PREFACE.

The establishment of the Bath Records Society affords an opportunity, which has been lacking too long in our City, to stimulate interest in the documentary and other treasures which we have inherited from our careful forefathers. Although Bath cannot, perhaps, claim equality with a few of the most ancient municipalities of the Kingdom, as regards the volume and importance of their records, yet we are justified in saying that those which have been so carefully preserved in the Guildhall of this City are of the highest interest. The Royal Charters, which commence with that granted by Richard I., in the year 1189, are numerous, and in addition there are many Royal Grants, Mandates and Writs and other Crown missives. The City already owes to the indefatigable labours of the translator of the documents presented in this volume, a complete transcript of that interesting and valuable record of civic expenditure in the 16th Century, known as the "Chamberlain Accounts." The two volumes containing this transcript are in the possession of the Corporation, but until the expense of publication is provided this mine of information as to the methods and expenditure of our Civic Fathers, when they exercised full independence in disbursing the Corporate revenues, will be explored only by the very few. The Minutes of Council Meetings, dating from the time of the Stuarts, also await similar attention.

It is one of the objects of the Bath Records Society to encourage work of research and assist in rendering more accessible to students and citizens the result of labours such as those undertaken by Mr. Shickle. The present publication is a beginning, which will, it is hoped, whet the appetite not only of those associated with the Corporation but of the public generally, for further instalments. The volume now issued will be of permanent interest to all who are anxious to know more of the domestic history of our ancient City. When we consider how few evidences remain of the mediæval life of Bath, and how intimate is the account which is given in these ancient documents of the identity and transactions of the men who dwelt here 600 years ago and the light they throw on the management of public affairs and the gradual changes in the topography of the old walled city, we cannot fail to appraise the value of these records very highly. We are also able to find in these documents the origin of many surnames borne for generations by Bath families, of whom not a few have established branches in distant lands. It is hoped that this volume will find readers across the seas and will help to confirm their affection for the Queen City of the West, to whom they owe their origin.

FOREWORD

MR. FREDERIC HARRISON, D.C.L., LL.D., J.P., ETC.

Historians have constantly insisted on the value of ancient documents in local keeping which illustrate the life and manners of our ancestors ; and there has been now for many years past a series of efforts by students and local societies to tabulate and interpret the old records preserved in the chests of famous cities and in the muniment rooms of old country houses. A remarkable example of how much such a study can throw light on history has been given by our eminent fellow-citizen, the learned and indefatigable Master of St. John's Hospital. It is natural that this Hospital, one of the oldest foundations in Christendom, with its eight centuries of continuous activity, unbroken by Wars, Revolutions, or Reformation, should have as its Master an enthusiastic student of our historic City.

The documents preserved in the Municipal Buildings, which Mr. Shickle has examined, go back from the time of Edward I. (that is, contemporary with Parliament) to that of Henry VI. (that is, the close of the Feudal period). No one who has not tried to interpret such old Deeds can imagine the difficulty of the task. They are in Latin—or rather that mediæval language which is a separate tongue of its own. Then the writing can only be read by an expert, with its contractions, signs, and conventional symbols. Then the names are often transmuted and translated. In the absence of family names, a man is often dubbed by the name of his trade, or his abode, or by the Latin equivalent. Stephen, the Baker, is inscribed Stephen Pistor, John de Ponte or Ponter stands for Bridgeman, and a widow who marries again is described by her maiden name.

Out of this tangle of old parchments Mr. Shickle has made a most instructive and very amusing story. As he truly says, the records offer endless scope for historic novels. I will not disclose the tale that Mr. Shickle has unearthed of the widow and the elderly widower on the other side of the hedge which separated the adjoining curtilage. Again, who was Johanna de Canynges ? And who was Isabella first wife of Robert the Taylor at the corner of the lane in Stall Street ? These people who conveyed tenements with an annual rent of 2½d., who limited the funeral expenses to 13s. 4d. and paid as fee to the rector 1d., all the same made wills and settlements quite as elaborate as those of recent times and gave minute bequests as to their best and second-best beds, as to their cups and tankards and basins and the rest of their personal effects.

On the whole, the picture of mediæval life which the research of Mr. Shickle has extracted from these musty, but carefully drawn and well preserved documents, is a real addition to our history of our ancient City, and tells us much of the civilisation and habits of its citizens. We see how very small was the circuit of the City, bound for safety within its battlemented walls, and yet how the complex life of a central and rich city was carried on just as it is to-day. And we see, too, the wonderful continuity of our English people, holding for centuries the same streets, churches, bridges and water conduits—above all, the same law, municipal organization and civic ranks. Assuredly, for long generations English Burgesses did not treat Indentures, Charters and Testaments as what the Prussians would call "mere scraps of paper."

INTRODUCTION

BY

THE REV. C. W. SHICKLE, M.A., F.S.A.

Mankind has ever sought to make the evidences of property transactions as nearly imperishable as could be. The Babylonians, in order to preserve the record of their agreements, stamped them upon clay bricks, which when baked were stored in a treasury from which many have been brought to the British Museum, a more lasting method even than writing on parchment which was the ordinary custom of Western nations.

ORIGIN OF THE INDENTURE.

But there was one great objection to written agreements. Few in early ages could read, and fewer still could write, and therefore they were at the mercy of the Clerks and Monks, who drew up the documents, and were themselves in many instances but imperfectly acquainted with the language of those who employed them. Many devices were therefore resorted to in order to keep men in the straight path of probity. Of these one example is an Indenture of fine. The word Indenture gives the idea of something connected with notches, and an Indenture always has an irregular top edge ; for this reason, the agreement was written twice on the same piece of parchment, head to head, with a small space between them along which some waving lines were drawn, and another copy of the deed was written across the ends of the parchment. The two deeds were sealed with the seals, etc., of the different parties, who exchanged them ; and then it was divided into three pieces by two wavy cuts. The object of this was that if a lawsuit was commenced both the parties had to produce their document and it was then seen whether the two pieces exactly fitted. This was done to prevent a forged deed being substituted for the original. The third deed which was at the foot of the other two was deposited in some public office, and it had to fit into the others before the trial could commence. The deeds were called fines, and the document at the end was called the foot, hence the term " feet of fines." Many of these " feet of fines " have been collected together and published according to Counties, and give considerable information with respect to persons and transactions in days of old. But where a transaction was not of sufficient importance for this elaboration it was still necessary that the writings should be preserved, since possession of the deeds of a property was often sufficient proof of ownership, and the men were thankful if their friend the Mayor would allow the deed he had kindly witnessed to be put into the Corporation chest. The Mayor was often the witness in legal transactions. The reason was this. Each person had, or was supposed to have, his own seal, which he was able to recognise, though unable to write or read. But it was often felt that the seal of the person being little known would not afford much security, and therefore the Mayor or some other person of importance added his seal as a proof of the authenticity of the deed. In earlier times the deed of conveyance was publicly read in the Hundred Court before the Provost or Bailiff in order that those present might testify to the fairness and authenticity of the transaction.

THE DEEDS AT BATH GUILDHALL.

This accounts for the fact that there are numbers of these old deeds to be found in nearly every Guildhall. In Bath there are more than 500. It is hard to realise how small Bath was. From Cater's corner to the Theatre, marks the northern boundary. Thence the wall ran exactly along the tram line to St. James's Church, no nearer the river than at the present time, and the Abbey Green and all that corner belonged to the convent and had no houses upon it. A few houses in Southgate Street and a few more in Walcot and Broad Streets, nothing more. How the visitors fared we cannot tell and yet Bath was more fashionable then than now.

These 500 deeds lay in some chest in the Guildhall, and once when the citizens wanted to prove how long Bath had enjoyed a Charter they pleaded there were a quantity of documents so ancient and written in such a curious hand that no one could read them, so a Mr. Furman, of London, was paid to arrange and make a list of them, for which he received an ample payment, considering that he did not translate any. This gentleman divided them into six bundles, mainly according to streets, and threaded each bundle on a string with a tag like a boot lace. Some few were inspected from time to time, but where they were kept I do not know, and when the alteration of the Municipal Buildings took place they were put into a brown paper parcel and sent over to the Bank, and so remained for a long time after their return to the detriment of the seals, etc., but otherwise suffered but little. A few are lost, having probably been taken away and forgotten to be returned as is so often the case. The boot laces kept them together, and now they are in neat little boxes, safe, I hope, from further injury. They chiefly relate to transactions from the reigns of Edward I. to Henry VI., some a little earlier, some later.

MERCHANTS' MARKS.

The seals attached are interesting, not only because they afford very early examples of the Mayor's seal, but a few are Merchants' marks. The various traders used to have distinguishing marks with which they stamped their goods, and in many old houses in other towns these merchants' marks are cut on the top of their handsomely carved door posts. Trade marks are very ancient, though legislation about them may be recent. All these documents, with one or two exceptions, are written in Latin, and occasionally the clerks translated the names, and so we find in the first deed printed in this book "Nigel Pontarius," which we should call Bridgeman and later, Gilbert Cissor—Tailor, Adam Fullo—Fuller, John le Venur—Hunter; but the difficulty is that often these surnames only denoted the trade carried on; so Stephen Pistor was a baker, Walter le Lavender was the washerman, and who knows whether in Bundle 1, No. 22, Parmenter was the name of a man or only meant a tailor. Many of the deeds are grants for a nominal rent; a sprig of gilly flower at Easter, a rose, a pair of gloves, and in one case a manor seems to have been sold for a pair of silver-gilt spurs. Half-pound of pepper was frequently mentioned and is the origin of the term "pepper corn rent." It is a truly hopeless task to make out a pedigree for this period with any degree of certainty, although we may be told that the name was always Browne with an e, or Smyth with a y. And then again when a widow had married she is often called by her maiden name though there is no suspicion of her respectability. Perhaps the best example of change of name is in the case of Alexander Deigher. He was Mayor more than once and a distinguished citizen in the middle of the 14th Century, but it is somewhat confusing when we find his name spelt Deigher, Dyer, with any variation between these two, and sometimes written Tinctor, which is Latin for Dyer; and the trouble is not minimised when his son, Thomas, in a later document, states that his father was the Dyer, and so it was not his surname after all. In Bundle 1, No. 13, Geoffrey Wissi is granted a property which is not to be assigned to a religious house, and in more than one other case there is a restriction against its being bought by a Jew. The deed is a very early one, and it may be even anterior to anything we could call a Corporation.

THE HUNDRED OF BATH.

There was a Mayor, but the most important body at first was the hundred court of the Guild, and in the next document, which is between the same persons and about almost the same property, the matter is said to have taken place in the full Hundred of Bath, and Geoffrey Wissi is said to have given to Agnes Parcarius (Parker), the wife, a bezant. Now a bezant was a gold coin which had its name from Byzantium and was current in England from the 10th Century till the reign of Edward III. The deed is witnessed by Helias, Dean of Bath, who lived about 1200. Whether there was a Dean of Bath or whether he was Archdeacon I cannot say. Bezants are named again in Bundle VI, No. 67, which is a Bristol, not a Bath deed. Some of the names are very archaic—Turstan, Roger de Kiuilli; and it was drawn up by an Ecclesiastic—Henry, the Deacon. This same man drew up a deed (Bundle VI, No. 68), which is a grant to St. John's Hospital, Bath, by Hermerus, the son of Michael, and Hawise his wife, of some land in Radeclive Street, Bristol, which they before held of the Hospital; and for this release the Brethren and Sisters gave him four marks, and a similar pledge about the Jews before the Hundred of Radeclive. Now from the Chartulary of the Hospital, which I found in the Archbishop's Library at Lambeth Palace, I know that this piece of land was "towards St. John's Gate," and extended from the street back to the water, which was called Lawditch, but I have not met with any of the names. The deeds on the Chartulary are 14th Ed. I. and two in Ed. II. The property does not now belong to the Hospital, but it is worthy of note that the agreements are made with the master, brethren and sisters in the same manner as at the present time; a very rare example of continuity in a charitable foundation.

MASS FOR THE MAYOR AND CORPORATION.

Bundle III, No. 65. Thomas Saundres, Chaplain, was an ecclesiastic, and granted a considerable portion of lands and houses in Bath and the suburbs to the Mayor and Corporation, subject to the condition that they should find him for life in bread, a calico dress, and sufficient linen for him to celebrate his mass wherever he may wish within the liberty of the city for the souls of his relations and friends and the Mayor and Corporation;

together with a house at a rent of one penny a year, and also 8 marks a year for his life, and if this should be in arrear for one whole year at the time of his death the Corporation were to pay four marks to his executors. This was in the eleventh year of the reign of Richard II., 22nd July, 1387. Bundle III, No. 66. At the request of the Mayor and Corporation, 28th April, 1399, 22nd Rich. II., and with the permission of the Bishop of Bath and Wells through his commissioner, Robert Hulle, the name of the chief street was changed from Souter Street to Chep Street. This document illustrates the exceptional power of the Bishop. At the time of the Conquest, Bath was the property of the King, "Rex tenet Bad," together with the Hundred of Bath, Bathon forinsecum, afterwards corrupted into Bathforum, within which was the Barton, cultivated for the mutual advantage of the citizens, which became Crown land. John de Villula purchased the city from Rufus but not the forinsecum. Savaricus, who succeeded Fitz Jocelin, founder of St. John's Hospital, and who, being a relation of Henry VI. of Germany, was instrumental in obtaining the release of Richard I., was made Abbot of Glastonbury in addition to holding the Bishopric, and in return for this surrendered the City to the Crown. The City appears to have fallen again soon after under the Bishop, as the Langabulem (Land Tax) was payable to him instead of to the Crown, and is specially so mentioned in the deeds.

ST. JAMES'S.

We often find mention made in the City Accounts of the conduit or fountain at St. James's Church, and are apt to think it was brought into the city from Holloway in comparatively recent times, but this is a mistake, for one of the oldest deeds (Bundle III, No. 34) speaks of the grant by the Rector of Chiw of a piece of land between the South gate and the neighbouring fountain, no mention being made of St. James's Church. I do not know the actual date of this deed, but the witnesses correspond with persons who witnessed a deed ascribed by my friend, Mr. Boyd, to the early part of the reign of Henry III., say 1230. In the year 1344 (Bundle III, No. 50) the same piece of land apparently is sold subject to the same rent of 14 pence to the Rector of Chew, and in this instance it is said to be between the South gate and the way of the Procession round the Church of St. James's. It is not generally known that St. James's Church once stood just where the old "Chronicle" Office was, by the Abbey, and over the Baths, and that is why some coffins came to be dug up as they cleared the Roman Baths. How close it stood to the Prior's House you can understand if you think that the little door in the nave of the Abbey is called the Prior's Door and was opposite his entrance. As the Prior was anxious to incorporate the Church with his own house, he was permitted by the Pope to do so in 1286, with the proviso that the Chancel should be pulled down and a Cross erected on the steps where the High Altar stood. St. James's Church was rebuilt in a small field within the City walls and just outside the Abbot's garden, and there appears to have been just enough room for a passage all round the church.

THE WIDOW OF BATH.

In looking over these deeds a name sometimes catches the eye and impresses itself upon the memory. One lady stands out not as a wife of Bath, but rather as a Bess of Hardwick, who must have been a woman of importance in her own family circle, even if her influence extended no further. Her first name was Johanna de Canynges, whether a Bristol maiden I cannot say, but the name is not found in Bath Archives. She first appears as the widow of William de Sautemareys, or Salso Mariseo, Salt Marsh (names were as elastic as indiarubber). She had engaged the affections of a widower, Benedict de Stoke, a well-known man in Bath, but whose name was not Benedict de Stoke but Benedict Young, or Le Zonge (the name is not clearly written), of Hangyngstoke. They only used the first part and the last part of a long name and dropped the rest. His name appears as witness to the execution of at least six deeds. The deeds relating to the purchase of his various houses were deposited in the Guildhall, and at one time he acted as Provost, but I have not found his name among that of the Mayors. Who William de Sautemareys was I cannot say, but I think he belonged to Batheaston, for in a sale of a meadow (Bundle VI., No. 60), in the West part of the Close (clausum) called Silvestresham in that place, a certain field is said to be between one belonging to Walter le Zonge and that of John de Sautemareys, which affords food for conjecture. The deed in question has a small but special interest, because there was a clause that the tenant had the right to shroud but not to fell the trees, though he might have them if they were thrown down by the wind.

Whether the widow threw fascinating glances over the hedge at the elderly widower on the other side of the narrow intervening field I must leave you to imagine; all I can say is that on the 8th June, 1326 (Bundle IV., No. 55), Benedict settled upon her all his property, namely his house in Stall Street (where Archard's shop was at the corner of the old lane to the Baths), and the house held by William Clement adjoining that of the Bishop, subject to an annual payment to his Lordship of 4s. 1½d. And then I suppose the wedding took place, for in his will (Bundle IV., No. 56), dated 19th October, 1326, he left to his wife these two houses, with the reversion, subject to the payment to St. Mary de Stalls of a pound of wax at the Feast of the Assumption for a taper, and also four pence for four masses on the day of his anniversary. He also left his wife a rent charge on a house in Frog lane (that is, New Bond Street), with reversion of the lease, and another house outside the South Gate, and he also made her residuary legatee. To his son John, who must have been the son of a previous marriage, he left his best robe and two sums of 2s. and 3s. a year for life. Benedict must have died very soon, for the will was proved 11th November of the same year before Walter de Hulle, Rector of Shepton Beauchamp, who was the Bishop's Commissioner when the name of Souter Street was changed to that of Chep Street. The lady did not find a solitary life pleasing, and cast her eyes upon John Freoman, of Cherletone, and as perchance her good looks had begun to fail she did the greater part of the wooing and so settled (Bundle IV., No. 57), all her property upon him the Saturday before Valentine in consideration of the receipt of a certain sum of money which may or may not be a legal fiction. John, the stepson, granted (Bundle I., No. 36) to John Freoman, all his right in the houses belonging to his father Benedict, but it does not appear that he received anything for this gift. I know nothing more about John Freoman, but some years afterwards (Bundle I., No. 37) 22nd Edw. III., Johanna grants to her son-in-law Roger Love and her daughter Isabella and their heirs a shop with the attic before her dwelling. The minute precision adopted in this deed for describing the property is worthy of note. It reads like the letting of a modern flat.

SCOPE FOR HISTORIC NOVELS.

There is plenty of scope in those musty deeds for historic novels. Bundle IV., No. 16, throws light upon an unfortunate page of English history, of which very little is known by the general public. Henry III., being in great need of money and being unable to procure it by lawful means, proclaimed a Crusade, hoping to be able to spend upon himself and his favourites the money which would be entrusted to him by the zealous and devout ; but when the nobility who had promised to join the expedition wanted to start before the King, who had not yet made any preparations, Henry appealed to the Pope, who prohibited any of them from leaving the country before the King, which gave great offence to the people.

TRESPASSES IN ROYAL FORESTS.

This source of income being stopped and the King not daring to appeal to the Parliament through dread of what they might do if called together, caused an inquisition to be made in all counties concerning trespasses committed in Royal forests. This Commission included all cases not excepted in King John's Charter. The manner of the inquisition was still more intolerable, for men were punished with excessive fines and confiscation of property for the least offence. Geoffrey of Langley, who was Commissioner, is said by Matthew Paris to have ruined divers persons of the best quality for killing but a deer or a hare, though it was on the very highway, and to have clapp'd a gentleman in prison for but muttering against his unjust proceedings. Henry Petevin appears to have been one of his victims. John Petevin, in conjunction with John Coc, had purchased a house or stall which stood on the site of part of the present Arcade facing the Pump Room Hotel, and Henry Petevin succeeded John in the partnership. What trade they carried on is not disclosed, but Henry sells to John Coc his share of the shop for four marks of silver and a tunic of bluet (blue cloth), and the deed is drawn up with more than ordinary care and witnessed by no less than nine influential persons among his neighbours. A note is appended to this deed stating that he did this with the assent of his wife Joan and because of his urgent need since he was charged with money due to the King and was heavily indebted to him for his ransom in the year of grace 1249 and in the 34th year of the reign of Henry III. ; and in witness of this deed was affixed the seal of the community. In the next document, which is of almost the same date, the purchaser pays 12 marks in pennies (denarius). Denarius was a penny ; a pennyweight being 32 grains of wheat from the middle of the ear. The old name for an English penny was a sterling, said to be from Easterlings or Easterlongs, the old popular name in England for traders from the North of Germany, i.e., East of England, whose money was of peculiar purity and who in the reign of King John first stamped pure coins in England. The sterling, or penny, was the standard coin in which it was stipulated that payment should be made, and the term subsequently applied to the coinage of England in general.

A DEED DRAWN UP LIKE A ROYAL CHARTER.

Early in the reign of Henry III. (Bundle I., Nos. 1 and 2), a man whom we know under two titles, as Master Robert de Castelford, and also as parson of Alveston, makes a grant to a Margaret Little, first, for service received, of the lands belonging to Nigel Pontarius or Bridgeman. And in the second makes her heiress of the same property, and for greater security affixes his seal to both documents in full hundred. As Robert was in orders he was not supposed to be able to leave property and we must consider that he was the administrator in some way or other of Nigel P., and there was, I think, a reason why special care should be taken that Margaret should be confirmed in the property as her father had been outlawed for the murder of his wife, Edith, and his house had become escheated to the King. Now this house was granted by deed to Geoffrey de Bath (Bundle I, No. 58). The deed, if not important as a civic document, is one of great interest on account of its antiquity and its showing how the property of malefactors was treated. It is drawn up in exactly the same manner as a royal Charter. "Henry by the Grace of God King of England Lord of Ireland Duke of Normandy and Aquetain and Count of Anjou to the Archbishops, &c." . . . And Witnessed by Hugh de Burgo, Earl of Kent, Justiciary of England, and several other persons, and the Royal Seals had been attached to it by the tricoloured cord, which still exists though the seal was broken away, and was issued 30 Nov. 14th Hen. under the hand of Ralph, Bishop of Chichester.

WILLS.

Sometimes wills were deposited in the care of the Corporation for safe custody. We find examples in Bundles VI., No. 31, the will of Henry le Marschal; Bundle IV., No. 75, the will of Sybil Pochon, and Bundle V., No. 47, the will of Henry Cissor. In each of these the bequests are numerous and of great particularity. Thus Henry le Marschal gives to his son John his tools and tongs (beters and tangers) with his cranes (crautenes) and one good anvil (andfeld) and the shears (scherchours), 4 hammers, 2 forhammers, and 2 nail hammers. Sybil Pochongave to the Image of St. Katherine de Stalls her best silk robe; to the Image of Holy Trinity in the Cathedral Church of Bath, a pair of jet rosaries with silver beads. To Thos. Smyth a cupboard. To Elizabeth Hendy a small silk robe and another small robe of linen thread. Henry Cissor gave to the poor on day of funeral, 14s. 3d., for wax, 4s., for sermon, 4d., for masses, 2s., chanting the psalms, 12d., for coffin, 33d. He also gave 12d. out of rent of house in Plumstoneswichene and 6d. out of house of Ralph Clerk to the Corporation, so that the Mayor might give each parochial chaplain 2d. yearly on his anniversary, and each parish Clerk 1d. to ring a knell, and to the Bedman 2d., and to the Brotherhood of Jerusalem 1d. yearly.

CUI BONO?

Some persons might say, "What is the good of all these documents? And what possible advantage can it be to know anything about persons dead and gone?" Let me mention two cases. Letitia Cocherynton sold to Henry and William Fisher, sons of John Truan (names again) all her land on the west side of Broad Street, which was subject to a rent of a rose at Midsummer and land tax to the Bishop of 5d. This was attested by the seal of the guild, and was therefore very old, I think it was 1286 (Bundle V, No. 1). It says the land adjoined some land belonging to St. John's Hospital. Now, on looking over the plans of the Hospital property I could not find any Hospital land on the West side, and I began to hunt about as to what had become of it as I knew the Corporation has been often accused of stealing the Hospital property. At last I found that the piece of land was now occupied by that street in Bath which has no name, namely, between Edgar Buildings and the York House, and when Milsom Street was made the land was taken by compulsory powers and the money expended in the purchase of 11, Brock Street, which I believe to be a very good investment for the Charity. That is one instance. Another is the tale of a quit rent of 10s., which was paid by persons in Wells. Some years ago a gentleman declined to pay unless the authority could be shown him for such payment, which our solicitors were unable to do. One day the fact happened to be mentioned in my presence, and I was able to find the agreement which had been made and which had been deposited in the Guildhall with these documents we are considering. It is dated 13th January, 1613-14 (Bundle I, No. 65), and states that there having been a dispute between St. John's Hospital and Sir William Doddington about a rent out of two mills and the " Hammes " adjoining them in Wells, James Godwyn, having recently purchased the property, agrees to pay the 10s. in dispute, with power for the Hospital to distrain, but the goods to be sold in St. Cuthbert's Parish. Whether we have obtained the payment or whether we are statute barred I am not sure, but at any rate there is some use in reading and preserving musty, fusty documents.

When I commenced the translation of these old Deeds I did not contemplate that it would be possible for the translation to be printed, but, through the generosity of the members of the Bath Records Society, this work has been undertaken, and I hope that the result will be of value to the Citizens of Bath and of interest to the still wider circle of those to whom such records appeal. The fact that my translations (made more for my own satisfaction than with any view of publication) would become public made it important that accuracy should be secured as far as was reasonably practicable.

I have been so fortunate as to have had the assistance of Mr. W. K. Boyd, whose reputation as a decipherer and interpreter of ancient documents is of the highest, and I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude to him for the very considerable amount of time and care he has given in perusing practically every document and revising every page of the work. Having had the benefit of Mr. Boyd's profound knowledge and experience in such matters I feel infinitely less apprehension in allowing the result of my labour of love to go forth to the public in printed form.

I have also to acknowledge with many thanks the assistance given by Mr. F. D. Wardle, who until recently was Town Clerk of Bath, by whom the editing has been carried out most energetically and carefully.

C. W. SHICKLE.

TRANSLATION OF ANCIENT DEEDS.

NOTES AS TO ARRANGEMENT OF DEEDS, ABBREVIATIONS, DATES, &c.

In order to avoid any departure from the schedules of documents and references preserved in the Guildhall, it has been decided to print the translations according to the six bundles and in the order in which the deeds have been kept for a long period. Hence chronological order is not maintained. For the most part documents relating to the same properties or properties in the same situation are together, but this is not invariably the case.

Many of the deeds, particularly the earlier examples are undated. As far as possible the approximate date has been given in brackets, this being arrived at after consideration of the handwriting, the names of the witnesses and the relationship of the transaction effected by the deed to other transactions effected by other dated deeds. The modern rendering of dates has been added in parenthesis in the case of the dated deeds.

The actual spelling of names as given in the deeds has been followed, although the spelling varies constantly and sometimes in the same deed.

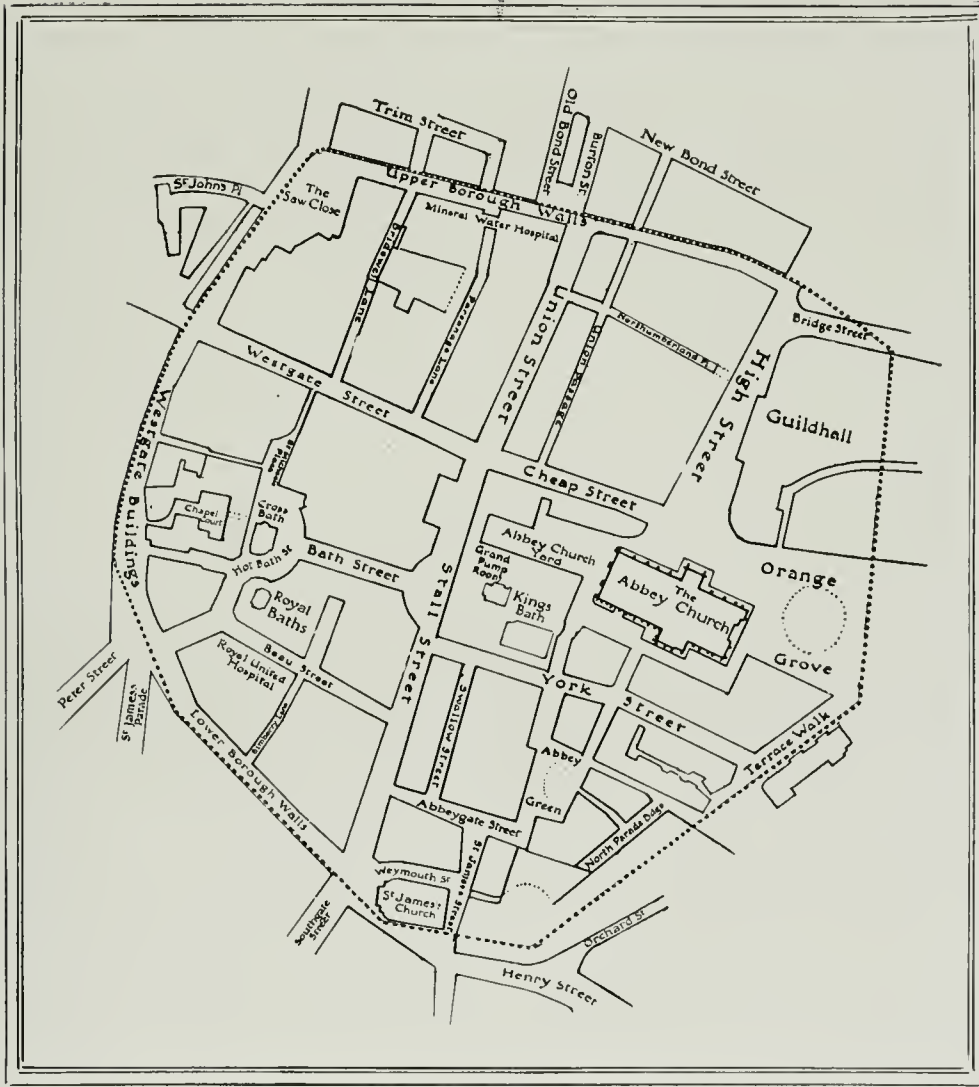

Abbreviations have been expanded whenever the meaning was obvious.

John Shypwarde, burgess and merchant of the town of Bristol, and Roger Haynys, citizen of the City of Bath, executors of the will of the late William Phylpys, citizen and clothier of the said city, greeting in Him by whom all the chains of sinners are dissolved.

Whereas, long ago, William Phylpys, in his life, gave to us, John Shypwarde and Roger Haynys, three tenements with a certain barn and chamber, together with four almshouses in Bynbury lane, in the said city, and newly built by the said William, to have and to hold to us, our heirs and assigns, for ever. And we piously reviewing the sincere and devout intention of the worthy deceased, who, acting in human things, by the inspiration of our Saviour, afforded a praiseworthy care to change mutable into heavenly things, knowing that he was about to render an account of his stewardship at the tribunal of our Lord Jesus Christ, he happily arranged that the three tenements, the barn, with the aforesaid chamber, and the rent annually arising from the same, should be expended for a perpetual memorial of the fact, to be reduced to writing and irrevocably observed for the future, for the salvation of the soul of the said William deceased, and of Agnes, his wife, of his benefactors and of all the faithful departed.

We, therefore, order and will that the Mayor and Commonalty of the aforesaid city, and the successive mayors and commonalties of the said city, have, hold and enjoy for themselves and their successors, for ever, the said three tenements, barn and chamber, and have, collect and receive the annual rents arising and coming from them, concerning which rent we will that the said Mayor and Commonalty and their successors for the time being, should receive 5 shillings and 1 penny sterling at the obit of the said William, and Agnes, his wife, to be solemnly conducted in the following form :—

First, that the Mayor and Commonalty and their successors for the time being, expend the said 5 shillings and 1 penny on an obit to be solemnly held with devotion for the soul of the said William and Agnes, his consort, when they have departed this life, in the chapel of St. Katherine the Virgin, on the aforesaid Tuesday in Easter week, namely to the five curates of the parish churches, together with the two chaplains of the Commonalty of the aforesaid city, who should be present at the funeral service and mass, two pence each.

Also to the Mayor of the said city for the time being, for being personally present at the mass and funeral service, and superintending the faithful, and without fraud carrying out of each article of the present regulation, 12 pence ; but if he be absent, to receive nothing.

Also for two wax candles to be burnt at the funeral service and mass, for the general use of the said chapel, two pence.

Also to the clerk of the church of St. Mary de Stalls for lighting the candles, and for tolling the knell, one penny.

To the other four parish clerks for tolling the knell, each of them a halfpenny.

To the Bedeman on the day of the obit, for publishing it throughout the city, one penny.

Also for bread, baked in the oven, and cheese to be brought for the refreshment of the priests and clerks present at the service, 4 pence.

Also for a farthing loaf of bread to be distributed at the Guyhall to each of one hundred poor people.

Also to the same poor people on the same day, a peck of beans for making into pottage.

Also that the two chaplains of the city should specially pray at both masses for the souls of the said deceased William and Agnes. Moreover, we desire that the said Mayor and Commonalty and their successors for the time being, should provide and cause to be provided and arranged in the four almshouses, situated in the above named street, that eight poor people, namely the Bedeman and his wife, with six other very poor persons, should pray especially for the souls and sound and serviceable condition of the Mayor of Bath for the time being, and of all the co-brethren and sisters in the chapel of the said foundation. And if the Mayor for the time being, and the Commonalty and their successors, fail in any particular point to carry out the said regulation, which we trust may not be the case, or if they neglect and do not superintend as directed, then the Mayor and Commonalty shall permit and the wardens of the church of St. Michael outside the Northgate and their successors, shall enter and take possession of the two tenements, with their belongings, one in Northgate street, opposite the High Cross, as one goes to Guyhall, which John Gybbys holds of the Mayor and Commonalty, between the house of the bailiff, in which Richard Clerk dwells, on the south, and the house of the Prior of Bath, in which John Owen dwells, on the north : And the other tenement which is in Bradestreet, which Agnes, widow of the deceased, now inhabits, between the tenement of Thomas Blount, in which William Tornour dwells, on the south, and the tenement of the church of St. Mary de Stalls, which Robert Walley inhabits, on the north. Moreover we desire that it shall be allowed to the wardens of the church of St. Michael aforesaid to take possession of the three tenements, barn and chamber, with the four almshouses, and turn out the aforesaid Mayor and Commonalty, and their tenants, without dispute, and that the wardens of St. Michael's should see that the service is performed in the manner prescribed.

And the residue of the rents from the three tenements, barn and chamber, as well as from the two tenements, should be spent by the Mayor and Commonalty as ordered by William Phylpys in his life, and as soon as it happens that they fail to carry out the directions, it should pass to the wardens of St. Michael.

And that the said Mayor and Commonalty or the said wardens should maintain the dwelling, barn and chamber, together with the four almshouses in good order.

In witness whereof we have affixed our seals to both indentures; and because we desire that the present letters should be preserved in two different places for the perpetual preservation of the aforesaid house, we wish one part should remain in the custody of the Mayor and Commonalty, with the other muniments of the city, and we have arranged that the seals of the proctors in order to be preserved, should be affixed.

And because the seals of the said proctors are unknown to many, the seal of the Master of Saint John's Hospital is attached at the particular request of the proctors.

The other part we wish to remain in the custody of the proctors of the church of St. Michael outside the Northgate, among the documents of the church, and we have procured the common seal of the city to be attached to it.

Dated at Bath, Saturday the Feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, 22 Henry VI.
(1 August, 1444).

I, Cary, sheriff of Somerset, by command of the King, dated at Westminster, 6 July, 20 Edward III. (1346), order the bailiff of the City of Bath, to distrain Richard le Gynour, John Hus, Nicholas le Degher, John de Alyngton, Robert Plont, Walter Saundres, Richard le Venour, Robert le Deghere, Nicholas Basse, Adam le Barber, Robert de Natton, and Eustace de Button, by all their lands in his bailiwick, and to have them before the justices at Westminster, in 15 days from Michaelmas or before William de Sharesull at the assizes on Friday the Morrow of St. Lawrence, at Wells, to recognise on their oath whether 15 acres of land and 3 acres of meadow in Walcote and Bath are the free alms pertaining to the chapel of St. Werburg by Bath, whereof William de Kelleseye is parson or the lay fee of Thomas State, citizen of Bath, and Matilda, his wife, Bathin le Deghare and Cristina, his wife, Edmund Farlegh and Margery, his wife, and the Prior of Bath.

Since contention has arisen between Thomas, Prior of Bath and the Convent of the same place, of the one part, and the citizens of the same city, of the other part, concerning the pasture of a certain meadow which is called Kyngesmed, it was agreed on Monday next before the Nativity of the Blessed Mary, in the year of grace 1260, between the aforesaid persons under this form :—

This is to say, that the aforesaid citizens may enter the said meadow with their cattle each year on the Morrow of St. Peter ad Vincula (28 June), giving to the said Prior and his successors for each head of cattle having a tooth one penny, and for every one not having a tooth a halfpenny; on condition that the cattle of the said citizens feed in the said meadow with the cattle of the said Prior from the before named term until the said Prior or his successors should remove their cattle from the said meadow, or cause them to be removed; and should put them in certain stubble fields pertaining to the barton, which the said Prior holds of the King at fee farm, namely, in the east field between Walekot and the bridge of Lambrugge, in the year when the said field was cultivated, and in the west field of the barton, in the year when that field was cultivated. So that, when the said Prior or his successors should remove their cattle from the aforesaid meadow, or cause them to be removed, and should put them into the said fields, the said citizens should be obliged to remove their cattle from the aforesaid meadow, and to feed them in the said fields of the barton with the Prior's cattle; giving to the said Prior and his successors, for every head having a tooth three halfpence, and for every head not having a tooth a halfpenny, so that both the said Prior and his successors should have their ancient defences in defence and should pasture them with their own cattle for three continuous weeks before the said citizens should have entry on the said defences with their cattle ; and so that the said citizens should have entry on the aforesaid defences after the three weeks with their cattle, giving for one defence in the summer for every head having a tooth a penny, and for every head not having a tooth a halfpenny. And it shall be lawful for the Prior and his successors from the day on which they remove their cattle each year from Kyngesmed and put them on the aforesaid fields to have and to do their will thereupon. The citizens should have no entry with their cattle until the Feast of Saints Crispin and Crispinian (October 25), and then the citizens may enter with their cattle into the said meadow and pasture it with their cattle up to the Feast of St. Andrew the Apostle (November 30) every year, giving nothing to the said Prior or his successors during the aforesaid time, but at the said Feast of St. Andrew the cattle of the citizens should be removed from the said meadow without opposition. For the security of this agreement both the said Prior and the citizens alternately have affixed their seals.

Witnesses : Sir Thomas de Baus' ; Sir William de Marmyun, knights ; Master John de Axebrug ; Master Roger Rufus ; Master Symon de Bath ; Master Thomas le Franceys ; Henry de Montford of Nony ; Robert Blakeet ; Robert de Luttlethon, then steward of the Prior of Bath.

(6 September, 1260).

( 72 )

To all the faithful of Christ to whom the present writing shall come, John, Prior of the cathedral church of Bath, and the convent of the same place greeting in our Lord. Because we have caused all our hay (haiam) within our manor of the Berton, near Bath, to be sowed in the 19th year of the reign of King Edward the third, we are however unwilling that such our sowing should fall to the disherison of the citizens of Bath, but we will that all rights and customs by which the citizens claim common of pasture in our land aforesaid be saved to the same citizens, notwithstanding our sowing aforesaid for this time.

Dated in our Chapter House, 12 June, 19 Edw. III. (1345).
