MASKED MEN HOLD UP MAN ON LOS FELIZ

Driving Cadillac, Bandits Plunder Pasadena of $15

TRAIL VICTIM'S CAR

Harold Lance, Pasadena, Has Thrilling Mid- night Experience

Harold Lance, 141 South Greenwood avenue, Pasadena, was held up and robbed at 12:45 o'clock last night at the east end of the Los Feliz bridge, the holdup being committed by two masked men, who, at the time of the robbery, operated a five-passenger Cadillac automobile. Lance was relieved of $15 in cash, after which he was told to remain at the scene of the crime until the crooks had disappeared up the road.

According to Lance, he was driving from Hollywood through Glendale to his home in Pasadena. As he was descending the Los Feliz hill he noticed that a machine was close behind him. As this was no unusual circumstance he did not attach any significance to the machine that was following. As he passed the Los Feliz bridge he saw by the light of the following machine, that that car was close behind. Thinking the driver of the other car wished to pass, he drew to the right side of the road, just as soon as possible after crossing the bridge. Just as the other car came abreast with his machine one of the occupants of the other car called to him to stop, which he did.

He saw that there were two men in the other car, both of whom were wearing white handkerchiefs for masks. After taking all the money Lance had the crooks told him to stay where he was until they had disappeared. When they were around the nearby bend, Lance started his car and followed.

He trailed the Cadillac up the road and saw it turn south on Gardens avenue. The matter was reported at once to Glendale police and Officers Kerns, Snyder and La Rock hurried down to the southern part of the city, but although they traveled the streets for some time, they were unable to locate the highwaymen. The police in all of the nearby cities and towns were notified and are on the lookout for the criminals.

By way of description, Lance said that the highwaymen both wore dark suits and caps. The Cadillac was painted a dark color, and the license plate was either missing or covered. The car carried a spare tire on the rear.

EUGENE H. LEARNED NOMINATED TO SCHOOL BOARD

To Fill Vacancy Caused by Resignation of David Black

Two items of grammar school news are of considerable interest to Glendaleans. One is the appointment of Eugene H. Learned, who has been vice principal of the Wilson Avenue intermediate, as principal of the new intermediate on Glendale avenue.

Mr. Whytock has lived in Glendale so many years he has acquired a large circle of friends here and the appointment meets with general approval. A man of dignity and reserve, who commands the respect of his pupils, he is also able to enter into their sports with great heartiness and is therefore popular on the playground.

The other appointment is the resignation of Eugene H. Learned, who has been vice principal of the Wilson Avenue intermediate, as principal of the new intermediate on Glendale avenue.

Goat Is Continuing to Butt Its Way Into Fame, Says Mr. James

The goat continues to butt its way into fame, says Henry James in his comment on the News of the day on the editorial page this evening. He refers to the goat giving up its glands to rejuvenate the senile human frame and at the conclusion of his comment, he asks if the faithful goat isn't to have any consideration?

James W. Foley in his philosophical way, writes of the starting out to do the very best thing we can. You will find what he has to say in "The Listening Post."

Dr. Frank Crane writes of "Opinions and the Reasons for Them," and his article teems with interest and information. Then there is John Pilgrim, who revises his ideas about lying, and Della Stewart, who asks why one invention is not perfected before another is started.

All the other features are there, as well as new ones. It's a mighty good editorial page and you should read it regularly.

TRAFFIC WAR IS DENOUNCED BY REALTORS

Two-Hour Parking Arouses Members to Action

The "pernicious and promiscuous system" of arresting and tagging automobile drivers for minor traffic violations was vigorously attacked yesterday at the noonday meeting of the realtors and members of the board spoke regarding the present system in Glendale of arresting visitors to the city and prospective investors for minor traffic violations.

President Cameron D. Thom of the board said that he knew of several cases where people had visited Glendale with the intention of buying property here and during their visit had been arrested for some slight violation of regulations. He said that instead of receiving a reprimand for this violation they had been heavily fined. The result was that these prospective investors refused to consider the purchase of Glendale property.

Mr. Thom also said that he has been informed by reliable people from other towns that the reputation of Glendale for heavy fining of traffic violators is spreading throughout Southern California. Glendale's reputation is exceeding the reputation of Santa Ana.

Charles B. Guthrie also spoke as opposing the system of arresting and fining minor violators. All members of the board agreed that speeders, who endanger the lives of others, should be arrested and fined. They protested the heavy fining of drivers who violate the minor ordinances through ignorance of the city regulations. They were of the opinion that a warning to these violators by the traffic officers would suffice.

The board also went on record as opposed to the present parking ordinance prohibiting the parking of automobiles on the main business streets for more than two hours. An ordinance repealing this measure is to be introduced tonight at the meeting of the city council and it was indicated yesterday that a large delegation of the realtors will be present at the meeting to protest the present ordinance and ask its repeal.

Secretary E. P. Hayward was also instructed to write a letter protesting the present ordinance and asking that it be set aside.

Aside from the discussion of the parking ordinance and existing traffic conditions little business was transacted. Many of the members were absent.

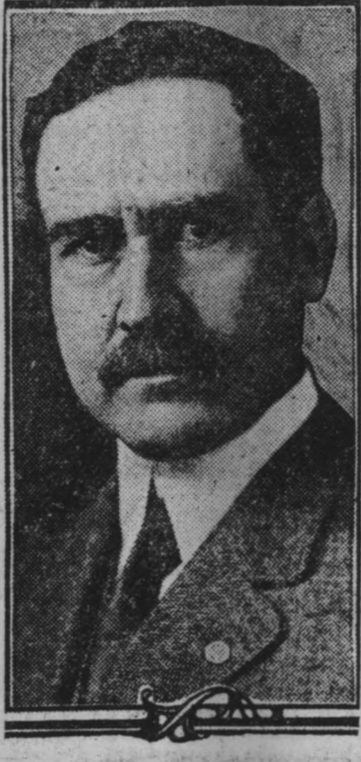

Secretary Hayward reported that the committee recently appointed to arrange the details for the installing of the multiple listing system of handling real estate sales. This committee will report to the members in a short time.

C. C. MOORE ENTERS RACE FOR SENATOR

So. Cal. Produce Candi- dates for Nomination Against Johnson

CLUBS TO FORM Head of Work in States Called to Sustain President

Charles H. Moore, San Francisco engineer and president of the Panama-Pacific exposition, has announced that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator. The announcement was made after a meeting of Northern and Southern California Republicans, held yesterday at the Palace hotel in San Francisco. Mr. Moore will oppose Senator Hiram W. Johnson, who, it is expected, will be a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Moore has an enviable record of service to the nation and the state. As president and chairman of the financial committee, he made the Panama-Pacific exposition a success in spite of the fact that the World War had started.

It was resolved at the meeting to establish Republican clubs throughout the Southland. These clubs will not only support the Republican campaign and the Harding administration, but will take an active part in Moore's campaign.

For his work as president of the Panama-Pacific exposition, Mr. Moore was decorated by France, Italy, Greece, Norway, China and Japan.

Mr. Moore is a large landholder in California. A recent purchase near Los Angeles made him a member, the other members of the committee being Rev. Louis S. Farr and Rev. T. C. Horton, has been instrumental in bringing to this coast one of the most important conferences that has ever been held, the world conference on Christian fundamentals. This convention, which will be the fourth annual meeting of the association, will be held in the Bible Institute, Los Angeles (the largest auditorium on the Pacific coast), June 25 to July 2. Sessions will be held each day at 11 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Some of the greatest Bible teachers in the United States and Canada will be speakers at the convention, among them being Mark Matthews, D. D., pastor First Presbyterian church, Seattle, Wash.; W. B. Riley, D. D., pastor First Baptist church, Minneapolis; W. P. White, D. D., ex-pastor of the United Presbyterian church, Albany, Ore.; Dr. L. W. Munhall, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. W. Lawrence, D. D., ex-pastor of the First Congregational church, Dallas, Tex.; Cortland Myers, D. D., ex-pastor Tremont temple, Boston, and others equally prominent in Bible exposition and spiritual teaching.

The program will center on "Evolution" and its effects upon the religion of our day and the future. The first fundamental of the Christian faith is belief in the inspiration and authority of the Bible. With this conviction in mind, among the subjects decided upon for discussion are: "The Origin and Growth of Modern Destructive Criticism," "The Relation of Darwinism to Modern Destructive Criticism," "True Science and the Old Testament," "Failure of Modernism to Attract to Church or Win to Christ," "Failure of Rationalism in the Role of Religion." Many more intensely interesting topics will be discussed, but space forbids their mention. All the sessions are open to the public, and Glendale will be well represented.

Charles C. Moore Republican Candidate for U. S. Senate

Backed by a solid alignment of strong republican forces, Charles C. Moore has entered the campaign for the nomination for United States senator against Senator Hiram Johnson, with an impact that stirred deeply, Southern California, with the realization that the southern part of the state has materialized a candidate of which it may feel justified pride.

As republicans, there is the further thrill of gratification that its candidate matches in attainment, broad vision, record of industry and construction within the state, the mentality of the present incumbent, thus presenting a fair choice of high grade Californians not only to the republican voter but to the man-and-platform independent voter of the state.

By the entrance of Mr. Moore, the standard of the republican party is maintained at its highest ideal a standard of public service, represented and headed by men of public service record.

As president of the Panama-Pacific exposition and chairman of its finance committee, he marked it with success. As head of the California Liberty loan drive, he conducted it in overwhelming popularity. As head of the state defense council his work brought to him recognition from not only his own but allied countries.

Mr. Moore will make his debut in politics during the present campaign, although he was a candidate for Hoover delegate from California to the last republican convention.

He served as commissioner in Europe in 1906; he was head of the San Francisco chamber of commerce; chairman of its executive committee of the citizens' health commission which eradicated the bubonic plague from San Francisco.

And nearest to the heart of Southern California, he is one of our own, the largest landholder in California; active in the olive-growing industry. Through a recent purchase near Los Angeles, he is the holder of what is said to be the largest olive grove in the state.

The entrance of Mr. Moore into the field of politics came as the result of sentiment that has been going rapidly throughout the state.

The demand has been for a candidate who would represent the element of the republican organization that wishes to stand by the president in his constructive legislation. The need of that support was felt as a crucial one in the next congress.

Mr. Moore has vigorously sustained President Harding and been an apostle of party loyalty in administration of the affairs of the state and nation. To that loyalty he has now submitted.

The republican party of California is entitled to congratulate itself on bringing to light a true disciple of its principles of constructive government, comparable with any the state may produce, of any party allegiance. Well known in the north—he is admired in the south.

DR. CRIST REPORTS ON HIS CHURCH

Fourth Quarterly Con- ference Hears of Year's Growth

$37,500 WAS RAISED

Meets Budget, Benevo- lence and Clears Indebtedness

The fourth quarterly conference of the First Methodist church, was held at the church Wednesday evening, at 8:30, with Dr. W. L. Y. Davis, district superintendent, presiding. It was well attended by members of the conference and church, and was especially interesting, as each department responded with an excellent report of the year's work, which showed marked growth all along the line.

Dr. Crist's report was an exceedingly optimistic one. Telling that the co-operation of the official board and the entire church membership had made possible the fine results of the year's work, he was unqualified in his praise. He pointed out a number of outstanding achievements, among them the fact that besides a budget of $12,000 for current expenses and $4500 for benevolences the church raised by subscription, a few months ago, over $21,000. This amount provides for all indebtedness on church and parsonage properties, and leaves a good surplus for all improvements, which will include the seating of the gallery.

The church school, according to Dr. Crist's report, is in a most prosperous condition, with an average attendance for the year of approximately 600. The ladies' societies and the brotherhood are all in fine condition and functioning in a wonderful way.

The "unit system" is very effective. There are 20 units, which include all of Glendale, and each unit is presided over by one who is called the leader. With four assistants for each leader the work of visitation is well cared for.

The religious educational department under the direction of Mr. Carl C. Seltzer, according to the pastor, has met a great and long standing need in the work of the local church.

There has been a net gain in church membership in the last nine months of 137. The total membership being now well over 1100.

Mr. Seltzer's report showed that there has been a gain of over 100 in average attendance on the church school. All departments in excellent working condition but a great need for workers. In his work of religious education he is laying a foundation for great results in the future. The daily vespers Bible school was announced for July 5 to August 1.

The Ladies' Aid have enlarged their subscription and are doing a wonderful work; 2900 calls being reported, which Dr. Davis says is the highest for the district as far as he is informed.

The Home and Foreign missionary societies have reached their goal of a 20 percent in all activities. The Brotherhood received special commendation for its interest in business and civic affairs.

The work of the "unit system," spoken of in Dr. Crist's report, has to be known to be appreciated, as only those know it who have devoted their time to the work. Let us hope that this church will never be without an active system of unit workers.

The Epworth League was represented by the new president, Elwood Ingelude, who gave a characteristic "peppy" report.

Bessie Ross reported an interesting Junior league.

FISH TALE THAT IS A FISH TALE Begins With Bait

PORTLAND, Ore., June 22.

There are fish tales and then other fish tales, but this experience, garnered while seeking bait, is vouched for by two men whose veracity is unquestioned, not to mention the fact that they brought back the evidence to prove the yarn.

W. L. Pratt and G. S. Burgen, both of Portland, ran out of bait while fishing the Little White Salmon, near Stevenson, Wash. They sought more in an open field. Burgen, his attention arrested by a nest of anglerworms, heard Pratt shout and turned to see him disappear into a yawning hole, whose existence neither had expected. Burgen found his companion gazing in astonishment from the depths of the cavity, some six feet deep. The two examined it.

Dry, rounded as if a well had been started, and covered over with a light roof through which Pratt had walked, the hole contained a mummified figure and the traces of two more. Wrapped in blankets which had become rotten with age, they found the figure of an Indian boy. The mummified head of an Indian woman also was discovered, and a bundle which appeared to have been the little figure of a papoose. The woman's body and that of the child had succumbed to the ravages of time, but their bodies, apparently more skillfully embalmed, was remarkably preserved.

The boy's body and the woman's head were brought back to Portland as curios. Both faces have high cheek bones and flat noses and hair, a typical Indian black, still adheres to the woman's scalp. Both skulls were bound about with strips of buckskin. The teeth were in fair condition.

The size of the boy's bones indicated that he was about 16 years of age at the time of death. A metal ring encircled the left index finger on the boy's hand.

Pratt said he noticed nothing peculiar about the ground before he stepped upon the plot and received his somewhat abrupt introduction to this relic of the past, which he faced jowl to jowl at the completion of his journey to the bottom of the hole without warning. No writing of any kind was found in the tomb, which might have given an idea how long the bodies had been buried. The hole, which was on the second ledge above the Columbia river, north of the north bank tracks, was so skillfully constructed and securely sealed as to make preservation of the bodies easily possible for a great many years, according to Pratt.

Small blueprints of the plans for the building were presented each member of the committee. These plans are to be kept by the committee.

SENIORS ARE GUESTS OF JUNIORS

Reception and Entertain- ment at Ganet Home in Eagle Rock

PIE EATING CONTEST Pool, Dancing and Music Program Feature Fare- well Party

By MISS MARJORIE M. YARICK

The summer graduating class of 1922 was royally feted last night when, according to precedent, the juniors were hosts and hostesses at an informal afternoon. The entertainment took place in Eagle Rock at the spacious Garret home on Satsuma avenue, which is surrounded by wide and lovely grounds, and the house itself is an ideal setting for an at-home.

When the seniors were whirled away in machines, they found that a wonderful afternoon had been planned and arranged for them in a very new and novel fashion. Tennis courts were available, which junior boys had labored hard and long to smooth and mark.

One of the principal features of the afternoon was very evidently furnished necessary music. Later in the afternoon a short but splendid program was enjoyed. Marcella Webb gave an interpretive dance in her usual lovely way, and was enthusiastically received.

Then the Hunt sisters, Evelyn and Leona, delighted their audience with very clever pianolques, accompanied by illustrative dancing. These numbers, supplemented with impromptu piano numbers by Lois Olmstead, Winifred Parker, Ralph Van Hoorbecke, and others, sufficed to entertain the seniors until the main event occurred.

This main event was naturally the "eats." Much praise is due those girls who were in charge of planning, and preparing, and cleaning up after this lunch. Brick icecream, wafers, sandwiches, all disappeared with a strange rapidity after once appearing, full justice being done to their fine quality and plentiful quantity.

In connection with the regular food, Normal Hayhurst very decidedly had enough to eat when carrying out a challenge sent him by Earl T. Brown for a pie-eating contest. Both men had thoroughly prepared themselves for this fray, and needless to say, did wonderful before the hilarious applause of everyone.

After a most successful afternoon, hosts and guests departed upon hearing the strains of "Home, Sweet Home." The informality of the congenial gathering was particularly pleasing to all present, especially to the seniors, who, tonight, will graduate from their loved school.

They will leave, feeling that the juniors did the best in their ability to entertain them, and to show them their regrets for missing them.

Those who had this splendid day in charge were Loren Patrick, Allen Pollock and Harry Bennett.

At this meeting, plans were made for their work for the coming year and mention was made of the work just completed. Last year they went over the top in their aim for money. Baskets of spring flowers were used throughout the rooms, and the afternoon was spent in social conversation. A guessing game, "The Marriage of the Flowers," created much amusement.

There were 40 members present. Other guests included Mrs. Childs, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. W. W. Hamilton.

At the close of the afternoon refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Mrs. Dorse was assisted by Mrs. Walter Stamps, Mrs. A. J. Maxwell and Miss Beatrice Dorse.

WINONA CAMP FIRE GIRLS PLAN HIKE

The Winona Campfire Girls are planning a two-weeks' trip to Camp Baldy, leaving July 1. They have had their cabin donated and are anticipating a wonderful time, but they have found difficulty in getting a means of transportation.

If anyone going up to Camp Baldy about July 1 has room to take one or more passengers with them, and if they will notify Mrs. Sinclair Whytock, 333 North Geneva street, or Glendale 2426-W, it will be greatly appreciated. The girls in charge of transportation are Marjorie Phillips and Juanita Hall, but Mrs. Whytock will greatly appreciate a call from anyone who would be willing to take up some of these girls.

MRS. BOUQUET IS SISTER'S GUEST

Mrs. Horace Keeler of 408 West Milford street gave a luncheon today in honor of her sister, Mrs. E. Bouquet, and daughter, Mona Jean of San Francisco. Dohrmann, all of Los Angeles; Mrs. John Warner and daughter, Edith, of San Francisco, and the guests of honor, Mrs. E. Bouquet and Miss Mona Jean Bouquet and the hostess, Mrs. Horace Keeler.

SEVENTYTHOUSAND DAILY - VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TO OPEN

GLLENDALE HEIGHTS IMPROVEMENTS

Tract Is Rapidly Coming Under Beautification Plan

First Presbyterian Completes Plans for All Creed Classes

Improvements costing about $70,000 are rapidly nearing completion in the Glendale Heights tract in South Glendale, which is being put on by the Haddock-Nibley company. The sidewalks have been laid over the entire tract, while Peter Ferry, one of the valley's leading contractors, is putting the finishing touches on the hard-surfacing of Adams, Green and Schofield streets. Another crew is putting in the curbing on Yale street. It is expected that all of the improvements, which will include street work, gas, water, electricity, etc., will be in and ready for use by July 1. Fire hydrants are already in place along Adams street.

Plans for the opening of the Daily Vacation Bible school in the First Presbyterian church, corner Broadway and Cedar street, are practically complete. Highly competent instructors in children's work have been secured for the faculty, which includes Miss Anita Fletcher, who has had technical training both in the east and in California, and who has been selected as the principal of the school; Mrs. George H. Martin will have charge of the kindergarten; Miss Anabel McClellan will be in charge of the primary section; the junior girls' department will be under the supervision of Miss Agnes Tupper, while D. L. Foster, of the Bible institute, will be supervisor of the junior boys' department. The school will be in session each week during the month of July, commencing the 5th, except Saturdays, from 9 to 12 a. m. and will be open to children of all creeds, or none, of the ages from 4 to 13. With such capable and efficient leadership, the success of the school is already assured. This is an opportunity that the parents of the children of Glendale ought to avail themselves of. It not only relieves them of their care during the morning hours, but will be of incalculable benefit to the children themselves.

1200 CHAFFEE FOLKS ENJOY DAY OFF

Swimming, diving, baseball, and last but not least, a picnic lunch, were some of the diversions enjoyed Wednesday by 1200 employees of the Chaffee stores, at their annual outing, held at Brookside park, Pasadena.

There were 64 stores represented at this picnic, and the day was full of fun from beginning to end. In the early part of the morning a ball game between the office force and the warehouse boys was played, resulting in a tie. From 10:30 until 12, water sports, such as swimming, high and fancy diving, were enjoyed, and at noon the picnic dinner was served.

In the afternoon a baseball game for men over 50 years of age was played. H. G. Chaffee being the star performer. Mr. Chaffee looks forward each year to this baseball game, and is usually laid up for several weeks afterwards, but he enjoys it nevertheless. Following the game came field sports and races. Many prizes were given away, having been generously donated by wholesale houses and jobbers of Los Angeles.

All the boys at the Glendale store were tired, happy, and sunburned this morning, but they say it is worth it, for they had a very good time.

Those who attended from the Glendale store were Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Totman, the former being manager of the store, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. McBrady, Mr. and Mrs. C. Lindeman, Otto Hagenjos, J. J. Chapman, Mrs. F. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lord and three children.

BRIDE-ELECT OF RAY ENGLE IS SHOWERED

Miss Virginia Chappius of 600 East Acadia avenue, was hostess on Wednesday night at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Winifred Jansen, bride-elect of Ray Engle of this city. The wedding will take place on Monday next.

A dainty color scheme of pink and white was used, carried out by the use of flowers. After an evening of dancing and music, dainty refreshments were served. Miss Jansen was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Guests of the evening included 12 intimate girl chums of the bride-to-be.

Audience Throgs T. D. & L. Theater to See "Trouble"

Jackie Coogan, the marvelous child actor, is at the T. D. & L. theater in his latest and said to be his greatest photoplay, "Trouble." Today is the last day.

The clever star is seen in the role of "Danny," an orphan, who has escaped from the orphanage with his dog "Queenie." The two spent the night sheltered by a shattered barrel, and the next morning they are picked up by the cop on the beat and returned to the orphanage.

Upured, terrace upon terrace, against a rock-ribbed butress, on a height commanding a far-sweep view of fertile valley and encircling mountains, rises the Forest Lawn ($1,000,000) Mausoleum-Columbarium, patterned after the Campo Santo of Genoa, Italy, one of the world's most beautiful burial spots.

Here, amid calm and peaceful surroundings, where art and skill have wrought together to make the final habitation secure against Time's eventualities, we offer you an opportunity in our "before need plan" to make a reservation that should be regarded as insurance against that inevitable day when decisions and mortuary arrangements must be made.

ELIMINATED AT CENTRAL

Plans Call for Correcting Curve to Make Thoroughfare

The last obstacle to the removal of the undesirable jog in Broadway at Central avenue has, it is believed, been removed. If present plans do not miscarry, this eye-sore to the city as a whole, and the Broadway and Central section in particular, will, as soon as legal proceedings have taken their course, be eliminated.

The plan calls for Broadway, east and west of Central, being connected by means of a gracefully curved connecting link. This will result in Broadway west of Central starting on the present line of that street east of Central. Continuing westward from Central, Broadway will swing to the north and will connect with the present section of Broadway west of Central, at a point between 250 and 300 feet west of Central's westerly line. West Broadway as it exists at this time will be permitted to remain as it is, thus leaving an almost triangular piece of ground where the oil station is now located. Portions of lots 2, 3, 4, 7 and 8 will be taken for this improvement.

The district to be assessed to pay for this work will, roughly speaking, include the following property: Along the south side of Broadway from San Fernando road to Central; along the west side of Central to Harvard; along the south side of Harvard to Brand; along the east side of Brand to Broadway; on both sides of Broadway to Louise; along the east side of Brand to Wilson; along the south side of Wilson to Central; along the west side of Central to Broadway; and along the north side of Broadway to San Fernando road.

This job at the present time will cost about $75,000, almost four times as much as it would have cost two years ago, and about 15 times what it would have cost four years ago.

A petition will be presented to the city council tonight, and that body will instruct the city attorney and the city engineer to take the necessary steps for ordering this work. When once started, the steps leading to the completion of this work will be finished as quickly as possible, so that this much-needed improvement may be put into effect at the earliest possible moment.

MARK PASSING OF 89TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Frank Chambers Honors Grandmother's Natal Day

Mrs. Frank Chambers of 736 South Glendale avenue, entertained Wednesday afternoon in honor of her grandmother, Mrs. Lodena Walker's 89th birthday.

Those present were Mrs. Chambers' mother, Mrs. F. J. Sitter of Seattle, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. D. Sitter of Lomita; Mrs. Chas. Huist of Pasadena, Mrs. Anna Gidding and Mrs. L. Crown of Pasadena, Mrs. Kate Walsh of Van Nuys, Mrs. Iva Brown, Mrs. O. W. Shutt, Mrs. W. E. Chambers, Mrs. Mabel Westbrook, Mrs. C. Willard, Mrs. H. D. Page, Mrs. J. D. Littlejohn, Mrs. W. P. Goodhue, Mrs. Emily Gregg, Mrs. Alfred Smith, all of Los Angeles, and the hostesses' children, Sidney, Portia, Francis and Paul Chambers.

A very delightful program was given by members of the Emerson school, Mrs. Mitchell giving the bear story, Miss Dorothy Wright giving two classical dances. Mr. Beederman also gave two readings and Mrs. Shutt gave several piano numbers. Later in the afternoon a delicious course of refreshments was served by the hostesses. A large birthday cake with Mrs. Walker's name and age on it, was a special feature and caused considerable comment on account of its beauty.

THE LINNET

I love to see the golden light
Come streaming through the trees;
I love to see the swinging boughs
Move gently in the breeze.

I love to hear sweet cadences
Come floating from above;
I like to hear the linnets sing
His little song of love.

Although he does not sing so well
As other birds I hear,
His song is like a fountain,
That's flowing all the year.

He has no dread of critics
That hinder many a man;
He just keeps right on singing,
And does the best he can.

He does not care for encores,
He does not seek applause;
He sings because he's happy,
If you would know the cause.

So I would learn a lesson,
My little friend, from you,
That I may still be happy,
And keep on singing, too.

—Uncle Hiram.

A NO. 1
Origin of the expression A No. 1 dates back to the time the insurance organization (Lloyd's) classified certain ships by this symbol. Ultimately the symbol, because of its usefulness, took its place in commercial vernacular and later became generally adopted to label anything of first quality.

LOCAL K. C. ENTERS CHILD WELFARE CAMPAIGN

Donations Poured Out in Appeal at Meeting Last Night

The regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held in I. O. O. F. hall last night. There was a large attendance present to hear the address of Rev. Robert E. Lucey, D.D., director of the Catholic charities campaign, which is being held under the auspices of the bureau of Catholic charities of Los Angeles. In his address, Rev. Lucey solicited the support of the local branch of the Knights of Columbus order in this work.

The local organization entered immediately into the work by pledging $50 in the name of the Glendale branch, in addition to a number of individual subscriptions. Dr. Lucey was accompanied by District Deputy McGinnis of Los Angeles.

The Knights of Columbus of Glendale will meet at White inn on the evening of Monday, June 26, to outline the work for the drive.

TONG MEN MAKE WAR IN MEXICO

NOGALES, Ariz., June 21.—Activities of a statewide vendetta of Chinese in Sonora, Mexico, today presented to Mexican authorities a situation almost as serious as that created by roving bandit gangs of the revolutionary times.

Headquarters of these Chinese gangs, whose antipathy centers about civil strife in China, are said to be located in the city of Guaymas, where "highbinders" willing to act as assassins for either faction are said to be available.

No less than 40 professional assassins are said to be open for engagement to go at any time to any part of the state to kill anyone for a price.

Several recent assassinations attributed to these gunmen, in various cities include two at Hermosillo, one at Guaymas, one at Nogales, Sonora, and several unsuccessful attempts at other places.

Thus far only three persons implicated in these affairs have been apprehended. At Coerit, a town near the head of the Rio Yaqui delta, a Chinese merchant was shot and seriously wounded by two Chinese who were later captured.

At La Colorada, a mining camp about 200 miles south of Nogales, a Chinese merchant named Juan Sing Leem was waylaid and killed by four Chinese who escaped.

Later at Torres, junction of the narrow-gauge railway, twelve distant, Alfonso Cinco, a Chinese resident of Guaymas, was arrested as alleged leader of the slayers.

SHRINERS SCARE HAWAII'S PET

HONOLULU, T. H., June 22.—Kilauea, Hawaii's pet volcano, is refusing to act up for the benefit of the three shiploads of Shriners who are en route here.

Until a few weeks ago the volcano was more of a sight than for any time for years. The sea of molten lava was close to the top. Three weeks ago, however, it began to fall, and since that time has sunk over 1000 feet. Now there isn't even enough smoke gets to the top to make it interesting. And as for the molten lava—it can't be seen at all. So the Shriners will have to be contented with the other sights of the island, and get their excitement out of watching the grass skirts.

THIS TEAMSHIP SAVANNAH was the first one to cross the ocean. It sailed from New York on March 28, 1819, and arrived at Savannah, Ga., on April 12. The ship then sailed for Liverpool, arriving there on June 20, having left Savannah on May 22—a voyage of almost one month.

SOCIAL CLUB OF EASTERN STAR, MEET

A delicious luncheon and social afternoon was enjoyed on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. W. McElroy, 516 South Adams street, when the Social club of the Eastern Star was entertained.

Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Cutting, Mrs. Kulp and Mrs. Calkins. The Star's colors were used in decorating, spring flowers carrying out the colors of blue, yellow, white, green and red. A short business session was held and the afternoon was devoted to sewing. Covers at the luncheon table were laid for 30 guests.

The Eastern Star will hold a picnic with their husbands on the evening of July 15, and those who are planning to go are requested to call Mrs. Wyvell not later than July 10.

CASH BONUSES FOR RETIRED OFFICERS

Formerly Served in Old Naval Auxiliary, They Are to Go

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Recommendation that a bonus approximating a year's pay be provided for those naval reserve officers who formerly served in the old Naval Auxiliary has been made by Secretary Denby to congress.

There are about fifty of these officers now in the service and their position is very different from that of other reservists. Many of them have been continuously in the naval service since the Spanish war and are now either commanding naval supply ships or serving as first officers and chief engineers.

Recently these officers made a joint appeal to the powers in Washington asking that they be made exempt from the general ruling that puts all reservists out of active service by July 1. Naval officers in general admit that it will be unfair to these "old-timers" to let them out now, without retirement pay or other benefits and the senate naval affairs committee has taken the same viewpoint.

During the hearings the department was asked by the committee to draw up some plan for relief of these veterans and the recommendations for a cash bonus was

Truths in Epigram

I never could believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world, ready booted and spurred and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden.—Macaulay (1800-1859).
Thoughts are mightier than strength in hand.—Sophocles (196-106 B. C.).

ROMANCE OF THE OPEN ROAD

An ex-hobo who has become articulate and acquired a vocabulary writes that there no longer is romance in hobbing. The poetry of the camp fire, kindled somewhere outside of police jurisdiction, has vanished. The fine spirit displayed by able-bodied men as they begged a hand out, or robbed a roost, is no more. Most hoboes have gone to work, or to jail. The highways are now used for legitimate travel, except as the ex-hobos, turned footpad, still haunt secluded parts of them.

STUBBORN JUROR

The juror in the recent murder trial was discharged after disagreeing with the rest of the jury for conviction. The juror who held out for acquittal is stated to have given as his reason, the somewhat cryptic phrase "just because." Admission will be general that the explanation lacks completeness. Its inadequacy is almost painfully manifest.

THE DUTY OF A WOMAN

Much has been said concerning the duties of the gentler sex. The members rest under certain recognized obligations. Each, as a social unit, is aware that circumstances make demands upon her energies, and that, failing to respond, she is falling short of the proper measure of accomplishment.

barbered male, can have no effect but to increase the robbery. His attitude will be construed as an impertinence; he will be told, not in words but deeds to attend to his own business. Until he has concluded to do so, the snip snip of the devastating shears will be heard in the land.

Occasionally faith in the chronicler of current news is severely strained. For instance there comes from the far northwest the story of the killing of a grizzly bear, the height of the creature being given as fifteen feet. That's too much bear for one story. It's a two-story bear.

Soviet Russia in proposing a little league of nations to take in with itself, Estonia, Finland, Poland and Latvia, recalls a touching old song beginning "Will you walk into my parlor? said the spider to the fly?"

Opinions and the Reasons for Them

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the most striking truths brought out by Professor Robinson is that "most of our so-called reasoning consists in finding arguments for going on believing as we already do." It is not once in a hundred times that we concern ourselves with looking for reasons as to why we believed a thing in the first place, and we are mostly occupied with the reasons that shall buttress up opinions we have already formed.

A United States senator once said that God Almighty could not make him change his mind about the League of Nations. To such a man reasoning was not used for the purpose of forming opinions, but simply to defend them after they were formed.

We love our notions just as we are vain of our person, our family, or our possessions. If a man is born a Catholic, he reasons a great deal to prove to himself that Catholicism is right. So if a man is a Methodist or a democrat or a Freemason, all his rationalizing goes to defend his position.

The reason why most of us are opposed to bolshevism is because we do not live in Russia. When any one proposes that you examine the foundations of your belief, this seems to you, as Mr. Trotter says, "to carry skepticism to an insane degree, and will be met by contempt, disapproval, or condemnation, according to the nature of the belief in question."

During the civil war, for instance, for a man who lived in Georgia to raise the question as to whether the south was right was good enough reason for riding him out of town on a rail.

As Professor Robinson says, the word "my" with most of us is the beginning of wisdom and the indisputable fact, whether it be my dinner, my way, my dog, my house, my country or my faith, we will not argue with you about these things, although we are willing enough to dispute concerning the canals of Mars or the pronunciation of Sebastopol.

Thousands of argumentative works, he says, have been written to vent a grudge. A history of philosophy and theology could be written in terms of gronches and might be far more instructive than the usual treatment of these things.

THE RIGHT WORD

QUERIES
(Find the error in this article)
"Dixie." Have been reading "If Winter Comes." "Aren't I" is used so much in the book. Is it correct? Kindly give the correct pronunciation of ad valorem. Please tell New Yorkers that saw spells saw, not sawer. I am from the south and often hear the speech of my southern criticized, but there is nothing said there that strikes me as half so silly as sawer, flawer, rawer, and so forth.

Answer. When an author causes a character to use appropriately bad English he is creating atmosphere. "Aren't I" is ipso facto bad English. The pronunciation of ad valorem is as follows: ad va-lo' rem (a as in at; a as in winsome; o as in got; e as in get).

Mary Mead, Mabel C. Daggett, and several others have written "The Right Word" to call attention to the glaring error involved in the expression "it is her," which appeared in an article recently. While these readers probably overlooked the notice "Find the error in this article," they must have seen the correction "It is she" under "Saturday's Error" on the following Monday. Incidents like these serve to emphasize the use of correct English.

George Ott: "Which is correct: 'It is essential that the ink dries practically immediately' or 'It is essential that the ink dries practically immediately'?" Answer: The subjunctive form dry is preferable in this case.

Yesterday's Error
"The above construction is possible, however, only when..." Above is either an adverb or an adjective. It is therefore correct to use foregoing or preceding; as, the foregoing construction.

Vocabulary
"Beneath a breaking sky amid the wild grass, I have shrived myself anew."—"A Gate of Cedar," by Katherine Morse.
Shrive: "To receive the confession of and give absolution to; also, to impose penance on (also used intransitively). To confess one's sins and receive absolution; often reflexively."
Pronunciation: shrive (as in aisle).—Oxford, Century, Webster and Standard.
Shrive: (a confession); shriven

THE LISTENING POST

Suppose we started out tomorrow morning, you and I and the rest of us, to do the very best thing we can.

Or, better still, suppose we begin today. Because the sooner we begin a good thing the better.

You and I and the rest of us have a lot to give. But we have perhaps never given the best of us.

It may be that we have never thought particularly about it. We may think we have given enough. All we have been paid for.

Why should we give more than we are paid for? Nobody else does it. Why not give as little as we can? Get through with as little effort as possible. Why not?

That is the way we think sometimes. Rather cynically. Bitterly perhaps. Angriely.

Let me take care of myself. You know the kind of thinking.

Natural enough, to be sure. Nothing to rail about. Or be angry about. Something rather to correct. For evil thinking needs correction.

Just as the teacher corrects the boy or girl who insists that two times two are five. It is not a crime to believe that two times two are five.

But it is a crime if some one who knows better lets that belief go uncorrected. For it may lead to much evil.

A building erected after the plans of an architect who believed that two times two were five, would perhaps collapse.

Ruin the architect and kill a lot of people. So evil beliefs need correction.

And to believe that we do enough when we do enough to get along somehow is evil.

So suppose tomorrow you and I and the rest of us did the best we can. Whatever our occupation may be. Suppose the baker gave us the very best bread of which he was capable.

The preacher the very best social service. The poet the very best dream.

Suppose everybody got the fever. From the Boss at his desk to the office boy. From the laborer to the statesman.

Not the very best he could do for his own selfish interest. But the very best he could do in his line of work.

Put it into the world. Suppose we should not be content with doing an average job. A passable job. A job that will do. A job as good as we get paid for. But a job as good as we can do.

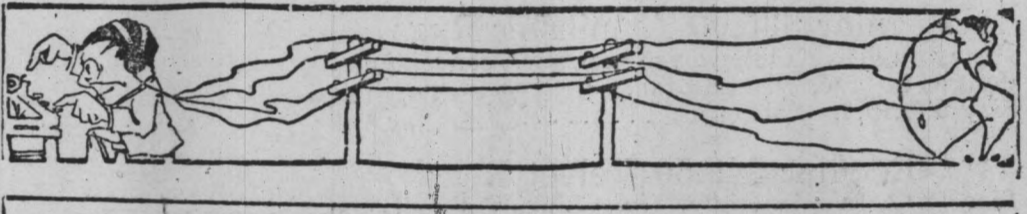

Whether it be a job of teaching, preaching, serving, helping, gardening, planting, harvesting, befriending, cheering or whatever it may be.

Yes— SUPPOSE WE DID.

Why not? It can be done. And it would make a marvelous difference in the community.

The family. The state. The nation.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Late Wisdom—By George Crabbe (1754-1832)

We've trod the maze of error round, Long wandering in the winding glade; And now the torch of truth is found, It only shows us where we strayed:

By long experience taught, we know— Can rightly judge of friends and foes; Can all the worth of these allow And all the faults discern in those.

Now, 'tis our boast that we can quell The wildest passions in their rage, Can their destructive force repel, And their impetuous wrath assuage.

Ah, Virtue! dost thou arm when now This hold rebellious race are fled? When all these tyrants rest, and thou Art warring with the mighty dead?

Helicopter Propellers Arouse Popular Admiration

Helicopter propellers are stirring interest as well as air demonstrations by Henry A. Berliner, of Washington, D. C., of his new design and the reports and denial of the sensational flight by Louis Brennan in England have caught scientific attention and aroused the popular imagination in regard to the development of this type of heavier-than-air machine which was eclipsed when the war concentrated engineering efforts upon the perfection of the further advanced airplane.

Aircraft that are sustained by propellers turning on vertical axis are still in the experimental stage. Theoretical they can go straight up, fly horizontally, hover in the air, and then come down safely. There are several difficulties to be met when an attempt is made to put this theory into practice. The chief of these problems are: First, getting the machine into the air; second, flying it horizontally; and third, getting it down out of the air.

Bringing it down safely is the big problem for the helicopter designer. As the children say, "All that goes up is bound to come down." This is particularly true of this kind of heavier-than-air device. Stop the motor and it comes down with a rock-like fall. With an engine of extreme nicety of adjustment and absolute certainty of action descent might be made by simply throttling down the propeller speed gradually. As there is no engine of such dependability, other means must be devised for getting down safely. Parachutes of the necessary size would add too much weight. Oehmichen and his associates have tried this method out on the heavy machine with a balloon. Another method proposed is that in coming down the propellers be so built that they can be disconnected from the engine and the angle of the blades changed so that they would spin around like a windmill offering greater resistance than when held stationary. Every inventor tries to solve this problem but as yet nothing effective has been done.

More progress has been made on the problem of securing horizontal flight. The latest Berliner helicopter shows great promise in this respect. The machine resembles an airplane without wings. The fuselage and rudder are the same and a Le Rhone 110 horse power rotary motor is mounted forward as in the aeroplane. On either side of the fuselage there is an upright carrying a 14-foot propeller. These two propellers revolve in opposite directions and force the air downward, lifting the 1300 pounds of the machine with pilot straight off the ground.

Near the tail there is a small propeller which is also geared to the motor and which tilts the entire helicopter by slightly lifting its tail. This tilt causes the forward motion of the machine, at the expense of lifting power. The inventor claims, however, that with a 1000-pound load but 3 per cent of the lift is lost in a tilt of 15 degrees and that this loss is transferred into horizontal pull of about 25 per cent of lifting power. This is a somewhat greater tilt than has been used in most of the experiments, but he thinks that a 25 degree tilt may possibly be reached safely. Closed flights, it is claimed, have been made over a rough field, but the machine has never been higher than 12 feet above the ground.

Aviators, however, claim that getting a helicopter into the air is comparatively an easy matter. When near the ground the air which is forced downward, forms a cushion

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The goat continues to butt its way into fame. It is lending its goats, possibly not without protest, to rejuvenation of the senile human frame. If the owner of the frame cackles delightedly at this, and the goat is protected from discomfort while yielding its contribution, and the surgeon reaps a harvest, there does not seem reason for complaining.

In a way, the process recalls the ancient one of putting new wine into old bottles, a practice discouraged as rash. If youth may be revived by budding onto human tissue, the tissue of a husky quadruped, so may a Liberty motor be employed to lend vitality to a rickety flivver. After which the fragments of the flivver might be swept up from the highway.

Faith in the scheme is not firmly grounded. Large and alluring announcements are made from time to time concerning its efficacy. So-and-so, a prominent citizen, is pointed to as about to undergo the operation. He proves to be all right as a sample of "After Taking" has yet to be established. And after all, is the faithful goat not to be considered?

S. Fred Hogue, a correspondent strongly touched by pessimism, remarks that the war scars of England are no more to be seen. When conditions are such as to stimulate Hogue into taking a cheerful view, they must be enough to make the natural optimist shout for joy. Let it be considered then, unless Hogue shall experience a relapse, that the war is over.

Debts to this country are said not to be worrying the nations of Europe. Possibly the good-old rule of letting the other fellow worry never before had been applied on so large a scale.

A Kentucky man chained his daughter to discourage her supposed plan of eloping, beat her until she tried to commit suicide; narrowly escaped lynching by a masculine mob, and was acquitted by a feminine jury.

It is proper to say that members of the mob went too far, and yet members of the jury went farther.

Perhaps there is comfort to some people in the announcement that drinks on ocean liners have been brought down to normal in price. However, few expressions of delight are heard. The hard working majority not able to indulge in ocean travel, and not able to get even a scent of liquor at home, have felt a sort of satisfaction in seeing the floating bartender cinch the European traveler. Everybody has that much of a mean streak.

Premier Poincaré says that France must ratify the four-power treaty without delay. The people of the United States agree fully. They believe in the treaty themselves, but think that a compact of the sort is more effective after it has been endorsed.

This government has conducted itself as though the arrangement were of full effect, an exhibition of faith that ought to win credit from other signatory powers.

Only a few days ago the statement came from Paris that heels were to be higher. Now arrives the information that they are to be lower.

Perhaps the fashion makers got a hint of an imminent revolt. Women are willing to go far in following styles, but the more intelligent object to being made ridiculous.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I am revising my ideas about lying. There was a time when I scolded every one I caught lying, or suspected of lying, or thought might lie. Now I am swinging around to the idea that lying is such a universal practice that a single-handed crusader will only get himself mixed up with the windmill if he tries to put it down. Here is my new suggestion:

Don't lie if you fear you may be caught. John Hicks is responsible for this. Seven months ago I thought John Hicks was an up and coming young business man. I threw some little business his way. I did not think he was a wonder, but I did believe that he was modestly prosperous. Then John took me into his confidence one day.

"I've sold my car," said he. "Didn't like it, and got a good trade on the new model the Plazoozis company is putting out." "When will you get delivery?" I asked carelessly. "In a few weeks," said John.

That stuck in my memory. I do not know why, but it stuck. Every now and then I've casually asked John if he has got his car yet, or led up to a conversational opening so that John could tell me whether he has. But John has never come clean with me. He has no car, but it seems that John is abounding and abutting on the verge of getting one. His stories are beginning to vary. It seems to me that John is avoiding me since I began to display this interest in his affairs.

If John had told me that he had sold his car and said no more. I would have thought nothing of it. And if he had taken that better part of discretion, which is silence, and said nothing about it, I never would have worried about his car situation. The chances are that I never would have known anything about it. But because he told me what appears to have been a perfectly gratuitous lie he has shaken my faith in his honesty and ability, and I'll take no more chances on him in a business way.

Hence today's great new thought: "Don't lie if you may be found out." The kick in that is that there isn't a lie in the world that may not be found out in time. There are no safe lies. If there were any, I would be telling them myself.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

Why not perfect one invention before starting on another? Why develop radio, for instance, before the automobile, friend and servant of millions, has reached its highest development?

Gears. Why not make them fool-proof, operated simply by a set of electric buttons, warranted never to get out of order? The internal crashing and grinding that greets the ear of the novice when he mixes neutral with first and second is most annoying to the car. A plainly labelled set of buttons, easily accessible to the right hand, would have such discord—and, incidentally, many a garage bill.

Lubrication system, too. At present several kinds of horrid, messy grease and oil must be properly applied at short intervals to keep one's motor in the driving condition. Why not invent a greaseless motor? Think of the saving both in money and in oil smooches on hands and clothing.

The filling system, too, is so crude. One has to tarry by the wayside while some insouciant gas dealer short circuits a snake-like rubber tube into the innards of your machine, and you trustfully hope he is honest in measurement. Steam locomotives can scoop up their needed water from long troughs without stopping, why not automobiles their gas? Think of the advantage this would be to escaping robbers or bootleggers!

Then the dust that sifts in and settles on the shiny tops of the cars. Why not equip each with an electric fan arrangement that will send it flying over the luckless pedestrian? Automobile manufacturers! Take notice!

COLORADO RIVER HARNESS IS OUTLINED

Pacific Division A. A. for A. S. Opens Meeting

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 22.—With the problems of harnessing the great potential power of the Colorado river as the principal subject of discussion, the Pacific division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science opened its sixth annual meeting here today.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with a summer session of the American association, which is represented by scientists from all parts of the country.

In addition to the wide discussion concerning the Colorado river, conferences will be held by members of affiliated scientific societies which will cover the entire field of scientific thought and research.

Dr. Barton Warren Everman, president of the Pacific division, will preside at the general sessions of the convention, and will deliver the presidential address, the subject of which is "Conservation and Proper Utilization of Our Natural Resources."

"Glendale Property Grows"

tion and Proper Utilization of Our Natural Resources."

Among the Colorado river subjects to be discussed at the symposium are:

Description and physiography of the Colorado river basin, by Dr. Frederick J. Paek, desert professor of the department of geology at the University of Utah.

Geology of the Colorado river basin, with reference to engineering problems, by Prof. Bailey Willis, head of the geology department of Stanford University.

Vegetation of the Colorado river drainage basin, by Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Carnegie Desert Laboratory at Tucson, Ariz.

Conservation of the waters of the Colorado river from the standpoint of the reclamation service, by Frank E. Weymouth, chief engineer of the United States reclamation service at Denver, Colo.

The interstate and international aspects of the Colorado river problem, by Dr. C. E. Grunsky, vice president of the Pacific division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of San Francisco.

As showing a similar problem, Prof. E. V. Gautier, of the faculty of letters, University of Algiers, exchange professor at Harvard university, will discuss "The Algerian Sahara."

Dr. James Harvey Robinson, director of the New School for Social Research of New York city, will discuss evolution and its bearings upon human relations, under the heading of "Our Growing Knowledge of Man's Place in the World."

Prof. H. P. Lott, of Leiden, Holland, a well-known writer on evolution, will attend the Salt Lake meeting and will lecture on "The Origin of the Species by Hybridization."

Among the scientific societies scheduled to hold meetings are: The American Physiological society, the American Meteorological society, the Cooper Ornithological society, the Ecological society of America, the Pacific Coast Entomological society, the Pacific slope branch of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, Plant Physiologists, the Society of American Foresters, the Seismological society of America, the Utah Academy of Sciences, and the Western Society of Naturalists.

Among the noted scientists who will be present are: Dr. David Starr Jordan, Dr. William E. Ritter, L. O. Howard, Dr. John C. Merriam, C. A. Kofoid, Francis B. Sumner, Prof. E. C. Franklin, E. G. Martin, and C. L. Marlott.

JAPAN FACES BIG PROBLEMS IN 1922

Many International Tangles to Be Unknotted This Year

TOKIO (By mail).—A group of knotty Japanese problems in politics and economics may come to a head this summer. These are:

1.—Settlement of the Siberian fishing rights question without fighting between Japanese and Russian fishermen. These fishermen are now taking their catches in Siberian waters, and each contends the other is encroaching upon its preserves.

2.—The making of a commercial agreement, which may lead to diplomatic relations, with the Far Eastern republic of Siberia. Negotiations between Japan and the Far Eastern republic, or Chita government (so called because its capital is at Chita), failed not long ago after an eight months' session at Dairen. Each side claims the other was responsible for the failure. It is indicated Japan will be willing to resume negotiations if Chita so requests.

3.—The possibility of direct negotiations between Japan and the Soviet Russian government at Moscow. Officials are giving the most careful consideration to this possibility, but are most cautious in their public expressions of policy.

4.—The cabinet fight which resulted in the overthrow of the ministry of Premier Takahashi and the naming of Baron Admiral Kato. Dissension within the Selyukai, the political party of which former Premier Takahashi is the leader, has recently become intensified. Speaker Oku of the house, a Selyukai leader, bolted from Takahashi and issued a severe attack, charging the former premier with "deceiving the people and playing fast and loose with them."

5.—A special session of the diet may be called to consider budget reductions, possible as a result of the Washington conference naval reduction agreement. If this session is held it is expected that there will be a renewal of the fights for army reduction, universal manhood suffrage, and against the "dangerous thoughts bill." These were all defeated at the winter session. They probably will be defeated again, although they are the issues—together with tax reduction—which the people most demand.

6.—A threatened business crisis, now assuming the form of general depression.

In addition to these points, the Shantung and Manchurian questions are important possibilities. Japanese and Chinese commissions will confer at Peking during the summer, concluding details for the further execution of the Shantung agreement, made at Washington.

Although he had never been to sea before, Casey got a job as a deckhand. The vessel was four days out, when a member of the crew lost his equilibrium while admiring the bounding main and fell into it.

Casey went to the captain and told him what had occurred. The latter let loose a string of expressive adjectives, and told the Irishman to throw a buoy to the drowning man.

In less than two minutes Casey returned, gasping for breath, and blurted out:

"Please, sir, Oi couldn't catch 'e buoy 'at all at all, so I threw the Chinese cook overboard."

The prisoner had been given a sentence of seven days without the option of paying a fine.

The clerk had read out a long list of previous convictions.

"Well," asked the magistrate, "have you anything to say?"

"All I've got to say," remarked the prisoner in a hurt voice, "is that it's a pretty mean way to treat a regular customer."

Jones had just bought a piano and his neighbor, on seeing it arrive at the house, came and looked over the garden wall.

"By jove, old man!" he called out. "You are putting on a lot o' airs. But I'll bet you don't keep it long."

A few days later he saw Jones with his new piano on a handcart going down the street.

"Ha, ha!" he cried. "I knew you wouldn't have it long."

"Get away, you idiot!" cried Jones. "I'm just going for my first music lesson."

TRANSPORTATION BASIS OF IMPROVED REALTY VALUES

"The recession of property values in many parts of California is due to impaired transportation facilities of California electric railways," in the opinion of Fred E. Reed, chairman of the transportation committee of the California Real Estate association, in a statement issued on the initiative amendment sponsored by the association. The association made a four-months' study of community development and homebuilding in California and discovered a shortage of between 250,000 and 300,000 homes in the state, and a poor market for building lots for residence purposes in most communities in California.

The study disclosed further that proposals to break up the large land holdings which now handicap the agricultural development of the state were being held back, and disclosed also that proposals to develop industrial districts in the larger cities of California were not meeting with the success the real estate men and property owners expected.

BED SPRING AS AERIAL?

Did he hear? The report was calculated as a proven fact, not long ago, that a man in the east was disturbed when at rest or after he had retired. The great difficulty was the fact that he did not use a radio outfit or antenna or ground. Nothing but the bed springs on his bed and his ears. The report was discredited at first but later insistence on the part of the party troubled it was investigated and reported as that such might have been the case, but they could not account for it. That impressed me and I am sure if my reader have been reading this page they will have been impressed. It impressed me to such an extent that it has never entirely left my mind. Last night the following idea came to me and it seemed so likely that I thought I would put it up to my readers.

The principle of reception is through the efforts and workings of what is known as the detector, whose purpose is to rectify. By rectifying, a his been explained in these columns we mean to reduce the number of cycles as to make the incoming signals audible to the human ear. Of course we know that galena, silicon, etc., all possess the property required for rectifying, but is it wholly impossible for some one's bed to possess such properties? To my way of thinking it is not, especially after we see wonderful feats performed each and every day which we thought impossible. Supposing then that this party's body possessed the property of rectifying signals. After retiring and having gone to sleep it would be a simple matter for him to roll over and his hand touch the bed springs. On account of his being in such close proximity to the broadcasting station it would not necessarily mean that he would have to have a ground, and the bed spring would act as the aerial and the incoming currents or signals passing into his body becoming rectified and the vibrations traveling through his system would vibrate the drums of his ears. Then again it might be that the signals in becoming rectified to a certain number of vibrations per second would cause the vocal cords to vibrate strenuously and thereby waking him.

Of course I realize that this theory is a little far fetched, but nevertheless the more I think of it the more convinced I am that this is what occurred and am publishing the theory mainly for the purpose of inviting discussion.

SIDELIGHTS NEWSPAPER COMMENT

There is every indication to believe that grand opera will have a chance to be recognized for its real value if radiohphone broadcasting of concerts is maintained in the future. The editor of the World (Omaha, Neb.), speaks of grand opera and the radiohphone as follows:

"Grand and the lighter operas, both of which heretofore have been looked upon, more or less, as entertainment for the rich, now have the chance of 'going on trial' in every home in the land, with the advent of the radiohphone.

"No one, of course, can foresee at this time the possibilities of the radio, but already it has been the means of introducing the opera to many who had never heard it before, and practically gratis, too.

"Operas are criticized mostly by people who have never heard them; by those who have never had the opportunity to appreciate them. Most of these look upon them with displeasure—the opera as a place where only the elite go to display the gorgeous gowns and dresses

BOOTBLACK BOOSTS HIS RECEIPTS BY GIVING HIS PATRONS RADIO CONCERTS

This enterprising bootblack installed a powerful radio receiving and amplifying set in his stand at Oakland, Calif. The first day he took in $15 more than his usual earnings. The reason was that his patrons took two or three shines instead of one so that they might listen to wireless concerts.

they wear, but once the strains of the opera singer's voice or from the symphony orchestra go floating on the ether into the homes in every village, hamlet and at every cross-road, and are heard as they are rendered—not just reproduced—opinions may be changed.

"Opera music must be heard to be appreciated. It's like eating olives. At first you don't like them, but when you try them a second time they taste better, and on the third trial you find that you actually are fond of them. So it is with opera."

There is no way to get figures on the manufacture of radio parts or regard to the real facts. Statisticians who have tried to gather facts about the manufacture and sales of radio apparatus admit they are this regard the following:

"As an industry, radio, in all its branches, has furnished one of the most remarkable chapters in the history of Chicago business. The great change in the popularity of radio in the middle west was last October, when operatic performances were sent out. Those who had receiving sets kept them constantly busy while music was being sent out, and their friends hastily put in orders for apparatus. Manufacturers were swamped and the industry grew fast. So rapid has been the growth that there is now a great deal of confusion with regard to the real facts. Statisticians who have tried to gather facts about the manufacture and sales of radio apparatus admit they are

CROSS COUNTRY IN BROADCASTING CAR

DETROIT.—The broadcasting car of America's first cross-country radio tour recently gave a concert and immediately left on the first leg of its overland journey to San Francisco by way of the Lincoln highway.

Two automobiles equipped with super-sensitive receiving sets built by Thomas E. Clark, local radio engineer, will furnish radio concerts to the towns throughout the route.

The radio receiving set consists of a very delicate tuner combined with three steps of radio frequency and two steps of audio frequency amplification.

Two aerials are provided, one a loop aerial built solidly upon the sedan top, and the other an emergency overhead aerial, wound on a drum and ready to be strung out to a tree or building in a moment's time. The battery equipment, used both to drive the car and to operate the radio set, was built in Ypsilanti.

The broadcasting cars while on tour will tune back to Detroit's broadcasting stations and will be able to cut in on other broadcasting centers along the route.

RADIO LAWS AN REGULATIONS

In transmitting radiograms from ship to coast, the coast station shall determine the order the messages are to be sent in.

A radiogram may be repeated three times. If the receiving station does not get the message after three whole repetitions, the message is automatically canceled.

The exchange of superfluous signals and words is prohibited to all stations.

U. S. regulations, prohibit, by fine of not more than $250 or imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or both, the divulging of the contents of divulging of the contents of a message except to person or persons to whom the message is directed or their authorized agents, or unless legally required to do so

If a station called does not answer the call transmitted three times with intervals of 2 minutes, the call shall not be resumed until after an interval of 15 minutes, the station calling, first having made sure that no radio correspondence is in progress.

"Q" are the letters used to ascertain the nearest station within range, for the purpose of re-relaying a message.

For malicious interference an operator is subject to a fine of $500 or one year imprisonment or both.

These are not all the laws, but are the most important. Tomorrow will be published a list of abbreviations commonly known as "Q" signals.

ARMSTRONG PATENT

The appeal of the De Forest Radio Telephone and Telegraph company against the decision of the United States district court for Southern New York, which sustained the contention of Edwin H. Armstrong that the De Forest company had infringed the famous feedback patent No. 1,113,149, has been denied by the United States circuit court of appeals, of the Second circuit.

The decision, in part, was as follows:

"The patent in suit was granted for a wireless receiving system on October 6, 1914, and on an application filed October 29, 1913. There are 12 claims in suit. All are held to be infringed by the decree below. The invention relates to improvements in the arrangement and connections of the electrical apparatus and receiving station of a wireless system and particularly a system in which the so-called audion is used as the Hertzian wave detector, the object being to amplify the effect of the received waves upon the current in the telephone or receiving circuit, to increase the loudness and definition in the telephone or other receiver, whereby more reliable communication may be established or a greater distance of the transmission becomes possible.

"The patentee, while a student of Columbia university, living in Yonkers, was an amateur wireless operator and had a station at his home.

"He tuned the plate circuit to radio frequency by inserting in the plate circuit such inductance and capacity as to make it responsive to the radio frequency waves. Then he found not only that the radio frequency waves could be carried over into the plate circuit, but that they could be there amplified by the energy derived from the local battery in the plate circuit without change of frequency or wave form and that they could be fed into the grid circuit where they increased the potential variations on the grid and the operation continuously repeated itself, producing the feedback regeneration which increased normally the sensitiveness of the device and the loudness of the receiving signals. It was in this way that he thought out his invention which has been a great advance in the wireless art.

"But it is sought to defeat the patentee by the claim of prior date of invention by DeForest and some patents in the prior art are also submitted as defenses.

"The testimony of DeForest has been offered in evidence by which it is attempted to show that he had conceived the invention in 1912 and 1913, and that he is, in point of fact, the prior inventor. The appellant offered in evidence DeForest's experimental note books, showing entries made under date of June 21, 1912, where there is the observation of a beat or high frequency note with a straight audion hookup. The note shows this to have been transient and incapable of reproduction, and he recognized that it was not the true heterodyne effect. This was due to the gas action in the tube, an effect which has always been observed by users of the straight audion hookup.

"On February 20, 1915, DeForest published in the 'Electrical World' an article in which he made claims with respect to his early work on the oscillating audion and referred to two such experiments, the first of which he said occurred in the latter part of 1910, or 1911, and the second on August 26, 1912. In these there is no mention of the feedback circuit of the Van Etten August 6 entry, which it is now claimed represents his first real discovery of a controllable oscillating audion. These and other circumstances seem to us inconsistent with the idea that DeForest had any real knowledge of or understood the Van Etten accidental circuit arrangement of August 6, 1912. Nowhere in the notes which are in evidence is any reference made to the terms which would ordinarily be used if such a discovery were made and understood. The terms 'feedback' or 'regeneration', 'input circuit' or 'output circuit' or 're-amplification', are not found in the notes.

"We do not agree with the claim of the appellant that the patent is for a principle. It is for an instrumentality. It should be construed to cover the uses of the apparatus which are described and claimed. As the testimony of the expert called by the appellee indicates, the appellant's use infringes all of the claims of the patent in suit relied on.

"We think this excellent contribution to the wireless art should be accorded the full scope which the court below gave it in the decree. We think the decree is not too broad, but properly describes what the inventor conceived and for which protection must be accorded to him. Decree affirmed."

CLASSIFIED ADS WORK WONDERS      Classified advertisements in the Glendale Daily Press pay, there are people in town who testify to the fact.      Last Monday, W. B. M. gave advertisement to W. G. Evans the Little News stand, one of Press branches, for that issue. He had an icebox for thirty minutes after the Press was on the street...      W. B. M. canceled the advertisement, which he had ordered two days, and on Tuesday said that he had to lock his doors. There were more than 50 people who wanted the box, having seen the ad in the Press. It pays to advertise—in the Glendale Daily Press.

The Barton Bedtime Stories      NEWS OF A VISITOR PUZZLES TAD COON      By JOHN BARTON      (Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)      "There's Uncle Tad's hole," Malty Kitten pointed up the coon's hickory tree. "You pop right in, like a good little squirrel, and take a nice nap while you wait for him." He was in a great hurry to get Frisk off his paws. Not because he didn't like the little fellow, but because he didn't want the woods-folk to catch him playing dead to a runaway fluff-tail. They might think it was just as funny as to see Tad doing it. And Malty hated fireworks at 52 S. Pasadena avenue, Pasadena.—Adv.

So He Crept Very Cautiously Up His Tree, Sniffed Into His Hole

He'd forgotten there were two of them. Then he swaggered down to Dr. Muskrat's flat stone, washed his face, sneezed his fur, and spread himself out in the sun, ready to say howdy to all the folks who came for their morning drink at the pond. And that wasn't all he said to them. He asked each and every one, "Where's Tad gone? There's a visitor in his hole a-waiting to see him." And he wouldn't tell who. The only ones he didn't ask were Bobby Robin and Chalk Jay, for fear they'd get curious and go peek. But nobody knew. Nobody except, maybe, the field mice. They stayed close in their holes and didn't even dare to squeak when Malty was anywhere round. He even waited for Dr. Muskrat to paddle downstream from the pey-pergrass bed, and especially made sure he knew about Tad. Then he hustled off in a terrible rush to reach Tommy Peele's barn by milking time. Nice warm milk! Milk that didn't come from a sticky old can like the stuff his man had to feed him. Milk with froth on it! Malty would get to dreaming about it sometimes in their cabin over beyond the Big March. And when he couldn't stand it any longer...

42,767,530 PERSONS was the population of the British Isles in 1921. This included Ireland.      7,926.6 MILES is the equatorial diameter of the earth.      he'd come all this long way, just to get some. So when he saw Tad coming out from under the cork field fence he just called, "There a-visitor in your hole!" and right away.      Nibble Rabbit told Tad and then Stripes Skunk called in a sleepy voice as he heard the cat pat by the oak that blew down in the terrible storm. Bob Wite sang out from the Quails' Thicket. He got the news from all sides; even Dr. Muskrat popped up of his house to call out. "Who told you so?" asked Tad suspiciously. "Malty Kitten, eh? I thought that cat acted queer when I saw him. There's something funny back of this, some kind of a joke he thinks he's playing." So he crept very cautiously up his tree, sniffed into his hole. There was nobody there! And Uncle Tad forgot about the other one.      NEXT STORY—ONE IF TAD'S JOKES THAT DIDN'T WORK.
