany who come under the categories Staatenlos (stateless), Juden (Jews) and Volksdeutsche ("Racial" Germans). Volksdeutsche are divided into the categories of Volkslisten I, II, III. Those "racial" Germans who were born in Greater Germany but resided abroad were entered as members of Volksliste I, and carry blue personal identity cards. Others, who expediently remembered their Germanic origins after, for example, the German occupation of Poland and Slovenia, applied to have their names entered in Volksliste II. They also carry blue identity cards. A third group, who were "converted" into Germans without having been consulted, were lumped together in Volksliste III. This last group receives citizenship on probation and carries green identity cards with the remark "Staatsangehörigkeit auf Widerruf" (Citizenship subject to cancellation). In special instances, members of Volksliste III may be advanced to List II, after having proved their National Socialist loyalties. Similarly Volksdeutsche of List II may graduate into List I as a special honour. For further details on the identity cards designating members of the Volksliste see section on personal documents.

Ausländerkartei B contains all cards of foreigners which have been removed for any reason from Ausländerkartei A. Thus, foreigners, for instance, who have become full German citizens are still carried in this file.

Under the Nazi regime, registration of foreigners and most matters within the sphere of the Ausländerpolizei can no longer be regarded as purely administrative police functions. Thus, while the mere clerical registration has remained the duty of the Ausländerpolizei, all executive tasks, investigations and prosecutions have become the concern of the Sipo and the SD. In most instances, the Ausländerpolizei is then simply informed of any action taken or to be taken, so that it may keep administrative records up to date.

83. Population Registers : the Volkskartei

In their perfection of the complete regimentation of the German people, the Nazis found the system of registration described above insufficient. It was especially inadequate for the administration of National Conscription. Since, under the existing system, registration cards were merely filed alphabetically, according to surnames, the call-up of certain age classes for conscription necessitated an extremely complicated routine of paper work. As a remedy, the Nazi government introduced the Volkskartei (National Population Register) on 18th January, 1939. In this register file cards of all males and females between the ages of 5 and 74 are arranged according to age classes, i.e. according to groups of individuals born in the same calendar year.

These files contain the most detailed personal information, such as year, day, month and exact place of birth, full occupational qualifications, schooling, training, academic degrees, present and former residences, nationality, place of employment, foreign travel and residence, knowledge of foreign languages and service in the Armed Forces, foreign services or Reich Labour Service. Registration cards for German women contain such additional information as experience in office work, housekeeping, science, factory work, nursing, Red Cross service, number of children under 15 years still living at home, and other such data as indicate a woman's availability for any kind of war work in the widest sense of the term.

Index Cards of the Volkskartei are brown for men and green for women. Cards for Jews are marked by black index tabs. All registrants working in the field of maintenance of Public Health are indicated by white, those holding drivers' licences by red, and those not in possession of an Arbeitsbuch (working pass) by blue tabs.

The Volkskartei is not kept in one central location, but is regionally distributed. In the larger towns it is kept by the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen (National Police Administrations), i.e. the Polizeipräsidenten, the Polizeidirektionen and Polizeiämter. Where these do not exist the local sections of the Volkskartei are entrusted to the office of the Bürgermeister of the community, but duplicate cards of the entire district are kept in the office of the Landrat, the Chief of the Landkreis.

The Volkskartei will undoubtedly be one of the major aids available locally to the Allied occupation authorities. Its importance can hardly be overrated. When the Allied military administrators are looking for information concerning individual Germans, the Volkskartei will present them with a complete record of the whereabouts, past and present activities and qualifications of every inhabitant. Even though the Germans admit that because of manpower shortage these records have not always been kept up to date during the latter stages of the war, the basic records of the adult population may still be considered almost complete. This may be assumed to be true although further entries in each Volkskartei were reported suspended in September, 1943.

Since this national register is the fundamental record of all administrative work concerning the entire population, it is unlikely that the Nazis will make an attempt to destroy it in order to prevent its falling into Allied hands. From past experience the assumption seems justifiable that the methodical German mind will hesitate at the idea of burning such a bureaucratic masterpiece as the Volkskartei.

Should, however, parts of the Volkskartei be destroyed either by Nazi demolition squads or by Allied attacking forces, the occupation authorities will be able to locate duplicate and similar registers in various other German indexes. Thus, for instance, the Administrative Police of every city, town, or village maintains a very extensive card file of the population as an aid to the allotment of ARP duties, while the regional Arbeitsämter (National Employment Offices) keep complete files of all employable Germans and have added to these records a file of all locally available foreign labourers. The Finanzämter (National Internal Revenue Offices) also maintain complete population files, necessary for the control of tax levies.

At all Headquarters of the Nazi Party, records are kept, not only of all Party members, but of all Germans residing within the area of the particular Party Headquarters. A separate record is kept of those who have been rejected by the Party. These indexes are especially thorough, since the population included in them is under the constant supervision of the Nazi Party block warden. In addition, minute membership records, and files of those not admitted to membership, are kept at the local Headquarters of all Nazi Party formations (SA, SS, NSKK, etc.) and affiliates. Thus, for example, all practising physicians and surgeons are recorded at the Headquarters of the NS Ärzte-Bund (NSÄB—National Socialist Medical League).

A great number of indexes of this kind are, of course, maintained by the various Headquarters of the Sipo and SD. These, however, will be discussed in greater detail in the sections dealing with Gestapo, Kripo and SD.

A less obvious but extremely useful population index is maintained by both the Lutheran and Roman Catholic Churches, as well as smaller religious communities permitted in Germany such as Old Catholics. Since the first two mentioned Churches include more than 90% of the entire German population, and since their records still list those former members who have left the Church voluntarily or under Nazi pressure, these files are very nearly complete. As a last resort they will certainly remain available to the Allies for any intention on the part of the Churches to destroy their records before Allied occupation may be completely discounted.

Another index maintained by the Verwaltungspolizei is the Hausregister, a register of all buildings within each district. Cards of this index are white. On top of each appear the names and addresses of the owner and superintendent, followed by the names and occupations of each individual tenant. Names of former tenants are crossed out, but remain legible. The House Registration file is kept in alphabetical order, arranged by street names with the houses in each street in numerical order.

The above list of German administrative registers should certainly not be regarded as exhaustive. An attempt to compile a complete list would lead too far into the jungle of German administrative routine. But the instances given may serve as a guide to the various sources available for building up an index—either general or local—of the German population.

84. Supervision of Trade

Another section of the Verwaltungspolizei which merits separate mention is the Eichamt (Bureau of Weights and Measures). All tradesmen, shopkeepers and other business establishments using scales, measures or containers of a specified size must submit these once a year to the Eichamt to have them checked. The inspectors and other officials working in this office and its subsidiaries are members of the Eichpolizei.

The control of prices in Germany rests with the Reichskommissar für die Preisbildung (Reich Commissioner for Price Control)—SS-Brigadeführer Staatssekretär Dr. Hans FISCHBÖCK, whose office is a subsection of the office of the Beauftragte für den Vierjahresplan (Authority for the Four-Year Plan, i.e. GÖRING). The general administration of Price Control is regionally carried out by the network of Preisüberwachungsstellen (Price Control Bureaux), with only a small staff at their disposal. For the close supervision of prices and the enforcement of price ceilings and regulations they depend upon the assistance of the Verwaltungspolizei. As will be clear from para. 79 above, the Administrative Police supervise almost all phases of business activity: they inspect weights and measures, issue business licences, supervise the quality of goods for sale, check the proper sale of products earmarked for a particular purpose, and, in general, keep strict guard over all commercial activities. This constant insight into matters of business and manufacture makes the Verwaltungspolizei well qualified to enforce regulations of the price-control authorities to prevent violation of such regulations and to investigate black-market activities whenever the Preisüberwachungsstellen call for such intervention.

The Gewerbepolizei (Police for the Control of Crafts and Trades), as a branch of the Verwaltungspolizei, executes these functions of market and price control in close cooperation with the price-control authorities.

85. Censorship

In pre-Hitler Germany, the Administrative Police used to exercise all normal functions of censorship of mail, press, radio and films. This was known as Polizeizensur (Police Censorship).

Under the Nazi regime the scope of this police function has increased tremendously both in volume and in importance. It has, indeed, become a powerful means of oppression in the hands of the Reich Government and of the Nazi Party. It is obvious, therefore, that censorship in Germany can no longer be regarded as a purely administrative function. For this reason it has for the most part been taken out of the hands of the Administrative Police, which merely retains some of the clerical tasks of censorship. The important political and repressive police functions connected with censorship are now in the hands of the Sipo and the SD in cooperation with the German Postal Authorities : this is fully discussed in para. 106.

Censorship of the press, radio and films takes place at the very source of the material to be censored. The responsible agency is the Ministerium für Volksaufklärung und Propaganda (Ministry of Public Enlightenment and Propaganda) headed by Dr. GOEBBELS. Once a film or other medium of public entertainment has been approved by the Ministry, it becomes the duty of the local police to accord it full protection.

In some instances of local entertainment the Administrative Police still retain a certain voice of authority, but even so all major decisions are made by the competent representative of the Sipo or the local Nazi Party Chief and his staff. Intervention by the Orpo will occur only when public safety and order are threatened.

86. Other Specialised Functions of the Administrative Police

The Baupolizei (Building and Construction Code Enforcement Police), listed above as one of the municipally controlled branches of the Verwaltungspolizei, supervises the execution of action called for in directives concerning construction and maintenance of buildings. These directives are issued by the Ministries of Finance, Labour and Health, as well as by the authorities charged with fire prevention. Plans giving prescribed details for all building projects in Germany must be submitted to the Baupolizei for approval before construction work may be started.

This field of police activity also includes the granting of all building permits in accordance with legal restrictions concerning siting, construction, area, height, architectural exterior, and street-space. Prospective builders are guided in the drawing up of their plans by Baupolizeiordnungen (Building Regulations) published locally. By means of these regulations the police control even the style of modern edifices. When actual construction begins, execution of the work is again checked through systematic inspections by the Baupolizei. Special emphasis is placed on proper ventilation, sanitation, and the elimination of fire hazards.

The personnel of the Feld- und Forstpolizei (Field and Forest Police) consists of the professional Feld- und Forsthüter (Field and Forest Guards) and belong to the so-called Niedere Polizeivollzugsdienst (Lowest Grade Police Executive Service). These men are usually not uniformed and can be identified only by an official cap and an armband with the Police Badge. They come under the administration of the municipal police authorities, and their pay, equipment and clothing are covered by the municipality. Normally they are not equipped with rifles, but they can obtain permits for the possession of arms, "in case they require them," from the regular police authorities.

The principal function of the Feld- und Forstpolizei is the prevention of forest fires, lumber thefts, damage to legally protected plants and animals, and unlawful entry into municipal property or other restricted areas. In these duties they are assisted by the "Ehrenfeldhüter" (Honorary Field Guards), who are appointed to perform these duties on a voluntary, unpaid and part-time basis.

The Wasserpolizei (Waterways Police) must not be confused with the Wasserschutzpolizei (Waterways Protection Police). The local Wasserpolizei agency is also referred to as Wasserstrassenamt (Bureau of Waterways). It administers smaller rivers and waterways graded as second and third class, and is responsible for the maintenance of law and order on those waterways and in their vicinity. Under the jurisdiction and inspection of the Wasserpolizei are, furthermore, reservoirs, ponds, aqueducts and watermains, the inspection of drinking water being an especial responsibility. The Waterways police in addition determines the local water tax and fixes and administers the water rights, such as the drilling of wells. It also issues all licences and permits for the use of waterways under its jurisdiction.

The Wasserpolizei is one of the branches listed above as the responsibility of the municipal Police Authorities.

The protection of municipal as well as private property in some localities is delegated to Nachtwachmänner or Nachtwächter (Night Watchmen), who may be employed either by the municipality or by private detective agencies, e.g. the Wach- und Schliessgesellschaften (Guard and Property Protection Companies). The watchmen need not be uniformed, but usually wear at least uniform caps. The uniform emblem of most of the employees of these private companies consists of two crossed keys.

Night watchmen are, on special occasions, entrusted with the execution of limited police functions. Whenever they need to be armed they must obtain weapon permits from the Regular Police. As a result of the growing manpower problem, the Police avails itself to an increasing extent of the auxiliary services of these Nachtwachmänner. On the island of Sylt, for instance, members of the Wach- und Schliessgesellschaft are employed as regular defence guards along the coast in cooperation with Police, Army and Air Force Units. At this point, it should be noted that employees of such protective agencies are not exempt from the latest conscription into the Volkssturm (People's Militia) along with all other males from 16 to 60 years of age.

The Verwaltungspolizei, together with the municipal police, is charged with the performance of certain duties concerning road maintenance, street cleaning and street illumination. A substantial part of the actual execution of such work is, however, delegated to and is the full responsibility of property owners in accordance with numerous German laws and city ordinances. Thus the main function of the Wege- und Strassenpolizei is to ensure that the responsible owners of property adjacent to thoroughfares take care of their required share of the above duties. The larger tasks of street cleaning, sanitation, and collection of garbage are covered in most German towns and cities by municipal sanitation departments or, in some instances, by contracting with chartered companies.

In mining regions a special Bergpolizei (Police for the Supervision of Mines) has been established. It is classified as one of the Sonderpolizeien and its administration is the responsibility of the municipal authorities. Among the primary functions of this branch of the Police were originally the supervision of essential safety devices and of suitable working conditions, as well as the control of the miners from a labour point of view. Under the Nazis, however, the Bergpolizei has become an administrative auxiliary to Party and Police agencies responsible for the prevention and prosecution of sabotage in the mines and hostile acts by miners, especially foreign or forcibly recruited labourers. As a result of this development, the Bergpolizei has become closely linked with the Sipo and the SD. The Bergpolizei will therefore be discussed later under the Kripo.

UNCLASSIFIED

The Obdachlosenpolizei (Police for the Supervision of the Homeless and Vagrants) is another municipally controlled branch of the Administrative Police. In peacetime, it provides emergency shelters for the homeless, administers asylums, and cooperates in such matters with various types of charitable organisations. The Obdachlosenpolizei is authorised to requisition private houses and public accommodation if no other shelter for the needy can be found.

In wartime, as a consequence of damage to dwellings by air raids, the responsibilities of the Obdachlosenpolizei have increased enormously. During and after the last war, when the housing shortage in Germany was not nearly so acute as it is today the Obdachlosenpolizei set up local Wohnungskommissionen (Commissions to provide tenements) as authorities empowered to requisition the necessary billets and dwellings. These commissions were able to compel people who lived in large houses or flats to take in sub-tenants for an indefinite period of time. A similar service, but on an immeasurably larger scale, functions today. Thus, the quartering of bomb-victims and refugees from zones of operations is to a considerable extent handled by the Obdachlosenpolizei in co-operation with the Nazi Party, Party Formations, the Wehrmacht and the German Red Cross, as well as with civil administrative authorities.

The municipal administration in coastal areas includes the Deichpolizei (Dam and Dyke Police), classified as a Sonderpolizei. Its functions are the inspection and protection of such coastal installations as dams, dykes, locks and water works. Most of its duties, however, are of a purely administrative and supervisory nature. Whenever the small executive forces and facilities at the disposal of this service prove inadequate, the Landrat, Polizeipräsident, or Higher Police Authority may supplement them by regular police forces, members of the Technische Nothilfe, or other auxiliary formations. These services are then referred to as Erweiterte Deichpolizei (Reinforced Dyke Police).

A. HIGHER ORGANISATION AND GENERAL STRUCTURE OF THE SIPO AND SD

87. Development of the Sipo and SD

The development of the German Police system into a repressive totalitarian force upholding the Nazi régime has already been outlined in PART ONE of this book. Again, PART FOUR included a detailed discussion of the way in which the Nazis applied their principles of concentration, centralised control, and intensified militarisation to the Orpo. However radical these changes may appear, the most significant developments in the German Police since the Nazi advent to power were not those affecting the Orpo, but those which took place in the evolution of the Sipo and SD. These most typical Nazi creations, devised by HIMMLER and his late assistant HEYDRICH, have in effect become the strongest weapons of coercion at the disposal of the present rulers of Germany.

In PART ONE the development of the Sipo and SD was traced through the years from 1933 until 1939 when it culminated in the establishment of a combined central headquarters, the RSHA in BERLIN. It may be useful to recapitulate briefly this development. In 1933 under GÖRING's aegis, the Prussian Political Police had been transformed into the Gestapo. About the same time HIMMLER succeeded in establishing himself as the head of the Political Police in all the other Länder and finally in 1934 his intrigues gained him the control of the Prussian Gestapo itself. In 1936 he became Commander in Chief of the German Police, combining this position with that of Commander in Chief of the SS. In this new capacity he then formed the Sicherheitspolizei (Sipo—Security Police) as a new branch of the German Police, by linking the Gestapo (Secret State Police) with the Kripo (Criminal Police). He simultaneously re-organised and remodelled both these branches, extended their jurisdiction over all of Germany and in matters of personnel established extremely close ties with the SS. Finally, in 1939 both these branches were merged with the Sicherheitsdienst des Reichsführers SS (SD—Security Service of the C-in-C of the SS), the intelligence system of the SS and Nazi Party. Thereby HIMMLER empowered the SD to establish its extra-legal status within the Government and the Police, although the SD never ceased to be a Party rather than a Government organisation. It may be true to-day that a number of the lower members of the SD, agents and others, are nothing but mercenary opportunists, but originally all SD personnel was drawn exclusively from the most reliable and fanatical members of the SS, and this certainly still holds good for the bulk of the SD, especially its executives.

It must constantly be emphasised that the Sipo and SD by no means restrict themselves to activities generally regarded as being within the scope of a Police organisation. Any attempt to equate the functions of the Sipo and SD with those of the police forces of democratic countries would be completely misleading. As the following pages will show, the influence of the Kripo, Gestapo and SD extends into every phase of German private and public life. Kripo, Gestapo and SD, though three distinct services, must to-day be regarded as one force. Inside Germany each still maintains its own system of regional and lower headquarters, which, however, function in each Wehrkreis under the supervision of one common head, the Befehlshaber (or Inspekteur) der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD. Abroad, in occupied territories, the three services appear in combined units, known as Einsatzkommandos. There may be friction between the three branches; there may be indications that Kripo and Gestapo personnel resent the dominating position of the SD within the combined force; there may even be reasons to believe that Kripo and Gestapo men might turn against each other, especially if encouraged from without. Nevertheless, the predominant fact is that at present the three services together constitute a single striking force forged and wielded by the leading Nazi clique as an instrument to strengthen and perpetuate their power.

HITLER and HIMMLER have always aimed at a fusion of Government and Party, with the Party as the ruling element. That amalgamation was never fully realised, but in the Sipo and SD, acting under a unified command and staffed by men who are almost exclusively members of the SS, this Nazi aim has been most nearly achieved. It is significant that Kripo, Gestapo and SD together are in Nazi circles unofficially called the "Staatsschutzkorps" (Combined Force for the Protection of the State) and that this repressive Police organisation is ominously directed to find its guiding policy in the "principles of the SS." Furthermore, in 1944, the Sipo and SD acquired supervision of virtually all German military intelligence forces at home and abroad. Thus in HIMMLER's grasp converge the threads of a system of political control which, blindly loyal to the Nazi regime, dominates the lives of all Germans within the Reich and all inhabitants of German occupied territory. It must therefore be expected that this rigidly controlled organisation will remain the hard core of a desperate movement of resistance to the Allied destruction of National Socialism.

88. The National Headquarters of the Sipo and SD

Der Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD (Chief of the Security Police and the SD) is at present SS-OGF, General der Polizei, Staatssekretär Dr. Ernst KALTENBRUNNER, who succeeded HEYDRICH after the latter was shot by Czech Patriots in 1942. He is the highest commander of the two branches of the Sipo, viz. the Geheime Staatspolizei (Gestapo) and the Kriminalpolizei (Kripo), as well as of the SD, and is responsible only to HIMMLER, the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei. His Headquarters is the Reichssicherheitshauptamt (RSHA—National Department of Security), the combined National Headquarters of Sipo and SD.

The RSHA, responsible under KALTENBRUNNER for the control of the Kripo, Gestapo and SD, consists of eight Ämter (Bureaux), whose offices were formerly located in or near Berlin, but are now widely scattered. Nevertheless the RSHA should be regarded as a single department rather than a collection of separate offices. It incorporates within its structure the old Gestapoamt (Headquarters of the Gestapo), the Reichskriminalpolizei (Headquarters of the Kripo) and the former SD-Hauptamt (Headquarters of the SD), but the work of the three branches of the RSHA is to-day so closely connected that it is in many instances impossible to draw a clear line separating their functions and duties.

UNCLASSIFIED

The official description of the functions of the Ämter in the RSHA is as follows:—

Personal (Personnel)	Amt I Under SS-GF Erwin SCHULZ
Organisation, Verwaltung und Recht (Organisation, Administration and Law)	Amt II Until some time ago under SS-SF SIEGERT, who is believed to have been succeeded by SS-OSBF HÄNEL. The Chief of Amt II appears to be subordinate to the Chief of Amt I
Deutsche Lebensgebiete (Spheres of German Life)	Amt III Under SS-BF OHLENDORF. This Bureau is the successor to the old SD-Hauptamt
Gegnerforschung und Gegnerbekämpfung (Investigation and combatting of Opposition)	Amt IV Also known as the Geheime Staatspolizei (abbr. Gestapo). Under SS-OGF MÜLLER, who is probably also Deputy Chef der Sipo und des SD .
Verbrechensbekämpfung (Combatting of Crime)	Amt V Also known as the Reichskriminalpolizei (RKPA) until recently under SS-GF NEBE who disappeared after the attempt on Hitler's life on 20th July, 1944.
Ausland (Foreign Countries)	Amt VI Under SS-BF SCHELLENBERG
Weltanschauliche Erforschung und Auswertung (Ideological Research and its Exploitation)	Amt VII Until recently under SS-OF Dr. SIX who is reported to have been succeeded by SS-OSBF DITTEL

Militärisches Amt
(MI Bureau)

Note.—This Bureau was added to the RSHA in June, 1944. It is closely affiliated with and dominated by Amt VI and it too is headed by SS-BF SCHELLENBERG. As far as is known, however, the Militärisches Amt is still an independent Bureau within the RSHA and has not been incorporated into Amt VI.

Most of the offices of Ämter I, II, III, IV and VII, were located in Berlin in the blocks formed by Wilhelmstrasse and Prinz-Albrecht-Strasse, generally known as Prinz-Albrecht-Strasse 8-9 and Wilhelmstrasse 100-109. Amt V was located in Berlin in the blocks known as Werderscher Markt 5-6 and Oberwallstrasse 14-16. The offices of Amt VI are in Berlin-Wilmersdorf, Berkaerstrasse 32-35. It is known that in the course of the heavy Allied air attacks on Berlin, 1943/44, most of these buildings were severely damaged and many of the offices were evacuated to other locations in Berlin and vicinity. Certain offices even moved to Mecklenburg, Silesia, Munich and Vienna. Thus a great number of addresses exist to-day, each giving the location of one or other of the sections or sub-sections of the above Bureaux. Since many of these addresses are only of a temporary nature it has not been considered advisable to list them in this book.

89. Functions of the RSHA Bureaux

The functions of Ämter I and II are administrative, with Amt II now probably subordinated to Amt I under SCHULZ. Existing evidence suggests that they are concerned with the personnel, organisation and administration of the combined Sipo and SD although it is known that Amt VI retains a considerable measure of autonomy in the administration of its SD personnel and agents abroad.

Amt III directs the principal functions of the SD inside Germany and is the control Headquarters for all SD Leitabschnitte, Abschnitte, Hauptausstellen and Aussenstellen in the Reich. But it also functions abroad where it is represented by Abteilung III in an Einsatzkommando and in the office of a BdS. The main task of Amt III is the collection, by open and secret methods, of information concerning all events and tendencies liable to affect the maintenance of Nazi power at home and abroad. It supervises all "spheres of German life" (deutsche Lebensgebiete) and gathers intelligence for the control of all religious, cultural, and economic activities, but especially for the suppression of anti-Nazi elements.

As indicated above, Amt IV is the designation of the Gestapoamt (Gestapo), both titles being still in use. It is mainly concerned with investigating and crushing any opposition to the Nazi régime. For this purpose it controls a vast network of Headquarters of various sizes, known as Leitstellen, Stellen, Aussendienststellen and Aussenstellen of the Gestapo. It may be said that to a large degree Amt III supplies the information used by Amt IV as basis for its measures against anti-Nazi elements, although by no means all Amt III material is passed for repressive action to the Gestapo. Since the dissolution of the former Abwehr-Amt the Gestapo took over from Military Intelligence all counter-espionage work, and combined it with their similar activities in the political field. This absorption of military counter-espionage caused a complete reorganisation within Amt IV some time in the summer of 1944. Further details of the old and new organisation and the activities of Amt IV and the Gestapo will be discussed in paras. 96-108.

Amt V, which is also known as the Reichskriminalpolizei (RKPA), is the national Headquarters of the Reichskriminalpolizei (Kripo, Criminal Police), controlling the network of criminal police offices, the Kripo-Leitstellen, -Stellen, -Aussendienststellen and -Aussenposten. The RKPA developed out of the old Preussisches Landeskriminalamt (Prussian Criminal Police Headquarters), whose functions consisted only of the combatting of crime in the normal sense of the term. The RKPA, however, under the Nazi régime, has not only expanded the concept of "combatting" to include "prevention" in the most ruthless sense; it also plays an important part in the investigation and prosecution of what are to-day called "political crimes," but would formerly have been regarded at the most as venial offences. The line dividing cases of interest to the Gestapo and those within the field of the Kripo has in many instances become rather vague.

UNCLASSIFIED

Co-operation between Amt IV and Amt V is therefore extremely close. A detailed discussion of the German Criminal Police and of Amt V, its organisation and tasks will be found in paras. 109 ff.

Closely connected with the activities and functions of Amt III are those carried out by Amt VI, which mainly deals with espionage, sabotage and subversion in occupied and enemy countries. Within this Bureau are concentrated, therefore, the foreign intelligence and the sabotage services of the SD, which, since June, 1944, were reinforced by the military intelligence and sabotage services of the former Abwehr (Military Intelligence), now known as the Militärisches Amt.

Amt VII was added to the RSHA in 1940. It was derived from the Auslandswissenschaftliches Institut (Institute for "Research" in Foreign Countries), whose former chief, Dr. SIX, was until recently in charge of Amt VII. This Bureau maintains close liaison with the Reich Foreign Office in Berlin and probably also with Genmaj. Prof. Dr. Karl HAUSHOFER's Geopolitical Institute in Munich. Amt VII deals mainly with occupied and satellite countries and is concerned with the preparation of political warfare material and the conduct of ideological supervision, especially in the academic field. The result of the bureau's research is then made available to the RSHA and to the Foreign Office, and possibly also to other official agencies. The SD, including Amt III, and brief notes on Amt VI, Amt VII, and the Militärisches Amt is further discussed in paras. 127 ff.

A special independent Section in the RSHA, directly subordinated to the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD, is the Attaché-Gruppe. This Section was founded in August, 1942, to combine all functions connected with the work of the Polizei Attachés (Police-Attachés) at German Embassies and Legations in neutral and satellite states. Attachés of this kind are, or were, established in Madrid, Rome, Lisbon, Tokio, Zagreb, Athens, Bucharest, Budapest, Sofia, Paris, Bratislava (Pressburg), Ankara, Buenos Aires, Stockholm, Berne and Copenhagen, where they acted as HIMMLER's representatives*. In the original decree it was pointed out that the Attaché-Gruppe in the RSHA was formed as an independent unit in order to concentrate in one section all work of Ämter I, II, IV and VI concerning the Police-Attachés and to administer the personnel and technical affairs of the Attachés and their assistants. The section is also instructed to attend to social and technical matters arising from the presence of foreign Police-Attachés accredited to the German Government. The chief of the Attaché-Gruppe is SS-SBF Dr. PLOETZ.

90. Schools controlled by the RSHA

The following training schools are directly subordinate to and administered by the Reichssicherheitshauptamt :—

- Führerschule der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD* At Berlin-Charlottenburg (Training School for Officers of the Security Police and the SD)
- Kriminalfachschule* Attached to the above
(Criminology College)
- Sicherheitspolizeischule* At Fürstenberg
(Security Police School)

* In Lisbon and Tokio these men are known as Polizeiverbindungsführer.

- SD Schule* (SD School) At Bernau, near Berlin. Also reported as Sipo and SD-School
- Funkschule* (W/T School) At Castle Grünberg, near Nepomuk/Protektorat
- Schiess-Schule* At Zella-Mehlis
(Weapon Training School)
- Sportschule* At Pretzsch/Elbe
(Sports Training School)
- Grenzpolizeischulen* At Aken, near Dessau and Pretzsch/Elbe (Frontier Police Schools)
- Schule der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD* At Prag
(School of the Security Police and SD)

According to the latest reports the schools at Pretzsch are said to have been moved to Fürstenberg.

91. Regional Control : Befehlshaber (Inspekture) der Sipo und des SD

Like the Ordnungspolizei, whose highest commander in each Wehrkreis is the Befehlshaber der Orpo, the Sicherheitspolizei and SD are commanded in each Wehrkreis by the Befehlshaber (Inspekteur) der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD (Commander or Inspector of the Security Police and the Security Service of the C-in-C of the SS). The BdS or IdS is directly responsible to the HSSPf of the Wehrkreis, on whose staff he is the representative of the Sipo and SD. In the absence of the HSSPf the BdS or IdS assumes final authority in all matters concerning the Sipo and SD within the Wehrkreis or area. He is also, through the HSSPf, responsible for liaison between the Sipo and SD on one hand and the civil authorities, Nazi Party and Wehrmacht Headquarters and Internal Defence Authorities, on the other.

When these officers were first appointed in 1936, they were given the title and function of an Inspekteur (Inspector) der Sipo und SD, abbreviated IdS or IdSPuSD. As in the Orpo, however, further concentration of power was deemed necessary in many regions, and Inspekture in occupied territories and in Wehrkreise close to the national frontier, such as Austria, Alsace-Lorraine and others, where partisan activities were increasing, were therefore raised to the status of Befehlshaber (Commanders) der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD, abbreviated BdS or BdSPuSD. The distinction between IdS and BdS is, however, only of minor significance. A BdS has at all times complete command over his forces and supervises the state of training, preparedness, equipment and methods of the units under his command. The IdS normally has only supervisory functions, but he is empowered in case of extreme emergency to assume complete command. As Allied troops advance into German territory, this state of emergency will undoubtedly be considered to exist, rendering the actual difference between a BdS and an IdS one of small consequence, if indeed such a difference has not already disappeared. In the following parts of the book and especially in the Annexes the abbreviation BdS is, therefore, used frequently regardless of whether the latest reports on a particular city give the Office as that of a Befehlshaber or Inspekteur der Sipo und des SD.

Whenever the Gestapo, SD and Kripo are assigned a combined operation, the BdS or IdS assumes full command over the united forces in the Wehrkreis in order to co-ordinate their actions. He may in addition, whenever necessary, request assistance from the Orpo. In occupied territory these commanders are known to have led such combined forces in large scale actions against guerrilla and partisan formations.

Special attention should be paid to the tendency to increase constantly the power of the BdS at the expense of the Regional Headquarters of Gestapo and Kripo (Leitstellen), and of the SD (Leit-Abschnitte). These Regional Headquarters, discussed more fully later, were originally set up in a Land, Reichsgau or Wehrkreis to control the activities of their respective branches within their area, and especially to exercise a large amount of co-ordinating and directing power over the sub-regional Headquarters, the Stellen of Gestapo and Kripo, and Abschnitte of the SD. Since 1941, however, the authority of the Regional Headquarters over the sub-regional Headquarters has been constantly reduced. The name Leitstelle or Leitabschnitt is still retained, but in power and functions the Leitstellen and Leitabschnitte may now almost be regarded as juxtaposed to, rather than superior to the Stellen and Abschnitte, executive power having gradually been transferred to the Office of their BdS or IdS, which has by now become the central authority of the Sipo and SD in the Wehrkreis. This development is, of course, in line with the constant endeavour to unify and centralise power within the German Police, and to eliminate conflicting and overlapping authority within the field of action of the Regional Headquarters.

92. The Headquarters of the BdS

At present the organisation of the Office of a BdS is mainly known from examples found in occupied or formerly occupied areas such as France. There, the BdS Headquarters was organised into 7 Abteilungen (Sections) parallel to Ämter I to VII of the RSHA in Berlin. Thus Abteilungen I and II of the BdS Headquarters in France dealt largely with organisation, personnel, general administration and legal affairs, like Amt I and Amt II in the RSHA. However, certain contingencies are apt to arise in occupied territories which would not occur in the area controlled by a corresponding office inside the Reich. For instance, Abteilung I in France maintained liaison with the French Police, but in Norway this duty is carried out by a sub-section of Abteilung VI.

Like its parent Amt, Abteilung III watches over German "spheres of life." In this connection the section investigates the economic trends and political feelings of the population towards the German army of occupation in particular and Nazi Germany in general. Constant reports of such findings are made to the parent Amt in Germany. Economic matters in occupied territories are of vital concern to this section, and sabotage of these interests, or even lack of co-operation, in foreign countries can easily be interpreted as falling within the jurisdiction of Abteilung III. In this connection documentary evidence indicates that in the course of this "protection" of Reich economic welfare, the material interests of the Sipo and SD are frequently permitted to overshadow those of the German people, or even of the German Government.

In occupied countries, as the section handling matters of interest to the Gestapo, Abteilung IV concerns itself mainly with counter-espionage and the crushing of all resistance groups. Its sub-divisions correspond generally to those of Amt IV in the RSHA. Special attention is paid by Abteilung IV to such elements as Communists, Jews, Freemasons, and members of Rotary Clubs.

Abteilung V is the section representative of Amt V of the Reichskriminalpolizei in Berlin. It handles criminal matters, but to-day the distinction between ordinary crime and political offence is often rather vague. Black-market investigations are frequently handled by this section in conjunction with Abteilung III, as indicated above. Like all agencies of the Kripo, Abteilung V is also concerned with Fahndung (Search for Wanted Persons), which includes search for escaped PW.

Like Amt VI in Berlin, Abteilung VI is in many instances closely connected with the activities and functions of Abteilung III, but this section, by the very nature of its interest in foreign political intelligence is more or less separated from the other sections, and for a long time its existence was virtually unknown to the rest of the Sipo and SD personnel.

In conformity with the relationship between the other RSHA Ämter and the corresponding Abteilungen abroad, it seems probable that Abteilung VII has a twofold function. On the one hand it collects information concerning Nazi interests and local trends abroad, in order to report them to its parent office; on the other hand, it makes use of the results of "research" given in reports from Amt VII in Berlin as a guide in spreading the Nazi gospel outside the Reich borders, especially in educational circles.

The example of BdS offices encountered in France shows that the BdS has some connection with the Einwanderungszentrale, the Central Office dealing with repatriation of "Racial" Germans. It is known that the SS deals with the Umwandererzentralen in the East through the medium of the SD, so it appears likely that some BdS Headquarters also have a section or sub-section concerned with resettlement matters.

Whereas the Office organisation of all BdS in occupied territories seems to follow more or less the plan outlined above, the organisation of the Office of the BdS or IdS inside Germany is probably on a smaller scale, because much of the actual work is done by the separate Headquarters of the Gestapo, Kripo and SD. Since the BdS in Germany handles all personnel questions for the three organisations, Abteilung I is probably fairly large, but it is doubtful whether Abteilung II operates on any extensive scale. Abteilungen III, IV and V, inside Germany, are certainly much smaller than in occupied territories because all executive functions are directly handled by the separate Gestapo, Kripo and SD Headquarters. Abteilung VI almost certainly does not exist, and the same may also be true of Abteilung VII. All this can only be surmised at the present time until documents showing the organisation of a BdS or IdS Headquarters inside Germany have become available.

93. Kommandeure der Sipo und des SD

As in the Orpo, we also find in the Sipo and SD under certain circumstances Sub-District Commanders who within the areas under their jurisdiction exercise command over all three Services, the Gestapo, the Kripo and the SD. These are known as Kommandeure der Sipo und des SD (KdS or KdSPuSD).

KdS are found in those occupied territories which are known as Reichskommissariate and which are divided into Sub-Districts called

UNCLASSIFIED

Generalkommissariate. As explained in para. 18, Police Forces in a Generalkommissariat are under the command of an SSPf (Sub-District Commander of SS and Police). The KdS is the representative on his staff for Sipo and SD affairs and therefore holds the same position on a smaller scale as his superior, the BdS, does for the whole occupied territory.

In the course of the war, as more and more countries were overrun by the German Army, the Sipo and SD were ordered to take charge of security police duties in the newly occupied regions. This included such special tasks as the tracking down of subversive elements, the taking of hostages and the prompt rounding up of Jews and Freemasons. For this purpose mobile task forces, known as Sipo and SD Kommandos and Einsatzkommandos were formed to operate under officers called Kommandeure der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD. Each of these units was assigned a certain area. After the initial period of occupation they usually became more and more static, setting up Headquarters in the largest town of the area with parts of the unit, known as Teilkommandos, established as outposts in smaller towns. The organisation of these Kommandos, Einsatzkommandos and Teilkommandos is largely the same as the one previously described for the Headquarters of a BdS in an occupied country. Thus, whereas inside Germany the Gestapo, Kripo and SD have their separate static Headquarters and their separate chains of command, in occupied countries they appeared in combined Headquarters with a much greater degree of unity between the various Abteilungen. KdS and their (Einsatz-) Kommandos were established in France, for example, at Angers, Bordeaux, Chalons s/Marne, Dijon, Limoges, Lyons, Marseilles, Montpellier, Nancy, Orleans, Paris, Poitiers, Rennes, Rouen, St. Quentin, Toulouse and Vichy.

As one after the other of these occupied territories was liberated by the Allies many of these Einsatzkommandos again became mobile, at first establishing Headquarters closer to the Reich borders and finally even setting up their offices inside the Reich.

As the military situation in Germany deteriorates the presence of these Kommandeure within the Reich itself will become even more logical. Indeed, evidence already exists that a KdS has been established in Reichenberg (former Czech territory) to take over and unify the work of the formerly separate Gestapo, Kripo and SD Headquarters.

In addition, Kommandeure der Sipo und des SD have existed for several years inside Greater Germany where combatting of partisan activities made a local concentration of Sipo and SD power necessary. Kommandeure of this kind were established in Veldes/Krain and Marburg/Untersteiermark, former Yugoslav territory which was annexed by Germany.

94. Sipo and SD Communications : Radio

From the very beginning the SS and the Police considered communications to be a matter of the utmost importance. They owe a considerable part of their power to their control of communications, which they expanded enormously after the "Advent to Power" in 1933. It is not surprising, therefore, that the training of Police signals personnel and the quality of their equipment have always been of the highest order, invariably surpassing those of the Wehrmacht or Civil Authorities; thus, many Police W/T and R/T operators are capable of remarkably high speed transmitting and receiving over protracted periods.

They are trained in such establishments as the Funkschule der Sipo und des SD (W/T School of the Sipo and SD) at Castle Grünberg in the Protectorate, the Schupo-Nachrichtenschule (Protection Police Signal School) at Eilenburg, the Polizeischule für Nachrichtenhelferinnen (Police School for Women Signals Operators) at Erfurt and the SS-Funkschule (SS Signals School) at Unna.

The basic system of German Police wireless transmission is the "Polfunk," a dense network of immobile W/T stations situated all over Germany and controlled by the Central Wireless Station in Berlin (Hauptfunkstelle Berlin). This network is made up of Leitfunkstellen (Regional Control Wireless Stations) and Nebenleitfunkstellen (Branch Wireless Stations) of which there are one or two in every Wehrkreis. The (Neben-) Leitfunkstellen each have a number of smaller Funkstellen (Sub-Stations) working with them. There is also a large number of small transmitting stations, known as Gendarmeriefunkstellen (Rural Police Wireless Stations), located in the mountainous country of former Austria.

The Polfunk system is operated by the Orpo, but is at the disposal of all branches of the German Police. The Kripo makes extensive use of it for Fahndungen (Searches for Wanted Persons) and for other investigations; a noun code issued by the Internationale Kriminalpolizeiliche Kommission (IKPK—International Criminal Police Commission) is employed. For details of the Polfunk network and the IKPK noun code see Annexe F.

The Sipo and SD also have their own network of immobile W/T stations, but this is not nearly so extensive as the Polfunk. Very few of its stations are in Germany proper, the majority being established in occupied territories, especially in Norway and the East; the reason for this is probably the comparatively poor and uncertain communications in those countries.

It is interesting to note some of the instructions which are issued to Sipo and SD personnel with regard to this radio network. For instance, it is specifically stated that wireless is only to be used where no teleprinter or other means of communication are available, or where the message concerned is addressed to a limited number of recipients. Messages of high security classification, such as "Geheime Reichssache" (Top Secret), can be sent by wireless only in an emergency or if no other means of communications are available, and must of course be sent in code. At no time may messages received by wireless be re-transmitted to the final recipient over ordinary postal telephone lines; the recipient may only be told over the telephone that there is a message for him. Further instructions state that wireless messages should contain no more than 20 typewritten lines and must be in telegraphic style, omitting all reference to file numbers or any other identification. Other details concerning the Sipo and SD wireless network, and the full text of the German instructions are given in Annexe F.

The Sipo and SD also own a considerable amount of mobile two-way wireless equipment of excellent quality which they can, if need be, supplement by similar high quality transmitting and receiving gear held by the Orpo as well as by various other para-military organisations. The NSKK, the HJ and the SA maintain signals units of their own which are well equipped, though their personnel is probably not as highly trained as that of the SS and Police.

For high speed W/T transmissions the German Police is reported to make considerable use of

[REDACTED] UNCLASSIFIED

"Hellschreiber" apparatus (high speed radio teletype).

95. Telephone and Teletype

For long-distance communications the Sipo and SD use mainly underground single-wire or multi-wire telephone and teletype channels, each wire carrying a multi-load of anything from 5 to 12 circuits. It is not certain whether these lines are owned and maintained by the Sipo and SD or whether they are rented from the postal authorities, but as the maintenance of an independent network, spread all over Germany and some of the occupied countries as well, would mean an enormous expenditure of money and manpower, it is more likely that the lines are merely rented and actually belong to the regular postal network. Recently captured documents stressing the importance of security and warning all Sipo and SD personnel against the use of telephone and teletype when transmitting classified information in plain language, seem to bear out this assumption.

For local, short-distance communications, however, the Sipo and SD undoubtedly possess lines of their own. Those lines, partly telephone and partly teletype, connect for instance many Grenzpolizei posts of the Gestapo with the controlling Grenzpolizeikommissariat, or Kriminalreviere with the local Kripo Headquarters. It is believed that many of these lines are scrambled.

No documents showing the location and inter-connections of Sipo and SD telephone lines have come to hand up to the present time, but an original German list of August, 1941, plus several amendments up to 1943 have yielded details of the Sipo and SD teletype network (see Annexe F).

This network not only connects the main Headquarters of the Sipo and SD, but its branch-lines also reach the various regional and district offices. Direct teletype lines provide connections with the private residences of HITLER and HIMMLER, the Foreign Office, the Reich Ministry of the Interior, and the Headquarters of HIMMLER's Personal Staff. Other teletype lines are extended to the Concentration Camps and the Volksgerichtshof (People's Court) as well as to the Headquarters of the Military Districts and the Gestapo Frontier Police Posts.

It must be assumed that a number of new lines have since been added, probably extending branch lines down to most, if not all of the lower echelons of the Sipo and SD as well as to the branch offices of the Militärisches Amt (M.I. Bureau).

Complete control of all the German Police communications networks is a necessity for the Allies, since it will mean control over the most dangerous potential source of opposition which the Occupying Forces are likely to encounter. In this connection it is significant that, according to a number of sources, HIMMLER's forces are collecting lightweight and mobile signal equipment of all types, including lorry driven wireless transmitters and field receiving sets. Depots for such equipment are reported to be located near Concentration Camps (e.g. Oranienburg).

The networks of the Gestapo, Kripo and other German Police services, when fully controlled, would also constitute a most useful system of inter-communication between the various Allied regional Headquarters and other military units.

B. GEHEIME STAATSPOLIZEI

96. The Gestapo Headquarters, Amt IV of the RSHA

Amt IV of the RSHA is also known as the Geheime Staatspolizei (Gestapa), the original Gestapo Headquarters. It deals with the investigation and elimination of all political opposition to the Nazi State. The Gestapo receives much of its material and direction for its action from the Sicherheitsdienst, but in addition the Gestapo joins the SD in the "observation" of the German population, maintaining a great many files and a network of agents of its own. As one of the three branches of the Staatsschutzkorps (the "Combined Force for the Protection of the State," consisting of the Gestapo, SD and Kripo) the Gestapo is responsible for those measures—so characteristic of Nazi Police principles—which are euphemistically termed "Präventivmassnahmen staatsabträglicher Handlungen" (measures for the prevention of acts which might be harmful to the Reich). The implications of such vague terms are obvious, and they become even more striking when considered in the light of the official rights and privileges bestowed upon the Gestapo.

Gestapo decisions are not subject to, or limited by, any revision by the ordinary Judiciary (see para. 10). Furthermore the Gestapo may call upon the services of all other police branches in Germany and Occupied Territories and issue orders and directives to them; in the German terminology, the Gestapo is "weisungsberechtigt gegenüber allen anderen Zweigen der Polizei." Thus, the Gestapo has assumed unlimited powers, and serves the Nazi State as an efficient tool for the ruthless suppression of all dissenters.

Amt IV, the Headquarters of all Gestapo activities, is a vast and intricate organisation reflecting in its structure the widespread interests and functions of the Secret State Police. Up to the summer of 1944, Amt IV was sub-divided into several, probably 6, Gruppen (Sections), lettered from A to F. Shortly before the attempt on HITLER's life in July, 1944, the Abwehr (Military Intelligence) was dissolved and Amt IV of the RSHA took over most of the functions of M.I. Section III dealing with counter-espionage. This caused a complete reorganisation of Amt IV and, according to latest indications, it now consists of two Gruppen only, IV A and IV B.

Gruppe IV A now covers most of the functions of the former Amt IV of the RSHA. In Gruppe IV B the counter-espionage activities of the former Abwehr are combined with the supervision of foreigners and the control of passports, visas and other identity papers.

Like the other Ämter of the RSHA, Amt IV is organised into Gruppen (Sections, e.g. IV A), Referate (Sub-Sections, e.g. IV A 1) and Hilfsreferate (Sub-Sectional Units, e.g. IV A 1 a). In detail Amt IV appears to be organised as shown in the next paragraph.

Note.—Headlines marked by an asterisk (*) were not contained in the main source, but were taken from other German papers.

97. Structure of Amt IV

The official heading of Amt IV of the RSHA is Gegner-Erforschung und Bekämpfung (Investigation and Combatting of Opposition; it is organised as follows:—

Gruppe IV A

IV A 1
* Opposition
IV A 1 a
Kommunismus, Marxismus und Nebenorganisationen (Nationalkommission "Freies Deutschland") in Deutschland, den besetzten Gebieten und auch im Ausland	Communism, Marxism and affiliated organisations (National Committee "Free Germany") in Germany, occupied territories and foreign countries
Rundfunk-Verbrechen	Violation of broadcasting regulations
Illegale kommunistische und marxistische Propaganda	Illegal communist and marxist propaganda
Feindpropaganda — durch Flugblätter und Auslandsendungen — und deren Verbreitung	Enemy propaganda—through leaflets and foreign broadcasts—and its dissemination
Bandenwesen in Deutschland, der Untersteiermark und Oberkrain	Hostile guerrilla units in Germany and the annexed portions of Northern Yugoslavia
Deutsche und verbündete Kriegsgefangene in Sowjetrussischer Gefangenschaft	German and satellite Prisoners-of-War in Soviet captivity
IV A 1 b
Reaktion	Reactionary movements
Opposition	Opposition
Liberalismus	Liberalism
Legitimismus	Monarchism
Pazifismus	Pacifism

Heimtückeangelegenheiten	Treacherous acts, spreading of rumours, etc.
Zersetzung der Wehrmacht und Miesmacherei	Undermining of the morale of the Armed Forces, grumbling
Defaitismus	Defeatism
Unzufriedene Wehrmachtangehörige in Deutschland, auch in Kriegsgefangenschaft und deren Angehörige	Discontented members of the Armed Forces in Germany, also those in enemy captivity, and their next-of-kin

IV A 2

* Sabotage

IV A 2 a
Sabotageabwehr und -Bekämpfung	Prevention and combatting of sabotage
Politische Attentate	Political assassinations
Politische Pass- und Ausweissfälschungen	Forgery of passports and identity papers, for political purposes
Terroristen	Terrorists
Syndikalisten	Syndicalists
IV A 2 b
Fallschirmagenten	Parachute agents
Funkspiele	Radio interference, jamming

IV A 3

* Abwehr (Counter Intelligence)

IV A 3 a
Gesellschaftsspionage	Combatting of espionage in society

* See note, para. 96

Fahrlässiger Landesverrat Treason through negligence, careless talk, etc.

Spionage Combatting of political espionage

IV A 3 b
Wirtschaftsangelegenheiten in Deutschland, den besetzten Gebieten, im Verkehr mit dem Ausland und umgekehrt (siehe auch unter Amt III) Economic matters in Germany and the occupied territories, trade with foreign countries (see also under Amt III of the RSHA)

Wirtschaftsspionage Combatting of espionage
Surveillance in der Schweiz Surveillance activities in Switzerland
Devisenvergehen Transgressions of foreign exchange regulations

IV A 3 c
Grenzan gelegenheiten, kleiner Grenzverkehr und Grenzzwischenfälle Frontier Control, local border traffic and frontier incidents

IV A 3 d
Abwehr über Nachrichtenverkehr Signals and Communications counter - intelligence (monitoring, censorship, etc.)
Verstöße gegen den Nachrichtenverkehr Illegal Communications traffic

(IV A 3 d incorporates Section III N of the former Abwehr-Amt.)

IV A 4

* Weltanschauliche Gegner (Ideological Opponents)

IV A 4 a
Katholizismus und Protestantismus, Sekten, sonstige Kirchen, Freimaurer in Deutschland und den besetzten Gebieten Catholicism and Protestantism, sects, other religious bodies, freemasons, in Germany and in the occupied territories

Grundsätzliche Angelegenheiten, auch im Ausland Basic problems at home and abroad

IV A 4 b
Juden, Emigranten, Volks- und Staatsfeindliche Vermögensangelegenheiten, Aberkennung der Reichsangehörigkeit, im Inland, den besetzten Gebieten und Ausland Jews, emigrés, Enemy and Opposition Property, taking away of Reich citizenship, at home, in the occupied territories and abroad

IV A 5

* Sonderfälle (Special Cases)

IV A 5 a
Schutzdienst Protective Service (for leading Party and Government personalities)

Sonderaufgaben Special duties
Asoziales Verhalten gegen Evakuierte Unfriendly attitude towards evacuees
Deutsche Arbeitsbummelanten German work-dodgers
Gemeinschaftswidriges Verhalten Anti-social behaviour

IV A 5 b
Parteiangelegenheiten und Presse Party Affairs and Press

IV A 6

* Karteien und Fahndung (Card Indexes and Search for Wanted Persons)

IV A 6 a
Kartei und Personalakten Card Index, Personal Dossiers (Probably the central index of the RSHA)
Auskunft Information

IV A 6 b
Schutzhaft Protective custody (Concentration Camps)

IV (?)
Ausländische Arbeiter und fremdländische Kriegsgefangene Foreign workers and prisoners-of-war
Fluchtabsichten und Fluchten ausländischer Arbeiter in Deutschland und den besetzten Gebieten (siehe auch Amt V) Escapes and attempts to escape by foreign workers in Germany and the occupied territories (see also Amt V of the RSHA)
Unerlaubte Briefvermittlung Illicit transmission of mail to and from foreign workers
Arbeitsverweigerung der Ausländer Refusal to work by foreigners

Note.—The number of this Hilfsreferat is not clear. From a comparison with the structure of some outposts of the Gestapo one would expect it to be IV A 6 c or possibly IV A 1 c. The original Gestapo document from which this tabulation was mainly taken listed the number as IV 8, but this seems more likely to be due to an error or a mutilation in transmission.

Gruppe IV B

* Abwehrangelegenheiten (Military Counter Intelligence)

IV B 1

* Western Europe, English-speaking countries, Scandinavia

IV B 1 a
Frankreich, Belgien France, Belgium

IV B 1 b
Holland, England, Nordamerika, Kanada Holland, England, North America, Canada

Note.—All the above sub-sections of Gruppe B (IV B 1 a to IV B 3 b) deal with matters which were, until summer 1944, handled by Abwehr III, a section of the former Military Intelligence dealing exclusively with security and counter espionage. Abwehr III had separate sub-sections watching over security in the German Army, Navy and Air Force. Other sub-sections of Abwehr III dealt with the security and protection of German industries, especially of civilian establishments connected with the Armed Forces, the combatting of enemy intelligence services and their deception for strategic purposes, security in PW camps, compilation of statistics for security instruction, and the supervision of public communications, which included censorship. All but the last-mentioned item are now handled by the above sub-sections of IV B. Communications and censorship are dealt with in IV A 3.

IV B 4

* Passangelegenheiten (Passport Matters)

IV B 4 a

Passwesen Passports

IV B 4 b

Ausweiswesen, Kennkarten Identity papers, identity cards

Ausländerpolizei Registration and Control of Foreigners

IV B 4 c

98. The former structure of Amt IV

Before the reorganisation, the structure of Amt IV presented a more complicated picture. No single document revealing the old organisation has been found, but a fair amount of information on it has been extracted from various sources. Since many documents coming to hand at the present time still refer to the old organisation of Amt IV, it has been considered advisable to reproduce it. All the functions of the old Amt IV are retained in the new structure, and details known about the old organisation may also help to clarify the present system.

Wherever information is derived from PW and other reports, this is indicated by the use of such phrasing as "it is reported." If documentary evidence itself was insufficient but certain conclusions could be drawn from the general structure, the item is marked thus †. It must be remembered, however, that this tabulation of the former Amt IV is neither complete nor correct in all its details. There may have been a number of additional sections and sub-sections, the existence of which did not become known, while others which are listed may actually have dealt with a much wider field than could be gathered from the available documents. Since the German terms given in the next paragraph are not in all cases known to be official, they are given in brackets after the English definition.

Just before the reorganisation in summer, 1944, Amt IV appears to have been organised as follows :

Gruppe IV A

† Sabotage—Security—Opposition

IV A 1

† Treason—Sabotage

IV A 1 a

High treason and acts of sabotage committed by Germans

Possible sub-divisions:
Communists and Marxists
Social-Democrats and Trades Unionists
Other Left-Wing subversive elements

IV A 1 b

Enemy sabotage and enemy propaganda

Possible sub-divisions:
Sabotage through agents and parachutists, dropping of forged papers, ration cards, etc.
Propaganda through leaflets and broadcasts, jamming of foreign broadcasts (Gegenfunkspiele)

IV A 1 c

Sabotage by foreigners (especially foreign workers and PW)

IV A 2

† Open Terrorist Attacks, Forgeries

IV A 2 a

† Search for wanted terrorists, identification of evidence (Fahndung, Erkennungsdienst)

This may include a central card index, known as IVA—PA, of persons wanted in connection with terrorism

IV A 2 b

† Arms—High Explosives (Waffen—Sprengstoffe)

IV A 2 c

Central Bureau for combatting forgeries, for political reasons, of passports and identity papers (Zentralstelle zur Bekämpfung der politischen Pass- und Ausweisfälschungen)

Dealing with forgery, theft, and illegal use of identity papers.

IV A 3

Right-Wing Opposition, Subversive Activities and Treacherous Acts

(Reaktion, Widerstandsbewegungen, Opposition, Heimtückeangelegenheiten)

This sub-section seems to have been the Right-Wing counterpart to IV A 1 above. It may have had separate sub-divisions for the Deutschnationale Partei (German Nationalist Party) and for other Right-Wing political bodies of the Weimar period, such as the Junkers, Stahlhelm, Zentrum, Deutsche Volkspartei, etc. Other activities include dismissed or penalised officials (Gemässregelte Beamte) and disgruntled members of the Nazi Party. All these activities are now dealt with by IV A 1 b under the new organisation of the Gestapo Amt.

IV A 4

Personal security of prominent members of the Government and the Nazi Party (Schutzdienst)

Possible sub-divisions:—

Investigation of assassinations.
Train control (Zü = Zugüberwachung).
Mail control (Pü = Postüberwachung).
Special investigations.

* See note, para. 96

† See above

Gruppe IV B† Ideological Opponents (Weltanschauliche Gegner)

Whereas the opponents mentioned in IV A are active enemies of Nazism, IV B dealt with people who by reason of their spiritual, intellectual or racial background take a negative attitude towards the régime. Although they are less likely to obstruct Nazism openly they are just as vigorously prosecuted and checked by the Gestapo.

IV B 1

Roman Catholic Church

Supervision of the Roman Catholic Church, R.C. clubs and organisations, religious orders, Catholic Press, etc.

IV B 2

Protestants

Protestants and other religious sects, their clergy, press, clubs, charitable institutions, etc.

This Referat was at times reported to deal with political supervision of the press, but this seems rather to have been handled normally in Referat IV C 3.

IV B 3

Freemasons and Lodges

A document from a Regional Headquarters of the Gestapo mentions this Referat as having dealt also with emigrés. It is, however, more likely that such work was handled by IV B 4 a or b.

IV B 4

Jews

This Referat probably dealt with those activities which, under the new organisation, are handled by the Hilfsreferat IV A 4 b, such as Jews, emigrés, enemy and opposition property, taking away of Reich Citizenship.

IV B 4 a(?)

IV B 4 b(?)

IV B 4 c

Seizure of property belonging to enemy and opposition groups. (Einziehung von Volks- und Staats- (Reichs-) feindlichen Vermögen).

Gruppe IV CCentral Registry*IV C 1

Central Registry

This Referat, sometimes known as IV C—PA, disseminated information and rendered reports to other Referate, offices of the Gestapo and other specific persons. It also checked applications for visas, passports and other identity papers against the files.

Note.—IV C 1 and 2 formed the " Zentralkartei des RSHA " (Central Card Index of the RSHA), which became IV A 6 in the new numbering system.

IV C 3

(Files of printed matter)

Pictures, magazines and foreign newspapers.

Documentary evidence exists that this Referat dealt with the prohibition of foreign magazines and newspapers and the ban on indecent books and papers (Ausländische Druckschriften, Photo-Akt-Werke). It is possible that it was concerned generally with Gestapo supervision of the press.

IV C 4

Reported to have dealt with control of members of the Party and its formations.

This Referat dealt more with the general supervision of Party personnel than with the investigation of subversive activities by disaffected members as covered by IV A 3.

Gruppe IV DForeigners

This Gruppe dealt mainly with the investigation and prosecution of anti-Nazi underground movements among foreigners in the Reich and occupied countries.

IV D 1

Czechs and Slovaks

(Protektoratsangelegenheiten, Tschechen im Reich)

IV D 4 a (?)

IV D 4 b (?)

IV D 4 c (?)

IV D 4 d (?)

IV D 2

Poles

(Gouvernementsangelegenheiten; Polen im Reich)

IV D 2 a (?)

IV D 2 b (?)

IV D 2 c

Identified as having dealt with matters relating to medals and decorations worn by Poles.

IV D 4 e

Frenchmen

This Hilfsreferat recovered the personnel files from the Sûreté Nationale and set them up in Berlin in January, 1943. They were used to provide political information concerning French citizens and persons who resided in France up to 1940, their citizenship status, their political activities and other details.

IV D 4 e also collected and disseminated information concerning French Trade Unions, clubs, newspapers and magazines.

The file is maintained independently of the Central Card Index of the RSHA, which was kept in Referat IV C 1 and IV C 2 (see above). It can be assumed that IV D 4 a, b, c and d recovered similar files for the countries they dealt with.

IV D 3

Enemy Aliens (Staatsfeindliche Ausländer)

IV D 4

People from occupied territories, other than Czechs and Poles.

This probably included Danes, Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians, French and Balkan Peoples.

† See above

Gruppe IV E

Counter Espionage, Political and Economic Control

UNCLASSIFIED

This Gruppe, dealing with counter espionage, was subdivided according to the countries involved. Gruppe IV E may also have dealt with the political control of concentration camps through the Political Commissars, but this has not been definitely established.

Gruppe IV E published its own Gazette, reporting on discoveries about enemy Secret Service organisations (Feind Nachrichtendienst; ND) and on the search for wanted enemy agents. This publication, entitled "Mitteilungsblatt der Gruppe IV E," was issued on the 15th of each month.

IV E 1

Counter Espionage along the German Frontiers
Direction of counter espionage work of the Grenzpolizei (Frontier Police).

IV E 2

Economic and Political Control of Trades
Possibly also handled liaison with Arbeitsämter (Labour Bureaux).

IV E 2 a

Imports

A file found with this number concerned the limited free importation of goods by members of the Armed Forces.

IV E 2 b

Exports

IV E 2 c (?)

IV E 2 d

Security of industrial establishments (Industrie-sicherung), liaison with and control of Industrial Police (Werkschutz) and private detective agencies (Bewachungsgewerbe).

IV E 3

Counter Espionage: France, Belgium, Switzerland.

A large amount of work by this Referat was devoted to the control of former members of the French Foreign Legion—regardless of their citizenship—upon their entry into the Reich, especially with regard to their possible membership of the French Secret Service. For this purpose, as well as for the purpose of handling their resettlement or expatriation, a Central Card Index of former members of the Legion was maintained in this Referat, in cooperation with the Stapoleitstelle Karlsruhe. In 1940 and 1941 a special camp for returning legionnaires, the Durchgangslager (Transit Camp) in Kislau, was set up and close cooperation maintained with the Frontier Police in order to catch all legionnaires who entered the Reich.

IV E 4

Counter Espionage: English-speaking Countries and Northern Europe (England, USA, Sweden, etc.).

Owing to its connections with Great Britain and the U.S., counter espionage against supporters of de Gaulle was also handled by IV E 4 rather than IV E 3.

IV E 5

Counter Espionage: the East (Russia, Poland, Finland).

IV E 6

Counter Espionage: the South.
(Czechoslovakia, Balkans, Hungary, Italy, Spain and S. America).

Gruppe IV F

Border Control of Civilians—Grenzpolizei

Identity papers, passports, visas, control of foreigners upon entry into the Reich, and similar subjects.

IV F 1

Civilian "Passeure."

Smugglers, smuggling of persons, letters and information across the borders.

IV F 2

Control of legal border traffic.

Visas, papers, passports (Passangelegenheiten) where espionage is not suspected; local border traffic (kleiner Grenzverkehr).

IV F 3

General prosecution of wanted persons.

Possibly included cases of refusal to serve in the Labour Service and the Armed Forces, desertion, self-mutilation and other crimes against Germany's war effort. (Kriegsfahndung, Sonderfahndung, Fahnenflucht, Überläufer, Zersetzung der Wehrkraft, Selbstverstümmelung).

IV F 4

Registration of civilian foreign workers upon entry into the Reich (Ausländerüberwachung—Ausländerzentalkartei)

This Referat assigns the foreign workers to industry, possibly in cooperation with the Arbeitsämter (Labour Bureaux).

99. Other possible sections of Amt IV

One other section should also be mentioned, although there is no documentary proof of its actual existence in the RSHA, viz. Gruppe IV N (Nachrichten—communications and information). In view of the fact that a sub-section IV N appears in almost all documents describing the inner organisation of out-stations of the Gestapo it is quite likely that a similar section exists in Amt IV of the RSHA.

There are a number of other designations of sub-sections which occur frequently in the lower echelons of the Gestapo, but it is not at all certain whether these designations are also used in Amt IV. It may, however, be worth while to enumerate those which are most frequently encountered, namely:—

IV G Gefangenen - Transporte (Transport of prisoners)

IV H Nazi Party and Affiliated Organisations

IV J Juden (Jews and Concentration Camps, Card Index of Jews—see also IV A 4)

IV K Kirchenwesen (Churches and Sects—see also IV A 4)

IV M Freimaurer (Freemasons: see also IV A 4)

IV P Presse (Press—see also IV B 2 and IV C 3, in the former structure)

IV R Russenangelegenheiten (Russian PWs and Civilians)

IV S Schutzdienst (Security of prominent people, sometimes also including investigation regarding Nazi Party members, combatting of homosexuals, etc.—see also IV A 5)

UNCLASSIFIED

It was also reported at one time that the Gestapo had a section known as IV RW (for Reichswehr), dealing with the collection of dossiers on prominent members of the German Armed Forces. This section was said to have been created as early as 1933 to collect data on personalities of the Reichswehr and to have expanded and continued its functions under the original designation even after the Reichswehr had been transformed into the Wehrmacht in 1935. No documentary proof, however, of the existence of such an office in the RSHA has come to hand. There is not much doubt that the Party, and in particular the SS, keep a close check on personalities of the Armed Forces, but if a special office for this purpose exists within the framework of the German Police it seems more likely that it would be connected with Amt III of the RSHA and the organisation of the SD.

100. Functions of the Gestapo

The main functions of the Geheime Staatspolizei are "prevention," detection and prosecution of political crimes as defined by the Nazis. It has been previously pointed out that the Gestapo interprets its mission in the widest possible sense of the word; basically, however, it concerns itself with the following types of "crime" or any expedient elaboration of them.

(Interpretations rather than exact translations have been given in the right hand column, and in view of the difference between the Nazi and Allied systems of government, the word "Gesetz" has been translated as "decree" rather than as "law").

- Landesverrat gem. §§ 88-93 RStGB (Reichs-Strafgesetzbuch)* Treason according to articles 88-93 of the Reich Penal Code
- Hochverrat gem. §§ 80-87 RStGB* High Treason (treason aimed at the overthrow of the German Government) according to articles 80-87 of the Reich Penal Code
- Weitere im RStGB enthaltene Tatbestände wie öffentliche Beschimpfung des Staates* Other crimes mentioned in the Reich Penal Code, such as public libel and slander of the Government
- Öffentliche Beschimpfung der Partei und ihrer Gliederungen* Public libel or slander of the National Socialist Party and its formations, e.g. the SS, SA or NSKK
- Aufruhr* Riots or incitement to rioting
- Verletzung der Wehrpflicht und der Wehrkraft* Contraventions of the Conscription Law and offences against Germany's war potential
- Unterlassung der rechtzeitigen Anzeige von Verbrechen des Hochverrats, des Landesverrats usw.* Failure to make a prompt report of any indications of high treason and treasonable acts, etc.
- Feindliche Handlungen gegen befreundete Staaten* Hostile acts against friendly nations
- Verbrechen und Vergehen in Beziehung auf die Ausübung staatsbürgerlicher Rechte u.a.* Crimes and offences against the exercise of citizens' rights and privileges

- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz gegen heimtückische Angriffe auf Staat und Partei und zum Schutz der Parteiuniformen vom 20. Dez 34* Offences against the decree of 20 Dec 34 dealing with treacherous attacks on the Government and Party, and Protection of Party Uniforms
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz zum Schutze von Bezeichnungen der NSDAP vom 7. Apr 37* Offences against the Decree of 7 Apr 37 for the Protection of Party Designations
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz zum Schutze der nationalen Symbole vom 19. Mai 33* Offences against the Decree of 19 May 33 for the Protection of National Symbols
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz zur Abwehr politischer Gewalttaten vom 4. Apr 33* Offences against the Decree of 4 Apr 33 for the Prevention of Political Terrorism or Acts of Violence
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz gegen Verrat der deutschen Volkswirtschaft vom 12. Juni 33* Offences against the Decree of 12 Jun 33 against Treason towards the German Economic System
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen auf Grund der Verordnung des Reichspräsidenten zum Schutz von Volk und Staat vom 28. Februar 33 getroffene Massnahmen* Offences against any of the Statutes or Ordinances based on the Presidential Decree of 28 Feb 33 for the Protection of Nation and Government
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz über die Einziehung kommunistischen Vermögens vom 26. Mai 33* Offences against the Decree of 26 May 33 covering the Expropriation of Communist Property
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz zur Gewährleistung des Rechtsfriedens vom 13. Okt 33* Offences against the Decree of 13 Oct 33 for the Protection of the Judicial Administration
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz gegen die Neubildung von Parteien vom 14. Juli 33* Contraventions of the Decree of 14 Jul 33 against the Formation of new Political Parties or Factions
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz gegen Wirtschaftssabotage vom 1. Dez 36* Offences against the Decree of 1 Dec 36 against Economic Sabotage
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen das Gesetz über die Devisenbewirtschaftung (Devisengesetz) vom 12. Dez 38* Offences against the Statutes of 12 Dec 38 dealing with the Administration of Foreign Exchange (Foreign exchange Regulations and Restrictions)
- Zu widerhandlungen gegen :-*
 - (a) die Verordnung über den Warenverkehr vom 18. August 39 (a) the Ordinance of 18 Aug 39 for the Control of Goods and Trade
 - (b) die Verordnung über die Wirtschaftsverwaltung vom 27. August 39 (b) the Ordinance of 27 Aug 39 establishing German Economic Administration

- (c) die Verordnung zur vorläufigen Sicherstellung des lebenswichtigen Bedarfs des deutschen Volkes vom 27. August 34
- (d) die zu den 3 vorerwähnten Verordnungen ergangenen Durchführungs- und Ergänzungsverordnungen

- Zu widerhandlungen gegen die Polizeiverordnung zum Schutze der nationalen Symbole und Lieder vom 5. Jan 40
- (c) the Ordinance dated 27 Aug 39 covering provisionally defined Priorities to provide for the Essential Needs of the German People (Food, Consumer Goods, Fuel, etc.)
- (d) any other ordinances which were issued as directives and supplements to the three preceding ordinances
- Offences against the Ordinances of 1 Sep 39 covering extra-ordinary measures relating to Wireless Transmitting and Receiving
- Offences against the Ordinances of 2 Sep 39 for the Protection of the German Border Regions and Internal Customs Zones
- Offences against the Ordinance of 5 Sep 39 dealing with the Treatment of Foreigners (PWs, Non-German workers, etc.)
- Offences against the Ordinances of 5 Sep 39 against the Enemies of the People (Anti-social Elements, as defined by German decrees)
- Offences against the Ordinance of 24 Nov 39 supplementing the Penal Regulations for the Protection of Germany's war effort
- Offences against the Police Ordinance of 5 Jan 40 for the Protection of National Symbols and Songs

101. Gestapo Interpretations of the Law

Certain acts, hostile to the government and the people, are considered political crimes in any country; they need no further discussion. But whereas, according to the democratic conception of justice, such offences are clearly defined and graded from misdemeanours to crimes by a precise legal code and a corresponding set of precedents, Gestapo procedure is based on the unlimited interpretation of the above-listed "political crimes." Its guiding principles seem to range from opportunist expediency to a rather musty mysticism.

Thus, the Gestapo adds to the more conventional concept of treason and high treason any action, planned or executed, and even any opinion, suspected or expressed, which it considers dangerous or inconvenient to the Nazi Party, any of its formations or leading personalities, its uniforms and insignia, and its ritual or traditions. Nor does "guilt" in the eyes of the Gestapo stop with the committing or planning of such "crimes." Passive sympathy with a political "offence" often suffices to effect intervention by the Secret State Police.

The next step of repression is made possible by the way in which the Nazis have deliberately blurred and mixed together the concepts of Government, State, Nation, People and Party, and infused fictitious interests into the resulting politico-national creation. The safeguarding of such interests may then be construed as including an unlimited number of "crimes" ranging from communist activities, agitation or sympathies to offences against the privilege of German citizenship and the "honour of the German Race," and even beyond that, to mere dislike of German folklore, songs, art or any other form of "Kultur."

To the crime of transmission, publication, and general spreading of anti-Nazi propaganda is added mere listening to "illegal" broadcasts, perusal of enemy or opposition leaflets, or reading of banned literature.

Acts which elsewhere would be considered minor economic or financial infractions of the law are in Germany crimes against the Government and the people and as such become the concern of the Gestapo. This category is stretched to cover a list of crimes ranging from offences against foreign exchange and currency regulations and hoarding of goods listed as essential down to any communication or transaction with elements regarded as non-German or anti-Nazi. A peasant who, without a permit, slaughters a pig is prosecuted as vigorously as somebody accused of "harbouring thoughts unworthy of a German."

The use of a thin cloak of legality was only a convenient pretence and was never guided by considerations of justice. The Statutory regulation issued to amplify the Prussian Decree of 10 Feb 36 (see also para. 10) in effect authorised HIMMLER to take measures necessary for the preservation of security and order, even exceeding the limits previously defined by law. Not content with the mock-interpretation of a so-called legal code, the Gestapo could thus proceed to supplement the law by any extra-legal action it considered necessary. Subsequently, a HITLER proclamation of 22 Oct 38 removed even theoretical limitations, such as they were, by pointing to the "unwritten law" of Germany as expressed in "the will of the Party Leader." The proclamation stated bluntly that "every means adopted for the purpose of carrying out the will of the Leader is considered legal even though it may conflict with existing statutes and legal precedent"; the Gestapo had received its unlimited "hunting licence." Thus, long after the body had been buried, even the ghost of "Government by Law" departed from the German scene.

As may be seen from the foregoing, Gestapo methods have passed through three stages of evolution—undefined interpretation of the law, unchecked supplementing of the legal code, and authorised violation of statute and precedent. The Gestapo is now in a position to apply the methods of these three successive stages of "justice" separately or in any convenient combination, and since it is in no way subject to veto, review, or advice by the Judiciary its powers have become absolute and unlimited both in theory and in practice.

102. Regional Organisation of the Gestapo

In paragraph 3 it was mentioned that the Geheime Staatspolizei is a Nazi development of the former Staatspolizei, the Political Police which existed in Prussia under the Weimar Republic. A political police was formed in Germany as early as 1914 when it consisted of three branches. The first branch, known as Staatspolizei, dealt with the combatting of any plots against the Emperor and the Government. The other two branches of the political police handled censorship and the political supervision of clubs, societies and parties. With the establishment of a republic under the leadership of liberal parties in 1919 any strict censorship and any supervision of parties by the Police were abolished and the only remaining branch of the Political Police was the Staatspolizei protecting the Government against plots and treasonable attacks by extremists. In 1933 the Nazis took over this organisation, completely remodelled it and renamed it the Geheime Staatspolizei. The regional offices, however, retained the old name in their designations and are thus still known as Staatspolizei-Leitstellen (Stapo-LSt), Staatspolizei-Stellen (Stapo-St), Staatspolizei Aussendienststellen (Stapo AuDSt or Stapo ADSt) and Staatspolizei Aussenstellen (Stapo - AuSt or Stapo - ASt). It must be remembered, however, that despite this difference in usage the term Staatspolizei (Stapo) today simply means Geheime Staatspolizei (Gestapo).

A Stapo-Leitstelle is usually established at the seat of a Wehrkreis (Military District), or at the administrative capital of a Prussian province or one of the larger German Länder or Reichsgaue. At present there are 21 Stapo-Leitstellen in existence in Greater Germany, including Bohemia-Moravia. As a rule, the Chief of a Stapo-Leitstelle has the rank of an Oberregierungs- und Kriminalrat (official approximately equal to a Lt.-Col.). He is the political adviser to the Reichsstatthalter or Prussian Oberpräsident. He cooperates closely with this high administrative official as well as with the authorities of the Wehrmacht and Party, which are normally located in the same town.

A Stapo-Stelle is established at the seat of a Prussian Regierungsbezirk or smaller German Land or Reichsgau. According to the most recent information there are 30 such Stellen in existence at the present time. The Chief of a Stapo-Stelle usually holds the rank of Regierungs- und Kriminalrat (approximately equal to Major), and is the political adviser to the Regierungspräsident, or similar authority in the Land or the Reichsgau.

Stapo-Stellen are not subordinate to Stapo-Leitstellen. They function independently and no executive orders as from a higher to a lower echelon are issued by a Leitstelle to a Stelle. Since, however, Stapo-Stellen may be located within the larger administrative area of a Leitstelle, many instances of overlapping and duplication of functions may arise. In the interests of greater efficiency and uniformity of procedure, therefore, the Leitstelle may sometimes send directives and memoranda to the Stellen within its territory but, in doing this the Leitstelle acts as a coordinating, not as a directing agency. An arrangement of this kind may seem rather vague and involved, and contrary to the usual clear-cut conception of a chain of command. It is, therefore, worth while quoting the no less complicated German terminology defining this relation:—

In this connection it must be pointed out that 8 of the above mentioned 30 Stapo-Stellen are completely independent. Their work is not subject to any coordination by a Leitstelle and instructions are issued directly to them from the RSHA.

Stapo-Leitstellen and Stapo-Stellen are therefore completely self-contained units authorised to take any independent action they may deem necessary. They handle all Gestapo matters in their immediate area, i.e. in the Orts- und Kreispolizeibezirk in which they are located. In addition they supervise all Gestapo activities in the larger area which is administratively controlled by the governmental Headquarters of their location. For this purpose they have established a considerable number of branch offices within the Regierungsbezirk, Land or Reichsgau. These branch offices are known as Stapo-Aussendienststellen (or Stapo-Aussenstellen). The actual difference between these two types of office has not as yet been fully ascertained, but it may be assumed that a Stapo-Aussendienststelle will be found in the larger towns and in districts of greater potential Gestapo activity. In addition an Aussendienststelle is known to have a number of lesser branch offices and outposts at various places within its area, whereas an Aussenstelle has no such subordinate agencies.

It is important to note that both Stapo-Aussendienststellen and Aussenstellen are not self-contained independent offices, but rely for the conduct of their work on orders and directives from the Stapo-Stelle or Stapo-Leitstelle in whose area they are located.

A number of Stapo-Stellen have been officially down-graded to the status of Aussendienststellen for the duration of the war. Among the reasons given for this development is the increasing manpower problem, which has affected the Gestapo to the same extent as other branches of the German Police, although while available personnel decreases, its functions and responsibilities are constantly growing. In particular, many of the leading personalities of the Gestapo were sent to occupied territories. By the reduction of a number of the Stapo-Stellen to the size and strength of Aussendienststellen, some of their former executive members and lesser personnel were freed for service in those conquered and infinitely more troublesome areas. It seems probable, however, that offices thus down-graded have retained much of their former independence; they are, for example, still expected to perform the same functions as when they were Stapo-Stellen. Furthermore, the down-graded Stapo-Stellen were all located in places which are the seats of a Regierungspräsident or a similar higher administrative authority with the Chief of the Stapo-Stelle as the political adviser to such authorities; it seems a reasonable assumption that the chief of the new Aussendienststelle still performs this advisory function, even though he must depend on orders from higher Gestapo authorities.

All Gestapo offices are under the supervision, and in certain previously explained instances, under the direct command of the Befehlshaber (Inspekteur) der Sipo und des SD. While, however, the BdS or IdS is responsible for an area coinciding with the regional administration of the Armed Forces, i.e. the Wehrkreis, the territory assigned to Stapo-Leitstellen and Stapo-Stellen follows mainly the historical administrative system of Länder, Reichsgaue, Provinzen, Regierungsbezirke, etc. This inconsistency further complicates the administration: Stapo-Stellen, for instance, may come under the supervision or command of a different BdS from the one controlling their responsible Stapo-Leitstelle. Conditions of this kind have probably gone far to bring about the gradual increase in the power of the BdS in comparison with that previously exercised by the Leitstelle (see para. 91).

227 Stapo-Aussendienststellen have been identified in Greater Germany, whereas the identity of only 4 Stapo-Aussenstellen has been established. Latest evidence makes it appear that Aussenstellen as a rule are not found inside Germany and that the normal classification of a Gestapo branch office is that of an Aussendienststelle.

In addition 10 Gestapo Headquarters of unknown classification have been identified. These, too, are most likely Aussendienststellen. Furthermore 6 Aussendienststellen are known to have existed, but are, at present, suspended. This brings the total of identified Gestapo branch offices to 247. None of the above figures include any of the Gestapo Headquarters in occupied territories other than Bohemia-Moravia, nor are the Headquarters of the Gestapo-operated Grenzpolizei (see para. 105) included.

Further details about all identified Stapo-Leitstellen, -Stellen, -Aussendienststellen and -Aussenstellen, such as location, address, telephone number, personalities, branch offices and chain of command will be found in Annexe F.

103. Internal Organisation of Gestapo Headquarters

Regional Headquarters of the Gestapo more or less reflect the organisation of Amt IV in the RSHA on a smaller scale, but the numbering system for sub-sections used in the various Headquarters did not, until recently, coincide with that employed in the parent Amt.

The original sections in regional headquarters within Greater Germany seem to have been as follows:—

- Section I Office Administration and Personnel.
- Section II Divided into Abteilungen A, B, C, etc., with Referate 1, 2 and 3 in the same manner as Amt IV of the RSHA. Thus, for example, II A 3 would deal with the same subject matters as Referat IV A 3 in the RSHA.
- Section III Liaison with the Abwehr (Military Intelligence), and matters of espionage and counter espionage. Administration of Grenzpolizei (Frontier Police).

Wartime requirements seem to have produced a large number of local changes and modifications, so that the inner structure of individual Stapo Regional Headquarters began to show considerable variations. It now appears, however, that a further reorganisation of the inner structure of many Stapo-Leitstellen and Stapo-Stellen has taken place with the object of bringing them into line with the newly organised Amt IV of the RSHA. Under this new scheme Section I continues to handle Administration and Personnel, but Sections II and III have been abolished. Instead a Section IV has been formed, with sub-sections reflecting the new organisation of Section IV A of the parent Amt in Berlin. Section IV B of Amt IV is not represented in the regional Gestapo Headquarters, since its functions are still handled, regionally, by the offices of the old Abwehr (e.g. Abwehrstellen, abbr. Ast, etc.).

Thus, the section designations in regional Gestapo Headquarters do not contain an "A," Hilfsreferat IV A 1 a of the RSHA, for example, being represented regionally by a sub-section VI 1 a.

It cannot be stated with certainty at present whether this reorganisation has taken place in all regional Headquarters of the Gestapo in Greater Germany. German admiration of uniform bureaucratic methods certainly makes this tendency to unification appear a logical and likely development, but experience shows that such processes take a long time, and the older system may still be encountered in some instances.

On the other hand, the inner organisation of Gestapo headquarters in occupied territories always followed closely the original pattern of Amt IV of the RSHA. In contrast to the organisation within Greater Germany, the Gestapo in occupied countries does not, as a rule, function in independent headquarters, but forms part of combined Sipo and SD units, such as the office of the Befehlshaber der Sipo und des SD or of Sipo and SD-Kommandos.

These combined Sipo and SD command headquarters are divided into seven Abteilungen (sections) similar to the Ämter (Bureaux) of RSHA, numbered I-VII.

Within this organisation Abteilungen I and II handle matters of administration and personnel for all the other sections, and Abteilung IV deals with Gestapo affairs exclusively.

Following the reorganisation of Amt IV in the RSHA, a parallel reorganisation of Abteilung IV appears to have taken place in all Kommandos, which therefore now conform to the pattern described above for the Gestapo Headquarters within Germany.

Minor differences, such as those for example, which arise from the problems peculiar to occupied territory, must naturally be expected, but the typical example of Abteilung IV in a Sipo and SD Kommando, given in the next paragraph, illustrates clearly the uniformity with the Amt IV pattern, which may be said to prevail largely throughout the system of Gestapo Headquarters both in Germany and abroad.

105. The Grenzpolizei

A Decree of 8 May 37 placed the responsibility for the security of the German frontiers with the Chief of the Security Police, acting on behalf of the Reich Minister of the Interior. Under this decree the Gestapo took charge of frontier control and, for this purpose, formed a new specialised branch, the Grenzpolizei (Frontier Police).

This special arm of the Gestapo operates through Grenzpolizei-Kommissariate (Frontier Police Commissariates; abbr. Grekos), situated at key points along the Reich frontiers as well as along such borders as those between Germany and the Government General. 70 such Grenzpolizei-Kommissariate have been identified. These regional Headquarters are on the same level as Stapo-Aussendienststellen, but they deal only with the control and supervision of the frontiers. The strength of a Kommissariat is usually between 10 and 25 men. Like the Stapo-Aussenstellen, Grekos are controlled by the nearest Stapo-Stelle or Stapo-Leitstelle, which has a special section (IV 3 c, known under the old numbering system as III C) dealing exclusively with the Grenzpolizei. In Amt IV of the RSHA matters dealing with the actual work of the Grenzpolizei are mostly concentrated in the corresponding Hilfsreferat IV A 3 c.

Grenzpolizei-Kommissariate, in turn, establish their own branch offices at roads and railways crossing the frontier within the area under their jurisdiction. These branch offices are known as Grenzpolizei-posten (Frontier Police Outposts; abbr. Grepos). The strength of a Grepo varies greatly, according to the volume of traffic handled. Many of these outposts are staffed by only two or three men and may operate only during certain hours of the day; others, located at key-points on main roads or railways, may employ 12 or more officials. 34 Grepos have been identified.

Some Grenzpolizei-Kommissariate are known to have formed special units called Fliegende Kommandos (Flying Squads). Exact details concerning these units are not known, but it is obvious that highly mobile patrols must serve to reinforce and tighten control of the German frontiers. They are equipped with staff cars and their personnel may be drawn from the regular staff of the Kommissariate. Instructions contained in an original document indicate that the Fliegende Kommandos are employed to check and supervise the activities of the regular customs officials of the Reich Finance Administration.

The main function of the Grenzpolizei is to supervise all persons crossing the international frontiers of Germany and to establish the identity of such persons by checking passports and other identity papers. Amt V of the RSHA, i.e. the Kripo, issues a monthly Fahndungsbuch des Deutschen Reiches (German Book of Wanted Persons), which lists all Wanted Persons such as escaped prisoners of war, common criminals, perpetrators of political "crimes," runaway foreign workers and escaped inmates of Concentration Camps. In addition to this book the Grenzpolizei receives copies of the "Deutsche-Kriminal-Polizei-blatt (Official Gazette of the German Criminal Police), which resembles the Fahndungsbuch but consists merely of several pages as opposed to a large book. This gazette is published whenever a supplement to the Fahndungsbuch is thought necessary. The Grenzpolizei must see that none of the persons thus listed escapes from Reich territory and the clutches of the German Police.

The Grenzpolizei does not deal with Wanted Persons after they have been arrested. If the prisoner is guilty of an ordinary crime, he, or she, is handed over to the nearest Kripo Headquarters; if accused of a political or military crime or of espionage he is passed on to the Gestapo. All further investigation and prosecution then becomes the task of the branch concerned.

There are two other border control organisations, the Zollkontrolle or Zollpolizei (Customs Control) and the Verstärkter Grenzaufwachtdienst (VGAD: Reinforced Frontier Control), which are both classified as Sonderpolizei (Special Police) and come under the authority of the Reichsfinanzministerium (RFM: Reich Ministry of Finance). Their respective duties are to exercise customs control over passenger and goods traffic and to provide an armed patrol service all along the borders. However, under the Decree of 8 May, 1937, the Gestapo, and through it the Grenzpolizei, is given authority to override the powers of the Reich Ministry of Finance on matters of border control and to issue orders and directives to the Zollkontrolle and the VGAD. Close cooperation therefore exists between these two services and the Grenzpolizei. It is reported, for instance, that the Grenzpolizei does not normally carry out any personal searches. Persons suspected of espionage or sabotage are as a rule handed over to the Customs Control officials who, ostensibly acting in their normal capacity, carry out a search and report the results to their colleagues of the Grenzpolizei. If necessary, action is then taken by the Frontier Police: the suspects are detained and handed over to the Kripo or Gestapo, according to circumstances. These Customs Control officials are Civil Servants stationed like the Frontier Police at all principal frontier crossings.

The VGAD, a strongly militarised organisation whose cooperation with the Frontier Police consists especially in the task of apprehending wanted persons all along the borders of Germany, is a Nazi innovation. It made its first appearance during the occupation of Austria and was undoubtedly planned in anticipation of war. Since then the VGAD has greatly expanded and some of its units are attached to the Armed Forces as guards for operational and rear areas.

The Zollkontrolle and VGAD are in practice closely controlled by the Gestapo as far as their functions and tactical employment is concerned, although they are administered by the Reich Finance Authorities. Their cooperation with the Gestapo is directed and controlled by three Generalinspektoren (Inspectors-General) known as:

Generalinspekteur I (Ost—East) in Posen

Generalinspekteur II (Südost—South-east) in Dresden

Generalinspekteur III (West) in Koblenz

These Generalinspektoren are attached to Amt IV of the RSHA and are responsible for liaison with the Reich Ministry of Finance.

Another organisation for the protection of frontiers made its appearance in the West in the latter part of 1944. It is known as the Grenzschutz (Frontier Protection Service). Its personnel is recruited from Customs Officials, but the organisation was taken away from the control of the Finance Authorities and incorporated into the Sipo.

The Grenzschutz is organised in companies (of approximately 100–120 men), platoons and sections. It operates by patrols and fixed posts; house-searches may also be carried out. The Grenzschutz is authorised to fire on anyone who resists or attempts to escape. It is to assist the Army in securing the frontier known as the "Vordere Sperrlinie West," which does not necessarily coincide with the Army front line. The Grenzschutz is an independent organisation belonging to the Sipo and is therefore not subordinate to the Army, which cannot call upon its assistance except in emergencies. The men of the Grenzschutz are ordered not to leave their posts without orders from their superiors, except when the Army moves its own front line further to the rear.

106. Postüberwachungsdienst (Postal Censorship)

In democratic countries censorship of letters does not exist in peace-time. Even in war-time such intrusions into the private rights of the individual are at best regarded as a necessary evil and limited to safeguarding information that might be of use to the enemy, but in Germany such considerations of civil liberties are no longer permitted to interfere with measures for the maintenance of Nazi power. Postal censorship has therefore become a regular police function.

It is a widely known fact that such censorship, based on the 1933 Decree for the Protection of People and Government, was put into operation immediately after the Advent to Power. Details of the early organisation of this control, however, are not available. As previously mentioned (in para. 85) some of the functions of censorship may originally have been carried out by the Verwaltungspolizei in cooperation with the postal authorities, but the system has, since 1933, expanded so enormously that censorship can no longer be regarded as an administrative function; it has become instead a powerful instrument for the subjugation of the German people.

Theoretically certain limitations on the power of the censorship have been imposed, but they are neutralised by so many clauses open to almost any interpretation that it seems futile to discuss them. In practice censorship by the German Security Police is limited only by the machinery and personnel at its disposal. In order to "legalise" a purely extra-legal function of this kind German

[REDACTED]

Police authorities again stress the principle of crime prevention and point to the responsibility of the Staatsschutzkorps for protecting the German People against all political and criminal attacks.

Three types of censorship of communications must be distinguished: inside Germany and occupied countries, to and from foreign countries and to and from the Armed Forces. All three types include the control of every means of communication, postal censorship being, of course, the largest and the most important task.

Originally the Police took over only the censorship inside Germany and occupied countries and there are reasons to believe that this merely took on the form of "snap checks" against specific persons who were politically or otherwise suspected. On 30 June 1938, it was decreed (MBliV—Ministerialblatt für die innere Verwaltung—p. 1087/38) that the sole authority for official violation of the privacy of personal communications rests with the Geheime Staatspolizei and, through it, with the Stapo-Leitstellen. This decree was amended on 19 Mar. 1943 giving the same authority to the Reichskriminalpolizei and the Kripo-Leitstellen, but pointing out the technical difficulties which are in the way of postal and other censorship against specific persons. It appears, therefore, that no large-scale machinery was set up inside the country to control all mail and other private communications. Man-power shortage in war-time has probably added to the difficulties and has most likely forced the Kripo and Gestapo to limit themselves to the control of a relatively small amount of letters and to specific instances only.

Mail to and from foreign countries is censored at the Auslands-Briefprüfstellen (Censorship offices for Foreign Mail) which were as far as can be ascertained set up and controlled, until the summer of 1944, by the former Abwehr, the Military Intelligence. Thirteen of these offices have been identified, 6 of them located in the old Reich, one in Austria and the others in occupied countries. They control 100 per cent of the letters and telegrams to and from foreign countries. It is not clearly established, yet it is likely, that the Gestapo and the Kripo in the absence of any censorship machinery of their own also made use of these Briefprüfstellen, by indicating specific cases for observation and report.

Up to summer, 1944, Briefprüfstellen were centrally controlled by Section III N of the old Abwehr. When the latter was dissolved, Section III N was taken over by Amt IV of the RSHA and was, under the new organisation of Amt IV, merged with the Hilfsreferat IV A 3 d. Thus, at least since June, 1944, censorship of mail and telegrams in Germany, with the exception of military mail, is completely in the hands of the Gestapo, which set up for this purpose an office known as the Zentrale für die Auslands-Briefprüfstellen (ZABP—Central Censorship Office). This office, and under it the local censorship offices, report or hand over to the local Gestapo and Kripo headquarters any suspicious material. They also comply with the directives and specific requests of the central and regional HQ of the Gestapo and Kripo.

Military mail in Germany is not dealt with by the censorship discussed above but by the Army field post organisation, which has separate agencies directly maintained by the military authorities. Since, however, the functions of the Abwehr (Military Intelligence) have been almost completely taken over by the RSHA, it is probable that the Sicherheitspolizei now exercises some sort of control over military mail also. Practical experience and documentary evidence, however, seem to indicate that censorship of letters written by members of the German Armed Forces is not very rigid or effective, and in many instances information contained in letters violates the basic rules of military security.

107. Concentration Camps

The ruthless methods of the Nazi Police are most apparent in the workings of the Concentration Camps, where the Gestapo imitation of the Inquisition rises to its climax. As already explained the Nazi interpretation of the term Schutzhaft (protective custody) means the temporary or permanent detention of persons a large proportion of whom have never been legally tried or sentenced by a Court of Law. Protective custody has also been extended to include persons who have served their term of imprisonment according to the sentence awarded by a Court, but are further detained by order of the Gestapo (Secret State Police, the Kripo (Criminal Police), the SD (Security Service) or the Geheime Feldpolizei (Secret Field Police). It is in the Konzentrationslager (officially abbreviated in Germany by the letters KL, but popularly referred to as KZ—Concentration Camps) that such persons are detained.

Actual detention orders appear to be issued as follows:—

- (a) The Kripo handles cases involving Berufs- or Gewohnheitsverbrecher (Professional or Habitual Criminals).
- (b) The Gestapo deals with all "political" criminals.
- (c) The Geheime Feldpolizei (GFP—Secret Field Police), as sister organisation of the Gestapo within the Armed Forces, may in some instances, through the Gestapo, submit civilians as well as soldiers for detention.

It is not likely that the SD issues direct detention orders. Instead that branch probably submits its findings to the Gestapo with a recommendation for the subject's removal to a Concentration Camp.

To effect the release of an inmate from a Concentration Camp, approval must be obtained from the Gestapo and Kripo, and the SD is almost certainly consulted as well.

The number of Concentration Camps in Germany and occupied countries has risen constantly and runs into hundreds at the present time. All available information on them, especially on their administration and chain of command, has been published in E.D.S./G/6: "German Concentration Camps." Within the scope of the present book it is only possible to mention briefly the links between the Concentration Camps and the various branches of the German Police.

In paragraph 2, sub-para. 4, of the statutory regulation amplifying the decree regarding the Secret State Police, issued 10 Feb 1936, it is stated that the Gestapo-Amt is entrusted with the administration of the Government Concentration Camps. The bulk of the Concentration Camp guards, however, were not drawn from the Gestapo or any other German Police branch, but were recruited from the Allgemeine-SS and became known as the SS Totenkopf-Verbände (SS-Death's Head Units), notorious for their ruthlessness and brutality. Their Chief, SS-OGF Theodor EICKE was made Inspekteur der Konzentrationslager (Inspector of Concentration Camps) and as such was directly responsible to HIMMLER. It was stated in 1940 that this Inspekteur and his office were in charge of all direction and administration of the camps. In 1941 EICKE, took command of the Waffen-SS Panzer Division "Totenkopf," and was succeeded as Inspekteur of the KL's by SS-GF, Genlt. d. W-SS, Richard GLÜCKS. (EICKE was killed on the Eastern Front in 1943.)

As the war progressed and the manpower shortage in Germany became more acute, the SS realised the great value of the slave labour held in Concentration Camps; the exploitation of this labour naturally entailed an increasing amount of administrative work for the SS. All the economic administration of SS and Police was, from 1941 on, concentrated in the Wirtschafts- u. Verwaltungshauptamt of the SS (SS-WVHA—SS Economic and Administrative Department), which among other Offices took over the Hauptamt Haushalt und Bauten (Department of Budget and Buildings) of the Police.

In 1942 the office of Inspekteur der Konzentrationslager was abolished and its functions transferred to the WVHA; GLÜCKS became Chief of Amtsgruppe D, Führung und Verwaltung der Konzentrationslager (Supervision and Administration of KL's) in the WVHA.

It appears that since then all administrative and economic matters concerning Concentration Camps have been handled by Amtsgruppe D. Further details concerning the WVHA and its link with the Concentration Camps will be found in E.D.S./G/8, "The Allgemeine SS."

This change in the administration of the Camps leaves to the Gestapo merely the supervision of KL inmates and political control over the KLs. Exact details are not known and it is likely that even this responsibility for political control is shared with the SD. This control appears to be exercised through the Political Commissar in each camp, who according to reports, is a member of the political section of the Stapo(-Leit-)stelle in whose area the Concentration Camp is located.

108. The Secret Field Police.

At the outbreak of war the OKW organised a police force, the Geheime Feldpolizei (GFP—Secret Field Police), to serve with the Armed Forces. It was conceived as a counterpart to the Gestapo,—which furnished much of the GFP's executive personnel—and was principally designed to carry out security work in the field, as the executive agent of the Security Department (Abwehr, or Section Ic) of the Wehrmacht.

The Geheime Feldpolizei should not be confused with the Feldgendarmarie (mentioned in para 55) which corresponds to the British or American Corps of Military Police, and is concerned solely with disciplinary matters within the Armed Forces.

Since the GFP is primarily a military organisation it will only be mentioned briefly in so far as it comes within the scope of this handbook.

The German GFP Field Manual defines the principal functions of the GFP as follows:—

- (a) The prevention and discovery of espionage and other offences against security in the German Armed Forces as well as of all other military or civilian tendencies and actions within the zone of operations, which may be hostile to the Nazi State. Special emphasis is placed on the prevention and prosecution of sabotage, demoralising propaganda and rumour-mongering. This work includes the control of identity papers, travel permits and supervision of all civilian movement in forward and rear areas.
- (b) The prevention of civilians from joining in an action against the occupying forces.
- (c) The execution of all security measures within forward and rear zones of operation. The GFP also acts in an advisory capacity to all officers dealing with military intelligence and security.

UNCLASSIFIED

- (d) The recording of persons suitable to act as agents.
- (e) The execution of all Security Police tasks not within the field of action of the Feldgendarmarie (Military Police).
- (f) The briefing of all military HQ and the issuing of directives on questions affecting military security.
- (g) All other functions of military intelligence in co-operation with, and according to instructions from, MI HQ and officers.

The Secret Field Police, however, have never had jurisdiction over matters within the field of the Sipo and SD. Like the Gestapo, the Secret Field Police may arrest civilians without court orders. They may also arrest personnel of the Armed Forces, but in such instances are directed to obtain the formal consent of the soldier's superior officer whenever possible. In cases of emergency, the GFP may call on the services of the Feldgendarmarie.

The GFP maintains close co-operation at all times with the Ic/AO (Abwehroffizier—CI Officer) of the Intelligence Section of the Armed Forces and with all units and Headquarters. As a rule one Gruppe (group) of the GFP is attached to each Army and Air Fleet, but detachments of this group may be assigned to lower echelons.

Personnel of the Secret Field Police are furnished with identity papers which enable them to enter any military building, pass through any barrier of restricted area and to use all military channels of communications and transport as well as all billeting and supply facilities.

Most of the executive personnel and officers of the GFP are furnished by the Gestapo, although some have been drawn from the Kripo and even from various branches of the Orpo. The remainder of the Secret Field Police personnel, however, is recruited to some extent on a less selective basis from regular Army and Air Force units. Theoretically all members of the GFP are chosen for special qualifications such as knowledge of languages and travel experience abroad and for ability to deal with people. In practice, however, it is reported that GFP personnel is of rather poor calibre.

Originally co-operation between the Gestapo and the GFP was strongly emphasised, but the importance of the GFP has gradually dwindled in proportion to the growth of power of the combined Sipo and SD. Since the GFP was dependent for its funds, equipment and facilities on the Military Intelligence Department of the OKW it was never able to compete with the vastly superior resources of the RSHA.

The original clause denying the GFP jurisdiction over matters within the field of the Sipo came to be interpreted so generously in favour of the RSHA that the GFP was in practice deprived of much of its power.

Finally, during the course of 1942, most of the functions as well as the units of the GFP were officially taken over by the Sipo and SD, and the remaining units of the GFP were reduced to a small field security corps of the Armed Forces. Personnel of the GFP transferred to the Sipo and SD who had not previously been members of the SS, received SS ranks equivalent to their former position and the GFP insignia worn on shoulder straps were removed.

Thus, like most of the other agencies and functions of military intelligence, the Geheime Feldpolizei is now largely controlled by HIMMLER's police system. Not only are the Armed Forces now dependent on the Sipo and SD for their intelligence information (see para. 137), but at the same time HIMMLER is enabled to keep a close watch over the activities of Army Personnel.

C. THE KRIPO

109. Criminal Police : General

It has been pointed out that the Geheime Staatspolizei is in every respect a Nazi innovation. On the surface it might not appear true to say the same of the Kriminalpolizei (Kripo—Criminal Police). Functionally such an organisation has long existed in Germany, as in all other countries, but a good deal of its organisation was left to the various Länder and even to individual police authorities, who established, according to local needs, headquarters and agencies for combatting crime. As a rule these offices worked in close co-operation with the Staatliche Polizei (State Police) or Gemeindepolizei (Municipal Police). Upon more careful study, however, it becomes apparent that the German Criminal Police of today cannot simply be regarded as a continuation of the former agencies for the investigation and prosecution of common crime. In official publications the Nazis clearly state that the fulfilment of the tasks of the Criminal Police can no longer be the responsibility of a number of independent, decentralised headquarters.

The Gestapo was charged with the ruthless suppression of all opposition and dissension in order to preserve and strengthen the power of the Nazi State and the Party Machine. In a parallel fashion the Kripo was called upon to become a guardian of the national "strength" as interpreted by the Nazis. Its task in general remains the combatting of "ordinary" crime, but again it must be remembered that the interpretation of the word "crime" has been adapted to suit Nazi ideas. Just as the Gestapo has become the agency for the prevention of political and so-called political acts opposed or inconvenient to the Nazi state, so the Kripo deals in an increasing measure with the prevention of crimes considered to be a menace to the German "People," i.e. to the Nazi regime. Thus, the Kripo has become the second branch of the Staatsschutzkorps (Combined Force for the Protection of the State, consisting of the Gestapo, the Kripo, and the SD).

110. Functions of the Kripo

The principal functions of the Criminal Police in any country are the discovery, investigation and prosecution of crime; theoretically these are also the functions of the German Criminal Police as will be seen from the breakdown of Amt V given later. A general picture of Kripo functions is given in the following official German outline of the work of the RKPA in Berlin:—

- (i) Standardisation of criminological methods and equipment;
- (ii) Application of the results of research and experience in the field of crime detection and prevention;
- (iii) Criminological training of all officials;
- (iv) Policy and legislation;
- (v) Centralisation of the machinery of identification, registration, surveillance and searches for wanted persons;
- (vi) Maintenance of central indexes for all categories of criminals;
- (vii) Actual intervention in important criminal cases.

But the Germans themselves make it very plain that it would be completely misleading to regard the Kripo as an ordinary Police Force for combatting crime; this is merely one of the functions of the German Criminal Police.

As previously mentioned the Kripo has become one of the three branches of the "Staatsschutzkorps." As such it must make it its duty to protect not merely public safety in the face of crime, but beyond that, to strengthen and safeguard the German "Nation" as conceived by the National Socialist régime.

To endow the German Criminal Police with the necessary powers to carry out these functions the Nazis have emphasised the importance of crime prevention: this means that in addition to the discovery and arrest of criminals, the Kripo tracks down and even detains potential criminals. The Gestapo had received its unlimited "hunting licence" on the theory of the "unwritten law"; the Kripo derived its extra-legal powers from the flexibility of the term "Verbrechens-Vorbeugung" (Crime Prevention). In the hands of a democratic government the theory of crime prevention is sound and justifiable, and is closely linked with social improvements. To assume that the term can be applied in a similar manner to Germany would be dangerously misleading, for the Nazis, with their usual sense of propaganda values, have readily adopted a word connoting progress and humanitarian measures as a cover for totalitarian Police power. Thus a term which, under democracy represents educational reform and social reconstruction, in Germany stands for Concentration Camps, enforced sterilisation and ruthless persecution or even elimination of innocent, but, to the Nazis, undesirable people.

In order to devise a practicable theory of crime prevention the Nazis have constantly had recourse to pseudo-scientific biological and racial myths fashioned to suit their intentions. According to their philosophy the "Untermenschentum" (i.e. the dregs of humanity) "the diseased bloodstream within the German People," must be segregated. To this end, Chemistry, Biology and Medicine have been distorted by the German Criminal Police to provide grounds for ascribing criminal tendencies to members of entire "racial" groups or minorities. Armed with these doctrines the new German Criminal Police takes its place beside the Gestapo to deal with elements regarded as anti-social by the Nazis, but not dealt with as political "criminals" by the Secret State Police. Indeed, to the unity of purpose between these two branches of the Staatsschutzkorps is added close co-operation and an interchangeability of personnel. Men of the Kripo and Gestapo receive fundamentally the same training and are united by their common membership of the SS. Instances are even known where officials hold simultaneously positions in both Gestapo and Kripo. A practical example of the close relationship between the two branches of the Sipo is given by captured Kripo reports on the political morale of the population in Lorraine (Lageberichte). Even though reports of this kind would obviously be within the jurisdiction of the Gestapo, they were in these instances drawn up by the local Kripo headquarters. Clearly the Kripo could not possibly discharge such functions, had it not at its disposal a system of Police observers, spies and informers very similar to that of the Gestapo.

Perhaps most typical of the new conception of Kripo functions is the emphasis placed on the importance of those Kripo officials whose work brings them closest to the population, namely the Criminal Police officials in the Reviere (precincts or wards). Directives state that such an official is to be shifted as little as possible ; he must become familiar with all persons residing within his area ; he must study their habits and observe every detail of their behaviour. He is also directed to employ a maximum number of unofficial informers among the most " trustworthy " of the population. In addition he is ordered to work in constant liaison with the officials of the NSDAP, the Blockleiter and the Zellenwarter (Nazi Party Block and Cell Wardens). Obviously a system of spies and informers of this kind by far exceeds all normal needs for combatting crime ; it shows clearly the true character of the Kripo as partner of the Gestapo in the service of the Nazi régime.

111. Organisation of Amt V of the RSHA

In 1936, in order to align the Criminal Police branch with the centralised organisation of the newly-created Sicherheitspolizei, HIMMLER combined those sections of the Reich Ministry of the Interior which handled Criminal Police matters with the Preussisches Landeskriminalamt (Prussian State Criminal Police HQ) to form the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt (RKPA), which then became part of the Hauptamt Sicherheitspolizei. In 1939 the RKPA was included into the newly-formed Reichssicherheitshauptamt, where it became Amt V, Verbrechenbekämpfung (Combatting of Crime). Thus Amt V is today the head office of the entire Criminal Police organisation in Germany. It was located in Berlin C 2 at Werderschermarkt 5-6, but has, as a result of Allied air attacks moved partly or completely to other locations.

Amt V is divided into Gruppen (Sections) designated by capital letters, e.g. Gruppe V A: Kriminalpolitik und Vorbeugung (Crime Investigation Policy and Crime Prevention). There are four regular Gruppen lettered A—D, but additional sections may have been established. Thus, for instance, the existence of Section F, probably for finance, has been confirmed, but it need not follow that there is a Gruppe E.

Each Gruppe is divided into a varying number of Referate (sub-sections) designated by Arabic numerals ; for example, Referat V B 1 handles Kapital- verbrechen (Capital Crimes). The Referat may again be divided into any number of Hilfsreferate (sub-sectional units) designated by small letters ; for example, V B 1 c indicates the Reichszentrale für Vermisste und Unbekannte Tote (Central Reich Bureau for missing persons and unidentified corpses).

In the tabulation given in the next paragraph an attempt is made to show the internal structure of Amt V. This breakdown of functions and offices is not available in toto in any original document, but has been assembled from a number of German documents and other sources. Whenever there was a high degree of probability but no absolute proof that a sub-section existed, the sub-section in question has been marked with an asterisk(*). If information concerning some of the sections and sub-sections could not be tabulated, an explanatory paragraph indicating the degree of reliability of the information has been added instead. While this tabulation can be regarded as a conclusive overall picture of the organisation of Amt V, it cannot, of course, lay claim to absolute accuracy or completeness. Wherever possible the original German phraseology has been preserved. At the same time an attempt has been made to combine an accurate translation with an interpretation of functions wherever this seemed necessary.

It should be noted that before the incorporation of the Criminal Police into the RSHA in 1939 the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt, used a different system of designation for its sections and sub-sections. The Gruppen (Sections) then referred to as Abteilungen, were designated by Roman numerals, ranging from I—III ; the Referate were designated by the Roman numeral of the Abteilung followed by a capital letter indicating the Referat : for instance, I A was the Referat handling most of the internal administration. The Hilfsreferate (sub-sectional units) were designated by the addition of an Arabic numeral, thus for instance I A 3 indicated the sub-sectional unit handling registry and administrative office routine. Since it is highly improbable that any application of this system will still be encountered except perhaps in documents of purely historical interest this obsolete numbering system has not been included.

112. Structure of Amt V

The official heading of Amt V of the RSHA is Verbrechenbekämpfung (Combatting of Crime) ; it is organised as follows :—

Geschäftsstelle (Administration Office)

Personalangelegenheiten	Personnel matters	Dienstbetrieb der Amtsgehilfen	Routine for office employees
Innerer Geschäftsbetrieb	Internal office organisation	Dauerdienst	Roster for 24 hour duty
Geschäftsverteilungs- und Aktenplan	Distribution of work and standard filing system	Fernschreiber	Teleprinter room
Raumbedarf und Verteilung	Assignment of office space
Registrierung	Registry
Kanzlei	Secretariat

In general the Geschäftsstelle contains all those sections dealing with the immediate administration of personnel and office routine. The more important and long range aspects of administration and personnel, however, have been shifted to Ämter I and II following the reorganisation of the Reichssicherheitshauptamt.

Ausländerbesuch (Gegebenenfalls Beteiligung an Dienststellen)	Visits of foreigners and, where arising, their participation in work at Police HQ)
*Festnahme von Ausländern	Arrest of foreigners (see also V A 2)

This Hilfsreferat may contain a great number of other sections not specifically mentioned above, but handling work of a similar nature. It may be assumed that, especially in wartime, co-operation between the German Criminal Police and the corresponding Police branches of the various satellite nations has considerably increased the work in this direction.

V A 1 c

Kriminalforschung	Criminal Research
Kriminalbiologie	Criminal Biology
Statistik	Statistics
Statistische Erfassung von Plünderungen	Statistics of looting and plundering
Polizeiliche Kriminalstatistik	Crime Statistics
Kriminalität der Ausländer usw.	Crimes committed by foreigners etc.

*Kriminalistik	Criminalistics
*Kriminalrassenkunde	Research into racial theories of criminology
*Kriminalberatung	Advice in criminal matters
*Auswertung alles eingehenden Forschungsmaterial des In- und Auslandes	Exploitation of detailed research material received from home and abroad

Hilfsreferat V A 1 c, in line with its interest in criminology and racial studies, also deals with such subjects as criminal biological Sippenforschung (study of heredity and eugenics). It also appears to co-operate in the investigation of suicide or attempted suicide, but in such instances will probably work in conjunction with the Kriminaltechnisches Institut (see Gruppe V D). It also seems likely that V A 1 c deals with the statistical, documentary and theoretical aspects of such matters, leaving the Kriminaltechnisches Institut to do the actual scientific research and analysis.

In addition, this Hilfsreferat is reported to handle certain aspects of polizeiliche planmäßige Überwachung (systematic and routine Police supervision).

V A 2

Vorbeugung (Prevention)

V A 2 a	Preventive measures against professional, habitual and pathological criminals.
Vorbeugungsmassnahmen gegen Berufs-, Gewohnheits- und Triebverbrecher
V A 2 b	Preventive measures against anti-social elements, prostitutes and gypsies
Vorbeugungsmassnahmen gegen Asoziale, Prostituierte und Zigeuner
Reichszentrale zur Bekämpfung des Zigeunerwesens	Central Bureau for the suppression of gypsies

Hilfsreferat V A 2 b deals with police measures against prostitution, the availability of gypsies for military service, their admission to state schools, and their employment in peace and war-time industry. It is known that in several instances reports on the arrest of foreigners were handled by V A 2, but this probably does not indicate a shift of functions from Hilfsreferat V A 1 b to V A 2. Instead it seems that such reports are made to V A 2 in conjunction with that section's measures against so-called anti-social elements, here applied to undesirable foreigners.

* See para. 111

V A 3

Weibliche Kriminalpolizei (Criminal Police—Women's branch)
Organisation und Einsatz Organisation and employment
Reichszentrale zur Bekämpfung der Jugendkriminalität Central Reich Bureau for combatting juvenile delinquency
Jugendarrest Arrest of juveniles
Jugendstrafrecht Juvenile Penal Code
Polizeiliche Jugendschutzlager Police reformatory and penal camps for juveniles

It appears that all matters of juvenile delinquency are handled by V A 3. The subject matter dealt with in this Referat is almost unlimited. It includes such items as arrest of juveniles for violation of traffic and railway regulations, transfer of youths into Polen-Jugendverwahrlager (Internment Camps for Polish youths) and many other related matters. It furthermore deals with collaboration between the Police and the Hitler Youth in matters of juvenile delinquency.

V A 4

It appears that this Referat has been added to the organisation of Ami V at a comparatively late date. Its official designation is not known at present, but its functions seem to be the following:—

Polizeiliche An- und Abmeldung Registration with the Police on taking up or giving up residence
Standesamtliche Mitteilungen und deren Auswertung Information (personal, marital and family status) from the civil registrars, and its exploitation
Jahrgangsregister Erfassung Register of age groups
 Collation

These Hilfsreferate may contain extensive files and character references (see also V A 1 a), and as a result they supply the necessary information for controlling bombed-out people and other persons making forced or voluntary changes of residence

- Originally Referat VC 1 with its Hilfsreferate a-f was made up of the Reichserkennungsdienstzentrale (Central Identification Bureau) in addition to the Fahndung. Since the Identification Bureau, however, had to work in extremely close liaison with the Kriminaltechnisches Institut (KTI—Criminological Institute) for many of its investigations, numerous instances arose of duplication and overlapping of functions. To remedy this situation, and at the same time, to save man-power, the functions of the Reichserkennungsdienstzentrale were merged with the KTI, and will be discussed in further detail in Gruppe D below.

The Kriegsfahndungszentrale was originally contained in Hilfsreferat VC 2 k, (q.v.) but with the steadily increasing tasks which fell on this sub-section as the war continued, it underwent important changes and was expanded enormously. In 1942 it was shifted to Referat VC 1. This particular change may possibly have been decided on in anticipation of the transfer of the Reichserkennungsdienstzentrale out of Gruppe VC into Gruppe VD.

Among the less obvious functions of VC 1 b is liaison and co-operation of the Kripo with units of the NSKK (National Socialist Motor Corps), and other Party formations.

Referat VC 3 is probably a later addition to Amt V. Apart from the details above, it seems to handle the listing of illegal products and merchandise as well as the names and addresses of their manufacturers and distributors. Among the lists kept and issued by VC 3 for instance, are those of illegal drugs for purposes of birth control and abortion. This work (possibly done by VC 3 b) has perhaps been added to the Gruppe handling Fahndung, because, in a wider sense, it deals with the search, identification and apprehension of makers of and dealers in all types of illegally manufactured goods.

The collection of photographs in the Lichtbildstelle probably also contains files of trade marks, samples of materials, and other matter useful for the identification of stolen property. Formerly this collection was maintained by Hilfsreferat V C 1 e, which ceased to exist when the Reichserkennungsdienstzentrale was abolished and its functions taken over by the KTI.

Gruppe V F

This Gruppe was not originally part of Amt V, but appears to have been added later. Its exact functions and details of its organisation are not available, but documentary evidence seems to indicate that among its functions are payment of fees and rewards as well as of extraordinary expenses. The existence of two Referate within this Gruppe, namely V F 1 and V F 2, has been definitely established. V F 1 seems to deal in particular with payment of fines and possibly also of damage and insurance claims in case of accidents. Referat V F 2 may handle the payment of special fees, awards and expenses incurred in the course of actions such as searches and raids.

At first glance the letter F designating this Gruppe does not seem to fit into the organisation of Amt V, but it may have been chosen to indicate that this department handles Finanzen (Financial matters).

Gruppe V Wi

Wirtschaftsverbrechen—(Criminal acts against the National Economy)

A recently received document mentions the existence of a Gruppe V Wi, which may have been formed to cope with increasing economic offences during wartime. Whether this section has been added as an independent Gruppe to those already existing in Amt V is not known. It is possible, however, that it represents either an expansion of, or a substitute for, Hilfsreferate V B 2 b and V B 2 f.

Certain items in the foregoing tabulation of Amt V, namely the IKPK, the Female Criminal Police, the Reichszentralen and the files maintained by the Kripo and the scientific institute, deserve amplification. They are dealt with in the next five paragraphs.

113. International Criminal Police Commission

In order to prosecute international criminals, an International Criminal Police Commission was created in Paris in 1923. It was originally known as the Commission Internationale de la Police Criminelle, but after 1940 the Nazis managed to dominate the Commission and moved its headquarters first to Vienna and later to Berlin. Reinhard HEYDRICH became its first German President. After his death, KALTENBRUNNER succeeded him, and it was agreed that the Chief of the Sipo would in future also hold the position of President of the Internationale Kriminalpolizeiliche Kommission (IKPK). Until recently the Vice-Presidency of the Commission was held by SS-GF, Genlt. d. Pol. Artur NEBE, who was also head of Amt V of the RSHA. SS-SF Dr. Karl ZINDEL is the chairman of the IKPK and the former Police Vice-President of Vienna, Dr. Bruno SCHULTZ, is its permanent Secretary. The latter is at the same time the Treasurer of the Commission, as well as Chief Editor of the publication "Internationale Kriminalpolizei," a technical journal issued in five languages. In 1944 Regierungsdirektor Dr. DRESSLER was appointed Generalsekretär of the IKPK. It is not quite clear whether he thus replaces SCHULTZ.

German personnel employed by the Commission are administered by Ämter I and II and receive directives for their work from Amt V of the RSHA.

The commission maintains extensive files of international crimes and criminals, and their photographs and fingerprints. These collections are located in the Internationales Büro (IB—International Bureau) under the Chief of the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt.

At present the Headquarters of the IKPK are located at Berlin-Wannsee, Am Kleinen Wannsee 16; these offices are linked with the Sipo telephone and teleprinter network.

From the preceding outline it is evident that the use of the term "international" is misleading since the IKPK is completely dominated by the German Police. At present the activities of the Commission are probably concerned with the control of the Criminal Police Departments in the various satellite nations.

114. Female Criminal Police

The Weibliche Kriminalpolizei (WKP—Female Criminal Police) has always been in existence, but it was reorganised towards the end of 1935. Its main functions have been shown in the preceding tabulation of Amt V: in more detail its functions are as follows:—

- (i) General assistance in crime detection.
- (ii) The registration and supervision of children and female minors, who are exposed to criminal and immoral influences. (This comes under the heading of general crime prevention).
- (iii) Initiation of educational and welfare measures for persons whose cases become known to the Kripo.
- (iv) The handling of all incoming reports on children and female juveniles, and in certain instances adults.
- (v) Assistance on all criminal investigations, especially in questioning and searching children, minors, and in some instances female adults.
- (vi) Assistance in Kripo activities pertaining to crime prevention among women in general.

The WKP forms a separate office within Kripo (Leit-Stellen) (Regional and sub-regional Kripo Headquarters) which is exclusively under female direction. These Sonderdienststellen (Special Offices) are directly subordinate to the Chief of the Kripo (Leit-Stelle) and are not attached to any other department within the headquarters. A WKP office is usually headed by a Kriminalkommissarin or by an acting "Leitende Beamtin" (Directing Woman Officer).

The original decree explaining the functions of the WKP specifically points out that its personnel may also be employed in cases which are really under the jurisdiction of the Gestapo and the Orpo. Beyond that women in the service of the Kripo may, on their own initiative, submit their observations and experiences to the interested departments of the Gestapo.

Personnel of the WKP are not issued with a uniform, but wear civilian clothes. They are unarmed, but are trained in the handling of weapons.

A directive states that, in addition to their regular police functions, the WKP shall in some instances take the place of, or assist the various welfare organisations, especially in localities where Party organisations such as the NS-Volkswohlfahrt (National Socialist Welfare Organisation), or the Hitler Youth Movement are incapable of reaching every member of the population.

115. Reichszentralen (Central Reich Bureaux)

The existence and function of Reichszentralen (Central Reich Bureaux) have been shown in the previous tabulation of Amt V of the RSHA. These Bureaux have been established to enable the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt to cope with the great variety of Criminal Police activities with a higher degree of efficiency. While a centralised treatment of Criminal Police matters is essential in the lower echelons of the Kripo, the opposite, namely a logical division of this complicated work is desirable at the Reich Headquarters. In particular, the Reichszentralen in their functions of combatting "all anti-social" elements are charged with a twofold task: to collect all information on their specialised fields of activity and to carry out research on such material with a view to its practical application by the lower Kripo headquarters, to whom the results of research are disseminated.

In special instances, where a criminal operates over a wide area covered by more than one Regional Headquarters of the Kripo the competent Reichszentrale is fully authorised and even required to take an active and executive hand in his apprehension. For this purpose the Reichszentralen maintain a staff of executive officials consisting of highly trained Criminal Police personnel. The number of personnel employed by each Reichszentrale varies according to the importance of the work handled.

The Reichszentralen fit into the pattern of Amt V of the RSHA and details of each one will be found in para. 112. A Reichszentrale has been identified as dealing with matters under each of the following broad headings (designations in brackets refer to the section of Amt V concerned):—

- Gypsies (V A 2 b)
- Juvenile delinquency (V A 3)
- Capital crimes (V B 1 a and b)
- Missing persons (V B 1 c)
- Pickpockets (V B 1 d)
- Burglars (V B 1 e)
- General fraud and Art forgeries (V B 2 a)
- Industrial fraud (V B 2 b)
- Bribery and corruption (V B 2 c)
- Gambling (V B 2 d)

Forgeries of money (V B 2 e)
Obscenity (V B 3 a)
White slave traffic (V B 3 b)
Drug traffic (V B 3 c)
Homosexuality and abortion (V B 3 d)
Sex crimes (V B 3 e)
Registration and identification (V C 2 f)

116. Files maintained by the Criminal Police

The preceding tabulation of the organisation of Amt V makes it apparent that many of the sections and sub-sections maintain extensive files and card indexes. No attempt has been made here to present a complete list of these files; not only is their number almost unlimited but many of them are the same as those maintained by the Criminal Police organisation of any country. Nevertheless the existence of a few of the more important files should be mentioned.

Perhaps the most extensive file maintained by the German Criminal Police, and at the same time that of greatest interest for counter intelligence purposes is the Zentrale Fahndungskartei (Central file of Wanted Persons). Its value would be further increased if used in connection with the Reichsspitznamen und Merkmalskartei (Central files of nicknames and distinguishing marks) and the Aufenthaltsermittlungsliste (List of residences and personal whereabouts) as well as the various files of fingerprints and the collection of hand-writings. Beyond that, the Criminal Police maintains files of all types of professional criminals (Verbrecherkartei) arranged according to the 182 different categories of crimes, according to a report of 1939. Many of these files may be of interest; they list for instance all professional criminals formerly or at present detained in concentration camps. Also included are a number of inmates committed to such camps for "political" crimes. Duplicates of these records are held by the Reich Ministry of the Interior.

In 1940 two additional specialised Indexes were started by the Police and probably maintained, at least in part, by the Kripo. The Ermittlungsstelle für Seeleute (Office for tracing seamen) located in Hamburg and a Zentralkartei der Auslandsdeutschen (Central card index of Germans abroad). The latter remained in the offices of the Auslandsorganisation der NSDAP (AO—Organisation for Germans in Foreign Countries) in Berlin-Wilmersdorf, Westfälischestr. 1, but special officials of the Einwohnermeldeamt (Office for the Registration of Residents) were ordered to maintain these records.

The Weibliche Kriminalpolizei maintains an index of all juveniles who have in any way come in contact with the police. This file is known as the Jugendlichenkartei (Card Index of Juveniles), and is located at the Sonderdienststellen of the WKP. In order to facilitate handling, yellow tabs are used for potential criminals, purple tabs for Jewish children, and black tabs for gypsies.

117. Scientific Institutes of the Security Police

The Kriminaltechnisches Institut der Sicherheitspolizei (KTI, also KTJ—the Criminological Institute of the Security Police) was founded late in 1938 for the purpose of handling technical and scientific investigations essential for the discovery and solution of crimes. It gradually became so important that it was later incorporated into Amt V of the RSHA as the independent Referat VD. The Institute is headed by SS-Standartenführer Dr. HEES. Its offices are located in the main building of the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt at Werderscher Markt 5-6 in Berlin, though, according to the latest information Referat VD 1 (Identification of traces, imprints and persons) and Referat VD 3 (Examination of documents) were temporarily transferred to Grambow, near Schwerin, Mecklenburg, late in 1943.

UNCLASSIFIED

The Institute has at its disposal 27 laboratories equipped with the most modern type of apparatus for experiments and research in all branches of criminology, and its staff consists of a number of highly trained scientific experts. The functions of the KTI necessitate specialised departments such as laboratories for the identification of arms and ammunition, every aspect of graphological study and comparison, every means of determining the causes of fires, explosions and other acts of sabotage, as well as detailed chemical and biological analysis of blood, dust and dirt, and every possible clue which might lead to the apprehension of a criminal.

The KTI was also given the task of equipping and organising Kriminaltechnische Untersuchungsstellen (KTU—Criminal Research Branches) at all Kripo-(Leit-) Stellen. For this purpose special training courses were instituted by the KTI. The intensity of these courses can be judged by the fact that it took three years to train forty-three specialists. The courses consist of six weeks of lectures, practical work and experiments and admit 2-3 officials at one time; by the end of 1942 they were most probably discontinued for the duration of the war, but by that time specialists for KTU's had been supplied to all the then existing Kripo-(Leit-) Stellen, with the exception of the following 12:

Augsburg	Frankfurt/O	Weimar
Darmstadt	Saarbrücken	Wilhelmshaven
Dessau	Schneidemühl	Würzburg
Erfurt	Schwerin	Zwickau

In addition to training its own personnel the KTI also provides lectures for all members of the Kripo and possibly even for members of the other branches of the German Police. For this purpose the Institute prepares charts, pictures and training films.

Late in 1942 the Reichserkennungsdienstzentrale (Central Reich Bureau for the identification of criminals) was abolished and its functions were taken over by the KTI; a logical development, since its work could not be efficiently carried out without the aid of the KTI. (For further details see Referat VC 1 in the previous tabulation of Amt V.)

It should be pointed out that the close cooperation between all branches of the German Police is again underlined by the fact that the KTI serves not only the Kripo but the Gestapo and the Orpo as well.

An additional agency in the service of crime prevention and detection is the Kriminalbiologisches Institut der Sipo (Institute of Criminal-biology of the Security Police). A central office of this kind has existed in Germany since 1937. Even earlier, however, in 1924, a collecting station of Criminal biological data had been established in Straubing/Bavaria and later in München by Ministerialrat Prof. Dr. VIERNSTEIN. The science of criminal biology was then further developed by the former Staatssekretär in the Reich Ministry of Justice Dr. FREISLER, who stressed especially its application in cases of juvenile delinquency.

In December, 1941, the Kriminalbiologisches Institut der Sipo was established and became part of the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt. Its offices are located with the KTI at Werderscher Markt 5-6 in Berlin; its staff consists of a number of doctors and medically trained personnel. The specific functions of the Institute are as follows—

- (i) To maintain indexes of all anti-social and criminal "family groups" in Germany.
- (ii) To segregate according to the principles of criminal biology all juveniles who are regarded as harmful to society, and who "necessitate" Police action in the interests of crime prevention.
- (iii) To establish an observation office in co-operation with the Reichsgesundheitsamt (National Health Bureau) in order to compile records from the point of view of criminal biology.
- (iv) To take part in research into the heredity of the German people, and act in an advisory capacity to the National Health Bureau.

Wherever deemed necessary advisory personnel trained by the Institute may be attached to regional Kripo Headquarters.

Throughout Germany Kriminalbiologische Sammelstellen (Collecting stations of information in the field of criminal biology) have been established. By October, 1942, according to a document, such stations had been formed in the following towns:—

München	Köln	Leipzig
Freiburg	Berlin	Halle
Münster	Königsberg	Graz

It seems that many of the functions of the Institute to some extent overlap those of Gruppe V D, the Kriminaltechnisches Institut. Whether the Institute of Criminal Biology has been attached to or incorporated into the KTI is not known and there are no documentary indications for a development in that direction. Nevertheless, it seems safe to assume that the two institutes, if separate, maintain that close co-operation which the nature of their work necessitates.

The Kriminalmedizinisches Zentralinstitut der Sicherheitspolizei (Central Institute of Criminal Medicine of the Security Police) was formed in September, 1943, and incorporated into the Reichskriminalpolizei. Its functions are:—

- (i) Training of replacements for the medical personnel of the SS and Police (this apparently does not include the Waffen-SS).
- (ii) Scientific research and experiment in criminal medicine.
- (iii) Direction and exploitation of all research by other scientific criminal institutes in medical matters.
- (iv) Direction in all matters regarding criminal medicine within the Sipo.
- (v) Medical examination of criminal cases of interest to the Police.
- (vi) Training of Kripo personnel to deal with problems of criminal medicine.

Personnel trained by the Institute may be sent to the Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen as branch representatives or attached to the Kriminaltechnische Untersuchungsstellen. The functions of the Kriminalmedizinisches Institut may also be delegated to faculties of criminal medicine existing at various universities.

The directors of any of the Criminal Institute branches established at the (Leit-) Stellen must be professors of criminology.

As in all the other scientific institutes of the Sipo the Kriminalmedizinisches Institut serves the Gestapo as well as the Orpo, and close co-operation is maintained with all branches of the German Police.

118. Development of the Kripo Regional Network

The Nazi policy of taking over existing Police organisations in Germany and superimposing new structures has been discussed in detail in PARTS ONE and THREE of this book. With regard to the regional organisation of the Criminal Police in Germany this policy resulted in the simultaneous existence of three systems of Criminal Police control until a complete reorganisation of the Kripo was ordered by HIMMLER in 1943. For a clearer understanding of the present organisation a brief outline of the previous system follows.

Headquarters of the Reich Criminal Police were established in most towns containing corresponding headquarters of the Gestapo. The Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen (Kripo Regional and Sub-regional Headquarters) have, since their establishment in 1936, been directly subordinate to the Reichskriminalpolizei, but for administrative purposes, they were, until Oct 1943, attached to the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen of their respective localities. Their offices were therefore located in the Polizei-präsidenten, Polizeidirektionen, or Polizeiamter. For this reason Kripo Leitstellen and Kripo-Stellen would only be found in towns having a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung, and the local Polizeipräsident or -direktor was at the same time the "Chef" of the Kripo-(Leit-)Stelle. Under him the senior Kripo official, known as the Leiter (Chief), was in charge of the actual work and received orders and technical directives from the RKPA.

Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen to which no Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen were allotted formed their own sections devoted exclusively to Criminal Police functions, known as Staatliche Kriminalabteilungen (or, in Bohemia-Moravia, Regierungskriminalabteilungen). These were, unlike the Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen, directly subordinate to the Polizeipräsident, Polizeidirektor or Polizeirat and had only a functional connection with the RKPA and the Reich Criminal Police.

In localities without a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung, the Gemeindepolizei (Municipal Police) took charge of all Criminal Police functions through its own Criminal Police sections known as Gemeinde-Kriminalpolizei-Abteilungen. The size of these headquarters depended largely on local requirements and they varied considerably; at one end of the scale were specialised offices, and at the other end Kripo matters were handled ex-officio by a Gendarm. These Gemeinde-Kriminalpolizei-Abteilungen were supervised by the Leiter of the nearest Kripo-(Leit-)Stelle.

Obviously this administrative dependence and organisational confusion between Reichs-, Staatliche and Gemeinde-Kriminalpolizei was opposed to Nazi principles of centralisation and unification; accordingly in a decree of 7 Sep 1943, HIMMLER ordered a far-reaching reorganisation which completely separated the Criminal Police from the Staatliche and Gemeinde-Polizeiverwaltungen, and incorporated all Criminal Police Headquarters into the structure of the Reichskriminalpolizei.

As a result of this reorganisation Kripo-Leitstellen and -Stellen were made independent headquarters within the chain of command of the Sicherheitspolizei, and the Leiter of the Kripo-(Leit-)Stelle, formerly subordinate, at least administratively, to the local Polizeiverwalter, now merely submits routine reports to him.

All former Staatliche Kriminalabteilungen and Gemeinde-Kriminalpolizei-Abteilungen with an establishment of 10 or more officials were, by this decree, transformed into Aussendienststellen of the Reichskriminalpolizei. As such they are now directly subordinate to the Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen in their particular area. In towns of fewer than 10 Criminal Police officials became Aussenposten (literally Outposts) of the nearest Kripo-(Leit)-Stelle or Aussendienststelle (Branch Office). As a general rule it appears that there were usually 10 or more Kripo officials in communities of over 50,000 inhabitants, and less than ten Kripo officials in towns of less than 50,000 inhabitants. It must be pointed out, however, that this proportion is not based on an original directive or regulation, but has been arrived at as a result of comparative research in a large number of individual instances; it should therefore be regarded merely as a general guide allowing of variations wherever local conditions, such as a concentration of essential industries, proximity to the frontier, or the number of foreign workers, necessitate the establishment of an Aussendienststelle rather than an Aussenposten.

For financial and economic administration (Wirtschaftliche Betreuung) the Kripo are now dependent on the nearest Stapo-(Leit)-Stelle. Appointments to and dismissals from the service, however, have become the responsibility of the Leiter of each Kripo-(Leit)-Stelle.

119. Regional Organisation of the Kripo

Kripo-Leitstellen are usually established at the seats of larger German Länder or Reichsgaue or at the administrative capitals of Prussian Provinces. The head of a Leitstelle usually holds the rank of an Oberregierungs- und Kriminalrat.

Just before the War a Kripo-Leitstelle employed between 150 and 250 persons. These figures may have been somewhat reduced since that time, but on the whole there is no reason to believe that the average number has undergone a substantial change. At present there are 22 Kripo-Leitstellen in existence in Greater Germany. Their functions are as follows:

- (i) Study of information received, and its application to local Kripo problems.
- (ii) Maintenance and compilation of statistics; publication of a Meldeblatt (Official Gazette) furnishing of reports and expert opinions; general advice on criminal matters. To discharge their advisory functions properly, Kripo-Leitstellen maintain Kriminalberatungsstellen, which are offices furnishing information and assistance to the public in all criminal matters. Beyond that the Kriminalberatungsstellen supplement the work of the newspapers, films, and wireless in the education and propaganda tasks of enlightening the public as to the danger of criminal and "asocial" elements.
- (iii) Supervision of all specialised and technical equipment; standardisation of all routine administrative matters, supply, equipment and training. Special emphasis is placed on cooperation between sections and proper liaison with other agencies.
- (iv) Serving as a message centre for all incoming reports and information, as well as a collecting centre for ten-fingerprint records. All material of this nature not concerning the particular district is forwarded to the *Reichskriminalpolizei*amt.
- (v) Taking action in all cases of more than ordinary importance which go beyond the territory and responsibility of one of the lower Kripo headquarters including Kripo-Stellen.

The Nazi concept of the function of the Criminal Police, however, includes far more than the above list of tasks, which must not be regarded as final or exhaustive. The close relationship of Kripo and Gestapo functions, already discussed, must constantly be stressed. In cooperation with the Gestapo the Criminal Police, through its Leitstellen and lower headquarters, may be called upon to discharge any additional duty regarded as necessary for combatting crime and "safeguarding the State."

Kripo-Leitstellen maintain the following files collating information essential to the work in their particular district:

- Criminals and their crimes
- Fingerprints (ten-fingers, single fingerprints, and palm prints)
- Photographs of criminals (Verbrecheralbum—Rogues' Gallery)
- Special distinguishing marks of criminals
- Nicknames and aliases
- Missing Persons
- Wanted Persons.

It is obvious that the larger cities present the most serious problem from the point of view of the Criminal Police. For this reason the Kripo-Leitstellen may attach officials of their staff to the local Polizei-Reviere. There they will work together with the officers and personnel of the Orpo in an attempt to carry the machinery of the Criminal Police down to the lowest possible echelon. In some instances local conditions have made it necessary for the Leitstellen to establish complete Kriminalreviere to function as specialised offices assisting the Regular Police; in Hamburg a variation known as a Kriminalhafenrevier (Harbour Ward or Precinct of the Criminal Police) has been identified. It may be assumed that similar Reviere exist in other German harbour cities.

*Kripo*stellen have been established at the seats of Prussian Regierungsbezirke or at the administrative capitals of smaller German Länder or Reichsgaue; at present there are 44 *Kripo*stellen in existence in Greater Germany. The head of a Stelle usually holds the rank of a Regierungs- und Kriminalrat or Kriminaldirektor. The average *Kripo*stelle is believed to employ 80—120 men, the exact figure depending mainly on local needs.

The relationship between the Kripo-Leitstellen and *Kripo*stellen is more or less the same as that between the equivalent offices of the Gestapo—the Stapoleitstellen and Stapostellen. *Kripo*stellen are not subordinate to Kripo-Leitstellen. They function independently and no executive orders as from a higher to a lower echelon are issued by a Leitstelle to a Stelle. Since, however, *Kripo*stellen are usually located within the larger administrative area of a Leitstelle, a great many instances of overlapping and duplication may arise, as the combatting of crime cannot be tied to any narrow regional limits or boundaries, and the tracking down of criminals can only be effective if a maximum of cooperation exists between the various regional Police headquarters. In the interests of greater efficiency and uniformity of procedure, therefore, the Leitstelle will frequently issue directives and memoranda to the Stellen within its territory. While this function of coordination, even sometimes of direction, is in principle the same as that encountered within the Gestapo, in practice the character of Kripo work, with a constant exchange of information, usually necessitates more detailed and frequent guidance on the part of the Kripo-Leitstellen than is exercised by the Stapo-Leitstellen. However, the Kripo-Leitstelle never functions as a superior Command Headquarters to the Stelle, and a large measure of independence given to *Kripo*stellen is repeatedly stressed in German official publications as being necessary for the effective fulfilment of their functions.

Kripstellen maintain the same categories of files as the Leitstellen, but on a smaller scale and covering their immediate territories only. Whenever the information contained in these files is deemed insufficient the Stelle may call upon the more detailed data kept in the files of the Leitstelle. Similarly the Kripstelle may request the temporary attachment of additional personnel from the larger headquarters in special instances requiring large scale operations.

Since Kripo-Leitstellen and -Stellen exercise jurisdiction over wide areas, they are assisted in their duties by a considerable number of branch offices within the Regierungsbezirk, Land or Reichsgau. These branch offices, of which 698 have been identified in Greater Germany, are known as Kripo-Aussendienststellen and Kripo-Aussenposten (literally Outposts). These are not independent offices, but are controlled and directed by a Leitstelle or Stelle, which lays down the policy governing the conduct of their work and the execution of their duties.

The difference between the Aussenposten and the Aussendienststelle, as already mentioned, is mainly one of size. An establishment of more than 10 Kripo officials is called an Aussendienststelle, and an establishment of less than 10 an Aussenposten. The Aussenposten, which is thus the smallest regular Headquarters of the Kripo, may nevertheless be to some extent subordinate to an Aussendienststelle in that it may be directed to use the Aussendienststelle as a channel for communications with the superior (Leit-)Stelle.

Like the headquarters of the Gestapo those of the Criminal Police are subject to the supervision of the BdS (IdS) of the Wehrkreis in which they are located. As previously explained Kripo-(Leit-)Stellen were established along the lines of the regional administration of Germany, but the BdS on the other hand is responsible for an area coinciding with a Wehrkreis (SS-Oberabschnitt). Consequently the same difficulty arises for the Kripo as that already noted in the regional administration of the Gestapo: a Kripstelle may come under the supervision or command of a different BdS from the one controlling the responsible Kripo-Leitstelle. As a remedy for complications arising from this inconsistency, again following the pattern of the Gestapo, the powers of the BdS in relation to those of the Leitstelle have been gradually but consistently increased. In addition it should again be pointed out that regional discrepancies of this kind, which might be expected to hamper the organisation of the German Police, are compensated for by the closest possible liaison and cooperation between headquarters at all levels.

120. Internal Structure of a Kripo Headquarters.

The inner organisation of a regional Kripo Headquarters does not conform to a standard pattern nor is it identical with that of Amt V of the RSHA. Following the principle that maximum efficiency can best be achieved if the structure of each headquarters is adapted to local requirements, the Leiter of a Kripo-(Leit-)Stelle is empowered, within limits, to determine the most advantageous internal organisation of his particular office. The following basic structure will serve as an indication of the type of organisation likely to be encountered in all Kripo headquarters.

Kripo headquarters are usually sub-divided into 3 or more Direktionen (Directorates) each handling one type of Kripo activity. Each Kriminal-Direktion is designated by a Roman numeral (e.g. Direktion I), but in many instances the abbreviation K, followed by an Arabic numeral, is used, e.g. K 1, K 2. In one specific instance Direktion I is known to handle personnel and office organisation, Direktion II professional and habitual criminals and Direktion III amateur crimes and local activities of the Criminal Police. Each Direktion is again sub-divided into Inspektionen (Inspectorates) which as a rule are abbreviated by the letter K followed by a Roman numeral, e.g. K.I, K.II. Each Inspektion in turn consists of a varying number of Kommissariate each covering a specific field of crime.

As a rule Kommissariate are numbered consecutively throughout the entire headquarters, but in some instances they may be numbered from 1 onwards within each Inspektion. They are designated by an Arabic numeral preceding the letter K, e.g. 1.K, 9.K. In official language these are sometimes referred to as "Erstes K, Neuntes K, etc."

It must be emphasised again that this pattern is merely a guiding one. Even the numbering system and the abbreviations used may vary from one Headquarters to another. The schematic structure of a typical Kripo-Leitstelle in a large German city, as well as the organisational breakdown of the Leitstellen of Köln in 1941 and of Hannover in 1943, are given in Annexe G.

121. Search for Wanted Persons (Fahndung)

Originally the searches for Wanted Persons were conducted by the German Criminal Police as actions against individuals on warrants issued for each particular case (Einzelfahndung), an ordinary Police function carried out in any country. With the constant increase in the scope of Police activities under the Nazi régime, and especially since the outbreak of war, the method of the Fahndung in Germany has undergone fundamental changes, typical of the expansion of German Police power in general. To the already considerable number of persons wanted on political grounds have been added the ever increasing cases of fugitive foreign workers and prisoners of war as well as of German soldiers absent without leave or trying to desert. In coping with the problem the old system of the Einzelfahndung was found completely inadequate. It became technically impossible to issue individual warrants or to act in each case on an individual basis. To overcome these difficulties the Kriegsfahndung (Wartime Search for Wanted Persons) was inaugurated, making provisions for large scale actions, fully organised raids and systematic checks on the identity papers of all persons travelling on railways, roads and highways, crossing bridges or using ferries.

To control actions of this kind HIMMLER on 5th December, 1942, added the Kriegsfahndungszentrale (Central Bureau for the Wartime Search for Wanted Persons) to the RKPA as Hilfsreferat V C 2 k. Later the bureau was transferred to Referat V C 1 where it forms the Hilfsreferat V C 1 b, though parts of it are in Hilfsreferat V C 1 a. In V C 1 are now centred all functions necessary to direct the arrest or recapture of all foreigners, foreign workers, prisoners of war, baled out Allied flying personnel, foreign agents, spies and saboteurs as well as Germans trying to evade military service or deserting from the Armed Forces.

In the interest of greater efficiency in such searches the Criminal Police is authorised to drop the prosecution and investigation of minor crimes (Bagatellessachen) according to two unpublished directives by HIMMLER issued on 25th August, 1939, and 31st August, 1939, referring respectively to "Entlastung der Staatlichen Kriminalpolizei" (Order to relieve the Criminal Police of minor duties) and "Entlastung der Geheimen Staatspolizei" (Order to relieve the Secret State Police of minor duties).

Regionally the Bds (Ids) of each Wehrkreis supervises and co-ordinates all Kriegsfahndung activities. In cases involving the Orpo the BdO is also required to co-operate with the Sipo. The various regional headquarters of the Kripo are tactically in control of searches within their areas; an exception to this rule appears in border districts where the Gestapo takes charge of all these functions (Grenzfahndung) but maintains constant and close co-operation with the Kripo, Orpo and Frontier Guard formations. For further centralisation and uniformity of Kriegsfahndung the Beauftragter des RSHA für die Verhinderung von Gefangenenfluchten (special officials of the RSHA for the prevention of the escape of prisoners of war) receive and collate all reports on matters of this kind.

To keep the agencies concerned up to date in all details necessary for the conduct of these searches the RKPA issues several specialised publications, the most important of which is the Deutsches Fahndungsbuch (Book of Persons Wanted by the German Police). The Sonderausgabe zum Reichskriminalpolizeiblatt (Special Edition of the Official Gazette of the German Criminal Police) also contains detailed descriptions of escaped Prisoners of War and other wanted persons.

122. Types of Fahndung

There are five different categories of the ordinary Fahndung, which are as follows:—

Bahnfahndung	Search on Railways
Strassenverkehrsfahndung	Search on roads and at other traffic points
Riegelfahndung	Search at barriers
Razzien	Police Raids
Grenzfahndung	Search at frontiers (see previous para.).

The Bahnfahndung is carried out by the Bahnpolizei, an organisation which has been in existence ever since the unification of the German railway system in 1920. All its members are employees of the Deutsche Reichsbahn and come under the supervision of the Reichsverkehrsministerium (RVM—Reich Ministry of Transport). On 17 July, 1928, an entirely new version of the Reichsbahn-Betriebsordnung (Railway Statutory Regulations) was passed.* It included for the first time a uniform Railway Police Code, equally applicable to all parts of the Reich. Thus the Bahnpolizei became—with the exception of the Postschutz—the first and only Police force operating before 1933 on a national basis under a central command with a uniform legal code.

The Bahnpolizei consists of part-time and full-time railway police officials. The part-time police officials are railway employees such as station-masters, conductors, train personnel, guards on level crossings and others. In addition to their usual functions, they are responsible for the maintenance of law and order on railway property.

Full-time railway police officials are organised into two services, known as the Bahnschutzpolizei (Bzp—Railway Protection Police) and the Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst (Rbfd—Railway Criminal Investigation Service). The Bahnschutzpolizei is a regular guard and patrol service.

Its members are uniformed and are usually armed with pistols and clubs. They patrol station platforms and trains where their task is the direct maintenance of law and order. The Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst was founded in order to combat corruption among railway personnel and to prevent and investigate the theft of goods and the embezzlement of funds held by the National Railways. Both services still function as originally conceived, but in the new system of Fahndung, they have, especially the Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst, assumed additional duties.

For this purpose the Rbfd was afforded special powers in March 1943 following an agreement between the RFSS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei and the Reichsverkehrsministerium (Reich Ministry of Transport). Under this agreement the Gestapo and the Kripo may request the services of the Bahnpolizei to assist in the investigation of any political or other crime. Under such circumstances members of the Rbfd, which is a Sonderpolizei (Special Police), acquire the status of Hilfspolizei (Auxiliary Police). While they still remain under the supervision and administration of the RVM they have now become operationally attached to the Reichssicherheitshauptamt and thereby assume regular Police powers of arrest and detention, confiscation and search. In matters of equipment and selection of personnel, the RVM must obtain the consent of the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD; the latter is also responsible for the specialised training of personnel in Security Police functions and methods.

The regional chief of the Rbfd is the Fahndungsdezernent; one such official is located at each Reichsbahndirektion (National Railway Regional Headquarters). In all matters regarding the Security Police functions of the Rbfd the Fahndungsdezernent receives his orders from the chief of the nearest Kripo-(Leit-)Stelle who maintains constant liaison with the Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst through a special member of his staff. The Kripo is also kept informed on all activities of the Bahnpolizei through this official.

The Strassenverkehrsfahndung is ordinarily carried out by formations of the Orpo in co-operation with such auxiliary formations as the NSKK Verkehrshilfsdienst (Road Aid or Traffic Assistance Service) and the NSKK Transportkontrollen des Motorisierten Transportes der Kriegswirtschaft (NSKK Cargo Inspection Service of motorised wartime transport). The local Kripo headquarters, however, while not directly in control of the activities of any of these formations, maintain close co-operation with them in all matters of wartime searches. For this purpose Hauptamt V in the National Headquarters of the NSKK, which controls all functions regarding Fahndung within the NSKK, maintains direct liaison with the RKPA. The existing network of call posts established by the NSKK in order to carry out their functions as a traffic aid and control organisation are of course extremely valuable in carrying out widespread searches. (For further details on the various NSKK Auxiliary Police formations see para. 47).

The Verkehrskompanie (mot.) z.b.V. (Motorised Traffic Company for special employment) has been discussed in para. 43. The nature and functions of this unit make it apparent that during special searches it may also be very usefully employed as a highly mobile patrol unit.

In order to tighten the network of Police searches even further the system of Riegelfahndung was instituted, whereby theoretical barriers, made up of Riegelstellungen (Barrier Points) and traversing Germany, were drawn up to prevent any person from crossing these lines without having his papers and permits thoroughly examined. These barriers are the rivers Rhine, Oder, Vistula and Danube as well as the Kaiser Wilhelm (Kiel) Canal. To supplement these main lines of demarcation similar positions were established at other important river crossings and key points. These are known as Zwischenriegel (Intermediate Barriers). In addition it appears that Germany is divided into six large zones (Südost, Südwest, Nordost, Nordwest, Mitte and General Gouvernement) to facilitate police searches.

* Published in the Reichsgesetzblatt, Part II, page 541.

UNCLASSIFIED

Another important method of capturing wanted persons is through the large scale Razzien (Police Raids) carried out by the Orpo. Kripo personnel usually take part as specialists in such raids to interrogate suspects. As in most other actions connected with the Kriegsfahndung formations of both Party and Wehrmacht may also assist.

Since the most difficult problems connected with Fahndung have been created by the large number of fugitive foreign workers, special Auffangslager (Reception Camps) were established in August 1943. While these camps are actually organised and maintained by the Labour Offices, the regional Kripo headquarters keep in constant touch with these installations. In addition the Kripo attempts to anticipate future sources of trouble especially wherever large-scale bombing has caused serious dislocation of industries employing foreign labour. In carrying out these functions the Kripo calls on the assistance of the Rbfd, the Bahnschutzpolizei and the previously mentioned NSKK formations.

123. Sonderfahndung

So far the organisations and functions of the ordinary Fahndung and Kriegsfahndung have been discussed. In many instances, however, these measures have been considered inadequate. In such cases an extra-ordinary plan known as the Sonderfahndungsplan der Sipo und des SD (Special Search system of the Sipo and SD) is put into operation. This state of emergency may be declared to exist by any of the regional Kripo headquarters, or in frontier districts, by the equivalent Gestapo offices.

The Sonderfahndung is divided into three degrees of emergency:—

Fahndungsstufe Alpha Fahndungsstufe Beta Grossfahndung.

The finer details distinguishing the three plans are not known. The main difference seems to be one of intensity, i.e. the number of personnel involved in the action. Fahndungsstufe Alpha is an alarm calling into action only the forces of the Security Police (Sicherheitspolizeiliche Fahndung). Fahndungsstufe Beta, the Allgemeine Polizeifahndung (General Police Search) involves personnel of all branches of the German Police augmented by civilians temporarily pressed into Police service.

Grossfahndung means not only mobilisation of all branches of the Police including all auxiliaries, Party Formations, Affiliated Organisations and whatever units of the Wehrmacht can be mustered, but actually interferes with almost every phase of normal activity in Germany. Among the organisations taking part in the General Search are the SA, SS, NSKK, NSFk, RAD, HJ, TN, Feuerwehr, Stadt- und Landwacht and Forestry Services. To illustrate the scope of the security problem as well as the intensity of a search of this kind the results of the first Grossfahndung conducted all over Germany from 6–20 March, 1943, may be of interest. The search was occasioned by the escape of 43 British and Dominion airmen from a camp near Posen, but the arrests included the following:

Escaped prisoners of war	809
Foreign workers who had left their assigned places of work	8,281
Other persons wanted by the Police	4,825
Total	13,915

Recently the German Armed Forces have begun to play an increasing part in patrols and searches. In order to lessen the confusion resulting from the great variety of different organisations engaged in searches and patrols the OKW, the RFSS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei, the Reich Minister of Transport and the Chief of the NSKK agreed to form mixed patrols. Units of this kind are regulated by the Kommandeure des Wehrmachtstreifenendienstes (commanders of the Wehrmacht patrol service in each Wehrkreis) in agreement with the BdOs and the commanders of the NSKK-Motorgruppen.

124. Other Organisations taking part in Fahndung

The SS-Bahnschutz (Railway Guard) and the SS-Postschutz (Postal Guard), organisations similar to the Bahnschutzpolizei and serving the railway and postal authorities respectively, were formed by the SS, and in 1942 placed under the command of SS-OGF BERGER, the Chief of the SS-Hauptamt (SS Central Office). At the same time a related service, the SS-Funkschutz (Radio Installation Guard) was formed. Its functions are to guard all radio installations (such as the Rundfunkhaus in Berlin and other transmitters and power plants) to detect illegal wireless stations and even to track down listeners to illegal or foreign broadcasts. Ordinary policing of public property such as railways, postal and broadcasting installations would seem to be the task of the Regular Police. The fact that the SS has taken over many of these functions is yet another indication of its close connections with the Kripo, Gestapo and SD.

The Hitler Youth has also been placed at the disposal of the Police for carrying out Police Searches. Originally the Hitler-Jugend-Streifendienst was intended only for searches involving minors and concentrated its efforts on locating missing juveniles. As a result of the present man-power shortage, however, the Hitler Youth SRD is employed as an auxiliary force co-operating in regular Police searches.

For their specialised searches for missing juveniles the personnel department of the Reichsjugendführung (Reich Youth Directorate) issues a Fahndungsblatt des Hitler-Jugend-Streifendienstes (HJ-SRD Gazette of wanted persons). This publication appears approximately once a week and is distributed down to the lowest echelons. For additional information on the HJ-SRD see para. 48.

Another Party organisation assisting the Police in searches are the SS-Bordschutzmannschaften (Ship Board Security Crews). In compliance with a proclamation by SS-OGF, Karl KAUFMANN, Reich Commissioner for Ocean Navigation, all ships essential to Germany's war effort and manned partially or entirely by non-German crews are policed and supervised by SS-Bordschutzmannschaften. These units are assigned by the Führer of the SS-Oberabschnitt in which the port of departure is located. According to the proclamation these units are to "man anti-aircraft guns, assist the German officers on such vessels and provide security for the non-German crew members." Their relationship to the masters of such ships was not defined. Notwithstanding these alleged official functions, their real purpose probably lies in serving the Sipo and SD; in particular they assist the Kripo by carrying the Fahndung on to the high seas, e.g. in the search for stowaways.

125. Forestry and Hunting Authorities

Headquarters of the Forst- und Jagdschutz (Forestry and Hunting Authorities) are spread over the entire Reich. They are under the command of GÖRING in his capacity as Reichsforstmeister (Reich Chief Forester). Regionally the Reich Forest administration has its main offices at the administrative headquarters of the Länder with branch offices situated throughout each Land. These administrative areas are called Jagdgaue (Hunting Districts). In most instances such branch offices follow the regional sub-divisions of the Länder, but local conditions may necessitate the creation of additional Jagdgaue. Each Jagdgau is headed by a Gaujägermeister (District Chief Forester) whose HQ is the Stabsamt des Gaujägermeisters (Staff Office of the District Chief Forester).

The main function of the Reich forest administration and its executive agencies is to combat illegal hunting (Wilderei) and to protect German forests. Personnel of the Forst- und Jagdschutz are trained by the nearest regional Kripo headquarters and cooperate closely with the Criminal Police. Under the Nazis, however, they have gained far more importance than their specific tasks would seem to warrant. Since personnel of the Forst- und Jagdschutz are armed and Kripo-trained they must be reckoned with not only as extra police agencies in forest areas, but also as an active aid to the Sipo and SD, and even beyond that as a possible nucleus for guerrilla bands in the most inaccessible parts of the Reich.

A tabulation of the regional organisation of the Reich Forest Administration will be found in Annexe G.

126. Police for the Supervision of Mines

As previously mentioned (para. 86) in connection with the Verwaltungspolizei, the Bergpolizei (Mines Police) under the Nazi régime took over the prevention and prosecution of sabotage in mining areas as one of its main functions. It has, therefore, except for administrative purposes, grown out of its original place within the Verwaltungspolizei, and a decree of 12 September, 1942, by the Chef der Sipo und des SD stresses the extremely close cooperation of the Bergpolizei with the Kripo, Gestapo and SD. According to this decree the Gestapo cooperates with the Bergpolizei in all investigations of sabotage and other treasonable political acts against the Nazi Party and Government, and the Kripo has taken over all other investigations within the sphere of action of the Bergpolizei which are not directly connected with the technical operation of the mines. Wherever such technical considerations enter into any of the cases treated by the Sipo, the Bergbehörden (Mining Authorities) and the Bergpolizei take part in the proceedings. In cases not involving anything of interest to the Security Police, the Bergpolizei may carry out the necessary investigations independently unless the Sipo specially desires to participate.

Details of the cooperation between Bergpolizei and Sipo are settled by the Inspekture of the Sipo and SD according to local conditions.

A table of the Bergbehörden linking them with the responsible Sipo and SD HQ will be found in Annexe G.

D. THE SICHERHEITSDIENST

127. Formation and Purpose of the SD

The Leaders of the Nazi régime always realised that their dictatorship could only be upheld by the scientific application of force implemented by the shrewd exploitation of the fear of force. The preceding chapters of this book have discussed many of the executive organisations which the Nazis employed to that end. The system, however, would have been incomplete without an efficient and unscrupulous intelligence agency to collect information in every sphere of German life, evaluate it and make it available to the executive branches of the German Police. An agency of this kind was developed by the Nazis in the Sicherheitsdienst des RFSS (SD—Security Service of the RFSS) which had been devised by HIMMLER as early as 1932. HIMMLER put this organisation under the direction of Reinhold HEYDRICH, in whose hands the SD grew into a highly efficient political intelligence system and later became the most effective instrument for suppression at the disposal of the Nazi régime. In a decree of 9 June, 1934, three weeks before the purge of the SA, all other intelligence organisations within the Nazi Party were dissolved and their members transferred to the SD which thereby became the sole political intelligence agency in Germany.

When HIMMLER, in 1936, became Chef der Deutschen Polizei and founded the Sicherheitspolizei by combining the Gestapo and the Kripo he made the chief of the SD, HEYDRICH, also Chef der Sipo, thereby indicating the close relationship which was to be established between the two organisations. This cooperation ran its course for two years without any official announcement until FRICK (then Reich Minister of the Interior), apparently in an attempt to clarify and justify this union, published a decree on 11 November, 1938, which indicated clearly the important tasks of the SD in its capacity as the intelligence system serving Party and State, notably that of upholding the work of the Sipo.

Originally the central office of the SD was the SD-Hauptamt, also known as the Sicherheitshauptamt der SS (SS Department of Security) which formed part of the Reichsführung SS (SS High Command). On 27 September, 1939, the SD was officially linked with the Sicherheitspolizei, when a decree of HIMMLER combined the Hauptamt Sicherheitspolizei and the SS-Sicherheitshauptamt to form the Reichsicherheitshauptamt; Reinhold HEYDRICH, who, as mentioned above, was already chief of both the former offices, became Chief of the RSHA and assumed the title of Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD.

A year later SS-BF Dr. Werner BEST summed up the importance of the SD even more clearly than had been done before, when he stated: "The SD, finally, must investigate and explore thoroughly the background and activities of the great ideological arch-enemies of National-Socialism and of the German People, in order to make possible a determined and effective effort for the annihilation of those enemies."

The scope of the SD was further widened by a decree of 19 August, 1942, issued by the Reich Minister of Justice. This decree stated that the SD, by virtue of its character as the intelligence service for Party and State, had the special duty of reporting to the leading offices of the Government all popular reactions to official measures. The Minister of Justice, consequently, instructed the judiciary authorities to make available to the men of the SD all information required by them. Similarly it was made the duty of the SD personnel to brief the judiciary authorities. Thus the finishing touches were put to an intricate machinery for internal espionage. The SD, submitting information to the Police, the Judiciary and the whole complex of central and local Party and Government headquarters, attained a key position in the structure of the Nazi State. With its scientific approach and its practically unlimited use of agents and funds, the SD developed internal espionage to the highest degree, surpassing anything that ever existed in Germany before. The SD must therefore be expected to be, in some form, behind every Nazi effort to retain or regain complete control over any phase of German life.

The SD occupies two bureaux in the Reichs-sicherheitshauptamt: Amt III entitled Deutsche Lebensgebiete (spheres of German Life) and Amt VI entitled Ausland (Foreign countries). Amt VII, dealing with Weltanschauliche Erforschung und Auswertung (Ideological research and its exploitation) while not definitely proved to be part of the SD, is known to operate in practice under SD direction. Full-time members of the SD are invariably SS-men, enjoying the extra-legal status (Sondergerichtsbarkeit) of the SS, and because of the highly confidential nature of SD work they are selected for their proven loyalty to the Nazi régime and are carefully checked before being admitted to full membership of the SD. On the other hand, such a vast espionage system as the SD must inevitably make use of a large number of part-time agents and informers many of whom are merely mercenary opportunists without any real convictions of their own. These men are selected from all walks of German life and range from the local greengrocer to the most esteemed members of university faculties. In every factory and workshop SD agents watch their fellow-workers, employees and managers. In theatres the position of SD agent may be filled by the make-up man, the star, or the stage director.

Such persons may even serve the SD without their knowledge. It is characteristic that at various times in the development of the SD the term "Volksmeldedienst" (People's Denouncing Service) has been unofficially mentioned, indicating the endeavours of the SD to build up a system by which almost every German becomes an informer against his fellow-countrymen.

128. Nature and Importance of Amt III of the RSHA

The duties of the SD as an intelligence agency inside Germany are discharged by Amt III of the RSHA and its network of regional and local headquarters. The discussion of the SD in the following paragraphs will concern itself exclusively with the activities carried out by Amt III. These activities consist of the observation and investigation of political conditions and popular attitudes in all spheres of German life. Its general function is to keep the leaders of both Party and State constantly informed on the people's reaction towards all official measures; to maintain a constant check on the fluctuations of the nation's morale; and to uncover any sources of potential dissatisfaction, opposition, or underground movements. Amt III has, further, now taken over the study of all financial, agricultural, industrial and social trends in Germany and occupied territories, and even goes so far as to check many major business transactions. In this connection it is important to remember that the SD was created as, and has always remained, a Nazi Party organisation. The SD is not a Government agency. SD directives constantly point out this special status and make it clear that the SD, as the intelligence organisation of the Commander in Chief of the SS serves both Party and State, but retains its independence from Governmental agencies. The SD is therefore placed in an ideal position to observe and report on the various departments of the Government and its leading personalities.

The nature of the SD makes it self-evident that its work must always be carried out in the closest co-operation with the Sicherheitspolizei and especially with the Gestapo. Personnel of the Sipo and SD may frequently even be transferred from one organisation to the other. This essential degree of liaison is achieved through the regional supervision of Sipo and SD work by the BdS (IdS) and central direction by the RSHA. Considering the official emphasis on co-operation between Sipo and SD it may at first seem surprising that the two organisations have remained separate. The answer is that an autonomous intelligence agency strengthens enormously HIMMLER'S grasp on all other organisations including the Police. Again, while the executive functions of the Kripo and Gestapo cannot, of course, remain unknown to the public, it is essential for maximum efficiency, that an intelligence organisation like the SD should remain hidden. The functional separation of Sicherheitspolizei and SD tends to safeguard that secrecy. The two organisations must, nevertheless, be studied together, for knowledge of the one without consideration of the other would give a distorted picture. Only in occupied territories where speedy action and immediate intervention may often be necessary, the scheme of separation gives way to combined Sipo and SD commands.

A discussion of the functions of the SD would include a large number of subjects already touched upon in connection with the Gestapo and Kripo but there is no general overlapping or duplication of activities between the Sipo and the SD; the SD in Germany is not an executive organisation, it merely collects information which then provides the basis for executive action by the Gestapo and the Kripo.

The information gathered by SD agents is collated in Lageberichte (situation reports) which are forwarded from the Branch Offices to the Higher Regional Headquarters, where they are consolidated and finally passed on to the RSHA. These reports are issued periodically and deal with an unlimited range of topics covering every phase of German public and private life. They are among the most interesting documents issued by any German agency. In them is contained a complete and unbiassed picture of German public opinion and morale, and since they are written for the highest Nazi authorities only, they are free from propaganda and wishful thinking. These Lageberichte give a better insight into the sentiments of the Germans than can be found in any other source. From them can be gained an impartial account of popular sympathies, apathies and opposition to the Nazi régime as well as an accurate appraisal of the results of every Allied action. Thus, for instance, they discuss objectively popular reaction towards Allied bombing attacks as well as towards every official utterance by State and Party leaders. A complete collection of Lageberichte from all parts of Germany and the occupied territories would furnish detailed testimony of every fluctuation of public opinion throughout the years of Nazi dictatorship. But even fragmentary situation reports of individual sections of Germany will provide an almost infallible key to the political feelings and, thereby, to the potential attitude of the population in those areas towards the Allied armies of occupation.

129. SD Penetration of German Life

It is almost impossible to give an overall picture of Amt III interests but some instances of SD activities other than the more obvious investigation and observation of opposition groups are given here.

One of the most extensive fields covered by the SD is that of education, culture, religion and intellectual life in general. SD agents check the political attitude of every teacher whether in university or school; they supervise the tendencies and development of every group of students; they make frequent and detailed reports on lectures and courses. For this purpose the SD has enlisted as its agents teachers, students and administrative personnel of every educational establishment, who for the sake of advancement—or safety—are willing to turn informer on their colleagues. All works of art, all artists, all public entertainers are constantly subject to the observation of the SD and must, for their existence, have the SD's approval. On the recommendation of the SD, for instance, long monthly lists of prohibited books, music, plays and other works of art are published. Similarly a close check is kept on all films, on radio programmes and on every form of propaganda and counter-propaganda.

The SD, however, is not only interested in the investigation of the medium, but to an even greater extent it watches the response of the public to such entertainments.

A study of SD reports on public morale and the effect of enemy propaganda will in fact, often suggest the most opportune line of propaganda to be applied to the German people. Thus it is known that on occasions where important members of Party or Government, such as GÖBBELS, make a speech the SD is notified in advance, and sends out all its observers and contacts who during the speech observe popular reaction in restaurants, hotels, and other public meeting places. Immediately after the speech they hand in their reports which are consolidated at the headquarters and passed on to Amt III in BERLIN. Only a few hours later the Government officials and especially the speaker have a minute report on their desks giving them the popular reaction towards the speech. In addition to routine surveillance of radio programmes and a constant hunt for listeners to foreign broadcasts, the SD itself has established an elaborate system for monitoring.

Among the problems regarded as most serious by the Nazis is political opposition within religious groups. The SD therefore constantly watches all church activities, studies every written document originating from the clergy and analyses the effect of sermons and religious services on the political opinions of the population. In the course of these investigations the SD attempts to utilise members of the church administration and the clergy itself as agents and informers against their own colleagues and their fellow members of the congregation.

In the legal field the SD watches popular reaction towards new laws or decrees, and attempts to discover any violations of them or any loopholes in their execution; the SD may, as a result, suggest judicial changes or amendments.

In its investigation of decisions by the German military courts in France the SD is reported to have been frequently dissatisfied by the leniency of sentences. In many instances these courts followed regular legal procedure and either meted out the ordinary punishment for the offence or released arrested persons when sufficient evidence for conviction was not forthcoming. To stop this, pressure was brought to bear upon the authorities by the SD and repeated reports were sent to Headquarters in Germany. In December, 1941, probably as a result of this pressure, the German High Command issued a secret decree for combatting offences against the security of the Reich and the occupying forces, especially sabotage, espionage or any other activities of potential danger to the German forces of occupation; this order was officially referred to as the Nacht- und Nebel-Erlass ("Night and Fog" Decree). It authorised the secret transfer to Germany of persons subject to trial; thus, whenever prolonged legal procedure was expected, a lenient sentence seemed probable or the execution of a harsh sentence might create unrest among the population, the accused was, on the recommendation of the SD, secretly (i.e. "bei Nacht und Nebel") transferred to the Reich for further detention, trial or execution. Whenever enquiries were made concerning persons thus deported, information was flatly denied. Many victims of this order are still detained without ever having come up for trial, a number of them being held in concentration camps under the classification of "NN" inmates. In most cases, therefore, the independence of the military courts was in practice severely restricted. Even though many political offenders were dealt with in this manner, the SD sometimes even ordered the arrest or detention of persons immediately after they had been acquitted or released by the military or civil authorities. It is reported that since June, 1944, the SD, on orders from HITLER, no longer recommends the death penalty, but probably as a consequence of the man-power shortage, commits most offenders to forced labour.

In order to "complete their records" the SD also receive a detailed report whenever a soldier is either imprisoned or released. This contains detailed personal data, the reason for the arrest or the release as well as the unit or location to which the soldier has been sent after having served his sentence. These files enable the SD to keep a close check even on military personnel.

Every detail of German administration is followed and investigated by the SD. Administrative officials, including the leading personalities of Party and State and even of the Kripo and Gestapo are covered by the information system of the SD. The scope of SD activities in this connection is illustrated by a document of 1939 which under the classification "Geheime Reichssache" (Top Secret) gave an SD account of a desperate struggle for power between the German Foreign Office on one side and the Reich Ministry of Propaganda and the OKW on the other. The SD in this instance not only kept the detailed minutes of the progress of this internal competition, but utilised the information gained to strengthen its own position by playing off the two contestants against each other.

Since "racial" problems and questions concerning minorities have been pushed into the foreground of Nazi ideology the SD also takes an interest in these matters. In particular, it studies the effect of mass assignments of foreign workers and estimates their usefulness on the one hand, or disrupting influence on the other, in certain sections of the country and in particular industries. The SD supervises the working of the German resettlement policy as well as the forced evacuation and systematic persecution of "racial" groups. Thus, for instance, the SD submitted a lengthy report on the procedure for evacuating Jews from Alsace and on the public attitude towards that measure. In its "racial" functions the SD works in close liaison with the SS-Rasse- und Siedlungs-Hauptamt (SS Race and Settlement Department)—which gives expert advice on the SS-Fähigkeit (SS suitability) of men applying for SS membership, and with the SS-Hauptamt Volksdeutsche Mittelstelle (Vomi)—Department for the Repatriation of "racial" Germans and its Unwandererzentralen (Repatriation Offices); it also probably reports on the progress of Nazi attempts to link up as many of the "racial" Germans with the interests and activities of the Reich, at the same time checking the political reliability of the "new Germans." It is interesting to note that the post of Reichskommissar für die Festigung des Deutschen Volkstums (Reich Commissioner for the Strengthening of Germanism) is held by HIMMLER.

Censorship has already been discussed in para. 106. It is evident, however, that so important an instrument of political control would not be neglected by the SD. While the actual machinery of censorship is probably left entirely in the hands of the Sipo and to some extent of the Militärisches Amt, SD observations and reports may in many cases suggest to these agencies when and where censorship should be applied. Thus, SD agents may observe the effect of letters on their recipients. In other cases the SD may get hold of letters or learn of their contents through informers after such letters have been delivered and read. The SD would then recommend the Gestapo, Kripo or Military Intelligence either to take executive action or to continue observation by means of censorship. It has been reported that SD personnel in France received assignments of telephone, radio or telegram interception, control and censorship, but it is not known whether they operated independently or merely assisted the executive staffs of the other branches of the Police in their duties.

130. SD Economic Transactions

What is perhaps one of the most extensive fields of SD activities can be found in the various phases of German economic life. In many instances staffs of specialists have been formed into Wirtschaftssonderstäbe (Special Economic Staffs). Observation of economic matters has been tremendously expanded since the outbreak of war, especially in occupied territories. Detailed reports on industries and agriculture are submitted regularly to the RSHA, ranging from overall comparative studies of production, supply, and demand, to minute checks on the most insignificant farmhouse, resulting in the discovery of an undeclared sheep or of hoarded foodstuffs in the possession of a French farmer. Economic reports of the SD include potential purchases of large stores of supplies, methods of achieving better prices and more advantageous contracts and the possible application of extra-legal measures to force the sale of goods not otherwise intended for the market. A document even shows the SD to have suggested strictly illegal transactions recommending the purchase of goods from Spain and Portugal by agents in Switzerland, with the intention of diverting large quantities of such shipments while en route to their destination. Transactions of this kind are referred to as "Tarngeschäfte" (Camouflaged Transactions) and make use of such means as fraudulent bills of lading.

Documentary evidence indicates that the wealth of useful information collected in the economic sphere frequently leads the SD to yield to the temptation of putting its own interests and those of its personnel before those of the German government and people. For instance, an SD headquarters in France went to great lengths to prove the illegality of a planned purchase of coffee by a German Army agency, in order to confiscate the goods for its own benefit. In the course of correspondence concerning this particular transaction, it was specifically stated that the SD wished to prevent any other German headquarters from securing the goods in question.

Similarly it is not at all unusual for the SD to recommend seizure of black market goods in occupied territories and make generous disposition of the materials thus acquired to combined Sipo and SD units. In one particular instance the SD confiscated 3,000 Kilos of cocoa and allocated two-thirds of the total to an SS-Panzer division while the remaining one-third found its way into the private stores of Sipo and SD officials. 11,000 tins of sardines were distributed in roughly the same proportion. Such transactions, of course, occur mainly in the Sipo and SD combined Kommandos in occupied territories, but it would not be surprising to find the SD within Germany exploiting their inside knowledge of economic trends.

Government Agencies and Ministries have been instructed to co-operate to the fullest degree with the SD—"co-operation" being even officially interpreted to mean free access for the SD to all inside information collected by these agencies. The importance of liaison with the Headquarters of the Reichsnährstand (Reich Food Administration) the Reichsverkehrsbehörden (Reich Transport and Traffic Authorities) and the Reichsministerium für Rüstung und Kriegsproduktion (Reich Ministry for Armament and War Production) has been particularly stressed. The consequences and advantages to the SD of connections of this kind cannot be overestimated.

131. Organisation of Amt III of the RSHA

Like all RSHA Bureaux, Amt III is divided into Gruppen (Sections); there are four Gruppen in Amt III, designated by the capital letters A to D (e.g., Gruppe III A). Each Gruppe is divided into a varying number of Referate (Sub-sections) indicated by Arabic numerals (e.g., Referat III A 2). The Referat may again be divided into any number of Hilfsreferate (Sub-sectional units) designated by small letters, e.g., III C 1 e.

In the next paragraph an attempt has been made to show the internal structure of Amt III. Owing to the secret nature of this bureau the breakdown of functions and offices naturally cannot be found listed in any available German document or publication but has been assembled from various German documents and other sources. Often the information so derived cannot be regarded as final, but in such cases the degree of uncertainty has been indicated in explanatory notes, and a maximum number of examples has been given to throw additional light on the functions of the particular section or sub-section.

Some of the functions listed as belonging to Amt III in the RSHA have been actually identified only within equivalent offices in some regional SD Headquarters; in such cases, however, the coincidence of several instances made it safe to assume that the system is a standard one and that it applies also to the parent Amt. This tabulation therefore can be regarded as an over-all picture of the organisation of Amt III without laying claim to absolute accuracy or completeness.

translation with an interpretation of functions wherever this seemed necessary.

Whenever possible the original German phraseology has been preserved but at the same time an attempt has been made to combine accurate

132. Structure of Amt III

The official heading of Amt III in the RSHA is Deutsche Lebensgebiete (Spheres of German Life); it is organised as follows:—

Geschäftsstelle (Administration Office)

- Personalangelegenheiten* (Personnel Matters)
- Geschäftsverteilungsplan* (Distribution of Work)
- Geschäftsaktenplan* (Standard Filing System)
- Statistik* (Statistics)
- Geheimregistratur* (Registry of Classified Documents)

Gruppe III A

Gemeinschaftsleben Allgemein (General Community Life)

III A 1

(Organisation der Arbeit (Organisation of Work) also referred to as Allgemeine Fragen der Lebensgebietsarbeit (General Questions of Amt III work)

The work of this Referat is not known in detail. It may, however, be assumed that it concerns itself mainly with planning and recording the work carried out by Amt III in general. Hilfsreferat III A 1 c is known to be responsible for co-operation between SD and Wehrmacht. No other sub-sectional units have been identified.

III A 2

Rechtsleben Allgemein (General Legal Matters)

This Referat is reported to examine every new act or law, to collect suggestions and reports on laws and on their effects from all the regional SD Headquarters, and to forward the results of such research to the Reichsjustizministerium. Its personnel as well as its agents are drawn mainly from the legal profession.

In addition to the more general functions Referat III A 2 seems to deal with specific cases of violations of the law. The SD will investigate such violations in order to report them to the Gestapo or Kripo for action. Particular topics which are known to have been investigated by III A 2 and which may give an idea of the wide scope of this Referat are:—

- Political offences and violations of the law in general.
- Popular attitude towards distinguishing emblems to be worn by Jews.
- Attitude of Germans towards Jews.
- Marriages between Germans and "Non-Aryans."
- Protection of the honour of soldiers killed in battle.
- Legal matters in connection with public collections.
- Theft of mails.
- Public and official corruption.
- Forged ration coupons.
- Illegal slaughter of livestock.
- Investigation of claims.
- Court decisions incompatible with Nazi ideas.
- Protective Custody (Schutzhaft) and Concentration Camps.

III A 3

Verwaltung Allgemein (Administration in General)

This Referat, covering the investigation of administrative matters, has naturally a fairly close relation to III A 2. Many of its agents are ordinary citizens. Its duties include observing public reaction to various administrative offices and official actions as well as public opinion in general. It is furthermore reported that III A 3 also supervises all Police personnel, including even the Kripo and Gestapo. The importance of that function and the extent of the powers derived from it need not be explained or stressed. The Hilfsreferat of III A 3, while not specifically identified, are known to range at least from a to e.

A conclusive and exhaustive enumeration of the functions of III A 3 cannot, of course, be given. The following examples of special cases investigated by this Referat, however, may help to illustrate its general work:—

- Simplification of administration.
- Elimination of unnecessary recourse to higher Headquarters.
- Lack of co-operation between various official agencies.
- Behaviour of high ranking public officials, such as Landräte.
- Attitude of officials towards the public.
- Cancellation of pay and pensions to officials found politically unreliable.
- Replacement of personnel in local offices (Beamtennachwuchs).
- Deferment of officials from military service (Uk-Stellung).
- The effects of military recruiting policy.
- Effect of the distribution of duties and financial burdens on local communities.
- Public attitude towards compulsory insurance for employees.
- Family allowances for military personnel.
- Fixing of responsibility for the investigation of acts of sabotage in mining areas.
- Listening to foreign wireless stations.
- Study of results of enemy air raids.
- Surveillance of prisoners out on parole.
- National Population Register (Volkskartei).

III A 4

Allgemeines Volksleben (General National Life)

This Referat deals with mass observation and its evaluation. The term "Volksleben," translated as "national life," includes all matters concerning both nation and Party. The Referat has almost unlimited scope in the surveillance of individual and community, of possible anti-Nazi tendencies, of the written and the spoken word. Investigations and spying of this kind are carried right into the ranks and Headquarters of the Nazi Party. A recent document shows that III A 4 was the Referat through which the SD collected information on an attempt by leading personalities to transport their families and possessions to the vicinity of the Swiss border. In addition, III A 4 investigates relations between the Party and the Armed Forces.

The following specific cases for which documentary evidence exists are listed to illustrate some of the activities of III A 4 :—

- Observation of general morale (Stimmung und Lage).
- Reception by the public of enemy leaflets and propaganda in general.
- Rumours, political jokes and popular humour.
- Rumours concerning discontinued payment of pensions for invalid veterans after the war.
- Observation of the effect of mail on the morale of the troops.
- Behaviour of leading personalities of the Party and State.
- Blameworthy behaviour of soldiers' wives.
- General attitude toward mass evacuations and ARP measures.
- ARP daily reports.
- Press comments and editorial opinion on court sentences.
- Relations between Party and Wehrmacht.

The extent of the powers of this Referat is demonstrated even further by reliable reports of the existence of the sub-sectional unit III A 4 g (Geheim—secret) which is said to watch all leading personalities in the Nazi Party with the rank of Kreisleiter and above.

III A 5

Co-operation between Sipo and SD with other Police and Government agencies : general problems of police law

This Referat was probably a later addition to III A, and its exact functions are not known. It is known, however, that requests for character references by the Kripo to Government agencies, liaison between the Sipo and the Postal authorities in matters of censorship, and written reports furnished by the Sipo and SD to local Police headquarters or to the Administrative Police on matters of Police registration and Police law in general are handled in this Referat. The following sub-sectional units are known to exist, but their actual interests cannot be accurately identified :—

- III A 5 a Possibly: SD supervision of co-operation between the Sipo and the general administrative authorities.
- III A 5 b Possibly: SD supervision of co-operation between Gestapo and other branches of the Police.
- III A 5 c Possibly: SD supervision of co-operation between Sipo and Orpo. Liaison with Administrative Police in matters of Registration.
- III A 5 d Possibly: SD supervision of co-operation between the Sipo and other branches of the Police in general.

A decree of the RSHA of September, 1943, ordered that all matters of Police law and registration affecting in some way the relationship between the German Police and other Government agencies were to be handled by the RSHA instead of by the Hauptamt Orpo. Hilfsreferat III A 5 c deals with these new functions. While this decree assigned certain supervisory duties of Police registration to III A 5 c, this change of procedure did not cause any new establishments of personnel or organisation within the Staatliche Polizeiverwaltungen and therefore does not affect the general picture of Police registration given in paragraph 82.

Gruppe III B

Volkstum und Volksgesundheit (Dealing with the German People and "the well-being of the German Race")

III B 1

Deutsches Volkstum (German "Racial Heritage").

This Referat contains several Ämter für Volkstumsfragen (Bureaux for questions concerning the German "Racial Heritage"). Close liaison is probably maintained with the NSDAP Hauptamt (Main Bureau) für Volkstumsfragen and with the Beauftragter d. NSDAP für alle Volkstumsfragen. It is believed that III B 1 was intended to become an important office only after final German victory.

The sub-section was probably expected to observe all kinds of re-adjustment such as the settlement of Germans in newly-acquired territories. Reports indicate that III B 1 has made extensive plans for German expansion. In this connection HIMMLER's position as Reichskommissar für die Festigung d. deutschen Volkstums (Reich Commissioner for the Strengthening of Germanism) should be borne in mind.

III B 2

Fremdes Volkstum und Minderheiten (Foreign "Races" and Minorities).

This Referat concerns itself with the relations between Germans and people of other nations as well as minorities within Germany. It is reported also that this Referat deals with the liquidation of Jews in Poland, the resettlement of Poles and their "Germanisation." Hilfsreferat III B 2 c is known to deal with Italian workers in Germany. No details on other sub-sectional units are available. Among some specific cases known to have been dealt with by III B 2 are the following :—

- Problems of racial policy (Volkspolitische Fragen)
- Utilisation of foreign workers.
- Specific questions of foreign labour, such as employment of Poles, Dutch, Russians.
- Employment of Russian women for domestic help.
- Distinguishing marks for foreign workers and their effect on the public.

III B 3

Rasse- und Volksgesundheit (Health of the German Race and People)

This Referat usually deals with general aspects of national health rather than with specific technical and medical matters. It employs a considerable number of doctors as agents. The following specific examples of topics known to have been covered by III B 3 may help to clarify the functions of the sub-section :—

- Reports on public health
- Reports on medical aid given in schools
- The effect of air raids on public health
- Investigation of shipments of inferior X-ray equipment and drugs and chemicals to hospitals
- Problems of immunisation
- Euthanasia
- Propaganda campaigns to popularise certain medical aids, such as Vitamins (Vitamin-Aktion)
- Investigation of grants of additional rations.

This Referat appears also to be interested in the composition of the "Germanic" SS formations. Liaison is probably maintained with the SS-Rasse- und Siedlungshauptamt (SS Race and Settlement Dept.)

III B 4

Staatsangehörigkeit, Wanderung und Siedlung
(Citizenship, Migration and Settlement)

This Referat deals with such matters as the resettlement of families who have lived in non-German territories, but who have come under German jurisdiction as a result of the expansion of the Reich and are now regarded as Germans by the Nazis. Close liaison is probably maintained with the Volksdeutsche Mittelstelle (Vomi—Department for the repatriation of "racial" Germans) and its Umwandererzentralen (Repatriation Offices).

In a more general way this Referat also handles all questions of citizenship and naturalisation from the SD point of view.

III B 5

Innerpolitische Lage der besetzten Gebiete (Political Conditions in Occupied Territories)

Few details are known about the workings of this sub-section, but among its main functions is the study of the attitude of the native population in occupied territories. It is further reported that the department has dealt with the exchange of students between Germany and occupied countries. Special courses were given to students from the Eastern territories by the Ostministerium (Ministry for Eastern Affairs) headed by Alfred ROSENBERG. Among the topics of interest to III B 5 is the attitude of the population toward Pan-Germanism.

Gruppe III C

Kultur (Culture)

III C 1

Wissenschaft und Hochschule (Sciences and Higher Education)

The various sub-sectional units of this Referat are responsible for the supervision of universities, interesting themselves in the students as well as in the teachers. All scientists and scientific institutions come under its supervision and many of the agents of III C 1 are recruited from among the teaching staffs of universities. III C 1 also checks certain activities in secondary schools but the main interest is in universities, colleges and similar institutions.

The following specific subjects and Hilfsreferate have been definitely identified as coming under III C 1.

III C 1 a

Archives

Scientific studies

Superstitions, astrology and similar matters

? Replacements (Nachwuchs) of technical and scientific personnel

III C 1 b

Study of Oriental cultures

III C 1 c ?

III C 1 d ?

III C 1 e

Supervision of university faculties and student bodies, fraternities, students' unions, etc.

III C 2

Erziehung, Religiöses Leben und Sport (Education, Religious Matters and Sport)

The following Hilfsreferate are responsible for the observation and investigation of the subjects indicated:

III C 2 a

Schools

Teachers

Prohibition of certain plays etc. in schools

III C 2 b

Youth in general

Juvenile Delinquency

Camps, including disciplinary camps for juveniles

Military service for juveniles

Matters concerning the Hitler Jugend

III C 2 c

Sport

III C 2 d

Religious problems

This is one of the largest Hilfsreferate in Amt III, and its range of interests is almost unlimited. Among the specific problems which have been identified as concerning III C 2 d are the following:

Religious services, and their effect on the population

Memorial celebrations, and their effects

Observation of money collections for Church purposes

Assistance given by the Church to soldiers

Pastoral letters

Catholicism and Protestantism

Reports on the Clergy's attitude to political speeches

Propaganda among opposition Church groups

Rumours circulating among the Clergy.

III C 3

Kulturelles Leben (Cultural Matters)

This Referat concerns itself mainly with the effect on the public of news, music, theatre, films, museums, buildings, monuments and art in general. The interest is, of course, not in culture and art as such, but rather in the investigation of artists from the Nazi point of view. A careful and detailed check is kept on all phases of cultural life and any anti-Nazi tendencies are immediately reported to the Gestapo or Kripo. To cover these varied topics thoroughly III C 3 has been divided into various sub-sectional units, some of which may be designated as follows:—

III C 3 a

Associations, clubs and similar organisations

Investigations of the employment of "undesirable racial groups" (e.g. Negroes) for public performances

III C 3 b

Cultural advancement in general

Strength through Joy (KdF—Kraft durch Freude) presentations

Lectures, public speeches and recitals

Studies of local history

National Socialist celebrations

III C 3 c

Public entertainment; its effect on the audience

III C 3 d

Music—possibly also prohibited music

III C 3 e

Production and sale of art products

Investigation of inferior art

Approval for the erection and maintenance of monuments

III C 3 f

Theatre

Opera

Actors, singers, etc.

Probably also includes control of actors' and singers' salaries.

III C 3 ?

Reports on compères (MC) and announcers.

III C 4

Allgemeine Propaganda—Presse, Schrifttum, Rundfunk (Propaganda in general—Press, Literature and Wireless)

This Referat is the counterpart of III C 3 in the field of propaganda and literature.

III C 4 a

Press

Sub-divisions within this unit apparently provide for study of the theatre, films and music as discussed in the press. III C 4 also checks newspaper vendors and similar agencies, and determines the desirability of any newspaper and its contents.

III C 4 b

Literature

Books in general

Book clubs.

Collections of books for the Armed Forces (Rosenberg Bücherspende)

Libraries

Liaison with the Reichsschrifttumskammer (National Chamber of Literature).

III C 4 c

Wireless

Wireless reporting

Community wireless programmes

Investigation of listeners to foreign and illegal broadcasts

Monitoring of foreign wireless stations.

III C 4 d

Propaganda

Study of the effects and reception of propaganda

Weekly propaganda slogans

Propaganda literature

Public showcases exhibiting daily newspapers (Pressekästen)

Popular reaction to foreigners

One of the Hilfsreferate of III C 4—most probably III C 4 d—handles the sub-section's confidential reports and information.

Gruppe III D

Allgemeine Wirtschaftspolitik—General Economic Matters

This Gruppe deals with economic matters of all kinds, including agriculture.

III D has become extremely important because of its activities in occupied territories. It is reported that it is territorially divided into Gruppe D West and D Ost. In its investigations of black market and other illegal activities it has established itself as an economic control agency of tremendous scope. Documentary evidence indicates that in many instances it has by far exceeded its original mission and has entered into economic transactions to the definite advantage of its own personnel.

III D 1

Agrarpolitik, Forstwirtschaft und Ernährung (Agricultural Policy, Forestry and Food Distribution)

This Referat deals with the investigation of every detail of agriculture and forestry, in particular:—

Violations of wartime economy regulations

Food production in general

Distribution of such foodstuffs as eggs, milk, bread, meat, vegetables and fruit

Control of livestock

Study of purchasing power (Kauf und Kaufkraft)

Allotment of food to occupying forces and to the population of occupied territories

Distribution of alcoholic beverages

Exploitation of the soil for agricultural purposes.

III D 2

Handel, Handwerk und Verkehr (Trades, Crafts, Traffic and Communications)

This Referat studies and investigates the following activities:—

Distribution of fuel

Hoarding and black market activities

Distribution of manufactured products—fabrics, soap and shoes

Abuse of motor vehicles

Conditions of roads and highways

Motor traffic in general

Supervision of all trade organisations and clubs

Supply problems resulting from the closing down of shops, etc.

Supply of essential materials for the construction and maintenance of public air raid shelters

Control of hotels, inns and restaurants

Water and power supply

Employment and efficiency of telephone, telegraph and postal communications.

III D 3

Finanzwesen (Finance)

This Referat studies and investigates the following activities:—

Financial and tax policy

Control of currency, dividends, banks, savings banks and stock-exchanges

Insurance

Supervision and regulation of prices (Preisüberwachung, Preisgestaltung)

Rumours concerning confiscation of property, freezing of bank accounts and inflation reports

Credit in industry and agriculture

Speculative sales of real estate; profits in general.

III D 4

Industrie und Energiewirtschaft (Industry and Power Supply)

This Referat studies and investigates the following activities:—

Power supply and rates governing the supply

Mining

Production matters in general

Distribution and exploitation of raw materials

Specific industries such as metallurgy or the textile industry

Collection of salvage

Closing down of industries

Investigation of the distribution of contracts and orders

Administration of enemy industries and property.

III D 5

Arbeitseinsatz und Sozialwesen (Employment of Labour and matters of Social Welfare)

This Referat has been greatly expanded by the manifold problems arising from foreign labour ;

it studies and investigates the following :—

Employment of foreign workers in Germany and their administration
Unemployment problems
Employment of women for national labour
Employment of PW
Employment of Party organisations such as the NSKK
Surveillance and discipline of foreign labour
Results of increased working hours
Results of wage ceilings
Slacking and absenteeism
Legal and illegal labour organisations
All matters of pay and salary
Housing conditions for workers

Note.—Pa (or PA). The designation Pa (Personalangelegenheiten—Personnel) may be found in combination with any of the Referate and Hilfsreferate designations. It indicates that the subject matter relates to a person and can be found in the Personnel files of the particular section or sub-section. Thus, for instance, III C 1 Pa would refer to a particular member of the Clergy, and so on.

133. SD Files

The SD maintains a Reichszentralkartei und Zentralaktenhaltung (Central Reich Index and Central Files), to keep records of all incidents of administration, personnel, employment and similar business. Late in 1943 this central collection of records, previously located in Berlin, was moved to Wartenburg/Sudetengau, but recent unconfirmed reports indicate that it may have been transferred to Southern Germany. Similar collections of records on a smaller scale are maintained by the various SD headquarters in Germany and occupied territories.

It is also noteworthy that in December, 1942, Sipo and SD headquarters were ordered to collect and preserve all documents and reports which were no longer of practical value, but which might still be useful from the political and historical point of view. The order stated that a Zentralarchiv (Central Archives) für Sipo und SD was to be established, and that these collections of documents were to be permanently stored there. It is not known whether these archives have been started, but it is of interest from a CI point of view to note that collections of this kind are being made. The order specifically called for safe storage places to avoid destruction of such valuable documents as a result of Allied air attacks.

134. Regional Organisation of the SD inside Germany

The regional organisation of both Gestapo and Kripo follows to a certain extent the old administrative system of Germany, but since the SD was originally a branch of the SS it followed, in its early days, the old regional organisation of the SS into Oberabschnitte and Unterabschnitte. Gradually, however, as a result of its intimate connection with the Sicherheitspolizei the regional organisation of the SD was brought into line with that of the Gestapo and the Kripo, and its headquarters were consequently re-named SD-Leitabschnitte (SD Regional Headquarters) and SD Abschnitte (SD Sub-regional headquarters). At present 17 SD-Leitabschnitte and 27 SD-Abschnitte have been identified in Greater Germany. Finally, as the Party administrative and territorial system tended to be regarded as the guiding pattern for future German administration in general, areas controlled by SD Headquarters came to be defined in terms of Party Gaue and Kreise. This change emphasises the close link between the SD and the Party Gauleiter, Kreisleiter, and Ortsgruppenleiter on all routine matters.

III D 6

Kolonialwirtschaft (Colonial Economic Policy)

Little is known about the functions of this Referat. In view of the present dwindling importance of German colonial aspirations it may be assumed that III D 6 is operating on rather a reduced scale, if at all.

As in the case of the Gestapo and the Kripo the regional headquarters of the SD were considered inadequate to consolidate the control of the Security Service down to the smallest unit of the community, so SD Headquarters established their own branch offices, viz. SD-Hauptausstellen and SD-Aussenstellen, for this purpose. Documents indicate that all regional and local SD headquarters resemble in their inner organisation the structure of Amt III of the RSHA, but, of course, on a smaller scale corresponding to the size of the office and local requirements.

SD- (Leit-) Abschnitte are usually established in the same localities as Stapo- (Leit-) Stellen in order to facilitate constant and close co-operation between the two services. Within their particular area the (Leit-) Abschnitte are responsible for the administration and direction of all SD activities. They receive their orders direct from, and report to the RSHA. At the same time they are subject to general supervision and co-ordination by the BdS (IdS) in their Wehrkreis. A BdS (IdS) is usually chosen from among the highest officials of the SD. It can therefore be assumed that the BdS (IdS), if only by reason of his personal contacts, stands closer to the SD than to the Kripo and Gestapo.

Each (Leit-) Abschnitt is headed by a Leiter (Chief). The chain of command from this chief of the regional headquarters to the BdS and finally to the RSHA is somewhat complicated by the fact that the SD as a Party organisation is also responsible to the appropriate Gauleiter (Party Regional Chief Executive) who is authorised to assign specific missions to the SD. The Gauleiter's expert adviser in all SD matters is the Leiter of the Regional SD headquarters. Indications are, however, that a good deal of the important SD work is made to by-pass the Gauleiter.

The relationship between SD-Leitabschnitte and Abschnitte is similar to that between the equivalent offices of the Gestapo and Kripo. SD-Abschnitte are not subordinate to SD-Leitabschnitte; they are independent headquarters and no executive orders as from a higher to a lower echelon are issued by a Leitabschnitt to an Abschnitt, but, again as with the Sicherheitspolizei, the Leitabschnitt may frequently issue directives and memoranda to the various Abschnitte within its territory to ensure uniformity of procedure and to avoid overlapping. In certain instances the Leitabschnitte may also act as a collecting point for information to be passed on to the RSHA and to regional Headquarters. While in general the functions of both

Leitabschnitt and Abschnitt are the same, the Leitabschnitt, as the guiding and co-ordinating headquarters, probably maintains more extensive files and employs a larger staff.

The SD-Hauptausstellen and Aussenstellen are, like the corresponding Kripo and Gestapo branch offices, normally established in nearby localities. In the case of the SD, however, such branch offices have been identified even in towns where SD- (Leit-) Abschnitte are located. In these towns the (Haupt-) Aussenstelle deals with the local collection of intelligence to be passed on to the (Leit-) Abschnitt where the reports of all the lower headquarters in the region are evaluated, consolidated, and then forwarded to Amt III. Thus, regional and local activities are carried out in separate headquarters. It must be emphasised that the Hauptausstellen and the Aussenstellen (the difference between them being merely one of size) are definitely subordinate to the (Leit-) Abschnitt in their area. 56 SD-Hauptausstellen and 556 SD-Aussenstellen, which exist at present, have been identified. In addition 1 Hauptausstelle and 17 Aussenstellen existed, but are known to have suspended operations. This brings the total of all identified SD-HQ in Greater Germany to 668.

A number of SD Abschnitte have been downgraded to become Hauptausstellen or Aussenstellen for the duration of the war (cf. similar developments in the Gestapo, para. 102). The main reason for these changes was the manpower problem created by the constantly growing responsibilities of the SD, especially in occupied territories. To meet the demand for personnel to work in these areas a number of regional headquarters in Germany had to be reduced in size, but documentary evidence indicates that such newly-formed Hauptausstellen continue to fulfil all the functions of the former Abschnitt. They are defined as Meldeköpfe (information collecting centres) for all the branch offices which were formerly subordinated to them. Reports received at the Hauptausstelle in its capacity of Meldekopf are not exploited by that office, but are collated and passed straight on to the RSHA. The term Meldekopf should not, however, mislead the reader into believing that these new headquarters are simply message centres; they still have all the authority and responsibilities of the former Abschnitte towards the subordinate branch offices, which they continue to administer and direct.

The liberation of a considerable part of the formerly Nazi-occupied territories has begun to reverse this process of downgrading regional headquarters of the SD within Germany. As Allied forces approach the borders of the Reich security control within Germany is being constantly tightened and as a result, a number of SD offices have been restored to their original classification, size and importance—a trend facilitated by the influx of SD personnel from areas liberated by the Allies. It may be expected that changes along these lines will not only continue but will be accelerated.

In the discussion of the regional organisation of both Gestapo and Kripo the supervisory and even directing powers of the Bds were pointed out. In the case of the SD this control exists to an even greater degree, and in many instances the Bds may even assume full command of the SD; where this is not the case he definitely supervises and co-ordinates the work of the various regional SD headquarters within his district. The Bds is therefore in constant touch with the Leiter of the (Leit-) Abschnitte.

135. The SD system of Agents

It is obvious that complete control of all sources of information, as practised by the SD, could not be exercised merely through the regional headquarters and branch offices which have been discussed in this paragraph. The Sipo has been shown to have a system of informers which reaches right into the individual household and it is not surprising, therefore, that the SD has developed a network of agents which is spread all over the country and functions as a system of listening posts for the regular SD headquarters. The nucleus of this organisation of agents is formed by a group of regular full-time and paid SD members. These are referred to as hauptamtlich (full-time) and are assisted in their functions by ehrenamtlich (Honorary, unpaid) members of the SD. These agents, both hauptamtlich and ehrenamtlich, direct the activities of the Beobachter (Observers) or Vertrauensmänner (Confidential Agents or "Contacts"). Finally, this more or less professional group is supplemented by a number of so-called Zubringer (Informers) who may be employed only temporarily to supply specific items of information. These are taken from all classes and professions to ensure that every detail of German life is covered.

Observers are chosen from among people who are extremely reliable politically; they are assigned a particular field, as a rule one closely connected with their profession. They are charged with constant observation within that sphere and furnish periodical reports to the SD headquarters which employ them. Sometimes they may be called upon to keep a watchful eye on particular individuals. It is reported that Beobachter placed within factories and offices and indeed even within Party formations, including the SS, operate unknown to their employers or commanding officers. Theoretically the services rendered by observers are honorary, no payment being made to them except for expenses incurred during their duties, but it is known that in practice handsome commissions are frequently given. In one particular instance of large scale confiscations of black-market merchandise the agents were given 10% of the blackmarket price. Usually observers are selected by the chief of the SD headquarters among the larger group of Vertrauensmänner or -leute. These "contacts" are recruited only as and when required; they are employed in great numbers and are generally used for the observation of individuals rather than of general trends. It is reported that as a rule suitable persons are suggested by the local headquarters of the NSDAP, then checked by the Gestapo; finally they are subject to approval by the chief of the SD headquarters. The Vertrauensmänner receive their orders from, and report all their findings to a Beobachter and only in rare instances communicate directly with the SD headquarters. Both Beobachter and Vertrauensmänner are sworn in by the SD before they are permitted to carry out their duties, and card indexes are kept on personal data concerning them.

Regular SD agents are well protected by their organisation. Wherever possible their identity is kept hidden, and instances are known where certain reports have been withheld as a safety precaution, preventing any possible exposure of the informer. They are frequently given code numbers to cover their real identity; a special numbering system serving as a cover for agents has been devised, but details of this system are not available. Judging by a French agent operating in Marseille, who, according to reports, was probably that agents are numbered consecutively and designated by the letters AG (Agent), followed possibly by an abbreviation denoting the locality in which they operate (e.g. Me probably stands for Marseille). It should be noted that the term Agent is only used for foreigners serving as agents for the SD and never for Germans. (Personnel records of agents in occupied territories are probably maintained by Amt VI.)

In addition to the various types of agent so far discussed, the SD make occasional use, especially in occupied territory, of anyone willing to sell information. These "collaborators" do not enjoy the same protection as the regular SD agents, and in some instances are known to have been "eliminated" when their usefulness had ceased.

136. Regional organisation of the SD in occupied territories.

As previously pointed out the Sipo and SD in occupied territories operate in combined commands; such headquarters are organised, along the same lines as the RSHA, in Abteilungen numbered from I—VII. Thus Abteilung III is the direct representative of Amt III in Berlin whose inner structure it more or less reflects. Sometimes the term Sparte (division) is used to indicate the functional breakdown, e.g., "Sparte Gestapo" for the section dealing with Gestapo (presumably equivalent to Abteilung IV).

The largest unit of this kind is the Sipo and SD-Einsatzgruppe, headed by a Chef. The Einsatzgruppe covers a very large area, probably an entire country; for instance, an "Einsatzgruppe der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD Kroatien" has been identified. The Gruppe is sub-divided into a varying number of Sipo-und SD-Kommandos, each headed by a Kommandeur der Sipo und des SD. In Southern France these units were referred to as Einsatzkommandos, and were headed by a Kommandeur or Führer. Apparently there is no difference in organisation between the Kommandos and Einsatzkommandos, but the latter were probably formed as mobile units for the total occupation of France, only later becoming static while retaining their original name. The size and scope of each Einsatzkommando no doubt varies according to local needs; a document of the middle of 1940 refers to two Einsatzkommandos with a combined strength of about 260 men, but the average strength of such a unit is about 70—80.

SD Headquarters in occupied territories may, if necessary, form branch offices corresponding to those discussed in the regional organisation of the SD in Germany, which are known as Aussenkommandos or Aussenstellen and are headed by a Sipo and SD Leiter.

For specific tasks Sondereinsatzkommandos (Special Duty Commands), Sonderkommandos (Special Commands), Teilkommandos ("Part" Commands) and z.b.V. Kommandos (Special Employment Commands) may be formed, according to need. Such units are frequently specialist in function and personnel; their existence is temporary, and dependent on the duration of their mission. For instance, Sonderkommandos are known to have been formed for the evacuation of Jews from their homes and their eventual shipment to Poland. The term Sonderkommando is, also reported to have been used to designate certain regular Einsatzkommandos in the East, sub-divisions of such units being similarly termed Teilkommandos.

This usage may perhaps have arisen because the term Einsatzkommando had by then acquired too

All Sipo and SD units operating in occupied territories are under the command and supervision of the appropriate BdS. Copies of all written communications and reports are also sent to the HSSPf. It appears that in occupied territories the connection between the SD and the Nazi Party is not nearly so closely maintained as it is in Germany and the combined Sipo and SD commands abroad have increased their power by remaining almost completely independent.

137. Foreign and Military Interests of the SD

The remaining three Ämter in the RSHA, Amt VI Ausland (foreign countries), Amt VII Weltanschauliche Erforschung und Auswertung (Ideological Research and its exploitation), and the Militärisches Amt (MI Bureau) are closely linked with Amt III, but their spheres of influence are in the foreign and military fields. Except for the following brief outline they are not dealt with in this book.

As its designation "Ausland" indicates Amt VI (headed by SS-BF SCHELLENBERG) is the foreign branch of the SD intelligence system. Its work is mainly concerned with espionage, sabotage and subversion in territories not under the direct control of the Reich, so that its functions do not overlap those of Amt III, which, as has already been shown, only covers occupied territories where the Nazi Police are in full control.

Much of the information, however, needed by Amt VI for the successful execution of its main assignments must of necessity be collected in occupied territory by its agents, who must therefore work in co-operation with those of Amt III. In addition to this Amt VI maintains an extensive network of agents for espionage in every satellite, neutral, and hostile country; the information thus gained is sent back to Amt VI, where it is sorted and evaluated.

Offices of Amt VI have been established as Abteilung VI within many of the Sipo and SD headquarters in occupied territories. The officials of these lower echelons of Amt VI are subordinate to the HSSPf and to the BdS under him. Reports indicate, however, that in many instances a clear-cut chain of command and channel of communications cannot be maintained; frequently therefore, Amt VI representatives receive orders from, and submit reports to the main headquarters in Berlin without intermediaries. It should also be noted that officials of the Sipo and SD are intentionally left in ignorance about much of the work of section "Ausland" which may be done through their office.

Amt VII, under the title of Weltanschauliche Erforschung und Auswertung (Ideological Research and its Exploitation) was added to the RSHA in 1940. It developed from the Auslandswissenschaftliches Institut (Institute for "Research" in Foreign Countries). The Headquarters is located in Berlin/Grunewald, Delbrückstrasse. Amt VII operates in close liaison with the German Foreign Office in Berlin and probably also with the Geopolitical Institute in Munich. While it is not definitely confirmed whether Amt VII is an organic part of the SD, a study of its functions and operations indicates that in practice its work is always closely connected with, and frequently supplementary to that of the SD.

The general function of Amt VII is the collection of political warfare material to be used by Sipo, SD and other Party and Government agencies. Amt VII observes and investigates all institutes of learning and education, all scientific establishments and all literature and printed matter. Documentary evidence indicates, that in the course of its development Amt VII has increasingly deviated from its theoretical aim of merely exploiting ideological research for official propaganda purposes, and has joined the other agencies of the SD in gathering general information on activities in occupied territories and foreign countries for the work of combatting elements opposed to Nazi ideology and interests.

UNCLASSIFIED

The regional branches of Amt VII, and probably also the main bureau in the RSHA, are subdivided into 3 Gruppen (sections) :—

VII A Hochschule und Wissenschaft (Universities and Scientific matters)

VII B Schulwesen und Erziehungsfragen (Schools and Problems of Education)

VII C Schrifttum und Verlagswesen (Literature and Publishing)

Amt VII was until recently under the direction of SS-OF Dr. SIX, who, accordance to reports, has been replaced by SS-OSBF DITTEL.

The Militärisches Amt was added to the RSHA as a result of the following development. Until the middle of 1944 the Oberkommando der Wehrmacht (OKW—the German High Command) operated its own Intelligence Services through the Abwehr (Military Intelligence). That meant the existence of two intelligence organisations in Germany: the Sicherheitsdienst des Reichsführers-SS as the political information service of the Party and State and the military intelligence system of the Abwehr operated by and for the Armed Forces exclusively. It would seem that functionally the two systems might well stand side by side without interfering with each other, and indeed originally their spheres did not seriously clash or overlap, but during the course of the war and especially as the military situation began to deteriorate, friction arose between them and gradually their former parallel existence gave way to opposition, competition and rivalry. The reason for this development may be found partly in the difference between the personnel of the two agencies. The SD was staffed by the most fanatical followers of the Nazi Party and its full time personnel was derived exclusively from the ranks of the SS. The Abwehr on the other hand was composed of German Staff Officers, many of whom had never favoured National Socialism except for political expediency; in addition, their knowledge of military affairs and their access to inside information on the darker facts of the strategic position of Germany led many of them to take a more realistic, i.e. defeatist, outlook on Germany's future. The orthodox Nazi, in contrast, still believed in Germany's invincibility.

To this basic difference in outlook between the Abwehr and SD must be added certain practical and operational factors. The working machinery of the Abwehr had never reached a very high degree of efficiency and was perhaps tied by too much bureaucratic procedure. The SD on the other hand, newly risen to power, carried out its own aims and those of the SS with scientific ruthlessness and efficiency. As military conquests added foreign territories to the Reich the SD expanded in proportion and (through Amt VI) took over many functions of espionage and sabotage which ordinarily might be considered the responsibility of military intelligence and counter-intelligence. It is not surprising then that rivalry between Abwehr and SD, i.e. between the OKW and the Nazi Party, led to strife.

In June, 1944, the influence of the Party on military matters had reached a point which enabled the SD to cause the organisation of the Abwehr to be disbanded. Its offices became a bureau of the RSHA under the name of Militärisches Amt and the major part of its functions, as well as the funds allotted to them, were taken over by the SD. Under this new scheme the Militärisches Amt became closely associated with and perhaps actually attached to Amt VI under the command of SS-BF SCHELLENBERG.

This extension of SD power into fields far beyond its original scope as a political intelligence service underlines its significance to the Nazis as the carefully chosen, highly-trained and fanatically loyal nucleus of their whole vast system of control. If in the future that system is replaced by underground resistance to Allied occupation the central role will undoubtedly be played, again, by the SD.

PART SIX

LEGAL ASPECTS OF POLICE ACTIVITY

138. Introduction

Before 1933 the powers and duties of the German Police were clearly defined. Article 14 of the Polizei Verwaltungsgesetz (PVG—Prussian Police Administration Law) of 1 Jun 1931 stated that the Police were "to take, within the framework of existing laws, such measures as they deemed necessary to protect the community or any member thereof from all dangers threatening public safety and order." In addition, the Police authorities had to carry out the tasks assigned to them by special laws. In the Weimar Republic, which strove unsuccessfully to be a liberal state, this meant that the Police only took action when a crime had actually been committed, to ensure the maintenance of law and order. The Nazis, however, immediately after their advent to power set out to turn the Police into one of their principal instruments for disciplining the German people. To achieve this the organisation of the Police had to undergo drastic changes, and a new orientation of the principles underlying Police—especially Political Police—action had to take place. The Police was no longer simply an agency for maintaining public safety and order; the so-called "Nachtwächterphilosophie" (literally: "the Night Watchman Idea") was obsolete. The Nazi Police no longer adhered to such outmoded principles as "no punishment without law" or "no crime without law."

The Political Police philosophy of the Third Reich is based on the vague and flexible concept of "Volk" (the People), and the allegedly paramount need to protect it. The Nazi leaders have invested this Volk with a mystical ego which has elected to be governed by the State (i.e. the Nazi Party) and must therefore be protected (in reality, kept in check) by the political acumen of this Party State.

According to SS-BF, Ministerialdirigent Dr. Werner BEST, a leading legal authority in the SS and Police, the Volk is the real stuff of human life. It is an eternal, superhuman collective being, with a single mind, reproducing itself through the offspring of each succeeding generation. The Volk represents the highest scale of values in life; consequently all fundamental concepts of human will and action, all individual standards of morality, must be subordinated to the aim of securing the permanence of the Volk and, if necessary, be sacrificed for it. Every influence working against this supreme standard of life is amoral. This philosophy implies that all creative human effort must spring from the activity of the Volk as a collective being, and Nazi Police law, therefore, is based on nothing more than the "sound instinct" of the German people, as expressed in the will of the Leader.

"Right," as Dr. FRICK, former Reich Minister of the Interior, remarked in 1933, "is that which serves the interests of the German Volk, wrong that which harms it." Having elaborated ad nauseam on this theme BEST, FRICK and other apologists of the Third Reich set out to prove by ponderous arguments that the bear must be strictly controlled by the keeper in the bear's own interest.

This task naturally required full liberty of action for the "keeper" and a subservient Reichstag obediently abrogated whatever constitutional limitations still remained to hamper that independence so necessary for the extension of German Police Power. The Police has become the whip in the hands of the German people's "keeper." The decree for the "Protection of People and State" (Gesetz zum Schutze von Volk und Staat) of 28 Feb 1933 states inter alia:

"Articles 114, 115, 117, 123, 124, 153 of the constitution of the German Reich are suspended for the time being. Therefore, it will be lawful to restrict personal liberties, freedom of speech and of the press, the right to associate and to assemble; to violate the secrets of mail, telephone, and telegraph; to search homes; to confiscate and to restrict property rights— notwithstanding any legal limitations heretofore existing."

Even Metternich, who in his day controlled one of the most powerful and ruthless Secret Police forces in Europe, never went to the length of endowing his agents with the unlimited authority given to the Sicherheitspolizei in Nazi Germany. Under the present régime the Kripo (Criminal Police) may "in the interests of crime prevention" place under arrest habitual or professional law-breakers or other dangerous criminals "even if at the moment of arrest no concrete danger threatens." In fact any person suspected of asocial behaviour (as interpreted by the Nazis) is subject to incarceration.

The Gestapo has carried the use of this despotic power to an even higher degree of perfection, acting in anticipation of activities considered likely, by the Gestapo, to undermine the security of the Volk.

The real significance of this new philosophy, the "safeguarding of the Volk," is only too well known—Gestapo firing squads, Concentration Camps, beatings and torture, and the shadow of fear over the whole of Germany. The Volk der Dichter und Denker (Nation of Poets and Thinkers) has become a Volk der Richter und Henker (Nation of Judges and Hangmen).

While these sinister aspects of the German Police must be stressed, the routine side of Police work also requires consideration; in the problem of eliminating the many dangerous Nazis from the German Police Forces it will be important to distinguish clearly the two sides of Police activity. The Police in Germany, as in any other country, must carry on the everyday tasks of supervision and protection of the public, and for this purpose bureaucratic organisation and machinery governed by definite laws are indispensable. Without any contradiction here to the above-quoted decree permitting the violation of civil liberties "notwithstanding any legal limitations heretofore existing," it is clear that in routine matters, the individual policeman, and even individual headquarters, must be guided by hard and fast regulations and laws; the ordinary police executive official cannot be expected to act on so vague a principle as "the Will of the Leader." Thus while the system is operated and directed by Nazi motives, the individual member functions according to a routine fixed by Police law.

This distinction will be an important consideration when the Allies come to make use of the German Police system. Knowledge of the laws by which it functions will be necessary, so that they may, according to need, be kept in operation or revised ; it may also be of value in the indictment of those who have violated those laws.

139. Legislation governing Police Activities

Police laws in general (Polizeirecht) may deal with the organisation of the Police (Polizeiverfassungsrecht), regulate the terms of service of the Police official (Polizeidienstrecht), or lay down the duties of the Police and their execution (Polizeiwirkungsrecht, more usually called materielles Polizeirecht). Whereas Polizeiverfassungsrecht and Polizeidienstrecht have been, to a large extent, unified and centralised, no such unification has taken place as far as materielles Polizeirecht is concerned, but the PVG is for all practical purposes (although not technically) the basic codification of German Police laws.

Unless otherwise specified, the execution of all Police functions, is, according to the PVG, the responsibility of the Ortspolizeibehörden (Local Police Authorities). These authorities, the lowest level in the Police hierarchy, therefore originally carried out the general duties of the Police as stated in article 14 of the PVG (see para. 138) and performed those tasks assigned to the Police by the legislature of the Reich and of the Länder (States). Under the Nazis, however, the functions of these legislative bodies were in effect taken over by Nazi Government or, indirectly, by Nazi Party representatives, e.g. the Reichsstatthalter and Gauleiter.

No attempt is made in this book to discuss the numerous Police laws as they were published by the Länder. Certain Reichsgesetze (Reich Laws), however, form the basis for Police direction of many aspects of everyday life and give a clear outline of the functions and authority of the Police ; the most important are therefore listed in the ensuing paragraphs. The list is not meant to be either complete or systematic, and for legal details reference should be made to the relevant technical publications. To facilitate such reference correct German titles and dates of issue have been included in the discussion of the various laws and decrees.

The Strafprozessordnung (StPO—Code of Criminal Procedure) makes the Police responsible for investigating punishable offences and taking immediate measures for the prevention of any removal of evidence ; in cases in which death by unnatural causes is established or an unidentified body is found the Police must immediately render a report to the public prosecutor. The Strafprozessordnung also authorises the Länder to punish certain Vergehen by Polizeiliche Strafvorfugung (Police Penal order).

Note.—The terms "Verbrechen" and "Vergehen" which appear, untranslated, throughout this part of the book, cannot be accurately translated, except perhaps by an approximation using such generic terms as "crime" and "offence" respectively. In effect it can only be said that the "Verbrechen" is more serious than the "Vergehen"

The Gerichtsverfassungsgesetz (General Judiciary Act) states that Police officials are assistants to the public prosecutor and as such are obliged to take orders from him. Under the Nazis, however, fundamental changes in the investigation and prosecution of crimes have taken place. Werner BEST speaks of "a reversal in the traditional distribution of tasks between Police and Prosecution." To increase its independence and power the Police has been emancipated completely from the hold which the public prosecutor's office formerly exercised over it ; today it is the public prosecutor who follows the suggestions of the Police in the initiation of criminal proceedings.

To facilitate this work it is important that the local Police authorities maintain Polizeiliche Listen (Police lists) as decreed by the Runderlass (RdErl—Circular Order) of 3 Jun 1940. These lists are alphabetical card indexes of law breakers and their offences ; the cards are in turn the basis of the Polizeiliche Führungszeugnisse (Police Certificates of Conduct) in which the Police attests to previous convictions or to the integrity of the bearer, as authorised by the RdErl of 27 May 1940.

According to Article 330c of the Strafgesetzbuch (Penal code) the Police may also, in connection with the punishment of offences, recruit the assistance of other citizens in case of emergency.

The Reich Laws invest the Police with the necessary authority to aid other public offices and officials in the fulfilment of their duties. For instance the Finance offices, according to article 424, Reichsabgabenordnung (Reich Statute on Taxes, Duties, etc.), and the Postal authorities, according to the Postgesetz (Postal Law) of 1871, may call on the Police for assistance.

Police responsibility for the interests and well-being of the public extends over a wide field. In various matters covered by the Gewerbeordnung (Industrial and Trade Code), for example, the Police are involved ; thus the erection or change of location of any installations causing disturbing noises near hospitals or schools must be reported to the Police.

According to an Ausführungs Verordnung (Regulatory Decree) to the Mass- und Gewichtsgesetz (Law relating to measures and weights) of 20 May 1936 all business establishments using scales, measures and containers of specified size, must submit such instruments once a year to the Eichamt (see para 84 Verwaltungspolizei) for inspection.

Other Police responsibilities include the licensing of entertainment by street performers, sale of papers, sale of alcoholic drinks ; the protection of the public against undesirable public spectacles (RdErl of 11 Mar 1942) ; compliance with the Lichtspielgesetz (Law governing the showing of films) ; the supervision of inns and restaurants as defined in the Gaststättengesetz (Law governing catering places) of 28 Apr 1930 ; the proper observance of holidays in accordance with the Gesetz über die Feiertage (Law governing holidays) of 27 Feb 1934 ; and compliance with curfew laws.

An important responsibility of the Police is the prevention of juvenile delinquency. Thus the Polizeiverordnung (PolVO—Police Decree) of 10 Jun 1943 charges the Police with protecting German youth from undesirable literature and films and with restricting their liberty of movement by such measures as keeping juveniles off the streets and prohibiting their admittance to bars and dance halls.

One of the more important tasks of the Police is the protection of public health. According to the Gesetz über die Bekämpfung gemeingefährlicher Krankheiten (Law to combat dangerous and infectious diseases) of 30 Jun 1900 and the VO (Verordnung) of 1 Dec 1938 the Police must take the necessary protective measures to prevent the spreading of contagious diseases.

Similarly, various health laws regulate the sale of food and call for rigid Police supervision and enforcement. Among these laws the most important ones are the Lebensmittelgesetz (Food Law) 17 Jan 1936, and the Fleischbeschauungsgesetz (Meat Inspection Law) of 29 Oct 1940.

Closely related to regulations of this kind are the Schlachtviehverkehrs VO (Cattle Trade Decree) of 27 Feb 1935, the Viehseuchengesetz (Law covering animal epidemics) of 26 Jun 1909, and the Marktaufsichts VO (Decree for Supervision of Fairs and Markets) of 20 Oct 1942.

Innumerable other aspects of daily life are of course subject to Police regulations, especially as a consequence of the broad powers granted under article 14 of the PVG. Thus, for instance, the Police is responsible for supervising working conditions, measures for accident prevention, control of child labour, sale of perishable food-stuffs, the inspection of warehouses, the enforcement of price regulations and the control of the sale of contraceptives. (See also Verwaltungs-polizei, para. 81).

140. Legal Instruments of the Police

The legal and extra-legal powers of the Sipo and SD—or more particularly, of the Gestapo—have already been sufficiently emphasized (notably in paras. 10 and 100ff). Again, although those powers include the right to make use of all other branches of the Police, such co-operation is not dealt with here; the paragraphs following are chiefly concerned with Police activities which are closer to legal theory.

To carry out the general tasks of protecting the public against any threats to safety and order, as specified in article 14 of the PVG, the Police has at its disposal a number of legal instruments. These can be brought into operation against any person failing to conform with the requirements of the Police that every citizen maintain his property and regulate his actions in accordance with Police laws (Polizeimässiger Zustand and Polizeimässiges Verhalten). Any behaviour contrary to those laws (Polizeiwidriges Verhalten and Polizeiwidriger Zustand) constitutes a threat to public order invoking preventive or punitive measures. Accordingly persons whose actions cause a disturbance or danger (Störer) are answerable to the Police (polizeipflichtig), irrespective of whether or not the Störer is legally responsible for his actions; thus, children or mentally deranged persons are also polizeipflichtig. The owner is responsible for the polizeimässige Zustand of his property (Sachen, i.e. "things" as opposed to persons) whether he himself has caused a disturbance or not; the owner of a house is responsible for the removal of seditious inscriptions from the walls of his buildings if neither the perpetrator nor the instigator can be found.

Some of these legal instruments merely provide for Police instructions to the public, others authorise the Police to perform certain judicial functions by punishing minor transgressions of the law; the third group constitutes an interference with the freedom and property of the individual, and is therefore defined in greater detail by German legislation. The three groups are discussed briefly in the following paragraphs.

141. Police Orders and their Enforcement

Polizeiverordnungen (PolVO—Police orders) are legally defined in article 24 of the PVG. They are addressed to the public in general and must have a formal subject heading indicating the contents of the order, e.g. "Polizei VO concerning the Operation of Taxi-cabs." They must be dated, signed and properly published by the issuing Police authority. PolVO's may cover a wide field as long as they keep within the limits set by article 14 of the PVG. Any Police Authority in communities of more than 5,000 inhabitants may issue Polizeiverordnungen. Offenders may be punished with fines or imprisonment. The maximum penalty which may be imposed depends on the level of the Police authorities as set out in the following table:—

Police Authorities	Maximum Fine or Imprisonment
Ortspolizeibehörde	50 RM or One week
Kreispolizeibehörde	100 RM or Two weeks
Higher Police Authorities	150 RM or Three weeks
Reich Ministers	150 RM or Six weeks

The Polizeiliche Verfügung (Specific Police Order), defined in article 40 of the PVG, is addressed to an individual or a definite group of persons. It may be given verbally, in writing, or posted as a notice, or by means of signs. If given in writing the reasons for the Polizeiliche Verfügung must be stated, but otherwise no formalities are required. Polizeiliche Verfügungen are issued to deal with a particular situation; thus, a signal given by a traffic policeman to stop a vehicle, a telephone call from the local Police station ordering a shopkeeper to remove an offensive book from his shop window, the rejection of an application for a driver's licence are all examples of specific Police Orders.

Zwangsmittel (means of compulsion) is the generic term for the following methods at the disposal of the Police, to enforce compliance with a Police order:

Ersatzvornahme	Performance by a third person
Zwangsgeld	Fine
Zwangshaft	Detention in default of payment of fine
Unmittelbarer Zwang	Application of force

The term Ersatzvornahme may be illustrated in the following way. If a person fails to comply with a Police order, the Police may employ someone else to carry it out, and charge the expenses to the person who failed to act according to the order. The offender is in no way exempted from responsibility for any violation of the law connected with the case.

In cases of a minor offence or failure to comply with a Police order, the Police authority may impose a fine (Zwangsgeld). If the fine is not paid, detention of the person, i.e. Zwangshaft, may be ordered. It should be emphasised, however, that this detention does not represent a penal procedure, but is merely to be regarded as a method of compulsion.

The Police may only resort to the application of actual force (unmittelbarer Zwang) in circumstances specified in Ausführungsbestimmungen (Regulatory Instructions) to article 55 of the PVG. Actual force may be applied by the Police in various ways, such as the removal (Wegführen) of persons or Sachen, boxing, jiu-jitsu, handcuffing, the use of fire hoses, tear gas, rubber truncheons or other weapons, including fire-arms.

The regulations governing the use of weapons (Waffengebrauch) merit closer study. Policemen—unless under definite orders—may have recourse to weapons only in the lawful performance of their duty. Such use of weapons is authorised in the following circumstances:—

- (i) in self-defence
- (ii) to defend persons, or Sachen, whose protection has been entrusted to the Police
- (iii) to break violent resistance to lawful orders
- (iv) to arrest persons caught in the act of committing a crime or under serious suspicion of having committed a crime and attempting to escape arrest or identification
- (v) to prevent a person escaping from prison or to apprehend a fugitive

Furthermore, the use of fire-arms or explosives is, except in instances of self-defence, justified only if previous warning has been given. A crowd must be warned three times—the warning taking the form best suited to the circumstances. Challenges such as “Halt, oder ich schieße” (Halt, or I fire) as well as “shots aimed in the wrong direction” are considered proper warning. At no time, except in self-defence, are fire-arms or explosives to be used against persons appearing to be juveniles. Persons attempting to evade arrest are only to be fired at if they have been found guilty of a crime or are highly suspect of having committed one. Thus, if a wanted murderer is arrested and attempts to escape, the policeman must not fire unless he is convinced of the man's identity as the murderer. Again, if a cyclist riding without cycle lamps attempts to escape arrest the Policeman must not make use of his fire-arms, since no crime has been committed. It should be noted in this connection that somewhat less stringent regulations apply to the Grenzpolizei (Frontier Police) and to Police executive officials guarding and escorting prisoners.

At this point it must again be stressed that these careful restrictions on the use of force are merely the theory; in practice, of course, the Nazis have never been guided by such humane considerations. There are innumerable examples of the application of force by the Nazis when neither conditions nor legal grounds justified such action. Certainly persons labelled as political criminals and “offenders against the sound instinct of the people” are not treated according to the principles set down by German Police law. To take the most obvious example, the Nazis have long since shown that undesirables can most easily be disposed of “while trying to escape” from a concentration camp.

Strafverfügungen (Penal Orders) should not be confused with the previously discussed Polizei-Verfügungen. The latter are specific Police orders dealing with a given situation: a Strafverfügung, on the other hand, is a penal measure against minor offences carried out by the Police authorities in order to lighten the work of the Judiciary. Offences involving a maximum fine of 150 RM or imprisonment for not more than two weeks may thus be prosecuted by the Police authorities directly. Instead of submitting the case to the court for trial the Police authority itself imposes the penalty by issuing a Strafverfügung. This penal order must be in writing and must state the case, the evidence, and the article of law invoked. The accused must be informed of his right to submit the case to the Höhere Polizeibehörde (Higher Police Authority) within two weeks or to the Civil Court within one week. If no recourse to such authority is taken within two weeks the order becomes final and may be executed three weeks after the date when it was served on the accused.

142. Restrictions on Rights of Property

The two most important infringements upon the citizen's property rights are:

Durchsuchung (Search) and Beschlagnahme (Seizure)

The Durchsuchung (search) is applicable to private dwellings and other premises (Haussuchung) or to properties and persons. Entry into a dwelling for the purpose of a search is regulated by the StPO in Articles 102/111. A magistrate or, in an emergency calling for swift action (bei Gefahr im Verzug), the Staatsanwaltschaft (Prosecuting authority) or its assistant, the Police, may order a Haussuchung. The homes of persons suspected of having committed a crime may be searched in order to apprehend the criminal or to find evidence. Homes of unsuspected persons are subject to search only if there is sufficient reason to believe that a criminal or evidence of a crime may be found there.

Haussuchung at night is permissible only for the pursuit of a criminal caught in the act, “bei Gefahr im Verzug,” (under the threat of imminent danger) or to effect the apprehension of an escaped prisoner; night searches are however permissible on such premises as homes of persons under Police supervision, premises accessible to the public generally, premises known to be meeting places of criminals, storage places of goods obtained by criminal means, gambling places and houses of prostitution. Forced entry into dwellings at night-time is also dealt with by Article 16 of the PVG, and is authorised only when necessary to prevent danger to the public or to save the life of a person. The law defines night-time as comprising the hours from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m. from the 1 Apr to the 30 Sep, and the hours from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. from the 1 Oct to the 31 Mar. However, entry into dwellings or premises during day or night-time is permissible under the authority granted by Article 14 of the PVG, or at the request of, or by permission of, the owner.

Persons suspected of having committed a crime may be searched according to Article 103 of the StPO. Whether that article is also applicable to unsuspected persons is open to argument, but decisions of the highest law courts (which are not, however, binding as in the UK or USA,) have been in the affirmative. Furthermore, search of persons or Sachen (property) is permissible under the authority granted by Article 14 of the PVG.

Under certain circumstances Sachen are subject to Beschlagnahme (seizure) by the Police. Sachen which are regarded as important for the investigation of a crime may be seized by the Police, and retained in temporary custody; properties subject to confiscation (Einziehungsstücke) such as counterfeit money, or burglar's tools must be seized and retained. If a person refuses to surrender evidence or Einziehungsstücke, a judge may order the seizure of such properties. In addition the Police may seize properties in the event of an emergency (Notstand) under authority of Article 21 of the PVG, or in application of Article 14 of the PVG. Whenever a person is arrested, all property found on that person is automatically subject to seizure by the Police.

Under the pre-Hitler régime searches of a German home and permanent seizures or confiscations had to be ordered by the courts, as described above. The PVG, which is essentially a liberal law, provides for appeals against the decisions of the Police authorities, and entitles the citizen to payment of indemnity in case he suffers damage through Police action. Where an official has committed an illegal act on his own initiative he himself is to be held responsible; where he acted in performance of his duties, the responsible authority must answer for him in an administrative court.

All these safeguards have, under the Nazi régime, been stripped of their significance by the immunity enjoyed by the German Police, and especially the Sipo and SD, in the ruthless execution of their duties. The Nazi leaders and Police authorities are known to cover up the illegal acts committed by their organisations, and the individual no longer dares to take legal action against the authorities. While the original safeguards of the individual's liberty and property were never legally abolished by the Nazi régime, the decree

"for the Protection of People and State," in suspending certain clauses of the Weimar Constitution carried the powers of the Police to restrict individual and property rights far beyond the legal limits previously existing. The Police may now "in the interests of the nation" seize property and raid homes at discretion. In fact it can be said that all legal limitations of Police Power are in practice pushed aside; persons and properties are subjected to searches indiscriminately, at the will of the Police, and homes are entered by force without legal grounds and at any time.

143. Restrictions on Personal Freedom

The liberal governments of pre-Hitler Germany introduced a set of minute regulations for the protection of certain individual rights and privileges, such as personal freedom, the sanctity of the home, and other safeguards of the liberty of the German citizen. Most of these legal guarantees of individual liberty have been suspended under the Nazi régime, and even those still officially existing are violated daily by the unscrupulous application of Police power. Raids, searches, arrests and detentions over long periods of time have become normal occurrences in the Third Reich. The following discussion of legally authorised infringements upon liberty does not therefore imply that any genuine limitations of present German Police power exist in practice, but merely indicates the machinery set up by law to regulate Police action, in the days when the German Police was a protective, and not an oppressive force.

The right of depriving people of their liberty (Freiheitsentziehung) has, under civilised constitutions, always been reserved for the judicial branch of the government. In Germany the Strafprozessordnung (StPO—code of criminal procedure) provides for restrictions of liberty in the following instances:

Verhaftung (arrest)—Articles 112, 114, 131, 230, 236 and 457 of the StPO.

Vorläufige Festnahme (arrest without warrant)—Article 127 of the StPO.

Zwangsgestellung (see below)—Articles 163 and 164 of the StPO.

Vorführung (compulsory appearance)—Article 51, 133, 134, 230, 236 and 457 of the StPO.

To authorise a Verhaftung (arrest) the issuing of a Haftbefehl (warrant) is required. It is signed by a judge and contains the exact personal data of the suspected person, the crime with which he is charged and the reason for his arrest. It may only be issued when a person is under serious suspicion and if there is danger of his escape or of his obscuring the evidence. If at all possible the suspect must be notified of the contents of the warrant, and must be brought before the judge not later than the following day.

If, after issue of a warrant, the suspect tries to prevent his arrest by fleeing or hiding, the judge or the public prosecutor may appeal to the public for assistance in his apprehension. This appeal to the public, known as a Steckbrief, contains a description of the criminal, the crime for which he is wanted and the prison to which he should be handed over. If a detained person escapes the Police Authority has the power to issue the Steckbrief without a preceding Haftbefehl.

Vorläufige Festnahme (arrest without warrant) may be effected by any citizen whenever a person is caught in the act of violating the law, if there is danger of his escape, or if he cannot be immediately identified. The Police have the additional right to arrest a person if, under circumstances which would normally call for the issue of a Haftbefehl, the danger of his escaping or obscuring the evidence is too immediate for the longer process of issuing the warrant. If not released, the person arrested without warrant must be immediately taken before the judge, who may either issue a warrant or order his release.

Zwangsgestellung can only be paraphrased, as "taking a person, by force, to the police station." The grounds for such action are either suspicion that the person has committed a crime, or refusal by persons witnessing a punishable offence to identify themselves. The Ordnungspolizei, acting on the basis of their general Police power, may also take to the Police station any person who cannot be identified on the spot.

Law courts may order the Vorführung (compulsory appearance) of a person failing to comply with a summons to appear as the accused or as a witness. But the Police themselves—according to article 17 of the PVG—have a right to summon persons in cases involving the investigation of Verbrechen and Vergehen. The law states that in fixing time and date of the appearance, consideration should be given to the special circumstances of the person whose appearance has been ordered. The Police can in this manner enforce compliance with the summons, but cannot force the person involved to give testimony. Here again the wide gap between Police law and Nazi practice must be pointed out. It is a well known fact that the German Police under the Nazi régime, and especially the Gestapo, do not hesitate to employ any means, including torture, to obtain confessions or denunciations from political prisoners.

The Nazis soon added to the above provisions for restrictions on liberty; their legal innovations were, characteristically, aimed at indefinite detention rather than at the immediate bringing to justice of the individual.

Polizeihaft (police custody) was introduced by the Verordnung des Reichspräsidenten zum Schutze des deutschen Volkes (decree of the Reich President for the Protection of the German People), published in the Reichsgesetzblatt (RGBl.—Reich Legal Gazette) of 4 Feb 1933, p. 35. This law is noteworthy in that it marks the first official departure of the Nazi régime from the police system of the old republic.

According to article 22 of the Verordnung any person may be held in Police custody who is suspected of a political crime, of having violated military secrecy, or of having committed Verbrechen or Vergehen involving the use of a weapon. The Ortspolizeibehörde is the competent authority to order and carry out Police custody. A copy of the order, stating reasons, must be handed to the person taken into custody, within 24 hours. The custody becomes arrest if the investigating judge orders criminal proceedings against the suspect. The suspect himself may appeal to the local judge, who decides whether the grounds for suspicion justify the custody. If the judge does not order arrest the Police custody terminates after three months.

Vorbeugungshaft (preventive detention) is similar to Polizeihaft, and is another Nazi innovation. It is the most severe of the measures known collectively under the title of planmäßige Überwachung (systematic supervision). In pre-Hitler days planmäßige Überwachung was employed against professional criminals, criminally inclined persons, and others who might endanger public safety. Persons of these categories were required to report to the local Police station at specific intervals, and certain prohibitions could be imposed upon them. They could, for instance, be prohibited from practising certain trades, entering parks or taverns, or leaving their homes at night. In case of non-compliance they could be punished or arrested. While, of course, retaining the existing procedure for its original purpose, the Nazis went a step further and created a new instrument of Police power, the Vorbeugungshaft. This preventive detention may be ordered by any Kripo headquarters, but, at least in theory, needs the approval of the Reichskriminalpolizeiamt. The period of the Vorbeugungshaft is spent in a concentration camp, and there is no limit to its duration. Prisoners may be released when they have thoroughly improved in the eyes of the authorities. Since persons who are considered as "erblich belastet" (inflicted with hereditary defects) cannot "improve," their release is as a rule not to be expected. Vorbeugungshaft, applied in the interests of what the Nazis call "crime prevention," and reinforced by the convenient theory of "hereditary defects," is clearly an ideal instrument for the removal of any form of opposition; it has, of course, been unscrupulously exploited by the Nazis.

Polizeiliche Verwahrung (police detention), frequently called Schutzhaft (protective custody), was, as defined in article 15 of the PVG, a purely protective measure. Persons needing protection in their own interest (e.g. helpless, homeless or intoxicated persons, persons in danger or under threat), as well as individuals causing trouble or liable to disturb the peace, especially cases of disorderly conduct, can be detained by the Police for a maximum of one day. Minors can be taken in charge and held pending their transfer to juvenile disciplinary institutes.

Out of this harmless measure, the Nazis by a mere turn of words, made a terribly powerful instrument of persecution. On the pretence that persons opposed to the new régime would arouse the wrath of the population against them to such an extent that they would need protection, the Nazis proclaimed that it was necessary to keep such persons in "safe places." Political enemies, Jews, Clergymen, and any "undesirables" against whom no possible charge could be made, became victims of the new application of Schutzhaft and went to fill the concentration camps. A Prussian Administrative Court was quick to state (2 May 1935) that a Gestapo order for detention in protective custody could not be challenged in a court of law, thereby stifling any attempt to see justice done.

144. Policeman and Citizen

In the foregoing discussion of legal theory and Nazi practice, the most striking aspect of the relationship between policeman and citizen is naturally that which concerns the actual machinery of repression. It is, however, on the legal theory that the emphasis of this section is placed; the present paragraph deals therefore with the everyday activities of the ordinary policeman, not with the details of Nazi police tyranny. To the average German the policeman is the visible exponent of the authority of the country and the manner in which he performs his duties is indicative of the general attitude of the government. The individual policeman on the other hand, as the strong arm of the law, is of vital importance to those responsible for the peace of the community as well as to those anxious to perpetuate their power.

In the present context, more detail than was included in the earlier chapters on the lower organisation of the Police, can be given.

The most familiar example of the uniformed Police in everyday life is the traffic policeman at road crossings and other places necessitating special control of traffic. He sees to it that the signals and speed laws are observed. In cases of minor violations he may issue a formal warning, or even exact a payment which is not considered a fine. If the offender refuses to pay, further measures are invoked against him. In these and other dealings with the public the policeman is instructed to be brief and to the point and should, at least in theory, be helpful to the public.

The most important link between the people and the authorities is the patrolman, the representative of law and order on the route assigned to him by his superiors. It is regarded as his responsibility—and is not a mere coincidence—that he should be well acquainted with the residents on his beat. Transfers of patrolmen from one Revier (ward or precinct) to another are, therefore, kept down to a minimum. His duties are extremely varied and extensive, and Police manuals give the following examples:—

To keep the rowdy, rough and indecent under observation;

To protect the public against crimes, and to prevent accidents;

To assist the helpless, the blind, the drunk and the homeless.

He watches the traffic and directs it, if necessary, and draws up reports in case of accidents. Persons selling tickets and goods, or offering their services in public places are required to show him their permits upon request; the patrolman also checks the authorisation of public meetings, parades and demonstrations. In disputes between tenant and landlord he may intervene but leaves the decision to the courts. The patrolman plays a very definite role in criminal investigation; if any violations of the law come to his knowledge, it becomes his duty to take all necessary measures. Thus, for instance, in the case of an anonymous denunciation, the patrolman, while not making any immediate arrests, investigates the matter in a way not injurious to the suspect. He may bring the case into the open only if at least one essential claim of the informer has been confirmed. If a crime has been committed, the patrolman must attempt to apprehend the criminal if possible at the scene of the crime. If that is impossible he must guard all evidence and place it at the disposal of the Criminal Police. For this purpose the patrolman always keeps in touch with the Kripo representative in his Revier.

In cases of minor infringements of the law the patrolman merely records the pertinent facts in his notebook. If the offence is more serious, a Strafanzeige (literally, penal report) has to be submitted. The Strafanzeige includes the policeman's ward number and file reference; name, age, occupation and address of each person involved, i.e. offender, victim and witnesses; reference to the law, article or order involved.

In case of theft or misappropriation, the Strafanzeige also includes the value of the property, and the list of articles held as evidence. In all instances a brief account of the case must be added. A higher administrative Police official then specifies the fine or punishment, and the offender is notified. If a particular case exceeds the jurisdiction of the Police, it is brought to the attention of the prosecuting authority.

Frequently the policeman is approached with complaints or requests by the people in his Revier. If he is unable to cope with them he refers them to the Revier Police station, where an administrative staff (Innendienst) is available to deal with the public. Such Police staffs interview persons willing to communicate their knowledge about crimes, take note of requests for the prosecution of minor offences, and deal with all persons who desire Police permits, wish to enquire about lost property, or are trying to trace a certain address. The size of such staffs and their equipment vary according to the level of the Police authority.

In large cities the intricate Police problems created by congested living conditions and housing require specialised Police administration. There, a separate building, the Polizeipräsidium or Polizeidirektion is the centre of police activities and is equipped with all the facilities necessary for the efficient working of a large organisation. The size of the area requires a sub-division into Abschnitte (sections) and Reviere (wards or precincts), and sometimes even further into Revierzweigstellen (precinct branch offices) and Posten (posts). In Berlin, Vienna and Hamburg, there are also Gruppenkommandos, i.e. command headquarters which direct the affairs of several Abschnitte. In lesser towns the system is the same, but on a simpler and smaller scale.

The Revier comprises a comparatively small area and is commanded by a commissioned officer usually of the rank of Captain or Lieutenant or, in wartime, by a Revieroffizier (defined in para. 147). He is responsible for the efficient working of the Police station, determines the route of the Aussendienst (outdoor patrol service), and makes certain that 24 hour duty is maintained. Official cars and motor cycles are usually available. In addition Police stations are equipped with a few cells, sufficient to accommodate the daily quota of drunks and culprits. Wherever the local requirements warrant it, Polizeigefängnisse (Police prisons) equipped with all modern safeguards have been established.

In the country the Gendarm is frequently the sole representative of the government in a wide area. He, perhaps even more than the patrolman in the city, is in the eyes of the population the undisputed authority. In many instances his office may be in his home, where he keeps his records and files. He may patrol his beat by foot, on bicycle, motorcycle, by car or on horseback. Often a police dog is his only assistant, and the capture of a prisoner may constitute a serious problem to him. In all official matters affecting the lives of the rural population the opinion and advice of the Gendarm is regarded as important.

In conclusion attention must be called to the basic difference between the German policeman and his British or American counterpart. While the latter is generally regarded as the friend and helper of the population, the German policeman is a faithful servant only to his superiors, and is constantly on guard against any sign of disloyalty or coolness toward the régime. He, therefore, watches over the proper display of flags and symbols, and the wearing of uniforms by authorised persons. He is trained to protect the leaders of the Party and of the State, and to guard them against insults and attacks by their enemies. The occupying authorities in Germany, aware of these facts, should make certain that every policeman they employ carries out his duties to the letter, and that his entire conduct takes cognisance of the fact that the Nazi rule is a thing of the past. Yet another aspect of the problem, worthy of emphasis, is that in a "Police State" such as Germany the citizen regards the policeman with awe and respect. Even in pre-Hitler days German children were trained by their parents to fear the policeman rather than to regard him as a friend. This attitude may be said to have become a German national characteristic; it tends to make the German citizen follow the example of the policeman even in matters not actually connected with Police power. This tendency has, of course, greatly increased under the Nazi régime, and has been purposely fostered in line with the Nazi "Führer Principle." The authority and rights (often self-assumed) of the individual policeman have increased proportionately with the general intensification of Police power. It may be regarded as significant that an ex-member of the German Police, when captured and interrogated by the Allies, seemed rather startled when the interrogator questioned the authority of the police to carry out certain illegal acts of oppression. His answer, to him apparently a complete justification, was simply "Aber wir sind doch die Polizei" ("But then we are the Police").

PART SEVEN

THE PERSONNEL OF THE GERMAN POLICE

145. The German Policeman

Before the German Police can be regarded as an organisation useful to the Allied armies of occupation, the reliability of its members will require careful consideration. It seems most apt to preface the study of German Police personnel with a quotation from the Civil Service Law, which states that Police officials can be "relied upon to support the Nazi State unflinchingly." Nevertheless the summary dismissal as Nazis of all members of an organisation whose continued existence is indispensable would hardly provide a solution to the problems facing the Allies. German Police personnel will be required to help carry out the task of maintaining law and order and of policing their country. Although it will be necessary to make immediate decisions according to the local circumstances, some general guidance—by no means conclusive—as to the reliability of groups of officials within the various branches of the Police can be attempted. Past experience would indicate a need for extreme caution; in general it would seem better, when judging the degree of Nazi tendency in a German policeman, to follow the principle of "guilty until proved innocent," rather than the reverse.

The German Police, even in pre-Hitler days, tended to lean politically toward the Right. When the Nazis assumed power, therefore, they found that the Police showed a rather friendly attitude, and the subsequent purge of undesirables within the force resulted in the dismissal of a comparatively small percentage of officials; even of these many were later recalled to duty. Together with the thorough militarisation a process of "Nazification" (see para. 36) began to remodel the Police and eventually led to the virtual fusion of the Police and the SS. Indeed German official documents speak of the Verschmelzung (complete fusion) of the personnel of the German Police with the SS. For this final purpose a set of qualifications for membership in the SS has been defined and is known under the term "SS Fähigkeit." In spite of these drastic measures it cannot be categorically stated that all policemen have become fanatical Nazis, especially since it is known that a number of them waited until as late as 1938 or 1939 before joining the SS. Such personnel may be willing to cooperate with the Allies and might be put to use after careful scrutiny of their individual records.

Within the Regular Uniformed Police, in particular, those men who have become professional policemen since 1933 cannot be regarded as reliable from the Allied point of view, since they were either recruited from the SS or had to produce certificates of political reliability issued by the Nazi party. On the other hand, officials who served in the Police before 1933 (or in Austria before 1938) are not necessarily Nazis by conviction, and merit further attention as potentially useful personnel. Similarly Polizeireservisten (Police reservists) who are non-professional, wartime members of the Police cannot be condemned or accepted as a group, since they represent a cross-section of the entire population. (For further details on the members of the Polizeireservekorps see para. 37.)

Members of the Verwaltungspolizei are regular Civil Service personnel. They are part of the large and typical class of German bureaucratic officials who are distinguished by their literal approach to the execution of their orders. They are often servile in obedience and respect for their superiors, and they encounter the public with a cool and lofty attitude. Even under the Weimar Republic most of these officials were followers of the Right Wing or reactionary currents, because they resented the lowering of esteem suffered by their caste since the glorious days of the "Imperial and Royal Civil Service." But in spite of such retrospective regrets they were anxious to retain their positions and salaries under the Weimar Republic, which needed them as skilled personnel and did not indulge in purges of undesirables. These officials of the Verwaltungspolizei probably welcomed the Nazi regime, which revived and intensified the tendency to regard the masses as subjects, rather than free citizens with the rights of individuals and taxpayers. Beyond that the expansion of governmental functions and powers under the Hitler regime brought rapid advancement to many specialists in the service of the Police and created new jobs for a great number of formerly unemployed or badly paid German civilians. In other words, many of the members of the Verwaltungspolizei are guided by considerations of personal gain and prestige rather than political convictions; while it is probably true that such personnel are at present faithful servants of HIMMLER, it may be assumed that many of them will, if ordered, be ready to serve any government, and thereby retain their ranks and emoluments.

Members of the Sicherheitspolizei and the SD, on the other hand, must be regarded in a totally different light. Any effort on their part to co-operate "willingly" with the Allies will doubtless be rejected. The SD is an SS organisation and the Sipo has come to be completely dominated by the SS; personnel of the present-day Sipo who served in the Police of pre-Hitler days not only had to join the SS, but were subjected to very thorough indoctrination courses. Captured documents reveal that the programme of these courses was not limited to the constant reiteration of Nazi precepts, but familiarised the students with every possible means of Gegnerbekämpfung (Combatting of Opposition) ranging from investigation and propaganda to espionage and sabotage. In view of the ultimate meaning of Gegnerbekämpfung, the bulk of Kripo personnel cannot be regarded as politically reliable from the Allied point of view. However, the services of a small number of trained Criminal Police experts will inevitably be required; their personal records and careers would need to be checked with extreme caution in every instance. All information on the relationship between such personnel and the Nazi Party, in particular the SS, will be of value.

A recent document shows that as late as the middle of 1944 some Kripo officials of ranks ranging from major to colonel were still officially designated as SS-Bewerber (aspirants for SS membership). Since such men must either have tried to avoid membership in the SS as long as possible or have been considered unsuitable for the SS, certain inferences may be drawn as to their attitude towards the Nazi régime. This is, of course, merely one example of many possible means by which the individual case can be investigated (e.g. personnel files, personal documents, membership dates and numbers).

In the case of the Gestapo, not even the most urgent need for skilled Police personnel would justify the employment of any of its members in the post-Hitler police force. The Gestapo's political record rules out the employment, by the Allies, of any German who has at any time been in the service of that organisation. Regular members of the SD are even more dangerous, since they have been chosen exclusively from among the most fanatical and ruthless SS personnel. Both Gestapo and SD members when interrogated after capture, frequently advance motives of material gain as an excuse for their membership and insist that they have never participated in any atrocities. Any such "post factum" apologies are almost certainly worthless; it will probably be safest to regard personnel of both Gestapo and SD—even if they cannot actually be convicted of their crimes—as categorically disqualified from holding any public office in post-war Germany.

As a background for the control of the Police force in Germany and for the treatment of its members, the present chapter deals with the legal status, the careers and the pay of German Police personnel. Such details as can be given, without enumerating the many minute regulations on these subjects, are basic rather than exhaustive.

The ranks and titles used in the German Police are extremely varied and numerous. To avoid confusion and inaccuracies, no translations have been given, but the equivalent SS and Army (German, British and American) ranks have been listed in a comparative table of ranks instead (see para. 170). Furthermore, to convey a clear picture of the ranks used within each branch of the Police, a table of ranks grouped according to those branches has been added in the same paragraph. Reference to both tables will be of value in the reading of this chapter.

146. Legal Status

The personnel of the German Police is mainly composed of civil service employees whose legal status, training and careers vary according to the branch of Police to which they belong. As civil servants, however, all of them are subject to the following laws:

Deutsches Beamtengesetz (German Civil Service Law) of 26 Jan., 1937.

Reichsdienststrafordnung (Reich Civil Service Disciplinary Code) of 26 Jan., 1937 and Reichsbesoldungsgesetz (Reich Civil Service Salaries Law) of 16 Dec., 1937.

Police officials in the narrower sense of the word, i.e. executive officials (Vollzugsbeamte) are governed by a set of special regulations laid down in the Deutsches Polizeibeamtengesetz (Civil Service Law for German Police officials) of 24 June, 1937.

The Deutsches Beamtengesetz regulates the relationship between the employee and the employer, states the duties of the civil servant and the consequences of failure to perform them; it establishes the procedure for appointments and transfers, and lays down the regulations safeguarding the legal status of the official, the duration of his employment and various other matters.

The Reichsdienststrafordnung provides for the following disciplinary penalties:—

Warnung (Warning).

Verweis (Rebuke).

Geldbusse (Fine).

Gehaltskürzung (Reduction in salary).

Entfernung aus dem Dienst (Removal from office).

Kürzung des Ruhegehaltes (Reduction in pension), and Aberkennung des Ruhegehaltes (Forfeiture of pension).

The Reichsbesoldungsgesetz is dealt with later in this part in connection with Pay.

The most important provisions of the Deutsches Polizeibeamtengesetz are as follows:—

Every executive police official receives a certificate on appointment, containing the words "unter Berufung in das Beamtenverhältnis," which means that henceforth he will be subject to the conditions of civil service employment.

After having served as a Beamter auf Widerruf (literally, official on probation), he receives—if he meets certain legal requirements—an appointment for life. All lifetime-positions in the Vollzugspolizei (collective term for the Executive Branches of the Police) and the majority of posts in the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police) are filled with members of the Schutzpolizei (Protection Police).

Police officials of the Kasernierte Polizei (Barracks Police) need special permission to marry, which must not be given to a man less than 26 years old. Police officials—usually up to the age of 27—can be required to live in Police billets.

Polizeivollzugsbeamte des Reiches (Reich Police Executive Officials) may be transferred to the Gemeindepolizei (Municipal Police) if placed in positions corresponding to those formerly held. Similarly, officials of the Municipal Police may be transferred to another municipality or to the Reich Police Service.

Certain regulations on the subject of the retirement age for Polizeivollzugsbeamte differ from those for other civil servants. Officers released or retiring from Police service may be given the honorary title of the next higher rank and the right to wear Police uniform.

A decree of 17 Oct, 1939 subjected all members of the Sicherheitspolizei and the SD and those members of the Orpo organised into units, to the jurisdiction of SS and Police Tribunals in all instances involving crimes (Straftaten) committed by them. A subsequent decree of 8 Aug, 1942 extended that Sondergerichtsbarkeit (Special Jurisdiction) to all members of the Ordnungspolizei and its auxiliary branches (Hilfsverbände). Under this decree personnel of the Feuerwehren (Fire Brigades) Technische Nothilfe (Technical Emergency Corps) and the Luftschutzpolizei (Air Raid Protection Police) are also to be tried by these tribunals, but only for crimes committed in uniform or in connection with official duties.

While the Landwacht is not regarded as a Hilfsverband under this decree, foreign units entrusted with Police duties in the annexed Eastern territory and in the Government General are considered as auxiliary branches of the Police.

Polizei Verwaltungsbeamte (Administrative Police Officials including such political appointees as Polizeipräsidenten and -direktoren) also come under the Sondergerichtsbarkeit, but members of the general internal administration, even though they may exercise Police functions (e.g. the Bürgermeister or the Landrat) are not included. On the other hand, the Gefolge (German personnel employed by the Police), as well as the Women's Auxiliaries, are subject to the SS and Police Tribunals.

For locations of the SS and Police Tribunals see E.D.S./G/8: The Allgemeine SS.

147. Police Careers : NCOs in the Ordnungspolizei.

In discussing qualifications, training and advancement of Police officials, it is advisable to follow the pattern set up by the Germans who, for the purpose of service careers, divide the Police into :—

- Ordnungspolizei,
- Verwaltungspolizei, and
- Sicherheitspolizei.

The basic career in the Orpo is that of the Schutzpolizei. NCO Recruits for the Schupo are taken, if possible, from members of the Waffen-SS, formerly called SS Special Service Troops (SS-Verfügungstruppe), or from the Armed Forces; they originally had to meet the following requirements :

- German citizenship.
- No previous convictions.
- Good health (Wearers of glasses are rejected).
- Minimum height of 5 feet 7 inches (1.70 m.).
- Honourable discharge after two to five years' service in the Army, or four years in the Waffen-SS.
- Age between 20 and 25 years.
- Applicants must be single.
- Passing of a physical and mental aptitude test.

Minimum requirements for the physical test are : 1,500 m. (1,650 yards) race in 6 minutes ; long jump, 4.15 m. ; throwing a handgrenade 32 m. The mental test, consisting of a written and oral examination, is considered as passed when the examiners are satisfied that the candidate will be able to perform his duties intelligently.

It is preferred that the applicant should hold at least one sports badge.

A former member of the Army must, in addition, have the following qualifications :

Deutschgebürtige or artverwandte Abstammung (of German birth or a " racial German ").

Membership of the NSDAP or one of its formations previous to his entry into the Army.

SS-Fähigkeit (SS-qualifications) ; this includes the passing of a thorough examination by SS doctors and dentists coupled with the findings of specialists in racial matters (Rasse- und Siedlungshauptamt) as well as an intelligence and general knowledge test.

An honourable discharge from military service, preferably as an NCO (Unteroffizier d.Res.).

At this point it must be stressed that the above listed specifications for membership in the Police are those originally set down for peace-time conditions. As a result of wartime manpower problems the standard of physical fitness has been drastically lowered and may by now, in many instances, be disregarded entirely. As most of the younger and physically fit men were drafted into the Armed Forces or sent into the lines as members of field units of the Police, older and, perhaps, in some cases even partially disabled Germans as well as foreigners or " Racial " Germans became acceptable and eventually even received priority as potential Police personnel. This development, however, should not lead to the faulty deduction that the standards of political reliability for any of the branches of the German Police, and particularly the Sipo and SD, have been lowered in a parallel manner.

After his admission to the Schupo the candidate receives training in Police companies and is sent on courses for Schupo candidates (Schutzpolizei-anwärterlehrgänge).

The trainees are organised in companies. Advanced training takes place in separate courses. Specialists may be assigned to a Police cavalry school, ski school, M/T school, or a technical police school. For a list of Police Schools see Annexe J.

It should be noted that there are no privates in the German Police. A Wachtmeister (the lowest regular rank) with a good record may be promoted to Oberwachtmeister after 6 years service, and to Revieroberwachtmeister (or to Zugwachtmeister in the Police companies ; see rank tables, para. 170) after 7 years. During their first twelve years with the Police Force, enlisted personnel are appointed on a revocable basis. Thereafter they are promoted to Hauptwachtmeister and receive appointment for life provided they pass a special examination. Membership of the Nazi party and of its sub-divisions is added to the length of their police service and counts towards making up this 12 years service. After 16 years promotion to Meister der Schutzpolizei may take place. The retirement age which has, however, been suspended during the war is sixty for EM (Br. O.R.'s).

officer candidate school may become a Revierleutnant and later a Revieroberleutnant. After having served in that grade for five years and having shown outstanding abilities he may be given the honorary rank of Revierhauptmann, but not before having reached the age of fifty.

The creation of the rank of Revieroffizier was designed to fill the gap left by the drafting of young Police officers to the Armed Forces and was to be an added incentive for experienced NCO's and Police reservists who were too old to qualify as commissioned officers. Since this is obviously a war-time measure, the Revieroffiziere are frequently referred to as Kriegsoffiziere (Wartime officers). As their titles show, they are meant to be in charge of a Revier (a Police Precinct or Ward).

The table on page 101 shows paygroups (see para. 164), average yearly basic salary in Reichsmark, average age of appointment and age limit of the NCOs and Revieroffiziere of the Orpo.

The ranks of Anwärter and Unterwachtmeister have been omitted since they are preliminary stages preceding the appointment to Rottwachtmeister.

Members of the Gendarmerie start their career in the Motorisierte Gendarmerie, for which only Wachtmeister with 4 years' service—two in the army and two in Police companies—are eligible. After having served from 5 to 6 years in the motorised units they are tentatively transferred to the Gendarmerie des Einzeldienstes (Single Service) with the rank of Bezirksoberwachtmeister z. Pr. (zur Probeführung—on trial) or Hauptwachtmeister z. Pr. depending on the total length of their previous service.

During the trial period they undergo a three months' course at a Gendarmerie school and may, either upon recommendation of the Police authority in charge of training or at their own request, go back to the Schutzpolizei. After the completion of the trial period and having passed another examination the Rural Policeman receives his assignment. Appointment for life in the rank of Hauptwachtmeister der Gendarmerie follows after a total of 12 years' service with the Police.

In all other respects the careers and ranks of the non-commissioned officers and Bezirksoffiziere of the Gendarmerie correspond to those of the non-commissioned officers and Revieroffiziere of the Schutzpolizei.

Ranks and careers in the Wasserschutzpolizei are identical with those of the Schutzpolizei. Special qualifications for an appointment are as follows: Maximum age is 26 years and 30 months experience at sea or on inland waterways is required. All NCOs are trained for a period of one year at the Waterways Protection School originally in Stettin, but moved August, 1944 to Lauterbach on Rügen.

The personnel of the Feuerschutzpolizei consists of former members of the professional fire-fighting organisations. Personal qualifications, ranks and

 Note, until 1931 £1 was equal to RM 20.40, and $1 to RM 4.20 (or roughly 1 RM to 1/- or 25c.), a value which approximately corresponds to buying power. Before the outbreak of war, when German currency was already rigidly controlled £1 equalled approximately RM 12 and $1 approximately RM 2.50 (or 1 RM=1s. 8d. or 40c.). Actually the value of 1 RM in the free market was then already much lower and indications are that it will most likely after cessation of hostilities be fixed at an even lower level.

careers are similar to those in the Schupo. All candidates for the force must attend special Fire Fighting schools.

The nucleus of the Luftschutzpolizei, created in 1942, was taken from the personnel of the SHD (Security and Assistance Service) who, up to that time, had formed the nucleus of all ARP services. Another part of the personnel, experienced in repair and demolition work, was drawn from the Technical Emergency Corps. The average age is believed to be 45. Members of the Air Raid Protection Police are full-time personnel drawn principally from the Polizei-Reservekorps and should not be confused with members of auxiliary organizations doing part-time service.

The general requirements for the Technische Nothilfe are the same as for candidates for the Orpo.

Note: A decree by HIMMLER promulgated late in 1943 assigned uniform ranks to the following Technische Hilfspolizeien (Technical Auxiliaries to the Police):

Technische Nothilfe (Technical Emergency Corps).

Freiwillige Feuerwehren (Volunteer Fire Fighting Brigades).

Luftschutzpolizei (Air Raid Protection Police).

For old and new ranks see rank table, para 170.

148. Commissioned Officers of the Ordnungspolizei

Officers of the Schutzpolizei are primarily recruited from graduates of the SS-Junkerschulen (SS-officers schools) in Bad Tölz, Brunswick and Klagenfurt. It was intended that all officers should be drawn from this source, but because of the great demand for SS leaders in all branches of the administration and in the Waffen-SS, an indefinite number of commissions in the Schupo still remain open to members of other Nazi organisations.

These candidates from other organisations must have all the qualifications of the enlisted personnel (OR); in addition they must have had a secondary school education, and qualify as a candidate for commissioned rank. Every candidate has to apply for membership in the SS before starting his training.

Police training is given at the police training and police officers' schools located at Berlin-Köpenik and Fürstenfeldbruck (Bavaria).

Promotions to higher ranks depend on ability, efficiency and seniority. Every officer of the Orpo has to pass a written examination before he can become a Hauptmann (Captain). This examination not only includes Police subjects but national and world politics as well. Promotion from Hauptmann to Major is only granted after the candidate has successfully concluded a three months' course at a police officers' school. A special Schule für Generalstabsausbildung der Ordnungspolizei (School for General Staff Training in the Orpo) exists in Dresden.

For entry into the Wasserschutzpolizei a diploma testifying to the experience of the candidate at sea (Seesteuermann auf grosser Fahrt) is also required.

Officers for the Gendarmerie are taken from the officers' corps of the Schupo. Service in the motorised units precedes service in the Einzeldienst.

Officers' ranks in the Feuerschutzpolizei are identical with those of the Schupo. All officers must graduate from the Fire Fighting school for officers at Eberswalde.

salary in Reichsmark, average age of appointment and age limit of the commissioned officers of the Orpo.

149. Women Auxiliaries of the Regular Police

The expansion of the German Police, especially with regard to communications, has brought about the employment of women on an ever increasing scale. These Helferinnen may be employed as telephone, teletype, and radio operators (Nachrichtenhelferinnen), or as stenotypists and for general office work (Stabshelferinnen), within the Reich as well as in the garrisons and police offices in the occupied territories. Girls and women of German (or related) blood are eligible, preference being given to those who have had previous office experience. The training lasts 6 months; its main purpose is to familiarise the Helferinnen with the equipment they have to use. Unter- führerinnen (comparable to NCOs) have to pass a course at the Polizeischule für Helferinnen der Ordnungspolizei at Erfurt. Führerinnen (comparable but not equal in rank to officers) are appointed by the Hauptamt Orpo and are charged with the welfare and supervision of their subordinates. Legally the Helferinnen are Gefolgschaftsmitglieder (non Civil Service Personnel) and their pay (Vergütung) and all other conditions of employment are fixed by a Tarifordnung (Tariff Code; see para. 156).

150. Verwaltungspolizei

Administrative Officials do not only make up that part of the Orpo known as the Verwaltungspolizei, they are also employed in all other branches of the Police wherever duties in connection with the Police's own administration have to be performed.

UNCLASSIFIED

There exists, in addition to the Verwaltungspolizei, a Verwaltungsdienst of the Orpo and a Verwaltungsdienst of the Sipo in contrast to the Vollzugsdienst (Executive Service) of these branches.

The Verwaltungsdienst of the Sipo is therefore discussed together with the Verwaltungsdienst of the Orpo in the following paragraphs.

All Administrative Officials come under the provisions of the Deutsches Beamten-gesetz (German Civil Service Law), but the Polizeibeamtengesetz (Law concerning Executive Police Officials) is not applicable to them. The authorities of the Orpo and Sipo have the right to lay down regulations governing qualifications and training of administrative officials employed by them.

It is certain that the members of the Verwaltungsdienst of the Sipo are just as devout followers of the Nazi régime as is the rest of the Security Police, which may not be true to the same extent of the administrative officials of the Orpo, many of whom may be in the first place bureaucrats and only secondly convinced Nazis.

The activities of the Administrative Service are many and varied, and range from messenger service to Senior Police Officials and high grade Civil Servants. German tables of organisation distinguish between the following groups of Administrative Officials:—

Einfacher Polizeiverwaltungsdienst — Lower Grade in the Police Administration.

Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst — Intermediate Grade in the Police Administration.

Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst — Senior Grade in the Police Administration.

Höherer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst — Superior Grade in the Police Administration.

Technische Polizeibeamte (Technical Police Officials) also belong legally to the Administrative Branch. They will be discussed in para. 155.

151. Administrative Officials of the Einfacher Polizeiverwaltungsdienst

Personal qualifications for employment in the Einfacher Polizeiverwaltungsdienst (Lower Grade in the Police Administration) are as follows:

Polizeidiensttauglichkeit (Suitability for Police duties)

Age between 21 and 45

Membership of the NSDAP or one of the Party formations

Attendance of an elementary school (Volkschule); in doubtful cases passing of an examination set by the Verwaltungspolizei

SS-Fähigkeit is indispensable if the candidate is to serve in the Sicherheitspolizei, but is regarded as a desirable qualification in all branches of the German Police.

As a result of wartime manpower shortage many of the requirements for candidates for this branch have, however, been relaxed, as has previously been pointed out in connection with the Regular Uniformed Police.

Preference is given to Schupo members with 8 years' service for whom 80 per cent. of all openings are reserved. Training is given on the job and candidates hold the rank of Amtsgehilfe auf Probe (Office Help on trial) during a probationary period. After six months the "auf Probe" is dropped and in the case of Schupo members appointment for life is given after two years.

Amtsgehilfen act as messengers and are supervised by a Botenmeister (Head Messenger) who is also in charge of incoming and outgoing mail. Hausmeister (Caretaker or Building Superintendent) are responsible for the cleaning, lighting and heating of office buildings.

A Botenmeister or a Hausmeister may be promoted to Betriebsassistent, or if he has the necessary qualifications to Vollziehungsbeamte (an Official who collects fines imposed by the Police).

Officials employed in police prisons (Polizei-gefängnisbeamte), also belong to the Lower Service, but constitute a group by themselves.

Promotions from the Lower Grade to the Intermediate Grade are only given in exceptional cases.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salaries and average age of retirement in the Einfacher Dienst:—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary	Retirement age
Amtsgehilfe	10b	1700-2400	65
Botenmeister	10b	1700-2400	65
Hausmeister	10b	1700-2400	65
Betriebsassistent	10a	1759-2550	65
Vollziehungsbeamter	9	1800-2700	65
Pol. Gefängnisoberwachtmeister	9	1800-2700	65
Pol. Gefängnishauptwachtmeister	9	1800-2700	65
Pol. Gefängnisverwalter	7a	2350-3500	65
Pol. Gefängnisoberverwalter	5b	2300-4200	65

* See chart para. 164.

152. Administrative Officials of the Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst

90 per cent. of all positions in the Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst (Intermediate Grade) are reserved for members of the Schutzpolizei des Reiches. The Gestapo is an exception to this rule. Because of the confidential nature of the work only 50 per cent. of its administrative officials of the Intermediate Grade are drawn from the Schutzpolizei, the remaining half being made up of special civilian personnel.

UNCLASSIFIED

Having done 12 months' preparatory service, all candidates for the Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst must pass an examination and are then appointed Polizeiassistent. Candidates from the Lower Grade may be admitted in exceptional cases provided they are not more than 45 years old.

Civilian candidates for the Mittlerer Dienst have to meet the following requirements:—

Polizeidiensttauglichkeit

Age between 21 and 41

Membership of the NSDAP or one of the Party formations

Attendance at an elementary school, in doubtful cases passing of an examination set by the Verwaltungspolizei

Proficiency in shorthand

SS-Fähigkeit is required if the candidate is to serve in the Sipo

Training for a civilian candidate also lasts for 12 months and includes service with various Police Authorities. During that period civilian candidates are called Polizeiassistentenanwärter and draw a living allowance only. This period terminates with an examination for the Intermediate Grade. After passing the examination candidates are appointed apl. (ausserplanmässig—supernumerary) Polizeiassistent and receive a regular appointment after three more years.

Officials of the Intermediate Grade are in charge of the less difficult office duties.

Promotion from Polizeiassistent to Polizeisekretär is given whenever a vacancy occurs, according to a seniority list kept by the office of the Reichsführer-SS und Chef d Dt Polizei. In addition, length of membership in the Party, military decorations and number of children are considered. In the Security Police promotion to Polizeisekretär may take place after two years of service or in cases of outstanding merit after one year. Members of the SS must attend an SS-Führerlehrgang (Officers' training school) before promotion is granted.

Polizeisekretäre with above-average abilities may qualify for the post of Obersekretär on reaching the age of 40. In the Security Police the Polizeisekretär must serve three years in that rank before he can qualify for appointment to Polizeiobersekretär.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salaries, average age of retirement in the Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst:—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of Appointment	Retirement age
Pol. Assistent	8a	2100–2800	25–33	65
Pol. Sekretär	7a	2350–3500	27–35	65
Pol. Obersekretär	5b	2300–4200	38–45	65

* See chart para. 164.

153. Administrative Officials of the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst

Half of the posts in the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst (Senior Grade) are reserved for the NCOs of the Schupo with at least 12 years of service; the remainder go to the few who are admitted from the Intermediate Service and to civilian candidates.

Candidates from the Schupo have to go through three years of preparatory service and have to pass two examinations. The Kalkulator-Prüfung to ascertain their knowledge of accountancy and financial administration, and the Polizei-Inspektorenprüfung, which terminates the preparatory service. Upon successful completion of these examinations the candidate is given the title of apl. Polizeiinspektor.

A candidate from the Mittlerer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst, provided he is not more than 45 years old, may be admitted to the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst, if he has shown outstanding abilities. Preparatory service, in that case, lasts two years and the Kalkulator-Prüfung is not required. Even after passing the Polizeiinspektorenprüfung (examination for the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst), the candidate still holds his old rank until his final appointment as Polizeiinspektor.

Civilian candidates have to meet the following requirements:

Polizeidiensttauglichkeit (Fitness for Police duties)

Age for apprentices not over 17, for holders of a Reifezeugnis (certificate given to graduates of a Mittelschule, i.e. school immediately below university level) not over 30.

Membership of the NSDAP or one of the Party formations

Honourable discharge from the Reich Labour Service and the Army for holders of the Reifezeugnis

Possession of a Reifezeugnis, or attendance of a secondary school and advanced courses

Proficiency in shorthand

SS-Fähigkeit is required if the candidate is to serve in the Sicherheitspolizei.

The training period consists of an apprenticeship followed by the preparatory service, except for holders of the Reifezeugnis, who start immediately with the preparatory service.

The apprenticeship lasts for two years during which time the candidate is called a Verwaltungslehrling (Apprentice in the Administrative Service). He gets an allowance of RM. 50— per month in the first year and RM. 60— per month in the second. After completion of his apprenticeship a Lehrling has to do his Reich Labour Service and his Army Service, and is expected to leave the Army as a Reserve Officer Candidate.

The preparatory service lasts for 3 years, during which the candidate holds the rank of Polizeiinspektoranwärter. After having passed the Kalkulator-Prüfung and towards the end of his preparatory service the candidate attends a course at the Police School for Administrative Officials of the Orpo at München-Haar (Administrative Officials of the Sipo, however, go to Braunau).

After passing the Inspektorenprüfung he is appointed to apl. Polizeiinspektor and draws Diäten (Food and Lodging Allowance) until his final appointment as Polizeiinspektor.

Officials of the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungs- dienst are employed for difficult office work and are usually found in executive positions. Promotions are given according to ability and seniority. Detailed information is available only for the Sipo. There a Polizeiinspektor may be promoted to Polizeioberinspektor after 3 years, and to Polizeirat after an additional period of 2 years.

Aside from the officials mentioned a specialist group of officials, e.g. Rentmeister, is employed for the financial administration of the Police.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salaries, and average age of appointment and retirement in the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM per year)	Av. age of Appointment	Retirement age
Pol. Inspektor Pol. Rentmeister	4c2	2800-5000	27-35	65
Polizeioberinspektor Polizeirechnungsrevisoren	4b2	3000-5500	31-39	65
Polizeioberrentmeister Oberbuchhalter	4b1	4100-5800
Pol. Amtmann, Polizeirat, Landrentmeister	3b	4800-7000	37-50	65
Regierungst¹ und Kassenrat	2c2	4800-8400

154. Administrative Officials of the Höherer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst

Requirements for the Höherer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst (Superior Grade) are only known in detail for the Sicherheitspolizei. It may, however, be assumed that requirements for the Ordnungspolizei are similar to those listed below :—

- Polizeidiensttauglichkeit* and SS-Fähigkeit
- Membership of the NSDAP or of one of the Party formations
- Completion of labour and military service
- Reifezeugnis*
- Passing of the Final Legal Examination (Grosse Staatsprüfung), i.e. candidates must be trained lawyers
- Pure German racial stock
- No criminal record.

Candidates are selected after a personal interview at the RSHA in Berlin. During the ensuing 12 months' training period those selected are called Probeassessor, and after successful completion of this period may receive an appointment as Regierungsassessor. Two years must elapse between the final Legal Examination and a regular appointment to Regierungsrat.

Advancement from the Gehobener Polizeiverwaltungsdienst into the Höherer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst is possible where exceptional ability warrants such a step. In the Security Police an Amtsrat in the Senior Grade may be promoted to Regierungsrat after 5 years, and Regierungsamt-männer and Polizeiräte may also be promoted to Regierungsräte if they have outstanding qualities and especially if they were lawyers prior to joining the Sipo. Further advancements are subject to existing vacancies and political reliability is, of course, an indispensable prerequisite.

Polizeipräsidenten (Polizeidirektoren) are politische Beamte, i.e. officials whose appointment is largely governed by political considerations.

Officials of even higher rank are in effect no longer regarded as Police officials but as high government officials who supervise the service, formulate policy and have over-all responsibility regarding Police matters. They in turn are responsible to the Staatssekretär or Reichsminister in whom the highest authority is vested.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups and salaries of officials in the Höherer Polizeiverwaltungsdienst :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)
Regierungsrat	2c2	4800-8400
Polizeidirektor	2c1	4800-8800
Oberregierungsrat	2b	7000-9700
Regierungsdirektor	1b	6200-10600
Polizeipräsident	1a, 1b	6200-12600

155. Technische Polizeibeamte

The technicians of the Orpo deal with the supervision and care of weapons, transport equipment, technical and optical instruments, signals equipment, anti-gas equipment, and fieldkitchens of the Schupo, Kripo, and Gendarmerie. They assist in the disposal of ammunition and explosives, found or confiscated by the Police, give instruction to other officials and are generally consulted on technical matters.

Candidates with at least 8 years' service in the Schupo are eligible if they have had previous experience as mechanics. They attend a two-year course at the Polizeischule für Technik und Verkehr, and, after an examination and further training at an ordnance depot they are appointed Waffenmeister and cease to be Polizeivollzugsbeamte (Police Executive Officials).

Promotion to Waffenrevisor depends on passing another examination. Legally all Technische Beamte are Administrative Officials, but the technicians of the Orpo come under the jurisdiction of the Kommandeur der Schupo.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salary and average age of appointment for Technische Polizeibeamte :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of Appointment
Waffenmeister	5b	2300-4200	35
Waffenrevisor	4c2	2800-5000	45
Waffenoberrevisor	4b1	4100-5800	50
Technischer Verwaltungsamtmann	3b	4800-7000

Less information is available about the Technische Beamte employed by the Sipo. Most of them seem to be in the service of the Gestapo and it may be assumed that in addition to performing similar duties as the technicians of the Orpo, they have to take care of the wireless, teletype and monitoring equipment at the disposal of the Sicherheitspolizei.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups and salary for Technische Beamte serving with the Sipo :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)
Technischer Assistent	8a	2100-2800
Technischer Sekretär	7a	2350-3500
Technischer Obersekretär bei der Gestapo	5b	2300-4200
Technischer Inspektor	4c2	2800-5000
Technischer Oberinspektor	4b1	4100-5800
Technischer Amtmann	3b	4800-7000

156. Die nichtbeamteten Hilfskräfte or Gefolgschaftsmitglieder

The vast extension of Police activities and the strained manpower situation has led to the increasing employment of less experienced personnel who are used as clerks, typists, and drivers. Such personnel are not given the status of regular officials but are called nichtbeamtete Hilfskräfte (Employees with non-official status), or Gefolgschaftsmitglieder (non civil service personnel). Their qualifications, rights, duties, pay, etc., are regulated in various Tarifordnungen (Tariff codes), and the number of posts available is determined by the Kassenanschlag (Advance Expenditure Estimate).

The following general requirements have to be met by such personnel :—

German (or related) blood. (This also applies to the wife.)

German citizenship
No Police record

Education and training required for the position.

Those seeking employment with the Kripo as Kriminalangestellte must, in addition, be fit for Police duties (Polizeidiensttauglichkeit), meet the requirements of SS-Fähigkeit, and must not be less than 21 years or more than 40 years old. All data presented upon the application for the job is checked against information available in the NSDAP, SD and the Strafregister (Criminal Registry files). In all other respects the decision lies with the hiring authority.

157. Vollzugsbeamten of the Sicherheitspolizei

All designations of rank and position in the Sicherheitspolizei apply equally to both Gestapo and Kripo. The prefix Kriminal- in all these ranks, e.g. Kriminalrat, should not therefore be permitted to create the impression that an official so designated must necessarily be a member of the Criminal Police.

It has been constantly stressed that membership in the SS has become almost necessary in all branches of the German Police and is by this time indispensable for all personnel of the Sicherheitspolizei. To complete this process of fusion of Police and SS special pressure seems to have been applied to members of the Sicherheitspolizei in October, 1943 to join the SS, if they had not previously done so. In order to be eligible they must, according to this order, meet the following requirements:

General SS-Fähigkeit

Membership in the NSDAP or one of its formations (SA, NSKK, HJ) on or before 30 Jan, 1933. Such membership is to be counted even if the official in question has since that time left such organisation honourably or

Membership in the SS as a fördendes Mitglied (sponsoring patron) before 30 Jan, 1933

or

3 years of satisfactory service in the Sicherheitspolizei under the direction of the Reichsführer-SS.

Special additional membership to the SS may be granted by the Reichsführer-SS in person. As a rule, the SS rank conferred upon members of the Sipo corresponds to the rank then held by them in the Police. Those entering the Sipo preparatory service from professions other than the Police join the SS as Staffelmänner (ordinary SS men), and may gradually advance to corresponding higher SS NCO ranks as follows:

Amtsgehilfen a. Pr.	} up to SS-Unterscharführer
Polizeiassistentenanwärter
Kriminalassistentenanwärter
Polizeiinspektorenanwärter	} up to SS-Haupt-Kriminalkommissaranwärter
Kriminalkommissaranwärter

The ordinary tasks allotted to the Sipo are performed by the Vollzugsbeamte der Sicherheitspolizei (Executive Officials of the Security Police). They are either non-commissioned or commissioned officers and recent German publications in discussing their career (Laufbahn) use the following designations:—

Unterführerlaufbahn — Non-commissioned officers

Führerlaufbahn des mittleren Dienstes— Officers' Intermediate grade

Führerlaufbahn des gehobenen Dienstes— Officers' Senior grade

Führerlaufbahn des leitenden Dienstes— Officers' Superior grade

The above careers as well as all the details outlined in the succeeding paras. apply equally to the Kripo and the Gestapo.

158. The Unterführerlaufbahn in the Sicherheitspolizei

Candidates for the Unterführerlaufbahn in the Sipo must meet the following requirements (it should again be borne in mind that physical requirements may have been considerably relaxed as a result of the war):—

- German (or related) blood
- Reich Citizenship
- Political reliability
- No criminal record—good conduct
- Polizeidiensttauglichkeit*
- SS-Fähigkeit
- Possession of at least one Sports Badge (SA or Reich Sports Badge)
- Good education (good command of German in speaking and writing; also shorthand and typing)
- Passing of a classification test ascertaining the candidate's general background
- Age between 18 and 35 (candidates from the Schupo up to 38)
- Membership of the NSDAP or one of its formations
- Preference is given to specialists and candidates with language qualifications.

The training period for candidates extends over one year during which they work in Sipo offices and attend a course at a Kriminalfachschule (specialist's school for Criminologists), concluding with Fachprüfung I (First Specialist Examination). During that probationary period candidates from the Schupo hold the rank of Kriminalassistent z.Pr. (zur Probendienstleistung—on trial) or Kriminaloberassistent z.Pr. depending on the length of their previous service.

Upon completion of the probationary period the candidate receives a regular appointment on an establishment (Planstelle) and the "z.Pr." following his rank is dropped.

Candidates from the Armed Forces or the Reich Labour Service with 12 years' service are called Kriminaloberassistentenanwärter during the probationary period and are appointed Kriminaloberassistent after having successfully passed the course at the Sipo School in Berlin-Charlottenburg.

A candidate from civilian professions receives training for twelve months and is then appointed apl. (ausserplanmässig—supernumerary) Kriminalassistent, i.e. he is added temporarily to an establishment without taking up a vacancy on it.

Normally a Kriminalassistent is promoted to Kriminaloberassistent when he has completed a total of 12 years of service. To make up this total, years of previous service with Party, Police or Administrative Authorities may be counted. The apl. Kriminalassistent is placed on establishment after 5 years, and may, after three more years' service, be promoted to Kriminaloberassistent.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salary and average ages of appointment and retirement for executive officials of the Unterführerlaufbahn:—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of appointment	Retirement age
Kriminalassistent	8c2	2160-2340	25-35	60
Kriminaloberassistent	7c	2000-3000	28-38	60

* See chart para. 164.

UNCLASSIFIED

Civilian candidates serving as apl. Kriminalassistenten are paid a living allowance (Diäten) during their training period.

159. The Führerlaufbahn des mittleren Dienstes in the Sicherheitspolizei

Having passed an SS-Führerlehrgang (SS- Officers Training Course) a Kriminaloberassistent moves up to the Führerlaufbahn des mittleren Dienstes and is appointed Kriminalsekretär. After 3 years he may be promoted to Kriminalobersekretär, and after a further 3 years to Kriminalinspektor provided he passes an examination. Officials not belonging to the SS must pass a course in a Führerlager (Officer's Camp, where they receive SS training and indoctrination) before they can reach the grade of Kriminalinspektor.

The following table shows the ranks, paygroups, salary and average age of appointment and retirement for officers of the Führerlaufbahn des mittleren Dienstes :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of Appointment	Retirement age
Kriminalsekretär	7a	2350–3500	40–50	60
Kriminalobersekretär	5b	2300–4200	45–55	60
Kriminalinspektor	4c2	2800–5000	45–55	60

160. Führerlaufbahn des gehobenen Dienstes in the Sicherheitspolizei

Candidates for the Führerlaufbahn des gehobenen Dienstes may either come from the intermediate grade or from other civilian professions. Both groups must have the following qualifications :—

SS-Fähigkeit and Polizeidiensttauglichkeit

Membership of the NSDAP or one of its subdivisions

Possession of the Reichssportabzeichen (National Sports Badge) and the SA-Wehrabzeichen (SA-Defence Training Badge)

Passing of an aptitude test to ascertain the general background of the candidate and his capacity for criminal police work. This test is set by the Führerschule der Sipo in Berlin-Charlottenburg

Candidates coming from other professions than the Police must, in addition, meet the following requirements :—

Between 18 and 35 years of age

Excellent performance of duties for at least two years following Fachprüfung I

3 months' work in the Reichssicherheitshauptamt under special supervision

Graduation (Abitur, Reifezeugnis) from a Mittelschule (Junior College) or from a SS-Junkerschule.

All Candidates receive their preparatory training by working under various authorities of the Security Police for a period of one to two years. Afterwards they go through a 9 months' course at the Führerschule which concludes with the "Kriminalkommissar" examination.

Civilian candidates hold the rank of Kriminalkommissaranwärter during the period of training and are appointed Hilfs-(Assistant) kriminalkommissar. Civilian candidates receive a food and lodging allowance (Diäten) after the examination. Appointment to a regular post (Planstelle) follows later and is preceded by a six months' trial period during which their designation is Kriminalkommissar a.Pr. (auf Probendienstleistung—on trial). Appointment for life is not given before the age of 27.

Candidates from the officer's intermediate grade are immediately assigned to the post of a Kriminalkommissar and are given the title of Kriminalkommissar z.Pr. (zur Probendienstleistung—on trial) during the 6 months' probation preceding their definite appointment to Kriminalkommissar. Until that time they draw their previous salary.

A Kriminalkommissar may be promoted to Kriminalrat after a period of five years, and to Kriminaldirektor after another five years. It should be pointed out that promotion in the SS may continue even though a man remains in the same rank in the Police or Administrative Service ; for example, a Kriminalrat may advance from SS-Hauptsturmführer to SS-Sturmbannführer without changing his rank in the Sicherheitspolizei (see comparative table of ranks, para. 170).

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, and average age of appointment for officers in the Gehobener Dienst :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of Appointment	Retirement age
Kriminalkommissar	4c1	3900–5300	30	60
Kriminalrat	3b	4800–7000	36	60
Kriminaldirektor	2d	4800–7800	50	60

161. The Führerlaufbahn des leitenden Dienstes in the Sicherheitspolizei

The officials of the Führerlaufbahn des leitenden Dienstes are taken from the gehobener Dienst and it goes without saying that only dyed-in-the-wool party members will be taken into consideration to fill existing vacancies.

The Kriminaldirektor of the Vollzugsdienst (Executive Service) may become a Regierungs- und Kriminalrat after 5 years, and a Kriminalrat who shows outstanding ability and leadership may after a period of 5 years be promoted directly to Regierungs- und Kriminalrat.

* See chart para. 164.

CONFIDENTIAL

No material is available concerning the rules governing promotion to higher posts in the executive branch of the Sipo. It is stated in documents that these should be filled with "men of outstanding merit." It can be assumed therefore, that political considerations, i.e. good connections with high SS-leaders, are deciding factors. The majority of officials making up the Leitender Dienst, however, are administrative officials who have been discussed in para. 154.

The following table shows ranks, paygroups, salary and average age of appointment and retirement of officers in the Leitender Dienst :—

Rank	Paygroup*	Salary (in RM.—per year)	Av. age of Appointment	Retirement age
Regierungs- u. Kriminalrat	2c2	4800-8400	52	60
Ob. Regierungs- u. Kriminalrat	2b	7000-9700	52	60
Regierungs- u. Krim. Direktor, Reichskriminaldirektor	1b	6200-10600	—	60

* See chart para. 164.

162. Weibliche Kriminalpolizei

Personal qualifications for admission to the Weibliche Kriminalpolizei are the following:—

- Age between 23 and 30
- German racial stock
- Good health
- Membership of the NSDAP or one of the Party formations

Experience in one of the following fields: Social welfare, law, economics, youth movement or nursing.

Training lasts from 1 to 2 years, depending on the education of the candidate, and consists of practical and theoretical schooling. An examination (Fachprüfung I) has to be passed, after which the graduate is appointed Kriminaloberassistentin. The appointment, given on a revocable basis, becomes an appointment for lifetime after 5 years provided the official is 35 years of age.

During the training period candidates receive an allowance of about RM 140—per month, but they are paid according to the regular pay-scales for Police officials as soon as they receive a permanent appointment. From that time on they may be employed anywhere in the Reich. Ability and existing vacancies make it possible to advance to the following ranks: Kriminalsekretärin, Kriminalobersekretärin, Kriminalkommissarin, and Kriminalrätin.

Nachrichtenhelferinnen (signal auxiliaries) are used to a large extent by the Security Police and what has been said about the Nachrichtenhelferinnen of the Orpo applies also to them (see para. 149).

163. SS Careers in the SD

Since the SD is a formation of the SS, the ranks held by its personnel are not those previously discussed in the Sicherheitspolizei and bear no relation to them. SD ranks and careers are strictly and at all times those of the SS. The SS ranks commensurate with the various SD functions are therefore given in the following table:—

SD Functions	SS Rank
Hilfskräfte	SS-Unter- to SS-Hauptscharführer
Geschäftsführer (Office Chiefs of SD-Aussenstellen)	SS-Hauptscharführer to SS-Untersturmführer
Sachbearbeiter	SS-Unter- to SS-Hauptsturmführer

SD Functions	SS Rank
Hilfsreferenten (Sub-sectional unit chiefs of the RSHA) and Abteilungsleiter (Section chiefs in SD-Leitabschnitte and with the BdS)	SS-Hauptsturmführer and SS-Sturmabführer
Chiefs of SD-Abschnitte and Referenten (Sub-section Chiefs in the RSHA)	SS-Sturmabführer and SS-Obersturmabführer
Chiefs of SD-Leitabschnitte and Chiefs of Gruppen (Sections) in the RSHA	SS-Obersturmabführer and SS-Standartenführer

Promotions of SD officials to the appropriate SS rank depend on definite prescribed periods of service in the Nazi Party and its formations, as well as in the SD or the Police. The following table defines such required periods of service:—

Promotion to	Active Service in the Nazi Party (Years)	Active Service in the Police (Years)
SS-Standartenführer	12	5
SS-Obersturmabführer	10	4
SS-Sturmabführer	8	3
SS-Hauptsturmabführer	6	2
SS-Obersturmabführer	4	1½
SS-Untersturmabführer	3	1

The compulsory two years of service in the Armed Forces or the Waffen-SS are counted as active service in the Nazi Party.

164. Pay and Allowances

In pre-HITLER Germany Police officials were employed by the various Länder (States) and therefore subject to what were, very often, widely differing laws. It could happen, for instance, that a Policeman in Hamburg received very much more pay—or less, as the case may have been—than his colleague performing the same duties in München. HITLER, in his attempts to unify the German Police, decreed in 1937 that all Police officials were to be subject to the Reichsbesoldungsgesetz (Reich Civil Service Salary Act) and at the same time placed the Polizeivollzugsbeamte (Executive officials) immediately under the control of the Reich Government. A similar step was taken in 1940 regarding the Polizeiverwaltungsbeamte (Administrative officials), thereby making all members of the Police unmittelbare Reichsbeamte (regular Reich officials). As a result, the following categories of pay and allowances for Police officials are now uniformly regulated:

- Besoldungsgruppen* (Pay Grades)
- Besoldungsdienstalter* (Pay Seniority)
- Wohnungsgeldzuschuss* (Lodging Allowance)
- Kinderzuschläge* (Allowance for Children)
- Payments other than Salary
- Pay for candidates for the Police and officials on probation
- Reductions and Taxes
- Pensions and Payments in case of Death.

Nevertheless, regulations concerning pay and allowances remain an inextricable maze and the scope of this book forbids more than a brief explanation of the basic terms. German Police Calendars published for the guidance of Police officials invariably include a pay chart (reproduced on page 112) in order to give a helping hand to the bewildered Policeman who desires to compute his salary.

Column one of this chart gives the pay grade for the various ranks. The appropriate pay grade for each rank has been shown in the tables of ranks and salaries which appear at the end of each paragraph on careers. Column two shows the number of the various Tarifklassen (Tariff Classes), and the bold lines across the chart indicate the limits of each separate class. It should be noted that in the majority of cases the Tarifklasse does not alter with the pay grade. For instance, a Leutnant—pay grade 4e—belongs to Tarifklasse V during his first 6 years of service in that rank, but after that period he moves up to Tarifklasse IV. These Tarifklassen determine the scale of allowances (Wohnungsgeldzuschuss, etc.) to which each rank is entitled. Certain reductions of the basic pay shown on this chart have been permanently fixed by law (see para. 167)*.

Besoldungsgruppen (Pay Grades) determine the salary of Police officials by stating the initial pay and the increases that are given bi-annually. They are consecutively numbered from 1 to 11 and are sub-divided by the addition of the small letters a, b, c, etc. (e.g. 2a, 2b). In some cases a further sub-division is made by adding a number after the small letter (e.g. 2c1, 2c2). In all, there are 30 pay grades (column 1 of the chart) determining the pay scales of posts with lifetime tenure. The lowest grade, 11, sets a rate of RM 1,600—annually for the first two years of service, and the highest, 1a, a rate of RM 8,400—for the same period. Upon receiving a regular appointment, or in the case of promotion, Police officials acquire the pay grade of their new rank. If, for instance, a Hauptwachmeister is promoted to Meister, he goes from pay grade 7c to pay grade 7a which determines the salaries of all Meister. Increases are provided for all officials of the Police with the exception of officers of General's rank and in the case of the Police Presidents of Berlin, Hamburg and Wien, whose salaries are fixed.

The Besoldungsdienstalter (Pay Seniority) determines the number of increases to which an official is entitled and starts from the day of his regular appointment. In the initial appointment it is identical with the length of service. On receiving promotion, however, the official changes his pay grade, but does not as a rule retain his previous pay seniority. In order to prevent an excessive increase in salary the Besoldungsdienstalter—while not entirely cancelled—is curtailed to a pay seniority ranging from 4–8 years, varying with each individual pay grade. For example, a Polizeiinspektor (pay grade 4c1) with a pay seniority of more than 6 years, drawing annually RM 3,600—if promoted to Polizeioberinspektor (pay grade 4b1) would not be entitled to a salary of RM 5,200—but owing to his new Besoldungsdienstalter will, in all likelihood, get paid according to column "after 2 years" and receive RM 4,400—a year.

Supernumerary (ausserplanmässig) personnel, candidates with previous civil service experience, and candidates discharged from military or labour service, get some credit for time served before receiving their regular appointment and their Besoldungsdienstalter is raised accordingly.

A Wohnungsgeldzuschuss (Lodging Allowance) is given to every Police official holding a regular appointment. The amount is determined by the following factors: size of the town where the official is employed and resides, pay grade, marital status and number of children. It ranges from RM 96 to RM 2,520 per annum. Unmarried Police officials without dependents receive a lower lodging allowance than is prescribed for their actual pay grade. Unmarried Wachmeister belonging to the Kasernierte Polizei (Barrack Police) are not entitled to a lodging allowance, but become eligible as soon as they get married or are transferred to the Einzelendienst (Single Service).

Örtliche Sonderzuschläge (Special Local Allowances) amounting to 3 per cent. of the basic pay, are given to Police officials residing in places where economic conditions warrant such an allowance.

Kinderzuschläge (Allowances for children) are paid for all children of Police officials regardless of whether they are legitimate, adopted, foster, or illegitimate. The rates are RM 20 monthly for each child and an additional allowance (Kinderbeihilfe) of RM 10 is paid from the third child onward. Kinderzuschläge are only paid until the

* According to more recent information, German Police pay has been newly regulated and simplified by the RFSS u.Ch.d.Dt.Pol. under a decree of 9 Nov 1944, which states that the Police is to receive payment according to the Einsatz Wehrmachtgebührgesetz (EWGG—law governing Pay of the Armed Forces in the Field), as published in the Reichsgesetzblatt I, page 290. This decree states as reason for the new pay regulation that nowadays the employment of the Police is identical with that of the Armed Forces, and that their pay should therefore be the same. This fact is of particular interest because it confirms the military nature of all branches of the German Police, which has so frequently been stressed in the preceding chapters of this book.

In detail the new pay regulation decrees that all members of the German Police are to receive uniform Army Pay (Wehrsold), food and supplies, quarters, clothing, field allowances (Frontzulage) and medical care. The new regulation applies to all those members of the German Police who are entitled to receive the SS-Soldbuch (see paragraph 184), with the exception of the non-uniformed officials of the staatliche Polizeiverwaltungs- und Wirtschaftsdienst, the Freiwilligen der Deutschen Polizei, members of the Schutzmannschaften and of the Hilfspolizei, who will continue to receive pay according to previously existing regulations.

The details, pay charts and tariff classes of the new pay regulation would by far exceed the scope of this study. Any such tables, when actually used, will however include references to the previous tariff classes and the latter are therefore still useful. Furthermore, as was stated in the introduction to this chapter, the main purpose of this study of German Police pay is to enable the Allied occupation authorities to familiarise themselves with the regular and pre-war levels of pay, and it is of little practical importance to know the last minute privileges which the Nazi Government has decided to grant to Police personnel.

child reaches the age of 16 unless it continues schooling or does not earn more than RM 40 a month. In these cases the allowance continues until the 24th year. In special cases where the child is incapacitated or education is interrupted by Reich labour service or military service, the allowance may be continued after the age of 24.

165. Payments other than salary

The salary of a Police official may also be augmented by various other payments. These may be reimbursements for expenses incurred, allowances for service outside Germany, payments to relieve temporary distress, and so forth. Some of the more usual ones are listed below:

The Gehaltszuschuss (Vergütungszuschuss) of RM 15 monthly is paid to Executive Police officials drawing less than RM 7,000 per annum. It is supposed to cover local fares, but its payment is continued even though the recipient enters the Armed Forces. Payment is stopped only on retirement.

The Protektoratszulage is paid to German Police officials and civilian employees (Gefolgschaftsmitglieder) serving away from home in Bohemia or Moravia. It ranges from RM 30 to RM 90 monthly for married personnel. Single persons receive about one half of that amount, but never less than RM 20.

The Aufbauzulage is the same as the Protektoratszulage, but applies to the incorporated Eastern territories with the exception of the city of Danzig.

The Gouvernementszulage is paid to officials in Poland (General-Gouvernement) with monthly rates for married personnel ranging from RM 90 to RM 170, single persons receiving about half as much.

The Bewegungsgeld is an allowance of RM 30 monthly, paid to Kripo officials to cover expenses incurred while conducting investigations (visits to restaurants, bars, etc.).

A set of detailed regulations coming under the heading of Reise- und Umzugskostenvergütung, determine the reimbursements to be paid in case of official travel, or of expenses caused by the transfer of officials.

Temporary employment at another office requiring the official to leave his place of residence entitles him to a Beschäftigungsvergütung.

The Dienstbereitschaftsgeld—RM 20 per month—is paid to all officials of the Gestapo, the GFP (Secret Field Police), but not to any other Sipo or Orpo personnel. The Gestapo also has an allowance known as "Gefahrgeld" (danger money), amounting according to reports to RM 20 to 30 a month. It is not clear whether such an allowance is identical with the Dienstbereitschaftsgeld or not. These extra allowances cause many candidates to choose Gestapo rather than Kripo service.

Dienstkleidungszuschüsse are given to officers who have to provide their own uniforms. Non-commissioned officers have their uniforms issued to them.

The Einsatzbesoldung entitles Police Reservists recalled to active Police duty to the same pay, allowances, etc. as regular Police officials. While serving with the police field forces, however, officials continue to draw their peacetime salary.

Gehaltsvorschüsse (Salary Advances) up to the amount of one month's pay may be granted to Police officials who need money due to extraordinary circumstances (serious sickness or death of a member of the family, wedding, etc.). Members of the Sipo may be given advances to buy SS uniforms. The advanced money must be repaid within 1, or at most, 2 years.

A similar purpose is served by the granting of Beihilfen (financial aid) in cases of death, illness, dental treatment or childbirth. The Police will contribute 60 to 80 per cent. of the expenses incurred.

Unterstützung (relief) is granted to persons finding themselves in a desperate economic situation through no fault of their own. Widows and orphans of Police officials may be granted a fortlaufende Unterstützung (continuous relief).

As a rule Police officials have no claim to a cash reimbursement for medical treatment since they are entitled to freie Heilfürsorge (free medical care). This includes:

- Doctor's care
- Supplying of medicines, artificial limbs, orthopaedic and other aids
- Dental care
- Specialist's care
- Hospital care
- Recuperation in Police homes
- Recuperation in spas and health centres
- Special arrangements in cases of injury received in the course of duty.

To provide special medical care for German Police personnel a number of Police hospitals and health centres have been established. The most important ones of these are:

- Staatskrankenhaus der Polizei* in Berlin
- Polizei-Krankenhaus* München
- Polizei-Krankenhaus* Wien
- Polizeikuranstalt* Badgastein
- Polizeikuranstalt* Biesenthal
- Polizeikuranstalt* Karlsbad
- Polizeikuranstalt* Freienwalde
- Polizeikuranstalt* Lauterbach
- Polizeikuranstalt* Rohitsch-Sauerbrunn
- Polizeikuranstalt* Wiesbaden
- Polizeikuranstalt* Bad Röttenbach/Schwarzwald
- Polizeikuranstalt* Haus Gutenberg in Bad Schwalbach

It should be noted that the designation Polizei-Kur lazarett has recently been substituted by official decree for Polizeikuranstalt; in practice this substitution may not in all cases have been made.

Members of a Police official's family receive a limited amount of free medical care.

In case of special Urlaub (leave) over extended periods of time all payments to Police officials are stopped. This does not of course apply to ordinary leaves, Erholungsurlaub (sick leave) or Urlaub aus besonderen Gründen (compassionate leave). During wartime ordinary leave is limited to 21 days a year at the most. If special leave is granted in the interest of the public, e.g. for special studies, etc., the official may draw his full salary for the first 6 weeks, and half his salary up to the 6th month.

166. Pay for Candidates for the Police and Officials on Probation

Before receiving a regular appointment candidates for positions in the German Police must, as a rule, undergo a period of preparation which may in turn lead to a supernumerary appointment (ausserplanmässig). During the initial stage of this employment pay depends on the candidate's occupation before joining the Police.

Zivilianwärter (Civilian Candidates) receive Unterhaltszuschüsse (living allowances) ranging from RM 110 to RM 140 monthly in the case of single persons, the amount depending on age and type of service. Rates for married personnel range from RM 125 to RM 200. No reduction under the Gehaltskürzungsverordnung (see para. 167) is made from these rates, but neither are provisions made for an increase in pay. Civilian candidates are entitled to an allowance for children, but not to any special local allowance. Preferential treatment is accorded to old Party members, not only in the distribution of jobs, but actually in the amount given in pay and allowances.

Versorgungsanwärter (candidates with previous civil service experience) receive payments (Vergütungen) amounting to 75 to 100 per cent. of what would be their starting salary if they held a regular appointment. They are entitled to all the additional allowances of a regular official, but are subject to the regulations concerning reduction of salary (see next para.).

Pay regulations for Militäranwärter (candidates who have served in the Armed Forces) are dealt with in a separate law of 20 Jan, 1940, but no detailed information concerning it is available.

The appointment to ausserplanmässiger Polizeibeamter represents the last step before receiving a regular appointment. This status is in many respects similar to that of the planmässige official, except that the position to which the man is appointed is not an integral part of the establishment, in which he works. The salary of supernumeraries—Diäten—is regulated in Annexe 5 of the Reichsbesoldungsgesetz and leads gradually up to the pay of a regular official.

The following is a pay table for Candidates for the Police and officials on probation:—

Officials who, if holding a regular appointment, would be placed in pay grade:—	In the first 2 years (Versorgungsanwärter in the first year):—	After 2 years (Versorgungsanwärter after the first year):—	In the fifth year (Versorgungsanwärter in the fourth year):—
2c2	3 400 RM.—per year	3 950 RM.—per year	4 400 RM.—per year
3a (2e), 3c and the Kriminalkommissare from 4c1	2 500 „ „ „	2 900 „ „ „	3 300 „ „ „
4c2 and 4e	2 000 „ „ „	2 300 „ „ „	2 600 „ „ „

11	1 250 „ „ „	1 300 „ „ „	1 400 „ „ „

The Diätendienstalter (Diäten seniority) corresponds to the Besoldungsdienstalter of the regular officials and starts with the appointment to ausserplanmässiger Beamter. Versorgungsanwärter receive credit for the amount of time they have spent in preparatory training whenever this exceeds one year. Service before the age of 20 always counts as preparatory service, even if the official concerned has been given a supernumerary appointment before reaching that age.

The amount of Diäten received by Versorgungsanwärter in their 5th year of service—civilian candidates in their 6th—equals the initial salary of a regular official in the corresponding pay grade. All supernumerary officials are entitled to a lodging allowance; married personnel receive a higher allowance than unmarried.

167. Taxes and Reductions in Pay

The pay of civil servants is considerably reduced by three laws published in 1931 (1, 2 and 3 Gehaltskürzungsverordnung). These affect the basic pay, the lodging allowance and the special local allowance. Allowances for children and reimbursements of any kind are not subject to reduction. The aggregate reductions are approximately as follows:—

23 per cent. if monthly pay exceeds	RM 1,000
22 „ „ „ „ „ „	RM 500
21 „ „ „ „ „ „	RM 250
19 „ „ „ „ „ „	RM 135
13 „ „ „ „ „ „	RM 125

The principal tax to be paid by the Police officials is the Lohnsteuer (tax on earnings) which serves as a basis for fixing the amount to be paid in Kriegssteuer (war tax) and Wehrsteuer (Defence tax).

The Bürgersteuer (citizen tax) is collected by the municipality and varies throughout the Reich. Very roughly it can be said that, depending on the size of his income, a German Police official has to part with from 15 per cent. to 45 per cent. of his earnings in reductions and taxes.

168. Pensions and Payments in case of Death

According to the Deutsches Beamtengesetz (German Civil Service Law) the retirement age is 65, but this provision has been suspended for the duration of the war. Retirement before that age is possible in cases where a disability prevents the official from performing his duties. Beamte auf Lebenszeit (Officials appointed for life) could, before the war, apply to retire after reaching the age of 62, without having to prove any disability.

A Ruhegehalt (pension) is paid to all civil servants from the day of their retirement until death. This is a fixed proportion of their ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstbezüge (that part of the salary which is recognised as the basis for the pension, i.e. basic pay as last drawn, plus lodging allowance and special local allowance, if any). The amount of the pension is determined by the length of ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstzeit (pensionable service); credit is given for every year of service which the official has completed after his 27th birthday. The years of service before that date count only if he was with the Armed Forces, in the Reich labour service, in the Executive service of the Police

(Vollzugsdienst), or if he was a full-time employee of the NSDAP.

The pension received by a civil servant after having served at least 1 year of ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstzeit amounts to 35 per cent. of his ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstbezüge, but must be not less than approximately RM 100 per month. This percentage rises proportionately with the length of service until, upon completion of his 65th year, an official is entitled to the maximum pension, i.e. 75 per cent. of his ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstbezüge. Where retirement has been caused by an accident suffered in the line of duty, however, the official is entitled to the pension according to his age and rank plus 20 per cent. In such cases, however, 66 2/3 per cent. of the ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstbezüge is the minimum and 80 per cent. the maximum pension to be paid to the disabled official.

In case of the death of an official his heirs receive not only his salary for the month in which death occurred but also his salary for the 3 following months, as a lump sum. Further provision is made by the Civil Service Law for the widow and the orphans of a deceased civil servant in the form of Witwengeld (Widow's pension), which amounts to 60 per cent. of the pension which her husband drew or would have drawn if he had retired on the day of his death. The Witwengeld must not exceed 45 per cent. of the ruhegehaltsfähige Dienstbezüge of the deceased. Children receive one fifth of the Witwengeld, or one third if the wife is dead. Regulations differ somewhat in cases where death occurred through an accident in the line of duty.

169. Der Kameradschaftsbund der Deutschen Polizei

The German habit of forming a Verein (association) whenever more than two people get together, found its expression in the numerous Polizei-vereinigungen which had sprung up in pre-HITLER Germany. HIMMLER, eager to supervise the private lives of his followers, dissolved them all and authorised the Kameradschaftsbund der Deutschen Polizei as the sole association for Police officials. As a benevolent association, it has many features in common with similar organisations of civil servants throughout the world. The Kameradschaftsbund provides group insurance, maintains holiday homes, assists in emergencies and in general looks after the welfare of its members and their families. What makes it, however, different from other organisations is the fact that in the words of HIMMLER's decree the Kameradschaftsbund "... is called upon to help ... in carrying out ideological indoctrination within the Police, in close co-operation with the SS." SS-OSBF, Oberstleutnant d. Schupo Dr. ZWINGENBERG, chief of the Gruppe Weltanschauliche Erziehung in the Kommandoamt of the Hauptamt Orpo, was on 30 September, 1944 also appointed Chief of Abteilung Weltanschauliche Erziehung in the Kameradschaftsbund. It has, therefore, been found advisable to list the offices, holiday homes and schools of the Kameradschaftsbund as potential C.I. targets.

170. Police ranks

The following table of comparative ranks is necessarily a compromise. In some instances it is virtually impossible to equate existing designations. This table has been based exclusively on German documents comparing various ranks and official careers. These enemy sources themselves frequently disagree or are unclear on the subjects of ranks of various services and their equivalents. For example, a number of police ranks is not equated by the Germans with one specific Wehrmacht or SS rank, but rather to a range of ranks depending on length of service.

British and U.S. equivalents have been entered as accurately as possible, but rather on a basis of grades than of functions.

Approximate equivalents are listed in the following order :

1. Waffen-SS
2. German Army
3. U.S. Army
4. British Army

PART EIGHT

UNIFORMS AND PERSONAL DOCUMENTS

A. UNIFORMS

171. General Introduction

The militarised nature of the German Police and the employment of some of its branches in the field and in occupied territories make it essential for intelligence purposes at the present stage of operations, that Police uniforms, ranks and insignia should be immediately identifiable. After the cessation of hostilities many, especially the Nazi-created branches of the German Police, will of course no longer be encountered in uniform, but even then the possession of any part of a Police Uniform may be valuable evidence of a man's identity.

It would be impossible to give details of all the variations which arise from the German's characteristic love of colourful costume, and this section aims merely at presenting the typical uniforms of the various Police branches as worn on duty in Germany, in occupied territory and in the field.

It must be pointed out that changes in style of uniform have occurred at frequent intervals and are still taking place. Sometimes our information on these changes is incomplete, sometimes wartime conditions, such as shortage of material and supply difficulties, make it unlikely that officially decreed changes are in practice carried out immediately—if at all—by all the personnel involved. Furthermore, in many instances units of one branch of the Police are employed by other branches; auxiliaries are added to the existing forces to take care of urgent wartime needs; and Party formations are called upon to assist regular Police personnel. All these factors tend to blur the lines of demarcation between the uniforms of the various branches.

For quick reference a comparative table of Police Uniforms is included at the end of this section. Annex M gives illustrations of a representative selection of uniforms, ranks, insignia and emblems, as follows:—

Figures:

- 1- 5 Shoulder straps of Generals and officials of equivalent rank
- 6- 7 Collar patches of Generals and officials of equivalent rank
- 8- 19 Shoulder straps of Officers
- 20- 22 Collar patches of Officers
- 23- 40 Shoulder straps of officials of Officers' rank
- 41- 45 Collar patches of officials of Officers' rank

172. Terms used in connection with Uniforms

The following general notes and definitions will save repetition in the text.

(i) Rank and Arm of Service

All rank insignia are worn on the Schulterklappen (shoulder straps) and/or collar patches;

* In the discussion of uniforms below, the term Hoheitsabzeichen should be taken as referring to the Police version unless otherwise stated.

certain other details of uniform vary from one group of ranks to another.

Generals and officials of generals' rank have gold embroidered cap badges, and gold edging or piping to the crown of their caps. Officers and officials of officer rank wear aluminium piping.

The word for "collar patch" is Kragenspiegel or Litze; the Einheitslitzen (standardised collar patches), described as being identical with the Schupo collar patches (light green on a grey background), were decreed in 1943 for all branches of the Orpo who previously wore collar patches peculiar to their branch. The old type may, however, still be encountered.

In January 1943 HIMMLER decreed that all Police collar patches were to be replaced by SS symbols of rank. Although this decree was cancelled two months later, high ranking officers are still found wearing SS collar patches.

(ii) Headgear

The following types of cap are in use:—

Tschako	Shako
Schirmmütze	Peaked cap
Hausmütze, Feldmütze, Schiffchen	Cloth cap, similar to a field or forage cap
Bergmütze	Peaked mountain cap (ski cap)

The Kokade or Tschakonationale (National Cockade), in black, white and red, representing the national colours of Germany, is worn on every German Police cap. When worn on the Shako it is oblong in shape and framed with a silver cord. On the Schirmmütze and on the Hausmütze it is round, and has no corded edge.

In theory the above listed headgear was superseded in 1943 by the issue of a new design. Regulations describe this uniform headgear as a Feldmütze mit Schirm (peaked forage cap) which is to replace the various former caps of personnel stationed outside Germany. Discarded caps in the old styles are to be returned and will be re-issued to members of the Police inside Germany, where they will probably be worn until supplies are exhausted.

The new caps, which may have already been distributed, are described as being of a grey-green colour (navy-blue for the Wasserschutzpolizei). The badge on this new type of headgear is the police version of the Hoheitsabzeichen (National Emblem; see below) worked in light grey together with the national cockade. This Hoheitsabzeichen will be worn on the cap by every branch of the Orpo, including the Wasserschutzpolizei, who formerly wore a different type of Hoheitsabzeichen, in gold.

(iii) Badges

In addition to the Kokade on the cap, the following Abzeichen (badges) require description.

There are numerous versions of the Hoheitsabzeichen (National Emblem) which is worn in some form on nearly all German uniforms, but the basic design is a spread eagle over a Hakenkreuz (swastika). The police version of the *Hoheitsabzeichen is a spread eagle over a swastika enclosed in a wreath of oak leaves. This design is worn by all members of the German Police on the cap and/or on the sleeve of the tunic. The cap badge is made of aluminium, and on the sleeve the emblem is embroidered in the distinguishing colour of the branch (see below), e.g. orange for the Gendarmerie or yellow for the Wasserschutzpolizei; generals wear gold emblems.

The Altkämpferwinkel (old Party Members' chevron), or Ehrenwinkel (Chevron of Honour), in silver and black, is worn on the right upper sleeve of the tunic by those who, on or before 30 Jan 33, were members of the NSDAP or one of its Formations or Affiliated Organisations.

Runen are traditional Teutonic emblems—originally runic letters—which are worn as flashes. The Police wear the well known Sigrune (H); all Police who are members of the Allgemeine SS wear a Sigrune in white on green below the left breast pocket of the tunic.

(iv) Distinguishing Colours

Each branch of the German Police has a distinguishing colour, which appears in the collar patches, in the shoulder strap background, in the piping of the cap and tunic and in the sleeve insignia; for example grey is the distinguishing colour for the Verwaltungspolizei.

173. Uniforms of the Schutzpolizei

The uniform of the Schutzpolizei consists of a green greatcoat with a brown collar, a green tunic with brown collar and cuffs, and green breeches or trousers. The officers' tunic and greatcoat are piped and faced in the colour of the branch of service.

On duty a green Tschako (for Other Ranks: U.S., Enlisted Men), or the Schirmmütze (for NCOs, usually) are worn; they bear the national cockade and the Hoheitsabzeichen, and have black leather chin straps. In summer a white uniform and a white cover to the Schirmmütze may be worn. The green Hausmütze (field or forage cap), worn by ORs, has the Hoheitsabzeichen woven in white rayon on a black background; this cap is usually worn in Police offices, but may also be seen in the field or at training camps.

The headgear for officers is distinguished from that for ORs by the white metal used in the Hoheitsabzeichen, the national cockade and the chin strap cords. Generals wear gold Hoheitsabzeichen and chin strap cords.

Steel helmets, of a dark grey-green, are worn in the field, on guard duty, and on raiding parties; they have the swastika on the right side and the Hoheitsabzeichen on the left.

Belts and Sam Brownes are of black leather with white metal buckles.

The distinguishing colour of the Schupo des Reiches is light green, that of the Schupo der Gemeinden wine red. Although by a HIMMLER decree of 1943 the colour of the collar patches of both the Schupo des Reiches and the Schupo der Gemeinden were made uniform, i.e. light green, the shoulder straps still provide a ready means for distinguishing the two services. It is also possible that the old wine red colour may still be encountered on the collar patches of the Schupo der Gemeinden.

Officers' shoulder straps are of aluminium cord on a background of the appropriate colour of branch of service; generals' epaulettes are in gold cords and braid.

Hoheitsabzeichen are worn on the left upper sleeve; for ORs they are light green or wine red according to the branch of service, and for officers they are in silver thread (or gold for generals).

The officers' greatcoat has a white metal belt, and the buttons of both tunic and greatcoat are also white metal. Generals have gold belt and buttons. Shoes or riding boots are black.

Field units, i.e. Police battalions and regiments, wear a field grey uniform similar to that of the Wehrmacht but distinguished by dark green collar and cuffs, white metal buttons, and the Hoheitsabzeichen on the left sleeve, and on the cap or helmet. The number of the regiment appears on the middle of the shoulder straps.

The distinguishing colour of the Verkehrspolizei is bright red; it occurs in the collar patches and in the pipings of the cap, shoulder straps and tunic, as well as in the Hoheitsabzeichen on the left sleeve. The uniform itself is the same as that of the ordinary Schutzpolizei, except that the belt is brown.

In summer a white jacket may be worn with black trousers, brown shirt and black tie, and the Schirmmütze worn on duty has a white linen cover. The Schirmmütze has a brown band and a black chin strap (aluminium for officers). NCOs wear a gold metal Hoheitsabzeichen on the cap; the officers' Hoheitsabzeichen is in gold.

174. Gendarmerie Uniform

The uniform of the ordinary Gendarmerie is the same as that of the Schutzpolizei, except that the collar of the greatcoat, and the collar and cuffs of the tunic, are a much lighter shade of brown.

The distinguishing colour of the Gendarmerie is orange. Shoulder straps and collar patches are light brown with orange piping. Sleeve insignia showing the name of the Bezirk (area) in orange on a green background are worn on the left upper sleeve. Belts and Sam Brownes are brown.

The motorised Gendarmerie wear the same uniform, but their collars and cuffs are dark brown like the Schutzpolizei. They wear a light brown crash helmet, with a white metal Hoheitsabzeichen. Armlets, worn above the cuff, are in brown with the aluminium embroidered inscription "Motorisierte Gendarmerie." The Bezirk is not indicated.

Personnel of the Hochgebirgsgendarmerie (Gendarmerie in the Alpine regions) wear the same green uniform, also with orange piping. The trousers are worn tucked inside the boots. The green Bergmütze (Ski cap) carries the national cockade and the Hoheitsabzeichen and has orange piping. The Hoheitsabzeichen, in orange, appears on the left sleeve, but the Bezirk is not indicated.

The officers' uniform has the same light brown collar and cuffs as that of the other ranks, but the shoulder straps and collar patches are of aluminium on an orange background.

The Schirmmütze for all types of Gendarmerie is green, and has a band of the light brown colour peculiar to the Gendarmerie. It bears the national cockade, aluminium Hoheitsabzeichen and orange piping. The green Shako has a light brown peak and crown, with national cockade, Hoheitsabzeichen and chin straps in aluminium.

175. Wasserschutzpolizei Uniform

The SW uniform consists of a navy-blue greatcoat, a reefer type (double-breasted) jacket and trousers. Blue denim trousers are often worn on duty.

The distinguishing colour of the Wasserschutzpolizei is yellow, appearing in the shoulder straps, and in the piping around the cuffs of the jacket.

Either the navy-blue Schirmmütze or the Schiffchen (field or forage cap) may be worn. The Schirmmütze for ORs bears the Hoheitsabzeichen in yellow metal, and has a black chin strap; the officers' Schirmmütze has gold chin strap cords (regardless of rank), the national cockade, and the

UNCLASSIFIED

Hoheitsabzeichen in gold. The ORs Schiffchen also bears the yellow Hoheitsabzeichen, and has yellow piping on the crown. In summer a white linen cover may be worn over the crown of the Schirmmütze.

The Hoheitsabzeichen, embroidered in yellow (gold for officers), on a dark blue background, is worn on the left upper sleeve of the jacket, but not on the greatcoat. Similarly, only the cuffs of the jacket, not of the greatcoat, are piped with yellow.

Leather belts and boots are black.

All buttons of officers' uniform are gold. Officers wear a white metal belt with the greatcoat. The Marine Küstenpolizei wear the same uniform as the Wasserschutzpolizei, plus a yellow Wehrmachtsbinde (Armed Forces armband).

176. Feuerschutzpolizei Uniform

The old Feuerwehren wore black uniforms with carmine as their distinguishing colour in the piping of the tunic and around the cuffs. This uniform is probably still worn to some extent in wartime, although minor changes may have taken place as many of the former members of the Feuerwehren were incorporated into the Feuerschutzpolizei.

Officially the Feuerschutzpolizei wear the regular green uniform of the Orpo, but to what extent this uniform is actually worn—other than on special occasions calling for ceremonial dress—is not definitely known.

The Schirmmütze, bearing the national cockade and the Hoheitsabzeichen in white metal, is worn off duty. On duty a black steel helmet is worn, showing the Hoheitsabzeichen on the left side, and the SS Rune on the right.

The distinguishing colour is still carmine and appears in the piping of the Schirmmütze, in the background of shoulder and collar patches, and in the Hoheitsabzeichen worn on the left upper sleeve of the tunic.

Leather belts, Sam Brownes and boots are black.

The old black uniform will probably still be encountered. The green tunic and greatcoat are piped with carmine and the shoulder straps and collar patches have a carmine background. The tunic has black collar and cuffs, and the greatcoat a black collar. Black helmets are worn for service uniform; showing the Hoheitsabzeichen on the left side, and, if the wearer is a member of the SS, the SS Rune (flash) on the right. The Hoheitsabzeichen, embroidered in silver, is worn on the left sleeve of the tunic.

177. Luftschutzpolizei Uniform

As a result of its close connection with the Luftwaffe this branch of the Orpo wears the grey-blue Air Force uniform. Green armbands are worn on the left lower sleeve of the tunic, inscribed "Sicherheits- u. Hilfsdienst" in white lettering. The Hoheitsabzeichen appears on the left upper sleeve. The collar patches are the same as those worn by the Schutzpolizei, with the exception of the Aufsichtsbeamten (inspectors) who may still be found wearing the SS collar patches authorised in the obsolete HIMMLER decree (see EDS/G/8, Basic Handbook of the SS, for SS insignia). Black steel helmets are worn on duty.

The Teno furnishes the nucleus of the Luftschutzpolizei, i.e. the former Sicherheits- und Hilfsdienst; such former TN men are reported to wear the grey-blue uniforms of the Luftschutzpolizei, probably with Teno emblems and insignia.

On the other hand, the Instandsetzungsdienst (JD—Repair, Demolition and Rescue Services)

although now part of the Luftschutzpolizei wear Technische Nothilfe uniform (see below).

178. Technische Nothilfe Uniform

The former TN uniform was blue, but this is practically obsolete, and Teno personnel now wear various types of uniform, depending on their employment. In the field Teno personnel wear the usual Wehrmacht field grey uniform, which is however in the style of the Waffen-SS, less the skull-and-crossbones on the cap. When actually attached to the Armed Forces TN personnel may, in addition, wear the Wehrmachtsbinde on the left upper sleeve, with the Gothic lettering "Deutsche Wehrmacht" woven in black thread on yellow linen.

When assigned for duty with the Schutzpolizei, TN personnel wear the green uniform of the Schupo with TN badges of rank.

The distinguishing colour of the TN is black and appears on the collar patches and shoulder straps. The collar patches of the tunic and greatcoat are bordered with a silver and black twisted cord, and bear the TN emblem, a white cogwheel on a black background. The badge on the left upper sleeve is the SS, not the Police, version of the Hoheitsabzeichen.

Within the TN, the four branches of the TN are distinguished by subsidiary service colours, blue for the Technischer Dienst (TD—Technical Service Branch), red for the Luftschutzdienst (LD—Air Raid Protection Service Branch), orange-yellow for the Bereitschaftsdienst (BD—Emergency Service), and green for the Allgemeine Dienst (AD—General Service).

The SS-Hoheitsabzeichen and the national cockade are worn on the Feldmütze and Schirmmütze; officers wear silver chin strap cords on the cap. The cogwheel emblem is worn on the black collar patch above the TN symbol of rank. TN officers who are members of the SS may wear the SS flash on their collar patches in combination with the TN emblem.

Officers of the highest rank, i.e. Chef der TN, Stellvertretender Chef der TN, and Landesführer wear gold collar patches and shoulder straps, with gold cogwheel emblems. Their collar patches have a red background.

179. Hilfspolizei Uniforms

The Landwacht and the Stadtwacht acting as Hilfspolizisten (Auxiliary Police) may wear civilian clothes, with wide white armbands bearing the inscriptions "Landwacht" or "Stadtwacht" to differentiate them from other Auxiliary Police personnel, who wear armbands inscribed "Hilfspolizei."

Members of the Hilfspolizei drawn from the ranks of the para-military formations may wear their own uniform when on duty.

180. Verwaltungspolizei Uniform

The greatcoat, tunic and breeches of the Verwaltungspolizei (Administrative Police) are of the same green as those of the Schutzpolizei. The collar of the greatcoat and the collar and cuffs of the tunic are brown. The distinguishing colour (Hauptfarbe) is grey, but in addition this branch wears a secondary colour (Nebenfarbe) which is red, though according to latest reports the Nebenfarbe has been abolished. The primary colour, grey, appears on the collar patches, in the background of the shoulder straps, and in the tunic and cap pipings of all officials regardless of branch. The secondary colour, red, appears in the upper backings of the shoulder straps.

The officers' uniform is identical with that of the Schutzpolizei, but the cuffs and tunics are piped with grey. The cap bears the Hoheitsabzeichen, an aluminium chin strap, and grey piping. The Hoheitsabzeichen is also worn on the left sleeve.

181. Uniforms of the Sicherheitspolizei and the SD

Members of the Kripo, Gestapo and SD usually wear plain clothes; uniform is however worn on some occasions, the same type being worn by all three branches. It was originally black, underlining the close relationship of these branches with the Allgemeine-SS, but since the beginning of the war the black has, for ordinary duty, been replaced by field grey, of a shade considerably lighter than that of the army uniform. Brown shirts are usually worn with both the black and the grey uniform.

The black uniform of the SD is similar to the traditional black uniform worn by the Allgemeine-SS, with only one silver and black epaulette or shoulder strap, on the right. SS insignia of rank are worn on the collar patches. The Schirmmütze carries the skull-and-crossbones emblem instead of the national cockade. The caps of the other ranks have a black chin strap, those of the officers have silver cords, and generals wear gold cords.

The right collar patch of the grey tunic is plain black and the left collar patch bears the rank insignia for both other ranks and officers. (For SS insignia see EDS/G/8, Basic Handbook of the SS). Officers of high rank, i.e. from SS-Standartenführer upward, wear rank insignia on both collar patches. The shoulder straps of all ranks are black, and are identical with those worn by the Waffen-SS with field service uniform (in Wehrmacht field grey).

The swastika armband of the Allgemeine-SS is normally no longer worn by the Sipo and the SD, but may possibly still appear on ceremonial occasions. The silver and black Altkämpferwinkel (Old Party Members' chevron) is worn on the right upper sleeve of both black and grey uniforms.

Personnel of the Sicherheitsdienst may wear a black diamond patch, with the inscription "SD" in Gothic letters, over the left cuff. When worn on the black uniform, this is framed with a silver cord, but on the grey uniform the cord is usually omitted.

The caps carry the Hoheitsabzeichen and the skull-and-crossbones emblem of the SS, and have black chin strap cords for the other ranks and silver cords for all officers.

A decree of 28 Aug 1944 states that foreign auxiliaries from the East employed by the Dienststellen of the Sipo as Wachmänner guarding foreign prisoners are to wear field grey without any insignia. An armband inscribed with the words "Im Dienst der Sicherheitspolizei" (in the service of the Security Police) is to be worn on the right upper sleeve.

Note.—Police Clothing and Supply Depots

It may be of interest to know the supply headquarters through which uniforms and similar equipment are furnished to the Police. The following list, dated February 1944, shows the various Polizei-Bekleidungs- und Beschaffungsämter (Police Clothing and Supply depots) and the areas they supply:—

B. PERSONAL DOCUMENTS OF THE GERMAN POLICE

182. General Introduction

In Germany, more than in any other country, the number and variety of documents issued to every member of the community is vast and constantly changing; it also seems characteristic of the German that he can rarely be persuaded to part with a paper even though it has long lost its validity or its usefulness. The present discussion of German Police documents, while detailed, is by no means exhaustive.

The actual documents found on a member of the German Police will not necessarily accord with the specifications of the latest regulations; normal administrative tardiness or war conditions may be grounds for the continued use, or revived validity of documents officially obsolete.

A decree of the RSHA, dated December, 1943, ordered all Dienstausweise (identity documents) expiring in December, 1943, to be provisionally extended until 30 April, 1944. Shortage of raw materials was given as the official reason for this regulation. Possibly the validity of such identity papers was extended even beyond that date and a new issue avoided. The details of the extension were to be indicated by a typewritten validity endorsement giving date, official signature and stamp of the responsible headquarters.

The main details of the personal identity papers carried by members of the German Police and its auxiliaries will remain more or less constant, and the typical examples discussed here may be of value as a guide to the exploitation of documents of the same or a similar type.

The detailed page by page descriptions in this section should be read in conjunction with the illustrations in Annexe M, to which reference is made throughout; Annexe M is intended not only to show the outward appearance of these documents, but also to indicate the most important pages from which information may be extracted.

The present value, to the interrogator, of a knowledge of these documents, need not be stressed; the future value lies in the probability that under an Allied occupation, when the German policeman has discarded his uniform, he may well be reluctant to part with his personal documents, and by retaining them, may preserve evidence of his past background and present degree of reliability.

The study of personal documents has a certain additional value, in the light it sheds on the administrative system of various organisations, the maintenance of their records and the routine followed in their personnel administration.

183. The Soldbuch

The Soldbuch zugleich Personalausweis (Paybook and Identity Document; see Annexe M, Fig. 125) is by far the most important personal document carried by members of the German Police; it is not only a paybook but also an extensive record of the bearer's personal history and career in the Police; it therefore contains a great deal of information of intelligence value, such as identifications of field units, replacement units, schools, training courses, and locations of any units to which the bearer may have belonged. In addition a list of decorations received in the course of service may throw a helpful light on the bearer's enthusiasm in the Nazi cause. A Soldbuch is issued to every member of the German Police, and must be carried at all times for purposes of identification.

Entries in the paybook are made, dated and initialled, by the Administrative officer or the clerk of the bearer's unit, and German administrative thoroughness may be counted on to be of great assistance in the exploitation of such documents.

The Soldbuch has a green paper cover, showing the Police Badge (Hoheitsabzeichen) and the heading in black. It has 36 pages, containing the following details:—

- Page 1—Personal data
Rank and promotion
Bearer's unit (usually the replacement unit) and identity number as shown on his identity disc
- Page 2—Personal data and description
Police stamp and details of the unit which issued the Soldbuch
Signature of the commanding officer of the issuing unit
- Pages 3-4—Endorsement of any alterations, signed by the unit commander
- Page 5—Personal data, next of kin, etc.
- Page 6—Police authority of the holder's home station
Police replacement unit and location
Police field unit
- Page 7—Awards and medals
- Page 8—Combat experience (information listed on this page includes all units in which the owner may have served)
- Pages 9-34—Information includes allotments of pay, allowances, medical treatment (also inoculations, vaccinations, etc.), any alterations and amendments, and details of furlough
- Pages 35-36—Instructions on the handling, use and authority of the Soldbuch.

184. SS-Soldbuch used by the Police

In June, 1944, the Reichsführer-SS und Chef der Deutschen Polizei decreed that the Soldbuch of the Waffen-SS was to be introduced as the official identity document for all members of the Orpo. In effect the book finally issued to the police was a variation of the Waffen-SS Soldbuch (see Fig. 126) adjusted for use by the Orpo. The decree specified that the members of the following Police branches were to be furnished with the new paybook:—

- Schutzpolizei*, including Wasserschutzpolizei
- Gendarmerie*
- Feuerschutzpolizei*
- Administrative officials of the Ordnungspolizei (Polizeiverwaltungsbeamte)
- Polizeireserve*, including the Luftschutzpolizei
- All full-time professional leaders of the Teno who are part of the establishment of the Orpo
- Field units of the Teno
- All full-time professional leaders of the Freiwillige Feuerwehren who are on the establishment of the Orpo
- Hilfspolizisten*
- Freiwillige der deutschen Polizei* (literally German Police Volunteers; it is not clear to what class this refers)

UNCLASSIFIED

Units of the Schutzmannschaften

For all these classes of official the SS-Soldebuch should replace the green Police Soldebuch (in the case of the Luftschutzpolizei it takes the place of the Luftschutzdienstbuch); it supersedes all older forms of identity paper. It is not, however, known to what extent this order has been carried out in practice and both the old and the new type of Soldebuch may still be found. Superseded Soldebücher which have been withdrawn are kept on permanent file among the owners' personnel records.

A special difference between the old Police Soldebuch and the new (SS) type is that the latter carries a paybook number and the man's registration number (Wehrnummer) on page 1. The paybook number should always be the same as that appearing on the bearer's identity disc. The SS-Soldebuch has a grey paper cover showing the SS emblem and the heading in black. The photograph and signature of bearer are on the inside of the cover page. The contents are similar to those of the green Police Soldebuch, except that Police replacement and field units and locations are noted on page 4 instead of on page 6 as in the green Orpo. Soldebuch. Details of the contents of the SS-Soldebuch are as follows :—

- Page 1—Number of Soldebuch
Name, rank and promotion
Bearer's unit and identity number as shown on the holder's identity disc Wehrnummer
- Page 2—Personal data, description and signature of bearer
Official stamp and details of unit by which the SS-Soldebuch was issued Signature of the commanding officer of the above unit
- Page 3—Endorsement of any alterations signed by the unit commander
- Page 4—Home, Replacement and Field units and locations
- Page 5—Awards and medals
- Page 6—Combat experience
- Page 7—Personal data, next of kin, etc.
- Pages 8-14—Clothing record
- Pages 15-18—Arms and equipment issued to bearer
- Pages 19-21—Medical record (including inoculations, vaccinations, etc.)
- Pages 22-23—Hospital record
- Pages 24-25—Record of valuables in possession while in hospital
- Pages 26-28—Dental record
- Page 29—General entries
- Pages 30-34—Pay entries
- Pages 35-38—Leave or furlough
- Pages 39-40—Instructions on handling, use and authority of SS-Soldebuch

185. Polizeidienstpass (Police Service Record)

In contrast to the Soldebuch the Dienstpass (see Fig. 127) is not an identity paper. It is approximately equivalent to the Wehrpass (German Army Service record). The Dienstpass is never carried on the person except when the holder is being transferred from one unit or headquarters to another. On arrival at his new unit he immediately hands in the Dienstpass which is then kept and maintained by the Personnel office for the duration of his service with that unit or headquarters. Only on final dismissal or retirement from Police service is the Dienstpass handed over to its owner for permanent retention.

It should be noted that the Dienstpass contains a number of details concerning the holder which will not normally be found in the Soldebuch, notably details concerning membership of the Nazi Party, its formations or affiliated organisations, including original date of joining and membership serial number. The intelligence value of such information is obvious; moreover it can be assumed that Dienstpässe have been provided for the majority of German Police personnel in spite of the fact that the previously mentioned decree introducing the SS type paybook, also abolished the Polizeidienstpass. However, these service records after their withdrawal were filed with each man's personal records at the various police headquarters and units.

The Polizei Dienstpass has a green paper cover, with the printed matter and the Police Badge in darker green. The fact that this is not an identity paper is indicated on the cover in green and red print. It contains 32 pages on green anti-erasure paper, each page watermarked with the police Hoheitsabzeichen.

The inside cover page contains instructions on the handling, use and authority of the Dienstpass. Other details are as follows :—

- Page 1—Creed of the German Policeman
- Page 2—Blank
- Page 3—Personal data and description
Stamp of the Polizeibehörde and signature of the commanding officer
- Pages 4-6—Personal data, including educational background and professional qualifications
- Page 7—Details of membership of the NSDAP and all other Nazi party formations, giving date of joining and membership number Party decorations held
Bearer's SS rank
- Page 8—Details of Reichsarbeits- und Wehrdienst (Reich labour service and army service)
- Pages 9-13—Record of police service with details of transfers, promotion and employment
- Page 14—Training courses attended
- Page 15—Combat experience
- Pages 16-18—Medical record
- Page 19—Decorations
- Pages 20-27—Other entries
- Pages 28-31—Endorsement of any alterations signed by the unit commander
- Page 32—Details of retirement or discharge from service

186. Personal Documents of the Firefighting Services

The Dienstausweis—Feuerwehrdienst (Official Service Pass—Firefighting Services; see Fig. 128) is a four-page folding pass of grey-blue glazed linen. The front cover bears the Police Hoheitsabzeichen and the name, rank and address of the bearer in black print. This pass may be carried by both Feuerschutzpolizei and Feuerwehren. Page 2 contains personal data, shows the issuing office with official stamp and signature, and defines the authority conferred by the pass; page 3 contains validity endorsements (entered periodically); photograph and signature of bearer are on page 4.

The Mitglieds-Ausweis Freiw. Feuerwehr (Membership Card—Voluntary Fire Brigade; see Fig. 129) was probably used by the Fire Brigades at the time when they did not constitute a uniform and standardised organisation, but were merely local units. The card illustrated is therefore merely a sample of one of many existing types and probably has little more authority than the membership card of any ordinary association. This particular sample is printed in black on pink paper. The front cover shows the name and the date of birth of the bearer, the two inside pages (pages 2 and 3) are divided into squares, provided for monthly membership stamps. Page 4 is blank. Mitgliedsausweise of this kind may still be found as a concession to local traditions, but officially they have been superseded by the preceding service pass (see Fig. 128) since the Freiw. Feuerwehren have either been taken over by or attached to the Feuerschutzpolizei.

The Ausweis der Feuerweherscharen im HJ-Streifendienst (Identity Card for members of the Fire-fighting Squads in the Hitler Youth Patrol Service; see Fig. 130) is used by those members of the HJ-Streifendienst (SRD—Hitler Youth Patrol Service) who have received fire-fighting training and are now qualified to serve as members of the Feuerweherscharen (Fire-fighting Squads). It is a pink, four-page folding document. The front cover carries the heading and serial number of the Ausweis. Page 2 gives the name of the bearer, defines the authority of the Ausweis, and shows the issuing headquarters, with official stamp and signature. Page 3 contains personal data, the bearer's unit and his signature, and page 4 validity endorsements.

187. Personal Documents of the ARP Services

Officially, the Luftschutzdienstbuch zugleich Personalausweis (ARP Service Pass and Personal Identity Document; see Fig. 131) has been replaced by the SS-Soldbuch, following the decree of 9 Jun 1944 (see para. 184). Prior to this decree however it was carried by all members of the SD and possibly by other personnel connected with ARP Services. It was published by the Air Force High Command and issued by local ARP headquarters.

The cover is of blue paper with black lettering, and contains, on the inside, instructions on handling the Dienstbuch. Details on other pages are as follows:—

Page	1—Duties, rules and regulations
Page	2—Photograph and stamp
Page	3—Personal data and Luftschutzort (local ARP sector)
Page	5—Next of kin
Page	6—Police order for ARP service and additional entries
Page	7—Additional entries continued
Pages	8–19—Entries on medical care, clothing and equipment, and pay
Page	20—ARP training in peacetime
Pages	21–22—Wartime ARP employment
Page	23—Employment under enemy action or abroad
Page	24—Injuries, accidents or serious illness incurred in the course of duty

Pages	27–28—Furloughs
Page	29—Discharge from ARP service
Pages	30–31—Endorsements by unit commanding officer

Officials of the RLB who supervise civilian ARP measures carry the Ausweis für RLB-Amtsträger (Identity Card for Officials of the Reich Association for ARP; see Fig. 132). It is a four-page document made of grey-blue paper and the front cover is crossed by two green diagonal lines. Page 2 gives bearer's name and rank, the Revier in which he serves and defines his authority. Page 3 continues the definition of the bearer's authority and contains the official stamp and signature of the issuing office. Page 4 provides space for any special mission or authority assigned to the bearer by the police.

Ordinary members of the RLB carry the Mitgliedsausweis-Reichsluftschutzbund (Membership Certificate of the Reich Association for ARP; see Fig. 133). It is a light blue card with black print. The front shows the name, address, occupation and signature of the bearer, as well as the official stamp and signature of the headquarters and responsible officer. The reverse side shows receipt of membership dues.

The Bescheinigung-Reichsluftschutzbund (Certificate of the Reich Association for ARP; see Fig. 134) is issued to members of the RLB who have undergone specialised training, the course from which the bearer graduated being specified on the certificate. The front contains personal data and training qualifications, and the signature and stamp of the issuing office. The other side contains endorsements certifying courses attended.

188. Personal Documents of the Teno

Personnel of the Teno not part of the Field Units may, instead of—or in addition to—the Paybook, carry the Ausweis-Technische Nothilfe (Identity card of the Teno; see Fig. 135). It is a four-page folding document of grey-blue paper with black print. Page 1 contains personal data, and bears the signature and stamp of the issuing headquarters. Page 2 gives details of unit and civilian identity card, as well as the photograph and signature of bearer. Page 3 records the Teno and Police Unit or branch, and contains Teno unit entries. Page 4 shows details of training, qualifications, rank, promotions, decorations, employment and commitment.

The Technische Nothilfe-Beitragskarte (Receipt for membership dues; see Fig. 136) is carried in the Teno Ausweis; it is a light blue card printed in black. The front side shows unit, personal data, and the official stamp and signature of the issuing headquarters; the reverse is for the monthly receipt stamps.

The TN-Unterführer-Ausweis (Identity Card for NCOs of the Teno; see Fig. 137) is a six-page folding document of brown glazed linen. Details contained in the various pages are as follows:—

Page	3—Higher TN headquarters Promotions

- Page 4—Transfers
Additional information such as participation in training courses
- Page 5—Validity endorsements
- Page 6—Instructions regarding the Ausweis (back cover)

189. Personal Documents of the Hilfspolizei (and Sonderpolizei)

The Hilfspolizei-Dienstausweis (Official Service Pass—Auxiliary Police ; see Fig. 138) may be issued to any member of the Hipo (Hilfspolizeibeamter). It authorises the bearer to exercise police authority and to carry firearms. It is a four-page folding document of blue glazed linen with black print ; details are as follows :—

- Page 1—Police Hoheitsabzeichen and number (front cover) of Ausweis
Name and rank of bearer
- Page 2—Personal data
Issuing headquarters and official stamp and signature
- Page 3—Validity control stamps
- Page 4—Photograph and bearer's signature. (back cover)

It is not known whether the Wehrmannschaftspass (Identity Pass of the Internal Defence Formation ; see Fig. 139) is still generally issued. Originally it was carried by the SA Wehrmannschaften from which the Stadt- and Landwacht (Auxiliary Urban and Rural Police) were derived. It may be interesting to note that these units are responsible for a major part of the training given to the Volkssturm. The specimen illustrated was issued by the Steirischer Heimatbund and may be only one of a number of local variations of this type of document ; it has a green paper cover with black printing and contains 16 pages in black and white, showing the following information :—

- Page 1—List of contents and the creed of National Socialism
- Page 2—Photograph, signature and membership number of bearer, official stamp and signature of issuing officer
- Page 3—Personal data
- Page 4—Wehrmannschaftsdienst (Service in the Internal Defence Formations)

Inside rear cover : Validity endorsements.

It seems probable that originally the only pass issued to members of the Stadtwacht was the Ausweis—Stadtwacht (Identity Pass—Auxiliary Urban Police ; see Fig. 140), but as a result of the previously mentioned decree of 9 June, 1944, they are now, as Auxiliary Police personnel, also furnished with the SS-Soldbuch (Fig. 126). They may also carry the Hilfspolizei-Dienstausweis (Fig. 132). Whether they retain the Stadtwacht Ausweis in addition is not known.

The Ausweis is a light blue paper card with the front showing the bearer's signature. The reverse side shows personal data, confers authority to exercise Auxiliary Police powers, and carries signature of the issuing officer.

The HJ Streifendienst-Ausweis (Identity Pass—Hitler Youth Patrol Service ; see Fig. 141) is a small light green paper card, printed on one side only, showing the name and rank of the holder and bearing the official stamp and signature of the issuing officer in black print. Since the SRD has by now taken on the character of a fully recognised auxiliary police force, its personnel may also be issued with the Hilfspolizei-Dienstpass (Fig. 138).

Members of the NSKK, units of which are frequently employed to assist the Regular Police in their functions, carry the NSKK-Pass (Identity Book of the National Socialist Motor Corps ; see Fig. 142), a light-brown book containing 24 black and white pages. The NSKK Hoheitsabzeichen appears on the cover and is superimposed on every page of the book. Details are as follows :—

- Pages 1–2—Bearer's Unit
Photograph and signature of bearer
Description of bearer
- Pages 3–5—Personal data
- Pages 6–11—Registration with NSKK Service Units on arrival or departure
- Pages 12–15—Promotions, appointments, transfers, etc.
- Pages 16–17—Training courses
- Pages 18–19—Miscellaneous entries
- Pages 20–24—Receipt stamps for dues and insurance fees

The Ausweiskarte—Bahnpolizei (Identity Card—Railway Police ; see Fig. 143) was originally issued to personnel of the Bahnpolizei by the Deutsche Reichsbahn ; it is not known whether this identity card is still issued or whether it has been superseded by the SS Paybook (see para. 184). The Ausweiskarte is a small white card of glazed linen. The front shows the date of issue and duration of validity, the reverse side gives the name, rank and signature of the bearer, and carries the stamp of the issuing railway office.

190. Personal Documents of the Sipo and SD (and related branches)

The cover of the SS-Soldbuch zugleich Personal-ausweis (SS Paybook and Identity Document, issued to the Sipo and SD ; see Fig. 144) is light brown, with the heading in black print, and shows the SS emblem. The contents are similar to those of the W-SS Soldbuch (see para. 184). According to latest reports the grey SS-Soldbuch may have been substituted for the brown one.

The Dienstausweis—Sipo und SD (Identity Card of the Security Police and the Security Service ; see Figs. 145a and b) is a red glazed linen or paper card (10 × 7.3 cm). The paper card as illustrated has an intricate anti-erasure pattern of red and orange on a white background ; since the anti-erasure markings are so heavily concentrated, the general appearance of the paper is red. The Ausweis carries the photograph and signature of the bearer. The number of the Ausweis and the date of validity are printed in the right upper corner. The card also bears the official stamp and signature of the issuing office, i.e. Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD (Chief of the Security Police and of the Security Service).

The Dienstausweis illustrated in Fig. 145a is carried by the following Sipo and SD personnel: BdS, IdS and KdS, and all Gestapo officials in their headquarters; all administrative and executive officials in the office of the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD, Gestapo officials in Sipo and SD schools. The same pass, but with the signature, "Der Reichsführer SS u. Chef der Deutschen Polizei im Reichsministerium des Innern. In Vertretung." is carried by all HSSPf. The equivalent officials in the service of the Kripo carry the same Ausweis, but with a green diagonal line superimposed on the cover; SS personnel in the service of the SD carry the same pass with a white diagonal line instead of the green (see Fig. 145b).

The Hausausweis (Permit to enter an official building) is a white card with the heading in black print. It carries the photograph and signature of the bearer, the date of validity, and the signature and official stamp of the local office and its Chief.

The Hausausweis authorises the bearer to enter any particular building but does not endow him with any police or similar authority. It is issued to employees (not members) of the SD, e.g. clerks.

A similar Ausweis in yellow is issued to persons not employed by the particular headquarters, but who may have temporary business in the building. Validity is limited to the period specified on the Ausweis.

A decree of 28 Aug 1944 states that a special Ausweis is issued to foreign auxiliaries from the East employed as Wachmänner guarding foreign prisoners by the Dienststellen of the Sipo in the Reich. It is described as being 15x10.4 cm. in size, and is printed on anti-erasure paper. It carries a photograph of the bearer, is valid for a period of three months only, and is signed by the Leiter of the responsible Stapo-(Leit)stelle.

Since the SD is still officially a party organisation and not a police or government agency, SD Identity Documents are issued by the SS, and not by the police. Usually both the stamp of the Reichsführer SS and Chef der Deutschen Polizei and that of the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD appear on the Ausweis—SS der NSDAP im Sicherheitsdienst (Identity Card for NCOs of the SS of the NSDAP in the Security Service; see Fig. 146). The card is printed on red glazed linen. It shows the party membership number, date of birth, and the photograph and signature of the bearer. The document shown is that of an NCO.

The Dienstmarke—Gestapo (Identity Badge—Secret State Police; see Figs. 147 and 148) formerly known as Erkennungsmarke (Identity disc) serves as the official identification in all instances of executive action. Neither the Dienstmarke nor the Sipo and SD Identity papers may be carried when travelling abroad, even on official journeys.

The badge is oval, one side showing the words "Geheime Staatspolizei" and the serial number, the other the Hoheitsabzeichen. The number on the Dienstmarke corresponds with that on the Dienstausweis.

Officials of the Grenzpolizei carry the same identity badge as the Gestapo. The Kripo carry the same Dienstmarke, but with the inscription "Kriminalpolizei" instead of "Geheime Staatspolizei."

Personnel of the SD carry the same Dienstmarke with the corresponding inscription. The reason for the change of name is that members of the Sipo and the SD are now in addition issued with an Erkennungsmarke similar to that of the Armed Forces and the Waffen-SS, which serves as an identification in case of accident or death. (Since this is recent information the captions of Figs. 147 and 148 of Annexe M could not be revised accordingly.)

The Geheime Feldpolizei Ausweis (Identity Pass—Secret Field Police; see Fig. 149) is carried by members of the GFP. The card is printed on lime-green glazed linen. The front of the card records the issuing headquarters, shows the name, signature, Kennkarte number and photographs (in uniforms and civilian clothes) of the bearer, and carries the official stamp, date and signature of issuing commander. The reverse of the card states the authority of the Secret Field Police and lists the regulations governing the certificate.

The Reichsnetzkarte für Sipo and SD (Reich Railway warrant for the Sipo and the SD) authorises journeys, free of charge, anywhere on the German railways.

The plain white document illustrated simply indicates that it is a "Reichsnetzkarte für einen Beauftragten der Sicherheitspolizei" (Reich railway warrant for an official of the Security Police). The omission of any mention of the SD on this paper may possibly be a security measure to hide the bearer's membership of that organisation since the warrants are probably produced at the request of ordinary railway control personnel.

Identity documents of the railway officials working with the Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst (RBFd) receive their pass from the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD. It is a service pass of white paper with a green diagonal line from the left top to the lower right corner (10 x 7.3 cm.). The paper shows the bearer's photograph and signature, service pass number, name and address, and carries the official stamp and signature of the issuing office; and also the bearer's authority to carry service weapons. The passes are valid for one year; they are numbered consecutively in one series for the entire territory of the Reich.

All entries must be typewritten and passes must bear the signature or stamp of the Chef der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD.

Each member of the RBFd also carries an identity disc of yellow metal (2 mm thick, 5 cm long and 3.5 cm wide). It shows the Hoheitsabzeichen on one side, and the inscription "Reichsbahnfahndungsdienst" and the number of the bearer's Dienstausweis on the other.

The VGAD works in close liaison with the Sicherheitspolizei in Frontier regions. It has, however, its own identity document, the VGAD Personalbuch (Personal Identification book of the Reinforced Frontier Control Service; see Fig. 150).

The Personalbuch has a light green paper cover and contains 28 pages of light green paper with black print. The following information is contained in the book:—

- Pages 1-2—Photograph and signature of bearer (title page)
- Pages 3-5—Personal data
- Pages 6-7—Previous employment
- Page 8—Decorations and recommendations
- Page 9—Furloughs
- Pages 10-20—Miscellaneous entries including medical record, pay and allowances

Pages 21-22—Special training courses

Pages 23-28—Miscellaneous entries

The Dienstausweis — Reichsfinanzverwaltung (Service Identity Card—Reich Finance Administration; see Fig. 151) is issued to auxiliary members of the Zollgrenzschutz (Frontier Control Service). It is a light green paper card, showing the bearer's photograph, signature and personal data on the front. The bearer's authority to carry service weapons, the date of expiry and the official stamp and signature of the issuing office, are shown on the reverse side.

191. Documents issued to the public by the Police

The Berechtigungsschein (see Fig. 152) is a permit issued by the Wasserpolizeibehörde (Wasserstrassenamt—Waterways Police) and entitles the bearer to operate a steam or motor vessel on specified rivers. It is a four-page folding document of grey glazed linen.

The Deutsches Reich—Kennkarte (Identity Card; see Fig. 153) is issued by the local police authorities to every German citizen born and residing in Germany proper and is the most important civilian identity document. All Germans not in military service who are over the age of fifteen must carry the Kennkarte. Only as a result of administrative dislocation and difficulties, mainly due to Allied air attacks, are exceptions made at present, and regulations relaxed so that other official or semi-official identity papers showing the bearer's photograph may be accepted as authoritative for the time being.

It is a four-page folding document of light grey glazed linen with black print, containing the following information:—

Identity number (Kennnummer) which may provide the key to the National Population Registry number

Date of expiry

Personal data including profession, distinctive marks and control stamp (this stamp may be found on the back cover page).

The most important periodicals put out either by the Police or by other official agencies covering matters of Police interest are enumerated below:—

see Fig. 154) is issued to all "racial Germans" who were born in greater Germany but resided abroad; they are entered as members of Volksliste I. Germans of Volksliste I are regarded as full citizens and enjoy all political and economic rights.

Those who expediently remembered their German origin after the German occupation of, e.g. Poland and Slovenia, had their names listed in Volksliste II, but also carry the blue identity card (see also para. 82).

The blue Ausweis is a four-page folding document showing the following:—

Page 2—Number of registration in the Deutsche Volksliste and statement of German citizenship, as well as personal data, including occupation or profession

Official stamp and signature of the Police or Administrative official, usually the Landrat

Page 3—Photograph and signature of bearer and official stamp of issuing office.

Except for its colour the Ausweis der Deutschen Volksliste (Green certificate of registration for "Racial Germans"; see Fig. 155) is exactly the same as the preceding. It is issued to members of Volksliste III, which comprises those who were "converted" into Germans without having been consulted. Its bearers have received citizenship on probation (Staatsangehörigkeit auf Widerruf); this is usually indicated by a rubber stamp inscription on page 2 or 3 of the green card. Bearers are entitled to the economic, but not the political rights of the German citizen (see para. 82).

192. Registration on arrival or departure

The system of police registration and the various forms used were discussed in para. 82, under Verwaltungspolizei. The Anmeldung bei der Polizeilichen Meldebehörde (Police Registration on taking up Residence) which is shown in Fig. 156, is printed on thin white paper. It lists personal data, military service information, etc., in great detail. On the reverse side an extract from the official registration decree is given.

The Abmeldung bei der Polizeilichen Meldebehörde (Police Registration on leaving the district; see Fig. 157), which is printed on thin green paper, contains information similar to that in the Anmeldung, and the same extract from the registration decree is given on the reverse side.

COMPARATIVE CHART OF POLICE UNIFORMS

The information contained in this chart is intended for quick identification of the basic facts in German police uniforms. It provides an overall picture but does not attempt to cover details which appear in the text. It should especially be noted that in all instances in which the distinction between enlisted personnel (OR's) and officers is mere a varying degree of elaborate design no indication of this fact is given in the chart.

UNIFORM FILING SYSTEM OF THE NATIONAL POLICE
ADMINISTRATION HQ—AS APPLIED TO THE PROTECTION POLICE

(Einheitsaktenplan für die Staatlichen Polizeiverwaltungen—Schutzpolizei)

Note.—The following list is a condensation of the Einheitsaktenplan as used in all German National Police Administration Headquarters, the offices of the BdO and the Schutzpolizeikommandos. The document which furnished the information tabulated below showed the application of the EAPI to the Kommando der Schupo in Vienna. Consequently it lists only those numbers which have any reference to the Schupo and its work.

It appears that the EAPI is divided up as follows :—

1000-5999	Section I of a Staatliche Polizeiverwaltung (this includes the organisation and establishment, etc. of the Schutzpolizei Kommando).
6000-6999	Section II
7000-7999	Section III
8000-8999	Section IV
9000-9999	Section V

Despite the fact that the examples in the tabulation below are restricted to those used by the Schutzpolizei, the following list may be helpful in the search for any specific files in an Orpo Headquarters.

File No.	German Text	English Text
(1000/5999)	Aufbau, Einrichtung, Technischer Dienst, Personalangelegenheiten, Ausbildung und Verwertung der Schutzpolizei	Organisation, Establishment, Technical Services, Personnel Training and Employment of the Protection Police

UNCLASSIFIED

SS-Polizei Schützen Regiment 38

Commander :

Oberstlt. WEISS.

Component Bns : ?

Forming at Sigisvara, Hungary, in Jul 1944.

The following regiments have been identified by name only and may possibly be identical with one of the known numbered regiments.

SS-Polizei Regiment Alpenvorland

Identified in Northern Italy in Nov 1944.

SS-Polizei Regiment Bozen

This regiment was formerly known as Pol. Regt. "Südtirol" and was re-named in Oct 1943. Other reports state that this regt. is identical with SS-Pol. Regt. 14.

SS-Polizei Regiment Griese

Reported to contain three Bns plus one battery of artillery. An Oberst GRIESE was reported as C.O. of a Pol. Regt. on the Mediterranean Coast. Other reports state that this regt. is identical with SS-Pol. Regt. 14.

SS-Polizei Regiment Mähren

SS-Pol. Regt. 21 was identified in Sept 1944 under this name.

SS-Pz. Gren. Brig. 49

This is known to be a W-SS unit but the fact that it receives replacements for its 2nd Bn from Polizei Waffenschule I, Hellerau near Dresden and from Polizei Ersatzabteilung Mährisch-Ostrau makes it worthy of mention here. The 2nd Bn has definitely been identified as a Police Bn and may be identical with Pol. Bn. z.b.V. which was formed at Dresden in spring 1944, and which is known to have been incorporated into SS-Pz. Gren. Brig. 49, moved to Denmark and later sent to France. In Aug 1944 the Brigade was renamed 26 SS-Pz. Div., committed to action shortly thereafter and destroyed. The remnants were incorporated into 17. SS-Pz. Gren. Div. "Götz von Berlichingen."

Polizei Reiter Regiment

Composed of Volksdeutsche from the Ukraine. Reported to have operated on the Central and Southern Sectors of the Eastern Front.

Polizei Ausbildungs-Regiment Oranienburg

Identified in May 1943

FEUERSCHUTZPOLIZEI-REGIMENTER

Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment Sachsen

Possibly also called Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment 1. Located at Winsen a.d. Luhe in Aug 1942.

Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment Ost/West Flandern

A partly Belgian unit.

SS-Niederländische Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment in Holland

Possibly identical with Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment 2 in Holland.

Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment Ostpreussen

Also known as Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment 3. Standortdienststelle for a time at Königshütte/OS and later at Nürnberg-Zirndorf in Aug 1942 and at Schloss Kappenberg ü. Lünen/Westfalen in Mar 1943.

Feuerschutzpolizei-Regiment Böhmen-Mähren

Located at Pilsen.

Feuerschutzpolizei-Abt. (mot.) Ukraine*

Identical with Feuerschutzpolizei-Abt. (mot.) 4.

*Note: Latest reports state that all Feuerschutzpolizei-Regimenter were renamed Feuerschutzpolizei-Abteilungen (mot.), probably an indication of their irregular strength and size. 9 of these Abteilungen are reported to exist.

ANNEXE E : PART TWO

ORDER OF BATTLE OF SS-POLICE BATTALIONS

Note.—It is evident from the following tabulation that all battalions from No. 11 to No. 181 were numbered according to the Wehrkreise in which they were originally recruited. Thus, Nos. 11–19 were reserved for battalions from Wehrkreis I, Nos. 21–29 for Wehrkreis II, and so on. However, prior to the initiation of this system, certain Police battalions existed which are now believed to be disbanded. The numbers of these battalions, as shown at the bottom of the list, ranged from 1–210, but they were never duplicated in those battalions existing to-day. Present existing battalions with a number below 11 appear to be remnants of this former system.

There are three additional blocks of battalions which were formed at a later date from personnel available in various parts of Germany. They are numbered: 251–256, formed in winter 1940–41 for use in Norway and Holland; 301–320, formed in winter, 1940–41, most of them for use on and behind the Eastern Front; and 321–325, formed in July 1941, also for use in the East.

COMMUNICATIONS

(a) TELETYPE NETWORK OF THE SIPO AND SD

(1st August, 1941)

Note :—The following list may appear somewhat irregular but it adheres in every detail to the original German terminology and usage. Column one gives the official designation of the Headquarters (usually its geographical location but occasionally the name of the Office). Column two gives the type of office (abbreviated). When the name of the Headquarters is given in Column one the geographical location appears in Column two. Column three lists the exchanges which relay or furnish direct connection to the Headquarters listed in Column one. Headquarters listed by their former names rather than their recent designations are marked with an asterisk (*).

The original German list of abbreviations will be found at (c) of this part.

AMENDMENTS TO THE TELETYPE NETWORK OF THE SIPO AND SD

The following is a consolidated list of five Amendments to the preceding list and was published by the Chef der Sipo und des SD on the following dates:—

- 30 December, 1942
- 6 February 1943
- 8 May, 1943
- 9 October, 1943
- 11 December, 1943

There is no doubt that the Germans have issued more Amendments than those listed above ; these have not come to hand. For this reason, certain instances in the Amendments may call for a deletion of an item which is not given at all in the list of the Teletype Network of the Sipo and SD (1 August, 1941), but may have been contained in one of the Amendments not as yet available. It was, therefore, considered inadvisable to incorporate the following changes in the list under (a).

(g) DIRECTIVES ON THE USE OF Sipo AND SD WIRELESS STATIONS
(Richtlinien über die Benutzung der Funkeinrichtungen der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD)

Benutzer

Für die Benutzung der Funkeinrichtungen der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD durch die Ämter I bis VI des Reichssicherheitshauptamtes und die Befehlshaber, Inspekture der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD sowie deren nachgeordnete Dienststellen wird folgendes bekanntgegeben bzw. angeordnet:

1. Das Funknetz der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD besteht zur Zeit aus den in der Anlage aufgeführten Funkstellen.

Zweck

2. (i) Die Funkeinrichtungen der Sicherheitspolizei und des SD haben den Zweck:

(a) Überall dort die Nachrichtenübermittlung der Sipo, der Kripo und des SD zu übernehmen, wo kein Fernschreiber vorhanden oder der Fernschreiber ausgefallen ist oder keine andere Nachrichtenverbindung zur Verfügung steht.

(b) Für einen engen Personenkreis bestimmte Nachrichten zu übermitteln (mit Stabsschlüssel).

(c) Auf Grund ihrer Unabhängigkeit von Drahtverbindungen eine ständige Alarmbereitschaft aufrechtzuerhalten (auch nachts).

(ii) Geheime Reichssachen werden grundsätzlich nur dann durch Funk befördert, wenn für sie wegen der Kürze der zur Verfügung stehenden Zeit kein anderes geeignetes Nachrichtenmittel vorhanden ist.

Zustellung von Funksprüchen

3. (i) Funksprüche von oder an ausserhalb des Hauses befindliche Dienststellen sind entweder durch Fernschreiber, über interne Telefonleitung oder durch Boten zuzuleiten. Eine Abholung oder Zustellung durch die Funkstelle erfolgt nicht.

(ii) Die Durchgabe von Funksprüchen über Posttelefon ist verboten. Über Posttelefon erfolgt lediglich die Benachrichtigung über den Eingang eines Funkspruches, auf die der Funkstelle mitzuteilen ist, ob der Funkspruch abgeholt wird oder auf dem üblichen Dienstwege weitergegeben werden soll.

(iii) Telephonisch übermittelte Funksprüche von oder an ausserhalb des Hauses befindliche Dienststellen werden auf der Funkstelle abgelegt. Eine Zusendung erfolgt nur auf Verlangen des Absenders bzw. Empfängers.

(iv) Dringende Funksprüche werden auch an im Hause befindliche Dienststellen telefonisch durchgesprochen, wenn eine schnelle Übermittlung auf dem gewöhnlichen Dienstweg nicht sichergestellt ist. Der Funkspruch wird in diesem Falle auf dem üblichen Dienstweg nachgesandt.

Aushändigungsbestätigung

4. Auf Verlangen wird die Aushändigung eines Funkspruchs an den Empfänger bestätigt.

Telegrammstil

5. Jeder Funkspruch soll nicht mehr als 20 Schreibmaschinenzeilen (ohne An- und Unterschrift) haben und soll im Telegrammstil abgefasst sein. Betreff, Vorgang, Aktenzeichen, Tagebuchnummer usw. sind tunlichst zu vermeiden.

An- und Unterschriften

6. Funksprüche müssen mit vollen und leserlichen An- und Unterschriften versehen werden.

Privatfunksprüche

7. Private Funksprüche sind verboten.

8. Das Funkpersonal hat Befehl, Funksprüche, die nach Inhalt und Form gegen die vorstehenden Richtlinien verstossen, abzuweisen.

9. Die SD-Befehle 55/38 und 33/39 sind durch die vorstehenden Richtlinien überholt und werden hiermit aufgehoben.

Users

The following orders concerning the use of all Security Police and Security Service Wireless installations by Bureaux I-VI of the RSHA, the Commanders and Inspectors of the Sipo and SD as well as all offices and headquarters subordinated to them, are hereby made known:

1. The wireless network of the Sipo and SD consists at present of all wireless posts listed at (f) above.

Purpose

2. (i) The wireless installations of the Sipo and SD have the following purposes:

(a) To transmit communications of the Secret State Police, the Criminal Police and the Security Police in cases where no teletype facilities exist, where teleprinters are not usable or where no other signal circuits are available.

(b) To transmit messages intended for a limited number of recipients (cyphered).

(c) To maintain an ever-ready alarm and emergency service (even at night) as these installations are independent of wire circuits.

(ii) Top Secret matters (civilian classification) can only be transmitted over the wireless network when no other means of communication are available for their transmission owing to the time limit placed upon them.

Delivery of Wireless Messages

3. (i) Wireless messages originating from or addressed to offices of the organisation located outside the signal office are to be delivered either by teleprinter, house-telephone (internal circuit), or by messenger. The messages will not be fetched or delivered by the wireless station.

(ii) It is prohibited to relay wireless messages via postal telephone lines. Only the receipt of such messages may be confirmed by these means. In this manner the wireless station may be informed whether the message is to be picked up or whether it is to be sent through the usual official channels.

(iii) Wireless messages originating from or addressed to offices situated outside the transmitting station are filed at the wireless station. Delivery of the message is effected only upon request of the sender or the recipient.

(iv) Urgent wireless messages are also relayed by telephone within the office provided rapid transmission cannot be guaranteed via the usual official channels. The wireless message in such cases is sent afterwards through official channels.

Written Receipt

4. Upon request the receipt of a wireless message is signed for upon delivery by the addressee.

Telegram style

5. Each message is to contain not more than 20 typewritten lines (address and signature not included) and must be phrased in telegraphese. References to the subject matter of the message, file or official number, journal reference number, etc., are to be avoided.

Addresses and Signatures

6. Wireless messages must bear full and readable addresses and signatures.

Private messages

7. Private wireless messages are prohibited.

8. All personnel handling messages have been ordered to refuse all messages which do not conform to the above directives in contents and form.

KRIPO AUSSENDIENSTSTELLEN UND AUSSENPOSTEN—
(Kripo Branch Offices)

Note.—An attempt has been made to arrive at the correct classification of all identified Kripo Branch Offices listed below, i.e. to determine on the basis of the number of inhabitants and the national importance of the town whether under the recent re-organisation (see text para. 118ff.), a particular Kripo office has become a Kripo Aussendienststelle (AuDSt.) or a Kripo Aussenposten (AuP). Since documentary evidence showing such classification is limited, the information in column 3 is only an indication, not a final statement. Cases marked with an asterisk (*) are, however, confirmed by documents.
