Principibus placuisse viris non ultima laus est.                      H O R A T

The BARD whose verse can charm the BEST OF KINGS,
Performeth most extraordinary things !

VOL. II.

THE ARGUMENT.

PETER nobly acknowledgeth error, suspecteth an interfering Devil, and supplicateth his Reader—He boasteth, wittily parodieth, and most learnedly quoteth a Latin Poet—He showeth much affection for Kings, illustrating it by a beautiful simile—PETER again waxeth witty—Resolution declared for rhyme in consequence of encouragement from our two UNIVERSITIES—PETER wickedly accused of King-roasting; refuteth the malevolent charge by a most apt illustration—PETER criticiseth the blunders of the stars—PETER replieth to the charges brought against him by the World—He displayeth great Bible knowledge, and maketh a shrewd observation on KING DAVID, URIAH, and the Sheep, such as no Commentator ever made before—PETER challengeth Courtiers to equal his intrepidity, and proveth his superiority of courage by giving a delectable tale of DUMPLINGS—PETER answereth the unbelief of a vociferous World—Declareth totis viribus love for KINGS—PETER peepeth into Futurity, and telleth the fortune of the PRINCE OF WALES—He descanteth on the high province of ancient Poets, and displayeth classical erudition—PETER holdeth conference with a Quaker—PETER, as usual, turneth rank Egotist—He telleth strange news relating to MAJESTY and PEPPER ARDEN—PETER apologiseth for impudence, by a tale of a French King—PETER, imitating OVID, who was transported for his impudent Ballads, talketh to his ODE—Suggesteth a royal answer to Odes and Ode-factors—Happily selecteth a story of King CANUTE, illustrating the danger of stopping the mouths of Poets with halters, &c. instead of meat—PETER concludeth with a wife observation.

READER, I solemnly protest

I thought that I had work'd up all my rhyme!
What stupid demon hath my brain possess'd?

I prithee, pardon me this time:

Afford thy patience through more Ode;

'Tis not a vast extent of road:

Together let us gallop then along:

Most nimbly shall old Pegasus, my hack, stir.

To drop the image—prithee hear more song,
Some 'more last words of Mr. Baxter.'

A wond'rous fav'rite with the tuneful throng,

Sublimely great are PETER's pow'rs of song:

His nerve of satire, too, so very tough,

Strong without weakness, without softness rough.

What HORACE said of streams in easy lay,
The marv'ling World of PETER's tongue may say;
His tongue, so copious in a flux of metre,
" LABITUR ET LABETUR !"

O D E.

WORLD! stop thy mouth—I am resolv'd to rhyme—

I cannot throw away a vein sublime :

If I may take the liberty to brag ;

I cannot, like the fellow in the Bible,

Venting upon his master a rank libel,

Conceal my talent in a rag : .

Kings must continue still to be my theme—

Eternally of Kings I dream :

As beggars ev'ry night, we must suppose,

Dream of their vermin, in their beds ;

Because, as ev'ry body knows,

Such things are always running in their heads.

Besides—were I to write of common folks,

No foul would buy my rhymes so strange, and jokes :

Then what becomes of mutton, beef, and pork ?

How would my masticating muscles work ?

Indeed, I dare not say they would be idle;
 But, like my Pegasus's chaps, so stout,
 Who plays and wantons with his bridle,
 And nobly flings the foam about,

So mine would work—"On what?" my reader cries,
 With a stretch'd pair of unbelieving eyes—
 Heav'n help thy most unpenetrating wit!
 On a bard morsel—HUNGER's iron bit.

By all the rhyming goddeffes and gods
 I will—I must, persist in Odes;
 And not a pow'r on earth shall hinder:
 I hear both * Universities exclaim,
 "PETER, it is a glorious road to fame;
 " Eugè Poeta magne—well said, PINDAR!",

Yet some approach with apostolic face,
 And cry, "O PETER, what a want of grace

" Thus

* The violence of the Universities on this occasion may probably arise from the contempt thrown on them by his Majesty's sending the Royal Children to Gottingen for education; but have not their Majesties amply made it up to Oxford, by a visit to that celebrated seminary? and is not Cambridge to receive the same honour?

“ Thus in thy rhyme to roast a King!”
I roast a King! by heav’ns ’tis not a fact—
 I scorn such wicked and disloyal act:
 Who dares assert it, says a scandalous thing.

Hear what I have to say of Kings:
 If, unsublime, they deal in childish things,
 And yield not, of reform, a ray of hope;
 Each mighty Monarch straight appears to me
 A roaster of himself—Felo de se;
 I only act as Cook, and dress him up.

Reader! another simile as rare:
 My verses form a sort of bill of fare,
 Informing guests what kind of flesh and fish
 Is to be found within each dish;
 That eating people may not be mistaken,
 And take, for ortolan, a lump of bacon.

Whenever I have heard of Kings
 Who place in gossipings, and news, their pride,
 And knowing family concerns—mean things!
 Very judiciously, indeed, I’ve cry’d,

“ I wonder

“ How their blind stars could make so gross a blunder!”

- “ Instead of fitting on a throne
 “ In purple rich—of state so full,
 “ They should have had an apron on,
 “ And, seated on a three-legg’d stool,
 “ Commanded, of dead hair, the sprigs
 “ To do their duty upon wigs.
- “ By such mistakes, is Nature often foil’d :
 “ Such improprieties should never spring—
 “ Thus a fine chattering barber may be spoil’d,
 “ To make a most indiff’rent King.”
- “ Sir, Sir, (I hear the world exclaim)
 “ At too high game you impudently aim.
 “ How dare you, with your jokes and gibes,
 “ Tread, like a horse, on kingly kibes ?”

Folks who can’t see their errors, can’t reform :
 No plainer axiom ever came from man ;
 And ’tis a Christian’s duty, in a storm,
 To save his sinking neighbour, if he can :
 Thus I to Kings my Ode of Wisdom pen,
 Because your Kings have souls like common men.

The Bible warrants me to speak the truth ;
Nor mealy-mouth'd my tongue in silence keep :
Did not good NATHAN tell that buckish youth,
DAVID the KING, that he stole sheep ?

Stole poor URIAH's little fav'rite lamb—
An ewe it chanc'd to be, and not a ram ;
For had it been a ram, the royal glutton
Had never meddled with URIAH's mutton.

What modern Courtier, pray, hath got the face
To say to Majesty, " O King !
" At such a time, in such a place,
" You did a very foolish thing ?"
What Courtier, not a foe to his own glory,
Would publish of his King this simple story ?

THE APPLE DUMPLINGS AND A KING.

ONCE on a time, a Monarch, tir'd with hooping,
 Whipping and spurring,
 Happy in worrying
 A poor, defenceless, harmless buck,
 (The horse and rider wet as muck,)
 From his high consequence and wisdom flooping,
 Enter'd, through curiosity, a cot,
 Where sat a poor old woman and her pot.

The wrinkled, blear-ey'd, good, old GRANNY,
 In this same cot, illum'd by many a cranny,
 Had finish'd apple dumplings for her pot :
 In tempting row the naked dumplings lay,
 When, lo! the MONARCH, in his usual way,
 Like lightning spoke, "What's this? what's this?
 " what? what?"

Then taking up a dumpling in his hand,
 His eyes with admiration did expand;
 And oft did Majesty the dumpling grapple :

'Tis

“ ’Tis monstrous, monstrous hard indeed,” he cry’d :
 “ What makes it, pray, so hard?”—The Dame reply’d,
 Low curtsying, “ Please your Majesty, the apple.”

“ Very astonishing indeed!—strange thing!”
 (Turning the dumpling round, rejoin’d the King.)
 “ ’Tis most extraordinary then, all this is—
 “ It beats * Pinetti’s conjuring all to pieces—
 “ Strange I should never of a dumpling dream!
 “ But, Goody, tell me where, where, where’s the seam?”

“ Sir, there’s no seam (quoth she); I never knew
 “ That folks did apple dumplings sew.”
 “ No! (cry’d the staring Monarch with a grin)
 “ How, how the devil got the apple in?”

On which the Dame the curious scheme reveal’d
 By which the apple lay so sly conceal’d,
 Which made the Solomon of Britain start;
 Who to the Palace with full speed repair’d,
 And Queen, and Princesses so beautiful, fear’d,
 All with the wonders of the Dumpling art!

There

* Formerly a great favourite at Court.

There did he labour one whole week, to show
 The wisdom of an APPLE-DUMPLING MAKER;
 And lo! so deep was Majesty in dough,
 The Palace seem'd the lodging of a BAKER.

READER, thou likest not my tale—look'ft blue :
 Thou art a Courtier—roarest, “ Lies, lies, lies !”
 Do, for a moment, stop thy cries—
 I tell thee, roaring infidel, 'tis true.

Why should it not be true?—The greatest men
 May ask a foolish question now and then—
 This is the language of all ages.
 FOLLY lays many a trap—we can't escape it
Nemo (says some one) omnibus horis sapit :
 Then why not Kings, like me and other fages?

Far from despising Kings, I like the breed,
 Provided King-like they behave :
 Kings are an instrument we need,
 Just as we razors want—to shave ;

To keep the State's face smooth—give it an air—
Like my Lord North's, so jolly, round, and fair.

My sense of Kings though freely I impart—
I hate not royalty, Heav'n knows my heart.

Princes and Princesses I like, so loyal—

Great GEORGE'S children are my great delight;
The sweet Augusta, and sweet Princess Royal,
Obtain my love by day, and pray'rs by night.

Yes! I like Kings—and oft look back with pride
Upon the Edwards, Harry's of our isle—
Great souls! in virtue as in valour try'd,
Whose actions bid the cheek of Britons smile.

Muse! let us also forward look,
And take a peep into Fate's book.

Behold! the sceptre young AUGUSTUS sways;
I hear the mingled praise of millions rise;
I see uprais'd to Heav'n their ardent eyes,
That for their Monarch ask a length of days.

Bright

Bright in the brightest annals of renown,
 Behold fair FAME his youthful temples crown
     With laurels of unfading bloom ;
 Behold DOMINION swell beneath his care,
 And GENIUS, rising from a dark despair,
     His long-extinguish'd fires relume.

Such are the Kings that suit my taste, I own :
     Not those where all the littleneffes join ;
 Whose souls should start to find their lot a throne;
     And blush to show their noses on a coin.

Reader, for fear of wicked applications,
 I now allude to Kings of foreign nations.

Poets (so unimpeach'd tradition says)
 The sole historians were of ancient days,
 Who help'd their heroes FAME's high hill to clamber ;
     Penning their glorious acts in language strong,
     And thus preserving, by immortal song,
 Their precious names amidst their tuneful amber.

What am I doing? Lord! the very fame—
 Preserving many a deed deserving Fame,

Which that old lean, devouring shark, call'd TIME,
 Would, without ceremony, eat;
 In my opinion, far too rich a treat:
 I therefore merit statues for my rhyme.

“ All this is laudable (a Quaker cries);
 “ But let grave WISDOM, Friend, thy verses rule;
 “ Put out thine IRONY'S two squinting eyes—
 “ Despise thy grinning monkey, RIDICULE.”

What! flight my sportive monkey, RIDICULE,
 Who acts like birch on boys at school,
 Neglecting lessons—truant, p'rhaps, whole weeks!
 My RIDICULE, with humour fraught, and wit,
 Is that satiric friend, a gouty fit,
 Which bites men into health and rosy cheeks:

A moral MERCURY that cleanseth souls
 Of ills that with them play the devil;
 Like mercury that much the pow'r controls
 Of presents gain'd from ladies over civil.

Reader, I'll brag a little, if you please:
 The ancients did so, therefore why not I?
 Lo! for my good advice I ask no fees,
 Whilst other Doctors let their patients die;

That

That is, such patients as can't pay for cure—
A very selfish, wicked thing, I'm sure.

Now though I'm foul physician to the King,
I never begg'd of him the finallest thing
For all the threshing of my virtuous brains ;
Nay, were I my poor pocket's state t' impart,
So well I know my ROYAL PATIENT'S heart,
He would not give me two-pence for my pains.

But hark ! folks say the King is very mad :
The news, if true, indeed, were very sad,
And far too serious an affair to mock it ;
Yet how can this agree with what I've heard,
That so much by him are my rhymes rever'd—
He goes a hunting with them in his pocket ?

And when thrown out—which often is the case,
(In bacon hunting, or of bucks the race)
My verse so much his Majesty bewitches,
That out he pulls my honour'd Odes,
And casts them on the turnpike roads—
Now under trees and hedges—now in ditches.

Hark ! with astonishment, a sound I hear,
 That strikes tremendous on my ear ;
 It says, Great Arden, commonly call'd Pepper,
 Of mighty George's thunderbolts the keeper,
 Just like of Jupiter the famous eagle,
 Is order'd out to hunt me like a beagle.

But, eagle Pepper, give my love
 Unto thy lofty master, Mister Jove,
 And ask how it can square with his religion,
 To bid thee, without mercy, fall on,
 With thy short sturdy beak, and iron talon,
 A pretty, little, harmless, cooing pigeon ?

By heav'ns, I disbelieve the fact—
 A Monarch cannot so unwisely act !

Suppose that Kings, so rich, are always mumping,
 Praying and pressing Ministers for money ;
 Bidding them on our hive (poor bees !) be thumping,
 Trying to shake out all our honey ;

A thing that oft hath happen'd in our isle !—
 Pray, shan't we be allow'd to smile ?

To cut a joke, or epigram contrive,
By way of solace for our plunder'd hive?

A King of France (I've lost the Monarch's name)
Had, avaricious, got himself bad fame,
By most unmannerly and thievish plunges
Into his subjects purses—
A deep manœuvre that obtain'd their curses,
Because it treated gentlefolks like spunges.

To show how much they relish'd not such squeezing,
Such goods and chattel-seizing,
They publish'd libels to display their hate;
To comfort, in some sort, their souls,
For such a number of large holes
Eat by this Royal Rat in each estate.

The PREMIER op'd his gullet like a shark,
To hear such fatires on the GRAND MONARQUE,
And roar'd—" Messieurs, you soon shall feel
" My criticism upon your ballads,
" Not to your taste so sweet as frogs and fallads;
" A stricture critical, yclep'd BASTILE."

But

But first he told the tidings to the King ;
 Then swore par Dieu that he would quickly bring
     Unto the grinding-stone their noses down—
 No, not a soul of 'em should ever thrive ;
 He'd flay them, like St. BARTLEMEW, alive—
     Villains ! for daring to insult the Crown.

The Monarch heard Monsieur le PREMIER out,
 And, smiling on his loyalty so stout,
     Reply'd, " Monsieur le PREMIER, you are wrong ;
 " Don't of the pleasure let them be debarr'd ;
 " You know how we have serv'd 'em—faith ! 'tis hard
     " They should not for their money have a song."

OVID, sweet story-teller of old times,
 (Unluckily transported for his rhymes,)
 Address'd his book before he bade it walk ;
     Therefore my Worship, and my Ode,
     In imitation of such classic mode,
 May, like two Indian nations, have a talk.

" Dear Ode ! whose verse the true sublime affords,
 " Go, visit Kings, Queens, Parasites, and Lords ;
 " And if thy modest beauties they adore,
 " Inform them they shall speedily have more."

But possibly a mighty King may say,
 " Ode! Ode!—What? what? I hate your rhyme
     " haranguing;
     " I'd rather hear a jackass bray:
 " I never knew a poet worth the hanging.

" I hate, abhor them—but I'll clip their wings;
 " I'll teach the saucy knaves to laugh at Kings:
 " Yes, yes, the rhyming rogues, their songs shall rue,
 " A ragged, bold-fac'd, ballad-finging crew.
 " Yes, yes, the poets shall my pow'r confess;
 " I'll maul that spawning devil call'd the Prefs."

If furious thus exclaim the King of glory,
 Tell him, O gentle MUSE, this pithy story.

KING CANUTE AND HIS NOBLES.

A T A L E.

CANUTE was by his nobles taught to fancy,
That, by a kind of royal necromancy,

He had the pow'r OLD OCEAN to controul:
Down rush'd the Royal Dane upon the strand,
And issued, like a Solomon, command—

Poor soul!

“ Go back, ye waves, you blust'ring rogues,” quoth he,

“ Touch not your Lord and Master, SEA;

“ For by my pow'r almighty, if you do”—

Then staring vengeance, out he held a stick,
Vowing to drive OLD OCEAN to OLD NICK,
Should he ev'n wet the latchet of his shoe.

OLD SEA retir'd—the Monarch fierce rush'd on,

And look'd as if he'd drive him from the land;

But SEA not caring to be put upon,

Made for a moment a bold stand:

Not only maké a stand did MISTER OCEAN,

But to his honest waves he made a motion,

And bad them give the King a hearty trimming:
 The orders seem'd a deal the waves to tickle;
 For soon they put his Majesty in pickle,
 And fet his Royalties, like geese, a swimming.

All hands aloft, with one tremendous roar,
 Soon did they make him with himself on shore;
 His head and ears most handsomely they dous'd;
 Just like a porpus, with one general shout,
 The waves so tumbled the poor King about—
 No Anabaptist e'er was half so fous'd.

At length to land he crawl'd, a half-drown'd thing,
 Indeed more like a crab than like a King,
 And found his Courtiers making rueful faces.
 But what said CANUTE to the Lords and Gentry,
 Who hail'd him from the water, on his entry,
 All trembling for their lives or places?

“ My Lords and Gentlemen, by your advice,
 “ I've had with MISTER SEA a pretty bustle;
 “ My treatment from my foe not over nice,
 “ Just made a jest for ev'ry shrimp and muscle:

“ A pretty trick for one of my dominion!—
 “ My Lords, I thank you for your great opinion.

“ You'll

“ You’ll tell me, p’rhaps, I’ve only lost one game,
 “ And bid me try another—for the rubber :
 “ Permit me to inform you all, with shame,
 “ That you’re a set of knaves, and I’m a lubber.

Such is the story, my dear Ode,
 Which thou wilt bear—a sacred load !
 Yet, much I fear, ’twill be of no great use :
 Kings are in general obstinate as mules ;
 Those who surround them, mostly rogues and fools,
 And therefore can no benefit produce.

Yet stories, sentences, and golden rules,
 Undoubtedly were made for rogues and fools :
 But this unluckily the simple fact is ;
 Those rogues and fools do nothing but admire,
 And, all so dev’lish modest, don’t desire
 The glory of reducing them to practice.

Sic transit gloria mundi!—OLD SUN-DIALS.
From House of Buckingham, in grand parade,
To Whitbread's Brewhouse, mov'd the Cavalcade.

THE ARGUMENT.

PETER's loyalty—He suspecteth Mr. Warton of joking—Complimenteth the Poet Laureat—PETER differeth in opinion from Mr. Warton—Taketh up the cudgels for King Edward, King Harry V. and Queen Befs—Feats on Blackheath and Wimbledon performed by our most gracious Sovereign—King Charles the Second half damned by PETER, yet praised for keeping company with gentlemen—PETER praiseth himself—PETER reproved by Mr. Warton—Desireth Mr. Warton's prayers—A fine simile—PETER still suspecteth the Laureat of ironical dealings—PETER expostulateth with Mr. Warton—Mr. Warton replieth—PETER administereth bold advice—Wittily calleth Death and physicians poachers—Praiseth the King for parental tendernefs—PETER maketh a natural simile—PETER furthermore telleth Thomas Warton what to say—PETER giveth a beautiful example of Ode-writing.

THE CONTENTS OF THE ODE.

His Majesty's love for the arts and sciences, even in quadrupeds—His resolution to know the history of brewing beer—Billy Ramus sent ambassador to Chifwell-street—Interview between Messrs. Ramus and Whitbread—Mr. Whitbread's bow, and compliments to Majesty—Mr. Ramus's return from his embassy—Mr. Whitbread's terrors described to Majesty by Mr. Ramus—The King's pleasure thereat—Description of people of worship—Account of the Whitbread preparation—The royal cavalcade to Chifwell-street—The arrival at the Brewhouse—Great joy of Mr. Whitbread—His Majesty's nod, the Queen's dip, and a number of questions—A West-India simile—The marvellings of the draymen described—His Majesty peepeth into a pump—Beautifully compared to a magpie peeping into a marrow-bone—The minute curiosity of the King—Mr. Whitbread endeavoureth to surprize Majesty—His Majesty puzzleth Mr. Whitbread—Mr. Whitbread's horse expresseth wonder—

Alto

Also Mr. Whitbread's dog—His Majesty maketh laudable enquiry about Porter—Again puzzleth Mr. Whitbread—King noteth notable things—Profound questions propofed by Majesty—As profoundly answered by Mr. Whitbread—Majesty in a mistake—Corrected by the brewer—A nose simile—Majesty's admiration of the bell—Good manners of the bell—Fine appearance of Mr. Whitbread's pigs—Majesty propofeth questions, but benevolently waiteth not for answers—PETER telleth the duty of Kings—Discovereth one of his shrewd maxims—Sublime simile of a water-spout and a King—The great use of asking questions—The habitation of Truth—The collation—The wonders performed by the royal visitors—Majesty propofeth to take leave—Offereth knighthood to Mr. Whitbread—Mr. Whitbread's objections—The King runneth a rig on his host—Mr. Whitbread thanketh Majesty—Miss Whitbread curtsieth—The Queen dippeth—The Cavalcade departeth.

PETER triumpheth—Admonisheth the Laureat—PETER croweth over the Laureat—Discovereth deep knowledge of Kings, and surgeons, and men who have lost their legs—PETER reasoneth—Vaunteth—Even insulteth the Laureat—PETER proclaimeth his peaceable disposition—Praiseth Majesty, and concludeth with a prayer for curious Kings.

INSTRUC.

INSTRUCTIONS, &c.

TOM, soon as e'er thou strik'st thy golden lyre,
Thy brother PETER's muse is all on fire,
To sing of Kings and Queens, and such rare folk:
Yet, 'midst thy heap of compliments so fine,
Say, may we venture to believe a line?
You Oxford wits most dearly love a joke.

Son of the NINE, thou writest well on nought;
Thy thund'ring stanza, and its pompous thought,
I think, must put a dog into a laugh:
EDWARD and HARRY were much braver men
Than this new-christen'd Hero of thy pen;
Yes, laurell'd ODEMAN, braver far by half;

Though on Blackheath, and Wimbledon's wide plain,
GEORGE keeps his hat off in a show'r of rain;
Sees fwords and bayonets without a dread,
Nor at a volley winks, nor ducks his head:

Although at grand reviews he seems so blest,
 And leaves at six o'clock his downy nest,
 Dead to the charms of blanket, wife, and bolster;
 Unlike his officers, who, fond of cramming,
 And at reviews afraid of thirst and famine,
 With bread and cheefe and brandy fill their holsters.

Sure, TOM, we should do justice to QUEEN BESS:
 His present Majesty, whom Heav'n long blest
 With wisdom, wit, and arts of choicest quality,
 Will never get, I fear, so fine a niche
 As that old queen, though often call'd old b—ch,
 In FAME's colossal house of immortality.

As for John Dryden's CHARLES—that King
 Indeed was never any mighty thing;
 He merited few honours from the pen:
 And yet he was a dev'lish hearty fellow,
 Enjoy'd his girl and bottle, and got mellow,
 And mind—kept company with GENTLEMEN:

For, like some Kings, in hobby grooms,
 Knights of the manger, curry-combs, and brooms,
 Lost to all glory, CHARLES did not delight—

Nor

Nor jok'd by day with pages, fervant maids,
 Large, red-poll'd, blowzy, hard two-handed jades :
 Indeed I know not what CHARLES did by night.

THOMAS, I am of candour a great lover ;
 In short, I'm candour's self all over ;
 Sweet as a candied cake from top to toe ;
 Make it a rule that VIRTUE shall be prais'd,
 And humble MERIT from her bum be rais'd :
 What thinkest thou of PETER now ?

Thou cryest, " Oh ! how false ! behold thy King,
 " Of whom thou scarcely say'st a handsome thing ;
 " That King has virtues that should make thee stare."
 Is it so ?—Then the sin's in me—
 'Tis my vile optics that can't see ;
 Then pray for them, when next thou say'st a pray'r.

But, p'rhaps, aloft on his imperial throne,
 So distant, O ye gods ! from ev'ry one,
 The royal virtues are like many a star,*
 From this our pigmy system rather far ;

Whose

* Such was the sublime opinion of the Dutch astronomer Huygens.

Whose light, though flying ever since creation,
Has not yet pitch'd upon our nation.

Then may the royal ray be soon explor'd—

And, THOMAS, if thou'lt swear thou art not humming,
I'll take my spying-glass, and bring thee word

The instant I behold it coming.

But, THOMAS WARTON, without joking,
Art thou, or art thou not, thy Sov'reign smoking?

How canst thou seriously declare,

That GEORGE the THIRD

With Cressy's EDWARD can compare,

Or HARRY?—'Tis too bad, upon my word:

GEORGE is a clever King, I needs must own,
And cuts a jolly figure on the throne.

Now thou exclaim'st, "G—d rot it! PETER, pray,
"What to the devil shall I sing or say?"

I'll tell thee what to say, O tuneful TOM:

Sing how a Monarch, when his Son was dying,
His gracious eyes and ears was edifying,
By Abbey company and kettle drum:

Leaving

Leaving that Son to death and the physician,
 Between two fires—a forlorn-hope condition;
 Two poachers, who make man their game,
 And, special marksmen! seldom miss their aim.

Say, though the Monarch did not see his Son,
 He kept aloof through fatherly affection;
 Determin'd nothing should be done
 To bring on usefess tears, and dismal recollection.
 For what can tears avail, and piteous sighs?
 Death heeds not howls nor dripping eyes:
 And what are sighs and tears but wind and water,
 That show the leakyness of feeble nature?

TOM, with my smile thou wilt not quarrel:
 Like air and any sort of drink,
 Whizzing and oozing through each chink,
 That proves the weakness of the barrel.

Say—for the PRINCE, when wet was ev'ry eye,
 And thousands pour'd to heav'n the pitying sigh
 Devout;
 Say how a KING, unable to dissemble,
 Order'd Dame SIDDONS to his house, and KEMBLE,
 To spout:

Gave them ice creams and wines, so dear!
Deny'd till then a thimblefull of beer;
For which they've thank'd the author of this metre,
Videlicet, the moral-mender PETER,
Who, in his ODE ON ODE, did dare exclaim,
And call such royal avarice, a shame.

Say—but I'll teach thee how to make an ode;
Thus shall thy labours visit FAME'S abode,
In company with my immortal lay;
And look, TOM—thus I fire away—

B I R T H - D A Y O D E .

THIS day, this very day, gave birth,
 Not to the brightest Monarch upon earth,
 Because there are some brighter, and as big ;
     Who love the arts that man exalt to heav'n :
     GEORGE loves them also, when they're giv'n
 To four-legg'd gentry, christen'd dog and pig,*
 Whose deeds in this our wonder-hunting nation
 Prove what a charming thing is education.

Full of the art of brewing beer,
     The Monarch heard of WHITBREAD's fame :
 Quoth he unto the Queen, " My dear, my dear,
     " WHITBREAD hath got a marvellous great name ;
 " CHARLY, we must, must, must see WHITBREAD brew—
 " Rich as us, CHARLY, richer than a Jew :
 " Shame, shame, we have not yet his brewhouse seen !"
 Thus sweetly said the King unto the Queen !

Red

* The dancing dogs and wife pig have formed a considerable part of the royal amusement.

Red hot with novelty's delightful rage,
 To Mister WHITBREAD forth he sent a page,
 To say that Majesty propos'd to view,
 With thirst of wond'rous knowledge deep inflam'd,
 His vats, and tubs, and hops, and hogheads fam'd,
 And learn the noble secret how to brew.

Of such undreamt-of honour proud,
 Most rev'rently the Brewer bow'd;
 So humbly (so the humble story goes)
 He touch'd e'en terra firma with his nose;

Then said unto the page, hight BILLY RAMUS,
 " Happy are we that our great King should name us,
 " As worthy unto Majesty to shew,
 " How we poor Chifwell people brew."

Away sprung BILLY RAMUS quick as thought:
 To Majesty the welcome tidings brought,
 How WHITBREAD staring stood like any stake,
 And trembled—then the civil things he said—
 On which the King did smile and nod his head;
 For Monarchs like to see their subjects quake:

Such horrors unto Kings most pleafant are,
 Proclaiming rev'rence and humility :
 High thoughts too all thofe fhaking fits declare
 Of kingly grandeur and great capability !

People of worship, wealth, and birth,
 Look on the humbler fons of earth,
 Indeed in a moft humble light, God knows !
 High ftations are like Dover's tow'ring cliffs,
 Where fhips below appear like little fiffs,
 The people walking on the ftand, like crows.

Mufe, fing the fir that happy WHITBREAD made ;
 Poor gentleman ! moft terribly afraid
 He fhould not charm enough his guefts divine :
 He gave his maids new aprons, gowns, and fmocks ;
 And lo ! two hundred pounds were fpent in frocks,
 To make th' apprentices and draymen fine :

Bufy as horfes in a field of clover,
 Dogs, cats, and chairs, and ftools were tumbled over,
 Amidft the Whitbread rout of preparation,
 To treat the lofty RULER of the nation.

Now mov'd King, Queen, and Princesses so grand,
 To visit the first Brewer in the land;
 Who sometimes swills his beer and grinds his meat
 In a snug corner christen'd Chifwell-street;
 But oft'ner, charm'd with fashionable air,
 Amidst the gaudy Great of Portman-square.

LORD AYLESBURY, and DENBIGH'S LORD also,
 His Grace the DUKE OF MONTAGUE likewise,
 With Lady HARCOURT, join'd the raree-show,
 And fix'd all Smithfield's marv'ling eyes:
 For lo! a greater show ne'er grac'd those quarters,
 Since Mary roasted, just like crabs, the martyrs.

Arriv'd, the King broad grinn'd, and gave a nod
 To smiling WHITBREAD, who, had God
 Come with his angels to behold his beer,
 With more respect he never could have met—
 Indeed the man was in a sweat,
 So much the Brewer did the King revere.

HER MAJESTY contriv'd to make a dip:
 Light as a feather then the King did skip,
 And ask'd a thousand questions, with a laugh,
 Before poor WHITBREAD comprehended half.

Reader!

Reader! my Ode should have a simile—
 Well! in Jamaica, on a tam'rind tree,
     Five hundred parrots, gabbling just like Jews,
 I've seen—such noise the feather'd imps did make,
 As made my very pericranium ache—
     Asking and telling parrot news:

Thus was the brewhouse fill'd with gabbling noise,
 Whilst draymen, and the Brewer's boys,
     Devour'd the questions that the King did ask:
 In different parties were they staring seen,
 Wond'ring to think they saw a King and Queen!
     Behind a tub were some, and some behind a cask.

Some draymen forc'd themselves (a pretty luncheon)
 Into the mouth of many a gaping puncheon;
 And through the bung-hole wink'd with curious eye,
     To view, and be assur'd what sort of things
     Were Princesses, and Queens, and Kings,
 For whose most lofty station thousands sigh!
 And lo! of all the gaping puncheon clan,
 Few were the mouths that had not got a man!

Now MAJESTY into a pump so deep
 Did with an opera-glass so curious peep;

Examining with care each wond'rous matter
That brought up water !

Thus have I seen a magpie in the street,
A chatt'ring bird we often meet,
A bird for curiosity well known ;
    With head awry,
    And cunning eye,
Peep knowingly into a marrow-bone.

And now his curious M——y did stoop
To count the nails on ev'ry hoop ;
And lo ! no single thing came in his way,
That, full of deep research, he did not say,
“ What's this? hæ, hæ? what's that? what's this?
    what's that?”
So quick the words too, when he deign'd to speak,
As if each syllable would break its neck.

Thus, to the world of great whilst others crawl,
Our Sov'reign peeps into the world of small :
Thus microscopic geniuses explore
    Things that too oft provoke the public scorn ;
Yet swell of useful knowledges the store,
    By finding systems in a pepper-corn.

Now

Now boasting WHITBREAD ferious did declare,
 To make the Majesty of England stare,
 That he had butts enough, he knew,
 Plac'd side by side, to reach along to Kew:
 On which the King with wonder swiftly cry'd,
 " What, if they reach to Kew then, side by side,
 " What would they do, what, what, plac'd end to end?"

To whom, with knitted calculating brow,
 The Man of Beer most solemnly did vow,
 Almost to Windsor that they would extend;
 On which the King, with wond'ring mien,
 Repeated it unto the wond'ring Queen:
 On which, quick turning round his halter'd head,
 The Brewer's horse, with face astonish'd, neigh'd;
 The Brewer's dog too pour'd a note of thunder,
 Rattled his chain, and wagg'd his tail for wonder.

Now did the King for other beers enquire,
 For Calvert's, Jordan's, Thrale's entire;
 And, after talking of these diff'rent beers,
 Ask'd WHITBREAD if his porter equall'd theirs?

This was a puzzling, disagreeing question,
 Grating like arsenic on his host's digestion;

A kind

A kind of question to the Man of Cask
That not ev'n Solomon himself would ask.

Now Majesty, alive to knowledge, took
A very pretty memorandum-book,
With gilded leaves of asses' skin so white,
And in it legibly began to write—

Memorandum.

A charming place beneath the grates
For roasting chefnuts or potatoes.

Mem.

'Tis hops that give a bitterness to beer—
Hops grow in Kent, says WHITBREAD, and elsewhere.

Quære.

Is there no cheaper stuff? where doth it dwell?
Would not horse-aloes bitter it as well?

Mem.

To try it soon on our small beer—
'T will save us sev'ral pounds a year.

Mem.

To remember to forget to ask
 Old WHITBREAD to my house one day.

Mem.

Not to forget to take of beer the cask,
 The Brewer offer'd me, away.

Now having pencill'd his remarks so shrewd,
 Sharp as the point indeed of a new pin,
 His Majesty his watch most sagely view'd,
 And then put up his asses' skin.

TO WHITBREAD now deign'd Majesty to say,
 "WHITBREAD, are all your horses fond of hay?"
 "Yes, please your Majesty," in humble notes,
 The Brewer answer'd—"also, Sir, of oats:
 "Another thing my horses too maintains,
 "And that, an't please your Majesty, are grains."

"Grains, grains," said Majesty, "to fill their crops?
 "Grains, grains?—that comes from hops—yes, hops, hops, hops?"

Here

Here was the King, like hounds sometimes, at fault—

“Sire,” cry’d the humble Brewer, “give me leave

“Your sacred Majesty to undeceive:

“Grains, Sire, are never made from hops, but malt.”

“True,” said the cautious Monarch, with a smile;

“From malt, malt, malt—I meant malt all the while.”

“Yes,” with the sweetest bow, rejoin’d the Brewer,

“An’t please your Majesty, you did, I’m sure.”

“Yes,” answer’d Majesty, with quick reply,

“I did, I did, I did, I, I, I, I.”

Now this was wise in WHITBREAD—here we find

A very pretty knowledge of mankind:

As Monarchs never must be in the wrong,

’Twas really a bright thought in WHITBREAD’S tongue,

To tell a little fib, or some such thing,

To save the sinking credit of a King.

Some Brewers, in the rage of information,

Proud to instruct the RULER of a Nation,

Had on the folly dwelt, to seem damn’d clever!

Now, what had been the consequence? Too plain!

The man had cut his consequence in twain;

The King had hated the wise fool for ever!

Reader,

Reader, whene'er thou dost espy a nose
That bright with many a ruby glows,
That nose thou may'st pronounce, nay safely swear,
Is nurs'd on something better than small-beer :

Thus when thou findest Kings in brewing wise,
Or Nat'ral Hist'ry holding lofty station,
Thou may'st conclude, with marv'ling eyes,
Such Kings have had a goodly education.

Now did the King admire the bell so fine,
That daily asks the draymen all to dine ;
On which the bell rung out, (how very proper !)
To show it was a bell, and had a clapper.

And now before their Sovereign's curious eye,
Parents and children, fine, fat, hopeful sprigs,
All snuffing, squinting, grunting in their sty,
Appear'd the Brewer's tribe of handsome pigs :
On which th' observant man, who fills a throne,
Declar'd the pigs were vastly like his own :

On which the Brewer, swallow'd up in joys,
Tears and astonishment in both his eyes,

His

His foul brim full of sentiments so loyal,

Exclaim'd, " O heav'ns ! and can my fwine

" Be deem'd by Majesty so fine !

" Heav'ns ! can my pigs compare, Sire, with pigs

To which the King assented with a nod ; [royal !"

On which the Brewer bow'd, and said, " Good God !"

Then wink'd significant on Miss ;

Significant of wonder and of blifs ;

Who, bridling in her chin divine,

Cros'd her fair hands, a dear old maid,

And then her lowest curt'fy made

For such high honour done her father's fwine.

Now did his Majesty so gracious say

To Mister WHITBREAD, in his flying way,

" WHITBREAD, d'ye nick th' Excisemen now and then ?

" Hæ, WHITBREAD, when d'ye think to leave off trade ?

" Hæ ? what ? Miss WHITBREAD's still a maid, a maid ?

" What, what's the matter with the men ?

" D'ye hunt ?—hæ, hunt ? No, no, you are too old—

" You'll be Lord May'r—Lord May'r one day—

" Yes, yes, I've heard so—yes, yes, so I'm told :

" Don't, don't the fine for Sheriff pay ;

I'll

“ I’ll prick you ev’ry year, man, I declare :

“ Yes, WHITBREAD—yes, yes—you shall be Lord
May’r.

“ WHITBREAD, d’ye keep a coach, or job one, pray ?

“ Job, job, that’s cheapest ; yes, that’s best, that’s best.

“ You put your liv’ries on the draymen—hæ ?

“ Hæ, WHITBREAD ? You have feather’d well your nest.

“ What, what’s the price now, hæ, of all your stock ?

“ But, WHITBREAD, what’s o’clock, pray, what’s o’clock ?”

Now WHITBREAD inward said, “ May I be curst

“ If I know what to answer first ;”

Then search’d his brains with ruminating eye :

But e’er the Man of Malt an answer found,

Quick on his heel, lo, MAJESTY turn’d round,

Skipp’d off, and baulk’d the honour of reply.

Kings in inquisitiveness should be strong—

From curiosity doth wisdom flow :

For ’tis a maxim I’ve adopted long,

The more a man inquires, the more he’ll know.

Reader,

Reader, didst ever see a water-spout?

'Tis possible that thou wilt answer, "No."

Well then! he makes a most infernal rout;

Sucks, like an elephant, the waves below,
With huge proboscis reaching from the sky,
As if he meant to drink the ocean dry:

At length so full he can't hold one drop more—

He bursts—down rush the waters with a roar
On some poor boat, or sloop, or brig, or ship,
And almost sinks the wand'rer of the deep:

Thus have I seen a Monarch at reviews

Suck from the tribe of officers the news,

Then bear in triumph off each wond'rous matter,
And soufe it on the Queen with such a clatter!

I always would advise folks to ask questions;

For, truly, questions are the keys of knowledge;
Soldiers, who forage for the mind's digestions;

Cut figures at th' Old Bailey, and at College;
Make Chancellors, Chief Justices, and Judges,
E'en of the lowest green-bag drudges.

The fages say, Dame TRUTH delights to dwell,
Strange mansion! in the bottom of a well.

Questions are then the windlafs and the rope
 That pull the grave old gentlewoman up :
 * Damn jokes then, and unmannerly fuffeftions,
 Reflecting upon Kings for asking queftions.

Now having well employ'd his royal lungs
 On nails, hoops, ftaves, pumps, barrels, and their bungs,
 The King and Co. fat down to a collation
 Of flefh, and fifh, and fowl of ev'ry nation.
 Dire was the clang of plates, of knife and fork,
 That merc'lefs fell like tomahawks to work,
 And fearlefs fcalp'd the fowl, the fifh, and cattle,
 Whilft WHITBREAD, in the rear, beheld the battle.

The conqu'ring Monarch, ftopping to take breath
 Amidft the regiments of death,

Now turn'd to WHITBREAD with complacent round,
 And, merry, thus addrefs'd the Man of Beer :

“ WHITBREAD, is't true? I hear, I hear

“ You're of an ancient family—renown'd—

“ What? what? I'm told that you're a limb

VOL. II.

“ Of

* This alludes to the late Dr. Johnson's laugh on a Great Perfonage, for a laudable curiofity in the Queen's library fome years fince.

- “ Of P<sub>Y</sub>M,* the famous fellow P<sub>Y</sub>M :
 “ What, W<sub>H</sub>ITBREAD, is it true what people say ?
 “ Son of a R<sub>O</sub>und-head are you ? hæ ? hæ ? hæ ?
 “ I’m told that you send Bibles to your votes—
     “ A snuffling round-headed society—
 “ Pray’r-books instead of cash to buy them coats—
     “ Bunyans, and Practices of Piety :
 “ Your Bedford votes would wish to change their fare—
 “ Rather see cash—yes, yes—than books of pray’r.
 “ Thirtieth of January don’t you feed ?
 “ Yes, yes, you eat calf’s head, you eat calf’s head.”

Now having wonders done on flesh, fowl, fish,
     Whole hofts o’erturn’d—and feiz’d on all supplies ;
 The royal visitors exprefs’d a wish
     To turn to House of Buckingham their eyes :

But first the Monarch, so polite,
 Ask’d Mister W<sub>H</sub>ITBREAD if he’d be a Knight.

    Unwilling in the list to be enroll’d,
 W<sub>H</sub>ITBREAD contemplated the Knights of Peg,
 Then to his generous Sov’reign made a leg,
     And said, “ He was afraid he was too old.

“ He

* His Majesty here made a mistake—P<sub>Y</sub>M was his wife’s relation.

“ He thank’d however his most gracious King,
 “ For offering to make him such a THING.”

But ah! a diff’rent reason ’twas, I fear!

It was not age that bade the Man of Beer

The proffer’d honour of the Monarch shun:
 The tale of Marg’ret’s knife, and royal fright,
 Had almost made him damn the name of Knight,
 A tale that farrow’d such a world of fun.

He mock’d the pray’r* too by the King appointed,
 Ev’n by himself the Lord’s Anointed:

A foe to fast too, is he, let me tell ye;

And, though a Presbyterian, cannot think
 Heav’n (quarrelling with meat and drink)
 Joys in the grumble of a hungry belly!

Now from the table with Cæfarean air

Up rose the Monarch with his laurell’d brow,
 When Mifter WHITBREAD, waiting on his chair,
 Expres’d much thanks, much joy, and made a bow.

Mifs

* For the miraculous escape from a poor innocent insane woman, who only held out a small knife in a piece of white paper, for her Sovereign to view.

Miss WHITBREAD now so thick her curtsies drops,
 Thick as her honour'd father's Kentish hops ;
 Which hoplike curtsies were return'd by dips
 That never hurt the royal knees and hips ;
     For hips and knees of Queens are sacred things,
 That only bend on gala days
     Before the best of Kings,
 When Odes of triumph sound his praise.—

Now through a thund'ring peal of kind huzza's,
 Proceeding some from *hir'd and unhir'd jaws,
 The raree-show thought proper to retire ;

Whilst

* When his MAJESTY goes to a playhouse, or brewhouse, or parliament, the LORD CHAMBERLAIN provides some poundsworth of MOB to huzza their beloved Monarch. At the Playhouse about forty wide-mouthed fellows are hired on the night of their Majesties appearance, at two shillings and sixpence per head, with the liberty of seeing the play gratis. These STENTORS are placed in different parts of the Theatre, who, immediately on the Royal entry into the Stage Box, set up their howl of loyalty ; to whom their Majesties, with sweetest smiles, acknowledge the obligation by a genteel bow, and an elegant curtsy. This congratulatory noise of the STENTORS is looked on by many, particularly country ladies and gentlemen, as an infallible thermometer, ascertaining the warmth of the national regard.

Whilst WHITBREAD and his daughter fair
 Survey'd all Chiswell-street with lofty air ;
 For, lo, they felt themselves some six feet higher !

Such, THOMAS, is the way to write !
 Thus shouldst thou Birth-day Songs indite ;
 Then stick to earth, and leave the lofty sky :
 No more of ti tum tum, and ti tum ti.

Thus should an honest Laureat write of Kings—
 Not praise them for imaginary things :
 I own I cannot make my stubborn rhyme
 Call ev'ry King a character sublime ;
 For CONSCIENCE will not suffer me to wander
 So very widely from the paths of CANDOUR.
 I know full well some Kings are to be seen,
 To whom my verse so bold would give the spleen,
     Should that bold verse declare they wanted brains.
 I won't say that they never brain possess'd—
 They may have been with such a present bless'd,
     And therefore fancy that some still remains ;

For ev'ry well-experienc'd surgeon knows
 That men who with their legs have parted,
 Swear they have felt a pain in all their toes,
 And often at the twinges started ;
 Then star'd upon their oaken stumps, in vain !
 Fancying the toes were all come back again.

If men then, who their absent toes have mourn'd,
 Can fancy those same toes at times return'd ;
 So Kings, in matters of intelligences,
 May fancy they have stumbled on their senses.

Yes, TOM—mine is the way of writing Ode—
 Why liftest thou thy pious eyes to God ?
 Strange disappointment in thy looks I read ;
 And now I hear thee in proud triumph cry,
 “ Is this an action, PETER, this a deed
 “ To raise a Monarch to the sky ?
 “ Tubs, porter, pumps, vats, all the WHITBREAD “ throng,
 “ Rare things to figure in the MUSE's song !”

THOMAS, I here protest I want no quarrels
 On Kings and Brewers, porter, pumps and barrels—

Far from the dove-like PETER be such strife!
But this I tell thee, THOMAS, for a fact—
Thy Cæsar never did an act
More wise, more glorious in his life.

Now God preserve all wonder-hunting Kings,
Whether at Windsor, Buckingham, or Kew-house;
And may they never do more foolish things
Than visiting SAM WHITBREAD and his brewhouse!

AN

EXPOSTULATORY EPISTLE.

---

'SLIFE! Thomas, what hath swallow'd all the praise?
Of royal virtues not the slightest mention!
Strung, like mock pearl, so lately on thy lays!
Tell me, a bankrupt, Tom, is thy invention?

How couldst thou so thy PATRON's fame forget,
As not to pay, of praise, the annual debt?

WHITEHEAD and CIBBER, all the Laureat throng,
To FAME's fair Temple, twice a year, presented
Some royal virtues, real or invented,
In all the grave sublimity of song.

Heralds

Heralds so kind, for many a chance-born WIGHT,
 Creeping from cellars, just like snails from earth,
 Or moles, or field-mice, stealing into light,
 Forge Arms, to prove a loftiness of birth;
 Tracing of each ambitious Sir and Madam
 The branches to the very trunk of ADAM.

Then why not thou, the herald, TOM, of rhyme,
 Still bid thy Royal Master soar sublime?
 Bards shine in fiction; then how slight a thing
 To make a coat of merit for a King!

KNOW, General CARPENTER had been a theme
 For furnishing a pretty lyric dream;
 Once a monopolist of nod and smile;
 Of broken sentences and questions rare,
 Of snipsnap whispers sweet, and grin, and stare,
 For which thy MUSE would travel many a mile.

But lo! the General, for a crying sin,
 Lost broken sentences, and nod, and grin,
 And stare and snipsnap of the best of Kings;
 The sin, the crying sin, of rambling
 Where Osnaburgh's good Bishop, gambling,
 Lost some few golden feathers from his wings;

Which

Which made th' unlucky General run and drown—
 Such were the horrors of the royal frown!
 For lo! His M——Y most roundly swore
 He'd nod to General CARPENTER no more.

Oh! glorious love of all-commanding money!
 Dear to some Monarchs, as to Bruin, honey;
 Dear as to gamblers, pigeons fit to pluck;
 Or show'rs to hackney-coachmen or a duck!

THOMAS, thy lyrics might have prais'd the King
 For making finners mind the Sabbath day,
 Bidding the idle sons of pipe and string,
 Instead of scraping jigs, sing psalms and pray;
 Thus piously (against their inclination)
 Dragooning souls unto salvation.

The MONARCH gave up Mister JOAH BATE,
 With that sweet nightingale his lovely MATE;
 Who with the organ and ONE fiddle
 Made up a concert every Sunday night:
 Thus yielding MAJESTIES supreme delight,
 Who relish cheapness e'en in tweedle tweedle.

For NATURE formeth oft a kind
 Of money-loving, scraping, fave-all mind,
 That happy glorieth in the nat'ral thought
 Of getting every thing for nought :

From Delhi's diamonds to a Bristol stone ;
 From royal eagles to a squalling parrot ;
 From bulls of Bafan to a marrow-bone ;
 From rich ananas to a mawkish carrot :
 And getting things for nought, we all must say,
 If not the noblest, is the cheapest way.

And often NATURE manufactures stuff
 That thinks it never hath enough ;
 Hoarding up treasure—never once enjoying—
 Such is the composition of some souls !
 Like jackdaws all their cunning art employing,
 In hiding knives, and forks, and spoons in holes.

Lo! by the pious MONARCH'S Proclamation,
 The courtier Amateurs of this fair nation
 On Sundays con their Bibles—make no riot—
 The stubborn UXBRIDGE, music-loving Lord,
 Pays dumb obedience to the royal word,
 And bids the instruments lie quiet.

Sweet MISTRESS WALSINGHAM is forc'd to pray,
 And turn her eyes up, much against her will;
 SANDWICH sings psalms too, in his pious way;
 And Lady YOUNG forbears the tuneful trill:
 And very politic is Lady Young:
 A husband must not suffer for a song.

The gentle EXETER his treat gave up,
 So us'd upon the sweet repast to sup;
 As eager for his Sunday's quaver dish,
 As cats and rav'nous Aldermen for fish.

LORD BRUDENELL, too, a Lord with lofty nose,
 Bringing to mind a verse the world well knows;
 Against sublimity that rather wars;
 Which in an almanack all eyes may see:
 " God gave to man an upright form, that he
 " Might view the stars."

I say this watchful LORD, who boasts the knack,
 Behind His Sacred Majesty's great back,
 Of placing for his latter end a chair
 Better than any Lord (so says FAME's trump)
 That ever waited on the royal rump,
 So swift his motions, and so sweet his air;

Who, if His Majesty but cough or hiccup,
 Trembles for fear the King should kick up;
 Drops, with concern, his jaw—with horror freezes—
 Or similes “God blefs you, SIRE,” whene’er he sneezes;
 This LORD, I fay, uprais’d his convert chin,
 And curs’d the concert for a crying fin.

King WATKYN, from the land of leeks and cheefe,
 With sighs, forbore his bafs to feize;
 With huge concern he dropp’d his Sunday airs,
 And grumbled out in Welsh his thanklefs pray’rs.
 The bafs, indeed, Te Deum fung,
 Glad on the willows to be hung.

And really ’twas a very nat’ral cafe—
 Poor, inoffensive bafs!
 For when King WATKYN scrubbeth him—alack!
 The instrument, like one upon the rack,
 Sendeth forth horrid, Inquisition groans!
 Enough to pierce the hearts of ftones!

Thus though in concert politics the Knight
 Battled with Miftrefs WALSINGHAM outright;
 Yet both agreed to lift their palms,
 Not in hostilities, but finging pfalms.

SAL'SBURY was also order'd to reform,
 Who, with my Lady, thought it vastly odd,
 Thus to be forc'd, like sailors in a storm,
 Against their wills to pray to God.

Thus did the royal mandate, through the town,
 Knock nearly all the Sunday concerts down!
 Great act! ere long 'twill be a sin and shame
 For cats to warble out an am'rous flame!
 Dogs shall be whipp'd for making love on Sunday,
 Who very well may put it off to Monday.

Nay, more the royal piety to prove,
 And aid the purest of all pure religions,
 To Bridewell shall be sent all cooing pigeons,
 And cocks and hens be lash'd for making love:
 Sparrows and wrens be shot from barns and houses,
 For being barely civil to their spouses.

Poor Sir JOHN DICK was, lamb-like, heard to bleat
 At losing such a Sunday's treat—
 Sir JOHN, the happy owner of a star—
 Which radiant honour on furtouts he fitches;
 Lamenting fashion doth not stretch so far
 As sewing them on waistcoats and on breeches;

Which thus would pour a blaze of silver day,
And make the Knight a perfect milky way.

Yet HAMPDEN, CHOLMOND'LY, those sinful shavers,
Rebellious, riot in their Sabbath quavers;
Thus flying in the face of our GREAT KING,
Profane God's resting day with wind and string;
Whilst on the Terrace, 'midst his German band,
On Sunday evenings GEORGE is pleas'd to stand;
Contented with a simple tune alone,
" God save great George our King," or Bobbing Joan;

Whilst CHERUBS, leaning from their starry height,
Wink at each other, and enjoy the sight;
    And SATAN, from a lurking hole,
    Fond of a seeming-godly soul,
His eyes and ears scarce able to believe,
    Laughs in his sleeve.

Stay, Muse—the mention of the German band
Bringeth a tale oppressive to my hand,
Relating to a tribe of German boys,
Whose horrid fortune made some little noise;
Sent for to take of Englishmen the places,
Who, gall'd by such hard treatment, made wry faces.

Sent

Sent for they were, to feed in fields of clover,
 To feast upon the Coldstream regiment's fat :
 Swift with their empty stomachs they flew over,
 And wider than a Kevenhuller hat.
 But ah ! their knives no veal nor mutton carv'd !
 To feasts they went indeed, but went and starv'd !
 Their Masters, raptur'd with the tuneful treat,
 Forgot musicians, like themselves, could eat.
 Thus the poor woodcock leaves his frozen shores,
 When tyrant Winter 'midst his tempests roars :
 Invited by our milder sky, he roves ;
 Views the pure streams with joy, and shelt'ring groves,
 And in one hour, oh ! sad reverse of fate !
 Is shot, and smokes upon a poacher's plate !

Thus ending a sweet episodic strain,
 I turn, dear THOMAS, to thy Ode again.

What ! make a dish to balk thy Master's gums !
 A pudding, and forget the plums !
 Mercy upon us ! what a cook art thou !
 Dry e'en already !—what a sad milch cow !—
 Who gav'ft, at first, of fame such flowing pails !—
 Say, THOMAS, what thy lyric udder ails ?

Since truth belongs not to the laureat trade,

'Tis strange, 'tis passing strange, thou didst not flatter:
Speak—in light money were thy wages paid?

Or was thy pipe of sack half fill'd with water?
Or hast thou, Tom, been cheated of thy dues?
Or hath a qualm of conscience touch'd thy Muse?

Thou might'st have prais'd for dignity of pride

Display'd not long ago among the Cooks:
Searching the kitchen with sagacious looks;
Wigs, christen'd scratches, on their heads, he spied,

To find a wig on a cook's head

Just like the wig that grac'd his own,
Was verily a sight too dread!—
Enough to turn a King to stone!

On which, in language of his very best,
His Majesty his royal ire express'd.

“ me!—

“ Strange! strange! yes, yes, I see, I see, I see—

“ Fine fellows to wear scratches! yes, no doubt—

“ I'll have no more—no more when mine's worn out—

Hæ?

“ Hæ? pretty! pretty! pretty too it looks
 “ To see my scratches upon Cooks!”

And lo! as he had threaten'd all so big,
 As soon as ever he wore out the wig,
 He with a pig-tail deign'd his head to match!
 Nor more profan'd his temples with a SCRATCH!

THOMAS, I see my song thy feelings grate—
 Thou think'ft I'm joking; that the King's my hate.

The world may call me liar, but sincerely
 I love him—for a partner, love him dearly;
 Whilst his great name is on the ferme, I'm sure
 My credit with the Public is secure.

Yes, beef shall grace my spit, and ale shall flow,
 As long as it continues George and Co. ;
     That is to say, in plainer metre,
     George and Peter.

Yet, as some little money I have made,
 I've thoughts of turning 'Squire, and quitting trade :
 This in my mind I've frequently revolv'd ;

And in six months, or so,
 For all I know,
 The partnership may be dissolv'd.

Whate'er thou think'ft—howe'er the world may carp,
 THOMAS, I'm far from hating our good King;
 Yes, yes, or may I thrum no more my harp,
 As DAVID swore, who touch'd so well the string—
 No, TOM; the idol of thy sweet devotion
 Excites not HATE, whatever else th' emotion.

To write a book on the Sublime, I own,
 Were I a bookfeller, I would not hire him;
 Yet, should I hate the man who fills a throne,
 Because, forfooth, I can't admire him?

Hate him, because, ambitious of a name,
 He thinks to rival e'en the PRINCE in fame?
 A Prince of Science—in the arts so chaste!—
 A giant to him in the world of taste;
 Who from an envious cloud one day shall spring,
 And prove that dignity may clothe a King.

Who, when by Fortune fix'd on Britain's throne,
 Wherever merit, humble plant, is shown,

Will

Will fhed around that plant a foft'ring ray ;
 Whofe hand fhall ftretch through poverty's pale gloom
 For drooping GENIUS, finking to the tomb,
 And lead the blufhing ft ranger into day.

Who fcorns (like foime) to chronicle a fhilling,
 Once in a twelvemonth to a beggar giv'n ;
 By fuch mean charity (Lord help 'em) willing
 To go as cheap as poffible to Heav'n !

Hate him, becaufe, untir'd, the Monarch pores
 On HANDEL's manuscript old fcores,
 And fchemes fuccefsful daily hatches,
 For faving notes o'erwhelm'd with fcratches ;
 Recovering from the blotted leaves
 Huge cart-horfe minims, dromedary breves ;
 Thus faving damned bars from juft damnation,
 By way of bright'ning Handel's reputation ?
 Who, charm'd with ev'ry crotchet Handel wrote,
 Heav'd into TOT'NAM STREET each heavy note ;
 And forcing on the houfe the tunelefs lumber,
 Drove half to doors, the other half to flumber ?

Hate

Hate him, because the brazen works of WEST,
 His eye (in wonder loft) unfated views?
 Because his walls, with tasteless trumpery drest,
 Robs a poor signpost of its dues?

Hate him, because he cannot rest,
 But in the company of West?
 Because of modern works he makes a jest,
 Except the works of Mister West?

Who by the public, fain would have carest
 The works alone of Mister West!
 Who thinks, of painting, truth and taste, the test,
 None but the wond'rous works of Mister West!

Who mocketh poor Sir JOSHUA—cannot bear him;
 And never suffers WILSON'S landscapes near him.

Nor, GAINSB'ROUGH, thy delightful girls and boys,
 In rural scenes so sweet, amidst their joys,
 With such simplicity as makes us start,
 Forgetting 'tis the work of art.
 Which wonder and which care of Mister WEST
 May in a simile be well exprest:—

A S I M I L E.

THUS have I seen a child with smiling face,
 A little daisey in the garden place,
     And strut in triumph round its fav'rite flow'r ;
 Gaze on the leaves with infant admiration,
 Thinking the flow'r the finest in the nation,
     Then pay a visit to it ev'ry hour :
 Lugging the wat'ring pot about,
     Which JOHN the gard'ner was oblig'd to fill ;
 The child, so pleas'd, would pour the water out,
     To show its marvellous gard'ning skill ;
 Then staring round, all wild for praises panting,
 Tell all the world it was its own sweet planting ;
     And boast away, too happy elf,
     How that it found the daisey all, itself !

A N O T H E R   S I M I L E.

IN smile if I may shine agen—
 Thus have I seen a fond old hen
     With one poor miserable chick,
 Bustling about a farmer's yard ;
 Now on the dunghill labouring hard,
     Scraping away through thin and thick

Flutt'ring

Flutt'ring her feathers—making such a noise!
 Cackling aloud such quantities of joys,
 As if this chick, to which her egg gave birth,
 Was born to deal prodigious knocks,
 To shine the Broughton of game cocks,
 And kill the fowls of all the earth!

E'EN with his painter let the King be blest;
 Egad! eat, drink, and sleep, with Mifter WEST;
 Only let me, excus'd from such a guest,
 Not eat, and drink, and sleep with Mifter WEST;
 And as he will not please my taste—no never—
 Let me not give him to the world as clever:
 A better conscience in my bosom lies,
 Than imitate the fellow and his flies,

THE TOPER AND THE FLIES.

A GROUP of toppers at a table fat,
 With punch that much regales the thirsty soul:
 Flies soon the party join'd, and join'd the chat,
 Humming, and pitching round the mantling bowl.

At length those flies got drunk, and, for their sin,
 Some hundreds lost their legs, and tumbled in;
 And sprawling 'midst the gulph profound,
 Like Pharaoh and his daring host, were drown'd!

Wanting to drink—one of the men
 Dipp'd from the bowl the drunken host,
 And drank—then taking care that none were lost,
 He put in ev'ry mother's son agen.

Up jump'd the bacchanalian crew on this,
 Taking it very much amiss—
 Swearing, and in the attitude po smite:
 “ Lord!” cry'd the man, with gravely-lifted eyes,
 “ Though I don't like to swallow flies,
 “ I did not know but others might.”

WHO says I hate the King, proclaims a lie;
 E'en now a royal virtue strikes my eye!
 To prove th' assertion, let me just relate
 The King's submission to the will of FATE.

Whene'er

Whene'er in hunts the Monarch is thrown out,
 As in his politics—a common thing!
 With searching eyes he stares at first about,
 Then faces the misfortune like a King!

Hearing no news of nimble MISTER STAG,
 He sits like PATIENCE grinning on his nag!
 Now, wisdom-fraught, his curious eyeballs ken
 The little hovels that around him rise:
 To these he trots—of hogs furveys the flies,
 And nicely numbers every cock and hen.

Then asks the farmer's wife or farmer's maid,
 How many eggs the fowls have laid!
 What's in the oven—in the pot—the crock;
 Whether 'twill rain or no, and what's o'clock;
 Thus from poor hovels gleaning information,
 To serve as future treasure for the nation!

There, terrier like, till pages find him out,
 He pokes his most sagacious nose about,
 And seems in Paradise—like that so fam'd;
 Looking like ADAM too, and EVE so fair;
 Sweet simpletons! who, though so very bare,
 “ Were (says the Bible) not asham'd.”

No man binds books so well as GEORGE the Third,
 By thirft of leather glory fpurr'd,
 At bookbinders he oft is feen to laugh—
 And wond'rous is the King in fheep or calf!

But fee! the PRINCE upon fuch labour looks
 Faftidious down, and only readeth books!—
 Here by the Sire the Son is much furpaft;
 Which FAME fhould publifh on her loudeft blaf!

The KING beats Monmouth-Street in caft-off riches;
 That is, in coats, and waiftcoats, and in breeches;
 Which, draughted once a year for foreign ftations,
 Make fine recruits to ferve fome near relations.

But lo! the PRINCE, fhame on him! never dreams
 Of pretty Jewifh, economic fchemes!
 So very proud, (I'm griev'd, O Tom, to tell it)
 He'd rather give a coat away than fell it!

Fair juftice to the Monarch muft allow
 Prodigious fcience in a calf or cow;
 And wifdom in the article of fwine!
 What moft unufual knowledge for a King!
 Becaufe pig wifdom is a thing

In which no SOV'REIGNS e'er were known to fhine.

Yet

Yet who will think I am not telling fibs ?

The PRINCE, who Britain's throne in time shall grace,
 Ne'er finger'd, at a fair, a bullock's ribs,
 Nor ever ogled a pig's face !
 O dire disgrace ! O let it not be known
 That thus a father hath excell'd a son !

Truth bids me own that I can bring
 A dozen who admire the King ;
 And should he dream of setting off for HANOVER,
 As once he said he would, to spite CHARLES FOX ;
 Draw all his little money from the stocks,
 Shut shop, and carry ev'ry pot and pan over ;

I think—indeed I'm sure I know,
 That dozen would not let him go ;
 But in the struggle spend their vital breath,
 And hug their idol, probably to death ;
 As happen'd to a Romish Priest—a tale
 That, whilst I tell it, almost turns me pale.

THE ROMISH PRIEST.

A T A L E.

A PARSON in the neighbourhood of ROME,
 Some years ago—how many, I don't say—
 Handled so well his heav'nly broom,
 He brush'd, like cobwebs, sins away.

Brighten'd the black horizon of his parish ;
 Gave to the PRINCE OF DARKNESS such hard blows
 That SATAN was afraid to show his nose,
 (Except in hell) before this priest so warrish !

To teach folks how to shun the paths of evil,
 And prove a match for Mister DEVIL,
 Was constantly this pious man's endeavour ;
 And, as I've said before, the man was clever.

Red-hot was all his zeal—and FAME declares,
 He gallop'd like a hunter o'er his pray'rs ;
 For ever lifting to the clouds his forehead—
 Petitions on petitions he let fly,
 Which nothing but BARBARIANS could deny—
 In short, the Saints were to compliance worried.

With shoulders, arms, and hands, this Priest devout,
 So well his evolutions did perform;
 His pray'rs, those holy small-shot, flew about
 So thick!—it seem'd like taking Heav'n by storm!

Without one atom of reflection,
 No candidate at an election
 Did ever labour more, and fume, and sweat,
 To make a fellow change his coat,
 And bless him with the casting vote,
 Than this dear man to get in Heav'n a seat
 For souls of children, women, and of men:
 No matter which the species—cock or hen!

Thus did he not like that vile Jesuit think
 Who makes us all with horror shrink;
 A knave high meriting Hell's hottest coals;
 Who wrote a shocking book, to prove
 That women, charming women, form'd for love,
 Have got no souls!

Monster! to think that WOMAN had no soul!
 Ha! hast thou not a soul, thou peerless MAID,
 Who bidst my rural hours with rapture roll?
 Whose beauties charm the shepherds and the shade!
 Yes,

Yes, CYNTHIA, and for souls like thine,
 Fate into being drew yon starry sphere;
 Then kindly sent thy form divine,
 To show what wond'rous bliss inhabits there!

In short, no drayhorse ever work'd so hard,
 From vaults, to drag up hog'shead, tun, or pipe,
 As this good Priest, to drag, for small reward,
 The souls of finners from the Devil's gripe.

Pleas'd were the highest angels to express
 Their wonder at his fine address;
 And pow'r against the FIEND who makes such strife;
 Nay, e'en St. PETER said, to whom are giv'n
 The keys for letting people into Heav'n,
 He never got more halfpence in his life.

'Twas added that my namesake did declare,
 (Peter, the porter of Heav'n gate, so trusty;)
 That, till this Priest appear'd, souls were so rare,
 His bunch of keys was absolutely rusty!

Did GENTLEMEN of fortune die,
 And leave the CHURCH a good round sum;
 Lo! in the twinkling of an eye,
 The Parson frank'd their souls to kingdom-come!

A letter to the PORTER, or a word,
 Infur'd admittance to the LORD.
 Nor stopp'd those souls an instant on the road,
 To take a roast before they enter'd in;
 For, had they got the plague, 'twas said that God
 Had let them enter without quarantine.

Well then! this Parson was so much admir'd,
 So sought, so courted, so desir'd,
 Thousands with putrid souls, like putrid meat,
 Came for his holy pickle, to be sweet:

Just as we see old hags, with jaws of carrion,
 Enter the shop of Mister WARREN;
 Who disappoints that highwayman call'd TIME,
 (Noted for robbing Ladies of their prime),
 By giving SIXTY-FIVE's pale, wither'd mien,
 The blooming roses of SIXTEEN.

Such vast impressions did his sermons make,
 He always kept his flock awake—
 In summer too—hear, parsons, this strange news,
 Ye who so often preach to nodding pews!

A neigh-

A neighb'ring town, into whose people's souls,
 SIN, like a rat, had eat large holes,
 Begg'd him to be their tinker—their hole-stopper—
 For, gentle reader, sin of such a fort is,
 It souls corrodeth just as aqua fortis
 Corrodeth iron, brass, or copper.

They told him they would give him better pay,
 If he'd agree to change his quarters;
 Protesting, when his soul should leave its clay,
 To rank his bones with those of SAINTS and MAR-TYRS.

This was a handsome bribe, all Papists know!
 But stop—his parish would not let him go:
 Then furly did the other parish look,
 And swore to have the man by hook or crook;

So feiz'd him, like a graceless throng.
 The Priest's parishioners, who lov'd him well,
 Rather than to another church belong,
 Swore they would sooner see him lodg'd in Hell—
 So violent was their objection!
 So very strong, too, their affection!

The LADIES, too, united in the strife;
 Protesting that they "lov'd him as their life,
 " So sweetly he would look when down to pray'r!
 " So happy in a fermon choice!
 " And then he had of nightingales the voice—
 " And holy water gave with such an air!
 " Lord! lose so fine a man!—so great a treasure!
 " Yielding such quantities of heavenly pleasure!
 " Forgiving sins so free, too, at confession,
 " However carnal the transgression,
 " In such a charming, love-condemning strain!—
 " He really seem'd to say, 'Go sin again;
 " HELL shall not throw, my angels, on your souls
 " So sweet, a single shovelful of coals."

Now in the fire was all the fat:
 Just as two bulldogs pull a cat,
 Both parishes with furious zeal contended—
 So heartily the holy man was hugg'd,
 So much from place to place his limbs were lugg'd,
 That very fatally the battle ended!
 In short, by hugging, lugging, and kind squeezes,
 The man of God was pull'd in fifty pieces!

This

This work perform'd, the bones were fought for stoutly;
 And so the fray continued most devoutly.
 Lo, with an arm, away one rascal fled;
 This with a leg, and that the head—
 Off with the foot another goes—
 Another seizes him, and gets the toes.

Nay, some, a relic so intent to crib,
 Fought just like mastiffs for a rib;
 Nay more, (for truth, to tell the whole, obliges)
 A dozen battled for his os coccygis!*

Heav'n, that sees all things, saw the dire dispute,
 In which each parish acted like a brute;
 Then bade the dead man as a Saint be fought;
 Still, to reward him more, his bones enriches
 With pow'r o'er evils, rheumatisms, and itches,
 However dreadful, and wherever caught:
 Thus, by the grace of HIM who governs thunder,
 His very toe-nail could perform a wonder.

G 4

THUS

* The tip of the rump.

---

THUS might our Monarch, by this dozen men,
 Be hugg'd!—and then! and then! and then! and then!
 Then what? why, then, this direful ill must spring:
 I a good subject lose, and thou a KING!

No, Tom; no more to strike us with amaze,
 Thy courtly tropes of adulation blaze:

A fettering fun art thou, so mild thy beam!
 Thou (like old OCEAN's heaving wave no more,
 That lifts a ship and fly with equal roar)

Pour'ft from thy lyric pipe a sober stream.

No more we hear the gale of Fame
 Wild blust'ring with thy MASTER's name:
 No more ideal virtues ride sublime,
 (Like feathers) on the surge of rhyme.

But lo the cause! it was the ROYAL WILL
 To bid the tempest of his praise be still;
 No more to let his virtues make a rout,
 Blown by thy blasts like paper kites about.

Indeed thy Sov'reign, in thy verse so fine,
 Might justly have exclaim'd at many a line,

“ In peacock's feathers, lo, this knave arrays me.”

And

And like a King of France of whom I've read,
 Our gracious Sov'reign also might have said,
 "What have I done, that he should praise me?"

With pity have I seen thee, SON OF SONG,
 Trundling thy lyric wheelbarrow along,
 Amidst ST. JAMES's gapers to unload
 The motley mafs of pompous ode;
 And wish'd the fack, for verse the annual prize,
 To poets of a less renown—
 To poor * WILL MASON, who in secret sighs
 To strut beneath the LAUREAT's leaden crown.

Warm in the praise, thou mightst have been,
 Of thy great King and his great Queen;
 But not so diabolically bot—
 A downright devil, or a pepper-pot.

By dev'l, (without thy being born a wizard)
 Thou ought'st to know I mean a turkey's gizzard;
 So christen'd for its quality, by man,
 Because so oft 'tis loaded with kian—

This

* Yes! poor MISTER MASON strove hard for the Bays; but lo! the superior GENIUS of WARTON prevailed against the united powers of the sweetly-whining ELFRIDA, the nobly-bullying CARACTACUS, and a heap of cloud-wrapped ODES besides.

This dev'l is fuch a red-hot bit of meat
As nothing but the Dev'l himfelf fhould eat.

A foon was large enough, the world well knows!
Why give the pap of praife then with a ladle?
Gently thou fhouldft have rock'd him to refofe—
Not like a drunken nurfe o'erturn'd the cradle.

I do not marvel that the King was wrath,
(Knowing himfelf no bigger than a lath),
To find himfelf a tall, gigantic oak—
'Twas too much of a magic-lantern ftroke.

Ah! where was MODESTY, the charming maid?
Where was the rural vagrant ftaying,
Not to admonifh thee, an idle jade,
When thou thy tuneful compliments wert paying?
Yet why this queftion put I, TOM, to thee?
Lord! how we wits forget—fhe was with me.

Yes, MODESTY (by very few careft)
Oft condefcends to be my gueft:
From time to time the maid my rhyme reviews,
And dictates fweet inftructions to the MUSE;

Yes,

Yes, frequent deigns my cottage to adorn,
 Just like that blushing damsel call'd Miss MORN,
 Who, smiling from the dreary caves of night,
 Moves from her east with silent pace and slow
 O'er yonder shadowy mount's gigantic brow,
 And to my window steals with dewy light,
 Then peeping through the panes with cherub mien,
 Seems to ask liberty to enter in.

Now vent'ring on the fables of my room,
 She sweeps the darkness with her star-clad broom:
 Now pleas'd a stronger splendor to diffuse,
 Smiles on the plated buckles in my shoes;
 Smiles on my breeches, too, of handsome plush,
 Where George's head once made no gingling sound,
 But where amidst the pockets all was hush;
 Such awful silence reign'd around!
 Whose fob, which thieves so often pick,
 Was quite a stranger to a watch's click.

Now casting on my pen and ink a ray,
 Seeming with sweet reproof to say;
 " The lark to Heav'n her grateful matins sings;
 " Then, PETER, also open thy tuneful throat,
 " And, happy in a fascinating note,
 " Rise and salute the best of Kings."

Howe'er the world t' abuse me may be giv'n,
 I cannot do without CROWN'D HEADS, by Heav'n!
 Bards must have subjects that their genius suit—
 And if I've not Crown'd Heads, I must be mute.

My verse is somewhat like a game at Whist,
 Which game, though play'd by people e'er so keen,
 Cannot with much success, alas! exist,
 Except their hands possess a King and Queen.

I own, my muse delights in royal folk:
 Lead-mines, producing many pretty pounds!
 JOE MILLARS, furnishing a fund of joke!
 Lo, with a fund of joke a Court abounds!

At royal follies, Lord! a lucky hit
 Saves our poor brain th' expence of wit:
 At Princes let but satire lift his gun,
 The more their feathers fly, the more the fun.
 E'en the whole world, blockheads and men of letters,
 Enjoy a cannonade upon their betters.

And, vice versa, Kings and Queens
 Know pretty well what scandal means,
 And love it too—yes, Majesty's a grinner:

Scandal

Scandal that really would disgrace a stable
 Hath oft been beckon'd to a royal table,
 And pleas'd a princely palate more than dinner.

I know the world exclaimeth in this guise :

- “ Suppose a King not over-wife,
 “ (A vice in Kings not very oft suspected)
 “ Suppose he does this childish thing, and this,
 “ If folly constitutes a Monarch's bliss,
 “ Shall such by faucy poets stand corrected?
 “ Bold is the man, old Parson Calchas* cries,
 “ Who tells a Monarch where his folly lies.”
 “ Grant that a King in converse cannot shine,
 “ And sharp with shrewd remark a world alarm;
 “ What business, PETER PINDAR, is't of thine?
 “ Grant puerilities—pray where's the harm?”—

To this I answer, “ I don't think a King

- “ Will go to bell for ev'ry childish thing—
 “ Yet mind, I think that one in his great station
 “ Should show sublime example to a nation :
 “ And when an eagle he should spring
 “ To drink the solar blaze on tow'ring wing,
 “ With

* Vide Homer.

“ With daring and undazzled eyes ;
 “ Not be a sparrow upon chimneys hopping,
 “ His head in holes and corners popping
     “ For flies.”

TOM, I'm not griev'd that thou hast chang'd thy note,
 And op'd on Windfor wall thy tuneful throat ;
     For verily it is a rare old mas !
 Nor angry that to WEST thou dost descend ;
 The King's great painting oracle and friend,
     Who teacheth * JERVAS how to spoil good glafs.

But, son of ISIS, since amidst this ode,
     Thou talk'ft of painting, like an ardent lover,
     Of panes of glafs now daubing over,
 Dimming delightfully the great abode ;

Speak—know'ft thou aught of RAPHAEL'S rare Car- toons ?

I have not feen them, TOM, for many moons !

Why didft thou not, amidst thy rhyming fit,
 Of thofe moft heav'nly pictures talk a bit—

For

* See the windows designed for the chapel at Windfor.

For which the NATION paid down ev'ry soufe ?
 Rare pictures, brought long sence from HAMPTON
 COURT,

And by a self-taught CARPENTER cut short,
 To fuit the pannels of the QUEEN's old house,

So says report—I hope it is not true—
 And yet I verily believe it too ;
 It is so like some people I could name,
 Whose pericraniums walk a little lame.

Beshrew me, but it brings to mind
 A cutting story, much of the same kind !

It happ'd at PLYMOUTH town so fair and sweet,
 Where wandering gutters, wandering gutters meet,
 Making in show'rs of rain a monstrous pother ;
 Bart'ring, like RAG-FAIR JEWS, with one the other,
 With carrots, cabbage-leaves, and breathless cats,
 Potatoes, turnip-tops, old rags, and hats :

A town that brings to mind SWIFT's City Show'r,
 Where clouds to wash its face for ever pour ;
 A town where Beau-traps under water grin,
 Inviting gentle strangers to walk in ;

Where

Where dwell the Lady Naiads of the flood,
 Prepar'd to crown their visitors with mud.

A town where parsons for the living fight,
 On every vacancy, with godly might,
     Like wrestlers for lac'd hats and buckskin breeches;
 Where oft the priest who best his lungs employs
 To make the rarest diabolic noise,
     With surest chance of vict'ry preaches;
 Whose empty sounds alone his labours bless;
 Like cannon fir'd by vessels in distress.

A town where, exil'd by the Higher Pow'rs,
 The *ROYAL TAR with indignation lours;
 Kept by his SIRE from London, and from sin,
 To say his Catechism to Mistress WYNN.

* The Duke of Clarence.

THE PLYMOUTH CARPENTER
 A N D
 THE COFFINS.

IN the laſt war French pris'ners often dy'd
 Of fevers, colds, and more good things beſide :
 Prefents for valour, from damp walls and chinks ;
 And nakedneſs, that ſeldom fees a ſhirt ;
 And vermin, and all ſorts of dirt ;
 And multitudes of motley ſtinks,
 That might with ſmells of any clime compare,
 That ever fought the noſe, or fields of air.

As coffins are deem'd neceſſary things,
 Forming a pretty ſort of wooden wings
 For waſting men to graves, for t'other world ;
 Where, anchor'd, (doom'd to make no voyages more)
 The rudders of our ſouls are put aſhore,
 And all the fails for ever furl'd ;

A carpenter, firſt couſin to the MAY'R,
Hight Maſter SCREW, a man of reputation,
 Got leave, through borough int'reſt, to prepare
 Good wooden lodgings for the Gallic nation ;
 I mean, for luckleſs Frenchmen that were dead :
 And very well indeed SCREW's contract ſped,

His good friend DEATH made wonderful demands,
 As if they play'd into each other's hands;
     As if the Carpenter and DEATH went snacks—
 Wishing to make as much as e'er they could
 By this same contract coffin wood,
     For such as DEATH had thrown upon their backs.

This Carpenter, like men of other trades
 Whom conscience very easily persuades
     To take from neighbours uselefs superfluity,
 Resolv'd upon an economic plan,
 Which shows that in the character of man
     Economy is not an incongruity.
 I know some Monarchs say the same—whose pulses
 Beat high for iv'ry chairs and beds and bulfes.

For lo, this man of economic fort
 Makes all his coffins much too short:
 Yet snugly he accommodates the dead—
 Cuts off, with much sang-froid, the head;
 And then, to keep it safe as well as warm,
 He gravely puts it underneath the arm;
 Making his dead man quite a PARIS beau!
 Hugging his jowl en chapeau bras.

BUT

BUT, Thomas, now to those Cartoons of fame—
Do ask thy Sov'reign, in my name,

What's to be done with those rare pictures next;
Some months ago, by night, they travell'd down
To the Queen's House in Windfor town,

At which the London folks were vastly vex'd.

For if those fine Cartoons, as hist'ry says,
Were (much to this great nation's praise)

Bought for BRITANNIA's sole inspection;
Unask'd, to suffer any man to feel 'em,
Or suffer any forward dame to steal 'em,

Would be a national reflection.

TOM, ask, to STRELITZ if they're doom'd to go,
Because the walls are naked there, I know.

Strelitz a mouse-hole is, all dark and drear;
And, should the pictures be inclin'd to stray,
Not liking Strelitz, they may lose their way,
And ramble to some Hebrew auctioneer;

Where, like poor captur'd negroes in a knot,
The holy wand'ers may be made a lot—
And, like the goods at Garraway's we handle,
Christ and the Saints be sold by inch of candle!

Dearly beloved THOMAS, to conclude—

(I see thee ready to bawl out “Amen:”)

Joking apart, don’t think me rude

For wishing to instruct thy lyric pen.

Whether like trout and eels in humble pride,

Along the simple stream of prose we glide;

Or stirring from below a cloud of mud,

Like whales we flounder through the lyric flood;

Or (if a past’ral image charm thee more)

Whether the vales of prose our feet explore,

Or, rais’d sublime on ODE’s aërial steep,

We bound from rock to rock, like goats and sheep;

Whether we dine with Dukes on fifty dishes,

Or, poet-like, against our wishes,

On beef or pork, an economic crumb,

(Perchance not bigger than our thumb,

Turn’d by a bit of packthread at the fire)

To satisfy our hunger’s keen desire;

A good old proverb let us keep in view—

Viz. Thomas, “Give the Dev’l his due.”

Whether

Whether a Monarch, issuing high command,
 Smiles us to court, and shakes us by the hand;
 Or rude bumbailiffs touch us on the shoulder,
 And bid our tuneful harps in prison moulder;
 Sell not (to meanness sunk) one golden line—
 The MUSE's incense for a gill of wine.

This were a poor excuse of thine, my friend—
 “ Few are the people that my Ode attend :
 “ I'm like a country clock, poor, lonely thing,
 “ That on the staircase, or behind the door,
 “ Cries, ‘ Cuckoo, Cuckoo,’ just at twelve and four,
 “ And chimes that vulgar tune, “ God save the King.”

Oh! if deserting WINDSOR's lofty tow'rs,
 To save a sixpence in his barrack bow'rs,
 A MONARCH shuffles from the world away,
 And gives to FOLLY's whims the bustling day;
 From such low themes thy promis'd praise recall,
 And sing more wonders of the old MUD WALL.

VIRGIL.

Rank is a farce—if people fools will be,

A scavenger and king's the fame to me.

La Société Royale de Londres fut formée en 1660, six ans avant notre Académie des Sciences. Elle n'a point de récompenses comme la nôtre; mais aussi elle est libre. Point de ces distinctions désagréables, inventées par l'ABBE' BIGNON, qui distribua l'Académie des Sciences en Savans qu'on payoit, & en Honoraires qui n'étoient pas Savans. La Société de Londres indépendante, & n'étant encouragée que par elle-même, a été composée de sujets qui ont trouvé le calcul de l'Infini, les lois de la lumière, celles de pesanteur, l'aberration des étoiles, le télescope de réflexion, la pompe à feu, le microscope solaire, & beaucoup d'autres inventions aussi utiles qu'admirables. Qu'auroient fait de plus ces GRANDS HOMMES, s'ils avoient été pensonnaires ou honoraires?

VOLTAIRE, sur la Société Royale.

THE ARGUMENT.

A SUBLIME and poetical Exordium, in which the Bard applaudeth himself, condemneth his Sovereign, and condescendeth to instruct Sir JOSEPH BANKS, F. R. S.—Anecdote of JULIUS CÆSAR and a Conjuror—PETER dwelleth with much solemnity on the gloomy month of November, and compareth Sir JOSEPH BANKS to JUPITER and Mr. SQUIB—Asketh shrewd questions—Sir JOSEPH comprehendeth their sage meaning, and flieth into a passion, and boasteth how he revengeth himself on the fun the world enjoyeth at his expence—Sir JOSEPH animadverteth wisely on a fall from the presidency to the state of a simple fellow, obliquely and nobly hinting at a few traits of his own character—PETER replieth with good advice, exhibiting at the same time acute knowledge of the sexual system in botanical affairs—Sir JOSEPH refuseth PETER's counsel—PETER mentioneth men of science, whom Sir JOSEPH scorneth—Sir JOSEPH letteth the cat out of the bag, and sheweth principles inimical to the cause of true philosophy, by wishing to make great men Fellows, instead of wise men—PETER moraliseth with profundity, and flappeth the bugs of Fortune for daring, on account of their Mammon, to place themselves on a level with Genius—Sir JOSEPH maketh more discovery of his disposition, by abusing painting, poetry, and music, and wisheth to tread in the steps of his Sovereign—PETER illustrateth the President's mode of catching at an argument, by a beautiful spider simile—Sir JOSEPH boasteth of his tea and toast weapons—PETER animadverteth with his usual wisdom on the miraculous powers of meat, when applied to a hungry stomach—Sir JOSEPH findeth out a new road to the heart—Boasteth of royal favour—PETER smileth at it, and frighteneth Sir JOSEPH—Sir JOSEPH enquireth the World's opinion of himself—PETER giveth it without ceremony—Sir JOSEPH curseth—PETER prayeth him to be quiet, proceedeth, and telleth terrible things—things—Sir JOSEPH fweareth—Praiseth himself again for his being able to lead great folks by the nose, and braggeth of royal whifpers—PETER gueffeth at the royal whifpers, and expreffeth pleasure thereat—Again boasteth the President of what he can do—PETER solemnly smileth in a superb simile taken from wild beasts—Sir JOSEPH vaunteth on his great acquaintance with vegetables and monkeys—PETER acquiefceth in his monkey wisdom, but denieth its importance, and turneth butterfly and egg knowledges over to idle old maids—PETER acknowledgeth the merits of Indian, booby, and noddly killing; lizard, bat, scurvygrafs, and lady-smock hunting; yet differeth with Sir JOSEPH as to the idea of its importance—The President again boasteth—PETER solemnly replieth, and telleth strange matters of Sir WILLIAM HAMILTON—Sir JOSEPH breaketh out violently, and with an air of defiance, on the subject of Mr. HERSCHEL—PETER acquiefceth, in some measure, on the merits of Mr. HERSCHEL, and prophesieth more discoveries by this astronomer than struck the imagination of Sir JOSEPH—PETER prophesieth of the future grandeur of CHELTENHAM, by means of mills to supply the great flux of people with paper—PETER giveth more glory to Mr. HERSCHEL's glafs, than to Mr. HERSCHEL's bead—Sir JOSEPH groweth abusive—PETER properly replieth—Sir JOSEPH again triumpheth—PETER cutteth him down for his laud on his Grace of MARLBOROUGH's spy-glafs discoveries, and JOHN HUNTER's fows and pheafants—Sir JOSEPH plumeth himself on Dr. BLAGDEN—PETER praiseth Dr. BLAGDEN—Sir JOSEPH praiseth Sir BENJAMIN THOMPSON, Lord MULGRAVE, and the unassuming quaker, Dr. LETTSOME; moreover praiseth the Doctor's hobby-horse, mangel worfal, alias wurfel—Sir JOSEPH enquireth the merits of Mr. AUBERT, the silkman—PETER smileth, and answereth wittily—Sir JOSEPH enquireth about Mr. DAINES BARRINGTON—PETER answereth in like manner—Sir JOSEPH's ire boileth over—PETER laugheth—PETER cometh to the point, and telleth the President in plain terms that he must depend on the many, more than one, meaning our most gracious King—Sir JOSEPH exclaimeth with his usual vulgarity, and taxeth the revolting members with ingratitude, and flieth to meat and drink for his future supporters—PETER praiseth meat and drink, yet insisteth on the truth of an intended rebellion—Sir JOSEPH, in a strain of despondency, looketh to the Lord for support—PETER giveth him no hopes from that quarter—Sir JOSEPH, in a tiger-like manner, breaketh out into rage and boasting—PETER acknowledgeth his merits, but informeth the President of their insufficiency—Sir JOSEPH voweth to play the devil—PETER exalteth Sir JOSEPH's intended manœuvre, by a comparison of a miracle frequently worked in Popish countries on rats and grasshoppers—PETER still harpeth on the old string of something more—Sir JOSEPH adduceth more instances of merit, such as eating matters that would make a Hottentot vomit—PETER acknowledgeth Sir JOSEPH's uncommon stomach-powers and triumph over reptiles; but with obstinacy insisteth upon it that something more must be achieved—The President, upon this, most wickedly, yet most heroically, declareth, that he will then swallow an alligator—PETER dissuadeth Sir JOSEPH, like a friend, from his bold intention, and recommendeth a meal of a milder quality.

the

PETER'S

PETER'S PROPHECY;

OR,

THE PRESIDENT AND POET.

---

THE BARD who, fill'd with Friendship's purest fire,
Tun'd to a MIGHTY KING the moral lyre;
With all the magic of the Muse's art,
Smil'd at his foibles, and enlarg'd* his heart,
Ungrateful Prince! like most of modern times,
Who never thank'd the Poet for his rhymes:
The BARD, with Wisdom's voice sublimely strong,
Who scar'd the maids of honour with his song,
Turn'd courtiers pale, and turn'd to silent wonder
Ambassadors, at TRUTH's deep tone of thunder;
Who in their country (such a timid thing!)
Was never known to whisper to a king:

The

* Verily the LYRIC BARD hath cause of triumph—by means of a few hints, the close fist of Royal Economy hath been a little unclenched. By God's grace, and the Poet's good health, greater things are likely to be accomplished; such is the power of song!

The BARD who dar'd undaunted thus to tow'r,
 And boldly oracles to princes pour,
 Stoops from the zenith of his eagle flight
 To give instruction to a simple Knight.

To CÆSAR, who th' advice with scorn repaid,
 "Beware the Ides of March," a conj'ror said.
 More rev'renc'd let a greater conj'ror say,
 "Beware, Sir JOSEPH BANKS, St. Andrew's Day."
 Near is the gloomy month, and gloomy hour,
 When, of your plumage stripp'd, and fav'rite pow'r,
 You quit that mace and pompous chair of state,
 And cease Lord Paramount of Moth debate,
 That awe-inspiring hammer'd fist to rear,
 Like scepter'd JOVE, and SQUIB the AUCTIONEER!

S I R J O S E P H.

Well! what's November's* gloomy month or hour?
 The day which ravages, restores my pow'r.

P E T E R.

Perchance AMBITION may be doom'd to mourn!
 Perchance your honours may no more return!

Think

* On the thirtieth of November the President is annually chosen.

Think what a host of enemies you make!
 What feeling mind would be a BULL at stake?
 Pinch'd by this mongrel, by that mastiff torn;
Who'd make a feast to treat the public scorn?
 Who'd be a BEAR that grasps his club with pride,
 With which his dancing-master drubs his hide?
 None, dear Sir JOSEPH, but the arrant'ft fool
 Turns butt to feel the shafts of ridicule.

S I R J O S E P H.

Your meaning, friend, I easily divine!

P E T E R.

Yes, quit for life the chair—resign, resign.

S I R J O S E P H.

No! with contempt the grinning world I see,
 And always laugh at those who laugh at me.

P E T E R.

Dear Sir Joseph, may I never thrive
 But you must be the merriest man alive.

S I R

SIR JOSEPH.

Good!—but, my friend, 'twould be a black November,
 To lose the chair, and sneak a vulgar member;
 Sit on a bench mumchance without my hat*,
 Sunk from a lion to a tame Tom cat:
 Just like a schoolboy trembling o'er his book,
 Afraid to move, or speak, or think, or look,
 When Mister PRESIDENT, with mastiff air,
 Vouchsafes to grumble "Silence" from the chair.

PETER.

All this is mortifying to be sure,
 And more than flesh and blood can well endure!
 Then to your turnip-fields in peace retire:
 Return, like CINCINNATUS, country squire:
 Go with your wisdom, and amaze the Boors
 With apple-tree, and shrub, and flow'r amours;
 And tell them all, with wide-mouth'd wonder big,
 How gnats † can make a cuckold of a fig.
 Form fly-clubs, shell-clubs, weed-clubs, if you please,
 And proudly reign the PRESIDENT of these:

Go,

* The President always wears his hat.

† See the Natural History of the Fig.

Go, and with periwinkle wisdom charm;
 With loves of lobsters, oysters, crabs, alarm;
 And tell them how, like ours, the females woo'd,
 By kissing, people all the realms of mud:
 Thus, though proud LONDON dares refuse you fame,
 The TOWNS of LINCOLNSHIRE shall raise your name;
 Knock down the bull, the magpie, calf, and king,
 And bid Sir Joseph on their signposts swing.

SIR JOSEPH.

No! since I've fairly mounted FORTUNE's mast,
 Till FATE shall chop my hands off, I'll hold fast.

PETER.

And yet, Sir Joseph, FAME reports, you stole
 To FORTUNE's topmast through the lubberhole*
 Think of the men, whom SCIENCE so reveres!
 HORSLEY, and WILSON, MASKELYNE, MASERES,
 LANDEN, and HORNSBY, ATWOOD, GLENIE, HUT-TON—

SIR JOSEPH.

Blockheads! for whom I do not care a button!
 Foo's,

* A part of the ship well known to new seamen.

Fools, who to mathematics would confine us,
 And bother all our ears with plus and minus.

P E T E R.

No more they search the philosophic mine,
 To bid the journals with their labours shine,
 And yield a glorious splendor to the page,
 Such as when NEWTON, HALLEY grac'd the age!
 Retir'd, those members now behold with sighs
 The dome, like Egypt, swarm with frogs and flies;
 And you, the PHARAOH too without remorse,
 The stubborn parent of the reptile curse;
 See WISDOM yield to FOLLY's rude control;
 JOVE's eagle murder'd by a mousing owl.

S I R J O S E P H.

Poh! poh! my friend, I've star-gazers enough;
 I now look round for diff'rent kind of stuff:
 Besides—untitled members are mere swine;
 I wish for princes on my list to shine:
 I'll have a company of stars and strings;
 I'll have a proud society of kings!
 I'll have no miserable squeal tomtit,
 Whilst FORTUNE offers pheasants to my spit!

For me, the Dev'l may take a nameless fry—
No sprats, no sprats, whilst whales can fill my eye.

P E T E R.

Thus on a stall, amidst a country fair,
Old women show of gingerbread their ware!
King DAVID and Queen BETHSHEBA behold,
Strut from their dough majestic, grac'd with gold!
King SOLOMON so great, in all his glory!
The Queen of SHEBA too, renown'd in story!
The grannies these display with doating eyes;
Delighted see them all the louts surprize;
Whilst no poor bak'd plebeian, great or small,
Dares show his sneaking nose upon the stall!

Sir JOSEPH, do not fancy, that by fate
Great wisdom goes with titles and estate!
I grant that pride and insolence appear
Where purblind FORTUNE thousands gives a year.
Too many of FORTUNE'S insects have I seen,
Proud of some little name, with scornful mien,
High o'er the head of modest GENIUS rise,
Pert, foppish, whiffing, flutt'ring butterflies!
Weak imps! on whom, their planets all so kind,
In pity to their poverty of mind,

Around, her treasure bountifully shed,
 Convinc'd the fools would want a bit of bread.

SIR JOSEPH.

Since truth must out, then know, my biting friend,
 Philosophers my soul with horror rend;
 Whene'er their mouths are open'd, I am mum—
 Plague take 'em, should a President be dumb?
 I loath the arts—the universe may know it:
 I hate a painter, and I hate a poet.
 To these two ears, a bear, MARCHESI growls;
 MARA and BILLINGTON, a brace of owls.
 To circles of pure ignorance conduct me;
 I hate the company that can instruct me;
 I wish to imitate my King so nice,
 Great Prince! who ne'er was known to take advice!
 Who keeps no company (delightful plan!)
 That dares be wiser than himself, good man!

PETER.

In troth, Sir JOSEPH, I have often seen ye
 Look in debate a little like a ninny,
 Struggling to grasp the sense with mouth, hands, eyes,
 And with the philosophic Speaker rise

Just

Just like a spider brush'd by SUSAN's broom,
 That tries to claw its thread, and mount the room;
 Poor sprawling reptile, but with humbled air
 Condemn'd to sneak away behind a chair.

S I R J O S E P H.

Still to the point—a rout let fellows make;
 My pow'r is too well fix'd for suck to shake;
 My sure artill'ry hath o'ercome a host.

P E T E R.

I own the great, past pow'rs of tea and toast!
 Ven'fon's a CÆSAR in the fiercest fray;
 Turtle! an ALEXANDER in its way:
 And then, in quarrels of a lighter nature,
 Mutton's a most successful mediator!
 So much superior is the stomach's smart
 To all the vaunted horrors of the heart;
 E'en LOVE, who often triumphs in his grief,
 Hath ceas'd to feed on sighs, to pant on beef.

S I R J O S E P H.

Yes, yes, my friend, my tea and butter'd rolls
 Have found an easy pass to people's souls:

My well-tim'd dinners (certain folks revere)
 Have left this easy bosom nought to fear.
 The turnpike road to people's hearts, I find,
 Lies through their guts, or I mistake mankind;
 Besides, whilst thus I boast my Sov'reign's smile,
 Let raggamuffins rage, and rogues revile.

P E T E R.

Alas! Sir JOSEPH! grant the KING you please,
 Which ev'ry courtier's eye with envy sees;
 A glorious thing too, no man can deny it;
 Though no man ever got a sixpence by it;
 Yet of our lucky island, certain KINGS,
 Far from all-mighty, are not mighty things:
 And though with many a wren you make him blest,
 And many a tomtit's egg and tomtit's nest;
 And many a monkey stuff'd to make him grin,
 And many a flea and beetle on a pin;
 And promise (to cajole the royal mind)
 To make his butcher, member, and his hind;
 It is not he, with Polyphemus stare,
 And stern command, perpetuates the Chair!
 I know that disaffection taints the throng,
 And know the world is lavish in its tongue.

SIR JOSEPH.

Ah! tell me fairly without more delay,
 What 'tis the blackguard world hath dar'd to say:
 Perhaps a pretty devil I'm pourtray'd;
 The world's free brush deals damnably in shade.

PETER.

Thus, then, "How dares that man his carcase squat,
 " Bold, in the sacred chair where Newton sat;
 " Whose eye could NATURE'S darkeft veil pervade,
 " And, fun-like, view the solitary MAID;
 " Pursue the wand'rer through each secret maze,
 " And on her labours pour à noontide blaze?
 " When to the chair BANKS forc'd his bold ascent,
 " He crawl'd a bug upon the monument."

SIR JOSEPH.

Curse them!—

PETER.

Have patience, dear Sir Joseph, pray!
 I have not mention'd half the people say:—
 Thus then again, "He beats the bears, so rude,
 " With bulldog aspect, and with brains of mud:

" His words, like stones for pavements, make us start;
 " Rude, roughly rumbling, tumbling from the cart;
 " Who for importance all his lungs employs,
 " And thinks that words, like drums, were made for noise;
 " A fellow so unqualified to shine!
 " Who never to the Journals gave a line;
 " But into SWEDEN cast a fox-like look,
 " And caught Goose DRYANDER to write his book,*
 " Such is the mania for the claps of Fame,
 " So fought by many a 'squire and gentle dame,
 " Resembling beggars that on alms grow fat;
 " Who, if too weak themselves to make a brat,
 " Buy children up to melt the trav'ler's eye,
 " And from his pocket call the charity.

" Through him each trifle-hunter that can bring
 " A grub, a weed, a moth, a beetle's wing,
 " Shall to a FELLOW's dignity succeed;
 " Witness Lord CHATHAM and his piss-a-bed!†

“ How

* A most pompous birth in the botanical way is to make its appearance soon; Sir Joseph the reputed father, though Jonas Dryander, the Swede, his secretary, begets it.

† Vulgarly called Dandelion. Something of this kind (a most wonderful species!) was presented by the eldest-born of the great PITT, for which he was created F. R. S.

- " How had he pow'rs to muster up the face
 " To ask a PRESIDENT's important place?
 " How with a matchless infolence to dare
 " Abuse and jostle PRINGLE* from the chair?
 " A moth-hunter, a crab-catcher, a bat
 " That owes its sole subsistence to a gnat!
 " A hunter of the meanest reptile breed,
 " A fool that crosses oceans for a weed!

" Once

* About the year 1779, conductors were ordered to be placed near all our magazines, to secure them from the effects of lightning. A question then arose, which would best succeed, blunt or pointed conductors. Sir John Pringle, with the sensible part of the Society, were of opinion, as, indeed, was Dr. Franklin, that points were preferable—Sir Joseph Banks and his party roared loudly for the blunts.—The dispute ran so high, that his Majesty took a part in it; and being rather partial to blunt conductors, thought to put an end to the matter by giving his own peremptory decision, and announcing to the world the superiority of NOBS. To confirm his great and wise opinion, NOBS were actually fixed on iron rods at the end of Buckingham House. This, however, was not all; on the birth-day, his Majesty desired Sir John to give it to the world as the opinion of the Royal Society, that Dr. Franklin was wrong. The President replied, like a man, that it was not in his power to reverse the order of Nature. The Sovereign could not easily see that, and therefore repeated his commands.—Teazed by the King from time to time to oppose the decided opinion of the rebellious Franklin, and the laws of Nature; and constantly barbed at by Sir Joseph and his moth-hunting phalanx; he resigned the chair, and returned to Scotland.—The honour was instantaneously snapped at, and caught by the present possessor, such as he is!

" Once tow'ring SCIENCE made Crane-court* her home,
 " And heav'n-born WISDOM paroniz'd the dome;
 " With awful aspect at the portal shone,
 " And to her mansion woo'd the wise alone:
 " Now at the door see moon-ey'd FOLLY grin,
 " Inviting birds-nest hunters to come in;
 " Idiots who specks on eggs devoutly ken,
 " And furbish up a folio on a wren."
 You see the world, Sir JOSEPH, scorns to flatter—

SIR JOSEPH.

By G-d! I think it hath not minc'd the matter.
 Yet, by the Pow'r who made me, PETER, know,
 I'm honour'd, star'd at, wherefoe'er I go!
 Soon as a room I enter, lo, all ranks
 Get up to compliment Sir JOSEPH BANKS!—

PETER.

And then fit down again, I do suppose;
And then around the room a whisper goes,
" Lord,

* The rooms of the Royal Society are removed from Crane-court to Somerfet-place.

“ Lord, that's Sir JOSEPH BANKS!—how grand his look!

“ Who fail'd all round the world with Captain Cook!”

S I R J O S E P H.

Zounds! what the devil's fame, if this be not?

P E T E R.

Sir JOSEPH, prithee don't be such a sot—
Those wonderful admirers, man, were dozens
Of fresh-imported, staring country cousins,
To London come, the waxwork to devour,
And see their brother beasts within the Tow'r.
True fame is praise by men of wisdom giv'n,
Whose souls display some workmanship of Heav'n;
Not by the wooden million—Nature's chips,
Whose twilight souls are ever in eclipse;
Puppies! who, though on idiotism's dark brink,
Because they've heads, dare fancy they can think.

S I R J O S E P H.

What though unletter'd,* I can lead the herd,
And laugh at half the members to their beard.

Frequent

* In spite of our objection to Sir Joseph as a President, we must allow his candour in acknowledging himself unlettered, as he really was refused his degree at CAMBRIDGE, though every interest was implored to make him pass muster.

Frequent to Court I go; and, 'midst the ring,
I catch most gracious whispers from the KING—

P E T E R.

And well (I think) I hear each precious speech,
In sentiment sublime, and language rich;
“ What's new, Sir JOSEPH? what, what's new found out?
“ What's the society, what, what about?
“ Any more monsters, lizard, monkey, rat,
“ Egg, weed, mouse, butterfly, pig, what, what, what?
“ Toad, spider, grasshopper, Sir JOSEPH BANKS?
“ Any more thanks, more thanks, more thanks, more thanks?
“ You still eat * raw flesh, beetle, viper, bat,
“ Toad, tadpole, frog, Sir Joseph—what, what, what?”

Such is the language of the first of Kings,
That many a fighting heart with envy stings!
And much I'm pleas'd to fancy that I hear
Such wise and gracious whispers greet your ear:
Yet if the greater part of members growl,
Though owls themselves, and curie you for an owl,

And

* Ambitious of an uncommon path to the temple of FAME, which no man besides himself dared to tread, the KNIGHT often exercised his teeth in such repasts, before a number of wondering spectators.

And bent the great Sir JOSEPH BANKS to humble,
Behold the GIANT PRESIDENT must tumble.

S I R J O S E P H .

Zounds! Sir, the GREAT-ONES to my whistle come:
I have 'em ev'ry one beneath my thumb.
ELECTORS, MARGRAVES, PRINCES, grace my list:
And shall a few poor ragged rogues resist,
Because (a flock of astronomic gulls!)
The cobweb mathematics cloud their sculls?
The GREAT, when beckon'd to, my cause shall aid,
And, happy, think themselves with thanks o'erpaid:
These shall arise, and, with a single frown,
Beat the bold front of OPPOSITION down.

P E T E R .

Thus, by a word, the SHOWMAN at the Tow'r
Exerts on brother savages his pow'r;
Bids NERO, CÆSAR, POMPEY, spread their paws,
And show the horrors of their gaping jaws!

S I R J O S E P H .

By heav'ns! I've merit, say whate'er you please!
Can name the vegetable tribes with ease.
What monkey walks the woods, or climbs a tree,
Whose genealogy's unknown to me?

PETER.

P E T E R.

I grant you, Sir, in monkey knowledge great;
 Yet say, should monkeys give you Newton's feat?
 Such merit scarcely is enough to dub
 A man a member of a country club.

With novel specks on eggs to feast the eye;
 Or gaudy colours of a butterfly;
 Or new-found fibre of some grassy blade,
 Well suits the idle hours of some old maid,
 (Whose sighs each lover's vanish'd sighs deplore)
 To murder time when Cupids kill no more;
 Not men, who, lab'ring with a Titan mind,
 Should scale the skies to benefit mankind.
 I grant you full of anecdote, my friend—
Bons mots, and wond'rous stories without end;
 Yet if a tale can claim, or jest so rare,
Ten thousand gossips might demand the chair.

To shoot at boobies,* noddies, with such luck,
 And pepper a poor Indian like a duck;

To

* "Great and manifold were Sir Joseph's triumphs over these defenceless animals," says Dr. Hawksworth's most miserable account; which might more properly be christened, "The History of Sir Joseph Banks," so much, indeed, is Sir Joseph the hero of the tale.

To hunt for days a lizard or a gnat,
 And run a dozen miles to catch a bat;
 To plunge in marshes, and to scale the rocks,
 Sublime, for scurvygrafs and lady-smocks*,
 Are matters of proud triumph, to be sure,
 And such as FAME'S fair volume should secure:
 Yet, to my mind, it is not such a feat,
 As gives a man a claim to Newton's feat.

SIR JOSEPH.

Yet are there men of genius who support me!
 Proud of my friendship, see Sir William court me!

PETER.

Great in the eating knowledge, all allow;
 Who sent you once the sumen of a fow; †
 Far richer food than pigs that lose their breath,
 Whipp'd, like poor soldiers on parades, to death.

Sir

* See Hawksworth's account of Captain Cook's Voyage.

† Sir W. HAMILTON, who sent Sir Joseph from Italy this precious present. The mode of making it properly is, by tying the teats of a fow, soon after she hath littered; continuing the ligature till the poor creature is nearly exhausted with torture, and then cutting her throat. The effects of the milk diffused through this belly part are so delicious, as to be thought ample atonement for the barbarity.

Sir WILLIAM! hand and glove with NAPLES KING!
 Who made with rare antiques the nation ring;
 Who, when VESUVIUS foam'd with melted matter,
 March'd up and clapp'd his nose into the crater,
 Just with the same sang-froid that JOAN the cook
 Casts on her dumplings in the pot a look.

But more the world reports (I hope untrue),
 That half SIR WILLIAM'S Mugs and Gods are new;
Himself the baker of th' Etrurian ware,
 That made our British antiquarians stare;
 Nay, that he means ere long to cross the main,
 And at his Naples oven sweat again;
 And, by his late successes render'd bolder,
 To bake new mugs, and gods some ages older!

S I R J O S E P H .

God bless us! what to Herschel dare you say,
 The astronomic genius of the day,
 Who soon will find more wonders in the skies,
 And with more Georgium Siduses surprize?

P E T E R .

More Ætnas in the moon—more cinder loads!
 Perhaps mail-coaches on her turnpike roads,

By

By some great LUNAR PALMER taught to fly,
 To gain the gracious glances of the eye
 Of some penurious man of high degree,
 And charm the monarch with a postage free;
 Such as to CHELT'NAM waters urg'd their way,
 Where CLOACINA holds her easy fway;
 Where paper-mills shall load with wealth the town,
 And ev'ry shop shall deal in whitish brown;
 Where for the coach the KING was wont to watch,
 Loaded with fish, fowl, bacon, and dispatch;*
 Eggs and small beer, potatoes, too, a store,
 That cost in CHELT'NAM market twopence more;
 Converting thus a coach of matchless art,
 With two rare geldings, to a sutler's cart.
 But, voluble Sir-Joseph—not so fast—
 The fame of HERSCHEL is a dying blast:
 When on the moon he first began to peep,
 The wond'ring world pronounc'd the gazer, deep;

But,

* Mr. PALMER very generously offered his SOVEREIGN a mail-coach to carry letters and dispatches to and from Cheltenham. The offer was too great to be refused—a splendid carriage was built for the occasion: his most economic Majesty, however, wisely knowing that something more than a few letters might be contained in Mr. Palmer's vehicle, converted it, as the poet hath observed, into a cart, and saved many a sixpence.

But wiser now th' un-wond'ring world, alas!
 Gives all poor HERSCHEL's glory to his glass;
 Convinc'd his boasted astronomic strength
 Lies in his tube's,* not head's enormous length.

SIR JOSEPH.

What, niggard! not on Herschel fame bestow,
 So curious a discov'rer?—

PETER.

No! man, no!

Give it to MUDGE,† whose head contains more vers
 Than (trust me) ever lodg'd in HERSCHEL's house.

SIR JOSEPH.

Lo, at my call the noble MARLB'ROUGH's vote,
 Whose observations much our fame promote.

PETER.

* We would not detract from Mr. HERSCHEL's real merit.—
 By a true German cart-house labour, he made a little improvement on Dr. MUDGE's method of constructing mirrors; such are this gentleman's pretensions to a niche in the temple of FAME.—
 As for his mathematical abilities, they can scarcely be called the shadows of Science.

† John Hunter actually received the Society's gold medal for three papers, viz. on sow-gelding ; on the wolf, jackall, and dog ; proving incontestably, what the world knew before, that the aforesaid animals were bonâ fide of the same species : also on the loves of whales.

‡ See article 30, 1780, in the Philosophical Transactions, where Mr. John Hunter gives a wonderful account of a pheasant with three legs, that by age changed from a female to a male.

That age hath made JOHN HUNTER an OLD WOMAN?

Believe me, full as well might Papiſts bring

 Lose their sad stains, and smile with lily faces.
 Lo! to improve of man the soaring mind,
 For sacred science, to his skin unkind,
 Did Doctor Blagden in an oven* bake,
 Brown as burnt coffee or a barley cake,
 Whilst, down his nose projecting, sweat in rills
 Unfav'ry flow'd like hartshorn streams from stills.

Beets! that must bring the Quaker wealth and fame,
And give his cheek the virgin glow of flame;

Left by your earth'y friends, I fear your pray'rs,
 Most pious PRESIDENT, won't mend affairs :
 The Pow'r you mention, with all-seeing eyes,
 Well knows your little rev'rence for his skies.*

Thus

* The Poet here most facetiously and beautifully alludes to the secession of the astronomical geniuses from the Society.

Thus may your pray'rs be vain, however hearty;
 Besides, HEAV'N oft'nest joins the strongest party.

S I R J O S E P H.

'Sblood! have I practis'd ev'ry art in vain?
 Undaunted fac'd the dangers of the main?—

P E T E R.

And fac'd QUEEN OBOREA in the boat,
And lost your shoes and stockings, and your coat:
 A circumstance that much the tale enriches,
 But providentially preserv'd your breeches!
 For unknown weeds, dar'd unknown paths explore,
 And frighten'd cannibals from shore to shore;
 On each new island clapp'd King George's seal,
 A sharp impresson too of hardest steel;
 Whilst witness Pistol and his brother Gun
 Look'd with a pointed approbation on.
 A decent method of appropriation,
 And adding glory to the British nation!
 True, you have try'd to be as great as HE,
 The vent'rous TROJAN, sport of wind and sea,
 Who left old Troy, his parish, far from home,
 To find a lodging for imperial Rome:—

Yet are those feats what vulgars term a bore ;
 Stale stuff—the Members look for something more.
 I grant, you naked with your servants pranc'd,
 To show how folks at Otaheité danc'd :
 And much the smiling audience you amus'd,
 Though DECENCY, indeed, the dance abus'd :
 SHE, blushing damsel, turn'd her head aside,
 And wish'd a whip to ev'ry hopping hide.
 Grant that you sent, to charm the public eye,
 Egyptian stones,* that form'd for hogs a tye ;
 With seeming hieroglyphics on their faces,
 That prov'd unfortunately pigs'-feet traces :
 Yet lo ! like bullocks in a fair, they roar,
 Or vacate bid you, or do something more.

S I R J O S E P H .

'Sdeath, then, I'll spit in ev'ry blockhead's face ;
 Kick them, and purge the dwelling from disgrace.

PETER.

* Sir Joseph sent some curious Egyptian stones to the British Museum ; such was his zeal for the honour of Hieroglyphics : but, as that building possesses already as much of the antique as it can well authenticate, they were returned in a cart upon his hands.

P E T E R.

Thus when a host of grasshoppers and rats,
 By men undaunted, unabash'd by cats,
 In hopping and in running legions pours,
 Affrights the Papists, and their grafs devours ;
 Lo, arm'd with pray'rs to thunder in their ears,
 A BISHOP boldly meets the buccaneers ;
 Sprinkles his holy water on the fod,
 And drives, and damns them in the name of God !*

You purge the tainted dwelling from disgrace,
 By boldly spitting in each Member's face !
 Where, sweet Sir Joseph, will you find the spittle,
 Since what would float the ALBION † were too little ?

With solemn, sentimental step, so slow,
 I see you through the streets of London go,

With

* This is actually done in Roman Catholic countries by order of the church. In some places two attorneys are employed in the affair of the grasshoppers ; one for the grasshoppers, the other for the people : but it is the fate of the grasshoppers to have the worst of it, as they are always anathematized, and ordered to be excommunicated if they do not quit the place within a certain number of days.

† One of our first-rates,

With poring, stuidious, staring, earth-nail'd eye,
 As heedless of the mob that bufiles by.
 This was a scheme of wisdom, let me say ;
 But lo, this trap for fame hath had its day ;
 And let me tell you, what I've urg'd before,
 The restless Members look for something more.

SIR JOSEPH.

Zounds ! ha'nt I swallow'd raw flesh like a hound ?
 On vilest reptiles rung the changes round ?
 Eat ev'ry filthy insect you can mention ;
 Tarts made of grasshoppers, my own invention ?
 Frogs ; tadpoles by the spoonful, long-tail'd imps ;
 And munch'd cockchafers just like prawns or shrimps ?

P E T E R.

In troth, I've seen you many a reptile eat,
 And heard you call the dirty dish a treat ;
 Oft have I seen you meals on monkeys make ;
 Nay, Hercules surpass—devour your SNAKE ;
 And make as little of a toad or viper,
 As pelicans of mack'rel or a piper ;
 And wriggling round your mouth its little claws,
 Have heard a bat cry “ Murder ! ” in your jaws :
 Yet, hear, Sir Joseph, what I've said before,
 The blinking Members look for something more.

SIR

S I R J O S E P H.

Hell feize the pack!—unconscionable dogs!—
 Snakes, spiders, beetles, chaffers, tadpoles, frogs,
 All swallow'd to display what man can do,
 And must the villains still have somethink new?—
 Tell, then, each pretty PRESIDENT CREATOR,
 G—d d-mn him, that I'll eat an Alligator!

P E T E R.

Sir Joseph, pray don't eat an Alligator—
 Go swallow somewhat of a softer nature;
 Feast on the arts and sciences, and learn
 Sublimity from trifle to discern:
 With shells, and flies, and daisies, cover'd o'er,
 Let pert QUEEN FIDDLEFADDLE rule no more:
 Thus shall PHILOSOPHY her suffrage yield,
 Sir JOSEPH wear his hat,* and hammer wield;
 No more shall WISDOM on the Journals stare,
 Nor NEWTON'S † image blush behind the CHAIR.

* The President has the inestimable and sole privilege of sitting covered at the Royal Society's meetings.—The hammer forms a part of the regalia, to command silence, and rouse the Members from their happy slumbers, whilst their Secretary, Dr. Blagden, proclaims rare news from the moth, bat, butterfly, and spider countries.

† The picture of this great man is immediately behind the chair of the PRESIDENT.

THE ARGUMENT.

A GRAND Exordium, containing news from Jericho—PETER informeth MAJESTY of the great noise on their respective accounts—and talketh of SAMPSON and DALILAH—The London Coffee-houses and the Royal Exchange—PETER explaineth the cause of the great noise, and ejaculateth—talketh of preparations at the Palace for his disgrace and murder—PETER informeth MAJESTY of what MAJESTY hath been informed—complaineth that he hath been pictured a downright devil—beggeth that a proper inquiry may be instituted—PETER pronounceth himself no devil—PETER writeth seft sonnets, to prove that he hath not a hard heart.

PETER talketh of courtiers and court matters—of what the world wickedly sayeth of him—PETER cannot convince the world—mentioneth the despondence of the news-papers, magazines, and reviews—also the famine in poetry—PETER exculpateth MAJESTY—PETER refuseth modestly—hinteth at Royal misfortunes, diamonds, nabobs, and an action of trouper—PETER prophesieth mournfully—giveth the history of NEBUCHADNEZZAR'S grafs diet—PETER affordeth good reasons for refusing a pension—relateth an anecdote of a dead archbishop—formeth a scheme for universal happiness, by discovering SIN and SHAME to be a pair of impostors, and for making mournful Sunday merry—PETER outdoeth old poets in egotism—condemneth Mistress DAMER, the great she-january, for attempting our most sublime SOVEREIGN—PETER, like many authors, exhibiteth prodigious acquaintance with ancient literature, by mentioning the names of JUPITER, PHIDIAS, PRAXITELES, VIRGIL, and AUGUSTUS CÆSAR—PETER puffeth again—PETER produceth a tale about MAJESTY, Mr. ROBINSON, ALDERMAN SKINNER, and choaked sheep—also a tale of MAJESTY and Parson YOUNG, whose neck was unfortunately unhinged at a hunt.

PETER still hankereth after pensions—declaimeth on the powers of poetry, as also on his own miraculous powers—PETER professeth independency, and great capability of making a hearty mutton-bone dinner like Andrew Marvel—PETER distrusteth his fortitude—quoteth Opposition men for pitiful desertion of principle, and descanteth on money—PETER telleth an apposite tale of Lady Huntington's Parson, a dog, and a 'squire.

PETER quoteth the wind and Mr. EDEN—exhibiteth more symptoms of pension-love—concludeth in a foam against knighthood.

PETER'S PENSION.

DREAD SIR, the rams horns that blew down
The walls of JERICHO's old town,
    Made a most monstrous uproar, all agree :
But lo ! a louder noise around us rages,
About two most important personages ;
    No less, my Royal LIEGE, than You and Me !

In short, not greater the PHILISTINES made
When DALILAH, a little artful jade,
    (Indeed a very pretty girl)
Snipp'd off her lover Mr. SAMPSON's curl,
Who well repaid the clamours of the bears,
By pulling down the house about their ears.

Prodigious is the shake around !
Still LONDON keeps (thank God) her ground ;
Yet, how th' EXCHANGE and COFFEE-HOUSES ring !
Nothing is heard but PETER and the KING :
The handsome bar-maids stare, as mute as fishes ;
And fallow waiters, frighten'd, drop their dishes !

At first 'twas thought the triumph of the Jews

On some great vict'ry in the boxing way :
 The news, the very anti-christian news,
 Of ISRAEL'S HERO* having won the day ;
 And HUMPHRIES, a true Christian boxer, beat :
 Enough to give all CHRISTENDOM a sweat.

Again, 'twas thought great news of the Grand Turk,
 Who on his hands hath got some ferious work :

'Twas fancied he had lost the day ;
 That ev'ry Mussulman was kill'd in battle,
 A fate most proper for such heathen cattle,
 Who do not pray to God our way.

But lo ! unto the lofty skies,

Of found this wonderful ascension,
 Doth verily, my Liege, from this arise ;
 That you have giv'n the gentle Bard a pension !

Great is the shout indeed, Sir, all abroad,

That you have order'd me this handsome thing ;
 On which, with lifted eyes, I've said, " Good God !
 " Though great my merits, yet how great the King !"

And yet, believe me, Sir, I lately heard,
 That all your doors were doubly lock'd and barr'd

Against * Mendoza.

Against the POET, for his tuneful art ;
 And that the tall, stiff, stately red machines,
 Your grenadiers, the guards of Kings and Queens,
 Were order'd all to stab me to the heart :

That, if to House of BUCKINGHAM I came,
 Commands so dread were giv'n to Mistress BRIGG,
 A comely, squabby, stout, two-handed dame,
 To box the POET's ears, and pull his wig ;
 The cooks to spit him—curry him, the grooms ;
 And kitchen queens to baste him with their brooms.

You're told that in my ways I'm very evil !

So ugly ! fit to travel for a show ;
 And that I look all grimly where I go !
 Just like a devil !

With horns, and tail, and hoofs, that make folks start ;
 And in my breast a millstone for a heart !

This cometh from a certain painter, SIRE :

Bid story-moufing NICOLAY inquire ;

Your Page, your Mercury, with cunning eyes ;
 Who, jumping at each sound, so eager opes
 His pretty wither'd pair of Chinese chops,

Like a Dutch dog that leaps at butterflies.
 He, SIRE, will look me o'er, and will not fail
 To swear that I've no horns, nor hoofs, nor tail.

Lord! Lord! these sayings grieve me and surprize!
Dread Sir, don't see with other people's eyes—

No dev'l am I, with horns, and tail, and hoofs:
As for the likeness of my heart to stone;

No, Sir, 'tis full as tender as your own:

Accept, my Liege, some simple love-sick proofs.

FOR CYNTHIA.

AH! tell me no more, my dear girl, with a sigh,
That a coldness will creep o'er my heart;
That a fullen indiff'rence will dwell on my eye,
When thy beauty begins to depart.

Shall thy graces, O CYNTHIA, that gladden my day,
And brighten the gloom of the night,
Till life be extinguish'd, from memory stray,
Which it ought to review with delight?

Upbraiding, shall GRATITUDE say with a tear,
“ That no longer I think of those charms
“ Which gave to my bosom such rapture sincere,
“ And faded at length in my arms?”

Why

Why yes! it may happen, thou Damfel divine:
 To be honest—I freely declare,
 That e'en now to thy converse so much I incline,
 I already forget thou art fair.

TO LAURA.

HOW happy was my morn of love,
 When first thy beauty won my heart!
 How guiltless of a wish to rove!
 I deem'd it more than death to part!

Whene'er from thee I chanc'd to stray,
 How fancy dwelt upon thy mien,
 That spread with flow'rs my distant way,
 And show'r'd delight on every scene!

BUT FORTUNE, envious of my joys,
 Hath robb'd a lover of thy charms;
 From me thy sweetest smile decoys,
 And gives thee to another's arms.

Yet, though my tears are doom'd to flow,
 May tears be never LAURA's lot!
 Let LOVE protect thy heart from woe;
 His wound to mine shall be forgot.

HYMN TO MODESTY.

O! MODESTY, thou shy and blushing maid,
 Don't of a simple shepherd be afraid :
 Wert thou my lamb, with sweetest grafs I'd treat thee ;
 I am no wolf so savage that would eat thee :
     Then haste with me, O nymph, to dwell,
     And give a goddess to my cell.

Thy fragrant breast, like Alpine snows so white,
     Where all the nestling Loves delight to lie ;
 Thine eyes so soft, that shed the milder light
     Of NIGHT's pale wand'rer o'er her cloudless sky,
 O nymph, my panting, wishing bosom warm,
 And beam around me, what a world of charm !
     Then haste with me, O nymph, to dwell,
     And give a goddess to my cell.

Thy flaxen ringlets, that luxuriant spread,
 And hide thy bosom with an envious shade ;
 Thy polish'd cheek so dimpled, where the rose
 In all the bloom of ripening summer blows ;
 Thy luscious lips that heav'nly dreams inspire,
 By beauty form'd, and loaded with desire ;

With

With sorrow, and with wonder, lo! I see
 (What melting treasures!) thrown away on thee.
 Then haste with me, O nymph, to dwell,
 And give a goddess to my cell.

Thou knowest not that bosom's fair design;
 And as for those two pouting lips divine,
 Thou think'st them form'd alone for simple chat—
 To bill so happy with thy fav'rite dove,
 And playful force, with sweetly fondling love,
 Their kisses on a lapdog or a cat.
 Then haste with me, meek maid, to dwell,
 And give a goddess to my cell.

Such thoughts thy sweet simplicity produces!
 But I can point out far sublimer uses;
 Uses the very best of men esteem—
 Of which thine innocence did never dream:
 Then haste with me, meek maid, to dwell,
 And give a goddess to my cell.

Oh! fly from IMPUDENCE, the brazen rogue,
 Whose flippant tongue hath got the Irish brogue:
 Whose hands would pluck thee like the fairest flow'r;
 Thy cheeks, eyes, forehead, lips and neck, devour:

Shun, shun that Caliban, and with me dwell:
Then come, and give a goddeſs to my cell.

The world, O ſimple maid, is full of art,
Would turn thee pale, and fill with dread thy heart,
Didſt thou perceive but half the ſnares
The DEV'L for charms like thine prepares!
Then haſte, O nymph, with me to dwell,
And give a goddeſs to my cell.

From morn to eve my kiſs of ſpeechleſs love,
Thy eyes' mild beam and bluſhes ſhall improve;
And lo! from our ſo innocent embrace,
Young MODESTIES ſhall ſpring, a numerous race!
The bluſhing girls in ev'ry thing like thee,
The baſhful boys prodigiouſly like me!
Then haſte with me, O nymph, to dwell,
And give a goddeſs to my cell.

---

IS not this pretty, Sir? can aught be ſweeter?
Inſtead of that vile appellation, Devil,
So blackguard, ſo unfriendly, and uncivil,
Should not I be baptiz'd the gentle PETER?

Great is the buz about the Court,
 As at th' Exchange, where Jews, Turks, Christians
     meet,
 Or Smithfield Fair, where beasts of ev'ry fort,
     Pigs, sheep, men, bullocks, all so friendly greet.

Busy indeed is many a fly court leech!
 Afraid to trust each other with a speech—
 In hems, and hahs, and half-words, hinting;
 Some whisp'ring, lift'ning, tip-toe walking, squinting;
 For lo, so warily each courtier speaks,
 They seem to talk with halters round their necks.

Some praise the King for nobleness of spirit,
 For ever studying how to find out merit;
 Whilst from its box the heart doth sily peep,
     And asks the tongue with marv'ling eyes,
 How it can dare to tell a heap
     Of such unconscionable, bare-fac'd lies?

“ How are the mighty fall'n!” the people cry—
     Meaning ME—

“ Another hog of EPICURUS' sty;
 “ This vile apostate bends to Baal the knee;

“ Lo,

- “ LO, for a little meat and guzzle,
 “ This sneaking cur, too, takes the muzzle.
- “ In lyric scandal soon will be a chafin—
 “ He wrote for bribes, 'tis plain, and now he has 'em.
- “ This mighty war-horse will be soon in hand,
 “ By means of meat, the price of venal notes,
 “ Calm as a hackney coach-horse on his stand,
 “ Toffing about his nose-bag and his oats.
- “ Whatever he hath said, he dares unfay,
 “ In native impudence so rich—
 “ Explain the plainest things away,
 “ And call his Muse a forward b—— ;
 “ Treat fire of friendly promises as smoke,
 “ And laugh at truth and honour as a joke.”
 Such, Sir, is your good people's constant howl,
 As thick as small-birds pestering a poor owl.

In vain I tell the world around,

That I have not a pension found :

This speech of simple truth the mob enrages :

“ PETER, this is an arrant lie—

“ The fact is clear, too clear,” they cry—

“ Thou hast already touch'd a quarter's wages.

“ Varlet,

“ Varlet, it always was thy vile intention ;
 “ Thou hast, thou hast, thou liar ! got a pension.”

Still, to support my innocence, I've said,
 Most sinfully, I own—“ I han't, by G—:”

Yet, had I sworn my eyes out of my head,
 They never had believ'd—How vastly odd !

The morning and the evening papers,
 Struck by the found, are in the vapours,
 And mourn and droop, to think I'm dead.

Stunn'd by the unexpected news,
 The MAGAZINES and sage REVIEWS
 For grief can scarcely lift the head.

“ Nothing but poor, mechanic stuff,” they cry,

“ Shall now be quoted for the public eye ;—

“ Nothing original in song—

“ No novelty of images and thought

“ Before our fair tribunal shall be brought !

“ But trifling transpositions of our tongue :

“ Nought but a solemn pomp of words,

“ Bearing a lifeless thought, shall readers meet :

The picture of a funeral that affords,

“ So solemn marching through the staring street ;

“ Where

" Where flags, and horfe, and foot, a forrow ape,
 " With all the dread difmality of crape,
 " Near the poor corpfè—perhaps a puny brat,
 " Or dry old maid, as meagre as a cat."

No, Sir! you never offer'd me a penfion;
 But then I guefs it is your kind intention:
 Yes, Sir, you mean a fmall douceur to proffer;
 But give me leave, Sir, to decline the offer.

I'm much oblig'd t'ye, Sir, for your good will;
 But Oratorios have half undone ye:
 'Tis whifper'd, too, that thieves have robb'd the till
 Which kept your milk and butter money.

So much with faving wifdom are you taken,
 Drury and Covent-Garden feem forfaken:
 Since coft attendeth thofe theatric borders,
 Content you go to RICHMOND HOUSE with orders.

Form'd to delight all eyes, all hearts engage,
 When lately the fweet PRINCESS* came of age,
 Train-oil inftead of wax was bid illume
 The goodly company and dancing-room!

This

* Princess Royal.

This never had been done, I'm very fure,
Had not you been, dread SIR, extremely poor.

You now want guineas to buy live stock, Sir,
To graze your Windfor hill and Windfor vale;
And farmers will not let their cattle stir,
Until the money's down upon the nail.

I'm told your sheep have dy'd by dogs and bitches,
And that your fowls have suffer'd by the fitchews;
And that your man-traps, guards of goose and duck,
And cocks and hens, have had but so-fo luck:
Scarce fifty rogues, in chase of fowls and eggs,
Have in those loving engines left their legs.

The bulse, Sir, on a visit to the Tow'r,
Howe'er the royal visage may look sour,
Howe'er an object of a deep devotion,
Must cross once more the eastern ocean!

Indeed I hope the di'monds will be off,
Or scandal on us rolls in floods:
Some NABOB may be vile enough
To bring an action for stol'n goods:

An action, to speak lawyer-like, of trover;
 And Heav'n forbid it should come over!

For money matters, I am sure,
 The Abbey music was put off;
 Because the royal purse is poor,
 Plagu'd with a dry consumptive cough:
 Yet in full health again that purse may riot,
 By God's grace, and a skim-milk diet.

Cloſe as a vice behold the nation's fiſt!
 Vain will be mouths made up for Civil Liſt;
 And humble pray'rs, ſo very ſtale,
 Will all be call'd an old wife's tale.

Your faithful Commons to your cravings
 Will not give up the nation's ſavings:
 Your fav'rite miniſter, I'm told, runs reſliſſ,
 And growls at ſuch petitions like a maſtiff.

What if my good friend HASTINGS goes to pot?
 ADAMS and ANSTRUTHER have flung hard ſtones;
 He finds his ſituation rather hot:
 BURKE, FOX, and SHERIDAN, may break his bones.

As surely as we saw and felt the bulse,
 Hastings hath got a very awkward pulse;
 Therefore in jeopardy the culprit stands!
 Like patients whose disorders doctors slight
 Too often, he may bid us all good night;
 And slip, poor man, between our hands.

Then, Sir! oh! then, as long as life endures,
 Nought but remembrance of the bulse is ours;
 And to a stomach that like ours digests,
 Slight is the dinner on remember'd feasts.

I think we cases understand, and ken
 Symptoms, as well as most ingenious men;
 But Lord! how oft the wisest are mistaken!
 Therefore I tremble for his badger'd bacon.

We may be out, with all our skill so clever;
 And what we think an ague, prove jail-fever.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR, Sir, the KING,
 As sacred hist'ries sweetly sing,
 Was on all fours turn'd out to grafs,
 Just like a horse, or mule, or afs:

Heav'ns! what a fall from kingly glory!
 I hope it will not so turn out
 That we shall have (to make a rout)
 A second part of that old story!

This pension was well meant, O glorious King,
 And for the Bard a very pretty thing;
 But let me, Sir, refuse it, I implore—
 I ought not to be rich whilst you are poor:
 No, Sir! I cannot be your humble hack;
 I fear your Majesty would break my back.

I dare refuse you for another reason—
 We differ in religion, Sir, a deal;
 You fancy it a sin ally'd to treason,
 And vastly dangerous to the commonweal,
 For subjects, minuets and jigs to play
 On the Lord's day.

Now, Sir, I'm very fond of fiddling;
 And, in my morals, what the world calls middling:
 I've ask'd of CONSCIENCE, who came strait from Heav'n,
 Whether I stood a chance to be forgiv'n,

If on a Sunday, from all scruples free,
I scrap'd the old Black Joke and Cbère Amie?

“ Poh ! blockhead ” (answer'd CONSCIENCE) know,
“ God never against music made a rule ;
“ On Sundays you may safely take your bow—
“ And play as well the fiddle as the fool.”

A late ARCHBISHOP,* too, O King,
Who knew most secrets of the skies,
Said, Heav'n on Sundays relish'd pipe and string,
Where sounds on sounds unceasing rise ;
And ask'd, as Sunday had its music there,
Why Sunday should not have its music here ?

In consequence of this divine opinion,
That PRINCE of PARSONS in your great dominion
Inform'd his fashionable wife,
That she might have her Sunday routs and cards,
And meet at last with Heav'n's rewards,
When Death should take her precious life.

Thus dropping pious qualms, religious doubts,
His lady did enjoy her Sunday routs !

M 3

Upon

* Cornwallis.

Upon GOOD-FRIDAY, too, that awful day,
Lo! like VAUXHALL, was LAMBETH all so gay!

Now if his present * GRACE, with sharpen'd eyes,
Could squint a little deeper in the skies,
He might be able to inform his DAME
Of two impostors, p'rhaps, call'd SIN and SHAME,
Who many a pleasure from our grasp remove,
Pretending to commissions from above.

Like this, a secret, could his Grace explore,
What a proud day for Us and MISTRESS MOORE!
For lo, two greater foes we cannot name
To this world's joys, than Messieurs SIN and SHAME.

Then might we think no more of praise and prayer,
But leave at will our MAKER in the lurch;
Sleep, racket, lie a bed, or take the air,
And order owls and bats to go to church.

SUNDAY, like other days, would then have life:
Now prim, and starch, and silent, as a Quaker;
And gloomy in her looks, as if the wife
Or widow of an UNDERTAKER.

Happy

* Dr. Moore.

Happy should I have been, my Liege,
 So great a Monarch to oblige :
 And, Sir, between you, and the post,
 And me, you don't know what you've lost.

The loss of me, so great a Bard,
 Is not, O King! to be repair'd.
 My verse, superior to the hardest rock,
 Nor earthquake fears, nor sea, nor fire ;
 Surpassing, therefore, Mistress DAMER's block,
 That boasts some little likeness of you, Sire.
 That block, so pond'rous, must with age decay,
 And all the lines of wisdom wear away :
 I grant the Lady's loyalty and love ;
 Yet, " none but PHIDIAS should attempt a Jove."

The MACEDONIAN HERO grac'd the stone
 Of fam'd PRAXITELES alone ;
 Forbidding others to attempt his nob,
 It was so great and difficult a job.

AUGUSTUS swore an oath so dread,
 He'd cut off any poet's head,
 But VIRGIL's, that should dare his praise rehearse,
 Or mention ev'n his name in verse.

Then, Sir, if I may be a little free,
My art would fuit your merits to a T.

Lord! in my adamantine lays
Your virtues would like bonfires blaze;
So firm your tuneful jeweller would fet 'em,
They'd break the teeth of TIME to eat 'em.

Wrapp'd in the splendor of my golden line,
For ever would your Majesty be fine;
Appear a gentleman of first repute,
And always glitter in a birth-day fuit.

Then to all stories would I give the lie,
That dar'd attack you, and your fame devour;
Making a King a ninepin in our eye,
Who ought like Egypt's pyramids to tow'r;
Such as the following fable, for example;
Of impudence, unprecedented fample!

THE ROYAL SHEEP.

SOME time ago a dozen lambs,
 Two rev'rend patriarchal rams,
 And one good motherly old ewe,
 Died on a sudden down at KEW ;

Where, with the sweetest innocence, alas !
 Those pretty, inoffensive lambs,
 And rev'rend horned patriarchal rams,
 And motherly old ewe, were nibbling grafs :
 All, the fair property of our great King,
 Whose deaths did much the royal bosom wring :
 'Twas said that dogs had tickled them to death ;
 Play'd with their gentle throats, and stopp'd their breath.

Like HOMER's heroes on th' enfanguin'd plain,
 Stalk'd MISTER ROBINSON * around the slain !
 And never was more frighten'd in his life !
 So shock'd was MISTER ROBINSON'S whole face,
 Not stronger horrors could have taken place,
 Had CERBERUS devour'd his wife !

With

* The Hind.

With wild, despairing looks, and sighs,
 And wet and pity-asking eyes,
 He, trembling, to the royal presence ventur'd—
 White as the whitest napkin when he enter'd!
 White as the man who fought King PRIAM's bed,
 And told him that his warlike son was dead.

“ Oh, please your Majesty ”—he, blubb'ring, cry'd—
 And then stopp'd short—

“ What? what? what? what? ” the staring King reply'd; “ Speak, Robinson, speak, speak—what what's the hurt? ”

“ O Sire! ” said Robinson again—

“ Speak, ” said the King, “ put, put me out of pain; ”

“ Don't, don't in this suspense abody keep. ”—

“ O Sire! ” cry'd Robinson, “ the sheep! the sheep! ”

“ What of the sheep, ” reply'd the King, “ pray, pray? — ”

“ Dead! Robinson, dead, dead, or run away? ”

“ Dead! ” answer'd Robinson—“ dead! dead! dead!
 dead! ”

Then, like a drooping lily, hung his head!

“ How, how? ” the MONARCH ask'd, with visage sad—

“ By dogs, ” said Robinson, “ and likely mad! ”

“ No,

" No, no, they can't be mad, they can't be mad—
 " No, no, things ar'n't so bad, things ar'n't so bad,"
     Rejoin'd the King:
 " Off with them quick to market—quick, depart;
 " In with them, in, in with them in a cart.
     " Sell, fell them for as much as they will bring."

Now to Fleet Market, driving like the wind,
 Amidst the murder'd mutton, rode the HIND,
     All in the royal cart so great,
     To try to fell the royal meat.

The news of this rare batch of lambs,
     And ewes and rams,
 Design'd for many a London dinner,
 Reach'd the fair ears of Master Sheriff SKINNER,
 Who, with a hammer, and a conscience clear,
 Gets glory and ten thousand pounds a year;
 And who, if things go tolerably fair,
 Will rise one day proud LONDON'S proud LORD MAYOR.

The Alderman was in his pulpit shining,
     'Midst Gentlemen with nightcaps, hair, and wigs;
 In language most rhetorical defining
     The sterling merit of a lot of pigs:

When

When suddenly the news was brought,
 That in Fleet Market were unwholesome sheep,
 Which made the PREACHER from his pulpit leap,
 As nimble as a taylor, or as thought.

For justice panting, and unaw'd by fears,
 This King, this Emperor of Auctioneers
 Set off—a furious face indeed he put on—
 Like light'ning did he gallop up Cheapside!
 In thunder down through Ludgate did he ride,
 To catch the man who sold this dreadful mutton.

Now to Fleet Market, full of wrath, he came,
 And with the spirit of an ancient Roman,
 Exceeded, I believe, by no man,
 The Alderman, so virtuous, cry'd out "SHAME!"

"D—mme," to ROBINSON said Master SKINNER,
 "Who on such mutton, Sir, can make a dinner?"

"You, if you please,"

Cry'd Mr. ROBINSON, with perfect ease.

"Sir!" quoth the red-hot ALDERMAN again—

"You," quoth the HIND, in just the same cool strain,

"Off,

“ Off, off,” cry’d SKINNER, with your carrion heap;

“ Quick, d—mme, take away your nasty sheep.

“ Whilst I command, not e’en the KING

“ Shall such vile stuff to market bring,

“ And London stalls such garbage put on;

“ So take away your stinking mutton.”

“ You,” reply’d ROBINSON, “ you cry out ‘shame!’

“ You blast the sheep, good Master SKINNER, pray;

“ You give the harmless mutton a bad name!

“ You impudently order it away!

“ Sweet Master ALDERMAN, don’t make this rout:

“ Clap on your spectacles upon your snout;

“ And then your keen, surveying eyes regale

“ With those fame fine large letters on the cart

Which brought this blasted mutton here for sale.”—

POOR SKINNER read, and read it with a start.

Like HAMLET, frighten’d at his father’s ghost,

The Alderman stood staring like a post;

He saw G. R. inscrib’d, in handsome letters,

Which prov’d the sheep belong’d unto his betters.

The Alderman now turn'd to deep reflection;
 And being blest with proper recollection,
 Exclaim'd: "I've made a great mistake—Oh! sad—
 " The sheep are really not so bad.

" Dear Mifter Robinson, I beg your pardon;
 " Your Job-like patience I've born hard on.
 " Whoever says the mutton is not good,
 " Knows nothing, Mifter Robinson, of food;

" I verily believe I could turn glutton,
 " On such neat, wholesome, pretty-looking mutton.
 " Pray, Mifter Robinson, the mutton sell—
 " I hope, Sir, that his Majesty is well."

So saying, Mifter ROBINSON he quitted,
 With cherubimic smiles and placid brows,
 For such embarrassing occasions, fitted—
 Adding just five-and-twenty humble bows.

To work went ROBINSON to sell the sheep;
 But people would not buy, except dog cheap.
 At length the sheep were sold—without the fleece;
 And brought KING GEORGE just half-a-crown a piece.

Now

Now for the other faucy lying story,
 Made, one would think, to tarnish kingly glory.

THE K*** AND PARSON YOUNG.

THE K*** (God blefs him) met old PARSON YOUNG

Walking on Windfor Terrace one fair morning:
 Delightful was the day; the scent was strong;
 A heavenly day for howling and for horning!
 For tearing farmers' hedges down—hallooings—
 Shouts, curses, oaths, and such-like pious doings.

“ YOUNG,” cried the K***, “ d'ye hunt, d'ye hunt to-day ?

“ Yes, yes—what, what? yes, yes, fine day, fine day.”

Low with a rev'rent bow the Priest reply'd,

“ Great KING ! I really have no horfe to ride;

“ Nothing, O Monarch, but my founder'd mare,

“ And she, my Liege, as blind as she can stare.”

"No horse!" rejoin'd the K***, "no horse, no horse!"
 "Indeed," the Parson added, "I have none:
 "Nothing but poor old Dobbin—who of course
 "Is dangerous—being blinder than a stone."
 "Blind, blind, YOUNG? never mind—you must,
     must go,
 "Must hunt, must hunt, YOUNG—Stay behind?—
     no, no."

What pity, that the King, in his discourse,
 Forgot to say, "I'll lend ye, YOUNG, a horse!"

The K*** to YOUNG behaving thus so kind,
 Whate'er the danger, and howe'er inclin'd,
     At home with politesse YOUNG could not stay:
 So up his REV'RENCE got upon the mare,
 Resolv'd the chace with MAJESTY to share,
     Whate'er the dangers of the day.

Rouz'd was the deer! the KING and PARSON YOUNG,
     CASTOR and POLLUX like, rode side by side;
 When lo, a ditch was to be sprung!
     Over leap'd GEORGE THE THIRD with kingly pride;

Over

Over jump'd Tinker, Towzer, Rockwood, Towler ;
 Over jump'd Mendall, Brushwood, Jubal, Fowler,
Trimbusb and Lightning, Music, Ranter, Wonder,
 And fifty others with their mouths of thunder—
     Great names ! whose pedigrees, so fair,
 With those of HOMER'S heroes might compare.

Thus gloriously attended, leap'd the King,
 By all those hounds attended with a spring !
 Not CÆSAR'S self a fiercer look put on,
 When with his host he pass'd the Rubicon !

But wayward FATE the Parson's palfrey humbled,
     And gave the mare a sudden check :
 Unfortunately poor blind Dobbin stumbled,
     And broke his Reverence's neck.

The MONARCH, gaping, with amaze look'd round
 Upon his dead companion on the ground :
 " What, what ? " he cry'd, " YOUNG dead ! YOUNG dead ! YOUNG dead !
 " Humph ! take him up, and put him home to bed."

Thus having finish'd, with a cheerful face
 NIMROD the Second join'd the jovial chace.

A MORAL REFLECTION.

FOOLS would have stopp'd when Parson YOUNG was kill'd,

And giv'n up ev'ry thought of hound and deer;
And, with a weaknefs, call'd Compaffion, fill'd,
Had turn'd Samaritan, and dropp'd a tear.

But better far the Royal Sportsman knew;
He finelt the confequence, beyond a doubt:
Full well he guefs'd he fhould not have a view;
And that he fhould be fhamefully thrown out.

P'rhaps from the royal eye a tear might hop;
Yet Pages fwear they never faw it drop.

But Majefty may fay: "What, what, what's death?
" Nought, nought, nought but a little lofs of breath."

To Parfon YOUNG 'twas more, I'm very clear;
He loft by death fome hundred pounds a year.

A GREAT deal, my dear Liege, depends
On having clever bards for friends:

What

What had ACHILLES been without his HOMER ?
 A taylor, woollen-draper, or a comber !
 Fellows that have been dead a hundred year,
 None, but the Lord, knows how or where.

In Poetry's rich grafs how virtues thrive !
 Some, when put in, fo lean, scarce feem alive ;
 And yet, fo speedily a bulk obtain,
 That ev'n their owners know them not again.

Could you, indeed, have gain'd my Mufe of fire,
 Great would your luck have been, indeed, great SIRE !

Then had I prais'd your noblenefs of fpirit !
 Then had I boasted that myself,
Hight PETER, was the firft blest, tuneful elf,
 You ever gave a farthing to for merit.

Though money be a pretty handy tool ;
 Of Mammon, lo ! I fcorn to be the fool !
 If FORTUNE calls, fhe's welcome to my cot,
 Whether fhe leaves a guinea or a groat ;
 Whether fhe brings me from the butcher's fhop
 The whole fheep, or a fimple chop.

For lo! like ANDREW MARVEL I can dine,
 And deem a mutton-bone extremely fine:
 Then, Sir, how difficult the task, you see,
 To bribe a moderate GENTLEMAN like me.

I will not fwear, point blank, I shall not alter—
 A * Saint, my namesake, once was known to falter.

Nay more—some clever men in Opposition,
 Whose souls did really seem in good condition;
     Who made of PITT such horrible complaint,
 And damn'd him for the worst of knaves;
 Alter'd their minds—became PITT's abject slaves,
     And publish'd their new Patron for a SAINT.

And who is there that may not change his mind?
 Where can you folks of that description find
 Who will not sell their souls for cash,
 That most angelic, diabolic trash!
 E'en grave Divines submit to glitt'ring gold!
 The best of consciences are bought and sold:
 As in a tale I'll show, most edifying,
 And prove to all the world, that I'm not lying.

THE

* The story of Saint Peter and the Cock is universally known.

THE PARSON, THE 'SQUIRE, AND THE SPANIEL.

A TALE.

A GENTLEMAN possess'd a fav'rite spaniel,
So good, he never treated maid nor man ill:
This dog, of whom we cannot too much say,
Got from his godfather the name of Tray.

After ten years of service just,
Tray, like the race of mortals, fought the dust;
That is to say, the spaniel dy'd:
A coffin then was order'd to be made,
The dog was in the churchyard laid,
And o'er his pale remains the master cry'd.

Lamenting much his trusty fur-clad friend,
And willing to commemorate his end,
He rais'd a small blue stone, just after burial,
And weeping, wrote on it this sweet memorial:

T R A Y ' S   E P I T A P H .

HERE rest the relics of a friend below,
 Bleft with more sense than half the folks I know:
 Fond of his ease, and to no parties prone,
 He damn'd no sect, but calmly gnaw'd his bone;
 Perform'd his functions well in ev'ry way.—
 Blush, CHRISTIANS, if you can, and copy Tray,

THE CURATE of the Huntingtonian Band,
 Rare breed of gospel hawks that scour the land,
 And fierce on sins their quarry fall—
 Those locusts, that would eat us all:

Men who, with new-invented patent eyes,
 See Heav'n and all the angels in the skies,
 As plain as, in the box of SHOWMAN SWISS,
 For little Master made, and curious Miss,
 We see with huge delight the King of France
 With all his Lords and Ladies dance—

This Curate heard th' affair with deep emotion,

And thus exclaim'd, with infinite devotion :

“ O Lord ! O Lord ! O Lord ! O Lord !

“ Fine doings these, upon my word !

“ This, truly, is a very pretty thing !

“ What will become of this most shocking world ?

“ How richly such a rogue deserves to swing,

“ And then to Satan's hottest flames be hurl'd !

“ Oh ! by this damned deed how I am hurried !

“ A dog in christian ground be buried !

“ And have an epitaph, forfooth, so civil !

“ Egad ! old maids will presently be found

“ Clapping their dead ram-cats in holy ground,

“ And writing verses on each mousing devil.”

Against such future casualty providing,

The Priest fat off, like Homer's Neptune, striding,

Vowing to put the culprit in the Court :

He found him at the spaniel's humble grave ;

Not praying, neither finging of a stave ;

And thus began t' abuse him—not exhort :

- “ Son of the Dev’l, what hast thou done?
 “ Nought for the action can atone.
   “ I should not wonder if the great All-wise
 “ Quick darted down his lightning all so red,
 “ And dash’d to earth that wretched head,
   “ Which dar’d so foul, so base an act devise.
- “ Bury a dog like Christian folk!
 “ None but the fiend of darkness could provoke
 “ A man to perpetrate a deed so odd:
 “ Our Inquisition soon the tale shall hear,
 “ And quickly your fine fleece shall sheer—
 “ Why, such a villain can’t believe in God!”
- “ Softly! my rev’reud Sir,” the ‘Squire reply’d;
 “ Tray was as good a dog as ever dy’d;
 “ No education could his morals mend:
   “ And what, perhaps, Sir, you may doubt,
   “ Before his lamp of life went out,
 “ He order’d you a legacy, my friend.”
- “ Did he? poor dog!” the soften’d Priest rejoind,
   In accents pitiful and kind;

“ What! was it Tray! I'm sorry for poor Tray:

“ Why truly, dogs of such rare merit,

“ Such real noblenefs of fpirit,

“ Should not like common dogs be put away.

“ Weil! pray what was it that he gave,

“ Poor fellow! ere he fought the grave?

“ I guefs I may put confidence, Sir, in ye.”

“ A piece of gold,” the gentleman reply'd.

“ I'm much oblig'd to Tray,” the Parfon cry'd;

So left God's caufe, and pocketed the guinea.

---

YET, should I imitate the fickle wind,

Or Mifter patriot EDEN—change my mind;

And for the BARD your Majesty should fend,

And fay, “ Weil well, well well, my tuneful friend,

“ I long, I long, to give you fomething, PETER;

“ You make fine verfes—nothing can be sweeter:

“ What will you have? what, what? fpeak out—

fpeak out—

“ Yes, yes, you fomething want, no doubt, no doubt.”

Or

Or should you like some men who gravely preach,
 Forsake your usual short-hand mode of speech,
 And thus begin, in bible-phraze sublime :

“ What shall be done for our rare Son of Rhime,
 “ The BARD who full of wisdom writeth,
 “ The man in whom the KING delighteth?”

Then would the Poet thankfully reply,
 With fault'ring voice, low bow, and marv'ling eye,
 All meekness! such a simple, dove-like thing!
 “ Blest be the Bard who verses can endite,
 “ To yield a second Solomon delight!
 “ Thrice blest, who findeth favour with the King!

“ Since 'tis the Royal Will to give the Bard
 “ In whom the King delighteth, some reward,
 “ Some mark of Royal Bounty to requite him;
 “ O King! do any thing but knight him.”

AND THE

EMPEROR OF MOROCCO.

Non omnia possumus omnes.

One intellect not all things comprehends:

The genius form'd for weeds, and grubs, and flies,

Can't have for ever at his finger ends

What's doing ev'ry moment in the flies.

THE ARGUMENT.

PETER the GREAT fighteth the President's battle—proclaimeth some of the President's powers—viz. his persevering tooth-and-nail powers—his stomach powers—his face powers—his hammer powers, triumphing over the powers of MORPHEUS, and à la his courageous powers.

PETER beginneth the tale—Sir JOSEPH proceedeth to hunt—but first ejaculateth—The Virtuoso's prayer—Sir JOSEPH's insect enthusiasm induceth him, contrary to his general piety, to pray wickedly, by selfishly wishing to gratify his own desires at the expence of the farmers—Sir JOSEPH prayeth for PHARAOH's flies—condemneth PHARAOH's taste—maketh interest for showers of flies, instead of quails—prayeth for monsters, and promiseth them the honour of his name.

Sir JOSEPH, in a pointer-like manner, ambulateth—he espies the EMPEROR of MOROCCO—PETER conjectureth as to Sir JOSEPH's joy on the occasion—compareth Sir JOSEPH's joy with that experienced by ARCHIMIDES, hare-hunters, outrageously-virtuous old maids, the little Duke of Piscally, a pimp, Mother WINDSOR's virgins, and Mother WINDSOR herself—Sir JOSEPH's pursuit—The President tumbleth, in imitation of Mr. EDEN—A beautiful comparison between Sir JOSEPH and TAMERLANE, a butterfly and EAJAZET—Sir JOSEPH again tumbleth—Sir JOSEPH's hat tumbleth with him—Sir JOSEPH rifeth and bloweth—he is gazed at by a countryman—he darteth through a hedge in pursuit of the EMPEROR, and tumbleth into a lane—he getteth up speedily, and putteth a question to HOB—HOB answereth not, but pitieth him—Sir JOSEPH obtaineth a second view of the EMPEROR—pursoeth his Majesty into a garden—oversetteth the gardener—trampeth on rare flowers—breaketh many bells.

bell-glasses—overturneth the scarecrow—PETER praiseth the scarecrow—Sir JOSEPH overfetteth a hive of bees—The bees surpriseth—they attempt a revenge, but succeed not, on account of the hard and tough materials of Sir JOSEPH's headpiece—The gardener, quitting his horizontal position, pursueth Sir JOSEPH—Sir JOSEPH pursueth the EMPEROR, and the EMPEROR flieth away—The gardener collareth Sir JOSEPH, and expostulateth—Sir JOSEPH heedeth not the gardener's complaint, being in deep sorrow for the loss of the EMPEROR—The gardener quitteth his gripe in Sir JOSEPH, and putteth him down for a lunatic—the gardener execrateth Sir JOSEPH's Keeper, and falleth into a panic—flieth off unceremoniously, and leaveth the President in the situation of a celebrated Prophet.

SINCE Members, lost to manners, growl;
Call poor Sir JOSEPH afs, and owl;
Nay, oft with coarser epithets revile;
Though pitying much his pigmy merit,
Let me display a Christian spirit,
And try to lift a lame dog o'er a stile.

Though not, like ERSKINE, in the law a giant,
I must take up the cudgels for my client.

Know by these presents, then, ye noisy crew,
Who at his blushing honours * look so blue,

That

* Blushing honours.—The author undoubtedly means the epithet blushing to be understood as synonymous with blooming, and not in a satirical sense. God forbid that the friend of Sir Joseph should mean otherwise!

That though Sir JOSEPH is not deep-discerning;
 And though, as all the world well knows,
 A nutshell might with perfect ease enclose
 Three quarters of his sense, and all his learning
 Whose modest wisdom, therefore, never aims
 To find the longitude, or burn the Thames;

Yet, as to things he sets himself about,
 With tooth and nail, like Hercules, so stout,

He labours for his wish, no matter what.—
 I can't say that Sir JOSEPH lions kills;
 Hugs giants, or the blood of hydras spills;

But then most manfully he eats a bat,
 Eats toads, or tough, or tender, old, or young,
 As in the sweetest strains the Muse hath sung:*
 Fit with the hugest Hottentot to cope,
 Who dines on raw flesh at the Cape of Hope.

Blest in a phiz, he bids the Members tremble!
 To deathlike silence turns the direst din;
 And where so many savages assemble,
 Like hounds they want a proper Whipper-in.

L

* See Peter's Prophecy.

Dare Members sleep,* a set of snoring Goths,
 Whilst Blagden reads a chapter upon moths?

Down goes the hammer, cloth'd with Jove's own thunder!

Up spring the snorers, half without their wigs;
 Old greybeards grave, and pretty smock-fac'd prigs,
 With ell-wide jaws displaying signs of wonder.

Lo! perseverance is the soul of action!
 And courage, proper to oppose a faction;
 Therefore he fits with wonderful propriety,
 The MONRO of a mad Society:
 And that he is both brave and persevering,
 Witness the following story, well worth hearing.

* Frequently, indeed, are the Members sent to the land of shadows by the Society's fominiferous papers; assisted in a great measure in their voyage by the Doctor's drowsy manner of communicating the contents.

SIR JOSEPH BANKS

AND THE

EMPEROR OF MOROCCO.

---

---

A PRESIDENT, in butterflies profound,
Of whom all Insectmongers sing the praises,
Went on a day to hunt this game renown'd,
On vi'lets, dunghills, nettletops, and daifies!
But first (so pious is Sir Joseph's nature!)
He thus address'd the butterfly's Creator.

THE VIRTUOSO'S PRAYER.

O THOU whose wisdom plann'd the skies,
And form'd the wings of butterflies,
Attend my humble pray'r!
Like Egypt, as in days of yore,
Let earth with flies be cover'd o'er,
And darken'd all the air.

This, Lord, would be the best of news:
Then might thy fervant pick and choote

From such a glorious heap :
 Forth to the world I'd boldly rush,
 Put all Musæums to the blush,
 And hold them all dog cheap.

Pharaoh had not one grain of taste ;
 The flies on bim were thrown to waste,
 Nay, met with strong objection :
 But had thy servant, Lord, been there,
 I should have made, or much I err,
 A wonderful collection !

O Lord ! if not my mem'ry fails,
 Thou once didst rain on people quails :
 Again the world surpris'd ;
 And 'stead of such a trifling bird,
 Rain on thy servant JOSEPH, Lord,
 Show'rs of rare butterflies !

Since monsters are my great delight,
 With monsters charm thy servant's sight,
 Turn feathers into hair :
 Make legs where legs were never seen,
 And eyes, no bigger than a pin,
 As broad as saucers stare.

The reptiles that are born with claws,
 Oh! let thy pow'r supply with paws,
     Adorn'd with human nails;
 In value more to make them rife,
 Transplant from all their heads, their eyes,
     And place them in their tails.

And if thou wisely wouldst contrive
 To make me butterflies alive,
     To fly without a head;
 To skim the hedges and the fields,
 Nay, eat the meat thy bounty yields;
     Such wonders were indeed!

Blagden should puff them at our Meeting;
 Members would press around me, greeting;
     The Journals swell with thanks;
 And more to magnify their fame,
 Those headless flies should have a name—
     My name—SIR JOSEPH BANKS!"

---

THUS having finish'd, forth Sir JOSEPH hies,
 Hope in his heart, and eagles in his eyes !
 Just like a pointer, quart'ring well his ground,
 He nimbly trots the field around !
 At length, to blefs his hunting ambulation,
 Up rose a native of the flutt'ring nation.
 Broad star'd Sir JOSEPH, as if struck by thunder,
 (For much, indeed, are eyes enlarg'd by wonder)
 When from a dab of dung, or some such thing,
 An EMP'ROR OF MOROCCO rear'd his wing !

Not Archimedes, 'tis my firm belief,
 More blest, cry'd " Eureka, I've nabb'd the thief ;"
 Nor hunters, when a hare, to shun foul play,
 Steals from his feat so fly, cry " Stole away ;"
 Nor stale old nymphs, by raging virtue sway'd,
 Roar on a frail-one, " Kill the wicked jade !"
 Than roar'd Sir JOSEPH on the verdant sod,
 " MOROCCO'S EMP'ROR, by the living God !"

Not with more joy, nor rapture-speaking look,
 The little gamesome PICCADILLY DUKE

Eyes a nice TIT, fresh launch'd upon the town;
 Nor with more pleasure Cupid's trusty crimp,
 By mouths of vulgar people christen'd pimp,
 Stares on his honourable fee, a crown;

Nor King's-place nymphs, on greenhorns in their pow'r;
 Who (shameless rascals, wanting not a wife)
 Hire love, like hackney-coaches, by the hour,
 Damning the love so true that lasts for life;
 Nor wither'd WINDSOR on the simple maid,
 From scenes of rural innocence betray'd;
 Forc'd to dispose of NATURE'S sweetest charms;
 Doom'd for a meal to sink a beauteous wreck;
 To lend to man she loathes, her lip, her neck,
 And, weeping, act the wanton in his arms;
 Than did the doughty Hero of my song,
 Survey the Emp'ror as he mov'd along.

Not with more glee a hen-peck'd husband spies
 Death fluttering up his wife's two cat-like eyes,
 Accustom'd on him oft and fierce to roll;
 Just like a galley slave, poor fellow, treated,
 Or those poor Britons at Calcutta sweated,
 Stuff'd in the old Black Hole:

And

And yet, a neater simile to use,
 Not with more true delight a lover views
     The blushing orient leading on the day
 That gives a blooming partner to his arms,
 In virtues rich, and rich in youthful charms,
     To bid the hours with rapture glide away :

Sad anxious swain, who now in bed, now out,
 Toft like the sea, with thundering thoughts, about ;
     Curfing with hearty pray'rs the lingering night ;
 Now trying hard to fleep away the time ;
 Now ftaring on the dark, like bards for rhyme,
     To catch the fmalleft happy glimpfe of light ;
 Afraid that frolic Phœbus means foul play,
 And, bent to fpite him, lie a-bed all day :

And, bonâ fide, not of rapture fuller,
     Thurlow, the Seal and Royal Confcience keeper,
 Sees his prime fav'rite, Mifter Juftice Buller,
     High thron'd in Chancery, grieve the poor Sir
 Than did the Prefident fo keen efpay      [Pepper,
     The butterfly !

Lightly with winnowing wing, amid the land,
     His MOORISH MAJESTY in circles flew !
 With fturdy ftriding legs, and outfretch'd hand,
     The Virtuofò did his prey purfue.

He strikes—he misses—strikes again—he grins,
 And fees in thought the monarch fix'd with pins;
 Sees him on paper giving up the ghost,
 Nail'd like a hawk or martyr to a post.

Oft fell Sir JOSEPH on the slipp'ry plain,
 Like patriot EDEN—fell to rise again;
 The EMP'ROR, smiling, sported on before.

Like Phœbus coursing Daphne was the chace;
 But not so was the meaning of the race;
 Sir JOSEPH ran to kill, not kiss the MOOR;

To hold him pris'ner in a glas for shew,
 Like Tamerlane. (redoubtable his rage)
 Who kept poor Bajazet, his vanquish'd foe,
 Just like an owl or magpye in a cage.

Again to earth Sir JOSEPH fell so flat,
 Flat as the flattest of the flounder race!
 Down with Sir JOSEPH dropp'd his three-cock'd hat,
 Most nobly flashing in his friend's disgrace.
 Again he springs, with hope and ardour pale,
 And blowing like the fish baptiz'd a while;

Darting his arms now here, now there, so wild,
 With all the eager raptures of a child,

Who

Who with broad anxious eye a bauble views,
And, capering legs and hands, the toy pursues.

A Countryman, who, from a lane,
Had mark'd Sir JOSEPH, running, tumbling, sweat-
Stretching his hands and arms, like one insane, [ing,
And with those arms the air around him beating,
To no particular opinion leaning,
Of such manœuvre could not guess the meaning.

At length the President, all foam and muck,
Quite out of breath, and out of luck,
Pursu'd the flying Monarch to the place
Where stood this Countryman, with marv'ling face.

Now through the hedge, exactly like a horse,
Wild plung'd the President with all his force,
His brow in sweat, his soul in perturbation;
Mindless of trees, and bushes, and the brambles,
Head over heels into the lane he scrambles,
Where HOB stood lost in wide-mouth'd speculation!

“ Speak,” roar'd the President, “ this instant—say,
“ Hast seen, hast seen, my lad, this way,

“ The

“ The EMP’ROR OF MOROCCO pass ? ” —
 HOB to the infect-hunter nought reply’d,
 But shook his head, and sympathizing sigh’d,

“ Alas !

“ Poor gentleman, I’m sorry for ye ;

“ And pity much your upper story ! ”

Lo ! down the lane alert the EMP’ROR flew,
 And struck once more Sir JOSEPH’S hawk-like view ;
 And now he mounted o’er a garden wall !
 In rush’d Sir JOSEPH at the garden door,
 Knock’d down the Gard’ner—what could man do more ?—

And left him, as he chose, to rise or sprawl.

O’er peerless hyacinths our hero rush’d ;
 Through tulips and anemonies he push’d,
 Breaking a hundred necks at ev’ry spring :
 On bright carnations, blushing on their banks,
 With desp’rate hoof he trod, and mow’d down ranks,
 Such vast ambition urg’d to seize the King !

Bell glasses, all so thick, were tumbled o’er ;
 And lo ! the cries, so shrill, of many a score,

A sad

A fad and fatal froke proclaim'd ;
 The scarecrow, all so red, was overturn'd ;
 His vanish'd hat, and wig, and head, he mourn'd,
 And much, indeed, the man of straw was maim'd !

Just guardian of the sacred spot,
 With face so fierce, and pointed gun,
 Who threaten'd all the birds with shot ;
 To kill of sparrows ev'ry mother's son :
 Fierce as those scarlet ministers of fate,
 The warlike guardians of St. James's Gate !

Yet, not content with feats like these,
 He tumbled o'er a hive of bees ;
 Out rush'd the host, and wonder'd from their souls,
 What dev'l dar'd dash their house about their polls.

Like the grand LOUIS,* whose fierce heart was such,
 As made him like a football kick the Dutch !

But soon the small, heroic, injur'd nation
 Descry'd the author of their obligation ;
 And, to repay it, round him rush'd the swarm :
 Prodigious was the buz about his ears !
 With all their venom did they push their spears ;
 But lo ! they work'd him not one grain of harm !

Yet

* Louis XIV.

Yet did no god nor godling intervene,
 By way of screen!

The happy head their pointed spears defy'd,
 Strong, like old Homer's shields, in tough bull hide,
 And brags well temper'd, to support the shock!
 The bees their disappointed vengeance mourn'd,
 And from their fierce attack, fatigu'd, return'd,
 Believing they had storm'd a barber's block.

What was thought death and tortures by the clan,
 Was only tickling the great man!
 Thus round big Ajax rag'd the Trojan host,
 Who might as well, indeed, have drubb'd a post.

The Gard'ner now for just revenge up sprung,
 O'erwhelm'd with wonderment and dung,
 And fiercely in his turn purfu'd the Knight!
 From bed to bed, full tilt the champions rac'd,
 This chas'd the KNIGHT, the KNIGHT the EMP'ROUR
 chas'd,

Who scal'd the walls, alas! and vanish'd out of fight;
 To find the Empress, p'rhaps, and tell her GRACE
 The merry hist'ry of the chase.

At length the Gard'ner, swell'd with rage and dolour,
 O'ertaking, grasps Sir JOSEPH by the collar,

And

And blest with fav'rite oaths, abundance flow'rs :
 " Villain," he cry'd, " beyond example !
 " Just like a cart-horse on my beds to trample !
 " More than your foul is worth, to kill my flow'rs !
 " See how your two vile hoofs have made a wreck—
 " Look, rascal, at each beauty's broken neck !"

Mindless of humbled flow'rs, so freely kill'd,
 Although superior to his foul declar'd,
 And vegetable blood profusely spill'd,
 Superior, too, to all reward ;
 Mindless of all the Gard'ner's plaintive strains,
 The EMP'ROUR'S form monopoliz'd his brains.

At length he spoke, in sad despairing tones,
 " Gone ! by the God that made me !—Damn his bones !
 " O Lord ! no disappointment mine surpasses !
 " Poh ! what are paltry flowers and broken glasses,
 " A tumbled scarecrow, bees, the idle whim ?—
 " Zounds ! what a set of miscreants to him !
 " Gone is my soul's desire, for ever gone !"
 " Who's gone ?" the Gard'ner strait reply'd :
 " The EMP'ROUR, Sir," with tears, Sir JOSEPH cry'd ;
 " The EMP'ROUR OF MOROCCO—thought my own !
 " To

“ To unknown fields behold the Monarch fly!
 “ Zounds! not to catch him, what an afs was I!”

His eyes the Gard’ner, full of horror, stretch’d,
 And then a groan, a monstrous groan he fetch’d,
     Contemplating around his ruin’d wares;
 And now he let Sir JOSEPH’S collar go;
 And now he bray’d aloud with bitterest woe,
     “ Mad, madder than the maddest of March hares!

“ A p-x confound the fellow’s Bedlam rigs!
 “ Oh! he hath done the work of fifty pigs!
 “ The devil take his keeper, a damn’d goose,
 “ For letting his wild beast get loose!”

But now the Gard’ner, terrified, began
 To think himself too near a man
     In so PEG-NICHOLSON a situation;
 And, happy from a madman to escape,
 He left him without bow, or nod, or scrapé,
     Like JEREMIAH ’midst his Lamentation.

Such is the tale—if readers sigh for more,
 Sir JOSEPH’S wallet holdeth many a score.

POETICAL EPISTLE
TO A FALLING MINISTER.

---

---

BLIND to an artful Boy's insidious wiles,
Why rests the Genius of the QUEEN OF ISLES?
Whilst LIBERTY in irons sounds th' alarm,
Why hangs suspense on VIRTUE's coward arm?
Whilst TYRANNY prepares her jails and thongs,
Why sleeps the Sword of JUSTICE o'er our wrongs?
Oh! meanly founding on a Father's fame,
To Britain's highest feat a daring claim;
Oh! if thy race one blush could ever boast,
And that lorn sign of Virtue be not lost;
Now on thy visage let the stranger burn,
And glow for deeds that bid an empire mourn.

Drawn from a garret by the ROYAL SIRE,
Warm'd like the viper by his friendly fire,

What hath thy gratitude sublimely done?
 Fix'd, like the snake, thy fang upon the Son!

Yes—thou most grateful youth, thy hostile art
 Hath lodg'd a pois'nous shaft in BRITAIN'S heart!
 Thy arm hath dragg'd the column to the ground,
 The sacred wonder of the realms around!
 To make snug, comfortable habitations
 For thee and all thy pitiful relations.
 Barbarian-like—how like those sons of spoil,
 Whose impious hands on hallow'd structures toil—
 Base throng, that through PALMYRA'S Temple digs,
 To form a lodging for themselves and pigs!

Oh! if Ambition prompts thy foaring soul
 To live the theme of future times with ROLLE;
 Thrice happy Youth, like his shall shine thy name,
 Who gave th' Ephesian wonder to the flame!

Sick at the name of R——, (to thee though dear)
 The name abhorr'd by HONOUR'S shrinking ear,
 I draw reluctant from thy venal throng,
 And give it mention, though it blasts my song.

How couldst thou bid that ROLLE, despis'd by all,
 On helpless beauty like a mastiff fall;
 Then meanly to correct the brute pretend,
 And claim the merit of the * FAIR-ONE'S Friend?

Art thou the YOUTH on whom the Virtues smile?
 The boasted Saviour of our sinking Isle!
 O'er such, OBLIVION, be thy wing display'd!
 Oh! waft them from the gibbet to thy shade!

Yet what expect from thee, whose icy breast,
 A stranger to their charm, the LOVES detest?—
Thee, o'er whose heart their fascinating pow'r
 Ne'er knew the triumph of one soften'd hour?
 To give thy flinty soul the tender sigh,
 Vain is the radiance of the brightest eye!
 In vain, for thee, of beauty blooms the rose:
 In vain the swelling bosom spreads its snows—
 A Joseph thou, against the sex to strive;
 Dead to those charms that keep the world alive!

* A most wanton and illiberal attack made by this man on Mrs. F---h-----t, in the House of Commons, exceeds all precedent.

In vain thy malice pours its frothy tide ;
 In vain, the virtues of thy PRINCE to hide,
 Thou and thy imps, to dim his rising ray,
 Urge clouds on clouds to thwart the golden day !
 Mad toil ! I see his ORB superior pass,
 That smiles triumphant on the fable mass.

O PITT ! a Sister Kingdom damns thy deeds,
 And pities hapless Britain as she bleeds.
 HIBERNIA scorns each meanly treach'rous art
 Hatch'd by the base r-b ——n of thy heart,
 That crawls an aspic bloated black with fate,
 To pour a dire contagion through the State.
She, with an honest voice, her PRINCE approves,
 And nobly trusts the virtues that she loves ;
 Detests a hangman's unremitting toil
 To break upon the wheel a happy Isle ;
 Who yet, to push the guilt and folly further,
 Suborns Addresses, to applaud the murder !

Who but must laugh to see thy boasted friends,
 On whose poor rotten trunks thy all depends !
 See BUTE's mean parasite, thy spaniel, creep,
 Whose Argus' eyes of av'rice never sleep ;
 A close State-leech, who, sticking to the nation,
 As adders deaf to Honour's execration,

Sucks

Sucks from its throat the blood by night, by day,
Nor, till the State expires, will drop away.

Yet see another FIEND, with scowling eye,
Who draws from NATURE's soul her deepest sigh;
Aham'd her hand should usher into light
What Fate should whelm with everlasting night!

Loft by his arts, behold the beauteous MAID*,
Whom INNOCENCE herself could ne'er upbraid,
Sunk a pale victim to the gaping tomb;
Whilst all but be with grief survey'd her doom,
Whose heart disdain'd to feel—whose eye severe,
Compassion never melted with a tear!

Yet, left in silence to himself alone,
Aghast he heaves the conscience-wounded groan!
At ev'ry sound how horror heaves the sigh!
How dangers thicken on his straining eye!
He sees her Phantom, form'd by treach'rous Love,
Droop in the grot, and pine amid the grove:
He marks her mien of woe, her cheek so pale,
And trembles at her shrieks that pierce the gale!

At

* The melancholy circumstance alluded to here, the family of Dr. Lynch, of Canterbury, can best explain.

At night's deep noon what fears his soul invade!
 How wild he starts amidst the spectred shade!
 And dreading ev'ry hopeless hour the last,
 He hears the call of DEATH in ev'ry blast!

Such are thy Colleagues*, O thou patriot Boy!
 Whose heads and hearts thy virtues dare employ;
 Who, crouching at thy heels, like bloodhounds wait
 To fasten on the vitals of the State!
 Such are the miscreants who would rule the realm!
 Such the black pirates that would seize the helm!

Had not I known thee, ——, the Muse had sworn,
 That, blest to see the State to atoms torn,
 Hell with her host had drawn each damned plan,
 And for the murder nurs'd thy dark Divan.

Speak—hath thy heart, with mad ambition fir'd,
 Like CROMWELL's, hot for pow'r, to thrones aspir'd?
 Then may that young, old trait'rous bosom feel
 The rapid vengeance of some virtuous steel!
 Or what, to bosoms not quite flint, is worse,
 May Heav'n with hoary age a Rebel curse;

From

* We must not forget, however, Messieurs their Graces of R. and G., Harry D., cum plurimis aliis, though they have not the honour of being mentioned in our poetical calendar.

From sweet society behold him torn,
 Condemn'd, like CAIN, to walk the world forlorn!

Thus rous'd to anger for my Country's wrong,
 The Muse, for vengeance panting, pour'd her song :
 But, ah! in vain I wish'd the blessing mine,
 To plant a scorpion's sting in ev'ry line.

Now PRUDENCE gently pull'd the Poet's ear,
 And thus the daughter of the BLUE-EY'D MAID,*
 In Flatt'ry's soothing sounds, divinely said,

“ O PETER! eldest-born of PHŒBUS, hear—

“ Whose verse could ravish Kings, relax the claw
 “ Of that gaunt, hungry savage, christen'd LAW—
 “ Indeed thou wantest worldly wisdom, PETER,
 “ To mix a little oft'ner with thy metre.
 “ Lo! if thine eye DAME FORTUNE's smile pursues,
 “ To oily adulation prompt the MUSE.

“ Give for the future all thy rhymes to praise;
 “ Strike to the glorious PITT thy sounding lyre:
 “ Thy head may then be crown'd with WARTON's bays,
 “ And mutton twirl with spirit at the fire.”

P 4

“ PRU-

* Minerva.

“ PRUDENCE,” quoth I, “ indeed—indeed I can’t :
 “ Don’t ask me to turn rogue; and scoundrel !”

Now with a smile, first cousin to a grin,
 DAME PRUDENCE answer’d, bridling up her chin—

“ Sweet, harmless, pretty, conscientious pigeon!
 “ Ah! PETER, well I ween thou art not rich :
 “ Know that thou’lt die, like beggars, in a ditch ;
 “ Know, too, that hunger is of no religion.

“ Sit down, and make a Horace imitation,
 “ Like POPE ; and let the stanza glow
 “ With praise of Messieurs PITT and Co.
 “ The present worthy Rulers of the Nation.”

With purs’d-up, puritanic mouth so prim,
 Thus spake DAME PRUDENCE to the BARD of Whim ;
 Who, with politeness seldom running o’er,
 For inspiration scratch’d his tuneful scone,
 To please DAME ORACLE, for once—
 A DAME, some say, he never saw before

IMITATION OF HORACE.

(ODE XII.—BOOK I.)

ON MESSIEURS PITT AND CO.

MUSE, having dropp'd Sir JOSEPH and the KING,
 What sort of gentry shall we deign to sing?

What high and mighty name, that all adore?
 What ministerial wight that bribes each CIT,
 Wolf-like to howl for homage to KING PITT,
 And set each smoky alehouse in a roar;
 That sends to counties, borough-towns, his crimps,
Alias his vote-feducing pimps,

To bribe the mob with brandy, beer and song,
 To put their greasy fists to Court Addresses,
 Full of professions kind, and sweet careffes,
 And with a fiddle lead the logs along?

Shall DORNFORD, king of wine, and mum, and perry,
 Be crown'd with lyric bays, with Master MERRY;
 Two sages who, in diff'rent places born,
 CHICK LANE and BLACK-BOY ALLEY did adorn?

Or,

Or, Muse, suppose we sing KING PITT himself,
The greatest man on earth—a cunning elf,

Who driveth, JEHU-like, the CHURCH and STATE:
And, next to Royal PITT, we'll sing the DAME,
Of open, gen'rous, charitable fame,

Lamenting sad a MONARCH's hapless fate;
Who, though transfix'd by Sorrow's dart so cruel,
So prudent, numbers each bank-note and jewel!

Nor shall we by old Bacchus WEYMOUTH pass,
A jolly fellow o'er his glass.

Nor, SCHWELLENBERG, shalt thou a shrimp appear,
Whose palate loves a dainty dish,
Whose teeth in combat shine with flesh and fish,
Whose Strelitz stomach holds a butt of beer;
Who soon shalt keep a saleshop for good places,
For which so oft the people squabble,
From gaping Cobblers to their gaping Graces,
And thus provide for great and little rabble.

I'll sing how calmly C----W takes the bit,
And trots so mildly under MASTER PITT:

And TH—W, too, whom none but PITT could
Who, blest with Master BILLY's finest saddle, [tame,
No longer makes our brains with neighing addle—
No longer now JOB's war-horse snorting flame;

But

But that slow brute whom few or none revere,
Fam'd for his fine base voice and length of ear;

Yet now so gentle, you may smooth his nose;
Poor CH--C-LLOR* will make no riot:
Calm in his stall his aged limbs repose,
And pleas'd he eats his oats and hay in quiet!

This Pair, so tame, amid the courtier throng,
Shall drag their Master William's coach along,
And raise the wonder of the million!
Just like two bull-dogs in a country town,
That gallop in their harness up and down,
With MONSIEUR MONKEY for postillion.

We'll sing the Brothers of our loving Queen,
Fine hungry, hearty youths as e'er were seen;
Who, if once try'd, would shine, I make no doubt:
And chiefly he who merits high rewards,
Who, wriggling to the Hanoverian guards,
Kept the poor PRINCE of BRUNSWICK out,
Although so brave a Prince, and spilt his blood
So freely for the King of England's* good.

We'll

• * The name of the horse.

† This is scarcely credible, but it is nevertheless true.—The Prince of Brunswick's genius was forced to yield to the superior one of the Queen's Brother!

We'll sing, too, Master ROLLE, who, fond of fame,
 High-daring, from the land of dumplings came,
 To bear the MINISTER—to be his afs—
 Like Conj'ror BALAAM's reas'ning brute,
 That carry'd BALAAM, BALAK to salute,
 And curse the Ifraelites, alas!

And lo! as did the Lord—
 Who op'd the mouth of BALAAM's beast;
 So hath our Lord, 'Squire PITT, upon my word,
 Op'd MASTER ROLLE's, to give the house a feast!

Yet, hang it! DEV'NSHIRE is by ARAM* beat—
 A circumstance that wrings the Poet's soul;
 For BALAAM's Jack-afs made a speech quite neat,
 Which never yet was done by PITT's poor R-----.

Or shall I sing old CORNWALL's death,
 Or fierce Sir BULLFACE, who resign'd his breath
 With brother CORNWALL in the self-same year—
 A downright bear!
 Who bade a MONARCH, like a boy at school,
 Not spend his money like a f---?

We

* Balaam's country seat.

We too might sing the King of Swine,
Sir JOSEPH ! peerless in the fat'ning line.

We too may BURDENELL sing, who, some time since,
Admir'd and lov'd, ador'd and prais'd his PRINCE ;
Follow'd him, spaniel-like, about ;
Swore himself black, poor fellow, in the face,
That he would ten times rather lose his place
Than leave him—Thus said he with phiz devout :
But when it came to pass his HIGHNESS try'd him,
This false APOSTLE, PETER-like, deny'd him !

We'll sing Lord GALLOWAY, a man of note,
Who turn'd his taylor, much enrag'd, away,
Because he stich'd a star upon his coat
So small, it scarcely threw a ray :
Whereas he wish'd a planet huge to flame,
To put the moon's full orb to shame ;
He wanted one so large, with rays so thick,
As to eclipse the star of Sir JOHN DICK !
Sir JOHN, who got his star, so bright and stout,
For making super-excellent four krout.*

Or,

* This honour of the Star was really conferred on him by the EMPRESS OF RUSSIA for furnishing the Russian fleet, in the Mediterranean, with the above cabbage manufacture, to sharpen their courage for a massacre of the poor Turks.

Or, Muse, suppose we sing the SP--KER's wig,
 In which, 'tis said, a world of wisdom lies;
 Which, to a headpiece scarcely worth a fig,
 Importance gives that greatly doth surprize,
 When through the chaos of the House he bawls
 For ORDER, that oft flies St. Stephen's walls;
 Driv'n by a host of scrapes, and hawks, and hums,
 And blowing noses, that distract her drums.

For, Muse, we cant't well sing poor GR----LLE's head,
 Because it wanteth eyes—imperfect creature!
 Again—its lining happ'neth to be lead—
 Such are the whimficalities of Nature:
 And thus this speaking headpiece is, no doubt,
 As dark within as certés 'tis without!

Yet was this Youth proclaim'd a pretty sprig;
 A very promising, a thriving twig,
 That by his parents dear was said would be,
 In time, a very comely tree;
 And, what those parents dear would also fruit,
 Produce enormous quantities of fruit,
 By God's good grace, and much good looking after—
 A thought that now convulseth us with laughter!

Suppose we chaunt old WILLIS and his whip,
 At which the human hide revolts ;
 Who bids, like grasshoppers, his pupils skip,
 And breaks mad gentlemen like colts ;
 Or trains them, like a pointer, to his hand :
 And such the mighty Conjuror's command,
 He, by the magic of sticks, ropes, and eyes,
 Commands wild FOLLY to be tame and wise.

Or grant we throw away a verse or two
 Upon the BEDCHAMBER's most idle IMPS ;
 Those Lords of gingerbread—a gaudy crew,
 Sticking together just like social shrimps ;
 Regardless who the State-coach drives,
 So they may lead good merry, lazy lives ;
 Pleas'd e'en from devils to receive their pay,
 So they, like moths, may flutter life away !

PITT shall the House of Commons rule,
 And eke of poor INCURABLES the school ;
 And pour on such the vengeance of his spleen
 As meanly think of HASTINGS and the ---- !
 On di'monds PITT and Co. shall largely feast,
 Knock down the Nabobs, and exhaust the East !

O LADY !

O LADY! whose great wisdom thinketh fit
 To spread thy petticoat o'er WILLIAM PITT!
 This WILLIAM PITT and Thou, without a joke,
 Will turn out most extraordinary folk!

PITT and the PETTICOAT shall rule together,
 Each with the other vastly taken;
 Make, when they choofe, or fair or filthy weather,
 And cut up kingdoms just like bacon!

---

THUS having finish'd, PRUDENCE, with a stare,
 Exclaim'd, "Rank irony! thou wicked Poet."—

Quoth I, "My little Presbyterian fair,

"I know it."—

"Ah!" quoth the Dame again, with lifted eyes,

"When will this stupid world be wise?"

"Ah! had the PRINCE his proper int'rest felt,

"And, like BUCEPHALUS the famous, knelt

"To take PITT ALEXANDER on his back,

"He might have ambled prettily along,

“ Qui veut peindre pour l'Immortalité,
Doit peindre des Sots.” FONTENELLE.

TO THE READER.

THE rage for historical Pictures in this kingdom, so nobly rewarded by Messrs. BOYDELL and MACKLIN, hath, with the great encouragement of two or three of the principal Muses, tempted me to offer subjects to the labourers in the graphic vineyard. When Shakespear and Milton are exhausted, I may presume that the following Odes, Tales, and Hints, in preference to the labours of any other of our British Bards, may be adopted by the brush of Genius. Had I not thus stepped forward as the champion of my own merit, which is deemed so necessary now-a-days for the obtention of public notice, not only by authors, but by tête-makers, perfumers, elastic trufs and parliament speech makers, &c. who, in the daily news-papers, are the heralds of their own splendid abilities, I might possibly be passed by without observation, and thus a great part of a poetical immortality be sacrificed to a pitiful mauvaise honte.

P A I N T E R S:

SCENE, THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

PEACE and good will to this fair meeting!

I come not with hostility, but greeting;

Not eagle-like to scream, but dove-like coo it:

I come not with the sword of vengeance, rhyme,

To flash, and act as journeyman to TIME—

The GOD himself is just arriv'd to do it.

To make each feeble figure a poor corse,

I come not with the shafts of satire sporting;

Then view me not like Stubbs's staring horse,

With terror on th' approaching lion roaring:

I come to bid the hatchet's labours cease,

And smoke with friends the calumet of peace.

Knight

Knight of the polar star, or bear, don't start,
 And, like some long-ear'd creatures, bray, "What art!"

Sir WILLIAM, shut your ell-wide mouth of terror;
 I come not here, believe me, to complain
 Of such as dar'd employ thy building brain,
 And criticise an economic error.*

I come not here to call thee knave or fool,
 And bid thee seek again Palladio's school;
 Or copy Heav'n, who form'd thy head so thick,
 To give stability to stone and brick:
 No—'twould be cruel now to make a rout;
 The very stones already have cry'd out.

I come not here, indeed, new cracks to spy,
 And call thee for the workmanship hard names;
 To point which wing shall next forsake the sky,
 And tumble in the Strand, or in the Thames.

Nor

* A large portion of the Royal Academy, raised at an extraordinary expence, fell to the ground lately; but as the Knight is a favourite at Court, no harm is done. The nation is able to rear it again, which will be a benefit ticket in Sir William's way.

Nor come I here to cover thee with shame,
 For putting clever Academic men,*
 Like calves or pigs, into a pen,
 To see the King of England and his dame,

'Midst carts and coaches, golden horse and foot;
 'Midst peopled windows, chimnies and old walls;
 'Midst marrowbones and cleavers, fife and flute,
 Passing in pious pilgrimage to Paul's:

Where, as the show of gingerbread went by,
 The rain, as if in mockery from the sky,
 Dribbled on ev'ry academic nob,
 And wash'd each pigtail smart, and powder'd bob;

Wash'd many a visage, black, and brown, and fair,
 Giving to each so picturesque an air—
 Resembling that of drooping, rain-soak'd fowls,
 Or, what's a better picture, parboil'd owls;

Whilst

* Sir William actually gave orders for the non-admission of the Royal Academicians into the Academy, to see the Royal procession to St. Paul's, as he had some women and children of his acquaintance who wished to see the show. Half a dozen boards were consequently ordered to be put together on the outside of the building for their reception.

Whilst thou, great Jove upon Olympus, aping,
Didst sit majestic, from a window gaping.

O WEST! that fix'd and jealous eye forbear,
Which scowling marks the bard with doubt and fear:

Thy forms are sacred from my wrath divine;
'Twere cruel to attack such crippled creatures,
So very, very feeble in their natures,
Already gasping in a deep decline!

I seek them not with scalping thoughts, indeed!
Too great my soul to bid the figures bleed:
May peace and happiness attend 'em!
Where'er they go, poor imps, God mend 'em!

I come not to impart to thee the crime
Of over-dealing in the true sublime;
I scorn with malice thus thy fame to wound;
Nor cruel to declare, and hurt thy trade,
That too divine effects of light and shade
Were ever 'midst thy labours to be found.

Nor swear, to blast one atom of thy merit,
That elegance, expression, spirit,

Too

Too strongly from the canvass blaze,
 And damn thee thus with RAPHAEL'S praise:
 Besides, against the stream I scorn to rush;
 The world ne'er said, nor thought it of thy brush.

Were I to write thy epitaph, I'd say,
 " Here lies below a painter's clay,
   " Who work'd away most furiously for Kings;
 " And prov'd that fire of inclination
 " For pleasing the great Ruler of a Nation,
   " And fire of genius, are two diff'rent things."

Nor come I here t' inform some men so wise,
   Who shine not yet upon the R. A. list,
 That limbs in spasms and crack'd, and goggling eyes,
   With grandeur cannot well exist.
 Nay, let it be recorded in my rhyme,
 Convulsions cannot give the true sublime.

Saint VIRTUS might be virtuous to romance—
   Peace to the manes of that capering Saint!
 Yet let me tell the sons of paint,
 Sublimity adorneth not his dance.

Wide faucer eyes, and dire diftortion,
Will only make a good abortion.

Ye landscape-painters, may your gold freams fleep—
Sleep, golden skies and bulls, and golden cows,
And golden groves and vales, and golden fleep,
And golden goats, the golden grafs that browze,
Which with fuch golden luftre flame,
As beat the very golden frame!

Peace to the fcenes of Birmingham's bright fchool!
Peace to the brighter fcenes of Pontypool!

Aw'd I approach, ye fov'reigns of the brush,
With MODESTY's companion fweet, a blufh,
And hesitation nat'ral to her tongue;
And eye fo diffident, with beam fo mild,
Like Eve's when Adam on her beauties fmil'd,
And led her blufhing, nothing loath, along,
To give the lady a green gown fo fweet,
On beds of rofes, LOVE's delicious feat:

Yes, fober, trembling, Quaker-like, I come
To this great DOME,

To

To offer subjects to the sons of paint:
 Accept the pleafant tales and hints I bring,
 Of Knight and Lord, and Commoner and King,
     Sweeter than hift'ry of embowell'd faint;
 Or martyr, beat like Shrovetide cocks with bats,
 And fir'd like turpentin'd poor roafting rats.

    Inimical as dogs to pigs,
     Or wind and rain to powder'd wigs,
 Or mud from kennels to a milk-white ftocking;
     Hoftile to PETER's phiz as if a peft,
     Why fprings the man of hift'ry, Mifter WEST,
 And cries, "Off, off! your tales and hints are fhocking;
 " Inventions—fabrications—lies—damn'd lies!
 " Kings, and the world befides, thy fpite defpife.

" Sir, you're a liar, ev'ry body knows it;
 " Sir, every ftupid ftanza fhows it:
     " Sir, you know nothing of a King and Queen;
 " In fpheres too high their orbs fuperior roll,
 " By thy poor little grov'ling, mole-ey'd-foul,
     " Thou outcaft of Parnaffus, to be feen.

" Sir, they do honour to their god-like ftation,
 " The two firft luminaries of the nation,

- “ So meek, good, gen’rous, virtuous, humble, wife;
 “ Whilst thou, a savage, a great fool so fat,
 “ Curs’d with a conscience blacker than my hat,
 “ Art rival to that fiend the Prince of Lies.
- “ Go, pour thy venom on my LEAR *—
 “ A whisper, Hopkins, Sternhold, in thy ear:
 “ King LEAR, to mortify thee, goes
 “ Where MAJESTY delights with WEST to prate,
 “ Much more than Ministers of State—
 “ Where thou shalt never, never show thy nose!
- “ Where Pages fancy it a heinous crime,
 “ Thou foul-mouth’d fellow, to repeat thy † rhyme;
 “ Where ev’ry cook, it is my firm belief,
 “ Would nobly make it a religious point,
 “ Rather than put thy trash upon a joint,
 “ To let the fire consuming burn the beef.
- “ There’s

* A pretty iron-flaring sketch now in the Exhibition.

† Here Mr. West is mistaken. The works of the LYRIC BARD, handsomely bound in morocco leather, are now in the Library at the Queen’s Palace: his Majesty has done more—he has written notes on the Odes. Happy Poet, to have a King for a commentator!

- “ There’s not a shopkeeper in Windfor town
 “ That would not hang thee, shoot thee, stab thee, drown;
 “ That doth not damn thy stuff, thy odes and tales;
 “ That doth not think thy works would give disease
 “ To ev’ry thing they wrapp’d—to bread, to cheese;
 “ Nay, give contagion to a bag of nails.

- “ The very Windfor dogs and cats,
 “ The very Windfor owls and bats,
 “ Would howl and squall, and hoot and shriek, to meet
 “ Like thee a raggamuffin in the street.

- “ The servant maids of * Windfor, from each shop,
 “ Some pointing brooms, and some a scornful mop,
 “ Their loyal sentiments would disembogue,
 “ And taunting cry, ‘ There goes a lying rogue.’

- “ Behold, rank impudence thy rhymes inspire;
 “ Consummate insolence thy verse provoke!
 “ Fool! to believe thy muse a muse of fire!
 “ A chimney-sweeper’s drab, a muse of smoke.

VOL. II.

R

“ The

* Neither is this true: the works of the sublime BARD are sold publicly at Windfor.

- “ Too bids, to give his customers surprife,
 “ A Druid altar from a pigfye rife.
 “ Yes, NICHOLS, aping wifdom through his glaffes,
 “ Thee, thee APOLLO’s scavenger, furpaffes.
- “ Soon fhall we fee the Fleet thy carcafe wring, “ Mean thro’ the prifon grate for farthings angling,
 “ Suspending feet of stockings by a ftring,
 “ Or glove or nightcap for our bounty dangling;
- “ Whilft, iffuing from thy mouth begrim’d with beard,
 “ Thy pale nofe poking through thy prifon hole,
 “ The hollow voice of mis’ry will be heard,
 “ ‘ Kind ge’mman, pity a poor hungry foul :
 “ ‘ Have pity on a pris’ner’s cafe fo flocking—
 “ ‘ Good lady, put a farthing in the flocking!’
- “ What impudence thus bold a face to push,
 “ Arm’d with a winking light of paltry rufh,
 “ As if with TRUTH’s bright torch, into our room ;
 “ To dart on ignorance the fancy’d rays—
 “ To bid of barbarifm the empire blaze,
 “ And kind illumine ERROR’s midnight gloom !

“ Get out, and pertly don’t come troubling me ;
 “ A dog is better company than thee.”

Thus cries the King’s GREAT PAINTER to the BARD !
 Such is of peerless Odes the bafe reward !

I thank ye—much oblig’d t’ye, Mifter WEST,
 For thoughts fo kind, and prettily exprest :
 Yet won’t I be refus’d, I won’t indeed ;
 You must, you shall have tale, and ode, and hint ;
 This memory of mine contains a mint :
 And thus, in bold defiance, I proceed.

Yet mind me, as to our bright KING and QUEEN,
Their names are facred from the Poet’s spleen—
 Peace to their reign ! they feel no more my jokes,
 Whether to Hanover they wifely roam,
 Or full as wifely count their cash at home :
 My satire fhall not hurt the gentlefolks.

Pleas’d in a hut to broil my mutton bone,
 I figh not for the ven’fon of a throne :
 Nay, flavery doth not with my pride agree ;
 A toad-eater’s an imp I don’t admire ;
 Nor royal finall-talk doth my foul defire :
 I’ve feen my Sovereigns—that’s enough for me.

A THOUSAND themes for canvafs I could name,
To give the artift beef and fame :

Lo! * Hodfell in his country feat fo fine,
Where, 'midft his tulips, grin ftone apes with parrots ;
Where Neptune foams along a bed of carrots,
    Instead of cleaving through his native brine ;

Where PHŒBUS ftrikes to cabbages his fttings ;
Where LOVE o'er garlick waves his purple wings ;
    Where MARS, to vanquifh beets, heroic leans ;
And, arm'd with lightnings, with terrific eyes,
The great and mighty RULER of the fkies
    Sublimely thunders through a bed of beans ;

Clofe by whofe fide the haymakers are mating,
And Dutchmen to their knees in onions skating.

* A merchant of tafte.

A MIGHTY WARRIOR in the House of Lords,
 Swallowing, alas! a bitter, bitter pill;
 Eating, poor man, his own sad words,
 Exceedingly against his noble will;

Whilst RAWDON by his side, with martial face,
 Commandeth him to swallow with a grace;
 Would make an interesting scene, indeed,
 And show the courage of King Charles's breed!

How like a Doctor, forcing down the throat
 Of some poor puling child a dose of salts,
 At which its little soul revolts,
 With wriggling limbs, wry mouths, and piteous note;
 Yet forc'd to take the formidable purge,
 Or taste a bitt'rer dose, the threaten'd scourge!

Or RICHMOND,* watchful of the State's salvation,
 Sprinkling his ravelins o'er the pale-nos'd nation;

Now

* The Duke absolutely ordered cannon to be made of leather, from a snuff-box-maker, which, at Woolwich, on Saturday the second day of May, 1789, were seriously tried, and, like many a nobleman, found too soft.

Now buying leathern boxes up by tuns,
 Improving thus the bodies of great guns;
 Guns blest with double natures, mild and rough,
 To give a broadside, or a pinch of snuff.
 Or RICHMOND* at th' enormous reck'ning struck,
 At Portsmouth battling hard about a duck.

A certain high and mighty Duchefs,
 Hugging her husband in her cat-like clutches,
     Biting and tearing him with brandy zeal;
 Whose flax in heaps is seen to fly around,
 Whilst he, pale wight, emits a plaintive sound,
     Like animals that furnish man with veal;

Would make another pleasing scene,
 Showing the mettle of an arrant Quean;
 Longing to shine a first-rate star at Court,
 For satire's pen, a subject of rare sport;

R 4

Longing

* At Portsmouth his Grace, not long since, bespoke a dinner for a few friends; and because no fork had entered a roasted duck, Charles Lenox, Duke of Richmond, Earl of March, Master General of the Ordnance, Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the county of Suffex, Duke of Lenox in Scotland, and Aubigny in France, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, &c. thought it a grievous imposition, and ordered the landlord of the inn to deduct the eighteen pence, the price of the duck, from the bill, which was done accordingly.

Longing to purify a luckless blood,
 Deep-stain'd, and smelling of its native mud.

The valiant GLOSTER at the army's head,
 Drawn as the glorious Macedonian youth,
 In battle galloping o'er hills of dead,
 Would glow with such an air of truth!—
 Not on a Jackass mounted, but a steed
 Of old Bucephalus's breed.

 Of FAME's and sweet St. Giles's blackguard bands,
 That clap our Kings to Parliament and Play—
 Salisb'ry, too, gauging all their gaping throats,
 Exciseman-like, to find the best for notes,
 That money mayn't be thrown away :

Resolv'd from those same legions of vulgarity,
 To get full pennyworths of popularity ;
 Resolv'd his master shall be fairly treated,
 And not, as usual, by his servants, cheated.

Suppose,

Suppose, to give this humour-loving isle
 A pretty opportunity to smile,
 You paint the Solomon of yon fam'd place,*
 Where fair PHILOSOPHY, the heav'nly dame,
 By barb'rous usage cover'd deep with shame,
 No longer shows her exil'd face;
 Where cent. per cent. in value rife,
 Toads, tadpoles, grafshoppers, and flies?

Suppose you paint Sir JOSEPH all so blest,
 With many a parasitical dear guest,
 Swol'n by their flatt'ries as a bladder big,
 Throwing away of learning such a waste,
 And proving his superior classic taste,
 By swallowing the sumen of a pig?

 Compell'd to kneel and pray,* who swore his pray'rs;
 The dev'l behind him, pleas'd and grinning,
 Patting the angry lawyer on the shoulder,
 Declaring nought was ever bolder,
 Admiring such a novel mode of sinning:

Like this, a subject would be reckon'd rare,
 Which proves what blood-game infidels can dare;
 Which to my mem'ry brings a fact,
 Which nothing but an English tar would act.

In ships of war, on Sunday, pray'rs are giv'n;
 For, though so wicked, sailors think of Heav'n,
 Particularly in a storm;
 Where, if they find no brandy to get drunk,
 Their souls are in a miserable funk;
 Then vow they to th' Almighty to reform,
 If in his goodness only once, once more,
 He'll suffer them to clap one foot on shore.

In calms, indeed, or gentle airs,
 They ne'er on week-days pester Heav'n with pray'rs;
 For 'tis amongst the Jacks a common saying,
 "Where there's no danger, there's no need of praying."

One Sunday morning all were met
 To hear the parson preach and pray,
 All but a boy, who, willing to forget
 That pray'rs were handing out, had stol'n away;
 And, thinking praying but a usefess task,
 Had crawl'd, to take a nap, into a cask.

The micher was found missing; and full soon
 The boatswain's cat sagacious smelt him out;
 Gave him a clawing to some tune—
 This cat's a coufin Germain to the Knout.*

 "And save your damn'd young sinful foul!"
 He then the moral-mending cat apply'd,
 And turn'd him like a badger from his hole.

THE KING OF SPAIN

AND

THE HORSE.

IN fev'nteen hundred fev'nty-eight,
 The rich, the proud, the potent King of Spain,
 Whose ancestors sent forth their troops to finite
 The peaceful natives of the western main,
 With faggots and the blood-delighting sword,
 To play the devil, to oblige the Lord!

For hunting, roasting heretics, and boiling,
 Baking and barbecuing, frying, broiling,
 Was thought Heav'n's cause amazingly to further;
 For which most pious reason, hard to work
 They went, with gun and dagger, knife and fork,
 To charm the God of mercy with their murder!

I say

I say, this King in fev'nty-eight furvey'd,
In tapestry so rich, pourtray'd

A horse with stirrups, crupper, bridle, faddle:
Within the stirrup, lo, the Monarch try'd
To fix his foot, the palfry to bestride;

In vain!—he could not o'er the palfry straddle!

Stiff as a Turk the beast of yarn remain'd,
And ev'ry effort of the King disdain'd,
Who 'midst his labours to the ground was tumbled;
And greatly mortified as well as humbled.

Prodigious was the struggle of the day:
The horse attempted not to run away;

At which the poor chaf'd Monarch now 'gan grin,
And swore by ev'ry faint and holy martyr,
He would not yield the traitor quarter,
Until he got possession of his skin.

Not fiercer fam'd La Mancha's knight,
Hight QUIXOTE, at a puppet show,
Did with more valour stoutly fight,

And terrify each little squeaking foe;
When bold he pierc'd the lines, immortal fray;
And broke their pasteboard bones, and stabb'd their hearts of hay.

Not

Not with more energy and fury
 The beauteous freet-walker of Drury
     Attacks a fifter of the smuggling trade,
 Whose winks, and nods, and fweet refiftlefs fmile,
 Ah, me! her paramour beguile,
     And to her bed of healthy ftraw perfuade;
 Where mice with mufic charm, and vermin crawl,
 And fnails with filver traces deck the wall.

And now a cane, and now a whip he us'd;
 And now he kick'd, and fore the palfry bruis'd;
 Yet, lo, the horfe feem'd patient at each kick,
 And bore with Christian fpirit whip and ftick;
 And what exceffively provok'd this Prince,
 The horfe fo ftubborn fcorn'd ev'n once to wince.

Now rufh'd the Monarch for a bow and arrow,
 To fhoot the rebel like a fparrow;
 And lo, with shafts well fteel'd, with all his force,
 Juft like a pincuffion, he ftuck the horfe!

Now with the fury of the chaf'd wild boar,
 With nails and teeth the wounded horfe he tore;
     Now to the floor he brought the ftubborn beaft;
 Now o'er the vanquifh'd horfe that dar'd rebel,
 Moft Indian-like, the Monarch gave a yell,
     Pleas'd on the quadruped his eyes to feaft;

Blest as ACHILLES, when with fatal wound
He brought the mighty HECTOR to the ground.

Yet more to gratify his godlike ire,
He vengeful flung the palfry in the fire !
Showing his pages round, poor trembling things,
How dang'rous to resist the will of Kings.

LORD BRUDENELL AND THE EUNUCH.

A LORD, most musically mad,
Yet with a taste superlatively bad,
Ask'd a squeal eunuch to his house one day ;
A poor old femivir, whose throat
Had lost its love-resounding note,
Which ART had giv'n, and TIME had stol'n away.

“ Signor SQUALINI,” with a solemn air,
The LORD began, grave rising from his chair,
Taking SQUALINI kindly by the hand—
“ Signor SQUALINI, much I fear
“ I've got a most unlucky ear,
“ And that 'tis known to all the music band.

“ Fond of abuse, each fiddling coxcomb carps ;
 “ And, true it is, I don’t know flats from sharps :
     “ Indeed, Signor SQUALINI, ’tis no hum ;
 “ So ill doth music with my organs suit,
 “ I scarcely know a fiddle from a flute,
     “ The hautbois from the double drum.

“ Now though with Lords, a number, of this nation,
 “ I go to Op’ras, more through fashion
     “ Than for the love of music, I could wish
 “ The world might think I had some little taste,
 “ That those two ears were tolerably chaste ;
     “ But, Sir, I am as stupid as a fish.

“ Get me the credit of a Cognoscente,
 “ Gold sha’n’t be wanting to content ye.”

“ Bravissimo! my Lor,” reply’d SQUALINI,
     With acquiescent bow, and smile of suavity ;
 “ De nobleman musf never look de ninny.”—
     “ True,” grunts the noble Lord, with German gravity.

“ My Lor, ven men vant money in der purse,
     “ Dey do no vant de vorld to tink dem poor ;
 “ Because, my Lor, dat be von shabby curse ;
     “ Dis all same ting wid ignorance, my Lor.”

“ Right,” cry’d his Lordship in a grumbling tone,
 Much like a mastiff jealous of his bone.

“ But first I want some technicals, Signor.”—
 Bowing, the Eunuch answer’d—“ Ifs, my Lor;
 “ I teash your Lorship queekly, queekly, all—
 “ Dere vat be call de softenuto note,
 “ Dat be ven finger oppen vide de troat,
 “ And den for long time make de squawl, squawl,
 squawl;
 “ Mush long, long note, dat do continue while
 “ A man, my Lor, can valk a mile.

“ My Lor, der likewise be de cromatique,
 “ As if de finger vas in greef, or sick,
 “ And had de colick—dat be ver, ver fine:
 “ De high, oh, dat musician call soprano;
 “ De low voice, basso; de soff note, piano—
 “ Bravcura, queek, bold—here Marchesi shine.

“ Dis Mara, too, and Billington, do know—
 “ Allegro, quick; Adagio, be de slow;
 “ Pomposo, dat be manner make de roar:
 “ Maeffoso, dat be slow, grand, nobel ting,
 “ Mush like de voice of Emperor, or de King;
 “ Or you, my Lor,

“ When

“ When in de Houfe you make de grand oration,
 “ For fave, my Lor, de noble Englis nation.

“ Da Capo, dat’s, my Lor, begin again;
 “ And end, my Lor, wid de firft ftrain.”

Thus having giv’n his leffon, and a bow,
 With high complacency his Lordfhip finil’d :
 Unravell’d was his Lordfhip’s pucker’d brow,
 His fcowling eye, like LUNA’s beams, fo mild :

Such is th’ effect, when flatt’ries fweet cajole
 That praise-admiring wight yclep’d the foul ;
 And from the days of Adam ’tis the cafe,
 That great’s the fympathy ’twixt foul and face.

“ Signor SQUALINI,” cry’d the happy Lord,
 “ The Op’ra is begun, upon my word—
 “ Allons, Signor, and hear me—mind,
 “ As foon as ever you fhall find
 “ A finger’s voice above or under pitch,
 “ Juft touch my toe, or give my arm a twitch.”

“ Ifs, ifs, my Lor, (the Eunuch ftrait reply’d)
 “ My Lor, I fheet clofe by your Lordfhip fide ;

“ And den, accordin to your Lorship wifh,
 “ I give your Lorship elbow littel twifh.”

Now to the Opera, mufic’s founds to hear,
 The old Castrato and the noble Peer
 Proceeded—Near the orchefttra they fat,
 Before the portals of the fingers’ throats!
 The critic couple moufing for bad notes
 With all the keennefs of a hungry cat.

Now came an out-of-tunifh note—

The Eunuch twitch’d his Lordfhip’s coat :

Full-mouth’d at once his Lordfhip roar’d out “Psha!”

Sudden the orcheftta, amaz’d, turn round

To find from whence arofe the critic found,

When, lo! they heard the Lord, and faw!

The Eunuch kept moft flily twitching;

His frowning Lordfhip all the while,

(Not in the cream of courtly fyle)

Be-dogging this poor finger, that be-bitcking;

Uniting, too, a hoft of damning pfhas,

Reap’d a moft plenteous harveft of applaufe;

Grew from that hour a Lord of tuneful fkill,

And, though the Eunuch’s dead, remains fo ftill.

TO THE ACADEMICIANS.

SUPPOSE you paint the Dev'l, with smiling mien,
Whisp'ring deceit to any King or Queen,

'Tis what the prince of foot hath often done :
For lo, with many a King and many a Queen,
In close confab the gentleman is seen—

With such hath Satan oft a world of fun ;
More fun, or diadems are much bely'd,
Than all the little under-world beside !

The Dev'l's a fellow of much sterling humour,
If we may credit public rumour ;

And all so civil in each act and look,
That, whensoever we incline
On some rare dish of sin to dine,

We can't employ a readier, nicer cook.

Who, too, so generous disdains
To take a sixpence for his pains—

Nay, at our money would be vext ;
Happy to please us gratis with his art,
Provided, when from this world we depart,

We join his fire-side in the next.

Like GLOUCESTER, who for pay can leave his party;
 Some years ago I join'd his corps so hearty,
     Thinking the Prince of Erebus ill treated:
 Fir'd by the subject, in my rhyming mode,
 I complimented Satan with an Ode,
     Which, for the brushmen's sake, shall be repeated.

ODE TO THE DEVIL.

INGRATUM ODI.

PRINCE of the dark abodes! I ween
 Your Highness ne'er till now hath seen
     Yourself in metre fine;
 Ne'er heard a song with praise sincere,
 Sweet warbled on your snuttie ear,
     Before this Ode of mine.

Perhaps the reason is too plain,
 Thou try'ft to starve the tuneful train,
     Of potent verse afraid;
 And yet I vow, in all my time,
 I've not beheld a single rhyme
     That ever spoil'd thy trade.

I've often read those pious whims—
 JOHN WESLEY'S sweet damnation hymns,
 That chant of heav'nly riches.
 What have they done?—those heav'nly strains,
 Devoutly squeez'd from canting brains,
 But fill'd JOHN'S earthly breeches?

There's not a shoeblack in the land,
 So humbly at the world's command,
 As thy old cloven foot;
 Like lightning dost thou fly, when call'd,
 And yet no pickpocket's so maul'd
 As thou, O Prince of Soot!

What thousands, hourly bent on sin,
 With supplication call thee in,
 To aid them to pursue it!
 Yet, when detected, with a lie
 Ripe at their fingers' ends, they cry,
 "The Devil made me do it."

Behold the fortunes that are made,
 By men through roguish tricks in trade!
 Yet all to thee are owing—

And though we meet it ev'ry day,
 The sneaking rascals dare not say,
 This is the Devil's doing.

As to thy company, I'm sure,
 No man can shun thee on that score ;
 The very best is thine :
 With Kings, Queens, Ministers of State,
 Lords, Ladies, I have seen thee great,
 And many a grave Divine.

I'm forely griev'd at times to find,
 The very instant thou art kind,
 Some people so uncivil,
 When aught offends, with face awry,
 With base ingratitude to cry,
 " I wish it to the devil."

Hath some poor blockhead got a wife,
 To be the torment of his life,
 By one eternal yell ;
 The fellow cries out coarsely, " Zounds !
 " I'd give this moment twenty pounds
 " To see the jade in hell."

Should

Should Heav'n their pray'rs so ardent grant,
 Thou never company wouldst want
 To make thee downright mad;
 For mind me, in their wishing mood,
 They never offer thee what's good,
 But ev'ry thing that's bad.

My honest anger boils to view
 A snuffing, long-fac'd, canting crew,
 So much thy humble debtors,
 Rushing, on Sundays, one and all,
 With desp'rate pray'rs thy head to maul,
 And thus abuse their betters.

To seize one day in ev'ry week,
 On thee their black abuse to wreak,
 By whom their souls are fed
 Each minute of the other six,
 With ev'ry joy that heart can fix,
 Is impudence indeed!

Blushing, I own thy pleasing art
 Hath oft seduc'd my vagrant heart,
 And led my steps to joy—

The charms of beauty have been mine ;
And let me call the merit thine,
    Who brought't the lovely toy,

No, Satan—if I ask thy aid,
To give my arms the blooming maid,
    I will not, through the nation all,
Proclaim thee (like a graceless imp)
A vile old good-for-nothing pimp,
    But say, "'tis thy vocation, Hal."

Since truth must out—I seldom knew
What 'twas high pleasure to pursue,
    Till thou hadst won my heart :
So social were we both together,
And beat the hoof in ev'ry weather,
    I never wish'd to part.

Yet when a child—good Lord! I thought
That thou a pair of horns hadst got,
    With eyes like faucers staring!
And then a pair of ears so stout,
A monstrous tail and hairy snout,
    With claws beyond comparing.

Taught

Taught to avoid the paths of evil,
 By day I us'd to dread the Devil;
     And trembling when 'twas night,
 Methought I saw thy horns and ears,
 Then fung or whistled to my fears,
     And ran to chase my fright.

And ev'ry night I went to bed,
 I sweated with a constant dread,
     And crept beneath the rug;
 There, panting, thought that in my sleep
 Thou slily in the dark wouldst creep,
     And eat me, though so snug.

A haberdasher's shop is thine,
 With fins of all sorts, coarse and fine,
     To suit both man and maid:
 Thy wares they buy, with open eyes;
 How cruel then, with constant cries,
     To vilify thy trade!

To speak the truth, indeed, I'm loath—
 Life's deem'd a mawkish dish of broth,
     Without thy aid, old Sweeper:

So mawkish, few will put it down,
 E'en from the cottage to the crown,
 Without thy falt and pepper.

O Satan, whatsoever geer
 Thy Proteus form shall choose to wear,
 Black, red, or blue, or yellow;
 Whatever hypocrites may say,
 They think thee (trust my honest lay)
 A most bewitching fellow.

'Tis order'd (to deaf ears, alas!)
 To praise the bridge o'er which we pass;
 Yet often I discover
 A numerous band who daily make
 An easy bridge of thy poor back,
 And damn it when they're over.

Why art thou then, with cap in hand,
 Obsequious to a graceless band,
 Whose fouls are scarce worth taking?
 O Prince, pursue but my advice,
 I'll teach your Highness in a trice
 To set them all a quaking.

Plays,

Plays, op'ras, mafquerades, deftroys;
 Lock up each charming fille de joie;
     Give race-horfes the glander—
 The dice-box break, and burn each card—
 Let virtue be its own reward,
     And gag the mouth of flander:

In one week's time, I'll lay my life,
 There's not a man, nor maid, nor wife,
     That will not glad agree,
 If thou wilt charm 'em as before,
 To fhew their nofe at church no more,
     But quit their God for thee.

'Tis now full time my Ode fhould end;
 And now I tell thee like a friend,
     Howe'er the world may fcout thee,
 Thy ways are all fo wond'rous winning,
 And folks fo very fond of finning,
     They cannot do without thee.

THE TENDER HUSBAND.

LO, to the cruel hand of FATE,
 My poor dear GRIZZLE, meek-foul'd mate,
     Requies her tuneful breath—
 Though dropp'd her jaw, her lip though pale,
 And blue each harmless finger nail,
     She's beautiful in death.

As o'er her lovely limbs I weep,
 I scarce can think her but asleep—
     How wonderfully tame!
 And yet her voice is really gone,
 And dim those eyes that lately shone
     With all the lightning's flame.

Death was, indeed, a daring wight,
 To take it in his head to smite—
     To lift his dart to hit her;
 For as she was so great a woman,
 And car'd a single fig for no man,
     I thought he fear'd to meet her.

Still is that voice, of late so strong,
 That many a sweet Capriccio sung,
     And beat in sounds the spheres?

No longer muſt thoſe fingers play
 “ Britons, ſtrike home,” that many a day
 Have footh’d my raviſh’d ears ?

Ah me ! indeed I’m much inclin’d
 To think I now might ſpeak my mind,
 Nor hurt her dear repoſe ;
 Nor think I now with rage ſhe’d roar,
 Were I to put my fingers o’er,
 And touch her precious noſe.

Here let me philoſophic pauſe—
 How wonderful are Nature’s laws !
 When lady’s breath retires,
 Its fate the flaming paſſions ſhare,
 Supported by a little air,
 Like culinary fires !

Whene’er I hear the bagpipe’s note,
 Shall FANCY fix on GRIZZLE’s throat,
 And loud inſtructive lungs :
 O Death, in her, though only one,
 Are loſt a thouſand charms unknown,
 At leaſt a thouſand tongues.

Soon as I heard her laſt ſweet ſigh,
 And ſaw her gently-cloſing eye,
     How great was my ſurpriſe !
 Yet have I not, with impious breath,
 Accuſ'd the hard decrees of death,
     Nor blam'd the righteous ſkies.

Why do I groan in deep deſpair,
 Since ſhe'll be ſoon an angel fair ?
     Ah ! why my boſom ſmite ?
 Could grief my GRIZZLE'S life reſtore !—
 But let me give ſuch ravings o'er—
     Whatever is, is right.

Oh, Doct'or ! you are come too late ;
 No more of phyſic's virtues prate,
     That could not ſave my lamb :
 Not one more bolus ſhall be giv'n—
 You ſhall not ope her mouth, by heav'n,
     And GRIZZLE'S gullet cram.

Enough of boluſes, poor heart,
 And pills, ſhe took, to load a cart,
     Before ſhe cloſ'd her eyes ;

Before

But now my word is here a law,
Zounds! with a bolus in her jaw,
She shall not seek the skies.

Good Sir, good Doctor, go away;
To hear my sighs you must not stay,
For this my poor lost treasure:
I thank you for your pains and skill;
When next you come, pray bring your bill;
I'll pay it, Sir, with pleasure.

Ye friends who come to mourn her doom,
For God's sake gently tread the room,
Nor call her from the bled:
In softest silence drop the tear,
In whispers breathe the fervent pray'r,
To bid her spirit rest.

Repress the sad, the wounding scream;
I cannot bear a grief extreme—
Enough one little sigh—
Besides, the loud alarm of grief,
In many a mind may start belief,
Our noise is all a lie.

Good nurses, shroud my lamb with care;
Her limbs, with gentlest fingers, spare;
Her mouth, ah! slowly close;

Her mouth, a magic tongue that held;
 Whose softest tone, at times, compell'd,
     To peace, my loudest woes.

And, carpenter, for my sad sake,
 Of stoutest oak her coffin make—
     I'd not be stingy, sure:
 Procure of steel the strongest screws;
 For who would paltry pence refuse,
     To lodge his wife secure?

Ye people who the corpse convey,
 With caution tread the doleful way,
     Nor shake her precious head;
 Since FAME reports, a coffin tost
 With careless swing against a post,
     Did once disturb the dead.

Farewell, my love, for ever lost!
 Ne'er troubled be thy gentle ghost,
     That I again will woo—
 By all our past delights, my dear,
 No more the marriage chain I'll wear,
     P—x take me if I do!

THE SOLDIER
AND THE VIRGIN MARY.

A T A L E.

A SOLDIER at Loretto's wond'rous chapel,
To parry from his foul the wrath divine,
That follow'd mother Eve's unlucky apple,
Did visit oft the Virgin Mary's shrine;
Who ev'ry day is gorgeously deck'd out,
In silks or velvets, jewels, great and small,
Just like a fine young lady for a rout,
A concert, opera, wedding, or a ball.

At first the Soldier at a distance kept,
Begging her vote and interest in heav'n:
With seeming bitterness the sinner wept,
Wrung his two hands, and hop'd to be forgiv'n;
Dinn'd her two ears with Ave-Mary flummery;
Declar'd what miracles the dame could do,
Ev'n with her garter, stocking, or her shoe,
And such like wonder-working mummery.

What answer MARY gave the wheedling sinner,
 Who nearly, and more nearly mov'd to win her,
 The musty mouth of Hift'ry doth not mention;
 And therefore I can't tell but by invention.

One day as he was making love and praying,
 And pious Aves, thick as herrings, saying,
     And damned sins so manifold confessing,
 He drew, as if to whisper, very near,
 And twitch'd a pretty diamond from her ear,
     Instead of taking the good lady's blessing.

Then off he fet with nimble thanks,
 Nor once turn'd back to give her thanks:
 A hue and cry the thief purfu'd,
 Who, to his cost, soon understood
 That he was not arriv'd beyond the paw
 Of that fame long-legg'd tiger, christen'd LAW.

With horror did his Judges quake:
     As for the tender-conscienc'd Jury,
 They doom'd him quickly to the stake,
     Such was their dev'lish pious fury.

However,

However, after calling him hard names,
 They ask'd if ought he had in vindication,
 To save his wretched body from the flames,
 And sinful soul from terrible damnation ?

The Soldier answer'd them with much sang-froid,
 Which seem'd to show, of sin, a conscience void,
 That, if they meant to kill him, they might kill :
 As for the diamond which they found about him,
 He hop'd their Worships would by no means doubt him,
 That Madam gave it him from pure good will.

The answer turn'd both Judge and Jury pale :
 The punishment was for a time deferr'd,
 Until his Holiness should hear the tale,
 And his infallibility be heard.

The Pope to all his Counsellors made known
 This strange affair—to Cardinals and Friars,
 Good pious gentlemen, who ne'er were known
 To act like hypocrites, and thieves, and liars.

The question now was banded to and fro,
 If MARY had the pow'r to give, or no ?

That MARY could not give it, was to say,
 The wonder-working Lady wanted pow'r—
 This was a stumbling block that stopp'd the way—
 This made Pope, Cardinals, and Friars, low'r.

To save the Virgin's credit, lo!

And keep secure the di'monds that were left;
 They said, she might, indeed, the gem bestow,
 And consequently it might be no theft:

But then they pass'd immediately an Act,
 That ev'ry one discover'd in the fact
 Of taking presents from the Virgin's hand,
 Or from the Saints of any land,
 Should know no mercy, but be led to slaughter,
 Flay'd here, and fry'd eternally hereafter.

Ladies, I deem the moral much too clear
 To need poetical assistance;
 Which bids you not let men approach too near,
 But keep the saucy fellows at a distance;
 Since men you find, so bold, are apt to seize
 Jewels from ladies, ev'n upon their knees!

AN ODE TO EIGHT CATS,

BELONGING TO ISRAEL MENDEZ, A JEW.

---

 SCENE, the Street in a Country Town.
The TIME, Midnight—The Poet at his Chamber Window, in his Shirt.

SINGERS of Israel, O ye fingers sweet,

Who, with your gentle mouths from ear to ear,
 Pour forth rich symphonies from street to street,
 And to the sleepless wretch the night endear!

Lo! in my shirt, on you these eyes I fix,
 Admiring much the quaintness of your tricks:

Your friskings, crawlings, squalls, I much approve;
 Your spittings, pawings, high-rais'd rumps,
 Swell'd tails, and merry-andrew jumps,
 With the wild minstrelsy of rapt'rous love.

How sweetly roll your gooseb'rry eyes,
 As loud you tune your am'rous cries,

And, loving, scratch each other black and blue!
 No boys in wantonnefs now bang your backs;
 No curs, nor fiercer mastiffs, tear your flax;
 But all the moon-light world seems made for you.

Singers of Israel, ye no parsons want
 To tie the matrimonial cord;
 Ye call the matrimonial service, cant—
 Like our first parents, take each other's word:
 On no one ceremony pleas'd to fix—
 To jump not even o'er two ficks.

You want no furniture, alas!
 Spit, spoon, dish, frying-pan, nor ladle;
 No iron, pewter, copper, tin, nor bras;
 No nurfes, wet or dry, nor cradle,
 (Which custom, for our Christian babes, enjoins)
 To rock the staring offspring of your loins.

Nor of the lawyers have you need,
 Ye males, before you seek your bed,
 To fettle pin-money on Madam:
 No tears of cucko!dom, heav'n blefs ye,
 Are ever harbour'd to distress ye,
 Tormenting people since the days of Adam.

No schools ye want for fine behaving;
 No powdering, painting, washing, shaving;
 No nightcaps snug—no trouble in undressing
 Before ye seek your strawy nest,
 Pleas'd in each other's arms to rest,
 To feast on luscious Love, heav'n's greatest blessing.

Good gods! ye sweet love-chanting rams!
 How nimble are ye with your hams
 To mount a house, to scale a chimney-top;
 And, peeping down that chimney's hole,
 Pour, in a tuneful cry, th' impassion'd soul,
 Inviting Miss GRIMALKIN to come up:

Who, sweet obliging female, far from coy,
 Answers your invitation note with joy;
 And, scorning 'midst the ashes more to mope,
 Lo! borne on LOVE's all-daring wing,
 She mounteth with a pickle-herring spring,
 Without th' assistance of a rope.

Dear mousing tribe, my limbs are waxing cold—
 Singers of Israel sweet, adieu, adieu!
 I do suppose you need not now be told
 How much I wish that I was one of you.

SONG TO DELIA.

FORLORN I seek the silent scene,
 To keep the image of my fair;
 Pale o'er the fountain's brink I lean,
 And view the spectre of despair.

Why should my heart forget its woe?
 The virgin would have mourn'd for me.—
 O nymph, th' eternal tear shall flow;
 The sigh unceasing breathe of thee.

Forgetful of the parted maid,
 Too many an unfeeling swain
 Forfakes of solitude the shade,
 For PLEASURE's gay and wanton train.

Yet, yet of constancy they boast!
 Their easy hearts their tongues belie—
 Who loves, reveres the fair-one's ghost,
 And seeks a pleasure in a sigh.

T H E T H I E F - T A K E R S .

SIR JOSEPH, fav'rite of great Queens and Kings,
 Whose wisdom, weed and insect hunter fings;
 And ladies fair applaud, with smile so dimpling;
 Went forth one day, amidst the laughing fields,
 Where NATURE such exhaustless treasure yields,
 A simpling!

It happen'd on the self-same morn so bright,
 The nimble pupils of Sir SAMPSON WRIGHT,
 A simpling too, for plants call'd Thieves, proceeded;
 Of which the nation's field should oft be weeded.

Now did a thief-taker, so fly,
 Peep o'er a hedge with cunning eye,
 And quick espy'd the Knight with solemn air,
 Deep in a ditch where watercresses grow;
 On which he to his comrades cry'd, "See, ho!"
 Then jump'd (unsportsman-like) upon his hare.

Hare-like Sir JOSEPH did not squeak, but bawl'd,
With dread prodigiously appall'd.

The thief-takers no ceremony us'd ;
But taking poor Sir JOSEPH by the neck,
They bade him speak ;
But first with names their captive Knight abus'd.

“ Sir, what d’ye take me for ? ” the Knight exclaim’d.—

“ A thief,” reply’d the runners, with a curse :

“ And now, Sir, let us search you, and be damn’d”—

And then they search’d his pockets, fobs, and purse

But, ’stead of pistol dire, and death-like crape,

A pocket handkerchief they cast their eye on,
Containing frogs and toads of various shape,

Dock, daisy, nettletop, and dandelion,

To entertain, with great propriety,

The members of his sage society :

Yet would not alter they their strong belief,

That this their knighted pris’ner was no thief!

“ Sirs, I’m no highwayman,” exclaim’d the Knight.—

“ No—there,” rejoin’d the runners, “ you are right—

“ A foot-

“ A footpad only—Yes, we know your trade—
 “ Yes, you’re a pretty babe of grace:
 “ We want no proofs, old codger, but your face;
 “ So come along with us, old blade.”

’Twas ufelefs to refift, or to complain:
 In vain, Sir JOSEPH pleaded—’twas in vain
 That he was highly titled, that he fwore—
 The infant that poor BANKS his titles counted,
 Which to an F. R. S. and Knight amounted,
 His guardians laugh’d, and clapp’d, and cry’d “encore.”

Sir JOSEPH told them, that a neighb’ring ’Squire
 Should anfwer for it that he was no thief:
 On which they plumply damn’d him for a liar,
 And faid fuch stories fhould not fave his beef;
 And if they underftood their trade,
 His mittimus would foon be made;
 And forty pounds be theirs, a pretty fum,
 For fending fuch a rogue to kingdom come.

Now to the ’Squire mov’d pris’ner Knight and Co.
 The runners taking him in tow,

Like privateers of Britain's warlike nation,
 Towing a French East-Indiaman, their prize,
 So black, and of enormous size,
 Safe into port for condemnation.

Whether they ty'd his hands behind his back,
 For fear the Knight might run away,
 And made, indelicate, his breeches slack,
 We've really no authority to say.

And now the country people gather'd round,
 And star'd upon the Knight in thought profound,
 Not on the system of Linnæus thinking—
 Fancying they saw a rogue in ev'ry feature ;
 Such is the populace's horrid nature
 Tow'rd's people through misfortune finking.

At length, amidst much mob and mire,
 Indeed amidst innumerable ranks,
 Fatigu'd, they reach'd the mansion of the 'Squire,
 To prove th' identity of JOSEPH BANKS.

Now to the 'Squire, familiar bow'd the Knight,
 Who knew Sir JOSEPH at first sight—

What's

What's strongly mark'd, is quickly known agen—
And, with a frown that awe and dread commanded,
The thief-takers severely reprimanded
For grossly thus mistaking gentlemen :

Then bade them ask a pardon on their knees,
Of him that was a Knight and F. R. S.
Who, rather than the higher pow'rs displease,
Imagin'd that they could not well do less.

Then on their knuckles rais'd they hands and eyes,
And crav'd Sir JOSEPH'S pardon for belief,
That, when they jump'd upon him by surprize,
They took so great a gemman for a thief ;
Hoping to mind th' advice of godly books,
Viz. not to judge of people by their looks.

S O L O M O N

A N D

T H E M O U S E - T R A P .

A MAN in rather an exalted station,
 Whose eyes are always eyes of admiration,
 Without distinction, fond of all things novel,
 Ev'n from the lofty sceptre to the shovel—
 Just like stray'd bullocks faunt'ring through the lanes,
 Made frequent curiosity-campaigns;
 Sometimes caught grafshoppers—now, more profound,
 Would sometimes find a pin upon the ground;
 Where if the head towards him happ'd to point,
     His mind was wonderfully struck—
 Indeed he felt a joy in ev'ry joint,
     Because it always brings good luck.

This gentleman, light SOLOMON, one day,
 In quest of novelty purf'd his way;
 Like great COLUMBUS, that fam'd navigator,
 Who found the world we've lost, across the water.
 But rather on a somewhat narrower scale,
 Lo! on dry land the GENTLEMAN fet fail:

That . . .

That day it chanc'd to be his will,
 To make discoveries at Salt-hill;
 Where bounce he hopp'd into a widow's house,
 Whose hands were both employ'd so clever,
 Doing their very best endeavour
 To catch that vile free-booter, Monsieur Mouse;
 Whose death she oft did most devoutly pray for,
 Because he eat the meat he could not pay for:

Resembling Christians in that saving trick,
 Who, wanting to obtain good cheer,
 Invented an ingenious scheme call'd tick,
 That purchases, like money, beef and beer:
 Possess'd of tick, for cash men need not range,
 Nor toil in taking or in giving change.

Eager did SOLOMON so curious clap
 His rare round optics on the widow's trap
 That did the duty of a cat;
 And always fond of useful information,
 Thus wisely spoke he with vociferation,
 "What's that!—What, what? hæ, hæ? what's that?"

To whom reply'd the mistress of the house,

“ A trap, an't please you, Sir, to catch a mouse.”

“ Mouse!—catch a mouse!” said SOLOMON with glee—

“ Let's see—let's see—'tis comical—let's see—

“ Mouse!—mouse!”—then pleas'd his eyes began to roll—

“ Where, where doth he go in?” he marvelling cry'd—

“ There,” pointing to the hole, the dame reply'd.

“ What! here? ” cry'd SOLOMON; “ this hole? this hole?”

Then in he push'd his finger 'midst the wire,

That with such pains that finger did inspire,

He wish'd it out again with all his soul:

However, by a little squall and shaking,

He freed his finger from its piteous taking—

That is to say, he got it from the hole.

“ What makes the mouse, pray, go into the trap?

“ Something,” he cry'd, “ that must their palates
please.”—

“ Yes,” answer'd the fair woman, “ Sir, a scrap

“ Of rusty bacon, or of toasted cheese.”

“ Oh

“ Oh! oh!” said SOLOMON, “ oh! oh! oh! oh!

“ Yes, yes, I see the meaning of it now:

“ The mouse goes in, a rogue, to steal the meat,

“ Thinking to give his gums a pretty treat.”

Then laugh'd he loudly, stretch'd his mouth a mile,

Which made the muscles of the widow smile.

“ Let's see, let's see,” cry'd SOLOMON—“ let's see—

“ Let me, let me, let me, let me, let me, let me.”

Then took he up some bacon, and did clap

A little slice so clever in the trap:

Thus did he, by his own sole, sage advice,

Induce himself to bait a trap for mice!

Now home he hied so nimbly, whirl'd with glory,

And told his family the wond'rous story

About the widow's cheese and bacon scrap!

Nought suffer'd he to occupy his head,

Save mouse-ideas, till he went to bed,

Where blest he dreamt all night about the trap:

Here let me pause, and Heav'n's great goodness

chaunt—

How kind it is in gracious Heav'n to grant

To full-grown gentlefolks of lofty station,
 A pow'r of relishing most trifling things,
 Pleasures ordain'd for brats in leading strings,
 By way of happy harmless relaxation !

Next day the Man of Wisdom came,
 All glorious, to the house of this fair dame,
 To know if Master Mouse had smelt to bacon
 When, lo ! to fill with joy his eager eyes,
 And load those staring optics with surprise,
 A real mouse was absolutely taken !

Not more did RODNEY'S joy this man's surpass,
 When in his cabin first he saw DE GRASSE !
 Not more the hair-brain'd Macedonian boy,
 Leap'd, like a Bedlamite, for joy,
 Than SOLOMON to see the mouse in jail !
 Not ALEXANDER, foe of great DARIUS,
 (Men that with rich comparison supply us)
 When blest he caught the Persian by the tail.

Around the room the captive mouse he bore,
 Insulting the poor pris'ner o'er and o'er ;
 Laughing, and peeping through the wire,
 As if his eyes and mouth would never tire !

How vastly like to TAMERLANE the Great,
 Possess'd of most unlucky BAJAZET,
 Who kept the vanquish'd hero in a cage;
 Mock'd him before his mighty host,
 With cruel names and threats, and grin and boast,
 And daily thus indulg'd imperial rage!

Now o'er the widow's cat, poor watching puss,
 The great man triumph'd too, and ask'd the cat,
 When he would act heroically thus—
 And if he dar'd to venture on a rat?

To whom the cat, as if in answer, mew'd,
 Which made the Man of Wisdom cry, "Oh! oh!"
 As if, with knowledge of cat-speech endu'd,
 He thought that puss had answer'd "No."
 On which he laugh'd, and much enjoy'd the joke—
 Then told the widow what GRIMALKIN spoke.

Six days the Man of Wisdom went
 Triumphant to Salt-hill, with big intent
 To catch the bacon-stealing mouse:
 Six mice successively proclaim'd his art,
 With which, safe pocketed, he did depart,
 And show'd to all his much-astonish'd house.

But pleasures will not last for aye;
 Witness the sequel of my lay:
 The widow's vanity, her sex's flaw,
     Much like the vanity of other people—
 A vapour, like the blast that lifts a straw,
     As high, or higher, than Saint Martin's steeple—

This vanity then kidnapp'd her discretion,
     Design'd by God Almighty for her guard;
 And of its purpose got the full completion,
     And all the widow's future glories marr'd:

For, lo! by this same vanity impell'd,
     And to a middle-fiz'd balloon,
 With gas of consequence sublimely swell'd,
     She bursted with th' important secret soon.

Loud laugh'd the tickled people of Salt-hill;
     Loud laugh'd the merry Windfor folks around;
 This was to SOLOMON an ugly pill!
     Her fatal error soon the widow found;
 For SOLOMON relinquish'd mouse-campaign,
 Nor deign'd to bait the widow's trap again!

PETITION TO TIME,

IN FAVOUR OF

THE DUCHESS OF DEVONSHIRE.

TOO long, O TIME, in Bienfiance's school,
 Have I been bred, to call thee an old fool;
 Yet take I liberty to let thee know,
 That I have always thought thee fo:
 Full old art thou, indeed, to have more sense;
 Then, with an idle custom, TIME, dispense.

Thou really actest now like little misses,
     Who, when a pretty doll they make,
     Their curious fingers itch to take
 The pretty image all to pieces:
 Thus, after thou hast form'd a charming FAIR,
     Thou canst not quit the Syren for thy foul,
 Till, meddling, thou hast spoil'd her bloom and air,
     And dimm'd her eye, with radiance taught to roll.

But now forbear such doings, I desire;
 Hurt not the form that all admire:

Oh, never with white hairs her temple sprinkle!
 Oh, sacred be her cheek, her lip, her bloom!
 And do not, in a lovely dimple's room,
 Place a hard mortifying wrinkle.

Know, shouldst thou bid the beautiful Duchesse fade,
 Thou, therefore, must thy own delights invade;
 And know, 'twill be a long, long while,
 Before thou giv'st her equal to our ile:
 Then do not with this sweet chef-d'œuvre part,
 But keep, to show the triumph of thy art.

---

E C O N O M Y.

ECONOMY's a very useful broom;
 Yet should not ceaseless hunt about the room
 To catch each straggling pin to make a plumb,
 Too oft ECONOMY's an iron vice,
 That squeezes ev'n the little guts of mice,
 That peep with fearful eyes, and ask a crumb.

Proper

Proper ECONOMY's a comely thing ;
 Good in a subject—better in a King ;

Yet, push'd too far, it dulls each finer feeling,
 Most easily inclin'd to make folks mean ;
 Inclines them, too, to villany to lean,
 To over-reaching, perjury, and stealing.

Ev'n when the heart should only think of grief,
 It creeps into the bosom like a thief,
 And swallows up th' affections all so mild—
 Witness the Jewess, and her only Child.

---

THE JEWESS AND HER SON.

POOR Mistress LEVI had a luckless son,
 Who, rushing to obtain the foremost feat,
 In imitation of th' ambitious great,
 High from the gall'ry, ere the play begun,
 He fell all plump into the pit,
 Dead in a minute as a nit :
 In a short, he broke his pretty Hebrew neck ;
 Indeed and very dreadful was the wreck !

The

The mother was distracted, raving, wild;
 Shriek'd, tore her hair, embrac'd and kifs'd her child;

Afflicted ev'ry heart with grief around.

Soon as the show'r of tears was somewhat past,
 And moderately calm th' hysteric blast,

She cast about her eyes in thought profound;
 And being with a saving knowledge blefs'd,
 She thus the playhouse-manager address'd:

“ Sher, I'm de moder of de poor Chew lad,

“ Dat meet mishfartin here so bad—

“ Sher, I mufs haf de shilling back, you know,

“ Afs MOSES haf nat see de show.”

BUT as for AV'RICE, 'tis the very devil;

The fount, alas! of ev'ry evil;

The cancer of the heart—the worst of ills:

Wherever fown, luxuriantly it thrives;

No flow'r of virtue near it thrives—

Like Aconite, where'er it spreads, it kills.

In ev'ry foil behold the poison spring!
 Can taint the beggar, and infect the king.

The mighty MARLB'ROUGH pilfer'd cloth and bread;
 So says that gentle satirist 'Squire POPE;
 And PETERBOROUGH'S Earl, upon this head,
 Affords us little room to hope,
 That what the Twick'nam Bard avow'd,
 Might not be readily allow'd.

---

THE EARL OF PETERBOROUGH

AND

THE MOB.

THROUGH London streets upon a day,
 The Earl of PETERBOROUGH took his way,
 All in his pompous coach—perhaps to dine:
 The mob of London took it in their head,
 This was the Duke of MARLBOROUGH, so dread
 To Frenchmen on the Danube and the Rhine.

Unable

Unable such high merit to reward,
 The mob resolv'd to show a great regard ;
 And so, uniting, join'd their forces
 To draw his carriage, and dismiss the horses.

The Earl from out the window pok'd his face,
 And told the mob that he was not his Grace ;
     Then bid them be convinc'd, and look :
 Hard of belief, as ev'n the hardest Jew,
 They plumply told him that they better knew ;
     Then swore by 'G— he was the Duke ;
 Then threw their hats in air with loud huzzas,
 And, shouting, form'd a thunder of applause.

Loud bawl'd the Earl that they were all deceiv'd ;
 Loud bawl'd the mob he should not be believ'd :
     “ Zounds !” cry'd the Earl, “ be converts, then,
        this minute ;”
 So throwing sixpence to them, “ There, there, there,
 “ Take that,” cry'd PETERBOROUGH, with a sneer—
     “ Now if you think I'm be, the devil's in it.”

ODE TO A DISTRESSED BEAUTY.

SWEET girl, forbear to droop thy head with shame—
 What though the parson did not tie the knot?
 What though the boy should come?—he'll bring thee fame—

The world's an ass, and custom is a fot—
 Hold up thy head, and meet mankind with pride,
 And throw thy blushes and thy fears aside.

EVE had no parson—for no priest was ADAM,
 And yet not out of countenance was Madam:
 Her modesty receiv'd no grievous shocks,
 When Master CAIN was put upon the stocks;
 Nor when, t' increase the number at her table,
 She fet about the frame of Master ABEL.

Once more, then, do not be afraid:
 Without thy boy, a wonder may be missing;
 A likeness of my charming maid,
 The boy may do a credit to thy kissing.

Thou

Thou putt'st me of the MORNING much in mind,
Who seems afraid to peep upon mankind;
So slow her motions! all so very slow!
And then her cheeks so deep with crimson glow:

But safe deliver'd of her boy, the SUN,
The lusty lad, so proud his race to run,
Mounts high, exulting in his birth;
Dries up her tears, her blushes puts to flight,
Tow'rs in bold triumph o'er the cloud of night,
And pours a flood of radiance o'er the earth.

Then let me kiss away thy tears;
Oh! cease thy sighs, and be a happy mother;
And when this chopping boy appears,
Suppose we give the lad a little brother?

THE GENTLEMAN

AND

HIS WIFE.

PEOPLE may have too much of a good thing:
Full as an egg of wisdom, thus I sing!

---

A MAN of some small fortune had a wife,
Sans doute, to be the comfort of his life;
And pretty well they bore the yoke together:
With little jarring liv'd the pair one year;
Sometimes the matrimonial sky was clear;
At times 'twas dark, and dull, and hazy weather.

Now came the time when mistress in the straw
Did, for the world's support, her screams prepare;
And SLOP appear'd, with fair obstetric paw,
To introduce his pupil to our air;
Whilst in a neighb'ring room the husband sat,
Musing on this thing now, and now on that;

Now fighting at the sorrows of his wife;
 Praying to Heav'n that he could take the pain;
 But recollecting that such pray'rs were vain,
 He made no more an offer of his life.

Alone, as thus he mus'd in solemn study,
 Ideas sometimes clear, and sometimes muddy,
 In BETTY rush'd with comfortable news:
 "Sir, Sir, I wish ye joy, I wish ye joy;
 "Madam is brought to bed of a fine boy,
 "As fine as ever stood in shoes."

"I'm glad on't, BETTY," cry'd the master:
 "I pray there may be no disaster;
 "All's with your mistress, well, I hope?"
 Quoth she, "All's well as heart can well desire
 "With Madam and the fine young 'Squire;
 "So likewise says old DOCTOR SLOP."

Off BETTY hurried fast as she could scour,
 Fast and as hard as any horse
 That trottest fourteen miles an hour—
 A pretty tolerable course.

Soon happy BETTY came again,
 Blowing with all her might and main;
 Just like a grampus, or a whale;
 In founds, too, that would Calais reach from Dòvèr:
 “ Sir, Sir, more happy tidings; ’tis not over—
 “ And Madam’s brisker than a nightingale:

“ A fine young lady to the world is come,
 “ Squalling away just as I left the room:
 “ Sir, this is better than a good estate.”
 “ Humph,” quoth the happy man, and scratch’d his pate.

Now gravely looking up—now looking down;
 Not with a smile, but somewhat like a frown—
 “ Good God,” says he, “ why was not I a cock,
 “ Who never feels of burd’ning brats the flock;
 “ Who, Turk-like, struts amidst his madams,
 “ Whilst to the ben belongs the care [picking,
 “ To carry them to eat, or take the air,
 “ Or bed beneath her wing the chicken?”

Just as this sweet soliloquy was ended,
 He found affairs not greatly mended;

For in bounc'd BET, her rump with rapture jiggling:
 " Another daughter, Sir—a charming child."—
 " Another!" cry'd the man, with wonder wild;
 " Zounds! BETTY, ask your Miftrefs if she's pig-
ging."

THE PARSON-DEALER.

WHAT pity 'tis, in this our goodly land,
 Amongst the apostolic band,

So ill divided are the loaves and fishes!
 Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, and Deacons,
 With ruddy faces blazing just like beacons,
 Shall daily cram upon a dozen dishes;
 Whilst half th' inferior Cassocks think it well,
 Of beef and pudding ev'n to get the smell.

A plodding Hottler willing to be master,
 And rise in this good world a little faster,
 Left broom and manger at the Old Blue Boar;
 Meaning by parsoning to support a table,
 Lo, of Divines he kept a liv'ry stable;
 A pretty stud, indeed—about a score.

Of diff'rent colours were his Gospel hacks ;
Some few were whites, indeed—but many blacks :

That is, some tolerable—many fad ;
And verily, to give the Devil his due,
The man did decency pursue,
Which shows he was not quite so bad.

For, lo! to dying persons of nobility,
He sent his parsons of gentility,
To give the necessary pray'r :
To parting people of a mean condition,
Wanting a foul phyfician,
He futed them with blackguards to a hair.

To such as were of mild diforders dying,
Viz. of the doctor, gouts, or ftones, or gravels,
He sent good priests—of manners edifying—
To comfort finners on their travels :

But to low people in infectious fever,
Or any other dangerous one in vogue,
Such was his honesty, the man for ever
Most scrupuloufly sent a rogue.

It happen'd, on a day when FATE was raging,
Crimp-like, for other regions, troops engaging,

When clergymen were busy all as bees,
 A poor old dying woman fent
 To this fame parson-monger, compliment,
 Begging a clergyman her foul to ease.

Unluckily but one was in the stall,
 And he the very best of all.—

What should be done?

Necessitas non habet legs—

So to the priest he goes, and begs
 That he would visit the old crone.

“ Sir, quoth the parson, “ I agreed
 “ To go to gentlefolks in time of need,
 “ But not to ev’ry poor old lousy foul.”—
 “ True,” cry’d the patron; “ to be sure ’tis true:
 “ But parson, do oblige me—prithee do—
 “ Let’s put her decently into the hole:
 “ All my black tribe, you know, are now abroad—
 “ I’d do it, if I could, myself, by G-d;
 “ Then what a dickens can I do or say?”
 “ Go, mumble, man, about a pray’r and half;
 “ Tell the old b--ch her soul is safe;
 “ Then take your fee, and come away!!!”

B I E N S É A N C E.

THERE is a little moral thing in France,
 Call'd by the natives Bienfiance :
 Much are the English mob inclin'd to scout it,
 But rarely is Monsieur Canaille without it.

To Bienfiance 'tis tedious to incline,
     In many cafes ;
 To flatter, par exemple, keep smooth faces
 When kick'd, or suff'ring grievous want of coin.

To vulgars, Bienfiance may seem an oddity.
 I deem it a most portable commodity ;
     A sort of magic wand ;
 Which, if 'tis us'd with ingenuity,
 Although an utensil of much tenuity,
     In place of something solid, it will stand.

For verily I've marvell'd times enow
 To see an Englishman, the ninny,
 Give people for their services a guinea,
     Which Frenchmen have rewarded with a bow.

Bows are a bit of Bienféance
 Much practis'd too in that fame France ;
 Yet call'd by Quakers, children of inanity :
 But as they pay their court to people's vanity,
 Like rolling-pins they smooth where'er they go
 The souls and faces of mankind, like dough !
 With some, indeed, may Bienféance prevail
 To folly—see the under-written tale.

THE PETIT-MAITRE

AND

THE MAN ON THE WHEEL.

AT Paris, some time since, a murd'ring man,
 A German, and a most unlucky chap,
 Sad, stumbling at the threhold of his plan,
 Fell into Madam JUSTICE's strong trap.

The bungler was condemn'd to grace the wheel,
 On which the dullest fibres learn to feel ;

His

His limbs secundum artem to be broke
Amidst ten thousand people, p'rhaps, or more.

Whenever Monsieur Ketch apply'd a stroke,
The culprit, like a bullock, made a roar.

A flippant Petit-maitre, skipping by,
Stepp'd up to him, and check'd him for his cry:
“ Boh !” quoth the German ; “ an't I 'pon de wheel ?
“ D' ye tink my nerfs, an blood, and bons can't feel ?”

“ Sir,” quoth the beau, “ don't, don't be in a passion ;
“ I've nought to say about your situation ;
“ But making such a hideous noise in France,
“ Fellow, is contrary to Bienféance.”

THE TRIUMPH OF ISIS;

OR,

DOCTOR CHAPMAN'S THESIS.

OXFORD's Vice-Chancellor, a man
 Who fear'd the Lord, and lov'd the courtier clan,
 By virtue of his trade a THESIS* order'd,
 Which curs'd the terrible affassination
 Intended for the Monarch of our nation
 By MARG'RET NICHOLSON, in mind disorder'd;
 That likewise prais'd the royal peep
 On Oxford and the arts so deep.

So violent was Doctor CHAPMAN's zeal,
 He quite forgot Latinity and graces;
 Poor Priccian's head, whose wounds he cannot heal,
 Was broken in half a dozen places.

Yet, though a simple Doctor, how amazing!
 He set the Univerfity a blazing:

Such

* A Latin Thesis is annually given out by the Vice-Chancellor for the subject of a Poem, and twenty pounds allotted to the prize candidate.

Such was the kindling zeal that he inherits—
A farthing candle in a cask of spirits!

Richards of Trinity, who won the prize,
Now strutted victor forth with scornful eyes;
Bringing to mind the bards and tuneful dames
Who vied for conquest at th' Olympic games.

Forth march'd, too, Vice—videlicet, the Doctor,
Who, purring for preferment, flily moufes,
Attended by each dog-whipper, call'd Proctor,
And eke the heads and tails of all the Houses.

Forth march'd the Nobles in their Sunday's geer;
Forth strutted, too, each beadle, like the Peer,
With silver staves, blue gowns, and velvet caps;
A set of very pompous-looking chaps!

Whilst Hayes,* who sticks like stag-hounds to a haunch,
Mov'd on in all the majesty of paunch:
To greet of all our ears the trembling drums,
The piper play'd 'The conqu'ring hero comes.'

Loud groan'd the organ through his hundred pipes,
As if the poor machine had felt the gripes;

As

* The organist.

As if, too, 'twas the organ's firm persuasions,
He oft had roar'd on more sublime occasions.

NOW CHAPMAN took, 'midst great compeers, his CREW open'd subject in a fair oration;        [station;
Then clapp'd was CREW—to him applause was
Now 'gan the BARD his poem to recite,        [news.
And, foaring, bade poor Common Sense good night,
So lofty were the pinions of his Muse!

Thick as the pattering hail his praises show'r;
So strong is POETRY'S mechanic pow'r,
High mounts the Monarch by his tuneful lever;
His Muse's magnifying art so great,
Behold his George, an Alfred form complete;
Small Peg, Goliath; and her knife a cleaver!

Now back the fable bodies mov'd again,
Like beetles all so thick, a crawling host;
Whilst contemplation wrapp'd the loyal train,
Expecting, by the next day's post,
To see their acts in pompous print display'd,
And wreaths of glory crown the cavalcade!

A SERIOUS REFLECTION.

HOW ufelefs was th' above ! each perfon grieves,
 And, with the grieving Doctor, cries out shame,
 That fo much loyal zeal for nought fhould flame :
 Not ev'n obtain a pair of coarfe lawn sleeves,
 Which poor Saint David giveth to fupport
 The holy oil-of-fool men of a Court !

ODE TO PATIENCE.

SWEET daughter of Religion, modeft fair,
 Thy hands upon thy bofom fo tranquille,
 With eyes to Heav'n, with fo divine an air,
 So calmly fmiling, fo refign'd thy will ;
 Oh, fent to teach us, and our paffions cool,
 I wifh thou hadft a little larger fchool.

Lo, man, fo great his want of grace,
 If he but cuts a pimple on his face

When

When shaving ;
 Like man bewitch'd he jumps about,
 Kicks up a most infernal rout,
 And seemeth absolutely raving ;
 And, lo, all this for want of thy tuition :
 Thus travel fouls of people to perdition !

Stand at my side, O stoic dame !
 On staring MARTYN bid me cry out " shame,"
 Instead of knocking the dull fellow down ;
 When up the ninnyhammer starts to preach,
 And impudently interrupts a speech
 Of orators of fair and first renown,
 Just like the owl that scares the moonlight hour,
 Whilst Philomela warbles from her bow'r.

And, oh ! attend me when my eyes
 View dedications fill'd with fulsome lies,
 In praise of gen'rous Queens and Kings !
 Heav'n swell the fountains of their hearts,
 That seldom water the poor shrivell'd arts,
 However sweetly ADULATION sings !

Eke, when I hear that stupid Parson HILL,
 God's house with ev'ry nonsense fill,

And

And then with blasphemy each sentence cramm'd;
 And when I hear th' impostor cry,
 " I've news, ye raggamuffins, from the sky;
 " I'm come to tell ye, that you'll all be damn'd;
 " I'm come from God, ye strumpets—come from God—
 " I'm God Almighty's fervant—hear my voice."—
 Which, if it were so, would be vastly odd,
 Since Heav'n would show bad judgment in the choice.

Dead all his money-loving soul's desires,
 When subtle HAWKESB'RY talks of patriot fires,
 And yielding places up to save the nation;
 When of importance braggeth simple LEEDS;
 When GLO'STER's far-fam'd wife for meekness pleads;
 And GLO'STER's Duke breathes war and defolation:

When BRUDENELL talks of elegance and ease;
 When THURLOW turns the first of devotees,
 And, to astound the million, builds a church;
 When royal folk of purest friendship boast,
 Make generosity their constant toast,
 Yet leave poor pining MERIT in the lurch;

When

When wonders through his spyglasses MARLB'ROUGH views,
 And sends to BANKS the great, th' important news,
 Fresh from his cranium's philosophic fogs;
 When DICK decants on any thing but croute;
 When THOMPSON ought performs beyond a scout,
 And MAWBAY talks of any thing but hogs;
 Sweet PATIENCE, sooth me with thy faint-like note,
 Or, driv'n to madness, I shall cut my throat!

TO A NEST OF LORDS.

BEDCHAMBER utensils, ye seem distress'd,
 And swear with horror that my rhymes molest
 Of certain folks so great the sweet repose;
 Running about with horrors, groans, and sighs,
 And floods, produc'd by onions in your eyes,
 So strong your friendship, and so vast your woes!

Dear humming Lords, on friendship bray no more,
 Nor thus the Bard's depravity deplore:

Lo!

Lo! like yourselves, each man his trumpet bears,
 In tame CREDULITY's wide-gaping ears,
 Of friendship the sublimity to found;
 Friendship! in dictionaries only found!

Perchance, my Lords, in foreign parts you've been;
Perchance your optics fair Versailles have seen;
 Likewise the Vatican, with all its state;
 And eke th' Escorial, pride of Spain confest:
 But, 'midst those scences, did e'er your eyeballs blest
 See a pig hanging in a gate?

If e'er you did this last great fight behold,
 You need not, Lords so sapient, to be told
 What most untuneful notes the pris'ner makes:
 Indeed the hog his mouth and lungs employs
 In raising such ear-crucifying noise,
 As if he really was transfix'd with stakes.

Now near him should there happen to be hogs
 Passing their happy hours amidst the bogs,
 Grunting soft things to their own flesh and blood;
 That is, unto their sweethearts and their brides,
 Lying like ancient Romans on their sides,
 And dining on the dainties of the mud;

Forgetting

Forgetting love, and dainty mud so fatt'ning,
 In which they had been batt'ning,
     Up leaps the herd of swine for his protection;
 Just like the herd that had the devil,
 Away they scamper, all so civil,
     Resolving or to free him or to die:
     Such is of swine the friendly quality,
     Although proverbial for brutality!

But when, at Newgate to be hung,
 A Christian pours a dying song,
     I grant that numbers hasten to the wretch,
 Most pig-like—but, alas! lift not a hand
 To keep him longer in the land,
     And snatch him from the talons of Jack Ketch.

No; on the contrary, so fond their eyes
 Of seeing how a brother dies,
 I, from the bottom of my soul, believe
 They would not wish him a reprieve.

Thus, were your good friend PITT condemn'd to swing;
     Nay, ev'n were greater people I could name,
     For whom with goodly zeal ye seem to flame;
 I don't believe you'd wish to cut the string,

Were ye but tolerably fure
The next in pow'r w<sup>d</sup>ould give you fixpence more.

Learn then, my Lords, (though with contempt ye treat 'em)
Friendship from hogs, as well as eat 'em.

AT length my subjects end; and now
To FOLLY let me make my best Court bow.
O Goddess! still monopolize the GREAT:
Then oft, to please the palate of the times,
The Muse shall ride to market with her rhymes,
And thrive upon her Helicon estate.

With JUVENAL poor fellow, let us pray !

EPISTLE DEDICATORY.

MY LORDS,

YOUR UNCOMMON ATTENTION to my late publications demands a return of gratitude. Permit me to present to your LORDSHIPS the following Lyric Trifles, which, if possessed of merit sufficient to preserve them from oblivion, will inform Posterity that you existed.

I am, my LORDS,

EXPOSTULATORY ODES.

O D E I.

MOST noble Peers, there goes an odd report,
That you, prime fav'rites of an honest Court,
Are hunting treason 'midst my publications;
Hunting, like bloodhounds, with the keenest noses,
Which hound-like hunting nat'rally supposes
The Bard dares satirize the KING OF NATIONS.

Ye sharp state-moufers, with your watering jaws,
God keep me from the vengeance of your claws!
An Asiatic fight may be renew'd:
What feathers flying, what a field of blood,
'Twixt falcon BURKE and SHERIDAN, so brave,
And heron HASTINGS, such a dainty dish,
So wont to cram on Asiatic fish,
The largest, fattest of the eastern wave!

Yes, yes, I hear that ye have watch'd my note,
And wish'd to squeeze my tuneful throat ;
When THURLOW your designs most wisely scouted,
Swearing the Poet should not yet be knouted.

Thus when grimalkin in its cage espies
A linnet or canary-bird, so sweet ;
The scoundrel lifts, so sanctified, his eyes,
Contriving how the warbler's back to greet :

He squints, and licks his lips, stalks round and round,
Twinkling with mischief fraught his tiger tail ;
Now on his rump he sits, in thought profound,
Looks up with hungry wishes to affail ;
When sudden enters master with a roar,
And kicks the scheming murderer to door.

O D E II.

RIGHT honest watch-dogs of the State,
I like to smile at Kings, but treason hate.

Most busy JENKINSON, BUTE'S once best friend,
A praise that stamps a character divine;
Believe not thus the Poet can offend;
Ye gods! can PETER pour th' unloyal line?

I PETER, perpetrate so foul a thing!
I offer mischief to so good a King!
Now be it known to all the realms around,
I would not lose my LIEGE for twenty pound!

Mild OSBORNE, softer than the down of goose,
I beg thou wilt not let suspicion loose;
If so, of history I'll turn compiler—
Divulge some tame amours with Mistress CUYLER:
So tame, indeed, so singularly stupid,
As gave a blush to little pimping Cupid!

O Heav'ns! can JENKINSON and OSBORNE long,
Foes to the Muse, to cut out PETER'S tongue?
Arm'd with the Jove-like thunders of the crown,
To knock with those dread bolts a simple Poet down?

L: I into life against my will I tumbled ;
 And, says my nurse, I made a horrid clatter ;
 Kick'd, sprawl'd, and sputter'd, gap'd, and cry'd, and grumbled,
 Quite angry, seemingly, with Mother NATURE ;

Who, queen-like, thinking all she does is right,
 Against my wishes lugg'd me into light ;
 And what is harder, and worse manners still,
 She'll kick me out of it against my will.

Yet since on this world's theatre I'm thrown,
 Which with my temper now begins to suit ;
 And since its drama pleases, I must own
 I should be sorry to remain a mute ;
 Inclined to say, like BECKFORD, undeterr'd,
 " By G— I'll speak, and d-mme I'll be heard."*

My Lords, I fain would live a little longer ;
 For lo! desire, as to a bosom wife,
 Undoubtedly the greatest bliss of life,
 Hath taken deeper root and stronger.

Would

* The House of Commons frequently resounded with those emphatic expressions of the late angry patriotic Alderman, when gentlemen, by scraping, hemming, coughing, and groaning, (to adopt the phraseology of my old friend Dr. Johnson) meant to oppugn the impetuosity of pecuniary arrogance, and annihilate the ebullition of pertinacious loquacity.

Would HE who made the world look down, and say,

“ PETER, wilt live on earth a thousand years ? ”

“ Lord, Lord, ” I should delighted roar away,

“ Ten thousand, if to thee it meet appears. ”

“ So long ! what for ? ” the Deity may cry.

“ O great Divinity, quoth I,

“ A thousand reasons ; principally one,

“ To see the present Prince of Wales,

“ Whom many an aspic tongue affails,

“ Aloft on Britain’s envied throne ;

“ Where half the Monarchs that have fat before

“ Have only fat to eat, and drink, and snore ;

“ To blast, nay damn the credit of the age,

“ And load with folly Hist’ry’s blushing page. ”

And, JENKINSON, should thy hard face behold

A GEORGE THE FOURTH upon the throne,

Adieu at once thy age of gold !

Behold thy hopes of higher honours gone !

Then get thyself an Earldom quick, quick, quick,

For fear of FORTUNE’S wild vagaries ;

Thus shall thy daughters all, like mushrooms thick,

Rise Lady JOANS and MADGES, NELLS and MARYS.

O D E III.

I OWN I love the PRINCE—his virtues charm
 I know the youth receiv'd from heav'n a heart :
 In friendship's cause I know his bosom warm,
 That maketh certain folk with wonder start.

'Tis true that from my foul the man I hate,
 Immers'd in mammon, and by mis'ry got ;
 Who, to complete his dinner, licks his plate,
 And wishes to have ev'ry thing for nought :

Who, if he gam'd, the dice would meanly cog ;
 Rob the blind beggar's scrip, and starve his dog :
 And that there are such wretches near a throne,
 Degraded NATURE tells it with a groan.

Perdition catch the money-grasping wretch,
 With hook-like fingers ever on the stretch,
 Who, fighting, vents on CHARITY a curse,
 That asks, for WANT, a penny from his purse !

The

The heart that lodges in that miser's breast,
For money, feels the hunger of the shark;
Resembling, too, the rusty iron chest
That holds his idol—close, and hard, and dark.

Give me the youth who dares at times unbend ;
And, scorning MODERATION's prude-like stare,
Can to her teeth, and to the world, declare,
Ebriety a merit with a friend.

When FRIENDSHIP draws the corks, and bids the dome
With mirth and fallies of the foul, resound ;
When FRIENDSHIP bids the bowl o'erflowing foam,
Till MORNING eyes the board with plenty crown'd ;
Behold the VIRTUES that sublimely foar,
Instead of meanly damning, cry "Encore."

O D E IV.

WITH you, my Lords, I'm ev'ry thing that's evil;
 There's scarce a crime I've not committed;
 The very effence of the devil;
 Deserving by the demon to be spitted,

Just like a turkey, goose, or duck,
 Prepar'd by Joan the cook to go to fire;
 So wanton have you both been pleas'd to pluck
 The swan who beats in song his Theban fire.

Of ev'ry quality am I bereft—
 Not even the shadow of a virtue left;
 Not one finall moral feather in my wings,
 When dead, to lift me to the King of Kings.

My Lords, beware—by mouthing oft my name
 Unwisely, ye may damn me into fame:
 By letting thus your spleen on PETER loose,
 He builds triumphal arches on abuse!

In vain the BARD turns oculist, and tries
 To purge the film from this world's darken'd eyes:

In vain to Printers and to Printers devils
 I fly, and advertife to cure King's Evils:
 With huge contempt ye look on me, alack!
 My nostrums curse, and call the BARD a quack.

In general, authors are fuch coward things,
 They fear to fpeak their sentiments of Kings,
     Till thofe fame Kings are dead; and then the crowd,
 (Juft like a pack of hounds) historian, bard,
 With throats of thunder run his mem'ry hard,
     And try to tear him piecemeal from his fhroud.

Now, if we wifh a Monarch to reclaim,
     In God's name let us fpeak before he's dead;
 Or elfe 'tis ten to one we mifs our aim,
     By ftaying till the FATES have cut his thread:
 After this operation of their knife,
 I ne'er knew reformation in my life.

And yet, what is the greateft King when dead,
 When duft and worms his eyes and ears o'erfpread,
 And low he lies beneath the ftone?
 The man who millions call'd his own,
 Howe'er his fpectre may be willing,
 Cannot give change t'ye for a fhilling!

O D E V.

YOUR taunting voices now, my Lords, I hear,
 And thus they grate the poet's loyal ear :

“ BARD, we are both superior to thy lays ;

“ Deaf to thy censure, and despise thy praise.

“ Know that our Monarch lifts his head sublime

“ Beyond the reach of groveling rhyme,

“ An Atlas, hiding midst the thickest clouds ;

“ Whilst thou, a beetle, doom'd to buzz below,

“ In circles, envious, rambling to and fro,

“ Survey'ft the shining mist, his head that shrouds.

“ Thy rhymes, insulting Kings with pigmy pride,

“ Are like the sea's mad waves that make a pother,

“ Wild rushing on some promontory's side,

“ One noisy blockhead following another :

“ The stately promontory seems to say,

“ Aspiring fools, go back again, go home :

At once the shoulder'd bullies, dash'd away,

“ Sink from his lofty side in fruitless foam.

“ Thou,

- “ Thou, with rabscallions like thyself,
 “ A poor opiated fenfelefs elf,
 “ Letting on Kings thy pen licentious loofe,
 “ Art like an impudent lane goofe,
 “ Who, as the trav’ler calmly trots along,
 “ Starts from amongst his flock, an ill-bred throng,
 “ Waddling with pok’d-out neck, and voice fo coarfe,
 “ As if to fwallow up the man and horfe :
 “ With rumpled feathers to the fteed he fteals,
 “ And, like a coward, fnaps him by the heels :
 “ Then to his gang, with flapping pinions hobbling,
 “ The fool erect returns Te Deum gobbling,
 “ And from each brother’s greeting gullet draws
 “ The mingled triumph of a coarfe applaufe,
 “ As if the trotting enemies were beaten,
 “ And man and palfry fairly kill’d and eaten.

 “ Poor rogue, thou haft not got the trifling fpirit
 “ To own thy King e’er did one act of merit.”

My Lords, with great fubmiffion to your fenfe.
 Giving the lie, yet hoping no offence ;
 An act is his my heart with rapture hails—

GEORGE gave the world the PRINCE OF WALES ;

A Prince, who, when he fills Old England's throne,
 The VIRTUES and fair SCIENCE shall furround it;
 And when he quits the sceptre, all shall own
 He left it as unfullied as he found it.

O D E VI.

GREAT was the Bard's desire to sing the Queen,
 Vast in her soul, majestic in her mien:
 But fierce GEORGE HARDINGE* swore if pens or pen,
 Of woman, women, man, or men,
 In any wife or shape, in ode or tale,
 Dar'd mention that superior Lady, lo!
 The law should deal them such a blow!—
 Hang, pill'ry, or confine for life in jail!

And as a kite, on whom the small birds stare,
 That tow'ring critic of the air,
 Is oft beset by tribes of rooks and crows,
 Amidst the crystal fields of heav'n;
 By whose hard beaks and wings, no common foes,
 Sad knocks to gentle kite are giv'n;

Surrounded

* Solicitor to the Queen.

Surrounded thus amidst that lofty hall,
 Nam'd Westminster, the gentle Bard
 Might of the fable legions taste the gall:
 He, therefore, wisely means to play his card;
 The Poet's quidlibet audendi waves,
 And thus his hide an old companion faves.

Ah, me! the legislators of Parnassus,
 In liberty, though Englishmen, surpass us!
 What's found at Hippocrene, the Poet's SPA,
 Is not, I ween, at Westminster, found law!

Parnassus never with rare GENIUS wars;
 But aiding, lifts its head to strike the stars:
 At Westminster how different is his fate!
 Where if he soars sublime, and boldly sings,
 The sheers of Law, like FATE's, shall snip his wings,
 And bid him warble through an iron grate.

Perchance law-neckcloths, form'd of deal or oak,
 Like marriage, often an unpleasant yoke,
 Shall rudely hug his harmless throat,
 And stop his Apollinian note;
 The empire of fair Poetry o'erturning,
 And putting every gentle MUSE in mourning.

O D E VII.

YE tell me both, with grievous malice carping,
On one dull tune eternally I'm harping.

You would have said to MILTON just the same;
Who through twelve books the head of Satan maul'd;
Such names the prince of darkness call'd,
As must have made you roar out 'fame!'

Ye would (or greatly I mistake) have said,
"What! MILTON, always plaguing the poor Devil!
"For ever beating Nick about the head!
"How canst thou be so dev'lishly uncivil?"

"Was not one book sufficient for thy spleen,
"But must thou to a mummy beat him,
"And, like a pickpocket, so barb'rous treat him
"Through books a dozen or fourteen?"

Suppose these things ye could have utter'd,
And glorious MILTON, like a ninny,
Had answer'd, "There is sense and reason in ye—
"Thank ye, kind Gentlemen, for all you've utter'd;
"The

“ The hint you offer, not amifs is ;
 “ I’ll tear my Paradife to pieces.”

Suppofe I ask you, what had been the evil ?
 Believe me, fomething to the world’s fad coft :
 By fuch civility to fpare the Devil,
 My Lords, a fecond Iliad had been loft.

Thus from poor PETER take the GREAT away,
 Of fun ye rob him of cart-loads.
 What would his customers all do and fay ?
 Lord ! curfe you for the lofs of Odes.

You’ll fay, “ Let SATIRE meaner fubjects look.”
 Well, JENKY,* grant my faire flies at you,
 Who’d buy my melancholy vulgar book ?
 Adieu, fair FAME, and FORTUNE’S fmiles adieu !

But if we, daring, trim a royal jacket,
 Lord ! what a buying, reading ! what a racket !
 How fpruce the metamorphos’d bard appears !
 With what a confidence he pricks his ears !

Z 3

Who

* Here feemeth to be a contradiction ; but when the reader is informed that JENKY cannot without mockery be ranked amongft the GREAT, the myftery ftands explained.

Who juſt before, in piteous chop-fall'n plight,
 Look'd of the woeful face, LA MANCHA'S KNIGHT!

Who runs to ſee a monkey in a trap?
 But let the noble lion grace the gin,
 Lo! the whole world is out to ſee him ſnap,
 To hear him growl, and triumph o'er his grin!

Cut off the head of a great Lord,
 Not wifer than the head of a great gooſe,
 Tow'r-Hill at once with gapers will be ſtor'd,
 As if the world was all broke looſe:

But when a little villain haps to ſwing,
 What a poor ſolitary ſtring!
 How few by CURIOSITY are fetch'd
 To ſee the rope of Juſtice ſtretch'd!

Scarce any but the hangman and the prieſt,
 To do their duty at the culprit's ſide,
 With hemp and pray'rs his neck and ſoul aſſiſt,
 And wiſh the lonely trav'ler a good ride.

O D E VIII.

HARK! hark! I hear your courtier pair exclaim,
 “ This PETER is the most audacious dog;
 “ The fellow hath no rev’rence for a name—
 “ A King to him is scarce above a log.”
 Sometimes below* a log, Sirs, if you please;
 A bold assertion, to be prov’d with ease.

But, goodly Gentlemen, I do desire ye
 T’ avoid in this affair minute enquiry
 Concerning their respective merit;
 I fear less prudence will be seen than spirit:
 Logs universally are useful things;
 A postulatum not allow’d to Kings.

“ For us, on HONOUR’s pinnacle,” ye cry,
 “ Whose heads are nearly level with the sky,
 “ High basking in the blaze of regal pow’r;
 “ This PETER, seldom from rank pride exempt,
 “ Calls us, with scowling eyes of fix’d contempt,
 “ A pair of jackdaws perch’d upon a tow’r.

Z 4

“ Arch-

* A few foreign Monarchs justify the Poet’s assertion.

“ Archbishops, bishops, servants of the Lord,
 “ Head servants, too, who preach the purest word,
   “ With waving hands enforcing goodly matter,
 “ No more by him, the scorner, are accounted
 “ Than imp-like sweepers on their chimneys mounted,
   “ That wield their brush, and to the vulgar chatter.”

True, my dear Lords—for merit only warm,
Me, rank and trappings long have ceas'd to charm;
 And yet, their eyes the stupid million bless,
 For barely getting sights of rank and dress!

When Judges a campaigning go,
   And on their benches look so big,
 What gives them consequence, I trow,
   Is nothing but a bushel wig:

Yet bumpkins, gaping with a bullock stare,
 See lofty learning lodg'd in ev'ry hair.
 But heads, not hair, my admiration draw;
 Not wigs, but wisdom, strikes my soul with awe.

O D E IX.

THE man who printeth his poetic fits,
 Into the Public's mouth his head commits;
 Too oft a lion's mouth, of danger full,
 Or flaming mouth of PHALARIS's bull:
 He pours the sad repentant groan in vain:
 The cruel world but giggles at his pain.

For lo! our world, so savage in its nature,
 Would rather see a fellow under water,
 Or, from the attic story of a house,
     Fall down soufe
 Upon a set of curfed iron spikes,
 Than see him with the blooming lasfs he likes,
 Blest on a yielding bed of down or roses,
 Where LOVE's fond couples often join their noses.

Upon me what a host I've got!
 Who by their black abuses boil their pot.
 Ay, that's the reason—wide-mouth'd HUNGER calls;
 And from the hollows of each stomach bawls!

Thus

Thus the poor filk-worms, born to bless mankind,
 Whilst for the shiv'ring world the robe they spin,
 In ev'ry ring a thousand insects find,
 Gnawing voraciously their harmless skin.

And thus the lambs, whose useful fleeces treat
 With coats and blankets people of all stations,
 By preying maggots are beset,
 Harb'ring whole stinking nations;
 Which, from their backs, the crows so kindly pick,
 Enough to make a Christian sick.

Oh, would some critic crow but eat the pack
 Now nestling in my lyric back,
 That daily in their hofts increase,
 And try to spoil the finest fleece!
 Why am I persecuted for my rhymes,
 That kindly try to cobble Kings and times?

To mine, CHARLES CHURCHILL'S rage was downright rancour:

He was a first-rate man-of-war to me,
 Thund'ring amidst a high tempestuous sea;
 I'm a small cockboat bobbing at an anchor;
 Playing

Playing with patereroes that alarm,
Yet scorn to do a bit of harm.

My satire's blunt—his boasted a keen edge ;
A sugar-hammer mine—but his a blacksmith's sledge !

And then that JUNIUS ! what a scalping fellow !
Who dar'd such treason and sedition bellow !

Compar'd to them, whose pleasure 'twas to stab,
Lord ! I'm a melting med'ar to a crab !

My humour of a very diff'rent fort is :
Their satire's horrid hair-cloth ; mine is silk ;
I am a pretty nipperkin of milk ;
They, two enormous jugs of aqua-fortis.

Compar'd to their high floods of foaming satire,
My rhyme's a rill—a thread of murmuring water :
A whirlwind they, that oaks like stubble heaves ;
I, zephyr whisp'ring, sporting through the leaves.

And such all candid people must conclude it—
The world should say of PETER PINDAR'S strain,
“ In him the courtly HORACE lives again—
* Circum præcordia Petrus ludit.”

Which

Which easy scrap of Latin thus I render :

No man by PETER'S verse is harshly bitten ;
Like lambkins bleats the bard so sweet and tender,
And playful as the sportive kitten.

So chaste his smiles, so soft his style,

That ev'n his bitt'rest enemies should smile :

He biddeth not his verse in thunder roar—
His lines perpetual summer—sunshine weather :

He tickles only—how can he do more,
Whose only instrument's a feather ?

O D E X.

LIKE children, charm'd with PRAISE'S sugar'd song,
How much the Great admire the cringing throng !

And how most lovingly the men they hate,
Who, to the stubbornness of conscience born,
Tenacious of the rights of nature, scorn

To hold the censor to the nose of STATE !

Too many a weak-brain'd man, and filly dame,
 Are made ridiculous by fulsome fame ;
 Rais'd on high pedestals in rich attire,
 For half the globe to laugh at, not admire.

Ye bid the bard in panegyric shine ;
 With courtly adulation load the line :
 Sirs, adulation is a fatal thing—
 Rank poison for a subject, or a King.

My Lords, I do declare that it requires
 A brain well fortified, to bear great flatt'ries ;
 Such very dangerous mask'd batteries,
 That keep on great men's brains such ceaseless fires !
 I hope that God will give such great men grace
 To know the gen'ral weakness of the place.

Pray do not fancy what I utter strange—
 The love of flatt'ry is the soul's rank mange,
 Which, though it gives such tickling joys,
 Instead of doing service, it destroys :
 Just as the mange to lapdogs' skins apply'd,
 Though pleasing, spoils the beauty of the hide.

A fonnet now and then to please the fair,
With flatt'ry spic'd a little, does no harm;
That talks of flames, perfections, hope, despair,
And hyperbolically paints each charm.

P'rhaps to a fault at times, my Muse's art,
By admiration swell'd, hath soar'd too high;
But CYNTHIA knew the lover's partial art,
And chid her poet for the tuneful lie.

Perhaps too loud the bard hath struck the lyre:
And when th' enthusiast, with a lover's fire,
More bright than angels, gave the nymph to glow;
By TRUTH's delightful dictates solely sway'd,
Ought of his fav'rite CYNTHIA to have said,
" She triumphs only o'er the world below."

O D E XI.

MY Lords, I won't consent to be a bug,
 To batten in the royal rug,
     And on the backs of Monarchs meanly crawl;
     And more, my Lords, I hope I never shall.
 Yet certain vermin I can mention, love it;
You know the miserables that can prove it.
 I cannot, Papist-like, (a dupe to Kings)
 Create divinities from wooden things.

Somewhere in Asia—I forget the place—
     Ceylon I think it is—yes, yes, I'm right—
 There, Kings are deem'd a heav'nly race,
     And blasphemy it is their pow'r to flight.

Like crouching spaniels down black Lords must lie,
 Whene'er admitted to the Royal eye,
 And say, whene'er the mighty Monarch chats
 To those black Lords about their wives and brats,
     That happen in the world to tumble:
 “ Dread Sire, your slave and bitch my wife
     “ Hath brought, to bless your dog so humble,
 “ One, two, three, four, five puppies into life;

“ All subject to your godlike will and pow’r,
 “ To hang or drown in half an hour.”

This is too fervile, I must dare confess—
 ’Twixt man and man the diff’rence should be less.

I own I brought two wond’ring eyes to town,
 Got bent by mobs my ribs like any hoop,
 To see the mighty man who wore a crown—
 To see the man to whom great courtiers stoop.

Much had I read, which certés some time since is,
 My Bible so replete with Kings and Princes,
 And thought Kings taller than my parish steeple;
 I thought too, which was natural enough,
 Jove made their skins of very diff’reut stuff
 From that which clothes the bones of common people.

But mark! by staring, gaping ev’ry day,
 The edge of admiration wore away,
 Like razors’ edges rubb’d against a stone;
 Kings ceas’d to be such objects of devotion;
 I saw the Beings soon without emotion,
 And thought like mine their bodies flesh and bone.

Like

Like many thousands, I was weak enough
 To think Jove kept a foul and body shop;
 Like mercers, had variety of stuff
 For such whose turn it was to be made up;
 And that he treated with great liberality
 Folk born to figure in the line of quality;
 Giving souls superfine, and bones and bloods,
 In short, the choicest of celestial goods:

But on the lower classes when employ'd,
 It struck me that he work'd with much sang-froid,
 Not caring one brass farthing for the chaps;
 Forming them just as girls themselves amuse
 In making workbags, pincushions, and shoes—
 VIDELICET, from scraps.

Now can't I give a thimbleful of praise,
 E'en to an Emp'ror, if uncrown'd by merit;
 A starving principle, 'faith, now a-days,
 And unconnected with the courtier's spirit.
 You, Sirs, I think, can give it with a ladle,
 And rock of grinning Idiotism the cradle.

O D E XII.

SO much abus'd, I lose my lyric merit—
 Evaporated half its spirit;
 Reduc'd from alcohol to phlegm;
 From solid pudding to whipp'd cream!

There was a time, when, not one bit afraid
 Of ought the people roar'd, or sung, or said,
 I carelessly my fav'rite trade pursu'd;
 Invok'd Apollo, and the Muses woo'd:
 And, with the stoicism that lulls a stone,
 I fat me down, and pick'd my mutton bone.

Thus when, amidst the tumbling world of waves,
 The cloud-wrapp'd Genius of the tempest raves,
 And, 'midst the hurrying mafs of spectred gloom,
 FATE, mounted on the wild wing of the blast,
 Shouts desolation through the twilight waste,
 And, thund'ring, threats a system's doom;

Lo! with light wing a gull the billows sweeps,
 Sports on the storm, and mocks the bellowing deeps;
 Now

Now on the mountain ferge compos'd he squats,
 Adjufts his feathers, and looks round for fprats.

I now may fay, with righteous DAVID, “ Lord,
 “ With foes I’m fore encompass’d about;”
 And rhyme like STERNHOLD, once for verfe ador’d,
 “ I wote not when I fhall get out;
 “ So craftily the heathen me affail,
 “ My canticle doth not a whit avail.”

Lo! almoft ev’ry one at PETER’s head
 Levels his blunderbufs, and takes a pop—
 Bounce on my dear os frontis falls the lead;
 But harmlefs yet, thank God, I’ve feen it drop:

Yet, by and by, fome lucklefs fhott
 May knock about the brains of tuneful PETER:
 Thoufands will fmile to fee him go to pot,
 And mock him in his grave, with shamelefs metre:
 Not fo our gracious King and Queen, I know it—
 They’ve pity, if not pence, to give a poet.

Patient as JOB, when SATAN, all fo vile,
 Betting his fkin againft the LORD’s,
 Adding a moft contemptous fmile,
 As well as moft indecent words,

Cover'd the man of UZ with boils,
At which, with horror, ev'ry heart recoils :

Yes, patient as the man of UZ am I,
Though forc'd on ENVY's burning coals to fry.

Seek I the Court?—Lords, Lordlings fly the place—
The ladies, too, so full of loyal grace,
    Turn their gay backs when there I show my head;
As happen'd at St. James's t'other day,
When up the stairs I took my solemn way,
    And fill'd the fine-dress'd gentlefolks with dread.

Off BRUDENELL flew; and, with his star so blazing,
    Off flew the frighten'd Sir JOHN DICK, so stout,
Who won his blazing star by means amazing—
    By manufacturing four crout.

Off flew, with this great crout-composing DICK,
THOMSON and SALISB'RY, HARCOURT, and Gold-stick;
Such was the terror at the man of rhymes,
As though he enter'd to divulge their crimes.

Thus on a bank, upon a summer's day,
 Of some fair stream of East or Western Ind,
 When puppies join in wanton play,
 Free from the slightest fear of being skinn'd;

If from that stream, which all so placid flows,
 A sly old alligator pokes his nose;
 Wishing, perchaunce, to take a slice of cur;
 At once the dogs are off upon the spur;
 Nor once behind them cast a courtly look,
 To compliment the monarch of the brook.

O D E XIII.

DESERTED in my utmost need by fate,
 Like fam'd DARIUS, great and good;
 Fall'n, fall'n, poor fellow, from a large estate;
 Forc'd, forc'd to brouse, like goats, the lanes for food!

Alas! deserted quite by ev'ry friend;
 And what than friendship can be sweeter?
 Lo! not a soul will kind assistance lend;
 Lo! ev'ry puppy lifts his leg at PETER!

Like some lone inflated rock am I,
 Where, midst th' Atlantic vast, old Æol raves;
 Shook by the thunders of each angry sky,
 And roll'd on by the rushing world of waves!

So hard, indeed, the critic tempest blows,
 I scarce can point against the gale my nose—
 A storm more violent was never seen!
 So dread the war!—indeed it must be dread,
 When from his shop JOHN NICHOLS pops his head,
 And pours the thunders of his Magazine.

For heavier artill'ry ne'er was play'd:
 And yet, not all th' artill'ry is his own;
 HAYLEY, a close ally, in ambushade
 Behind, assists the war of furious JOHN.

JOHN NICHOLS, with WILL. HAYLEY for his 'Squire,
 Are serious things, howe'er the world may laugh;
 And therefore dread I much to face the fire
 Of this intrepid Hudibras and Ralph.

You too, my Lords, combin'd with those dread foes
 To tear the bard to pieces for his rhymes,
 Is very cruel, righteous Heav'n well knows,
 And does no sort of credit to the times.

Yet let me feel myself—I'm not yet dead,
 Though maul'd so terribly about the head;
     By Printers Devils and allies furrounded:
 P'rhaps, like the Prussian Monarch, I may rise
 Herculean, to the world's surprife,
     And see my enemies confounded.

Full many a cock hath won ten pound,
     Though seeming dead, stretch'd out amidst the pit—
 Leap'd up, and giv'n his foe a fatal wound—
     Then why not mine, ye Gods, the lucky hit?

---

O D E XIV.

WITH your good leave, my Lords, I'll now take mine.

Not deem'd, perchaunce, a poet quite divine—
     Perchaunce with beasts at Ephesus I've warr'd,
 Like that prodigious orator Saint Paul;
 And for my stanzas, p'rhaps both great and small,
     Ye kindly wish me feather'd well, and tarr'd.

Ye think I loathe the name of King, no doubt—
Indeed, my Lords, you never were more out:

I am not of that envious class of elves;
Though Dame MACAULEY turns on Kings her tail,
With great respect the sacred names I hail,
That is, of Monarchs who respect themselves.

But should they act with meanness, or like fools,
The MUSE shall place a fool's-cap on their skulls,
Stubborn as many a King, indeed, I am—
That is, as stubborn as a halter'd ram:

A change in PETER's life ye must not hope:
To try to wash an ass's face,
Is really labour to misplace;
And really loss of time, as well as soap.

- “ Heav’n never took a pleasure or a pride
 “ In starving stomachs, or a horsewhipp’d hide.
- “ Mirth be your motto—merry be your heart :
 “ Good laughs are pleasant inoffensive things ;
 “ And if their follies happen to divert,
 “ I shall not quarrel at a joke on Kings.”

O D E XVI.

IF Monarchs (the suggestion, p’rhaps, of liars)
 Turn housebreakers, and rob the nuns and friars ;
 Steal pictures, crucifixes, heav’nly chattels,
 To purchase swords and guns and souls for battles :

In spite of all the world may say and think,
 If Empreses will, punk-like, kiss and drink :

If Kings will sell the hares and boars they kill,
 And snipe and partridge-blood for Mammon spill,
 Denying thus themselves a dainty dish ;
 And go themselves to market with their fish :

Pleas’d

Pleas'd with the vulgar herd to join their name,
 If Kings, ambitious of a blacksmith's fame,
 Not wond'rously ambitious in their views,
 Instead of mending empires, make horse shoes :

Dead to fair SCIENCE, if to vagrant hogs,
 To toymen, conjurors, and dancing dogs,
 Great Princes, pleas'd, a patronage extend ;
 Whilst modest GENIUS pines without a friend :

Dismissing grandeur as an idle thing,
 If on bob-wigs, slouch'd hats, and thread-bare coats,
 Upon vulgarity a Monarch doats,
 More pleas'd to look a coachman than a King :

If with their bullocks Kings delight to battle ;
 On hard horse-chestnuts make them dine and sup,
 Resolv'd to starve the nice-mouth'd cattle
 Until they eat the chestnuts up ;
 Poor fellows, from the nuts who turn away,
 And think it dev'lish hard they can't have hay :

If Kings will mount old houses upon rollers,
 Converting sober mansions into strollers,
 HERACLITUS's gravity can't bear it—
 I must laugh out, and all the world must hear it.

O D E XVII.

JUST one word more, my Lords, before we part:
 Do not vow vengeance on the tuneful art;
 'Tis very dang'rous to attack a poet—
 Also ridiculous—the end would show it.
 Though not to write—to read I hear you're able:
 Read, then, and learn instruction from a fable.

 THE PIG AND MAGPIE.

A FABLE.

COCKING his tail, a faucy prig,
 A Magpie hopp'd upon a Pig,
 To pull some hair, forsooth, to line his nest;
 And with such ease began the hair-attack,
 As thinking the fee-simple of the back
 Was by himself, and not the Pig, posselt.

The Boar look'd up, as thunder black, to Mag,
 Who, squinting down on him, like an arch wag,
 Inform'd

Inform'd Mynheer some bristles must be torn ;
 Then busy went to work, not nicely culling ;
 Got a good handsome beakfull by good pulling,
 And flew, without a " Thank ye," to his thorn.

The Pig fet up a dismal yelling ;
 Follow'd the robber to his dwelling,
 Who, like a fool, had built it 'midst a bramble :
 In, manfully, he sallied, full of might,
 Determin'd to obtain his right,
 And 'midst the bushes now began to scramble.

He drove the Magpie, tore his nest to rags,
 And, happy on the downfall, pour'd his brags :
 But ere he from the brambles came, alack !
 His ears and eyes were miserably torn,
 His bleeding hide in such a plight forlorn,
 He could not count ten hairs upon his back.

THE ARGUMENT.

THE Poet commenceth in a sublime strain of happy imitation of classic simplicity with the ille ego—self-consequence of the Mantuan Bard; giving an account of the various themes of his Muse, from MAJESTY to Master JOHN NICHOLS—He asketh the reason of JOHN'S great anger, and freeth himself from the imputation of illiberality, by telling the world what handsome things he hath said of the Printer—The Poet attacketh JOHN in turn for his want of candour—speaketh oracles to JOHN—maketh a fine comparison between himself and purling streams; also between curs, cats, and courtiers—The Poet declaimeth virtuously and politically against swearing in a passion—complaineth of instances of JOHN'S cruelty towards him for barely administering a few admonitory lashes to the back of the PRESIDENT of the ROYAL SOCIETY, Madam PIOZZI, and Mister JAMES BOSWELL—The Poet again complaineth of JOHN'S disingenuousness; praising, at the same time, his own sweetness of disposition—he mentioneth the horrors of dying people at the thought of being exhibited in JOHN'S Magazine, in which the Poet is supposed to allude to the letters of the Rev. Mister BADCOCK and others, as well as scandalous anecdotes collected from families, to give a zest to his monthly lumber—The Poet informeth JOHN of the appellation given him by some people, and which the Poet was always too delicate to use—The Poet confesseth that he marvelleth at JOHN'S impudence in assuming the management of the Gentleman's Magazine after Doctor JOHNSON; on which Doctor JOHNSON, the Poet passeth a just stricture with unprecedented delicacy—The Poet challengeth JOHN to say he ever exposed him for his praises of such as contributed to his Magazine—or when he tried to elipse the biographical fame of PLUTARCH, by his anecdotes of poor old BOWYER—The Poet exhibiteth more instances of grandeur of soul—still more nobleless—still more—The Poet maketh a most luminous remark on the difference between the happinefs of fools and wise men, and concludeth with advifing JOHN to make a proper application of his talents.

I, WHO, ambitious that the brats, my rhymes,
 Should see the gentlefolks of future times;

‡ Such is really the present sunk condition of this Lady-author.

So deep, who scarce can dive into himself!
 So lofty, too, the tenant of the shelf!
 Now stiffer than recruits so raw at drill;
 Now petit-maitre of the Muses hill:
 I, who to grave Reviewers sigh'd my pray'r,
 Submissive bending at the critic chair;
 And, blushing, begg'd one little laurel sprig,
 To bring importance, and adorn my wig:
 I, who Sam Whitbread's brewhouse prais'd in song,
 So highly honour'd by the Royal throng;
 Berhym'd a goodly Monarch and his spouse,
 Miss Whitbread's curtsies, Mister Whitbread's bows,
 Amounting, hist'ry says, to many a score,
 Such, too, as Chiswell-Street ne'er saw before;
 Not e'en forgetting, with my classic force,
 The Brewer's bulldog, and his marv'ling horse;
 The curious draymen into puncheons creeping,
 And, charm'd with greatness, through the bung-holes
 I, who to Pitt the chords in anger struck, [peeping:
 Who whelm'd his PRINCE so gracefully with muck;
 Lycurgus Pitt, whose penetrating eyes
 Behold the fount of freedom in excise;
 Whose patriot logic possibly maintains
 Th' identity of liberty and chains:

I, who of Leeds and Hawkesb'ry deign'd to sing,
 The blessed fav'rites of a blessed * * * * ;
 High on the lab'ring pinions of an ode,
 Heav'd Brudenell's folly, what a leaden load !
 Brudenell who bids us all the proverb feel,
 " The largest calves are not the sweetest veal : "

I, who on such subjects deign'd to shine,
 Now tune to once a Printer's DEV'L the line ;
 But now no more a dev'l—with Atlas mien,
 The great supporter of a Magazine ; *
 No more, no more a dev'l with humble air,
 But fit companion for our great LORD MAY'R !
 How like the worm which crawls at first the earth,
 But, getting a new coat, disdains its birth ;
 Spreads its gold tiffue to the solar ray,
 And wings o'er trees and tow'rs its airy way !

With anger foaming, and of vengeance full,
 Why belloweth JOHN NICHOLS like a bull ?
 Say, Goddess, could a few poetic stripes
 Make JOHN, so furious, kick about his types ;

Spin

* The Gentleman's, as it is modestly called ; to whose gentility Mister HAYLEY is a constant contributor, in the way of ingenious rhyme and liberal criticism.

Spin round his pandemonium like a top,
 And, thund'ring, to its centre shake the shop?
 Could SATIRE's twig produce so dire a din?
 And dwells such softness in a printer's skin?

Illib'ral! never, never have I said,
 That thou wert not an honest man in trade!
 Whether from principle or jail dismay
 Springs thy morality, we dare not say;
 Since jails, those iron agents of the law,
 Keep many a graceless rogue in pious awe.
 Yet, son of ink, devoutly let us hope
 Thou lov'st a virtue more than dread'st a rope;
 Nay, to thy honour let me this declare,
 To make the rigid sons of conscience stare,
 That when thou money lendest, such thy purity,
 Detesting bad, thou seekest good security.
 Inclined for ever, JOHN, to take thy part,
 Thus have I pour'd the dictates of my heart:
 " If 'midst a vulgar mass his stars unkind
 " Have plac'd most niggardly a pigmy mind,
 " 'Tis not JOHN's fault—JOHN should not blush for
 " His parsimonious planets are to blame. [shame;
 " What though in WISDOM's crucible his head,
 " Prove that it dealeth less in gold than lead:

“ Unskill’d on classic ground to cut a caper,
 “ Yet knoweth JOHN the price of print and paper :
 “ His nice discerning knowledge none deny,
 “ On crown, imperial, fool’s cap, and demy.
 “ On blanket, sheepskins,* urine, JOHN can think :
 “ Myself would take his sentiments on ink ;
 “ Myself would take his sentiments on letters :
 “ On syllables, indeed, I’d ask his betters.
 “ The meanest mortal let us not deride :
 “ Lo! beasts of burden oft must be our guide ;
 “ Yes, through the dark and unknown track, of course,
 “ I yield up all opinion to my horse.”

TRUTH, let fair TRUTH for ever rule my rhymes !

I’m told this lady visits thee sometimes !

How kind ! how humble ! thus the GOD of day

Deigns to a mudpool to impart his ray !

Amidst the passions roar, a clam’rous host,

Oft is the gentle voice of REASON lost !

How try’st thou, butcher-like, to carve my work,

And treat each sweet-foul’d stanza, like a Turk !

From such sad readers Heav’n the Muse protect,

Proud to find fault, and raptur’d with defect !

Yet, though thou frown’st on PETER’S every line,

Behold the difference, JOHN ! he smiles on thine.

Say not I hate each man of verse and prose;
 I reverence genius, JOHN, where'er it grows:
 Whene'er it beams through IGNORANCE'S night,
 I mark the stranger with as keen delight
 As looks the Pilgrim on Bassora's tow'rs,
 Her streams, ambrosial blooms, and myrtle bow'rs;
 Who, long deny'd of HOPE'S sweet cup to taste,
 Had sigh'd amidst the solitary waste.

Blame not the Bard, thou man of letter'd pride,
 Who, taking not Dame PRUDENCE for thy guide,
 Didst stone the poet's mansion like an ass,
 Forgetting that thy own was made of glass.
 Know, JOHN, that passion maketh man a swine:
 Know this, and bid thy conduct copy mine.
 When deeming me a Saracen in heart,
 Why, simple JOHN, attempt my road to thwart?
 Amidst thy walks, should bullies meet thine eye,
 Compos'dly let those bullies pass thee by.
 To bustling bravoes, for my ease and pride,
 I give the wall, and smiling turn aside.
 Thus, if a rock or log the stream oppose,
 That sweetly lambent from its fountain flows,
 No foamy turbulence the rills betray,
 But, easy yielding, wind in peace away.

My

My hate of courtiers, how thine anger drew!
 I own I loathe St. James's servile crew:
 Where'er the smiles of royalty are found,
 The lazy clan of courtiers crouch around:
 Thus, on the country towns when Phœbus shines,
 Amidst the radiance ev'ry cur reclines;
 And lo! neglectful of the mice and rats,
 Each street presents us with a line of cats.

Truth needs not, JOHN, the eloquence of oaths,
 Not more so than a decent suit of clothes
 Requires of broad gold lace th' expensive glare,
 That makes the linsy-woolfy million stare:
 Besides, a proverb, suited to my wish,
 Declares that swearing never catcheth fish.
 'Tis vulgar—I have said it o'er and o'er;
 Then keep thy temper, man, and swear no more.
 Struck, nay, half-petrified, that BANKS should dare,
 Indecent fellow! ravish NEWTON's chair;
 Mock such as WISDOM's sacred mines explore,
 And kick the Arts and Sciences to door;
 Making (methinks a monstrous impropriety)
 A fly-club of a great and fam'd Society:
 The Muse, with virtuous indignation stung,
 In rhyme's strong chains the brazen culprit hung;

When, with the fury of a thousand foes,
 Howl'd the wild tempest of thy verse and prose!
 Shock'd that an idle gossip, Madam THRALE,*
 And he,† a feather, GENIUS in thy scale,
 High panting for the echo of a name,
 Should meanly crucify poor JOHNSON'S fame;
 I own I glow'd with more than mortal ire,
 And fix'd to SATIRE'S scourge my sharpest wire;
 When lo! the poet's visage to begrime,
 Forth rush'd thy muddy sluice of prose and rhyme:
 For this, against my will, indeed with tears,
 I show'd a grinning land thy ass's ears.

Fir'd that the Muse should daringly suggest
 How stars have beam'd upon the blackest breast;
 Just like their heav'nly cousins all so bright,
 O'er the dark mantle of old mother NIGHT;
 Should hint (by FORTUNE'S wild vagaries plac'd)
 That Crowns may feel themselves at times disgrac'd;
 To take a King's and courtiers part so prone,
 Full at my forehead didst thou fling the stone;
 But thanks to Phœbus, who secur'd my crown,
 No David thou, to bring Goliath down!

Griev'd

* Now Madam Piozzi.

† Mr. James Boswell.

Griev'd that th' ambitious Muse a PRINCE should
 Whose name diffuses lustre o'er her lays;        [praise,
 A PRINCE whose only fault is want of art,
 Whose horrid vice, benevolence of heart;
 Which little abject souls profusion call,
 And o'er each action vainly spit their gall:
 Griev'd that the Muse attack'd with scorn a MAN,
 Unlucky form'd on NATURE's hungry plan;
 Who, lord of millions, trembles for his store,
 And fears to give a farthing to the poor;
 Proclaims that penury will be his fate,
 And, scowling, looks on charity with hate;
 Whose matchless avarice is meat and drink,
 That dreads to spill a single drop of ink;
 On each superfluous letter vents a sigh,
 And faves the little dot upon an i;
 Happy e'en NATURE's tenderest ties to slight,
 And vilely rob an offspring of his right:
 Forth rush'd thy venom—harmless, too, it flow'd,
 For man defies the poison of a toad;
 Vex'd that the Muse (as if she utter'd treason)
 Should try to bring poor BOSWELL back to reason;
 (Herculean toil, to keep such folly under!)
 Loud from thy head's dark cloud I felt thy thunder!
When

When, mad t'induce the world to deem thee wife,
 Thou star'dst through spectacles with sapient eyes;
 Say, did I cry, th' impostor to expose,
 " See JOHN's whole stock of wisdom on his nose!"
 Cat-like, because the world my lyrics read,
 Thine envy claw'd the laurel on my head;
 Yet claw'd I not again, with cat-like spleen,
 The drooping leaves of thy sad Magazine:
 Touch'd not thy trash, nor HAYLEY's tinsel stuff;
 Nor fresh, stale, new antiquities of GOUGH:*
 Indeed I'm tender-conscienc'd on that score,
 And learn to look with pity on the poor:
 No Mohawk I, in scenes of horror bred,
 I scorn to scalp the dying or the dead;
 Yet well thou knowest that, with trifling toil,
 On SATIRE's gridir'n I could bid thee broil—
 Turn tuneful butcher, cut thee into quarters,
 And give thee, JOHN, for one of FOLLY's martyrs.
 I see thy vanity in all its fulness;
 The turbot, ven'fon of aspiring dulness!
 And let me, O rare epicure, remark,
 That thou hast got a gullet like a shark.

“ A maga-

* A maker of antiquities, and one of Sir Joseph Banks's copper-farthing oracles, and constant tea and toast man.

Myself as merciful as man can be,
 I grieve to find that mercy not in thee.
 Behold, amidst their short'ning, panting breath,
 Poor souls! the dying dread thee more than death:
 " Oh! save us from JOHN NICHOLS!" is the cry,
 " Let not that death-hunter know where we lie;
 " What in delirium from our lips may fall,
 " Oh! hide—our letters, burn them, burn them all!
 " Oh! let not from the tomb our ghosts complain!
 " O Jesu! we shall soon be up again;
 " Condemn'd, alas! to grin with grisly mien,
 " 'Midst the pale horrors of his Magazine;
 " Like felons first in Newgate-ballads sung,
 " Then (giv'n to INFAMY) on Hounslow hung!"
 Know, when thou took'st of Aristarch the chair,
 My eyes expanded only to a stare:
 Softly, indeed, unto myself, I sigh'd,
 " JOHNSON,* thy place is d--nably supply'd:
 " Not that I think this idol of the million,
 " Longinus, Aristotle, or Quintilian;
 " Who gives (against sound taste so apt to sin)
 " A pyramid's importance to a pin;

“ On

* The late Dr. Johnson superintended this Magazine: a post of honour and profit assumed afterwards by Mister John Nichols.

“ On ev’ry theme, alike his pompous art ;

“ The general conflagration or a f—.”

When into FAME’s fair dome, t’insult her throne,
 So free, as if the house had been thy own,
 Thou dar’dst to shove a vile conundrum crew,
 Fellows whom Phœbus nor the Muses knew ;
 Speak, did I tell the Nation with my pen,
 How FAME in anger kick’d them out agen ;
 Threw at their heads the lumber of their brains,
 And call’d thee a pert puppy for thy pains ?
 On such mark’d impudence did I harangue,
 And give to public scorn the pigmy gang ?
 Short are the hours that smuggled praise can last,
 An echo, a poor meretricious blast ;
 A sudden gust that bids old ruins stare,
 And, howling, whirls a feather through the air.
 FLATT’RY, a little sly deceiving las,
 With smile resistless, and a front of brass,
 Shall reign, perchance, the idol of a day ;
 Then, like a batter’d harridan, decay ;
 Whilst TRUTH, unfading, lifts the head sublime,
 And dares the formidable rage of TIME.
 Thou dragon of th’ Hesperian fruit, call’d praise,
 Whose leather-stretching conscience interest sways ;

Shame,

Shame, that, through fordid avarice and spleen,
 None taste, but such as cram thy Magazine!
 Charm'd as a child whose doting eye regards
 Its imitation of Saint Paul's with cards;
 When, fir'd by Plutarch's venerable name,
 Whose genius rais'd a pyramid to fame,
 Thou gav'st of BOWYER's life a gossip's story,
 And only rear'dst a dunghill to thy glory;
 I rail'd not at thine infant emulation,
 Nor spread thy weakness, JOHN, around the nation;
 Nay, griev'd was I, as all the world can tell,
 That thou shouldst write a book* that would not sell.

When, tort'ring the poor gamut wild and loud,
 Thou scrap'dst harsh discords on thy Muse's crowd;
 What though I stopp'd my ears with all my pow'rs,
 I mourn'd the labour of thy tuneless hours.
 Oft have I whisper'd to myself, "Enough
 " Of this most tiresome fellow's monthly stuff:

" Pan,

* Unfortunately for poor John, every book that he has published has been possessed of so much of the vis inertiae as not to be able (to use the bookseller's phrase) to move off; witness the Life of Old Bowyer, the guttings of old Magazines and Ladies' Diaries, called Miscellanies, the Progresses of Queen Elizabeth, editions of trash of every denomination, &c. &c.

“ A magazine! a pedlar’s, huckster’s shop,
 “ That harbours brush, and cabbage-net, and mop,
 “ Pan, gridir’n, button, buckle, bodkin, bead,
 “ Tape, turnip, malkins, nightcaps green and red,
 “ Pins, pipkins, garters, oatmeal, jordan, dish,
 “ Stale loaves, and rusty nails, and stinking fish;”
 Yet bade I not the world its laughs prepare,
 To meet thy miserable monthly ware:
 Nay, man, I’ve prais’d thee—for example, said,
 “ Lo! in his cumbrous magazine display’d
 “ Once in a year a verse to raise our wonder,
 “ Which proves that JOHN may make a lucky blunder:
 “ How like the heavy mountain, on whose side
 “ A daisy starts in solitary pride!”
 Lo! from ebriety their sons to save,
 The Greeks oft show’d the lads a drunken slave:
 I thus might thee, O gingling JOHN, display,
 A sad example in the rhyming way
 For printers and their demons to avoid,
 Whose labours might more wisely be employ’d;
 But PITY sweetly whispers in my ear,
 “ Expose not childhood that deserves a tear;
 “ Set not the roaring lion at a rat,
 “ Nor call down thunder to destroy a gnat.”

When mad for honours*—softly have I said,
 “ What imp could put it in the Printer’s head?
 “ Oh! may the fates the maniac over-rule,
 “ For titles cannot dignify a fool!”

Complain not that I’ve wrong’d thy reputation,
 By calling thee the filliest in the nation;
 No, John, be comforted—it cannot be;
 I think I know a few that equal thee.
 Swear, swear not that I’ve said, to wound thy fame,
 That birelings wrote each work which bears thy name;
 How false! I know thou wrotest many a line;
 Lo! all the blunders of the books are thine.
 A literary jackdaw thou, god wot!
 Yet by that thievish name I call’d thee not:
 A carrion crow that lives upon the dead;
 Yet hawk-like pounc’d I not upon thy head:
 A daring coiner; lo! I let thee pass,
 Nor once impeach’d thy literary brass!

Speak

* John’s ambition to be a Common-council man was violent for a long time; great were the pains used, manifold were the contrivances employed, and prodigious was the interest made for the obtention of this honour.—A vacancy happening in Farringdon Ward, John’s more lucky genius prevailed, and his wishes were gratified; thus is he in the way of being what I have in an ode prophesied of Mr. Auctioneer Skinner,

“ If things go fair,

“ Proud London’s proud Lord May’r.”

Speak—when, enamour'd of thy monthly haſh,
 Thou clapp'dſt another fixpence on thy traſh,
 Once didſt thou hear me in a paſſion roar,
 “ Was ever impudence like this before?”
 Inſtead of making in th' affair a fuſs,
 In mild ſoliloquy I whiſper'd thus:
 “ How bleſt the FOOL! he thinks he all things knows!
 “ With joy he wakes, with joy his eyelids cloſe;
 “ Pleas'd through the world to ſpread his own renown,
 “ With calm contempt he looks on others down;
 “ Self and his own dear works th' eternal theme,
 “ His daily idol, and his nightly dream;
 “ Thrice-envied Being, whom no tongue can wound,
 “ In PRIDE's impenetrable armour bound!
 “ How much in happineſs beyond the WISE,
 “ Who view the greateſt men with pitying eyes;
 “ O'er human imbecillity who groan,
 “ And ſigh to think how little's to be known!”
 Oh, do not to the Muſes hill reſort,
 Æſop's dull brute!*— a bumpkin 'midſt a court:
 With brother council crack the clumsy joke,
 'Midſt beer and brandy, bread and cheeſe, and ſmoke;
 Deſcend the ladder to the clouds below,
 Where ordinary men of twopence go;

* The fable of the Gentleman, the Aſs, and the Lapdog.

Where vagrant knives and forks are bound in chains,
 And never tablecloth is spoil'd by stains;
 Where, in the board's black hole, (superb design!)
 Pepper and salt in matrimony join;
 And in another hole, with frown and smile,
 Much too like marriage, vinegar and oil!—
 Where for a towel (economic thought!)
 A monstrous mastiff, after dinner brought,
 Complacent waits on Gentlemen's commands,
 And yields his back of shag to wipe their hands—
 Such is the scene where thou shouldst ever sit,
 Form'd to thy taste, and suited to thy wit.
 Deal not in Hist'ry; often have I said
 'Twill prove a most unprofitable trade:
 Talk not of PAINTING, for thou know'st her not;
 Such coy acquaintance will not boil thy pot:
 Nor make strong love to MUSIC; 'tis a Dame
 Who smiles not on the souls of earth, but flame.
 Push not thy brain to thought—thou canst not think:
 From metaphysics should thy genius shrink!
 To thee superior, see the GODDESS rise,
 And hide her lofty head amidst the skies!
 Behold eternal mist her beauties shroud,
 And 'tis not thy weak eye can pierce the cloud.

Curs'd with the common furor of inditing,
 Yet if thy head possess the mangle of writing;
 Go with biography and cool thy rage,
 Pen lives that cannot well disgrace thy page;
 Describe whom ev'ry nobler virtue curses,
 A PAIR who mump, with millions in their purses.
 If loftier subjects thy ambition call,
 Go sing the staring giants of Guildhall.

ELEGY TO APOLLO.

GREAT are my enemies in trade, God knows!
 There's not a poet but would stop my note;
 With such a world of spite their venom flows,
 With such good-will the knaves would cut my throat.

Yet how have I offended, PHŒBUS, say,
 To get so much ill-blood, such cursing looks?
 Is it because my more ambitious lay
 Disdains to visit trunk-makers and cooks?

With theirs to visit grocers, and the men;
 Who fortune, in that weed tobacco, see;
 From thence come deeply laden back agen,
 With sugar, pigtail, pepper, and rappee?

The man of words, of stilt-supported phrase,
 The glitt'ring HAYLEY scorns whate'er I write;
 This Will-o'-wisp of verse disdains my lays;
 Tales, Odes, nor Loufiads, yield the least delight!

So lofty, yet in ware so humbly dealing!
 So classically tasteless! big with nought!
 So tender, yet so destitute of feeling!
 So sentimental too, without a thought!

I see the band of BLUE-STOCKINGS arise,
 Historic, critic, and poetic dames!
This lifts her palms, and that her marv'ling eyes,
 And squeaks, "The fellow's stuff should feel the flames;

"Such is the way his works should come to light."—
 Thus rail those dames of classic erudition;
 Thus, leagu'd with WIT, unmerciful they bite
 Thy fav'rite BARD, O PHŒBUS, and Physician!

And

And now I hear a score in union bawl,—

- “ In cold contempt shall poor PIZZI sigh?
 “ MISS HANNAH MORE into oblivion fall?
 “ Dear MISTRESS MONTAGUE neglected lie?

 “ Those rich Corinthian pillars of our club,
 “ Sink to the ground so vile, with dust bespread;
 “ Whilst he, of motley poetry the SCRUB,*
 “ Erects, Colossus-like, his brazen head!

 “ Oh! let the scullion use his vapid book
 “ Instead of dishcloths, when her hands she wipes!
 “ Oh! let the kindled leaves assist the cook,
 “ And of old washerwomen light the pipes!”

Thus in my condemnation they agree,

The mighty cloud-capp'd PETTICOATED WISE;
 Whilst pleas'd (as conscious of the just decree)
 In proud disdain their snuff-ciad noses rise!

The Misses fad of elegy, my foes,

Say my rude genius wants the genuine fire;
 Bald half my rhymes, my verses measur'd prose:
 That bears would better touch the Muse's lyre.

* The Poet here most fancifully alludeth to Mr. SCRUB, the servant of all work, in Farquhar's play of the Beaux Stratagem.

The riddle and conundrum mongers cry,

“ Pshaw ! d-mn his Lyrics, Loufiads—d-mn ’em all :

“ His strength in fields diarian dares he try ?

“ Soon would the Almanack record his fall !”

Thus with dread voice my enemies exclaim !

Thus am I doom’d to gulp the bitter pill !

Themselv’s, “ fair traders of the Mount,” they name ;

But me a smuggler on thy sacred hill !

God of us Lyrics, shall I rouze my rhyme,

Confound the gang, and vindicate my lay ;

Or calmly leave them to devouring TIME,

Who dineth on such wittlings every day ?

A discontent, mingled with some grumbling, amongst the more enlightened members of the ROYAL SOCIETY, on account of Sir JOSEPH'S non-communication of wisdom to the Royal Journals, spurred the Knight on at last (without the help of Balaam's Angel) to open his mouth.—He told an intimate friend that he had made a discovery that would astonish the World, enrich the Journals, and render himself immortal— with the most important confidence and philosophic solemnity, he affirmed that he was upon the very eve of proving what had never entered into the soul of man, viz. that Fleas were Lobsters—that JONAS DRYANDER was ordered to collect fifteen hundred Fleas, and boil them; which, if they changed to the fine crimson of the Lobster, would put the identity of the species beyond the possibility of doubt. At length the beds of the President were ransacked by his Flea-crimp, honest JONAS—fifteen hundred of the hopping inhabitants were caught, and passed the dreadful ordeal of boiling water; with what success, O gentle Reader, the Ode will inform thee.

T H E B O I L E D F L E A S,

BLEST be the man who thought upon a college,
 The market of all sorts of knowledge,
 Th' emporium, as we classic people say:
 Nay, be upon societies who thought,
 To learning's stock a deal of treasure brought,
 Dragging OBSCURITY so deep to day;

Making

Making the dame turn out her bag,
 Conceal'd beneath her inky cloak ;
 Examining the smallest rag,
 Blacken'd by TIME's most sacred smoke ;

To use a simile a little rough,
 Stripping dame NATURE to her very buff ;
 Or, to be somewhat more in speech refin'd,
 By dint of pow'rs of eye and mind,
 Enlight'ning what through darkness might escape ;
 Embroid'ring thus with silver spangles, crape.

The mention of societies recalls
 Of Somersét* the lofty walls,

The hive where fam'd Sir JOSEPH reigns Queen Bee ;
 Though men, to whom Sir JOSEPH is not known,
 Most certainly must take him for a drone ;

Whose face, by sloven NATURE's hard decree,
 Seems form'd fair ladies pockets to alarm, ;
 Rather than steal fair ladies hearts by charm.

Well ! so much for Sir JOSEPH's face,
 And eke about the hive-like place,

Where fam'd Sir JOSEPH reigns Queen Bee :
 And verily Queen Bee's a proper name ;
 For, Reader, know it is a royal dame,
 Who to her subjects issueth decree ;

Sendeth

* The Royal Society hold their meetings there.

Sendeth her subjects east and west,
 To pitch on flowers and weeds the best,
 And bring sweet treasure to the hive;
 She keepeth, too, of gentlemen a band,
 To say soft things and flatter, kiss her hand,
 Who eat the honey for such deeds, and thrive.

Sir JOSEPH has his flatt'ers, too, in hand,
 Who say soft things—yea, very soft indeed,
 For which the gentle flatt'ring band
 Gain butter'd toast, sweet FLATT'RY's oily meed.

A girl for novelty where'er it lies,
 In moffes, fleas, or cockleshells, or flies,
 Sir JOSEPH ever seeks for something new;
 Of this, when'er he fits, he gravely talks,
 Or whilst he eats, or drinks, or runs, or walks,
 Amidst his royal and attendant crew.

ONE morning, at his house in Soho-Square,
 As, with a solemn, awe-inspiring air,
 Amidst some royal sycophants he sat;
 Most manfully their masticators using,
 Most pleasantly their greasy mouths amusing
 With coffee, butter'd toast, and birds-nest chat;

In JONAS DRYANDER, the fav'rite, came,
Who manufactures all Sir JOSEPH's fame—

“Whatluck?” Sir JOSEPH bawl'd—“fay, Jonas, fay.”
“I've boil'd just fifteen hundred,” JONAS whin'd;
“The dev'l a one change colour could I find.”—
Intelligence creating dire difmay!

Then JONAS curs'd, with many a wicked wish,
Then show'd the stubborn fleas within the dish.
“How!” roar'd the Prefident, and backward fell—
“There goes, then, my hypothesis to hell!”—
And now his head in deep despair he shook;
Now clos'd his eyes; and now upon his breast,
He, mutt'ring, dropp'd his fable beard unblest;
Now twirl'd his thumbs, and groan'd with piteous
look.

Dread-struck, fat Aubert, Blagdon, Planta, Woide,
Whose jaw-bones in the mumbling trade employ'd,
Half open'd, gap'd, in sudden stupor lost;
Whilst, from the mouth of ev'ry gaping man,
In mazy rill the cream-clad coffee ran,
Supporting dainty bits of butter'd toast.

Now gaining speech, the parasitic crowd
Leap'd up, and roar'd in unison aloud:

“Heav'ns ↓

“ Heav’ns ! what’s the matter ! dear Sir JOSEPH, pray ?”

Dumb to their questions the GREAT MAN remain’d :
The Knight, deep pond’ring, nought vouchsaf’d to say.

Again the Gentlemen their voices strain’d :
Sudden the PRESIDENT OF FLIES, so sad,
Strides round the room, with disappointment mad,
Whilst ev’ry eye enlarg’d with wonder rolls ;
And now his head against the wainscot leaning,
“ Since you must know, must know (he sigh’d) the meaning,
“ Fleas are not lobsters, d-mn their souls.”*

* The author would not have so frequently taken the liberty of putting vulgarisms into the worthy President’s mouth, had he not previously known that Sir Joseph was the most accomplished swearer of the Royal Society.

LITTLE did I think that a man of my mild and peaceable disposition, that would not hurt a cat, should be forced out to battle: but such is the audacity of the times—(O tempora, ô mores!) I have ventured forth to attack this Goliath of Ode and Impudence; and I hope, with God's assistance, like little David, to cut off his head. I communicated with my good friend Mr. WILLIAM HAYLEY, who is a constant communicant to my Gentleman's Magazine, both in verse and prose, that is to say, in rhyme and criticism; whom I may rightly term one of the great pillars of my Gentleman's Magazine, which every Gentleman in the kingdom, I hope, reads; which, if he doth not read, I hope he will read, as it is not only the greatest favourite with our Most Gracious Sovereign, who is the greatest Monarch upon earth, but also with his Nobles, who are men of judgment and learning; also with foreign parts, who translate it constantly into their language: so that, if I may be permitted to verify the praise of my monthly Publication (for indeed I must own I have a great itch for poetry), I will do it in this poetical distich :

My Magazine all magazines excels ;
And, what's still better too for JOHN, it sells.

I asked Mr. HAYLEY, paying him the compliment first, if he would be the champion to encounter this great Mr. PETER PINDAR. To this, Mr. HAYLEY replied, after some hesitation, and pondering, and blowing his nose in his handkerchief, that he did not much admire a public exhibition ; that it would wear the aspect of a bruising-match, too much like a set-to of Johnson and Big Ben ; but added that I might do it, if I thought proper. “ But,” says my good Friend, “ I will privately attack him, under a fictitious signature ;”—which he did indeed, and gave the audacious fellow many a good thump, in verse and prose ; but this was only small shot, with deference to Mr. HAYLEY ; the grand artillery was reserved for me.

Kind Reader, wilt thou permit me to say something of myself, in simplicity and candour, before I go to work with this Caliban ? When I first took the chair of criticism, I own that I trembled ; for I am not ashamed to confess, that so great was my ignorance, that when a correspondent sent me an account of an ancient coin, I did not know a syllable about it —neither the meaning of reverse, exergue, or legend: but now, thank God, I know every thing appertaining to numismata, if I may be indulged with a Latin expression. Indeed the legends used to perplex me much, in as much as I exposed myself greatly; for I am not ashamed to confess my ignorance. I thought that AUG. upon a Roman medal, meant the month in which it was struck off; and therefore I deemed it August: and G. P. R. which I now know to be Genio Populi Romani, I verily thought to be a coin struck by one George Peter Richardson. The figures of Romulus and Remus sucking a she-wolf, I took to be two children milking a cow. D. M., for Diis Manibus, I took to be David Martin, or Daniel Musgrove. The half-word HEL, signifying Heliopolis, I imagined to be no other than the House of Satan. JAN. CLU. that is to say, Janum clusit, I took to be the name of a man. LUD. SÆC. F. I verily thought to be downright filthy, and blushed for the Romans: but, lo, I afterwards discovered it to be Ludos sæculares fecit. COS. I thought to be Cos Lettuces, which only meaneth Consul; M. F. Mr. Ford, which meaneth Marci Filius. N. C. (wouldst thou think it, Reader?) I translated Nincompoop; when, lo! it meaneth

Nobilissimus Cæsar. P. P. which signifieth Pater Patriæ, I thought might mean Peter Pounce, or Philip Pumpkin. R. P. I also thought might mean Robert Penruddock, or Ralph Pigwigin, or any other name beginning with those initials: but, lo, its true meaning I find to be Respublica, signifying, in English, the the Republic. Thus it will appear that I am not ashamed to confess my error, which this enemy of mine dareth not.

TRIB. POT. which only meaneth Tribunitia Potestate, I actually imagined meant a tribe of Potatoes, and that the coin was struck on account of a plentiful year of that fruit. S. P. Q. R. which meaneth only Senatus Populusque Romanus, unwisely, yet funnily, did I make out to be Sam Paddon, a Queer Rogue; for as much as I was informed that the Romans struck coins on every trifling occasion. SCIP. AS. which signifieth no more than Scipio Africanus, I read literally Skip As; but for why, I could not say:—such was my ignorance.

Many were the impositions upon me:—rings for pigs noses were sent me for nose-jewels worn by the Roman Ladies; a piece of oxycroceum, just made in a druggist's-shop, for the pitch that furrounded the body

body of Julius Cæsar; a large brown jordan, for a lacrymatory; a broken old black fugar-bafon, for a druid urn; a piece of a watchman's old lantern, for a Roman lamp. The wig of the famous Boerhave was alfo fent me as a curiofity; the roguery of which I did not difcover till an engraving of the wig was nearly finished, cofting me upwards of thirty fhillings:—for, lo! Reader, this great man never wore a wig in his life.—In my Obituary, too, I made great miftakes, from impofition; as I gave the deaths of many that were not dead, and others that never exifted. Sometimes the wickednefs of correpondents were fuch, that I have perpetuated the death of bulldogs, greyhounds, maftiffs, horfes, hogs, &c. in my Obituary, under an idea that they were people of confequence. Indeed I have not ftuck to the letter of my affertion at the head of my Obituary, that declares it to be a record of confiderable perfons; for as much as I have fometimes put a fcavenger over a Member of Parliament, a pig-driver over a Bifhop, a lamp-lighter over an Alderman, and a chimney-fweeper over a Duke: but as I was defired by the friends of the deceafed to do it, (for who is not ambitious?) and as I was paid for it too, (and who can withftand a fee?) I have in fome little meafure difgraced my Journal, and forfeited my word.—My present antiquarian knowledge, gratitude maketh me confess that I owe it all to Mr. R. GOUGH, of Enfield, who some years ago was also an ignorant and illiterate gentleman, like myself,—but, by hard study, hath attained to his present perfection, as may be seen in our Topographia Britannica, which is not, as that arch-enemy PETER PINDAR hath asserted it to be, the idle production of a couple of fellows that want to make a fortune by a history of cobwalls, old chamberpots, and rusty nails. My friend Mr. GOUGH's zeal for the promotion of antiquarian knowledge cannot be better proved than by his running the risk of being well trounced, for borrowing one of KING EDWARD's fingers, as he lay exposed a few years since, in Westminster Abbey; which finger my friend gently slipped into his pocket; but, unfortunately, he was perceived by the Bishop of Rochester, who, to the disgrace of the antiquarian science, ordered poor Mr. GOUGH to be searched, and to restore the treasure. Had it not been for this impertinent and hawk-eyed attention of the Bishop, Sir JOSEPH AYLOFFE, and other antiquarians present at the opening of the Monarch's coffin,—such was the intrepidity of my antiquarian friend GOUGH, that he would have attempted the head,

bead, instead of a pitiful finger, as he had on a large watchman's coat for the purpose. Nor must I omit the zeal of my friend Sir JOSEPH BANKS on the occasion; who, on hearing what was going on, and suspecting that King Edward might have been lodged in pickle, galloped off with a gallon jug, in a hackney-coach, in order to fill it with the precious liquor, as a fauce for his future Attic entertainments in Soho-square: but unfortunately no pickle was found.

I confess that an impudent fellow sent me for my Obituary the following, which was really printed off (but cancelled) before I was informed, by a friend, of the fallacy—to wit: “On Sunday night last, died “Mrs. MARGERY MOUSER, a widow-lady, beloved “in life, and lamented in death; she was the only “daughter of ROGER GRIMALKIN, Esq. of Ratley.”—Ignorant, indeed, was I that it was an imposition; for, gentle Reader, it was a dead cat!—Many a good customer have I gained by my Obituary, who liked to see themselves dead in my Magazine—I mean their relations liked to see their deaths displayed in a work of so much respectability as mine. But enough of myself; and now for Master PETER.

In the fullneis of my passion, I at first fet me down, and said to myself, Facit indignatio versus—when, behold! in less than two hours I knocked off the following Poem. Some time after, however, after a deal of deep thought on the subject, it struck me that I might fight this Poet PETER against himself; make him, like some game-cocks, cut his own throat with his own spurs. Accordingly I set about it, and collected, from every quarter, his manuscript verses of every denomination; some written in Cornwall, others in Devon, others in the West-Indies, others in Bath, others in London; as also some of his Letters, particularly those to the KING of the MOSQUITOES, who was sent for by the Governor of Jamaica, soon after that Gentleman arrived at his government. I have also collected some of his Observations, and Sayings, and Speeches:—I may verily say, Observations on men and manners, without any manners at all; or, in plainer phrase, much ill manners. PETER must not complain of my showing him no mercy by this publication, as he is the most merciless Mohawk that ever scalped.

POETICAL ANSWER

TO

MISTER PETER PINDAR'S

BENEVOLENT EPISTLE TO JOHN NICHOLS.

---

O SON of wicked Satan, with a foul
Hot as his hell, and blacker than his coal!
Thou false, thou foul-mouth'd censurer of the times,
I do not care three straws for all thy rhymes.
Thy wit is blunter than old worn-out sheers:
I'll make a riddle with thee for thy ears;
Write any sort of verse, thou bluff'ring blade!
Egad! I'll say, like KECKSY, "Who's afraid?"—
Thank God, I've talk'd to greater folks than thee:
In that I will not yield to any HE;
No, not to any HE that wears a head—
Again I'll say, like KECKSY, "Who's afraid?"—
Thank God, whene'er I wish like Kings to fare,
I go, unask'd, and dine with my Lord May'r.

But

But thou, who asks thee, varlet! to their houses?
 Fear'd by the husbands, dreaded by the spouses.
 May God Almighty hear what now I speak!—
 Some Aldermen would gladly break thy neck.
 Thou tell'st us thou hast struck thy lyre to Kings—
 Yes, faith, and founded very pretty things.
Thou blockhead, thou pretend to think thy rhymes
 Shall live to see the days of after-times!
 Fool, to pretend on subjects great to shine,
 Or e'en to Printers Dev'ls to tune the line!
 Sir, let me humbly beg you to be civil—
 Thou know'st not that I was a Printer's Dev'l:
 So, Sir, your satire wants the pow'r to drub,
 In thus comparing NICHOLS to a grub.
 Whate'er thou say'st, I'm not of vengeance full,
 Nor did I ever bellow like a bull:
 And grant I am a bull, I sha'n't suppose
 A cur like thee can nail me by the nose.
 Thou liest when thou sayest, like a top,
 With anger rais'd, I spinn'd about my shop:
 Nor did I ever, madden'd by thy stripes,
 Thou prince of liars, kick about my types.
 Books have I written; books I still will write,
 And give, I hope, to gentlefolks delight:

With

With charming print, and copper-plates so fine,
 Whose magazine goes off so well as mine?
 Who, pray, like me, the page so fond of filling?
 Who gives more curious matter for a shilling?
 England's first geniuses I keep in pay;
 Much prose I buy, and many a poet's lay:
 The silk-worm, HAYLEY, spins me heaps of verse;
 And GOUGH, antiquities exceeding scarce:
 Great HORACE WALPOLE too, with sweet good-will,
 Sends me choice anecdotes from Strawb'ry-Hill:
 Miss SEWARD, Mistress YEARDSLEY, and Miss MORE,
 Of lines (dear women!) send me many a score.
 These are the nymphs at whom thine envy rails—
 Fool! of their gowns not fit to hold the tails—
 These are the men, of prose and verse the knights,
 With genius flashing, like the northern lights;
 These are the men whose works immortal show
 The man of literature from top to toe.
 But thou'rt a wen—a blue, black, bloated tumour,
 Without one single grain of wit or humour:
 Thy Muse to all so consequential struts,
 As if all Helicon were in her guts;
 A fish-drab—a poor, nasty, ragged thing,
 Who never dipp'd her muzzle in the spring.

Thou

Thou think'st thyself on Pegafus fo steady ;
 But, PETER, thou art mounted on a Neddy :
 Or, in the London phrafe—thou Dev'nshire Monkey,
 Thy Pegafus is nothing but a Donkey.
 I own, my vanity it well may raife,
 To find fo many gaping for my praife ;
 Who fend fuch flatt'ring things as ne'er were feen,
 To get well varnish'd in my Magazine :
 Indeed I often do indulge the elves,
 And fuffer authors to commend themselves ;
 Wits of themselves can write with happieft fpirit,
 And men are judges of their proper merit.
 Lumps have I giv'n them too of beef and pudding,
 That helps a hungry genius in its ftudying ;
 And humming porter, when their Mufe was dry—
 For this be glory unto God on high !
 And not to me, who did not make the pudding,
 Nor beef, affifting genius in its ftudying.
 To authors, yes, I've giv'n both boil'd and roaft, }
 And many a time a tankard with a toaft— }
 But God forbid, indeed, that I fhould boaft !
 And halfpence too, and fixpences, ecod !
 But boaft avaunt !—the glory be to God !
 To Bards, good fhoes and ftockings I have giv'n—
 But not to me the glory, but to Heav'n !

Yes, yes, I see how much it swells thy spleen,
 That I'm head Master of the Magazine;
 Who let no author see the house of FAME,
 Before he gets a passport in my name.
 Art thou a Doctor? Yes, of thinning skill;
 For thousands have been poison'd by thy pill.
 But let my soul be calm:—it sha'n't be said
 I fear thee, O thou Monster!—"Who's afraid?"
 What though I know small Latin, and less Greek,
 Good sterling English I can write and speak:
 Yet thousands, who presume to be my betters,
 Can't spell their names, and scarcely know their letters,
 Belike, the curious world would hear with joy
 What trade I was design'd for, when a boy:
 "A barber or a taylor," said my mother—
 "No," cry'd my father, "neither one nor t'other;
 "A foldier, a rough foldier, JOHN shall wander,
 "Pull down the French, and fight like ALEXANDER."
 But unto letters was I always squinting,
 So ask'd my daddy's leave to study Printing;
 And got myself to uncle BOWYER's shop,
 Where, when it pleas'd the Lord that he should drop,
 The trade and good-will of the shop was mine;
 Where, without vanity, I think I shine;

And

And where, thank God, in spite of dull abuse,
 I'm warm, and married, and can boil my goose.
 And had I been to fwords and muskets bred,
 P'rhaps I had shin'd a CÆSAR, or the SWEDE :
 Hadst thou a foldier been, thou sorry mummer,
 Thy rank had never rose above a drummer.
 How dar'ft thou say, that should His ROYAL HIGHNESS
 (A Prince renown'd for modesty and shyness)
 Be Generalissimo of all our forces,
 A jack-ass's old back, and not a horse's,
 Should carry the good Prince into the field,
 Whose arm a broomstick, for a staff, should wield;
 That very, very broomstick which his wife
 Oft us'd to finish matrimonial strife ?
 Why dost not praise the virtues of the Queen,
 As great in soul, as noble in her mien,
 Whose virtues make the soul of ENVY sick,
 Strong as her snuff, and as her di'monds thick ?—
 But wherefore this to PETER do I say ?
 Owls love the dark, and therefore loath the day.
 The K... as wise a man as man can be ;
 The Q... so mild, who cannot kill a flea ;
 Brave GLO'STER'S Highness, and his sober wife,
 Who lead the softest, sweetest, calmest life ;

RICH-

* The Duke of G.

RICHMOND and LEEDS, each Duke a first-rate star,
 One fam'd for politics, and one for war;
 The open HAWKSB'RY, stranger to all guile,
 Who never of a sixpence robb'd our isle;
 The modest PITT, the Joseph of the day,
 Who never with lewd women went astray;
 And many others, that I soon could mention,
 Are much oblig'd, indeed, to thy invention!
 But where's the oak thar never feels a blast?
 Or fun, at times that is not overcast?
 Alas! e'en people drest in gold and ermine
 May feel at times the bites of nasty vermin:
 And when thou dar'st great Quality attack,
 What art thou but a bug upon their back?
 What harm, pray, hath my friend Sir JOSEPH done,
 So good, and yet the subject of thy fun?
 Just in his ways to women and to men—
 Indeed he swears a little now and then.
 Behold! his breakfasts shine with reputation!
 His dinners are the wonder of the nation!
 With these he treats both commoners and quality,
 Who praise, where'er they go, his hospitality:
 Ev'n from the north and south, and west and east,
 Men send him shell, and butterfly, and beast.

SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON fends gods and mugs;
 And, for his feaft, a fow's moft dainty dug.
 And fhall fuch mob as thou, not worth a groat,
 Dare pick a hole in fuch a great Man's coat?
 Whenever at St. James's he is feen,
 Is not he fpoke to by the King and Queen?
 And don't the Lords at once about him prefs,
 And, like his Sov'reigns, much regard prefs?
 Tell him they'll come one day to him and dine,
 Behold his rarities, and tafte his wine?
 Such are the honours, to delight the foul,
 On which thy longing eyeballs vainly roll:
 Such are the honours that his heart muft flatter,
 On which thy old dog's-mouth in vain may water.
 Whether in Dev'nfhire thou haft got a houfe,
 I value not three capers of a loufe;
 Whether in Cornwall thou a hut haft got,
 And, at elections only, boil'ft thy pot;
 Whether a Doct'or, Devil, or a Friar,
 I know not—but I know thou art a liar.
 Whene'er I die, I hope that I fhall read
 This honeft epitaph upon my head:—
 " Here lies JOHN's body; but his foul is feen
 " In that fam'd work, the Ge'mman's Magazine:
 " Brave,

- “ Brave, yet possess’d of all the softer feelings ;
 “ Successful with the Muses in his dealings ;
 “ Mild, yet in virtue’s cause as quick as tinder—
 “ Who never car’d one fig for PETER PINDAR.”

Mr. PETER PINDAR’S Apology for the variety of entertainment in his pretty Poetical Olio, is the first thing I shall present to the Public.

PETER’S APOLOGY.

LADIES, I keep a rhyme-shop—mine’s a trade ;
 I sell to old and young, to man and maid :

All customers must be oblig’d ; and no man
 Wishes more universally to please :

I’d really crawl upon my hands and knees,
 T’ oblige—particularly lovely woman.

Yet some, (the devil take such virtuous times !)
 Fastidious, pick a quarrel with my rhymes,

And beg I’d only deal in love-sick sonnet—
 How easy to bid others cease to feed !

On beauty I can quickly die indeed,

But, trust me, can’t live long upon it.

If there is not a deal of impudent double-entendre in this Sonnet, I do not know what purity meaneth—
Sweetly wrapped up indeed, 'Squire PINDAR!

Instead of a formal commentary on every composition, I shall make short work with them, by giving them their true character in a few words, as for example:

Impudence, Egotism, and Conceit.

The expulsion of a most excellent set of Players from Kingsbridge in Devonshire, with the asylum offered them by the Author's Barn in an adjoining parish, is the foundation of the following Ode.

ODE TO MY BARN.

SWEET haunt of solitude and rats,
Mice, tuneful owls, and purring cats;

Who, whilst we mortals sleep, the gloom pervade,
And wish not for the sun's all-seeing eye,
Your mousing mysteries to spy;

Blest, like philosophers, amidst the shade;

When

When PERSECUTION, with an iron hand,
 Dar'd drive the moral-menders from the land,
     Call'd Players—friendly to the wand'ring crew,
 Thine eye with tears survey'd the mighty wrong,
 Thine open arms receiv'd the mournful throng—
     Kings without shirts, and Queens with half a shoe.

Alas! what dangers gloom'd of late around!
 Monarchs and Queens with halters nearly bound—
     Duke, Dukeling, Princess, Prince, confin'd to jail!
 And, what the very soul of PITY shocks,
 The poor old LEAR was threaten'd with the stocks,
     CORDELIA with the cart's unfeeling tail.

Still cherish such rare royalty forlorn—
 A GARRICK in thy bosom may be born;
     A SIDDONS too, of future fair renown:
 For LOVE is not a squeamish God, they say;
 As pleas'd to see his rites perform'd on hay,
     As on the goose's soft and yielding down.

The same impudence, egotism, and conceit as in the first Ode.

TO MY BARN.

BY Lacedæmon men attack'd,
 When Thebes, in days of yore, was sack'd,
     And nought the fury of the troops could hinder;
 What's true, yet marv'lous to rehearse,
 So well the common soldiers relish'd verse,
     They scorn'd to burn the dwelling-house of PINDAR.

With awe did ALEXANDER view
 The house of my great cousin, too,
     And, gazing on the building, thus he sigh'd—
 “ General PARMENIO, mark that house before ye!
 “ That lodging tells a melancholy story!
     “ There PINDAR liv'd (great Bard!) and there he died.

“ The King of Syracuse, all nations know it,
 “ Was celebrated by this lofty Poet,
     “ And made immortal by his strains:
 “ Ah! could I find like him a bard, to sing me;
 “ Would any man, like him a poet bring me;
     “ I'd give him a good pension for his pains.

“ But

“ But, ah! PARMENIO, ’mongst the fons of men,
 “ This world will never see his like agen;
 “ The greateft bard that ever breath’d is dead!
 “ General PARMENIO, what think you?”—
 “ Indeed ’tis true, my liege, ’tis very true,”
 PARMENIO cry’d, and, fighing, fhook his head:

Then from his pocket took a knife fo nice,
 With which he chipp’d his cheefe and onions,
 And from a rafter cut a handsome flice,
 To make rare toothpicks for the Macedonians;
 Juft like the toothpicks which we fee
 At Stratford made, from Shakefpear’s mulb’ry-tree.

What pity that the ’fquire and knight
 Knew not to prophecy as well as fight;
 Then had they known the future men of metre;
 Then had the General and the Monarch fpy’d,
 In FATE’s fair book, our nation’s equal pride,
 That very PINDAR’s coufin PETER!

DAUGHTER of thatch, and ftone, and mud,
 When I (no longer flefh and blood)

Shall join of lyric bards some half-a-dozen ;
Meed of high worth, and, 'midst th' Elyfian plains,
To Horace and Alcæus read my strains,
Anacreon, Sappho, and my great old cousin ;

On thee shall rising generations stare,
That come to Kingsbridge and to Dodbrook Fair :*
For such thy history, and mine shall learn ;
Like ALEXANDER shall they ev'ry one
Heave the deep sigh, and say, “ Since PETER's gone,
“ With rev'rence let us look upon his Barn.”

* Held annually at those places.

The following Ode of Mr. PINDAR'S is what rhetoricians would call ironical. The leading feature seems to be impudence.

ODE TO AFFECTATION.

NYMPH of the mincing mouth, and languid eye,
 And lisping tongue so soft, and head awry,
 And flutt'ring heart, of leaves of aspin made;
 Who were thy parents, blushful Virgin! say—
 Perchance DAME FOLLY gave thee to the day,
 With GAFFER IGNORANCE'S aid.

Say, Virgin, where dost thou delight to dwell?
 With Maids of Honour, startful Virgin? tell—
 For I have heard a deal of each fair MISS;
 How wicked LORDS have whisper'd wicked things
 Beneath the noses of good Queens and Kings,
 And sigh'd for pleasures far beyond a kiss!

Great is thy delicacy, dainty Maid;
 At slightest things, thy cheek with crimson glows:
 Say, art thou not ashamed, abash'd, afraid,
 Whene'er thou stealest forth to pluck a rose?

Or hast thou lost, O Nymph, thy pretty gall;
So never pluckest any rose at all?

I'm told, thou keepest not a single male;
Nothing but females, at thy board to cram;
That no he-lapdog near thee wags his tail,
Nor cat by vulgar people call'd a ram.

I've heard too, that if e'er, by dire mishap,
Some ravishers should make thy fav'rites wh—s,
Staring as stricken by a thunder-clap,
Thy modesty hath kick'd them out of doors.

'Tis said, when wag-tails thou behold'st, and doves,
And sparrows busy with their feather'd loves;
Lord! thou hast trembled at their wicked tricks;
And, snatching up thy blush-concealing fan,
As if it were a lady and a man,
Hast only peep'd upon them through the sticks.

And yet so variously thou'rt said to act,
That I have heard it utter'd for a fact,

That often on old Thames's funny banks,
Where striplings swim, with wanton pranks,

On bladders some outstretch'd, and some on corks ;
 Thou squinting, most indiff'rent girl, art seen,
 In contemplation of each youthful skin,
 Admiring God Almighty's handy-works.

I'm told, thou wilt not meddle with cod's head ;
 Nor giblets taste, nor innocent lamb's-fry—
 This is a very strange affair indeed !
 I wonder, squeamish MAID, the reason why !

Some men have got strange names, that raise thy blush !
 (Pity a name should so disturb thy cheek !)
 Then dost thou, simpering, beat about the bush,
 When to those men thou art inclin'd to speak.

At length thou biddest SUSAN (with sweet shame)
 " Go fetch the fellow with the filthy name."

I've heard, that breeches, petticoats, and smock,
 Give to thy modest mind a grievous shock ;
 And that thy brain (so lucky its device)
 Christ'neth them inexpressibles, so nice !

Prim Maid, thou art no fav'rite with the world :
 I hear the direst curses on thee hurl'd !

Sorry

Sorry am I, so ill thy manners suit :
 'Tis said, that if a moufe appear to view,
 We hear a formidable screech enfue,
 As if it were some huge devouring brute ;

And if beneath thy petticoat he run,
 Thou bellowest as if thou wert undone,
 And kickest at a cow-like rate, poor foul !
 When, if thou wert to be a little quiet,
 And not disturb the nibbler by a riot,
 The moufe would go into his proper hole.

I've heard it sworn to, Nymph, that in the streets,
 When running, dancing, capering at thy side,
 Thy Chloe other dogs so brazen meets,
 That, wriggling, ask thy bitch to be their bride,
 Quick hast thou caught up Chloe in thy arms,
 From violation to preserve her charms ;

And, bouncing wildly from the view
 Of those fame faucy canine crew,
 Hast op'd so loud and tunefully thy throat,
 (Seeming as thou hadst learnt to scream by note)
 Loud as the Sabine girls that try'd to 'scape
 The speechless horrors of a Roman rape.

No novels readeſt thou, O Nymph, in ſight ;
 And yet again I'm told that ev'ry night,
 In ſecret, thou art much inclin'd to doat
 On rhymes that ROCHESTER ſo warmly wrote.

Oft doſt thou wonder how thy ſex, ſo ſweet,
 Can fellows, thoſe great two-legg'd monſters, meet,
     And ſwoon not at each Caliban ;
 And wonder how thy ſex can fancy bliſſes
 Contain'd within the black rough-bearded kiſſes
     Of ſuch a horrid bear-like thing as man.

Thy morals, virtuous Maiden, are ſo chaſte,
     I'm told, that e'en for all the mint
 No man ſhould ever take thee round the waift,
     And on thy lips a faucy kiſs imprint !

Inform me, is it ſo, moſt dainty maid ?
 Are thy two lips of kiſſes thus afraid ?

'Tis alſo ſaid, that if a flea at night,
 Pert rogue, hath dar'd thy luſcious lip to bite,
     Or point his ſnout into thy ſnowy breaſt,
 At once the houſe hath been alarm'd—the maids
 Call'd idle, naſty, good-for-nothing jades ;
     Who, Eve-like, ruſhing to thy room, undreſt,

Have thought some secret ravisher so dread,
 On LOVE's delicious viands to be fed,

Had seiz'd thee, to obtain forbidden joys;
 Which had he done, a most audacious thief,
 Of ev'ry maid it was the firm belief

Thou wouldst not, Nymph, have made a greater noise,

And yet 'tis said, again, O Nymph so bright,
 Thou sleep'st with John the coachman ev'ry night—

Vile tales! invented to destroy thy fame;
 For, wert thou, fearful Lass, this instant married,
 At night, thy modest cheek would burn with flame,
 Nor wouldst thou go, but to the bed be carried:

There, when thy STREPHON rush'd, in white array'd,
 To clasp with kisses sweet his white-stol'd maid,

And riot in the luxury of charms;
 Flat as a flounder, seeing, hearing gone—
 Mute as a fish, and fairly turn'd to stone—
 O Damsel! thou wouldst die within his arms.

More impudence, with a lick at one of the Ten Commandments. He talks too of his passions as having left him—I do not believe a word on't: all PETER's colt's-teeth are not yet gone—Oh, that I had the drawing them! Oh, that my pincers could get amongst them! the world should then see him make up many a pretty wry face. “Pretty,” did I say? not pretty neither, for the fellow is as ugly as sin.—Oh, that I had him, like the types for my magazine, in my printing-press! I would give his bones a most glorious squeeze! But he is a liar, and I can prove it, for he keeps a girl at this moment; and a beautiful girl too, that he makes verses upon—but it is VULCAN and VENUS. The Jack-ass, perhaps, wants a bunch of nettles, I suppose, for his MUSE; something extraordinary, to give a filip to his languid inspirations.

---

TO FORTUNE.

SAD leaving FORTUNE, thou art come too late:

Ah! wherefore give me not thy smiles before;

When all my youthful passions in a rear,

Rare hunters, fearless leap'd each five-bar gate?

Unknown

Unknown by thee, how often did I meet
 The loveliest forms of nature in the street,
 The fair, the black, and lasting brown !
 And, while their charms enraptur'd I survey'd,
 This pretty legend on their lips I read—
 “ Kisses, O gentle shepherd, for a crown.”

How oft I look'd, and sigh'd, and look'd agen,
 Upon the smiling Loves of ev'ry PHILLIS !
 How wish'd myself a cock, and her a hen,
 To crop at once her roses and her lilies !
 Not only gratis, but with perfect ease—
 Without so much as, “ Madam, if you please.”

“ At Otaheité,” I have said with tears,
 “ No gentleman a jail so horrid fears
 “ For taking loving liberties with lasses :
 “ Soon as they heard how LOVE in England far'd,
 “ The glorious Otaheitans all were scar'd,
 “ And call'd us Englishmen a pack of asses.

“ But they, indeed, are heathens—have no souls,
 “ But such as must be fried on burning coals ;

“ But

“ But I’m a Christian, and abhor a rape :
 “ Yet if a lasſ would ſell her lean and fat,
 “ I’m not ſo great an enemy to that—
 “ Though that might whelp a little kind of ſcrape ;
 “ Since ’tis believ’d e’en ſimple fornication
 “ May ſtep between a man and his ſalvation.”

Damn’d FORTUNE ! thus to make the Poet groan ;
 To offer now, forſooth, thy ſhining pieces ;
 For now my paſſions nearly all are flown,
 Departed to my nephews and my nieces !

---

Here, indignant Reader, is impudence with a vengeance ! When certain ſacred parts of our moſt glorious ROYAL FAMILY determined in their great wiſdoms and anger to quit ungrateful England, what does this foul-mouthed Poet do, but give them a farewell laugh in verſe, when it ſhould have been the moſt lamentable elegy—ſebile carmen ! But PETER PINDAR is a Caliban. I do not believe that ever he cried in his life, excepting when he was flogged at ſchool—Monſtrum horrendum, informe, ingens—I wiſh
 I could

I could add too, cui lumen ademptum; for his eyes are hunting for nothing but deformity: let him look in the glass then, and he will spy a sufficient mass; or open his brain-box, and he will there find a rare cargo.

ODE TO MADAM SCHW—G AND CO.

ON THEIR INTENDED VOYAGE TO GERMANY.

WRITTEN IN THE YEAR 1789.

WE wish you a good voyage to that shore
 Where all your friends are impudent and poor:
 Oblige us, Madam—don't again come over—
 To use a cant phrase, we've been finely fobb'd,
 Indeed have very dext'rousfly been robb'd—
 You've liv'd just eight and twenty years in clover.

Pray let us breathe a little—be so good;
 We cannot spare such quantities of blood:
 At least for some ten years, pray cross the main;
 Then, cruel, should ye think upon returning,
 To put us Britons all in second mourning,
 We may support phlebotomy again.

To you and your lean gang we owe th' Excise:
 PITT cannot any other scheme devise,
 To pay the nation's debt, and fill your purses.
 With great respect I here assure you, Ma'am,
 Your name our common people loudly damn;
Genteeler folks attack with silent curses.

Madam, can you speak Latin?—No, not much—
 I think you principally spew * High-Dutch:
 But did you Latin understand, (God bless it)
 I'd offer up the pithiest, prettiest line
 Unto your Avarice's sacred shrine—

“ Crescit amor nummi quantum ipsa pecunia crescit.”

The which translation of this Latin line
 Is this—‘ Alas! that maw profound of thine
 ‘ May like the stomach of a whale be reckon'd:
 ‘ Throw into it the nation's treasury,
 ‘ But for a minute it will pleasure ye;
 ‘ That gullet would be gaping for a second.’

VOL. II.

F f

Madam,

* The author thinks the expression, though a dirty one, more descriptive than any other of the guttural German; and therefore chooses not to sacrifice truth to a little bienfiance.

Madam, we wish you a long, long adieu—
 Good riddance of the snuff and di'mond crew!

Your absence, all, alone the State relieves;
 For, hungry Ladies, as I'm here alive,
 A house can never hope to thrive,
 That harboureth a nest of thieves.

An insupportable apology for keeping Mistresses, and a laugh at that most respectable state, Matrimony.

O D E.

THAT I have often been in love, deep love,
 A hundred doleful ditties plainly prove.

By marriage never have I been disjointed;
 For matrimony deals prodigious blows:
 And yet for this same stormy state, God knows,
 I've groan'd—and, thank my stars, been disappointed.

With

With LOVE's dear passion will I never war:

Let ev'ry man for ever be in love,

E'en if he beats, in age, old PAR:

'Tis for his chilly veins a good warm glove;

It bids the blood with brisker motion start,

Thawing TIME's icicles around his heart.

WEDLOCK's a faucy, sad, familiar state,

Where folks are very apt to scold and hate:

LOVE keeps a modest distance, is divine,

Obliging, and says ev'ry thing that's fine.

LOVE writes sweet sonnets, deals in tender matter:

MARRIAGE, in epigram so keen, and satire:

LOVE seeketh always to oblige the fair;

Full of kind wishes, and exalted hope:

MARRIAGE desires to see her in the air,

Suspended, at the bottom of a rope.

LOVE wishes, in the vale or on the down,

To give his dear, dear idol a green gown:

MARRIAGE, the brute, so snappish and ill-bred,

Can kick his fighting turtle out of bed;

Turns bluffly from the charms that taste adores,

Then pulls his night-cap o'er his eyes, and snores.

Wedlock at first, indeed, is vastly pleafant;
 A very showy bird, a fine cock-pheafant:
 By time, it changeth to a diff'rent fowl;
 Sometimes a cuckoo, oft'ner a horn-owl.

Wedlock's a lock, however, large and thick,
 Which ev'ry rafcal has a key to pick.

O LOVE! for heav'n's fake, never leave my heart:
 No! thou and I will never, never part:
 Go, WEDLOCK, to the men of leaden brains,
 Who hate variety, and figh for chains.

---

A bare-faced apology for leaving a loving wife.

T O C H L O E.

AN APOLOGY FOR GOING INTO THE COUNTRY.

CHLOE, we must not always be in heav'n,
 For ever toying, ogling, kissing, billing;
 The joys for which I thousands would have giv'n,
 Will presently be fcarcely worth a fhillings.

Thy

Thy neck is fairer than the Alpine snows,
 And, sweetly swelling, beats the down of doves;
 Thy cheek of health, a rival to the rose;
 Thy pouting lips, the throne of all the Loves!
 Yet, though thus beautiful beyond expression,
 That beauty fadeth by too much possession.

Economy in love is peace to nature,
 Much like economy in worldly matter:
 We should be prudent, never live too fast;
 Profusion will not, cannot always last.

Lovers are really spendthrifts—'tis a shame:
 Nothing their thoughtless, wild career can tame,
 Till pen'ry stares them in the face;
 And when they find an empty purse,
 Grown calmer, wiser, how the fault they curse,
 And, limping, look with such a sneaking grace!
 Job's war-horse fierce, his neck with thunder hung,
 Sunk to a humble hack that carries dung.

Smell to the queen of flowers, the fragrant rose—
 Smell twenty times—and then, my dear, thy nose
 Will tell thee (not so much for scent athirst)
 The twentieth drank less flavour than the first.

LOVE, doubtless, is the sweetest of all fellows;
 Yet often should the little God retire—
 Absence, dear Chloe, is a pair of bellows,
 That keeps alive the sacred fire.

In the same impudently ironical style.

ODE TO LAÏS.

O NYMPH with all the luxury of skin,
 Pea-bloom breath, and dimpled chin;
 Rose cheek, and eyes that beat the blackest floe;
 With flaxen ringlets thy soft bosom shading,
 So white, so plump, so lusciously-persuading;
 And lips that none but mouths of Cherubs know!

Oh, leering, lure me not to Charlotte-street,
 That too, too fair, seducing form to meet;
 Warm, unattir'd, and breathing rich delight;
 Where thou wilt practise ev'ry roguish art,
 To bid my spirits all unbridled start,
 Run off with me full tilt, and steal my sight.

Then

Then shall I trembling fall, for want of grace,
And die, yes, die perhaps upon my face!

Ah! cease to turn, and look, and leer, and smile,
My too imprudent senses to beguile!

Ah! keep that taper leg so tempting from me,
Ah! form'd to foil a Phidias's art;
So much unlike that leg in ev'ry part
By me abhorr'd indeed, and christen'd gummy.

In vain I turn around to run away:
Thine eyes, those basilisks, command my stay:
Whilst through its gauze thy snowy bosom peeping,
Seems to that rogue intrepeter, my eye,
To heave a soft, desponding, tender sigh—
Like goffamer, my thoughts of goodness sweeping.

Pity my dear religion's dread debility,
And hide those orbs of sweet inflammability!
Abound, I say, abound in grace, my feet;
And do not follow her to Charlotte-street.

Alas! alas! you have no grace, I see,
But wish to carry off poor struggling me;

Yes, the wild bed of Beauty wish to seek!
 Yet, if ye do—to make your two hearts ake,
 A sweet, a sweet revenge I mean to take;
 For, curse me me if you shall not stay a week.

Yet let me not thus pond'ring, gaping, stand;
 But, lo! I am not at my own command:
 Bed, bosom, kifs, embraces, storm my brains,
 And, lawless tyrants, bind my will in chains.
 O lovely Laïs! too pow'rful are thy charms,
 And fascination dwells within thy arms.

The Passions join the fierce invading host;
 And I and VIRTUE are o'erwhelm'd and lost:
 Passions that in a martingal should move;
 Wild horses, loosen'd by the hands of LOVE.

I'm off—alas! unworthy to be seen—
 The BARD, and VIRTUE a poor captive Queen!
 O LAÏS, should our deeds to sins amount,
 Just Heav'n will place them all to thy account.

The following Stanza, on the death of Lady MOUNT E——'s favourite Pig CUPID, is verily exceeded by nothing in the annals of impertinence.

A CONSOLATORY STANZA
TO LADY MOUNT E——,

ON THE DEATH OF HER PIG CUPID.

O DRY that tear, so round and big;
Nor waste in sighs your precious wind!
Death only takes a single Pig—
Your Lord and Son are still behind.

Superlatively impudent, and, I hope, untrue; sent me two days after my publication of my Queen Elizabeth's Progresses, one of which is now actually in His Majesty's glorious Library at Buckingham-House.

---

TO MR. J. NICHOLS,

ON HIS

HISTORY OF THE PROGRESS OF QUEEN ELIZABETH.

JOHN, though it asks no subtilty of brain
 To write QUEEN BESS'S Progress though the land;
 Excuse the freedom, if I dare maintain
 The theme too high for thee to take in hand.

On VANITY'S damn'd rock what thousands split!
 Thou shouldst have labour'd on some humbler
 On somewhat on a level with thy wit— [matter;
 For instance—when Her Majesty made w——.

To show that I can be candid, even to people of no candour, I shall conclude this First Part with a few Songs that are not totally destitute of merit.

T O D E L I A.

WHILE poets pour their happiest lays,
 And call thee ev'ry thing divine;
 Not quite so lavish in thy praise,
 To censure be the province mine.

Though born with talents to surprize,
 Thou feldom dost those pow'rs display:
 Thus seem they trifling in thine eyes!
 Thus heav'n's best gifts are thrown away!

Though rich in charms, thou know'st it not;
 Such is thine ignorance profound:
 And then such cruelty thy lot,
 Thy sweetest smile inflicts a wound,

T O F O R T U N E.

Y ES, FORTUNE, I have fought thee long,
 Invok'd thee oft, in prose and song ;
     Through half Old England woo'd thee ;
 Through seas of danger, Indian lands,
 Through Afric's howling, burning sands :
     But, ah ! in vain purfu'd thee !

Now, FORTUNE, thou wouldst fain be kind ;
 And now I'll plainly speak my mind—
     I care not straws about thee :
 For DELIA's hand alone I toid ;
 Unbrib'd by wealth, the Nymph has smil'd ;
     And bliss is ours without thee.

---

 T O C H L O E.

C HLOE, a thousand charms are thine,
     That give my heart the constant sigh !
 Ah ! wherefore let thy Poet pine,
     Who canst with ease his wants supply ?

Oh, haste, thy charity display;

With little I'll contented be:

The kisses which thou throw'st away

Upon thy dog, will do for me.

I cannot, however, conclude this First Part of Mr. PETER'S lucubrations without a severe reprehension of his want of loyalty, as well as want of respect, for that first of Courts, ST. JAMES'S; and, moreover, to prove that disloyalty and disrespect, I give the following Ode, which he, with all his impudence, dares not deny that he wrote. I suppose that it was hatched in the last reign, since it is impossible that it should be in the present. One word more with him—Should his insolence mean his present MAJESTY, he is an ungrateful, as well as an insolent fellow; as his Majesty has got his books bound in best morocco leather, (Oh, that PETER'S own hide had been stripped off, and tanned for the purpose!) which are now in the library at Buckingham-house: nay, more, his Majesty has condescended to write notes on the varlet's works!—yes! with his own most royal hand! Thus has this most unloyal, most disrespectful, most ungrateful, and most pitiful rhymers,—a KING FOR A COMMENTATOR!!!—His Majesty is pleased, with a smile, to call him the “Merry Wight.” Might I offer an emendation to MAJESTY; it should be the wicked Wight.

TO A FRIEND OUT OF PLACE.

SO then, thy SOV'REIGN turns away his face!
Thank God, with all thy soul, for the disgrace.

This instant down upon thy knee,
And idolize the man who makes thee free;
No more endeavour FOLLY'S hand to kiss!
At first I look'd with pity on thy fate;
But now I humbly thank the foot of FATE,
That kindly kicks thee into bliss.

I've been disgrac'd too—felt a Monarch's frown,
And consequently quitted town:
But have my fields refus'd their smiles so sweet?
Say, have my birds grown fulky, with the King?
My thrushes, linnets, larks, refus'd to sing?
My winding brooks, to prattle at my feet?

No!

No! no such matter! Each unclouded day
On dove-like pinions gaily glides away:

In short, all Nature seems dispos'd to please—
Then prithee quit thy qualms; look up and laugh;
The rural pleasures let us largely quaff,
And make our congé to the Gods of Ease.

By day, shall NATURE's simple voice
Our walks, and rides of health rejoice,

Far from an empty Court where TUMULT howls;
And should at night, by chance, an hour
Be with ennui inclin'd to low'r,
We'll go and listen to our owls;

Birds from whose throats 'tis said that wisdom springs—
How very different from the throats of Kings!

*Nil nimium studeo, Cæsar, tibi velle placere;
Nec scire utrum sis albus an ater homo.*

CATULLVS.

So little, Cæsar's humour claims my care,
I know not if the man be black or fair.

A R G U M E N T.

THE Poet expreffeth wonderful curiofity for knowing the future Laureat—reporteth the Candidates for the fublime office of Poetical Trumpeter—recommendeth to his Mufe the praifes of economy, poultry, cow-pens, pigs, dunghills, &c.—advifeth the mention of his prefent money-loving Majefty of Naples, alfo of the great people of Germany.—PETER gently criticifeth poor THOMAS, and uttereth ftrange things of Courts—he exclaimeth fuddenly, and boafeth of his purity—he returneth fweetly to the unknown Laureat, asketh him pertinent queftions, and informeth him what a Laureat fhould refemble.

P A R T II.

THE Poet feeleth a moft uncommon metamorphofe—breaketh out into a kind of poetical delirium—talketh of court-reformation, the arts and fciences; and feemeth to continue mad to the end of the chapter.

A D V I C E
TO
THE FUTURE LAUREAT.

---

O D E.

WHO shall resume Saint James's fife,
And call ideal virtues into life?
On tiptoe gaping, lo, I stand,
To see the future Laureat of the land!

Dread rivals, splashing through the dirty road,
With thund'ring specimens of Ode,
The lyric bundles on each Poet's back,
Intent to gain the stipend and the Sack,
See MASON, HAYLEY, to the Palace scamper,
Like porters sweating underneath a hamper!

And see the hacks of NICHOLS' Magazine
Rush, loyal, to berhyme a King and Queen;
And see, full speed, to get the tuneful job,
The bellman's heart, with hopes of vict'ry, throb.

O thou, whate'er thy name, thy trade, thy art,
 Who from obscurity art doom'd to start,
 Call'd, by the Royal mandate, to proclaim
 To distant realms a Monarch's feeble fame—
 For fame of Kings, like cripples in the gout,
 Demands a crutch to move about—

Whoe'er thou art, that winn'ft the envied prize,
 Oh, if for Royal smile thy bosom sighs,
 Of pig-economy exalt the praise;
 Oh, flatter sheep and bullocks in thy lays!
 To saving wisdom boldly strike the strings,
 And justify the grazier-trade in Kings.

Descant on ducks and geese, and cocks and hens,
 Haystacks and dairies, cowhouses and pens;
 Descant on dunghills, ev'ry sort of kine;
 And on the pretty article of swine.

Inform us, without loss, to twig
     The stomach of a feeding calf, or cow;
     And tell us, economic, how
 To steal a dinner from a fatt'ning pig;
 And, Bard, to make us still more blest, declare
 How hogs and bullocks may grow fat on air.

Sing

Sing how the King of Naples fells his fish,
 And from his stomach cribs the daintiest dish;
 Sing, to his subjects how he fells his game;
 So fierce for dying rich, the Monarch's flame:

Sing of th' economy of German quality;
 Emp'rors, Electors, dead to hospitality;
 Margraves, and miserable Dukes,
 Who squeeze their subjects, and who starve their cooks:
 Such be the burthen of thy birth-day song,
 And, lo, our Court will listen all day long.

TOM prov'd unequal to the Laureat's place;
 Luckless, he warbled with an Attic grace:
 The language was not understood at Court,
 Where bow and curt'fy, grin and shrug, resort;
 Sorrow for sickness, joy for health, so civil;
 And love, that wish'd each other to the devil!

TOM was a scholar—luckless wight!

Lodg'd with old manners in a musty college;
 He knew not that a Palace hated knowledge,
 And deem'd it pedantry to spell and write.

TOM heard of royal libraries, indeed,
And, weakly, fancied that the books were read!

He knew not that an author's sense
Was, at a Palace, not worth finding;
That what to notice gave a book pretence,
Was solely paper, print, and binding!

Some folks had never known, with all their wit,
Old PINDAR's name, nor occupation,
Had not I started forth—a lucky hit,
And prov'd myself the Theban Bard's relation.

The names of DRUMMOND, BOLDERO, and HOARE,
Though strangers to APOLLO's tuneful ear,
Are discords that the Palace-folks adore,
Sweet as sincerity, as honour dear;

The name of HOMER, none are found to know it,
So much the Banker fears beyond the Poet;
For Courts prefer, so classically weak,
A Guinea's music to the noise of Greek:
Menin aeide Thea, empty sounds,
How mean to,—“ Pay the bearer fifty pounds!”

Angels,

Angels, and ministers of grace, what's here!
 See suppliant SAL'SB'ry to the Bard appear!
 He fights—upon his knuckles he is down!—
 His Lordship begs I'll take the Poet's crown.

Avaunt, my Lord!—Solicitation, fly!
 I'll not be Zany to a King, not I:
 I'll be no Monarch's humble thrush,
 To whistle from the laurel bush;
 Or, rather, a tame owl, to hoot
 Whene'er it shall my masters suit.

I have no flatt'ries cut and dried—no varnish
 For Royal qualities, so apt to tarnish,
 Expos'd a little to the biting air:
 I've got a foul, and so no lies to spare;
 Besides, too proud to sing for hire,
 I scorn to touch a venal lyre.

Avaunt, ye sceptred vulgar—purpled, ermin'd;
 The Muse shall make no mummies, I'm determin'd.
 World, call her prostitute, bawd, dirty b—,
 If meanly once she deals in spice and pitch,
 And faves a carcase, by its lyric balm,
 So putrid, which the very worms must damn.

Again to thee I turn, from dear digression ;
 To thee, ambitious of the Sack-possession !
 O thou, the future Laureat, yet unknown,
 The nightingale or magpie of a Throne !

    Reveal the situation of thy brain.
 Or clear, or muddy is its fountain ?
 Of molehills can it make a mountain,
     So strong the magic of its wizard strain ?

Laureats should boast a bushel of invention,
 Or yield up all poetical pretension :

    Lo, flatt'ries form a Monarch's first delights !
 A solar microscope the Bard should be,
 That to a camel's size can swell a flea,
     And give the guts of aldermen to mites.

MY soul assumes a loftier wing;
 I'm chang'd, I feel myself a King!
     I'm sceptred—on my head the crown descends!
 To purple turn'd my coat of parson's grey,
 Now let my Majesty itself display,
     And show that Kings and glory may be friends.

Yet, though I feel myself a King,
     I hope, untainting, that the crown descends—
 Not on my people's shoulders bids me spring;
     And cry, forgetful of myself and friends,
 "Blood of the Gods within my veins I find;
 "Not the mean puddle of that mob, mankind."

Low at my feet the spaniel-courtiers cower;
 Curl, wheedle, whine, paw, lick my shoe, for power;
 Prepar'd for ev'ry insult, servile train,
 To take a kicking, and to fawn again!

Off, PITT and GRENVILLE ! you are not yet men ;
Go, children, to your leading-frings agen ;

    Make not a hobby-horse of this fair Isle :—

Yet, were no danger in the childish fway,

A Kingdom might permit a baby's play,

    And at its weakneffes indulge a smile.

Off, then !—once more upon your letters look—

Go, find of politics the lost horn-book.

Off with EXCISE your Imp, with lengthen'd claws,

And fangs deep-rooted in his hydra-jaws ;

That monster, damping FREEDOM's sacred joys ;

Fed by your hands, ye pair of foolish boys !

My soul, to FREEDOM wedded, FREEDOM loves ;

    Then blast me, lightnings, when, so coldly cruel,

    I to pomatum sacrifice the jewel,

Rouge, pigtail, and a pair of gloves.

Off, J—— ! some demon did create thee :

    Oh, form'd to fawn, to kneel, to lie, to flatter !

“ Perdition catch my soul, but I do hate thee !

    “ And when I hate thee not,” I war with NATURE.

Such reptiles dare not 'midst my radiance sport—

Curs'd be such snakes that crawl about a Court.

Disgrace

Disgrace not, simp'ring fycophants, my throne!—
 E——, and pigmy V——T, be gone!
 BR——, thou stinkeft!—weazel, polecat, fly!
 Thy manners skock, thy form offends my eye.
 As for thy principles—thy're gone long since;
 Lost, when a poor deferter from thy PRINCE.

——, avaunt!—thou'rt cowardly and mean;
 Thy foul is fable, and thy hands unclean.
 Yet to minutiaë to descend, what need?
 Enough, that thou art one of Charles's breed.

Out with that SAL'SBURY!—DUNDAS, avaunt!
 Off, water-gruel WESTMORELAND, and LEEDS!
 You, verily, are not the men I want—
 My bounty no such folly feeds.

Off, HARCOURT! who wouldst starve my kine,
 Or make them, poor lean devils, dine
 On vile horse-chefnuts—'tis a cursed meal—
 Instead of turnips, corn, and hay:
 Thou shalt not, by this avaricious way,
 Into my royal favour steal.

Off, UXBRIDGE!—LEEDS, too, once more get along!
 You shall not be Lord-Prefidents of song;
     You throw poor St. Cecilia into fits:
 You've ears, but verily they do not hear,
 Just as you've tongues that cannot speak, I fear;
     And brains that want their compliment of wits.

Off, WALSINGHAM!—thou putt'ft me in a sweat:
 I hate a jack-in-office martinet—
 For ever something most important brewing;
 For ever bufy, bufy, nothing doing.

Thou plague of Post-office, the teazer, fretter;
 Informing clerks the way to feal a letter;
 Who, full of wifdom, hold'ft thyfelf the broom,
 Inftrocting Sufan how to fwep the room;
     The letter-man, to hold his bag;
 The mail-guard (funk in ignorance forlorn!)
 To load his blunderbufs, and blow his horn;
     Off, off!—of confequence thou rag!
 Go to the fields, and gain a Nation's thanks;
 Catch grafshoppers and butterflies for BANKS.

I want not fellows that can only prate;
 I want no whirligigs of ftate;

No jack-a-lanterns, imitating fire,
 Skipping, and leading men into the mire.

Thou servile copyist, WEST, begone!
 With nought worth saving of thy own;
 Phillis and Chloe, dancing dogs,
 PINETTI, and the fortune-telling hogs,
 Toy-men and conjurers, from my presence fly!
 I have no children to amuse—not I.

Off, Sw—G! thou lean, old, wicked cat;
 Restless and spitting, biting, mewling, mean,
 Thou shalt not in my chimney-corner squat;
 Thou shalt not, harridan, be Queen:
 Off, to thy country, by the map forgot,
 Where TYRANNY and FAMINE curse the spot!

Yet empty first thy bags of plunder'd gain,
 Wages of vile political pollution;
 Then vanish, thou OLD FISTULA! a drain
 Enervating our glorious Constitution!

Off, HASTINGS' Wife! thy di'monds bode no good;
 They shall not taint us—lo, they smell of blood!

Off,

Off, off, old GILBERT's spawn!—now EDGECOMBE's fury,

In manners coarser than the dames of Drury!

O form'd for Ugliness itself a foil!

Sprung from the Church, the world might well suppose

Thy blood with some few drops of meekness flows—

No, vitriol!—not one particle of oil!

I'll have no Laureat—sacred be the Ode;

Unfalsified let its torrent roll!

Few merits mine, the Muse's wing to load;

Small grace of form, and no sublime of soul;

And yet, whate'er the merits that are mine,

By verse unvarnish'd shall they shine.

The real Virtues dare themselves display,

And need no pedestal to show away:

Each from herself her own importance draws,

And scorns a chattering Poet's mock applause.

Have niggard Nature, and my stars, unkind,

Of sense and virtues stript my desert mind;

My name let SILENCE, with her veil, invade,

And cold OBLIVION pour th' eternal shade.

Oblig'd

Oblig'd not to an author's rhyme,
 Important, down the stream of TIME,
 O let me fail, or not at all;
 Too proud for Bards to take in tow my name,
 Just like the Victory,* or Fame,*
 That drag along the jollyboat or yawl.

Away, the little fniv'ling spirit!
 Away, the hate of rising merit!
 Thy heav'n-ward wing, aspiring GENIUS, wave;
 I will not, lev'ling with a jaundic'd eye,
 The secret blunderbuss let fly,
 To give thee, O thou royal bird! a grave.

I'll have no poet-persecution—no!
 Proud of its liberty, the verse shall flow;
 The mouth of Pegasus shall feel no curb:
 If, idly wanton, Poets tax me wrong,
 Theirs is the infamy, for theirs the song;
 Such blasts shall ne'er my soul's deep calm disturb.

But, should fair TRUTH to SATIRE lend an edge,
 Bid with more force descend her thund'ring sledge,
My

* Ships of the line;

My justice dares not break that poet's pipe ;
 And, like a school-boy, to the tiger's den,
 Who wanton flings a cat, a cock, or hen,
 I will not give him to *MACDONALD's gripe.

Wife, let me hush of prejudice the storm,
 Difarm him for the future, and reform :
 Yes; 'stead of giving him a law-jobation,
 Revenge the blow by reformation.

To TEOS, which of yore was reckon'd far,
 HIPPARCHUS really sent a man of war,
 To bring ANACREON, honied bard, to court ;
 So PLATO says, a man of good report.

How different, Monarchs of the present day !
 From modern Kings each bee-like minstrel sculks,
 Whose love would clap the bards on board the hulks,
 Or send them out to warble at † THIEVES BAY.

Come, Science, and the Arts, around me bloom ;
 Thrice-welcome, half my empire claim :
 The eye of GENIUS shall not wear a gloom,
 Nor BOYDELL dash my cheek with shame.

Historians,

* The Attorney-General.

† Commonly called Botany-Bay.

Historians, Poets, Painters, ev'ry merit,
Shall feel King PETER's fost'ring spirit.

Yes, men of genius, be my equals, free—
Imperious consequence ye shall not feel;
For show collected, just to bend the knee,
And grace, like slaves of yore, a chariot-wheel:

Avaunt, the parasitic dedication!
A trap to catch my smile, deceive the Nation,
And make the wide-mouth'd million bless my name.
Ah! let my deeds alone, instead of lies,
Proclaim me open, gen'rous, good, and wise;
Those manly heralds of a virtuous fame.

Here, from your hovels, fons of science, come:
Oh, haste! and call King PETER's house your home:
Your huts, your solitary mountains, quit,
And make my court a galaxy of wit.

Come, VIRTUE, though a dungeon hide thy face,
(For to thy lot too oft misfortune falls)
Whose angel-form, from jails can blot disgrace,
And cast a sacred splendor o'er the walls.

Thus shall our moments glide on golden wings;

    Thus will we triumph with expanded hearts;

At times be merry upon thrifty Kings,

    And smile at Majesty that starves the arts.

Ambitious, if with WISDOM thus we wed;

A Farthing shall not blush to bear OUR head!

COMPLIMENTARY EPISTLE
JAMES BRUCE, ESQ.
THE ABYSSINIAN TRAVELLER.

————— Non Fabula mendax.

WONDERS!—WONDERS!!—WONDERS!!!

EPISTLE DEDICATORY.

ILLUSTRIOUS SIR,

PERMIT a poor son of Apollo to make an offering of his pamphlet (a sort of widow's mite), for the pleasure received from your five quartos. Aware of the dangers of launching into the foaming sea of usual dedication, in which many an unfortunate author has been drowned, I tremble at my present attempt. Exalted panegyric too frequently incurs the suspicion of a sneer. Your dedication, illustrious Sir, to the best of Kings, strikes me as the most perfect model of imitation—it is a column of Attic elegance and simplicity, erected to a deserving Monarch. Pray, Sir, did his august Majesty honour it with a perusal before publication? It truly forms the ne plus ultra of human panegyric; and what is marvellous, cannot be suspected of adulation. Pray, Sir, how much might his Majesty give you for it?

What a similarity, illustrious Sir, between yourself and Mr. JAMES BOSWELL! and yet what a distance! Both gloriously ambitious, both great scholars, both intellectually adorned, both popular gentlemen, both dealers in history, and both descended from kings! But Mr. JAMES BOSWELL's ambition was not of so bold a wing as yours. He was content with a journey to Scotland, to exhibit Dr. SAMUEL JOHNSON, the lexicographer, to the literati of that country: your more exalted ideas could only be satisfied with a display of the headquarters of the IMMORTAL NILE, who had puzzled the pursuits of men for seven thousand years. Whilst Mr. BOSWELL entertains only with a breakfast on spalddings (alias dried whittings), the sublimer BRUCE treats us with a dish of lion. Whilst BOSWELL brings us acquainted with plain Scottish gentlewomen only, the gallant BRUCE charms us with romantic tales of QUEEN SITTINIA, &c. Whilst Mr. BOSWELL presents us only with an anecdote of a flannel night-cap made by Miss M'LEOD, for the Doctor's bald head; the sublimer BRUCE tells us of a piece of fatten, and six handsome crimson and green handkerchiefs, most gallantly transmitted to the beautiful AISCACH, of TEAWA. Whilst Mr. BOSWELL amuses us only with his drunken bout, and consequently a simple emetic scene, the soaring BRUCE greets us with the more important history of a thundering DIARRHÆA. Whilst Mr. BOSWELL prides himself only upon his descent from a Scottish King, the penetrating BRUCE discovers an origin from KING SOLOMON and the QUEEN OF SHEBA; which, under the rose, must be establishing a bastardy in the family, as the Abyssinian Queen could be nothing more than Solomon's concubine, their marriage having never been proved.

Pray, Sir, what may his Majesty intend to do with your invaluable drawings, &c. &c.? Are they to be engraved, pro bono publico, at the expence of the royal purse; or kept cautiously locked up in a drawer at Buckingham-house, to induce the dilettanti to sigh for the publication? Possibly they are destined to be a posthumous work of the greatest of Kings; but not like posthumous works in general, to disgrace the dead.

I am, ILLUSTRIOUS SIR,

P. P.

SWEET is the tale, however strange its air,
 That bids the public eye astonied stare!
 Sweet is the tale, howe'er uncouth its shape,
 That makes the world's wide mouth with wonder gape!
 Behold, our infancies in tales delight,
 That bolt like hedgehog-quills the hair upright.
 Of ghosts how pleas'd is ev'ry child to hear!
 To such is Jack the Giant-killer dear!
 Dread monsters, issuing from the flame or flood,
 Charm, though with horror cloth'd they chill the blood!
 What makes a tale so sleepy, languid, dull?
 Things as they happen'd—not of marvel full.
 What gives a zest, and keeps alive attention?
 A tale that wears the visage of invention:
 A tale of lions, spectres, shipwreck, thunder;
 A wonder, or first cousin to a wonder.

Myſterious conduct! yet 'tis NATURE's plan
 To ſow with wonder's feeds the ſoul of man,
 That ev'ry where in ſweet profuſion riſe,
 And ſprout luxuriant through the mouth and eyes!

What to the vafly deep *SIR JOSEPH gave,
 As of the world, the ſport of wind and wave?
 What bade the Knight, amid thoſe ſcenes remote,
 Sleep with Queen Oborea in the boat?
 What, unconfounded, leap to Newton's chair?
 What, but to make a world with wonder ſtare?
 What bids a KING on Wimbledon, Blackheath,
 So oft rejoice the regiments of death;
 While Britain's mightier bulwark ſlighted lies,
 And, vainly groaning, for its Cæſar fighs?
 What, with the vulgar pigs of Aſcot taken,
 Devour on † Aſcot-heath his annual bacon?
 What bade that great, great man, a goodly ſight,
 Watch his wife's di'mond petticoat all night;

And

* Sir Joſeph Banks.

† Conſtantly, yea, with annual conſtancy, do their auguſt Majeſties devour the fine fat bacon of Aſcot at the time of the rice, and, after deeply loading their royal ſtomachs with this favoury meat, in grateful return load Aſcot and the bacon with royal approbation.

And what that wife of great, great, great renown,
 Make her own caps, and darn a thread-bare gown?
 What bade the charming *LADY MARY fly
 MARCHESI'S squeeze, for PACCHIEROTTI'S sigh?
 What MASTER EDGECUMBE deal in rhiming ware?
 What, but to put all †Cawfand in a stare?
 Sweet child of verfe, who, with importance big,
 Pleas'd its own self, and eterniz'd a pig; ‡
 Whilst, mad an equal weight of praise to share,
 OLD MOUNT plays Punchinello to a hair.
 What makes a girl the shops for novels rove?
 The sweet impossibilities of love;
 Quixotic deeds to catch the flying fair;
 To pant at dangers, and at marvels stare.
 What prompteth Chloe, conscious of the charms
 That crowd the fouts of swains with wild alarms,

To

* Lady Mary Duncan.

† A small fishing-town near Mount Edgumbe.

‡ This pig, Cupid, who many years ago fell in love with the Earl, has a monument erected to his memory, with an inscription on it by Lord Valletort, the Earl's son.—It is said, that his Majesty, when at Mount Edgumbe, happening to be gravely pondering near his grave, the Queen, who was at some distance, asked him, what he was looking at so seriously. His Majesty, with a great deal of humour, immediately replied, “The family vault, Charly; family vault, family vault.”

To give the swelling bosom's milk-white skin
 A veil of gauze so marvelously thin?
 What but a kind intention of the fair
 To treat the eyes of shepherds with a stare?
 Behold! RELIGION'S self, celestial dame,
 Finds on the rock of miracle her fame:
 A sacred building, that defies decay,
 That sin's wild waves can never wash away!
 What made* JOHN ROLLE (except for EXON'S stare)
 Drill-serjeant to the aldermen and may'r,
 E'er from the hall he led his chosen bands,
 To view the KING OF NATIONS, and kiss hands?
 How rarely man the haunts of wisdom seeks,
 Pleas'd with the life of cabbages and leeks!
 'Though form'd to plough the soil, divinely strong,
 'Tis famine goads him, like an ox, along:

But

* Mr. JOHN ROLLE'S dread of a failure in the etiquette of presentment to his Majesty when at Exeter, prevailed on himself to take a deal of trouble with gentlemen who were to be introduced at the Levee: but, in spite of all his intellectual powers, which, like his corporeal, are of more than ordinary texture, much disorder happened; indeed the best of Kings was three or four times nearly overturned. Many were the gentlemen that Mr. ROLLE was forced to place himself behind, to pull down properly on their knees; and many were the gentlemen he was obliged to run after, and make face to the right about, who uncourteously, though unwittingly, in quitting the presence, had turned their unpolished tails on Majesty.

But BRUCE, on CURIOSITY's wild wings,
 Darts, hawk-like, where the game of marvel springs.
 Let envy kindle with the blush of shame,
 That dares to call thee, BRUCE, a thief of fame.
 Pleas'd to thy wonder's vortex to be drawn,
 A thousand volumes could not make me yawn :
 And (O accept a salutary hint)—
 The world will read as fast as thou canst print.

Curs'd by the goose's and the critic's quill,
 What tortures tear us, and what horrors thrill !
 Thus that small imp, a tooth, a simple bone,
 Can make fair ladies and great heroes groan ;
 Tear hopeless virgins from their happy dream,
 And bid for doctors 'stead of sweethearts scream ;
 In tears the tender tossing infant steep,
 And from its eyelids brush the dews of sleep ;
 Where, with a cheek in cherub blushes drest,
 It seeks, with fruitless cries, its vanish'd rest.
 Far diff'rent, THOU, erect in conscious pride,
 Colossal dar'st the critic host bestride ;
 Like yelping coward curs canst make them skip,
 And tremble at the thunder of thy whip.

How

How hard that thou, a bufy working bee,
 Shouldft range from flow'r to flow'r, from tree to tree;
 Fly loaded home from fhrubs of richeft prime,
 Egyptian, Nubian, Abyffinian thyme;
 And plund'ring* drones upon thine honey thrive,
 Who never gave an atom to the hive!
 Huge WHALE of marvel-hunters, further fay,
 And glad the prefent and the future day;
 Speak! did no angel, proud to intervene,
 Bear thee, like Habbakuk, from fcene to fcene?

Lo! moon-ey'd WONDER opes her lap to thee:
 How niggardly, alas! to lucklefs me!
 Where'er through tracklefs woods thy luckier way,
 Marvels, like dew-drops, beam on ev'ry fpray.
 Bleft man! whate'er thou wifheft to behold,
 Nature as ftrongly wifhes to unfold;
 Of all her wardrobe offers every rag,
 Of which thy fkill hath form'd a conj'ror's bag.
 Thy deeds are giants, covering ours with fhame!
 Poor wafte'd pigmies! fkeletons of fame!
 To thee how kindly hath thy genius giv'n
 The mafly keys of yonder ftar-clad heav'n;

With

* Alluding to an Abridgement of Mr. Bruce's Travels.

With leave, whene'er thou wishest to unlock it,
To put a few eclipses in thy pocket !
NATURE, where'er thou tread'st, exalts her form ;
The whisp'ring zephyr swells a howling storm ;
Where pebbles lay, and riv'lets purl'd before,
Huge promontories rise, and oceans roar.
Thrice-envy'd man (if truth each volume sings),
Thy life how happy ! hand and glove with kings !
A simple swain, a stranger to a throne,
I ne'er sat down with kings to pick a bone !
For smiles I gap'd not, crouch'd not for assistance ;
But paid my salutations at a distance :
Yet live, O KINGS, to see a distant date,
Because I've got a pretty good estate ;
A comely spot near Helicon, that thrives ;
A leasehold though, that hangs upon your lives ;
Set to GEORGE KEARSLEY, at a moderate rent ;
Enough for me, poor swain, it brings content.
Were heav'n to place a crown upon my head,
So meek, so modest, I should faint with dread ;
And like some honest bishop, with a sigh,
“ Pity my greatness, Lord ! ” would be my cry.
Poets, like spiders, now-a-days must spin,
E'en from themselves, the threads of life so thin.

Nought

Nought pleaseth now the rulers of great nations,
 But books of wonders, and sweet dedications.
 Kings, like the mountains of the moon, indeed,
 Proud of their stature, lift a lofty head ;
 Heads, like the mountains also, cold and raw,
 That, ice-envelop'd, seldom feel a thaw.
 Oh, may the worst of ills my soul betide,
 For me if ever love-sick lady dy'd !
 If fatal darts from these two eyes of mine,
 Play'd havock with fair ladies hearts, like thine ;
 No, no ! I ever a hard bargain drove,
 And purchas'd ev'ry atom of my love.
 O BRUCE, I own, a'l candour, that I look
 With envy, downright envy, on thy book ;
 A book like Pfalmanazar's, form'd to last,
 That gives th' historic eye a sweet repast ;
 A book like Mandeville's, that yields delight,
 And puts poor probability to flight ;
 A book that e'en Pontopidan would own ;
 A book most humbly offer'd to the Throne ;
 A book, how happy, which the King of Isles
 Admires (says rumour), and receiv'd with smiles !

The fool, with equal gape, astonish'd sees,
 Through WONDER'S glasses, elephants and fleas ;

But thou, in WONDER's school long bred, full grown,
 Art pleas'd indeed with elephants alone:
 Hadst thou been GOD, an insult to thy fight,
 Thy majesty had scorn'd to make a mite.
 Know, where th' Atlantic holds th' unwieldy whale,
 My heart has panted at the monster's tail:
 Had BRUCE been there, th' invincible, the brave,
 How had he dash'd at once beneath the wave!
 Bold with his dirk the mighty fish pursu'd,
 And stain'd whole leagues of ocean with his blood;
 Then rising glorious from the great attack,
 Grac'd with the wat'ry tyrant on his back!

'Mid those fair *isles, the happy isles of old,
 Plains that the ghosts of kings and chiefs patrol'd,
 These eyes have seen; but, let me truth confess,
 No royal spectre came, these eyes to bless:
 To no one chieftain-phantom too, I vow,
 With rev'rence, did I ever make my bow:
 Gone to make room, poor ghosts, so FATE inclines,
 For gangs of lazy Spaniards and their vines.
 But had thy foot, illustrious Trav'ler, trod,
 Like me, the precincts of th' Elysian sod;

Full

* The Canaries, or the Insulæ Fortunatæ of the Ancients.

Full of enquiry, easy, unconfounded,
 By spectres hadst thou quickly been furrounded;
 Then had we heard thy book of wonder boast,
 How BRUCE the brave shook hands with ev'ry ghost!
 In vain did I phænomena pursue,
 For Wonder waits upon the chosen few.
 Whate'er I saw requir'd no witch's storm—
 Slight deeds, that NATURE could with ease perform!
 Audacious, to purloin my flesh and fish,
 No golden eagles hopp'd into my dish;
 Nor crocodiles, by love of knowledge led,
 To mark my figure, left their oozy bed;
 Nor loaded camels, to provoke my stare,
 Sublimely whirl'd, like straws, amid the air;
 Nor, happy in a stomach form'd of steel,
 On roaring lions have I made a meal.
 Unequal wine with lions' bones to cope;
 Thy jaws can only on such viands ope.
 Oh, hadst thou trod, like me, the happy isle,
 Whose * mountain treats all mountains with a simile;
 Bold hadst thou climb'd th' ascent, an easy matter,
 And, nobly daring, fous'd into the crater;
 Then out agen hadst vaulted with a hop,
 Quick as a sweeper from a chimney-top.

Oh,

* Teneriffe,

Oh, had thy curious eye beheld, like mine,
 The *isle which glads the heart with richest wine!
 Beneath its vines, with common clusters crown'd,
 At eve my wand'ring steps a passage found,
 Where rose the hut, and, neither rich nor poor,
 The wife and husband, seated at the door,
 Touch'd, when the labours of the day were done,
 The wire of music to the setting sun;
 Where, blest, a tender offspring, rang'd around,
 Join'd their small voices to the silver sound.
 But had thine eye this simple scene explor'd,
 The man at once had sprung a sceptred lord;
 Princes and princesses the berns had been;
 The hut a palace, and the wife a queen;
 Their golden harps had ravish'd thy two ears,
 And beggar'd all the music of the spheres;
 So kind is NATURE always pleas'd to be,
 When visited by favourites, like thee!
 Strange! thou hast seen the land, that, to its shame,
 Ne'er heard our good -----'s virtues, nor his name!
 I've only seen those regions, let me say,
 Where his great virtues never found their way.

Alas, I never met with royal scenes !
 No vomits gave to Abyffinian queens !
 Drew not from royal arms the purple tide,
 Nor scotch'd with fleams a sceptred lady's hide ;
 Nor, in anatomy so very stout,
 Ventur'd to turn a princess inside out ;
 Nor, blushing, stripp'd me to the very skin,
 To give a royal blackamoor a grin.
 I never saw (with ignorance I own)
 Mule-mounted Monarchs seek th' imperial throne ;
 Which mule the carpet spoil'd—a dirty beast !
 First stal'd ; then—What ?—OBLIVION cloud the rest.
 I saw no king, whose subjects form'd a riot,
 And, imp-like, howl'd around him for his quiet.
 Nor have I been where men (what loss, alas !)
 Kill half a cow, and turn the rest to grafs.
 Where'er, great Trav'ler, thou art pleas'd to tread,
 The teeming skies rain wonders on thy head :
 No common birth to greet thine eye appears,
 But sacred labours of a thousand years.
 Where'er the Nile shall pour the smallest sluice,
 The rills shall curl into the name of BRUCE.
 And, to the universe his praise shall utter,
 Who, first of mortals, found the parent gutter ;

And, let me add, of gutters too the QUEEN,
 Without whose womb the Nile had never been.
 Thus many a man, whose deeds have made a pother,
 Has had a scurvy father or a mother.
 O form'd in art and science to surpass;
 To whom e'en VALOUR is an arrant ass;
 O BRUCE, most surely TRAVEL's eldest son;
 Tell, prithee, all that thou hast seen and done!
 I fear thou hidest half thy feats, unkind;
 A thousand wonders, ah! remain behind!
 Where is the chariot-wheel with PHAROAH's name,
 Fish'd from the old Red Sea to swell thy fame?
 Where the horse-shoe with PHAROAH's arms, and found
 Where wicked PHAROAH and his host were drown'd?
 Where of that stone a slice, and fresh account,
 Giv'n by the LORD to MOSES on the Mount?
 And where a slice of that stone's elder brother,
 That, broken, forc'd th' ALL-WISE t'engrave another?
 Where of the cradle too, a sacred rush?
 Where a true charcoal of the burning bush?
 And oh, the jewel, curious gem, disclose,
 That dangled from the Queen of Sheba's nose,
 When, with hard questions, and two roguish eyes,
 She rode to puzzle Solomon the Wise!

Sagacious Terrier in DISCOVERY's mine,
 Shall NATURE form no more a nose like thine?
 No more display'd the pearls of wonder beam,
 When thou, great man, art past the Stygian stream?
 To Afric wilt thou never, BRUCE, return?
 Howl, Britain! Europe, Abyffinia mourn!
 Droop shall DISCOVERY's wing, her bosom sigh,
 And MARVEL meet no more the ravish'd eye;
NATURE outstep her modesty no more;
 Her cataracts of wonder cease to roar,
 Forc'd to a common channel to subside,
 And pour no longer an astounding tide?
 O bid not yet the lucky labours cease;
 Still let the Land of Wonder feel increase:
 Thy loads of dung, delightful ordure, yield,
 And blossom with fertility the field:
 Gates, hedges mend, that IGNORANCE pull'd down,
 And bring in triumph back each kidnapp'd town.
 Though ENVY damns thy volumes of surprize,
 Blest I devour them with unfated eyes!
 What though four JOHNSON cry'd, with cynic sneer,
 " I deem'd at first, indeed, BRUCE had been there;
 " But soon the eye of keen investigation
 " Prov'd all the fellow's tale a fabrication."

But

But who, alas! on JOHNSON'S word relies,
 Who saw the too kind North with jaundic'd eyes;
 Who rode to Hawthornden's fair scene by night,
 For fear a Scottish tree might wound his sight;
 And, bent from decent candour to depart,
 Allow'd a Scotchman neither head nor heart?
 Grant fiction half thy volumes of surprize,
 High in the scale of merit shalt thou rise:
 Still to FAME'S temple dost thou boast pretension;
 For thine the rara avis of invention!
 And lo! amidst thy work of lab'ring years,
 A dignity of egotism appears;
 A style that classic authors should pursue;
 A style that peerless *KATERFELTO knew!
 Thou dear man-mountain of discovery, run;
 Again attempt an Abyssinian sun!
 Yes, go; a second journey, BRUCE, pursue;
 More volumes of rich hist'ry bring to view.
 O run, ere TIME the spectred toms invade,
 And seize the crumbling wonders from the shade;
 Crowd with fair columns, struck by TIME, thy page,
 And snatch the falling grandeur from his rage:
 Give that old TIME a vomit too, and draw
 More of Egyptian marvels from his maw;

* A late celebrated philosopher and conjuror.

Bid him difgorge (by moderns call'd a bum),
 Scratch'd by ten thousand trav'lers, Memnon's bum;
 And, what all rarities muft needs furpafs,
 The tail, the curious tail of Balaam's afs.
 Say, what fhould ftop, O BRUCE, thy grand career;
 Of FAME the fav'rite, and no child of FEAR?
 DANGER's huge form, fo dread to vulgar eyes,
 Pants at thy prefence, and a coward flies.
 Where other trav'lers, fraught with terror, roam,
 Lo! BRUCE in Wonder-Land is quite at home;
 The fame cool eye on NATURE's forms looks down;
 Lions and rats, the courtier and the clown.
 Whate'er thine action, wonder crowds the tale;
 It smells of Brobdignag—it boafts a fcale!
 Fond of the lofty, BRUCE no pigmy loves—
 Who likes a pigmy, that a giant moves?
 Again—what pigmy, with a form of lath,
 Loft in his fhadow, likes the MAN OF GATH?
 The bowerly hoftefs, for a cart-horfe fit,
 Scorns DAPHNE's reed-like fhape, and calls her chit;
 Whilft on the rough robuftious lump of Nature,
 Contemptuous DAPHNE whifpers, “What a creature!”
 Pity! purfuits like thine fhould feel a pause!
 More than half-smother'd by fair FAME's applaufe,

I fee

I see thee safe return'd from MARVEL's mine,
 Whose gems in ev'ry rock so precious shine;
 Proud of the product of a world unknown,
 Unloading all thy treasure at the throne;
 While courtiers cry aloud with one accord,
 " Most marv'lous is the reign of George the Third!"
 How like the butchers boys we sometimes meet,
 Stuck round with bladders, in a London street;
 In full-blown majesty who move, and drop
 The bloated burden in an OILMAN's shop;
 While country bumpkins, gazing at the door,
 Cry they "ne'er zeed zo vine a zight bevore!"

I see old NILE, the king of floods, arise,
 Shake hands, and welcome thee with happy eyes;
 Otters and alligators in his train,
 Made by thy five immortal volumes vain;
 Weasels and polecats, theregrigs, carrion-crows,
 Seen and smelt only by thine eyes and nose.
 " Son of the Arts, and Cousin of a King,
 " Loud as a kettle-drum whose actions ring," Exclaims the king of floods, " thy books I've read,
 " And, for thy birth-place, envy Brother TWEED."
 O BRUCE, by FAME for ever to be sung;
 Job's war-horse fierce, thy neck with thunder hung:

When envious DEATH shall put thee in his stable,
Snipp'd life's fine thread, that should have been a cable ;
Lo ! to thy mem'ry shall the marble swell,
Mausoleum huge, and all thy actions tell !
Here, in fair sculpture, the recording stones
Shall give thee glorious, cracking lions bones ;
There, which the squeamish fowls of Britain flocks,
Rich steaks devouring from the living ox :
Here, glaring on thee from the realm of water,
Full many a virtuoso alligator ;
There, BRUCE informing queens, in naked pride,
The feel and colour of a Scotsman's hide :
Here of the genealogy a tree,
Branching from SOLOMON'S wife trunk to thee ;
There, with a valour nought could dare withstand,
BRUCE fighting an hyæna hand to hand ;
Which dread hyæna (what a beast uncouth !)
Fought with a pound of candles in his mouth :
Here temples bursting glorious on the view,
Which HIST'RY, though a gossip, never knew ;
There columns starting from the earth and flood,
Just like the razor-fish from sand and mud :
Here a wife Monarch, with voracious looks,
Receiving all thy drawings and thy books ;

Whilst

Whilst FAME behind him all so solemn sings
The lib'ral spirit of the best of Kings.

Man says, O BRUCE, that thou wert hardly us'd;
That our great King at first thy book refus'd;
Indeed look'd grimly 'midst his courtier crew,
Who, gentle courtiers! all look'd grimly too!
Thus when in black the lofty SKY looks down,
The sympathizing SEA reflects a frown;
Vale, cattle, reptile, insect, man and maid,
All mope, and seem to sorrow in the shade.

Steep is th' ascent, and narrow is the road,
Ah me! that leads to FAME's divine abode:
Yet thick, (through lanes, like pilgrimaging rats,
Unaw'd by mortals, and unscar'd by cats)
What crawling hofts attempt her sacred fane,
And dizzy, drunk-like, tumble back again;
Fast as the swains, whose arms the damsels fill,
Embrace of elegance! down Greenwich-Hill;
Whilst thou, Briareus like, with dauntless air,
Resolv'd to ravish FAME, immortal Fair,
Just like our London bullies with the w——,
Hast scal'd the cloud-capt height, and forc'd her doors!
O form'd

O form'd the trav'lers of the east to scare,
 Although thy pow'rs are mighty, learn to spare:
 Dog should not prey on dog, the proverb says:
 Allow then brother-trav'lers, crumbs of praise;
 Like thee, let others reap applause, and rise
 By daring visits to Egyptian skies:
 But calmly, lo! thou canst not see them pass;
 " This is a rogue or fool, and that's an ass."
 Thus on a tree, whene'er the weather's fine,
 JACK KETCH, the SPIDER, weaves the fatal line;
 Beneath a leaf he hides with watchful eye,
 Now darts, and roping hangs the trav'ling FLY.
 Again, most tiresome, let me say, Go, go,
 Proceed, and all about it let us know:
 Led safely by thine enterprising star,
 Hyænas shall not with thy journey war:
 Uneat by tigers, dare the forest's gloom,
 To bid the barren field of knowledge bloom:
 Wave o'er new pyramids thine eagle wings;
 And, hound-like, scent fresh tombs of ancient kings,
 Which TIME had buried with the mighty dead,
 And cold OBLIVION swallow'd in her shade:
 And mind, ('tis HIST'RY's province to surprise)
 That tales are sweetest, that found most like lies.

As the confessed superiority of Mister BRUCE to Mister BOSWELL entitles him to a more eminent mark of distinction, I have added an ODE, in my best Manner, to this Complimentary Epistle, which the Congratulatory Epistle to Mister BOSWELL cannot boast.

ODE TO JAMES BRUCE, ESQ.

O BRUCE, for this his short and sweet epistle,
 Perhaps thou bid'st the gentle bard "go whistle;"
 Or somewhat worse, perchaunce, that rhymes to knight;
 That is to say, knights of the blade,
 One time so busy in the dubbing trade,
 That, like to silver, it was shoulder'd bright.

Pity! by hungry critics thou shouldst fall,
 So clever, and so form'd to please us all!
 Thou too, by royal favour all-surrounded,
 As balm so rich, like cloves and nutmegs pounded!
 Thus the BAG FOX, (how cruelly, alack!)
 Turn'd out with turpentine upon his back,

Amidst

Amidst the war of hounds and hunters flies ;
Shews sport ; but, luckless, by his fragrance dies !

Safe from the fury of the critic hounds,
O BRUCE, thou treadest Abyssinian grounds ;

Nor can our British noses hunt thy foil :
Indeed, thou need'st not dread th' event ;
Surrounding clouds destroy the scent,

And mock their most sagacious toil :
Yes, in thy darkness thou shalt leave the dogs ;
For hares, the hunters say, run best in fogs.

Of thee and me, two great physicians,
How diff'rent are the dispositions !

Thy soul delights in wonder, pomp, and bustle ;
Mine in th' unmarvellous and placid scene,
Plain as the *hut of our good King and Queen ;
I imitate the stationary muscle.

Yet, boldly thou, O BRUCE, again proceed ;
Of wonder ope the fountain head ;

Deluge the land with Abyssinian ware ;
Whilst I, a simple son of peace,
The world of bagatelle increase,
By love-sick sonnets to the fair :

Now

* A house close by the glorious castle of Windsor.

Now to Sir JOSEPH, now a Duke, now Wren,
 Now Robin Red-breast, dedicate the pen;
 Now Glow-worw, child of shade and light, not flame;
 To whom, of wick-ed wits the tuneful art,
 So very apt, indeed, from truth to start,
 Compares the nightly street-meand'ring dame.

Mild INSECT, harmless as myself, I ween;
 Thou little planet of the rural scene,
 When summer warms the vallies with her rays;
 Accept a trifling sonnet to thy praise.

---

ODE TO THE GLOW-WORM.

BRIGHT stranger, welcome to my field,
 Here feed in safety, here thy radiance yield;
 To me, oh, nightly be thy splendor giv'n!
 Oh, could a wish of mine the skies command,
 How would I gem thy leaf with lib'ral hand,
 With ev'ry sweetest dew of Heav'n!

Say,

Say, dost thou kindly light the Fairy train,
 Amidst their gambols on the stilly plain,
     Hanging thy lamp upon the moisten'd blade?
 What lamp so fit, so pure as thine,
 Amidst the gentle elfin band to shine,
     And chase the horrors of the midnight shade!

Oh! may no feather'd foe disturb thy bow'r,
 And with barbarian beak thy life devour!
     Oh! may no ruthless torrent of the sky,
 O'erwhelming, force thee from thy dewy feat;
 Nor tempests tear thee from thy green retreat,
     And bid thee 'midst the humming myriads die!

QUEEN of the insect world, what leaves delight?
     Of such these willing hands a bow'r shall form,
 To guard thee from the rushing rains of night,
     And hide thee from the wild wing of the storm.

Sweet Child of Stillness, 'midst the awful calm
     Of pausing NATURE thou art pleas'd to dwell;
 In happy silence to enjoy thy balm,
     And fixed through life a lustre round thy cell.

How diff'rent man, the imp of noise and strife,
Who courts the storm that tears and darkens life;
    Blest when the passions wild the foul invade!
How nobler far to bid those whirlwinds cease;
To taste, like thee, the luxury of peace,
    And, silent, shine in solitude and shade!
