LOCAL VICTOR DEALERS CONVENE

Interesting Session of Metropolitan Victor Dealers' Association Held on October 19—Discuss Merchandising Methods and Other Matters at Well-attended Meeting

The Metropolitan Victor Dealers' Association of New York and vicinity held a get-together luncheon at the Café Boulevard on Friday, October 19, at which there were present many of the leading Victor retailers in this section, together with the representatives of all of the Victor distributors in metropolitan territory. Matthew Levin, president of the Association, officiated as toastmaster and among the speakers were Moe Goldsmith, secretary of the organization, and the representatives of the Victor distributors.

Mr. Levin in his introductory talk emphasized the ideals and aims of the Association and introduced Mr. Goldsmith, who gave the dealers and their guests a practical discussion as to the past, present and future of the Victor business in New York and vicinity. Mr. Goldsmith called attention to certain fundamental problems of retail merchandising which he stated were confronting Victor dealers everywhere, and solutions for these problems were advanced by the Victor jobbers' representatives. Among those who made addresses were W. J. Haussler, C. Bruno & Son, Inc.; Fred P. Oliver, Blackman Talking Machine Co.; J. J. Davin, Musical Instrument Sales Co.; Lloyd L. Spencer and V. W. Moody, Silas E. Pearsall Co., and R. H. Morris, American Talking Machine Co.

Talking machines and records are being put to a new use in the public schools of Huntington, Ill., which are using them in fire drills.

Excellent Outlook for Big Holiday Business—Edison Exhibit at Pure Food Show—News of Month

OMAHA, NEB., November 7.—October business, according to all reports, bears out the promise of the early Fall as to an increased volume of trade. Crops in the surrounding territory have been excellent, and this has stimulated trade along every line, in consequence of which dealers are declaring themselves well pleased with present conditions and predict unusually heavy late Fall and early Winter business.

Interesting Display at Pure Food Show

The Omaha Pure Food Show, which was held in the city auditorium under the auspices of the World-Herald, was very largely attended, and Schultz Bros., Edison jobbers, who have recently added an electrical department to their store at Sixteenth and Howard streets, had a large display of Edison phonographs, among which the "Baby Console" proved very attractive to the visitors at the booth. N. F. Tuttle, formerly with the phonograph department of the Brandeis stores, has recently joined the sales force of Schultz Bros. Mr. Tuttle is a live wire as a salesman and will prove a valuable addition to the force.

Prepare for National Music Week

National Music Week will be observed from May 4 to 10, 1924. The City Concert Club has changed its "Music Week," observed during the annual Thanksgiving week, to the Spring season to conform to the new plan of having a uniform Music Week throughout the country. All music dealers, as well as music teachers, movie managers, ministers and persons interested in music, have been requested to bear this date in mind.

Ben Brodkey, manager and part owner of the State Furniture Co., which maintains a large and flourishing phonograph department, reports that they have had an exceptionally fine trade in Brunswick talking machines. While the console type is the favorite, this firm has had a splendid trade in cabinet types.

Takes on the Cheney Phonograph Line

The Oakford Music Co. has just announced that, beginning with November 1, it will handle the Cheney talking machine exclusively. In consequence the company is disposing of all the talking machine lines formerly carried.

The Victor and the Teachers

The Nebraska Teachers' Association met in Omaha the week of October 29 to November 2 and Mickel Bros., Victor jobbers, took cognizance of this event by preparing exhibits of educational records and distributing some excellent literature among the teachers relative to their use. Various Victor dealers throughout the city extended an invitation to the visiting teachers to come in and see a demonstration of some of the new educational records. Three thousand teachers were in attendance from all over the State and Mickel Bros. expect this event to speed up the record business for their out-State dealers, as well as for Omaha firms handling the records.

Okeh Records in Great Favor

Popular records are still selling as leaders, according to R. L. Lincoln, manager of the Rialto Shop, Okeh record dealer. However, various dealers in records claim that there has been an increase in the sale of high-grade records during the past month, due, in part, to the demand for numbers sung by Rosa Ponselle and Sigrid Onegin, both of whom appeared in concert in Omaha during October. Music lovers are also trying to secure records made by the Ukrainian Chorus, which made such a favorable impression here last year and which is to appear in this city in concert again during the late Fall.

The phonograph department of the Brandeis Stores, under the management of P. G. Spitz, has recently had a record sale of Columbia phonographs. Mrs. E. Albertson has recently returned to the record department of this store, after taking an extended vacation.

Miss Lois Ferrin, manager of the talking machine department of the Burgess-Nash stores, states that October has been an excellent month in reference to the volume of business, as compared to the previous month. They are showing some beautiful new Cheney models, and their Brunswick trade has been strong. The special sale of Emerson phonographs which they featured recently was a great success.

EXCEL PLANT WORKING OVERTIME

I. A. Lund a Recent Visitor to New York—Excel Phonograph Plant Working Night and Day in an Effort to Meet Demand

A recent visitor to New York was I. A. Lund, sales manager of the Excel Phonograph Co., Chicago, Ill., who called upon the trade in Eastern points. In a chat with The World he reported a remarkably active condition of business at the factory—in fact, orders in hand are of such volume that it has been necessary to put on a night force in addition to a full day force, and thus the plant is working day and night in an effort to turn out sufficient machines to fill the needs of the trade. At the present time the company is virtually sold out for some months to come. It is hoped, however, that with the present producing schedule it will be possible to catch up with the present volume of orders after Christmas. Mr. Lund reports a most active call for the console types of phonographs made by this company, which, by reason of their finish, equipment and tone resources, have won particular favor.

Mr. Lund, who is one of the best-informed men on phonograph production and the industry generally, had a very pleasant stay in the metropolis. From here he wended his way Westward via Philadelphia.

TRADE OPTIMISM CONTINUES DESPITE SPOTTY BUYING CAUSED BY UNUSUALLY MILD WEATHER

Peculiar Condition in the Trade Is That While Some Sections Are Busy Others Are in Lethargic State—Important Retail Changes—Live Dealer Cashes in on Schools—Month's News Budget

PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 7.—Anomalous conditions exist in the talking machine business in its entirety, although, when they are considered along the lines of the several divisions of the business, the apparent contradiction disappears. To get from the abstract to the concrete: wholesalers fortunate enough to be in possession of adequate stock of popular models of nationally advertised makes are doing what really can be called a rushing business. In sharp contrast, jobbers stocked up with the lesser-known makes or with other than the popular numbers of the widely known brands report that business is sluggish. Retailers located in the anthracite coal regions or in territory commercially related to it are overwhelmed with orders, and the limit to the amount of business which they can do seems to be placed only by their ability to get goods. On the other hand, retailers in the purely agricultural sections of Pennsylvania and adjacent States whose metropolitan market is Philadelphia find buying of a very spotty character, with no particular tendency in either direction. Likewise in this city the neighborhood dealers in the textile districts are doing a very much restricted business although those in most of the purely residential sections, and particularly those inhabited by the wealthy classes, find trading quite up to normal for this season of the year. In a general way, those who are not doing the business they expected to do are still of the opinion that the quietness is of a transient character and that a not unimportant element in it has been the unseasonably warm weather of the last week. They are confident that the appearance of cold weather will tone up the market and will usher in a very satisfactory holiday business.

Important Changes in Retail Field

Because of the retirement from the talking machine business, which he followed for many years, and in order to devote all his time to the real estate field, Monroe M. Johnson has disposed of the two establishments he formerly conducted under the title of the Monroe M.

Johnson Co. The new owner of the branch at 2530 West Lehigh avenue is E. Louis Stapf, formerly connected with the machine order department of the Victor Co. Mr. Stapf will sell Victor talking machines and records and a general line of musical merchandise. He has made many improvements to the store, enlarging the booths, advancing the display rooms to the front, making the windows attractive with hardwood floors and redecorating the entire establishment.

Wilson Co. Acquires Germantown Ave. Store

The second talking machine store, formerly conducted by the M. M. Johnson Co., has been purchased by the J. R. Wilson Co., which will conduct the business in a newly renovated store in the Johnson Building, 5439 Germantown avenue. Negotiations for the sale and transfer of the merchandise and franchise were conducted by the Penn Phonograph Co., Victor distributor, this city. The Wilson Co. is equipping the new store with standard Wilson equipment and expects the booths, record racks and musical merchandise cases to be fully installed this week. This makes four stores that the Wilson Co. is now operating.

Pomeroy's Music Hall Formally Opened

Music Hall, the name given by Pomeroy, Inc., of Harrisburg, Pa., the largest department store in the interior of Pennsylvania, to its very much enlarged musical department, an outstanding feature of which will be the taking on of the Brunswick line, was most auspiciously opened on November 8 with the all-day appearance of Carl Sutton and his celebrated orchestra, and in the evening a banquet was held in conjunction with the Kiwanis Club, with O. F. Jester, manager of the Brunswick branch in this city, as special guest. The complete line of models made by the company was given the honor place in the exhibit and reception to which several thousand Pomeroy patrons from Harrisburg and all the surrounding towns were invited. S. J. Jenkins is in charge of the amplified musical department.

The Brunswick Co. during the month also installed its machines and records in the establishment of the Roebling Piano Co., one of the oldest houses in the trade in Wilmington, Del., of which W. E. Holland is president. Manager Jester has just returned from a very satisfactory trip through Pennsylvania, with Bethlehem, Easton and Allentown the focal points.

Builds Big School Trade

Fruits of the development in Williamsport schools and in those of the country sections surrounding of a fallow field for talking machines in teaching and the attractions to the youthful mind of talking machine entertainment now are being enjoyed by M. H. Housel, head of the company bearing his name, and the leading Victor dealer of the section. Being thoroughly imbued with a realization of the possibilities of Victor machines and records for teaching to both teacher and pupils, and being possessed of an unlimited enthusiasm, Mr. Housel did pioneer missionary work in persuading the members of the Williamsport Board of Education and the School Commissioners of the county to introduce machines and records in all the classrooms from the kindergarten to the most advanced grades. Moreover, for the rural schools a selection of Victor records along the line of agricultural instruction and entertainment helped the good work along. Use of machines and records is now an established element of the county and city educational establishments.

Enjoy Halloween Party

Halloween festivities, delayed but none the less enjoyable, attracted to the phonograph department of the Estey Co., Seventeenth and Walnut streets, on the second floor of the Estey Building, on November 3, 200 members of the organization, their families and friends. Included in the program were renditions of Victor, Sonora and Cheney records. The stairway leading to the ballroom was converted into a harvest field with cornstalks and pumpkins lining the way up to the upper hall. Owls and pumpkin lanterns suspended from the ceiling and contrasting with the yellow and orange colors of Halloween were used in decorating the room. The evening's entertainment consisted of Estey store talent in solos, quartets, recitations and Music was furnished by an orchestra, while the prize awards were made by Mrs. P. M. Quimby, head of the phonograph department. Those who arranged the entertainment were Ronald Wyse, talking machine department; Thomas Power, advertising manager; Gerald L. Quimby, radio department, and Alice Plyvel, of the office force. Guests from the New York offices were: President G. W. Gittens, Hy. Eilers, O. C. Stone and A. Dalrymple, of the Estey Co.

John Snyder Again With Heppe

After an absence of five years John Snyder has again joined the wholesale talking machine department of the C. J. Heppe Co. Mr. Snyder will take over his old territory, covering Philadelphia. Wedding bells rang during the week for Miss Mabel Ziegler, daughter of H. S. Ziegler, head of the wholesale talking machine department, who became Mrs. Clarence Hutton.

Pushing Vocalion Christmas Records

Vocalion Christmas records are being featured by the Lincoln Business Bureau, 1011 Race street, in its campaign of special distribution, in order to give the trade an opportunity to hear the three special leaders of the advance list. They are "The Night Before Christmas," by Lewis James, in two parts, and the combination record containing "The Star of Bethlehem," by Charles Harrison, and the "Voice of Chimes," by the Criterion Quartet. D. H. Rogers, head of the firm, is now placing two salesmen on the road to take care of the holiday demands.

Harold B. Cregar Promoted

Harold B. Cregar, formerly assistant to Manager Earl G. Dare, of the record department of the Penn Phonograph Co., has been advanced to record ordering clerk, taking over the duties of Victor E. Moore, who resigned during the month. Mr. Cregar has been with the firm since 1915. At first he was outside salesman, visiting the Philadelphia trade, and in 1918 took the road. The Penn Co. has distributed among the dealers attractive posters calling attention to the fact that in the Vicor list are four numbers taken from "Chauve Souris," the sensational Russian importation now playing at the Schubert Theatre, including the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers."

Nathan Worth Reopens Improved Store

The Louis Buehn Co., 835 Arch street, said it with flowers in expressing the firm's congratulations to Nathan Worth and his two sons, who conduct the only Victor agency in their town and who have just made extensive improvements in their talking machine department. In celebration of the reopening the firm had special concert selections and the new window was artistically arranged, featuring Victrolas. Vice-president Charles W. Miller, of the Buehn Co., made an extensive trip to the trade in the northeastern part of the State, renewing old acquaintances, and has returned again to headquarters.

Girard Co. Staff Visits Thos. A. Edison

Five members of the staff of the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor of this city, together with P. R. Hawley, general manager, met with Thomas A. Edison at his Orange, N. J., laboratories recently to discuss plans for promoting new business throughout the Philadelphia territory.

Mr. Edison spent several hours outlining various original sales plans with which he is now experimenting, and the Philadelphia distributors came away much elated at what they had heard. The remainder of the day was spent inspecting the laboratories and the various processes of manufacture, and was followed by a dinner tendered the visitors by the officials of the Edison Co. Those in the party, in addition to Mr. Hawley, were A. W. Rhinow, assistant to Mr. Hawley; W. C. Stiver, A. W. Merrihew, A. L. Stott and C. E. Greniger.

Guarantee Co. Adds 200 New Dealers

The Guarantee Talking Machine Supply Co., of this city, reports that it has added over 200 new dealers to its list within the past few months, a visible proof of the steady growth of the company. Guarantee springs are now being boxed separately under the "Guarantee" label. Before long it is expected that the "Guarantee" trade mark will be stamped on each individual spring, thus identifying the product. Upon the completion of this change it is planned to put into effect a guarantee system whereby entire satisfaction may be guaranteed in the event of a possible defect and an exchange made.

General Radio Publicity Drive Starts

"The Musical Instrument of Radio" is the manner in which the Music Master Horn is aptly described in the first full-page announcement of the big national publicity campaign now being conducted by the General Radio Corp., of this city. This page appeared in the Saturday Evening Post in October and immediately upon its appearance created considerable favorable comment on the part of both the talking machine and radio trades. From a literary, artistic and typographical standpoint this advertisement ranks among the most attractive produced and was the result of a series of conferences between Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the General Radio Corp., and five members of the staff of the J. H. Cross Co., advertising agent for the General Radio Corp. As it can be safely expected that the succeeding advertisements of the campaign will compare favorably with the initial announcement, this publicity undoubtedly will increase the demand for the products of the General Radio Corp.

Business thus far this year has been exceptional. August was the greatest month in the history of the organization, as was previously announced. It is interesting to note that September business increased 50 per cent over August, and October another 50 per cent over September. A financial statement, which was recently prepared, visualizes the present healthy financial condition of the company and augurs well for the future.

H. F. Miller Works for Charity

H. F. Miller, vice-president of the Penn Phonograph Co., Victor distributor, this city, was an indefatigable worker in the money-raising campaign of the Welfare Federation conducted in this city from October 24 to November 5. This campaign constituted the combined efforts of 130 charitable institutions of the city and received the whole-hearted support of local business men. Mr. Miller was selected as a captain of one of the campaign teams.

A. J. Caterson With Everybody's

The volume of business being done by Everybody's Talking Machine Co., this city, in talking machine parts has reached the point where the services of a traffic manager were found to be an absolute necessity. A. J. Caterson, Jr., a professional traffic manager of many year's experience, has been appointed to that important position. The work of an executive of this character is found to be of exceptional assistance to the shipper of merchandise. Through the careful routing of shipments several days are often saved in the receipt of merchandise as well as money saved in the cost of delivery. The appointment of Mr. Caterson to this position at the beginning of the heavy Fall and holiday business will be a service that will be felt and appreciated by all the dealers doing business with Everybody's Talking Machine Co., and is still further evidence of the growth of the Everybody's organization.

N. Snellenburg & Co. Add to Sales Force

Announcement has just been made by Everett W. Keefe, manager of the Edison department of N. Snellenburg & Co., that he has added four new salespeople to his rapidly growing staff. These include: John A. Usher, who was formerly connected with N. Snellenburg & Co. as an Edison salesman and who has just returned to the same capacity after an absence of two years in the West. Mr. Usher entered the music publishing field two years ago and traveled considerably, with the result that he has added greatly to his already wide acquaintanceship among Edison dealers and the trade in general.

Raymond Crawford, formerly with the local Dictaphone branch of the Columbia Co., has also allied himself with the Snellenburg house under

Mr. Keefe's direction. Mr. Crawford has spent many years in the musical field in and around Philadelphia, which should prove a decided asset to him in promoting sales in that city and its suburbs.

Miss Mary Heyburn, who has already had experience in the musical field, has been placed in complete charge of the re-creation department and will devote most of her time to re-creation customers.

Miss Eleanor Brunt, who has been with N. Snellenburg & Co. for a little more than a year, has been appointed assistant to Mr. Keefe in charge of the offices and will direct the mail service to owners which is being conducted on a large scale by the department.

Well Pleased With Trade Outlook

The Louis Buehn Co., Victor distributor, finds that the business of its dealers is improving steadily as the Fall season progresses. The retailers are putting themselves whole-heartedly behind the weekly releases and are, accordingly, substantially increasing their volume of record business. A number of visitors have called at the headquarters of the Louis Buehn Co., on Arch street, during the past month, among them being Elmer B. Hunt, of the Portland branch of Sherman, Clay & Co., and M. Housel, of the M. H. Housel Co., Williamsport, Pa. The Louis Buehn Co. has taken on the Audak agency for its territory. Inquiries for this demonstrating device have been received from a number of prominent dealers and a large demand for Audaks is expected.

Philadelphia Badge Co. Products in Demand

The record cleaners, combination needle container and record cleaner, and other devices produced by the Philadelphia Badge Co., are now found to be receiving world-wide recognition. Orders are being received from all over the world, until there is not a country on the globe to which these cleaners have not been sent. In several instances, J. Abrahams, president of the company, reports that these foreign houses have simply clipped the advertisement from The Talking Machine World and sent their orders in without the formality of first requesting a sample.

Special Shipping Case for Edison Salesmen

If there are to remain any merchants in the territory covered by the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor in this city, who are not familiar with the Edison phonograph it will not be the fault of that company's staff of field representatives.

Each of the company's four representatives has been provided with a specially built shipping case sufficiently large to hold a $295 upright model of Chippendale design. These are

Since the plan was inaugurated a few weeks ago several new dealers have already been reported and the Girard Phonograph Co. is highly elated over its success.

Now a Departmental Feature

The phonograph business, formerly the exclusive feature of the Davies Phonograph Co., in both the stores at 534 West York street and 4231 Germantown avenue, is now converted into a department of the expanded furniture store which has been opened at the West York street address, and which may be the development of the Germantown avenue establishment as well. Although the furniture sales will be the main feature of future business, the sales of Sonora and Edison phonographs will remain as a departmental activity. The proprietor, J. Harry Davies, has been in business many years.

Todd's Store Being Re-equipped

The name "Todd" is thoroughly impressed on piano and record buyers of Philadelphia, so much so that an expansion in his sales facilities has become necessary. In addition to some improvements in his first floor facilities the Unit Construction Co., of this city, has just installed a second floor talking machine and piano display room that increases his capacity for service almost 50 per cent and a big jump in sales is expected.

Dealers Tie Up With Paul Specht

Columbia dealers in this city made a great tie-up with Paul Specht and His Orchestra, exclusive Columbia artists, when they appeared recently at Keith's Theatre in this city. The Philadelphia branch employes attended the opening night performance in a body, and a new Columbia phonograph, together with proper signs, was placed in the lobby of the theatre and remained there the entire week of the performance. The attraction was further broadcasted by large signs, featuring Paul Specht's appearance, which were displayed on Columbia delivery trucks.

Chandler & Neuman, Columbia dealers, Fresno, Cal., secured prospects and made sales through a display at the Fresno County Fair.

PROGRESS OF CHENEY SALES CORP.

Cheney Resonator, Live House Organ of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., Pays Tribute to Its Distributor in Eastern Territory

In the October issue of the Cheney Resonator, the official organ of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., Chicago, the remarkable progress and accomplishments of the Cheney Sales Corp., Eastern distributor of the Cheney line, are described, and glowing tribute is paid to its president, G. Dunbar Shewell, in an article captioned "Cheney Sales Corp. Does Wonderful Work; G. Dunbar Shewell, His Son and His Able Assistants Are Making the Cheney a Power in Eastern Talking Machine Trade."

G. Dunbar Shewell

It is pointed out that the Cheney Sales Corp., although starting in a modest way, now has offices located in Philadelphia, Boston and New York, with sales organizations that have grown tremendously, as was necessary to cover the broad territory which is its field. G. Dunbar Shewell, president, is in every sense an executive, in touch with every detail of his large organization. He has, therefore, become somewhat of a nomad, traveling between the various offices, which he does regularly each week. Mr. Shewell has sprung from an old Philadelphia family and was in the music business for many years prior to his formation of the Cheney Sales Corp. His knowledge of local Eastern conditions, plus that of the music industry, well fits him for his present position. Another instance of Mr. Shewell's executive ability is that he has surrounded himself in each office with associates of the highest caliber.

who is associated with his father and gives most of his time to advertising, general publicity and the organization of sales methods and campaigns throughout the extensive territory of the company.

On the first page are also shown the handsome new display rooms and offices of the Philadelphia branch of the Cheney Sales Corp., which were recently opened in the new Jefferson Building, that city. Both Mr. Shewell, Jr., and senior have their headquarters in these offices, together with D. H. Fulmer, local manager. At the same time there are shown illustrations of the Cheney departments of two of the large Philadelphia department stores, Strawbridge & Clothier and John Wanamaker, both served by the Cheney Sales Corp.

An article on "How Not to Sell—A Tale of Weird Adventure in Three Shocks" is an interesting story written by Mr. Shewell, describing his efforts at buying in another branch of the music business, with a pertinent epilogue. Of interest to the trade at large are findings presented by Mr. Shewell, entitled "Why and How Business Will Be Good This Winter," in which he analyzes the prospects and finds them good. Summing up Mr. Shewell's reasons in short form, he presents the following as the result of his analysis: First, everybody is optimistic; second, the public buying power is as great as it ever was, if not actually greater than ever; third, dealers are roused to see that they must work harder to get business.

One of the most recent music stores to open in Northampton, Mass., is The Record Shop, 181 Main street. The proprietor is J. H. Meisse, who is specializing in records. Hallet & Davis phonographs also are handled.

Retailers Fear Shortage of Most Popular Instruments—Outlook Promising for Big Holiday Rush—Trade Activities of the Month

MILWAUKEE, Wis., November 7.—There is no fear among Milwaukee talking machine men that business in November and December will not be good or that it will not outstrip by a healthy margin the best holiday season on record. The only fear that exists is among the men selling the more popular and best-advertised lines, for the shortage which was predicted at mid-Summer and repeated ever since that time already has become an actuality, and the jobbing trade here is now confronted by the problem of allocating their supplies among their retailers. It is safe to say that by Christmas Eve there will be few, if any, instruments left on the sales or warehouse floors.

Victor Shortage

"With our factories working night and day they do not seem to be able to give us enough instruments," said Harry Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. "We are sorely behind on scheduled deliveries right now and some of the most popular sellers are not coming in in sufficient numbers to give dealers all they need to cover current orders. Business is just fine, with the possible exception of the shortage of merchandise that is staring us in the face. The country districts are waking up after a rather quiet Summer and city dealers are figuratively selling their heads off. I do not know that Milwaukee is any exception, but trade here is mighty satisfactory."

Enthusiastic Over Sonora Prospects

Fred E. Yahr, president of Yahr & Lange, and Irving S. Leon, sales manager of the musical merchandise division, spoke with much enthusiasm of immediate and prospective business. This big Sonora wholesale house, which also distributes the Okeh and Odeon records, has achieved extraordinary success in the lower Michigan territory, which was added to its jurisdiction two months ago. Business in the old territory of Wisconsin and upper Michigan is exceeding every past mark and the holiday season is confidently looked upon as the biggest in history. "We are going like the proverbial house afire," said Manager Leon, speaking of October business and the volume piled up so far in November. "Our only worry is getting all the goods we must have by December 20, so that our loyal dealer organization will be satisfied. Our retailers are putting across a splendid line of business. Wisconsin enjoys a peculiarly good position which is helping to make good talking machine business better even in the rural districts. The Wisconsin farmer is not grumbling like his fellow in the one-crop wheat States. Corn and oats are the big crops, and they are bringing good prices.

But it is not grain, but dairying that is the backbone of Wisconsin agriculture, and farmers have ample funds to buy more than the bare necessities. In Milwaukee, the city of diversified industries, every able-bodied man who wants to work is busy. Our factories are running along in great shape and there is no unemployment. More dwellings have been built here in the past season than ever before in history, and every new home furnishes a live prospect for a talking machine. These parts are a wonderful field for the Sonora, I am here to say!"

Among several new salesmen added by Yahr & Lange is Harry M. Hahn, who returns to the company as manager of the retail talking machine department, after several years with the Milwaukee Piano Mfg. Co.

Yahr & Lange were among the leading exhibitors at the annual Food, Household and Electrical Exposition held here, in connection with which they staged a local Sonora Week, which is described on another page of this issue.

New Columbia Models Popular

The new Columbia models are attracting a ready response to intensive sales cultivation, while the Columbia record is selling at a rate heretofore unknown. The smaller, as well as the larger, dealers in Milwaukee are full of praise of the status of Columbia in popular esteem. Jack Kapp, record supervisor at the Chicago branch, called on the local trade a few days ago and was very much pleased with conditions.

Brunswick Demand Exceeds Supply

P. H. McColloch, manager of the talking machine division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.'s Milwaukee branch headquarters, has been making numerous trips across Lake Michigan to Muskegon to speed up deliveries, for which dealers in the Wisconsin and upper Michigan territory are crying. His visits into the field and the opinions given by dealers who recently have visited the branch house confirm the belief that November and December will turn over the heaviest volume the Brunswick line has ever had in this part of the country. The Brunswick record has become a serious contender for the right to be classed as "the most popular."

J. B. Bradford Branch in New Home

The J. B. Bradford Piano Co., 411 Broadway, moved its South Side store into its permanent new quarters at 608 Mitchell street, on October 20. The store is almost a duplicate, in miniature, of its downtown store. A Victor franchise has been secured for the South Side store. Heretofore the Victor has been handled at the main store only. The Brunswick and Vocalion thus are given a most amiable but aggressive companion in the Bradford branch.

Celebrates Fortieth Anniversary

Edmund Gram, Inc., is celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of its business in 1883. Mr. Gram, who has just turned sixty, is one of the imposing figures in the American music trade. He was the first Cheney talking machine dealer in this city and also handles the Brunswick and Columbia. The business has a record for development along steady substantial lines equalled by few similar merchandising enterprises in this country. Clean business has brought about this result.

Record Edison Demand

Edison dealers in Milwaukee are enjoying excellent business and, with the support of more advertising and other promotion, have built up the largest volume this line has ever experienced in Milwaukee.

Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co.'s Display Best

The Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., dealer in the Victor, Edison and Brunswick, was awarded the premier honors for the beauty of its display at the recent fifth annual Food, Household and Electrical Exposition, held in the mammoth Milwaukee Auditorium. Practically every make of talking machine was represented in the music division, which was combined in Juneau Hall, one of the smaller ground floor rooms just off the main arena. All of these displays were beautiful and the judges reported that it was a most difficult task to make a selection of the best.

A $750 Sonora offered by the exposition management as second prize in a State-wide contest among amateur orchestras was given the Bach Orchestra, of Madison, Wis.

KENT CO. RUSHED TO MEET DEMAND

The F. C. Kent Company, 67 Grace street, Irvington, N. J., manufacturer of the well-known Kent adaptor and other products, including tone arms and sound boxes, has found it necessary in recent weeks to add considerably to its manufacturing force, the demand of the trade for the Kent adaptor having increased over 40 per cent during the Fall season, according to the records of the sales department. In order to make deliveries on the other Kent products it will be necessary for the factory to work its force overtime between now and the holidays.

JAMES W. BRIGHT IN NEW POST

CINCINNATI, O., November 7.—James W. Bright, formerly connected with the Cincinnati Brunswick branch as a salesman, and later with the Cleveland Brunswick organization, has been made manager of the new Brunswick department of Alms & Doepke, which opened here on November 1. Mr. Bright is a man of exceptional ability and his wide experience in the talking machine business should prove a valuable asset to the new concern.

Cutting and Washington Radio Receiver 11C—cabinet design console type. Completely self-contained, a three-tube set that has proved in comparative tests to have higher selectivity and volume than any other instrument in its class.

A moderate-priced Cabinet Receiver—Console Type

Here at last is the instrument which enables the talking machine dealer to enter confidently into the radio business, feeling that he is now assured of success.

Designed by Cutting and Washington, two of America's best-known radio engineers, pioneer manufacturers of radio equipment—a concern with strong financial backing that has a reputation for service. This new instrument is the leader of the C. & W. line, which covers all ranges of price. All sets licensed under the Armstrong Patents—admittedly the best for radio reception.

Dealers securing the C. & W. franchise are given territorial protection and backing by a comprehensive advertising campaign.

Secure the details at once and be in position to profit by the radio business this Fall and Winter.

Cutting and Washington Receiver 12A—"Town and Country" model (portable type). A two-tube set which makes an ideal receiver both for the home and for outing use. For either single circuit or double circuit.

Cutting and Washington Radio Receiver 11A—similar in mechanical design to the receiver used in the cabinet model but of the box type—an instrument that has already had a big sale all over the country.

CLEVELAND

Planning Next Year's Convention—Jobbers Aiding Dealers by Timely Sales Helps—L. Meier & Sons' Anniversary—The News

CLEVELAND, O., November 7.—Unity of music trade interests is being demonstrated at this time here in the combination of forces of the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio and the Cleveland Music Trade Association to make the convention of the Music Merchants' Association of Ohio, to be held in Cleveland next September, the biggest event of its kind ever attempted. The two local factions represent the talking machine and piano interests, which are combined largely in the State Association.

At meetings held during the last few weeks a strong committee has been appointed. This is headed by George M. Ott, the G. M. Ott Piano Mfg. Co. With him are Harry P. Valentine, Henry Dreher and William G. Bowie, the Dreher Piano Co.; Edward B. Lyons, the Eclipse Musical Co.; George R. Madison, the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co.; Louis Meier, the L. Meier & Sons Co.; Otto C. Muehlhauser, the Muehlhauser Bros. Piano Co.; C. H. Randolph, Randolph House of Good Music; A. B. Smith, the A. B. Smith Piano Co., Akron, and Rexford C. Hyre, association secretary.

Launch Drive for Funds

At first an elaborate program of musical events was planned, in order to raise funds to defray convention expenses. These were outlined at previous meetings. At the first meeting of the committee, however, it was seen that sufficient funds may be raised right within the local bodies and a campaign has been started to raise that fund. If additional money is needed, and this will be known by the end of November, the program as outlined originally will then be considered.

Jobbers Co-operating

Meanwhile jobbing factors are doing more than their bit to assist the dealer in getting started right for the 1923-1924 season. One unusual effort in this direction has been instituted by the Eclipse Musical Co. Large framed window cards have been prepared for use by all Cleveland Victor dealers. These cards tell that the Philip Spitalny Orchestras in the Hanna and Grebe restaurants and in the Allen Theatre will play at least two Victor record selections during each week. In the restaurants cards will be hung up when these record selections are being played. On the framed window cards a blank space has been left and here the dealer can attach extra small strips with the selections printed thereon. This will mean that much publicity will be given to certain records by one of the leading musical directors of the city, and give the dealer a chance to cash in in a manner he has not had before. Moreover, the records will be distributed on the Friday preceding the Sunday on which they will be played at the different gathering places, giving the dealer two Saturdays in which to do business.

Edison Tone-tests

The tone-tests that have been a feature of Phonograph Co. activities in the distribution of the Edison will be a feature again this year. Arrangements have been completed by E. S. Hershberger, secretary, for a series in and near Cleveland for Edison dealers. It is planned to have twelve such concerts, starring Miss Elizabeth Spencer, soprano; Miss Lucille Collette, piano, and Harold Lyman, flute. Their appearances in Cleveland will be in Glenville Auditorium, by Dealer F. W. Rose, and on the West Side by Dealer George C. Lang.

Stresses Importance of Timeliness

To help dealers increase their record sales, timeliness is being emphasized by the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. Every day wherein something unusual in music has developed, regardless of its significance, that development is capitalized. A brief statement covering the event and records that are appropriate to the occasion are listed on a post card and sent to dealers. This series has not only stimulated record sales, but is giving the dealer strong talking points that lead to sales of the better class of selections, according to W. D. Sayle, member of the Cleveland Co.

Another Aid to Dealers

Another aid to dealers, one that usually cannot be bought at any price, has been inspired by C. H. Kennedy, local distributing representative of the Bush & Lane Duo Vox. The Sunday editor of a newspaper in a nearby city was so impressed with the musical qualities of this instrument that he decided to make a first-page story, with pictures, for the magazine section.

Carola Accounts Result of Exhibit

In the recent National Exposition, held at Public Hall, one of the exhibitors was the Carola Co., with N. I. Schwartz, general manager, in charge. The exposition attracted merchants from distant points and, according to Mr. Schwartz, numerous new accounts among the retailers were opened. Shipments to these new dealers were made daily during the exposition as soon as orders were received.

Brunswick Get-together

What looks like an annual event for Brunswick dealers may be seen in the second get-together held by the local Brunswick district office at the Hotel Winton. The event marked the return to the Cleveland district of the Oriole Orchestra, for a month's propaganda work in this vicinity, their first appearance this time being in the Winton Rainbow Room. More than 200 dealers and their associates, coming from all parts of this territory, attended. During the early part of the day they visited local Brunswick headquarters, where they viewed the latest models and incidentally placed orders for a total of 520 machines, according to Leslie I. King, district manager of the phonograph division. Here also they obtained first-hand information on business conditions generally and on the talking machine trade particularly from J. F. Ditzell, sales promotion manager. In the afternoon the visitors went about the city and in the evening they attended the dinner dance at the Winton.

Changes in the staff of the Brunswick in this territory include the appointment of F. H. Burbec, formerly with the C. C. Miller Co., Pittsburgh Victor distributor, for Pittsburgh territory. Maurice Sternlick will handle the Syracuse, N. Y., section.

L. Meier & Sons' Anniversary

Probably the biggest undertaking by an individual dealer will be the presentation, for two performances, of the Eight Famous Victor Artists by the L. Meier & Sons Co., Victor dealer, in the largest West Side theatre in town. This event will hold forth toward the end of November to celebrate the firm's twenty-sixth anniversary, which will be held during the greater part of the month. Prizes, including twenty-six Victrolas, will be given away each day. Balloons will be sent aloft with lucky numbers attached. Music will be a weekly feature during the celebration. The intrepid Louis Meier, head of the firm, is being complimented by dealers from distant points for his astuteness in bringing the Artists' aggregation to Cleveland. The Artists have been heard here before, but it was an association effort that brought them here, not an individual dealer's ability and nerve.

Merchants' Meeting to Be Social Affair

To strengthen the talking machine faction in the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio, the November meeting, on the nineteenth, will be made a social affair, with a dinner dance in the Georgian Room of the Hotel Cleveland. The committee handling this event includes Dan C. Baumbaugh, the May Co.; Edward B. Lyons, the Eclipse Musical Co.; William G. Bowie, the Dreher Piano Co.

Columbia Artists Aid Record Sales

Ted Lewis and his jazz artists were guests of S. S. Larmon, branch manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co., while that aggregation was in town. While here Mr. Lewis made the Remick Music Shoppe his temporary headquarters and signed records which were bought avidly by the crowds that came to see him. Likewise, he signed a two-year contract to make records for the Columbia Co. while in Cleveland.

The new Detroit branch of the Columbia Co. will henceforth be located at 439 East Fort street, that city, lease for which was closed recently by Branch Manager Larmon.

During the appearance of Kiraly Erno, Hungarian violinist, in Cleveland, Mr. Larmon was host to Hungarian Columbia dealers, a box party being arranged for the occasion.

Big Sonora Ad Drive

One of the most consistent advertising campaigns in the trade is being conducted by the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. under direction of J. T. Pringle, general manager. As new dealers are added to the Sonora list here they are included in this publicity, until now more than twenty such dealers are getting this representation. This is part of the general program here to assist the dealer in his Fall and Winter business campaign. It is a natural follow-up of the Sonora situation, Mr. Pringle points out, since practically the entire quota of machines for this territory has been absorbed by orders previously placed, and new business most likely will have to wait upon this early demand being filled from both Cleveland and Cincinnati warehouses.

Unique Sonora Exhibit

Another Sonora feature is the establishment of an exhibit at the second busiest corner in the country, Euclid and East Ninth, where the Cleveland Trust Co. donates the use of some of its space to Cleveland business interests. This exhibit, sponsored by the Buescher Co., contains the parts of the Sonora instrument, with instructive data explaining their use. This exhibit had to be bid for weeks in advance, so popular is the location with local manufacturers and distributors.

Dealers Feature New Red Seals

Official release of the new double Red Seal Victor records here was marked by a full-page advertisement in local newspapers, duplicating the national Victor advertising, in which both jobbers and dealers took part. The Eclipse Musical Co. and the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., jobbers, and the Bailey Co., May Co., Euclid Music Co., Buescher Co. and Dreher Piano Co. filled out the page.

Popular Prices Stimulate Demand

Popular prices for new models are considered one of the factors that are stimulating the talking machine demand in this section at this time, in the opinion of George R. Madson, president, the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co., back from a tour of his dual territory. This accounts for the new business by dealers running well ahead of the better seasons in recent years, Mr. Madson believes.

Diaphragm Co. Launches Campaign

Expansion of activities for the violin spruce reproducer, handled by the Diaphragm Co., already is under way, according to H. C. Cooley, sales manager. Publicity is being distributed wherein the consumer will be reached direct. Another advertising program in a large list of class journals is being planned, in which attention of the consumer will be directed to this company's products. T. C. Findley has been appointed distributor in the Chicago territory. Prices of the different models of the instrument have been reduced, since greater outlet has increased production and consequently lowered production costs.

Plans Unico-equipped Department

The C. L. Kauffman Furniture Co., of West Twenty-fifth street, is planning for active business in the talking machine department. During the recent visit of George Lyons, of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa., plans were developed for a Unico-equipped department, the installation of which will be made the latter part of the month.

Many Dealers Add New Lines

The period has been productive of more new dealers being added by the jobbing interests here than for any similar recent period. These include: Edison—Madison Music Shoppe and the Antisdale-Mathys Co., Cleveland; Degart & Bittner, Sandusky; C. Schwarzwaelder, Wiloughby; Frank Cerne, Cleveland; A. C. Burgess, Oberlin. Victor—Stewart's Music House, Warren, which takes over the interest there

Thousands Visit "Talker" Salon

One of the most attractive features conceived by a dealer of this city for some time has been the talking machine salon conducted at the William Taylor Son & Co. A similar show was held a year or so ago, but this one surpassed the first attempt—in the amount of space devoted to it, in the elaborate hangings and floor coverings used, in the wide variety of makes and types of machines shown and in the music used to demonstrate them. Instruments featured during this showing included the Victor, Sonora, Brunswick and Cheney lines. The event lasted ten days, somewhat longer than the original show, and attracted the attention of thousands of persons, many of whom are likely prospects.

Buescher Ties Up With the Opera

Buescher's Music Store in this city is using the back cover in the official program issued for the Wagnerian Opera Co., which will give eight performances in this city at the Masonic Auditorium, beginning November 20. In its advertisement on the cover, Buescher's features the Odeon recordings of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," which were made under the supervision of Eduard Moericke, who will conduct the orchestra for the Wagnerian Opera Co. in the Masonic Auditorium. The advertising calls particular attention to the fact that the Odeon recordings of the "Unfinished Symphony" are furnished complete in one album.

O. P. GRAFFEN'S IMPORTANT POST

Appointed General Sales Manager of Vox Corporation of America, With Headquarters in New York—Widely Known and Esteemed

The many friends in the trade of O. P. Graffen will be glad to learn that this popular talking machine man has just been appointed general sales manager of the Vox Corporation of America, with headquarters at 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York. Mr. Graffen assumed his new duties on November 1, and he is now busily engaged in making sales and publicity plans for a gigantic campaign in behalf of Vox products. The Vox name, while comparatively new on this side of the Atlantic, is a recognized leader in the phonograph industry abroad, and among the products that will be merchandised through Mr. Graffen's organization are records, spring and electric motors, sound boxes and tone arms.

O. P. Graffen needs no introduction to the talking machine trade throughout the country, as he has been identified with the industry for many years and has attained success and popularity in his various associations. A number of years ago Mr. Graffen was connected with the Victor Talking Machine Co.'s traveling department and subsequently joined the Columbia Phonograph Co. where he was exceptionally successful as a member of the New York sales staff. He won the esteem and friendship of the dealers wherever he called, through his ability to cooperate with them along practical lines.

In recent years Mr. Graffen was identified with the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, and the Granby Phonograph Corp. In the capacity of general Eastern manager of the latter organization, with headquarters in New York, he built up a very large clientele for Granby phonographs and won recognition as one of the foremost members of the wholesale talking machine fraternity throughout the Eastern territory.

In securing Mr. Graffen as general sales manager, the Vox Corporation of America is to be congratulated, for he brings to his new work an unusually wide experience in the talking machine field that embraces practically every phase of merchandising and salesmanship. He knows and understands the dealer's problems and can, therefore, assist Vox representatives in developing their business profitably and permanently.

In speaking with The World, Mr. Graffen was very enthusiastic over the quality of Vox products. He particularly pointed out the Vox records which, although well-known abroad, he predicts, will contain, without doubt, many surprises for the trade here on their clearness and quality. According to Mr. Graffen's present plans his company will merchandise its products through jobbers and dealers, and within the next few weeks the details of his campaign will be ready for announcement.

CO-OPERATES WITH VICTOR DEALERS

Musical Instrument Sales Co. Issues Timely Sales Help—Designed to Aid Record Sales

The Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, through its service department, has distributed among metropolitan Victor dealers photographs of scenes from "Poppy," one of the musical comedy hits in New York, featuring Madge Kennedy. The Victor record responsible for this unusual service and co-operation is "What Do You Do Sunday, Mary?", a dance number that gives every indication of being a big hit during the next few months.

The company's service department has already announced a practical form of co-operation consisting of a four-page folder, entitled "Analysis of Better Records." This folder is issued weekly coincident with the release of new Victor records and from each weekly list there are selected five or six records that are particularly noteworthy. These records are analyzed carefully and practical information is given to the dealers and their clerks. Suggestions are made as to the most likely class of prospects and the most interesting features of the record, and a list is given of records by the artists making the particular selections presented. These folders can be used to advantage in the stimulation of record sales and the Musical Instrument Sales Co. has been congratulated upon its activities in preparing this interesting data.

The formal opening of the W. Bentley Stevens Music Shop in Deep River, Conn., was held recently. Souvenirs were given to patrons attending the reception.

THE REWARD OF ENTERPRISE

J. A. Wuchter Music Co., Allentown, Pa., Has Record of Sixteen Years of Growth—Opens Year-end Drive—Large Radio Stock

ALLENTOWN, PA., November 5.—Sixteen years ago the J. A. Wuchter Music Co., 927 Hamilton street, started in the phonograph business in this city. It has handled the celebrated Columbia line all these years and to-day boasts of one of the finest stores of its kind to be found in any other city of like size.

To properly inaugurate the Fall and Winter season, the store recently held a formal opening, which lasted three days. The interior was properly decorated for an occasion of this kind.

An added feature, grown to large proportions, is the radio department. Scouting the future of the radio business, Mr. Wuchter started in a small way to build up a radio department. He handles such leading makes as DeForrest radio sets, Radio Corp. of America line and Music Master radio amplifiers.

USEFUL NEW PLAZA BULLETIN

Handy Reference Guide for Use of Talking Machine Dealers and Salesmen

The Plaza Music Co., well-known manufacturer and distributor, has just mailed to the trade a six-page bulletin carrying data, prices and illustrations of its complete line of phonograph accessories. The bulletin is issued in two colors and is divided into twenty-four sections, making a ready reference guide.

The sales department of the Plaza Music Co. has issued this little publication, bearing in mind the fact that such merchandise brings added revenue to the dealer's coffers. Many of these products can be sold at the time the initial sale of talking machines is made. At any rate they are marketable to practically every talking machine owner.

The Brunswick Shop, 847 Orange street, Wilmington, Del., H. C. Miller, proprietor, has reopened.

"TREASURE CHEST" AS XMAS GIFTS

C. Bruno & Son, Originators of These Sets, Urge Dealers to Make the Most of Their Pre-Christmas Sales Opportunities

Victor retailers and distributors have placed themselves energetically behind the "Treasure Chest," produced by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York City, Victor distributors, until at the present time this set has received wide distribution and many reorders are being received.

In the October Voice of the Victor a full page is devoted to the "Treasure Chest" and the idea of selling records in sets rather than single record sales. It will be remembered from previous announcements that the "Treasure Chest" is an attractively cartoned set of six ten-inch, double-disc records from the Victor catalog, carefully selected to carry out the idea of "musical gems from foreign lands." Supplied with the set is descriptive matter thoroughly explaining the musical theme of each record, making for greater appreciation and enjoyment of the different selections.

As originally stated, the "Treasure Chest" is in no sense of the word a commercial development of C. Bruno & Son, Inc. It was instigated largely by the desire to introduce the sales of sets of records that would intensify the interest of the public in record music. C. Bruno & Son, Inc., are co-operating with both dealer and distributor in the exploitation of this new idea. A series of dealer helps, well destined to help the dealer increase his sales, have been originated. In a recent letter to the trade attention is called to the desirability of the "Treasure Chest" as a holiday gift and its appropriateness in both appearance and popular price. As an additional aid to dealers in the development of sales two letters were prepared and enclosed. These letters, designed to stimulate interest in the "Treasure Chest," are for dealer distribution. There were also enclosed suggestions for window card copy. Four-color window cards, size twenty inches by thirty inches, have been prepared to be supplied to the dealer at absolute cost.

Although the "Treasure Chest" is in every sense of the word a novelty it is, at the same time, decidedly a staple product and, therefore, the intensive work of the present time is the foundation upon which dealers may build up a substantial superstructure for years to come.

CINCINNATI CONCERN IN NEW HOME

CINCINNATI, O., November 5.—Arthur Brand & Co., distributors of Spencerian portables and phonograph repair parts, and manufacturers of the popular Ellis reproducer, are now occupying larger quarters at 1618 Vine street, in this city. The company was formerly located at 1602 Race street, with warerooms on Elm street, but with the rapid expansion of its business it found these quarters inadequate. In its new home the organization will be under one roof with ample facilities for giving the trade which it serves efficient service.

Record Business Dominates Trade—Harger & Blish Arrange Series of Tone-Tests—Look Forward to Big Holiday Business—The News

DES MOINES, IA., November 8.—Retailers of talking machines in this city and territory have reported October as a rather dull month for machine sales. The record business, on the other hand, has been unusually brisk for this time of the year. Retailers attribute part of the increase in the record business to the "no-approval" policy governing the sale of records in the city. An unusual number of good releases has also augmented the normal business.

Jobbers report business as very good. Dealers are placing their orders for Fall and Winter goods and most of the orders show good increases over last year's Fall buying. Dealers supplied by Des Moines jobbers have found business better than expected during the Summer. Consequently they are placing orders with more confidence than a year ago. Jobbers claim that the dealer who has resumed aggressive sales policies has enjoyed a good volume of business this year.

All connected with the talking machine and record industry are looking forward to an excellent holiday business. The general employment situation over the State is good, and Iowa dealers are basing their estimates for increased business on that fact. Several flourishing Victrola clubs have been started by Victrola dealers of the State. Harger & Blish will offer special Edison numbers for Christmas. The Duning Co. has announced a special offering of Christmas records by Gennett in attractive holiday folders. Gennett's offering, according to the Duning Co., will include selections by several well-known movie stars. One side of the record will be given over to some standard Christmas selection.

Increase in Portable Business

An unusual feature of October's business was the increased volume of portable machine business reported by the Duning Co. It is generally assumed that the portable season for Iowa ends with the vacation days, but, by concentrating sales efforts on schools, the Duning Co. increased its portable business over the record for September. The machines went mostly to smaller schools, where the expense of anything but a portable machine would have been prohibitive.

Gennett Iowa Records Popular

Through the efforts of W. D. Duning, of the Duning Co., Gennett has recorded two new Iowa numbers whose popularity promises to be as great as that of the "Iowa Corn Song." "On, Iowa," is a number of especial interest to alumni of Iowa State University, where it has become very popular. On the reverse side of the record Gennett has recorded "Men of Iowa," a spirited march by O. E. Van Doren, bandmaster at the university. The two numbers were recorded under the supervision of Mr. Van Doren, who made the trip to the Gennett plant for that purpose. Since the release of the new number, on October 20, the Duning Co. has been flooded with orders.

Tone Tests Arranged by Harger & Blish

Harger & Blish have announced a new series of "tone test" concerts, to be held the two weeks following November 19. Three Edison artists, Elizabeth Spencer, soprano; Lucile Collette, pianist and violinist, and Harold Lyman, flutist and saxophonist, will be heard. Some ten or twelve concerts will be held at various points over the State.

Dealers Establish Trade-in Allowance

At the last regular monthly meeting of the Des Moines Music Merchants' Association a new retail policy was discussed and finally adopted. Feeling that somewhat large trade-in allowances have been demanded from and allowed by dealers, the Association decided to establish a maximum allowance on "off-brand" machines. In the future not over $30 will be allowed for a used machine, unless the instrument is of standard make. Five or six well-known machines were designated as standard machines by the dealers.

Those in Employ of Company for Ten Years or More Presented With Certificates and Pins at Annual Get-together Dinner Held Recently

One hundred and forty-six members of the Aeolian Co. organization, who had been in the service of that company for ten years or more, were awarded service certificates and appropriate pins at the annual get-together dinner of the Aeolian Employees' Association held at the Hotel Majestic on Monday evening of last week and attended by over 450 men and women. Among the officials of the company who received awards for service were E. S. Votey, vice-president; W. V. Swords, vice-president and general manager; H. B. Schaad, secretary; W. H. Alfring, general sales manager; Herbert T. Proudfit, advertising manager; Charles H. Addams, manager of the wholesale piano department, and Charles A. Laurino, retail sales manager. The real veteran of the group receiving awards was Isaac R. Barbour, of the delivery department, who has a record of forty-two years of continuous service.

last month was exceptionally good. Part of the increase in business, he claims, was due to the adoption of the weekly release plan. The double-facing of Red Seal records has also made Victor releases popular among buyers.

Hugo Heyn, of the Mickel Bros. Co., has resigned his position to become a partner in the All Makes Typewriter Co., of Omaha, taking charge of the dictating machine department.

Belle Hendrix Smith, of the Mickel Bro. educational department, delivered a series of talks on the subject of "Music Appreciation" before the County Teachers' Institute at Eldora, Ia., during the latter part of October. The Victor Health Exercises were also demonstrated.

Takes Charge at Chase & West

W. McGlasson has been appointed manager of the Victrola department of Chase & West, this city. He has had long experience in the talking machine business.

Mickel Bros. Co. reports the appointment of Zona Berg & Son, of Superior, Neb., as Victor dealers at that place.

Port's Victor Parlors, of Vinton, Ia., recently arranged with the Presbyterian minister of that place to give a program of sacred selections on the Victrola. The selections were illustrated with stereopticon views as the selections were given.

During the course of the evening short addresses were made by Mr. Swords and Mr. Proudfit, and also by H. S. Jewett, of the wholesale promotion department, who told of the development of the Duo-Art music fantasy "Sonia's Song." The fantasy was then presented with Sergei Barsukov as the featured artist. During the course of the evening other entertainment was provided by Irving Kaufman and Monroe Silver, Vocalion recording artists. Robert M. Richter, president of the Aeolian Employees' Association, presided.

An elaborate minstrel show, consisting of talent drawn exclusively from the Aeolian organization, was presented at Aeolian Hall Monday night, November 5. It was a huge success in every way.

DEALERS HEED ADVICE TO STOCK UP FOR HOLIDAY BUSINESS BY EARLY AND HEAVY ORDERING

Care Noticeable in the Selection of Lines—Shortage in Some Quarters Expected—Postpone Music Exposition—Planning for Music Week—Other Important News and Activities

BOSTON, MASS., November 7.—October saw a good business all along the line; most of those in the talking machine trade were pretty well satisfied, but there were those who did not make so good a report of the month as did others. The jobbers say that the advice offered annually to the trade to lay in their stocks early has been heeded pretty generally, though there has been more care exercised than ever before in choosing the lines of goods, for the most part the more expensive types of machines having the early and generous call. There is a feeling in some quarters that after all there is to be a shortage with some manufacturers of goods, and that some dealers are going to feel it keenly at the eleventh hour. The current month ought to be a good one; in fact, traditionally it ought to considerably exceed October which has a fairly satisfactory record.

Postpone Music Exposition

The music exposition originally planned for the last week of November at Mechanics' Building, and which has been mentioned several times in The World, has been postponed until Spring. The various concerns which had become interested as exhibitors have pledged themselves to take space if it is decided definitely to hold the exposition in the Spring.

Organizing for Music Week

Meantime the trade in New England has had brought to its attention the nation-wide observance of the week of May 4, "Music Week," which already has received the endorsement of prominent persons locally. Mayor Curley has promised the city's fullest co-operation in the movement, in which schools, churches, theatres and musical organizations will take a leading part. The city council will be asked to set aside an appropriation. At a meeting held at the Boston Art Club a temporary organization was effected and among those attending the meeting were John A. O'Shea, who is identified with the music department of the Boston public schools; Frank C. Brown, a local architect; Chester I. Campbell, who has steered to success a great many large shows and expositions; Courtenay Guild, head of the Apollo Club, a leading singing society of Boston; Professor John P. Marshall, of Boston University; Frank P. Spear, president of Northeastern College; Mabel Daniels, who has been active in managing private shows and is a composer of merit. Mrs. William Arms Fisher, director of education of the National Federation of Music Clubs, was chosen director of the undertaking, with authority to appoint a chairman, treasurer and secretary.

Preparing Billboard Campaign

Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., of which Harry Spencer is the head, and who are the New England representatives of the Brunswick, are preparing their annual illuminated, painted billboard campaign throughout Boston, and some very catchy material has been made ready for these displays. There are three big artists who are soon to appear in Boston whose records already are being widely called for, these being Bronislaw Huberman, violinist, who plays at Jordan Hall November 8, and who is expected to call at the Boston offices of Manager Spencer; Segrin Onegin, who appears at Symphony Hall on November 25, and Josef Hofmann, who also is to appear at Symphony Hall.

Heavy Brunswick Demand

Harry Spencer states that the Brunswick business was very heavy in October, and the indications are that it will be big right up to the holidays. He expresses the belief that there is to be a shortage of Brunswick goods and there are some types that it is difficult to secure even now. Harry's brother, Lloyd Spencer, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to Maine, where he visited the bigger cities only, and he found business in the Pine Tree State to be of a most satisfactory nature.

Cheney Business Booms

The Cheney Sales Corp., of which Stephen A. Colahan is the head, and whose headquarters are at 376 Boylston street, reports that the Cheney business in the New England territory has exceeded all expectations and the new Cheney console, known as Style 119, has been especially in favor locally, and already the outland, Me. He has recently taken a store on the street floor and his Cheney business is reported to have been very good from the start.

Changes in General Corp. Territory

The General Phonograph Corp. in its New England territory exceeded its quota for October and Manager N. B. Smith is elated that business in the Okeh and Odeon lines is "making good" in his field. The especial success during October was due in part to the fact that there were a number of new pieces brought out during the month, these including "That's a Lot of Bunk," "Marcheta" and "Last Night on the Back Porch." There has been a slight shifting of territory in the New England field of the company. Charles E. Hodgkins, who heretofore had the Boston territory, beginning November 1, had assigned to him the territory north of Boston, extending from Lynn to Haverhill, and the Boston field will be taken care of by Manager Smith and Assistant Manager P. J. Donovan, who will divide the territory between them. At the present time the quarters of the General Phonograph Corp., at 142 Berkeley street, are sorely pressed for sufficient room because of the large stock of records that the concern has to keep on hand. A Boston caller a few days ago was W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the corporation, who expressed himself as immensely pleased with the volume of business that is being done throughout the New England territory.

A Letter to Sonora Dealers

J. H. Burke, sales manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co. of New England, Inc., apropos the recent experience which the company has passed through, has issued a circular letter to the company's New England dealers, which in part reads as follows:

"We wish to confirm the notification you have already received from the New York office, to the effect that the temporary receivership of the Sonora Phonograph Co., which was granted on the application of two stockholders, has been vacated. The press of the country has already published the statement given out by the chairman of the executive committee and the president of the Sonora Co. to the effect that the company is now experiencing the greatest prosperity in its history, with unfilled orders of over twice what they were a year ago, notwithstanding increased production, and that net earnings have never equaled the present figures. The situation is therefore definitely cleared up in a way that reflects greatly to the credit of the Sonora Co. The entire situation is, of course, regrettable, but when the fact is appreciated that the difficulty was due to the desirability of controlling the stock of a corporation which is as fundamentally healthy as Sonora, no ill effects shall result from it, but on the contrary greater confidence than ever before will be reposed in Sonora's product and policy by the trade and by the public."

Incidentally, it is of special interest that the New England department has not been called upon to accept the cancellation of a single order, which speaks well for the standing of the Sonora in this territory.

Ideal Music Co. Adds Sonora

A new dealer to take on the Sonora is the Ideal Music Co., which is located on Broadway, Chelsea, which store is in charge of I. Grood, who has had a long experience in the talking machine business. There is to be an official opening of this store on November 10 and several of the Sonora men from the Boston headquarters will go out for the occasion.

Trinity Radio Models Please

H. A. Robbins, of the Trinity Phonograph Co., makes a very encouraging report on the progress that the Trinity radio is making in the New England field, and he says that it is with difficulty that orders can be filled. The instrument is put out in console models only and the cabinet work is especially mentioned by those who examine the instrument carefully.

Double Red Seal Records in Favor

The wholesale Victor business has been very good these last few weeks, according to Manager Kenneth Reed, of M. Steinert & Sons, who also states that the double Red Seal records are finding favor, not only in the trade but with the buying public as well. There has been an especially large demand for the most popular numbers of the great artists.

Brunswick Executives in Town

Two Boston visitors who paid a visit to Harry Spencer's headquarters within the last week were P. L. Deutsch, secretary of the Brunswick Co., and Sinkler Darby, chief recorder at the Brunswick laboratories, who came to town direct from Los Angeles, where he had been to make some experiments in recording a large orchestra.

Parke Willis, Jr., a Local Visitor

A Boston caller lately, who has come in close touch with the Victor trade, was Parke Willis, Jr., of the production department of the Victor, and who made a pretty thorough canvass of the New England territory, calling on dealers in Bridgeport, New Haven, Springfield, Worcester, Portland, Bangor, Nashua and Lowell.

B. M. O'Brien Ends Long Tour

B. M. O'Brien, who is in charge of the Columbia department at Smith Bros.' Store, Washington street, this city, has just completed an automobile trip of 2,600 miles through New England and up into Canada. Mr. O'Brien stopped off at the Canadian phonograph exposition in Toronto, where he says an entire building was devoted to talking machines. He says he picked up a lot of valuable information at

Miss Ethel Armitage Promoted

Miss Ethel Armitage, under the tutelage of Mrs. Alice W. Graves, record and stockkeeping expert of the Boston branch of the Columbia Phonograph Co., and also of Roland Luce, has become head of the record department of Lord & Co., Inc., 440 Essex street, Lawrence. Miss Armitage is quite enthusiastic over the manner in which the customers of the house accept the Columbia New Process record hits.

Eastern Co. Giving Mail-order Service

The Eastern Talking Machine Co. has just put out a mail-order book that is a distinct credit to the house. There is a carbon and the buff-colored card, which will be the one sent into the office, carries the printed name of the home office, and a one-cent stamp. There are twelve order blanks in the book, and the last one is red, the receipt of which by the company indicates that it is time to send another book. Although this mail-order book has been out only a few days several returns have been received and with good orders, some from dealers who have not been sending in orders for goods in large quantities of late. The book is being sent out to all the Eastern Co.'s customers throughout New England.

William J. Weyand a Benedict

William J. Weyand, who is of the repair department of the Henderson store at 32 Boylston street, Boston, was married on Sunday evening, October 28, to Miss Mae C. Sweeten, of Dorchester, the ceremony having been performed at St. Ambrose's Church, that section. Mr. Weyand is a friend of Mayor Curley and the couple were the recipients of a beautiful gift from His Honor. Mr. and Mrs. Weyand went on a honeymoon trip by auto through the White Mountains and they are to make their home at 7 Leonard street, Dorchester.

Lester Jones on Empire State Trip

Lester Jones, of the talking machine department of the Hallet & Davis Co., has lately been on an extended trip through New York State, taking in a number of the principal cities, and visiting the Hallet & Davis dealers at each place in the interest of the instrument which this big Boston house puts out.

of Arionolas and Nationals, the latter coming from the factory of the National Console Phonograph Co., and for both of these lines the concern is finding many customers. The location, close to the City Hall annex, is in a good downtown section of the city.

New Strand Dealers

Arthur C. Erisman is happy in the fact that the Strand line went big during October; in fact, it was the biggest month since he has had this line for the New England territory. Mr. Erisman has been over in Philadelphia, having motored over the road with friends, spending several days en route in New York, Wilmington and Baltimore. New Strand contracts that Mr. Erisman has been able to sign up lately have been the Happy Home Furniture Co., of New Bedford; Nugent Furniture Co., Lawrence, and the new store of the Atherton Furniture Co., Portland, Me. A caller a few days ago at Mr. Erisman's office was Mr. Gibbs, of the Meiklejohn Co.'s Pawtucket store.

A dealers' service table is the latest thing to be installed in Mr. Erisman's quarters at 175 Tremont street. Those dealers who have inspected the idea are quite enthusiastic over it and have planned to install something similar in their own stores.

Arthur Champagne Engaged

An engagement of interest in the trade is that of Arthur Champagne, manager of the Grafnola Shoppe at Hudson, and Miss Mary Margaret Kelly, of Watertown. Mr. Champagne is receiving congratulations of many friends, in Columbia circles especially, since this is the talking machine line that he has much to do with.

Allston Shop in Better Location

The Allston Music Shop, which handles the Columbia line, has moved to a new location on the opposite side of Brighton avenue, Allston, a very advantageous location. The removal was found necessary because of growing business and the store is now on the side of the thoroughfare which sees the larger crowd of passers-by.

Equipping Caldwell Co. Store

J. H. Crane, of the Unit Construction Co., has been over this way, having come to equip the talking machine department of the Caldwell Furniture Co. in Malden, and Upham's Piano Rooms, also in that city.

Pleased Over Mr. Fleischman's Success

The good news percolates to Boston that Herman Fleischman, lately of M. Steinert & Sons and who is now in Worcester, is decidedly making good as head of the talking machine department of the Marcellus Roper Co., and his many friends are correspondingly delighted.

Columbia at Fairs

Columbia dealers have been profitably displaying the new Columbia models at the county fairs throughout New England, in which Salesman Ingalls co-operated with a number of the dealers in seeing that the line was properly exploited.

New Pooley Dealers in New England

W. B. Glynn, of the W. B. Glynn Distributing Co., Saxton's River, Vt., exclusive distributor for the Pooley phonograph in New England territory, visited Springfield, Mass., recently to meet Howard Hodson, manager of production and sales for the Pooley Co. in order to arrange for a large allotment of Pooley console models. Although his firm had recently received fifteen carloads of these new models, Mr. Glynn considered it advisable to get an increase in the allotment in order to satisfy the demand in New England for this product.

Recent additions to the Pooley dealers are as follows: N. W. Brown Piano Co., Springfield, Mass.; Flint & Brickett Co., Springfield, Mass.; A. B. Clinton Co., Hartford, Conn., and New Haven, Conn.; Feinblum-Peizer Music Co., Hartford, Conn.; Loomis Temple of Music, New Haven, Conn.; Miller's Music Shop, New Haven, Conn.; Piquette Piano Co., Bridgeport, Conn., and Shelton, Conn.; Boston Store, Ansonia, Conn.; Kemp's Music House, Manchester, Conn.; Talking Machine Shop, Norwich, Conn.; Kane Furniture Co., Boston, Mass., and Woonsocket, R. F. Wing Co., New Bedford, Mass. These recent additions to the Pooley family in New England make it necessary for Mr. Glynn to solve the problem of securing merchandise rather than endeavor to build up sales.

Enormous Vocalion Business

The Vocalion business throughout New England during the past month was simply enormous, according to Arthur Erisman, and it is an interesting and significant fact that with the announcement of the return of the musical comedy, "Little Nellie Kelly," in a few weeks to the Tremont Theatre, there has been an immediate revival of interest in these records, which were made immediately following the premiere of this piece at this same theatre a year or more ago. Two of the biggest hits in the Vocalion line lately have been "She's Just a Girl That Men Forget" and "House of David Blues." These records have gone big.

New Edison Models in Demand

October proved an unusually large month with the Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Inc., and Mr. Silliman says that there is sure to be a shortage of Edison outfits, judging by the sales last month and the prospects that his sales force are getting for November. The new models of the Edison have been especially popular with dealers, who, in turn, are finding a quick sale for them; in fact, they are likely to be considerably oversold. It is of interest that the higher-priced models get the most attention.

Takes Over New England Talking Machine Co.

The New England Talking Machine Co., Boston, Mass., is now under the ownership and management of Halford H. Ambler. Mr. Ambler took over the company during the past month and the business is being conducted at the same address, 16 Beach street, without the slightest interruption. This business was originally established in 1914 by the late Charles P. Trundy. Upon his untimely death and since January, 1919, Mrs. Maude H. Chesley, a sister of Mr. Trundy, became trustee for the heirs and has conducted the business up to its recent purchase. The new owner, Halford H. Ambler, has stated his intention of continuing the business along the same high-class lines of quality of product and service to the trade which have distinguished it in the past.

Berry's Open Sixth Store

One of the latest store openings in this city is Berry's, a large furniture house, which operates stores in five other Massachusetts cities. The handsome new store at 760 Washington street is one of the most modern establishments in the city. There are five floors and, although furniture is the principal line handled, the talking machine department on the mezzanine floor is second to none in the immediate vicinity. All of the most popular makes of machines and records are handled. Officers of the concern are: Nathan Saltman, president and general manager; Henry W. Berry, secretary; John A. L. Odde, treasurer.

Local Visitors

Harry A. Beach, of the New York office of the Brunswick, was a Boston caller the latter part of October, making an extended visit with Harry Spencer.

Some other Boston visitors lately have been W. H. Avery, of Concord, N. H.; Harry Russell, of the Outlet Co., of Providence; Harris Monroe, of Orange, and Mrs. C. W. Norton, of Farmington, Me.

F. H. Hedinger, sales manager of the Vocalion Sales Corp., was over here from New York the end of October, spending most of his time with Arthur Erisman.

Jack Elliott, of the talking machine department of the Shepard Stores, Providence, drove over the road to this city during October, bringing his mother with him so that she might enjoy a bit of Boston life.

SISTER OF J. H. WILSON DIES

BOSTON, Mass., October 31.—Mrs. Amy W. Wills, sister of John H. Wilson, Boston representative of The World, died at her home, Jamaica Plain, Boston, on Wednesday, October 24. Mrs. Wills was widely known as a prominent worker in St. John's Episcopal Church in that section. Funeral services took place at her home Friday, October 26, the Rev. Thomas C. Campbell, of St. John's Episcopal Church, officiating and Suffragan Bishop Samuel G. Babcock pronouncing the benediction. The interment took place in the family lot in Forest Hills Cemetery. Mrs. Wills is survived by a son and daughter, as well as her brother.

BRINGS RECORD ARTISTS TO CANTON

CANTON, O., November 5.—One of the most extensive campaigns to stimulate interest in the sale of Brunswick machines and records has been effected by George S. Dales, head of a concern operating three retail music stores in this part of the State, who has completed arrangements for the appearance here all this week of Bennie Krueger's Orchestra at the South Main Gardens, the largest dance pavilion in this section. Mr. Krueger will autograph his records both at the dance hall and at the store. A heavy advertising campaign is under way heralding the event.

CELEBRATED FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY

HOLYOKE, MASS., November 5.—One of the veteran music dealers in the New England States is John O'Shea, who operates a complete music store at 462 High street. Mr. O'Shea recently celebrated his fortieth year in the business. His establishment is one of the finest in the city and the lines handled include Cheney and Stradivara phonographs and Emerson records, musical merchandise, pianos, etc.

Thos. A. Edison Himself Assumes Sales Management of the Edison Phonograph Industry With A. M. Farrier as His Chief Executive

Much interest was aroused recently by the announcement from the headquarters of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., to the effect that Thomas A. Edison himself had arranged to take over the general sales management of the Edison phonograph industry and give his personal attention to that division of his organization.

Mr. Edison's chief executive is A. M. Farrier, who will occupy the post left vacant by the resignation of A. H. Curry. Mr. Farrier's merchandising experience is broad and varied. He brings to the Edison Co. a record of accomplishments in the selling and executive fields. He is a graduate of Dartmouth and his selling career began with J. A. & W. Bird & Co., of Boston, paint and roofing manufacturer, where he was a traveling representative. Later he was a sales engineer with the M. A. Treadwell Co., of New York. Following that Mr. Farrier became vice-president, salesmanager and stockholder of the Eastern Car & Construction Co., New York. Before joining the Edison forces he was treasurer and sales manager of the Thrift Homes Corp., New York.

The development of the Edison phonograph business under Mr. Edison's personal direction will be watched with great interest, for he has always devoted considerable attention to that division of the great Edison activities, in spite of his many other pressing duties.

J. J. DAVIN LOSES RIGHT BOWER

J. J. Davin, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, is mourning the loss of his right bower, for Miss Olive Madeline Aiken, who has been his secretary for a number of years, resigned recently to make plans for her marriage on November 20 to Alfred S. Harrison, who is associated with the General Electric Co. Miss Aiken officiated as Mr. Davin's secretary while he was a member of the sales staff of the New York Talking Machine Co., occupying the same position when Mr. Davin joined the forces of the Reincke-Ellis Co., subsequently moving her desk to Ormes, Inc., and later to the Musical Instrument Sales Co. She is succeeded by Miss E. L. Mansfield.

CONGRATULATIONS TO JOHN DORN

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., November 7.—John Dorn, the live wire Edison dealer in this city, is receiving the congratulations of his many trade friends on the arrival of a third son. We add ours. Wasmuth-Goodrich Co. Establishes Dealers in Leading Trade Centers—New Emerson Consoles Proving Popular Throughout the Trade

PERU, IND., November 7.—The Wasmuth-Goodrich Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Emerson phonograph, states that during the past few months it has established dealers for its products in practically all of the leading trade centers. The new line of consoles has met with popular favor, and among the well-known music stores, department stores and house-furnishing establishments handling the Emerson line are the following: Gimbel Bros., New York; Nathan-Dohrmann Co., San Francisco; Consolidated Music Co., Salt Lake City; Stone Piano Co., Minneapolis; D. H. Holmes Co., New Orleans; Aeolian Co., St. Louis; Mandel Bros., Chicago; Denver Music Co., Burlington, Iowa; Belknap Hardware & Mfg. Co., Louisville, Ky.; Parmelee-Dohrmann, Los Angeles; The Emerson Phonograph Co., New York; Seattle Music Co., Seattle, and G. F. Johnson Piano Co., Portland, Ore.

ST. LOUIS SYMPHONY WITH VICTOR

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has completed arrangements for the making of records by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, of St. Louis, Mo. The recording will be done in that city and it is expected that the first records will be made some time this month. This orchestra is very popular in the Middle West.

Cooler Weather Results in General Stimulation of Business—Dealers and Jobbers Optimistic—Trade Activities of the Month

CINCINNATI, O., November 7.—The month of October brought with it stimulated business for the talking machine dealers and jobbers in this territory. While September had proved to be a good month, the past four weeks have shown a comfortable increase which has given encouragement to the trade and which has led the officers of various companies to predict that November and December are likely to break records for volume of business for many concerns. While the weather during October was delightful as far as pleasure was concerned, there were so many days when the weather was warm that retail business in all lines, including talking machines and records, was cut down in volume of sales by a considerable amount. When the cool spells came for several days at a stretch the added sales were noticeable at once and business took on a more brisk aspect.

The jobbers here are confronted with the same problem that they have had to face most of this year; that is, getting sufficient instruments and records to supply the demand from the public. Most of the dealers, however, are of the opinion that there will be no acute shortage of either instruments or records and that before this month is over there will be enough shipments on hand to meet the demand.

Bright Edison Outlook

Manager Oelman, of the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, reports that business has been good throughout the month of October and that the outlook for the rest of the year is for a further improvement. The Edison instruments have been selling well, according to local retail dealers who handle them.

Big Victor Business

The Ohio Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber in this territory, has been doing a big business during the past month and sales have shown a nice increase over the same period of 1922. C. H. North, secretary of the company, states that both the record and Victrola business have been excellent. The new policy of releasing Victor records weekly is working out splendidly in local stores. A customer will come in now on Friday and Saturday each week and buy several new records where before he only came in once a month. By coming in weekly he will spend more money without feeling that he is spending more than he ought to. Sales have increased on records since the weekly release policy was adopted. The double-face Red Seal records also are going over strong, although there have only been a few of these released.

Other Lines Doing Well

Another company which has experienced an unusually good month during October is Widener's Grafonola Shop. Morris Fantel, manager, said that the sales for the past four weeks are far ahead of last year and that the holiday business which he expects to do will run considerably ahead of 1922. The Sterling Roll & Record Co. has also been doing a big business, says Ben L. Brown, manager. There has been much effort put lately on the sales of Strand phonographs, and these instruments are having brisk sales. Four of the retail music stores had window displays of Strands during the past week. Okeh records are also in heavy demand.

Satisfactory Brunswick Report

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.'s district office states that the sales of both Brunswick machines and records during October were entirely satisfactory and that the Cincinnati territory is producing a large sales quota. Dealers have been enthusiastic with the reception their customers have given the Brunswick machines and records and expect its continuance.

Introduces Records Through Musicals

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, 17 East Sixth street, one of the liveliest stores in the city, held its opening musical of the Fall season recently. The store was decorated appropriately for the season and the Chubb-Steinberg De Luxe Orchestra, under the direction of A. Hicks, played the new music of the Victor records. Two concerts, from 11:30 in the morning until 1 in the afternoon, and from 2 to 4, were given with hundreds of people attracted during those hours to the Fall opening. The Chubb-Steinberg De Luxe Orchestra is Cincinnati's newest organization, composed mostly of men from world-famous bands. This orchestra is

EDITH LORAND ON ODEON LIST

Edith Lorand, a young Hungarian violinist who makes her first appearance in the United States through the medium of Odeon recordings on the December list, is well known in Europe as a dance orchestra leader. Miss Lorand is an exception to the general rule that men constitute the best orchestra leaders, for she has attained considerable success abroad, and has also won praise through her concert work. Her Odeon record is distinctive and individual, typifying the playing of the gypsy violinists of her homeland.

open for engagements throughout the city and nearby territory to play on social and dance occasions and will carry the Chubb-Steinberg name with it always. This is a splendid advertising plan and should mean increased business for the Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop. This company's Christmas Victrola Club, which was formed recently, is increasing rapidly in numbers and is proving to be a very popular innovation for this aggressive concern.

Julius Berger in New Quarters

Julius Berger, Columbia dealer, has just moved into his new quarters at 911 Central avenue, where he has a new modern three-story building, and is installing complete new hearing rooms. A large increase in record sales is reported since he moved into this new store.

Sol. Gershuny, 554 West Sixth street, is enlarging his record department and will handle the Columbia line exclusively.

Stages Physical Culture Window

The Starr Piano Co. has been featuring the Gennett Physical Culture records lately. Much attention was attracted to this company's main display window when it was filled with basketball and football equipment, punching bags, weights, golf clubs and other athletic equipment. All of this was used as a background for the message concerning the physical culture records. Several weeks ago a woman demonstrated the records and their value in the window. In addition, physical educational classes are being conducted under the direction of a competent instructor with the Gennett Physical Culture records used as a manual.

Mrs. Harris Freidman Convalescent

Mrs. Harris Freidman, of this city, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis at the Hotel Sinton. Mrs. Freidman is the wife of Harris Freidman, manager of the Cincinnati Song Shop of Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, and acts as Mr. Freidman's assistant manager in the store. She will be back at the old stand before long boosting Columbia New Process records as vigorously as ever.

Trade Visitors

M. O. Giles, of the General Phonograph Corp., was here during the past week conferring with the Sterling Roll & Record Co., jobber for Cincinnati territory. Mr. Lopin, of Lopin's Music House, Charleston, W. Va.; Finley Davidson, of Middletown, O., and Mr. Lay, of Lay & Fox, Corbin, Ky., were other visitors in the Cincinnati market during the past week.

Miss Stevens, manager of the Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co., says that business has improved very much during the past few weeks and that the outlook is good.

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 9, 1923.

THE mid-West's musical season has been wonderfully stimulated at its very opening time by the visit of the German Wagnerian Opera Company, which is just finishing its triumphant two weeks in Chicago and will be in Milwaukee by the time this issue of The Talking Machine World appears. Detroit, Cleveland and other mid-West cities will within a short time hear this remarkable group of operatic experts. The Chicago Civic Opera is also about to open and the symphony orchestra season is already in full swing. It is an auspicious beginning to what ought to be the finest season of musical activity the Middle West has ever known. It is for mid-Western music business men to take this fact to heart and to realize that musical art and music appreciation are taking a firm root in this great community. We should like to stir up the imaginations of our talking machine men a little bit and beg them to visualize what all this stirring and artistic activity really means. If it be said, as it will be said by the narrow-minded and the small men, that there is nothing "practical" in co-operation with the protagonists of music, and that business and art have nothing to do with each other, the answer is simple and positive. Music business is wholly founded on the existence of musical art. If there were no musicians, no teachers of music, no opera, no symphony orchestras and no concerts, would there be any music business? There would not. All the dance orchestras and all their records cannot alone keep the music business alive. It is upon artistic music that popular music founds itself and the craze for this or that popular music would droop in a very short time if it were not buoyed up by the strength of musical art. Now the talking machine business is a record selling business also, and the musical taste of a community ought to express itself in the sale of records. When we find a musical community where, however, records of first-class music do not readily sell, we must simply conclude that the talking machine merchants are not "on to" their jobs. There is a portion, an ever-growing portion, of the mid-West community which takes a steady interest in things musical. This element can be sought out and turned into buyers of records and owners of talking machines. To neglect it or not to plan intelligently to find and keep its custom is extremely short-sighted and extremely foolish.

Tying Up With Music

Where Is Price Maintenance

THE recent attacks of price-cutting mania, not to mention others which appear to threaten, throw one's thoughts toward the need for some sort of legislation which will curb these raids, for such they are, upon the community's legitimate prosperity. If utter selfishness must run riot, if the legitimate values which have been built up by patient honorable dealing, are to be destroyed whenever it pleases the unscrupulous to do the unholy work of tearing down, then the legitimate business man, especially in a trade like ours, might as well go out of business right now and save the pieces while he may. The whole thing is all wrong. In fact, one may question whether a good deal of the recent raiding of values is not within the purview of the laws against fraudulent advertising which have been enacted in some States. Our situation in Illinois is not favorable in this respect, and it would be well for the legislative committee, constituted at the recent Peoria convention of the Illinois Music Merchants Association, to bring some pressure to bear at Springfield towards making it less easy for price raiders to do their destructive work. If the situation is not handled properly, we shall see most serious results to the prosperity of talking machine men throughout this territory. The hands of the Better Business Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce should be strengthened also. Every merchant who belongs to the National Association can have the benefit of the Bureau's work, and even those who are not members will find the Bureau ready to help them whenever and wherever it can. Raids upon established values are ethically despicable, and in some cases very nearly criminal.

THOSE who have watched the recent trend of developments in the policy of the record manufacturers are aware that Chicago has become a recording center. Recording is being done here steadily and the chances are that more rather than less of it will be done as time goes on. The principal reason for the new trend of affairs is to be found in the fact that Chicago has been developing a great deal of musical talent of all sorts, popular and classical, and that the entire mid-West, following Chicago's lead, has been taking a grip on musical ideas which is really wonderful. Now, the record manufacturing companies are finding it entirely worth while to set up recording studios from time to time in this city and thus to draw to themselves the choicest of the local talent, not alone from the city, but also from all the great central territory around Chicago. All this should help local business very much. Local artists are being encouraged and local pride is being stimulated. Local sales of records by local artists, especially of well-known dance orchestras and of singers whose work is nightly applauded in Chicago theatres, will thus be markedly increased. It is to the interest of the local merchants to boost local recording.

We Make Records

Musical Merchandise Too

TALKING machine merchants in steadily increasing numbers are taking on general musical merchandise. The fact goes to show that the musical nature of the talking machine business is by now generally and firmly recognized. A talking machine store is a store where music is sold in circumstances and according to conditions which probably are the best imaginable. Music here is, almost literally, on tap. It is right that talking machine men then should seek to take advantage of the favorable conditions which their stores present to stock sheet music and small musical instruments. It all means more business, more men, women and children coming in, more sales and more profits. There is nothing wrong about the idea, which, in fact, represents simply the legitimate development of the talking machine store into a general music store which, more and more as time goes on, it is bound to become. It must never be forgotten that the most direct road to better talking machine and record business is found to lie in the direction of better community feeling towards music. Whatever helps to create even the desire for a harmonica benefits the talking machine business.

Old But Good

It is altogether too late to talk to dealers about getting in orders early for Christmas, for dealers who have put off the inevitable for so long as the present date are in all probability already doomed to a great deal of disappointment. But it is worth while pointing out, as the end of the year comes within our view, that the progress the talking machine industry has made towards complete and permanent stabilization owes very much to the consistent and persistent propaganda in favor of abolishing the seasonal buying which the trade papers, and especially The World, have given up so much of their space to preach. It is necessary to remember, however, that just in proportion as the dimensions of the industry increase, and its complexity increases parallel-wise, so also does the need grow and deepen for effective organization of its production. Just so far as buying is seasonal, that is to say, restricted to certain periods of feverish activity in placing orders, periods which may be all run into the space of three months in each year, so long will the manufacturing end of the industry be compelled to do less than justice to the retailing end. The manufacture of any article whatever, save the most primitive, is necessarily an undertaking much more hazardous than the selling of the same at retail, no matter on how large a scale. To render it less hazardous, security is the chief essential. By security is meant the assurance that production plans can be laid well ahead, for twelve months ahead at least, and that when laid they can be carried out without involving overproduction. The ideal is practical but dealers must do their share.

Dealers and Jobbers in an Optimistic Frame of Mind—Consoles Lead—Chicago Assuming Importance as Record-making Center—Other Important Activities of the Month

CHICAGO, ILL., November 8.—Throughout the retail trade talking machines are moving in a satisfactory manner, with the console models still leading. It is notable, however, that the cabinet types are moving better at this particular time than they have during the past year. This may be due to the fact that there is an apparent shortage in the console instruments and that dealers are, therefore, pushing the up-rights. It is noteworthy regarding all types of instruments, whether they be of console, upright or portable models, that the workmanship shows much improvement. The finishes are much better in many of them and the same holds true of the materials used.

Many of the retailers report that there was quite a sharp increase in business beginning the 30th of last month. This was due in all probability to the first snowstorm of the season which happened on that day and possibly caused the buying public to appreciate that the Christmas season is but comparatively a few weeks off. Whether or not this was the actual reaction to the season's first snowfall has not been positively determined, but, anyway, something started business a-rolling and made everyone happy. Records and sheet music are moving in such a manner that all retailers here are thoroughly satisfied with this end of the business. The same applies to those who are handling "small goods," and it might be mentioned here that there is much activity in the musical merchandise field, and the number of dealers handling band, string and small musical instruments is constantly growing.

John McKenna New President of Piano Club
Signal honors were conferred upon John McKenna, manager of the Chicago branch of the Columbia Phonograph Co., when the Chicago Piano Club elected him president for the ensuing year. Not only was that honor conferred upon Mr. McKenna, but Harry Schoenwald, sales manager of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., came in for his share as well by having the secretaryship of the club bestowed upon him. The election took place in the Red Room of the Hotel LaSalle and was preceded by a banquet and a fine musical entertainment. Among the talent were Guyon's Paradise Orchestra, Gus Edwards (himself), the Jarros Trio, representatives from the Forster Publishing Co., and others.

At the first Monday noonday meeting over which Mr. McKenna presided he aroused the intense enthusiasm of the membership by giving an outline of the plans of the Chicago Piano Club for the ensuing year. The principal object of the club is to create a goodfellowship feeling among all branches of the trade, and now President McKenna proposes to step out and work for the cause of music to a greater extent among outsiders. While it is true that the Piano Club has already done a great deal by way of sponsoring music and musicians, Mr. McKenna's plans call for even greater activity.

One of Mr. McKenna's proposals is to arrange with some of the music schools of Chicago to require a certain amount of actual instruction work throughout settlement districts before the giving of teachers' diplomas to pupils. In furtherance of this scheme, President McKenna also suggested that a yearly concert be held in some prominent auditorium at which such students could demonstrate their work and progress.

Other plans and schemes too numerous to mention were offered by various members of the club and were taken under consideration, but whatever is done during the coming year, the Piano Club of Chicago is assured that with two able men at the helm, such as President McKenna and Secretary Schoenwald, the success of the Piano Club for the ensuing year will be greater than ever before.

attractive display rooms have been made. There has been no manager in the department since W. B. Papineau had to leave on account of illness some time ago, but C. C. Sweng, who is now in charge of the service department, has been acting as manager.

Mr. Wolf reports that he is surprised over the amount of business that is being done in all lines. "We are experiencing a very large Christmas trade," said Mr. Wolf, "and I am afraid that by the time Christmas comes it will be difficult to get enough goods to take care of the demand, especially for the higher priced models. This department handles all standard makes, including Victor, Brunswick, Sonora and Widdicombs, with a complete line of records and musical merchandise.

Chicago Becoming Recording Center

From the looks of things at this writing Chicago is destined to become one of the important recording centers of America. This city has been quietly at work building up its talent, and the talent in turn has been working its way up to national recognition. The recognition in turn has been noticeable in every direction, and consequently the recording companies have at last taken note of this recognition and have begun to do their stuff.

A few years ago it was rumored that there was a movement on foot by certain recording companies to establish temporary laboratories in this city, and after months of preparation this plan has been carried out in several instances. The number of record manufacturers recording in Chicago has gradually grown until to-day practically all of them are doing part, at least, of their recording work in this city.

The talk on the street at present is that before the end of the year every recording company in the country will have at least a temporary laboratory here to handle local talent. These recordings are stimulating the sales of records and sheet music to a remarkable degree.

It's an old story that every city or town boasts its home talent and the old "city by the lake" is quite logically like every other city or town in that respect.

L. C. Wiswell Enters Retail Field

The many friends in the trade of L. C. Wiswell, formerly manager of the wholesale and retail Victor departments of Lyon & Healy, of this city, will learn with interest that Mr. Wiswell has resigned from the Lyon & Healy organization in order to concentrate his activities on the development of his chain of retail Victor establishments. Mr. Wiswell controls several

As one of the most popular members of the talking machine trade, Mr. Wiswell will be able to give his retail establishments the benefit of twenty-five years' continuous service with Lyon & Healy. He is generally recognized as one of the most capable and efficient sales executives in the talking machine field, and for many years was active in the affairs of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, having served as president of that organization. Before assuming his retail duties Mr. Wiswell was the guest of honor at a dinner given by his old friends and associates in the dining-room of Mme. Galli's Cafe. One of the features of the dinner was the presentation of a handsome pair of cuff links by the girls of Lyon & Healy's Victor department and a fireplace set from his friends who were present.

Ashley Analyzes Coast Conditions

In a recent exclusive interview with the Chicago representative of The Talking Machine World, Merwin F. Ashley, vice-president of the Krasco Mfg. Co., talked about California. "We," said he, "who live in the Central West, particularly in big cities like Chicago, Detroit, and even those in the East, like New York and Boston, hear much about business activities of the California district, particularly in and about Los Angeles.

"From the stories we have heard we had naturally come to the belief that this locality is enjoying what is known as a boom, with everybody rushing in, spending their money, and rushing out again.

"As we note from past experiences, boom periods are like bubbles which sooner or later explode and leave nothing behind them. When, however, one takes a trip through California, one is obliged to admit that the supposed boom is in reality nothing but an expression of normal activity.

"To the newcomer the Los Angeles district, on the surface, has the earmarks of a boom section, and only after a real study is made of the business conditions there does one find out that he is mistaken.

"Just as many Easterners imagine that Chicago is a wild and woolly overgrown village, without any aim in life, large numbers of us here in the Central West have the same ideas concerning the Coast metropolis, but the proof of the pudding is the eating, and mistakes rectify themselves just as quickly as a real insight can be obtained.

"The money going into the California territory is being put there to stay. It is being utilized in the erection of manufacturing plants, in large buildings, in harbors, etc. They are not merely digging holes in the earth, like in the old mining days, and getting nothing for their labors except the hole. On the contrary, California is the coming country, and offers wonderful opportunities for our music industry.

Myer & Weber Now on Michigan Avenue

One of Chicago's oldest retail music stores, that of Myer & Weber, has moved from 120 South Wabash avenue to 174 North Michigan boulevard. This firm was one of the pioneers of Piano Row. The business was formerly confinned to pianos exclusively, but several years ago this concern branched out by taking on an exclusive retail representative of the Cheney Talking Machine Co. The present move is due to the fact that the old location was part of the property occupied by the Palmer House, one of Chicago's most famous landmarks, which will be wrecked in the near future in order that a new and larger hotel may be put up in its place.

Myer & Weber have been doing business in the same store on Wabash avenue for over thirty-three years. The business is now conducted by Carl Weber and his son Targot. The new location on Michigan avenue offers bigger possibilities for retail distribution, owing to the fact that it is in the heart of Chicago's new link bridge section, the main thoroughfare connecting Chicago's north and south sides. The advertising value alone of the location is tremendous. The store will be beautifully decorated throughout and will be brightly lighted Announcement has just been made by Johnnie Fink, manager of the Forster Music Publisher, Inc., this city, that he has just signed up Moe and Elsie Thompson, of St. Paul, Minn., as exclusive Forster staff artists.

Moe Thompson is said to be the most popular song entertainer in that city and is a headliner

Visiting New York

Gus Fricke, president of the Lakeside Supply Co., has just returned from a visit to New York where he spent about a week in calling on talking machine parts manufacturers. Mr. Fricke has just brought out a new motor built along quite novel lines, which is said to be simpler than almost any other known. He has been showing it to many of his friends in Chicago and when news of its introduction reached the Eastern metropolis it aroused so much interest that several of the foremost manufacturers in the New York territory invited Mr. Fricke to call on them to demonstrate it.

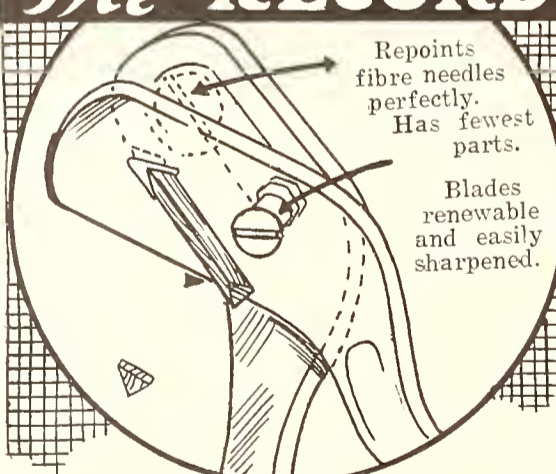

Mr. Fricke's plans for marketing the new motor have not been announced as yet, but several of his friends on the inside who profess to know claim that one of America's largest motor manufacturers has offered to take on the building and marketing of it.

Local Talent Makes Okeh and Odeon Records

From a recording standpoint Chicago saw two of its most active weeks during the latter part of October, while the recording forces of the General Phonograph Corp. were recording here. Those of the Okeh forces who came to Chicago for the purpose of doing the recording, or attending to some of the details pertaining thereto, were A. Bergh, musical director; C. L. Hibbard, recording engineer; Pete Decker, assistant recording engineer; A. Thallmayer, manager of the Okeh Foreign Division, and R. S. Peer.

A temporary recording laboratory was erected on the fourth floor of the Consolidated Talking Machine Building at 227 West Washington street and numbers were recorded by local artists, including many of Chicago's best musical talent, such as orchestras and singers.

Among those who were recorded were Moe Thompson and his sister, Elsie, who came on from St. Paul. Moe Thompson is headliner and manager of the musical entertainment at the Ambassador Cafe, St. Paul, and his sister, Elsie, is one of the leading organists in that city and directs the organ entertainment in the various Finkelstein houses. The discovery of Moe and his sister, Elsie, was due to the work of E. A. Fearn, who has been watching their progress for many months past, and when their popularity had assumed great proportion in that section of the country Mr. Fearn lost no time in signing them up as exclusive Okeh artists.

The actual recording was done by Messrs Hibbard and Decker and it can be said without flattery that the work of these gentlemen was, to say the least, remarkable. Many artists who can boast of unusual talent were practically helpless when placed before the recording instruments, and it was into this breach that Messrs. Hibbard and Decker stepped, bringing them through in ship-shape manner. In the recording processes Mr. Fearn, of the Consolidated Co., showed himself an able director.

Vitanola Co. Activities

In former years manufacturers encouraged dealers to anticipate their wants for the holiday trade, but it has usually been a tough proposition. Many dealers were new in the game and could not appreciate what a factory is up against. However, through constant work the manufacturers have at last managed to get their dealers to co-operate with them to a very high degree and to anticipate their wants far enough in advance to enable the manufacturer to work on a well-planned schedule.

It might be said that in this territory one concern which is most fortunate in obtaining the close co-operation of its dealers is The Vitanola Talking Machine Co. This co-operation in turn has enabled the Vitanola Co. to arrange its production schedules so that instruments are being shipped exactly as promised when the order was received. This working schedule has in turn spread a feeling of satisfaction throughout the entire Vitanola family, and all Vitanola dealers feel sure that they will be able to take care of holiday business satisfactorily. This co-operation has brought the output of the Vitanola plant up to its full capacity and so permits officers of Vitanola to already begin their plans for the year 1924.

Karig Shows Trotter Motor

K. Karig, of the mechanical department of the Plymouth Phonoparts Co., Plymouth, Wis., and Lake laboratories of Elkhart Lake, Wis., spent a few days in Chicago recently calling on manufacturers.

Many of Mr. Karig's calls were educational. He visited the mechanical departments of a number of manufacturers who use the Trotter electric motor put out by his company, and talked to the workers on its construction, maintenance and service. Mr. Karig was much pleased with the outlook for the electric motor and indicated that large numbers of manufacturers expect to use the electric Trotter motors in 1924.

Eliminate Trouble Possibilities

On several occasions The Sterling Devices Mfg. Co. has had its attention called to the fact that when stylus bars of the Sterling enclosed reproducer need repairing it is necessary to send the reproducer back to the factory, because of certain technical features which present obstacles to ordinary repair men.

This was due to the fact that in the old type Sterling reproducer the stylus bar is constructed

The volume of good music coming from such a tiny source will arouse buying interest and cause comment.

"Just bought the best little phonograph I ever heard. Genola, it's called. Small enough to fit in your hat, but it isn't a toy. And play? Ten-inch records, too! Say, go over and hear it. For $5, it's certainly a bargain."

Conversation like the above will sell many more Genolas. Exceptional value is so obvious in this little phonograph that it opens the way for a sale to everybody. There's a quick turnover and a nice profit here, Mr. Dealer, without the usual risk in handling novelties. Order your Genolas now.

Some of the reasons why people wonder and talk!

The contrast between Genola's size and its ability to reproduce awakens immediate interest. The little instrument—only 8¼ x 5½ x 7½ inches—contains a real phonograph motor.

The Genola is American-made throughout—priced low, due to quantity production. Not an importation.

The handsome black japanned case is complete with horn.

of two pieces soldered together. The solder occasionally loosened and blasting would then occur. In the new type of Sterling reproducer, however, this two-piece stylus bar is done away with and a cleverly constructed one-piece bar is used instead.

Another improvement in the Sterling product has been made at the base of the tone arm. Heretofore, this tone arm, which embodied the old-fashioned ball-bearing race-way, has entailed difficult assembling methods, but it has now been replaced by a new type of annular ball-bearing race-way, such as is utilized in the wheels of automobiles. Anyone familiar with automobile wheels knows the two annular ball-bearing race-ways used on both sides of the hub. In the construction of the new Sterling base the same principle is used, and this permits greater freedom of movement of the tone arm.

Another improvement in the Sterling product is seen in the new throw-back. Heretofore announcement, from its headquarters at 126 River street, that many new features and improvements will be added to its new line to be introduced to the trade early in 1924. The new line consists of many novel improvements in the Blood product, among which may be mentioned the new method for preventing any loose joints or parts. Just what these new improvements are has not been definitely announced, but it is understood that they entirely eliminate the possibility of joints loosening by keeping the moving parts constantly lubricated.

Sterling offered only non-throw-back arms, but is now in position to offer both. The old pivot type base is retained for those who want it.

Records by Wendell Hall

The first record made by Wendell Hall, of local fame, has just been released on Gennett records and a big sale is anticipated, especially in the Middle West where Mr. Hall is very well known through his radio activities. The records are very clever and original. The titles of the songs recorded by Mr. Hall are "It Just Keeps on a Rainin'" and "The Red Headed Music Master," introducing "Red Hot." The number is 5271. These numbers were recorded in New York, and Mr. Hall accompanied himself on the ukulele.

Interesting Saxophone Literature

"The saxophone is here!" The above is the opening line seen on a new circular just gotten out by Cole & Dunas. Following this is some effective text matter, telling how the saxophone got here and of its possibilities. This is followed by illustrations of saxophones, with their prices and trade names. The close of the circular text matter is devoted to a number of "harmonies," clever little quips having to do with music and the saxophone. The circular, which was edited by Joe Dunas, of Cole & Dunas, is being placed in the dealers' hands and is a four-page affair. There is a space open for the insertion of the dealer's name.

DeForest Co. Sales Meeting

H. H. Roemer, general sales manager of the DeForest Radio Telephone & Telegraph Co., held a get-together meeting of his sales forces in the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, recently. All of Mr. Roemer's men who handle the Central Western territories were at the meeting and sales plans were made for a campaign, the like of which has never been seen in this section before, so far as radio is concerned.

Mr. Roemer also outlined plans for the year of 1924 and kept his salesmen up considerably by showing some of the new products which the DeForest Co. contemplates putting on the market, beginning with 1924.

"Heretofore," said Mr. Roemer to a World representative, "one of the big bugbears of radio was the service question, but the trade can now rest assured that this is now eliminated, or at least will be so completely with the introduction of the latest DeForest receiving sets. In other words, DeForest instruments are now being made so that there is practically no service necessary. A great deal of the improvement is in the loop antenna we are using on our sets. All that is necessary to do with the new instruments is to replace a battery or a lamp occasionally."

Professor Cheney Ends His Western Tour

Professor Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., returned to this city on October 30 from a two months' tour of the Pacific

Prof. Forest Cheney

Coast region. During his travels he visited some of the most important cities in the Central West and in the States of Oregon, Washington and California. His visits to these localities brought him closely in touch with general business conditions, and the facts he learned on his trip have caused him to believe that certain territories in the Coast section give every promise of becoming recognized as centers of the nation's wealth.

"In certain places throughout the Coast region," said Professor Cheney, "particularly in the Los Angeles district, there is a tremendous influx of tourists and homeseekers. They have usually been supposed to be only transients, but this is by no means true of them all. Statistics show that many of them become fascinated with the Pacific Coast, invest their money in local real estate and commercial activities and remain permanently.

"For example, the building that is going on there is remarkable. It is true there are a number of flimsy bungalows being erected, but most of the buildings, as a matter of fact, are substantial affairs, costing anywhere from $5,000 to $20,000 apiece. Then, again, take a look around at the countless number of oil derricks already erected and in course of construction. This means that wealth has been brought there, as anyone who is familiar with the oil business knows that it takes thousands and thousands of dollars to drill an oil well.

"But to get away from the realty and oil business, let us look on the other side. For example, the farming situation. Both California and Washington are producing a wonderful wealth of farming produce, especially in fruits, which is calling to those States tremendous amounts of wealth, not only for investment but as returns from the activities of the farmers. In California and Washington the farmers are exceptionally well organized and this is having a telling effect in building up the financial status of these territories. The Japanese catastrophe was the cause of much activity throughout the lumber districts in Washington, which, in turn, is having its reaction on general business. Oregon, however, is not so fortunate, for its farmers are practically unorganized and taxes are said to be very, very high."

While Professor Cheney was making his trip through the Coast States he not only got in close touch with the music dealers, but he was fortunate in meeting important people in practically every walk of life. In all he made twenty-four public addresses, and attended banquets at such clubs as the Rotary, Kiwanis, Fellowship and Advertising Clubs, and Chambers of Commerce. He also made addresses at many high schools before the students. His

Urge Uniform and Conditional Sales Act

On Monday and Tuesday, October 22-23, the third annual convention of the Illinois Music Merchants' Association was held at the Jefferson Hotel, Peoria, Ill. A goodly representation of talking machine men from both the wholesale and retail branches of the trade was present. Although not quite so large in point of attendance as previous gatherings the convention was a big success, both from a business and an entertainment standpoint, and great credit goes to the retiring president, Charles C. Adams, and his fellow officers for the arrangements made to receive the visitors. In spite of the fact that many of the dealers were busily engaged with their own affairs, owing to the Fall business which naturally accumulates at this time of the year, nevertheless many found or took the time to travel to the State's second largest city.

Following registration in the morning the conventioners were taken Monday afternoon on an automobile ride through the city of Peoria. In the evening the president gave a dinner at the Peoria Automobile Club, some seventeen miles out of Peoria, Ill. This was a highly successful affair. After dinner President Adams introduced James P. Lacey, music merchant of Peoria, who acted as toastmaster. Mr. Lacey had arranged the program of entertainment, in which Willard Beller, pianist, and Pearl Bradford, soprano, of Lyon & Healy artists' department, figured. Another representative of Lyon & Healy, E. J. Fishbaugh, superintendent of the Lyon & Healy plant in Chicago, addressed the convention on "The Manufacturer's Viewpoint of His New Products." Billy Collins, also of Lyon & Healy, closed the affair with several very interesting humorous readings.

On Tuesday morning, at the first business session, W. W. Kerr, of the Cable Company, was the principal speaker. He urged the members of the State Association to co-operate with other State organizations in securing the passage of a uniform and conditional sales act. The value of such an act to retail talking machine houses doing an instalment business was forcefully presented by Mr. Kerr, who showed how such an act, if passed, would overcome many of the troubles which Illinois retailers are now confronted with. One of the most resultful acts of the entire convention came from this discussion, viz., the appointment of a committee consisting of Guy Hornish, of Peoria; Fred Hanger, of Lincoln, and M. G. Ogle, of Galesburg. These gentlemen will work with the Credit Men's Association, the Illinois Furniture Dealers' Association and the State Chamber of Commerce in endeavoring to secure the passage of a uniform conditional sales act.

Tuesday noon the music men attended a luncheon at the Lions Club, where John McKenna, president of the Chicago Piano Club, was introduced as the guest of honor and toastmaster. Then came some highly interesting entertainment features, given by Axel Christensen, also of the Piano Club of Chicago. The principal speaker at this luncheon was the Superintendent of Schools of Peoria, John Fisher.

The Tuesday afternoon session was addressed by W. F. McClellan, secretary of the National Association of Piano Tuners, after which the annual election of officers followed, with the following results: Fred P. Watson, of Mt. Vernon, president; O. F. Anderson, Springfield, vice-president; J. E. Rice, Mt. Olive, second vice-president; R. J. Van Fossen, Beardstown, secretary, and Lloyd Parker, treasurer.

The annual banquet was held on Tuesday night in the Palm Room of the Jefferson Hotel, when the retiring president, Charles Adams, introduced the new president, Fred Watson. Addresses were made by Roy S. Dunn, representing the National Piano Travelers' Association, and M. J. Kennedy, secretary of the National Association of Music Merchants, who emphasized the value of good-fellowship and better co-operation between local associations and the national body.

The guest of honor and chief speaker was T. M. Pletcher, president of the Q R S Music Co., who gave a highly interesting talk on salesmanship in the music trade and the opportunities that lie before the energetic music merchant. In illustration, he emphasized the value of radio and the manner in which it was being featured successfully by numerous members of the music trade.

The phonographs exhibited at the convention included the Sonora line, which was shown by J. F. Corcoran; the Howezie record rack, with O. H. Eliel in charge, and the Davenport Phonograph Accessories Co., E. Q. Hewping in charge of this display.

Art in Phonograph Design

In these columns last month reference was made to a chronological chart compiled by the Windsor Furniture Co. which goes back to primitive days and takes up the growth and progress of art and furniture in a sort of "family tree" style right up to the present day. In the beginning it deals with the most primitive styles of furniture and gradually comes up to the present-day types, and at various times it branches off, showing the influences of certain types upon the so-called period designs.

One branch of this "tree" is particularly interesting in that it deals with the Italian Renaissance period, how it was influenced by the Greek age and how these, in turn, are having their effects upon the present-day architecture and design in furniture.

In these periods much attention was paid to the human figure from a carving and sculptural standpoint. The furniture designers in those days, in keeping up with the demands of the times, made use of the figures and utilized them in the making of legs, for example.

In the furniture of the day we very frequently find the use of the human figure in designing furniture, particularly in consoles, serving tables and wall tables, as well as an occasional use of them as pilasters in the construction of very expensive pianos.

Some thirty years ago the Windsor Furniture Co. had on exhibit in the furniture building at the World's Fair, Chicago, some very fine samples of carvings of the human figure as applied to high-grade furniture. It will be remembered that some of the World's Fair buildings were destroyed by fire, including the one in which these carvings had been displayed. Happily, however, the Windsor Furniture Co. managed to rescue a large amount of its exhibit and has since that time kept these carvings as souvenirs.

Since the introduction of the console talking machine the Windsor Co. has made use of carvings of the human figure in embodying it in several of its designs of high-grade console talking machines. The resurrection of these carvings and their application to modern console talking machine design have created unusual interest throughout the trade, which has, in turn, caused considerable demand for high-grade Windsor art models. So great has this demand become of late that the Windsor Co. has been making plans further to increase its production of these instruments and in this connection is utilizing its aforementioned chronological chart for the benefit of dealers.

Gulbransen-Dickinson's Significant Bulletin

The September bulletin of Gulbransen-Dickinson has some of its space devoted to a mass photograph, showing nineteen Gulbransen dealers' billboards. From the standpoint of publicity there is something very significant in this photograph of the group of billboards which should arouse much interest throughout the talking machine trade.

The billboards in question just pertain to the Chicago territory and show the co-operative publicity existing between a number of live Gulbransen dealers and the Gulbransen Co. In all the Gulbransen has forty-two dealers in Chicago, all of whom take advantage of the Gulbransen publicity service, but the above-mentioned nineteen have been picked at random. It is an impressive list and eloquent testimony to the standing of the Gulbransen in this city.

The significant thing of these nineteen posters is that sixteen of them devote some of (Continued on page 122) their space to advertising nationally known talking machines.

Since talking machine dealers are familiar with the handling of nationally advertised products they are in a position to appreciate the value lying in products of such a nature. The Gulbransen line of pianos, being nationally known and advertised, fits in very well with other nationally advertised musical instruments, and that is why there is such splendid co-operation existent among Gulbransen dealers.

Plans are now being made by the publicity department of the Gulbransen-Dickinson Co. to increase its publicity during the coming year, and it is believed that when all plans have been carried out the proportion of Gulbransen dealers handling talking machines, which at present shows a ratio of sixteen to nineteen, will have been greatly increased.

Opens Krasco Stockroom in New York

E. B. Cadwell, of the Krasco Mfg. Co., spent a number of days in Chicago the first of the month visiting the plant. Although his headquarters are in New York he visits the Chicago factory frequently. On his last visit he and other officers of the company spent considerable time going over plans for the balance of the year and the coming year.

In order to expedite shipments to its Eastern clientele the Krasco Mfg. Co. has opened a stockroom at 120 West Forty-second street,

New York, where a large supply of Krasco motors, Krasco units and Krasco parts will be kept constantly on hand. This new Krasco wareroom will be looked after by D. S. Root, treasurer of Krasco, and E. L. Krans, Mr. Root's assistant.

Anthony Leaves Pathé

After five years' service as office manager and assistant sales manager A. V. Anthony has severed his connections with the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. Mr. Anthony is very well known in the Chicago trade and, since his entrance into the talking machine business, has built up a nice reputation. Because of his original sales methods he has been instrumental in establishing many retail accounts in the Chicago district and throughout the Middle West. Mr. Anthony has not as yet announced his plans for the future.

UNITED

This is the new Series Six United Phonograph Motor. There is a fully enclosed, self-lubricated, spring barrel suspension, ball-bearing, silent running United Motor for any type of phonograph built, including portables.

A thin dime—and two minutes' time

No one has discovered how to make springs that never break—but United has discovered how to make a thin dime and two minutes' time replace a broken spring in a phonograph motor. Instead of at least one hour's time spent in the mussy job of taking apart the motor, installing a new spring and reassembling, with a United motor you merely take out the old spring assembly and insert a new one—an operation which anyone can perform in two minutes or less, using a screw-driver (or a thin dime in emergency). And you don't even soil your fingers!

UNITED

Completely Enclosed!

The only enclosed motors of international reputation are the United. Cast-iron housing governs, gears, worm and lower end of shaft. Excludes dust, dirt, shavings, slivers, sawdust, needles, etc., forever. Protects vital parts from damage during assembling, shipment, demonstration and use. Insures permanent alignment. Removes necessity of "tuning" motor when installing it.

Self-Lubricated!

Phonograph users are notoriously forgetful about oiling their motors. Or they overdo it. United Motors—another exclusive feature!—do not require oiling more often than once in four or five years. The automatic and continuous wick-oiling United system, made possible by the air-tight housing, keeps all moving parts evenly and adequately lubricated.

Other Superiorities!

Spring barrels are held in positive alignment by the exclusive United suspension—cannot work loose. Smooth, easy functioning of control lever always assured. All plain bearings are perfectly machined and trued in United motors. Ball bearings take care of end-thrust. Finally, each motor is mounted, tested and regulated before shipping—insuring silence.

the center of Chicago's busy Roseland district, and one of the parts in Chicago territory in which no one can deny that the keenest of competition exists. Besides handling talking machines the J. O. Twichell shop handles a well-known line of pianos and players, but the Strand talking machine is handled exclusively. Mr. Newman says that his sales of Strand talking machines for the past month exceed all other months and, from present indications, the balance of the year will bring forth a Strand business far in excess of anything he has up to this time accomplished.

Second Annual Luncheon of Sonora Dealers

S. O. Martin, vice-president and general manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., New York, was the principal speaker at the second annual luncheon of the Sonora dealers in Chicago territory held November 7 at the Congress Hotel. The Illinois Phonograph Corp., Sonora jobber in this territory, was the host at this luncheon, and many practical subjects were discussed during the course of the meeting.

During the course of his address Mr. Martin gave an intimate idea of the present status of Sonora activities, emphasizing the fact that the company is enjoying the most prosperous era in its history and that the factory at Saginaw is working day and night to keep pace with the requirements of the jobbers and dealers. Incidentally, Mr. Martin was able to give the Chicago trade first-hand information regarding Saginaw affairs, for he had just visited the mammoth Sonora plant in that city. Among the other speakers during the afternoon were E. D. Coots, sales promotion manager, Sonora Phonograph Co.; A. G. Rodway, president of the Illinois Phonograph Corp.; Leon Golder, general manager, and Harry O'Connor, sales manager. Several of the local dealers also participated in an interesting round-table discussion and a musical program added to the success of the conference.

Piano Club Hears Talk on Radio

Members of the Chicago Piano Club heard last week a very interesting and enlightening talk on the subject of "Radio in the Music Industry" by W. S. Hedges, editor of the radio department of the Chicago Daily News. Mr. Hedges began by stating that the vast majority of programs broadcast are musical. "The radio fans want music," said he, "and for that reason music is given preference over all other items. Radio has thereby brought music into thousands of homes where there never was any music before and is, furthermore, giving the music industry the greatest advertising it has ever had, because the people want a variety of music, and all types of musical programs are broadcast. Radio music might be called impermanent music because it is not played over and over again, and those who like a certain song will have to go out and buy the record or roll for either their talking machine or player-piano.

"Now, I understand that the musical instrument manufacturers are doing a big business this year, which I attribute to radio, or rather the advertising of music by radio. It matters not whether radio is an evolution or a revolution, for, whatever it is, it is here to stay and should be supported instead of flouted. It is logical to assume that radio will not die, for what is good lives. For example, when vaudeville was introduced some were afraid that it would replace the drama, and when motion pictures were introduced others thought that they would replace the acting stage altogether or to a very large extent, whereas neither is interfering with the other.

"Now, there is no reason for the music industry to view radio with disfavor, for radio is not interfering with the music industry, but is, rather, helping it. For example, the song 'Mellow Moon' was a very obscure number before it was broadcast. The composer went to the Drake Hotel and broadcast the number himself. Within one month the sales were 100,000 copies.

"You, gentlemen, should get in on radio because it is musical. I do not mean that you should stock your shelves with parts. Let the electrical dealer take care of this trade. What you should sell is the high-grade finished set. Investigation by a radio manufacturer who sells his product exclusively to music merchants shows that, of all the music men handling radio, 90 per cent have made money, 3 per cent have lost money and the remaining 7 per cent have broken even, which, I think, is a very good showing. One Los Angeles music dealer in the past year sold $200,000 of complete radio sets and he still is selling phonographs. I do not think the music store is complete unless it has all three—the talking machine, the piano and the radio."

Chicago Incorporation

The Ver Celli Anctil Co., 11405 Michigan avenue, has been incorporated with a capital of $20,000, to deal in phonographs, pianos, musical records and rolls. Incorporators: Bernard Ver Celli, Isabelle Ver Celli, Jos. S. Anctil.

Columbia Brieflets

Sol. Biasco recently opened the Archer Music Shop, 4237 Archer avenue, Chicago, Ill. Modern fixtures were installed and the new Columbia line will be handled exclusively. The neighborhood is chiefly Lithuanian, Polish and Italian, and a complete stock of Columbia records in these languages will be handled.

E. Kmentt, foreign record representative for the Columbia Co.'s Chicago branch, spent last week in St. Louis territory working with the trade on their Christmas foreign record requirements.

C. R. Salmon has been placed on the Loop and North Side territory for the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co. Mr. Salmon was in the Columbia organization for eight years at St. Louis. After spending two years with the Brunswick Co. in New York he is returning to his first love.

A recent visitor to the Chicago office of the Columbia Co. was W. W. Cooper, dealer in Genoa, Ill., who looked over the new Columbia line and placed an order to meet his Fall requirements.

The Fisk University Jubilee Singers, an exclusive Columbia organization, is touring the Chicago branch territory during the months of October and November. The Columbia catalog contains a large assortment of exclusive records by this organization, and their appearances have always materially boosted record sales for dealers.

Interest Grows in Chicago Radio Exposition

Practically All the Large Manufacturers Will Be Represented at the Coming Show Which Will Be Held at the Coliseum From November 20 to 25—Elaborate Programs Prepared

CHICAGO, ILL., November 10.—The talking machine trade in Chicago and the surrounding territory is evincing keen interest in the Second Annual Radio Show, which will be held in the Coliseum from November 20 to 25 and at which will be exhibited the products of the leading manufacturers in the radio industry. Practically all of the exhibition space has been sold and when the doors open there will be presented the greatest array of radio products that has ever been shown. Various interesting features have been prepared by the show management and the Chicago broadcasting stations have organized to broadcast the question “What Would You Like Most to Hear Over the Radio?” There will be about 500 prizes offered for the most interesting answers and it is expected that more than 200,000 replies will be received to this query.

Many well-known personages in the radio industry will be among the speakers at the trade meetings and at the show, among these being Major Armstrong, Dr. Lee De Forest, Prof. Hazeltine, N. T. Llewelling and others. There will also be presented feature concerts broadcasted direct from the Coliseum by means of sealed wires to the local broadcasting stations.

James F. Kerr, manager of the Chicago Radio Show, is delighted with the enthusiastic reception accorded his publicity matter by the dealers throughout the Middle West. He states that the show management circularized 8,000 Middle Western dealers, telling them of the show and inviting them to attend. The responses to the invitations have been gratifying beyond all expectations and Mr. Kerr predicts that Chicago will surely be the radio center of the world during the show.

Among the prominent manufacturers in the radio industry who have reserved space at the show are the following: De Forest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co., Colin B. Kennedy Co., Federal Tel. & Tel. Co., Cutting & Washington Radio Corp., Crosley Mfg. Co., Precision Equipment Co., American Radio & Research Corp., Nathaniel Baldwin, Inc., Bristol Co., Zenith Radio Corp., Atwater Kent Mfg. Co., United Mfg. & Distributing Co., Moon Radio Corp., Walbert Mfg. Co., A. H. Grebe & Co., F. A. Dandreaux, Inc., and others.

Personnel of Prominent Los Angeles Music House Comes Together at Dinner-Meeting—Interesting Talks Feature Event

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 5.—Interesting addresses on business development and plans for the future featured the dinner-meeting of the Fitzgerald Music Co.’s organization at the Paulais Cafe, this city, last month. Those present numbered 110, ample evidence of the development of this progressive music concern. Addresses were made by J. F. Fitzgerald, head of the concern, and other officers and executives, including Manager Mansfield, of the phonograph division, who spoke of the rapid and steady growth of this department during the past eighteen months. Mr. Mansfield pointed out that the talking machine division has shown a gain of from 50 to 75 per cent each month over the corresponding period a year ago.

The Fitzgerald Music Co. is not only one of the largest music houses on the West Coast, but it is also one of the most successful, due to progressive merchandising methods. Musical instruments of all kinds are handled, including a complete line of pianos and Brunswick phonographs and records. The talking machine department, by the way, is a feature of this fine establishment, the most modern fixtures and the last word in interior arrangements making it a delight to visitors.

DISCUSS TALKING MACHINE SHOW

Talking Machine Men, Inc., Considered Proposal at Meeting Last Month—Also Discuss Participation in Music Week and Plans for the Annual Ball to Be Held November 21

The advisability of endorsing and participating in the holding of a national phonograph and talking machine exposition in New York some time during the coming year was one of the chief matters discussed at the monthly meeting of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at the Café Boulevard on Wednesday, October 17. There were those who felt that the success of such a show was too remote to warrant the association becoming involved in the movement, but the more optimistic ones prevailed with the result that Lambert Friedl was appointed chairman of a committee to consider the matter and report on the project later.

The participation of the members of the association in the next annual music week celebration and particularly the music memory contest in the public schools of the city also came up for considerable discussion, particularly as the members have been very slow to respond to letters from the president inquiring as to their willingness to lend their co-operation by working with the schools in their respective districts, giving them certain quantities of records included in the list, and otherwise lending their aid. It appeared that less than 5 per cent of the members had taken the trouble to write to the president regarding the matter.

Among the outside speakers at the meeting were: J. G. Horne, of the Consolidated Orchestras Booking Co., who outlined a plan whereby dealers could draw attention to their stores and likewise increase their profits by acting as booking offices for orchestras in co-operation with his company; Miss Isabel Lowden, Director of the New York Music Week Association, who asked the support of the talking machine men for the music contests now being carried on in the various school districts by that association, and L. M. Bernstein, of the Wilmark Service System, the function of which organization is to check thefts in retail stores.

Representatives of the A. J. Stasny Music Co. were present at the meeting and demonstrated several of the company's hits, including "Sun-Kist Rose," "Waltz Me to Sleep in Your Arms," and "How Can I Believe You?"

The entertainment committee of the organization is working hard to make a success of the annual entertainment and ball of the association to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on the evening of November 21, and at which a majority of the leading recording orchestras and a number of prominent artists will appear. H. Emerson Yorke, of M. Witmark & Sons, was appointed a member of the committee.

"LITTLE TOTS" SPECIAL TUNES

Special Christmas Book Added to Regal Record Company's Catalog—"Little Tots' Phonograph" Makes Its Debut in the Trade

The special Christmas book of "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes," manufactured by the Regal Record Co., Inc., has timely additions to this firm's catalog. The sales department of the company expects these Christmas books to add considerably to the importance of its product and to increase the volume of sales during the holidays.

In conjunction with the Christmas book of "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes," the company has placed on the market a juvenile phonograph for use on the table, floor or anywhere in the nursery. It carries the trade name "Little Tots' Phonograph" and is highly decorated and multi-colored with designs which appeal to the child.

In the metropolitan district of New York a long list of department stores and dealers are making a feature of "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes." Among the department stores which give these records and books special showings are: Lord & Taylor, Abraham & Straus, Bamberger's, Frederick Loeser & Co., Gimbel Bros., Bloomingdale Bros., Hearns, James McCreery & Co. and Hahne & Co.

AUDAK IN COUNTRYWIDE USE

Record Demonstration Device Now in Retail Stores Throughout the Country

Following the introduction of the Audak in recent months by the Munson-Raynor Corp., the Pacific Coast representative, this talking machine record demonstrating product is now in use in retail establishments in practically every State in the Union. The Audak, originally used by dealers in Eastern territory, and subsequently gaining popularity in the Middle West, is now being given attention by the entire trade when considering record sales.

Recently a representative of the Audak Company made a tour through the Eastern and Middle West trade centers and reported many instances where the Audak is being constantly used to increase record sales, save sales energy and conserve floor space. With distributors in the larger cities, and with one or more Audaks in use in various other centers, it is now possible for the merchant to see and hear records demonstrated by this product in stores in his own locality.

The popularity of the Audak name in places where it is not yet in use recently was forcibly demonstrated to an Audak representative who visited a store in the Middle West, and who, in a chat with The World, said: "I found that the dealer had purchased a demonstrating device presumably thinking it was the original. While the dealer was not satisfied with its use, he did not at once discover the fraud, laboring under the impression that the original was over-advertised. When shown the difference, and after hearing records demonstrated by the real product, he denounced the sales organization that had perpetrated the fraud, particularly inasmuch as the counterfeit was billed as an 'Audak' on the invoice."

Regarding this latter situation, Maximilian Weil, head of the Audak Company, obtained the invoice in question and other data and has placed it in the hands of his attorney. He states that action will be taken, both from a criminal and civil standpoint.

TRADE NEWS FROM CANTON

CANTON, O., November 6.—Trade Extension Week, held by Alliance merchants last week, was participated in by six Alliance music dealers, three of whom were active in the various promotions. The Vernon Piano Co., J. H. Johnson Sons and the Cassidy Drug Co., Victor dealers, presented special window displays and staged a number of exploitation stunts.

The talking machine department of the William R. Zollinger Co., here, will soon be remodeled and four new booths installed under the supervision of Manager W. E. Pyle.

The S. S. Kresge Co., here, will maintain a complete record department, specializing exclusively in Regal records in its store opened in Canton this week.

Alice Kestel, formerly with the D. W. Lerch Co., is now in charge of the record, rolls and small goods department of the Alford-Fryar Piano Co.

George C. Wille Co. will be in its new location at Fourth street and Market avenue soon after December 1.

Almost twice the present space will be available for the talking machine department at the Hefling Music Co., New Philadelphia, O., when alterations now in progress are completed.

H. C. MILLER ENTERS FIELD

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 7.—The Brunswick Shop, of this city, formerly under the direction of Peter Casper, has recently been reopened by H. C. Miller, with a complete line of Brunswick machines and records. This is Mr. Miller's first venture in the phonograph business and he has the best wishes of a host of friends here.

The Fount of Pure Tone

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the thirty-second of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the rearing and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

OPERA, RECORDS AND THE PUBLIC

There is not the slightest doubt that the American public is taking a deeper interest than ever in opera. There remains, of course, the prejudice, not by any means unfounded, which holds that grand opera is a society plaything in America, whatever it may be elsewhere. Yet, despite the circumstances in which operatic representations continue to be given at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, the fact remains that this particular form of musical art is steadily becoming popular. Here is some information on the subject which talking machine dealers will do well to realize.

The Chicago Civic Opera Co. is the name of the organization which took over opera management in Chicago when the family which for some years had been supporting it and paying the deficits decided that it was tired of holding the bag, as they say on the stock exchange. At the head of the new organization is a committee of business men, headed by the president of the principal public utility company. These business men have been trying to straighten out the tangled affairs of the company and to infuse a little business spirit and method into the various spending departments. They have been very successful and have evolved many novel schemes for carrying on. Realizing that, until the public has been entirely "sold" on the idea of opera as a civic institution, deficits must be incurred the managers have secured guarantees from business houses and individuals which assure them that all deficits will be met during the next five years. Meanwhile an intensive selling campaign is going on for the coming season. By billboards, by cards in street cars and elevated trains, by every kind of newspaper and outdoor advertising, the opera is being "sold" to the people. Coupon books are offered at reduced rates and are introduced to the public as "opera mileage books." These entitle the holder to seats for any operas he may from time to time select by presentation of the book at the box office, when the necessary equivalent amount in coupons is detached for each purchase of seats. Opera in Chicago is being "sold" to the people—and is actually in danger of becoming a popular, non-society affair!

Opera Without Stars

Let us point the moral more sharply by means of another concrete instance. The Wagnerian Opera Co. from Berlin came over to the United States last season and gave some performances in the East which were well received. This season they have been coming West. They have had two weeks in Chicago, presenting, in German only, the works of the Wagnerian repertory, with one Mozart opera and two new German works, which are now being heard for the first time in this country. Now, this company is unique in one very important particular. Not only is it a very good company, not only is it a well-trained company, not only has it a splendid orchestra (mostly American, by the way) and eminent conductors, but, mirabile dictu, it has no stars! That is to say, there is no question of star personality, no pushing forward of this or that prima donna or first tenor. Scarcely anyone in Chicago knows the name of a single one of the singers; and nobody cares. The names are there, but they are not starred, not advertised, and there is no press agent to tell weird tales to the newspapers about what Mme. X and Herr Y are doing, have done or will do. The singers have come almost unknown as members of a superb team, but as team members only, not as stars. They work for their operas, not the operas for them. In fact, the names of the eminent musicians who are conducting (Stransky especially) are much better known in America than those of any of the excellent singing artists. Yet the whole two weeks' season in Chicago has been a stupendous success, which has been achieved without any of the tricks or schemes which have become associated with the production of opera in America, and which excellent people suppose to be inherent in the game and cannot possibly be destroyed. Yet these German artists, working without stars, in a theatre much too small and with stage difficulties simply immense, without adequate or skillful press representation, have filled every seat at almost every performance of their two weeks' stay in Chicago. They have given the four dramas of the Ring twice, and each of the other Wagner works at least once, some twice. They have had sometimes two performances a day. They have created a public sensation. Chicago has taken them to her heart. There is more talk about them than there has been about anything musical which has been heard and seen in Chicago in ten years. Moreover, advance news from Milwaukee, Cleveland and Detroit indicates that the same triumphs will be scored in these cities.

Now, what does all this mean? It simply means that the public is waking up. If the statements made above have any significance at all, they have this: the public is waking up. It is beginning to take a genuine interest in opera; not as a society affair, not as interesting newspaper reading, but as music. That is what all this means.

Where We Come In

Now the talking machine business has had a lot to do with the more or less slow process of education which during the last twenty years has been leading the American people out of the desert of misunderstanding into the Promised Land of appreciation. The talking machine business has probably done more than any other agency ever did to make people familiar with the music of the various operas and with the names of the works themselves, of their composers and of the great singers who have interpreted them. Probably the names of the singers are best known, but that cannot be helped. The point is that the educational work is now bearing fruit and it is time to do something to take advantage of the harvest.

Now, in fact, is the time to begin pushing as hard as possible the opera reproducing properties of the talking machine. It matters not, for the purposes of these remarks, what style or make of machine a merchant may have to sell. What does matter is that we are arriving at a moment when the talking machine industry can safely go to the people and tell them that opera and records go together, that opera at home is within everyone's reach and that the way to get ready for next season is to learn all one can at home this Winter about the operas and their interpreters by listening to the music in the intimacy of the home.

Of course, this has been done already, but the point is that merchants as a class have been chary of coming out and arguing these things with the force and persistency which can now be seen to be called for. The psychological moment has arrived and if we do not have sense enough to take advantage of its arrival we need blame only ourselves.

Some Practical Suggestions

A merchant could take advantage of the existing favorable conditions in some such way as the following:

First, he can look over his stock, make lists of records representing different operas (of whatever makes these records may be, for the make is not in question) and let the people know that he has them. For a beginning it is a very good thing to take the programs of the New York or the Chicago operas for the season, find out what is available in the way of records and advertise these.

Second, he can put on concerts. He can invite by special letter the members of the local musical society (women especially) or the choir of his church, or the pupils of some teacher in whom he is interested, to come around some evening and listen to as many selections as he can give of some special opera. There are some complete operas. "Faust" is one of them and "Pagliacci" another—each of which is very popular and can be obtained complete in records.

Thirdly, he can induce to the best of his power his salespeople to cooperate with him. In so doing he will have to overcome obstacles, but the effort must be made. Once get the salespeople interested in pushing high-class records, and the sales sheet will begin to take on a very different look. Of course, the best way to get the salespeople interested is to deal with them faithfully by giving them occasional chances to listen at leisure to the music one wants them to sell. Merchants might think more often of this extremely simple idea, which is about as effective a way of teaching record salesmanship as can be imagined.

To get salespeople to take an interest, to select the right groups in the community to sell to, and to tell the world that we have these high-class musical treasures, is to-day to do the most practical thing that can be done to feature the musical possibilities of the talking machine, to the vast advantage of the commercial and social prestige and to the considerable financial profit of every merchant who has sense enough to discern the signs of the times.

ALTERATIONS IN HAHNE STORE

The phonograph department of Hahne & Co., Newark, N. J., has been undergoing slight alterations since being consolidated with the piano department under the management of W. O. Black. A group of offices, formerly situated among the nest of demonstration booths, has been removed and the quarters of the combined music department are now by themselves. The booths have also been painted and renovated.

BANNER 50¢ RECORDS

We merely point to fact!

BANNER has brought similar success to hundreds of other merchants because it gives full 75c worth of record value for 50c. In quality of materials and recording BANNER is equal to the finest 75c product made.

In the point of quick release of hits BANNER has a record for making big release scoops that stands head and shoulders above all competition.

Always—the basic idea back of the BANNER RECORD is to give more than usual value—in every possible way!

It will be to your advantage if you write for the BANNER proposition—NOW!

Here's the experience of one BANNER dealer!

Record sales were not what they should have been, therefore Mr. Blake made one change. He added a department for BANNER 50c Records because he had heard much about this record and many customers had asked him for it.

On a $60 initial investment for 200 BANNER Records he made a gross profit at the end of the year totaling $1920.

After handling BANNER Records for two months Mr. Blake increased his stock from 200 records to 400 records. Thereafter he turned his stock over every two weeks—he sold 800 records a month—9600 records a year. At a profit of 20c per record—40%—he earned $1920 in one year.

His average investment during the year was $120—the cost of 400 records.

BANNER paid him well. It brought him more customers. It doubled his total volume of business. It enabled him to sell more high priced classical records than ever before.

Medium-priced Models Have the Call—Dealers and Jobbers Enjoy Business Gains—The News

BUFFALO, N. Y., November 8.—Early November gives indications of a brisk holiday trade in talking machines in the western New York district, according to leading jobbers and dealers of Buffalo. The greatest demand is for medium-priced models. The only thing to cast a shadow over the bright horizon of a tremendous Winter trade is the lack of instruments in the best-selling models, jobbers declare. October was a fairly good month, although warm weather throughout the month is believed to have cut the volume of sales that was expected earlier in the season. November, however, is starting out well, dealers report, and sales are increasing on a large scale. The increase in business averages from 15 to 50 per cent. Record sales are good in every section of the city.

F. D. Clare, manager of the Iroquois Sales Corp., western New York distributor of Strand talking machines and Okeh records, reported a 50 per cent increase in business for the month of October over the corresponding month of last year. The greatest demand in talking machines has been for the higher priced models, he said. "We are quite pleased with the showing of our books for the month of October," Mr. Clare said. "Each month for the past year has shown a gain over the corresponding month of a year ago and October business was 50 per cent greater than last October. Indications are that November will be the best month we have had and I am looking forward to a tremendous Christmas trade. The greatest worry for us at present is the inability of the factory to satisfy the demand for Strands. I believe that before the end of the year the shortage of instruments will really become a very serious condition." Mr. Clare reports a big demand for dance records and a brisk trade in the foreign classics. C. May & Sons, furniture dealers on Niagara street, have added a line of Strand talking machines to their stock. E. C. Seigesmund, sales manager of C. N. Andrews, Victor jobber, reports business flourishing and that dealers are ordering early. "Prospects for November and December are very bright," Mr. Seigesmund said. "The greatest concern with our house is in the supply. We do not see anything on the horizon that would cause any fear as to the outlook for the coming months of this year and early 1924." F. E. Russell, sales manager of Neal, Clark & Neal, says there is good business in high-priced machines. Victor Models 410 and 405 are leaders, he declares. Models 215 and 210 are going well also, with a great deal of favor shown for the walnut finishes. "The new Victor record release is very pleasing to the trade," Mr. Russell said, "and our record business has been increasing at such a rate that we have found it necessary to add three new salesgirls to this department."

Mr. Russell reports that the Neal, Clark & Neal exhibit at the Niagara Frontier Industrial Exposition, in the Broadway Auditorium, greatly stimulated sales and that, although the exhibition was for manufacturers and jobbers, there was a surprisingly large number of sales made to exhibitors. Quite a number of prospective buyers were lined up at the exhibition. C. O. E. Curtiss, manager of the Brunswick Shoppe, reports a great increase in sales in instruments and records. "Our early Fall business has been very good," Mr. Curtiss said. "Brunswicks are in great demand and we are enjoying an excellent trade."

"Sales have been large," says E. R. Burley, talking machine dealer in West Ferry street, "with the greatest demand for instruments selling from $100 to $150. Victor Model 210 is well liked, but scarcity of this model causes delay in delivery, which is one of the most serious problems before us."

"Talking machine business the past month is a great improvement over that of the previous month," remarked F. F. Barber, of the J. N. Adam Co. Music Store. "Record business is also good, with interest in the new double-face Red Seal records increasing."

The Hoffman Piano Co. is celebrating its twenty-first anniversary and is featuring the Brunswick and Columbia talking machines in large advertising. "We are looking forward to an exceptional November and December," said Sales Manager R. E. Smith.

Exhibits have been planned for the Better Homes Exhibit, held under the auspices of two Buffalo newspapers, in Broadway Auditorium, during the week of November 12, by Neal, Clark & Neal, S. J. Butler and Goold Bros., Inc. Miss Eileen Stanley, Victor artist, was honored by the Victrola Dealers' Association,

Prosperity Follows Harvesting of Chief Crops—Early Holiday Sales Reward of Trade Activity

OGDEN, UTAH, November 7.—A brisk trade is reported by dealers of the Ogden district, which embraces northern Utah and parts of Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming. Prosperity has followed the harvesting of the chief crops of the various sections and it has been reflected in increased business of talking machine dealers.

Ezra Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Shop, Brunswick and Sonora dealer, said that during the last half of October his business doubled over the same period in 1922. The sale of records has been exceedingly good, especially in the popular numbers, while the sales of phonographs has been good. Mr. Jones said he is reaping excellent results from his tie-up with Brunswick and Sonora newspaper advertising and direct-by-mail circularizing.

The outlook for November and December is bright, said Mr. Jones, who asserted that already purchases are being made for Christmas deliveries.

Glenn Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. is busily engaged in getting its new home in order for the Winter trade. The removal sale, which is still in progress, has given this company opportunity to dispose of a large stock of machines. New shipments from the jobbers have been placed on the floors to replace the stock depleted by the business enjoyed in October.

Browning Bros., Brunswick dealers, have added the Banner line of records. Through an advertising campaign they created a heavy demand for this new line. Glen Thomas, the manager, said business so far this Fall has been increasing steadily.

G. C. Spratt, district distributor for Brunswick, was a recent caller on local dealers.

The Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., Edison distributor for Utah and Idaho and parts of Wyoming and Nevada, reports a steady gain. One day's shipment totaled seventy-five phonographs, with follow-up shipments of varying amounts. Thomas S. Hutchison, of the Proudfit Co., is in Montana on a selling drive.

C. E. Armstrong, Pathé and Edison dealer, tells of increasing business, and the Williams Music Co., handling the Steger, says conditions are satisfactory.

EARLY RELEASE OF BANNER RECORDS

Enables Dealers to Prepare for Heavy Holiday Business—Publicity Helps Included

The Plaza Music Co., manufacturer of Banner records, will issue its entire December list of releases on November 15. This list includes several Christmas records and an assortment of some of the better-known sacred hymns and anthems, and an unusually lengthy list of current popular successes. The purpose of this advance release of so substantial a character is to make it possible for the retailer to care for a heavy early December and holiday business. Another feature of the advance list will be two violin records by the well-known author, Rudolph Polk. These are double-faced records, carrying "Melody in F," "Spring Song," "Humoresque" and "Ave Maria." Accompanying the releases will be much display and other advertising material for both retailer and consumer use.

A series of Edison tone-tests, given in various cities and towns throughout the State of Pennsylvania during the past month, has demonstrated to thousands of people the reproducing qualities of this instrument. These tone-tests were arranged by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in co-operation with the Edison dealers in towns in which they were given and in practically every instance the hall, theatre, or wherever the recitals were staged, was crowded to capacity, and the success of the various events and the enthusiasm of the dealers under whose auspices they were held were indicated by the large number of telegrams of congratulation received by Arthur L. Walsh, advertising manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., who has been active in preparing the campaign. The Edison artists who participated included Elizabeth Spencer, Lucille Collette and Harold Lyman.

The publicity derived from these events is, according to statements of the dealers themselves, of inestimable value and, while the results may not be noticed at once, the effects of the tone-tests are cumulative and the dealers who stage them must ultimately profit.

According to information given out by the advertising department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., plans are under way for a total number of two hundred tone-tests during the Fall and Winter season. This, undoubtedly, is one of the most comprehensive campaigns of this character ever staged by Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

Among the telegrams of congratulation received by Mr. Walsh from dealers who co-operated in tone-tests were the following: W. J. Grygo, Shenandoah, Pa.; Louis Luxenberg, Barnesboro, Pa.; R. E. Kaplan Furniture Co., McKeesport, Pa.; H. L. Lyman, East Liverpool, O.; L. C. Milheim, Butler, Pa.; J. M. Burns & Sons, Waynesburg, Pa.; G. W. P.

RAPID REPEATERS AS HOLIDAY GIFTS

The holiday packaging of merchandise in the talking machine trade is taking increased hold as each Christmas season arrives. The talking machine retailer is particularly fortunate in carrying in stock a number of items that serve as novel Christmas gifts. Featuring them at this time adds to profits. One of the latest houses to take advantage of the holiday appeal of its product is the Rapid Repeater Co., of Long Island City, producer of the repeating device of that name.

The Rapid Repeater is now being produced in a very attractive holly box. This spirit of co-operation manifested by the Rapid Repeater Co. is being much appreciated by the dealer, as it furnishes an additional aid to him in securing his share of the good business prevalent during the pre-holiday season. The nominal price of the article also provides a wide scope of prospects.

TALKING FILM INTRODUCED

A dispatch from Copenhagen tells of a talking film on which the Danish engineers Poulsen and Peterson have been working for several years, and which was publicly exhibited recently in that city. It is stated that the voice is pleasantly free from metallic sound. Two films, one providing the pictures and the other the words, were used, being connected electrically. The experts present at the demonstration say that although the apparatus has not been wholly perfected the problem has been solved satisfactorily. Mr. Poulsen will be remembered as the inventor of the telegraphone, a continuous record idea which was displayed publicly in New York at one time.

AKRON, O.

Dealers Stocking Up in Anticipation of Big Holiday Business—Yuletide Decorations for City

AKRON, O., November 5.—Predictions of industrial leaders are that there will be no lack of employment for workers this Winter in Akron despite the apparent slowing up on account of overproduction in the rubber industry the last few months. Music dealers are entering into the year-end trade with renewed confidence. For the first time since the close of the World War dealers are taking the precaution of stocking up for the holiday business and not only are their sales floors filled to capacity, but there are large reserve stocks. Money appears to be easier than it was a month ago, with thousands of dollars soon to be released in Christmas savings funds in banks, and talking machine dealers are in a happy frame of mind.

Talking machine dealers of Akron have been asked to co-operate with other retail merchants to decorate the four principal business streets in the down-town district with wreaths, Christmas trees and other Yuletide decorations. This will be done late in November, and, according to Jack Moore, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, it is expected to instill the Christmas spirit in the buying public and will tend to help stimulate sales.

George S. Dales announces that his South Akron store will be doubled in space so as to insure a better display of Victor and Brunswick talking machines. The Music Shoppe, also a Dales store, located on South Main street, which handles the Brunswick machine exclusively, will also be enlarged. The second floor and the storeroom next to it have been taken over.

Earle Poling, head of the Earle Poling Music Co., Mill and South Howard streets, reports a phenomenal record business, pointing out that this has been accomplished by pushing the hits as soon as they are released.

Smith & Mitten, newly established music house in the Masonic Temple Building, announced that they would determine within the next week or ten days the line of talking machines to be carried by the new store. At the present time the store has on its sales floor several Pooley machines.

In the absence of Miss Elsie Baer, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis and who has headed the talking machine department of the M. O'Neil Co. department store, George E. Sirlouis has been placed in charge of this department until she is able to resume her old position. The Cheney line is featured here.

The Columbia line of talking machines, as well as records, has been taken on by A. E. Jones, who has opened a complete music store on Cuyahoga Falls avenue. Mr. Jones formerly was connected with the George S. Dales Co. and prior to that was with William R. Zollinger & Co., Canton.

NEW BUSH & LANE STORE

HOQUIAM, WASH., November 7.—The Bush & Lane Piano Co., of Seattle, Wash., will shortly open a branch store in this city. The concern will handle a full line of pianos, talking machines and other musical instruments and plans a strong selling campaign.

There's A Double Demand For Bubble Books

Swing It YOUR Way This Christmas!

Children clamor for more Bubble Books after they've been given the first one. And parents follow up this demand because children who own Bubble Books take less of mother's and dad's time.

What happens when two members of a family want an article? They go after it without delay!

You've started the Bubble Book habit in many homes in former Christmas seasons. Keep these books "that sing" before your customers by means of our splendid dealer helps and they'll come to your store to fill their youngsters' Christmas demands for the next Bubble Books.

Then, too, new children are arriving at the Bubble Book age all the time. New families are coming to town. New faces are appearing in your store—and the Christmas season will find them looking for gifts for the children. Start the demand for Bubble Books among them. Sell them their first Bubble Book. They will soon be around again for the next and the next and the next.

Remember, there are fourteen Bubble Books and good profit to be made on each, and it takes very little pressure to sell an article for which there is a double demand.

Gain favor for your store through a Bubble Book Hour. Ask us about this and other dealer helps.

INDIANAPOLIS

Retailers Urging Early Buying for Christmas Delivery—Holiday Campaigns Well Under Way—Trade Optimistic—Month's News

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 5.—Promises for a prosperous month of October were well borne out by the sales record for the month, most dealers reporting business, while not sensational, to have been very satisfactory. Most merchants held to regular methods during the month and in a few cases an effort was made to clear all used and trade-in machines from stocks—clearing the decks, as it were, for the Winter and holiday trade. The drive for holiday business has already begun, if we may recognize that there is such a thing where dealers are, as a rule, as active in August as they are in November. It would be more proper, perhaps, to say that dealers are advising their customers to secure their machines for Christmas gifts at this time, and an example of this is the advertising of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., in the daily newspapers, offering the regular terms on machines, the machines to be delivered at this time or to be held for holiday delivery. The purpose of such advertising obviously is to bring in at this time those prospects who might be "holding off" until late in December, thus stabilizing the demand to a great extent. The Brunswick Shop also is featuring this sort of newspaper advertising quite extensively.

C. P. Herdmann, manager of the talking machine division of the Baldwin Piano Co. of Indiana, reports that this store enjoyed its share of the October trade, the Brunswick York and Raleigh models being the most popular in console types, with the usual demand for the upright models. Mr. Herdmann also reports quite a few sales of electric machines.

Sonora passed through a good month, the Chas. Mayer & Co. store having placed a good number of the higher-priced models in homes during the last four weeks, and the Widener store and the Banner Furniture Co., the other Sonora dealers in Indianapolis, also report good sales. The Mayer store was one of those which, by special sales offers, cleared their stock of used machines. The Victor and Columbia business of the Widener store, according to W. G. Wilson, was up to the usual standard.

There was no unusual activity on the part of Victor dealers during the month, excepting, perhaps, the enlargement sale of the Taylor

Carpet Co., which included the Victor department of the store. The Pettis Dry Goods Co., L. S. Ayres & Co., as above noted, Fuller & Ryde and other Victor dealers in general report a very satisfactory month.

At the time of this letter the Pearson Piano Co. store is being decorated for the celebration of its fiftieth anniversary. Included in the plans for this celebration, the talking machine department will conduct a vigorous drive on Victor machines to be sold complete with records, albums, needles, etc. F. X. Donovan, manager of the talking machine department, reports October to have been a very good month for machines, but that there was a slight decline in record sales.

Edison sales generally have been good during the month and are showing a slight increase with the coming of cooler weather. Edison dealers throughout the State, according to H. G. Anderson, of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, wholesale distributor in this territory, have placed large orders in anticipation of a record holiday and Winter business. Mr. Anderson and F. C. Pullen, manager of the Phonograph Corp., have been spending the greater part of their time during the month with their dealers in Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois. Local Edison sales have been satisfactory, W. G. Meskill, of the Meskill Music Co., reports. The Meskill Co. has taken over the distribution of Jewell products in the territory formerly covered by the Phonograph Corp.

The State Teachers' Convention during the latter part of the month was responsible for a slight stimulus in the sale of musical products. Sousa's Band appeared in Indianapolis one night and this had the effect of stimulating the sale of Sousa recordings. Columbia dealers are making plans to feature Ted Lewis numbers when he appears here later in the month. The appearance of Lewis and his band is generally considered to be one of the most stimulating in point of record sales of that of any Columbia artist.

In connection with the fifty-first anniversary of the founding of the store, the L. S. Ayres & Co. department store offered a number of machines which had been secured for the purpose, at special prices, last week, according to R. M. Follis, manager of the talking machine department of this store.

BRENNAN'S SHOP IN NEW HOME

BROOKLYN, N. Y., November 7.—Brennan's Phonograph Shop, formerly located at 866 Flatbush avenue, is now located in new quarters at 856 Flatbush avenue. George Brennan, proprietor of the concern, recently purchased the building at the latter address. The entire structure was remodeled to fit the needs of the business, record racks, booths, etc., being installed. The Sonora and Brunswick lines are handled, and the increased space permits of the display of the various models with an effect impossible in a smaller store.

Extraordinary Value of Cheney Line Brings Deluge of Holiday Orders

Dealers are saying: "It's the greatest phonograph line that we can handle." They are backing their statements with orders. Never before has The Cheney been in such widespread demand. Dealers everywhere tell us they find a growing appreciation of The Cheney in the public mind—a conviction that The Cheney is genuinely superior.

From the dealer's standpoint, he finds the line admirably suited to his needs. Note particularly the models illustrated. Cheney console models reflect unmatched elegancy in design and workmanship—yet they retail as low as $165. Similarly, Cheney upright models take their place in the home with dignity and elegant simplicity—and such models retail as low as $100.

Above all, every Cheney model is a real Cheney with the tone quality, which only the Cheney acoustic system can develop. Such distinctive superiority makes The Cheney easy to sell. It is unquestionably "the most perfect music-reproducing instrument."

To insure complete stocks for holiday trade it is essential that dealers place their orders at once

THE TWIN CITIES

Stimulation of Business Follows Cold Snap—A Half Million Record Stock—T. G. Kinney With Beckwith Co.—The Month's News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, November 5.—Twin City phonograph men are no more down-hearted than the winning gridiron teams. Business is undoubtedly good, both among wholesalers and retailers. Especially good orders are reported from the iron range country, Wisconsin and western North Dakota.

Beckwith's Enormous Record Stock

George C. Beckwith & Co., Northwest Victor jobber, will have over one-half million records in stock, one of the biggest inventories in the country, when the stock of the W. J. Dyer & Bro. firm, which Beckwith's recently purchased, is assembled in the Beckwith stock-rooms.

"Business is remarkably good from the standpoint of volume," according to Charles K. Bennett, vice-president and general manager of the Beckwith Co. "We have sent out three times as many orders since taking over Dyer's wholesale business. With the immense stock we will be able to give dealers the most satisfactory service they have ever received. We advised dealers to stock up early for holiday selling, as we sensed a shortage in certain models. Models 80 and 210 are scarce. We have been out of them for three weeks and the factory can assure us only a few before Christmas. The range is returning substantial business," according to Mr. Bennett, "so is Wisconsin, but southern Minnesota is spotty."

Kinney in Charge as Credit Man

On account of the extensive increase in the business at the George C. Beckwith Co. and the number of accounts the firm has added a credit manager, Thomas G. Kinney, to its force. One of his duties will be to go out among the dealers and assist them in establishing accounting and collection systems and such other services as they may require.

E. E. Ells With Beckwith

Another addition at Beckwith's is E. E. Ells, who, with the transfer of Dyer's wholesale business to the Minneapolis concern October 15, left Dyer's for Beckwith's. Mr. Ells, who has been for six years assistant to George A. Mairs, manager of the Victrola jobbing interests of the Dyer & Bro. firm, will look after the dealers' service end of the business.

New Edison Accounts

"Business is pretty good in Wisconsin and western North Dakota," said J. Unger, of the Lawrence H. Lucker Co., Edison distributor. "Conditions in the dairy country are excellent. As to the retail trade in the Twin Cities a little cold snap was what was needed and the last ten days or two weeks have resulted in remarkably good business. We have opened new accounts in Wisconsin, North Dakota and some in Minnesota," Mr. Unger stated. "Dealers are placing their Christmas orders and making use of the special list of holiday records in ordering. They are applying extensively for the special hanger which the Edison Co. has prepared for holiday windows.

Visitors During the Month

Thomas F. Green, president of Pearsall Co., New York, and William T. Haddon, president of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., spent several days visiting George C. Beckwith and Mr. Bennett. They pronounced themselves much impressed with Minneapolis, its lakes, its wide streets and its possibilities. Harry Goldsmith, of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Milwaukee, also visited the Beckwith offices recently.

Condemns Record Approval System

Otto May, assistant traveling manager of the Victor Co., who is visiting the trade in the Twin Cities, says that he believes the "records-on-approval" system is being much abused here. Everywhere he goes, he says, he sees salespeople polishing up records which have been misused by customers who have had the records on trial, buying but few, possibly none, from the collection sent them.

Larger Sonora Territory

Iowa has been added to the territory of the Doerr-Andrews & Doerr Co. in distributing Sonoras. In connection with this addition to its territory John E. Date has been to Des Moines and other points, where he reports excellent business. He returned November 3. Sewall D. Andrews, head of the Sonora distributing departments, says "Business is showing improvement. Dealers are placing considerable orders for their holiday requirements." Mr. and Mrs. Andrews returned October 27 from a short stay in the East.

New Cheney Consoles Favorites

Edward G. Hoch, of the Edward G. Hoch Co., Cheney distributor, who returned October 31 from South Dakota, finds that the two new consoles, 119 and 118, retailing at $165 and $200, are the most popular with the trade. Just at present the Cheney office here finds that the demand for consoles and uprights is running about fifty-fifty. The medium-priced uprights are popular, although those desiring a high-priced instrument prefer the consoles. Mr. Hoch says it is now a question of getting the goods and his office is experiencing a marked shortage of models to fill his orders. Among the new accounts Mr. Hoch opened is that of E. W. Owen & Co., in Mankato, and The Boston Store, in Milwaukee.

Good-size ads are being run in the Milwaukee Journal, as well as in the Minneapolis papers and St. Paul Dispatch, calling attention to the Cheney. The Emporium department store, which recently established a Cheney agency, ran a remarkably fine ad in the St. Paul papers in the interests of the instrument.

Lester Heinsheimer, of the Home Furniture Co., Sioux Falls, mentioned to Mr. Hoch that he anticipated a large holiday business in Cheneys and that, in his opinion, South Dakota was regaining its prosperity. The same feeling was voiced by Charles A. Mayer, of the Home Furniture Co., Watertown, S. D.

August Weyand, exclusive Cheney dealer, located at 23 East Eighth street, St. Paul, reports interesting results from a large display of the instruments at the Food Show in the St. Paul Auditorium late last month.

The Miles Music Co., which has recently taken over the Cheney in Duluth, has been featuring this line in special campaigns.

Interesting News Brieflets

Miss Grace Barr and Miss Conn, of the educational department of the Victor Co., were on the program at the session of the Minnesota Education Association here, commencing October 31. The appearance of the Victor artist, Mabel Garrison, at the Minneapolis Auditorium, November 2, caused a good demand for her records, according to dealers here.

The Vocalion Red records of Ben Bernie and His "College Eleven" Band have been selling excellently since the appearance of this band at the Hennepen Orpheum. Dealers tied up with the appearance of the band here in the form of a large ad.

The estate of the late W. L. Harris, head of the New England Furniture & Carpet Co., who until ten years ago was the Victor distributor here, will reach close to $2,500,000, it was revealed last week, when Charles L. Harris, his son, was appointed administrator of the estate. In the absence of a will the estate goes in equal shares to the widow, the son and a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Harris Gauntlett, of Sussex, England.

LATEST PATHE FOREIGN RECORDS

Although it is only natural that records in the English language constitute the great proportion of record sales in this country, still foreign language sales are of a surprisingly large volume and provide many retailers with a substantial amount of income. The Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., which conducts a special department for foreign records, reports that the business of this department is constantly growing. It is the custom of this company to release these records in monthly supplement form similar to the regular numbers. In the release for January are included five German and six Polish double-disc records carefully selected on their appeal to the purchasers of this class and well calculated to stimulate the business of the retailer of foreign language records who is awake to the opportunities in this field.

The New Edison is recognized as the foremost phonograph of all time. It means prestige to the merchant who sells it.

The new low priced models—upright and console—new increased discounts, quick turnover and timely release of the latest hits offers steady increasing profits.

We have a liberal proposition and open territory for live merchants of the Northwest. Write now. Cash in on the Fall and Holiday demand.

Holiday Atmosphere Tinges Trade as Dealers Start Christmas Club Drives—Artophone Co. in New Home—Month's News Budget

St. LOUIS, Mo., November 7.—October was a good month for talking machines and records, with sales accelerating with the opening week of November. Medium-priced consoles, at around $150, are in greatest demand. There is also a good movement of higher-priced consoles. The Christmas note is creeping into the business. Several firms have started Christmas clubs, featuring the $1 down and $1 a week, to run until delivery, and after that regular terms.

Artophone Co. in Its Handsome New Home

The Artophone Corp. and the Shattinger Music Co., which were burned out three months ago, are back in their restored building at 1103 Olive street. The Artophone Co. has resumed on a larger scale than before, occupying all of the building except part of the first floor, which is used by the Shattinger Co. The Artophone concern will, as in the past, handle Artophone and Strand machines and Okeh records. Both firms during the interim following the fire were temporarily at 1213 Pine street.

F. H. Brandt, traveler for the Artophone

Corp., has returned from a trip through southern Illinois and southern Indiana and to the principal cities of Tennessee, where he closed some successful business.

Dealers Tie Up With "Easy Melody"

Record sales have been growing rapidly ever since cool weather set in. The popularity of "Easy Melody," composed by Gene Rodemich and Larry Conley, St. Louis star musicians, which has been increasing in the past few weeks, has come to a head with its appearance on Brunswick record No. 2500, played by Isham Jones at Rodemich's request, and coupled with "Somebody's Wrong," also played by Jones. Extreme co-operation on the part of St. Louis Brunswick dealers and Gene Rodemich's Orchestra has made certain a rousing reception by the public for this great record.

Frank Horning, music department manager at Stix, Baer & Fuller, has sent out 50,000 circulars on "Easy Melody" to the store's mailing list. He also has had fifty large signs prepared for distribution throughout the store, is running special advertisements in the newspaper, has prepared a unique and extremely attractive window on Washington avenue and, as a crowning feature, engaged Gene Rodemich's Orchestra to play this and other late Brunswick hits in his music salon.

Famous & Barr and Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney have prepared special advertisements and signs on "Easy Melody," as have the T. D. Music Box, Kieselhorst Piano Co., Hunleth Co., Baldwin Piano Co. and Kirkland Co. All Brunswick neighborhood dealers have large banners in front of their stores, all have special windows and are also advertising it in either neighborhood or daily newspapers.

The Lehman Piano Co. is back in its restored building at 1101 Olive street and is featuring the Brunswick.

W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, was here the first week in November.

Returns From Vacation in the East

Edward Roth, secretary of the Koerber-Brenner Music Co., has returned from a month's Eastern trip, accompanied by Mrs. Roth. They visited Philadelphia, New York and Atlantic City and stopped off at Camden, N. J., for a call on the family of F. S. Horning, manager of the Stix, Baer & Fuller music department here.

Thomas Husselton, Victor representative, has been spending a month in St. Louis conferring with and helping dealers.

Silverstone Music Co. Activities

G. Manne, traveler for the Silverstone Music Co., Edison distributor, is trying the experiment of visiting the Missouri trade in a Ford coupe. He thinks he can save time, in spite of the fact that Missouri roads are not yet all that they should be. T. Larray, of Mexico City, Mex., dropped in at the store of the Silverstone Music Co. the other day and bought a Chippendale Edison and $45 worth of records and handed over to L. M. Schlude the price plus the express charges for sending it to Mexico. Mr. Larray is an engineer, conducting some tests at Illinois University.

Collins and Harlan, vaudeville artists, pioneer record makers for the Edison, still teaming after twenty-four years, were at the Missouri Theatre the first week in November and as a novelty made a record on the stage. To make it more convincing local talent also was given a chance to make a record at each performance.

C. O. Thompson has been made manager of the phonograph, radio and record department of the Kieselhorst Piano Co. George F. Standke, former manager, will confine himself to the selling of phonographs and radio sets.

J. E. Mayer, formerly with the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., has taken charge of the outside talking machine work of the Kaemmerer Music Co. at both its North and South St. Louis stores.

The Stix, Baer & Fuller Victrola department is getting ready for the Christmas rush by installing a number of Audiphones in its service counter.

Miss Mildred Butts, of the Wainwright Music Co., Marietta, O., was an interested visitor to a number of Victor stores in St. Louis.

The De-Merville Piano & Music Co., Victor dealer, of South St. Louis, is making a big addition to its store, having bought two adjoining buildings. Partitions have been removed, tripling the floor space and making one large store.

During the Missouri Teachers' Association conference, to be held in St. Louis in December, Mrs. Frances E. Clark, of the educational department of the Victor Co., will appear on the music program.

Mrs. E. E. Baker, Baker Music House, Victor dealer, of St. Louis, recently had a very charming window display, featuring the record "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake." A knife added to the invitation.

Two thousand people heard Chaliapin in his concert at the Odeon October 23. Victor enthusiasts pronounced him all that his records had proclaimed him to be.

"The Needle" Makes Its Debut

The first house organ to appear in the St. Louis territory is being issued by the T. D. Music Box. Its name is "The Needle," so called because it follows the records closely. "Josephine," who has a "swell job" in the place, writes a letter for each issue and, while the manner of the whole is frivolous, it has seriously good suggestions, such as weeding out the mid-Victorian records from one's collection and other excellent pointers.

Eighteen Victrolas for Telephone Co.

The Stix, Baer & Fuller Co.'s Victrola department, in charge of Frank Horning, has just made a sale of eighteen Victrolas to the Bell Telephone Co. The contract department of the telephone company is refurbishing all of its restrooms through the Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. and new model Victrolas are being sent to the various restrooms.

TRI-STATERS HEAR LLOYD EGENER

Manager of Victor Traveling Department Gives Facts About Changes in Victor Goods - Eight Famous Victor Artists Introduced - Concert and Dinner Enjoyed

St. Louis, Mo., November 7.—The Tri-State Victor dealers met for a few hours' get-together before the concert by the Eight Famous Victor Artists. The Hotel Claridge was the meeting place and at four o'clock dealers assembled to hear Lloyd Egener, manager of the traveling department of the Victor factory, tell some interesting facts about the recent changes in Victor goods. The Famous Eight were introduced. Dinner was served to those assembled and was followed by a round-table discussion, led by Mr. Egener, on various matters of importance to Victor dealers. The crowd then adjourned to the Odeon for the concert, which was given to a sold-out house. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. L. Harter, of Webster Groves, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rice and two guests from Mt. Olive, Ill.; Charles H. Beetle, of Shelbyville, Ill.; Russell N. Smith, of Carthage, Ill.; Miss Lillian Allen, of Rolla, Mo.; L. F. Parrish and son, of Metropolis, Ill.; Miss Estelle Heuman, of Lebanon, Ill.; Lloyd Egener, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Harry G. Koerber, H. S. Grover, C. B. COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY

DETROIT

City Becoming Center of Distribution — Activities of Dealers Resulting in Stimulated Trade

DETROIT, MICH., November 6.—This city has become quite a center for distributors of talking machines, which not only indicates the importance of Detroit in the commercial world, but also indicates the prosperity for the talking machine industry. All of these distributors, seen by The World correspondent the past few weeks, reported that business was picking up splendidly, which means that the retailer is either selling more machines or is stocking up in anticipation of a good holiday business. We know it to be a fact, however, that the retailer is enjoying a very good business, so far as Detroit and Michigan are concerned. One good reason is that there has as yet been no slumping off in general industrial activities and all over the State manufacturers are busy.

Grinnell Bros.' Best Month

Grinnell Bros. are probably the best medium through which to find out the State conditions, as they operate forty retail stores, most of them scattered in all sections of Michigan. Charles H. Grinnell, manager of the Victor wholesale department of this concern, who recently returned from a visit to New York and the Victor factory, states that October was the best month his department has had this year in point of sales, both for talking machines and records. And he speaks not only for the stores operated by his company, but for hundreds of other retail establishments which buy their Victor goods from Grinnell Bros.

Retailers Tying Up With Recitals

A great many record artists have been in Detroit the past few weeks for recitals and more are yet to come, according to schedule. This has offered an opportunity to the retail stores to exploit their records quite heavily, not only through advertising, but particularly through window displays. John McCormack, for example, was here last week. Every Victor dealer, especially downtown, took advantage of his appearance and fixed up very attractive windows pointing out the McCormack records which were available. The Columbia stores also were on the job to take full advantage of the presence in the city three weeks of "The Passing Show" with Ted Lewis' Band and, of course, they featured the Ted Lewis records. And we could go on and recite a half dozen other instances where dealers have been quick to exploit records of visiting artists—which is as it should be, because this sort of thing is certain to stimulate sales of the particular records involved and others as well.

The Charles J. Holton Co., of East Larned street, has taken over the local distribution of Lincoln records. Mr. Holton for many years was a leading cigar jobber.

Great Lind & Marks Co. Activity

Sam Lind, of Lind & Marks Co., distributor of Vocalion records and Wolverine phonographs, says October was by far the greatest month the company has ever had in the matter of sales. Many new accounts have been added in Michigan and Ohio, while Wolverine phonographs have been shipped to retailers in all parts of the United States. We might say, in this connection, that the Wolverine is their own product, being especially made for Lind & Marks. The company recently opened a Cleveland office in charge of Louis Marks, who already has sent in some very fine new business.

Finzel Orchestra Records Popular

The Finzel records in the Okeh list, made by the General Phonograph Corp., are finding much favor in this city because of the fact that the Finzel Orchestra hails from this city and is a nightly feature at one of our leading dance places. Okeh records are well distributed in Detroit, as well as throughout the State.

Pooley Going Well With Marshall

The C. L. Marshall Co., jobber, with offices in Detroit and Cleveland, is shipping out a lot of Pooley phonographs. This line is a strong feature at the J. L. Hudson Music Store and there are many leading retailers all over Michigan and Ohio now handling this line.

Console Continues to Be in Favor

October was a very big month for the Brunswick Shop, especially on the higher priced consoles. In fact, 90 per cent of the business today at the Brunswick Shop is on the console model, the walnut finishes being particularly in demand. "We are having excellent Fall business, both in talking machines and records," declared Manager Quinn. "We anticipate the biggest Fall business in our history and we don't see how we can be disappointed. Already our sales for the first ten months are far ahead of any previous year."

Edison Shop Satisfied With Progress

R. B. Alling, of the Edison Shop, is extremely well satisfied with the way retail business is forging ahead. This firm has been a consistent user of large space right through the Summer and, while the bulk of its trade is among the elite of the city, yet there are a great many factory workers buying the Edison phonograph and Edison records. Peter S. Sweeney is in charge of the Edison phonograph sales and he declares that "if we once get people into our recital room and can give them the proper demonstration we usually are able to sell them. Proper demonstration is everything to the person who is at all critical."

BRUNSWICK PARLORS IN WARREN, O.

WARREN, O., November 7.—Opening of Markley's Brunswick Parlors on North Park avenue took place recently. The new shop will be exclusive agent for Brunswick phonographs and records.

If the Best is the Cheapest to Buy,—
Then the Best is the Cheapest to Sell.

Music lovers everywhere recognize that only the New Edison can give real music; for it is the only phonograph that actually Re-Creates the artist's performance. Its realism is so profound that the music critics have been unable to distinguish the original from the Re-Creation.

Hohner Harmonica Campaign Covers Country

William J. Haussler, of M. Hohner, Addresses 2,000 School Children—Monster Publicity Campaign Making Itself Felt in Demands on Retailers—Dealers Tie Up With Harmonica Artists

William J. Haussler, of the well-known harmonica manufacturing house of M. Hohner, New York City, recently addressed the students of the Hawthorne School and the South Side High School on the subject of the harmonica, in connection with the general program of the harmonica contest week held recently in Newark, N. J. As he is without doubt one of the best-informed men in this country on the subject his discourses were both interesting and constructive. At the conclusion of his talk the faculty of the school candidly stated to Mr. Haussler that the Hohner harmonica was a revelation and they expressed their enthusiasm over the interest manifested by the pupils.

Mr. Haussler brought out in his address that the possibilities to be found in the harmonica were almost unlimited. In the Hohner harmonica, he pointed out, was to be found inspiration, wholesome entertainment, a fundamental education in music, musical accuracy and portability. Its extremely low cost, he also pointed out, brings it within the range of everybody interested in music.

In talking with The World Mr. Haussler stated: "The Hohner harmonica is promoting interest in music on a scale never before attained. I am glad to say that the harmonica, as a musical instrument, is receiving the hearty support of music dealers everywhere. The fact that an entire line may be displayed in the small amount of space occupied by a revolving rack means that the overhead of the dealer is not increased to any degree by adding this line. It has an appeal to all ages and classes. The various harmonica-playing contests that have been conducted in the big cities throughout the country have found enthusiastic entrants from both boys and girls in the lower grades of the public schools to elderly men and women. The professional man and the business man and the laborer have all shown interest in the Hohner harmonica.

"The various advertising campaigns, harmonica contests and innumerable publicity features have also greatly increased interest in the Hohner harmonica and correspondingly created a demand on the dealer. The Hohner harmonica instruction book, together with the attractive window display signs in colors, proclaims that 'It is easy to play a Hohner Harmonica.' A study of this little booklet, which is distributed by the dealer, will enable anyone to quickly learn to play the harmonica. The daily press in the various cities has realized the importance of the harmonica and many interesting articles have appeared, creating additional interest in this instrument. The New York Evening Mail saw fit recently to devote several columns to the harmonica, which were headed: 'Harmonica Comes Into Its Own as Real Musical Instrument.' Talking machine tured in the city of Chicago during the week beginning November 17, when will be celebrated "Chicago Harmonica Week." Various harmonica-playing contest will, of course, be staged, and it is also announced that Borrah Minevitch, well-known professional and Hohner harmonica enthusiast, will appear during that week at the McVickers Theatre. Mr. Haussler intends to be in Chicago during the entire week. Extensive plans for advertising and other methods of dealer co-operation are being made.

Mr. Haussler also told a World representative this week that he had been receiving glowing reports from Borrah Minevitch, who has been conducting a concert tour in the Middle West, playing the Hohner harmonica. He was particularly busy in St. Paul, Minn., where a contest was put on under the auspices of W. J. Dyer & Bro., musical merchandise jobbers and retailers. In addition to the usual Hohner prizes the Dyer firm donated $15 and $10 in merchandise orders to the winners. There was a great deal of harmonica advertising by the dealers in the newspapers and the contest, as well as Mr. Minevitch's concert appearances and the undivided co-operation of all the dealers.

The W. J. Dyer & Bro. store in St. Paul devoted an entire window to the display of Hohner harmonicas. Posters announcing the appearance of Minevitch at the Capitol Theatre and many other Hohner advertising posters were used. Hohner assortments and Hohner cut-outs and charts were displayed in large numbers throughout the window. Through the kindness of A. L. Brown, small goods manager of Dyer's, Minevitch played before the Kiwanis, Rotary and Exchange clubs while in St. Paul.

After leaving St. Paul Mr. Minevitch went to Duluth and other cities where he found the dealers eager to tie up with his appearance.

SPOKANE, WASH., November 5.—W. E. Bailey, president of Bailey's, Inc., with a store at 819 West Sprague street, has purchased the Music Shop, at 722 Riverside avenue, from Ray A. Grombacher, the owner, who has conducted the establishment for the past four years, handling talking machines, records and sheet music.

Only recently the store of Bailey's, Inc., was remodeled and four demonstration rooms for talking machines and records installed, the company having taken on the Brunswick line. The Music Shop will also be remodeled and improved and the line of Victor and Brunswick talking machines and records, together with sheet music, will be continued.

The Sprague street store's policy will not be changed. Bailey's will there feature their exclusive lines of Buescher, Leedy, Orpheum, Vega, Paramount and Deagan band and orchestra instruments, classic music and teachers' supplies. Mr. Bailey's two sons are also officers in the company, Russell T. Bailey being vice-president-treasurer and H. G. Bailey, secretary. Possession of the new store will be taken at once and contemplated changes will be made immediately.

ARTISTIC NEW GRETSCH CATALOG

Three Thousand Musical Instruments and Accessories Listed and Described—Business Active as Early Holiday Season Opens

The approach of a new year has brought about the publication and distribution of a considerable number of catalogs. Various houses have vied with each other in the production of this literature and the result has been the surpassing of all former attainments in this line. One of the latest publications of this character is the new trade price list No. 7, published by the Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., and covering 1924. This catalog, just off the press, lists nearly 3,000 musical instruments and accessories. As may be well imagined, these instruments cover a wide scope and include string, brass and wood-wind variety.

E. E. Strong, advertising manager of the Fred. Gretsch Mfg. Co., reports that the company has concluded the biggest October in sales volume in the history of the organization, with November opening well. Every number of the entire line is going good. As the Fall and Winter seasons progress the demand for trap drum outfits has proportionately increased, until, at the present time, the sales volume in these numbers is very large. Mr. Strong also reports the continued popularity of Robert wood-wind instruments and the establishment of a number of new agencies for this line.

TO HOLD EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS

Association of Musical Merchandise Manufacturers Launches Series of Educational Meetings During Winter Months

CHICAGO, ILL., November 7.—The recently formed Association of Musical Merchandise Manufacturers, organized to promote better business methods in this field, is making progress. A series of educational programs has been worked out for the Winter months. Each month there will be a special meeting to take up for discussion different phases of the manufacturing of the small goods. Men who are thoroughly familiar with the subject will give short talks and the members will then take part in discussion, asking such questions as are needed for further information. The programs have been arranged with the idea of imparting valuable and instructive knowledge to the members and indicate the advanced work that this organization intends to do.

Prominent Salesman to Develop Interests of This Concern in His Territory

Arthur Maharam, formerly with the New York Conn Co., has joined the selling staff of the Progressive Musical Instrument Corp., 319 Sixth avenue, New York. He is exceptionally well known in the music trade and has just visited many dealers in New Jersey.

Mr. Maharam has successfully established many new dealers for the Holton band instruments and Bacon banjo lines and reports that the Holton saxophone is receiving special attention from dealers. Many orders have already been received for this line. Dealers everywhere have told Mr. Maharam that they expect a big musical instrument trade this Fall and Winter.

TIE-UP WITH BUESCHER ARTISTS

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 5.—A most effective tie-up in which Buescher band instruments were featured was recently staged by the Southern California Music Co., this city, when Tom Brown, of the Six Brown Bros.; Lew Dockstader, famous minstrel, and Julian Eltinge, celebrated feminine impersonator, appeared here with the Black and White Review of 1924. Accompanied by the forty-piece Clown Saxophone Band, a regular old-time minstrel parade was staged. The line of march ended at the main store of the Southern California Music Co., on Broadway, and thousands witnessed the event. The company staged a special window display and instituted an extensive advertising campaign. In addition the artists posed in the store lobby, the combination resulting in a substantial increase in business.

EUCLID OPENS ITS FIFTH STORE

Cleveland Concern Rapidly Expanding — All Stores Doing a Large Business

CLEVELAND, O., November 8.—The Euclid Music Co. is rapidly becoming one of the greatest musical merchandise selling organizations in the Middle West. Announcement has been made of the opening of another store at 12338 Superior avenue. This is the second store this concern has opened in the past year, making the total of stores in the Euclid chain now five in number, the other stores being located at 207 East Ninth street, 10602 Euclid avenue, 10134 Superior avenue and 11794 Detroit avenue. Every one of these stores is doing a remarkably large volume of musical merchandise business, according to James R. Frew, vice-president of the company, who is in charge of the musical merchandise sales division of this progressive organization.

Mr. Frew is the author of that widely read book entitled "Selling Musical Merchandise." According to Mr. Frew, everyone of the stores shows a large increase over last year in all lines of business. In connection with this pronounced growth of the business, Mr. Frew was delighted to receive the other day a cartoon from P. H. Hayward, an elevator boy at one of the stores, which humorously pictures the progressiveness of Mr. Frew and Grant Smith, general manager of the company.

Band Instruments and Saxophones

The outstanding record dealers of the country find Buescher Band Instruments and Saxophones the most enticing window display they can use. Buescher window cut-outs of famous Record Bands, Orchestras and Soloists sell Buescher Instruments and sell records, too.

Almost every time you play a record for a customer you are demonstrating the fine qualities of Buescher Instruments. Leading Record Distributors, such as Weymann, Philadelphia; Euclid Music Co., Cleveland; Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles; New York Band Instrument Co., New York, and countless others East and West find it doubly profitable to carry the instruments that make the records they sell.

If you do not carry Buescher Instruments, ask us about stores like yours in towns like yours that find the Buescher Line just what they need to put profit in the ledger. Catalogs and trade figures sent on request.

SCHOOLS GOOD SMALL GOODS FIELD

Opportunities of Sales to Schools and Students Demonstrated by Live Dealer, Who Has Placed Music on a Par With Athletics

HAZLETON, PA., November 5.—An intensive campaign designed to place band and orchestra instruments in the schools of this city and vicinity during the past year, which has resulted in placing music on a par with athletics among the students, is the work which Landau's Music Store, prominent talking machine and general music dealer of this city, has accomplished in twelve months. This, aside from the important consideration of profits and the prestige and future sales which undoubtedly will result from the drive.

An idea of the success of the campaign may be realized when it is considered that during the year approximately $12,000 worth of musical instruments was disposed of as a result of the campaign. An order for $4,000 worth of band and orchestra instruments for one organization in one day and the sale of two $150 and one $350 saxophone in one day were some of the satisfactory and startling results of this intensive drive.

During the opening months of the campaign arrangements were made with the supervisor of school music so that talented pupils could secure an instrument for as low as $5 a month if they presented his recommendation. The supervisor was anxious to develop the talent of the school and as a result of his co-operation and Landau's generous offer almost every school in the district soon had under formation a school band or orchestra, with a central group of seventy-five players to represent the district. Free instruction in the instruments was given to the pupils by the supervisor and his staff and this work is constantly being extended.

Leo Landau, the enterprising manager of this store, in commenting on his success in the drive, declared that there is no harm in putting some novel ideas up to the school boards. In his preliminary arguments to the school directors he declared that there was no reason why membership in the school band or orchestra should not be made competitive, that is, if a musically inclined student maintains his scholastic standing he be privileged to become a member of the school musical organization, his membership to continue only so long as his scholastic standing remains at par. He pointed out that the organization of a forty-piece school band, open to students who were doing good class work, would promote good scholarship, improve school morale and would be a direct incentive to study. The argument won the day and after some discussion the school directors purchased the $4,000 worth of instruments mentioned in the first paragraph. Before delivery a window display of these instruments was arranged, attracting widespread interest in the school plan and the musical merchandise.

The ruling that a student shall retain his place in the band only so long as he maintains his class standing has had the effect of bringing considerable business to Landau's. Many of the students who are awaiting places in the band, which will be open as students drop out because of failure to keep up with their classes, are buying musical instruments and learning to play them so that they will be ready when a vacancy occurs. The three saxophones mentioned previously were purchased by students who are in the waiting class.

This is but the opening gun of what is probably the most successful sales drive of this character ever staged by a dealer. The three other Landau stores in Wilkes-Barre, Nanticoke and Pittston will stage similar drives. These also are bound to be successful, according to Manager Landau, in view of the fact that the other drive was inaugurated in the face of a five and a half months' strike in the coal fields, upon which this district depends to a large extent for prosperity.

NEW BRUNO & SON CATALOG

New York Jobber Distributing New Publication to Its Many Dealers

One of the finest catalogs that has ever made its appearance in the musical merchandise trade is the 1924 wholesale catalog being distributed to the trade by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., the old-established musical merchandise wholesale house, 353 Fourth avenue, New York City. It is the ninetieth edition of the annual Bruno catalog, the house having been established in 1834. This catalog replaces all previous ones.

The cover of the book is an important feature. Realizing that the catalog will see hard service with the music dealers, the house of Bruno has determined to have the catalog hold its shape, and the cover is of such heavy stock that it is very nearly stiff cardboard. An extra front and back insert, also of exceptionally heavy stock, reinforces the cover which is attached to the book with a special binding.

The edition runs 192 pages. The pages are fully illustrated, and complete descriptions are given of the complete line of Bruno merchandise. A new feature of the book this year is a special insert in buff and dark brown color featuring the two Hohner business builders for dealers, the Hohner harmonica instruction booklet and the Hohner window display chart. Another orange color insert is devoted to M. Hohner accordions. Other inserts include special natural color reproductions of Bruno violins, Bell Brand and Black Diamond strings, Orpheum banjos, Gibson Gold Medal strings and Grover accessories.

The book is designed for the dealers' use and retail prices are given throughout.

BUYS ITS NEW YORK BUILDING

A significant real estate transaction was consummated recently by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., in New York, when the fifteen-story building at 116-18 West Forty-second street, wherein its main Eastern offices are located, was purchased. The building fronts fifty feet on Forty-second street and extends through to Forty-first street with a frontage there of eighty-five feet.

The Wurlitzer Co. has agreed to purchase the property from the Woodbury G. Landon estate and has obtained a loan of $1,300,000 on the structure, running for a term of years.

A Unique and Comprehensive Dealer Service

Girard Phonograph Co., Edison Distributor, Announces "The Rostrum—for Edison Salesmen"—Advisory Council of Experts to Solve Merchandising Problems of Retailers and Salesmen

The Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, of Philadelphia, Pa., has just announced what will probably be one of the most comprehensive service plans ever instituted by a phonograph wholesaler, "The Rostrum—for Edison Salesmen," designed to aid retailers in solving their business and merchandising problems by giving them the benefit of the advice and experience of authorities in the talking machine merchandising field.

"The Rostrum—for Edison Salesmen" is in reality an open forum and its purpose is to answer the many questions asked by retail customers and to solve dealers' merchandising problems. Dealers and salesmen are privileged to ask as many questions as they desire and these will be submitted to an advisory council, composed of authorities on various phases of business management and merchandising, who will transmit to the questioners the most modern thoughts on business management and will give the benefit of their specialized knowledge of merchandising in solving problems.

Once each month the questions answered will be published and mailed to dealers. This plan will be followed throughout the Fall and Winter, and in the Spring it is the purpose of the Girard Phonograph Co. to publish a booklet which will contain all the questions asked by dealers and their salesmen, together with the answers. A. W. Rhinow, secretary of the company, will give his attention to this service work and all questions must be sent to the company addressed to him.

Although, as has been mentioned, the plan has only just been announced to dealers and salesmen by means of circulars and other direct-mail literature, questions are already pouring in, and indications are that this service will fill a long-felt want. Every day dealers and salesmen are confronted with new and strange problems and often a wrong move may have serious consequences. With the inauguration of this service Edison dealers and salesmen have at their command experts who will be glad to give their opinions and advice. The advisory council and the wide field it covers consists of the following:

Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia, P. R. Hawley, general manager: Owing to its immediate contact with Edison dealers and salesmen, the distributor shall endeavor to advise and instruct in all matters pertaining to the construction of the Edison phonograph and records as well as those of a scientific nature relating to their development.

The Talking Machine World, New York City: The most influential and widely read trade journal in the phonograph industry will tell how other dealers have solved problems similar to those presented by the advisory council.

The Metropolitan Musical Bureau, New York City: The largest musical booking bureau and the one managing the careers of many of the biggest Edison artists knows all there is to know about how a dealer can "cash in" on the local appearance of Edison artists.

Commercial Investment Trust Inc., New York City: The largest banking organization of its kind will advise dealers concerning their financial problems.

Einson-Freeman Co., New York City, window displays: The creators of the Edison window displays and pioneers in the phonograph window advertising field will offer their wide experience in solving window display problems.

Shubert Philadelphia Theatres, Philadelphia, Leonard A. Blumberg, general manager: The representative of Lee and J. J. Shubert, the largest and most widely known theatrical producers in the country, has been chosen to tell dealers how to make the most of the visiting musical shows in their cities.

Leo Feist Publishing Co., New York City: The largest musical publishing organization in the country will answer inquiries concerning the newest song hits.

William A. Hersey, New York City, sales consultant: Mr. Hersey has earned country-wide recognition in the sales promotion field and he will tell dealers how to write pulling sales letters.

Gunner & Forman, Philadelphia, printing counselors: Inquiries concerning printing, layout, circularizing and kindred subjects will be answered by an organization amply equipped for this purpose.

Charles E. Stapleton, New York City, representing Northwestern Life Insurance Co.: The star salesman will offer his combined salesmanship and former Edison retail experience to assist Edison dealers and salesmen.

Charlie Kerr's Orchestra, Philadelphia, Charlie Kerr, director: The director of this now famous orchestra, whose interpretations of numerous dance hits have been recorded on Edison records, will answer inquiries concerning the editing of records.

Low-priced Talking Machines Hard to Get—Aiding Dealers in Sales Promotion Drives—Trade Changes—Store Improvements—The News

PITTSBURGH, PA., November 7.—With the advent of November, and less than seven weeks before the Christmas season, there is more than ordinary activity in local talking machine circles. An outstanding feature is the dearth of talking machines that retail at $75 and $100. These instruments are as scarce as the proverbial "hen's teeth." This condition is well exemplified in the Victor line, as the local dealers are practically sold out of the $100 instruments, according to men in the trade who are in a position to speak with authority.

The industrial situation in the Pittsburgh district, which covers, for shopping purposes, a radius of about forty miles from the Steel City, was never better. Busy mills, mines and factories are an unfailing indication of prosperity, and with huge payrolls being disbursed regularly every two weeks the thousands of dollars that are distributed in wages will, in part, find their way into the coffers of wide-awake talking machine dealers.

R. J. Coleman Aids Standard Co. Dealers

Robert J. Coleman, who recently joined the executive staff of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor talking machine distributor, has been devoting his time to a plan of retail sales promotion for Standard-Victor dealers that is meeting with much favor among those to whom it has been introduced. Mr. Coleman's entire energies are being expended as "idea man" and retail business stimulator for Standard-Victor dealers. Mr. Coleman spends as many days with a retail Victor dealer as the latter may desire, studying the business from the standpoint of useful ideas and plans of which the Standard Talking Machine Co. already has knowledge, enabling the dealer to draw generously on this store of merchandise information. It is being found that a host of devices to produce business can be adopted in one locality after another and that there is no better way of spreading them than by the practical instruction given by Mr. Coleman.

Wallace Russell, general manager of the company, in referring to the work of Mr. Coleman, stated that it is given without any cost or obligation to dealers.

In speaking of business conditions Mr. Russell emphasized the fact that it would be impossible to supply all of the Victor dealers with the $100 Victrolas, due to the enormous demand for this style of instrument. Mr. Russell also stated that Victor records were selling well and that the outlook for a highly satisfactory holiday trade is exceedingly bright.

Joseph C. Roush, president of the Standard Co., was a recent visitor to Columbus, O.

E. B. Hart, of Sherman, Clay & Co., Portland, Ore., was a visitor to the Standard Talking Machine Co. offices, as were Leslie W. Wiswell, formerly of the Victor department of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, and W. Frank Davison, vice-president of the Victor jobbing house of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, O.

Offutt Co. Adds Another Branch

The Offutt Co., of New Castle and Butler, Pa., has purchased the Ely Bros., Inc., store at Jeannette, Pa. The Ely store contains a very up-to-date Victor department, which the new owners will continue.

Max Roth Improving Store

Max Roth, of Leechburg, Pa., one of the progressive Victor dealers of western Pennsylvania, is making extensive alterations and improvements to his shop. Unico equipment is to be installed by the Unit Construction Co.

Max Tannenbaum in New Post

Max Tannenbaum, who is well known to the local talking machine trade as a distributor of the Gold Seal record repeater, is now affiliated with the Hub Store of George W. Robinson, of Steubenville, O., in charge of the talking machine department.

Places Edison in Schools

The Columbia Music Co., Edison dealer, sold to the Belmar School in the Homewood district of Pittsburgh a London Upright Model. Several months previously it sold a similar instrument to the Allen School, Pittsburgh. The latter instrument was put to a very severe test and won over a well-known talking machine that is represented in the Pittsburgh schools. John F. Henk, manager of the Columbia Music Co., is quite elated over the fact that he won out in these two places and that the New Edison has found its way into the local schools an important entering wedge to even more business.

T. E. Shortell With Buehn Co.

Thomas E. Shortell, who is well known in local talking machine circles and who for a number of years was manager of the talking machine department of the S. Hamilton Co., is now associated with the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, as a member of the traveling staff.

New Edison Accounts

Among the new Edison dealers who will be served by the Buehn Phonograph Co. are the Milleman Music Co., New Castle, Pa.; D. Shaffer, Hooversville, Pa.; J. V. Wilson, Fairchance, Pa.; S. T. McKinley, Pennsboro, W. Va., and the Rothert Co., of Tyrone, Pa. One of the features of the taking on of the Rothert Co., as an Edison retailer, was the fact that the initial shipment of Edison phonographs, a representative line being sent, was disposed of in a few days and a duplicate order was sent immediately. The Rothert Co. operates other stores in central Pennsylvania, and the signal success with the Edison line was bulletined to the other stores, where other makes of phonographs are carried.

New Sonora Dealers Appointed

H. Milton Miller, manager of the Sonora Distributing Co. of Pittsburgh, stated that the Sonora line was meeting with exceptional success and that Sonora dealers reported that advance orders for holiday deliveries were coming in very rapidly.

One of the new Sonora and Aeolian record dealers who will be served by the Pittsburgh distributing agency is the Parsons-Souders Co., located in Clarksburg, W. Va. The formal opening of the Sonora and Aeolian record department was held on November 3 and was attended by a number of persons in and about Clarksburg. Fred Johnson, the department manager, and a staff of salesfolk welcomed all callers. The Sonora Distributing Co. of Pittsburgh was represented by Earl Miller.

Expects Big Edison Holiday Sales

A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, has been able to keep at his desk the past few weeks, even though he underwent a series of operations due to an infected bone in his face. The last operation proved successful and Mr. Buehn is now on the high road to ultimate recovery from a very painful affliction. In speaking of business conditions Mr. Buehn stated that the outlook is very bright for holiday sales of Edison phonographs and records.

General Radio Corp. Busy

Brisk business was reported by Frank Dorian, of the General Radio Corp., whose offices and exhibition rooms are at 1005 Liberty avenue. He stated that sales of the Strand phonograph and the Okeh records were increasing right along. As to the holiday outlook, Mr. Dorian was quite optimistic. He stated that the radio line was one that should appeal to every talking machine dealer as, in time, it would undoubtedly take its place in the music trade as an essential part of the business.

"Victrola Week" a Success

The C. C. Mellor Co. recently staged a "Victrola Week" in its retail department where a full line of the Victor talking machines was on display. H. H. Fleer, manager of the department, stated that sales of high-grade Victor machines were very gratifying.

C. B. Hammond a Visitor

C. B. Hammond, of the Cleveland offices of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., was a visitor to the Pittsburgh Cheney dealers the past week.

TRADE HAPPENINGS IN PITTSBURGH

Mr. Hammond stated that Cheney sales in the Pittsburgh district are very satisfactory.

Miss Margaret Stuart Resigned

Miss Margaret Stuart, who for a number of years was connected with the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., and latterly with the talking machine department of the Rosenbaum Co., resigned on October 31 and is now connected with the Philadelphia Co., a leading public utility organization.

Dealers Add Aeolian Records

New Aeolian record dealers are F. H. Miller, Sharpville, Pa.; L. E. Manuel, Charleston, W. Va.; Todd & Stevens, Monongahela, Pa.; Frew Furniture Co., New Castle, Pa.; R. H. Thomas, the well-known druggist of Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh, who is making alterations to his place of business and will install a talking machine department with a full line of Sonora phonographs and Aeolian records.

Good Columbia Demand

"An optimistic outlook" was the expression of S. H. Nichols, manager of the local offices of the Columbia Phonograph Co., in referring to the trend of business. Mr. Nichols stated that the sales of Columbia instruments and records were larger than ever and indicated that sales for November and December would, by far, exceed the sales of the same months a year ago.

Dawson Bros.' Sales Gain

Paul S. Mechling, sales manager of the Dawson Bros. Piano Store, Starr phonograph and Gennett record dealers, stated that October sales had shown a marked increase over September, and he intimated that the sales department is confident of record-breaking sales for the holiday season. C. L. Dawson, president of the company, is planning to leave for Florida, about November 15, on his annual outing in the South.

Jacob Schoenberger's Fiftieth Anniversary

Jacob Schoenberger, president of the Lechner & Schoenberger Co., Edison, Victor and Columbia dealer, on October 26 celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Schoenberger were hosts to their children and grandchildren and other relatives to the number of thirty at a family reunion and dinner. Mr. Schoenberger was the first president of the former Talking Machine Dealers Association of Pittsburgh. His two sons, L. J. Schoenberger and Homer Schoenberger, are associated in business with him.

Player-Tone Co. in New Home

The Player-Tone Talking Machine Co., through the president, I. Goldsmith, reports a very brisk volume of trade, especially in the console models of the Player-Tone line. Sales for October, it was stated, were very flattering and the outlook for the next few weeks is considered excellent. The Player-Tone Co. is now located in new quarters, 623 Grant street.

Leslie I. King a Visitor

Leslie I. King, district sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., with headquarters in Cleveland, O., spent several days in Pittsburgh the past week. He reports a very excellent Brunswick business and stated that sales in the Pittsburgh territory were increasing steadily.

News Gleanings

F. H. Burbick, who was formerly connected with the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., is now manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Brunswick Co.

Thomas T. Evans, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., stated that "business was booming" and that the only complaint he had is "the inability to furnish my dealers with all the Victor merchandise they need."

George H. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Co., states that all indications pointed to his clients having an exceptionally brisk holiday season.

Horace Hays, of the E. G. Hays Co., Brunswick dealer, held a meeting of his sales force at Monessen recently, which was attended by twenty-four salesmen. A dinner preceded the meeting and Mr. Hays delivered one of his celebrated "inspirational" talks.

R. B. WHEELAN CLOSES MANY DEALS

President of Health Builders, Inc., Returning From Resultful Trip to Pacific Coast

Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., New York, is on his way home, after an extended business trip which carried him as far as the Pacific Coast. On his way out Mr. Wheelan made stops at Cincinnati, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, Salt Lake City and many other trade centers. On his return trip he is stopping at the principal cities in the Southern section of the country. Mr. Wheelan undertook the trip in the interest of all three of the products of the company, the Camp-fone portable talking machine, Health Builder sets of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" and the Health Builder Weight Reducing sets. Mr. Wheelan visited many of his friends in the trade en route. Although the trip is not as yet completed many new jobbers have been appointed to distribute the various lines of the company.

J. A. CRABTREE OFF TO EUROPE

President of the International Mica Co. to Make Extensive Business Tour of the Continent

WEST PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 7.—James A. Crabtree, president of the International Mica Co., of this city, sailed recently on the Olympic for Europe, which he plans to cover in the interests of mica and mica diaphragms for talking machine and radio loud speaker manufacturers. Mr. Crabtree will examine the products now manufactured abroad to learn of any improvements which foreign manufacturers might be making on their apparatus and on which "Imico" consumers will be properly advised. He will also arrange for further importations of mica from India for 1924 to take care of the requirements of the company for "Imico" India ruby mica diaphragms.

The International Mica Co. has been unable thus far to receive any satisfactory communication from its Yokohama office, in charge of Francis Grattan, since the earthquake. The company has communicated with the American Consular offices for information.

SENDS OUT MONTHLY CALENDARS

Heralded by a series of ingenious form letters the Columbia Mantel Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., sent out the first of a series of twelve monthly calendars to those of the trade on its large mailing list. These calendars are of the Indian heroine series and are lithographed in colors. From an advertising standpoint they feature the "Recorder" line of talking machines made by the Columbia Mantel Co.

Dealers Make Extensive Christmas Sales Plans—W. D. Andrews Host to Optimists—Canvassing Results in Business—The News

SYRACUSE, N. Y., November 9.—The talking machine trade throughout this territory is in an optimistic mood, due to the fact that business has improved steadily during the past month and all indications point to a record-breaking trade. The dealers themselves have been making comprehensive plans to get their share of the Christmas gift dollars and there is no doubt that this aggressive activity will have a beneficial influence on the public when it does its Christmas shopping. In fact, signs are in the air that many people have made up their minds to shop early and avoid the rush. Concrete evidence of this is given by the inquiries already received by some of the dealers.

Andrews Entertains Optimists

W. D. Andrews, head of the W. D. Andrews Co., Victor wholesaler in this city, was the host recently to several score members of the Optimists' Club of Syracuse at a dance and buffet supper served at the commodious Andrews Co. headquarters on Washington street. Mr. Andrews is an enthusiastic member of the Optimists' Club, an organization of business men which holds a weekly get-together luncheon at one of the local hotels.

Sells 200 Edisons a Year

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., of this city, Edison jobber, received recently an interesting letter from the Greene Specialty Co., of Malone, N. Y., Edison dealer, in which the company stated: "We have four men canvassing at the present time and plan to sell at least 200 Edisons during the year. We have already sold so far this year 135, and prospects for Edison business are looking better each day, as we are getting this territory thoroughly Edisonized."

Unprecedented Sonora Demand

The Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., Sonora distributor of this territory, with headquarters in this city, has been hard put to it to supply the demands of its dealers. In fact, so tremendous has the volume of business become that the company is finding it almost impossible to supply dealers with some of the more popular models. The volume of orders and the quantity of Sonoras called for are undoubted evidence that Sonora dealers throughout this section of the State expect things to happen during the remainder of the year and they do not intend to be caught without the means of satisfying the desires of their customers. The dealers themselves are further accelerating the steadily growing volume of business by utilizing every means of impressing on the public the merit of this line.

Clark Co.'s Edison Display at State Fair

The Clark Music Co. of this city recently sponsored a very attractive display at the State Fair held in Syracuse. During the week of the fair this enterprising dealer arranged for the services of George Wilton Ballard, who has made several fine recordings for the New Edison catalog. Mr. Ballard sang in direct comparison with the Edison Re-Creations of his voice, and his recitals kept the display crowded at all times. As a result of its exhibit at the State Fair, the Clark Music Co. obtained a large number of prospects, especially for the laboratory model of the New Edison, and Mr. Richardson, who is the manager of the Clark Co.'s phonograph department, believes that some excellent sales will be closed from this list.

Making Improvements in Store

Several improvements are being made in the talking machine department of the Clark Music Co. here, including the remodeling and redecorating of the basement and the installation of four new demonstration booths to take care of the increasing trade. C. E. Richardson, manager of the department, reports a particularly satisfactory volume of trade just now, following a slight let-up early in October.

Letter Increases Record Sales

Schuderer & Castle, 109 North Washington street, Rome, N. Y., have been very successful in increasing the sale of Edison records by means of cleverly written letters calling attention to certain selected recordings. One of these business-pulling letters is as follows:

Dear Friends: We take pleasure in herewith submitting the new form Edison record supplement for your approval. We think you are going to like it better.

It is our desire to give you the best record service possible, and after carefully going over this supplement we would like to call your attention to some of the outstanding numbers, or the ones we consider the cream of the supplement.

If you like classical numbers do not fail to get 82298, "Villanelle," by Anna Case. This is Case at her best—a wonderful number.

Then for those who like a beautiful instrumental number, there is 80764, "Answer" and "A Dream," by Locey's Instrumental Quartet. A record of which you will never tire—a real gem for your collection.

Another one of those catchy piano numbers is 51209, "Knice and Knifty," by Ernest L. Stevens.

Number 51230, "Roll Along Missouri," is a waltz number you will want to hear over and over again. While 51225, "Pretty Peggy," just won't let your feet behave. Other numbers on this supplement that are worthy of special mention are 51231, 51226 and 51212.

We will be glad to play any of these numbers for you at the store or, if you live out of town, our mail-order department is at your service. Just mail us a card with the numbers you want and Uncle Sam will quickly bring them to your door.

W.F.HITCHCOCK PLANS SOUTHERN TRIP

Owner of Phonomotor Co. Will Take Well-deserved Rest—Company's Sales Totals Far Ahead of 1922 and Growing Rapidly

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 7.—W. F. Hitchcock, proprietor of the Phonomotor Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Phonomotor electric drive, Phonostop and the Need-a-Clip needle cutter, is planning to leave for a Southern trip on November 21, which will be in the nature of a well-deserved vacation. In a chat with The World recently Mr. Hitchcock stated that his company's business had increased substantially during the past few months and that on October 1 more goods had been sold during the nine months of 1923 than during the entire year of 1922.

Incidentally, Mr. Hitchcock referred to the splendid results that he had received from his advertising in The World, stating that he had built up a large foreign trade, including clients in Australia, Japan, China, Denmark and England, with all of this business directly traceable to his World advertising. He has also received orders from the talking machine trade throughout America referring to the advertising that he is using regularly in The World.

HANDSOME STORE IN POUGHKEEPSIE

B. M. Rose Now Occupying Ground Floor of Building Which He Purchased Recently

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., November 7.—B. M. Rose, who for some time past has been conducting a piano and music store in this city, is now settled in new quarters at 39 Cannon street, in a building which he purchased recently. The main floor is divided into a number of separate show-rooms, each fitted up in a most homelike manner, and with only one instrument shown in a room. The Hardman line of pianos and players is handled, as is the Sonora phonograph.

GRIFFIN PIANO CO. PROGRESS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 5.—The Griffin Piano Co., which has fine quarters at 57 North Clinton avenue, this city, and which was formerly known as the Griffin-Bailey Piano Co., is building up a very fine business in Story & Clark and Chickering Bros. pianos, Estey organs, Sonora phonographs and other instruments. John F. Griffin, who has been in the piano business for the past twenty-seven years, is president and treasurer, and George B. Riker, for many years with the Story & Clark Co., is vice-president and secretary. The store is located on a most desirable corner in the heart of the business section of the city.

PERKINS MUSIC CO. CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation has just been granted to the Perkins Music Co., of Malden, Mass., which will be capitalized at $50,000. Musical instruments will be handled.

Joseph M. Quirk, of Batavia, N. Y., who has operated a talking machine store at 4 Court street for a number of years, has moved his business to 5 Jackson street.

FARM BUYING POWER INCREASES

Department of Agriculture States Purchasing Power of Farm Products at Highest Point in Three Years—Good News for Retailers

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 8.—According to the November Review of the Department of Agriculture just issued the purchasing power of farm products has reached the highest point it has achieved during any time for the past three years. The index number of the purchasing power of this group is put at seventy-five, as against seventy-three in August and sixty-four in September, 1922.

Farm prices have shown steady advancement, a condition which should be reflected in the buying of rural communities. The Department of Agriculture's statement will do much to relieve the situation of apprehension created through the low prices for wheat, which, after all, affected but a comparatively small proportion of the nation's farmers and which was largely confined to a comparatively small section of the country.

BAGSHAW OFFICIALS VISIT GOTHAM

C. H. and W. J. Bagshaw, of the W. H. Bagshaw Co., Lowell, Mass., were among the recent visitors in New York City. The Messrs. Bagshaw divided their time between the headquarters of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. and Reflexo Products, Inc., both of which are selling agents of the various talking machine needles made by this company. Plans for 1924 were discussed. The plant of the company is reported very busy and the present year will surpass all others in needle production.

Talking machines to match the furniture in the homes of his customers are made by E. L. Corle, who has opened a shop in Hutchinson, Kans., where he makes instruments to order.

Brunswick
PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

Brunswick enterprise in seeking the best musically, no matter where it is to be had, is only another evidence of the typical aggressive Brunswick policies which have won for it the pre-eminence in the phonograph field.

Today, the Brunswick sign over a music dealer's store is a mark of prestige, a proof of high musical standing in his community.

Just as the great modern artists of the New Hall of Fame turned to Brunswick to perpetuate their art, because they recognized Brunswick's supreme achievements in making records, so has the public turned to Brunswick for the best in phonograph interpretations.

World musical authorities say Brunswick records are far in advance of the times.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT

to make Brunswick Records on the Coast because Two Western Orchestras are commanding national attention

A notable musical event of national consequence

IT is the new thing in popular music that fosters public demand and builds the dealer's profits—a new song—a new star—a new way of “putting it over.” That is the big news in this announcement—for something distinctively new has come out of the West.

Tourists returning from the coast have been bringing the news of two unusual orchestras out in California. The swelling tide of their enthusiasm prompted immediate Brunswick action—and on a scale unprecedented in the phonograph field. We have carried a special recording laboratory and technical staff direct to the center of this new musical movement—and we have carried back to the East a group of truly phenomenal recordings.

Both orchestras are exclusively Brunswick. One of them is Lyman's Ambassador Hotel Orchestra. The other—the Paul Ash Orchestra—will be announced in detail later.

The first records of this famous series are on the market now—and within a month thousands of American homes will respond to Lyman's California Ambassador Hotel Orchestra, just as the Pacific Coast does now. This announcement is one of the biggest phonograph events of the season. All Brunswick dealers are preparing for a heavy demand to take advantage of this unusual opportunity. We have promised our dealers that these first Lyman Records are unsurpassed. They are new. They are sensational. They are beautiful. Lyman and his orchestra are inimitable—so are his records.

TOLEDO

Shortage of Popular Models Felt Here—Expect Big Holiday Business—Month's Trade Activities

TOLEDO, O., November 7.—During the past month talking machine demand has been exceptionally good. The one serious drawback, however, is a shortage of models, and there is little hope that the situation will be improved before the holidays.

Concert artists are playing a big part in stimulating record sales. Already several internationally known artists have appeared before Toledo audiences, and there are still many who will come within the next few months. Most merchants are co-operating in making local concerts a success by assisting in the box office sales and in advertising the event in stores, windows and newspapers.

At the Toledo Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, the demand for machines exceeds the supply. There are a few available models, but the majority of consoles are out of stock, and after orders on file were filled November 1 the large warerooms were nearly empty. Today few orders can be filled complete. About the only consolation for dealers who have waited too long to buy is for them to purchase machines which are available, and these include several of the high-priced variety.

The Lion Store Music Rooms have coupled efforts with the sixty-sixth anniversary sale, which is being conducted throughout the large enterprise. The store has more than 1,500 live prospects listed. Outside salesmen soliciting for Victrolas, Cheney's and Brunswicks, report much holiday interest.

O. Packard, formerly with Grinnell Bros., has joined the salesforce here. Other additions will be made which are in line with expansion plans under way.

At the La Salle & Koch Co. November trade opened well, and volume for the year is ahead of former years, Forrest O. Edwards reports. Miss Emma Smith is a new member of the record force.

At the J. W. Greene Co. machine and record volume is climbing as the holidays approach, with the total for the past month nearly twice as great as last year.

An innovation started here consists of backing up the salespeople. That is, in order to keep the sales force upon the floor and behind the service counters and out in the booths or free-from trivial matters, Miss Bonna Hadley has been engaged to assist in overcoming trifles and to take up the slack in the sales rope.

A window featuring the "Covered Wagon" song hit, "Oh Sussanna," has sold a large number of the records. A covered wagon, modeled after those in the film, has turned the trick. So great is the Red Seal record increase, it is said, that selections which formerly averaged five to ten a year now sell to the tune of fifteen a month. A feature which is assisting sales is the setting of a monthly sales quota for salespeople. Above the sum set a commission is paid on all sales, which is limited only by their efforts. Miss Helen Baumgardner is a new member of the department, likewise, Edine Heck.

At Grinnell Bros. records of noted artists on tour who will visit Toledo in the near future are exploited in the store organ "Melody." Then the three attractive Victor display rooms with floor lamps, wicker furniture, rugs and genuine home atmosphere, add to sales possibilities. Miss Deister and Miss Thelma Woodward recently became associated with the Victrola department.

The Goosman Piano Co. is meeting with success in its campaign for school contracts. The principal drawback to closing school machine sales is that generally it is necessary to work out a plan whereby sufficient funds may be raised to take care of the payments. In this the house has been successful, Fred. N. Goosman states. Bush & Lane, Starr, Vocalion and Columbia models are dealt in here.

The United Music Store, foreign record specialist, is finding this a profitable field. The foreigner is a liberal buyer, once convinced the dealer understands his likes, speaks his language and will assist in making proper selections, Harry Wasserman reports. He also states that since the announcement of his new foreign record and talking machine shop opening appeared in The World, he has received letters from all sections of the country asking for information about the venture. Two outside men, John Pzrminski and Wm. Jones, have lately joined forces with the house.

At the Whitney-Blaine-Wildermuth Co. the gift certificate for Christmas is being urged as a worth-while present. The double facing of Red Seal records has marked the greatest single advance for increasing sales yet promulgated, according to Miss Maud Winchell, in charge of the talking machine department. C. E. Everingham, formerly associated with the Starr Piano Co. and the Cable Company, is now a member of this organization.

Kansas City Dealer Installs Record Demonstrating Device and Increases Facilities

Paul's Record Store, Inc., 1103 Walnut street, Kansas City, Mo., dealing in Victrolas and Victor records, recently completely remodeled its salesrooms. Included in the new equipment of the store is a series of "Audaks," the well-known record-demonstrating product. M. M. Paul, manager of the store, in a letter to the Audak Co., recently, said:

"We are now using nine of these equipments and expect to add additional ones in the future. Our customers seem to prefer the service afforded by 'Audaks.' When it is considered that our warerooms are small, twelve by twenty feet, the 'Audaks' add greatly to our capacity."

Theatrical Prosperity and the Music Dealer

Opening of Theatrical Season Shows Encouraging Activity Especially With Musical Productions—
From Dealer's Standpoint Present Conditions Are Highly Encouraging

Of particular interest to the talking machine dealers and, of course, music publishers, is the fact that the theatrical business has returned to an activity that had not been reached for the past two seasons. Of added importance is the number of musical shows now touring the country and the exceptional lengthy periods for which they make their appearances. Cities that formerly supported a road show one or two days have, in many instances, lengthened the stay of the more successful productions to a week and the larger trade centers, where a week was considered sufficient time to play the city, now find it possible to play at least two weeks. In some instances productions have been booked for return engagements.

The fact that the theatrical business is most prosperous and that a number of road shows, particularly of the musical comedy type, are playing to packed houses while on tour means so many added sales for the retailer. This, together with the fact that the Fall business on strictly popular numbers has been in heavy volume, should mean much in the way of profits for the sheet music and record merchants before the close of the present season.

Production numbers are having unusually large sales and as a number of producers of successful shows are sending out a number of companies carrying the same title these offerings, undoubtedly, will have covered the entire country before next Summer. Thus the sales of these particular offerings will assume national proportions.

One indication of the success of strictly musical offerings is that of the production of "Blossom Time," based on the life of Franz Schubert. Following its success in New York the producers sent out two road shows last season and again with the opening of Fall touring "Blossom Time" shows were placed on the road. The outstanding number of this show is "Song of Love," the sales of which have been most steady. In this particular instance not only do the sheet music and records sell during the time the show appears in various cities, but invariably there is an active demand for the number for many weeks after it closes.

It might also be pointed out that the musical productions that are having the most success on the road are those that are based upon some legitimate plot and the music of which is an appropriate part of the story. This cannot always be said of the strictly musical revues, although some of them have been contributors of exceptional sellers. The real musical show with a story, however, seems to be less of a gamble for the publisher, if not for the producer.

From the dealer's standpoint the success of musical road shows can be looked upon with favor, inasmuch as they invariably mean additional sales that could hardly otherwise be obtained. With the strictly popular counters quite active, added sales from another source not only mean greater profits, but often bring people into the store who might otherwise stay away for many weeks.

After all, bringing people into the store is the most important part of retailing. During the past Summer this was most impressively demonstrated when the sales of "Yes! We Have No Bananas" jumped to 1,000,000 copies within a very short period of time. There were other good sellers upon the counters but, undoubtedly, "Bananas" induced some hundreds of thousands of people to enter the music store some weeks before they had intended. These purchasers, undoubtedly, once in the store, made a number of additional purchases than had been their original intention.

With the musical comedy road shows playing to packed houses resulting in a demand for the songs from the productions, and the popular business showing an upward trend, the Winter season gives promise of returning to a similar successful period that made the music stores so active during the season of 1919-20. Of course, much depends upon how dealers take advantage of their opportunities.

HEARST EXPLOITS "BEAUTIFUL ROSE"

Hearst Music Publishers, Ltd., is exploiting its waltz number, "Beautiful Rose," in conjunction with the motion picture exhibition of D. W. Griffith's "The White Rose." The various booking exchanges in charge of the release of this Griffith film are giving unusual co-operation to the publisher of the above "rose" song, and exhibitors and orchestras of motion picture houses are also lending aid by programming it.

Frank Gibney Handling Stasny Catalog on Pacific Coast With Billy Newsome Rendering the Same Service in Chicago

Frank Gibney, recently connected with J. H. Remick & Co., Seattle, has arranged to again represent the catalog of the A. J. Stasny Music Co. on the Pacific Coast, making his headquarters in San Francisco. He has a fine tenor voice and will exploit the Stasny feature numbers, "Sun-Kist Rose" and "Waltz Me to Sleep in Your Arms" in the theatres and over the radio. Harry Tobias, New York salesman for Stasny, who is now on the Coast, is sending in good orders for various numbers in the Stasny catalog.

Billy Newsome, formerly connected with Waterson, Berlin & Snyder, and Irving Berlin, Inc., is now representing the A. J. Stasny Co. catalog in Chicago and surrounding territory and is arranging some effective exploitation stunts for the various numbers.

McHUGH NEW SHEET MUSIC MAGNATE

James Francis McHugh Taken Into Jack Mills, Inc., and Voted Substantial Block of Stock—Well Known and Popular in Sheet Music Trade

James Francis McHugh—so listed in the City of Boston's record of births, but better known in the "Furious Forties" as Jimmy McHugh—has not as yet purchased a silk hat, but it is rumored that he has already taken to the smoking of big, black cigars. Three or four times daily, of late, Jimmy walks casually into the cashier's office at Jack Mills, Inc., and takes a long look at the safe.

And all because, at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Mills concern, it was decided to vote Jim into the firm and present him with a generous block of stock. Jim—big, dapper and gray beyond his years—has just passed his thirtieth birthday, but his face has begun to show signs of the "grind." In his bright lexicon there is no phrase quite so important as "the ballad looks terrific."

Starting ten years ago in the publishing business, "Mister" McHugh successively represented several publishers in Boston, and came to New York in 1919. Shortly after the inception of the Jack Mills project, Jim came along to lend a hand, and, to quote "Dulcy," "The rest is history."

An engaging personality, coupled with that all-important faculty of making and keeping friends, has made Jimmy McHugh distinctly popular in the industry. None questions his position as one of the most capable professional men in the business and his reward has come as a fitting climax to years of effort.

"Send 'em all around to interview me," said Jim, immediately after being informed of the decision of the board of directors. "I'll take Arthur Brisbane, Frank Crane and the whole crowd on to a decision. Put it in big, black type and just say, 'Jack Mills and Jimmy McHugh Are Partners!'"

THE DEMAND IN LOS ANGELES

"No, No, Nora" and "That Old Gang of Mine" Among City's Leading Sellers

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 5.—The Fall business in the sheet music departments is usually started at the time of the opening of the schools and as this took place early last month business has been exceptionally good, according to reports from the various managers.

The two leading popular songs seemed to be "No, No, Nora" and "That Old Gang of Mine," copies of these two songs have been selling in enormous quantities all along the line.

J. J. Apffel, manager of the sheet music department of the Southern California Music Co., states that business in its new store, 806-808 South Broadway, has been remarkable, necessitating additions to the sales force.

ADDED TO THE BERLIN CATALOG

"Sittin' in a Corner" and "Roamin' to Wyomin'" Latest Songs to Be Exploited by That House

Among the new songs added to the catalog of Irving Berlin, Inc., is "Sittin' in a Corner," lyric by Gus Kahn and music by George W. Meyer. The professional department of the house is already making this song a feature in vaudeville, and the band and orchestra department will also give the number wide exploitation. Two other recent releases from the Berlin catalog are "Roamin' to Wyomin'," words by Sidney Clare and music by Walter Donaldson, the latter having a long list of successes to his credit, and Joe Young and Sam M. Lewis, authors of "Mammy," "Ten-Ten-Tennessee" and other songs, with music by Lou Handman, have contributed "Lovey Came Back." These numbers, together with "Indiana Moon," one of the outstanding waltz successes of the season, will be the active numbers of the Berlin catalog during the coming weeks.

PRINCE DANCES TO "SUN-KIST ROSE"

Prince of Wales Among Those Who Have Danced to Music of Stasny Number as Played by Jack Hylton's Grafton Galleries Orchestra

One of the leading fox-trot hits in England for some time past has been "Sun-Kist Rose," the A. J. Stasny Co. publication, which, in addition to being featured by a number of orchestras in and about London, has been recorded for His Master's Voice records by Jack Hylton's noted Grafton Galleries Orchestra. The organization plays dance music for royalty, which patronizes the Galleries regularly to dine and dance. The Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family have danced to the music of "Sun-Kist Rose" while at Grafton's and it was there that Whiteman and His Orchestra appeared for a time while in London, playing alternately with the Hylton organization.

Another Stasny number that has won a place for itself in England as well as in the United States is "Waltz Me to Sleep in Your Arms," which is being featured by a large number of orchestras and was also recorded on records and music rolls.

SALES OF "YOU" ON INCREASE

Substantial Demand for New Irving Berlin, Inc., Number Reported Particularly From the East—Being Featured Prominently in Vaudeville

One of the recent publications of Irving Berlin, Inc., to win quick success is "You," a number with an excellent melody written by Al Wholman, who is presenting the song in the course of his vaudeville tour over the Keith Circuit. Mr. Wholman appeared at Keith's in Detroit and is on his way to New York, where he will appear at several of the Keith houses, although stopping at Buffalo and Rochester en route home.

It is significant that wherever Mr. Wholman has featured the song his appearance in vaudeville has been followed by quantity orders for "You" from local dealers for immediate delivery, and the demand for the number generally is increasing steadily. A number of music stores, particularly in the East, have arranged effective window displays of "You," and many of the leading orchestras are featuring it.

HEARST NUMBERS IN VAUDEVILLE

Large Number of Acts Successfully Using Numbers From This Publisher's Catalog

The Hearst Music Publishers, Ltd., numbers, "Wonderful Child," "Beautiful Rose," "In the Land of Sweet Sixteen," "Some Day You'll Cry Over Somebody Else" and "Always Looking for a Little Sunshine," are finding favor with singers, the following artists using one or more of them: Norman Stanley; Bobbie Lowe, of "Youth & Melody"; Larry Francis, of Milford & Francis; Gene Leighton's Rainbow Six; Happy Benway & Sonny Dinkins; Farrell & Hatch; Dolly St. John; Jack Reidy, of Reidy & Curry; George Britt; Gazette & Thorn-dyke; Jack Lipton; Joe McAnallan, of Coburn's Minstrels; Olga La Marr; Mabel Lorraine; Frederick Sisters, with Mack's Four Steppers; Betty Baun & Jack Byrnes; Charlie Holdsworth; Fletcher, Ivy & O'Connor; Barnes and Robison; Mabel Besthops and Margie Catlin.

Si Conn, orchestral leader, of Proctor's One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Theatre, New York City, used "Some Day You'll Cry Over Somebody Else" as the musical theme for Rex Beach's famous film play, "The Spoilers," and reports that the song went with the theme of the play as though it had been written especially for the picture.

"MIDNIGHT ROSE WEEK" PLANNED

Beginning November 26 M. Witmark & Sons Begin Big Sales Drive on This Number

The week of November 26 will be set aside as "Midnight Rose Week" by the trade through the announcement and arrangements made by M. Witmark & Sons, the publishers. The plans call for one of the most intensive sales drives ever inaugurated on a popular song and dance success.

The entire sales, professional, band and orchestra departments, as well as the various branch offices and representatives of the Witmark organization, are to take part in the coming campaign. Theatres everywhere will program the number. Dance orchestras everywhere, motion picture houses and cabarets and other places where music holds swing will feature "Midnight Rose."

Plans for many window displays and the featuring of "Midnight Rose" on music counters have been arranged with retailers. The Witmark organization has issued some very effective advertising material for this purpose. It includes special title pages, streamers, hangers, cut-outs and other sales creators.

Extensive Feist Publicity Drive Under Way

Rotogravure Advertising in New York Paper Ties Up With Records by Featuring McCormack, Record Artist, and Feist Hit—Campaign National in Scope—Window Display Contest

Leo Feist, Inc., the well-known popular music publishing firm, inserted a full-page advertisement in the rotogravure section of the New York Tribune on Sunday, November 11. Of particular importance to the talking machine trade is the fact that a good portion of the space used was given over to a large photograph the latter a song and dance success of no mean proportions from the musical show, "Little Jessie James." An interesting feature of all of these announcements was the fact that mention was made that the numbers advertised could be procured for the piano, phonograph and player-piano. Undoubtedly such advertising, as "No, No, Nora," "Swingin' Down the Lane," "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake," "Love Tales," "Blue Hoosier Blues" and "Saw Mill River Road." Mention was also made of the "Good Old Timers," the publication carrying seventy-five popular selections of ancient and modern vintage.

In connection with this latter campaign $500 in prizes is to be distributed by Leo Feist, Inc., for the best window displays of either the "Feist Dance Folio No. 6" or the "Good Old Timers" publication, or both, or display of material of these two folios, the latter being

Type of Feist Full-page Advertising Tying Up Artists and Records With of John McCormack. There also appeared a reproduction of Victor record No. 961, a recent McCormack release of the Feist song and waltz success, "Wonderful One"; a series of other current Feist numbers were also mentioned.

This is the third of a series of full-page announcements which the Feist organization has used in the Sunday rotogravure section of the New York Tribune during this Fall. The previous announcements have carried publicity on "Saw Mill River Road" and "I Love You," supplemented by the other Feist activities, has created many additional sales of the sheet music and the mechanical renditions of the numbers featured.

Advertising plans somewhat more national in scope were also a part of the Feist November publicity. The outstanding feature of these latest plans was the insertion of a full-page announcement in this week's Saturday Evening Post (November 17) advertising the "Feist Dance Folio No. 6," and comprising such songs furnished gratis by the Feist company. This contest will close December 15.

All in all, this is quite a large campaign, particularly where individual numbers are given the publicity. It is of added importance inasmuch as, undoubtedly, a fair proportion of the advertising redounds to the benefit of the talking machine trade.

The prominence which is given the talking machine record in a great deal of music publishers' advertising at the present time shows

Publisher to Bring Out Special Edition of Universal Dance Folio With Many Late Hits

Irving Berlin, Inc., announces the early release of a special edition of the Universal Dance Folio for Piano. It contains many of the latest additions to the Berlin catalog and is considered one of the best compilations ever arranged by that house. The numbers include fox-trots, waltzes, one-steps and numbers with jazz effects. Included in this folio are "That Old Gang of Mine," "Indiana Moon," "When You Walked Out Someone Else Walked Right In," "Down Among the Sleepy Hills of Tennessee" and "Love" (My Heart Is Calling You.) In all there are twenty-six numbers published in the usual Berlin sized folio with a particularly attractive title page.

LOUIS BREAU ENDS MID-WEST TRIP

Louis Breau, of the publishing firm of Breau & Tobias, returned to New York late last week following a nine weeks' trade tour through the Middle West. Six weeks of this period he spent in Chicago, where he closed arrangements for a series of theatrical tie-ups on several songs from his catalog, including "At the End of the Swanee," "Voice With a Smile" and "Hot Roasted Peanuts."

DRIVE ON KAY STERN SONGS

Kay Stern, Inc., 1540 Broadway, New York, has inaugurated a campaign on the novelty song "He May Be Your Good Man Friday" (But He's Mine on Saturday Night). A campaign among orchestras has also been arranged on a song entitled "My Dawg."

That "Smilin' Through" continues to smile merrily on its way is evidenced by the fact that when Reinald Werrenrath sang it for encore at his concert in Peoria, Ill., the Transcript of the next morning spoke highly of it.

AN EFFECTIVE RECORD TIE-UP

Remick Song & Gift Shop, Portland, Ore., Features Gennett Record of "Somebody's Wrong"

PORTLAND, ORE., November 6.—"Somebody's Wrong" was recently featured in a clever window display by the Remick Song & Gift Shop, which, in the display, "tied up" the number with Clever Window Display by Remick Shop the Gennett record by the same name. Both sheet music and record sales were materially stimulated through the display. I. F. Sklare, manager of the local shop, who is responsible for working out the clever idea, also received the co-operation of all prominent local orchestras and theatre organists while the window was "dressed up," which also helped "put over" "Somebody's Wrong" in the right way. The display featured by the Remick Shop was particularly pleasing to the wholesale department of the Starr Piano Co., of this city, which is the Pacific Northwest distributor of the Gennett records. Charles Soule, wholesale manager, reports excellent sales of "Somebody's Wrong" and, with the co-operation such as Remick has given, he expects even larger returns from this excellent number throughout the present season.

NEW BLUES PUBLISHERS

Rainbow Music Corp. to Specialize in Production of Blues Numbers

The Rainbow Music Corp., 1547 Broadway, New York City, announces the opening of a new publishing company specializing in "blues" songs. Its staff is composed of well-known writers, including the very popular songwriting team, Bob Ricketts and Porter Grainger.

Bob Ricketts is a graduate of Oberlin University with a degree of master musician. He has arranged and composed some most successful "blues" songs. Porter Grainger began his career in Chicago about eight years ago after much training under the late Burrell Van Buren and is the writer of a number of successes. The above team is responsible for such songs as "Triffin' Blues," "Laughin'," "Cryin' Blues" and "If You Want to Keep Your Daddy Home."

The Rainbow Music Corp. has started a campaign on a new catalog comprised of such songs as "Wish I Had You" (And I'm Gonna Get You Blues), "Just Thinkin'," "Love Ain't Blind No More," "Mistreatin' Daddy," "Tired O' Waitin' Blues" and "Do Doodle Oom."

DITSON DEPARTMENT SETTLED

Wholesale Victor Department of Chas. H. Ditson & Co. Now on Third Floor of Building

The wholesale Victor department of Charles H. Ditson & Co., under the management of Paul Carlson, is now comfortably settled on the third floor of the commodious Ditson Building, at 10 East Thirty-fourth street, having been moved down to that floor from the eighth. The department, although occupying the same floor space as formerly, has been rearranged in a manner to give more space to the stockrooms and also provide more commodious showrooms and offices. The move, coming just at the time when business was most active, kept Manager Carlson, his assistant, J. C. May, and the other members of the force working nights and Sundays, but the result is well worth while and there was not the slightest delay in shipments to dealers during the process. This, needless to say, was an achievement of which all concerned should be proud.

F. A. Anderson is a recent addition to the sales staff of the wholesale Victor department of Chas. H. Ditson & Co., covering the metropolitan district.

ing cartoon from the Los Angeles Times, which uses the wartime comic song "K-K-K-Katy," published by Leo Feist, Inc., as a means of suitable reference to the situation that has developed in Oklahoma, where the "two-gun man" of the old West has come again into the lime-light for a spell.

ACT TO SETTLE OLD PATHE AFFAIRS

The first move in the final settlement of the affairs of the old Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. was made in November when a meeting of the creditors was held in the United States District Court of the Eastern District of New York, in Brooklyn. The creditors approved the proposed claim allowances as well as the accounts of the receiver and steps were taken providing for his early discharge.

MARKS CO. PUBLISHES "LIZZIE"

The Edward B. Marks Music Co. has arranged to publish "Lizzie," a new song recently added to its catalog, at once. The number is by Johnny Tucker, who is known as the "Jolly Singing Fireman," a member of the department's quartet, and Leslie Moore.

Carlson Bros., prominent dealers of Moline, Ill., recently held the formal opening of a fine new store at 1405 Fifth avenue. The first floor is devoted to a Victrola department.

LOS ANGELES

*Radio Trade Association Becomes Division of Music Trades Body
—Death of Joe Carter—Prominent Visitors—The Month's News*

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 7.—Whether the radio department in the music store will become a twin sister of the talking machine department, or whether it will become as distant and separate as the piano and other divisions, remains to be seen, but at present there is a distinct tendency to link the radio and phonograph departments together and arrange for salesmen to sell both, using the same methods more or less as those which they have become accustomed to with the latter. At any rate the action taken by the Radio Trades Association of Southern California in deciding by unanimous vote to become a part and division of the Music Trades Association of Southern California marks a precedent which will, doubtless, be followed in many other parts of the country. It is perhaps all the more interesting in this particular case in Southern California, when it is taken into consideration that the present Music Trades Association of Southern California was formed some years ago from an original association—the Talking Machine Association of Los Angeles.

The basis upon which this amalgamation took place was the claim of its backers that radio is 90 per cent music and that there was every indication that music stores were demonstrating their ability to sell radio sets with greater facility and more proper procedure than the electric store, although it is believed that the latter will in time separate its radio department entirely from the ordinary electric supplies and conduct it on lines similar to those used by music store departments. The specialty radio store also will, like the specialty phonograph store, adopt plans for instalment sales, sound-proof booth demonstrations, trade-ins, and establish the rules and regulations of the music store. The new division of the Association will have its chairman and committee in the same way as the musical merchandise, sheet music and other divisions of the Association already have their chairmen and committees. They will also have two members on the advisory board of the Association.

New Brunswick Model Popular

The new Brunswick Raleigh model is proving to be a very popular instrument and Brunswick dealers who placed orders for large consignments a few weeks ago are now receiving big shipments, which should see them well supplied for the holiday trade. Howard L. Brown, branch manager of the Brunswick wholesale department, is very enthusiastic over this model.

Griffith Ellis Locates in Los Angeles

Griffith Ellis, former secretary and director of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., recently arrived in Los Angeles with his family and has decided to take up his permanent residence here. He has now taken a position with Sherman, Clay & Co., Victor distributors, and is attached to the branch in Los Angeles.

Death of Joe Carter

Joseph Carter, well-known talking machine salesman, died after a short illness last month. "Joe" Carter, as he was known to his many friends, was a member of the phonograph sales force of the Southern California Music Co. for a number of years and was well known in talking machine circles here and a favorite with all. He was originally in the business many years ago in Pittsburgh.

Winnipeg Phonograph Man Here

Andrew G. Farquharson, formerly manager of the phonograph department of the J. J. H. McLean Co., Winnipeg, Man., has arrived in Southern California, accompanied by his family. He was manager of the Brunswick, Sonora and Victor departments of a large Winnipeg music house for a number of years and has now decided to locate permanently in this city.

Seattle Manager in Los Angeles

Elmer Hunt, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co., Seattle, spent a few days in Los Angeles last month. He had just come from a trip to the Victor Co.'s headquarters in Camden, N. J., where he reports work is progressing rapidly, with a double shift working continuously.

Long Beach Store Places Big Order

The Long Beach branch of the Fitzgerald Music Co. recently placed orders for three carloads of the new Raleigh Brunswick phonograph, Manager Hutchinson being confident that this model would create a very large demand. The three carloads arrived on the same day and attracted a good deal of attention en route between the freight yards and warerooms.

Orpheum Stars at Platts

Billy Golden, who has been known for so many years to hundreds of vaudeville fans and whose talking machine records are familiar to thousands, paid daily visits to the Victor record department of the Platt Music Co. while he was filling an engagement at the Orpheum last month. Max Dolin, leader of Max Dolin's Orchestra, was also at the Orpheum last month and his records were featured by the Platt Music Co., resulting in sales of the Victor records which this famous foreign orchestra has made. Miss Johnson, manager of the record department of the Platt Music Co., states that on account of the Orpheum being next to the Platt Music Co. they receive a great number of visits from stars and artists, which are of the greatest benefit to the members of the record department and often interesting to customers.

New Song Makes Hit

"Perhaps" is a song composed by Harold Shaw, leader of Soloman's Dance Orchestra. It has already been recorded on a Vocalion record and every indication points to its becoming very popular. Mr. Soloman, proprietor of the famous Los Angeles dance hall which bears his name, is featuring it in one of his usual novel ways. A silver loving cup with "Perhaps" and the Vocalion record number inscribed will be presented by some famous motion picture actress to the best dancing couple and 10,000 badges with similar inscriptions.

Brilliantone President Here

Byron R. Foster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., was a recent visitor to this city, having motored down here with Walter S. Gray, president of the Walter S. Gray Co.

De Luxe Billboard Attracts

A very handsome de luxe billboard erected by Foster & Kleiser occupies a huge front on the ocean front, Long Beach, at American avenue. It advertises Barker Bros. and the Cheney phonograph and is the only billboard on the ocean front, past which hundreds of thousands of people go annually.

A. C. Harper, president of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., has been spending some time in Southern California, making his headquarters at the Munson-Rayner Corp.

COLUMBIA RECORD RETURN PRIVILEGE

Columbia Co. Announces Interesting Record Return Plan—Received With Enthusiasm

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co., advised the Columbia trade recently that effective from October 1 a maximum return privilege of 10 per cent of record purchases will be allowed Columbia dealers for the three months ending December 31, 1923. This announcement has been received with keen satisfaction by Columbia dealers throughout the country, as it solves a problem that has been discussed by dealers generally for the past few years.

The Columbia record return plan provides that the return of records from the dealer should be made to the branches responsible for the territory in which the dealer is located and only perfect records will be accepted. The value of the credit will be made on the cash value at the time of return reckoned at list price less dealer discount, but not to exceed 10 per cent of the records purchased in the preceding three months. The credit will be a money credit and will be available for the use of the dealer on his account the following month. The first return from the dealers will be made on receipt of advice from the Columbia Phonograph Co. after January 1, 1924, as to purchases of the previous three months. The 10 per cent return privilege on records will be available at the end of each three months' period.

WASHINGTON

Special Advertising and Christmas Clubs Start Holiday Drives —Trade Displays at Better Homes Exhibit—News of the Month

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 7.—Talking machine dealers of this city were very active during the past month in putting on special advertising, inaugurating Christmas buying clubs, etc., in an effort to get the holiday sales started.

A Better Homes Exhibit was held here recently under the auspices of the Washington Herald and Times for the purpose of demonstrating all kinds of home equipment. Music and musical instruments were prominently featured both in the model rooms of the exhibit and in daily lectures. Four model living rooms were each furnished with console type talking machines. Among the exhibitors were the Hecht Co.'s Music Store, Victor, Columbia and Granby dealer; O. J. DeMoll & Co., Victor and Vocalion lines; Homer L. Kitt Co. and Arthur Jordan Piano Co., Victor dealers.

Another big affair of the month was the "Jubilee Sales Week Celebration," put over by the Northeast Business Men's Association, to stimulate sales in this center and to encourage Northeast residents to make their purchases from community merchants. The celebration was given a good send-off by a big automobile parade. The car of the F. O. Sexton Co., 647 H street, Northeast, a Victor dealer, was especially attractively decorated, being painted white and having orange-and-black streamers draped over the hood and sides. On top of the car were a large horn and a big Victor dog in front of it listening to "His Master's Voice." The "voice" in this instance was supplied by a talking machine connected from the inside of the car to the horn on the roof, and popular numbers were played continuously during the parade. On the bumper at the front of the machine was built a little platform with two more Victor dogs on it, paper "reins" leading from these dogs to the dashboard. A pennant on the radiator cap and big signs on the sides of the car advertised the dealer and the Victor products.

Louis & Co., dealers in Victor and Brunswick machines, at Seventh and G streets, Northwest, have finished the remodeling of the upper stories of the building in which they are located. The arrangement of the ground floor has not been changed materially, the record department, listening booths, roll department and an enlarged sheet music department being located here as before. The second floor, which has been handsomely decorated, is devoted to the small instrument department, listening booths and exhibits of Victor and Brunswick console models. The third floor is given over to exhibits of models of period and console

L. J. GERSON ACTIVE IN RADIO FIELD

Well-known Talking Machine Man to Carry Federal Tel. & Tel. Sets—Will Install Them in Standard Makes of Phonographs

Louis Jay Gerson, distributor of radio and phonograph products, including the Music Master loud speaker, records and accessories, has arranged to carry the products of the Federal Tel. & Tel. Co., one of the leading manufacturers of radio receiving sets. Mr. Gerson is planning to market this company's radio sets in conjunction with all types of talking machines, and the installation work is being done under his personal direction. Incidentally this field is not a new one for Mr. Gerson, as he is a graduate electrical engineer and a former manufacturer of telephones.

One of the principal sets of the Federal Tel. & Tel. line to be marketed by Mr. Gerson will be a six-tube set, self-contained and using only talking machines. On this floor, too, are located two extremely large, comfortably furnished booths, which take up practically half of the entire floor space. The object in making them so large was to give a prospective customer some idea of how a talking machine would look in the average-sized room. Gus Louis is proprietor of this store.

Edward Wallerstein, traveling man for the Brunswick Co., recently visited the Chas. Schwartz & Son store to discuss Winter sales campaigns with Miss Florence Terwilliger, manager of the phonograph department.

A big get-together dinner at the Raleigh Hotel on November 15, to be followed by a dance, will be held by the three Victor jobbers of this city for all the Victor retail dealers. The jobbers, Cohen & Hughes, Rogers & Fisher and E. F. Droop & Sons Co., have made arrangements to give the dealers a "bang-up" good time and the affair is expected to be one of the biggest of its kind ever held here. F. K. Dolbeer, from the Victor factory, will be one of the speakers and will discuss factory outlook, output, distribution methods, etc.

a loop instead of an antenna. This set will be placed in a console phonograph and will include the Federal Tel. & Tel. apparatus, the Music Master horn unit and the Geraco loop. This outfit is very simple, working on a single knob control, with only one switch to turn on or shut off the apparatus. Mr. Gerson has already received orders for installing these six-tube sets in practically all of the standard makes of talking machines.

VISITS VOCALION DISTRIBUTORS

O. W. Ray Finds Satisfying Conditions in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland—Outlines Plans of Company to Windy City Dealers

O. W. Ray, general manager of the Vocalion Red Record department of The Aeolian Co., returned recently from a trip through the Middle West in the course of which he visited the Vocalion Red Record distributors in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland. In Chicago a convention of the sales organization of the Vocalion Co. of Chicago was called while Mr. Ray was in town and he took occasion to outline before the meeting the details of the future sales and publicity campaign to be devoted to the exploitation of Vocalion records.

In each of the several cities visited Mr. Ray found a steady increase in the demand for records, with a large number of new dealers being added to the lists constantly. The double facing of the standard and classical records in the Vocalion catalog and the liberal exchange put into effect to free the dealers' shelves of surplus stocks of single-faced records had an excellent effect upon trade generally, and it is believed will prove a distinct stimulant to the business.

KANSAS CITY

Industrial and Agricultural Prosperity Insures Good Business for Retailers—Holiday Activities Under Way—News of the Trade

KANSAS CITY, Mo., November 5.—While dealers and wholesalers of this city are reporting that business is decidedly "spotted," the general condition is admitted to be considerably improved. The monthly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of this, the Tenth District, dated November 1, states that not only are the banks of the district liquidating their obligations, but that there is a heavy movement of farm products, live stock, petroleum, mineral products and manufactured articles, with a heavy money return. In addition to this, the prices of most of these are higher than a year ago. Labor is generally employed at high wages. The heavy rains, however, have cut down the volume of trade in some sections and interfered with outdoor activities of all kinds.

The general feeling is that the trade connected with the holidays will be good. Dealers are preparing for a large business, not only by stocking up with new and attractive goods, but also by planning large advertising and selling campaigns.

Sales of Edisons Are Large

Manager Blackman, of the Edison Shop, connected with the Blackman Music Co.'s store, says that his sales of Edisons have been better during October than in any previous year. He says that a peculiar thing about the sales has been that they have been largely among the employes of business houses and wholesale concerns. This, he thinks, indicates that the high wages of the former are out of proportion to the profits of the merchants and manufacturers here.

Concentrating on Christmas Activities

The Jones Store Co. is conducting its annual Christmas Club for the sale of talking machines, the advertising on the same appearing the middle of October. Persons may join the club by depositing a dollar and paying in a dollar a week. This plan has been used with success by the Jones Store Co. for several years.

A plan somewhat similar is in use this year by the Leader Department Store of St. Joseph, and other dealers in the territory. The Leader is using the Brunswick Bank plan. A small metal bank, made to resemble an upright machine, is issued to the prospective customer for $1.00. Funds are collected in this bank until the time for the Christmas purchase is to be made, and then the bank is returned with the savings, and the original dollar, as well as the rest, is applied on the purchase of the machine.

The Schneider Athletic Goods Co. is another live St. Joseph concern which will push the sale of phonographs hard this season. This firm has just arranged to spend a thousand dollars in nine motion picture theatres of the city in advertising the Brunswick.

Edison Distributor in Optimistic Mood

The Phonograph Co., Edison distributor of this city, is optimistic, as are other distributors, regarding business possibilities during the remainder of the year and the early months of the new year. Preparations of dealers for heavy holiday buying are indicated by the fact that they are ordering heavily. Record business also is good, and it can truly be said that the trade conditions, at least as far as the Edison is concerned, are very satisfactory.

The Kimball Co. has added much to the attractiveness of its show window by the artistic use of Autumn leaves.

Columbia Activities

The Columbia Co. reports that dealers are expressing great satisfaction with the new models and that the sales reported by the dealers are very encouraging. Dealers are making favorable comments as to "the design of the cabinet, the special filing devices that are exclusively Columbia, also the high-class finish on the new instruments." The new reproducer is also highly commended because of its natural tone.

O. D. Standke, of the Grafonola Shop, reports increased record sales, especially the new Ted Lewis numbers, which have shown an unusually heavy sale for the past few weeks.

Keene R. Dudley has just installed a complete line of Columbia machines and records in his store at Thirty-fifth and Woodland. This is in one of the residential districts of the city and will bring the Columbia products to the homes of that territory.

J. C. Finke, of the Joplin Furniture Co., Joplin, Mo., was a recent visitor to the Columbia Kansas City branch. He reports that business has held up remarkably well during the past few months and he anticipates a large business during the rest of the year, especially as the new style machines are being furnished the dealers.

Miss Florence Hazlett, special representative of the Kansas City branch of the Columbia Co., who was in charge of the exhibit of Waldo & Branham at the county fair at Ellis, Kan., advises that the exhibit was a decided success and believes that such exhibits are among the

Victor Dealers Hear Aileen Stanley

J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co., Victor wholesaler, states that October has been a good month, but it is looking for a steady betterment in business later. At the monthly meeting of the Victor dealers at the Baltimore Hotel in October they were entertained by the Victor artist, Aileen Stanley, who was filling an engagement at the Newman. She sang several songs for the assembly and delivered a talk on how a record is made, giving some very interesting personal experiences.

NEW COLUMBIA TRADE-MARK

The Columbia Phonograph Co. has been congratulated upon the simplicity and attractiveness of its new trade-mark, a reproduction of which is shown herewith. The famous notes are still in evidence, but it will be noticed that there is no reference to any name of the product except the word "Columbia." The new trade-mark will be a prominent feature in the mammoth advertising campaign introduced by the Columbia Phonograph Co. a few weeks ago and it is suggested to Columbia dealers that they scrap all of the old trade-marks, using the new trade-mark in their publicity matter.

TO RESUME "DOEHLER TOPICS"

The Doehler Die-Casting Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., maker of die-castings for the talking machine and other industries, will shortly resume publication of its interesting house organ, "Doehler Topics." Prior to the time that the war dominated all the activities of the Doehler Die-Casting Co., "Doehler Topics" was published regularly each month and was a source of much interesting news regarding the activities of this company. At that time W. R. Ahrberg was editor of the publication. Although Mr. Ahrberg's duties at the present time are so numerous that he will not be able to take over the details of the editorship, it is expected that he will be connected with the publication in its new issuance in a consulting capacity. The new editor will be Charles I. Hodgson, of the Doehler organization, and it is anticipated that the first number will appear in December.

L. L. SPENCER HOST AT LUNCH

Lloyd L. Spencer, of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York, was the host at an informal luncheon held Thursday, October 25, at the Café Boulevard. This luncheon took place primarily to call the attention of the metropolitan trade to the forthcoming Red Cross drive, which will start on November 11 and continue throughout the month. The Red Cross organization was represented by one of its field secretaries, who gave those present an intimate idea of the splendid work the Red Cross is doing and asked for the co-operation of the talking machine trade. Mr. Spencer is chairman of the Red Cross committee in the talking machine industry, and everyone present at the luncheon will assist him in securing the quota allotted this industry. Among those present on Thursday were Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp.; Frank J. Coupe, Sonora Phono-

Dealers Advertising Christmas Clubs — Business Remains Good — Trade Activities of the Month

ATLANTA, GA., November 7.—Christmas clubs are the order of the day. In all cities the newspapers carry the dealers' invitation to pay a dollar down and a dollar a week until Christmas, thus making sure of delivery of the desired instrument on Christmas morning. Of course, terms are arranged to take care of the balance, after delivery of the machine, within a proper number of months.

The Cable Piano Co. has already begun to stay open evenings until 8:30 p. m. This live house believes in giving its customers time to do their Christmas shopping early.

A recent visitor was Robert B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc. Mr. Wheelan is on the last lap of a trip around the entire country in the interests of the famous "Daily Dozen" and Reducing records, and establishing new jobbers on the Camp-fone. The latter, although called a portable, is selling largely at this season of the year as a table model, with the added advantage of being easily carried about when required.

Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, Birmingham's big department store, are moving their talking machine department to the balcony in the main store. New booths and equipment—Unico—are being rushed them from the factory at Philadelphia, as it is planned to take advantage of the large holiday demand for phonographs, so Unico's ability to make prompt shipment and to erect the equipment almost overnight has been taken advantage of.

P. C. Brockman, of the Polk Corp., Okel and Outing distributor, left recently for a trip to Florida, where the trade is just at the threshold of its busiest season. The Okel records and Outing portable are going strong throughout the entire territory.

W. L. Parks is again with the Columbia Co. and is heartily welcomed by the trade here. He has already taken up his new duties with the Atlanta branch.

Keep Record Sales

only thing which is causing the dealers some concern is the problem of securing machines to sell at from $100 to $150. Strands are now coming through from the second large plant, which has just begun production, and so far Strand dealers have been able to get what they need.

Phonographs, Inc., Edison distributor for this territory, with headquarters at 41 Cone street, in common with jobbers of other lines of machines and records, is kept on the jump supplying the needs of its dealers. The Edison is apparently a good seller and the outlook for a big holiday demand for these phonographs and records is excellent.

The "Lasses" White Minstrel Show, exclusive Columbia artists, was in Waycross, Ga., during October. "Lasses" himself appeared at the Walker-Hood Furniture Co. and sang a number of popular hits, greatly stimulating record sales.

The Williams-Guttenberger Music Co., Macon, Ga., is advertising Bessie Smith, Columbia artist, very intensively and a substantial quantity of her records are being sold.

The Mason Furniture Co., Huntsville, Ala., is enjoying a good Fall Columbia phonograph and record business. The new Columbias are featured in current advertising. The problem for the future is to obtain a sufficient number to take care of the holiday trade.

R. W. Richardson, Columbia salesman, reports big record sales in Nashville, Tenn., as a result of the appearance there of Gypsy Smith, William McEwan and Clara Smith, exclusive Columbia artists.

The W. L. Hall Furniture Co., Knoxville, Tenn., is very enthusiastic over the New Columbias and is doing very extensive advertising, featuring the new models.

The Tullahoma Drug Co., Tullahoma, Tenn., reports big Columbia New Process record sales this month, as does also the Melody Music Shop, Memphis, Tenn.

The G. A. Grant Furniture Co., Montgomery, Ala., has moved into its new quarters. It has a splendid phonograph department in which the Columbia phonographs and New Process records are featured.

John A. Cunningham, Columbia dealer, of Jacksonville, Fla., is planning a big sales drive.

K. & D. MOTOR MAKING PROGRESS

Electric Motor Ready for Distribution in a Few Days—S. A. Jacobs Visits Factory

"Production on the K. & D. electric phonograph motor has been progressing satisfactorily, and, although as yet the factory has been unable to make any deliveries to us or other distributors, it is only a question of days when the motor will be available to the industry," said S. A. Jacobs, of the Cliff Electric Corp., New York, who returned recently from the Kendrick & Davis factory at Lebanon, N. H. He states that the reason deliveries have not been made before now is that both the factory and the distributors wish to have the motor brought to such a point of perfection that it will be absolutely fool-proof and give efficient service.

Mr. Jacobs believes that it is far better to keep the trade waiting for a perfect product than to have troubles arising from too much haste and production. Within a few days, however, the factory will be in a position to make substantial deliveries and orders taken by the distributors will be filled promptly.

SONORA CO. STRONGER THAN EVER

Dealers and Jobbers Throughout the Country
Send Telegrams of Confidence and Co-operation
Following Quashing of Receivership

During the last week of October the talking machine trade learned with surprise that a receiver in equity had been appointed for the Sonora Phonograph Co. in the United States District Court in Brooklyn. A few days afterward, however, Judge Garvin, who had appointed the receiver, rescinded his order and the incident was closed. The court happenings were brought about by the activities of two minority stockholders, but the matter worked out to the distinct advantage of the Sonora Co., as evidence was submitted which indicated conclusively that the company is at present enjoying the most prosperous era in its history.

There was absolutely no foundation for the appointment of a receiver and Judge Garvin's dismissal of the court action was made by the consent of all concerned. Subsequent to the decision by Judge Garvin the following interesting statement was issued by S. O. Martin, vice-president and general manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co.: "It is gratifying that Judge Garvin acted so promptly in vacating this receivership. The prosperity of the company was never questioned even by the applicants, who applied to the court without any notice to the company or to any of its creditors. In fact, the company is now experiencing the greatest prosperity in its history. Unfilled orders are over twice what they were a year ago, notwithstanding increased production, and the profit is extremely good. It is also gratifying that the plaintiffs who obtained the receivership realized so promptly that their action was creating a false impression, not only about the standing of the Sonora Phonograph Co., but about the phonograph industry in general." In addition, it is interesting to note that the Sonora Phonograph Co. shows a present cash surplus of $750,000.

Mr. Martin and his associates were greatly encouraged during the course of the legal happenings to receive telegrams and messages of confidence and co-operation from Sonora jobbers and dealers throughout the country. The dealers were unanimous in expressing their appreciation of the sound and efficient basis upon which the Sonora Co. had been working the past few years and congratulated Mr. Martin and his organization upon the splendid showing Sonora had made during the first ten months of the present year.

SADLER ERECTING NEW BUILDING

AURORA, ILL., November 5.—A new two-story brick structure to cost in the neighborhood of $20,000 is to be erected by the Sadler Music Co., Inc., on the site of its present store, 54 South Broadway. Work on the new building has already been started.

Victor Wholesaler Enjoys Vacation in Maine Woods—Partridge and Rabbit Hunting Huge Success—Deer Included in Game Bag

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, and the members of his family are enjoying venison steak at their home in Brightwaters, L. I., as the aftermath of a very successful hunting trip in the Maine woods. Although Mr. Blackman was not the hunter who captured the deer, he is sharing in the proceeds of the hunt as a reward for the hard work which he contributed to the festivities of camping life.

The members of the Blackman hunting party comprised Mr. and Mrs. Blackman and their son, Albert, together with two personal friends, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. St. John, of Bayshore, L. I. The party encamped at Northeast Carry at the head of Moose Head Lake, Me., where they occupied Camp Applejack, and where they were very successful in getting good-sized bags of partridge and rabbits, while Mr. St. John had the honor of landing a handsome deer. In the interim Mr. Blackman participated in the killing of numerous porcupines, which were more of a nuisance than an enjoyment.

REGINA EXPORT TRADE GROWING

Line Exhibited at International Furniture and Decorative Art Exposition in Spain

The Regina Phonograph Co., of Rahway, N. J., manufacturer of the well-known line of Regina phonographs, recently received a copy of the "El Dia Grafico" in which appears a reproduction of the Regina exhibit at the International Furniture and Decorative Art Exposition held in Barcelona. This is one of the greatest expositions of the year held on the European continent and, from an artistic standpoint, the product shown must be of the highest standard and pass numerous inspections.

The sales department of the Regina Co. is very much gratified at the honor conferred upon its product and expects it to be the forerunner of much additional export business. The Regina Co. has had an exceptionally heavy South American business in recent years, and its European business has shown a considerable increase during the present season.

Jobbers Behind in Orders as Demand of Public for Machines Improves—Columbia Dealers Hear Future Plans—News of the Month

BALTIMORE, MD., November 9.—Talking machine business last month in this city, generally speaking, was what may be termed "spotty." This situation also applied to some extent to the wholesale trade, but this is due principally to the fact that the majority of jobbers are behind in their orders and are unable to supply the trade with the most popular types of machines in demand. This is particularly true of the Nos. 80, 100 and 210 styles of the Victor machines, on which all the local jobbers reported being over-sold for some time.

Columbia Dealers Hear Future Plans

One of the most enthusiastic meetings of talking machine dealers ever held in Baltimore took place on the first of the month at the Hotel Emerson under the auspices of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., when nearly a hundred Columbia dealers from Baltimore, Washington and other nearby points assembled to hear talks on salesmanship and future plans of the Columbia Co., in addition to enjoying a real Maryland chicken dinner.

George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Co., was the principal speaker of the evening and he outlined the plans for the future. He told of how the company had been reorganized and equipped so that it was now in a better position than ever before to give the dealers an article that was without exception in a class by itself as far as talking machines were concerned. He explained the new model and motor and the New Process records.

During the course of his remarks Mr. Hopkins announced that under the new policy of the company dealers would no longer have to run the risk of being overstocked on records for which the demand had stopped as they could return 10 per cent of the amount of records purchased during a three months' period and would not be required to take other records in exchange.

Another announcement that brought the dealers to their feet with long and loud cheers was that the company would release on the nineteenth of this month one of the greatest New Process records ever put out at the record-breaking price of 25 cents each, which will be in the nature of a demonstration record, showing the merits of this product. The record, which will be a ten-inch double-faced record, will have some of the best fox-trots arranged in a medley by Ted Lewis' Orchestra and Schubert's Serenade sung by Charles Hackett, accompanied by the Columbia Symphony Orchestra.

The dealers present were so pleased with this announcement that dozens of orders, ranging from 500 to 1,500 records, were given as soon as Mr. Hopkins had finished his address. Leonard Trout, of Trout's Music Shop, on Eastern avenue, placed the 1,500 record order.

Other speakers were: L. L. Andrews, president, who spoke on salesmanship; W. H. Swartz, secretary and treasurer, who told of the extensive advertising campaign now being conducted in this section of the country, and John W. Swope, one of the directors of the company, who told something about the financial standing of the concern.

As an outcome of this meeting a movement was started for the organization of a local Columbia dealers' association and the first meeting will be held the latter part of this month, when a permanent organization will be effected.

Victor Jobbers Busy

W. C. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons, Inc., Victor jobbers, said that for the first time this year his business last month failed to show a substantial increase over the corresponding month of last year, but at the same time the retail business ran far ahead of October, 1922, and business so far this month, both wholesale and retail, has been exceptionally good. He reports excellent results with the No. 215 Victor machine, which is now selling as well as the other popular types.

Great Activity With Cohen & Hughes

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., is another Victor jobber who reports business as being very good. Advance orders for the holiday trade are larger than for several years past, both here and at the Washington branch, and delivery of orders already booked is now the principal work of the firm. William Biel, vice-president of the company, who has just moved here from New York, has taken up the active management of the business, thereby relieving I. Son Cohen, head of the firm, of some of his duties.

Local Brunswick Activities

Manager C. F. Shaw, of the local Brunswick branch, reports a gradual catching up with orders and believes that with a little luck in shipments he will be able to fill orders in time for the holiday trade. For the first time he is now up on deliveries on the York, but is still behind on the new $100 upright. The record business is going ahead by leaps and bounds and a new record was established when the agency released seventeen new records in fifteen days with excellent results on all of them. Mr. Shaw reports good results from the national advertising campaign in practically all parts of this territory. New accounts opened during the month include: Lea-Lewis Co., Danville, Va.; E. W. Hubbard, Farmville, Va., and the Gastonia Furniture Co., Gastonia, N. C. Brunswick dealers throughout the territory, according to Mr. Shaw, report the outlook as very encouraging and several of them have requested the local agency to supply them with additional help in the way of salesmen, as proof of good business.

Josef Hofmann, Brunswick artist, appeared at the Lyric Theatre for a recital on the sixteenth of last month and dealers throughout the city took occasion to feature his selections in window displays with very good results. The Ukrainian National Chorus, another Brunswick feature, will appear in Baltimore on the twenty-seventh.

Brunswick dealers visiting the local agency during the month included: Fred Laux, of the Toulaine Music House, Newport News, Va.; W. H. Bennett, of the Brunswick Shop, Washington, D. C.; Harry Beneman, of B. Beneman & Sons, Cumberland, Md.; M. M. Burns, of Cornier, Burns Co., Harrisburg, Va., and T. W. Zercher and W. Grimm, of the Regal Co., York, Pa.

Shortage of Popular Columbia Models

W. H. Swartz, secretary and treasurer of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., reports business for the past month as very good, due principally to the new Columbia models which, as he puts it, "are going like wildfire with the trade," coupled with the extensive advertising campaign which the company is putting on in this territory. This has brought about a shortage on the popular types of machines, such as the Nos. 200, 150 and 125 consoles and the Nos. 150 and 125 uprights. He also reports a big increase in the sales of portable machines during the past six weeks, which would seem to disprove the idea that this type of machine is a Summer seller.

The Bessie Smith records continue to be one of the biggest sellers in this territory, and her two latest, "Jailhouse Blues" and "Graveyard Blues," are especially popular with the colored trade. Mr. Swartz also reports large increases in the sale of sacred music and the better class of music, which, he said, indicates some reaction from the tremendous sales of popular music for the past three years.

New accounts opened by the Columbia wholesalers the past month include: Lain Jackson, Summerville, Va.; E. D. Sutton Piano Co., Clinton, N. C.; Scotland Neck Furniture Co., Scotland Neck, N. C.; L. C. Cobb, Elm City, N. C.; Service Stores, Inc., Sparrows Point, Baltimore, and Martin Music Co., Richmond, Va.

Home Demonstrations Prove Worth

Edward Keefer, manager of the talking machine department of the Kranz-Smith Piano Co., Cheney dealer, reports good results from a new sales campaign which he inaugurated last month, which includes a demonstration at the home of the prospective purchaser. This concern finds that once an instrument has been placed in a home few will permit removal.

Artists' Appearances Aid Sales

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., report big increases in the sales of Chaliapin records following his appearance at the Lyric last month, when all local dealers arranged feature window displays of his selections. Dealers are also reaping the benefits of the appearance of the Philadelphia Orchestra here last Wednesday, when selections of this Victor organization were again featured.

Hochschild, Kohn & Co. recently celebrated their twenty-sixth anniversary.

NEW JUNIOR OPERETTA JOBBERS

Shapleigh Hardware Co. and Vocalion Co. of Chicago Appointed Jobbers by Vulcan Record Corp.—Factory Is Working to Capacity

F. H. Hedinger, secretary and general manager of the Vulcan Record Corp., New York, manufacturer of Junior Operetta records, announced recently that the company had appointed the Shapleigh Hardware Co., St. Louis, Mo., and the Vocalion Co. of Chicago, 5209 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, as distributors for its products. Both of these companies are well known in the talking machine trade and their sales organizations comprise experienced men who are thoroughly familiar with the merchandising problems of the dealers and their requirements.

In a recent chat with The World Mr. Hedinger stated that the jobbers which the company had appointed during the past six weeks had placed sufficient orders to keep the factory working to capacity. The demand for the "Little Red Riding Hood" series has been very gratifying and it is probable that after the first of the year-plans will be consummated for increasing factory facilities. In metropolitan territory several of the leading department stores have been featuring Junior Operetta records through the medium of artistic wareroom and beautiful displays and these displays have not only attracted general interest, but have produced tangible sales. Gimbel Bros.' New York store has prepared an artistic exhibit featuring "Little Red Riding Hood" records, and the Vulcan Record Corp. co-operated with this store in furnishing material for this display. Mr. Hedinger has prepared a large quantity of sales and publicity matter that he is placing at the disposal of Junior Operetta dealers.

SPECIAL EDISON CHRISTMAS FOLDER

Issued for Direct Mail Distribution by Dealers—Handsomely Illustrated in Colors—Theme "Christmas Is Music Time"

Special Christmas folders for distribution by dealers through the mails have been prepared by Thomas A. Edison, Inc. These folders are handsomely illustrated in colors, making an unusually striking appeal to the eye. The theme of the text is "Christmas Time Is Music Time," and the folder is designed both in text and layout to impress the suggestion on the minds of the recipients.

These folders should play an important part in the direct-by-mail activities of the Edison retail trade. Publicity of this high character is always beneficial and the slight cost involved in mailing is more than compensated for by the effect produced upon the prospect or customer. Then, too, added force will be given to the dealer's holiday publicity campaign if he makes effective use of the mails in his sales work.

SAN FRANCISCO

Third Annual Music Week Stimulates Every Branch of the Music Trade—Dealers Plan for Banner Holiday Trade—News of Month

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., November 5.—Talking machine dealers in the San Francisco Bay Section are in line for a banner holiday business, according to reports from various representative houses in this part of the country. In fact, sales for the past month have been very satisfactory in volume and the outlook is for steady improvement for the remainder of the year.

Music Week Stimulated Trade

Music Week has, no doubt, exerted quite a stimulating effect on the sale of talking machines and records, as well as other types of musical instruments and musical merchandise. This city celebrated her Third Annual Music Week, October 29 to November 3, and the event turned out to be one of the most elaborate and successful affairs of the kind ever attempted in the West, at least. The program was noticeably wider in scope than last year's Music Week, or the year before, and the attendance was more than double. The music dealers gave their hearty support. George R. Hughes, secretary of the Wiley B. Allen Co., served as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, other members of which included Shirley Walker, of Sherman, Clay & Co., who is also president of the San Francisco Advertising Club, and James J. Black, treasurer of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who devotes special attention to the talking machine end of the business. Besides the daily afternoon and evening programs in the Civic Auditorium, which embraced the best talent to be had in all kinds of music, various special events were staged at the theatres, hotels, cafés and music stores.

Prominent among the latter was the personal appearance of the Duncan Sisters at the Quarg Music Shop, 198 O'Farrell street. In striking costumes they sang some of their popular selections and autographed their records. After an unsurpassed run of their "Topsy and Eva" at one of the local theatres, needless to say, the store was thronged with people to see and hear them at close range, and the autographed records were sold as fast as they could be tied up and handed out. Naturally the event had been well advertised.

The sale of Paul Ash Orchestra records was likewise stimulated very noticeably by an entertainment in the Wiley B. Allen Co.'s store, arranged by the record department.

Wiley B. Allen Stores Improved

During the past month the Wiley B. Allen Co. has celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in business, and, one might add, is still growing. At present extensive improvements are in progress at the San Jose branch, which will give the talking machine department greatly increased space and importance in the new arrangement. This will be the fifth of the company's eight stores to undergo complete renovations during 1923; or to be more exact, the Fresno, Sacramento and San Diego stores have been completely remodeled and new quarters have been occupied in Oakland.

A recent visitor to the local trade was Arthur Geisler, of the New York Talking Machine Co., accompanied by Mrs. Geisler. While here Mr. Geisler made his headquarters with Sherman, Clay & Co., Western Victor jobbers.

Prof. Cheney a Visitor

Prof. Forest Cheney, originator of the Cheney phonograph, was in San Francisco early in the month, accompanied by W. H. Munson, of the Munson-Rayner Corp., Western distributors of this line. Prof. Cheney spoke before the local Ad Club, Downtown Association, the Buyers' Club of the Emporium and other organizations. The Emporium address was arranged for by Charles Mauzy, manager of the phonograph department of that large department store.

News Gleanings

B. R. Scott, manager of the talking machine department of the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his recent marriage. Returning from his honeymoon in Southern California, Mr. Scott is ready for a very active holiday sale of machines and records. His department handles the Victor, Cheney and Emerson lines and, owing to the rapid growth in business, is now beginning to feel the need of more space.

W. E. Henry, better known as "Pop" Henry, Pacific Coast manager for the General Phonograph Corp., of New York, is limping around as the result of an automobile accident on his way back from a trip to Los Angeles. Mrs. Henry sustained more serious injuries.

Following the disastrous fire in Berkeley, across the Bay, when over thirty blocks of residences were destroyed, Henry Hauschildt, of the Hauschildt Music Co., immediately announced to the "fire victims" cancellation of all indebtedness to his company on destroyed pianos and talking machines, which action was greatly appreciated by the losers of homes.

Clark Wise & Co. have been celebrating their thirty-fifth anniversary in business.

Live Columbia Dealer

A very optimistic spirit permeates the atmosphere in and around San Francisco, in relation to the new Columbia phonograph line. In the city of South San Francisco, a hustling little suburb, Columbia has just about the liveliest dealer in this territory. J. J. Jennings is an exclusive Columbia dealer. With an eye towards the future he has just completed the erection of a new building on the main street. A beautiful mezzanine floor is being devoted exclusively to the sale of the Columbia line of phonographs. Mr. Jennings has also installed an amplifier, so that no person can fail to hear the latest Columbia records.

Ordering Edison Holiday Stock

Edison Phonographs, Ltd., distributor of the Edison line in the Coast territory, with offices in this city, Los Angeles and Portland, Ore., is having a busy time of it these days in keeping up with the demands of the many dealers which it serves. The number and size of the orders being received indicate that the Edison retail trade is expecting a very busy holiday season, for which preparations are being made.

PLANS FINE NEW DEPARTMENT

Geo. C. Wille Co. to Feature Talking Machines in a Big Way in New Location to Be Occupied Early Next Year

CANTON, O., November 8.—The George C. Wille Co., in its new local Nobil building, Fourth and Market avenue, after January 1 will have a talking machine section second to none in the State, according to announcement recently by George C. Wille, head of the music house.

"I plan to spend more than $5,000 on appointments and interior decorations and fixtures," said Mr. Wille this week. "I want to make it the finest music store in Canton, to cater to the musical needs in every line," he said.

Installation of eleven full-sized booths, all prettily appointed, will be made on the main floor of the store, and in the rear of the store will be at least nine other booths, making a total of twenty.

In the new store Mr. Wille plans to specialize in the same line of talking machines as he has always featured, the Victor and Edison.

ANNOUNCES THE OUTING JUNIOR

Outing T. M. Co. Places New Instrument on Market—New Jobbers in Southern Territory Appointed—Factory Working Full Speed

The Outing Junior is the name of a new portable that has just been placed on the market by the Outing Talking Machine Co., Mount Kisco, N. Y., manufacturer of the Outing portable, which has secured country-wide distribution during the past year. The new model will retail at $25 and will be ready for delivery within the next week or ten days.

A. J. Coté, president and general manager of the Outing Talking Machine Co., is enthusiastic regarding the sales possibilities for the Outing Junior, which he states has several unique features, including a new method of tonal reproduction. The Outing factory is working at full speed, and orders have been received from Outing distributors which indicate that this portable is being accepted as an all-year-round seller. Several new jobbers have been appointed recently, including the Independent Jobbing Co., Goldsboro, N. C., and the Junius Hart Piano House, New Orleans, La.

COLUMBIA RAPIDLY REORGANIZING

Great National Advertising Campaign Well Under Way—Demand for New Models Taxing Factory—Dealers Supporting Company

Plans for the reorganization of the Columbia Graphophone Mfg. Co. are going ahead rapidly and H. L. Willson, who is president of the company and is also one of the receivers, is giving his entire time to the development of the details of the reorganization plan which was submitted to the creditors and stockholders. In an interview with The World Mr. Willson stated that the response to the reorganization plan had been gratifying beyond all expectations and that within a very short time full details would be announced regarding the plans for the future. In the meantime, Mr. Willson has been congratulated upon the sales and publicity activities of the company, as the demand for the new Columbia phonographs is taxing the factory to capacity and the great national advertising campaign inaugurated a few weeks ago is producing splendid results. This advertising campaign comprises national magazine publicity, together with full pages in forty-three Sunday newspapers and regular advertising in 750 daily papers.

In an announcement appearing recently in the financial columns of the daily newspapers the holders of participation certificates issued by the New York Trust Co. on April 26, 1922, the holders of certificates of deposit of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, issued on February 2, 1922, and the holders of undeposited five-year gold notes were advised that the plan and agreement of reorganization for the Columbia Graphophone Co. had been deposited with the New York Trust Co. for their inspection. The holders of these certificates and notes have evinced keen interest in the details of this plan and agreement of reorganization, and judging from all indications there will be no dissenting voice to the reorganization agreement as officially prepared.

General optimism is the prevailing sentiment with Columbia dealers, who are giving every support to the company, and the recent announcements of the return record privilege, new labels, demonstration record and new trademark have served to strengthen this optimism to a considerable degree.

A petition of bankruptcy has been filed this week against Abner Geffen, proprietor of a music shop at 25 Cook street, Brooklyn, N. Y. His liabilities are listed at $3,708, with no assets.

A. W. FRITZSCHE'S NEW ACTIVITIES

Assistant Treasurer of General Phonograph Corp. Developing Needle Business—Results to Date Have Been Very Satisfactory

Allen W. Fritzsche, assistant treasurer of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, and identified with the organization for the past several years, is now concentrating his activities on the development of the company's needle business. Mr. Fritzsche is spending the greater part of his time visiting the trade in the leading distributing centers, and the results of his efforts are reflected in the fact that needle sales during the past few months have shown a substantial increase over preceding months and a good-sized gain over last year.

The General Phonograph Corp. manufactures a complete line of needles, and during recent months detailed plans have been completed for co-operating with the trade and stimulating the demand for Okeh needles. These needles are attractively packed and presented to the dealer in such a form that they can be merchandised to splendid advantage. Mr. Fritzsche has prepared an intensive sales campaign for the coming year that will undoubtedly stimulate the sale of Okeh needles throughout the country.

ADVANCE ORDERS HELP JOBBER

Greater City Phono. Co. Giving Dealers Efficient Service—Railroad Facilities Better Than Heretofore—Dealers Ordering Early

"We have been closing an excellent business the past six weeks," said Maurice Landay, president of the Greater City Phonograph Co., Inc., of New York, Sonora distributor for New York City, Staten Island and the lower Hudson Valley, in a recent chat with The World. "Several new accounts have been opened and an increase in activity is noted among our dealers. The results of our recent convention have proved very satisfactory, inasmuch as many of the dealers placed orders at dates considerably in advance of previous years."

As a souvenir of the convention luncheon held in the Pennsylvania Hotel Mr. Landay has sent to all dealers who were present a large photograph of the gathering, which was taken just preceding the luncheon. Mr. Landay commented briefly on the improved railroad situation over the corresponding period of last year. He states that deliveries are being made promptly and that Sonora dealers are, in turn, receiving maximum service.

VICTOR FLOAT WINS PRIZE

Middle Western Dealer Has Built Large Business by Aggressive Methods

CIRCLEVILLE, O., November 7.—Carl F. Seitz, 138 West Main street, this city, believes in taking advantage of every opportunity of bringing his products to the attention of the public. Recently he had a particularly attractive float in the parade in connection with the Annual Pumpkin Show. This float attracted widespread attention and was awarded second prize. Mr. Seitz is one of the veterans of the music business in this section. He has sold musical merchandise of all kinds since 1891, and he has built up a large business in Victor, Brunswick and Sonora phonographs, pianos and small goods.

BOOKS REFLEXO BUSINESS IN WEST

Louis J. Unger, president of Reflexo Products, Inc., New York City, recently returned from an extensive trip throughout the Middle West in the interest of Reflexo blue steel needles and Gilt Edge needles. Mr. Unger found conditions particularly good on his trip and booked considerable new business. The new free display stand has gone over big and many dealers report its value in the increasing of needle sales.

What Is Ideal Merchandise?

People will buy in quantities that article of merchandise which is obviously better value than competing lines. Sales resistance becomes immediately broken, while selling time and costs are lessened, thereby giving the dealer larger profits.

Sonora Stays Wherever Placed

"We took on the Sonora line for two reasons: First, because we have had a number of requests for the Sonora. And second, on investigation we found that the Sonora is a machine of merit. Since taking on this additional line we find it to be very satisfactory, both as a merchandising and selling proposition. We may add that the demand is increasing, and that wherever placed the Sonora stays." That's what the manager of the phonograph department of one of the largest Eastern Department Stores writes about Sonora (name furnished on request).

You, too, can build for the future with Sonora. Write us for our proposition.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

DEALERS IN MONTREAL TERRITORY ARE VERY ACTIVE

Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., Constructing Plant for Manufacture of "His Master's Voice" Cabinets—Retailers Add New Lines—Expansions and Other News of the Trade

MONTREAL, CAN., November 8.—"His Master's Voice" Victrola cabinets, which have hitherto been imported into this country from the United States, will soon be made in Canada by the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., of this city, which for some years has manufactured the Victor machines and records. They are now fitting out a modern reinforced concrete building which will be used exclusively for the manufacture of these cabinets. This building is five stories high, about 500 feet long, and contains approximately 100,000 square feet of floor space. It was erected, together with a 1,200 h.p. power plant, in 1921. The value of the building and the complete modern equipment being installed is a little over $1,000,000. The work, the company expects, will be completed about December 1. The plant when operated to capacity will require the employment of about 350 additional workers, but it is not counted on reaching full capacity before 1925. During the coming year, however, the company expects to take on about 200 additional employes.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., will hereafter handle the Vocalion records and will, as in the past, feature Sonora and Columbia phonographs. The firm is carrying on an extensive advertising campaign in the interest of Sonora, which is bound to have telling results.

"Lord Renfrew's favorite, 'His Master's Voice' Victor Victrola, again supplied by Layton Bros., Ltd. A royal tribute to the Victrola, the choice of Lord Renfrew on his recent visit to Canada." This is the way Layton Bros., Ltd., announced in the daily press that they had again supplied this make to the heir to the throne. An illustration was also shown of the machine, Style No. 400. It is also worthy of note that Lord Renfrew purchased a similar model to be shipped to England for his own personal use.

Palm-O-Phone, Reg., has opened up talking machine parlors at 2833 St. Catherine street, East, where it is carrying a number of different makes of "talkers" and featuring the sale of Starr-Gennett records. Five demonstration booths are daily in operation.

J. W. Shaw & Co. are now featuring Vocalion records and quite recently made a very nice window display of these goods.

Charles Culross is receiving exchanged pianos in quite goodly numbers in part payment for Sonora and Aeolian-Vocalion phonographs.

Lord Renfrew (H. R. H., the Prince of Wales) during his recent visit to Montreal personally complimented Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra (exclusive Brunswick artists), which plays daily at the Mount Royal Hotel, on its wonderful playing.

Wm. Lee, Ltd., has been running considerable newspaper copy exploiting the Brunswick and emphasizing the fact that Lord Renfrew danced to and enjoyed the following Brunswick records: No. 2447, "Stella" (fox-trot); No. 2402, "Wonderful You" (fox-trot); No. 2352, "When Hearts Are Young" (fox-trot); No. 2393, "Un Tango Dans la Nuit" (tango), and No. 2440, "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" (waltz).

Isa Kremer, Brunswick artist, paid a return visit to Montreal the past month and met with an enthusiastic reception.

Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co. and exclusive Victor artist, sang to a capacity audience in Windsor Hall the latter part of October.

Layton Bros., Ltd., during the late visit to Montreal of the Right Hon. David Lloyd George, supplied him in his suite at the Mount Royal Hotel with a Model No. 300 Victor-Victrola.

J. Wilfrid Bourgoïn, "His Master's Voice" dealer, 1 St. Catherine street, East, is planning to soon open a branch store. One cannot but help notice the neat arrangement for quick service to customers in locating records which are labeled under different headings, for example: "Dance Concert"—Light Vocal, Instrumental, Concert and Operatic, French, etc. Sales of consoles and uprights are about fifty-fifty as leaders in the sales race, while a large repair business is handled.

A. Pratte, Jr., expects in the near future to have a complete line of phonographs, and is at present handling Starr-Gennett records, supplies, etc.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE TORONTO TRADE FIELD

R. J. Dearth Takes Over Old G. L. Laing Co. and Will Distribute Honest Quaker Main Springs—G. W. Hopkins to Speak Before Canadian Advertisers—New Stores Opened—Month's News

TORONTO, ONT., November 8.—An agreement has been reached whereby R. J. Dearth takes possession of the business formerly carried on under the name of G. L. Laing Co., this city. Mr. Dearth assumes all liabilities of the former company. He will act as direct factory distributor for Honest Quaker main springs, Empire tone arms and reproducers, Silent motors, Phonostops and other phonograph accessories.

E. A. McMurtry, Canadian manager of the Columbia Co., recently visited Winnipeg, Man., where he found dealers taking a very keen interest in the new line of Columbia phonographs and the Columbia New Process records.

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co., New York, is to be one of the leading speakers at the annual convention of Associated Canadian Advertisers to be held at the King Edward Hotel during the early part of November.

S. Aronson, president of the Presto Phono Parts Co., Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., was a recent trade visitor to Toronto. M. G. Beatty, this city, is sole Canadian distributor for these products.

J. B. Heighton, Uxbridge, Ont., has been granted a Canadian patent covering four claims on "A composition of matter for manufacturing amplifiers."

Thomas Nash, manager of the Sun Record Co., who has so successfully handled the marketing of the Apcx records ever since they were first put on the market by the Compo Co., of Lachine, Que., has just returned from a business trip to Chicago and other United States centers. In Chicago Mr. Nash appointed a distributing house for Ajax records, also manufactured by the Compo Co., Ltd., large shipments of which are already entering the United States.

The Scythes Vocalion Co., Ltd., of this city, Canadian manufacturer and distributor of the Aeolian Vocalion phonographs and records, announces that C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., Montreal, has taken on the Vocalion record line.

During Lord Renfrew's holiday on his western Canadian ranch he visited Calgary, Alta., calling at the store of the Alberta Piano Co., Ltd., to select a number of records, including the latest hits. The selections made were "His Master's Voice" Victor records. While H. R. H. the Prince of Wales was on the E. P. Ranch he used and enjoyed immensely the Victrola, Style No. 280, supplied by the Alberta Piano Co.

A new piano-phonograph shop has been opened in Windsor, Ont., by William H. Hardy and is known as Hardy's Music Store.

Henry Pratt has recently opened an exclusive phonograph store at 998 St. Clair avenue, West. The Brunswick is among the lines handled.

Manager Sibbitt, of the Ottawa Phonograph Corp., Ottawa, Can., in order to attract attention to his show window recently employed the headliner from one of the local theatres who did his tricks in the window. Coupons were distributed on which the people were asked to state whether he was a man or a machine, and also to give the age of the "man." Ten records were given to the person giving the correct answers.

Charles Kirke Music Co., Ottawa, is now handling Aeolian-Vocalion records in its handsome new store on Sparks street.

Herb. Byshe, one of the first phonograph retailers in Canada, has discontinued the sale of records.

Jones Bros. have succeeded to the business of M. P. Wright, Rideau street, Ottawa.

LIVE DEALER ORGANIZES ORCHESTRA

MONTPELIER, IDAHO, November 7.—F. M. Williams, Brunswick dealer here, has organized a dance orchestra called the Harmony Five. Mr. Williams states that his orchestra plays so-called Brunswick tunes, because all of their dance numbers are identified with Brunswick records. The orchestra is being booked in many places in southern Idaho and some points in western Wyoming. By identifying his dance program with Brunswick dance records he is developing a big record business.

DANIELSON IN NEW WAREROOMS

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., November 8.—Danielson's Music House participated in the big opening celebration at Roosevelt Square here recently when the new Rogers block was dedicated.

SALT LAKE

Retailers and Wholesalers Enjoying Prosperous Season—Outlook for Holidays Is Excellent

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, November 5.—All is well with the talking machine industry in this section. Without a single exception leading men in the business—dealers and wholesalers alike—are congratulating themselves on the prosperity which is attending them and that business will continue good now right up to Christmas is, of course, a foregone conclusion according to well-informed heads of the leading concerns in this territory.

Donald Daynes, treasurer of the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., and Ted Lewis, of the phonograph department, have gone to southern Utah on a deer-hunting trip. President Joseph J. Daynes has been on several brief duck-hunting trips which were productive of good sport.

Several favorite Mormon hymns, recorded recently by the Victor Co. to sell at 75 cents, are in good demand in this territory.

The Utah Phonograph Co. had an attractive booth at the recent State Fair.

There is not as much call now for the "jazzy" stuff as for the better class music, according to Manager Henry Gardner, of the Z. C. M. I. talking machine department. Miss Geneve Swayze, the charming young lady assistant in the Keith-O'Brien Co.'s phonograph department, now discontinued, has joined the Z. C. M. I. phonograph department under Mr. Gardner.

"It's a Lot of Bologny," by Billy Murray. This was featured in the John Elliot Clark Co.'s window recently. There were frankfurter sausages to give the song a realistic touch. Hundreds stopped to see the window.

H. E. Dewsnup, former sales manager of the Consolidated Music Co., has purchased an interest in the O'Loughlin Co., Main street.

Sales Manager Thomas, of the Consolidated Music Co., has been elected to the board of directors of the company. He has been with the firm nine years. Dean Daynes, of the Consolidated, has returned from a hunting trip in southern Utah, which he took in company with county officials.

Miss Beth Erickson, head of the John Elliot Clark Co.'s educational department, took a leading part in the program of the recent State Teachers' convention, held in this city. Miss Erickson appeared on the general program of the convention and also on the program of the music section. She discussed music appreciation, with, of course, special reference to the Victor machines.

The John Elliot Clark Co. is fitting up its second floor as a fine, new salesroom to be devoted entirely to period models of Victrolas.

The Utah Association of Music Industries has decided to hold quarterly meetings hereafter and to make each meeting a convention and social on a small scale. Members thought this would be preferable to holding meetings at more frequent intervals. The executive committee will be responsible for the conduct of the Association's business to a greater extent than heretofore. Secretary Fred Beesley, Sr., said they hoped to get employes of the different establishments out at the quarterly meetings and discuss various phases of the business of interest and value to them in their work.

Miss Gussie Pearson, of the Fisher Music Store, East Third street, South, reports that there is a good demand for second-hand records at this time. The Fisher Co. sells second-hand musical instruments and equipment exclusively. Its store is neat and attractive and no "junk" is carried.

T. E. Ashworth, of the Auerbach Co.'s phonograph department, reports a brisk demand for Columbias. "We can't get them fast enough," he said. The Auerbach Co. will soon move into its new store, where it will have a larger phonograph department.

Branch Manager Spratt, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has just returned from a short trip into the Idaho territory, where he called on Brunswick dealers in Pocatello, Blackfoot and Idaho Falls.

The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. displayed a very pretty Brunswick window during State Fair week.

The Bates Stores Co., Brunswick dealer, Provo, Utah, has announced its big phonograph sales campaign. Extensive advertising is a feature of the event.

Messrs. Boyden and Carlson, of Coalville, Utah, and Logan, Utah, respectively, were recent visitors to the local Brunswick offices.

Mr. Perry, of the Brunswick Co., has returned from a short trip into the Wyoming territory. He reports Brunswick sales as very active in Evanston, Kemmerer and Afton, Wyo.

DEALERS IMPROVING THEIR STORES

Leon Tobias, secretary of Van Veen & Co., Inc., reports considerable activity on the part of talking machine retailers in improving their warerooms. Among contracts in progress and recently completed are the following: A complete phonograph department for Bloomingdale Bros.; alterations for Chas. H. Ditson & Co. and C. Bruno & Son, Inc., both Victor distributors of New York City; Home Furniture Co., Trenton; installations for M. F. Malarkey, Pottsville, Pa.; Griffith Piano Co., Newark and Trenton stores; Mt. Pleasant Music Shop, Washington, D. C.; Oscar A. Hoffmann & Bro., Cincinnati, O.; Hudson Music Shop, Hastings, N. Y.; Charles Azzara, Yonkers, N. Y.; Brunswick Shop, Washington, D. C.; William R. Zollinger & Co., Canton, O., and Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

SONORA SCORES AT TRI-STATE FAIR

Walter C. Reinhardt, of Memphis, Tenn., Wins Fine Publicity for His House and the Sonora Line Through Exhibit at Fair

MEMPHIS, TENN., November 5.—Walter C. Reinhardt, president of Reinhardt, Inc., Sonora dealer in this city, is being complimented upon his aggressiveness in securing maximum publicity for his house and Sonora product during the Tri-State Fair. The company erected a special tent close to the Agricultural Building, and among the Sonora consoles displayed were the Queen Anne, Canterbury, Marquette, Marlborough and Serenade, together with the Grand, Barcarolle, Melodie and the portable. Quite a few Sonora sales were consummated during the course of the fair, and it was estimated that 180,000 people passed the Sonora tent at one time or other.

One of the most interesting features of the entire fair was the "Enchanted Sonora," this display consisting of a Sonora Grand, mounted on four fish bowls in which gold fish sported about in full sight of the visitors, showing the impracticability of any wired connection and yet this instrument told the visitor's name, describing his clothes and answering any question intelligently. The solution of the mystery rests with Mr. Reinhardt, but the "Enchanted Sonora" was the means of packing the tent every hour of the day and evening with thousands of visitors, each of whom received a catalog and the famous walking Sonora doll.

In addition to displaying the Sonora product in a specially designed tent, Mr. Reinhardt also featured the instrument in another display in the Merchants' Building, entertaining the crowds with concerts on the Sonora, using Vocalion Red records. Instruments were also placed at the disposal of other exhibitors to entertain their visitors, and among the companies which took advantage of Mr. Reinhardt's liberal offer were the Coca Cola Co., which broadcasted Vocalion records by means of a Sonora and a Magnavox, the Dixie Mfg. Co., which also used these products, the Sweet Pal Candy Co., and the official restaurant at the fair.

ADDITION TO BRUNSWICK PLANT

KNOXVILLE, TENN., November 7.—An addition to the Lonsdale plant of the Brunswick-Balke Collender Co. has just been announced, and plans have been made to build an assembling plant here within five years, for the manufacture of Brunswick phonographs. The company intends to cover the entire block it has purchased.

The Moller Music Co., of Hagerstown, Md., which this year completes its forty-third year in business, has leased new warerooms in the old Hotel Franklin building, giving it largely increased quarters and better facilities to take care of its growing business.

EQUIPPING NEW LANDAY STORE

Zimmerman-Bitter Co. Secures Sixth Avenue Store Contract—Closes Other Important Contracts—Final Rush Before Holidays

The final rush of remodeling and equipping talking machine stores before the beginning of the late Fall and holiday business is being completed by the Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York City, according to A. Bitter. Among the recent installations completed by this company is that of the Berger Talking Machine Co., of Ridgely Park, N. J., consisting of six hearing rooms, record racks, sheet music and musical instrument departments. The entire store has been redecorated in French period design. The store of Max Liaks & Son, of 143 Second street, Passaic, N. J., has added complete equipment for a phonograph department.

Emanuel Blout's store in Flushing, L. I., has been equipped with eight hearing rooms, piano rooms, record racks, musical instruments, sheet music, music roll and small goods departments. A new musical instrument department has also been added to the Blout store in Bayonne, N. J., and a similar department has been added to Landay Bros.' New Haven store. The Good Luck Talking Machine Co., New York City, has added additional booths and musical instrument cases.

The Zimmerman-Bitter Co. is at present engaged in enlarging the showroom of Landay Bros. at 311 Sixth avenue and is also equipping the new Landay store at Sixth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. This installation will comprise thirty-five hearing booths and complete equipment throughout all departments, including musical instrument, sheet music, small goods racks and showcases, etc. The main floor will be finished in walnut and the second floor in French grey. Mr. Bitter states that conditions are particularly promising for a good Fall business and that his company anticipates continued activity in the installation of equipment.

INTRODUCES NEW TYPE LOUD SPEAKER

Radio Specialties Apparatus Co. Places "Excello" Loud Speaker on Market

A new phonograph type loud speaker has recently been placed on the market by the Radio Specialties Apparatus Co., Upper Montclair, N. J., which is being merchandised under the trade name of "Excello." This amplifier is designed with the idea of permitting the owner of a phonograph and radio set to combine the two, using the phonograph horn as the loud speaker. The device is attached to the tone arm of the talking machine and is finished in gold, silver and nickel plate to match the various tone arms. It is adjusted by the turning of a knob, thus making the music, both vocal and instrumental, loud or soft, as is desired. The Excello fits any type of tone arm either by simply attaching it to the tone arm or, in the case of certain old-style tone arms, various removable adapters are used, thus making a complete unit which may be changed at will.

The Radio Specialties Apparatus Co. also manufactures the Excello horn type amplifier, which has all the adjustment features of the phonograph type and is light in weight. This amplifier is made in an artistic design, which makes it appropriate for use in the home. The horn type comes in three finishes—standard black, crystal black and mottled green. H. G. Thompson, president of the Radio Specialties Apparatus Co., states that these two types of instrument have met with approval in the talking machine trade.

CLIFFORD CO. IS CHARTERED

NORWALK, CONN., November 5.—Incorporation papers for a new music house here have just been filed under the name of the Clifford Jewelry & Music Co., Inc. Capital, $10,000.

NEW COLUMBIA LABELS READY

Distinctive Set of Labels Will Appear on All Columbia Records—Attractive Design With an Effective and Distinctive Display

Commencing with the January supplement as a unit and on all repressings of previously listed records starting at once, the Columbia Phonograph Co. will use a new label that is distinctive and entirely different from the labels used in previous years. A reproduction of the label is shown herewith, but the black and white reproduction hardly does justice to the attractive colorings that characterize the new series of labels.

According to an announcement sent out by Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the

The Artistic New Columbia Label company, the new labels will be classified as follows: gold label for a special list of symphony artists; silver label for the balance of symphony artists; bronze label to replace the present blue label, or 75-cent record; green label to replace the present green label, representing records in the foreign language catalog made in America, and the blue label for foreign language records made abroad. While the color for each classification is different than the other colors in the series, the general design for all of the labels is similar, with the word "Columbia" prominently displayed between two unfolded red, white and blue flags and the new Columbia trade-mark at the top.

Columbia dealers who have received samples of the new labels are enthusiastic regarding their artistic design and their advertising value, as there is a minimum of type matter with a most effective layout. It is understood that coincident with the issuance of the new labels a new numbering system will also be announced.

PROGRESS ON NEW VICTOR PLANT

OAKLAND, CAL., November 3.—Construction work on the Western plant of the Victor Talking Machine Co. started here a few days ago, and Architect William Knowles, of Oakland, plans to have the structure completed by January 15 of next year. The new building, located at the foot of Seventy-eighth avenue, will have a frontage of 120 feet and a depth of 200 feet, being entirely of brick construction. The local factory will entail a cost of $130,000 for its erection and will employ about 200 people when operated.

F. B. JENKINS, JR., VISITS NEW YORK

F. B. Jenkins, Jr., manager of the wholesale Victor division of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., was a visitor to New York recently after spending a few days at the Victor factory. Mr. Jenkins spoke enthusiastically regarding business conditions in his territory, stating that the Victor dealers throughout the Middle West are apparently enjoying one of the most prosperous cras in recent years.

Collect the interest on every instalment sale you make. Failure to charge interest means the loss of a considerable sum of money annually.

The Excello Phonograph Type Loud Speaker

Made in both phonograph and horn design.
Adjustable air gap and cushioned diaphragm so as to bring out the full tone and quality of both vocal and instrumental selections.
Fits all tone arms perfectly by means of invisible adapters and height adjuster.

Place your order C. O. D. or check in advance. If, after ten days, you are not satisfied with the Excello, and it is returned in first-class condition, your money will be refunded. Liberal trade discount.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Trade Conditions Never Better—L. D. Heater to Distribute Okeh Records—Record Artists in Local Concerts—The Month's News

PORTLAND, ORE., November 5.—Trade conditions in this city never were better and the outlook shows nothing but increased prosperity for this section of the country. With general business conditions in such splendid shape the only problem confronting the talking machine dealers and jobbers is the shortage of goods. This is already proving a great issue and with a tremendous holiday business in sight the dealers are experiencing some uneasy moments.

L. D. Heater, Oregon and Washington distributor of the Strand phonograph and the Portophone, has been made the distributor for that territory for Okeh records and anticipates a rapidly growing business. Portland firms to take on the Okeh line are: Vern Wenger Phonograph Co., McCormick Music Co., Inc., and the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co. Out-of-town dealers are: Cobban Music Co., of Astoria, Ore.; Smith & Carlson Drug Co., of Cosmopolis, Wash., and the W. E. Bennett Music Store, Everett, Wash.

New Strand dealers are: Remick Song & Gift Shop of Portland, Gervurtz Furniture Co. and Wm. Gadsby Furniture Store, all of this city.

The musical season was opened here recently by the appearance of prominent artists, including: Mary Garden, Columbia artist, and Claire Dux, Brunswick artist. The local Brunswick branch extensively advertised the local appearance of Miss Dux and all of the local Brunswick dealers did the same. Another artist to make his initial bow to Portland recently was Tito Schipa, Victor artist.

Lorraine Evon, violinist, and the Golden Bird, a canary, who record exclusively for Gennett records, also appeared locally. The Starr Piano Co., distributor of Gennett records, advertised Miss Evon's appearance, and sales of her records were greatly stimulated as a result.

Portland music houses have contributed liberally to the State development fund, which has been held under the auspices of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, thanks to the efforts of the chairman, J. H. Dundore, manager of the Sherman, Clay & Co. store.

Charles Soulé, district manager of the Starr Piano Co., is planning a visit through the Eastern part of his district, which will include stops at Spokane, Wash., and Boise, Idaho.

Elmer Hunt, wholesale manager of the local Sherman, Clay & Co. branch, has been visiting the Victor factory at Camden, N. J., and different jobbers as well as studying general conditions.

Victor dealers who visited the Sherman, Clay & Co. wholesale department during the past month were A. W. Burton, Powers, Ore., a new Victor dealer, and Stanton Powell, of Grants Pass, Ore., proprietor of the Music & Supply House.

Sherman, Clay & Co. were awarded the first prize for the best musical window display during the Better Homes Week, and were given a handsome silver cup by the Portland News.

George Bohlen, representative of the Kimball Co., of Chicago, visited Portland during the past month, calling on the McCormick Music Co., local distributor of the Kimball pianos and phonographs.

J. A. Price, manager of the Wiley B. Allen branch at Centralia, Wash., was a visitor at Portland headquarters during the past month.

New saleswomen added to the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co. are Gertrude Lee and Kathryn McCarthy.

Miss Emma Reynolds has been appointed manager of the record department of the Bush & Lane Piano Co.

Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., called recently on G. F. Johnson, of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., representative of the Cheney interests in the Pacific Northwestern States, and accompanied him to Seattle and other Washington cities.

Standard Selections Growing in Popularity

General Phonograph Corp. Reports Tremendous Increase in Demand for Odeon Records—Otto Heineman Responsible for Their Phenomenal Success—Important Announcements Ready Soon

With every division of the General Phonograph Corp. working to capacity, Otto Heineman, president of the company, has found it necessary to divide his day so that each of the company's products may receive a certain portion of his individual attention. Okeh records are hitting new marks in sales totals; the new Heineman motors have been accorded an enthusiastic reception by the trade everywhere and Okeh steel needles are winning new friends steadily, but the outstanding feature of the company's activities is the tremendous and unprecedented demand for Odeon records.

The Odeon record division of the General Phonograph Corp. has been Mr. Heineman's special "baby" for the past three years and the remarkable success that these records have achieved is due in a large measure to his efforts and activities in their behalf, together with the co-operation of his associates. In 1920 Mr. Heineman spent several months in Europe and while abroad completed arrangements with the International Talking Machine Co. whereby the General Phonograph Corp. was given the exclusive right to import the matrices of recordings by world-famous operatic stars, internationally known musical organizations and the foremost musical celebrities of practically every country in Europe. The records from these matrices are pressed in the Okeh factories and released under the Odeon label. Each month a notable selection of the recordings is issued and it is gratifying to learn that dealers throughout the country are handling these Odeon records as a feature record line in their establishments.

At the present time a comprehensive catalog of Odeon recordings is in process of completion and when ready for distribution this catalog will emphasize concretely the remarkable progress that the General Phonograph Corp. has made in the introduction of these popular recordings to the trade in this country. Special album sets have recently been introduced to feature Odeon records and these album sets have served to provide the dealer with a new and more profitable method of record merchandising. Mr. Heineman expects to have several important announcements to make during the next few weeks regarding his company's 1924 plans so far as Odeon records are concerned, and these announcements will undoubtedly prove of interest and benefit to the Odeon trade.

SINGLE RECORD DISPLAYS POPULAR

Special Window Displays Featuring Single Records Arranged by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Prove Business Getters for Dealers

The policy recently adopted by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., of featuring individual Edison records in window displays, prepared especially for the use of Edison dealers, is meeting with popular approval, and reports coming from dealers who have utilized the displays indicate that concentration on a single product in a window display is a paying proposition.

The first display release by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was in September, and each month since then new displays have been added. Placards and other publicity material going into the window are prepared by the Edison Company and supplied to dealers on request. The illustrations are especially attractive, and insofar as possible they convey a distinct thought on the particular record upon which the exhibit is based. In addition, neatly printed placards have been prepared on which appear brief messages designed to induce early action, resulting in the purchasing of the record featured.

The Carroll Music Co., 125 Putnam street, Marietta, O., recently reincorporated under the new name of the Cullen & Myers Music Co. Incorporators are M. and D. M. Cullen and B. B. Myers.

Made under Patent No. 995758 which has been vigorously contested and sustained by the Court of Appeals.

COLUMBUS

Christmas Buying Starts—Trade Holding Instruments for Future Delivery—Business Gains Grow

COLUMBUS, O., November 9.—The Christmas season business is already well under way here. Among the firms that have a considerable number of machines stored away for delivery a few days before Christmas are the Elite Music Store, Victrola specialists; F. & R. Lazarus Co., and Heaton's Music Store. The last two concerns are also Victor dealers.

The C. C. Baker firm, Victor and Brunswick dealer, is making plans for Christmas business. This firm, as well as a number of others which have not started their Christmas campaigns, will launch special drives in a few days.

Console style machines have been unusually popular in this city. According to several Victor dealers as many as ten console models are sold to each upright. The machine business has been splendid in the past few months and at Heaton's Music Store during the first week in November an average of two machines were sold daily.

The "hit" in dance records for the past several weeks has been "Last Night on the Back Porch," a fox-trot produced by the Paul Whiteman Orchestra, a Victor organization.

Ever since the inauguration of double-faced Red Seal Victor records the C. C. Baker Store has shown an increase in Red Seal sales.

Anticipating a heavy trade in the next few months Heaton's Music Store has engaged Miss Dorothy Wells, a well-known local musician, as a member of its sales force in the record department.

Steinway & Sons, Brunswick dealers, have also experienced a good business in the past several weeks. The $250 console has been the favorite machine among their customers. Chester S. Carter and N. V. Wadley have recently been added to the sales force.

The first concert of a series arranged by the American Legion took place at Memorial Hall November 7. Mme. Schumann-Heink was the artist and the concert was a great success in every way. Sales of Victor records by this artist were greatly stimulated by her appearance here.

Dealers are co-operating in the promotion of coming concerts. The seat sale for the United States Marine Band is being held at Heaton's Music Store. Tickets for the Sousa concert are being sold at Goldsmith's Complete Music Store.

Due to the fact that the first State Music Memory Contest proved to be a tremendous success a second annual contest will be given next year under the State Department of Education. It will be conducted on practically the same rules and regulations as the one held this year, the final contest to be held in March. This year's contest, however, started just a few weeks after the first day of school, which is an added advantage over last year's contest, which was not launched until some time in February.

Local dealers are already co-operating with the students who have entered the contest. In the near future they expect to put on concerts when the numbers included in all three lists will be played for the benefit of all contestants. In addition to this arrangements are now under way whereby literature dealing with the numbers on the list will be distributed.

Ian S. Seeds, president of the Robert L. Seeds Co., Columbia and Cheney dealer, has just returned from a motor trip to the East.

The firm, at 112 South High street, has been at this location but six weeks and in that short time a definite increase of phonograph sales has been made.

Word comes from the Wainwright Music Co., Victor dealer, Marietta, O., that again this firm is assisting in the management of the community concert series. Miss Lucrezia Bori, Victor artist, gave the first recital of the 1923-24 concert series on October 12 and scored a big success.

Legions of friends and acquaintances of Messrs. Fred, Jr., Simon, Robert and Jeffrey Lazarus are sympathizing with them in their bereavement on account of the recent death of their mother, Mrs. Fred Lazarus, Sr.

Live Webster City, Ia., Dealer Lets the World Know That He Expects a Busy Season by Displaying Large Edison Shipment

WEBSTER CITY, IA., November 7.—One of the live dealers of this State is F. C. Ruegnitz. Proof of this statement is contained in the photograph of Edison phonographs reproduced herewith. This represents one shipment of instruments, and piled in front of the store they almost blot out the warerooms. Mr. Ruegnitz believes in publicity, therefore he had a large sign painted announcing to the world at large that the pile of instruments represents only one shipment, and in order to give passersby a clear idea of just how the Edison appears two of the instruments were uncased and placed one on each side of the sign.

TIMELY SONORA ADVERTISING

Full-page Advertisements in Daily Newspapers Emphasize Prosperity of Talking Machine Industry and Growth of Sonora Business

The position of the Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., and its products in the talking machine trade are being emphasized for the benefit of the public in a most convincing way in attractive full-page advertisements being run in the daily newspapers of the country.

One of these advertisements appeared in the New York Times on November 11, and in a border showing the great variety of models offered in the Sonora there was set interesting explanatory text, the opening paragraph, for instance, reading: "The phonograph industry was never in a more prosperous condition. Phonographs are being purchased throughout the country in great numbers and the proportion of instruments of better grade was never higher. Dealers everywhere are clamoring for additional merchandise. Manufacturers of high-grade phonographs are already oversold. By increasing its production more than 30 per cent Sonora is striving to meet this demand." Then follows descriptive material relative to the construction, styles and prices of Sonora products.

FEATURES FEDERAL SET NO. 59

Attractive Advertising for New Federal Receiving Set—Has Several Important Features

The Federal Tel. & Tel. Co., manufacturer of Federal radio receiving sets, carried a very attractive half-page advertisement in the November 10 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, featuring the new Federal receiving set No. 59. The advertising showed an excellent photograph of the new set, and called attention to its various merits, among which are an unusual distance range and a high degree of selectivity which enables the user to hear distant stations through local broadcasting without interference. The advertisement also called attention to the fact that all of the parts in the new 59 are manufactured by the Federal Tel. & Tel. Co. and may be purchased separately.

DR. DE FOREST TO VISIT RADIO SHOW

Famous Inventor One of the Feature Speakers at Chicago—Will Talk Over Air From Chicago and Detroit—Guest of E. H. Jewett

CHICAGO, ILL., November 8.—One of the features of the Chicago Radio Show will be the visit of Dr. Lee DeForest, inventor of the famous radio products bearing his name. It was in this city some twenty years ago that Dr. DeForest conceived the idea of the Audion tube, which represents one of the most important developments in the radio industry and which has attained world-wide renown. On November 22 Dr. DeForest will visit Chicago, accompanied by E. H. Jewett, president of the DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co.; Chas. Gilbert, vice-president and treasurer; W. H. Priess, inventor of the Reflex set, and H. H. Roemer, sales manager of the company. Dr. DeForest is one of the feature speakers at the convention meetings and will also be the guest of honor at a dinner given by the DeForest distributing agents and retail representatives at the South Shore Country Club.

On Thursday evening Dr. DeForest will talk over the air from one of the Chicago broadcasting stations between 9 and 10:30 and, subsequently, will leave for Detroit as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Jewett. In all probability Dr. DeForest will talk from the Detroit News broadcasting station, WWJ, on Friday night, and his talk will be of interest to radio fans.

There will be a large DeForest celebration at the Radio Show in this city and H. H. Roemer, who is chairman of the reception committee, has prepared an interesting program for all visitors to the show.

K. R. PERKINS ON BRUNSWICK STAFF

Well-known Wholesale Traveler Joins Brunswick New York Staff—Popular in Trade

Kenneth R. Perkins, one of the most popular wholesale travelers in the metropolitan territory, has been appointed a representative on the New York staff of the Eastern phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. He is an addition to the Brunswick staff and his appointment means no change in the present personnel of the organization. Mr. Perkins was for five years a sales representative of the Sonora Phonograph Co. in the metropolitan district. During his first year's connection with that company he was in charge of the dealers' service department, and during the past two years he was associated with the Greater City Phonograph Co., Sonora jobber.

H. H. ROEMER VISITS NEW YORK

H. H. Roemer, sales manager of the DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co., was a visitor to New York this week, spending considerable time at the DeForest factories in Jersey City. Mr. Roemer was accompanied by C. E. Flynn, Western zone manager, with headquarters in Des Moines, Ia., who will probably spend a month in New York, doing special work in connection with the activities of the Eastern sales organization.

VICTOR CHRISTMAS PUBLICITY

Included in the great volume of special Christmas display material which the Victor Co. is preparing for dealers' use is a large hanger containing a special list of holiday records and a window strip in colors bearing the message: "Victrola—a Christmas Gift for Every Member of the Family." This publicity material is designed either for use in window displays or in warerooms and booths.

VICTOR CO. DENIES RECORD CUT

No Basis for Story in Theatrical Weekly That Prices of Victor Jazz Records Would Be Reduced After the First of the New Year

In its issue of November 10 the Billboard, a theatrical publication, carried a sensational story to the effect that "The Victor Talking Machine Co. has decided to make a substantial reduction in the price of its jazz records, effective January 1, 1924," and that the decision had been arrived at at a meeting of the board of directors of the company the week before.

When his attention was called to the story by The World Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Co., stated in substance: "The article has every appearance of being inspired and, so far as I am aware, there is nothing whatever to offer a basis for the published report."

SELF-SERVICE IDEA POPULAR

Helping Customers to Help Themselves Is Good Business—Universal Fixture Corp.'s New Record Rack Does This

The self-service idea in the talking machine wareroom is noticeably gaining ground. It has been found that the display of merchandise within reach of the customer has contributed decidedly to increased sales. Following this idea the Universal Fixture Corp., which is well known throughout the trade as the manufacturer of numerous display fixtures for the talking machine retailer, has placed a new fixture, consisting of steel wall pocket units providing for the display of records broadside, on the market. These units are provided in vertical series of four or seven and there is a channel at the top of each record pocket in which can be placed, in large readable type, the name of the record. A number of dealers who have purchased this fixture from the Universal Fixture Corp. have ordered enough units to cover the entire wall of one side of the store.

LANDAY BROS. TO OPEN NEW STORE

The eighth of the Landay Bros. chain of music shops, and the third in the retail shopping district of Manhattan, will be opened shortly in the Marbridge Building, Thirty-fourth street and Broadway, Landay Bros. having leased a store on the Broadway side of that building for a period of fifteen years.

Baily's, Inc., prominent music dealers of Spokane, Wash., recently purchased the Music Shop, 722 Riverside, from Ray A. Grombacher, who opened the store four years ago.

DALLAS

Aggressive Policies Result in Business—Plan Holiday Drives—Convention Plans—Month's News

DALLAS, TEX., November 7.—There is a general feeling of optimism throughout the Southwestern trade territory. This is based on the steadily increasing business of the past month and indications of an excellent holiday business season. It must be admitted, however, that the good business is in a large measure the result of the activities of the live dealers in this territory. In this city, especially, the retail trade has been developing intensive campaigns which have been responsible for a good demand for both machines and records and sales are growing. Holiday plans are already under way by many merchants, including talking machine dealers.

The Edison is one of the instruments which stands at the pinnacle of popularity in this section. The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with headquarters in this city, is busy supplying the demands of its dealers, an indication that the Edison retail trade is in a prosperous condition. Since the return of A. H. Curry, head of this concern, from the Edison Laboratories, Orange, N. J., things have been humming in the local organization. The ability of Mr. Curry in surrounding himself with men of the keenest executive ability and the spirit of co-operation which exists in this distributing house are manifest by the high type of service accorded dealers and the efficiency with which the business is conducted.

Plans are being made for the annual meeting of the Texas Music Merchants' Association, to be held in Galveston on May 22. According to a recent announcement a two-day session will be held in the Hotel Galvez on that date, and it is expected that about 300 music merchants from this State will attend the meeting. Arrangements are being made for addresses by prominent trade members, including several nationally known speakers from New York and Chicago. After the convention many of the music merchants will go by boat to New York, where the national convention will be held ten days later.

larly true at the State Fair of Texas, held in this city, when the new models were exhibited by the Columbia Co.'s local branch. A complete line of the Columbia New Process records was also on display and daily demonstrations at the company's booth drew the crowds, who manifested considerable interest in the improvements embodied in the new models.

The Bush & Gerts Piano Co. of Texas, of this city, staged a most successful exhibit in the building at the State Fair. Jack Roberts, singer, drew large crowds to the booth. He is in charge of the sheet music department and he sang popular songs during the afternoons and evenings. Miss Irene Webber furnished the classical music for the sheet music division of the exhibit. Miss Lola Clark accompanied both singers.

The phonograph division of the exhibit was under the direction of C. D. Mills, with his assistants. Paul E. Burling was in charge of the piano department.

F. F. Dawson, sales manager of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., in a letter to the Edison trade in the territory which it serves, is urging dealers to plan intensive record sales campaigns in order to make the most of pre-holiday trade opportunities. The necessity of early ordering of both machines and records is also pointed out as the means for insuring timely deliveries and avoiding shortage when a representative stock will be most needed.

RIGHT HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE!

Monongah, W. Va., October 29, 1923.
Editor, The Talking Machine World,
New York

My Dear Sir:—The much-used and abused phrase, "business is slow," is not caused by sluggish bowels and overwork. No sir. The main and outstanding cause is sluggishness in the space where brains are supposed to dominate. And while they, no doubt, are there, they fail to hit on all cylinders. Such being the common complaint among a great many dealers in talking machines and records, I would suggest a remedy that is a sure and everlasting cure for these "sluggards"; that remedy is found on page 4 of the October issue of the talking machine dealers' only and best every-day friend, i. e., The Talking Machine World, under the caption of "Is the Mail Order House Your Competitor?"

Every solitary word in this article is the plain truth with the spaces between found full of truth also. It would be a miracle, indeed, could one go through a day without hearing the worn-out phrase, "Hell, but this is a dull time. Everything's on the bum. The fools (citizens) send out and patronize the darned mail order houses in preference to our own home industry, etc."

I have only one comment to make regarding such chronic kickers, and that is—it is good for you. The home talent or home folks used to know you sold machines and records, but you were so cocksure of their future patronage that you just came to the conclusion that you would cut expenses some and quit advertising in the home papers. Results: the home folks not seeing your business in the papers any more, and daily receiving mail order requests for their patronage, the consequences were, and are, that these out-of-town houses who do not help your town in the tax question, get all the home trade and consequently you get a second-grade article and pay more than a first-grade price for same. Bear in mind, words are a game that can be made to win and at the same time not have a hint of the truth in same. By sending off to these town wreckers, you individually pay all expenses and a good margin of profit besides and eventually you find out that you got soaked, but the nice word-juggling advertisements came to you by mail until you got it into your head that it was the only place where you could buy a talker or records, and all on account of the home dealer being too stingy to invest a few dollars in the home papers.

It's a plain case of saving a few cents and losing a great many dollars. I can point, for instance, to the county papers here at home where everything is quiet and peaceful, and, holy-jumping-bees-wax, look, here it says that so-and-so is going to put on sale at a certain date such and such a brand of goods. Consequently on that date the cars are overcrowded all day and every darn store in the town gets a good share from the suckers that go to get bargains (mind you, bargains). But the satisfied "bargainer" is the advertiser; he sells and sells and you are wondering what hit you.

Such being the case, why not wake up and put this great big giant of a business-getter, advertising, on your payroll and keep him there. Perhaps he would not make a fortune for you in the twinkling of an eye, but as the sun rises and sets daily, just so sure will he convince you that he is on the job, and prove it daily to you by great strides in your business.

I can prove to anyone interested that advertising of the proper sort with nothing but the naked truth all through it will be a sure and a permanent silent business partner for you. Spasmodic advertising is a poor, useless and costly investment. When it appears the public takes it for granted that you have a good thing; when it ceases, then the public knows you are out of the running or else the goods you are carrying are useless and not worth letting the public know about.

There are to-day plenty of stores that advertise almost daily and it gets soaked into one's brain so that if we saw the paper and it did not contain an announcement of so-and-so we would get a nervous shock and wonder what the trouble was. Go into any store of respectable size and you cannot help noticing that certain parts of this store have a large crowd in it, while the remaining parts are almost vacant. The cause is the "blessed" advertisements, for these stores can stick in an advertisement to-day that to-morrow they will have on sale dish rags, cheesecloth, Summer socks (for men) in the Winter time; in fact, any tomfoolery, and the consequences are that on the date advertised they sell out their stocks of "deads" entirely and get credit for it besides. Advertising does it, though.

Individually, I am here to truthfully say that I have been acquainted with the music lovers of this town for a long time and would have staked my last dollar that nothing but the highest grade of a famous make of record would ever enter their homes, but I was badly and sorrowfully surprised when I saw package after package of the lowest grade of records come into these "high-grade" music lovers' homes.

Investigation of this happening cracked me a blow square between the eyes when I was truthfully informed that these records were advertised in such and such an out-of-town paper and these parties thought that no local store handled them because they did not see them advertised. A shame it is that the dealer cannot change places with the customer just for a week or two and see from the outside what the insider should see and practice.

A good machine and a good record made by the best advertised factory in the United States is a valuable thing to own when we take into consideration that we are getting what the best artists in the world can give us. They are cheap at any price and make a quick turnover for the dealer who has got the scales washed off his eyes. But there are dealers who have their racks and shelves stocked full of these high-grade goods and do not make much noise either, simply because the public does not know they have them. So please read over (twice won't hurt) this mail order house article and act honestly with yourself. Give the home town a chance to buy at home and increase your sales and thus find out what a dose of continuous advertising will do for both your stock and your pocketbook.

SONORA PORTABLE FOR FIREMEN

EUREKA, CAL., November 7.—James E. Mathews, local Sonora dealer, recently had a fire in his store. Through fast work the Eureka volunteer fire department rushed his entire stock out into the street, taking only eighteen minutes to transport forty-two phonographs and thirteen pianos to safety, thus saving Mr. Mathews from a considerable loss.

To show his gratitude he presented a Sonora portable to the members of the fire department, together with a supply of records. The little instrument has been busy day and night.

Editor, Service Department,
Talking Machine World, New York.

I want to assemble a phonograph that can be plainly heard in a hall holding about 500 and trust you will pardon me for making the following inquiries, viz.:

- A. Wouldn't a long horn be best?
- B. What should a thirty-inch horn measure at large end?
- C. Would a long tone arm be best? How long?
- D. Who makes the most powerful reproducer? What model?
- E. Do you consider the concealed horn type best for my purpose? Who makes this type?
- F. Are motors furnished with winding key and turntable as part of their standard equipment?

G. Who makes fittings, tone arms and tone arm brackets for old-style horn machines?

Thanking you sincerely in anticipation for your kindness in furnishing me with the information, yours faithfully, (Signed) S. V. C. Shortis.

Answer: The volume required in a machine for demonstration to an audience of 500 people would depend upon whether the audience was assembled to listen to the machine or for the purpose of dancing. When a large number of people are dancing there is, of course, a greater number of attendant noises which tend to drown out even the music of a small orchestra.

The Victor Auxetophone, operated with compressed air forced through the sound box, is about the only machine I know of which would adequately answer the purpose.

To answer your several questions:

- A. The horn type would, without doubt, be the best.
- B. The horn can measure any diameter desired. The basic idea in horn construction is that the longer and more gradual the taper the more possibility there is in throwing the sound waves a further distance.
- C. Length of tone arm can be eight and one-half to eleven and one-half inches. Longer than this is not necessary.
- D. The Columbia No. 6 sound box is about the loudest all-around-purpose box made. There are also many other similar makes which have the same diameter diaphragm (2 3/16 inches), and the pivoted needle bar, which, if carefully assembled, give about the same results.
- E. See answer to question A.
- F. Motors are always furnished complete with turntable, winding key, brake, etc.

G. General Phonograph Corp. (Heineman) is about the only firm handling the old-style horn type tone arms and brackets. These parts are obtainable from their jobbers in various cities. The Victor Co. makes a horn type arm, also the Columbia Co. These parts, I don't doubt, could also be obtained through their jobbers and dealers.

DOING EXCELLENT WORK FOR MUSIC

Managers of Philpitt Stores in Tampa and Orlando, Fla., Conduct Special Concerts and Attract Wide and Enthusiastic Attention

The activities of S. Ernest Philpitt, well-known music merchant of Florida, in promoting elaborate musical affairs in Miami, where his headquarters are located, and bringing artists of wide reputation to that city, have evidently had their effect on the managers in charge of Mr. Philpitt's other stores in Florida, judging from results during the past few weeks.

In Tampa, for instance, Senor Giovanni Diaz, a well-known operatic tenor, was featured in recital under the auspices of C. R. Putnam, manager of the Tampa store of S. Philpitt & Son. Supporting Senor Diaz were Mrs. Jessie S. Pamplin, contralto and accompanist, and Gray Terry, pianist. An elaborate program of operatic numbers was rendered for the benefit of a large and enthusiastic audience. The Steinway was the official piano.

Particularly noteworthy was the accomplishment of Ross V. Steele, manager of the Philpitt store in Orlando, Fla., who organized and developed an excellent symphony orchestra made up of local musicians within a short period of seven months and recently gave his first concert. The performance of the orchestra aroused great enthusiasm and it is now firmly established as a definite factor in Orlando's musical life.

NEW BENTON HARBOR GRINNELL STORE

BENTON HARBOR, MICH., November 9.—A permanent location for the branch piano store of Grinnell Bros., of Detroit, has just been secured at 179 Pipestone street. This concern has been compelled to move several times since opening in Benton Harbor, on account of short-time leases. The interior of the store at the new location has just been decorated and improved throughout.

CHANGE IN SPRINKLE CO. MANAGERS

RICHMOND, VA., November 8.—P. E. Lotz, formerly manager of the Sprinkle Piano Co. store in Winston-Salem, N. C., has taken charge of that company's store in that city, succeeding C. H. Nokes, who has entered another field of business. E. R. Woolridge, formerly assistant manager of the Winston-Salem store, has now been placed in full charge as successor to Mr. Lotz.

STAGES SONORA WEEK IN MILWAUKEE

Sonora Dealers Combine in Staging Unusual Window Displays—Yahr & Lange Exhibit at Food, Household and Electrical Exposition

MILWAUKEE, Wis., November 5.—By far the largest and admittedly the most picturesque exhibit at the recent Fifth Annual Food, Household and Electrical Exposition in the Audi-

Seidel Bros.' Striking Display in Milwaukee was the showing made by the Yahr & Lange musical merchandise division, exclusive distributor of the Sonora in Wisconsin and Upper and Lower Michigan, with the co-operation of its eighteen dealers in the city of Milwaukee. The week of the exposi-

Kleinert Music Shop Window consin and Upper and Lower Michigan, with the co-operation of its eighteen dealers in the city of Milwaukee. The week of the exposition also was observed by Yahr & Lange as "Sonora Week" in Milwaukee, every retail representative in the city having made a special

Display of the West Side Music House window display and interior trim, linking up the observance with the community exhibit at the Auditorium. The displays reproduced here-with give a general idea of the lengths to which Window of Wm. A. Kaun Store the dealers went in tying up with artistically arranged window displays.

The exposition display of Yahr & Lange occupied a space 130 feet long, the largest area used by any one exhibitor. Looming up in the middle of the gorgeous display was a Bardini model of the 'Sonora, which sells for $3,000. This was the most expensive talking machine on exhibition. Every other type of the Sonora, including the new Argyle model, was shown.

Directly in charge of the exhibit was Irving S. Leon, who, since August 1, has been sales manager of the Yahr & Lange music division, and whose acquisition was followed by the awarding of the exclusive wholesale Sonora franchise in the lucrative Lower Michigan territory to the Yahr-Lange organization. He was assisted by Walter Pugh, city representative in Milwaukee, and George Campbell, field representative in Wisconsin. Each Sonora dealer in this city was privileged to have two salesmen on the floor of the exhibit throughout the week of the exposition. In addition to seventeen actual sales closed on the floor, Manager Leon reports that 597 live prospects were secured out of 115,000 people who were present.

A special entertainment program was given for the exposition on one evening of the week by Yahr & Lange. Miss Marian Yahr, daughter of Fred E. Yahr, president of the company, presented several artistic dance numbers. Mrs. Eileen Shepherd Cavanagh, of Kenosha, Wis., a noted soprano, accompanied by Margaret Harwig, of Kenosha, was another feature.

WILSHIRE MUSIC CO. OPENS

LOS ANGELES, CAL., November 5.—The Wilshire Music Co., Walter C. Lilley, proprietor, recently opened an attractive store at 125 South Western avenue, this city. The booths are in the front of the shop, while in the rear is a large room for display purposes. No expense has been spared in the decorations. Oriental rugs, fine furniture and works of art combine in making a beautiful setting for the display of the instruments.

ASHER OPENS IN MINEOLA, N. Y.

MINEOLA, L. I., November 6.—An up-to-date music shop, handling Brunswick phonographs, records, pianos and sheet music, will be opened on Second and Main streets by Harry Asher, Mr. Asher came to Mineola four or five years ago and has engaged in a successful retail drug business here since that time.

MAKES MANY SALES BY CANVASSING

P. L. Cavanaro, Edison Dealer, Covers Wide Territory and Sells Many Instruments by Canvassing and Home Demonstrations.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., November 7.—The value of canvassing as a means of sales is being demonstrated every day by P. L. Cavanaro, live Edison dealer. This live retailer covers a large territory surrounding the town in which his stock is located, and he has succeeded in placing many Edisons in the homes of Long Island residents through the canvassing route. The photograph reproduced herewith shows an Edison being placed in a prospective customer's home. This particular instrument was sold in the record time of fifteen minutes to a person residing twenty miles from the store, showing that when canvassing is coupled with a thorough knowledge of the line and progressive sales methods it is doubly productive of business. Mr. Cavanaro is seen standing to the right of the instrument, which is about to be delivered.

CLOSING EXCELLENT BUSINESS

Player-Tone T. M. Co. Reports Active Year—Consoles and Uprights in Demand—Factory Working to Capacity to Fill Orders

PITTSBURGH, PA., November 8.—I. Goldsmith, president of the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co., of this city, returned to Pittsburgh recently after spending ten days at the Jamestown furniture market. Referring to this show and to conditions generally, Mr. Goldsmith stated: "This has been one of the most successful seasons we ever had, and, in fact, we left the market a little earlier than usual in order to speed up our factory to take care of the tremendous demand for our new consoles, as well as our uprights. If sales continue this way we will run ahead of all previous years, and, in fact, we are certain there will be a shortage of products before the year is out.

"It is quite probable that we will be obliged to disappoint some of our most valued dealers, but this cannot be avoided, as we did everything possible to convince our trade that it will be necessary to anticipate requirements for this year's activities. During the coming year we are planning to increase our factory capacity by at least 50 per cent, as we have every confidence in the future of the talking machine industry.

"While we are enjoying a splendid business in the East, we are astounded at the number of inquiries received from Far Western and Southern points and incidentally there is an active demand for uprights. Of course, the console business is far beyond previous years and the reports received from our dealers indicate that they are moving the merchandise speedily and profitably."

E. H. Uhl has purchased the interests of the late Frank J. Hart in the Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles. Mr. Uhl is widely known in the industry.

CHECKING PARCEL POST PACKAGES

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 6.—Business men throughout the country are urged by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General to keep an accurate record of all insured and C. O. D. parcels received by them or originally mailed by them and returned as undeliverable. Such a record, it is pointed out, would not only be a protection to the patron, but would also assist the post office in settling claims and in ascertaining the reason for return without delivery of an undue number of parcels. A number of cases have arisen where the number of parcels returned as undeliverable was of too high a proportion, but the department is unable to ascertain the reason for such non-delivery in cases where an accurate record is not kept. The post offices throughout the country have been instructed to keep as complete a record as possible and to secure the co-operation of patrons who also should keep a record, thereby permitting the service and the patron to get together for the determination of causes of failure to make deliveries.

MELODY SHOP INCORPORATED

BLUEFIELD, W. VA., November 6.—Changes in the organization of the Melody Shop have been effected recently and papers of incorporation have been filed. The new company will open an exclusive music shop here about December 1 in the Bradmann Building, opposite the post office. A. A. Treadway will be in active charge of the store.

MAX M. TAYLOR NOW IN CHARGE

KELSO, WASH., November 5.—Max M. Taylor, of Longview, has just arrived here to take charge of the Cowlitz Music Store, which has just opened for business at the corner of Third and Allen streets. The store will handle, in addition to a line of pianos, a selection of sheet music and small goods. The Brunswick line of phonographs and records will be handled exclusively. Before coming to Kelso, Mr. Taylor was in Dalles, Ore., where for five years he was manager of a music house and made a striking success.

GOLDBERG MANAGER OF COLLINS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., November 5.—Samuel R. Goldberg has just been appointed general manager of the Collins Piano Co., 155 Baronne street. For the past two years Mr. Goldberg has been connected with the Harry B. Loeb Piano Co. as secretary and treasurer. He has had many years experience in the music business, working for a considerable period for the Philip Werlein Co. as salesman.

SONORA ART POSTERS POPULAR

The art posters issued this month by the Sonora Phonograph Co. featured the William and Mary Deluxe model and the new Argyle.

INCREASED ACTIVITY NOTED THROUGHOUT TRADE AS BUSIEST SEASON OF THE YEAR APPROACHES

Reduction of Record Prices Has Favorable Influence on Buying—"His Master's Voice" Co.'s Annual Report—Association Advocates Standard Gramophone Parts—Other Important News

LONDON, ENGLAND, November 3.—That more or less indefinable period, so called "the season," is now with us in very truth. In the aggregate, all sections of the trade are busy, although here and there things seem to be in a state of flux, due, for the most part, to local influences of a nature adverse to good business. From a general viewpoint it is a sound reflection that although industries may rise and fall the gramophone and record trade carries on ever in goodly measure all the time.

The element of competition among manufacturers and wholesalers became very keen last year; it is more than ever keen this season, as witness the wholesale reductions in the prices of records to which full reference is made elsewhere in this section. If anything were needed as a stimulus to the development of trade, these record price reductions, together with an increase in the number of cheaper cabinet and table grand instruments, are generally regarded as in the nature of a last straw to break the back of any industrial apathy.

Increased production is the order of the day, not only to satisfy the home market, but to meet the foreign demand. The latter aspect of trade is a good sign of the times. It is very necessary that the mother country should look after her colonies and the increasing facilities afforded for exploration and development of these markets are being taken full advantage of by live British gramophone houses.

"His Master's Voice" Co.'s Annual Report

The report of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., for the year ended June 30 last is just to hand and discloses an extremely satisfactory state of affairs. The trading profits were more than double those for the previous twelve months, having amounted to £283,769, as compared with £140,307, and exceeded those of all previous years. The directors also state that sales since July 1 last show a good advance over the corresponding period of last year. Despite this fact, however, no alteration is being made in the dividend, 15 per cent again being the rate; but in this connection it has to be remembered that the 850,000 "B" ordinary shares, on which 8s per share has been paid, making £340,000, rank for dividend. These "B" shares were issued in 1920 to the Victor Talking Machine Co., when it was agreed that for the financial years ended June, 1921, 1922 and 1923, the ordinary shares should be entitled to a preferential 15 per cent dividend, and that after a like dividend had been paid on the "B" shares, both classes should rank together. No dividend was paid on the "B" shares for 1920-21 or 1921-22, but now the full 15 per cent is to be distributed, and from now on the distinction between the two shares disappears. The full distribution of the dividend this year will amount to £163,500, as compared with £112,500. There remains £126,237 to be carried forward, as against £44,054 brought in, so that a larger dividend could have been paid if desirable. The general finance sheets show a strong position, and the report states that the net tangible assets, irrespective of goodwill, trade marks, patents, etc., and after deduction of liabilities and debenture stock, amount to £1,680,336.

With regard to the Continental markets the directors state that "the abnormal conditions on the Continent reported last year, have intensified to the company's disadvantage, and, notwithstanding the largely increased business, trading continues to be unprofitable."

The Columbia Position in Great Britain

Coming on top of the tremendous advertising campaign commenced with issue of the new instruments and records, reported last month, and the subsequent tremendous activities of the British Columbia Graphophone Co., the news that the Federal court had appointed receivers for the American company occasioned more comment in trade and public circles here than otherwise would be the case.

An immediate press interview with Louis Sterling, the managing director of the British company, brought forth statements that cleared the air. Mr. Sterling explained that the British company has absolutely no financial connection with the American. "For two years," he said, "the American company has been on the point of reorganization, and apparently the message

The tremendous reception accorded BANDMASTERS is the greatest proof of their merit. The tone of BANDMASTERS—The elegant cabinet work—The high quality fitments—all these at once please the most fastidious visitor to your store, and the extremely low price makes it quite unnecessary to sell on credit when your stock is comprised of BANDMASTERS.

The World's largest individual order for gramophones was taken by Bandmasters in open competition with English and German manufacturers. There is a strong reason for it. We can furnish that reason. Overseas trade especially catered for. BANDMASTERS appeal to the keen-eyed business man who knows his business.

from New York indicates that the first step has been taken. In fact, only last Saturday (October 13) I received a letter stating that an application for a receivership was being made. We have no connection whatever with that company. All the goods we sell are manufactured in Great Britain. We own the trade mark 'Columbia' for the whole of Europe and the British colonies, and, therefore, we operate under the same name, but there is no financial connection."

Reductions in Price of Records

In contrast to the last occasion when the record companies announced reductions, this month has witnessed substantial reductions generally without overloud preliminary blasts from the advertising trumpets. As I foreshadowed in my October report, there had been a feeling in the air for some time regarding possible reductions, and with the beginning of this month came the first announcement from "His Master's Voice" Co., whose slogan is "Back to Pre-War Prices." From October 1 prices of the double-sided Black Label records are reduced from 7s 6d to 6s 6d for the twelve-inch and from 5s 6d to 4s 6d for the ten-inch; Plum Label, from 6s to 4s 6d for the twelve-inch and 4s to 3s for the ten-inch. No change is announced in the "Celebrity" records, which, as the company states, are already below pre-war prices.

Simultaneously with "His Master's Voice," the British Zonophone Co. announced reductions in the price of "Zonophone" records as follows: ten-inch double-sided from 3s to 2s 6d; twelve-inch double-sided from 5s to 4s.

The Columbia Co. also announced from October 1 a reduction in the Dark Blue Label of from 3s 6d to 3s for ten-inch and from 5s 6d to 4s 6d for twelve-inch. The Light Blue Label double-sided series remain at 5s for ten-inch and 7s 6d for twelve-inch, and the "Regal" records also remain at 2s 6d for ten-inch double-sided and 4s for twelve-inch double-sided.

The Edison Bell "Violet Face" records are down. Violet Label double-sided from 3s 6d to 3s for the ten-inch and from 5s 6d to 4s 6d for the twelve-inch. A new (Green) label is announced at 3s 6d for the ten-inch and 5s 6d for the twelve-inch.

Aeolian "Vocalion" records from October 1 are as follows: Blue Label twelve-inch from 7s 6d to 6s 6d; ten-inch from 5s 6d to 4s 6d; Black Label twelve-inch from 6s to 4s 6d; ten-inch from 4s to 3s. Brown Label ten-inch from 3s 6d to 3s; which brings into the cheapest series a number of vocal and instrumental selections formerly only available in the dearer classes.

From October 11 the Pathé Frères Pathéphone, Ltd., "Pathé" series dropped as follows: Size ten-inch, Black, from 3s to 2s 6d; Red, from 4s to 3s. Size twelve-inch, Black, from 4s 6d to 3s 6d; Red, from 6s to 4s 6d; Buff, from 7s 6d to 6s; Blue, from 10s to 7s 6d; White, from 12s 6d to 8s 6d. The "Actuelle" series range: Size ten-inch, Pink, from 3s to 2s 6d; Ivory, from 4s to 3s; Green, from 5s to 4s. Size twelve-inch, Pink, from 4s 6d to 3s 6d; Green, from 7s 6d to 6s.

In order that the change may bear as lightly as possible on everybody concerned, most of the companies are allowing rebates to dealers on their net purchases from June 1 to September 30. The exception is the Pathé Frères Pathéphone, Ltd., which asks for a return of all stocks held, when, if an equivalent covering order is placed, rebates will be allowed.

Advocate Standard Gramophone Parts

A potent factor in determining gramophone trade conditions on this side is the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers. It is affiliated with the Federation of British Music Industries and to that body contributes a higher ratio of subscriptions than any other trade association. A strong committee meets at regular intervals to discuss and consider plans for the general betterment of the industry. Active measures are now in hand to (1) obtain the definite agreement of all gramophone manufacturers against trading with co-operative societies (who by means of share-profit or dividend tickets are thereby able to offer the public certain price advantages to the detriment of other dealers' trading) unless this method in regard to gramophone goods is discontinued, and (2) to secure, if possible, a general standardization of fittings—in particular, tone arms and sound boxes. Gramophones are designed to fit these parts, whereas a reversal of the order would permit a more general conformity to recognized standard British and Continental fittings in regard to interchangeability of parts and cases.

This is a matter worthy of close study. Its application would tend to simplify costs and speed up production in manufacture of the parts and assembling of the instruments.

A British Gramophone for Canada

William Noon, director of the Duophone Co., this city, sailed October 24 on a visit to Toronto, Canada. The object of his visit is to complete negotiations for the formation of a new Canadian concern—Duophone (Canada), Ltd., under the chairmanship of the Right Honorable, the Earl of Hardwicke, and backed by an influential financial group in Toronto. In due course the new company will announce its plans and trading policy. It starts with every prospect of success from the viewpoint of finance, personnel and product. Mr. Noon embarked upon his trip accompanied by good wishes from many trade friends for the success of the new venture, and I believe that even the Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, now in London, found time to convey a message of goodwill. It is understood that Mr. Noon may shortly be opening up negotiations for the establishment of a company in the United States of America to exploit the Duophone invention.

New Official Wireless Regulations

The Broadcasting Committee appointed on April 24, 1923, by Sir Wm. Joynson-Hicks, then Postmaster-General, issued its report at the beginning of October, and arising out of the report new regulations as below have been issued by the present Postmaster-General:

Home constructors of wireless apparatus not in possession of an experimenter's license can obtain authority to use the apparatus at an annual fee of 15s, but must not knowingly use parts manufactured out of Great Britain.

The license for the use of a B. B. C. set remains at 10s.

Bona-fide experimenters can still obtain license for 10s, but must sign a declaration to the effect that they will not use the broadcast programs except for experimental purposes.

Licenses to cover all requirements are now obtainable, precluding the necessity of any owner of a receiving set being outside the law.

The license fee provides a larger contribution to the B. B. C.

B. B. C. broadcasting sets will cost less than formerly because the royalty payable to the B. B. C. by manufacturers will be reduced by 50 per cent, and even more in the case of crystal sets.

Manufacturers are no longer required to pay a deposit of £50 on becoming members of the B. B. C.

Dealers also, under certain conditions, can now become members of the B. B. C.

The chief alteration is the reduction in the royalties payable by the members to the B. B. C. and as set out in the table below:

	Amounts payable
	Before Sept. 30	After Sept. 30

Gramophone dealers selling wireless apparatus report from all localities that while the boom of last Autumn is not equaled, a tremendous stimulus to trade has resulted from the more or less stabilized position since the issue of the report and the Postmaster-General's new regulations.

An All-British Wireless Exhibition and Convention will commence at the White City, Shepherd's Bush, on November 8 and remain open until November 21.

Annual Meeting of Gramophone Dealers

The Gramophone Dealers' Association held its annual meeting recently, Ernest Marshall, president, taking the chair. A small but representative gathering of dealers attended. Sydney E. Moon, a well-known Plymouth dealer, was elected president for the ensuing year, and Gerald C. Forty, of Dale & Forty, Ltd. (London and Provinces), was made vice-president. L. Ingram was appointed secretary in place of Robert R. Brown, who tendered his resignation at the last committee meeting.

The main item on the agenda was the scheme for the exchange of surplus unsalable records, particulars of which I gave in our last issue. After a keen debate the following resolution embodying the Association's proposals was formulated and unanimously adopted: "That dealers be entitled to return up to 10 per cent of their purchases and to receive in return a cash credit for two-thirds of the value of same. Exchanges to take place twice yearly at times to be fixed by the manufacturer." Special propaganda is being adopted by the Association to insure that every dealer will co-operate in urging the acceptance of this offer by the manufacturers.

There are reasonable prospects of this very vexed question being soon settled, the manufacturers being as desirous as the dealers to secure a permanent recognized scheme. The differences outstanding between the manufacturers' and the dealers' associations are now thought to be not nearly so irreconcilable as they were six months ago.

FAMOUS ENGLISH FIRM NOW BRUNSWICK RECORD FACTOR

Chappell & Co., Ltd., Great Britain's Oldest Music House, Becomes Distributor of the Brunswick Record Library for England—A Pioneer in the Development of Music in England

LONDON, ENGLAND, November 5.—One of the most important developments in the phonograph trade here is the announcement that Chappell & Co., Ltd., 50 Bond street, will hereafter handle the full Brunswick record library, not only in London, but throughout England. This representation of the Brunswick product is a highly important one, for in this country the names of both Chappell and music are practically synonymous.

The House of Chappell is Great Britain's oldest music house, having celebrated its one hundredth anniversary as far back as 1911, giving it a continuous existence of 112 years. It is not only pre-eminent among British music dealers, but it is also probably our largest music publisher, having been the original publisher of many of the leading composers of the past century, including such names as Mendelssohn, D'Albert, Balfe, Gounod, Gilbert and Sullivan, all of whose famous Savoy operettas it publishes, and many others as well. It has also maintained a long connection with our best known producer of light opera, George Edwards having published many of the scores of his widely known productions at both the Gaiety and Daly's Theatre.

The House of Chappell was a pioneer in bringing recognition to England's composers, in 1840 giving the world the first collection of genuine English songs and ballads, thus refuting the claims of a contemporary writer to the effect that England possessed no national school of music. In 1813 it was a Chappell who was responsible for the founding of the first Philharmonic Society in London. In 1822 the firm received its first appointment as Purveyors to the Crown, being made music sellers to George IV at that time.

The house is probably best known for its work in founding the famous London institution of "pop" concerts, which took place in the early fifties. It financed the building of St. James' Hall at a cost of nearly £80,000, to give the London public music at low prices. Some of the famous artists who appeared at these concerts with the seats at from one to five shillings were Mme. Schumann, Mme. Carreno, Rubinstein, von Bulow, Liszt, Saint-Saens, Joachim, Piatti, Wieniawski, Vieuxtemps, Ysaye, de Pachmann, Paderewski and many others. For more than forty years these concerts were held weekly on Saturdays and Mondays and it is probably due to them that we owe the introduction of chamber music here.

The Chappell house is also one of the leading British piano manufacturers, as well as being the retail house that probably does the largest business in musical instruments of all kinds.

It will thus be seen that Chappell & Co., Ltd., is a firm of splendid traditions worthily maintained and that Brunswick records should be chosen by this firm is a tribute, indeed, to their excellence.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 8.—Phonograph. Benjamin H. Dietz and Albert E. Hansen, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,463,311.

This invention relates to improvements in phonographs, the object being to provide a novel and improved phonograph having a casing which is a reproduction in miniature of a piano and which simulates a piano as to all its features and parts visible from the outside, said parts being combined and correlated in such manner that all of the functions and adjustments of the device as a phonograph are performed and made possible.

section on an enlarged scale through the phonograph in a plane indicated by the line 3—3 of Fig. 2; Fig. 4 is another vertical detail section through the phonograph in a plane indicated by the line 4—4 of Fig. 2; Fig. 5 is a detail perspective view of a fragment of a dummy keyboard embodied in the case of the phonograph.

Automatic Stop Record. James W. Whalen, Richmond, Ind. Patent No. 1,463,235.

The object of the present invention, broadly speaking, is to provide improvements in phonograph records or discs by which each record-disc will be provided with self-contained means whereby immediately upon the completion of the reproduction of the recorded matter the phonograph mechanism will automatically stop, said means being simple in character, effective in practice, requiring no thought on the part of the attendant for its installation, attention or control; the same being practically inconspicuous in appearance, will not become inoperative by usage and the production and installation cost of which will be practically nil.

The preferred means for carrying out the principles of the invention in a practical manner are shown in the accompanying drawings, in which Figure 1 is a plan view of one side of a record disc, the same being taken on a reduced scale from actual size, and showing the invention in connection therewith; Fig. 2 is a cross section of a portion of a record disc and of the needle operative therewith, the same being taken on a greatly enlarged scale from actual size and showing the invention; Fig. 3 shows a portion of a record disc and a portion of a needle, and showing the invention, all on a scale still further enlarged from that of Fig. 2. And Fig. 4 is similar to Fig. 2, but showing a slight modification thereover.

The present invention relates to new and useful improvements in brushes for talking machines and it pertains more particularly to a single brush therefor such as disclosed in prior application for patent filed February 1, 1921, and allowed October 12, 1921.

It is one of the objects of the present invention to provide a brush capable of attachment to the sound box of talking machines in such a manner that the brush will travel in the path of the stylus of said sound box and remove foreign material therefrom.

It is a further object of the invention to construct a frame for supporting the brush of material which has low qualities for sound transmission.

It is a further object of the invention to so construct the frame for holding the brush that the latter will be resiliently carried relatively to the sound box upon which it is mounted.

It is a further object of the invention to so construct the frame that the brush will be carried by a resilient arm projecting therefrom.

It is a still further object of the invention to so construct the frame that the same is yieldingly mounted upon the sound box to which it is attached.

With the above and other objects in view, reference is had to the accompanying drawings, in which—

detail sectional view showing the specific manner in which the brush is attached to the sound box, and Fig. 3 is a perspective view of a modified form of brush.

Record Lifter for Talking Machines. Mabel Blackman, New York, assignor of one-half to Lillian K. Hosier and one-half to Estelle McKee, both of New York. Patent No. 1,464,023.

This invention relates to phonograph attachments and particularly to such a device employed for the purpose of assisting in removing the record discs from the turntable.

A particular object is to provide a device of the character described which can be manufactured at low cost, can be conveniently attached to the turntable of a phonograph and will not be conspicuous.

attachment in conjunction therewith. Fig. 2 is an enlarged sectional view of a part of the turntable showing more clearly the record-lifting attachment; Fig. 3 is a top plan view of the device, the top of the turntable being removed to expose the downwardly extending flange thereon; Fig. 4 is a view of the device as seen in Fig. 3, looking from the center of the turntable; Fig. 5 is a view of a modification of the device.

This invention relates to reproducing devices or sound boxes for disc sound records, and one of the objects of the invention is to provide a sound box capable of use on all machines and with the two kinds of records now in general use.

It is understood that with the commercial types of machines now in general use it is necessary to mount the sound box with its diaphragm extending in an upright plane, either disposed tangent to the curvature of the grooves on the record disc or disposed across the line of the grooves or in another type of machine with the diaphragm disposed in a substantially horizontal plane, that is parallel to the plane of the record disc.

It is also known that there are in general use two types of record discs. One the hill and dale type, which consists of a series of vertical indentations or impressions formed on the face of the disc, which when traveling against the sound box stylus or needle produce vibration of the stylus in a vertical plane or in the plane of the vertical axis of the stylus or needle and the horizontal or laterally cut grooves, which consists of a series of horizontal indentations or impressions formed on the face of the disc, which when traveling against the sound box stylus or needle produce vibration of the stylus in a direction parallel to the surface of the sound record disc.

This invention contemplates the providing of a single sound box, which may be mounted in certain positions, depending upon the character of the machine to which it is attached and to provide this sound box with a plurality of styluses or needles, so arranged that the proper playing instrument may be brought into operative engagement with the records to most effectively play the particular record on the machine equipped with this form of sound box.

It is a further object of the invention to provide an attachment designed to take the place of the usual binding screw with one form of sound box now known and to provide this attachment with a plurality of styluses arranged to be brought into playing position to play a disc different from the type of discs used usually on a machine designed to play discs of one particular character.

Referring to the accompanying drawings: Figure 1 is a view in elevation of a preferred embodiment of the invention; Fig. 2 is a side view of the device shown in Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is an enlarged view in side elevation of the sound box casing and showing the lower portion thereof in vertical section, taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1; Figs. 4 and 5 are transverse sectional views of details taken on the lines 4—4 and 5—5 of Fig. 3.

Sound Refining Box. William V. Ogren, Columbus, Neb., assignor of one-half to Charley D. French, same place. Patent No. 1,465,170.

The object of the invention is to provide a sound box or resonator for graphophones,

phonographs and like instruments whereby the sound as received from the record through the sound arm while being amplified will be refined to eliminate harshness and mechanical noises to the end that a relative purity of reproduction may be secured, and with this object in view the invention consists in a construction and combination of parts of which a preferred embodiment is shown in the accompanying drawings, wherein—

This invention comprehends the provision of a useful handling device and is especially adapted for use in handling phonograph records.

An object of the present invention is the provision of a device by means of which phonograph records may be placed upon or removed from the turntable of a talking machine and thus prevent the transfer of oil, grease or other injurious matter to the record, from the hands of the operator.

Another object of the invention is the provision of a device of the above character which is simple of construction and operation and which will effectually grip and hold a record or similar article without damage to the same.

Fig. 3 is a plan view with the parts in the position shown in Fig. 1; Fig. 4 is an enlarged central vertical sectional view of the device removed from the record; Fig. 5 is a horizontal section; Fig. 6 is a detail view of one end of one of the pivoted arms showing a modified form of grip.

Lid Support. Donato Di Carlo, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,468,460.

This invention relates to lid supports or holders for phonographs or other cabinets, and the object of the invention is to provide a support adapted to hold a hinged lid or cover open in various positions and to provide simple means whereby the lid support will automatically engage and simple means for releasing it from engagement.

Figure 1 is a fragmentary vertical sectional view of a cabinet having a hinged lid with the improved support and releasing means. Figs. 2 and 3 are perspective views of parts of the device. Figs. 4 and 5 are enlarged fragmentary sectional and plan views of parts of the support.

Table for Talking Machines. Joseph F. Borst and William Borst, Brooklyn, N. Y. Patent No. 1,466,576.

The present invention pertains more particularly to a new and improved construction of talking machine table.

It has been found by actual experiment that the motor in its operation produces certain friction, vibration and sounds conveyed to the sound box by the various metal parts of the mechanism, and which are responsible to a large extent for poor and improper reproduction on the part of the sound box.

It has also been found that spring members used in talking machines do not rotate the table at a constant speed. This condition, owing to the uneven movement between the record and the stylus, produces objectionable vibration, and sounds and noises which could be eliminated if the table were driven at constant speed.

It is, therefore, one of the primary objects of the invention to insulate the diaphragm from friction, vibration and sounds from the sound box and stylus and various metal parts of the machine. By so doing friction, vibration and sounds are controlled to the greatest extent possible, thereby allowing vibration and harmony to act in its clearest state.

This invention relates to devices and apparatus of the general character that is used as, and is generally known as, the tone arm of a phonograph mechanism; so, for the purpose of clearly describing and illustrating the invention, a specific form of the invention which is particularly designed as a tone arm for a phonograph is here considered, but it will be distinctly understood that the invention is not limited to such particular use. In its broader aspects the invention may be considered to be a sound transmitting and modifying apparatus.

Considering thus the invention as applied to tone arms (without any implied limitation of the invention thereto) it may be stated preliminarily that one of the objects is to provide a tone arm construction that will amplify sounds coming from a phonograph reproducer; will amplify and expand the sound without introducing into it foreign vibrations of any objectionable character; will transmit the sound from the reproducer in its original purity; and will, without materially altering the character or quality of the tones produced by the reproducer, somewhat qualify those tones, so as to eliminate from those tones certain somewhat undesirable features. This elimination of certain undesirable features or qualities of the tone coming from the reproducer applies more particularly to ordinary reproducers than to the reproducer of the character shown in the accompanying drawings. In an ordinary reproducer as used in present phonographs, there is always a tendency for certain tones or sounds to blare out; that is, to be reproduced with such force and volume as to practically drown out the accompanying sounds. This objectionable feature has been to a very large extent eliminated in the reproducer; but the tone arm itself has, as will be explained, the quality of "covering" tones which would otherwise be produced in a blaring fashion.

the phonograph. Fig. 2 is a horizontal longitudinal section of the same. Fig. 3 is a similar horizontal longitudinal section showing a slightly modified arrangement. Fig. 4 is a section showing the improved reproducer, which is here shown in connection with the tone arm. Fig. 5 is an enlarged detail section taken as indicated by line 5—5 on Fig. 2.

Multiple Sound Reproducing Apparatus. Wm. H. Bristol, Waterbury, Conn. Patent No. 1,468,455.

The invention relates to improvements in sound reproducing apparatus, and more particularly to apparatus of this character employing a plurality of sound reproducing members, that is to say apparatus in which a plurality of styli track tandem in the record grooves.

It has for its object to carry the various reproducers, which may be of the direct or of the electrical transmitter type, or both, from a common movable arm, as the tone arm of the talking machine proper; and to provide convenient means for independently setting each stylus in the same groove of the record, including a universal joint between the reproducers so that there will be no tendency for the styli to leave the groove, in which they are originally set, during reproduction of the entire record. A further object of the invention consists in maintaining a substantially fixed distance between the styli during operation.

Figure 1 is a plan of a talking machine of well-known type, having the improved mechanism attached thereto. Fig. 2 is a similar view illustrating a further embodiment of the invention. Fig. 3 illustrates a modification whereby the tone arm may be dispensed with entirely if electrical reproduction only is desired. Fig. 4 illustrates a modification in the carrying arm.

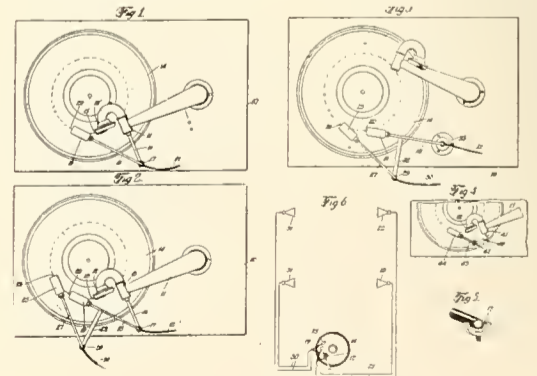

Fig. 5 is a detail perspective view of universal joint which may be employed in connection with the mounting of the electrical reproducers. Fig. 6 is a diagrammatic view illustrating the manner in which sound may be distributed by means of the improved arrangement of reproducers.

"THE ROLL OF HONOR"

We are dedicated to the principle that our very existence hangs upon our ability to serve the player industry to the utmost. U. S. Rolls, more eloquently than words can describe, are the concrete expression of our efforts to make them the most constructive influence in the trade.

Whether or not you sell players—you, too, must direct your roll trade to promote interest in players.

U. S. Rolls Are Not Competitive!

Neither Dealers in Nor Makers of Musical Instruments Are Financially Interested in the Manufacture of U. S. Rolls

VICTOR WINDOW DISPLAY MATERIAL

Some excellent material for use in window displays, especially holiday displays, has been prepared for dealers' use by the Victor Co. This consists of cardboards cut in the shape of stars, in the center of which appears a likeness of famous Victor artists. Each of the "stars" has a red border, presenting a pleasing appearance and furnishing window display material which offers excellent opportunities for diversified arrangement.

INCREASING DEMAND FOR "THE YALE"

NEW HAVEN, CONN., November 5.—The Davis Mfg. & Sales Co., of this city, is doing considerable business with the Yale talking machine which it manufactures. This small table machine is very attractively produced and has a surprising tone value. Although the Yale talking machine has an all-year-round demand, the holiday season has still further augmented the business of this company. Dealers handling this product are unanimous in their expressions of approval over its sales possibilities.

The SCOTTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesman by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

TWELVE POINTS

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailor-made appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitivity to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap soundboxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber basket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.

Sonora's High Quality Is Consistent

Sonora dealers will tell you that Sonora's consistent maintenance of high quality forms one of the chief sources of gratification to those handling the line.

Day after day, the same today, and the same tomorrow, Sonora instruments reach the dealers' floors, perfect in tone, in workmanship, in finish and in performance.

Unremittent scrutiny and rigid inspection assures this consistent maintenance of high quality. And this attention to detail is reflected in lessened service costs and the added satisfaction of Sonora owners.

Let us tell you more about the Sonora proposition and how this line will make money for you. Write us today.

Columbia Co. Advertising Records by Radio

Great Campaign of Reaching Public in a Novel and Effective Way Started by Broadcasting an Exclusive Columbia Artist or Organization Through WEA F Station—Its Object Defined

An important bulletin was sent out recently by George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co., to the company's branch managers under the heading of "Advertising by Radio." This bulletin stated in part as follows: "Radio grows bigger and more people listen in every night. Sometimes they happen to hear something they would like to hear again and to do that they must buy a phonograph record of what they have heard. This lifts the freezing lid of many a long-forgotten phonograph.

"It is the Columbia policy to help make people like what they hear over the radio. We are going to teach them that they need Columbia records to hear what they like best, whenever they want to hear it. Beginning Tuesday, December 4, and following on Thursday, December 8, and every Tuesday and Thursday thereafter, the WEA F broadcasting station (the American Tel. & Tel. station) will broadcast an exclusive Columbia artist or organization, announced and advertised as such. Broadcasting time from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. They will broadcast right from our own recording studios and advertise that fact."

This important broadcasting program opened on Tuesday, December 4, as mentioned in Mr. Hopkins' bulletin, with the California Ramblers as the artists. Lester L. Leverich, advertising manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co., introduced the organization, and judging from the enthusiastic reports received at the Columbia offices, the performance was heard and enjoyed throughout the country. Columbia branch managers received enthusiastic reports from their dealers who "listened in" on the Columbia broadcasting and there is every reason to believe that the plan will prove a decided success. Quite a number of the dealers commented upon an increased activity in the sale of Columbia records made by the California Ramblers, indicating that Mr. Hopkins' views as to record sales being favorably influenced by radio broadcasting are sound and logical. The Columbia Co. has been congratulated upon its initiative in arranging for radio broadcasting by exclusive Columbia artists and it is stated that this is the first instance where a phonograph manufacturer has sponsored radio broadcasting as a trade-building media from its own recording studios and advertised it as such.

MANUFACTURERS FORM ASSOCIATION

American Phonograph and Allied Musical Manufacturers' Association Born at Hotel McAlpin Meeting—To Disseminate Credit Data

At a luncheon held on Thursday, December 6, at the Hotel McAlpin a new association was formed in the talking machine industry, known as the American Phonograph & Allied Musical Manufacturers' Association. The plans of the Association, as announced, are extensive and for the present the scope of work will be largely credit research information and advice. The object of the Association is to reduce the percentage of losses through unscrupulous dealers holding up payments when due; taking unfair discounts, and many other unjust practices.

The Association plans to do away with these evils and believes that putting business on a constructive basis will benefit the honest dealer as well as the manufacturer. It is planned that the members report to the Association every dealer who does not pay his account when due and the reason given, if any; the taking of a discount beyond the stated period; also any rumors concerning dealers, whether they are interested in them or not. The Association, in turn, will furnish to its members the above information. Exhaustive reports covering any special features regarding any dealer, wherever located, will be furnished on demand. Through specializing in one field and economy of operation it is expected to put collection charges at a much smaller figure than could be obtained outside. Where bankruptcy is inevitable it will be endeavored, through the weight of the Association, to appoint worthwhile men as receivers, referees and trustees. It is stated that the Association is not interested in prices charged, but solely interested in giving positive information to the manufacturer in reference to dealers.

At the initial meeting ten were present who were representatives of some of the most prominent houses in the industry. They practically unanimously agreed on the need of an association of this character. Another meeting will be held at an early date to elect officers and proceed with the work. Headquarters for the Association will be established in the Bowery Savings Bank Building, Park avenue and Forty-second street.

ARTHUR J. WALSH GETS NEW POST

Well-known Edison Executive Appointed Manager of Music Department—Will Direct Artist Division in Addition to His Other Duties

Arthur J. Walsh, who has for many years occupied prominent positions with Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was appointed the last week in November to the very important post of manager of the music department, where he will direct the artist division of the Edison business, as well as the selection of the music to be recorded. Mr. Walsh will continue to hold the portfolios of the advertising and publicity departments which have hitherto fallen upon his shoulders. His new office is located in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison.

APPOINTED DE FOREST JOBBER

Progressive Musical Instrument Corp. to Distribute DeForest Products—Well Qualified to Co-operate With the Retail Trade

The Progressive Musical Instrument Corp., 311 Sixth avenue, New York, well-known jobber of musical merchandise, announced to its trade this week that it had been appointed a distributor for the products of the DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co. The company is planning to inaugurate an aggressive sales campaign in behalf of DeForest Radiophones and several unusual merchandising ideas will form an important part of this campaign.

This company is ideally equipped to give DeForest radio products splendid representation, as the executives of the company are well known in the musical field, and the company at the present time is distributing a very large amount of musical merchandise among the leading phonograph dealers. A complete stock of DeForest products already has been delivered and dealer accounts are being established rapidly. The unique merchandising plan sponsored by the DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co. in the introduction of Radiophones in the music industry has met with marked success and the Progressive Musical Instrument Co. is making plans to co-operate with the manufacturer in every possible way.

H. DON LEOPOLD IS ADVANCED

Popular Brunswick Record Manager Will Assume New Duties in Chicago—Attained Marked Success With New York Branch

Harry A. Beach, manager of the Eastern phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., announced recently that H. D. Leopold, for the past six months record order department manager of the New York branch, had been promoted to an important post in the advertising department of the Brunswick Co.'s executive offices in Chicago. Mr. Leopold, who completed his duties in New York on December 8, leaving for Chicago immediately, is one of the most popular and capable members of the Brunswick phonograph division and is generally recognized as an exceptionally efficient record man.

Many New Orchestras Recording for Victor Co.

Various Popular Organizations Specializing in Dance Music Have Been Placed Under Contract to Make Victor Records—Some Other New Recording Artists

In line with its policy of continually augmenting its library of distinguished artists in the classical field of music and its roster of outstanding celebrities in the popular and novelty field of music, the Victor Talking Machine Co. has recently announced a number of very important additions to its staff of artists.

The newcomers in the operatic and classical library of Red Seal artists include Richard Crooks, Rosa Ponselle, Landowska, Sura Cherkasskay and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

In the field of popular music the most important new acquisitions are Waring's Pennsylvanians, Barney Rapp and His Orchestra, the Garber-Davis Orchestra, Silverman and His Orchestra, Moss & Frye and the Bethel Jubilee Quartet, all well-known aggregations.

In addition to the artists and celebrities mentioned above, some of whose records have not yet been released, but all of whom have already made recordings, the other important newcomers into the Victor catalog who have made their debut during 1923 are as follows:

In the Red Seal field—Charles Trowbridge

Tittman, Claire Brookhurst, Jose Mardones, Miguel Fleta, Hazel Gertrude Kinscella and Della Baker.

As popular artists—Lou Holtz, Belle Baker, Will Rogers, Henry C. Gilliland, Eck Robertson, the Duncan Sisters, Sissle & Blake, George Hamilton Green, Brooke Johns, Eddie Hunter, Georgie Price, Victor Arden and Phil Ohman.

In the orchestra division—Charles Dornberg and His Orchestra, the Collegians, Whitey Kaufman's Original Pennsylvania Serenaders, Arthur Gibbs and His Gang, Memphis Five and Jack Chapman and His Drake Hotel Orchestra.

This, so far as is known, is the first public recapitulation of the Victor artists who have been acquired during the current year and it certainly indicates, in a very impressive way, that the Victor Co. is continuing in a vigorous and comprehensive manner to steadily and extensively augment its library of music by recording the talent of the leading artists and musicians from every division of the realm of music.

Effective Lighting Helps Window Display

Edgar L. Mills Descants on Scientific Principles of Window Lighting and Tells How Talking Machine Displays Can Be Aided

The present-day efficiency in window dressing or in displays of any kind depends in a measure upon the skill with which that display is lighted. It is entirely possible to arrange a fine window or show case and yet to get small results from it because the light may be dull or yellowish in cast. Or the light may glare, so as to force onlookers to glance quickly away. Or the display may be darkened by the surroundings to such an extent that the goods do not show off well at all. Or, again, plate glass reflections thrown inward by the sunlight, or powerful street lights, may completely confuse the outlines of the articles shown, or produce a dazzling effect most uncomfortable to experience.

In order to remedy these conditions, lighting or illuminating engineers have given the matter a great deal of study and have worked out principles of successful lighting which should be considered and employed. In fact, the merchant who lights his displays properly has a distinct advantage over those who neglect this important selling factor.

It is now acknowledged that display portions of a retail business, and especially the windows, represent the most valuable space in the whole establishment. This being the case, it is extremely important that the lighting effects be such that the displays will work for all they are worth twenty-four hours in the day.

Size and Character of Window Govern Lights

The experiments of the engineers referred to prove that windows of different shapes and sizes call for different kinds of lighting units. For example, if the window is deep, but rather low, the light must be softly diffused downward. Many windows are of the double-deck variety and are not more than five or six feet in height. Such windows are best lighted by rather small electric lamps of about 50 watt capacity and having scooped-shaped reflectors which will flood a window of the size and shape described with even and bright light. Show cases, bulletin boards and both outside and inside signs which are not too large will be illuminated successfully by reflectors of this character.

On the other hand, a low window which is quite shallow and does not reach back very far calls for a lamp of about the same size with a different shape reflector. In this case one of the hooded type is better, distributing the light in such a manner as to avoid a glare. The small, hooded light is not only desirable in the low, shallow window, but it is also very appropriate for illuminating wall cases and wall fixtures, which all too often are left in the shadows.

The need for such a light is indicated where we require concentration. Many shallow windows and cases are met where the depth is only about from 60 to 70 per cent of the height. Ordinarily, the lighting of such windows is difficult, but the hooded light will bring the contents of the window into pleasing prominence. The light in this case is all directed downward, and so the installations are in the upper part of the window or case.

Larger windows employ the same principle, only larger reflectors are used. These reflectors are not all alike for the large windows. One kind throws the light into about the middle of the window space and is especially designed for a display which is trimmed high up. Another reflector throws the light to the window base and is intended for use when the display is arranged on a low or flat plan. These different reflectors may be procured and used at will. And there is also a very interesting color attachment by means of which the window space may be diffused with golden, violet, pink or purple light at will.

Overcoming Reflections

It would seem as though this would take care of all of the needs of the light situation, but not so, for we have not yet met those difficulties caused by reflections. Some dealers have been much distressed by this sort of thing—their windows being almost spoiled for display purposes. For this reason, a light which will overcome the trouble is a real boon. One has been perfected which, by means of a 500 watt lamp Mazda "C," will completely flood the window with an expanse of soft, agreeable illumination.

Next, the reflector is so arranged that this same lighting unit throws a spot light, wherever desired, of startling clearness. This spot light beam is claimed to develop 50,000 candle power, so it is obvious that any article displayed in the window upon which this spot light is trained or turned will show up in the plainest manner possible. Moreover, any reflections from the outside are completely neutralized and passers-by will be halted almost in spite of themselves. This new lighting principle is most interesting, as those employing it literally flag the public, and an establishment so lighted will stand out from among a whole street full of other establishments with the ordinary lighting equipment.

This flood light with a center beam is especially adapted to both white and colored lighting in display windows, to the lighting of special, interior show cases, or for the protection of an establishment during the night. A firm which has had its safe broken open more than once now wheels the safe into the sight of the street and turns a spot light on it. Burglars would hardly dare work under such conditions. These lights are also valuable for anything in the way of a spectacular demonstration or where it is desirable to gain special attention to one or more objects in the midst of lighted surroundings.

Economy in Good Lighting Fixtures

Some will claim that they cannot afford to put in more efficient lighting fixtures. But the question arises as to how much in actual dollars and cents is lost by not doing it, and whether the business prestige sacrificed is not a heavy price to pay for a tendency to cling to the old and out-of-date.

In many places such as the business office or where certain kinds of goods are to be examined close at hand, an indirect light is most agreeable to the eye, being restful and soothing, and having the advantage of being shadowless.

Whatever the needs of the occasion, there is the right kind of light to fill the bill, and with a long season ahead when night settles down early and there are many dull days, when artificial illumination is needed, the matter of lighting so as to actually develop business because of it is a matter which should receive a full measure of attention. There is no time like the present and the only way to do a thing is to do it.

LAMBERT FRIEDL WITH ADLER MFG. CO.

Prominent Wholesale Executive Appointed Vice-President and General Sales Manager of Southern Manufacturing Concern—Will Market Complete Trade-marked Line of Phonographs—Headquarters in New York

Lambert Friedl, manager of the talking machine department of John Wanamaker, New York, and one of the most popular and capable members of the talking machine trade in the East, has been appointed vice-president and general sales manager of the Adler Mfg. Co., Louisville, Ky. Mr. Friedl resigned his present position on December 1, but will probably stay with the Wanamaker institution for a short while pending the appointment of his successor. He is leaving with the good-will of the entire Wanamaker organization, where he won the esteem and friendship of his co-workers during the year he was in charge of the department.

The Adler Mfg. Co. is well known in manufacturing circles, as for a number of years it has manufactured a complete line of pianos, organs and phonographs. The company maintains a very large plant at Louisville, which is recognized as one of the most complete and up-to-date woodworking factories in the South. Cyrus L. Adler, president of the company, is prominent in commercial and civic activities in Louisville and has been the dominant factor in the tremendous success achieved by the company. Mr. Adler visited New York several times to confer with Mr. Friedl and as a result of these conferences arrangements were closed covering a long period of years.

As vice-president and general sales manager of the Adler Mfg. Co. Mr. Friedl will maintain headquarters at 881 Broadway, New York. He will be in complete charge of the company's phonograph merchandising and his plans provide for the manufacturing and marketing of a trade-marked line of instruments that will be original and distinctive throughout. These phonographs will be distributed through district sales representatives in the large cities, selling through responsible dealers. With the completion of his plans Mr. Friedl expects to get in touch with well-known wholesale men in the metropolitan centers with the idea of developing his distribution. Cabinet designs are being made under his personal supervision and the mechanical equipment will also be individual in many respects.

In securing the services of Mr. Friedl as vice-president and general sales manager the Adler Mfg. Co. is to be congratulated, for Mr. Friedl is one of the most experienced and successful members of the wholesale talking machine trade. For many years he was associated with the Columbia organization, having been manager of the company's Pittsburgh branch, and for a number of years manager of the New York branch. In the latter position, the most important in the Columbia branch organization, he attained phenomenal success, winning the hearty good-will of the dealers in metropolitan territory and attaining record-breaking sales totals for this product. In his new field of endeavor Mr. Friedl will have ample opportunity to utilize his exceptional knowledge of talking machine merchandising and distribution, and will be in a position to work in close co-operation with his host of dealer friends all over the United States.

ANNOUNCES UNIQUE SALES PLAN

General Phono. Corp. Introduces Original Sales Idea—Will Give New Odeon Record to Any Member of the Trade Requesting It

One of the most unique selling plans introduced in the record trade this year is a campaign announced this week by the General Phonograph Corp., New York, in behalf of Odeon records. In order to give the trade an opportunity to appreciate and understand the musical merits of these records and their sales possibilities, the company has offered to give to every member of the trade who requests it a new Odeon record featuring the "Blue Danube Waltz" and "Schubert Serenade." The record is presented without charge and it is expected that this unusual sales drive will serve to introduce Odeon records to the trade in every city and town throughout the country.

NEW EDISON PHONOGRAPH CATALOG

To Be Released During Latter Part of December for Consumer Distribution by Dealers—An Attractive Piece of Catalog Publicity

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., will issue the latter part of December a new type of catalog, featuring the various models of the New Edison. This catalog is printed with a handsome cover in blue and brown, the sole decoration on the cover being the new trade-mark slogan "The New Edison—Comparison With the Living Artist Reveals No Difference." The first page inside is devoted to a special message signed by Thomas A. Edison, which reads "I should like to have you listen to my phonograph—The New Edison—in side-by-side comparison with any other phonograph before you purchase." The next page is devoted to the same idea, namely, an enlargement of the idea of why the Edison Co. feels it behooves the purchasing public to make a comparison with other instruments before making a final decision. The entire responsibility is placed upon the prospective buyer to decide for himself what he believes to be the best instrument.

On each of the following pages one model of the New Edison is illustrated and beneath the illustration are specifications relating to the model pictured. The final sentence on each page is "The New Edison Costs No More Than Ordinary Phonographs." There are fourteen models featured and a price list is inserted in the back. Record Specialties Open New Sales Field

Health Records and Those Designed for Amusement and Education of Children Are a Big Source of Revenue if Intelligently Exploited

There is a wide open sales field in the talking machine record business to-day which comparatively few retailers are taking advantage of to the greatest extent possible. This field consists of the various record specialties which have made their appearance on the market, and which are now handled by many retailers throughout the country. These consist of exercise records and various types of recordings designed especially for the amusement and education of children.

Successful Health Record Drive

Every man, woman and school child is a prospect for the former—health records—and the dealer who handles one or more lines of these recordings has an opportunity of augmenting his profits to a considerable degree if intelligent sales effort is put behind them. A plan of procedure in bringing its health records before that portion of the public which would be most likely to quickly see the advantage of exercising to music was recently put in effect by the Davidson Bros. Co., live dealer of Sioux City, Ia. The method used, as outlined for The World by Fred J. Shamp, manager of the talking machine department, follows:

"We desired to bring our health records to the attention of the lunch clubs of the city. In order to do this we first of all had a young lady, who, incidentally, happened to be related to a prominent member of the Rotary Club here, make arrangements for a demonstration at a luncheon of that club. This first effort was so successful that demonstrations have since been given in the Lions and Kiwanis Clubs by request of these organizations. It was handled in this way:

"Our demonstrator went through the first record alone, after having made a few appropriate remarks, descriptive of the nature and purpose of the records. When the playing of the first record had been completed the demonstrator requested the members to take off their coats and go through one of the exercises with her, and before she was through practically every man in the dining-room was going through the exercises. They went through all except the floor exercise, which obviously could not be done in a public dining-room.

"These organizations did not permit us to have any sign or make any reference announcing where the records came from, but one of our salesmen who has been connected with the house for twelve years went along to operate the talking machine, and in this indirect way we think every one in the place knew who was staging the demonstration. No attempt to sell records was made at that time, but a number of sets have been sold to club members since the demonstration, and we haven't the slightest doubt but that it was one of our best publicity stunts."

There is a successful plan in a nutshell—one that can easily be staged by any dealer with energy enough to go out after business. This stunt has the added advantage of making an appeal direct to the business men of the community, who, in the majority of cases, are eager to keep the waistline down but do not care for too strenuous work and loss of time involved in regularly attending a gymnasium class. And, in addition, the dealer should not overlook the women and children in his advertising and sales drives. The window is probably the best medium of bringing these records to the attention of the masses. A live demonstrator, some athletic young man or woman of the community, would prove a big drawing card.

The Demand for Children's Records

The children's records on the market, as almost every dealer knows, consist of two kinds—educational and recreational, although of the latter it may also be said that they possess a distinct educational feature. With this fact in mind the lines along which the retailer's campaign must be planned are plain. Every mother and father desires that their children develop mentally, and if the dealer can put the message strong enough that these records will serve that purpose under the guise of amusement his appeal, whether through advertising in newspapers, window displays, direct-mail or personal solicitation, will hit home to the parents of his community and sales will follow. In his sales-promotion work the dealer, however, must not overlook the children themselves. Interest the children in your product and the chances are that they will not rest until they have influenced their parents to the point of making a purchase. In this connection, also, the retailer can sell small talking machines, of the portable type, to go with the records. These small instruments are comparatively inexpensive and, because of the fact that children, when playing the records, find it difficult to reach the turntable of the larger instruments and the added danger of marring the finish of the more expensive models, little difficulty will be experienced in "selling" the adults on the idea of purchasing a small talking machine.

Special Children's Departments

Some live establishments have even gone to the extent of setting apart a space in the store expressly for the display of these kiddie records and machines. The cost involved in setting aside a booth or part of the store and arranging the decorations and furnishings so that they will both appeal and be comfortable to the children is very small compared to the advantages which will be derived from such a course. One of the largest department stores in the East to do that very thing is Frederick Loeser & Co., of Brooklyn. This department was described in the Brooklyn section of the last issue of The World and dealers who contemplate doing something of a similar nature will do well to read it. The department is already a big asset to this store, as one will be to every other establishment. The children seem to take particular delight in visiting the store with their parents, and while the latter are purchasing their "grown up" records they play and look over the special talking machines and accessories which make such "grand" toys for fun-loving kiddies. Advertising by this firm has also intensified the interest of the parents and the number of sales already made in addition to the quantity of inquiries received has made this a paying proposition. A saleswoman of the maternal character is kept busy entertaining the children and explaining the merits of the products to the prospects.

Sales of Novelties Come Easy

Sales of specialties or novelties such as these are very easy to make, if, as has been stated, intelligence and energy are put behind the merchandising plan. After all, the talking machine dealer is out to make money. That is what he is in business for, trite and self-evident as the statement may sound. And it cannot be emphasized too strongly that where formerly adults and children of an advanced age were the only logical prospects for the retailer, to-day through these novelties a broad, new field is ready for development.

LOWER TAXATION WILL INCREASE PROSPERITY

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, in his annual message to Congress on December 6, declared himself emphatically in favor of a general reduction in Federal War Taxes, in accordance with the plan outlined by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and presented the following sound ideas on the subject: "Being opposed to war taxes in time of peace, I am not in favor of excess-profits taxes. A great service could be rendered through immediate enactment of legislation relieving the people of some of the burdens of taxation. . . . High taxes reach everywhere and burden everybody. . . . They diminish industry and commerce. They make agriculture unprofitable. They increase the rates on transportation. They are a charge on every necessary of life. Of all services which the Congress can render to the country I have no hesitation in declaring this one to be paramount. The country wants this measure to have the right of way over all others."

The members of the talking machine trade will do well to join wholeheartedly with the business men and the public of the country generally in supporting the President and the Secretary of the Treasury in putting through the plan for the proposed reduction of Federal taxes amounting to something over $300,000,000. It will take heavy pressure to keep the question from being hidden in Congress by a political smoke screen.

A direct reduction in taxes is not only going to save the business interests of the country considerable money, but will put the public generally in a better frame of mind and should have the psychological effect of stimulating sales. There is no question but that many individuals whose tax saving under the proposed cut will not exceed $5 a year will feel that they are entitled to spend $50 in celebration of the event.

Various Senators and Congressmen with an eye to the folks back home have already announced that they will fight energetically for the passage of the Soldier Bonus Bill and intimate that the proposed saving in taxes, if put into the bonus instead of being lifted from the shoulders of the public, will take care of the financial demands of the veterans or at least that proportion of them that seek the bonus. The fight for the bonus as it stands now, regardless of the rights or wrongs of the question, is unquestionably a political move, and the business men should see to it that it is kept to itself and not coupled with the tax reduction question.

The main thing is that pressure must be brought to bear on Senators and Congressmen to insure the putting through of the tax reduction program, regardless of what is done about the bonus. It is certain that the politicians in Washington are not going to let upward of $300,000,000 get out of their grip without a fight. The orgy of spending has been too joyous to be curtailed.

LEARNING A LESSON FROM HOLIDAY ACTIVITY

AS this issue of The World reaches its readers the annual holiday buying rush is in full swing, and it is already evident that this year, as in previous years, talking machines and records are holding their own as Christmas gifts. There is a valuable lesson in this annual holiday campaign, especially as regards the talking machine business, if dealers will only realize it. For weeks, and in some cases for several months, prior to Christmas the trade generally makes comprehensive plans for determined business drives. Every method of bringing talking machines and records to the public is utilized, and no pains or expense are spared in making these drives a success from the standpoint of sales volume.

The questions arise: Why shouldn't this aggressive sales policy be continuous? Why should it be confined to a season? Why shouldn't the volume of business during the post-holiday period be larger than it customarily is? Just as in the Summer months when dealers somehow cease all strenuous efforts in securing trade business gets into the doldrums during the early months of the new year, simply because little or no effort is made to go after sales. Advertising is kept to a minimum; selling efforts become order taking, and there is a general relaxation which makes poor business inevitable.

There must be something wrong in a merchandising system which permits of the discontinuance of effort when it is most needed. It sounds like a platitude or needless reiteration to emphasize that dealers must make consistent and continuous drives for business in order to succeed, but, nevertheless, it is the truth. Meanwhile business conditions were never better than they are at the present time, according to reports from all over the country, and if there are any complaints the condition is purely local and not general. Anyway, it is those dealers who are constantly striving for more and better business who are getting it. They are not the calamity howlers, they are the workers, and it is the workers that always win, provided there is intelligent direction behind the physical effort, and this prevails whether in selling, managing or controlling departments.

Before the next issue of The World reaches subscribers we will have entered the New Year, and a new chapter will have been opened in the history of the industry. What business records the talking machine dealers shall write on this page depends entirely upon themselves. There can be no resting upon past laurels. Each month of the new year must be made more profitable than the same period of 1923, and, in order to do this, the business campaign for 1924 must be launched, not in the Springtime, but just as soon as the holiday campaign ends, in order to take advantage of the momentum gained this year.

FEWER CHANGES IN CABINETS IN PROSPECT

ONE promised feature of the 1924 business to which both wholesalers and retailers are looking forward with a certain degree of satisfaction is the likelihood that there will be comparatively few changes in cabinet styles for the next few months at least and that the catalogs of the manufacturers, so far as the machines are concerned, are considered more or less stable and fixed for a considerable period.

It is true that changes in design reflect the progress of the industry and indicate that it is keeping abreast of the demands of the public. During the last couple of years these changes have been frequent and, although unquestionably designed for the better, have kept the retailers, and for that matter the wholesaler, in a state of anxiety regarding what to order and what not to order for the purpose of meeting future requirements.

The problem has not been that of taking care of stock made obsolete by the introduction of new styles, for the changes have not been sufficiently radical to bring about that condition. The dealer has hesitated, however, about ordering as generously as he might in the fear that there might be something introduced in the near future that would prove more readily salable and be a better proposition for him and his trade.

From the manufacturing angle, too, frequent changes in styles are calculated to interrupt factory routine and contribute in a certain degree to the scarcity of desirable models. It is a recognized fact that several thousand machines of one particular model can be turned out much more rapidly than a similar number of machines made up of a half dozen models, all requiring readjustment of machinery, working forces, etc.

The majority of the leading lines are now well balanced, with machines calculated to meet practically every normal demand of the buyer and, although there probably will be some minor changes designed, it is doubtful whether there will be any marked changes in styles themselves in the near future, at least.

SUPPORT FOR THE PRICE MAINTENANCE BILLS

MEMBERS of the talking machine industry should take more than a passive interest in the campaigns now being developed among many groups of business men for the purpose of supporting the price maintenance bills scheduled to come up before the new Congress which opened last week.

The bills in question are the Kelly-Stephens Bill, known as H. B. 11, and the Merritt Bill, known as H. B. 13494. Although the two measures have been introduced by two Congressmen the aims of both are to provide needed protection to the manufacturers of trade-marked products through granting them the right to fix and maintain resale prices on their products. The bills, moreover, have been designed to avoid the possibility of encouraging monopoly, which should serve to kill the favorite argument of those who in the past have opposed such measures.

The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has come out strongly in support of the measures, favoring both of them in the hope that at least one of the bills will be successful in passage. It might be well for the members of the talking machine trade to again endorse the price maintenance measures; as has been done on previous occasions, and then to get back of the bills actively, either through their own trade associations or in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce.

A price maintenance law will not prove a panacea for all the ills of the industry, but it will at least serve to put a check on the price cutter and the gyp artist and play a part in keeping a stable market for the products of standing and hard-earned reputation.

TRADE OPTIMISTIC OVER OUTLOOK FOR 1924

AS indicated by the symposium of opinions on existing conditions and future prospects in the talking machine trade presented in another section of The World this month, members of the industry as a whole—manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers—are in the main thoroughly optimistic regarding what 1924 promises for the trade.

The prophecies are based not alone on conditions within the industry itself, which are in the main favorable, but on the general business situation throughout the country, for it is realized that as the nation itself prospers so will the various industries therein develop along substantial lines.

As a matter of fact, the talking machine industry, and for that matter the music trade as a whole throughout the country, has enjoyed a greater volume of business in proportion than have some other lines of trade with which fair comparisons can be made. This situation is traceable to two things: first, the greater appreciation of music in every form that is evident everywhere and, secondly, the willingness and ability of the public to spend money for the purchase of music-producing instruments.

General predictions regarding business made a year in advance are often quite futile, but there are certain basic conditions upon which calculations may be founded with comparative safety and these conditions as they exist just now are distinctly favorable. Business clouds may appear during the coming twelve months, but there is little or no evidence of them right now, and what the trade makes of its opportunities depends largely on itself.

New Customers Vital to Business Growth

Steady Influx of New Patronage Is the Life Blood of the Talking Machine Business—Practical Hints on Securing New Customers

"In my opinion one of the greatest problems for the dealer in the talking machine field to-day is the securing of new customers for machines." There is much food for thought in this statement by one of the most successful retail talking machine men in the East. Every dealer should sit down for a few moments and analyze himself and his business in this respect. Are you doing the business you should do in the sale of machines? Is your prospect list alive? Are you constantly adding new names of people who are really in the market for an instrument? And, if you have a good prospect list, are you actually going out to sell? These are a few of the questions with which every talking machine dealer should be concerned to-day. Side-stepping the issue will do no good. Almost every day it is being demonstrated in a manner leaving no room for doubt that the dealers who are going out for business in a systematic and determined manner are the ones in the territory they serve who are most successful. Those retailers who are constantly bleating about "business going to the 'bow-wows'" are the ones, in nine cases out of ten, who believe in the easy-chair route to sales. Of course, economic conditions may have a certain influence on business, but, taken as a whole, there is too much talk about "general slackness" and too little real mental and physical selling effort.

Get Into the Homes!

Get into the homes of the people in your neighborhood. Maybe it isn't as easy as sitting in the store waiting for the plums to fall into your lap—rare occurrence, indeed—but it is much more effective. In the columns of The Talking Machine World times without number there have appeared articles describing the experiences of successful merchants in the canvassing field. Don't say that your territory happens to be different and the same tactics will not go. It isn't different! The dealer who gets that fact firmly fixed in his mind and then gets to work will be on the right track and there will be no cause for regret. People are the same the country over, making slight allowance for local conditions. And the situation with which the dealer on Main street in Squeedunk is faced is not one whit different from the conditions faced by the retailer on Nth avenue, Bigburg. The slight difference in outlook between the small town and the big city or sectional peculiarities offer no obstacle, because, at least, the dealer should be familiar with the peculiarities of the people, taken en masse, with whom he does business.

A Case in Point

The methods of a certain live dealer, A. H.

Mayers, of New York, which are described in the following paragraphs should point the way for talking machine dealers in large cities as well as small towns. There is a certain merchandising principle involved which is universal in its application. This firm, by the way, is successfully bringing the message of the talking machine to about the most difficult people in the world to approach—the New York apartment dweller—blasé, indifferent and phlegmatic. The firm of A. H. Mayers has a prospect list numbering about 20,000 names. How did they get it? Not by sitting in the store, surely, although many of the names were secured in the store. Hard work did it. In short, whenever a person comes into the store and does not buy he or she is listed as a prospect if questioning discloses an interest in a machine. And this whether the inquirer does or does not own a machine. In addition, many of the names were secured by a thorough canvass of the entire neighborhood. The list is classified to the extent that owners of instruments are kept separate from non-owners. Then there is also a separate list made up of record customers and prospects. This latter is a mighty essential thing to the dealer who mails out record supplements and other literature. There is too much waste in postage and time in sending out literature to people who will no more visit the store to buy records and other things than a cow will ever be able to fly. Each week record supplements are sent to record prospects. To machine prospects a steady stream of literature goes forth and, in addition, the good old ringing of door bells does the work of reducing the prospect list by striking out the names of prospects who have become customers through the purchase of a machine.

Canvassing Isn't Easy

It is not an easy thing to get past the outer door of a New York apartment, but A. H. Mayers has overcome this problem through a very simple plan. According to A. A. Mayers, who has charge of the Broadway store of this concern, it pays to spend money to make money and it is very much worth while to spend a little money so that the salesman and canvassers are insured of a hearing. Here is how it is done. Novelties! Just little trinkets and handy little accessories for the home, inexpensive, but effective. For example, one of the stunts recently tried by Mr. Mayers was to purchase a quantity of milk bottle tops, a patented device enabling the housewife to pour milk from the bottle without spilling it all over the place. The salesman visited their prospects and instead of beginning a sales talk in the usual manner they would ask if cow's milk was used. In most instances the answer was "yes." They then would present the novelty milk bottle top with the compliments of the firm. If the opportunity occurred they would do their best in trying to interest the prospect in a new machine. At any rate, the salesman received a courteous reception and they secured valuable information as to whether a machine was owned, its condition and the attitude of the prospect towards the purchase of a later model. In homes where there was no instrument, if any interest at all was exhibited in a talking machine, follow-up calls were made. Out of the ordinary, it is true, but just the same it brought home the bacon and the cost of the novelties was trifling compared to the returns in sales and good-will. Another stunt which this live dealer will soon put in effect is the distribution of 2,000 wood rulers to the school children in that neighborhood. The children will naturally take the rulers home and inasmuch as they will bear the imprint of the dealer a certain percentage of the adults will become familiar with the name of the live merchant in their neighborhood.

Indirect publicity, as in the case of the distribution of the rulers to school children, is bound to have a certain amount of influence with the children themselves, many of whom own and play musical instruments, but it is impossible to gauge the benefits accruing, which are cumulative.

Plenty of Prospects

There are plenty of prospects, but it is up to the dealer to dig them out. In this connection it is safe to say that no plan of adding names to the mailing list as well as actually bringing in new business is quite so effective as canvassing and outside selling. These are days of unparalleled competition among retail dealers. The consumer has a wide selection to choose from and there is little chance that any particular retailer will be selected by the prospective purchaser unless the name and business of the dealer are most familiar to the prospect—it pays to be known.

Linking Up With Folk of the Footlights

W. Bliss Stoddard Tells How Live Dealers Made Capital of the Appearance of Favorites of the Stage, Screen and Concert Hall

There is a mysterious glamour about the people of the stage, concert hall and screen that makes whatever they use eminently desirable to other people, and the talking machine dealer who does not turn this to his own advantage is losing great opportunities for enviable publicity. The endorsement of a machine or a record by any footlights favorite immediately increases its popularity.

L. Grunewald, Ltd., New Orleans, La., never loses an opportunity to link its lines with visiting artists and has thus won a reputation for up-to-the-minute equipment. Two examples of this occurred recently. During Style Show Week Irene Castle, the famous dancer, gave public exhibitions of gowns and ballroom dancing. The firm immediately placed on view records of a number of the dance numbers. They also secured a picture of Miss Castle, which they ran in one of their advertisements, together with a fantastic dance design, and suggested that as such an eminent dance authority had chosen these selections no better ones could be found for dancing in the home and advised the purchase of records containing these numbers.

An even more successful stunt was pulled off by them during the visit of Belle Baker, an Orpheum headliner. Among the songs rendered by her were the new "I've Got the Yes, We Have No Banana Blues" and "Jubilee Blues" and as these had been recently released the firm secured the presence of Miss Baker at its store on Saturday from 1 to 2 p. m. and from 5 to 6 p. m. on Saturday, during which time she autographed all copies of these records sold. Crowds came to see the famous star, scores bought the records which they were delighted to have autographed by her and large numbers had an opportunity to see all the late records, as well as many standard ones, and while they were there took occasion to order what they wanted, so that the general as well as special sale of records was given a big boost. As in the case of Miss Castle, a photo of the vaudeville star was secured and run in their regular advertisement, together with an announcement of the personal appearance of Miss Baker and the fact that she would autograph free her own particular song records.

Fitzgerald Music Co. Ties Up With Film Folks

The Fitzgerald Music Co., Los Angeles, Cal., in a somewhat similar manner utilized the popularity of Peggy Hamilton, the film star. The young lady created quite a sensation by appearing at a costume ball at the Hotel Biltmore, Los Angeles, in a court gown of white satin, the entire front of which was hand painted in a design which was an exact replica of the design on the Hotel Biltmore ballroom ceiling. With this gown was worn a Colonial wig each puff and curl of which was a different tint—green, pink, blue, gold and silver—manufactured by a local hairdresser. Fitzgerald discovered that Miss Hamilton had a phonograph, for which they were the agents, in her Los Angeles home and that she was very partial to it. Accordingly they secured the ball gown and wig and placed them on a wax figure retouched to resemble the little actress, and placed them in their window, beside one of their phonographs, with the caption "Miss Hamilton has this phonograph in her own home and prefers it to any other." Hundreds stop daily to see the costume and on reading her endorsement of the machine are prone to give it more favorable consideration on that account.

How Small-town Merchants Fall in Line

But what of the small-town merchant? Is he to lose out on much valuable publicity because these well-known artists do not come to his town? By no means. In these days of the silver sheet Harold Lloyd and George Arliss, Geraldine Farrar, Mabel Normand and Alice Brady come to Stringtown-on-the-Pike, as well as to Chicago and New York, and by finding their favorite make of instrument (and the manufacturers are only too anxious to give out the necessary information) it is an easy matter to display a picture of the star and inform the public both through window displays and the newspapers that Miss Beauty, now appearing at the Palace Theatre, uses the Blank phonograph in her own home. The thing to do is to make the display timely, i. e., to have it in the day the picture is first shown, if not the day previous—as the sales value is far greater while the public is under the glamour of this particular artist.

Capitalizing All the Great Artists

One small-town music dealer capitalizes the names of all the great artists very effectively. The town is located only fifty miles from St. Louis and frequently when a great artist like Jascha Heifetz, or Mary Garden, or Sir Harry Lauder appears in that city the fact is advertised in the local papers. But whether this is done or not the proprietor keeps up with the appearance of the stars by reading the metropolitan dailies and whenever some particularly distinguished one is scheduled to appear he secures a program of the event in advance. This is easy to do, as all the concert bureaus are glad to send out programs upon request—and, in fact, to place any name on their list and send advance notices of all the concerts of the season. With this information in hand he reproduces the program on a large card, which he places in his window. Then he goes through his stock and selects records of the selections to be played, or sung, or spoken, and sets them in racks close to the glass with ribbons running from the records to the printed program. A second card suggests:

MARY GARDEN WILL APPEAR

At the Odeon, St. Louis, Friday, November 16

Do not fail to hear this wonderful artiste if opportunity occurs. BUT, for the benefit of those who cannot attend, we suggest the purchase of these records to be sung by the diva. By so doing you will be enabled to have a Mary Garden concert as often as you wish, without the trouble and expense of a trip to the city.

DANCE ORCHESTRA GIVES CONCERT

LANCASTER, PA., December 6.—The J. A. Troup Music House, of this city, Victor dealer, recently held a very successful concert in its recital hall, featuring Jan Garber and the famous Garber-Davis Orchestra, of Atlanta, Ga., exclusive Victor artists. Mr. Garber received an ovation from a capacity audience at the Troup recital hall, and after the concert was finished autographed a large number of Victor records for dance enthusiasts.

H. S. Maraniss, traveling representative for the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor jobber, was responsible for securing the Garber-Davis Orchestra for the Troup recital and worked out every detail incidental to the event. This orchestra promises to be one of the sensations in the dance recording world, and at the ball given by the Talking Machine Men, Inc., in New York last month, Mr. Garber's organization was acclaimed by 1,500 dance enthusiasts as the hit of the evening.

B. FUTERNIK BRANCHES OUT

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 7.—Benjamin Futernik, well known in talking machine trade circles in this city, has just opened a branch store. Mr. Futernik has been in the business for twenty-two years and has also developed his son and daughter into real talking machine enthusiasts. His present store at 140 North Eighth street will be retained and the new store, at 46 North Eighth street, will be operated as a branch. It will be under the supervision of his son and daughter. It is Unico equipped and exceedingly attractive.

Music Dealers Welcome This Wonderful Radio Merchandising Opportunity

The new Kennedy Radio Model V presents wonderful merchandising possibilities to one music dealer in each community.

It is the most recent development of the Kennedy Engineering Staff and sets a new standard in simplicity of operation—one dial controls all tuning. Anyone can operate this new Kennedy Model—without previous knowledge of radio. Any piano and phonograph salesman can sell it—without special training or technical experience.

Model V is furnished in a solid mahogany cabinet, very pleasing in design and desirable as a piece of furniture. The sloping panel has been placed at just the right height and angle to assure the greatest ease, comfort and precision in tuning.

Aside from Model V, here illustrated, the new Kennedy Radio Furniture Models may be had in prices from $285.00 to $825.00, completely equipped. These more elaborate models follow correct period furniture designs and fit in with the most exquisite and tasteful surroundings.

The Kennedy merchandising policy is distinctly favorable to music dealers. It calls for the appointment of ONE music dealer in each community and assures a profit-building opportunity that is most desirable. Exclusive Kennedy music dealers are rapidly being selected—if your territory is still open we shall be glad to negotiate with you.

NEW VICTOR ARTISTS OF THE YEAR

Imposing List of Artists Who Have Made Their Debut Among Talking Machine Owners This Year Through Medium of Victor Records

The Victor Talking Machine Co. announced this month the release of records by a number of new orchestras and artists, among which are the following:

Waring's Pennsylvanians, which is composed of men who started as a quartet of musicians when they were students at the Pennsylvania State College and who obtained great popularity when they played for the "College Proms" at that university. Later on they made trips through many parts of Pennsylvania and later augmented their organization with other young musicians, until the present group of twelve clever musicians was formed. Their work is best known to the public through their engagements in the theatres of the larger cities throughout the country, including Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles, in which latter city they were chosen to open up the new four-million-dollar Metropolitan Theatre. They are now more or less continually "on the road" and plan soon to repeat their transcontinental trip.

Barney Rapp and His Orchestra, who attained great popularity in dancing circles at the Pavilion Royal and the Boardwalk, New York City; the Palais Royal, Hartford; the Sinton

Hotel, in Cincinnati, and the Chase Hotel of St. Louis. They are now playing at the Brown Hotel in Louisville with equal success.

The Garber-Davis Orchestra, which first arose to prominence in Atlanta, but which is now filling many engagements in New York City and the metropolitan district. It has appeared in vaudeville and plans to continue to do so, playing also at dance halls of the larger kind.

Silverman and His Orchestra, of which David H. Silverman is the leader, won its reputation at the Hotel Jefferson in St. Louis. Mr. Silverman is a musician of considerable repute, having

FAVOR TALKING MACHINE SHOW

Committee Appointed by New York Talking Machine Men, Inc., to Investigate Possibilities of Show Favors Plan—Big Meeting in January

A New York talking machine show was the principal topic of discussion at the December meeting of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., of New York, at the Café Boulevard on Wednesday, December 5. A report favoring such a show was made by a committee consisting of Lambert Friedl, chairman; Harry A. Beach, Henry Conn, J. J. Davin, Otto Heineman, Maurice Landay, Irwin Kurtz and M. Max.

Mr. Friedl, manager of the Wanamaker talking machine department, declared that the committee was inclined to favor such a proposition, begun his professional career as musical director for the F. L. Talbott Enterprises.

Moss and Frye are two very clever colored comedians who have won outstanding success in vaudeville.

The Bethel Jubilee Quartet, a body of colored singers, hailing from Columbia, S. C., attained prominence during a religious revival. Reverend Wiseman, who leads the quartet and sings the bass parts, conducted a choir of eight hundred voices at revivals and it was from this number that the present quartet was selected. "Negro spirituals" are admirably sung by this body.

provided that the retail dealers in the city co-operated in every way. He pointed out that without co-operation of this character the project would be a failure. Otto Heineman, head of the General Phonograph Corp., seconded Mr. Friedl's opinions, reiterating the necessity of dealer backing, as also did Harry Beach, general manager of the Eastern division of the Brunswick Co. Further action will probably be taken at the next meeting.

Announcement was made by Irwin Kurtz, president of the Association, that the first meeting of the new year will be held on January 9, and every member of the talking machine trade and affiliated music industries will be invited to attend. Richard W. Lawrence, president of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, will address the meeting and there will be other speakers of equal prominence.

Representatives of M. Witmark & Sons, music publishers, provided entertainment by presenting several of their latest numbers, including "That Brand New Gal of Mine," "More," "Bahama," "I'm Sitting Pretty in a Pretty Little City" and "I'm Goin' South."

Sol Lazarus, chairman of the ball committee, reported that the annual ball held in the Hotel Pennsylvania, an account of which appears in another section of this issue of The World, was one of the most successful ever held by the Association, and E. G. Brown, secretary-treasurer of the organization, stated that although the returns were not all in, the net profits of the affair would be in the neighborhood of $1,000.

C. C. Kleber, of the Vox Corp., and R. H. Arnould, of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., were elected to associate membership.

GOTHAM EDISON DEALERS BUSY

The Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, when interviewed by a representative of The World, reported very excellent business throughout the Fall and a splendid outlook for the holiday season. Practically every dealer served by this company has been running on low inventory right along, so that the stock turnover has been going on at a gratifying rate. The principal demand is for the new baby console model of the New Edison. Each month this Edison jobbing organization continues to add quite a number of new dealers to its roster.

An Acknowledgment

It is with pride and pleasure that we acknowledge the support and patronage extended to us by our Edison dealers during the past year. During 1924 we will leave nothing undone to earn and justify the continuance of this loyalty and confidence.

It is our earnest wish that every Edison dealer will enjoy a very Merry Christmas, followed by a New Year of prosperity and happiness.

Creating 100 Per Cent Sales Organization

Every Employe and Executive, From the Office Boy to the President, Should Be a Prolific Source of Live Prospects and Sales

There is no standing still in business. The aggressive talking machine merchant is constantly on the lookout for new prospects—he realizes that they are the life-blood that keeps business on the move. Hence the average talking machine merchant is coming to perceive that as a matter of fact he has two sales forces in his warerooms. The first of these is, of course, the men who do the actual work of selling; the second consists of every other employe from the porter up to the head of a department not directly concerned with the selling end. Quite recently The World described in detail the organization of what Lyon & Healy, Inc., of Chicago, calls its inner sales force. In this article it was stated that a total of $400,000 gross business had been traced to this source within a period of about a year. This, of course, is a striking example of the efficiency with which such a force can be organized and made to function successfully. But it is by no means an isolated case. Such well-known houses as Sherman, Clay & Co., in San Francisco; the Knight-Campbell Music Co., in Denver, and many other concerns throughout the country maintain similar forces and find them relatively as profitable in increasing the gross volume of business transacted.

Employes as Prospect Hunters

The importance of having all the music merchant's employes constantly securing prospects for the actual selling organization to handle should not be minimized, nor is there any merchant, whether his organization be large or small, who can afford to neglect this method to keep in touch with his clientele.

There is no employe who cannot be a source of prospects. Each of them is the center of his own little world and is in daily contact with a comparatively large number of people. What is most advantageous of all is that in most cases he knows such people well, knows their desires and peculiarities, knows their financial resources and their ability to purchase and thus is able to give the house a much more intelligent report upon them than can be obtained by any of the ordinary means of creating prospects. Furthermore, the prospect which comes from the employe is, in nine cases out of ten, prejudiced in favor of the house to begin with, for here the elements of good-will and friendship have a wider scope to play a large part in ultimately closing the sale.

Responsibility Rests With Dealer

It depends strictly upon the merchant himself whether or not he can build up such an organization among his employes. The first factor in doing this is to thoroughly satisfy the average employe that he will be properly rewarded for every sale that comes to the house by this means. The second is to make sure that such prospect cards are handled in the fashion that strict justice will be done and that every employe will be protected in his rights upon every prospect he turns in. There is nothing which will do more to disturb such relations between house and employes than a dispute over the commission in such a sale and nothing that will more quickly break down the enthusiasm and the desire to help than grudgingly to give a commission after such a quarrel.

The expense involved in this method is comparatively small. It is much less expensive to pay an employe a commission upon a sale which comes through him than it is to pay the ordinary amount of overhead involved in the average prospect created by ordinary means. Of course, it is not meant by this that creating prospects through employes' personal contacts can take the place of ordinary advertising or whatever means the house may use in its sales methods. But such a system can most adequately supplement this work and create a much wider range of contact than is ordinarily the case, a condition which must ultimately be reflected in an increased volume of sales.

One of the greatest factors in preventing a talking machine merchant from intensively working the territory in which he does business is neglect of obvious opportunities to maintain contact with the purchasing public therein. The merchant who does not imbue all of his employes with selling enthusiasm is showing a most patent neglect and is suffering continuously in lost sales because of it.

How Retailers Are Merchandising Radio

Tie-up With Radio Musical Programs Sells Records—Eliminating Tuning-in—Canvassing Route to Sales and Other Suggestions

Radio, because of its rapid rise to popularity, has now become a force in the musical and entertainment world which the talking machine dealer must take cognizance of. Whether the dealer handles radio or contemplates handling it makes no difference. The very fact that thousands of radio receiving set owners, the majority of whom also own talking machines, are receiving nightly musical programs through the ether is in itself of inestimable importance in promoting the cause of music in that it brings forcibly to the attention of radio enthusiasts and music lovers selections which under ordinary circumstances would never be heard by them. It is publicity of the most forceful character and no live talking machine retailer will overlook the possibilities of capitalizing on this opportunity. Anything that helps to sell records is putting money into the trade and although there are many dealers who feel that radio is hurting their business, there are others who have found that by tying up with it they are gaining in record sales.

Capitalizing on Radio Programs

That there is a real opportunity of stimulating record business by tying up with the radio musical programs is being proved by many dealers. For example, right here in New York there is a dealer who is making sales every day through a very simple and inexpensive little publicity stunt. Each evening this dealer goes over the various radio programs and selects those numbers which have been recorded by the company whose line he handles. Bright and early the next morning the following notice appears in the window: "Wireless! Did you hear (name of selections) over the radio last night? We have a record of it. Come in and hear it." The number of people who apparently have heard the selections listed broadcasted is astonishing, and here is the important part of the situation: With very few exceptions the people who come into the store for the purpose of listening to these selections on the phonograph go out with one or more records. Also, new customers have been added to the store's list of patrons. This is only one means of tying up with radio and making it an active force in creating record business. The window is undoubtedly an excellent medium by which to cash in on radio programs. There is advertising in the local newspapers and many other equally effective methods of reaching the radio and music public with a message which will bring in the profits.

Selling Radio

Two of the largest talking machine dealers in New York are making extensive merchandising plans to increase radio sales. What these dealers are doing is interesting, inasmuch as other dealers who are contemplating a similar step may get some valuable hints.

One of the concerns is Landay Bros. One of the busiest stores operated by this company is the Forty-second street, New York, branch. The third floor of the store is being given over to the radio department. Sets are displayed in booths. They are tuned in with the programs so that it will only be necessary to turn on a switch to hear the broadcast program. No fooling around with dials and knobs and thus forcing the attention of the customers to the necessity of adjusting the instrument to the various wave lengths. While the actual operation of adjusting is thus eliminated in the demonstration, care is taken to thoroughly instruct each patron on the manner in which the adjustments can be made. According to Arthur Hill, manager of this store, there is no reason why radio should not be sold in practically the same manner as and to the same people who purchase talking machines. He pointed out that there is no necessity for a readjustment in the art of selling, nor is there any reason to fear that radio will detract from talking machine business or cause any upheaval in the trade. "The talking machine retail trade is eminently fitted to handle radio as it should be merchandised," declared Mr. Hill, "and there is no reason why talking machine dealers should not consider radio as another means of increasing their profits and widening the scope of their business.

If we don't take advantage of radio, some other business will."

Canvassing for Radio Sales

Canvassing will be the principal method of merchandising radio at the store of A. H. Mayers, New York, according to A. A. Mayers, manager. This concern has a prospect list second to none in point of number of names, each of which is a live prospect or a customer. Canvassers will visit both owners and non-owners of talking machines in the interest of radio. It is the opinion of Mr. Mayers that the door bell route to radio sales will be just as productive of business as it has been in the case of talking machines.

Demonstration Rooms for Radio

One thing seems universally agreed upon by talking machine dealers who handle radio and that is that sound-proof booths are absolutely essential in order to get the best results. The radio demonstration depends for success largely upon the quality of the transmission of the program and favorable results are impossible when the honking of automobile horns, the purring of motors and the noises of the street permeate the atmosphere. Anyone who has tried to listen to a program when there are outside noises will realize the truth of this. Nothing will turn the thoughts of a prospective customer away from radio more surely than a demonstration under adverse conditions. A comfortably appointed room with outside sounds eliminated as much as possible is the dealer's one best bet in demonstrating radio.

Keep Away From Technical Talk

Another angle of the radio merchandising game which talking machine dealers declare is harmful to the possibilities of making sales is the infusion into the sales talk of too much technical information. Experience has already proved that what the average prospect for a radio receiving set is most interested in is the clearness and faithfulness of the receiving of the program. The salesman who tries to show his technical knowledge to prospects who are not inclined in that direction will find that he has a hard road to travel. On the other hand, technical knowledge of the line handled, as well as general information regarding the mechanical details of various radio outfits and accessories is absolutely essential for the salesman. This is so for the very simple reason that the radio salesmen will find that there are many prospects who have a leaning toward mechanical and technical details and in order for the salesman to establish himself in the confidence of this type of prospect he must be in a position to answer any questions of a technical nature which may be asked and to volunteer information which is certain to interest the mechanical bug. Radio is a broad field and the opportunities are there. These few hints are all based on the experiences of successful retailers who handle both talking machines and radio and who have experimented to find the best method of presenting this instrument to the public.

Indifference and Inefficiency Kill Sales

Where Service Is a Minus Quantity Sales Will Be Conspicuous by Their Absence—Braid White Gives a Very Apt Illustration

The other day a well-known talking machine jobber was asked by a lady related to his family to come with her to look at some reproducing pianos, from among several of which she hoped to choose one to suit her. The lady has money and musical taste. She was willing to pay whatever price might be necessary in order to obtain just what she wanted and had actually made up her mind to an investment of from three thousand to three thousand five hundred dollars.

This jobber was at one time in the piano business; in fact, was a well-known piano salesman with a high-grade house in a large Eastern city. He knows the piano business from end to end and understands all the ins and outs of piano selling. Still, he did not wish to influence his relative in any way, but was willing to go with her and see what he could do in the way of suggestion and selection.

The Place of Darkness

Visits were paid to three stores. At the first store they found no one to greet them till they had walked through to the back and asked if they could see a salesman, whereupon a young woman called lustily into the rear and succeeded in disinterring a man from the darkness of the back room. He took the prospective purchasers upstairs and showed them an instrument which, however, was very much out of tune, and besides did not attract their favorable attention in other ways. The salesman did not ask them what music they would like to hear, but put on a popular piece and started the thing going. The result was very unmusical, the visitors thought, and they could get no intelligent answers to their questions; so they departed.

Out of Stock—and Tune!

At their second visit they were told that no instrument of the make they asked for was on the floor, since all of that make had been sold. The salesman did not enlighten them upon the nature of such stock as he had still unsold until he was actually asked. Thereupon he showed them three other instruments, one of which was disconnected and one of which would not work, owing to some other defect. The third was out of tune and besides was not entirely new, so that its mechanism was in part obsolete. The salesman insisted on playing such music as he personally liked and only upon direct request did he bring out a catalog and permit the prospective purchasers to choose some selections for themselves. Only one of these, however, was available and, all in all, the second visit proved to be as unsatisfactory as the first.

The third visit was hardly more satisfactory, since the salesman inserted a roll of some jazzy music and then went away and left the visitors listening while he paid a visit to another room. Upon his return the prospective purchasers had made up their mind that they did not like any of the instruments they had heard and did not feel inclined to hear any others at that store.

The net result was that a business man wasted an afternoon, a lady with money and the desire to spend it found no one willing to show her reasonably intelligent service in return for her money, and three well-known stores exhibited themselves in an extremely unfavorable light. What are we to think of such a state of affairs?

Better still, what bearing has a story like this upon the talking machine business?

The Moral's Point

Of course, it has a very marked bearing upon the phonograph business. For, if we stop to think, we see at once that what is here told might have been told of phonograph merchants in any community one might name, allowing for inherent differences in the details. It happened that a talking machine man who had been a piano man, saw some examples of very bad retail service before his eyes; but it was no more than chance which brought forth such inexcusable examples in piano rather than in talking machine stores.

It is true, in fact, that the worst enemy the retail music business has ever discovered is the enemy of inefficient, unintelligent, indifferent salesmanship, the enemy whose name is poor, grudgingly given service. To-day, both in the piano and the talking machine ends of the music business it is true, as never before, that intelligent service is the foundation of successful retail selling, and this because to-day intelligent demonstration is essential to salesmanship, which, indeed, rests upon it. The reproducing piano obviously cannot be sold on its looks or on its price. It must be sold on its performance, just as its performance, its ability to do certain specific things, forms the foundation of all the advertising of it which is done on so lavish a scale by its various manufacturers. Unintelligent retail service on this instrument is therefore a fatal bar to success.

Demonstration Is Everything

Now, precisely the same is true of the talking machine. Is there any instrument which even so wholly as this one depends upon intelligent demonstration? Of course not. The reproducing piano can at least be played upon its keyboard. But the talking machine is useless until it has been connected with a record. And even then the connection is of little effect unless it be made intelligently. In this sense, the word "intelligent" signifies that the acts which make up a demonstration shall be carried out at the bidding of a will which comprehends the essentials of talking machine salesmanship. The first essential is that the salesman shall be able to ascertain what it is the prospective purchaser really desires to hear and what, in fact, that person's idea of music in the home via the talking machine really comes to. With every individual this idea is different. The salesman cannot hope to impose his own ideas upon the prospect save at the grave risk of destroying the latter's interest entirely and so of frustrating the very desire which brought the prospect to the store in the first place.

Weakest Point Should Be Strongest

If one were to ask for a short explanation and description of the weakest feature of the retail music business one could hardly make better ones than the jobber has done whose words to the writer have here been paraphrased. The talking machine merchant has no claim to bestow praise on himself and his confrères; for talking machine stores not infrequently show the worst offenses against intelligent sales service. The very worst feature of the talking machine business is to be found at the very point where the strongest feature ought to be lodged, namely, in the direct contact with the public.

There is no advantage in fine national advertising, in magnificent catalogs of vocal and instrumental music, in splendidly designed and constantly improved machines at moderate prices; there is no advantage in any or all of this if the personal treatment of the customer is not efficient and courteous, and, above all, intelligent. To know one's goods and what they are capable of doing may not be the whole of salesmanship, but in the talking machine business it is very nearly all.

STEADMAN ADDS VOCALION LINE

Direct-mail Announcement to Customers and Prospects Follows Addition of Aeolian-Vocalion Machines and Records

YONKERS, N. Y., December 4.—The addition of the Aeolian-Vocalion line of machines and records by the Steadman Music House, of this city, one of the largest and most successful music concerns in this section of the State, was heralded by some extensive publicity, including a letter of announcement to all customers and prospects on the mailing list. In order to make the best use of the record supplements and other publicity material in connection with this acquisition, enclosed in the same envelope with the letter was a stamped, addressed return post-card with the following brief request: "Please enter my name on your mailing list to receive supplements of Victor and Vocalion records." Only those who are interested enough to return these cards will receive the supplements, thus eliminating waste and cutting down mailing expenses. The Steadman Music House now handles Victor, Edison, Sonora and Vocalion instruments as well as musical merchandise.

GRANITE CITY, ILL., December 3.—Dennis Bros. Furniture Co., this city, recently secured the local agency for Victor talking machines and records. BIG MID-WEST COLUMBIA DEMAND

A. B. EDUCATE THE PUBLIC BY CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

The Baldwin warerooms in Cincinnati are showing a very attractive window to create early Christmas sales or to suggest at least the idea of records as a gift. The white ivory paneling of the wood-work of the rear and sides of the window is decorated with sprays of Autumn leaves. In the center rear two strips of crepe paper, like tapestry, covered with Autumn leaves, are hung down and one across at the top against the white background.

As if this arrangement were to act as a frame a plain model Walnut Victrola console assumes a place against the background, fitting right into this setting. The floor of hardwood oak is strewn with Autumn leaves here and there, also miniature Victor dogs, the well-known trade-mark.

Boxes of records, the "Treasure Chest," are displayed on slanting low racks (invisible), with fringe of paper in Autumn shades around the edge of the boxes. A showcard to the rear left-hand side, done in red with white lettering, announces the fact that the "Treasure Chest," containing six double-faced records of songs of many lands, would make an ideal Christmas present.

BARBER STORE DAMAGED BY FIRE

BRATTLEBORO, VT., December 9.—A midnight blaze in an adjoining structure caused quite some damage by smoke and water to the talking machine stock of Barber's Music Store, a retailer of the Victor and Edison lines, in this city. Despite this setback at a most important time of the year business is being conducted as usual, and Mr. Barber is making every effort to replenish the damaged stock.

The A. Gressett Music House, Meridian, Miss., recently added the Columbia line and is doing an excellent business, both in machines and records.

A. F. MACOUN IN NEW POST

Now Manager of Hahne & Co.'s Talking Machine Department in Newark, N. J.—Succeeded by Miss Edith Drake at Ludwig Bauman's—Formerly With Landay Store

NEWARK, N. J., December 4.—A. F. Macoun, formerly manager of the talking machine department of Ludwig Bauman & Co., Market street, this city, and more recently connected with the new Broad street store in the same capacity, is now manager and buyer of the talking machine department of Hahne & Co., also of this city. Mr. Macoun has had wide experience in the retailing of talking machines and is an executive of ability.

Miss Edith Drake is the successor of Mr. Macoun at the Broad street Ludwig Bauman store. She also has had considerable experience in the retail talking machine field, having been connected with that department of L. Bamberger & Co., of this city, and one of the largest department stores in the East, for a period covering four years. She was also at one time in the talking machine department of the local Landay store.

DEATH OF ANTHONY F. TROESCHER

Anthony F. Troesch, one of the founders of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., which was organized forty years ago, died at his home, No. 135 Central Park West, New York, November 21, in his eighty-first year. Mr. Troesch was first president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of New York, and served continuously until his retirement ten years ago. He was born in Germany, August 13, 1842, and came to this country with his parents when ten years old. They settled in Cincinnati, and when sixteen he joined the firm of J. M. Brunswick and Balke Co. He was instrumental in the merging of the latter concern with the Hugh W. Collender Co., thereby laying the foundation for the present Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

Mr. Troesch is survived by two sons, Albert A. and Robert F., and one daughter, Mrs. Marie Clausen. He was a member of the Liederkrantz and Billiard Clubs of New York.

WANAMAKER AT AD. EXPOSITION

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Advertising Exposition, held last month in the Seventy-first regiment armory, New York City, was an exhibit of a completely furnished living-room in a modern home. The most interesting part of the display, which was in charge of Mrs. Frances H. Seaver, director of the Home Budget Service of the New York Wanamaker store, was a combination talking machine and radio outfit. This instrument featured the regular console Victrola in which had been installed a Paragon radio receiving set. In addition there was a grand piano and other furniture suited to a living-room.

Rural Dwellers Make Excellent Prospects

Farmer's Mode of Living and Isolation Favor the Sale of Talking Machines and Records—Successful Methods of a Live Dealer

In thousands of villages and towns throughout this vast country there are talking machine dealers who, if they confined their sales strictly to the small handful of people in their communities, would be compelled to either get out of business or go somewhere else where there are more people. However, the people residing in the town or village itself represent the least of the opportunities for business of the dealer. The larger and possibly more productive field is the farm territory. True, the houses are scattered and there may not be as many people per square mile, but this is more than balanced by the overwhelming chances in favor of making sales. Everything pertaining to the farmer's mode of living has a favorable bearing on the sales opportunity, according to the viewpoint of the dealer. There is the isolation, lack of amusements, long Winter evenings with little or nothing to do, the need for something that will influence the children to remain on the farm instead of running to the cities as soon as they are out of their teens, and a host of factors which react in favor of the talking machine dealer.

Large Territory Must Be Covered

Naturally, because of the sparseness of the population, the dealer or his salesmen who desire to make a paying proposition of catering to the farmers must cover a wide territory. Some dealers systematically cover a territory from thirty to fifty miles from the town in which they are located. This is not a very difficult task with an automobile and the expense involved in the upkeep of a machine is a small factor to a real live salesman. Another thing, the salesman who desires to work the rural sections should not only take along a talking machine, but he must carry a pretty good stock of records as well. Often he will come across a farmer who already owns a machine, but who may desire some records, and it would be well if the salesman can take care of this business. Every sale counts in bringing up the annual volume of business.

How a Live Wire Gets Rural Trade

There is no use in spouting a lot of platitudes about how the dealer should do this or that to succeed; therefore, a complete outline will be given of the methods which a dealer in upper New York State has found productive of business with the farmers in his territory. M. Slason & Son, of Malone, N. Y., may be considered among the most successful dealers who conduct an extensive business with rural dwellers—this in spite of the tendency of the farmers to send to the mail order houses for whatever they happen to need. In the first place, M. Slason & Son keep a prospect list of all the live prospects in the large territory which they cover. Since Canada is but a few miles to the North, the territory is divided into three parts—

How Slason & Son Go Over Territory

East, South and West. One man covers each territory. Coupé automobiles of a popular make are supplied to make easier the work of the salesmen in all kinds of weather. The cars are good enough in construction to withstand the strain of hard usage and at the same time they are attractive enough in finish to attract favorable attention. Once each month the sales manager, G. G. Spear, covers the entire territory to see how things are going and to make first-hand observation of the problems of the salesmen.

Why Farmers Are Good Prospects

F. W. Tierney, of M. Slason & Son, gives some interesting reasons why the farmer makes a first-class talking machine prospect. He states that: "Among our rural people we find that the thought of enjoying good music during the long Winter evenings does a whole lot toward making a sale. Also the fact that in a home where there is no music or entertainment the young people want to get out and go to the cities.

"The farmer very seldom buys a machine costing less than $100. It is worth notice that among this class of trade the standard music on records outsells either the classic or popular. Such things as jigs and reels and old-time songs are most in demand. The proportion is about as follows, as near as I can figure: Jigs, reels and old songs, 50 per cent; dance records (popular), 40 per cent; classical records, 10 per cent.

How to Get the Business

"We have a mailing list and send out the record supplements and other literature regularly. We have worked up a nice mail order business through impressing our customers with the fact that we are glad to send records by parcel post, giving them better and quicker service than they can get through mail order houses. When an instrument has been sold we supply customers with a number of addressed envelopes for use in making their payments. We have very little trouble with collections. As a rule when the farmer has the money he pays promptly. In the Winter, however, collections from our rural customers may be a little slow, but as a general thing we have their payments pretty nearly on time."

Persistency Makes Sales

This concern has found that persistency is of vital importance in making sales to farmers. Some of the prospects in its files are five or six years old. One or two calls a year are made on these "hard-to-sell" prospects and Mr. Tierney declares nine out of ten of them are eventually sold. Personal contact has been found by far the best way of keeping in touch with prospects and the salesmen are in touch with them at all times. Another point stressed by this live dealer is the necessity of friendliness and a neighborly attitude. Distance or "uppishness" invariably proves the best way to kill sales. These few hints on making rural business pay are the result of many years of successful selling to this class of people and retailers who are similarly situated can profit by them. At any rate, rural dwellers should not be overlooked in the sales campaign.

AGGRESSIVE METHODS OF PEPPER CO.

Large Stockton, Cal., Music Concern Uses Extensive Newspaper Advertising in Pre-holiday Business Drive on Musical Instruments

STOCKTON, CAL., December 4.—The Pepper Music Co., one of the largest and most successful music houses on the West Coast, made an early start in its annual drive for holiday business. A newspaper campaign started in November by this company is probably the most extensive ever undertaken by a retail dealer here. In a recent issue of the Stockton Daily Evening Record four complete pages, in the form of an insert, were used to bring the various musical lines handled before the public. The insert was printed on green stock, so that it stood out from the rest of the paper. The first page was devoted to a picture of the store and a very brief history of the concern. On this page also appeared a list of the lines handled, which include a wide selection of the leading makes of pianos; Victor, Brunswick, Edison, Sonora, Columbia, Cheney and Pathé phonographs; Buescher, Martin and other lines of saxophones and band and string instruments. The two inside pages were devoted to illustrations and descriptions of many of the instruments handled, while the last page featured Sonora phonographs.

BRUNS MADERITE Phono Moving Covers

Cover, Straps Attached

For all models of Upright and Console Machines

Every progressive dealer needs a supply of dependable moving covers. Mr. Average Man dislikes to unpack anything he buys. By using padded delivery covers you protect and deliver a perfect instrument with no necessity for dirt, inconvenience or trouble to your customer.

It is much more simple to slip a cover over an instrument at the store and off at point of delivery and the impression left with your customer is pleasant. MADERITE covers are strong, well padded and satisfactory from every standpoint.

Radiola Grand

WITH the Radiola Grand, radio takes on new meaning. The simplicity of tuning in—just a knob or two to turn. The big distances it covers—picking up far-away stations with volume enough to fill a room. The perfection of tone with which the loudspeaker—carefully built in like the horn of a fine phonograph—gives forth the music and speech. All this—combined in a cabinet of skillful workmanship and tasteful design—places radio in the home where beauty counts—and performance.

Points to note:

All the batteries—dry cells—are hidden away inside.

You can regulate the volume of sound by a control that governs the loudspeaker.

For long distance, plug in the headphones. Coast to coast reception is no unusual record for Radiola Grand!

Famous for true reception, undistorted. For keen sensitivity. And for beauty.

A PALATIAL TRADE EMPORIUM

Atmosphere of Old World Reproduced in Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles, Store—A Triumph of Artistic Effect in Every Respect

Those members of the trade who are under the impression that the really elaborate talking machine stores are found mostly east of the Mississippi will doubtless be duly impressed with the accompanying photograph of the en-ceiling being hand painted and particularly elaborate in character. The whole effect is most impressive and the store has been commented upon by many visitors to Los Angeles.

The president of the Southern California Music Co. is Edward H. Uhl, formerly general manager of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Chicago, who purchased a controlling interest in the Los Angeles concern only a few months ago.

The business of the company is one of the most substantial in the State and has always

MESSAGES ON BUSINESS CARDS

Landay Bros.' Executives and Salesmen Have Business Cards That Tell a Story and Call Attention to the Products Handled

Landay Bros., who operate a chain of retail talking machine stores in New York City and its environs, never overlook a bet when it comes to constructive publicity and ways and means of bringing their stores and the line handled to the public. The business card of an executive or a sales representative is a small thing in itself, but Landay Bros. have achieved an outstanding success in the talking machine field by paying attention to apparent trifles. The business cards of the Landay executives are in the form of a small folder, about the size of the regulation card. The front of the "folder" contains the phone number of the store, a small neat illustration of a talking machine, the name of the executive and his position with the firm and the address of the store which he represents. Naturally, anyone receiving the card opens it and immediately he is faced with this: "Seven Landay Stores," followed by a list of the stores. On the second half of the inside of the card is a list of the lines handled, and at the end is the message: "Victrolas and Everything in Music." These cards tell a story and are, therefore, just so much effective advertising.

NEW BANNER MOVIE SLIDES

The Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, announces to the trade a new series of illustrated comedy advertising slides in colors for motion picture houses. These illustrations are in the nature of humorous sketches in which both the Banner record and local retailer are given publicity. Inasmuch as their use adds to the entertainment of movie audiences, Banner dealers should experience little trouble in arranging for their use, at a nominal cost, in local motion picture houses.

WOMEN HOLD WORLD'S PURSE-STRINGS

While men may earn the money, by far the largest proportion of it is spent by women, according to Mrs. Christine Frederick, writer and household efficiency expert, in an address at the Advertising Exposition held recently in New York. Mrs. Frederick gave some interesting statistics showing the various items of which women are the largest purchasers. Women buy 76 per cent of all talking machines sold, while the remaining 24 per cent are purchased by men, according to these statistics.

Piser & Co., Sonora and Victor dealers, 2887 Third avenue, New York City, have inaugurated a vigorous pre-holiday advertising campaign in one of the newspapers catering to that section of the city.

Specific Letters Are the Biggest "Pullers"

The Direct Mail Letter of Solicitation Should Be Sales Talk on Paper—Logical Development of Text of Paramount Importance

Direct mail campaigns must be specific if they are to accomplish any real results. The commonest mistake of dealers who institute publicity campaigns for business is that the letter part of the drive is usually too general in character and the volume of business accruing so disappointing that the dealer makes a solemn vow never to waste any more money on direct mail publicity. The fact is, however, that if a mail campaign does not bring results there is something radically wrong with the manner in which the drive was conducted or with the type of copy used. Experience has demonstrated often enough that business can be secured through the mail if the drive is carefully planned and properly carried out.

The Principles Involved

A direct mail drive has for its purpose exactly what is expected of advertising, namely, to arouse the interest of the prospect to the point where he or she will visit the store sending out the letter. If any of the factors that attract attention, arouse interest and induce action are missing the campaign is very likely to be a partial failure and the result even may be a total failure. The general letters which so many retailers send to prospects and customers are faulty for the very reason that they are general in character. Instead of drawing attention specifically to certain products which the dealer is trying to sell there is too often a lot of verbiage not germane to the subject at issue. In consequence of this the letter makes no distinct impression on the mind of the recipient inasmuch as there is nothing which is likely to arouse the interest of the prospect in the product handled by the retailer and the letter is relegated to the wastepaper basket.

The Specific Letter Sells

The specific letter, which correctly embodies the three fundamental principles of advertising, treats of the product or products which the dealer handles. For example, assume that a dealer has in stock a large number of upright instruments of a certain model which he is anxious to dispose of. The only method by which he can sell them to the public through letters or any other kind of advertising is by concentrating the text of his message on these particular instruments—their beauty of construction, reproducing qualities, price and terms. In the direct mail campaign the sales talk should be logically developed and the shorter and more simply written is the letter the greater are the chances of cashing in on the drive. The main object, of course, is to develop the interest of the prospect to such a pitch that action naturally follows, this consisting either of a visit to the dealer's establishment or by communication with the store by mail, phone, etc. Once this desirable result is accomplished the rest is up to the sales organization, each member of which should be entirely familiar with the drive so that prospects can be approached in an intelligent manner. Reproduced below are examples of letters which have proved their worth and which embody the principles outlined:

Dear Sir:—WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT MUSIC? That charming, cheery and melodious effect produced which takes away dull care and brightens the home surroundings.

If it is in the musical line, we have it. Our large attractive store in Hackensack, easy of access by all means of transportation, brings us in close touch with your home. We want you to get acquainted with us and make this your musical headquarters, and that is why we are directly bringing our store to your attention.

You will find in our showrooms a complete line of pianos of well-known makes, such as A. B. Chase, Emerson, Lindeman & Sons, Milton and Brambach. The prices range for uprights from $395 up, players from $545 up, and baby grands from $635 up. Reproducing pianos from $975 up.

In our talking machine department we are showing the newest models of Victrolas, including the art and console designs, at a new range of prices from $25 upward.

We also carry a complete stock of Victor records, musical instruments, sheet music, music rolls, and accessories.

Music lovers will find here everything to suit their taste and fancy. If the ready cash is not available, we arrange terms to suit. Yours respectfully, BROWN'S MUSIC SHOP.

The object of the letter sent out by Brown's Music Shop, which is a new store, was to build up a prospect list and broadcast the fact that the store had been opened. Although 5,000 letters had just been sent out at the time of this writing returns were already beginning to come in. These, no doubt, will be augmented by a follow-up letter which will soon be mailed.

In a letter mailed to newlyweds, upon information obtained from the marriage license bureau, the returns on which to date have been sufficient to encourage the continuation of the campaign, the following leading paragraphs had a particularly timely appeal:

"Dear Sir—In starting your new home do not overlook the happiness and joy of music. Music is that necessity of life that cheers you when you are blue, consoles you when you are sad, soothes you when you are tired, and gives you all the comforts and joy of 'Home, Sweet Home.'

"To get the greatest satisfaction from music it is worth while to secure the advice of 'specialists.'"

This was followed by a description of what was termed a "Happy Home Outfit," consisting of a talking machine, records, record brush, needles and all the other necessary accessories.

Selecting the Prospects

It is obvious to anyone who has been in the talking machine business for any length of time how useless it is to try to make an indiscriminate appeal. It is a great temptation for the dealer to select his prospect names from the telephone or city directory. This is unsatisfactory and usually the results are so far below par that the campaign represents a loss. The dealer works in the dark. He knows little of the type of people among whom he is soliciting business. He does not know whether any of the people to whom he sends his letters are interested in a talking machine or whether they would consider the type of instrument he is offering. The only solution of this problem is an up-to-date prospect list and this means not only the names of people who may be interested in a talking machine, but also sufficient information regarding them to enable the dealer to determine who are the most likely to respond to his mail appeal. It is much more profitable to send out one hundred letters to people who are in the market for an instrument or records than to send out a thousand letters blindly in the hope that some of the people receiving them may be interested.

COLUMBIA WINDOW CONTEST

Employees of New York Branch, Teamed in Pairs, Trying Skill in Model Store

The local branch of the Columbia Phonograph Co., New York, is holding a window-dressing contest among its employees. The participants in the contest are divided up into sixteen teams, two persons to a team. Each team has an opportunity to decorate the display window in the model store of the branch, the display remaining for two weeks, at the expiration of which time another team is permitted to try its skill. The rules of the contest provide that each team is allowed an expenditure of not more than $2.50 for material to be used in the display. However, it is at liberty to use any stock and advertising matter which may be in the possession of the local branch. Judges of the contest decide upon the most attractive display during the period of thirty-two weeks, and a suitable prize is awarded to the winning team.

The contest has a twofold purpose; first, it arouses a spirit of healthy competitive interest among the personnel of the branch, and, in the second place, results in a number of good ideas which Columbia dealers may avail themselves of in preparing their window displays.

Study of Humanity Builds Big Business

Live Retailer in New York's San Juan Eliminates Sales Risks Through Constant Study of His Customers and Business Ability

Selling talking machines and records isn't the same everywhere, according to L. Dreazen, proprietor of Dreazen's Music Shop, located in the negro section of New York City. The problems which this live dealer solves daily would make the neighborhood retailer in a quiet residential section of the city throw up his hands in despair. Yet, Mr. Dreazen, through remarkable business ability and the gift of telling at a glance the type of person who enters the store, enjoys a trade second to none in a store of its size in the city. How he has built up a most remarkable business and what he has learned in handling difficult customers, as well as his methods of selling, are interesting, aside from the value of these practical methods to other dealers who are faced with some problems of a similar character.

Must Study Customers

"Although my store happens to be in the negro section of the city, and while I have a large colored clientele, I also have an extensive following of white people. None of my customers is of the type overburdened with money and securing money due me is probably my most difficult problem, especially where the negro trade is concerned. This is due mainly to the happy, care-free dispositions of these people. And I want to say right here that despite my large business I seldom fail to get what is coming to me and repossessions are rare. Why? Simply because I know the people with whom I am doing business. I have studied them for twenty years. I know the characteristics of an individual as soon as he starts to talk. It isn't difficult when one applies himself to studying the little quirks and twists of human nature. No matter where the talking machine dealer is located and no matter what kind of people he serves, he must study them for two reasons; first, to know how to handle them so that he can sell intelligently, and, second, to protect himself against loss, although deliberate tricksters are not numerous.

Methods of Collection

"Of course, I sell on the instalment plan and the down payment I receive in most cases is none too large. I have two collectors on the job regularly who visit each customer weekly. The peculiar bent of the negro makes necessary weekly collections. And, furthermore, the collector must be at the home of the customer when he comes home with the pay envelope, otherwise his chances of getting any money are slim. From my customers I can secure information which few other dealers possess. For example, I know where each member of each family works, when they are paid and when they get home from business. My collector is there when he or she comes home and I must say that by this means we have little trouble in getting the money."

Canvassing Brings Business

Mr. Dreazen believes thoroughly in the canvassing method of securing business. One canvasser is employed regularly and in addition a number of insurance men are on the job. The latter have entré to homes where the ordinary canvasser would not be able to enter and they also have the opportunity of observing whether there is a talking machine in the homes of their clients. The opportunity of actually selling is there, too. These men work on a commission basis, receiving payment only when they make sales. The regular canvasser covers a wide territory and has been successful in adding many regular customers to the already long list of this progressive dealer.

Service Pays Well

The negroes of his section have unlimited confidence in Mr. Dreazen. They know that he will give them a square deal and for this reason his clients purchase all their musical requirements from him. That service pays well here as everywhere is amply demonstrated by the fact that negroes travel all the way from Newark, N. J., and Orange, N. J., to do business with him. They formerly lived in the neighborhood served by the store and when they moved out of town the confidence built up by thoughtful service manifests itself in this continued patronage. This does not apply only to the negroes, but also to the white clientele. Mr. Dreazen enjoys an extensive trade in Brooklyn and Long Island, all purchases being made from the New York store.

Some Exciting Moments

Occasionally a customer tries to quit the city before the instrument has been paid for, taking the machine along. It doesn't work, though, because Mr. Dreazen keeps a close watch and invariably finds out what is in the wind before it is too late. If necessary he traces the person to his or her new home and either repossesses the machine or secures the money due. He is constantly on the outside, going through his territory. One morning he happened to be strolling through a street on which he knew he had several customers. He noticed a moving van backed up to the curb and the men in the act of taking a talking machine from the house in which lives one of his customers. He recognized the instrument as one which had been sold by him a month previously and on which a considerable amount of money was still due. To make sure, however, he questioned the moving men, whom he happened to know, and they told him that the party was moving to the South. His first move was to make sure that the instrument would not be shipped and his second move was to send one of his collectors to visit the purchaser for some plain talk. This is only one of a number of interesting and sometimes exciting moments in the life of this dealer, but it illustrates the point that the merchant who knows his trade and acts accordingly will not be fooled many times by thoughtless or dishonest customers.

PLAZA BULLETIN MEETS REAL NEED

The new illustrated accessory catalog recently forwarded to the trade by the Plaza Music Co. has brought further requests for this publication. It has several features which have a wide appeal. Among these is the fact that the publisher has only included what it calls "featured products," and includes all standard supplies for talking machines. The illustrations, dimensions, price list and other data make the catalog one of ready reference.

CARUSO ROYALTIES HALF MILLION

Court Records Show Victor Paid $585,727 to Tenor's Heirs in Two Years

Royalties totaling $585,727 were paid to the estate of Enrico Caruso, for the years 1921 and 1922, on contracts with the Victor Talking Machine Co., for whom Caruso made records. This was disclosed in an accounting filed last month in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by the widow, Mrs. Dorothy Park Benjamin Caruso. Under the contract the Caruso estate is entitled to 10 per cent royalties for an indefinite number of years.

Mrs. Caruso, who was ancillary executrix of the estate in New Jersey, filed with the accounting a petition that her distribution of the Victor royalties be approved and that thereafter the Victor Co. distribute the royalties to the beneficiaries without her intervention as administratrix.

An agreement provides for the payment of royalties annually. Another Naples court decree, dated June 16, 1922, authorizes the payment of royalties as follows: One-eighth each to the sons, widow and brother, and of the remaining four-eighths, two-eighths to the widow as tutor for Gloria, the tenor's daughter, and the remaining two-eighths to be deposited in the bank to Gloria's account.

MANY ADD CHILDREN'S RECORDS

"Little Tot Records" Made by the Regal Record Co. Find Places in Leading Metropolitan Stores—Special Departments Installed

The Regal Record Co., Inc., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, manufacturer of "Little Tot Records," now has its children's product on sale in thirteen of the fourteen metropolitan department stores. Twelve of these New York stores either have built special booths for the demonstration of these records and the display of the accompanying albums or they have set aside specially equipped booths for those purposes. Most of these booths are decorated in a manner to appeal to children. The nursery illustrations and gay colors are used freely.

Among the stores that are featuring "Little Tot Records" are Stern Bros., Hearn's, McCreery, Gimbel Bros., Bloomingdale's, Abraham & Straus, Frederick Loeser & Co., John Wanamaker, L. Bamberger & Co., A. I. Namm, Lord & Taylor, Hahne & Co., Adams, Flannigan Co. and Koch & Co.

The majority of these stores have found the demand for "Little Tot Records" and the possibilities in sales so large as to make it necessary to appoint special salesmen for the demonstration of these goods and to give service to the users of the children's booths.

In conjunction with the exploitation campaign on "Little Tot Records" during the holiday season the Regal Record Co. has prepared thousands of circulars for consumer distribution. These invariably have the imprint of the retailer, are multi-colored and in most instances carry illustrations for children.

Besides the four albums, with three records in each, the manufacturer also releases from time to time additional records in specially designed envelopes. These can be inserted in the albums, which are arranged in loose-leaf manner. Among the added records are several Christmas numbers which the retailers are finding quite popular at this season.

The four albums each carry a separate title, "Merry Song Book," "Happy Day Book" and "Jolly Game Book." All three of these books carry records with orchestra accompaniment; the other book is one containing stories and is marketed under the name "Story Hour Book."

EXTENSIVE R. C. A. MUSICAL PROGRAM

American Orchestral Society Signed Up to Broadcast Fifteen Concerts From Station WJZ During the Winter Season

The Radio Corp. of America has completed arrangements by which the American Orchestral Society will broadcast from station WJZ, New York, the entire series of fifteen concerts which the organization, in co-operation with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, has scheduled for the Winter season. The first concert was held on November 25, and the remaining programs will be sent through the ether at regular intervals until April 8, 1924. The Orchestral Society numbers over 100 instruments, the entire ensemble to play the first two of the three groups into which the series has been divided. These are five concerts played by the society for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and a series of five concerts composing the annual series given by the society to the People's Institute. The third group will be the Children's Afternoon Concerts, given by an orchestra of fifty-five picked members of the New York Philharmonic.

SONORA POSTERS BEST OF THE YEAR

Sonora posters were selected as the most attractive and effective produced during the year at the annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers held recently at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N. Y. Four of the posters were selected and placed in a prominent position in the hall where the meetings were held and they received honorary mention from the committee in charge.

"An Old World Christmas"
From the painting by Buehr

A real old fashioned Christmas Greeting

Your generous co-operation has made it possible to build up a national organization and to celebrate with you this Christmas, our ninth anniversary.

We deeply appreciate the friendship you have shown and the staunch support you have given us in times of depression. 1923 has been a profitable year and indications point to 1924 as being a year of great prosperity for the entire industry.

We extend to you our sincerest wishes for A Very Merry Christmas and A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Columbia Demonstration Record Big Success

Over a Million of These New Process Records Sold—Great National Publicity Campaign Scoring Splendid Results—Dealers Most Enthusiastic Over Record Return Privilege

Although final sales figures have not yet been completed and will not be available for a few weeks there is every indication that the campaign sponsored by the Columbia Phonograph Co. in behalf of its new demonstration record was one of the most successful sales drives in recent years. Over 1,000,000 of these demonstration records have already been sold, and from coast to coast Columbia branch managers and Columbia dealers have been telephoning and telegraphing additional orders for immediate delivery.

The publicity campaign behind this demonstration record was carefully worked out in every detail and covered magazines and newspapers reaching millions of readers and homes. The campaign started on November 17 with a full-page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of that week. A full page in four colors appeared in the American Weekly of November 25, with a circulation of 4,500,000; full pages were used on November 25 in rotogravure sections of newspapers throughout the country with a combined circulation of 8,000,000 readers and black and white full-page advertisements appeared on November 25 in Sunday newspapers with a circulation of 1,500,000. In order that Columbia dealers might tie up effectively with this mammoth campaign the Columbia advertising department prepared a striking window poster in colors, and dealers everywhere have been displaying this poster to attract the attention of passers-by. Proofs of the full pages appearing in the American Weekly and the Saturday Evening Post were sent to the Columbia branches for distribution among the dealers and were used to excellent advantage.

As a result of this far-reaching advertising campaign and the splendid co-operation afforded Columbia representatives in bringing the demonstration record to the public's attention the success of the drive was immediately apparent. Orders for large quantities were received by the branches from the best dealer accounts in their territories and before the campaign was well under way it was evident that the main problem was one of production and not one of sales. In fact, the Columbia factories have been working to capacity to handle the requirements of the trade for the demonstration record, but, with all of this activity, it has been practically impossible to keep pace with the demands of the dealers.

This demonstration record was introduced in order to call to the attention of prospective record purchasers the distinctive merits of Columbia New Process records. It has succeeded admirably in fulfilling its purpose and Columbia branch managers are unanimous in expressing the opinion that this demonstration record will serve as a vital factor in stimulating the sale of New Process records throughout the coming year. The demonstration record in itself comprises a double ten-inch recording, featuring on one side an operatic selection by Charles Hackett, famous tenor and exclusive Columbia artist; a violin solo by Toscha Seidel, well-known concert violinist and exclusive Columbia artist, and a symphony orchestra number. On the reverse side is a popular dance hit by Ted Lewis, one of the country's foremost dance orchestra directors and an exclusive Columbia artist. Each demonstration record is enclosed in a special envelope of a distinctive color, giving the complete story of the record and its purpose.

In addition to this tremendous advertising campaign devoted exclusively to the demonstration record the Columbia Phonograph Co. used in November countrywide publicity in behalf of Columbia phonographs and records. On November 4 a full page in four colors appeared in the American Weekly, and throughout the month three-inch advertising on current hits was used in approximately 750 newspapers, averaging three insertions per week in each paper. In foreign language newspapers advertising occupying eighteen inches and three inches was used, and a general schedule in leading weekly optimistic reports received by the sales department from branches and dealers throughout the country. The company has been congratulated everywhere upon the liberality and practicability of its record return privilege, announced in the November issue of The World. It is predicted that this return privilege will assist the dealers materially in making the coming year an exceptionally profitable one, insofar as record sales are concerned. The new Columbia record labels are meeting with popular favor wherever they have been shown and the new trade-mark negro newspapers was also included in the month's appropriation.

The December advertising program prepared by the Columbia Co. is even more pretentious and important than the November schedule, constituting a powerful incentive to Columbia sales totals during the month. On December 2 a full page in four colors appeared in the American Weekly, and on the same date full pages were used in the rotogravure sections of the leading Sunday newspapers or black and white full pages in Sunday editions where rotogravure is not used. On December 1 a full page appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, to be followed by another page on December 15. On December 16 a full page in four colors appears in the American Weekly, together with full pages in the Sunday rotogravure sections or black and white where rotogravure is not used. Throughout the month the three-inch advertising on popular hits is appearing in approximately 750 newspapers, with regular advertising in the foreign language newspapers and a campaign in the largest negro weeklies.

It is gratifying to note that the Columbia Phonograph Co.'s confidence in the future, as evidenced by its tremendous advertising schedule the past few months, is reflected in the

PLATT CO. TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

LOS ANGELES, CAL., December 3.—Plans for an eight-story Class A store and studio building for the Platt Music Co., at Hollywood boulevard and Cherokee street, have just been completed and the Milwaukee Building Co., a local construction firm, will soon start the erection of the structure. The structure will cost approximately $400,000. The first floor of the new building will be occupied by the music concern and the upper floors will be designed and leased for studio purposes. When completed the Platt Co. will have a fine, modern store.

The Melody Music Shop, 111 Madison street, Memphis, Tenn., has been enjoying considerable success in the sale of Brunswick phonographs and records and the lines of musical instruments which it handles. Intensive advertising has been responsible.

Before one of the most brilliant audiences ever assembled in New York, with crowds jostling each other to get into the theatre for the opening of "Under the Red Robe," John Charles Thomas appeared in person and sang the prologue from Pagliacci.

This artist is to be before the public in a tremendous publicity program this season and every Vocalion Red Record dealer should get behind the John Charles Thomas Records.

His recordings are so truly mellow that they will mean other Red Record sales for you.

Why not make a Xmas drive on John Charles Thomas records? They are appropriate for gifts and will be welcomed in every home.

NEW PUBLICITY FOR THE VOCALION

Special Series of Prepared Advertisements Meets With Strong Favor of Dealers as Do Holiday Hangers and New Glass Signs

A particularly striking broadside showing a number of specially prepared advertisements for the use of Vocalion dealers in their local papers in developing business for the holidays, as well as for other periods of the year, has recently been issued by the Aeolian Co. and has been particularly well received by the trade. The broadside shows eight complete advertisements, together with illustrations of several of the more popular Vocalion styles. The advertisements are so arranged that there is room for the name and address of the dealer and for the insertion of certain other material which he may desire to use.

Matrices and electros of the advertisements and cuts are furnished free to dealers and from the number of requests that have already been received the advertisements have made a strong appeal.

A special hanger has also been designed for the use of dealers in going after Christmas business. The cut shows a console model Vocalion appropriately placed under the Christmas tree and calls attention to the fitness of the instrument as a Christmas gift. The hangers are printed both on heavy paper and on cardboard for window and indoor display.

For the use of dealers in their windows, on counters, and elsewhere in their stores, the Aeolian Co. has provided an attractive framed glass display sign in several colors, including gold leaf, and so designed that it may be lighted from the back.

The sign is both dignified and handsome and is offered to dealers at a price that is considerably less than the manufacturing cost.

QUICK GROWTH OF HARTFORD DEALER

HARTFORD, CONN., December 7.—Fifteen years of development is the record of the Feinblum-Peizer Music Shop, of this city, which recently moved into large and attractive new quarters. This is now one of the finest Columbia shops in the State. Intensive canvassing has been largely instrumental in the consistent development of this concern's business. The organization of the company has been increased from two to eighteen, sufficient indication of the progress of this live dealer.

J. J. BEARD CO. WINS PRIZE

PAWTUCKET, R. I., December 5.—The first prize in the Fall Window Display Contest held among the furniture stores of this city was won by the J. J. Beard Furniture Co., which handles Columbia phonographs and New Process records here. The prize-winning window featured a Columbia phonograph in a living room.

NEW COLUMBIA DANCE ORCHESTRA

Reisman Orchestra Will Make Columbia Records Exclusively—Director Prominent in Musical Circles for Many Years

One of the newest dance organizations to join the Columbia library is the Reisman Dance Orchestra, which will record exclusively for the Columbia Phonograph Co. The director of this orchestra, Leo Reisman, although a young man in point of years, has been identified with musical activities for many years, having started his musical career at the age of ten.

He organized and directed the first band at the English High School in Boston, after having played the solo violin at the Bijou Dream, at that time a Keith vaudeville house in Boston. At the age of seventeen this promising young musician played in the Baltimore Symphony and led the orchestra at the Hotel Belvedere, Baltimore. Since then he has directed orchestras at the United States Hotel, Saratoga, N. Y.; the Copley-Plaza and the Hotel Lenox, Boston; the Ritz-Carlton, New York and in "Good Morning, Dearie," on the stage at the Globe Theatre, New York. The Reisman Orchestra also helps along a college education by playing at Harvard, Dartmouth, Williams, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Brown, Wellesley and Radcliffe.

MUSICAL EAR OPENER IN COLLIER'S

An interesting article entitled "Handing You a Musical Ear Opener," by Robert Haven Schaffer, appeared in the December 1 issue of Collier's, one of the leading popular weekly publications. The article, written in colloquial style, described the delights to be derived from a talking machine and player-piano by proper listening and a non-technical knowledge of music—excellent hints to salesmen to strengthen the selling talk where certain types of customers are concerned.

Frank K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and Mrs. Dolbeer were recent week-end visitors to New York, where they enjoyed the theatre.

National Figures Extend Christmas Greetings

Prominent Men and Women in Political and Amusement World Make Gennett Christmas Records—Something New in Recording—Countrywide Pre-holiday Publicity Campaign Under Way

A radical departure from the usual run of Christmas and holiday records has been conceived by the Starr Piano Co., of Richmond, Ind., manufacturer of Gennett records and Starr phonographs. A series of ten ten-inch double-sided records containing Christmas greetings from prominent personages has been made and a most extensive distribution and advertising campaign is now well under way. The numbers include "My Christmas Wish," by Mitzi Hajos; "Christmas and Father," by "Abe Martin," the well-known cartoon character conceived by Kin Hubbard; "Christmas Greetings," by Bebe Daniels, famous movie star; "Christmas in Hollywood," by Shirley Mason, another well-known movie star; "The Lord's Prayer," by William Jennings Bryan, and "The Twenty-third Selection," also by Mr. Bryan; "Always Christmas," recitation by William D. Nesbit, and "God Bless Us All," another recitation by Mr. Nesbit; "Andy Gump's Holiday Greeting," by Andy Himself (Sidney Smith); "The Dream of the World," by Merideth Nicholson, novelist. The reverse side of each record also contains an appropriate Christmas selection.

Special containers, in green, gold and red, with the words "Christmas Greetings" on the cover, together with holly decorations, have been prepared for these recordings. On the back of the cover page of some of the containers appears a photograph of the artists who made the records and others contain the text of the greeting. Also, some of the records are autographed by the artists.

The special pre-holiday advertising campaign which has been inaugurated by the Starr Piano Co. in behalf of these records is probably the most extensive ever undertaken by the company for such a brief period. Newspapers throughout the country tell the story directly to the public; special folders and dealer advertising have been placed at the service of retailers desiring to make use of it, and some excellent and timely window display material, including large photographs of the artists, hangers, special record supplements, etc., has been prepared.

Although all Starr dealers are being supplied, only one department store in each city has been permitted to place the records on sale. In these establishments special departments have been installed on the main floors and window displays and publicity are being utilized. It is the opinion of Starr Co. executives that the manner in which these records are going over indicates that a new idea launched at the proper time can be made a tremendous source of revenue,

First Vocalion European Records Announced

Arrangements Made by O. W. Ray While in Europe Makes Available to Americans Through Vocalion Records 12,000 Recordings by Noted European Artists

The results of the European tour made last Spring by Oscar W. Ray, general manager of the Vocalion record division of the Aeolian Co., have been strongly evidenced in the recent announcement of the first listing of a number of European recordings on Vocalion records, these initial listings to be followed by others in regular order.

The first of the new foreign records were released late last month, and included selections from the catalogs of the Polyphon Co. and of the Milano Laboratories in Italy, two of the most noted European concerns who have placed at the service of the Vocalion recordings of artists of prominence both in Europe and the United States.

While Mr. Ray was abroad he made definite and important agreements with both the Polyboth for the retail trade and the distributor.

Largely responsible for this innovation in records is C. R. Moores, of the Starr Co., who made arrangements with the various artists and personally supervised every detail of the planning and execution of the project, spending many months exclusively at this task. Mr. Moores, by the way, has been prominently connected with the talking machine business for a number of years and, prior to his connection with the Starr Co., he was associated with jobbing interests in the Middle West, where he is well known to the retail trade.

phon and Milano laboratories and also with the Vocalion Recording Laboratory in London for the use of their recordings which will tend to make available to the dealers and the public in the United States some 12,000 new numbers, including a special list of German Christmas records that have been forwarded to Vocalion distributors with appropriate advertising matter for the holiday season.

The Vocalion Laboratories are now busily engaged in producing records to be added to the foreign list, these to be offered in conjunction with the regular Vocalion catalog. The new records are offered in a number of foreign languages, including Polish, Russian, German, Italian and Hebrew, and are expected to open up a most profitable sales field for Vocalion record dealers.

"JEP" BISBEE MAKES EDISON RECORDS

Country Fiddler Discovered by Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford During Camping Trip Makes Records of Old-time Jigs and Reels

"Jep" Bisbee, the eighty-eight-year-old fiddler, whom Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford discovered while on their camping trip in Michigan last Summer, has made records of many of the old-time selections and dance numbers which have brought him fame during a half-century of fiddling at the country dances in and around Paris, Mich., and is again back home. Edison records of jigs, reels and square dances have been made by the old fiddler, who, accompanied by his family, was brought to the Edison laboratories in Henry Ford's private car. While in Orange he was the guest of Mr. Edison. The records, it is understood, will be presented to Mr. Ford, who will distribute them among friends. The aged fiddler was presented with a Ford automobile by Mr. Ford. Mr. and Mrs. Bisbee will be asked to dance an old-time jig before the motion-picture camera for Mr. Ford's especial benefit.

M. I. S. CO.'S PRACTICAL ORDER BLANK

Victor Jobber Uses New Type of Order Blank to Advantage—Plus Record Sales Suggestions Receive the Attention of Dealers

The Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, has received many letters of praise from its dealers regarding the order blank which the company is using in connection with the Victor weekly record releases. This order blank gives a list of each week's releases, with the bottom section devoted to a postcard order form, which can be used by the dealer in placing orders for the records released that particular week. Opposite the order blank is a "plus record sale" suggestion relative to that particular week as, for example, in the November 30 bulletin it was suggested that record No. 959, featuring "Kiss Me Again" and "A Kiss in the Dark" by Galli Curci was a record worthy of energetic sales effort. These suggestions are being afforded careful consideration by the dealers, as they are timely and practical.

OTTO HEINEMAN VISITS CHICAGO

Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, spent a week in Chicago the latter part of November, visiting the offices of the General Phonograph Corp. of Illinois and conferring with S. A. Ribolla, general manager of this company. Mr. Heineman also visited E. A. Fearn, president of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Okeh and Odeon jobber, and he was delighted to learn that this enterprising wholesaler is closing the most successful year in its history, an indication of the growing popularity of these records.

KEEPING RECORD STOCK IN ORDER

New Plan for Avoiding Loss and Breakage in Demonstrations and Providing a Check on Best Selling Numbers Through Special Record Clerk Evolved by Western Dealer

In order to secure an accurate check on record stock and on the numbers that are proving the best sellers, a Salt Lake City music house has developed a plan whereby the clerks whose duty it is to demonstrate machines and records do not have access to the record stock themselves but make a requisition through a special record clerk for such records as they require. The record numbers are entered on special slips and signed for, and then charged against the clerk's account until such time as they are returned or a sales slip made out for them.

The plan, which is believed to be quite original in the retail talking machine field, has been working long enough already to prove its effectiveness in preventing record losses. Where heretofore records were handled more or less carelessly, thrown about in disorder and frequently broken by the salesmen, the records are now handled carefully, and either handed in in perfect condition or accounted for. Where a record is lost or broken the clerk must either make a plausible explanation of the incident or pay for it, and although the clerks are not penalized for accidents, some of them have already paid enough for carelessness to cause them to materially improve their methods.

The stock record plan is particularly valuable in keeping track of the records that are most in demand, for each day the stock clerk makes a record of the numbers that have been sold so that the stock may be checked and reordering done where necessary. Another excellent feature of the plan is that the records are always to be found in their proper places and there is not the confusion that often results when a half dozen busy clerks are taking out and replacing records every few minutes during the day. The saving of time alone in hunting desirable records practically compensates for the salary paid the stock clerk.

MISS MACBETH RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Famous Operatic Soprano and Exclusive Columbia Artist Returns Home—Discusses the Status of the American Artist

Miss Florence Macbeth, famous operatic and concert soprano and exclusive Columbia artist, arrived in New York recently after spending some time in Europe. She was welcomed by many friends well known in the musical and social worlds, including several representatives of the Columbia Phonograph Co. The newspapers commented generally upon Miss Macbeth's return home and in a chat with one of the newspaper reporters she remarked as follows regarding American artists: "All the American artist needs to-day is a little more hope and charity and a great deal more faith on the part of his own public and that public needs to find the courage of its own convictions without the persuasion of outside influences. We have everything else we need for a musical nation."

VICTOR CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING

Some excellent advertising copy has been prepared by the Victor Co. for the use of dealers in their pre-holiday campaigns. The theme of the copy, of course, is a Victor talking machine and records as a Christmas gift. Each advertisement is well balanced and illustrated in a most effective manner, and there is ample space for the dealer's imprint. In some of the advertisements space has been left for record lists and for the insertion of prices beneath the instruments. This is part of the dealer publicity service of the Victor Co., and retailers may secure any of the advertisements in electro or matrix form simply by sending their request to the Victor Co. and paying the postage charge.

GEISSLER BOYS WIN HONORS

Kenneth and Allen Geissler, eldest sons of Arthur D. Geissler, president of the New York and Chicago Talking Machine Cos., Victor wholesalers in New York and Chicago, are winning honors in athletics in their respective schools. Kenneth is winning football laurels, having been elected next year's captain of the football team at St. Paul's, Concord, N. H., and Allen this year made the Culver Military Academy team. He has also showed his prowess by capturing the forty-yard swimming championship of the school.

The J. Fortas Furniture Co., Memphis, Tenn., is featuring Okeh records in its new store at 133 North Main street.

BEST SELLERS AFTER XMAS

After Christmas, when consumers' money is scarce, Yale phonographs, retailing at $10, will be your best sellers. The great numbers of people who now own a cabinet phonograph, as well as those who don't, could be sold a Yale. These phonographs can be used in so many ways; as a table phonograph, as an additional phonograph in a large house, for automobile trips, etc.

To offer an instrument of such durability, beautiful tone and impressive appearance for $10 is really an achievement. It is possible only because the Yale has no frills. All material used is the best of its class. The Yale is a substantial, gracefully designed and scientifically built instrument.

It has a strong, easy-running motor, with spring of best material. One winding plays entirely any twelve-inch lateral record. The reproducer is duplicated only on very much higher-priced machines. There is an eight-inch heavy steel turntable, nickel-rimmed, and covered with best grade of felt, and a cabinet made of mahogany-finish wood, ivory or white enamel. Investigate the Yale!

NEW ASSISTANT TO TREMAINE

Kenneth S. Clark, Formerly With Community Service, to Join Forces of National Music Bureau to Work on Music Week

Kenneth S. Clark, who has been connected with Community Service since 1919, is within a month to become associated with C. M. Tremaine, director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. He will first take up the duties of assistant secretary of the National Music Week Committee, of which Mr. Tremaine is the secretary. Following the National Music Week, May 4 to 10, 1924, Mr. Clark will assist Mr. Tremaine in the work of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. Mr. Clark is a composer and was for five years on the editorial staff of Musical America. During the war he was the army song leader of the Seventy-ninth Division, both in this country and in France. Following his return to America he joined the musical staff of Community Service and for the last two years he has been in charge of that organization's Bureau of Community Music.

DISPLAY ROOM IMPROVEMENT GROWS

New England and New York Dealers Alive to Value of Improved Equipment—Recent Unico Installations in These Territories

The Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., manufacturer of "Unico" equipment for talking machine warerooms, has found considerable activity among talking machine retailers in New York and New England, expressed in actual business received, and in extensive plans for the future. Among recent installations was one for the Alfred Fox Piano Co., well-known retailer of the Knabe line in Stamford and Bridgeport, which has also just opened a new store in New Rochelle. The equipment ordered was extensive and called for seven demonstrating rooms and a large record department for the talking machine end of the business. The decorative treatment of the lobby was particularly attractive and a large Ampico display room was provided for at the rear of the warerooms. The entire work was in old ivory and the finished effect was particularly pleasing.

A complete rearrangement of the talking machine department was made for Sage & Allen, of Hartford, Conn. The entire department was moved to a better location and additional rooms were set up, adding considerably to the facilities of the warerooms.

Another complete rearrangement was made for the Cauldwell Furniture Co., of Malden, Mass., where the original installation of "Unico" equipment was rearranged and augmented in order to provide for the constantly increasing business of the company.

On Long Island the new warerooms of Harry F. Asher, of Mineola, were completely provided with "Unico" equipment, consisting of rooms and record racks efficiently arranged.

VICTOR DEALER ACTIVE MUSICALLY

CARBONDALE, PA., December 4.—J. Harper Fulkerson, well-known Victor dealer in this city, was an active factor in the success of a concert given recently at the High School Auditorium under the auspices of the Carbondale Orpheus Glee Club. Mr. Fulkerson is an honorary member of this club and his various suggestions as to the program and to the general details of the concert contributed materially to the success of the affair.

ORIENTAL MUSIC SHOP CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation was recently granted to the Oriental Music Shop, of New York City. The concern, which is capitalized at $5,000, will deal in talking machines and records. Incorporators are A. G. Aronson, H. Herson and J. Levkov.

VOICE MADE VISIBLE AND ANALYZED

Now Possible to Know Why Certain Voices Thrill and Others Only Please Us

The voices of some opera singers thrill us; others merely please us. Do you know why?

Scientists have known that the effect of a singing voice depends on two qualities—intonation and vibration, involving the emotional qualities of the tone. But it remained for Dr. Max Schoen, of the Department of Psychology, Carnegie Institute of Technology, to explain why intonation so largely affects voice quality.

By careful analysis Doctor Schoen concluded that we can trace many of our likes and dislikes of singing voices to the manner in which the singer attacks, sustains and releases each tone, or progresses from one tone to another. To demonstrate this theory, he developed a phonograph attachment to the tonoscope—recently illustrated in the Popular Science Monthly—a delicate tone-analyzing instrument that produces a picture of tone vibrations.

The tonoscope consists of a large motor-driven revolving drum, painted white. On the white surface arc painted 18,095 dots arranged in 100 rows. The first row has 110 dots, the third 111, and each succeeding alternate row one additional.

These dots are observed through a fluctuating gas flame that can be moved from row to row as the experimenter seeks the pitch of the singer's voice. The flame is caused to fluctuate by vibrations of the singer's voice on a diaphragm.

As the drum revolves at one revolution a second, the dots become blurred. The row behind the fluctuating flame, however, is seen to move up and down with a jerky motion. When a vocal tone strikes the diaphragm the experimenter moves the flame along the rows until he finds a row that seems to stand still. A scale indicates the exact pitch of the tone.

The name of the Central Talking Machine Shop, Inc., 3 East Forty-third street, New York, has been changed to the Retail Music Corp.

ORANGE ST. RADIO DIVISION NEWARK, N. J.

For

De Forest Reflex Radiophone, Type D-10, a 4-tube set using either storage batteries or self-contained dry cells. A cross continent range on indoor loop. Has a reputation for the clearest reception of broadcast in existence.

Some of the famous laboratory tested De Forest parts. Illustrated are the Variable Air Condenser, Variocoupler, Coil Mounting, Honeycomb Coil, Vernier Variable Condenser, Tube Socket, Five-point Switch, Audion, and Rheostat.

De Forest

the Greater Talking Machine Business

TALKING machine dealers were among the first of any industry to recognize the great possibilities of radio. They knew that if the radio receiving set was perfected and beautified it was truly a musical instrument and belonged with their other stock.

They recognized the fact that the phonograph makes an ideal loud speaker for the radiophone.

They succeeded, however, only if they happened to carry one of the comparatively few really reliable radio receiving sets, such as the De Forest Radiophone.

De Forest has always stood in the forefront of progress so far as manufacture and scientific invention are concerned, and now the De Forest Company takes a radical step in their new "Consignment Plan" which takes all the doubt out of the radio business once and for all.

This plan is explained in our new book "Building Your Radio Business with Our Capital," and we ask you to write or wire for this at once, if you are interested in the De Forest Agency for your territory.

In a word, it means that you can have on your floor a stock of De Forest Reflex Radiophones, and you do not invest in them one cent of capital for stock. These goods are placed on "Consignment" and as they sell you deduct your compensation and remit the customers' money direct to De Forest.

This new plan is revolutionizing the entire radio industry, and naturally enough, when you add to the De Forest Radiophone so far as its quality and satisfaction are concerned the supremacy of a plan which removes the last doubt from the radio business so far as the talking machine dealer is concerned.

Immediate action is necessary, as the territories must be exclusive, can not overlap, and we are making connections as fast as we can make out contracts.

Laxity Increases the Credit Losses of Retailers

Comparative Analysis of Credit Methods of Retailers Made by the University of Nebraska Throws Some Interesting Sidelights on This Important Situation and Points Way to Reforms

Retailers are often at fault when there are credit leaks, according to a comparative analysis of the methods of retailers recently made by the University of Nebraska, which secured data on this subject through questionnaires sent to dealers. The report contains some interesting sidelights on the credit situation and may point the way for dealers to eliminate losses suffered through faulty methods.

"It is necessary to impress upon the applicant for credit," says the report, "the terms of the agreement when an account is opened. At this time the applicant is alert to the fact that a charge account is a privilege which must be respected. It is not enough to print the terms of the account on an application blank, for it is essential to have the customers understand them by spoken statement.

"If the terms of credit accounts demand that accounts should be paid in 'thirty days,' they should be presented to the customer in such a forcible way that he may understand that the account must be paid in thirty days.

"The value of placing a limit at the time of opening the account on the length of time an account may run, as well as on its size, is unquestionable. It strengthens the moral responsibility of the customer. If more people were taught to realize that credit is a convenience that cannot be abused difficulties resulting from its use would greatly diminish. Educating people into this attitude by insisting that 'terms are made to be respected' is a wise policy.

"Many accounts which are carefully opened are not paid when they are due, and for this reason a systematic collection policy is essential. This is not due to a malicious intent of customers 'to make the firm wait for its money,' but is caused in most cases by neglect. People easily forget the unpleasant task of parting with money. If attention, therefore, is not given to collecting accounts when they become due, the benefits of a careful extension of credit may be lost.

"Accounts can be collected successfully by several methods. Some merchants have success with forms registered, and personal letters. Other merchants use the telephone largely for collection purposes, as it brings personal attention to the account. Other merchants collect largely by means of a personal collector. In fact, there is no 'best way' to collect outstanding accounts. One store with an exclusive type of patronage finds it advantageous to send only statements of the account, since their customers are easily offended, while another store can use the above means, as one merchant aptly remarked, 'and then some.'

"Stores which have adopted firmness in handling their charge account transactions do not experience difficulty in collecting. Their plan is simple, consisting of two points: First, the account is opened on definite terms; second, the account is collected on these definite terms. The second point necessitates a careful follow-up by correspondence until the account is paid.

Managers, as well as customers, neglect credit terms. Although a majority of stores extend credit on a thirty-day basis, very few firms hold strictly to this term. In response to the question, 'When do you consider an account overdue,' sixty-one firms answered as follows:

"In cities of more than 50,000, twelve considered an account overdue in thirty days, twelve in sixty days and six in ninety days. In towns under 10,000, twelve considered an account overdue in thirty days, nine in sixty days and five in ninety days, and five allowed it to run more than ninety days.

"Merchants thus are seen to be keeping two sets of credit terms. First, the terms which they hope the customers will respect; second, the terms which they expect the customer to respect. In the last few years a great many credit managers have adopted a policy of firmness in collecting accounts according to the terms of the contract. They consider a debt owed them for merchandise the same as they do a promissory note. If it is not paid when the terms say it should, they proceed to collect it on the principle that firmness never ruined a business. This does not mean that courtesy and tact are disregarded."

JOHN CHARLES THOMAS IN FILMS

Well-known Singer and Vocalion Record Artist Featured in "Under the Red Robe"

John Charles Thomas, well-known operatic star and exclusive Vocalion Red Record artist, has now stepped out officially as a star of the films, being one of the featured players in the cast of the elaborate motion picture, "Under the Red Robe," which is now enjoying a successful run at the Cosmopolitan Theatre, New York. On the opening night of the show Mr. Thomas appeared in person and sang several numbers for the edification of the audience.

TAMPA CONCERN CHANGES HANDS

TAMPA, FLA., December 3.—Stanley Price and Miss Edith Price, his sister, have purchased the Victor department of Maas Bros. here and are already actively promoting the business. Mr. Price and Miss Edith have been with their brother, M. L. Price, of the M. L. Price Music Co. Both are well known in music circles, Miss Price being the vocalist of the local Kiwanis Club and an honorary member.

OKEH DEALERS HAVE UNIQUE STORE

Meinhart & Koehler, exclusive Okeh dealers in Passaic, N. J., have an unusual establishment, as it consists of a combination of a music shop and a United Cigar Store agency. On one side of the shop the dealers devote space exclusively to the music business, carrying at all times a complete and extensive stock of Okeh and Odeon records. The windows are always tastefully arranged, displaying the latest releases.

COLUMBIA DEALER IMPROVES STORE

The accompanying illustration, showing the store of the New Furniture Co., Eagle Pass, Texas, Columbia dealer, is typical of the type of retail establishment that is rapidly replacing

New Type of Store in Eagle Pass, Tex. the old-time false front frame buildings in the small Western towns. Mr. Flores, manager of this establishment, is responsible for the success of the Columbia department, as this store with a well-equipped phonograph department, including three hearing rooms, is closing a very satisfactory business.

The Scott-Kelly Furniture Co., of Memphis, Tenn., which handles talking machines, recently moved to 92 North Adams street.

VICTOR KIDDIE RECORD ENVELOPES

Standard T. M. Co., Victor Jobber, Introduces Timely Selling Help—Four Special Victor Records Featured in Envelope Series

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 5.—The Standard Talking Machine Co., of this city, Victor wholesaler, is receiving large-sized orders from Victor dealers everywhere for the Kiddie record envelopes which it recently introduced. This series of record envelopes is proving a signal success and Joseph Roush, president, and Wallace H. Russell, manager of the company, have received many letters of enthusiastic commendation from Victor retailers.

These envelopes were designed to help the dealers sell Victor records and apparently they are fulfilling this purpose admirably. There are four envelopes in the series, featuring the following Victor records: No. 16863, Mother Goose Songs (1) Moo Cow Moo (2) His New Brother; 16955, Morning in Noah's Ark and Mr. Rooster; 17104 (1) London Bridge (2) Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush and Round and Round the Village; 18599, Wynken, Blynken and Nod and The Sugar Plum Tree. Each envelope in the series is attractively lithographed in bright colors to catch the attention of the kiddies and their parents, and it is suggested that Victor dealers sell the records in sets of four or singly. The envelopes are decidedly original in design and represent a timely selling help for the Victor dealer.

AGGRESSIVE COLUMBIA DEALER

Music Shop, of Niagara Falls, Features Demonstration Record—Sales Totals Very Large

The Music Shop, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., exclusive Columbia dealer, has been flooding its section of the country with the Columbia New Process demonstration records. Two large records measuring fifteen feet in diameter were fastened to the sides of a large truck and painted signs advised the public that Columbia New Process records were on sale at the Music Shop. J. A. Goldstein, owner of the store, states that he has placed at least one Columbia New Process record in 80 per cent of the phonograph owners' homes within four weeks and this is particularly interesting in view of the fact that there are 25,000 homes in Niagara Falls and vicinity. Mr. Goldstein has again entered the field as a songwriter with a new number.

CLINE-VICK CAPITALIZES FIRE

Durability of the Victor Demonstrated by Fire-charred Instrument Taken From the Ruins of Marion, Ill., Branch of the Company

MARION, ILL., December 2.—A fire-charred ruin of a Victrola taken from the local store of the Cline-Vick Stores after a fire had destroyed the establishment, resulting in a loss of about $65,000, instead of being relegated to the scrap heap, has been turned into an advertising instrument of exceptional force. In short, although the machine cabinet was badly burned the instrument was found to be playable. Fay Luyster, the live manager of the talking machine department of this concern, which operates a number of stores in this part of the State, took advantage of the opportunity to show how well the Victrola stands up under punishment by placing the damaged machine in front of the store and playing the latest recordings on it. Naturally this unusual display excited a great deal of attention and even the local newspaper devoted space to a description of the exhibit.

POOLEY LINE WITH MARCELLUS ROPER

WORCESTER, MASS., December 4.—The Marcellus Roper Co., of this city, well-known piano and phonograph dealer, recently made arrangements whereby it will handle Pooley phonographs. The store closed this deal with the W. B. Glynn Distributing Co., Saxtons River, Vt., Pooley distributor in New England. Plans are being made to display a complete line of Pooley phonographs and the prestige of the Marcellus Record Co., in this city, will undoubtedly be a factor in developing Pooley distribution.

T. H. WOLLEY TAKES PARTNER

W. H. More Now Interested in Business of Live Meriden, Conn., Dealer—Store Enlarged and Improved—Enjoy Growing Trade

MERIDEN, CONN., December 8.—Thomas H. Wolley, who has conducted a very successful business in this city for the past five years, has taken W. H. More as a partner in the business. Mr. More has had wide experience in the talking machine business, having been manager of the Hartford, Conn., establishment of Widner's. During the two years prior to his present connection Mr. More was traveling representative for the Columbia Phonograph Co.'s New York branch.

The establishment of this live dealer has recently been enlarged and considerably improved by the addition of much new equipment, such as record demonstration booths, record racks and service counters. A feature of the store is the installation of two spacious and attractive display windows.

The partnership of these two live members of the trade already has been instrumental in increasing business, which bids fair to make steady forward strides during the Winter months. The lines handled include Columbia, Brunswick and Pooley phonographs.

NUMERICAL RED SEAL CATALOG

C. C. Mellor Co. Issues Timely Numerical Catalog—Victor Dealers Use Book to Advantage

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 4.—Thomas T. Evans, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., of this city, has been congratulated upon his initiative in preparing for the use of Victor dealers a numerical list of Victor double-faced Red Seal records. Within a few weeks after this book was completed Mr. Evans had received orders for more than 10,000 copies and requests for additional copies are being received daily. The book, in addition to containing a numerical list of double-faced Red Seal records, also contains present listings of the remaining single-faced Red Seal records. Its practical value was quickly appreciated by the dealers, who are using it to splendid advantage.

Washington Victor Jobbers and Dealers Meet

Interesting Talks by F. K. Dolbeer, Sales Manager of the Victor Co., and Emil Berliner Feature Dinner-meeting Arranged by Victor Wholesalers With Victor Dealers as Guests

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 4.—The various Victor distributors of this city tendered a dinner to local Victor dealers at the Raleigh Hotel on the evening of November 19 at which Frank K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and Emil Berliner, pioneer in the talking machine record field, were guests of honor and principal speakers. During the course of the dinner vocal selections were rendered by Edward Chick. More than 100 people

He also outlined the great care and detail required in the manufacture of a product in which quality was the chief consideration and traced the history of a Victrola and a record from the securing of the raw product in the heart of Africa and India down to the assembling of the machine and the pressing of the record. In closing Mr. Dolbeer described to the dealers the organization of the Victor Talking Machine Co., classifying the va-

Victor Co. for the courtesy extended in making their meeting a success through the presence of Mr. Dolbeer. The latter, by the way, spent the following day, Friday, visiting the trade in Washington, in calling at the warerooms of every local Victor dealer.

In addition to the aforementioned guests of honor was William T. Davis, traveling representative of the Victor Co. in this district.

The distributors were represented as follows:

From Cohen & Hughes, Inc.: I. Son Cohen, president; William Biel, secretary and treasurer; E. J. Totten, general sales manager; Leslie Lore, sales manager; H. B. Thomas, the Misses F. L. Goldstein, Adele Zuberano, Billie Zuberano, N. O'Connor and Mrs. Grace Hadaway.

were present and listened to Mr. Berliner's interesting address on "The development of the phonograph record, its early history and the progress made up to the present time." His message was most enthusiastically received.

Following Mr. Berliner's address, Mr. Dolbeer spoke, dwelling principally upon the quality product manufactured by the Victor Co. He emphasized the point that the company was always ready to increase its expenditure in order to improve the quality of its product rather than make a larger margin of profit and rious departments and naming their heads, showing how all came under the direct control of Eldridge R. Johnson, president. The applause following Mr. Dolbeer's address was tremendous and showed the thorough appreciation by the guests of the speaker and his message.

At the conclusion of Mr. Dolbeer's address the meeting was adjourned to a larger room, and, to the accompaniment of one of Washington's leading dance orchestras, dancing continued until the small hours of the morning. The Victor distributors of Washington thanked the

SONORA JOBBERS VISIT NEW YORK

Western and Eastern Jobbers Hold Informal Meetings—Discuss Plans for Coming Year

The executive offices of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, almost resembled a convention gathering last week, when quite a number of Sonora jobbers decided to visit the home office at approximately the same time. With the first arrival of the Sonora wholesalers it soon became evident that there would be an opportunity for a get-together informal conference and C. W. Keith, president of the Sonora Jobbers' Association, took advantage of the opportunity to suggest that the Eastern jobbers visit New York in honor of the arrival of their Western associates. At these informal meetings interesting discussions were held relative to plans for the coming year, and the principal object of the Western jobbers' call at the executive offices was to insure sufficient product for 1924.

Among the Western Sonora jobbers who attended this informal gathering were F. R. Travers, Magnavox Co., San Francisco, Cal.; Fred E. Yahr, Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; R. H. Rodway, Sonora Phonograph Co. of Illinois, Chicago, Ill.; J. T. Pringle and J. L. DuBreuil, Sonora Phonograph-Ohio Co., Cleveland, O.; M. R. Miller, Sonora Distributing Co. of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa. The Eastern jobbers in attendance were Maurice Landay, Greater City Phonograph Co., New York, N. Y.; R. H. and C. W. Keith, Long Island Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.; C. T. Malcolm, Gibson-Snow Co., Syracuse, N. Y.; E. S. White, Sonora Co. of Philadelphia, Philadelphia, Pa., and Joseph H. Burke, Sonora Phonograph Co. of New England, Boston, Mass.

Greatest Full-page Campaign Ever Undertaken by Any Talking Machine Company

The newspaper advertising which is being inserted by the Victor Talking Machine Co. during the early part of December, as a forerunner of the holiday season, is said to be the greatest full-page newspaper campaign ever undertaken by any company in any field at any time. This special campaign consists of three full pages run at intervals of about a week, the first page being devoted to Red Seal artists, the second page to the popular Victor artists and the third page to Victor Red Seal artists. These pages are being run in every newspaper of importance in practically every city throughout the entire United States.

This great advertising campaign has been inserted in addition to the extensive newspaper campaign which is being continually carried on by the Victor Co. in connection with the weekly release of new records, etc.

SPECHT HOST TO COLUMBIA OFFICIALS

Paul Specht, exclusive Columbia artist and prominent orchestra director, now playing at the Alamac Hotel, New York City, gave a Thanksgiving dinner at the hotel in honor of the officials of the Columbia Phonograph Co. Ingenious cakes made in the form of phonograph records, on which the Columbia labels were exactly reproduced, surrounded a huge candy phonograph in the center of the table. The favors were hand painted and unique in design. The officials of the Columbia Co. present included H. L. Willson, president and general manager; George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager; R. F. Bolton, manager of the recording laboratories; O. F. Benz, record sales manager; L. L. Leverich, advertising manager; John Brown, assistant manager, recording laboratories; Frank Walker and F. James.

Music Store Is the Sales Center for Radio

Frank Dorian Gives Some Logical Reasons Why Talking Machine Retailers Are Ideally Fitted for Handling and Exploiting Radio

[Editor's Note.—Frank Dorian, manager of the General Radio Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa., the writer of this article, has been identified with the talking machine industry since its very earliest days. He possesses a thorough knowledge of the merchandising problems of the industry, hence his views on how radio should be handled in the talking machine field are of especial importance to our readers.]

Talks with music dealers and items in The Talking Machine World and other trade publications clearly show that the idea is gradually permeating the industry that the sale of radio appliances naturally and properly belongs in the hands of the music dealer. That the thought has not made more rapid progress or achieved a wider practical application may be due to lack of specific information among music dealers as to how easily radio may be combined with other lines of musical merchandise.

Lest there be some "doubting Thomas" ready to grin derisively at the inclusion of radio among "other lines of musical merchandise" let it be stated, right at the start, that the phrase is used deliberately, intentionally "and with malice aforethought." Radio, as we know it to-day, is a new method of spreading a knowledge and appreciation of music or of catering to that knowledge and appreciation.

What has given radio its present popularity? Broadcasting. Broadcasting what? Music, first and foremost. Music is universal and immortal. It speaks all languages—it lives though men may die. The media by which it is produced or reproduced may change, but they change slowly. The present-day piano is the logical development of the harpsichord and the spinet of our forefathers; modern wind instruments are natural evolutions from the crude trumpets of the ancients.

It has taken forty years to develop the phonograph from Edison's tin-foil creation to the superb musical instrument of to-day; and twenty years elapsed after Edison startled the world with an instrument to record and reproduce sound before the talking machine became an article of popular merchandise or was recognized as a logical part of the stock in trade of the musical instrument dealer. The greatest developments in the phonograph, musically and mechanically, have taken place since it became an accepted part of the musical instrument trade.

Those of us who had a share in popularizing the phonograph can never forget the difficulties faced and overcome in persuading the musical merchandise dealer to handle this amazing novelty. The early instruments were crude, the records were fragile and imperfect, prices were so high that only the rich could afford to buy, and the attitude of the retailer was one of skepticism—a fear that the demand was only a passing fad that would soon subside and leave the dealer with an unsalable stock on his hands. It was only when the sale of phonographs reached a volume that seemed to threaten serious inroads on the sale of "parlor organs" and pianos that the great body of music dealers realized the talking machine was here to stay and it behooved them to get on the band wagon while there was yet room.

Talking Machines and Radio Allies

It is not uncommon to-day to hear talking machine dealers blame the sale of radio sets for whatever decrease in the sale of phonographs they have experienced. Those of us who have been fortunate enough to read the hand-writing on the wall and assist in bringing these two important members of the musical family into one household have no fears of the future. There will continue to be an enormous demand for phonographs and records as long as any of us now in the trade may live, and probably for generations longer. Radio, too, is here to stay. It is a lusty youth, but it is only a youth. The merchant who adds radio to his line now not only may share in its profitable growth, but may look forward to long years of increasing sales and profits.

The music dealer should handle radio, not only because it belongs in the field of music, but because he is the best equipped merchant to market the goods. The whole tendency in the radio field is toward the complete receiving set. There will always be amateurs who will build their own sets, but the great market for radio goods is among the same class of people who are buying pianos, phonographs and similar goods. Every home is a prospect for radio. The average man and woman, who knows little or nothing of electrical and mechanical details, wants a radio set that needs no more attention than fastening the ends of wires in binding posts, turning a knob and getting results—something that can be placed on a table in living room or library without a mass of complicated and unsightly wires and doo-dabs—and the leading manufacturers have recognized that desire and supplied it.

The electrical dealer is the largest seller of radio goods to-day only because the public has learned to look to him for what they want in that line. He does not go out after business. He does not know how. He displays the goods in his windows and waits for customers to come inside. The music dealer, with his experience in soliciting orders for pianos, phonographs and other musical instruments, not only comes into daily contact with the very people who are prospects for radio receiving sets, but he knows how to reach them most readily and effectively. Put radio receiving sets in your store, and every time you send out a list of records or player rolls, enclose a leaflet about radio. Use the same methods as in selling other musical instruments and you will sell more receiving sets in a month than the average electrical dealer can sell in three months. Those who use canvassers or send out salesmen should let them carry along a complete radio receiving set—(one to operate from dry batteries and using a plug to screw into an electric lamp socket in place of an outside antenna wire)—and demonstrate in the homes of prospects. Very few of those demonstrating outfits will ever come back with the salesman—he will sell them on the spot.

Now let us consider some of the objections most frequently raised by music dealers, and see how little basis they have.

"Radio is an electrical device and has no place in a music store."

Interesting, if true, but happily not quite true. Had the use of radio as a "wireless telegraph" remained its principal use, little would be heard of it to-day outside of technical circles. When it was applied to telephony and the broadcasting of music became general, it automatically passed from the electrical field into the domain of music. Electricity is merely the motive power by which radio waves are set in motion. True, there are wires, rheostats, condensers and other electrical parts used in the construction of radio receiving sets. But the use of springs, gears, pinions, ratchets, pawls and other clock parts in the motive power of phonographs does not make the talking machine a clock; the use of pneumatics in player-pianos does not make them wind instruments; and the use of electrical parts in a radio set does not make it an electrical device. In its common use to-day, it is an instrument for the reception and reproduction of music, in which electricity is merely the motive power. Because of its construction, its early marketing through electrical dealers was a natural first step. Early forms of receiving sets were largely home-built by amateurs and experimentalists; the parts used were mostly common forms of electrical devices adapted to a new use, and the adjustment and operation of the completed device was so difficult that only a clever and painstaking electrical "fan" could successfully operate it. But that is all a thing of the past. The development of the vacuum tube not only gave a fresh impetus to radio popularity, but made it possible to construct receiving sets that the average man can easily set up and a child can operate.

"I will have to put in a stock of electrical parts and keep a service man to set up instruments and make adjustments."

Another imaginary difficulty. Stock complete sets—sell complete sets. Select the product of reputable makers only—there is a wide range of choice—and confine your sales to complete sets. Component parts are bought principally by amateurs who want to build their own sets, and the electrical dealer is the best source of supply for that material. The modern vacuum tube set is made in many forms at prices ranging from $50 to $750, but most of them are so completely self-contained that any intelligent man who can read plain instructions and follow a simple diagram can set them up and operate them readily. There are, however, a few desirable accessories in frequent demand, such as vacuum tubes, loud speakers, phonograph attachments (for connecting the radio set to the tone-arm of talking machines and using the latter as the radio loud speaker), etc. The sale of these accessories is optional, but they are easy to handle and their sale is profitable.

"The changes in radio sets are so rapid that what is salable to-day is out of date to-morrow, and the dealer may lose his investment on obsolete models."

That was partly true two years ago; it is not true to-day. Radio has reached a stage in its development where fundamentals, at least, are standardized. Refinements and improvements will continue, of course; but there is no danger of loss because of sudden or radical changes in product. The leading manufacturers of reputable lines (and you should not handle any other) have generally followed the policy of relieving their dealers of discontinued models or adjusting prices on stock in dealers' hands in such a way that the dealer may dispose of the radio merchandise he has on hand at a profit.

"How much will I have to invest in an initial stock?"

The initial investment may be small or large, as you prefer. You may buy a single set at a net cost of from $35 to $235, according to type, use it for demonstrating, and order additional sets as you take orders from your customers. That is not recommended, but it can be done. The objection to it is that in the busy season, as in other lines, the demand exceeds the supply and jobbers cannot always deliver as fast as you can sell. If you want to feel your way into the radio business and play safe, put in from three to six sets of different styles and prices to give your customers some latitude of choice, at a net cost of from $150 to $2,500, according to type and quantity. Any radio jobber will gladly give you information as to which types of sets are most in demand and may be stocked with the greatest certainty of quick sale.

But whether you get into radio on a large scale or small, get in—and GET IN NOW! It belongs to you. It is growing far more rapidly than those outside its ranks can realize.

Will the music trade sit back and watch this growth in other and less competent hands, only to sigh and shake its head and say, a few years hence: "I could have had that child in my family a few years ago, but I was afraid it would cost too much to raise it?" Or will it take the child into the family where it belongs, help to develop it, and share the profits while it is developing, as well as the larger, richer profits which will come with maturity?

OKEH ARTIST VISITS NEW YORK

Fiddlin' John Carson, champion fiddler of Georgia, who records exclusively for the Okeh library, spent a week in New York this week, making some new Okeh recordings. This was Fiddlin' John's first visit to the metropolis and, according to his comment, there were several things that did not meet with his approval. There was too much city and not enough "country" to suit his taste and he was glad to return to the sunny South. This popular backwoods virtuoso has played his violin in thirty-two States of the Union in addition to radio broadcasting. His first Okeh records have been very successful, particularly in the South, and Okeh dealers have evinced keen interest in his new recordings.

J. M. HOUGH OPENS NEW STORE

FRACKVILLE, PA., December 7.—A new music store has been opened at 46 South Lehigh avenue by John M. Hough, of Shenandoah. Mr. Hough is well known in this section, having been engaged in the piano business at the latter place for many years. Adam Balliet, of Yatesville, will act as manager of the new store, which will carry a full line. The establishment has been fitted with modern fixtures and presents a pleasing appearance.

New Selling Plans Stimulate Odeon Business

Album Sets and Famous Masterpieces Assist Odeon Dealers in Developing Business—How General Phonograph Corp. Co-operates With Trade—Interesting Interview With Otto Heineman

At the conclusion of one of the most successful years in its history the General Phonograph Corp., New York, has been receiving many enthusiastic expressions of commendation from Okeh and Odeon jobbers throughout the country. The past twelve months have been noteworthy for the tremendous strides made by this company's record division, but the most gratifying feature of the year's activities has been the tremendous popularity and demand for Odeon records.

Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., is directly responsible for the introduction and development of the Odeon record library in this country. A keen student of records and recording, based on an experience and knowledge of twenty years, Mr. Heineman realized a number of years ago that there was an unlimited market for Odeon records in this country, provided they were merchandised properly and presented to the dealers in a measure commensurate with their musical value. While in Europe in 1920 Mr. Heineman completed arrangements with the International Talking Machine Co., whereby the General Phonograph Corp. was given the exclusive right to import the matrices of recordings by world-famous operatic stars, internationally known musical organizations and the foremost musical celebrities of practically every country in Europe. Records from these matrices are pressed in the Okeh factories and released under the Odeon label, each month a new list being issued.

In a chat with The World Mr. Heineman gave some interesting facts regarding the Odeon library, stating, in part, as follows: "In the past only those people who traveled in Europe were privileged to hear European orchestras at their best, for it has long been conceded that famous musicians from Europe lacked the divine inspiration of their art when away from their own countries. Although they are frequently heard in this country their performances do not possess the high degree of artistry that characterizes their playing in their home lands.

"Realizing that records made in the United States by visiting orchestras would be of secondary musical value to the records made by these same musicians in their own natural environment, we arranged several years ago to bring into this country matrices of Odeon records, recorded in Europe and pressed here under the Odeon label. In Europe Odeon records stand for the highest type of music obtainable and the selection of orchestras for recording on these records is a matter of the greatest care. Only artists of exceptional musical ability and reputation are chosen and recording expeditions travel periodically into all of the European countries, making recordings of celebrated orchestras in their native lands.

"Our policy of importing recordings by European artists has met with widespread commendation on the part of the trade, music lovers and music critics in this country. There is available an exceptional library of European music, including recordings of famous masterpieces never before reproduced here. Popular continental selections as well as classics by the world's greatest composers are played by the most noted orchestras of Europe for the Odeon library and recordings of complete symphonic works were introduced for the first time on Odeon records in Europe. Travelers brought these sets of records back to the United States and we realized immediately that there were wonderful sales possibilities in this plan of recording and merchandising.

"During the past year we have placed on the market several albums containing complete famous compositions. The first set featured three twelve-inch Odeon records containing complete recordings of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony (the Symphony in B Minor). Music lovers all over the country were delighted to obtain complete recordings of this famous masterpiece, and the orders received from our jobbers and dealers were far beyond all expectations. Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception accorded this collection we then issued another album of three records, containing the complete recordings of the overtures to 'Der Freischutz' and 'Oberon,' the two most famous operas by the pioneer composer of romantic music, Carl Maria von Weber. In order to secure the very best interpretation of these masterpieces the Odeon organization arranged for the services of Eduard Moerike and His Orchestra of the German Opera House, Berlin. This eminent director is well known in this country, having visited America last year as associate conductor of the Wagnerian Opera Co. and attaining such a marked degree of success that he is now on his second tour of the country with the same organization. This new album of records has also met with a hearty welcome from the trade, and our policy now includes the issuance of albums of rare records at stated intervals.

"In the field of light classical music the Odeon Co. succeeded in securing two of the most celebrated orchestras of Berlin as exclusive artists. The names of Marek Weber and Dajos Bela are now known to the phonograph dealers of this country and to many thousands of music lovers. Among other famous artists who made their first recordings on Odeon records are Alfred Piccaver, Richard Tauber, Maria Jeritza, Barbara Kemp, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, Maria Ivogun, Elisabeth Rethberg and many others. We have released so far about 5,000 selections from the immense repertoires of the Carl Lindstrom Co. and over 50,000 recordings are at our disposal, to be issued by this company under the Odeon label."

A. J. HAND OPENS NEW STORE

LITTLE FALLS, MINN., December 5.—A. J. Hand has leased the store in the First National Bank Building, this city, formerly occupied by the Folsom Music Co., and on December 1 will open a new music store. Mr. Folsom has closed out his stock here and will concentrate in the future on his store in Brainerd. Mr. Hand will carry a complete stock of pianos, talking machines and records, sheet music and musical merchandise. He is a well-known musician of fifteen years' experience and is widely known in this locality in that capacity.

HOW CUSTOMERS SHOULD BE TREATED

The customer, actual and prospective, is the outstanding figure in export trade, says C. J. North in Commerce Reports, published by the Department of Commerce in Washington. To cater to his needs, desires and whims and to keep him in a receptive mood should be the task of every export manager, and, we might add, it is the task of every retail domestic talking machine manager to handle his customers with equal tact.

L. H. WEBER ENTERS FIELD

EAST HARTFORD, CONN., December 4.—A new music shop has just been opened at 1257 Main street, by L. H. Weber. The store, which is the only music establishment in town, has been renovated and improved in many ways. Mr. Weber was one of the proprietors of the Hartford Music Store.

Letting the Phonograph Dealer in on Some News

GULBRANSEN NATIONAL ADVERTISING schedules for 1924 include the publication of twelve four-color cover advertisements in The Literary Digest. This is the most extensive line-up of color advertising that the piano industry has ever known. A full-page, four-color ad every month!

In addition, The Saturday Evening Post and American Magazine will be used—carrying full-page advertising of the Gulbransen Registering Piano; farm papers, too.

That mere announcement of continuous advertising explains to the phonograph dealer the whole story of “active demand.” Any merchant who knows what consistent, effective National Advertising will do for a worthy product will quickly understand why the Gulbransen has been singled out for representation by dealers who have for years restricted themselves to the sale of phonographs.

Chamber of Commerce Endorses Mellon Plan

Approves Abolishing of Higher Surtax Rates and Eliminating Special and Discriminatory Taxes on Special Lines of Business, Especially Jewelry and Vending Machine Taxes

The business men of the country generally are naturally interested in the opening of the first session of the Sixty-eighth Congress, which convened Monday, December 3, for there are a number of matters of direct interest to the business world scheduled to come up before the new Congress, chief among them being the question of tax reduction, over which there is promised a long and bitter fight.

The Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has strongly endorsed the proposals made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon looking to a downward revision of taxes to realize upon the savings that have been effected in the management of the country's affairs.

Specifically the Chamber has approved abolishing the higher surtax rates and eliminating all special and discriminatory taxes on various lines of business. In this connection, too, the Chamber has again voiced its opposition to the soldier bonus, which has been linked up with the tax question as a political measure and the adoption of which would make impossible any lowering of taxes.

In endorsing the Mellon plan of tax reduction, the Chamber is also prepared to take energetic steps to bring about the elimination of the two discriminatory taxes which still apply against the music industry, namely, the jewelry and vending machine taxes.

The Revenue Act of 1921 taxes articles mounted with gold, silver, precious metals, ivory, etc., and is applied by the Revenue Department to band instruments thus ornamented. It is also sought to be applied to gold and silver-mounted violin bows, phonographs and other musical instruments. The "vending-machine" tax, the name of which is self-explanatory, is applied by the department to the total value of all coin-operated pianos or other musical instruments sold since January 1, 1922.

It is hoped that through the efforts of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce both of these taxes will be eliminated as applied to the music industry, which will result in a substantial saving to manufacturers of the instruments taxed. Its activities are in line with the country's opinion.

STRONG CO. RECEIVER DISMISSED

To Settle Claims in Full—Plan Re-establishment of the Business

The application for a receivership for the Strong Record Co., 206 Fifth avenue, New York, has been dismissed by the United States District Court. The dismissal followed the consent of the creditors to a 100 per cent settlement of all claims on a deferred plan, which was secured through the efforts of the present active management, consisting of Adolf Hawerlander, president, and Henry Glaue, secretary. The business will be re-established, and all of the old claims will be liquidated on a basis of 100 cents on the dollar.

ORTON BROS. CO. REMODELING

The Orton Bros. Co., Butte, Mont., is remodeling its store. When the work is completed this company will have three departments—Victrola, small goods and pianos. Expansion of the business made the work necessary.

FOR MORE TRADE COMMISSIONERS

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Seeks to Expand Activities in Foreign Fields

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 4.—Increased funds for the Department of Commerce, to be used for the purpose of employing more trade commissioners and commercial attaches and adding several new commodity divisions to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, will be asked of Congress by Secretary Hoover during the coming season. Estimates for the additional proposals are now before the Budget Bureau and it is considered highly probable that the Director of the Bureau will give his approval to the Secretary's plans. If additional funds are secured, it is proposed to employ about twenty more trade commissioners and commercial attaches, a good part of whom will be assigned to South American countries, where our trade is rapidly growing.

CELEBRATES THIRTIETH YEAR

Stransburg Music House, With Seven Stores, Completes Thirtieth Year of Business

OIL CITY, PA., December 6.—A thirtieth anniversary sale was held in this city recently by the Stransburg Music House to commemorate the founding of the first store of the system in Jamestown by Oscar Stransburg. The Stransburg system now includes stores in Oil City, Hornell, Meadville, Titusville, Bradford, Mt. Jewett and Warren. Oscar Stransburg was a pioneer in the chain store movement and early believed that it could be advantageously applied to music merchandising. By conducting a group of stores within a hundred-mile radius of one another, with a centralized buying and managerial policy, Mr. Stransburg has been able to market his product most satisfactorily.

MILWAUKEE

Holiday Season Promises to Be Best Ever—Used Models Sell as Shortage of Popular Types Grows—Retailers and Jobbers Rushed

MILWAUKEE, WIS., December 7.—With but a few days more than a fortnight remaining before talking machine dealers close up shop to go home to celebrate a merry Christmas, indications are that the 1923 holiday season will go down into history as the best ever known. This is true, despite the fact that as early as the first week in December jobbers and dealers representing the most popular makes of talking machines were fighting for instruments, while their respective factories were in such an oversold condition that it is hopeless now to expect relief before early next year.

Used Models in Demand as Shortage Grows

A tremendous Victor business is being done in the Wisconsin and Upper Michigan territory, with the Badger Talking Machine Co. of Milwaukee utterly unable to fill all the wants of its extensive dealer organization. The sting was taken out of this situation, to a certain extent, by the fact that it was a well-known fact thirty to sixty days ago that a shortage of merchandise was bound to occur. Victor dealers in Milwaukee are finding many buyers who are unable to get delivery of their favorite style by Christmas Eve, asking for a used machine of the same number, either as a loan or for permanent possession. There has never been so strong a movement of used Victrolas into consumer channels.

Record Sonora Business

Notwithstanding the fact that Yahr & Lange have had delivery of the largest number of Sonora instruments so far this year that has ever been recorded, this large distributing house is far short of the number required to fill its orders, which are still coming in growing numbers from dealers all through the Wisconsin and Michigan territory.

December 1 marked the departure of Irving S. Leon, since August 1 sales manager of the Sonora and Okeh record department of Yahr & Lange. He resigned November 15 to accept important connections in his home State of New York. He made a good record in the brief time of his connection with Yahr & Lange and his departure was regretted.

During recent weeks Yahr & Lange awarded Sonora franchises to a number of large Milwaukee retailers, including Gimbel Bros. and the Hartman Furniture & Carpet Co.

Big Brunswick Gain

Brunswick sales by the local branch for 1923 will run anywhere from 60 to 100 per cent over the best previous year, and still about 20 per cent of orders for delivery by January 1 cannot be made due to the limitations of productive facilities, owing to the sensational call for this instrument all over the country. P. H. McCulloch, manager of the talking machine department, says he cannot recall a year when business in the Brunswick line has been so remarkably good.

New Victor Accounts

The retail Victor organization in Milwaukee has had two substantial additions in recent weeks. One is the C. W. Fischer Furniture Co., said to be the largest housefurnishings store of the better class in the Northwest. For many years Fischer's maintained an extensive talking machine and record department, which was discontinued about four years ago. Some time ago the Hartman interests bought the controlling share in the Fischer store and the department has been re-established with the Victor as exclusive merchandise. Miss Helen Gunnis, formerly in charge at Fischer's and later with Edmund Gram, Inc., has returned to the old position as manager. She is recognized not only as one of the most capable women in the trade, but a noted vocalist as well. The other new Victor franchise was awarded to the J. B. Bradford Piano Co. for its South Side store, at 608 Mitchell street. Heretofore only the Brunswick and Aeolian-Vocalion were carried on the South Side, although the main store at 411 Broadway has long been a Victor house.

The Cheney, which has had an exclusive home at Edmund Gram, Inc., for a number of years, now has a companion in the Boston store, which recently took on the line.

Excellent Edison Demand

Retailers of the Edison, likewise, are enthusiastic over trade and in every instance sales are running far ahead of last year, which was the banner year for the Edison up to this time. There is an excellent Edison record demand.

Shortage Hampers Victor Dealer

Leslie C. Parker, head of the Carberry-Parker Co., conducting the Badger Music Shop here and a branch in Fond du Lac, Wis., said that both stores are doing a land-office business in the Victor line and its second-hand stock of these goods has been depleted by the call for Victrolas by people who are unable to get prompt delivery of a new instrument.

R. G. Hessel Opens Branch

R. G. Hessel, who conducted a general store at Rockwood, Wis., for many years and represented the Edison as well as several makes of pianos, has established a branch devoted exclusively to musical merchandise in Manitowoc, Wis., of which he will personally have charge, other members of the family taking the active management of the Rockwood store.

Madison Firms Consolidate

The two largest music stores in Madison, Wis., have been consolidated. They are the Hook Bros. Piano Co. and the Albert E. Smith Music Co. Since December 1 the combined firms have been doing business at State and Mifflin streets, under the name of Hook Bros. Piano Co. & Albert E. Smith, Consolidated. A branch store of the Hook Co. in Beloit, Wis., is included in the merger.

C. H. Jackson Promoted

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.'s local branch, which represents the Victor, is now under the management of Charles H. Jackson, formerly a widely known piano manufacturer.

New Columbia Models Please

Milwaukee stores handling the Columbia line express keen satisfaction over the quality as well as quantity of business, and are especially pleased with the wide sale of Columbia records. The new Columbia models are getting a splendid response from the public and the number of Columbia partisans here is growing.

Brunswick in Beautiful Home

An Italian Renaissance style of the Brunswick has been purchased from the J. B. Bradford Piano Co. by Lawrence Fitch, capitalist, for a "tent room" installed in his beautiful residence in Back Bay. The room simulates a large tent and is designed as an amusement and ballroom, accommodating 500 guests. It overlooks Lake Michigan and three walls are of plate glass, forming a bay stretching out nearly over the water's edge. An English tavern room also has been built by Mr. Fitch, in which he has installed a built-in Brunswick with a radio set, housed in a beautiful cabinet which he discovered in Florence, Italy, and brought back with him.

Merle R. Rousselot Engaged

Merle R. Rousselot, secretary-treasurer of the Lyric Music Co., representing the Kimball talking machine line and Okeh records, and Miss Lenora Kadow, of Manitowoc, Wis., have recently become engaged.

The demand for portable talking machines continues strong in Milwaukee and vicinity. More portable styles have been sold this year than in any three years combined.

WICHITA FIRM REORGANIZES

Turner Music Co. Becomes Benjamin-Turner Music Co., With Capital of $100,000

WICHITA, KAN., December 4.—The assets of the Turner Music Co., in operation here since 1912, have been taken over by a new corporation, the Benjamin-Turner Music Co., 412 East Douglas street, having a capital stock of $100,000. J. J. Benjamin, formerly of Cambridge, Kan., and a director of the Union National Bank, will be president and head of the new concern. W. Dell Turner, an experienced music dealer, will act as sales manager.

The new store has been remodeled and new demonstration booths have been installed. At some future time a small goods department will be introduced. A building owned by the company at 810 North Main street will be used for rebuilding and finishing pianos. The following pianos are handled by the Benjamin-Turner Music Co.: Jesse French & Sons, Autopiano, Hazelton Bros., Behr Bros., the Haddorff and Clarendon. The concern will also carry the Columbia phonograph and records.

MAMIE SMITH ON EXTENSIVE TOUR

Okeh Artist Heads Own Company—Tour a Success—Okeh Selections Featured

Mamie Smith, original Blues singer and the first member of her race to become a recognized star in the recording of blues, is now making a countrywide tour with her own company. Her route for the current month includes one-week stands at Nashville, Tenn.; Kansas City, Mo.; Memphis, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala., and New Orleans, La. Miss Smith's act opens with a huge phonograph in the center of the stage, bearing a legend about Okeh records, for which Miss Smith is an exclusive artist. Miss Smith steps out of the phonograph and starts the act with several of the popular blues numbers that she has recorded for the Okeh library.

ANDREWS SELLS OUT TO MOODY

HIAWATHA, KAN., December 3.—C. H. Andrews, who for nineteen years has conducted a successful music business here, has just sold out his complete interest to Arthur Moody, who has already taken charge of the store. Mr. Moody has been closely associated with Mr. Andrews in the business for the past two or three years. Miss Katherine Moody will remain with the store under the new management.

ANOKA MUSIC SHOP OPENS

ANOKA, MINN., December 4.—The formal opening of the Anoka Music Shop in the LaPlant block on Main street was held here recently. The new store handles pianos, phonographs and musical accessories of all kinds. Especially impressive is the indirect lighting effect employed throughout the store, which has cream-colored walls and a Terraza marble floor. The establishment has a repair department in the rear and a row of demonstration booths along the sides. The Brunswick phonograph line is handled.

H. & J. POTTER CO. REMODELING

PORTLAND, ME., December 7.—The H. & J. Potter Furniture Co. is installing a new store front in the large building which it recently purchased in this city. The company is planning for a big opening in a few days. It is proposed to have this store second to none in the State of Maine.

HUTTON OPENS NEW STORE

CLINTON, ILL., December 3.—A new music store in the Sweeney Building, at the corner of Washington and Center streets, has just been opened. It will be known as the Hutton Music House.

The Demand for Sonoras Is Increasing Daily

The year 1923 has witnessed a tremendous increase in the public's demand for Sonora. This increased demand is reflected in the several very large establishments, as well as the hundreds of smaller ones, that have added Sonora during the present year. A partial list of these large, representative names reads like a veritable "Who's Who" of successful retail organizations:

Gimbels, New York City
 Gimbels, Milwaukee
 The Boston Store, Milwaukee
 The Fair Store, Chicago
 Kaufman & Baer, Pittsburgh
 Joseph Horne Co., Pittsburgh
 The Hartman Carpet & Furn. Co., Chicago

 Buescher's, Cleveland
 Reinhardt's, Inc., Memphis
 Empire Music Co., Atlanta
 Tilden-Thurber Corp., Providence
 Widener's, Inc., Indianapolis
 Banner Furniture Co., Indianapolis

When you realize that Sonora's popularity is based upon its value as a phonograph, with no records to carry it along, you will further realize that it must possess even more merit as a phonograph to sufficiently impress the large dealer and induce him to increase his inventory with another line—a line of instruments which the customer insists upon and which the dealer must have in stock or lose sales.

DALLAS

Trade Expansions and New Stores
Feature the Close of the Year—
Heavy Pre-holiday Sales Volume

DALLAS, TEX., December 5.—The Brunswick Co.'s local distributing branch has leased the second floor of the building at 2025-27 Main street, to be used as wholesale showrooms and storage space. The lease is for a period of five years and was made at a consideration of more than $10,000.

Lester Burchfield, in charge of the Victrola department of Sanger Bros., distributors of Victor machines and records, has returned to Dallas after a trip to Galveston and other points in his territory, where he found business good. Mr. Burchfield has just received several large shipments of Victrolas and records. These were shipped from New York to Galveston via water and transhipped by rail at Galveston for Dallas, Waco and Fort Worth.

B. A. Hodges, recently of Breckenridge, Tex., has leased a building in Stamford, Tex., and has opened a music store, where he will deal in musical instruments, sheet music, Victrolas and Victor records and other music goods.

The Columbia Phonograph Co., distributor of Columbia phonographs and records, is doing one of the heaviest Fall trades in its history, according to Manager Erisman. New dealers are being opened in towns in Texas and Oklahoma and an intensive drive is being made to thoroughly organize the territory.

A. G. Feltner, of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., has completed his survey of the Southwest territory and reports sales increased nearly 50 per cent since this survey was begun. New dealers have been opened in many towns and the old dealers, who had fallen into inactivity, have been filled with new ideas and pep, according to Mr. Feltner.

With the coming of the musical season, with grand opera and numerous concerts and entertainments, dealers report a big increase in the sales of records, especially the higher-priced records of the famous stars, while sales of sheet music are also helped.

The San Carlo Grand Opera Co. as well as John McCormack, Galli-Curci, Fritz Kreisler, Joseph Lhevinne and other world-famous stars and record artists have been or will be with us during the season.

The Somno-Psycho-Phone Sale Corp. has been organized in San Antonio to sell at retail with a capital of $3,000, and the incorporators are Stephen F. Austin, Sophie S. Austin and W. E. Austin.

The Walthall Music Co. has also been organized in San Antonio with capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are L. E. Walthall, M. W. Lehann and J. R. Merchant.

WATCH FOR THIS WOMAN SWINDLER

A woman swindler has made her appearance among the New York trade, according to Saul Birns, proprietor of a chain of talking machine stores here. Her method is to make arrangements for the purchase of an instrument, stating her intention of making a large down payment and paying the balance in three monthly instalments. The suspicions of one of Mr. Birns' salesmen was aroused when she tendered a check considerably in excess of the amount of the first instalment. The check was tactfully refused and the woman left, stating that she would return with the cash. The address she gave was found to be fictitious.

"DAILY DOZEN" HELPED YALE TO WIN

How Walter Camp Put Pep Into Great Football Victors at Yale—Dealers Properly Making Capital of Victory

Several Saturdays ago the result of "keeping fit" was broadcasted throughout the entire country in the announcement of the defeat of the Harvard team by Yale on the gridiron. Last Spring, when Yale football practice was begun, Walter Camp, originator of the "Daily Dozen" and former Yale coach, was approached by Yale to help train the team for the coming encounter with Harvard in the Fall. Mr. Camp stated, emphatically, that the coaching and general training was all that could be desired and could not be criticized, but took hold of the team from the standpoint of "keeping fit." As the best method for this result he used his own "Daily Dozen" exercises and regularly, from the beginning of the training in the Spring up until the morning of the great game, the Yale team was put through the "Daily Dozen" each day. The result was a great victory for Yale and a tribute in every way to the efficiency of the "Daily Dozen."

Health Builders, Inc., producer of Walter Camp's "Daily Dozen" on talking machine record sets, is advising its many dealers of this victory of the "Daily Dozen" and it is expected that this information will have a favorable effect in increasing sales. Retailers who have been farsighted enough to capitalize on this opportunity are reaping unexpected profits.

SUCCESS MUSIC SHOP CHARTERED

A charter of incorporation was recently granted to the Success Music Shop, of New York City. The concern, which is capitalized for $2,000, will handle musical instruments. Incorporators are R. and E. Cohn and J. Mayesh.

Western Dealer Finds Setting Off of Console Models With Mirrors and Table Lamps Opens Up a New and Worth-while Source of Profit

A prominent music merchant in a mid-Western city, in arranging his establishment in a manner most calculated to win trade, decided that he could move some slow-selling console styles of talking machines if he displayed them in a manner that would give the customer some idea of how they would look in the living-room. He accordingly furnished several booths with elaborate floor coverings, easy chairs, and then secured several console mirrors and electric table lamps to set off the machines.

It was one idea that had unexpected results, for the first customer to be introduced to the machine insisted on buying both the mirror and the lamp with it. The second and third customers became equally impressed with the attractive arrangement and made the triple purchase with the result that the dealer ordered a dozen mirrors and as many lamps and began advertising them in a combination offer that secured the full price for the machine and brought profitable prices for the lamps and mirrors.

The interesting part is that the clever arrangement moved quickly a number of console models in odd finishes that had remained on the floor of the store for some months. Also between $15 and $20 additional profit was made on each combination sale of machine, mirror and lamp, and the combination has now become a regular feature of the establishment.

Perhaps if some other dealers would discontinue the practice of giving various articles free with machines, thus actually cutting prices, and instead think up similar attractive combinations, the goods would move just as fast or faster and the additional profits would make the venture most attractive and the good-will thus created would be a further sales aid.

MUSIC ROLLS AS A SIDELINE

Talking Machine Dealers Tying Up Record Business With Rolls and Boosting Profits

Talking machine dealers are finding music rolls a profitable sideline, according to George H. (Jack) Bliss, manager of the Eastern division of the United States Music Roll Co., with headquarters in New York, who backed up this statement by pointing out that many retailers are adding rolls. The clever talking machine dealer can tie up his record business to music rolls and profit by the sale of both, declared Mr. Bliss. The best method of exploitation is the placing of a half dozen or a dozen rolls in a small special showcase on top of the regular service counter. To purchasers of rolls the salesman can suggest that the same musical number can be obtained on records and vice versa. The expense involved in installing a music roll sideline is very small and, with little effort, the turnover is rapid enough to give the dealer a substantial profit on his investment. Furthermore, the announcements of the latest roll releases can be placed in the same envelopes which bear the record supplements to customers, thus eliminating mailing cost insofar as the rolls are concerned.

UNUSUAL VICTOR RECORD LIBRARY

One of the most remarkable record libraries in the country is that accumulated by George C. A. Hantelman, 718 West Market street, Akron, O. Mr. Hantelman has been gathering Victor records of the better music for ten years and his library now is composed of about 2,200 records. The unusual feature of the collection is the wealth of descriptive and explanatory matter which Mr. Hantelman has collected and pasted in the record albums. This includes photographs of artists, opera plots and exhaustive data pertaining to the composers and recorders of the selections.

TURNER MUSIC CO. FORMALLY OPENED

Musical Program and Distribution of Prizes and Souvenirs Feature Opening of Attractive St. Petersburg, Fla., Branch of the Company

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA., December 7.—The fine, new establishment of the Turner Music Co. was formally opened here in November with a musical program and the distribution of prizes. The leading orchestras of the city played during the afternoon and evening and a real musical treat was given to local music lovers. Souvenirs, consisting of roses and copies of sheet music, were distributed to the ladies present. Prizes, consisting of a portable phonograph, six Brunswick records and another prize of three Brunswick records, were given to lucky visitors at the close of the evening program. Among those present at the opening was N. B. Duke, Florida representative of the Brunswick Atlanta branch.

The store is one of the most attractive in this section. There are three large booths on the first floor, presenting very much the appearance of small bungalows, as well as a striking display of Brunswick phonographs. A feature of these booths is the fact that they have been designed and constructed so that during the day no artificial lighting is necessary. Fixtures and service facilities are the most modern obtainable and present the last word in up-to-date merchandising facilities.

W. B. Word, manager of the store, is a talking machine man of wide experience, and the sales organization also is composed of persons of ability and experience.

TO HANDLE TALKING MACHINES

The Brown Furniture Co., with a large store at 135-139 East Fifth street, Dayton, O., is at the present time establishing a piano and talking machine department there. The lines to be handled have not yet been announced.

THE delightful picture in this ad—from the cover of the 11th Bubble Book—was shown in the November issue of Children's Royal in an article entitled "Music Attuned to the Ears of Youth."

Children's Royal Tells Your Customers About Bubble Books

BUBBLE BOOKS at once sing themselves into the hearts of children. They need no other introduction than a first hearing. After that the children demand one after another of the fourteen Bubble Books "that sing."

To win that first hearing Bubble Books are continually brought to the attention of parents through advertisements and editorials in the magazines they read. (See the adjoining quotation from Children's Royal about Bubble Books.)

Introduce Bubble Books to the children of your customers through the attractive free dealer helps that catch their eyes. Ask us about Bubble Book Hour. It will bring parents and children to your store in flocks. Remember, an introduction means fourteen sales.

HERE'S what Children's Royal says about Bubble Books:

"... Great, however, as is the aid which books may give to those who would further the musical training of the child in the home, it is slight in comparison with that offered by the phonograph. The Bubble Books, of which fourteen have already been published by Harper, while others are in preparation, begin with these very rhymes of the nursery and carry their melodies to the very ears of infancy. Each book contains three diminutive records, which may be played on any phonograph, of rhymes, singing games, or songs, sung by voices such as children love, together with the printed words of the songs or stories, or directions for playing the games, and pleasing picture-book illustrations in color. Cows "moo," horses whinny, crows caw, and countless other animals make those sounds so arresting to the infant ear in these records, and voices of excellent quality sing the melodies."

YOUR SINCERITY

Sincerity of purpose is not only a fine thing, in itself, but as a business builder it has no equal. Particularly when, as in your case, that purpose has been to keep the interest of your customers foremost—to give them at all times the highest quality of merchandise—to justify in every respect their confidence in you and in your establishment.

It has been your sincerity of purpose during 1923 that has made new customers and held old ones—that has brought to you the well-merited measure of prosperity which you have enjoyed. We, as well, have been the grateful beneficiaries. You, by giving your customers "quality first" have necessarily created increased sales of Brilliantone Steel Needles.

Your 1923 sincerity of purpose definitely charts your course for 1924—which will mean more business and better business for all.

*Yuletide Activity Under Way—
Retailers Add New Lines—Glen Bros.-Roberts to Open New Home*

OGDEN, UTAH, December 6.—Business has responded quicker to the improved conditions of the Fall in payroll towns of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming than in towns and communities supported by agriculture. Although the farming centers have not reacted so readily Edison dealers report good business, with the holiday trade brisker than since the period of depression following the war. This was the comment of T. C. Hutchison, of the Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., Edison distributor for this territory, who said that Idaho, in particular, is in the midst of a trade revival that is already being felt by talking machine dealers.

Among the new Edison dealer accounts opened by the Proudfit Co. are the Jones Phonograph Shop, Ogden; T. C. Martin Music Co., Pocatello, Ida.; Adolph Biancane, Elko, Nev.

W. C. Carnes, formerly with one of the leading music stores in Minneapolis, has become manager of the Sampson Music Co., Edison dealer, of Boise, Ida.

R. H. Embrie, Edison dealer, of Kemmerer, Wyo., reports excellent business conditions.

Henry Chipp, of Rock Springs, Wyo., says that the coal miners are buying talking machines for the family Christmas presents. Mr. Chipp is an Edison dealer.

Colwell & Spargur, Edison dealers, of Twin Falls, Ida., have dissolved partnership. Ray Spargur is now in the drug business in Casper, Wyo. Paulson Jewelry Co., of Burley, Ida., reports an active Fall business in Edisons.

Glen Bros.-Roberts Music Co., of Ogden, is enjoying a large volume of business in its new home. The company is preparing for a formal opening in the near future. The concern's splendid new store is a distinct addition to Ogden music circles. W. H. Manning, director of the Weber College School of Music, has already started to use Glen Bros.' large music hall, where he conducts classes in music appreciation. The interior of the store is finished in cream and pale blue enamel. The first floor contains the sheet music and small goods departments toward the front. Near the middle is the record room. This room is presided over by Miss Bertha Monson. A special band instrument room, booths for phonographs, display and demonstration, music roll shelving and demonstration room are to the rear. On the mezzanine floor is the office of George S. Glen, the president; the store's business office, piano display quarters and player-piano demonstration booths. The next floor is a music hall, capable of seating 250, with permanent stage, grand piano and Ampico demonstration rooms. T. J. Holland, sales manager, said that in the new home, with more commodious facilities, the company anticipates a record holiday business. Already Christmas shoppers have been visiting the new store and making early purchases.

Ezra Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Shop, has added the Edison line of phonographs. He also handles the Brunswick and Sonora lines. He reports excellent business in records.

Williams Music Co. now handles the Banner line of records. This company sells the Steger and Pathé phonographs and reports increasing business over the past few months.

Browning Bros., Brunswick dealers, are contemplating several changes in the phonograph department, including new quarters. Glen Thomas, manager, says the new Banner records are meeting with wide favor.

C. E. Armstrong & Co., dealers in Edison and Pathé machines and Edison, Pathé and Actuelle records, report satisfactory conditions. The holiday business promises to be large at this busy establishment.

The Brunswick banquet held at Salt Lake City on the evening of November 26, in the Newhouse Hotel, was attended by Ogden dealers and salesfolk as follows: Ezra B. Jones, M. L. Jones, Misses Lillian Peterson and Ruth Nelson, all of the Jones Phonograph Shop, and Thomas J. Holland, the Misses Bertha Monson, Adelaide Ashton and Laurine White, of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. Among the speakers were G. C. Spratt, district manager of the Salt Lake Brunswick offices, and Robert Perry, the Brunswick field representative.

FIRST PRIZE FOR WORLD BUILDING

Building at 383 Madison Avenue in Which World Offices Are Now Located Secures Award From the Fifth Avenue Association

The strictly modern character of the new quarters of The World is evidenced by the fact that the building at 383-Madison avenue, New York, in which The World offices are located, was awarded the first prize for new buildings, a gold medal and diploma, by the Fifth Avenue Association. The building, a twelve-story structure, occupies the entire block from Forty-sixth to Forty-seventh streets on Madison avenue, and is designed in modernized Renaissance style, the avenue front being entirely of Indiana limestone. The diploma goes to Cross & Cross, the architects.

ALBUM SETS

An Okeh Idea!

A few months ago, the General Phonograph Corporation released the first and only complete recording of Schubert's "Symphony in B Minor" on three double-face imported ODEON recordings contained in a specially prepared album. The great demand for this original album set was so quickly evident and the sales were so noticeably steady, that we were encouraged to prepare additional sets along similar lines. Okeh had again taken the right step in the right direction!

To date we have released the five album sets listed below. Each set consists of three double-face records contained in a handsome black leatherette album attractively imprinted and bearing on the inside cover an interesting story pertaining to the selections or the composer. Album sets have a proven appeal to record-buyers—an appeal that is going to be very much stronger around the holiday season. Place your orders for these sets now! Make the most of this new, exclusively Okeh opportunity for increased holiday sales and profits!

Schubert's
Symphony in B Minor
"THE UNFINISHED SYMPHONY"

THE first album set; three imported 12-inch double-face ODEON recordings containing the first and only complete recording of Schubert's famous masterpiece. It is beautifully interpreted by one of Europe's well-known musical organizations—the Orchestra of the German Opera House, Berlin, under the direction of the internationally famous conductor, Eduard Moerike. Retail price, complete with album.....$5.00

Von Weber's
Der Freischütz and Oberon
OVERTURES

ANOTHER rare record importation that is rapidly being sold throughout the country to lovers of fine music—the Overtures to Von Weber's operas Der Freischütz and Oberon on three 12-inch double-face ODEON recordings. These beautiful compositions are also made especially desirable by the superb interpretations of the celebrated Eduard Moerike and the Orchestra of the German Opera House, Berlin. Retail price, complete with album.....$5.00

Carmen

IN this special album set of three 12-inch double-face imported ODEON recordings are incorporated six of the most desirable orchestral selections from the opera Carmen. The great American popularity of Carmen combined with the exceptionally fine renditions of these selections by the accomplished Dr. Weissmann and the Orchestra of the State Opera House, Berlin, will make this set a much-prized addition to any library of classic music. Retail price, complete with album.....$5.00

Rare Record Set

THIS set has been specially prepared in time for the holiday season. It is comprised of six well-known beautiful selections rendered by famous musical organizations of Europe on three 12-inch double-face ODEON recordings. *Drop in Temperature Speeds Up
Christmas Business—Schmoller-Mueller Co. Buys National Co.*

OMAHA, NEB., December 6.—During the last two weeks the temperature has dropped to quite an extent and buying has increased considerably. Possibly the colder weather has brought a realization of the nearness of Christmas, and that has helped to speed up business. At any rate, things look much brighter than they did ten days ago and the music dealers are all ready for their Christmas campaigns.

The largest deal in the music trade circles in Omaha that has been consummated for some time is the purchase of the entire stock and fixtures of the National Music Supply Co., Victor dealer, at 1907 Farnam street, which was going out of business on account of dissolution of partnership, by the Schmoller & Mueller Co. The National Music Supply Co. was an old firm, having been in business in Omaha for many years. The Schmoller & Mueller Co. is now an authorized Victor dealer.

William A. Schmoller, president of the Schmoller & Mueller Co., announced that the personnel of the National Music Supply Co. would be given positions with the Schmoller & Mueller Co.

The Ed. Patton Music Co., one of the local dealers supplied by the Mickel Bros. Co., Victor jobber, has a very interesting Victor window. Two models, loaned for the exhibit by the Victor Co., are on display. One is a model of the first type of Victrola made and the other a Victrola No. 130, especially built for the San Francisco World's Fair. According to Manager Topping, of the talking machine department, this exhibit has attracted considerable attention.

Local record dealers generally report increased sales of Sousa records due to the appearance of the famous band here in concert on November 24. An afternoon as well as an evening performance was given and both were very well attended. Several banquets were held in honor of Mr. Sousa.

Both Frank Resnick, of the Union Outfitting Co., and Miss Lois Ferrin, manager of the talking machine department of the Burgess-Nash Co., report a good sale of Brunswicks during November.

Schultz Bros., Edison jobbers, are showing some very artistic Christmas displays in their windows, as well as making some particularly attractive Christmas offers. They report that their out-State trade during November has been up to the average and indications point to a big holiday retail trade.

P. G. Spitz, manager of the phonograph department in the Brandeis Stores, has just returned from a business trip to New York and points East. The wife of Mr. Spitz has recently been very ill, but is now convalescent.

J. E. Conley, formerly with the Des Moines Life Insurance Co.'s Omaha agency, is now salesman in the talking machine department of the Brandeis Co. D. Curtis, formerly with the Schmoller & Mueller Co., has also joined the Brandeis force. Mr. Corey, one of the Brandeis salesmen, has left that company and is now with the Mickel Bros. Co., of this city.

Willard Duning, wholesale representative of the Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., for Nebraska and Iowa, is opening an office and retail store at 405 South Fifteenth street, where Genett records and Starr phonographs will be featured. Mr. Duning states that he will not have all of his office fixtures nor a permanent lease before the first of the year.

R. C. A. ELECTROTYPE BOOK READY

R. C. A. Dealers Receive Copy of New Cut Book—Valuable Suggestions as to Their Use

The publicity department of the Radio Corporation of America, New York, has just issued a complete electrotype book for the exclusive use of R. C. A. distributors and dealers. There is presented in this book a complete array of advertising helps, including halftones and line cuts in various sizes for practically every item in the R. C. A. line. Mats of complete advertisements with additional copy suggestions are also included. A paragraph on the cover of this book states: "Local advertising is the connecting link between our national campaigns and your store. The public must be told where it can buy R. C. A. Radiolas, Radiotrons and other apparatus. Let pictures tell the story—an illustrated advertisement sells apparatus. A good reproduction has far more appeal than mere text. The advertising that pulls contains cuts, and the cuts are yours for the asking."

ARNOLD-EDWARDS FORMAL OPENING

Jacksonville Co. Holds Week Celebration in Dedicating Its New Warerooms

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., December 6.—A week of celebration was completed here recently by the Arnold-Edwards Co. as a formal dedication of its new building at 127 West Adams street. Decorations including special theatre lights and large vases of flowers added to the festive appearance of the establishment, many of the floral sets coming as donations from local institutions and national music houses.

During the first evening of the dedication a concert was given on the balcony by the Arnold-Victor Orchestra, while in the recital hall on the third floor there was an artistic program, and in the Ampico room, on the same floor, another concert was featured. With a slightly raised stage at one end of this floor, a small concert hall is afforded which has a seating capacity of one hundred and fifty persons. The first two floors are devoted to instruments.

KANSAS CITY

Dealers Making Use of Manufacturer's Publicity—Year-end Sales Promise to Be Big—Changes in the Trade and News of the Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 7.—This city has been frequently criticized as lacking in musical appreciation, but when high-class music was presented in an attractive way in "Blossom Time" the two past weeks the Wunderlich Piano Co. reported that the sale of records of music from "Blossom Time" was so great that it was impossible to keep it in stock.

Dealers Using Victor Publicity

The J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. reports that little Christmas pamphlets attractively gotten up by the Victor Co. with the holiday season in mind, one giving a list of records and one illustrating a variety of Victrolas, have been very well received by the dealers in this territory, showing that they do oftentimes use freely the advertising material which is sent to them. This wholesaler also reports that the console models of Victrolas are in great demand. The tendency is to buy the popular-priced Victrolas.

Claude Barricklow, of Great Bend, Ind.; Fred Kaiser, of Ottawa, Kan., and Paul Lanning, of Ossawatimie, Kan., Victor dealers, were in Kansas City the last week in November, looking over the stock at the J. W. Jenkins Sons Co., preparatory to buying for Christmas trade.

Edison Year Closes With Rush

J. H. Cropp, sales manager of the Edison Shop, said that the store had had splendid business in November and that the outlook as regards the Edison line is exceptionally bright, with an unprecedented holiday trade a certainty.

Holds "Victrola Week"

The J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. recently staged a "Victrola Week." Special advertisements in the daily papers and window displays attracted much attention. One window featured grand opera records by having miniature dolls representing singers in the leading rôles of the operas in costume arranged in strikingly dramatic attitudes. Many sales resulted, according to Burton J. Pierce, head of the Victor department. Some of the Victrolas purchased are for Christmas gifts and are to be held for Christmas delivery.

Brisk Demand for Okeh Records

According to the Artophone Co. business is very good. In fact, it finds that it has almost more than it can do with an unusual run at the present time on Okeh records for Christmas. Some new Kansas City records made by the local artists, Bennie Moten's Orchestra, Mary Bradford and Ada Brown are going very well.

Edison Dealers Winding Up Busy Year

The Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with headquarters in this city, is a busy place these days taking care of its dealers, who are already busy with holiday sales. Both machines and records seem to be moving in a most satisfactory manner, and there is no doubt that when the calm after the storm comes in January dealers will look back with satisfaction to a year of steady progress.

Music Box Featuring Victor

The stock of the Talking Machine Co. at Eleventh and Main streets, bankrupt, which was bought by Mrs. Edward Zola some months ago, has been gradually cleaned out and this is now an exclusive Victor store under the name of the Music Box. Miss Frances Enoch, who was with the J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co., is at the head of the Red Seal department. M. C. Dalrymple, formerly a retail merchant, is the business and advertising manager.

Holiday Drive Under Way at Jones Store

The music department of the Jones Store Co. is staging a special sales drive for the holiday season. The company also carries a line of Sonora and Victor machines, which are selling well through the Christmas club plan.

Kimball Co.'s Advertising Profitable

J. D. Mahaffey, advertising manager of the Kimball Co., says that they have done more business in the last ninety days than during any similar period in the history of the firm. This is, he feels, due to an intensive advertising campaign. The Okeh records of popular music are going particularly good just now.

Victor Dealers to Meet

There will be a meeting of Victor dealers who are served by the J. W. Jenkins Sons Co. at the Baltimore this month. Miss Marie Finney, of the educational department of the Victor Co., will be here at that time to give a lecture upon the educational value of the Victrola. A large attendance is expected.

News Gleanings in Brief

William Olney, formerly with the Victrola department at the Leader department store, St. Joseph, Mo., is now with Abbott & Troyer, prominent music house of that city.

Miss Rosalie Kout, of Topeka, Kan., has taken charge of the phonograph department at Rohr's, that city.

Miss Aileen Stanley, Victor artist, entertained the local Victor dealers at their last meeting.

George Price, Victor artist, was in Kansas City recently and visited dealers. He appeared at the Shubert in the "Spice of 1922."

Miss Belle Baker, Victor artist, appeared at the Orpheum and Feodor Chaliapin appeared at Convention Hall recently.

Other Victor artists who will be in Kansas City soon are Paul Whiteman's S. S. "Leviathan" Orchestra and Sousa's Band.

Brooklyn Holiday Trade Grows Apace

Christmas Savings Funds Being Distributed by Banks—New Accounts Opened—Live Dealer Cashes in on Small Window—The News

Business throughout Brooklyn and Long Island territory is particularly good and both jobbers and retailers seen by The World expressed themselves as pleased with the general upward trend in conditions. One prominent retailer recently commented upon the fact that never in all his experience in the talking machine industry had initial payments been higher or the average sale totaled as much in dollars.

That the talking machine dealer will come into a good share of business during and after the holidays is the view of one prominent Brooklyn jobber. He bases his opinion on the reports of the banks concerning the amount of money deposited in the Christmas Savings Fund, which was distributed by the banks on the first of December. In the Borough of Brooklyn alone there was a total of two million dollars in Christmas funds, while in Greater New York over five million dollars were held on deposit, the total savings throughout the country amount to $40,000,000 as against $19,000,000 at this time last year. This money represents a distinctly different form of savings as compared with ordinary bank deposits. Since it is limited as to the time it may remain in the banks and must be withdrawn at the time specified, it stands to reason the talking machine dealer will profit by the release of this money and come in for a fair share of business from those who receive various sums at this time. While it is not possible to tell exactly who the people are having these accounts, prospects can be followed closely, and when the money becomes available, inasmuch as they have already been approached by the dealer and they are in a very receptive mood, the money being on hand, what could be more ideal?

Making Some Fine Sales

A. Lesser, 631 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, has recently made some unusual sales of Victor machines. One of his best sales was that of a Louis XVI period model to M. Lapidus, prominent local shoe manufacturer, who turned in a $250 Victrola, which had been in his possession for two years, in order to secure the more expensive instrument. Mr. Lapidus, by the way, is an enthusiastic collector of records, and he has one of the finest Victor record libraries in the city. Mr. Lesser is one of the liveliest dealers in the Long Island territory, and his aggressive merchandising methods have been instrumental in building up a large business in Victor machines and records.

New Sonora Accounts

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora distributor in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory, has been enjoying a fair business during the past month. A number of new accounts have been added during this period, including M. Brody, 1042 Central avenue, Far Rockaway; the Parkside Music Shop, 2241 Parkside avenue, Brooklyn, and the Flatbush Music Shop, 1533 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn. The last-named concern, of which Thomas Swire is the proprietor, now handles three lines, namely, Sonora, Brunswick and Columbia phonographs.

Jack Sachnoff Opens Store

An attractive new talking machine establishment has recently been opened at 416 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, by Jack Sachnoff. Modern fixtures, including record demonstration booths, racks and service counters, have been installed. The store is in a good location and Mr. Sachnoff is preparing to capitalize on this fact by going out after business in an active and determined manner.

Good Victor Business

That the retail Victor trade is in a prosperous state is indicated by the fact that the American Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, with headquarters in Brooklyn, is closing a banner Fall and Christmas business. It is expected that when the holidays are over the dealers will be in a position to look back at a very satisfactory sales volume.

Makes Small Windows Pay

The talking machine department of the Sterling Piano Corp. is overcoming display difficulties of small windows by arranging very simple exhibits. Although the objects featured in each window are few the ensemble is always artistic and sometimes so unusual as to almost compel passers-by to stop for a look. Recently a very attractive display consisted of one Victor console and an upright machine. The only other objects in the window were, perhaps, a dozen especially prepared placards featuring some of the latest Victor records. A local sign-painter's services are utilized for the making of these placards and their use in the windows

Aeolian Co. Has Successful Year

A very successful year has been enjoyed by the Brooklyn branch of the Aeolian Co. on Flatbush avenue. Each month has been a little better in point of sales than the same month last year, according to Manager Davis. Regular advertising and attention-compelling window displays have been the two big factors in the good business enjoyed by this progressive house. The advertising of this company has appeared in the local newspapers regularly throughout the year. The large windows of this concern offer unusual facilities and this has been taken advantage of. Some of the best window displays of the year in the talking machine trade in Brooklyn are credited to the skillful work of the Aeolian Co. forces.

Live Methods of Brooklynite Win

Talking Machine Department of Batterman's Store Averages Twenty Machine Sales Each Day as a Result of Efficiency and Work

The careful selection of sales people, intensive canvassing and advertising have been instrumental in making the talking machine department of Batterman's Department Store, Brooklyn, one of the most profitable and important branches of the business. An average daily sale of twenty instruments and a growing demand for records bears out this observation.

How Salesmen Are Judged

The selection of salesmen has a direct bearing on the success of any mercantile enterprise and is, therefore, of the utmost importance, according to F. J. Ennis, manager of the talking machine department, who speaks with the authority of experience and success in picking the right type of men. Personality, energy and determination are the three most important factors which contribute to results by salesmen. At this establishment men who have been in the sales end of the talking machine business and who have the necessary qualifications are, of course, preferred, but experience in this line is not made a prerequisite of employment. Eighteen men compose the outside sales organization of this department, and they are making good in a big way. They were selected because they possessed the three qualities mentioned above and in addition knew or had the intelligence to quickly grasp the fundamental principles of selling talking machines.

Canvassing the Big Force

The success of this department also is due in a large measure to the intensive canvassing of the large outside sales organization. Day after day these men are scouring their territories for business, and, as is natural where such persistent and sustained efforts are resorted to, they get it. Prospects are followed up in a determined manner and they are not dropped from the list until the chances of ultimately making a sale are found to be nil.

The inside sales organization co-operates in a most effective manner with the outside men, a vitally important consideration. Working hours are an unknown quantity at this live department. Prospects that develop in the store during the day are followed up in the evenings and even on Sundays; thus no sales opportunities are overlooked. Each week the staff sets a sales quota and works hard to come up to the mark set. For example, on a recent Saturday the organization went out with the determination to dispose of fifty instruments in one day. To make a long story short, thirty-seven machines were sold, and the next day, Sunday, seven sales were added to this. These seven sales were follow-ups of inquiries received on Saturday. The organization fell short of the mark by six machines, but the sales volume for that day shows what can be done when persistency and proper methods are used.

Extensive Advertising Helps

Considerable space is used in the local newspapers to broadcast the story of the talking machines and records, and week after week this publicity is demonstrating its value in creating business. As a result of the advertising drive Batterman's talking machine department has become widely known to the residents in Brooklyn and many of the surrounding communities.

Radio and "Talkers" Allies

The talking machine and radio departments of this concern are located side by side, and this has been productive of business for both departments, demonstrating to Batterman's, at least, that radio, if properly featured, works to the advantage of the talking machine business and not against it. This is demonstrated by an incident at the store recently. A man came into the talking machine department. He had not made up his mind whether to purchase a radio set or a talking machine. The salesman explained the merits of the talking machines handled and then led the prospect over to the radio department, so that he could secure the necessary information on radio before making up his mind. Before leaving the store the man had purchased both. This has happened several times, according to Mr. Ennis, and it proves that even to the layman it is clear that the purposes of radio and the talking machine are different and each can be made a worth-while accessory to the home.

Another business-producing stunt at this store is the location of a record department on the main floor. The hundreds of customers who pass through the store during each day naturally are attracted to this department and many sales are made. A small talking machine is constantly sending out refrains of the latest music. In many instances inquiries are received at this special record department which have resulted in larger sales in the main talking machine department. Other features being planned include a special department for children's records and a German record department. The latter will be in charge of a salesman who speaks German to serve the many patrons of German origin who shop at the store.

Mr. Ennis, who recently came to this store from Stix, Baer & Fuller, St. Louis, is not unknown to the trade in Brooklyn and New York. He was formerly connected with Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, and Bloomingdale's, New York, and he has had wide experience in the talking machine field.

BOOK ON PHONOGRAPH CONSTRUCTION

Interesting Volume on the Design and Construction of Talking Machines Being Published by Bruce Publishing Co.

"Phonograph Construction," a book dealing with the construction of the component parts of the modern talking machine, by E. M. Winterbourne, of the New Mexico State Teachers' College, Silver City, N. M., has just been published by the Bruce Publishing Co., Milwaukee, Wis. The book has been written especially for the layman and technical terms are avoided. The work is developed in an interesting and instructive manner and should prove of value to those of the general public who are seeking enlightenment in this field, especially students of manual training in schools. There are six chapters devoted to the following subjects: "History of the Development of the Phonograph," "Designing the Cabinet," "Constructive Details of Cabinets," "Sound Amplifiers and Volume Modulators," "Wood Finishing" and "Equipment." "Tool Processes" are treated in rather a complete, though brief, manner in the appendix.

VINCENT'S MUSIC SHOP OPENED

Vincent's Music Shop, which opened recently at 3451 Fulton street, Brooklyn, carries a complete line of music goods, including pianos, phonographs, sheet music and radio supplies. The store is well appointed in the matter of store equipment and has already proved very popular with residents in this section.

O. W. RAY ON TRIP TO COAST

Oscar W. Ray, general manager of the wholesale Vocalion Red Record department of the Aeolian Co., left recently on an extended business trip to the Pacific Coast, in the course of which he will call on Vocalion record distributors, together with numerous dealers in the larger centers. He expects to be away from his office for several weeks.

BALTIMORE

Wholesalers Oversold as Trade Supplies Holiday Demand—Heavy Sales of Popular Records—Columbia Dealers Organize—The News

BALTIMORE, Md., December 9.—The talking machine business, insofar as the jobbers are concerned, is limited solely by the number of machines which they are able to supply the trade on oversold orders. Practically every jobber in this city has been oversold on the more popular types of machines for months.

Sold Out on Popular Victor Models

In commenting on this situation, I. Son Cohen, head of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Victor distributors, said that he considered himself lucky if he could supply 10 per cent of his customers' orders for the popular types of machines. "As fast as we get the machines they are shipped or sent out to fill standing orders, and our business for many months has been run on the 'curbstone plan.' That is, we get the machines as far as the curbstone and send them out again without ever bringing them into the warehouses. "For a long time," he continued, "we have been satisfied to take care of our regular trade without seeking new fields and feel like 'patting ourselves on the back' when we can do this."

Wholesalers Experience Shortage

Practically the same situation exists with the other two local Victor jobbers, E. F. Droop & Sons and Eisenbrandt's. W. C. Roberts, manager of the former firm, said the demand for 80 and 210 types of Victors exceeded the supply by about 90 per cent and that this condition had prevailed with his house for many months.

Big Record Sales of Popular Numbers

Mr. Roberts, by the way, says he is the one responsible for the advance release of the record "Sleep" in Baltimore, which was put on sale here a week before other sections of the country. He knows the Waring brothers personally, and when they were advertised to appear at one of the local theatres he went to see and hear them and heard "Sleep," after which he arranged for the early release of the record here, which promises to establish a high-water mark in sales. "The first day it was put on sale in our retail department," said Mr. Roberts, "we sold more records than in any other twenty-four hours in the history of our store."

Cohen & Hughes also report having one of the biggest runs on this record in the history of the firm, over 6,000 having been sold in three days. Another record which Cohen & Hughes have been pushing with big results is the "Conundrum," or "What Will I Play Next." While this record has been on the market for some time, it has not been featured in this territory and results so far seem to indicate a big sale.

Brunswick Demand Exceeds Supply

The local agency of the Brunswick is another place where optimism over the outlook prevails and the only sign of worry is occasioned by not getting the goods for delivery. "While we have caught up to some extent on deliveries," said Manager C. F. Shaw, "we are still behind on our orders for the more popular types of the Brunswick. This handicap, however, is more than offset by the wonderful increase in record sales, which have more than doubled in the past year, and every indication points to a better 1924."

Manager Shaw had his sales force here on December 3 for a meeting, at which he spoke and explained the efforts being made to take care of the holiday trade. A great friendly rivalry now exists among the Brunswick sales force as to which representative will make the best showing for the year. M. M. Kuhn, of the North Carolina district, is leading at present, having come to the front during the past month through signing up several stores in this section, among which are Colson & Covington, of Wadesboro; J. B. Bruton, of Lambertson, and Turner & Co., of Charlotte.

H. H. Sheldon, of the Baltimore district, is second through the signing up of Louis Mazor as an exclusive Brunswick dealer in his new store just opened at 512 North Howard street. Mr. Mazor, who conducts four other stores in the city, has fitted up his new store, which is in the Academy of Music Building, in a most elaborate manner.

D. W. Causey, Virginia representative, contributed the Brunswick contract of the Jefferson News Stand, of Charlotte, which will be under the management of Grafton D. Payne.

Columbia Headquarters Reopened

"Business never was better nor were we ever so rushed to fill orders as we are today," said W. H. Swartz, secretary-treasurer-general manager of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., distributors of the Columbia, as he greeted The World representative, with his sleeves rolled up, working in the mailing room trying, as he put it, "to catch up with the orders for that advertising record of the Columbia."

"We are simply swamped," he said, and are working practically day and night to keep the dealers supplied with the record. Orders are coming in by phone, wire and mail and dealers are ordering lots of 1,000 to 2,000 at a time. It is without exception the greatest advertisement ever put out by the Columbia, and the dealers are co-operating by asking all purchasers to read the statement on the envelope explaining the advantages of the New Process records and following up all sales with advertising matter.

Sales of the new $150 and $200 Columbia consoles have exceeded all expectations, according to Mr. Swartz, and it is impossible to supply the demand for the $100 type, the firm even going so far as to go into Canada and buy machines, paying the import duty, in order to meet demands.

"While we have been turning down applications for Columbia machines, preferring to take care of our trade first," said Mr. Swartz, "we have taken on a few during the past month, including one in Baltimore, that of the Knabe Studios, Inc., 309 North Charles street."

Cohen & Hughes Stage Tie-up

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Victor jobbers of this city and Washington, D. C., took advantage of the recent appearance here of Balieff's "Chauve Souris" to stage a tie-up. Window strips were prepared for Victor dealers and these were effective in stimulating sales of the records made by these artists.

Another dealer help prepared by this live firm is the preparation of a special list of records appropriate as Christmas gifts. The list is holly bordered and is sized to fit the frames provided for dealers by the company at the beginning of the year. From time to time Cohen & Hughes have supplied the dealers with special strips for insertion in these frames. These inserts are designed to increase the sale of records. I. Son Cohen, president of the company, stated that more frames are available and will be supplied to Victor dealers upon request.

Fine Brunswick Window

William Sprinkle, head of the Sprinkle Piano Co., of Greensboro, N. C., was a visitor to the Brunswick agency this month and brought along a picture of a Brunswick window display in its store which attracted considerable attention, as well as business, during the two weeks it was on display. The display, which represented a miniature stage with automatic figures, was arranged by Mrs. W. H. Harrison, wife of the manager. Mr. Sprinkle, who controls stores in Winston-Salem, N. C., and Norfolk and Richmond, Va., is very optimistic over the outlook for business.

"Columbia Dealers of Baltimore" Organized

"The Columbia Dealers of Baltimore" is the name of a new organization which was perfected last month following the meeting of Columbia dealers at the Emerson Hotel earlier in the month as the guests of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc. Officers were elected as follows: Leonard Trout, president; George Behm, vice-president; Arthur Stein, secretary, and Charles Seihler, treasurer. A constitution and by-laws committee was appointed and plans were perfected for holding regular meetings once a month, on the last Thursday. A resolution was passed complimenting the Columbia Co. on the advertising which it is doing in the daily papers and magazines in this section of the country and calling upon the Columbia dealers to co-operate. The members were entertained with banjo selections by Professor McCaulley, who will shortly start making records for the Columbia Co.

The Kranz-Smith Piano Co. has added a line of musical instruments to its phonograph department and is meeting with good results, according to Edward Keefer, manager.

A GAIN as the old year passes and the new begins, we extend the compliments of the season and express the sincere wish that the New Year will be a Happy and Prosperous one for you.

More than that, we are prepared to help you make it one. Our plans for 1924 are entirely progressive and we solicit the privilege of demonstrating them to you.

Start of Christmas Business Indicates Banner Season—Artophone Corp. in New Home—Changes in Edison Territory—Month's News

ST. LOUIS, Mo., December 8.—Talking machine merchants all along the line report that business for the past month was substantially ahead of that for the same period a year ago and say that December started off with every indication of making an even better showing as compared to December of last year. Consoles are clearly in the lead, with the demand best for medium-priced machines, but good sales of upright models are also being made. Orders for Christmas delivery indicate a banner holiday trade. Records are going well. The outstanding releases are snapped up with avidity and there is a steady movement of staple records.

Now Occupying Attractive Quarters

The Artophone Corp. and the Lehman Piano Co. got off to a running start in the latter part of November in their rebuilt stores at Eleventh and Olive streets, following the fire last Summer, and are going strong on Christmas business. The Artophone Corp. has a larger and finer display and has struck the Olive street pace, which was somewhat interrupted while the firm was temporarily on Pine street. The lines handled include Strand and Artophone machines and Okeh records. The Lehman Co. is handling Brunswicks and Sonoras. For the present it has no separate talking machine organization, the regular floor force taking care of both machines and pianos. Harry Hunter is the sales manager and assisting him are J. E. Reger, Herman Weil, W. R. Alberts and R. Q. Jokerst. The booths are grouped in the rear on main floor and mezzanine.

Talking machine dealers have subscribed liberally to the endowment fund for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The Brunswick Co. subscribed $250 a year for three years.

Activities of Silverstone Music Co.

The Silverstone Music Co., Edison distributor, feels happy over November business, seeing that the record for a year ago was passed the first twenty days of the month. Business toward the end of the month was stimulated by an offer of special terms on Thanksgiving orders. It was stimulated further in the early part of December by Retail Manager Gold opening a Christmas reservation campaign. The offer was to make reservations on a nominal payment, the balance of the "down" payment to be made on delivery for each instrument, with the $175 console leading in the number of sales.

The Silverstone Co. has found it necessary to give assistance to O. A. Reynolds and G. Manne, who have been covering Missouri. Oliver Scott, formerly outside city salesman, has taken over part of the territory and is out placing dealers. One of the acquisitions is the Hamilton Specialty & Novelty Co., Desoto, Mo. John Fahland, a new man, has taken Scott's place in the city trade. Mr. Manne, on a Southern trip, reports crop conditions unfavorable in Tennessee, but excellent in southern Missouri and Arkansas.

President Tedstrom, of the Tedstrom Furniture Co., Pine Bluff, Ark., who recently became an Edison dealer, was in St. Louis in the latter part of November.

Frank Sigman, Edison dealer, Flat River, Mo., was a recent visitor to this city.

Stages Special Sales Drive

Manager H. J. Arbuckle, of the Widener Corp., celebrated the firm's seventh anniversary by staging a special sales drive. His November business was wonderful, he says, and it is certain that his business will be the best that he has had in the five years that he has been in charge here.

St. Louis Symphony Orchestra Records

Records were made recently in St. Louis by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for the Victor Co. A complete recording laboratory was set up in St. Louis, in charge of E. T. King and Ray Sooley, two of the supervisors of the recording in the great recording laboratories at Camden, N. J. St. Louis music lovers are looking forward to the release date of these records.

Geo. L. Fuhri With Artophone Corp.

One of the new comers in the phonograph field in this city is George L. Fuhri, son of William C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records. Mr. Fuhri Jr., has joined the sales staff of the Artophone Corp., Okeh jobber, and although he has only been "on the job" for a few weeks he is showing a marked sales ability that is a tribute to the experience and success of his popular father.

Victor Upright for Bombay

Manager J. L. Stevener, of the phonograph department of the Aeolian Co. of Missouri, had the satisfaction the other day of selling a Victor upright, Style 11, for shipment to C. H. Readymoney at Bombay, Ind., and collecting the ready money for it. The sale was made through a local jobber. That was not all the ready money that came in during November. There were especially good sales of $250 Vocalion consoles and uprights.

He has been singing in churches also during his St. Louis stay.

Brief but Interesting News Items

The E. E. Baker Music Co., this city, recently disposed of four period Victrolas, a Queen Anne, Sheraton, William and Mary and a Chipendale, all within the space of one week.

Manager Horning, of the Stix, Baer & Fuller music department, gave a radio show recently, at which visitors' messages were transmitted to various parts of the country. Several manufacturers had booths showing their wares.

Allen McQuhae, Brunswick artist, appeared with the Apollo Club in concert at the Odeon and was enthusiastically received.

The Concordia Publishing House, Ludwig's Music House and George Kilgen & Son, pipe organ manufacturers, are among the 194 firms in business in St. Louis for fifty years or more that are to be guests of honor at a banquet to be given in the near future by the Chamber of Commerce.

V. Salzman, of the Vocalion Chicago office, was a recent visitor here.

St. Louis Victor stores are displaying photographs of Sissle and Blake furnished by the theatre in connection with their appearance in "Shuffle Along," and an augmented sale of their Victor records is resulting.

The E. E. Baker Music House, now exclusive Victor dealer, is using the musical census idea to get prospects, gain good-will and sell goods. Mrs. E. Young is doing the work and reports finding many people who appreciate having records brought to the home to sell.

The Gausmann-Parker Housefurnishing Co., North St. Louis, has bought the Victor stock of the Baden Music Co.

Roy C. Cunningham, formerly with the R. G. Dunn Co., Brownsville, Pa., was recently made manager of the Hardwick Music Store in the Moss Arcade, that city. Mr. Cunningham is a merchandiser of wide experience.

Christmas Gift Buying Starts With a Rush—Dealers Well Stocked to Meet the Demand—Tone-Tests Prove Popular in Iowa—The News

DES MOINES, IA., December 7.—With the holiday season approaching, most dealers in this section of the country have completed their stocks of instruments. While business in general has been rather quiet throughout November holiday buying has started with a rush.

The seasonal demand for instruments on the part of the dealers has been as good as usual. Jobbers explain that dealers have stocked fully as heavily as in past years. Demand seems to have concentrated on the smaller and lower-priced machines.

The tone-test concerts recently completed by a group of Edison artists have been very popular in the Iowa towns where they were held. According to Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers, the tests were the most successful in every way of any ever arranged by them.

In J. B. O. (Just Between Ourselves), a monthly house organ put out by Mickel Bros. and edited by H. B. Sixsmith, a regular monthly feature is being maintained. The feature, a "Who's Who" column, each month takes up some prominent Victor dealer of the State. The December issue of the publication gives something of the history of Fred J. Schamp, manager of the talking machine department for Davidson Bros., Sioux City, Ia.

The Baas Music Shop, Rock Island, Ill., recently arranged a publicity stunt that attracted considerable attention. Don Bestor and His Benson Orchestra were on the bill at the Fort Armstrong Theatre and Mr. Baas induced Mr. Bestor to give a concert in the music shop during his engagement in Rock Island. For one hour Mr. Bestor played to a crowd that packed the store. Mr. Baas expresses himself as very much pleased over the results of the concert.

The Cummings Music Co., Sheridan, Ia., has just moved into a fine new store located in the Lotus Theatre block of that city.

The Gaston Music Co., Kearney, Neb., recently ventured into the foreign record business. The first order was for fifty German records. Making a record sale in more ways than one, the store sold the entire fifty records to one German customer.

ARTISTIC CHRISTMAS "SONORA BELL"

Sonora Dealers Pleased With Current Issue of House Organ—Many Articles of Practical Value and Importance to Retailers

The Christmas number of the "Sonora Bell," the house organ published monthly by the Sonora Phonograph Co. for its dealers, is noteworthy for the many practical and constructive articles that are featured, together with the attractive appearance as a whole. A special cover is used for this edition, presenting the holiday colors of green and red, and the company's advertising department has been congratulated upon the appearance of the publication.

The first article in the Christmas issue is entitled "Your Month of Largest Sales Is Here," and under this heading there is presented a brief summary of the many practical sales helps that the Sonora Co. has prepared for the use of its dealers during the holiday season. The article entitled "Looking Below the Surface Helps You Sell" is illustrated with a group

W. O. Welker, traveler for Mickel Bros. in Northeastern territory, who underwent an operation for appendicitis during the latter part of November, is well on the road to recovery and expects to be back on the road shortly after the first of the year.

Belle Hendrix Smith, who for the past three years has had charge of the educational department for Mickel Bros. Co., has taken charge of the Victrola department for Chase & West at Des Moines.

The Elder Piano Co., at Hebron, Neb., Victor dealer, has recently remodeled its store. A new store front was installed and separate departments constructed for each of the departments.

The Tout Drug Co., York, Neb., is arranging for a Music Memory Contest to be held in the near future.

picture showing the Barker Bros. establishment in Los Angeles, one of the most successful Sonora dealers in the country. Robert O. Waldo, of Foster & Waldo, Minneapolis, a prominent concern that for many years has been a foremost figure in retail circles, contributes an interesting article entitled "The One and Only Way to Success." Other timely articles in this Christmas edition of the "Bell" are "Local Music Events Are Sales Assets," "Stories of Sonora Selling Successes," "Manufacture of the Sonora Packing Case," "Modern Merchandising Methods," and "Little Histories of Furniture Periods."

HUB CO. ADDS COLUMBIA

PORTLAND, ME., December 6.—The Hub Furniture Co. has recently taken on the complete new line of Columbia instruments, together with a representative stock of the New Process Columbia records. Extensive alterations are being made in the store, and the department intends now to actively go out for business.

Utah Brunswick Dealers Hear Inspiring Talks

First Annual Meeting and Banquet Arranged by the Salt Lake City Brunswick Branch Held in That City—Constructive Addresses and Excellent Musical Program Feature Event

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, December 4.—Inspiring addresses marked the first annual meeting and banquet of the Brunswick dealers in this territory at the Hotel Utah last week. The meeting was presided over by G. C. Spratt, the popular manager of the Brunswick branch which serves the trade here, and dealers from all parts of the State and members of their business organizations were present. Another feature of the gathering was an excellent musical program, including vocal and instrumental selections by the Fisher Trio, Miss Ashton, of the Ogden store of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., and Miss Mildred Anderson, of the local Brunswick office. A display of the latest Brunswick instruments in the banquet room attracted considerable attention on the part of the dealers.

The opening address was made by Manager

Spratt, who welcomed the dealers and their sales people and outlined, briefly, the history of the development of the Brunswick Co., also mentioning the fact that plans are under way for the opening of a new record factory on the Pacific Coast which will ultimately serve this territory. Mr. Spratt urged unremitting efforts on the part of dealers to increase their business volume, stressing the various talking points of the Brunswick machines. He emphasized the necessity of care in the preparation of advertising so that the money spent in this direction would bring an adequate return in business. The importance their respective communities some thoughts which not only give them a new slant on the business and the line they handle, but practical sales pointers as well.

Among those present were: G. C. Spratt, R. F. Perry, Mildred Anderson, Brunswick Co., Salt Lake City; P. S. Heilbut, L. L. Graham, Bates Stores Co., Provo; G. H. Heindselman, Joseph of the trade press was also emphasized by Mr. Spratt, who declared that no dealer who desires to keep abreast of the times in his business and who is on the look-out for new ideas can afford to overlook the talking machine trade papers.

P. S. Heilbut, treasurer and phonograph department manager of the Bates Stores Co., of Provo, Utah, the next speaker, spoke in an inspirational manner on the merits of the Brunswick and the company behind the product.

H. H. Perry, traveling representative of the Brunswick Co., with headquarters in this city, in an all too brief talk, gave the dealers present some constructive hints on selling. He discussed at some length, however, the reasons actuating the Brunswick Co. in inaugurating the daily release of records, and gave detailed instructions regarding the ordering of records. Another matter discussed by Mr. Perry was the necessity of care on the part of dealers in the use of the advertising material supplied by the company, in order to eliminate waste as much as possible. He concluded his talk by pointing out that many of the leading artists are included in the Brunswick Hall of Fame and that dealers should exert every effort to get behind these records.

The last speaker was Louis W. Larsen, of Stevens & Wallis, Inc., instructor of advertising at the University of Utah, who confined his talk to advertising, pointing out to the assemblage that as music merchandisers they had one of the best advertising talking points, namely, the pleasure appeal. He urged the dealers to avoid generalities in their newspaper ads and be specific in their copy. Mr. Larsen declared that the dealers could best profit by tying up in some manner with the national campaign carried on by the Brunswick Co. and making use of the publicity material which the company is constantly sending to its dealers.

The meeting was a success from every standpoint and the dealers carried away with them to

PROMISE SURPRISE IN ALBUM FIELD

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York City, promises a surprise in the album field after the first of the year. Although decidedly reticent regarding the details of the new album to be presented, he stated that it would represent something entirely original in album production and would contain a number of novel features. Mr. Willinger made one of his flying visits to the Chicago factory of the concern during the latter part of last month and reported that this plant was working to capacity as well as the New York factory, to take care of the heavy orders received.

The A. W. Hunt Co., of Butte, Mont., Victor dealer, has been paying considerable attention to window displays and as a result the store has been a center of attention.

TWO NEW VICTOR CO. OFFICIALS

E. R. F. Johnson, Son of President of Company, Is Elected a Vice-president—Geo. W. Smith, Jr., Appointed General Superintendent

CAMDEN, N. J., December 5.—Two important changes in the official personnel of the Victor

E. R. F. Johnson

Talking Machine Co. have been announced at the general offices of the company here.

The first concerns the entrance of E. R. F. Johnson, son of Eldridge R. Johnson, founder and president of the Victor Co., into the official Victor family through his election as vice-president of the company, and the second announcement is to the effect that George W. Smith, Jr., has been appointed general superintendent of the manufacturing department.

Mr. Johnson takes up his new duties with a broad knowledge of the Victor Co. business and policies gained through a study of the company's business in all its various departments.

Mr. Smith joined the Victor Co. at the close of the war. He was stationed at the Victor Co.'s factory as an engineering and inspection officer for the United States Navy in connection with aircraft production and prior to the war was engaged in automobile engineering.

OKEH TRAVELER RETURNS FROM TRIP

M. C. Giles, traveling representative of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, returned recently from an extensive trip, which included a visit to Okeh jobbers throughout the country. Mr. Giles, who will remain in New York for a few weeks, states that, without a single exception, Okeh jobbers are closing a banner year. The newest releases are meeting with favor everywhere, and Mr. Giles remarked that the trade is particularly pleased with the co-operation from the executive offices in New York.

FIBRE NEEDLE CUTTER POPULAR

Ready File Co. Makes Interesting Survey of Record Field—Demand for High-grade Records Stimulates Needle Cutter Sales

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., December 5.—The Ready File Co., of this city, is making plans for an active year, basing its preparations on the fact that the sales totals for the past few months have been far ahead of expectations, showing a substantial increase over last year. This company is well known in the talking machine field, having for several years manufactured a number of successful accessories, including the Wade fibre needle cutter, which is being featured by dealers from coast to coast. A complete line of record albums has also been meeting with popular favor, and a non-friction lubricant, which was introduced after extensive tests, is being used generally.

In a recent chat with The World, L. A. Beem, treasurer of the company, stated as follows: "We are enjoying a splendid business with very favorable prospects for the coming year. This is especially true of the Wade fibre needle cutter. A recent survey which we made indicates that there is a noticeable trend toward the purchase of higher grade records, with a correspondingly substantial increase in the sale of fibre needles and fibre needle cutters throughout the country."

FORMAL OPENING IN WARREN, O.

Stewart Music House Invites Public to Inspect Enlarged Quarters in That City

WARREN, O., December 6.—Formal opening of Stewart's Music House, formerly De Forest's, held recently, attracted several hundred people to the new store, located at 111-113 North Park avenue. In the showrooms was presented a very attractive display of pianos, players and grands, in addition to two standard makes of talking machines.

This concern will feature the complete Bush & Lane line of pianos and other lines also will be carried. Victor and Edison talking machine lines are handled, together with the records for both makes of machines. Ten record booths have been installed.

The store also has a complete line of radio sets, built by the Radio Corp. of America, and during the opening a special demonstration was given by a factory representative.

Favors were given the ladies who visited the store the opening night and a twelve-piece mandolin club from Youngstown furnished music throughout the evening.

The scheduled appearance of Arthur Middleton, Edison artist, in Duluth, Minn., is creating considerable interest in his records among music lovers in that city.

The Trade in PHILADELPHIA and LOCALITY

SATISFACTORY BUSINESS ENJOYED BY ENTIRE TRADE AS CHRISTMAS BUYING GETS UNDER WAY

General Prosperity Reflected in Retail Activity—Wholesalers Find Difficulty in Meeting the Demands of Retailers—Beauty of Design Aids Machine Sales—News of the Month

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 9.—Holiday results to the wholesalers in the talking machine business have been entirely satisfactory, and holiday prospects to the retailers are most encouraging as things in the industry stood in the beginning of the last month of the year and at the opening of the real rush for the Christmas trade. There exists among the latter little doubt that the extent of the business which they will be able to do will be determined very largely by their ability to secure enough stock of the raging popular favorites in records to supply the market. The only trace of complaint discernible in the comments of the wholesalers on conditions was their inability to secure large enough supplies of machines promptly to meet the requisitions which had been showered upon them. Demands from the retailers throughout the entire Pennsylvania anthracite coal region have been and are particularly heavy. There is widespread prosperity in this section consequent on the full-time operations of the mines and with a high wage scale, and the miners are spending their money freely, contributing materially to the general business prosperity here.

Attractive Designs Help Sales

Comment among the retailers is that too much emphasis cannot be laid on the attractiveness in design and richness in material and workmanship of talking machines for the city trade because this year, more than ever before, the talking machines are being regarded by buyers as a means of adding to the attractiveness of home furnishings. Time was not so long back when talking machines merely were talking machines; now they are looked upon as affording opportunities for rich appointment of the home just as are pianos. The plain style of talking machines is not in very active demand, but all the ornate designs are selling well in the city section. In the rural district there is, naturally, not so much importance placed on the style of the machine and there is also a less insistent body of buyers for the latest in records. The old favorites are still leaders in the country districts.

Clever Record Publicity Issued by Penn Co.

The most recent origination in the Penn Phonograph Co.'s service to its dealers is a new poster for either window or wareroom and which features the tremendous value to be found in the new twelve-inch Victor Red Seal record combining the "Lucia Sextette" and "Rigoletto Quartette." The poster is attractively printed on calendered tinted stock and a large half-tone engraving of a scene, entitled "The Conflicting Emotions of the Sextette," is shown at the top. The poster points out that at one time the combined price of these two selections was $13 and that, through the double-facing of the Red Seal records, the price for these selections is now $3.50. The suggestion is made "Now Is the Time to Build Your Record Library." These posters are very attractively prepared and are rapidly being placed in prominent locations by Victor retailers who realize the value of this publicity.

Discontinue Emerson Branch

There is no longer maintained in Philadelphia a sales representation for the Emerson Phonograph Co., Harry Fox, who conducted the sales offices here at 420 Market street, having given up the local distribution. In the future all shipments of Emerson machines and records will be made direct from the factory, since, owing to the reduction of the price of records to 50 cents, the extra expenditure for the maintenance of distribution branches had been cut down in order to maintain the lower price of the records. Mr. Fox, who also conducted a shop at 723 North Twenty-sixth street, is contemplating engaging in another business with phonographs and records as his specialties and will possibly settle in New York.

Many New Gennett Record Accounts

An attractive holiday offering in Gennett records is being made by the Witlin Musical Instrument Co., including the introduction of prominent men and women in the theatrical, moving picture, professional, literary, art and civic life of the nation on records made by the Starr Recording Laboratories. Among them is the set of Christmas greeting records described elsewhere in this issue of The World. The Witlin Co. has opened a large number of new accounts in eastern Pennsylvania, particularly, and others all over the territory, taking in as far West as Harrisburg and as far South as Washington. Contracts have been closed with department stores in each of these cities, among them being the Snellenburg Co., of Philadelphia; Kline, Eppiheimer & Co., of Reading; Pomeroy, Inc., of Harrisburg, Pa.; Stewarts, Baltimore, Md., and the Palais Royal, of Washington, D. C. In the early days of December Ben Witlin, head of the firm, visited the coal regions to make arrangements with department stores in the larger towns of that section for the installation of Gennett records as a permanent feature of phonograph departments.

Changes in Brunswick Personnel

Several changes in the personnel of the Brunswick Co., 1025 Arch street, took place in the closing days of November. J. P. Collahan, former assistant to Manager O. F. Jester, has been assigned to cover the coal regions, taking over the territory formerly covered by R. O. Danforth, who has resigned from the company in order to enter the retail business in Boston. Joseph Graham has been promoted to the duties formerly assigned to Mr. Collahan. He was formerly a Brunswick dealer, having been engaged in business for himself in Philadelphia over a year and a half, and his experience as retail salesman provides him with knowledge which will be useful in his sales promotion duties among the dealers. Derbyshire Bros., 2418 North Front street, are conducting an extensive campaign on Brunswick machines through the employment of a large force of outside salesmen. In conjunction with this direct sales touch there is also conducted a mail-order campaign wherein 2,500 special Brunswick folders were mailed to customers. A. S. Irwin, who for a quarter of a century has been engaged in the phonograph business and who until

AS we close the biggest year in our history we look backward with appreciation to the whole-hearted co-operation of our many dealers which made this possible.

We enter the New Year better equipped for service than ever before and in turn pledge our utmost towards increasing Victor business for 1924.

recently was with the O'Hallahan Music Shop, Sixtieth and Market streets, has joined the Derbyshire Bros.' Brunswick department. Manager Jester returned the first of December from a trip through Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, where he found business in the coal regions much brighter.

General Radio Corp. Rushed

A rushing business of nation-wide extent was enjoyed in the pre-holidays by the General Radio Corp., of which Walter L. Eckhardt is the head, for radio equipment and for the Okeh records and Strand machines. So great was the demand that the company was not able to put on the market its new combination talking machine and radio, postponement of which was made until after the first of the year. The company has just taken over the distribution of "Junior Operetta Records," made by the Vulcan Record Co., of New York, the first of the series being "Little Red Riding Hood" complete in three records and sold in an attractive album form adapted for a gift to children of six and seven years. The company introduced the distribution of the records in retail to the Gimbel Bros. and Snellenburg department stores and the Theodore Presser Co., which placed them on the market the first of December. The salesman, under the direction of Manager H. A. Pope, of the record department, will introduce them to the distributors on the road.

Edison Boom Follows Tone-tests

Edison phonographs enjoyed an excellent early holiday business in the coal regions, with brighter prospects, from the dealers' point of view, for later in the month—such was the word brought back from up-State by Manager Arthur W. Rhinow, of the Girard Phonograph Co. So great was the business enjoyed that a night and day force was kept busy getting out the early December shipments in preparation for the last-minute rush, although there was much difficulty in meeting the demands for the popular models on account of a shortage of these types. Much of the success was due to the fact that a series of tone-test recitals were held in various Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware cities and towns in a four weeks' demonstration program. Ten of these concerts were held in November by dealers who hired halls or theatres for the demonstrations, with audiences in many cases numbering over 2,000. In Gettysburg, where 1,100 seating arrangement was to be had in a theatre, a similar number of persons were kept in line waiting and two recitals were required to accommodate the crowds.

To Market Radio and "Talker" Cabinet

The Haag & Bissex Co. is now making its patented record filing cabinets in various finishes to correspond to the styles of talking machines now being marketed. Among the finishes to be had in the Haag files are dark and light mahogany, Old English, walnut and other high-grade woods. There are now being developed plans of the firm for the possible marketing of a combined radio and talking machine cabinet which will supplement the manufacture of the record filing devices. Alfred H. Haag, head of the company, is arranging the consolidation of the Baltimore sales office with the Philadelphia manufacturing headquarters in order to facilitate production.

Big Demand for Columbia Sample Record

So great has been the demand for the new Columbia sample demonstration record retailing at 25 cents that the Philadelphia branch of the Columbia Phonograph Co. has had difficulty in getting enough stock to meet the dealers' requirements and is now swamped with orders for future deliveries.

Effective Yuletide Decorations

In a Christmas setting of colorful and artistic effect the stock of Starr & Moss, in the store at 3639 Germantown avenue, is attracting a large holiday buying public to its doors. The entire interior is decorated in red and green, set off by a background of snow. The window display corresponds to the inside decorative scheme, all of which was arranged by Harry Somers, of the firm, and manager of the store. It is a very artistic arrangement.

Sonora Makes Clean Sweep

A clean sweep was made of the popular models of the Sonora Co. of Philadelphia, under the management of E. S. White, who as early as the middle of November had practically disposed of all available stock in the local branch. There is now being shown in the Arch street branch the two-tone Argyle model, which is ready for distribution to dealers in the Philadelphia district and which has already shown its popularity by advance holiday orders that will take up all production for December. It is an artistic combination of two-toned wood finish in console type retailing at $275. Manager White just returned from a successful trip through the coal regions and other parts of the eastern Pennsylvania territory.

Solotone in New Quarters

Removal of the Philadelphia headquarters of the Solotone Mfg. Co., from 36 South Eighth street to 4042 Chestnut street, took place during the month, when President Frederick H. Alleman, of the company, arranged an attractive display room and sales office with warehouse at the new address. In conjunction with the new headquarters there is maintained just around the corner at 4113 Ludlow street a large repair department.

Bellak Co. Hires Window Expert

A new scheme is being tried out in window display as a test of its advertising advantages by the Bellak Co., 1129 Chestnut street, where Manager Louis Stauss has made arrangements with a professional window trimming firm to install a series of effective and elaborate dressings for the Victrola and Sonora phonographs during the Yuletide and for several months to come. Heretofore the firm relied upon its own forces for trimming talent, but is giving the professional finish a test, with a view of securing by practical methods the pulling powers of window dressing as an advertising medium to back up newspaper publicity. Other innovations are being contemplated, among them the possibility of extension of the lines to be carried by the firm during the New Year. There has been added to the sales organization as assistant to Manager Stauss Mrs. Ethel Duby.

Penn Co. Winds Up Holiday Drive

Holiday trade at the Penn Phonograph Co., Victor distributor, exceeded all expectations of the firm and so profitable was the work of the sales force in the wind-up of the pre-holiday sales that it was found necessary to call the men from the road on December 10, to remain at headquarters until after the first of the year. All the popular sellers were cleaned up before the November days had passed into history. There were listed in the stock in early December the new double-faced Red Seal Victor records, which were distributed to the trade in time to meet the holiday demands, under the competent direction of Record Sales Manager Harold Cregar.

Successful Cheney Year

G. Dunbar Shewell, Sr., president of the Cheney Sales Corp., spent Thanksgiving in Boston with his son, Lennington Shewell, who is a student at the Fessenden Preparatory School in that city. While in the Hub he visited the local sales offices under the management of S. A. Colahan. The Cheney Co. sold out on all the medium-priced models for the holiday trade and the business in the Eastern States was particularly good, with New York State topping the list. The year's business was the best in the history of the firm, having witnessed the opening of many new agencies and the introduction of profitable selling models.

Enjoys Growing Export Trade

The Philadelphia Badge Co. advises that the sale of its products to the talking machine trade is most encouraging. Foreign shipments to England, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, South America and Cuba are particularly active. The Velvaloid record cleaner, K-nob-O, needle box record cleaner, and Banco savings bank are very prominent in these shipments.

The company is placing on the market a rec-

Altogether this company is very optimistic over 1924 prospects and is looking forward to reaping the benefits of a splendid year.

Louis Buehn Co. Closing Busy Year

The Louis Buehn Co., Victor distributor, is closing a busy year in the distribution of Victor products. The officials of the company are exerting every effort during the present shortage to distribute available merchandise in the most fair manner among their dealers. It is expected that shipments will increase regularly and that 1924 will prove to be one of the biggest Victor years in this city and the surrounding territory.

Business Active With Guarantee T. M. Co.

Orders continue to arrive in good quantities at the headquarters of the Guarantee Talking Machine Supply Co. Both Messrs. Posner and Keen believe that this good business will carry over into the new year and are already making plans for business expansion.

Everybody's Talking Machine Co.'s Catalog

Although last year's catalog was considered one of the finest and most helpful listings of repair parts in the trade, the 1924 catalog of Everybody's Talking Machine Co. has surpassed in every manner the catalogs of past years. Attractively bound in heavy blue covers, the conventional design on the front cover features the "Honest Quaker," which is the trademark of the company and distinguishes the products of Everybody's Talking Machine Co. The skyline of Philadelphia is also shown.

The foreword states: "The strongest cable is made of little strands of wire" and interestingly describes how that large organization was built up on such small articles as talking machine parts, and the service in supplying these parts. The use of particularly fine half-tone work portrays the various parts throughout the catalog with a complete listing of order numbers and prices on the facing page. Each individual part is accurately portrayed as photographed by the camera. It would seem that nothing was omitted except the complete machine. In addition to the small parts, space is devoted to "Quaker Sapphire Points and Balls," "Heineman Motors," "Quaker Graphite," "Quaker Mica Diaphragm," Meisselbach, Penn and Ideal tone arms and sound boxes, "Quaker Ideal" attachments; "Truetone," "Umantone" and "Wall Kane" needles; "Quaker Diamond Points" and the "Honest Quaker" main springs. It is claimed that the new Everybody's catalog represents the most complete listings of talking machine parts in the trade and requests for thousands of these catalogs have been received at the headquarters of the company in this city. Through the experience of other years it has been found that these catalogs have been carefully kept and referred to as an ordering reference until the issuance of the new catalog. Therefore, no reasonable expense was spared in producing a catalog that would fill all requirements.

H. A. Weymann Pushing Red Seals

In order to provide a helpful service to its dealers H. A. Weymann & Sons, Inc., under the direction of Manager C. W. Bahl, of the phonograph wholesale department, prepared a list of all the Victor double Red Seal records in stock, and their respective numbers, and mailed them to its customers. There were more than 350 on the list and, as a result, the dealers were enabled to secure prompt shipments with a saving of much labor during the holiday rush.

RICHMOND

Public Looking to Talking Machine Dealers for Christmas Gifts
—Trade Activities of the Month

RICHMOND, VA., December 7.—Talking machine dealers report that the pre-Christmas season opened up better than usual with them, business being brisk in both records and machines. More than $1,500,000 in Christmas savings was distributed by the local banks the first of the month, and the dealers feel confident that a liberal portion of this money will be spent with them before the Yuletide season is over. Throughout the Richmond territory business is also reported good, dealers being unable to keep abreast of the demand because of shortage of goods due to the inability of factories to fill orders promptly. Starr dealers report a ready sale of Christmas Gennett greeting records which they are featuring as especially suitable for Christmas gifts. Other dealers are also handling them with gratifying results.

Local dealers are giving but little attention this year to the organization of Christmas clubs to stimulate the sale of their wares. Instead, they are concentrating on advertising, window displays and the like.

Walter D. Moses & Co., Victor dealers, report that Victrolas priced at $100 are perhaps the most popular with the Christmas gift hunters. The house is also featuring an extensive line of other musical instruments.

Frank W. Corley, vice-president of the Corley Co., Victor jobber and retailer, Richmond, Va., won a handsome silver cup as first prize in the high jumping class at the recent National Guard Horse Show held in that city. He was mounted on his mare Shannon, and emerged victor over a field of nearly a dozen contestants. Mr. Corley is a member of the Deep Run Hunt Club and is chairman of the Hunt Committee.

This is the thirty-fourth Christmas for the Corley Co. and its offering includes a large line of pianos, Victrolas and other instruments.

Lee Fergusson, Victor dealer, recently staged a very effective window display of Red Seal records set off by colored photographs of artists in frames. Sales of these records were stimulated very appreciably by the display, which was generally considered one of the best in the musical line seen on Broad street this season.

Practically all Richmond dealers cashed in strong on Paderewski records as a result of the recent appearance of the celebrated Polish pianist here. The demand for such records was exceptionally good both before and after his visit, they say.

Goldberg Bros., Pathé distributors, covering

Virginia and other Southern States, report that the factory is oversold on both uprights and consoles and that as a result they are meeting with difficulty in keeping dealers supplied with goods.

The C. B. Haynes Co., Inc., Edison distributor with headquarters in this city, in common with other wholesalers, is hard put to it to supply the retail trade which it serves with sufficient stock to meet holiday requirements. The whirlwind close of the year will go far toward bringing up the total annual sales volume to a very satisfactory figure, both for the C. B. Haynes Co. and the Edison retail trade.

Of interest to the music trade is the announcement that the Richmond branch of Charles M. Stieff, Inc., of Baltimore, which has been located for some time at 117 West Broad street, has leased new quarters at 414-416 East Grace street and is planning to occupy them early in January. It is a new structure, now nearing completion. The main floor is of large black and white tiles extending the entire length of the building. The show window, platforms and backing being done away with makes the entire floor visible from the street. Grace street is rapidly developing into a high-class shopping center, and is proving especially attractive to merchants who do not care to pay what they regard as prohibitive rents on Broad street.

L. B. Slaughter, manager of the record-player department of the Biggs Music Co., this city, has retired from the firm. Mr. Slaughter is well known to the Richmond trade, having been identified with it for some years.

Miss Iola Stroud, of the Levy-Page Co., Norfolk, and Miss Ollie K. Hege, manager of the Victrola department of the Huntley, Hill, Stockton Co., Winston-Salem, N. C., spent several days Thanksgiving week as guests of Miss Florence Biscoe, of the wholesale department of the Corley Co.

Miss Mabel Rich, of the educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., addressed the musical department of the Virginia Educational Conference during conference week, making a special trip here from Camden for the purpose.

SPECIAL OKEH CHRISTMAS BAG

Okeh dealers were advised this week by the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh records, that a special Christmas record delivery bag was ready for distribution. This bag has an unusually attractive design that is a distinct departure from the conventional holly design bag. The art work is very attractive, and the whole design has the appearance of an old Old English woodcut. The "Star of Bethlehem" forms the basis of the design with the wording "Okeh—the Record of Quality for a Merry Xmas." It is printed in chocolate brown that harmonizes with the lighter brown of the kraft paper of which the bags are made.

Few Clouds Seen on 1924 Business Horizon

Representative Members of All Branches of Talking Machine Trade Express Confidence Regarding Opportunities to be Offered During the Coming Twelve Months—Totals for 1923 Satisfactory

IF the prophecies of the majority of the talking machine trade are borne out even to a fair degree, then 1924 holds most satisfactory promises for a substantial volume of talking machine and record business. The fact is a number of the trade executives, men of broad vision, and whose opinions carry weight, are of the opinion that for the retailer who adjusts his business methods and practices to meet the latest developments in the industry the coming twelve months will present unusual opportunities for the building up of an increased and profitable volume of business.

There are those who twelve months ago were somewhat pessimistic regarding trade possibilities for 1923, but a summary of the year's business indicates that in most cases both manufacturers and retailers experienced a greater volume of turnover than in 1922, which was considered a very fair year. There were, of course, during the year certain periods when business did not come quite so easily as some would have liked, but to compensate for this there were other periods even during the Summer when the volume of sales measured up close to the records scored immediately after the war.

It is interesting to note that the tremendous increase in the popularity of radio apparently has not had any strong deterrent influence in the talking machine business as a whole, though numerous dealers have taken on that new line, not so much to make up real or fancied losses in talking machine record sales as to reap additional profits arising from the selling of the new entertainment medium.

Manufacturers in many cases are going into the New Year with quantities of unfilled orders on their books, which is an excellent indication of sound fundamental conditions in the industry.

It is very probable that results in 1924 will not be won except by earnest sales and exploitation effort. There is a tendency on the part of the public toward the purchase of machines of the better grade, which is to be welcomed for the reason it will mean an increase in the dollars-and-cents volume of business, even though there may not be any increase in the number of actual machines sold during the year. On the whole, it appears as though business for the coming months will be just about what the individual manufacturer, distributor and dealer care to make it.

What Distributors Say

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., Syracuse, N. Y.
By Frank E. Bolway:

I feel that 1924 is a year that should be approached only after the most careful analysis of the merchandiser's business experiences.

1923 has, in a great measure, been much like its predecessors with the exception that the average business man has developed an inquisitive mind into his business costs, and an inquisitive mind into the non-productiveness—if any—of his organization in its various forms and in various particulars.

We believe that 1924 is the threshold to a considerable period of prosperity, and, too, that we must proceed cautiously indeed, because of the dangerous difficulties that must be met before the year is brought to a moderately successful conclusion. It is folly to assume when business depressions will come, as it is equally folly to predict business booms; but from our viewpoint it looks as if the Summer and the Spring months will be very quiet, requiring most careful watching of one's overhead and turnover, but that with the advent of Fall, provided the political situation has the proper aspect, business should start on an upward hill of successful advancement, which should continue for a considerable period without any very serious interruptions.

The business depression, if there is any in 1924, should not be as serious a handicap to the average man, for the reason that he should have his overhead in hand, which is more than can be said of the merchant in 1922 and 1921; and in addition to this he has a more keen grasp of just what faces him when the depression approaches, or when he is in the throes of the depression.

It appears that 1924 is to be a year of tight credits, watching your collections very carefully, and keeping your overhead—through the most careful of analysis—to the proper proportions.

One feels that 1924 is the time for the boss to come out from the private office and get to work in the main office and cut out the frills which have made it seem improper for the boss to bother with details. Bread and butter diet for the business man who wishes to make real money in the next few years—and by the sweat of his brow he should win the day.

Buehn Phonograph Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. By Albert A. Buehn, Treasurer:

During the year coming to a close, we have been impressed with a gradual change in the taste of the buying public toward better music. This is very noticeable, particularly in the increased sale of Edison instruments and records. We know many talking machine dealers who have shown a desire to cater to this better trade, by making application for the Edison line. The outlook for next year is that we are to enjoy the largest year in our history. While we may not have a boom next year, we feel sure that the Edison dealers generally will enjoy a very prosperous business.

Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Baltimore, Md. By William Biel, Secretary and Treasurer:

The outstanding feature in our opinion of the present year's business has been a tremendously increased interest in the merchandising of records, whereas in spite of new models in our particular line sales of machines have shown no apparent increase over last year, yet without any special effort the volume of record business has more than tripled during the current year. We believe this to be due to a realization on the part of the dealers that the greatest room for expansion in the talking machine line and that leading to the greatest satisfaction because of its cash basis, is in the sale of records, and they have lent increased energy to this direction.

The Corley Co., Richmond, Va. By Frank W. Corley, General Manager:

The business for the present year seems to the writer to have very nearly approached the much-talked-of normalcy. This has been a good, satisfactory year, with no particular depression or thrills. I believe 1924 will be a very similar year.

Charles H. Ditson & Co., New York. By Paul Carlson, Manager, Wholesale Victor Department:

I believe the Victor dealer is particularly favored for a prosperous 1924 by having behind him such a stable foundation as the Victor Co. The trade is passing through an unsettled period, but I see nothing but a bright future for Victor dealers in 1924.

Eastern Talking Machine Co., Boston, Mass. By H. Shoemaker, General Manager:

With business conditions being more nearly normal and staple than they have been for some time and with the present plans of the Victor Co. as to their advertising and manufacturing campaigns, there is but little doubt in our minds but that 1924 has the possibilities of the "biggest ever."

We believe that the results of the coming year rest entirely with the dealer as there is no question but what we will have sufficient merchandise for him to sell. Let him, therefore, get his shoulder behind the wheel, and with the wholehearted co-operation of the wholesaler, backed by the manufacturer, there is no question but that 1924 will be a winner.

A. C. Erisman Co., Boston, Mass. By A. C. Erisman, General Manager:

First, the most important feature of 1923 business was the universal adoption of the Period Model machines, when the year before a great many dealers figured that they would not be practical. There were also a great many manufacturers who not only figured this but emphatically told the dealers so. They have all come to period models.

The second feature is that the customers are getting more product and better product for the dollar expended than at any other time since I have been associated in the industry.

Third, the dealers seem to be waking up to the fact that they have got to merchandise and they have got to carry every piece of merchandise pertaining to the music and talking machine industry in their store to keep that business and profit from going elsewhere. This question of merchandising and the question of the dealer seeing the many benefits and the much additional profit that he can make, is a very important item.

Fourth, the general popularity of portable type machines which several years ago were looked upon as a small business. Thousands of these portable machines have been sold by this company in New England, and the sale seems to be growing each day. They have absolutely succeeded the old small table type of talking machine.

Prospects for 1924

First, I believe that before the end of the year, every live musical dealer will carry complete radio sets and complete sets of phonograph and radio combined in one. The radio business and the talking machine business are really one. Both are entertainment—one reproduces from a record, taking the waves off the record, producing music. The other, with an antenna, picks the music waves out of the air. They are just as closely related as a chocolate ice-cream soda and a vanilla ice-cream soda. One person likes one, one person likes another, and one dealer should sell both.

Second, it is up to the music dealer to improve the efforts of his sales organization. The general carelessness that is displayed by the average sales person, the lack of knowledge in regard to the merchandise which they carry, has been one big sore spot. The writer has seen dozens of sales people, talked with them, they have told of the sales they have made, on certain side lines, certain supplies, etc., and when I ask them point blank if they are familiar with the product, they admit "No." In other words, the sales organizations to-day, in most instances, are more "delivery clerks" than real salesmen. This is due to the manager or owner of the store not introducing more enthusiasm or pep on the possibilities of selling side lines.

Third, the dealer that puts in proper window display, the dealer that realizes the value of proper window display, such as having moving attractions, specializing each week on something new, will, we believe, add 25 per cent to his business. The average window display is made up the same each week—nothing to stop the customers—in fact, from the observation of the writer, I do not believe that one person in five hundred stops to look at the average talking machine window.

Fourth, to those dealers who do better merchandising, realizing the possibilities of the many lines they can sell, this is really plus profit for them. You can find dealers in one town selling a certain article. Another dealer will not handle it, and vice versa. In other words, the dealers rely too much on what they like, instead of giving the buying public what they want.

Fifth, in 1924 we hope to see the elimination of cut-price sales. We hope so especially on the console model machines. Cleaning out the old upright types at cut prices and introducing the Period Models was a time for every dealer to play fair. There is no profit in cut-price business, and a great many of the dealers and department stores seem to be trying to under-price the other fellow, with the result that they are filling orders for goods, making legitimate sales, but making no profit.

Sixth, in 1924 I believe every live dealer and live salesman can add 25 per cent to 30 per cent to their business by doing "what they know they ought to do." This, and the elimination of a great many dealers who are a menace to the trade, will certainly help the conditions for the new year.

Louisville Music Co., Louisville, Ky. By Ben L. Lowenthal, President:

We do not hesitate to say that our business exceeded all expectations in 1923, especially in the hot Summer months, when people are not very apt to get their minds on music, when they are seeking recreation out of doors. During this period in August and September the public interest was at the highest pitch, and our volume of sales was greater than it was for any corresponding period in our history.

Looking into 1924, we anticipate a tremendous increase over the record of the past year. All of the signs of more business are visible.

Employment is getting better, the railroads are handling larger shipments every day, and their experts are expecting industrial development, and on the strength of this, with higher prices for cotton and tobacco in the South, we feel that we are justified in our prediction of prosperity.

C. C. Mellor Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. By Thomas T. Evans, Sales Manager:

We believe that the two outstanding features of the talking machine business from a Victor standpoint is the introduction of the 400 group Victrola instruments and the doubling up of the Red Seal records. Production on the 400 group has been a very pleasant surprise to all of us, as there is only a comfortable shortage existing on this group of instruments, which probably has helped to make the shortage on the popular priced instruments of one hundred and one hundred and fifty dollars more severe.

We believe, however, that the 400 group has added great strength to our hold in the talking machine business, and we should feel the effects of it very materially during 1924.

The doubling up of the Red Seal records has caused a shortage and has cost both the dealer and the jobber a great deal of worry and financial loss at this time. However, this condition should be eliminated shortly after the first of the year—and there is no question as far as this territory is concerned but that we will use a greatly increased allotment of Red Seal records.

As for the working out of the weekly releases, it will be considerably into 1924 before we can tell what changes this has brought about—whether for the betterment of the business or not.

We find at this time that the dealers are living from hand to mouth as far as stocks are concerned. With a normal business after January 1, it is our opinion that 1924 will be another year that the jobbers in this section will not stock very much merchandise during the Summer period.

There are two conditions in this territory that govern conditions here—they being steel and coal. At the present time the steel outlook is very optimistic and on the other hand the coal outlook is pessimistic, but we look for, all in all, as far as this territory is concerned, a very prosperous year during 1924, taking into consideration the outlook for future deliveries of steel and the outlook of a possibility of a strike in the coal fields.

New York Talking Machine Co., New York.

By A. D. Geissler:

Both wholesalers and retailers do well to consider outside general conditions that definitely affect the Victor business in particular.

For instance, in 1924 the settlement of two big issues confronting the country—reduction of taxation and the bonus—is of the greatest importance to our industry. In spite of the fact that next year is election year, and as such will be one fraught with a certain amount of uneasiness, I believe that the talking machine industry must profit, if these two questions are decided favorably.

The reduction of taxation is the paramount issue, of course, for if it is accomplished a large amount of money will be released. A good portion of it will naturally flow into purchasing channels which will give a field of activity for the Victor dealer who will put his merchandising ability to work. A somewhat similar condition will arise if the bonus bill is enacted into law. A goodly portion of the millions of dollars paid to ex-service men will flow into our business.

It looks reasonable to expect the total Victor business to show a substantial increase for 1924, and those dealers who have shown loyalty to the Victor line cannot help but benefit in this increased business.

Dealers will not need to worry as to whether or not there will be a market for Victor merchandise. Already indications point to a possible shortage of Victor goods for the first few months of next year. For instance, on the first of November, 1923, the New York and Chicago Talking Machine Companies had machine inventories one-half as large as those of a year previous. We believe the dealers' stocks were considerably larger in 1922 than in 1923. In addition to dealers' stocks being in a fair way to liquidation, everything points to the jobbers being completely sold out on January 1, 1924. One more thing to be considered is the lull in factory production which occurs in January, due to strenuous efforts to push into December all of the production possible.

After all, it is not an idle question as to whether the total talking machine business of 1924 will be as large as that of 1923.

Phonographs, Inc., Atlanta, Ga. By W. L. F. Rosenblatt, President:

We consider the outstanding feature of the present year's business the final clean-up of the dealers from inventories carried over from the war period of prosperity.

We believe the year 1924 will show at least a 50 per cent increase in business for us, and that general business conditions throughout our zone of operation will be very much improved.

The cotton situation is always a problem, especially since the boll weevil has been playing such a part with the crops and more especially during the rainy season. We believe, however, that the cotton planters are better prepared now than ever to cope with the boll weevil, and better results will be obtained next year than for some time past.

Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco, Cal. By F. C. Lindquist, Manager Victrola Department:

The outlook here in this part of the country is very good. As you, no doubt, know our chief product in the Northwest is lumber, and this industry at the present time is going at full blast. We depend a great deal upon the payroll of our lumber mills, and at the present time these are nearly at top notch. We predict for 1924 a year of business the like of which this country has never seen before.

Every outlook for business conditions seems to show all reason for being on the incline and I believe that it will continue to be that way for the next two years.

Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Dallas, Tex.

By A. H. Curry, President:

1923 Edison business throughout this section has indeed been surprising in the matter of volume. To use a Texas farmer's method of expression, I might truthfully say that "business is as good as I thought it would be, and I didn't think it would be either." In all seriousness, I am very happy over conditions as I find them to-day.

The farmer throughout this section is back at his old practice of buying pretty much what he wants, or what he can be caused to realize that he wants through the efforts of an energetic salesman, and you can just bet that when Mr. Farmer is in such frame of mind so is each other element.

We find, however, that for salesmen to reap a harvest of sales comparable with sales made during the period of 1919-20 they must make about five times as many sales contracts and sell six phonographs where they formerly sold five.

For the salesman who is willing to work, however, the above is easily possible, and such measure is being exceeded by quite a number of salesmen. Proof of this is furnished in figures showing a 78 per cent increase in October over October last year, and November will show about the same comparative increase.

This year is destined to prove out very close to our second largest year, and as for 1924 I cannot but expect a volume of business comparable with the fifth year in our history. Best of all perhaps will be the fact that when we close our books in December, 1924, there will be no aftermath to unravel as was true December 31, 1920.

What the Dealers Say

R. L. Blomfield, Detroit, Mich.

The present year's business, on the average, has been good. However, if I should try to find a word that would cover my observations I should use a word something like this: "Jumpy, erratic," i. e., business has come in spurts. People apparently make up their minds suddenly that they can buy, and then a week or so hence they swing the other way. However, the tendency is more to the former than the latter, indicating, I think, that we are getting back to a solid business basis which speaks well for 1924.

The Brunswick Music Shop, Buffalo, N. Y. By C. Curtis, Manager:

We are very sorry to state that our phonograph business for the present year was somewhat disappointing. While the writer is not pessimistic, he feels that the lack of interest shown in phonographs was largely due to the growing demand for radio outfits. This demand has also seriously affected the record trade, and I do believe that this is only a temporary lull in phonograph sales, as I feel that the novelty of radio will wear off to a certain extent and develop into a commercial business, being used by large industries.

The phonograph is a staple product and here to stay, and the writer is very optimistic on the outlook for 1924, and believes that within a short time the phonograph will take its proper place among the musical instruments.

Carter Music Co., Inc., Beaumont, Tex. By J. R. Carter, Vice-President:

We are glad to report that volume of business with us for 1923 is better than the year 1922, but the business spread more evenly through each of the twelve months of the year. Sales resistance high, net profits low.

Conditions for 1924, with low interest rate, low water freight rate, large payrolls, large crops and good prices, high prices for lumber and lumber mills busy, should make the year 1924 a better year than this, 1923.

Chappell Music Co., Abilene, Kans. By J. H. Deeble, Manager:

The 1923 business has shown a steady gain, month by month, with the demand running to the higher priced instruments. With agricultural conditions very good, we see no reason why we should not look forward to a much better business in 1924.

Chillicothe Music Co., Chillicothe, Mo. By C. D. Maxwell:

We find the buying public becoming more musical each year. However, due to the fact that this is strictly a farming territory, we have had hard sledding during 1923. We feel that if the farmer is given a little better chance we will break the record in 1924, both in talking machines and pianos.

We do not think for one minute that the radio has damaged the talking machine, but on the other hand it has encouraged sales that would never have turned up.

Here's hoping the farmer will be given a better chance in 1924.

Fowler, Dick & Walker, Binghamton, N. Y.

By James E. Greene:

One of the outstanding features of 1923 is the realization of the public that the radio will not supplant the phonograph in the home. Another feature is a strong tendency on the part of the buying public towards the medium priced instrument.

As for 1924 we look for better things than the present year, as we think things will be much healthier in 1924. However, we feel that 1923 has been a fairly satisfactory year in this particular locality.

Gunther-Kenney, Inc., Middletown, N. Y. By

Leroy C. Gunther, Secretary-Treasurer:

Our past year's business has been very satisfactory. We do think, however, that the year 1924 will be one of the most profitable in the history of the talking machine industry.

Hall's Music Shop, Cicero, Ind. By J. B. Hall, Proprietor:

The demand for musical instruments in this territory from the first of September up to the present writing has been good, and there is every reason to believe the holiday trade will be excellent.

All factories are running full time and many are working overtime to fill orders. There is employment for all classes of labor at good wages, and no one who cares to work need be idle.

The farmer, too, is feeling better. His 1923 crops are good and he is getting somewhat higher prices for his surplus products.

Taking the situation as a whole, I believe that conditions have improved fully 50 per cent within the past twelve months. My business for 1923 is double that of the previous year, and I am looking forward to 1924 with a great deal of optimism.

S. Hamilton Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. By Charles L. Hamilton, Treasurer:

The outstanding feature of this year's phonograph business seems to us to have been the slow pick-up of business in standard lines. We think this has been due to "bargain" prices (so-called) on nondescript machines and records so generally advertised by department stores. We have found a very large per cent of lookers influenced by the $69.75 and similar prices advertised. This tends to lower the public's opinion of all phonographs.

The outlook for 1924 is hopeful if not rosy. We expect a continuance of the rate of improvement noticeable since the low marks of 1921 and 1922.

William F. Lamb, Pottstown, Pa.:

I wish to state that business has been fairly good this year. We had an anniversary piano sale in October for two weeks, during which time we sold forty-five pianos, twenty-one of them being player-pianos.

The prospects for business in 1924, I believe, will be about the same as this year. It will largely depend on personal attention to prospects and advertising.

Landau's Music & Jewelry Store, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. By H. Michlesky:

Being in the heart of the anthracite coal producing region of Pennsylvania, we are necessarily dependent to a large extent on conditions and the length of wage agreements between operators and miners, which fortunately extended to October 1, 1925. This insures steady work for mine workers and should result in good business in all lines right through 1924.

We are looking forward to the coming year being a banner one in our three stores, and we are making preparations to that end. Industrial conditions throughout the country have little effect on us of the coal regions. For years back there has been a shortage of anthracite coal, and the mines are kept busy almost every working day of the entire period of the joint working agreements between operators and men. With the mines in steady operation we do not experience any depression in business when other industries slump or slacken.

So far as we can judge the coming year by past experiences, we anticipate, as stated, that 1924 will be a good business year in this important end of the great State of Pennsylvania.

Maison Blanche Co., New Orleans, La. By J. D. Moore:

1923 sales to date about equal last year, which was the largest in the history of our music department.

General business conditions now indicate that 1924 will be a very good year. The many resources affecting trade in this locality seem to be in a wholesome, healthy condition, and with our increased facilities available early in the year will furnish the means of a greater service by what is commonly known as the "Greatest Store South."

Ellas Marx Music Co., Sacramento, Cal.:

The present year to date for us compares favorably with previous years. Next year should be a banner one for good phonographs. The public is getting more acquainted with good music, and the merchant who carries a complete stock of standard makes with a good library of recreations should show a good profit for 1924. We specialize on the new Edison and have for a number of years.

R. M. Mattson Co., Long Beach, Cal. By R. M. Mattson:

The outstanding feature of the past year's business in this territory is the steady month by month increases and stability of the phonograph business.

Also the rapid change of the public taste from the upright to the console models, putting the phonograph on a par with the grand piano and other house furnishings.

1924 should be a year of steady growth in the industry, and we believe that if both the manufacturer and the retailer will figure their business on a steady growth rather than boom times the industry as a whole will continue on safe grounds.

Montaloo's Temple of Music, New Brunswick, N. J. By B. Howard Schlain:

In glancing back over 1923, there are two facts which stand out to which one might refer as outstanding features.

One is the tremendous strides made in the sale of complete radio outfits, particularly outfits encased in good-looking cabinets, by music stores over the country. The other is the fact that this spreading popularity of radio has not, at least as far as our business would indicate, materially affected the sale of talking machines.

Correlating these two facts, it would appear that the musical industry is doing a great deal toward bringing music, in one form or another, into the homes and lives of more and more people throughout the country, thereby making still more popular the "enjoy yourself at home" idea which, of course, is one of the aims of every dealer in this line.

Our sales volume for the current month is almost double what it was in the same month in 1922, and regardless of the fact that many experienced forecasters are looking toward a business relapse for 1924, we feel reasonably confident that our record for the coming year, both in the sale of talking machines and radio, will surpass 1923 figures by a comfortable margin.

The Rosenblatt Co., Inc., Greeneville, Tenn.:

We believe that there will be a revival of good substantial business for the coming year, or at least that is what we expect from this section.

Business here depends a great deal upon crop conditions, and as the farmers have a large amount of high-grade burley tobacco, which is the "money crop," there is every indication of good business. Greenville is the highest priced burley market in the United States, and the crop is bigger and better this year than it ever has been, so we are looking and preparing for a large business in the phonograph line for the coming year.

The market will open on December 4 and continue through until about April 1, so that we will have a few months of good business to start the new year with, and when the season closes, with prices good, it will not be very difficult to persuade the farmers who have not bought a musical instrument to buy one on the expectations of their next crop.

Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., Portland, Ore. By Frank Lucas:

The three outstanding features of the business for the year just coming to a close may be set down as follows: (1) The remarkable demand for "jazz" music. (2) The strong and successful effort to bring these organizations to a higher plane musically. (3) The fact that most buyers wish to buy on the instalment plan and at extremely low payments.

Prospects for 1924 are good and would be wonderfully good were it not for the fact that grain, fruit and stock farmers are not enjoying great prosperity.

Siegling Music House, Inc., Charleston, S. C. By Rudolph Siegling, President:

In our part of the country, due to local conditions, business has been exceedingly bad for the past two years, but has shown improvement for the last six months, and we can now say that our business is very much better than in pre-war times. Our increase of business for 1924 will be due to the high price of cotton, the best we have ever had. Unlike the North and West, the South, up to the last six months, did not enjoy the same amount of prosperity. We are glad to say the tables have now turned and we look for better times.

N. Snellenburg & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. By Everett W. Keefe, Manager Edison Department:

1923 has been just an all around good year. Not a boom in sight, but a year seemingly chuck-full of good, sound, old-fashioned common sense.

People have stopped buying for the pleasure of digging down in their pockets; dealers have stopped leading up and then waiting complacently for people to walk into the store with the ready cash. To employ a familiar phrase, "Those days are gone forever."

Alone responsible for our success and probably the success of every dealer in the field during the present year, was the growing appreciation of music everywhere, brought about by a gradual molding process of our daily lives and by continuous and determined effort toward a definite goal.

1924 will be a big year, brimful of success and opportunity for the merchant who is alive to its possibilities. Popular priced models will open the doors to thousands of new homes. Most of the war-time machines, with the exception of the few which have remained through sheer merit, have been eliminated from the market.

Radio, despite the slight dent which it has made temporarily in phonograph sales, has already resulted in a manifestly greater appreciation of music and a consequent increase in volume, especially of record sales. Then, too, the exploitation of Christmas Clubs on a large scale and the constantly increasing number of building and loan associations have brought people face to face with the advantages of the partial payment idea and many are now buying phonographs on instalments who never otherwise would have accumulated sufficient money to buy an instrument.

On the whole, 1924 should be a big year to the dealer who goes hard after the business. He will need to fight for every inch of success, but his reward will be sure.

The outstanding feature of the present year's business is that we have found a great feeling of optimism everywhere, and this has been more than borne out by the business that is being done right now.

As to 1924, we sincerely believe that it will be the best year since 1919. We have orders to indicate this.

From Manufacturers and Others

Amphion Talking Machine Co., St. Paul, Minn.

We have shown a 30 per cent increase in sales of our phonographs for the year ending November 30 and expect to show a greater increase next year.

With general business getting better prices for products and getting into the market more next year and labor in good demand we look upon next year as a very prosperous one for all lines of business.

Artophone Corporation, St. Louis, Mo.:

The outstanding feature of the present year's business, as far as we have been concerned, has been the great increase in record and machine sales. Also the fact that the merchants are demanding high-class merchandise.

We believe that the business of 1924 should be fully as good if not better than 1923; when we consider the prosperous condition of the talking machine business and the country generally we feel justified in making this prediction.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Chicago. By

A. J. Kendrick, General Sales Manager Phonograph Division:

An endeavor to express without prejudice an opinion or forecast for 1924, or the outstanding feature of this year's business is difficult without being somewhat guided by selfish associations and problems.

1923, with its generally more prosperous conditions, found many in the phonograph trade unable to take advantage of those opportunities, largely because of failure to promptly readjust themselves to changes—more radical in character than in recent past periods.

There seem to be two outstanding factors in the trade which impaired progress—one was need for financial readjustment—and needed reorganization of sales methods and practices. General prosperity, rather than efficiency in either of these two factors made for a good year. 1923 therefore can be considered a year of preparation.

Clearer vision of what can be accomplished in 1924 and how to accomplish it has certainly resulted. The need and advantages of constructive merchandising have become more evident. General industries and agriculture are prospectively good and employment is widespread, with wages satisfactory.

Exports and conditions abroad appear feeble, but to those situations we are quite reconciled.

In 1924 business should be what we make it—visions are better and opportunities greater than any year in the last half dozen.

Cheney Talking Machine Co., Chicago. By A. C. Harper, President:

We are looking forward to 1924 with a great deal of confidence, as we believe the phonograph business will be very satisfactory. Notwithstanding that 1924 will be a presidential year, general business conditions are very sound, money plentiful, labor well employed at high wages, and the farming communities gradually improving their condition. This means a large purchasing power, and should be reflected in the entire phonograph industry.

We are pleased to report that the Cheney Talking Machine Co. has had the best year in its history in 1923. Our business has shown a marked increase over 1922, and in 1922 we increased our sales 100 per cent over 1921. Present conditions indicate that our sales in 1924 will be considerably larger than during 1923.

Tunes that are in the air —

Columbia Mantel Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. By Walther A. Anderson, President:

The outstanding feature of the present year's business, aside from the fact that the over-production of talking machines has been about consumed, thereby bringing the industry to a more normal state, has been the introduction of radio. The combination of phonograph and radio will continue to grow in demand.

The coming year will be one during which sales must be vigorously and intelligently pushed. The product must be demonstrably superior in construction or produced at a lower cost so that there is a price advantage.

Everybody's Talking Machine Co., Philadelphia, Pa. By Samuel Fingrutd, Secretary:

The outlook for 1924 as regards our line seems to be extremely favorable.

With the issuance of our 1924 catalog, which has been acknowledged to be the most complete one ever issued to the trade, we can see from the enthusiastic manner in which it has already been received that our business is going to increase manifold during 1924.

Large talking machine establishments are beginning to see the wisdom of up-to-date service departments which not only add an enormous profit to their business, but are also making many good friends for them.

We see 1924 as a banner year, and we believe that all indications point to a most successful period for the entire industry.

Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y. By Eugene A. Widmann, President:

Generally speaking, the country is prosperous; in some respects more so than ever.

The two most important commercial developments in the last two years are both strong competitors of the phonograph and the record; one is the automobile, which takes people away from their homes and their phonographs, and the other is the radio, which takes money from the phonograph prospect and gives him in a measure, although in a measure only, what is competitive with the phonograph.

But in spite of all this the phonograph is as strong as it ever was and 1924 will be good. The dealer can make it very good.

Orsenigo Co., Inc., Long Island City, N. Y. By E. J. Orsenigo:

Business for the past year we are glad to say has been the best in the history of our concern. We have reasons to believe that 1924 will be better. It has been physically impossible for us to fulfill the demand for our products due principally to the lack of artistic labor which is required for the manufacturing of our merchandise.

Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J. By Ralph L. Freeman, Director of Distribution:

This year has been one in which substantial progress towards stability in the industry and creation of favorable conditions for the future have been achieved. 1924 promises to be a year for which plans can be made in advance with confidence. Our manufacturing program, already developed, for the first four months of 1924, calls for maximum production in all departments and full use of our greatly enlarged plant.

Peerless Album Co., New York. By Phil Ravis, President:

The barometer of the album business has, during the past six months, shown a condition of trade atmosphere which bids fair for 1924.

Not only has there been a widespread resumption of musical activity throughout the country, probably greater than at any time since the war, but all programs and schedules point to a fuller musical season just ahead.

Talking machine and phonograph men generally acknowledge that a demand for albums indicates the stability of record trade and the fact of certain increases in Peerless volume in 1923 promises a continuance of buying for home record libraries during 1924.

Just as a big Summer vacation season is always followed by a greedy public demand for photograph albums, a wide distribution of record albums inevitably follows a full calendar of musical events. Normalcy in record buying has undoubtedly come to stay.

Geo. C. Beckwith Co., Minneapolis, Minn. By C. K. Bennett, Vice-president:

This year has been different from any other year in my experience because the dealers have been so conservative in ordering, causing such a shortage in the most popular type of Victrolas, and a resultant loss in business. Our trouble is keeping up with the demand, and we are busier than ever making excuses. However, we are making plans for a big increase in business in 1924.

F. C. Kent Co., Irvington, N. J. By F. C. Kent, President:

As seen from our personal viewpoint the outstanding features of the present year's business have been:

(a) The return to its former prosperity of the phonograph industry as a whole upon a sound financial basis, which argues well for a wholesome and substantial future growth along safe and sane lines.

(b) The elimination of a great many fly-by-night concerns whose questionable tactics constituted a real menace to the stability and dependability of the phonograph industry.

(c) The realization that the radio, instead of being an active and serious competitor, as many feared, is, on the contrary, a stimulating factor in making sales, especially of records.

(d) The entrance into the phonographic field of several concerns of irreproachable repute and great financial strength, whose successful endeavors to market strictly high-grade phonographs must of necessity result in added prestige and considerable additional importance to the trade in general.

(e) The really remarkable extension of the activities of the manufacturer and the jobbers of the Edison disc phonograph, as is evidenced by the unusually large number of added Edison dealers and the corresponding increase in sales.

As to the outlook for the year 1924 we would state that we are looking forward to and preparing accordingly for the biggest year in our history, even exceeding the year which is now drawing to a close and which, our records show, has far excelled in every way any previous year in which we have participated.

C. L. Marshall Co., Detroit, Mich. By C. L. Marshall:

The most pronounced feature of this year's business condition, according to my impressions, and this refers not only to the phonograph business, but other manufactured lines, is that the real worth of merchandise is given greater consideration than for some time past, and prices must be consistent with the values. The price-cutting situation which existed for a period caused a reversal of the fundamental principle of buying and selling—price sold the merchandise, and the value and quality was given secondary consideration, if at all. This, naturally, affected legitimate lines, but with the reaction came the demand for well-made, reputable merchandise of value and quality at the right price, and the manufacturer who aspires to secure and maintain a standing and permanency for his product must be able to meet these requirements.

Business for 1923 has been satisfactory in all of our lines and the prospects for 1924 are good. The trouble is the most of us have been expecting the unusual, instead of the normal, healthy results of well-directed efforts. We expect an increase in our business for 1924, not from a change in conditions, but results from the effort we have put forth this year and the work we expect to do in this direction in 1924.

SOME RECORD SALE!

WESTFIELD, N. J., December 1.—William J. Rosen, proprietor of the Westfield Music Shop, 39 Elm street, this city, recently sold 600 Victor Red Seal records to one purchaser. The buyer has a record library of close to 1,800 numbers. His idea in buying so many records at one sitting was to avoid the necessity of later having to complete his library with double-faced Red Seals. All of the purchases were single-faced records.

Securing Sufficient Stock to Meet Big Christmas Demand Chief Problem of the Trade—Vigorous Drives Boost Sales—The News

CLEVELAND, O., December 7.—While jobbing interests and dealers, for that matter, are occupied largely with the problem of getting sufficient machines and records to meet the Christmas business which has already started, and is about ten days ahead of the usual holiday trade, both wholesale and retail interests are co-operating thoroughly to perpetuate the interest-sustaining factors that were started months before the holiday season.

This does not mean that wholesalers are neglecting to encourage the retailers with business-promotion plans, even through the now busy season. They want to feel reasonably sure that the dealer element will enter the new year with more new business immediately in prospect.

Columbia Booth at Better Homes Exposition

One of the recent unusual accomplishments in this connection was staged by the Cleveland branch of the Columbia Co. in a large booth at the Better Homes Exposition in Buffalo, where every new model of Columbia was displayed. The event was managed by M. H. Batz, Buffalo territory representative for the Cleveland Columbia branch. Through Mr. Batz a Buffalo newspaper sent a special letter to every person in the district whose income is $5,000 or more, with an urge to especially look at the Columbia exhibit. It is now estimated that of the more than 60,000 persons who visited the exposition, close to 100 per cent of them did visit the booth, and were made directly interested in the new instruments. One of the largest prospect lists ever obtained for a single week's entertainment was acquired, which may be of aid to Columbia dealers later on.

B. H. Smith, formerly connected with the executive office of the Columbia Phonograph Co., has been placed in charge of the record department of the local branch.

New Eclipse Red Seal Record Poster

In keeping with the move to interest the people in the better music records, the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, has prepared a poster to feature Red Seal records. The first of these made its appearance December 1, picturing a scene from "Lucia," and proclaiming the remarkably low figure at which a double record with the Sextet from "Lucia" and the Quartet from "Rigoletto" may be had. These posters will be used by dealers in their windows.

Edison Tone-Tests Go Over Big

The tone-tests arranged for Cleveland zone Edison dealers by the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, have gone over bigger than any similar previous effort, according to reports by dealers to E. S. Hershberger, secretary, who arranged this latest tour. More persons attended these tests, and larger lists of prospects for new instruments were obtained.

Strong Campaign of Meier & Sons Co.

Credit for the greatest achievement by an individual dealer to obtain new business should go to the L. Meier & Sons Co., Victor dealers, who conducted a twenty-six days' campaign through November. It is now conservatively estimated that at least 50,000 persons were made directly interested in this campaign, through the giving away of numerous prizes and the two nights' appearance of Eight Popular Victor Artists at the Lyceum Theatre, where 3,000 persons alone heard and saw the people whose records they are familiar with. Special advertising was conducted in daily newspapers, street cars and the like, but the expense and effort are more than justified by the renewed interest in the talking machine. Of course, many sales were made, according to Louis Meier, and not a few of those resulted in larger machines being substituted for smaller machines before deals were actually closed. During the artists' appearance here they were entertained by Mr. Meier at the Hanna Restaurant and the Cleveland Athletic Club, where leaders in the talking machine trade here were also present. During the first night of the artists' appearance the car schedule was upset by so many people going to the Lyceum Theatre that the street car dispatcher in that district had to order extra cars for the home-bound crowd.

A Helpful Christmas Suggestion

Since all dealers make a point of featuring records touching on or appertaining to Christmas, a helpful list of 500 such records has been prepared by the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, and many dealers had already filled their quotas of these records during the first week the list of numbers was distributed.

Colored Artist Booms Records Sales

In the matter of immediate business for the retailer the idea of the officials of the Cleveland Columbia branch in bringing Bessie Smith, noted colored artist recording for Columbia, to Cleveland, resulted in the biggest sale of records of all kinds to colored folk that retailers who cater to them ever did in one week. Miss Smith appeared at the Globe Theatre, which was packed hours before the performance started.

L. S. McLeod Now a Benedict

Though record-making artists may not have done show work, some of them know what doubling in brass means, and to a certain extent one Bennie Krueger, orchestra conductor extraordinary, did that same. Mr. Krueger was acquired by local Brunswick executives to put on a Brunswick week for the George S. Dales Co. at Akron.

While thus engaged none other than L. S. McLeod, branch manager at Cleveland, had to go and get married. Miss Carmeta Mae Smith, Cleveland girl, was the bride. And Bennie Krueger, also Margaret Young, another Brunswick artist, were among the special guests at the wedding. Mr. McLeod held the news in abeyance from his associates in the Brunswick, but it came to light just in time for the staff to purchase a fine, large chair, in which, supposedly, he will take life easy henceforth.

Walter Camp Speaks at Luncheon

Among the recent weekly luncheon speakers at the Cleveland Advertising Club was Walter Camp himself, originator of the well-known "Daily Dozen." Mr. Camp spoke on health, and illustrated his speech with some of the principles outlined by his Health Records. Many dealers attended the meeting to get first-hand information on the subject, which they found valuable with the immediate increase of health record sales.

Important Sonora Dealer Helps

One of the important helps that already is bringing dealers returns on holiday business is the series of Sonora Christmas suggestions that are being distributed in this territory by the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. Many early machine sales have been closed through this medium already, dealers advise J. T. Pringle, general manager.

New Distributors for Diaphragm Co.

The Diaphragm Co., with headquarters in the Union Building, this city, is continuing to enlarge its territory for its violin spruce reproducer. H. C. Cooley, sales manager, announces the appointment of the Parker Phonograph Co., Seattle, for the Washington and Oregon territory, and W. R. Connolly, former Cleveland, of Eustis, Fla., as distributor for the latter State.

Record Cut-Out Plan Helps Dealers

When dealers need new records they must needs find space for them, and the so-called dead record stock must consequently be reduced. In this connection the local Brunswick organization is co-operating with Brunswick dealers by the installation of the Brunswick record cut-out plan, and many dealers in this territory already have been able to prepare their establishments for the newer and current music.

Adopt Machine Exchange Plan

Because of the difference of popular opinion on certain types of machines, and the fact that some dealers will have instruments that do not move readily, while other dealers could use just such machines, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, has adopted a machine exchange plan, so that those with such machine surplus may dispose of it, and those requiring the machines may have them. Lists of machines that are available for redistribution are being compiled by the dealers.

Sales Co., announces the addition of the Zifter Music Co. to the Cheney line, and with plans for an informal introduction of Cheney for the near future.

Several new dealers for the Bush & Lane Duo Vox, in Pittsburgh, Akron and Warren, have been added lately by C. H. Kennedy, district representative for this instrument.

Brown Bros., an old-established firm that has been featuring Columbia for a long time, has moved into its new location on East Ninth near Prospect, this city. Dan Des Foldes and R. H. Smith, of the Cleveland Columbia branch, aided in planning the Columbia display for the opening, the largest individual display of phonographs seen here in a considerable length of time.

More new Sonora dealers are announced by J. L. Du Breuil, sales manager, the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. These include Andrew Motika and Dunn's Music Store, in Cleveland, and Fred Bailey, at Washington Court House.

The Frazell Music Store, Toledo, is rebuilding its entire first floor in connection with the introduction of the new line of Columbias, and following the completion of new hearing rooms and other improvements, may hold an informal opening. The Arson Furniture Co., Niagara Falls, also has added the new line of Columbias.

Jacob Weinheimer's Sons, Syracuse, N. Y., one of the largest retail establishments in that vicinity, is a new Brunswick dealer to be added to the Cleveland district list.

New Cheney retailers enrolled in the last few weeks include the L. Kline Music Co., New Kensington; Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., Natronia; D. B. Rouret, Curwensville, and the Hirshberg Furniture Co., McKeysport, all in Pennsylvania; Spense's Music Co., Columbus; Findt Music Co., Steubenville; T. E. Rice Piano Co., Wooster, and Fred C. Klopfer, Bucyrus, O.

New Edison dealers include E. W. Muntz, Cleveland; East End Furniture Co. and Michigan Furniture Co., Youngstown.

Additional Sonora dealers in the southern Ohio territory announced by Carl E. Kraner, Sonora Phonograph Co. Ohio representative, include A. Steinkamp & Co., Portsmouth, and C. J. Breslen, Cambridge, O.

The Bernstein Piano Co., this city, has acquired the Victor business formerly held by the Deutsch-Crane Co.

ALBANY

Christmas Gift Sales Keep Retailers on Their Toes—Expect Sales Records to Be Shattered

ALBANY, N. Y., December 8.—That holiday business is good is plainly evident by the activity noted in all the music stores. This condition exists throughout northeastern New York, according to N. D. Griffin, manager of the American Phonograph Co., distributor of the Edison. During the past month nine new dealers have placed large orders for stock and practically all of the old customers have placed orders greatly in excess of the corresponding period last year. Mr. Griffin obtained an abnormally large stock in anticipation of increased orders, but the December shipments will exhaust the supply of many models and deplete all others.

The holiday trade of the local dealers is expected to exceed all previous years, largely due to the Christmas clubs, which have been the means of placing hundreds of machines, so that by Christmas day there will be but few instruments left. With the opening of the month the Albany banks began the distribution of more than a half million dollars to Christmas club depositors and the music stores are getting their share of this fund for Christmas shopping. The Baker Music House is facing an acute shortage in machines, although the stock orders were slightly in excess of last year. The radio department has an excellent window display and this line is being featured. O. E. Kellogg, general manager, said that the advent of the radio made him apprehensive of a decline in the sale of talking machines and records, but the experience of the past year has shown it has increased business. "We are daily asked for records of pieces heard over the radio and find it is an advertisement of the new releases," said Mr. Kellogg.

Miss Mabel Rich, of the educational department of the Victor Co., gave a demonstration in music appreciation in the third grade of School No. 12 as a part of the program of the seventy-eighth annual meeting of the New York State Teachers' Association in Albany held recently. Lists of records suitable for use in schools, issued by the Victor Co., were distributed among the teachers and many called at the local Victor stores for a demonstration of them. It is expected that music memory contests, with the aid of talking machines and records, will be instituted in schools that have not yet adopted the plan, as a result of this talk.

The Standard Furniture Co., of 112-114 South

Pearl street, has taken the agency for Sonora machines and is advertising them extensively in connection with the general advertising campaign of the Sonora Co. Practically all the furniture dealers and department stores here are handling both machines and records.

Pommer & Sons have installed an auto-phone amplifier at the store entrance and the latest Brunswick records are played daily, attracting the attention of shoppers.

The Central Talking Machine Shop, Inc., of New York City, has filed a certificate at the Secretary of State's office showing the adoption of the name of Retail Music Corp.

C. C. HARVEY IN NEW STORE

New Building in Brockton, Mass., Was Occupied by House Early in December

BROCKTON, MASS., December 7.—The C. C. Harvey Co., which has been carrying on a general music business at 57 Main street, in this city, for a long terms of years, moved on December 1 to its new building at 27 Legion Parkway, just around the corner from its present quarters. This new building, which has just been completed, consists of two floors which are occupied entirely by the C. C. Harvey Co. business. The first floor will be used for the talking machine department, and the second floor will be devoted to the piano and general musical merchandise department. New decorations and new fixtures, such as record racks, demonstration booths and record counters, have been installed. V. Merrill Jones, manager, is very enthusiastic over the new quarters, as they give him double the floor space, and, in general, much more attractive warerooms. The C. C. Harvey Co. carries the Ampico, pianos and the Victor, Edison and Columbia phonographs.

HOLYOKE DEALER ENGAGED

HOLYOKE, MASS., December 7.—Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Bertha Jacobson, of Minneapolis, Minn., to Harry Wernick, of this city, which was announced at a party held in Silverman's Hall here the middle of November. Mr. Wernick is the live-wire head of the Holyoke Phonograph Co., which has handled Columbia products for a number of years. Many friends in the talking machine trade attended the party.

Separate departments for sheet music and phonographs are among the features of the recently remodeled W. T. Grant department store in Pawtucket, R. I.

MESKILL MUSIC SHOP OPENS

MUNCIE, IND., December 6.—The Meskill Music Shop, 109 West Jackson street, held its formal opening here recently. A. L. Huber, who is in charge of the store, has been identified with the music business about eighteen years. The record department of the store, which is owned by an Indianapolis concern, will be in charge of Miss Louise Huber, daughter of the manager of the store.

BRUCE MUSIC CO. CHANGES HANDS

DECATUR, ILL., December 7.—The Bruce Music Co., at 118 East William street, has been purchased by L. H. Nifong, formerly of Peoria, and R. W. Garecht, formerly of Springfield, who are opening the shop under the name of the Decatur Music Shop. The new firm will deal in Columbia phonographs and records and pianos.

LIVELY DAYS IN TRADE AS BUSINESS HITS THE GRADE AND HOLIDAY SALES START IN EARNEST

Lethargy of November Replaced by Decided Activity in Retail Trade Circles—Short Business Period Before Passing of Christmas Sales Season Promises to Bring Up Sales Totals

BOSTON, MASS., December 7.—The talking machine trade has begun to find things rather lively. Almost on the first day of the month the tide of business distinctly changed; that is to say, while November was not what dealers had looked for, conditions are likely to be more than made up for this month, but it will mean a lot of hustling for there will be fewer selling days for the purchasers. In the end the volume of holiday business will be something of goodly proportions, it is predicted. The jobbers have been able to fill orders satisfactorily, except in some styles that have been in particularly heavy demand. In most cases the dealers have goodly stocks, which means that there will be prompt deliveries. With December's quota taken into consideration the sum total of the 1923 business promises to make a very good showing. One thing that dealers relate with few exceptions: the call for higher priced machines exceeds in volume that of any previous year.

New Strand Dealers Appointed

The Strand machine is now being carried by a great many high-grade dealers throughout the New England territory, and orders that are coming into Manager Erisman's office indicate that sales are now very large.

It is significant that when the Erisman Co. took on the Strand the names of forty dealers, leaders in the business, were selected as those whom Mr. Erisman especially wanted to carry this machine. Practically all of these forty now are doing a good business with this line. Among the most recent houses to sign up for the Strand is the Lothrop Piano Co., of Dover and Rochester, N. H.; the Taylor Furniture Co., 770 Washington street, Boston, where Manager Smith is going into the talking machine business on a big scale; the Garreau Home Furniture Co., of Pawtucket, R. I.; Gamer's Music Store, 965 Tremont street, Boston, which is carrying a complete line of Strands; the W. T. Burns Furniture Co., of Woburn; Louis Karelitz Furniture Co., of Peabody; C. J. Murphy, of Biddeford, Me., and the Wakefield Music Shop, Wakefield, of which Walter Davis, formerly with Henderson's, is now the manager.

Hallet & Davis Activities

The Harvard-Yale football game was liberally attended by the Hallet & Davis Co.'s staff, for there were C. C. Conway, whose son, Norton Conway, is a member of the Yale freshman team; E. E. Conway, R. O. Ainslie and H. C. Spain. John Cotter, of this house, has lately moved into a new office on the third floor front, which is about the last word in handsome, comfortable furnishings. Lester Jones, who handles the talking machine end of the Hallet & Davis business, has been making trips through New England and New York lately in the interest of several types of machines which Hallet & Davis dealers have taken in large numbers.

Co-operated With Columbia Dealers

Mrs. Alice W. Graves, stock-keeping and record expert of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., has returned from an extended trip through western Massachusetts and Connecticut, where she has been working in close harmony with Columbia dealers, developing their record department and featuring, through dealers' clerks, the unlimited possibilities of moving back numbers in the present catalog. Since her return Manager Fred E. Mann has received several letters from dealers in appreciation of Mrs. Graves' services in developing business.

S. M. Sugarman Convalescent

It will be good news to his many friends that S. M. Sugarman, treasurer of the Rosen Talking Machine Co., School street, is recovering from an operation for acute appendicitis. He and his son, Ben H. Sugarman, are important factors in the retail distribution of the Victor and Columbia lines of merchandise.

Oskenonton, Columbia Artist, a Visitor

Oskenonton, exclusive Columbia artist, paid a visit to the Boston branch of the Columbia Co. early in November while on his way to fill concert engagements in New England. His father and grandfather were great chiefs bearing the same name, and they spent the greater part of their lives in the Grand River Reservation in Canada. By hereditary rights he bears the proud title of Chief of the Mohawk tribe. Dealers throughout New England are looking forward to very favorable sales of this Indian artist's records as the result of his appearance in different towns and cities.

A. C. Erisman Announces Radio

The A. C. Erisman Co., 175 Tremont street, has taken on radio outfits, Mr. Erisman having come to the conclusion that the time is ripe for dealers to carry complete outfits. In a letter which he is sending out to the trade he says by way of introduction: "At last, after two years of careful study, we wish to announce to the talking machine and music trade that we are now in a position to offer you the highest grade radio product obtainable." The sets, therefore, that Mr. Erisman is offering are the Colin B. Kennedy set, of St. Louis, and the Federal Telephone & Telegraph sets.

Already the Erisman store has disposed of a number of these sets, and certain demonstrations in the showrooms are attracting considerable attention. It is especially interesting that Mr. Erisman enjoyed the Harvard-Yale football game on November 24 through the medium of a Kennedy set, and he received the news of the various plays not only while the machine set on his desk, but even while he was carrying it from the showroom to his office, a distance of perhaps 150 feet.

General Phonograph Corp. Expands

The General Phonograph Corp. of New England, Inc., has now got nicely settled in its new executive quarters, but the location at 142 Berkeley street is the same, for it only is that additional space has been taken across the hallway. The new room, and a very large one, is numbered 303, and the windows look out on Columbus avenue. The old quarters are now entirely used for stock purposes and all the available room is needed, since Manager Smith's New England business is growing rapidly. Manager Smith says that the exchange plan lately tried out has worked most advantageously all around and dealers everywhere are taking advantage of it. The department has laid in a large supply of Okeh and Odeon lines for the holiday trade and it looks as though there'll be little left in stock by the time the dealers' orders have been filled. New dealers who are to handle these two lines of records are J. A. Bienkowski, of New Britain, Conn.; the Chicopee Novelty Co., of Chicopee, Mass., and Jac Anenberg, of Middletown, Conn.

It is interesting news that the General Phonograph Corp. is about to release a line of real Irish records which have been recorded in the Old Country. A line of Portuguese records lately released has been selling rapidly among the Portuguese of this city, who make up quite a large colony here. In the line of the classics considerable business is looked for in the records of great foreign artists which are to be had in the Fonotopia and Odeon lines. These records are of a very high class.

Installs Cheney in Radio Station

It is of special interest radiowise that the Shepard Stores, which do most of the broadcasting from this locality from station WNAC, has placed a Cheney talking machine in its radio studios and is using it exclusively for this work. The radio department has come to the conclusion that the Cheney records produce the best tone for broadcasting.

New Cheney Accounts

A concern to lately take on the Cheney line in New England is Brown, Thomson Co., of Hartford, Conn. Irving Caplan is the manager, and he says his organization is well pleased with this machine. On the day that the initial order was received three machines were sold. Another concern to sign up for Cheney representation is the O. J. Gonya Bros Co., of Rumford, Me., which will carry this line exclusively.

Big Month for Sonora

The biggest month in any eighteen similar periods is the way that the business of November is characterized at the headquarters of the Sonora Co. of New England, and Tom Burke says that while large consignments of late models of Sonoras are coming into the stockroom it is difficult to keep up with the demand from dealers. The low-priced models, he says, are also in good demand and it is more than likely that there will not be enough for the December shipments.

Carbone Bros. Open New Store

On the first of the month Carbone Bros. opened a new talking machine shop at 482 Broadway, South Boston, known as Carbone Bros. Music Shop, Inc., and the conspicuous figure in the establishment is Prince Napoleon Carbone, a diminutive young gentleman, standing three and a half feet high, who has an international reputation, having traveled all over the world as a song and dance artist. He is a native-born Italian and has been in this country ten years and speaks fluent English. He has appeared before thousands on the Keith circuit and has also been with circuses in this country. Prince Napoleon has three other brothers, Nicolo, Josef and Andy, the latter having been his manager during his public appearances. The Carbone Bros. also maintain a profitable store at 1443 Dorchester avenue,

Prince Napoleon Carbone

Dorchester, where the Victor line is carried exclusively. The store in South Boston is handsomely fitted up and business promises to be of unusually large volume, especially with the approach of the holidays.

Activities of the Burke Boys

Outstanding items of news anent the Burke boys, all associated with the Sonora house here, are that Joe has got a new Chalmers coach, of which he is justifiably very proud; that Tom took in the Yale-Princeton game and rooted, of course for the first-named college, since he has lots of friends in Connecticut; and that Ray has just returned from a good week in Maine, where he visited Bangor, Bath, Portland, Rockland and other places.

Popular Brunswick Releases in Demand

There have been some very popular releases lately in the Brunswick line of records and dealers looking to Kraft, Bates & Spencer for their consignments are sending in large orders for the big hits in the classical and popular catalogs. The new models of Brunswick machines, too, are finding a quick sale as the holidays are approaching. The Maurice Music Shoppe, of New Bedford, has just taken on the Brunswick line exclusively, and the indications are that Kraft, Bates & Spencer will have to send frequent invoices of goods, to judge by the way the initial order was disposed of.

We Serve New England!

THE speed and efficiency with which we have filled "rush" orders in the past is by no means impaired by the hustle and bustle of the present holiday season. The completeness of our stocks of Okeh, Odeon, Okeh Irish and Foreign Language Records is still maintained. Our prompt and efficient service is functioning as smoothly as ever!

We extend to our many friends and the trade in general our sincere wishes for A Very Merry Christmas and A Happy, Successful New Year!

Platt Spencer, of the traveling staff for the Brunswick, has just returned from a good trip in northern Vermont and Maine, where he found dealers most enthusiastic. Mr. Spencer is starting off again into Maine territory in a few days where, present reports indicate, business in the talking machine field is humming.

Eastern Co. Reports Busy Conditions

Herbert Shoemaker reports business very good for the Eastern Talking Machine Co. and adds that dealers, for the most part, took the company's advice and ordered their stocks early. He predicts that there will be a shortage in certain types, and already it is so with the 80 and 210 styles of Victors, which have been ordered very heavily by a number of the dealers. Mr. Shoemaker says the record business has been extremely large. The Eastern Co. has just signed up for a new representation out in Medford, the Medford Talking Machine Co., 19 Salem street, Medford Square. The store has been well stocked up with the Victor line of machines and records.

Robert Steinert Home From Europe

Robert Steinert, of M. Steinert & Sons, is back home from his European trip, on which he started early in October with his mother, Mrs. Alexander Steinert. "Bob" told The World correspondent that he spent most of his time in Paris, where his brother, Alexander L. Steinert, a coming figure in the musical world, is studying music, and that everywhere he went he found the French industriously occupied and imbued with a determined spirit to "come back." He said there were few idle people and there was a general air of cheerfulness throughout Paris and such of the environs he visited.

Restrained From Store Door Playing

The Supreme Court a few days ago in this city affirmed a decree of the Superior Court adjudging the Rosen Talking Machine Co., which is operated by Solomon N. Sugerman and his son, Ben S. Sugerman, guilty of contempt in violating an injunction restraining them from playing machines in their doorway or store in School street in such a manner as to be appreciably audible in stores on the opposite side of the street. In an opinion the Court says: "Courts will not permit defendants to evade responsibility for violating an injunction by doing through subterfuge a thing which is not in terms a violation, yet produces the same effect by accomplishing substantially that which they were enjoined from doing."

H. H. Ambler Actively in Charge

H. H. Ambler, who recently purchased the business of the New England Talking Machine Co., has energetically taken hold of the details and is already putting into execution many well-laid plans for the future development of the business. Mr. Ambler is an indefatigable worker and a thorough business executive. Under his management it is safe to predict a bright future for the company. He has adopted for his slogan "Quality and Service." In addition to more extensive advertising, a series of follow-up letters have been prepared, the first of which was mailed recently to 5,000 dealers. It is Mr. Ambler's intention to keep closely in touch with the trade, both by letters and personal calls, and just as soon as all details are satisfactorily arranged at the headquarters of the company he will personally call upon the trade as time permits. He considers of prime importance, however, the quality of production and to this end of the business he is giving particular attention. He has placed in charge of production R. E. Chesley, who occupied this important position under the former management. Mr. Chesley has been familiar with this work for several years and has a thorough knowledge of all mechanical details.

Death of R. L. Freeman's Father

Victor jobbers and dealers will be sorry to learn of the loss that has come to R. L. Freeman, director of distribution for the Victor product, whose father passed away in Nova Scotia. Mr. Freeman passed through Boston on his way up to the Province and, following the funeral of his father, he brought his mother back with him to the States. The local trade pleasantly remembers meeting Mr. Freeman several Summers past as he has journeyed thither on his way to Nova Scotia to spend his vacation with the old folks.

Kenneth E. Reed Optimistic

Kenneth E. Reed, wholesale Victor manager for M. Steinert & Sons, voicing his views of trade conditions, said a few days ago that the present indications point to one of the finest Decembers in the history of the business. While admitting that business had been a bit quiet and not exactly what it should have been in November, nevertheless, he said it would gather strength and in fewer business days than usual would in the end make up for lost time in a most positive manner. That is to say, there would be a large volume of business concentrated in a shorter period of time, and this would mean that there will be a real Christmas rush toward the end of the holiday season.

Many Visitors to Steinert's

Boston visitors at the Steinert Arch street store, all of them Victor dealers, have been Miss Jane Hennessey, of the Tilton Furber Co., of Providence; Earl La Roe, of La Roe's Music Store, of Woonsocket; Herman Fleischman, of Marcellus Roper Co., Worcester, and who is

Dodge & Gardner Expand

A piece of out-of-town news just gathered is that Dodge & Gardner, of Plymouth, N. H., have lately purchased the Victor business of A. F. Burt & Co., so that now this concern has stores at three New Hampshire centers—Littleton, which is the company's headquarters; Woodsville and Plymouth.

Adds to Floor Space

The trade also will be interested to learn that Fred Gardner, of Gardner's Temple of Music, Lawrence, has added to his space by taking the second floor of the building where he is located, this extra accommodation being made necessary by increased business.

Peter McInerney Promoted

Peter McInerney, formerly of the dealer service department of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., has been promoted to the post of supervisor of merchandise and will care for the supervision of record stocks and inventory. He brings to his new work a wide knowledge of the needs of the dealers, as well as their problems, and he is one of the most popular of the younger men in the local talking machine business. Pete, by the bye, is to be a January bridegroom.

Columbia Sample Record Popular

The special demonstration record which the Columbia Co. released recently has proved immensely popular in the New England field. The enthusiasm of Columbia dealers is a guarantee of the successful presentation to the public of one of the most important developments of record manufacturing since the Columbia gave the public the double-faced record.

Celebrates Silver Wedding

Henry Kahn, proprietor of Kahn's Music Shop, 636 Washington street and 22 Harvard

Visitors to Jerome H. Remick Co.

Two recent callers at the song shop of Jerome H. Remick Co., 168 Tremont street, which handles the Columbia exclusively, were Solomon and Richard Howard, the composers of "Oh, You Little Sun-uv-er-gun." They were here to listen to their number recorded on the New Process Columbia by Ray Miller and His Orchestra.

Eight Victor Artists on Tour

It will be good news in New England that the Eight Favorite Victor Artists, as they are now called, are to be in New England this month. They appeared at Fall River on December 6 and at Waterbury on December 7, with other dates to be announced later. Their tour is being managed by M. Steinert & Sons.

Okeh Artist Broadcasts

P. J. Gaffney, one of the Okeh artists, has had his musical ability well popularized through the medium of the WNAC broadcasting station, which is the Shepard Stores, in this city, and he lately got a letter from as far away as Montana testifying to the enjoyment derived from hearing him. He is now in New York making some new recordings.

Joe Burke in Gotham

Joe Burke, of the Sonora Co. of New England, has just gone over to New York to attend a jobbers' conference relative to the 1924 Sonora models.

Radio Sport News Get 'Em

The C. C. Harvey Co.'s Boylston street store attracted a large crowd on the afternoon of the big Harvard-Yale game when a Zenith radio set announced the continuous news of the game in the doorway of the store, which was jammed during the entire period of the game.

Winthrop A. Harvey, of the C. C. Harvey Co., is back home from a Southern trip which he and Mrs. Harvey took as far as South Carolina. Soon after New Year's Ernest A. Cressey, of this house, and Mrs. Cressey plan to take a trip to the Middle West.

L. M. Coates in New Post

Louis M. Coates has lately been added to the staff of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, filling the important post of credit manager.

Miss F. E. Adams With Erisman Co.

Miss F. E. Adams, formerly in charge of the record department of the Atherton Furniture Co. at Brockton, has been engaged by Arthur Erisman to take charge of the promotion department of the A. C. Erisman Co. at his Boston store. Arthur C. Erisman was over in New York the middle of November, where he met the Strand factory managers.

Edison Trade Stocked to Meet Demand

Frederick H. Silliman, head of the Pardee, Ellenberger Co., Inc., Edison distributor for New England, speaks most enthusiastically of business conditions and, with the exception of perhaps two types of machines, he says the house will be able to take care of the trade. Dealers meanwhile responded to the call to lay in a sufficient stock early in the season, so it is not likely that there will be any eleventh hour rush to get goods.

Sales Drive at Henderson's

L. W. Scott, who is in charge of the talking machine department of Henderson's, Boylston street, has been busy with a special sales drive the past week. Mr. Scott says the indications are good for a lively holiday season.

more room devoted to the talking machine department, which is under the management of J. J. Moran, more familiarly known to the trade as "J. J." With the pianos thus out of the way to a floor above the line of Victrolas, Brunswicks and Cheney's will be shown to far better advantage than ever before. The holiday business in this department has started off very encouragingly.

Holiday Sales Grow at Prime's

The Prime Furniture Co., with an excellent location at the corner of Washington and Stuart streets, has just installed a talking machine department in a corner of the ground floor and this is in charge of Miss Laura Lawless, who formerly was associated with one of the Henderson stores. It is an exclusive Victrola shop and Miss Lawless says that she is finding quite a brisk business, which is rolling up as the days advance toward Christmas.

Doing Large Repair and Supply Business

Werrick Bros., who have been established in the phonograph parts and accessories business at 15 School street, this city, for the past five years, are carrying not only an extensive line of repair parts, but are jobbers of Brilliantone, Gilt Edge, Reflexo and Wall-Kane needles. Albums, delivery bags, envelopes and everything that goes with this line are also handled. Mr. Werrick, the sole owner of the firm of Werrick Bros., has been in this particular line for the past eighteen years.

Thos. W. Steele, of Hyde River, a Benedict

Thomas W. Steele, who has built up a very fine business in Victor talking machines, records and sheet music in Hyde River, Mass., was recently married, the happy bride being Miss Evelyn F. Atkins, of Somerville. He recently completed a very handsome home for himself and his bride. Mr. Steele has won quite a following in the community by his unflinching courtesy and attention to the interests of his customers. He was formerly in the talking machine business in Somerville where he also was very popular and successful.

OUTLET STORE SECURES POOLEY MEDFORD TALKING MACHINE CO. OPENS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., December 4.—The W. B. Glynn Distributing Co., Saxtons River, Vt., New England distributor for Pooley phonographs, closed a contract recently with the Outlet Co., of this city, whereby this well-known store will handle a complete Pooley line. H. G. Russell, manager of the Outlet Co.'s phonograph department, is very optimistic regarding the sales outlook for the Pooley phonograph and an extensive sales campaign has already been started in behalf of these products. The W. B. Glynn Distributing Co. is planning to co-operate with this well-known department store in every possible way in developing Pooley business.

A charter of incorporation under the laws of California was recently granted to the Compton Music Co., Compton, Cal. The concern has a capital stock of $25,000.

MEDFORD, MASS., December 4.—The Medford Talking Machine Co. recently opened very attractive quarters on Main street, this town, in a new building recently completed. New fixtures and record racks and counters have been installed as well as sheet music racks, all in pale gray finish. The indirect system of lighting gives the store a very beautiful appearance. There are also two large show windows with a special lighting system, while a large electric light sign has been erected over the front entrance to the store, which can be seen blocks away. The establishment is in charge of Miss Marjorie Limoges, who is a talented musician and widely known in Medford. This concern handles Victor talking machines and records.

A. D. Chatelle, music dealer, Warren, Ill., has opened a branch in Freeport, Ill.

Machine Shortage Is Serious—Columbia Expansion Evident—Many New Edison Dealers—Prize-winners at Lucker's—Month's News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., December 7.—Wholesalers and dealers here are experiencing a distinct shortage of the popular types of machines—a shortage which will adversely affect holiday business. Dealers who have ordered conservatively are finding that they underestimated the demand. Wholesalers, in turn, are unable to get more deliveries from the factory, and as a consequence December sales, while they will undoubtedly be good, will not be as gratifying as they might be. Country business is showing surprisingly good results. Mail orders are arriving in hordes daily to Twin City jobbers from the small towns and agricultural districts.

Shortage of Victrolas

At the George C. Beckwith Co., Victor distributor, Charles K. Bennett, general manager, said: "This is the first time in my business experience that I have seen merchandise run out so early. The extreme shortage is due to the fact that the dealers have let their requirements go until the last minute. Practically every dealer has been playing 'safe' and been overconfident that the jobber would be able to supply the goods when wanted. We have letters from widely separated sections of the country asking for large orders which we are unable to fill."

Beckwith's is finding not only a shortage in Victrolas but also in the new double-face Red Seal records. The firm has not a single Victrola in stock from $25 to $200, the only models with which they are supplied being some at $250 and $300 and the more expensive Gothic and Chippendales. "The country business," according to Mr. Bennett, "is particularly active with the popular priced uprights. November has been a bigger month than the preceding month and of November, 1922. If we had had the stock we could have done $100,000 more business." Children's records are going well now before Christmas, Beckwith's having just received a supply of envelopes for these juvenile records. They are most attractive.

Columbia Co. Activities

The Columbia Phonograph Co. is finding a decided improvement in business, according to R. C. Tanner. The Columbia business is fine in Iowa, Wisconsin and parts of Minnesota, but not as good in North Dakota and South Dakota. Mr. Tanner says collections in the country have been very slow and remarks the particular demand for $150 to $200 consoles.

W. L. Sprague, head of the company, returned at Thanksgiving time from Green Bay, Wis. Previously Mr. Sprague was in Chicago where he met Robert Porter, of New York, field sales manager of the Columbia Co. The 25,000 25-cent records which the Columbia distributors here received have met with a phenomenal success.

The Dayton Co., one of the largest Minneapolis department stores, has just taken on the Columbia line. Other new accounts include the Chambers Music House in Mason City, Ia., and Woodford & Bill, Green Bay, Wis.

Edison Demand Booming

Mail orders are swamping the Lawrence H. Lucker Co., Edison distributor, and the firm is experiencing a big shortage in the $100 and $175 models. The company is finding the country business big, although the Minnesota Phonograph Co., the local Edison retail store, is doing only fair business—rather surprising for the season. About 1,000 inquiries have resulted from the ad which the Lucker Co. ran in five farm papers advertising cylinder records. The Minnesota Phonograph Co. has been kept very busy filling the resultant orders.

New Edison accounts include: Will W. Hazleton, Calmar, Ia.; J. L. Kroeger, Wheaton, Minn.; A. Lowy & Son, Silver Lake, Minn.; T. A. Hein, Dodge Center, and Erickson & Morken, Watson, Minn.

Visitors to the Edison offices during the month included William K. Koesel, Richardson, N. D.; A. J. Hockenhall, Tracy; Dr. J. B. Thompson, Arthur, N. D., and Charles Kelly, of F. S. Kelly Furniture Co., Duluth.

Miss Pernelle Michelson, head record girl of the Minnesota Phonograph Co., was recently married. As Mrs. Bethke she will remain at her post until the New Year.

A. L. Toepel, of the Lucker Co., proved his piscatorial prowess by winning first prize, a $25 South Bend reel, in the contest for big fish recently conducted by the Warner Hardwood Co. Mr. Toepel's catch was an 18-pound pike, caught at Whitefish Lake, which measured 43 inches. Mr. Toepel was one of the trio of Edison fishermen pictured in the August 15 edition of The World.

Shortage of Cheney Phonographs

Edward G. Hoch, of the Edward G. Hoch Co., Cheney distributor, says: "Our firm is finding business far in excess of last year. If we maintain the same degree of prosperity, it is my opinion that the Christmas sales will greatly exceed last year's. We are selling more medium-priced than high-priced machines."

Mr. Hoch has just returned from Chicago, where he attempted to increase his order of Cheneys, but found it impossible, because everything is sold and the company cannot spare more merchandise.

"Doc" O'Neill a Busy Traveler

"Doc" O'Neill, of the Brunswick Co., returned this week from Chicago. Before Thanksgiving he made a trip to Montana. The Brunswick line has just been added at the Golden Rule. W. F. Cooper, mechanical man with the Brunswick Co., recently visited the Twin Cities.

J. J. Hayes Opens Store

J. J. Hayes held a successful opening at his store in Austin, where he carries Victrolas and Brunswicks. About 2,500 people visited the place, and Mr. Hayes gave away 55 dozen carnations and chrysanthemums. The firm secured many prospects on the opening day.

News Gleanings

C. C. Hicks, Minnesota representative for the Victor Co., left to-day for Philadelphia to spend the holidays. He will be away six or eight weeks.

Fred Strum, of the Beckwith Co., left this week for a trip through Wisconsin, having returned the last of November from a southern Minnesota tour.

George A. Mairs, formerly head of W. J. Dyer & Bros., Victor distributing business, is playing the dual role of manager of Dyer's piano and retail Victrola departments since Dyer's sold the wholesale business to the Beckwith Co. The former piano manager, Fred Miller, has left for Los Angeles, where he will make his home.

NEW ODEON AND OKEH ALBUMS

Special Album of Odeon Records for Holiday Season—Children's Okeh Album Also Ready

In order to stimulate the sale of Odeon orchestra records and to provide an unique Christmas gift, the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Odeon and Okeh records, has placed three of the most popular twelve-inch Odeon instrumental recordings in a special album wrapped in holly paper for the holiday trade. This set retailing for $4.00 makes a very unusual and most desirable Christmas remembrance that can be merchandised to excellent advantage by dealers during the holiday season.

As a special appeal to the little folks the company has issued an album of Children's Okeh records entitled "Fairy Tales of Long Ago." This set consists of three double-faced ten-inch records, presenting original arrangements of well-known fairy stories sung by Joseph Phillips. Elsie Jean, composer of children's songs and stories, has written the words and music for this interesting series of records.

OKEH ARTIST OPENS STORE

WILMINGTON, DEL., December 8.—John B. Wilson, Okeh artist, who has been associated with George Kelly's "Original Six Orchestra" for the past two years, has opened a music store at 912 Orange street under the trade name of the J. B. Wilson Music Co. The establishment has been attractively decorated and furnished.

IN PITTSBURGH

Retail Trade Active, With Machine Shortage General—New Dealers Established—Activities of Leading Companies—The Month's News

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 8.—With Christmas almost here there is unusual activity in talking machine circles here, with the result that all of the dealers are satisfied that there will be ample business for all who handle talking machines and records in the Steel City. Progressive retail dealers have co-operated with the advertising campaigns carried on in the daily papers by the Victor, Columbia, Brunswick, Edison, Starr, Sonora and Cheney companies. This has had the effect of increasing sales to a marked degree, and the outlook for holiday trade is exceptionally bright. This is especially true of the Victor line. It is generally known here that certain models of Victrolas are at a premium, and dealers who did not "stock up" with these popular models are unable to secure any positive assurance that they will be able to get new merchandise before the holiday sales start.

Many Orders for Christmas Delivery

That definite sales of talking machines and records for Christmas gifts have been made is shown by the number of machines and records that have been set aside to be shipped for delivery Christmas eve. These packages will bear the usual Christmas greetings and be decorated with yuletide trimmings.

"Kiddie Records" Popular

The Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, has placed on the market a very attractive set of "Kiddie Record" envelopes that are making a decided hit with dealers. There are four envelopes to a set. Each of the four is attractively lithographed in bright colors.

Joseph C. Roush, president of the company, stated that trade conditions in the Victor line are most flattering and that the outlook for the holiday trade is exceptionally bright. Mr. Roush spent Thanksgiving Day with his daughter, who is at school in Birmingham, Pa.

Starr Co.'s Business Growing

H. C. Niles, of the Starr Phonograph Co., Starr Phonograph and Gennett record distributor, said: "We have had a very satisfactory volume of business during the past few weeks in the Starr line and our dealers report the same. Our several models are making a strong appeal to discriminating purchasers."

Gratifying Columbia Business

According to S. H. Nichols, manager of the Columbia Phonograph Co.'s Pittsburgh offices, the Columbia machines and records are having a "most gratifying sale." He is of the opinion that the holiday sales will show a marked increase over the same period a year ago.

Dealers Take on Edison

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, announces the following new Edison dealers: W. W. Espy Drug Co., Ben Avon, Pa.; Benjamin Music Shop, Vandegrift, Pa.; Roth Music Shop, Leechburg, Pa.; W. E. Capstick, Nant-y-glo, Pa.; C. E. Barnett, Caldwell, O., and the Reichart Furniture Co., Wheeling, W. Va.

The Pittsburgh retail Edison dealers are as follows: Boggs & Buhl, Lechner & Schoenberger, Gray & Martin, Columbia Music Co., Schroeder Piano Co. and the Braun Music Co.

W. F. Barnard, formerly of Norfolk, Va., has been added to the traveling sales staff of the Buehn Co.

L. C. Millheim, Edison retail dealer of Butler, Pa., who was seriously injured some time ago in an automobile mishap, is able to attend to business again.

Masses Like Good Music

Under the caption "Grand Opera and the Masses" the Pittsburgh Post thusly editorialized:

"The old question of the extent to which the masses appreciate the best in music is brought up again by announcement that a season of grand opera here will be preceded by lectures on the subject. It is a good idea from the standpoint of adding to appreciation of the music, but it is to be emphasized again that the taste for good music is born in many, requiring only cultivation. Dealers in phonograph records will explode all theories that grand opera has no appeal to the masses. Their sales records tell a different story. Grand opera records are going into some of the humblest homes."

Excellent Outlook for the Sonora

The outlook for Sonora phonograph sales in the Pittsburgh and adjoining territory for the Christmas holidays is reported as excellent, according to H. Milton Miller, manager of the Sonora Distributing Co. He said: "Our November business was brisk and showed an increase over the same period a year ago. It now looks as though we will not be able to furnish our retail dealers with the merchandise that they require for the holiday trade." A new Sonora and Aeolian record dealer is Cantrell's, of Beckley, W. Va. The Davis Drug Co., this city, has placed the Sonora on sale in its stores in Beltzhoover and Pittsburgh.

The Dawson Bros. Piano Co. has added the Cheney line. Starr phonographs and Gennett records are already handled here.

Columbia Branch Visitors

J. R. Daly, Columbia's representative in West Virginia and Southern Ohio, on a recent trip to Pittsburgh Columbia headquarters, reports that conditions in the music trades are very

Happiness and Prosperity

For the progressive Victor retailer 1924 gives every indication of being a year of success and prosperity. The VICTOR industry is stronger than ever before, with the future exceptionally promising.

The support of our dealers the past year is keenly and sincerely appreciated and for the coming year our organization will be admirably equipped to serve VICTOR dealers efficiently and well.

favorable. Mr. Daly's numerous campaigns on the new machines and New Process record apparently have registered in a big way with the music dealers throughout his territory.

The local headquarters have been giving indications of great activities in the past few weeks. S. H. Nichols, manager, is being besieged daily by visiting dealers with congratulatory comments on Columbia's liberal record exchange arrangement.

The Howard Boys, Willie and Eugene, who conduct a Columbia Music Shop on the stage in the "Passing Show," renewed their numerous Columbia acquaintances on their recent Pittsburgh visit.

Crowds at Edison Tone-test

So many people were unable to gain admittance to the "tone-test" given by Miss Marie Morrissey, contralto, at Gettysburg, Pa., that her first appearance was cut short so that a second concert could be arranged. Miss Morrissey was assisted by Jacques Glockner, 'cellist, and Earl Beatty, pianist. They appeared at Gettysburg under the auspices of the local Edison dealer.

Music Dealer Logical Radio Salesman

Frank Dorian, of the General Radio Corp.'s Pittsburgh offices, reports an improvement in business. The company distributes the Strand phonograph and the Okeh records, as well as a full line of radio outfits of the General Radio Corp. Mr. Dorian stated that he was more and more convinced that the logical salesman for the radio line was the music merchant.

Brisk Player-Tone Demand

Sales of the several models, both console and upright, of the Player-Tone Talking Machine Co. are reported as brisk. I. Goldsmith, president of the company, stated that holiday sales are in keeping with the general business activity all over the country.

Shortage of Some Victor Models

Thomas T. Evans, manager of the C. C. Mellor Co.'s wholesale Victrola department, said: "Business is good, the only complaint is that we are unable to supply all of our Victor dealers with the amount of merchandise they should have." "Our business is better than we expected and our only regret is that we have not the several models of the Victor talking machines that are in great demand," was the statement of George H. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co.

Featuring Victor Weekly Releases

Geo. Swoger, enterprising Victor dealer at 921 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, is using timely advertising announcing the new weekly Victor releases. Mr. Swoger prepares circulars and handbills featuring each week's hits and this advertising is making itself apparent in the increased weekly sales figures.

The Star Music Co., formerly located at 751A Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., recently moved to larger and more attractive quarters at 433 Miller avenue, that city.

Hundreds Inspect New Quarters at Opening—Victor Co. and Jobbers Send Best Wishes

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., December 8.—The new store of M. H. Housel & Co., at 141 and 143 West Fourth street, was opened this week and hundreds of people passed through the fine new home of the company and received a rosebud as a souvenir. The building which the store occupies has been remodeled, a new limestone front being erected with an attractive show window for the display of talking machines.

The interior of the Housel store is finished in ivory enamel. The display and reception room is at the front of the store. Ten hearing rooms and two large demonstration rooms are in rotation on either side of the storeroom. The repair room is located in the rear and will be in charge of B. J. Leavy. The record racks are located in the front of the store.

Huge baskets of flowers were sent to Mr. Housel by the Victor Co., Elmira Arms Co., Louis Buehn Co., of Philadelphia; Lycoming National Bank, Penn Phonograph Co. and the Standard Talking Machine Co., of Pittsburgh. A telegram was received from the Victor Co. extending best wishes to Mr. Housel.

OKEH ARTIST ON WESTERN TOUR

Miss Sara Martin, popular singer of Blues and other selections that are favorites with the colored race, is now touring through the West, and reports from Tulsa and Oklahoma City indicate that this exclusive Okeh artist is meeting with a most cordial reception. Miss Martin is giving three shows daily, and, according to the box office figures, standing room only is available.

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., DEC. 9, 1923.

SINCE the last issue of The Talking Machine World there has been opportunity to look over business conditions in the general field in order to see what the fundamentals are and what is likely to happen during the rest of the Winter. No one who has the slightest ability in the way of analysis can doubt for a moment that these conditions are sound and very good. The critical months of October and November have come and gone, leaving us with statistics of the most encouraging kind. The bank clearings in the Chicago Federal Reserve District have shown an increase not to have been expected, while the general condition of the banks is remarkable in showing a vast increase in deposits of all kinds and unparalleled increases in loans and discounts. Just why there should be such a piling up of deposits may be hard to tell, just as it is equally hard to imagine why the contrast should be so great between wholesale and retail business during the last six weeks. For some reason retailers have been kicking at not doing quite so much business as they have felt themselves entitled to do during this period. But the sufficient answer is that the past six weeks have been Winter weeks only in name. Astronomically, the sun is on the descending node and within one week of the appearance of this issue of The Talking Machine World will be at his lowest point for the year. Yet we have had no Winter. "If Winter Comes," sang the poet to the great advantage of a recent fictionist, "Can Spring Be Far Behind?" No, it cannot; but when Winter has not come, Spring may be a long way off. And so it is. Our busy season is late in beginning; but it has finally begun. And when our season does begin, as this one is now beginning, it is invariably a busy one.

On a Sound Basis

order to see what the fundamentals are and what is likely to happen during the rest of the Winter. No one who has the slightest ability in the way of analysis can doubt for a moment that these conditions are sound and very good.

AN industry may usually be judged by the kind of its merchandise; and the same is true of the talking machine industry. Essential as the popular priced goods may be at any time, the fact remains that the true position our industry holds in the national life is to be measured chiefly by the reaction of the people to our better class goods. The more high-priced talking machines and high-grade records are sold, the more it may confidently be said that our industry meets a need essential to the public welfare. It does, of course, meet such a need, but the more we are able to embody that meeting of a need in the very highest class of merchandise, the more successfully we can sell such merchandise, the better for our industry, the better for the public and the better for music appreciation in America. And, furthermore, the sale of high priced and artistic talking machines need not be unprofitable. There is not the slightest reason for believing or supposing anything so absurd. It is necessary, however, to point out the indubitable truth that the retail merchant tends always to be on the lookout for merchandise which will sell itself. The more nearly the stock on his floors comes to the automatic-sale ideal, the better he is likely to be pleased; and this for the most natural of reasons. But the truth is that if and when a merchant says that high-priced artistic talking machines and high-grade records are not easily salable, he is simply saying that he has not himself mastered the art of salesmanship. He has not studied the position of the talking machine in the minds of the American people and he is simply sacrificing permanent prestige and profit to immediate results, grasping at what is often a mere shadow instead of angling for the substance. The present time is one of unexampled development of the talking machine in every architectural and mechanical sense. Never have such fine-looking and fine-sounding machines been produced. Never has the opportunity been so great to establish the talking machine business on the soundest and most powerful foundations. It surely is not asking too much to ask the mid-West merchant to think always of how good a machine he can sell, not of how easily the customer can pick out something to suit imagined and poorly understood needs. Salesmanship never lets the untrained demand rule the sale. The people are ready to buy high-class goods. Why stand in the way?

THE talking machine trade in the mid-West has been happily free from the evil-smelling failures which have so often disgraced the annals of other industries, but it must be admitted that the observations made by Judge Kickham Scanlan of the Circuit Court before the credit men of Chicago a few days ago carry a moral which no one of us has the right to neglect. He told the credit men quite openly that a gang of crooked attorneys operates in Chicago to take advantage of the difficulties of commercial houses, especially in the retail line, which find themselves financially embarrassed, and by trickery and fraud to contrive to have their victims thrown into bankruptcy, to the end that the gang may enrich itself through receiverships and juggling of assets. Of course the unfortunate creditors are the victims, only less individually, and in the aggregate more, than the unhappy debtors themselves. The Judge pretty pointedly hinted that business men are mainly to blame for this state of affairs. They do not attend to their civic duties, they evade jury service, they do not even vote on Election Day. And then they have the effrontery to complain when things go wrong in the administration of civil and criminal justice. The Judge is right. It is the good business man, the eminent pillar of the community, the loving father and husband, the good employer, the upright dealer with his fellow-men, who allows all this sort of crookedness to go on, because he will not take seriously the duties his citizenship imposes upon him. Who is to blame? You and I! What are we going to do about it? Perhaps Referee Eastman could a tale unfold which would equal, if not surpass, the communications which the Ghost of Hamlet's father hinted that he could make, and he would.

What the Judge Thinks

THE wood-using industries, among which the talking machine trade is of course numbered, should be active in the effort now being made to revive the interest of Congress in the question of lumber conservation. What ten years ago was an amiable theory is to-day a fact of the utmost immediate importance. The question of lumber supply is to-day generally felt to be a matter of importance to the wood-using manufacturer only because of the constantly increasing costs and the unfortunate status of the supply of certain wanted species. It is, however, not going to remain in this merely inconvenient and annoying condition. It is rapidly becoming not merely irritating, but actually dangerous. It is rapidly becoming not at all a matter of price, but altogether a matter of supply. Certain species of lumber have already arrived at the point of exhaustion. Certain others are rapidly approaching that point. Depletion is imminent, exhaustion is almost within sight. The day, in a word, approaches when the American manufacturer will have to import his lumber. It is not a pleasing anticipation. Yet it is certain to be translated into fact unless forthwith is organized a definite national and State policy of preserving the present resources from untimely destruction by unsystematic cutting in response to unsystematic demand, as well as of promoting the growing of new forests to take the place of the old ones. Here the interests of the manufacturer of lumber and of the wood-using industries join hands. Here, too, the retail trade sees its own interests at stake. Here the forestry experts must meet the lumber men, and the public must see that fair play is rendered on both sides. The engineering profession is taking the matter up and will undoubtedly put its weight behind some legislation based on a combination of the two bills now in committee of Congress aimed at initiating a comprehensive conservation policy. The talking machine men are vitally interested in the settlement of this question. Any help that any individual can give should be given and a letter from every reader of this paragraph to his U. S. Senator asking him to give attention to the Capper bill would be a tremendous help in turning the thoughts of our representatives in Washington toward the importance of this question and the necessity of immediate favorable action to check the depletion of our lumber resources.

TREMENDOUS SALES OF GIFT INSTRUMENTS AND RECORDS ARE FEATURE OF CHRISTMAS BUSINESS

Retailers and Jobbers Keep Manufacturers Busy as Holiday Buying Depletes Stocks and Orders for 1924 Goods Pour In—Surprising Demand for Portables—News and Activities of the Trade

CHICAGO, ILL., December 8.—With the long-looked-for Christmas season actually at hand, manufacturers, jobbers and dealers in talking machines are extremely busy. The retailers, in particular, report a tremendous demand for gift instruments and high-class records, as well as small goods, such as wind and string instruments and drums.

A month ago many manufacturers reported that they were working to capacity and for a time it seemed that this work was only being turned out for the holiday trade. However, this demand has been increasing rather than decreasing and it appears that dealers, expecting to clear out their present stocks and deplete their warerooms, are ordering heavy shipments to be on hand for the first of the new year.

From present indications we can look forward to a change in many lines during the coming year. Heretofore the heavy demand has been for Queen Anne models, but at present inquiries are for Tudor and William and Mary designs.

Many of the manufacturers have the following to say in effect regarding the coming change: Several years ago the manufacturers of high-grade furniture were centering their activities about the Queen Anne types of furniture, which action was reflected in the talking machine field, so that the demand for Queen Anne models naturally followed. Some time ago, however, the high-grade furniture manufacturers began to boost Tudor and William and Mary designs. This action stirred up other manufacturers, who fell in line early. The introduction of talking machines designed according to these periods soon followed. Several large talking machine manufacturers, seeing the trend of demand for these newly introduced styles, took the cue and soon began to manufacture phonographs designed accordingly.

At present it looks as though several of the well-known manufacturers of high-grade tone arms are also contemplating more or less design changes in their product so as to keep up with the demand for new talking machine designs. However, it is not expected at this time that changes of tone arm design will be radical, but it is believed that the several specially prepared tone arm models will soon make their appearance.

Retail dealers are also reporting that there has been quite an increase in the sales of portable types of talking machines. It was known for quite a while that manufacturers were turning out large numbers of these instruments, but at the same time it was said that the dealers were not moving them as quickly as desired.

To-day, however, it seems that the dealers figure that this will be a real "portable" Christmas and have planned accordingly. Dealers throughout Chicago are reporting very satisfactory sales of portables and some of them have even begun reordering.

Towards the latter part of the month considerable attention was devoted by retail dealers here to radio and much interest was aroused throughout the trade in the activities of several well-known radio manufacturers in coupling their receiving sets with talking machines of well-known makes. Of course, no talking machine company actually came out and announced that the coupling of radio sets to its instruments would be a prominent feature with them. It is naturally to be assumed that these radio manufacturers purchased the talking machines of their own accord and incorporated their sets therein for the purpose of determining how the general public looks upon propositions such as this.

Needless to say, the interest aroused was greater than anticipated from a public viewpoint and it would not be surprising if before very long more than one talking machine company should make the announcement that such combinations as radio and talking machines were to become permanent features with them.

Factories Working for 1924

There has been a question in the minds of many in Chicago as to whether or not the present demand for talking machines will continue. Numerous persons were of the opinion that last-minute orders were being sent in by dealers

REDUCING COSTS 90%

People have come to know the value of the fibre needle. It sweetens the voice of the talking machine and to the record it adds longevity. Economy is the selling force that is increasing this demand. Show your next fibre needle customer a further saving of 90% on needle costs and sell him a L. & H. Needle Cutter. By its use, the needle will play ten records instead of one.

CUTS CLEAN

The L. & H. Needle Cutter does not slice—it makes a vertical down stroke and cuts clean. No minute ragged edge left on the needle. Tension spring leverage insures smooth action. Constructed of steel heavily nickeled.

There is a generous profit in this instrument and it has established a reputation for being easily salable.

and manufacturers were therefore trying to satisfy this demand by pushing their plants to capacity. However, when one stops to consider that a talking machine cannot be turned out overnight, but that it takes from weeks to months to complete it in any high-grade factory, he can readily understand that all these instruments are not being turned out for the Christmas season. A very striking bit of evidence proving that the manufacturers are looking steadily for 1924 delivery may be seen when one takes note of the activities of manufacturers who produce parts for the talking machines such as, for example, motors and tone arms.

One concern that is especially busy in turning out its product is the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., which, according to an announcement by H. L. Mills, vice-president and general manager, averaged a daily production of 1,160 motors during the first week of December.

Geer Repeater in Christmas Package

Last year the Walbert Mfg. Co. offered the holiday trade its well-known Geer repeater packed in a specially prepared Christmas box. At that time the demand was especially good for this special package and dealers, remembering the experience of last year, lost no time in ordering heavily so as to be ready for the Christmas trade this year.

Walter Huth, head of the Walbert Mfg. Co., also reports satisfactory sales of the Univernier knob, which is being manufactured by this company for the radio trade. Mr. Huth reports that in comparing the names on the sales list for the Geer repeater, which goes to talking machine dealers, and the Univernier knob, which goes to dealers handling radio, he is able to say that the number of talking machine dealers now taking on radio is constantly increasing, as many of the dealers who are taking on the Univernier at present are old customers.

FACTS ABOUT "MASTERCRAFT"

There's no monopoly on virtue in manufacture—product or distribution.

You can't "corner" creative imagination—and the faculty to sense public taste—in advance.

Speaking of phonographs—the final rigid test—is wide and repeated distribution.

"MASTERCRAFT" has stood that test.

We have no loud, smooth and oily pronouncements to make—voiced either in falsetto or bass.

A few simple truths are sufficient.

As manufacturers of phonographs only—we are the largest in the country.

We originate—create and develop our own instruments—known as the "MASTERCRAFT" line. They are distributed from Coast to Coast—from Canada to the Gulf—and touch some of the foreign ports of the world.

Our factories have up-to-the-minute equipment and facilities—handling large volumes promptly and efficiently.

Our artisans—carefully selected—are men of long experience and acknowledged skill in their respective specialties.

"MASTERCRAFT" instruments are priced rock bottom—and rock bottom means just that. Service based on Golden Rule—and a sales plan stiffly tried—and never found wanting.

Here's a sterling opportunity to make real money for the keen, alert and wide-awake business man.

But it takes action to get anywhere—so it's your move—

For just two cents.

New Publishing Concern

A new concern in the publishing business in Chicago's field is the Garrick Music Sales Co., which is introducing several popular numbers of its own. These numbers include "Lost My Baby Blues," "Tell Me You'll Forgive Me" and "There Is a Sad Little Girl for Every Happy Little Boy," which, by the way, have been featured by many of Chicago's top-notch orchestras, such as Benson's Orchestra, of Chicago, under the direction of Don Bestor. The new concern at present is holding forth at 4040 Dickens avenue, but will soon take up headquarters in the Loop district.

Judge Scanlan's Interesting Information

In a recent talk before the Chicago Association of Credit Men, Judge Kickham Scanlan offered some very interesting information pertaining to bankruptcy. Judge Scanlan told his listeners to beware of dishonest lawyers, many of whom were connected with the so-called "bankruptcy ring." In his talk he pointed out that there had developed in Chicago a ring of dishonest lawyers who operated under the guise of a collection agency, which, as a matter of fact, was merely a decoy. The lawyers, through this decoy, would learn that a certain firm was in need of money and by hook or crook they would get a list of that firm's creditors and then offer to act for the creditors as collectors. Failing in this they would attempt to buy up the creditors' claims and if successful would then file a suit for bankruptcy. He also pointed out that sometimes these crooked lawyers would go to a firm that was hard pressed for money and offer their assistance and then ask for a statement showing the list of debtors which they would use in forcing a receivership, which would be followed by the wrecking of the firm and thereby cheating the creditors.

A New Hall Fibre Needle

For several months prior to his death the late Frederick D. Hall, founder of the Hall Mfg. Co., worked on and perfected a new style fibre needle which he felt would be far superior to his original product. Happily, Mr. Hall was rewarded for his efforts shortly before his death. The improvements which he finally worked out consisted of a hollow grinding process which took out the pulp sides of the needle and left the hard fibre edges which would last longer and play more records without repointing. Since the death of Mr. Hall the new management of the company has been producing samples of these new needles and sending them to friends in the trade for testing purposes and, after many months of this work, reports coming back to the Hall management have convinced them that concave sides have accomplished the seemingly impossible task of preserving needle and record to even a greater extent than heretofore. So convincing have these tests proved that the management of the Hall Mfg. Co. has decided to slowly discontinue manufacture of the old design fibre needle and formally replace it with the new Hall hollow ground fibre needle.

Wendell Hall on Victor Records

Wendell Hall, known to practically every radio fan in the country as the "red-headed music maker," has returned to his post as head broadcaster at KYW station, Chicago, after a lapse of several months, during which time he made a tour of the country and played at many broadcasting stations. While in the East Mr. Hall signed up as an exclusive artist with the Victor Co. and recorded several of his most famous numbers, including "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'," "Underneath the Mellow Moon," "My Carolina Rose" and several other popular songs which

UNITED

This is the new Series Five and Six United Phonograph Motor. There is a fully enclosed, self-lubricated, ball-bearing, silent-running United Motor for any type of phonograph built, including portables.

Once in Four—or Five Years

How often should an ordinary phonograph motor be oiled? How often is it oiled? You said it! The user of a phonograph simply can't be expected to remember to oil the motor. For this reason United Motors are built to require no lubrication—at least for four or five years. That comes as close to perpetual oiling as is mechanically possible. And it's an exclusive United feature—achieved by the air-tight cast-iron housing which fully encloses a United mechanism and makes possible the United automatic continuous wick-oiling system which evenly and adequately lubricates all moving parts. Every four or five years simply lift the turntable and fill the brass oil cup!

UNITED

Springs Replaced in 2 Minutes!

Instead of at least an hour wasted taking apart the motor, installing a new spring and reassembling, with a United Motor you merely take out old spring assembly and insert a new one—a two-minute job that doesn't even soil the fingers! And we repair old assemblies free—charging only for the new springs.

Completely Enclosed!

The only enclosed motors of international reputation are the United. Cast-iron box houses governor, gears, worm and lower end of shaft. Excludes dust, dirt, shavings, slivers, sawdust, needles, etc., forever.

Protects vital parts from damage during assembling, shipment, demonstration and use. Insures a permanent alignment. Removes necessity of "tuning" motor when installing it.

Other Superiorities!

Spring barrels are held in positive alignment by the exclusive United suspension—cannot work loose. Smooth, easy functioning of control lever always assured. All plain bearings are perfectly machined and trued in United Motors. Ball-bearings take care of end-thrust. Finally, each motor is mounted, tested and regulated before shipping—insuring silence.

Piano Club Activities

There is every evidence that the Piano Club of Chicago is due for one of its most interesting years. Following the annual election of officers each year comes the announcement of the tentative plans of the newly elected officials, telling what they contemplate doing in order to stimulate interest among the members. The recent election of John McKenna, manager of the Chicago office of the Columbia Phonograph Co., who was placed in the chair of the president, was followed by plans which are believed to be destined to make the club bigger and better than ever before.

For example, shortly after the election there followed the club's first dance and musicale, which turned out to be a very successful affair. This was succeeded by a big event which happened at the Coliseum during the Chicago Radio Show, when the management of that enterprise turned over 700 admission tickets to one of the club's members, a representative of The Talking Machine World, to be given to all members of the club. The day of this event was on Sunday, November 25, and was known as Piano Club Day at the Radio Show, a most successful affair, due to the fact that large numbers of the club membership turned out.

So far this year, which, by the way, began in October, the entertainment at the noonday meetings has become the talk of the trade, as the entertainment committee, under the chairmanship of Ben Wood, of Westphono, Inc., has been seeing to it that the best speakers and artists obtainable are on deck.

One of the recent speakers before the club was J. Hannibal Clancy, an attorney of Detroit, who had the following to say regarding the practice of law in the United States: "A man with a good lawyer and a poor case wins, while the man with a good case and poor lawyer loses and this is the only country in the world where that can take place. Fully 90 per cent of American pleadings are the wreckage, waste and driftwood of the dark ages. They are a mass of exotic formulas written by the cloistered monks of the ninth century, by men who were debating which was the big end of an egg and how many angels can stand on the end of a needle."

No More Licenses

Announcement was recently made by Corporation Counsel Busch, of the City of Chicago, that he has prepared an ordinance repealing other ordinances which had no justification in law to license certain businesses. In all there are said to be twenty-three classes of businesses in this city which will profit by the new repeal and will save many companies several hundred thousands of dollars yearly by virtue of not having to renew their licenses with the city of Chicago.

Among the classes of manufactures to benefit are those of talking machines, pianos and other musical instruments, publishers' representatives, retail merchandise stores, dancing schools, advertising agencies, etc.

However, the retail store will continue to do business at the old location on the South Side.

This concern, which has become known as "The House That Blues Built," has had a very successful run of business during the past year and sales have been enlarged to such an extent that the move was made necessary. The "Blues" numbers published by Melrose have attracted the attention of orchestras throughout the country and this is especially true of its numbers, "Sobbin' Blues" and "Tin Roof Blues," which have been having such success on practically all talking machine records and player-piano rolls.

B. H. Milligan, proprietor of Milligan's Music Shop, Inc., has just purchased the entire business of the Symphony Music Co. at 1020 Wilson avenue. This store has long been a very popular Columbia retail representative and it is the intention of Mr. Milligan to continue featuring this well-known line of talking machines and records. The purchasing of this store now gives Mr. Milligan a string of three retail establishments, the others being at 4643 Sheridan road and 3232 West Madison street.

SHOWING POSITION FOR PLAYING VICTOR AND OTHER LATERAL CUT RECORDS

SHOWS POSITION FOR PLAYING EDISON AND OTHER VERTICAL CUT RECORDS

THE Oro-Tone No. 4 Automatic Equipment has proved itself the sensation of the year. First, in quality of tone—worthy of being associated with the superb Edison; Second, in perfection of operation—a simple turn of the hand and the No. 4 Automatic is ready to play either lateral or vertical cut records perfectly. Dealers who know the worth of the Oro-Tone No. 4 Automatic freely say it's a valuable asset in closing sales for Edison phonographs.

Operates with a raising and lowering lever the same as the regular Edison reproducer—all adjustments automatic.

The Oro-Tone No. 4 Automatic for the first time gives the correct weight or pressure on the record you are playing, the correct needle center and the correct angle or position of the reproducer. There are no weights to shift, no adjustments to make. A simple turn of the hand and the reproducer will play either lateral or vertical cut records perfectly. It will not damage the records due to the perfect automatic adjustment feature and the correct needle center and sensitive operation when playing.

be used. Although the old bar was satisfactory in every way, that is to say, from a playing standpoint, it offered one objection in that when repair service was necessary special tools had to be used and it was only a high-class mechanic who could make these repairs. With the introduction of the new bar, however, all special tools can now be discarded by repair departments, as it is said that the new bar offers repair possibilities which can be accomplished in a very short while by practically anyone.

Opens New Columbia Shop

Miss Ophelia Clark is the name of the proprietor of a new talking machine shop located at 4103 South State street, which is practically in the heart of the colored district of Chicago. The new shop is exclusively Columbia and it is understood that since the opening, which took place about a week or so ago, a large volume of Columbia goods has been disposed of at retail, especially popular song and dance music records.

New G.-D. Sales Manual

Music merchants everywhere have long known and admired the educational sales helps which the Gulbransen-Dickinson Co. constantly offers for their benefit. Another thing that is known concerning the sales plans, bulletins and dealer helps offered by this concern is that they come not of an overnight thought or dream, but as a result of months and months of analytical research. The latest copyrighted sales manual devotes quite a section to the accompaniment features of the Gulbransen player. In this section will be found an illustration showing how accompaniments can be handled. For example, a talking machine is used in the demonstration. A straight cut player roll of "Traumeri" is placed on the Gulbransen player and then a "Traumeri" record is placed on the talking machine. Then the person at the piano begins to accompany the talking machine by following out the suggestions in the sales manual. The reason of it all is to show the value of the Gulbransen player as an accompanying or transposing instrument and the ease with which this is accomplished. Many dealers handling both talking machines and Gulbransen players have been working on this plan for many months at the suggestion of the Gulbransen Co. and have reported to the company that the plan when carried out along lines suggested in the sales manual proves of immense value in stimulating sales of Gulbransen players, as well as high-grade talking machines.

Rodeheaver a Busy Man in Japan

Should a Japanese or Chinese, fresh from his native land, approach you, make a circular motion with his hand and hum a tune or song more or less familiar to you, what would you do? Call him crazy, or classify him with the American freedom as a "nut" in all likelihood. But suppose such a person approached a taxi driver in Camden, N. J., Richmond, Ind., Chicago or New York what would be the result? Ten to one it would mean a howl of derision, a curt order to move on and "quit botherin' me."

Such is not the case in Kawasaka, Japan, according to Homer Rodeheaver, noted chorister and leading artist for the Rainbow Record Co., 218 South Wabash avenue, this city, who is now touring the Orient making a study of the needs of the missionaries for musical aid and the possibilities of using records to supply this need.

Rodeheaver, in a letter to friends here, tells of stopping in Kawasaka to visit the Nipponophone Co., the great Japanese recording laboratory. Unable to make the rickshaw men understand their destination, Rodeheaver said that he made the circular motion as of a record being played and at the same time started to hum "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," a hymn he recently recorded in the Japanese language.

The tune, which is daily becoming better known in all parts of the Flowery Kingdom, coupled with the circular motion, was sufficient, Rodeheaver writes. Smiles lighted the men's faces and with nods and gestures they urged the passengers into their vehicles and soon were at the plant.

The purpose of the visit was to locate L. E. Gillingham, who had a narrow escape from disaster in the earthquake. The plant had been greatly damaged but was under process of reconstruction, Rodeheaver said. The schedule calls for production of records to be resumed by the middle of December. The offices and recording laboratory have been moved to Kobe, according to Mr. Rodeheaver.

chine a week, together with novelty furniture of various descriptions. The plant has a floor space of 112,000 square feet, and when all the equipment is installed will represent one of the most up-to-date and complete factories in the Chicago trade.

One of the most important factors in the success of the Broadcaster Corp. is M. Rovech, president of the company, who is well known in Chicago business circles. Although a comparative newcomer in the phonograph industry, Mr. Rovech has been engaged in the mercantile world for many years. He was a successful silk jobber until he entered the talking machine trade some three years ago, and although conditions were far below normal at that time he succeeded in developing a profitable business. Under his supervision and direction the Broadcaster Corp.'s activities have increased steadily, with the result that the company is closing the most successful year in its history, with every indication that 1924 will surpass the very satisfactory figures for this year.

Milligan's Music Shop Expands

B. H. Milligan, of Milligan's Music Shop, Inc., recently purchased the Symphony Music Co. at 1020 Wilson avenue, this city. The Symphony Music Co. has handled the Columbia line for a number of years, and Mr. Milligan immediately put in a complete stock of Columbia New Process records and will actively sell the new Columbia in this neighborhood.

A. B. Cornell on Reproducing Equipment

A. B. Cornell, treasurer and sales manager of the Jewel Phonoparts Co., of this city, is keenly enthusiastic regarding business conditions at the present time and the outlook for 1924. In a recent chat with The World Mr. Cornell said: "Our business has been heavier the past few months than during any corresponding season of previous years and for the next five months we are expecting the largest sales totals we have ever attained. This is gratifying in view of the fact that we are endeavoring to follow the old-fashioned way of concentrating our activities solely upon quality in manufacturing our products. While necessarily it costs more to make goods of a high-grade character, we find that there is always a certain proportion of the trade who recognize and appreciate this method of doing business.

"We are surprised that so many manufacturers of phonographs pay close attention to attractive and well-finished cabinets, securing the most reliable motors obtainable, and hardware of quality, but when it reaches the point of selecting the most vital item of the instrument, namely, the reproducing unit, they decide upon the use of inferior equipment, in order to save a little money. Ofttimes the difference of 50 cents or one dollar in the tone arm or reproducer outfit influences them to economize in this direction, believing that their dealers will not recognize the difference and therefore will offer no objection. They are greatly mistaken, however, for it means a great deal more to the manufacturers to build up a clientele of pleased and satisfied customers than to save a few cents here and there.

"A trade analysis shows that 50 per cent of the sales of phonographs are made through the recommendations of satisfied customers using them in their homes. Strange as it may seem, manufacturers are the worst offenders in this respect, as the dealers themselves, being on the firing line and closer to the public's requirements, are more particular about their reproducing equipment. Furthermore, the average manufacturer does not seem to realize that the best tone arm and reproducer in the world, together with the best tone chamber, will not give maximum quality and quantity of reproduction, unless they are thoroughly balanced with each other and with the cabinet in which they are placed.

"We often hear remarks to the effect that such and such a phonograph has a 'wonderful' tone, but to my way of thinking this is absolutely wrong, for no phonograph should have a tone of its own. There is only one basis on which a comparison can be made, namely, the best phonograph is the one that reproduces the greatest amount of music on the record and is the nearest approach to the manner in which it was recorded by the artist. As a matter of fact, practically all of the music is in the record, but many phonographs bring out only a small proportion of what is actually there. Many of them scarcely ever reproduce overtones, which, of course, is an important factor in giving music the charm which it possesses.

"The day of the ordinary phonograph is past, and those independent manufacturers who hope to get their share of the business in spite of the consistent advertising used by the standard manufacturers can only do so by furnishing their dealers and the public with the highest grade quality that is obtainable."

An Unusual Phonograph Department

Probably the most notable feature of the fine new Brunswick representation recently opened at 1022 Wilson avenue by the Grosvenor Music House, Inc., is the spacious and luxurious lounge on the mezzanine floor. It is one of the very few real waiting rooms in music establishments in Chicago and is an idea well worth carrying out by any music establishment which has the means and space at its disposal. It promises to be at once a most valuable service to the patrons of the Grosvenor store and an excellent advertisement of the establishment. As Wm. F. Grosvenor said in a chat with The World, "We want to make our store a rendezvous for the people who love convenience and music who frequent the Wilson avenue shopping district. Here sweethearts can meet sweethearts and wives can meet husbands before dinner or theatre engagements. Of course, there is nothing commercial in all this, but if, while seated on this balcony lounge from which a complete view of the store may be had, they happen to see something which interests them or hear a talking machine record that excites their admiration and interest, we naturally will not place any obstacle in their way should they wish to follow up the clue."

With handsome rugs, artistic reed furniture and attractive writing desks, the lounge is, indeed, a tempting place for those who wish to rest or await a companion. No expense or work has been spared to make this establishment one of the most convenient in the city, and the homelike environment should do much to make this Brunswick house a success.

The fundamental principle underlying Mr. Grosvenor's sales attack is to enable the prospective customer to picture himself in the enjoyment of the instrument in which he is being interested by the salesman. In the attractive but comparatively simply equipped store formerly occupied, Mr. Grosvenor was compelled to draw the desired picture on the mind of the customer by verbal means aided, of course, by demonstration. In the new quarters the instruments have a setting in simulation of the drawing or music room.

New Witmark Manager in Chicago

Announcement has just come from the Chicago office of M. Witmark & Sons that John Conrad has succeeded Tom J. Quigley, who recently resigned as manager of this office to assume the management of the new Chicago offices of Hearst Music Publishers, Ltd., Canada. Mr. Conrad is well known throughout music publishing circles here and formerly headed the Conrad Music Co. He is the composer of many popular songs and has been connected with the Chicago office of Witmark & Sons for many months prior to his appointment as manager.

New Brunswick and Gulbransen Dealer

Another excellent retail talking machine account that has taken on the Brunswick line is the Jefferson Music Shop, Inc., at 4766 Milwaukee avenue, which was incorporated and started doing business on September 1, 1922.

Several months after the opening of this shop broader steps were taken by the management and the well-known line of Gulbransen player-pianos was handled. On December 1 announcement was made by the management of the Jefferson Music Shop, Inc., that the firm had added to its already excellent representation a full line of Brunswick talking machines and records and that plans were under way to increase the size of the shop by adding additional parlors. At present the store consists of eight of the most modern hearing rooms and booths, as well as up-to-date record counters and racks.

The management and incorporators of the shop are Hans Schoessling and his nephew, Lionel C. Lenz. Mr. Schoessling is one of the best-known men in this territory, having started over twenty years ago as city salesman for the Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Mfg. Co. He acted in this capacity for fifteen years and for five years thereafter was wholesale manager of Wurlitzer's Victor department, which position he held until he decided to go into business for himself in September of last year.

The Jefferson Music Shop, Inc., is located in an ideal business section of Chicago, being in that section which is known as Chicago's great Northwest Side business district, which is proving to be one of the busiest spots to be found throughout the outlying districts of the city of Chicago.

operation in supporting the Hearst organization in the United States.

The manager of the new office is none other than Thos. J. Quigley, one of the best-known figures in music publishing circles of the West, who a month ago severed his connection as manager of the M. Witmark & Sons' Chicago office. Not only is Mr. Quigley manager of this new office, but he is also manager of the Hearst, Ltd. throughout the United States.

In his new position Mr. Quigley will be assisted by C. F. Parrish, sales manager; Billy Thompson, professional manager, and a professional staff consisting of Berwin Schmidt, Billy Mitchell, Bernice Herwitz and Ellen Converse.

Mr. Quigley was connected with the Witmark office here for over twelve years before severing his connections in order to take up his new duties with the Hearst Co.

Bent Co. Now Represents Brunswick

In these columns last month there appeared a story to the effect that George P. Bent, who founded the old George P. Bent Piano Co., had, after several years' retirement, returned to the trade as a co-partner with his son, Charles, in conducting the Bent Music Shop at 214 South Wabash avenue.

In coming back into the trade Mr. Bent saw fit to purchase the interests of his son's former co-partners, R. R. Corcoran and H. J. MacFarland. This purchasing of interests brought about the complete reorganization of the Bent Music Shop and made Mr. Bent and his son, Charles, sole owners of this business. At the time of Mr. Bent's purchase the company was capitalized for $50,000, but since then this capitalization has been raised to $100,000.

With the reorganization of the company, which was formerly exclusively Victor, the Bent people have made arrangements with the Brunswick Co. for the taking on of a retail Brunswick representation in their store.

The consummation of this deal between the Bent Music Shop and the Brunswick Co. now gives the latter institution one of the finest retail representations in the Loop section, a store which is one of the most widely known in the city.

From a historical standpoint George P. Bent is perhaps one of the leading figures in music circles in the West. In the year 1881 he founded the George P. Bent Piano Co. and became the manufacturer of the famous Crown piano, which, due to its many mechanical features and extraordinary advertising, soon became one of the most popular pianos on the market.

Perhaps the most unusual piece of advertising was a post card affair which Mr. Bent sent out years ago and which because of the phoneticity of its wording became one of the most popular phrases in the music industry. It was nothing more than a little post card carrying the phrase "A Cent Sent Bent Is a Cent Well Spent." The other text matter on the post card was a request to place a 1-cent stamp on it, mailing it back to the company, and the sales force would then do the rest.

All through his career in the music business Mr. Bent kept pounding the trade with unusual advertising literature such as quoted above. A few years ago he decided to retire from business and he, therefore, sold out his interests and took up residence in Los Angeles, Cal. His sons, Charles and Harry, however, remained in Chicago and interested themselves in various retail enterprises here, particularly as dealers in Victrolas and Victor records.

The management of the Bent Music Shop will be supervised mainly by his son, Charles M. Bent, and although Mr. Bent intends to continue his residence in California he will from time to time visit Chicago and assist in the management.

With the taking on of the Brunswick line it is believed that Mr. Bent will employ many of his sales suggestions and advertising methods in order to make the Victor-Brunswick shop continue to rank among the best retail organizations in this city.

Gulbransen Force Active Bowlers

At a recent weekly play of the Gulbransen Registry Piano Bowling League held at the Madison-Kedzie Arcade, the key-fitters, action-finishers and the foremen won three games, the finishers won two and lost one, the stringers won one and lost two and the office, tuners and regulators lost three. The standing of the teams to date is as follows: key-fitters, won twenty-four and lost nine; finishers, won twenty-one and lost twelve; action-finishers, won twenty-one and lost twelve; stringers, won fifteen and lost eighteen; foremen, won fourteen and lost nineteen; office, won thirteen and lost twenty; tuners, won twelve and lost twenty-one; regulators, won twelve and lost twenty-one.

Sales Stimulation

Recently several big department stores in this section have been offering bargains in commercial low-priced talking machines. It also happens that many of these concerns handle nationally known makes of instruments in conjunction with these commercial ones and naturally many in the trade here began to wonder just what effect the sales of these would have on the national instrument sales, particularly in the houses doing the advertising.

In commenting upon this situation, S. L. Zax, sales manager of the Broadcaster Corp., has the following to say:

"The advertising appeal in these cases when analyzed simply means that the advertisers are merchandisers who cannot afford to wait for a family event or a holiday in order to bring buyers into their stores. Neither can these men who handle talking machines in this manner confine their activities to seasons. They are preaching that 'To-day—and not at any other time but to-day—you can provide yourself with a talking machine which you need and want, and at a very special price, and we, as reputable merchants, guarantee the instrument.'

"In other words, they are appealing to the bargain instincts of the public mind. Naturally there is a reaction on the part of the public as can be seen by anyone observing the crowds of people that attend these sales. The question then comes up as to what good it does the merchandiser to handle nationally known brands of instruments if he merely advertises and gets the buying public to purchase a commercial instrument?

"The answer is that he creates a desire in the mind of the public to own a talking machine and, as has been said before, he makes his sales then and there and does not await the coming of any event or season.

"What really happens at these sales? From close observation I have noticed that not only is a large number of these instruments disposed of, but great numbers of people whose original intent was to purchase the cheaper machine came, looked and heard and finally ended their visit by being induced by the sales person to purchase the nationally known make, and at a standard price and without cutting.

"The reputation of these retailers and their extensive advertising methods put to rest any doubts in the minds of the buyers concerning the reliability of the instrument advertised at ludicrously low prices. The values are so obvious that the sales always prove successful. As a result of this many merchants are finally convinced that the so-called commercial instrument serves a distinct purpose, namely, that of a real sales stimulator."

Increase National Advertising Campaign

For the first of the year the United States Music Co. announced an elaborate advertising campaign of general character using magazines of national circulation. Now this company makes another announcement that in addition to Saturday Evening Post and Red Book, it will add several other national mediums to its advertising list during 1924.

In its national campaign of publicity the United States Music Co. had in mind the double idea of making both player-pianos and music rolls more popular through bringing their possibilities strongly before the music buying public and the advertising was therefore so designed as to bring business direct to the dealer.

For example, the advertisements of the company have so far not been devoted exclusively to music rolls, but each piece of copy called particular attention to the player-piano and what it can accomplish under various conditions, both as an entertainer and instructor.

Dealers who have made a study of the copy prepared for the company's campaign have expressed enthusiasm regarding its possibilities and are at present convinced that the effect of this advertising has brought about increased sales of player rolls and pianos. In all probability it is expected that the U. S. DeForest Dealers Meet

One of the big events during Radio Show week in Chicago was the first get-together meeting of DeForest dealers. This meeting was held at the Union League Club in Chicago on the evening of November 22, when a dinner was given under the auspices of the Electric Appliance Co., local distributor of DeForest. All told there were over 100 dealers present and the speakers of the evening included Dr. Lee gave a talk to the visitors of the show on the history of radio, particularly the historical data pertaining to his early career and experiments which led to the development of the audion tube which made possible long-distance wireless reception.

Start Drive on Brunswick "Royal"

The Brunswick Co., in co-operation with its many retail dealers, has just launched what is believed to be the biggest drive on a special type talking machine that has ever been launched in this country. It is especially centered on the Brunswick "Royal" model, which retails at $115, and in preparing for this drive the advertising department of Brunswick has issued some interesting pieces of literature pertaining to the Royal model. One piece in particular is devoted to an illustration which shows a woodworker at his bench finishing a Royal model, and, owing to its background, a strip of solid vermilion, is very striking in that it immediately arrests the eye and causes the observer to read the few well-chosen words of text matter immediately underneath.

Other literature is a four-page folder especially prepared for the dealer which contains a number of interesting sales help suggestions. On the inside page of this folder is shown the Royal model in color with numbered arrow indicators directing the eye to its numerous exclusive features.

Another bit of Royal publicity consists of four special newspaper advertisements prepared by the Brunswick advertising department. In size they vary from 200 to 800 lines. Proofs of these are sent the retailer and the electrotypes or mats may be had on application. The text matter is written strictly along retail lines and when appearing in local papers should prove excellent publicity for the retailer running the advertisement.

stop and repeating device, all mounted as one unit and marketed by the Krasco Mfg. Co., has been withdrawn from open market and will in the future be confined exclusively as equipment for the Encore talking machine.

The above announcement was recently made by the Krasco Co., which further stated that the Encore talking machine is a newcomer, marketed by the Encore Talking Machine Co., and has contracted to take the entire output of the Krasco unit.

The Encore Talking Machine Co., it is understood, will soon be under production and will market a large line of both upright and console talking machines, as well as art models.

Other changes in the Krasco organization have been the addition of Paul Brooks and Thos. H. Devereaux to the sales force. Both of these gentlemen will call on the trade throughout the Central West and Chicago territories.

Merwin Ashley, vice-president of Krasco, says that for several months there has been increased demand for Krasco motors and for a time he was led to believe that this demand was by manufacturers who were only preparing for holiday business, but, as a matter of fact, the demand has been keeping up and he is now led to believe that the talking machine manufacturers have orders booked up for several months to come, in addition to holiday business.

Tonofone Closes Splendid Business

The Tonofone Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Tonofone needle, has been closing a splendid business and Miss F. E. Powell, secretary and treasurer of the company, is delighted with the fact that this popular semi-permanent needle is now being handled by over 8,000 dealers. In addition the Tonofone needle is being distributed by some of the most prominent jobbing concerns in the leading trade centers and Miss Powell is making plans whereby the Tonofone product will be the feature of an aggressive sales campaign during 1924.

Hartman Co. Leases Big Building

The Hartman Furniture & Carpet Co., one of Chicago's largest retail furniture houses, has just signed a lease for the taking over of an entire twelve-story building, the erection of which will begin on May 1, 1924. This concern represents Sonora phonographs exclusively in its big retail establishment at 226 South Wabash avenue, as well as in its several branches throughout the city. The new building will be erected on the site of the present Palmer House, one of Chicago's most famous landmarks, and will be ready for occupancy about April, 1925. According to Martin L. Straus, vice-president of the company, the new building will be the most elaborate retail furniture concern in the world. More than one hundred rooms will be devoted to the display of home furnishings and quite a few of these will be used to display Sonora talking machines.

A recent addition to the Columbia family is the Melody Music Shop, 4103 South State street. Miss Ophelia Clark is the proprietor and the store will specialize in negro records.

Chicago Radio Show an Outstanding Success

Wealth of Exhibits by Pioneers and Newcomers Into the Industry Shows Phenomenal Development of Radio—Large Attendance of Young and Old, Both Sexes—Leaders Display Varied Lines

CHICAGO, ILL., December 6.—The Chicago Radio Show, which held forth at the Coliseum from November 20 to 25 inclusive, gave every evidence of proving conclusively that radio has passed far beyond the fad stage and has at last begun to be looked upon and accepted as an essential in so far as home entertainment is concerned. This conclusion is inevitable after a careful analysis of the tremendous crowds which gathered at the Coliseum during the show, and comparing these with the small number of onlookers who attended last year's event.

In making a comparison between the attendance of this year and of last year we find that in 1922 the bulk of onlookers consisted of school-boys, whereas this year's attendance consisted of 80 per cent adults, and it is estimated that 50 per cent of these were women.

It is said that the attendance, paid and gratis, ran well over the 100,000 mark, and that the free attendance consisted of retail dealers. Paid admissions approximated 18,000 nightly.

Not only were there complete sets, parts and accessories of everything in radio shown at the exhibitions, but further interest was injected into the event by the presence of such famous radio men as Dr. Lee DeForest, of the DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co., New York, inventor of the audion tube; Bowden Washington, of Cutting Washington Radio Corp., Minneapolis, Minn., inventor of much naval equipment during the war; E. F. Llewelling, of the Buell Mfg. Co., Chicago (inventor of the famous Llewelling circuit) and others.

It goes without saying that most of the interest shown by the attending visitors was directed towards completed receiving sets, but those exhibitors who displayed parts came in for a goodly share of this interest. The women in particular devoted their attention to complete instruments and especially to receiving sets which eliminate the necessity for outdoor wiring and acid batteries.

Regarding loud speaking units it was easily seen that manufacturers of these items have been doing a remarkable work. During the show of 1922 there were quite a number of manufacturers of loud speaking units whose sole aim was the production of instruments which offered nothing but volume and very little tone quality. On the other hand, in comparing these units with those shown this year we find that many of them have banished the idea of volume and are introducing loud speakers which offer more tonal refinement.

In this show there were many exhibitors, including pioneers in the industry as well as newcomers. Among the pioneers and leaders in the trade we found the following:

The DeForest Radio Tel. & Tel. Co., with H. H. Roemer, general sales manager, in charge, assisted by L. J. Collopy, W. R. Dunn and

M. Staley, as well as a number of salesmen from DeForest's local representative, the Electric Appliance Co. The sets shown at this exhibit were DeForest models D 10 and D 7-A. Due to the fact that on Wednesday evening the big event of the show was Dr. Lee DeForest, who personally gave a talk to show visitors, the DeForest exhibit proved quite popular.

The Cutting Washington Radio Corp., of Minneapolis, maintained an exhibit under the direction of Herbert A. Brennan, sales manager, whose presence attracted many of his old friends in the talking machine trade. Bowden Washington, an official of this concern, was also one of the prominent speakers at the show, and he gave out many interesting ideas concerning naval radio equipment, the designing of which brought him recognition during the war. It was also announced in this booth that the new Cutting Washington hook-up, which involves a new principle, termed cascade regeneration, will shortly be announced.

Some of the most elaborate sets shown throughout the entire show were exhibited by the Colin B. Kennedy Co., of St. Louis. This exhibit consisted of several beautiful models of Jacobean consoles and Spanish desks. The exhibit was looked after by the vice-president and treasurer of the company, H. G. Rathbun, assisted by B. R. Hassler. Besides the art models there were also on display types 110, 220, 281, 311 and 552 and models V and F.

A combined exhibit was utilized by the Crosley Mfg. Co., of Cincinnati, and the Precision Equipment Co., of that city. Powell Crosley, Jr., is president of both concerns and also conducts the WWL broadcasting station at Cincinnati, Ohio, which is owned by him. The sets and parts being manufactured by these concerns are in such demand that Mr. Crosley has earned for himself the sobriquet of "The Ford of Radio," due to the fact that the Crosley Co. is said to be turning out over 1,000 sets each working day.

The Federal Tel. & Tel. Co. exhibit, a combination of talking machines and radio sets, held the attention of large numbers of visitors, particularly women. This combination consisted of a Victor console which embodied the famous "Federal" receiving unit. This exhibit proved particularly interesting to talking machine dealers. The exhibit was in charge of Milo A. Guérney, district manager, who maintains headquarters at Chicago.

The Bristol Co., of Waterbury, Conn., exhibited its Audiphone Jr. and Audiphone Sr. loud speakers. This exhibit was supervised by H. G. Hall, district manager; C. P. Oerlebeck and G. H. Ferguson.

The United Mfg. & Distributing Co. exhibited its full line of condensers and radio frequency amplified units. Little souvenirs in the shape of paper monoplane, carrying United advertisements, were constantly shooting over the heads of the visitors. These were shot out from the balconies by the "United" employees.

The Univernier knob was on display at the Walbert Mfg. Co.'s booth. This little device is used in many places on a set where there is a knob demanding fine vernier adjustment. It is easily installed by just removing the ordinary knob and slipping the Univernier in its place, which in turn offers a twelve to one ratio in tuning in condensers, variometers, etc.

Among the other exhibitors were:

A. H. Grebe & Co., New York, N. Y.; Chicago Radio Laboratories, Chicago, Ill.; Lytton Radio Corp., Chicago, Ill.; F. A. D'Andrea, New York, N. Y.; Atwater Kent Mfg. Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Automatic Electrical Devices Co., Cincinnati, O.; Multiple Electric Products Co., Newark, N. J.; H. G. Saal Co., Chicago, Ill.; Adams-Morgan Co., Upper Montclair, N. J.; Garod Corp., Newark, N. J.; Kellogg Switchboard & Supply Co., Chicago, Ill.; Moon Radio Corp., Long Island City, N. Y.; Radio Stores Corp., New York, N. Y.

AROUND BUFFALO

Shortage of Instruments Only Drawback in Unprecedented Holiday Business—All Lines Selling—Month's News and Activities

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—November and early December showed a great increase in business over the same period of last year, according to talking machine dealers and jobbers in all sections of Buffalo. The middle of November brought with it cooler weather, which stimulated sales in instruments and records, and the volume of sales has been on an upward trend since then. Holiday orders are big, jobbers in all lines report. The greatest difficulty is not in getting the orders, but in getting the supplies to fill these orders, the shortage of instruments in the most-wanted styles having reached an acute stage. Record demands also are vastly greater than they were at this time last year. The new weekly release of Victor records has stimulated sales and the double-face Red Seals have been in great demand. Appearance of a number of Victor artists, including John McCormack and Rachmaninoff, has greatly increased the volume of sales in Red Seal records. The Buffalo release of Armbruster's dance records for the Okeh has been taken very favorably here.

Shortage of Victor Models

O. L. Neal, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., has returned from a visit to the Victor plant in Camden, N. J., with brighter hopes of being able to meet the demand for instruments this Winter. "Business is very good," Mr. Neal said, "but merchandise is scarce. Demands continue good and the holiday trade is exceptional, but we have not been able to satisfy all requests for the most popular models, especially instruments priced around $200. We have only a small percentage of what we need. Sales for the handsome Victor art model 405 have been very, very good indeed."

Forest Cheney a Local Visitor

Forest Cheney, of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., recently visited local dealers and was guest while here of William Stagg, Cheney distributor for western New York. While in Buffalo Mr. Cheney addressed the sales force of the Kurtzmann Piano Co. on "Conscientious Salesmanship." Managers of all Kurtzmann stores in western New York were present.

William R. Stagg, local distributor of the Cheney machine, has redecorated the display rooms. Heavy plush old rose draperies and window hangings, with rugs, lamps and other furnishings in contrasting colors, carry out the ivory and rose color scheme. Mr. Stagg reports a number of new accounts recently opened in this district, among which are C. May & Son, Goellners', Sticht Furniture Co., William Spaulding, of Sycamore, N. Y., and Henderson Co., of Utica and Albany.

Increase in Strand and Okeh Demand

"November showed quite an increase over the same month of 1922," according to F. C. Clare, of the Iroquois Sales Corp., Strand and Okeh record jobber. "Records, instruments and accessories all show an increase in sales." M. O. Giles, of the General Phonograph Co. in New York, was a recent visitor to the local distributing offices.

Freedman & Rosenberg Open New Store

An important event in the local trade this month was the auspicious opening of the Columbia Music Shop by Freedman & Rosenberg in one of the best locations in the city. The opening date was advertised in all local newspapers and was also announced through the medium of handbills, special invitations by mail and personal and phone invitations. Two orchestras furnished concerts during the day and souvenirs were given to all patrons. Two of the city's finest were in attendance to regulate the crowd, as, by actual count, over seven thousand persons visited the store. Many sales were made on the opening day.

Curtis N. Andrews Rushed

The prediction of E. C. Seigesmund, sales manager of Curtis N. Andrews, Victor distributor for this territory, that all indications pointed to a big holiday business is coming to pass. The company is having a hard time of it to meet the demands of its dealers for a sufficient quantity of instruments to take care of the increasing number of customers who are contemplating the purchase of a talking machine as a Christmas gift. A corresponding increase in the demand for Victor records is also noticed, the natural holiday gain being augmented by the new system of weekly releases and the new Red Seal records. Mr. Seigesmund is optimistic concerning the outlook for greatly increased business during the new year.

Bieda Bros. Enlarging

Bieda Bros., well-known local Columbia dealers, have let contracts for a new building which they contemplate erecting in the near future. Floor plans of the structure call for a greatly enlarged phonograph department and twelve record hearing rooms will be installed. The record department of this concern is one of the most complete of any in the United States. The complete catalog of seven foreign languages and the American series records are carried.

Brunswick Dealers' Association Elects

The Brunswick Dealers' Association of Western New York held its annual election of officers, following a noon luncheon in Gandy's. M. Turchin was re-elected president and Mrs.

BUFFALO HOLIDAY TRADE BOOMING

Helen Hammond retains her position as secretary. Dealers from this part of the State were present, declaring it has been one of the best years in their history. There was no fear of a slump in 1924 expressed by any of the Brunswick dealers.

J. H. Powers, of Chicago, in charge at present of the local Brunswick distributing branch, said this has been the best year in the history of the Brunswick Co. Mr. Powers was enthusiastic in his expressions of optimism when asked what he thought of the outlook for 1924. "If the factories will keep us supplied with instruments there is not the slightest doubt but that the coming year will far exceed our balances this year, which has been the greatest year for the Brunswick talking machine in its history. There is only one possibility for this to fall short, and that is the shortage of the most popular models," he said. "Our greatest demand has been for the console model, selling for around $150 and $200. The demand has been much greater than the output." Mr. Powers said the record demand has also been good. Appearance of Bennie Krueger and His Syncopating Orchestra has greatly stimulated sales of his records. He recently gave a concert dance in Medina, N. Y. Previously he appeared in Lockport and Niagara Falls.

Edison Holds Its Own

C. J. Hereth reports a brisk Edison business. "The New Edison has been holding its own," Mr. Hereth said, "and I have enjoyed a fine season. I expect a big holiday trade and have already received a great number of orders for Edisons." Mr. Hereth has erected a new electric sign in front of his store, featuring the Edison Re-creation tone-tests.

Seeber & Hofheins Complete Alterations

Seeber & Hofheins, exclusive Columbia dealers, have completed alterations to their main store, located in the heart of Buffalo, and the phonograph department has been completely rearranged. An elaborate window display, featuring the new Columbia phonographs and New Process records, is causing much favorable comment.

The Central Park branch store of Seeber & Hofheins, located in the best residential section of the city, reports increased sales of New Process records. Sales at this store show a remarkable increase over the corresponding months of last year. Shipments of new Columbias have arrived and are now on display.

Ad Drive Helps Victor Business

"Victrola business this month has been greater than I expected with the kind of weather we have been having," said A. W. Fleishman, manager of the Victor department of the Wm. Hengerer Co. An advertising campaign early in the holiday season greatly helped the Victor department.

Planning Drive on Columbia's

The Household Outfitting Co., Columbia

dealer, is awaiting a large shipment of Columbia phonographs. Extensive advertising plans are completed to exploit the new instruments. Columbia sales representative, M. H. Batz, held a conference of the sales force of the Household Outfitting Co., at which time the new motor was explained in detail, the future policy of the new Columbia Phonograph Co. was gone over and plans laid for a large volume of holiday trade for this progressive store.

Celebrates First Anniversary

The first anniversary of the opening of the J. Dombrowski Music Store, exclusive Columbia dealer, this city, was celebrated recently. This store has had a meteoric rise in the musical business and is deserving of all praise. A full line of the new Columbia phonographs and records are en route for the anniversary date. The new Columbia motor will be on exhibition and M. H. Batz, Columbia sales representative, will explain the features to the expected crowds.

A year ago, when the store opened, over 8,000 persons passed through and plans are being made this year to handle 12,000, as it is anticipated that the crowd will be that large. Orchestra concerts, souvenirs and other good things are in store for the patrons.

Columbia Display at Better Homes Exhibit

The Columbia Phonograph Co. displayed all types of the new Columbias and New Process records at the Better Homes Exhibit at the Broadway Auditorium, this city, in November. Many music merchants visited the exhibit.

Houck Brunswick Shop Opens

The Houck Brunswick Shop was formally opened to-day. Mr. Houck is a veteran of the trade. A few years ago he entered the automobile business with E. C. Emons, but said he could not desert his first love and, consequently, re-entered the old field, handling the Brunswick exclusively at 3165 Bailey avenue.

W. H. Daniels Elected to Bank Board

William H. Daniels, of Denton, Cottier & Daniels, was recently unanimously elected a member of the board of trustees of the Erie County Bank & Savings Co. Mr. Daniels has been prominent in banking circles for years.

Jay Smith, formerly of Akron, N. Y., has purchased the Bartlett Building in Warsaw, N. Y., where he is planning to open a music store.

Arthur Victor, president of the Victor Co., furniture dealer, with a large department devoted to Victrolas has been chosen chairman of the Jewish Relief Commission in Buffalo.

V. W. Moody, of Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York, and formerly with the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., was a recent trade visitor. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moody.

A. E. Webb has purchased the music store of Laudauer, Inc., in Medina, N. Y.

Standard of Ethics for Retail Trade Publicity

Buffalo Better Business Commission Publishes a Platform With Ten Planks Defining Questionable Methods in Retail Music Merchants' Newspaper Advertising

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—The Buffalo Better Business Commission, in response to a number of complaints, recently took cognizance of the questionable character of some of the advertising being run by several local piano and talking machine dealers and as the result of a careful survey of the situation made the following report embodying various recommendations calculated to improve the character of local musical instrument advertising to which local dealers will be asked to subscribe:

After an eight months' survey of musical instrument advertising in the city of Buffalo, the Better Business Commission makes the following recommendations, which, if closely adhered to by the dealers in such merchandise, will result in materially increased reader confidence in the industry's advertising; these recommendations to take effect Dec. 1, 1925:

Bait Advertising

This type of advertising, which includes attractively described, priced and illustrated merchandise that is discredited by salesmen, or is not on sale, or if on sale cannot be purchased, must not be used.

Comparative Prices

The misuse of comparative prices should be avoided. Experience has shown this form of misrepresentation is responsible for more deception in advertising than any other abuse. The basis upon which the commission interprets the truth of a comparative value claim is: the price at which the same article, or one similar in workmanship and materials, is selling in two or more stores at the time of the advertisement. Statements of fractional savings, such as 1/3 off, 1/2 price, etc., should be avoided since they are dangerous to confidence.

Credit Terms

Should be clearly outlined so as to cause no confusion on the part of the reader. "Terms to Approved Credit Only," or some such phrase, truthfully and aptly to describe the conditions, will eliminate deception.

Derogatory Statements

In advertising or sales talk statements reflecting discredit upon competitors should be discontinued.

Down Payments

The statements "No Money Down" or "No Down Payment" shall not be used.

Statements such as "Pianos or Phonographs on Approval" shall not be used.

Statements such as a given number of records or rolls "with a phonograph or piano," without increasing the terms of purchase, shall clearly specify that a charge will be made for these records and rolls.

Use of Word "Free"

Should never be used where the securing of the article advertised is dependent on the obligation to purchase something else in conjunction with it, or to perform a service of some sort to obtain it. "Free" offers have been very much abused in musical instrument advertising. The commission suggests "given" or "included" as more correctly descriptive of such offers.

F. O. B. Prices

The selling of musical instruments at F. O. B. prices is so new that confusion results unless the advertisement contains a complete explanation of the conditions precedent to such an offer.

Second-class Merchandise

Rebuilt or used merchandise shall be truthfully designated as such.

Unqualified Statements

Such as "The Greatest Sale in Buffalo," "Greatest Values Ever Offered," "Your Own Terms," "Unmatchable Values," "Lowest Prices Always," etc., should not be used. Superlatives are dangerous to confidence in advertising and should always be avoided.

Wholesale

The terms "Wholesale," "Selling at Wholesale," or "At Factory Prices," are confusing and should not be employed.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENT OF STORES

Holiday Business Rush No Bar to Store Remodeling—Service Deemed Important

Despite the fact that the retail trade throughout the country is up to its ears in holiday business many dealers are alive to the necessity of extending the best possible service to their patrons and are losing no time in adding to their facilities. This is manifested by the large number of rush orders for installation of its equipment and fixtures which is being received by the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Among the installations which are being rushed by this concern are the following: Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, Mass.; Link's Record Shop, Cincinnati, O.; Henry W. DETROIT

Retailers and Wholesalers Busy Supplying Pre-Christmas Demand for All Lines—The Month's News

DETROIT, MICH., December 7.—As expected, holiday business got a new start on the first of the current month and there is not a doubt in the minds of talking machine dealers that sales will continue brisk until the end of the month. Every sort of machine is included in the buying on the part of the public. Even the portable models are coming in for a good share of the business, especially the newer styles, which make ideal Christmas presents. Dealers, fortunately, are well stocked for the holiday trade.

In view of the coming of the Chauve-Souris show, due here the week of December 9, Grinnell Bros. have an entire window fixed up very attractively and dedicated to the musical hits of this show, particularly "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." Toy-wooden soldiers fill the the window, as well as a dozen or more records which call attention to the show and the song numbers.

R. B. Alling, manager of the Phonograph Co., of Detroit, which also operates the Edison Shop, declares that November was the biggest month in the history of the store and that December will go far beyond it in sales. This coming from a conservative like Mr. Alling, who seldom talks for publication and who usually underestimates, augurs well for the standing of the Edison line in this territory. Mr. Alling has not let up one minute on his advertising, even during the hot weather months, and apparently his campaign is showing the cumulative results. Asked what particular models were selling best, he declared: "Well, everything is moving. It is surprising to note that even working people come to our store and are willing to pay from $200 and up for the Edison. A great deal of it is cash business, although we have a liberal credit system, and it is a pleasure to state that we have had very little trouble in getting our money. People are taking more interest in the importance of establishing credit for themselves and I have noticed that all during the year collections have held up remarkably well."

The J. L. Hudson Music Store is prepared for the biggest holiday business in its history and Manager Ed Andrews is ready with the biggest merchandise stocks. The Hudson Store is now concentrating on the Victor, Cheney and Brunswick. The new departure of selling records individually wrapped, thus guaranteeing that they are absolutely new, is proving a big success and Manager Andrews is well pleased with this change in policy. The Hudson Store no longer sends records out on approval. Manager Andrews now contends that "selling" the public on a policy idea is purely a matter of education, and it is just as easy to educate them one way as another.

Manager Quinn, of the Brunswick Shop, declares that they will show nearly a 100 per cent increase in December business, compared to the same month of 1922. The Brunswick Shop is doing its greatest volume on the console models.

The Sonora phonograph is being strongly featured by the Howard Music Shop at 9105 Twelfth street, and the Sonora Shop, at 1040 Gratiot avenue.

The phonograph shop in the Cunningham Store, 1065 Woodward avenue, Detroit, all this week is giving free concerts by the Finzel Arcadia Orchestra, Okeh artists. The hours for these concerts is from 12 to 1 P. M. As an added exploitation stunt 150 Okeh records are to be given away to those holding lucky numbers. This shop makes a big specialty of the Okeh and is doing a very nice business.

The Robinson-Cohen Co. has recently opened a third store, which means another shop to sell the Cheney line.

Columbia dealers report that the recent sale of demonstration Columbia records at 25 cents proved a big success. The new Columbia talking machines have created a great stir among dealers and it is certain that the Columbia trade values the franchise more than ever.

Sam Lind, of Lind & Marks, distributors of the Vocalion and manufacturers of the Wolverine phonograph, states that nothing can prevent December closing the best year the company has ever had. "We are doing more business every month with the Vocalion record and not a day goes by that we do not add a new Wolverine account," he declared.

NEW EMERSON RECORD ACTIVITIES

Company Planning to Enter the Personal Recording Field—Dealers to Act as Agents

The Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., announces the inauguration of a personal record department. This will include the making of individual recordings of the speaking or singing voice, instrumental solos, duets or quartets, as well as musical combinations of amateurs or professionals. Records of these recordings will be furnished in any quantity and it is proposed to allow all Emerson dealers to act as agents for this service. The Emerson recording rooms, 206 Fifth avenue, New York City, have been re-equipped so as to render prompt service and complete these personal recordings under the most favorable circumstances.

J. A. Flanagan, former manager of the phonograph department of Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn, is now manager of the Bronx T. M. Co.

If the Best is the Cheapest to Buy,—
Then the Best is the Cheapest to Sell.

Music lovers everywhere recognize that only the New Edison can give real music; for it is the only phonograph that actually Re-Creates the artist's performance. Its realism is so profound that the music critics have been unable to distinguish the original from the Re-Creation.

A Phono-Radio Tone Arm

(Patent applied for)

The most important development in the talking machine field—a tone arm that makes a talking machine a loud speaker for the radio. This new tone arm has the radio loud speaker permanently attached—the sound box does not have to be removed. Do not confuse this with the ordinary ear phone attachment. It is a loud speaker in every sense of the word. It will be made to fit all standard makes of talking machines. Dealers and manufacturers will find a decided demand for this combination. There is nothing like it in the market. Length 8—10½ inches. Highest tone quality.

TOLEDO

Trade Is Happy as Sales Records Are Being Broken—Prosperity of Industries Helps—Month's News

TOLEDO, O., December 6.—The business tone underlying the machine and record trade here is extremely optimistic. Sales records are being smashed. Dealers downtown are particularly happy. Every one of them has recorded a better year than last. The cause for the big demand is not hard to find. Industrial conditions have been good all year and are still good. Few workers of skill are unemployed. The building trades are busy. Factories are working at normal capacity.

Again, Christmas savings checks released by the banks put several hundred thousands of dollars into the hands of customers for holiday buying. Not a few patrons had ordered machines to be paid for with Christmas checks and others were waiting to buy as soon as this money came to them. It's sure to be a fine holiday year.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co. has experienced a far busier twelve months than last. The shortage of several popular-priced Victrola models cut into the total, but this was overcome by pushing types that ran into larger figures. The weekly record releases also added a large volume of new business. As dealers learn the advantage of this innovation more sales are being made, according to Chas. H. Womeldorf. Then, the Red Seal numbers are more widely bought than ever before. Since the price cut people who thought they could not afford high-priced records have started buying.

The Lion Store Music Rooms are enjoying a splendid holiday business, A. J. Pete reports. Much of the present demand is the result of efforts put forth during the Summer months by the five outside salesmen. One of the number had seventeen prospects call at the store during the past week; all bought either Victrola, Brunswick or Cheney machines. During one of the special drives recently inaugurated twenty-five Strand machines, lamp and "talker" combinations, were sold. Much of the success attained by the department is due to high-grade, year-round outside selling.

At the J. W. Greene Co. the sales contest between the piano, talking machine, record, music roll and non-producing teams has stimulated trade to a large extent, E. A. Kopf states. Several cash prizes are the rewards offered. Also a Thanksgiving turkey was given to the team in first place at that time. The non-producers are the office force, truckmen, repairmen and the like. They are expected to turn in the names of prospects or give information which will lead to a sale. The contest has developed this important fact—salesmen will produce extraordinary results under the right incentive. Particular pains are taken here to see that no record sale is lost. It is seldom that records are out because jobbers in several markets are patronized. But, in case a number is missing, a card of the "out" number is made and it is ordered immediately. Miss Hazel Lattimer devotes practically all of her time to the stock records. As quickly as the out record is received a card worded as follows is mailed the customer: "The Victor record you asked us for is now in stock at our store and will be held five days awaiting your call. Should you wish this record delivered to your home please notify us at once."

Another post card which has more than paid its way is one going to prospects with a letter asking for information and also the permission to serve them more fully.

W. Russell Hughes is a new member of the sales force. Miss Alexandria Aye has also joined forces with the house.

The Cable Piano Co., according to W. A. Grubbs, is meeting with fine success with its record broadcasting tie-up. Numbers are furnished to one of the radio stations. In order to give the store full credit it is announced that records are furnished by the Cable Co. Then Kalts Entertainers Orchestra is co-operating with the record department by playing new dance hits on sale at the store. A window sign and photo of the players add to the interest. Brunswicks and Victrolas are featured.

Kenneth R. Shepard, credit manager for the Toledo district, has been promoted to the Detroit district and put in charge of credits and collections. He will supervise about twenty stores. Bernard Felix has been named as his successor. Ernest Miller has joined the sales force.

The United Music Store reaped a rich reward from the John McCormack window used during his Toledo concert. Many of the audience passed the window, which was brilliantly lighted and contained poster, cut-out and photograph of Mr. McCormack, with the caption "My Favorite Records," followed by the favorites of this popular Irish tenor.

Brooke John, orchestra leader, paid a visit to the store recently, as did Wendall Hall, new Victor artist, whose first record went on sale November 23. He, moreover, played selections of his own composition here, at the Lion Store and the Toledo Talking Machine Co.

At the Goosman Piano Co. sales exceed last year's total by a generous margin. A branch store has been opened at 420 St. Clair street under the management of C. E. Colber. Starr, Columbia and Vocalion phonographs are featured. Miss Grace Greenman, sales expert, is again in charge of the record and machine department.

Grinnell Bros.' Christmas trade is showing much promise. Sales are ahead of the past two years. While the console Victrola shortage is a severe one, nevertheless, many higher-priced instruments are being sold as substitutes. John Tate has joined the sales force of the house.

is enjoying a holiday trade of good proportions. Blues numbers are in demand, Fred. Frame, manager, states. The Columbia cut-out periods are appreciated by all dealers because they make it possible to keep stocks clean. The Toledo Home Furniture Co. is conducting a sales contest among the force. Prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25 will be awarded. Each sales dollar counts as a point. Columbia and Brunswick machines and records share in the event, Miss Helen Canfield reports.

The Whitney-Blaine-Wildermuth Co. is putting forth extra efforts to close a large holiday volume, according to David Blaine, president. Every department in the house is featured at various times in the publicity. Christmas record gift certificates are urged as an exceptional means for remembering friends. The Victor holiday record list of numbers appropriate to the season is being patronized liberally, Miss Maud Winchell states.

The Frazell Piano Co., which recently expanded its floor space, has increased its sales force through the addition of Alden Ward, Milo Barrett, Carl Ferguson, Mr. Winters, Joe Faulcon and Mr. Pritchard. Sonora, Vocalion phonographs and Vocalion records are carried.

At the La Salle & Koch Co. music shop high-priced machines are sold more than the cheaper ones, Forrest O. Edwards, manager, reports. Odeon European records have been added to the record stock. Miss Kathaleyn Kortier has joined the record force here.

The Frazell Music Store, Columbia dealer at 715 Adam street, has remodeled its store, putting in additional hearing rooms and new fixtures on the first floor in order to give adequate surroundings to the new line of Columbia phonographs and New Process records.

INTRODUCES THE RADIOLA IX

Radio Corp. of America Announces Important Addition to Line—Designed Specially for Installation in Phonographs

The Radio Corp. of America, manufacturer of Radiolas, has just placed on the market the Radiola IX, which it designates as a “radio phonograph adjunct.” In advising the trade regarding this important addition to its line, E. E.

The New Radiola IX

Bucher, sales manager of the company, stated as follows: “The Radio Corp. has received a great number of inquiries from phonograph and music dealers for the purchase of a radio set to be installed in phonographs, and of such design and construction that the reproducing horn of the phonograph would serve as the loud speaker of the radio set. The combination of the radio set and the phonograph is considered to be a particularly desirable item of merchandise for those whose living quarters are somewhat limited. Preference was expressed for a radio unit which could be mounted in a cabinet without disturbing the operation of the phonograph, and which could be installed without having the phonograph cabinet rebuilt or altered to accommodate the radio set.

“To meet this demand it has been necessary to design a radio panel which, with all of its mechanism, was exceptionally thin and which could, if so desired, be installed in the lid of the vertical type of phonograph, or in the record carrying space, or in the space immediately above it in the console type. Dry battery operation was deemed essential, together with a degree of selectivity which would enable the purchaser to secure satisfactory operation through present traffic conditions in the ether. After an extended period of research and development, followed by extensive tests on most of the existing types of phonographs, the Radio Corp. of America now announces to the trade the introduction of the Radiola IX.”

The Radiola IX is a five-tube radio-audio frequency set which not only meets the stipulations set forth above, but it also provides a substantially equal degree of sensitiveness over the entire broadcast wave length scale, 220 to 550 meters. To this end the Radiola IX is equipped with special radio frequency transformers provided with selector switches, permitting the user to secure the maximum efficiency of operation on any wave length within the band specified by the Department of Commerce. For most purposes the Radiola IX operates satisfactorily with an indoor antenna, although standard outdoor aerials may be used.

For the present the Radiola IX is produced in three sizes: (1) a complete radio panel of the proper dimensions to fit Victrola model VV-100 and model 11; (2) a complete radio panel to fit the Columbia Grafonola model G-2. This size will also fit several other upright models; (3) a complete radio panel 17¾ inches by 17¾ inches which can be trimmed down to fit most console types of phonographs. The unit is mounted in the cover of the vertical type of phonograph by boring four holes in the top, for which purpose there have been provided special bolts which will not destroy the appearance of the machine. The list price of the Radiola IX with complete equipment, including batteries, is $230, and deliveries will be made during the month of December.

S. M. Creedman, prominent phonograph dealer of Brooklyn, N. Y., with a store at 4509 Thirteenth avenue, has leased quarters adjoining. Growing business made the move necessary. The new quarters are being remodeled.

Holiday Business This Year Promises to Exceed That Done Last Year—Many Retailers Add New Lines—Activities of the Month

CINCINNATI, O., December 6.—The heavy demand for both talking machines and records in Cincinnati territory shows no signs of abatement. In fact, every jobber in this city states that his business during November showed a healthy improvement and all dealers are exceedingly optimistic about the outlook for December. They feel that the big business which they did during December, 1922, will be repeated again this year and in many cases both jobbers and retailers will have a comfortable increase to report over last year's figures. The industrial situation in Cincinnati at the present time is good and, for this reason, people seem to have money to spend. The talking machine dealers will undoubtedly get their share during the next three weeks. The healthy demand for instruments and records throughout the first eleven months of this year has made it impossible to build up very much of a reserve stock. However, jobbers believe that they will have sufficient shipments in the coming weeks to take care of all of the local dealers.

New Edison Dealers

The Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, in Cincinnati territory, states that its business is very good at the present time and that many new accounts are being opened. The business on Edison talking machines outside of the city is particularly good. Manager Oelman, of the company, says that the following new accounts have been opened by his company: Robert L. Seeds Co., Columbus, O.; Hunter Music House, Dayton, O.; W. A. Strapp, Urbana, O., and the D. & E. Columbia Shop, Cincinnati, O.

Advertising Boosts Brunswick Sales

The Brunswick district office states that the volume of business done in the last four weeks on both machines and records has been excellent. November was an exceptionally good month, sales showing a great increase over those of last year, which were large. Officials are optimistic and believe that the coming months will bring with them good business. Much of the increase in business lately is attributed to the substantial increase in advertising being done by Brunswick dealers. There is some demand, of course, for upright models, but the heavy city trade is on consoles. It is said, however, that the dealers in Kentucky are hesitant to venture with the comparatively new console type. All local dealers handling Brunswick machines and records are preparing large stocks in anticipation of a fine holiday business just ahead. The new accounts taken on lately by Brunswick include Parker's Music Store, Cincinnati, and Sell Bros., Delaware, O.

Dealers Add Okeh and Strand Lines

The Sterling Roll & Record Co. has been doing a fine business on Okeh records and Strand talking machines. A number of new accounts have been opened lately, according to Ben L. Brown, manager of the company. The volume of business that is being transacted is considerably ahead of last year and is expected to show a nice increase during the coming month. Okeh records of a fairy tale set, composed of such tales as Jack and the Beanstalk and Cinderella, are going over well. A special display of the Okeh laughing record is being put on here and, because of the newspaper advertising and the special sales work, this record is making a big hit. Larry J. Naber, salesman for the Sterling Roll & Record Co., has just returned from a road trip. He has been very successful in the sale of "Red Riding Hood," "Little Tot's" and "Kiddie Records" sets.

Victor Demand Exceeds Supply

The Ohio Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, reports that its business has been unusually good throughout the month of November. The only complaint that is heard constantly is that the company cannot get enough machines to supply the demand from the dealers in this territory. The factory has been rushed for some time and has been giving just as good delivery as it is possible to get under the circumstances. Models No. 80 and 210 are very popular, according to company officials.

Arthur Brand to Expand

Arthur Brand reports that business is fine at the present time and that laboring people in the city are in a position to make nice purchases. Many portable and small cabinet machines are being sold now, according to Mr. Brand. In addition to his present lines Mr. Brand expects to add electric motors.

Window Concerts Develop Interest

The Starr Piano Co. has been boosting the interest in Gennett records in Cincinnati by having concerts in the window of their store by Jim Riley and his youngest professional orchestra in the country. This orchestra is made up of exclusively Gennett artists. Officials of the Starr Co. say that business has been very good and that talking machines have been in good demand. The Gennett record of "He's An Odd Fellow" is having good sales and has been given much publicity in the form of testimonials by prominent Odd Fellows throughout the country. A scheme which is creating more Christmas business is that of having a special Christmas envelope for special Christmas greeting records which have been put out. On the fly leaf is a picture of the performer with a writeup about him or the record.

Alms & Doepke Feature Brunswick

The Alms & Doepke Co., one of Cincinnati's largest and best known department stores, has just opened a new Brunswick phonograph salon. For the home of the Brunswick a new salon, suitable in its architecture and appointments, has been erected on the third floor. There are sound-proof rooms and beautiful showrooms where the Brunswick can be seen in a variety of period and modern models. The arrangement of the department is unique. The finishings and architecture are in old English Gothic style with five large groups of hammered brass candles suspended from the arches. The department is in charge of J. D. Bright, a former Brunswick man.

Window Tie-Up With Football

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop made a big hit the past week with its Thanksgiving display. The company tied up successfully with two local football events, the University of Cincinnati game with Miami University on Thanksgiving Day and the St. Xavier College game with the Haskell Indians on the same day. Pictures of the stars from University of Cincinnati and from St. Xavier College were shown in the window. In another window was a Thanksgiving table spread with good things to eat. At the table was seated the Victor dog. Over the table was a sign, three things to be thankful for, a football game, a Thanksgiving dinner and a Victor concert afterwards.

Store Changes and New Lines Added

E. P. Cooper, Covington, Kentucky dealer, and the E. M. Abbott Co., Cincinnati, have taken on the complete line of Strand instruments.

Parker's Music Store, 1210 Linn street, Cincinnati, has taken on the Okeh line of records and has also opened a Brunswick shop.

The Otto Grau Piano Co. has installed Odeon records in its downtown Cincinnati store and also in its Norwood, O., store.

J. N. Manderer, Central avenue dealer, has added Okeh and Odeon records to his stock.

D. & E. Columbia Shop Opens

J. Fred Dietz and Mrs. Sarah M. Eggers recently opened the D. & E. Columbia Shop, located at 11 West Seventh street near Vine street. The store will be operated as an exclusive Columbia shop and an extensive advertising campaign on the new model Columbias and New Process records already is under way. Beautiful modern fixtures and hearing rooms have been installed.

Yerkes' Flotilla Orchestra, Columbia artists, appeared at the Keith Theatre here recently. This was their first appearance in Cincinnati and went over very big.

Max Frank Expands

Max Frank, formerly manager of Hoffenman's Music Shop, of Brighton, O., has opened an exclusive Columbia shop at Twelfth and Vine streets, this city. Mr. Frank was also formerly connected with Guttman's of Bristol, Tenn., and has had many years' experience in the phonograph business. A complete stock of new Columbia machines and New Process records was displayed at the opening.

Widener's Enjoying Good Business

Widener's Victrola Shop has been handling a large volume of sales during the past month, according to Morris Fantel, manager. This firm had a good window display of Thanksgiving records which pulled a number of sales.

NEW WALL-KANE REPRESENTATIVE

The Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has announced the appointment of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., of Chicago, as Western factory representative of the Wall-Kane line of needles. The Consolidated Talking Machine Co. will distribute these needles not only from the Chicago headquarters, but from branches in Detroit and Minneapolis. The appointment of this new distributor is expected to not only materially increase Wall-Kane needle sales throughout the Middle West, but to supply maximum service for dealers of this territory as well.

HOMOKORD RECORD POPULAR

Carl Kronenberger, proprietor of the Favorite Mfg. Co., New York City, reports a continued demand for the Homokord record. His company carries a most comprehensive stock of standard titles and is able to make overnight shipments of these goods. The Homokord is a German importation containing many favorite song and instrumental numbers.

The new music store of Frank H. La Voice, situated in the First National Bank Building, Plattsburgh, N. Y., was recently formally opened with best wishes from a host of friends.

MEMPHIS, TENN., December 5.—One of the handsomest stores in the South devoted to the sale of talking machines and records is the new establishment of Reinhardt's, Inc., opened recently at 104 South Main street this city, where Vocalion Red Records are featured in a substantial way. The new quarters have already proved very popular with the music lovers of the city, a fact that has been made manifest through the steady increase in business that has come to the company since it has been settled in its new home.

A particularly happy feature of the opening celebration at the new store was the appearance of Mme. Rosa Raisa and Sig. Giacomo Rimini, prominent members of the Chicago Opera Co. and exclusive Vocalion Red Record artists, who had arrived in Memphis to give a joint recital under the auspices of the Beethoven Club and took the opportunity to attend the opening ceremonies at the store at the request of Walter C. Reinhardt, president of Reinhardt's, Inc., and through the courtesy of Mrs. J. F. Hill, president of the Beethoven Club. The accompanying photograph shows Sig. Rimini and Mme. Raisa autographing records purchased by the early visitors to the new store. Needless to say, they were kept busy.

T. M. M. BALL A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

Hotel Pennsylvania Ball Room Crowded With Dealers and Their Friends—Great Array of Noted Record Orchestras Furnished Music

The annual ball of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., of New York, at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Wednesday, November 21, was a brilliant success. Approximately 1,500 talking machine men, sales people and their guests gathered in the ball room and spent a most enjoyable evening dancing and listening to the leading record orchestras, including: All Star Trio, Ben Selvin's Orchestra, Bennie Krueger's Orchestra, Ben Bernie's Orchestra, Brooke Johns' Orchestra, Carl Fenton's Orchestra, California Ramblers, The Columbians, The Collegians, Coleman's Montmartre Orchestra, Charles Dornberger's Orchestra, Dixieland Jazz Band, Elkeles' Club Deauville Orchestra, Great White Way Orchestra, Gene Rodemich's Orchestra, Jos. C. Smith's Orchestra, Paul Whiteman's Orchestra (Himself), Paul Specht's Orchestra, Ray Miller's Orchestra, S.S. "Leviathan" Orchestra, Ted Lewis and Band, Tennessee Ten, The Virginians, Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra, Yerkes' S.S. "Flotilla" Orchestra and Zez Confrey and His Orchestra, and Jan Garber and His Orchestra.

This wonderful array of artists was without question the greatest ensemble of stellar dance orchestras that ever appeared together, and they represented all of the leading record companies. The hold which these artists had upon those present was impressively indicated by the fact that many preferred listening to the music than dancing. The surprise of the evening was the appearance of Jan Garber and His Orchestra, one of the latest Victor aggregations. These artists not only played in an inimitable manner, but their acrobatics and clever stunts caught the attention of the crowd and their reception was one that will not soon be forgotten.

It really seemed as if everyone in the metropolitan talking machine business was present, besides many who are not directly connected with the trade, and if there were any who did not have a good time it was not the fault of the program or the committee in charge.

HEALTHY GOTHAM SONORA BUSINESS

The Greater City Phonograph Co., Inc., New York, Sonora distributor, has added several new accounts during the past month. Maurice Landay, president of the company, states that conditions are exceptionally good among Sonora dealers. Even those concerns which were foresighted enough to place their orders in advance have found that they are running short on various models. Shipments from the factory are being received with satisfactory promptness so the dealers will not suffer from any acute shortage during the present holiday season.

"PATHE NEWS" FEATURES PRODUCTS

Live House Organ of Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. Draws Attention to Features of Its Phonograph and Radio Lines

The November 16 issue of the Pathé News is novel in its strong presentation, entirely in advertising form, of the many features to be found in both the talking machine and radio lines of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., of Brooklyn, N. Y. The entire front page is devoted to newspaper ads, of which it is the custom of the Pathé Co. to supply free electros to its dealers.

The new Pathé de Luxe 1924 models are shown, equipped with the Pathé voice recorder, a radical departure recently instituted by this company. In featuring the new Pathé models special attention is called to the Pathé oval horn, a feature of Pathé phonograph construction. On the record page are listed the current releases, together with a special relisting of records for the Christmas season. The Pathé Co. has built up an excellent reputation in the foreign record field, not only through the quality of recording and the personnel of its artists, but also through the exceptionally large catalog of foreign recordings which it already has and is constantly adding to. In conjunction with Pathé records is shown the Pathé skyscraper all-metal record rack which may be added to in units as space or business demands. A photograph of Les Stevens and His Orchestra features this well-known orchestra, which has become so popular with the Pathé public.

Announcement of an especially attractive glass-front display case for the Pathé rust-proof concave needle is also made.

In the radio field are featured the Pathé loud speaker, Pathé molded parts and the new Pathé Curtantenna, an indoor loop which may be rolled up on the principle of a window shade.

OUTING CO.'S FACTORY RUSHED

Two Shifts and Maximum Production Necessary to Meet Demand for Outing Portables—Foreign Trade Growing Steadily

The Outing Talking Machine Co., Mount Kisco, N. Y., manufacturer of the Outing portable talking machines in two models, the Senior and Junior, is at the present time working to capacity in order to fill the demand. The Outing Junior, although it has only been on the market a short time, has met with the approval of the trade and public. "Orders are being received continuously and at the present time the demand is far beyond our greatest expectations," said A. J. Cote, president and general manager of the company. The Outing Senior still maintains its place as a sales leader. For this reason it is necessary that the factory maintain maximum production and in order to accomplish this it is working in two shifts. Mr. Cote states that there is a growing demand among the export trade for the Outing products, and that connections are constantly being established in foreign countries. At the present time orders are being received from practically every large country in the world.

Ohio Cities Approach Holiday Season With Stock of Fair Proportions—Smith & Mitten Take on Edison and Vocalion Lines—G. C. Wille Co. Expansion—News of the Month

CANTON and AKRON, O., December 6.—While a majority of dealers in the Canton-Akron territory the past two months have been complaining of business being off somewhat, with the near approach of the holiday season business has picked up tremendously.

It is the opinion of dealers that there will be no shortage of merchandise this Christmas. At the present display and sales floors are filled with machines with very few models missing. Warehouses are well stocked and shipments for the future, in most instances, are guaranteed.

The record business, dealers say, is holding its own, and the month of December is expected to be one of the best record-buying periods in the entire year.

department of the William R. Zollinger Co., which handles Victor talking machines here, announces that work of altering the talking machine department on the fourth floor of the building will be started immediately, increasing the floor space by about one-third and considerably improving service facilities.

J. H. Currie and others have purchased the Akron store of the Starr Piano Co. on South Howard street, and the name has been changed to the Superior Music Parlors. Mr. Currie, who was manager of the Starr Co.'s store, will continue in charge. Starr phonographs and Gennett records will be handled.

Earle G. Poling, head of the Earle Poling Music Co., is fostering a concert by Ignace Paderewski, famed pianist, in the City Auditorium in Canton on January 11. He has secured the co-operation of George Wille in offering the well-known artist.

The new music house of Strassner & Custer has taken on the agency in the Canton district for the Fischer talking machine. The store, located in Cleveland avenue, Southwest, is the latest entry into the retail music field here and will specialize in everything musical. A complete record department will be maintained.

Twice the present floor space for talking machine activities will be available in the new location of the George C. Wille Co., to which the concern will move about the middle of December, it was announced. Mr. Wille is spending several thousand dollars in equipping the new store.

Miss Elsie Baer, manager of the talking machine department of the M. O'Neil Co., has returned to her post after an illness of several weeks.

Downtown Akron is taking on a holiday aspect as Christmas trees, wreaths, cedar rope and other Yuletide decorations purchased by the merchants are being fastened to trolley poles and guy wires. Under the auspices of the Akron Merchants' Association, with which are affiliated the leading music merchants of the city, 300 Christmas trees, 280 wreaths, 13,000 flowers and 17,400 feet of cedar rope are being hung up in the business district. The decorations are expected to instill the holiday spirit into the community and to boost trade.

Announcement is made by the recently opened music firm of Smith & Mitten that they have been appointed representatives in Akron of the Edison and Vocalion phonographs. Record booths located in the front part of the store will be a feature of the department.

With alterations almost completed to the South Main street and South Akron stores, George S. Dales, head of George S. Dales Co., is preparing to start remodeling the building adjacent to the main store on South Main street, which will give the store double the present floor space. A radio department will be a feature of the remodeled store and a complete radio line will be installed.

The Alford-Fryar Co., for many years located in the Harris Arcade Building, downtown Canton, has announced that it will move soon after the first of the year to a more convenient location, providing negotiations now pending are successful.

SONORA DEALER'S ATTRACTIVE STORE

Weeks & Dickinson sell hundreds of Sonoras yearly, and the splendid representation they are giving the Sonora line is reflected in the constantly increasing sales totals.

RUMFORD, INC., FIRM CHANGES HANDS

RUMFORD, ME., December 6.—Boucher Bros. have sold out their business to the Rumford Furniture Co., and the latter will remain exclusive Columbia dealer, continuing to serve the same large clientele which was built up by Boucher Bros. L. J. Jobin, manager of the Rumford Furniture Co., plans to put on outside men to sell the Columbia line, believing that this is the one real way to get a large volume of business.

COUNTER AUDAKS TIME SAVERS

Experience of Dealers Proves Efficiency of This Record Demonstration Device as a Time Saver During Rush Periods of the Day

The Audak, the new record demonstrating product which has been made a part of the equipment of many retail establishments throughout the country, has, to a large extent,

Counter Audaks Ready for Customers found favor in its table unit model, according to the sales department of the Audak Co., 565 Fifth avenue, New York City. This use of the Audak on individual tables is, however, not the only available method of demonstrating records through its aid. At least two department stores in New York are using the Audak as counter equipment, which, undoubtedly, allows a further conservation of space and tends to give greater service to several customers by a single clerk, with much saving of time and energy.

Herewith is shown a battery of three Audaks in counter use. Portable chairs are placed before the counter and considerable space is allowed between each machine so as to avoid crowding. The clerk standing behind the counter can easily serve these three shown and several more almost simultaneously. In stores where there is a large clientele at noon or other rush-hour periods, the counter use of this product is not only the most feasible and efficient, but, undoubtedly, the most profitable.

Among the latest retailers who have added one or more Audaks to their record demonstrating equipment are the Hutchens Music House, Erie, Pa., which now has several of these products in use; P. Ackerman Co.,

Marion, O.; Dean H. Craft Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; K. Graham Co., Portsmouth, O.; R. W. Crowell, Bradford, Pa.; M. Doyle Marks, 309 East Water street, Elmira, N. Y.; The Hub, Steubenville, O.; George P. Gross, Cincinnati, O., and the Hudson Music Shop, Detroit, Mich.

The fact that Audaks fill a real need of the trade is indicated, in a measure, by the growing volume of orders for installations.

BIG EMERSON PUBLICITY DRIVE

Opening Gun of Campaign Fired in New York —Lower Record Prices Featured

The Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., recently inaugurated a newspaper publicity campaign in New York City, the initial announcement of which appeared in the Daily News, an illustrated publication with over 600,000 circulation. This was supplemented in later issues by smaller announcements. It is the plan of the Emerson Co. to extend the campaign to other States where Emerson dealers can reap the benefits.

One of the features of the initial Emerson announcement was the inclusion of the names and addresses of Emerson retailers in the metropolitan district. This type of publicity will appear again from time to time. The reduction in the price of this company's records was featured. A list of timely song and dance selections was included as well as mention of the foreign catalog of Emerson records.

Jack Boyle, a new tenor, has been added to the recording staff of the Emerson Co. and his first vocal number, "I Love You," from the musical show "Little Jessie James," was released this month.

KIRKMAN CLOSES BIG SALES YEAR

PORTLAND, ORE.

Business Booming—Home Building and General Prosperity Shown by Bank Reports Basis for Optimism Regarding Future—The News

PORTLAND, ORE., December 5.—The Portland music dealers view with satisfaction the statistical reports of business for the past several months. Retailers are paying attention to the continued building of new homes, which means more opportunities for sales of talking machines and records.

Bank clearings reported by Portland clearing house banks for November showed an increase of nearly 20 per cent over clearings for the corresponding month of last year and were considered significant of Portland's development industrially, commercially and from the business standpoint.

Harry L. Nolder, secretary and treasurer of the Starr Piano Co. and manager of the Pacific division, with Los Angeles, Cal., as his headquarters, was a local visitor during the latter part of last month. Mr. Nolder made a trip of his territory, covering the Salt Lake City district, and in Boise, Idaho, he was joined by Charles Soulé, district manager of the Portland territory, and together they covered Idaho, Washington and Oregon. Mr. Nolder spent a short time at the Portland headquarters going over the Starr piano, phonograph and Gennett record business with Mr. Soulé. He reported finding things in excellent shape locally and business conditions greatly improved over last year when he covered the same ground on his annual survey. Mr. Nolder celebrated his thirtieth anniversary with the Starr Piano Co. December 1.

The "Quartet of Victor Artists," composed of Olive Kline, Elsie Baker, Lambert Murphy and Royal Dadmun, was presented at the public auditorium recently. A large and enthusiastic audience received the artists. Victor dealers "tied up" with the concert and report sales of all four artists' recordings greatly stimulated since the concert.

E. B. Hyatt, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., was appointed chairman of the committee to make collections from the music dealers for Portland's annual community chest drive. The quota, which was placed at $650,000, was almost raised at the last report and the music dealers and their corps of assistants of each store did their part nobly toward donating subscriptions. When the amount raised had reached $560,000 Mayor Baker made further appointments for collections and J. H. Dundore, manager of Sherman, Clay & Co.; Frank M. Case, of Wiley B. Allen; G. F. Johnson, of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co.; Frank Lucas, of Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., and A. M. Eppstein, of the Schwan Piano Co. were appointed to assist Mr. Hyatt.

L. D. Heater, agent in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia for the Strand phonograph, the Portophone and Okeh records, says business conditions have never been better except during the war period. Mr. Heater has added another salesman, Neal Brennen, in the Seattle district, and reports Okeh dealers secured during the last month as follows: Seattle Music House, Bellington Music Co., Bellington, Wash.; Ewald Piano Co., Tacoma, Wash.; Pioneer Pharmacy, Sunnyside, Wash., and the Remick Shops in both Seattle and Portland. Mr. Heater reports a big demand for the Scandinavian Okeh records in the Northwest district. He also reports the popularity of the Strand phonograph gaining rapidly throughout British Columbia and says the dealers in that district are sending in big orders for all models. Big orders for the Portophone are also being received from Japan since the earthquake. It is the desire of Mr. Heater to dispose of his present location at 357 Ankeny street to some dealer who will "carry on" the shop as a retail establishment for the Strand, Portophone and Okeh records, as he is going to find it necessary, in the near future, to move into larger wholesale quarters.

The four-story building of the Brunswick Co. at Tenth and Glisan streets was turned over to the company December 1 and remodeling has begun which will make these new Pacific Northwest wholesale headquarters for the Brunswick one of the most complete and modern music houses on the Coast. A. R. McKinley announces that the building will be ready for occupancy on or before January 1.

After a month and a half in the East in the interest of his firm, Elmer Hunt, district wholesale manager of Sherman, Clay & Co., returned

APPOINTED FEDERAL RADIO JOBBER

Musical Products Distribution Co. Will Handle Products of Federal Tel. & Tel. Co.—B. D. Colen Planning Aggressive Sales Campaign

The Musical Products Distributing Co., New York, distributor of Vocalion records and Pooley phonographs, has recently been appointed a distributor for the Federal Tel. & Tel. Co., manufacturer of radio sets and equipment. "The company feels that in carrying Federal radio products it is performing a real service to talking machine dealers," said B. D. Colen, president of the company.

"There is no question but that the phonograph dealer is the logical retailer to handle radio product, due to the ideal equipment of his establishment and extensive merchandising experience. By carrying radio products in stock not only does the dealer have an additional source of profit, but also a means of stimulating the sales of talking machines and records. We are doing all in our power to aid in solving the problems and render the talking machine dealer as complete a service as possible in connection with the sales of radio products. A corps of radio experts is maintained and is constantly at the disposal of the dealers who are not sufficiently familiar with the operating and installing of radio sets."

The company is also carrying a combination of the Pooley phonograph and Federal radio sets contained in one cabinet. The cabinet is a console model, very attractively finished in figured walnut and mahogany, with ample space provided for record albums and batteries. Amplification is furnished by means of a phonograph loud speaker unit, which is attached to the tone arm. Mr. Colen states that this combination radio and phonograph has met with widespread approval by members of the industry who have had an opportunity of seeing it and hearing it operated. The Musical Products Distributing Co. is carrying, in addition to the Federal Tel. & Tel. Co.'s three, four and six-tube sets, the Heraco loud speaker, Westinghouse batteries and other accessories.

to his headquarters early last month. While in the East Mr. Hunt visited the Victor Co.'s factory at Camden, N. J. On his return trip he called upon many jobbers and retailers along the Northern route and says their reports were all of an optimistic turn.

E. B. Hyatt, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., has installed three of the Audak demonstrating units in his record department. These are the first of the Audak units to be installed in any of the Portland music houses and they are meeting with great success, according to Mr. Hyatt.

All dealers in Victrolas in the Portland district have decided on a no-interest plan on all future Victrola sales. The change went into effect November 15 and will be adhered to by all dealers. With a few exceptions interest has been charged by local Victor dealers for many years, but as all stores did not follow this rule and could not be brought into line it was decided that all Victor dealers would discontinue charging interest.

Ethel Marie Brown, for several years assistant in the record department of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., has been placed in charge to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Emma Reynolds. Miss Brown has had considerable experience in the record end of the business and her promotion is deserved.

Mildred Coleman, for several years in the record department of the Bush & Lane Piano Co., has joined the record sales department of the Meier & Frank store.

The special Victor release of the two Sherman, Clay & Co. numbers, "The West, a Nest and You," with "Sleep" on the reverse side, is proving one of the biggest sellers in Portland for months, according to all Victor retail dealers who are cashing in on a large scale in these numbers.

WITH the holiday "rush" now under way, and the steadily mounting sales of

PERFECTING VOX ORGANIZATION

Officials of the Corporation Entertained Dealers at Talking Machine Men's Ball

O. P. Graffen, sales manager of the Vox Corp. of America, is busy perfecting his sales organization and plans made for the coming year are well calculated to place Vox products throughout the entire country in an auspicious manner. Mr. Graffen reports that the first announcement of the Vox Corp. in this country in The Talking Machine World attracted great interest and as a result inquiries were received from every section of the country. The exceptional response to the initial announcement has spurred every member of the organization on to still greater efforts. The Vox Corp. of America was well represented at the annual ball of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Wednesday evening, November 21. The officials of the company present were A. Fodor, vice-president and general manager of the company; his brother, Dr. Stephen Fodor; O. P. Graffen, general sales manager, and C. C. Kleber, assistant general sales manager. Headquarters were established in a suite of rooms in the hotel, where open house was kept. The invitation was very cordial and scores of their many friends present visited the Vox headquarters, where they were royally entertained. A good time was had by all and many were the expressions of appreciation of Vox hospitality.

GELIA BROS. OPEN COLUMBIA STORE

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—Gelia Bros., well-known orchestra leaders of this city, have taken over the Columbia store formerly owned by F. G. Vallone. Extensive alterations have been made and the store enlarged by the addition of four hearing rooms. A full line of the new Columbia phonographs and New Process records is now on the floor. The Gelia Bros. Orchestra furnished a splendid program on the day of the formal opening.

MORE INTEREST IN VOCAL NUMBERS

Adrian Schubert, Musical Director of the Independent Recording Laboratories, Analyzes Trend of Public Taste in Music

Adrian Schubert, the musical director for the Independent Recording Laboratories, 102 West Thirty-eighth street, New York City, recently stated that the public has shown an increased interest in vocal selections. This, he said, not only applies to popular numbers, but includes a healthy list of standard selections. He, too, remarked that despite the fact that vocal numbers were having a larger sale these did not, seemingly, affect the demand for instrumental selections.

Mr. Schubert, who for nearly ten years has been first 'cellist at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and has had long experience in recording work, is greatly interested in the musical development of the public. However, he states that the recording of popular selections require every bit as much attention as do weightier works. Particularly is this true with present-day popular dance arrangements which require the greatest technique, thought and attention.

"SONGS OF THE PAST"

Peerless Album Co. Issues Four Special Albums Filled With Records of Old Favorites to Be Sold in Groups—Practical Sales Aid

The Peerless Album Co., New York City, manufacturer of talking machine record albums and other popular record novelties, which some time ago introduced the "group" record album, which found much favor in retail circles through its tendency to increase record sales, has again introduced a novelty of a permanent character in album form.

The new product is made in a series of four individual record albums and carries the title "Songs of the Past," which is embossed in gold on the cover. Six twelve-inch records can be placed in the record holders of each album and each of these carries illustrations of an appropriate design. The inside cover carries a frontispiece with the title "Songs of the Past" with illustrations as well as introductory comment. Although this new product was only introduced late last month it has been accepted as a permanent adjunct to the record business by a number of wholesalers as well as retailers.

Several dealers are making a feature of this new album in conjunction with Christmas gift suggestions, and at least one metropolitan dealer has found that an effective table display created many sales, in each case giving an assurance of six record purchases.

NOW OPERATES FOUR STORES

The Masline Music Shoppe, of Rochester, N. Y., which features pianos and talking machines, has consistently followed a program of expansion during the last few years and now operates four stores in that city.

Hohner Harmonica Week in Chicago

Newspapers, Theatres, Radio and Clubs Play Leading Part in Monster Publicity Drive in the Interest of Hohner Harmonicas

CHICAGO, ILL., December 8.—Hohner Harmonica Week was celebrated here November 18. For a period of six days the harmonica occupied a leading position in the musical and publicity worlds. The campaign opened with a full-page advertisement in the magazine section of the Chicago American on November 17 and was followed by general publicity during the entire week. The campaign was handled for M. Hohner by Charles B. Hohmann, Western representative; Sidney J. Winfield, Eastern representative, and Fred Sonnen, harmonica soloist. Borrah Minevitch, harmonica soloist, appeared at McVicker's Theatre during the entire week and other features of the campaign included the distribution of window hangers and instruction books among the dealers and jobber, elaborate window displays by prominent music houses, harmonica solo broadcasting from the various radio stations and daily entertainments in the public and high schools throughout the city.

On Sunday, November 18, Mr. Sonnen broadcasted from station WPAD and on Monday played before the Chicago Piano Club at his regular meeting; on Tuesday Mr. Minevitch broadcasted from station KYW, appearing on Wednesday before the Carter Harrison High School and on Thursday at the noonday luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. On Thursday Mr. Sonnen appeared at the Concert Hall of Lyon & Healy, Inc., where he was obliged to play all afternoon, and in the evening he appeared at an entertainment given by the children of the Mozart School; on Friday he again broadcasted from KYW, also giving a solo on Saturday over station WBAP. All during the week Messrs. Hohmann, Winfield and Sonnen gave talks and demonstrations on the harmonica to thousands of school children, their principals and teachers throughout the city. The campaign was a tremendous success, both from a sales and educational standpoint and the executives of M. Hohner are to be congratulated upon their aggressiveness and initiative in developing a sales and publicity plan of such value to the harmonica industry.

1924 PROGRESSIVE CATALOG

The Progressive Musical Instrument Corp., New York City, is now forwarding to the trade its new "Musical Merchandise 1924" catalog. Much care and attention was given to the preparation of this publication and it contains names, illustrations, prices, discounts, etc., of the many lines carried by this house.

The front cover is of heavy stock, beautifully embossed in gold on a dark background which gives blue leather effect finish. Following the opening page there appears a foreword in which several features of the catalog are outlined, including the advantage to the dealer of assimilating the descriptive material in order to have at first hand basic facts so as to convincingly present them to the customer.

A free offer of a wall display case, of sufficient size to stock and display a fair assortment of musical instruments, with a base equipped with several drawers for supplementary material and small goods, is made in one of the earlier pages of the book. This arrangement allows the dealer to open up a musical merchandise department with a small stock which can be inventoried daily. The design of this display case is a standard one, allowing additional cases to be added when increased stock is planned.

All the lines carried by the Progressive Musical Instrument Corp. are listed and often shown in illustrated form. Among these are the Holton, Deagan, Bacon band instruments, Pruefer clarinets, Bell Brand and Black Diamond strings, Hohner harmonicas, Hohner accordions, music stands, instruction books, phonograph needles, small music boxes and several musical toys.

In presenting the Bell Brand and Black Diamond strings exact reproductions of the open and closed boxes of these products in their several colors appear. Each of these items is given a full page for illustration purposes, on

BUESCHER ADDITION NEARLY READY

Finishing Touches Being Given to $70,000 Addition to the Buescher Plant

ELKHART, IND., December 7.—Workmen are now applying the finishing touches to the $70,000 two-story addition to the Buescher Band Instrument Co. plant, construction of which was begun in June. With its completion the plant covers an entire city block. The assembling, engraving, padding and testing departments are now moving their equipment to the second floor of the new structure. It is 145 feet by 110 feet and adds 31,000 square feet of floor space, bringing the total to 123,000 square feet.

The addition is of mill-type construction, brick and concrete with steel reinforcement. The roof is of the saw-tooth daylight type. With the added room the company plans gradually to bring its force up to 800 employes. Production in the Buescher plant is at this time about 25 per cent below demand, and the addition is expected to relieve this condition.

The growth of the plant since 1919 has been phenomenal. Its original floor space of 30,000 square feet has been increased 400 per cent. In 1920 11,000 square feet were added. Officials of the plant stated recently that, until a year and a half ago, while the saxophone demand overshadowed all other instruments, recent months have seen a phenomenal increase in the demand for all types of horns. It is expected that shortly the silver capacity will be doubled to 3,500 gallons in solution and the gold to 1,000 gallons in solution.

NEW FRED GRETSCH PRICE LIST

Robert Woodwind Instruments Featured in Illustrated Price List for Dealer's Use

The Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturer and importer of musical merchandise, has prepared a new illustrated price list of Robert woodwind instruments. This price list will shortly be placed in the hands of the dealers and will contain space for the dealers' imprints. Business in woodwind instruments is reported exceptionally good and the demand for the Robert line has been such that instruments have been sold faster than it has been possible to get them. M. La Croix woodwind instruments are another big seller in the Gretsch line.

Hohner Publicity Drive Continues

Advertising Campaign on Hohner Harmonicas, Reaching the Public Through Many Channels, to Continue Through the New Year

Hohner sales activities, which reached such large proportions during the year, are continuing strong and are expected to carry straight through 1924. One of the latest dealer aids produced by M. Hohner, New York City, manufacturer of the Hohner harmonicas and accordions, is an attractive folder featuring the "Little Lady" harmonica, with space for the dealer's imprint. Hohner harmonicas continue to be featured before the general public in every conceivable manner. Prominent movie stars, playing and recommending Hohner harmonicas, continue to be played up. Additional broadcasting stations have sent out Hohner harmonica concerts. In the new Warner Bros. film, "Daddies," shortly to be released, the Hohner harmonica plays an attractive part, which will add considerably to the great amount of publicity which it has already received.

Borrah Minevitch, popular Hohner harmonica artist, is now traveling through the principal cities of the Middle West and it is reported that he is booked solid straight up to June, 1924. A recent full page, in color, on the back cover of the American Weekly, with its tremendous circulation, has added to the national campaign.

The Harmonica Week held in Chicago recently was a great success. William J. Haussler, general manager of M. Hohner, went to Chicago personally to aid in the program of the week. Charles B. Hohmann, Western representative, and Sidney J. Winfield, Eastern representative, were also on hand. Intensive advertising, as well as the performances of well-known artists on Hohner harmonicas, together with the combined efforts of the music dealers, put over the week in a big way with a correspondingly favorable result on harmonica sales.

Mr. Haussler reports that during the past year an exceptional number of new talking machine dealers have taken on the Hohner line and although this year was a record one in every sense of the word, it is expected that 1924 will exceed the results of the present year.

OLSEN ORCHESTRA IS ON TOUR

PORTLAND, ORE., December 6.—George Olsen and His Orchestra, one of the foremost and most popular orchestras on the Pacific Coast, are now making a five weeks' tour of the Orpheum Circuit, starting at Denver and ending in Chicago. Olsen's Orchestra is an exclusive Buescher organization, using Buescher instruments made by the Buescher Band Instrument Co., Elkhart, Ind. The sale of Buescher instruments was made by the Seiberling-Lucas Music Co., local agents for the Buescher line.

NEW BRUNO CATALOG BRINGS ORDERS

C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York, importers and wholesalers of musical merchandise, report that the present season is the biggest in their history. The distribution of the new catalog has already resulted in the receipt of a number of large orders, and the outlook for 1924 is reported to be very promising.

ADDS WEYMANN BANJO TO LINE

C. H. Taylor & Co., Jobbers of Musical Merchandise in Chicago, Add Weymann Banjo to Extensive Line of Musical Merchandise

CHICAGO, ILL., December 8.—The rapid growth of C. H. Taylor & Co., 218 South Wabash avenue, and the increased demand for musical merchandise, have required the addition of new lines from time to time. It has just been announced by the company that it will handle the complete line of banjos, mandolins, guitars and ukuleles manufactured by H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., and will feature this line in this territory.

In an interview with The World representative, C. H. Taylor, of the company, said: "We are very enthusiastic over the Weymann line because of the high-class trade to which these instruments appeal. The Weymann instruments are well known and very popular all over, but, of course, particularly in the East, where they are manufactured. However, we intend to create as big a sensation in the West as the instruments have created in the East and have already sold instruments to leading musicians here."

ORGANIZING THE LOCAL BAND

An Example of This Work Done by Beard's Temple of Music, Paragould, Ark.

PARAGOULD, ARK., December 6.—Beard's Temple of Music, advertised as "Arkansas' Premier Music House," is enjoying an excellent season in band and orchestra instruments. It has been doing considerable work lately in the development of bands and orchestras and this has resulted in increased sales of instruments.

The accompanying illustration shows the Paragould Junior Band, organized and equipped by W. J. Beard, on its trip to the State Fair at Little Rock recently. The picture shows Governor McRea and Mr. Beard in the center. The boys range in age from seven to fourteen years. The band is completely equipped with Conn instruments, made by C. G. Conn, Ltd., Elkhart, Ind., for which concern Beard's has the agency.

Hohner at Advertising Show

M. Hohner Features Attractive Display of Harmonicas, Accordions and Advertising Material

Prominent among the displays of the national advertisers at the Advertising Exposition at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, New York City, recently was the booth of M. Hohner, distributor of Hohner harmonicas and accordions, 114 East Sixteenth street, New York City. This booth is one of the most interesting at the show.

Featured in the booth is the display of the many Hohner lithographed cut-outs and display stands. There is the life-sized colored lithograph of Minevitch for display purposes, the famous Hohner Charts, the revolving stand, the collapsible display cabinet, the Jolly Pals Assortment and many others. There is an outline of the wave of harmonica publicity that has swept the newspapers of the country during the past year or more. The Little Lady Hohner harmonicas, the smallest harmonicas made, proved to be the hit of the show.

Hornbeck Opens in Riverhead

NEW GRETSCH DRUM CIRCULAR

Features Three New Twentieth Century Trap Drum Outfits at $50, $60 and $100

The Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co., manufacturer and jobber of band and orchestra instruments and musical merchandise, 60 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., has issued a four-page circular advertising three new Twentieth Century trap drum outfits, priced at $50, $60 and $100, retail. The circular is liberally illustrated with cuts.

The $50 outfit is called the "Student" outfit, and is intended to meet the demands of the beginners for a practical outfit at a modest price. It includes a tango bass drum, snare drum, foot pedal, side cymbal, crash cymbal, crash cymbal holder, wood drum and holder, and snare drum stand. The "Dance" outfit, which retails for $60, has the drums, pedal, cymbals and holders and, in addition, Chinese tom-toms. The $100 "Theatre" outfit has all the above in best quality, and cowbells, ratchet rattle, tambourine, mackintosh drum bag and fibre drum and trap case.

EDISON CHRISTMAS PUBLICITY

The advertising department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has issued a very attractive Christmas folder for the use of Edison dealers in their direct-mail work and distribution of literature in the store. This folder is printed in holiday colors of green and red and features, pictorially and in text, the idea of "Christmas Time Is Music Time." It shows several models of the New Edison, with the prices thereof, and lists the Edison records which are especially appropriate to the holiday season. The folder is admirably conceived.

Vincent Lopez Renews Okeh Record Contract

Well-known Orchestra Director Will Record Exclusively for Okeh Library for Period of Years—Has Attained Wide Success in Recording and in Musical and Theatrical Fields

Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, announced this week that Vincent Lopez, famous orchestra leader and director of the Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, had renewed his contract with the company for a period of years, whereby he makes records for the Okeh library exclusively. Mr. Heineman and his associates have been congratulated upon renewing this contract as Mr. Lopez is recognized to-day as one of the greatest dance orchestra directors in the country.

Thousands of Lopez enthusiasts all over the country will probably learn with interest that this talented musician had ambitions to enter the priesthood long before he embarked upon his musical career. In deference to the wishes of his father, who attained wide success as a bandmaster in Europe, Vincent Lopez went to the monastery of the Passionist Fathers at Dunkirk, N. Y., where he stayed for three years studying to be a missionary. His health broke down, however, and he returned to his father's home in Brooklyn, N. Y., with the definite idea in mind of entering the business world. He took a position as a bookkeeper and secured an opportunity to play the piano evenings for the "Singing Waiters" in a Sheepshead Bay roadhouse. His musical ambitions were inherited, as his father was a noted Spanish musician and his mother an accomplished musician and a member of the Portuguese royal family.

While playing at the roadhouse Vincent Lopez determined to head his own orchestra, so he finally gathered together a group of musicians and obtained an engagement at the Pekin Restaurant, at that time one of Broadway's gayest resorts. He played there for six years until Pat Rooney, popular vaudeville artist, invited him to go with Rooney's new act, "Rings of Smoke." With five men, known as Vincent Lopez and His Kings of Harmony, he played for two years with this production, and later for a year and a half with Pat Rooney's musical comedy, "The Love Bird."

When this second show closed Lopez and his men were engaged to play at a well-known seaside rendezvous, the Ross-Fenton Farm, Asbury Park, N. J. It was while fulfilling this engagement that E. M. Statler, famous hotel man controlling a chain of hotels in the leading cities, heard the Lopez Orchestra and engaged Mr. Lopez to play at the Hotel Pennsylvania Grill. His first orchestra at this hotel comprised eight men, since increased to twelve, and from the inception of his engagement at the Hotel Pennsylvania the rise of Vincent Lopez has been phenomenal.

In the early part of 1922 Vincent Lopez signed a contract with the General Phonograph Corp. to record exclusively for the Okeh library. His first records attained instantaneous success, and Okeh jobbers and dealers have attributed a considerable measure of the country-wide popularity of the Okeh dance library to the records made by Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra. The General Phonograph Corp. realized at the beginning the fact that Vincent Lopez was not only an ideal orchestra leader but an accomplished musician and the various arrangements that he has made of the popular hits in the Okeh library have combined originality with musical merit. The advertising campaign prepared by the General Phonograph Corp. in behalf of Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra has been national in its scope, with the idea of giving the public an adequate impression of the originality of the Vincent Lopez Okeh records. This advertising campaign has been a tremendous success, and during the coming year it will be carried out to a greater degree than ever before. Mr. Lopez takes a keen interest in every Okeh record that he makes, offering ideas and suggestions that have contributed materially to the success of his recordings and the sale of his records.

In addition to his Hotel Pennsylvania engagement, Vincent Lopez is director of all of the orchestras playing in the Statler Hotels in St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo. The orchestras in these hostelrys are under his supervision and direction, thereby giving hotel at the Palace Theatre in New York, the greatest vaudeville house in America, establishing a record for consecutive playing at this theatre. The General Phonograph Corp. is leaving nothing undone to co-operate with Mr. Lopez and his orchestra in a way that will help the company's jobbers and dealers in stimulating sales, and the contract just signed indicates Mr. Lopez's complete satisfaction with his Okeh recordings.

Among the latest Okeh records made by Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra are "Covered Wagon Days" and "Sittin' in patrons ideal dance music and adding immeasurably to Mr. Lopez's prestige. For the past two years Vincent Lopez and His Orchestra have been headliners on the Keith vaudeville circuit, although his engagement at the Hotel Pennsylvania has made a country-wide tour impracticable. For over ten weeks the act played a Corner," which is meeting with countrywide popularity, and a twelve-inch record featuring "Bouquet of Roses" and "Excerpts From Carmen." This is the first twelve-inch record made by Vincent Lopez and is a combination of two special arrangements that he has used very successfully on the vaudeville stage.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the thirty-third of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

NEW ERA IN RECORD DEVELOPMENT

No one who is really well acquainted with the facts will be likely to deny that the present position of the talking machine record business is in the highest degree interesting and important. The American public has, for many years, been coming around very gradually, but on the whole steadily, to see that the talking machine offers possibilities for the cultivation of music which are not surpassed by any other conceivable embodiment of musical expression. The statement may indeed appear to be platitudinous; but when we consider the facts and realize how slowly comes any general public realization of interest in matters of art, we shall see that the day is only now at hand when we can ask ourselves seriously how far the musical possibilities of the talking machine can be exploited in an artistic direction, and along new lines, during the immediate future.

There is, in short, a growing interest in, and appreciation of, good music. Not that there has not been all the exploitation that can be imagined possible of popular music in all its branches. It is rather that the better classes of music have gradually come into their own, so that the public in general feels regarding them that they really now represent what a talking machine exists to perform. The dance music, the popular songs, the comic stuff, the jazz, all have their place, but these are subject to competition in one direction and another which renders impossible any monopoly by the talking machine in respect of performing them. On the other hand, the things that the talking machine gives in the way of high-class artistic music it may be said to give, in general terms, quite uniquely and much better than they can be given through any other medium.

The Preserver of Music

The talking machine does something that no other instrument of music does, or can do. It acts in the world of music an unique and peculiar part, for it is the preserver, the fixer, of that essentially fluid thing, musical performance. Musical performance comes, moves and is gone. The talking machine record catches and fixes it, not indirectly but directly, not in one and a limited direction, but in every direction, on all classes of music and in every conceivable kind of musical performance. It is the preserver of great musical interpretation, and each piece of its work is done forever, and done correctly, when it is done once.

The Stir in Music

Naturally then, although the work of educating the public to see this fact has been slow, its results have been sure. To-day the great masses of people, of every sort and kind, of every type and style of intelligence which make up the population of the United States, is stirred in matters musical as it has not been stirred before. The war has operated as one of the principal causes of this mental inquietude which is so healthy a symptom of the contemporary thought in all matters of culture. People are thinking to-day, as they never thought before, and are seeking in all directions for answers to important, nay, to essential questions, which once they took as answered or for granted. In religion, in politics, in social relations, thought is untrammelled to an extraordinary extent, and the same is true of the arts. In music especially, which is the one art that shows to-day true life and energy, there is a wonderful stirring. Even the excitement about those exaggerated forms of musical expression which we denominate jazz, blues and all that sort of thing indicate a healthy stirring. The people want music, lots of it, and the more they want of all sorts the more they want of the best sort. That is a fact which no talking machine man will be disposed to deny after examining the condition that exists in the record field.

On the other hand, however, there is one thing that must be said about the relation of the talking machine business and the talking machine record to the present healthy movement in music appreciation. The time is not a time for timidity. It is a time to reach out and seize the opportunity which is presenting itself, and to recognize that the old days of hesitation need no longer mean anything to us. In a word, let us now realize that it is up to us to say whether the talking machine shall or shall not take its place before the intelligence of a people each year more appreciative, as the means unsurpassed for the preservation and expression of the treasures of musical art which that dawning and growing intelligence is just now beginning to demand.

The Inexhaustible Mine

There exist splendid libraries of recorded music, but they are not generally known to the public; at least to the extent one would like to see and ought to see. There is a marvelous wealth of recorded interpretation already in existence, but there is still more an inexhaustible mine of still greater and still finer interpretation awaiting the preservative touch of the recorder. The time is a time of unexampled musical activity. The annals of musical art are filled with new and often important names. New ideas in composition and new ideas in interpretation jostle each other. Shall we let these pass and make no attempt to fix them?

Even closer at home are the great, the immortal, masterpieces of music which have been for years the standbys of orchestras and executive musicians, but which even to-day the great general public know hardly at all. Think of the extraordinary range of fine music in the most popular of all artistic forms—the opera!

Think how much the opera means to us all and what a delight all kinds of persons take in it. Then think how very little is known about the masterpieces of opera by these men and women! Take away a few works like "Faust," "Carmen," "Tannhauser" or "Samson and Delilah" and what have we left in common estimation? Yet the greatest operas are not even mentioned among these, nor the finest passages in operatic literature. Look at the magnificent "Boris Godounoff," which has crowded the opera houses of this country for every performance that has been given of it. How many know of it one single thing, save that one great artist has contributed his magnificent interpretation of a few of the principal numbers. Yet from end to end this is the most fascinating music, and the whole opera, allowing for a few judicious cuts, could be recorded and profitably sold to the people the very moment that this public was put into intelligent rapport with the facts and made to know about them.

Done and Undone

Sometimes one is led to believe that the talking machine industry does not begin to realize the inexhaustible riches which lie at its hand in the untrodden fields of musical interpretation. Vocally we have done pretty well, we are beginning to do fairly well in the orchestral line, but outside these departments we leave the field nearly untouched. Even orchestrally the trouble with us has been that we have done things scappily and have given the people tag-ends of orchestral music when we ought to have given them a carefully prepared and organized diet calculated to lead them on from the familiar to the unfamiliar until the riches of the orchestral kingdom were at the disposal of every owner of a talking machine, and by each of these wanted eagerly and discriminatingly.

Even vocally we have been unsystematic, though indeed the riches we already have are splendid. But we have been unsystematic, and it is time to begin traveling in the opposite direction. Let us begin to organize our music libraries, reducing the art of recording to a science by the adoption of a sound system of selection and choice.

To sum it all up, then, the time is here for considering that the future of the talking machine lies in developing its artistic musical possibilities to the utmost, that this can only be done by developing also to the utmost the scientific selection of artistic music, to the end that the eager but uninstructed public may be judiciously guided and led on from simple to complex, till in the fullness of time the industry shall have come into its own and be the one perfect purveyor of musical culture to the millions who now blindly are seeking it.

Nor need we in the least imagine that such a policy will be unprofitable.

PLAZA NEEDLE COUNTER DISPLAY

The Plaza Music Co., 18 West Twentieth street, New York City, recently placed before the trade a counter display stand and silent salesman for the sale of its "Magnedo" needle. This is a multi-playing needle with gold finish, compactly boxed and produced in loud, extra-loud and medium tone.

Dealers Look for Record Business as Holiday Rush Gets Under Way—Advertising Boosts Sales—"Talkers" Proving Popular Gifts

SYRACUSE, N. Y., December 10.—The lethargy which had gripped the trade during part of November has entirely disappeared and this section of the State is now enjoying a busy Christmas season. This improvement followed the release by banks throughout this section of the State of huge sums of money saved by individuals in Christmas clubs. Thousands of people, especially factory workers, depend upon this money for funds to purchase Christmas gifts and, consequently, buying was held up until the savings had been distributed. At the present rate the retail trade will more than make up the loss occasioned by the delay. Instead of spreading over a period of four or five weeks the business will be concentrated through two or three weeks at most, but the sales volume of the dealers will be as great, if not greater, than last year.

Advertising Boosts Sonora Sales

Some nice business is being done by the Sonora retailers, according to a report by the Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., distributor of the Sonora line of phonographs in this territory. The national advertising campaign, which included some excellent and very effective copy in local mediums, has been instrumental in centering the attention of the public on the Sonora and, naturally, the retail trade is reaping the profits of this publicity. This advertising is being supplemented by special pre-Christmas publicity campaigns in the local newspapers by individual dealers, and the results are manifesting themselves in sales. Orders being received by the Gibson-Snow Co. indicate that dealers are cleaning out their stocks, and when the year ends inventories will be low.

Clark Co. Installs Audaks

The Clark Music Co., one of the live dealers in this city, has prepared to give speedy and efficient service to its large following of customers during the Christmas rush by installing a battery of Audaks, the record demonstrating device which eliminates the necessity of booths. One Audak was first thoroughly tried out and it proved so satisfactory that a series of them was immediately installed. They are now in operation and are giving satisfactory service. These are used to supplement the booths, which because of the fact that only one customer at a time can use a booth and the floor space limits prohibit more than a few of them, often result in delays in service which have a detrimental influence on business.

Victrolas Popular as Gifts

Victor dealers in this city and environs are cashing in on the popularity of Victor talking machines and records as Christmas gifts. The W. D. Andrews Co., Victor wholesaler, with headquarters here, is rushing instruments to the dealers it serves as rapidly as possible. There is an optimistic feeling throughout the trade that the windup of the year will show up very well in comparison to similar seasons of other years, and there is general optimism on the part of both wholesalers and retailers that 1924 will be even busier and more prosperous than the present year. This optimism, however, is tempered with the knowledge that big business will be the reward of only those dealers who go out after talking machine and record sales with the determination to win.

Fairs a Fertile Field

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., recently received a photograph from the Utica (N. Y.) Phonograph & Supply Co., which was taken at one of the several fairs where the members of this company exhibited the New Edison phonograph within the last two months. In the photograph the members of the firm are shown, including E. B. Kuhl, who is a very fine cornetist and who played a great deal at these exhibitions in direct unison with the cornet solos on the New Edison. The members of this company have made it a point to cover all the fairs held in the vicinity of Utica during the past two months and obtained a large number of prospects, and also reported several sales which can be directly traced to the displays made during these exhibitions.

Trade Visitors

Visitors to this section of the State recently included "Pop" Bristol, of Bristol & Barber, prominent distributors of New York City, who stopped off in Rochester. Mr. Bristol has a host of friends in this section who gave him a cordial welcome.

George Clay Cox, well-known talking machine dealer of Rochester, was a visitor to Geneva and other sections of the northwestern part of the State the past month.

On a Florida Vacation

William F. Hitchcock, of the Phonomotor Co., Rochester, accompanied by Mrs. Hitchcock, sailed recently for Florida, where they plan to spend the remainder of the year and the early part of next year.

A. FODOR OPTIMISTIC OVER OUTLOOK

Vice-president and General Manager of Vox Corp. of America Tells of His Plans and Expectations as Far as Company Is Concerned

A. Fodor, vice-president and general manager of the Vox Corp. of America, who has for the past five years been acting as a technical adviser in the talking machine trade in this country, is also intimately familiar through his association with the European Vox Co. with talking machine conditions abroad. Therefore, although only newly engaged in the talking machine business in this country, Mr. Fodor is quite familiar with conditions and has made a thorough analysis of the field.

In speaking with a representative of The World Mr. Fodor made mention of his future plans for the Vox Corp., which, by the way, are most extensive. He said, in part:

"Although for the past five years I have been working in the talking machine trade mainly as a technical adviser, I still consider myself a newcomer, because as director-general of the Vox Corp. of America I am, for the first time, engaging in the manufacture and marketing of a line of phonographs and kindred products. Needless to say, my extensive study of the field before launching the Vox Corp. here has given me a most optimistic outlook for the approaching year and those to come.

"I intend to profit by the splendid example set by great figures who have made the talking machine industry. These men have developed the field from its crude beginning to the magnificent and important industry of to-day. In the same manner that other great organizations have reached renown in their respective field, I intend to guide the Vox Corp. to its particular place in the sun. I am confident that we will make our slogan, 'The Voice of the World,' and our trade-mark of the cubist singing head just as popular here as it has become throughout the rest of the world."

The NEW EDISON Phonograph

Our Proposition to Efficient Merchants—

We desire representation at certain points in New York State. With this in mind we will bring to your town an Edison Instrument so you can hear for yourself how well Mr. Thomas A. COLUMBIA PLAN NOW OPERATIVE

Readjustment Committee Making Rapid Progress—Plan of Operation Has Been Fully Approved by the Creditors and Note Holders

The plan and agreement of reorganization of Columbia Graphophone Mfg. Co., promulgated by the readjustment committee, of which Mortimer N. Buckner is chairman, has been declared operative. The plan has the approval of 100 per cent of the bank creditors, 100 per cent of the merchandise and supply creditors (as of April 6, 1922, as new obligations have been settled in cash), 89 per cent of the five-year notes and 93 per cent of the preferred stock of the Factories Corp. Additional holders of notes and preferred stock have indicated their early approval.

The committee is confident that, with the various readjustments which the plan contemplates, and under the present efficient management, there will be a larger place for Columbia activities and operations in the phonograph industry.

The company has a physical plant and equipment in excess of its needs and the plan gives full power to the reorganization to determine how much of plant and equipment are to be retained. The committee is satisfied that no reorganization can be successfully carried through without relief from the burdens of excess plant and equipment.

The plan provides for a new company to be known as the operating company, which is to acquire sufficient facilities for conservatively estimated sales requirements. Ample working capital is to be furnished the operating company. The plan further provides that remaining assets are to be acquired by a second company to be known as the liquidating company, which in due course is expected to dispose of these assets to best possible advantage.

TAKES OVER BANKRUPT DISTRIBUTOR

The offer of $6,700 made by Robert Goodman to the creditors of the Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., New York, for the purchase of this distributing business, was accepted at a meeting held on Tuesday, December 4. After the referee has deducted the administration expenses the creditors will receive their proportionate amounts which, it is expected, will net about 12 or 13 per cent. It is also expected that the purchaser will continue the business.

CLOSES SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS TRIP

Louis J. Unger, of Reflexo Products, Inc., New York City, recently completed a trade tour in the interest of Gilt Edge and Reflexo blue steel needles which was successful in every respect. Orders for immediate delivery continue strong, while the outlook for 1924 is reported as very promising indeed.

Widdicomb

PHONOGRAPH
The Aristocrat of Phonographs

How you can attract the better class of trade

IT is an unquestioned fact that Widdicomb Phonographs in period style possess an unusual attraction for the discriminating buyer because of their two fold appeal—rare tonal quality and exquisite cabinet work.

These two prerequisites for worth-while sales have always been unmistakably evident in all Widdicomb models—which accounts perhaps for the Widdicomb's large following among stores catering more especially to people of culture, refinement and social position.

If you are interested in increasing your patronage among this class of trade, we shall be glad to present the facts showing how the Widdicomb franchise can become a distinct asset to you. Write for catalog and full particulars.

DAVIN CELEBRATES TENTH "BIRTHDAY"

Popular Victor Man Entered Industry Ten Years Ago—Has Won Friendship of Dealers and Jobbers Throughout the Trade

The many friends in the trade of J. J. Davin, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, will undoubtedly be interested to learn that on next Tuesday (December 18) this popular Victor man will celebrate his tenth "birthday." The word birthday is used figuratively, however, and not literally, for on December 18, 1913, "Jimmie," as he is known to all of his friends, embarked upon his career in the Victor industry. During the past ten years he has won the esteem and respect of Victor dealers and jobbers from coast to coast and has acquired an intimate knowledge of every detail of the Victor industry.

J. J. Davin

Mr. Davin's first connection with the Victor trade was in the capacity of a member of the sales staff of the New York Talking Machine Co., which at that time was located at 81 Chambers street. After spending about seven years with this company and working in close co-operation with the dealers in metropolitan territory he joined the forces of the Reincke-Ellis Co., Chicago, being appointed manager of of the New York branch of this organization, later going to Chicago as secretary of the company. He remained with Reincke-Ellis for two years, visiting Victor jobbers and dealers throughout the country in the interest of the Victor sales and publicity helps prepared by this company.

About a year ago "Jim" again heard the call of the jobbing industry and joined the organization of Ormes, Inc., Victor wholesaler, which several months ago was consolidated with the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York. He is now devoting all of his time to the development of Victor business for the dealers in metropolitan territory and his thorough knowledge of Victor merchandising has enabled him to offer the dealers practical and profitable suggestions. It is generally recognized that Mr. Davin is one of the best posted Victor record men in the field and the various ideas that he has introduced for the stimulation of record sales have proved invaluable to the dealers using them. His decade of activities in the Victor industry has imbued him with an unflinching optimism that is one of his many outstanding qualities.

BAGSHAW SUFFERS FIRE LOSS

Warehouse of Prominent Needle Manufacturer Damaged—Production Not Affected

LOWELL, MASS., December 8.—The large storage warehouse of the W. H. Bagshaw Co., talking machine needle manufacturer of this city, which is popularly known as the Warren street warehouse, was badly damaged by a fire of unknown origin which occurred on Friday evening. This warehouse adjoins the large factory buildings of the Bagshaw Co. and for a while these buildings were seriously threatened. By prompt work of the fire department, however, the damaged area was limited to the warehouse.

Although all packing material was destroyed, production was not affected in the least and is keeping up at full speed to take care of the tremendous orders. It is stated, however, that there is liable to be a temporary delay on shipments due to the packing material being destroyed. New material has already been ordered and every effort will be expended to catch up with lost time.

VICTOR RETAIL DEALER HELPS

Effective Advertising Matter for Use of Victor Dealers Bearing on the Weekly Releases

Since the latter part of September, that is to say, since the adoption by the Victor Co. of the weekly plan of releasing records, the advertising department of the Victor Co. has been preparing very effective advertising matter for the use of Victor retailers. Each and every week a set of advertisements is mailed to each Victor dealer. These mailings include proofs of completely set up advertisements. The illustrations shown are available in electrotype or mat form to Victor dealers without charge and the copy which appears in these advertisements has been prepared by experts in the advertising field. The advertisements cover a variety of sizes of space and types of copy appeal and relate to both the record and machine ends of the Victor business. Incidentally, the statement is made on good authority that the electrotype orders filled by the Victor Co. in behalf of the Victor dealers run into a volume which exceeds the electrotype orders of any company, not only in this field, but in any other field.

INDIANAPOLIS

Holiday Season Closing One of the Best Years in the Trade—Careful Merchandising Pays—New Stores and Other Activities

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., December 7.—This month will bring to a close one of the most prosperous years enjoyed by the talking machine dealers in the Indianapolis and Indiana territory in a long time. Sales have been good all year. Starting with January collections have been generally good, and, considering the large number of machines sold on the deferred-payment plan, this is an item of no small importance. Dealers have been discriminating in the class of trade to which credit is extended and deferred-payment contracts offered, and this has resulted in this condition of good collections and has accordingly reduced the relative number of repossessions. Just what the new year will bring is more or less a matter of speculation. E. G. Hereth, of the Baldwin Piano Co. of Indiana, points out that many people are going from one store to another looking at instruments, but undecided as to the machine they prefer.

Edison will round out a very prosperous year in Indiana, according to F. G. Pullen, of the Phonograph Co. of Indiana. A large number of new dealer accounts have been opened during the year, particularly during the past six months. Practically all of these new dealers have been successful in making a good volume of sales and this, added to the activities of those who have handled Edison goods in the past, gives the Edison a sales effort which is bound to do business. One of the latest additions to the Edison organization is the new Meskill Music Co. store at Muncie, Ind., which, with the Meskill store in Indianapolis, will be operated by W. G. Meskill, formerly with the Phonograph Corp. A. J. Huber will be manager of the Muncie store. The Meskill store in Indianapolis has been doing a very good business and the new Muncie store is making a good start in a good field.

Victor products have been good sellers during the year, and have done correspondingly well during November and thus far this month. The Victor department of the L. S. Ayres department store had a very good month in records, according to R. R. Follis. Ira Williams, manager of the Victor department of the Pettis Dry Goods Co., reports good sales of both machines and records. Both of these stores will more than exceed their figures for 1922 sales. The Taylor Carpet Co. has been featuring Victor products in special advertising with very good results. This store handles Victor goods exclusively and features a sealed record service which carries a strong appeal to record buyers. W. A. Armstrong, merchandising manager in charge of the Victor department of this store, cites instances of large orders of records being shipped to American missionaries in China and Japan, solely on the strength of the appeal which the sealed envelope, assuring the purchaser of an unused record, carries. The Fuller-Ryde Music Co. did a good business during the month, but a hesitancy on the part of prospects is noticed by Joel B. Ryde, of this house. Albert Graham, manager of the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co., reports a good demand for Victor machines and a very good volume of record sales.

I. Seidel, proprietor of the Lyric Theatre Music Shop, Columbia dealer, is opening a new store in Irvington, a suburb of Indianapolis. Modern fixtures and hearing rooms are being installed and it is expected that this store will enjoy an unusual business right from the start, due to Mr. Seidel's connection with the music trade in Indianapolis.

Miss Helen Barnes, a representative of the Columbia Phonograph Co., Chicago branch, was a recent visitor here, helping local Columbia dealers with their problems.

F. X. Donovan, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., says that while he has noticed a slight falling off in the demand for machines, record sales have been unusually good. There seems to be an increasing demand for Cheney machines, Mr. Donovan says, and the ratio of Cheneys to machines of other makes sold is increasing in favor of the former. The fiftieth anniversary sale of the Pearson store closed on Saturday, December 1. The campaign was a tremendous success, largely the result of intensive efforts.

Retail sales of the Sonora machine have been very good at Charles Mayer & Co., Banner Furniture Co. and Widener stores, and all of these houses are looking forward to a good holiday business. The medium and higher priced console models are the most popular in this territory. The Widener store has also done the usual Victor and Columbia business and by featuring the special Columbia demonstration record in window displays has sold a large quantity of this number.

Brunswick dealers report a good amount of sales with splendid prospects for a large holiday business. Both the Baldwin Piano Co. and the Brunswick Shop have been featuring Brunswick machines and records in special holiday advertising, and the Brunswick Shop has used some successful tie-ups in recent advertising with local appearances of orchestras which Brunswick records.

H. J. Wilcks, of the Columbia Phonograph Co., recently made a trip to Dayton, Hamilton, Cincinnati and Indianapolis. He reports unusual activity among southern Ohio dealers on the new Columbia models which were recently announced.

RUDOLF POLK NEW REGAL ARTIST

American Violinist, Famous Here and Abroad, to Record Exclusively for the Regal Record Co.—Extensive Campaign Planned

Rudolf Polk, an American violinist, will record for the Regal Record Co., Inc., exclusively, according to the latest announcement from the executive offices of that company.

Mr Polk was born in New York City and carried his art to Europe, reversing the usual process.

Mr. Polk, who is a pupil of Henri Marteau, had, in spite of his youth, achieved remarkable artistic successes here before going abroad, where he has now won for himself a high place during the past year. His impeccable technique and scholarly interpretations, coupled with an ingratiating personalty which counts so strongly on the concert stage, have won the approval of the leading critics in several continental countries, where he has been hailed as "the biggest hit among the American artists" and as "undoubtedly the most promising of all the foreign artists." His concert at Carnegie Hall on November 11 was a decided success.

The Regal Record Co. will shortly inaugurate a campaign featuring the works of this newest addition to its staff of recording artists.

ELABORATE 1924 EDISON CATALOG

New Record Catalog Contains Complete Classification of Records, Lists Artists and Contains Illustrations of Machine Models

The 1924 catalog of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., entitled "Edison Records," recently made its debut. This catalog is a considerably more elaborate affair than that for the previous year. It contains over 500 pages and presents all of the Edison records in a completely classified manner. Records are classified by artists, by type of music, alphabetically, foreign, etc. The introductory pages are similar to those in the catalog for the previous year and feature the re-creation of music as developed by Thomas A. Edison. The catalog also gives a list of the Edison artists and a list of the different models of the New Edison with the prices thereof.

ADD-A-TONE PRESIDENT VISITS WEST

Herman Segal, president of the Unique Reproduction Co., Inc., New York, manufacturer of the Add-A-Tone amplifier, recently returned from a trip to Chicago and mid-Western territory. "New distributors were appointed to handle the growing demand in the Middle West and a general survey of the needs of the trade was made," said Mr. Segal upon his return. Conditions seem healthy among both the jobbers and dealers and substantial orders have been received from the trade throughout the West.

STRAND MODEL ACCOMMODATES RADIO

Manufacturers Phono. Co. Introduces Model in Which Standard Radio Sets May Be Installed —Trade Keenly Interested in Innovation

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the Strand phonograph, announced this week that his company had made arrangements to place on the market a Strand console model designed to accommodate standard radio receiving sets. This instrument comprises a regular Strand model on one side while on the other side there is an instrument board which will accommodate many of the standard radio sets now on the market. A unique feature of this instrument is a loud speaker connection that does not require removal of the sound box.

Mr. Lyle states that Strand jobbers and dealers who have been advised regarding this radio model are keenly enthusiastic regarding its sales possibilities, for it can be merchandised complete with a radio set, or can be sold as a talking machine with the idea of installing the radio set at some future date. Mr. Lyle spent the greater part of the past year visiting the trade throughout the country and the introduction of the new Strand radio model was made in recognition of the suggestions offered by his jobbers and dealers. It is the belief of the Strand selling organization that there will be an active demand during 1924 for a console model that will accommodate standard radio receiving sets and the new instrument meets all requirements in this respect. Deliveries of the new model are being made during the current month and plans are being made for an active sale of this instrument during 1924.

E. C. Malarkey, who operates a chain of music stores in Pennsylvania, has moved his Shamokin store into new quarters in the Zuern Building, 510 North Shamokin street, following extensive alterations. The Victor line of machines and records is handled.

The Greatest Fall Business in our History!

Extraordinary Value of Cheney Line Brings Deluge of Holiday Orders

Dealers are saying: "It's the greatest phonograph line that we can handle." They are backing their statements with orders. Never before has The Cheney been in such widespread demand. Dealers everywhere tell us they find a growing appreciation of The Cheney in the public mind—a conviction that The Cheney is genuinely superior.

From the dealer's standpoint, he finds the line admirably suited to his needs. Note particularly the models illustrated. Cheney console models reflect unmatched elegancy in design and workmanship—yet they retail as low as $165. Similarly, Cheney upright models take their place in the home with dignity and elegant simplicity—and such models retail as low as $100.

Above all, every Cheney model is a real Cheney with the tone quality, which only the Cheney acoustic system can develop. Such distinctive superiority makes The Cheney easy to sell. It is unquestionably "the most perfect music-reproducing instrument."

To insure complete stocks for holiday trade it is essential that dealers place their orders at once

To Introduce New Copyright Bill in Congress

Bill Prepared by Register of Copyright, if Passed, Will Permit the United States to Enter the International Copyright Union, Giving American Composers Reciprocal Rights

Below is given the proposed draft of a bill to amend the Copyright Law in order to permit the United States to enter the International Copyright Union. This bill has been prepared by the Register of Copyright and will be introduced at an early date in the session of Congress which has just opened.

The passing of this proposed measure will grant reciprocal rights to foreign authors necessary for American composers and publishers to take advantage of the new Canadian Copyright Act.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized to effect and proclaim the adhesion of the United States to the convention creating an international union for the protection of literary and artistic works, known also as the International Copyright Union, signed at Berne, Switzerland, September 9, 1886, and revised at Berlin, Germany, November 13, 1908, and to the "Additional protocol" to the said convention executed at Berne, Switzerland, March 20, 1914.

SEC. 2. That it is hereby declared that the United States desires to be placed in the first class of the countries which are members of the International Copyright Union, as provided in article 23 of the said convention of 1908.

SEC. 3. That the rights and remedies granted by the Act entitled "An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright," approved March 4, 1909, and the Acts amendatory thereof shall be, and are hereby, extended to the authors of works of architecture, and choreographic works and pantomimes, as class (n) and class (o), respectively, in the list of classes of copyright works in section 5 of the said Act; but the copyright of a work of architecture shall cover only its artistic character and design and shall not extend to processes or methods of construction nor shall it prevent the making or publishing of photographs, paintings or other illustrations thereof, and the proprietor of the copyright shall not be entitled to obtain an injunction restraining the construction of an infringing building, or an order for its demolition.

SEC. 4. That on and after the date of the President's proclamation, as provided in section 1 of this Act, foreign authors not domiciled in the United States who are citizens or subjects of any country (other than the United States) which is a member of the International Copyright Union, or authors whose works are first published in and enjoy copyright protection in any country which is a member of the said Union, shall have within the United States the same rights and remedies in regard to their works which citizens of the United States possess under the copyright laws of the United States, and for the period of copyright prescribed by said laws, including any term of copyright renewal: Provided, however, That no right or remedy given pursuant to this Act shall prejudice lawful acts done or rights in copies lawfully made or the continuance of enterprises lawfully undertaken within the United States prior to the date of said proclamation.

SEC. 5. That in the case of works by such authors first produced or published after the date of the said proclamation the copyright protection in the United States shall begin upon such date of first production or publication; and in the case of all of their works, not previously copyrighted in the United States, in which copyright is subsisting in any country of the Copyright Union at the date of said proclamation, the copyright protection in the United States shall begin upon such date; but the duration and termination of the copyright protection in the United States for all works shall be governed by the provisions of sections 23 and 24 of the said Copyright Act of 1909: Provided, however, that the duration of copyright in the United States shall not in the case of any foreign work extend beyond the date at which such work has fallen into the public domain in the country of origin.

SEC. 6. That the enjoyment and the exercise by such foreign authors not domiciled in the United States of the rights and remedies accorded by the copyright laws of the United States and the provisions of this Act shall not be subject to the performance of any formalities in order to secure copyright, and such foreign authors shall not be required to comply with the provisions of the copyright laws of the United States as to publication with notice of copyright, deposit of copies, registration of copyright, or manufacture within the limits of the United States.

SEC. 7. That the provisions of section 31 of the said Act of 1909 shall apply to any work by a foreign author only when two copies of such work shall have been deposited after publication and manufacture as required by the said Act of 1909, under an assignment of the United States copyright recorded in the Copyright Office.

SEC. 8. That the Supreme Court of the United States shall prescribe such additional or modified rules and regulations as may be necessary for practice and procedure in any action, suit, or proceeding instituted for infringement of copyright under the provisions of this Act.

MARKS SIGNS CHERNIAVSKY

Secures Exclusive Services of Director of Thomashefsky's Theatre for Number of Years

The Edward B. Marks Music Co. has signed for a term of years the exclusive services of Cherniavsky, musical director of Thomashefsky's Broadway Theatre. His present musical comedy success, "Three Little Business Men," is drawing crowded houses and the melodies, "Oh, Say the Word" and "Money and Love," will, undoubtedly, prove good sellers.

Cherniavsky graduated from the Petrograd Conservatory in 1911 with the title Artist Laureate. Later he studied in Leipzig, following which he made a European and international tour. Many of his compositions are included in the repertoire of Heifetz, Elman, Zimbalist and others.

GARBER IN WIDE DEMAND

Garber-Davis Orchestra, New Victor Artists, Has More Engagements Than It Can Fill

Jan Garber and His Garber-Davis Orchestra, which was recently added to the musical combinations playing exclusively for the Victor Talking Machine Co., has been hailed as one of the best musical attractions which have entered the field in months. The orchestra is now playing for a nightly minimum guarantee of $500 with the privilege of 50 per cent of the gate receipts. It played at the Army and Navy Ball, at the Ambassador Hotel, New York, on November 23, receiving $1,000 for four hours'

Jan Garber and His Garber-Davis Orchestra

work with a bonus for every hour after that period. It is also to play at the Charity Ball, Elmira, N. Y., and was the added and unbilled surprise attraction of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., Ball, held at the Pennsylvania Hotel on November 21. The records of this orchestra, recently released by the Victor Co., are having an active sale and, following the unusual recognition this musical combination is receiving, the mechanical renditions will become very popular.

Boucher Bros., of Rumford, Me., Columbia dealers, recently sold their business to the Rumford Furniture Co., which will continue to feature the Columbia in a large way.

WITMARK EXPLOITATION PLANS

"I'm Sittin' Pretty," "Midnight Rose" and "Bebe" Leaders in Catalog

M. Witmark & Sons have increased the number of professionals who are singing their new novelty song, "I'm Sittin' Pretty in a Pretty Little City." This has not lessened their efforts in behalf of "Midnight Rose" and "Bebe," both of which are being programmed by a long list of vaudeville artists. Besides the vaudeville artists who will sing this number the song will be tied up with orchestras everywhere, motion picture houses, theatres, cabarets, as well as being heard frequently on the radio.

Mrs. A. J. Stasny, head of the A. J. Stasny Music Co., Inc., sailed for England early this month where she will visit the Stasny English branch and subsidiary retail establishments in the British Isles.

VON TILZER IN NEW OFFICES

Occupies Entire Third Floor in Building at 1587 Broadway, New York

The Harry Von Tilzer Music Publishing Co. has leased the entire third floor at 1587 Broadway, southwest corner of Forty-eighth street, for a term of years. This floor was the original home of the National Vaudeville Artists and is ideal for a popular music publisher.

This move to much larger space by the above house is further evidence of the great progress made by the Von Tilzer organization since its reorganization. Its present catalog has been most active and some new issues are shortly to be announced. Plans for making the Von Tilzer organization one of the leading houses in the popular publishing field are quite extensive and the new home is one of the first.

NEW FEIST NUMBERS

Among the new numbers added to the catalog of Leo Feist, Inc., which are to be included in the Feist activities during the balance of the present year and the early part of 1924 are "Linger Awhile," "When Lights Are Low," "You Didn't Care When You Broke My Heart," "Along the Rainbow Trail," "Take, Oh! Take Those Lips Away," "My Sweetie's Sweeter Than That," "Before You Go," "That's Everything," "Eileen" and "In Arcady."

FOX NUMBER IN "TOPICS OF 1923"

The new show, "Topics of 1923," in which the famous French actress, Alice Delysia, is starred, had its premier performance in Atlantic City the week of November 12. The Sam Fox Publishing Co. is very fortunate in having its new Parisian success, "Nights in the Woods," used as the interpretive music for one of the scenes of the show, entitled "On the Boulevard."

NEW "LA ROSITA" VOCAL EDITION

Use of Number in Capitol Theatre Presentation Creates Immediate Demand

The Sam Fox Publishing Co. was pressed to rush into print a vocal edition of its former instrumental success, "La Rosita," following its

ing that name, it will also be used as the theme in the musical score when the picture is played elsewhere. Rothafel, who is responsible for the many musical settings at the Capitol Theatre, has, in the above case, arranged an unusual, unique and elaborate prologue and the musical piece bearing the same name justifies this thought and attention, as it is a beautiful, holland as soprano lead, and a male quartet, gave the rendition of "Rosita" a background that not only placed the mind of the audience in a receptive mood for the photoplay to come, but impressed the melody upon those present in a manner that made it hard to forget.

"Bring Back That Old-Fashioned Waltz" Makes Big Hit With Buffalo Public

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 8.—Sheet music dealers in Buffalo report that the new song recently released by Jerome H. Remick Co., "Bring Back That Old-Fashioned Waltz," is one of the best sellers on their counters. It was written by Albert Hay Malotte, a Buffalo songwriter, who is becoming famous for his ability as a writer of waltz music. Over 3,000 copies have been sold in Buffalo. Other good sellers are "I Want You," "No, No, Nora," "You Didn't Want Me When I Wanted You" and "Every Night I Cry Myself to Sleep Over You." Dealers generally report the demand for sheet music good.

The Paul Whiteman offices are opening a subsidiary branch in Philadelphia to build up bookings throughout the Middle Atlantic States. Elsie Hild, office manager for United Orchestras, Inc., will spend part of her time in New York and part in charge of the new office.

use as a vocal prologue to the photoplay showing of "Rosita" at the Capitol Theatre, New York, which was recently held over for a second week's appearance. The vocal edition of this Sam Fox success will carry the title "Rosita" and, in addition to being the musical prologue to the photoplay exhibition of the picture bearrythmical, Spanish tango melody of most appropriate caliber. The scene is a public square of a Spanish city in the days of the Spanish cavaliers, with a typical Saracenic castle background. Doris Niles, in a Spanish dancer's costume, supported by the Capitol Ensemble, with Florence Mulin various cities of the country under the auspices of the Victor Co. and in co-operation with local jobbers, has now joined the forces of the American Piano Co., being connected with the Ampico Studios, where the Ampico recordings for the reproducing piano are made and handled.

In his new post Mr. Delano will be able to profit in a large measure from his experience in developing the sales of Red Seal records, for his work will consist largely of suggesting to Ampico dealers ways and means for increasing the sale of Ampico records of high-class music by noted artists. This new department of the American Piano Co. represents an innovation in the matter of music roll selling and the results will be watched with great interest by the trade generally.

HEARST BEGINS NATIONAL DRIVE

Fred K. Steele Appointed New York Professional Manager—Numbers Being Featured

Thomas J. Quigley, the former Chicago manager of M. Witmark & Sons and who was recently appointed general manager of Hearst Music Publishers, Ltd., has arranged plans for a national exploitation campaign on this firm's publications. A number of important moves by the Hearst organization will also go into immediate effect and among these are the establishment of new executive offices in the Garrick Building, Chicago, Ill.

Another item of interest to the trade and profession is the appointment of Fred K. Steele, who was formerly with the Broadway Music Corp., as manager of professional activities in the New York offices of the Hearst Co. Hearst Music Publishers, Ltd., started its music publishing business last year in Canada in a small way and in a comparatively short space of time has achieved unusual and impressive success. It now operates large offices in New York, Chicago, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver and Winnipeg.

Among its numbers that are well known to the trade are "Beautiful Rose," "In the Land of Sweet Sixteen," "Ginny," "Some Day You'll Cry Over Somebody Else," "If I Had You," "She's Got Another Daddy" and "Some One

Like You." All these songs are being heard frequently on the vaudeville stage and are programmed by a long list of famous orchestras.

E. GRANT EGE IN NEW YORK

E. Grant Ege, head of the publishing and sheet music department of J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co., was a visitor to New York during the past month. While here, Mr. Ege closed plans for an Eastern campaign on a number of songs from the Jenkins catalog. Among these are "Memory's Garden," which has had a very active sale with indications that its popularity is increasing among the music buyers of the country.

"ROSES OF PICARDY" PRESENTATION

Miriam Lax, soprano, and Adrian Da Silva, tenor, were one of the features of last week's program at the Rivoli Theatre, New York City, where they sang with unusual success Haydn Wood's "Roses of Picardy," from the Chappell-Harms, Inc., catalog. So popular was the number that it was held over another week.

John Philip Sousa, the noted march king, during his recent trip to Milwaukee, where he gave four concerts in two days, was honored at impressive ceremonies at Marquette University with the degree of Doctor of Music.

MAKING A RECORD IN RECORD TIME

Lopez Records Foster's "Amber Nights" Four Days After Receipt in Manuscript Form

What is without question the fastest time ever made in getting out a record of a popular number was recently accomplished by Vincent Lopez and His Pennsylvania Orchestra. On Tuesday, November 13, Dan Winkler, Eastern representative for Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., received a manuscript piano copy of a song called "Amber Nights"; on Wednesday, November 14, he took it to Vincent Lopez, who liked the number so well he booked it for his next recording date, Saturday, November 17. Winkler was doubtful that it would be possible to make the orchestrations, etc., for that date, but Lopez insisted that with the perfect functioning of his organization it was more than possible and he would prove it.

So, four days after the song was received in New York, Lopez had an arrangement of the number made and recorded a record and, in addition, the same night broadcasted "Amber Nights" with the new arrangement. F. J. A. Forster, head of the publishing organization bearing his name, "listened in" at the Lopez rendition from his Chicago residence. All of which is mighty fast work and demonstrates that the popular publisher, with the co-operation of the successful, modern orchestra leader, can take advantage of the speed and rapidity available through modern inventions to get quick action on numbers of merit.

NEW MILLS BLUES FOLIO

Jack Mills, Inc., which, among other things, has quite a healthy list of "blue" numbers, announces to the trade the release of a new folio comprised of "blue" numbers only. This new publication carries the words and music of ten "blue" successes in complete form. It will retail at a very popular price and will undoubtedly find many buyers.

FEATURING "THAT OLD GANG"

Berlin Number Shown in Handsome Display by Kresge Philadelphia Store

"That Old Gang of Mine," which has proved one of the most popular songs of the year 1923, continues to hold its position among the leading sellers. This number, carrying a lyric which apparently appeals to the home-loving people of America, has, in addition, other factors which have contributed to its unusual success. No small part of this is the fact that it is one of the most favorite of present-day dance selections. Its availability for duos, quartets and other combinations has also added to its wide appeal.

In recognition of its activity on the music counters of the country, retailers everywhere have made special window showings of this lively offering. Each week sees new additions to the dealers who have given space for the display of "That Old Gang of Mine." One of the most recent of these was that shown for a short period by the S. S. Kresge Co., Philadelphia, Pa. A photograph of the window appears herewith. According to the reports of the manager of the store, "That Old Gang of Mine" has not only kept among the best sellers for the past two months, but during the weeks of the special window display a considerable addition was made to the sales, thus again proving that a song that is heard and sung everywhere need only be given a conspicuous place on the counters or in the windows of the retail store in order to add to the sales volume.

SILVER SLIPPER OPENS IN NEW YORK

The official opening of New York's latest entertainment palace, The Silver Slipper, was held recently before an invited audience. The

The direction of The Silver Slipper has not deterred Van and Schenck from filling some current vaudeville engagements. They recently appeared for two weeks at the Palace Theatre and are later to appear at other Keith houses. The outstanding song of the Van and Schenck program, both at The Silver Slipper and in their vaudeville appearances, is the new "blues" novelty song, "Promise Me Everything, Never Get Anything Blues," which looks like one of the biggest numbers this successful team has programmed in some seasons. A new harmony song was also introduced by Van and Schenck. It is entitled "In the Town Where I Was Born." Both of these numbers are published by the A. J. Stasny Music Co., Inc.

MARKS IN NEW YORK THEATRES

Publishing Firm Arranges "Songwriters' Festivals" in the Local Theatres

Sheet music, phonograph record and piano roll dealers are being given an exceptional amount of co-operation by the E. B. Marks Music Co. in all localities in New York by the arrangement of a series of "Songwriters' Festivals" in various theatres. The writers of "Oh Didn't It Rain," "Kiss Me With Your Eyes," "That's a Lot of Bunk," "Just for To-night," "March of the Siamese" and other E. B. Marks numbers are brought to the theatres on these nights after being billed a week in advance and give a program of their latest numbers in addition to a revue of their former hits.

One theatre in every section of New York has been selected for these nights, including Inwood, Washington Heights, Fordham, the mid-section of the Bronx, lower Bronx, Yorkville, Harlem, the East Side and four theatres in various parts of Brooklyn. Thus all the numbers on the Marks catalog are being given a big city-wide play.

Two of these nights have already been held with the result that the dealers in these sections had calls for the numbers sung. This made itself apparent by the orders on the featured songs which came into the office on the following days.

HARTMAN CO. OPENS NEW STORE

MERCER, PA., December 8.—A branch music store has just been opened here in the King block on South Diamond street by the Hartman Music Co., of Shippensburg. All kinds of musical goods and sheet music will be handled by the new store, which is the only one of its kind in Mercer.

Van and Schenck

place is under the direction of Van and Schenck, who also take a leading part in the nightly entertainments. From early indications following the opening, The Silver Slipper will take a prominent part in the night life of New York during the coming season.

Among the new songs added to the catalog of Sherman, Clay & Co. are "Out of Sight, Out of Mind," by Harry Owen and Vincent Rose, and "Sleep," by Earl Lebeig. The New York offices of this publishing house are introducing the number to the orchestras in its territory.

LYMAN RECORDS ARE POPULAR

Western Orchestra Recordings on Brunswick Catalog Meeting With Popular Demand

That all good things and wise do not come out of the East is pretty well proved by the uninterrupted career of success of Abe Lyman and His Orchestra. A year or so ago, when Abe Frank, the well-known hotel man, was placed in charge of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, he made every effort to secure the best possible music for the now famous Coconut Grove ballroom that is to-day the dancing Mecca of all filmdom and everybody else of consequence in the Southern California city. Abe Lyman, then playing with a seven-piece orchestra at the Ship Café in Los Angeles, was chosen, and, increasing his personnel to twelve men, he and his band have for eighteen months been making things hum there. A few weeks since, the Brunswick Recording Expedition made its first trip to the Coast to record the big dancing orchestras like Paul Ash's in San Francisco, Abe Lyman's in Los Angeles, and so on. The first stop in Los Angeles netted the record people sixteen numbers recorded by Abe Lyman's aggregation, and every one of the sixteen numbers recorded was pronounced perfect. Among Lyman's first numbers for release was "Midnight Rose," the tremendously popular ballad fox-trot hit that is being danced to from coast to coast.

WITMARK & SONS NOVELTY NUMBERS

"Bebe" and "Midnight Rose" Leading These in Point of Popularity and Demand

The catalog of M. Witmark & Sons, which each season contains some of the most active selling ballads in the popular music field and which, in addition, has the prestige of that most successful list of songs, "The Witmark Black and White Series," is, this season, in the additional happy position of publishing probably more novelty numbers than at almost any period in the history of the company.

"Bebe" and "Midnight Rose" are now reaching their height in point of popularity and this success on these two issues is not confined to any particular territory, but is national in scope. But songs of the super-novelty order such as "I'm Sittin' Pretty in a Pretty Little City," "I've Got a Cross-Eyed Papa, But He Looks Straight to Me," "That Bran' New Gal of Mine," are fox-trots with unusual melodies and rhythmic qualities which, of course, are substantially adding to the Witmark professional band and orchestra and sales departments' activities.

BERLIN CATALOG LEADERS

Irving Berlin, Inc., has a song in "That Old Gang of Mine" which shows indications of becoming a permanent fixture of the catalog. Its sale has been most steady and the demand has been of national proportions. This song, together with "Indiana Moon" and "When You Walked Out, Someone Else Walked Right In," are the leaders of the catalog. The two novelties, "Sittin' in a Corner" and "Roamin' to Wyomin'," are also active and in general demand with the public.

DEALERS' ADVERTISING SERVICE

Irving Mills, vice-president of Jack Mills, Inc., who recently returned to the New York offices of the company after a transcontinental tour of the country, brought back a series of new ideas which will shortly be inaugurated by the Mills organization, adding considerably to its present dealer co-operation. Among these will be a dealer advertising service. The Mills organization will shortly announce the opening of several new branch offices in important cities throughout the country. Through the establishment of these branches dealers will be assured of even better service than in the past.

SHERMAN, CLAY'S NEW NUMBER

Arthur Freed's "Cover Me With Kisses" Takes Immediate Hold—"The West, a Nest and You" Is Also Featured

PORTLAND, ORE., December 6.—Sherman, Clay & Co. have presented to Portland Arthur Freed's new song, "Cover Me With Kisses." The song was featured recently by Mort Downey, who appeared last month in the Heilig Theatre on the Orpheum Circuit with Paul Whiteman's S.S. "Leviathan" Orchestra. One of the best sellers in Portland continues to be Sherman, Clay's "The West, a Nest and You," which is featured in a window display, at the sheet music department of Sherman, Clay & Co., and also at the Liberty Theatre, where Henri Keates, organist, is using it with slides.

SINGS VON TILZER'S NEW HIT

Mabel McKinley Using "Dear Old Lady" in Vaudeville Appearances

Harry Von Tilzer's new hit, "Dear Old Lady," is now being sung in vaudeville by Mabel McKinley, niece of the former beloved President. Other standard acts using the latest ballad fox-trot hit are Joe Jordan's Orchestra at the State Theatre, Sam Smith at the Audubon, Yerkes' Jazzarimba at Proctor's 125th Street, Paul Specht and His Orchestra at Hotel Alamac.

"BLOSSOM TIME" GOING STRONG

PORTLAND, ORE., December 8.—Maybelle Elliott, manager of the sheet music department of Seiberling & Lucas Music Co., reports a big sale of "Blossom Time," published by Leo Feist, Inc., as a result of the play being presented at the Heilig Theatre during the week of November 4. She says the greatest demand was for the "Song of Love," with many calls for "Tell Me, Daisy," "Let Me Awake," "My Spring Time Thou Art" and "The Serenade," featuring Schubert's Serenade.

Sales Volumes Indicate Banner Holiday Business—All Lines in Demand—The Month's Activities

COLUMBUS, O., December 8.—Although Christmas is several weeks away the manner in which the music stores are decorated and patronized would indicate that this will be a banner season.

W. F. Davisson, vice-president and manager of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Victor wholesaler, states that business will probably be considerably better than in the same period last year. He stated that he did not foresee any shortage of the popular models. Record business is brisk also.

Henry Salzer, of the Gus M. Salzer Co., Victor dealer, of Springfield, and O. A. Ryder, of the Gem Pharmacy, Nelsonville, visited the Perry B. Whitsit Co. this week. Mr. and Mrs. Perry B. Whitsit left for a trip to the East, to be gone for from a week to ten days. While in the East Mr. and Mrs. Whitsit will visit the Victor Co., Camden, N. J.

"To be exact, we sold twenty-seven machines in less than that many days during the last several weeks," said E. M. Levy, manager of the Victrola department of the Otto B. Heaton Co., Victor dealer. "Our record business has been even better than our machine business. We expect to make a much higher average of sales this December than in 1922."

- A novel advertising stunt which brought good returns was recently employed by the Robert L. Seeds Co. A young man attired as a clown carried a huge replica of a Columbia record on his back as he paraded the principal streets of the city. The attention of the pedestrians, as well as those riding in automobiles and street cars, was drawn to this clown because the type of advertisement was so unusual in character.

The Robert L. Seeds Co. has just installed the Edison. It now handles Columbia, Cheney and Edison.

Miss Elizabeth Cheney, daughter of Forest Cheney, the phonograph inventor, has recently joined the Robert L. Seeds Co. and is serving in the capacity of office manager of the firm.

Miss Cleo Kerns has just joined the sales force of the F. & R. Lazarus Co., Victor dealer, High and Town streets.

Miss Helen Caster is now a member of the sales force of the C. C. Baker firm. Miss Caster has had eight years of Victor experience and is thoroughly acquainted with practically every phase of the record division of Victor products. She formerly was associated with the Fuller-Ryde Music Co., of Indianapolis.

Mrs. C. C. Baker, of the C. C. Baker firm, advises that more calls have been made for upright model Victrolas in the last two or three weeks than during the early weeks in the Fall season, indicating that the upright model Victrola still has its advocates here.

The many friends of Henry Ackerman, who for more than fifty years was engaged in the music business, were saddened by the news that he passed away on December 1. Mr. Ackerman was seventy-eight years old.

Outstanding among the Victor artists who will be in Columbus in the near future is Mischa Elman, celebrated violinist. He comes here under the auspices of the Franklin County Council, American Legion, on December 12. Louis Gravure, Columbia artist, will close the series January 8.

One of the first dealers to co-operate with the schools in the second annual State music memory contest which was recently launched was the People's Furniture Store, Victor dealer, 1054 Mt. Vernon avenue.

Lancaster is another city where the music memory contest is in full swing. The Lancaster High School won the second prize, consisting of a $350 Victrola, in the first annual music memory contest. The enthusiasm and interest are even more marked this year than last. The Victrola is being used extensively in the memorizing of the forty selections. Co-operating with the Lancaster schools in the contest is the J. C. Welton Music Store, of that community.

Last week the Mammoth Furniture Co., Urbana, O., had an opening for its new Victor room. The Mammoth Furniture Store is located on North Main street.

Music dealers throughout the State of Ohio will be interested to learn that at a recent meeting of the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs, held in Columbus, it was strongly advocated that a drive should be made for music scores and talking machine records for local libraries in every community. Should this be carried out in a proper manner music scores and talking machine records will soon become an important part of the libraries and music dealers will find a new channel for business.

Trade Commission Enters No R.C.A. Complaint

Radio Corporation's Activities Investigated by U. S. Trade Commission—No Complaint or Recommendation for Further Action Is Offered—Trade Relations Found Satisfactory

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 5.—After an extended and lengthy investigation of the business methods, policies and activities of the Radio Corp. of America the Federal Trade Commission submitted a report recently to the House of Congress wherein no charge or conclusion was offered as to any violation of the Sherman anti-trust laws. In recent years several investigations of this character have been ordered by Congress in connection with the activities of prominent concerns and almost invariably further action has been taken only when the report has recommended accordingly.

In the Federal Trade Commission's report it is stated that the Radio Corp. has a virtual monopoly of commercial wireless communication between this and foreign countries. The Commission gives in detail the history leading up to the organization of the Radio Corp. of America by the General Electric Co. in 1919, stating that the Radio Corp., under its agreements with the various companies which own or control practically all patents covering important radio devices, is made the selling company for these products. In the sale of receiving sets the Radio Corp. has competition from seventeen concerns licensed under the Armstrong patents, although their sale of sets for use in conjunction with tubes is being contested in the court.

The Commission goes into detail regarding the methods utilized by the Radio Corp. in selling or leasing apparatus to competitors for international communication purposes, and also comments upon the fact that the company does not sell its vacuum tubes or other patented radio parts to makers of receiving sets. The report has been read with interest in political and legal circles in this city, with the consensus of opinion being that the failure to make any recommendation for prosecution represents a favorable attitude and an impartial review of the company's activities.

BRILLIANTONE CO. SAFE BROKEN INTO

Some time after closing hours on December 7 the offices of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. at 370 Seventh avenue, New York City, were broken into. The safe was opened and the contents removed. Byron R. Forster, president of the company, when interviewed by The World, stated: "Not a thing was left. Part of our payroll which was in the safe was taken as well as the petty cash. Detectives are working on the case and expect to make an arrest."

NEW JUNIOR OPERETTA JOBBERS

Vulcan Record Corp. Adds Many Names to Jobber List—Issues Handsome and Costly Broadside Illustrating Sales Helps

F. H. Hedinger, secretary and general manager of the Vulcan Record Corp., manufacturer of Junior Operetta records, announced recently that the company had closed arrangements with a number of prominent wholesale houses for the distribution of these records. There are now fourteen jobbers on the Junior Operetta list, comprising the following: Bristol & Barber Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.; General Radio Corp., Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Pa.; A. C. Erisman Co., Boston, Mass.; Shapleigh Hardware Co., St. Louis, Mo.; Stewart Sales Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; C. L. Marshall Co., Cleveland, O., and Detroit, Mich.; Vocalion Co. of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.; Stone Piano Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; J. W. Jenkins Sons Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Texas Radio Sales Co., Dallas, Tex.; Sterling Roll & Record Co., Cincinnati, O.; Cheney Sales Co., Omaha, Neb.

The company has just issued a handsome two-color broadside that has been mailed to 15,000 dealers. This broadside illustrates the sales helps prepared by the company for the stimulation of Junior Operetta sales, including folders for mailing purposes, display cards, advertising cuts and pictures measuring 40x30 inches which are loaned to dealers for exhibition purposes. This timely piece of literature is one of the most ambitious and artistic broadsides that have been offered to the trade this season.

MANY ORDERS FOR ELECTRIC MOTORS

Kendrick & Davis Motor Enjoys Growing Popularity Throughout the Trade

BOSTON, MASS., December 7.—The matter of electric drive for talking machines is a subject that has been given much attention by various manufacturers, according to H. A. Robbins, of this city, sales agent for the Kendrick & Davis motor. In substantiation of the interest manifested, Mr. Robbins quoted in part from a letter received from a prominent Western manufacturer, who states:

"The prohibitive cost of many of the electric drives for talking machines has been the drawback heretofore in placing a machine on the market to compete with the spring-driven machine. We figure on equipping the largest part of our output with a Kendrick & Davis unit as we are entirely satisfied with it and are confident that with a little help from the progressive dealer it will be generally accepted by discriminating patrons."

Mr. Robbins states that the factory promises delivery in quantity shortly and that they will soon be able to fill the many orders on hand.

APPOINTS NEW POOLEY DEALERS

C. L. Marshall Co. Closes Important Deals—Sales Totals for Year Very Gratifying

DETROIT, MICH., December 6.—The C. L. Marshall Co., wholesale distributor for the Pooley phonograph and the Outing portable in Michigan and Ohio, with offices in Detroit and Cleveland, and Vocalion record jobber in Cleveland, has recently added many Pooley dealers to its list, including the S. Tennenbaum Co., Cincinnati, O.; Fred Wagner Piano Co., Hamilton, O.; R. W. Tyler Co., Huntington, W. Va.; Stevenson Bros., Coshocton, O.; W. E. Jones Piano Co, Mansfield, O., and the Faught Music Co., Elizabethtown, Ky. All of these accounts were established by the "star" salesman of the Cleveland headquarters, W. C. A. Bickham, with headquarters in Columbus. Other new Pooley dealers established by this successful jobber are E. C. Fischer & Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; B. M. Jones Furniture Co., Kalamazoo, Mich.; Cunningham Phonograph Shop, Detroit, Mich.; East Detroit Music House, Detroit, Mich., and the Howard Music Co., Detroit.

S. Townsley, formerly a member of the Columbia sales staff, is now associated with the C. L. Marshall Co., of Cleveland. He will cover Cleveland and adjacent territory, where the Vocalion record business has reached proportions that demand the attention of one salesman exclusively. He recently closed a deal with the Remick Co. of Cleveland and the Leickley Music House for both Vocalion records and Pooley phonographs.

Mr. Marshall states that 1923 business has been very satisfactory, for the company doubled its sales of Vocalion records, exceeded this increase on Outing portables and went far ahead of expectations on Pooley phonographs. Both headquarters of the C. L. Marshall Co. are now distributing Junior Operetta records made by the Vulcan Record Corp.

PHONOGRAPH MAN APPREHENDED

CHICAGO, ILL., December 6.—The local talking machine trade was keenly interested to learn recently that Edward J. Sailstad, formerly president of the Multitone Phonograph Co., of Eau Claire, Wis., had been located in California. Mr. Sailstad had disappeared some three years ago when his company was on the verge of bankruptcy and after being found in California was held by the police authorities on the charge of attempting to defraud the insurance companies by committing arson to give the impression that he had perished in the ruins.

"DOEHLER TOPICS" REAPPEARS

The first number of the reissue of "Doehler Topics," which was announced last month, appeared promptly as per schedule. In the opening article, under the caption "A Message From Our Chief," H. H. Doehler, president of the company, comments on the reappearance of "Doehler Topics" and sounds an appeal for the continued co-operation of all in the advancement of the interests of the company. The activities of the various employes' organizations are chronicled and it is filled, from start to finish, with well-written, interesting matter. It is a live house organ.

EDISON ARTIST ON TOUR

Gives Tone-test Recitals in Cities Visited by Show Under Auspices of Local Dealers—Results Prove Worth While

Walter Scanlan, the well-known Edison artist, has recently gone on the road with the show "The Blarney Stone" and has within the last few weeks played in three different cities, namely, Paterson, N. J.; Wilkes-Barre Pa., and Scranton, Pa. On each occasion the local Edison dealers have tied up in an effective way with the appearance of this Edison artist, who makes a point in his play of rendering an Edison tone-test, wherein he sings in direct comparison with his own Edison records.

In Paterson the last week in November the tie-up was made by the Quackenbush Co.; in Wilkes-Barre, on the 6th, 7th and 8th of December, by the Snyder Music Co. and the C. F. Murray-Smith Co., and on December 3, 4 and 5 in Scranton by the Edison Diamond Disc Shop.

The New York Distributing Division of General Phonograph Corporation extends to its many friends and the trade in general, its sincere wishes for a

Very Merry Christmas and

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

The play itself is proving to be very successful and is now booked for quite an extensive schedule. The result from the standpoint of Edison dealers is also highly gratifying, as additional orders for the New Edison and for Walter Scanlan's records have been of an outstanding sort in every city where "The Blarney Stone" has been given. This shows an effective tie-up.

Sterchi Bros. in New Home—J. L. Prior in New Post—Stage Brunswick Exposition—Month's News

ATLANTA, GA., December 10.—Sterchi Bros., the big furniture company which maintains a chain of stores throughout Tennessee, Georgia and North Carolina, has recently completed a fine new building in Asheville. The main floor phonograph department is in charge of Harmon Fowler, an experienced talking machine manager, brought on from Knoxville. The department opened with the complete line, including Victor and Columbia machines and records.

J. L. Prior is the newly appointed manager of the talking machine department at Efrid's department store, Charlotte, N. C.

W. Frank Blount, whose death occurred at Fayetteville, N. C., November 22, was the oldest music dealer in North Carolina, former president of the North Carolina Music Dealers' Association and an enthusiastic Brunswick dealer. He was sixty years old and had been ill only ten days.

A "Brunswick Exposition," staged in this city by Ludden & Bates, progressive Brunswick dealers, North Pryor street, was probably the most ambitious event of this kind ever staged in the South. The exposition lasted an entire week and the results in sales and publicity marked the event as an outstanding success. Thousands of specially engraved invitations were sent out to the music lovers and other people throughout the city and vicinity who might in the natural course of events be con-considered as prospects, and the attendance at the various special events staged during the week indicated that not many ignored the opportunity to attend. Poster and bulletin board advertising in advantageous locations stimulated further interest in the exposition and this, together with extensive newspaper advertising, certainly brought the crowds to the store.

The stock of machines was displayed in a manner to attract attention to the beauty of the cabinet work. Each machine on display was part of a handsomely and completely furnished room, furniture and hangings harmonizing to suit individual instruments. The company operates a finishing department and several specially finished models were included in the exhibit. The entire store was decorated with evergreens, flowers, etc., and elaborate lighting effects were arranged for the occasion.

Each night crowds attended the "DeLuxe performances," the program consisting of Sig.

Volpi's Troubadours, Monday; Max Sasanoff, Russian tenor, Tuesday; Cohn's Rainbow Orchestra, Wednesday; Refined Vaudeville, Thursday; Kalohi's Hawaiian Orchestra and Hula Dancers, Friday; Ampico concert, Saturday. Several of the evening programs were broadcasted by the Atlanta Journal broadcasting station, WSB, and the exposition was prominently played up by the local newspapers.

S. M. Frenkel, manager of the store, with the assistance of others in the organization, planned the affair and carried it through to success.

The entire Victrola department of the John L. Moore & Sons Co., Atlanta, has been purchased by J. P. Riley, Atlanta Phonograph Co. Mr. Riley has already taken over the Victrolas and records, but will leave the hearing rooms, counters and other Unico equipment in place until after Christmas. He will at that time remove it and use it to handsomely refit his present store.

In order to keep in better touch with the buying public the Empire Music Co., which has maintained a Victrola department on the fourth floor of High's department store, has moved its records, booths, etc., to its quarters in the Peachtree Arcade, taking over large additional space as a display room for machines.

Turner & Co., Charlotte, N. C., recently received their initial shipment of Brunswick machines and records and are now successfully launched as Brunswick dealers. After the holidays Mr. Best, manager of the department, expects to find time to properly fit up his department in a manner fully in keeping with the high standard of Brunswick merchandise.

The Cable Piano Co., this city, is equipping its rearranged music department with Unico sheet music display counters.

M. E. Lyle has returned to Atlanta after a trip North, where he called at headquarters of some of the firms which he represents in the Southeast. He spent some time in Philadelphia with the Unit Construction Co., quite a few installations of whose equipment have gone into the South through Mr. Lyle's efforts.

C. S. Whipple, long a prominent talking machine dealer at Lakeland and Bartow, Fla., was accidentally shot to death by his son recently. Mr. Whipple, who had sold his business only a few days before the tragedy, planned a hunting trip with his boy and cleaned and prepared his gun for use the next day. During the night his son, excited over the coming hunt, walked in his sleep into his father's room, seized the gun and shot Mr. Whipple.

SPECIAL VICTOR FOREIGN RECORDS

Interesting Special Release of German, Italian and Hebrew Numbers Announced

Somewhat of an innovation in Victor record releases was found in the announcement of a release of eight foreign specials to be placed on sale December 21 and including three German records, two Italian and three Jewish. Particularly interesting is the circular announcing the specials calling attention to the character of the selections and their popularity in this country. Something is also said regarding the recording organizations, including the Victor Schrammel Orchestra, which plays two Viennese waltzes; Harry Steier, the German tenor, who will appear shortly with the Chicago Opera Co., who sings popular songs from Berlin; Eugenio Gibelli, who sings two Italian numbers, and others of reputation.

TRILBY TONE ARM ON MARKET

New Tone Arm and Reproducer Now Ready—Has Several Interesting Features

The "Trilby" tone arm and reproducer has just been placed on the market by J. Prosh, of New York, N. Y. This product has several original features, including a patented slot construction of the reproducer and a self-adjusting stylus bar expansion to prevent loosening. It is being made in three sizes, nine, eight and one-half and seven and one-quarter inches, the last size being made for use on portables. The tone arm is of the throwback and Universal type and is finished in gold and nickel plated. The larger sizes will be designated as type "B" and the type for the portable will be known as type "A."

ANNOUNCES COMBINATION TONE ARM

New Tone Arm of William Phillips Phono Parts Corp. for Use With Talking Machine and Radio—First Deliveries in January

The popularity of radio has resulted in many efforts being made to make use of the sound chamber of the talking machine for radio amplification. A number of those well versed in acoustics are enthusiastic over the properties of the horn of the talking machine for this purpose. One of the newest devices to accomplish this purpose will shortly be placed on the market by the William Phillips Phono Parts Corp., New York City. It is an invention of Mr. Phillips, president of the company. This new invention consists of a Phillips' tone arm with two permanent inlets, one for the sound box when the talking machine is played and the other a radio loud-speaking attachment, permanently fixed. With this new tone arm it is no longer necessary to remove the sound box before the tone arm may be used for the radio. Both the sound box and the radio loud speaker are permanently attached and either may be used without any adjustment whatsoever. Mr. Phillips has made arrangements with one of the largest radio companies for a sound amplifying unit to fit this tone arm and calls attention to the fact that the new tone arm with its loud-speaking attachment is not to be confused with the ordinary attachment. The tone arm will have all the qualities of Phillips' products and many claims are made for its reproducing properties.

Extensive merchandising plans are now under way. A thorough analysis of the field has proved a demand for a product of this character. It is Mr. Phillips' intention to sell this new phono-radio arm to both manufacturers and dealers. The combination arm will be made in all sizes to fit all standard makes of machines and it is hoped to make deliveries in January.

LOS ANGELES

Trade-ins Discussed by Association—Wiley B. Allen Co. Stages Anniversary Sale—Radio Retailers Meet—Other Important News

LOS ANGELES, CAL., December 4.—Talking machine sales during the month of November were not as rushing as was anticipated, according to general reports from the different departments, and the sale of records has not shown the increase which was anticipated. However, the trade anticipates a general increase in trade activity now that the holiday season is here.

Association Discusses Trade-ins

A great deal of time was spent at the November general meeting of the Music Trades Association of Southern California, at which there was an attendance of over sixty, in the discussion of the talking machine trade-in problem. James J. Black, treasurer of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who was a visitor in Los Angeles and attended the meeting, declared that his company had decided to issue a bulletin instructing their salesmen in the San Francisco store and at each of the seven branch stores that no allowance would be made to customers for old phonographs in cases where the new phonograph which they intended buying was of $150 or less, but if the instrument desired was of a value exceeding $150 then a conservative allowance would be made. A motion was finally adopted requesting the president to appoint a committee which would compile a list of all obsolete models with their approximate second-hand value. The list is intended as a guide only.

Wiley B. Allen Jubilee Sale Attracts

W. C. Bell, manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., reports an increase of sales in his department due to the effect produced by advertising the fiftieth anniversary of the company. Mr. Bell stated that although they were not in a position to offer Brunswicks or Victors at special prices or on extraordinary terms the number of customers had materially increased and larger sales had resulted.

Andrews Talking Machine Co. to Retire

The Andrews Talking Machine Co. expects to retire from the music business about January 1 and arrangements have been made so that all customers who have purchased goods from it will continue to receive the same efficient service as in the past. Irving R. Andrews will be missed very much by the trade, of which he has been an active member for a number of years, having opened the present business in 1910. His father, J. H. Andrews, who has also been a leading member of the firm since it was started, was formerly in Phoenix, Ariz., and was one of the first dealers in that section.

Music House Enlarges in Pasadena

The Hancock Music Co. recently enlarged its store on East Colorado street, Pasadena. Newton I. Hancock, head of the firm, opened the present store three and a half years ago and has by energy and hard work shown a remarkable progress, and now, through an additional reinforced concrete building at the back, has more than doubled the space of the former store to which extra rooms had already been added. Special Knabe Ampico and Brunswick phonograph demonstration and showrooms, beautifully decorated, have been installed, as well as a spacious concert and recital hall. A large crowd attended the opening on December 1 when visitors were entertained with musical numbers by the Hancock Orchestra and others.

Jobber Features Odeon Records

The Okeh Smith Co., distributor of Okeh and Odeon records, has been meeting with considerable success with the sale of Odeon records to dealers who already handled the Okeh records. The complete recording of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony in B minor, which is contained in a special album and consists of three double-sided twelve-inch records, is a special favorite.

Stark-Dooley Music Co. Opens New Store

Stark-Dooley Music Co. has opened a new store at 245 South Western avenue, this city. The Columbia line is being featured in an intensive, aggressive manner.

Radio Dealers Have Large Meeting

A get-together meeting of the radio dealers took place at Oaks Tavern Café on November 26 at which 170 were present. There were a few music and phonograph dealers, who are interested in radio, also present. A number of interesting speeches were made, the principal subject for discussion being the association. J. C. Johnson, general manager of the National Radio Exposition Co., made an important announcement in regard to the Western Radio Show, which will be held at the Biltmore Hotel February 5 to 10. John Daggett, known throughout radioland as Uncle John, of the Times Radio, was also present and made an interesting speech about broadcasting.

Columbia Brieflets

Manager Aldridge, of the Windsor store, operated by R. L. Tamplin, has recently accepted the position of manager of the San Diego store of this concern. This is one of the most attractive of the chain of Columbia shops which Mr. Tamplin operates in the Los Angeles territory. Mr. Aldridge had entire charge of Columbia record making in Canada prior to his connection with Mr. Tamplin.

Columbia records with new labels have arrived at the Los Angeles branch and have been received with great enthusiasm by dealers.

Dolly Kay, popular Columbia artist, just completed a three weeks' engagement at the local Orpheum Theatres. She registered a decided hit, which was reflected in record sales.

INSTALLING NEW EQUIPMENT

Zimmerman-Bitter Co. Closes Several Important Contracts—Dealers Redecorate Showrooms for Christmas Activity

The final redecorating and installing of equipment in talking machine stores just prior to Christmas has been completed by the Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York City. A recent contract completed by the company was the redecorating of the show windows, adding musical instrument and sheet music departments and enlarging the booth equipment at the store of John Paradiso, of Passaic, N. J., and the installing of equipment in the Morris Music Shop, 130 Fordham road, New York, including new showrooms, hearing rooms and remodeling of the entire store. Additional equipment has also been added to the Kay Talking Machine Co. and the store of T. Arison, of New York City. The musical instrument department of Emanuel Blout's Fordham store has been enlarged by the Zimmerman-Bitter Co. and new showrooms for the Ampico piano have been installed by the Eclipse Talking Machine Co., Paterson, N. J.

PREDICTS PROSPERITY NEXT YEAR

S. B. Goldberg, Head of Majestic Music Shop, Broadcasts Optimistic Message

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., December 8.—The talking machine business in 1924 will be up to the normal volume of three or four years ago, according to Stanley B. Goldberg, head of the Majestic Music Shop, 16 South Seventh street, this city. Mr. Goldberg also predicts that the console styles will be the leaders, and the retailer who is in a position to take in trade up-right models will do a land-office business. The combination radio and talking machine will also be to the forefront in sales, says Mr. Goldberg, who is a keen student of business. This concern handles Columbia and Brunswick phonographs, the Outing portable and a large stock of records.

STRAND CO. BUYS STORE SITE

ALBANY, N. Y., December 8.—Albert Edelstein, proprietor of the Strand Music Co., of this city, has completed negotiations for the purchase of a valuable corner property at Quackenbush street and Broadway, where he plans to erect a modern structure some time next year. The site is one of the best business locations in the city and will be ideal for a music store.

DEATH OF ARTHUR BODANZKI

A cablegram received this week by Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., advised him of the death of Arthur Bodanzki, one of the managing partners of the Carl Lindstrom organization in Berlin, Germany. Mr. Bodanzki has been identified with the talking machine industry for many years and was one of the most popular members of the trade abroad.

CURTIS ART CO. EXPANDS

WATERBURY, CONN., December 10.—The Curtis Art Co., 25 Main street, this city, recently purchased the stock of the A. B. Clinton Co., Victor dealer. The Curtis Co. has a fine Victor department, consisting of a display room in the basement and a record department and five sound-proof booths decorated to record demonstrations on the first floor.

OTTO HEINEMAN SAILS FOR EUROPE

President of General Phonograph Corp. Will Visit London—To Confer With Lindstrom Executives—Returning Early in January

Otto Heineman, president and founder of the General Phonograph Corp., manufacturer of Okeh and Odeon records, will sail to-day (December 15) on the S.S. "Majestic" for a visit to London. According to Mr. Heineman's plans, he will meet the managing directors of the Lindstrom organization in that city, and will confer with them regarding important matters concerning 1924 activities. Mr. Heineman, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Heineman on this trip, expects to spend only a week or two abroad, returning to New York the early part of January.

MME. FARRAR TO SING IN DANBURY

DANBURY, CONN., December 10.—Geraldine Farrar, famous Victor artist, will soon appear in concert at the Empress Theatre here through the efforts of White's Music Shop, one of the liveliest dealers in this neighborhood. Mrs. White, who manages and operates the store herself, has built up a profitable business through the application of intelligent merchandising methods to the music business, and the bringing of Geraldine Farrar here is an example of her progressive policy.

Mr. Ray reported that Vocalion record distributors he called on were enjoying a steadily increasing volume of business and were prepared to handle even a greater volume next year.

HENRY MIELKE ENTERS RADIO FIELD

Henry Mielke, for many years in the talking machine business in New York City, and Charles Eberhart, one of the leading radio dealers in Astoria, L. I., have formed the Mielke-Eberhart Radio Stores, Inc. The company is planning to open a chain of radio stores, two of which have already been opened. One store is located in Astoria and the second is at 1263 Lexington avenue, New York. The firm will specialize in sets with indoor antennae.

FATHER OF R. L. FREEMAN DIES

Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Talking Machine Co., has the sympathy of the members of the trade on the death of his father, who passed away at the family homestead in Nova Scotia at the age of 91. Mr. Freeman, Sr., had been in precarious health for many months.

R. J. HARKINS APPOINTED MANAGER

Takes Charge of Record Department of Eastern Division of Brunswick Co. in New York City

R. J. Harkins, formerly connected with the New York Talking Machine Co., and more recently associated with the Brunswick factory in Long Island, has been appointed manager of the record department of the Brunswick Eastern division in New York and will be in charge of record stocks, sales plans and promotion work. Mr. Harkins succeeds H. J. Leopold, who is now in Chicago as a member of the advertising department at the executive headquarters. Before leaving for Chicago Mr. Leopold was the guest of honor at a dinner given by his associates in New York, and was presented with a gold fountain pen as a mark of their esteem and friendship.

SHANNON FOUR IN THE AIR

As part of the policy of the Columbia Phonograph Co. to have semi-weekly radio broadcasts of its artists through Station WEAJ, the owners of radio receiving sets were delighted to hear the Shannon Four through the air on Tuesday evening, December 11. Judging from the reports reaching the Columbia Co., the singing of these artists, as they record for the Columbia records, aroused a great deal of enthusiasm.

LESLEY BUYS HARMONY SHOP

SAN DIEGO, CAL., December 7.—The entire interest in the Harmony Shop, 3902 University avenue, has recently been purchased by Harry Lesley and wife. The store will add a stock of pianos, sheet music and small goods and will continue the line of phonographs handled in the past. The Lesleys will continue the operation of the Harmonial Conservatory of Music in connection with the business.

JUNIUS HART OPENS NEW STORE

Well-known New Orleans Music House Occupies New Four-story Building

NEW ORLEANS, LA., December 8.—The new quarters of the Junius Hart Piano Co. at 123 Carondelet street have just been formally opened, and will afford the company spacious and up-to-date showrooms befitting their reputation and prestige. The Hart concern, although a Louisiana corporation, is the Southern representative of W. W. Kimball & Co., of Chicago, and the Kimball piano is handled exclusively. The house dates back to 1872, when it was first established at Canal and Burgundy. From there the firm moved to other points in the Canal street zone, being compelled to seek more commodious quarters for its business.

A considerable part of the front of the new store is devoted to large display windows capable of giving a comprehensive idea of the store's contents. Flanking the entrance passage are the departments subleased to the Conn New Orleans Co., regional agents for Conn band instruments, and the sheet music shop of Frank & McNamara, who gained their experience with Leo Feist, Inc., in New York. The sound-proof booths for phonograph records and player rolls are equipped with an apparatus for private demonstration, and are supplied with purified air by a special ventilation device.

The store in its completed form is one of the finest in the South.

BIG DEMAND FOR HOLIDAY RECORDS

Bristol & Barber, Inc., wholesale distributors of talking machines, records and accessories, report that the pre-holiday season has been a big one for records. The Christmas appeal of Vulcan records has made them very popular throughout the trade, and Okeh records, of which they are also distributors, are selling very big.

REPAIRS

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

WANTS A VICTOR AUXETOPHONE

Monticello, N. Y., November 23, 1923.

Andrew H. Dodlin,
The Talking Machine World, New York:

Can you give me price of Victor Auxetophone and of Columbia tone arm to fit and Columbia No. 6 sound box discussed in the November issue of The Talking Machine World?

(Signed) David Ross.

Answer: As to your inquiry for price on Victor Auxetophone. This was a machine made for purposes where a machine of great volume was wanted. It is operated by means of an electric motor and compressed air pump, the air being forced through the valves of the sound box. The volume of tone is increased or diminished by the air pressure control, the more air the more volume, etc. This machine retailed at $500, but I understand that it has been dropped from the Victor catalog but can be obtained on special order. There is also a possibility that one could be picked up second-hand at a lower price. The Columbia tone arm and No. 6 sound box are listed at $15.

Book on Talking Machine Repairs

New Bedford, Mass., November 26, 1923.

A. H. Dodin,
The Talking Machine World, New York:

I would like to know from you where I could get a complete repairing instruction book for talking machines in general featuring how to repair all kinds of sound boxes, motors, tone arms, etc. I know there is a book of the kind existing, but I do not know how to get it. I have read some of your articles in The Talking Machine World and I have found they were very instructive.

(Signed) J. H. Brodeur.

Answer: I do not know of any book on repairing talking machines that is published at the present time. You say that you know of one, but I am quite sure that there is nothing printed at present, as I have made an exhaustive search for a book of this nature. There is a possibility that at some future time I will publish a book on repairing and I will be pleased to inform you when same is ready.

BIG "TALKER" HARDWARE DEMAND

Orders for Hardware Received by H. A. Guden & Co. Show Manufacturing Activity

The Fall has been an extremely active one among manufacturers of cabinets and complete talking machines, if the sales of cabinet hardware may be taken as an indication. H. A. Guden & Co., New York, manufacturers of hardware for talking machines, have closed a very satisfactory Fall business, according to H. A. Guden, president of the company. There has been an unusually steady demand for hardware to be used in portable phonographs. The company is continually receiving inquiries and orders to supply hardware not only for the regulation talking machine cabinets but also for various novelties. Not long ago Mr. Guden was asked to estimate on a quantity of hardware for talking machines the size of an ordinary camera.

"TREASURE CHEST" A POPULAR GIFT

The approach of the Christmas holidays has had a decidedly stimulating effect upon the sale of the "Treasure Chest" produced by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, New York. This record set is distributed by Victor dealers in all sections of the country so it is now enjoying nation-wide sale. A number of dealers using the window display have found that it has paid to feature this set in this manner. Its particular Christmas gift appeal is recognized and sales are reported to be increasing steadily.

INDIVIDUAL BOXES FOR SPRINGS

Favorite Mfg. Co. Shipping Steel Springs in Special Containers—Many Advantages in This Method of Packing

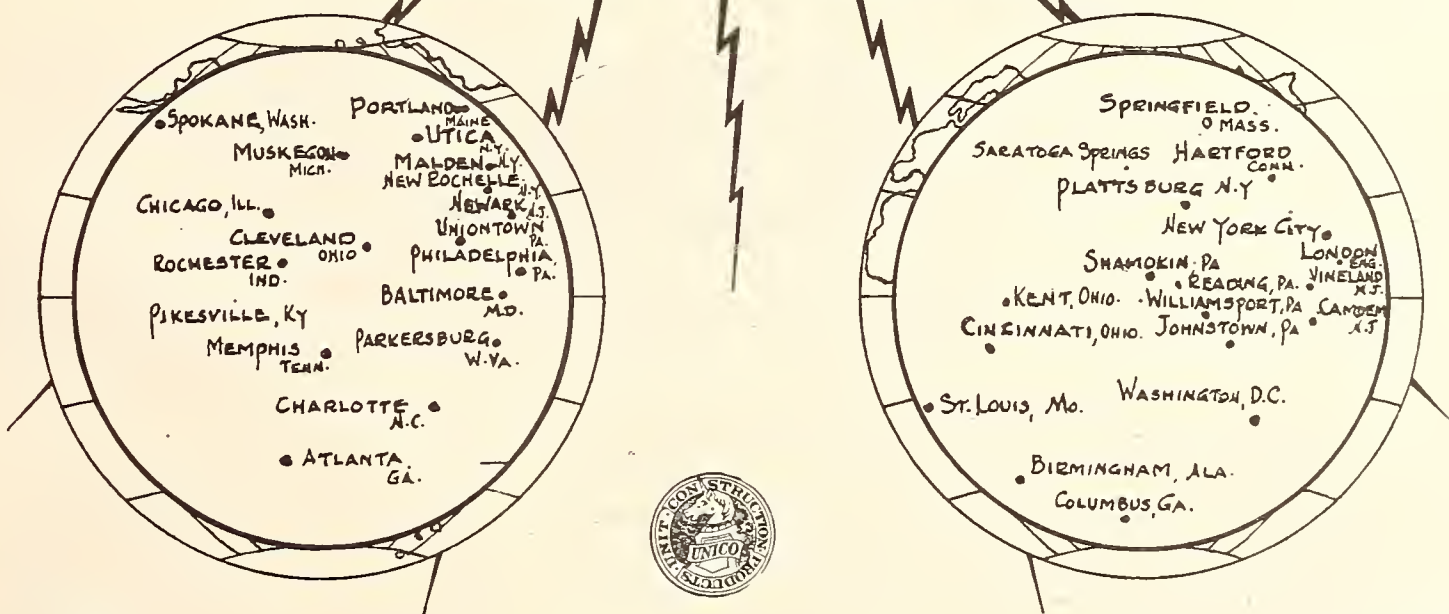

The Favorite Mfg. Co., 105 East Twelfth street, New York City, manufacturer and distributor of talking machine supplies and accessories, which makes a special feature of steel springs, is now shipping this latter product to the trade in individual boxes. The purpose of this new method of packing the springs in boxes, which carry the size, dimensions, etc., on the front, is to make each spring available without loss of time. Another important point of this method of packing is to allow the retailer or repair man to at all times see the amount of goods he has on hand. It also keeps the springs clean and free from dust and avoids harm from inclement weather or changes of temperature. The state in which dealers receive their springs is much more satisfactory than formerly.

SAN FRANCISCO

Talking Machine Exhibits at California Industries Exposition Attract Attention—Temperature Drop Revives Trade—The News

SAN FRANCISCO, December 4.—The California Industries Exposition, an annual event which seems to be widening its scope each year, attracted large crowds to the Civic Auditorium for the two weeks from November 17 to December 2, and proved of considerable interest to the talking machine trade as well as various other lines of business. Among the exhibits was a comprehensive display of Victor products by Sherman, Clay & Co., the Western distributor, which had two large booths occupying prominent floor space. One booth was given over to talking machines and small goods and the other to pianos and players. Special demonstrations and musical programs were arranged for each afternoon and evening of the exhibition and the interest shown by the throngs of visitors was very gratifying to the staff in charge of the Sherman, Clay & Co. booths.

Kohler & Chase exhibited Brunswick phonographs in conjunction with some of their other lines. E. Friedman, who had charge of the phonograph section, reported very good results from the large attendance at the exposition, which he feels will swell holiday business very noticeably.

The California Phonograph Corp., Victor dealer, also maintained a large exhibit throughout the two weeks' show, which resulted in a long list of new prospects for holiday sales.

Colder Weather Brightens Outlook

Andrew G. McCarthy, treasurer of Sherman, Clay & Co., who gives special attention to the Victor business, has no complaints to make about present conditions. While November retail sales were hardly up to expectations, he attributed the lack of interest on the part of the buying public largely to the prolonged fair weather throughout the month having a tendency to delay holiday purchases very generally. As a consequence he looks for December to be an especially heavy Victor month.

Sherman, Clay Branch Moves

Sherman, Clay & Co. have taken the store at 408 Virginia street, Vallejo, Cal., adjoining the old quarters at 406 Virginia street, which doubles the size of the branch store at that place.

Under the new arrangement the old space is given over to Victor goods, sheet music, etc., and the new addition has been fitted up as salesrooms for pianos and players.

Opens New San Diego Store

James J. Black, treasurer of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who gives special attention to the phonograph interests, accompanied Frank Anrys, general manager of the company, to San Diego, Cal., to attend the formal opening of the new quarters in that city. The new store provides greatly increased facilities for the Victor department, as well as other departments of the business, and Messrs. Black and Anrys were very enthusiastic, upon their return to headquarters here, over the prospects for a good holiday business in the South.

Oakland Victor Plant to Be Larger

So much interest has been shown in the establishing of a Victor record factory in the San Francisco Bay section that the company has greatly extended its original plans so the capacity of the plant now nearing completion in Oakland will be about double what was first planned, according to Robert M. Bird, manager of the wholesale Victor department of Sherman, Clay & Co. It is expected the new factory will be ready to begin operations around the first of the year.

Aeolian Record Manager a Visitor

After a visit to the Munson-Rayner Co., distributor of Aeolian records, Oscar Ray, general manager of the record division of the Aeolian Co., proceeded to Los Angeles and other Southern points en route to New York.

Satisfactory Edison Demand

Edison Phonographs, Ltd., Edison distributor for this territory, with branches in Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles, in addition to the local headquarters, is making every effort to keep the many dealers which it serves on the Coast supplied with instruments for holiday business, which promises to be eminently satisfactory. Records are also in good demand, and the prosperous state of Edison business in this territory, as well as general indications, point to an even better business in 1924.

Forrest Brackett, traveler for the Munson-Rayner Co., returned recently from his regular trip through Oregon and Washington and reported conditions favorable in those States.

New Stores Opened

A new store, known as the Novelty Shop, was formally opened for business at Twenty-third avenue and Geary street by F. C. Dittmar. In conjunction with art objects and other home decorations he has put in a stock of Victor and Brunswick machines and records. Mr. Dittmar is an interior decorator and he is convinced that the talking machine rightly fits into the setting of the "home beautiful."

The Oroville Music Co. has opened for business at 511 Montgomery street, Oroville, Cal., under the management of C. A. Moore from Marysville, where the same interests operate the Marysville Music Co. Among the lines

Here and There in the Trade

Walter S. Gray, jobber of Brilliantone needles in this territory, received a visit during the past month from B. R. Foster, president of the Brilliantone Needle Corp. After calling on the trade, playing a little golf, etc., in the Bay section Mr. Gray drove down to Los Angeles with Mr. Foster, which proved a very enjoyable auto trip for this time of the year.

Chas. H. Myers, formerly manager of the phonograph department of the Hauschildt Music Co., is now in charge of that department of the Kohler & Chase branch store in Sacramento, Cal., where Brunswick machines and records are handled.

The Berkeley Music House in the College City across the Bay, which has carried Victor products, has now added the Sonora line.

MOVES OFFICE TO SAGINAW

H. W. Gerard, Manager, Sonora Purchasing Department, Will Make Headquarters at Saginaw—Will Assume Increased Duties

Henry W. Gerard, manager of the purchasing department of the Sonora Phonograph Co., will, beginning January 1, maintain headquarters at the company's factories in Saginaw, Mich., instead of New York, N. Y. Coincident with the removal of his office to Saginaw Mr. Gerard will assume increased duties and responsibilities, for he will not only be in charge of purchasing, but will also be manager of the traffic department. Mr. Gerard is ideally equipped for this important work, as he has been identified with the Sonora organization for many years and is thoroughly familiar with every detail incidental to purchasing in all its branches.

VIOLA ELLIS NEW GENNETT ARTIST

Well-known Dramatic Contralto Has Signed Contract to Sing Exclusively for Gennett Records—Early Release of First Records

Miss Viola Ellis, dramatic contralto, is the latest artist to be added by the Starr Piano Co. to make Gennett records, and several of her records are scheduled for early release. Miss Ellis first attracted widespread attention when she participated in the Saint Saens Memorial Concert in 1922. Her grand opera debut was made at the Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, Cal., as Amneris in "Aida." The addition of this artist is in line with the policy of the Starr Piano Co. to secure the best possible talent for making Gennett records.

TOM GRIFFITH HEADS ASSOCIATION

Popular Sales Manager of Udell Works Elected President of Indianapolis Furniture Manufacturers' Association—Already at Work

The many friends of Tom H. Griffith, the well-known and popular sales manager of the Udell Works, manufacturers of talking machine record and music roll cabinets, with headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., will be glad to learn that he was recently elected president of the Indianapolis Furniture Manufacturers' Association, which has a membership composed of the leading furniture manufacturers of that territory. Mr. Griffith, with his usual aggressiveness, has already started his activities in the Association by establishing a carloading department, making Indianapolis the center of shipping of less-than-carload lots, instead of Chicago, thus effecting a saving in time.

MME. FRIEDA HEMPEL IN RECITAL

Mme. Frieda Hempel, the famous soprano and Edison artist, attracted an enormous audience to her opening concert for this season at Carnegie Hall on November 27. She was in splendid voice and interpreted a program of exceeding interest, with, needless to say, numerous encores of many well-known favorites. She was accompanied by Conrad V. Bos in his usual capable manner, who was also heard in special numbers which demonstrated afresh his ability as a pianist. Mme. Hempel has a busy concert season before her and it is cheering to her friends to know that she will be heard soon again in New York in a Jenny Lind concert.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

BIG HOLIDAY BUSINESS EXPECTED BY MONTREAL TRADE

Record Price War Causes Short-lived Business Depression—Retailers Executing Business Drives With Considerable Success—Makes Special Records for Charity Drive for Funds—Month's News

MONTREAL, CAN., December 7.—Dealers are looking forward to a good holiday trade this season, particularly in records and the better known makes of talking machines. A record price war has been in evidence the past month, a certain make selling three ten-inch records for a dollar, one dealer selling alone 22,000 of these by mail. Then followed another cut, four for a dollar, and then to cap the climax, one retailer who was discontinuing the line came out with an announcement that he would sell five for a dollar, which included all the latest releases up to a certain time. His stock was quickly cleaned out. All this naturally had a dampening effect on the sale of other records, but this was short lived and business in all lines is enjoying splendid sales volume at regular prices.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., recently inserted an advertisement in the local dailies in which it offered a full-size cabinet phonograph with forty double-sided records (eighty selections) at a price of $125, with terms of $10 cash and $6 monthly. Within twenty-four hours of the appearance of the announcement their complete stock was sold out. A duplicate offer was made within a few days which met with the same ready response as the first offer.

Fifty-five cents and one old broken record

(excepting Columbia or Edison) was the inducement of the Compo Co., Ltd., to the public to purchase any new Apex ten-inch double-sided phonograph records between November 15 and November 30. Apex dealers thus allowed 10 cents to every customer on each old record returned provided an equal number of new Apex records were purchased.

A handsome electric sign announces that Brunswick phonographs and records are now available at the warerooms of Wm. Lee, Ltd.

Layton Bros., Ltd., annual Christmas Club, limited to 200 members with a membership fee of $1, is now in full swing. To have their Christmas trade partially spread over November greatly relieved congestion.

In a campaign to raise funds for charitable purposes recently conducted in Montreal the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., was called upon to make quite a large number of special records. Sir Mortimer Davis, of Montreal, visited the recording laboratory, where he recorded a special appeal for funds. These records were delivered to the homes of prospective subscribers.

Music merchants of St. John, N. B., have asked their City Council to impose a license fee of $500 on all non-resident sellers of pianos and phonographs.

sign "5 cents a bag." Beyond this was a heap of Banana skins. The window attracted a lot of publicity for the records.

J. J. H. McLean, Ltd., had the honor of supplying Lord Renfrew with a piano and a console phonograph in his Regal Suite during his stay at the Royal Alexandra Hotel. His Royal Highness is exceedingly fond of music and before leaving Winnipeg purchased from the McLean Co. a portable Victrola for use on his home-ward trip.

For the purpose of preventing fraud as much as possible, for discovering cases of fraud and for prosecuting them when found, an organization has just been established in Winnipeg, called the Winnipeg Investigation Committee. It is proposed to incorporate this body and application has already been made for a charter.

CHRISTMAS RUSH ON IN SALT LAKE

Predictions of Big Holiday Trade Coming True—Brunswick Dealers Meet—Store Improvements and Other Trade News of the Month

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, December 6.—Business is good here at this writing and everyone predicts a wonderful Christmas trade this year. Money will be more plentiful here than it has been at Christmastime for some years and there seems every reason to believe that the talking machine people are going to get at least their share of it.

The first annual gathering of the dealers of the local branch of the Brunswick Co. was held at the Hotel Utah during the present week and was a big success. A full report of the affair will be found on another page of this issue.

The Williams Music Co., of Washington avenue, Ogden, has installed talking machine booths. The business is now under the management of Fred D. and Jos. H. Williams, sons of Ezra H. G. Williams, founder of the business, who plans to retire.

Dick Thompson, advertising manager of the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., has gone to the company's branch at Hollywood, Cal., for a visit.

The Auerbach Co.'s phonograph department is in its new home in the old Keith-O'Brien Building at the southwest corner of State and East Broadway.

Stone & Co., West Second South street, have taken over the distribution of the Starr Piano Co.'s products in this territory, which include Starr phonographs and Gennett records.

R. F. Perry, traveling representative of the Brunswick Co., has gone to Idaho and will be away for about three weeks.

G. C. Spratt and R. F. Perry, of the Brunswick Co., appeared at a sales meeting of the Magna Furniture Co. and the Midvale Furniture Co. recently. All of the salespeople of the two concerns were present. G. C. Spratt, R. F. Perry and Harry Grass were the speakers.

Carl J. Anderson is again with the Lindley Heindselman Music Co., Brunswick dealer.

The new Columbia models are in big demand here, according to officers of the Columbia Stores Co. on West Temple street. There is also considerable interest in the New Process record. The distributors cannot supply the demand for the demonstration record.

Fred A. Bain, of the John Elliot Clark Co., local Victor distributor, has gone to the Butte, Mont., branch of the company on a visit. The meeting of Victor dealers, which was to have been held here by this time, has had to be postponed for a few weeks, owing to the inability of a representative of the company, who was going to give some demonstrations, to be present.

COLUMBIA TORONTO OFFICES REMOVED TO THE FACTORY

Move Made in Accordance With New Policy of Consolidating Manufacturing, Administration and Sales Service—News and Activities of the Trade During the Month

TORONTO, ONT., December 7.—In accordance with the policy of consolidating the manufacturing, selling, service and administration of the Columbia Phonograph Co., the Canadian executive offices have been removed from Adelaide street, West, to the factory at 1244 Dufferin street, this city. Mr. McMurdy and his staff are now settled in large airy, bright commodious offices on the second floor. The removal will permit of a closer supervision of Columbia's production of records and of their record service.

An unusual stunt was recently put over by Whitcher & Co., Ottawa, with the help of a Magnavox and phonograph combination. An amplifying horn was erected back of a large billboard, on which appeared a thirty-six-sheet poster for the film "If Winter Comes." This poster had been placed upside down on the space. Wires ran from the horn to the Whitcher store across the street and the phonograph record of "If Winter Comes" was repeatedly played. At intervals an announcer gave statements regarding various details of the picture. It was announced as "The Talking Poster," the horn having been concealed behind a cloth-covered section of the billboard.

H. S. Berliner, president of the Compo Co., Ltd., whose factory is located at Lachine, Que., where Apex records are pressed, visited his Ontario distributing house, the Sun Record Co., here, during the past month. The irrepressible "Billy Jones, himself," the popular New York tenor whose name is known in Canada via the Apex record, was another Toronto visitor here the past month.

TRADE ACTIVITIES IN WINNIPEG

New Manager for J. J. H. McLean Co.—Clever Window Excites Interest—Organization Formed to Prevent and Investigate Fraud

WINNIPEG, MAN., December 6.—Mr. Peterson, for four years on the selling staff of the J. J.

H. McLean Co., has been appointed manager of the Victrola department, succeeding Mr. Farquharson. By a unique window display idea, Mr. Peterson made a record sale for two records, "Yes We Have No Bananas" and "We Have Peanuts 5 Cents a Bag." His idea was to have a big sack of peanuts running over in the window, with small bags alongside it with a

SATISFACTORY BUSINESS ENJOYED IN SPITE OF THE DISTURBING INFLUENCE OF THE ELECTION

Radio Credited With Benefiting Trade Through Broadcasting of Programs—Plans for British Industries Fair Progressing—Activities and News of the Month

LONDON, ENGLAND, December 3.—Notwithstanding the turmoil of a general election, resulting in a certain amount of business dislocation, British gramophone trade conditions are generally good—as they should be at this period, of course. Manufacturers and wholesalers are really busy keeping pace with retailers' demands and it is fortunate to be able to report, political circumstances considered, that most dealers are not dissatisfied with the extent of public sales. The latter aspect of the trade is a little difficult to gauge, but I think sales would have been much better had we not experienced the disturbing influence of an election. Christmas trade is certain to be heavy, but it will be affected by the election results (after December 6), according to which political party is returned. The choice of the electorate is so problematical that to comment further at this stage is futile.

Worthy of reference is that the rejuvenated wireless trade, which many thought would adversely affect gramophone sales, seems rather to have stimulated the demand for all classes and methods of music. It has undoubtedly reflected favorably on gramophone and record sales. Music dealers everywhere find that radio concerts result in numerous inquiries for records or music of the items broadcasted. Apart from stimulating gramophone sales, this aspect encourages the stocking of wireless goods. It would seem not improbable that within the near future the control of wireless distribution will be almost exclusively in the hands of the music merchants.

Standard Tone Arm and Sound Box Fitments

The action of the Gramophone Association in establishing a schedule of standard sizes and forms of measurement for tone arm and sound box fitments has met with the unqualified approval of its members and of the trade generally, all agreeing that it is a move in the right direction, for the frequent failure of supplies to conform to recognized standards has led to a great deal of annoyance and loss to the trade. In furtherance of its scheme the Association is furnishing to its members, without charge, templates in the form of die-cast extension lugs which should fulfill all reasonable requirements of sound box and tone arm manufacturers and enable them to secure with a certainty suitable fitment in the recognized standard gauges, so that the interchange of sound boxes and tone arms should no longer be a source of trouble.

From the manner in which the suggestion has been taken up by the manufacturers and wholesalers it seems likely that before long merchants in ordering machines will insist that the fitments shall be of "Gramophone Association standard measurements."

Excellent Federation Work

The Federation of British Music Industries, to which are affiliated all the music trade associations, with the exception of the Music Publishers' Association, reports that for the month of October the revenue receipts were the largest on record for any one month since the Federation was formed. As this indicates, there is a growing appreciation in trade circles of the value of the extensive and energetic propaganda and publicity work performed by the Federation. The industry as a whole is beginning to realize that the Federation, properly supported, is bound to achieve by co-ordinated effort far more for the industry individually or collectively than any one section. Results undoubtedly go to show that the early work of the Federation is now bearing fruit. It is worthy of note that the largest receipts for the last financial year, from any section of the music industries, was from the gramophone industry.

The Political Situation

The most eagerly discussed question in trade circles at the time of writing is the probable party to form the next government. A general election at this time of the year, fought on any issue, is regarded as a serious menace to the Christmas trade season, and the possibility of a decided change in the fiscal policy, i. e., from a free-trade regime to the imposition of a general tariff, is having a rather bad effect in certain trade circles. Despite the advantages that would undoubtedly accrue to some industries should a protective tariff be imposed on importations affecting those industries, the general impression is that in face of the falling sovereign and the rising dollar, and of the shock to finance and the injury to trade, the controversy should not have been forced upon the nation at this moment. However, it is of no use to cry over spilled milk. The thing is done, and by the time this appears in print the new Parliament will have assembled.

The two main sections of the British music industries already enjoy a measure of protection, a tariff of 33 1/3 per cent being placed on all imported pianos and gramophones. The gramophone industry is held up as an example by the Government party of how tariff benefits a specific industry. They claim that under the protection of what is known as the McKenna duties the industry, though a minor one, has been able to eliminate the foreigner from the home market and increased the number of British workpeople. The figures given in support of this statement are decidedly interesting and are as follows: In 1913 90 per cent of the metal parts employed in gramophones was imported. Last year only 25 per cent was imported. Of the cabinet work in gramophones 50 per cent was imported in 1913. Last year the import was negligible, and British workers had captured over 99 per cent of the trade. Again, in the case of records, the British manufacturer has succeeded (it is claimed) in capturing the whole of the trade, although 20 per cent of the records was imported in 1913. The effect has been that between 15,000 and 20,000 workers are now employed in the British gramophone industry, as against less than 10,000 in 1913.

With the return of the Government to power the existing duties can certainly be expected to be retained, and there is even a possibility of the tariff being increased. But with the Liberal party in power, it is extremely doubtful if even the existing tariffs would be maintained. The main plank of the Labor platform is the imposition of a levy on all individual fortunes in excess of £5,000, the money obtained from this source to be solely devoted to the reduction of the war debt.

New Zonophone Recordings

The recordings released this month by the British Zonophone Co. evidence the foresight of the company in providing in good time suitable music for special seasons. Ten-inch issues include music and song for Christmastime. No. 2382 carries "God Rest Ye, Merry Christians" and "The Bethlehem Shepherds," both effectively rendered by the Dorian Singers, male voice quartet. In sharp relief are a couple of humorous duets on No. 2379: "When the Winter Time Comes Round" and "It's Doing Me Good," by O'Neill and Thayer. An instrumental quartet—violin, 'cello, flute and harp—have brilliantly recorded on No. 2381 two delightful pieces—"The Mermaid Song" (Weber) and "My Heart's Delight" (George). The "Oliver Cromwell Concert Overture" (Geehl) makes a good record in two parts on No. 2373, played by the St. Hilda Colliery Band. This was the test piece selected recently for the National Band Contest in which more than 150 bands took part. The well-known operatic tenor, Frank Webster, again contributes two delightfully rendered songs, both, happily, of the better type of sentimental songs, on No. 2375—"I've Fallen in Love" (With a Wonderful Girl) and "The Kingdom of Love." Of the twelve-inch, No. A278 will appeal to many. It carries a couple of pleasing tenor song numbers by Browning Mummary, "Sound an Alarm" (from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus") and "A Furtive Tear" (from Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amour").

Physical Culture Records

One of the secrets of the Gramophone Co.'s success is to be found in the wide range of its activities. It strives to touch the life of the community at as many points as possible. In all the main sections of human interest—entertainment, amusement, inspiration and instruction—special classes of "His Master's Voice" records have been made to supply the requirements of the public in the most complete and practical manner. Now come three double-sided ten-inch records of "physical jerks," each record containing two exercises on each side. Each exercise is set to a "catchy" tune having the correct rhythm, and the music makes the "jerks" easy and interesting. Spoken explanations of the various exercises are given, together with the "count" for each movement. There is a very real need for these records, and the methods adopted by the Gramophone Co. in introducing them to the public insures them a very brisk sale.

Fruitful Gramophone Publicity

The big gramophone houses are indulging in remarkable advertising campaigns. Big space in the dailies and magazines and the trade press brings home to a huge public just exactly the diverse entertaining and instrumental value of this form of music, song and speech. The "His Master's Voice," Columbia, Winner, Edison-Bell, Pathé, Homochord and others are collectively spending thousands of pounds on the good work. It means big business!

Talking Machines at Wireless Exhibition

The publication of the Parliamentary Wireless Committee's report, of which we wrote last month, has cleared the air—or, as we should put it in wireless parlance, freed the ether—and much of the uncertainty hitherto overhanging the legal position of the average broadcaster has been removed, with the consequent result that the present Winter boom compares more than favorably with last season.

The recent wireless exhibition, held at the White City, Shepherd's Bush, was a tremendous success. Many of the prominent gramophone houses here have added wireless sets and parts to their manufactures and the following firms took space at the exhibition: J. E. Hough, Ltd., of Edison-Bell gramophone record fame; the

British Industries Fair, 1924

The tenth fair, to be held at the White City from April 28 to May 15, next year, promises to eclipse the success of all previous fairs. In the music section the space already booked is nearly twice the size of that taken last year, and the variety of manufactures exhibited in 1923 will be greatly exceeded. The success that attended last year's fair was largely due to the very wide publicity given to it by the Department of Overseas Trade, which enjoys and fully exercises broad facilities for propaganda. The publicity to be given, and already being given, to the 1924 fair is even greater than before.

The gramophone manufacturers who have booked or signified their intention of taking space are as follows: Bandmaster, Ltd., which, it will be remembered, at last year's fair booked an order for 15,000 gramophones; Electric Gramophones, Ltd.; The Garrard Engineering Co., Ltd.; Senthall Gramophones, Ltd.; The

Peter Pan Gramophone Co., Ltd.; Barnett, Samuel & Sons, Ltd., and Joseph Wallis & Son, Ltd.

The success of the fair will be further enhanced by reason of the British Empire Exhibition, which is to be held at Wembley from April to October. It is calculated that overseas buyers will make a point of arriving in this country in time for the opening at Wembley, which would enable them to inspect both the exhibition and the British Industries Fair. A number of gramophone firms have secured space at the Wembley exhibition.

WASHINGTON

December Brings Big Business Improvement—Trade Looking Forward to Very Busy Year-end—News and Activities of the Month

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Following more than a month of extremely quiet business in the talking machine trade in this city, the first week in December saw a noticeable improvement all along the line, and this increase seems to be gaining at a steady rate. As a consequence, dealers who were inclined to be pessimistic over prospects for Christmas a month ago are now looking forward to a very encouraging trade, and the general atmosphere is much more hopeful. Last year many of the stores were caught at this season with insufficient stocks of machines and records, but this year the situation is improved.

As an illustration of what advertising of new features can do to help the trade, the success of the recently issued Columbia "test" record may be cited. This record, released primarily as an advertisement for the new type of record being manufactured by this company, jumped into immediate demand in Washington, and during a period when sales of records were the lowest for months, the sales of the "test" records were such that they could not be kept in stock at some stores. Although it may be a coincidence, the fact remains that the upward trend in record and phonograph sales started just about a week after the Columbia record was put on sale. While the majority of the buyers of this novelty were sold through their own curiosity as to what the record had on it, rather than a desire to examine the new laminated construction, the thing of prime importance is that the advertising of this product caught the interest of the public and made them think of phonographs.

T. W. Woodward, who formerly maintained a talking machine repair shop at 809 Ninth street, Northwest, has moved into new and larger quarters just around the corner from his original store, and now is located at 813 H street, Northwest. The new store is fully equipped for repairing of all kinds. At the front are located the counter and display shelves, while in the rear is a very complete workshop, fully equipped to do all kinds of machine work incidental to talking machine repairing.

Charles F. Shaw, branch manager of the Brunswick Co., visited Washington during the month to confer with local Brunswick retailers.

The Brunswick Shop, formerly at 1404 Park road, has moved to its new location on Fourteenth street just below Park road, right in the heart of the upper Fourteenth street business section. Recent improvements in this section, including the erection of several large office buildings, one housing the local broadcasting station of the Radio Corp. of America, and one of the largest motion picture theatres in the city, have greatly stimulated business on Fourteenth street, with the result that it has become a bustling shopping center, including three or four talking machine establishments.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 8.—Phonograph Recorder. Newman H. Holland, West Orange, N. J., assignor to New Jersey Patent Co., same place. Patent No. 1,465,764.

This invention relates to phonograph recorders, especially of the floating-weight type.

One of the principal objects of the invention is to provide an improved construction for phonograph recorders of the floating-weight type wherein during the recording operation the tension in the connection between the stylus and the diaphragm or vibratory means is sufficient to prevent lost motion and rattling, and at the same time the recording stylus engages the record tablet with the proper pressure.

In order that the invention may be more clearly understood, attention is directed to the drawing accompanying and forming a part of this specification and in which the single figure is a fragmental view in elevation, partly in section, of a phonograph illustrating one form of recorder embodying this invention, in operative position with respect to the record tablet.

Tone Arm for Phonographs. Burr B. Blood, Chicago, Ill., assignor by mesne assignments to the Jewel Phonoparts Co., same place. Patent No. 1,468,224.

This invention relates to tone arms adapted for use in connection with phonographs provided with tone chambers; that is, in connection with phonographs wherein the tone or sound is conveyed from the reproducer through the tone arm and thereby transmitted into the tone chamber usually formed in the phonograph cabinet beneath the record-holding turntable.

One object of the invention is to provide a tone arm wherein the reproducer receiving end or elbow is provided with a pivotal connection which will enable the proper movement of the reproducer across the record; permitting the reproducer to have the desired freedom during its travel and yet at the same time provide a connection which will not interfere with the tone quality and will not produce a "blast" or permit any "chatter," so often encountered with tone arms and connections at present employed. The means employed for providing the pivotal connection just referred to is of such nature as to take up any slight differences in formation or dimensions, within a given range, that may occur between the reproducer-receiving end or elbow and the main portion of the tone arm.

Another object of the invention is to provide the tone arm with a pivotal support at the base end, on the cabinet adapted to receive the entire weight of the arm without permitting any binding effect but allow a free swing or oscillation of the tone arm, and thus provide a construction responsive to the delicate power of force applied to the stylus or needle by the shallow grooves of the record. The invention at the same time contemplates a construction wherein the tone arm proper may be easily and quickly lifted or disconnected from its base or pivot providing portion.

Figure 1 is a side elevation of the improved tone arm shown provided with a reproducer, the stylus whereof is shown in contact with a portion of a disc record; the main portion of the tone arm and its base being shown in longitudinal section to disclose the pivot-forming elements. Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the main portion of the tone arm in inverted position, that is looking at the bottom thereof, to disclose the interior construction at the ends. Fig. 3 is a perspective view of the base or pivot-forming portion of the tone arm turned up on its side. Fig. 4 is a sectional view, taken on the line 4-4 of Fig. 1, looking in the direction of the arrows. Fig. 5 is a detail sectional view of a modified form of the pivotal connection between the main portion of the tone arm and the reproducer-receiving end or elbow.

This invention relates to sound boxes and particularly to novel means of mounting the stylus bar on the sound box. One of the objects is to provide a stylus bar mounting for sound boxes which will eliminate the undesirable relationship between the diaphragm and the stylus arm mounting to remove any dampening effect on the diaphragm; a stylus arm mounting for sound boxes which will permit proper reproduction of sounds without dampening or otherwise retarding the effectiveness of the diaphragm; stylus arm mountings for sound boxes for successful commercial use.

Generally speaking, the objects of the invention are accomplished by providing a knife edge engagement between the stylus arm and the sound box and mounting the tension spring wholly on the stylus arm so that the same may be movable with the arm as the diaphragm is vibrated.

of the parts being shown in section. Fig. 3 is a vertical sectional view of the invention. Fig. 4 is an enlarged sectional view taken in the plane of line 4-4 of Fig. 1 showing the preferred means of mounting the stylus arm on the sound box.

Phonograph. Herbert O. Crippen, Sanford, Fla. Patent No. 1,468,138.

A more specific object of the invention is to provide an improved amplifying casing or horn for phonographs containing a double tone chamber.

Another object is to provide an improved casing, enclosing a tone chamber, which is responsive to the high and to the low notes with utmost fidelity, and which is resonant to an extent that it increases the volume or tone and reinforces all tones, equally vibrating in the same time.

Another object is to provide a vibratable casing enclosing a tone chamber and another relatively rigid spaced away casing enclosing the vibratable casing, leaving a sealed space intervening between the two casings, to thereby provide a resonant chamber outside of the usual sound amplifying horn.

Another object is to provide a sound responsive casing containing a tone chamber and means to tension the chamber, thereby to make it more sensitive to normally inaudible sound emanating from the amplifying casing or horn.

Another object of the intervention is to improve the cabinet and arrangement of the horn and sound reproducing instrumentality to render scratching of the needle less apparent.

In the drawings Figure 1 is an isometric perspective view of the double casing sound amplifier and modifier containing an inner and an outer tone chamber showing parts in section. Fig. 2 is a front elevation of an improved cabinet in one side of which the improved devices are to be contained. Fig. 3 is a section taken on line 3-3 of Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a section taken on line 4-4 of Fig. 3. Fig. 5 is a longitudinal section of the horn or amplifier with the closed and sealed tone chamber, on the vertical sides only, being omitted from the top and bottom. Fig. 6 is a longitudinal section of the modification of the device shown in Fig. 1.

Sound Amplifier. Martin Nystrom, Chicago, Ill., assignor to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., same place. Patent No. 1,468,166.

This invention relates to talking machines and has for its primary object the provision of an amplifier of wood constructed to insure its maximum efficiency as a conductor and distributor of sound under varying atmospheric conditions.

A further object is the provision of a wood amplifier for talking machines in which the customary joint between the mouth neck portion and the portion of the amplifier leading to the tone arm is eliminated.

in section of the damper. Fig. 4 is a detail in elevation, illustrating the construction of the amplifier.

Sound Box. Henry Walker, Wilmington, Del., assignor of one-half to Frank F. Slocomb, same place. Patent No. 1,469,058.

This invention consists of a novel construction of a sound box, wherein is employed a plurality of diaphragms, including an inner and an intermediate diaphragm of novel construction, whereby the reproduced sound waves are modulated and clarified by the vibrations transmitted from one air chamber to another, and by the vibratory tongue forming a portion of the inner diaphragm, by the coaction of which practically all harsh or metallic sounds are avoided, and the resultant reproduction is rendered smooth, round, full and sympathetic, in a word, natural. Also the scratching sound caused by the contact of the needle point with the moving record, and which has heretofore been so objectionable a feature, is by this improved construction so nearly absorbed and eliminated that it is impossible of detection after a record has been put in play.

To the above ends this invention consists of a novel construction of a sound box comprising a body containing a diaphragm chamber, preferably provided with three diaphragms, the inner diaphragm having a semicircular or equivalently shaped cut therein extending half way, more or less, around the diaphragm near its outer periphery and forming a resilient tongue, while the intermediate diaphragm has a shorter cut therein, preferably out of alignment with the cut in said inner diaphragm, the outer diaphragm being solid, and all said diaphragms being held in assembled position and separated from each other by gaskets in such a manner that the reproduced sound waves are clarified, so that a natural and faithful reproduction is obtained.

taken on line 3—3 in Fig. 1. Fig. 4 represents a plan view of the intermediate diaphragm in detached position. Fig. 5 represents a plan view of the inner diaphragm in detached position. Fig. 6 represents a plan view of another form of intermediate diaphragm which may be used in lieu of the diaphragm seen in Fig. 4. Fig. 7 represents a plan view of another form of inner diaphragm which may be used in lieu of the diaphragm seen in Fig. 5.

Protector for Phonograph Records. Victor H. Emerson, New York, N. Y. Patent No. 1,468,879.

This invention relates to cover devices for disc records, of the type employed with the record while the latter is being played. It is in the nature of an improvement on or modification of the device disclosed in co-pending application, Serial No. 418,246, filed October 20, 1920. In that application there is illustrated and described a device in which a disc record is provided with a cover sheet or device having an aperture therein through which the spindle of the talking machine passes when the record and cover device are in position for playing. A radially extending slot in the device allows the reproducing needle to pass through and engage with the record, and the rotation of the device with the record is prevented by the engagement of a wall or edge of the slot with the reproducing apparatus, preferably with the needle. The cover device may carry matter relating to or explanatory of the subject matter of the record, such as the words and music of a song, illustrative scenes, a translation of the recordation, or any other useful or supplemental information relating to the record. An objection to this device is that the long slot through which the needle passes exposes the grooved portion of the record to injury at that point and allows dust to enter the grooves in that portion of the record.

An object of the present invention is generally to improve the device disclosed in prior application, and to provide a device of that kind which will more completely protect the record against dust and injury.

record constructed in accordance with the invention. Fig. 2 is a section in elevation of the record and cover device taken substantially along the line a—a of Fig. 2.

Sound Reproducing Apparatus. Anthony Vasselli, Newark, N. J., assignor by mesne assignments to the General Phonograph Corp., New York. Patent No. 1,468,767.

This invention relates to sound boxes or reproducers for talking machines, and more particularly to that type of machine in which the record groove is carried on the flat surface of a disc or tablet.

The objects of the invention are to produce a sound box which will be cheap to construct, will not get out of order, in which the stylus arm may be steadily placed in proper position relatively to the diaphragm, in which the tension of the stylus arm may be easily adjusted, and which will be easy to assemble.

The object of the invention is to provide improvements in apparatus for reproducing sound; by means of which the quality of the reproduction will be improved.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a front elevation of a sound box embodying the invention. Fig. 2 is a bottom plan view of the same. Fig. 3 is a section on an enlarged scale, the section being taken on the line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a detail view of the knife edge.

Stylus Mounting for Reproducers. Julius A. Brown, Peekskill, N. Y., assignor to Ernest Loomis, same place. Patent No. 1,469,451.

This invention has for its object to provide an improved resilient mounting for the stylus arm in a phonograph reproducer, in which the plate spring is extended in several directions to facilitate the vibration of the parts; and which is provided with means for adjusting its tension, whereby the character of the vibration can be easily regulated.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a front elevation. Fig. 2 is a side elevation, partly in section. Fig. 3 is a detail view enlarged of certain parts. Fig. 4 is a view showing the spring mounting parts separated in general order of assembly. Fig. 5 is a plan view of certain parts.

Spring Stylus Mounting for Phonographs. Julius A. Brown, Peekskill, N. Y., assignor to Ernest Loomis, same place. Patent No. 1,469,452.

The object of the present invention is to provide an improved form of stylus arm mounting for a reproducer for phonographs, that is constituted by a plate spring doubled sharply on itself at one portion; and a further object is to provide such a spring member in which the axis or bend of the structure will lie approximately in the plane of the diaphragm.

In the accompanying drawing Figure 1 is a front elevation. Fig. 2 is a side elevation partly in section. Fig. 3 is an end elevation. Figs. 4 and 5 show the spring member detached. Fig. 6 shows the stylus arm and attached bracket.

Fig. 7 is a partial view enlarged through the spring and stylus arm. Figs. 8 and 9 show slight modifications of the spring plate.

Phonograph Record. John J. Reinhold, Marietta, Pa. Patent No. 1,471,862.

This invention relates to phonograph records of the disc type. It is a difficult matter to pick up disc records from a flat surface, such as the turntable of talking machines, especially, when they are very thin and have an edge of the usual shape. Moreover, when a number of records are stacked one on top of the other it is usually necessary when picking one off, to slide it partially off the stack before a firm hold can be obtained upon the same; this is the usual habit when picking a record off the stack because it seems to be the most convenient way; the objection to this is that some of the records become scratched and the sound grooves become worn away by this sliding action.

In carrying out this invention there is constructed the edge or periphery of the disc of a shape which is adaptable to engage with the finger nails of the human hand, through which the disc can be readily lifted and the fingers placed under the same to enable a person to get a firm hold. The handling of records is greatly facilitated when formed as herein shown and described.

Referring to the drawing Figure 1 is a sectional view of a turntable of the type usually employed with talking machines, upon which is carried a record of the common type. Fig. 2 is an enlarged sectional view of a portion of the turntable shown in Fig. 1, and a portion of a record showing the principal features of this invention. Fig. 3 shows a modification of the improved record as shown in Fig. 2.

PAUL STUTZER TO RETIRE

WEST HOBOKEN, N. J., December 10.—Paul Stutzer, who has been in the music business here for the past ten years and is prominent in local merchandising circles, is disposing of his stock, preparatory to retiring from active business. Mr. Stutzer's store was one of the most completely stocked in this section.

"THE ROLL OF HONOR"

Our only concern is to manufacture rolls that will stimulate the player industry to the utmost. Our efforts are concentrated upon the volume production of one grade of U. S. Rolls, as the only means of assuring incomparable value.

The player industry can only be promoted by the best rolls that skill and money can provide.

U. S. Rolls Are Not Competitive!
Neither Dealers in Nor Makers of Musical Instruments Are Financially Interested in the Manufacture of U. S. Rolls

FORMAL OPENING OF CHENEY SHOPPE

ALHAMBRA, CAL., December 5.—The opening in this city of the new Cheney Shoppe, under the management of W. A. Robare, was a tremendous success. So great was the crowd which came to inspect the new store that it was difficult to handle it properly. Floral tributes and messages of best wishes were received throughout the day by Mr. Robare from many friends in Los Angeles and Hollywood. The opening day proved an auspicious beginning for the new store, as three Cheney machines and many records were sold to visitors.

The H. & J. Potter Furniture Co., Columbia dealer, Portland, Me., has installed a new store front in the large building recently purchased.

TWO WAYS TO CHANGE THE NEEDLE

The SCOTTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesman by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailormade appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection on elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitiveness to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap soundboxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber basket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.
