Heavy Opposing Force (OPFOR) Organization Guide

Preface

This organization guide is the first in a series of six Training and Doctrine Command Pamphlets that documents the capabilities-based OPFOR model. The capabilities-based OPFOR model will become the basis for the forces and doctrine used by the OPFOR units at the Combat Training Centers (CTC) and in the TRADOC Common Teaching Scenario.

The proponent for this pamphlet is the TRADOC Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence. This pamphlet serves as the coordinating draft for the guide's final publication as a Department of the Army Information Pamphlet. Users are encouraged to send comments and suggested improvements on DA Form 2028 (Recommended Changes to Publications and Blank Forms) directly to the TRADOC ODCSINT, Threat Support Division, ATTN: ATZL-CST, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas 66027-5310. Suggested improvements may also be submitted using DA Form 1045 (Army Ideas for Excellence Program (AIEP) Proposal).

Unless otherwise stated, whenever the masculine gender is used, both men and women are included.

DISTRIBUTION RESTRICTION: Approved for public release; distribution is unlimited.

Introduction

Concept

This Organization Guide is one of a series of six Training and Doctrine Command Pamphlets that document the capabilities-based Opposing Force (OPFOR) model. This model was developed to provide a flexible training threat that can be tailored to represent a wide range of potential threat capabilities and organizations. The model features a heavy and a light OPFOR package, each containing three documents: an organization guide, an operations handbook and a tactics handbook.

The capabilities-based OPFOR model represents a break from past practice in two principal respects. First, while the heavy and light packages are based on the doctrine and organization of foreign armies, they are not simply unclassified handbooks on the forces of a particular nation. The OPFOR packages are composites that were deliberately constructed to provide a wide range of capabilities. Second, the packages are not associated with a fixed order of battle but, rather, provide the building blocks from which a large number of potential orders of battle can be derived.

The capabilities-based OPFOR model will become the basis for the forces and doctrine used by the OPFOR units at the Combat Training Centers (CTC) and in the TRADOC Common Teaching Scenarios. The heavy and light packages were designed to accommodate the existing CTC OPFORs at the time of publication with relatively minor changes but have the flexibility to adapt to the changing training requirements of the force-projection Army.

Heavy OPFOR Package

The Heavy OPFOR is based in part on the military forces of the Former Soviet Union (FSU), with a well-documented military doctrine. While Russia and other countries emerging from the FSU may modify that doctrine, it will continue to be the basis for their doctrines and those of numerous other countries whose military forces have been patterned after those of the FSU. Organizationally, the Heavy OPFOR takes a "building block" approach, which provides a great deal of flexibility.

Heavy OPFOR Organization Guide

The Heavy OPFOR Organization Guide is the first of the Heavy OPFOR series of handbooks. Unlike previous OPFOR publications which provided a fixed structure, this guide provides the customer with an organizational menu from which to draw the forces needed to fulfill his training requirements. For principal customers, such as the CTCs and the TRADOC Centers and Schools, this is a collaborative process. For the concept to work successfully, both the Threat Support Division (TSD) and the individual customer must work together to tailor the most appropriate force structure and order of battle for the training required. TSD is solely responsible for production of the guide; however, order of battle development is a joint responsibility between TSD and the user. This joint effort is expected between TSD and TRADOC trainers and instructors; however, TSD stands ready to provide assistance to all customers in building their training products.

Equipment

Former Soviet systems provide the equipment baseline for the guide. This was done for two primary reasons. First, many potential threat countries are equipped predominantly with FSU systems, which are widely proliferated throughout the world. Second, the equipment listed within the organizations is intended to be representative of a unit's or organization's capability. Listing these familiar, well-documented systems paints an immediate, concrete picture, whereas listing generic descriptors such as Medium Tank or Antitank Guided Missile would not. Moreover, generic descriptors would not lead to the development of consistent equipment sets.

To achieve specific training objectives or merely to provide variety within the organizations, "gray" systems can be substituted for those within the equipment lists. Appendix A contains several substitution matrices for major systems, as well as general guidelines for the substitution process. The matrices are guides; they are not intended to be all-inclusive, listing every conceivable system. In constructing an order of battle, therefore, trainers may substitute systems not listed in the matrices. However, they should follow the same general philosophy and guidelines detailed in Appendix A. System substitution is another aspect covered during the joint order of battle development process.

Structure

The Heavy OPFOR Organization Guide depicts the forces of a country with standing divisions or brigades, and armies or army corps. Most of these formations are stationed within military districts in peacetime and would become subordinate to fronts during wartime. Armies, army corps, and fronts can vary widely in their strengths and capabilities. If a trainer finds that his scenario does not require a large array of standing forces, it may be that the Light OPFOR Organization Guide better suits his training needs.

As an alternative to motorized rifle and tank formations based on the FSU model, this guide presents infantry divisions. These infantry divisions and their subordinates are composites of forces found in various countries.

Presentation of Information

The organization charts in this guide focus on maneuver units. They range from the lowest level (motorized rifle, infantry, airborne, or tank squad) up to the highest level (front). At each level, the guide breaks down subordinate combat support and combat service support units and subunits whenever feasible, for greater detail. To avoid extensive duplication, subunits common to several unit types are depicted once and cross-referenced thereafter. Subunits defined in greater detail have a page reference underneath their box in the organization chart; subunits with no page reference are not further defined. As a rule, equipment listings only account for individual weapons up to and including the maneuver battalion. Unless organic to the battalion, individual weapon totals for combat support and combat service support units are not listed.

The guide begins with the structure of motorized rifle and tank divisions. Next, it focuses more closely on motorized rifle and tank regiment and then on motorized rifle and tank battalions. The independent motorized rifle brigade is presented as an alternative to the regiment-division structure, although based on many of the same "building blocks". Next come the more flexible structures for army corps and armies and finally the various possibilities for a front organization. The next section deals with airborne forces, which may take the form of either divisions or independent brigades. The final portion depicts the structure of the infantry division and its subordinates.

NOTES: The following variations may exist:

1. Frogmen may be attached to assist in the reconnaissance of water obstacles.
2. Some companies may have five KMM truck-launched bridge spans instead of four TMM bridge spans.
3. Some units may have PMR towed minelayers instead of GMZ armored tracked minelayers. Trucks normally tow PMR minelayers. Some units may have BTR-152s for this purpose.
4. Some units may have up to six one-axle cargo trailers besides the two-axle cargo trailers.
5. Some units may have tractor-trailers to carry heavy tracked equipment on long road movements.

Independent Motorized Rifle Brigade, Army Corps or Army or Front

NOTES:

1. An independent motorized rifle brigade most likely has four MRBs and one 51-tank TB. However, the mix might be three MRBs and two 31-tank TBs. The MRBs are most likely BMP-equipped (see p. 113), although there may be some BTR-equipped battalions (see p. 127).
2. When there is a single SP howitzer battalion, it may be either 122-mm or 152-mm, with 152-mm most likely. When there are two battalions, there may be one 122-mm and one 152-mm or, more likely, both 152-mm.

1. Especially when the parent army or army corps has only an engineer battalion instead of a brigade, the IMRB's engineer company may be expanded to include the following: 2 x Mineclearer, MTK/MTK-2; 2 x Armored Engineer Tractor, IMR; 2 x Mine Detector, DIM; and possibly the Tracked Ferry, PMM-2.
2. The following variations may exist:
 - a. Frogmen may be attached to assist in the reconnaissance of water obstacles.
 - b. Some companies may have five KMM truck-launched bridge spans instead of four TMM bridge spans.
 - c. Some units may have up to six one-axle cargo trailers besides the two-axle cargo trailers.
 - d. Some units may have tractor-trailers to carry heavy tracked equipment on long road movements.

NOTES:

1. A typical army corps has one or two divisions and perhaps one or two IMRBs. The Divisions are most likely to be MRDs.
2. It is also possible that some army corps could consist of IMRBs rather than divisions. In this case there could be more than two IMRBs.

Additional Army Corps Assets

In addition to the most common elements, shown above, an army corps may include the following:

Rocket Launcher Regiment* (in lieu of Rocket Launcher Battalion)

Independent Helicopter Squadron (in lieu of Independent Combat Helicopter Regiment)

Airfield Technical Support Battalion

Independent Engineer Battalion (in lieu of Combat Engineer Brigade)

FOOTNOTES:

		Radio, Burst-Transmission	1-2

NOTES:

1. Team composition is not fixed. The organization above shows the variations which may exist within what may be a typical SPF team.
2. In keeping with its behind-the-lines missions, the SPF team is lightly equipped. Each soldier normally has an assault rifle, a silenced pistol, a knife, and up to eight hand grenades of various types. In addition, the team's equipment normally includes an SVD sniper rifle, directional mines, and explosives. The team can also receive SA-16/18 shoulder-fired SAMs or man-portable ATGMs.

NOTES:

1. There is no fixed organization for a front. The organizations shown above represent those elements found in most of the military districts, which could become fronts in wartime. Dashed lines indicate those elements which may not be present, or at least not in the numbers found in some fronts.
2. A typical front would contain a varying number of armies. However, some fronts might only have the smaller army corps organizations. Some might comprise a mixture of armies and army corps. Some might also include independent motorized rifle brigades or motorized rifle/tank divisions which are not part of an army or army corps.
3. Airborne forces are not organic to a front. However, higher command may allocate such forces in a brigade or division size to support a front in a given operation.
4. Higher command may also allocate a front one or more artillery divisions and/or a high-powered artillery brigade.

Additional Front Assets

In addition to the most common elements, shown on the previous page, a front may include the following:

- Motorized Rifle Regiment *
- Tank Regiment *
- Independent Transport Helicopter Regiment **
- Independent Combat C² Helicopter Regiment **
- Independent Mixed Aviation Squadron **
- Independent Airfield Technical Support Battalion **
- Artillery Brigade (in lieu of Artillery Division)
- Rocket Launcher Regiment (in addition to Artillery Division) ***
- Antitank Regiment or Brigade (in addition to Artillery Division)
- Artillery Reconnaissance Regiment (or Battalion)
- Independent SAM Regiment (in addition to SAM Brigade)
- Combat Engineer Regiment (in lieu of or in addition to Combat Engineer Brigade)
- Combat Engineer Battalion (in lieu of or in addition to Combat Engineer Brigade)
- Ponton Bridge Battalion (in lieu of Ponton Bridge Regiment)
- Ponton Bridge Brigade (in lieu of Ponton Bridge Regiment)
- Independent Engineer Road/Bridge-Building Battalion
- Motor Transport Brigade (in lieu of Materiel Support Brigade)
 - Independent Motor Transport Regiment (in addition to either type brigade)
 - Independent Motor Transport Battalion (in addition to the regiment and/or brigade)
- Independent Automotive Maintenance Battalion
- Independent Chemical Protection Battalion (in lieu of or in addition to Chemical Protection Brigade)
- Independent Signal Regiment or Battalion (in addition to Signal Brigade)
- Independent Radio Relay Battalion (in addition to Signal Brigade)
- Independent Troposcatter Communications Battalion (in addition to Signal Brigade)
- Independent Radio Reconnaissance Battalion (in lieu of or in addition to Radio Recon Brigade)
- Independent Special-Purpose Radio Reconnaissance Brigade
- Independent Radioelectronic Combat (REC) Battalion (in lieu of or in addition to one or more REC regiments)
- Independent Route Traffic Control Brigade (or Battalion)
- Independent Communications and Automated Troop Control Regiment

FOOTNOTES:

- * Not subordinate to an MRD or TD or to an army.
-  Aviation units subordinate to the Ground Forces (front) rather than to the Air Forces (air army) assigned to the front.
-  Rocket launcher regiments outside the artillery division have only 54 launchers (3 battalions of 18), which may be the older 122-mm rocket launcher BM-21 (Grad).

NOTES:

1. An air army has no fixed organization and may tailor its structure to meet specific needs of the ground forces within the supported front. The numbers of aircraft can vary greatly, even down to the squadron level.
2. Most air armies have a fighter aviation division and either a fighter-bomber or bomber aviation division; an independent reconnaissance aviation regiment; an independent helicopter REC squadron, an independent mixed aviation regiment (or squadron); and an independent signal regiment (or battalion).
3. Some air armies may also have one or more of the following: an independent ground-attack aviation regiment, a transport helicopter regiment, an independent REC aviation regiment, an independent helicopter squadron.

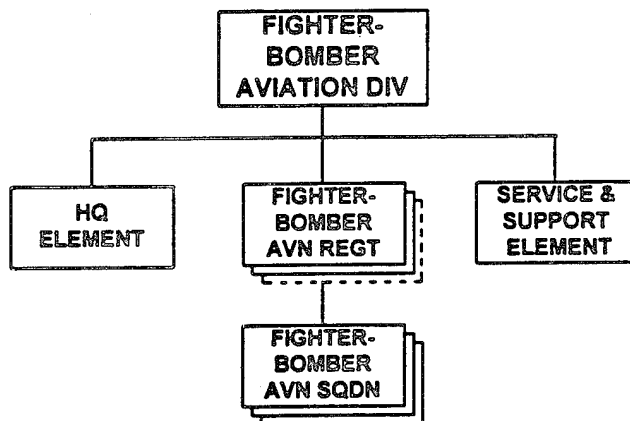

Fighter Aviation Division, Air Army, Front

NOTES:

1. The fighter aviation regiments of this division normally have the MiG-23/FLOGGER B/G or MiG-29/FULCRUM A, plus a number of MiG-23UB trainers that can also serve as combat aircraft. Alternatively, some of these regiments may have the Su-27/FLANKER B, plus Su-27UB trainers.
2. In lieu of one of these fighter aviation regiments, some fighter aviation divisions may have a fighter-bomber aviation regiment equipped with the Su-17/FITTER D/H.

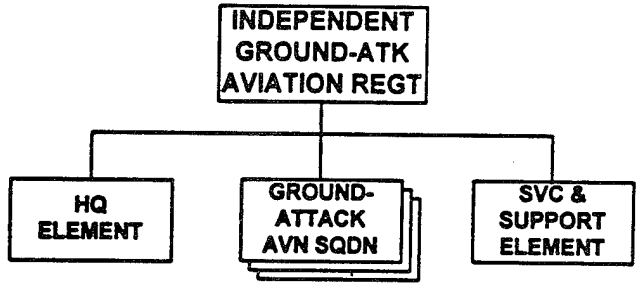

Fighter-Bomber Aviation Division, Air Army, Front

NOTES:

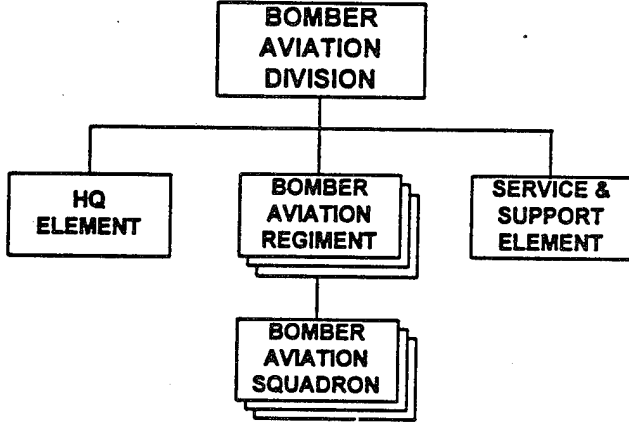

1. The fighter-bomber aviation regiments of this division normally have the MiG-27/FLOGGER D/J, plus a number of MiG-23UB trainers that can also serve as combat aircraft. Alternatively, some of these regiments may have the Su-17/FITTER D/H, plus a number of Su-17UB trainers.
2. In lieu of one of the fighter-bomber aviation regiments, some fighter-bomber divisions may have a fighter aviation regiment equipped with the Su-27/FLANKER B, plus Su-27UB trainers.

Independent Ground Attack Aviation Regiment, Air Army, Front

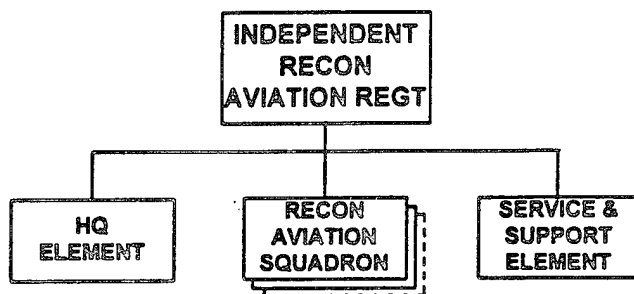

NOTE: This regiment has the Su-25/FROGFOOT ground-attack aircraft, plus a number of Su-25UB trainers than can also serve as combat aircraft.

Bomber Aviation Division, Air Army, Front

- NOTES:
1. The bomber aviation regiments of this division normally have the Su-24/FENCER.
 2. Alternatively, one of the regiments may have the Su-27/FLANKER B.

Independent Reconnaissance Aviation Regiment, Air Army, Front

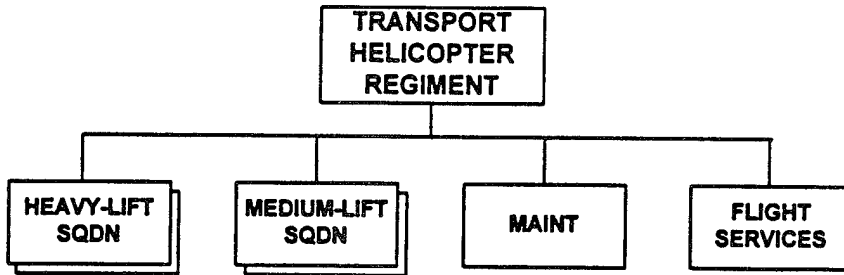

NOTE: The reconnaissance aviation squadrons of this regiment may have reconnaissance variants of the following aircraft: Su-24/FENCER, Su-17/FITTER, or MiG-25/FOXBAT B/D.

Independent Helicopter Radioelectronic Combat Squadron, Air Army, Front

NOTE: This squadron may have one or two Mi-8T/HIP C/E or Mi-8MT(Mi-17)/HIP H medium helicopters and 14 to 21 electronic countermeasure (ECM) variants of the types Mi-8SMV/HIP J, or Mi-8PPA/HIP K, or Mi-8MT(Mi-17P)/HIP H.

2. In most artillery divisions, howitzer, gun-howitzer, and gun brigades consist of four 18-tube battalions and an artillery reconnaissance battery. The equipment totals above reflect this standard brigade structure. In other artillery divisions, these brigades could have four 24-tube battalions.

FOOTNOTES:

* The 220-mm rocket launcher brigade normally consists of four battalions, each with 18 9P140 rocket launchers (previously known as BM-22). However, the 300-mm rocket launcher brigade has only 48 of the 9A52 launchers (four battalions of 12).

 The antitank brigade has four antitank battalions like those found at army level (each with 18 antitank guns and 9 ATGM launcher vehicles (9P149).

Chemical Protection Brigade, Front

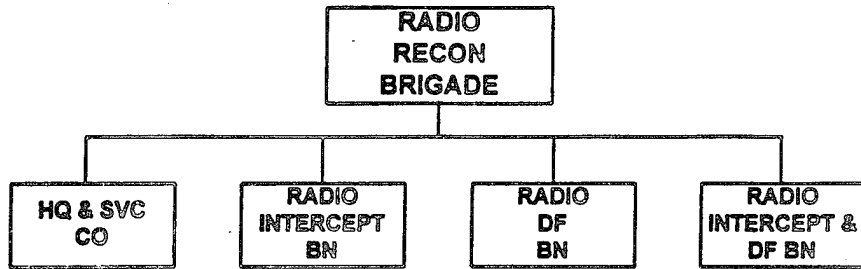

FOOTNOTES:

- * Radiological and chemical reconnaissance battalion is the full name.
-  The mobile computation and analysis station (MCAS) is also known as a mobile analytical plotting station .
-  Nuclear burst direction finding (NBDF) battalion.

Signal Brigade, Front

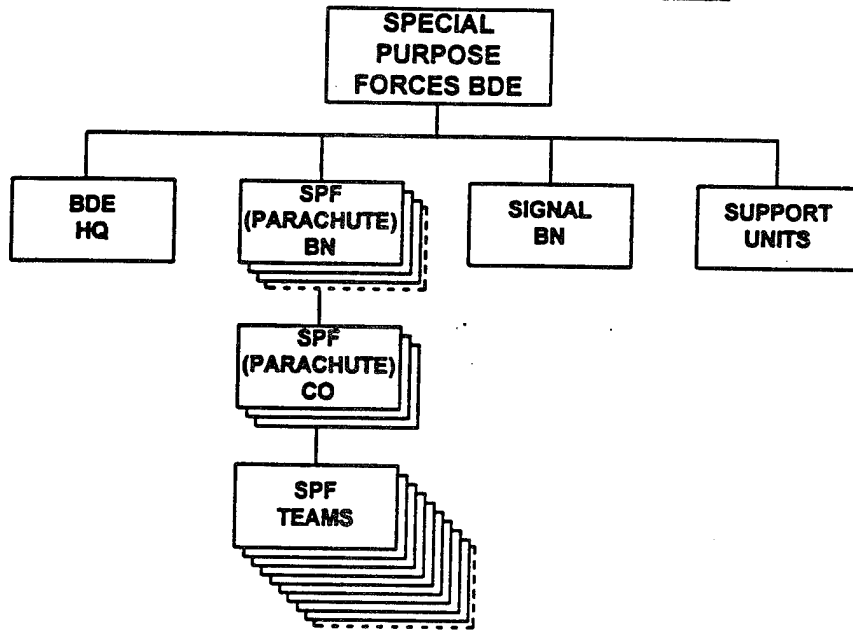

Radio Reconnaissance Brigade, Front

NOTE: This brigade is also known as a radio and radar intercept and direction finding brigade or as a radiotechnical reconnaissance brigade.

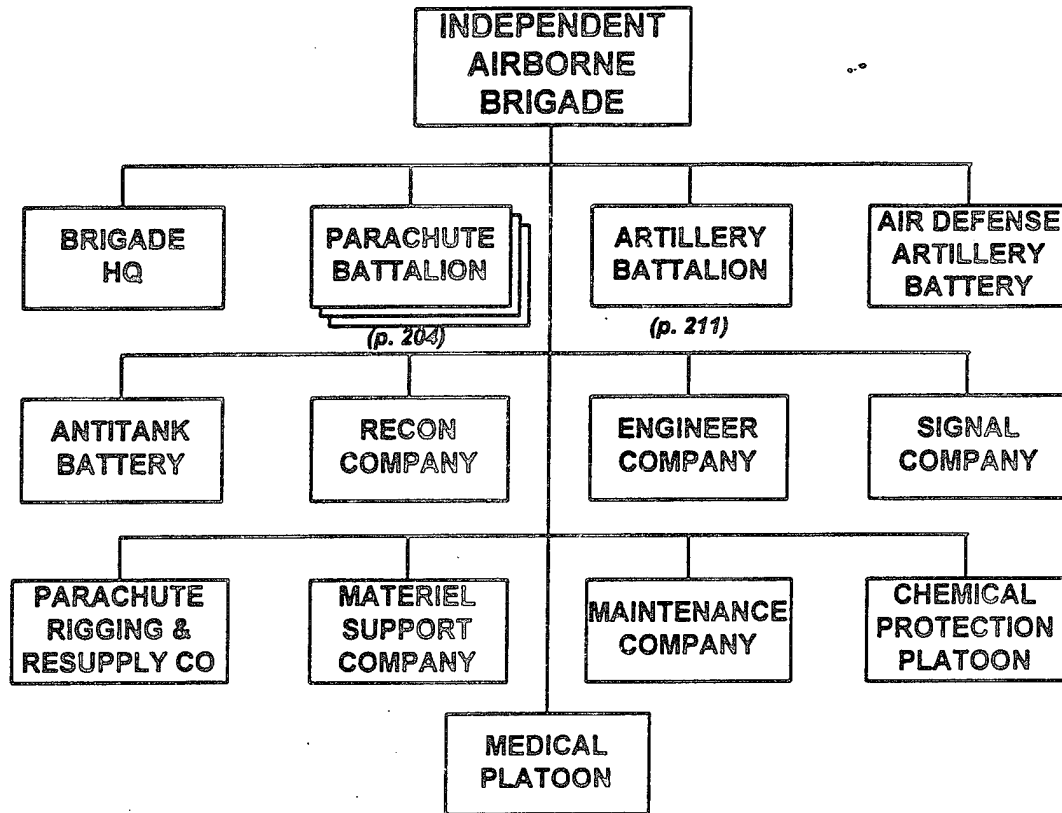

Special Purpose Forces Brigade, Front

NOTES:

1. Brigade structure is not fixed. This chart represents what may be the organization of a typical brigade.
2. A brigade may deploy about 80 to 100 SPF teams.

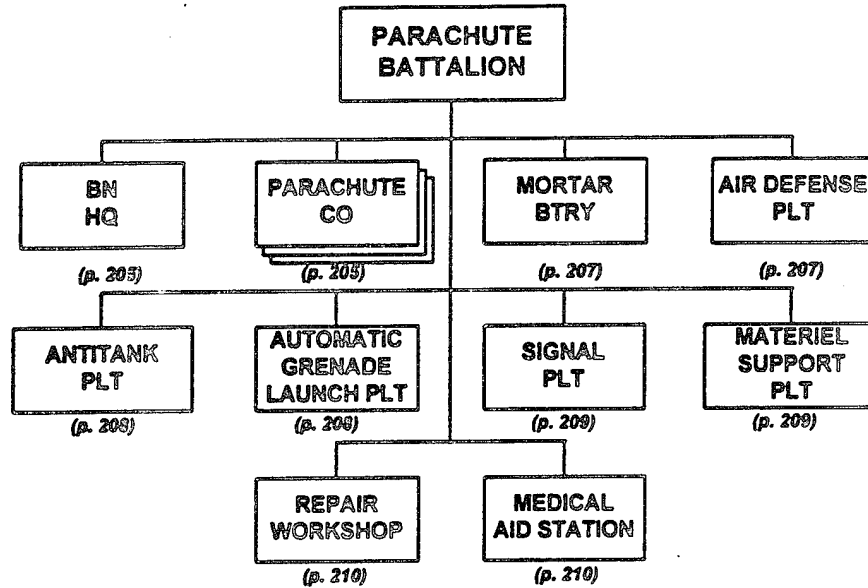

Independent Airborne Brigade

NOTE: Air transport support units required for deployment may be allocated to the brigade from military transport aviation assets. Either transport aircraft or heavy-lift helicopters could air-land the brigade or to insert the parachute battalions by parachute.

APPENDIX A: EQUIPMENT SUBSTITUTION MATRICES

The matrices contained in this appendix illustrate some of the different equipment options available to scenario and order of battle developers. Although FSU systems are used throughout this organization guide, the intent of the capabilities-based OPFOR is to allow users to tailor their orders of battle by substituting other foreign systems. Deviations from the baseline systems should be tied to specific training objectives. Examples include attempting to mirror the actual mix of equipment found in a particular region or to introduce a particular weapons capability or vulnerability.

The matrices list most of the major baseline systems contained in the organization guide and provide a number of potential substitutes for each. While the lists of substitutes are not all inclusive, they contain most common "gray" systems that have roughly comparable capabilities.

Users substituting systems from the matrices or considering other foreign weapons systems for use in an OPFOR order of battle should evaluate candidate substitutes against the following criteria:

- Is the system available to potential adversaries? This criteria would be satisfied if the system was in service with the armed forces of countries traditionally hostile to the United States or if it were widely exported on the world market.

- Has the system been produced in large enough quantities to justify training against it? At a minimum, total system production should at least equal the numbers contained in a proposed order of battle. Moreover, developmental systems that have not reached initial operational capability (IOC) should not be played.

- Does the mix and variety of systems in an order of battle conform to some logical pattern? Some users constructing a large order of battle may want to pattern the mix of system types and generations on some actual country. Others may wish to standardize systems throughout the order of battle for simplicity or ease in modeling. In any case, systems should be portrayed in unit sets generally of regimental or battalion size. Considering the logistical and training challenges involved in supporting a weapon system, excessive variety should be avoided.

APPENDIX B: Cargo Truck, Trailer and Radio Substitution

Generic terminology has been used throughout the handbook to indicate truck and trailer capacity and radio capabilities. The following list, based on FSU equipment, provides a definition of terms. However, the reader may substitute any piece of equipment which falls within the range of capabilities for each system.

TRUCKS AND TRAILERS:

Utility Truck -- 4 x 4 drive vehicle with a 500 to 600 kg carrying capacity. Examples include the GAZ-69 (FSU) and the UAZ-469 (FSU), Land Rover Defender 130 (UK), and the IMR A-0.75 (YO).

Light Truck -- 4 x 4 drive vehicle with a 1 to 2.5 mt carrying capacity. Examples include the GAZ-66 (FSU), GAZ-3301 (FSU), TAM 110 T7 BV (YO) and the Renault TRM 2000 (FR).

Medium Truck -- 6 x 6 drive vehicle with a 2.5 to 7 mt carrying capacity. Examples include the ZIL-131/132 and the ZIL-157.

Heavy Truck -- 6 x 6 drive vehicle with a 7.5 mt or greater carrying capacity. Examples include the KrAZ-255B (FSU), KrAZ-260 (FSU), IVECO Magirus 160-23 ANWM (GM) or the AWD Bedford TM (UK).

Cargo Trailer, 1-Axle -- has a 0.5 mt carrying capacity. Examples include the GAZ-704 trailer used with the UAZ-469 (FSU), UAZ-8190 used with the UAZ-3151(FSU) and the GKN Defence 1t Special Purpose (UK).

Cargo Trailer, 2-Axle -- has a 3.0 to 4.0 mt carrying capacity. Examples include the IAPZ-759V trailer used with the URAL-375D(FSU) and the 782V trailer used with the URAL-4320(FSU) and the M104 Series (US).

RADIOS:

HF, Manpack, Low-Power -- An example is the R-104M, a transceiver operating in the 1.5 to 4.25 MHz frequency range with a 30 to 50 km range.

HF, Vehicle Mount, Medium-Power -- An example is the R-130, a transceiver/receiver operating in the 1.5 to 10.99 frequency range with a 50 to 70 km range.

VHF, Portable, Low-Power -- An example is the R-148, a transceiver operating in the 37.0 to 51.95 frequency range with range of 5 km.

VHF, Manpack, Low-Power -- An example is the R-107, a transceiver operating in the 20 to 52 MHz frequency range with a 6 to 25 km range.

VHF, Vehicle Mount, Medium-Power -- An example is the R-123, a transceiver operating in the 20 to 51.5 MHz frequency range with a 20 to 50 km range.

Warning Receiver -- An example is the R-311, a receiver operating in the 1 to 15 MHz band.

Radio Relay -- An example is the R-401, a VHF/FM transceiver operating in the 60 to 70 MHz band with a range of 40 to 50 km.
