There are so many ways in which an energetic dealer can tie up with the appearance of the artist that space prohibits the listing of them all, but it might be mentioned that simply carrying the prepared advertisement of the manufacturer or placing a list of the artists' recordings in the show window is not sufficient. The proper method is to tie up directly with the advance advertising of the artist, featuring particularly those numbers that will be included in his program and have been recorded, provided the advance program can be obtained, which is generally the case. Then an effort should be made to carry a special announcement in the concert program, listing not only the programmed numbers, but also other records by the artist which are calculated to appeal to good musical tastes.

More than one dealer has added materially to his record-buying clientele by giving a recital or two at his store a few days before the appearance of an artist, or, for that matter, an opera company, playing over and explaining at the recital the selections that are to appear in the regular concert program. A surprising number of music lovers will take the opportunity of refreshing their memories regarding certain numbers that they may enjoy the work of the artist himself more intelligently and cases are known where confirmed opponents of music in record form—fortunately they are growing fewer each year—have had their prejudices removed by just such recitals.

The main thing is that several scores of artists whose names stand high in the musical world are going to tour the United States during the coming season and there will be hardly a city or town of even moderate size where at least one or several artists will not appear. Even when the recitals are held in neighboring cities and towns the small-town dealer can still capitalize the event possibly as some Western houses do it—by arranging personally conducted excursions to the largest center for the benefit of their friends and patrons. The opportunity is here; the next question is to capitalize it.

The first announcements of the Fall plans of the artists notable in the field of recording appear herewith and are worth close study:

Among the Singers

Mme. Schumann-Heink, Victor artist, now at her California home, will come East to sing in Carnegie Hall on Sunday, October 14, starting from New York her new tour under S. Hurok's direction.

DEALERS INSPECT CHENEY FACTORY AT GRAND RAPIDS

Cleveland, Toledo, Akron and Pittsburgh Retailers Spend Two Days at Cheney Plant Inspecting Manufacturing Process—Address by Prof. Forest Cheney and Banquet Features of Trip greeted by H. A. Ackerman, Howard Jackman, M. D. Green and Prof. Cheney, of the Cheney organization.

The two days' stay in Grand Rapids was devoted almost entirely to business, with just enough relaxation mixed in to prevent the gathering from becoming boresome. In addition to a careful inspection of every manufacturing process and acquainting the merchants with the complete Cheney service, which consumed considerable time, Prof. Cheney delivered an address on acoustics.

A banquet was tendered the visitors on Tuesday night and on Wednesday, after the business sessions, a motor trip around the city was a feature of the visit.

Those attending stated that it is seldom so much instructive and helpful service is crowded into so short a period. They came away better Cheney dealers and more enthusiastic retailers.

A photograph of the group as they were leaving the factory is herewith presented. Among the dealers were Henry Wood, of Boggs & Buhl, Pittsburgh; A. R. Meyer and young son, Pittsburgh; Doc Schuyler, Cleveland; W. Murstein and W. P. Laphan, Euclid Music Co., Cleveland; Helen Liddicote, Buescher Music Co., Cleveland; George H. Dales, Dales Music

Symphony In B Minor

The first, complete recording of this famous masterpiece

EVERYONE who is at all interested in music knows of the famous Symphony In B Minor—the supreme accomplishment of the musical genius, Franz Schubert. Only certain parts and selections from it, however, are really familiar to the general music-loving public. A complete rendition of this masterpiece is a musical treat that is rarely heard.

For this reason we have pressed three double-face records, from matrices imported from Europe, of the entire Symphony exactly as it was written by Schubert, note for note. To the best of our knowledge, these records are the only ones of their kind in existence.

No finer organization than The Orchestra of The German Opera House, Berlin, under the direction of Eduard Moerike, could have been chosen to render the complete Symphony. Moerike is today recognized as one of the foremost conductors of music in Europe and became very popular in New York, where he conducted last March. Every member of his orchestra is an accomplished musician of note on the Continent.

These unusual records are released under the ODEON label and are sold in sets only. Each set consists of three double-face records contained in a handsome black leatherette album imprinted in gold and bearing on the inside cover the history of "The Unfinished Symphony." The complete set retails for five dollars.

By special arrangements with the leading record manufacturers of Europe, we alone are able to offer the American public, on ODEON RECORDS, a notable repertoire of rare record importations that feature the foremost artists of Europe. The steadily increasing demand for these records is a clear indication of public approval and appreciation. ODEON RECORDS are

Franz Peter Schubert

The composer of the famous SYMPHONY IN B MINOR—popularly known as "The Unfinished Symphony."

Contrary to popular conception, death did not interrupt the completion of his beloved masterpiece. He was forced, by the stress of extreme poverty, to abandon it in order to earn a scanty livelihood. Schubert never heard even an orchestral rehearsal of his Symphony. It was played in public for the first time thirty-eight years after his death. Today, the world's foremost musicians concede "The Unfinished Symphony" to be one of the musical masterpieces of the century.

*Improving Business Conditions
Create Optimism in Local Territory—Trade Happenings of Month*

DALLAS, TEX., September 6.—The Summer lethargy in Texas, so far as the music trades are concerned, is about ended, and stores everywhere are reporting improving business conditions. Recent general rains over Texas have improved the crop outlook and restored confidence, and rural merchants are looking for a good Fall trade.

The recent two weeks' buying season in Dallas, which marked the formal Fall opening of the wholesale dry goods and clothing stores, brought merchants and buyers from all over the Southwest to Dallas, and greatly stimulated business in the music trade. Jobbers and distributors of musical instruments of all kinds, notably of talking machines, report a marked stimulus to their business.

Lester Burchfield, manager of the talking machine department of Sanger Bros., distributors of Victor machines, reports satisfactory business. The rural merchants bought liberally during the recent two weeks' market opening in Dallas. Mr. Burchfield said that reports everywhere indicate a return of normal business conditions. The Southwest seems to be prosperous and a heavy Fall business in talking machines is expected, he said.

The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., distributor of Edison phonographs and records, finds a greatly improved condition of business in the very important territory to which it caters. O. G. Feltner, secretary and treasurer in charge of sales, remarked that conditions throughout the Southwest are picking up and that a decided spurt has been noticed by dealers for the last two weeks. Coincident with the Fall season this activity should be increased materially. The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. is well prepared to cater to its clientele, and has arranged for a stock of machines and records to meet all demands. This company is doing a great deal to stimulate dealers not only to a greater activity, but to a realization of the great possibilities in the phonograph business if properly developed.

A company is being organized in Dallas to finance the erection of a Fine Arts Building, which will contain a large auditorium, studios for music teachers and stores for music merchants. The building, as plans prepared by R. H. Hunt & Co., architects, show, will be a six-story structure of artistic design to cost approximately $750,000.

The Haverty Furniture Co., which recently purchased the entire store of the Columbia Phonograph Co. here and placed this stock on sale at its Elm street store, has already disposed of the larger part of this stock and business continues to improve.

Sanger Bros., Victor distributors of this city, have received a letter from one of their dealers, the Walter Piano & Auto Co., Waxahachie, Tex., under recent date, which reads:

"Would you not get out a bulletin at once warning all your dealers against a swindler that on yesterday (Saturday) evening late put up a smooth job on us. He is medium height, neatly dressed in light or brown Summer clothes, straw hat, about thirty to thirty-five years old, smooth shaved, slightly stooped, head leans forward, about 140 pounds, very quiet in talk and manner. His scheme is to come in and engage with a salesman about a phonograph, saying he worked in Dallas (in this case) for Higginbotham-Bartlett Co., builders' materials, and that his father and mother, who live here (in the place he happens to be) are alone and getting old and that he wants to send them some music, but he cannot pay cash for the instrument; in fact, could not pay anything to-day as he has not cashed his check which he has in his pocket, says he

After not being able to find any Rev. King, who he said was his father, we got suspicious and found it was a swindle. He gave his name as A. N. King. We thought you might do this in the interest of all and with the hope that we might catch him working the scheme on some other talking machine dealer and, if detected, have him arrested and notify us. If you would act promptly getting out the bulletins immediately he may be caught in this territory."

NEW OKEH JOBBER DOING WELL

Texas Radio Sales Co., Dallas, Tex., Meeting With Success in Distribution of Okeh Records —Plans Addition of Important New Lines

DALLAS, TEX., September 5.—The Texas Radio Sales Co., of this city, which was recently appointed a jobber for Okeh records, is meeting with very pleasing success in the introduction of this well-known line to the trade in this territory. The company's sales force is establishing dealers in the leading cities and the general publicity used in behalf of Okeh records is helping these dealers stimulate sales. The Texas Radio Sales Co. is admirably equipped to develop Okeh business, as it is well known throughout this territory. For some time past it has been a distributor for the Radio Corp. of America and, according to its present plans, several other talking machine products will be handled in addition to Okeh records.

A S new distributors for "The Records of Quality" in the Southwest, we plan to play no small part in aiding hundreds of dealers to reap the benefits that come from handling the famous, fast-selling Okeh Records.

Trade Stimulated by Festival and Exposition—Outlook Bright—
Dealers Face Trade-in Problem—L. L. Harding Dead—The News

CINCINNATI, O., September 7.—Cincinnati dealers have been experiencing a period of unusually good business during the last month. This good trade is in rolls and records as well as in talking machines. In fact, those dealers who did not place their orders early have been unable to get records for several weeks after they should have been issued. Every available means is being employed to get a greater turnout, with the result, according to Mr. Purnell, of the Starr Piano Co., that the number of records being made this year will be double the output of last year.

Festival and Exposition Boost Trade

One possible reason for the present good trade in the city is the great Fall Festival and Industrial Exposition which brought thousands of strangers to the city. Some of these people are here on pleasure, but most of them are here with business in mind and the music merchants are reaping some of the benefits. A few of the dealers, with this in mind, are running the following thought in their ads: "The pleasure-seeking people are invariably lovers of music, and some of them will want to buy musical instruments to send or bring back to their loved ones at home." Several of the dealers have very attractive booths at the Festival. The Brunswick Co. is represented by a display of upright and console models of Brunswick phonographs; the Pandorf Music Shop and the Vocalstyle Music Co. combined to produce a very effective booth displaying console and upright models of the Brunswick, Victor and Strand instruments, and Vocalstyle records. The festival extends from August 25 to September 8 and the outlook is that it will have a stimulating effect on trade.

Uses Airplane to Advertise Brunswick

Other of the Brunswick dealers are doing some unique advertising. J. P. Riddle, of Pikeville, Ky., has just moved into his new home on Second street and it is expected that he may try some more sensational stunts like the one which he tried recently. Mr. Riddle, the president of the Riddle Co., is an ex-aviator, and to advertise his instruments he excited the whole town of Pikeville by making some risky tail spins and barrel rolls above the town in an airplane. He scattered pamphlets as he flew near to the ground.

Edison Popularity Grows

The demand for Edison phonographs and records continues to grow throughout this territory, and as a result the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with offices in this city and in Cleveland, is kept busy supplying its large clientele with a sufficient quantity of stock. Most of the Edison dealers hereabouts are live wires and they lose no opportunity of bringing the merits of the Edison to the public. Window displays, advertising, circularizing and personal solicitation are all playing an important part in bringing the sales volume of individual dealers to a very satisfactory figure.

Dealers Dispose of Used Instruments

There seems to have been a slight increase in the percentage of trade-ins which have come in recently. To dispose of these used instruments many local stores are now conducting sales of used instruments. It is the general opinion that these sales have been a great factor in stimulating business. Even those sales which did not turn out as well as was expected have brought about a noticeably increased trading. On the whole, business is about 70 per cent more than that of this time last year. There has been a gratifying increase in the number of inquiries for high-priced talking machines, with a much greater number of these inquiries convertible into orders than heretofore.

Harmonize Instrument With Home

The policy of the Chubb-Steinberg Co. is to harmonize the instrument with its surroundings in the home, and, with this in view, it has a mechanic-artist follow up the delivery to so adjust the machine to its surroundings that it will look and sound best. It is felt that this plan has stimulated the sale of more expensive uprights, which are about 30 per cent of the current trade.

Death of L. L. Harding

L. L. Harding, vice-president of the Vocalstyle Music Co., of this city, died recently at his home in Canon City, Col. Mr. Harding had not visited the city for several years, but for a long time he used to visit Cincinnati semi-annually to take care of his business. He is survived by a son and five daughters. He was seventy-two years old when death overtook him.

Local Men to Visit Brunswick Plant

J. E. Henderson, sales manager of the Cincinnati Brunswick store, and U. S. Carter, of Ashland, Ky., a dealer, with two of the city salesmen, Ralph Hooke and C. T. McKelvy, are now taking an auto trip to Michigan, and while in Muskegon they plan to go through the Brunswick factory there.

Mr. Hess, of the Hess Printing Co., W. Va., and J. D. Haggard, musical instrument dealer of Ravenna, Ky., stopped in to see Ben L. Brown, of the Sterling Roll & Record Co., of this city, while they were here recently. On August 27 B. L. Brown went to Louisville to attend the concert given there by Sara Martin, an exclusive negro Okeh artist, and Handley's Orchestra, who are making quite a hit on their trip.

BRUNSWICK FEATURED IN REVUE

Mammoth Brunswick Console Used in Jos. Howard's New Production—Important Factor in Revue's Success—Offering Booked Solid

A mammoth Brunswick console phonograph is being featured in a new vaudeville production launched at the Palace Theatre, New York, the week of August 27 by Joseph E. Howard, prominent composer and songwriter, and Ethelyn Clark. This revue, which is one of the most pretentious offerings shown on the vaudeville stage in recent years, is entitled "Etchings From Life," and judging from the reception it was accorded at the Palace the success of the production is assured. The hit achieved at the Palace is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that this theatre is the leading vaudeville house in America.

Jos. Howard's Unique Production

The Brunswick phonograph, which is designed after the Stratford model, is finished in gold and black, with the name Brunswick prominently featured, and a handsome black curtain setting off to advantage the entire display. When the curtain rises the music from an organ is the first "business" in the production and after a few strains Mr. Howard and Miss Clark emerge from the phonograph. The complete scene is entitled "Brunswick Town" and is without question the most important factor in the new production.

Harry A. Beach, Eastern sales manager of the Brunswick Co., co-operated with Mr. Howard in handling the details incidental to the introduction of the Brunswick phonograph in the new revue. To properly celebrate the week at the Palace Mr. Beach was the host at a formal dinner given to Mr. Howard and James J. Morton, one of the members of the revue, on Monday evening, August 27. Among the Brunswick executives who were present at the dinner were E. A. Straus, P. A. Ware, Chester I. Abelowitz and Don Leopold. At the close of the dinner the entire party adjourned to the Palace Theatre, where an enthusiastic reception was given Mr. Howard and his production. It is planned to feature the use of the Brunswick to excellent advantage, as the production is booked solid over the Keith circuit.

VICTOR RECORDS BY RACE ARTISTS

Special Release of Three Records by Colored Artists Is Particularly Timely

In view of the apparently growing interest in records by colored artists, termed by some manufacturers "race" records, a special release of three new records of that type by the Victor Co. is most timely. The first of the new records bears on one side "If Anybody Here Wants a Real Kind Mamma" and on the other side "Memphis, Tennessee," both sung by Ethel Ridley, accompanied by Bradford's Jazz Phools. The second record is of "Bleeding Hearted Blues" and "You Can't Do What My Last Man Did," two piano numbers played by James T. Johnson, and the third record is of "Midnight Blues," sung by Rosa Henderson, and "Cotton Belt Blues," sung by Lizzie Miles.

L. H. Junod & Co. American Agents for Swiss Motors, Tone Arms and Sound Boxes—Fall Sales Campaign Is Now Under Way

L. H. Junod & Co., 104 Fifth avenue, New York, are making plans for an energetic Fall campaign in behalf of Thorens motors, tone arms and sound boxes. These products, which are manufactured by the Herman Thorens organization at Ste. Croix, Switzerland, are well known in the talking machine industry, as they were introduced in this country many years ago. L. H. Junod & Co. have been appointed American representatives for the Thorens organization and complete sample lines are now on display at their warerooms.

Although a newcomer in the talking machine field, Mr. Junod is well known in general business circles. A number of years ago he became identified with the export industry, representing the firm of Steiger & Co., and later becoming American agent for Eisenhut & Co. and other prominent houses. Since 1909 Mr. Junod has represented the Swiss Government in consular affairs in New York, beginning as vice-consul, and in 1912 becoming Swiss consul here for New York and the New England States. As he is a native of Switzerland, Mr. Junod is thoroughly familiar with the economic and commercial conditions of his home country and has rendered invaluable service to the Swiss Government in many ways. He also has the unique record of having crossed the Atlantic Ocean on seventy voyages during his business career to date.

Incorporation papers have just been filed for the Hudson Music Co., Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y. A. Barchas, R. Lurie and P. The concern will deal in musical instruments.

B. D. COLLEN RETURNS FROM EUROPE

B. D. Colen, president of the Musical Products Distributing Co., New York, manufacturer of the "Standex" display stands and jobber of Vocalion records, returned recently from a trip to Europe. Mr. Colen visited several countries abroad, spending about three weeks in Berlin, making an investigation of commercial and economic conditions. Upon his return to New York he was glad to find that his company's activities during the Summer months were well ahead of all expectations and at the present time he is busy making plans for the Fall trade.

PAUL WHITEMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA RECEIVE UNPRECEDENTED WELCOME ON RETURN FROM EUROPE

Many Prominent in Talking Machine, Musical and Theatrical Circles Meet Leviathan at Quarantine—Musical Program and Airplane Play Part in Welcome—Guests at Banquet and Reception

Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra, exclusive Victor artists, arrived in New York a few weeks ago on the "Leviathan" after a triumphal season at the London Hippodrome. The "Leviathan" was met down at the Quarantine station about twenty miles below the city by a boatload of talking machine, musical and theatrical people. A band on the guest boat serenaded Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra all the way to the "Leviathan" dock, while overhead a big army bombing plane carried Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra from "George White's Scandals," who also serenaded the returning orchestra. A third band in life-saving suits played in the water at the side of the "Leviathan" at the Quarantine station and, upon arrival at the dock, a fourth band of serenaders appeared and played until Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra had disembarked.

By prearrangement among the representatives of the music industries in New York a reception was held on the "Leviathan" dock, in the course of which Paul Whiteman was crowned "King of Jazz." The crown for the coronation was made by the Buescher Band Instrument Co., Elkhart, Ind., to the specifications of the reception committee. The Buescher Band Instrument Co. made the set of instruments used by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra and the crown bore replicas of these various instruments, including, of course, the popular saxophone. The coronation address came over the long-distance telephone from Elkhart, being sent by F. A. Buescher. The golden crown is inscribed "To Paul Whiteman in appreciation of his art and artistry and his aid to self-determination in the music of the nation."

The foremost musical critics and writers have acclaimed Paul Whiteman as an important factor in America's musical life

An extract from Gilbert Seldes' article in the August issue of "The Dial," one of America's leading literary magazines

"Today I know of no second to Whiteman in the complete exploitation of jazz. Like Karl Muck and Jim Europe, Whiteman is a bit of a 'Kapellmeister'; his beat is regular or entirely absent. He never plays the music with his hand or designs the contour of a melody, or otherwise ACTS. I know that people miss these things; I would miss them gladly a thousand times for what Whiteman gives in return.  I mean that a sudden bellow or a groan is all very well, but the real thrill is in such a moment as the middle of Whiteman's performance of a 'Stairway to Paradise,' when the 'Beale Street Blues' occur. That is real enjoyment and the rest is nowhere.  He has arrived at one high point of jazz, the highest until new material in the music is provided for him."

This reception to Paul Whiteman, which constituted one of the greatest ovations that have been given a member of the music industry for many years, was in thorough accord with the tremendous success achieved by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra in London. During their stay abroad this organization won the approval and enthusiastic praise of the English public, music lovers and musical fraternities. The orchestra played to capacity audiences at every performance and this visit to England gave international fame to an orchestra that has become celebrated in America from coast to coast as the leading modern interpreters of music.

Mr. Rosenfield is now traveling through the South and Middle West, where he is appointing jobbers for the distribution of these records.

MISS LILLIAN GUTH BACK AT DESK

Miss Lillian Guth, secretary and credit manager for the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., returned to her office early in September following an auto trip to Maine and other New England territory. The trip was made for a much-needed vacation, following an unusually active Spring and Summer in Emerson business. The addition of several models to the Emerson line of machines has also added to the activities of all departments of the company.

W. C. FUHRI RETURNS FROM COAST TRIP

Okeh General Sales Manager Appointed Two New Okeh Jobbers—Opened New Branch in San Francisco—Found Conditions Satisfactory

W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, returned to his desk recently from a trip to the Pacific Coast, during which he called upon Okeh jobbers in various cities and made a number of important Okeh jobber appointments. At Dallas, Tex., the Texas Radio Sales Co., Inc., was appointed an Okeh jobber. This company has leased a large building at 2005 Main street and is making plans for an aggressive Fall campaign.

After leaving Dallas Mr. Fuhri visited Los Angeles, where the former General Phonograph Corp.'s branch is now conducted by the Okeh-Smith Co. as a jobber of Okeh records. C. N. Smith, head of this concern, is keenly enthusiastic regarding the future outlook for Okeh records in his territory.

W. E. Henry, formerly manager of the Los Angeles branch, accompanied Mr. Fuhri to San Francisco, and a new branch of the General Phonograph Corp. was opened at Third and Mission streets, San Francisco, under Mr. Henry's capable direction. From San Francisco Mr. Fuhri journeyed to Portland, Ore., establishing as an Okeh jobber in that city L. D. Heater, one of the best-known wholesale phonograph men on the Pacific Coast. Following the establishment of these new jobbers Mr. Fuhri called on several Okeh jobbers in the Middle West, stopping at Salt Lake City, Denver, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati and other trade centers. He reports business conditions as looking very favorable and that Okeh jobbers are in the midst of preparations for a banner Fall trade.

BROOKLYN MERCHANTS PLACING FALL ORDERS

End of Vacation Season Finds Retail and Wholesale Trade Busy With Plans for Fall Campaigns—Trade Expansions—Some Unusual Window Displays—Other Interesting News and Activities of Long Island Trade

Among talking machine jobbers and dealers in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory there is an increasing evidence of optimism regarding the outlook for Fall trade. Dealers are ordering stock to meet their demands in a liberal way, and with the Summer vacations almost over, and the sales staffs of the various jobbers once more at the helm, we can expect marked sales activity in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory around the middle of September

Opportunity for Portables Sales

That the season for portable talking machines does not end with the Summer months is noted by a prominent Brooklyn dealer. The Fall months, particularly those just preceding the Christmas season, have been found to be, among a certain class of prospects, a good time for the sale of portable machines. These prospects are the parents of children and young people who attend schools and colleges away from home. It is possible to sell the machine with the idea in mind that they make a very acceptable gift for the students, and can be easily transported back and forth at the close of the scholastic year.

Vorbach Bros. Help to Lower the Temperature

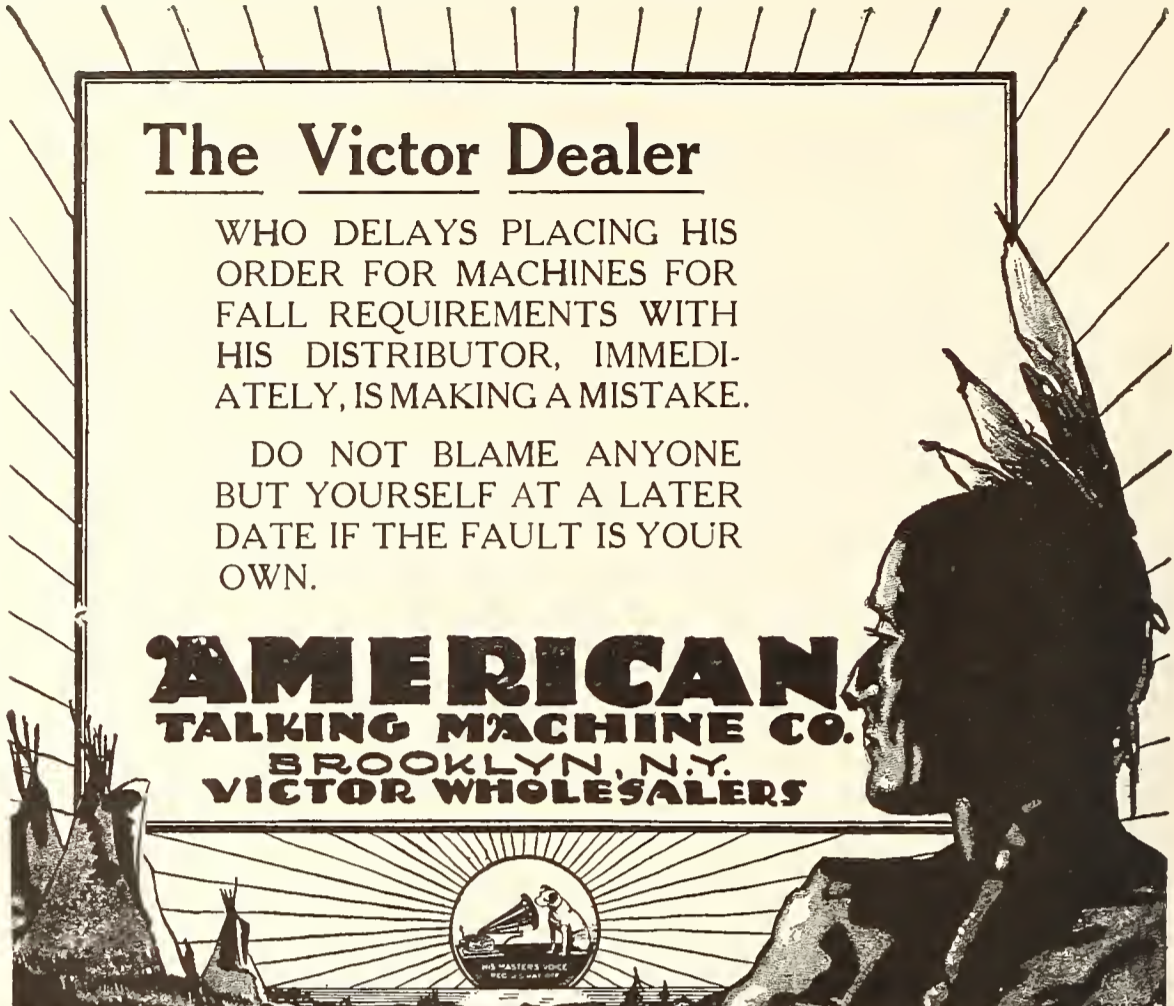

Vorbach Bros., 10927 Jamaica avenue, Jamaica, L. I., recently used a rather novel window display, considering the time of the year. It consisted of a Winter scene. A partition was built in the window representing a house. Snow covered the ground and the roof of the house. Several small evergreen trees appeared in the foreground. A caption was printed which invited the people to enter the store and be as cool as the scene depicted in the window. The interior of the store was arranged to represent the living-room of a house, several talking machines being displayed on the floor and also a piano and musical merchandise. This window display attracted unusual attention inasmuch as it appeared during the hottest months in Summer, namely, July and August. Mr. Vorbach attributes the sale of at least ten talking machines to this display.

Noting and Acting on an Opportunity

This concern is quick to take advantage of local happenings and did so during the recent automobile show held in the neighborhood. An automobile firm had displayed large signs inviting the public to come and view the 1924 models of cars. Accordingly Vorbach Bros. displayed a similar sign which read "Come and see our 1924 model," and had on display a number of talking machines of the latest models. It has always been the policy of this store to make its customers feel at home. Often a number of young people will come in and play pieces on the piano, and in some cases even dance. The good-will that is built up in this manner has led to a number of sales.

Victor Demand Grows Steadily

Victor business in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory shows a greatly increased activity at the present time. Richard H. Morris, secretary, treasurer and general manager of the American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, states that an exceptionally good Fall business is anticipated. Now that the consolidation of the G. T. Williams Co. with the American Talking Machine Co. has been completed, Victor dealers in the territory are receiving better service than ever before. R. H. Morris and G. T. Williams have spent considerable time recently in contact with the dealers in the territory, who are optimistic over Fall prospects.

Planning Fall Aeolian Drive

C. G. Davis, manager of the Aeolian Co., of Brooklyn, who recently returned from a two weeks' vacation, is one of the most popular members of the Brooklyn trade planning to carry on a very active Fall sales campaign. This concern, by the way, is one of the most prosperous in this territory.

Padula Occupying New Store

Vincent Padula, Sonora dealer of Corona, L. I., is now occupying his new store at 9 Forty-sixth street, Corona, L. I., under the name of the Corona Music Shop. The new quarters are advantageously located, and modern fixtures make this one of the most up-to-date establishments in this vicinity.

Simplicity of Window Displays Pays

A window display which has been found effective by a prominent Sonora dealer in Brooklyn is based on the idea that a heterogeneous mixture of stock displayed in a window is not always the best method of advertising. It is his belief that oftentimes the store is liable, through a desire to take advantage of all available window space, to place too many articles on display. He states that he finds if a number of talking machines, records, musical instruments and small goods are placed in the window, there is too much on view at one time and the different objects tend to detract attention from one another. Inasmuch as an adequate stock is carried on the floor itself, and the real reason for a window display is to get people to enter the store, if it can be accomplished by the display of only one or more articles, so much the better. When the customer comes into the analyzing the orders placed by Sonora dealers last Fall and pointing out that practically every dealer could have used at least 25 per cent more merchandise last year than the company was able to furnish. At this point order blanks were distributed among the dealers and the suggestion was offered that wherever possible the dealers anticipate their requirements for the next three months. This plan met with an enthusiastic response from the Sonora merchants present and orders were placed at the meeting which called for considerably more Sonora instruments than the sales totals presented by Mr. Keith in his address.

LONG ISLAND PHONO. CO. HOLDS FIRST DEALER MEETING

Constructive Addresses by Executives of Prominent Brooklyn Sonora Wholesaler and George E. Brightson, President of the Sonora Co., and Other Officials Feature Event

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sonora jobber for Brooklyn and Long Island, was the host at a convention of Sonora dealers in this territory held at the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn, N. Y., on August 30. The meeting was a decided success and, in all probability, similar gatherings will be held in the near future in order to give the company and its dealers an opportunity to exchange ideas.

success as an executive with several prominent organizations, gave a general review of business conditions, showing by facts and figures just why the coming Fall season should prove to be one of the most prosperous of recent years. Other speakers included Irwin Kurtz, president of the Talking Machine Men, Inc.; E. S. White, Frank Goodman, J. J. Schratweiser and Herbert G. Young.

Quite a number of the dealers took advantage of R. H. Keith's invitation to join an open forum and brief talks were made by the following Sonora retailers: C. S. Hammond, manager music department, Frederick Loeser & Co.; James Quinn, C. J. Iannell, manager of phonograph department, H. Batterman & Co.; S. M. Creedman, Leon Brick, Mrs. Albert Bersin and other well-known Long Island dealers.

Before luncheon was served the Sonora dealers, with their friends, were invited by R. H. Keith, president of the Long Island Phonograph Co., to inspect the new "Argyle" Sonora console which was recently added to the line. This instrument met with the enthusiastic approval of all the visitors and it was predicted that the "Argyle" would prove to be one of the leading sellers during the coming season.

In behalf of the Long Island Phonograph Co. C. W. Keith furnished the guests with pertinent information relative to sales figures and sales possibilities. He reviewed 1922 conditions,

In a brief address of welcome Mr. Keith told the dealers that the meeting was theirs and during the course of the luncheon an interesting musical program was presented, including several selections by Miss Alexander, a well-known Spanish soprano. Mr. Keith officiated as toastmaster and seated at the guests' table were the following executives of the Sonora Phonograph Co.: George E. Brightson, president; S. O. Martin, vice-president and general manager; O. S. Keyes, treasurer; L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager; Frank Goodman, assistant general sales manager, and E. D. Coots, dealer service manager. Other guests at the speakers' table were E. S. White, Sonora Co. of Philadelphia; Herbert G. Young, assistant sales manager, Sonora Sales Co. of New Jersey; C. W. Keith and J. J. Schratweiser, of the Long Island Phonograph Co.

Mr. Brightson favored the dealers and their friends with one of his usual interesting addresses, stating that the Sonora Phonograph Co. has sufficient orders on hand at the present time to keep the factories working to capacity until March. Mr. Martin, who has won considerable

SAN FRANCISCO

Business Gains Make Fall Prosperity Certain—Period Models Most Popular—Several Firms Move—Important Trade News of Month

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 1.—The calamity howlers will be disappointed again, for there will be no period of depression this Fall. Business conditions on the Coast have been improving steadily, and as far as the talking machine trade is concerned most of the dealers report a big increase in sales over last month. The reduction in price on Victor Red Seal records has stimulated record business on high-class records and the volume of sales on Columbia records is unprecedented. Edison, Vocalion and Brunswick records are growing steadily in popular demand out this way and the prospects are for a revived interest in Okeh records now that the General Phonograph Corp. has extended its Coast representation.

Popularity of Period Models

"The fine art models of talking machines," says Robert Bird, Pacific Coast sales manager of the wholesale-Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co., "have undoubtedly done much to raise the average price paid for talking machines these days. Even in the neighborhoods inhabited almost entirely by wage workers the demand for period styles is insistent."

This would seem to indicate that public taste is becoming elevated to a higher plane in the matter of machines as well as in record selections. Some claim the more fastidious popular taste is directly due to the influence of the luxurious interior furnishings exhibited in the motion pictures. Surely the increased appreciation of good music is largely due to the excellent programs of the movie orchestras.

Trade and Public Welcomes New Edison

The educational work of Edison Phonographs, Ltd., in promoting a critical valuation of fine art in music is appreciated by the trade, no matter what line is carried. The Edison re-creations represent the highest achievement and consequently it is no wonder Edison fans are multiplying in all quarters. The Coast trade certainly welcomes the recent splendid additions to the Edison record library and the fine line of Edison phonographs now available.

Work Starts on New Victor Plant

New Sherman, Clay Building Soon Ready

The new wholesale building of Sherman, Clay & Co., on Mission street, this city, is nearing completion and plans are being made to occupy it before October 15.

The Stockton store of Sherman, Clay & Co. was completely destroyed by fire a few weeks ago and the company is now occupying temporary quarters in Stockton. The company will rebuild bigger and better.

The big talking machine sale at Kohler & Chase is over and Jack Bray, manager of the talking-machine department, has fled the city to take a much-needed vacation. Accompanied by Mrs. Bray, he is exploring northern California.

General Phono. Corp. Opens Offices

The General Phonograph Corp., of New York, manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, has just opened a branch at 86 Third street, this city. The office is in charge of Bob Koltart, who was formerly with the Columbia Co. in San Francisco, and who later engaged in the talking machine business in Honolulu and Australasia. W. E. Henry, better known as "Pop" Henry, is the Pacific Coast manager of the General Phonograph Corp. He recently opened up the main office in Los Angeles. "Pop" is also an old Columbia representative and at one time was in charge of the San Francisco office.

Quarg Music Shop Is Expanding

William Quarg, manager of the Quarg Music Shop, as "The Phonograph Studio" is now renamed, is taking a business trip to Los Angeles. The shop was started a few years ago as an exclusive talking machine store, but gradually it has expanded until now several lines of musical merchandise are carried. A special show window this week is devoted to featuring Victor and Columbia records of the popular song, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home." A huge wedding cake is the piece de resistance of the display. The window was put in in co-operation with the Leo Feist Co., publisher of the selection in sheet music form.

To Move Brunswick Department

The Sterling Furniture Co., on Market street, is to come down to the main floor with its exclusive Brunswick department some time before the close of the year. The company has such faith in the line that it wishes to give it greater prominence in display and the sales department.

F. Travers on Business Trip

F. Travers, manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., of the Pacific Coast, is making a business trip through the Northwest during which he will visit a number of the Sonora dealers. O. N. Rothlin, manager of the Phonograph Shop, on Stockton street, dealer in Victor and Sonora merchandise, finds interest in period styles more keen than ever before.

New Brunswick Accounts

The Alexander Music House, of Salinas, and the Pierce Piano House, of Eureka, are two new California agencies for the Brunswick line.

The Brunswick Co. has completed making a series of Paul Ash jazz and semi-standard records which will shortly be placed on the market. The records were made in a room of the San Francisco branch of the Brunswick Co.

Miss Bessie Lee, of the talking machine department of the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., San Francisco, is on her vacation. Incidentally, it is her honeymoon, for she deserted the ranks of single blessedness on August 18.

W. A. CARROLL VISITS EMERSON CO.

Detroit Emerson Jobber Makes Encouraging Report on Business Conditions and Prospects

One of the recent visitors to the offices of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., was William A. Carroll, president of the Emerson Record Sales Co., Detroit, Mich., distributor of Emerson phonographs and records in Michigan and Ohio territory.

B. Abrams, president, and Arthur H. Cushman, sales manager of the Emerson Co., were quite gratified at Mr. Carroll's report of sales activities in the Middle West. Emerson sales have shown substantial increases and all indications point to a most active Fall season. Mr. Carroll, who has been an Emerson distributor for over seven years, stated that the reduction in the retail price of Emerson records has influenced many responsible dealers to stock the product.

TRADE REMAINS IN OPTIMISTIC MOOD DESPITE LABOR TROUBLES IN COAL MINING CENTERS

Growing Demand for Records Features Trade—Fall Prosperity Depends in Large Measure Upon Satisfactory Settlement of Coal Controversy—News and Activities of the Month

PHILADELPHIA, PA., September 7.—Sultry August days and pleasanter September weather in the Philadelphia district both brought with them many inquiries of a character suggesting orders to follow later on and, better still, a little more than the usual amount of mid-Summer business. The wholesale distributors of records are particularly enthusiastic over conditions as they exist and as indications portend they will be. The outstanding feature of the wholesale trade is the very large amount of business conditionally placed by retail distributors of records throughout the State and particularly in the hard-coal regions, which during August remained a storm center of agitation between mine owners and miners. These orders were placed subject to the results of the negotiations over wages and other matters at issue between employers and employes and, in the event of a successful termination of them, indicated by the late intervention of the Governor of the State, there is certainty of a splendid Fall business in this territory. The trade believes that the men will be successful in securing a wage increase, in which event their purchases of records will be large. Another element in this situation is that the radio is not so extensively in use in the mining district as elsewhere and, consequently, records form a larger element of popular entertainment.

City trade among the distributors of records, both in a wholesale and in a retail way, was seasonably draggy, but there is not a note of doubt as to its future brightness. Reduction in price of Victor Red Seals had the effect of considerably stimulating sales of these products. The trade understands that the new double-faced Victor Red Seals will be placed on the market September 23 and, in view of that fact, ordering of old records was held back to some extent. A very large increase in Victor record sales is anticipated when the new records are offered to the public. The market for talking machines was merely seasonably quiet. That, too, with the coming of the cooler months, in dealer opinion, largely will increase. As a matter of fact, August of this year was decidedly more satisfactory in the volume of sales than the corresponding month of a year ago.

Clever Display Emphasizes Service

A novelty in sales promotion and which resulted most satisfactorily was staged during the month at the Widener Store, 1109 Chestnut street. At the close of each week there were hung in the Chestnut street show windows, past which thousands of shoppers go, two immense reproductions of clock faces. On the left-hand face the hands indicated 8:30 o'clock and on the right-hand 1 o'clock. An explanatory note emphasized the point that orders received for machines as late as 8:30 o'clock on Friday would result in positive deliveries by 1 o'clock on Saturday, giving a seventeen-hour guaranteed service. The diagrams so vividly brought home this lesson that attention perforce was arrested and sales attributable solely to this effective display were made. In the opinion of Manager R. L. Perrett it was most effective. The displays were made only at the week-ends.

C. Bellak Defers Retirement

It was officially announced during the week that the negotiations which had for a long time been pending over the disposal by sale of the piano and talking machine business of Jas. Bellak's Sons, Twelfth and Chestnut streets, finally were off and that the business would continue under the present management. This firm enjoys the reputation of being the oldest in continuous business history in Philadelphia, the establishment dating back to 1854. It is the intention of the present owner, Charles Bellak, to retire and for a time it looked as if he would do so, but at the last minute the negotiations fell through and for the present at least he will continue to direct its affairs as he has been doing for several decades.

Organize the G. F. Fields Music Co.

G. F. Fields has announced in a general communication mailed to the trade that he has disposed of his interest in the United Music Stores, Philadelphia, and has formed the G. F. Fields Music Co., which will act as wholesaler and jobber of music rolls, musical merchandise and radio sets. Mr. Fields has also announced that he has secured the exclusive jobbing of International player rolls for Pennsylvania territory. A location has been secured at 269 South Eleventh street, Philadelphia.

Everybody's T. M. Co. in New Home

In the new warehouse recently acquired by Everybody's Talking Machine Co., Inc., 810 Arch street, there will be opened an addition to the mail order department for the purpose of enlarging that division to take care of increased business which the firm enjoys nationally. The new building, located at Ninth and Filbert streets, consisting of a two-story structure, provides the firm with 6,000 more square feet of space, part of which will be devoted to warehousing purposes and part to the mail order. Production of the Honest Quaker main springs is being speeded up in order to take care of the large bookings of orders now in hand and they are being shipped as fast as manufactured. With the new warehousing facilities it is planned to increase production. Samuel Fingrudt, in charge of the advertising department, is conducting a national advertising campaign and it is due partly to this development that business has been stimulated.

Vocalion Race Records Popular

Increased sales have followed in the Vocalion records distributed by the Lincoln Business Bureau, 1011 Race street, of which Bertram H. Matthews is proprietor, through the recording of that company of colored artists. The increased volume of business centers in stores, adjacent to or conducted where there is a large colored population. The August sales of this class of records have exceeded all expectations in Vocalion records.

Displays Boost Victor Record Sales

H. Royer Smith, who conducts a retail store at Tenth and Walnut streets, has had a record month in sales of Victor Red Seal records, which he featured in store and window displays. Miss Madeline, record buyer for the Smith store, left the first of September for a two weeks' vacation trip to New York, where she visited the various Victor dealers, getting ideas of business promotion through the sales and display methods employed.

Inaugurates Drive on Records

Owing to the large number of Red Seal records which will be stocked by the Talking Machine Co., 1025 Arch street, it has arranged for the renumbering and redistribution of these lines in the shelving accommodations at the headquarters. The latter part of August clerks were kept busy rearranging the stock racks for the purpose of classifying the serial numbers and to make way for the incoming orders of double-faced Victor Red Seal records which will be carried during the coming season. The firm is prepared for a prosperous season in the new double-faced Victor Red Seals and expects that these will outsell the old single-faced record because of the comparatively low price. The firm announces that many dealers are awaiting the exchange proposition which shortly is expected from the Victor headquarters and which will deal with the returnable numbers of Red Seals. It is holding off orders for the new Red Seal records, expecting to clean up the old stock before placing orders for the new requirements. The entire sales force of the company started out on September 4 in order to clean up the Fall business. E. M. Stern, president of the company, is on an extended automobile trip through Canada and is expected to return by the middle of September.

Victor Dealers Ordering Fall Stock

Orders for the Victor machines placed with H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., 1115 Chestnut street, cover September, October and November deliveries. Owing to the large number of orders on hand the firm is making every effort to speed up deliveries but feels that some dealers' wants will remain unsatisfied the next three months because of the demands on the output of the Victor factory, and the accumulated orders are far in advance of the number of machines to be had in stock. It is sending out announcement to the trade that concentration is being made on speeding up deliveries from the factory. Harry W. Weymann, president of the company, left the latter part of August for an auto trip along the St. Lawrence River and

Louis Buehn Travelers Out

The four members of the sales force of the Louis Buehn Co., 835 Arch street, who have been on vacation, returned to headquarters the latter part of August preparatory to starting out after Labor Day on the Fall trip, visiting the dealers in their territories. C. E. Sheppard will spend the month visiting northeast Pennsylvania. Frank R. Ransley will look after Philadelphia. Harry Pierce will visit the southern New Jersey and southern Pennsylvania districts, while Thomas Hower makes the rounds of central Pennsylvania. Louis Buehn, head of the firm, has returned to headquarters from an extensive automobile trip to New England. While in the New England States he visited several of the golf courses for the purpose of training up for the big game to be played at the Seaview Golf Club near Absecon, just outside of Atlantic City. Mr. Buehn will enter the contest for the Blackman cup, to be held on September 15 on the Seaview golf course, and is expected to make a good showing because of his prowess in the game.

Girard Co. Planning Tone-tests

Plans for a series of tone-tests to be given during the coming Fall season are now under way at the Girard Phonograph Co., 1819 North Tenth street, co-operating with the dealers who feature the Edison phonographs and records, for which the Girard Co. is the local distributor. The series of tests will be featured in the eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland districts, which come under the local territorial rights, where the dealers have arranged, in conjunction with the Girard and the Edison Co., to give concerts in halls, churches and other public gathering places, where the artists will personally appear and give concerts, while the vocal selections will be duplicated on the Edison. A. W. Rhinow, of the Girard Phonograph Co., is now perfecting plans with the dealers and the Edison Co., so that an early listing by the dealers will give ample opportunity for securing such talent as may be desired in the territory in the immediate future.

Concludes Sale of Old Columbias

During the month there were closed out at the Gimbel store the last of the special lot of Columbia cabinets of which this establishment had secured a very large proportion. Manager G. F. Wurtele, of the record department, enjoyed a brief vacation during the month and fully prepared himself for the big season ahead, which traditionally opens about September 15.

New Cheney Model Makes Debut

In the recently acquired home of the Cheney Sales Corp., in the Jefferson Building at 1015 Chestnut street, there is being featured the newest addition to the Cheney family of phonographs. It is listed as No. 119 and it was placed on the market the middle of August. It is a console constructed of mahogany, with an attractive and artistic grided door, and retails at $165. Customers who have viewed the new model in Room 808 in the Jefferson Building, to which the firm removed from its former quarters in the Story & Clark Co. Building at 1105 Chestnut street this Summer, have placed large orders for the new model and dealers find little effort necessary to dispose of them; consequently, generous repeat orders are being received. The new location of the Cheney Corp.

is used as display room and sales offices and is the executive headquarters of G. Dunbar Shewell, president of the corporation. The local offices are under the management of D. H. Fulmer. G. Dunbar Shewell, Jr., advertising manager and son of the president, spent August on a vacation trip to Maine.

Wanamaker Makes Drive on Brunswicks

The John Wanamaker Store conducted an extensive Brunswick newspaper campaign, employing the use of every paper in Philadelphia, with the exception of one, in advertising these machines and, as a result, found business for the Brunswick greatly increased. Under the direction of the Philadelphia Brunswick manager, O. F. Jester, there is being conducted from the local headquarters at 1002 Arch street a full-page newspaper advertising campaign, with the Sunday Ledger, one of the best-known and leading Quaker City news journals, as the medium for getting the Brunswick before the public. The object of this newspaper campaign is to co-operate with the dealers in preparation for the Fall and holiday business. The series will include not only the Brunswick machine advertisement, but the records as they are issued monthly. The newest console model, the Raleigh, was introduced to the local trade the last week in August and many advance orders were placed.

Wilde's Music Store, of Shenandoah, Pa., has just taken on the Brunswick line and will handle these instruments exclusively.

R. O. Lamforth, who for more than a decade has been connected with the talking machine business and recently manager of the talking machine department of The Fair, in Chicago, Ill., is now covering the coal regions of Pennsylvania as representative of the Brunswick Co.

Remodeling and Expanding

Remodeling and redecorating of the talking machine department of the Estey Piano Co., Seventeenth and Walnut streets, is now under way in preparation for the opening of the busy season and the warerooms will be in readiness by the middle of September. The department recently was enlarged, part of the main floor rear being devoted to the record department, while the entire second floor is given over to the display room for the Victor, Cheney and Sonora machines which the firm handles. The booths are being decorated in a scheme of gray and blue and this is followed out in the upholstering of the newly installed wicker furniture, and every comfort for the service to customers is to be had in the new department. With the confinement of machines to the second floor on a greatly enlarged space there was provided room for an enlarged stock of records and for the stocking of a greater number of machines. Four new salesmen will be added to the forces during the coming month.

Entering Radio Field

One of the newest departments which is being featured especially for service to the music dealers, and particularly for those carrying talking machines, is that of radio equipment. The new department now occupies six rooms on the mezzanine floor, where are carried a line of the Ware, Western Electric, Crosley, Radio Corp. of America and the firm's own specialty, the Estey Tea Table model radio sets and accessories. It is the purpose of the Estey Co. to make the radio department a wholesale center for talking machine or music stores which desire to carry sets and accessories, particularly the former, which will need no technically trained sales forces. The various sets are complete at varied prices. Four salesmen have been added to the forces to take care of the territory included in the Eastern States. They are J. A. Bailey, Jr., Gilbert Farrell, George Rieger, Jr., and J. W. Mackin. A special department of the radio store is the contract department, under the supervision of Gerald L. Quinby, who is in charge of the radio service and who will feature the installation of radio in buildings. The Estey Co. is now conducting negotiations for the acquisition of a well-known radio factory and, when completed, announcement will be made of the firm's purpose to manufacture its own parts and radio sets under the Estey brand. This factory, one of the best-known devoted to the manufacture of radio equipment, will provide the Estey Co. with a thoroughly equipped plant for its own use. Mrs. Terese M. Quinby, in charge of the talking machine department of the Estey Co., accompanied by her son, Gerald L. Quinby, manager of the radio department, made an extensive vacation trip through the Great Lakes and returning by way of Albany, a trip down the Hudson and New York, arrived at headquarters the last week of August.

Now Victor Wholesales Exclusively

With the disposition of its remaining four retail stores, The Talking Machine Co., of this city, has become a Victor wholesaler exclusively. The sales of the other stores were chronicled in The World from month to month, the last four having been recently disposed of. They were purchased by Morton's, Inc., a new corporation headed by Morton L. Stern who will conduct the business in the same high-grade manner which has been noticeable in the past.

Clever Exploitation of "Music Master" Horn

The idea that the Summer months must necessarily be quiet months for the radio industry is disproved by the experience of the General Radio Corp., of this city. Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the company, in a talk with The World, produced figures which showed that August has proved the biggest month in the history of the business. Mr. Eckhardt contributes this large volume of business almost entirely to the quality of the products, as the big Fall campaign which has been planned has not as yet been put into effect. An analysis of the business consummated during August shows that the greatest volume of business was done on the "Music Master" horn and "Geraco" radio parts. An augmented staff has been put into effect in the factory at Putnam and Mr. Eckhardt is working towards the goal of a quarter-of-a-million dollars' worth of business each month.

An effective stunt, showing the enterprise of Mr. Eckhardt and his associates, has been put into effect, featuring "Music Master" horns. The services of an aviator and his plane have been secured to fly over cities east of Pittsburgh, featuring this horn. The words "Music Master" appear on the entire spread of the wings, as well as the tonneau of the plane, and are distinguishable at a great altitude. While flying the aviator releases flocks of literature on the "Music Master" horn. This literature itself is printed on cardboard cut in the shape of an aeroplane. The opening gun in the big Fall consumer campaign will be found in a full-page ad in the Saturday Evening Post in the first issue of October.

The New York territory has shown wonderful progress during the past month, many substantial dealers having been added in this territory during that period.

Talking Machine Demand Is Active

Mr. Eckhardt also reports that the talking machine business has shown steady increase and looks forward to excellent Fall business in this line. In spite of the fact that the export business of this company has never been gone after, business with foreign countries has grown of its own accord. In the past month merchandise has been shipped to Chile, Mexico, Cuba, Argentine Republic, Australia, South Africa, Canada, Japan and England.

The remainder of the capital stock of the General Radio Corp. has been sold, making a total of $250,000 paid into the treasury of the company.

Following Mr. Eckhardt's well-defined plan of gathering about him associates of particular ability it is announced that Henry E. Marshall, for many years with the Columbia Graphophone Co., has joined the staff of the General Radio Corp. to take up special executive work.

Buehn's Red Seal Campaign

The reduced price on single-faced Red Seal Victor records was broadcasted to the buying public by Philadelphia retailers in newspapers and other means of publicity. Following the usual enterprise it has always manifested the Victor distributing firm of the Louis Buehn Co. immediately prepared window signs for its dealers announcing the reduction in price. This sign was very attractively prepared and dealers lost no time in making use of it.

Among recent visitors to the Buehn headquarters was Mrs. Ida M. Huber, head of the Victor department of the Donovan Co., Lancaster, Pa., who was on her way to the Victor Talking Machine Co.'s factory at Camden.

Girard Co. Engages Miss Morrissey

Miss Marie Morrissey, the popular concert contralto, has again been engaged by the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, for an extensive Tone-Test tour this Fall. Owing to popular demand, this will be the fifth successive season that Miss Morrissey will tour that territory.

According to a statement made by Mr. P. R. Hawley, general manager of the Philadelphia jobbing organization, Miss Morrissey's limited engagement requires that her itinerary be confined to those cities where the contralto has previously appeared and where her popularity among Edison enthusiasts warrants a repeated engagement.

Bookings up to the present time in the Philadelphia territory promise a number that will exceed those of previous seasons, and there is every likelihood that three separate tours shall be required to fill the demands of dealers.

Extensive Fall Campaign Planned

The Guarantee Talking Machine Supply Co. reports that Fall business is already being received at its headquarters in this city. The need of the new quarters recently acquired is already being felt and extensive plans for a Fall campaign are under way. Within a short period this company will box all its springs under the trade name of "Guarantee."

A. L. Stott Covering Maryland and Delaware

Edison dealers in Maryland and Delaware have greeted enthusiastically the announcement made by the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, that Albert L. Stott, field representative, will spend most of his time in the development of the Edison business in that section. Since he joined the field staff of the Philadelphia distributors last Fall, Mr. Stott has spent considerable time in these two States and enjoys a wide acquaintance with the Edison trade. Through his associations he has gained an intimate knowledge of the possibilities afforded the Edison line in the southern portion of the Philadelphia territory, and it is believed generally that his new appointment is but a forerunner to a largely increased volume of Edison business in the locality he will cover.

500 Accounts Opened Since May

The mythical Summer dullness did not manifest itself near the headquarters of Everybody's Talking Machine Co. S. L. Fingrudt, secretary of the company, reports that over 500 new accounts have been opened since May 1. New headquarters, opened the early part of the year and additional storage space nearby, have been secured to meet demands. An aggressive Fall sales campaign has been planned and, in anticipation, work has already commenced on the enlargement of office space. A new catalog, which bids fair to not only surpass all others, but to take first place among repair part literature, is now in the course of preparation.

Arthur W. Merrihew's Big Achievement

The proverbial "feather in the cap" this time goes to Arthur W. Merrihew, according to a report covering the first half of the year just disclosed by the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor of this city.

Mr. Merrihew holds the distinction of having opened the largest number of new Edison dealerships in the Philadelphia territory since the inauguration in January, by the distributor, of the intensive publicity campaign for new dealers.

Although he has devoted considerable time to development work among Edison dealers already established, which is a part of the duties ascribed to every member of the Philadelphia staff, Mr. Merrihew set out at the beginning of the campaign not only to exceed his quota but with the expressed intention of outdistancing the remainder of the staff, and the results thus far indicate that the end of the year will find him still at the head of the list.

OMAHA

Business Holds Its Own—Water Shortage Causes Unemployment and Hurts Business—The News

OMAHA, NEB., September 6.—In spite of a tendency on the part of the many talking machine dealers during the late Spring to look forward to a dull season during the months of July and August, they have been agreeably surprised by the fact that trade has held its own, and in some instances has surpassed the volume of business done during preceding months. A slight falling off was noticeable in the city of Omaha during the last two weeks of August, although this did not affect the outlying territory controlled by Omaha wholesalers. Dealers attribute the diminution in the retail business to the fact that Omaha was in the clutches of a water famine for a period of ten days. The Missouri River, always erratic in its course, washed away one of its banks at a point where the deposit was swept into the city water supply. The sediment basins and the filtration plant were unable to take care of this extra burden, and the result was that the city water contained nearly a 25 per cent content of mud, rendering it entirely unfit for use and necessitating the packing plants and many other large business interests in the city to close down. Unemployment is always reflected in curtailing the purchase of other than necessities, and, as a consequence, talking machines were out of the running for a time.

Business has been very satisfactory during the greater part of the Summer, according to Schultz Bros., Edison jobbers, and, judging by the way orders are coming in, the Fall trade bids fair to break the record.

The Ed. Patton Co. is now the only exclusive Victor dealer in Omaha. This company has just taken over the entire retail Victor business of the Mickel Music House as well as its line of small musical instruments. The Conn saxophone, formerly featured by the Mickel Music House, is now carried by the Patton Co. A. O. Topping, manager of the phonograph department of the Ed. Patton Co., has recently returned from a vacation and business trip to St. Louis, St. Joe and Kansas City. He reports himself well pleased with prospects for a splendid Fall and Winter trade.

J. H. Nicklensen, who has charge of the record department of the Patton Co., states that it is prepared to push its campaign of educational records. He expects the new double Red Seal Victor records to be very popular due to their combination of merit and economy.

The Cheney Co., which has a branch office in Omaha, reports a good season. The Salisbury model has proved a good seller throughout the territory, and dealers are sending in orders that augur well for the September trade.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. is busy preparing for a great trade this Fall. R. H. Pribyl, district manager, is most enthusiastic in his report, and declares himself highly pleased with the outlook.

William H. Schmoller, senior partner of the Schmoller & Mueller Music Co., who makes an annual visit to his birthplace in Eisenach, province of Thuringen, Germany, writes that reports of distress in Germany are not exaggerated.

S. S. Oakford, president of the Oakford Music Co., Sonora dealer, has returned from a three weeks' trip to the West Coast, having visited San Francisco, Los Angeles and Long Beach. Mr. Oakford visited relatives and transacted business on his trip.

The "Playon" record repeater, made by the continuous Phonograph Player, Inc., of Philadelphia, has been featured during the Summer months at Atlantic City, where it attracted much attention.

EXHIBIT AT KUTZTOWN FAIR

I. E. Albright & Son, of Allentown, Get Excellent Results From Annual Exhibit

ALLENTOWN, PA., September 5.—I. E. Albright & Son, music dealers, of 129 North Eleventh street, this city, following their custom for the past fifteen years, had an elaborate display of pianos and talking machines at the Kutztown Fair held recently in Kutztown, Pa. The display, which was in charge of Claude T. S. Albright, consisted of Becker Bros. pianos and player-pianos, Columbia talking machines and records, etc. Considerable business resulted.

HACKETT TO SING FOR KING ALFONSO

The New York Tribune carried a cable announcement recently to the effect that Charles Hackett, famous American tenor and exclusive Columbia artist, would sing during the present San Sebastian opera season before King Alfonso of Spain by special command. American Ambassador Moore is expected to introduce Mr. Hackett at a special concert to be devoted to songs of American composers. Mr. Hackett will tour with the Chicago Opera Co. after the San Sebastian season.

ODEON RECORDS AVAILABLE

The foreign language division of the General Phonograph Corp. has suggested to its dealers that they take advantage of the concert tour of Erno Kiraly, Hungarian artist, who arrived recently in this country. A. H. Thallmayer, manager of the company's foreign record department, states that Mr. Kiraly's records under the Odeon, Beka and Favorite labels, which he made in Europe, are available to the General Phonograph Corp.'s dealers through the company's contract with the Carl Lindstrom organization in Berlin.

BUFFALO

Retailers and Wholesalers Preparing for Busy Fall and Winter Seasons—Activities of the Trade

BUFFALO, N. Y., September 7.—Preparations are being made by dealers in talking machines in the Buffalo and western New York districts for a record-breaking Fall trade. At present dealers throughout this district are enjoying a business of unequalled proportions for this season and indications point toward an exceptional Winter trade.

C. E. Seigesmund, of Curtis N. Andrews, Victor wholesaler, says the demand for higher-priced Victrolas is prevailing in this district. Dealers are receiving favorable results with the new Victor console models 400 and 405. Present indications are that it will be difficult to meet the holiday demand that is certain to come. Instruments retailing from $100 to $150 are in a greater demand than can be supplied.

The decrease in price on Red Seal records has been a big boon to the record departments of dealers in Buffalo, who are eagerly awaiting release of the double-faced Red Seal records.

F. C. Clare, manager of the Iroquois Sales Corp., says the company is planning for the busiest Fall it has ever had. Advance orders from dealers throughout the western New York section for Strand talking machines for September and October deliveries are indications of a tremendous trade. G. R. Kuehner has returned from a trip to Rochester and other western New York towns, where he has arranged with dealers for their Fall and early Winter stock of Strand machines and Okeh records.

Harold A. Scrimshaw has been placed in the Eastern section by the Iroquois Sales Corp. and has proved himself very capable. W. Howard Webb, 150 Genesee street, is the only dealer

A Victor Year

Victor weekly releases, coupled with the double facing of Victor Red Seal records, means unlimited sales possibilities for the aggressive Victor retailer. The new

Victrolas 400, 405 and 410 are the finest instruments ever presented to the trade, and will be important factors in making 1923 "A VICTOR YEAR."

Victor products will be at a premium this Fall. There is going to be an unprecedented demand for Victrolas and Victor records, and orders placed now will enable you to meet this demand.

We are at your service

with a display at the Erie County Fair this year. He has a very attractive exhibit of Okeh records and Strand instruments.

The Hoffman Piano Co., carrying the Brunswick and Sonora talking machines, is conducting a sale preparatory to installing its new Fall stock. Albert Stettenbaus and Albert Diddion have been added to the sales force of this company. Both are widely experienced.

tributor, with headquarters in this city, is experiencing a most satisfactory demand from the many dealers whom it serves, indicating that retailers are enjoying a state of prosperity. Many orders for Fall and holiday stock are being placed, the trade evidently being determined not to be caught short when the expected Fall trade boom is actually here.

The $75,000 addition to the Broadway store of the Erion Piano Co. will make this one of the finest and largest stores of its kind in the city. The first floor of the three-story addition will be devoted to the display of talking machines, records and pianos, while the upper floors will be used for storage and repair departments. The main store has an excellent location on William street.

Joe Armbruster and His Society Band of Buffalo have returned from New York, where they made several Okeh records for the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records. The company is very much pleased with Armbruster's records of "Ritzi Mitzi" and "Japanese Sunset."

William R. Stagg has opened a distributing office in Buffalo for the Cheney talking machine in the Calumet Building, West Chippewa street. He will cover the western New York district for the Cheney instrument.

Bennie Krueger and his Brunswick recording dance orchestra recently played a return engagement at the Clifton House in Niagara Falls, Ont., where they received an enthusiastic reception from local music lovers.

F. F. Barber has been made manager of the J. N. Adam Co. Music Store, following the resignation of F. C. Culp, who has gone to Canada with the hope of regaining his health. Mr. Culp was presented with a silver loving cup by employes of the store as an indication of the esteem in which he is held.

George F. Schafer, formerly located at 20 Main street, has opened his new music store at 52 Main street, Batavia. It is equipped with every modern convenience. The interior finish of gold and white makes a beautiful setting for his fine stock of talking machines, records and pianos and the modern fixtures installed makes this one of the most efficient local stores.

E. J. Ryan, dealer in furniture and musical instruments in Seneca Falls, N. Y., has bought the block and business of Fred Teller at 100 Falls street and will consolidate his business with that of Mr. Teller's. Plans have been made for extensive improvements in the store.

W. L. Forohley, of Hamburg, who lost his stock of talking machines in the $20,000 fire there, has taken temporary quarters with John B. Gueting.

Victor Smotch, talking machine dealer at 169 Niagara street, recently retired from business.

Henry Poucher, of Fairport, N. Y., dealer in musical instruments and furniture, died recently. He was ninety-two years old and remained active in his business until a few months before his death. He had many friends in the trade.

At a recent meeting called by the Buffalo Better Business Commission with representatives of the Buffalo daily press advertising of two local music dealers was discussed. It was charged by the Better Business Commission that these dealers used misleading advertising to make sales. Chief among the charges was the misuse of the word "Free," used in advertising talking machines. These dealers had been warned by the Better Business Commission to change their policy of advertising, it is claimed, but continued their old methods. The Buffalo newspapers have been asked to refuse copy from these houses until they change their advertising policy.

COLUMBIA DEALER USES TIMELY "AD"

Selden Drug Co., Lewistown, Mont., Represented in Co-operative Ad Campaign

LEWISTOWN, MONT., September 5.—On August 24 the second page of the Lewistown-Denver News carried a full-page spread headed "Yes, We Have No Bananas, But—" and after the word "but" came the advertisements of eleven different merchants, telling of the many things that had to sell as substitutes for the much-lamented bananas. Only one phonograph merchant, the Selden Drug Co., Columbia dealer, was represented. His message stated that the public demand for the popular banana song had sold out the first shipment of Columbia records, but that other new hits were in stock, including three popular selections that were listed. The famous Columbia trade-mark was used to advantage by the Selden Drug Co. and the advertising produced splendid results.

STARTS DRIVE ON FOREIGN RECORDS

HERRIN, ILL., September 6.—Miss Fleata Trout, of the Victrola department of Cline's Drug Store, this city, is making a special drive for foreign business in her locality. One large booth has been set aside exclusively for her foreign customers. In this booth are located the files for the foreign records and the walls are covered with foreign hangers, photographs of foreign patriots and foreign scenes. Miss Trout has had exceptional success with the foreign population of this mining district.

Walter Scanlan, a popular Irish tenor and Edison artist, is touring the country this year with a new Irish play, "The Blarney Stone."

"TALKER" RECORD AS EVIDENCE

Used by German Concern in a Suit Involving a Business Misunderstanding

A German court now faces the problem of deciding on the legal status of a talking machine record of a business conversation, recent dispatches from Berlin say. The case is of importance because of the growing use in Berlin of phonographs to record telephone messages.

The case hinges on a telephone conversation which the plaintiff contends constituted a contract for the delivery of a quantity of gasoline. The defendant in the case misunderstood and did not deliver the gasoline. The representative of the firm had switched on a recording apparatus when giving the order and the phonographic cylinder was filed.

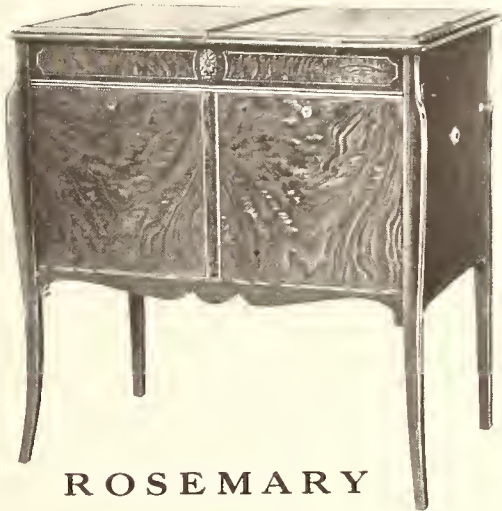

When the case came before a Berlin civil court the wax record of the conversation was placed on a talking machine in the courtroom and the verbal contract was reproduced. The case was referred to a higher court.

PAUL BOLONGNESE WITH EMERSON CO.

Made Manager of Foreign Record Department —Prepared New Foreign Record List

Paul Bolongnese has rejoined the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., as manager of its foreign record department. Since his return to that organization he has prepared a new list of Italian, Jewish and Polish records. These latter selections will cover a wide range of titles and as the demand for such works is quite active the release of the new list is looked forward to by retailers who specialize in foreign selections. Mr. Bolongnese has had wide experience in foreign recordings. He is acquainted with the majority of foreign record artists and in other ways keeps in touch with the particular demand and vogue in foreign selections.

A. H. Mayers, prominent member of the New York talking machine fraternity, who has been spending the Summer abroad, expects to sail for home on September 22.

Exhibitors at State Fair—Lucker Keeps Open House—Distributors Prepared for Active Fall Trade—The News of the Month

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL, MINN., September 7. —The throngs attending the great Minnesota State Fair are looked to to furnish innumerable good talking machine prospects to the firms which are exhibiting their wares at this perennial show. Fair Week (September 3 to 8) has also brought its quota of out-of-town customers to firms not represented at the Fair. Booths are being maintained by W. J. Dyer & Bro., Victor jobbers; Laurence H. Lucker Co., Edison distributor; Edward G. Hoch Co., Cheney & Stone Piano Co., Vocalion Red records.

The Edison people, occupying a double booth in the Liberal Arts Building at the entrance to the grandstand, have inaugurated various plans of increasing interest in the display, one of which will net someone a handsome Edison console phonograph retailing at $175.

A Cheney Queen Anne model will also be given away to a lucky visitor at the booth of the Edward G. Hoch Co. The Cheney booth is made doubly interesting by an exhibit of the various stages in the process of making a Cheney machine, a stunning console representing the finished product.

Foreign Record Demand Grows

The Northwest, with its large proportion of foreign-born population, is buying a large amount of foreign records. By means of a cleverly contrived campaign W. J. Dyer & Bro., Victor jobbers, are experiencing great activity in records in foreign languages.

George A. Mairs, manager of the Victrola department, stated that records are going big and that the demand is unprecedented for the month and for this year. A few of his largest orders are bound for the Pacific Coast.

"I believe the record business throughout the country is picking up," Mr. Mairs declared. "We are also receiving good orders for machines." The firm's campaign on portables No. 50, which proved so successful, is even yet bearing fruit, although Fall is setting in.

The Consolidated Music Co. is also doing a large and successful foreign record business.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra has obtained Renee Chemet, violinist and Victor artist, as soloist in St. Paul and Minneapolis engagements later in the season, which undoubtedly will have a bearing on the sale of this violinist's records throughout this territory.

New Victor Records Stimulate Sales

G. A. Zoller, manager of the Golden Rule phonograph department, says that his business is fairly brisk, largely due to the introduction of the double-face Red Seal records, which is rapidly clearing out his stock of single-face numbers. Miss Edith Clark has returned from Chicago, where she continued her study of voice training, and is back as saleswoman in the Golden Rule's Victrola section.

Brunswick Activities

Eugene F. O'Neill, veteran talking machine man with Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., says: "Every report indicates that the Northwest is convalescing. While there are some sections where the returns will be light, due to low grain prices and poor yields, yet the situation is more encouraging than last year. Collections are improving and merchants are now ordering for their Fall requirements. As a section, however, the Northwest is very 'spotty.' Among recent visitors at the Brunswick office have been William Hardt, of Winona; Syd Sather, of Grand Rapids; R. E. Hamlin, of Moose Lake, and W. H. Schemley, of Durand, Wis.

The new full-page advertising campaign of the Brunswick made its initial appearance in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune August 26, and has been favorably commented upon by the trade. A car of the new Brunswick "Raleighs," retailing at $200, is in transit and will be sent out on back orders when received.

Harry L. Davis, southern Minnesota and South Dakota Brunswick traveler, is back from an extensive tour of his territory. He reports conditions fair, with South Dakota badly "spotted" in sections.

Sam Hilde, of the Brunswick Co., who travels in Montana territory, reports that there are encouraging prospects, but North Dakota merchants, he says, are not optimistic. Fred Nelson, of the Brunswick Co., has just returned from his vacation, motoring in Wisconsin, and is tuning up his Elcar for a trip among the northern Minnesota dealers.

Radio and phonograph combined are displayed in the combination radio and Brunswick which Boutell Bros., furniture dealers, are displaying.

Laurence H. Lucker Co. Keeps Open House

The Laurence H. Lucker Co., Edison distributor, is doing a nice business, according to J. Unger, who says the company is holding open house all week for State Fair visitors, and to date the booth in which the Edison line is very attractively displayed has been one of the most popular stopping places at the Fair.

Sonora Consoles Popular

One-third above last year's figures is the expectation of the Sonora jobbers, Doerr-Andrews & Doerr, according to John E. Date, who remarked: "Business in the last few weeks has made a phenomenal return. Reports from South Dakota show that dealers there are looking for a good Fall business. Personally, we have larger stocks than we have had at any time in our history. We will be able to furnish all dealers with console models." Mr. Date finds that these models constitute 90 per cent of the demand, which is in line with a prophecy he made a long time back.

Sonora Ad Drive to Start Soon

Sonora advertising bearing the slogan, "Look below the surface on quality merchandise," supplied by the home office advertising department, will start in the Twin City and Duluth press September 16, the campaign continuing throughout the remainder of the year.

Harry J. O'Connor, sales manager for the Sonora Co., accompanied by Mr. Date, has been spending a fortnight visiting the territory. He is the guest of Mr. Date at his Summer home at Tonka Bay, Lake Minnetonka. Mrs. Mary Leonard, of the Leonard Piano Co., of St. Paul, made a visit to the Date Summer home recently.

Visitors Order Fall Stock

Visitors at the Doerr-Andrews-Doerr offices include: A. L. Miles, of the Miles Music Co., Sonora dealer in Duluth, and his son, Donald, manager of the phonograph department; E. D. Wetzel, Little Falls; H. Hall, of the Hall Music Co., Brainerd, and John B. Christeau, of Owatonna, one of the largest and most progressive phonograph dealers in southern Minnesota, all of whom placed substantial Fall orders.

Odeon Records Sells Quickly

Mrs. B. C. Eggar, manager of the Consolidated Music Co., says: "Business is much better, although sales in North and South Dakota are going slowly, the best territory being the iron range towns in northern Minnesota. At the Consolidated Co. the foreign records are exceptionally popular, especially the line of instrumental Odeon records. The demand, she says, seems to be more or less even among the various nationalities, some territories being partial to the Scandanavian, German or French, while others favor the Polish, Russian, etc." E. A. Fearn, president of the Consolidated Co. in Chicago, arrived Tuesday morning to visit the Minneapolis branch.

Miss Edna Baer Goes West

Miss Edna Baer, who has been in charge of the record ordering at the Cable Piano Co. for some years, left late last month for San Diego to reside. She has been succeeded by Miss Dos.

Interesting News Gleanings

John Lang, manager of the Dayton Co.'s phonograph department, and Neil Schumacher, phonograph manager of the Cable Company, have returned from vacation.

John J. Roden, of Dayton's, surprised his friends among the phonograph trade by his recent marriage to Miss Lucille Conley.

Big Victor Demand Presages Shortage

"Business is starting with a bang," according to Charles K. Bennett, manager of George C. Beckwith Co., Victor jobber. "Our men on the road have sent in most encouraging orders. We expect to be up against a machine shortage. The double-facing of Red Seal records has acted as a tremendous stimulus to sales and our dealers have started replenishing their stocks with the new records."

Mr. Bennett is back at his desk after a fortnight in the East, visiting at Chicago, Philadel-

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Jeronimus, of Duluth, exclusive Victor dealers, spent August 27 at the Beckwith offices and Monday evening were entertained at dinner at the Nankin by Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, in company with Miss Aileen Stanley, "The Phonograph Girl," appearing at the State Theatre, and her manager, after which the Jeronimuses and Bennetts attended the theatre to hear Miss Stanley.

Keep Your Wife at Home With Music

The phonograph has a new function if an incident reported by Mrs. Flygen, in charge of the Central Furniture Co.'s Victrola department, is a criterion. A much-worried man approached Mrs. Flygen, explaining that his wife had deserted him and their two small children. Knowing her whereabouts, he thought to soften her heart and speed her return by sending her some appropriate records. Mrs. Flygen finally helped him select "the Twenty-third Psalm," "Psalm of Life" and one of Rodeheaver's revival hymns. At his next appearance the customer was radiant, reporting that his wife had played each piece three times and decided to return home.

Do Record Machine Business

Whitney-McGregor's phonograph department, under the management of Mr. Rosenstein, had a red-letter day recently when the department did four times as much business as any previous day this year. By featuring a low-price machine many prospects were entertained, most of whom bought a more expensive instrument than the advertised product. As a consequence, Mr. Rosenstein disposed of his old-style Victrolas.

Harry Wunderlich, of the Wunderlich Music Co., Kansas City, Mo., has been enjoying a Minnesota Summer at his new big log cabin at Lake Washburn, in the vicinity of Outing, Minn.

Cheney Shortage Probable

"Our business for Fall is assured," Edward G. Hoch, head of the Edward G. Hoch Co., Cheney distributor, said, "and it will be ahead of last year. We are advised by our central office that some models are sold out until February of next year." The Cheney line has just been taken on by the Emporium department store in St. Paul. The first ones are now on display there. Foster & Waldo, who handle the Cheney in Minneapolis, say they have a list of Cheney customers who are so well satisfied that they bring in their friends as prospective purchasers.

The trade, says Mr. Hoch, is most enthusiastic about the Cheney sales manual, recently issued, probably the first of its kind in the talking machine trade. This book, in the form of a questionnaire, is an excellent aid to selling.

Establishes Precedents in the Phonograph Field

For your own information note how Brunswick has blazed the trail

It was Theodore Roosevelt who said: "We do not go by precedents. We make them."

This saying might be applied to the Brunswick policies. From the start Brunswick phonographs and records have established precedents, have blazed new trails in the reproduction of music.

Here are four Brunswick revolutions in the history of talking machines that upset all precedent and created new possibilities in the field. These precedents have helped Brunswick dealers to gain a commanding position in the musical field.

All Records Playing

Brunswick Precedent No. 1—The advent of Brunswick introduced the perfected reproducer that plays all makes of records. The Brunswick reproducer opened to owners of Brunswick phonographs all the music of the world on records. It was a sensational success from the start.

Consoles

Brunswick Precedent No. 2—The first console models, with flat and split tops, with balanced lids, were made by Brunswick. Brunswick console models are the most popular made—and much imitated.

Double-faced Operatic Records

Brunswick Precedent No. 3—Before Brunswick began marketing its double-faced Gold Label operatic and classic records great artist records were generally single-faced. The Brunswick supremacy in interpreting the art of great artists, combined with two records on one disc, established these Gold Label records as the greatest value and the best phonograph music to be had.

Continuous Record Service

Brunswick Precedent No. 4—Until Brunswick blazed new trails records were released once a month, with an occasional "special" release. Brunswick instituted the revolutionary policy of "Always Something New on Brunswick Records," keeping new records flowing from the factory to the dealer in a ceaseless stream, enabling dealers to provide new Brunswick records, the latest and best music, day by day.

All For Greater Profits

The Brunswick method of merchandising records, with its quick turn-over, together with a carefully limited catalog, and consequent low inventory, has meant ever mounting profits for Brunswick dealers. They no longer have to keep a heavy stock of slow moving records to meet the possible demand, and quick selling records have meant quicker and greater profits.

Brunswick's first consideration is the success of its dealers. The progressive policies enumerated above, the careful guarding of dealers' interests through our own branch offices and distributors working in close harmony with our methods, have given Brunswick dealers significant advantages, and the prestige of an unexcelled popular prestige.

Prestige, profit and protection are the cardinal points of Brunswick service.

The End of a Costly, "Mussy" Job

REPLACING a broken phonograph spring in the customer's basement or backyard is about "zero" in employment from the repair man's viewpoint.

The savage way the caged derelict springs out the instant the barrel is opened, spattering dirty oil over the premises seems to shout its revenge for a long imprisonment at hard labor.

And the labor of coiling a new spring into the old grimey casing is far from child's play.

Both these disagreeable costly, time-eating, profitless, jobs are hereby abolished for users of

"United" Motors

For we have instituted a new system, by which we supply our trade with complete spring assemblies—spring, barrel, shaft and gear—ready to slip into the place of the old barrel.

Read the short paragraphs under the cuts—they tell the whole simple story.

You need never open a barrel. We do that for you at the factory. Just send us from time to time, your accumulation of old barrels; we put new springs into them and return them to you, charging only a few cents a piece to cover our actual material and labor cost.

You can make the replacement for your customers at a lower charge, because the labor involved is a matter of minutes instead of hours—and yet pile up a nice yearly profit, instead of a deficit for your service department.

Cast Iron Motor-Housing "United" motors are the only ones in which the entire mechanism is completely housed in, and protected by, a dust-proof, oil-tight cast iron housing. This is a permanent safeguard against injury to motor during the assembly, shipment, demonstration, delivery and operation of the instrument. It multiplies the life of the motor and enhances the reputation of every United-equip phonograph.

Automatic Wick-oiling Exclusive with us. An oiled pad in the bottom of the sealed cast-iron housing feeds lubricant, by capillarity through cotton wicks, to the moving parts—automatically, continuously, uniformly, and for years without re-oiling. A phonograph motor that must be oiled by Mrs. Brown or daughter Bess—just isn't oiled! And when Mr. Brown gets on the job, he floods it by main strength. None of this with a "United" motor.

Brisk Record Business Features Trade—Winning Edison Dealers on Eastern Trip—Month's Changes and Activities in the Trade

DES MOINES, IA., September 7.—August business closed and September business opened as good or a little better than any of the dealers or distributors expected for this time of the year. Most distributors report that business for this Summer has been somewhat better than for several years past and attribute this to the fact that business in general is coming back to a state of prosperity.

Des Moines dealers are reporting a record business that is unusually good. Much of this increase, it is pointed out, is due to the discontinuance of the "records on approval" which went into effect August 1. People no longer take out records, tire of them and return them at the expense of the dealer. Des Moines dealers are unanimous in their approval of the "cash and carry" plan. Other plans for the betterment of the talking machine business in Des Moines are said to be under consideration by the Des Moines Dealers' Association.

Mickel Bros., Victor distributors, have planned their advertising helps for dealers in conducting "Victrola Clubs." Under the direction of H. B. Sixsmith, sales manager, a campaign of advertising displays, letters, copy, blotters, tags, etc., has been prepared for the dealers at nominal cost. Dealers who have tried the "Victrola Club" plan have found it to be very successful, and many are planning to use it again this Fall and Winter to stimulate business. According to Mr. Sixsmith, dealers have shown a tendency this year to place their orders for Fall and Winter goods very early.

George E. Mickel, president of Mickel Bros., visited Des Moines September 1 on business, returning the following week to his home in Omaha.

Harger Blish, of Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers, left August 20 with the winning dealers of the contest promoted by the company on a trip through the East. The winning dealers were: F. N. Cooper, Woodward, Iowa; Harry Shraycr, Bethany, Mo.; A. L. Hegglund, Pierre, S. D.; Paule Jewelry Co., Burlington, Ia.; and the Odell Jewelry Co., Keokuk, Iowa. The latter dealer was the winner of the "lucky" trip. According to H. H. Blish, the contest was very successful in stimulating Summer business for dealers. Sales during the period of the contest were 100 per cent better than during any previous year's contest.

A. L. Hegglund, the winning Edison dealer from Pierre, S. D., made a spurt in his sales efforts in the last twenty-four hours before the close of the contest and turned in orders amounting to over $3,000. Considering the fact that Hegglund is a mail carrier in Pierre and is able to work at sales only in evenings and spare time, the record is remarkable. The Paule Jewelry Co. rated the highest in sales and points of any firm entering the contest.

Harger & Blish report that orders for Fall and Winter stocks are coming in earlier than usual this year. Dealers' stocks are very low, according to Mr. Blish, but most dealers are buying early and showing very good judgment in their buying.

During Iowa State Fair Week, August 22-31, Joe Thomas' Saxatet was one of the popular bits of entertainment on the program. During their stay in Des Moines, the members of the organization were frequent visitors to the Dunning Co., distributor of Starr phonographs and Gennett records. Two records, "Anabelle" and "Barney Google," by Gennett, featuring the Saxatet, have been very popular locally.

Ralph Lohr, Victrola dealer at Muscatine, Iowa, did some effective advertising of his own at the West Liberty fair. Dressed in rustic attire and carrying a portable Victrola under his arm, he attracted the attention of the crowds when he seated himself in the shade, started the Victrola and proceeded to eat his lunch. The stunt was repeated at various points of the fair ground and Lohr never failed to draw an interested crowd.

Russell Elam, formerly in charge of the piano department of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Co., St. Louis, has just been appointed sales manager of the Massey Piano Co. here.

The Iowa Victor Dealers' Association will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Savery here September 17-18. The meetings will be given over to talks by dealers and a program arranged by President L. A. Murray, of Davenport, Iowa. Professor Bristol, of Iowa State College, will be one of the principal speakers at the meeting. G. L. Richardson, district representative of the Victor Co., will attend.

The Massey Piano Co., which recently bought out the stock of the Haddorff Piano Co., held an effective clearance sale the first part of September.

Ginsberg's Furniture Co. will handle Victor products exclusively in the future.

Chapman Bros. Furniture Co. has been moved to its new location at Fifth and Walnut streets, and a large new stock of talking machines is being received. The entire balcony of the new store will be given over to the talking machine and record departments.

E. O. Rockwood, general credit manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has returned to New York after a vacation at Ogunquit, Me.

A Beautiful Console—Low in Price

The New KENT Model Exemplifies Wonderful Values Which Are Increasing Cheney Sales

The rapidly increasing sales of every dealer who sells The Cheney are due to two things—a very high degree of intrinsic worth, and most unusual artistic value, in this “master instrument.”

There could be no better demonstration of the wonderful values which every Cheney dealer offers than this new model which fills out the line with a low-priced console.

Though its retail price is so low that it comes within the range of popular demand, The KENT has the characteristics of many instruments much more expensive. There is both distinction of design and beauty of finish to add materially to any setting in which it is placed.

Above all, this instrument is a Cheney—endowed with the Cheney Acoustic System. That is a distinction which is coming to mean much, for the public is learning that no other phonograph can match the fidelity and beauty of Cheney reproductions.

While our stocks are full at present, there is such a growing demand for The Cheney that we urge all dealers to place orders for their fall requirements immediately. Dealers who look forward to adding The Cheney to increase their phonograph volume should let us know immediately.

WHOLESALE DEALERS URGE DEALERS TO PLACE EARLY ORDERS FOR THEIR FALL AND WINTER STOCKS

Plans for National Music Exposition Maturing—Hallet & Davis Travelers Hold Conference—Many Dealers Add New Lines—Machine Shortage Feared—Other Important Trade Activities

BOSTON, MASS., September 5.—There has been very little complaint about Summer business, now at end, on the part of the talking machine trade. The early weeks of the season found many good prospects, and these were "worked" vigorously during the Summer with the result that, on the whole, a good many instruments have been sold. The demand for records has kept up pretty well also. And the popular hits which all of the leading houses carry have been very much in demand. There is a general feeling that business for Fall and the rest of the year is going to go big, and jobbers everywhere are urging the dealers to place their orders early, else there is sure to be a shortage such as they will regret later on in the season.

Plans for National Music Exhibition

Plans continue to mature for the National Music Exposition to be staged at Mechanics Building the week of November 26 under the direction of the National Exhibition Association, Inc. On the whole, the trade is taking kindly to the proposition, but in order that local dealers may be better informed a circular bearing the signature of Secretary William B. Merrill, of the New England Music Trade Association, has just been sent out—nearly 300 of them to the trade throughout New England—giving definite information of what the exposition really purposes to be. In a few days it is planned to get the Association together so that the thing can be talked over man to man, after which it is believed there will be little difficulty in getting pretty nearly all the music trade into line insofar as taking space is concerned.

Hallet & Davis Co. Travelers Convene

At this writing there is a very interesting conference at the Hallet & Davis Co. warerooms and factory in which the road men of this house are participating. Considerable attention is being given to the merchandising and advertising of the company's talking machine, and those who are addressing the conference at the wholesale warerooms are E. E. Conway, C. C. Conway, John L. Cotter and R. O. Ainslie. Mr. Cotter, who is in charge of the sales and advertising division of the company's business, has prepared a most comprehensive campaign which he is to present to the roadmen. On Thursday evening, September 6, the program calls for a dinner at the Engineers' Club. Some of the traveling men who have come to Boston for this Hallet & Davis conference include P. A. Weeks, of Atlanta, Ga.; H. E. Morrison, of New York City; J. A. Stitt, of Los Angeles, Cal.; B. F. Clark, of Dallas, Tex., and A. J. Cullen, of Chicago.

Sonora Officials Enjoy Vacation

Joe Burke, of the Sonora Co. of New England, is on the job again after a vacation in the White Mountains, where he and his family were registered at the Alpine House at North Woodstock, N. H. For a part of the time with Mr. Burke was Frank Coupe, vice-president of the Sonora Phonograph Co. of New York, who had with him Mrs. Coupe and their daughter, Miss Norma Coupe. Mr. Coupe and his family remained somewhat longer than Mr. Burke and when they finally returned to New York City they carried back with them the young son of the household, Bennett Coupe, who had been at a Summer camp in the mountains.

Manager Burke says the prospects for September are splendid, but that while machines are coming through pretty well they are not fast enough to take care of the trade which has largely increased of late through many new merchants taking on the Sonora line. Raymond Burke, Joe's brother, has been on a business trip through western Massachusetts and Vermont, and the reports he sent home were of the most encouraging character.

Remick Manager on Motor Tour

Lee Myers, manager of the Boston stores of the Song and Gift Shop of Jerome H. Remick & Co., is home from his vacation. He spent two weeks touring through central and northern New York State, going over the Mohawk trail to Albany, through the Berkshires and later into the Adirondack Mountains. But all the while he could not forget the latest Columbia hits

Donovan, of the staff of the General Phonograph Corp. of New England; and Henry L. Kincaide & Co., of Quincy, which deal was closed by C. E. Hodgkins, of the same staff. Manager N. B. Smith, of this New England department, was over in New York for several days visiting the home offices of the General Phonograph Corp. Just now his secretary, Miss Rose M. Gallagher, is finishing her vacation at Onset, down on Cape Cod.

Concert of Handy Band Postponed

The concert scheduled for Symphony Hall one Sunday evening in July did not come off for the good reason that the fact was overlooked by General Manager Smith, of the General Phonograph Corp., which was to father the concert, that no jazz could be played here on Sunday. The concert was to have been given by "Handy's Famous Original Band," and as there were other impending engagements that carried this aggregation into the South the concert had to be postponed until some date this coming Fall. Much of the music that will be heard when the concert does take place is such as is or will be well known on the Okeh records.

Fred E. Mann on Organ Committee

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., has been chosen one of the committee at the Boston City Club to purchase and install a pipe organ during the coming Fall and Winter. Mr. Mann has just returned from Toronto, Canada, where he was the guest of Manager McMurtry of the Columbia branch in that city over the border.

Louis Buehn a Visitor

A welcome visitor to Boston lately was Louis Buehn, of the Louis Buehn Co., of Philadelphia, Victor jobber. As soon as he got in touch with Robert Steinert, of M. Steinert & Sons, of course he had to be driven out to the links for a game of golf. The Charles River Country Club was the scene of the "encounter," but the details of the game are shrouded in more or less mystery.

Visits the Victor Factory

Nicolo Carbone, whose Fields Corner Music Shop—for he runs several talking machine establishments—is exclusively Victor, has been enjoying a trip to the Victor factory. Another Victor enthusiast, who has been a guest at the factory, is Miss Josephine Anderson, of the Steinert Co.'s Lowell establishment.

Busy Times With the Brunswick

Harry Spencer, head of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, is right on the job almost night and day lately, for there are a thousand-and-one things demanding his constant attention. He says the New England department is flooded with orders. A letter which was just received the day The World representative called on him was from a titled woman in London who asked for a catalog of the Brunswick line, and stated that she was soon to visit this country and was so much interested in this line that she was going to make a close study of it in all its branches. Mr. Spencer says that the new advertising campaign is receiving cordial cooperation from the local dealers, and that those who have been eager to tie up to the full-page idea in certain selected Sunday and daily newspapers include the Jordan Marsh Co., R. H. White Co., the Shepard Stores, the C. C. Harvey Co., Vose & Sons, Henry F. Miller Co., and a number of dealers in cities in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. The first of these advertisements is to appear during the early part of September.

Charles Von Euw a Proud Daddy

Charles Von Euw, manager of the stockroom of M. Steinert & Sons, at 35 Arch street, has become the proud father of a seven and one-half pounds son, who was born a few weeks ago. It is understood that the youth is answering to the name of Charles Kenneth, the latter being "some name" around the Steinert establishment.

New Victor Dealer in Wollaston

A new Victor dealer in Greater Boston is Charles W. Bahr & Co., who have opened a fine store at 679 Hancock street, Wollaston, where they are carrying this line exclusively. The store was opened on August 18 and Manager Kenneth E. Reed, of the Steinert establishment, went out to assist in the auspicious event. Still another Victor establishment to throw open its doors is C. C. Beedle & Co., who have a new store in the center of the town of Keene, N. H. Mr. Beedle, however, is not new to the business, as he has been conducting a prosperous talking machine business in Keene at another location for twenty-five years.

Many New Edison Dealers

Frederick H. Silliman, head of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Inc., has just signed up several good houses which, from now on, will carry the Edison instruments and records. These include the Fox Furniture Co., at Newton; Miller's Music Store, at Salem; Miller's Music Shop, at New Haven, Conn.; W. G. Shaw, Quincy; J. S. Silva, Provincetown; D. Levenson, East Boston; Clinton Optical Co., Clinton; Norwood Music Shop, Norwood; C. L. McGaw, South Weymouth; Charles Stanley's Sons, Mexico, Me., and F. E. Tucker & Sons, Haverhill. Mr. Silliman is most enthusiastic over the prospects for the Fall and Winter, and he says business for this time of year was never better since he has been handling the Edison line.

F. H. Silliman Enjoys Vacation Via Auto

Frederick H. Silliman managed to get away from the daily grind of work long enough to take a delightful auto trip with Mrs. Silliman, on which they were away a little more than a week. They started out in the direction of the Adirondacks, touching Plattsburg, then headed north for Montreal, Canada, where they remained only about a day; then went over the famous highway to Quebec and back home by way of Sherbrook and St. Johnsbury, Vt. They had good weather all of the time and for the most part Mr. Silliman says he found the roads in pretty good shape. He is especially enthusiastic over the country in the Green Mountain State, which he and Mrs. Silliman greatly enjoyed.

Several of the Pardee-Ellenberger staff are just finishing their vacations. F. S. Boyd has been at Duxbury for a fortnight, dividing his time between digging clams, fishing and sailing and incidentally enjoying the swimming. Guy R. Coner has been spending his vacation on motor trips to interesting places. William G. Adams took an extra week and is on his way home from Moosehead Lake, Me., where he had a fine rest in the wilds with some of his friends. E. B. Compton has been at Clarksville, O., where he has been visiting members of his family.

Donnelly Does Business on Vacation

George P. Donnelly, the popular assistant manager of the Columbia Co.'s Boston branch, is back home from his vacation, which was spent in Maine. As he couldn't entirely get away from business, he called upon a number of the Columbia dealers in the Pine Tree State before coming home. While in the vicinity of Portland Mr. Donnelly spent considerable time in the company of Salesman Ingalls.

Cupid Busy With Columbia Staff

Cupid appears to be getting busy around the Columbia offices. Lately the engagement was announced of Peter McInerney, supervisor of orders and inventories, to Miss Ruth Schubmehl, who resides in a neighboring city; and more recently the engagement was made known of Miss Margaret J. Reardon, for some time secretary to Manager Fred E. Mann, to John J. Moore, Jr., who is now Columbia salesman in southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island; and it is rumored that there are other engagements within the Columbia ranks soon to be announced.

George W. Lyle a Visitor

President George W. Lyle, of the Strand Phonograph Co., was a Boston visitor toward the latter part of August, making his headquarters here with Arthur C. Erisman, of the Strand and Vocalion forces. Mr. Lyle left Boston for Indianapolis, Ind., for the special purpose of speeding up production, which, he says, must be hurried in order to keep up with the Strand orders, a statement that is backed by Manager

F. E. Warren is the latest one to join the staff of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, and his territory will include western Massachusetts and Vermont. Mr. Warren is a man of experience, knows the trade as well as people, and has a wide following so he is in every way equipped to increase the Brunswick business in his particular field.

Stock Shortage in Sight

The Eastern Talking Machine Co. has had a very good Summer, but, like other distributors, it is finding it somewhat difficult to convince dealers that there is to be a shortage of Victor goods this Fall, and already this is being forced home by reason of the heavy demands placed on the Eastern Co. for quick delivery of goods. Manager Herbert Shoemaker, who is keen to sense the situation, says that there is every indication of good business ahead and he is stocking up so as to be able to give the promptest service possible to all the dealers whom his house serves. Mr. Shoemaker lately returned from a vacation spent at Jackson, N. H., where he got well rested for the strenuous days ahead.

Visitors to Columbia Headquarters

General Auditor J. J. Munro and Assistant Auditor T. A. Lawrie, of the Columbia Co., were recent visitors to the Boston branch, where they were entertained by Manager Fred E. Mann. Other visitors included R. V. Lewis, manager of the Columbia department of the Summerfield Co. at Worcester, who when here expressed himself as greatly pleased with the new Columbia models; and E. C. Edwards, manager of the Columbia department of G. H. Tilden Co., at Keene, N. H., who is mapping out plans for a busy Fall and Winter season in his store.

Jordan Marsh Co. Adds Brunswick

The big department store of Jordan Marsh Co., of Boston, is one of the latest concerns to take on the Brunswick line in its talking machine department. The talking machine department of this large store has for some time been carrying the Victor, Sonora and Avona makes.

Returns to Retail Business in Malden

M. C. Perkins, who has been with Arthur C. Erisman as an inside man for more than a year, has again gone back into the retail business and the store which he once operated in Malden is now located at 209 Pleasant street, that city, quite near to Malden square, where his many friends are hoping that he will make a big "go" of it.

Erisman Visits Widener

Arthur C. Erisman, the popular Strand and Vocalion distributor for New England, spent a week-end in August with "Jim" Widener, who has a beautiful Summer home at Meganset, on Cape Cod, which has been the scene of much hospitality during the Summer, and where Mr. Widener manages to get in long week-ends.

Mr. De Forest is to have charge of the talking machine and piano departments of these stores, and as he has had wide experience in the talking machine business the Meiklejohn Co. is to be congratulated on having obtained the services of so valuable a man.

Growing Sales Force Expansion

The West End Phonograph Co., Columbia dealer, of Leverett street, this city, has been enjoying a splendid business and has been forced to increase the number of hearing rooms and display space for new Columbias in its store. The same holds true with Mr. Carbone, of the Washington Music Shop, Columbia dealer, located at 1865 Washington street, Roxbury, Mass. Mr. Carbone has set aside a large space for displaying practically exclusively the new Columbia models.

Lee Myers Enjoys Auto Tour

Lee Myers, manager of the Boston stores of the Song and Gift Shop of Jerome H. Remick & Co., Columbia dealers, just returned from a well earned vacation. Mr. Myers spent two weeks touring through central and northern New York State.

New Columbia Agency

The East Boston Music Store, Meridian street, East Boston, has acquired a Columbia franchise and has actively started a campaign of retail distribution of Columbia products through East Boston and vicinity. Anthony Riccio is the proprietor.

Oscar W. Ray Remembers Friends

Oscar W. Ray, who is now associated with the wholesale department of the Vocalion, has been heard from in Europe, whither he went early in the Summer on business for his house. Mr. Ray, who returned to New York on the Leviathan, made many friends while he was in Boston during the days that he was with the Emerson organization.

Arthur Stout Summers at Oceanside

A welcome visitor to Boston the latter part of August was Arthur Stout, who is the head of the manufacturing end of the Strand instruments. Early in the Summer he brought his family here from Indianapolis, and they have been guests at the Oceanside, Magnolia, for several weeks. He visited Arthur C. Erisman several times while here.

H. Rosen Joins Summerfield Co.

Harry Rosen, widely known to the talking machine trade throughout this city, and a brother of George Rosen, local Emerson record and radio distributor, recently joined forces with the Summerfield Co. in the capacity of buyer in the talking machine and related departments. This concern operates one of the largest house-furnishing businesses in the New England territory and the talking machine department is an important part of the enterprise.

News of the Vacationists

George McDonald, record supervisor for the Eastern Co., spent his vacation of two weeks at Boothbay Harbor, Me., and with him was James E. Dunn, head shipper for the same concern.

E. W. Kilgore, sales manager for the Eastern Co., got back after Labor Day from his vacation, which was spent largely in New York, where he visited his family.

Norman Mason, of the sales force of the Erisman Co., spent his vacation at Silver Lake, N. H., and he has been showing his friends some pictures of the big fish he caught while away.

Fred E. Mann, of the Columbia Co., Boston office, is now a proud grandfather, the sturdy youth being named Stuart G. Hall, Jr. Mrs. Hall formerly was Miss Emily Jane Mann.

Arthur C. Erisman went down to New London, Conn., a few weeks ago, where he was the guest of some of the members of the New York Yacht Club, and for several days he lived like a European potentate.

Ernest A. Cressey, of the C. C. Harvey Co., is back from his vacation, which was spent at Belgrade Lakes, Me., where he and Mrs. Cressey have been going for several Summers.

Arthur W. Chamberlain, of the Strand and Vocalion staff, has returned from his vacation, spent at Hebron, N. H.

PREDICTS A TWO-TONE SHORTAGE

Geo. W. Lyle Looks for Unprecedented Two-Tone Demand—Factories Will Work to Capacity to Handle Dealers' Requirements

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers Phonograph Corp., New York, maker of the Strand phonograph, who returned recently from a trip to the Pacific Coast, makes the prediction that the next twelve months will see an unprecedented demand for two-tone models. "As sure as fate," said Mr. Lyle in a chat with The World, "we are going to see a two-tone year. I look for a volume big enough to result in a pronounced shortage of two-tone merchandise, a bigger shortage of merchandise than in any year since the war. The Strand factory is going to act on that estimate of the future by turning out every two-tone instrument that our capacity will permit, and if I were a retailer I would certainly stock a substantial proportion of two-tone models. The public wants them, and we will be guided by this demand."

The Manufacturers Phonograph Corp. has just issued a handsome new catalog which illustrates and describes its complete line. Included in these instruments are a number of two-tone models, among which are the Queen Anne, Model 80; Queen Anne "Special," Model 260; Louis XV, Model 10, and the Italian Renaissance, Model 40.

LATEST EDISON RECORD RELEASES

Among the important recent record releases by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., are: "On the Isle of Wicki Wacki Woo," by Aileen Stanley, on the reverse of which is "What You Was, You Used to Be," by Sally Collins; "Mira o Norma-Norma," by Alice Verlet and Anita Rio; on the reverse of which is "Ah! ne fuis pas encore!" (Ah! Linger Yet a Moment), by Alice Verlet and Ralph Errolle; "Marcheta" (A Love Song of Old Mexico), by Schertzinger, tenor, with vocal obbligato, Walter Scanlan and Betsey Lane Shepherd; the reverse bearing "Say It With a Ukulele," rendered by Bailey and Bent; "Long Ago in Alcalá," and on the reverse side, "Down Deep Within the Cellar," both sung by Arthur Middleton; "Abie at the Opera," by Paul Burns, on the reverse side of which is "Goldberg's Automobile Troubles," by Dave Martin; "Finlandia" and, on the reverse side, "Badinage," both by American Symphony Orchestra.

A TRIBUTE TO EDDY STEADY

Eddy Steady, popular and aggressive Columbia dealer at Berlin, N. H., is quite flattered to know that his name is presented on a New Process Columbia record, for such is the case with record No. A934. He is, however, somewhat at a loss to understand why it was necessary to place his last name in brackets, but, nevertheless, he plans to make the selection "Eddy (Steady)" the hit of 1923 in Berlin.

BAERWALD RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Paul L. Baerwald, Eastern sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., returned to New York recently on the steamer "Laconia" after spending six weeks abroad. Mr. Baerwald's trip was primarily a pleasure journey and his principal purpose in going abroad was to visit his mother in Berlin. Mr. Baerwald has a host of friends in Germany and during his stay there he visited the leading trade centers, acquiring an intimate knowledge of business and economic conditions in that country. In a chat with The World Mr. Baerwald stated that the phonograph industry in Germany was making steady progress, but there was a dearth of satisfactory phonograph motors.

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., SEPT. 8, 1923. THIS is not the first time we have said it, but that is because it is one of those things which need saying over and over again. It is not the first time, that is to say, that we have thought it necessary to ask the retail trade what possible benefit any one can suppose is derivable from the practice of knocking a competitor's goods. We had always hoped that the talking machine trade in the mid-West would keep itself free from a practice which has always had a blighting effect and which at one time was the disgrace as well as the misfortune of the piano industry. Unhappily there are not wanting signs of a recrudescence of this detestable practice. One begins to hear of very nasty things said by salesmen about competing machines, and even about competing records, though fortunately in neither case is it easy to find plausible excuses for the poisoned word. After all, there may be honest differences of opinion in respect of the reproducing abilities of various talking machines, or about the comparative artistic value of records; but the true salesman devotes his time to talking about his own goods, and ignores those of his rivals. Of course he does, for at the best he cannot know much about his competitor save what rumor tells him. Even if he had once worked for a rival his knowledge is no longer first-hand. How much better it would be if every head of every retail house in our city would post up in every salesroom a replica of that significant sign which hangs in the warerooms of the Steger & Sons Pianoforte Mfg. Co., in Chicago. We have quoted it before. Let us quote it again in all its sterling simplicity:

"An expression of opinion by our salesmen concerning our competitors or their goods is absolutely forbidden."

There you have it. Perfectly simple, and in its import and application simply perfect. There is the only sound policy, most lucidly expressed. Why does not everybody adopt it?

THE tendency to concentrate one's selling efforts upon some one style or number of talking machine in one's line, and to ignore the others, is probably almost universal; but it is none the less a mistaken and a thoroughly erroneous practice. Every established line of machines includes at least one very popular, easily-selling, model. This may be either an upright or a console; but in the present day it is more likely to be a console. As things stand to-day it is a very simple matter to sell goods of that particular kind; because the public is interested in low-price consoles. That is so far to the good, but it is by no means to the good when all the efforts of a sales organization are concentrated on that one good seller. It simply means that everybody is taking the short and easy way of making a sales record, without thinking about the foolishness of such a policy. For one thing, the name of a house, which ought to be known for fineness of work and achievement, becomes associated in a community with an article not really representative of its finest ideas. For another thing, no factory force can suddenly begin to turn out unheard-of quantities of one model without inflicting upon the merchants much delay and disappointment. Again, the merchant himself gains nothing in the end by such a process, for he simply destroys the value in his community of all the reputation and character which enable that manufacturer to undertake the production of fine goods. The name value of the line a merchant represents varies directly as its embodiment in high-class machines: but how can such production be kept up, to maintain that name value, if the merchant is doing all he can to persuade his community that the best representative of it is some low-priced model, instead of the fine and artistic models which form the backbone of the production and the foundation of the reputation? It is really just about as easy to sell the whole line, if intelligence is used, and foresight; but this means looking ahead from the chance of to-day to the event of to-morrow. And that, apparently, implies a task too big for a great many merchants.

A Poor
Sales

PORTABLE machines are still generally held as mere seasonal goods, but the tradition is receiving a very hard blow this season. For manufacturers who have been making and shipping portables all Summer are continuing to receive orders for them and are finding it necessary to contemplate continuing their production all the Winter. How is this? It seems that some merchants last Christmas, being short of regular goods, disinterred from their stockrooms some of the portables which had been left unsold from the previous rather depressed Summer, and put them on their floors. They found to their surprise that these little fellows at once sold, without any trouble and in fact with superlative ease. At once the manufacturers were asked to supply some more. Thus the process of converting the portable from a seasonable to an all-year instrument, so quietly begun, has steadily gone on, until to-day it seems as if we shall have to consider grouping the talking machine under three standard classifications, upright, console and portable, all of which are to be considered as year-round sellers. This is a development which should be welcomed by all. It is never the easiest thing in the world to find out what people really want, and amidst one hundred and ten millions there is room for all kinds of tastes and varieties of taste. The portable is becoming important. We hope it will continue to be so. There is a place for it. It is easy to sell, its sale is profitable, and it is not a competitor with the upright or console. Its presence renders unnecessary the manufacture of unduly low-priced uprights and widens the scope of the talking machine's appeal.

The New
Type

LITTLE attention has been given to one of the most important events which the near future has in store for the Chicago trade. This is the opening, on January 1, 1924, of the wonderful new Furniture Mart on the Lake Shore Drive. Chicago has long suffered under the infliction of inadequate quarters for the semi-annual trade fairs at which the furniture manufacturers acquaint the dealers with their latest productions. Grand Rapids has for years held the primacy, with Jamestown, N. Y., in these great markets from which the public is rigidly excluded; but Chicago is only now taking her rightful place in this big movement. The country is big and no one or two cities can supply all the needs of the nationwide furniture business. Chicago's new Furniture Mart will be interesting to our trade because it will offer to talking machine manufacturers the best of opportunities to put themselves in touch with their retailers at the two best periods of the year for wholesale buying, while at the same time offering permanent all-year-round showroom headquarters in a building specially devoted to the purpose and free from every kind of distraction, yet perfectly adapted to its own special end; which is that of bringing manufacturer and merchant together. The Vitanola Talking Machine Co. is taking space in the new building, and, in fact, its present Chicago headquarters, into which it has just moved from the Saginaw factory, are only temporary. Some may say that the talking machine does not belong in the furniture trade. It is certainly a domestic article, and one indeed which furniture dealers can handle profitably. The new Furniture Mart is likely therefore to have more than one talking machine manufacturer for a tenant.

The

ALTHOUGH the holiday season is yet afar off there is ample evidence in certain quarters that talking machine dealers who were over-careful about placing advance orders for machine stocks are going to see business go by them before the first of the year because they haven't the goods on hand to meet the demand. Each year we hear that the peak of the talking machine demand has passed and each year almost there is a scarcity of the popular machine models. It happens with startling regularity as the holiday season approaches and there is little comfort to the dealer in criticizing the manufacturer for lack of production or the jobber for lack of special service. What is needed is foresight.

DEALERS IN THE MID-WEST TERRITORY MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR A BIG FALL TRADE

Retailers Unanimous in Expressions of Prosperity in Every Branch of Trade—Heavy Ordering Indicates Determination of Dealers Not to Be Caught Short of Instruments This Fall

CHICAGO, ILL., September 8.—The retail trade as a whole is predicting one of the best Fall seasons that it has ever experienced and, in line with this prediction, goods are being ordered accordingly. On every hand we receive the information from retailers that the trade during the Summer has been exceptionally good, with the exception of a week or so, when there was quite a lapse; nevertheless, retailers are fairly well satisfied with the business consummated for the past several months.

The portable trade was very good during the Summer, but it was somewhat slow in the sales of these instruments during the latter part of August. With September, however, there was a tendency toward revival of this business and, judging from present indications, we may look forward to a continued activity for the balance of the year at least.

As far as records are concerned business was exceptionally good throughout the entire Summer months and it is at present going along very nicely, with no signs of a let-up. "Blue" numbers and "class" records are very popular throughout Chicago at present and, according to the wholesale men, these types of records are being very favorably received in all parts of the country.

Regarding talking machines, both uprights and consoles have been accounting for themselves in satisfactory sales during the Summer and, judging from reports received by retailers and wholesalers, the sales of the console instrument are somewhat in excess of the upright type.

Wholesalers Report Heavy Ordering

Throughout the wholesale trade we find that the dealers have been ordering very heavily and this ordering began towards the latter part of August. The wholesale men are of the opinion that the retailers are pushing stronger than ever and, judging from the amount of orders that dealers are sending in, the retail trade as a whole contemplates selling a tremendous amount of machines in the next few months. One thing noticeable in the wholesale trade this season is that a large number of the retailers are sending in, along with their orders, inquiries pertaining to further shipments. It seems that a number of these retailers are making preparations in advance of the holiday season, and doing everything that they can do to anticipate their future requirements. As we can easily remember, for the past several years the trade has been quite lax in anticipating its "future" requirements and, consequently, when the holiday activities came around they were at a loss as to what to do regarding immediate shipments.

Heretofore this laxity on the part of the retailers has caused the manufacturer to build instruments only a little in excess of actual orders. His reason for this was obvious in that he did not deem it wise to overload his warehouses and do all anticipating for the retailer. Therefore, when the retailer came along at the last minute and requested immediate shipment there was no possibility of carrying orders and, in order to do what he could, the manufacturer was forced to work nights, days and holidays to get out the instruments. This, of course, has a reaction on the retailer in that it cut down his margin, as the manufacturing costs were necessarily somewhat increased, owing to this overtime work. It is hoped by the manufacturers that more of the dealers will see the wisdom of anticipating their requirements early, as it undoubtedly will give the manufacturer a better opportunity to turn out goods in a manner that will allow a better margin of profit to the retailer.

Broadcaster Corp. Is Chartered

The Broadcaster Corp., successor to the Linerphone Talking Machine Co., 316 Union Park court, has just been incorporated for $125,000, on which there is claimed $100,000 has been paid in, the balance to be paid up by January 1. The corporation papers were taken out under the State laws of Illinois and the officers named are Max Rovech, president; Saul Meltzer, vice-president; Arran Meltzer and Sol L. Zax, secretary and general manager. The purpose of the new broadcaster corporation is to manufacture and deal in talking machines and, in addition, it will install radio sets.

During his absence he spent some of his time at his Summer home in Summerville, N. J., and the balance of the time in calling on the trade. In a chat with Mr. Cornell he reported that the trade in general has very favorably received the new Jewel line of tone arms and attachments, as well as the Jewel-Tone needle equipment. This latter product of the Jewel Co. has been constantly growing in demand since its introduction to the trade and Mr. Cornell is of the opinion that this demand will continue with increased steadiness for the balance of the year.

Gets in Touch With 30,000 Colored Elks

It was estimated that more than 30,000 persons rode in the gala procession put on by the Improved Benevolent Order of Elks, a colored organization which swept through Chicago's South Side streets on August 28. The organization brought 50,000 colored visitors to Chicago for the convention, which lasted from

Tuesday until Friday, and the entire number of visitors as well as Chicago's own colored populace, which is said to number around 200,-

All along the line of march and throughout the entire colored district the Consolidated Co. saw to it that there were plenty of placards mentioning colored artists who can be heard on the Okeh record. The principal features, however, were Erskine Tate and His Vendome Orchestra, King Oliver and His Jazz Band, Mamie Smith and numerous other nationally known colored artists who have recorded for Okeh records. The placarding of the colored district was personally supervised by E. A. Fearn, of the Consolidated Co., who spared no expense in this work.

Ashley Visiting Points in the West

M. F. Ashley, vice-president of the Krasco Mfg. Co., left Chicago about the twentieth of August for a trip throughout the West, where he will call on the trade. His trip took him to Denver, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and other Coast commercial centers and he is expected to return to Chicago about the middle of September.

Isham Jones Goes Big in Golf

The latest reports coming from the Byrn Mawr Golf Club indicate that Isham Jones, of Brunswick recording fame, is still in the line insofar as championship is concerned. It is stated by those who actually saw the contest that Mr. Jones was trimming all comers until he ran up against a certain player who turned out to be Bobby Bensing, son of the president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. and assistant secretary and treasurer of that concern. It is said that Bob has made an average of 75 on all courses around Chicago and that when Isham went up against him he decided that he had a better chance at playing a saxophone than he had at a niblick.

Illinois Sonora Campaign

Sales Manager L. Golder, of the Illinois Phonograph Corp., Sonora distributor, Chicago, reports that Sonora dealers throughout his territory are exhibiting considerable interest concerning the rather unique advertising campaign which Sonora will start about September 15 in the daily newspapers throughout this section. Just what this campaign will consist of Mr. Golder has not as yet mentioned, but he promises one of the most interesting series of newspaper advertisements that have been seen in this section for a long while. His office is in receipt of samples of the new Sonora DeLuxe period models which came in towards the latter part of August and Mr. Golder reports that the local Sonora dealers who have come down to the National avenue showroom of Sonora have been placing very substantial orders for these new DeLuxe period instruments.

Activities of Sterling Devices Co.

Fred Keller, of the Sterling Devices Co., has just returned from a trip through the Eastern territory and is happy to report that the trade outlook in that section is very bright. While in the East he made arrangements to bring his family from Philadelphia to Chicago to take up their residence here. Heretofore Mr. Keller was not actively associated with the plant activities of Sterling, but his former association was as Eastern representative of this concern in Philadelphia. Now that his activities confine him wholly to Chicago he has decided to locate permanently in this city.

"Hot Roasted Peanuts"

Unusual interest has been aroused in Chicago by the recent appearance of a new music roll, entitled "Hot Roasted Peanuts." This roll was introduced to the trade by Cole & Dunas, which concern was recently appointed distributors for the Connorized Co. The song contained on the roll entitled "Hot Roasted Peanuts" is of the novelty type and enclosed in each box along with the roll is a peanut in a little whistle. Joe Dunas, of Cole & Dunas, believes that the peanut and whistle were put there for a good purpose in that the person pumping the piano is supposed to crumble the peanut shell and blow the whistle.

Careless Fellow Causes Small Fire

Davidson's Talking Machine Shop at 234 South Wabash avenue, exclusive Victor dealer, was the scene of considerable excitement recently, due to the breaking out of a fire, which caused a small loss. It seems that a customer carelessly threw a lighted match into a bundle of paper supplies, which in turn caused an immense amount of smoke. Luckily, however, the fire was extinguished immediately.

Vitonola President in the East

M. C. Schiff, president of the Vitonola Talking Machine Co., left on the first of the month for an extensive trip through the Eastern territory. He intends calling on the trade in practically every large city in the eastern part of the United States. The results of Mr. Schiff's travels are already strikingly written upon the order books of the Vitonola Talking Machine Co. He recently finished a trip throughout the southern section of the country, and while in that territory was instrumental in opening a considerable number of large new Vitonola accounts.

New York Album & Card Co. President Here

lies in ability to make turnovers. About all you must do is to show the Triplex. It sells better than the ordinary type of talking machines.

tion as a ballet and toe dancer, as well as a singer. Her ability as a saxophonist is commendable in that she is perfectly at home with her instrument, whether the number being played is of the classical or popular type.

Recently the little lady, assisted by her sister Hattie at the piano and her brother Jerry on the violin, made two special Okeh records. The numbers were "Velma," by Rudy Wiedoeft, and "Frolics of Spring." It is said by those in position to know that one of Chicago's best-known music publishers will feature Miss Blanche on the cover of two songs which are speedily becoming popular.

New Brunswick Dealer in Detroit

H. B. Bibb, manager of the Chicago district of the Brunswick Co., announces that the complete Brunswick line has been taken on by the Crowley-Miliner Co., of Detroit, Mich. This concern is one of the largest department stores in the State of Michigan. The talking machine department is managed by Larry Dow.

Take on More Space

The Blood Tone Arm Co., 326 River street, has again found it necessary to take on additional space so as to care for its rapidly growing business. The new room is to be used as a department for margining and soldering tone arms. Plans are also being made to install a printing department and when this is consummated all assembling and manufacturing required in the building of the Blood Tone Arm Co. will be done under one roof.

New Columbia Dealer

The Mont Claire Music Store has recently opened at 7160 West Grand avenue, Chicago, Ill., handling new Columbias and new process Columbia records. George Tomaso is the proprietor and will be assisted by his son. Modern fixtures have been installed, the decorative scheme being in white enamel and blue.

In keeping abreast of BLOOD sales volume, we find it necessary to increase our plant space from time to time.

Today we are doing practically all of our manufacturing under one roof, thereby insuring greater production, better inspection of assembly, and speedier shipment.

Blood management is doing everything in its power to expedite shipment. To farsighted manufacturers who anticipate their requirements previous to an unprecedented Fall business.

Dan Winkler, New York manager of the company, spent the week of August 15 in Chicago, while John Fink, manager of the professional department, has returned from Atlantic City, after spending the months of July and August at the seashore resort promoting the Forster publications. Maurice L. Adler, sales manager, also returned to his desk after spending a month in the East.

Mr. Adler reports that the outlook for Fall is more encouraging than ever before and that the last few months have shown between 40 and 60 per cent increase in sales and there is no indication that the sheet music industry will have cause to complain over business in the immediate future.

Columbia Activities

W. J. Thomas, of Divernon, Ill., Columbia dealer, ran a beautiful Columbia display at the Sangamon County Institute recently.

R. F. Perrin, Columbia dealer in Arlington Heights, is showing the new model Columbias at the Cook County Fair. He has a beautiful display of pianos, Columbia phonographs, etc.

One of the visitors to the Columbia office recently was J. C. Cowser, of Farmington, Ill., who spent a week in the city, accompanied by his wife.

H. H. Barker, of the Barker Furniture Co., Indiana Harbor, visited the Columbia offices in Chicago recently and inspected the new line of Columbias. He was much pleased with business conditions and predicts an early Fall business revival.

A recent addition to the Columbia fold is the C. E. Hurd Music Shop, of Freeport, Ill., which has just added a complete line of Columbia machines and new process records.

The Svaboda Furniture Co., of Kewanee, Wis., ran an interesting Columbia display at the County Fair held there recently.

H. E. Miller Visits Chicago

H. E. Miller, representative of the Aeolian Co., who travels the Eastern territory for the Melodee Music Roll Co., spent a part of his vacation in Chicago calling on his old friends in the trade. While here he spent considerable time at the Aeolian-Vocalion sales office at the Mandel Bros. department store.

After five years of active service with the sales force of the local Columbia branch, Irving S. Leon has severed his connection with that office and is with the sales department of Yahr & Lange, Sonora distributors, with headquarters in Milwaukee. While associated with the Columbia sales office Mr. Leon traveled the northern part of Illinois and during the years of his activity in this capacity became known to

A Musical Trio in the North Woods

When three "good fellows" make a hasty retreat from the "Great White Way" and pitch their tent in the northern part of Wisconsin there is bound to be something doing. Such was the case when Dave M. Allen, of Leo Feist, Frank Westphal and M. G. Peters found themselves at the Little White Birch Lodge, Star Lake, Wis., last month, for according to these three gentlemen they found more pleasure in the Northern woods than they ever found along the "Rialto" or at Rainbo Gardens. Besides the charms of nature, there was every kind of sport to indulge in, while the three spent several weeks visiting the Wisconsin lakes, marking a vacation that will long be remembered. The first stop was the Little White Birch Lodge at Star Lake, Wis., where several days were spent, and then the party journeyed to Eagle River and spent five days at a camp with friends, who cordially provided them with horses, boats, machines and everything necessary for outdoor life.

Tonofone Head on Eastern Trip

Miss E. E. Powell, secretary of the Tonofone Co., is making preparations to leave for a short visit to Paducah, Ky., where she intends to remain for a few days prior to leaving for a trip throughout the Eastern trade. Miss Powell's plans call for business visits to Boston, New York and other large Eastern cities and in all probability will be away from her desk at headquarters for about three weeks. Miss Powell reports that the sales of Tonofone have been keeping up remarkably well during the Summer months and she has found it necessary to add additional help in order to take care of Tonofone's constantly growing demand.

Prof. Cheney on Lecture Tour

Towards the latter part of the month of August, Prof. Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., left for a visit to the mid-West and Coast sections of the country, where he will lecture and visit Cheney dealers. Prof. Cheney will carry out the same program he held to earlier in the year when he made a tour of the eastern section of the country. The only difference this time is that the professor will not go from town to town driving his famous "Blue Gull" Packard, but will make use of the railroads instead.

The first stop on the program called for a visit to Cheney dealers in the Omaha territory, which will be followed by visits to Council Bluffs, Denver and other big mid-West cities, whence he will gradually work his way to the Coast, where he will call on all of the Cheney dealers.

His program will comprise sales talks on the Cheney talking machine and heart-to-heart talks with the sales people with whom he comes in contact. The lectures themselves will consist of technicalities embodied in the building of Cheney instruments and the reasons for these embodiments.

No definite return was announced by Prof. Cheney upon his departure, but it is expected that he will return to Chicago headquarters in about eight weeks.

New Music Shops in Chicago

The Chicago office of the Columbia Graphophone Co. this week gave out news that it had opened two new accounts in Chicago territory, one being the Tri-Art Shop, at 517 S. Cicero avenue, and the other one the Monte Claire Music Store, at 7160 W. Grand avenue. Both new shops will handle the Columbia line of instruments and the Columbia New Process records exclusively.

The proprietor of the Tri-Art Shop is J. J. Klapka, who is also a member of the Klapka & Hollicky retail music establishment at 5915 W. Twenty-sixth street. Mr. Klapka has been associated with the trade for a number of years, and in opening his new store he has taken advantage of his years of experience by laying out a most modern and attractively decorated retail store.

The Monte Claire Music Store is operated by George Tomaso, who will be assisted by his son. Here also the installed fixtures are of most modern type, and the decoration scheme is carried out in white enamel and blue.

Why Not?

Throughout the Chicago trade one frequently hears the word "Golf" used and if a little investigation is made by the hearer of the word he will soon find that the speaker is very much interested in the game and from time to time goes out to the links. In the past three or four years the golf fans have been becoming very numerous throughout the talking machine trade, but as yet no one seems to have made an attempt to bring the talking machine boys together for the purpose of organizing a talking machine golf club.

With the boys in the piano game, however, an entirely different situation exists. They have had for many years an organization known as the Chicago Piano Golf Association, whose members congregate with great regularity for the purpose of seeing who is the best pill-knocker. Every couple of weeks they hold a meet and after each meet someone comes home with a nice little prize of some kind.

At last, however, many of the talking machine men are getting jealous of the piano men and they have been asserting that there are just as good players in the talking machine business as there are in the piano business and at the present time the argument is waxing so hot that we may expect to see the organization of the talking machine golf club almost any day. To begin with, the talking machine men have at least one member of the trade whose prowess as a golfer is known on every link locally and upon a large number of those out of town. This is no other than "Bobby" Benzinger, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., upon whom the local trade is willing to bet as the most likely contender for the championship.

Fletcher-Wickes Organizes Research Plant

One of the most elaborate demonstration rooms that has ever been erected in a talking machine plant in Chicago was recently completed at the headquarters of the Fletcher-Wickes Co., manufacturer of the well-known Fletcher tone arm and reproducer. The new demonstration room was furnished in mahogany throughout and boasts of a large assortment of well-known talking machines and models which are used for the purpose of demonstrating the Fletcher-Wickes tone arm and reproducer.

Another addition to the Fletcher-Wickes plant has been the installation of a large experimental room wherein this company carries on experimental work on tone arms, sound boxes and electric motors. This room is in charge of an expert mechanic, who, with his several assistants, does nothing but research work in tone production and motor building.

The balance of the plant is given over to offices and assembly rooms and the entire equipment throughout has been designed with painstaking care so as to eliminate every possible bit of lost motion.

Spencerian Shown at Ohio Meeting

Ben Wood, sales manager of Westphono, Inc., is among those members of the Chicago trade who is taking in the Ohio Merchants' Convention, scheduled for September 10. Mr. Wood will exhibit his product, the Spencerian portable, and immediately after the convention will make a tour of the Eastern trade.

According to Mr. Wood, indications point to a very favorable continuance of the portable business and jobbers all over the country are reporting to him that the recent slump in the sales of portables has been replaced by a brisk demand. It is expected by many men in the trade that an immense number of portables will be purchased for the Christmas trade and these will be used as gifts during the holidays.

streets. The new office is in the lately erected section of the Barnhart plant and is almost exactly over the location of his old one. Business expansion necessitated the erection of the new addition to the plant and since its erection quite a bit of the old space formerly occupied by offices is now utilized for the manufacture of tone arms, sound boxes and cover supports. In connection with the latter item, it may be said that the Barnhart cover support business has lately grown to large proportions and many manufacturers throughout the country have recently adopted it as part of their standard equipment.

ODEON RECORD FEATURED AS "BLUES"

Enterprising Chicago Dealer Uses Unique Selling Idea Which Results in the Sale of 2,500 Records of One Selection in One Month

A. H. Thallmayer, manager of the foreign record department of the General Phonograph Corp., maker of Okeh and Odeon records, received recently some interesting figures from the Rialto Music Shop of Chicago, one of the company's dealers. This enterprising merchant is using a megaphone attachment to increase the volume of the records that he plays in order to attract the attention of prospective purchasers, and a few weeks ago he featured Odeon record No. 10096, the title of which is "The Mariechen Walzer."

The peculiar melody of this waltz, played in typical peasant style, attracted the attention of several members of the colored race who passed the Rialto Music Shop while the record was playing. Whenever this particular type of customer visited the establishment the owner of the store stated that the name of the record was the "Mariechen Blues." The sale of the record was invariably made after a demonstration, although it is quite possible that the use of the word "blues" was a factor in interesting the purchaser. As a matter of fact, this record has met with such popular demand among the clientele of the Rialto Music Shop that more than 2,500 of the number were sold in one month and the popularity of the record induced the General Phonograph Corp. to publish it in its American series, where it is now listed.

SHOWS A 20 PER CENT INCREASE

CHICAGO, ILL., September 7.—According to a statement issued by M. A. Healy, president of Lyon & Healy, Inc., net sales for the period ending June 30, 1923, showed an increase of over 20 per cent over the same period last year. The sales record for six months is $3,945,809.07 as compared with $3,279,531.08, a most satisfactory increase in business.

INAUGURATES DEALER CAMPAIGN

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Starts Campaign With Dealers Pertaining to the Progress of the Company in the Industry

CHICAGO, ILL., September 7.—The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has started a campaign with its dealers relating to the progress of the Brunswick organization in the talking machine industry. With the success of the Brunswick phonograph and the ever-increasing demand the company again expresses its appreciation to Brunswick dealers for their confidence and co-operation in the policies of the company that have achieved this goal.

This campaign gives to these merchants a short history of the progress made, beginning with the introduction of the Brunswick phonographs, explaining the advent and progress of the various features of the Brunswick machine. Various precedents established in the industry to-day are pointed out as having been originated by the Brunswick Co.

The campaign has a particular educational value to the dealer in reviewing the various features, policies of the company and their influence in the industry. Moreover, selling arguments which may have been forgotten, but which are nevertheless established, can again be gleaned from this campaign and be brought forward as the background of each step in the progress and development of business.

This campaign will be carried on through advertising in the trade papers, co-ordinated with letters sent out from the headquarters of the company. The first of the series of letters has been sent out reviewing the precedents established by the company.

DAILY PAPER ADVERTISING STARTED

CHICAGO, ILL., September 7.—Last week the first full-page advertisement appeared in all the leading daily papers throughout the country by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. starting the national campaign that the company recently announced. This campaign has been inaugurated by the advertising department, and each release of the various advertisements will appear simultaneously all over the country. The first advertisement, attractively illustrated with pen and ink sketch, is in line with the recent program whereby hits are being released daily and listed, in addition to giving a description of the Brunswick phonograph and Brunswick record.

LYMAN'S ORCHESTRA FOR BRUNSWICK

Recordings of California Ambassador Orchestra Made in Los Angeles by Brunswick—First Records to be Released in Near Future

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 4.—Los Angeles' most famous popular music organization, Abe Lyman's California Ambassador Orchestra, has just completed a number of popular recordings for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. The orchestra was recently signed up exclusively by the Brunswick organization, and immediately upon the consummation of the deal the Brunswick Co. established a temporary recording laboratory in Los Angeles for the sole purpose of recording newly acquired talent.

The recording for Brunswick was done under the supervision of Skinker Darby, chief of the Brunswick Co.'s recording division, and Walter Hansehan, head of the recording department. Both of these men, along with their assistants and the necessary paraphernalia used in recording, came all the way from New York and spent five weeks in preparing and recording the Ambassador Orchestra. Records of the new organization will be released shortly, and the repertoire consists of such numbers as "No, No, Nora," "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake," "Mid-Lyman's California Ambassador Orchestra night Rose," and "Havana Tango." Abe Lyman's California Ambassador Orchestra has attained much popularity since the opening of the Coconut Grove Hotel in May, 1922. The orchestra is considered one of the biggest attractions in Southern California, and before coming to this city the orchestra was well known in Chicago, having played in the Colonial and Arsonnia cafés in that city. Prior to this engagement the organization appeared in vaudeville with Gilda Gray, of "Ziegfeld Follies."

A great deal of the success of the orchestra is due to Abe Lyman, whose personality sells the orchestra to the public. He is one of the old school of stick-juggling directors, and his antics are an endless amusement to his spectators. He is of the inventive type and seems to be able to inspire his men with a peppy spirit which keeps them at a high pitch. The music of this orchestra carries with it the true spirit of California, and at times it is almost oriental in color. The greatest effects attained by the orchestra are reached in its playing softly and slowly, and at all times with a decided rhythm which seems never to lapse or lag because of the original effects.

Abe Lyman himself has the distinction, besides that of a drummer, in that he is the composer of many numbers which have been popular, such as "Peggy Dear," "Apple Sauce," "I Cried for You," "In the Land of Shady Palm Trees," "Before You Go," etc., etc.

In commenting on the acquisition of Abe Lyman's California Ambassador Orchestra the Brunswick Co. feels that in offering this orchestra to the music-loving public it is making available to the entire world the individual and characteristic music of California, which is duly becoming so popular. Furthermore, the Brunswick Co. feels confident that the popularity of these records will eventually warrant the erecting of a recording and pressing plant in Los Angeles which will in turn greatly expedite recording shipments throughout the Coast territory.

LARGER QUARTERS IN SPRINGFIELD

The addition will be eleven feet wide and fifty feet deep, making this a very commodious and attractive establishment.

C. L. WALDO PASSES AWAY

Prominent Music Merchant of Minneapolis and a Founder of the Foster & Waldo Music Co. Dies in That City After Long Illness

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., September 4.—C. L. Waldo, one of the founders of the Foster & Waldo Music Co., this city, died at his home here last Sunday in his seventy-first year. The end came after nearly four years of ill health. Mr. Waldo was born in Jefferson, Wis., and came to Minneapolis thirty-six years ago. Three years later he became associated with Robert O. Foster in the Foster & Waldo Music Co. and aided materially in building up one of the most prominent music businesses in the mid-West. He was a member of the Minneapolis Minikahda and Minneapolis Automobile Clubs. The funeral will be held tomorrow from his late residence.

WINTER PIANO CO. ALTERATIONS

ERIE, PA., September 4.—Alterations including the installation of racks and show cases are in progress in the Winter Piano Co.'s store on State street in order to accommodate the new line of small musical merchandise, which is to be carried this Fall. The decision to inaugurate the new department came as a result of an unusually good season in the piano and talking machine fields.

LOS ANGELES

All Branches of the Talking Machine Business Enjoy Brisk Demand—Association Stages August Meeting—News of the Month

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 3.—August proved to be another good Summer month for the sale of talking machines, although, perhaps, it did not measure up to July and, according to reports from the various departments, portables are not by any means monopolizing the types of instruments sold to the exclusion of others, many high priced period models and others presenting their quota day by day. Collections are good and terms on which machines are being sold, although lower than they were a year or two ago, are respectably high, and consist always—except in the case of one or two—of a 10 per cent down payment and the balance maturing within fifteen months or less.

Fitzgerald Shows Remarkable Increase

C. H. Mansfield, manager of the phonograph department of the Fitzgerald Music Co., reports a wonderful increase of sales in his department. He states that the totals during the first six months of 1923 reveal an increase of two and a half times over those for the corresponding period of 1922. Mr. Mansfield is a great believer in using outside salesmen and employs from ten to twelve men in this way, besides the inside men; prospects are, of course, furnished to these outside men, and reports are filed and the whole matter handled in a most progressive and intelligent manner.

Double-sided Red Seal Records Please

The announcement of the manufacture of double-sided Victor Red Seal records and the issuance of the new catalog have been received with great enthusiasm by all Victor dealers, who believe that this will stimulate sales enormously. The advertising of new prices on the present Victor Red Seal single-sided records has been made by most of the dealers, although there was a slight uncertainty in the minds of most of them at first as to how this advertising should be worded.

R. P. Hamilton Returns to Coast

After attending the annual convention at the Victor factory R. P. Hamilton, Pacific Coast representative of the Victor Talking Machine Co., returned to California and visited Los Angeles for a few days only and proceeded to San Francisco. Mr. Hamilton stated that the work on the new pressing plant and recording laboratory in Melrose is progressing satisfactorily. Pacific Coast Victor dealers are evincing the greatest interest in the new plant and anticipate the best results in service and up-to-date releases.

Seeks for Distributor of Phonographs

George H. Bohlen, Pacific Coast representative of the W. W. Kimball Co., spent a few days in Los Angeles last month. In addition to visiting the Platt Music Co. as representative of the Kimball piano in this section, Mr. Bohlen is planning to establish a good jobbing and distributing connection for Kimball products in southern California.

Association Holds August Meeting

The August meeting of the Music Trades Association of Southern California was occupied with the discussion of several matters, and among them the question of music stores keeping open in the evening from 6 p. m. to 9 p. m. Several members declared that a good deal more business could be secured if all music stores kept open, while others claimed that the business which was now being obtained by the few who always kept open would be divided up—in the event of all keeping open—and would be reduced to an unprofitable minimum. W. H. Richardson, of Richardson's, Inc., stated that he believed the music business corresponded in many respects to the theatre and amusement business, and that the former should keep open during the evenings with the result of a greatly increased business.

New Victor Models Make Hit

A. G. Cook, manager of the phonograph department of the Geo. J. Birkel Co., expressed great satisfaction over the new Victor mahogany and walnut console models which have just been placed on the market. He stated that at present his house, in common with the other Victor dealers, had been able to obtain samples only, but that a number of orders had been taken from them; the period models which the Victor Co. are making to order have also proved exceedingly attractive and can be made to match any scheme of architectural design or period.

To Open Fine New Home

The formal opening of the Southern California Music Co.'s new store at 808 South Broadway will take place on Wednesday of this week, and thousands of invitations have been sent out. Five stories out of the eight are to be occupied by the music store—in fact, most of the stock has already been moved in. The eighth floor includes a beautiful auditorium with a seating capacity of 300, and, the floors being left level instead of sloping, can be used for dancing. The first floor is beautifully decorated, harmonizing with the Italian architecture which prevails throughout the entire building. The ceiling has been exquisitely hand painted by special artists, many weeks being occupied with this work alone. The record demonstration rooms are each individually and collectively gems of architecture with their small Italian arched ceilings, and they number two or three dozen. The Victor and Brunswick departments and salesrooms are on the second—or mezzanine—floor, and are arranged in the most complete and admirable manner possible. Without going into details of the other departments it is sufficient to state that this new store is the most beautiful to be found in the entire country. F. L. Grannis, of the Southern California Music Co., is mostly responsible for the excellent results.

Famous Actor Buys Phonograph

Cullen Landis recently purchased a magnificent $1,200 period phonograph from the Fitzgerald Music Co. C. H. Mansfield, manager of the phonograph department of the Fitzgerald Music Co., stated that Mr. Landis had chosen this instrument for his magnificent new home in Hollywood.

NEW OUTING JOBBERS AND DEALERS

A. W. Deas, Jr., Returns From Satisfactory Trip—Yahr & Lange Drug Co. Appointed Outing Jobber for Large Territory

A. W. Deas, Jr., sales manager of the Outing Talking Machine Co., Mt. Kisco, N. Y., recently returned from a trip through New York and Pennsylvania, where he opened up a number of new dealer accounts for the Outing jobbers in these territories. He will leave shortly for a trip to Chicago, St. Louis and the mid-Western territory.

A. J. Coté, president and general manager of the Outing Talking Machine Co., states that the Outing is being received very favorably in foreign countries. A good export business is being enjoyed by this company, with the Latin-American countries being the largest consumers. The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Milwaukee, Wis., has recently been appointed an Outing jobber for the Wisconsin and northern Michigan territory.

Cliff Hess, director of the recording of popular Vocalion records for the Aeolian Co., has just returned from a fishing trip among the Thousand Islands, where he had a good rest.

EDISON CONTEST WINNERS ON TRIP

Leaders in Annual Sales Contest Conducted by Harger & Blish, Edison Jobbers, Des Moines, Ia., End Long Eastern Trip at Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Laboratories, Orange, N. J.

Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers, Des Moines, Ia., brought their annual sales contest for 1923 to a successful conclusion the last week in August. The prize-winners at that time arrived at the Edison Laboratories in Orange, where they were conducted through the entire plant and where they also made special souvenir records in the Edison recording laboratories. During one of the evenings they spent in the East they were taken as guests to see the "Ziegfeld Follies."

The first prize in this contest was won by Harry Shroyer, of the Shroyer Music House, Bethany, Mo., who sold forty-six Edison phonographs in ten weeks, and in a town with a population of about three thousand. It seems that in the contests conducted in previous years Mr. Shroyer has always won a place, so that his winning first prize this year indicates that he is setting a faster and faster pace for himself each year. His record is extraordinary for a large size city, but such a record in a relatively small community is indeed unique. The other persons who won places in the contest and, as a result, won the free trip were: H. A. Lorenzen, Paule Jewelry Co., Burlington, Ia.; A. L. Heggland, Pierre, S. D.; Floyd Cooper, F. M. Cooper & Son, Woodward, Ia., and A. F. O'Dell, Keokuk, Ia.

The complete trip took in Rochester, the Thousand Islands, a trip down the St. Lawrence to Kingston and Montreal, another boat trip to Quebec, a five-day cruise around Halifax, a trip from there to New York and a sojourn in New York and Orange.

In chatting with The World H. H. Blish, Jr., who accompanied the winners on the trip, stated that the records turned in this year exceeded those turned in for several years previous. This

Mr. Blish considers indicative of the fact that conditions are now satisfactory in his territory and that the outlook for Fall business warrants real confidence. He added that wheat does not constitute over 8 per cent of the Iowa crop and that, therefore, it does not have a great bearing on the general prosperity of this great agricultural State.

Mayer Bros. & Bramley Report Active Dealer Demand—Two-toned Consoles Big Sellers

During the past few weeks Mayer Bros. & Bramley, New York, manufacturers of the Fischer phonograph, have added a number of dealers to their list of representatives. "We are making rapid progress," stated an officer of the company in a chat with The World. "Our company has adopted a policy of selling direct to the dealers and we are co-operating with our trade in making their turnover active.

"At the present time we are shipping our instruments to all parts of this country, Canada and abroad, with an active demand for period consoles in mahogany and walnut. The two-tone effect in our Rosemary model is meeting with the hearty approval of the trade and we are urging our dealers to anticipate their orders for the coming Fall and holiday season, as there is every reason to predict a demand that will be far in excess of production."

NEW BRUNSWICK AGENCIES OPENED

Among the latest additions to Brunswick boosters announced by Percy A. Ware, sales promotion manager of the Eastern phonograph division of the Brunswick Co., are Brodrib & Blair, 12 Riverside avenue, Bristol, Conn.; Miller's Music Store, Troy, N. WILL OPEN NEW DAVEGA STORE

Another link in the Davega chain of stores will soon be opened at Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York. This is in line with the plans for expansion announced some time ago by Abram Davega, of Davega, Inc. The Victor line of talking machines and various accessories will be handled.

NEW EDISON WINDOW DISPLAY

The latest Edison window display which has been issued for the use of Edison dealers is devoted to the featuring of one record, namely, the song "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen." The display pieces are very unusual, from the standpoint of coloring, and create an excellent window. The vocal selection featured in it is the largest selling record in the entire Edison catalog over the period of ten years.

KIMBERLEY ENLARGING FACILITIES

Well-known Talking Machine Manufacturer Getting Ready for Fall Trade—Seven Models in 1923 Line—A New $100 Console Now Being Produced—Planning Sales Campaign

The Kimberley Phonograph Co., Perth Amboy, N. J., is making plans for the enlargement of its factory facilities in order to prepare for

Kimberley Co.'s New $100 Model

Fall trade. Details have been completed for an aggressive sales campaign and, with its increased facilities, the Kimberley organization will be in a position to meet the requirements of its trade efficiently. The line for the 1923-1924 season will consist of seven models, comprising four uprights and three consoles. The uprights will be known as the Ambassador, Bellevue, Commodore and Dartmouth, and the consoles as the Exeter and Favorite. The latest addition to the line, the $100 console shown in the accompanying illustration, has not yet been christened. The retail prices will range from $125 to $250 for the uprights and $100 to $275 for the consoles.

Kimberley phonographs are well known to the general trade, as they have been marketed for the past five years and are now being sold by dealers throughout the country. The instruments are manufactured in the company's up-to-date plant in Perth Amboy, and particular attention is devoted to the cabinet design and finish. All of the models in the present line will include in their equipment an all-brass tone arm and sound box which were selected by the company after extended tests.

David Isenberg, president of the Kimberley Phonograph Co., is well known in the talking machine trade, and under his capable direction the sales totals have increased steadily. Mr. Isenberg gives his personal attention to the manufacturing and merchandising of the instruments, and his thorough knowledge of the dealers' requirements has enabled him to give the Kimberley clientele practical co-operation. Included in the plans for the Fall campaign will be the appointment of jobbers in a few territories that are now open.

Edward Skinner, of the Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, returned Tuesday after Labor Day from a one week's vacation, during part of which he called on the music merchants located in eastern Pennsylvania.

Fair Crops in Southeastern Territory Brighten Fall Outlook—The Month's Trade Activities

ATLANTA, GA., September 7.—August in the main has been a month of considerable business and the feeling is well developed that the South will have the best Fall since the depression struck. Crops in general are at least fair, although cotton in many sections is far from normal. The worst-hit sections have developed other crops to at least partly take its place and the good prices will mean profits to those who do get a goodly number of bales.

B. J. Shepperd Co., Victor dealer, of Savannah, Ga., is reported as planning to move to a more central location.

I. M. Bame, of Bame's, Inc., has returned to town after taking a well-earned vacation. He went by boat from Savannah to Philadelphia and spent some time in the City of Brotherly Love.

Strand consoles will be sold throughout south Georgia and Florida by the Empire Music Co., of Atlanta, the first move towards developing this section to the utmost being the warehousing of a complete stock of Strands in Jacksonville. This will permit of giving the dealers quick service. M. E. Lyle will maintain general supervision over the entire Southeast, but will work the trade through this new representative.

Business with the S. W. Gardner Music Co. is growing nicely. Mr. Gardner recently acquired the Victor line for Gastonia and has now fitted up the entire second story of his building as showrooms for the display and demonstration of pianos and phonographs. The Victor, Edison and Strand are the three lines featured.

The phonograph department at John L. Moore & Sons has been moved and relocated next to the art department. Space has been arranged so that the period models of the Victor and Strand are displayed in separate compartments, with the correct art surroundings. Altogether the result is one of unusual charm and general attractiveness.

M. E. Lyle has returned from a short trip into North and South Carolina. He reports business as flourishing and finds a tendency on the part of dealers to begin ordering now, as almost everyone realizes this Fall will show a great shortage of period design consoles.

Miss Florence Myers, well known to many of Atlanta's record and roll-buying public, is now connected with the Empire Music Co. at its Victrola department in High's.

W. White, proprietor of the White Music Co., Columbus, Ga., visited the local Columbia branch recently and reported that business conditions in his community are in splendid shape.

Columbia record A-3937, "Sweet Pal," is selling "big" in Memphis, Tenn., and surrounding territory. Reinhardt's, Inc., live Columbia dealer, sold the idea of "Sweet Pal" Week to all of the merchants, orchestras and picture theatres in Memphis and, as a result of this cooperation, the sales of merchandise showed a large increase. A similar program is contemplated in other Southern cities.

S. M. Frenkel, manager of Ludden & Bates, Columbia dealers, this city, is spending several weeks away from Atlanta on his vacation.

Columbia Salesman R. W. Richardson is now spending a two weeks' vacation in and around Memphis, Tenn.

DEALERS IN CANTON DISTRICT BUSY

Indications Point to Shortage of Instruments When Fall Trade Hits Its Stride—Exhibits at Fairs and Other News

CANTON, O., September 6.—Improvement in both talking machines and records is shown with the advent of September, and indications are that, when the Fall business hits its stride, there will not be sufficient stock on hand to meet the demand.

The William R. Zollinger Co., Victor dealer, presented a most striking exhibit recently at the Stark County Fair. In charge of M. E. Pyle, manager of the department, all the new Victor models were displayed and the entire September record list was demonstrated.

The Carrollton, O., branch store of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co. will be discontinued this week. The store was in charge of Al Walthamath.

George C. Wille, of the Wille Music Co., with his family, has returned from a vacation near Akron.

Announcement is made by the store of J. H. Johnson & Sons, Alliance, O., that all talking machine lines, with the exception of the Victor, will be dropped.

The Henry Ackerman Piano Co., Marion, O., will remodel its store and, when completed, will have considerably more space for the display of talking machines.

The most conspicuous exhibit at the annual Stark County Fair, held here recently, was that of the Rhines Edison Co., with stores in Canton and Massillon. Many live prospects were secured.

Seven Canton music stores will participate in the Trade Extension Week to be held the last week of the month by the Canton Merchants' Association, which has for its object the development of business.

Holiday Foresight

It is not far from the facts to say that the profit shown each year by successful Victor dealers corresponds largely with the preparation they make to meet the demand during September, October, November and December.

The dealer's choice of a dependable Victor wholesaler is becoming increasingly important. On September 1st there were seven Victor wholesalers in Greater New York as compared with eleven a year ago. This increases the responsibility of the present wholesalers. They must be ready with stock, to meet the usual heavy holiday business and, in addition, a greatly stimulated demand, which we believe is inevitable.

Victor dealers who may make changes in their source of supply cannot exercise the best holiday foresight without keenly analyzing the dependability of various Victor wholesalers.

Our holiday foresight consists in having made unusual preparation to take care of those Victor dealers who have depended upon us as their main source of supply for some time past, as well as those who are arranging to do so.

We are prepared to accept the responsibility of handling a Victor dealer's entire business if within a reasonable distance of New York. There is no kind of service or support that is desirable, reasonable and dependable that we cannot give.

Blackman Dealers again are going to be in an enviable position.

Place an order now for your estimated requirements of all Victrolas for delivery during September, October, November and December.

It has always been the Blackman Policy to allow dealers to adjust advance orders according to current needs.

Our moral obligations are highly respected by us. Therefore, dealers who cooperate with us by placing advance orders promptly are entitled to first consideration during a holiday shortage.

Why take a chance when Blackman Service costs no more?

MILWAUKEE

Outlook for Fall Business Best in Years—Machine Shortage Imminent—Trade Represented at Wisconsin Fair—The Month's News

MILWAUKEE, Wis., September 7.—Prospects for a big Fall and holiday trade—perhaps the biggest on record—appear before Milwaukee and Wisconsin talking machine dealers at this time. The trade has behind it a July and August volume that surpassed anything ever known in these so-called dull months and the early part of September has developed more than the accustomed volume as well.

The wholesale and manufacturing trade is entering the Fall season with more orders on the books and a larger Summer production than at any time since 1920 and some have even exceeded the record of that remarkable year. Operating schedules of factories call for maximum capacity until the end of the year. There is likely to be a serious shortage of instruments before December 1, it is stated, because the exceptionally heavy run of orders for the console styles keeps most factories from thirty to sixty days behind on orders for immediate delivery even at this early date. The standard upright models are selling well, too, but it is becoming more and more apparent that the console type is outdistancing the original "box" style.

Shortage of Victor Machines

In the past thirty days the shortage of Victor merchandise noted at the middle of August has been accentuated by the increase in orders from the retail trade, according to Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber for Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. While the Victor factories are operating night and day, yet the jobbing trade is unable to secure all of the instruments desired and dealers are obliged to take their turn in replenishing their floor stocks and accumulating warehouse supplies for later trade. The rural districts are producing a gratifying business.

Victor trade is especially good in the console styles, Nos. 400, 405 and 410 having an exceptionally good call. Mr. Goldsmith reports that improvement in the demand for records has continued and the Red Seal numbers are moving briskly since the price was reduced.

Excellent Brunswick Prospects

P. H. McCulloch, talking machine department manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is happy over the prospects for more liberal shipments now that the Muskegon factories are devoting the vast space formerly given over to the tire departments to the production of Brunswick instruments and records. In view of the heavy demand for the console styles, this enlargement of output is particularly gratifying, as it has been impossible to deliver anywhere near the number of instruments called for by orders of dealers in this territory. Milwaukee branch business so far this year runs easily 40 to 45 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1922, according to Mr. McCulloch.

Edison Records Selling Well

Milwaukee Edison dealers are enthusiastic over current trade and look for a big holiday business. Edison records, especially the popular numbers, are selling far better than ever before and dealers find it difficult to keep their stocks rounded out.

Heavy Increase Over Last Year

Fred E. Yahr, president of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., distributor of the Sonora and the Okeh record, says sales for the first eight months of the year were approximately equal to the sales of the entire year of 1922 and that prospects are for a very large increase over last year when 1923 comes to an end. Mr. Yahr has been devoting much of his time to the development of the musical merchandise division of his house; in fact, until a short time ago he bore the brunt of the work. Now he has acquired an able assistant in the person of Irving S. Leon, an experienced talking machine man, who already has accomplished much in broadening the scope of the organization to handle even a larger volume than before. Yahr & Lange are among the very largest Sonora and Okeh distributors in the country.

To Display at Food Exposition

Nearly all of the local jobbers and many of the dealers of Milwaukee have reserved space at the fifth annual Food and Household Exposition to be held in the Municipal Auditorium from October 15 to 21. The music industry has been given marked recognition this year and a distinct division has been given over to these exhibits. In addition the show management has arranged elaborate competitions to determine the champion pianist of Wisconsin and the champion amateur orchestra of the State. Valuable awards will be given for excellence. The second award in the piano contest is a $750 Sonora talking machine purchased from the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., musical merchandise division. Third award in the orchestra contest is a $385 Bush & Lane Duo-Vox talking machine from the Noll Piano Co.; fourth award, a $175 Aeolian-Vocalion console instrument, from the Milwaukee Piano Mfg. Co.

Exhibitors at the Wisconsin State Fair

The talking machine trade was well represented among the exhibitors at the seventy-third annual Wisconsin State Fair in Milwaukee during the week ended September 1 and all who participated report a relatively excellent result from sales solicitation, especially among out-of-town visitors, many from the rural districts. Despite a streak of rainy weather, the attendance was nearly equal to the record-breaking number admitted to the fair in 1922.

Victrolas Installed by North Shore Line

One of the newest features adopted by the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Line to make its interurban electric cars more and more popular is the installation of Victrolas in all of the new parlor observation cars which have recently been added to the service. It is the first electric line to offer such accommodations.

Now Rinzel-Tesch, Inc.

The old-established Victor house of Harry W. Krienitz, Inc., at 459 Eleventh avenue, has undergone a change of name, following the retirement of Mr. Krienitz, who has been dealing in the line in this city for more than twenty years. The new firm name is Rinzel-Tesch, Inc., and consists of Peter J. Rinzel and William H. Tesch, former associates of Mr. Krienitz.

New Branch in Oconto

Arno Maigatter, proprietor of Maigatter's Music House at Oconto Falls, Wis., has opened a branch store in Oconto, Wis., in the building recently vacated by the local post office.

Incorporated to Make New Machine

The Prairie du Chien (Wis.) Mfg. Co. has been incorporated with $20,000 capital stock to engage in the manufacture of a combination talking machine and light fixture for the home. The lamp-instrument has been in development for several years and the enterprise has received much local backing.

Watertown Dealer Incorporates

Henry J. Krier, dealer in furniture and talking machines at Watertown, Wis., has incorporated his business as the Henry J. Krier Co., with $6,000 capital. Associate incorporators are Edward C. Wolfram and Edward McAdams.

Death of John E. Dummer

John E. Dummer, treasurer of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., died August 14 after a brief illness. He was fifty years of age and joined the Yahr-Lange forces in 1908.

A New Retail House Organized

The North Avenue Music Shop, Inc., is a new corporation organized with $25,000 capital stock to deal in talking machines, pianos, etc. The incorporators are A. H. Nemitz, Hugo Honcher and Ralph Straus. The concern will open for business in a new building on North avenue.

Chas. J. Orth Expands

Charles J. Orth, Inc., a leading Brunswick dealer, has recently made extensive changes in the store which not only enlarge the floor space, but provide an exceptionally attractive new front, with a single window to take the place of the split windows originally installed. The entrance is now at the extreme left instead of the center. New demonstration and display rooms have been added and the entire store has been redecorated in beautiful style.

A feature of the remodeled store is an ingenious arrangement whereby music from a Brunswick within the store is carried out into the street by means of piping concealed from view. The outlet is at the base of the display window and is hidden by a shutter, which mystifies passersby. The scheme has none of the offensive features of loud-speaking attachments often similarly used.

CLEVELAND

Trade Planning Fall Drives—Eclipse Co.'s Financing Plan in Force—Carola Co. to Increase Output—New Agencies—The News

CLEVELAND, O., September 6.—Jobbers and retailers of this territory have set their courses for the Fall and Winter business. Present indications are that this will be the biggest year in the history of the industry. Contrary to reports, industrial activities have not lessened. Official figures show that the Cleveland district population has increased in the last year by 90,000, which, according to the usual average, means close to 20,000 families that have to be provided with housing and the things, musical and otherwise, that make home as well.

The Eclipse Co.'s Financing Plan

The jobbing element has been extending itself to aid the retailer to cash in on the new business that the many encouraging factors will create. One of these is the new financing plan of the Eclipse Musical Co., which will give the retailer new money to do more business with, though not necessitating the acquisition of additional outside capital. This has been accomplished through a special arrangement with a financial institution by Edward B. Lyons, general manager, the Eclipse.

The plan differs somewhat from other similar arrangements in that the Eclipse, as the wholesaler, is the medium through which the deferred payment accounts are discounted. The same principle of the dealer making his collections from the customer holds in this instance, so that the contact between dealer and customer, and between dealer and jobber, is maintained. The plan has been in operation only a few weeks, but already dealers are taking advantage of it and acquainting themselves with its possibilities before the time that they will need it most—this Fall and Winter.

Artists' Appearances to Help

Another effort that will bring good results for the dealer later on is the continuance of the personal appearance of artists programmed by the Cleveland district Brunswick organization, under management of Leslie I. King. The Benjie Krueger Orchestra is being used by many dealers in the Pittsburgh territory at this time, attracting attention to their stores that will make for business building during the Fall.

A like effort has been put forth by the Columbia district office here, under the management of S. S. Larmon. One of the most successful ventures in this connection has been with the Lassies-Whites Minstrels, Columbia artists, co-operating with the I. Corsuch Co., at Springfield.

Sonora to Tie Up With Fairs

County fairs will be used extensively by the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. this year, with direct tie-ups for dealers. First of these was the Lake County Fair, at Painesville, with the McLean Music Co. participating, and another, the Montgomery County Fair, at Dayton, for the Wayne Music Co., of that city. All kinds of literature and advertising material will be supplied from the Cleveland offices, according to General Manager J. T. Pringle, with special service from traveling representatives wherever they are found to be needed.

Carola Extending Operations

Extension of its operations in this and other countries is being made by the Carola Co. Improvements in the plant will provide an additional output by 50 per cent, according to N. I. Schwartz, general manager. Improvements have been made in the models themselves, the cabinet type being finished in several colors of baked enamel and the portable in a high-grade leather finish. Not only is the entire country now covered, with 1,500 representatives in all the States of the Union, but business is being closed in foreign countries, notably New Zealand, Australia, Japan and Porto Rico.

New Brunswick Agencies

Among the Brunswick establishments to open is that of Hagemester Bros., at St. Clair and East 139th streets. The Hagemesters formerly were in the drug business and handled talking machines in a small way. They saw possibilities, were weaned away from the drug business and now are regular talking machine dealers. Walter Hagemester formerly stood so strongly in druggdom that for a considerable period he was president of the Northern Ohio Druggists' Association. Other new Brunswick establishments include the Colonial Music Co., at the Cleveland "Y"; the United Music Co., in the new residential section at Kinsman and East 123rd streets, and the Brunswick Music Shoppe at Elyria.

Wolfe Music Co. Opens Branch

Still another new establishment, but an old firm, is the uptown branch of the Wolfe Music Co., at St. Clair and East 125th streets. This branch has been patterned somewhat after the main store downtown, though not quite so elaborate. Souvenirs, silver needle cases, were distributed and many manufacturers' and jobbers' representatives called during opening week. The Victor line is featured at both Wolfe stores.

Letters Show Business Can Be Secured

Another aid to doubting Thomas dealers, and one that contains a punch without hitting too hard, is contained in a series of peppy letters being sent out by the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. These letters, at the start, have told of a certain dealer, name not mentioned, who doubted that there was any business, but thought he would try to stir up some by the old reliable method of house-to-house calls. The first week brought him two sales for his effort. This encouraged him. The next week brought a better showing, and he is keeping this program up right along. The big thing the jobber aims to show, points out Howard J. Shartle, general manager, is that the business is to be had, only it needs a little going after to get it.

Selling Newspapers on Free Publicity

Dealers themselves are seeing the possibilities in advertising, and this is notably so in connection with the work the Brunswick interests in Cleveland are doing for Brunswick dealers. In connection with the campaign on personal appearances of artists, newspapers in the different cities have been induced to run in their news columns material on the concerts. With few exceptions, according to L. S. McLeod, branch manager, newspapers have responded and dealers, in turn, have returned the favor by taking paid advertising space. Without exception all dealers can trace new business, and increased business from old clients, as a result of this publicity. The move, in the opinion of Mr. McLeod, is proof that newspapers can come to recognize the material that the dealer sells as music, rather than merely merchandise.

Edison Dealers Getting the Business

The sales contest which is being conducted by the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with offices in this city and Cincinnati, to date has been productive of much business for those dealers who are participating, and this means practically every Edison dealer served by the Phonograph Co. Points are awarded to contestants on the basis of sales, and the dealers have been placed in classes according to the populations of the communities which they serve. As a result of the contest the energies of the dealers have been stimulated to such an extent that most of them enter the Fall season with better sales totals than was the case a year ago and, from all indications, this year will be a banner one.

Schafer Handles Columbia

Additions to the Columbia family include the new establishment of the Schafer Music House, at Batavia, N. Y., and Giba's Variety Store, at Toledo, both handsome stores.

Makes Dollar Day Pay

It may be that some dealers take advantage of jobbers' suggestions more consistently than others, but the experience of Johnston's Music House, with two stores in Detroit, as told by H. C. Schultz, Detroit representative of Columbia, is an apt illustration. At Ferndale, Detroit suburb, merchants decided to put on a Dollar Day. Johnston's spotted an empty store near the center of town, filled it up with records, machines, sheet music and the like, hired musicians in attractive costume, imported some of the music publishers' song pluggers and, in fact, conducted a jamboree of music for one day. This particular part of the festivities was a center of attraction through the day, many machines were sold, many more records and sheet music copies were disposed of, and the whole affair proved lasting in publicity effect, as a considerable volume of new business at home has proved since.

Eagerly Awaits New Red Seals

Double-facing of Red Seal records by the Victor interests is one of the best gains for business and for better music, in the opinion of W. D. Sayle, executive of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co. Long before these records were ready for delivery, later in September, many dealers had anticipated their requirements and had impressed the value of the new records upon their clientele, according to Mr. Sayle. Victor jobbers here have consistently advocated better music as a powerful force in the perpetuation of the talking machine industry and this move is a step in that direction, dealers now realize.

C. L. Marshall Co. Adds to Staff

The C. L. Marshall Co., of this city, distributor of the Pooley and Outing phonographs and Vocalion Red records, is leaving nothing undone to prepare for a banner Fall trade. The company recently added to its sales staff Clair Osterling, formerly associated with the Stradivara Co., who will cover northern Ohio, and W. C. Bickham, previously connected with the Capitol Music Co., of Columbus, who will cover southern Ohio and Kentucky. Among the new Pooley accounts opened recently were F. H. Frazelle, Toledo, O.; A. E. Coen Furniture Co., of Bowling Green, Ky., and the Baker Music Co., Marion, O. The prospects are splendid for future business and the August sales totals for the Vocalion record department showed a substantial increase. C. L. Marshall, head of the company, returned recently from his "last" fishing trip of the season, during which he demonstrated conclusively his ability as a fisherman.

Many New Sonora Franchises

Among the more recent additions of new dealers to the fold in and near Cleveland are included many who have joined with Sonora. These are the Madison Music Shoppe, Lakewood; Boyer & Smith Music Shop, Lancaster; George T. Peters, Ashville, and the Ober Furniture Co., Chagrin Falls. These have been added during the recent trips of J. L. Du Breuil, sales manager, and Carl E. Kraner, southern Ohio representative.

Meanwhile some of the new period models of Sonora, which have been promised from the Saginaw factory, have reached Cleveland and literature on these will be distributed immediately.

Billboards Prove Good Advertising

Billboards as productive of new business have proved immediately successful, according to information gathered by J. T. Pringle, general manager, the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co., from the Loewer Co., Columbus. This firm started some time back with one or two boards as an experiment. Now these are placed at all important points in and near the city, each of them painted and carrying a reproduction of some Sonora model.

Late President's Records in Demand

Now that he is gone the words of the late President Harding are cherished more than ever and this seems proved by the large number of records made by him, which include the speech on patriotism and "Lead, Kindly Light," which were produced by Columbia. During the period of mourning and since many dealers have disposed of large quantities of these records and have used window displays with Mr. Harding's picture, flags and mourning material.

Bessie Smith selections are selling stronger than ever, according to the Frey-Magnon Co., live Columbia dealer in Ybor City, Fla. Mr. Magnon has distributed several thousand fliers recently, listing all of Bessie Smith's selections.

EDISON RECORDING STAFF BUSY

Following a week's vacation the recording staff of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., has resumed operations. Some of the most recent recordings made for early release include several by Charles Matson's Creole Serenaders for the Edison race record catalog. There are also a number of new recordings by Willie Creager's Dance Orchestra and Kaplan's Melodists, two popular aggregations of artists.

MAKES EDISON SALES AT FAIR

BURLINGTON, IA., September 7.—At the Tri-State Fair held in this city the early part of August a very successful exhibit was made by the Paule Jewelry Co., Edison dealer. Practically every one of the instruments included in the display was sold at the Fair, which is not a common occurrence at events of this character.

Caveat Emptor

Is no longer the cry

When the Roman Empire had reached the pinnacle of political achievement, its commercial structure fell for lack of business confidence.

Caveat Emptor (Let the buyer beware) was the cry of the multitude. But in those days the public had nothing by which to measure the value of goods or the integrity of the maker.

The harp was the most commonly known instrument, but there were hundreds of different harps sold at what price could be got. What the harp was to the Romans the Victrola is to America today. Caveat Emptor is no longer the cry. The Victrola is the gold standard of value in musical instruments. That is why the business of Victor dealers remains more steadfast through temporary periods of fluctuation.

Music merchants in Northern Ohio who are enjoying Victor business also know what it means to have 24-hour Eclipse Service. Are you one of them?

Dealers and Jobbers Report Satisfactory Sales—A. C. Hawkins Tenders Resignation—Many New Agencies Established—The News

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 6.—F. X. Donovan, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., which handles Cheney, Victor and Vocalion machines, has just returned from the Cheney factory at Grand Rapids, Mich. The Cheney console is going well in local trade and is proving a popular type. This company is featuring a special sale of used instruments which has proved a stimulant to business. R. W. Shufflebarger has been added to the sales force.

Mr. Friedman, manager of the phonograph department of Charles Mayer & Co., reports an unusual business in Sonora machines for August. Part of this gain is attributed to the newspaper advertising and the feature sale on discontinued models. Ira Williams, Victor dealer of the New York Store, is preparing for a good Fall business. R. R. Follis, manager of the talking machine department of L. S. Ayers, reports a popular demand for Victor consoles. The reduction of price in Red Seal records has resulted in increasing the demand at this store.

C. P. Herderman, Brunswick dealer, reports that sales for the last six months have shown about a 20 per cent increase over a like period of last year. The Raleigh type of Brunswick has shown the largest sale and is proving so popular that it has been difficult for this store to keep their deliveries up with their sales. The record business at this store has been better than during last August.

A. C. Hawkins, formerly secretary-treasurer and manager of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., Victor dealer, has resigned. The vacancy thus created has not yet been filled.

Frederick Pullen, manager of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, states that the first week of August showed about 100 per cent increase over any week for the previous three months. New dealers continue to be established, chief among whom are A. C. Stephenson, Jasonville, Ind.; H. T. Walker, Montpelier, Ind.; E. T. Marshall, Martin, Ill.; Buzard Bros., Shelburn, Ind.; F. W. Shrieman, Corydon, Ind.; Mr. Scott, of Haines-Essex, Decatur, Ill., and D. H. Lloyd, Champaign, Ill. Jewell Carpmill, accountant and office manager, is leaving for Florida the first of November and Roy S. Carson, it is announced, will fill his place. Joseph Wilson, assistant secretary of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., was a visitor here the latter part of August.

W. H. Meskill, Edison dealer, is well pleased with business in Edison products. His plan has been to make a complete canvass of the homes, gathering data for future as well as present use. He has secured space in the weekly program book of Keith's Vaudeville House and arranged announcements at some of the local motion picture houses. This advertising, he feels, will produce results desired in increasing Edison sales.

John McKenna, manager of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co. and vice-president of the Piano Club of Chicago, along with A. B. Creal, regional representative, and C. E. Beisel, is covering the Middle Western States, interviewing dealers and displaying the new motor for Columbia machines. They are, likewise, showing all the late Columbia models. The showing was made at a local hotel August 26 to 31. The distinct features of the new motor are the three springs that work independent of each other, enabling the motor to run, although one or two of the springs may be broken; the tone arm and motor constructed all in one piece; the central oiling system from the outside; new reproducing device and automatic start and stop.

The Gennett records have sold well during August, according to T. H. Brackin, local manager of the Starr Piano Co.

One of the busiest wholesale concerns in this territory is the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, Edison jobber, which has opened many new Edison accounts throughout this territory recently. The growing demand both for instruments and records indicates that dealers are enjoying a prosperous season and general reports from dealers in all sections show that Edison retailers throughout the district are in an optimistic frame of mind concerning Fall prospects for a satisfactory business.

ANNOUNCE NEW EDISON SUPPLEMENTS

The next record supplements to be issued by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., will be changed considerably. The new size will be 3¼ inches by 6¼ inches and, hence, suitable for enclosing in the ordinary size envelopes. It will be printed in two colors on a special glossy stock. The cover page is of a striking sort and bears the title "Edison Recent Record Releases." This new style of supplement will be used hereafter as the standard form.

EDISON ARTIST BACK FROM EUROPE

Albert Spaulding, famous violinist and Edison artist, is expected back from Europe shortly. His forthcoming season will include his thirty-sixth appearance as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra.

Industrial Prosperity Basis for Optimism Throughout the Local Trade—Dealers Plan for Fall—News and Activities of the Month

PITTSBURGH, PA., September 7.—Talking machine dealers here are unanimous in their expressions that every indication points to a well-defined Fall and holiday business of real magnitude. Naturally this is founded on the excellent industrial conditions that prevail in the Pittsburgh and adjoining districts. In a word, busy mills mean big payrolls, and this is always reflected in brisk business, in which the talking machine trade is bound to share.

Rosenbaum Co. Adds Brunswick

One of the outstanding events of the past few days in talking machine circles here was the announcement by the Rosenbaum Co. of the taking on in its talking machine department of the Brunswick line. Chauncey R. Parsons, manager of the department, stated that the business in the Victor and Sonora lines for the past few weeks had been exceptionally good, and that with the addition of the Brunswick line there was given the buying public a choice of three of the leading talking machines. Mr. Parsons is very optimistic relative to the outlook for the Fall trade, and is making preparations for what he terms a "big business."

Planning Series of Edison Tone-tests

With the usual up-to-date business methods that have always characterized the Buehn Phonograph Co. and made it one of the leading talking machine distributors in western Pennsylvania, announcement had been made of a series of tone-tests to be held in the Pittsburgh Zone by Edison dealers during the early part of October. The artists will be Miss Elizabeth Spencer, vocalist, and Harold Lyman, flutist, with a piano accompanist. A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the Buehn Phonograph Co., stated that advance orders for the Edison line were quite flattering and that he anticipated a highly satisfactory volume of business. A new Edison dealer who will be served by the Buehn Co. is the firm of Buchheit Bros., of Indiana, Pa.

Victor Prospects Very Bright With Mellor

Thomas T. Evans, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., before going "down on the farm" for a well-earned vacation, stated to The World representative that he stood "pat" on his previous expressions relative to an impending shortage of Victor merchandise. Mr. Evans stated that as far as he could ascertain by careful study and investigation in his territory the Victor business will be much greater than ever and that the live Victor dealer who has prepared for the requirements of his community will undoubtedly have a very prosperous Fall and holiday season.

W. C. Dierks, treasurer and general manager of the C. C. Mellor Co., spent several days at Lexington, Ky., at the horse fete.

H. H. Fleeer, manager of the retail Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., is back at his desk after a vacation outing at Lake Chautauqua. Mr. Fleeer is looking forward to a very good season in Victrolas and Victor records.

Sell "Blossom Time" Records

During the week of September 3 the musical play "Blossom Time," a Franz Schubert interpretation, was given at the Alvin Theatre. Victor talking machine dealers had the Victor records with the music of the operetta on sale.

Says the Tide Has Turned

John Henk, of the Columbia Music Co., Edison and Columbia dealer, reports a brisk trade for the past two weeks and stated that he was sure that a turn in the business channel had come and that from now on there would be a more pronounced demand for the Columbia and Edison lines.

Friends Seeking Newton B. Heims

Friends of Newton B. Heims, formerly engaged in the talking machine trade, with offices in the Jenkins Arcade, are eager to learn of his present whereabouts. Advertisements have been placed in the Pittsburgh newspapers to that effect. He has not been heard from for some time. Mr. Heims was, prior to engaging in business for himself, connected with the W. F. Frederick Piano Co.

Columbia Manager Enthusiastic

S. H. Nichols, the well-known and popular manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., spent several weeks at Battle Creek, Mich., on his vacation. Mr. Nichols is highly pleased with the trend of business in the Columbia line and says that with the new Columbia models and the new process Columbia records the Columbia dealers will be in a strong position. Mr. Nichols previously had made a trip through West Virginia and found a very optimistic spirit prevailing among the trade.

Harry Goldman, the Columbia dealer in Broughton, Pa., has completed his new Columbia Grafonola Shop—a model of its kind.

Sees Record-breaking Fall

Frank Dorian, of the General Radio Corp., Strand phonograph and Okeh record distributor, as well as dealer in the "Geraco" products, states that the Fall trade was bound to be a record breaker, basing his views on the general line of orders that had been booked.

Columbias in Demonstrating Rooms

The Waterson, Berlin & Snyder Song Shop, on Fifth avenue, has been made more modern by the introduction of the new Columbia automatic stop and start phonographs in its hearing rooms. This feature of the new model will save much time in demonstration.

G. A. Breslin, of Volshon & Breslin, Northside Columbia dealers, has returned from a vacation trip to Lake Erie.

Planning Strong Sonora Campaign

H. Milton Miller, manager of the Sonora Distributing Co., stated that there was every indication that "the Sonora line will be more popular than ever this season." Mr. Miller emphasized the fact that the Sonora dealers are preparing for an intensive campaign for sales, in which they will have the co-operation of the company.

Progress of Starr Products

Paul S. Mechling, sales manager of the Dawson Bros. Piano Co., Starr phonograph and Genett record dealer, stated that the Starr line was meeting with notable success in its introduction into many homes of residents of the Tri-State territory. Mr. Mechling has just returned from a camping trip to Slippery Rock, Pa. C. L. Dawson, president of the firm, spent the Summer in a series of long automobile trips. Mr. Dawson is very fond of automobiling and takes advantage of every fine day that he can leave the office early to "take a spin."

Looks for Active September

R. R. Myers, the manager of the Victor department of Spear & Co., stated that there was a fair volume of business handled during August and that the indications for September were "most flattering." Mr. Myers has a fine and well-equipped department under his direction.

Department Stores Well Prepared

The large department stores such as the Joseph Horne Co., which handles Victor, Sonora, Cheney and Pooley phonographs; Boggs & Buhl, with the Victor, Cheney and Columbia; Kaufmann & Baer Co., with the Victor, Strand and Nightingale, and Kaufmann's with the Victor, are fully equipped for the Fall business. A. R. Meyers, of Horne's; Henry Wood, of Boggs & Buhl; Frank J. Coyne, of Kaufmann & Baer Co., and Mrs. C. H. Walrath, of Kaufmann's, all experts in talking machine salesmanship programs, are convinced that the Fall business will be a highly satisfactory one.

C. C. Latus to Visit Europe

C. C. Latus, Pittsburgh correspondent of The World, and executive secretary of the Piano Merchants' Association of Pittsburgh, sails on September 12 on the steamer Paris of the French Line for a short tour of Europe. He will visit France, Switzerland, Austria, Great Britain, Germany and Holland, and will return to Pittsburgh the last week in October. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Latus.

Good Salesmanship Will Win Out

George H. Rewbridge, the energetic manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., is very optimistic concerning the Fall and holiday sales of the Victor lines. He said: "There is bound to be an unprecedented sale of Victor talking machines and Victor records this Fall, due to the fact that the Victor retail dealers are keenly alive to the possibilities of up-to-date salesmanship when properly exploited in talking machine circles."

George S. Hards, the well-known Victor dealer of Dormont, a suburb of Pittsburgh, reports the outlook good for the Fall season.

KIRALY VISITS COLUMBIA OFFICES

Famous Hungarian Baritone and Exclusive Columbia Artist Now on Concert Tour—Will Make Columbia Records Here

A recent visitor to the executive offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co. of New York was Ernest Kiraly, the famous Hungarian baritone, who arrived in this country a short while ago to fill a twelve weeks' engagement on the concert stage. Mr. Kiraly, who is a resident of Budapest, has been making records for the Columbia Co. for the past twelve years, recording all of his numbers at the Columbia laboratories in Vienna. He is recognized as one of the foremost interpreters of Hungarian folk songs and is popular throughout Europe.

During his visit to the Columbia offices Mr. Kiraly expressed his keen appreciation of the tone quality and smooth surface of the New Process Columbia records, and was so interested in this product that he arranged to make a series of records in New York. While here Mr. Kiraly emphasized the fact that he has confined his recording activities to the Columbia Co. exclusively during his entire experience. He stated that during the war some of his records had reached outside channels, owing to the automatic suspension of his contract and the consequent distribution of his records as a subject of free trading.

In an official statement issued to the Hungarian newspapers recently Mr. Kiraly advised the public that he had never made anything but Columbia records and was working under an exclusive Columbia contract. Simultaneously with his present concert tour the Columbia Co. has received twelve of Mr. Kiraly's recordings from Vienna, which will be released in the near future.

THOS. F. GREEN RETURNS TO DESK

President of Silas E. Pearsall Co. Recovers From Recent Illness—Welcomes Brother After Latter's Trip Abroad

The many friends in the trade of Thomas F. Green, president of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., Victor wholesaler, will be glad to know that this popular Victor executive is back at his desk after an extended illness. For the time being Mr. Green is "taking it easy," but he is fast regaining his usual health and vigor. A few days ago Mr. Green and the members of his family welcomed Mr. Green's brother, Milton C., who returned on the "Berengaria," after a trip abroad. Included in his luggage was a police dog which is now the center of attraction for the Green youngsters at their beautiful home in Great Neck, L. I.

W. D. WILEY'S WORK FOR MUSIC

ANNA, ILL., September 1.—Union County, Ill., has been much interested in music appreciation work for several years. For the fourth time in as many years a place on the program of the Union County Teachers' Institute was given to a Victor representative. Miss Golda Airy, of the educational department of the Koerber-Brenner Co., was in charge of the singing this year and gave two demonstrations each day of the teaching of music appreciation.

The Institute was held in Anna, Ill., August 21-24. W. D. Wiley is the Victor dealer in Anna and he had an extensive exhibit of Victrolas and Victor literature, as well as of school supplies, which he handles.

Mr. Wiley has used recently, with success, mimeographed copies of post-cards bearing news of new records. "Baby Sister Blues" was the occasion for a card which had the distinction of being illustrated by the famous cartoonist, Willard, of Chicago, who was visiting in his home town, Anna, opportunely.

ANOTHER OKEH WEDDING

The office staff of the General Phonograph Corp., 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York, lost one of its veterans this week when Miss Elsa Schumaker resigned as a member of the organization to prepare for her marriage to Richard Wilemborg. Miss Schumaker, who has been secretary to W. G. Pilgrim, treasurer of the organization for the past few years, joined the General Phonograph Corp.'s staff in 1915, and since that time has been one of the most popular and efficient members of the organization. She leaves with the good wishes of her co-workers, who joined in giving her a testimonial luncheon.

TOLEDO

Jobbers Rushed as Dealers Prepare for Big Fall Trade—Optimism Grows With Sales—The News

TOLEDO, O., September 6.—With the advent of September, dealers are turning their attention to putting over a record Fall talking machine volume. Summer sales have eclipsed the showing of any similar season within the past three years. Therefore, merchants are highly optimistic about the immediate future. Moreover, local retailers realize that a shortage of new console models is very probable, and many are placing orders for a sufficient number of machines to take care of Autumn needs.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, is swamped with orders for the new consoles as well as Red Seal records. Retailers are using this record shift as a talking point and urge customers to buy at what is termed a reduction in price. The weekly Victor record release, which will become effective the 21st, will have the hearty co-operation of dealers. Several are already planning to employ unusual display schemes in connection with the records announced for release on that day.

Trade during August, Chas. H. Womeldorff states, was good—recording another increase. The September outlook is bright and this month will be one of the biggest months of the year. Wm. B. Gannon, Michigan representative of the house, and family are motoring in the East. A. S. Leybourne, office manager, and family motored to Niagara Falls. Chas. H. Womeldorff motored to Middleport, O., for a visit with his mother.

At the J. W. Greene Co. sales continue to grow. On a recent Saturday the listening booth capacity of the department overflowed into the sales and office sections.

A direct-mail letter campaign was launched the first of the month, inviting patrons to come and listen to the better records, including Red

Seal releases. Considerable business resulted. The record approval plan which is operated on a wide scale here has been changed to the extent that customers using this service must now return all records not retained to the store within twenty-four hours. Cheney, Brunswick and Victrola rooms are nearing completion for the store opening, which will be an event of September. Pratt Egbert, well-known talking machine salesman, has joined the J. W. Greene sales force. Kenneth Kneisel will manage the new small goods department which will be opened this Fall.

Grinnell Bros. experienced a splendid August volume. Models 400 and 405 Victrolas sold more rapidly than they could be supplied. Orders are already booked for holiday delivery. The house is experiencing a shortage of many Red Seal records. The twenty-three Grinnell stores throughout Ohio, Indiana and Michigan are closing a volume which exceeds that of a year ago.

At the Lion Store Music Rooms, Fall trade has opened in earnest. The sales increase here is a large one. At the present time there are six more sales ladies employed in the department than there were last year at this time. Four girls were added the past week, A. J. Pete states. Six new demonstration booths will be added during the month and a new rapid-service elevator which will discharge and take on passengers in the department is a new service feature. John Croxton, son of Frank Croxton, of the Eight Victor Artists, has been named assistant manager of the department.

Frank H. Frazelle Piano Co., through its outside force, is bringing to the notice of prospects the Canterbury and Kenilworth Sonora models. Also the latest Vocalion phonograph.

The Goosman Piano Co. is achieving fine results with the 50 per cent record stock-buying plan. That is, next week's buying will be one-half of this week's sales. Through the system stocks are always fresh. Records are not regarded as hits, but as numbers to be sold. Hits usually last about three weeks and often leave many unsold numbers. The plan increases turnover and keeps stock assortments complete, according to Miss Grace Greenman.

Fred N. Goosman will attend the convention of the Ohio Music Merchants' Association at Cincinnati, O., September 10.

The Whitney-Blaine-Wildermuth Co. is centering efforts upon the 400, 405 and 410 Victrolas. The drive marks the beginning of a Fall campaign which has for its aim the building of a clientele among the middle-class buyers. The Zenith radio outfit is dealt in here. After cooler weather comes demonstrations will be carried on. David Blaine, president, and Henry Wildermuth, treasurer, have reservations at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati, for the Ohio convention.

The Cable Company has adopted the plan of featuring a new record every other day with good results. Victors, Brunswicks and Columbias are featured. Window displays match the newspaper and store announcements of records and machines, thus tying the three into one great business-building force. P. F. Thomas and Howard Roth, salesmen, are vacationing in northern Michigan.

H. G. Pulfrey, formerly of the Cable Company, Toledo, but now manager of the University Music Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., is moving his family to that city.

F. Q. Edwards, manager of the La Salle & Koch Co., is vacationing on Thunder Bay, Wis.

Rae's Record Shop, Vocalion and Columbia dealer, has inaugurated a Fall sales drive.

The Da-Lite-Electric Display Co., 116 North Erie street, starting September 21, will issue a panel a week to its service customers. This is to conform to the Victor record release. Merchants hereafter will receive fifty-two panels a year. Moreover, twelve Red Seal panels will be issued to the Victor trade October 1 as a special service to Victor dealers who desire to push records of better music.

Henry Wasserman, of the United Music Co., is convalescing at Mount Clemens, Mich., after a severe sick spell.

Another Use For Loud Speaker

When the static is too great for radio reception your AUDIOPHONE Loud Speaker can be used with the Bristol Phonograph Record Reproducer on your phonograph. Then you may have concert or dance program without interruption.

Attached instantly without mutilating the instrument in any way—the Bristol Phonograph Record Reproducer can be used with any make of phonograph.

Equipped with such an outfit there are no disappointments—it is always ready—never fails. For dance music you have the equivalent of an orchestra, but without the expense.

The tone of the phonograph thus amplified thru the AUDIOPHONE has volume enough to fill large rooms and the quality is round—smooth—and beautiful—entirely free from mechanical noises.

Remember that the same AUDIOPHONE Loud Speaker is used in common for both radio reception and phonograph record reproduction.

Write for Bulletin 3007 and we will advise where you may hear a demonstration.

BALTIMORE

Rush of Orders for Fall Stocks Keeping Wholesalers Busy—Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., Elects—News and Activities of Month

BALTIMORE, Md., September 10.—While the retail trade here last month was rather quiet the local jobbers report one of the biggest months in the history of the business. Fall and Winter orders are being placed in much larger numbers than for several years, and ability to fill orders already booked is the principal cause for worry.

August is termed the "vacation month" here, and added to this is the fact that last month was one of the hottest Augusts experienced in many years, which accounts for the dropping off in the retail business. Another reason assigned by a number of dealers is that many of the department stores advertised sales of cut price machines, ranging in price from $49 up, which also had a tendency to curtail business of the music shops.

Dealers generally, however, are optimistic over the outlook for Fall and Winter trade, and are placing larger orders than has been the rule, since the peak of "wartime prosperity," and, as one retail dealer put it, "every cloud has its silver lining, and the silver lining to the 'bargain sales' held by the department stores last month is that we are beginning to have good results from them in the way of record sales. Since about the middle of August my record sales have almost doubled, and hundreds of new customers have been made for the firm. I also anticipate selling some new machines and never overlook an opportunity to demonstrate the advantage of a standard make machine over those that are manufactured for quick turnovers in the way of 'bargain sales.'"

Report Substantial Increases in Sales

E. F. Droop & Sons, local Victor jobbers, is one of the houses reporting a substantial increase in sales last month, which, according to Manager W. C. Roberts, makes eight consecutive months this year showing an increase over the corresponding periods of last year. "In fact," said Mr. Roberts, "my only anxiety now is, will I be able to supply the orders that we have already booked? This is especially true of the 210's and 80's, on both of which types we have been oversold for nearly a year. These machines are the most popular among our trade, and we have never been able to keep our orders on these two types filled since last October."

Mr. Roberts, who has just returned from a three-weeks' trip to Maine, is very optimistic over the outlook for Fall and Winter, and confidently predicts that he will have no trouble in keeping up his record of each month, beating the corresponding month of last year.

C. F. Shaw, manager of the local Brunswick agency, is another jobber who is very enthusiastic over the business done last month as well as the advance orders booked for Fall and Winter. The agency has been oversold for some time on most of the popular types, especially the York machine, and he looks for even better results on their new console, the Raleigh, the advance orders on which are very satisfactory, according to Mr. Shaw.

These two reports are practically the same as are being made by the other jobbers here, including the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., distributors of the Columbia machines; Cohen & Hughes, Inc., and Eisenbrandt's, the other two Victor jobbers.

The Voluna Corp., manufacturer of the Voluna reproducer, is preparing to put its new Voluna machine on the market after making a number of improvements in the original model.

Cohen & Hughes' Activities

F. J. Totten, sales manager of the Baltimore and Washington branches of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., has been spending several days a week here, during the absence of T. Ralph Clark, local sales manager, who is away on vacation at Atlantic City and also paying a visit to his former home in Philadelphia. Mr. Totten said business of both houses was very good and the August business of the Washington branch was the best of any month on record.

Officers of Columbia Wholesalers, Inc.

L. L. Andrews has been elected president of Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., and W. H. Swartz continues as secretary and treasurer. J. H. Swope, vice-president of the Western National Bank, has been elected as a director.

The executives of this institution are immensely pleased over the big increase in business being shown over the same period of the previous year. With only a slight increase in the number of dealers, there has been an average increase for the five months since organization of approximately 200 per cent. This increase applies on both phonographs and records—but especially the latter, as there is a great scarcity of phonographs.

Visitors to Columbia Headquarters

Visitors to the local Columbia branch recently included Messrs. Funkhouser and Minium, of the M. P. Moller Co., Hagerstown, Md.; C. F. Rotering, of Emmitsburg, Md.; L. M. Harrell, Jr., of Portsmouth, Va.; Fred Y. Mills, of Hagerstown, Md.; Morris Baron, of the Shecter Music Co., Cumberland, Md.; Mr. Medaniels, of Adkins & Co., Lynehburg, Va.; M. Philips, of Washington, D. C., and Sol. Friedberg, of the Grafonola Shop, Norfolk, Va.

Wm. Biel Returns From Europe

Wm. Biel, secretary of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Victor distributor of this city, accompanied by Mrs. Biel, arrived home on the Aquitania on September 6. Mr. and Mrs. Biel spent an enjoyable time visiting the many points of interest in England, Ireland, Scotland and France.

I. Son Cohen, president of the company, in speaking of the Fall outlook, bespoke the cooperation of the dealer in the early ordering and acceptance of merchandise, and in return pledged every facility of his firm in the delivery of goods throughout the busy month ahead to the best of their ability.

Equip New Brunswick Display Rooms

Manager C. F. Shaw, of the local Brunswick headquarters, has made many improvements in the way of new display rooms for machines and records as well as enlarging the office in order to meet the demands of the growing business of the branch, which has almost doubled in the past year. Mr. Shaw reports excellent results from the dealers' co-operative advertising campaign which the Brunswick is putting on throughout the country, Harry C. Grove and Chas. Schwartz & Sons, both of Washington, being two of the latest of the larger dealers in this territory to sign up.

The opening of the Hagerstown Brunswick Music Shop on the first of the month was one of the events of the town, according to E. Wallerstein, Hagerstown representative, who assisted in the opening of the handsome new store at 14 East Washington street, of which Dever P. Stewart is the proprietor.

H. H. Sheldon, assistant manager of the Brunswick agency is back on the job again after paying a visit to his old home in St. Louis.

Mrs. Haenle, of the New York branch of the Brunswick, is making a trip through the local territory giving sales lectures in the Brunswick stores in all the principal cities.

Pathé Agency With A. L. Rose & Co.

A. L. Rose & Co., who have taken over the Pathé agency here for both machines and records, report very good results from a corner store sale of cabinets, which they have placed in a number of stores throughout the city. The cabinets hold 12 records and are changed or replenished each week. They installed one of their electric machines at a carnival for the benefit of a local hospital last week and supplied dance music for a large crowd.

The Hammann-Levin Co. reports excellent results during the past month from a feature sale of Carola portable machines.

H. Kippnes, local distributor of the Phonolamp, contemplates moving from his present location at 105 North Eutaw street and will probably locate in the shopping district.

Files Articles of Incorporation

The Record Distributing Co., Inc., 2227 Pennsylvania avenue, has filed articles of incorporation with the State Tax Commission. The company is capitalized at $10,000 and is authorized to manufacture and deal in phonographs and records, etc. The incorporators are Jacob L. Rose, Frank C. Cozzens and Arthur L. Rose.

New Columbia Dealers

New Columbia dealers in the Baltimore territory include Barker Bros., Greensboro, N. C.; Tipton Furniture Co., Hickory, N. C.; Weinberg's Department Store, Lexington, Va.; F. B. Hammann Co., this city; Weaver Piano Co.; A. S. Cross, Baltimore, Md.; C. L. Totten, Saltville, Va.; Oakland Hardware & Furniture Co., Oakland, Md.; G. S. Tucker Co., Selma, Clayton and Raleigh, N. C.

A. S. Cross, former Columbia employe, has just opened a very attractive exclusive Columbia store on Patterson Park avenue, under the name Patterson Music Shop.

Sanders & Stayman are featuring a sale of Vocalions at $100 which is meeting with big success, according to Manager Turlington.

J. H. Williams, who recently bought the store of the C. B. Noon Co., Inc., will discontinue the talking machine line after disposing of the stock on hand.

A good advertising stunt featuring—"Yes! We Have No Bananas" was used by Trout's Music Shop, this city. Mr. Trout strung about fifteen bunches of bananas in front of his store, and then gave one banana away with every record.

“Being there” when wanted is another attribute of Cohen & Hughes service. It is not thrust unwillingly on the retailer, but is ready at all times when and as needed.

Upright Instruments Stage Comeback—Showing Special Machines for Demonstration Purposes—News and Activities of the Month

St. Louis, Mo., September 6.—The seasonal pick-up in the talking machine business, scheduled for this month, arrived ahead of time, getting nicely under way in the latter part of August. The only trouble was that it caught distributors, in some instances, not fully prepared, and dealers have not been able to get all the models desired. The early start and the momentum that has been gained are interpreted as assurance of big business this Fall. Business was unexpectedly good throughout the entire month, both retail and wholesale, in city and country, and this condition still continues. The demand for machines has now definitely changed complexion from the cheaper machines for casual Summer use to the better qualities required for the home. It is a matter of comment in some quarters that there is a noticeable comeback of interest in the conventional models, in grades running over $200. Consoles, however, are still strong. In records jazz has had its swing during the Summer, but now there is an increasing call for the records of vocal and instrumental music of the better quality. This is a significant sign and bespeaks an increasing trade in this type of record during the Fall and Winter months.

New Brunswick Demonstration Machines

The local branch of the Brunswick Co. is getting ready to supply dealers with demonstration uprights to harmonize with fixtures—an ivory machine for an ivory booth, a mahogany machine for a mahogany booth, and so on. Seven enamels are to be supplied. The idea is to put an end to demonstrating machines that clash with the surroundings. The first machine, now on exhibition here, is finished in ivory. Style 117 is to be used for all the special demonstrating machines.

Fay-Buchanan Music Co. Enlarges

The Fay-Buchanan Music Co., recently incorporated, has taken over the St. Louis branch of the Connorized Music Roll Co. at Thirteenth and Olive streets. The new company will continue to distribute the Starr phonographs and Gennett records. E. E. Fay, formerly manager of the branch, is vice-president and treasurer of the new firm. L. S. Buchanan, who is associated with him, was at one time connected with the Bollman Bros. Piano Co. Latterly he has been in the real estate business.

Traces Record Sales to Opera

The successful season of Municipal Opera at Forest Park stimulated sales of light opera records. The Koerber-Brenner Music Co. traced definitely to opera influences sales of 319 "Naughty Marietta," 231 "Prince of Pilsen," 149 "Sweethearts," 293 "Merry Widow" and 143 "Spring Maid" records.

Edwin Schiele Home From Europe

Edwin Schiele, president of the Artophone Corp., and his wife, have returned from a trip to Europe. During their absence the company's place of business at 1103 Olive street was destroyed by fire. Plans are being worked out at the temporary location on Pine street, where dealers' needs are being fully looked after, for a permanent resumption, but these have not been fully completed.

New Edison Agencies

New Edison agencies have been established by the Silverstone Music Co. as follows: At Little Rock, Ark., Bowser Music Co., which has been handling the Columbia; Pine Bluff, Ark., Tedstrom Furniture Co.; Fordyce, Ark., Benton Furniture Co., which is new in the talking machine business. The accounts were obtained by G. Manne, who has just returned from a successful Southern trip.

Mark Silverstone, president of the Silverstone Music Co., Edison distributor, has been invited by Thomas A. Edison to a personal conference, and will leave soon for Orange, N. J. Myron Goldberg, vice-president of the Silverstone Music Co., has returned from an automobile tour to Atlantic City and through Canada. He was gone a month.

O. A. Reynolds, Illinois traveler for the Silverstone Music Co., has been kept at his home in Springfield, Ill., the past month on account of the illness of his wife. Paul Gold, retail manager of the Silverstone Music Co., has gone to Memphis, Tenn., on a two weeks' vacation. Miss Vivian Dewes, of the company, has returned from a vacation in the Missouri Ozarks.

this week the appointment of Arthur Bergh as general manager of the company's recording laboratories at 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York, succeeding Fred W. Hager, who had resigned from the company's service. The appointment of Mr. Bergh to this important position will be welcome news to Okeh jobbers and dealers everywhere, as he is recognized throughout the industry as one of the foremost members of the recording and musical worlds.

A pioneer in the record industry, Mr. Bergh was for a number of years general manager of several prominent recording laboratories, and in that position furnished the trade with the latest hits with maximum efficiency and rapidity. INTRODUCES THE "MAGIC-TONE"

Burton Collver Heads Company Distributing New Tone Controlling Device—Dealer Representation Now Being Secured

Burton Collver, well known in the music industry as a sales executive and more recently identified with the radio field, is now president of the Magic-Tone Sales Co., New York, N. Y., which is the sole distributor of a new device known as the "Magic Tone." The basic principle of the Magic-Tone, which is attached to the stylus bar of the reproducer, is to function as a mute, thereby modifying loud tones and absorbing a large percentage of surface noises. In his sales literature Mr. Collver states that the Magic-Tone entirely eliminates metallic harshness and, by varying the position of the device on the stylus bar, soft, medium and loud tones may be obtained.

In order to co-operate with the dealers the Magic-Tone Sales Co. has prepared an attractive counter display stand which serves as a silent salesman and, under Mr. Collver's direction, literature for mailing purposes is also ready for the use of the dealers. The first Magic-Tones were displayed in New York during July and August and the results of the tests proved so satisfactory that dealer representation on a large scale has already been secured.

BASES FOR OPTIMISM OVER THE DEMAND IN THE FALL

Publishers Just Completing One of the Most Active Summer Seasons in Their History—Merit of New Numbers Being Released Sure to Create Heavy Demand for Them

With the opening of the September season it is natural to become optimistic over the prospects for Fall, so far as popular sheet music is concerned. These rosy expectations, however, are based upon good foundations and, whether or not the early plans bring results hoped for, there is certain to be considerable activity and satisfactory business.

There are many reasons for this optimism, including the one that the publishers very often hold back for several weeks on their activities until the opening of the theatrical season. When that period arrives, however, publicity campaigns are immediately inaugurated, new numbers released, enthusiasm aroused and every department of the publishing business is put on its mettle to get an early start.

This can be said of the opening of any Fall season, but there are several angles in the present situation which can hardly be overlooked and which give more than the usual assurance of a most active Fall. The publishers have passed through one of the most active Summer periods for several seasons. This was due to the prevalence of a goodly number of successful issues. We had the spectacle this Summer of seeing a song reach over a million copies in point of sale. This, and other successes, made the music counters more active than usual. It demonstrated what has long been contended—that good songs will sell, provided intelligent merchandising methods are resorted to.

This Summer activity and the result in profits for both the publisher and dealer are the best bases for optimism; in fact, they could not be improved upon. At any rate, as far as the popular publishers are concerned, plans were never more extensive than those that are arranged for this Fall.

Another factor that is of value as a foundation for optimistic predictions is the merit of the new numbers released. The various catalogs seemingly all have several numbers that are very much worth while.

Plans to realize on the momentum in sales created during the busy Summer are covering every channel of activity. Bands, orchestras, motion picture houses and all other mediums of publicity which in the past have been found effective as creators of sales for sheet music are being indulged in by all of the leading music publishing houses.

If the numbers issued prove up to expectations a big Fall is assured. If great quantities of sheet music can be sold during the Summer months there is no question about the success of the Fall if the songs are meritorious in the sense that they meet with popular approval, upon which, of course, success depends.

A new store was recently opened in Toledo by Frank Flightner, who will feature the Columbia line of machines and records. The establishment is under the management of Jacob Frame.

MacFARLANE SINGS BALL BALLAD

Well-known Baritone Featuring "Ten Thousand Years From Now," Latest Ball Number

George MacFarlane, who for many years has been well known to vaudeville audiences as one of the most entertaining baritone singers of all time, is always one of the first artists to introduce new songs from the pen of Ernest R. Ball. Recently he included Ball's new ballad, "Ten Thousand Years From Now" with so much success that he found it necessary to take it from its original position in the program and use it as an encore number only.

MacFarlane recently appeared at Keith's Palace Theatre, New York City, and is booked by the Keith organization for the entire circuit during the coming season. Besides "Ten Thousand Years From Now," published by M. Witmark & Sons, he will use several other numbers from that catalog, including "Out There in the Sunshine With You," "Bebe," "Can't Yo' Heah Me Callin', Caroline?"

STASNY NEW NUMBER POPULAR

"Don't Waste Your Tears Over Me" is the title of a new song which was recently released by the A. J. Stasny Music Co., Inc. The number has been demonstrated by several music departments and the melody made immediate appeal. The piano copies carry a fox-trot chorus and this has added to its early recognition. A particularly attractive and appropriate title page has been given the number and this, undoubtedly, has helped to increase sales.

BAMBERGER & CO. TO PAY ROYALTIES FOR COPYRIGHTS

Newark Department Store Bows to Decision of District Court and Will Not File Appeal—Victory for Society of American Composers, Authors and Publishers

L. Bamberger & Co., the defendants in the radio-copyright suit brought by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which was decided in favor of the plaintiffs in a recent decision handed down by Judge Lynch in the United States District Court, Newark, N. J., have decided to drop the plan for an appeal.

Following this decision on the part of Bamberger's, probably the largest department store in the State of New Jersey, which operates a radio broadcasting station, a license was taken out by this company from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for the purpose of playing songs and instrumental selections controlled by that organization.

The suit was in the nature of a test case and was the first legal decision on the question of radio broadcasting involving the use of copyrighted works in the series of controversies which has raged for many months mostly outside of the courts.

The fact that the Bamberger organization has decided to accept the District Court's decision and the contentions of the American Society as to copyright rights where radio renditions are involved is most welcome to the majority of composers and publishers. A continuance of the suit through an appeal, or a series of appeals, might keep the question open several years. If any other radio broadcasting station plans to fight the Society for what is termed its property it will be necessary to commence suit in a United States District Court, with the handicap of having on record a similar suit decided in favor of the Society and which, undoubtedly, would be taken into consideration by every District Court.

The fact that indirect profit only was involved has simply served to strengthen the publishers' stand in this case. The above suit involved the broadcasting of the well-known standard success "Mother Machree," published by M. Witmark & Sons.

It might be here pointed out that the Society's bringing action on an old standard number eliminated some of the earlier contentions of radio broadcasting stations that they did much to popularize songs. Naturally, a number which is as universally known as the above issue hardly needs to be popularized.

NEW DENVER PROFESSIONAL OFFICE

Sherman, Clay & Co. Establish Office in Colorado City, With Harry S. Wilson in Charge

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 5.—Sherman, Clay & Co. are opening a new professional office in Denver, Col., according to announcement made by Ed. Little, manager of the publishing and sheet music departments. Harry S. Wilson has been engaged as manager of this office. Harvey Orr is starting on a long trip for Sherman, Clay & Co., singing some of the firm's latest hits, including "I Cried for You," "Other Lips," "Just an Old Love Song" and "The West, a Nest and You." After singing from the Coast to Chicago Mr. Orr will carry his music missionary work through the South.

Ralph Errolle, Edison artist, sang the tenor rôle in a number of operas produced by the DeFoe Opera Co. in Toronto, Canada, during the week of September 2.

BERLIN BRINGS OUT "TUT" SONG

"Three Thousand Years Ago," by Gerber and Egan, to Be Published by That House

There have been several King Tut songs and at least two of them had some popularity. Up to the present time, however, they have not proved overwhelming successes. It is somewhat surprising, therefore, to see a large publishing organization accept a new song carrying a "Tut" title. The fact that Irving Berlin, Inc., will publish Alex Gerber and Jack Egan's "Three Thousand Years Ago," a comedy song of the "Tut" style, speaks well for its merit.

In this new offering the writers have tried to make comparisons between the present and ancient Egyptian days. The result is a comedy song with a long list of extra verses, five of which are reproduced in the piano copies. The vocal rendition of the number has been reserved to the team of Murray and Alan, now playing Keith vaudeville.

FALL CAMPAIGN OF JACK MILLS, INC.

Jack Mills, Inc., which recently moved into its new building, 150 West Forty-sixth street, New York City, plans a Fall campaign on the following songs: "Just a Girl That Men Forget," a ballad which is receiving exceptional popularity in vaudeville; "Hey! You Want Any Cod Fish?," a novelty, and "Love Is Just a Flower" and "Havana," both of the latter from the Pacific Coast. The catalog series of "Beautiful Ballads" will also be exploited.

The A. J. Stasny Music Co., Inc., recently issued a new song and instrumental number, entitled "Waltz Me to Sleep" (In Your Arms). The number, as a waltz, has been tried out by numerous orchestras and has met with favor from them.

SAM FOX MAKING FALL PLANS

Arranging Extensive Sales Promotion and Exploitation Campaign on Many Numbers Which Have Been Tested Here and in Europe

Sam Fox, of the Sam Fox Publishing Co., who returned from Europe early this Summer, has been making quick trips between the New York offices of his company and the executive offices in Cleveland, O., arranging the coming season's activities. The Fall plans, as recently outlined by the sales department of his organization, call for extensive sales and exploitation campaigns, involving a series of numbers which have been proved meritorious by trial, or which have had previous popularity in the capitals of Europe.

Among the numbers that are to be exploited this Fall is one of the outstanding hits of this season's "Folies Bergere," discovered by Mr. Fox while attending a performance of the above production in Paris, and for which he immediately secured the American publishing rights. The final negotiations for this piece, which is entitled "Nights in the Woods," were closed by cable.

In addition to the above number, while Mr. Fox was in Vienna, he obtained what is described as "a beautiful Viennese melody," entitled "Just One More Kiss." Both of these numbers are of the highest type European popular successes and of the caliber that generally meets wide American approval. There will be other Fox prints exploited during the coming season, but the above two numbers will receive the full support of the whole organization during the early months of the Fall.

As announced some time ago, while Mr. Fox was in London he established relations with one of the largest wholesale and retail organizations in the United Kingdom, the Keith Prowse Co., Ltd. This well-known firm has secured the selling agency of the Fox catalog in Great Britain and the colonies, excluding Canada and Australia.

EDWARD B. MARKS BACK FROM TRIP

Covered 2,000 Miles by Motor Through Adirondacks, White Mountains, the Berkshires and Maine Lakes on Pleasure and Business

Edward B. Marks, of the Edward B. Marks Music Co., recently returned from a 2,000-mile motor trip, covering interesting points in the Adirondacks, the White Mountains, the Berkshires and the lakes of Maine. According to Mr. Marks there were very few songs whistled on the streets in the territory visited as compared with former years. However, some of the outstanding successes, such as "Yes! We Have No Bananas" and "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," were heard now and then. In places where dancing was in vogue such songs as "Barney Google," "You've Got to See Mamma," "March of the Siamese," "Just for To-night" and "Bambalina" seemed to be the favorites.

Win Great Vogue With Orchestra Leaders Throughout the Country

The catalog of Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., never seemed more active than the present season. Besides the successful fox-trot, "Oh! Harold," written by Lee S. Roberts, which is also arranged for a one-step and the collegiate walk, there are several other songs in the catalog which are having good sales. Particular mention should be made of the novelty fox-trot "Dreams of India." The publications of this enterprising Chicago publisher are forging ahead in all parts of the country. Its representatives find orchestra leaders particularly responsive to the Forster prints and its dance arrangements find much favor with the public.

SINGS THE "GULF COAST BLUES"

Bessie Smith, the new colored singing artist, who recently signed up exclusively to record for the Columbia records, made her introduction to that laboratory by singing "Gulf Coast Blues," a Clarence Williams Music Publishing Co. number. Miss Smith was heretofore unknown, but with her first release on the Columbia "blues" enthusiasts throughout the country hail her as an exceptional find.

"Gulf Coast Blues," following the introduction by Miss Smith, has been recorded by practically all the talking machine record companies throughout the country. Its sales have not only been active in record form, but the demand for the piano copies has shown substantial increase ever since the number was first released.

"LOVE TALES" FINDING FAVOR

New Leo Feist Number Being Used by Many Artists Upon the Vaudeville Stage

Leo Feist, Inc., recently added the song "Love Tales" to its catalog. The number was immediately accepted everywhere, particularly among orchestras, as a favorite. Since its release its sales have developed rapidly and its popularity as a song and dance seems on the increase. The Feist organization is placing the number with many vaudevillians and, from present indications, it will be one of the outstanding numbers of that catalog during the Fall and Winter season just opened.

"Easy Melody" is the title of a song which originally had some success in St. Louis territory. The number is by Gene Rodemich and Larry Connelly, of the Hotel Statler Orchestra, in the above city. The number has been purchased by Leo Feist, Inc., which has made an immediate release to the profession.

Schmoeller & Mueller, A. Hospe & Co. and Edward Patton Feature "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake" in Their Windows During One Week in Omaha in Conjunction With Theatre Appearance

Although the Leo Feist, Inc., number "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home" can be considered among the newer issues it has made a most active place for itself on the retailers' music counters throughout the country. The number is of the type, of course, than others, according to their merits. But this Feist issue has received an exceptionally large amount of such publicity. This is due to the fact that the title lends itself readily for all sorts of publicity ideas.

The publisher thinks an occasional display in a town on each of his issues is good co-operation. To have three such displays on an individual number by three of the largest houses in a single city is reaching the high mark of dealer "hook-ups." This is what happened in Omaha, Neb., when three of the largest houses there made unique, elaborate and attractive displays on "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake" in conjunction with the appearance at the Rialto Theatre, of that city, of George Getsey, who was featuring the number.

Making the Title Alive

that is now meeting general public approval, but the Feist organization has made a Summer campaign on this issue which has been as large as, if not larger than, on issues of a more normal season.

The result of all this has been that "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake" is proving a money-maker for the trade. Most songs that become popular get a number of window displays, some more Reproductions of these unusual windows and the spirit of the co-operation of the dealers are herewith shown. They include the enterprising houses of Schmoeller & Mueller, A. This was shown by the large number of passers-by who were attracted to the windows and who entered the stores.

BERLIN GETS "TOPSY AND EVA" SONGS

Negotiations for Publishing Rights of Songs in New Musical Show Closed

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 10.—The new musical show "Topsy and Eva," in which the Duncan Sisters are starred and which played several unusually successful weeks in San Francisco, opened here this evening for a short stay prior to its departure for New York. Several songs in the show, particularly "Rememb'ring," have had unusual notice from some of the leading publishing houses of the country, so much so that negotiations for the publication rights have been closed by telegraph with Irving Berlin, Inc.

It is said the Duncan Sisters alone, with a fair show behind them and their inimitable methods of singing and entertaining, would make this production a success. With this outstanding hit ("Rememb'ring") there is no question of its stay on Broadway and of a long tour throughout the country.

Among other songs of the show that are worth mentioning are "Just in Love With Me," "Um Um Da Da," "Moon Am Shinin'," "Do Re Me" (In the Music Lesson), "In the Autumn," "Lickin's," "Sighing," "We'll Dance Through Life Together" and "High Brown Colored Lady."

NEW BLUES NUMBER DOING WELL

"Blue Hoosier Blues," from the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc., is, undoubtedly, one of the most original offerings of its type heard in many seasons. The early response to the Feist publicity on the number has been quite active and, undoubtedly, justifies that organization in its newer plans for the extension of its exploitation, which includes a publicity drive of national proportions.

The A. J. Stasny Music Co. has just closed a Summer campaign on its fox-trot success, "Sun-Kist Rose," in Atlantic City, Asbury Park and other coast resorts. While the primary purpose of publishers' campaigns in beach territory is to "put the song in the air," so that visitors on returning to their homes will purchase the sheet music, rolls and records of the number, there is considerable music sold on the music counters of the boardwalks and the business centers proper.

A case of a heavy Summer sale of sheet music at coast resorts was recently demonstrated by the L. R. Steel Stores, Inc., Asbury Park, N. J., which made a special feature of the Stasny number "Sun-Kist Rose" and which reported exceptionally heavy sales. The title pages of the song were displayed in the window and the number was demonstrated at the music counter, both of which proved good sales-creators.

Mr. Sheffield leaves with the best wishes of the Edward B. Marks Co. and his associates. He will be succeeded in his mechanical reproduction activities by Herbert Spencer, of the writing staff of the Edward B. FEATURED AT ATLANTIC CITY

Joe Moss Does Good Exploitation Work With Several Remick Numbers

Among the entertainers appearing at Atlantic City who have done much to make that resort musical this season are Joe Moss and his entertainers at the Beaux Arts. This is one of the most popular of Summer shows with a fine singing chorus, some unusual leading voices, no little comedy and exceptional ability to sing popular songs at their best.

Towards the close of each Summer season, popular music publishers make special efforts to exploit their numbers advantageously in Atlantic City, as it is really the pre-opening ground for the Fall season. Numbers are often tried out on the dance floors, in the cabarets and other public places for the purpose of not only giving the song a start and feeling the pulse of the public, but because it is considered a particularly effective time to have audiences who are about to return to their homes carry away tunes and melodies.

At the close of the Summer season at Atlantic

City, most of these publicity forces arrive at the New York professional offices or elsewhere and place these numbers with vaudeville teams about to go on the road. Thus the people who have returned to their homes will again hear the numbers in the vaudeville theatres, and, in a good many cases, this double publicity assures sales.

Among the songs Joe Moss introduced at the Beaux Arts this season have been several from the catalog of Jerome H. Remick & Co.

"LITTLE JESSIE JAMES" A HIT

New Musical Comedy by Thompson and Archer Being Published by Leo Feist, Inc.

There recently opened at the Longacre Theatre a new musical comedy presented by L. Lawrence Weber, entitled "Little Jessie James." The book and lyrics are by Harlan Thompson and the music by Harry Archer, who is not a novice at writing the scores for musical productions.

Various New York papers received the show most favorably as, indeed, did the out-of-town critics and public where it had previously appeared during the early Summer months. Undoubtedly, from present indications, it will run long into the coming season. Nan Halperin is starred and sings some of the outstanding songs. She has an inimitable way of rendering the numbers, and, with her personal charms, will do much to assure the show success as well as the songs that she sings.

Among the leading songs are "I Love You" and "Little Jessie James," "My Home Town in Kansas" and "From Broadway to Main Street." Among others who appear in the cast are Miriam Hopkins, Lucila Mendez, Clara Thropp and Winifred Harris. Leo Feist, Inc., publishes the music, which has already conclusively demonstrated its possibilities for popular favor.

BIG DRIVE ON "INDIANA MOON"

Heavy Sales Follow Opening Gun of Exploitation Campaign in Rochester, N. Y., on Waltz From the Catalog of Irving Berlin, Inc.

According to reports from Rochester, N. Y., during a week's featuring of "Indiana Moon," a waltz from the Irving Berlin, Inc., catalog, in that city by the various dance orchestras, motion picture houses and other channels of publicity, some extraordinary sales of the number were made, one store alone selling over 2,000 copies. This was the opening feature of one of the biggest campaigns ever inaugurated by the above publishing house. Similar activities are to be carried out in hundreds of other centers. In Rochester these previous publicity and sales exploitation methods are to be supplemented by a newspaper campaign. This will extend to some surrounding cities.

This latter publicity will appear in over 200 papers throughout the United States. Most of this advertising will appear in story form and will be illustrated with thematics of "Indiana Moon." In all territory where this advertising will appear the usual publicity, with the aid of the theatres, motion picture houses and orchestras, will be a part of the program.

It is by George McManus, the well-known cartoonist, Dave Reed and J. Vincent Healy. The Remick organization, including the sales, band, orchestra and professional departments, is to make a feature of this new humorous song during the early months of the Fall season.

ERNEST R. BALL VISITING ENGLAND

Singing at Leading Music Halls of Great Britain During Five Weeks' Tour

Ernest R. Ball, the well-known composer-entertainer, sailed recently on the S. S. "Baltic" for his first appearance at some of the leading vaudeville houses in Great Britain. Mr. Ball's career is one of the most remarkable among American popular composers, recording as it does a success extending for a period of years.

He opened at the Alhambra in Glasgow, the week of September 3, and he will appear in Liverpool and London, where he is booked at the famous Paladium. Altogether he will play about five weeks on this introductory trip, at the conclusion of which he will return to the United States for an extended tour on the Orpheum Circuit.

Mr. Ball's fame as a songwriter has been for some time pretty well established in Great Britain, where his best-known ballads have repeated earlier American successes. Notably well known to English music lovers are "Love Me and the World Is Mine," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "A Little Bit of Heaven," "Mother Marchee," "Let the Rest of the World Go By" and "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold."

NEW COHN SONG FOR REMICK

Irving Cohn, who collaborated in the writing of "Yes! We Have No Bananas," has placed with Jerome H. Remick & Co. a new song, entitled "Sweet Butter" (I'd Love It on My Toast). The Remick organization has decided to exploit it on a wide scale. Orchestrations will be released at once and several weeks later it is to be placed in the programs of a number of vaudeville stars. The sales department of the above firm thinks this new offering is a rare find.

AMERICAN JAZZ IN ENGLAND

Paul Specht Declares That English Musicians Are Much Enthused Over It

Paul Specht, who returned recently with his orchestra after a tour of England and the Continent, recently commented on the growth of the American style of jazz in England and stated that he had noticed certain English musicians in the audience night after night, making notes of various phases of American musical renditions that were new to them. He said that instrument dealers and manufacturers in England had told him that since the foremost American dance orchestras had invaded Great Britain the sale of saxophones had doubled and even in some instances trebled, and the output of other musical instruments had likewise increased.

"It Shouldn't Taste From Herring," recently introduced by Jimmy Hussey in the Ziegfeld Follies, is a Phil Ponce publication.

Phil Ponce, the publisher, is enjoying a few days' rest somewhere in Massachusetts, according to the Ponce publicity department. Those Massachusetts boys are certainly doing well. There is President Coolidge, Secretary of War Weeks, Senator Lodge, Speaker of the House Gillette, and Phil Ponce, making the "Cat's Whiskers" grow.

Among the new songs added to the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc., is a number that had its original success in Chicago, entitled, "No, No, Nora." It is by Gus Kahn, Ted Fiorito and Ernie Erdman.

New Suite in Roseland Building Embodies Every Comfort for the Profession

Hearst, Music Publishers, Ltd., have arranged for a new suite of offices in the Roseland Building, 1658 Broadway, New York City. The quarters are undergoing alterations and will be ready to welcome the trade and profession early in September, with every possible facility for the comfort and convenience of the profession embodied. Each piano room faces Fifty-first street windows, thus the demonstration rooms are exceptionally well ventilated. The Hearst number "Some Day You Will Cry Over Somebody Else" is being introduced by the Bison City Four on its tour of the West Coast.

EXPECT TO DUPLICATE SUCCESS

The original success of "Yes! We Have No Bananas" will, evidently, be of exceptional value in the exploitation of its successor, "Yes! We Have No Banana Blues." The publishers, Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., have, undoubtedly, taken this into consideration because their plans for this, their newest offering, are extensive.

THREE NEW CONRAD NUMBERS

Con Conrad, one of the best-known and most successful of the younger songwriters, has placed three songs with the Edward B. Marks Music Co. They are "Lover," a fox-trot; "Life-saving Jim" and "No Tickee, No Shirtie."

"Ala Moana," a novelty from the catalog of Irving Berlin, Inc., which was obtained by that organization from the Pacific Coast, has succeeded in well justifying the amount paid to the writers for the publication privilege and for the campaign of exploitation inaugurated.

Despite the usual quietness of Summer business all five of the models at present constituting the Pathé line sold well. The new Pathé portable, although placed on the market a little late for the full amount of Summer business, was well received and developed a large amount of orders. It is expected that the portable will prove a good all-year-round seller. The three console models in their various period designs are much in demand and Model 15, the only upright model in the line, admirably fills the demand for that type of machine. The Pathé Phono. & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., is making energetic plans for the Fall season and expects to make a record in volume of sales.

CELEBRATE ARTIST’S APPEARANCE

Minneapolis Victor Dealers Stage Theatre Party in Honor of Aileen Stanley, Victor Artist, Who Sang in Twin City Theatres

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., September 6.—“The Phonograph Girl,” Miss Aileen Stanley, is the luminary about which the interest of the Twin City trade has centered in the last fortnight. Miss Stanley has the distinction of singing for Victor, Vocalion, Edison, Okeh and Gennett records and admits that not so long ago she sang for ten makes, but found that pace too strenuous. She is singing this week at the Capitol Theatre in St. Paul, after completing a week’s engagement in Minneapolis.

Victor dealers, jobbers and their sales forces of the “Flour City,” numbering seventy-five, celebrated Miss Stanley’s appearance Friday night, August 31, with a theatre party, for which five rows of the front, center seats were reserved. Immense Victor dogs flanked the large Victrola, which divided honors with a grand piano flying Victor pennants. After receiving a huge bouquet of pink roses from her “Victor friends” Miss Stanley responded by singing her latest Victor release, “Maggie,” a record in which she and Billy Murray collaborate. The party was arranged by Murray K. Kirschbaum, manager of the Victrola department of the L. S. Donaldson Co., assisted by C. L. Carlson, manager of Howard, Farwell & Co.

Miss Stanley’s rendition of “Lonesome Cry Baby” was particularly interesting because it was written by her accompanist, Bob Buttenuth, and is featured in the sheet music display in the windows of the Metropolitan Music Co.

Miss Stanley was as greatly admired off as on the stage, her beauty and lovely figure, as well as her gracious manner, making her a great favorite. She has left many autographed records and photos with the dealers.

Incidentally, this display was responsible for the sale of 1,000 of the Ted Lewis records of “Aunt Hagar’s Blues.”

Among the new songs added to the catalog of Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., are “Somebody Else Took You Out of My Arms, But They Can’t Take You Out of My Heart,” by Billy Rose and Con Conrad, and “Last Night on the Back Porch.”

A combined advance list and order blank for the October records in foreign languages has been prepared by the Victor Talking Machine Co. for distribution to dealers. Beside each title of a foreign record there is space for the dealer to make a notation of the quantity of each record desired. Included in the list are Bohemian, Croatian, French-Canadian, German, Greek, Jewish, Hungarian, Italian, Lithuanian, Mexican, Norwegian, Slovenian and Swedish records.

Benny Davis is well known along Broadway, not only as a singer who has made his appearance at some of its most popular resorts, but as a songwriter who has contributed some of the best sellers of the past few years. He has a particularly loud, clear voice and an inimitable style, all of which he manages to get into his records. His first release was a record of "Stella," his own number, and "My Sweetie Went Away"; his next release will include "No, No, Nora," which has already been accepted as an unusually popular song, and "Sweet Henry," a jazzy selection which is finding some favor.

Benny Davis is the writer of such songs as "Margie," "Make Believe," "Angel Child" and other well-known success. All of these, and other Davis numbers, have achieved popularity.

NEW AGER, YELLEN & BORNSTEIN SONG

Ager, Yellen & Bornstein, Inc., have released a new song of the ballad order, entitled "You Didn't Want Me When I Wanted You" (I'm Somebody Else's Now). This number and "Louisville Lou" and "Mamma Goes Where Papa Goes" will be the features of this firm's activities during the coming season.

Hal Lothrop, of the J. E. Lothrop Piano Co., Columbia dealer, Dover, N. H., recently returned from a three months' sojourn in Europe.

NOW IT IS GOING ON THE STAGE

George W. Lederer has acquired the stage rights to the title "Yes! We Have No Bananas" and expects to produce a comedy with songs under that title within a month. The arrangement for the use of the title was made with Louis Bernstein, of Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., publishers of the original "Blues" and its later sequel of the number shows no signs of letting up in popularity.

BALLAD BY ERNEST BALL'S SON

Roland Ball, son of Ernest Ball, the successful ballad writer, has composed a melody for "Come Back to Mother Machree," the lyric of which was written by George Graff, Jr. M. Witmark & Sons, publishers of all the Ernest Ball music, will also issue this new song as it issues his father's work.

A NEW BERLIN COMEDY SONG

"Nobody Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can" to Be Exploited Widely by Publishers—Indications Point to Wide Popularity

A new comedy song has been accepted for publication by Irving Berlin, Inc. While it is the newest addition to this catalog the sales and professional departments have already decided to exploit it widely. The number is entitled "Nobody Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can," and is from the pens of Billy Baskette, who has written a number of popular successes in the past, and William Downs. Several vaudeville singers have introduced the song and the early indications seem to point to wide popularity. This, together with the fact that the Berlin organization is showing unusual interest as to the future of this number, should assure an unusual sale.

A REAL REGULAR RECORD CUSTOMER

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., September 6.—Miss F. F. Miller, saleslady in charge of the Chadwick Furniture Co.'s Columbia department, this city, has on file a standing order for twelve Columbia New Process records to be sent to Frank H. Jones, of Tuinucu, Cuba, every ten days. Mr. Jones is an ardent radio enthusiast and finds a great deal of satisfaction and pleasure in using the New Process records for "broadcasting" purposes. Miss Miller and other members of the Chadwick organization have "listened in" on several occasions and enjoyed the music immensely.

LOCAL COLUMBIA BRANCH ACTIVE

W. G. Monroe, of the New York wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., reports a marked increase in business during the last two months, as compared with 1922. An exceptional Fall business is anticipated and all indications point to a very satisfactory season. S. H. Porges, foreign record salesman for the Columbia local branch, reports that the foreign record sales are increasing daily. Particular stress is being placed on the sale of Spanish records, and several new accounts have been opened during the last week which will deal almost exclusively in Spanish records, which are rapidly becoming more popular.

CHILDREN'S RECORDS CREATE SALES

Popularity of Records for Youngsters Makes Them Easily Salable by Live Dealers—Window Displays Bring Big Returns

The demand for children's records seems to be on the increase. This is undoubtedly due to the wide range of material that is being incorporated in these products. The retailers throughout the country also are doing much to exploit these goods. A display or demonstration of these children issues invariably creates sales. This, together with the fact that such sales mean additional profits and an increased volume of business that is not obtained through regular talking machine business, makes the stocking of such goods attractive to the dealer.

That children's records prove a valuable adjunct to the retailer's business is shown by the number of exclusive window displays given to these products. A good example of this was recently shown by Eisenberg's, one of the leading department stores of Baltimore, which made a particularly fine window showing on "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes," a product manu-

Eisenberg's Attractive "Little Tots" Window factured by the Regal Record Co., Inc. A reproduction of this attractive window is shown herewith. A special showing of this and similar products created a healthy volume of additional sales, according to the management of Eisenberg's.

SELVIN'S ORCHESTRA A BUSY BUNCH

Sign Exclusive Contract to Record for Vocalion
—Ben Selvin's Activities Excite Admiration

It was recently announced that Ben Selvin and His Orchestra have again signed an exclusive contract to record for the Vocalion. Mr. Selvin is one of the best-known orchestra leaders in the United States and his organization has become familiar to thousands of record purchasers throughout the country during the past few years.

Although only twenty-eight years old he not only directs the Selvin Orchestra at the Moulin Rouge, New York, but he directs and manages the Bar Harbor Society Orchestra and the Broadway Syncopators, both exclusively Vocalion combinations.

Selvin's Orchestra has made records for a number of leading talking machine record organizations and the versatility shown by his artists and the novel arrangements made for his popular selections have found particular favor among dance enthusiasts.

It is said, besides furnishing six records or twelve selections a month for the Vocalion list, his orchestra also accompanies most of the Vocalion artists in their recordings of popular songs. An idea of the extent of his musical activities might be gleaned from the fact that he keeps three arrangers busy preparing effective and novel orchestrations.

IRVING KURTZ APPOINTED RECEIVER

Creditors of Cabinet & Accessories Co. Co-operating to Continue Operations

Irving Kurtz, attorney, talking machine dealer and president of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., has been appointed receiver for the Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., 3 West Sixteenth street, New York, which company was petitioned into bankruptcy recently. The liabilities of the concern are given as $35,000, with assets about $17,000, the receiver's bond being fixed at $7,500.

This receivership is described as friendly and the petitioning creditors are said to be co-operating toward the reorganization of the company, which, it is hoped, will continue on a new and better basis than heretofore. Upon the retirement of the receiver it is planned that Otto Goldsmith, for many years president of the Cabinet & Accessories Co., will continue in charge of the affairs of the company.

NEW LONG CONSOLE CABINET READY

Geo. A. Long Cabinet Co. Introduces New Console Cabinet—Designed to Accommodate the Victrola IX—A Very Artistic Design

The Geo. A. Long Cabinet Co., Hanover, Pa., manufacturer of Long cabinets and well known throughout the talking machine trade as the maker of Long consoles to accommodate table machines, has just placed on the market a new console cabinet which will be known as No. 90. This cabinet is designed to accommodate the Victrola IX and is thoroughly in accord with the distinctive lines of the Long console cabinets, which have won popularity throughout the trade.

The new console cabinet No. 90 has four doors and one drawer and its attractive lines will undoubtedly meet with an enthusiastic reception from the trade. It is finished in mahogany, and H. C. Naill, secretary of the company, states that deliveries will start about October 15. This cabinet, although it is built especially to accommodate the Victrola IX, can also be fitted to take care of the Victrola VIII.

In a chat with The World Mr. Naill, who was a recent visitor to New York, stated that orders are being received in good-sized quantities for the console cabinets Nos. 601, 603, 608 and 610, which were introduced some time ago to accommodate Victrolas VI and IV. The standard Long record cabinets are also meeting with an active sale and it is evident the company will close one of the best Fall seasons in its history.

These enterprising dealers, like many others in Syracuse territory, appreciate the wisdom of getting as many machines in their possession as they can handle before the car and phonograph shortage becomes acute.

FEDERAL TEL. & TEL. ACTIVITIES

C. Kurtzmann Will Visit Trade Throughout Country—Company Has Prepared Extensive Sales and Publicity Campaign—Complete Line of Radio Sets Ready for Trade

C. Kurtzmann, of the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co., manufacturer of Federal radio receiving sets and parts, who has been making his headquarters at the New York offices of the company, will hereafter be located at the factory and executive offices in Buffalo, N. Y. According to Mr. Kurtzmann's present plans he will spend the greater part of his time visiting the trade throughout the country, and he is now preparing an itinerary that will enable him to call upon the dealers and jobbers in practically all of the leading trade centers.

During the past few months the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co. has been rounding out its line of instruments for the 1923-24 trade, and at the present time the company has a complete line of radio-receiving sets that include a number of models particularly suitable for sale by the talking machine dealer. An extensive advertising campaign that will benefit the jobber and dealer has been approved by the officials of the company and is now under way.

Mr. Kurtzmann is ideally qualified to co-operate with the talking machine trade, as he is a member of a famous piano manufacturing family bearing his name and was identified with music activities for many years. During recent years he has been devoting his time to radio activities and he is keenly enthusiastic regarding the sales possibilities of Federal radio-receiving sets in the talking machine industry.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Retailers and Wholesalers Very Busy—Excellent Fall Outlook—Expansions and Stores Opened—Prominent Visitors—The News

PORTLAND, ORE., September 4.—Business during the past month was very brisk, according to local retail dealers, while wholesalers say they have all they can do to keep up with orders. Dealers who thought that July was a big month for portable machines say that August far outstripped July for this model, and that record sales picked up remarkably during the last two weeks of the month.

Harry Marshall, district manager of the Edison Phonograph Co., with headquarters in this city, made an extensive trip to a section of his vast territory and motored as far north as Bellingham, east through the Wenatchee and Yakima valleys and down into the Walla Walla country and Pendleton. Mr. Marshall says:

"Conditions look very good and the thing that impressed me most was the optimistic view the farmers are taking of the wheat situation, crops being greater than in recent years. Dealers everywhere I visited reported increasing business, and H. E. Roberts, of Wenatchee, showed the sale of six Edison phonographs in ten days' time and says his business is greatly in excess of last year. Kinney Bros. & Sipprell, of Everett, Wash., report that their volume of business for July nearly equaled that of last December." Mr. Marshall, who also visited the Pendleton Music Shop, reports wonderful improvement in the rearrangement of this store, the enlarged floor space and additional booths adding greatly to its efficiency.

The Economy Drug & Music Co., of Pendleton, is now in its new store, one of the most attractive establishments in the Northwest. The music department occupies a separate store, which is so conveniently connected with the drug store that the whole is one store and yet entirely distinctive. Thomas Youngman does a big business and carries the Edison, Victor and Brunswick lines. He is also the agent for the American Co. line of pianos and the Gulbransen.

E. J. Condon, for six years traveler for the Edison out of Portland, and who for the past six weeks has been very ill at the Portland Medical Hospital, is reported greatly improved.

Elmer Hunt, wholesale manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., announces J. G. McKay, of Rainer, and Arthur W. Burton, of Powers, Ore., as new Victor dealers. Mr. Hunt reports the demand for the new Art Models Nos. 400 and 405, which have just been received, far exceeding his expectations. Mr. Hunt expects the drop in Red Seal record prices to materially increase business and says it will give the dealers a splendid opportunity to balance their stocks. Victor dealers are all accepting the announcement of the weekly release of supplement records beginning September 21 with great favor.

Several changes have been made in the personnel of the phonograph departments during the past month. Helen Briggs, for the past four years connected with the phonograph department of the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., has joined the forces of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., and C. Jellison has been placed in charge of the department and will be assisted in the record department by Alma Strayer. A. T. Erickson, formerly of the phonograph department of Murgittroyd's Drug Store, of Spokane, Wash., has taken charge of the Victrola department of the Powers Furniture Co., to take the place of P. J. Heinz, who has been in charge of the department for the past three years. Mr. Heinz resigned to join the sales force of the Powers Furniture Co., with which he was associated before taking charge of the phonograph department. Emilie Holloway, of the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., resigned to become the bride of Dr. W. J. January, of Oakland, Cal. Audrey White and Helen Watts have been added to the department and will assist Miss Erma Ewart, who has charge of the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co.

F. W. Stephenson, secretary of Sherman, Clay & Co., of San Francisco, was a visitor to the local store this month on his return from a motor trip with his family to Yellowstone Park.

S. J. Scrivens, of Vancouver, B. C., and formerly with the Fitzgerald Music Co., of Los Angeles, has been added to the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co.

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Strand Phonograph Co., of Salem, Ind., was a recent local visitor, and while here he made his headquarters with L. D. Heater, distributor of the Strand phonograph in this section. While in Portland Mr. Lyle, with the assistance of Mr. Heater, closed several important Strand deals.

W. E. Henry, of San Francisco, Pacific Coast agent for the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, and W. C. Fuhri, of New York, general sales manager for Okeh records, were also visitors to the L. D. Heater establishment. After business was transacted Mr. Heater took the visitors on the famous Columbia River Highway trip.

A. J. Kendrick, of Chicago, general sales manager of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., called on M. Davis, district manager, and together visited the trade.

The Vernonia Drug Co., of Vernonia, Ore., is a new Brunswick agency, with William Folger as manager.

The announcement of the installing of a pressing plant in California by the Brunswick Co., to be ready about January 1, meets with the hearty approval of the local house.

The Hyatt Talking Machine Co., which recently moved into new quarters at 386 Morrison street, advertised its new location by distributing 60,000 cards to prospective customers.

IN THE MUSICAL MERCHANDISE FIELD

SMALL GOODS POPULARITY GROWS

Many Dealers Find That Addition of Sideline of Musical Merchandise Is a Profitable Investment if Properly Handled

The last few months have witnessed a remarkable development of the popularity of musical merchandise departments among talking machine dealers, many of whom formerly looked askance at sidelines. Many dealers have installed stocks of small goods, and in most cases the experiment has proved satisfactory beyond expectations, the small capital required for such a stock, quick turnover with consequent profits and the comparatively small space which such a department occupies, enabling retailers to enter this field without great trouble and expense.

Reports emanating from various wholesalers of musical merchandise indicate that talking machine dealers generally now realize that an easy selling sideline, such as small goods, is a most profitable investment, not only for the reasons mentioned above but primarily because of the fact that experience has proved that when business in talking machines and records is inclined to be below par there is usually a fertile sales field for string and band instruments. Indeed, according to information gathered from the dealers themselves, patrons who have purchased talking machines and records are often fine prospects for the small musical instruments, and many concerns have boosted their profits materially by promoting intensive sales drives directed toward their old customers.

That the sideline in the talking machine store is here to stay is evidenced by these facts, and it is safe to say that no merchant engaged in the talking machine business can do better than by adding musical merchandise, which is especially adapted as a sideline for this type of business. Some merchants have tried merchandise foreign to the music business as sidelines, but seldom with any great success.

ELKHART, IND., September 4.—At a meeting of about fifty musician employees of the Buescher Band Instrument Co. last week plans were considered for the establishment of a Buescher band. The impromptu band organized by George Dierstein, cornet tester at the factory, at the Buescher picnic last week proved so successful that it has prompted the men to think of a regular factory band. Everyone was enthusiastic and agreed to do his best to make it the finest band in Indiana.

Officers elected were F. A. Buescher, president; Allan Loomis, vice-president; Homer Spicer, manager; C. A. Kline, secretary-treasurer; George Dierstein, director. A record was taken of those present and the instruments played by each man. In a talk to the men Mr. Buescher stated that the success of the band rested entirely with them.

JUNIOR OPERETTAS WELL RECEIVED

Vulcan Record Corp. Receives Numerous Dealer and Jobber Applications—"Little Red Riding Hood" Records Now Being Delivered—Production Facilities Increased to Meet Demand

The Vulcan Record Corp., 15 East Fortieth street, New York, which announced a new record recently known as the "Junior Operetta Series," states that it is making rapid progress in the production and marketing of these records. Deliveries of the "Little Red Riding Hood" selections are now being made and factory facilities are being increased rapidly in order to give the trade efficient service and co-operation.

In a chat with The World Fred Hedinger, secretary and general manager of the company,

"Little Red Riding Hood" Display Sign stated as follows: "Since announcing the Junior Operetta Series, a few weeks ago, we have received applications for dealer franchises from all parts of the country. All of these applications call for good-sized orders and we are increasing our production as rapidly as possible in order to meet the requirements of the trade. We have also received numerous applications from well-known and responsible firms in the leading trade centers who are desirous of acting as jobbers for our product. In all probability we will announce the appointment of jobbers very shortly and these distributors will be given every opportunity to serve the dealers in their territories efficiently and satisfactorily.

"In addition to the 'Little Red Riding Hood' Junior Operetta records we expect to announce in the near future additional sets of records in our series, such as 'Cinderella,' 'Snow White,' 'Three Bears' and other fairly tales that are popular the world over. Judging from the enthusiastic reception accorded our first announcement there is an unlimited field for this class of records and we are gratified at the interest and response manifested by the talking machine dealers.

H. V. Lippert, music dealer, Dyersville, Ia., recently sold his entire stock of talking machines, pianos, etc., to H. R. Flammang, who has moved the music stock to his jewelry store.

"TREASURE CHEST" DEMAND GROWS

Victor Dealers in All Parts of the Country Ordering Sets of Records Selected by C. Bruno & Son Through Local Wholesalers

The hearty response which met the first appearance of the "Treasure Chest," produced by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, New York City, continues strongly. The "Treasure Chest," it will be remembered, is an attractively cartoned set of six double-faced, ten-inch orchestral musical gems from the Victor catalog. These selections embrace music of six foreign nations. Although the first response was naturally from Victor dealers in the metropolitan territory dealing regularly with C. Bruno & Son, Inc., the demand is now also from Victor retailers in cities of all sections of the country. In accordance with the suggestion made by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., these Victor retailers are placing their orders through their local Victor distributors. Wm. J. Haussler, president of the company, reports Victor wholesalers everywhere are placing substantial orders for the "Treasure Chest." The many repeat orders now being received for the "Treasure Chest" are a visible indication of the success with which it has met, as well as its growing popularity.

UNIONTOWN, PA., September 8.—The W. P. Frederick Piano Co., this city, is undergoing extensive improvements in preparation for the Fall and Winter trade. The entire Main street floor has been redecorated and new lights and carpets are being installed. An improvement in the Victrola department is the installation of an Audak, which is the latest improvement in record demonstrating devices.

This instrument takes the place of extra booths and allows the customer to hear a record without anyone else hearing the same record demonstrated.

DETROIT

Prosperous Outlook for Auto Industry Is Reflected in General Good Business—News of Month

DETROIT, MICH., September 8.—Dealers around this part of the country are looking forward to record business and anticipate that each month will show up at least 100 per cent better than last year. In fact, some of the months this year have already enjoyed such a record—and business, on the whole, from January to August 31 is considerably ahead of the same period last year for everybody. Automobile manufacturers see very little let-up in production, as orders are still coming in faster than they can be handled, and there is nothing to indicate that there will be any change, except that business a little later will not be quite up to what it has been all Spring and early Summer. But this falling off is naturally expected around October, November and December. What applies to Detroit applies to all the other cities in Michigan where motor manufacturing is the biggest industry. And over in the city of Grand Rapids the furniture factories are going full speed, with indications that they will continue right through the Fall and Winter. In Battle Creek the cereal food manufacturers are busier than ever; in Kalamazoo the paper manufacturers cannot begin to take care of orders, and we could go right down the line and mention similar business conditions in every big city in the State.

This is State Fair Week in Detroit, and it is bringing many thousands of visitors from all parts of Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. It is being staged on a more mammoth scale than ever. In visiting the Administration Building the other night The World correspondent noticed a very attractive exhibit by Grinnell Bros., in which every type of Victor talking machine and all the latest Victor records were being exhibited and sold.

This being the forty-second anniversary month for the J. L. Hudson Co., special offerings are being made in the various departments, which include the talking machine division. In this department are handled the Victor, Brunswick, Cheney and Poole instruments, as well as Victor and Brunswick records.

In this issue is an important announcement by Lind & Marks Co., which is distributor for the Vocalion and Vocalion records. The announcement is in connection with the Wolverine phonograph which it is manufacturing and has been for the past three years. But only now has the firm been in a position to take on additional business, due to increased factory facilities. The Wolverine is made in two finishes—walnut and mahogany. The Wolverine portable has been a very popular seller all Summer. The other models range in price from $100 to $215 retail. Lind & Marks are now selling thirty-eight accounts in the city of Detroit and about 400 in the State, which is a phenomenal showing, considering the short period of time they have been in business. A feature of the Wolverine is that a five-year certificate of guarantee goes with every machine sold, and there are many satisfied owners of these fine instruments in this section.

A. A. Fair, now special representative of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., was a recent Detroit visitor. Mr. Fair was formerly sales manager of the Jewett Phonograph Co., as well as salesman of the phonograph department of the Aeolian Co. and for several years with the Columbia Co.

J. F. Quinn, manager of The Brunswick Shop, is on a motor trip and will be back some time this month. His family is with him. They expect to visit all points in the East, including Bridgeport, Conn., the former home of Mr. Quinn, as well as New York City and Atlantic City. P. J. Gordon, manager of the store in his absence, told The World correspondent that business was coming splendidly, was far ahead of last year, and that the outlook for Fall has never been better.

Brunswick records are again being distributed locally through the Detroit branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. This is proving of great value to the Detroit dealers handling the Brunswick, as it is giving them much better service.

R. B. Alling, manager of the Phonograph Co., of Detroit, Edison jobber, states that business has shown splendid improvement since August 15, and that everything looks good for the balance of the year. "We have sold more high priced phonographs than ever in our history during the past ninety days," he declared. "It is surprising to us where all the business came from."

HOLLENBACH BUYS EILER ASSETS

SPOKANE, WASH., September 4.—C. E. Hollenbach, of the Hollenbach Piano Co., of this city, who formerly was office boy in Eiler's Music House, which has been in the hands of a receiver since November last, has purchased the assets of the company from the receiver. It is reported that a financial consideration of $20,000 was involved in the deal.

*Traveling Music Shop on Wheels
Boosts Sales—Many Fair Exhibits
—Other Activities of the Trade*

ALBANY, N. Y., September 7.—The first traveling music shop on wheels was started out last month by the Baker Music House and it is not only attracting considerable attention along its routes, but is expected to call the attention of dealers to a new method of advertising and getting business. The new store is a big truck mounted on a Ford chassis, with portable steps in the rear. It is fully equipped with a Story & Clark player-piano, upright and console models of Columbia phonographs, Starr table instruments and Columbia portables, a line of Lyon & Healy musical merchandise, Conn cornets, saxophones and other band instruments, as well as all music supplies. It is used principally in the country districts, each farm house being visited and the occupants invited to enter and listen to the latest records and piano rolls. The interior is prettily decorated with chairs and settees for prospective customers and, with two large windows, makes a cozy "store." All country picnics and public entertainments are attended and music supplied for dancing and entertainment. E. T. Leary, formerly of the Utica Baker store, and George H. Lehr, of the Albany store, are in charge. The truck has been well received by the farmers and the Baker delivery trucks have been kept busy following up the "store" making deliveries. O. E. Kellogg, general manager of the Baker Music House, is enthusiastic over the success of the experiment and is already planning more "wheel stores" for next Summer. Concerning the Fall business outlook Mr. Kellogg says he believes the sales in all lines handled by his firm will be limited only by the amount that can be secured from jobbers and manufacturers and that a shortage is already being experienced in many lines. The business of the past Summer, he says, has been the best in history.

Dealers Exhibiting at Fairs

Many of the local dealers are exhibiting their lines at the country fairs and consider it an excellent method of obtaining prospects for future sales. The Baker Music House is having an exhibit at all the fairs within the territory served by its branch stores. At the Hudson Falls Fair Starr phonographs and Remington and Story & Clark pianos were shown. It was in charge of Juan Silva, manager of the Baker Glens Falls store, assisted by Howard Brazee, of Albany, and Chris Cummings, manager of the Green Island store. At the Balston Spa Fair radio was strongly featured, being in charge of R. C. Garbardt, manager of the radio department of the Baker stores; Howard Brazee, and W. G. Webster, manager of the Balston Spa store. Columbia talking machines were exhibited. The exhibit at the Chatham Fair was in charge of J. T. Rider, manager of the Hudson store, and Columbia phonographs and pianos were shown. The Thomas Music Store will only have an exhibit at the Altamont Fair. It will be confined to all models of Victrolas and will be in charge of F. M. Hulett, Herbert Earl, Willard Marshman and Alfred Garrison. McClure & Dorwaldt will have exhibits at the Cobleskill and Altamont Fairs of Victrola and Sonora models. Mr. McClure will be in charge of the Cobleskill exhibit and Mr. Dorwaldt at Altamont. The other dealers believe the advertising and resulting sales are worth the cost of the exhibits.

Joseph Kennah Promoted

Joseph Kennah, who has been associated with Henry Pommer & Sons since the inception of the present business two years ago, has been placed in charge of a new department as service manager. Mr. Kennah plans to call on every purchaser of a talking-machine several times a year and see that the phonograph is working properly and he will take orders for new records. The Raleigh, the latest Brunswick console model, is expected to be a great seller. The Pommer store recently installed a new line of Emerson records.

Edison Dealers Busy

Edison dealers throughout the territory covered by the American Phonograph Co., Edison jobber for this territory, with headquarters in this city, are doing a good business. This is evidenced by the volume of orders being received by the American Phonograph Co., and the demands of the dealers for instruments indicate, also, that they are anticipating a good Fall business and are preparing accordingly.

The "Upright or Console" Problem

The question of the extent of the demand for upright models of talking machines the coming Fall and Winter season, because of the attractive new console and period models, will be a serious one with dealers in placing their orders. L. H. Schutter, manager of the Thomas Music Stores, recently sold three upright Victrola models in one day, each of the purchasers making the selection in comparison with consoles at the same price. Mr. Schutter said he was inclined to place but few orders for uprights, but the one day's experience has convinced him that the older styles are not to become obsolete, but will continue to be the choice of many purchasers, and he is considering making one-half of his order of the older styles.

Al Edelson, of the Strand Temple of Music, has returned from New York City, where he placed a large order for phonographs for the Fall trade. He said he believed there would be a lessened demand for the upright models, but he selected about one-third of these types. He and Mrs. Schutter are enthusiastic over Fall business prospects.

Stage Anniversary Business Drive

McClure & Cowles have had a very successful fifteenth anniversary drive for business on Victrolas, Sonoras, pianos and players. The business the past Summer is reported as having been the best in the fifteen years since the firm was founded.

Exhibits at Fairs Occupy Attention of Retailers—Planning Fall Drive—M. Doyle Marks Co. Remodels—Trade News and Activities

SYRACUSE, N. Y., September 7.—Business in this city and environs has held up in a satisfactory manner, according to reports of retailers and wholesalers. The Fair season is now in full sway and dealers in this section of the State have been taking advantage of the opportunity of displaying their lines in attractively arranged booths, which, in most instances, have proved the equal in drawing power of the other exhibits. While sales traceable directly to the fair displays have not been many, some immediate sales were made. What is of greater importance, however, is the fact that in all cases dealers succeed in securing the names of considerable numbers of live prospects, which they vigorously follow up by means of outside salesmen and direct mail. The effect of these campaigns is cumulative and thus the exhibits return excellent dividends for the trouble and expense involved.

The influx of orders being received by wholesalers indicates that dealers are ordering their

Fall and early Winter stocks in anticipation of the usual seasonal buying revival. On the whole, there is much reason for optimism in this territory over the business outlook at the present time.

Make Exhibit at Trumansburg Fair

The Stover-Updike Hardware Co., of Trumansburg, N. Y., Edison dealer, had a very handsome exhibit at the Trumansburg Fair during the week of August 13. Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., who are the Edison jobbers for this zone, have been co-operating with the different dealers who are exhibiting at Fairs and had one of their representatives, John Essig, Jr., spend two days at the Trumansburg Fair, assisting the Edison dealer.

Big Increase in Edison Business

A representative of Schuderer & Castle, Edison dealers in Rome, N. Y., who was in the office of Frank E. Bolway & Son the other day, stated that their Edison record business from August 1 to 10 inclusive amounted to more than their entire August, 1922, record business. They have been making quite a drive on attachments among the talking machine owners, making it possible to play Edison records on all makes of talking machines and, as a result, their record business has increased considerably. Schuderer & Castle state that one of the reasons for their record business increasing to such an extent is that the Edison Laboratory has been getting out the "hits" long before the public has sickened of them and turned to later numbers released by music publishers.

Gibson-Snow Co. Planning Fall Drive

The Gibson-Snow Co., Sonora jobber, is making plans for a banner Fall trade and the members of the company's sales staff are asking Sonora dealers to anticipate their Fall requirements as much as possible. Practically every Sonora dealer in this territory is keenly optimistic regarding the outlook for Fall business and good-sized orders are being received from the retailers throughout this section of the State. The Gibson-Snow travelers state that not only are the dealers placing orders, but the merchandise is moving, which is a very satisfactory condition. One of the interesting features of Sonora activities the past month has been the enthusiastic reception accorded the July-August issue of the Sonora Bell, the house organ issued by the Sonora Phonograph Co. This number contains valuable selling helps for the dealers and the Gibson-Snow Co. has a number of extra copies on hand which it will be glad to distribute upon request.

Bolway Enlarges Edison Representation

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., Edison jobbers, have started a campaign to enlarge their representation and plan to take on several new dealers during the next two or three months. During the past week they report that Wallace J. Vastbinder, of Seneca Falls, N. Y., who has just opened up a very nice music store, has signed up as an Edison dealer. W. H. Griffin, of Norwich, N. Y., also is now handling the New Edison. Other new accounts opened include H. J. Hunter, Parish, N. Y.; Bowman & Jones, Cleveland, N. Y.; M. C. Benson, Hastings, N. Y.; A. E. Olmstead & Son, Orwell, N. Y. F. E. Bolway & Son report that they have numerous inquiries for the Edison line, which goes to show that it is steadily becoming better known by the buying public and merchants are realizing this demand.

Victor Dealers Doing Good Business

The W. D. Andrews Co., Victor wholesaler, with headquarters in this city, has been enjoying an excellent business and present indications are that the Fall business will be very satisfactory. Victor dealers throughout this territory are taking advantage of every opportunity to increase their sales and this activity has kept the business volume up to par thus far this year.

OSCAR W. RAY HOME FROM EUROPE

General Manager of Vocalion Division of Aeolian Co. Returns From Extended Tour of Europe—Makes Important New Contract

Oscar W. Ray, general manager of the Vocalion Red Record Division, of the Aeolian Co., returned on Monday, September 3, on the "Leviathan," from an extended tour through Europe, occupying over three months, in the course of which he looked after the business interests of the Aeolian Co. in London, Berlin and Paris and, incidentally, he studied existing business conditions in England and also on the Continent.

In discussing business conditions in Europe at present Mr. Ray stated that the politics, exchange and business situation generally, among the various nations, were changing so rapidly that it was impossible to prophesy with any accuracy the outcome. He declared, however, that there was every indication that the interest of America and its co-operation are needed by European nations to bring them out of the present state of chaos.

In a brief interview Mr. Ray said: "During my travels I had a wonderful opportunity to hear the music of Europe and witness the important part that it has in the lives of the people on the Continent.

"Many important contracts were made for the Aeolian Co. for the exclusive right to leading artists of Europe for Vocalion Red records, and a special announcement will be made in regard to these contracts at a later date. We are now equipped and prepared for the biggest year in the history of Vocalion Red records, and our dealers may be assured a most successful future."

Victor Wholesaler Issues Second Edition of "Cut" Book—Attractive Illustrations for Dealers' Publicity Make Book Valuable

The advertising department of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, has just prepared the second edition of M. I. S. Victrola illustrations for use by Victor dealers in their printed advertising. This book

Illustration in M. I. S. Co.'s New Book contains a unique assortment of especially designed plates and matrices which effectively feature the Victrola and which provide the dealer with material for a whole year's advertising campaign.

The wide popularity and success of the first edition of the M. I. S. cut book demonstrated the value of this service to the Victor dealers and influenced the publication of the second edition. All of the illustrations in the new edition (with very few exceptions) are entirely different from the previous book, depicting the current model Victrolas in an attractive and impressive way. It is suggested that the dealers consider the use of these illustrations in newspaper advertisements, mailing cards and folders, letter-heads and envelopes, seasonal circulars, bill heads, etc.

VICTOR JOBBERS DECIDE OWNERSHIP OF GOLF TROPHIES

Golf Matches Held at Sea View Club on September 5 to Determine Final Possessor of the Johnson and Blackman Cups—Lew Collings Wins First and Fred Oliver Second

ABSECON, N. J., September 6.—In order to determine who were entitled to the final possession of the Johnson cup and the Blackman cup, two valuable trophies offered to stimulate interest among the golfers in the ranks of the Victor talking machine jobbers, the one presented by President Eldridge R. Johnson, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and the other by J. Newcomb Blackman, head of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, two lively golf matches were held at the Sea View Club here recently, participated in by those who in former tournaments had won legs on the prospective cups.

The contestants for the Johnson cup were Lew Collings, of Collings & Co., Newark, N. J.; French Nestor, of the French Nestor Co., Jacksonville, Fla., and C. A. Grinnell, of Grinnell Bros., Detroit, and the play was decidedly close, despite the fact that Mr. Grinnell had just about recovered from a recent illness and was not in his best form, although he insisted in carrying on. Thirty-six holes were played, with the result that Collings came through with a gross net score of 178, Nestor with a gross of 186 and a net of 180, and Grinnell with a gross of 194 and a net of 186. The match was actually won in the last nine holes, in the course of which Collings played four holes in par and came through with a score of 40.

The contestants for the Blackman cup were Louis Buehn, of the Louis Buehn Co., Philadelphia; Fred P. Oliver, of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, and C. G. Campbell, of the Knight-Campbell Co., Denver, Col. The latter, being unable to attend, relinquished his claims to the cup and the match was played off by the remaining contestants. Both Buehn and Oliver played a close game, with the result that Buehn, without a handicap, brought in a score of 190, while Oliver, with a handicap of 16, came through with a net of 188. At the twenty-seventh hole Buehn had caught up on Oliver's handicap and had him one up, but the latter put up a startling finish, taking three of the final line holes in par. An interesting feature of the play was that the contestants in both matches were even at the thirty-fourth hole, the cups being won by one stroke each in the thirty-fifth and thirty-sixth holes.

The arrangements for the tournament were under the direction of J. C. Roush, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh, whose success in determining the handicap was evidenced by the close play. Mr. Roush himself acted as scorer and referee in the play for the Johnson cup, while W. F. Davisson, of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, acted in a similar capacity for the Blackman match.

The cups were presented to the match winners at the clubhouse at the conclusion of the tournament, following which the contestants were the guests of Mr. Roush at dinner. The day following the majority of those who participated in the play or attended the matches visited the Victor factory in Camden.

APPEAL TO HELP L. P. VALIQUET

Veteran Phonograph Inventor Has Been Ill for Eight Months—S. A. Ribolla, in Letter to the Trade, Appeals for Assistance

CHICAGO, ILL., September 5.—S. A. Ribolla, general manager of the General Phonograph Corp. of Illinois, with headquarters in this city, has sent a letter to the trade appealing for assistance in behalf of L. P. Valiquet, one of the veterans of the phonograph industry, who had been seriously ill for a period of about eight months. In his letter Mr. Ribolla states: "Mr. Valiquet's illness cost him about $4,000 and his financial resources are now entirely exhausted. He is not entirely recovered, but he is able to be about for several hours each day, although he is in no position to do any lucrative work. As he is one of the real pioneers in the phonograph industry in this country I believe that a great many members in this trade will respond to this appeal if their attention is called to Mr. Valiquet's plight. I would suggest that any subscriptions be mailed direct to L. P. Valiquet, 5472 Everett avenue, Chicago, Ill."

Mr. Valiquet's experience in the talking machine field dates back to 1898, when he completed a disc talking machine and record which was placed on the market under the name of "Zon-O-Phone" and which won popularity the world over. He afterwards devoted considerable time to designing and constructing spring motors for illustrated song and picture machines and, in more recent years, was connected with the Aeolian Co., General Phonograph Corp. and the Krasberg Mfg. Co.

FOURTEEN ELABORATE NEW ART MODEL VOCALIONS BY NOTED DECORATORS ANNOUNCED BY AEOLIAN CO.

Seven Leading Decorators of New York and London Lend Talents to Creation of Notable Series of Cabinets—Extensive Campaign in High-class National Magazines Launched

The wholesale Vocalion phonograph division of the Aeolian Co. has just announced to the trade the addition of a series of fourteen most elaborate special design period models, each model the work of a decorator of international prominence and representing the finest examples of the cabinetmaker's art. These fourteen new models, each distinctive in itself, will prove welcome additions to the company's regular line of upright and console period models and will be calculated to enable the Vocalion dealer to appeal to the most exclusive clientele.

The new models, five of which are reproduced herewith, are unusually elaborate and in their designing seven famous decorating houses have had a part, among them Wm. Baumgarten & Co., D. S. Hess & Co., the Tiffany Studios, Wm. Pierre Stymus, Jr., H. F. Huber & Co. and W. & J. Sloane, of New York, and Charles, of London. Each of the new models not only represents an impressive development of the decorative art, as applied to phonograph cabinets, but is based upon some authentic period creation, several of the designs being copied in whole or in part from some antique of definite standing.

Several of the special period models are at present on display in the Vocalion showrooms at Aeolian Hall, New York, and have attracted a great amount of attention from visitors. In a short time the company will begin shipping the new models to its retail representatives, who, as in the case of all Vocalion phonograph products, will be supplied by the company direct.

In presenting the new styles to the public the Aeolian Co. has arranged for a most elaborate advertising campaign on a particularly high-class basis, running four-page inserts, with the various art period styles reproduced in seven or eight colors, in a number of the leading magazines of the country, particularly those known for the exclusive character of their circulation. Among the publications in which the supplements will appear will be Scribner's, World's Work, Atlantic Monthly, Harper's, Century, Review of Reviews, Architecture, Art and Decoration, Country Life, Garden Magazine, House Beautiful, Vogue, Vanity Fair and House and Garden, representing a total circulation of several millions monthly going into the finest homes in the country.

The creation of the various special period models has been the work of months, from the time the original sketches were prepared by the various decorators until all details were completed and the work of building the special cabinets finally finished. Not only will the new models enable the dealers to appeal to the most exclusive and aristocratic trade in their territories, aided materially, of course, by the national magazine advertising of the company and the follow-up and service aids calculated to benefit the dealer directly, but they will open the way for making the Vocalion a factor in the decorative field, practically all the cabinets being designed to fit in well with elaborate home treatments created and carried out by the prominent decorators themselves.

The rich carvings, the hand-painted panels, the lacquer and the gold leaf that are found in the various cabinets lend distinction and richness to the design, and the new models as a whole serve to complete and round out the extensive Vocalion line as it is at present con-

The mechanical equipment of the various new art models is also of special and elaborate character. The motors are electrically operated and each model is provided with a decorative electric light to facilitate the changing of needles. The turntables are covered with rich velour, as are the turntables of all Vocalion machines, and are designed to facilitate the removal of records. All visible metal parts are

NEW ORLEANS

Maison Blanche Launches Essay Contest—Brunswick Co. Leases New Home—W. F. Nipper Now With House of Werlein—Month's News

NEW ORLEANS, LA., September 5.—Under the direction of J. D. Moore, manager of the musical department of the Maison Blanche Co., there was launched on September 1 a business, as well as a strong interest-creating campaign, that is expected to materially develop the department and substantially aid the month's trade totals. The idea, as formulated, amounts to this: The house possesses a slogan, "It Makes a Difference Where You Buy Your Victrola or Brunswick." This statement will be altered so as to read, "Why Does It Make a Difference Where You Buy . . . ?" That question will constitute the subject of a brief contest essay to be not more than 100 words in length and open to the general public, exclusive of employes of the company. Prizes amounting to $385 will be awarded for the four best answers received. The contest will continue through September 30 and the winners will be announced as soon after the first of October as it is possible for the judges to determine the quartet of leaders. The first prize offered will be a $200 talking machine; second prize, a $150 talking machine; third prize, $25 worth of records, and fourth prize, $10 worth of records.

"In order to submit an intelligent, comprehensive paper in the competition it will be necessary for the contestants to visit the store and obtain, to the best of their ability, some idea of the methods used in the conduct of our business. We expect to draw a great many people who, possibly, would not otherwise visit the store or the department. Should our surmises prove to be correct, we will be amply repaid for our efforts," Mr. Moore stated.

New Edison Accounts

Last week Manager W. W. Twigg, of the Diamond Music Co., local Edison jobber, succeeded in naming three additional country representatives for Edison machines, records and accessories: F. W. Gatlin, of Poplarville, Miss., and the Collins Furniture Co., of Collins, in the same State. The third new dealer was Goldby's store of Amite City, La.

Heavy Edison Orders From Texas

An influx of heavy ordering from Texas points has been recorded on the firm's books of late. The Oliver Music House, located in Houston, Tex., and one of the new dealers in Edisons, has besought Mr. Twigg to supply them with a very large stock for the Christmas season. They explained that their order had been turned in at such an early date in order to prevent future inability to obtain the goods which they feel are going to be needed very badly. They predict a great demand for Edisons in Houston and vicinity this Fall and Winter. The Jesse French Piano Co. also used every available means of communication to insure ample stock to meet the requirements which they feel certain are coming. The Heidelberg Furniture Co., of Jackson, Miss., though barely thirty days old, as far as handling Edisons is concerned, has virtually doubled initial orders.

The retail division of the company, under the direction of Mr. Billiet, is also showing pleasing gains. The console models continue to stand pre-eminent in the machine sales records of this progressive house.

Lease New Home for Brunswick Co.

F. W. Jackson, manager of the St. Louis office of the Brunswick Co., was in the city for a few days, attending to some matters of business affecting the future quarters of the New Orleans sub-station. Mr. Jackson succeeded in concluding a lease for a long period on the building at 228 Bourbon street. This building, which contains a great deal more floor space than the present location, will become the permanent home of the branch October 1. It is situated closer to the important commercial section of the city, and is therefore more accessible to Brunswick dealers. This is expected to facilitate the exchange of business between both parties. Incidentally, it might be mentioned here that C. A. Reynolds, formerly connected with the Brunswick Kansas City office, has been transferred to New Orleans. Mr. Reynolds will make this city his headquarters and travel throughout the territory in the interest of the trade. Frank Allen has been appointed city sales manager of the branch. He will look after the office duties as the direct subordinate of Mr. Reynolds.

Dwyer Piano Co. Busy

James T. Dwyer, president of the Dwyer Piano Co., returned recently from a several weeks' vacation spent in the North Carolina mountains. Reports from Mr. Dwyer's house are to the effect that they feel that they are coming in for their share of the business now in circulation. The upright models of Victor machines showed a sudden, although brief, rise to popularity, figuring in one or two business transactions made by the Dwyer Co. One customer telephoned her order for a machine and asked that it be brought out to the house. An upright and a console were bundled on the truck and taken out to the prospect. When asked which model she preferred, without hesitation she selected the bulky but attractive upright model.

Slump Gives Way to Prosperity

An unexpected recovery from the mid-month idleness of trade was experienced by Lee Outten, sales manager of the Dugan Piano Co. Mr. Outten, who is handling both the talking machine and piano end of the business in the absence of Martin Grigler, manager of the former department, on a vacation trip in Michigan, states that he was unable to diagnose the sudden lull that occurred about the middle of last month. With equal suddenness a recovery came, several high-priced instruments being carted away from the firm to repose in the parlors of New Orleanians.

Gennett Records Becoming Popular

Gennett records, made by the Starr Piano Co., of Richmond, Ind., and distributed in this territory by Albert T. Thompson, music factor, have cut a wide swath in the disc entertainment desired by the New Orleans public, according to Mr. Thompson. The prestige of this product is increasing by leaps and bounds, though faced with a strong handicap in the early stages of its introduction. Mr. Thompson was told, when he took over the agency, a little over a year ago, that he would experience great difficulty in breaking into the field, regarded as impregnably controlled by the older established line. He has succeeded in perfecting an organization that is carrying the Gennett steadily forward. The record is being recognized in the local music field and its reward is rapidly becoming pronounced. The M. & M. Music Store, 2652 Orleans street, this city, recently put in the line. An order for twenty-five upright Starr machines from the Jazz Music Shop was recently filled by Mr. Thompson.

Red Seal Demand Grows

The 20 to 25 per cent discount provided some time back by the Victor Talking Machine Co. on the single-faced Red Seal records has awakened a well-supported demand for these records made by the famous classical artists of the world, according to John A. Hofheintz, wholesale manager of Philip Werlein, Ltd. The house expects to be able to announce price listings on the new Red Seal double-faced Victor records that are to supplant the single type about September 21. The weekly record release, taking the place of the former monthly procedure, has also proved very popular, Mr. Hofheintz said.

Paul S. Felder, secretary and treasurer of the company, returned from a fortnight's visit to the Victor factory at Camden, N. J. Miss Emma Delery, popular young lady in the wholesale department of the company, is spending a three weeks' vacation in the South Carolina mountains.

F. L. Hough Makes Home Here

Frank L. Hough, appointed factory representative of the Victor Talking Machine Co., has taken up his residence in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Hough have leased a pretty apartment in Prytania street. Mr. Hough, through his pleasing personality and general ability, has won for himself a host of friends among local music men, as well as others with whom he comes in contact in the city.

Constructing Special Victrola

The Victor line which the Harry B. Loeb Piano Co. lately added has already shown up very satisfactorily. Mr. Loeb is working on a special talking machine that is to be specially constructed for one of his customers. The machine will be electrically equipped, console type, built to resemble a permanent table. It is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000. The instrument is to be elaborately decorated so as to correspond with the interior of the music room of a palatial New Orleans home, which is being prepared by an expert interior decorator.

Ernest L. Staples, manager of the Victrola department of the L. Grunewald Piano Co., is spending his vacation touring in the Middle West. He will visit Chicago, Niagara Falls, Detroit and several Great Lakes centers.

W. F. Nipper With Philip Werlein

W. F. Nipper, well known in talking machine circles in Memphis, Tenn., has been appointed a member of the traveling staff of Philip Werlein, Ltd., Victor wholesaler. Mr. Nipper has been associated with the music field for the past six years, having been connected for some time with the O. K. Houck Piano Co., Memphis, Tenn., where he was identified with the sale of Victor merchandise, specializing in the stimulation of Victor Red Seal record business. His various activities in a retail way should enable him to achieve success in the Louisiana and Texas territories, which he will cover for Philip Werlein, Ltd., and his wide knowledge of the problems of the retail merchant should make him a valuable help to the trade.

W. A. BROPHY RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Wm. A. Brophy, general manager of the recording laboratories of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., New York, returned to his desk recently, after a two months' visit abroad. TALKING MACHINE DEALERS DISCUSS EFFECT OF RADIO

Publication in Radio Field Gets Some Interesting Information From Questionnaires Sent to Members of Talking Machine Trade—Opinions Divided as to Results on Sales

In an effort to determine the effect of radio on talking machine business, as viewed by dealers in talking machines and records, one of the publications in the radio field, the Wireless Age, recently made a survey of the talking machine trade and gathered some interesting figures.

According to the details as compiled by the magazine, 76 per cent of the dealers who replied to the questionnaire, the total number being 317 out of 7,500 cards mailed, reported that they believed that the radio was instrumental in selling records for them, while 24 per cent took the opposite view or did not commit themselves.

Of those who did have definite ideas to express 23 per cent held that radio had been a gain to their business, 33 per cent believed they saw a loss, 11 per cent believed they were getting an even break and 33 per cent did not commit themselves. Among the dealers who reported business gains through radio 43 per cent sell radio apparatus, while 27 per cent of those who see a dropping off in record business are also radio dealers, as are 35 per cent of those who hold the "fifty-fifty" attitude.

Quite a number of dealers declared that talking machine owners in substantial numbers were sold on the merits of various selections by radio and frequently purchased records of those selections without demonstration, thus saving considerable time.

An interesting opinion was offered by Frank A. French, an Edison dealer of Manchester, N. H., who stated that "the studio shop" which he operates took on radio in the belief that it is a matter of self-protection in that without radio their phonograph business would suffer. The theory was that under such a policy the store could sell the customer the radio and later a phonograph, after he had been sold on the music of various orchestras and artists, but that without the radio to attract him in his first enthusiasm, the later phonograph and record business would go to some other concern. One of the arguments used for the sale of the phonograph is that it is not subject to static and interference as is the radio outfit.

A number of dealers saw in the radio a means for stimulating interest in music and, eventually, in musical instruments and considered this result as offsetting any temporary loss of record sales. Others held the opinion that, with the adjustment of the differences between the broadcasters and music publishers over copyright and royalties, there would be a more general broadcasting of popular songs which would lead directly to increased record sales.

Few, if any, of the dealers, in expressing opinions as to the gain or loss realized through the advent of radio, had any definite figures or statistics to back up their statements and in most cases simply attributed loss or gain of trade to the radio without any very careful analysis.

It is significant that less than 5 per cent of the dealers to whom questionnaires were sent were sufficiently interested in the matter to fill out the questionnaire or to write a letter explaining their stand. The figures as offered by the Wireless Age, therefore, can be accepted only as an opinion of a very small minority of talking machine dealers who have taken direct cognizance of radio and its effect on business in one way or another. Perhaps the percentages might hold good throughout the trade if a general survey were made, but that is doubtful. The fact to be considered, of course, is that dealers without exception realize the standing and importance of radio and in many cases are seeking to adjust themselves to the situation it has brought about either through handling radio apparatus in conjunction with their talking machine lines as a stimulus to business or in changing about their selling campaigns, with a view to offsetting the influence of radio.

It is significant that a large number of dealers who have made direct use of radio, either for the broadcasting of regular monthly releases or by tying up directly with broadcasting programs, have managed to get results in record sales and increased interest from patrons.

VICTOR RED SEAL RECORD EXCHANGE PUT INTO EFFECT

Under the Exchange Plan Victor Dealers Have Opportunity for Replacing 75 Per Cent of Single-faced Red Seal Stock With New Double-faced Red Seal Records

When the Victor Talking Machine Co. announced some time ago the plan for issuing all Red Seal records in double-faced form, with a general downward revision of list prices, it was stated that an exchange would be put into effect to take care of stocks of single-faced Red Seal records on dealers' shelves.

This new exchange was put into effect this month and is most extensive in character, covering 75 per cent of the present listings of Red Seal records in twenty different series and comprising a total of over 1,700 selections.

The new exchange is operated through the wholesalers and affords the dealer an opportunity of securing new double-faced records in exchange for 75 per cent of his stock of single-faced records on a record-for-record, class-for-class basis, with the dealer reimbursing the wholesaler whom he selects for the carrying out of the exchange for the difference between the cost of the new double-sided record and that of the single-faced record returned. Under the terms of the exchange all shipments of records from dealers must be in the hands of carriers by September 15.

In arranging for the exchange the dealers were given the privilege of selecting the jobber through whom they desired to operate, subject to the latter's approval. The plan of operating through wholesalers was adopted in the belief that it would eliminate delays and confusion and would work out more satisfactorily from the dealer's end by speeding replacement stocks.

The record series included in the record exchange are of the ten-inch, 61,000, 64,000, 66,000, 81,000, 87,000, 91,000 and 87,500; twelve-inch, 71,000, 74,000, 85,000, 88,000, 92,000, 89,000, 95,202-11, 95,213, 95,100, 95,212, 96,000 and 96,200.

In announcing this exchange to take care of 75 per cent of existing stocks it is described as being the "first instalment," with the assurance that other exchanges will follow to take care of remaining stocks of single-faced records.

New Display Stand to Aid Needle Sales—L. J. Unger on Canadian Trade Trip

To further co-operate with its many distributors in their Fall selling Reflexo Products, Inc., New York, has had printed a supply of standard size loose-leaf sheets for the jobbers' salesmen's binders. These sheets are attractively printed in colors and feature both the Reflexo blue steel flat needle and the Gilt Edge needle. Reproductions are shown of the display cartons and display stands on both brands. A new display stand for the Reflexo blue steel needle has been placed on the market. All of these style needles will hereafter come packed in the new stand, which, it is expected, will increase sales. The approach of the Fall season has caused a decided increase in the demand for the Dancetone grade of needle. L. J. Unger, general manager of the company, is on a trade tour of Canada.

KANSAS CITY

Business Outlook Is Encouraging—Monthly Conferences Prove Value—R. L. DuBois Promoted—New Dealers—News of Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., September 8.—August has been a busy and successful month with all music men in Kansas City who handle pianos, for there has been a very vigorous drive made for business in that line. There has been a large amount of space taken in the daily papers and the result has been correspondingly large sales. The effect on the talking machine business has been that in these stores there has been a slackening up of sales.

On the other hand the stores which handle talking machines exclusively have had a good business, and the interest in music which was aroused by the advertising of pianos was reflected in the sales of phonographs. There has been a good sale of records throughout the month. The portable machines also have had a good sale.

The prospects for good business here during the Fall months are excellent. While there are parts of the territory in which the drought has cut down the production of corn, in most of the district there is the prospect for either the "best crop ever," or at least "a fine crop." The fact that the price is better also will affect the buying ability of the farmers and thus the general prosperity of the whole people.

Monthly Conferences of Jenkins Staff

The J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. is recognizing these conditions and is preparing to take advantage of them. The wholesale Victor department is having a dealers' conference in Kansas City each month. It is held at one of the leading hotels in the city in the evening and follows a dinner furnished by the department. The plans of the Victor Co. are fully explained and discussed and suggestions on sales methods are secured from dealers. The new records are played, and talked over, and interest is increased in a contest, in which the dealers guess which will be the best-selling record. Other features are introduced to add interest. The four conferences which have been held have been so successful that it is the intention to continue them indefinitely.

A large amount of interest is reported among the dealers in connection with the Victor Co.'s plan for the exchange of double-face records for the single-face records which are now in stock. The inquiries as to particulars are many and the orders from Victor dealers for the exchanges are on the increase.

Announcement is made by the Phonograph Co., distributor of the Edison for the Kansas City territory, of the promotion of R. L. DuBois to the position of manager of the wholesale department of the Edison in Kansas City. Mr. DuBois started with the Edison Co. in the Chicago office ten years ago and served there as credit and office manager under C. E. Goodwin. About four years ago he was transferred to the Kansas City office, where he served in a similar capacity under the direction of Mr. Blackman. Upon the retirement of Mr. Blackman Mr. DuBois was his logical successor. Since his appointment he has been getting in personal touch, as far as possible, with the dealers of the territory. During August the following dealers have called at the wholesale office in Kansas City: H. H. Kahn, Innes-Cosgrove Music Co., Wichita, Kan.; W. L. Eshelman, Eshelman Music Shop, St. Joseph, Mo.; A. Schuler's Prescription Store, 1812 West Forty-fifth street, recently installed a complete line of Columbias and records. This firm has a very attractive drug store in the southwestern part of the city and intends doing a considerable amount of advertising which, they feel confident, will bring results.

Brunswick Dealers Place Fall Orders

The mail orders which were received by the Brunswick wholesale department the first of September indicate, according to the manager, that the Fall business is to be unusually good. There has been a good business in the wholesale department in filling orders for the dealers who are anticipating a good trade during the Fall. During a trip over the territory Mr. Schoenly found that the dealers in all districts which had not been struck by the drought are full of optimism and that in all the territory there has been a decided improvement during the past year or so in the merchandising methods of the dealers. Especially is this so among those merchants who in the past had a few machines, but did not maintain a department for their sale and who are now devoting considerable attention to the talking machine business.

Columbia Visitors

J. H. Robinson, of Chillicothe, Mo., was a recent visitor to the Kansas City branch and stated there is a marked increase in the volume of record business, due to exceptionally good dance hits and colored records.

E. D. Gillen, of the Gillen Furniture Co., Blytheville, Ark., recently visited the Kansas City branch, placing a large order for the new type Columbias and a large quantity of records.

Post Cards Bring Business

F. Lombardi, of the Royal Music Co., advises that interest in Columbia records has been stimulated to a considerable degree through the use of post cards. These contain a list of the latest release records, stating that any records desired will be sent either on telephone request or else on return of the post card with the selections marked and the name and address listed. The entire mailing list was circulated in this manner and resulted in many orders, both by telephone and by mail, with a consequent increase in profits.

FALL ORDERS FOR ALBUM & CARD CO.

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., returned to New York on Friday, September 7, after spending several weeks at the Chicago headquarters of the company. Mr. Willinger received substantial orders while he was away and reports that both dealers and manufacturers throughout the Middle Western territory state that the increased demand for Fall is already being felt. Both the New York and Chicago factories of the New York Album & Card Co. are very busy and every indication is that this good business will continue through the Fall and Winter seasons, with still further gains possible.

The object of this gentleman's visit was to size up the talking machine situation in Canada and discuss with George S. Braden, sales manager for Russell Gear & Machine Co., Ltd., sole distributor of Mutual products in Canada and other British possessions, the possibilities for Fall and Winter trade.

ENERGY OF MONTREAL DEALERS RESULTS IN MANY SALES

Talking Machine Displayed as Part of Furnished Room Creates Business—Summer Visitors a Source of Profits—New Stores Opened—Prospects for Fall Business Unusually Bright

MONTREAL, QUE., September 7.—The National Stove & Furniture Co., His Master's Voice dealer in this city, is having considerable success in its sales plan of showing the Victrola in its store set-ups as necessary for the complete furnishing of a living-room.

The Radio, Victrola & Optics, His Master's Voice dealers, on Notre Dame street, are attracting a good deal of attention to their store through the medium of a hidden outside horn, which carries the sound from the instrument inside the store to passers-by.

Mrs. Maclaine, of Layton Bros., Ltd., Brunswick dealers, who has charge of the record department, reports good sales in Brunswick records. They are renovating the interior of their store.

In an interview with the Vancouver Sun Mr. Shield stated that his firm expected to double the space occupied at its quarters within the next year.

The eleventh annual picnic of the employees of the Berliner Gramophone Co. was held recently, when employees, their families and friends to the number of about 750 went on the steamer "Three Rivers" to Lavaltrie. A program of sports was enjoyed and on the return trip the "long service" checks were distributed.

ACTIVITIES OF WINNIPEG TRADE

Important Court Decision on Price Maintenance in Case of Berliner Gramophone Co. Against Fowler Piano Co.—Other News

WINNIPEG, MAN., September 7.—In the early Spring of this year the stock in trade of the Fowler Piano Co., of Winnipeg, was damaged by fire and on the adjustment of the loss some "His Master's Voice" products, which had been purchased under one of the Berliner Gramophone Co., of Montreal, regular Class "A" dealer's contracts, were repurchased from the underwriters. In the month of July a sale was made contrary to the restrictions of Class "A" dealer's contract. The Berliner Gramophone Co. immediately applied in the city of Winnipeg, to a judge of the Court of the King's Bench, for an injunction restraining the Fowler Co. from disposing of any "His Master's Voice" products at prices below the licensed retail price. A decision was given in favor of the plaintiff.

The Civic Park Board of the City of Winnipeg has arranged for a series of eighteen Sunday concerts to be given in the public parks.

Cassidy's, Ltd., representatives for Columbia machines and records in Manitoba, are distributing to the trade a series of Dr. Coue's lectures which they are broadcasting by radio.

Evan Jones, junior member of the firm of Jones & Cross, Edmonton, Alta., who has been enjoying a fine holiday in Honolulu, is expected to return home shortly.

FORECAST "TALKERS" IN 1623

It is interesting to know that as early as 1623 Sir Francis Bacon, in his New Atlantis, visioned the talking machine, radio and other then "impossibilities" which are now taken more or less for granted. In the following words Bacon previsioned the talking machine, amplifier and telephone:

"We represent and imitate all artificial sounds and letters and the voices and notes of beasts and birds. We have certain helps which set to the ear do further the hearings greatly. We have also divers strange and artificial echoes, reflecting the voice many times, and, as it were, tossing it; and some that give back the voice louder than it came, some shriller and some deeper; yea, some rendering the voice differing in the letters or articulate sound from that they receive. We have also means to convey sounds in trunks and pipes, in strange lines and distances."

REMODELING SAN DIEGO STORE

SAN DIEGO, CAL., Sept. 5.—The local branch store of the Wiley B. Allen Co. is undergoing extensive alterations and remodeling and a sum of between $25,000 and $30,000 is being expended on these improvements, which should make this music store one of the handsomest in San Diego. Elevators are being installed and a very beautiful ornamental staircase built, as well as artistic general decorations. J. H. Cooley, San Diego branch manager, is supervising the work in collaboration with E. Palmer Tucker, general manager for Southern California, whose headquarters are in Los Angeles.

Ben Reynolds & Co., Sonora and Victor dealers of Washington, Pa., had a fine display of Victrolas and Victor records and Sonora phonographs at the Washington County annual fair at Arden, Pa., the week of August 27. There were recitals given at frequent intervals during the fair to the throngs of visitors.

Why Interest Should Be Charged on Sales

Ohio Association President Points to Necessity for Charging Interest on "Talker" Sales in Instructive Paper at Convention

[The following very interesting paper on the necessity of charging interest on talking machine sales was read by W. G. Bowie before the annual convention of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio in Cincinnati on September 12.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

The subject of interest on talking machine sales is of vital importance to all dealers who sell on the instalment plan. You know everyone is interested in something; some of us are interested in golf; some in the Volstead Act; some in musical instruments, and last, but not least, we must not forget the bankers who are interested only in interest.

To face the facts, if you were to go to your banker to-morrow morning and ask for a loan the first thing you would want to know would be what rate of interest you would have to pay. If a stock salesman were to call on you and you were interested in buying his stocks or bonds the first thing you would want to know, and the first thing the salesman would try to impress upon you, would be the rate of interest these stocks would pay upon your investment. If the State or National Government wants to borrow from banks or individuals the first thing they state is the rate of interest these bonds will bear; in fact, in any case where there is an investment made, or a loan negotiated, the most important factor is interest. If you, as a dealer, sell a phonograph on time you are loaning in most cases, where standard instruments are sold, from 55 to 60 per cent of the selling price of that machine and, consequently, interest has an important bearing on ultimate profits.

When the Profit Is Realized

There is no question but that you are entitled to interest on that loan. We will grant that you are making a gross profit of from 40 to 45 per cent on each sale, but any merchant who conducts a retail establishment is entitled to a profit. However, you do not collect this profit until after the original investment has been returned to you in payments. There are many articles of merchandise sold for cash upon which the percentage of profit is greater than that on the phonograph, so that eliminates the argument that might be advanced that your profit takes care of the interest problem.

Interest as a Sales Argument

In collecting your profit on a time sale you wait six or eight months, as the case may be, before collecting one dollar over and above your original investment. Therefore, when you sell an instrument on time and charge a legal rate of interest, which in the State of Ohio is 6 per cent, you are only getting what the common laws of business state that you are entitled to. Then you have the problem of the cash buyer. Any man who buys an article for cash that is commonly bought or sold on time believes that he is entitled to some discount from the advertised time price. The item of interest is small, but if you have nothing to offer this cash buyer the natural result will be that your business will eventually become one of instalment sales only, and I believe that no dealer here would like such a condition to come about.

The greatest opponents of the interest charge in my experience in Cleveland have been the department stores, but I am glad to say that of late they are the greatest advocates for its continuance and have so gone on record in our association meetings.

The phonograph industry to-day is not what it was five years ago, and this, I believe, is due somewhat to the dealers themselves. Advertising sales of discontinued models and bankrupt stocks at very low prices have been the evils of the trade. The average dealer selling standard makes tries to compete with this by advertising nothing down, low terms, no interest, etc. The result has been that the buying public has become so confused by these conditions that it is not uncommon to have a customer ask for a period console in a two-tone case for about $65, nothing down, $5 per month and no interest. However, these conditions, I believe, are gradually improving as the stocks of bankrupt manufacturers and discontinued models are steadily being absorbed by the buying public.

Improve Conditions With Quality Appeal

The best way, however, to improve our general trade conditions is to advertise and sell quality. Get reasonable terms, charge a fair rate of interest on instalment sales, and in that way regain the confidence and respect of the people. There is no denying the fact that the phonograph has been the greatest musical educator the world has ever known. This is due to the music memory and other contests conducted in our public schools which the leading manufacturers of talking machines have advocated and promoted for some years. Any man can take pride in the fact that he is connected with an industry that brings culture and refinement to each home, and my final word is that every one of us here, from to-day on, should give particular attention to the promotion of not only interest on talking machines but interest in talking machines.

COLUMBUS

*Business Through Increased Importance of Music in Schools
Expected—Activities of Month*

COLUMBUS, O., September 8.—With the opening of schools and colleges and the resumption of educational activities generally talking machine dealers are looking forward to a busy Fall season, to be followed by a busier holiday season. It is the expectation of dealers that music will be considered more important as a subject of study in the public schools this year than heretofore.

Local theatre-goers have been captivated by the Clyde Doerr Orchestra, Victor artists, which is appearing daily in the vaudeville program offered by the Keith Theatre and dealers have profited by tying up with it.

The Otto B. Heaton Co., Victor dealer, featured the Clyde Doerr Orchestra records in a window display. A large picture of this orchestra was well placed in the window. Surrounding it in an attractive manner were the Doerr records. On invitation of one of the attaches of the Otto B. Heaton Co., Mr. Doerr visited the store, where he met and chatted with the members of the sales and office force. To one of them he stated that this was his last week in vaudeville.

The Robert L. Seeds Co. is now in its new location at 112 South High street. Six hundred invitations were issued to patrons and friends to attend the formal opening on Friday evening, September 7, and as a result the store was crowded. Cheney and Columbia lines are sold by this concern. Seven record demonstrating booths and two extra large machine demonstrating booths have been installed. All the woodwork in the store is finished in mahogany and buff.

Officers of the Robert L. Seeds Co. are Ian S. Seeds, president; F. Marion Cheney, secretary and treasurer, and R. P. Knell, credit manager.

The Henry Ackerman Co., Victor dealer, Marion, O., furnished a number of educational records and a Victrola for use by Miss Helen Roberts, Marion County music supervisor, on the occasion of a lecture which she delivered before a teachers' institute.

F. & R. Lazarus Co. announces that C. C. Hinterschied has been appointed manager of the Victrola department. He is a man of wide experience in Victor service.

The Elite Music Store, Victrola specialist, has arranged a window display that is attracting considerable attention. The floor space in the windows is covered with black and white checks. Several art model Victrolas; a large picture carrying the leading Victor artists, draped in red velvet, placed on an easel, are splendidly displayed on the checkered floor.

An unusually attractive Brunswick window was displayed recently by Goldsmith's Complete Music Store. Popular console and upright Brunswick machines, as well as two portable types, were on display. The newest Brunswick records containing operatic, popular and jazz recordings were artistically arranged along with these machines.

Alterations are under way at the Spence Music Store, Victor dealer. Carpenters are busily engaged in building a balcony that will practically add one-third to the present floor space. Victrolas as well as supplies of small goods will be displayed on the balcony.

COMPLETE EDISON TONE-TEST PLANS

The trio, consisting of Glen Ellison, Sybil Sanderson Fagan and Alta Hill, will make the Indianapolis territory the latter part of October and Cincinnati territory the first half of November. Marie Morrissey will spend two weeks during November in Philadelphia territory. Elizabeth Spencer will be in the Pittsburgh territory the first part of October; Philadelphia territory, the latter part of October; Cleveland territory, the first part of November, and Des Moines territory, the latter part of November.

A. HEINEMAN RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Adolf Heineman, vice-president of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, returned to New York a fortnight ago on the steamer "Manchuria," after spending two months in Germany, accompanied by Mrs. Heineman. The trip was in the nature of a vacation and Mr. Heineman spent most of his time in Berlin, where he called upon many of his personal and business friends. The factories of the Carl Lindstrom Co. were visited and Mr. Heineman acquired an intimate knowledge of business and economic conditions. Among the other cities that Mr. Heineman included in his itinerary were Hamburg and Luneburg; the home town of the Heineman family.

The formal opening of the enlarged store of the Lynbrook Music Shop, Lynbrook, L. I., was held recently by Jay O. Benton, proprietor, whose business now occupies two floors.

SAVINGS NOW TOP THREE BILLIONS

Report Shows That 4,109,549 in New York State Have Deposits Totaling $3,040,788,000

Talking-machine dealers in New York State should realize that there is real business to be had this Fall if they go after it strenuously, owing to the fact that deposits in the 145 savings banks in the State of New York passed the 3,000,000,000 mark on July 1 of this year. According to preliminary figures issued by the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York the amount due depositors on that date, including dividends credited, was $3,040,788,000, an increase of $249,435,000 over the amount due depositors a year ago and an increase of $148,319,000 since January 1, 1923.

There has also been a notable increase in the number of depositors in savings banks. The total on July 1, 1923, was 4,109,549, a gain of 193,637 over a year ago and of 124,581 over January 1, 1923.

In New York City alone the amount of deposits in savings banks, including dividends credited, was $2,263,376,000 on July 1, a gain of $193,633,000 over a year ago and of $118,463,000 over January 1, 1923. In New York City the number of depositors in savings banks was 2,820,198 on July 1 of this year. Since the population of the city, according to 1920 census, was 5,620,048, this indicates that every second person in the city has a savings account in a savings bank. In the last year there has been a gain in depositors in the city of 139,666 and in the last six months the gain has been 95,364.

There will also be a large salesroom for pianos and talking machines on this floor, leaving more room on the main floor for the record booths. The entire establishment has been redecorated.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the thirtieth of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

BALANCING THE RECORD LIBRARY

It would certainly be unfair to say that the existing collections of records, as we find them to-day, are exactly one-sided; but it would not be unfair to say that they bear unduly upon certain sides of musical performance. Now this is not a matter for any particular blame, since from the beginning of things in this trade it has been necessary to proceed slowly, one step at a time, and to give the people what they want at all times. In consequence of this economic necessity, however, we find that in certain classes of music there is an overplus and in certain others a distinct deficiency.

Such a state of affairs is, of course, not at all what one should prefer, for one of the essentials to the permanence of the talking machine industry, in face of the competition of other means for music reproduction, is a thoroughly well-balanced accumulation and supply of every kind of music. It is always in the matter of some similarly neglected point that weakness develops in any industry. These weaknesses are often dangerous and sometimes fatal. We do not want any of them, if we can help it, in the music industry.

Record All Good Dance Music

A well-balanced music catalog should be, and doubtless is, the aim of every manufacturer of records, though, of course, the temptation is ever present to follow each whim of public taste and so gradually to load up with a mass of ephemeral matter, each number of which has a very short vogue and is then lost for good. Of course, there is no sense in neglecting profits which, as it were, wait for one at the door, only asking to be let in. For my part I thoroughly believe in recording all the good dance music there is. The work of orchestras, like the various Whiteman organizations, for instance, represents true musicianship. When modern dance music is properly performed and recorded by artistic players it is very good stuff indeed. I have listened to dance orchestras whose power over a crowd containing many very fine and artistic dancers, dancers capable of the real poetry of motion, was positively wonderful, almost hypnotic in fact. Now, music of that sort is not likely to be lost in the course of a day or two. It is going to last for a good long time, and some of it may last permanently. Now, the complaint is not with this highly developed dance music. The complaint is much more with the attempts which have been made and are being made to fill out the lists of standard interpretations, the lists of music which is expected, whether on account of intrinsic merit of the beauty of the interpretation, or of the desirability of preserving the art of some great personality passed away, to remain a permanent good seller and a permanent element in a permanent collection of musical art.

Recording From Two Standpoints

Now, we always have to consider the recording question from two standpoints. On the one hand, records are music, qua music. On the other hand they are the preservation of the voices and the technique of many great singers and players. The selling appeal is probably first to be based upon the personality question. It is always easier to sell Caruso's voice than to sell Celeste Aida, as Celeste Aida. This is because in vocal matters the interpretation is everything, and the music only too often of secondary importance.

To a certain extent this is also true of instrumental music. The interpretation tends to become much more important than anything else. But not to so great or exclusive an extent, because those who care for instrumental music usually care, at least in part, for the music itself, and are not so completely hypnotized by the warmth or beauty of this singer's interpretation. It is usually, therefore, not so difficult, or commercially so risky, to use artistic sense in balancing up instrumental collections.

Order of Popularity

To maintain a fairly balanced collection, however, it is necessary to give every kind of music its fair chance. Of course, dance music sells easiest, blues songs and other characteristic racial rhythms come next in order probably, and then follow the records of great voices. These latter are of the utmost importance, for, little as the people at large may care about musical art, they do love fine voices and fine singing. After these, and at a long interval, come solo records of violin, cello and piano. Still further behind comes instrumental ensemble music, followed by symphonic records.

Band Music Neglected

Yet this, of course, is a very rough classification, and many modifications must be made in it. For instance, I have said nothing about military band music. No music is more fascinating and none more thoroughly fitted to the genius of the talking machine. Yet the recording of fine music by the military bands has greatly lagged. Here is a concrete example of what I mean by lack of balance in catalog making.

The term "Military Bands" includes what are also called "Concert Bands" for the purpose of this classification, and it must be evident to any one who has ever heard the best of the latter, such as the U. S. Marine Band, that here is a marvelous field awaiting us to be opened up by exploiting the appeal of these fine organizations to the native musical taste of the people. Imagine the Hallelujah Chorus from the Messiah recorded in an adequate arrangement by the U. S. Marine Band, or by Sousa's or Ellery's bands. Some remarkably fine specimens of German concert band recording have lately been placed on the American market, and they show wonderfully well how big a field there is yet to be exploited.

Band music, as I envisage it, should not be confined to marches and similar elementary matters. It should include virtually all the concert overtures, popular movements from symphonies, selections from favorite operas, and so on. There is already some of this material in the domestic catalogs, but I do not think there is half enough.

It would be more than merely interesting to see the results flowing from a campaign to put a lot of music of this sort up to the people. The response would probably be better by a good deal than the conservatives are willing to admit.

In the same way, too, a little research and some system injected into the methods of choosing orchestral and ensemble music to be recorded, would probably yield encouraging results in sales, and likewise balance up the catalogs wonderfully. As an example: If we could only have just one Haydn string quartet (say the Op. 64 No. 5, which takes the fancy of the veriest musical boob at first hearing), what a fine thing it would be!

Warning, Not Scolding

There is much more to be said, but I do not want to be thought a common scold. That is to say, I do not want any one to think that I am finding fault and picking flaws. Any one can indulge in that detestable practice and I do not propose to be included in the category. On the contrary, what I am trying to do is to show all concerned that the present position of the talking machine industry not merely entitles but virtually forces us, if we are to hold our own, into a position of positive handling of our problems. We must consider them all from every standpoint and we must be prepared to do all that competing methods of reproducing music can do; and then some! That is why we need to take serious thought about the condition of the present accumulation of records to the end that we may fill up the gaps, exploit not only a few but all the classes of music so fast as we can teach the people to absorb them, and thus balance up our position and make ourselves impregnable strong.

HOW A LIVE DEALER MADE GOOD

Advertising, Personal Contact With Patrons and Efficient Motor Delivery Important Elements in Success of Don C. Preston BAKERSFIELD, CAL., September 4.—Good advertising, personal contact with customers and an efficient motor delivery equipment are the three things that have made it possible for Bakersfield's smallest music store in a very short time to grow to be one of the largest and most complete establishments of its kind in central California. Don C. Preston, who is to-day celebrating his fourth anniversary, is also writing history that is most interesting.

Mr. Preston started business in Bakersfield in a small store room on East Nineteenth street in the Fall of 1919, after he had covered every State in the Union as a traveling representative for one of the largest distributors of musical instruments. He had been in business but thirty days when he realized the magnitude of his new venture and leased a small space in the building he now occupies. With the able assistance of Mrs. Preston, in the first sixteen months more than $100,000 worth of musical instruments were sold.

May 30, 1921, fire destroyed his stock of goods and fixtures. After the fire more space was obtained adjoining the old location. Upon moving back into the new store pianos were added to the popular line of Sonora phonographs; sheet music, band and orchestra instruments. The first of this year the store, of which J. G. Gray is sales manager, was again enlarged.

A branch store was opened in Taft in March, 1921, with John MacDonald in charge. A few months ago the Taft branch was moved to a location near the Taft post office, giving that city a fine establishment.

NEW PLAYER TONE CONSOLES

Two Models Added to Player-Tone Line—I. Goldsmith Returns From Successful Western Trip—Tells of Greatly Improved Conditions

PITTSBURGH, PA., September 7.—I. Goldsmith, president of the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co., of this city, returned to his desk to-day after a Western trip which included a visit to the company's factories at Grand Rapids, Mich. In a chat with The World, Mr. Goldsmith stated that his trip was very successful and that he had closed arrangements with several prominent houses whereby his company's products would receive aggressive representation the coming season. He is enthusiastic regarding the business outlook, predicting that the coming Fall will be one of the most prosperous seasons in the history of the talking machine industry.

"General conditions throughout the Middle West are very satisfactory," said Mr. Goldsmith. "Every one of our dealers is optimistic in discussing the business outlook for the next few months and we believe that there is going to be a shortage of some of our models, notwithstanding the fact that we have increased our factory output substantially. One of the purposes of my recent trip was the speeding up of production so that our dealers might receive maximum co-operation and service when most needed.

"We have just added two console models to our line and judging from all indications they will be among our sales leaders before the year is over. There is also an active demand for upright models, and, in fact, the trade seems to be in a position to absorb without difficulty a large amount of standard merchandise that is backed up by responsible manufacturers."

TRIANGLE REPRODUCERS IN DEMAND

Manufacturers Increasing Production to Supply Trade With the Important Specialty

The Triangle Phono-Parts Co., 722 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., announces a considerable increased production in its Triangle reproducer. This product, one of a series of tone arms and reproducers manufactured by this organization, has become quite popular with retailers and manufacturers, necessitating an increase of floor space devoted to its production. While the Triangle concern remains at its old address, it has taken over much larger quarters and the new layout and arrangement of the manufacturing plant will add considerably to the efficiency of production.

Orders for the Triangle reproducers have been considerably on the increase during recent weeks and the manufacturers have not only made changes to take care of this new demand but, in addition, they are preparing an extensive exploitation campaign which should further increase the sales.

Survey of the Talking Machine Industry

Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Prepares Interesting Information Regarding Existing Stocks and Retail Trade Prospects

The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has just completed an extensive survey of the music industry to determine the actual condition of stocks and the business prospects in retail establishments throughout the country, both in relation to retail business and to the demands that have been made and will be made upon manufacturers, together with the plans made to handle those demands.

The condition of the talking machine trade was taken into account in carrying out the survey and the report relative to that branch of the industry says in part: "With respect to phonographs, a far healthier condition is shown to exist than last year. Retail stocks are generally considerably smaller and there has apparently been a healthy liquidation of stocks during the year. This also applies to inventories of repossessed phonographs. The failure of merchants to anticipate their Fall and holiday requirements of phonographs is even more noticeable than in the case of pianos. Nearly half the merchants have not yet placed orders for any of their holiday requirements, which is a higher percentage than at this time last year, when merchants were not particularly optimistic about Fall and holiday business."

The inventory of new phonographs in the hands of dealers as compared with last year is as follows:

Over 50 per cent increase.....	3 per cent
25-50 per cent increase.....	9 per cent
Up to 25 per cent increase.....	16 per cent
About the same.....	32 per cent
Up to 25 per cent decrease.....	23 per cent
25-50 per cent decrease.....	12 per cent
Over 50 per cent decrease.....	5 per cent

Stock of repossessed phonographs compared with last year:

Over 50 per cent increase.....	1 per cent
25-50 per cent increase.....	1 per cent
Up to 25 per cent increase.....	6 per cent

About the same.....	37 per cent
Up to 25 per cent decrease.....	20 per cent
25-50 per cent decrease.....	9 per cent
Over 50 per cent decrease.....	18 per cent

Percentage of additional requirements up to January 1, 1924, for which additional orders have been placed:

75-100 per cent.....	9 per cent
50-75 per cent.....	16 per cent
25-50 per cent.....	15 per cent
Up to 25 per cent.....	13 per cent
None.....	47 per cent

Regarding sales since June 1, compared with last year, 67 per cent of the dealers reported increases, 10 per cent of them stating that the increase had been over 50 per cent. Twenty per cent of the dealers reported business as being about the same and only 13 per cent reported decreases. Likewise 69 per cent of the dealers questioned look for an increase in Fall and holiday business, with 24 per cent expecting it to be the same as last year.

PLANNING SALES DRIVE ON EDISONS

T. B. Parsons, Manager Jesse French & Sons, Mobile, Ala., Visits New Orleans to Confer With Diamond Music House Regarding Plans

NEW ORLEANS, LA., September 8.—T. B. Parsons, manager of the Jesse French & Sons Piano Co., of Mobile, Ala., accompanied by E. D. Dent, shop superintendent of the firm, and Mrs. Dent, who is head of the record department of the house, spent two days in this city recently conferring with W. W. Twigg, wholesale manager, and J. A. Billiet, retail manager of the Diamond Music House, here, relative to matters pertaining to the retail distribution of Edison products in Mobile. The Jesse French Co. was recently appointed representative for the Edison line in the Alabama city. Mrs. Dent spent her time in selecting a full line of records that she will introduce to clients in her home city. Mr. Parsons, in speaking of the progress obtained during the short period of their incumbency said that surprising results greeted them at every turn. He stressed this particularly as meaning that even more flattering gains will be shown when the campaign which is now in process of preparation is properly opened.

VICTOR FACTORY AT FULL BLAST

Plant Settles Down to Elaborate Production Schedule Following General Vacation Period—Excellent Progress on New Pressing Plant

The factory of the Victor Talking Machine Co. is now working in full force on a production schedule which is probably the most exhaustive in the company's history, although there are already indications that even the great activity will not be able to prevent a shortage of goods during the Fall and Winter, especially in the popular types of Victrolas.

The experiment of shutting down the entire factory for a period of two weeks in order that each employe might have a liberal vacation with pay proved a distinct success, for not only did the factory organization return to work on practically 100 per cent basis when the vacation period was up, but the company is receiving applications for employment from workers in many other fields. Work on the immense new record pressing plant is progressing rapidly, and it is expected that the new building will be completed, equipped and ready for operation as per schedule. The additional facilities will be welcome as affording means for catching up on record shipments generally.

HARRY T. LEEMING QUILTS TRADE

Former Sales Manager of Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. Resigns to Become a Sales Executive of the Mennen Chemical Co.

The talking machine industry has lost one of its foremost figures in Harry T. Leeming, who has severed his connection as sales manager of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., to enter a foreign field.

Mr. Leeming has been connected with the phonograph industry for nearly twenty years. In announcing his plans he stated: "For some little time past I have given a considerable amount of thought to entering an entirely different line of activity. I finally made up my mind to make the move, but I want my good friends in the trade to know that I am thinking of them and I also want to tell them that Pathé is going to go over very big and that they need have no doubts as to the ultimate future of Pathé and its products. If I should decide, at some future date, to again re-enter the industry, you can rest assured it will be with Pathé."

Mr. Leeming goes to his duties as a sales executive with the Mennen Chemical Co. No successor to Mr. Leeming has been appointed as yet by the Pathé organization.

FINE SITUATION IN PITTSBURGH

Joseph C. Roush, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Brings Enthusiastic Report Regarding the Business Outlook in That Section

A recent visitor to New York was Joseph C. Roush, head of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh, who came to the city, accompanied by Mrs. Roush, chiefly for the purpose of witnessing the Davis Cup Match at Forest Hills Stadium, Mr. Roush being an enthusiastic tennis fan. After a short stay in the metropolis Mr. Roush left for Absecon, N. J., to arrange for the golf matches to decide the permanent ownership of the Johnson and Blackman cups, played for several years by golf enthusiasts among the talking machine jobbers.

Mr. Roush was enthusiastic regarding the business prospects in the Pittsburgh territory for the coming months and stated that the steel industry, upon which the Pittsburgh section depends so much, was in a most healthy condition, the introduction of the eight-hour day in the mills having solved the unemployment question completely. Moreover, the steel mills have already on hand enough orders to keep them operating for months to come. The coal situation does not worry the Pittsburgh trade, for there seems to be no prospect of a sympathetic strike on the part of the bituminous miners.

The new weekly releases of Victor records, and particularly the introduction of Red Seal records with the downward revision of list prices, has served to stimulate business materially in the Pittsburgh territory, said Mr. Roush, and will have a very noticeable effect on Fall and Winter business.

The Forbes-Meagher Music Co., Madison, Wis., is remodeling and enlarging its establishment. New record racks, counters and demonstration rooms have been added.

TRADE ACTIVE IN SALT LAKE CITY

Growing Interest in Music and Improved Industrial Conditions Reflected in Prosperity—Changes in the Trade—The News

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, September 4.—Judging by the remarks made during the past few days by jobbers and dealers, the phonograph business is better than it has been for a long time. Victors, Brunswicks, Edisons, Columbias, etc., have all been selling well. This happy state of affairs is, to a great extent, due to improved industrial conditions and the fact that there is more interest in music at this time than there has been in years. Musical organizations and choirs, too, are now getting together after the Summer holidays and this is having a considerable effect on sales.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has presented the patients of the tuberculosis ward of the County Hospital with a large selection of records.

R. W. Carlson succeeds John H. Young as manager of the Thatcher Music Co., Logan.

The Keith-O'Brien Co. has discontinued its talking machine department on account of having less space in its new store. This firm carried Victor and Edison machines.

Wm. P. Berry, manager of the phonograph department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., has been selected as assistant manager of the local store of the company. Mr. Berry will, however, still have charge of the phonograph department, which is being enlarged.

Miss Sarah Chipman has been added to the staff of the talking machine department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co.

Miss Gussie Pearson, well known as a talking machine saleswoman, has joined the Fisher Music Co., East Broadway.

Brunswick dealers at Provo, Utah, report business as increasing. Both the Lindley Heindselman Music Co. and the Bates Stores Co. state that they have had good business through the Summer months and prospects are good for Fall.

Chas. King, formerly assistant secretary of the Consolidated Music Co., has been given a position in the phonograph department.

Your correspondent has to-day visited the new phonograph department of the great Z. C. M. I. department store. Henry Gardner, the well-known veteran in local music trade circles, who is in charge, said business was coming along nicely. His department is very attractive. There are five booths, all neat and inviting. Columbias and Brunswicks are carried.

R. F. Perry, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., reports an unusual big volume of sales during the Summer months. Visitors to the local branch during the past month included W. F. Cooper, of the mechanical department of the Brunswick Co.; A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager; Mr. Dives, of the Dives Furniture Co., Brunswick dealer, Malad, Idaho, and Elmer Madsen, of the Manti Music Co., Manti, Utah.

R. G. Thomas, manager of the Brunswick department of Browning Bros. Co., and Ezra B. Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Store, both Brunswick dealers at Ogden, Utah, returned from their vacations this past week.

Much space was devoted in the Salt Lake Tribune on Sunday, August 26, to Brunswick phonographs and records. Besides a large advertisement by the Brunswick Co., there were also large Brunswick advertisements by the following Brunswick dealers in Salt Lake City: Daynes Beebe Music Co., Z. C. M. I., O'Loughlins and Utah Music Co.

Miss Beth Ericson, head of the educational department of the John Elliot Clark Co., Victor wholesaler and dealer, has gone to Medicine Bow Lodge, a Wyoming resort, where she will address a teachers' institute and demonstrate the Victor machine.

RECORD SALES LEAD IN AKRON, O.

Increased Demand for Records of All Classes Makes Up for Lethargy in Other Branches of the Trade—The Month's News Budget

AKRON, OHIO, September 4.—Despite the complaints regarding the business of the past few weeks heard in some quarters here, a general survey of the trade indicates that business as a whole, particularly in the talking machine trade, has been somewhat better than that for the corresponding period last year. During the past week or ten days there has been a noticeable pick-up in buying, which augurs well for the Fall and early Winter business.

One of the outstanding features of the talking machine trade in recent weeks is the unusually big increase in record sales. All local stores report records are moving better than for many months and the people are buying all classes of records and not so much stress is being placed on dance records now.

The Earle Poling Music Co. will undergo extensive alterations within the next month to make room for the installation of new cases in which talking machine accessories and small musical merchandise will be displayed.

Miss Charlotte Roderick, for some time identified with the talking machine trade here, has assumed charge of the record department of George S. Dales Co.

George C. Wille, Canton music dealer, was a recent caller on Earle Poling and closed negotiations for the appearance in Canton at some January date of Ignace Paderewski, noted pianist and Victor artist, who will appear under the direction of Mr. Poling, after his appearance at the Armory here.

George Birbeck, representing the Eclipse Musical Co., Cleveland, who called on the George S. Dales Co., M. O'Neil Co. and the Earle Poling Music Co. last week, reports business on the increase throughout eastern Ohio.

Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., Victor distributor, also spent a day recently with Earle Poling, of the Earle Poling Music Co.

Miss Grace Barr, from the educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J., was a speaker at the Summit County Teachers' Institute held in Perkins' Auditorium the week of August 26. She also spoke to Portage County teachers at Ravenna, O., on "How Music Talks to Us."

B. A. Emerson, of the B. A. Emerson Music Co., reports Columbia records, especially the new Ted Lewis numbers, as experiencing unusually heavy sales the past few weeks.

"Machine sales have held up exceptionally well during the month of August and should show a tendency to improve after Labor Day," said Earle Poling, manager of the Earle Poling Music Co. "Our Red Seal record business continues to be very active," he remarked. "Even in August, a dull month for the trade, sales were way ahead of last year." He said the recent price reduction had a tendency to help sales of Red Seal records because people who never bought before are doing so now.

The George S. Dales Co. has opened a complete electrical appliance and radio department in the South Howard street part of the store.

The M. O'Neil Co. states business in Victrolas and Cheneys is better than a year ago.

Six of the leading music houses of the city will exhibit talking machines at the coming annual Summit County fair, which opens September 11 and continues five days. Dealers claim this is the best medium they know of through which to connect with rural prospects.

Akron music dealers are lending co-operation to a plan for the establishment of a department by the Akron Retail Merchants' Association for the collection of delinquent accounts. This bureau will be opened in the Buckeye Building at headquarters of the Merchants' Association. It will be in charge of Wilbur G. Foster. It is said eleven local music houses do a credit business and in the future their delinquent accounts will be handled through this bureau.

EMPLOYEES OF BUSH & LANE PIANO CO. HOLD ANNUAL OUTING AT GENISON PARK

HOLLAND, MICH., September 1.—Harmony was the keynote of the annual outing of the Bush & Lane Piano Co. at Genison Park just outside of Holland on Thursday, last, just as it is the keynote every day among the employes of the company. Everything was there to make the event a success, and in the words of W. H. Beach, treasurer and general manager of the company, "Even the weather man showed his favor." The various games were entered into with enthusiasm, many worthwhile prizes awaiting the winners. The "eats" were consumed with equal enjoyment, and, on the whole it was a happy day for all, a day which will be looked back upon by those present with pleasure.

W. H. Beach was honored by his employes in the presentation of a gold-headed cane. Replying to this token of esteem Mr. Beach took occasion to express his own happiness and referred to Walter L. Lane, president of the company, whom he held up as an inspiration to those possessed of an enthusiastic love for their work. Pride of workmanship and adherence to high ideals is the big element in the success which Bush & Lane instruments have enjoyed, and this has been brought about by the combination of conscientious workers and inspired executives who believe that the human element is one of great importance in the manufacture of pianos and talking machines.

Games and sports occupied almost the entire day. There were all of the usual events, with a lot more added besides. Thirty-two contests, all held within the space of six or seven hours, mean real organizing ability, even when pleasure is the animating cause. That, however, is precisely what the organizers of the Bush & Lane picnic accomplished. There was not a dull moment from the time the crowd thronged into the interurban going out to Genison Park until they thronged back again to go home. The list of prizes donated by concerns in the music industry who deal with the Bush & Lane Piano Co. expressed in an emphatic way the esteem in which the Holland concern is held by its business colleagues. It was a most enjoyable affair which no one present would have missed.

MARKETING THE "WOLVERINE" LINE

Lind & Marks Co., Detroit, Announces Campaign Featuring Popular Phonograph Line—Factory Facilities Increased Substantially—Now Handled by Many Michigan Dealers

DETROIT, MICH., September 5.—The Lind & Marks Co., of this city, one of the leading concerns in the local talking machine trade, is inaugurating an aggressive campaign, based on increased factory production, in behalf of the "Wolverine" line of phonographs, which it is manufacturing. This line of instruments has been on the market for the past three years, but, owing to the fact that production facilities were inadequate for expansion, it was impossible to handle any trade outside of the State of Michigan. In this one State, however, phenomenal progress has been made by the Lind & Marks Co. in the establishment of dealer representation, and there are approximately 400 dealers handling the Wolverine phonograph in Michigan alone.

The "Wolverine" line is complete in every detail, comprising instruments retailing from $100 to $215, together with a popular portable selling at $35. Among the models in the line are the Sheraton, Adam, Tudor, Queen Anne, Stuart and Louis XV consoles, all of which have proved ready sellers with the Michigan dealers. The cabinet designs of these instruments follow closely the periods they represent and the Lind & Marks Co. has received many letters of approval from the dealers referring to the tone quality of the product.

S. E. Lind, president of the Lind & Marks Co., is one of the best-known talking machine men in this part of the country, having been identified with the industry for many years. He was formerly manager of the Detroit branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. and in this important position won the esteem and friendship of the dealers throughout his territory. Mr. Lind's thorough knowledge of the requirements of the retail trade are being used to advantage in the merchandising of the Wolverine phonograph and, under his capable direction, an intensive sales campaign has been prepared that will undoubtedly enable the company to attain nation-wide distribution for its product. A five-year guarantee is a feature of this sales plan.

FRED R. SHERMAN VISITS THE EAST

Head of Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco, Victor Wholesalers, Enthusiastic Regarding Business Conditions on the Pacific Coast

Fred R. Sherman, president of Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco, Cal., Victor wholesalers for the Pacific Coast territory, as well as extensive dealers in pianos, sheet music and musical merchandise generally, arrived in New York with Mrs. Sherman early in September for the purpose of meeting their daughter, Miss Frances Sherman, on her return from a three months' tour of Europe.

Mr. Sherman brought with him a very optimistic report regarding business conditions on the Pacific Coast, which, he declared, were far more prosperous than in many Eastern sections. His company operates fourteen branches, in addition to a number of sub-branches in the various cities and towns along the Pacific Coast, and in each district prosperity prevailed. The fruit growers are getting good money for large crops, particularly the vineyard owners, who are realizing $150 per ton for grapes that brought only $30 before prohibition. The oil boom in Los Angeles has also stimulated trade in that section, so a natural reaction is looked for later. Much of the good business is due to the influx of settlers from the East.

The Victor business on the Coast is holding up in remarkable shape, said Mr. Sherman, and he was particularly enthusiastic regarding plans for the erection of a recording and record-pressing plant by the Victor Co. in East Oakland, Cal., across the bay from San Francisco. The recording plant will make possible the featuring of many more Pacific Coast artists and musical organizations, which fact is calculated to stimulate record demand west of the Rockies where the artists are known, and the operation of the pressing plant will greatly facilitate the delivery of records and save the time now consumed in transporting record stocks.

A. F. MACOUN WITH L. BAUMANN & CO.

A. F. Macoun, well known in the local retail field and identified with the talking machine industry for many years, has been appointed buyer of the talking machine departments of Ludwig Baumann & Co., Newark, N. J. This prominent furniture house now has an establishment on Market street, in Newark, and on September 25 will open another store on Central avenue, in that city, which promises to be one of the most pretentious furniture houses in New Jersey. Mr. Macoun will be the buyer for the talking machine department for the two stores and his long experience in the talking machine trade ideally qualifies him for his important new post.

Edgar Newman, treasurer of the Maison Blanche Co., Victor dealer, New Orleans, La., who has been in Europe for several months with his family, is expected to return shortly.

The Songster

WIDE-AWAKE phonograph dealers will realize instantly the sales possibilities of this new and unusual phonograph. The tone chamber of the Songster is made from select violin spruce in its natural state; it is not veneered, as in usual tone chamber construction. Specially constructed "violin" chambers at both sides of this tone chamber collect the tone vibrations and reflect them in deepened, mellow tones that surprise and delight the hearer. The Songster's tonal system is its dominating virtue; the Songster's variety of design and finish equals any machine on the market. The Songster is now making big profits for many dealers in the Northwest. It can't help but do the same for you.

PIERRE BOUCHERON VISITS TRADE

Director for Radio Corp. Publicity Returns From Visit to Jobbers and Dealers in the West

Pierre Boucheron, director of publicity for the Radio Corp. of America, New York, manufacturer of Radiolas, returned recently from a trip through the Middle West, where he visited RCA jobbers and dealers with the idea of getting their views regarding publicity plans for the coming season. Mr. Boucheron has made a careful study of the problems confronting the radio dealer and the data that he secured on his recent trip will be used as the basis for the mammoth campaign that will be sponsored by the Radio Corp. of America during the next few months. It is also quite likely that this sales and publicity material will be used as a basis for a handbook to be distributed among the dealers in order to assist them in securing maximum results from their efforts.

H. GERMAIN HOME FROM EUROPE

Makes Interesting Comments on Business Prospects and Trade Methods

H. Germain, president of the Plaza Music Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, recently returned from a ten weeks' stay in the larger capitals of Europe. Mr. Germain visited England, France and Germany. In reviewing the European business situation upon his return, Mr. Germain said: "France seems, for the moment, in the best shape economically, but I cannot persuade myself to view many phases of the general European situation favorably in any respect."

Mr. Germain made a minute study of business conditions in all of the larger centers of Europe, particularly as relating to the music business. "One interesting illustration of the different way in which the English view modern business was afforded in the case of the display of a portable phonograph in a London shop window. The instrument bore a price card on which it was stated that the price was guaranteed and that any attempt by any other tradesman to cut it would be met under a law that they have there to prevent price-cutting. The British law apparently recognizes a standard arrangement of price through agreement by both manufacturer and retailer.

NEW BUSH & LANE JOBBER

CLEVELAND, O., September 11.—The Bush & Lane Piano Co. has just consummated arrangements whereby H. B. Bruck & Sons Co., of this city, will be wholesale distributors for the new line of Bush & Lane phonographs. The new enterprise will be in charge of C. H. Kennedy, who is well and favorably known in talking machine trade circles. The territory includes Ohio, western Pennsylvania and the City of Detroit.

NIPPONOPHONE CO. PLANT DESTROYED

In the great earthquake and fire which caused such a great loss of life and property in Japan the reports are that the great plant of the Nipponophone Co., manufacturers of talking machines and records in Yokohama, was destroyed. It is good news, however, that J. R. Geary, an American, long associated with this organization, escaped, as did his wife and two sons.

OHIO MUSIC MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION HOLD CONVENTION

Talking Machine Interests Take a Prominent Part in the Program of the Annual Meeting of the State Body Held in Cincinnati, September 11 and 12

CINCINNATI, O., September 12.—Problems that have to do distinctly with talking machine stores and departments are having a prominent place in the program of the annual convention of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio, in session at the Hotel Gibson here yesterday and to-day. A number of talking machine men, as well as many dealers operating talking machine departments, are members of the Association and support it in its various activities.

The convention proper opened yesterday morning, following the annual golf tournament played at the Western Hills Country Club. The convention delegates were welcomed to Cincinnati by W. C. Culkins, vice-president of Chamber of Commerce in the absence of Mayor Carrel, to whom suitable response was made by A. B. Smith, president of the Association. The president, in his annual report, covered the progress made by the Association and what had been accomplished for the benefit of the music dealers throughout Ohio through organized effort. Secretary Rexford C. Hyre, of Cleveland, also reviewed in detail what the Association had done for its members during the year and announced that, up to the time of the convention, there were 207 dealers on the membership roll, or about 25 per cent of all the dealers in the State.

Among the papers read at the convention which were of special interest to the talking machine men was one on "Trade-ins," by Alfred L. Smith, general manager of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce; another on "Radio and Its Relation to the Music Business," by Elmer H. Wilkinson, general manager of the Jewett Radio & Phonograph Co., Detroit; "Advantages of Maintaining a Musical Merchandise Department," by James R. Frew, vice-president of the Euclid Music Co., Cleveland; "Finance," by Richard W. Lawrence, president of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce; "Modern Musical Merchandising," by Arthur Weldon, of Columbus; "Interest on Talking Machine Sales," by Wm. G. Bowie, of Cleveland, president of the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio (which appears elsewhere in this issue), and "Collections and Repossessions," by J. Fred Van Court, Cincinnati.

There was also an elaborate program of entertainment, including a trip to Cody's Farm on the Lexington Pike, Ky., where an elaborate chicken dinner was served and old-time country sports indulged in; luncheons each day at the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, and the annual banquet at the Hotel Gibson to-night, after which there will be dancing.

As is usually the case at the Ohio conventions, a number of piano and talking machine manufacturers took advantage of the opportunity of making displays of their products, the talking machine manufacturers represented including the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. and the Bush & Lane Piano Co. Other exhibitors included the Sterling Roll & Record Co., showing Strand consoles, Okeh records, Outing portables, and Arthur Brand & Co., Cincinnati, displaying accessories.

Prolonged Heat Wave Fails to Seriously Affect Trade—Preparations for Fall Under Way—Radio Horizon Gradually Clearing Up—Exercise Records Make Debut—British Kodisk, Ltd., Inaugurates Competition—Plan to Revise Copyright Act—Gramophone Co., Ltd., Introduces New Table Grand—Other Important News and Activities of the Month

LONDON, E. C., September 3.—Though laboring under the disadvantage of a prolonged heat wave (at time of writing) the gramophone trade is making no bad showing. Indeed, as a result of the educational and instructive work of record and instrument manufacturers, dealers have little excuse for avoiding their responsibility. Every shopman is a public servant, the gramophone dealer not excepted, and even during the so-called "off" season the public expects and admires service. Many times have I found in even small districts dealers of extremely wide difference as regards ideas of service. One will go out to attract custom; the other leaves it all to chance. Thus do we find the enterprising dealer who makes light of troubles and heat waves in a position to say, "Well, things are not so bad, after all." That is the kind of dealer deserving of every encouragement from manufacturers, and they are pleased to give it.

Preparing for Fall Season

Much thought is being given by every section of the trade concerning prospects of the season. Preparations have long since been in hand. It might almost have been said they have reached fruition. The firm which has not made full arrangements and planned its policy for the season so close upon us will certainly suffer a big disadvantage. Regarded as a foregone conclusion that competition will be keener than ever during the next few months, it is to be expected that most firms are ready to meet the occasion by improving the quality of their products and, in some cases perhaps, offering inducements in the way of slight price reductions.

There is a tendency towards reduction in the price of records, though any general or drastic alteration, it may be said at once, is quite out of the question. Prices of materials and manufacturing costs are still high and will not permit any retail price easement of the commercial article. I think, however, we may look forward to reductions here and there in prices of gramophones, especially so in view of the action of the "His Master's Voice" Co. in issuing a cheap, popular-price table grand, as reported elsewhere. This is almost bound to cause a reaction in other manufacturing quarters, resulting in very keen competition of price, if not of quality, particularly as regards the table grand type of instrument.

My inquiries go to show a general belief exists that the coming season will be a good one. I cannot say that this belief is based on any special grounds, but the optimistic spirit which prevails will certainly carry us a long way towards the goal of achievement and success.

Domestic Radio Situation Less Involved

With the approach of Autumn anticipations are rising as to prospects of revived activity in wireless trade circles. Of late the demand has been very slack, especially for complete sets, partly because the public is getting wise to the comparatively heavy costs in contrast to the cost of parts which the average man or boy can himself fairly easily assemble. These assemblers do not contribute anything for service for the simple reason that it is illegal to assemble and, therefore, no license is obtainable, this apart from the few licenses issued to so-called experimenters. The government, alive to the position, appointed a committee to report upon this aspect of affairs, it being thought desirable to regulate the position. This committee's report, expected in August, has been delayed. Its publication is eagerly awaited. There is little doubt that a license costing 10/- will be granted to amateurs desirous of making or assembling their own sets. Pending this license there is little doubt that sales of parts and even complete instruments are adversely affected.

One other aspect is that of payment of royalties to copyright owners by the British Broadcasting Co., Ltd. An agreement has been reached with the Performing Rights Society by which the British Broadcasting Co. pays broadcasting royalty fees of 2/6 to 10/6 for individual copyrights and between £5 and £50 for broadcasting a complete theatrical performance. This agreement is to be retroactive. Negotiations with other societies are still proceeding.

Physical Fitness Records Introduced

Quite a novelty for the British market is the introduction of Captain A. Birley's series of physical fitness records. These tell us how to regulate exercises and do physical jerks—accompanied by music, as it were—and so to keep fit and well. A chart illustrating the different drill movements is furnished free. The new records have occasioned unusual interest.

Thomas Dawkins & Co., Ltd., musical instrument and gramophone merchants, London, have been compelled to consult their creditors. Established about 150 years, the firm has built up a world-wide connection. The news was received with general regret.

W. R. Steel, managing director of W. R. Steel (Redditch), Ltd., the big gramophone needle manufacturer, has resigned his position.

A dissolution of partnership has taken place between Miss E. J. Senier and J. H. Russell, carrying on business as the Gramophone Exchange, this city. The business is continued by Mr. Russell in partnership with C. Walters.

Kodisk £1,000 Prize Competition

An example of real enterprise is furnished by the action of British Kodisk, Ltd., in launching at this time a competition with prizes totaling £1,000. It is hardly necessary to describe at length exactly what the Kodisk stands for. Let it suffice to say that this metal disc enables one to record at home. To further make known its functions this side the Kodisk people have inaugurated a generous scheme by which merit alone will count for reward. The first prize, £500, will go to the person making the clearest and most distinct record, £50 as prizes to contestants under twelve years, £50 to the dealer who sells the first-prize Kodisk and £50 for the best window display. Other prizes will bring the total to an outlay of £1,000. The judges are the Earl of Hardwicke, Louis Sterling and Miss José Collins.

Amendment of Copyright Act Suggested

What amounts to a revision of the Copyright Act of 1911 is contained in a bill introduced in the British Parliament by Frank Gray, M. P. By the absence of any prominent or other notice on musical works a performer is often quite unwittingly led into infringement of a copyright. It is true that copyright under the 1911 act automatically obtains for a period and that public performers should be aware of this, but a good many are not. And, again, often the absence of any date of first publications renders it difficult to know whether a copyright subsists or not in the work. Mr. Gray would therefore come to the rescue by securing the passage of his bill, the text of which is as follows:

1. The following paragraph shall be added after paragraph (VI) of sub-section 2 of the copyright act, 1911:—

2. (1.) Where the right to publish any musical work and the right to perform such work become vested in different persons, it shall be lawful for the owner of the right to publish the work, requiring him to print the notice aforesaid on every copy of the work.

(2.) If the owner for the time being of the right to publish any musical work shall, after notice has been given to him or his predecessor in title, in accordance with this section, fail to print the notice so required upon every published copy of the work, the owner of the right to perform such work shall be entitled to recover from him such damages and costs as he might have recovered from any person if the notice aforesaid had been so printed.

3 (1.) This act may be cited as the Copyright (musical works) Act, 1923, and the Copyright Act, 1911, and this Act may be cited together as the Copyright Acts, 1911 and 1923.

(2.) This Act shall not apply to works first published in a foreign country with which His Majesty has entered into a convention relating to Copyright.

(3.) This Act shall apply to works first published on and after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-four.

Y. W. H. N. B.

Here is a criptic caption. Of course, it stands for the answer to and comment upon most things just now—"Yes, We Have No Bananas." By its contradiction and absurdity this title has simply created a furore for the song. In sheet music form or on records the demand is simply enormous. Every company has now listed it and special "pressings" seem the order of the day. The following story is now going the rounds: Fair damsel to out-of-date music retailer, "Eh! have you that song 'Yes, We Have No Bananas'?" Salesman (referring to alphabetical list), "Yes, no, madam; I am sorry we have not, but I see we have 'Yes, Let Me Like a Soldier Fall.'" As the rest of the story is a blank it is presumed the young lady fainted.

The Gramola Introduced

This is the name of a new table grand just marketed by the Gramophone Co., Ltd., and which, as reported last month, has created quite a sensation throughout the trade by reason of the extraordinary value it represents. The Gramola is a handsome instrument—dome-top mahogany cabinet 12½ inches high, 15½-inch base, with nickel-plated and enamel fittings, single-spring motor, speed regulator, taper arm with ball-bearing socket and goose neck, needle bowls, Gramola sound box, all at £6 retail, or in oak, £5. Though the famous "H. M. V." trade-mark is absent it bears the words "Manufactured by the Gramophone Co., Ltd.," which is good enough warrant for most people. The raison d'être of the Gramola is, in the company's own words, "to meet the demand expressed by many of our dealers for a table grand instrument to sell at a price that will enable them to compete with 'cheap' types at present on the market." There you have it in a nutshell, so to speak. The bulk demand for gramophones these days is confined to models below the value of £10. There are many types of table grands on the market from £4 10/- up and, while the "quality" prestige of the Dog is still strong, it is evident that present economic conditions have, to an extent, forced would-be buyers to treat the question of price as a first consideration of purchase. The fear is expressed in trade circles that the "H. M. V." action will seriously affect the sales of other table grand manufactures. All's fair in love and war!

Zonophone Music

There is a very good selection of vocal and instrumental music apparent in the latest batch of records to hand from the British Zonophone Co., just the kind that should make for heavy sales. The new Zonophone artist, Browning Mummery, has, if one might so term it, been well discovered. He possesses a powerful tenor voice of operatic standard and two good examples of his work are found on twelve-inch record No. A-274, "Your Tiny Hand Is Frozen," from "La Bohème," and "On With the Motley," from "I Pagliacci," in both of which his delivery is superb. In the extensive ten-inch list the contributions of the Dorian Singers, male quartet, are worthy of praise.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 8.—Phonograph Reproducer. Arthur W. Schreiner, Brooklyn, N. Y. Patent No. 1,459,605.

This invention relates to a phonograph reproducer primarily designed to improve the tone color and fullness of note so greatly desired in this class of instrument.

It has been found that very remarkable improvements can be made in the clearness and volume of music played from ordinary phonograph records whether they be old or new, and regardless of whether they be orchestral, vocal, band, or simple instrumental pieces. Particular improvement can be noticed in the reproduction of notes from the piano.

In particular, the method of supporting the needle is of the utmost importance, and it must be so supported to be movable in every direction so as to give every slight indentation on the record opportunity to operate the diaphragm.

Furthermore, the volume of the reproduction may be greatly increased by using both sides of the diaphragm. To this end the inventor has devised novel means of valving the air pulsations from the diaphragm so as to effect a continuous flow of waves forward through the phonograph horn or emitting tube. This also produces a clear sound free from the usual stiffness and apparent incompleteness of note. This quality is attributed largely to the straight forward flow of the sound waves resulting from a valving arrangement and the use of both sides of the diaphragm.

Sound Box. Alfred A. Dennis, Grand Rapids, Mich. Patent No. 1,459,577.

This invention relates to a sound box for phonographs, being primarily directed to a novel construction in which the diaphragm thereof may be tensioned by application of an adjustable and yielding spring tension thereon, similar to and producing the same desirable results as does the construction shown in Patent No. 1,393,434, granted October 11, 1921, without the more or less troublesome manufacturing and production faults thereof, the present construction being easily and readily manufactured without especially skilled and careful labor. A further object of the invention is to make the sound box also more or less productive of many of the desirable results coming from the structure shown in pending application for patent Ser. No. 476,977, filed June 13, 1921, in so far as an adjustment of the air volume space under the diaphragm is concerned, but without changing the vibratory area of the diaphragm, this remaining the same at all times. The invention, in fact, combines all of the desirable characteristics of two prior applications, with an elimination of the faults thereof, with the production of a structure which is in shape for practical manufacture to produce a sound box which may be applied to practically all of the common makes of tone arms used in phonographs.

Figure 1 is a front elevation of the sound box of the invention in its preferred form. Fig. 2 is a rear elevation thereof. Figs. 3 and 4 are vertical sections through the sound box, but with the parts in different positions in the two views. Figs. 5 and 6 are sections like that shown in Fig. 3 of two slightly modified forms of structure of the invention. Fig. 7 is a perspective view of the movably mounted ring which is used in the sound boxes for changing the air volume back of the diaphragm and for actuating the spring member toward or away from the same. Fig. 8 is a fragmentary enlarged partial section and front elevation of the sound box, showing features of the interior construction, and Fig. 9 is a fragmentary vertical section and development taken on the curved line 9-9 of Fig. 8.

This invention relates to sound recording and reproducing apparatus, and comprises conduits which provide separate sound paths between the vibratory element or diaphragm of the sound box and the opposite extremity of said sound conducting or amplifying means. More specifically, the invention relates to a talking machine or phonograph having a sound box or reproducer provided with a plurality of separate impulse chambers in operative relation to the vibratory element of the sound box (in combination with a compound tone arm and an amplifying horn both embodying in a compact unitary structure separate conduits which afford separate continuous sound paths between said impulse chambers and the outer end of the amplifying horn.

One of the objects of the present invention is the elimination in large measure of the stated difficulties inherent in talking machines at present commonly in use, thereby making possible much more nearly correct recording and reproduction of sounds. Another object is to materially increase the sound volume and power of which the usual talking machine is capable, while at the same time guarding against interference of sound impulses, a defect characterizing constructions heretofore proposed.

in accordance with the invention, certain parts being in elevation. Fig. 2 is a section through the sound box on the line 2-2 of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is an end view of the sound box throat. Fig. 4 is a transverse section through the coupling between the tone arm and horn, on the line 4-4 of Fig. 1.

Talking Machine Cabinet. Nick Tota, Camden, N. J. Patent No. 1,460,289.

This invention relates to a new and useful improvement in talking machine cabinets, and has for its object to so construct such a cabinet that the sound emanating from the talking machine will be greatly amplified and projected outside of the machine.

A further object of the invention is to provide a tilting mirror adapted to close the front of the upper portion of the cabinet when the talking machine is not in use and so pivoted that when it is swung to give access to the talking machine it will reflect the turntable, the record thereon and the sound box and tone arm so that the reflection of these parts of the machine may be plainly seen by a person sitting in the room where the machine is located.

Still further objects are to provide for dividing the outflowing sound waves when desired so that a portion of the sound may be conveyed through the front of the cabinet and the amount of such divergence being controlled by the swinging of the mirror and provision made for the proper storing of record discs and also for the housing of the motor and the radio-phonograph apparatus.

mirror in its tilted position and illustrating the manner in which the reflection of the working parts of the talking machine will be viewed in said mirror. Fig. 2 is a plan view of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a section at the line 3-3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a section at the line 4-4 of Fig. 3.

Automatic Talking Machine. Lee G. Daniels, Rockford, Ill. Patent No. 1,461,111.

The primary object of the present invention is to provide a talking machine of novel construction, which shall automatically play a plurality of records, one after another until all are played, and which will, if desired, continuously play the records in succession.

More particularly, this invention contemplates as an object the provision of a talking machine including a revoluble table carrying a plurality of circumferentially spaced record turntables which are carried successively to a playing station beneath the reproducer, the stylus of the latter being lowered onto the record at this station and, when the playing is completed, being raised to an inoperative position. Suitable mechanism is provided for indexing the table to position the record turntables at each playing station and to automatically lower and raise the reproducer stylus at the desired intervals.

taken on the line 7—7 of Fig. 3; Fig. 8, a detail sectional view taken on the line 8—8 of Fig. 2, and Fig. 9, a front quarterly elevation of a talking machine embodying the improvements.

Amplifier. Rufus P. Silverthorn, Marion, O. Patent No. 1,461,685.

This invention relates to improvements in sound amplifiers for phonographs, the object being to provide an amplifier which is so constructed that it will bring out tones otherwise lost in the playing of a record. A further object is to provide a distinctly novel means for suspending the amplifier directly under the tone arm of a phonograph so that the amplifier does not contact with the cabinet of a phonograph and the nuisance of cabinet vibration is entirely done away with. A still further object is to provide improved means for strengthening and bracing the mouth of the horn of the amplifier so that it may be conveniently supported in the manner above described without affecting the character of the sounds transmitted there-through.

This invention relates to sound-reproducing machine constructed in the form of an old-fashioned clock and provided in the top thereof with a clock mechanism and centrally thereof with a sound-reproducing mechanism and at the lower portion thereof with means for supporting and storing records, and the object of the invention is to provide a machine of the class and for the purpose specified with means whereby the tone arm of a machine of this class may be automatically moved into positions to permit of the repeating or the reproduction of a predetermined record; a further object being to provide means in operative connection with the clock mechanism of the machine whereby the rotary disc supporting table may be automatically started at a predetermined hour.

side view of the construction shown in Fig. 5; Fig. 7, a plan view of the construction shown in Figs. 5 and 6 and indicating the movement of the tone arm of the improved mechanism, and Fig. 8, a partial sectional view on the line 8—8 of Fig. 6, showing another important detail of the construction.

Tone Modifier for Sound-reproducing Machines. Fred W. Cooley, Minneapolis, Minn. Patent No. 1,462,320.

This invention relates to a tone modifier adapted to be used in connection with the tone arm of a sound-reproducing machine and to be placed in said machine in the path of the sound waves from the tone arm to the sound chamber. It comprises an improvement in a tone modifier of the general type disclosed in Patent No. 1,349,604, granted to applicant of August 17, 1920.

It is an object of this invention to improve the character of the tension device disclosed in said patent and the manner of attaching the same, as well as to improve the means for connecting and spacing the tubes used.

Talking Machine. Bert Edward Lane, Camden, N. J. Patent No. 1,462,114.

One object of this invention is to provide improved sound conducting means for talking machines which can be made cheaply and durably. Another object is to so construct this invention that it will permit the free movement of the sound transmitting elements of a talking machine and to avoid undue friction between the several parts.

Still further objects are to make the parts in a manner so that they can be easily assembled or taken apart, of comparatively light weight but of such strength as to withstand hard usage without injury thereto.

taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a perspective view of an amplifying box or housing which forms a part of the invention. Fig. 5 is a developed form or blank from which the box or housing of Fig. 4 is made, said blank being stamped or cut from a piece of sheet material, and Fig. 6 is a top plan view of a roller-retaining ring which forms a part of the invention.

Tone Arm. Frank Oberst, Glendale, N. Y., assignor to the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York. Patent No. 1,459,743.

This invention relates to tone arms for talking machines and has for its objects to provide means for facilitating the removal and renewing of the stylus.

A further object is the production of a tone arm having relatively movable members and wherein rattling will be prevented and eliminated, and in which the various elements which go to make up the tone arm will be rigidly secured together and easily and readily assembled and disassembled and accidental displacement avoided.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a side elevation, partly in section, of a tone arm embodying the invention; Fig. 1a is a detailed sectional view of the clamping means indicated in Fig. 1; Fig. 2 is a section on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a detailed sectional view of a modification, the section being indicated by the line 3—3 on Fig. 4, and Fig. 4 is a section on the line 4—4 of Fig. 3.

Sound Arm Coupling for Talking Machines. Horace Hurm, Paris, France. Patent No. 1,466,554.

This invention relates to tone arm couplings for talking machines and has for its object the production of a tone arm which will be at the same time air-tight and flexible in the two planes in which mobility is required. A further object is to provide a tone arm coupling comprising two bellows connected together and in communication, one bellows being hinged vertically and therefore swingable in a horizontal plane and the other hinged horizontally and swingable in a vertical plane.

Stylus Support for Talking Machines. Horace Hurm, Paris, France. Patent No. 1,466,555.

The subject of this invention is a stylus support for talking machines, the principal characteristic of which is that it is formed as a sort of lattice construction extending over the whole length of the support. This renders it possible for the stylus support to be small in inertia, yet sufficiently rigid to resist bending—a very important consideration.

SELLING MUSICAL MERCHANDISE

By J. R. FREW

This is a practical book that describes the methods pursued by a successful music dealer in conducting his musical merchandise departments. It covers every routine problem incident to establishing and operating a department devoted to band and orchestra instruments.

This branch of the music industry has had a very prosperous year and an excellent opportunity awaits other dealers who take it up. It requires a small investment, gets quick turnover, involves no risk and, in addition to being highly profitable itself, increases the sale of talking machines, records, etc., and helps make a given store the music center of its community.

The SCOTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesman by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

TWELVE POINTS

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailor-made appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitivity to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap sound boxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber gasket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.

DISCRIMINATING PEOPLE CHOOSE SONORA

The inherent high quality found in Sonoras priced no higher than other well-known makes, appeals strongly to the substantial, well-established person of culture and refinement who demands the best that money can buy in all his purchases.

This desirable type of buyer is irresistibly attracted to the Sonora store. And Sonora advertising, window displays, advertising literature—all play a vital part in bringing him to the Sonora dealer's place of business. Once attracted, it requires little effort to convince him that Sonora is the better instrument.

Sonora dealers find that the business built up among this class of phonograph purchaser always results in a large proportion of cash sales, the benefits from which are many fold.

TO INSTALL BROADCASTING STATION

Saul Birns, Gotham Talking Machine Dealer, Planning Radio Station at Second Avenue Store—Foreign Language Programs and Educational Work to Be Featured

Plans are under way by Saul Birns, proprietor of a chain of talking machine stores in New York and Brooklyn, to install a radio broadcasting station in his headquarters at 111 Second avenue, New York City. Permission has already been secured by Mr. Birns from the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Navigation, Radio Service, for radio transmission.

Mr. Birns' plans include the broadcasting of radio programs in various foreign languages, including Yiddish, Italian, Greek, Polish, Russian, etc. The Second avenue store is located in the heart of a section of the city in which reside many foreign-born people of all nationalities. Mr. Birns states that a large percentage of these people are not familiar with the English language, many of them having arrived in this country very recently. Mr. Birns is a member of the board of governors of the downtown branch of the League of Foreign-Born Citizens, and he believes that a broadcasting station, such as he intends to install, will prove a powerful force in educational and Americanization work. Tentative plans have already been made to install a device for transmitting the instruction given in the classes of the League to the foreign-born people who do not attend schools. Mr. Birns has also secured the co-operation of publishers and editors of the leading foreign newspapers to publish the programs and render such other service as may be possible. Musical programs, rendered by artists in the various foreign languages, will play an important part in these programs, according to Mr. Birns, who also declared that there is an intense interest among foreigners in radio.

REILLY WITH BUSH & LANE

Popular Wholesale Man Joins Holland, Mich., House—Will Cover State of Illinois

CHICAGO, ILL., October 8.—Raymond Reilly, for the past three years wholesale representative for the Chicago branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., covering the loop district, has joined the sales organization of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., Holland, Mich., and will be in charge of the State of Illinois and the city of Milwaukee for this company. Mr. Reilly will concentrate all of his activities on the development of the phonograph business for the Bush & Lane Piano Co., and the enthusiastic response accorded this company's new line of instruments is reflected in the many inquiries received for dealer agencies.

Mr. Reilly is well known throughout the Western talking machine trade, for prior to his association with the Columbia Co. he was identified for ten years with the retail talking machine field. He is recognized as one of the most successful wholesale men in the Chicago trade and in his new connection will have ample opportunities to utilize his previous experience to advantage.

RETIREMENT OF CALVIN G. CHILD

From Artists and Repertoire Department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. on Account of Ill Health—Succeeded by J. S. Macdonald

Announcement has just been made of the retirement of Calvin G. Child from his administrative duties with the Victor Talking Machine Co. as director of the artists and repertoire department of the company. The results of his twenty-three years of effort in this special field have been of an outstanding character both as regards the Red Seal library and the popular numbers.

Mr. Child's retirement from the more active phase of his efforts in behalf of the Victor Co. is due to the condition of his health. He will, however, continue as a member of the Board of Directors, to which body he was elected some time ago. Mr. Child, by the way, was associated with Eldridge R. Johnson even prior to the formation of the Victor Co.

J. S. Macdonald has been appointed to the important position of manager of the artists and repertoire department of the Victor Co. and will henceforth assume the administrative duties formerly falling on Mr. Child. Mr. Macdonald has also been associated with the Victor enterprise for a long period of years, most of which were spent in the artists and recording division, but part of which was spent as sales manager of the company. Mr. Macdonald is, therefore, especially well qualified to fulfill the responsibility that has been placed upon him.

Columbia to Start Big Ad Drive This Month

Leading Magazines and Newspapers to Carry Full-Page Color Advertisements of Columbia Machines and New Process Records—Ads Will Appear Nearly a Billion and a Half Times

Columbia dealers throughout the country were gratified to learn this month of the preparation of a mammoth Columbia advertising campaign that will be inaugurated on October 21. This campaign has been planned in such a way that it will reach the reading public of the entire nation and, according to the official schedule, the new Columbia phonographs and Columbia New Process records will be featured during the months of October, November and December in rotogravure color and black and white full pages of forty-three great Sunday newspapers, whose circulation totals 14,000,000 each week.

A similar presentation will appear in four full-page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post, whose weekly circulation is 2,177,000. Each week 750 daily papers will carry advertisements announcing the popular hits to 22,000,000 readers. The Columbia advertising department sums up this campaign as follows: "When you consider these circulation figures in relation to the number of times each advertisement is scheduled in this group of publications alone there is the amazing total of 1,353,708,000. Think of it—nearly a billion and a half Columbia impressions upon the public mind! But this is not all. Hundreds of thousands more readers are similarly and persistently appealed to by appropriate advertisements which are inserted regularly in the leading Negro weekly newspapers and foreign language publications, which include twenty-four different nationalities."

The rotogravure advertising will be particularly artistic, one advertisement, for example, featuring the new Columbia Model 550, listing at $200, and presenting this handsome instrument in a suitable background. In the same copy there are also listed the new Columbia Model 460, listing at $225; the Model 530 console, listing at $150, and the Model 520 console, listing at $125. Another page in the campaign will be devoted almost entirely to a description of the new reproducer that is part of the equipment of the new Columbia line; this copy emphasizing in detail the distinctive merits of this reproducer.

Is the Mail Order House Your Competitor?

Mail Order Firms Draw Trade From Entire Country—Some of the Business Methods Which Are Resulting in Losses to Retailers

On more or less frequent occasions established retailers in various cities and towns of the country have called to their attention more or less forcibly the activities of the various mail-order houses in going after and landing prospective customers in their territories. Even though the dealers themselves are not conscious of mail-order competition they have sympathy to offer to neighboring dealers perhaps in other lines who have seen sales go glimmering as a result of mail-order solicitation.

The average merchant, especially in the larger cities, appears to be of the opinion that the bulk of the mail-order business is done in rural communities more or less distant from large towns, where well-conducted talking machine establishments are located. Yet it is a peculiar fact that close to 50 per cent of mail-order business is actually done in large cities and with a class of people who would make most desirable customers for the local retailer.

Invading Dealers' Territories

As an instance in point it is significant that even in New York City and particularly its populous home borough, Brooklyn, to say nothing of Chicago and its environs, the mail-order houses have sold machines at substantial prices to people only a few blocks distant from the local dealer with an established store and a stock that can be inspected at first hand.

It is apparent that the argument to the effect that the local dealer is a permanent fixture in the community and is doing his share to develop the city and pay the expenses of its maintenance has little effect, nor do the mail-order buyers seem impressed by the fact that, when they have added freight, cartage and other liberal expenses to the original cost of their machines, plus the uncertainty of doing business with a distant concern, they have paid a sum that would have bought them good machines in their own towns.

Certain Cities Best Mail Order Centers

It is particularly significant that certain cities appear to make fine prospect centers for mail-order houses, while others do not respond. Cincinnati, O., for instance, is a poor mail-order town, while considerable business comes out of Columbus, less than 100 miles distant. Buffalo, N. Y., is likewise a poor business center for the mail-order houses, but is balanced by Rochester, which produces a generous number of buyers. Hartford, Conn., is a good mail-order city, but New Haven on one side and Springfield, Mass., on the other prove disappointing as a source for orders.

Local Dealers Responsible

It would seem that the situation rests largely upon the ability and aggressiveness of local dealers in covering their territories thoroughly. Perhaps even the dealers in good mail-order towns are working hard and conscientiously, but do not cover enough territory, for it would seem logical that the efforts of an outside sales staff, coupled with a fair volume of local display advertising, should offset any mail-order competition that is not distinctly of a cut-throat character.

It might be well for those dealers who feel satisfied that they are putting sufficient energy into their businesses and going after the maximum number of prospects with a maximum amount of energy to analyze their cities from the standpoint of the mail-order man. He keeps his figures before him and knows just how productive any given territory has proved or is likely to prove and perhaps the result of the talking machine man's investigation will give him a shock, or at least it will wake him up.

The Mail Order Follow-up

It is interesting to know, too, that, having once become established, the mail-order house depends upon its old customers in chief measure for new prospects through a system of follow-up letters that keeps the customer satisfied and a booster. The mail-order customer is not sold and then forgotten, but is constantly being asked by mail whether the purchase has proved satisfactory or not and whether he has any friends who might be prospects for purchases of machines.

Those dealers who make the sale and then consider the incident closed might well take a leaf from the book of the mail-order man in this connection. If a concern several hundred miles away from the customer can keep in touch and use that customer as a prospect getter and business builder how much greater opportunity has the dealer himself to maintain such a contact through his salesmen, if possible, and by mail, if necessary.

Talking Machines Aid in Piano Teaching

The Kinscella Method, Utilizing the Talking Machine Through Special Victor Records, a Great Aid to Pupils in Studying the Piano

In addition to furnishing the means for the more resultful study of musical appreciation in the public schools of the country through the reproduction of music of orchestral instruments of operas, classics, folk songs, etc., as well as providing suitable music for folk dances and the other features of school work, the talking machine has found for itself a new field in educational work—that of facilitating the study of piano playing in the schools.

The Victor Talking Machine Co. announced recently four new records for use in conjunction with the Kinscella method of teaching children the piano in classes, and the development is of particular interest not only to talking machine dealers, but to those who are interested in the development of piano instruction in the schools of the country.

The method for which the new records have been made was originated by Miss Hazel G. Kinscella, major instructor in piano at the University School of Music, Lincoln, Neb., about five years ago, and since its inception it has met with great favor. During the school year 1922-23 over 1,500 children were taught piano in Miss Kinscella's classes in Lincoln, and over 30,000 children were taking the course under teachers who had been trained by Miss Kinscella at her teachers' institutes and in her Summer session classes conducted every year at widely separated points. During the past Summer Miss Kinscella has held classes for teachers of the Kinscella Method at the State Normal School, Kearney, Neb.; the State Teachers' College, Emporia, Kan.; the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; the

Much of the success of the Kinscella Method since its introduction has doubtless been due to the fact that it offers a practical way of teaching qualities which develop logically and in a well-balanced manner the child's capacity and ability to read music as readily as he would read a story written in a language with which he is familiar; to lay solid foundations in pianistic

the piano to large groups of children, thus conserving the time of the teacher and permitting piano instruction to be given in public school classrooms, much the same as singing is taught. In addition to having made group teaching possible this method has won enthusiastic supporters in that teachers and pupils find in it the habits, and in matters of tone-shading, phrasing and pedaling; to develop equal facility in the use of both clefs and of all keys; and to inspire him to desire in his playing not only accuracy, but also an artistic interpretation.

Much of the work of the Kinscella Method consists of four-hand studies, in which the teacher or another student plays the second part. Children have been handicapped in having no one to practice with them at home. But with the four records of the Kinscella studies the student may turn on the Victrola and find a partner for his piano duet. First, the child may listen to the "primo," or first part, and thus is helped to learn the tempo and phrasing by hearing, before playing the "secondo" accompanied by the Victrola's "primo"; then he turns the record to the "secondo" side and plays his primo on the piano, while the Victrola plays secondo, or the process may be reversed.

The pitch of most pianos has now become standardized. These recordings have been made at the standard pitch of 440 and, therefore, may be synchronized easily with a piano of the same pitch. Besides adding a new element of interest to the child's home practicing the use of these records will do much to encourage an exact observance of rhythm and tempo.

Miss Kinscella has made these records herself and every child who uses them will be playing with the founder of the method. The Kinscella records are Nos. 19097, 19098, 19099, 19100.

Now Is the Time to Plan Holiday Drives

Importance of Holiday Season at Close of Year Makes Imperative the Early Consideration of All Phases of Special Sales Campaigns

The time is now ripe for members of the talking machine trade to think seriously of their holiday sales campaigns. By the time this issue of The World reaches the trade the first month of the last quarter of the year will be half over, with Thanksgiving and the remaining holidays so close at hand that foresighted merchants will begin to consider plans for their sales drives, with the object in view of winding up the year with such a boost to the total business volume that 1923 will stand as a mark to shoot at next year. All in all, this has not been a bad year for dealers who have actively and determinedly made every effort to get business. However, it is the last three months of the year which determine to a large extent whether the annual sales volume is satisfactory.

The Best Sales Season

The holiday period during the two months at the end of each year is probably the best sales season which the talking machine trade enjoys, and what each individual dealer makes of the opportunity depends entirely upon the efforts put forth. It is perfectly natural that the retailer who simply sits back and waits for the plums to fall into his lap will get a certain amount of transient business. When practically every man, woman and child is looking for suitable gifts for loved ones a few are bound to enter the first store which offers possibilities. However, it is to that portion of the trade which has made a diligent effort to attract the attention of the gift-hunting public to which the bulk of the business will go and, therefore, the live dealers who inaugurate vigorous sales campaigns and utilize every possible medium of bringing prospective customers into their stores and who constantly strive to impress the public generally with the appropriateness of talking machines and records as gifts which will bring lasting enjoyment and satisfaction will have no cause to regret their energy and the expenditure of time and money in promoting carefully planned drives for business.

Planning the Well-rounded Campaign

There are so many things to consider in inaugurating a drive of the character necessary to make the most of the holiday business possibilities that dealers will find the time permitting this work short enough. There are advertising, direct mail, window displays, interior decorations, special delivery service, insurance of ample stock to meet all requirements, canvassing of prospects for machine business and old customers for record business. Last-minute attention to these details will only result in confusion and hit-or-miss methods, which will be certain to result in curtailing the effectiveness of the drive. Advertisements should all be planned as soon as possible. The entire series of ads should be mapped out as well as space in the various mediums determined upon, so that when the time for action comes the stage is set for this end of the drive. If form letters are to be used for sending to machine and record prospects spare time can best be utilized in preparing the first drafts of these letters, so that possibilities of failure are reduced to a minimum. A hastily written letter does not accomplish its object and represents money and time wasted. Well-written letters bring home the bacon and pay large dividends on the investment of time and money.

Planning the Window Displays

Talking machine dealers should spare no expense or effort to make their holiday window displays distinctive. It must be remembered that every other retail establishment will be competing to attract the attention of gift-hunters through the medium of specially arranged window displays, and the talking machine dealer must arrange a display that stands out from the rest if he expects to make this element of his holiday campaign do its work. It is impossible to simply place a few instruments and records in the window, together with the holiday colors, and expect that the passing public will pay much attention to it. Too many dealers give no thought to the window until they are taking out a previous display. Window space is even more valuable than the space in the interior of the store devoted to the display of machines for the reason that the window offers one of the best mediums for attracting the attention of the public and bringing interested prospects into the store which the merchant has at his command.

Importance of Record End of Business

Records are becoming more popular each year as gifts. People enter a talking machine establishment and select several records and many times the salesman are so rushed during the holiday season that they have no time to devote as much attention on each individual as is necessary for the best sales results. During the last year sales of records in groups have become recognized as a simple expedient to boost record sales to individuals. Here is a valuable hint for dealers who desire to make the most of their record business during this season: Carefully selected records in half dozen or dozen lots in special containers or albums, along the lines of the "Treasure Chest," placed on a special table or record stand should prove a real profit maker this year.

The foregoing illustrates briefly a few of the many considerations involved in any drive for business in the talking machine field and the necessity for starting early, so that when the time for launching the campaign arrives there will be a minimum of last-minute settling of vexatious problems. The important thing to remember is that the time of the dealer, salesman and other members of the store organization must be left free to attend to the increased volume of business which is bound to ensue, as well as the increase in the general routine incidental to handling this business. Otherwise there is bound to be confusion and impairment of service, things which the talking machine dealer cannot afford at any time, much less at this season, when speed is so essential.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS MOST SATISFACTORY

A SHORT two months from the time this issue of The World reaches its readers holiday business will be under full headway or, at least, should be, unless every present indication of good business is without foundation. Time certainly does fly and the members of the trade who have not passed the formulative stage and perfected plans for the Fall and Winter season, and put those plans into execution, are bound to lose business.

It is to be presumed that the average dealer has placed orders for an adequate supply of both machines and records in anticipation of the demand for the balance of the year, and it is to be hoped that the majority will have those orders filled in sufficient proportion to prevent loss of business. For those who have hesitated about committing themselves and have insisted upon waiting till the last minute to see "which way the cat would jump" the outlook is not particularly encouraging.

At the present time there is hardly a cloud on the business horizon. Labor disturbances are at a minimum and even the annual coal strike has been settled, so it will not offer an excuse for those who hesitate about buying. Unemployment is at low ebb and there exists an unexampled opportunity for merchants generally to build up a volume of sales that will compare most favorably with that of the peak years.

The talking machine trade itself is particularly well situated with its readjustment of record prices, its frequent release dates and its extensive lines of strikingly artistic machine models with which to appeal to the public. If the holiday business does not break records it will rest largely with those who have the selling to do.

ANTICIPATING THE QUESTION OF SHORTAGE

IT is an accepted fact that in several of the standard lines of talking machines there is bound to be a serious shortage of stock, particularly of the most popular models before the holiday season is at an end and, in fact, indications of that shortage are already apparent in some quarters. In spite of this condition which exists, or promises to develop, there are those dealers who insist on traveling the easiest way and featuring in their window and wareroom displays and in their local advertising the most popular machine models, leaving the less popular and generally higher-priced styles resting peacefully in showroom or warehouse.

The dealer naturally feels that being already in demand the popular medium-priced styles can be sold with little or no effort and, therefore, are content to let them sell themselves or, better still, speed up their distribution through publicity. As a matter of fact, the logical thing would be to hold these more popular models in reserve as it were. Display them but not feature them and center sales and advertising activities on the styles that are higher in price but promise to be more plentiful as time goes on.

It is but reasonable that when existing and obtainable stocks of the most popular models are exhausted the dealers must of necessity turn their attention to the higher priced lines and, perhaps, lose sales simply because of the fact that the customer cannot pay the higher price. If the selling of the less popular numbers is now concentrated upon, popular styles can be held more or less in reserve for the customer who cannot raise his limit or for the man who insists upon that style or nothing else and cannot be sold another model.

Wholesalers are strongly advocating the policy as outlined for the reason that it means larger individual sales and more profit for the dealer if carried on consistently and intelligently while, at the same time, affording him protection by conserving his limited stock of the most popular models to meet competition or the demands of the insistent ones.

The policy of letting the popular models sell themselves and then concentrating sales effort on higher priced and more plentiful types is going to save the day for many dealers who have been wondering just how they are going to fill the gaps in their stock that are surely coming.

WHERE THE FINANCING SHOULD BEGIN

DU E to a number of conditions, general and local, through the introduction of console and period models in talking machines to be sold at substantial prices and generally on instalments, and the increased turnover enjoyed by many retailers, there has developed the necessity for certain retailers seeking ways and means of realizing some cash for their paper.

The financing of a business by one means or another, so as to keep the capital as liquid as possible, is the natural course, for there are comparatively few retailers who can handle their own instalment paper, particularly long-time paper, on a sound economic basis. Putting it in the safe and keeping it there to maturity is all right provided there is enough cash left to purchase a sufficient amount of new stock and to cover the running expenses of the business. Otherwise the bank must be asked to discount the paper and, when that channel has been closed, the dealer must resort to other methods.

In view of this general situation the necessity of selling on credit only to those of recognized standing and ability to pay, and then on terms within reason, is strongly emphasized. If the average talking machine dealer keeps his terms well within eighteen months on sales running above $125 and within twelve months on sales amounting to less than that amount, the financing problem is not going to worry him a great deal, provided he charges interest on time payments and sees that those payments are made on schedule.

Unlike the piano dealer, who must depend upon new sales of pianos to bring in cash to his business while waiting for the instalment payments to be met and the paper to mature, the talking machine dealer has the advantage of handling record sales in a volume largely dependent upon his energy and ability as a business man. Record sales or at least the greater percentage of them are and should be for cash and, in a properly conducted store, the record turnover should bring in a sufficient supply of cash to operate the business while the instalment paper on machines is maturing and make unnecessary any heavy financing beyond, perhaps, some limited loan from the bank to discount bills.

Conditions sometimes develop, of course, which put individual dealers in a position where they must have cash and, therefore, they have to use their paper to the limit. But, under ordinary circumstances, record sales should carry the business, leaving the income from machine sales free for the replenishment of machine stock and for additions to the profit account.

Sound financing, through the medium of instalment leases, is often a good business move, provided the income is put into the business for sound expansion or betterment. When, however, the dealer has to finance himself on the strength of his machine paper to cover his operation expenses, then there is something wrong in the record sales department.

WHAT THE NEWSPAPER STRIKE HAS TAUGHT

THOSE who have any doubt regarding the absolute necessity of advertising in handling modern business might do well to get in touch with merchants in New York with a view to learning of their experiences during the strike of the newspaper pressmen which, although short, tied up practically every daily newspaper of importance in the city. Even when the newspapers managed to get out abbreviated morning and afternoon editions through combining their resources, they did not attempt to handle the advertising of department stores and others, and the resultant falling off in business was apparent even to the most casual observer.

Particularly in the department stores was the lack of the advertising appeal emphasized. Where ordinarily hordes of women and many men crowd into the stores to patronize special sales and remain to make extensive purchases in every department at regular prices, only comparatively few shoppers were in evidence. Other lines of business, depending on the advertising appeal to attract patronage, suffered in proportion.

IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATING THE PUBLIC

DURING the past month or so some thousands of talking machine dealers throughout the country had an opportunity for centering public interest on records of the higher class through the readjustment of list prices on single-faced Red Seal records due to the move of the Victor Co. in issuing those records in double-faced form. A great mass of excellent sales promotion material for window and showroom display, together with much newspaper advertising, was available to dealers so as to enable them to get the greatest volume of sales as a result of this change in policy.

Considering the situation as a whole, it is quite apparent that too many dealers, while enthusiastic over the change in the record situation, did not show proper appreciation of the opportunity for crystallizing public interest. Everywhere there appeared in store windows and for that matter in newspaper advertisements announcements that there had been substantial reductions in the prices of Red Seal records, but rarely indeed was any attempt made to sell what those records really represented or to list boldly, and in type readable at a distance, some of the selections available or the names of artists whose voices could find a welcome place in any home.

It will be a long time before such an opportunity to clean up on records within a limited time will be offered to talking machine dealers and it is unfortunate that so many took it for granted that the public as a body knew all about Red Seal records and failed to offer explanations of their importance and value for the benefit of those who have no knowledge of just what Red Seal records mean.

The idea is that too much cannot be taken for granted. The more enlightening details that can be offered in presenting good things to the public the greater the result will be. The next time do not just tell the public that something has occurred—take pains to give details that will appeal to those who do not know.

NATIONAL MUSIC WEEK DEFINITELY ANNOUNCED

THE decision of the National Music Week Committee to hold the country-wide celebration of this event during the week of May 4 to May 10 gives those who intend to participate in it, and music merchants have long been among the most enthusiastic supporters of the movement, sufficient time to mature their plans so as to take an active part in its promotion. The fact that more than 150 cities have already held annual music weeks, that representative men and women in every walk of life have lent their cooperation by accepting membership on the general committee, that the Governors of thirty-four States have officially indorsed the movement, all tend to show the widespread popular interest and go far towards insuring its permanency. Congratulations are due C. M. Tremaine, who conceived and carried out the first music week in New York and whose efforts have been tireless to spread the idea throughout the country.

Quality Advertising as a Business Builder

The Patronage of Discriminating Persons Can Best Be Secured by Consistent Advertising in Which the Quality Appeal Predominates

A problem of the most vital importance to every merchant is how he can spend his advertising appropriation to the best advantage, i. e., develop the potential interest of readers of the advertisements to such a pitch that inquiries or personal visits to the store result. Of course, the final results of the advertising are measured by the degree of co-operation between the component parts of the entire organization. However, every talking machine dealer has established his business reputation along certain lines and this should have an important bearing on his advertising. In other words, for example, when a merchant has built up a substantial reputation by catering particularly to the wage earners and other middle-class people, persons to whom the price consideration in any purchase has an important bearing on the decision to buy and to whom style, performance and art are to some degree subordinated, he must plan his advertising appeal along lines making the greatest impression on this class.

To Whom the Quality Appeal Is Directed

On the other hand, there is a certain class of people whose enthusiasm cannot be aroused through the appeal based on the price factor. These are the people in comfortable circumstances, the upper middle classes and the wealthy. These people possess the means to gratify their desires to a larger extent than the class of people mentioned in the preceding paragraph and, therefore, their greater discrimination forces the advertiser who desires to bring his product favorably to the attention of these people to base his appeal mainly on quality, both in tonal value and design and finish. The price appeal need not be eliminated entirely, but it must be subordinated to obtain results.

Excellent Examples of Quality Ads

The illustrations of several samples of the advertisements recently used by the Griffith Piano Co., operating stores in Newark and other cities in the States of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, reproduced herewith, were selected because they are about the finest type of quality advertising that has come to our attention in a long time. The advertising principles incorporated in these ads may be utilized with equal effectiveness by other dealers, although the talking machine dealer who has established his reputation on the price basis cannot expect to secure any very great results by inserting an advertisement of this character in the local newspaper once or twice a month and maintaining his regular program of price advertising at the same time. He must first establish his reputation among the class of people he is trying to reach and this cannot be done overnight. A consistent advertising program will do the trick, however, and in the end the results will undoubtedly justify the expense.

Harmony in Layout Important

In the illustration of the Griffith Piano Co. advertising it will be noted that the several ads reproduced are so well balanced that their very harmony with illustration and border. For example, in the advertisement of the Adam period Sonora the daintiness of the instrument itself is emphasized by the type as well as the text; a bolder type face blends beautifully with the illustration and border in the ad showing the heavier Italian Renaissance model, etc. These examples are sufficient to show how type may attractiveness almost compels a reading of the text. There is absolute harmony between illustration, text and border, and right here it may be emphasized that too often in retail talking machine advertising there is a tendency to crowd as much as possible in the space available, thus curtailing materially its effectiveness. In the Griffith ads the keynote is beauty and dignity, two things most likely to attract the attention of discriminating potential customers.

The selection of type for the text of the advertising has an important bearing on the success or failure of an ad. In the Griffith ad it will be noticed that the selection of type is in be utilized to emphasize the message and add to the effectiveness of advertising.

Reasons for Ad Failures

There are many members of the trade who have become disgusted with advertising, simply because they discovered that their copy did not seem to stimulate business. If analysis of the copy were resorted to in practically all instances of advertising failure it would be found that either the wrong medium had been used or the copy had been faulty and, therefore, the appeal lost its force or did not exist at all. Eliminate these evils and the gambling element is to a large extent removed from advertising.

Increasing Profits by Reducing Overhead

Fixed Prices of Talking Machine Products Preclude Mark-up to Increase Profits—Reduction in Overhead Expense the Solution

The question of determining accurately selling costs and the overhead generally of the retail business is one that is being emphasized constantly and is receiving increasing attention from not only trade associations and other groups of businessmen, but from Government bureaus. The difficulty appears to be that, while many dealers appreciate the importance of keeping their expenses within the limits that will permit of a fair margin of net profit, there are few who are able to determine just what that margin should be.

Why the Dealer Is in Favored Position

The talking machine dealer, as a rule, is in a favored position in this matter for the reason that he has a definite purchase price and a definite selling price, with an exact percentage of mark-up between the two. His problem, therefore, is not to mark his goods to cover his overhead and net profit, but rather to keep his overhead and sales expense so far within the mark-up limits as to allow for a suitable net profit in the final analysis.

The question for the dealer to worry about is not so much whether the discount from the list price allowed by the manufacturer is 40, 40 and 10, or 50 per cent, as to how he can keep his distributing expense, including all overhead charges, within a figure that will allow him to retain at least 10 per cent of the selling price, and perhaps more, as his own.

Operative Cost of Talking Machine Department

A careful survey of the overhead figures compiled by prominent concerns in the music trade brings forth some interesting figures regarding the operations of the talking machine department, the majority of the reports agreeing that the gross overhead in a well-conducted establishment should average between 25 and 29 per cent, leaving from 11 to 15 per cent net profit for the dealer. This overhead, for instance, includes selling expense—salaries and commissions—which vary from 11 to 16 per cent and average 13 per cent; delivery charges ranging from 1½ to 3 per cent; repair service averaging about 1 per cent; advertising ranging from 1 to 5 per cent, with an average of 4 per cent; rent ranging from 1 to 7 per cent, according to space and location of department; depreciation of fixtures averaging 1 per cent, and in addition the cost of financing instalment paper and the cost of carrying used instruments taken in trade.

An Exact Definition of Profits

The great difficulty with the average dealer appears to be that he is thrown off the track by the talk of gross profits—in other words, the amount representing the difference between the cost of the goods and the resale price, and bases all his calculations on those gross profits. Goods carrying a 50 per cent discount from list would, theoretically, bring a 50 per cent gross profit, figuring on the selling price; but, as a matter of fact, the only profit that can be properly classified is the net profit—the amount left after all overhead has been deducted. If retailers will refer to the difference between the cost and selling price of the goods as the mark-up, and lose sight of the term profits until the final analysis, the figuring will become easier.

Holding Business Costs Within Limits

Although the talking machine dealer has the advantage of fixed costs and fixed selling prices in the figuring of his business accounts he is handicapped in a considerable measure by that very fact, for he must keep his business costs within prescribed limits and must do his adjusting by shaving here and there, rather than, as in the case of other products, increasing his mark-up to allow for the net profit margin. In other words, if analysis shows that it is costing the dealer 35 per cent of his selling price to sell the goods, leaving him only 5 per cent net profit, he cannot increase that selling price to create the necessary margin, for the list price is generally recognized as the maximum price. His only recourse lies in effecting economies in his business along lines that are least calculated to have a deterrent effect.

The importance of providing sufficient net profits through the medium of economies, in businesses where an upward revision of resale prices is not possible, has been realized by the United States Government itself, which, through the Department of Commerce, has called conferences of business men to consider the question of eliminating waste in the distribution of various products. The president of the National Association of Music Merchants, with which a large number of talking machine dealers are affiliated, has likewise taken cognizance of the importance of this work by appointing a committee of representative trade members to consider and report on the same problem.

Economies Through Better Selling Plans

By putting economies into effect it is not meant that savings should be made on equipment, on stock or by hiring salespeople of low caliber. The way out is more likely to be found in rearranging the sales plan and the advertising plan, including the covering of the mailing lists on a basis that will make for greater efficiency and, consequently, greater results. In short, the problem is not so much that of doing the same volume of business at less expense, but rather of determining ways and means for handling a larger volume of business at the same expense.

CASHES IN ON FACTORY WORKERS

Noon-hour Demonstrations of Talking Machines, Pianos, Etc., in Factory District Result in Sales for Utica, N. Y., Firm

UTICA, N. Y., October 3.—Vitulo & Ulisse, music dealers of this city, have been making many sales of talking machines, player-pianos, records and music rolls through a series of noon-hour demonstrations to workers in the local factories. Several instruments and a quantity of records and music rolls are loaded on a truck, which, accompanied by a girl demonstrator, is driven to the factories and a musical "show" is staged as the employes pour out of the buildings. During the demonstration a salesman from the store delivers a brief talk on the merits of the various instruments and distributes circulars and other advertising literature. How profitable this idea is is indicated by the fact that in a twenty-minute period as many as 105 talking machine records have been sold, as well as music rolls. In addition these demonstrations bring the dealer and the line he handles to the attention of a large number of people with all that this means in the ultimate increase in patronage.

The Edison line of phonographs and records has been added by Krug's Piano House, well-known music dealer of Yonkers, N. Y.

The NEW Columbia

A marvel of mechanical perfection

It runs with absolute regularity and accuracy. It is made of finest steel. Its bearings are entirely of bronze and brass. Its gears are beveled and machined so that gear meets gear without a whisper. Its action is regular as the swinging of a pendulum and quiet as the ticking of a finely jeweled watch.

Lubrication, the life of every motor, is provided regularly and efficiently by a clever system of tubed wicks leading from a readily accessible, central oil-well to the five main points of wear.

Other valuable, exclusive features are the brand new Automatic Start and Non-Set Automatic Stop.

The motor leaps into action the moment the tone-arm is moved over to place the needle on the record. The record stops revolving when the music stops, no matter what the make or length of the record. There is absolutely nothing to adjust. In ten thousand times, by actual test, it has never failed to operate.

In practical convenience, sturdy durability and sales-compelling efficiency, the New Columbia Motor is without a parallel in the history of the phonograph. It marks the arrival of another new epoch.

PAUL BAERWALD WITH KIMBERLEY

Popular Sales Executive Now Sales Manager of Kimberley Phonograph Co.—Associated With Industry for Eight Years—Ideally Qualified for This Important New Post

Paul L. Baerwald, Eastern sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, for the past eight years, has been appointed sales manager of the Kimberley Phonograph Co., of Perth Amboy, N. J., and New York, N. Y., manufacturer of the Kimberley phonograph. Mr. Baerwald, who is well known throughout the talking machine trade from coast to coast, assumed his new duties on October 1 and is making his headquarters at the Kimberley New York offices, 206 Broadway.

During his eight years' association with the General Phonograph Corp., Mr. Baerwald acquired an intimate knowledge of talking machine merchandising that will be placed at the disposal of Kimberley representatives. In the development of Heineman and Meisselbach motor business he studied the technical details of phonograph manufacture and therefore possesses a wide familiarity with all phases of phonograph marketing and production. He has a host of friends in the trade who will be glad to learn that he has joined the Kimberley forces.

In his new post, Mr. Baerwald, in addition to acting as sales manager for the Kimberley products, will assist David Isenberg, president of the Kimberley Phonograph Co., in handling executive details. During the past few years the Kimberley phonograph has won considerable popularity throughout the East and with the start of the new year the company inaugurated an intensive sales campaign that has resulted in nation-wide distribution for its products. The company maintains an up-to-date plant at Perth Amboy, N. J., where these instruments are manufactured in their entirety, and factory facilities have been steadily increased in order to take care of the demands of the trade. Mr. Baerwald is planning to spend the greater part of his time in visiting the dealers and jobbers in the leading trade centers, so that he may cooperate with the Kimberley clientele along practical lines.

PAUL ASH SIGNS WITH BRUNSWICK

Popular Pacific Coast Orchestra Leader Signs Exclusive Brunswick Contract—Director of Grenada Theatre Orchestra—Has Attained Wide Popularity on Coast

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. announced recently that Paul Ash and His Famous Grenada Theatre Orchestra of San Francisco had been signed as exclusive Brunswick artists and the first records are ready to be released to the public. The Paul Ash Orchestra has been one of the features of the Grenada Theatre for the past two years and has attained wide popularity. The individual shading of tone and the harmonious effect obtained by this orchestra have created a popular light classical style on the Coast known as "Paul Ash Music."

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., in announcing the Paul Ash records to its dealers, states that, while these recordings are played in dance tempo, they will not be featured as merely dance records, but, instead, a combination of dance and concert music. It is pointed out that there are thousands of phonograph owners who enjoy popular music, but are not particularly anxious for this music to be played in dance tempo, and the company feels that Paul Ash music is filling this want. These records were recorded during the special expedition to California of Sinkler Darby, chief recorder of the company, and his assistants. The musical direction was under the personal supervision of Walter Henchen, Brunswick director of popular music.

Frank Corley, of the Corley Co., Victor wholesaler of Richmond, Va., was a recent visitor to New York City.

What One Talking Machine Dealer Is Doing With De Forest Radiophones

LIKE the rest of you, he was months ahead of dealers in other industries in seeing the vast possibilities of radio. He knew that the Radiophone at its best should be classed with musical instruments.

He saw how the Radiophone made use of the phonograph as a loud speaker.

He knew it must be easy to operate, easy to install, requiring no technical skill, economical. He knew most of all it must pass on the music of the broadcast as a fine violin translates into sound the unborn music of the master's mind.

He experimented with many makes to find the one which should meet these exacting requirements.

And then he said "De Forest—and De Forest only."

It was not until he had selected the De Forest Radiophone as his exclusive radio line that he learned its epoch-making method of sale.

He thought he would have to invest his capital in De Forest Radiophones. But the De Forest Company said no. "Requisition what you can sell" they said. "As you make your sales, send in the money to us, deducting your compensation. Our agents do business on De Forest capital."

Is it any wonder that Talking Machine dealers all over the United States are clamoring for De Forest agencies?

Over twelve hundred agents have already been appointed, and the territories are going fast. They are exclusive territories. We cannot have our agents overlapping and competing with one another.

If you want the De Forest agency, write us at once. We will send you by return mail the new book entitled, "Building Your Radio Business With Our Capital." It tells the whole story of the great De Forest consignment plan.

Join the twelve hundred who say "no such instrument has ever been offered to the American public—and no such plan has ever been evolved for the full protection of the agent."

Remember—territories will be exhausted in a few weeks. Don't put it off, write or wire us today.

Value of Window Displays to the Dealer

Many Stores Competing for Trade Through Window Supremacy
Compel Originality in Exhibits of Dealers—An Effective Window

The value of window displays has been emphasized in the columns of The World many times, but too much cannot be said of this important means of publicity. It has been demonstrated time and time again that dealers with uninteresting and sometimes even repellent window displays are not the ones who are doing the biggest business. However, it is really surprising how few merchants take advantage of their window space. It is safe to assume that where this condition prevails merchants do not realize that they are taking the most effective steps possible to curtail business.

Competition in Window Displays

It has been truly said that the window is the eye of the store, and it is just as true that this is the only means by which the passer-by can judge the establishment. It is easy enough to create an unfavorable impression, but it is much harder to arrange a window that will stand out so that the goods displayed will have their merits impressed upon potential customers. It must be remembered that in every business section there are many stores and each one is trying to attract the attention of the public through window displays. Now the point is that with all this competition the talking machine dealer, in order to stand a chance, must create a window which will not only attract the attention of the public, but which will be talked about and, even more important, will be remembered.

A Window That Boosted Sales

Occasionally we run across a display which is so good that we cannot let the opportunity pass of reproducing it for the benefit of the entire trade. One of the best displays which has come to our attention in a long while was that in the window of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Forty-second street, New York City, last week. The entire window display consisted of Victor consoles, with the exception of one upright talking machine and several portable models and a few records cleverly arranged as an automobile. A large placard in the center of the window bore the following text:

"The Victors on Parade. Introducing Victor Console, Sr., and Family. This happy family have every reason to be proud. They are wonderfully constructed and high-toned. Their business is hiring out as domestic pleasure makers. You will find one of them in most every home.

"We are headquarters for this fine family. Let us show a pleasure maker. Convenient terms.—Wurlitzer."

It will be noticed in the illustration that each model was equipped with a cut-out of a head and resulted in five sales and several live prospects. Throughout the period of the display many people stopped to look it over and the probabilities are that more sales will eventually be realized from the prospects secured. Another feature of this particular display is that the central idea can be used in a series of displays. In fact, it is the intention of Mr. Edlund, soon, to arrange another display in which the Victor family will arms. Also on each model was a placard announcing the "family" name of that particular instrument, consisting of Victor Console, Sr., Mrs. Victor Console, Miss Victoria Console, Vic Console and Little Victor, Jr., and the upright machine as a traffic cop.

According to Norman K. Edlund, manager of the talking machine department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., this display during the first week be shown at home. The scene of this exhibit will be a living room of a home with the Victor family enjoying the music of a Victrola.

This window display proved in a concrete manner that it possessed the power to attract the attention of passers-by, arouse interest in the goods exhibited and induce action, the three things upon which hinges the success of any window. In the case of the Wurlitzer Co., fortunately, the window is large and there is ample room for an extensive display without danger of crowding, which is one of the most common faults of the average window.

The Evil of Crowding

Reiteration of the fact that crowding nullifies any possible favorable effect of a window display will do no harm. Although this has been stated and restated in various ways many dealers still seem to think that a window is a kind of stockroom and they put as much of their merchandise in the window as it will hold. Windows in which are exhibited several machines, a number of records, sheet music and a conglomerate mass of musical merchandise are not uncommon. There apparently is no attempt to deliver a message through the display which will bring interested prospects into the store. A display of this character is confusing to the onlooker and, although passers-by may stop to look at it, there is nothing to hold attention or set forth the merits of the products handled.

Merchants pay rent in proportion to the value of their location and this is measured, to a large extent, by the number of people who daily pass the store and, one might truthfully add, to the number of people who have an opportunity of seeing the window displays. That is why, all other things being equal, a dealer who carefully arranges his window displays on a street which is not quite so crowded with shoppers will often succeed when a competitor in a more popular thoroughfare who is careless about the "eye of the store" will lose out.

Originality Pays in Foreign Record Sales

How a New York Retailer Does a Big Business in Foreign Records by Concentrating on One Language — Linguist Salesmen Help

Sales opportunities in the foreign record field are practically unlimited; in fact, the surface in this branch of the talking machine record business has scarcely been scratched. This is indicated from time to time by the exploits of live dealers who are resorting to original methods of building up foreign record trade with gratifying success.

A very large proportion of the population of this country consists of people of foreign birth. Each month, year after year, many thousands of people come from foreign shores to make their permanent homes in cities, towns and farms throughout the entire country, and it is safe to say that only an infinitesimal number of these people are acquainted with the talking machine or the fact that the songs and music of their homelands in the original language can be obtained on records. Therefore, the talking machine dealer has at his disposal a most profitable asset to stimulate sales, for a large percentage of these people are always anxious to keep in touch with the music and songs of their homelands.

Foreign Record Orders Through Mails

One of the most successful stunts in building up a demand for foreign records which have come to our attention is the building up of a mail-order business in French records which was instituted some time ago by Edmund V. Bragdon, treasurer of the Ideal Music Co., Victor dealer, New York City. Mr. Bragdon inserted an eye-attracting advertisement in a French newspaper of national circulation, announcing that an extensive line of records in the French language could be secured through the Ideal Music Co. This announcement, read by French people from coast to coast, aroused their interest afresh and this was evident from the number of inquiries received. In response to these inquiries the Ideal Music Co. sent out the following form letter, written in French, which explained the system used:

"It is with pleasure that we are sending you herewith the new catalog of French records that the Victor Co. has just published. All French records released up until the first of January are included therein.

"We have all these records in stock and we will take pleasure in sending you parcel post, C. O. D., those which you may choose. We pay the postage on all orders in excess of $5.

"Awaiting the pleasure of hearing from you, we are "Very truly yours."

An important feature of this campaign is the fact that all correspondence is carried on in the French language, thus insuring the message being properly interpreted at the other end. The campaign has already resulted in the sale of thousands of records, with a fair sprinkling of orders for as many as twenty and thirty records. Great care is exercised in packing records for shipment and prompt attention is given the demands of customers. This service has resulted in mutual satisfaction, demonstrated in a concrete manner through continuous repeat orders. As has been stated, these French records are shipped to customers all over the country, from Maine to California, and even to the West Indies, proving that the man or house that goes after business can get it.

Linguist Salesmen Get Results

Another stunt that has been instrumental in stimulating sales of foreign records consists of having salesmen who speak foreign languages serve customers of foreign birth, especially those who speak English poorly. Widener's, Inc., which operates a branch store in Newark, N. J., has found this method popular and profitable for the store. One of the salesmen of this store speaks several Latin languages and the credit manager also speaks the languages of northern European countries. As an illustration of how the thing works out Widener's recently had a prospect come into the store, whom L. A. Dexter discovered was a Spaniard. The salesman-linguist also happens to be Spanish by birth and Mr. Dexter immediately turned this prospect over to this salesman. As soon as the Spanish prospect realized that he was speaking with a countryman his face lighted up and his satisfaction was apparent. To make a long story short an expensive instrument and a number of records were sold on the spot and the customer was so enthusiastic over this service that he voluntarily declared that he would tell all his friends about the store where they could be served by one of their own countrymen. The result cannot be doubted!

Opportunities Awaiting Development

The foregoing examples are only a few of the real profit-making opportunities existing in the foreign record field, which now covers every language; but they are sufficient to prove that the live dealer can make this an important branch of his business if he cares to do so, and thus also aid his sales of talking machines and supplies. The foreign element of our population is for the most part thrifty and it must be remembered that the salaries paid all classes of skilled and unskilled workers are higher than at any time in the history of industry, hence this class of people can well afford to invest in a talking machine and records. Another thing which should not be lost sight of is the great number of educated, cultured people who come to this country from abroad. Then, too, every American-born person who possesses a knowledge of a foreign tongue and a love for music is a legitimate prospect for foreign records. Yes, the opportunity is there and foresighted dealers should seriously plan to cash in on it.

J. K. LOVETT JAILS SWINDLER

Man Operating in Ohio and Regarding Whom the Trade Was Warned Captured in Ambridge, Pa., by Observant Dealer

John K. Lovett, talking machine dealer of Ambridge, Pa., and an old-time subscriber of The World, writes us as follows:

"Gentlemen: I have the crook you mentioned in enclosed article in Beaver County Jail, Beaver, Pa., charged with fraudulent conversion. When I discovered his trick I immediately phoned neighboring dealers and, as a result, had him in jail in twenty-four hours after I employed him."

The article Mr. Lovett referred to was that published on page 54 of the September World, in which Secretary Hyre, of the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio, warned the music merchants against a man who was swindling dealers by entering their employ, selling machines on commission and turning in checks at closing time, on which he secured cash and then disappearing. Needless to say, the checks were no good. Mr. Hyre described this man in detail in The World story and we are pleased, thanks to the efforts of Messrs. Hyre and Lovett and the publicity in The World, that the rascal has been captured and will receive his just deserts.

S. L. SCHOTT, INC., STORE CHANGES

MT. VERNON, N. Y., October 2.—S. L. Schott, Inc., well-known Victor dealer of this city, with an attractive store at 64½ South Fourth street, has made a number of important changes to the interior of the store which add greatly to its appearance and to efficiency in handling customers. The record racks, which were formerly located in the rear, have been moved forward and a musical instrument department has been installed in the front of the store. Additional booths for record demonstrations have been added. The work was done by the Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., which specializes in interior store and fixture installation.

UNIT OPERATIONS NOT INTERRUPTED

Kern Dodge Appointed Receiver for Unit Construction Co.—No Insolvency, as Assets Greatly Exceed Liabilities—Business, Now Active, Continues Under Receiver's Direction

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 2.—Receivership proceedings were instituted by and for the Unit Construction Co., of this city, on September 13, in the United States District Court. The company's assets are stated to be very greatly in excess of liabilities and there is no insolvency.

Operation of the company will continue under the receiver's direction, with the management unchanged, and service to the talking machine trade will be maintained on the same efficient basis as heretofore.

Kern Dodge, of Philadelphia, who has been appointed receiver, is an engineer of national reputation and has a very successful record in the handling of receiverships such as the above.

There has been no interruption in the Unit Co.'s operations and the demand for Unico equipment is reported as very active at this time. In addition to the usual number of talking machine and phonograph departments in process of installation in various sections of the country Unico equipment is now being widely adopted for radio merchandising. The Unit Co. also has in hand some large orders for radio cabinets, in which field the company has been specializing for the past year. Among the prominent radio manufacturers using the Unico cabinets for their products are included the Radio Corp. of America, General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co., DeForrest Co., Cardwell Co., A. C. Gilbert Co., Timmons Talker Co., National Radio Corp., Atwater-Kent and many others.

RECORD BROADCASTING INTERESTS

J. N. Pitts, of Connecticut Agricultural College, Pays Tribute to the Aid of a Brunswick Phonograph in Its Broadcasting Plans

J. N. Pitts, dean of the mechanical engineering department of the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs, writes the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of New York, that a powerful radio broadcasting station, ranking with the best in that locality, has recently been installed and remarks:

"As part of our equipment we have purchased a Brunswick phonograph to be used for the broadcasting of records. Results of our tests have been very satisfactory in a radius including Maine, Canada, Ohio and Maryland. A number of those replying are complimenting us on the talent of our 'artists' and 'quartets,' when, in reality, it has all been taken from records and delivered by the Brunswick phonograph. We believe that the Brunswick is the machine for radio broadcasting."

STEINERS OCCUPY NEW QUARTERS

DAYTON, O., October 7.—Charles E. Steiner, formerly with Niehaus & Dohse, has joined his brother, Frank N. Steiner, as partner in a new, up-to-date store at 120 East Fifth street, to which they have removed. The latter has been in the talking machine business for the past twenty-six years, his store being formerly known as the People's Music Co. The Steiner brothers, who are carrying a complete stock of Edison and Victor machines, are well and favorably known in this city.

A LETTER THAT BROUGHT CUSTOMERS

Excellent Returns From Personal Letter Sent Out by Burgess-Nash Co., Omaha, Neb., Show Value of Reaching Public Through the Mail

OMAHA, NEB., October 4.—Ten new customers a day were brought to the Burgess-Nash Dry Goods Co. store's phonograph department recently by a letter written by H. L. Obert, manager. The letter was sent to a large list of prospects and it had immediate results.

Talking machine dealers are to-day up against the fact that owners tire quickly of the jazz records which are sold. This fact has resulted, unfortunately often, in a decrease of interest in the greatest developer of musical taste and appreciation in America.

In the opinion of Mr. Obert, the way out is the sale of records of better music, classical and opera selections, and so his letter was drafted with the idea of bringing this about. He sought to interest owners of talking machines in higher type music.

The letter which produced such surprising results follows:

"This is a personal letter from the writer to you. Its purpose is to convey a message and extend a personal invitation.

"Each month, as you know, a list of records is issued, which comprises the really beautiful music, sung and played by the world's greatest artists.

"Statistics, however, show that less than 10 per cent of those who purchase phonograph records ever hear more than six records, of which five are dance numbers or popular songs.

"This means that approximately 90 per cent of the people never hear the world's most wonderful music. And this leads to the purpose of this letter, mentioned in the first paragraph.

"We who comprise the personnel of this department of the Burgess-Nash store—Miss Ferrin, Mr. Capron and the writer—extend to you a personal invitation to visit us and hear that portion of the list of new records each month which represents really worth-while music.

"Do not come as a customer, but rather as an acquaintance. Ask for any one of us, mention that you received this letter, introduce yourself and feel as you do when visiting at the home of a friend.

"Above all, feel absolutely free from any obligation to buy. We want you to hear this wonderful music every month.

"We have the most beautiful phonograph shop in Omaha. The booths are spacious, cool and equipped for your comfort and enjoyment. You are away from the hustle and bustle of the street—away from the noise, heat and congestion associated with the average phonograph shop.

"May we not anticipate your acceptance of this invitation, and look forward to adding your name to the list of those who now enjoy this treat regularly?"

complete with all batteries, four tubes, (one spare), head telephones, and silk-covered wires. $275.

In the finest music rooms Radiola IV.

REMEMBER the days—not so long ago—when the fun of “listening in” meant a confusion of coils, tubes, batteries? Of things with long names and intricate uses? A jumble fit only for the attic!

But now! A most attractive and dignified cabinet of rich mahogany finish stands on a console in the music room. Joy for all the family! Its mechanism infinitely better in performance—worked out in the great RCA laboratories. Operated by the turn of a knob. Keenly sensitive. All its batteries hidden away. And its loudspeaker built in—notable for acoustical correctness and purity of tone. Famed, too, for long-distance receiving, with the headphones plugged in.

Radiola IV. means radio for the most exacting. For the music lover who wants real music. For the fan who wants big distance. And the home lover who wants both in a piece of furniture that will strike a pleasing note in the finest room.

Interesting Analysis of Status of Radio

Evolution of Radio Compared With Early Talking Machine Days
by Walter L. Eckhardt, President of the General Radio Corporation

Shoes, hats, etc., are merchandised and sold through many exclusive shops specializing on one item or the other, although a survey will conclusively prove that a greater volume of business in any such items is being done through apparel shops wherein such merchandise is a part of the necessary personal equipment. Shoes and hats are a totally different line of merchandise. Shoe shops do not necessarily handle hats any more than hat shops handle shoes, but they are relative and are sold through the same firms to a large extent, although it required years before such procedure was established by enterprising merchants.

Radio as a Musical Product

While exclusive shops of one kind or another are much in evidence to-day, as a rule, they are rapidly adding lines that are relative or akin to the general plan—so will it be in the radio business. Although radio broadcasting has been an established fact for the past twenty-odd years it was only after the great World War that the public became acquainted with its great possibilities as a means of entertainment and instruction. While the general broadcasting of weather reports, market reports, important subjects, topics of the day and musical programs awakened the public interest, it was not until the past several years that the improvement in broadcasting apparatus and receiving apparatus influenced the public at large to appreciate radio as a household necessity and, in reality, as a musical instrument of unusual charm and entertainment. Therefore, with this an established fact, it is only proper that radio receiving sets should be classed as musical merchandise and sold through establishments fully organized and experienced in merchandising musical instruments.

Several years ago, when a very limited number understood the merits of radio, it was more of a fancy to be tolerated, just as we looked upon the motion picture when it was usually served at the end of a vaudeville show, accompanied by the prompt departure of the audience, because it had not yet been fully developed. But to-day people are known to remain through two or more shows of the same picture, and those who judge radio reception by what they heard several years ago will to-day form a totally different impression and be compelled to promptly realize that a good radio receiving set "in the home" is sure to play a very important part in our future lives.

Trade Should Be Proud of New Member.

The piano, phonograph, violin, harp, music box, etc., can justly be proud of its new member, "radio," which, in reality, is all in one, plus so many additional advantages that are needless to relate, while it does not directly compete with any. I mean by this that it will not take the place of some other musical instrument, but, rather, that it occupies a unique position entirely its own, properly located in the musical instrument field, and fortunately so, because, in the writer's opinion, no other line of trade is quite so well qualified to undertake the job.

It was a long time before the piano and music trade realized the important part to be played in their businesses that was to come through the medium of the phonograph. And in the early days of the phonograph many of the principal music houses of the country hesitated to handle this instrument, feeling that it would detract from their piano sales.

Back in the late 90's and the early days from 1900 to 1905 many of to-day's largest phonograph merchandisers were only lukewarm to the possibilities of the phonograph. These same houses have followed somewhat their early impressions in this respect with reference to the radio receiving set, but on all sides we are learning, from day to day, of new additions to the radio business in the talking machine and music trades. These firms are adequately equipped, firstly, with suitable showrooms, demonstration booths, sales organizations and service departments to properly install and service the merchandise after installation. They are trained and make it their business to follow up each and every individual sale for a definite period, to insure the perfection of satisfaction on the part of the purchaser. This is rather better business than it is an absolute necessity and greatly increased sales are justly attributed to this service.

Radio in the Phonograph Field

Prior to 1900 it was quite the exception when a talking machine was sold on instalments, paid for on time payments, just as it is to-day in the radio business, but by 1904 it was generally accepted by all leading merchants that the sale of phonographs would be substantially increased by offering the same on time payments, or club plan, and this is bound to follow at a very early date in the radio business, although it is being done at the present time to a modest extent by a number of enterprising merchants. The musical instrument trades are well equipped and trained to handle this class of business, although it is needless to state that, inasmuch as the phonograph business was not exclusively confined to the phonograph and the music trade, but was merchandised frequently through the sporting goods shop, the hardware shop, gas and electrical companies, jewelers and the like, radio will also be handled by a miscellaneous line of trades, but in the course of a very short time I am of the opinion that we will see the bulk of the radio trade—that is, with reference especially to the completed sets—handled through the phonograph and the music trades.

ISSUES FOLLOW-UP PROSPECT CARDS

Musical Instrument Sales Co.'s New Dealer Help Enables Merchants to Keep Accurate Record of Prospects and Customers

The advertising department of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, has just issued six card forms which can be used to advantage by Victor retailers in following up prospects. This plan comprehensively covers the dealers' Victrola and record prospects and regular customers and, if closely followed, enables the retailer to have at his disposal a careful analysis of sales possibilities at all times.

The cards in this valuable series are designated as follows: "Victrola Prospect Follow-up," "Record Customer Follow-up," "General Data Card," "Mailing List Revision Slip," "Supplement Request Post Card," "Now in Stock Notification Card." The company has prepared printing plates for these card forms and the dealer is offered a choice of either the printed forms or the plates.

SPEED UP TO MEET ALBUM DEMAND

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York and Chicago, reports that Fall orders are coming through in substantial quantities. He fears that there may be a stock shortage before the season is over, although both factories of the company are working to full capacity. The delivery envelope produced by the company is also selling well.

National Music Week to Be Held May 4 to 10

Postponed From April 27 to May 3 in Order to Avoid Conflict With Boys' Week—Three-fourths of Local National Music Week Committees Approve of Choice of Date

The National Music Week Committee, of which Otto H. Kahn, financier and patron of music, is chairman and C. M. Tremaine, director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, is secretary, has announced the selection of the first Sunday in May as the opening date of the annual observance of National Music Week. In 1924 this fixes the celebration of the event during the week of May 4 to 10.

The original date set for next year's observance was the week of April 27 to May 3, but, as this was the period already chosen for Boys' Week, the music interests decided to postpone their celebration in order to give the youngsters full sway. At the same time it was decided that the opening day of National Music Week should be fixed and popularized, so that a close connection between the date and the event would be established in the mind of the public. Inquiry to this end was made of local Music Week committees in all parts of the country and three-fourths of those heard from approved the selection of the first Sunday in May.

Members of Committee

In addition to the chairman and secretary the heads of thirty-one prominent organizations in all walks of life are members of the National Music Week Committee, including Joseph N. Weber, president, American Federation of Musicians; Kenyon L. Butterfield, president, American Country Life Association; O. E. Bradfute, president, American Farm Bureau Federation; Samuel Gompers, president, American Federation of Labor; Frank L. Sealy, warden, American Guild of Organists; George Maxwell, president, American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers; Colin A. Livingstone, president, Boy Scouts of America; Julius H. Barnes, president, Chamber of Commerce of the United States; Joseph Lee, president, Community Service, Inc.; Mrs. Herbert Hoover, president, Girl Scouts, Inc.; Richard W. McMaster, South Dakota; Charles R. Mabey, Utah; E. Lee Trinkle, Virginia; Ephraim F. Morgan, West Virginia; John J. Blaine, Wisconsin; William B. Ross, Wyoming.

The first Music Week on a city-wide scope was held in New York City in February, 1920. Since then the movement has spread rapidly, until, according to the records of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, celebrations have been held in 150 cities to date. It is expected that all of these and many more as well will participate in the first National Music Week next May. The offices of the National Music Week Committee are located at 105 West Fortieth street, New York City.

L. L. Murphy, assisted by Mrs. S. M. Rouse, recently opened an attractive talking machine department in the store of Taft & Pennoyer, Oakland, Cal. The Cheney line is handled and a sales drive is under way.

Collecting Overdue Accounts Efficiently

Mails Inexpensive and Effectual—Expense of Collecting and Retaining the Good Will of Customers Are Important Considerations

In collecting overdue accounts in any business there are several factors to be considered if the money is to be brought in without working to the disadvantage of the business itself. In the first place, it is desirable as far as possible to avoid offending the customer wherever possible, and in the second place it is a matter of wisdom to keep collection costs at a minimum figure.

In keeping the good will of customers, particularly those who allow payments to lapse through carelessness rather than intention, it is necessary that the dealer or his collection manager have a proper understanding of the class of people with which he is doing business, for methods that will work out successfully with one class will have little or no effect on another.

Retaining Customer's Good Will

There are, of course, some collection departments which appear to work under the impression that when a customer allows an account to lapse that customer ceases to be a friend of the house and should be proceeded against accordingly. As a matter of fact, every effort should be made to retain the good will of the buyer, not necessarily because he himself is likely to prove a future asset to the business, but because he may have friends considering the purchase of a talking machine and a good word from him will have a desirable effect.

It has been proved possible for a competent collection man to mix firmness and courtesy in his work to a degree that will permit of his getting the money and still retaining the respect of the customer, for firmness properly exercised is likely to win respect from the majority of individuals.

There is a certain type of wage-earner, for instance, who exists, so to speak, from week to week and, while he is in a position to meet his current financial obligations, is likely to do so only if he has been impressed with the importance of making the weekly or monthly payment on a specific date. In such a case it is necessary for the collection man not only to send a reminder of the date upon which the payment is due, but to adopt energetic measures immediately if the obligation is not met.

There are other types of buyers better fixed financially who, through carelessness, neglect to meet some of their current obligations and require a jacking up that may be less energetic but nevertheless persistent. Customers of this type prove costly to the dealer who hesitates about offending them, for it often happens that unless the collection department operates promptly, though courteously, the account will be allowed to drag until the amount involved is considerable. In this case it is not so much the question of getting the money before it is lost, but of getting it so that it may be used in the business rather than lie dormant in the customer's bank.

First Consideration Expense

In every collection plan the first consideration is that of expense and this is naturally sound business practice. If the proper collection system is put into effect and carried out wisely it is possible to confine the expense to the cost of stationery and stamps and the actual labor of preparing and sending out the letters, for the right kind of letters are likely to be more effective than the services of a personal collector resorted to at a later date.

There are some concerns which have met with considerable success in using a series of four or five form letters, copies of which are sent to all delinquent customers. But where the character of the trade varies it is often found a matter of wisdom to send different letters to different classes and, with this in mind, several music houses have in their files as many as twenty-five different forms of collection letters from which selections can be made to meet each special case.

It is the experience of many managers of music stores that it is not good business to start the collection series by informing the customer he has neglected to meet his payments and a check is required immediately. If the customer happens to be of the wage-earner type a printed form, rather legal in aspect, will have a good effect. One concern, for instance, sends out a printed notice of an instalment due five days before the date of payment. If the payment is passed another printed form is sent, reading as follows: "Second Notice. We would appreciate your kindness in sending payment, which became due on May 10," or whatever the date happens to be. In the event that there is still no response a third printed notice, with plenty of red ink and reading: "This is to remind you. Your account is slightly in arrears. Possibly this matter has been overlooked. Your prompt remittance will be appreciated." Then comes the series of collection letters which become increasingly severe in tone as the payment is delayed, until repossession is threatened.

Handling the Series

The notices and form letters are handled by a girl clerk, the accounts being entered on a card system and followed up systematically through the medium of "ticklers." Where the record shows that the customer has been prompt in making payments in the past the clerk is instructed to make a telephone call at least before resorting to a more drastic letter, for it sometimes happens that the customer has met with temporary difficulties of which he hesitates to write, but which are likely to be adjusted so he can continue his payments regularly.

It has been found that a letter that suggests politely to the customer that he has simply overlooked sending a check is likely to prove more productive of results from customers of the better type than a note intimating that the payment is past due and immediate attention to it is demanded.

A well-known talking machine dealer who keeps his overdue payments down to a very low point insists that a form letter does not serve the purpose so well as a special letter written to fit each case. He agrees that the latter method requires more time and attention, but at the same time maintains that the percentage of results is higher.

The personal letter, of course, has the advantage of impressing the customer with the fact that his particular account is being watched and that the exact details of it are familiar to the collection manager. This has an advantage over the form letter, for the intelligent customer frequently accepts the latter for what it is and figures out that he is only one of many who have received similar letters. It sometimes happens in the case of form letters that after three or four of the series have been ignored a personal letter referring to the customer's own credit standing and the exact status of his account will jolt him into action and bring the money.

It is the consensus of opinion in practically every line of business that the mails should be used as the first move in any collection system, for Uncle Sam, given the proper tools, has done and can do some mighty fine collection work at a surprisingly low cost. Then, too, the dealer or his collection manager can see every letter that goes out and judge what effect it may have on the customer.

GOTHAM BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

The talking machine business conducted at 133 Canal street, New York City, by Schmukler-Singer, Inc., has been taken over by the Ben Cohen Phonograph Co., Inc., 83 Bowery, New York, who will continue to operate the store at that address. This concern has been successful in building up a large demand for foreign records. Victor, Sonora and Columbia machines are handled.

A Unique Idea in Retailing Spanish Records

Daniel Castellanos, in the Shipping Center of New York, Carries a Stock of 75,000 Recordings in the Spanish Language to Meet the Demand From Spaniards in All Parts of the Country

Down at the southernmost end of Manhattan Island, within sight of the water teeming with incoming and outgoing vessels from and to all parts of the world, is probably the most unique talking machine business in existence. It is the business of Daniel Castellanos, on the second floor of an old and rickety building at 4 South street. From the window of this shop one looks down upon a busy scene of unloading vessels, stevedores rushing about and swarms of foreigners, mostly sailors, and those connected with shipping. Although the store is only twenty-five feet by seventy-five feet, a record stock of 75,000 discs is carried, and the strangest part of all is that these records are all in the Spanish language. There are Spanish records made by the Columbia Co. and many imported ones. There are records in pure Castillian and many other varieties of the various dialects in use throughout the Latin-American countries.

Mr. Castellanos' trade covers the entire country and is carried on by mail. He gets his business through advertising in Spanish newspapers and his annual trade is very close to $25,000, which means the sale of over 30,000 records. This is all the more remarkable when one considers that these records go only to Spaniards. According to Mr. Castellanos, a peculiar phase of the handling of Spanish records is that there are so many dialects in use and there is a certain amount of clannishness among people from various countries which precludes the sale of any but the songs in use in their former home territories.

"For example," he declared, "in Spain alone there are approximately forty-eight provinces and in each of these there are certain folk songs and dances peculiar to that particular territory.

The people of one province do not purchase music of folk songs and dances popular in another province and, in view of this, it can be seen that handling Spanish records has some problems not met with in any other branch of the record business." However, dealers in cities and towns where there are Spanish communities can certainly make capital by going out after some of this business. These people are easy of approach and will prove good customers once their confidence is secured.

Although Mr. Castellanos does not make a regular practice of selling talking machines he does sell quite a few of them. Very often sailors come into his shop and purchase instruments, for the most part portables. He extends no credit, all transactions being on a strictly cash basis, greatly simplifying his bookkeeping and eliminating entirely the possibility of loss through dishonest or indigent creditors.

BUY RIGHTS TO ELLIS REPRODUCER

Arthur Brand & Co., Cincinnati, to Manufacture and Distribute That Reproducer in Future—Handle Large Line of Talking Machine Parts

CINCINNATI, O., October 2.—Arthur Brand & Co., the distributors of and dealers in talking machine supplies and repair parts, with headquarters at 1602 Race street, this city, have recently purchased the patent rights to the Ellis reproducer from the Fern-O-Grand Co., of Milwaukee, and in future will act as sole manufacturers and distributors of that product, which has made many friends in the trade.

Arthur Brand is head of the company, which carries a complete line of motors, tone arms, repair parts and needles, etc., and is distributor for the Spencerian portable machine. Associated with him is his son, Arthur, and Paul Maysvom, the latter being in charge of the repair department of the company. He is an expert repairman and was formerly in charge of the repair department of the Cincinnati branch of the Columbia Co.

OLD NEWS IN NEW DRESS

The daily papers, both in text and illustrated departments, have devoted considerable space to the discovery of Harold Bell Wright, the novelist, that the prickly spines of the "bisnaga" cactus possess great musical possibilities as a means of playing records. Mr. Wright claims to have discovered this type of cactus while in the desert country gathering material for a novel.

With all due respect to the daily papers and Mr. Wright the cactus needle is not by any means a new discovery. It was introduced and known to the trade many, many years ago and was found very effective in producing a soft tone. Inasmuch as the same effect was possible with fiber and certain types of steel or tungstone needles the demand fell off.

Widening Sales Opportunities of Portables

Gift-Giving Is a Thoroughly Established Practice and Dealers Can Cash in on Sentiment by Pushing Portables Throughout Year

Reports of talking machine dealers from various parts of the country indicate that a great change has taken place in the trade attitude toward the portable talking machine. The feeling that the portable is exclusively a Summer product, something to be taken to camp, mountains, beach or on outings, has been replaced with the growing conviction that these small, inexpensive instruments can be sold in large volume throughout the year if a vigorous and thorough sales promotion campaign is resorted to. There is a large sales outlet for these small instruments, one which the live retailer will have little difficulty in breaking into if he pursues the proper methods.

The Portable as a Gift

As an all-year-round product peculiarly appropriate as a gift, birthday, Christmas, anniversary, etc., the portable talking machine is in a class by itself, as a certain retailer in a small city a few miles from Gotham has discovered. This dealer has secured information from his prospects which it is safe to say few merchants possess. In short, he has made particular efforts to secure the birthday dates of the various members in the families of his customers and prospects and, in addition, he has a special list of those customers and prospects who have children in preparatory schools and colleges. His plan is simple, but the results in sales have proved the possibilities of the portable as an all-year-round seller. Shortly before the birthday of any member of a family which is listed as a customer or a prospect he sends a letter to some other member of the family, pointing out the appropriateness of a portable talking machine as a gift. His letter describes the satisfaction and enjoyment which the particular instrument he handles will give to the recipient. The number of sales on the books of this concern from this plan alone has resulted in a handsome profit.

Christmas Gifts to Students

Especially satisfactory have been the sales of portable instruments as Christmas gifts to students in prep schools and colleges. It is not a difficult matter to convince parents whose children are away to school that a small talking machine will add greatly to the happiness of a son or daughter away from home during the entire year and is, therefore, about the most suitable gift obtainable. In this case, also, letters are sent to prospects and, consequently, the pre-Christmas sales of portables have been excellent.

The opportunities for sales of portables as gifts to students may be realized when the fact is taken into consideration that each year thousands of new students enter all of the schools. The places of those who have completed their courses are immediately filled by hordes of young men and women from every city, town and hamlet in the country, and it is safe to say that on the customer list of every live dealer there are many sales opportunities of this nature in the portable field.

Sales Where Price Is Paramount

There is still another all-year-round sales opportunity for portables which the dealer can take advantage of with comparatively little trouble. All over the country there are people who would gladly purchase talking machines if they had the price. The dealer hesitates to make a drive on the more expensive instruments directed toward this class because he feels that, while these people are honest, their financial circumstances are so unfavorable that the risk involved in granting credit is too great. Because of this the average merchant ignores these people as possible prospects, forgetting the golden opportunity which exists for the exploitation of portable instruments. Now, it is a fact that, while these poor people cannot afford to purchase an upright or console talking machine without straining their purses beyond all reason to make the initial payment and those that follow, in many cases they can and will purchase an inexpensive portable instrument. The down payment is less and the weekly or monthly instalments are also less. Where often there would not be money enough to meet the payments if a more expensive instrument were purchased, to say nothing of buying records, if a portable has been purchased the instalments can be met promptly without any great hardship and the dealer also has the advantage of having made another record customer. Also the portable buyer of to-day may be in the market for a larger instrument later.

EDISON SALE SHOWS NEW OUTLET

Expensive Edison Placed in Reception Room of Physician by R. T. Dennis & Co., Inc., Suggests Undeveloped Field for Sales

WACO, TEX., October 3.—The illustration reproduced herewith shows the reception room of a prominent local physician, J. R. Maxfield, and a Century model Edison phonograph, costing $500, which was sold by S. B. Wallace, of the phonograph department of R. T. Dennis & Co., Inc., one of the largest concerns in this city. The sale of this instrument for use in a public reception room is especially significant because so few are equipped in this manner, and there

Mr. Wallace is further capitalizing on their sale by bringing prospective customers to Dr. Maxfield's reception room, where they can view this beautiful instrument in its effective setting.

Dutch Inventor Credited With Device to Prevent Overwinding of Springs

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 5.—The elimination of broken spring troubles in phonographs is promised by an invention just perfected in the Netherlands which prevents overwinding and consequent breaking of springs, details of which have just been reported to Washington by a Government official abroad. The invention is in the nature of a winding key adjustable to various tensions, so that it will "free wheel" when the proper tension is reached. It is claimed that the device entirely prevents overwinding of clock, phonograph and other springs of a similar character.

COMMENTS ON CONDITIONS IN CUBA

Jos. M. Lacalle, of Columbia Graphophone Co., Returns From Recording Expedition to Island Republic and Brings Back Interesting Report Upon Cuban Taste in Music

Joseph M. Lacalle, musical director of the export department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has just returned from a recording expedition to Cuba, bringing back with him some interesting facts regarding general conditions in the Island Republic. He declared that despite the progress made in Cuba since the Spanish-American War the population is faced with many political troubles to-day which, in the opinion of some of the leading business men, can best be ironed out by the direct influence of the United States.

Joseph M. Lacalle

In commenting upon the musical development of Cuba, Mr. Lacalle stated that the most typical of all Cuban music was the Danzon, which he held was the real source of the old American rag-time and our present jazz. Much has been done to improve this type of music, particularly through better orchestration to eliminate the predominating influence of the cornet, which heretofore has proved unpleasant to the ears of non-natives. Mr. Lacalle stated that the Cubans were liberal supporters of the opera, as was evidenced during the season in Havana when orchestra seats bring $15 with the demand greater than the supply. There has also been organized in Havana a splendid symphony orchestra and several fine schools of music are maintained by the Federal Government and various municipalities. There are also a number of excellent bands.

While in Havana Mr. Lacalle ran across two interesting collectors of talking machine records, one having over 15,700 records in his library and another over 11,000. Few personal libraries in this country reach that figure.

He spent an evening with one of the collectors, who is the owner of many Columbia records, and declared that he had rarely met a man better posted on the music of the world.

WEIMER IN NEW WAREROOMS

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., October 6.—The second floor of the Odd Fellows' Building will be utilized in the future by Peter R. Weimer, piano and phonograph dealer on East Crawford avenue. Mr. Weimer plans to construct a partition, dividing the space into halves. One part is to be used for display purposes and the other for a studio and storage room.

The Victor Talking Machine Co.'s regular quarterly dividends of 2 per cent on the common stock and 1.75 on the preferred stock have been declared payable October 15 on stock of record September 29.

COLLINGS SERVICE PLAN ANNOUNCED

Victor Wholesaler, of Newark, N. J., to Give Preference to Dealer Customers in Deliveries When Expected Shortage Comes

Several years ago Collings & Co., the well-known Victor distributors of Newark, N. J., in time of shortage adopted the constructive policy of making deliveries of Victor product only to those dealers who had received Collings service in months preceding. This plan, so successfully tested by the Collings organization, naturally received more attention from dealers during the second and third years following its adoption than was the case after the first announcement.

Collings & Co. again announce that during the present season the Victor dealers who have been on their books during the earlier months of the year are to receive equitable distribution of Victor goods as they arrive. According to the sales department of the above organization the supply of Victor products, particularly machines, has been less than the demand.

The company confines its activities to dealers situated in northern New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania territory. This policy, according to Mr. Collings, enables his sales staff to keep in personal touch at all times with the retailers in the territory and it is thus enabled to understand the individual problems of such merchants and, in many cases, make deliveries of particular and much-needed goods on short notice.

The Circular as a Sales Promotion Factor

How Persistence and Cleverly Conceived Literature Widely Distributed Brought Business to an Aggressive South Bend Dealer

Although there seems to be a tendency among talking machine dealers to steer clear of circularizing, with the exception of sending out the monthly record supplements, it is a form of publicity which can be made a most valuable addition to the advertising campaign. Like everything else pertaining to advertising, however, if a campaign is started it should be conducted in a persistent manner in order that the full effect may be realized. In business it is the continual hammering away at a proposition that brings results. Experience has taught talking machine dealers and salesmen that, while one visit to a prospect may not be productive of a sale, a half-dozen visits may do the trick. It is just so with advertising, and this includes circularizing. One letter, booklet, stuffer, etc., may not bring results which seem worth while, but a series of letters or any of the other forms of circular publicity will often bring returns of a most satisfactory character. The trouble with many dealers seems to be that they send out a batch of circular matter and then wait several months before they follow up with a repetition of the performance. When the returns are not up to expectations they discard circularizing as a useless waste of time and money.

A Circularizing Drive That Paid

A concrete illustration of the proper methods of circularization is afforded by a publicity tie-up with record artists staged by C. J. Lenhard, proprietor of the Brunswick Shop, South Bend, Ind., one of the most progressive dealers in the Middle West. In fact, he is continually attracting the attention of the public through stunts. A short time ago he arranged for the appearance of Isham Jones and His Orchestra, Brunswick artists, and during this period his activities resulted in the sale of many of these artists' recordings. On October 1 and 2 Mr. Lenhard arranged for the appearance of the Oriole Terrace Orchestra at a dance in the Palais Royale, one of the largest and best-known dance palaces in South Bend. As soon as he had completed negotiations for the appearance of the artists Mr. Lenhard launched a publicity drive, an important feature of which was a circularizing campaign. A steady stream of circular matter was sent at regular intervals to over 10,000 people within a radius of fifty miles of South Bend. Booklets, stuffers and tags were used to keep the event constantly in the minds of the public. There was no chance of forgetting about it and, consequently, when the evening of the dance arrived a steady stream of people poured into the Palais Royale, despite the fact that tickets were held at $3.50.

Well-planned Publicity

The publicity included a four-page folder, on the cover page of which was an illustration of the orchestra and the following announcement: "An opportunity to hear in person the celebrated Brunswick Oriole Orchestra." The two inside pages were devoted to a brief history of the orchestra, while the outside page contained a list of some of their recordings. A well-balanced piece of publicity! In addition thousands of stuffers announcing the event were distributed and, to cap the climax, the night before the dance small tags, on which appeared a picture of an oriole, were hung on door knobs throughout the city and the surrounding communities, so that the first thing members of families would see in the morning when they opened the front doors of their residences were these tags. The reverse side of the tags contained a brief reminder of the date of the dance.

This is the kind of publicity work that pays big dividends, and it is an excellent example of how circularizing can be used to good advantage. Of course, much depends upon the character of the copy used. The greatest expense which the dealer encounters in a campaign of this kind is that of distribution, whether it be by mail or by means of boys. The cost of the circulars themselves when printed in quantity will be found to be comparatively low. Summing the whole question up in a few words: Circularizing is a worth-while publicity medium, it is comparatively inexpensive and results are sure if persistence and good copy are used.

PROPER SELLING ELIMINATES LOSS

Better to Refuse Sales of Expensive Instruments to Those Who Cannot Afford Them Than to Be Forced to Repossess Later

Many talking machine dealers underestimate the importance of making sales on a proper basis. By "proper basis" is meant making the sale so that the transaction is one which gives the dealer a profit, without the necessity of repossessing the instrument or finding it necessary to continually dun the customer before the payments are met. It is a comparatively easy thing for a glib salesman to foist an instrument on a customer who had never intended purchasing anything expensive, and the consequence is that the danger of repossession and laxity of payments is greatly increased.

The salesman owes a real duty to his employer to see to it that he sells the type of instrument to each customer which is best suited to each individual patron's purse. When harsh measures are necessary before the dealer gets the money due him or he is compelled to repossess an instrument he invariably makes an enemy and he suffers further loss in losing a potential customer. In justice to the average salesman, it can safely be said, however, that in the great majority of cases he does his best to make sales in a manner that will result in a mutually satisfactory transaction between the customer and the house.

L. W. COLLINGS, JR., INJURED

L. W. Collings, Jr., son of the head of Collings & Co., Inc., well-known Victor jobbers, Newark, N. J., was confined to a hospital several days last month following an accident in which he had his forearm broken. The fracture was of such a nature that a well-known surgeon was called in to make the setting. The boy is doing nicely and has returned to school.

THE PORTABLE GROWS IN FAVOR

General Manager Ohlson, of Modernola Co., Thus Reports as Result of Trip to West

JOHNSTOWN, PA., October 1.—A. A. Ohlson, general manager of the Modernola Co., of this city, returned recently from a business trip throughout the Middle West, where he visited important trade centers, such as Minneapolis, Duluth, Detroit, Chicago and Toledo. Mr. Ohlson found conditions in this territory very promising and reported that he succeeded in opening up a considerable number of new agencies. The plant of the Modernola Co. in this city is very busy with Fall orders. The demand for the Modernola is greater than ever before and the portable machine, the Modernollette, is proving a good all-year-round seller. In commenting on this situation Mr. Ohlson drew particular attention to the increasing popularity of the portable and the change in its accepted use. While the portable was originally designed as a camp and vacation instrument, it is Mr. Ohlson's contention that it is now being used to a great extent in the home in conjunction with a table. Its popularity in this manner and its value as a holiday proposition would tend to show big sales ahead for the trade during the coming holiday and Winter seasons.

NEW TEMPLIN STORE OPENED

GOSHEN, IND., October 3.—A new music store on South Main street has just been opened here by Wilbur Templin, proprietor of the Templin Music Stores in Elkhart and Mishawaka. The Goshen store will be in charge of V. H. Nelson, of this city, who has been in Mr. Templin's employ about seventeen years. The concern will carry a complete line of pianos and players. An exclusive Goshen agency for the Brunswick and Edison phonographs and records has also been obtained.

Dealers Who Make Canvassing Profitable

How Several Live Retailers Are Placing Many Talking Machines in the Homes of Prospects by Intensive Outside Sales Drives

There are many "Doubting Thomases" throughout the trade who, when the possibilities of profit and increased business through canvassing are mentioned, give one a wearied look and take time and trouble to explain just why the talking machine business is "different" from other business enterprises which have been made successful through outside solicitation. It is the hope of the writer that many of the non-believers in canvassing will read the following unvarnished statements of dealers who oppose the view that canvassing is a waste of time and effort. In several instances dealers did not desire their names used and this wish is respected, although their experiences are outlined:

Home Demonstrations Bring Business

"We get business by going out after it," said the Brunswick Shop (Music for the Home), New Rochelle, N. Y. "We load several instruments on two trucks which we maintain for that purpose and these trucks, in charge of salesmen, cover this city and surrounding territory thoroughly. We have found this a very successful method of interesting people in the several lines of instruments we handle. The middle classes, of course, are our one best bet, insofar as canvassing is concerned. Experience has taught us that it is impossible to reach the wealthy and exclusive people in this manner. The salesmen do not get further than the door and usually the maid or butler returns with the message that his mistress is indisposed. The middle-class people, however, take to this form of selling very kindly. In most cases our men are well received and a fair percentage of sales per number of visits during a week or month are made."

Soliciting Among Foreigners

The Mamaroneck Music House, Mamaroneck, N. Y., started in business little more than a year ago and a substantial foundation for future business prosperity has already been built through unremitting canvassing, especially among the foreigners residing in that territory. Many concerns fight shy of catering to foreigners because of the feeling that these people are poor and there is a certain risk in allowing them to obtain instruments on the instalment plan. The Mamaroneck Music House has sold many talking machines and pianos to foreigners during the last year and collections have been most satisfactory. Most of these people were sold through the canvassing route. One reason for the lack of credit loss is given as prompt collecting. This concern does not wait for the customers to come into the store to make their weekly or monthly payments. On the contrary, if the contract calls for weekly payments a representative of the firm visits the home of the customer to collect the money due. Prompt collection becomes a habit and thus negligence in meeting obligations is made very difficult. Then, too, the personal contact with patrons proves very valuable as a friendship builder and often the collector gets a tip on other live prospects from satisfied customers. While in the home chatting with the customer there is an excellent chance to diplomatically question concerning likely people to visit regarding the sale of instruments.

Importance of Follow-up

Another successful merchant stated to a representative of The World that in his fifteen years of experience in the talking machine business the thing which he had found most important in selling is following up the customer until the sale is definitely made or lost. "The trouble with many salesmen and canvassers is that they let up too soon," he declared. "Often it seems that the limit has been reached in aggressiveness, when if one more visit had been made to the prospect a sale would have resulted. This was again forcibly brought to my attention only a few weeks ago, when we succeeded in making a sale of a talking machine only after five visits. It was our persistent follow-up that finally made that sale. If we had let go after the fourth visit someone else would have sold this prospect. There comes to mind another prospect who was eventually sold because we were determined to do business with him. We knew he was in the market for an instrument because he first visited our establishment to look over our line. He went out without buying, but not before we had his name and address, and also a promise to come in the next day after talking matters over with his wife. When he failed to come in the next afternoon as he had promised we sent one of our salesmen out to see him and in less than a half hour he returned with the prospect, who picked out an expensive period model. He declared that he had been in a number of stores, but we were the only ones who had thought enough of securing his trade to follow up with a salesman. These are only two instances where consistent follow-up did the trick. I could tell you many more, but these will illustrate the point."

Helping Canvassers by Phone

Another live dealer personally selected the prospects which his three salesmen were detailed to call upon during each day. The day before the men went out this dealer made good use of the telephone by calling up the potential customers and explaining to them that one of their salesmen would call. Of course, this made it easy for the housewife, who did not want to see the salesman, to "be out," but in many instances it made the path of the men much easier, increasing chances of making sales.

Use of Talking Machines in Funeral Chapels

An Interesting Article Suggesting That Dealers Try to Sell the Local Undertaker on the Idea of a Talking Machine for Use in His Chapel, Written for The World by Mary L. Tennery

There has recently been a tendency, augmented by the increasing number of funerals to be conducted from the undertaker's chapel, to use the talking machine to supply the music for the funeral service. Those funeral directors who have used this instrument have found it, perhaps more than any other, adapted to their services and have placed upon it the stamp of approval.

In the first place, it offers the patron a choice of the music of the world. Soft violin selections, rendered throughout the service, and lending dignity and beauty, are possible. Songs, perfectly sung, and without that pitiful break that so often marks the notes of a funeral song, may be had. The richness of Chopin's "Funeral March," in fact any musical number in any medium that is wanted, may be readily supplied. And this at a more nominal cost than could possibly be provided by any other musical instrument. The most simple service may have a musical setting which would be prohibitive to all but the very rich.

And yet I have found it to be the funeral director who appreciates this instrument and who goes to the dealer, rather than the dealer taking cognizance of the undertaker as a prospect. Perhaps he reads in his trade paper of one of his profession who has used the phonograph and for the first time is impressed with its adaptability. He buys, but entirely of his own initiative.

To the wide-awake, progressive talking machine dealer this should suggest that he make a list of the funeral directors in his field and make a try for this business. The salesman, and the best salesman, should handle these prospects, should explain the advantages the phonograph has to offer. He should be able to suggest to the funeral director settings for their services, perhaps using a demonstration with a carefully worked out program. A soft violin number, a few of the best sacred numbers, a quiet, calming piano selection, will serve to give the undertaker an idea of what this instrument has to offer for his services.

As a customer the funeral director is in the best class. He wants a high-priced instrument, in keeping with the refinement of his chapel. He will want an unusually large selection of records at the outset, and these records will be the higher-priced ones. Then he will add to

EDISON TONE-TEST STIRS MEXICO

First Comparison Recital in Mexico Staged in Olimpia Theatre, Mexico City, During Edison Week, Inaugurated by Live Dealer

Marked success attended the first Edison tone-test recitals ever held in Mexico, when José Mojica, eminent Mexican tenor, who has achieved considerable fame in this country with the Chicago Opera Co., appeared in seven comparison recitals in the Olimpia Theatre, Mexico City, during the "Week of the Edison," inaugurated by Cia. Alba, S. A., live Edison agent in that city.

Capacity houses marked the recitals, as may be seen by a glance at the accompanying illustration, which shows the crowded interior of the Olimpia Theatre, with Mr. Mojica and the Edison on the stage in the foreground. The tone-tests were a success from every viewpoint, and so great was the general interest in the event that the leading newspapers of Mexico City devoted considerable space in enthusiastic comments on the performance of the Edison and the artist. Another feature of the "Week of the Edison" was the publicity campaign conducted by Cia. Alba, S. A. This included, in addition to newspaper advertising, the publication and broadcasting of a booklet, the first pages of which were devoted to the tone-test, followed by illustrations of the various Edison phonographs, and the printing of special programs of the recitals.

NEW HOME FOR McMAHON PIANO CO.

Youngstown, O., Music House Leases Theatre Property, Which Will Be Remodeled to Meet the Requirements of Its Business

YOUNGSTOWN, O., October 3.—The McMahon Piano Co. has taken a ten-year lease on the Capitol Theatre building at East Federal and Champion streets. The lease calls for complete remodeling of the theatre into a three-story commercial building. It will be ready for the piano company January 1.

The Capitol Theatre building is 56x112 feet in ground dimensions. The fifty-six-foot frontage on Federal street will be divided into three store rooms on the ground level, the McMahon Piano Co. taking one of these three stores and the second and third floors.

President E. C. McMahon, of the McMahon Co., in speaking of his plans, said: "We will conduct a general music store, carrying everything from a harmonica to a theatre pipe organ. We are going to give the city a music establishment that it will be proud of and that will serve its every need."

The unique theatre ceiling will be dropped so as to be used as the ceiling of the third floor. This will be the big display room of the McMahon Co. E. C. McMahon is president and treasurer of the company. K. R. McMahon is vice-president and secretary.

The dealer who just jogs along never gets anywhere, but the man who plans wins.

ADVERSE TAX RULING REPORTED

Internal Revenue Department Holds That Coin-operated Musical Instruments Are Taxable as Automatic Vending Machines

Advice of a formal ruling by the Internal Revenue Department on the taxability of coin-operated musical instruments has been received by the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce through its general counsel, George W. Pound. The Department has ruled that such instruments are subject to a tax of 5 per cent as automatic vending machines.

This tax applies to the value of the entire instrument and is retroactive as to all sales made since January 1, 1922, when the regular sales tax was withdrawn and superseded, as to coin-operated musical instruments, by this vending machine tax.

It is stated that the efforts which the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has been making to obtain a ruling on this tax favorable to the industry will be continued, in spite of the recent adverse ruling; and, if found advisable, a test case will be brought to determine the matter.

Pending further developments Mr. Pound advises all manufacturers of coin-operated instruments to sell, ship and bill the coin-operating device separately, if possible, so that the tax will be applied only to it and not to the entire instrument as would be the case if the coin-operated instrument were shipped complete and ready for operation.

TO FEATURE VOCALION DEPARTMENT

Elridf Department Store, Charlotte, N. C., Arranges to Handle That Line

The latest addition to the list of Vocalion representatives is the new Elridf Department Store, Charlotte, N. C., which, it is declared, will be one of the finest department stores south of Washington and which will include an elaborate department devoted to the sale of Vocalion phonographs and Red records. The new store is housed in a fine new building and was opened to the public on October 1.

OKEH ARTIST BECOMES OKEH DEALER

Sam Cook, the whistling minstrel, is cleaning up the shekels in his little shop in the heart of Coney Island, N. Y. Cook is the inventor of a little whistle through which almost anyone can warble a tune with telling effect, but, of course, he developed the art of whistling to the Nth degree. He stands before his little shop whistling with much spirit the popular airs of the day and, when a crowd has collected, he sells not only his little whistles, but the Okeh records he has made as well.

People who hear Okeh record No. 4846, "Dearest" and "Crying for You," think it is a very pretty whistling solo record, but they do not realize that it was made with the peculiar little instrument sold by Sam Cook himself. Sam Cook leaves no doubt in their minds and many of his customers go away with both records and whistles.

HOT STUFF!

An oil stove that looks like an upright talking machine, with mahogany or oak finish to the metal, is made for heating and cooking. Opening the top doors reveals not a sound box but the plate for boiling and frying. The heat that warms the room does the cooking, the flame being made on a small burner.

PROGRAM OF MUSIC CONTESTS FIXED

New York Music Week Committee Arranges Schedule of Competition for Musicians in Greater New York—Forty-five Classes of Competitors in Each District

Supplementing its initial announcement, made some weeks ago, of the contests to be inaugurated under its auspices in every section of the city, beginning October 15 and to continue through the Winter, the New York Music Week Committee, through its honorary president, Otto H. Kahn, and its director, Miss Isabel Lowden, has announced the program of the contests.

There are to be forty-five classes of competitions in each of the forty-eight districts now being established. The plan is, by restricting preliminary competitions to districts limited in size, to throw open the door of opportunity for everyone, old and young, with any musical skill at all.

Not only individuals but organizations, choruses and orchestras will thus be included, and added to these events will be competitions that will bring to the fore the native music of the foreign born.

The committee has issued this program in the form of a printed syllabus that is now ready for distribution.

The syllabus includes not only the program in detail, giving the test pieces that contestants must use, but full information as to the districts and names of the chairman and the vice-chairman of the local committees and the date of each district competition.

In addition there is a registration blank. No one may compete without registration and agreeing to comply with the rules and regulations, all of which are set forth in the syllabus.

A synopsis of the contest follows:

Choral societies, church choirs, men's choruses, women's choruses, business choruses, Sunday school choirs, racial choruses, public and parochial school choruses, high school choruses, private school choruses, choral sight reading, ear tests for children, action songs.

Orchestral competitions, string orchestra competitions, orchestral competitions for high schools, violin solos, viola solos, violoncello solos, string quartets, sonatas (violin and piano), trios (violin, 'cello and piano), ensemble (for string and wind instruments), flute solos, oboe solos, clarinet solos, bassoon solos.

French horn solos, trumpet solos, trombone solos, pianoforte solos, pianoforte sight reading, organ solos, vocal solos (soprano, contralto, tenor, baritone, bass), boys' solos, sight reading for solo voices, brass bands' competition—for a prize of $100.

The lower end of Manhattan Borough, a portion of Brownsville and a section of Queens Borough have been selected for the first three weeks of contests.

Manhattan has been divided for this purpose into sixteen districts, Bronx, eight; Brooklyn, sixteen; Queens, six, and Richmond, two.

As each borough's contests are decided a contest of the entire borough will be held, that for Bronx on March 31, that for Brooklyn on April 7, that for Richmond on January 7, that for Queens on February 11 and that for Manhattan on April 21.

HARGER & BISH'S GREAT BUILDING

Edison Distributors in Des Moines Have Concentrated Their Wholesaling Interests in Spacious Building, Which Is Modernly Equipped

DES MOINES, IA., October 6.—Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers of this city, are located in one of the finest "jobbing homes" to be found anywhere in the industry. Whereas some time ago the business of this enterprising concern was handled through several subdistributing points located in important centers of the State, the entire business is now concentrated in the splendidly equipped building shown in the accompanying picture. The premises, with their extensive facilities, as well as the land are owned by Harger & Blish and the land at the right of the building has been developed into a very attractive park for the use of members of the Harger & Blish organization and others. In a recent interview with The World H. H. Blish, Jr., stated that the business during the Summer had been good and the outlook is encouraging.

WORK OF DES MOINES ASSOCIATION

Des Moines Music Merchants Agree on Delivery Charges and Bar Records on Approval

DES MOINES, IA., October 2.—The recently organized Des Moines Music Merchants, an organization taking in the great majority of the representative piano and talking machine dealers of this city, have already accomplished much for the benefit of the local trade as a result of the conferences held in connection with the monthly luncheons of the association.

Of particular interest to the talking machine trade is the fact that members of the association have agreed upon a fixed charge of 25 cents for the packing, mailing and insuring of all records sent by parcel post where the aggregate amount of the sale does not exceed $5; when the sale amounts to over $5 this charge is eliminated. It was also agreed to charge the customer for cost of service where record orders are delivered locally by special messenger.

Another move of importance was an agreement to discontinue the sending of records on approval, as it was found in all too many cases the practice resulted in the return of scores of records which were left on the dealer's shelves at the end of the month when the new releases were stocked. Although this move met with considerable opposition at the outset even those most strongly opposed to it are now agreed on its success.

R. B. Townsend, of Davidson Bros., is president of the Des Moines Music Merchants and H. B. Sixsmith, of Mickel Bros. Co., is secretary and treasurer.

PERTH AMBOY FIRM IN NEW HOME

Albert Leon & Son Celebrate Formal Opening of Fine New Home and Nineteenth Anniversary—"Talker" Department a Feature

One of the most unusual openings in the talking machine trade was that of the new store of Albert Leon & Son, at Perth Amboy, N. J., last month. The concern carries a general house-furnishing line, but they are important phonograph dealers, carrying Victor and Brunswick machines, and in the new six-story building, which was opened on the nineteenth anniversary of the business, an unusual talking machine department is located on a mezzanine floor, made easily accessible by stairways on each side of the main floor, ascending from the front of the building.

One of the striking features of the celebration was the fact that the Perth Amboy Evening News published a sixteen-page special section, carrying pictures of the firm, a page of the history of the company, illustrations of the building, photographs of the personnel of the organization and information about the wonderful business which this live merchant has built up and which extends over six counties in New Jersey and into Staten Island. Open house was kept at the store for each of the three days and there were refreshments and music.

A striking example of the popularity of the company was contained in the fact that more than one hundred floral pieces, all of the most elaborate, were received. Among those from the talking machine trade was a tribute from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. and one from the New York Talking Machine Co. The opening was attended by P. A. Ware, sales promotion manager, Eastern phonograph division of the Brunswick Co., and E. L. Brown, sales representative of New Jersey, as well as many other business friends of the firm.

The talking machine department of Brueners in Oakland, Cal., has been considerably enlarged and remodeled. Increasing business and the expectation of a record holiday trade made the move advisable.

ANNOUNCES HEINEMAN 1924 MOTORS

General Phonograph Corp. Delivering Heineman Nos. 55 and 66 Motors—Represent Important Constructional Improvements—Produced Under Otto Heineman's Supervision

Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone arms and sound boxes, Okeh and Odeon records, Dean steel needles and other products, announced recently the new 1924 models of the

Otto Heineman

Heineman motor. This latest product from the company's factories will be known as Heineman motors Nos. 55 and 66, being double spring motor and triple spring motor, respectively.

In a chat with The World, Mr. Heineman stated that the five salient features of the new 1924 Heineman motors are direct drive, double worm gears, noiseless operation, steady power and simplicity in construction. Mr. Heineman refers to this product as the "Motor of Perfection," emphasizing the care and attention that has been bestowed upon every detail of the motor's construction. The Heineman motors Nos. 55 and 66 were introduced to the trade a few weeks ago and were given an enthusiastic reception everywhere. Orders from the leading phonograph manufacturers have been received in large quantities and the factory facilities are being increased in order to take care of the requirements of the trade.

The perfection of the Heineman 1924 models was consummated under Mr. Heineman's personal direction and no detail of manufacture escaped his official okeh. The General Phonograph Corp.'s sales organization is planning an intensive drive in behalf of the new motors and there is every reason to believe that they will soon prove the leaders in the Heineman line of motors.

BRUNSWICK FEATURED IN MODEL HOME

Brunswick Dealer Links Up Instruments With Home Displays—Exhibits Attract Thousands

The New York & Queens Electric Light Co. has arranged a series of exhibitions on Long Island showing an electrically equipped home, using the exhibition name "The Home Electric," and Archie Smith, enterprising owner of Smith's Brunswick Shop, in Jamaica, L. I., has linked up the Brunswick line with this show. The first exhibit was held in Jamaica, featuring a $7,000 home, and everything exhibited was in keeping with the assumed income of a $7,000 owner. With this idea in view Mr. Smith exhibited the Brunswick "Raleigh" model as the proper instrument for this type of home.

Shows are now being held at other points in Long Island and a notable one is scheduled for Kew Gardens, where a $30,000 home will be exhibited, at which a Brunswick Art model will be one of the features. It is estimated that 30,000 people viewed the home in Jamaica and the series of exhibits will undoubtedly reach the attention of hundreds of thousands.

EXCELLENT WINDOW IN SMALL SPACE

Mandel & Schwarzman Show What Can Be Done With Limited Window Space in Featuring Records of a Popular Song Hit

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., October 5.—Small space is not always a detriment to effective window display, if the work of H. C. Kupfer, manager of the Victrola department of Mandel & Schwarzman, this city, may be taken as a criterion. Recently this enterprising manager staged a Mandel & Schwarzman's Clever Window display in which he featured the Victor record of the song hit, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home." A photo of the display is reproduced herewith and a study of it shows in what an admirable and efficient manner a most effective window was arranged despite necessary limitations. The homy scene pictured brought many interested persons to a stop before the window and the publicity thus secured made this a most profitable display.

JUNIOR OPERETTAS

Little Red Riding Hood—the first Junior Operetta on the market, has met with immediate success. Parents, educators, musicians—all who have the interests of children and child education at heart—are enthusiastic over them.

A Real Operetta

Here is a record produced for the entertainment of children. The subject, of course, is juvenile; but the music, far from being the usual nursery rendering of Mother Goose rhymes, is an artistic, musical composition—a real operetta—performed by real artists and musicians.

Adopted by Schools

That is the chief reason why it has already been adopted by the Boards of Education of five of the principal cities in the United States, including Boston, Baltimore and Washington, as part of the authorized school curricula. Another reason is that the RECORD IS UNBREAKABLE--will withstand almost any amount of the roughest handling.

Read What Dealers Say

One Big Brunswick Dealer Writes:

"Your set of Junior Operetta received.

"We must admit that it is the finest of its kind."

One Big Victor Dealer Writes:

"We received the sample of your Junior Operetta of 'Little Red Riding Hood,' which we think is about the finest thing yet in the line of records for children."

Ideal Gifts for Children

Solves the Xmas Gift Problem

Parents and Christmas shoppers will welcome the happy solution of the problem, "What shall I give the children for Christmas?", for the Junior Operettas are the ideal Christmas gift records for children. And they are the ideal records for you to sell—three at a time, a complete set—

Each Junior Operetta is in six parts, on three double-faced 10-inch Unbreakable Records

RICHMOND

*Business Good—Trade Expansions
—Fairs Bring Business—M. N.
Kuhn Resigns—The Month's News*

RICHMOND, VA., October 7.—The Corley Co., Victor distributor, reports that dealers in its territory are greatly pleased over the Victor weekly release plan. They also voice pleasure at the liberal policy of the Victor Co. in giving full credit for single-faced records exchanged for the new double-faced Red Seals. These records are reported to be meeting with a ready sale throughout the territory. The Corley Co. is finding the new Victor art models very popular with the trade, the demand being considerably in excess of the supply. Frank W. Corley, vice-president of the company, has just returned from a visit to the factory in Camden, where he placed orders for the Fall trade.

Enlargements and Removals

The McGehee Furniture Co., of Lynchburg, which is moving into a new store, has taken over the Victor business of the Beardsworth-Bond Music Co.

The Efrid Department Store, Charlotte, N. C., has also taken on the Victor and, with C. E. F. Inman in charge, is prepared to push that line and to make it one of its leaders. Mr. Inman was formerly with the A. M. Alexander Co., of Spartanburg, S. C.

Frederick W. Schwoebel, manager of the wholesale department of the Corley Co., recently made a business trip through western North Carolina, finding business in practically all lines of trade in prosperous condition.

Miss Gertrude Miller, clerk in the retail department of the Corley Co., has returned from a vacation trip spent in the Middle West. This department reports medium-priced consoles as the best sellers in the line of models.

Cash in on Fairs

But few of the Richmond talking machine stores had exhibits at the Virginia State Fair, held the first week in October, but they cashed in on the crowds that flocked to the city to attend this annual event. Lack of suitable provision for display of their special wares is understood to be the reason why more of them do not exhibit at the Fair.

Several other Virginia cities held fairs in September, among these being Lynchburg and Fredericksburg. In both these places dealers report increased business resulting from the fair crowds. In Fredericksburg R. A. Kishpaugh, Victor dealer, had an exhibit and was pleased with results attained.

Colonial Corp. Expands

James Cowan, president of the Colonial Piano Corp., Columbia dealer in Richmond, and family have returned from a three weeks' camping trip to Canada. Mr. Cowan is planning to double the number of booths in his store to accommodate his trade, the plans calling for the addition of six booths.

Continued demand for concert Actuelles is reported by the Goldberg Bros. Co., Pathé distributor. Several of these machines are now being tried out by fraternal organizations in Richmond as entertainment features at lodge meetings and luncheons. LeRoy Goldberg and H. B. Goldberg were both in New York recently on a buying trip.

Activity With C. B. Haynes Co.

The C. B. Haynes Co. reports good business throughout its territory. It recently received a shipment of four carloads of machines for distribution to its trade.

M. M. Kuhn, assistant sales manager of the

C. B. Haynes Co., Edison jobber, resigned on October 1. Mr. Kuhn had been with the firm for several years, coming to Richmond from the Edison factory. It is understood that he plans to connect with another line of business. No successor to Mr. Kuhn has yet been named.

Reason for Optimism

According to the October 1 report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond for the Fifth District the Carolinas in particular have fine tobacco crops and prices are considerably higher than a year ago. Cotton prospects are declared to be better in the district than in most other cotton growing sections, with prices quite satisfactory, conditions which make for general good business, in which the talking machine trade will share.

New "Talker" Departments

The Worley Furniture Co., which operates furniture stores in Wilson, Selma and Smithfield, N. C., is opening a talking machine department and will handle Victor machines and records in all three stores.

Sterchi Bros., Inc., are opening a furniture store in Asheville, N. C., and will have a talking machine department. They will handle the Columbia.

DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

Robert B. Wheelan, President of Health Builders, Makes Some Interesting Observations Anent His Visit to European Countries

Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., New York, producer of the Health Builder record sets of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen," made an interesting survey of European conditions during his vacation abroad with Mrs. Wheelan. Mr. and Mrs. Wheelan spent considerable time in Germany, Switzerland and England. Conditions in Germany Mr. Wheelan described as unbelievable. In discussing the situation in that country Mr. Wheelan stated, in part: "Theoretically, there should be a tremendously good demand for talking machines and records in Germany, for, due to the fluctuation of the mark and its steady downward tendency, people are spending money as quickly as they receive it. The savings bank has been obliterated in Germany, for what might be a fortune one day within a week will not be enough to purchase a postage stamp. The drop in the valuation of the mark is so great from day to day that the average person hesitates to hold the money even overnight and usually seeks to buy something of standard value as soon as he receives the money. While in Berlin I visited one of the leading talking machine stores and asked the price of a standard record in marks, which had to be looked up according to the current rate of exchange before the price could be stated. I found it was a custom in talking machine establishments to reprice every article at the opening of each business day in accordance with the current value of marks in relation to foreign money. It, therefore, seemed to me that talking machines and records, being of standard value, a great number of people would want to spend their marks in this direction, although I never noticed any heavy buying in any of the talking machine establishments while I was in Germany. The talking machine situation in Switzerland and England seemed fair, although not to be compared in any sense to the advanced conditions in the trade in this country. I found a number of portables were being sold abroad, but these seemed all to be of decidedly cheap construction and not comparable with the portables made in this country."

NEW LOPEZ RECORD POPULAR

Okeh dealers generally are evincing keen interest in the latest record made by Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra. This record features on one side "I Love You" and on the other "What Do You Do Sunday, Mary?", both numbers being from popular musical comedies. "I Love You," from "Little Jessie James," is proving one of the best-selling hits of the day and Vincent Lopez gives this selection his usual individual interpretation.

DEATH OF R. S. PEER'S FATHER

R. S. Peer, of the general sales department of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, is receiving the sympathy of his many friends in the trade upon the death of his father, A. B. Peer, who died at Greensburg, Pa., on September 26. The late Mr. Peer was well known in the talking machine trade, having been identified with the industry for many years as a member of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s staff at Kansas City, Mo. The interment was held at Canandaigua, N. Y., and was attended by friends and relatives.

People who have heard the six Victor Records of the "Treasure Chest" frankly say, "It is a revelation, we had no idea that there were such beautiful instrumental recordings of foreign music."

The "Treasure Chest" with its six ten inch Victor Records (12 instrumental recordings) is distinctly unique, and is something that presents to every Victor Dealer a most unusual selling item. As a gift there is hardly anything more appropriate or desirable, especially during the Holiday Season.

To sell your customer a "Treasure Chest" is to do him a decided service, for it means his happiness, entertainment, recreation and education—all for the modest price of $5.00.

You, Mr. Victor Dealer, will do well to have the "Treasure Chest" in full display both in your show window and on your service counter. It is an item that will sell itself at sight. Remember, too, there is nothing in the Talking Machine Business that has such a strong appeal. Not only will the sale of the "Treasure Chest" prove profitable to you, but it will create good will on the part of every customer who buys it.

Progressive, alert and up-to-the-minute Victor Dealers will have the "Treasure Chest" on hand to meet the demand of their customers.

This is the moment for you to put in a liberal stock. Every Victor Wholesaler is now in a position to supply you immediately.

BUFFALO

Instrument Shortage Is the Only Cloud in Bright Fall Business Sky—The Month's News Budget

BUFFALO, N. Y., October 7.—Early October shows the talking machine trade to be in a flourishing condition. Dealers and jobbers throughout the western New York district have had one of the best early Fall seasons they have known for a number of years. Many report that sales have far surpassed the great volume of last year's business. Shortage of instruments is the only thing that is casting a shadow over the horizon of a bright Fall and Winter season.

C. E. Siegesmund, sales manager of Curtis N. Andrews, Victor jobber for western New York, says that business for September showed a much larger sales volume than the same month a year ago. "I do not believe that stock in the dealers' and jobbers' hands was ever so low at this period of the year," Mr. Siegesmund said. "It is the hope of Victor dealers and ourselves that the factory will be able to speed up production to meet the Fall demand, and the enormous holiday demand that is bound to come." Since the beginning of cool weather, the record business has been good, and the new Red Seal records are meeting with public favor.

F. D. Clare, of the Iroquois Sales Corp., distributor of Strand talking machines and Okeh records, reports Fall trade far exceeding their expectations. G. R. Kuehner and H. A. Schensborn, district salesmen, are sending in very large orders for early delivery of Strands and Okeh Records. Mr. Kuehner has opened up several new accounts in the western section of the State. The Camp-Fone, a new portable machine recently added to the Iroquois Sales Corp.'s line, is meeting with favor of dealers here, and many accounts have been opened in surrounding towns.

A. H. Fleishman, manager of the Victor department of the Wm. Hengerer Co., says they have had an unusually good Fall trade. This department received a great deal of advertising through the store's anniversary sale.

The new piano department of Neal, Clark & Neal, who have had one of the finest Victor stores in this part of the country, will formally open about November 1, according to Clarence Lucore, manager of the department. The store is going through the process of reconstruction, and the rapid progress made indicates it will soon be ready for opening. Besides featuring the Ampico and the Knabe they will carry a full line of pianos, Q R S rolls and sheet music, as well as band and orchestral instruments. The Victor department will remain on the first floor, and will receive the same close attention that it has heretofore had.

Victor Supremacy

Victor weekly releases, coupled with the double facing of Victor Red Seal records, means unlimited sales possibilities for the aggressive Victor retailer. The new Victrolas 400, 405 and 410 are the finest instruments ever presented to the trade, and will be important factors in making 1923 "A VICTOR YEAR."

Victor products will be at a premium this Fall. There is going to be an unprecedented demand for Victrolas and Victor records, and orders placed now will enable you to meet this demand.

Stanley Bros. Furniture Co., Erie, Pa., recently suffered the entire loss of its stock through fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000. Strand talking machines and Okeh records were featured in the music department.

Dealers in Columbia records benefited by the appearance of Ted Lewis and His Band which gave a concert dance in Elmo Music Hall recently. The band came to Buffalo with "the Passing Show," and left with them on their trip to Chicago.

John G. Schuler, Inc., has erected a very attractive sign board at Delaware avenue and Tacoma street, featuring the Sonora. Numerous new accounts brought to the store have been the direct results of the sign.

The Hoffman Piano Co. is tying up with large and attractive newspaper advertising of the Brunswick. R. E. Smith, salesmanager, reports that good results of the advertising have already been felt.

"The talking machine business is showing a marked improvement over that of last year at this time," said O. L. Neal, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor. "The principal thing concerning us this year is the supply of goods. The shortage of supply in the most popular models is becoming serious," he said. "There is every indication of a tremendous Fall business."

The Bellanca Furniture Co. has opened its new store on Niagara and Virginia streets, with a very attractive Victor department.

C. Fred Danielson, of Jamestown, N. Y., opened his new store on October 5. About a year ago, one of his two Jamestown music stores was destroyed by fire. The building was replaced by a beautiful structure, modern in every respect.

In New York as in Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Detroit and other cities thruout the country, dealers are featuring the 50c record heavily.

Experience has taught them that the public has become buying wise.

That public now knows beyond all doubt that the good 50c record (one that retails at 50c) gives full 75c worth of record value. Therefore it insists on the good 50c record.

And always the dealer finds that the 50c record brings him a greater turnover and a larger total profit than he ever believed possible.

William Goold, father of T. A. and George Goold, of Goold Bros., Inc., has returned from a four months' tour of Europe.

The American Music Festival, held in Buffalo during the week of October 1, was backed by the local music trade, and received the moral and financial support of many talking machine jobbers and dealers. Boxes were held by the following members of the talking machine trade: C. N. Andrews, W. H. Daniels, E. L. Hengerer, B. E. Neal, O. L. Neal, Edward P. Erion and Arthur Victor.

The Howard Furniture Co., Inc., of Jamestown, has moved from the Hall block to the Lyric Building.

The Victor Dealers' Association will hold its annual meeting in the Hotel Statler about the middle of October, when officers for the year will be elected.

W. C. Fuhri, of the General Phonograph Co., New York, stopped over in Buffalo en route to Texas and was a visitor at the offices of the Iroquois Sales Corp.

J. H. Robertson is a new member of the Victor sales staff of the J. N. Adam Co. He was formerly with the Heintzman Co., in Toronto, Can.

G. H. Woodcock, formerly with G. H. Hoppenberg, is now a member of the sales force of the piano department of the Brunswick Shop. Salesmanager C. O. E. Curtis, of the Brunswick Shop, says the Brunswick is meeting with great favor. The new model Columbia has been received, and the new automatic motor is a good selling point, which has produced good results, he says.

E. A. FEARN VISITS OKEH OFFICES

President of Consolidated Talking Machine Co. Calls on New York Trade—Gives Optimistic Reports on Business Conditions

A recent caller to the offices of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, was E. A. Fearn, president of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Chicago, with branches in Minneapolis and Detroit. This company is one of the most successful Okeh jobbers in the country and while in New York Mr. Fearn conferred with W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., regarding plans for the coming year. In a chat with The World he stated that record business in the Middle West was excellent, with the dealers in his territory keenly enthusiastic regarding the latest lists of Okeh, Odeon and Fonotipia records. Mr. Fearn is generally recognized as one of the best-posted wholesale men in the country and his comments regarding general business conditions are based on the report of his sales staffs in Chicago, Detroit and Minneapolis.

NEW COLUMBIA AGENCY IN DETROIT

Among the new accounts recently opened by the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s Cleveland branch is that of M. McCaffrey, of Detroit, who for a number of years has been the leading Singer sewing machine dealer in that city and who at present has four stores. He has an outside selling organization of twelve men and they are all going to be turned loose on phonograph sales. The McCaffrey organization and the Summerfield & Hecht Co. salesmen are making preparations to stage a contest, the results of which should be of considerable interest from a sales standpoint.

NEW MUTUAL TONE ARM A WINNER

Represents Departure From Usual Design of Tone Arm—Well Received by the Trade

The Mutual Phono Parts Mfg. Corp., New York City, which recently introduced the No. 4 tone arm with the new No. 4 reproducer, reports that this new phono part has gained considerable popularity throughout the industry. This new addition to the Mutual line is entirely original as to design in both the tone arm and reproducer, but retains the standard of construction and finish which has characterized Mutual products in the past. Discussing the new arm, Andrew P. Frangipane, secretary of the company, stated: "In the No. 4 tone arm and the reproducer we endeavored to give the trade something different in this respect and yet attractive and good. The arm is of the popular throw-back type and with its swelled base presents an attractive appearance. We believe that the pentagon-shaped sound box will be a welcome relief to many from the staid equipment used heretofore. We were not content, however, to alone improve the appearance of the tone arm and sound box, but our engineers spent a long period of time to improve the tone, which is full and resonant."

HEALTHY CONDITIONS IN BROOKLYN TRADE

Dealers and Jobbers Are Optimistic Over Outlook for Winter Months—Dealers Broadening Out Their Lines—Window Displays Prove a Profitable Investment—Featuring Musical Merchandise—Talking Machines at Nassau County Fair—Other News of Interest

The business outlook in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory is better than it has been for some time, according to reports of jobbers and retailers. One indication of the optimistic feeling prevailing in the trade is the number of dealers who are adding new lines of talking machines and records. There seems to be a growing tendency to handle more than one line of instruments because, as one dealer expressed it, "Some people have preferences for certain makes of machines which no amount of argument can change. Indeed, where only one line is handled and the fact is generally known, we have found in our outside selling efforts that we never had a chance with these particular prospects." Another factor which is the basis for considerable optimism is the general prosperity among all classes of workers. There is plenty of work, especially in the building trades, and salaries are as high and in many cases higher than they ever have been. The middle classes, to whom the great bulk of sales are made, are liberal spenders and this year they will have plenty of money to spend for Christmas and other holiday gifts.

Window Displays Draw Trade

Window displays are proving good business getters for those dealers who are devoting time and attention to this particular phase of publicity. One of the leaders in the matter of window display in this territory is the Brooklyn branch of the Aeolian Co. C. G. Davis, manager of the branch, gives a great deal of thought to his windows and invariably the displays are out of the ordinary and eye-arresting. Another window which is attracting considerable attention is that of Krakauer Bros., 1653 Pitkin avenue, which is featuring the Sonora. The talking machine department of the Sterling Piano Corp., 81-87 Court street, under the management of E. T. LeTure, has also arranged some excellent window displays. The Sterling Piano Corp.'s new quarters at the above address are located on a busy corner and the window facilities are unusual. Both the talking machine and piano departments are on the main floor, with a partition dividing the two departments, each of which has its own windows for display purposes. Another publicity stunt which this company is about to launch consists of a booklet in which illustrations of the various departments appear. The talking machine section will be given prominent space. According to Mr. LeTure, these booklets will be mailed to a selected list of prospects and customers. Direct mail has proved a real business stimulator for this live manager.

Dealers Displaying Musical Merchandise

Many talking machine dealers are devoting window display space to small musical instruments, indicating that the importance of a musical sideline is being more generally realized. Indeed, many of the concerns in this territory have installed complete and up-to-date musical merchandise departments which are in charge of experienced men. The opportunities in this field of the music business are right in line with those in the talking machine field, according to a Brooklyn dealer who handles both. He declared that he had sold a surprising number of small musical instruments to members of families who had purchased a talking machine and records from him.

Hempstead Shop Displays at Fair

One of the finest exhibits at the annual Nassau County Fair, which is held at Mineola, L. I., was that of the Hempstead Music Shop, of Hempstead, which had a large booth, in which were displayed Sonora phonographs and Vocalion records. This booth was one of the centers of interest and, while no sales were made during the Fair, a number of live prospects were secured. Several people, after viewing the exhibit, requested that a representative of the Hempstead Music Shop call at their homes to give further information concerning the various instruments.

Stores Change Hands

Among the stores which changed hands during the past few weeks was the Fort Hamilton Music Co., 446 Eighty-sixth street, Brooklyn, which is now owned by Mrs. Eskrin, who formerly owned the Flatbush Music Shop and who has had wide experience in the merchandising of talking machines and records. Brunswick, Columbia and Sonora instruments are handled.

The Park Music Shop, 1514 New Utrecht avenue, has been purchased from J. F. Kissel by John Strigliano. This concern features the Sonora line.

Brooklyn Concern Chartered

The firm of Edward Strauss, of this city, has been incorporated under the laws of New York to deal in talking machines, with a capital of $50,000. Directors are Howard Strauss, Elizabeth Satlein and Celia Cartoon.

A. Centonze Co. in New Home

The A. Centonze Music Co., distributor of records and music rolls, is now occupying spacious and attractive new quarters at 174 Johnson avenue, Brooklyn. The concern reports a growing demand for records and rolls. The roll catalog has been increased by the addition of the following new numbers: "Labruzza Duci," "Felicità," "Paradise," "Dolce Speranza," "Angelo Maestono" and "Alba D'Amore."

pecting the heaviest Fall and holiday business in its history as a result of the unusually heavy ordering by dealers, who apparently are determined not to be caught short of stock when the holiday buying begins in real earnest. The Long Island Phonograph Co. recently urged the dealers to estimate their requirements for the Fall, so that it could make some provision to meet all demand, avoiding, as far as possible, the usual annual dearth of instruments.

Among the new Sonora accounts opened recently is included Harold R. Mulford, Greenport, L. I.

Through error there appeared in this section of the last issue of The World the statement that the Pravder Music Shop had added the Sonora. The Pravder Music Shop handles the Edison and Columbia lines.

American T. M. Co. Busy

The American Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor for the Brooklyn and Long Island territory, is enjoying a busy season. Fall orders are coming in in excellent volume and the outlook for an unusual holiday business is bright. R. H. Morris, president of the company, has just returned from a vacation which he spent motoring to Massachusetts. He drove his daughter to Mt. Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.

Moves to New Quarters in Corona

The Corona Music Store, which is conducted by Vincent M. Padula, has removed from 129 Forty-sixth street to 99 Forty-sixth street, Corona, N. Y., where larger and admirably equipped quarters are now occupied. This concern handles Sonora phonographs and Vocalion, Columbia and Victor records.

Mager's Music Shop Expands

Mager's Music Shop, Victor dealer, recently purchased the business of Benton's Music Shop, Cedarhurst, L. I., which will continue under the new management. A complete line of Victor machines and records, pianos and musical instruments is handled.

BUSINESS VALUE OF CONCERT WORK

Excellent Opportunity of Gaining Good-will of Music Lovers Through Co-operation in Staging Concerts and Recitals

The experiences of talking machine dealers who have co-operated in staging concerts have proved that work of this character is decidedly profitable. There are many dealers who have a regular program of concerts which they stage in their stores or in special quarters secured for that purpose. Window displays and advertising are resorted to to tie up with these events and in all cases where the plan has been given a thorough tryout sales of records have been stimulated.

This is an excellent work and the value which the dealer can derive therefrom cannot be emphasized too strongly, but there is another field where concert work can be made to pay dividends in sales and good-will. In practically every city, town and village throughout the country there are music clubs, social organizations and a variety of other groups where music is a welcome addition. The organizations devoted principally to music offer probably the best outlet for the energy of the dealer in this direction. Co-operating with these bodies in making their concerts and recitals a success will do much to build good-will and, furthermore, it must not be forgotten that the best type of customer for the music store is the music lover, and members of musical organizations are certainly in that class.

THE inference was excusable; for, in everything except actual physical presence, the New Edison Re-Creates the living artist's true performance.

This almost miraculous achievement was made possible only by the unusual ideal of Mr. Edison and his unlimited facilities for the research which required years of painstaking study and the fortune of $3,000,000 poured into laboratory tests which resulted in the New Edison—the actual Re-Creator of the living voice.

Its superiority is continually proven—by contrast with phonographs of other make—and by the final, conclusive test of comparison with the living artists.

Small wonder, then, that the public has responded with a demand that taxes Edison manufacturing resources and makes good business for Edison dealers.

VISIT STARR PLANT AT RICHMOND

Delegations of Retail Distributors From Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Eastern Ohio, Indiana and Chicago Entertained at Starr Plant

RICHMOND, IND., October 6.—Ideal weather, together with the enthusiasm of the visitors, made the trip of the delegation of dealers headed by H. C. Niles, of the Starr Phonograph Co., Pittsburgh, to the factories of the Starr Piano Co. a most happy and profitable occasion recently. H. C. Niles, formerly advertising manager of the Starr Co., is distributor of that organization's products for Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio. The trip was the occasion for a general inspection of the great Starr factories and their products. Visitors from the company's Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Richmond branches with dealers were also in attendance.

The day started with a breakfast at the Arlington Hotel, followed by a thorough trip through the Starr factories, where every department was visited and all operations of production were observed. All visitors, officers of the company, heads of departments and factory foremen wore badges bearing their names and information as to company connections, which added greatly to the get-together spirit.

At noon a lunch was served buffet style in the phonograph inspection department. At the end of this room, amid Fall decorations, were exhibited Starr pianos, Starr phonographs and the latest Gennett records, which were admired and created much interest. The styles were demonstrated continuously throughout the day.

Late in the afternoon phonograph records were made by the party at the factory recording room, a feature which was enjoyed on account of its novelty.

The visitors motored at the close of the day to the farm of the Starr Piano Co., west of Richmond, where a barbecue of beef, lamb, pork and all the trimmings occupied their attention until train time.

Among the guests of the company were A. O. Lechner, Lechner & Schoenberger, Pittsburgh; Wm. Cooper, Cooper Bros., New Kensington, Pa.; R. E. Stone, R. E. Stone Co., McKeesport,

Pa.; H. C. Millemen, Millemen Piano Co., Elwood City, Pa.; John Cooper, Cooper Bros., of New Kensington, Pa.; Paul Mechling, Dawson Bros. Piano Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa.; R. R. MOVES TO LARGER QUARTERS

Musical Products Distributing Co. Increases Wareroom Space at Same Address

The Musical Products Distributing Co., New York, distributor of Pooley phonographs and Vocalion records and manufacturer of the "Standex" display stands, is now occupying new and larger quarters at 37 East Eighteenth street, New York. The company has been established at this address for several years past, but increased business necessitated more adequate facilities and the entire sixth floor was leased. The interior has been attractively decorated with a handsome display room for the accommodation of Pooley phonographs. B. D. Colen, president of the company, states that the sales totals for September were far ahead of last year, with every indication that the last quarter of the year will exceed all expectations.

New York Sonora Dealers Hold Busy Meeting

Retailers Served by the Greater City Phonograph Co., Sonora Jobber, Listen to Instructive Talks and Discuss Trade Problems at Convention in the Hotel Pennsylvania

Sonora dealers in the territory served by the Greater City Phonograph Co., New York, Sonora jobber, attended a convention held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on September 25. Maurice Landay, president of the Greater City Phonograph Co. and one of the most popular members of the Sonora jobbing organization, presided at the convention and in an address of welcome stated that it was planned to hold capacity until March. He congratulated the dealers present upon the aggressiveness and co-operative spirit manifested by the Greater City Phonograph Co., complimenting Mr. Landay upon the splendid strides attained by the Sonora product in his territory. S. O. Martin, vice-president and general manager of the Sonora Co., gave the dealers and their guests one of his usual forceful addresses, wherein he similar meetings throughout the coming year. Prior to the opening of the business sessions the dealers enjoyed a typical Hotel Pennsylvania luncheon and an entertaining musical program was furnished by Clarence Bush's Orchestra.

George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co., was introduced by Mr. Landay as the first speaker and during the course of an interesting address told the dealers that the company had received enough orders from its distributors to keep the factory working to illustrated graphically sales possibilities for Sonora phonographs during the entire year. This chart showed the various fluctuations and sales totals during the different months and emphasized the fact that by anticipating their orders for the Fall and holiday season, the dealers would be adding materially to their profits. Brief addresses were also made by Frank Goodman, assistant general sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co.; R. W. Keith, president of the Long Island Phonograph Co., and others. One of the features of the address made by

Mr. Landay was the outlining of the plans that his company had made to meet the requirements of the Sonora dealers in this territory and the efforts that were being made to distribute Sonora merchandise evenly and efficiently. He stated that in order to carry out these plans to advantage it was necessary for the dealers to anticipate their needs as far in advance as possible, placing their orders accordingly. An interesting open forum was then held among the dealers and among those who contributed brief talks were Lambert Friedl, manager of the John Wanamaker phonograph department, New York; H. S. Conn, manager of the phonograph department of Ludwig Bauman & Co.; Herbert D. Berkeley, manager of the phonograph department of Bloomingdale Bros., and A. H. Mayers.

Among those seated at the speakers' table at the convention were the following: Geo. E. Brightson, S. O. Martin, O. S. Keyes, treasurer of the Sonora Phonograph Co.; L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co.; Frank Goodman, E. S. White, Sonora Co., of Philadelphia; Fred Allen and Herbert C. Young, Sonora Co. of New Jersey; Robert W. Keith, president, and J. J. Schratweiser, sales manager of the Long Island Phonograph Co.

CONSOLE DEMAND GAINING STEADILY

Pathé Introduces New Console to Meet Demand for Popular-priced Instruments

The demand for the popular-priced console model talking machine, which is expected to be more insistent than ever during the present Fall season, has been met in the case of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., by the presentation of a new model known as No. 27. This console model is in the Sheraton period and built on strong and attractive lines in both mahogany and walnut. Furnished with the usual Pathé refinements, this new model is expected to be a very popular sales number. Although all numbers of the Pathé line are receiving their just share of popularity, attention is directed by the officers of the company to the all-year-round popularity that the Pathé portable is enjoying. Whereas in past years the portable was more or less a Summer or vacation instrument, it is now being purchased for the home and it is expected that in the coming holiday season the portable will play an important role among holiday gifts.

Why the Widdicomb appeals to the better class of buyers

CONSIDER first of all the fact that the Widdicomb Phonograph is the product of an organization which for three generations has held a position of undisputed leadership among artificers of fine furniture.

Consider also the fact that the Widdicomb Phonograph embodies the results of years of painstaking research in the field of acoustics as related to the reproduction of recorded music.

You will then appreciate, we believe, why it is only natural that the Widdicomb should possess the qualities which appeal both to lovers of the beautiful in furniture craftsmanship, and to lovers of the beautiful in the realm of music.

To merchants who seek to build up a business among this better class of trade, the Widdicomb line of phonographs in period styles offers an opportunity that is well worth investigation. A complete catalog and full particulars regarding the Widdicomb franchise will be gladly furnished upon request.

Radio—Its Yesterday—To-day—To-morrow

Basic Principles of Radio Progress and Merchandising Discussed by H. H. Roemer, Sales Manager, DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co.

That the talking machine dealer is acting cautiously in the matter of radio goes without saying. And, I dare say, never in his experience as a merchant of reproduced music has he been confronted with quite as perplexing a problem.

If he is not one who "dipped in" when the premature "blow off" occurred—he at least heard the unfortunate story through his less fortunate brothers who did. And right here is where the grief began. They were "burnt"—and in many cases they were burnt badly. They have a right to think cautiously and act likewise. And without disregard for those who did suffer, I might add that theirs was an experience which has done more for the industry than many other conditions which demanded closer attention in the production of radio and in the perfecting of a merchandisable product in order that the public's interest remain with the art.

In a measure, skepticism to-day is as rampant as in any previous days of epoch-making periods in the history of invention. We are no older than our forefathers in their time. Our beliefs are equally as primitive in the acceptance of anything that smacks of mystery—the new things which cannot be "seen" especially. A condition due to the layman's lack of technical knowledge or closeness to the "inside track," whatever the subject.

And as we have the skeptic, so have we the "progressive" and, likewise, the "impulsive" types. It requires all types to make a people, and all types to awaken a people. Were it not for the skeptic improvement and refinement would remain ever at a standstill. The skeptic, that "show me" half-brother to conservatism, demands more than the progressive and counter balances the impulsive.

Nor does the category of these classes apply exclusively to the buying public. It has reached out and found its way to the dealer himself, until we have as strong a classification of similar types among our dealer friends as has been described above.

So when one morning we awakened and found ourselves in the maelstrom of a public's clamoring demand for a practically unheard-of something—when radio burst in upon us with far greater disorder than the gold rush to Nevada or the Yukon—there was a mad scramble by the trade to get in and we all know the results. Here arose an industry overnight, unknown to mechanical skill, we might say, and certainly unknown to manufacturing science when considering volume output. A field untilled, with absolutely no established dealer outlet, much less a sales or advertising organization in back of it. There wasn't time for organization—much less the necessary time for proper manufacture. The public demanded radio, and the public will have what it demands.

Influence of Music in Radio Popularity

After that first flash, when the entire country was attracted to radio—what made radio popular? Was it the voice from a hundred or a thousand miles away? No—this only sharpened the appetite for more—but when music came over the air, then, and then only, did radio rip holes in the public's pocketbooks and anything that "squawked" sold for a time. But it was music that did the trick. Music was the carrier wave of radio's phenomenal grip on the public—and is to-day.

Little wonder the talking machine dealer jumped in and bought. It was music, and isn't music his field—his province?

But—radio two years ago and radio to-day are as foreign to each other as Edison's first record compared with the product of to-day.

In my close daily contact with the dealer trade I have had ample time to study the talking machine trade's viewpoint. Its attitude is well founded, based upon that experience any dealer feels who has bought an unknown quantity and each day sees that "graveyard of dead stock"—a monument to "snap judgment"—and a constant reminder of impulsive and untimely action. But yesterday has gone and to-day finds us with what the skeptic of a year or so ago looked forward to. To-day presents that something which the skeptic found lacking yesterday—the public's tuned ear and understanding of radio's practicability and actuality—plus engineering and manufacturing skill to produce that which can be merchandised with safety to their good-will and without the aid of a great machine shop and engineering corps to attend to service.

One need only read a little, see a little and hear a little to satisfy himself completely that as suddenly as radio hit us, just that sudden has its development progressed, until to-day a trip through Grand Central Palace's exhibits will compel admission of the absolute fact that products in radio do exist which have eliminated the greatest objectionable features necessary to the talking machine trade's class of merchandising and are being produced with that same dependable precision as any talking machine, from the finest materials and workmanship in artistic cabinet construction as would meet and satisfy the most fastidious taste of any buyer and add beauty and refinement to any home throughout the land.

The Radio Service Bugbear

We have heard so much about "service." Yesterday? Yes, service was not alone servicing the set—it was teaching how to operate. Even in the earlier days of radio so-called service was not servicing sets because of being out of order, but the pioneering of education. Look about you. You cannot pick many men on the street who do not know something of radio. And as for boys? It's fifty-fifty as to which stands first—the big league or radio. But the public does not really know a great deal of radio. Servicing to-day is not the bugbear of yesterday, and as fast as manufacturers realize that, "instruction sheets" of less technical nature and more profuse in ordinary terms are eliminating service materially. Service, on the part of the dealer, is growing less and less, until to-day you require very little, especially in the better-built cabinet types.

The service scare the talking machine dealer has felt is largely the fault of manufacturers' salesmen, in many cases, who have not talked the line properly. Too much technical stuff. Dealers I have interviewed have displayed their fear of the technical side of the business. Salesmen have juggled the vernacular of this new-found language—radio parlance—until the dealer has stood aghast and bewildered. I dare say the percentage of lost sales to dealers, due to technical fear, would astonish our manufacturers.

Sell Results—Not Technical Knowledge

Servicing radio can be made a disease or a negligible quantity by the dealer. Talk a buyer into opening his set and by one stunt or another he can produce this or that and you are laying the most beautiful background for "service" that can be put over. A man goes in to buy a clock. The clerk does not open it up and expose its entrails. He sells it on its appearance and on the reputation of his place and the manufacturer behind it. He sells results backed by confidence. Radio, Mr. Dealer, is not one bit different to-day, except possibly in that a clerk or salesman should at least know the fundamentals of the art, and your manufacturer's selling program should include that educational data as a part of his "selling helps." This data is no heavier than your comparative sales points in the talking machine or piano field.

Beyond the minor details of knowing each set sold functions properly when delivered there should be no further servicing (under correct usage) than keeping an eye on the batteries (the automobile has taught every man that) and the tubes.

When considering the fact that little boys, not alone the city chap, but the little fellows far back in remote spots of this country in the hills or on the plains, with the most impoverished tools and materials, without the advantages of anything more than a little red schoolhouse education, are

Dealers Find That Public Demands Brunswick Phonographs and Records

The leadership of The Brunswick is being emphasized every day. Dealers recognize this fact.

The public asks for Brunswick Phonographs and Records.

The perfect interpretations of classical and popular music by Brunswick Phonographs and Records is the talk of the musical world.

The clear, perfect renditions of the so-called "difficult" tones of Brunswick Records, free of metallic suggestion, is spoken of everywhere. So people who want the best in phonograph music turn to Brunswick.

Highest musical authorities say

Brunswick Records are ten years ahead of their time. Great musicians recognize this fact and the new artists of this generation have turned to Brunswick to immortalize their art.

Brunswick Phonographs enjoy the same leadership. The first phonograph to play perfectly all makes of records. The clearness, beauty of interpretation and tonal volume it reproduces is not equalled by any other make of phonograph.

So wise dealers have turned to Brunswick phonographs and records to meet the ever increasing tide of popular demand.

PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

hooking up their home-made sets with no other teacher than a mail-order circular—it seems to me this much-discussed "service" problem is a little far fetched and is an unconscious camouflage to get away from what every talking machine dealer must know is the inevitable "writing on the wall." Facts are facts. No matter how we dress them up, they still remain as cold and immovable as the rock of Gibraltar. The talking machine dealer is not going to force what rightfully belongs to him into other channels. But there is a stern reality that is going to be made to exist if that talking machine dealer doesn't arouse himself to the call—dealers in other lines who have fathered radio becoming so thoroughly entrenched—so thoroughly established in the confidence of the people, that they will be made to believe that there is a technical side to radio that makes necessary the merchandising through the electrical trade.

There is room for both classes of trades. More than enough to satisfy both, but as assuredly as a record is best sold through the talking machine dealer just so is it true of the complete cabinet sets of the higher types of radio being a part of the talking machine dealer's merchandise.

Some Actual Experiences and Facts

Here are a few actual experiences and facts, actual conditions and not the results of so-called surveys or investigations. One of the largest and best-known talking machine distributors on the Pacific Coast became interested in radio a little over a year ago. Following a careful study of the industry he employed a radio buyer. He decided upon a line which in his knowledge best suited the particular needs of his trade. With the opening of this year's business he requisitioned his radio factory for what was considered almost three times the amount of any one month's business produced by distributors in other lines of merchandise. Within three months and up to this date this talking machine distributor has requisitioned three times the former amount per month and which equals six times the monthly requirement of any other jobber of any other class. And, mind you, the list of retail dealers he is supplying is less than seventy-five.

These points may astonish the average talking machine dealer. But there is still a more surprising condition. Out of this vast volume of sales and distribution comes the strange fact that not 10 per cent of the usual run of complaints and servicing trouble has come from this distributor. And why? Because he has avoided the "screw-driver" and "plier" technicalities. Because he has sold his dealers on the idea of selling results, not machinery—because he has touched only upon a language the layman understands—because he has pointed out "quality in tone value"—distance—simplicity—all in all, he has sold them on the idea of the purpose of the set and not what is in back of the panel.

What of To-morrow?

And what of to-morrow? Is radio here to stay? Are we going to repeat the doubts expressed in the beginning of the phonograph, the telephone and the automobile? Is not that same atmosphere prevalent in radio?

The public rules in all things commercial. Public interest keyed up to demand compels manufacture and distribution. Both compel competition and competition takes up the reins and forces improvement in a product and forces desire and demand through the advertising which competition makes necessary. Is it reasonable to believe that the millions and millions of dollars invested in plants, equipment and material and the vast sums now being expended in research are going to be allowed to drop unrewarded? Is it reasonable to believe that the millions of dollars thus far spent in advertising and sales organization are going to pass on to the junk heap of misplaced confidence and lost endeavor. No American who understands our great country's characteristics can honestly express such a doubt.

The to-morrow of radio will be the absolute necessity of radio in every walk of civilized life, in the home, in the business and in the hours of recreation. The to-morrow of radio will be profited on by the men who realize to-day that they must become established in the industry. That's history. And history has never yet failed to repeat itself.

We have seen and felt the YESTERDAY of radio. The TO-DAY is here and carries with it "OPPORTUNITY" to get aboard and ride into TO-MORROW, because the TO-MORROW of radio is the path to the receiving teller's window, while the doubter—the skeptic—the waiter—of yesterday and to-day will spend much of HIS TO-MORROW looking on.

Profusely illustrated, printed in colors on super-calendered stock and bound in stiff covers, the Doehler Die-Casting Co., Brooklyn, N. Entitled "Doehler Die-Castings," this book contains a brief review of the process—the evolution of Do-Di brass castings, engineering and metallurgical data—and a pictorial review of recent accomplishments. Described as "the plants behind the Doehler products," the exceptional facilities of the factories, both in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Toledo, O., are shown. RECORD SETS OF OPERA OVERTURES

General Phonograph Corp. Announces New Sets of Odeon Records in Special Albums of Complete Overtures of Two Operas

The General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, has just announced an album set of Odeon records comprising the complete overtures to the operas "Der Freischütz" and "Oberon," composed by Carl Maria von Weber, internationally famous as one of the founders of the romantic school of music. These complete overtures are played for the Odeon library by the orchestra of the German Opera House, Berlin, under the direction of Eduard Moerike. This same orchestra recorded the series of Odeon records of the "Unfinished Symphony," which was introduced by the General Phonograph Corp. a few months ago as an album set and which has met with phenomenal success.

Each set of the overtures to "Der Freischütz" and "Oberon" consists of three twelve-inch double-faced records, contained in a handsome black leatherette album imprinted in gold and bearing on the inside cover a biography of the composer of the overtures. The complete set retails for $5. The matrices of these records were specially imported from Europe by the General Phonograph Corp., pressed in the Okeh factories and released under the Odeon label. Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., has been congratulated by the trade upon his initiative and progressiveness in sponsoring album sets of records and this method of record merchandising is winning recognition as one of the most important selling plans that have been introduced in the record field for many years.

MEXICO, Mo., October 4.—The stock and fixtures of the Taylor Music Co. were recently purchased by the Walter Sannebeck Music Co. here and their removal to the latter store has just been completed. R. Frisco, the famous xylophonist, is scheduled for three tours on the Keith and Orpheum vaudeville circuits. His act will include the Edison tone-test feature.

Made Director of Sales—Company Planning to Increase Production—New Agencies Opened

CLEVELAND, O., October 5.—The Diaphragm Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Violin Spruce Reproducer, has announced the appointment of H. C. Cooley as director of sales. Mr. Cooley is well known in the local trade, having been formerly associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co. as assistant manager of the Cleveland branch and having also occupied the same position in New Haven, Conn. His previous experience in the phonograph industry will undoubtedly enable him to attain pleasing success in developing the sale of Violin Spruce Reproducers, and it is interesting to note that the Diaphragm Co. has made plans whereby its factory facilities will be increased materially during the coming year. During the past few months dealer agencies for this reproducer have been established throughout the country and an intensive sales campaign has been inaugurated for the Fall and holiday season.

NEW RADIOLA LOUD SPEAKER

The Radio Corp. of America, New York, manufacturer of Radiola products, has just introduced a new Radiola loud speaker. This new product adequately covers a speaking range of 300-2,200 cycles and a musical range of 100-5,000 cycles. The design of the magnetic system, the shape of the horn and the material of which it is made are all such that the voice or music reproduced will be true to tone. No auxiliary battery is needed, for the Radiola loud speaker is merely connected in place of the telephones. A single adjustment by means of a large knurled nut, which can be locked in place, is provided for securing maximum efficiency on different values of signal strength.

"PHONO-VAUDETTE" BOOST SALES

Dealers Using Toy Dancing Figures With Excellent Effect in Window Displays

COVINGTON, KY., October 5.—"Phono-Vaudettes" are, apparently, meeting with considerable favor throughout the trade, for, according to the Commercial Art Shop, of this city, manufacturer of these turn-table toys, repeat orders are being received from dealers everywhere. This novel toy was introduced in the September issue of The World and dealers have been quick to appreciate its value as a sales medium and for use as a window display.

The Commercial Art Shop has received a number of interesting letters from talking machine retailers, stating that through the use of the "Phono-Vaudettes" passers-by have been attracted to window displays, with the result that sales were increased materially. For example, one dealer arranged a talking machine in his window with a turn-table revolving continuously, placing the "Phono-Vaudettes" in position and at night, with the window darkened, the rays from an electric light were directed on the miniature stage with the dancers performing, to the admiration of crowds in front of the window.

The New Columbia is Superior!

Worth Waiting For!

The New Columbia Phonograph was perfected only after five years' painstaking research and experimental work by Columbia musical experts and engineers. Four hundred and ninety-one reproducers alone were made and rejected by our tone experts before the present New Reproducer was approved. But the final result of this exhaustive preparation was the most perfect music-reproducing instrument ever built—a phonograph well worth waiting for.

Festivals and Fairs Interest Public and Help Sales — Cheery News From Jobbers and Dealers

OMAHA, NEB., October 5.—The latter half of September and the early part of October form the high tide of the year in Omaha and the surrounding region, for that is the period when "King Ak" reigns supreme over his kingdom of Quivera. One of the greatest organizations in Nebraska, in fact, in the Middle West, is that of the "Knights of Aksarben" (Nebraska, with the spelling reversed). One of their achievements is the great Aksarben race track. The Fall meet marked the opening of the Aksarben festival, beginning September 11 and continuing until after the first of October. This event brings to Omaha crowds of out-of-town visitors and stimulates trade along all lines. This event and the wonderful pageant which is presented each Fall on the evening preceding the coronation keeps Omaha filled with visitors, not only from the immediate vicinity, but guests from coast to coast, and is naturally a great stimulus to trade along every line. The streets are gayly decorated and shopkeepers vie with each other in preparing the most attractive windows, among which the displays of talking machines are by no means the least.

When you add to these attractions a street fair which is now in progress, and a Pure Food Show which has just been concluded, it is evident that this has been a season for crowds and, in consequence, if not business coming to the door, at least being near enough to the door to be drawn inside.

Among the "live-wire" salesmen who have been going after business and getting it is Phil Haney, of the Mickel Bros. Music Co., Victor wholesaler. Mr. Haney, who is an enthusiastic Victor man, was formerly with the Curtice Co., which was consolidated with the Mickel organization a few months ago. The Victor people, both wholesalers and retailers, are delighted with the way the new double-faced Red Seal records are being received. The comparatively low price and the excellence of the records are putting them over in fine shape.

The Lee-Coit-Andreesen Co., Sonora phonograph and Okeh record jobber, reports business as showing a good increase over that of the preceding month. There has been a strong demand for the Okeh popular records throughout the Summer and it has increased with the homecoming of vacationists. The Rialto Music Shop, 1416 Douglas street, and the Shales Phonograph Co., 1404 Dodge street, report big business in Okeh records.

The branch office of the Cheney Phonograph Co., located in Omaha, through its local retail dealers, the music department of the large Burgess-Nash store, put on an interesting program recently when Prof. Cheney, inventor of the Cheney talking machine, was in this city. The Burgess-Nash Co. arranged a delightful musical program in its auditorium, after which Prof. Cheney lectured on the Cheney organization and its product to a large crowd assembled to hear him.

On the night of the Dempsey-Firpo fight the Burgess-Nash Co. not only gave out fight returns but furnished a free concert in its auditorium. On that evening for the first time it used a combination radio-phonograph built in its own factory. This unique machine not only answers the purpose of a loud speaker in receiving radio, but also plays phonograph records. It comes in the usual phonograph art model case and has no unsightly attachments.

The Orchard-Wilhelm Co., probably the largest and most successful furniture retailer in the States west of Chicago, displays Brunswick and Victor machines in its talking machine department. The store is noted for its beautiful and artistic display rooms and the phonograph department in no wise differs from the rest of the store in this respect. Ed. Schuett, manager of the talking machine department, states that business shows a very substantial increase over last year.

The Schmoller-Mueller Co., one of the largest music houses in Omaha, dealers in Columbia machines and records, has recently remodeled its first floor display rooms, which now present a very attractive appearance. Manager Henry Bushnell, of the talking machine department, reports himself as well pleased with the outlook for Fall and Winter business. This company includes in its sales force Charles F. Kob, a thoroughly trained musician, who is not only a good salesman but is able to put on a program of his own for the store whenever called upon. This firm has recently installed a radio department under the management of L. W. Chansky. They are showing the following models: The Zenith, Moretone, Cutting and Washington and Air Way sets.

Two musical events booked for early Fall are the concerts to be given by Martinelli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and Rosa Ponselle, Victor and Columbia artists respectively, and are expected to increase the sale of these records.

One of the busy concerns is Shultz Bros. Co., Edison jobbers, who report that they have opened many new accounts in their territory, with an increasing demand for Edison phonographs and records.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. reports from its branch office in Omaha increased business not only within the city, but from its out-State representatives. At the various county fairs which have been held during the past month this line has been displayed with good results. R. S. Pribyl is much pleased over the increased Brunswick output, as it will facilitate delivery of orders.

CLEVELAND

Edison Sales Contest Resulted in Sales Boom—The Winners—Sonora Publicity Beat—Dealer Co-operation—News of the Trade

CLEVELAND, OHIO, October 6.—That the so-called dull period during the Summer months is the result of lack of constructive effort has been proved by the accomplishments of close to 100 retailers and their sales staffs who participated in the drive for new business conducted by the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor in the Cleveland zone, which have just been made public by E. S. Hersberger, secretary, who conducted the contest.

This contest was made attractive in that cash prizes were awarded to the six leaders among contestants, and there was also a special cash prize. The contest proved to sales people that they had latent ability they had not used before, and in many instances it brought business to a par with the busiest season of the year, and finally developed a lot of prospects, many of whom were sold at the close of the contest. To equalize the chances the district was classified into three divisions according to population. Like awards were made in each division. The contest was arranged by points, the lower number of points applying on machines that sell more readily, and the higher points to those machines that ordinarily do not move so easily. The extent to which this worked to the benefit of contestants and business as well may be illustrated by the fact that the six prize winners in the three groups sold 218 machines during the contest, a worth-while showing.

Accomplishment of A. B. Sauer

The greatest accomplishment was by A. B. Sauer, of the George A. Clark Co., Lorain, who sold fifty-eight machines and attained the high point record of 500. Mr. Sauer, in the opinion of Phonograph Co. executives, is the type of aggressive salesman who knows his business and knows how to go after it. Of course his work is backed by years of experience. In 1913 he started with the Columbia Graphophone Co. Later he was with the W. F. Frederick Piano Co. and the Poling Piano Co., then outside salesman for the William Taylor Son & Co.'s talking machine department, and later manager of the talking machine department of the McMillan Music Co. In 1918 he joined the Clark organization, and has been developing the business steadily ever since. Commenting on his accomplishment in the Edison drive this year, he said:

"The fact that I made more Edison phonograph sales during the so-called dull months (May through August) in this contest than I did two years ago in a similar contest in the so-called good months (September through December) proves conclusively to me that real salesmanship, consistently and persistently applied, will make every store a winner."

J. F. Hoppe, of C. M. Zitzer, Mansfield, was second to Mr. Sauer in the division for population more than 15,000. Other winners were: Population up to 5,000: C. S. Stilson, S. B. Stilson & Son, Gibsonburg; C. J. Benedict, of his own firm, Utica. H. M. Fashbaugh was third. Population from 5,000 to 15,000: O. D. Zoll, Norwalk Piano Co., Norwalk; H. E. Olin, N. E. Olin & Son, Kent. Miss Olive Laws was third. Dan Thomas was third in the 15,000 and over division. B. T. Lemox, of DeForest & Son, Sharon, Pa., won the grand prize.

A Publicity Scoop

A notable accomplishment in the way of publicity was achieved by J. T. Pringle and J. L. Du Breuil, of the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co., in placing a Sonora machine in the apartment of Miss America (Miss Mary Catherine Campbell, Columbus) at the Hotel Winton, during her appearance in Cleveland at a local theatre. A picture was taken of Miss Campbell, the machine and her dog, and it appeared in a local newspaper later. This story, and an original photograph of the group, were framed, and used in an exhibit of Sonora material that occupies six windows at Buescher Co., and which was arranged by Ralph H. Meade, assistant advertising manager of the Sonora Co. This exhibit will appear later at the Euclid Music

Co., which supplied records for Miss Campbell's use while she had the privilege of using the Sonora machine.

Sonora Executives Helping Dealers

Executives from the Sonora home office, headed by Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and general sales manager, have been calling on all Sonora dealers in the Ohio territory, planning with them how to increase their business and emphasizing the merits of the Sonora instrument. The group includes Frank J. Goodman and E. D. Coots, assistant sales managers; H. J. O'Connor and J. M. Ervin, field sales managers; F. E. Roediger, factory mechanical expert, and Mr. Meade. From the Ohio territory they will go to the Chicago territory, where they will continue their missionary work.

Looking Forward to Big Season

Talk to the contrary notwithstanding, the 1923-1924 season will be the biggest in the history of the talking machine industry in these parts. This is the opinion of leading jobbing factors, based on the manner in which most dealers have anticipated their pre-holiday and later season needs. The product of the Sonora factory is well sold out, and those dealers who have not provided for their machine needs will have difficulty in meeting the demand when the public starts its own drive, in the opinion of J. T. Pringle, general manager of the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. The move by Victor in making Red Seal records double-faced has already had its effect toward stimulating interest in the talking machine itself, according to Howard J. Shartle, general manager, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. Already sales in both records and machines have jumped far ahead of last year. Early requirements have been filled for several weeks now on certain models of machines, according to Edward B. Lyons, general manager, the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, due largely to the renewed interest in machines that the more attractive lines have created. Edison dealers have taken hold so early that they have provided for their needs well toward the end of the year, reports received by E. S. Hersberger, secretary, the Phonograph Co., show.

Dealer Co-operation

Following its program of consistent co-operation with dealers, the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. has been sending W. E. Carter, special representative, and others to the county fairs in the territory, supplying dealers with advertising material, literature and sales helps to close prospects attending the fairs. Meanwhile the national advertising campaign of Sonora is being augmented locally with dealer advertising, in which the local Sonora offices advertise as well.

Carola Co. Continues Expansion

Expansion plans by the Carola Co. continue to be developed by N. I. Schwartz, general manager. Five road representatives have been developing both the retail and jobbing element in the last few weeks, and beginning October 1 they were to be augmented by three more sales operatives. Already close to thirty jobbers have been established, which is something of a departure from the original plan of Carola to confine itself to the retail trade. Daily shipments of Carolas from the enlarged plant of the company are being made. The chief factor in perpetuating interest in the moderate priced machine, in the opinion of Mr. Schwartz, is the new and permanent baked enamel finish it is being produced in and the improvements to the mechanical properties of the machine.

L. Meier & Sons Co. to Celebrate

Plans for its twenty-sixth anniversary celebration are being made by the L. Meier & Sons Co. The festivities will start November 1 and last for twenty-six days, according to Louis Meier, head of the firm. Although a West Side institution, the entire city will be covered in the drive, which will include many novelties.

Columbia Activities

Columbia activities throughout the Cleveland territory are reflected in the amount of new business being done by individual dealers. This is consistently aided by the sales promotion staff under the management of S. S. Larmon, district manager. At Detroit recently a nice stunt was put over by H. C. Schultz, Detroit representative. Cameron McLean, Columbia artist, was a guest of the convention of the Scottish Clans of America. A Columbia machine played McLean records during his stay with the convention. Demand for McLean records exceeded the supply.

At Detroit also a novel Columbia competition has started, between the organizations of M. McCaffery and Summerfield & Hecht, to see which can take in the most new business during a certain period. Last reports were that both were far ahead of what they started out to do.

New Columbia dealers established recently include Karl W. Boock, Cleveland; the Federal Mercantile Stores Co. and A. Friedman, Detroit.

The Brunswick Co-operative Drive

Brunswick dealers elsewhere who have been awaiting the results from the co-operative campaign being conducted from Brunswick headquarters here for dealers in the Buffalo district may gain something from the reports just received by Leslie I. King, phonograph division sales manager for Brunswick in the Cleveland territory. This campaign has been conducted for the last five months. During that time the dealers have been guided in placing their advertising, locally, much after the manner that the Brunswick itself has been doing in national class journals and magazines.

The aim was to acquire 33 per cent of the prospects that responded. The reports now show that 71 per cent of the prospects thus obtained have been sold, more than doubling the quota set. This was accomplished by the direct appeal of Cleveland headquarters to the prospects lined up by the dealer. Each dealer was asked to send in names of thirty prospects each month for three months. These prospects were sent literature and pictures of Brunswick machines. They were told just why they ought to buy the particular machine pictured. This work has been confined largely to the smaller dealers. Applied to the larger interests an even better showing is not unlikely, says Mr. King.

Help Dealers Order New Red Seals

In connection with the change of Red Seal records to double-face by Victor an adequate catalog, alphabetically arranged, has been distributed among the dealers. A numerical catalog will follow at an early date, but meanwhile dealers have much difficulty in placing their orders for records, since they must be ordered by number on the usual numbered order blank. To overcome this difficulty the Eclipse Musical Co. at once prepared a temporary numerical catalog, containing all the information about each record, with the number given first consideration, and dealers can now order quickly and easily until they get their regular catalogs.

H. Fraiberg & Son Robbed

H. Fraiberg & Son, talking machine dealers and jewelers on the South Side, were robbed of $20,000 in jewels and cash, by daylight robbers who entered the store, bound, gagged and trussed Henry and Frank Fraiberg up in a talking machine booth, locked the front door and made a getaway with their loot by the rear. The proprietors were released only when customers noted their plight through the windows and summoned police.

Changes in Sonora District

Rapid development of the Ohio territory by the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. has made for some changes in the district covered from the Cleveland headquarters. Lower Michigan will henceforth be covered by Yahr & Lange, Milwaukee, already the jobbing factor for upper Michigan and Wisconsin. The Cleveland office will continue to cover Ohio and Kentucky.

H. C. Cooley With Diaphragm Co.

Change in organization and plans for developing its distribution are announced by the Diaphragm Co., manufacturer of the violin spruce reproducer. H. C. Cooley, formerly branch manager of the Columbia in Cleveland, has been appointed sales manager. G. H. Vanderslice, who has been sales manager and secretary, will continue in the latter post. The wider distribution of the reproducer, which has unique tonal qualities, will be accomplished through record salesmen of dealers and demonstrations in the homes of the consumers.

Fifth Store Opened by Euclid Co.

Another store to its already large chain has been added by the Euclid Music Co., making this the largest talking machine factor, in number of stores, in this section. The new store, its fifth, is located at 12338 Superior avenue, in a new residential and business section, with J. W. Schwindler in charge.

C. H. Kennedy Introduces Duo Vox

Introduction to the Ohio, Detroit and western Pennsylvania trade of the new Duo Vox machine of the Bush & Lane Co., is being made by C. H. Kennedy, jobbing factor for these districts. Showrooms have been established at H. B. Bruck & Sons Co., 1240 Huron road. Already many new accounts have been added, according to Mr. Kennedy, and keen interest in the reproducing qualities of the instrument, which has the added value of being able to play both lateral and hill-and-dale cut records, without change of the reproducing device, is being shown. At the Cleveland quarters the full line of seven consoles and five uprights is being shown and demonstrated.

Predicated Profits

Those Victor dealers who make the most profit this season are not being satisfied in merely finding buyers.

They are going out and making buyers out of otherwise doubtful prospects.

No man so good, however great

The things he now aspires;

But yet can be out-distanced

THE VOCALION RECORD EXCHANGE

Dealers Authorized to Return 75 Per Cent of Stock of High-class Single-faced Records on a Record-for-record Basis

The Vocalion Red record division of the Aeolian Co. announced, under date of September 17, an extensive exchange plan on single-faced Vocalion Red records, under the terms of which dealers were authorized to exchange through their distributors 75 per cent of their present stocks on hand of single-faced records of the 30,000, 52,000 and 55,000 series for new records on a record-for-record, class-for-class basis, the dealer to pay the wholesaler the difference between the cost to him of the records returned and the ones ordered in their places.

The new double-faced couplings and the old single-faced records will both be listed in the new complete Vocalion record catalog now in preparation and which will be issued shortly. The exchange follows a recent announcement by the Aeolian Co. of the completion of arrangements for the issuance of all high-class records in double-faced form and is designed to enable the dealer to clean up his stock and put it in the best possible shape for Fall business. October 15 was the final date set for the return of records to distributors under the exchange plan.

In completing arrangements for the double-facings of high-class records a readjustment of list prices was made on single-faced records, the 30,000 series being offered at $1 and the 52,000 and 55,000 series at $1.50.

OPERA TIE-UP HELPS RECORD SALES

WACO, TEX., October 5.—R. T. Dennis & Co., Inc., Edison dealers of this city, are featuring Edison operatic records in a most successful manner in connection with the appearance here of the San Carlos Opera Company at Texas Cotton Palace. Although advertising announcing the sale of tickets for the event, which will be held from October 20 to November 4, has just started the tie-up of R. T. Dennis & Co., Inc., has already resulted in a noticeable stimulation in the demand for opera records.

FALL SALES DRIVE ON "LITTLE TOT"

Regal Record Co. Rushed to Meet Influx of Orders—Fall Sales Campaign Just Launched to Be Featured by Extensive Publicity

The Regal Record Co., Inc., manufacturer of the "Little Tot Nursery Tunes," has received orders in such volume as to require its pressing Rotogravure Sign for Dealers' Windows plant to work overtime. Originally this product was introduced in Eastern territory and the movement of the goods was quite heavy. Its introduction in the Middle and Far West has met with the same response.

H. G. Neu, sales manager of the company, recently made a tour through Middle West territory and booked some large orders for immediate delivery and closed arrangements whereby considerable stocks are to be shipped between now and the holiday season. The other traveling representatives of the company also are finding an active sale for these children's records.

The Regal Record Co., Inc., has inaugurated a Fall sales drive which is to continue in activity until the close of the holiday season. Publicity in numerous channels is included in this exploitation program. Particular attention is given to dealer hook-ups and special consumer literature with dealers' imprints is one of the features of this publicity. A beautiful rotogravure sign for dealers' windows or for counter use has been forwarded to "Little Tot" dealers. This is most attractive and where displayed has been the means of creating sales.

The Fay-Buchanan Music Co., taking machine dealer, is now in new quarters at 1236 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo.

NEWS OF COLUMBIA ACTIVITIES

Several New Stores and Changes Among the Dealers—What Company Officials Are Doing

The Alnutt Music Co., Savannah, Ga., recently became a Columbia agency and a Fall drive on this line is being planned. The deal was closed by the Atlanta branch of the Columbia Co.

H. C. Fowler, formerly manager of the Columbia department of the W. L. Hall Furniture Co., is now manager of the music department of the Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., Asheville, N. C., which has one of the most modern Columbia departments in the South.

O. F. Benz, record sales manager of the Columbia Co., has just completed a tour of the principal cities of the South, where he found an excellent Fall outlook.

George Schafer, who recently opened a new Columbia shop in Batavia, N. Y., created a strong demand for the record "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake" through the medium of an unusually attractive window display.

A Columbia department has been opened by the Hamp-Williams Hardware Co., Hot Springs, Ark. A large stock of instruments and records has been ordered and the concern will soon launch an advertising and canvassing drive.

Robert Porter, field sales manager of the Columbia Co., returned recently from a successful Western trip.

B. W. Jennings, branch service manager of the company, has returned to the New York headquarters from a trip to Cleveland, O., where he found conditions good.

Fred Mann, manager of the Boston branch, was a visitor to the New York headquarters the last week in September.

E. C. RAUTH ON VACATION IN EAST

Well-known Victor Wholesaler Enjoys Fortnight at Atlantic City—Calls on Trade Friends

E. C. Rauth, of the Koerber-Brenner Co., St. Louis, Victor wholesaler, with Mrs. Rauth, has been spending his annual vacation at Atlantic City, making his headquarters at the Chalfonte, from which point he has made short trips to visit the Victor factory and his friends among the jobbers in New York and Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Rauth motored East late in September and after a fortnight or so at the shore drove back over the northern route through the Berkshires, the Mohawk Valley and along the lake shore.

FORMAL OPENING IN TOLEDO

Large Crowd Attends Opening of Remodeled Quarters of J. W. Greene Co.—Elaborate Concerts and Demonstrations a Feature

TOLEDO, O., October 6.—The formal opening of the remodeled music store of the J. W. Greene Co., Jefferson avenue and Ontario street, was held recently and a special musical program was arranged in celebration of the occasion. The principal attraction was Hans Barth, the celebrated pianist, who gave recitals both afternoon and evening. In addition, there was orchestra music and a demonstration of all kinds of musical instruments. The new store is now equipped with a recital hall on the third floor, which will be at the disposal of any Toledo artists who wish to give concerts.

LOPEZ "PUTS OVER" A NEW ONE

A new idea in orchestra circles was introduced recently at the Hotel Pennsylvania when Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, exclusive Okeh artists, used three pianos in the presentation of their entertainment. A special piano of white and gold was made for Mr. Lopez, to be used exclusively by this popular orchestra leader. Lopez and His Orchestra have already received booking dates for the Palace Theatre in New York, the most famous vaudeville house in America, and it is planned to give the organization a booking of eight weeks at this theatre, presenting a new program each week. The orchestra has been headlining in the Keith houses in New York and vicinity for the past few months, terminating its engagement within the next few weeks in order to appear regularly at the Hotel Pennsylvania Grill.

M. MAX HOME FROM EUROPEAN TRIP

M. Max, in charge of the music and talking machine interests of Gimbel Bros., with headquarters at the New York store, is again actively at work, following a combined business and pleasure trip with Mrs. Max to England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and Italy, where he visited the Gimbel foreign offices and closed deals for a number of foreign musical specialties. Mr. Max is a student of business and while abroad he made a study of European methods, which, he stated, are inferior to those practiced by American music merchants.

Complete With Individual Album

So well has the album set of the complete recordings of Schubert's "Symphony in B Minor" been received, we have prepared a new album set along similar lines, featuring the complete overtures to the operas Der Freischütz and Oberon.

These splendid compositions are undoubtedly the most brilliant parts of the supreme efforts of Carl Maria von Weber, the celebrated founder of the romantic school of music. They vividly reveal the true melodic originality, sustained dramatic vigor, and tender lyrical charm that have brought immortal fame to the composer.

The complete Overtures are played by the same famous orchestra whose splendid symphonic effects are contributing so largely to the phenomenal sales of "The Unfinished Symphony" album set. The Orchestra of The German Opera House, Berlin, under the masterful direction of Eduard Moerike, is recognized as one of the finest orchestras of its kind in the world.

The matrices of these unusual records were specially imported by us from Europe, pressed in the Okeh factories and released under the ODEON label. They are sold in sets only. Each set consists of three 12-inch, double-face records contained in a handsome black leatherette album imprinted in gold and bearing on the inside cover a biography of the composer of the Overtures. The complete set retails for five dollars.

Like "The Unfinished Symphony" album set, this opportunity to possess the complete Overtures to Der Freischütz and Oberon is one that will be quickly appreciated and taken advantage of by every true music lover in the country. ODEON RECORDS are

Carl Maria von Weber

The composer of Der Freischütz and Oberon, and world-famous as the founder of the romantic school of music.

At the age of thirty-one, Weber began the composition of Der Freischütz. Three years later, upon its completion, it met with tremendous success in Berlin. Weber became a national hero.

Oberon was produced in London in 1826. Although the work of a man dying by inches from consumption, Oberon bears not the slightest traces of mental exhaustion. Upon its initial presentation, Weber received one of the greatest ovations of his career. Death came to Weber eight weeks after the production of Oberon. He was buried in London, but later his body was taken to Dresden, where a statue to his memory was unveiled in 1860.

Although many noted composers have succeeded him, Weber's fame as a dramatic composer still shines undimmed.

Preparation is the Keynote to Success in Business

The Holiday Season is rapidly approaching and general conditions indicate that every Victor Dealer should enjoy a large volume of business. Only those, however, that have planned ahead can expect to reap the harvest.

We are ready to accept the responsibility of serving Victor Dealers in our territory and urge the immediate placing of orders with us for your anticipated needs for the balance of this year. You, of course, can revise these orders from time to time in accordance with your current needs.

in all the Philadelphia papers. In conjunction with this direct advertising the John Wanamaker department store also is featuring a regular Brunswick advertisement, apart from its usual full-page presentation. Manager Jester has just returned from a trip to Bethlehem, Allentown, Easton and other Pennsylvania points where he found a favorable Fall outlook, with orders presaging brisk business, and he is a little concerned that the demand may exceed the stock available for prompt shipment. The firm feels very much gratified over the exceptionally large number of applications for agencies on file, but decision is being made slowly because the company wants to be assured it can meet all the requirements for stock of those it may select as retail distributors. R. O. Danforte, formerly manager of the Fair Store, of Chicago, has joined the sales forces and is now taking care of the coal region section.

The Vassallo Music Shop, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., has taken over the distribution of the Brunswick for that town and is carrying on a campaign among the students at Bryn Mawr College.

An Eye-arresting Window Display

Catching the spirit of the times, with zest added by snappy October days, the Starr & Moss Co., 3639 Germantown avenue, is making a very appealing display of its talking machines and records under the direction of Harry S. Somers, a member of the firm, who is in charge of the phonograph department. The firm carries the Edison, Brunswick and Sonora lines, and these are shown under a trellis festooned with Autumn leaves, and illuminated at night by the golden glow from a flood light, giving all the appearance and atmosphere of Autumn in the woods. Meanwhile, looking ahead, the sales organization is concentrating on holiday prospects. Very active in this cause is Elmer T. Walls, who, for the last three years, has been outside representative of the company.

Important Suggestions From Weymann

H. W. Weymann, wholesale manager of H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, this city, reports that dealers are entirely optimistic and enthusiastic over the prospects for the Fall season. Mr. Weymann called attention to the scarcity of some models and the available supply of some others and urged that the retailer center his activities on such models as were available, calling attention to the fallacy of featuring in either window or newspaper publicity such models as were hard to obtain.

Takes on the Brilliantone Needle

The Guarantee Talking Machine Supply Co. has passed all records thus far this year in volume of sales. This company has built up good business in springs and other parts and has lately added Brilliantone needles to the lines which it distributes.

Many Visitors to Buehn Co.

The headquarters of the Louis Buehn Co., this city, were the mecca for many out-of-town visitors recently. Among those who called were T. H. Smith, manager of F. A. Winter & Son, Tyrone, Pa.; W. P. Roach, manager of the wholesale department of Lyon & Healy, Victor distributors, Chicago; S. W. Christian, Victor dealer, of Bangor, Pa., and S. S. Frank, of the Scranton Talking Machine Co., Victor retailer, of Scranton, Pa. An optimistic viewpoint of the coming Fall season is to be found in the number of retailers improving their warerooms for the development of increased business. The Louis Buehn Co. reports that the following dealers have made recent alterations in their warerooms: Rihl Bros., M. M. Johnson and Joseph Krygier, all of Philadelphia; Frank Tolin, of Chester, Pa., and Nathan Worth, of Riverside, N. J.

Witlin M. I. Co.'s Business Drive

Exceptionally large orders are reported by the Witlin Musical Instrument Co. for its Starr phonographs and Gennett records. The increased business in the direct Philadelphia district is due to the advertising campaign in the Sunday papers, where a large space is being devoted to publicity on Gennett records. Enough orders have been procured to keep up shipments until the first of the year for the Starr Phonographs made at the Richmond, Va., factory of the Starr Piano Co. The Washington and Baltimore business is running way ahead of any year of the firm's business history of four years' standing. Several carloads are being shipped to two of the leading Washington dealers. Additional salesmen will be added to the force, and two already have been secured for the Washington and Baltimore territory, with J. A. Wascow, formerly salesman with Droop & Son, of Baltimore, looking after the District of Columbia sales, and D. D. Samelson taking care of the Monumental City and surrounding territory for the Gennett records. Plans are now being developed by Ben Witlin, head of the firm, for the expansion of phonograph and record business. New dealers will be appointed in Pennsylvania, south Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia. The salesmen in Baltimore and Washington have been successful in opening up many new connections, and other salesmen will carry on campaigns in the States not yet canvassed.

George A. Platen, of the sales force of the Talking Machine Co., has just returned from the coal regions after a month's trip. He found the business outlook very encouraging.

Extensive advertising on the Edison and Brunswick machines is resulting in increased business for the phonograph department of the Ludwig Piano Co., 1103 Chestnut street.

Fine Sonora Demand

Demand for the Barcarolle model of the Sonora is so great that the Sonora Co., of Philadelphia, is experiencing difficulty in promptly filling orders. Manager S. S. White, who has just returned from a trip over the entire territory during the month, also found a rush of business, and is more concerned over filling orders than securing them.

Big Columbia Ad Drive

Following out its policy of national advertising, the Columbia Co.'s Philadelphia branch is running a full-page rotogravure Sunday advertisement for the entire month in the Philadelphia Ledger, and it is also featuring daily advertisements in all the Philadelphia papers and the Saturday Evening Post. This local advertising supplements the 1,373,708,000 issues carrying advertisements which are to appear in the national campaign conducted through newspapers and magazines. There are also being featured advertisements in twenty-four foreign languages, in foreign newspapers and in publications reaching the colored population for special colored records.

Dealers Preparing Tone-test Tie-ups

Edison dealers in the territory covered by the Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia distributor, are busily engaged these days in anticipation of their coming tone-test recitals during the latter part of October and the fore part of November.

The insistent demand for tone-test engagements this season made it necessary for the distributor to contract for two separate companies to tour the territories. Beginning October 22, Elizabeth Spencer, the popular concert soprano, accompanied by Lucille Collette, violinist, and Harold Lyman, flutist, will spend two weeks in the territory and will appear in ten separate recitals in as many different cities.

By special arrangement and as the result of numerous requests the Girard Phonograph Co.

has announced a return engagement of Marie Morrissey, soprano, accompanied by Jacques Glockner, 'cellist, and Earle Beattie, pianist. Miss Morrissey's appearances last Fall won for her considerable popularity among the dealers, with the result that the demands for a re-engagement this year have been far in excess of the actual number of bookings permitted by her limited stay.

Very Effective Dealer Service

An original form of service has been evolved by the Penn Phonograph Co., of this city, Victor wholesaler. From the reports gathered from the various Penn salesmen there is a strong indication that dealers will quite generally mail out each week the supplements for the weekly releases of the Victor records. It is the plan of the company to lessen the work of the dealer in this respect by assuming the labor of addressing these envelopes for the dealers at no cost whatsoever for the work. The plan provides for the furnishing of a good grade envelope, standard supplement size with un-gummed flap, at a low cost, and to address the envelopes by using an Addressograph. The dealer pays for the stencil at cost. A four weeks' supply of envelopes will be shipped at one time. It is guaranteed that the names contained in the list will be carefully guarded. It is expected that many dealers will take advantage of this service and although it is entirely without profit, the Penn Co. is making extensive plans to take care of this increased work.

G. R. C. Adds Junior Operetta Records

Walter L. Eckhardt, of the General Radio Corp., is featuring the Okeh records and Strand phonographs, and has taken on the distribution of the Junior Operetta records for juveniles, the first of these being a complete operetta, "Little Red Riding Hood." A series of these operettas will be issued by the Vulcan Record Corp., of New York, and if the sales of the first of the series, "Little Red Riding Hood," are a criterion they will go over big. Large orders are being placed for holiday stocks of these records, which, by their novelty and decided merit, have deservedly won a very high place in the esteem of the purchasing public.

Victor Moore Resigns

Victor Moore, for the past six years in charge of the record department of the Penn Phonograph Co., has resigned.

Improve Estey Department

The talking machine department of the Estey Piano Co., Seventeenth and Walnut streets, has been improved and redecorated. The department is on the main floor and now is one of the most attractive in the city. Mrs. M. S. Davidson, Josiah Bacon and J. Roeger have been added to the sales organization.

New Edison Plan of Sample Records

Announcement has just been made by the Girard Phonograph Co. that the new plan of distributing sample records to dealers, originated at the instance of Thomas A. Edison, will be inaugurated and in full swing by October 15.

Under the new plan the Edison dealers throughout the Philadelphia territory have been divided into clubs of six each, according to their geographical locations. Immediately newly released records come off the presses at the Edison laboratories they are dispatched simultaneously to dealer number one in each of the clubs, who hears them and passes them along to the next dealer, and so on.

The new plan facilitates the distribution of samples and provides each dealer with the opportunity of hearing the very latest recordings even before they have been manufactured in quantities sufficient for general distribution.

Mr. Edison has chosen the Philadelphia territory in which to determine if the plan is workable and to test its adaptability to other territories. The Girard Phonograph Co. has the assurance of practically 100 per cent co-operation among the dealers in its territory, most of whom are anticipating the plan with considerable enthusiasm.

Philadelphia Badge Co. Increases Lines

The Philadelphia Badge Co., producer of record cleaners and combination cleaners and needle containers, reports that the increased demands for the Fall season have already been felt. The production of novelties constitutes a goodly proportion of the sales of this company and several new items of interest to the trade are now in the course of preparation.

To Market New Type of Instruments

The Solotone Manufacturing Co. plans to replace all the former designs by entirely new creations. These will be announced by President F. H. Alaman during the coming month.

Expanding Business With Cheney Sales Corp.

The Cheney Sales Corp., distributor of the Cheney phonograph, is now well established in its new location in the Jefferson Building, on Chestnut street above Tenth street. The increased facilities made available were badly needed, as the sales of this company have far exceeded any year in the history of the organization. The New York and Philadelphia offices both are securing substantial business and the New England office, the newest of the three, has passed all expectations in sales volume.

Everybody Co.'s New Catalog Under Way

Business at the headquarters of Everybody's Talking Machine Co., this city, continues to be active and in good volume. Contemplated changes increasing the facilities of the organization at the headquarters have been made and everything is set for a record Fall season. The new catalog is well under way and will probably be ready at the time of our going to press.

NEW POWER UNIT AND LOOP AERIAL

General Radio Corp. Introduces Two Contributions to the Advancement of Radio

PHILADELPHIA, PA., October 1.—The General Radio Corp., of this city, well-known radio distributor and manufacturer of the Music Master horn and Geraco parts, has again contributed to the advancement of radio through the placing on the market of two new products, a new power unit and a new loop aerial.

The new power unit is a triple duty amplifier which has been named the Music Master power unit. It is compact and handsomely finished to form a base, if desired, for the Music Master radio reproducer made by the same company. The Music Master power unit has three uses; first, as a one-stage amplifier in connection with any detector, except the crystal; second, as a two-stage amplifier with any detector or in connection with a receiving set that already has one stage of amplification; third, it can be used with the ordinary two-stage amplification, increasing signal strength to an exceptionally loud volume. This unit is reputed to be remarkably free from distortion and extremely simple in operation, having only one main control and a switch. It can be made selective by its switch without changing the plug. Its "A" battery is mounted inside. The "B" battery used on the radio set may be used for this unit. No field current is required. It plugs into any set with the cord in place of head phones.

The new Geraco loop aerial takes the place of the ordinary antenna and ground connection and is built to receive satisfactorily present popular broadcasting wave lengths. It measures twenty inches over all and is easily handled. It is claimed that it is the only loop equipped with a dial. This dial records accurately the direction of the station being brought in for future reference. The Geraco loop aerial is designed for use with any ordinary or regenerative set for local programs and will even work with a crystal set if near the broadcasting station. It is claimed that excellent results have been obtained with radio frequency outfits, in one instance a station 2,000 miles away. This loop aerial is furnished in two types at present; (1) with base, direction dial and vernier condenser; (2) with base and direction dial.

Radio Corp. of America Adds Handsome Instrument to Line—Adaptable to Outdoor, Indoor or Loop Antenna

The Radio Corp. of America, manufacturer of Radiola products, has just announced the Radiola VII, which is adaptable to outdoor, indoor or loop antenna and may be shifted from an antenna to a loop by simply turning a knob on the front of the panel. The Radiola VII provides two stages of radio frequency amplification, detector and two stages of audio frequency amplification. Special radio frequency transformers are provided whereby the entire broadcasting wave length schedule now in effect in the United States (ranging from 220-550 meters) may be covered. In addition the Radiola VII is designed for long distance reception, as well as selectivity and efficiency in amplification. Under favorable conditions reception has been obtained at 2,000 miles.

In appearance the Radiola VII is most attractive, as all of the batteries are self-contained. It is dry-cell operated, requiring no storage batteries or charging equipment, and is furnished in a polished mahogany case with Bakelite panel. The Radiola VII, including the type FH loud speaker and with batteries and tubes complete, is listed at $290.

International Federation of Commercial Travelers' Associations Seeks to Intervene in Case Now Before the Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 8.—The International Federation of Commercial Travelers' Associations, representing nearly three-quarters of a million traveling men, has asked the United States Supreme Court for permission to intervene in the case brought by the Interstate Commerce Commission against some fifty railroads to enforce its order providing for the sale of non-transferable, interchangeable scrip coupon tickets.

The motion filed by the Federation asserts that it is of vital importance to American industry as a whole that the tickets should be issued and that, as the traveling men it represents are important users of railroad facilities, they should be represented in the case. The Interstate Commerce Commission issued its orders early in the year, but was unable to put them into effect as a result of an injunction issued by the Federal District Court of Massachusetts on petition by the railroads. The Interstate Commerce Commission immediately carried the case to the Supreme Court, and an effort will be made to have it heard and decided during the coming Fall term.

INCREASE IN RECORD ORDERS

Weekly Victor Record Release Enjoys the Favor of the Trade and Public

David B. Roche, traveling representative of Collings & Co., Newark, N. J., is enthusiastic over the response from dealers on the new weekly record releases issued by the Victor Co. He states that while for the first few weeks the dealers ordered with great care they are now becoming used to the new situation, with the result that the orders are in larger volume. This also demonstrates that the public is receiving the new releases with favor.

Business throughout New Jersey and north-eastern Pennsylvania, the territory covered by Collings & Co., is quite active. Orders for machines particularly are on the increase.

JACKSON SHOP INCORPORATED

ROCKFORD, ILL., October 4.—The Jackson Talking Machine Shop, 114 West State street, this city, was recently incorporated for $25,000 to deal in talking machines, records and other musical instruments. Incorporators are Ernest H. Jackson, Perry F. Jackson and Paul Stich. No changes are contemplated in the business policies of the concern.

Forbes Magazine made a very good point in a recent issue when it said: To win over a customer is more useful than putting over a sale.

*Excellent Prices for Big Crops
Reflected in General Business Prosperity—News of the Trade*

OGDEN, UTAH., October 6.—Harvesting of bumper field and orchard crops has left the farmer in a pleasant mood on the eve of gathering the sugar beet crop, which, though only a normal production is anticipated, will mean a distribution of approximately $12,000,000 in this district to farmers of Utah and Idaho.

This always stimulates business, and talking machine dealers will figure in the general benefits. Already salesmen are in the field and they report excellent returns. It is generally reported that the farmers are making larger initial payments and heavier monthly installments on their purchases.

This new business, together with the sales from the removal sale of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., Victor and Edison dealer, has almost depleted the company's stock of talking machines and rush orders have been placed for more instruments.

Double a normal month's turnover was accomplished by Glen Bros.-Roberts, according to Thomas J. Holland, sales manager of the company, during the first fifteen days of the firm's removal sale which is now going on.

The Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. expects to move into its new three-story home at 2546 Washington avenue by October 15, or soon after. There will be ten phonograph booths on the main floor, in addition to the display cases for small goods and an Ampico and player roll demonstration department. To the rear will be the shop and varnish department. The third floor will have a concert hall, capable of seating 500, and a stage, where talking machine concerts will be given. In the large display windows there will be a twelve-foot turntable, large enough to accommodate grand pianos or the large console type talking machines.

Marcellus Smith, of the company, has just returned from a trip into the Nevada territory, where he reported business exceedingly bright. Dan Brian, who went into the Idaho and Wyoming territory for a two weeks' trip, is finding business so good that his stay has lengthened to more than a month.

The Jones Phonograph Shop, Brunswick and Sonora dealer, has been redecorated for the Fall trade.

C. E. Armstrong, Pathé and Edison dealer, tells of a brisk Fall business. The Williams Music Co., handling the Steger and Pathé, reports the same satisfactory condition.

The Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., district Edison distributor, reports an impetus in the Utah and Idaho territory, with prospects of an excellent business this month, due to the general stimulation of business by the improved con-

MARKELS SCORES AT MONTMARTRE

Michael Markels, who with his orchestra spent the Summer at Newport playing for the dances and receptions given by the society people of that resort, scored a tremendous success at his recent appearance at the opening of the Montmartre, one of New York's smart supper clubs. There was a great gathering of society people, who had assembled to do homage to their favorite, among the patronesses being such well-known society figures as Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mrs. Wm. G. Rockefeller. For some time the general public has been privileged to hear Markels' Orchestra through the medium of Okeh records, for which he records exclusively. Some of the most recent Markels records are "Carolina Mammy," "Love Tales," "Dreamy Melody" and "Foolish Child."

Continuation of Industrial Prosperity Increases Optimism in the Trade—Arranges Series of Tone Tests—Month's News Budget

Parker Willis, formerly a traveling representative of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in the Buffalo territory, but more recently connected with the repair department, has spent the last three weeks in the Pittsburgh territory, specializing on motor troubles and giving the Victor dealers first-hand information on this subject. Two meetings were held in the auditorium of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, attended by the repairmen and salesmen of many nearby Victor dealers. Mr. Willis discussed motor repairs, particularly electric motor repairs, and he also discussed the increasing popularity of the electric motor.

Those attending the meeting in the Standard auditorium included: Spear & Co., G. S. Donagy, John Harrison; S. Hamilton Co., J. N. Zweidinger, Mr. Schobe; S. Hamilton Co., East Liberty, Pa., Miss Ritchey; S. Hamilton Co., Wilkinsburg, Pa., Miss McLean; Beechview Pharmacy, M. F. Wilson; Boggs & Buhl, H. W. Lang, Henry Wood; Rosenbaum Co., C. R. Parsons, W. Business Houses Change Hands

D. O. Morgan, druggist and Victor dealer, of Crafton, Pa., recently sold his business to A. L. Chapman, Jr.

H. P. Griffith, of State College, Pa., who for some time has been in failing health, has sold his music shop to Charles F. Morrill, who will hereafter conduct the business under the name of "The Music Shop." He is making extensive improvements in the store preparatory to an aggressive Fall and holiday sales campaign.

Formal Opening of Fine New Store

Some time ago E. E. Schellhase, music merchant and Victor dealer, of Waynesburg, consolidated his business with that of Long & Co., home furnishers, of Uniontown, Pa. A new building was constructed and the formal opening was held recently. Victor jobbers of Pittsburgh and other business friends were present.

The new establishment is, without exception, the finest retail building in town and probably one of the finest in any town of 10,000 population or less in the country. The building is approximately seventy-five feet front by 200 feet deep, of stone and brick construction, three stories and basement. The entire first floor is given up to an unusually fine display of home furnishing, with the Victrola department occupying a large portion of the front and right side of the store. Among the representatives of the Victor jobbers present were Wallace Russell, R. J. Coleman, of the Standard Talking Machine Co.; Boyd Kinch, of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., and W. A. Fritz, of the C. C. Mellor Co., all of this city.

C. H. Yahrting, president of the Yahrting-Rayner Piano Co., Youngstown, O., and Gus Hellman, manager of the Victrola department, were recent visitors to Pittsburgh.

Cooper Bros., of New Kensington, Pa., recently installed a Victor record window of the popular Victor record "Annabelle," which sold over 750 records of this selection during the two weeks the window was in use.

Geo. W. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., is taking a well-earned two weeks' vacation. Miss Friess, his assistant, is in charge during his absence.

Jobbers and Dealers Campaigning for Business — Rural Districts in Prosperous State—Other News

DALLAS, TEX., October 5.—Unusual activity in the talking machine trade in Texas and Oklahoma is reported by practically all dealers having headquarters in Dallas. Better crops than had been expected, with good prices for cotton and other farm products, have brought about a feeling of prosperity in the rural districts and small towns, and it follows that when the rural population and the people in the small towns feel prosperous the city folk soon see the difference in their daily balance sheets as business begins to pick up.

Talking machine companies with district offices in Dallas are just now staging campaigns to put on more dealers and increase sales in their territory, and in this unusual success is reported.

The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, 2025 Jackson street, is in the midst of a drive which will cover its entire territory of Texas and Oklahoma, with the exception of a few counties; a large part of New Mexico and part of Arkansas. Intensive salesmanship methods are being followed in this territory, which has been thoroughly circularized in advance, and an effort is being made to place an Edison dealer in every town of 1,000 population or over, according to F. F. Dawson, sales-manager of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., who is directing the field force which is now covering this territory.

In preparation for this drive, Mr. Dawson has just completed what is declared to be the first and most complete analytical survey of the territory. This survey shows that the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. is distributor for 289 counties in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arkansas. This territory has a population of 5,635,844. There are 477 cities and towns of 1,000 population or more, with a total population of 2,183,404. This leaves a rural population of 3,452,440 in the entire district.

The survey made by Mr. Dawson goes farther and lists the towns in which there is an Edison dealer, and the towns where there is no dealer. Towns where the Edison dealer is regarded as wide-awake and the towns where it might be desirable to change dealers are also listed. With this information thoroughly digested, Mr. Dawson set to work to increase Edison sales in his territory.

"A survey such as this is needed in order that a sales manager may direct his field force intelligently," Mr. Dawson says, "for the same sales methods employed in the city will not bring results in the small towns and rural communities. This survey shows that three-fifths of our population is in the rural districts, and our sales methods must be designed to reach these people if we ever expect to sell our goods to anything like even one-half saturation."

The campaign put on by the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. is bringing results, Mr. Dawson says, and he reports the following new Edison dealers during the last two weeks: Canady Drug Co., Rockwall, Tex.; Palace Pharmacy, Teague, Tex.; Dollar Furniture Co., Chandler, Okla.; G. W. Waldrop & Co., Abilene, Tex.; Bosatko Bros., Uvalde, Tex.

Charles Kipp, formerly Edison jobber at Indianapolis, Ind., was in Dallas last week visiting friends and looking around before he enters business again.

C. S. Holderness, of the Phonograph Co., Edison dealer in Greenville, Tex., visited Dallas offices last week and placed orders for Fall stock. L. H. Walter, of the Walter Piano Co., Hillsboro, Tex., also was a visitor to the Texas-Oklahoma Co.

A. F. Beyer, Edison dealer in San Antonio, Tex., has gone to New York on a combined pleasure and business trip. He will visit the Edison factory before returning.

The Columbia Graphophone Co., 316 North Preston street, is also making a drive throughout its territory, placing many new dealers and taking orders for the Fall trade, which retailers everywhere believe will be unusually heavy. Fred R. Erisman, general manager of the Dallas branch, reports a feeling of optimism throughout the Southwest, which is being reflected in heavy orders and in this the Columbia machines are receiving due consideration.

In the retail trade in Dallas, Sanger Bros., the Edison Shop, the D. L. Whittle Music Co., Bush & Gerts, Will N. Watkin Co., W. A. Green & Co. and other music houses are pushing sales through special drives.

All music shops and retailers of musical instruments and talking machines took part in the fifth annual Music Day activities in Dallas. Display windows for several days prior to this event, which held sway throughout the day of September 29, had music as their central idea. All the luncheon clubs, radio programs and other activities of the city intensified the idea of music. Special sales of musical instruments and records were arranged in all the music shops and retail stores. Unusually heavy sales are reported as a result.

The new Victor and Columbia console models have met with instant favor throughout Texas, and dealers have difficulty in meeting the demand.

A. H. Curry, vice-president and manager of the phonograph division of the Edison Phonograph Co., East Orange, N. J., has returned to Dallas, his former home, and he will devote his entire time to his official duties as president of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. and other local business ventures. Mr. Curry was called to the home office of the Edison Co. to accomplish some special merchandising improvements proposed in the central organization. He has completed this work and has returned to his home in Dallas.

MILWAUKEE

Business Continues Active—Possible Shortage of Machines Is More Evident—Sonora Distributor Expands—News of the Month

MILWAUKEE, Wis., October 8.—It is becoming more strongly evident every day that there is going to be a serious shortage of talking machines by the time Christmas and New Year roll around; in fact, there is a shortage already and it is growing more serious as dealers who have failed to exercise due caution in the matter of anticipating their requirements for the holiday season are coming to their wholesalers and jobbers for merchandise for quick as well as later delivery.

Current demand at retail is reported active, as early Fall usually goes. Jobbers, likewise, are busy and are finding retailers responding more alertly to their solicitation for business than usually is the case. The big selling season is still a month to six weeks away and things are moving faster as the time approaches for final gift buying.

Jobbers say that, while dealers apparently are duly impressed with the actualities of a shortage of merchandise, the buying public has not yet taken this talk seriously and is in no particular hurry to place orders for holiday delivery. Nevertheless, sales are of good proportions. The call for records has picked up appreciably and dealers are pushing these with growing vigor, realizing the constantly increasing importance of the record department to the general profits accruing from store operations.

Victor Shortage Imminent

"Fall and holiday business is going to be big, if we can only get enough instruments," said Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber. "Back orders continue to grow and the factory is not able to give any material relief because it is working night and day without stopping the flood of demand. The situation is worse in regard to the console style than with the upright models, which is bad enough."

Larger Sonora Field for Yahr & Lange

One of the most important news developments in the local wholesale trade during the past month was the announcement that the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., New York, has awarded the lower Michigan territory to the Yahr & Lange musical merchandise division, heretofore exclusive distributor in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. This addition to its territory, considered one of the most fertile markets in the country, is accepted as recognition of the power and influence of the Yahr-Lange organization, already one of the principal outlets the Sonora Co. possesses.

Enlargement of the territory came shortly after Fred T. Yahr, president and general manager of the company, announced that he had succeeded in acquiring the services of Irving S. Leon as sales manager. Mr. Leon is a veteran Columbia man and has been covering northern Illinois territory for a number of years. In less than three months he has demonstrated splendid capabilities, which increased the Sonora Co.'s confidence in the ability of Yahr & Lange to handle lower Michigan in the same effective manner.

Manager Leon has secured the services of R. H. Walley as representative in lower Michigan, with headquarters in Detroit. Mr. Walley has been with Columbia over ten years and was for five years wholesale representative of the Chicago branch in Milwaukee and eastern Wisconsin territory. For the present no branch store will be maintained in lower Michigan, as all shipments to dealers in that territory can easily and speedily be made direct from the Sonora factory, located at Saginaw, Mich.

Discussing general business conditions, Manager Leon is enthusiastic over current trade and the promising outlet for the holidays, commenting particularly upon the fact that the supply of merchandise will be very much inadequate to handle all orders. The Yahr & Lange organization also is distributor of the Okeh and Odeon records, which are making remarkable strides in building up volume and becoming increasingly popular with owners of all makes of talking machines.

The newest Sonora style, the Argyle console, has struck a most popular chord with Yahr-Lange dealers. At the first showing of the sample instrument dealers placed orders which absorbed the first carload shipment before it arrived.

Brunswick Demand Exceeds Supply

The local Brunswick branch is struggling against odds in filling its orders from dealers in this territory. Despite the material increase in the manufacturing capacity of the Brunswick Co. at Muskegon, Mich., output has not reached an equality with demand and, as a result, the local branch, like others, is entering the active Fall and holiday season behind on orders. P. H. McCulloch, manager of talking machine sales at the Milwaukee house, says that on some Brunswick styles it is impossible to guarantee more than a percentage of those wanted by dealers, but every effort is being made to satisfy the needs of those dealers who looked forward to the condition and had their orders in early.

The Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., one of the leading Brunswick dealers, has effected a large sales volume in the York, a popular-priced Brunswick console type.

G. F. Ruez on Important Mission

George F. Ruez, president of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, accompanied a delegation of twenty-five leading business men as representatives of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce on a journey across Lake Michigan to Muskegon, Mich., to be guests of the local Chamber of Commerce. Milwaukee and Muskegon at present are developing a very important traffic arrangement, whereby the Michigan port, gateway to the East by lake, will become even a greater outlet for Milwaukee and Wisconsin manufactures.

Expect Big Kimball Sales

Kimball phonograph sales by the Lyric Music Co., factory distributor in Milwaukee and vicinity, have established new high marks so far this year and J. Rousselot, president and general manager, says there is no question that holiday trade will be the biggest ever known, depending upon the ability of the factory to supply the necessary number of instruments.

Edison Dealers Optimistic

Edison dealers throughout this territory speak with the greatest of confidence concerning trade prospects for the remainder of the year. They are entering the last and most fruitful lap of the year with a record of achievement in sales that goes beyond anything ever known.

The Cheney has been kept conspicuous in Milwaukee by Edmund Gram, Inc., and these instruments are making their way into more and more of the wealthier homes, as well as those owned by people of more modest circumstances.

Fall Buying on in Earnest—Trade Looking Forward to Very Busy Holiday Season—Trade Changes, Visitors and Other Activities

DES MOINES, IA., October 6.—Fall buying in the talking machine trade has begun at a lively rate, according to local jobbers. Although it is a little early in the season for the peak of the volume to be attained, early buyers are placing comparatively large orders. All orders received so far show substantial increases over those placed by the same dealers last year. This is interpreted by jobbers to mean that dealers' stocks are very low and that 1923 business has cleaned out most of the old stock in the dealers' hands.

There is every indication of a big business this Fall and Winter, according to local jobbers and retailers. There is a healthier note in business than was evident a year ago. Dealers are buying with good judgment, but are not over-cautious as some were last year. Record sales show the same healthy increase as the machine business. The weekly release plan adopted by Edison, Brunswick and Victor has been partially responsible for the better demand for records. Dealers like the plan, as it gives them new offerings to feature each week. Since the Victor Co. adopted the plan a few weeks ago there has been a substantial increase in the sale of Victor records.

Console models continue to retain their popularity with the trade. This has extended to the rural districts and is reflected in Fall orders of dealers. A large percentage of the out-of-town dealers are including a fair percentage of these models in their orders.

H. H. Blish, Jr., of Harger & Blish, local Edison jobbers, returned the first part of September with the winning delegation of Edison dealers. All report a thoroughly enjoyable time on the extended trip through the East. Harger & Blish report that the contest was very successful in that it stimulated dealers to dispose of machines on hand and clean up their stock before placing Fall orders.

Among Edison dealers calling at the Harger & Blish establishment the past month were E. A. Thomas, Hartley, Ia.; J. F. Shuey, Jefferson, Ia.; C. R. Quade, Ames, Ia., and G. B. Baker, Ottumwa, Ia.

W. D. Duning, of the Duning Co., jobber of Starr machines, returned the latter part of September from a business trip through the northwestern part of Iowa, where he found the trade in an optimistic mood.

W. O. Walker, who travels northeast Iowa for Mickel Bros., announces that he is the proud parent of a baby girl.

Harry A. Dixon has purchased the Victor stock of a retired dealer at North Platte, Nebr., and will continue the Victor business at that place.

Willard Brewster has assumed charge of the record department of the Ross P. Curtice Co., Victor dealer, in Lincoln, Nebr.

A feature of the Tuesday morning session was a talk by Professor Bristol, of Iowa State College. Professor Bristol's talk was based on a recent survey of the State in a number of different lines of business.

George E. Mickel, of Mickel Bros., Victor jobbers, was called upon for a short talk and spoke on the subject, "The Outlook for Fall and Holiday Business." John Vance and Mort Duncan each spoke on some of the problems encountered in present-day business and how solutions to these problems were found.

R. S. Boas, of Rock Island, Ill., delivered a talk preparatory to an open discussion on the subject, "Which is Best—Outside Selling, Store Selling or the Combination?" In the discussion that followed many dealers joined in and gave incidents based on actual experience.

Mickel Bros. Co. entertained the visitors at a dinner held Monday evening, followed by a theatre party.

At the business session of the convention the following officers were elected: Mark W. Duncan, Albia, president; Earl E. Mason, Valley Junction, vice-president, and Frank H. Walter, Cedar Rapids, secretary-treasurer.

DES MOINES VICTOR DEALERS MEET

Instructive Sessions and Interesting Talks Mark Sixth Annual Meeting of Iowa Victor Dealers' Association—New Officers Elected

DES MOINES, IA., October 6.—While the sixth annual gathering of the Iowa Victor Dealers' Association, which met here recently, had its attendance retarded somewhat, what it lacked in numbers was made up by enthusiasm. Rainy weather kept many of the Victor dealers of the State from attending, but those present found a most interesting and instructive program arranged.

Monday, September 17, was devoted mostly to renewing old acquaintances and making new friends. Frank H. Walter, of the Morris Sanford Co., Cedar Rapids, read an exceedingly interesting paper on the subject, "The Record Overstock Situation," and told of a number of clever ideas for the disposal of surplus records, based on results from his own store.

An interesting discussion was made by Mrs. Jesse Vance, of Mason City, Ia., on the question of operating a musical instrument department in connection with a Victor store. Mrs. Vance conducts one of the most successful music stores in the northern part of the State and her talk was based on actual experience.

A debate was held on the question of the Victor club plan. The affirmative side held that the Victor club plan was entirely successful as a business stimulator and won the decision of the judges on their able presentation.

L. R. Spencer, of Iowa City, Ia., chose the subject, "The Value of Organization Among the Victor Dealers" for his talk and told of some of the helpful ideas he had received from attending the conventions and how he adopted them very successfully in his own business.

The question of radio and the talking machine dealer was taken up by C. E. LeBlatt, of Clinton, Ia., who gave his experiences covering several years in developing the radio branch of his business. D. Earl Combs spoke on the negative side of the question.

The Victor Co. was represented by C. L. Enger, who told something of the care exercised in the manufacture of Victrolas and the plans of the Victor Co. for the following years. He also was called upon to answer a number of questions pertaining to the new marketing policies of the company. His talk straightened

DISCUSS RECORD EXCHANGE PLANS

Talking Machine Men, Inc., Endorse 10 Per Cent, Two-for-one Exchange—Trade Urged to Tie Up With Opera—Annual Ball Date Set

At the monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at the Café Boulevard on September 26, the chief subject of discussion was an equitable record exchange plan of permanent character to enable the dealer to keep his record stock in proper condition by weeding out slow-selling records at regular intervals and returning them to the manufacturer on a credit basis fair to both interests.

The record exchange plans now in effect were cited and, after a short discussion participated in by several dealers and a couple of manufacturers and their representatives, a resolution presented by the executive committee of the association was adopted, endorsing a plan providing for the return to the manufacturer by the dealer each quarter of a maximum of 10 per cent of the records bought during that period on a two-to-one basis, that is, that he order two records for each one returned. This system is already in effect with one manufacturer. The other record manufacturers will be advised officially of the opinion of the association.

Chas. D. Isaacson urged that dealers support the opera during the season, particularly the San Carlos Opera Co., now playing in New York, and tie up with it for the purpose of selling operatic records. He urged that, where possible, sets of records covering complete operas be offered to the public for sale as units. This idea was further enlarged on by Mr. Kurtz, who told of various plans of the same order that have been worked out successfully in England and were now being tried out here.

The plan for the holding of a phonograph show in New York at the time of the convention of the allied music trades next year was also presented and put over for further discussion. President Kurtz, incidentally, has been appointed on the 1924 convention committee.

It was announced that November 15 had been selected as the date for the annual ball of the association, to which the general public will be invited. Tickets will be priced at $1.65 and the affair is expected to yield a large profit for the organization.

A representative of the Artists' Publishing Co., New York, sang several songs to be featured by that company in the near future, including "Remember, I'll Never Forget," "Where Can My Sweet Mamma Be" and "Down Old Chesapeake Bay." A representative of the Gibson Art Co., manufacturer of greeting cards, also addressed the dealers.

DEALERS STOCKING UP EARLY IN ANTICIPATION OF MACHINE SHORTAGE AS FALL DEMAND GROWS

Auspicious Opening of Fall and Winter Sales Season—Promotions in Steinert Organization—New Models Please—Dealers Add New Lines—Visitors, and Other Activities of the Month

BOSTON, MASS., October 6.—The talking machine business has started off briskly for the Fall and Winter and dealers for the most part are in a happy frame of mind. This year, as not in a long time, dealers are heeding the advice of the jobbers and stocking up early, but nevertheless they are purchasing rather cautiously, some of them especially stocking up on the higher-priced goods, others finding their biggest call for the lower-priced models of machines. For the most part collections are good and there is little complaint heard along this line.

Changes in Steinert Organization

On October 1 Herbert Fleischman, who has been with M. Steinert & Sons for ten years,

rising from stock boy to salesman, and one of the best-liked men in the Steinert organization, severed his connection with the house to begin his new duties as manager of the talking machine department of the Marcellus Roper Co., of Worcester. Mr. Fleischman, who has wanted to get into the retail business for some time, has devoted all of his time of late to the outside interests of the Steinert Co., having had as his territory southern and western Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. He was very reluctant to sever his pleasant relations with his old associates, with whom he had established the most cordial relations, and they, in turn, were equally sorry to lose his society, so, by way of showing their appreciation of him as a man and as a friend, they presented him on Saturday with a handsome gold watch suitably inscribed.

Stepping into Mr. Fleischman's place is Emmet Ryan, who has been with the Steinert house four years. He saw service in the late war and was on the Texas border and also in France. Henceforth he will travel through Mr. Fleischman's territory.

James Graham, who up to now has looked after the Victor interests for the Steinerts in suburban Boston and has been with the house nearly nine years, and is, therefore, well acquainted with the Steinert way of doing business, will step into Mr. Ryan's shoes. Charles Von Euw, who has been in charge of the record stockroom for five years and also saw service in the late war in France, will take over Mr. Graham's territory, while Fred O'Leary will be in charge of the wholesale record stockroom.

New Brunswick Accounts

At the Brunswick headquarters here in Boston one hears of splendid orders ahead, with the prospects most rosy for a very busy Fall. A new concern to lately sign up to carry the Brunswick line is the R. H. McWhirr Co., of Fall River, which has received its first shipment of late models. This is the first time that this Fall River concern has ever handled talking machines and, with a Unico equipment, the department is admirably adapted to take care of customers. The manager of the department is Robert Salmond, who is an experienced man in the talking machine business. Another concern to take on the Brunswick line is the W. G. Shaw Furniture Co., of Quincy, and at New Bedford there is E. J. Remillard, and still another of the new concerns to handle the Brunswick is L. N. Longe, of Springfield, Vt., and the Barton Co., of Manchester, N. H. The new

Enthusiasm Over New Columbias

There is considerable enthusiasm in the Boston headquarters of the Columbia Co. over the new models which have been received, eight of the fourteen having already reached the city.

There is equal enthusiasm over the new W motor with automatic stop and the new No. 12 reproducer, all of which, together with the new process records, are playing a conspicuous part in bringing the Columbia line to the fore. Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Boston branch, was over in New York toward the latter part of September, stopping in Bridgeport, Conn., en route. Manager Mann was accompanied by Frank Fiumara, who has the Connecticut and Massachusetts territory, the latter having succeeded Salesman Frederick C. Collins, who was recently transferred to the jurisdiction of the New York branch of the Columbia Co.

Many Hear Popular Brunswick Artist

Segrid Onegin, the popular artist whose Brunswick records are so popular, was in Brockton Sunday, September 30, where she was greeted by a very large audience, many of whom are familiar with her recordings. The concert in Brockton was under the auspices of the local Brunswick dealer. On October 2 this star appeared at Fitchburg, Mass.; Bangor, Me., October 4, and at Portland, Me., October 8.

F. E. Fiumara With Columbia Co.

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., announces that Frank E. Fiumara has been chosen as the successor to Frederick C. Collins, the Columbia representative in eastern Connecticut and western Massachusetts. Mr. Fiumara has had a wide sales experience and is the son of Placido Fiumara, who was well known to the music lovers of a past generation when he was 'cellist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for thirty-five years. Mr. Fiumara, naturally, brings to the Columbia Co. a fine appreciation of music and musical merchandise and an ability to co-operate with Columbia dealers in their merchandising problems. Mr. and Mrs. Fiumara and their two children will make their home in Springfield, Mass.

F. C. Collins Transferred to Gotham

Frederick C. Collins, lately traveling salesman for the Columbia's Boston branch in eastern Massachusetts, Connecticut and western Massachusetts, has gone to New York, from which he will cover southern Connecticut. This transfer is made at Mr. Collins' own request. His home is in New Haven, the headquarters city of the new territory. The dealers with whom he heretofore has been keeping in close touch regret his departure.

New Victor Red Seals Popular

Herbert Shoemaker, speaking of the Eastern Talking Machine Co.'s experience, says that the Victor weekly release system is meeting with marked favor among the dealers, who claim that it is far easier now to assimilate eight or nine records than it was the thirty or more under the old conditions. It is easier under the new conditions, too, to become acquainted with the selling value of these fewer records and another splendid advantage is that the timely hits, especially those of current musical comedies, can be put out much quicker than formerly. Mr. Shoemaker is very enthusiastic over the prospects for a big Fall business.

D. M. O'Brien, in charge of the Columbia department of Smith Bros., Boston, is back home from a 2,600 mile automobile tour which he took through New England and into Canada, getting as far as Toronto, where he attended the Toronto Exhibition.

Heavy Demand for Okeh Records

Manager Smith, of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, has found business, in the Okeh line especially, moving so fast that the offices and stock-rooms have had to be rearranged so as to give more room. He says everything looks good for a big Fall business, and, what is better, collections are coming along more satisfactorily than for some time. There are several hits that are making heavy demand, among them "Hot Roasted Peanuts" and the Mariechen waltz, as recorded in Czecho-Slovakia by the Danubia Municipal Band. The "Laughing Record," so popular a year ago, is again coming into a large measure of favor.

Lester Jones a Busy Traveler

Lester Jones, in charge of the talking machine department of the Hallet & Davis Co., lately spent ten days in western Massachusetts and Connecticut in the interest of the product of this company. Mr. Jones has other trips planned for the near future by way of increasing interest in the Hallet & Davis line.

To Open New Victor Store

A new Victor store is soon to be opened in Rumford, Me. It is located on Main street and is to be conducted by H. W. Hanson, who has been a Victor dealer in that town for a number of years. The new store is beautifully equipped. The official opening is scheduled for October 15, when several trade members will go up from Boston for the inaugural.

Encouraging Sonora Outlook

Joe Burke, of the Sonora Co., makes a most encouraging report of business and says September was one of the best months in a long time, and the only thing that troubles him now is the possible difficulty of getting a sufficient supply of the low-priced models. A first shipment of the new two-tone Argyle model, which dealers are most enthusiastic over, has just come to the Columbus avenue headquarters of the Sonora Co. Joe's two brothers, Tom Burke and Ray Burke, are on a fortnight's trip through Maine, going up by automobile. They plan to thoroughly cover the territory from Portland to Fort Fairfield and will carefully study the needs of the trade in that territory.

Some Local Visitors

A Boston visitor the other day was Harry Yagoobian, who is associated with the Royal Piano Co., Worcester. He was a caller at the General Phonograph Corp., whose lines of Okeh and Odeon records this Worcester house is featuring.

Discuss Exhibition Plans

Members of the New England Music Trade Association were invited yesterday at luncheon at the Adams House by the officers of the National Exhibition Association, Inc., whose headquarters are at 18 Boylston street, which organization, as mentioned several times in this department, is endeavoring to father a national music exposition at Mechanics Building the week beginning November 26. The special hosts of the luncheon were H. L. Katz, the president of the National Exhibition Association, and John A. Davis, one of the directors. Following the luncheon, Mr. Davis spoke at length, going into more or less detail what it was planned to do. He stated that several large concerns already had taken space in the exposition and it was planned to include every branch of the music industry. By way of interesting the general public there was a plan being carefully worked out whereby there would be frequent concerts, a voting contest which might start a few weeks in advance of the exhibition, and other features that might tend to keep up the interest of the public to the end. The luncheon was attended by piano men and by talking machine men, but the music publishing business was not represented.

Finds Business Good

Miss Barr Now in the West

Miss Grace Barr, whose home is in Worcester, who was long associated with the Victor interests in New England and who has a number of friends hereabouts, is now associated with the educational department of the Victor and at the present time is assigned to the Western territory and is making her headquarters in Chicago.

Hudson Dealer Commands Public Attention

In the latter part of September A. E. Champagne, manager of the Grafonola Shoppe, exclusive Columbia dealer at Hudson, put across a novel advertising stunt. He took the empty talking machine cases which were piling up to an enormous extent in the rear of his store and placed them on carts owned by every boy that he could get hold of in town. These were lined up in parade formation and as the "Parade of the Wooden Boxes" the line was started from in front of the Grafonola Shoppe immediately after the supper hour and filed down Main street. On the sides of the cases were painted such catch phrases as: "Why Girls Stay at Home," "If It's Music See the Grafonola Shoppe," "George Washington Did Not Own a Phonograph—Poor George," "Prohibition Has Not Killed Champagne," "No Champagne for Champagne." The idea took immensely in the town.

Kenneth E. Reed Reviews Situation

Manager Kenneth E. Reed, of the Victor wholesale department of M. Steinert & Sons, says that as he views the field during the month of September the retail business was a bit quiet, but the wholesale business was very good, and he was glad to say that dealers were taking the advice early given them and stocking up well for the holiday trade. Of course, there always are some backward ones and, naturally, they will be the losers in the long run. The weekly release plan, he says, is being favorably received and is making for bigger sales. The first shipments of the new double Red Seal records were sold out in a few days, so eager were the dealers to acquire them.

Secure Columbia Franchise

The Prince-Walters Bungalow Shop, of Lowell, has secured a Columbia franchise and will carry a complete line of new model Columbias and New Process Columbia records. Fred H. Walters, manager, is well known to the trade in New England, having been at one time representative of the Brunswick Co. for several years before entering the retail field.

Takes on Junior Operetta Line

Arthur C. Erisman, of Boston, has taken on the new Junior Operetta line of records which is put out by the Vulcan Record Corp., of New York, and the first of the series, "Little Red Riding Hood," is being eagerly called for by dealers who see in it a splendid holiday seller. Mr. Erisman also has received the first

New Number Four Proves a Big Success

The initial announcement of the Number Four arm and reproducer resulted in orders from all over the country

The phonograph world moves in common with the rest of the universe. People are trying to get away from the conventional, always in quest of things new and better. Realizing this our engineers set to work to design a Tone Arm and Reproducer that is original, attractive and good.

The result is our No. 4 Throw-back Tone Arm with Swelled Base and No. 4 Pentagon-shaped Sound Box—a welcome relief from the staid equipment used heretofore. Its pleasing appearance lends an air of distinction to the best of phonographs, and appeals to the taste of the purchaser.

But the real achievement of our engineers was not alone in the design, for a phonograph cannot sell solely on its outward aspect. After weeks of experimenting they perfected a full, resonant-toned reproducer which defies comparison.

sample of the Outing, Jr., machine which is receiving much attention from dealers and which is to be put on the market in November. Mr. Erisman now carries forty-one different lines of talking machine merchandise.

Big Demand for the Strand Line

Mr. Erisman is finding the Strand business immense, and he says it is going to be difficult to fill the orders for Fall delivery. A new concern to sign up with him for the Strand is the R. A. McWhirr Co., of Fall River. Another concern to take on this line is the Tilden-Thurber Corp., of Providence, R. I. Miss Hennessey, who is in charge of the talking machine department at this latter-named store, is a bright and capable young woman with worthwhile ideas on merchandising.

Takes Over Stores in Haverhill and Portland

J. L. Prosser, of Boston, who already conducts stores in Athol, Fitchburg, Waltham, Somerville and Peabody, has taken over the talking machine departments in the two stores at Haverhill, Mass., and Portland, Me., conducted by Simonds & Adams, where he will carry the Edison and Columbia lines and general talking machine merchandise.

Vocalion Popularity Grows

The Vocalion business continues big in the New England territory. Oscar W. Ray, of the New York office, was over in town for a day the latter part of September and was the guest of Arthur Erisman. From Boston Mr. Ray went to Brattleboro, Vt., for a few days.

Columbia Dealers Active

Carbone Bros., Columbia dealers, Broadway, South Boston, have remodeled their store and installed new fixtures in preparation for the expected holiday rush. Mrs. Mary Cobb, formerly with the J. W. Philbrick Co., Malden, Mass., has been added to the record sales organization of this progressive concern.

The first New Process Columbia recordings of Leo F. Reisman and his orchestra are being received with enthusiasm by both the trade and the public here.

The Columbia September Sales Conference was held in this city on the fifteenth and plans for the Fall and Winter advertising campaign were thoroughly discussed.

Charles Morse, Lancaster, N. H., and J. D. Symons, Skowhegan, Me., were recent exhibitors at the county fairs in their territories. Salesman Ingalls, of the local Columbia branch, co-operated in making the exhibits a success.

News Gleanings

Otto Piesendell, of the Victor department of the Oliver Ditson Co., has been on his vacation, which was spent mostly around home.

John White, formerly with one of Henry Kahn's stores and with Carbone Bros. in South Boston, is now associated with the talking machine department of the Bahr Piano Co., Quincy.

Charles E. Hodgkins, one of the traveling staff of the General Phonograph Corp., is back home from his vacation, which was spent at Belfast, Me.

Lloyd Spencer, of the traveling staff of the Brunswick, is home from a good trip to Maine during which he visited dealers in Bangor, Augusta, Lewiston, Holton, Portland, Bath, Biddeford and Saco, in all of which places he found the Brunswick line going strong.

The lines handled include Hallett & Davis talking machines, portable instruments, Okeh, Vocalion, Columbia and Banner records, as well as a complete line of sheet music.

John Di Fiore, of Red Bank, N. J., will soon open his large remodeled talking machine establishment at 126 Shrewsbury avenue.

CINCINNATI

Machine Shortage Imminent as Business Maintains Its Volume—Dealers and Jobbers Expect Busy Holiday Season—Trade News

CINCINNATI, O., October 7.—The sale of talking machines in this city and the territory served by the Cincinnati jobbers has been excellent during the past month and a spirit of optimism pervades the trade. The last two weeks of September were considerably ahead of the first two weeks, but the whole month was very satisfactory from every angle. Local houses report that their volume of business during the past thirty days has run from 30 to 65 per cent ahead of the same period in 1922 and retailers are going so far as to express their opinions that the holiday trade in prospect this year will average about 30 per cent ahead of last year.

The one factor that will probably have more to do than anything else with the total volume of the holiday business is the delivery that may be expected on talking machines. The trade has held up so splendidly through the Summer months in Cincinnati that there has been no opportunity on the part of local jobbers or retailers to accumulate a surplus stock to be used for the holiday trade. Manufacturers are unable to keep sufficiently ahead of the current demand for instruments to stock the merchants in anticipation of holiday rush.

The record sales during the last thirty days also have shown a big increase over last year and the volume of business will undoubtedly be greater during the next month.

Large Victor Sales

C. N. North, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, states that his company's sales during the past month have shown a large increase over the same period of last year. Victrolas are in good demand at present and the company is pushed to keep up with the constant demand for new stock from dealers in the Cincinnati territory.

Okeh Record Sales Hold Up Well

The sale of Okeh records in this city and adjacent territory has been holding up to a high standard the past month, with a fine outlook for business during October, according to Ben L. Brown, manager of the Sterling Roll & Record Co., local jobber for the General Phonograph Corp. There has been somewhat of a shortage of talking machines, but this condition is expected to be remedied very shortly. W. C.

Fuhri, general sales manager of the Okeh record division of the General Phonograph Corp., was a visitor to the city during the past week.

Special Festival Display at Widener's

Victrolas have been in steady demand at Widener's Grafonola Shop, according to Manager Fantele. Widener's, like other music dealers in Cincinnati this week, has a window display devoted to Cincinnati's Festival Week, commemorating the anniversary of Franz Schubert.

Satisfactory Edison Business

Edison phonographs and records enjoyed good sales through last month, with indications that there will be a still larger sale this month. B. H. Oelman, manager of the Phonograph Co., Edison jobber in Cincinnati, says that the volume of business done by his company during September was very satisfactory.

Gennett Records Convention Souvenirs

Odd Fellows and Rebecahs who attended the convention of the Sovereign Grand Lodge in Cincinnati, September 17 to 22, were given an opportunity to take home with them a memento of the sessions. Justin Huber's Orchestra, well known locally as one of the most popular dance orchestras, was selected as one of the official bands of the convention and arrangements were made to have some of the special program numbers played by the orchestra recorded on Gennett records. The records are being sold as souvenirs of the convention. Justin Huber's Orchestra made a number of records during the past Summer and has co-operated at different times with the Cincinnati branch of the Starr Piano Co. in advertising certain popular Gennett records.

Clever Chubb-Steinberg Windows

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, East Sixth street, is one of the stores in Cincinnati which are constantly bringing out novel and effective displays in their windows. One of the latest features of this store was co-operation with the local Keith Theatre during the opening week of the vaudeville season. The first number on the Keith program was a Victrola concert with the music played on a Victrola loaned to the Keith Theatre by the Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop and the records also furnished by Chubb-Steinberg. In return for this publicity the latter store had its window devoted to pictures of the stars appearing at Keith's. This week the store is featuring a window display of pictures of the football team at the University of Cincinnati, advertising the opening game of the season. In the window is a large sign reading "Victrolas, like football teams, are winners when they harmonize." These up-to-the-minute window features have become very popular and the public always passes the Chubb-Steinberg store with the expectation of seeing something new and decidedly novel in window displays.

Marked Columbia Activity

Columbia records released in September registered a hit with the public in Cincinnati. Columbia machines also have been in demand locally. Sales on Columbia instruments and records, according to the testimony of several local dealers, have increased greatly during the month.

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 8, 1923.

GENERAL business continues to be prosperous, with signs that the expectations now rife about an equally prosperous Winter will not be disappointed. There certainly is no boom to be anticipated, but, at the same time, there can be no doubt that, short of some calamity which is not imminent at this time, nothing can stop the orderly flow of commerce and trade. The general economic situation of the country is clearing up and there is evidence that much of the political unrest of the last two years is gradually subsiding. When Congress next meets we are likely to find that some of the wild and woolly bewhiskered gentlemen, who have been pawing the ground with their hoofs and snuffing the air with their nostrils, are wondering just how they are going to bring about that revolution in Congress, if not in the Government itself, of which they were talking so lustily during the last elections. The European situation, of course, remains unfortunate, but it is also not quite so bad as the isolationists would have us believe. On the contrary, there is steadily growing an enlightened public opinion which sees that American prosperity and world prosperity are one and the same, and which perceives that for a real, genuine boom we must have the purchasing power of all the world in some way brought to a common denominator. With this growing feeling one must, for the moment, remain content, realizing that general business meanwhile will not suffer. As Roger Babson has remarked, however, next year the greatest of national industries will be flourishing; with possibly adverse effects upon other industries. This industry is the Manufacture of Lies, for 1924 is a presidential election year. Till then, however, let us be of good cheer; for if we continue to be cheerful, as at this time we well may, we shall perchance be able to go on during next year quite as well, despite the overtime operations of our quadrennial Greatest National Industry.

Now and Next Year

LARGE promises are made for the forthcoming Chicago Radio Show and much interest will doubtless be developed. Radio interests great numbers of people, but, from the viewpoint of our industry, distinction should be carefully drawn between the two chief divisions of this interest. Radio attracts a great army of small boys, young men and others who take delight in tinkering with mechanical devices of all descriptions. But this type of enthusiast is not keenly interested in complete sets, for it is the fascination of making a radio set that appeals to the high school boy, amateur or so-called inventive genius. It is that portion of the public which is interested in complete outfits that will prove a sales outlet for the talking machine merchant. If the radio set can be merchandised to the prospective purchaser as a musical media, and if the dealer can be impressed with the musical value of the radio set, the distribution problem is solved so far as this industry is concerned. If the talking machine merchant believes in radio then the forthcoming show will be well worth a visit. For the makers of complete outfits know that they need the music merchant quite as much as, if not more than, he is ever likely to need them. There should be then a large attendance of music men at the show who may thus obtain an opportunity to learn what will enable them to frame a logical opinion as to the sales possibilities of radio in this industry.

Music
Dealers
and Radio

IN a certain flourishing part of Chicago's uptown are three talking machine shops within one block. Each is well equipped and good to look at. Each carries a good line of standard machines and fine stocks of good records. Yet all that the proprietor of each can think of to attract attention to himself is to install a "loud-sounder" above the entrance of his store and play dance music all day long to the noisy street. The reproduction is bad, naturally, for the street is very busy and noisy. The musical effect is worse than bad, for it is totally unlike the natural sounds of the talking machines which the music is supposed to be advertising. Moreover, the noises neutralize each other and the cumulative effect is simply nil. There, if you like, is a fine example of lack of imagination. Why on earth does not one of the young men in this trio of competitors stop his noise machine and try running a dance contest, or a daily afternoon concert of operatic vocal music, or a public demonstration of all the new numbers of each release as it comes out? In a word, what on earth is the matter with retailers of this type? Do they not realize that these practices are not only harming themselves but the entire trade as well?

THERE seems to be a shortage developing, if not already developed, in practically all types of console machines. About a year ago retail merchants began to put pressure upon manufacturers to design and produce consoles which might be sold at prices scarcely, if at all, above what standard uprights previously commanded. The manufacturers responded to this demand and many styles of moderate-priced consoles were quickly placed on the market. They immediately attracted the public's attention and it might be said that the public was attracted to them, perhaps, in too great a measure, for the manufacturers and the dealers soon found themselves unable to take care of the demand. The upright was comparatively neglected, which means that there is now a shortage of consoles, with a fair supply of uprights on the market. While this situation is causing considerable concern to manufacturers and dealers alike, at the same time it is somewhat of a blessing, for it may influence merchants to sell more uprights and thereby solve the manufacturers' production problems in addition to producing tangible profits from every sale. Within the past fortnight several prominent manufacturers have commented upon the tendency of their dealers to give more attention to uprights in ordering their merchandise for the holiday season. Musically and tonally the upright is certainly on a par with the console, and talking machine dealers who have been affected by the marked shortage of consoles will find it to their distinct advantage to apply their knowledge of salesmanship to the stimulation of the demand for uprights. It is a demand that is healthy and substantial, particularly when it is almost impossible to secure an adequate number of console models.

Dealers

Uprights

ONE can never too often talk good sense or tell the truth. There are talking machine merchants who sometimes complain that there is too much preaching in the trade papers; but those who do the complaining are usually those who most need reminding of their faults. Talking machine merchants have vastly improved, during the last ten years or so, the general physical makeup of their stores. The old-fashioned gloomy, dingy room, conducted by the old-time music dealer, with its moth-eaten showcase in front and the two or three rather battered-looking pianos in the background, has about disappeared. The modern piano or talking machine store, even in small communities, is to-day commonly a place of business quite worthy the study of experts in merchandising methods. But there is one point in respect of which merchants dealing in any or all kinds of musical instruments still need to be reminded gently. And that is that a music store ought not merely to be physically as perfect as possible, but also to be a place radiating musical influence throughout the community. Music merchants are too often slow in realizing that they should be leaders, so far as they can, in the community's musical life. It is here that too often there is a lack. The talking machine man ought to think of his store as a place to which every person will naturally gravitate who has anything to say or do relating to the musical activities of the community in which he is located. It will be found to be good business viewed from any and every standpoint. The man or establishment that aids in musical culture is sowing seed that will inevitably yield a fruitful harvest.

CAPACITY PRODUCTION ON THE PART OF MANUFACTURERS INDICATES GREAT RETAIL ACTIVITY

Standard and Widely Advertised Products Prove Best Investment for Dealers—Console Shortage Here—Retailers and Wholesalers Busy With Fall Plans—General Activities of the Trade

CHICAGO, ILL., October 8.—Never, in the memory of the local trade, has there been such tremendous activity as is now going on throughout the individual plants in this section. This is particularly true of those plants which make parts. In them, generally, wheels of industry are spinning as fast as they possibly can. Many of the manufacturers of talking machine parts are able at present actually to show unfilled orders which will keep them busy for weeks. This picking up of orders has in several cases necessitated putting on night shifts to take care of trade demands.

Truly, the past year and a half has been a severe test to all manufacturers throughout the industry in this section and one which has resulted in the survival only of the fittest. The materials now being put into instruments are so superior to those which were used commonly during the war that there is practically no comparison. As a matter of fact, it is said by some members of the trade, particularly retail men, that the instruments selling to-day, say, for $150 are parallel in quality to the machines which retailed for from $250 to $300 during the war.

In cold, plain facts, the day of the junk machine has passed and, like the small boy who touched the stove and had his fingers burned, the retailers of to-day have learned their lesson and refuse to be burned again. That, in a nutshell, is the reason why only machines actually worth the prices asked for them are being disposed of to-day.

From the retail standpoint we find that the dealers are actually going out and getting business. These men tell us that from present indications their inventories at the end of the year will show surprising results. The retail trade is more firmly establishing itself with the purchasing public and retail dealers are doing everything they can to maintain this standing. They are intensifying their activities by taking on lines of small goods. In numerous cases, moreover, these men who have made a practice of selling nationally advertised phonograph merchandise are so strongly entrenched in the communities they serve that they are beginning to take on nationally advertised lines of pianos and player-pianos. In other words, they are branching out so as to take in every line of activity in the music business.

This, in turn, is causing many music shops, which formerly were comparatively insignificant, to broaden out and become important factors, especially in the outlying communities of the Chicago territory.

On every hand plans are being made for a Fall business that will far overshadow any previous season in the history of this section. In other words, "Music in the Home" is here to stay throughout Chicago and the trade as a whole is about to cash in and reap the rewards due for long, hard labor.

Shortage of Consoles Apparent

Reports from all over the country indicate that the tremendous demand for console talking machines is already causing a shortage of these instruments. According to the views of J. G. Sills, manager of the wholesale department of the W. W. Kimball Co., the shortage is quite evident now, but dealers are making the best of it by boosting upright instruments. There are many dealers in the trade who wonder how there can be a shortage of consoles, for example, on one hand and on the other hand a good supply of upright cabinets. Some of them fail to see why, when a concern manufacturing talking machines sees a demand for a certain style, it cannot instantly quit making other styles and concentrate its energy on the particular model.

However, if these men take the trouble to look into the matter, they will soon appreciate the predicament of the manufacturers. When this is done there will be better co-operation all along the line. In taking cognizance of the demands made upon the talking machine manufacturer the questioning dealer can easily see that in some sections of the country there will be a demand for a certain type of console, where in others there will be a demand for certain upright models. Be this as it may, it will at times have a tendency to spread through the entire trade and, consequently, increase when orders for other models are decreasing.

So the basis of the shortage, after all, is merely a shortage in style which may develop overnight. The question, then, is what can the manufacturers do to take care of such sudden demand? The answer is that, while the popularity of a certain style may grow overnight, an entire production plant of a concern manufacturing talking machines cannot be changed without some lapse of time. In fact, it would be foolhardy for the manufacturer to readjust his plant every time demands are made upon him for certain instruments in large quantities, as it would necessarily increase his overhead expense. On the other hand, in making the changes gradually, if after careful consideration the demand for a particular style looks as though it were here to stay, the entire change of the plant is then warranted. Therefore, if the dealers will take note of the problems facing the manufacturer, they will appreciate the various situations governing the manufacture of talking machines and much good will come from the realization.

Death of Mrs. Grace Healy Woodruff

Cable news has reached Chicago from Algiers of the death of Mrs. Grace Healy Woodruff, wife of Frederick W. Woodruff, president of the First National Bank of Joliet, Ill., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Healy, of Chicago. Mr. Healy is a son of the late P. J. Healy, founder of Lyon & Healy, Inc., and is president of the Knabe-Edison Shop at Adams and Wabash on Piano Row. With her parents the former Miss Healy sailed for Europe on the Leviathan on July 4 and three weeks before her death she became the wife of Mr. Woodruff in Paris. Funeral plans have not yet been announced, but it is surmised that funeral services will be held at Joliet at the home of the bereaved husband.

Hall Needles Sell Where Raw Material Grows

Several months ago a deal was consummated between the Hall Mfg. Co., of Chicago, and Okamoto, Ltd., of Tokyo, Japan, whereby the latter concern became distributors of the Hall fibre needle throughout the Japanese Empire. The deal was made by Okamoto, Ltd., after considerable investigation of the Hall fibre needle and the interesting part of the deal lies in the fact that the raw material comes from Japan, so that Okamoto, Ltd., might be supposed to be in a position to manufacture fibre needles for itself. The various items of manufacture are said to have been taken into consideration by Okamoto, Ltd., but after investigation the heads of this organization decided that nothing so good as the Hall fibre needle Hall Fibre Needle Publicity in Japan could possibly be reproduced outside the Hall factories.

When the horrible details of the recent Japanese calamity reached Chicago the Hall Mfg. Co. sent Okamoto, Ltd., a cablegram inviting them to entirely disregard their contract for needles until the business situation of Japan had righted itself. A few days afterward the New York representative of Okamoto, Ltd., advised the Hall Mfg. Co. to continue its shipments, as there was every evidence that Japanese business is quickly recovering itself and that, although the business and residential districts of Tokyo and Yokohama were practically in ruins, commercial activity was going on as well as ever. The communication also enclosed an advertising proof from a Japanese newspaper, which gives a sample of how enthusiastically the Okamoto Co. is going after business.

Celebrate Twenty-first Convention

The twenty-first annual convention of the International Lyceum and Chautauqua Association was held, from September 17 to Friday, September 21, inclusive, at the Auditorium Hotel, with a large registration and eighteen exhibits of sheet music publishers, who occupied the entire ninth floor of the hotel for exhibiting purposes.

The exhibitors had a separate room with piano and artist to play their numbers, of which they had complete selections on display. Among those exhibiting were the following: W. G. P. Hough Visiting the Trade

G. P. Hough, sales manager of Westphono, Inc., left headquarters in Chicago on the first of the month for a visit to the South Central and Southeastern States. He will call on the various dealers and jobbers of that section, not only in the interests of Westphono, Inc., but also of the Bush & Lane line of talking machines. This beautifully artistic line was recently introduced to the trade by the Bush & Lane Co., which has gone over its product very thoroughly and has brought out some of the most desirable designs of talking machines that have appeared in the trade for a number of months. The Bush & Lane Co. is one of the oldest institutions in the country and manufactures a full line of upright, player and grand pianos.

Hold Annual Election

In the recently held annual meeting of the Hall Mfg. Co. the following officers were named: L. C. Wiswell, president; Columbus Healy, vice-president; Marquette Healy, treasurer; H. J. Fiddelke, secretary and general manager, and Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hall, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

Mr. Fiddelke's appointment as secretary of the Hall Mfg. Co. comes as a reward for services rendered during the past year as general manager for the company, during which time he has succeeded in increasing the sales of the Hall fibre needles to an extent which has necessitated enlarging the plant.

Mrs. Hall, who was appointed assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, is the widow of the late Frederick D. Hall, originator of the Hall fibre needle and founder of the factory, who at the time of his death was chairman of the board of directors.

New Orotone Reproducer

The Orotone Co., of this city, has announced a new model reproducer, the stylus bar anchorage of which carries some interesting features which, the Orotone Co. believes, will fill a long-felt want. The anchorage of the stylus bar contains a depression containing a stiff, oil-tempered spring which, in turn, is compressed by a plunger screw. This idea was devised to prevent side-shake, which sooner or later comes in many reproducers from wear upon the sharp screws of the solid sides of the anchorage.

These sharp screws in many instruments wear a depression in the side of the stylus bar, as a result of which there sooner or later comes a side-shake. With the compression spring, however, all danger of this side-shake is automatically taken up, whether the slack be due to wearing or from the shock of high notes during reproduction.

Coming Radio Show Will Be Big

Details for the Chicago Radio Show, to be held at the Coliseum November 25, inclusive, are practically perfected, according to James F. Kerr, manager of the Show, at his headquarters, 127 North Dearborn street. Mr. Kerr states that practically every manufacturer of high-grade radio receiving sets and accessories has already signed up and that the Chicago Radio Show this year will probably be the greatest of its kind ever held in this section, from both the standpoint of exhibits and that of attendance.

Although last year's show was a big success, it did in some details fall a little short of expectations, but now all these shortcomings have been rectified and present plans indicate that the coming show will be 100 per cent perfect. Plans have been made this year to encourage dealers to attend and special stress is being laid by the management of the Chicago Radio Show on the talking machine dealer. Manufacturers of radio sets now realize that the talking machine man offers the logical outlet for high-grade receiving sets, owing to his familiarity with nationally advertised goods and music's close relation to radio.

It is due to these essential features, which are a part of the talking machine man's everyday life, that the radio industry has taken this step. Because of this reaction the Radio Show men feel that it is their duty to encourage the music dealers and jobbers to attend the coming Show in full force. Manufacturers of radio are appreciating this co-operation on the part of the Radio Show management and, in turn, are co-operating with the Show management in sending out special admission tickets to the music dealers.

This separation in the Victor department was occasioned by the increased demands made by the retail department upon Mr. Wiswell. Release from activities in the wholesale field comes as a relief to him. When he first came with Lyon & Healy Mr. Wiswell's activities were devoted practically entirely to the retail division and his success was very noticeable. Through his unremitting efforts, in fact, Lyon & Healy's retail Victor department became a very important factor in the musical merchandising field in this territory.

Mr. Roche comes not as a stranger to fill the position vacated by Mr. Wiswell, as he has been connected with Lyon & Healy for the past eighteen years. He began as a stock boy and was rapidly promoted to the retail department, thence to the wholesale department and from there to traveling salesman. Then he became assistant to Mr. Wiswell. His long activities and good work in these various positions have now obtained complete recognition in his appointment to succeed Mr. Wiswell in the Victor wholesale department.

Net Profits— and United Motors

SERVICE Departments can soon eat up profits, and in the phonograph business most troubles are motor trouble.

Users of United Motors have cut and cut the number of employees in their service department until today they are mere skeletons of the old departments.

All because United Motors do not require attention.

Dust-Proof — Air-Tight. The entire mechanism is housed in a dust-proof, air-tight cast iron box. Dust and needles cannot get in. Air is kept out, with the result that the oil in United Motors does not dry up or become full of grit, but stays moist and does not have to be replaced. Our automatic self-feeding oiling system keeps oil on the gears at all times.

This means longer service to the user — less servicing by the seller.

Our special spring construction enables spring to be replaced in a few minutes. We supply our customers with complete spring assembly—all that is necessary is to slip out the old barrel and slip in a new one.

So it is that United Motors increase the net profits.

Is it any wonder that we are working day and night to fill orders from the world's best phonograph makers?

recently have been named distributors. A large part of the show space located in the front of their warerooms has been devoted to the Pooley line and at present the exhibit consists of a large number of Pooley console types, which have met with much favor by the Chicago trade. The territory handled by Cole & Dunas consists of Wisconsin, northern Indiana and a considerable part of Missouri.

Jackson Talking Machine Shop Chartered

The Jackson Talking Machine Shop, Inc., 11 West State street, this city, was recently incorporated under the laws of Illinois, with a capital of $25,000. The concern deals in talking machines, records and musical instruments. Incorporators are Paul Stich, P. F. Jackson and E. H. Jackson.

Returns From Northern Trip

F. R. Decker, sales manager of the Ampli-phone Co., has returned to Chicago headquarters in the Republic Building from a protracted trip which took him throughout Canadian and northern States territories. Mr. Decker reports increased demand for instruments in every section he visited, and this is especially true of American-made goods in the Canadian territory. There is every indication that the coming Christmas will see one of the biggest sales periods for talking machines, according to Mr. Decker, and many of the dealers believe that this increased activity will continue well into the new year.

Broadcaster Corp. in New Home

From S. S. Zax, general manager of the Broadcaster Corp., we get the information this month that the terrific moving job on the hands of this concern is practically finished and that the corporation is now comfortably housed in its new plant at 2414-2430 North Cullerton street.

During the move there was no let-up in the manufacturing of Broadcaster instruments, as the old plant was kept working steadily while the new one was being fitted up. The new plant, by the way, is said to contain the most modern and up-to-date woodworking machinery obtainable, and when everything was in readiness it only remained for the workers to hop on a street car and begin activities at the new manufacturing headquarters.

There has been a sort of a mysterious air enveloping the offices of the Broadcaster Corp. for the past week or so, but no one seems to know exactly what it is all about. Of course, there are many rumors, etc., but at the same time no one will officially state what his opinions are. Anyway, we know this much, Manager Zax says that the president of his concern is spending quite a bit of time around the photographic galleries lately. For the benefit of the unmarried ladies who read The Talking Machine World, we should say that it might be well for them to look carefully through their mail during the next week or so, as it may be possible that one of them is going to get a handsome photograph. "A word to the wise is sufficient," girls, so watch your step.

Some Record as a Fisherman!

Harry D. Schoenwald, sales manager of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., of this city, is generally recognized in the trade as a mighty good salesman, but on a recent visit to Long Lake, Wis., he demonstrated that his ability as a fisherman must also be given due recognition. The accompanying illustration presents Mr. and Mrs. H. D. S., together with Mrs. Carl Bruch. The photograph was snapped by Carl Bruch, one of Mr. Schoenwald's "buddies" overseas, who is a direct descendant of the founder of Brooklyn. The latter statement has been questioned several times, but Mr. Schoenwald maintains that it is absolutely correct.

The sales promotion department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has announced the new one-for-one cut-out list to dealers. Any record listed in this cut-out list can be exchanged for any other number listed in the catalog up to and including the September supplement. This department is also supplying

Look about you and see the number of very successful concerns marketing original or modifications of original BLOOD ideas—there's a reason:

This cut illustrates the Blood MONO-TURN Arm which enables the user to change from Lateral to genuine Edison position by a single (MONO-) turn of the Reproducer.

BLOOD ideas and products are accepted and recognized by the trade as being mechanically perfect—that's why they're big sellers and keep our factory working night and day.

When in need of high grade tone arms and reproducers why not come to the original source of production.

Cheney President Optimistic

There is every indication of a most remarkable Fall business, according to views of W. A. Harper, president of the Cheney Talking Machine Co. "We are getting reports," said he, "from every part of the country from our dealers, who assert that prospects never looked so good. Furthermore, the dealers are backing up their assertions with orders and it is remarkable that, although the demand for consoles is very heavy and, no doubt, will lead to a shortage of these instruments, the upright types are holding up also very well."

In further emphasizing his views, Mr. Harper pointed out an article appearing in the October issue of the Cheney Resonator from the pen of G. Dunbar Shewell, of the Cheney Sales Corp., of Philadelphia, Boston and New York, Eastern Cheney distributor, who has the following to say regarding the outlook for the coming months:

"Undoubtedly, every person who reads this issue of the Resonator has one idea uppermost in his or her mind, an idea which may be expressed in the form of a question: What will the Fall business be like, good, bad or indifferent?"

"Now, I do not pretend to be a prophet. I am only an analyst. But from much recent contact with business men, and especially with phonograph dealers from Maine to Washington, D. C., I have come to certain conclusions, or, rather, am able to condense opinions heard on all sides, into two or three sentences.

"First: Everybody is optimistic. That is very good to begin with.

"Second: Most dealers seem to feel assured that public buying power is as great as it ever was, if not actually greater than ever.

"Third: The recent chill in the phonograph industry has roused dealers to see that they must work harder to get business. This in itself will build business.

"Fourth: The phonograph market has gone through a thorough house-cleaning and consequently sales resistance should now be markedly less than it has been.

"In our territory Cheney orders are greater in number than they have ever been at this time of the year. In checking up we find everywhere that dealers are individually ordering much more than they did last year. The Cheney business has ever grown slowly, but steadily. Once a Cheney dealer always a Cheney dealer.

"Merit and a good merchandising policy—these are the elements which count.

"The weak-kneed merchants never get there, but those who make bold and aggressive efforts will surely this Winter have all the success they can hope for."

Returns From Eastern Trip

E. A. Fearn, of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., spent the first week of the month visiting the trade in New York, where he went to make arrangements to take on several well-known lines of small goods, the details of which will be announced within a short time. On the return trip from New York Mr. Fearn stopped off at the Detroit headquarters of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. and spent some time in going over plans for the coming Fall season.

Splendid Up-town Store

One of the most progressive outlying music stores in Chicago is that of the J. M. Dvorak Music Co., 3844 West Twenty-sixth street. An idea of the rapid growth of this concern may be gathered when it is taken into consideration that only three years have elapsed since the company was organized, and that since its organization it has built up one of the most progressive and up-to-date music establishments in Chicago, as well as building and owning its own home, a two-story building.

The Dvorak Music Co. is located in the Bohemian center of Chicago. An idea of the character of the company's business may be had when we learn that this concern in carrying out its business is not depending upon any of the local banks to carry its paper. Not only does this concern devote a great amount of its time to the handling of retail Victor business, but, on the other hand, it has built up a considerable wholesale clientele all over the United States in Bohemian musical instruments.

Plans are being made by the concern to extend its holdings further by the erection of an additional building in the rear of its present one. The various branches of this organization are looked after by O. E. Pribyl, Frank Karlick and Joseph Halama. Mr. Pribyl was for

Parts Makers Show Tremendous Activity

In every direction we turn, and no matter with whom we come in contact, we have been hearing lately of the tremendous increases in business. From no one with whom we have come in contact have we heard anything that was other than highly optimistic. But the question arises, is there really business being done or is it "a lot of talk." After thinking the situation over seriously, it came to the mind of The World representative that it might be a good idea to step out and go through the plants that manufacture parts and accessories for talking machines, the idea being that if these men were busy surely the manufacturers of the completed instrument must be busy. So, in order to get at the real facts of the case, an expedition was carried out by The World representative and here's what he found:

At the plant of the Orotone Co. the actual working force has been increased 100 per cent, the shipping force and the office force both have been increased and the working hours have been lengthened. This concern is working to its full capacity in turning out Orotone sound boxes, tone arms and attachments. In the department devoted to the manufacture of portable instruments there is also much activity and the working force of this department has been considerably augmented within the last couple of weeks. Inspecting shipping tags, The World man found them to be directed not only to local and other talking machine manufacturers throughout the United States, but to foreign countries as well, particularly Australia, New Zealand, England, Japan and various South American countries.

At the plant of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co. The World representative beheld a sight truly amazing. Tally sheets in the various departments showed that this concern is turning out nearly 1,000 motors per day and there are still a few bits of space throughout the plant where additional machinery is being erected. Due to the activities of H. L. Mills, vice-president and general manager of the company, assisted by F. F. Paul, general sales manager, the various departments have been arranged so that there is a continuous flow of material from one department to the other without the least interference or lost motion. Since taking over the new plant the United Co. has cut down its overhead to an amazing degree and at the same time has built up its efficiency in a like manner.

A visit to the plant of the Jewel Phonoparts Co. disclosed activities which were far greater than could have previously been imagined. A. B. Cornell, sales director of the company, was found to be in a very optimistic frame of mind and under his guidance a trip through the Jewel plant was made. The impression left by this visit was that the Jewel plant, which one heretofore had thought capable of taking care of a very large part of the business of the trade, was, after all, strained to the utmost in trying to take care of orders that were far behind shipping dates. Every employe was working at top speed and spaces that were previously very ample for each individual worker were now crowded by the addition of newcomers on the working force.

In its new home at 116 West Illinois street, the Fletcher-Wickes Co. is closing the most active season in its history. The company's recent move was necessitated by the increased demand for its product from manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, as well as an exceptionally large export demand. The old quarters on Lake street were inadequate over a period of several years, but in its new home the Fletcher-Wickes Co. has ample room to take care of its expanding business and give its clientele maximum service and co-operation.

Several important contracts with prominent manufacturers have been closed during the past months and what is more important is the fact that business on hand for 1924 is far greater than in previous years.

The same kind of activity prevailed throughout the plant of the Krasco Mfg. Co. Everywhere in this plant there was the buzzing of machinery, and the pounding of hammers in the shipping departments could be heard all through the plant. A great deal of this activity is due to the good work of Mervin F. Ashley, vice-president of the Krasco Co., who is making a trip throughout the Pacific Coast territory. Mr. Ashley has been very successful in closing quite a number of new Krasco accounts while on this trip and the addition of these new orders coming on makes it necessary for the working force of this concern to be enlarged by the addition of many new skilled mechanics.

growing business the Blood Tone Arm Co. has found it necessary to look about for increased room and has been successful in obtaining additional space in the building where it is already located. This company's force of mechanics has lately been largely augmented by additional workers, and several of the departments, particularly the soldering and plating department, which heretofore were at some distance from the factory, are now under one roof, which permits greater efficiency throughout the entire plant. This concern is working two shifts a day at present in an effort to meet the influx of orders for its products.

Upon arriving at the plant of the Sterling Devices Co. we discovered Fred. Keller, Jr., up to his ears behind a pile of correspondence which cluttered up the whole top of his desk. Upon asking the "whyfor" of all the literary efforts we were escorted into the assembly department of this concern. Here we found activities going on at full tilt in spite of the fact that every bit of assembly space was being utilized to turn out Sterling devices. This concern recently announced to the trade its new Edison attachment and as a result orders have been coming in from every section of the country, which have in turn caused the intensified activity.

Our next venture was through the plant of Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, manufacturers of the well-known Scotford tone arms and superior reproducers. Accepting the kind invitation of R. N. McArthur, sales manager of the phonograph parts division and advertising manager of the company, we were escorted through the various departments of this institution. This concern places on the market perhaps the greatest assortment of types and designs used in the printing arts that is being made in this country. In the manufacture of this material the most complicated die castings are made use of and it is due to this long experience in die casting that Barnhart Bros. & Spindler have come to be famous throughout the world. It was therefore an easy matter for them to take up the matter of die-casting for tone arms and reproducers and in the years they have been doing this sort of work they have added to their recognition.

In our rounds throughout the various departments we found the die-casting machines squirting out the metal just as fast as could be done. At the same time we visited the plating and assembly departments and here the work is given utmost care, in spite of the terrific rush. In his comments on the present tendency of the trade, Mr. McArthur remarked that he did not know where all of the talking machines were going. Nevertheless, the orders continue to pour in every day and this has necessitated lengthening labor hours throughout the plant in an effort to take care of the steadily increasing demand.

How A. J. Peterson Builds Trade

The illustration produced herewith shows a single shipment of instruments piled in front of Peterson's Milford Music Shop, 3301 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, Ill. When one considers that this concern's store measures only seventeen feet by fifty feet this is a considerable order and it also means that here is a dealer who is making sales. According to Andrew J. Peterson, proprietor, he is doing a nice business.

In answer to an inquiry as to how he secures prospects and other information concerning his methods the following statement may prove of value to other merchants who find business below par:

sonal calls. The others are followed up by mail. "As to handling collections, this is the easiest part of our work. If one will insist on at least a 10 per cent down payment and a like amount every month one will always get a sale that is worth while having. If we cannot get these terms from our prospects we let the other fellow have the sale and, incidentally, the worry of collecting from one who we believe cannot afford that certain instrument.

"We are great believers in direct-by-mail advertising. Occasionally we get up a circular descriptive of our line and put one in each letter box in our immediate neighborhood. This is rather expensive, so far as direct results are concerned, but the publicity we get is well worth the money and effort."

New Retail Store in Chicago

The latest retail establishment in this city is the new and attractive store recently opened at 11015 South Michigan avenue, better known as Roseland, by J. O. Twichell, formerly connected with the Wade-Twichell Co. Mr. Twichell has been in the business for over forty years. Some time ago he retired from the Wade-Twichell Co., but evidently finds it hard to leave the field of battle, for he has opened one of the handsomest stores in this section, carrying a full line of uprights, grands, reproducing pianos, talking machines, records and radio. Charles R. Newman, widely experienced in the business, is manager of the store.

The Okeh Record Football Team

E. A. Fearn, president of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., 227 West Washington street, is considered one of the foremost wholesale men in the country, but he is also keenly interested in outdoor sports. For several years past Mr. Fearn has been the manager of a champion football team, which in 1921 won the pennant in the Midwest League. With a keen insight for timely publicity Mr. Fearn has named his organization "The Okeh Record Football Team" and a mammoth Okeh record is the official mascot. The team opened its 1923 season with a tie game against one of the strongest organizations in the field and, without being unduly optimistic, it is predicted that the "Okeh Team" will finish either first or second in the Midwest League this year.

Another Association Formed

For the purpose of promoting interest and good-fellowship throughout the Chicago trade a number of well-known members of Chicago's retail dealers met on the evening of October 1 at the Kunz-Remmler Restaurant and formed an organization which will be known as the Chicago Musical Merchandise Association. The meeting was called to order and presided over by George M. Bundy, general manager of Tom Brown's Music Co., to whom much credit is due for his activities in bringing about the organization.

Dinner was served through the courtesy of the Tom Brown Music Co., after a preliminary announcement to the gathering was made by Mr. Bundy. A motion was put before the body for the permanent founding of the Association and election of officers. This motion was followed by the election of C. H. Flint, manager of the musical instrument department of Lyon & Healy, Inc., as president and J. D. (Cap.) Henderson, of the Conn Chicago Co., as secretary.

It was spread on the minutes of the Association that meetings were to be held every second week on a Monday evening until after the holiday season, at which time the final work in the formation of such an Association shall be completed.

It was further moved that C. D. Greenleaf, president of the American Band Instrument Manufacturers' Association, be invited to address the first regular meeting of the new Association, which will be held at the City Club on the evening of October 15 at 6 o'clock.

The following dealers were present at the initial meeting: Harry C. Reinwald, of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.; C. H. Flint, of Lyon & Healy; John R. Dubbs, of Lyon & Healy; W. H. Scouton, of Lyon & Healy; Howard J. Wallace, of Tom Brown Music Co.; Wm. H. Lyons, of Tom Brown Music Co.; J. D. Henderson, of Conn Chicago Co.; M. Berlin, of Musical Instrument Co.; J. H. Windsor Does Fine Publicity Work

One of the most beautifully designed catalogs that has ever been gotten out in the Chicago district has just been issued by the Windsor Furniture Co. The book is got up in folder style, with a beautifully embossed cover. On one of the inside leaves of this cover is a tabulation of the various Windsor models shown within the catalog. The folder is a sixteen-page affair, each page of high-grade stock and printed in four colors. The instruments shown are all of the console type, made famous by the Windsor Co. and considered by many in the trade to be the most artistic consoles ever offered. The reproductions are not made from retouched photographs, but are reproduced from the original drawings and designs of the Windsor designing department.

On the back of each picture are printed descriptive data concerning the instrument pictured.

Another interesting piece of literature which is at present being gotten out by the Windsor Co. is a chronological chart of art in furniture. This chart dates back to the antediluvian ages and begins with the first furniture ever made, the date of which is said to be 5000 years B. C. In bringing this out the Windsor Co. has developed the well-known graphic scheme of the "family tree." The graphic lines go forward from the origin and branch out, from time to time, into the various ages, until the chart has shown every period up to the present. By following this outline one can easily appreciate the various influences governing the history of art in furniture.

The Windsor Furniture Co. is a pioneer in the making of console cabinets. In fact, it is said that this concern can lay claim to being the originator of this type of instrument.

For many years the Windsor Co. has been internationally known for its artistry in furniture and practically every employe has been "born and raised" in the factory. There is a homelike feeling prevailing throughout the entire plant, due to the long associations of the employes with each other, and methods of instruction have been handed down from father to son. For example, it is said that the general manager of the plant learned the trade from his father, who was, in turn, an employe of the Windsor Co. Both father and son are still in that concern's employ. The same holds true of the general foreman and many other employes throughout the institution. An idea of the long service record of the Windsor employes may be gained when it is taken into consideration that there are ninety-two employes now in the concern who have seen continuous service ranging from twenty-five to thirty-eight years.

When this record is taken into consideration it can be easily seen that there is bound to be a thorough appreciation of art work. It predominates throughout the Windsor plant, and it is because of this appreciation on the part of its employes that the Windsor Co. has been able to maintain its high standards throughout the present era of increasing art appreciation in talking machine designing.

INDIANAPOLIS

Industrial and Agricultural Prosperity Made the Basis of Sanguine Expectations—Dealers Ordering Heavily—News of Month

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 9.—The month of October opened with the most favorable indications for a record-breaking business for talking machine dealers. Indiana is an agricultural and mining State, the central part being chiefly agricultural. The southern section, which is generally included in what is considered Indianapolis territory, is interested mainly in mining and agriculture. The extreme northern, or industrial, section is more properly included in Chicago territory, although Indianapolis houses draw much business from this district. Large crop yields mean greatly increased buying power in the agricultural communities. The mining communities are generally active and in good circumstances.

Dealers, as a rule, have enjoyed a good volume of Summer business, in most cases their sales for the first nine months of the year being far in excess of their sales for the same period of preceding years. As F. X. Donovan, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., points out, "This business is not done in any sensational way. We go along at a steady gait and when our final reports for the month are completed we find that we are far ahead of previous months. We have placed the largest order for machines in the history of the Pearson house to take care of expected Fall demand."

The Baldwin Piano Co., of Indiana, Brunswick dealer, has also placed a large order for machines, anticipating a rush season. According to C. P. Herdmann, sales manager of the talking machine department, this order will not be sufficient to cover their needs for Fall business. The Raleigh console has been a particularly popular model and there is a great demand for this machine.

Sonora has added two Indianapolis dealers during the month, the Banner Furniture Co. and Widener's Grafonola Shop, now handling this line, in addition to the Charles Mayer Co., which has heretofore been the only retail representative in the city. The Banner Furniture Co. has not handled any talking machines in the past and the new department will be in charge of P. E. Leffler. The Widener Co. now handles Victor, Sonora and Columbia machines and Victor, Columbia and Vocalion records.

Victor dealers report business in excess of last year's sales. The console model selling at $150 is the best seller at this time, according to R. M. Follis, manager of the Victrola department of L. S. Ayres & Co., one of the city's leading department stores.

Miss Minnie Springer, who for some time has been manager of the Victor department of the Taylor Carpet Co., has resigned this position, which in the future will be taken care of by W. A. Armstrong. The Taylor Carpet Co. featured "Gold Diggers," by Dornberger's Orchestra, in a large window display, which had considerable effect on sales.

The Brunswick Shop featured the appearance of the Oriole Terrace Orchestra at a local function on October 5 and 6.

L. P. Brock and H. G. Anderson, of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, recently called on the Edison dealers in the State and report splendid prospects for an unusually good Fall business. The Meskill Music Co., local Edison dealer, recently placed Edison machines in every ward of the Central Indiana Hospital for the Insane.

This house was represented by an exhibit at a local Industrial Show, held last week. F. C. Pullen, manager of the Phonograph Corp., is moving his family to this city from Orange, N. J. He will make his permanent home here.

The Pettis Dry Goods Co., celebrating the seventieth anniversary of its founding, as a novel advertising feature for the week, offers to deliver any model Victor for a 70-cent cash payment.

Albert Graham has been appointed manager of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., taking the place of W. G. Hawkins. Mr. Graham comes from Philadelphia. This house handles the Victor line and has recently added the Unique Gift Shop to its store.

Miss Ida Gear has resigned her position in the sales department of the Baldwin Piano Co. to become the bride of C. F. Silver, of Duluth, Minn. Her place with the Baldwin organization will be filled by Miss Roebina Sample. Miss Sample was for some time with the wholesale branch of Columbia.

C. B. DUNBAR NOW SALES MANAGER

The American Radio & Research Corp., Boston, Mass., producer of the well-known Amrad sets, has announced the appointment of C. B. Dunbar as general sales manager of the organization. Mr. Dunbar, for the past fifteen years, was connected with the office appliance field and has taken over entire charge of sales while the corporation is changing its selling plans and building a substantial national organization for merchandising Amrad products. The country is being divided into territorial divisions, with division headquarters, from which sub-branches will be directed. Twelve offices have already been opened in various parts of the country and this part of the company's reorganization schedule is rapidly being perfected.

THE TWIN CITIES

Campaigns of Retailers and Wholesalers Bring Up Sales Volume—Cardozo & Bros.' Fine New Store—New Agencies and Other News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., October 6.—One of the most prepossessing talking machine shops in the Twin Cities opened in St. Paul September 22 when R. N. Cardozo & Bros. introduced its exclusive Victor store. Great festivity and gratifying purchasing activity featured the store's opening, which is situated at 136 East Seventh street, adjoining the big furniture store owned by Cardozo's. A five-foot horseshoe of flowers, the gift of the Victor Co., occupied prominent space and conveyed greetings from Camden, N. J. A large bouquet from the George C. Beckwith Co., jobber, and a profusion of garden flowers provided further decoration. At the formal opening Saturday roses were given to women visitors and balloons to the children. An oil painting of the Victor dog was displayed, as well as paintings of four famous Victor artists.

The event was heralded in the newspapers by full-page advertisements featuring the Victor console, 210. An interesting sidelight was that the firm on the opening day sold a half dozen models No. 215, retailing for $50 more than the advertised machine. The record sales, according to report, went into three figures.

Roy Swanstrom, popular and experienced, is in charge of the Victor shop. The place is equipped with fourteen hearing rooms fitted with electric fans and other conveniences. The whole is decorated in old ivory in paneled effects. The place is given prominence by an electric Victor sign which can be seen for two blocks in either direction. Cardozo's, which is noted for its enterprise in selling not only furniture, but talking machines, also operates the Brunswick Shop.

Victor Dealers Ordering Heavily

"Business in Minnesota and Wisconsin is very good," states Charles K. Bennett, manager of the George C. Beckwith Co., Victor distributor. "The new Victrola art models are selling very well and the only concern of the dealers is that they may not be able to get enough to supply the demand," he continued. Fred. H. Strum, salesman, reports business much improved after a trip through Wisconsin and Minnesota, where he booked many orders. He was particularly impressed with the prosperity in Wisconsin.

F. K. Dahlberg, sales manager of the Victor Co., spent two days in the Twin Cities and left encouraging assurances for Victor deliveries for the balance of the year. C. C. Hicks, of the Victor Co., has been in town for a fortnight.

Victor Educators Lecture Here

Miss Grace Barr and Miss Conn, representing the Victor educational department, have been arranging meetings with the Teachers' Institutes all over Minnesota. Miss Barr spent two days in Faribault, where she gave talks not only before the grade and high, but before the well-known private schools, these including St. Mary's School for girls and Catholic institutions. She also talked at the State School for the Blind.

Brunswick Business Improves

"Doc" O'Neill, of the Brunswick Co., states that conditions are improving, especially along collection lines. The dealers in the larger towns are starting to build up their holiday stocks. The purchasing power of the dealer in the very small town is a very dubious question. Most of the smaller town merchants have extended credit to the farmer up to their capacity and their purchasing power will depend largely upon collections during the next sixty days. One real trouble with the farmer is that he bought land during war time at from 50 to 100 per cent above its real productive value when grain alone is raised. The tendency, however, is upward.

Fred Nelson, Brunswick salesman, in his travels finds conditions better in Wisconsin than in Minnesota and pretty fair on the Iron Range.

Big Brunswick Advertising Drive

The Brunswick full-page advertisement appeared in Sunday, September 30, Minneapolis Tribune with tie-ups with most of the local dealers. Large advertisements also appeared October 1 in the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch, the "Duluth Herald and the Butte (Mont.) Miner, as well as special advertisements in connection with the appearance of Frederic Fradkin, violinist, playing on the Orpheum Circuit, the week beginning September 30 in Minneapolis and the week of October 7 in St. Paul.

The Brunswick two-page spread in the Saturday Evening Post, September 15, has been posted in the windows of a number of dealers. The trade is enthusiastic about the new "Raleigh" model.

Meanwhile the Brunswick girl, familiar to all readers of the company's advertisements, has been fitted with a motor by the ingenious "Doc" O'Neill and apparently places records on the nearby phonograph. The girl has been on display in the Davis and Ruben windows and will move about, visiting the various Brunswick stores.

Many New Edison Agencies

"Business the first half of September has been very good," according to J. Unger, of the Laurence H. Lucker Co., Edison distributor. "The warm weather caused a falling-off the middle of the month, but the results of the entire month have been pretty good. The wholesale business is fine and results in Wisconsin are very good. Record business is improving throughout the country, I believe."

The Edison people have a great list of new accounts during the past month, including C. P. Buzzell, Cleveland, N. D.; C. C. Eikeness, Edinburgh, N. D.; F. L. DeMark, Catawba, Wis.; A. E. Stult, Iron River, Mich.; McDonald Furniture Co., Hancock, Mich.; C. A. Henk Drug Co., Waverly, Minn.; J. L. Boline, Parkers' Prairie, Minn.; O. M. Erickson, Evansville, Minn., and William De Grote, Clara City.

Thousands of names were added to the list of Edison prospects as the result of the State Fair contest conducted the first week in September at the annual Minnesota Fair. Ten machines have been sold in Minneapolis as the result of this exhibition and in St. Paul sales have been equally as good.

Milton H. Lowie, of the Edison retail store, the Minnesota Phonograph Co., has returned from a hunting trip to Silver Lake, Minn.

Recent visitors at the Lucker offices were R. E. Kreader, Cogswell, N. D.; T. L. Lee, Mable, Minn., and Mrs. W. W. Christianson, Winona.

George A. Mairs, manager of the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., jobbers, has no complaint to make of business and states that local dealers are doing a nice trade in talking machines.

Death of W. L. Harris

Of great concern to talking machine men was the recent death of W. L. Harris, president of the New England Furniture Co., one of the earliest dealers here and a Victor jobber until about ten years ago. Mr. Harris dropped dead in the midst of a very busy, public-spirited life at mid-day on the corner of Sixth street and Hennepin avenue. He was born in Boston and came here thirty-five years ago.

Bequests of Late C. L. Waldo

The late Carlos L. Waldo, of the Foster & Waldo Co., which deals in Brunswick, Cheney and Victor machines, left in excess of $100,000 to local charities, regardless of denomination. His foster-son, Walter P. Nestler, of Flaxton, N. D., to whom Mr. Waldo bequeathed a half million, is expected to come to Minneapolis to make his home.

Festival Tie-up Pays

Joe Nylin, aggressive Victor dealer in East St. Paul, recently co-operated in celebrating the Payne Avenue Merchants' Annual Harvest Festival. Joe had two window displays, one an appropriate setting of the Victor model 400 with a background of pumpkins, corn stalks and the other with smaller Victor instruments. Several sales were made and many prospects obtained.

The Victor dog will be on exhibit at the Winter circus which the St. Andrew's Club, an organization of northeastern Minneapolis merchants, is arranging for the near future.

Many Prospects From Fair

The Hennepin County Fair, at Hopkins, yielded M. B. Hagen, Hopkins Victor dealer, a raft of prospects for Winter work as the result of a contest which the firm conducted in

The New Edison is recognized as the foremost phonograph of all time. It means prestige to the merchant who sells it.

The new low priced models—upright and console—new increased discounts, quick turnover and timely release of the latest hits offers steady increasing profits.

Biggest Per Capita Business

Lucas Knese, of Roscoe, Minn., which boasts a population of 186, claims the championship for per capita sales in Victrolas. His sales ran more than $5 per capita for 1922 and so far this year the figure has been doubled. It is said that hard work is his secret and that he does not consider he has done a day's work until he has traveled 100 miles in his car.

News Gleanings

Sewall D. Andrews, of Doerr, Andrews & Doerr, Sonora distributors, left September 29 for the East, accompanied by Mrs. Andrews and their daughter, Miss Mary Andrews. Miss Andrews will sail Wednesday from New York on the "Conte Rosso" for Naples, where she will attend Miss Moxley's school. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews have closed their Summer home at Ferndale, Lake Minnetonka, and will remain in the East for some time.

Milton Swanson, who has been with the Beckwith Co. for some years, is representing the firm in central and northwest Minnesota.

John Lang, manager of the phonograph department at the Dayton Co., is the proud parent of a new eight-pound daughter. Congratulations!

Harold Ruben, of Davis & Ruben, has just completed a new home on a bluff overlooking Lake Harriet.

TAKES ON THE SONORA LINE

The Ober Furniture Co., at Chagrin Falls, O., has taken on the Sonora line of talking machines, and alterations to the store to permit the opening of a Sonora talking machine department have been started. Modern fixtures will be installed throughout.

C. H. DITSON BUYS BUILDING

The New York building which houses the music publishing firm of Charles H. Ditson & Co., 8-12 East Thirty-fourth street, has been purchased by that organization from the estate of William Waldorf Astor. The Ditson Co. occupies the ten-story building built in 1912, close to Fifth avenue, near the shopping center. Although the Ditson Co. held a long lease on the land, it deemed it more advantageous to control the ownership of both land and building.

BALTIMORE

Dealers and Jobbers Hard at Work Making Sales—Growing Demand for Popular Models Bringing About Machine Shortage—The News

BALTIMORE, Md., October 8.—Business is good in the talking machine line here, and, according to the majority of dealers, has steadily increased. Dealers generally are looking forward to one of the best Fall and Winter seasons in several years. The only thing that now bothers practically all jobbing firms is the question of being able to supply the orders already booked for early delivery.

Another encouraging feature of the retail trade is the fact that the public is now turning to the higher-priced machines and in a great many cases is paying cash for them or on short terms of thirty, sixty or ninety days. The retail record business on all makes of records has been going forward by leaps and bounds and on some of the more popular pieces it is practically impossible to supply the demand.

W. F. Roberts, manager of F. F. Droop & Sons, Victor distributors, said his business is limited only by the number of machines he is able to get, as he has been oversold on practically all popular types for several months. "I have been making 'curbstone' deliveries of some models for so long that I hardly know what one looks like myself," he declared. "In our retail department I find a very noticeable increase in the sale of the higher-grade models and many of these are for cash."

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Busy

Practically the same condition prevails with the firm of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., another local Victor jobber. I. Son Cohen, head of the firm, said he had not opened any accounts during the past month for the reason that he wanted to take care of his old customers and orders on the books now before going after new trade. He also reports shortage of 80's and 210's but feels that he will be able to catch up on deliveries before long. September business, Mr. Cohen said, was about the same as last year and that it did not run ahead considerably more was due entirely to the fact that the firm could not get enough machines to fill orders already booked.

"The new double-faced records are going big and it is about impossible to supply the demand on some of the more popular pieces," said Mr. Cohen. "Our business has just about doubled in the past month and orders keep coming in faster than we can fill them." Mr. Cohen has just returned from a trip to Canada by auto and reports one of the most enjoyable trips he has ever taken.

William Biel, son-in-law of Mr. Cohen and a member of the firm, is coming to take charge of the business here and in Washington as soon as he closes up his affairs in New York, where he is now located.

New Columbia Agencies

The Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., report very gratifying results in all parts of their territory on the new model Columbias. Dealers generally are very enthusiastic over the machine, according to L. L. Andrews, president of the company. The big Columbia advertising campaign has resulted in a stimulation of business in this city and vicinity.

The following new accounts were opened recently: W. E. Jacobs, Bedford, Va.; Banner Furniture Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Butler Furniture Co., Roseboro, N. C.; Weaver Music Co., this city; E. D. Hubert, Victoria, Va.; Cobb Furniture Co., Newton, N. C.; T. J. Truitt, Salisbury, Md.; Carver Furniture Co., South Hill, Va.; J. J. Bolling, Blackstone, Va.; W. B. F. White, Richlands, Va.; C. L. Totten, Saltville, Va.; Kenbridge Drug Co., Kenbridge, Va.; Imperial Music Co., Salem, Va., and Bertha Mineral Co., Austinville, N. C.

The record business, according to Mr. Andrews, is showing a marked increase since the first of the month, especially on the Bessie Smith records, which have had the biggest sale in the Southern territory of any record ever put out by the company.

Recent visitors to the office of the Baltimore Columbia branch in the last several weeks include Mr. Thompson, of Thompson Bros., Anacosta, D. C.; James Cowan, of Colonial Piano Corp., Richmond; Sol. Friedberg, Grafonola Shop, Inc., Norfolk, Va.; Morris Baron, of Cumberland, Md.; H. W. Hall, of Emporia, Va.; W. F. Cheers, Sanford, N. C.; Mr. McDaniels, of Adkins & Co., Lynchburg, Va., and Tony Durso, Washington, D. C.

Columbia dealers in Baltimore territory celebrated the wonderful sales they have been getting on records for the colored trade by holding a big "Bessie Smith Week" during the second week of September.

New Kranz-Smith Manager

Edward Keefer, who has just been appointed manager of the talking machine department of the Kranz-Smith Piano Co. here and is only twenty-two years old, has been in the talking machine business for four years, starting with Kranz-Smith as an outside salesman. He is a violinist of note and leader of a jazz orchestra, and he has the distinction of being the youngest manager of a music department in the city.

Brunswick Ad Drive Resultful

The local Brunswick branch is gradually catching up on deliveries, according to Manager C. F. Shaw, who hopes soon to be in a position to fill Fall orders more promptly. The advertising campaign which the Brunswick has been conducting in this territory is producing big results and dealers generally are placing larger orders than has been the rule in the past. New accounts opened during the past month included the Reynolds Music Co., of Clifton Forge, Va.; Martin Music Store, of Annapolis, Md., and the Sprinkle Piano Co., of Norfolk, Va., which firm has just opened its handsome new store at 440 Grandby street. The whole first floor of the establishment is devoted to the sale of talking machines with twenty-four booths and one of the largest window displays south of Washington. The opening was attended by H. A. Beach, of the Brunswick Co., and Manager Shaw, of the local branch.

Store Rack System of Sales

The Record Distributing Co., a recently incorporated firm, which is handling Pathé records and machines, reports big results from a store rack system of sales which it inaugurated a few months ago. Taking in small stores throughout the residential sections of the city which are supplied regularly each week by auto trucks, it has placed handsome racks holding twelve records in hundreds of places where they are brought to the attention of customers when they make their daily purchases at the various stores. According to Frank Cozzens, president of the company, the firm started out with one truck and the business has increased to such an extent that it now operates four trucks daily on regular schedules throughout the city. The firm also reports very good results from a block carnival recently held for the benefit of a local hospital, at which it had a large Pathé machine playing records which were sold from a booth.

To Hold Columbia Dealers' Meeting

As soon as a complete line of Columbia machines has been received, which is expected to be about the latter part of this month, a dealers' sales meeting will be held in the Columbia salesrooms, at which G. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Co., will give a series of talks on salesmanship. Dealers from all parts of the territory, which includes Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and North Carolina, have signified their intention of attending.

William H. Swartz, secretary and treasurer of the company, has been confined to his home by illness.

Here and There in the Trade

Miss Agnes Hopper, billing clerk at the Brunswick agency, will be married on the twentieth to Charles Elwood Gross, of Belair. Miss Hopper, who is one of the most popular employes of the company, was the recipient of a linen shower when she tendered her resignation this week.

Josef Hoffman and Isa Kremer, Brunswick artists, appeared here this month and dealers took advantage of this to boost sales of their records on both occasions, featuring them in window displays with good results.

W. N. Kuhn is now the North Carolina representative for the Brunswick, with headquarters in Richmond, while D. W. Causey is representing the company in the Virginia territory.

T. Ralph Clark, sales manager of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., resigned on the first of the month.

Edward Keefer, manager of the talking machine department of the Kranz-Smith Piano Co., has augmented his sales force since the first of the month. With the assistance of Samuel Fink he has worked out a new sales plan which he believes will produce big results.

President Andrews, of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., is looking for big results from the extensive campaign of advertising that the Columbia Co. is going to start on the twenty-first of this month and continue until after the Christmas business season.

The Lexington Talking Machine Shop is making a drive on the single-faced Red Seal Victor records.

The Cheney Westminster and Salisbury models are being featured in the advertising in the daily papers of the Chickering, Kranz-Smith and Knabe warerooms.

THE PORTABLE AS A CHRISTMAS GIFT

The Plaza Music Co., New York, manufacturer of the Pal portable phonograph, has been sponsoring an aggressive sales and publicity campaign among its dealers, based on the idea that this phonograph is an appropriate Christmas gift. The response to the campaign has been far beyond expectations and the orders placed by the Pal dealers indicate that the company will receive practical co-operation from its representatives in making the campaign a signal success.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the thirty-first of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

TALKING MACHINE AND THE TEACHER

The musical possibilities of the talking machine are commonly understood by almost any class of the community better than by the one class of men and women which is naturally expected to know most about them. Musicians, as a rule, are vastly ignorant concerning anything more than the veriest superficialities of the matter and, in consequence, both they themselves and the music industries fail to obtain advantages which await being grasped.

The failure of musicians generally to recognize the beauties of the talking machine and its power as a teacher and inspirer is largely due, of course, to the innate conservatism of the profession; a conservatism which itself is to be traced mainly to the narrowing effects of the current system of musical education. Musicians are trained to play the piano or the violin, the 'cello or the organ. Commonly they are trained to do little else. The body of professional musicians is, therefore, not unnaturally narrow and prone to scornful skepticism in its attitude towards all musical innovations, especially to any which can easily and safely be brought under the general, the sweeping and the inaccurate charge of being "mechanical."

Some musicians, fortunately, see further than this and many have admitted the talking machine to their studios. In so doing these followers of the tone-art have been guided by an intense desire to make their teaching a living thing and not merely a dry-as-dust drill in the technical complexities of fingering, pedaling and phrasing this or that piece of music. There are teachers, unfortunately, who insist upon each pupil learning a set method of playing every piece which he or she undertakes to master. There is, of course, no warrant for so absurd a proceeding, save in the hopelessly inartistic belief that the one perfect way of performing any art work can be set down in formulas which must not be subjected to any change or modification. Such teachers—and they are many—are responsible for the stagnant condition of musical art in most communities.

What the Talking Machine Offers Them

Now, the talking machine comes and offers something new and living to these threshers of dead straw, these grinders of old bones. Today the best voices, the best instrumental artists offer to the music student an almost unlimited quantity of examples in every kind of musical interpretation. The best singers in the operatic field give us a variety of examples in the interpretation of almost every one of the better known arias and scenes. One can get half a dozen renditions of the "Lucia Sextette," of the "Celeste Aida," of the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," of the "Maiden's Wish," of Schubert's "Du Bist Die Ruh'," of Liszt's "Lorelei," of Gluck's "Che Faro." One can get rival readings of a dozen Chopin Nocturnes, Etudes, Preludes and Scherzi. One can get the glorious Andante of Goldmark's Concerto for the violin in A from two masters, and the Romance from the Tschaikowski violin concerto at the hands of three. Month by month additions are made to the lists of master interpretations available to the owner of a talking machine in every branch of musical performance. Already there are rival renderings of great orchestral works. I possess four orchestral interpretations of the great introduction to the third act of Wagner's "Valkyr," that which is generally known as the "Ride of the Valkyries." And any such list, by search of the catalogs, can be vastly increased.

Adding Weight to Authority

With all this wealth of interpretative material cannot a musician, and especially a teaching musician, gain immensely in the life and value he can give to his work by having at his disposal an instrument which permits him to illustrate his precepts by actual examples of the inspiration of men and women who have made world-wide reputations for themselves as expositors of the practical art of musical performance? In a word, if one desires to show a pupil the inner beauty, the deepest significance of a certain idea in music which that pupil is striving to render through the keyboard or the bow, how much easier is the task when to one's personal authority can be added the authority of Paderewski, of Hofmann, of Cortot, of Heifetz, of Kreisler, or of Casals!

Even more obvious is the strength of the idea when we are dealing with voice teaching. Allowing for every criticism which can safely be made on the score of defects in reproduction, no voice teacher has ever yet denied that, when it comes to style, phrasing, breath-control and attack, the talking machine and its records provide auxiliaries simply unsurpassable. They give the details of the vocal work of, perhaps, half a dozen great artists who have preserved their personal interpretation of a passage, of a scene, or of a song, in as many individual records. They thus provide what otherwise could not possibly be provided: a living example always at the disposal of the student and ever ready to point the way to attainment.

The use of talking machines and their records by teachers of vocal or instrumental music should not, however, be conducted in any unsystematic manner, if the utmost good is to be had from them. The teacher must study this material as carefully as he studies any other teaching aid, as carefully as he studies a score for fingering and phrasing marks. Records abound, but they have not been prepared, in the majority of cases, specially to be used by musicians for teaching. Consequently, they will usually have to be carefully studied, printed music in hand, in order that any cuts may be noted and especially that the music reproduced on them may be collated with the printed text and the interpretation thus made valuable.

Making the Material Practical

From a practical standpoint it will probably be necessary to study every record in this manner and so relate it to a printed text as to make the interpretation it represents practically as well as aesthetically valuable. For instance, if one wishes to compare a recorded interpretation of a piano piece with the pupil's own attempts at the keyboard the very first thing to be done will be to adjust the speed of revolution of the talking machine until the pitch of record and of studio piano is identical. Once such an adjustment has been made the speed should be noted on the label of the record. It will also usually be necessary, and always advisable, to note such facts as (a) speed of revolution needed, (b) relation of record to printed text, with notes of where record begins and ends, what cuts if any are made, etc., and (c) special places where interpretation requires explaining or points a lesson in artistic handling of musical material. A book of such notes might, in fact, be kept, with the proper entries made against each title of record.

Then it becomes possible to use the talking machine as a constant companion to the teacher, drawing upon its unrivaled store of musical material for illustrations and examples. Music teaching is likely to be dreary to many, but the talking machine offers a relief, if it be rightly used, of fascination and power.

If the makers of records felt that musicians appreciated the talking machine they would be only too willing to listen to requests for special material of the kind described and to do their best to supply it. Until, however, such a request is made—and more than once—it is too much to expect that they shall take the first step themselves.

Retail merchants, too, who are looking out for fields to conquer may see in these paragraphs the indications of a way to the hearts of the musicians in their communities.

JUNIOR OPERETTAS IN THE SCHOOLS

Records Made by Vulcan Record Corp. Endorsed by School Authorities—Robert Foresman Joins the Vulcan Organization

The Vulcan Record Corp., New York, manufacturer of the Junior Operetta series of records, has been attaining excellent results in the introduction of these records to the various educational authorities throughout the country. Robert Foresman, a well-known educational authority, has joined the forces of the Vulcan Record Corp., and in conjunction with F. E. Hedinger, secretary and treasurer of the company, has been responsible for the endorsement of the records by many well-known educators.

The "Little Red Riding Hood" records in the Junior Operetta Series have been carefully tested by the different departments of education in the leading cities and the letters of endorsement received by the company have been highly gratifying. An interesting letter received recently from Edwin N. C. Barnes, director of music for the public schools of the District of Columbia, Washington, D. C., read as follows: "I have listened to the new operetta, 'Little Red Riding Hood,' with absorbing interest and a great deal of satisfaction. I believe that your new Junior series of operettas is destined to fill an important place in the musical development of the children of the land. I am delighted with your initial number. The members of my department are all equally pleased with it. Of course, the home is the real place for the operettas as they come along, but I see a place for them also in the schools, and I shall be very glad to recommend the purchase of 'Little Red Riding Hood' for the schools of the city by our department. I shall watch the development and growth of this new movement in amusement and music education with great interest. You can count on my cooperation and assistance at all times. Very truly yours (Signed) Edwin N. C. Barnes."

From New Rochelle, N. Y., an interesting communication was received from Albert Leonard, superintendent of schools, who referred to the Junior Operetta series as follows: "I am delighted with the idea on which 'Little Red Riding Hood,' a Junior operetta, is based. In these days of endless so-called pedagogical devices it is refreshing to find one certain to be so useful to the school and home as this appeal to the literary sense of the child through music. This will be particularly useful in the literature work in the elementary grades. I am so confident that this will prove helpful in our schools that a set will be placed in each school in this city. It is my opinion that the authors and publishers of this plan to foster in our school children a love of folk-lore and story through music are to be congratulated on the service they are rendering. (Signed) Albert Leonard, superintendent of schools."

The National Council of Women, Inc., which is affiliated with the International Council of Women, and which is recognized as one of the most important and influential women's organizations in the world, is keenly interested in the "Little Red Riding Hood" records. Mrs. Ola B. Campbell, chairman of the department of music of this organization, after hearing the records, wrote as follows: "I have just listened to the records of 'Little Red Riding Hood.' The operetta is a revelation. The adaptation of the story is equal to any of our dramatists, while the music has a remarkable charm. The whole thing is a creation of highest standard. I congratulate you on the co-operation you have received in the manufacture and make-up of the records. Too often the commercial interests come in and break down the finest conception. You have surely been fortunate in this respect. When the operetta is completely finished I will be glad to have you send me a set for the office where I can bring it to the attention of the various women's organizations throughout the country that make my office a sort of national headquarters. I thank you for bringing this beautiful work to my attention. The country is ready for it and I am positive the venture will meet with the commercial success its artistic qualities merit. Yours sincerely, (Signed), Ola B. Campbell, Chairman Music Dept., National Council of Women."

Gourlie Music Co. Sells Columbia Phonograph Five Minutes After Ad Appears

The general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. received an interesting communication recently from the Gourlie Music Co., of Tampa, Fla., referring to the consummation of a remarkably quick sale. Within five minutes after an eighty-inch advertisement had appeared in the Tampa Times a lady came into the store and purchased a Columbia Grafonola No. 2, referring directly to the advertisement. The following day the company sold twenty-nine Columbia phonographs as a result of the advertising and the response to the campaign was so great that further insertions of the copy were found inadvisable.

ADVERTISING HELPS SPECHT'S CASE

Orchestra Director Wins Lawsuit by Showing Buescher Publicity—Window Cards and Hangers Used as Evidence in the Case

Paul Specht, well-known orchestra director and exclusive Columbia artist, recently filed a damage suit against the Recreation Amusement Center Corp. of Baltimore, Md., during the course of which his attorney was obliged to prove to the satisfaction of the court that Mr. Specht had made diligent efforts to insure the success of his appearance with his orchestra by advertising co-operatively with the defendant in the suit. This was accomplished through the introduction of handsome window cards issued by the Buescher Band Instrument Co., which had been placed in Baltimore store windows, announcing the local appearance of Paul Specht and His Orchestra. Buescher lobby displays and local advertising were also shown. Mr. Specht won his case, proving to the satisfaction of the court that he had fulfilled his obligations in every possible way.

Edison Dealers Hold Annual Convention — Tie-up With Artist — Other News and Trade Activities

ALBANY, N. Y., October 8.—The annual convention of the Edison dealers of the American Phonograph Co., serving this section of the State, Massachusetts and Vermont, met at the Ten Eyck Hotel Wednesday, October 3, with about sixty dealers in attendance. N. D. Griffin, of the American Phonograph Co., directed the meeting and conducted the question box of merchandising ideas, which were informally discussed, as well as sales plans for the promotion of business. The latest models of talking machines were shown, concerning which the dealers were enthusiastic as to the sales prospects. Since the last convention more radical changes have been made in the models than ever before, thereby increasing the demand for the latest styles as well as introducing the problem to the dealers of handling used machines taken in trade. The spirit of optimism prevailed among all the dealers without exception as to the outlook for Fall business and this was backed up by the heavy orders placed for records. F. C. Beatty, Lawrence L. Scholl and R. R. Karch were the representatives present from Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Orange, N. J. A luncheon was served at noon and in the evening the dealers and their wives were the guests of Mr. Griffin at a banquet. Set speeches were tabooed and the singers present were heard in solos as well as an improvised quartet. The health of Thomas A. Edison was drunk with a cheer.

Pommer & Sons have established a sub-agency at 306 Central avenue, in charge of George Kluck, who will handle the Brunswick machines and records exclusively. This is in the up-town section of the city, where there is little competition in the sale of talking machines and records.

The appearance of John McCormack in concert and the delightful Schubert musical scores in "Blossom Time" at the opening of the new Capitol Theatre led to a general window display of the McCormack and Schubert records by most of the Albany dealers. The Baker Music House, Inc., had a window display advertising the new popular song, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake," with a real cake, a piece of which was presented to each purchaser of a record of the song. General Manager Kellogg says many records were sold and he is planning unique window displays each week.

The first of the Vocalion Red records, "Zampa Overture," made by the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, conducted by Gennaro Papi, has arrived among the dealers and is having large sales, owing to extensive advertising.

Among the new corporations recently chartered at the Secretary of State's office during the month was the Advance Metalized Records Co., Inc., to manufacture phonograph records in the Borough of Manhattan, with a capital stock of $50,000. Directors are: Robert Quait, Jr., 210 Fifth avenue; John E. Leddy and Elizabeth Hagan, 120 Broadway, New York.

Leader's Music Store, Inc., to deal in musical instruments at Liberty, N. Y., with a capital stock of $20,000. Directors are: Harry Kaufman, Helen Cohen, Joseph Steinbrink.

W. M. Whitney & Co., department store, featured a special three-day sale of Sonora, Columbia, Victor, Edison and Pooley machines.

O. W. RAY VISITING DISTRIBUTORS

Discussing Plans for Coming Vocalion Red Record Campaigns With Wholesalers

O. W. Ray, manager of the Vocalion Red record department of the Aeolian Co., returned recently from a short trip to Boston, where he conferred with A. C. Erisman, the local distributor, regarding plans for Fall and particularly as to arrangements for increasing shipments of Vocalion records to New England territory, which have been perfected by the Aeolian Co. Mr. Ray will leave shortly for Chicago to confer with the officials of the Vocalion Co. of Chicago regarding sales plans for Winter.

NEW VOCALION RECORD CATALOG

A complete new Vocalion Red record catalog, including all previous single-faced listings, together with the new double-faced listings of Vocalion records, is now in the hands of the printers and is expected to be ready for distribution in about a month. The volume will be a most comprehensive one, of over 100 pages.

Early Holiday Gift-buyers Selecting Instruments—Concerts by Record Artists Help Trade—Dealers and Jobbers Busy—The News

St. Louis, Mo., October 8.—With the air in and about St. Louis early in October filled with a mixture of jazz records, vocal records and airplane speed records, there seems to be growing a record call also for a "console for Christmas." Early holiday planners are already visiting the talking machine shops in this district trying to select the "best to be found" model of talking machine to present to "the folks" or some other recipient-to-be of the "big present." And the console models are much in demand at this time.

The first talking machine artist concert of the season was on October 4, when the Eight Famous Victor Artists—Henry Burr, Rudy Wiedoeft, Frank Croxton, Billy Murray, Albert Campbell, John Meyer, Frank Banta and Monroe Silver—appeared at the Odeon. Victor dealers made capital of the event.

This seems to be the season for the local appearance of artists. Ben Bernie and His Orchestra, Vocalion artists, recently appeared in a local theatre. Paul Whiteman's Collegians, Victor artists, are playing at the Hotel Chase and others are scheduled to make their appearance here during the present season.

The Silverstone Music Co., Edison distributor, with headquarters in this city, is rushed to meet the growing demands of dealers. Edison dealers are unanimous in their expressions of good business and expectations of a busy holiday trade, according to Manager Gold. The more expensive Edison models are the leaders at the present time.

The Artophone Corp., jobber of Okeh and Odeon records, is enjoying its busiest season of the year. H. S. Schiele, vice-president, has just returned from a ten days' trip through the Arkansas and Louisiana territory.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra announces the signing of a contract with the Victor Co. to make records.

Miss Marie Auberger has returned to her work in the Victrola department of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney after a very pleasant vacation spent in Colorado.

The Todd Jewelry Co. is doing some splendid advertising with the help of its multigraph. A recent card sent to the mailing list and used as handbills announces a popular record in this manner:

"Yes! We Have No Bananas"

but

"Tell Me, Gypsy" is "Stella"

"That Red Head Gal" "Swingin' Down the Lane"

"Beside the Babbling Brook" to get a "Kiss in the Dark" from "Aggravatin' Papa" or from

"Barney Google" "After Every Party"?

Signed "I Love Me."

In Rolla, Mo., each year a fair is held in August. The James A. Spilman Hardware Co., which has a Victrola department in the very efficient charge of Miss Lillian M. Allen, had a large booth this year in which some 12,000 people gathered.

The Artophone Corp., located temporarily at 1213 Pine street, will return to its old quarters at 1103 Olive street as soon as repairs are completed at the old store. The removal was necessitated by a fire. It is expected the remodeling of the Olive street store will be completed this month, adding greatly to the service facilities of the Artophone Corp.

Miss Wallie Griesedieck, formerly with the Kieselhorst Piano Co., is a new member of A. W. Hosier's Victrola selling staff, of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney.

Miss Ruth Graham, for several years in charge of the record department of the Adams Music Co., Victor dealer, Canton, Ill., lost her life in an automobile accident recently. At a dangerous turn in the road the car in which Miss Graham was riding overturned, pinning her beneath.

A. Crossen, Victor dealer, of Mounds, Ill., is cashing in on educational work in the schools. Recently he loaned an instrument and records to the Music Institute held in Mounds for use in the music appreciation classes held under the direction of Miss Golda Airy, of the Koerber-Brenner Co., and he also offered to loan a machine and records to any teacher who desired to conduct similar classes.

During two days of the week Miss Airy was asked to appear before the Alexander County teachers in their institute at Cairo, Ill.

At the close of the institute at Mound City the committee on resolutions incorporated the following in their list of resolutions adopted by the Association: "Whereas, practically all of the progressive schools use the Victrola for different purposes, we urge the teachers to purchase a Victrola, if possible, and use it in the many ways we have seen it used in this institute."

Mark Silverstone, of the Silverstone Music Co., left on September 29 for a ten-day visit to the Edison Laboratories, Orange, N. J.

Mr. Perkins, of the Keach Furniture Co., Hopkinsville, Ky., arrived in St. Louis October 3 for a one week's schooling in the sale of Edison phonographs and records.

Unusual in treatment—remarkably rich in its effect—made in both mahogany and walnut

The country-wide reputation which The Cheney has earned for designs of elegant simplicity is enhanced in the addition of The Salisbury to the line.

The two-tone effects which have proved so popular are perpetuated in this model, yet with a richness of handling which befits the most carefully furnished home.

Cabinet against cabinet, phonograph against phonograph, value against value, The Cheney is more than a match for any other phonograph. Consider these five great selling features:

- 1 An acoustic system that develops and restores the original tone from the record.
- 2 Practical elimination of needle scratch.
- 3 A violin resonator which makes Cheney tones grow sweeter with age.
- 4 Designs which set the standard in the industry for elegant simplicity.
- 5 Cabinet workmanship which bears the imprint of craftsmanship.

FINE "TREASURE CHEST" WINDOW

Many Sales of Records and Several Machines Result From Special Display Staged by M. Rappaport, Gotham Victor Dealer

M. Rappaport's Music Shop, 880 Westchester avenue, New York, has been featuring the "Treasure Chest," twelve selected Victor records of the music of the world packed in special containers originated by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York Victor jobber, in a big way through the medium of a special window display and the distribution of prizes to customers. The window display is probably one of the most effective, from the standpoint of sales of both the "Treasure Chest" and other records, and even talking machines, that have ever been staged in this section of New York. The floor of the entire window was covered with white sand. In the center was a "treasure chest" filled with coins and scattered about were the colorful containers of the records. During the evening "Captain Kidd," a man dressed as an old-time buccaneer, stood in the window and the curious of the entire neighborhood gathered outside to gaze at the display. They crowded the sidewalk and street in front of the store and many came in to secure further information, a number going out with "Treasure Chests" under their arms, as well as various other records which they remained to purchase. During the first evening several talking machines were sold. Such is the power of a desirable product, plus a good window display!

During the first evening a number of prominent members of the trade visited the store, including W. J. Haussler, general manager of C. Bruno & Son; Miss H. Marjorie Brown, E. G. Evans and Phillip Silverman, of the same concern; B. F. Bibighaus, of the New York sales organization of the Victor Co., and Mr. and Mrs. N. Shilkret. Mr. Shilkret is in charge of the Victor foreign record department, with headquarters in New York.

SPECIAL COLUMBIA PUBLICITY

Complete Advertising Campaign Features Records by Race Artists—Bessie Smith and Clara Smith Among Headliners of the Company

Special material, including monthly supplements, hearing-room hangers, special fliers and a complete campaign of advertising material, is now being issued by the Columbia Graphophone Co. in connection with its "blues" recordings made by negro artists. For more than two years the sales volume of this class of records has increased rapidly and among the Columbia headline artists to-day are Bessie Smith and Clara Smith. Records by these artists are meeting with popular reception everywhere, especially in the South, where it is not surprising to hear of dealers ordering as many as 2,000 of a selection within a period of a week or two.

In preparing these special monthly supplements and hangers to feature the records made by its various race artists the Columbia Graphophone Co. recognized the remarkable strides in popularity attained by this type of record during the past few years. The Columbia library includes records by many well-known negro artists, and their distinctive rendition of the leading "blues" selections have won enthusiastic praise from Columbia dealers.

COLUMBIA ARTIST IN STORE CONCERT

VICKSBURG, MISS., October 6.—The Delta Furniture Co., of this city, sponsored recently an interesting concert by "Lasses" White, Columbia artist, who with his company arrived in this city for a two days' engagement. Manager Franklin, of the Delta Furniture Co., invited the public to visit his store during Mr. White's appearance in Vicksburg and, following the rendition of several of his hits on a Columbia phonograph, Mr. White sang "Sweet Mama" and his own composition, "Broken Blossoms," which has not yet been recorded.

FEATURING THREE MODELS

Mayer Bros. & Bramley Concentrating on Three Period Designs—Walnut Finish Proving Popular—Many Dealers Adding Fischer Line

Mayer Bros. & Bramley, Inc., New York, manufacturer of the Fischer phonograph, is concentrating all of its activities upon three models, designated as the "Peter Pan," a compact design for metropolitan homes where floor space is limited; the "Rosemary," a phonograph in the popular two-tone wood effects, and the "Isabelle," a high-grade instrument of exceptionally artistic design. The company states that walnut finishes are gaining rapidly in favor and in many sections of the country are running mahogany a close race for first honors.

The early part of this year Mayer Bros. & Bramley adapted a policy whereby its factory and sales facilities were concentrated on the three period models mentioned above and this policy is working out very satisfactorily. New dealers are being established in all of the important trade centers and, in addition to closing a splendid Fall business, the company states that the outlook for the new year is very gratifying.

CLEVER CARD BOOSTS RECORD SALES

PEORIA, ILL., October 8.—The P. A. Bergner Co., this city, has issued an interesting card advertising Victor records. A list of two dozen records is given on a card of shopping list size and each record number is followed by some mysterious letters, such as V.V.G.—W. A key at the bottom of the card explains this to mean "very-very good waltz." It certainly holds the attention long enough to register the idea.

John Chas. Thomas, the popular concert and operatic star and Vocalion record artist, arrived from England on October 3, after filling an engagement at Albert Hall, in order to appear in recital at Aeolian Hall, New York, on October 14.

Federal RADIO

helps the Phonograph Dealer

THE beauty, finish and workmanship of Federal radio sets place them on a par with the finest phonographs made. And just as piano dealers, years ago, learned that the sale of phonographs stimulated their business—phonograph dealers today have learned that the sale of Federal radio sets helps their business to an even greater degree.

Phonograph dealers also know that the day of experiments in selling radio apparatus has ceased; that they may now buy with assurance, and safely take on the Federal line.

Today the Federal Telephone and Telegraph Company has an offer of great interest to dealers who can qualify. It is suggested that dealers who are interested write to the Federal Telephone & Telegraph Company at Buffalo, New York.

SALT LAKE CITY

Trade in Healthy State—Dealers Reorganize to Increase Efficiency During Holiday Rush—General Prosperity—Month's News

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, October 6.—The talking machine business here seems to be in a very healthy condition. Most of the leading musical organizations of the city have been reorganized for their Winter activities and this has created a demand for records and machines, too. But good as business is, it is only good to those merchants who go after it. Most of the local houses have staffs highly trained in both salesmanship and musical directions. These are the firms that are getting the business.

As regards the industrial situation, there seems to be nothing one could say that is not of a highly optimistic nature. Even wheat, which is not an altogether vital crop in this State, but the low price of which many thought would affect the purchasing power of the farmer to an appreciable extent, is bringing more money than it did some weeks ago and wheat is about the only agricultural crop here that did not turn out entirely satisfactory. Mining, manufacturing and building are in good shape, furnishing employment for all who care to work, while the tourist business this season has been the biggest in the history of the State.

Miss Beth Erickson, representative of the John Elliot Clark Co.'s educational department, is very active these days. She recently returned from Medicine Bow, Wyo., where she went to talk to the delegates to an educational convention and demonstrate the possibilities of the Victor machine. Miss Erickson is in great demand at these conventions.

Walter Robinson, of Robinson Bros. Co., with stores in Salt Lake City and Provo, will hereafter run the Provo establishment on his own account. Victor talking machines and pianos are handled.

The Bates Stores Co. is to have a fine new display room for its "period" models in connection with its Provo store. It handles Brunswicks and Edisons. P. S. Heilbut, secretary-treasurer, and manager of the phonograph department, was formerly with the O'Loughlin people, of Salt Lake City, Brunswick dealers.

W. P. Berry, assistant manager and head of the phonograph department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., has just returned from a duck-shooting expedition. He was accompanied by A. L. Card, of the firm.

The O'Loughlin store on Main street, until about a year ago an exclusive phonograph establishment carrying the Brunswick line, but later adding musical merchandise and pianos, has done considerable remodeling of late. There is an entirely new floor—a very small affair—and a neat, attractive mezzanine floor for offices and display purposes. The phonograph booths on the ground floor have new French windows and the entire establishment has been redecorated and improved.

The Clayton Jewelry Co., of Sugar House, is adding a piano and talking machine stock.

The Dixon-Taylor-Russell Co., of Provo, has moved its phonograph department from the front to the back of the store, where it occupies more space. It recently added the Sonora line. Miss Jessie Russell, a cousin of S. W. Russell, of the firm, has been placed in charge of the department.

R. F. Perry, of the phonograph division of the Brunswick Co., has returned from a trip into the Idaho territory and reports business as most satisfactory.

The local Brunswick office announces the appointment of two new Brunswick dealers in Idaho, the F. M. Williams Co., of Montpelier, and the Frank Popma Music Co., of Boise.

The Jenkins Furniture Co., Brunswick dealer, Boise, Idaho, which operates the radio broadcasting station KFBJ, has arranged for weekly concerts, featuring radio programs of Lyman's Ambassador Orchestra with new Brunswick record releases.

Edward Thoreson, of the Palace Drug Store, Brunswick dealer, Blackfoot, Idaho, was a recent visitor to the local branch.

O. C. Sheppard has joined the sales force of the T. C. Martin Music Co., Pocatello, Idaho.

The Bruce Music Co., Brunswick and Sonora dealer, Pocatello, expects to be in new and larger quarters by the tenth of this month.

The Ferry Furniture Co., Brunswick dealer, Glenn's Ferry, Idaho, expects to be in its new building soon.

The Boyden Drug Co. has arranged for an attractive Brunswick display at the Coalville Utah Fair to be held the last week in this month.

Frank Cerne, Columbia dealer, of Cleveland, O., has opened a new store at East Seventy-ninth street, in which the complete Columbia line is carried.

BRINGS RESPONSE FROM DEALERS

Feist Window Display Contest on "Saw Mill River Road" Participated in by Many Dealers

The sales campaign and window display contest recently announced by Leo Feist, Inc., has already brought a heavy response from sheet music retailers throughout the country. The window competition will be in effect during the entire month of October and the number selected for this special exploitation and publicity is one of the biggest successes in the current catalog of the publishers, namely, "Saw Mill River Road." Some unusually effective advertising material is being placed in retailers' hands and the campaign under way, considering the enthusiasm, promises to be one of the most successful ever arranged by this enterprising organization.

NEW NUMBER BY IRVING COHN

Irving Cohn, who collaborated in the writing of "Yes! We Have No Bananas," has placed with Jerome H. Remick & Co. a new song, entitled "Sweet Butter" (I'd Love It On My Toast). The Remick organization has decided to exploit it on a wide scale. Orchestrations will be released at once and several weeks later it is to be placed with vaudeville artists.

Jack Mills, Inc., has accepted a song from Mickey Caleo, a young composer from Utica, N. Y. Mr. Caleo's first production is entitled "In Old Bombay," a novelty Oriental number that promises well.

STRONG PUBLICITY FOR FOX SONGS

"Nights in the Woods" and "Just One More Kiss" Being Backed by Publicity Campaign. Including Richly Lithographed Cut-outs and Special Symphonic Orchestrations

The Sam Fox Publishing Co. is now concentrating on two distinctly promising numbers, namely, "Nights in the Woods" and "Just One More Kiss," which have been taken up strongly by dealers. The campaign of the Fox Co. includes particularly attractive advertising matter such as large and small cut-outs lithographed in several colors and supplied free to dealers all over the country. The leading orchestras have been provided with symphonic dance arrangements which have been well received and the regular straight dance arrangements have been made available to the smaller orchestras.

The Fox Co. ballad "Maid of the West" was featured recently at the I. L. C. A. convention held in Chicago, where it was introduced before several hundred Lyceum and Chautauqua artists from all sections of the country attending the convention. The number was sung by the well-known Chicago tenor, Walter Pontius.

"Warner's Seven Aces" have won thousands of admirers through their broadcasting from Station WGM, sponsored by the Atlanta Constitution. The orchestra has also appeared on several different occasions as vaudeville headliners in and around Atlanta and its services are in popular demand for dance purposes throughout Georgia. NEW FORSTER NUMBERS FEATURED

"Hula Dreams" and "Lou'Siana Blossom" Two New Hits Published by Forster Music Publisher, Inc., Featured in Attractive Window Display by the Song Shop in Petoskey, Mich.

CHICAGO, ILL., October 8.—The two new waltz numbers that have recently been added to the catalog of the Forster Music Publisher, Inc.,

Mr. Callahan and the music by Rose Richard-ville.

The Forster Music Publisher, Inc., reports that these numbers are making a very creditable showing in view of the fact that they have just been issued. Their popularity is shown in the large number of sales over the counter; in their being taken up by orchestras for dance numbers and by singers and glee clubs as vocal offerings; also by their reproduction on player rolls.

The title pages of these two songs lend themselves admirably to window displays and seem to go hand in hand. The accompanying photograph shows a very attractive display by N. J. Stone, proprietor of the Song Shop, Petoskey, Mich., who featured the two songs together in an exclusive window. To this dealer the result of the display proved three things: that window advertising pays, that the waltz song is coming into popularity again and that the

J. WITMARK BACK WITH GOOD NEWS

Finds Big Demand for Witmark Numbers Throughout Entire West

Jay Witmark recently returned from an unusually successful trip West and brought back with him abundant evidence of the tremendous popular interest in M. Witmark & Sons' publications. Orders for the leading successes both in the Popular-Standard-Pictorial numbers and the Witmark Black and White series were prodigious. Among the popular numbers the leaders are "Bebe," which is a fox-trot success. Other active numbers are "Midnight Rose" and "Long Lost Mamma," which is especially big in the West; "When Will the Sun Shine for Me?" and the latest successes, "I'm Sitting Pretty in a Pretty Little City" and "That Bran' New Gal of Mine." Both in Chicago and Detroit Mr. Witmark found that already the new rearrangement and organization of the professional departments of the firm had borne remarkable results, reflected in enormously active demand and a fine enthusiasm on the part of the trade.

SPECIALIZING IN "BLUES" MUSIC

The Demand Indicates That Goodly Proportion of Public Favors Such Compositions

The list of "blues" numbers being published by the Spencer Williams Music Co., Inc., New York, of which a half dozen or so stand out prominently, are meeting with general favor from that portion of the public appreciating music of such character and the rolls and records that have been made of several of the numbers are selling in substantial numbers, according to reports received. The Spencer Williams Co. specializes in blues and plans some early additions to its catalog of such numbers.

The Gus Kahn and Isham Jones number "Swingin' Down the Lane," which had its original popularity in the Middle West, has suc-

Kresge "Swingin' Down the Lane" Display ceded in becoming one of the most important popular prints of the present season. According to late sales reports it has continued a leader over a period of weeks. No other number of the early Fall season has been more active in point of sales and, inasmuch as both the melody and lyric of this issue are far above the average, its life as a sales creator will, doubtlessly, be extended.

Irving Mills, vice-president of Jack Mills, Inc., is away on a trade trip which will include a ten weeks' trip through Canada and the Middle West of the United States. While away he will feature "Love Is Just a Flower," "Havana," "Just a Girl That Men Forget" and "Down-hearted Blues."

"WE HAVE NO BANANAS" IN COURT

Even the Judge in Suit in Maryland Smiles When Witness Calls Attention to the Superior Merits of That Very Popular Song

In the suit of Paul Specht, the orchestra leader, against a corporation of Baltimore for non-payment for musical services rendered Sam Tumin, Baltimore manager for Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., plugged the latter's hit song, entitled "Yes! We Have No Bananas," in the Superior Court.

Tumin was a witness for the plaintiff and testified that he had tried to see Paul Specht on the first night of his engagement in Baltimore. He said: "I tried to see Paul Specht at the Recreation Centre Ballrooms on the night of April 3." Then he added, in a loud tone: "I wanted to give him a copy of our sensational hit, entitled 'Yes! We Have No Bananas.'" The introduction of the title of the famous comedy song in a dignified Superior Court caused much mirth and even Judge Gorter laughed, endeavoring in vain to cover his laughter with his gavel. Specht won the case.

SCHOOLS ADOPT CONFREY COURSE

Christensen Music School to Use Course in Novelty Piano Playing in All Its Branches Located Throughout the Country

It is announced that Zez Confrey's Modern Course in Novelty Piano Playing, prepared by the popular composer of such successes as "Kitten on the Keys," "Stumbling," etc., and published by Jack Mills, Inc., New York, has been adopted officially by the Christensen School of Music, with some sixty branches in various sections of the country, and will be used by that school in conjunction with its other methods.

The new Confrey course, although only recently introduced, has proved very popular and the first edition was so quickly exhausted that even in some cases they had difficulty in getting sufficient copies to meet the demand, although this condition is being overcome.

Feist Branch in That City, Since Entering New Quarters, Increases Sales by 75 Per Cent

There has been reported by Quaker City Manager Floyd Kinney the biggest season in the history of Leo Feist, Inc., whose local branch occupies the fourth floor of the building at 1228 Market street, Philadelphia. Just at the present moment the big sellers are "Swingin' Down the Lane," "Wonderful One," "Carolina Mammy," and these are being distributed through the M. D. Swisher Co., Tenth street above Walnut street, and the United Music Co., Cherry street above Sixth street. The Feist house has arranged with William Shepherd, director of the music department for the various Stanley theatres in and out of Philadelphia, to feature Feist's hits both in the performance and by orchestral accompaniment. The Feist concern recently acquired the larger quarters at 1228 Market street, having outgrown its former location on the floor above the Globe Theatre Building at Juniper and Market streets. Since its removal to the larger quarters there has been an increase of 75 per cent in sales.

NEW BERLIN PHILADELPHIA BRANCH

The fifth floor of the building at 1228 Market street, Philadelphia, has been acquired by Irving Berlin, Inc., music publishers, as a Philadelphia headquarters. It is under the supervision of Harry Pierson, who for the last several years has been the Philadelphia representative. The Berlin headquarters occupy the same building as Leo Feist, Inc., and are on the floor just above.

THIRD ANNUAL “MUSIC BOX REVUE” PROVES A SUCCESS

New York Critics and Public Acclaim Third Production—Press Devotes Large Space to It Despite the Pressmen’s Strike—Irving Berlin’s Melodies and Lyrics Score

The “Music Box Revue” opened its third season at the Music Box Theatre on a recent Saturday evening and, as was the case with its predecessors, it created unusual comment for its gorgeousness, humor, tuneful music and originality.

There are two acts and twenty-seven scenes, the latter giving effective settings to the lyrics and music of a number of songs provided by the inimitable Irving Berlin himself. The songs, too, are well sung, as the cast not only includes some well-known vaudeville and concert artists, but also a number of newcomers who have been hailed by dramatic critics as exceptional finds.

The principals include Frank Tinney, John Steel, Florence Moore, Joseph Santley, Ivy Sawyer, Solly Ward, Grace Moore, Hugh Cameron, Florence O’Denishawn, Phil Baker, Laura Sonderson, Brox Sisters, Nelson Snow, Charles Columbus, Dorothy Dilley, Frances Mahan, Helen Lyons and a new Russian operatic singer, Mme. Dora Stroeve.

From a publisher’s standpoint there are certainly not too many songs, but those that are included are sung so well and are so tuneful that they undoubtedly will be remembered by audiences to the advantage of the sales. Some of them make particularly effective dance numbers, carrying as they do a Berlin rhythm. Doubtless, a means will be found of releasing at least one or two of them for use by dance orchestras of the country, with the result that “Music Box” show numbers will be heard in various sections of the country long before the road show in which they undoubtedly will appear later in original form.

Among the songs are “An Orange Grove in California,” “Learn to Do the Strut,” “Little Butterfly,” “Climbing Up the Scales,” “The Waltz of Long Ago,” “One Girl” and “Tell Me a Bedtime Story.”

Despite the pressmen’s strike on the New York papers, the press managed without exception to give reviews of the new “Music Box” offering on Monday morning in their eight-page sheets. Invariably, these comments by critics were quite lengthy and in every case the show was hailed as a huge success.

Miss Grace Moore, a newcomer, seemed to particularly please. She has a voice of operatic timbre which adds some improvement to the revue type of production. Robert C. Benchley added considerably to the humor of the show by a series of satires on club reports and money drives which are undoubtedly one of the hits of the piece. Irving Berlin, Inc., is the publisher of the music.

POPULAR SELLERS IN PORTLAND

Local Dealers Report Demand for Sheet Music Steadily Increasing

PORTLAND, ORE., October 4.—Miss Maybelle Elliott, manager of the sheet music department of the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., says that since the season has opened the sale of sheet music in her department has materially increased and that among the best sellers at the present time are the Sherman, Clay publication, “The West, the Nest and You,” and Forster’s waltz, “When the Clouds Have Vanished.” But good sales are also being made of “Love Tales,” “Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake” and “Tell Me a Story,” published by Feist, Inc., and the Jerome H. Remick numbers, “Big Blonde Mama,” “First, Last and Always” and “My Lady and Me.” This department had a visit from Bill Jacobs, representing the Irving Berlin publications. He had a good list of new numbers, among them “That Old Gang of Mine,” “Indiana Moon” and “Love, I Hear You Calling.” Miss Elliott’s department was also visited during the week by Bob Cole, of Stark & Cowan, and by Nick Lang, the representative of the B. F. Wood Publishing Co.

HARRY VON TILZER REORGANIZED

James Fero and Sammy Smith Enter Publishing Firm—Active Campaign Planned

The Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co., of 719 Seventh avenue, New York, was recently reorganized, with James J. Fero and Sammy Smith joining the concern as stockholders. Fero has been prominently identified with the amusement business in general, while Sammy Smith is well known in the publishing industry. He will be professional manager of the Harry Von Tilzer Co. Edgar Selden, a music salesman, has been chosen sales manager. The Harry Von Tilzer Co. will concentrate its advertising and plugging campaign on “Dear Old Lady,” a fox-trot ballad, and “Chief Hokum,” a novelty fox-trot.

TWO NEW MARKS CO. NUMBERS

The Edward B. Marks Music Co. recently accepted for publication two new songs from the pen of Eddie Leonard, entitled “Oh, Didn’t It Rain” and “Oh, What Eyes.” Eddie Leonard, who is probably the best-known minstrel singer appearing in vaudeville, will be remembered for his great song success, “Ida.” He is now appearing in a featured vaudeville production comprising a number of dancers, a banjo orchestra and Mabel Russell.

“LOVE TALES” WIDELY FEATURED

Johnston's Music Store in Los Angeles Gives It a Striking Window Display

“Love Tales,” from the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc., had its original success on the Pacific Coast. Later the number became quite popular in the Middle West and East. Its success, however, as a Pacific Coast issue has continued, so much so that the dealers in that territory have found it one of the most active numbers of the Fall season.

“Love Tales” has been featured by Max Fisher's Orchestra in Los Angeles and is one of the most successful fox-trots of his nightly program. In connection with the featuring of this number by the above orchestra, Johnston's Music Store, of Los Angeles, recently made a full window display showing “Love Tales” advantageously. The title pages of the number were effectively grouped around a large placard carrying the title with descriptive matter and mentioning the authors, Vincent Rose and Ben Ryan.

According to Sid Johnson, the proprietor, the sales of the song during the past few weeks have increased considerably and the fact that the numerous orchestras in Los Angeles territory have shown unusual interest in this fox-trot number undoubtedly will be the means of keeping the song active for weeks to come in that locality.

Featuring “Love Tales”

ago, is being converted into a musical comedy and will be given a production the latter part of this month by William A. Brady. Philip Bartholmae, author of the original farce, will handle the book, while Joseph McCarthy and Harry Tierney will contribute the lyrics and music. Nancy Welford, now on tour in “Up She Goes,” will be featured in the new production. Leo Feist, Inc., will publish the music.

Ernest Ball has cabled his publishers, M. Witmark & Son, that he has had to extend his English engagement indefinitely, owing to his success with the public.

HEARST FEATURED BALLADS

Hearst, Music Publishers, Ltd., has been successfully featuring the two ballads, “Wonderful Child” and “Beautiful Rose.” These numbers have been placed in the repertoire of a long list of vaudeville performers, including Jack Sherman, the well-known baritone. The professional department of the above company has decided to make these two songs the feature issues of a Fall campaign among singers.

There was recently added to the catalog of Irving Berlin, Inc., a new song entitled “Nobody Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can,” which has made an impression upon a number of dramatic critics of New York dailies, including S. Jay Kaufman, who writes a column for the Evening Telegram. In his column, in one of the recent issues of the Telegram, he carried a full chorus of the above song and made some very pointed comments regarding the possibilities and the popularity of this issue.

BERLIN GETS "YOU DARLING, YOU"

Extensive Publicity Campaign on New Number to Be Started Immediately—Advertising Material Now in Course of Preparation

Irving Berlin, Inc., has purchased from James Brockman the new song entitled "You Darling, You." It has been said in publishing circles that there were several bidders for the number, but the enthusiasm shown and the appropriation planned for publicity by the Berlin organization made Mr. Brockman decide in favor of placing it in its hands.

The band and orchestra, professional and sales departments of the Berlin Co. state it is a song of real merit and expect, with the exploitation campaign now being arranged, to make it one of the best known popular airs of the current season.

The campaign will not only involve the activities of the above departments, but the various branch offices of the Berlin Co. will aid in giving "You Darling, You" national publicity. Orchestrations are now being forwarded to all parts of the country and it is expected in a very short space of time to have the campaign well under way.

Special advertising material, covering every channel of sheet music publicity, has been planned. This will include consumer literature, window strips, hangers, streamers and other effective matter. Many vaudevillians will be induced to sing the song and, with the aid of dance orchestras, motion picture houses, cabarets and other entertainment resorts, a response to the number's merit is looked forward to shortly.

The acceptance by Irving Berlin, Inc., of the above song, "You Darling, You," brings to mind a little of the earlier history of the number. Originally it carried an entirely different title and was presented to the Berlin organization for publication. Owing to the fact, however, of the wealth of material then in the Berlin catalog, its publication was refused. Brockman, though, decided to make some changes and give the song early exploitation through his own efforts, with the result as outlined above.

There have been several instances where songwriters have carried out some preliminary work on numbers in which they had the greatest of confidence.

NEW CANTOR STARRING VEHICLE

"Kid Boots" is the new musical comedy in which Eddie Cantor will be starred this season by Flo Ziegfeld. Arrangements have been made to put the show into rehearsal October 15 and open out of town about November 1. After three weeks on tour Ziegfeld proposes bringing the show into New York. The book for the show was written by William Anthony McGuire, lyrics and music by Tierney and McCarthy. Leo Feist, Inc., will publish the score.

SHERMAN, CLAY NUMBER IN DEMAND

PORTLAND, ORE., October 6.—The new waltz number of Sherman, Clay & Co., "The West, the Nest and You," is being put over big in Portland and all of the local dealers report large sales. The local Sherman, Clay music house, at Sixth and Morrison streets, has an attractive window display of the number and the George Olsen Orchestra, of the Hotel Portland, plays the waltz on every occasion. Portland music lovers always follow George.

SONGS HAVE WON GREAT VOGUE

Chappell-Harms, Inc., New York, has an impressive number of successful songs in its catalog which will make a wide appeal to dealers and to the general public which has rapidly become acquainted with them through the theatre, the music roll and the talking machine record. Some further "hits" will soon be forthcoming from this house.

NEW STASNY CO. REPRESENTATIVES

Frank Gibney Handling Stasny Catalog on Pacific Coast, With Billy Newsome Rendering the Same Service in Chicago

Frank Gibney, recently connected with J. H. Remick & Co., Seattle, has arranged to again represent the catalog of the A. J. Stasny Music Co. on the Pacific Coast, making his headquarters in San Francisco. He has a fine tenor voice and will exploit the Stasny feature numbers "Sun-Kist Rose" and "Waltz Me to Sleep in Your Arms" in the theatres and over the radio. Harry Tobias, New York salesman for Stasny, who is now on the Coast, is sending in good orders for various numbers in the catalog.

Billy Newsome, formerly connected with Waterson, Berlin & Snyder and Irving Berlin, Inc., is now representing the A. J. Stasny Co. catalog in Chicago and surrounding territory and is arranging some effective exploitation stunts for the various numbers.

WIDE "INDIANA MOON" CAMPAIGN

Berlin Undertakes Heaviest Exploitation on Number in History of That Publishing House

According to reports from Rochester, N. Y., during a week's featuring of "Indiana Moon," a waltz from the Irving Berlin, Inc., catalog, in that city by the various dance orchestras, motion picture houses and other channels of publicity, there were exceptionally heavy sales of the number, one store alone selling over 2,000 copies. This was the opening feature of one of the biggest campaigns ever inaugurated by the above publishing house. Similar activities are to be carried out in hundreds of other centers. In Rochester these publicity and sales exploitation methods are to be supplemented by a newspaper campaign there and some surrounding cities.

This publicity will appear in over 200 papers throughout the United States. Most of this advertising will appear in story form and will be illustrated with thematics of "Indiana Moon." In all territory where this advertising will appear the usual publicity, through the aid of the theatres, motion picture houses and orchestras, will be a part of the program.

PRINCE DANCES TO "SUN-KIST ROSE"

Prince of Wales Among Those Who Have Danced to Music of Stasny Number as Played by Jack Hylton's Grafton Galleries Orchestra

One of the leading fox-trot hits in England for some time past has been "Sun-Kist Rose," the A. J. Stasny Co. publication which, in addition to being featured by a number of orchestras in and about London, has been recorded for His Master's Voice record by Jack Hylton's noted Grafton Galleries Orchestra, the organization which plays dance music for royalty, which patronizes the Galleries regularly to dine and dance. The Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family have danced to the music of "Sun-Kist Rose" while at Grafton's, and it was there that Whiteman and His Orchestra appeared for a time while in London, playing alternately with the Hylton organization.

Another Stasny number that has won a place for itself in England as well as in the United States is "Waltz Me to Sleep in Your Arms," which is being featured by a large number of orchestras and was also recorded on records and music rolls.

SPECIAL BANNERS TO BOOST RECORDS

In connection with the special release of the Okeh record of the fox-trot success, "Sun-Kist Rose," as played by Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, the A. J. Stasny Music Co., the publisher of the number, has provided attractive banners announcing the release for the use of Okeh record dealers, the banners being supplied through the regular distributors.

TALKING MACHINE MEN'S BALL

Plans Completed for Gala Event on November 21—Many Prominent Orchestras Will Attend—Sol Lazarus in Charge of Details

The entertainment committee of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held a meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania October 3 at which plans were made for the forthcoming annual ball. After a conference with the management of the Hotel Pennsylvania it was found that November 21 was the best date available for the ball and the committee thereupon decided to hold the affair on that date. Arrangements are now being made for the orchestras that will appear that evening and it is quite probable that Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, exclusive Okeh artist, will be the resident orchestra of the evening. Among the orchestras which will contribute to the evening's entertainment are the following organizations, all of which are well known to the talking machine trade and to the dance-loving public (this list being arranged alphabetically): Ben Bernie, California Ramblers, Columbians, Coleman's Montmartre, Dixie Land Jazz, Carl Fenton, Bennie Krueger, Ted Lewis, Memphis Five, Ray Miller, Gene Rodemich, Ben Selvin, Joseph C. Smith, Paul Specht, Paul Whiteman and the Yerkes Flotilla.

It was decided that tickets to the annual ball will cost $1.65 each and an aggressive publicity campaign will be instituted with the idea of making this event the most successful that the Talking Machine Men, Inc., has ever held. The details of the ball will be in the hands of Sol Lazarus, chairman of the entertainment committee, and among the members of the committee who were present at the recent meeting were the following: E. G. Brown, Chester Abelowitz, A. Galucie, J. J. Davin, W. C. Conn, N. Goldfinger, Erwin Kurtz and Otto Goldsmith.

TOLEDO

Delayed Machine Shipments Hurt Business — General Sales Gains — Trade Activities of the Month

TOLEDO, O., October 8.—A fact about the immediate future which is contributing to the enthusiasm of talking machine dealers, and at the same time giving satisfaction with the splendid showing of the past weeks, is that sales increases average about 12 per cent. Some say, however, that if deliveries of certain new models were more rapid orders now held up could be filled. Christmas Clubs for customers desiring to have machines delivered during the holidays, are now being formed in several stores, the idea meeting with general favor.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co. is regularly receiving shipments of new model Victrolas, but the demand is so great that they are shipped out immediately. Chas. H. Womeldorf, commenting on conditions, pointed out that a year ago machine stocks in the warehouses of jobbers amounted to a four months' supply, giving distributors plenty of goods to work on. This year, however, the available supply totals only sufficient merchandise for one month, with no surplus.

The opening of the Rivoli City concert series, with Mme. Ernestine Schumann Heink as soloist, not alone drew a crowd of 3,200 persons to the Rivoli Theatre, but also produced a handsome volume of record sales for dealers. She visited Victor dealers during her stay in the city and autographed a number of photographs.

The Lion Store Music Rooms staged a successful tie-up with the concert and, as a consequence, a large number of her records were sold. The annual Christmas talking machine club was launched on October 1. Full-page display newspaper advertisements were employed for the push. Harry Reeves, formerly with the department, has rejoined the organization as a member of the sales organization.

Recent visitors included Wm. C. Hutchings, assistant general sales manager, and H. G. Burr, of the Brunswick Co. of Chicago; H. Kane, of the Chicago Talking Machine Co.; Geo. Deagon, of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co.; C. K. Wagner, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co.; Chas. Kennedy, of the Bush & Lane phonograph division; Harry Levy, of the Aeolian Co., and Harold Goldie, of the Columbia Co.

At the Goosman Piano Co. talking machine and record sales the past month have showed a splendid growth. Miss Kirschner is now in charge of the record department.

Miss Grace Greenman, formerly manager of the Goosman talking machine department, has opened a service bureau for dealers. This is a merchandising service, which will teach better store management and sales promotion. At present she is conducting a thirty days' sales campaign for Compton Bros., music dealers, Findlay, O.

Don Van Breimer, connected with Toledo music stores at various times, has been appointed manager of Compton Bros.

Miss M. Plotkin, formerly with the Whitney-Blaine-Wilder-muth Co., has joined the sales force and will have charge of the records of the Peoples Outfitting Co. Miss Farrell, who has been in charge of the department, is ill at a local hospital.

The Cable Co., October 1, launched an aggressive Fall sales program on Victrolas and Brunswicks, W. A. Grubbs, talking machine department manager, reports. Lina Striggow, an experienced record saleslady, is now in charge of the record department here.

Miss Maud Winchell, formerly with the Cable Co., has been made manager of the Victrola department of the Whitney-Blaine-Wilder-muth Co.

At the LaSalle & Koch Music Shop Red Seal record sales have increased since double-faced records appeared, Forrest O. Edwards says. A

Why Advertise a Registering Piano in a Phonograph Journal?

For just this reason: we are able to present a product with an active, profitable market, merchandised on much the same lines as are talking machines.

Your merchandise, generally speaking, is Nationally advertised. So is the Gulbransen.

Your merchandise, generally speaking, is Nationally priced. So is the Gulbransen.

Your merchandise, generally speaking, is at a point where the service expense is so small as to be practically negligible. The same is true of the Gulbransen.

Your merchandise opens a way to continued profit from the original transaction through the sale of records. So does the Gulbransen.

Your manufacturers, generally speaking, concentrate on few styles, requiring minimum investment in stock of machines, by the dealer. So do we, making four models only.

In the phonograph field are some of the world's greatest "human interest" trade marks. The Gulbransen also has such a trade mark—the famous Baby that means "Easy-to-Play".

These are a few reasons why the Gulbransen "fits in" with the average retail talking machine business, and why it is now handled in so many stores of this type. Many merchants heretofore handling talking machines exclusively have changed their policy on account of the Gulbransen opportunity.

You may find that there are many points of similarity in your own case—enabling you to sell the Gulbransen at a very slight increase in overhead.

Why not find out? We'll gladly send the full details to any dealer in communities where representation is available. Just fill in the handy coupon.

large number of patrons of this quality store have, as a consequence, started Red Seal libraries.

Grinnell Bros., in order to properly serve their growing clientele, have added two Victrola display rooms to the second floor.

The United Music Store, which caters largely to foreign buyers, experienced a pleasing sales volume the past month, according to Harry Wasserman, proprietor. While experience has shown that the foreign patron is always sensitive about inquiring about new records, courtesy and a knowledge of his language break down his natural timidity. Permitting customers to play records and respecting their tastes are other points which create patronage, Mr. Wasserman declares.

The Frazelle Piano Co., Adams street upstairs music house, will soon occupy a store on the first floor under the present location, in addition to the double upstairs store now used. Sonora and Vocalion machines are featured by this progressive dealer.

The J. W. Greene Co., on September 25, inited the public to inspect its enlarged store. Almost double the former space is now occupied. New booths have been added and service facilities have been increased. A story of the opening appears elsewhere in this issue.

The conductor of the column appearing daily in the Toledo Times, under the caption "The Town Crier," on last Monday eulogized the Lion Store service. Valuable publicity!

Dealers Preparing for Year-end Business—Artist Honored—Ad Tie-ups Pay—News of the Month

COLUMBUS, O., October 8.—Music dealers, generally, are using a great deal of their time in preparing for Fall and Winter business. Orders for both talking machines and records are being placed and several of the dealers are remodeling their stores and making ready their stockrooms and show windows prior to the receipt of the shipments.

Among the firms planning to enlarge their quarters is the Robert L. Seeds Co., Cheney and Edison dealer, at the McAllister-Mohler Furniture Co.

An honor, seldom accorded an artist who comes here on the occasion of a concert, will be conferred upon Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous Victor artist, in November, when she will be entertained in the Governor's mansion by Mrs. Vic. Donahey, first lady of Ohio. She is scheduled to appear in concert here under the auspices of the American Legion. Other artists who will appear at the same time are Mischa Elman, Victor artist, and Louis Gravyre, Columbia artist.

The Z. L. White Co. is doing considerable advertising in explaining to the public the new Victor weekly release plan and the double-faced Red Seal records. It is the opinion of various Victor dealers that it will take some ties. Several lines of pianos are carried, and in the phonograph department Brunswick phonographs and records are featured exclusively. The Brunswick department is one of the most attractive in the entire establishment and in its newspaper advertising, which calls for full pages almost invariably, Brunswick products are prominently displayed.

little time to get the general public acquainted with these innovations, but once that is accomplished its reaction is expected to be very favorable.

The Robbins Piano Co. and the Goldsmith Complete Music Store, both Brunswick dealers, have found it profitable to tie up their advertisements with the larger advertisements placed by the Brunswick Co. In this way Brunswick advertisements stand out conspicuously in the newspapers.

For the past three weeks the Elite Music Co. has been engaged in putting on special Victrola shows. These displays are put on either in a prominent hotel or a popular store in small towns nearby. House-to-house canvasses are made by members of the sales force, announcing the show and extending invitations to come and view it. The results have been very satisfactory.

A new way of tying up Victrolas with other merchandise handled in a department store was shown when the F. & R. Lazarus Co. used an art model Victrola in featuring the new Fall draperies in a window display. In a smaller window of the same store different models of Victrolas were on display. Manager C. C. Hinterschied will soon launch an extensive advertising and publicity campaign. A. C. Rundio, well-known banjoist, is now connected with the Victrola department of this company.

Mrs. Catherine Nicklus, of the C. C. Baker firm, has resumed work in the sheet music department, after a year's leave of absence.

Alberto Salvi, harpist and Victor artist, and Rosa Ponselle, soprano and Columbia artist, will give a joint recital on the evening of October 12 at Memorial Hall, and this concert will open the concert series of the Women's Music Club. The entire seat sale for this course is conducted in the box office at the Otto B. Heaton Co., Victor dealer. In addition to providing a box office, and private telephone service in the box office, this firm has also run large advertisements, featuring the six big concerts and emphasizing the individual artists.

W. F. Davisson, vice-president and general manager of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Victor jobber, is spending a few days in Cincinnati, visiting Victor dealers and friends.

NEW ORLEANS

The Lull Before the Fall Buying Rush Hits City—Conditions Generally Are Good—J. J. Briou to Wed—Month's News Budget

NEW ORLEANS, LA., October 6.—The humming continuity of the engine of business in the local music world seemed automatically to become interrupted during the last few days of September and the initial ones of this month. The pause was not totally unexpected by the dealers who were affected in this manner. September, particularly waning days of the month, is considered a very difficult month in which to promote or carry on business up to the normal standard. It peculiarly ushers in a season that is universally accepted as a signal for the annual changes that take place in the daily life of a city. In other words, it is the criterion of the knowledge that Summer vacationists are returning to their homes amidst rather upset conditions. This causes thoughts of musical and, as a matter of fact, much other merchandise to be subordinated to the one single thought—getting settled, jointly with a financial retrenchment—after the warm weather pleasures. Additionally, this time of the year there is considerable moving, which forbids buying until the individual is settled in the new abode.

The Automatic Phonobrush

has been sold from coast to coast, because it cleans all dirt and grit automatically from every groove ahead of needle, which doubles the life of the record; eliminates the surface noise, and produces the tones as the artist intended.

STURGIS NOVELTY WORKS
Medina, N. Y.

Parham Werlein, president of Philip Werlein, Ltd., has been in the East for several weeks on a combination business and pleasure trip. Mr. Werlein subsequently visited the Victor factory at Camden, N. J., where he conferred with officials of the company and inspected the latest models of machines that are proposed or under construction.

The New and the Old

A study in contrast as a means of vividly impressing upon the public the rapid progress that has been made by the Victor Co. in the development of the talking machine is being given by the Werlein house to persons visiting the store. In the retail department, where it may be viewed easily, stands the latest creation in talking machine manufacture—a glass-topped instrument, through which the curious may gaze and note the entire operation of the machine. It is known as Model No. 130. On exhibition beside it stands a copy of the first talking machine ever manufactured by the Victor people. This is one of the old horn type that served satisfactorily before the introduction of the modern, exquisite case, which masks the sound amplifier and is much more compact and easier to handle than the old.

A great deal of enthusiasm is manifested by Victor dealers generally in this territory over the new $250 and $300 art models that are arriving. Victor people feel that they possess the goods the public demands and sales are being pushed on that theory. The new double-faced Red Seal record releases, distributed at a greatly reduced price, are enjoying extreme popularity. Weekly releases are also serving to stimulate a heavy business in disc entertainment.

J. J. Briou to Wed

The friends and associates of J. J. Briou, traveling representative in Mississippi and Alabama for the Werlein house, are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to his marriage to Miss Hilda Schaeffer, a charming young lady of this city. The nuptials are scheduled to be celebrated on October 10. The announcement of the wedding was the signal for a great flood of congratulations and well wishings to pour to the young couple.

Finds Conditions Good

Frank L. Hough, Victor representative in this territory, has been touring the States of Texas and Louisiana. Mr. Hough reports excellent conditions existing, with Victor a great favorite in the portions of the States he has called upon.

New Brunswick Model Pleases

The Raleigh, one of the latest creations in the Brunswick console types, has been received by the firm of L. Grunewald & Co. According to Manager E. L. Staples, of the talking machine department, the Raleigh seems destined to become one of the most popular of the $200 class of console models. Several have been disposed of already. Business with the Grunewald house appears to retain its normal strength, although "off days" pop up at intervals.

Edison Sales Grow

September proved to be a very satisfactory month for the Diamond Disc Shop, retailers of Edison products. According to Manager J. K. Billiet, a statement of the month's business, compiled to the twenty-fifth of September and compared with the same period of the previous month, showed a clearance of several thousand dollars for the latter. The remaining days were expected to substantially bolster up that figure, making the sum total for the entire thirty-day period extremely encouraging.

Edison Jobber Visiting Factory

Manager W. W. Twigg, of the Diamond Music Co., Edison jobber in the Southern territory, is away on a business trip to New York and Eastern points for a duration of about ten days. He will probably confer with Edison officials before returning to the city in preparation for the expected heavy traffic in Fall and Christmas business.

Maison Blanche Contest Delayed

The proposed essay contest that was to be held by the music department of the Maison Blanche Co. during the month of September was pigeonholed by Manager J. D. Moore, in order to make way for some other business that required the preference. However, Mr. Moore has no intention of abandoning the plan and will probably introduce and announce it for November, the announcement to be finally decided upon at a later date.

The house has been disposing of some Columbia stock which it secured and Manager Moore reports that excellent results have been obtained from a short special-priced sale that was put on.

Experiencing Starr Shortage

Mrs. B. J. Tremblay, in charge of the talking machine and record department of the Collins Piano Co., reports that Victor Models 400, 405 and 410 are exhibiting some activity. The house has disposed of a number of these models. The record business remains in excellent state. The firm has only the Victor products on hand, as they have been unable to obtain consignments of Starr machines, due to the inability of the factory to make deliveries.

W. C. Fuhri a Visitor

W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager, General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, with headquarters in New York, was a recent visitor here. He is on a tour of the Southern territory. During his stay Mr. Fuhri made his headquarters at the Junius Hart Piano House, the local distributor for Louisiana and Texas.

The name of the Karr Drug Co., Victor dealer, Christopher, Ill., has been changed to the Finis Hindman Drug Co.

HELPS TO MERCHANDISE NEEDLES

Silent Salesman or Counter Display Which Admirably Displays the Product Introduced

The problem of increasing needle sales is one that is being given considerable attention by the talking machine retailer. An obstacle has been always met, however, in the reluctance of the salesperson to give time to the selling of such small articles as needles, not realizing the cumulative profit. The silent salesman or counter display has, therefore, arisen to fill this need. Many needle manufacturing and dis-

New Wall Kane Needle Display Stand tributing firms have evolved attractive stands for this purpose. Among the newest is one produced by the Wall Kane Needle Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., which provides for 100 packages of this ten-time needle in a variety of tones. These needles are stocked at the back of the stand and only a fair proportion of the packages are on display. This also provides against the casual removal of packages by others than the salesperson. Through its general attractive color scheme and display it is expected that this new stand will materially aid the sales of the brand of needles that it contains.

OPENS "TALKER" DEPARTMENT

UTICA, N. Y., October 9.—An attractive talking machine department has been opened on the third floor of the John A. Robert Co.'s store in this city. There are seven sound-proof machine and record demonstration booths, in addition to a large central machine display room. Victor talking machines and records are handled.

The Shecter Music Co., of Cumberland, Md., has been putting on a big Columbia sales campaign. Several outside canvassers were employed and not only a large number of actual sales were made, but a good list of prospects was secured.

It is the Blackman Policy to so inspire the confidence of its Victor Dealers that they will never question our motives though they may at times disagree with our methods.

TIME PAYMENTS ON SAXOPHONES

Talking Machine Dealers Widen Scope of Sales Possibilities by Granting Credit

Saxophones and trap drum outfits are proving particularly good sales numbers in the line of the Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., importer and wholesaler of musical merchandise, Brooklyn, N. Y. E. E. Strong, sales manager of the company, in a recent interview with The World, stated that talking machine dealers in particular were finding these items big sellers. "The talking machine retailer," stated Mr. Strong, "is selling these high-priced instruments on the deferred payment plan, which greatly widens the scope of prospects. Time payments on musical merchandise are just as necessary as time payments on talking machines and pianos. In fact, it is the higher grades of all musical instruments that are selling best. For instance, our professional banjo is far more in demand than the cheaper numbers in the line."

INSTALLING DEALER EQUIPMENT

The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York, manufacturer of equipment for musical merchandise departments, has closed a number of important orders during the past few weeks for this type of installation. A. Bitter, of this company, states that the dealers are installing sheet music, musical instrument and small goods departments in preparation for a banner Fall and holiday trade and that, in order to display musical merchandise advantageously, the use of store display cases is considered almost imperative.

POPULARIZING HOHNER HARMONICAS

Extensive Publicity Campaign of M. Hohner Reaching Millions of People—Newspapers, Magazines and Theatre Play Part in Drive

An impressive example of dealer co-operation and the creation of the demand, nation-wide, throughout the buying public is to be found in the varied and extensive publicity conducted by M. Hohner, manufacturer of harmonicas and accordions, New York City. This campaign was inaugurated solely for the purpose of increasing Hohner harmonica sales for the dealer. It is wide in scope and represents well-laid plans. In the national magazine advertising conducted by the company forty-five national periodicals are used, with a circulation of over 50,000,000. An idea of how all classes are reached through this publicity is found in a few of the publications selected, such as Life, American Legion Weekly, Literary Digest, Ainslie's, Photoplay, Detective Stories, Moving Picture Magazine, Boys' Life and The Christian Herald.

The advertising appearing in leading newspapers in strategic trade centers all over the country is also increasing demand for the Hohner harmonica. Combined with this paid publicity is a great volume of free publicity, editorial comment, photographs and rotogravure pictures, etc., which have appeared, due to the general interest aroused by this effective campaign. The radio has been used to broadcast harmonica playing. In the moving picture field Wesley Barry, celebrated juvenile star, is giving the Hohner publicity on the screen. Forty-five vaudeville stars are entertaining their audiences with the Hohner harmonica and it is estimated that 117,000,000 people annually are entertained in this way.

The progress of Borrah Minevitch, well-known harmonica player, from city to city is arousing considerable interest and receiving much comment in the daily press. Mr. Minevitch will appear in Kansas City at an early date, where, through the combined efforts of Mr. Minevitch, the daily press and dealers, it is planned to feature Hohner harmonicas in a particularly big way. Demonstrating artists, therefore, are an important part in the campaign.

Of course, the usual dealer aids, such as window display charts and instruction booklets, are used and, in keeping with the extensiveness of the whole plan, these are very attractively prepared. Artists' testimonials and the selection of the Hohner harmonica by such well-known organizations as the Boy Scouts contribute their share. But, perhaps, the most important part in increasing the popularity of the harmonica and, therefore, the demand upon the trade, are the harmonica contests that have been and are continuing to be held in various cities with the combined co-operation of M. Hohner, newspapers, civic and State authorities and other organizations. It is reported at the headquarters of M. Hohner, New York City, that dealers find a decided increase in the demand for harmonicas since this campaign was inaugurated. Dealers, too, are doing their part and it shows how the combined efforts of dealer, distributor and manufacturer are creating an interest in a product in the music field that is sweeping from coast to coast.

INSTALL SMALL GOODS DEPARTMENT

Sherman, Clay & Co. Open Musical Merchandise Department in Their Portland, Ore., Branch—Complete and Varied Line Carried

PORTLAND, ORE., October 6.—“Everything now in music” is the slogan of the Sherman, Clay & Co. store since the installation of its new musical merchandise and sheet music departments and well can it lay claim to this with the addition of these two handsome and fully equipped departments. For many years Sherman, Clay & Co. have been known in Portland as the home of the Steinway and other good pianos, Victor records, Victrolas and player rolls and all that was lacking to make this store a musician's paradise were these two lately installed departments.

T. G. Towner, formerly of the Sherman, Clay & Co. establishment, of Oakland, Cal., has been made department manager. Mr. Towner not only has taken charge, but arrived in Portland in time to supervise the installation of the entire department. Before coming to Portland he supervised the installation of a similar department in the Sherman, Clay & Co. store of Seattle, Wash.

The new department carries all musical instruments and accessories for band and orchestra and the stock is complete in every detail, including King band instruments, King saxophones, Bacon, Gibson and Orpheum banjos, Martin guitars and mandolins, Bacon and Gibson mandolins, Robert, Penzel-Mueller & Buffet clarinets, Haynes flutes and piccolos, Christenson oboes, Heckel bassoons, Ludwig drums and traps, Victor drums, Deagan marimbas and xylophones, imported and domestic violins, cellos and string basses, with a full and complete line of Lifton cases.

Mr. Towner reports excellent business in spite of the fact that the department is in its infancy

In the Sherman, Clay Small Goods Department and he is looking forward to a very busy Fall and Winter trade. Palmer S. Smith is first assistant to Mr. Towner. The department is allotted a generous amount of window space for display purposes and some most attractive arrangements of the department's goods have thus far been featured with excellent effect insofar as sales are concerned.

NEW VEGAPHONE BANJO SCORES

Attractive Booklet Featuring Banjos Prepared for Dealer Distribution by the Vega Co.

BOSTON, MASS., October 1.—The new Vegaphone banjo, produced recently by the Vega Co., of this city, has proved very popular and the orders for this instrument are coming in in a volume that well surpasses the demand for the lower-priced instruments. In a number of letters of commendation received at the headquarters of the company various artists have expressed themselves enthusiastically over the new banjo and stated that they found it especially adapted for orchestra work and recording.

Following the presentation of the new Vegaphone line, the Vega Co. produced an attractive twelve-page booklet in colors on the Vegaphone banjo, which is described as “An Instrument That Exceeds the Ideals of the Artist.” The Vegaphone tenor banjo line at the present time consists of three models, the “Professional,” the “Artist” and the “De Luxe” Vegaphone, with a list price ranging from $187.50 to $468.75. The literature sets forth that the Vegaphone banjo embodies many new features of construction with an entirely new tone volume. This tone is described as resonant, sustained and more powerful. The many features of the Vegaphone are well calculated to appeal to both the professional banjoist and the player who wishes to advance his standards.

DEALERS TAKE ON BRUNO LINE

The advisability of carrying “everything in music” is taking hold increasingly among talking machine dealers, according to C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York, importers and wholesalers of musical merchandise. Many talking machine retailers are adding this line.

Solo Records Demonstrate Buescher Saxophones

TWO new Saxophone Solo Records (Victor) made by Clyde Doerr should be used by every Record Dealer to demonstrate to prospective Saxophone purchasers the fine qualities of the Buescher Saxophone.

The Record Dealer is in an especially favored position to make many sales of Saxophones to customers who ask for these Doerr Records, and to sell Saxophones and Band Instruments to all buyers of Dance Records.

75% of the nation's records (all makes) are played by bands, orchestras and soloists using Buescher instruments. Most of the Buescher window, counter and mail publicity material is devoted to Record Makers. The two lines—Records and Buescher Instruments—are complements. One sells the other.

If you are not carrying Buescher Instruments, write for trade prices and literature. We'll tell you what territory is open, what your annual sales should be, how fast the turn-over, etc., etc.

KANSAS CITY

Combination of Many Factors Results in Increased Business—Eliminating Contests From Fair Displays Pays—Trade Activities

KANSAS CITY, Mo., October 8.—All talking machine jobbers in Kansas City report that business during September has been exceptionally good and that their establishments have been very busy stocking up the dealers with goods for Fall trade. In nearly every case the report is to the effect that the orders of a year ago have been exceeded and in some cases the increase is more than 40 per cent. The increase is attributed to the improved conditions in business generally, the growing interest in music and the introduction of new styles and better service.

The weekly releases of the Victor Co. are resulting in a substantial increase in record sales.

One of the means by which dealers have been stimulating the demand throughout the territory were displays at the county fairs. These displays have been made this year almost exclusively for the purpose of directing attention to the merits and attractiveness of the goods themselves. This is in sharp contrast to some of the stunts put on in the past, where contests were the feature, and the interest centered in who would win the prize.

According to Manager Schoenly, of the Brunswick Co., dealers report that scarcely 10 per cent of the cards which have been signed in the past where the interest centered in the contest and prize were really prospects for the sale of phonographs. These contests occasioned a large amount of work, not only in putting them on, but also in weeding out the names of those who were not interested in buying a machine. Learning their lesson in the past, the dealers are appealing to the public interest in music and showing their machines as instruments which will produce it in the most attractive manner. The cards, though less in number, are of much more value, the dealers say. Among the dealers who have had considerable success with their fair displays are the Topeka Music Co., the Schroyer Music Co., of Bethany, Mo.; Chappell Music Co., of Salina, Kans., and L. H. Peck, of Carthage, Mo.

lishments of the State, has installed a complete line of Brunswick instruments and records.

The new Columbia models are being received with enthusiasm by the public and the dealers have been sending in orders to such an extent that jobbers have been kept very busy in meeting the demand.

V. K. Henry, formerly field representative of the Brunswick Co., in Kansas City territory, is now with Geo. A. Anderson in the Exclusive Brunswick Shop, in Kansas City.

Under the management of Roy Oliver, the talking machine department of the Rorabaugh-Brown Dry Goods Co., Oklahoma City, has become so important it has been moved to the main floor.

C. M. Williams, formerly manager of the talking machine department of the Rorabaugh-Brown Co., is now manager of a similar department with the Leader Department Store, St. Joseph, Mo.

R. L. DuBois, manager, called on several nearby dealers in the past month and received very nice orders for immediate delivery. Business is better than it was last year at this time and all dealers interviewed so far seem to be very optimistic.

A new Edison agency has just been opened at Hillsboro, Kans., with Hoepfner Bros.

The Moberly Music Co. is now an authorized Edison dealer at Moberly, Mo.

The following dealers called at the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, during the past month: C. B. Kelley, Kent-Long Drug Co., Beloit, Kans.; O. A. Panton, Ponca City, Okla.; Carl Botefuhr, Botefuhr Music Co., Pittsburg, Kans.; Ed Uden, Uden's Book Store, Sapulpa, Okla.; H. P. Ripley, H. P. Ripley & Co., Leavenworth, Kans.; Walter Eshelman, Eshelman Music Shop, St. Joseph, Mo.; F. E. Parker, Crosby Bros., Topeka, Kans.; Geo. Reynolds, Mace & Reynolds, Argentine, Kans., and H. L. Kelley, H. L. Kelley & Son, Lexington, Mo.

Business Continues Brisk—Exposition Proves Business-getter—Advocates Canvassing as a Sales Aid—New Accounts—The News

SYRACUSE, N. Y., October 8.—The talking machine business in this city and the surrounding territory is most satisfactory, according to reports of retailers and wholesalers. The latter are finding it difficult to supply some of the most popular models of talking machines, orders coming in so rapidly and for such quantities of instruments that they are shipped out almost as quickly as they are received. The trade situation, insofar as holiday expectations are concerned, is the cause of considerable optimism throughout the trade. Record business also is holding up well. Briefly, there are a good many factors working to the advantage of the trade and this, coupled with the energy of dealers, practically assures an unusual business for the remainder of the year.

Cash In on Exposition

Fowler, Dick & Walker, Edison dealers in Binghamton, N. Y., recently staged a profitable display at the Binghamton Exposition which resulted in considerable publicity and the securing of a number of live prospects. The Baby console is especially popular, according to Jas. E. Greene, popular and progressive manager of the phonograph department.

Fowler, Dick & Walker also had the pleasure recently of supplying an Edison phonograph to the American Legion, of Johnson City, after that organization had compared and tested a number of other makes.

Live Dealer Advocates Canvassing

Curt C. Andrus, Edison phonograph dealer at North Tonawanda, N. Y., recently employed A. H. Stanley as an outside salesman. He has made sufficient sales to date to make his services mutually satisfactory, and is securing a large number of desirable prospects for the holiday trade. With business conditions as they are in most cities it will prove profitable to any dealer to put on one or more outside men to make a thorough canvass, in the opinion of Mr. Andrus. This live dealer reports selling five phonographs on a recent Saturday and reports business increasing right along, with good prospects for a big holiday trade. Mr. Andrus is now selling more Edisons than needle types of instruments, for which he also has the agency, due principally to the seven Edison tone tests which he has put on in the Tonawandas. The baby console model Edison is proving the leading seller with this store and he just placed his order with his jobber for thirty of this particular style. The city just installed a new lighting system on the main business street here and the Merchants' Association engaged two dance orchestras of six men each, and two comedy singers, and advertised the celebration widely. A large crowd came up to witness the turning on of the new lights and to hear the music. The cash record sales this night were the largest so far this season and the extra profit more than covered the contribution made to the expense of the celebration. Mr. Andrus employs four clerks on Saturdays to handle his cash trade, and pays his clerks a commission on the instrument sales they make.

Heavy Orders of New Red Seal Records

Victor dealers throughout this territory are keenly enthusiastic regarding the new Victor double-faced Red Seal records and the orders placed for them indicate that during the coming holiday season there will be as large a shortage of records as there is of Victrolas during that time of the year. The W. D. Andrews Co., Victor wholesaler, is doing everything possible to co-operate with the Victor dealers in this territory in making the coming season the most prosperous period in history and the results to date are very gratifying.

Many New Edison Jobbers Appointed

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., Edison distributors, with headquarters on South Clinton street, this city, have recently opened a number of new agencies here and in the surrounding territory which they serve, as a result of an intensive sales drive which was recently inaugurated. Among the dealers who have signed up in the last few weeks are B. L. Bush, Jordan & Camillus; L. W. Culver, Chittenango Station; W. H. Denison, Peterboro; E. A. Field, Altmar; Nettie M. Gates, North Syracuse; Hamilton & Clark, Wilson; Wm. H. Griffin, Norwich; Joiner & Hirschey, Sandy Creek; Edward F. McCormack, Mexico; H. B. Shapley, Earlville; W. E. Strong, Owego.

The Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., of this city, Sonora distributor, is receiving and delivering many large orders for Sonora products from the dealers in this territory. Syracuse dealers report healthy conditions all along the line, with the majority of sales leaning towards the higher-priced instruments.

Edison Wins in Competition

Tribute was recently paid to the merit of the Edison phonograph when that instrument was selected by the Rome High School, Rome, N. Y., after three makes of talking machines had been thoroughly tested and compared. The deal was closed by Schuderer & Castle, live Edison dealers in that city. This concern, through its aggressive policies, has enjoyed a steady growth in business and it is looking forward to the biggest year-end business, both in machines and records, in its history.

LITTLE TOTS' RECORD DISPLAY

The accompanying illustration presents an attractive window display used by Eisenberg's store, Baltimore, Md., to feature Little Tots' records made by the Plaza Music Co., New York. This display not only attracted considerable attention from passers-by, but was directly responsible for the sale of a large number of Little Tots' records. These records and their albums are particularly adaptable to unique displays and Eisenberg's window presents the product to excellent advantage.

CELEBRATES FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

The Kings Highway Music Shop, 1408 Kings Highway, Brooklyn, N. Y., H. A. Freyman, proprietor, recently celebrated the fifth anniversary of the opening of the store. Invitations were sent to the large circle of customers, prospects and friends of the concern and a special program of music and entertainment was enjoyed. Among the attractions was Main M. Rountree and His Orchestra, and Jack Eagen, author of the song hit, "Three Thousand Years Ago." The store has just been remodeled and the celebration was staged immediately following the reopening. Victor talking machines, records and pianos are handled, and these were attractively displayed.

LARGER QUARTERS IN AKRON, O.

AKRON, O., October 5.—With the acquisition of 3,000 square feet of floor space, which includes the possession of the adjacent building, the Music Shoppe, South Main street, will have much more space available for its talking machine department. This store features the Brunswick line exclusively. The enlarged talking machine section will be ready for occupancy about November 1.

BUILDING EXTENSIVE BUSINESS

Although it has been in business only a few months the Specialty Phonograph & Accessory Co., New York, manufacturer of the "Specialty Brand" phonograph parts and products, has established a good-sized clientele throughout the country. The company states that during the past few months there has been a steadily increasing demand for springs, motors and motor parts and the outlook for the coming year is very promising.

The Grand Pharmacy, of Du Quoin, Ill., has opened a talking machine department. The booths, record racks and counters are Unico construction. Ray Kennedy is the proprietor.

IRVING KAUFMAN WITH VOCALION

Well-known Vaudeville Star and Record Artist Signs Exclusive Contract

The Aeolian Red record department of the Aeolian Co. announced on October 1 the signing of a contract with Irving Kaufman, the well-known record artist, whereby he will in future make Vocalion Red records exclusively.

Mr. Kaufman, who is particularly popular in the vaudeville field, has for some years been making records for various companies and has achieved marked success in that line, creating a substantial following among record buyers. Mr. Kaufman will make his first Vocalion record upon his return from a Canadian engagement.

The Dixon Music Shop, 518-520 Dewey street, North Platte, Nebr., has added Victor machines and records to its stock. In addition the concern handles the Edison and Columbia.

BUBBLE BOOKS CAMPAIGN STARTED

Harper & Bros. Preparing Sales and Publicity Drive—Sales Totals Show Substantial Increase

Harper & Bros., New York, publishers of the popular Bubble Books, are well pleased with the outlook for the Fall and holiday trade, and Bruce McClure, publicity director of the company, is in personal charge of an intensive sales and advertising campaign that is meeting with exceptional success. It is interesting to note that the sales of Bubble Books have increased steadily for the past four years, with the figures for the first nine months of 1923 showing a substantial increase over the corresponding period of 1922. Mr. McClure is particularly interested in the fact that talking machine dealers are featuring Bubble Books as appropriate gifts during the Christmas season and the timeliness of the present campaign is proving an important factor in its success.

Busy Industries Presage Brisk Trade—Discontinue Sending Records Out on Approval—The News

DETROIT, MICH., October 8.—There is only one thing that can prevent a big talking machine business this Fall—it is the lack of energy of the dealers themselves. Speaking for Michigan, latest reports from the Manufacturers' Association indicate that there is sufficient work ahead to keep everybody employed for the coming season and that for the past year employment and wages have been the greatest in the history of the State. Bank deposits substantiate these statements.

Sales of talking machines have been brisk all through September and a big increase in sales is anticipated by the retailers for the month of October. Already some of the stores have announced special Christmas offers and many dealers are planning holiday drives.

The J. L. Hudson Music Store came out with a rather startling announcement the other day—that of discontinuing the policy of sending records out on approval. This has been the practice of the Hudson and other downtown stores for many years. It was their belief that it created sales. But, apparently, the Hudson Store realizes that, while it creates sales, it also brings losses and entails a lot of delivery and bookkeeping expense.

The writer can recall some years ago in the early days of the Detroit Talking Machine Dealers' Association, when this subject of approval records came up for discussion. Many were opposed to it, but quite a few of the big downtown dealers, including the Hudson Store, were inclined to favor it on the ground that it did stimulate record sales. These dealers also admitted that the policy had its faults, but they felt that the good points overshadowed the bad. In view of the Hudson announcement it would not be at all surprising to see others follow suit.

A. A. Grinnell, treasurer of Grinnell Bros., who is back from an extended European trip and who is in touch with every phase of the company's business, is very optimistic about the balance of this year and looks for a big volume of sales in all of the company's forty branch stores.

All through the month of October Grinnell Bros. will conduct their twentieth annual sale of used musical instruments, mostly pianos and players, but including some talking machines. These instruments have been out on rental at the Summer resorts.

The Crowley, Milner Co., Detroit, has added the Brunswick line of phonographs and records to its line.

In the neighborhood sections, especially Polish and Hungarian, we find dealers selling a great many cheap machines—without manufacturers' names, priced around $65. There seems to be quite a demand in the foreign neighborhood for machines that can be sold at a very low price. These people do not buy the nationally advertised brands and only know one thing—the cheapest in price. Why?

Sam Lind, of the Lind & Marks Co., distributor of the Vocalion records and manufacturer of the Wolverine phonograph, reports that the past month has brought a tremendous volume of new business. "We are adding new accounts right along on our Vocalion records, while all over the country inquiries are pouring in regarding our line of Wolverine phonographs, which are manufactured exclusively for us," said Mr. Lind.

One of the finest neighborhood stores is that of Ray J. Youngblood, on East Jefferson avenue, Detroit. Mr. Youngblood was for many years in the dry cleaning business. Some time ago he got the "bug" to have his own talking machine store, so that he could sell the records of his sister, Margaret Young. So he secured a location adjoining his dry cleaning place and then, when business got good, moved to his new location on East Jefferson avenue. He handles the Brunswick line exclusively and does a very nice business.

Okeh records are selling very big in Detroit. They are featured by ten or twelve of the regular music dealers and, the other night, we noticed them in the Brownie Drug Stores, of which there are some thirty in this city.

Fall orders are being received in good volume by the Phonograph Co. of Detroit, Edison distributor for this territory. Edison dealers in this city and surrounding territory are apparently receiving their share of the business and the outlook for one of the busiest holiday seasons on record is exceptionally bright. The Edison line is one of the leaders in popularity here and, if the orders constantly being received by the Phonograph Co. of Detroit may be taken as an indication, Edison dealers throughout this section, at least, are enjoying a demand equal to that for any other make of instrument.

CABINET HARDWARE DEMAND GROWING

The H. A. Guden Co., Inc., New York, manufacturer of cabinet hardware and accessories, announced recently the appointment of Edwin Wood to represent the company in Australia and New Zealand. H. A. Guden, president of the company, states that there has been an exceptionally active demand for the invisible hinge, which was introduced a few months ago, and that cabinet manufacturers generally are ordering hardware in larger quantities than in previous years, particularly stay arms.

If the Best is the Cheapest to Buy,—
Then the Best is the Cheapest to Sell.

Music lovers everywhere recognize that only the New Edison can give real music; for it is the only phonograph that actually Re-Creates the artist's performance. Its realism is so profound that the music critics have been unable to distinguish the original from the Re-Creation.

FINE EXHIBITS AT NATIONAL EXPOSITION IN TORONTO

Talking Machine Displays a Center of Interest at Forty-fifth Annual Canadian Exhibition—Vocalion Display a Winner—A. C. Valeur a Benedict—Advises Making Radio an Ally

TORONTO, ONT., October 4.—One of the particularly interesting exhibits at the Canadian National Exposition held here recently was that of the Scythes Vocalion Co., Ltd., of this city, which had on display a representative line of Vocalion phonograph models ranging in price from $135 to $425, the latter being an Italian Renaissance model of the seventeenth century that attracted considerable attention. Among the other instruments shown were a Queen Anne period model, a Queen Anne console and a late seventeenth century period model.

E. C. Scythes, head of the company, attended the exhibit personally and declared that the most popular selling model in Canada just now is the Style No. 450 console, with Style No. 550 being a close second. In addition to machines displayed there were also demonstrated for the benefit of exhibition visitors all the latest Vocalion records, those by the London String Quartet, H. B. M. First Light Guards Band, Colin O'More, tenor, and various dance orchestras proving especially interesting. A number of excellent prospects, together with fair volume of immediate sales, were made during the course of the show.

The forty-fifth annual Canadian National Exhibition is now a matter of history. The paid attendance this year was 1,493,000, a gain of more than 120,000 over last year. "Music Day" brought an attendance of 118,000, as against 109,500 last year. Ten phonograph and record exhibits were on display, taking up the entire floor space of the Phonograph Building. Those in attendance were as follows: Sun Record Co., Ontario distributor of Apex records and phonographs; Starr Co. of Canada, Ltd., London; Scythes Vocalion Co.; R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., Canadian Edison distributor; Columbia Graphophone Co.; Gerhard Heintzman, Ltd.; His Master's Voice, Ltd.; Sonora Phonograph, Ltd.; McLagan Phonograph Corp., Ltd., Stratford; Russell Gear & Machine Co., Ltd., phonograph equipment; Musical Merchandise Sales Co., Ltd., Brunswick records.

A. C. Valeur, managing director of Sonora Phonograph, Ltd., this city, recently was married. He was the recipient of a handsome mantel clock presented by his staff. Harry R. Braid has been made sales manager of the company.

The Charles Kirke Music Co., Ltd., Ottawa, has moved to its new quarters at 195½ Sparks street and has taken on the Vocalion line.

"Do not let radio become a competitor of the phonograph," advises S. C. Thornton, the well-known music dealer of Dundas, Ont. "Make it an ally." Mr. Thornton has given the question of music men handling radio business considerable thought and experience and is an eager student of anything pertaining to radio development. He quite believes it will become an important proposition for the music trade.

Weddings and Reopening of Schools Result in a General Stimulation of Business—Charles Edison, Vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., a Visitor—The Month's News

MUSIC AT THE VANCOUVER FAIR

Talking Machine and Piano Displays Lead—On Novel Selling Expedition in Motor Launch Stocked With Musical Goods—The News

VANCOUVER, B. C., October 6.—Music played an important part in the Vancouver Fair just concluded, practically one-quarter of the Manufacturers' Building being devoted to the display of pianos and phonographs. His Master's Voice products were well represented by Messrs. W. F. Evans and Switzer Bros. Geo. Goulding, winner of the world's walking championship, Olympic games, and now conducting a sporting goods store in Vancouver, believes in publicity. During the Fair he borrowed a Victrola No. 50, a set of Victor health exercises and a set of reducing exercises from the display stand of W. F. Evans, Ltd., and, donning a gym suit, he demonstrated them.

Tom Switzer, of Switzer Bros., has undertaken one of the most novel expeditions known to the music world. Tiring of city life and the daily routine he hired a gas launch, loaded it with records, Victrolas, musical instruments and sheet music and went up the coast in search of business, rest and adventure. He is reaching hamlets that perhaps see a boat once in a month, people who have the opportunity of getting into town once in two or three years wake up to find a city music store at their door, and reports are that sales are coming easy.

G. F. Curtis, of Hanley, Sask., is going out of the drug business to devote his entire time to selling the New Edison phonographs, regarding which he is particularly enthusiastic.

Kent's new phonograph store in Victoria was recently opened to the public. Edison and Brunswick phonographs are handled.

The first of a series of radio concerts to be broadcasted this season took place recently from the premises of one of the leading music houses in Winnipeg. The artists were all members of the Mason & Risch Co. store.

When the Grand Theatre, Calgary, Stock Co., recently put on the show "It Pays to Advertise" several merchants displayed goods in the theatre lobby. Matthews Music House had a Brunswick York console on display.

In a chat with The World Mr. Chapin stated that talking machine dealers throughout the country are evincing keen interest in the sales possibilities of the Truesolo strings and that new dealer agencies have been established in important trade centers.

SOLVES GIFT RECORD PROBLEM

Luckey, Platte & Co. Use Label That Permits Gift Exchanges—Practical and Timely Idea

Luckey, Platte & Co., Victor dealers, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., have solved one of the problems that usually arise during the holiday season, namely, the gift record problem. These enterprising dealers use a label bearing the following inscription: "This record is exchangeable within seven days if seal is unbroken." The use of this label permits the sending of records as a gift and the privilege of exchanging them if the seal is unbroken. It frequently happens that the recipients of gift records already have the gift selections in their record libraries or wish to exchange them for other reasons. This label makes it possible to take care of the exchange to the satisfaction of all concerned, doing away with misunderstandings.

Death Takes Away Frank J. Hart, Popular Trade Member—Music Trades Ass'n of Southern California Convenes—News of the Month

LOS ANGELES, CAL., October 4.—Death took away one of the pioneers of the local music trade on September 26 in the person of Frank J. Hart, founder of the Southern California Music Co. Mr. Hart, who was sixty-two years old, leaves a widow and two sons, one of the latter being a member of the musical merchandise department of the Southern California Music Co. The funeral took place on Saturday, September 29, at the Church of the Flowers, Forrestlawn Cemetery, Glendale, and was attended by representatives from practically every music house in Los Angeles. The pallbearers consisted of George S. Marygold, vice-president and general manager; Ralph E. Hovey, treasurer; Scott Williamson, Jr., secretary; Irving Westphal, manager of the talking machine department; Worth Hathaway, piano sales manager, and Herb. Fish, phonograph department.

Convention Held in Long Beach

A convention of the music trades of Southern California took place in Long Beach late in September, and was attended by more than 150 music dealers and members of their sales forces. E. Palmer Tucker, president of the Music Trades Association of Southern California, occupied the chair and gave an opening address of welcome, in which he expressed the hope that the convention would become an annual event. He also enumerated a number of the benefits which the Association had accomplished in the past and urged all music dealers to become members. Mr. Tucker then introduced R. M. Mattson, of the Mattson Music Co., Long Beach, and Robert R. Shafer, of Shafer's Music House, Santa Ana, chairmen of the Long Beach and Orange County divisions of the Association respectively, both of whom made suitable replies. He then introduced Professor Cheney, of the Cheney Phonograph Corp., who was one of the guests of honor.

Professor Cheney won the admiration and applause of his hearers by delivering a clever and entertaining speech on the origin of music as one of the main branches of art. He also described the general application of periodic vibrations which exists in all healthy and normal states, from the heart beats of a man to the business of a nation, including the music business, in which harmony must predominate inside their several businesses and also in their relations with competitors.

Harry James, exclusive Gennett record artist, was also a specially invited guest and entertained the company with humorous stories and jokes, concluding with one of his famous monologues, "An Englishman at a Baseball Game," which was greatly enjoyed.

A number of members were called on by President Tucker, including E. A. Geissler, of the Geo. J. Birkel Co.; George P. Bent, of national fame; Harold Jackson, of Sherman, Clay & Co.; J. W. Boothe, of Barker Bros.; H. W. Masters, of the Wiley B. Allen Co.; Worth Hathaway, of the Southern California Music Co.; Harry Clubbe, of the Redondo Beach Music Co.; Herb. Fish, of the Southern California Music Co., and Frank Moreno, of Barker Bros.

Musical numbers were given by an orchestra supplied by Cal. Houlette, Long Beach branch manager of the Platt Music Co., and songs were sung by Mrs. Eddie Cline, wife of Eddie Cline, of the Platt Music Co.

Adjournment was later made to the ballroom, where dancing took place until midnight.

Southern Cal. Co.'s New Store

The new premises of the Southern California Music Co., consisting of the recently completed eight-story building at 806-808 South Broadway, were formally opened recently. A reception was held, all business being suspended and no sales made, and musical entertainment was provided.

All of the eight floors, five of which are occupied by the company—the others being rented to a number of high-class musicians for studios—are uniformly decorated in the Italian period style. The Victor and Brunswick departments are especially attractive; they are situated on the second floor overlooking the main floor, while the record department is on the main floor and consists of a very large record service counter in the center, with about twenty record demonstration rooms of unusually handsome construction, each room being a perfect example of Italian architecture—each with its arches and curved, hand-painted ceilings. On the eighth floor there is an auditorium capable of seating 300 people.

Heavy Sale of Gennett Records

The popularity of Gennett records has been demonstrated in this section of the country by the remarkable increase of sales this year, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. H. L. Nolder, Western general manager of the Starr Piano Co., states that, month after month, a gratifying increase has been shown in sales, both retail and wholesale, until the volume for the first eight months of 1923 reveals a gain of about 200 per cent over that for 1922.

Platt Music Co. Celebrates Anniversary

The Platt Music Co. celebrated its eighteenth anniversary with a picnic and outing at Los Angeles harbor, and a pleasant trip to the famous houseboat of Marco Hellmann, prominent Los Angeles banker. The ladies were taken for a cruise on a boat around the harbor and then, during supper and afterwards, a most enjoyable time was spent in dancing and numerous songs and musical numbers, all of which were furnished by the home talent. Speeches were made by Messrs. Platt, Hellmann and Epstein, and L. A. Fleischman, sales manager of the piano department, acted as chairman. P. H. Beck, manager of the Victrola department, played a prominent part during the evening, receiving the hearty support of Miss R. Johnson, manager of the record department, as well as Miss Angus, who literally whistled herself to fame.

New Brunswick Shop in Gardena

T. T. Gardner, who was for some time a member of the phonograph department of the Southern California Music Co., has recently opened a Brunswick Shop in Gardena, known as the T. T. Gardner & Sons Music House. In addition to a full line of Brunswick phonographs and records the new store will have piano and musical merchandise departments.

Schireson Bros. Open New Branch Store

Schireson Bros. have opened their third store at 107 West Third street, where they are featuring Starr phonographs and Gennett records, in addition to musical merchandise and music.

Takes on Okeh Record Line

"Okeh" Smith, distributor of Okeh records in this city, is closing an excellent business with this popular record line. Among the new accounts which have recently been added in this territory are the following: Urner & James, Bakersfield, Cal.; W. H. Butts, Los Angeles, Cal.; Bolton & James, Santa Barbara, Cal.; Borden's Cash Store, Oceanside, Cal.; Belvedere Gardens Pharmacy, Belvedere Gardens, Cal.; Coops & Sons, Pasadena, Cal.; Campbell Music Co., Alhambra, Cal.; Cooper's Phono Co., Claremont, Cal., and G. B. Ennever, Ocean Park, Cal.

The California Record Mfg. Co., with headquarters at 703 Southern California Music Building, is the name of a new concern recently opened here for the purpose of making records, largely from local vocal and instrumental talent. The officers of the company are H. P. Fay and A. E. Suerkert, who have been interested in the record business for several years.

CLOSES INSTALLATION CONTRACTS

Among the recent installations closed by the Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York, were orders for the sheet music and musical instrument departments in the Brooklyn and Poughkeepsie stores of Emanuel Blout. Hecht Bros., 53 West Fourteenth street, New York, have just installed a department for the presentation of radio and phonograph instruments and a new sheet music department has been added to the store of A. L. LeJeal, Erie, Pa.

J. L. Frame & Son recently opened a new store in the downtown district of Toledo, O., in which the Columbia line is featured.

LUDWIG BAUMAN & CO.'S NEW STORE

Well-known Furniture House Opens Second Newark Store—Victor, Brunswick and Sonora Lines Featured in Fine Department

The Newark talking machine trade was well in evidence at the opening of the new store of Ludwig Bauman & Co. on Broad street and Central avenue. This well-known furniture house handles Victor, Brunswick and Sonora products, and general newspaper publicity was used featuring the various lines coincident with the opening of the store. The new establishment is in the so-called “high rent” district of Newark, adjacent to such well-known concerns as the Lauter Piano Co., Griffith Piano Co. and the large department store of Hahne & Co.

While the Ludwig Bauman establishment is essentially a furniture store, the talking machine department is located in a prominent section on the ground floor and is one of the most attractive departments in the New Jersey trade.

VICTOR WEEKLY RELEASE POPULAR

Double-Faced Red Seal Records Bringing Increased Business—Victor Co. Speeds Production to Meet the Demand

The new Victor plan of weekly release of records has had an auspicious beginning and has been granted a very favorable reception by both the Victor dealer trade and the consumer public, according to R. L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Talking Machine Co. Mr. Freeman added that the newspaper advertising program of the Victor Co. has been increased approximately 33 per cent, so that the public throughout the entire country may be promptly informed of each new weekly release of Victor recordings.

The recently adopted plan of offering Red Seal records, double-faced, and at greatly reduced prices, it was learned, has also met with a very gratifying response on the part of the public. In fact, the number of copies of individual Red Seal records that have been sold by certain dealers since the introduction of this new policy has been of an astounding character.

Mr. Freeman also stated that the Victor Co. is pushed to capacity to meet the demand for both Victrolas and records, and that as fast as parts of the new addition to the Victor plant are completed, the company is immediately moving in, thereby as rapidly as possible increasing its output. This great new addition to the Victor plant is already completely erected and presents a very impressive appearance as one approaches Camden from the Philadelphia side. The interior portions are being finished up at a rapid rate.

The new Brilliantone daylight display, which is illuminated entirely by daylight and needs no electric current, is proving popular and many requests are being made for this device.

FOREST CHENEY VISITS DENVER

Forest Cheney, inventor of the Cheney phonograph, who is touring the West in the interest of this instrument, recently stopped off at Denver, Col., on his way to the Pacific Coast. Maximilian Weil, president of the Audak Co., New York, manufacturer of the Audak record demonstrating unit, announced this week the appointment of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, as a distributor for Audaks, this deal being closed after J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the company, had tested the Audak for nearly a year. After Mr. Weil had addressed the Blackman sales force he was congratulated upon the practical value of his device, which was given Mr. Blackman's unqualified approval. The Blackman sales staff will participate in an active campaign to bring the Audak to the attention of the company's dealers, especially in view of the fact that the biggest record months of the year are awaiting the trade at the present time, and speed is an important service consideration.

LABOR PRAISES VICTOR CO. POLICY

Ability of the Victor Co. to Keep Plant Operating Throughout Period of Depression Cited as Example of Capable Management

Organized labor paid the following tribute to the capable management policy of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in an article published in the American Federationist, the official magazine of the American Federation of Labor. It indicates that the worker is directly interested in the efficiency of the management in that his regularity of employment depends largely upon that factor. The article in question reads:

"It may be opportune to relate some facts about the Victor Talking Machine Co., since it has come into the discussion. The late unemployment crisis didn't bother this company.

"This has nothing to do with the company's employment policy, be that what it may. But it does show that a company's marketing ability and its ability to find out who wants what it sells and to form a connection has much to do with employment. Management needs brains, from raw material to ledger entry.

"During the whole unemployment period the Victor Co. went on making talking machines, with full-time employment for its entire force throughout the whole depression. And that was something of an achievement when 5,000,000 workers couldn't find even a ghost of a payroll connection.

"The Victor Co. kept its advertising campaign going full blast—it spends something like $6,000,000 a year. It scratched its head, figuratively, and looked for new buyers. It didn't pull a long face and call the battle lost. It not only made talking machines talk; it made them move. This it did on a depressed market.

"One bit of ingenuity was to personally canvass fire houses. Reasoning was: firemen have a lot of free time in the fire houses; talking machines would amuse men during idle hours. The idea worked. Other similar ideas worked. Result: Full-time work for workers.

"Maybe many others couldn't have done likewise. The only point is, that management efficiency has much to do with industrial stability and many wage earners have to suffer for the incompetence of those by whom they are employed. Workers have a valid right to good industrial management; and somehow, some day, they will find a way to insure and protect themselves against the risks of incompetent management."

DA-LITE ISSUES RED SEAL PANELS

TOLEDO, O., October 6.—The Da-Lite Electric Display Co., of this city, manufacturer of electric displays featuring Victor records, is showing this month a series of fourteen panels of Red Seal Victor artists, calling attention to double-faced Red Seal records. Harry Cuddeback, head of the company, believes that this is an opportune time for the production of these panels, in view of the fact that the Victor trade is keenly interested in the new double-faced Red Seal records. The present series consists of fourteen of the most famous Victor Red Seal artists, but it is planned to increase this list very shortly. Quite a number of the artists are now on concert tour, and Mr. Cuddeback is certain that this series of panels will prove of direct value to Victor dealers.

FEATURING NEW ELECTRIC MOTOR

H. A. Robbins, of Boston, Appointed Sales Agent for New Kendrick & Davis Motor That Possesses Many Interesting Features

BOSTON, MASS., October 6.—H. A. Robbins, well known in the talking machine trade through his former connection of several years with the industry, some time ago opened headquarters at 142 Berkeley street, this city, where he is acting as sales agent for a new and thoroughly interesting talking machine motor manufactured by Kendrick & Davis, well-known electrical goods manufacturers, of Lebanon, N. H.

The new motor is distinctly original in construction and control and is the result of several years' careful experimenting. A particularly interesting feature of the motor is the starting and automatic stopping device, consisting of a pinion that slips into a slot in the turntable spindle and by so doing forms the contact which starts the motor to operating. When the record has finished playing the pinion is released from the slot and the turntable stops within a quarter of a revolution.

The motor is provided with gears of formica, which is declared to have better wearing qualities than steel, as well as other factors to recommend it. The shaft is of one-piece tool steel and the worm is of brass. The governor is mechanically controlled and a friction idler in the spindle prevents the slipping of gears. The whole construction from an electrical standpoint is first class, and the motor is designed to operate on any 110-volt per.

T. M. Cornell has been appointed sales representative for the new motor, and has already been very active in the East. He will leave shortly for Chicago and other Western cities in the interests of the new product.

INCREASING FACTORY PRODUCTION

Wasmuth-Goodrich Co. Reports Active Emerson Business—Stores on West Coast Enjoying a Particularly Active Demand

In a recent discussion of the general business outlook E. V. Hughes, production manager of the Wasmuth-Goodrich Co., Peru, Ind., manufacturer of Emerson phonographs, stated that actual orders received from the Pacific Coast and intermediate points had made it necessary to increase production schedules in order to meet the demand. The Dohrman stores in San Francisco and Los Angeles featured a very successful sale of the new Emerson consoles and at Oakland the Capewell establishment conducted a sale with excellent results. Other Emerson dealers reporting an active demand for the company's product are the Guest Piano Co., Burlington, Ia.; Jones Piano Co., Des Moines, Ia., and Burgess & Nash, of Omaha, Neb. In Chicago the Emerson is featured by Rothschild in the "Loop" and several outlying stores.

One of the favorites in the present Emerson product is the "Alaric," a Gothic model retailing at $200. This instrument is meeting with a ready sale throughout the country and promises to be the leader in sales totals when the year's figures are completed.

L. Mendelsohn, of Edgewood, Md., who has a store very near the Edgewood Arsenal, is securing much business from the soldiers located at the camp. He makes the rounds with samples of Columbia records as they come out each month.

THE SHELTON Electric Motor

The "Simplicity" electrifies Victor, Edison and Columbia phonographs by simply taking off winding handle and placing motor against turntable. Automatic switch in motor operated when the turntable is started or stopped. Operating on AC or DC current of 110 volts. Specify type of current when ordering.

PLANS OF GOTHAM MUSIC CONTEST

Announce the Numbers to Be Used in New York's Music Memory Contest Next Year—T. M. M. to Co-operate on a Large Scale

Following the decision of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., to co-operate in the music-memory contest in New York next year on an even more elaborate basis than was the participation this year, working, of course, through the public schools and through contacts made by dealers in various districts, there has just been issued a complete list of the numbers to be featured in the next music-memory contest.

The list consists of fifty numbers and its issuance at this early date will enable the dealers to prepare their stocks and make other arrangements necessary to enable them to get the fullest possible value out of the movement. One of the fundamentals, of course, will be their ability to provide for both the instructors and the student contestants all the records that are included in the list.

The plan of the Talking Machine Men provides for the dealer presenting to the school or schools in his district records to the value of $5 or $10 taken from the official list. It is also urged that the dealers arrange to give recitals for the benefit of the school children in their stores, playing over the various records on the list and arranging recitals if possible during the school hours or immediately thereafter so that teachers may accompany the youngsters and keep order.

At the present time E. G. Brown, secretary of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., is busy collecting information regarding the schools located in the districts assigned to various dealers so that the tie-up may be complete and effective. The complete list for the Music-memory contest is as follows:

The Songster

WIDE-AWAKE phonograph dealers will realize instantly the sales possibilities of this new and unusual phonograph. The tone chamber of the Songster is made from select violin spruce in its natural state; it is not veneered, as in usual tone chamber construction. Specially constructed "violin" chambers at both sides of this tone chamber collect the tone vibrations and reflect them in deepened, mellow tones that surprise and delight the hearer. The Songster's tonal system is its dominating virtue; the Songster's variety of design and finish equals any machine on the market. The Songster is now making big profits for many dealers in the Northwest. It can't help but do the same for you.

DEVELOPMENT OF PORTABLE FIELD

Robert B. Wheelan, President of Health Builders, Inc., Points Out the Greatly Enlarged Scope of Portable Sales Opportunities

A noticeable change in the portable field was pointed out by Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., New York, which produces the "Camp-fone" portable. In discussing the situation with The World Mr. Wheelan declared: "Although the portable was originally designed and planned as a vacation and camp instrument it is my theory that no more than two out of every 100 purchasers of portable machines actually use it for a vacation instrument. This is largely borne out in the decided demand upon the part of the buying public for mahogany and mahogany finished portables. It is logical that a person would not want to take a mahogany machine out into the open. The finish is decidedly not adapted to that purpose. I believe strongly that the future of the portable is for the home and, therefore, it should have a sales demand of all-year duration. It is, in my opinion, gradually taking the place of the small table machine. For example: Mrs. Jones goes to the local talking machine retailer with less than $50 to purchase a small talking machine which can be placed on the ordinary table. While there she sees the better type machines which she cannot afford, but which various of her neighbors have. She realizes that if she purchases a table machine the contrast will be obvious and she may possibly appear cheap. While there she also sees the portable machine with a good finish and quality equipment and finds that this machine also has a cover which the other machine which she originally intended to buy has not. Furthermore, she is not buying a talking machine which competes with the higher-priced machines of her neighbors, but one that is bought, obviously, for portable purposes, although the machine may never leave the house. I believe that this instance is being duplicated thousands of times throughout the country and that the home appeal is the real appeal in the portable field. Even in the home its portability is a decided asset, for, although it may be customary to gather in the living room where the large talking machine is situated, very often music is desired in the den upstairs or other rooms of the house. I also believe that the portable talking machine is going to be enjoyed a good holiday demand. It did last year and there is no reason why this success should not at least be duplicated, if not augmented. I recall one instance where a friend of mine received two portables as a Christmas present last year, both of his friends thinking, although separately, of the desirability of the portable as a present."

Mr. Wheelan has taken the theory of the portable as an all-year-round home talking machine and put it into actual effect in new literature on the "Camp-fone" which he has prepared. The quality appeal is presented on the cover, where couples in evening dress are dancing to the music of the portable. On the inside of the cover are shown various scenes of home life, showing the portable in the living room, in the den, the boudoir and the nursery. Mr. Wheelan is advising his many dealers to play up the home appeal of the portable in their sales talks. Mr. Wheelan is helping dealers in this respect, not only through literature, but by attractive window displays showing the portable in the home and other merchandising helps.

NEW STORE IN TUOLUMNE OPENS

TUOLUMNE, CAL., October 6.—Baldwin pianos and a line of phonographs, records and player-rolls will be carried by a new music store, which John Landzaad and Charles Deal are opening.

DITSON DEPARTMENT IS MOVED

Wholesale Talking Machine Department of Chas. H. Ditson & Co. Now Located on Third Floor of Ditson Building on Thirty-fourth Street—Property Purchased by Mr. Ditson

The wholesale Victor department of Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 10 East Thirty-fourth street, New York, under the management of Paul Carlson, has been moved from the eighth floor to the third floor of the building at that address, where increased facilities are provided for the handling of the business.

The floor comprises approximately 4,000 square feet of space, providing adequate room for suitable offices and reception rooms and for the storage of stock. Ditson & Co. have for some time past maintained a model display window for the guidance of dealers in making their own window displays, and this window is a feature of the new third floor arrangement. There are also provided display and demonstration rooms for convenience of visiting dealers.

By moving to the third floor the Victor department secures the use of an additional passenger elevator and also of an extra freight elevator running down to the shipping room in the basement, which provides the means for facilitating deliveries. The department will also be able to make use of the pneumatic tube equipment of the Ditson store proper.

As has already been announced, Chas. H. Ditson, head of Ditson & Co., recently purchased the property at 8-10 East Thirty-fourth street, upon which the present Ditson building was erected under a long-time lease in 1906. The structure is ten stories and basement and is distinctly modern, and is located practically in the heart of the present-day retail shopping district. The floors not occupied by Chas. H. Ditson & Co. for their own departments are leased for use as offices and showrooms.

Davis, Burkham & Tyler Co. Occupies Handsome New Building in That City

CAMBRIDGE, O., October 2.—The Davis, Burkham & Tyler Co. on Saturday last held a formal opening of its handsome new building at 843 Wheeling avenue. The new building, a three-story structure, was built especially for the company following the success met with by the local branch that has been maintained here for a number of years.

The main floor is given over to the piano department, the various rooms being divided one from another with French folding doors. On the same floor are the sheet music and small goods department and the executive offices. The basement has been fitted up in a most modern manner to house the Victor talking machine and record department and the music roll department. The interior of the store is finished in ivory, mahogany and French gray, and indirect lighting adds to the effect.

E. M. Bonnell is manager of the local store and his sales staff includes R. L. Cowden, Frank C. Dunn, Chas. Schairer, Marjorie Dennis and Ruth Dawson. The tuning and repair department is an important factor of the business and is in charge of P. E. Beebe.

The store was handsomely decorated for the opening and hourly recitals were given with the aid of the Ampico.

A. R. SAUNDERS SALES MANAGER

Appointed to This Important Post by Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp.—C. F. Usher to Manage Metropolitan Sales and V. Czerwinski Is in Charge of Foreign Department

Several important changes of interest to the talking machine trade have been made in the personnel of the staff of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y. A. R. Saunders, who has occupied the position of special representative of the Pathé Co. in the Central States, will occupy the important post of sales manager, which was left open when H. T. Leeming left about a month ago for work in another field.

C. F. Usher, former Pathé special representative, will now manage sales in the metropolitan district. Both Mr. Saunders and Mr. Usher are experienced Pathé men and their advancement is a tribute to their efficiency.

A bright promise for the expansion of the foreign record business of the company is found in the recent appointment of Vincent Czerwinski to the directing staff of the foreign record department. Mr. Czerwinski brings to the Pathé Corp. experience and ability which equip him admirably for his new responsibility. He has the appreciative understanding of the musical artist, having recorded vocal selections for many important companies in this country and having been for many years a recognized singer in European grand opera. He is a linguist and has a practical knowledge of the special problems of the dealers in the retailing of foreign language records. He was at one time associated with the foreign record department of the General Phonograph Co. and is also the founder and president of the Polonia Phonograph Co. Mr. Czerwinski, since his appointment to the foreign record staff, has been instrumental in developing this end of the business. It is believed that the new price of 75 cents will afford the dealer an opportunity of unlimited development of business. It is also announced that, through the connections of Pathé in Paris, arrangements have been made for the recording of the best selections by the finest native artists in European countries. These will be released at the earliest possible moment, and it is expected that they will be in great demand. A very interesting list of foreign records is being sent out with the November record supplement of the company.

UNIQUE RCA "AD" CALENDAR

Radio Corp. of America Issues Interesting Advertising Calendar—Emphasizes Extent of Publicity Campaign During the Year

The advertising department of the Radio Corp. of America, manufacturer of Radiolas, recently furnished to its dealers an unique calendar, calling attention to its tremendous publicity campaign during 1923. For each month of the year a detailed tabulation was presented, showing the dates on which various magazines were published and the combined circulation of these periodicals. All of the magazines in this tabulation are included in the RCA campaign for 1923, in addition to a special newspaper campaign. According to the figures presented in this calendar the 1923 advertising of the Radio Corp. of America will reach a total advertising circulation of 55,000,000 and, subsequent to the preparation of this calendar, considerable additional media were placed on the advertising schedule.

Mr. Rosenfield took up his new duties on the first of this month.

OFFERS NEW RADIO-PHONOGRAPH

Trinity Phonograph Co., Boston, Presents a New Combination Instrument to Trade

The Trinity Phonograph Co., Boston, Mass., has met with considerable success in introducing a new Trinity Radio-Phonograph, a combination instrument that has apparently made a strong appeal to those who admire the talking machine, yet have fallen under the spell of radio. The phonograph case in a cabinet of Queen Anne period, finished in mahogany, is equipped with a Kendrick & Davis motor or a spring motor if desired, while the radio equipment consists of a Maclite four-tube set with the tone chamber of the phonograph taking the place of the loud speaker. The entire radio equipment is included within the cabinet, the only wires being those to the antenna and ground.

T. M. Cornell is associated with H. A. Robbins in the handling of the new radio-phonograph, and has placed a number of the instruments with dealers in the East.

PROFITING BY REPAIR SERVICE

Dealers Realizing Value of This Service in Gaining Friendship of Customers

An opportunity for adding to his profits which the dealer often overlooks is in the repair of talking machines. Not only can this service be made to pay, but the increased prestige derived from an accommodation of this character is bound to cement the friendship between customer and dealer which is sure, sooner or later, to manifest itself in sales of records, accessories, etc., to pleased patrons. That many dealers are paying considerable attention to this form of service, although they cannot afford to operate a repair department, is manifested by the fact that the Ideal Repair Service, New York, which specializes in talking machine repairs, is enjoying a steadily growing business and is constantly enlarging its circle of dealer-clients. In fact, this concern is turning out repair work for dealers throughout the country, evidence enough that many merchants are finding that it pays to help their customers keep their instruments in first-class shape.

PLYMOUTH PHONO. CO. TO EXPAND

Chamber of Commerce of Plymouth, Wis., Recognizes Importance of the Company and Urges Public to Subscribe for New Stock

PLYMOUTH, Wis., October 6.—At a recent meeting of the Plymouth Association of Commerce in this city much attention was directed to the activities of the Plymouth Phonograph Co. A resolution was passed acknowledging the Plymouth Co. as an important asset to the commercial life of the town. A further resolution inaugurated a movement to obtain additional resources to enable the Plymouth Co. to enlarge its plant and take care of its largely increased business by the sale of preferred stock. An idea of the importance of the phonograph company to the town may be gained from the following paragraph which was part of the preamble to the resolution:

"Whereas, the business depression, which struck our country toward the end of 1920, also had its effect upon the Plymouth Phonograph Co., and in consequence of same they were obliged to cut down their working force considerably. But all through the years 1921 and 1922, where other plants had to cease operations and were practically shut down, the Plymouth Phonograph Co. kept on running and gave steady employment to close to 100 men. During the prosperous year of 1920 they paid out in wages $235,000.00, and since then, including the long period of depression, the semi-monthly pay roll has averaged approximately $5,000.00."

After describing the present favorable position of the Plymouth Phonograph Co. and mentioning its large contract with Montgomery Ward & Co., of Chicago, the resolution invites the public to subscribe for the company's new issue of 8 per cent preferred stock.

One of the latest additions to the music stores of Columbus, O., is the firm of Koebel & Keller, who have opened an attractive store at 846 North High street. In addition to pianos, the concern handles Victor talking machines.

TWO DEPARTMENTS UNDER ONE HEAD

Piano and Phonograph Departments of Hahne & Co., Newark, Now Under Management of W. O. Black—J. L. Blake With Bamberger

The piano and phonograph departments of Hahne & Co., Newark, N. J., which have been operating separately in the past, were consolidated under one head last week and both will in the future be managed by W. O. Black, present head of the piano department. Such a combination had been contemplated for some time on account of the interlocking nature of the business and, the departments being situated side by side in the store, the change will be especially effective. J. L. Blake, who recently resigned as manager of the talking machine department, has joined the sales force of the phonograph division at Bamberger's, Newark.

The Van Fossen-Smiley Piano Co., which features the Sonora and Fischer phonographs and Vocalion records in Canton, O., is now settled in new quarters at 426 Market avenue.

PLANE USED IN NOVEL PUBLICITY

Hempstead Music Shop Celebrates First Anniversary of Store Opening by Staging Unusual and Most Effective Advertising Stunt

A novel publicity stunt was recently staged by the Hempstead Music Shop, live-wire Sonora dealer at Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y. It was the first anniversary of the opening of this store and H. H. Lindenberger, manager of the establishment, decided to use some real publicity. Advance advertising appeared in the local newspapers and on the day set for the event a large airplane, with the words "Sonora" and "Hempstead Music Shop" painted in four-foot letters on the bottom, flew over the town at an extremely low altitude, with another plane circling above it. After doing a few stunts to attract attention the passenger in the first plane dropped 1,500 envelopes with Sonora literature enclosed over the side. Each envelope was numbered and prizes were distributed to the four persons who picked up the winning numbers, the first prize being a Sonora portable.

CANTON, O.

Trade Extension Week Stimulated Sales—Big Holiday Demand Expected—Moves and Alterations

CANTON, O., October 4.—It was the consensus of opinion among talking machine dealers in the Canton district that, from the middle of October right on through until the holidays, business will show a decided gain in all lines of musical merchandise. Trade Extension Week, in which eleven local music dealers participated, helped stimulate business and brought in suburban shoppers. Many sales were attributed to this promotion. Industrial conditions continue good and there is every reason to believe that the coming two months will produce some real business.

The Betty Furniture Co. will move soon after November 1 to a new location at Fifth street and Market avenue north. A talking machine department will probably be installed.

Almost twice the present floor space will be available in the talking machine department of the Heffling Music Co., New Philadelphia, O., when alterations are completed. The main entrance will be shifted to the middle of the store, which will permit construction of large display windows on each side. The interior will be remodeled and redecorated. Sharp & Savidge are the proprietors of this music store, which was opened in 1906.

Alice M. Kestel, assistant manager of the record department of the D. W. Lerch Music Co., has resigned her position.

The Van Fossen-Smilely Piano Co. has taken on the Capitol line of talking machines.

Samuel Weber, president and treasurer of the Weber Department Store, which maintains one of the largest talking machine departments in this section of the State, died recently in Zanesville, O. He was past seventy years of age.

Much interest was manifested this week in the personal appearance of Mme. Schumann-Heink, Victor artist, who inaugurated Canton's Winter concert season. The concert was one of the largest attended in recent years. The seat sale was conducted at the music store of the George C. Wille Co., which tied up with the concert and offered an attractive window display featuring her best records.

The W. R. Zollinger Co. reports that talking machine business showed a big gain after mid-month, this spurt resulting indirectly from the exhibit at the recent county fair, according to W. E. Pyle, manager of this department.

The Rhines-Edison Co. presented a most attractive display window in connection with the opening of Cleveland avenue celebration held Wednesday night. Manager Rutledge decorated the window with natural Autumn leaves and in the center spotted the newest model upright Edison machine. The display proved one of the best along-the street.

Seven well-known music stores handling talking machines participated in the annual Fall Trade Extension Week, sponsored by local retail merchants, September 24 to 29. On the opening day of the sales week more than 800 out-of-town visitors registered at the headquarters booth on the public square. Dealers report heavy sales of records and small merchandise, including player rolls. They also moved many machines during the week. Some of the stores offered informal musical programs for the suburban shoppers and others fitted up rest-rooms for the visitors.

The Canton Homes Beautiful Exposition, which closed September 30, offered music dealers an opportunity to place before home owners the need of a talking machine in the home. In each of the three modern homes, which were viewed by thousands of people, was a new model talking machine of some well-known make. At Home No. 1 the George C. Wille Co. had a new upright model Brunswick machine; Home No. 2, the Rhines-Edison Shop presented an upright Edison, and in Home No. 3 the Alford & Fryar Piano Co. featured a late model electric-driven Queen Anne model Cheney. The machines were operated by the custodians in charge and the music dealers supplied the records. The dealers report many inquiries as a result of the demonstration.

GRIGGS MUSIC HOUSE REOPENS

PEORIA, ILL., October 3.—The spacious ware-rooms of the Arthur P. Griggs music house, successor to Guy Hornish, have reopened on the ground floor of the Peoria Life Building with an extensive display of high-grade pianos and players. The concern is under the management of Wayne Wilson, who is secretary of the Peoria Music Dealers' Association and has been identified with local music houses for the last five years.

Victor Co. Launches Fall Advertising Drive

Full-page Advertisements in Leading Newspapers of the Country Herald Pre-holiday Campaign of the Victor Talking Machine Co.—Records Receive Much Attention

Full-page advertisements in the leading newspapers of the country recently heralded the opening of the elaborate Fall advertising campaign of the Victor Talking Machine Co. which it is declared will represent one of the most elaborate publicity campaigns ever carried on by a talking machine manufacturer covering a similar period.

The Victor Co. has for many years made a particularly strong advertising drive in the Fall of the year for the purpose of stimulating holiday sales of Victrolas and records, but in the past the copy for the most part has been general in character, featuring the name and the quality of the product rather than the particular details of the records and those making them, although, of course, the more noted artists were frequently named in the copy.

This year the campaign started about the time the public was advised of the issuance of the records in the Red Seal catalog in double-sided form, and there was therefore much material from which to develop sales arguments of direct appeal. The Victor copy, therefore, has been devoted largely to the exploitation of special groups of records by artists of recognized standing in the public mind and thus may be calculated to have direct selling value so far as the records mentioned are concerned.

In order that the dealers might tie up most effectively with the newspaper and magazine campaign of the company during the Fall months, they were some time ago provided with a list of the artists whose records would be featured in the advertising in order that they might prepare themselves properly to meet the demand by bolstering up their record stocks where needed.

The price appeal has naturally found a place in the newspaper copy, though not unduly emphasized. The fact that double-sided Red Seal records offering two selections by noted artists at a price only slightly above that asked for a single-sided record has offered a sales argument the value of which can be readily appreciated.

WILL DISTRIBUTE K. & D. MOTOR

Cliff Electric Corp. Closes Important Deal With Kendrick & Davis to Distribute Electric Motor—Quantity Deliveries After November 1

The Cliff Electric Corp., New York City, announced recently that it would distribute the K. & D. electric phonograph motor, manufactured by Kendrick & Davis, of Lebanon, N. H. S. A. Jacobs, of the Cliff Co., recently returned from a trip to the factory where he spent several days consulting with Kendrick & Davis regarding the production of the motor. He states that the factory will be working to capacity until November 1, when it will start steady production on the new motor and be able to make quantity deliveries. A special feature of this motor, according to Mr. Jacobs, is the automatic stop, which is part of the motor unit and does away with the necessity of boring holes in the phonograph board.

Mr. Jacobs states that his company has discontinued the production of the Speed-rite electric motor in order to concentrate its entire time and energy on the distribution of the new K. & D. motor. Although this motor has been on the market for a short time, substantial orders have been received from well-known phonograph manufacturers.

CONTEST STIMULATES SALES

Emerson Dealer Uses Popular Girl Contest to Advantage—Emerson Phonograph Awarded Winner—Considerable Interest Aroused

The Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., 105 West Twentieth street, New York, N. Y., participated recently in an unique dealer tie-up, which took the form of a popular girl contest; this contest being staged in conjunction with the Graham Music Shoppe, of Jersey City, N. J. A vote was allowed with every purchase of merchandise amounting to 50 cents, and the prize, consisting of an Emerson Queen Anne model phonograph, was won by Miss Mary Lutz. Samuel Nelson, proprietor of the Graham Music Shoppe, states that the contest was a decided stimulator of business during the month it took place, particular activity and interest being displayed during the last two weeks, when the rivalry among the thirty contestants was at its height.

SAN FRANCISCO

Dealers Putting Houses in Order for Busy Holiday Trade—Woman Swindler Convicted—New General Phono. Corp. Home—The News

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., October 4.—Business throughout this territory remains fairly good, although there has been a slight drop in retail sales. This, however, has not dimmed the optimism of the local trade, as it is generally realized that this is only a temporary condition which usually precedes the busiest season of the year, namely, the pre-holiday months. Wholesalers serving the local territory are busy; retailers seem to be getting their stocks in order for the final drive of the year.

Woman Swindler Convicted

Katie Bauer, who has been in jail awaiting trial on the charge of swindling retailers of talking machines, pianos, etc., has been convicted through the efforts of the Music Trades Association of Northern California. The practice of the Bauer woman consisted of making an initial payment on a talking machine or piano, which she sold as soon after delivery as possible, without completing the terms of the contract with the dealer. Four or five months of her activities in this city resulted in substantial losses to a number of small dealers.

The General Phono. Corp.'s New Home
W. E. Henry, who recently was made manager of the Western district by the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, and who has turned over the distribution of these lines in the Los Angeles territory to "Okeh" Smith and relinquished his quarters in that city, has opened a local distributing headquarters on the fourth floor of the Arenson Building, on Second street. Associated with Mr. Henry is "Bob" Coltart, who was formerly with the Columbia Co., and who has just returned to this country with his wife and family from Australia, where they spent six months.

Edison Demand Continues

One of the busiest jobbing houses in the Western territory is Edison Phonographs, Ltd., which is the distributor of the Edison in this city, Los Angeles and Portland, Ore. Orders have been coming in in great shape and there is no doubt that this will prove a great Edison year when the holiday business finally closes 1923 sales activities. Edison retailers are usually selected for their merchandising ability, and the consequence of this is that the Edison retail trade is composed of as clean cut a body of men as can be found anywhere in the trade, and their ability as a class is reflected in the steady growth of the demand for the Edison.

Install Audaks

Ten Audaks, a device doing away with booths in the demonstration of records, have been installed in the talking machine department of the Emporium, of which Charles Mauzy is manager. Although installed but a very short time this method of record demonstration has been found very effective in handling trade with the greatest efficiency during rush hours.

Another innovation established by Mr. Mauzy are periodical meetings of the sales organization to discuss plans for the improvement of the talking machine department, business policies, etc. Already a number of worth-while suggestions have been secured in this manner, and as the result of some of them the department will be rearranged along lines which will add greatly to its attractiveness and utility.

Planning Billboard Campaign

G. E. Morton, manager of the phonograph department of the White House, which features the Cheney, is getting ready for his pre-holiday sales drive. To this end he has contracted for space on approximately fifty billboards in the city and surrounding territory.

New Wurlitzer Home Soon to Open

The new establishment of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., in the Mission, will be formally opened some time toward the middle of the month, according to present plans. A complete line of Victor talking machines and records will be handled in the talking machine department. L. P. Tenney, who was formerly in charge of the Kohler & Chase store, in the Mission, will be manager. His mother, Mrs. M. B. Tenney, will be in charge of the record department, and the T. & D. Store, in which she had a half interest, will be closed.

News Gleanings

Philip T. Clay, president of Sherman, Clay & Co., has returned from the Pacific Northwest, where, with G. W. Bates, comptroller of the company, he inspected the various branches.

The Kruschke Sales Co., Omer Kruschke, proprietor, which handles the Pathé phonographs, has installed a piano department.

The Record Exchange, Ellis street, which recently installed a complete stock of Odeon records, is doing a good business in this line.

The Hauschildt Music Co., Columbia dealer, is preparing for a big sales drive.

Leon Lang, until recently with Kohler & Chase, is now with Sherman, Clay & Co.

The Hansen Music House has rearranged its stock to facilitate service. Miss Hazel Barlow has been added to the sales force.

The Brunswick phonograph recording outfit will make records in this city of Paul Ash's Orchestra in "When Night Time Comes" and "Rock-a-bye My Baby" about October 20.

Fred Sherman, vice-president of Sherman, Clay & Co., is home from a visit to the Victor plant.

Leon F. Douglass, of the Victor Co., has returned from a trip to Europe and Leon Douglass, Jr., is home from a trip to Paris, France.

"We are closing the greatest season in our history," said Col. S. H. Mapes, manager of the New York offices of the Federal Tel. & Tel. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., in a recent chat with The World. "We had expected that beginning with September 15 our dealers would start placing good-sized orders for Federal radio receiving sets, but we had never anticipated such an exceptional demand from the trade throughout the East. It seems as though the dealers as a whole are beginning to thoroughly appreciate and understand the unlimited sales possibilities for high-grade radio business, and repeat orders are being received from well-known retail merchants in the metropolitan district and in all sections of our territory.

"During the past few months we have been concentrating a considerable portion of our activities on the development of business in the talking machine field, and we are keenly gratified at the result of our efforts. We have placed dealer agencies for Federal receiving sets in a number of important trade centers, and there is no question but that the talking machine dealer is ideally qualified to merchandise our product profitably and advantageously. We are making plans for a banner Fall trade, and are also looking forward to 1924 with optimism and confidence."

HEAVY FALL DEMAND IN WASHINGTON

Dealers and Jobbers Are Well Pleased With Conditions—Louis & Co.'s Enlarged Department—Talkers at Better Homes Exposition

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 9.—The early Fall business in talking machines in Washington is exceeding all expectations on the part of both wholesalers and retailers, and the wholesalers are finding it difficult to supply the demand, which includes not only the machines themselves, but all kinds of talking machine stock. Some idea of the demand may be gained from the statement of Leslie Lore, manager of Cohen & Hughes, Victor distributors, that the call for all kinds of machines and records has been so great during September that it is impossible for his establishment to accumulate any reserve stock. Factory shipments are disposed of the same day they arrive in Washington, it is stated.

Louis & Co., phonograph dealers at Seventh and G streets northwest, are almost ready to open up a greatly enlarged talking machine department to the public. The store occupies a four-story building in a very favorable location, and work has been going along steadily on the remodeling of the three upper floors as an extension of the phonograph department, which up to the present has occupied the ground floor only. An elevator has been installed in the rear of the store for the convenience of patrons, and the three upper floors will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks.

Mrs. W. E. Chappellear is the new assistant to Miss Florence Terwilliger in the talking machine department of Charles Schwartz & Son.

Phonograph dealers were well represented at the Better Homes Exposition, held in this city during the early part of October, by a complete display and demonstration of many types of talking machines. The purpose of the exposition was to create an interest in the Better Homes movement, and to this end some twenty-six model rooms were created, the furnishings being supplied by Washington merchants. In addition to the displays of talking machines, a series of lectures as a regular part of the exposition stressed the importance of music in the home.

Caution should be exercised in granting credit. It is better to be safe than sorry.

EIGHT VICTOR ARTISTS IN HERRIN

Concert Under Auspices of Talking Machine Department of Cline-Vick Drug Stores

HERRIN, ILL., October 8.—One of the most enjoyable and best attended musical events ever held here was staged under the auspices of the Cline-Vick Drug Stores, Victor dealers, who were responsible for the local appearance on October 5 of the Eight Famous Victor Artists. The Cline-Vick concern had attractive programs printed on the back cover of which appeared some of the favorite recordings of these well-known Victor artists. Considerable publicity heralded the event, which was a decided success, both from the standpoint of attendance and increased record sales.

BRUNSWICK MEETING IN CLEVELAND

Interesting Talk by J. F. Ditzell, Brunswick Sales Promotion Manager—Dinner-dance Winds Up Constructive Meeting

CLEVELAND, O., October 10.—Brunswick dealers throughout this territory gathered at the Hotel Winton on Monday of this week, for what was one of the most successful Brunswick sales conventions ever held in this section. The day was devoted to business and amusement, and the local Brunswick branch, which sponsored the affair, under the direction of Leslie I. King, local branch manager, held open house. Brunswick boosters from the Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Buffalo territories were present and heard a constructive talk on the problems of the retailer by J. F. Ditzell, manager of the sales promotion department of the Brunswick Co. The complete line of new Brunswick models was on display, giving the visiting dealers an opportunity of making their selections and placing orders for the pre-holiday trade. During the afternoon the visitors and their guests were taken to interesting points in the city and in the evening they were entertained at a dinner-dance, at which the Oriole Orchestra, Brunswick artists, furnished the music.

C. W. Copp, who has attractive warerooms at 228 South Michigan street, South Bend, Ind., is transacting a very large volume of business in pianos and players, as well as Columbia and Sonora phonographs.

Many Fine Exhibits at New York Radio Show

Products of Leading Manufacturers Represented—Visitors Included Many Prominent Talking Machine Men—Great Interest on Part of Public—Interesting Addresses at Open Meetings

Under the auspices of the American Radio Exposition a very successful Radio Show was held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, the week of October 8, dealers and radio enthusiasts from all parts of the country being present. A great majority of the leading radio manufacturers were represented at the show, together with makers of loud speakers, head sets, accessories and general parts. The interest manifested by the public was surprisingly great, considering the fact that the show was held during the week of the World Series, when this baseball event was the center of attraction. Thousands of out-of-town visitors spent quite some time at the various booths and the show, from the standpoint of the exhibitors, was a marked success.

One of the outstanding features of the show was the marked improvement in the cabinet work on the standard sets as compared to last year's exhibits. Practically all of the well-known radio set manufacturers exhibited models particularly designed for merchandising by talking machine dealers, and these merchants evinced keen interest in these sets. Many handsome cabinet instruments were exhibited and, judging from the comments of the visiting dealers, there is a tendency on the part of the average phonograph merchant to pay close attention to the sales possibilities of standard radio receiving sets. Another noteworthy feature of the radio sets exhibited was the simplicity of operation that characterized practically all of them. The radio manufacturers as a whole are endeavoring to furnish the public with sets that require minimum technical ability to operate, and the simplicity of installation attracted the attention of the dealers and the public.

There were many unique exhibits at the show, including portables, combination lamp and radio sets, army and navy apparatus and other unusual sets and accessories. Loud speakers were prominently displayed and several manufacturers featured sets with indoor loop antennas, in place of the usual outside aerials.

The radio trade was keenly interested in a series of open meetings held in the conference rooms at the Grand Central Palace, under the auspices of the Radio Trade Association. A number of very interesting addresses were made during these open forums and among the speakers were H. T. Melhuish, Radio Corp. of America; H. H. Roemer, sales manager, De Forest Tel. & Tel. Co.; Powel Crosley, Jr., president, Crosley Mfg. Co., Cincinnati, O.; Dr. Lee DeForest, Allen D. Cardwell, president of the Allen D. Cardwell Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., and members of the radio trade press.

The Radio Corp. of America maintained an extensive exhibit, divided into several sections. One display featured various Radiolas, manufactured by this company, while another section showed an exhibit in relief of the ruined cities of Tokyo and Yokohama, Japan. A model of the huge RCA station at Tomioka, which linked Japan with the rest of the world during the earthquake, was shown on one side of the display. Incidentally, the 600-foot tower at Iwaki, constructed by American engineers, withstood the ravages of the earthquake. Another large exhibit sponsored by the Radio Corp. of America presented a group of noteworthy paintings, depicting various periods in America's history, such as "The Dawn of Communication," "First Mail Train," "Laying of Original Atlantic Cable," "Birth of the Telephone" and "Radio in the Home." Geo. H. Clark, who is in charge of all RCA exhibits at the shows, was responsible for this year's handsome display and was assisted by H. C. Gawler, of the sales staff, together with other members of the sales organization. Among the Radiolas exhibited were the following popular models: II, IV, V, VI, VII and its new product, the Radiola grand.

At the booth of the DeForest Tel. & Tel. Co. the new DeForest Model D-10 was the center of attraction. This instrument, which was introduced to the trade a few months ago, was demonstrated to splendid advantage by members of the sales organization. Dr. Lee DeForest, famous inventor of the products bearing his name, was a frequent visitor to the show and E. H. Jewett, president of the company, made a special trip from Detroit to welcome the members of the trade who called at the DeForest exhibit. The D-7-A set was also on exhibit and created considerable interest. R. M. Keator, sales manager of the company's Eastern headquarters, was in charge of the display, assisted by the following members of his staff: M. Craddock, Alfred Nordholm, Frederick Roach and E. Von Brandt. H. H. Roemer, sales manager of the company's headquarters at Detroit, was also in attendance during the course of the show.

Herbert A. Brennan, sales manager of the Cutting & Washington Radio Corp., Minneapolis, Minn., and for many years one of the most popular members of the talking machine trade, was in charge of the C. & W. exhibit at the show and welcomed talking machine dealers from all over the country. This company has been sponsoring an aggressive campaign to interest the talking machine trade and the various C. & W. sets on exhibition included several models designed for this industry. Among the Cutting & Washington sets on display were the No. 11-C console, the new 12-A portable, the 11-A and the 15-A single-tube set that is meeting with considerable favor. Mr. Brennan was assisted at the show by several members of the Radio Stores Corp., New York, distributor for Cutting & Washington products.

One of the most artistic exhibits at the show was the display presented by the Colin B. Kennedy Co., St. Louis, Mo. This company, which is one of the pioneers in the radio industry, showed a complete line of its instruments, including two handsome period models, designated as the Jacobean console and the Spanish desk model. Other instruments on display were the Model X, Model V and Types 311, 522, 281, 220 and 110. Talking machine dealers were particularly interested in the art models and Harry J. Rathbun, vice-president and treasurer of the company, who was in attendance at the exhibit, was delighted with the reception accorded the company's products. Mr. Rathbun was assisted by B. R. Hassler, sales manager of the company, who was in charge of the exhibit.

Powel Crosley, Jr., president of the Crosley Mfg. Co. at Cincinnati, widely known in the talking machine and radio fields, spent the entire week at the show and was welcomed by many of his friends in both industries. The complete Crosley line was on display, including Models XXV and XX, which have attained considerable popularity in the talking machine field. Other sets displayed were Models VI, X and XJ, the latter being one of the leaders at the present time. A complete line of parts was also on exhibit and the general details of the company's display were in charge of George Lewis and Alvin R. Plough, assistants to Mr. Crosley. The C. B. Cooper Co., New York, which is a jobber for the Crosley products, was also represented by several of its sales staff.

The Precision Equipment Co., Cincinnati, whose president is also Mr. Crosley, maintained a complete exhibit of ACE radio sets, including the Types 3-C, V and 2-B. Mr. Crosley, together with the members of his executive staff, was kept busy demonstrating these sets.

The American Radio & Research Corp., Medford Hillside, Mass., displayed the Amrad console line, comprising five models, including the Early English, American Colonial, Queen Anne and Italian Renaissance. The exhibit was in charge of Sales Manager Dunbar, assisted by several members of his staff.

The Pathé Phono. and Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., displayed a new product called the Curtantenna, which, as its name implies, is an antenna or, rather, indoor loop in the shape of a curtain on a roller, which may be rolled up as a shade when not in use. The Pathé loud speaker, dials and other moulded parts completed the exhibit.

The Audiophone loud speaker and Audiophone Jr., as well as the Bristol one-stage amplifier, were shown by the Bristol Co., of Waterbury, Conn. The exhibit drew much attention and the Audiophone was also well used in various parts of the hall for concert and announcement purposes. The exhibit was in charge of C. W. Williamson, New York district manager. W. H. Bristol, president of the company, as well as H. L. Griggs, sales manager, and J. B. Kelsey, assistant sales manager, were present during the week.

At the General Radio Corp. of Philadelphia

booth the new Geraco loop aerial and Music Master power unit, both new on the market, were featured. The well-known Music Master horn was well in evidence. A wide line of Geraco molded parts was also shown, as well as the Geraco device for converting the Victrola or Columbia into a loud speaker.

Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the company, was present.

The A. H. Grebe Co., Richmond Hill, N. Y., displayed a wide range of receiving sets which caused the booth to be crowded at all times with visitors, who displayed great interest in the exhibits.

Other prominent manufacturers represented at the Radio Show were the Adams-Morgan Co., Zenith Mfg. Co., Sleeper Radio Corp., Moon Radio Co., Allen D. Cardwell Co., National Airphone Corp., Sec Tron Radio Co., Dictagraph Products Co., C. Brandes, Inc., Holtzer-Cabot Electric Co. and the Neon Lamp Works.

HOLLENBERG CO. IS 70 YEARS OLD

Well-known Music House of Little Rock, Ark., Celebrates Important Business Anniversary

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., October 6.—The Hollenberg Music Co., of this city, is now celebrating the seventieth anniversary of the establishment of the business which was founded by H. G. Hollenberg in 1853 and has shown steady progress throughout the seven decades of its existence. In recognition of the important event the company has issued an attractive twelve-page booklet giving something of the history of the house, a list of the concerns represented and other information relative to the business.

The Hollenberg Music Co. is one of the best-known concerns in this section of the country and, in addition to selling musical instruments, has contributed much directly and indirectly to the development of interest in, and appreciation for, music generally.

The present head of the company is Col. F. B. T. Hollenberg, son of the founder, who fills the post of president and general manager. Col. Hollenberg has been a particularly active factor in music trade association work and is one of the best-known music merchants in the country. His son, F. B. T. Hollenberg, Jr., is also associated with the business as secretary and assistant general manager.

There is an increasing demand for talking machines in schools as a music-teaching aid.

REPAIRS

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

WATCH FOR CHILLED MAIN SPRINGS

It will not be long before cold weather will again be with us, together with the usual busy season for talking machine sales. I believe it is the right time to again caution dealers in the matter of delivering and setting up machines in cold weather to avoid spring breakage and other troubles. It frequently happens that a machine is delivered on a cold day, set up in the home, and then put out of order through the breaking of the spring during the first winding.

It has been pointed out on previous occasions that the talking machine spring is a highly tempered piece of steel, and as such is subject more or less to temperature changes. It often happens that a new machine is taken from a rather chilly warehouse, kept out in the air on a truck for several hours and then installed in the home where the temperature is at 70 degrees or more. The intense cold makes all steel brittle and when the purchaser seeks to play a record at once to try out the new musical instrument, the cold and brittle spring refuses to stand the strain and breaks. A great many dealers realize this condition and warn customers regarding it. One dealer goes so far as to attach a special tag on the winding key advising the purchaser to let the machine stand in the warm room for a few hours before winding. This rest serves to take the chill out of the spring and prevents sudden breaking.

The Repairman As a Prospect Getter

A large dealer in talking machines who maintains his own repair department found recently that the public had not only shut down on buying new goods, but likewise appeared disinclined to have repair work done, with the result that his repairman was spending most of his time resting himself or tinkering on odd jobs on which there was no income. It was the repairman himself, who, realizing that such a state of affairs could not go on indefinitely, suggested as a means of keeping his job safe that he be permitted to call on the dealer's customers and solicit repair work. As a result of the first couple of days of effort there developed a single repair job, that of installing a new spring, but the repairman had meanwhile dug up several machine prospects and filled orders for close to $50 worth of records.

It was found that by presenting himself as a repairman he was able to gain entrée into the house in order to inspect the machine. The housewife in every case kept close at hand, probably for safety's sake, and it was an easy matter to swing the conversation around to the question of new records and of friends who should buy, or contemplated buying, machines. The repairman had wisely carried with him a half dozen of the latest records and in every home played at least two of them over, ostensibly for the purpose of testing the speed of the motor. In most cases the testing records pleased and an order followed. It is, of course, out of the question for every dealer to send a repairman in search of business, nor it is always possible to secure a repairman with a real selling instinct, but where the opportunity presents itself, and the combination exists, there is found a new avenue for getting close to prospects and old customers and reviving interest in new records.

Repairing Broken Main Springs

Bristol, Pa., September 26, 1923.

A. H. Dodin, care The Talking Machine World: While reading The Talking Machine World I noticed that you give advice on repairing of talking machines. For the past three years I have been repairing talking machines. As a rule, I get many large motors which take 1x16 main springs. By my experience I have found most of my troubles are with springs broken in the center, which are cut off about three inches.

As I am in a little town it is very difficult to get any new main springs. I always have been trying to use these broken springs over again, as I don't think it will make any difference whether one is shorter than the other.

I have been trying to pull the center coil with a pair of pliers and try to spread it out so I could drill a hole, but I have found out it is impossible to do the job right. I have kept these broken springs, thinking you will advise me how to use them over again. Waiting for an answer. Yours truly, (Signed) Sammy Burns.

Answer.—There is no reason why a main spring which has had only a few inches broken off of either end may not be used the second time. The difficulty in using them again comes in the means employed to repair and repunch the rivet holes in the ends. When the spring breaks on the cage end it is a simple matter to heat the spring and draw out the temper, drill a hole and file to the required shape. However, if the center end is broken, it requires a specially constructed machine in order to do the work properly. This machine has been advertised in other issues of The World.

Secretary of Starr Piano Co. Well Satisfied
With Existing Conditions and Prospects

Fred Gennett, secretary of the Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., manufacturer of the Starr phonographs and Gennett records, was a recent visitor to New York in the course of an Eastern trip and spent some days at the local headquarters of his company. Mr. Gennett is thoroughly optimistic regarding business conditions in all sections of the country and reported that the demands for both pianos and phonographs were already taxing the facilities of the great plant at Richmond.

There has been a particularly noticeable increase in the demand for the Gennett records from practically all sections, with a decided tendency toward the higher class and standard selections.

TRADE ACTIVITIES IN PORTLAND

Many Record Artists Scheduled to Appear Here —Portland Brunswick Branch Consolidated With Seattle Branch—Other Interesting News

PORTLAND, ORE., October 4.—The Portland concert season opened here last week, when the Elwyn Concert Bureau presented Mme. Margaret Matzenauer, contralto, and Clarence Whitehill, baritone, both Victor artists, in recital at the municipal auditorium. The ticket sale was conducted at the Sherman, Clay & Co.'s store. The Bureau is presenting an unusually splendid list of artists, among them the following: Claire Dux, soprano, October 29; the New York String Quartet, November 12; Quartet of Victor Artists (Kline, Baker, Murphy, Dadmun); Albert Spalding, violinist, December 17; Jascha Heifetz, violinist, January 28; Edward Johnson, tenor, January 21; Maria Ivogun, coloratura soprano, March 3; Moriz Rosenthal, pianist, February 25, and Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, April 1.

A. R. McKinley, local manager of the Brunswick Co., announced that Portland had been selected as the Northwest distributing center and the Seattle branch has been consolidated with the Portland office, the change going into effect October 1. For the present a small branch will be maintained in Seattle to take care of the local business. Mr. McKinley says that the company's realizing the advantages of Portland as a distributing center was the cause of the change, which was arranged by E. L. Gramlich, vice-president and assistant general manager, during a recent trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. McKinley has been in charge of the Portland office for the past ten years. The change will add a million and a half more people to his territory. He states that M. Davis will continue in charge of the phonograph department, covering the district of Oregon, Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana. Plans are being made for the erection of a home for the company in the terminal district of the city. The building will cover 50,000 square feet of ground and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by early Spring.

The Wiley B. Allen Co., of this city, with the other seven stores of the company on the Pacific Coast, is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the store. The local store, under the management of Frank M. Case, has very attractive and artistic window displays, which are in keeping with the golden anniversary.

The Turner Music Co., headquarters Tampa, Fla., has just opened two new stores at Orlando and St. Petersburg, Fla. The Brunswick line of phonographs and records will be handled at both of these stores. W. B. Word is manager of the St. Petersburg store and J. V. Borum is manager of the Orlando store.

PROMOTION FOR C. LLOYD EGNER

Appointed Manager of the Traveling Department of the Victor Talking Machine Co.—Makes Business Tour Through Middle West

C. Lloyd Egner, for some time past assistant manager of the traveling department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., was, on October 1, made manager of that department in recognition of his long and faithful service.

Mr. Egner returned to Camden early this month from a three weeks' trip through the Middle West, in the course of which he made a number of talks before gatherings of Victor dealers held during September in Des Moines, Ia.; Columbus, O., and, in October, in St. Louis. In chatting with the representative of The World Mr. Egner stated that he found business conditions, in the territory which he had covered, to be of a very promising character, both as regards the balance of the Fall season and the forthcoming holiday season.

DELAWARE INCORPORATION

The U. S. Phonograph Doll Corp., Wilmington, Del., has been incorporated under the laws of that State for the purpose of manufacturing with a capital of $600,000.

The last few payments on a talking machine are the ones that give the dealer his profit.

The stylus bar, or tongue of the TRIANGLE reproducer is shaped from one solid piece of steel. All others are made of several pieces fastened together.

This bar, or tongue, is put through 16 separate and distinct operations before it is ready to be assembled in the reproducer.

Most of these operations require great care and skill, because the bar must be delicately formed to properly convey loud and soft tones with equal clearness.

The bar when assembled automatically balances itself. There is no pressure from the sides, top or bottom. This permits perfect vibration which is essential to the true, human expression of the sound waves.

REPRODUCER NO. 3—(FRONT)

Like a high-grade watch, the TRIANGLE reproducer is thin and symmetrical. Cut to left shows the face, with not a single screw to mar its beauty.

The mica diaphragm is 23/16 inches in diameter and is so assembled that no part can ever come in contact with the metal in the reproducer.

This feature reduces surface noise of the record to a minimum and helps to produce that clear, mellow tone which has made the TRIANGLE reproducer surpass all others.

Below we show the reproducer as viewed from the back. Observe its shapely appearance.

TRIANGLE reproducers fit both Victor and Columbia type instruments.

TRIANGLE

You know how it is with the ordinary phonograph. The record begins with a rasping sound. Then, when the tones rapidly change, you hear a rattle or clatter or a blasting noise. All of which means that the reproducer is not adequate for the proper rendition of the music. The beauty of the music is lost and the skill of the artist suffers. How often have you heard it said after playing a record of some famous singer: "I don't see enough quality in her voice to make her famous." The trouble is not with the artist but with the way her voice is rendered by the faulty reproducer.

BACK

Samples on Request

What a difference when the TRIANGLE reproducer is attached. The needle glides smoothly, almost noiselessly, along the circular grooves. Every tone is given its true quality and expression. The perfect balance of the stylus bar enables it to catch and faithfully reproduce all music vibrations, from the softest tones to the loudest and fullest notes. The harmony and beauty of phonograph music is fully appreciated for the first time—a real delight to all music lovers. Test the TRIANGLE reproducer and convince yourself that it surpasses anything yet discovered for reproducing the masterpieces of the world's greatest musicians.

Humes Music Co. in Large New Building—Dealers Add New Lines—Stores Remodeled—The News

ATLANTA, GA., October 10.—No better evidence of the great possibilities of the music business in the South can be found than the great success which has been won by the Humes Music Co., Columbus, Ga. The business, which has been established less than fifteen years, has made such consistent progress that it now occupies its own splendid new building, representing an investment of fully $150,000.

The building has been completely fitted up and is probably the most complete establishment in the entire South. It was formally opened on October 2 and 3 and the occasion was made a gala one, representatives of all the Southern Victor jobbers being on hand, as well as those from the principal piano companies whose lines are handled by the Humes Co. Among those present were Chas. Elyea and C. Gordy, of the Elyea Talking Machine Co.; Acton Boone and Irving Bimstein, Talking Machine Co., Birmingham; French Nestor, of Jacksonville; David Pruitt, of the Victor Co.; H. A. Ray, of the Elyea Co.; M. E. A feature of the month will be the recital on October 30, under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Club, by Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini, Vocalion artists. Local dealers are preparing to call special attention to the records made by these artists.

The Edison Parlor at Savannah, Ga., Edison dealer, has recently changed its location from 45 Bull street to 119 Bull street, where it will have the benefit of more spacious quarters, and excellent window display facilities which it did not have at the old location. The new location is in the direct line of the north and south traffic of this prominent thoroughfare and it is expected the call trade will increase noticeably.

W. L. F. Rosenblatt, president and general manager of Phonographs, Inc., has been visiting the Edison Laboratory in Orange, N. J., for a conference with the factory officials and as a result of his visit expects to make improvements to the already excellent service to Edison dealers in the Atlanta zone.

Efrd's Department Store, Charlotte, N. C., has placed an order for Unico booths and racks as equipment for its new Victrola department. The new store should be ready for business on the fifteenth of this month.

“The call is for two-tone finish and as we have, in the Strand, a complete line of two-tone finished consoles you can imagine that business is booming” is the way M. E. Lyle sums up the situation this Fall.

R. E. Jenkins, of the Tampa Hardware Co., was a recent visitor to the Columbia Co.'s local branch.

The Gilmore Jewelry Co., Columbia dealer, Pensacola, Fla., is highly pleased with results obtained in connection with the recent appearance of Bessie Smith, exclusive Columbia artist, in Pensacola. This live-wire dealer advertised the comedienne's appearance very extensively and a very substantial quantity of her records was sold during and after her appearance. Bessie Smith is on a concert tour of principal Southern cities, resulting in general stimulation in demand for her records.

The selection “Sweet Pal” on Columbia New Process record A-3937 continues its phenomenal sale. Reinhardt, the publisher, has prepared three beautiful window displays featuring it. These displays are being used very successfully by Columbia dealers throughout the Atlanta branch territory.

The C. W. Lewis Furniture Co., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Columbia dealer, is securing business through extensive advertising.

There is a great shortage of machines, especially popular-priced console models. With no chance to stock ahead during the late Summer dealers now realize that only the most insistent and active can hope to get enough to do business with during the coming months.

Wm. Barfield, of the Empire Music Co., is in Florida looking after Strand interests in that State for M. E. Lyle. He reports that dealers like the quick service now available because of the warehouse stock of Strands now carried in Jacksonville.

The Ludden & Bates Music Co., local Brunswick dealer, is making a display at the Southeastern Fair, now in progress in Atlanta.

Miss Mildred Belleau is now in charge of the Ludden & Bates record department.

J. A. Oppert is now in charge of the Julian Prade Co. phonograph department. This firm handles the Brunswick line.

D. N. Sloane, formerly with the Brunswick Phonograph Shop, Columbia, S. C., is now selling Brunswicks for the E. E. Forbes & Sons Piano Co., Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Hilda Nugent, in charge of the Brunswick record department at the E. E. Forbes & Sons Co., Birmingham, Ala., has just returned from a vacation trip to Litchfield, Ill., her former home. Harry Charles, formerly with the E. E. Forbes & Sons Co., is now in charge of the Brunswick department of the Mason Furniture Co., Huntsville, Ala.

Elimination of Unethical Retailing Practices

What the Better Business Bureau of Peoria, Ill., in Co-operation With the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Better Business Bureau, Has Accomplished in That City

PEORIA, ILL., October 8.—A definite way in which unprofitable and at times unethical practices among local merchants may be remedied through the presentation of proper arguments, and through co-operative efforts, has been demonstrated here through the success of the efforts of the Better Business Bureau of the Local Advertising and Selling Club, or rather of Roscoe Herget, manager-counsel of the Bureau, in eliminating most of the evils in the local music trade which, for a time, cast a black shadow on the music business here.

Some time ago the situation in the local music trade was desperate in regard to the advertising by the merchants, for the copy was calculated to destroy public confidence in all musical advertising. The situation developed to a point where the newspapers refused to accept the copy of several dealers.

The Better Business Bureau of Peoria was called in to assist in relieving the situation, and in co-operation with C. L. Dennis, manager of the Better Business Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, New York, brought the dealers together in a local association and drafted up, and succeeded in having adopted, a code of standards of practice that have resulted in the elimination of questionable advertising. The dealers now meet once each month, and the enmities in the trade have been practically wiped out, with a resultant increase in business generally.

The standards of practice to which the Peoria merchants have subscribed and which might well be considered by music merchants in other sections of the country are thirteen in number and are reprinted here entirely in full as follows:

- 1—Subscribing to the objects of the Better Business Bureau.
- 2—Objecting to the advertising of instruments not regularly carried unless offered and sold in good faith.
- 3—Objecting to the breaking of sales with another dealer's customer.
- 4—Objecting to the use of the word "free" as including bench, scarf, rolls, delivering, lessons, etc.
- 5—Advertising used instruments so as not to be confusing with new instruments so that the public will not be misled.
- 6—Objecting to the abuse and misuse of comparative prices and values.
- 7—Objecting to untruthful cuts.
- 8—Objecting to "blind ads," or residence or private ads in the guise of dealers.
- 9—Objecting to ability to sell cheaper because of "low rent," "no middleman's profit," "buying direct from factory," etc.
- 10—Objecting to the use of "Manufacturer's Sales" (unless such is the fact), "F. O. B.," "Factory Prices," "Must Be Sold Regardless of Cost or Value," "Direct from Factory," "Factory to Home" and other misleading phrases.
- 11—Objecting to "Puzzle Contests," "Guessing Contests" or "Purchasing Coupons."
- 12—Objecting to the indiscriminate advertising of high-grade instruments with cheaper grades with the lowest prices appearing to pertain to all.
- 13—Agreeing to co-operate with the Better Business Bureau and the newspapers in the enforcement of the above.

HAS FINE NEW STORE IN COLUMBUS

Wm. V. Crowe Piano Co. Now Occupying Larger and Attractively Arranged Quarters at 112 South High Street, That City

COLUMBUS, O., October 1.—The William V. Crowe Piano Co., of which William V. Crowe

is the head, is now settled in its handsome new quarters at 112 South High street, the formal opening of which was held recently, following the removal from the former store at 80 East Town street. The company handles an excellent line of instruments, including the Hallet & Davis line of pianos and players and the Angelus reproducing piano, together with talking machines and records.

The formal opening proved a great success. Invitations were sent out to over 10,000 people and a large proportion of them took advantage of the opportunity of inspecting the new quarters and listening to the music of the orchestra, which played both afternoon and evening. Mr. Crowe is an active member of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio and was treasurer of that organization last year. Associated with him in his new establishment are H. C. Hoefflich and Walter Lynas.

A large battery of sound-proof demonstration booths is provided in the new store for the use of both the talking machine and piano departments. The showcase and rack equipment for the display of musical merchandise, talking machine records, etc., is of the most modern character and the furnishings in general are strictly up-to-date.

VICTOR RECORD GIFT CERTIFICATES

The advertising department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. has recently issued the "Victor Record Certificate" for use during the Christmas season of 1923. This certificate, which incorporates in general the gift plan which has been used in previous years, is printed in green, orange and black on a white stock. The center, in typography, resembles a bond or stock certificate. The border presents small portraits of distinguished Victor artists. At the left is a stub for the recipient's name and address, and an explanation of the gift idea.

SUDDEN DEATH OF J. C. GALLAGHER

Manager of Portland, Ore., Branch of Bush & Lane Piano Co. Drops Dead at His Home

PORTLAND, ORE., October 6.—The music trade and the many friends of J. C. Gallagher, manager of the Portland branch of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., were shocked to learn of his sudden death at his home, 597 East Forty-seventh street, north, last week.

Mr. Gallagher had been identified with the local branch for the past two years and had many friends both in and out of the trade and the city of Portland has lost a strong booster and helper, who was always in the front rank of any civic movement for the betterment of the city. He was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him and did everything in his power for the advancement of the cause of music.

Mr. Gallagher had been identified with the music trade for the past nineteen years and was well known all over the Pacific Coast. He started in the trade nineteen years ago in Spokane with the Chant Music Co. He was later identified with the Eilers music houses in Washington, Oregon and California and for a time was the manager of that firm's stores at Eureka, Cal., and Tacoma and Aberdeen, Wash. At one time he was connected with the C. B. Sampson Music Co., of Boise, Idaho, and immediately before coming to Portland he was with the Byron Mauzy Music Co., of Oakland, Cal.

Mr. Gallagher was a member of the Oregon Music Trades Association and was affiliated with the Elks Lodge of Pendleton, Ore. He is survived by his widow and his son, George. His body was taken to Spokane for interment, with services in Portland, which were attended by the members of the Music Trades Association and his close friends.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 17—Your Pace—Who Sets It

During the past few years many automobile dealers have reduced the expense of delivery of cars by driving new machines all or part of the way in from the factory on their own power. By this means deliveries are not delayed, and oftentimes motor enthusiasts are glad to join such a party just for their expenses, for the fun and experience of the trip.

Where a string of cars of considerable number come a distance in this manner there is a pace setter, who drives the first car and always keeps head place. It is his duty to go at a speed which will not be injurious to the new vehicles. Too rapid a pace will score the cylinders and injure the new, stiff mechanism in various ways.

Such a fleet is accompanied also by a mechanic, who brings up the rear and gives mechanical first aid wherever such may be necessary. This makes possible the keeping together of the string of cars so that all can come up at the same place for meals, filling up with gas and instructions.

A pace setter who ambles along and takes a couple of days longer for the trip than need be increases the expense by about $10 per car per day. This must come out of the profits. A pace setter who drives too fast may cause a

THE SONORA OCTOBER POSTER

The October art posters prepared by the advertising department of the Sonora Phonograph Co. for the use of its dealers feature two de Luxe models, the Adam and the Chippendale. This series of posters is meeting with enthusiastic favor among Sonora dealers and the attractive appearance of the posters, which are multi-colored, has enabled the dealers to use them to advantage in the development of de Luxe model business. This form of publicity has proved a most valuable aid to sales wherever it has been used.

loss of hundreds or thousands of dollars on the consignment. This doesn't pay.

Naturally, the pace setter is carefully chosen. He must be a man whose judgment can be relied upon and whose integrity when out of sight is beyond question.

Your business and mine has a pace setter. We may not have recognized the fact, but it is true, and the question is "Who is the pace setter?" Some firms allow their nearest competitor to set their pace. It may be a lazy pace or an overrapid one.

Right now there is a firm almost within a stone's throw which has wonderful opportunities and yet it is following a passive, this-is-good-enough policy because it is evidently doing as well as another concern nearby.

A second business organization also near at hand is tremendously worried. The machinery of that business is knocking. There are body squeaks and the gears grate. The trouble is that the proprietor plunged. He went too fast a pace in an effort to outdistance a competitor concern of much older history and better financial backing. The results are likely to be disastrous.

Who, then, shall set the pace—your pace and mine? Shall it be the firm of approximately the same amount of all-around assets or shall it be the concern with more money and perhaps more daring?

No! Neither of these should set our pace. The mature man or firm of sufficient experience to engage in independent business should be his or its own pace setter.

A new car of one make coming in from the factory can with safety strike a faster pace than a cheaper car of another make. And let it be noted that when strings or fleets of cars are brought in in this manner they are usually all of the same kind. So the pace setter is dealing with one problem, rather than with many.

This is true of the individual business. You cannot gauge your pace by that of the other fellow. His ability and capacity may be different from yours.

Know your own business from A to Z. Know its points of strength and the places where strain will show first. Know where you want to go day by day and week by week. Do not be satisfied with this. Know your goal and head directly for it as fast as is safe. Be ready at the first sign of trouble to pause for the expert assistance of an experienced business mechanic. He may be inside the firm or outside of the organization entirely.

Business ailments do not grow less through neglect. Know the pace which you can safely follow and then drive consistently and steadily ahead, carefully avoiding mad races and dull periods. This means prosperity!

REVIVAL OF GENERAL INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS TAKEN AS INDICATION OF TRADE PROSPERITY

Substantial Gains in Sales Already Noted—Competition Among Record Manufacturers—Co-operatives Hurt Dealers—Broadcasting Committee's Broadcasting Report Delayed—The News

LONDON, E. C., October 3.—It is good to be able to report progress in the move towards trade revival. I speak more particularly of the gramophone industry, general trade conditions not showing at present that revival so long expected and so urgently needed to absorb the labor of at least part of our huge army of unemployed. This adverse influence will continue to limit gramophone trade activities and affect progress accordingly. But notwithstanding, a fairly satisfactory season is assured if the belief of leading members of the trade materializes.

Careful preparations and a generally optimistic feeling will carry us a long way toward the goal of success, and I believe that, measured by the volume of last season's trade, the only standard upon which to figure, the season ahead will work out satisfactorily. Already, sales are substantially progressive. That is the best possible sign. Here and there among merchants one meets the proverbial complaint "Nothing doing." These gentlemen constitute the spice of trade life, acting as a spur to those who, at all costs, determine to make good.

The outlook this season discloses the probability of very keen competition among record manufacturers, and I go so far as to predict an early reduction in the price of a certain leading record. There were too many records on the market last year, and the several new ones introduced during this year must accentuate the difficulty of dealers who cannot stock the lot, yet would desire to be in a position to meet all public demands. Equally difficult is the position of some of the manufacturers. To keep in the market they must issue more or less regular up-to-date titles. Lacking the organization, or perhaps financial strength, to force retail sales by "creating" a big public demand, they fail to register progress synonymous to complete success and lead but a precarious existence. Though generally good, competition in these circumstances is disadvantageous to the welfare of all sections of the gramophone trade. The number of records and the duplication of titles issued each month represent an appalling waste of capital and labor. It makes one long for some arrangement among the manufacturers. Is it asking for the impossible?

Of the designs of new models I think a radical change will be apparent this season. No very striking departure of standard types can be recorded apart from improvements in case work, but there is an unmistakable leaning towards better workmanship and quality generally. And this, coupled with, in many cases, substantial price reductions, should mean the bringing in of a new public altogether. Another feature worthy of note is the great advance made in new cabinet designs and the introduction of what are known as console models. The latter have been catalogued for the first time this season by a number of firms, and more prominence is given to the claims of these instruments equally as articles of furniture as of entertainment.

Suggested Revival of Historical Name

Those who closely follow the fortunes of the British gramophone industry have been interested to learn of the probable revival of the name—National Gramophone Co. Louis Young, of the Louis Young Mfg. Co., intends to move for the acquisition of the title, and if successful will accordingly change the name of his firm to the National Gramophone Co. Some years ago a firm operated under this title the manufacture and sale of "Marathon" records and machines. The records were unique in that they carried a much finer track than the standard, permitting as much as 4 or more minutes of music on a 10-inch record and up to seven minutes on a 12-inch. The cut was of the phono or hill and dale type, the reproducing medium being a steel needle with position of sound box as in the case of Pathé. Though strongly backed financially, the company was eventually forced into liquidation, and this not long after its £1 shares sensationally appreciated to over £7. Thus did the concern go down into history, now so interestingly brought to mind by the proposed revival of its undoubtedly valuable name. Mr. Young antici-

The tremendous reception accorded BANDMASTERS is the greatest proof of their merit. The World's largest individual order for gramophones was taken by Bandmasters in open competition with English and German manufacturers. There is a strong reason for it. We can furnish that reason. Overseas trade especially catered for. BANDMASTERS appeal to the keen-eyed business man who knows his business.

pates success in his application to the authorities based upon the claim that by effect of time and long disuse the title is again free.

A Retail Trade Handicap

A question which is exercising the minds, particularly of factors and dealers this side, is the sale of records by the Co-operative Wholesale Society at terms which compete, in a measure, unfairly with those of the ordinary dealer. The various co-operative societies here, federated to the main Co-operative Wholesale Society, issue receipts in the form of a cheque to purchasers of any of their goods, on presentation of which is periodically paid a rebate, which can either be obtained in cash or allowed to accumulate towards the buying of shares in the company, and upon which, of course, the usual dividend is paid. This reacts detrimentally on the trade of ordinary dealers, the public naturally buying largely from the Co-operative Societies. We understand that this question will form part of the agenda at the next manufacturers' meeting, and no doubt, will also be fully discussed at the next meeting of the Dealers' Association. More details anon.

Broadcasting Committee's Report Still Awaited

Music trade circles generally, and in particular the gramophone-radio industry, are still awaiting with considerable anxiety the long overdue Parliamentary Committee's report on the broadcasting question. It is reported at the time of writing that the committee has failed to agree, and the belated arrival of some form of agreement is operating in a decided way against the wireless boom that might otherwise be confidently expected for the Autumn season. Publishers, too, are awaiting the fiat of the committee as to whether the question of broadcasting copyright publications is analogous to that of the mechanical copyright question. It is felt that the failure of the Committee to issue an agreed report in full should not preclude it from making its recommendations known in so far as it has reached agreement, and, to this end, I understand that pressure is being brought to bear on it by several interested parties.

The Fifty-fifty Needle

A new kind of needle called the "Fifty-fifty" is attracting attention here. It has a bell-shaped shoulder in which is affixed a fine wire point, probably tungsten. Gerald B. Cripps markets this needle under claim that it will play 100 tunes (50 double-sided records) before it is worn out. This seems a perfectly valid claim and is in accordance with proved performance of other so-called permanent types of needles. I rather anticipated that a test would show the "Fifty-fifty" to reproduce rather more loudly than the ordinary steel point, but if anything the contrary is the case. This, to my mind, is an advantage, for too great a volume is both unnecessary and distasteful in the average-sized room of modern houses. The "Fifty-fifty" is of good reproducing qualities and general tone values, free of and unimpaired by that excessive scratch often so noticeable with needles of this kind.

Seasonal Activity at Edison Bell Works

Expressive of great confidence in a larger demand for their products this forthcoming season, J. E. Hough, Ltd., has issued a stirring appeal to dealers, in which two plans and suggestions of value are embodied. It looks as though a boom in Winner and Edison Bell records and machines is likely to follow the company's active publicity campaign, backed as it is by good live service.

Record Exchange Plans Progressive

Negotiations tending towards a settlement of this long-discussed question seem happily to be intimated. Both the Manufacturers' and the Dealers' associations have given much time of late in the endeavor to formulate a scheme which will be acceptable as a permanent and recognized one. The two associations have, together, sat round the table, and it is a happy augury for the future that a good understanding exists between them. It will be remembered that the last proposal of the Manufacturers' and Wholesalers' Association was "that twice in each year the factor (or dealer) may return 10 per cent of the previous six months' purchases, and secure an absolute free exchange, less a third." This proposal was officially received by the dealers at their meeting at the Buxton Convention, and has since formed a basis for their discussions. Unfortunately the use of an ambiguous word in some of the reports of the meeting published in some journals created a misapprehension in the minds of dealers, who got the impression that the proposal had been agreed to by their Association. The Dealers' Association has certainly not agreed so far to the adoption of any scheme, the opinion being strongly held that they should be entitled to return records in new and saleable condition, up to 10 per cent of their purchases, and receive in return a credit note in full, without the necessity of giving a covering order. The latest news is that the question is three parts settled, and by the time this appears in print further meetings will have been held by both associations and another step forward taken towards bringing this question to a satisfactory settlement.

Introduction of New Columbias

The Columbia Graphophone Co. here has signaled the commencement of the season with great eclat. A very handsome catalog illustrating several entirely new and improved models is just issued, and the new "Grafonola" models embody what is described as a gramophone that will create a revolution in music reproduction. Leading musicians on this side have hailed it as opening up a new era in the history of the gramophone. Sir Henry J. Wood, the famous conductor, when he heard it, said he considered it to be the greatest contribution to the advancement of music since the original invention of the gramophone itself.

The new gramophone is the invention of Wm. Forse, a Londoner, who has been experimenting with gramophones for nearly twenty-five years, and for some considerable time he has had the advantage of conducting his researches in the Columbia Co.'s large laboratories. His latest invention is now launched on the market as the Columbia "Grafonola" and will be sold at ordinary prices.

On September 14, with Sir George Croydon Marks, C.B.E., M.P., in the chair, the press of the whole country, and leading musicians, were entertained at a luncheon in the Connaught Rooms, and with the "nuts and wine" were regaled with selections on the new machine. Vocal and instrumental items were played on the old style of machine and then re-played on the new. A great improvement was evident to the veriest tyro, and the raised dais on which the new instrument stood was surrounded by keen listeners long after the formal demonstration was over.

The principal feature of the new "Grafonola" is the sound box. As well as a new device which permits of a freer and more responsive action to the stylus bar, Mr. Forse has substituted for the old rubber cushion, that was supposed to impart uniformity of resilience and flexibility to the diaphragm, a new spring-balancing device, mounted so as to give a new standard of tension and flexibility, and calculated to preclude the possibility of deterioration under any conditions. The result of the two improvements is that they actually collect and transmit the finer vibrations which emanate from the recording instruments or voices, and Mr. Forse claims for the sound box that it yields the complete reproduction of all the music in the record. To insure scientifically correct amplification of the new standard of tone attention was also directed to the improvement of the sound chamber in the cabinet and a new motor unit which is noiseless in action and securing uniformity of tempo throughout every record.

Finally, Mr. Forse conducted research along new lines and originated a new process of record manufacture for which is claimed the total elimination of surface noises. The tremendous improvement generally in the new Columbia instrument and reproduction delighted the 400 odd musicians and press men present at the luncheon, and Mr. Forse and the Columbia Graphophone Co. have been felicitated in enthusiastic terms in the whole of the press.

A New Record Proposition

The considerable interest in trade circles aroused here some few weeks ago by the announcement that a company was being formed with strong financial backing and supported by an organization conducted by men of many years' experience in the trade to float the issue of a new record under the title of "Parlophone," has been stimulated by the registration on August 30, of the Parlophone Co., Ltd., with offices at 1 Broad street place, E.C. The purview of the company is a wide one, embracing the business of manufacturing mechanical, artificial or scientific devices, appliances or apparatus for the producing, reproducing, recording or rendering of speech or other sounds, whether natural or artificial. The company has a nominal capital of £20,000 in 20,000 shares of £1 each, and the first issue of new "Parlophone" records to the number of a hundred has taken place. Another seventy-five are expected almost immediately. Opinions here as to the quality of the recording and the suitability of the vocal and instrumental selections are very favorable, especially in consideration of the nominal prices. Important jobbers are being signed up, and a strong campaign for the coming season has been inaugurated.

The Kodisk Competition

An announcement is made by British Kodisk, Ltd., that it has launched an interesting competition, and from a perusal of the conditions of entry it would appear that it is a highly attractive one. The conditions are simple. For the clearest and most distinctive Kodisk record sent in, whether it comprises a song, story, whistle or musical reproduction, a cash prize of £500 will be awarded, a special prize of £25 being given to the child (under twelve years of age) sending in the best record.

In addition there are a number of cash and other prizes amounting in all to £1,000, as well as a cash prize of £50 to the dealer who supplies the winning Kodisk.

The British Kodisk Co. has been fortunate in securing the services, as adjudicators, of the Earl of Hardwicke (Duophone Syndicate, Ltd.), Miss Jose Collins, the famous actress, and Louis Sterling, managing director of the Columbia Graphophone Co.

The Bandmaster Active

Throughout trade circles here one hears talk of the meteoric rise to fame of the "Bandmaster" instruments. Since obtaining, in February last, in competition with all comers both from home and abroad, the largest order in the British Isles, Messrs. Bandmaster have never looked back, and "Bandmaster" dealers are kept on the qui vive with the most up-to-date sales stunts, the company exerting itself to the utmost in adopting methods calculated to stimulate sales. The list of factors comprises G. A. Bryan, Ltd., for London; The Colmore Depot for Birmingham and Manchester; Wm. Newton & Co., Ltd., Newcastle-on-Tyne; H. W. Tilley & Co., Cardiff, and the North British Machine Co., Ltd., and A. H. Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., for Glasgow.

At their new and spacious factory at Hendon, Messrs. Bandmaster have completed arrangements which permit centralization of manufacture, and the company is progressing along the right lines in standardizing its designs of models, sound boxes, etc.

Brief Paragraphs of Interest

The Autumn Leipsic Fair, I learn, boasted more exhibitors than buyers! In fact, the whole Fair this time proved a failure. To-day, it is not cheap to buy in Germany, or cheap to live there. Trade is entirely dislocated by violent fluctuations of the mark.

At the Royal Photographic Society exhibition there were shown specimens of audiometric photographs of the human voice from Dame Melba, one showing the Melba exercise for the cure of "corns" on the vocal chords!

It is good news that the railways have reduced freight rates by 10 per cent. Merchandise rates now stand at 50 per cent above the rates in force on January 14, 1920.

The Gramophone Co., Ltd., has recorded the songs of one or two captive birds and is considering a project for the recording of wild bird songs. - A big job!

The Deutsche Gramophone Werke (Polyphonwerke) took successful action against the Carl Lindström Co., re-claims for license on extended patents, and by agreement the latter concern will now pay license royalties on a gold mark basis, dating from September, 1920 to 1926, when the patents expire. Other gramophone companies in Germany may now be proceeded against in view of this decision.

A Bond street, London, house is giving publicity to the marketing here of Brunswick records.

RADIO BETWEEN U. S. AND POLAND

Direct radio communication between the United States and Poland was established a few days ago when General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corp. of America, New York, sent a message to the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs of Poland. Heretofore messages exchanged between Poland and the United States have been relayed over land wires through adjoining countries and the new service establishes a new record for long distance commercial radio communications. The personnel at the Warsaw station consists of forty engineers and operators, some of whom are Americans.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 8.—Sound Box. Arizonia Z. Coats, Newbern, Tenn., assignor of one-half to Elmer Headden, same place. Patent No. 1,461,597.

This invention relates to sound boxes for phonographs and the primary object thereof is to provide a device which will amplify the sound without distorting the sound waves and which will eliminate the emission of scratchy and grinding sounds common to sound boxes of the diaphragm and reproducing needle type.

Another object is to provide simple and efficient means to effect a duplication of the sound vibration produced by a single stylus or needle and to so encase the diaphragms that they are protected from the accumulation of dust thereon and consequent deadening of the sound.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 represents a side elevation of a tone arm equipped with this improved sound box. Fig. 2 is an edge view or front elevation thereof with the tone arm broken off. Fig. 3 is a central vertical section taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a side elevation of one section of the sound box taken from the inner face thereof with parts in section. Fig. 5 is an enlarged transverse section taken on the line 5—5 of Fig. 1. Fig. 6 is a side elevation taken from the inner face of one section of the sound box with the diaphragm removed. Fig. 7 is a detail perspective view of the ring which is located between the diaphragms.

Phonograph. Wm. M. Venable, Pittsburgh, Pa. Patent No. 1,461,334.

This invention relates to phonograph apparatus which may be used either for recording or reproducing purposes and it is particularly applicable to phonographs of the disc type.

The present application is a division of co-ending application No. 370,521, filed April 1, 1920.

The principal object of the invention is to provide a simple means for maintaining the sound box stylus in its correct position with respect to the record without abandoning the use of the fixed pivotal support for the sound box which has proved so advantageous in practice as to have become almost universally applied. It is the further intention of this invention to provide means to accomplish the foregoing object which can be readily applied to the various types of phonographs already on the market with but little, if any, fitting or change.

These, together with such other objects as are incident to the invention, or which may appear hereinafter, are obtained by means of a construction which is illustrated in preferred form in the accompanying drawings, wherein:

Figure 1 is a plan view of an apparatus embodying the improvements showing parts of the phonograph broken away; Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the apparatus illustrated in Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a plan view of the improved apparatus illustrating the invention as it might conveniently be applied to that type of phonograph known on the market as the Victrola; Fig. 4 is a side elevation of the apparatus illustrated in Fig. 3.

Method of Making Phonographic Records. Earle W. Jones, New York, and Edward R. Harris, Arlington, N. J. Patent No. 1,461,849.

This invention relates to the art of recording and reproducing sound waves, and particularly to methods of manufacturing an original or master phonautogram and manufacturing dies therefrom which may be used for the stamping out of commercial record tablets.

One object of the invention is generally to provide an improved process or method of making phonographic records which will do away with many of the present-day objections and which will further cheapen the cost of producing record tablets and materially expedite their manufacture.

Tone Arm. Frank Oberst, Glendale, N. Y., assignor to Sonora Phonograph Corp. Patent No. 1,461,829.

This invention relates to tone arms for talking machines and has for its objects to provide a tone arm of fibrous material, having a joint whereby the arm may be lowered to engage the stylus with the record disc and whereby the arm may be elevated in order that the stylus will be accessible for insertion or removal.

A further object is to produce a tone arm of the character described, in which the sound passage will be unobstructed.

A still further object is to provide means for locking the arm in inoperative position by devices which will be entirely disengaged when the arm is in operative position, whereby rattling and other objectionable sounds will be obviated.

A further object of the invention is to provide means of the character herein described, simple in construction, thoroughly reliable and efficient in its purpose, positive in operation and inexpensive to manufacture.

The inventive idea involved is capable of receiving a variety of mechanical expressions, one of which for the purpose of illustrating the invention is shown in the accompanying drawings.

The invention will be first described in connection with the accompanying drawings illustrating one embodiment of the invention, wherein similar reference characters are used to designate corresponding parts throughout the several views.

In the drawings—

Method of and Apparatus for Making Phonograph Records. Giacomo Allegretti, Stockton, Cal. Patent No. 1,462,729.

This invention relates to improvements in phonograph-record making, the principal object being to devise what may be termed a phonographing process and an apparatus by means of which the process may be carried out.

By means of this invention master phonograph records may be produced directly and without the necessity of first recording the sounds on a soft wax, which necessitates a number of subsequent operations before the individual records are made.

This method may therefore also be used by individual owners who may desire to make their own records, which heretofore has been impractical, at least without incurring considerable expense and in a complicated way.

The depth of cutting of the record is regulated so that the volume of sound finally reproduced may be varied without necessarily increasing the original sound-volume, the vibrations produced by which cause the record to be cut.

The use of the wax composition now generally used for records is not limited, but any material may be employed which can be etched by acids and which may be made in a form suitable for the purpose.

The inventor contemplates etching the surface of a blank by means of acids suitable for the purpose, the acid being deposited on the blank in minute drops of various sizes, which then eat into the blank to corresponding and varying depths, the depositing of the acid being regulated and controlled by the strength of the sound waves or vibrations received into a transmitter, which is provided with means co-operating with the acid to cause it to be deposited as aforesaid.

The above described method is employed for making records for individual purposes. For making master records the same apparatus is used in the same manner, but the fluid used, instead of etching or eating into the blank, stays on the surface, hardening thereon, so that female records as universally used can be made directly therefrom.

A further object of the invention is to produce a simple and inexpensive device and yet one which will be exceedingly effective for the purposes for which it is designed.

In the drawings similar characters of reference indicate corresponding parts in the several views.

Phonograph. William Victor Meyer, Milwaukee, Wis. Patent No. 1,462,867.

The invention relates to phonographs. It comprises a base adapted to be positioned on a disc record, a horn rotatable on the base, means for rotating the horn, a reproducer, and a telescopic tone arm affixed to the horn, the tone arm moving inwardly to collapsed position on the rotation of the horn.

The primary object of the invention is the provision of a phonograph operating in an entirely new manner. The record is entirely stationary and the stylus and reproducer and parts co-operating immediately therewith are located on the record, when the record is being played.

The provision of a rotatable reproducer and tone arm is a marked novelty, thus the device is adapted to afford entertainment and may be used for purposes of advertisement, as its unusual principles of operation are adapted to attract considerable attention.

A further object of the invention is the provision of a phonograph that is small, all parts lying within the face of an ordinary disc record. The tone arm is collapsible, and may be positioned in the horn so that the device takes up a minimum of room and may be conveniently shipped and carried about from place to place.

A further object of the invention is the provision of an especially simple structure easy to manufacture, made up of a minimum number of parts and inexpensive.

In the accompanying drawing is illustrated one complete example of the physical embodiment of the present invention constructed ac-ording to the best mode so far devised for the practical application of the principles thereof.

Figure 1 is a vertical, central section through the phonograph and tone arm; Fig. 2 is a plan view with the cone removed, parts being broken away to show the means for retaining the tone arm in position; Figs. 3 and 4 are detail views.

Tone Arm Stop. Robert H. Weitershausen, Pittsburgh, Pa. Patent No. 1,463,107.

This invention relates to a needle positioning and tone arm arresting device for use in connection with phonographs, or the like, and has for its object to provide means for conveniently positioning, especially by one with impaired sight, of the needle of the tone arm of a phonograph, or the like, to contact with the record at the proper starting point.

A further object of the invention is to provide a needle positioning and tone arm arresting device for use in connection with phonographs, or the like, with means for limiting the outward throw of the tone arm of a phonograph, or the like, to prevent the shifting of the arm off the record when positioning the needle for engagement with the latter, and which not only facilitates the operation of the machine, but prevents injury to the point of the needle, as is often the case when the needle is positioned to close proximity to the edge of the record, causing it to run off the latter and damage its point.

A further object of the invention is to provide a needle positioning and tone arm arresting device for use in connection with phonographs, or the like, having means which is adjustable so as to enable the employment of the device, to perform its function, with records of various sizes.

Further objects of the invention are to provide a device for the purpose set forth, which is simple in its construction and arrangement, strong, durable, adjustable, readily set up with respect to the tone arm and record of a phonograph, or the like, efficient and convenient in its use, and inexpensive to manufacture.

With the foregoing and other objects in view, the invention consists of a novel construction, combination and arrangement of parts, illustrated in the accompanying drawings, wherein is shown an embodiment of the invention, but it is to be understood that changes, variations and modifications can be resorted to which fall within the scope of the claims hereunto appended.

In the drawings, wherein like reference characters denote corresponding parts throughout the several views:

Figure 1 is a top plan view of a phonograph or the like, broken away, showing the adaptation therewith of a needle positioning and tone arm arresting device in accordance with this invention; Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the device; Fig. 3 is a sectional elevation; Fig. 4 is a section on line 4-4 of Fig. 3 and Fig. 5 is a side elevation of a modification.

Tone Modulator for Phonographs. William J. Bauer, New York, and Frederick O. Wierth and Abraham S. Meadoff, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to the Queen Automatic Phonograph Co., Inc., New York. Patent No. 1,464,739.

This invention relates to improvements in tone-modulator for graphophones and more particularly to that type of modulator having movable elements for exerting various degrees of pressure on the vibratory transmitter bar of the sound box to control the amplitude of the vibrations, and the general object of the invention is to simplify the construction of the modulator and compactly arrange the units to admit of the modulator being easily applied to the sound box and the operative parts thereof conveniently and effectively operated. To this end the invention resides in the provision of novel form of jaws for engaging the transmitter rod and a plate for supporting the jaws and novel and effective operating mechanism, carried by the plate for increasing or decreasing the pressure of the jaws on the transmitter rod.

Other objects will appear and be better understood from that embodiment of the invention of which the following is a specification, reference being had to the accompanying drawings forming a part thereof, in which:

sound box and a portion of the modulator; Fig. 3 is a vertical sectional view taken through the modulator and showing the latter in applied position; Fig. 4 is a rear elevation of the modulator detached from the sound box, and Fig. 5 is a detail perspective view of one of the angular shaped links of the modulator and its companion transmitter bar engaging finger.

SELLING MUSICAL MERCHANDISE

By J. R. FREW

This is a practical book that describes the methods pursued by a successful music dealer in conducting his musical merchandise departments. It covers every routine problem incident to establishing and operating a department devoted to band and orchestra instruments.

This branch of the music industry has had a very prosperous year and an excellent opportunity awaits other dealers who take it up. It requires a small investment, gets quick turnover, involves no risk and, in addition to being highly profitable itself, increases the sale of talking machines, records, etc., and helps make a given store the music center of its community.

TWO WAYS TO CHANGE THE NEEDLE

The SCOTTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesman by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

TWELVE POINTS

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailormade appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitivity to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap sound boxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber basket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.

WIDENER SHOPS ADD BRANCH

The Victrola department of G. Schirmer, Inc., 3 East Forty-third street, New York City, has been taken over by the Widener Shops, and in the future it will be operated under the supervision of that concern. The Widener Co. is planning to discontinue the store at 4 West Thirty-seventh street, consolidating the business in one establishment.

An important announcement appears in our London letter, elsewhere in this issue, to the effect that the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. recently closed arrangements with the famous house of Chappell & Co., Ltd., 50 Old Bond street, London, to act as distributors for Brunswick phonograph records in Great Britain. This firm is one of the oldest in England.

KAUFMAN & BAER SECURE SONORA

Prominent Pittsburgh Department Store Closes Important Deal With Sonora Jobber—Complete Line of Instruments Placed on Display

PITTSBURGH, PA., November 8.—The Sonora Distributing Co., of this city, Sonora jobber for this territory, closed an important contract yesterday with the Kaufman & Baer Co., whereby this well-known department store will carry a complete line of Sonora phonographs. This deal was closed by Earl Miller, of the Sonora Distributing Co.'s sales staff, and arrangements have been made for an artistic display of the Sonora product. H. Milton Miller, manager of the company, is enthusiastic over closing this deal, which places the Sonora line in one of the largest department stores between New York and Chicago. George Israel, merchandise manager of the Kaufman & Baer Co., and Thos. J. Coyne, manager of the store's talking machine department, represented the department store in the negotiations which have just been closed.

MIGUEL FLETA RECORDS FOR VICTOR

Spanish Tenor Scores at Metropolitan Opera House—Three Other Artists Also Join Victor List—First Records Soon to Be Released

F. K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., announced this week that Miguel Fleta, the celebrated Spanish tenor, who scored such a great success at his debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, last week, will record for the Victor Co. According to the critics of the daily papers, Fleta is one of the greatest tenors who ever came from Spain. He is still young and has a large repertoire, including a number of recent works not yet heard in America. His voice is lyric, but powerful, and of exceptionally fine quality in all registers. The good reports that have come to us from Europe and South America regarding Senor Fleta are evidently well justified.

Other artists who recently consummated arrangements with the Victor Co. to make records are Charles T. Tittmann, Della Baker and Claire Brookhurst.

Mr. Tittmann is a basso with a sonorous voice of unusual range and quality. He is widely known, having to his credit eight consecutive annual appearances at the celebrated Bach festivals in Bethlehem, Pa. He has also appeared in recitals throughout the country as soloist for leading orchestras and in opera.

Miss Della Baker is a native of St. Louis, who recently entered the concert field in New York. She has appeared with some of the leading orchestras and at musical festivals. Her voice is one of rare beauty.

Miss Claire Brookhurst is also an American, having been born in New York City, and her musical education has been acquired in this country. She has appeared in concert with the Russian Symphony Orchestra and made a trans-continental tour in concert. She is now soloist in a prominent church in Harlem. She has an unusual contralto voice with a wide range, and, owing to her linguistic ability, she sings all songs in the original language.

This important deal was closed by the Musical Products Distributing Co., New York, jobbers for Vocalion Red records in metropolitan territory, and B. D. Colen, president of this company, is highly gratified to add Bloomington's to the growing list of New York Vocalion record dealers.

REALTOR'S MESSAGE ON RECORDS

Special Records Made for Minneapolis Firm Teach Home Ownership

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., November 7.—For the first time in history real estate precepts have been inscribed on phonograph records and set to music. The idea is the work of Dick Woodruff, manager of the small house department of Confer Bros., who has conceived the plan of utilizing the talking machine as a means toward teaching home ownership. The records, manufactured by an Eastern concern, have popular airs sandwiched in between short talks on the benefits to be derived from home ownership. More than 2,000 of these records have been sent out by mail by Confer Bros.

Value of the Phone as an Aid to Selling

Many Methods of Making the Phone Pay Dividends in Increased Sales Being Used by Live Retailers—Clever Phone-Mail Stunt Pays

In these days of keen competition the dealer who would get his share of business must utilize every possibility of increasing his sales volume. Half-way measures mean lost opportunities. The merchant who advertises and does not take advantage of other methods of securing business, such as canvassing, direct mail and all other forms of selling and publicity, is losing business. He may be what he considers successful, but the fact remains that greater success would attend the utilization of all mediums that lead to sales. A medium which is assuming a more and more important and effective place in the retailers' plans for enlarged sales volume is the telephone. During the last year many brief stories describing the way dealers are making their telephones pay actual dividends have appeared in the columns of The World.

Various Ways of Cashing In on the Phone

In some talking machine establishments one member of the sales organization is delegated to spend a certain amount of time telephoning customers regarding certain records which it is assumed will please the patron and this has been found quite effective in stimulating sales. A well-known department store has trained its records saleswomen to study each customer in order to ascertain the musical likes of each. A record is kept by each salesperson as to the particular records purchased in the past and from this a pretty accurate idea of the musical likes of each customer is obtained. Once each week the saleswomen of this establishment spend an hour at the telephone making contact with customers. Through this means also many slow-moving records have been disposed of. These records were non-sellers simply because in the average store it is the custom to steer clear of the better type of music and concentrate on the more popular recordings, to the detriment of records which really should form the backbone of the record business.

Novel Way of Making the Phone Pay

One of the most novel ways of making the phone produce business is now in use by one of the largest talking machine and music stores in the metropolitan district. The manager of this department has delegated a man to use the phone in calling up various people whose names have been taken from the phone book and directory. Of course, he is thoroughly familiar with the streets of the city and knows approximately the type of people living in the streets selected for his phone operations. The salesman talks to the lady of the house and cleverly secures certain information, i. e., whether a talking machine is owned, what type of music is desired, etc. To homes where there is no talking machine the following form letter is immediately sent:

In reference to our phone conversation, we were surprised to learn that you did not order the records that we were holding for you, awaiting instructions to send them.

In the course of the conversation you mentioned that you did not have a Victrola in your Home.

Why deprive yourself of the unrivaled sweetness and power of Caruso's voice that filled the Metropolitan Opera House to capacity whenever he sang?

Do you not miss the beautiful voice of John McCormack singing "I Hear You Calling Me" and "At Dawning"?

Is it not a treat to hear Fritz Kreisler play "Thais-Meditation," as well as to hear Galli-Curci sing one of your favorites?

All of these Victor Records can be best reproduced on Genuine Victrolas. The new Victrola Console Models we have on display will not only give you the fullest possible enjoyment from its exact reproduction of tone, but these Consoles serve as a beautiful piece of furniture as well.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., being the largest Musical House in the World, is financially able to sell Victrolas to people who do not care to pay cash, but would rather pay monthly. The monthly payments are trivial, compared with the amount of enjoyment you will receive from a "Genuine Victrola from Wurlitzer."

After you have carefully gone over the catalog we are sending you, we would like to have you pay us a visit and see the actual Victrolas on display. When can you call?

If there are no results another letter is sent out after a lapse of a reasonable length of time. This letter asks whether the first communication has been received and it also emphasizes the fact that the enclosed catalog illustrates the latest models; requests that a personal visit be made to the store so that the line may be examined at first hand and an idea of the tone quality of the instruments may be realized and closes with the following paragraph, which makes action on the part of the customer easy:

"If unable to come in personally and examine the various models side by side, telephone Bryant 8140, Desk 52, or write a line and a salesman will call on you and give you full information, without obligating you in any way."

Phone Helps Small Dealers

The telephone way of selling should prove of especial benefit to retailers who are unable to maintain an outside sales organization. It is inexpensive and a most forceful means of bringing the product forcibly to the attention of prospective customers. People who will invariably refuse to talk to a salesman will answer the phone and will listen to the message of the dealer or salesman provided it be brief and to the point.

COLUMBIA DEMONSTRATION RECORD

Mammoth Publicity Campaign to Feature Special Columbia Demonstration Record—Presents Selections by Famous Artists—Designed to Successfully Stimulate Record Business

Starting on November 17 and continuing throughout the month, the Columbia Phonograph Co. will sponsor a tremendous advertising campaign featuring a ten-inch demonstration record that will be offered to the public at twenty-five cents. This demonstration record has been introduced to give Columbia dealers an opportunity to call to the attention of prospective record purchasers the distinctive merits of Columbia New Process records. Coming at the height of the Fall buying season, this record will undoubtedly act as a material stimulant to record business during the holiday season.

The Columbia demonstration record features on one side an operatic selection by Charles Hackett, famous tenor and exclusive Columbia artist; a violin solo by Toscha Seidel, well-known violinist and exclusive Columbia artist and a symphony orchestra recording. On the reverse side is a popular dance hit by Ted Lewis, one of the country's leading dance orchestra directors and an exclusive Columbia artist.

The demonstration record campaign includes a full-page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of November 17, a full page in four colors in the American Weekly of November 25, with a circulation of 4,500,000; full pages on November 25 in rotogravure sections of newspapers throughout the country, with a combined circulation of 8,000,000, and black and white full-page advertisements on November 25 in Sunday editions with a combined circulation of 1,500,000. In order that Columbia dealers may cash in on this tremendous campaign, the company's advertising department has prepared a striking window poster in colors to be posted in the dealer's window. This poster will call the attention of passersby to the demonstration record and link up the advertising campaign with the dealer's store. Proofs of the American Weekly and Saturday Evening Post advertisements will be sent to the Columbia branches for distribution, or, if possible, direct to the dealers.

The special demonstration record will have the new Columbia gold label on the side featuring

Chas. Hackett, Toscha Seidel and the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, and the new fire bronze label will be on the Ted Lewis side. To further distinguish it from the ordinary record, it will have the words "Sample Record, 25c" lettered in white under the name Columbia. Each record will be enclosed in a special envelope of a distinctive color and the envelope will give the complete story of the record and its purpose. The value of a demonstration record as a sales stimulant was proved several years ago and there is no question but that this new demonstration record will be invaluable to Columbia dealers the coming season in developing sales for Columbia New Process records.

WENDELL HALL ON VICTOR LIST

Well-known Composer and Singer to Make Victor Records Exclusively—Popular Among Radio Fans Throughout the Country

In Wendell Hall, a new and exclusive Victor artist, whose first record will appear in the November 23 list, the Victor Talking Machine Co. is presenting to the music-loving public a singer and composer with an unusual history. Mr. Hall started his professional career in 1913, appearing in quartets, men's choruses and in church work. He later played the clarinet, saxophone and trombone, and following this he traveled from coast to coast in vaudeville with his act, "The Singing Xylophonist." During the war he went to France with the A. E. F. as a bugler.

His next step was to write popular songs, including both words and music, and he is credited with such hits as "Underneath the Mellow Moon," "My Carolina Rose" and others. About two years ago Mr. Hall became one of the pioneer radio entertainers and to-day he is known to radio enthusiasts throughout the country, having appeared at more than twenty-five of the largest broadcasting stations. Although a native of Chicago, he spent a number of years in the South, where he became acquainted with Southern customs and expressions, and where he made a study of Southern songs. Mr. Hall's first Victor record will feature two of his own compositions, self-accompanied on the ukulele.

The Carl Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., C. W. Carl, proprietor, suffered heavy loss in a fire early this month. The building in which the business was housed was practically destroyed.

ARTISTIC VICTOR HOLIDAY FOLDERS

Christmas Publicity for Dealer Distribution Features Machines and Records

The Victor Talking Machine Co. is distributing to the trade some exceptionally handsome holiday folders designed for dealer distribution. One of the folders, handsomely illustrated in colors, carries the complete line of Victor console, cabinet and portable instruments. The cover of this folder contains a picture of the interior of the home with a Victor console prominently displayed in the center of the room, while behind it are pictures of the various famous Victor artists. The rear cover shows the outside of a house in a Winter setting, with a band grouped before it. The text is brief and carries a Christmas atmosphere.

Another folder deals entirely with records designed especially for Christmas. This is also done in colors and the text on the front cover urges the appropriateness of Victor records as Christmas gifts.

B. R. FORSTER ENDS LONG TRIP

Byron R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, returned last week from a trip across the continent in the interest of Brilliantone needles. Mr. Forster visited the principal cities en route and found generally good conditions prevailing everywhere. The outlook for 1924 seemed very promising and substantial orders for Brilliantone needles were placed. Mr. Forster returned through the Southern territory, stopping off at his old home for a short visit. Needless to say, he enjoyed his stay among his old friends, whom he had not seen for some time.

Are You Preparing for Holiday Business?

Pre-Christmas Weeks Offer Greatest Sales Opportunity of Year —Gift Dollars Can Be Garnered by Intelligent Sales Promotion

A month from the time this issue of The World reaches its readers the holiday rush will be on in real earnest. Whether the talking machine dealer gets his share of the gift money of the public will depend largely upon himself and the efforts he has put forth to attract attention forcibly and favorably to his line of merchandise. The big idea to remember is that in order to make the most of his Christmas-sales opportunity the dealer must use an entirely different plan of presenting talking machines, records and any other musical lines which he handles to the public. In short, the presentation in advertising and other methods of bringing his wares to public attention must be largely on the basis of suitability of his line as a Christmas gift. His entire business organization must be established for the moment with this object foremost at all times: Talking machines and records make suitable gifts. That should be his slogan from now until Christmas is over. It should be the central theme of all sales talks, store arrangement and decoration and window displays. In short, the "gift" idea should permeate the entire establishment. No half way measures will do. Negligence may mean lost business, and dealers in other lines will get a share of the profit which should go to the talking machine merchant.

The Matter of Service

Past experience has shown members of the talking machine trade that service is an important part of their business. Service, that is, courteous attention to each customer and doing everything to make every patron happy and satisfied, is comparatively easy during the months of the year when there is no particular rush. The situation becomes more complicated during the holiday period, however. It must be remembered that during the few weeks preceding Christmas every store is rushed to a greater or lesser extent. Many people are crowded around the counters, the majority of them impatient to be waited upon as quickly as possible so that they can do further Christmas shopping. Whether the talking machine dealer and his salesmen serve their patrons efficiently, quickly and thoroughly, never losing an opportunity to make the most of each sales possibility, depends to a large extent upon their knowledge and experience. But a great deal depends upon another factor—store arrangement. Stock, both talking machines and records, should be arranged so that they are easily reached by both customers and salesmen. The fewer people who are forced to spend a lot of time with the salesman the better it is for the business. One dealer last year placed several tables in the open space available in the center of his store. Upon these tables were placed a number of records suitable for Christmas. A simple thing, truly, but one which has resulted in an astonishing number of sales of these special records in past years and it will probably result in as good, if not better, business this year. The point of this incident is that the salesman do not have to spend a lot of time suggesting records. People, while waiting to be served, walk over to the table and naturally read the titles of the various recordings. Perhaps they did not enter the store with the intention of purchasing any of these records, but the idea hits them as being good and thus another sale is added to the list. Another dealer is installing Audaks, a record demonstration device which facilitates selling, to meet increased demands.

Christmas Gift Opportunities

It is not only in the sale of the larger talking machines and records that the dealer has a wonderful opportunity of cashing in in a big way. There are the children to consider. After all, one of the great forces of Christmas as celebrated in this country is to make the kiddies happy, and the talking machine dealer has it in his power to compete with toys and the usual things which make the heart of a child happy. Besides, he has something which not only furnishes amusement for the tots, but something which has a distinct educational value. A most valuable talking point. This is the portable talking machine and the various clever recordings on the market designed especially for the amusement and education of children. It would not be a bad idea to fix up a part of the store especially for the purpose of catering to the children. And a portion of the window display space also could profitably be used in this manner. Some stores are paying a good deal of attention to the children this year as prospects. And this applies not only to the wee youngsters, but to those of primary and high school age. Talking machines and records as gifts to the children and from the children to their parents or other loved ones! There you have it in a nutshell. Dealers in the Middle West and Far West, especially, have taken cognizance of the child in the merchandising scheme around Christmastime. Several of the Western stores have special rooms for the children. Naturally, when the parents visit the store they take the tots to this room, which is fitted up as a children's play room. A small talking machine and a good display of juvenile records form the main feature of the display. Remember the children!

Early Preparation Necessary

As was mentioned last month in The World the great mass of detail which confronts the talking machine dealer in making his plans for holiday business necessitates early planning. The dealer who waits too long, or trusts to providence to take care of his holiday sales preparations, will be one of those who wail the loudest about the paucity of business. There is one thought that cannot be reiterated too often and that is: It is the go-getter who gets the business. This does not mean the chap who expects to win by sheer aggressiveness, but the man or woman, regardless of what business he or she may be in, who thinks, plans and acts. So, we repeat, get the threads of your holiday sales drive together and then launch it and follow it up with all the energy, skill and knowledge your sales organization is capable of.

REASONS FOR THANKSGIVING IN THE TRADE

THE nearness of Thanksgiving brings to mind that the talking machine industry has a special reason to be thankful, as it approaches, in a triumphant way, the close of 1923. Month after month has witnessed substantial progress in manufacturing, in distribution, in retailing and in greater prestige for the talking machine, based upon the production of musical instruments that represent greater perfection in design, construction and musical excellence.

Since the disturbing deflation period in the years following the World War the industry has displayed such a measure of recuperation and vigor as to be surprising to those who a year or more ago were prone to indulge in indigo-hued phrases as to the future of the industry. Readjustment is now at an end. This accomplishment has been no easy task. Hence, now is the time to preach, and, better still, to practice constructive rather than destructive policies, to the end that there will develop greater faith in the industry and confidence in the men who make it.

We are to-day enjoying a gratifying measure of activity. Every branch of the industry is bringing a fair reward to those who are striving by the application of progressive ideas to score success. From a financial point of view the industry was never so healthy, this despite misleading articles in some daily papers due probably to a misunderstanding of the legal procedure which became necessary in order to complete the reorganization of a great manufacturing organization and to insure its future operation along successful lines. This meant progress, not disaster. Then another concern of national reputation was forced into print without a knowledge of the cause. Court proceedings helped, however, to demonstrate its financial integrity and capable management, as well as the absolute unreason for the action, inasmuch as the legal proceedings instituted were quashed. Therefore, despite the wagging tongues of unthinking persons, nothing has happened to undermine the stability of the talking machine industry. In one case an unfavorable condition, a relic of war days, has been removed; in the other the critics of the administrators of the business have been convinced of its financial health and the lack of necessity for the action taken.

Now, in this connection, it may not be out of place to point out the unwisdom, nay, the danger, of loose remarks that breed suspicion and doubt when the financial affairs of any concern are discussed. Every member of the industry should have sufficient pride in its success to resent implications that subject any enterprise to unmerited comment, particularly where its financial affairs are concerned. When we consider the history and development of the talking machine industry, its wonderful achievements, and the notable men who have played, and are playing, such an honorable part in its upbuilding, it becomes the duty of everyone interested in its welfare to be missionaries in maintaining the dignity and standing of the industry. Idle conjecture and the reiteration of rumors, often malicious, that are apt to retard or destroy confidence in the soundness of the talking machine industry should be condemned and discouraged. They lead to a false idea of the condition of the industry not only in the minds of the public, but in banking and financial circles as well.

MAKE THE DEALER'S STORE A MUSICAL CENTER

IT is interesting to note that the members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization of talking machine retailers in New York City and neighboring territories, have arranged to supply the needs of individuals in their localities seeking musical organizations and artists for dances, musicales, etc., by acting in co-operation with a newly organized booking office controlling a number of well-known orchestras, as well as individual artists.

The idea is in the elementary stage and its working out will be carefully watched, for the plan has been adopted not because it is calculated to arouse special interest in this or that make of records or those who make them, but because it will attract attention to the store of the neighborhood dealer as a place where musical requirements of all kinds may be met.

It is quite logical that the talking machine dealer should be regarded in his community as something more than the ordinary type of merchant, for the success of his business is based primarily upon the musical desires and musical appreciation of the public. He is, therefore, in an excellent position to keep in close contact with things musical, supporting them generally and in turn reaping the reward of increased interest in his establishment.

In various sections of the country dealers have underwritten the appearance of recording orchestras and artists, or, through their efforts, encouraged the appearance of such artists, but the New York movement goes somewhat further than this in putting the dealer in a position to place the customer in touch with the musical world in general by securing for him talent of various descriptions, ranging from the individual artists and the trio to symphony orchestras and brass bands. Moreover, the plan carries with it direct profit-making possibilities, and the work of its carrying out will be watched with distinct interest not only in the metropolitan district but in other sections of the country.

SUPPORT THE PRICE MAINTENANCE BILLS

THE question of a Federal statute legalizing the fixing and maintenance of retail prices on trade-marked goods is more vital just now than it has been in the past for the reason that liquidations and adjustments of wholesale and retail stocks, a percentage of which has not been overhonest or ethical, has, in a large measure, served to undermine public confidence in commodity values. It is a recognized fact that the trade-marked articles of recognized standing are being used in a constantly increasing number of cases as bait to lure purchasers for so-called bargain goods of decidedly questionable merit.

Various organizations in the music trade have on many occasions endorsed the price maintenance bills that have been presented to Congress, but in spite of these endorsements and of the direct efforts made to bring about the passage of the bills, success still lies in the offing. It might be well for trade organizations to give thought to the Merritt Bill, introduced by Representative Schuyler Merritt of Connecticut, which is designed to permit the manufacturer of an article offered under a trade-mark or special brand to specify or mark on the article the price at which it is to be resold.

The Merritt Bill overcomes some of the objections offered to previous measures, such as the Kelly-Stephens Bill, by providing that the privilege of fixing prices shall not exist where the manufacturer is in a position to enjoy a monopoly in his field, and that the fixing of prices cannot be brought about by joint agreement between a number of manufacturers.

The development of the talking machine industry, particularly of the distributing branch of the industry, was due directly to the policy of price maintenance observed rigidly until the courts decided against the particular systems in vogue. Price maintenance not only protects against the price cutter, but likewise acts as a check to the profiteer. A measure such as the Merritt Bill should have a direct and powerful influence in restoring public confidence in the intrinsic values of a manufactured product.

IS A NATIONAL EXHIBITION DESIRABLE?

TO show or not to show, is one of the questions that are interesting the talking machine trade in New York and vicinity just now, particularly the members of The Talking Machine Men, Inc. There are those in the trade who, having had the propositions broached to them, are firm in the belief that the only thing needed to place the industry on a high wave of prosperity for months and even years to come is a so-called national exhibition of talking machines to be held in New York in some large building, such as Madison Square Garden, some time in the immediate future. There are others who, having had something to do with, or some knowledge of shows of similar kind, are inclined to be conservative and study the matter closely before endorsing any such plan.

If the proposed talking machine show, or for that matter a general music show, is to be operated by the promoter of the private venture, well and good; but if the trade or any organized division of the trade, such as The Talking Machine Men, Inc., are to stand sponsor for the venture, financially, as well as morally, then it might be well for them to study the experiences met with in previous shows of the kind.

A general music show is not in any sense a new idea, for there have been a half dozen or more of them held, the last one in Grand Central Palace, New York, during the Winter of 1920, and on a basis that in elaborateness compared most favorably with any other trade exhibition. The director and manager of the music exhibition was an experienced showman and he got results, but the talking machine men might do well to find out from him just what his experiences were. They, perhaps, would afford an excellent guide in the making of a decision regarding the proposed new venture.

There is no question but that co-operatively the talking machine trade has a wealth of material with which to attract huge crowds and there should be available for any such show, if it is to be successful, the greatest musical organizations and artists in the country, if not in the world. The questions to be studied, however, are, first, the cost of the show; second, whether all the leading interests of the trade will participate and bear a share of that cost, and third, the sort of publicity that will put the idea over, and fourth, and by all odds most important, just what tangible results may be expected immediately or in the future from such a show, from a purely dollars-and-cents angle.

We don't seek to appear pessimistic in the matter, but there is real experience to draw from in forming conclusions. It is a known fact that promoters are careful to refer to the outstanding successes among such shows as the automobile, and more lately the radio show, but a neglect to mention the scores of failures which are to be registered for every success is a matter to be studied carefully before a decision is reached. Before the venture is decided upon there must be evident a strong spirit of co-operation and a readiness to work and work hard.

UNION OF RETAIL FORCES IN LOS ANGELES

FROM Los Angeles comes the announcement that the Radio Dealers' Association in that section has become part and a division of the Music Trade Association of Southern California. It is rather early to prophesy just what this new combination of the radio and music trades in one association is going to accomplish, or what the general effect will be. But the move will appeal to those who have urged the linking of the two interests and to those members of the music trade who regard radio as a more or less dangerous competitor. From the last angle it would seem better to have the competitor in the same camp where he can be watched and co-operated with rather than to have him outside the pale.

Concerts as a Means of Sales Promotion

Interesting Suggestions for Making Wholesale Demonstrations of Talking Machines and Records Described by Frank H. Williams

Is there any better way of selling a talking machine than by demonstrating it to the prospective purchaser?

The actual hearing of the music rendered by the phonograph is, in the majority of instances, quite sure to arouse interest and oftentimes makes a purchaser of the prospect. Consequently, it looks as though it would be the best sort of business to build business by staging concerts more frequently.

Let us consider what could be done by talking machine stores along this line, enabling them to get more business and make more money.

Noon-time Concerts

During the noon hour in the average city there are a large number of office workers and retail sales people and others who, after eating a light luncheon, wander around the business districts looking for something to attract and hold their attention. Since this is the case, why wouldn't it be good business for the talking machine store to draw some of these people into the establishment by the simple procedure of staging concerts during the noon hour which would be open to everyone and be of such a popular nature that the majority of the noon-hour seekers for amusement and entertainment would be mighty glad to attend them?

While staging these concerts the store might secure the names and addresses of the people present by passing out cards on which they could write the selections they would like to hear rendered at the next noon-time concert given by the store and on which they could also affix their names and addresses. This sort of a stunt would serve a double purpose in that it would show just what sort of music is most popular with this class of people, and in that it would give the store a good list of people who were enough interested in phonograph music to go to the trouble of suggesting special selections that they would like to hear.

All of this could be used by the store to good advantage in personal solicitation among the people signing the cards. And it would, unquestionably, be of help to the store in getting more business.

Noon-time Concerts in Restaurants

Practically every restaurant owner knows that if he has music during meals he will be doing something which will be of real help to him in getting more business. Consequently most restaurant owners would readily give permission to the proprietor of a phonograph store to come to the restaurant during the noon hour and put on a special concert on a machine sent by the music house for the occasion. And the restaurant owner, of course, would be perfectly willing for the music store to cash in on the stunt by placing placards prominently about the restaurant stating that the Smith Music House was giving the concert as a means of demonstrating the merit of the Blank phonographs which it handles.

Then while the concert was under way the employes of the music store might pass out cards to the people in the restaurant on which they could indicate which of the selections rendered during the concerts had most powerfully appealed to them. Of course, too, there would be space on the cards for the people to sign their names and addresses.

In this way the store would again secure a live-wire list of people who were interested in music and whose business could be personally solicited and, undoubtedly, from this list the store could work up a large number of sales. Also it wouldn't be such an utterly impossible thing to make sales of phonographs to some of the restaurant owners in whose places of business the concerts had been rendered.

Special Invitation Concerts

Nearly everyone gets a thrill upon going to the phone and having the person at the other end of the line deliver some such message as this:

"This is the Smith Music Store. We are having a special concert in our hall this evening at which we will play some of the latest operatic and classical music on one of our largest phonographs. We know you are interested in this sort of music and would be glad to have you attend the concert. There is no admission fee, of course, and no obligation on your part. Also we will be glad to have you bring some of your friends if you desire to do so. As our seating space is limited we will be very glad to have you tell us now whether or not you will attend and, if so, how many people you will bring with you."

A personal invitation of this sort would be sure to get responses from many of the people who were invited, because of the fact that the folks who were invited in this way would feel quite flattered at the invitation, and so the store would be sure to have a good group of people in attendance.

Then during the course of the concert the store could pass out cards to all of the people present on which they could write their suggestions for other selections they would like to hear played at future concerts and on which they could also write out any suggestions they might have to offer as to ways and means by which the concerts could be made more interesting and popular. Then there would be space for each person to sign his name and address.

Most of the people who attend a free concert of this sort would under these circumstances feel a certain obligation to the store, despite the statement that "there was no obligation," and so would feel like signing the cards for the purpose of discharging this obligation. The store would, therefore, get a lot of cards from the people present and this would give another splendid list of prospects to work on through personal solicitation.

Sunday School and Church Concerts

Frequently the Sunday school or the church entertainment is dull and uninteresting because of the fact that it is the same old thing done over and over again in the same old way. The officers of the Sunday school or church probably realize that this situation obtains and they would be glad to arouse more interest in the affairs by instituting some changes, but they are at a loss to know just what to do.

So if the talking machine dealer went to some Sunday school or church entertainment committee and offered to send a phonograph and operate it with appropriate selections during the school sessions or during the church entertainment, his offer would, unquestionably, be gladly accepted and the school superintendent, or the chairman of the entertainment committee, would gladly make an announcement to the school or the assemblage telling about the kindness of the dealer in supplying the music free of charge and so on. All of which would be the best sort of advertising for the phonograph store and it would probably lead to some very good sales.

When such concerts are arranged it would be a good plan for the dealer or salesman to spend quite a little time conferring with the officers of the Sunday school or with the members of the entertainment committee for the purpose of seeing just what music they would like to have played at the events. During these conferences the owner or salesman would get quite intimate with these people and would find out whether or not they had phonographs in their own homes and so would be able to lay the foundation for future sales which, otherwise in the normal course of events, would never have been made.

There is no question but that the more people the phonograph store interests through the use of concerts the more prospects it will dig up and the more business it will get.

Your mind is the fountain-head of opportunity; why not use it?

Record Service That Pays Big Dividends

When the Salesman Is Compelled to Say "We Are Out of That Record" Sales Are Lost Unless the Desired Selection Is Secured

The proposition has been demonstrated time and time again that where competition is keen the dealer who conducts his business along the most efficient lines and extends the best service never lacks patronage. Experience has proved that a merchant's success is measured by these things, provided that he handles standard and worth-while products. And of all the elements that make up a business enterprise service is probably the most important, for by this means patronage can be built up.

These are the principles which have proved eminently successful in building up a large following for the Ideal Music Co., which is located in the center of the financial and commercial district of downtown New York. In addition to the Gotham establishment, this firm operates stores in Newark and Plainfield, N. J., and in Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Victor line is featured exclusively. The New York store is under the direct management of Edmund V. Bragdon, treasurer of the company, who, by the way, is one of the real live wires of the trade.

Catering to Business People

As has been mentioned, the New York store is in the financial and commercial district of the city and the only persons who spend any time there are on business bent. The problem of building up a steady clientele is an entirely different one from that with which the neighborhood talking machine retailer is faced. The office workers and business people who spend their days in the giant business structures which crowd one another in this district are all commuters. Each morning they pour forth from subways, trains and ferries, many of them coming from towns and cities forty and fifty miles distant. They do their day's work and then rush for the same vehicles of transportation to take them home. From this brief description of the conditions which the Ideal Music Co. must face it will readily be seen that entirely different methods must be utilized in bringing the store to the notice of prospective customers than the neighborhood dealer has at his command. Newspaper advertising here is worthless, personal canvassing is out of the question and direct mail to individuals in offices is impossible, and these are the obstacles which this company has successfully surmounted.

While a merchant so situated cannot use the methods of the dealer in the small town or one who caters to residential districts, the latter will find much of value in some of the practices employed by the Ideal Music Co. For example: Mr. Bragdon has instituted a service program in the merchandising of records which has resulted in the sale of thousands of dollars' worth of records, the majority of which would not have been sold otherwise. He noticed that often there is a shortage of a certain record and that when customers were told that that record was not in stock they often went out without making any purchase, nor did they ever take the trouble to come back later to determine if the record had been secured as promised. To retain this patronage and at the same time extend a service which would result in increased sales the Ideal Music Co. had two cards printed, one on which the customer is asked to place the name and number of the record desired which was not in stock, as well as other information, and the other is a special post card to be mailed to the customer when the record desired has been secured. The first card is reproduced below so as to give some idea of the form followed:

PLACE THE NUMBER OF THE RECORD DESIRED HERE →
USE A SEPARATE CARD FOR EACH RECORD
WITHOUT OBLIGATION TO ME, KINDLY NOTIFY ME WHEN YOU CAN SUPPLY THE ABOVE RECORD.
NAME _____		DATE _____
ADDRESS _____
IF YOU DO NOT KNOW THE NUMBER OF THE RECORD WRITE NAME HERE
NOTICE SENT	HOLD UNTIL	RECORD CLAIMED
	OVER

The reverse side of this card is devoted to a cleverly worded message to customers which in reality is an advertisement of the plan of ordering records which do not happen to be in stock. The reasons for the necessity of the service are briefly and clearly outlined in the following neatly printed text:

IDEAL SERVICE COUNTS
 To our friends:
 As you no doubt know, there has been a great shortage of Victor records. This condition, we believe, will right itself in the near future.
 You are probably looking for some of the "hard-to-get" records. Without obligation to yourself, let us notify you when we can supply them. We will gladly furnish all of these cards you need.
 IDEAL MUSIC CO.

When a customer asks for a record which the company happens to be out of the salesman immediately suggests that he be permitted to secure the record for him or her and one or more of these cards are given to the patron to fill out. One card is used for every record desired.

When the record has been secured the following printed card is mailed to the customer:

Your VICTOR RECORD Is Here
We have just received a supply of Record No. _____
One of them is being reserved for you, and we will hold it for you for three days.
When In—ask to hear Record.
Ideal Music Co. 29 JOHN ST. NEW YORK.

That this plan has been a tremendous factor in increasing the record business of the Ideal Music Co. there can be no doubt when it is considered that during a recent shortage of certain records over a thousand dollars' worth of "deferred" record orders were filled with the aid of this system. In addition many people who were very infrequent purchasers were turned into steady customers through this concrete evidence of willingness to be of service. This may seem a small thing in itself, but the results speak for themselves and no talking machine dealer can go wrong if apparently small things such as this are developed for the benefit of patrons.

IMPORTANT RADIO CONFERENCES

Leading Manufacturers and Distributors Plan Meeting to Promote a Better Understanding

It was announced recently that leading manufacturers and distributors in the radio industry would meet in a series of conferences in the near future to promote a better understanding among radio manufacturers and broadcasters. These meetings will be sponsored by the National Radio Chamber of Commerce, and a preliminary conference was held a few weeks ago.

At this meeting J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of the Department of Commerce, gave a very interesting and informative talk, during the course of which he expressed the hope that the radio industry would co-operate with the National Radio Chamber of Commerce in its work of organization. Mr. Drake made it plain that unless the radio industry was in a position to express its desires in Washington with a united front, the opinions and wishes of individuals could not be accorded consideration.

First, the radio units in these models have been perfected in the Kennedy Engineering Laboratories so that now anyone without previous knowledge of radio can operate them. This also makes it easy for your piano and phonograph salesmen to successfully sell these Kennedy sets.

Second, the furniture in which these new units are housed is in period architecture, produced by skilled designers—it is so exquisitely proportioned that it lends itself to the most refined surroundings. Why? Because health is what people want. During the summer they had it because they were out of doors and exercised in play or at work. Winter-time, however, hinders outdoor activity. Here then is your opportunity. Sell these people Dr. Kellogg's Health Ladder—a system of enjoyable exercises given with inspiring music on Columbia New Process Records. The man or woman who buys the Health Ladder and uses it daily will soon possess again the summer-time health and vigor which makes life a pleasure.

COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH

Exercise is Health and Exercise with Music is Pleasure

A Description of Dr. Kellogg's Health Ladder

DR. KELLOGG'S Health Ladder is a series of five records, including twenty different exercises, directed by Dr. Kellogg exclusively for Columbia Records. These exercises are divided into groups called "rounds," of which there are eight.

The arrangement of the exercises of the Health Ladder is such as to bring all parts of the body into active play, thus encouraging symmetrical development. So well graduated are the exercises that those unable to go through the entire series at first can advance from one "round" to another as their strength increases.

What the Health Ladder aims to accomplish can be summarized as follows:

1. To correct wrong poise in sitting or standing, bad postures at work, such defects in physique as flat chest, round back, projecting abdomen and forward carriage of hips.
2. To improve breathing and circulation by strengthening the heart, chest muscles, diaphragm and abdominal muscles.
3. To restore as nearly as possible to normal position the prolapsed or fallen stomach, liver, kidneys, colon and other abdominal and pelvic organs.
4. By localized muscular work, to remove undue accumulations of fat.
5. By general muscular work to improve the general nutrition, thus increasing vital resistance, endurance and mental and physical efficiency.

C. Smith's Orchestra, Memphis Five, Paul Whiteman's Orchestra (Himself), Paul Specht's Orchestra, Ray Miller's Orchestra, S.S. Leviathan Orchestra, Ted

Lewis and Band, Tennessee Ten, The Virginians, Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra, Yerkes' S.S. Flotilla Orchestra and Zez Confrey and His Orchestra.

The main problem seems to be at this time that of arranging a schedule that will permit of all the orchestras playing one or two numbers each and still keep within the time limits set by the hotel. Last year the grand ballroom of the Pennsylvania was packed almost to suffocation by those seeking the opportunity to dance to the music of the recording orchestras, and although a slightly higher price for tickets prevails this year, it is confidently believed that the crowd will be as large.

The ball is held by the Talking Machine Men, Inc., for the purpose of building up the treasury of the organization to enable it to carry on co-operative advertising campaigns for the benefit of its members and to engage in other work calculated to help the trade and the cause of music generally.

Victor Co. Factory Working Under Pressure

Various Departments on Overtime Basis in Effort to Meet Heavy Demands for Victrolas and Records—Substantial Increase in Record Business Is Reported

At the present time the factory of the Victor Talking Machine Co. is one of the busiest manufacturing plants in the East with all departments working full time under pressure and a goodly number of them overtime in an effort to keep up with the demand for both machines and records, and to overcome the annual shortage that is already making itself felt in respect to the former product.

The immense building just completed to house an addition to the company's record pressing plant has not yet been occupied for that purpose, although it will be soon after the first of the year, the empty space is being utilized to good advantage in helping out temporarily other departments of the business.

According to officials of the company the demand for records has shown a substantial increase over that registered during previous years, due to two causes, among others. First, the new system of weekly releases which makes for a heavier distribution of popular numbers, and, second, the double facing of Red Seal records, a no mean task in itself, which has served to stimulate that division of the record business.

While utilizing their existing facilities to the uttermost, the Victor Co. is busily engaged in perfecting, and, for that matter, carrying out plans for increased production right along the line. These include the new pressing plant in Camden, the building for which is now completed, and the recording and pressing plant in Oakland, Cal., which is now actively under construction and which when completed will serve to take considerable pressure off the main headquarters.

SERIES OF EDISON CHRISTMAS ADS

A series of dealer ads designed for use in holiday campaigns has been prepared by Thomas A. Edison, Inc. These advertisements are up to the usual high standard of the work turned out by the Edison advertising department in its dealer publicity service. The console phonograph as an appropriate Christmas gift is given prominence. The layouts of the ads are appropriate to the season, making an effective display, and dealers can secure mats and electros by communicating with the advertising department of the company.

The Rudd & Rix music store, Green street, Herkimer, N. Y., has been purchased by Robert A. Bothwell, formerly manager. He will continue the business under his own name. A complete line of Victor talking machines, records and sheet music is handled by this concern.

A new phase of phonograph Record Merchandising

WITH the introduction of imported recordings, phonograph record dealers in all parts of the country have grasped a new merchandising possibility.

Other industries have for years taken full advantage of the magic influence of the word "imported." The buying public of America has been taught to regard imported merchandise as particularly desirable. For the products of the Old World, from briar pipes to clothing fabrics, have a quality distinctively their own, which domestic merchandise cannot duplicate.

The General Phonograph Corporation has for the past year been amassing a carefully selected repertoire of imported recordings for the purpose of supplying American record dealers with a line of "imported recordings" which would have no domestic equal.

Already the music lovers of America are becoming familiar with the superb, musical value of those Old World recordings. On the following two pages we have endeavored to briefly summarize the desirable qualities of these recordings and give dealers an insight into this new phase of record merchandising.

It will pay you to read the following pages!

Odeon Records

IN the past, only those people who traveled in Europe were privileged to hear famous European artists at their best, for it has long been a recognized fact that artists from Europe lack the necessary inspiration of their art when away from their own countries. Although these artists are frequently heard in this country, their performances do not possess the superb brilliancy that characterizes their appearances in their homelands. Now, however, it is possible for everyone in the United States to hear the celebrated European artists at their very best—to possess phonograph records made by these artists right in their own countries, under ideal musical and artistic conditions.

Know Your Overhead and Prevent Losses

Dealer Handling More Than One Line Must Keep Accurate Check on Each to Get a Correct Idea of His Profits—A Simple System

A fundamental principle of business management is to know accurately the overhead expense so that a close check can be made at all times to determine profits. Undoubtedly every merchant, whether he be in the talking machine business or in any other enterprise, has some method of determining his profits, but there are many merchants who, through faulty systems of cost finding, imagine they are making a profit when the contrary is the case. When a single line is handled it is a simple matter to secure an accurate idea of actual profits, but when two or more lines are carried the problem becomes more complicated. The larger concerns which operate various departments, such as talking machine, record, musical merchandise, radio, etc., have more or less elaborate systems of cost finding, enabling them to know the overhead of each department and also which lines are paying and which are failing to make good. Many small dealers, however, do not operate departments, although they may handle several lines, and also in many cases there is little or no effort made to determine exactly what the profits are from each line of goods handled. Too often the cost finding consists merely of treating the business as a whole, and where this method is practiced there are no accurate data on actual profit or loss in the handling of the various lines.

The profits of one line may be eaten up by another which is consistently losing money. Without accurate information it is impossible to determine where the trouble lies and, consequently, the dealer is unable to take measures to eliminate the loss, either by improving his merchandising policy or by discontinuing the line which is not proving profitable.

A Case in Point

The case of a certain dealer which came to the attention of the writer a short time ago excellently illustrates this point. This merchant operated a fine, large establishment in a prosperous section of a large city not very far distant from New York. His talking machine and record business was doing well, but one day he conceived the idea of installing a line of cameras and accessories and for this purpose he spent considerable money in purchasing a special showcase and wall cases for a fair-sized stock of photographic necessities. He spent very close to a thousand dollars for stock and fixtures. His main object in selecting cameras was to bring people into his store to get acquainted with him and the fine line of talking machines he handled. According to his own statement he made no effort to determine what it was costing him to run this department. Where this dealer made his first mistake was in selecting a line entirely foreign to the music business. His second mistake was in overlooking the fact that just around the corner was a store which specialized in cameras, printing and developing, which had an established reputation and was getting practically all of the trade in that line in that neighborhood. His third, and perhaps worst, mistake was in not keeping an accurate check on the cost of operation of this new venture. As a matter of fact, when this last failure was brought home to him he realized that he was spending a good bit of money for something which was bringing him practically no return—this money might better have been spent in some good advertising.

It often has been emphasized that quick stock turnover and a fair margin of profit are the two essentials of success, but if the dealer does not know what it is costing him to sell his goods he has no means of fixing a fair price.

How One Dealer Does It

A large and successful talking machine establishment, which has a number of lines, keeps separate accounts for each, and every month the profit and loss statement is drawn up by the auditor as follows: The gross sales are first determined. From this are deducted, in the case of talking machines, the loss on returns, allowances and discounts, if there are any. Then the cost of goods sold is deducted, giving the gross profits. From the gross profits are deducted the cost of advertising, rent for the space occupied (if one-third of the entire floor space is occupied one-third of the rent is charged), salaries (this includes salesmen, canvassers, collectors, bookkeeping, etc.), freight and cartage, light, heat, phone, etc., giving the net profits. If interest is charged on sales or any other income is derived from other sources this is placed under the head of miscellaneous income and added to the monthly net profits, giving the total net profits of the talking machine section of the business. This is a very simple system and one which can safely be used for every line or department of the store, thus giving the dealer at all times a clear idea of just how he stands. Where several lines are handled the net profit of each department must be added to determine total net profit.

Now that the Victor Company has double-faced their Red Seal records and at the same time greatly reduced their price, it will, no doubt, create a greater interest from those who formerly confined their purchases to the popular releases. It is an opportune time for dealers to make a special effort to interest their customers in this higher standard of music rendered by the celebrated artists that record exclusively on the Victor Red Seal discs. Supplementary to our regular weekly service featuring one popular record each week, we have issued a series of fourteen panels of Red Seal artists (portraits drawn from photographs) four of which we illustrate. Reawakening Public Interest in Records

More Intensive Merchandising Methods Necessary to Get Full Benefit of More Frequent Releases of Records, Says L. H. Holt

The practice that has now become general of releasing records at weekly intervals or even oftener presents many new angles for the consideration of both manufacturers and dealers and calls for a general rearrangement of distributing methods in order to take full advantage of the new opportunities and conditions.

The present system of release necessarily means that many former production, selling and promotion plans and strategies must be, and to a large extent have already been, relegated to history. Around the new system of what we may term "ready release" new plans of manufacturing and merchandising have naturally been created. While a good deal of this work has already been done by the manufacturers, and to a certain extent by distributing interests, the process has by no means been completed in that many refinements will come through actual experience.

In the first place, the weekly, or even daily, release of new records, as compared to the system of monthly releases which existed so long, is a natural development of the desire for, and necessity of, capitalizing on the popular hits before they have reached the peak of success and of not delaying until that peak is passed. Experience proves that the first record issued of a new popular number corralled a heavy percentage of the demand for that number, and the natural development was to arrange for the release of all new records as soon as possible. There was a twofold reason for this. First, the force of competition, and, secondly, the idea of securing an increased volume of public patronage.

In conjunction with the new plans to release records at short intervals, most of the manufacturers are producing supplements and other publicity and sales material designed to capitalize on the reawakened public interest with the utmost completeness. These supplements and bulletins compare most favorably with those in effect when monthly releases were the vogue, and they describe each release in an illuminative, newsy and effective style. The most important thing for the dealer to do, therefore, is to see that these supplements and other publicity matter go into the hands of his customers and prospects with a minimum of delay.

Mailing the Bulletins

There has been much discussion relating to the mailing of record bulletins. This discussion has centered mainly on whether or not to include form letters, whether the letters should be filled in, what kind of envelopes the bulletins should be mailed in, etc.

After checking up the methods pursued by a large number of retail merchants handling various makes of records, the writer has concluded that the best system is to mail the bulletins out without any letter or any other enclosure of any sort. In the first place, this is the cheapest method, and, in the second place, it necessarily concentrates attention on the newsiest part of the dealer's message—namely, the new records themselves. In the third place, the bulletins supplied by the manufacturers are generally of a higher grade in so far as paper, printing, illustrations, typography, etc., are concerned than the literature produced by the local retailer. Consequently, unless a good deal of money is spent on the matter sent out with the bulletin by the dealer—and this additional matter obviously adds distraction—the impression on the recipient will not be uniformly good.

Finally, as regards the envelopes, on account of the fact that the bulletins relating to current releases are so small in comparison with the former monthly bulletins, they can be readily enclosed in the ordinary envelope of the dealer, although special envelopes which permit flat mailing are probably more desirable.

The Factor of Economy

The work incident to the mailings of the type recommended above is as follows: In the first place, the list of customers and prospects should be stenciled so that mailings may be made promptly and at a minimum of expense. In the second place, the list should be constantly edited so that the deadwood may be cut out and new names constantly added. Provision must also be made for the placing of the dealer's name and address on each bulletin mailed out. This should preferably be done by printing, but where there will be too much delay in time and the cost also is thought too high these should be done by plain embossing. Machines for this purpose can be procured at a cost of but a few dollars and the effect is infinitely superior to that of rubber stamps, which are generally blurred and offset.

Persistence Is Necessary

The foregoing discussion pertains to an individual mailing, but it must be clear that if a prompt clearing of the information about new releases is important for one day or one week, it is just as important for every other day and every other week in the year. A trip through a daily newspaper plant should afford inspiration of the right sort.

In other words, the newsier the news is, the more important are the results to be secured by conveying it to the dealer's customers. Therefore, in view of the present system of release, every dealer should plan to immediately clear each and every release along lines similar to those suggested above. Promptness and consistency should be the watch words of the retail industry.

Coincident with the new plan of record release, there are many other things which require attention, although, as has been stated, the matter of bringing the news to the public by direct mail through bulletins is the first and most important thing for the dealer to do.

Educating the Public to Visit the Store

The next important thing to do is to everlastingly foster a habit on the part of the public to continually visit the store in order to hear and learn more about the new records. Hitherto the practice has been to educate the public to come in only once a month, but now there is occasion for a constant procession of visitors and that habit should be aided and abetted in every possible way. Posters and bulletins in the store, the conversation of the sales organization, the window display and many other avenues should be continuously employed to build the line of visitors into ever larger proportions. Also this new development in record release means that record demonstration booths of a comfortable and acoustically correct character are more important to the dealer's success than ever. It also means that as the number of visitors is increased the facilities for their reception should be steadily increased.

Again, there is the proposition of newspaper advertising. This, of course, in the case of many dealers cannot be done on an extensive scale. At the same time every dealer should make some effort to call the attention of the public to the new records and should be continually inviting the public, through the medium of the newspapers, signboards and other advertising media, to come in and hear the new records.

There are, of course, many other angles to this record selling problem, but the most important ones have been touched on in this article. A more comprehensive analysis will be possible after the table of trade experience has grown more extensive, but meanwhile it is highly important that every retail talking machine dealer fully appreciate the tremendous opportunity that the new system of record release offers to keep his business and his products constantly before the public and in an extremely newsy and, therefore, influential way.

The new system of releasing records undoubtedly requires a type of enterprise which is redundant with the spirit of that old adage about the early bird and the worm. In other words, quick action is the keynote.

Timely Holiday Business Building Stunts

W. B. Stoddard Tells of Some Clever and Successful Publicity Ideas Which Any Talking Machine Dealer Can Use to Advantage

Now is the time when dealers should plan their holiday campaigns in the way of window displays or newspaper advertising, for any stunts they wish to pull off should be made the first of December, immediately following the withdrawal of the Thanksgiving displays. Indeed, the campaign should be under way before the first of December, particularly if the dealer wishes to interest patrons in a Christmas Club. Many who would like to buy a talking machine do not feel that they can afford the outlay at one time, and if convenient payments are stressed, the holiday sales will be greatly increased. A St. Louis firm advertised early in November:

SAVE YOUR DIMES AND BUY XMAS GIFTS
JOIN THE XMAS CLUB THIS WEEK

When the holidays arrive you will have money for a worth-while gift. This is the plan: Lay aside $1 the first week; $2 the second; $3 the third; $2 the fourth, and $1 the fifth. When the holidays arrive you will have $9, which will be the first payment on

A HANDSOME PHONOGRAPH
If you do this there will be no choosing a gift in a crowded store, and no frantic wondering as to where the money is to come from for purchasing a gift.

A card with a similar advertisement in large letters was placed in the window, together with three different models of phonographs from which to choose.

How a Columbus Dealer Puts It Over

Another trade-inducing stunt was that of the Christmas Shopping Bell, which was introduced with much success last year by a firm in Columbus, O. During the latter half of November they ran in the papers the outline of a big bell, within which was the announcement:

CHRISTMAS BELL DAY

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!
Official Christmas Bell Day, December First.
The glad tidings bell will ring in two weeks.
(This was changed to "ten days," "a week," etc., as the date drew near.)
On this date commences the Christmas Sales Campaign on Phonographs.
Save now for enjoyment all the year around.
Keep close watch on our windows for the opening day.

Upon the day in question the windows and doors were wreathed with ropes of evergreen and festoons of it were draped the entire length of the interior. Mingled with this were sprays of holly and mistletoe, presenting a very festive appearance. In the window were set a number of phonographs on a floor covered with cotton wadding sprinkled with diamond dust, while on the cabinets were laid sprays of holly and mistletoe also powdered as if with snow. A card beside each machine announced the special Christmas sale price at which the machines would be sold. But the chief novelty of the sale, which compelled the attention of everyone who passed, was a gong that sounded automatically every half minute. This was placed over the door, and its insistent clang rose above the noises of the street, and informed even the most careless and preoccupied that something unusual was transpiring.

Novel Stunt in Having Literature Read

At this season of the year it is advisable to send out literature on the subject of phonographs supplied by the manufacturers. But sending it out and getting it read are two different things. A dealer in St. Paul hit upon a novel plan for securing attention to his circulars. He had received what he considered a very good proposition for a special sale of talking machines and was anxious that it be placed before responsible parties. Accordingly a number of these circulars were enclosed in envelopes, and mailed to a selected list of prospects. The envelope bore the name of the firm and the signature of the president, while in heavy type was printed "My personal check payable to you is enclosed herein." Naturally, every circular was opened, and therein was found a check for 10 cents, payable to bearer on demand. The short letter explained that the check was in payment for the time spent in glancing at the circular, and went on to suggest that a phonograph, of the kind mentioned in the circular, would make an excellent Christmas gift. "The interesting feature of the stunt," said the manager, "was that a very small percentage of the checks were cashed, most of the recipients seeming to prefer to keep them as a curiosity. The novelty of our method, however, caused them to read our circular, as they figured it must be worth while if we were willing to pay them actual cash for so doing. As a result of this little letter we had numerous telephone calls and visits, and a considerable number of the instruments we were advertising were sold through them."

Value of a Smiling Service

At this season of the year smiling service counts for much, and a dealer in Portland, Ore., had capitalized this thought to good advantage. Stamped on his stationery and emblazoned on cards is his guarantee:

TO MY PATRONS

My custom and policy is to see that every patron is pleased. It is impossible to serve you all personally, but I have tried to select salesmen who will give you the very best of service at all times. If at any time you should receive discourteous treatment or are dissatisfied with a sale, I would consider it a special favor if you would call at my office and allow me to make amends.

He has capitalized his smile, for many of his ads are adorned with a cut of his countenance—a face lighted up with a pleasant smile that inspires confidence in the man and his methods. One of his most effective modes of advertising is by street-car signs, using his slogan, "Service with a smile," his photo and at the bottom "Sandy's not nervous, so gives you good service." His ads, too, are highly original, and in addition to their humor always have a basis of sound common sense. For example, a one-column, six-inch ad, with plenty of white space, was in the form of a little narrative:

"A sweet young thing of sixteen came into our music store recently and inquired of our particular Adonis 'Have you 'A Heart That Beats for Me,' and he promptly fainted.

"Once in a while, of course, a customer will ask for a record we do not have, but he's got to go some to do it this season, as we have the biggest and classiest line of records in the city. Ask to hear some demonstrated."

Profiteering Price Cutter Is a Trade Pirate

The Hon. Clyde M. Kelly, Representative From Pennsylvania, Likens Price Cutter to a Spider Waiting for Unwary Fly—Declares Him Trade Demoralizer and Business Killer

"The profiteering price cutter who takes a standard, identified, widely wanted article and reduces the standard price in order to deceive the unwary customer is a trade pirate," says Clyde Kelly, of Kelly-Stephens bill fame. "He is a spider luring the puzzled customer into his web. He is not a public benefactor, he is a public malefactor. His predatory plan is to fool the purchaser by giving him a few cents on one transaction so that he may rob him of dollars on others. He is a price cutter in order to be a profiteer. He gives twenty-five buyers a bargain on known goods so that he may overcharge 500 customers on unknown goods. He piles up profits for his department store or mail-order house by the tactics of the green goods man and advertising faker and the deceived public foots the bill. His success, built on unfair methods, means higher price and lower quality on all goods. In the beginning he robs the consumer by fraud and later devours him by extortion.

"The profiteering price cutter ruins the reputation of high-grade goods and destroys the goodwill of the makers, thus stealing both purse and good name in one operation. He advertises standard goods at a loss and then seeks to persuade the public to accept substitutes on which he makes money. He demoralizes the price and the product. He forces other dealers to follow his lead or refuse to handle the article. He restricts sales and lessens distribution. His unfair practices leave the manufacturer helpless to protect his business, into which he has put his name, his labor and his money.

"The profiteering price cutter drives the small distributor to the wall by the worst form of illegitimate competition. He destroys competition by the very practices the anti-trust laws were intended to prevent. He is the cut-throat competitor who is everywhere and always the forerunner of monopoly. He is a restrainer of trade and a lessener of competition. He robs the neighborhood of their corner stores, which can give best service under fair competition. He shouts for a free market where, in a jungle war, his unscrupulous tactics may give him a stranglehold on business.

"The profiteering price cutter helps to weaken the honesty and morality of American business. He seizes any straw, however flimsy, to free himself from moral and legal obligations to fulfill contracts and obligations. He breaks down

HAWLEY ON EDISON ACHIEVEMENTS

General Manager of Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia, Speaks Before Kiwanis Club, of Trenton, N. J., and Gets Fine Reception

"The Life of Thomas A. Edison and His Favorite Invention" was the subject of an address made by P. R. Hawley, general manager of the Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia Edison distributor, before the Kiwanis Club, of Trenton, N. J., on October 17, by arrangement with the Hurley-Tobin Co., Edison dealer in that city.

Mr. Hawley was the principal speaker at the regular weekly luncheon on that day at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, and provided the members of the club with some exceedingly interesting facts relating to the development of the phonograph as well as numerous other of Mr. Edison's inventions.

In summing up his address Mr. Hawley described some of the powerful influences which music has over the mind and predicted that the phonograph would some day become more than a means of entertainment. He said that even now experiments are being conducted at the Edison Laboratories for the purpose of cataloging the influences which different kinds of music have over the average mind and for putting the results to practical use.

Joseph Tobin, of the Hurley-Tobin Co., was elated with the impression which Mr. Hawley's address made upon the club and stated that he felt it an inspiration for renewed effort in promoting Edison business in and around Trenton.

The Boot Music Co., of Denver, Col., recently added the Brunswick line of machines and records. The concern also handles the Victor talking machines and records.

the one-price-to-all system, which is an inseparable companion to honesty. He is the author of many degrading tendencies in business. His spirit of disregard of fair play is encouragement to every cheat in business. He helps rot the fabric of American commerce. He breeds the tax dodger and the canceler of honest contracts and the men who cheat but keep within the law. He encourages 'gentlemen's agreements.' He is an enemy to the public good and he must go."

PLANS NEW STORE FOR JAMESTOWN

Danielson's Music House to Reopen at Former Location on North Main Street

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., November 3.—Danielson's Music House, located at 17-19 East Third street, where the Lauter, A. B. Chase, Mehlin, Packard and Cable-Nelson pianos and Victor talking machines are handled, has arranged to open a new store at his old location, 17 North Main street, which was burned down some time ago. A new fireproof building has replaced the burned structure and the music house will occupy the ground floor, which will be fitted up in a modern manner. At the Third street store twelve booths are available for demonstrating records and rolls.

MUSIC HOUSE BUYS SITE

KLAMATH FALLS, ORE., October 30.—A building plot on Main street, near the Elks' Temple, has just been purchased by the Earl Shepherd Music Co., with a view to erecting a new structure here in the near future. The lot will afford thirty-three feet of frontage by 120 feet in depth. The Shepherd family, which has been engaged in the music business exclusively for fifty-seven years, carries the agency for the Knabe, Gulbransen and other pianos. The Victor and Sonora lines are also handled.

Gentlemen:

Replying to your inquiry regarding Audak equipments purchased from you will say that we are now using nine of these equipments and expect to add additional ones in the near future.

Having formerly operated a Music Shop in Kansas City, using conventional booths, I was at first dubious as to just how customers would take to the Audak idea, but I am very glad to say that we have had no complaints from customers, and several of them have told me that they much prefer the quick convenient service afforded by Audaks rather than be put in a stuffy, unsanitary booth.

As you know, our salesroom is rather small, 12 X 20 feet, and Audaks actually give us a nine booth capacity.

There is no question but that in this era of high rents Audak equipments solve the problem of doing a profitable record business.

Yours very truly,

Local Musical Events Open Way to Sales

Talking Machine Dealers Must Actively Co-operate in the Musical Events of Their Communities in Order to Reap Resulting Profits

A limited number of talking machine dealers in various localities have for some time past been making an effective tie-up with musical organizations and artists in their localities through acting in a sense as booking agents. In some cases the dealers have brought to their towns and underwritten the concerts of prominent recording orchestras and artists and have their reward always in the publicity accruing from the concert and most generally from the dollars and cents profits realized through their endeavors.

Up to this time the work of such dealers has been largely along lines of exploitation and designed to center public interest on talking machine artists and stimulate record sales rather than to make the store a recognized center for musical activities. The new departure is to have the dealers constitute themselves booking representatives for various recording organizations and artists, for the convenience of customers and others in their localities who plan to hold recitals, dances, etc., for various purposes, and seek suitable music for the occasion.

Members of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., New York, have arranged to carry on this work in a large way in co-operation with the central booking offices controlling well-known orchestras and artists. In this connection the idea is not so much the direct exploitation of records and artists of any particular company as it is the matter of impressing the public with the fact that the neighborhood talking machine dealer is in a position to provide musical entertainment of every character rather than simply talking machines and records.

The talking machine store in any community which is not linked closely with local music and concert activities is missing what is perhaps its strongest and closest point of contact with the class that are the best type of prospects for the merchandise it sells. This has been proved time and again by the experiences of some of the leading houses in the retail music trade. It is impossible to mention very many names of merchants who have not consistently pursued this policy as one of the funda-mentals of their selling methods. The experience of years has taught these concerns the helpful results, at comparatively small expenditure, that are obtained from this policy.

Merely mentioned as an incident, but a striking one nevertheless, is the statement that the Dreher Piano Co., of Cleveland, which handles large numbers of talking machines, expects, through linking its establishment closely with one of the local concert courses in that city, to draw approximately 200,000 people to its store between now and the end of the musical season. Is there any other method which could place that number of people already interested in music in contact with the warerooms at a lower investment?

According to present prospects, the musical season just opened will be one of the greatest which the country has ever experienced. This, of course, is something that is annually said, but this year there is a far more accurate basis for the statement than is usually the case. The work which has been consistently done in arousing popular interest in music has at last reached a cumulative stage where its results are direct and apparent. It is not meant by this that they come to the merchant's ware-rooms without effort upon his part; but it is meant that the popular state of mind is such that it responds readily and directly to exploitation work which takes into consideration the present-day psychology and uses that as a guide.

There should not be a city in the country in which local concerts or recitals are held wherein the music merchants do not play a prominent part in their promotion and support. They should do more than merely lend their support financially; they should use their own personal efforts and be active, individually or collectively, in this work. It may be frankly said that there is nothing philanthropic in it nor is it simply a contribution to community betterment, no matter how great the results may be in this direction. It is one of those rare instances where self-interest and public interest are in the same channel.

It is trite to say that the basis of all sales of musical instruments is music. But it is a truism that cannot be repeated often enough, and one which can never be driven home forcibly enough to the talking machine or general music merchant and to the salesman who come in contact with his prospective customers. Any sales plan which in the long run disregards this fundamental fact is false in its relation to the problem that confronts the dealer. And this falsity is expensive in that the overhead cost represented therein cannot bring its due proportion of results when disregarding it.

There is another angle to this entire situation which should not be disregarded. Musical activities in any community work directly to the benefit of all music merchants who draw sales from the people within the radius of their influence. Therefore, no music merchant can afford to disregard, or to be deficient in support of these events, no matter what instruments may be used or featured.

If the merchant handling talking machines or musical instruments of any kind fails to link his establishment as closely as possible with the musical people and the musical events of his community he is invariably failing to take advantage of what is probably his one best selling approach. And there is no dealer, no matter how great his volume of business may be, who can afford to be so indifferent.

HUMES MUSIC CO. IN ITS NEW HOME

Well-known Southern Music Company Stages Formal Opening of Building Remodeled at Cost of $150,000—Thousands of Visitors

COLUMBUS, GA., November 3.—The Humes Music Co. held a formal opening of its handsome new music store at 1122 Broad street last month, when several thousand citizens took the opportunity of inspecting the new quarters of the company, and in some cases placing orders for musical goods. The opening was made the occasion of a three-page story in one of the local newspapers in which the advertisements of the Humes Co. and of the various concerns whose products it handles occupied prominent space. The text told something of the history of the company and of its wonderful progress.

The building into which the Humes Co. has just moved was purchased by the company some time ago and remodeled throughout to meet the particular demands of the business, the cost of the building and improvements being in the neighborhood of $150,000. The first floor has its front arranged to represent an imposing lobby, which may be viewed from the street through plateglass windows extending to the floor. On this floor are located the small goods, Victor record and music roll departments, and here is also displayed a full line of Victrolas, with the main display on the mezzanine floor.

The second floor is devoted to a magnificent display of pianos and on the third floor is a spacious recital hall.

In addition to hundreds of interested local visitors who flocked to the store the following out-of-town guests were present: Maurice O. Beckham, special Ampico representative of the American Piano Co., New York City; A.

R. Boone and Irving Bimstein, of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Elyea and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gordy, H. G. Ray and M. E. Lyle, of Atlanta; D. S. Pruitt, of the Victor Co., Camden, N. J.; French Nestor and Earl Dahlberg, of Jacksonville, Fla.

The equipment in this beautiful establishment was installed by the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., and it represents the most modern thought in interior fittings.

The Humes Music Co. was organized by J. E. Humes, president of the company, in 1908, with quarters at 1127 Broad street. In 1914 it was found necessary for the company to seek larger quarters and it was necessary to move again in 1918. It is believed that the present building will meet the requirements of the company for some years to come.

How Prof. Mohler's Lectures to School Teachers at Columbia College on Cultivation of Musical Taste and Appreciation Help

Louis H. Mohler, a well-known authority in the educational world, has been conducting at the Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York, regular classes of grade teachers and music supervisors on the subject of "How to most successfully cultivate the taste for and appreciation of good music among school children." The subject matter of these lessons, as developed by Mr. Mohler, comprises specially selected records from the Columbia catalog. These selections are taken from the symphony list of records and the Columbia library of educational records. The teachers go out to the schools in the country and practice Mr. Mohler's methods with great success. To make it possible for teachers to follow his method after attending his classes and even without attending, Mr. Mohler has compiled a very thorough outline of his course, listing appropriate records and explaining methods of instruction.

Radio Opportunities in the Rural Sections

Survey of the Farming Districts Made for the Radio Corp. of America Indicates That Rural Dwellers Will Represent an Important Part of the Retail Radio Sales Field

That the farmer is ready for radio is evidenced by the results of a thorough survey of the farm field recently made by the Thos. F. Logan Advertising Agency in behalf of the Radio Corp. of America. In its detailed report regarding this survey the agency commented in part as follows:

"Almost from the beginning the ultimate market for radio in the farm field had been fully understood by men of vision in the industry. However, the question had constantly recurred: 'Is the farmer ready; is the art sufficiently advanced, and is the way prepared for the full use of radio by the farmer and his family as a medium of entertainment, education and as a part of the business equipment of the farm?'"

"It was important to answer this question conclusively so as to avoid untimely or premature activity such as would create a bad reaction against radio.

"The fact that the farm survey now in the hands of the Radio Corp. of America gives an affirmative and constructive answer to this question is one of interest and importance to rural merchants as indicating that before long a large volume of radio merchandising will be moving into the hands of the farm family.

"Practically every section of the country is now covered by one or more broadcasting stations. With nearly 600 stations now operating, no farmer need go without his nightly radio entertainment. And who, more than the farmer, has greater need for such entertainment and the other information that is broadcast? Yet, despite the stories we hear and the pictures we see, radio has meant very little or nothing to the tillers of the soil. Only isolated instances have been cited.

"The ideal receiving sets for farmers are the single-tube set for distances up to fifty miles from the broadcasting station, two-tube receivers for distances up to 100 miles or more. It is well to note in this connection that these ranges are quite arbitrary. The range of a given set is dependent upon many variable factors which can only be determined by actual experience. Thus a receiver rated at fifty miles may under favorable conditions reach out to 1,000 miles or even more. Conversely the same receiver may, during the Summer season, cover but twenty-five miles. These sets are all well within the range of the farmer's purse. The receivers produced to-day by reliable manufacturers are dependable and efficient in every way. They require no engineering knowledge whatever, no tiresome 'fussing around,' in fact, they require no more mechanical ability to operate than the talking machine. The harvester, the threshing machine and even the automobile are infinitely more difficult to operate. And what farmer has not shown himself adept in the manipulation of one or all of these farm machines?"

"The best way to sell to the farmer is to call on him personally at his home and give actual demonstrations. This immediately prevents him from putting off the purchase until he 'goes to town.' It is also an excellent idea to leave the set for a short while on trial. The farmer's greatest need right now is an introduction to the delights of radio reception. Once he has had an opportunity to listen to music, lectures, sermons, sports, weather reports, market quotations and the hundred and one other interesting subjects that fill the air, he will be very reluctant to give back the set. Often he will buy a better and more powerful set than the one left on trial.

"In selling the farmer, as in selling anyone else, the best sales talk centers around the one word 'entertainment.' Next in importance are 'ease, simplicity and comfort in operation.' The less that is said about amplification, audio-frequency and regeneration the better. The farmer is not frightened by these terms. Worse than that, he is annoyed. The talking machine salesman does not worry his prospect with springs, moment of force, compensator and the like. He sells the delightful idea of sitting back in a rocking chair and listening to the world's greatest artists. He shows the radio dealer how to sell radio sets.

"The Radio Corp. of America has planned a vigorous campaign of introduction in the farm papers for the Fall and Winter of 1923-24. The list includes regular insertions in such papers as: The Country Gentleman, Successful Farming, Farm Journal and Capper's Farmer."

The Imfeld Music Store Co., operating talking machine stores in Hamilton and Oxford, O., recently added the Brunswick line of machines and records, which it will feature in addition to the Victor line.

Popular Priced Records a Dominant Factor

Progressive phonograph dealers are installing Popular Priced Record Departments in their stores in order that they may avail themselves of the profits such a department represents, rather than to continue to permit a sale of such large volume to be diverted to other channels.

It Is Time for All Dealers to Face the Issue Squarely

The popular priced record is an established department of the phonograph industry today. Every day a dealer puts off adding such a department to his store he is eliminating about fifty percent of the record profits that normally belong to him. The phonograph dealer with a store of high standing and a clientele of discriminating buyers will select a Popular Priced Record of outstanding quality, with a sales policy back of it that will protect him against undesirable competition, cut prices, and unsatisfactory service.

Emerson Records at Fifty Cents Retail

The new Emerson Record is one of unsurpassed merit, stable in price, sold on a policy in harmony with the best traditions of the phonograph industry. Send for samples of the new Emerson Record, and know its merits musically and artistically. With the samples we will send you a copy of the policy under which the Emerson Record is sold. Of course, the profit is the same as on any other standard record.

NEW BUSINESS FROM OLD CUSTOMERS

Salesmen Who Neglect Former Patrons Are Ignoring Valuable Opportunity of Getting Line on Friends Who May Be in the Market

Old customers offer an opportunity for new business which the salesman might well take advantage of. In the majority of instances after the sale has been made the salesman who closed the deal forgets all about the customer, turning to new fields for business when he might further cultivate the friendship of the person who has already shown preference for the line which he represents and who, if thoroughly sold on the original purchase, should prove a prolific source of new prospects.

There is nothing original in the thought expressed above, perhaps, but it is timely and, therefore, worthy of consideration. One salesman whose annual business volume is far greater than that of his fellow workers, declares that a large proportion of his new business comes through the recommendation of former customers who have been pleased with their purchases. In order that the people to whom he makes sales get the most out of their purchases this salesman drops into their homes whenever he happens to be in the vicinity, his ostensible object being to see if the instrument is working properly and giving thorough satisfaction. If he finds that this is not the case he ascertains the reason. In many instances he has found machines are in need of minor adjustments and these he makes on the spot. Also, if there are any other differences or misunderstandings, he sees to it that they are straightened out, thereby impressing on the patron's mind the fact that his firm is extending service of a high order to its customers. Of course, while he is in the home of a customer he injects the question as to whether there are any friends who might be interested in a talking machine. Many times the customer thinks of some friend who might be persuaded to invest in an instrument. The recommendation thus secured affords the salesman easy entrance into the homes of live prospects, and the very fact that the line he sells has been giving satisfaction immediately removes a big doubt in the mind of the prospect as to whether this particular make of machine will give returns commensurate with the money spent and, consequently, an important obstacle to a sale is removed, making the work of the salesman easier and much more effective.

Those salesmen who forget a customer as soon as the name has been placed on the dotted line will do well to ponder these few paragraphs and then give this method of securing prospects and making sales a thorough tryout. Of course, it is not necessary for a salesman to go out of his way to visit customers, but it is worth while to drop in when he is in the immediate neighborhood of a former patron.

TALKS TO WORLD VIA RADIO

On October 17 M. Millerand, president of the French Republic, addressed the world via St. Assise radio station, near Paris. The International News Service carried the message in full, and it was broadcast by stations in the United States and other countries. Vessels on the Atlantic and Pacific received the message via the Radio Corp.'s marine centers. This was the first time in history that a French President addressed the world by radio.

EDISON EXTOLS THE SIMPLE MELODY

Interesting Remarks Follow a Talk With Bandmaster Sousa on Music in America

When Thomas A. Edison and John Philip Sousa were brought together some time ago by Theo. Presser, of Philadelphia, the great bandmaster naturally complimented the famous inventor on his achievements and pointed out that, thanks to his genius, the great instrumentalists, singers and conductors can now be heard in the humblest homes.

Mr. Edison, in reply, deplored the fact that so few really cared to hear the great artists. "The public as a whole is very elementary, very primitive in its tastes. . . . A few people like the most advanced music—very, very few. The Debussy fanatic thinks that because he likes Debussy there must, of course, be thousands and thousands who do. He would be amazed if he knew on what a little musical island he is standing. You could hardly see it on the great musical map of the world. All the world wants music; but it does not want Debussy; nor does it want complicated operatic arias. I know at my own expense. Sometimes out of four thousand records advertised all up and down the land, some made by men and women of very great reputation, the public deliberately selects for its own some simple, heartfelt melody sung by some comparatively unknown singer, and demands this in such quantities that we have a hard time manufacturing enough."

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. STEINFELD

Samuel Steinfield, president and treasurer of the Claremont Waste Mfg. Co., Claremont, N. H., manufacturer of cotton flocks, was married on October 23 to Miss Jane Goldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Goldman, of Brookline, Mass. Mrs. Steinfield is well known in musical circles throughout New England, and has a host of friends in the musical world. Mr. and Mrs. Steinfield are now away on a honeymoon, and will be at home at Claremont, N. H., after December 1.

Musical Sidelines as Stimulators of Trade

How Sidelines Can Be Made a Source of Increased Revenue and Some Important Problems Involved in Efficient Merchandising

Talking machine dealers are turning more and more to musical sidelines to increase their profits and to stimulate sales generally. Small musical instruments, radio, sheet music and music rolls are all receiving their share of attention. For the most part the dealers are working on the principle that anything that brings people into the store, provided it does not require a too large investment and is a ready seller and must be worth handling. Experience is bearing out these theories.

Sidelines Require Attention

The talking machine dealer, however, who installs a sideline and expects sales to drop into his lap is badly mistaken. The same principles of business management apply to the handling of a sideline that affect the general business. That is, the dealer must use the same intelligence and energy in bringing his sideline to the attention of the public that he uses to push the sale of talking machines and records. This means advertising and other forms of publicity, as well as real constructive sales promotion work. It is very true that a sideline, especially a musical product, will enable the talking machine dealer to enlarge his sales scope and thus increase his profits, but this holds good only when the dealer takes the trouble to get behind his product.

Some retailers are turning to sidelines foreign to the music field and generally this policy is not as good as sticking to the music business. This is so for a number of reasons, chief among which are that he is familiar with the merchandising of music; he has his musical prospects lined up and his whole business structure has been built for the specific purpose of selling musical instruments. He knows from past experience how to approach his prospects and what results he may logically expect, whereas if he installs a line which bears no relation to the musical instrument business, after having established his reputation, he is placed in a position where he finds it necessary to learn to merchandise something with which he is entirely unfamiliar.

How Sidelines Help General Business

Another angle of the sideline proposition is that very often a product closely allied with the main business will have the effect of helping the sales of the main line handled. One of a number of enterprising dealers who have found this so is the Elizabeth Phonograph Shop, Inc., Elizabeth, N. J., which, in addition to a complete line of talking machines and records, handles music rolls, sheet music and musical merchandise. S. Brandes, proprietor of this establishment, in discussing the effect of the sideline on the sales of the main line, declared that in many instances people come into the store to purchase sheet music or music rolls and remain to hear and purchase talking machine records. "No dealer can expect to make a success of the sideline unless he gives the same intelligent thought to merchandising it that he does to his main business, whatever that may be," said Mr. Brandes. "We advertise and make every effort to impress upon the people in this vicinity that we handle sheet music and musical merchandise. Another thing I have found is that customers to whom I have sold talking machines, records or sheet music furnish an excellent prospect list to use when digging for musical merchandise business. These lines interlock to a certain extent. They all pertain to music and it has been my experience that when there is one type of musical instrument in a home there is an excellent opportunity of making sales of other instruments of a different character. Just as the talking machine customer is a good prospect for musical merchandise, just so is the owner of a band or stringed instrument a good prospect for a talking machine, and this rule also applies to owners of pianos, etc. As I said, however, success depends largely upon the dealer himself."

Getting People Into the Store

Anything that brings people into the store is bound to help general business and that is one of the main objects of handling a sideline. Of course, if the dealer loses money by installing additional lines, he must take some drastic action, either placing the sideline on a profitable basis or, if necessary, discontinue handling it altogether. It is a foolish practice to spend money for fixtures and stock in the hope of bringing a few people into the store if there is no profit in the transaction. It would be much better to spend the money in boosting the sale of talking machines and records. However, there is some real profit in the musical sideline and, as Mr. Brandes so aptly puts it, "Success depends largely upon the dealer himself."

Alterations to the building housing the A. L. Arvidson Piano Co. business in Denver, Col., will soon be completed and the concern is getting ready for an intensive sales drive on pianos and talking machines, after a period of forced inactivity. The renovated warerooms will be the equal of any here in point of attractiveness.

How a Live Dealer Sold Over 1200 Machines

People Visiting Weil Bros. Furniture House Must Pass Through Attractive Talking Machine Department—Cater to Foreigners—Overcome Keen Competition—Investigation Before Delivery

It is always as interesting as it is helpful to know "how the other fellow does it"—how talking machines and records are merchandised at retail in a manner to increase sales to customers, particularly in a locality where the large majority of residents are of small means. Disposing of more than twelve hundred talking machines in less than two years is the record of Weil Bros., who conduct a department for the sale of talking machines in conjunction with their furniture business on Third avenue, New York City.

To get an idea of the problems which this concern has had to meet one must know something about the neighborhood in which the store is located. The entire district is devoted to tenement houses, in which live many foreigners, including German, Swedish, Polish, Italians, etc. Also in that neighborhood are a great many cut-price stores and one of the greatest problems has been to meet this competition and at the same time to conduct business on a legitimate basis.

As has been mentioned, advertising has been the chief means of bringing people into the store, although the fact that the concern handles furniture has been instrumental in bringing many patrons into the warerooms of this concern. The talking machine department is on the main floor, occupying considerably more than half the entire floor space and, consequently, all customers find it necessary to pass long lines of beautiful Victor and Sonora instruments before they reach the elevator which takes them to the furniture department. The talking machine department itself is one of the handsomest and most spacious in the immediate district. There are nine booths, installed by the Unit Construction Co., as well as cases for the display of small musical instruments and talking machine accessories. Ten thousand records are carried in stock at all times.

Although such a large number of machines have been sold in the two years in which this department has existed repossessions are almost unknown, due to the fact that various inducements are given to the customers to make their payments promptly and to pay for the machine as quickly as possible. For example, each customer is advised that if the instrument purchased is paid for in from six to nine months the interest charge will be deducted. Every effort is made to keep the accounts of customers up to date and, wherever possible, weekly payments are stipulated in the contract. In most cases, also, an endeavor is made to have customers come to the store to make their payments, although where this is impossible collectors are sent out at regular intervals.

The surprising lack of repossessions is partly due to the rigid system of investigation which is pursued before the instrument is delivered, according to S. B. Simms, manager of the talking machine department, who, by the way, is a live wire of wide experience in the talking machine field. When a deal has been closed with a customer the contract is turned over to the credit department. When references are given these are quickly checked up and when investigation discloses the fact that the customer has lived in one house or apartment for a number of years and is in good standing with the landlord and dealers in the immediate vicinity the instrument is delivered without further investigation.

GETTING THE RECORD LIST TO BUYER

The advertising department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced recently that beginning with the January issue of the Columbia record supplement there would be introduced a radical departure in the mailing of these supplements. Instead of using the usual supplement envelope, the supplement itself will be neatly addressed and stamped on the back cover, thereby enabling the recipient of the supplement to thoroughly appreciate the fine art work that characterizes the supplement cover. Columbia advertising executives believe that an envelope, no matter how attractive, stands an excellent chance of taking the shortest route from the mail box to the waste basket without ever being opened, but the presentation of a supplement addressed directly on its cover is calculated to give it maximum value as an attention getter.

SUGGESTS SPECIAL SALES DRIVE

Following out its plan of timely, practical suggestions to Victor dealers in the stimulation of record business, the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, recently forwarded a letter to the trade suggesting that a special sales drive be instituted featuring Victor Record No. 961. This record presented in the November 9 list is by John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor, who sings "Wonderful One" and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses." The Musical Instrument Sales Co. offers to send its dealers leaflets, display cards, streamers, etc., in order to make the drive on this record profitable.

NEW VOCALION PIANO RECORDINGS

Record by David Pesetzki and Another by Cliff Hess and the Ambassadors in the December List of the Vocalion Red Records

Among the new Vocalion Red records to be released in December will be a piano record played by David Pesetzki. On one side of the record is "Juba" (Dance), from the suite "In the Bottoms," a characteristic number, and on the other side is "Marche Mignonne." These two compositions are standard selections of a lighter vein and are beautifully rendered. This record is the first of a series of piano records to be made in the future by different artists, ranging from the light standards to the more substantial classics.

The December Vocalion Red record bulletin will also contain another piano record that will have a popular appeal. This is record No. 14671, with "Upright and Grand" on one side and "Corn on the Cob" on the reverse side. Both numbers are fox-trots, with Cliff Hess and the Ambassadors playing "Upright and Grand" and Frank Banta and Cliff Hess with the Broadway Syncopaters playing "Corn on the Cob."

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER

David Goldman, Okeh Auditor, Buys the Cigars Upon Arrival of Helen Sonia—Miss C. Motto Joins Forces of Okeh Betrothals

David Goldman, auditor of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, has been having a busy few weeks, for only recently he received congratulations of his co-workers upon the arrival of a baby girl, who has been christened Helen Sonia. Mr. Goldman is now the father of a pair of Queens, and, if the deflection in the ranks of his organization continues, they will both be needed in the very near future.

Within the past four years three of Mr. Goldman's right-hand assistants have entered the happy state of matrimony, and on October 31 Miss Camille Motto, who has been associated with Mr. Goldman for nearly a year, was the guest of honor at a reception given by her co-workers to celebrate her betrothal to Harry Leoni. Mr. Goldman has figured out that twelve members of the accounting department have become engaged during the past few years, one of the most recent being Miss Sally Dodds, whose betrothal to Wm. Buckheit was announced a few weeks ago.

The Tedstrom Furniture Co., of Pine Bluff, Ark., was recently appointed Edison dealer in that territory.

URGES DISPLAY TO BOOST SALES

Max Willinger, President, New York Album & Card Co., Tells Story With a Moral

To just what extent sales have been lost by retailers through the lack of display of goods in stock is, of course, hard to estimate. Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York City, manufacturer of the "Nyacco" line of albums, tells the interesting story of a man, an owner of a talking machine, who learned for the first time last month that there was such a thing existing as a record album. This man, calling at the headquarters of the New York Album & Card Co., relative to the purchase of photograph albums, happened to pick up a record album and asked Mr. Willinger what it was. When told, the man asked if these record albums could be purchased from a talking machine retailer as the only place he had for storing his records were shelves which often caused the marring and breaking of the records. Mr. Willinger has had for some time a counter display card of the "Nyacco" album, but the display of the album itself, he points out, would undoubtedly improve sales.

MANY REQUEST NEW PLAZA CATALOG

This catalog features a complete line of repair parts of every description, specializing on main springs, motors and talking machine supplies. The catalog is arranged in convenient form and the use of clear-cut illustrations showing the

Included in the various parts listed are main springs for practically every type of motor on the market, parts for the standard makes of talking machines, felts, graphite, hardware, mica, turntable covers, etc., in addition to many types of motors, reproducers and tone arms. The last few pages of the catalog call attention to some of the many products that are manufactured or distributed by the Plaza Music Co., including Banner records, Little Tots nursery tunes, the popular Pal portable and Jewel rolls.

Important Radio Merchandising Factors

Experiences of Some Leading Talking Machine Merchants in Retailing Radio—Interesting Digest of Problems Facing Dealers

That talking machine dealers are paying more and more attention to the possibilities awaiting them by tying up their talking machine business with radio in some way is evidenced by the increasing number of dealers who have added radio in some form or another. Other dealers, who have not yet reached the point of installing radio departments, are studying the problems connected with radio and informing themselves on the ramifications of the radio field in connection with retail merchandising in order to be fully informed before they take the plunge. There seems to be a growing feeling that sooner or later radio will be an important part of the talking machine dealer's business, but many are convinced that the radio, to be made the most of by the talking machine trade, must be sold either as an attractively cased complete set, or in combination with a talking machine, both enclosed in the same cabinet. The consensus of opinion appears to be that handling parts for assembling purposes should be shunned by the talking machine trade. There is general agreement that necessary accessories must be handled, not so much for the profit that there may be in this branch of the business, but mainly as a necessary form of service for the purchaser.

Advocates Careful Selection

Sol Lazarus, one of the most progressive dealers in the metropolitan area of New York, commenting on radio merchandising possibilities for the talking machine dealer, holds the opinion that too much care cannot be exercised in the selection of the line handled. "The talking machine dealer who contemplates adding radio," declared Mr. Lazarus, "must exercise the greatest care in selecting a line that is not in the hands of the gyps. The one great drawback in the radio business to-day is the vast volume of goods which is being sold by unscrupulous dealers who are out to make a quick profit regardless of the effect of their methods on the trade in general. The legitimate dealer can overcome this form of competition to a large extent by selecting the best possible line to handle. This must be a line manufactured by a reputable firm and one which is not being sold at impossible prices. Another important consideration involved in the handling of radio is the method of merchandising. I believe that the best way to sell radio sets is by staging demonstrations in booths as is the case with talking machines. Of course, the trade is thoroughly equipped for this type of merchandising, so that is no hardship."

Installment Sales Best

"Then there is the question of whether or not to sell radio on the installment plan. Experience has convinced me that while the deferred payment plan is the only way in which radio can be sold to the masses a large down payment must be received. I consider in the neighborhood of 25 per cent to be about right. Twenty-five per cent down and the balance to be paid for in between five or six months. This means 20 per cent of the balance after the first payment has been made must be received by the dealer each month. Longer terms involve a credit risk which no dealer can afford to overlook."

Something New in Radio Merchandising

A combination talking machine and radio outfit is the best way to combine the talking machine business with this comparatively new entertainment medium, according to Saul Birns, who operates six talking machine stores in the metropolitan district of New York, and who at the present time is engaged in fitting up a radio salon in his main store on Second avenue, New York. His plans include many original ideas regarding selling and display. The main room is about twenty by forty feet, handsomely decorated. Along the walls of this room are placed between fifteen and eighteen combination talking machine and radio outfits. The cabinets include upright and console models of the talking machine type now in use; some of them are beautiful period models. Part of these cabinets contains the talking machine complete in all details and the remainder is devoted to the radio outfit, which is entirely hidden and is only disclosed by lifting the lid of the cabinet as in the case of a talking machine. All of these instruments are connected, ready for instant use, by means of an indoor aerial, which consists of a wire along the ceiling of each side of the room. The radio programs are clipped from the papers each evening and all machines are tuned in ready for instant playing, so that when a customer comes in the radio program can be listened to merely by turning on an electric switch. There is no fussing around with the dials trying to "pick up" a station, involving loss of time and the possible loss of a customer through long waiting and inability to get a station. Of course, when there is "nothing in the air" the customer is informed of the fact and an attempt is made to arrange a demonstration later in the day.

Service an Important Requisite

In addition to the various factors involved in merchandising radio mentioned in the preceding paragraphs, service following the sale is of the utmost importance, according to Lambert Friedl, manager of the talking machine department of the New York Wanamaker store. There is always the possibility of something happening to the radio set after it has been installed in the home, according to Mr. Friedl. Connections may become loose, batteries run down, etc., and not everyone is capable of inspecting the outfit and locating the trouble. The dealer who handles radio outfits must be prepared to take care of customers after the sale has been made by making necessary repairs, adjustments, etc., if the good will of the patron is to be maintained and the merchandise is to retain its prestige with the purchaser.

The Wanamaker store, which handles nationally known radio lines, also sells a combination talking machine and radio outfit, and several demonstration booths formerly devoted to talking machine and record demonstrations are now used for displaying and demonstrating the combination outfits. The Wanamaker store is featuring these outfits in some timely advertising and a number of the combinations have already been sold.

Sell Radio Separately

The Landay Bros. retail chain of stores in the metropolitan district are paying considerable attention to radio. M. Price, manager of the Newark, N. J., store of the concern, declares that radio is not tied up with the talking machine department. No effort is made to sell talking machine customers radio, although he declares that he intends to make a bid for business among his talking machine customers some time in the future. The radio department occupies a prominent position in the warerooms and advertising is proving effective in securing new business from people who may also prove live prospects for talking machines and records, musical instruments, etc.

CENSUS CHANGES ARE SUGGESTED

Music Industries Chamber of Commerce Suggests Changes in Classifications of Music Trade Figures That Will Make for Accuracy

At the request of the Bureau of the Census of the United States Department of Commerce, the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has aided in the preparation of the schedule for musical instruments manufactured in 1923 and has made some suggestions in regard to classification which have been adopted by the department.

For example, a distinction has been drawn between player actions made for sale to piano manufacturers and those made by the manufacturers for installation in their own instruments, the value of which would appear in the price of the completed player-piano. This distinction has been noted by adding the words "made for sale" to the appropriate classification of player actions.

At the suggestion of the Chamber the item "Records—phonographs" has been taken out of the general musical instrument schedule and assigned to the figures classified under the phonograph industry.

Other changes have also been made in the census schedule which will result in its presenting a more accurate and reliable report of the musical instrument industry. A letter has been received from the Chief Statistician of the Bureau thanking the Chamber for its assistance in perfecting the schedule.

GRIGGS HOUSE IN NEW QUARTERS

KEWANEE, ILL., November 5.—New quarters have just been taken by the Griggs Music House, being now located in the Scandia Building on East Second street, formerly used as the Carpenter & Cavanagh music room. Partitions have been placed in the room and business has already been started at the new location.

DE FOREEST SELLS WARREN, O., STORE

Stewart-Edison Co. Takes Over Business of De Forest Music Co. in That City

WARREN, O., November 3.—Announcement is made of the sale of the De Forest Music Co. to the Stewart-Edison Co. of this city. The sale includes the fixtures and the Victor agency. The De Forest store in this city has been a real musical center and in making the announcement Mr. De Forest expressed his regret in leaving the city. He is heavily interested in business in Greenville and Sharon, Pa., and his interests there have become so extensive that he decided to close the local store. The Stewart-Edison Co. has been in business here for several years, operating an Edison shop on North Park avenue. Robert Markley, who has been manager of the De Forest store since it was opened, will soon open it for the exclusive sale of Brunswick machines and records.

OPENS BRANCH STORE IN WALTHAM

WALTHAM, MASS., November 5.—A new branch music store, carrying a complete radio line, has been opened at 712 Main street by the K. M. Cahoon Co. Elliott C. Paul will act as manager of the new branch and the Moody street store will be continued as before. Both stores will carry complete lines of sheet music, pianos, Edison and Victor machines.

NEW CLEVELAND STORE SUCCEEDS

CLEVELAND, O., November 5.—The Harmony Music Shop, recently opened at 20017 West Twenty-fifth street, this city, where Steger & Sons pianos and phonographs, together with Okeh and Odeon records, are handled, has met with quick success. Walter S. Rader is president of the company, Walter Bienke, vice-president, and J. W. Kegel, secretary.

FOR REDUCTION OF WAR TAXES

Senator Smoot Would Also Repeal Certain Taxes Imposed As War Measure

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 7.—The reduction of some of the war taxes now carried in the Revenue Law and repeal of others is proposed by Senator Smoot, who will this year be chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Possibilities of reducing the revenue taxes by a half billion dollars were discussed by Senator Smoot with President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon at the White House.

Senator Smoot's proposals include a reduction of surtaxes, making the maximum 33 1/3 per cent instead of 50 per cent as at present; exemption from taxation of all incomes below $2,000, and probably those below $3,000; the reduction of taxes on incomes between $3,000 and $10,000, and a reduction of $75,000,000 on certain of the special taxes.

These changes can be made in the Revenue Law, declared Senator Smoot, provided Congress does not get extravagant and there is no attempt to pass a soldiers' bonus bill. Under the present system of conducting the Government operations, the reductions in revenue, which would aggregate approximately a half billion dollars, would not be a source of embarrassment. Before effecting any sweeping changes, however, it will be necessary, it was pointed out, to learn what Congress proposed to authorize in the way of expenditures and, if the present appropriations are exceeded, how the money shall be raised.

LARGER QUARTERS IN VISALIA

VISALIA, CAL., November 3.—The Hockett-Cowan Music Co., Visalia, Cal., has moved to new quarters at the corner of West Main and Locust streets, where more room is available for display of the company's lines.

RETAIL PRICE $10

An entirely new market will be yours with this perfect reproducing phonograph, retailing at $10. Besides, you can attack an old market with a new selling appeal.

Explanation of possibilities upon request

The Yale Phonograph has an impressive exterior. A gracefully designed wooden cabinet, finished in mahogany, and a satin gold horn are part of it. Inside is a strong, smooth-running motor. Through a particularly fine reproducer is heard a clear, rich vigorous tone that makes customers wonder how such an instrument can sell for $10.

Artistic Window Displays Strike the Eye

Message Is Emphasized by Centering the Attention of Shoppers on One or Two Objects—Avoid Making the Window a Stockroom

Simplicity is beauty. And insofar as the talking machine business is concerned this does not apply any more forcibly to any branch of the business than it does to the window displays. Whether the dealer has one or more windows at his disposal or whether the space be large or small this rule holds good. One of the most successful advertisers in the country once declared that the public cannot assimilate two ideas at once and, therefore, he made it a standing rule that his publicity, no matter what the type, should be centered around only one idea. This holds true in the talking machine business, whether it be in window displays or any other kind of advertising.

Simplicity is beauty! Does the accompanying illustration of a window display of C. C. Baker, Columbus, O., bear out this declaration? In the opinion of the writer this is one of the finest talking machine window displays that have yet come to his attention. Notice that only one model machine is displayed and the rest of the window is in reality a setting for this instrument. The records in the foreground are a necessity and emphasize not only the main theme of the window (music by means of the talking machine), but the arrangement is such that added beauty is given the entire display. Actually there are only twelve objects in this large window.

The beauty of this display is that with but trifling changes it can be made appropriate for any day or season of the year. Take, for example, this display arranged as a Christmas window. A very few changes will do the trick. The basket of flowers might be replaced by holly or a Christmas tree, the velvet drapery should be red or green in color and the placards in the illustration could be replaced by others setting forth the talking machine and records as Christmas gifts. Then, too, the background affords further opportunity for seasonal decoration.

This one-idea type of window display has the advantage over an exhibit where many different kinds of instruments or products are displayed, and the talking machine dealer can follow out the idea in any display he undertakes. It is class than it is to put a conglomeration of all the various types of recordings in the window. For instance, records of the various operas, together with window cards giving necessary and interesting information, would provide the means of an attention-compelling window. Then there are the vocal records, violin, piano, quartet, etc.

It is the small neighborhood retailer who most often falls down on his window displays and generally it is the dealer who arranges the display himself or who relegates the task to a salesman. Now, although a salesman may be able to sell talking machines and records it does not follow that he has the requisite ability for effective window dressing. The larger stores, especially the department stores, have in their employ expert window disan easy matter to change the talking machine model each week, thus drawing attention to a different instrument regularly. Changes in the drapery and lighting effects as well as the placards will give the window an entirely different effect. The same plan can be followed in displaying records. It is a much more profitable policy to display records according to play men, who have an eye for artistic effects and who have been thoroughly trained in the art of display. Of course, the small dealer cannot afford to go to this expense, but he can and should plan to make his windows attractive. The display must deliver a message to the passing throng and the most effective window is the one where the theme is easily grasped.

Talking Machine Dealer

Listens with Interest to the Word "Consignment"

WHEN you say "Consignment" to a talking machine dealer he sits up and takes notice.

Of all dealers in the world he has suffered most from investing large sums of money in expensive stock—paying high rents for the considerable floor space on which to display this stock—and then seeing it stay on the floor.

The talking machine dealer tried to get into the radio business early. He saw the light. He knew it was going to be a great field.

However, unless he happened by chance to stock De Forest Radiophones, he may have become discouraged with the way radio sets sell.

Now all the doubt is removed from the radio business so far as the talking machine dealer is concerned.

The De Forest Company will put on his floor strictly on a consignment basis whatever stock he thinks he can sell in the course of one month, and it is only necessary for him to make a deposit of one-third of this single month's quota. As the stock sells he deducts his compensation. No other investment is necessary. No doubt is left. Turn the stock over as often as you want in the course of the month. Profits vary from 35 to 40% for each turnover.

This plan has revolutionized the entire radio industry. Send for the new De Forest book "Building Your Radio Business with Our Capital," which gives you full details of how the plan works.

Talking machine dealers all over the United States are writing or wiring in for exclusive De Forest agencies. Territories are going fast. If interested, please let us hear from you at once.

Points to New Era in Record Merchandising

Development of Larger Sales of Records to Individuals by Means of "Group Sales Plan" Receiving Attention of Live Dealers, Says Phil Ravis, President, Peerless Album Co.

That the talking machine dealer is on the threshold of a new era in record merchandising is the opinion of Phil Ravis, president of the Peerless Album Co., manufacturer of record albums at 63 1/2 Broadway, New York City. He bases his conviction on a series of facts, accumulated on a recent trip visiting some of the largest talking machine and music houses and interviewing the buyers in music departments of the large department stores. In conversation with a World representative this week Mr. Ravis said:

"A quarter century has passed since the introduction of the phonograph and public acceptance has gone through the successive stages of curiosity, investigation and general approval. Up until a year ago the sensational scoop on a popular record was quite a common thing, but to-day there are in addition many music lovers more conservative in their tastes who choose records as they do books.

"The manager of one of the most successful stores in Ohio told me his gross business was greater than ever, on a smaller inventory than was carried in 1920-21, which means that the turnover on standard catalog selections was increased. This was accomplished by a sales drive on the group record plan and home record library idea. Albums were brought to the foreground and played an important part in cultivating the trade of this along consistent and methodical purchasing lines.

"Do not misinterpret what is meant by 'group record sales.' The worst possible thing is to try to sell a customer too many of one class of records at one time. It has never worked favorably and never will. But to get an album into the customer's home, properly labeled as containing a certain class of music, is to instill a permanent idea with the customer that the album should be filled. 'When' and 'how' are matters to be left solely with the customer.

"It is a very bad thing to be overzealous about anything, particularly when you are selling, and the little plan of merely suggesting the class of records to be purchased in future by the label on the album is usually sufficient.

"I noticed particularly a store that priced regular phonographs considerably higher than list and inquired about this. For instance, one tag read $89 for a $75 instrument. It was explained as being the logical way to meet the demand for a complete outfit and overcome sales resistance. Instead of saying one machine $75, six albums $9, six records $4.50, needles 50 cents, they simply said 'complete, $89.' It appeared to me that this was an excellent plan to keep the album and record sales in the same store where the instrument was bought and that more Eastern dealers should try it.

"How the album is assisting the proper merchandising of records is forcefully demonstrated by another store. This particular dealer has read my 'gift advertisement' and found that a

SEEKS TO TRACE RECORD SALES

Victor Co. to Endeavor to Determine Direct Sales Results of Music Memory Contests

In a review of the development of the music memory contest idea in various sections of the country and the active participation in such affairs by the Victor Talking Machine Co. and its dealers, Mrs. Frances E. Clark, director of the educational department of the Victor Co., has arranged with dealers to have them keep a notation of all records sold either to homes or to schools to be used in preparation for music memory contests. The figures will be compiled next Spring and it is hoped then to be able to determine just what influence music memory contests have on record sales generally.

VAGABONDS' FIRST GENNETT RECORD

The Vagabonds have just recorded their first Gennett record which will be released very soon. The selections are "Sweet Butter" and "I'm Sittin' Pretty." This orchestra certainly is "different" and it has a style all its own. It is recording exclusively for Gennett and the first record is being rushed through.

THE SHELTON Electric Motor

The "Simplicity" electrifies Victor, Edison and Columbia phonographs by simply taking off winding handle and placing motor against turntable. sign in his window featuring a 'dance album' (with three records to start) or an 'opera album' (with three records) were greedily pounced upon every now and then by passers-by. While his sales were not sensational in any degree they were steady and came as a direct result of the plan. In other words, he did get business that ordinarily would go to the candy or novelty store.

"There is no question in my mind but that people everywhere are to-day taking more pride in their record collections than ever before. While talking with a dealer in a large store a customer came in and explained that she needed but two more records to complete the whole opera of 'Aida' and she added that her husband had purchased a special cabinet to keep the classified albums in, this cabinet matching their library bookcase.

"It occurred to me then what great advantages would accrue to every dealer who could encourage and develop a wide clientele of customers with the enthusiasm displayed by this woman."

CONCENTRATION IN CANVASSING PAYS

Scattered Calls Mean Waste of Time and Overlooked Prospects—How a Live Dealer Thoroughly Covers His Territory

Canvassing is still being found a good road to sales by those dealers who go about it in the right way. One of these is J. L. Brett, well-known dealer at Niagara Falls, N. Y., who does a very large business in Edison phonographs and records. Mr. Brett has found that the only way to eliminate waste of time in canvassing and to get worthwhile results is to map out his territory by streets and work each family on one thoroughfare or section before carrying the scene of operations to the next, and although he has only two outside men they certainly bring home the bacon. The plan is this: Each day these men take a street or a section of the city which they cover without missing a home or a family, the object being to secure permission to place a machine and some records in the home for a trial period of three days. Mr. Brett is authority for the statement that one out of every four instruments placed in this manner remains permanently in the home. This is certainly a good ratio of sales—one to every four calls. It is also excellent proof that where a determined effort is made canvassing is an unbeatable way of bringing the sales volume to assume respectable proportions.

Where many canvassing campaigns fall down is in the lack of concentration. In other words, scattering the drive over too large a section of the city or town without definite direction. It is very well to send individual canvassers and salesmen to different sections and streets, but unless these men cover their territory thoroughly the results will fall below par. This is not a theory, but a fact which has been proved many times. If a man calls on three families in a six-family apartment house or three homes out of six on a block the chances are exactly even that the persons he is overlooking may be in the market and can be sold.

ADDING TO SERVICE FACILITIES

Forbes & Wallace, of Springfield, Mass., Make Changes to Handle Growing Trade

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., November 6.—Present activity at the Forbes & Wallace store gives an indication of the excellent business which all music dealers in Springfield report. Manager Larkin, of the musical merchandise department, reports good results so far this year and looks forward to even bigger things in the remaining months. To keep pace with the growth in business Mr. Larkin has found it necessary to expand facilities. Improvements are under way.

Rayburn Clark Smith, of the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, has worked with Forbes & Wallace in the development of the layout for the new departments, which will greatly increase efficiency in handling customers. As the department was all Unico equipped, the rearrangement and additions are being made without any interruption to business.

The Ludwig Co., of this city, has also recently added some Unico service units, increasing its ability to serve its trade.

A UNIQUE COLLECTION LETTER

A collection letter is used by a printer in Fernwood, Pa., which has been wonderfully successful in stimulating collections and which can be applied to any business where the collection problem prevails. The letter follows:

"Dear Sir: "Here is a pin. (A pin is stuck in here.) It's not an ordinary pin—not the kind your wife pins her dress with or anything of that kind—it's really a magic pin.

"We are going to let you use it for a few minutes—and only a few minutes, because it is imperative that we get it back.

"It is going to serve a wonderful purpose. It is going to get a lot of matters cleared up that have been pending for some time.

"The real reason for this pin, and the real use you are to make of it, is to pin your check to the attached statement and return it to us.

"You can see at a glance that this pin will really do a lot of good for both of us. Very sincerely, John J. Weber.

"P. S. Don't forget to return the pin at once—others are waiting to use it."

Final Awards in Better Homes Music Contest

Event Aroused Wide Interest Throughout the Entire Country—H. G. Van Closter, of Kansas City, Mo., Wins First Prize—Second and Third Prizes to Katherine Hustvedt and J. M. Williams

The awards of prizes in the Home Music Contest held throughout the country during Better Homes Week, June 4-10, under the joint auspices of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and the National Council of Better Homes in America, have just been announced, showing a lively interest in the value of music.

The winner of the first prize, a $500 piano or allowance of that amount on a piano to be selected from the list of twenty-six, is H. G. Van Closter, of Kansas City, Mo. His statement follows: "Music makes better homes because dance music lightens labor and speeds play. The performance of concerted music, whether vocal or instrumental, fosters harmony and co-operation. Music of sentiment eloquently expresses the spirit of each tender relationship of the home and makes very real those intimate emotions which timid hearts seldom dare express in words."

According to the terms of the contest the explanation had to be written in fifty words or less and a list of ten selections of the best music for the home bearing out the definition.

The second prize, a $200 phonograph or allowance on an instrument to be selected from a list of seven, was awarded to Katherine Hustvedt, of Decorah, Ia. Miss Hustvedt says music makes better homes because: "Music, the most social of all the arts, welds the family and its friends together in an enjoyment which can be shared by the tiniest tot and the oldest grandparent. It is a trouble-chaser, a gloom-dispeller, an electric tonic of high power. It tones you up physically, mentally and aesthetically."

John M. Williams, of East San Diego, Cal., winner of the third prize, has this to say: "Music makes better homes because it (1) cultivates the imagination; (2) appeals to the higher emotions; (3) awakens slumbering desires and ambitions; (4) cements home ties; (5) arouses patriotism; (6) develops the rhythmic sense; (7) encourages the faint-hearted; (8) cultivates such social activities as dancing, singing; (9) awakens the religious side of the listener; (10) is an outlet to the emotions of happiness; (11) sadness; (12) unexpressed aspirations."

The contest was judged upon (1) the reasons given why music makes better homes; (2) the choice of ten selections best suited to support these reasons, and the committee on awards who judged the entries included Mrs. John F. Lyons, president, National Federation of Music Clubs; Mrs. M. E. Oberndorfer, music chairman, General Federation of Women's Clubs; C. M. Tremaine, director, National Bureau for the Advancement of Music; K. S. Clark Bureau of Community Music, Community Service.

The Better Homes in America campaign reached 1,000 cities this year; although the music contest was organized too late in the campaign to be promoted thoroughly in all of these communities, the quantity of the replies and the general scattering of them throughout the country proves that the contest was a great success.

A complete list of winners follows: First prize, H. G. Van Closter, 510 East Eighth street, Kansas City, Mo.; second prize, Miss Katherine Hustvedt, 401 Grove street, Decorah, Ia.; third prize, John M. Williams, 3683 Reed avenue, E. San Diego, Cal.; fourth prize, Miss Helen Walters, 3560 Grim street, San Diego, Cal.; fifth prize, James Potter Keough, 808 Lexington avenue, New York City; sixth prize, Miss Katherine Nicholson, 226 Yanell avenue, S. E., Grand Rapids, Mich.; seventh prize, W. L. Thickstun, Central College, Conway, Ark.; eighth prize, Malcolm L. Cobb, 353 Central avenue, New Haven, Conn.; ninth prize, George Ashton, 122 East Sixtieth street, New York City; tenth prize, Miss Elizabeth K. Chamberlain, 123 Bel-laire avenue, Louisville, Ky.; eleventh prize, Mrs. Laura Schubert, 301 Ninth street, St. Charles, Mo.; twelfth prize, Louis Harrison, 608 Fulton street, Salisbury, N. C.

The following prizes were offered through the co-operation of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce:

Letting the Phonograph Dealer in on Some News

GULBRANSEN NATIONAL ADVERTISING schedules for 1924 include the publication of twelve four-color cover advertisements in The Literary Digest. This is the most extensive line-up of color advertising that the piano industry has ever known. A full-page, four-color ad every month!

In addition, The Saturday Evening Post and American Magazine will be used—carrying full-page advertising of the Gulbransen Registering Piano; farm papers, too.

That mere announcement of continuous advertising explains to the phonograph dealer the whole story of “active demand.” Any merchant who knows what consistent, effective National Advertising will do for a worthy product will quickly understand why the Gulbransen has been singled out for representation by dealers who have for years restricted themselves to the sale of phonographs.

EDISON REPLACES HOTEL ORCHESTRA

Imperial Hotel, Temby, South Wales, Installs Phonograph in Special Resonating Chamber in Ballroom—Some Fine Edison Publicity

LIVERPOOL, ENGLAND, November 3.—A new field for the phonograph is suggested in the sale recently by Jake Graham, one of our most progressive dealers, of an expensive console model Edison phonograph to the Imperial Hotel, Temby, South Wales. The hotel management has constructed a resonating chamber in the ballroom in which the instrument has been placed. This chamber, a little larger than the Edison phonograph, is built of plywood and glass and acts as a resonator. The machine itself stands on a three-ply drum which acts as a soundboard. The results have been beyond expectations, and the Edison is now used regularly in place of a small orchestra. When the instrument is playing a brass wire gauze fits over the resonating chamber in the form of windows.

Jake Graham, through General Manager Burt Reynolds, has been utilizing some unusual publicity to bring the merits of Edison phonographs before the public. One of his best publicity stunts, following an Edison tone-test in Liverpool some time ago, has been the preparation and broadcasting of a four-page folder which bears the title "The Musical Ideal of Thomas A. Edison." This is followed by an outline of the tremendous amount of research work which finally resulted in the perfected Edison instrument. The second page is devoted to the story of the Liverpool tone-test, the first ever held in England. Following this another page is devoted to the enthusiastic comments of the critics and an illustration of a console Edison phonograph. The last page contains an advertisement of Jake Graham (The Edison Specialist), together with the announcement that daily demonstrations are held in the firm's Edison salons and home demonstrations can be arranged. An unusually effective bit of publicity!

The trade outlook is quite good in this section of England, and the general price reduction in all products has had the effect of reviving business to a considerable degree, according to Burt Reynolds, of the firm.

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR SEXTON STORES

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 6.—The K. C. Sexton Co., one of this city's pioneers in the Victor line, has just completed improvements in its store, consisting of the installation of equipment by the Unit Construction Co.

The Sexton family is a real factor in talking machine merchandising in the national capital. In addition to the store operated by K. C. Sexton, his son, Francis, opened a store at 647 H street, Northeast, a few years ago.

Charles Clement, of the sales staff of the Unit Construction Co., handled the details of the installation for both K. C. and Francis Sexton.

PLAN RADIO STATION IN DENVER

DENVER, COL., November 4.—The General Electric Co. is planning to erect a radio station in Denver, Col., which will be one of the three largest stations in the country. Musical and other programs will be broadcasted regularly. Hendrie & Bolthoff, of this city, are the distributors in the Rocky Mountain region for the radio products of the General Electric Co. and the Radio Corp. of America.

CLEVER CIRCULAR BRINGS TRADE

ELIZABETH, N. J., November 6.—McManus Bros., Victor dealers of this city, are using circulars which bear a close resemblance to theatre tickets. On the face of the tickets is the word "Reserved" and the headline "We have reserved for you a genuine Victor-Victrola." The brief text requests the recipient to call, states terms and bears the imprint of the firm.

RIGHT METHODS BUILD BIG TRADE

Records 60 Per Cent Increase in Business This Year as Result of Making Store a Rendezvous for Lovers of the Best in Music

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., November 7.—The record of business development here of the A. M. McCollum Co., which is now known as the Consolidated Dry Goods Co., is an indication of what can be accomplished through the right kind of merchandising methods. This year the business has shown an increase of 60 per cent over the same period last year. Largely responsible for this satisfactory state of affairs in the talking machine department are H. C. Marsh, manager, and Miss Marion Dragon, who is in direct charge of the department. Miss Dragon is an accomplished musician and she has been successful in building up a select clientele of lovers of the best music. The talking machine department is located in the basement of the establishment. It has been attractively fitted up and is the rendezvous of the music lovers of the city. Victor, Edison and Pooley machines are featured by this live dealer.

NEEDLE SALESMAN GYPS DEALERS

Canadian Police Captures Swindler Who Has Been Victimizing Talking Machine Retailers

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 5.—A man giving the name of Fred J. Newberry, and said to have induced a number of talking machine dealers in Welland County, Ontario, into buying large quantities of needles for cash, with the promise of talking machines to be delivered later, has been arrested and is being held in Chatham, Ont. The phonographs were to have been shipped by the Phonograph Needle & Cabinet Co., of Toronto, which it has been learned is non-existent. The man was not arrested at the instance of any of the merchants whom he had swindled, but they are not displeased at the announcement of his arrest.

FAIRALL'S MUSIC HOUSE EXPANDS

NEWARK, O., November 5.—Fairall's Music House, Fourth and Main streets, this city, has almost doubled its floor space. Extensive alterations have just been completed. and the factory is working to capacity to take care of the requirements of the trade.

During the past few weeks Mr. Baerwald has been visiting the dealers in metropolitan territory, and he states that there is a feeling of optimism which is substantiated by the sales totals reported by the majority of the dealers. The Kimberley sales organization in New York is being expanded gradually, and Mr. Baerwald is making plans whereby the company's representation in the East and throughout the country will be augmented materially by the first of the year. David Isenberg, president of the company, is devoting practically all of his time to production activities at the factory, and under his direction the plant is working at full speed with maximum efficiency.

REALISTIC RECORD WINDOW DISPLAY

Live Edison Dealer Arranges Window of the Record, "Saw Mill River Road," Which Tells a Real Story and Attracts Much Attention

How records can be featured in window displays in a forceful and realistic manner was

How W. P. Fowler & Co. Featured Popular Edison Record demonstrated recently by W. R. Coats, manager of the W. P. Fowler & Co. store, Edison dealer, Chickasha, Okla., who designed and built a most ingenious window display of the record, "Saw Mill River Road," which, to say the least, is strikingly descriptive. Naturally this display received deserved attention on the part of the public; in fact, it aroused much favorable comment and praise.

As may be seen in the illustration the theme of the record has been carried out in the display. There is a miniature saw mill, with a saw made from an Edison record which turns like the real thing. Realism is further produced by the oxen hauling a load of logs to the mill, and another feature of the display is the river—real water running across the entire window with real fish in it. Boats on the river, a rustic bridge with a couple crossing, moonlight, and an old-time rail fence with chickens sitting on it completed this effective ensemble.

W. P. Fowler, proprietor of the Chickasha store, has built up a large business through progressive methods such as these. He owns and operates three Edison shops and has substantial investments in other successful Edison establishments in this prosperous territory.

FORMAL OPENINGS IN NEW HAVEN

Wooley & More and Blair & Brodrig Open Attractive Establishments

NEW HAVEN, CONN., November 7.—Two Brunswick dealers in this city held formal openings of their establishments recently, and conspicuous among the decorations were floral offerings from the Eastern division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. The newly renovated store of Wooley & More, 71 East Main street, has won the enthusiastic praise of music lovers in this city, and the new store of Blair & Brodrig, 103 Orange street, is one of the most up-to-date phonograph establishments in the State. The latter concern has stores in Bristol and Waterbury and is planning to feature the Brunswick exclusively during the coming holiday season. Ned R. Mann, of the Brunswick Co., was present.

George A. Cassidy, proprietor of a music concern in Schenectady, N. Y., has just purchased a two-story building at 24 Jay street, which will be remodeled as a business place.

Meeting of Brunswick Dealers in New York

Eastern Phonograph Division of Brunswick Co. Host to Nearly 250 Dealers in Hotel Pennsylvania—Interesting Addresses—Discuss Plans—Luncheon and Entertainment

The Eastern phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. was the host recently to the Brunswick dealers in metropolitan territory at a meeting and luncheon held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York. This was the first gathering of Brunswick dealers in the East and the fact that nearly 250 were present at the meeting indicates the rapid strides in popularity that the Brunswick line has attained in this territory. The meeting was divided into two sessions and P. A. Ware, manager of sales promotion of the Eastern phonograph division, who was the toastmaster, took care of this important work with signal ability.

T. A. Dwyer, secretary and treasurer of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., New York, ex-chandising plans that added materially to the success of the merchants who tried out these ideas. As he has been identified with the subject of credits for many years, Mr. Teele is thoroughly familiar with every phase of this important branch of the dealers' affairs and the suggestions that he gave to the Brunswick representatives were based on fact and not theory.

One of the principal ballrooms at the Hotel Pennsylvania had been set aside for the use of the Brunswick party and during luncheon the guests were entertained by the Oriole Orchestra, an exclusive Brunswick organization that has attained countrywide popularity. This orchestra is unique in that three of its members are well-known composers, including Dan capacity. After having served possibly seven or eight years in retail and wholesale I then graduated to a semi-executive position with one of the chief manufacturers. My retail experience I regard as the most valuable of all, as it gave me a more intimate insight into the real workings of the business than any or all of the other branches combined, and it stood me in good stead in my later years of experience, particularly in giving me a keener appreciation of the retailers' problems and all of the ups and downs which they fall heir to. It has never been difficult for me to put myself on their side of the fence and to view things from their angles. Probably the greatest of these was the ability to understand the fluctuation of trade conditions and to be able to overcome them by throwing pressure into certain periods in order to overcome a natural periodic inertness which has characterized this business, as well as all other branches of retail merchandising.

"The gains during the past six or eight months in all of the Eastern sections have been phenomenal, so much so, in fact, that we are already beginning to curb our activities as regards new accounts in order to safeguard our present established dealers. During the past week in excess of $30,000 in new accounts have been rejected, partly for that reason, as well, of course, for the reason that some of the applicants under consideration are not looked upon as representative in character or temperamentally unsuited to our business. We are to-day exercising every possible care in determining upon new dealerships, as there is no inclination whatsoever to accept new business merely for the sake of a dollar-and-cent gain. Neither will new accounts be accepted which will in any way prove a detriment to our present dealers who are conscientiously endeavoring to work for the upbuilding of Brunswick in their communities."

After referring to the advertising campaign, which, he said, "from this time on is going to be a tremendously big one," Mr. Beach concluded as follows: "At this time of the year, however, we do want to have you anticipate your needs as far in advance as possible as our factories are being taxed to their fullest capacity and will be for some months to come. You will render us invaluable aid in placing your requirements just as quickly as possible, as by this means we will be in a better position to command the necessary share of Brunswick products from our factories. You know as well as I that we have a prosperous period ahead and there is no earthly reason why buying should not be on a very large scale, as our country is enjoying most unusual prosperity. There is ample money in circulation to guarantee this and I hope that you will get behind us in helping us in every possible way to gauge our supplies at least for the coming four or six months."

Following Mr. Beach's talk, interesting addresses were made by Mr. Ware and H. D. Leopold, manager of the recording department of the Eastern phonograph division.

Metropolitan Brunswick Dealers at Hotel Pennsylvania Meeting

tended to the dealers a cordial welcome in behalf of the executive organization and pointed out briefly the accomplishments of the Brunswick Co. in its respective fields of endeavor. Mr. Dwyer congratulated H. A. Beach, sales manager of the Eastern phonograph division, upon the splendid character of the Brunswick representation in this territory and told the dealers just how the Brunswick Co. was trying to co-operate with them.

E. A. Strauss, assistant secretary of the Brunswick Co. and well known in the phonograph industry, told the dealers something about the company's plans in connection with its new building at Seventh avenue and Fifty-second street, which will be ready for occupancy the early part of the year. F. W. Teele, credit manager of the company's New York headquarters, gave an interesting and informative address that was enthusiastically received by the Brunswick dealers. Mr. Teele emphasized that the credit department is in a position to help the dealers along practical and profitable lines if taken into their confidence. He illustrated several instances showing how the credit division had not only assisted dealers in times of emergency, but had been responsible for mer-

Russo, conductor of the organization. The other composers in the orchestra are Teddy Fiorito, who has to his credit the present popular hit, "No, No, Nora," and J. F. Naset, pianist. The other artists on the program included Margaret Young, vaudeville headliner and exclusive Brunswick artist, whose rendition of popular hits thoroughly emphasized the fact that she is entitled to recognition as one of the leaders in the recording field. Miss Isa Kramer, internationally famous as a singer of selections in practically every popular language, gave the Brunswick dealers a most enjoyable recital. Miss Kramer, who is an exclusive Brunswick artist, has won exceptional success in concert both here and abroad.

Subsequent to luncheon and the musical entertainment Mr. Ware introduced Mr. Beach as one of the pioneers of the talking machine industry with an intimate familiarity with every phase of phonograph activities. Mr. Beach gave an exceptionally forceful and interesting address, during the course of which he said: "My first experience dates back to the year 1900, and after spending considerable time in the retail end I became interested in the wholesale branch of the business and in a managerial

SUCCESSFUL RECORDING EXPEDITION

Okeh and Odeon Record Lists Enlarged by Addition of Several Popular New Artists as Result of Chicago Recording Trip

R. S. Peer, of the sales division of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, returned to his desk recently after spending two weeks in Chicago, where he was in charge of a special recording expedition that made its headquarters in the building of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., in that city, Okeh distributor. The members of this party included: Arthur Bergh, Okeh musical director; Chas. F. Hibbard, technical director of the recording laboratory; H. P. Decker, his assistant, and A. F. Thallmeyer, manager of the company's foreign language record division.

One of the features of the recording expedition was the work of Finzell's Arcadia Orchestra, consisting of seventeen well-known musicians, which made a special trip from Detroit to record for the Okeh library. A special car was used to bring the orchestra from Detroit to Chicago, and banners on the sides of the car informed the public just where the orchestra was going. King Oliver's Jazz Band, which is popular throughout Chicago, also made a number of records during this trip, as well as Guyon's Paradise Orchestra, another prominent dance organization. Bennie Moten's Orchestra, of Kansas City, Mo., made its first Okeh recordings at Chicago, and, in addition, Mr. Thallmeyer sponsored a large number of recordings in foreign languages, including a variety of selections in Italian, Green, German, Bohemian and Lithuanian.

Timely and Attractive Window Displays Prove Business Stimulators

DA-LITE'S VICTOR RED SEAL PANELS

Da-Lite Electric Display Co. Issues Series of Red Seal Panels—Fourteen Colored Panels Feature Records by Leading Artists

TOLEDO, O., November 6.—The Da-Lite Electric Display Co., of this city, manufacturer of display signs for Victor dealers, has just introduced a new series of panels featuring Red Seal records exclusively. This company for several years past has presented each month a series of sign panels that usually feature the latest Victor hits, with one standard number in each set. With the double facing of Red Seal records, however, Harry Cuddeback, head of the company, appreciated the fact that Victor dealers could use to splendid advantage a set of panels devoted to Red Seal records only, and a series of fourteen panels presenting records by some of the greatest artists in the Victor Red Seal Catalog are now ready for the trade.

Mr. Cuddeback has prepared a very attractive circular announcing the new Red Seal panels, although this circular, which is reproduced in black and white, hardly does justice to the multi-colored effects of the original panels. Among the famous and exclusive Victor Red Seal artists who are featured in these panels are the following: Caruso, McCormack, Heifetz, Paderewski, Galli-Curci, Chaliapin, Rachmaninoff, Werrenrath, Ruffo, Schumann-Heink, Homer, Kreisler, Gigli and Jeritza.

Price Maintenance to Protect the Public

Representative Schuyler Merritt Says Fixed Resale Prices on Trade-Marked Goods Will Give Quality Guarantee to the Buyer

[Editor's Note.—Representative Schuyler Merritt, of Connecticut, who has written the following article for The Talking Machine World, is the author of the Merritt Bill, which will be again introduced in the new Congress, which opens the first week of December. This bill provides for the maintenance of resale prices on products marketed under a trade name or special brand, and is known as H. R. 13494. It was introduced by Mr. Merritt in the last Congress and reads in part as follows:

"That in any contract for the sale of articles of commerce to any dealer, wholesale or retail, by any grower, producer, manufacturer or owner thereof, under trade-mark or special brand, hereinafter referred to as the 'vendor,' who shall for the purpose of preventing discrimination and protecting his good will clearly mark on each salable unit of his product, or otherwise make generally known the price at which such unit shall be resold, it shall be lawful for such vendor, whenever the contract constitutes a transaction of commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, or in any territory of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, or between any such territory and another territory, or between any such territory or territories and any State or the District of Columbia, or with a foreign nation or nations, or between the District of Columbia and any State or States, or a foreign nation or nations, to prescribe the uniform prices and manners of settlement to all purchasers in like circumstances at which the different qualities and quantities of each article covered by such contract may be resold: Provided, that such vendor shall not have any monopoly or control of the market for articles belonging to the same general class of merchandise as such article or articles of commerce as shall be covered by such contract of sale; and that such vendor shall not be a party to any agreement, combination or understanding with any competitor in the production, manufacture or sale in interstate commerce of any merchandise in the same general class in regard to the price at which the same shall be sold either to dealers, wholesale or retail, or to the public: Provided further, that if the purchaser shall in good faith be unable to sell such goods at the published price, the purchaser shall first offer such goods to the seller at the purchase price before he may sell same at less than the published price."]

The bill H. R. 13494, which I introduced in the last Congress and expect to introduce again in the Sixty-eighth Congress, is based on the proposition that if a man has property rights in a copyright, or a trade-mark, or a trade name, these rights should be protected like any other property rights and should not be subject to robbery or deprecation without redress.

There have been repeated decisions of the Supreme Court asserting such property rights, but several of the decisions have contained intimations and suggestions, in view of existing anti-trust and anti-conspiratory legislation, which in effect state that while a man has property rights in his trade name or good will and while he may have something to say as to the price at which his branded goods shall be sold and the conditions under which they shall be sold, nevertheless if he takes steps necessary for any real protection of his good will he may be liable to punishment under existing statute law.

Corrective Legislation Necessary

This interpretation of the law seems to make corrective legislation necessary if we are to protect the rights of property which are recognized in the Constitution.

While, therefore, from the legal side, the case for legislation is strong it is equally so from the economic side.

When any article is subject to open competition, and especially in the retail trade where the purchasers are not experts and are neither competent nor can they afford to test the quality of the goods purchased, there is a constant tendency to sacrifice quality to price. Such sacrifice always tends to deception and sometimes, as in the case of foodstuffs and medicines, is dangerous to health. The only cure thus far discovered for these evils is, first, the manufacture of goods to be sold on their quality rather than price; second, the education of the public as to the economic advantage of purchasing articles of good quality; third, convincing the public that the particular articles are of such good quality; fourth, marking the articles with a trade-mark or trade name so they can be identified as the goods previously brought to the attention of consumers.

These conditions involve large expense and risk on the part of the manufacturer to produce the goods, to educate the public and, finally, and most important, to maintain this quality so that the reputation of the goods may not suffer.

What the Purchasers Want

Bear in mind that articles covered by this bill are not necessities and not monopolies, such as water, light, transportation, etc. These articles are bought simply because the purchasers want them. They want to be certain as to quality and to know that they are purchasing the goods at a fair price and on an equality with other purchasers.

To give the purchaser this opportunity the articles must have a wide distribution through the regular and ordinary distributing channels. To induce the jobbers and retailers to carry the necessary stocks for distribution they must be assured of a reasonable profit for carrying the stock and selling it. They are entitled, when they buy stocks of such specialties, to be assured that some department store or some rival will not purchase similar goods and use them as leaders by advertising cut prices which leave no profit or, perhaps, a loss. The public, in the end, does not profit from such price cutting because it is clear that no class of goods can continue to be sold at a loss and that, if a loss is incurred on one class, it must be more made up on another, or the price of the article in question must finally be advanced beyond the regular price. There is no danger that, under this legislation, unreasonable prices will be charged the public because under price control the producer cannot afford to ask unreasonable prices as that would stop or limit the sale of his goods and at once stir up destructive competition.

By reading the bill it will be seen that it covers very simply the points above set forth as desirable. There is a distinct proviso that the contracts enacted by the bill shall not apply in case the vendor has a monopoly or control of the market for the articles belonging to the same class of merchandise as shall be covered by the contract. In case the purchaser, acting in good faith, shall be unable to sell his goods at the published price he must first offer such goods to the seller at the purchase price, and if the seller refuses to purchase then he may sell at less than the published price.

Controversies to Be Settled by Law

Finally, this bill avoids any reference to the Federal Trade Commission and gives it no power to interfere or fix prices. I believe that, under this bill, it will be safe and wise to leave all parties concerned to the rights under law without the intervention of the Federal Trade Commission, and I am entirely opposed to extending further the power or control of the Federal Trade Commission or any trade commission over business and business men. President Harding well said: "We want more business in government and less government in business."

A Victrola concert marked the opening of the new store of Ralph E. Dodson, Palo Alto, Cal.

Brooklyn Territory Ready for Holidays

Seasonal Sales Drives Ready for Launching—"Kiddies' Room" Installed to Boom Sales to Youngsters—Trade News and Activities

The approaching holiday season is already making itself felt in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory, according to reports of dealers, many of whom are making preparations for intensive sales drives. Despite a lull in business during the past month, there is a general feeling of optimism and the conviction that this will be one of the best holiday business seasons ever experienced. Although sales have not come up to expectations lately, they have been fair and there is really no cause for worry on the part of the trade. Many of the more progressive merchants have succeeded in overcoming any lethargy that existed simply by going after business harder than ever. This was accomplished in most cases by increased advertising and more intensive outside sales work. The holiday rush will find the majority of the retailers prepared, both as regards volume of stock and service facilities.

Loeser's Catering to Kiddies

A new and unique method of pushing the sales of records and talking machines of the type designed for children has recently been inaugurated by the talking machine department of Frederick Loeser & Co., 484 Fulton street, Brooklyn, under the supervision of Mabel Arend, manager of the talking machine department.

The plan consists of devoting an entire room to the little folk. The room is furnished throughout with children's furniture and contains in addition several toy phonographs. There are also many toys placed in view. This room is a most attractive one and is certain to catch the eye of anyone who happens to be passing.

The children's records are placed on a small table and are arranged to facilitate the choosing of these records by either the little ones or the grown-ups. The saleswoman in charge of this room plays the records on a phonograph and the children are allowed to make their own selections just as older folk do, although it often occurs that they know exactly what they want before they come to make a purchase, according to Miss Arend. The saleswoman who has charge of this room is a mother of two children and consequently is able to understand the children's wants better than someone whose experience in that respect is limited. Great interest has been evinced by the young folk in this room as the surroundings are planned so as to make them feel at home and do away with any feeling of awe which children are apt to have in a setting of this character.

Considerable advertising is being used in the local papers which is prepared with the idea of attracting the children through their parents, and, according to Miss Arend, several mothers have stated that their children would not give them a minute's peace until they had been brought in to see the children's room and listen to the music.

The little ones take pride in making their own purchases and come prepared to pay for the records they may select. Not only have the records and phonographs been sold through this method, but a number of orders have been placed for the various toys on display.

Among the record lines carried in stock are the "Junior Operetta" series, made by the Vulcan Record Co., the "Little Tots' Records," manufactured by the Regal Record Co., and the "Bubble Books," published by Harper & Bros.

C. J. Ianell With Abraham & Straus

C. J. Ianell, formerly of Bloomingdale's and more recently manager of the talking machine department of the H. Batterman Co., Brooklyn, has recently become connected with Abraham & Straus as manager of the talking machine department there, succeeding Joseph Flanagan. Mr. Ianell's experience in the talking machine business extends over a long period and his friends throughout the trade wish him well in his new undertaking.

John H. Bieling in New Home

John H. Bieling, Victor dealer, of Hempstead, L. I., has moved from Main street to new and larger quarters at 283 Front street, Hempstead. This move was made necessary because larger space was required to handle a rapidly increasing business. The new store is advantageously located and modern equipment makes this one of the most up-to-date establishments in the vicinity.

Selling High-priced Instruments

H. Lipschitz, manager of Krakauer Bros., 1653 Pitkin avenue, Brownsville, Brooklyn, has met with considerable success in selling high-priced Sonora models. During the last six weeks this company has sold a $3,000 Bardini model, as well as two $750 Italian and English Renaissance models.

J. L. Jones Opens Store

A new store was recently opened by John L. Jones, exclusive Sonora dealer, at 1815 Coney Island avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The establishment has been attractively fitted up and plans are under way by the live proprietor for an intensive sales drive.

Formal Opening of Woodhaven Music Shop

The Woodhaven Music Shop, exclusive Victor dealer, held the formal opening of its newly remodeled and enlarged store at 9309 Jamaica avenue, Woodhaven, L. I., during the last week in October. A musical program was furnished by Maine M. Rountree and His Orchestra, which rendered a number of popular selections.

Mr. Ackerley, or “Jerry,” as he is known to his friends in the trade, is one of the live-wire Victor dealers in the metropolitan territory, and his success may be attributed to his thorough knowledge of Victor product, coupled with an exceptionally keen sense of aggressive salesmanship.

New Sonora Accounts

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora distributor for Brooklyn and Long Island, has secured several new accounts, among them being Al Bersin, 1253 Bedford avenue, and the Kern Music Shop, 292 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Wins First Prize at Fair

The Cavanora Music Shop, Riverhead, L. I., one of the most aggressive dealers in Long Island territory, was awarded first prize recently at the Riverhead Fair, which attracts thousands of visitors from all parts of Long Island territory. This successful dealer showed a very attractive booth, featuring Sonora phonographs, Edison diamond disc phonographs, Okeh records and Crosley radio receiving sets. This is the second consecutive year that the Cavanora Music Shop has been awarded first prize for its exhibit at this fair.

Clever Stunt Bringing Prospects

Prospects are being secured and interest is being aroused among owners of old talking machines by a clever stunt which is being staged by the talking machine department of the Sterling Piano Corp., of Brooklyn. The concern has arranged a special window display, announcing that a $250 Victor instrument will be given away to the person owning the oldest Victor talking machine. Considerable advertising in the local newspapers has further augmented the interest of the public. Many people owning old Victrolas have already signified their intention of entering the race. All information as to the age of the instruments already in the contest is being withheld from the public by the Sterling Piano Corp. in order to keep interest at a high pitch. This plan possesses distinct merit as a prospect producer, according to E. T.

LeTure, manager of the talking machine department, judging from the number of people owning old machines who have already entered the race for the fine new console Victor model.

Blout to Open Flushing Store

The large store at 36 Main street, which has been occupied by Irving Riesenburger as a furniture store, has been divided into two stores, and one has been leased by Emanuel Blout, who will open an establishment for the sale of Victrolas, records, pianos and musical instruments. Mr. Blout has stores in Newark, N. J.; Fordham, N. Y.; Bayonne, N. J.; Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Brooklyn.

Schweiger Bros. Add Sonora

Schweiger Bros., who operate two large talking machine establishments in Brooklyn, have recently added the Sonora line of phonographs and they are planning to feature this line in an intensive manner. This concern is considered one of the liveliest and most successful in this territory. The deal was closed by the Long Island Phonograph Co., Inc., Brooklyn.

LARGE EMERSON PHONOGRAPH SALES

Quota for Eastern States Booked Up—Emerson Records Also Going Big—Many New Dealers—Some Striking Window and Counter Features—Jewish Records Grow in Favor

An impressive indication of Eastern activity in the talking machine field is contained in a statement by the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., manufacturer of Emerson records, which shows that the sales of the new Emerson phonographs in its territory are already sufficient to cover the quota for the Eastern States to January 1. The entire Emerson line of new models has won the approval of Emerson retailers, and the movement to the consumer at this period has been greatly beyond earlier anticipations.

The sale of Emerson records since the reduction in price has shown substantial increases. The various Emerson record jobbers have added considerably to their orders each month and plans for a greatly increased production have been found necessary by the Emerson Co., not only to care for the current monthly business, but also the stimulated demand induced by the proximity of the holidays.

Several new members have been added to the sales staff of the Emerson record organization in order to care for the enlarged business, including W. R. Hall, who, for a number of years, was connected with the Pathé Radio & Phonograph Co., Inc.

The Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., issues monthly a series of attractive window strips and counter advertising material on individual record numbers. These the retailer finds are sales creators. Of particular importance to dealers handling the foreign catalog of Emerson records have been the attractive posters on the new Jewish records. The Emerson Co. has added some new Jewish stage favorites to its list of artists and under the present plans of the company six timely Jewish selections will be included in each monthly list.

The records of Bessie Weissman, the Jewish character singer, are among the most successful of the foreign selections handled by Emerson dealers. The new clarinet solos by N. Brandwine have also been found to be active sellers. Other Jewish Emerson record artists include Morris Goldstein and Michael Michalesko.

B. Abrams, president of the Emerson Co., recently stated that his organization is looking forward to one of the busiest holiday seasons in the history of the company. Retailers, he said, who have not planned far in advance to care for a heavy volume of holiday business will find themselves unable to get goods.

H. C. GAWLER WITH GENERAL RADIO

Widely Experienced in Radio Merchandising—Was Formerly With Radio Corp. of America

Harry C. Gawler, for the past three years connected with the sales department of the Radio Corp. of America, New York, has severed his connections with this company, and on November 1 joined the forces of the General Radio Co., of Cambridge, Mass., as sales promotion manager. As a radio man, in both the administrative and technical branches of the service, Mr. Gawler is well known to engineers, radio operators and a host of business men identified with the merchandising of radio apparatus. He has been identified with radio circles since 1904 when he joined the Communication Division of the Navy, and ever since that time he has taken a keen interest in radio activities.

In the World War Mr. Gawler carried the rank of captain in the First Signal Battalion of Massachusetts, and the rating of lieutenant in the U. S. N. R. F. While assigned to duty in the Azores during the war, Mr. Gawler won recognition from the Portuguese Government and was decorated with the Order Militaire de Avis for distinguished service during the influenza epidemic on the island.

"PHONO-VAUDETTE" WINS FAVOR

COVINGTON, KY., November 5.—Although it had made preparations for a record-breaking holiday trade, the Commercial Art Shop, of this city, manufacturer of "Phono-Vaudettes" has found it impossible to keep pace with the demands of the trade. The company states that orders have been received from dealers throughout the country and even from abroad, with the result that the factory is working to capacity. The use of the novel characters, such as "Shuffling Sambo," "Scotch Lassie" and others to form a group of vaudeville artists, has apparently made a popular appeal.

FAIR EXHIBIT BRINGS PROSPECTS

Exhibit Made by Robt. Meikrantz at Fair which not only was responsible for securing an active list of prospects but resulted in the closing of several sales. The booth was artistically decorated, and, as the accompanying illustration will show, the Sonora line was presented to excellent advantage.

NEW FEDERAL DISTRIBUTING PLAN

Present Plan Includes Placing Distributing Agencies in Small Cities as Well as More Important Trade Centers of the Country

ALBANY, N. Y., November 8.—The Federal Record Corp., of this city, has announced a wide plan for the national distribution of its product, the Federal record. Under the arrangements inaugurated by the company exclusive Federal dealers are to be appointed in the smaller cities and territorial allotment in the larger trade centers. By this plan it is proposed to add considerably to the present distribution of the company and also to continue retailing this record at a popular price.

The Federal catalog comprises a long list of current, vocal and instrumental selections of the popular variety and a large and comprehensive catalog of standard, classical and sacred music. The recordings often carry the name of nationally known artists and the dance selections are the work of musical combinations that make a feature of that type of program.

Besides the plan of protection to its dealers the Federal Record Corp. lays particular stress on the quality of its product, its durability and its finish. A special point is made of service to the retailer on deliveries, co-operation and definite sales plans.

The Federal Record Corp. some years back was known as the Indestructible Phonographic Record Co. Originally established in 1900, it produced for many years a cylinder record which had large sales in various parts of the country.

The personnel of the organization remains the same as when the company bore the older name. They are, therefore, record specialists of long experience, both from a technical laboratory standpoint and trade and merchandising experience.

TEACHERS LIKE CHILDREN'S RECORDS

Educational Value of Records for Children Being Recognized by Manufacturers

That children's records have other values than for mere entertainment purposes is rapidly being recognized by manufacturers of such goods. This is the result mainly of the encouragement received from teachers and others particularly interested in the development and welfare of children. This is impressively demonstrated by commendatory letters. Among the hundreds of such letters received by the Regal Record Co., Inc., manufacturer of "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes," is the following from Miss Winnie May Hill, kindergarten teacher of Macon, Ga., which speaks for itself:

"The 'Little Tots' Nursery Tunes' are delightful and I am using all I can get of them in my kindergarten. They are so clear and little children can understand the words so well. They are by far the best children's records I have ever found, and I wish to let you know how much we enjoy them every day, and that we would love to have more of them. The pictures are lovely and appeal to the children."

A PATTERN of welcoming applause as an energetic, boyish figure steps out upon the stage; two deep, sonorous piano chords; and the pensive, singing melody of the Thais "Meditation" pours from Spalding's violin.

Music lovers had to travel to the artist, until the ideals and the genius of Edison conceived the possibility of actually Re-Creating song, speech and music; until years of research and a fortune of three millions of dollars were spent in order to make that Re-Creation an established fact.

But the New Edison Phonograph now brings the world's richest, rarest musical treasures into the homes of people everywhere—it has become a great cultural influence in the home life of the nation.

And public appreciation has built up a demand that makes the Edison franchise one of the major prizes in the musical field.

*Christmas Clubs in Process of Organization—Shortage of Cheap
Models—Brisk Trade—The News*

ALBANY, N. Y., November 7.—The Albany dealers have practically all organized Christmas clubs for the sale of talking machines for delivery the week before Christmas. The plans do not vary much, all providing for initial payments of from $1 to $2.50 and a like amount in weekly payments. The plan was first tried last year by a few dealers who realized they had started too late in the season, but the result showed its value and this year nearly every dealer started his club early in October and all report gratifying returns. The problem now before them is to be able to deliver the machines before Christmas, as promised. There is a shortage of the cheaper models, but little difficulty is experienced in obtaining those of higher price. The majority of the Christmas club members have ordered the $100 models. The holiday trade in machines will be confined nearly to the club plan, but the dealers are planning extensive sales of records for Christmas gifts. The weekly release of Victor records is welcomed by the dealers, who are now able to become more familiar with the new issues and demonstrate them without waiting for the larger stock of monthly releases. Extensive advertisements are being placed in the local papers by the Victor Talking Machine Co. and the Sonora Phonograph Co., featuring the new releases.

The Baker Music House, Inc., instituted a voting contest for the most popular boy or girl November 1, to close December 1, with a bicycle as a prize. One vote is given free to each contestant and ten votes with every Columbia record sold.

The American Phonograph Co., distributor of Victor records for eastern New York, reports largely increased orders, compared with the Fall business of last year. Mr. Griffin says the new policy of the Victor Co. in price reductions and the introduction of double-faced records and more frequent releases has greatly stimulated sales for the holiday demands and hopes that the factory production will be sufficient to enable him to fill all orders.

The American Phonograph Co., 707-9 Broadway, Edison distributor, has been kept busy supplying its dealers with sufficient stock to meet the growing demand. Edison retailers are evidently taking good care not to be caught short of stock when the real pre-holiday buying gets under way. The Edison is firmly entrenched among the most popular instruments in this section of the State and the outlook for a big year-end business is excellent.

Frederick W. Tietz, Sr., the oldest music dealer in Albany, died October 27, at the age of seventy-two. The Tietz music store has been in its present location for more than a century, the business having been started by Mr. Tietz's father at 712 Broadway. The first Mr. Tietz came from Germany and began the manufacture of pianos and occasionally Albany dealers come into possession of the old Tietz grand style of instruments. Mr. Tietz was the first music dealer in New York State to sell Edison talking machines, the old models with the big horns. The first records sold by him were the round, tinfoil kind. Mr. Tietz encountered much opposition to the sale of the machines and records from musicians, who said the public taste for music would be spoiled by the crude rendering of the classics, but he lived long enough to note their change of attitude. Mr. Tietz continued to deal in the Edison and other lines of phonographs and records until his health failed, and the business has been in charge of a son, Frederick W. Tietz, Jr., the fifth generation bearing the name. He is also survived by his widow and another son, Adam Tietz, of Saginaw, Mich.

William J. Killea, South End dealer in phonographs and records, has organized the South Pearl Merchants' Association, comprising merchants in all lines in this section. He is the Association's first president. The first act of the Association was to open the stores of the section Saturday evenings. Mr. Killea reports a big sale of records each Saturday evening.

McClure & Dorwaldt are making extensive interior alterations to their store at 64 North Pearl street. A new mezzanine floor has been added, to which the offices were moved, and the record department has been moved to the front of the store. Additional space is provided in the rear for the Victrola department. The decorative scheme was changed from mahogany to ivory.

Ralph W. Jones has joined the sales force of the Strand Temple of Music.

Joseph Kennah, of the sales force of Pommer & Sons Music Store, recently resigned to accept a similar position in the Schenectady store of the Baker Music House, Inc. Mr. Kennah was succeeded by his brother Vincent.

ANNOUNCE HOME RECORDER ON PATHE

All Models of Pathé Phonographs to Be Equipped With Device for Making Records at Home—Pathé Dealers Enthusiastic

Ever since the production of the first phonograph the novelty of listening to one's own voice has maintained its appeal. A number of separate home recording devices for disc machines have appeared on the market from time to time. It has remained, however, for the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., to surprise the trade with a home recording device built as a part of the regular talking machine. Effective immediately, all models of Pathé phonographs will be equipped with a Pathé home recorder, an exclusive feature manufactured by the Pathé Co. This clever new device makes it possible for all, novice or otherwise, to make their own records in their homes and immediately after, by bringing into use the regular tone arm of the Pathé machine, it is possible to "hear your voice as others hear it." The Pathé home recorder is a separate and distinct device from the reproducing part of the machine and is installed at the left of the turntable and may be swung completely out of the way or detached when not in use. It consists of a swinging arm or bracket, a recording horn and a Pathé diamond-cut stylus. The recordings are made on a special smooth aluminum composition disc which has been named "Pathégram." As this disc is entirely smooth and ungrooved a master guide for the grooves is furnished which controls the grooving at the same time as the recording. From the initial announcement of this important, exclusive feature of Pathé machines enthusiastic congratulations were received from Pathé dealers all over the country. The opinion generally expressed was that this exclusive feature was one much in demand by the buying public and would contribute greatly towards increased machine sales.

How Pathé Home Recorder Operates

Another point of the "Pathégram" presented by the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. in its literature is as a medium of correspondence, claiming that it can be produced cheaper than a typewritten message, and will carry with it the personality of the voice of the sender. The label of the "Pathégram" suggests that the writer dictate his answer on the reverse side.

PLANNING "BANNER RECORD WEEK"

The sales and advertising departments of the Plaza Music Co., manufacturer of Banner records, have announced a "Banner Record Week," November 17 to 24 inclusive. A special campaign will be made during that period on Banner records in co-operation with the Plaza's retailers. Some very original advertising features for dealers' use will be forwarded to the trade and many special window showings of Banner records and the use of window streamers, hangers and other material to attract the consumer have been arranged.

The Abbott-Troyer Music Co. recently held the formal opening of its new store at 117 South Eighth street, St. Joseph, Mo. Souvenirs were given to all visitors.

RICHMOND

*Good Business Continues — Fine
Holiday Outlook—Consoles Lead Demand—Activities of the Month*

RICHMOND, VA., November 5.—Talking machine dealers of this city are agreed that the outlook for late Fall and Christmas trade was never better than it is this year. Practically all of them report that business during October surpassed that of any corresponding month in recent years and they feel confident that sales of both machines and records will continue to maintain a high mark the remainder of the year. Some delay is being experienced in getting goods from the factory, but this is not dampening their spirits to any appreciable extent, for they feel sure that adequate stock will be in hand by the time the holiday rush season opens up strong. One dealer is already well stocked. This firm is Walter D. Moses & Co., Victor dealer, which, in accordance with its annual custom, began stocking up the early part of the Fall season, an upper floor of its establishment being reserved for this purpose. Louis J. Heindl, head of that company, reports business at this time fully twice as good as it was at the same season last year. Considerably more cash sales are being made, while time payments are showing marked improvement, money being apparently plentiful with all classes. Consoles continue to be the leading sellers.

Edison dealers are preparing for an exceptional holiday business and they do not intend to be caught short of instruments, if the volume of orders being received by the C. B. Haynes Co., Inc., Edison distributor, may be taken as an indication. The C. B. Haynes Co. covers an extensive territory, including Virginia and the Carolinas. The Edison has made steady strides in popularity throughout this section and the demand is rapidly growing.

The weekly issuance of records has greatly stimulated sales in this line since that policy was adopted, customers calling more frequently than they used to do when the records were issued monthly. The retail department of the Corley Co. reports that sales of Victor records have been increased not only by that policy, but by the double-faced records which are to be had for a sum slightly in excess of that paid previously for two separate records. "Blues" records are the favorites with a large class of the trade.

The Colonial Piano Co., Columbia dealer, says that the "Jail House Blues" record, a new one on the market, is proving an especially good seller.

Sales of "The Song of Love," from "Blossom Time," were boosted greatly by the recent appearance of that play at the Academy of Music, many playgoers who saw the show having since made purchases of these records. Lee Fergusson, Victor dealer, reports that "Last Night on the Back Porch" is having quite a good run, with no prospect of the interest in this record abating. This dealer finds the $150 console models to be his best seller, and there is a gratifying increase in cash payments.

The Cohen Co., department store of this city, recently added a record department and is handling the Pathé line. It is the first department store here to expand in this direction and, if the venture proves satisfactory, it is thought likely that it will take on the Pathé machines also. Goldberg Bros., Pathé distributors, covering the Virginias and the Carolinas, are still pushing the sales of their concert Actuelles and report that the drive is meeting with gratifying success. One of these models is now being tried out at the Y. M. C. A. in Richmond. Several others have already been sold here in recent weeks. Orders from dealers indicate they are stocking up well for the holiday trade throughout the territory. The Pathé sapphire needle, adjusted to play soft or low, is proving popular with the trade and is helping sales of both models and records, according to dealers.

H. Wallace Carner, Starr distributor, has returned from a business trip through North Carolina and the southern section of Virginia and reports finding business picking up appreciably in that territory. "Black Sheep," a new Gennett record, is going strong, he says. Another record finding a ready sale just now is the "Land of Cotton."

Sterchi Bros., Inc., of Asheville, N. C., have taken on the representation of the Victor lines and are prepared to push them strongly. The firm recently opened a large furniture store there.

W. T. Davis, of Baltimore, factory representative of the Victor, traveling Maryland, District of Columbia and the two Virginias, was a visitor to Richmond recently. He reported business holding up strong throughout his territory.

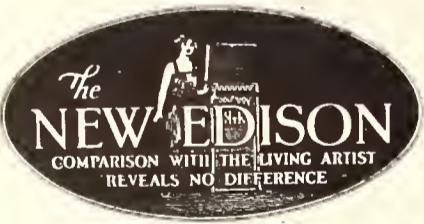

P. E. Lotz, formerly manager of the Winston-Salem, N. C., branch of the Sprinkle Piano Co., is now in charge of the Richmond branch of that company, having been transferred on October 15. He succeeds A. H. Nokes, who resigned to form a connection with a life insurance agency in Richmond. Mr. Lotz' successor at Winston-Salem is E. R. Woolidge, formerly assistant manager of the Sprinkle store there. The Richmond store is exclusive dealer for the Brunswick talking machine, having been given exclusive jurisdiction in that city within the last several months. Console models priced at $200 are in greatest demand with the Richmond trade, according to Manager Lotz.

Verbosity Often Kills Interest of Buyers

The Salesman Who Talks Too Much Destroys His Chances of Making Sales, Says Braid White—Several Concrete Illustrations

The tales that have been told about salesmen who first talked their customers into buying and then talked them out again are almost as numerous as the variations on the late B. L. T.'s valve handle wheeze. Tales of salesmen who talk too much are, in fact, altogether too numerous to be ignored.

The man who talks too much usually suffers from poor control over his nerves. If he really were master of them he would not be frightened during any part of an interview, and he would have complete control over his words. He would know precisely what he was going to say and precisely when to stop and let the other person have a bit of a say for himself. It is a strange fact, but one confirmed by the experience of every man and woman who has to deal with salesmen, that the point of view of the buyer is usually the last point to which the seller pays the slightest attention. Books are filled with all kinds of good, bad and indifferent instructions to the salesman about how to persuade or even to bully people into a purchase, but hardly anyone ever seems to stop to think that no sale is worth a hang unless the purchaser comes to realize that the thing bought is in reality something actually wanted and needed, but of which the want and the need were not at first recognized. The finest salesmanship is the salesmanship which devotes itself to proving to a prospective purchaser that the thing offered is a thing actually needed and in reality desired.

Men who talk too much are men who do not understand and cannot apply the principles of salesmanship suggested above. There are as many kinds of salesmen as there are kinds of tumble-bugs, and of all the many kinds perhaps the most inept, the most thoroughly futile for all his hard and serious work, is the conversational salesman. Him I should like to divide, metaphorically speaking, into two and consider him under two heads, as the familiar nuisance and as the nervous "buttinski."

The Familiar Nuisance

Let us, then, consider the familiar salesman. He is met often in small towns, if he is a retail man. If he is a wholesaler it is dollars to doughnuts that he only makes small towns. This sort of gentleman always approaches one closely, assumes an air of fraternal solicitude and calls one "brother." If the community is sufficiently small and sufficiently puritanical he may even call a woman "sister." In any case, he calls a man "brother," invariably, and his method is something like that of the conversational person who some three years ago happened to fall athwart me at a time when there was much talk about the housing shortage.

An Example of "Aggressiveness"

My wife and I were out together one afternoon when we found ourselves by chance upon a side street containing nothing but one row of small and singularly ugly stucco bungalows which had been run up that Summer and were now being offered for sale. [They call houses of that sort bungalows, but when I showed one of them to a brother of mine who has lived most of his life in a bungalow in the foot-hills of the Himalayas along the northeastern frontier of India, he gave one look and fainted.]

However that may be, we were walking along and when we came to this street its amazing ugliness and the extraordinary ingenuity of the builders in causing each "bungalow" to look exactly like a very poorly constructed dry-goods box so appealed to us that we felt we must have a better view. So down the street we went, and about half way along found ourselves in front of a stocky young man with what are called in the books on salesmanship a "piercing glance" and an "aggressive manner." He gave one look at us and transfixed us with a basilisk glare and laid down forthwith the following barrage:

"Good evening, people, you had better get busy and buy a 'home.' Soon there won't be any homes to buy in this whole city the way they are going and with the shortage of labor; I heard the other day there was only two hundred homes left in all the city last week, people, so you had better buy one of these while there are one or two left. Don't hesitate, brother; take the lady inside and show her one of these grand little bungalows. Just the thing for young married people like you. Soon you'll be having a third, maybe, to share it with you, eh, people? Ha, ha, but, as I was saying, there ain't no homes to be had no more, people, in this city and you'd. . . ." But we fled.

The embodiment of "aggressive salesmanship" who thus held forth never stopped once for breath between his sentences, nor did he address us two unfortunates as "people" fewer than four times in half a minute. He started at us the very moment he saw us coming and he was still talking when we escaped. He never asked once what our object might be; he never troubled to inquire about our possible wants. He simply fired off his barrage of words at us and seemed simply amazed because we only stood and stared at him without a word. We made good our retreat, fortunately—but suppose we had really wanted to look at a house, should we have been more susceptible to the possible beauties and conveniences of the buildings this young man had to sell after a fusillade of verbal fire such as I have all too faithfully transcribed above? Hardly.

That young man had, perhaps, been trained in one of the correspondence schools, whose courses tell the ambitious ploughboy thirsting for glory far from the farm that the thing to do is to "look your man in the eye" and "dominate" him with the forceful argument and convincing appeal you make. Well, I am quite certain that this young chap was trying to "dominate" me. He certainly looked me in the eye, all right. As for my wife, all she could remember afterwards was that he had compared us with a young married couple—which she thought, somewhat doubtfully, was perhaps a sincere compliment.

Of course, I know that those who sell musical instruments do not have this sort of approach laid out for them, in the nature of the case; but the point I want to make is of universal application. It may be expressed in these words of advice:

Whatever you do avoid offensive familiarity. Rather be reserved than effusive. Don't talk too much. Try to find out, first, what your customer is likely to find interesting and then lead him or her gently and unobtrusively along the path from the thing thought of to the better thing not yet thought of, but easily connected with the first.

The Nervous Buttinski

Now the second kind of salesman is the painfully nervous kind. He usually talks too much also, but the trouble with him is not in the flow of his tongue, but in his inability to avoid interrupting the prospect when the latter wants to talk, and in his tendency to butt in at the wrong moment with remarks of his own. This is an evidence of painful nervousness and the result usually of the efforts of an inexperienced man to appear old and experienced. At any moment the work of making a sale is likely to be all spoiled by one imprudent remark, for it is a case always of mental climates and atmospheres, as one might say, which are very easily disturbed. The young salesman should be on guard every minute against the fatal error of interrupting the prospect's thought. Let the prospect talk, be silent and respectful and say nothing until he or she has ceased.

Selling Is Persuasion

Making a sale is an act of persuasion. To persuade is to bring another mind to accord with one's own. That can never be done by monopolizing the conversation. Every human animal likes to hear the sound of his or her own voice. But when a sale is on, the salesman is wise who lets the other animal do the braying as much as he or she wants to. It is time enough to talk when the prospect can think of nothing more to say.

Some Thoughts on the Foreign Record Trade

A Live Western Dealer Finds Chinese Live Prospects—Romance of the Talking Machine Business —Market for Foreign Records Indicated by Steadily Increasing Production of Manufacturers

The fact that there is a market for Chinese records in this country, a market that can be realized upon by energetic dealers, was made the basis of a special article in Printers' Ink recently by Roger Davis, who told of the manner in which a Western dealer had demonstrated Chinese records before a group of local laundrymen and had closed several sales of machines and complete libraries of Chinese records.

The story made interesting reading, even though the same or similar plans have been carried out by large merchandisers in the trade for many years. It might be well for writers of business articles to give more attention to retail talking machine trade for there is real material for thought in the manner in which the international language of music is utilized in developing trade among the foreign-born.

The fact that the leading companies exploit successfully elaborate catalogs of records in foreign languages, and have been carrying on that work for years, indicates that there is a real market for such selections, and dealers are aggressive enough to go after them.

Although the playing of a group of Chinese records serves to excite Chinese laundrymen to a point where they are willing to spend real money for the records and a machine to play them on, it must not be taken as an exceptional case, for many an immigrant from Europe has been made to feel more at home in this country through the fact that the talking machine brought to him the melodies of his homeland with words in his native tongue.

There is romance in the talking machine trade, plenty of it for the man who takes the trouble to dig it out. The trouble is that those in the business itself lose sight of the romance in their anxiety to build business and in the earnest attention they give to that pursuit, but from the side lines there is material for some mighty interesting articles regarding the manner in which the foreign record catalog has been developed and sold.

When the immigrant from the heart of Russia, for instance, buffeted here and there on his journey to the land of the free and then set down in a place where all he hears is the English language, which at the outset means nothing to him, finally hears a talking machine record of some folk-song of his childhood, something he can understand, he is liable to be just a bit enthusiastic. When he buys that record and others of the same character he is not buying simply a talking machine and something to play on it. He is buying happiness and a cure for homesickness.

When the claim is made that talking machine dealers deserve to be considered something more than mere merchants, for they are really workers for the good of mankind, there are cold business men who smile and may mutter softly, "Bull." But the fact remains that when through the selling of their products they bring happiness to the foreigner within our gates, as well as to the native son, they are accomplishing something for the cause of Americanization that the average furniture or clothing dealer is not doing—the reason being obvious.

TO MAKE GENNETT RACE RECORDS

Miss Josie Miles Among Those Signed Up to Sing "Blues" for the Gennett Catalog

The Starr Piano Co., maker of the Gennett records, has taken steps to enlarge materially its catalog of "race" records of "blues" numbers, and among other things has contracted with Miss Josie Miles, of Summerville, S. C.,

Miss Josie Miles

who has never before recorded, to make a number of "blues" records for that section of the catalog.

Miss Miles, although she never made any records before, is well known among the colored artists, having been a member of the "Shuffle Along" company and other organizations presenting plays and vaudeville acts. It is said for her that her voice is particularly well adapted for recording purposes. Her first records, which are now being pressed, include: "Baby's Got the Blues" and "Kansas City Man Blues." These records will be released shortly.

SHIPS BRUNSWICK TO TOKYO

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., November 7.—Joseph A. Cramer, 17 Livingston street, this city, Brunswick dealer, has been closing an excellent Fall business, and it is stated that in proportion to merchandising possibilities his sales totals compare favorably with the figures of the leading dealers throughout the country. A recent sale closed by Mr. Cramer called for the shipment of a Brunswick phonograph to Tokyo, Japan, this instrument being purchased by a student at Rutgers College, which is located in this city.

FOTO SHOP OUTGROWS QUARTERS

Rapid Development of Trade Makes Move Imperative—Does Large Repair Business

MILWAUKEE, WIS., November 6.—The Foto Shop, of this city, John H. Becker, proprietor, which handles machines and records and a complete line of cameras and supplies, will in the latter part of this month be housed in more spacious quarters in a handsome new store at 421 Twelfth street. The move has become necessary due to the rapid expansion of business. The concern operates a large repair department in which all makes of instruments are repaired. This department has been built up until at the present time not only is a large transient repair business enjoyed but the concern also takes care of the machines of many customers, making periodical inspections. This establishment handles Starr phonographs and Gennett and Okeh records, which are growing in popularity. In its new quarters the Foto Shop will be much better situated in a sales way, as the street is a very busy one with good sales possibilities and a large number of passersby. Mr. Becker is one of the most progressive business men in the city and he has had a wide experience in the merchandising of talking machines.

KEEN ON VALUE OF WINDOW DISPLAY

A very effective use of Victor publicity, covering all forms of display cards, record lists and general literature, is that made by Schnabel Bros., talking machine dealers of 244 West 116th street, New York. These Victor posters form the background to a window display with a single Victor style, make a very striking arrangement which cannot fail to attract the attention of passersby, as it did the writer. Schnabel Bros. operate a double store, one side devoted to talking machines and the other to radio, small musical instruments and sporting goods. In the second window the Crosley radio sets are being featured to good advantage. On the whole, the Schnabel windows are so well arranged that they are well worth being copied by other dealers in New York.

BRISK PORTABLE DEMAND CONTINUES

Substantial Business Being Done in Small Instruments Disproves Idea That Portable Machines Are "Seasonal" Products

There is a continued active sale of portable talking machines, which, if it does not decrease, will entirely eliminate the former belief that such products are seasonable merchandise. There is no evidence that this continued sale has in any way interfered with the merchandising of table models. Seemingly, small machines of all kinds still have their usual quota of sales, and while the portable machine sales are not in as large a volume as during the Summer months, they are substantial in volume. Some of the portable business undoubtedly is due to the general pre-holiday stimulation of business. At any rate, the demand is in sufficient proportion to make the portable a profitable product from the standpoint of the retailer.

Among those who see a heavy and continued sale of portables is the Plaza Music Co., New York City, manufacturer of the "Pal" portable. Both the sales and advertising departments of this company have arranged plans to care for a heavy volume of business on such instruments during the next two months.
