"TALKERS" MAKE YUCATAN HAPPY

American-made Instruments in All Styles Are Purchased by Rich and Poor—Fox-trots and Dance Records Among Leaders in Favor

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—From the hut of the Indian to the mansion of the millionaire, mechanical music is driving dull care away. The phonograph is as popular in Yucatan as in the United States, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Consul O. G. Marsh, Progreso. The smaller and cheaper instruments may be heard cheering the inhabitants of the Indian hut, the ordinary phonographs are found in the homes of the middle classes and the most elegant cabinet styles grace the mansions of the wealthy. Perhaps no other modern invention has done more to enliven the homes of Yucatan than the mechanical reproduction of music. A skillful local phonograph dealer has popularized and capitalized this fact in a terse, persistent and appealing advertising phrase: "How happy is the home that has its phonograph."

The American phonograph has entirely monopolized the Yucatan market, there having been no competition from other countries. An old style with horn has had an extensive sale, but cabinet styles have been preferred by better customers. A few portable instruments have been sold. All finishes have found a demand, but the mahogany finish has had the greatest sale among all classes.

Practically all orders for phonographs have been placed by importers direct with factories on factory price quotations, railway and steamship freight and marine insurance being attended to by American agents of importers or by freight forwarders at American ports. The largest importer and the one who has done a large part of the local business has purchased on open credit. Other firms have been, and will have to be, dealt with in accordance with their financial standing and credit rating, if United States exporters expect to do business here.

Practically all phonograph records sold in Yucatan are of well-known American makes. The most popular sellers have been American fox-trots and Latin-American songs and dance music. The principal importers of records have dealt with manufacturers on the same basis as in the case of phonographs, but a considerable number of records enter in a manner unknown and are sold at varying prices by small retail music dealers.

F. F. DAWSON'S IMPORTANT POST

Appointed Sales Manager of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., of Dallas, Tex.

Announcement has been made by A. H. Curry, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in charge of the phonograph division, of the appointment of Floyd F. Dawson as sales manager of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, located in Dallas, Texas, of which concern Mr. Curry is president and owner.

Mr. Dawson has had extensive experience in the phonograph business, his past connections including affiliations with various prominent manufacturing and distributing organizations. He was for a long term of years manager of the Cincinnati branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co.

Mr. Dawson has assumed his new post and, with his past record in rendering service to retail phonograph merchants and addressing trade bodies, vocational schools, etc., on the problems of marketing and sales promotion, he brings to the territory of this Edison jobbing organization a valuable experience.

J. A. READ JOINS SONORA SALES STAFF

The Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, announced recently the appointment of J. A. Read as associate general sales manager. Mr. Read, who has been identified with the talking machine industry for many years, will visit Sonora jobbers and dealers throughout the country, co-operating with them along the practical lines inaugurated by the company's sales department some time ago. Mr. Read's previous experience in the retail and wholesale divisions of the industry qualifies him for his new work.

A charter of incorporation for the manufacture of talking machines and records has been granted to Harr's Record Co., of Wilmington, Del. The concern is capitalized at $250,000.

GENERAL VACATION FOR VICTOR CO.

Entire Plant to Be Shut Down for Two Weeks From July 28 to August 13 in Order to Give All Employees Regular Vacation With Pay

The entire plant of the Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J., including manufacturing, office and sales divisions, will be shut down on July 28, to reopen two weeks later, August 13 for the purpose of giving the entire personnel of the company a full two weeks' vacation. Out of thousands of employees only a score or so in the advertising and sales departments, to take charge of pressing current matters, will be on deck during the two weeks, and these will get their vacations at a later date.

For the last couple of years the Victor Co. has tried the plan of letting the main part of the organization go at one time on vacation, and the experiment proved so successful that it was decided this year to solve the vacation question with a general shut-down. All employees of the company who have been in service for a year or more will receive full pay for the two weeks and those of shorter service will be recompensed in proportion.

It is stated that the general shut-down has proved a direct means for maintaining the efficiency of the organization throughout the Summer months; when small sections were allowed to go on vacation at different periods it meant an unsettled condition for a period of from ten weeks to three months. Under the new plan, only two weeks are lost and the efficiency is not impaired.

ONLY RECORD BY SAVOY & BRENNAN

Team Had Just Completed First Vocalion Record When Bert Savoy Was Killed

In view of the tragic death recently of Bert Savoy, of the popular vaudeville team of Savoy and Brennan, who was struck by lightning recently while bathing at Long Beach, it is interesting to learn that the Aeolian Co. has the only record made by that team. Some time ago Savoy and Brennan made a contract to record for Vocalion records and had just completed their first record when Savoy was stricken. The record, which will shortly be released to the trade, is exceptionally clear and the characteristic repartee of the comedians is highly amusing.

Why Close Shop in the Summer Months?

Five Dealers Out of Six in One Town Hide Behind the Excuse of "No Business to Be Had" to Obtain Long Rest During the Summer

About this time every year a certain class of talking machine merchants are engaged in the interesting practice of cutting overhead to the bone. Firmly convinced that business has hibernated for the next three months or so, they curtail advertising—some cut it out altogether—reduce direct by mail to the mere sending out of the monthly supplements (some even do not do that) and wait patiently for the "dog" days to pass, wondering in the meanwhile why sales are so few and far between and complaining bitterly about conditions. This may sound a bit overdrawn to those dealers who continue working throughout the Summer months, but nevertheless these statements are based on facts.

Why Business Is Dull

A representative of The World who recently went out into the territory surrounding the metropolitan district for the specific purpose of finding out what the dealers are doing to stimulate business discovered some surprising things. In one town, for example, where there are six dealers handling talking machines and records, questioning disclosed the fact that only one merchant was making any effort to get business. Think of it, one out of six! The other five were doing nothing whatsoever to stimulate trade. They were so firmly convinced that selling talking machines and records in the Summer months was an impossibility that they simply laid down on the job. The other and more progressive merchant is making an intensive effort to get business through the canvassing route and, while his sales from this work are by no means startling, they are sufficiently frequent to warrant the continuation of the campaign throughout the Summer.

At any rate, it is much better to have the salesmen out trying to dig up a few sales than to have them get rusty sitting in the store doing nothing, and, furthermore, even if sales are noticeable by their absence, the very fact that the salesmen have been out visiting the people in the community should be productive of a good many live prospects who can be sold at a more favorable time, say the early Fall.

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the talking machine is in the specialty class and, therefore, must be sold. People do not buy a high-priced instrument like they do a pair of shoes or groceries. Those members of the trade who have achieved signal success have not reached their enviable positions by taking the line of least resistance. They have worked hard and consistently, the aim being to make a better record in sales each month than the month preceding. Simply taking the so-called dull season for granted is probably the best and most conscience-satisfying way of obtaining a good rest during the hot weather, but at the end of the year when the annual sales volume seems disastrously small there will be much regretful looking back over passed-up opportunities.

A Policy to Insure Failure

The following statement from a dealer with a small establishment is sufficient indication of why that particular dealer has a small business and also why the chances are overwhelmingly in favor of his limited development: "There isn't any business now. Things are rotten. No use advertising until the hot weather has passed. Summer is always our dullest season. Nothing sells. No, I don't advertise during the Summer.

You can't make people buy when they do not want to buy, and there is no use trying. I just mark time and sell when they come in, but in the Fall I will resume activities."

Isn't the above a masterpiece in the way of a policy to follow in the conduct of a business enterprise which, to be successful, requires taking advantage of every opportunity and promulgating sales promotion drives which will bring the dealer and his establishment to the attention of the people in his community?

This article is not written with the object of picking out the weak spots in the trade. It is written with the hope that those who read it will spend a few moments in quiet analyzation of their own business. There are many mighty successful merchants scattered throughout the country who have no complaint to make over Summer business volume. It isn't because they are lucky either, but simply because they never let up in their aggressive efforts to continually increase their business volume. It is the worker who wins!

Three Fundamentals of Good Collecting

System, Promptness and Firmness Necessary to Efficient Collection of Instalment Accounts and Prevention of Loss to Dealer

The three essentials of good collection practice are system, promptness and firmness, and whether the dealer looks after his own collection department or the business is big enough to warrant a separate collection manager the observance of these three important factors means dollars and cents on the right side of the ledger.

Through the establishment of a definite system for the collection department it is possible to follow up dilatory accounts almost automatically, which prevents any of them being overlooked until such time as a second payment becomes due. A definite system also serves to impress the customer with the fact that the dealer handles the collections in a businesslike way and that in itself is calculated to command respect and bring in payments promptly that would otherwise be neglected.

System is not only valuable in the keeping of accounts in a way that will show at a glance just how many payments are overdue and to what extent they are overdue, but it likewise provides for the sending out on definite days of notices of instalments coming due or later of the fact that they have become due and payment is desired.

The Psychology of Promptness

Promptness in collections serves several purposes. In the first place, the prompt following up of a neglected payment serves to jolt the memory of those customers who have failed to send checks through negligence and reminds those who are dilatory on purpose that they are being watched.

Promptness in going after collections not only cuts down the volume of unpaid balances, but likewise reduces the proportion of repossessions. One concern, for instance, sends out its first collection letter four days after the date when payment is due. Should the first letter be ignored a second follows four days latter, and if necessary a third letter by special delivery in another four days, or twelve days after the date for payment. Should the letters produce no results a telegram is sent four days after the third letter, which means that sixteen days after the payment has been passed the customer has had four definite notices and there is still time to do the collecting in person before a second payment is due.

The successful collection method is almost invariably that which provides for the final collection of the overdue instalment before a second instalment becomes due, for the danger of repossession and of bad debts increases in direct ratio to the increase in the size of the pending account. The customer can be forced to pay one month's instalment where there would be no possibility of making him take care of two or three monthly payments in a lump sum.

It might be stated in passing that the system of sending notices to delinquent customers at intervals of four days has worked out very satisfactorily. Especially productive is the third letter sent by special delivery and mailed between 4 and 4.30 p. m., for it reaches the home of the customer just about dinner time, when the full family is gathered together and when there can be no shifting of responsibilities.

Use of Special Letters and Telegrams

The use of the special delivery letter grew out of the experience of a dealer who on trying out such a letter brought to light the fact that the wife of the customer had been given the money to make the payment, but had used it for a matinee party. When the husband learned of the fact there was a family jam, but the dealer got his money. The telegram, representing the fourth notice, is also dispatched late in the afternoon, preferably about 5.30, and is also delivered at about the dinner hour.

Firmness in the matter of collections has a value that is obvious, for if the customer gets the idea that the dealer is careless in following up his collections and is too afraid of losing a sale to insist upon regular payments the result can easily be foreseen. As a matter of fact, the dealer has every right to be firm in insisting that the terms of the written contract be adhered to by the customer just as they were by him in making the delivery of the machine.

He should see to it that the customer is impressed with the obligation of the instalment contract just as he is with any other form of contract that he makes in the usual course of business. When the dealer is called upon to go after a delinquent customer he is going after a man who has broken or is likely to break a definite contract, and under such conditions has no apologies to make. The business that is lost as a result of firmness in demanding regular settlements on account is more than offset by the money saved through good collections.

The collection accounts should be so arranged that the dealer can tell almost at a glance just what proportion of his regular monthly instalments have become overdue. Those who watch this department very carefully find that under normal conditions, with no general depression or excess of unemployment, overdue payments can be kept at 5 per cent or less of the total each month, and that when the percentage rises to 7 or 8 it represents a danger signal that cannot be neglected.

AN EXCELLENT RECORD WINDOW

Luscher's Music Shop, of New York City, Presents "Saw Mill River Road" Window Which Attracts Widespread Attention

Luscher's Music Shop, of 2712 Third avenue, New York City, which recently won first prize in a contest conducted by the local board of trade, is again featuring a window display which is among the most attractive, if it is not the most attractive in the city at the present time. Again the idea was worked out by Edward G. Evans, of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor distributors, New York City. The window features the July Victor record release "Saw Mill River Road." The display consists of a bark-covered building representing a saw mill with a water wheel. Running water revolves the wheel and continues down a mill race the entire length of the window, the banks of which are grass-covered. Mr. Evans brought from his place in Connecticut a number of small pine trees which represented the uncut lumber. A sawdust road runs from the forest to the saw mill, with miniature donkeys hauling the logs. Cows grazing in a pasture lend a pastoral effect to the scene. The tie-up with the record is made with posters, and the display of the record itself on easels. The popularity of the display is well evidenced through the crowds viewing it at all hours of the day and evening.

PATRIOTIC DISPLAY WINS PRAISE

Poppler Piano Co., of Grand Forks, Arranged Edison Window in Patriotic Environment

GRAND FORKS, N. D., July 6.—The Poppler Piano Co., Edison dealer of this city, recently used a very effective window display of a patriotic character, which effectively tied up with the National Guard and American Legion. J. A. Poppler, president of the company, reports this window helped establish a large amount of good-will for his house. The background consisted of a large American flag which completely covered the back of the window without in any way draping the flag. On the left a machine gun was placed with a war picture, and on the right a model of the Baby console of the New Edison. In front of the console a group of war material was placed, including helmets, belts, etc. In the center was a table model of the New Edison beside an effective merchandising sign telling the merits of the Edison. Simultaneously an advertisement was run in the local newspapers linking up with this window display.

Value of Prestige as a Builder of Sales

That Elusive Something Called Prestige Has a Marked Effect on Sales—Braid White Tells What This Force Is and What It Does

The analysis of the processes of salesmaking has proceeded during the last two decades with great vigor, and, in consequence, there is now a great deal of literature on the subject—literature which shows that the energies and thought-values expended upon the consideration of the subject have not been wasted. It is probably not entirely a matter for congratulation that distribution in contemporary industry should be generally considered more important than designing and manufacturing; but it certainly is so, for reasons which we need not discuss at this time. Salesmanship becomes all the time a more important matter and constantly demands more of the time and attention of the directors of business.

The Crowd Age

Among the elements which enter into the process of selling, the factor of prestige may justly be held as of the first importance. As Gustav LeBon has so well shown, this is the age of the crowd, that is to say of the mob of more or less undisciplined human beings of all ages and both sexes, of all levels of individual education and intelligence, which is from day to day played upon by the combined forces of commercial, social and political propaganda, whether through advertising, through the newspapers or through the tyranny of commercialized fashion. The crowd mind is the mind which every great director of commercial activities seeks to understand; for he has assured his material success from the moment when he can find out what the crowd wants and can supply its desire. Now, prestige, whether personal or institutional, is one of the most powerful of the factors which control the crowd's action and provoke its desires. It is thoroughly well established that the possession of a sufficient quantity of prestige is in itself a guarantee that the possessor can impose his will upon the crowd to an extraordinary extent. The same, of course, is true of that prestige which belongs to institutions and is principally exhibited in the power over the minds of the crowd which is possessed by great commercial houses, of whose products the names have become favorably known through continued iteration and (also) through outstanding merit.

Power of Prestige

The salesman should at all times keep in mind that if he can sell an article which possesses prestige he can sell successfully, always and without great difficulty. Prestige is a mysterious quality. There are certain names in the music industry, for instance, which are household words. Everyone would like to have an instrument bearing one of these precious names; and everyone, at least, feels it necessary to explain when the instrument actually possessed bears some other name of a smaller prestige-value. This powerful property of these favored names has been built up gradually, first, through merit, and later (since the opening of the modern era) through calculated publicity. In certain lines of commercial activity it is possible to create permanent, or almost permanent, prestige for articles of little or even of no merit [as witness the once extraordinary prosperity of the patent medicine industry]. But in the music industries prestige must be based first on merit and only secondly on advertising.

Because this is so, the salesman who is fortunate enough to have a prestige value to sell is the most fortunate of salesmen, for his competitors, unless they also possess names of equal or greater value, can compete with him only in the matter of price. And price is the poorest of arguments when the opponent is a good salesman at all.

It is not necessary to mention names. Every retail salesman in the music business knows that when he has the selling of any one of certain names half or more of his work has been done before it has been begun, as it were. The competitor who may have a name to sell which lacks the property of prestige has to be on the defensive all the time, and is very likely finally to fall back either upon fancy lying—or upon price.

Maintenance of Prestige

For precisely the same reasons manufacturers whose products have acquired any prestige at all, whether through old-establishment, superlative merit or in whatever manner at all, should never forget that to maintain this prestige is the first of their commercial duties. No matter how good the product may be, the memory of the public is not fool-proof and is subject to strange lapses, wherefore it is necessary to maintain the established prestige by constantly telling the people the same story about the pertinent facts. In this way the prestige is maintained at its pristine value and, therefore, so long as the process continues without cessation, the sales resistance against it will be found to decline gradually.

Prestige, of course, is always a delicate and tender flower, although so powerful in its effects. It rapidly fades and withers, and is always liable to the attacks of other prestige-values, based upon competing articles.

Maintenance of prestige, however, is a subject which would demand a whole book to itself, a book which would be, in effect, a treatise upon the philosophy of advertising. We are at present more concerned with the philosophy of salesmanship and shall, therefore, continue to assume that the prestige-values are maintained at their original or even at their highest possible value.

The Law of Steps

Now, in salesmanship it is always a cardinal principle not to confuse the mind of the prospective purchaser by introducing new ideas through wide leaps. In other words, in proceeding from the ideas or beliefs already and unmistakably held by the prospect towards beliefs we wish to impress upon that person, we must be careful always to proceed step by step, and so carefully that the mental distance between the steps is not too great to be taken with the utmost ease. For this, among other reasons, it is very foolish indeed, usually, to talk the mechanics of the article which is under sale. Mechanics especially are never to be talked, short of compulsion, save where the very nature of the article demands such a treatment. In the music industries there is scarcely a single article to be named in which technical talk during salesmaking can be said to do any good. Such talk is rankly foolish when one is selling music and not machinery.

Capitalize Prestige Value

In fact, the very best advice that can be given to the salesman is to capitalize the prestige-value which the instrument may possess and so far as possible to confine the remainder of the selling process to musical demonstration.

Thus, if one is wise, one will simply emphasize in every way the right to confidence which the instrument, the records or the house which sells them, have earned by their long establishment and their acknowledged merit. It is, of course, not necessary to tell the customer that a house of long establishment and high reputation is certainly not going to swindle any individual buyer; that is not necessary to put the truth in such brutal language. But it is often necessary to remind the customer diplomatically that the house's own familiar and long-established policy is in itself the strongest of guarantees that the article sold is what it is represented to be.

In a word, salesmen must never forget that the strongest sales weapon is found in the property of prestige, and that if the article has it in any way or form the possession should be capitalized to the utmost; while if the article has not yet established it, the retail house itself must make use of what property itself possesses.

A Few Sales Suggestions for July and August

1. Keep in touch with outdoor musical events.
2. Give talking machine concerts in the local parts.
3. Keep alive in your community the public's interest in music.
4. Keep following up your customers and prospects whether they remain at home or wander to the seashore or mountains.

Phil Ravis

THE Summer months are with us, and the usual question during this time of the year is "What's the matter with business?" For those talking machine dealers who go after business energetically during the next few months there is plenty of business, but it is going to require hard work and intensive effort.

PEERLESS offers the suggestion that during July and August talking machine dealers should encourage their customers to develop group record collections. This idea was advanced by PEERLESS over a year ago and dealers who have adopted the suggestion have found it a profitable one. We have made a very careful study of this sales plan and the PEERLESS Classification System is one of the solutions of this important problem. Let us tell you more about this classification system and how it can be used to develop record business.

AGGRESSIVE SPIRIT NEEDED IN RETAILING

THERE is great need for a more aggressive spirit in the retail talking machine industry. Dealers and salesmen are not boosting their business and its marvelous possibilities as they should in many cases, and there is too great a tendency evident to allow other and newer simulators in the musical field to occupy a commanding share of public interest.

When one considers the position of the talking machine as an educator and a stimulator of musical taste and appreciation, it seems as if we all were not doing our full share in proclaiming the marvelous position which it occupies. Through its use not only can the best of music be heard in the home, but the very personality, as well, of the great leaders who dominate the orchestral, operatic and concert stage. It is clearly the duty of every manufacturer, dealer and salesman to act as a missionary, to the end that they bring home the merits of the talking machine and its concomitant, the record, to larger audiences of Americans.

We have been preaching, month after month, on the necessity of campaigns of actual contact—getting out and reaching the people rather than having the people come to the store. This is a vital necessity if we are to increase, particularly, the sales of records. It means work, of course, but those who succeed in any business have to work. This effort can be made a pleasure if the dealer or his sales force develop a campaign intelligently and systematically.

During the next two months plans should be perfected so that the dealers can enter the Fall season with a definite purpose and a sincere desire to make a sales record that will excel anything hitherto on file. Even during these Summer months, with their extended periods of excessive heat, there are dealers who are carrying on sales campaigns that are netting them a good profit, thanks to their enthusiasm and their will to win.

Sometimes it seems as if there were not enough real active dealers in the talking machine industry—we mean dealers of initiative, who realize that business can only be developed by intelligent and well-considered effort—judging from the limited volume of sales transacted by the vast army of dealers now handling talking machines and records, but who are not moving them very rapidly.

THE QUESTION OF ADVERTISING IN SUMMER

WITH the arrival of Summer there has been a noticeable decrease in the volume of advertising done by talking machine dealers in the various sections, although the curtailment, as a rule, has not been as large as has been the case in other years. It appears that the retail dealers are coming to realize, slowly, perhaps, but surely, that it is just as essential to continue advertising regularly throughout the Summer and the so-called "dull" period, as it is during the livelier Fall and Winter months, and, in fact, generous advertising is even more necessary if Summer sales volume is to be kept on a substantial basis.

Harold A. Thurlow, well-known advertising man of Boston, in commenting upon Summer publicity, said recently: "Merchants who believe they know their business would look aghast if someone should suggest that they close up their store during the Summer months, yet they will curtail their advertising to that point where they practically drop out of existence so far as the busy man and woman of to-day is concerned.

"Progressive retail merchants know that properly prepared newspaper advertisements produce worthwhile results. During the Summer months make your advertising seasonable. Fill it full of interesting store news. It is a well-known fact that many women prefer the metropolitan newspapers that carry the most big department store advertising. Capitalize on this habit and make your advertisements newsy."

It is perhaps overoptimistic to express the belief that Summer business can be made as profitable as that handled at other seasons of the year for the reason that various conditions operate against it, but it is not beyond reason to insist that the maintenance of a regular advertising campaign, with copy that suits the season, together with a fairly energetic selling effort, can make Summer business pay a worthwhile profit.

When the retailer simply accepts the Summer season as is and rests upon his oars he is simply facing the necessity of making up during the remaining months of the year the losses that are bound to accrue in his business during the period of Summer rest.

THE CONVENTION FROM A SALES STANDPOINT

THOSE in and out of the trade who profess to see a falling off of interest in the talking machine would have been enlightened had they attended the conventions of the allied music trades in Chicago last month, where a score or more of the manufacturers of talking machines and accessories had exhibits at the Drake Hotel. The exhibit period covered four days, and it is significant that, without exception, every representative of the talking machine industry reported that the volume of actual orders booked the first day more than compensated him for the expense and trouble involved in making the exhibit.

It is to be admitted that the industry has its problems, and that the demand for certain lines of goods may not be as active just now as it has been in the past, but there is reason to believe that this condition is only temporary. Certainly the retailers have shown sufficient confidence in the future to place orders that involve considerable money, and this is a matter worth considering seriously.

Next year the convention of the allied music trades will be held in New York, and it is expected that exhibits will, as usual, be placed in the convention hotel. In such an event, those in the talking machine trade who seek to get in touch with the maximum number of dealers at a minimum cost might well consider the possibility of being included among the exhibitors, whether or not the convention program in itself gives much attention to the problems of this branch of the music industry.

LOWERING THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS

THE retailer, and for that matter the manufacturer and wholesaler, who does not know exactly what it is costing him to do business is sailing an uncharted sea and is taking a serious gamble against landing on the rocks of disaster. And yet there are a surprising number of retailers, even in these days of income and excess profits taxes and reports, who have no definite idea of just what part of the selling price of their goods goes into the overhead and what part, if any, remains as net profits.

The trouble appears to be that too many merchants are inclined to take the gross profit figures too lightly and to accept a margin of 40 or 50 per cent of the selling cost as a very liberal figure without endeavoring to learn just what amount is charged against that margin before they can have the money that may properly be called profit.

The retail talking machine dealer, for instance, who does a business of $60,000 a year is liable to be too greatly impressed with the fact that the gross profit on that turnover may amount to $24,000 or $30,000 and neglects to study the situation to determine whether that gross sales total represents a proper return for his cost of doing business. When he figures rent, light, advertising, help, insurance, freight and delivery charges and the thousand and one items that enter into the conduct of business, he is liable to find that he has been working all year for the honor of the thing and that the success of the business is more or less visionary.

There is little excuse for the talking machine dealer not having an accurate knowledge of business costs for the reason that he is dealing in fixed factors. His goods have a definite value and he buys at a definite discount. All that remains for him to do is to see that he includes in his overhead every single item of business expense and then analyze those figures to determine whether his sales force and his advertising are bringing in sufficient return to warrant the costs. If it is not there are two avenues open—either to reduce the sales force and the advertising appropriation to keep the costs within bounds, or to jack up the sales staff and the advertising writer with a view to getting increased results from the existing organization. The latter plan is certainly preferable.

CO-OPERATION ON CREDIT INFORMATION

A SIGNIFICANT feature of the conventions of the various divisions of the industry held within the past year has been the attention given to the matter of credits. Piano manufacturers, their dealers, musical merchandise and band instrument men and the music publishers and dealers all have gone seriously into the question of extended credit information, and with a satisfying degree of success. It is but natural, therefore, that the talking machine trade give thought to this problem. Perhaps the manufacturing situation is such that an interchange of credit information is not considered vital, but for the dealers, particularly those in the larger metropolitan centers, such information honestly given and honestly received is calculated to reduce materially the losses suffered through doing business with those of no financial responsibility.

The Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization of retailers in and about New York, has given this matter attention, and it is to be hoped that there will be some definite plan developed that will work for the protection of the retail talking machine man just as the furniture dealer and others who do instalment business have managed to protect their interests through co-operation in the matter of credits. As a matter of fact, a reliable credit service among dealers in New York and other large cities should have the effect of considerably curtailing the activities of "gyp" dealers who offer so serious a problem to the legitimate merchant just now, for it follows that the undesirable customer who cannot buy at regular stores will be forced to patronize the "gyp," and the increasing quantity of that sort of business is not going to be profitable to the gentleman who uses the private house as his business headquarters. This is an angle that in itself should stimulate more earnest interest in credit matters.

Tested Stunts That Have Boosted Sales

W. Bliss Stoddard Tells How Chicago Trade Cashed in on Convention—Mysterious Music Makes 'Em Stop—Alarm Clocks Aid Sales

The leading moving picture houses are showing scenes from the music trades convention which convened recently in Chicago and there is a keener interest in music generally than is usual at this season of the year. A number of the window trims that were used during the convention week have been left in, slightly modified, and Wabash avenue during June presented an interesting appearance, with appeals about equally divided between the June bride and portable instruments for vacation.

The Cable Piano Co. featured one of the new popular records, "Swinging Down the Lane." A canvas drop in the background showed a large white house through the trees and in front were lifesize cardboard cut-outs of youth and maiden "swinging down the lane." At either side were talking machine cabinets of different design and in the front center was a cluster of records of "Swinging Down the Lane."

Lyon & Healy featured records. The walls and floor were brown, hung with blue velvet curtains, while blue velvet drapes trailed across the floor. A number of the new records were scattered over the floor and a panel card announced: "The new June records are here." In this panel the word "June" was made of floral wall paper.

People have been taught to reduce their weight by music, and to learn French and Spanish through records, and now they are learning to play golf through the instrumentality of the phonograph. Records are shown containing instructions in the fundamentals of golf laid down by Chick Evans, the golf champion. A sporting atmosphere was given to the display, as the scene represented the veranda of a country club. Against a wicker rocker leaned a bag of golf clubs, while on the table were a portable talking machine and a number of golf balls. In other chairs and on the floor were a number of copies of the golf records.

The Wurlitzer Co. showed in the rear an archway hung with daisies. At one end was a grand piano, at the other a harp and in the center a talking machine cabinet, while standing in the archway, in long veil and orange blossoms was a June bride—the figure borrowed from a local department store. The Cable Piano Co. had a somewhat similar display, but in this case the room was given a drawing room setting and only a piano and phonograph were shown. On a pedestal in the center was a shower bouquet of tulle ribbons, white roses and lilies of the valley. Cards attached to the piano said "From Dad," and to the phonograph, "From Paul and Maizie."

Music From Underground

A simple, yet efficacious method of attracting the attention of the passing public was recently tried by the Brunswick Shop, of Indianapolis, Ind. The shop sells phonographs, but the usual plan of letting the passers-by hear the music through the door or window was too stale to appeal to their up-to-the-minute manager. Those who passed the store saw the horn of an instrument pressed close to the glass, but after an instant they realized that the sound did not come from there. People watched and listened and finally located it. It came from one of the circular manholes in the sidewalk, down which coal is shunted. The sales manager had had holes bored in the man-hole cover, set a phonograph under it and set it going, and while the public gazed at the silent instrument in the window they heard the strains from the one under the pavement. The plan drew and held the crowds, and as they stood around and listened, they looked in the window and saw the instruments, with cards stating the terms—and as the manager says, "the more lookers, the more buyers."

Alarm Clock Sale Boosts Business

J. S. Williams & Son, Shenandoah, Pa., recently set a new record in getting out a crowd in the sultry Summer weather. The firm had a big stock of machines and records which they wished to move and they felt that all that was necessary to make them sell was to get people to see them at close range. Accordingly, they purchased a hundred good quality alarm clocks, which they distributed at all points throughout the store. Each of these clocks was set to ring at a different time and all were timed to "go off" some time between 8:30 and 5:30, the opening and closing hours of the store. They then announced through the papers that they were going to hold a one-day alarm clock sale, but that the alarm clocks, instead of being sold, would be given away. The idea was that whenever any of the alarms went off the clock was given to the person who happened to be standing nearest to it. The plan provoked much merriment in different houses throughout the town, but it was efficacious, as people flocked to the store out of curiosity, if nothing else. Knowing, too, that this was the season when the Fall brides and grooms were beginning to look around for house furnishings, the firm further announced that a good, practical present would be given to the first one hundred men and women in front of the store when it opened for business that day. This announcement was made along with cuts and quotations on the stock they desired to move, and the brides and grooms were told in advance that if they were contemplating matrimony and wished to take advantage of this sale the goods would be stored free until they were wanted. In the large front windows were shown a young couple (the models borrowed from a local dry goods store) inspecting a talking machine, while set about the window were tabourets, tables, tea wagons and other articles of house furnishing, each with a small card stating the price attached to it. When the one-day sale was held the crowd in front of the store was so large that the sidewalk was blocked and the distribution of the articles of merchandise to the first one hundred became a rather difficult matter. Inside the store the intermittent ringing of the alarm clocks kept people constantly on the qui vive and the store was filled the entire day—while a very good volume of sales was recorded, and those who did not buy that day had it impressed upon them that this was the phonograph store of the city.

Announcement

TO THE TRADE:

We have purchased the entire Victor merchandise and goodwill of the wholesale business of the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., New York Victor wholesalers, effective June 30, 1923, after which date the Knickerbocker Co. will discontinue as Victor wholesalers.

This move on our part is in line with the progressive Blackman policy and in keeping with our conviction that a reduction in the number of Victor wholesalers will be beneficial to the trade. We hope it will pave the way for increased sales and corresponding economies in wholesale distribution, in which the dealer may eventually share.

The financial strength of our Company—the character of our organization, and the completeness of our stock, will insure a continuation of Blackman Dependable Service to our present Victor dealers and to any new friends we make.

Very truly yours,

AEOLIAN CO. OUTLINES ITS NEW DISTRIBUTION POLICY

Instruments Now Being Sold Direct to Dealers Instead of Through Wholesalers—Vocalion Co. of Chicago to Continue as Jobber—Big Fall Advertising Campaign Planned

The Aeolian Co., New York, issued an important statement this week, briefly outlining its new policy of merchandising the Aeolian-Vocalion phonograph. In discussing the plans for this merchandising campaign R. M. Kempton, manager of the wholesale Vocalion department, stated as follows:

"We are now selling our instruments direct to our dealers, instead of through jobbers, except in the city of Chicago, which is handled through our jobber, the Vocalion Co. of Chicago, and the metropolitan district will be handled by the wholesale metropolitan dealers' department. This is a change in our policy, but, due to the general change in the phonograph business to-day, we find this working out to a better end than our previous policy. This enables us to keep in closer touch with our dealers and we are limiting the number of accounts to just one dealer in a town, except in very large cities, where we have two.

"With this new policy we are also able to give our dealers a very much larger discount than we did before. This larger discount enables the dealer to do a certain amount of local advertising and we are very glad to furnish mats of our ads from one column to full-page size.

"All instruments are being shipped from our Grand Rapids factory, where we have concentrated on the manufacture of the Aeolian-Vocalion.

"The line which we have to offer this year we believe to be the most attractive proposition on the market to-day. Our new catalog and price list of our instruments cover our complete line, starting with the new console we are bringing out of Queen Anne design, which will retail for $150 and will be ready for shipment some time in August.

"Besides our line of conventional and period cases we are having the leading interior decorators bring through some very beautiful period cases for us. These cases are being designed and made by the following interior decorators: Tiffany Studios, D. S. Hess & Co., W. & J. Sloane, Charles, of London, Wm. Pierre Stymus, Jr., Inc., Wm. Baumgarten & Co. and H. F. Huber & Co., and will be installed with our own motors, tone arms, horns and Gradolas. We feel these cases will add greatly to our present line. We can assure you that we are going after Aeolian-Vocalion business in a very aggressive manner this Fall and our advertising campaign, outlined briefly, is as follows:

"Aeolian-Vocalion national advertising during the coming season will appear in the following magazines, and others to be selected later: Atlantic Monthly, Century, Harper's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, World's Work, Architecture, Art and Decoration, Country Life, Garden Magazine, House Beautiful, Vogue, Vanity Fair, House and Garden. These magazines have a combined circulation of 1,200,000. The percentage of duplication is very small. They cover the quality market of the United States with a large margin. They are subscribed for and read by people of means, good taste and culture, by the people who appreciate music and purchase musical instruments.

"There is not a worth-while home in the territory of any Aeolian representative where one or more of these magazines does not go each month, not a family whose patronage is desirable which does not read the Aeolian message each month it appears. The advertising to be started next Fall in these splendid periodicals is unique. In dignity, beauty and impressiveness we believe it is in advance of anything hitherto done in the music industry. If this campaign as a whole could be shown it would be almost overwhelming. It will, undoubtedly, create the greatest sensation of any advertising campaign in recent years.

"The follow-up—the means by which every representative may obtain the benefit of the national advertising—is also indicated. The main feature, the illustrated letters, was used in New York this Spring, with extraordinary effect."

Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan Doing Excellent Business in Jewish Edison Recordings—Some of the Latest Popular Releases

In view of the large Jewish trade which the dealers in the Metropolitan district are serving, the Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan has been doing an excellent business in Jewish records, and the Edison library of this class of records has been materially augmented in the last few months, and will be further amplified by at least twelve more releases between now and the first of September.

Among the Jewish recent releases referred to are the following: "Bris Mile" by Cantor Shapiro and chorus, coupled with "Der Pedler" by Sam Silberbusch and Sadie Wachtel; "Die Greene Yente" by Morris Goldstein and Lizza Tuchman, coupled with "Mein Weibs Shegun" by Morris Goldstein; "Der Telegraph" by Sam Silberbusch and Sadie Wachtel, coupled with "Der Ez-Hadas" by Sam Silberbusch.

recording his famous doctrine,
"Day by day, in every way, I am getting better and better."

These are the only authentic recordings of Emile Coué's phonograph, and if played regularly, you will find yourself mastering through conscious auto-suggestion.

EMILE COUÉ'S OWN METHOD OF SELF MASTERY Through Conscious Auto-Suggestion Selection No. 1

I WILL explain to you in a few words the two principles of my method. The first one is this: Every idea we have in our mind becomes a reality in the domain of possibility. If, for instance, we have a leg cut off and we imagine it will grow again, of course it will not take place because it is impossible; but if we have a pain in any part of our body, if we imagine that we have organs that do not work well, if we imagine we have sad thoughts and we think that the pain will disappear, that the organs will function better and better, that the sad thoughts will be replaced by joyful thoughts, it will take place because it is possible.

but all the improvement that is possible results from this. The second principle is this: Imagination is the first quality of man and not will. Power is imagination and will power. It is always imagination which wins. The more we try to prevent ourselves from laughing, the more we stammer; the more we stammer, the more he the state of mind of persons in these different cases? I want to recall the name of Mrs. What's Her Name, but I cannot. I want to prevent myself from laughing but I cannot. I want to prevent myself from stammering but I cannot. You see, it is always, "I cannot" - Will Power; thus imagination which defeats, "I want to" - knowledge of man and not the second. This we know how to profit by it we become masters of ourselves, and it is owing to this fact that my other methods which insist on the superiority of will power have failed.

tomorrow night and every night, as soon as you wish to go to sleep, I do so until that time in the morning you wish to awake. You will only and soundly without any effort. You will feel well, happy, quite rested. After digestion, assimilation and sleep all being in any way nervous, this nervousness will disappear and give place to a sensation of peace and you will feel that you become gradually more and more master of yourself physically, mentally and morally. Finally and above all, if up to the present, you have felt a certain distrust from yourself this distrust from now onward will gradually disappear and will give place to a feeling of confidence in yourself and this confidence will enable you to do what you want to do well, even very well, what may be, on condition naturally that it is able. Therefore, whenever you wish for a thing that is reasonable, a thing which is duty to do, believe that, as it is possible, it is easy. Therefore such words as "impossible", "I cannot", "It is strong", "I cannot help it", "I cannot prevent myself from..."

Columbia New Process Records

EMILE COUE, the little druggist-philosopher of Nancy, France, is one of the outstanding personalities in the world to-day. His message of health, happiness and prosperity for every one, through "Self Mastery," which has stirred the world and which he personally brought to America, aroused here an interest, the endurance and intensity of which is sensational.

Thousands eagerly listened to his lectures. Tens of thousands bought his book. Had affairs permitted him to remain here, his time would have been indefinitely engaged for a continuous lecture tour.

Realizing that if he could personally talk to the multitudes who wanted to hear him, they would the more perfectly absorb the principles of his teaching and be benefited, M. Coue arranged with the Columbia Graphophone Company to perpetuate his doctrine in his own words and make it available to every one everywhere.

The Coue Records, "Self Mastery Through Conscious Auto-Suggestion," are ready. The set—two double-faced Columbia New Process Records, with the super-silent new surface, tastefully enveloped and boxed, with the text of Coue's own words printed on the envelope, are listed to sell at $3.50, less regular dealer discounts.

It is M. Coue's desire that every one be given the opportunity to secure these records. This coincides with the policy of Coue's clinics in Nancy and we are glad to co-operate.

Columbia has the exclusive rights to Coue Records. These Columbia New Process Records are the only genuine recordings of his voice.

The multitude of Coue's followers will be overjoyed at the opportunity to secure these records spoken in this teacher's sincere and magnetic voice.

ALBERT M. BLACKMAN GRADUATED

Son of J. Newcomb Blackman Graduated From University of Pennsylvania—Will Enter Business World This Fall—He Is Well Equipped

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., accompanied by Mrs. Blackman, attended the graduation exercises held at the University of Pennsylvania,

Albert M. Blackman and His Parents

Philadelphia, Pa., recently, where their son, Albert M., was graduated from the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance. After four years of hard work, during which he was an honor pupil in every year, Albert M. Blackman received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Economics, securing the distinguished mark in economics. For his research paper he selected "Commercial Arbitration" and during his senior year prepared an exceptionally fine sales manual on the sale of Victor products from a retail angle.

Although devoting a great part of his time to his studies Albert M. also gained prominence as a tennis exponent, appearing with considerable success in several Forest Hills and Kew Gardens tournaments. He has always manifested a keen interest in sports, sharing his father's delight in outdoor activities.

According to J. Newcomb Blackman's present plans his son will enter the business world this Fall. These plans do not contemplate any immediate connection with the Blackman Talking Machine Co., as Mr. Blackman believes that the young college graduate should secure his business experience among strangers.

R. S. Williams & Son, Ltd., of Montreal, Canada, recently advised the Edison Co. that they had discovered that the record number 4676 entitled "Three O'Clock in the Morning" was played on a "Penny Arcade" machine 5,210 times, and it is still in good condition.

Vice-President of Phonograph Division, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., on Tour of Important Distributing Centers in the West

A. H. Curry, vice-president in charge of the phonograph division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., left on an extended Western business trip on June 25. His first stop was in Chicago, where two days were devoted to a special session of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Edison Disc Jobbers, during which consideration was given to the matter of increasing production for the Fall and Holiday seasons. From Chicago Mr. Curry went to Minneapolis, from there to Omaha and thence to Kansas City. He then proceeded to Dallas, Tex., to look over the business of his company, The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., in that city. He expects to return via one or two other Edison jobbing points and to be back in Orange about the middle of July.

Progressive Musical Instrument Corp. Metropolitan Distributor for Reflexo Products

Reflexo Products, Inc., sole selling agent of Reflexo blue steel needles and Gilt Edge needles, both products of W. H. Bagshaw Co., Lowell, Mass., announces the appointment of the Progressive Musical Instrument Corp., New York City, as Reflexo distributor in the metropolitan district.

Louis J. Unger, general manager of the Reflexo Co., reports that an increased output has been made in the production of Gilt Edge needles and attributes this increase in a large measure to the new Gilt Edge display stand, which includes the dance tone needles.

Alice Verlet, the distinguished soprano who records for the Edison, arrived from Europe early in July, after a very successful tour abroad.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, since last September, we are in a position to establish a few more Edison Dealers in the Metropolitan District.

OUR POLICY,

during a shortage, is to give all goods possible to the merchants who have been Edison Dealers and who have previously spent their time and money in working up sales and prospects.

CONSEQUENTLY,

and because we are now making up our Fall and Winter requirements, we invite inquiry from merchants who are located at good trading points, who believe in fair profits and who consider quality necessary to success.

Famous Orchestras Maintain

in the dance field

OKEH RECORDS early took the lead in the production of fast-selling dance records. Today, that supremacy is still maintained by offering monthly, our notably large and early releases of the latest dance hits played only by dance orchestras whose fame and popularity are firmly established.

Take, for example, Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, holders of the record-breaking nine consecutive weeks' vaudeville engagement, made at America's premier vaudeville house, Keith's Palace, New York. Where is there another dance orchestra that can parallel their tremendous popularity? Take Markels Orchestra, "Society's Favorite"—the orchestra that is almost unanimously the first choice of Society's discriminating "400" for the dance music at their very exclusive social functions. Take Rega Dance Orchestra, under the personal direction of our recording laboratory manager; it is one of the most versatile phonograph record dance orchestras in the country today.

Or take any one of the orchestras listed on the right. Each one is individually famous in their own respective cities or districts. Each one has its own host of admirers who fully appreciate the opportunities that OKeh Records give for hearing the music of their favorites right in their own homes. At the same time, by means of OKeh Records, the accomplishments of all these orchestras are available to the dance-lovers throughout the nation.

Is there any wonder with such an array of famous talent to choose from that OKeh Records continue to reign as "the best dance records"?

Mail Orders Help Business Development

Talking Machine Dealers Have Excellent Opportunity of Expanding Business by Going After Mail Orders—Factors to Consider

Newspaper advertising brings the message of the talking machine dealer to a large circle of prospective customers. Direct-by-mail literature brings the dealer's message to a smaller and more select group of prospects. These are the two forces which enable the live merchant to extend his business far beyond the borders usually limited by the activities of the outside sales organization, window displays, clever store arrangements and other forms of publicity which affect only those people within a narrow radius of the establishment.

Extending Through Mail Orders

Every talking machine dealer has it in his power to extend his trade by the establishment of a mail order business on a small scale. The opportunity is there. It merely awaits development. True, the process of building up a mail order demand is slow under ordinary circumstances. For example, let us consider the opportunities existing in the record end of the business. Unlike the large mail order houses, who are compelled to publish more or less elaborate catalogs at periodical intervals, the talking machine merchant is supplied with catalogs (record supplements) each month. Of course, trying to build up a mail order demand merely by sending these supplements to out-of-town prospects or those residing some distance from the store is practically a useless procedure. The dealer must go much further than this. In short, he must develop a campaign which has for its object the building up of mail orders.

Many Factors to Consider

A campaign of this character may take many forms and there are a number of important points to consider. In the first place, there is newspaper publicity—advertising in the papers which reach the people who live in the particular communities which the dealer is trying to reach. This advertising must do much more than advertise the products which the merchant handles, or the service which the firm is in a position to extend to patrons. While these things should play a part in the publicity, the main function of the campaign should be to bring home to the readers of that newspaper that the Blank Music Co., or whatever the name may be, is prepared to take care of mail orders. Bring the fact that you are able to extend first-class service by mail home to the owner of a talking machine who lives some distance from the nearest talking machine establishment and the chances are that you will get some business. Repeat orders will come in a measure equal to the satisfaction of the customer in your service and the enthusiasm of the talking machine owner in his or her instrument.

Payment Should Accompany Order

Unless patrons who desire to order records by mail have purchased at your establishment before credit in the case of records should not be extended. It is a simple matter for the prospect to send in the order accompanied by a money order or a check. The sending of cash through the mail should be discouraged because quite often letters go astray, the weight of coins tears the envelope and the money is lost, or other contingencies may arise in which the customer is at the losing end of the deal, with consequent loss of confidence in the plan and a feeling of irritation which the dealer will find difficult to overcome.

Orders should be filled as quickly as possible after receipt. Nothing so irritates a customer who is anxious to secure a product as long, tedious delay. Remember, the average patron is not disposed to look at the matter in a lenient manner. Service is expected and where it is lacking the merchant is, eventually, the loser. Service in the mail order business is not limited to prompt shipment of orders. It extends equally to insurance that records ordered reach the purchaser in perfect condition. This necessitates the exercise of great care in packing. Here the dealer can follow the example of the jobber from whom he receives his records.

There is another way in which direct-by-mail business can be built up and that is, as often suggested by The World, by making direct mail contact with a list of prospects which the dealer has searched out by canvassing the country and communities surrounding the city or town in which he is located. This method will probably prove more effective in impressing on the minds of talking machine owners the special service which the merchant is inaugurating. The expense, in comparison to the ultimate returns, is comparatively small. However, and this cannot be emphasized too strongly, the letters which the merchant sends to customers and prospects should be prepared with great care. It is not a wise plan to try and save a few dollars at the expense of loss of quality and, consequently, pulling power of the campaign. If a drive of this character is undertaken at all it should be made as effective as possible and no pains should be spared in putting the plan across.

All Dealers Have Equal Opportunity

These few suggestions in regard to building up a mail order business apply with equal force to the talking machine dealer in the large city and the small town. In the large city the merchant has the advantage of many people within a few miles of his store, many of whom find it difficult to visit the dealer because of children, sickness and many other reasons. These prospects will welcome a plan which eliminates the necessity of going to the talking machine store or doing without the records they are anxious to secure. In the city a plan which might prove especially effective and can be run in conjunction with the mail order business is encouraging the receipt of orders over the telephone and delivering C. O. D. The small-town merchant has the advantage of being close to rural communities where the farmers very often find it difficult to make regular trips to the nearest town. This is especially so during the busy seasons of the year, when planting and harvesting are the order of the day. These people will take eager advantage of the mail order plan, if it is presented to them in the proper light. In fact, the large mail order houses in various large cities throughout the country are doing a tremendous business in talking machines and records with rural dwellers and much of this trade will go to the merchants who go after it aggressively enough and follow a definite campaign.

New Patrons as a Source of Information

The Successful Methods of Securing Information From New Customers Used by a Mid-West Dealer Outlined by Frank H. Williams

"There used to be a time," said a successful Middle Western music merchant, "when I was merely thankful to see new customers come into the store, and when the only thing I did with these new customers was to see that they got what they wanted and give them a warm invitation to return to the store when they were again in the market for any of the goods we handle. But now I go considerably farther than that—I endeavor to learn things from the new customers which will be a real help to me in getting more business.

"Let me tell what I learned in this way and just how I use this knowledge in going after more trade and bringing more people into the store.

Questions Show Source of New Trade

"I make a point of personally asking these questions of the store's new patrons: 'What brought you into this store? Was it our advertising? Was it the recommendation of some one of our regular patrons? Was it our window displays, or just what was it? What thing about the praise given us by one of our old customers, or what thing about our advertising or window displays particularly got your attention and made you want to patronize this institution?'

"These questions are put to customers in a diplomatic way, of course, which won't make them feel as though they were going through a third degree examination, and in practically all instances the customers seem to be perfectly willing to answer them.

"The answers to these questions show me where the new trade originates. It is interesting to know that 75 per cent of all our new trade comes to us through the praise or recommendations given us by regular customers who have been patronizing us right along.

Valuable Information Secured

"Our questioning has given us some valuable information upon which to work in building up still more business for the establishment. When it becomes evident that the good will and satisfaction of the regular customers of the store are so tremendously important in bringing in new trade, it shows that the best sort of business for us is to do everything in our power by means of service to please every customer who comes into the establishment. Thus, not only do we make sure of getting the future trade of that particular customer, but we also make sure of having that customer recommend us to other people who will in turn patronize us. In this way we are developing our business in a constructive, worth-while manner all the time.

"The questions also show us that our advertising and window displays run just about neck and neck in developing new trade.

"It was an immense satisfaction to me to find this out, because I had been rather dubious about the value of my advertising and had been thinking of cutting it out. We had thought our window displays were instrumental in bringing in new patrons, and it was also a satisfaction to find out definitely that this was actually the case.

Securing Facts on Advertising

"The answers to the questions show us that the things about our advertising which are most successful in bringing new people into the store are the timeliness of the ads, the local and personal touch which we give them. Let me illustrate what is meant by all this by telling of some of the things said by new customers as to why our ads had brought them into the store.

"Your advertisements are always interesting,' said one woman who had never before been in our store, 'and one of the things which have really been instrumental in bringing me into the store have been your reports on the music which is most popular with your patrons, and in the dance halls of the city. I have some young children who dearly love to dance, and I've been very anxious to get the sort of music that would make them want to stay home in the evenings and bring their young friends to the house, but I didn't know what sort of music to buy, until I read your ads. That's why I'm here now—because I want to buy the sort of music that you say is most popular.'

"Another woman had this to say about our advertisements:

"I never read your advertisements very closely until I saw in one of them where you told about Professor Smith, of the European School of Music, giving a summary of the proportion of jazz music and popular music and classical music which should be in every home. Now at our house we have always specialized on classical music, and our musical library is rather top-heavy as a result. My children are always making a fuss because we haven't enough popular music, and I have come to the conclusion that it will be a mighty good thing to vary our library.'

"These two quotations will be sufficient to indicate the value of the advertising copy we are constantly running and will show how our copy is most instrumental in getting people into the store.

Window Displays Not Neglected

"When it came to finding out from the new customers who had been brought into our store by our window displays just what things about our displays attracted their attention and made them want to patronize our establishment, we discovered some particularly interesting things. For instance, one new customer had this to say, 'I've always liked to stop and look at your show windows because the displays are always clean and attractive with a choice variety of goods shown. Whenever anyone is greatly interested in all kinds of music, as I am, window displays which show a wide variety of goods are particularly interesting. It helps a person in getting the right slant on the whole realm of music. The particular window display that brought me into your store is the one in which you are showing all the different kinds of stringed instruments you have in stock. I had no idea you carried such a big variety of stringed instruments, and because I'm particularly interested I've come in here to purchase one of those shown in the window.'

"Another new customer had this to say about our show windows: 'The thing about your window displays which has made me come into your store and become a regular customer is the fact that you change your displays frequently. I never go by this store without seeing something new and interesting in your windows—something that makes me want to come into the store and look at the goods on display and try them out.'

"All of this information learned from our new customers has been really of immense help to us in determining what to do in order to attract still more new customers to the store, and in order to do even more business than we are now doing.

"Here in this store we consider the new customer the most important one we have. If we can get enough new patrons and make regular customers out of them our business will grow splendidly, and we will make money accordingly."

Aren't there some worth-while suggestions presented herewith which will help other music stores in getting more new customers?

The Golden West

THERE is a real "Golden West" awaiting manufacturers of talking machine products who are making quality merchandise and selling it at a fair price, but the unlimited, tremendous sales possibilities for this merchandise on the Pacific Coast must be developed by a sales organization that knows how to do it in the most resultful way.

The Munson-Rayner organization, although a comparative newcomer in the talking machine industry, has already attained a substantial measure of success. It has built up an efficient, capable sales staff that visits talking machine dealers on the Pacific Coast every working day of the year. It has developed and fostered a spirit of dealer good will and friendship that is invaluable.

In other words, the Munson-Rayner Corporation has not only sold $500,000 worth of talking machine merchandise to dealers on the Pacific Coast in a period of only nine months, but has established a good will that is far more important than sales totals.

If this successful organization can assist you in developing Pacific Coast distribution for your product, please submit your proposition in detail. The Pacific Coast market for talking machine merchandise represents one of the greatest buying powers in the industry, but it is a market that requires and deserves concentration, knowledge and experience.

Types of Men Who Make Best Salesmen

An Interesting Analysis by Walter S. Jenkins, of Chicago, of Method of Determining Whether Applicants Can Become Salesmen

I have been asked to state, according to my own experience, what type of man, untrained in salesmanship, can be molded into the best talking machine salesman.

It would seem that every type of humanity was placed on this earth for a special purpose, and that each has certain inherent qualities which the others lack. But let us, however, leave the human family for a moment to get an example to prove the point.

Suppose we were asked what type of horse is swiftest. We would naturally think of that branch of the equestrian family that nature built for speed—a race horse. Certainly we could not conceive of a dray horse coming down the home stretch leading the field. But if we attempt to state which kind of race horse is fastest we will likely lose quite a little money before we learn, as the old darky said, "we can make money on a race but not on the races," meaning it is a gamble to try to pick in advance the survival of the fittest.

Made for Selling Purposes

There seems to be just as clearly defined a species of humanity made for selling purposes as there is a type of horse created for speed; but it does not always follow that every man is a successful salesman that belongs to the salesman's class. A man may be classified properly but also outclassed by his contemporaries, for there appears to be just as much difference in commercial results between the natural born salesman, but lacking in some essential, as between thoroughbred horses that are short some quality. The winners are always in the minority, but they come from the class that produces winners nevertheless, and we want to study the salient features which separate the selling class of humanity from the others that were created for other purposes.

Now that we may get a mental picture of a successful salesman as sketched from psychological research and practical results, let us analyze the two following types:

This is the Shakespearean type. The kind that makes a good floor salesman, but who is not so successful elsewhere. He is a quick thinker, logical, artistic, frail in body, does not like hardships, and might be called lazy when physical effort is required; therefore, he is not suited to outside hustling.

Here we have the athletic type. This type is capable of success both in and out of the sales-room. His characteristics are doing, compelling, initiating, pioneering, would rather rough it than to visit picture galleries, etc. (Professor Myron A. Lee, of Cornell University, has written several interesting articles on character analysis.)

Since, for this article, there is but space enough for a mere sketch of the skeleton of the law of character analysis, the difference between the requirements of the city and country salesman will not be touched upon. We simply assume the candidate before us is one of the above types and rates well in health, appearance, personality and mental ability.

Resourcefulness the Basis

From my own experience I have found many failures among men that pass all of the tests up to this point, simply because they lack resourcefulness. A salesman may read all the books on salesmanship and study psychological principles, points of contact, motives that make men buy, persistence, tact, views of the merchants, etc., but if he lacks resourcefulness he will become nothing more than a plain "parrot."

A man apparently lacking all of the qualifications of the salesman except one often makes a sale, and that is a sale—is it not? Proving that his resourcefulness overshadowed to a great degree all his shortcomings. There are, on the other hand, a great many old-time salesmen in the music field whose heads are full of knowledge regarding musical instruments, yet they are failures, simply because they cannot solve unexpected problems.

Resourcefulness makes a dreary, rainy day into a forerunner of a million-dollar crop and of the revival of business. It puts smiles on the storekeeper's face, even if the storm keeps away his customers, and it discovers the secret entrance to business when all the regular doors are closed and locked.

It is comparatively easy to find a resourceful man if one takes the trouble of asking the applicant to obtain certain information which may not be easily secured, or by inquiring for a solution of a certain selling problem. A little effort in this direction will often show you at once whether the applicant is a "leaner" or a "lifter."

A Real Example

When P. T. Barnum brought Jennie Lind to this country he sold her to New York so enthusiastically that 30,000 persons went down to the dock to meet the boat. People crowded on the roofs in the neighborhood, crowds followed her to the hotel, torchlight parades took place at midnight, while 20,000 people watched and cheered. The tickets for the first concert were sold at auction, and Tenin, the latter, a man not musically inclined, paid the goodly sum of $225 for a ticket.

No great musical artist had ever visited America before, and high-class music was understood but by only a few, and yet Jennie Lind's ninety-three concerts under Barnum's management yielded $712,161.34 in a period of nine months. Mr. Barnum knew nothing of high-class music, had never seen Jennie Lind before she appeared in this country ready to sing at the first concert—in other words, he did not know his goods, but he was resourcefulness personified and all obstacles were forced to melt away.

The Formula

My little formula, therefore, for selecting salesmen from raw materials is as follows:

First—Decide if the candidate is for inside or outside.

Second—Select the type best suited for the work—"mental."

Third—From the applicants choose the most resourceful.

Of all the words in salesmanship there is none bigger than "resourcefulness."

ETHEL MILLER AGAIN WITH JENKINS

Well-known Record Saleswoman Placed in Charge of Record Department of J. W. Jenkins Music Co., Kansas City, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5.—Miss Ethel Miller is again with the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. and is now in charge of the buying and distributing of the records through the retail store, 1013 Walnut street. Miss Miller has been constantly learning things since she was with the J. W. Jenkins Sons' Music Co. four years. "Above everything," said Miss Miller, "I have learned the commercial value of records."

Miss Miller established the Paul Talking Machine Shop in Kansas City and the exclusive shop in the south part of Kansas City, known as "Von Hershner-Trudell." Miss Miller also spent a Winter in the Arkansas hills, where she established the Melody Shop at Fort Smith.

Since returning to the J. W. THE WORK OF JUNIOR MUSIC CLUBS

National Bureau for Advancement of Music Issues Most Interesting and Valuable Volume Covering Development of Such Clubs

The National Bureau for the Advancement of Music has just issued a very interesting and attractive volume on the History and Outlook of the Junior Department of the National Federation of Music Clubs, by Mrs. William John Hall, National Junior Club chairman. The book, which is handsomely printed and attractively bound, gives a detailed history of the various junior music clubs in the different States of the Union and offers a fund of information regarding the activities of these organizations that should prove a revelation not only to the members of the trade, but to those who have taken active interest in the development of musical appreciation among children.

C. M. Tremaine, director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, has written an introduction for the book in which he tells the reasons for the volume and something of the manner in which the Bureau has tied up with the junior club movement. The volume, if anything, proves that this junior club idea has progressed far beyond the experimental stage and that these organizations of juveniles have progressed to the point where they represent a real factor in the musical life of the country. On this premise they are to be considered seriously by the members of the trade who believe in the cultivation of the child as a means for promoting future demand for musical instruments.

With a copy of the book at hand the local dealer is in a position to find out just what is being done by the junior music clubs in his locality and to lend his active support to the movement to the ultimate benefit of his business and the trade in general.

BLUE'S STORE IN BANKRUPTCY

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., July 3.—Blue's Music Store, which has been located on Dexter avenue for a number of years, has just filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy in the United States Court here. Their liabilities amount to $18,266.97 and their assets $2,015.39. The latter are listed as merchandise and real estate, while the liabilities consist chiefly of open accounts.

ARMENIAN TENOR'S FIRST RECORD

Armand Tokatyan Makes Vocalion Record of "Miserere" From "Il Trovatore" With Rosa Raisa—Listed in the July Supplement

The opera-going public has long been familiar with artists of various nationalities appearing on the opera stage, such as Americans, Italians, French, Irish, etc., but peculiar interest attaches to the high position won in the opera field by Armand Tokatyan, an Armenian tenor, who has recently joined the ranks of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

Particularly interesting from the trade angle is the fact that Tokatyan makes his debut as a record artist in the Vocalion supplement for July, singing with Rosa Raisa a splendid recording of the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore." Tokatyan will shortly be heard on a number of other Vocalion records, as it is said his recording voice is unusually good.

Export Bureau of Chamber of Commerce Secures 25 Per Cent Cut in Freight Rates on Musical Instruments to Australia

Through the efforts of the Advisory Committee to the Export Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, a reduction of 25 per cent in the freight rates on musical instruments to Australia has been obtained and it is hoped that a reduction will also be secured in the rates to Mexico.

The Bureau has compiled a very complete and up-to-date list of importers and dealers in American musical instruments in practically all foreign countries, a copy of which will be sent on request to any member of the Chamber who is interested in foreign trade.

ADVISES READING OF TRADE PAPERS

Robt. N. Watkin, New President of Merchants' Association, Urges Dealers to Read Trade Publications to Increase Business Knowledge

Robert N. Watkin, the new president of the National Association of Music Merchants, has long been a staunch believer in the value of trade papers and has repeatedly called attention to the valuable information he has gleaned from the columns thereof.

It is significant, therefore, that one of the first official statements issued by Mr. Watkin as president was one urging that music dealers get the habit of reading their trade papers in order to learn how their fellow merchants handle the various problems. In this connection Mr. Watkin said:

"The arrival of your weekly or monthly trade papers should be looked forward to with eagerness. Their cost to prepare, both in dollars and in brain work, is enormous. They are prepared by men who have had practical experience in music stores and have the ability to tell others about it.

"The editorial pages contain helpful, business-promoting ideas. Their advertising pages constitute a market place of musical instruments. No matter where the music merchant lives, a live up-to-date trade paper will keep him informed as to what is going on in the music business.

"We strongly recommend that every merchant in the National Association of Music Merchants, and those who are not members, get the habit in 1923 of reading their trade papers."

Reviving Interest of Record Customers

When a Customer Ceases to Make Purchases There Is Something Wrong—A Letter That Succeeded in Regaining Lost Patronage

The problem of the lost record customer is one that at various times serves to worry practically every talking machine dealer. It happens often that an individual will buy a machine and several records and later on will continue to add to the record library. Eventually, however, the customer suddenly ceases buying records or cuts his purchases down to an insignificant point. It is to meet just such a situation that a card list of record customers, showing their purchases, becomes of practical value to the dealer, because it enables him to check up promptly on those who have cut record purchases and prevents his overlooking those who, for one reason or another, dropped by the wayside. When the volume stops, for instance, the dealer is in a position to make a direct appeal to the customer for the reason as to the lapse of interest. It may be that interest in the talking machine itself has waned, but there is still a possibility that some failure of service or some other grievance may be the cause of the trouble.

A number of dealers, too, have found that excellent results are obtained by writing direct to the customer, sending either a personal or a form letter and inquiring as to the reason for the stopping of record purchases. This course does not always result in increasing the individual's record purchases, but at least it gives the dealer the information as to why there has been a change of heart and with this information at hand he can govern himself accordingly.

If it is a matter of waning interest and the customer admits the fact the dealer has a chance of bringing to the attention of the customer special records that he believes will serve to revive that interest. If, on the other hand, some failure of service has been responsible for the loss of sales, the dealer can make proper restitution or correct the trouble so that it will not cause the loss of any other customers, whether or not it brings that particular individual back into the fold.

It is generally maintained that what is palpably a circular letter does not get any great measure of attention from those who receive it, but the fact remains that if the letter is properly worded it will receive attention in a surprising number of cases, particularly if information is sought and the recipient does not feel that he is placed under any obligation to spend money. The letter to the delinquent customer, therefore, that asks for information that is calculated to help the dealer improve his service has an appeal to the machine owner that brings satisfactory results.

As an example of such a letter we reproduce herewith a form used by the Will A. Watkin Co., Dallas, Tex. This letter is signed personally by the manager, and is general in character without any attempt being made to hide the fact that it is a circular letter, and it has produced results that have warranted its continued use. Retailers who are seeking ways and means for getting old record customers back into line might well study the letter with a view to developing one for themselves that will meet a corresponding situation:

Dear Customer: Looking over our records the other day, I noticed that you haven't been so good a customer of ours as you used to be. That interested me at once, because I have a notion that whenever I lose a customer I also lose a friend. I puzzled a good deal over the things that might have happened to cause you to take your trade away, but I couldn't figure it out.

Finally I decided to drop you a line and ask you to tell me frankly just what the trouble was. Have we done anything that seemed to you discourteous or unfair? If so, I want a chance to do the right thing without delay. I may be able to afford to lose customers when the fault is in no wise ours, but I can't afford to lose even a single customer when it is.

In spite of all that any one can do, accidents will happen—oversights and slips occur. I think many of the difficulties of life arise from the fact that people don't try to clear up misunderstandings—just let them pass as if they were trifles. From my point of view, the loss of a customer isn't a trifle. If there's anything I can do to bring you back as a regular customer, I don't want to lose a minute about doing it.

Won't you write me personally (use the back of this sheet) and tell me just how you feel about dealing with us? With kind regards and the hope of hearing from you promptly, I remain, Sincerely yours,

H. S. BROWN OPENS NEW STORE

GARDNER, MASS., July 2.—H. S. Brown, prominent New England music merchant, who operates a large music store in Lynn and another in Fitchburg, Mass., has opened a new talking machine establishment in the Rome Building, this city. The local store has been fitted with the most modern equipment obtainable and presents an attractive appearance.

The Lang Bros. Brunswick Shop, formerly located at 114 East Wayne street, South Bend, Ind., has moved to 439 South Michigan street.

A Mark of Service

Each month we prepare several hundred sets of attractively painted show cards featuring the new Victor Records, as pictured here.

This service is considered a most important item in the M. I. S. extensive and thorough plan of sales co-operation with the dealer, as experience has shown that the strikingly designed and colorful cards, in their very refined gold frames, have a real selling ability, in direct proportion to the manner in which they are exhibited.

We are not actively interested in the sale of show cards, beyond their value as a medium for promoting Victor business. Our reason for extending the service, on a cost-share basis to Victor dealers, outside of our immediate representation, is to secure a larger subscription list which will permit still greater investments in art work.

EDISON

THE success of the New Edison was made possible through the soundness and practicability of the idea that suggested its development, the unusual ideals upon which it was built, and the unlimited facilities for the laboratory research which was completed only after years of scientific study and at an expenditure of $3,000,000.

That the New Edison has lived up to expectations in the Re-Creation of music is now past history. Its numerous tests of direct comparison with the living artists before audiences in various parts of the United States and Canada proved beyond all possibility of contradiction that the devices perfected by Mr. Edison have leaped the gap between ordinary reproduction and actual Re-Creation.

It is indeed gratifying to witness the hearty acknowledgment accorded this greatest of all Edison triumphs by an appreciative public and the steadily increasing corps of Edison dealers.

THE PACIFIC COAST AS A POTENTIAL FIELD FOR SALES

Interesting Talk With R. L. Rayner, Vice-president, Munson-Rayner Corp., Los Angeles, on New York Visit—Cheney Talking Machine and Vocalion Record Distributor Makes Important Deals

R. L. Rayner, vice-president of the Munson-Rayner Corp., Los Angeles, distributor for Cheney talking machines and Vocalion Red records, as well as for other lines of talking machine merchandise and accessories, was a recent visitor to New York. Mr. Rayner when seen by The World was enthusiastic over business conditions and prospects on the Pacific Coast, where, as he expressed it, there is a large buying public with a plentiful supply of money at its command. "Not only are the industries prosperous on the Coast," declared Mr. Rayner, "but those who come to us from the East, in the great majority of cases, come well supplied with money which they have accumulated in trade and which they use to make life pleasant in our country."

While in New York Mr. Rayner closed a deal whereby his company will act as distributor for Vocalion records in Oregon and Washington, in addition to the California territory now covered, and in order to take proper care of the growing business a branch office of the company has been opened in San Francisco and another office will be opened in Portland about September 1.

The Munson-Rayner Corp. is a firm believer in advertising and has started on an extensive billboard campaign along the leading motor highways in California and adjoining States. Already 100 de luxe billboards, all of them painted and half of them equipped with electric lights, have been placed. Later in the year it is planned to have several thousand such boards along the Pacific Coast highways. The billboard advertising at the present time is devoted entirely to the Cheney talking machine, and possibly some of the boards will be devoted to the exploitation of the company's other lines as the campaign progresses.

An idea of the volume of business transacted by the Munson-Rayner Corp. may be gleaned from the fact that during the last nine months it has had a turnover of over $500,000, thanks to a well-organized executive policy and a sales staff of hustlers, nine of whom are on the road constantly in touch with dealers and covering veritably all of the leading merchandising points in California.

The secret of the success of the Munson-Rayner Corp. is due to the fact that the organization keeps in close touch with the dealers. It stimulates them to new activities, and the results are satisfactory not only to the Munson-Rayner Corp., but to the dealers themselves. In brief, this corporation is teaching the dealers how to merchandise goods.

California is one of the greatest States per capita in the purchase of musical instruments, and the buying market has been enhanced considerably, thanks to the splendid work of the Munson-Rayner Corp.

Mr. Rayner announced that both the Cheney talking machines and Vocalion records were enjoying increased demand all along the Coast, and that the principal question at the present time was that of getting sufficient stock from the East to take care of orders promptly.

While in New York Mr. Rayner arranged to take on in his company's territory Brilliantone steel needles and the new Cesco record repeater.

BRUNSWICK STAFF HOLDS MEETING

Eastern Phonograph Division Has Interesting Business Session—H. A. Beach Outlines Plans for Extensive Summer Campaign

The Eastern sales staff of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. held an interesting meeting recently at which plans were made for a vigorous Summer campaign. The morning hours were spent at the company's recording laboratory, where new Brunswick recordings were played, and after a luncheon at Keene's Chop House the meeting reassembled at an uptown club.

At this point Harry A. Beach, Eastern sales manager of the Brunswick phonograph division, outlined to the staff his plans for a Summer campaign, and commented on the fact that dealer applications had been received that very morning from every sales division in the Eastern territory, which in itself indicated the rapid strides being made by the Brunswick product in the East. Mr. Beach reviewed in detail the various happenings at the Brunswick meetings held in Chicago during convention week, and gave statistics of the Eastern Brunswick business, which in some divisions showed better than a 100 per cent increase over last year, with a general increase for the entire division. Dinner was served at the club and the evening was spent in discussion and exchange of ideas.

Aggressive Merchant Secures Exclusive Rights to Advertise in Local Theatre

Advertising on moving picture screens has been conceded to be as effective as any other medium of publicity in bringing the merits of the talking machine before a large number of people. Henry W. Berry, Victor dealer, 505 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, Mass., has secured the exclusive rights to advertise talking machines in one of the leading local moving picture houses. Twenty-three slides, all relating to Victor products handled by this progressive house, have been prepared, and these are regularly flashed on the screen. When it is considered that practically every patron who attends the show eagerly reads everything flashed on the screen, the value of publicity of this character may be realized.

SOME SALES STIMULATORS

Dealers in communities close to the farming districts are often at a loss as to the best way to reach the farmers. There are a number of ways in which this may be done, among several recently described in The World being the compiling of a farmer prospect list through personal canvass and then sending out literature to them by mail. Heim's Music Store, operating stores in Danbury and Ridgefield, Conn., and in Brewster, N. Y., has found the local Farm Bureau publication a valuable means of making contact with rural dwellers. Regular advertising in this publication designed along lines likely to appeal strongly to the farmers has brought excellent returns.

Keeping the prospect list up-to-date means saving money. Where the list remains for a year or more without undergoing a weeding out process the merchant is constantly sending out literature to people who are not and never will be interested. In several years the time, trouble and expense involved in sending out this material reach considerable proportions. The prospect list should undergo the weeding out process at least twice each year, and, of course, where people have moved out of town, died, or for any other reason are unlikely as prospects, the names should be dropped from the list. There are enough people who may develop into customers so that the dealer cannot afford to waste time and money on long chances. The Temple of Music, Scranton, Pa., sends out at regular intervals to people who are in the seemingly "impossible" class a postal card enclosed in an envelope. The card is worded in such a way that if the customer re-mails it to the store he or she signifies the desire to remain on the mailing list. Over 60 per cent of these cards sent out to the patrons and prospects of the store some time ago were returned. The others were dropped from the list as worthless, as far as sales were concerned.

Here is a stunt which dealers in the larger towns and cities can take advantage of if they are willing to co-operate. It was originated by several merchants in a Middle Western city, who got together and printed a little monthly booklet entitled "Favorite Records Review." These booklets were inserted in local theatre programs. In cases where two or three dealers combine in producing something of this character the expense is reduced to a minimum for each one and a more elaborate little booklet can be prepared than would be possible if only one dealer financed the whole thing. No better place could possibly be found for the distribution of these little monthly publications than in theatre programs. Both from the standpoint of economy and because of the fact that the booklets are most likely to be digested this method of circularization is the best.

A certain dealer who was determined to build up a clientele of wealthy patrons stationed a man on the thoroughfare on which his store is located to take down the numbers of all automobiles which stopped in his block. In a week he had quite a long list of numbers which he checked against the automobile registry, thus securing the names and addresses of the owners. To these he mailed sales letters designed to appeal particularly to this class of people. A fine grade of bonded paper and envelopes were secured for this direct-by-mail work. The results were very satisfactory. The merchant whose store is located on a high class business thoroughfare may find this a profitable means of securing some live prospects.

OUR EXPORTS OF TALKING MACHINES

Export Figures on Talking Machines and Records Show Increasing Tendency as Compared With Last Year—Our Buyers Abroad

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 10.—In the summary of exports of the commerce of the United States for the month of April, 1923 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following are the figures bearing on talking machines and records:

Talking machines to the number of 4,710, valued at $175,916, were exported in April, 1923, as compared with 4,406 talking machines, valued at $154,891, sent abroad in the same period of 1922. The ten months' total showed that we exported 49,381 talking machines, valued at $1,912,518, as against 29,951 talking machines, valued at $1,250,545, in 1922.

The total exports of records and supplies for April, 1923, were valued at $121,634, as compared with $101,912 in April, 1922. The ten months ending April, 1923, show records and accessories exported valued at $958,553, as compared with $1,274,881 in 1922.

The countries to which exports were made in April and the values thereof are as follows: France, $2,293; United Kingdom, $6,814; other Europe, $6,067; Canada, $39,703; Central America, $4,256; Mexico, $13,676; Cuba, $13,442; Argentina, $4,821; other South American countries, $9,112; China, $736; Japan, $20,214; Philippine Islands, $3,192; Australia, $10,761; Peru, $3,123; Chile, $14,394; other countries, $23,312.

In the above report the imports are not included and this is explained by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, which informs The World that "Only the exports of domestic merchandise by articles and principal countries are published at this time on account of the delay in the import reports. The corresponding statement of imports will be published when the delayed reports are received."

Some salesmen achieve the best results when they receive encouragement and others do their best work when they are forced.

How Others Make Canvassing Successful

Some Tested Plans Outlined by Martin L. Pierce, of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., at Pittsburgh Meeting of Victor Dealers

It is recognized that one of the secrets of success in the development of a retail business in the talking machine field as well as in others is to go after the sales where they are and not wait for them to come to the store. This means the organized efforts of a competent canvassing and outside sales force, not always an easy thing for the man who has not had actual experience in this work. We believe, therefore, that the following paper on "How Dealers Are Making a Success of House-to-House Selling," which was read by Martin L. Pierce, of the Hoover Suction Sweeper Co., at a recent meeting of Victor dealers held in Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Standard Talking Machine Co., and which appears somewhat abbreviated, should prove of general interest to the trade. Certainly there should be something found in the experiences of the various concerns referred to that could with profit be adopted by talking machine dealers.—EDITOR.

House-to-house selling is not a new method of merchandising. It is one that has been used by the old-fashioned pack peddler for many years. It is, however, a comparatively new method of distribution for the legitimate retail dealer. The method has proved especially effective during periods of unusual sales resistance. This method of selling is just as scientific and requires just as careful preparation as any other method being used. The fact that so many concerns have failed to make good on the method is nothing against it. To-day many industries are dependent absolutely upon this method of selling in order to keep them going. House-to-house selling is just as dignified and requires just as high a type of salesmanship as any other kind of merchandising.

George D. Gaw, of Chicago, has built up one of the largest envelope businesses in the country by going out after the business. He says, "I turned every doorknob that might lead to a sale." The method he used was to go into a district and canvass it absolutely clean.

During the dull period of 1921 the Stratton-Bliss Co., New York distributor of Dodge automobiles, needed business mighty bad. It sent out door-to-door canvassers and co-operated with them by sending out direct-mail advertising. The canvass actually sold more cars than enough to pay for the work done besides giving them a valuable prospect list. They secured over 100,000 prospects during the drive. When the prospect had been located they simply arranged a satisfactory and convenient time for a demonstration.

The following methods of house-to-house canvassing have been used successfully by the electrical industry:

The Commonwealth Edison Co., of Chicago, has electric trucks into which it loads all kinds of appliances, also from ten to fifteen salesmen. These trucks go out into various parts of Chicago and are located on some convenient corner. A stock man remains with the trucks and the salesmen begin house-to-house canvassing, radiating from the truck as a center. The city is divided into districts with definite boundaries. In making the canvass they go to the back door where the lady of the house is found who does her own work and who particularly appreciates labor-saving devices of all kinds. This company maintains eight trucks with a force of 120 such salesmen. They are given an initial knowledge of the appliances they are to sell. Their educational work comes from the Central Station Institute. The men are not turned over to the captains until after they have passed successfully this preliminary preparation. By this method the appliances that are sold are delivered on the spot.

E. N. Hurley, president of the Hurley Machine Co., of Chicago, manufacturer of the Hurley washing machine, places canvassing first in his merchandising scheme. All its advertising either is to apply as a suitable background for the canvasser or to introduce him to the homes of prospective buyers. The Hurley Co. in Chicago maintains a chain of forty retail stores. Fully 95 per cent of its sales are made either by the canvasser direct or by people coming into the store as a result of the canvassers' solicitations.

The manager of the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Co. recently stated that the outstanding essentials for success in selling vacuum cleaners were, first, a competent house-to-house selling force; second, local newspaper advertising; third, telephone campaign, and, fourth, complete canvass of prospects. He stated, "My observation leads me to believe that retail salesmanship by soliciting orders by personal calls at the homes comes first. The salesman must use his head, but he can't use that unless he uses his feet generously."

The Trobaugh Hardware Co., of Morristown, Tenn., has, for some years, been booking orders from the farmers by personal solicitation. Its argument is that when you take the farmer's order in his home you have eliminated competition.

The Toledo Railway & Light Co. has divided the city into twenty-eight districts. Each of these districts is assigned a salesman. This salesman is protected on all sales going into this territory. On the sales that he makes in the territory he gets approximately 10 per cent. On the sales that are made to people in the store, to whom he has demonstrated, he gets approximately 5 per cent, and people from his territory who are sold in the store to whom he has not demonstrated he gets 1 per cent or 2 per cent. As the salesman proves successful he is moved into territories from which a greater quantity of business can be secured. These salesmen are brought in each morning at 8.30 for a meeting, where prospects that were secured the previous day at the office are distributed to the salesmen. The salesmen are required to report on the number of calls they made the previous day and as to sales that they made both as to quantity and dollars and cents. This system has been operating successfully for several years.

The New Orleans Railway & Light Co. has a system similar to this, but its men are not given territories. It uses what it calls the "nine block system." A salesman is assigned a territory of nine blocks, three each way. It requires approximately three weeks to cover this territory. Any time during the three weeks he is not more than three squares away from a prospect, or a person to whom he has made a sale. If, in the squares that he canvasses to-day, people are away, to-morrow he can go back to those homes and not be compelled to walk more than three or four squares to get all of them. This system saves car fare and automobile expense. The salesman can easily make from ten to twelve back calls, as well as the necessary demonstrations for the appliance which he happens to be selling, each day.

Experiences of a Talking Machine Man

For several years Leslie King, of the Morehouse-Martens' department store in Columbus, and now with the Brunswick Co., had charge of the sales of Victrolas and Hoover sweepers. He had the same type of organization selling both lines of merchandise. He assigned his men to streets. After using this method for three years he reported the following results: For every 100 houses canvassed the salesman would find ten live prospects. From every ten live prospects on the average the salesman would make four sales. Mr. King also made it a practice to follow up the reports of his salesmen with women selling records. They were to go to every home that had a talking machine with a basket of records, the thought back of this being to get the people headed towards Morehouse-Martens' to buy their records regardless of what kind of a machine they had.

The following are some of the outstanding characteristics of the successful house-to-house salesman.

Usually it is better that he have no experience selling your type of merchandise than to have had competitive experience. Regardless of how honestly the salesman may accept your merchandise, if he has at any time been connected with a competitor the likelihood is that in his subconscious mind he still has stored away his competitor's arguments against your merchandise or the competitor's arguments in favor of his own merchandise. He will nearly always be found to be a little "touchy" when his old methods of selling or the merchandise that he used to sell are referred to in sales conferences or by his fellow-salesmen. It is usually a good thing to get men who have nothing to unlearn before they can give you whole-hearted allegiance.

The salesman should have had some experience in selling to women. Men who have worked at some kind of retail selling usually make good in house-to-house selling.

The Kind of Salesmen Who Win Out

The prospective salesman should be a man of responsibility. When it is only necessary for a fellow to make $15 or $20 a week for spending money, who lives at home and eats off his father or mother, he will never develop into a successful house-to-house salesman. He should be married or at least have a mother or sister or somebody dependent upon him. This keeps him steadily in the traces and gives him an objective worth working for. A short time ago a young man who had been making $100 a month was taken on the Hoover sales force.

By high-pressure methods our district manager worked him up until he made $350 in a month. He resigned and went back to his old job, stating that he would not work that hard for anybody. This is a typical experience where pressure is put behind such men.

This type of salesman should have a high school education or its equivalent. In many organizations college men have proved most successful. This is particularly true of the Wear-Ever Aluminum Co. The preliminary training should have outlined to the prospective salesman the mechanical features of the product, its use, its outstanding sales points, arguments for meeting objections and a clear-cut statement of the competition that the salesman is apt to meet.

Training on the job. The prospective salesman should spend some time in homes with an experienced salesman. This will show him just how his preliminary instruction is to be used. He will be able to see first-hand how demonstrations are made and the usual objections disposed of. He will also gain confidence readily as he himself commences to sell by being conscious that there is someone present who will back him up if he stubs his toe. This training on the job is very essential and is used almost universally by house-to-house merchandisers.

School instruction. After the salesman has proved that he can sell the commodity and is able to make a living at it, he becomes eligible to a higher type of instruction which most organizations are now giving at their home offices or to groups in the field.

The Value of Sales Meetings

Sales meetings. Every organization of house-to-house salesmen must have regular sales meetings if they are to be kept up to their full efficiency. Many organizations have daily meetings either in the morning before going to work or in the evening after the work is over. Many have weekly meetings. Some have a combination of the two, a morning meeting for reports, and one night a week for a full discussion of sales problems, planning and outlining sales programs and policies. The big objective of these meetings is to continually give the men more selling material and new points of approach so they will not at any time grow stale on the job.

CHECKING UP ON CLERKS' VALUE

Effective Plan for Keeping Track of Earning Value of Clerks Worked Out by a Merchant in the West—Non-producers Found Out

A music dealer on the Western Coast has worked out a plan that keeps him informed at all times on just which clerks and departments are paying their way and which are simply burdens to the store.

There are two simple records in his system. They are headed "Sales by Clerks" and "Sales by Departments." The "Clerk" slips have a date line at the top and vertical columns with the names of each of the clerks at the top.

When the time comes to adjust salaries this merchant consults his "Record of Sales by Clerks" and thus those with good records are rewarded, while the poor ones, after being given warning and a fair trial, are dropped.

REACHING AND MAKING SALES TO SUMMER VACATIONISTS

Some Suggestions for Locating Prospects During the Summer and Boosting Sales of Machines and Records to Vacationists Set Forth by Frank V. Faulhaber for The World

Instead of letting business lag during the Summer months, the enterprising talking machine dealer will strive to interest such prospects as can easily be sold. There are many people going on their vacations who should be in the market for at least some portable machine, to say nothing of records. Reach these prospects! You can go after them from now until the approach of Fall, thus keeping your establishment not only busy, but emphasizing your aggressiveness.

There are, of course, divers ways of interesting the Summer vacation prospects. Almost any sort of sales-efforts with them in mind is better than none. Special newspaper advertisements can be devoted to bringing about this business and specific circulars and sales-letters will be timely, the work of some clever canvasser also being productive. The business is right there, even in your own neighborhood; so don't hesitate to broach your proposition.

Sometimes in your local newspapers appear announcements of residents leaving for vacations; these particular people should be very good prospects. And the work can be followed within your own store. Tactful questioning will bring to light information whether and when your customers are going on their vacations. If a patron tells about his or her coming vacation the salesman can explain the advantages of a portable machine with records right then and there. Some of your customers can give you tips regarding other people's vacations; secure the names and addresses, then write them a letter discussing your proposition. A personal visit to these prospects should bring worthwhile responses in many cases.

The talking machine dealer should not want for prospects. To the contrary, these specific prospects can be obtained from various sources. Small, suitable prizes to children might be offered to get more of this particular information. At the same time, run displays that tie up with your object here, so people will be reminded in different ways and be more certain to give you their business.

You can also write those people residing in your neighborhood, likewise referring to the telephone book. Now let us cite a specimen letter here that will convey a good idea of the possibilities. The following can be used to good advantage by the talking machine dealer:

"Dear Mr. McFee:—We must tell you about our many portable talking machines which we are sure will interest you now. Many people, vacation-bound, are securing such an instrument from us, together with a liberal assortment of records. Last year one pleased customer, immediately following her vacation, came to us to acknowledge her gratification. She declared: 'I am sure we would not have enjoyed our extended holiday so much had we been without that small talking machine you brought before my attention. I thought I had taken many records with me—but once we got started in camp the younger people could not get enough. Next year I shall surely take more of them with me, for they contribute so much to one's enjoyment. We had many dancing parties in camp, all because of that machine, which we also played while on the water. I cannot thank you too much!' Let us tell you more about these machines, Mr. McFee. We will welcome you at our store or gladly send a representative. Send a letter or card, or use your phone; you will procure prompt information."

Go after this vacation business, now!

CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM A SUCCESS

Group Plan for Selling Records Introduced by the Peerless Album Co. Has Proved Successful in Considerably Enlarging Sales

Over a year ago Phil Ravis, president of the Peerless Album Co., New York, introduced the classification system for record albums. The result has been that the classification system of selling records has not only met with general approval, but has been found to be a very successful method of selling records in group lots. The numerous classifications which can be used to increase the volume of record sales, add considerably to record libraries and at the same time assure the consumer of the best service for his instrument are quite comprehensive and, indeed, the idea might still be termed as in its infancy. In fact, in seasons to come carrying out the idea of the group sale of records will be one of the most appropriate and profitable functions of the successful record salesman.

It might also be added that the classification idea, or group plan of record sales, came at the most opportune period in the history of the talking machine industry. Record sales were, undoubtedly, at their lowest ebb. Record enthusiasts, who during the inflation period had purchased records in quantity, had reached the stage where single record purchases were their maximum. The group sale plan, following closely on this period, was most timely.

The importance of group sales has now come in for general recognition. So much so that sales managers everywhere are advocating the idea. And new suggestions, of which the classification idea is the basis, are constantly being brought forward.

According to Mr. Ravis the Peerless Co.'s classification systems are sales stimulators everywhere. The fact that the trade is behind the idea demonstrates that the retailer is quick to accept practical merchandising plans.

Putting Originality in Window Displays

A Strong Sales Appeal Can Be Made Through Window Displays if the Beaten Path Is Shunned and Something "Different" Is Tried

During the last year a number of talking machine dealers in various parts of the country have attracted a great deal of attention to their establishments, secured live prospects and gained considerable free publicity through staging unusual stunts of various descriptions. Invariably, where dealers have succeeded in getting out of the beaten path in bringing their lines to the attention of the public, the returns have more than justified the time, money and trouble involved. Many of these sales promotion stunts have been described in the columns of The World, thus broadcasting successful plans which those merchants who are awake to real opportunities could take advantage of.

Originality Is Necessary

The same old thing done in the same old way, week after week, and month after month, takes the freshness out of any business, particularly window displays. Along this line the talking machine dealer has an unequalled opportunity of making his store known to everyone who passes his door. Simply displaying a few machines in the window in the usual stereotyped manner will not attract the attention of the public. Put something in the window which is different than the usual run of talking machine window displays and the story is different. The idea is to make people stop, look and then, when they have passed by, remember.

It is much more advantageous to spend a few dollars in making the window a thing of beauty than to curtail expense in this direction and have a display which is so similar to the average run of such exhibits that no one pays any attention to it. In fact, a regular appropriation should be allotted for window publicity purposes each year when the advertising appropriation is made out. This appropriation need not be large because, as the dealer accumulates window display materials, he will find that much of it can be used time and time again for different displays to good advantage.

Human Interest Appeals

Originality is the one vital thing needed in window displays, especially in the talking machine business. A little touch of human interest in the window is worth much to the dealer. In New York a concern manufacturing a new type of so prosaic a thing as a furnace has its showroom. When the furnace, without any attempt at placing it in the proper setting, was placed in the window the display was conspicuous for the number of people who passed by without more than a perfunctory glance. One day, however, the display was changed. The furnace was placed in its proper setting, a room in the home. An artist must have been at work on that window. Instead of merely placing the furnace in a room the greatest nicety of detail was observed in making that room a living and breathing thing, even to lifelike figures of a gray-haired woman comfortably seated in a rocking chair knitting and a fatherly-looking old man reading a newspaper. Now, from morning until night, people stop in front of this display, not merely for a moment, but many of them remain for some time, studying the various details. Of course, the furnace is displayed in such a way that it cannot escape the attention of onlookers.

This incident is not related because in itself

GALLI-CURCI IN LAWRENCE CONCERT

Gardner's Temple of Music Enjoys Increased Sale of Famous Victor Artist's Records Following a Largely Attended Concert

LAWRENCE, MASS., July 2.—Gardner's Temple of Music, Shawsheen Manor, this city, has enjoyed

Fred Gardner—Mme. Galli-Curci
an unprecedented demand for records by Amelita Galli-Curci, famous Victor artist, who recently it can help the dealer, but simply to illustrate the point that, no matter how unromantic a product may be, there is always an opportunity of making a window display which is bound to arrest attention. And the talking machine is far from prosaic. The merchant who desires to do so has the opportunity of arranging displays which should bring a steady stream of people past his doors just for a look. This sounds like a fantasy of the mind, but it has been done. Here and there throughout the country there are dealers who have created a distinct name for themselves through the attractiveness of their window displays.

appeared before a large audience in the Empire Theatre, this city. While here Galli-Curci visited Gardner's, which is one of the finest and most progressive music concerns in the city. The illustration shows Mme. Galli-Curci and Fred Gardner, proprietor of the music house bearing his name, at Shawsheen Manor. Immediately before and following the concert the aggressive sales organization was kept busy supplying the demand for Galli-Curci records. Fortunately, every record made by this artist was carried and as a result no trouble was experienced in supplying the demand.

Gardner's Temple of Music carries a large stock of fine instruments. The talking machine lines include the Victor and Brunswick and in addition Ivers & Pond and Bjur Bros. pianos are handled by a competent sales force.

LOPEZ BECOMES A MINER

Famous Okeh Artist Descends Into Mines at Scranton—Orchestra's Enthusiastic Reception

SCRANTON, PA., July 5.—Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, exclusive Okeh artists, visited this city recently for the purpose of playing at a mammoth dance. Upon its arrival here the orchestra was met by a committee of city officials, a crowd of enthusiastic citizens, a brass band and the Anthracite Miners' Sextet. Mayor Durkan conducted the members of the orchestra on a tour of the city, including a call at the International Correspondence Schools and the Von Storch coal mines.

Upon arriving at the Von Storch mines the Lopez Orchestra was serenaded by the Miners' Sextet and, after this part of the entertainment was finished, Vincent Lopez and his men donned miners' costumes and descended into the mines. Okeh dealers in Scranton were well prepared for the appearance of the orchestra and newspaper advertising and posters were used to advantage.

vania Orchestra, exclusive Okeh artists. This enterprising dealer realized the fact that an exceptional opportunity was being presented for effective and timely dealer tie-up, with the result that Lopez Okeh records enjoyed a phenomenal sale at the Schuler store.

When Lopez and His Orchestra arrived in Buffalo to attend the opening of the new Hotel Statler detailed plans were made for launching an intensive publicity campaign. J. A. Sieber, advertising manager of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, manufacturer of Okeh records, and J. F. Gillespie, business manager for Vincent Lopez, spent several days in Buffalo prior to the arrival of the orchestra and in their publicity campaign received the hearty co-operation of the Iroquois Sales Corp., Okeh jobber in this city.

Practically every Okeh dealer in Buffalo devoted his windows to featuring Lopez records, unable to gain admission. Lopez played a number of selections which he has made famous on Okeh records and received an ovation.

There is no doubt but that the Schuler Music Store, in addition to stimulating the sale of Okeh records, added materially to the prestige of the Okeh line in this territory through its initiative and aggressiveness. This dealer set an example for other Okeh retailers to follow wherever Lopez and His Orchestra appear and Mr. Schuler has been congratulated upon the aggressiveness that characterized his tie-up with the Lopez appearance at the Hotel Statler.

TALKING MACHINE MEN'S OUTING

Preliminary Plans Completed for Annual Outing of Talking Machine Men, Inc., to Be Held at Karatsonyi's on Tuesday, August 14

Preliminary plans have been completed for the annual outing of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., which will be held on Tuesday, August 14, at Karatsonyi's, the popular outing resort at Glen Head, L. I. This year the talking machine men and their guests will travel to the picnic grounds by boat, the committee having chartered the steamer "Seagate" for that purpose. The party will leave Pier A, North River, at the Battery at 9 a. m. sharp and will land at Karatsonyi's shortly before noon and in time for a first-class luncheon.

The committee in charge of the outing, including Sol Lazarus, chairman, together with Messrs. Goldfinger, Kurtz, Berlow, Brown, Goldsmith, Abelowitz, Conn, Galuchie and Davin, motored to Glen Head recently in order to look over the situation and see to it that the best of everything was ordered for those who will attend the outing.

The tide table showed that the water will be high in the afternoon of August 14, which will make it ideal for a long list of water sports, including swimming races and diving contests. There will also be the usual baseball game and various sports on the commodious grounds adjoining the hotel, after which there will be dancing until such time as the boat starts back for New York. Naturally, an elaborate shore dinner with all trimmings will be one of the features.

Single members of the party are urged to bring their best girls, for the committee promises a moonlight sail on the return trip and, even should the moon fail to show, the outing committee insinuates a dark deck with the right kind of girl is not so bad after all.

Demand for "United" Phonograph Motors so far exceeded the capacity of our old plant on Lake Shore Drive that we were forced to look for new and larger quarters. We now have exactly the plant we needed.

We bought this fine modern factory with its 60,000 square feet of floor space and its eight acres of land—for future extension in order that we might better serve our customers.

The plant could not be more ideally arranged or equipped. Light streams in from all sides and thru the glass-clad saw-tooth roof. The whole factory is one solid floor of concrete on one level. A switch track at our loading platform brings in our raw materials and takes out our finished products. A truck platform performs the same service for local and express receipts and shipments.

Later, we will show interior photographs of the various departments—how the raw materials move, in an orderly manner, thru the various manufacturing, finishing, inspecting and testing and packing processes.

This move, and our increased working capital, is one of the first accomplishments of the new management of this old-established concern.

All this means at least a doubled producing capacity — 1,500 motors a day.

It means greater promptness in filling orders and—if such a thing is possible—a better product.

"United" Phonograph Motors, with their protecting cast iron housings and automatic capillary lubrication, are in such world-wide demand among both manufacturers and dealers that we look forward to a not-distant time when even this great plant will have to be extended to keep pace with the demand.

You are invited to visit us in our new home. It is near the Burnside Station (95th Street) on the Illinois Central; while the Cottage Grove Avenue electric cars stop at the door.

Send for our new book—"The Heart of the Phonograph."

Advertising for Foreign Trade at Home

The Great Percentage of the Population in the Larger Cities May Be Reached Through Publicity in Foreign Language Newspapers

Although talking machine record manufacturers have for many years featured strongly records in foreign tongues for the use of the domestic trade and have advertised those records consistently and persistently in foreign language newspapers, it still is evident that a large number of talking machine retailers are not yet inclined to take full advantage of the opportunity of tying up the manufacturer's campaign to their own advertising in such newspapers, and thereby reaching into what may be considered a comparatively new field.

The fact that in New York City, for instance, as well as in a number of other cities of the country, those of foreign birth or the children of foreign-born parents make up the bulk of the population is not to be ignored from the standpoint of business, for it develops a situation that makes it necessary for the merchant who seeks to reach the majority of citizens to take into consideration the problem of the foreign population and how it may be approached.

The Large Foreign-speaking Population

According to the census figures for 1920, New York City had a total population of 5,839,738, of which 4,294,629 were of foreign birth or the children of foreign-born parents. This means that close to three-quarters of the population of the city might be said to represent the foreign element, even though something over two million were actually born in this country, but of foreign parents.

It is only necessary to make a casual survey of New York to realize the extent of the foreign influence in many localities. The large Jewish population, or at least the bulk of it, is congregated in two or three centers, the lower East Side, sections of the upper West Side and in the Bronx and northern part of Brooklyn. The Italians also have well-defined colonies in the lower sections of the city, in Brooklyn and on the upper East Side. The Russians, Hungarians and Germans are also more or less clannish, and although they do not congregate as strongly in certain districts, they, nevertheless, stick close to many of the Old World customs and traditions.

No stronger evidence of the clannishness of these foreign peoples is to be found than in the fact that a number of newspapers published in foreign tongues have circulations that compare well with certain accepted American dailies. That these newspapers have such large circulations means that just so many people are not reached by the newspapers printed in English, and, therefore, cannot be appealed to by the advertising published in such papers. It happens, too, that a great proportion of these readers of foreign newspapers are thrifty, well fixed financially and willing to buy musical instruments to be installed in well-furnished homes.

Various talking machine dealers in the metropolitan district have for many years used various foreign language newspapers, but have generally confined their publicity to one or two dailies in that class. In short, if a store is located in a strong Jewish section Jewish newspapers would be used, if in an Italian, the Italian newspapers, etc., or, perhaps, the merchant being of a certain race would feel inclined to appeal to others from his native country through his own foreign language newspapers.

What the Aeolian Co. Has Done

It apparently has devolved on the Aeolian Co. to emphasize the manner in which the foreign-speaking population and those who read foreign newspapers can be reached in a general campaign. For some time past the Aeolian Co. has run display advertising featuring both

Vocalion records and pianos regularly in half a score foreign language newspapers, including the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung and the New Yorker Herald (German), the Forward and the Day (Jewish), the Il Progresso Italo-Americano, the Corriere D'America and the Bollettino Della Sera (Italian), the Amerikai Magyar Nepszava (Hungarian) and the Novoye Russkoye Slovo (Russian), and the results have thoroughly justified the campaign which has made its effects evident in the increased volume the circulation of any single American daily. Three-quarters of a million represent over 12½ per cent of the total population of the city, including men, women and children, and is a factor to be reckoned with.

Can Be Done in Many Cities

The experience of the Aeolian Co. is cited in this case to show what can be done in the covering of the foreign field and what has been done in New York can be done in a number of other cities of the country, such as Phila-of business experienced by the company's stores, particularly in the Brooklyn branches and in the Bronx. The copy used was not drafted with the particular view of meeting the foreign idea, but simply represented a translation of corresponding copy used simultaneously in the regular American dailies.

It is maintained in general advertising practices that the larger the circulation the more likely is the advertisement to bring results for the reason that the more people to whom a sales talk can be presented the larger number of sales that must result, figured out purely on the basis of percentage. The foreign language newspapers, at least the representative ones such as those used by the Aeolian Co., have a daily circulation in excess of three-quarters of a million copies, the aggregate being larger than delphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, etc., where the foreign born, or children of foreign-born parents, make up a substantial percentage of the population.

The talking machine manufacturers long ago realized the possibility of cultivating this foreign trade at home, so to speak, with the result that not only is special newspaper advertising run in the leading foreign dailies, but special window hangers and posters were prepared in foreign tongues for the use of dealers in localities where there are many foreigners.

The success of the retail talking machine business lies in cultivating every field intensively and in searching for and developing new fields, and a direct appeal to the foreign-speaking population has brought excellent results in practically every case in which it was tried.

Brunswick Creates Quick Profits while building dealer prestige

The Leviathan and Brunswick

When the giant Leviathan of the U. S. Shipping Board Fleet sailed July 4th, on her first trip, she carried four Brunswick phonographs for the entertainment of her passengers. Two Brunswick phonographs were installed in the first-class section and one each in the second and third-class quarters.

In the kingdoms of Europe a dealer gains prestige by adding to his firm name the words: "Purveyor to His Majesty the King."

In these United States the dealer gains prestige by representing a house whose products have grown famous through high quality and constant advertising. Products that are in big demand.

The Brunswick line of Phonographs and Records is a prestige line. It stands pre-eminently among the greatest. To be a Brunswick dealer establishes a merchant, or enhances his standing. For Brunswick has built in a short term of years an enviable position in the music world.

But Brunswick is not only a prestige line. It is a high profit line. So the dealer who handles Brunswick gains prestige and profits. Brunswick phonographs pay generous returns. Brunswick records are so skillfully merchandised that with a limited catalog and a small inventory the dealer has a quick and frequent turnover. Profits are multiplied this way.

What The Brunswick Franchise Means besides prestige and profit

The Brunswick line is not only the premier line of prestige and profit. It also insures to Brunswick dealers the preservation and protection of their rights and privileges.

When you handle Brunswick Phonographs and Records you deal with the manufacturer direct or with those distributors governed by the manufacturer's policy—not with middlemen whose conflicting interests may work to your disadvantage.

Brunswick Phonographs and Records are distributed through Brunswick branch houses. So dealers are assured at all times fair treatment, square dealings, equal privileges.

This is one of the many reasons why Brunswick dealer franchises are in ever-increasing demand.

Brunswick selects its dealers carefully.

Therefore, the sign "Brunswick" on a dealer's store is a sign of musical prestige.

S. KAMINSHINE BECOMES SECRETARY

Of Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co.—Capacity of Needle Display Stand Is Increased—President Cohen on an Extended Business Trip

The Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has announced that S. Kaminshine has been appointed secretary of the company. In addition to his duties as an executive of the organization he will continue to have full charge of the sales. Mr. Kaminshine recently completed a successful trip through Middle West territory. He found business good and everyone optimistic over the Fall outlook.

The Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co. recently questioned its customers relative to the advisability of increasing the capacity of the Wall-Kane needle display stand from sixty boxes to one hundred boxes of needles. In practically every instance the opinion was strongly favorable and, therefore, it is announced that in the near future new stands will be produced containing one hundred boxes each.

N. Cohen, president of the company, reports that the factory is very busy filling orders, with a fair apportionment of the demand between the Wall-Kane line of ten-time needle and the concert and jazz one-time. The trade has responded well to the announcement of price increase on the Wall-Kane line, effective September 1, and many jobbers have anticipated their Fall requirements and are taking advantage of the present prices.

Mr. Cohen, accompanied by Mrs. Cohen, left on July 1 for an extended trip, which will combine both business and pleasure. All the principal cities throughout the United States will be visited, with a side trip to the Hawaiian Islands when San Francisco is reached. Mr. Cohen expects to be gone for nearly three months.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

F. C. Kent Co., Manufacturer of Talking Machine Equipment, to Celebrate Tenth Anniversary—Plant Working to Capacity

The F. C. Kent Co., 67 Grace street, Irvington, N. J., will shortly celebrate its tenth anniversary as manufacturer of talking machine attachments and equipment. Originally the Kent organization manufactured, exclusively, attachments for the Edison machine. The company still produces large quantities of such attachments and counts that portion of its product as its most important item. In recent years, however, this concern has manufactured tone arms and sound boxes of standard size and dimension and specially designed products on order. This department of the Kent Co. is now running at full capacity and in certain seasons the plant finds it necessary to run overtime.

F. C. Kent is the head of the company that bears his name. Prior to entering the talking machine industry he had many years' experience, particularly in the field pertaining to intricate mechanisms and fine jewelry. W. S. File, secretary of the company, devotes most of his time to the sales and advertising end of the business. He is a statistical expert of some note and has had more than a little experience in sales efficiency methods.

F. C. Kent, in speaking of the present trade trend, said: "While it is true our business in attachments is quite considerable we find the other departments of our business constantly in need of enlargement. This is especially true of our brass tone arm, which is manufactured and shaped under hydraulic pressure. A considerable amount of our present output is being shipped to manufacturers of the console type of machine. The growth of this type of product is quite large and, seemingly, it is the model that will be in demand for the next few years."

POSSIBILITIES OF FREE PUBLICITY

Contributing to Music Section of Local Newspaper Opens Way to Increased Prestige

One enterprising dealer in a fairly large city developed quite a reputation as an authority on artists and things musical by contributing regularly to the musical section of his local newspaper. He made it a point to write brief stories of interesting incidents in the lives of the leading record artists, and he also prepared quite a number of small contributions on various difficulties encountered in making records. The result has been that he and his business have become widely known in his city, and many people have come to him to purchase instruments and records, as well as to ask advice, who never would have done so otherwise. This is a splendid opportunity for gaining prestige and free publicity.

POINTS TO QUALITY AS SALES AID

Herbert D. Berkley, Manager of Bloomingdale's Phonograph Department, Describes Results of Featuring Right Merchandise and Methods

An interesting article on "Quality in Merchandise and in Merchandising" by Herbert D. Berkley, manager of the talking machine department of Bloomingdale's, New York City, recently appeared in the "Sonora Bell," the live house organ of the Sonora Phonograph Co. The article, based on facts covering many years of experience, showing the trend in demand, presents some thoughts on the talking machine business which are worth the attention of the entire trade and, therefore, it is reproduced:

"Customers judge the firm through impressions made upon them by salesmen. True, we know that. But how many salesmen think of it when selling?

"One of our steadfast rules is to employ only specialists to sell phonographs, men who know the business thoroughly, so that we can be represented intelligently. We have found, as no doubt others also have, that the salesman whose knowledge consists of just enough to 'get by' resorts repeatedly to misstatements. Misstatements are harmful all around. Men of this caliber are too expensive to experiment with. Don't do it!

"We have whipped a live-wire organization into being, given them the right kind of merchandise to sell, a broad and liberal policy to back them up and generous publicity, newspaper and otherwise. To us it has spelled results—satisfactory and profitable.

"But we have come to realize that our success depends, aside from the splendid organization, on quality merchandise for a foundation. 'Quality first' has been, is and always will be our slogan. To that, more than any one thing, we can attribute an ever-increasing volume of business; a self-advertised business!

"Merchandising phonographs in a department store is a little different from the retail phonograph shop. Yet the same basic principles apply. The difference is in turnover, upstairs location, periodical window displays and other elements which are of themselves handicaps to the very nature of the business. Yet department stores are a very important outlet as distributors of phonographs.

"The phonograph is being purchased by discriminating buyers. They are buying with as much an idea for style, design and interior decorative effect as for phonograph purposes. This accounts for the remarkable business being done in period console models, in which we have shared to no small degree.

"But tone and constructional care in cabinet work are being carefully scrutinized. Real honest-to-goodness merchandise is having first call. It is the call of quality!"

E. E. Smith Holds Formal Opening of Elaborate New Home in That City—Handles Complete Line of Victor and Brunswick Instruments—Many Attend Celebration

CLEARFIELD, PA., July 5.—E. E. Smith, who entered the piano and talking machine business in this city in 1914, recently found it necessary to procure more space to handle his growing business and, as a result, held the formal opening in an elaborate new business home in this city last month. A reception was held at the new warerooms in the evening, for which Benjie Krueger's Orchestra furnished the music, and later about 150 guests attended a dance at the Dimeling Hotel, where the same orchestra held forth during the entire evening and into the next morning.

It was estimated that over 5,000 people visited the store on the opening date and elaborate decorations were prepared for their benefit. Each visitor was presented with a flower as a souvenir of the event.

The new building erected by Mr. Smith comprises two stories and basement, fifty feet by fifty feet. All the floors are of hardwood and the interior color scheme is buff, ivory and mahogany. A special system of indirect lighting has been installed and ninety-four feet of show window space has been provided. In addition to E. E. Smith, proprietor of the business, the organization includes Miss Helen Cole, manager of the record department; Miss Bernice McDowell, furniture department; Miss Mada McDowell, office manager, and Flynn Smith, salesman.

Mr. Smith carries a complete line of Victor talking machines and Brunswick Phonographs and records, in addition to an extensive line of well-known pianos and player-pianos which are featured. Among the trade representatives from out of town who attended the opening were H. A. Mills, of the Weaver Piano Co., Inc., York, Pa.; Edward A. Ferguson, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh, and Jack Endress and Walter Badger, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

NEW RECORD DELIVERY BAGS

The New York Album & Card Co., New York City and Chicago, manufacturer of the well-known "Nyacco" line of talking machine albums, has just introduced to the trade a new line of heavy craft paper record delivery bags of the string and button type. Max Willinger, president of the company, stated that it was planned to have the dealers' imprints appear on the side with the button and string, as it is believed that this side of the envelope is far more often seen than the so-called front. Samples that have been shown are reported to have created a number of initial orders. The album end of the business is reported going well, with a marked change in the demand towards quality albums.

BENNY DAVIS SIGNS WITH EMERSON

Popular Songwriter and Singer to Record Own Numbers for Emerson Records

Benny Davis, the well-known songwriter and popular singer, has been signed by the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., to sing exclusively for Emerson records. Mr. Davis will sing his own numbers and other popular selections. The trade will particularly remember him as the writer of "Margie," "Dearest," "Say It While Dancing," "Stella," "Make Believe" and other successes.

In exploiting this new artist the Emerson Co. will issue a lithographed hanger for display purposes which will carry the monthly releases of his songs. The company has greatly extended its dealer service, particularly in the way of available advertising material, and is also including for trade distribution a monthly window strip featuring the selections of Irving and Jack Kaufman.

ATTACKING PROSPECTS' WEAK POINTS

Salesman Should Analyze Customers and Plan Sales Talks Along Most Effective Lines

During a discussion of the factors which contributed to the success of one of the business leaders of this country, one gentleman who had known the successful man for many years declared: "He always studies the people with whom he comes in contact and tries to find wherein they are weakest. He then attacks their weak points and never gives up until he gets what he is after."

There is some food for thought in this brief statement for members of the talking machine trade to ponder upon. The dealer and his salesmen are in business to make sales. Analysis of each customer should indicate along what lines the sales talk should be made. In other words, the weak point of the customer should be discovered if possible, and the salesman who is handling the prospective purchaser should hammer away along the lines where the customer is in a position to offer least resistance. Of course, tact and courtesy must be used and great care must be exercised so that the customer is not antagonized.

RECORD DEMAND TO CONTINUE

A. J. Baum, of the Independent Recording Laboratories, Analyzes Trend of Demand

A. J. Baum, of the Independent Recording Laboratories, who is at present doing the recording for various record manufacturers, states that indications show there is to be no drop in the demand during the Summer season. The tendency of record manufacturers is to lengthen their record lists this Summer. While it is true that some of the additions appeal to dance enthusiasts there is also, apparently, an increase in the demand for good popular songs. Vocal selections are returning to prominence and this indicates further additional sales for the retailer, inasmuch as sales of dance records are holding their own.

Arthur Bergh, musical director of the Independent Recording Laboratories, looks with much favor on this aroused interest in vocal renditions. It undoubtedly marks a return to works of the better sort. Mr. Bergh also stated that the care and attention now given to present-day orchestrations demonstrate that the purchasers of instrumental numbers are becoming more discriminating.

MILLER PIANO CO. OPENS NEW HOME

Formal Opening of Coatesville, Pa., Branch Attracts Many Music Lovers—Large Stock on Display in Attractive Quarters

COATESVILLE, PA., July 3—Elaborately furnished and decorated, completely equipped and conveniently arranged, the new store of the Miller Piano Co. was formally opened here late in June with great crowds filling the place both afternoon and evening.

Having just completed a sale of old stock in connection with the removal to a new room, the store was opened with a full line of pianos, talking machines and small musical instruments. One thousand Victor dogs were given away as souvenirs of the occasion, and even then the supply was not sufficient to meet all requests.

Webbies Orchestra furnished music and there were also musical numbers by Bennie Henton, of Conway's band; Mr. Knecht, of Sousa's band, and Mr. Liberetta, of Creatore's band. These gentlemen represented C. G. Conn, Ltd., manufacturer of band instruments, and presented a program of band instrument music, while Mr. Knecht, who is also a pianist of note, played a number of piano selections. There were present also representatives of the Victor Co., Thomas A. Edison Co., Cheney Sales Co., Weaver Piano Co. and other manufacturers.

The store presents a pleasing appearance from the street, with its two big display windows attractively arranged. At the front of the store are the cabinets containing records for talking machines and a cabinet for display of small musical instruments. Back of this, and divided by an elaborate partition, are seven sound-proof rooms for demonstration of talking machines and player-pianos. The display of pianos occupies a large part of the floor space, while in the rear is the office of the firm.

Mr. Miller expressed great pleasure because of the splendid crowds which participated in his opening, and this morning stated that within a few months he will extend the building to the rear in order to provide even more space than is now used. With the opening of the new store the Miller Piano Co. has added the Victor line of machines and records.

President of Brunswick Co. Makes Trial Trip on Famous Steamer—Four Brunswick Phonographs in "Leviathan" Equipment

B. E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Chicago, was one of the guests on the trial trip of the "Leviathan," the United States Shipping Board's world-famous steamer. Mr. Bensinger's presence on board was made doubly enjoyable by the knowledge that this "Queen of the Sea" includes in its equipment four Deluxe model Brunswick phonographs. Mr. Bensinger's attendance on this trip was caused by the fact that the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has for many years been an active figure in export shipping circles, although it so happens that Mr. Bensinger is a personal friend of Chairman Lasker, of the United States Shipping Board.

OKEH RECORD FEATURES NOVELTY

"E. Z." Flute Used for Recording Purposes—Inventor Attains Excellent Results

The General Phonograph Corp., with its usual aggressiveness, has just issued a record by Sam Cook, the whistling minstrel, featuring on one side "Dearest" and on the other side "Crying for You." Mr. Cook's method of reproduction is a new "musical instrument" known as the "E. Z." flute, which is nothing more or less than the old-fashioned tin whistle dressed up and modernized. With a little practice an amateur can produce real tunes on the "E. Z." flute, but Sam Cook, its inventor, produces results that are exceptionally fine. His Okeh record is meeting with success and may be the forerunner of wide popularity for the "E. Z." flute.

One of Several Striking Sonora Posters. Besides forming exceptionally fine window and wall display material these posters have been designed to help the dealer sell Sonora instruments. TRADE'S MUSIC WEEK COMMITTEE TENDERED A BANQUET

Officials of Talking Machine Men, Inc., Entertain Committee in Charge of Music Week Publicity for the Trade in Appreciation of Their Successful Accomplishments

The committee in charge of the activities of the local phonograph interests during the recent music week celebration, when full-page advertisements were run in several New York dailies and special advertising material was supplied to retailers with a view to having them hook up directly with the celebration, were the guests on Thursday evening, June 28, of President Irwin Kurtz and the executive committee of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., at an elaborate though informal dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania. There were about thirty present and the affair was one of the most successful in talking machine trade annals. Good fellowship reigned supreme and everybody had a thoroughly good time.

During the course of the evening Abram Davega, chairman of the Music Week committee of the talking machine industry, addressed the gathering and summarized the work of the committee and the results accruing therefrom. He was followed by Lloyd Spencer, treasurer of the committee, who made public a list of those who had contributed to the publicity fund, and gave an accounting of the expenditures. Otto Heinemann, president of the General Phonograph Corp., who had direct charge of the publicity campaign, was out of town and therefore could not be numbered among the guests.

President Kurtz, incidentally, announced that in view of the growing number of Okeh record dealers in the Metropolitan district, a special Okeh division of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., had been created for which a vice-president would be elected at a later date.

A generous amount of entertainment was furnished by representatives of the various music publishing houses and the talking machine men joined heartily in the singing of "Yes, We Have No Bananas" and the other classics of the day, thus showing their appreciation of the better class of music.

The affair was so successful that it was somewhat of a task to recall all the details thereof. It might be well to cite the fact that if Mr. Volstead or William Jennings Bryan had been present they would have been awfully sore and discouraged.

Owing to the absence of a satisfactory outdoor course, a number of the guests confined themselves to that form of golf known as "African" to the satisfaction of some of the participants and the distress of others.

the interest of Sonora product to Mexico, Cuba and South America. On his return to New York he found a letter from the French Consul General, informing him that the President of the French Republic had conferred upon him the cross of "Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur," in recognition of the services rendered by Mr. Richards to the French cause during the late war. Mr. Richards, accompanied by his wife, left on July 1 for a trip to Scandinavia, England, France and Italy.

MOVE EDISON DEPARTMENT

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., July 3.—The Edison department of Loveman, Joseph & Loeb, this city, has recently been moved from the fourth to the first floor of the building and, while they anticipate extending the department in the near future and taking more floor space, they have handsome display rooms and booths on the first floor of their mammoth building. Mr. Holstein, local manager, states that they will make still further improvements in the very near future.

POSTCARDS PROVE SALES BUILDER

Interest in records has been stimulated to a considerable degree by the use of postcards by the talking machine department of Bloomingdale's, large New York department store. The cards contain lists of the latest record releases and are headed by the following message: "Just telephone us. We'll send these special Victor records." The entire mailing list is circularized in this manner and the results have manifested themselves in many orders over the telephone.

WASHINGTON

Recent Shrine Convention Resulted in Increased Demand for Records—Louis & Co. Remodeling Quarters—Activities of Month

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—The recent Shrine convention here, with the resulting influx of visitors, was responsible for a greatly stimulated demand for records. In addition to the two Shrine marches—"Nobles of the Mystic Shrine," by Sousa, and "Saracen Guard," by White—the hit, "Yes, We Have No Bananas," was just beginning its big run, and both local and out-of-town sales were excellent. Ansell, Bishop & Turner, Victor dealers, 1221 F street, N. W., reported a big mail business, records being sent to nearly every State in the Union. The Van Wickle Piano Co., 1222 F street, also enjoyed a good record business, shipments being made to nearly forty of the forty-eight States.

At Cohen & Hughes, Victor distributors, it was impossible to supply enough of certain records to meet all demands during the height of the run, but Leslie Lore, manager of the Washington office, states that the demand is slackening off somewhat now and he has been able to catch up with orders. Portable models of phonographs, it was explained, are going very well, although Mr. Lore has observed more activity throughout the territory around Washington than in the city itself.

Console models still lead in sales in this city, those with the new divided top being especially popular. Cohen & Hughes report much interest on the part of dealers in the release of the new art machine to be put out by Victor Co. and it is predicted that these will be in much demand.

Louis & Co., Victor and Brunswick dealers, located at Seventh and G streets, N. W., are busy remodeling their building. Up to a short time ago the talking machine department occupied the ground floor, while the second and third floors were taken up with toys and novelties, but recently the entire toy and novelty stock was sold to one of the big department stores in the city and the whole building will be given over to talking machines and records. Extensive changes are contemplated which will make this establishment one of the biggest talking machine stores in Washington.

Diplomatic representatives of the Latin-American countries on their way to the Los Angeles exposition were entertained on their trip across the country by a Brunswick model 212 and a library of records which were placed in their observation car by the store of Lansburgh & Bro., 420-430 Seventh street, N. W.

The Mt. Pleasant Music Shop, 3310 Fourteenth street, N. W., has inaugurated a canvassing campaign which is stimulating sales during the hot-weather period. It is taking the store to the customer, so to speak.

Console models are not so much in demand as they were three or four months ago, according to R. H. Stuart, manager of the talking machine department at Gibson's, 917 G street, N. W. "Console sales are noticeably less at our store," he said. "During the Winter we sold many console models, but they are slowly giving way to the upright models now. The reason for this, as I see it, is that the average small house these days simply hasn't room enough for a large console and people are getting the upright models because they fit in better."

CHANDLER IN NEW BUILDING

SANTA ANA, CAL., July 3.—B. J. Chandler, engaged in the musical instrument business here, plans to move into his new building on its completion in about two weeks. The structure is two stories in height and will cost about $50,000.

BRUNSWICK DEALER EXPANDS

Hurley-Tobin Co., Trenton, Opens New Annex—Phonograph Department Has Increased Space

TRENTON, N. J., July 5.—The Hurley-Tobin Co., of this city, Brunswick dealer, held a formal opening recently of its new annex on Hanover street and during the week of the opening Craft's Orchestra, a local musical organization, gave a series of concerts. The new annex accommodates the phonograph department, which has been given added space and equipment. The Hurley-Tobin store comprises about 43,000 square feet of floor space, which makes the establishment one of the largest merchandising houses in Trenton. Numerous telegrams and floral pieces were received at the opening, including a congratulatory offering from the Brunswick Co. The Hurley-Tobin Co. now operates seven large retail establishments in Trenton, Camden, Atlantic City and Bridgeton, N. J.; Wilmington, Del.; Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in which talking machines are featured.

Every social organization is a good prospect for a talking machine and records.

TOLEDO

Energy of Dealers Resulting in Good Summer Business—Many Merchants Add New Lines—The News

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—Talking machine merchants are obtaining a good Summer volume of trade. It is being secured, however, through hard, consistent plugging. Moreover, dealers have added many lines of merchandise the past month, and this, with the fact that salaries to workers in local industries have been increased, augurs well for future business.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, has enjoyed a 20 per cent increase in business during the six months just passed over the same period last year, Chas. H. Womeldorff reports. It is said also that the Victor dealers are well pleased with the special record releases, for they bring customers to the store more frequently.

Warren L. Kellogg, of the traveling force, is vacationing at Chippewa Lake, Mich. A. S. Leybourn, office manager, and his family are now occupying the Leybourn cottage at Toledo Beach. C. H. Womeldorff recently made a business motor trip to Michigan points. Later he and his family will vacation at one of the northern Michigan resorts.

E. A. Ericsson, New York, president, and J. J. Ryan, vice-president of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., were recent visitors to the local warerooms.

At the Lion Store Music Rooms, where Victrolas, Brunswicks and Cheney's hold forth, trade is ahead of last year for the first six months, A. J. Pete reports. Record and portable buying by cottagers and young people seldom has been better. Fully 75 per cent of all records go to boys and girls and are of the dance type.

At the LaSalle & Koch Co. Music Shop trade for the half year just closed shows a large gain, Forrest O. Edwards, manager, states.

The Master, a popular-priced table top console phonograph, has been added to the Cheney and Victor lines and will be used to obtain sales volume. The Jewel record is another addition. Dance records are selling in the ratio of five to one to others.

At Grinnell Bros. portable Victrolas in combination with records have been responsible for a good Summer business to date. Larger instruments are also in fair demand. Miss Thelma Woodward has joined the record sales force and Miss Elois Fletcher is a new member of the sheet music staff.

W. A. Grubbs has been appointed manager of the talking machine department of the Cable Company. He formerly occupied a similar position with the house. The Brunswick line is now handled here in addition to the Victrola and Columbia. The record department has also been enlarged recently.

The Goosman Piano Co. reports sales above the corresponding six months of last year. President Fred Goosman states that outside sales work is producing a good share of trade today. In one week recently a number of sales of Columbia, Aeolian and Granby machines were sold almost entirely through outside work.

Frank Fleightner, Cherry street Columbia dealer, has upon his floors the new Columbia models. They are receiving an enthusiastic reception from customers, he says.

J. Pietrykowski, who conducts Columbia music shops on Junction avenue and on Lagrange street, both in the heart of the two local Polish sections, is doing a brisk business among these people.

Frazelle Piano Co., Sonora and Vocalion retailer, is enjoying a Summer patronage of pleasing volume. A booklet entitled, "The Sunny Saunterings of a Sonora," illustrated with scenes on shipboard, in Constantinople, in the movies and in distant lands, presents a concrete story of a trip with a portable which is proving an effective bit of direct advertising.

The Whitney-Blaine-Wildermuth Co., in spite of the extremely hot weather of the past ten days, is maintaining a fair volume of Summer sales, especially portables and records.

At the Kneisel Record Shop the Wolverine portable is meeting with the approval of a large number of vacationists, Miss Angeline Hankenhoff states.

At the J. W. Greene Co., one of the important elements which has been responsible for the fine showing this year is the team work of department workers. Before records or other merchandise is purchased all employees are asked to inspect the article and give an estimate of the number of items they can dispose of. This estimate is used as a buying schedule, as well as a check on the clerk. Moreover, the perpetual inventory card system recently installed is a direct aid to record sales. A bargain basement is being opened as a feature of the new store. New merchandise added includes the Carola and Spencerian portables.

Kenneth E. Frederick is spending his vacation enjoying a lake trip which will include Niagara Falls.

A. A. Fischer was bereaved through the loss of his son recently.

On July 1 E. A. Kopf, for several years manager of the talking machine department, assumed charge of the music roll section also. These added duties, with the completion of the enlarged departments, will make his post one of the most important in the house. Miss Charlotte Hapgood, formerly in the roll department, has joined the record force and Miss Sadie Opp is now a member of the roll department.

Carl Rule, of Grinnell Bros., is enjoying a two weeks' fishing trip at Thornapple Lake, Mich.

Wm. Gaston, formerly Victor traveler, now sales manager of Grinnell Bros.' retail stores; Geo. Deacon, of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., and H. E. Kane, of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., were recent business visitors.

Out-of-town dealers visiting this market lately included Wm. Hubble, Monroe, Mich.;

EMERSON RECORDS NOW FIFTY CENTS

Important Price Reduction Announced by Emerson Phonograph Co.—Quality Standard Will Be Maintained—To Be Marketed Exclusively Through Talking Machine Dealers

The Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the well-known Emerson record, which is now being merchandised by dealers throughout the country, recently announced a reduction in the list price of its records from 75 cents to 50 cents. This change will affect the company's complete catalog, comprising popular and standard selections.

In making this announcement to the trade, B. Abrams, president of the company, emphasized the fact that the Emerson record will be marketed exclusively by talking machine dealers and a few of the most prominent department stores. The company is making this move in order that its records may be presented to the trade as a standard quality product backed by a responsible manufacturing organization.

Mr. Abrams placed special stress on his company's plans for the future production of Emerson records, stating that the quality of the records will be maintained and the reduction in price will in no way affect the company's manufacturing standards. Among the many retail establishments which are now carrying Emerson 50-cent records are the following: Landay Bros., with its many stores; Saul Birns, Inc., nine stores; Gimbel Bros., Frederick Loeser & Co., Abraham & Straus and others.

If All Music Customers Were Blind

You could sell musical merchandise in a junk shop successfully—the sense of sight would not influence your customer.

But—the eye does exert an important influence—stop and ponder over your average sale of a phonograph.

A beautiful phonograph in restful home surroundings—and the entertainment of the world's best music which it affords—is your appeal.

Can you get that appeal across in a store which makes no pretense of the “restfulness and comfort” which you picture?

Does the significance of “attractiveness” in the product suggest the desirability of similar attractiveness in your store where that product is displayed?

There is only one way to make your store effective—use “Unico Service” which successful, cheerful and attractive stores have used for a decade.

Specialized facilities, patented sectional construction and expert service combine to make the “Unico System” the only successful and economical method for equipping your store. Over 3,600 users in the United States and in 13 foreign countries prove to you its exceptional merit. Can you really afford to ignore your future sales in this season of renewed prosperity?

Remember—the really successful dealer sells quality products in a quality atmosphere. To profit by that thought—and sell more merchandise, write to Lyons, who since January 1 has been functioning as Western sales manager for the Unit Construction Co., has been promoted to assistant general sales manager with headquarters at the home office in Philadelphia. Mr. Lyons will in the future keep in close contact with the company's sales activities in all territories.

W. D. Montgomery, formerly Western sales manager for the company, has again been placed in charge of the Middle Western territory, with headquarters at the Chicago office.

Owing to the increasing demand for Unico equipment in far-off South Africa, a sales agency has been established with headquarters in Johannesburg under the direction of Philip M. Cohen, who has had a wide experience in the musical merchandising trade of that territory. Negotiations are now pending for the establishment of a Canadian branch which, including the very active London, England, agency, will give the company three foreign branches.

The Unico sales organization personnel as now constituted is as follows: President and general sales manager, Rayburn Clark Smith; assistant general sales manager, Geo. A. Lyons; sales service manager, F. L. Rice; credit manager, Alfred Spring; sales engineer, C. W. Reid; Eastern division, Charles Clement, all of Philadelphia; New York and New England district, J. P. Crane, New York City; Western district, W. D. Montgomery, Chicago; Southeastern district, M. E. Lyle, Atlanta; Southern district, Charles Wenar, New Orleans; Southwestern district, L. Thomas-Hays, Dallas; Rocky Mountain district, Robert C. Cornett, Denver; Northwest district, J. E. Clark, Salt Lake City; Pacific Coast district, Everett Worthington, San Francisco; Great Britain, H. A. Moore, London, England; South Africa, Philip M. Cohen, Johannesburg.

VINCENT LOPEZ AT THE PALACE

Famous Orchestra and Exclusive Okeh Artist Appearing at Finest Vaudeville House—Holds Record for Lengthy Engagement

Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra, exclusive Okeh artists, began an indefinite engagement at the Palace Theatre, New York, on July 2. The orchestra has been given an ovation at every performance since that date, and undoubtedly the act will be retained for many weeks. At the present time the Vincent Lopez orchestra holds the record for playing consecutive weeks at the Palace Theatre, having appeared at this famous amusement place for nine solid weeks last year. The Palace Theatre is recognized throughout the theatrical world as the finest vaudeville theatre in America, and vaudeville artists consider their ambitions realized when they are booked for an engagement at this theatre.

SALESMEN MUST THINK QUICKLY

The talking machine and record salesman who works on the outside comes in contact with many types of people and is constantly confronted with problems of the most difficult nature which he must overcome instantly in order to make a sale. Quick thinking is necessary and not only this, but the salesman is faced with the necessity of thinking in the right direction, i. e., the problem must be solved correctly or the sale is lost, for the time being at least.

THE VALUE OF EDISON'S GENIUS

New York Times Carries Interesting Article on Value of Capitalized Inventions

The value of Edison's genius is placed at fifteen billions of dollars in an interesting article in the New York Times recently, showing the influence of Edison's inventions on industrial and civic development. Excerpts from the article follow:

"There is one human brain that has a hard cash market value to-day in the business and industrial world of $15,000,000,000. Billions is correct, not millions. That is within 20 per cent of equaling the value of all the gold dug from the mines of the earth since America was discovered.

"The brain is that of Thomas Alva Edison, who many a time has said to his cronies, 'Well, if worse comes to worst, I've got a good trade. I can always make $75 a month as an expert telegraph operator and I can live comfortably on that.'

"The $15,000,000,000 represents the present investment in America alone in industries which are entirely based on the inventions of Edison or which have been materially stimulated by his inventions. Several of the country's largest industries are included.

"Here is the list, and it touches only the high spots. It shows either the capital or the total investment, according to the latest dependable estimates:

Moving pictures	$1,250,000,000
Telephones	1,000,000,000
Electric railways	6,500,000,000
Electric lighting and power	5,000,000,000
Electrical supplies	857,000,000
Fixtures	37,000,000
Phonographs	105,000,000
Electric car shops	109,000,000
Dynamos and motors	100,000,000
Edison storage batteries.....	5,000,000
Cement	271,000,000

INDIANAPOLIS

Satisfactory Business Enjoyed Despite Oppressive Heat—Frederick C. Pullen Promoted—Edison Shop Discontinued—The News

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 6.—With six months of the year now a matter of record, local dealers are very much elated with the results of that period. Sales have been made in large volume and for the greater part have been of the higher-priced instruments. June has been a very favorable month, in most cases showing a substantial increase over the same month of last year. The city and State are passing through a period of very oppressive heat, which has caused a slight depression in buying, but dealers do not look forward to any very adverse effects from this condition, inasmuch as the first three weeks were unusually good in point of sales.

Figures That Show Good Business

A good illustration of the showing made by dealers in the first six months of the year is the sales record of L. S. Ayres & Co. This store, according to R. R. Follis, manager of the talking machine department, passed the figure for the first six months of last year in April, and the sales of the six-months period of this year will show an increase over the corresponding period of last year of greater than 40 per cent. The talking machine and record sales of the Pettis Dry Goods Co., another large department store, will show a very substantial increase over the six months of last year, according to Ira Williams, manager of this department. The Taylor Carpet Co., Victor dealer, has enjoyed a good business during the period and on Saturday, June 23, made a sales record that has not been equaled on any one day of this year. Other Victor dealers report good sales.

Sonora Demand Exceeds Supply of Goods

Local Sonora sales are being held down by the continued inability of the local dealers, Charles Mayer & Co., to secure delivery of machines from the factory. B. Friedman, of the Sonora department of this store, reports that deliveries are being made more promptly, however. Most of the Sonora sales being made at this time are of the lower-priced machines. The Mayer store stocked approximately the same amount of portables as were sold by them last season, but this stock has been entirely exhausted and they are unable to supply the demand for this class of merchandise. Edward and Oscar Mayer, of the Kiefer-Stewart Co., attended the Sonora Sales Convention at Saginaw, Mich., recently. The Kiefer-Stewart Co. are Indiana distributors of Sonora machines and Okeh records and report a good State distribution of these lines.

Edison Shop Closes Out

The Edison Shop, a local Edison store, is being closed out. This will leave only one Edison retail dealer in Indianapolis—the Carlin Music Co. The closing of the Edison Shop signals the withdrawal of Walter Kipp from the phonograph business in Indianapolis and Indiana. Mr. Kipp withdrew from the wholesale business at the time of the sale of the Kipp Phonograph Co. to the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, and it has been known for some time that he intended to dispose of his retail interest.

Edison sales, as reported by the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, wholesale distributor, have held up very well during the hot Summer months. The unusually large sale of records continues. The newest Edison dealers are Hardin Drug Co., Flat Rock; Frank M. Baker, Shoals, and Roy Wood, Farmersburg.

Frederick C. Pullen Appointed Manager

Frederick C. Pullen, widely known throughout the Edison organization and the phonograph trade in general, has been appointed manager of the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana, taking the place of J. M. VanderVoort, who for the present is being transferred to the Edison factory. Mr. Pullen's experience with the phonograph industry extends over a period of fifteen years, the last three of which have been spent as production manager of the Edison record manufacturing plant. Mr. VanderVoort leaves a wide circle of friends in Indiana and the regret on his leaving this territory is only equaled by the welcome extended to Mr. Pullen.

Making a Canvass of Buying Public

The Carlin-Quick Music Co., new Edison store, Kokomo, Ind., has been doing an unusually large volume of business since the opening of the store a few weeks ago. Both Mr. Carlin and Mr. Quick, in their long connection with phonograph sales, have learned the value of intensive canvassing and are personally calling on every family in Kokomo. A card record showing the kind of phonograph, if any, and the kind of piano or any other musical instrument, owned by the family, is being prepared. This record will not only furnish valuable information to the present phonograph business, but in case a line of pianos or other musical goods is added at a later time the Carlin-Quick Co. will have in its files a complete record of practically every musical instrument in Kokomo and a very complete record of prospective buyers.

Baldwin Co. Doing Well With Brunswick

Brunswick is doing a normal business, according to reports of the Brunswick Shop and the Baldwin Piano Co., local Brunswick dealer. Record sales are unusually good. The record "Yes, We Have No Bananas" has been featured by the Brunswick Shop and is perhaps the best seller at the time of this report.

WILL MARKET MADERITE COVERS

Maderite Sales Corp. Will Distribute Products of A. Bruns & Sons—Sales Manager Karpen Planning Intensive Campaign

The Maderite Sales Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., was recently incorporated in New York State with a capital of $50,000, the incorporators being Victor Bruns, Alfred Bruns and H. N. Karpen. This new corporation is a subsidiary of A. Bruns & Sons, Brooklyn, N. Y., well-known manufacturers of canvas products, including "Maderite" phonograph moving covers. The Maderite Sales Corp. will distribute all of this company's products and an intensive sales campaign is now in process of completion.

H. N. Karpen, sales and merchandise manager for A. Bruns & Sons, who is well known in mercantile circles, stated recently in a chat with The World: "Talking machine dealers are beginning to realize and appreciate that considerable time and money are saved by the proper use of the phonograph moving covers. It is a simple matter to place a cover on a machine and remove it when necessary, but this simple procedure saves money and keeps the stock in proper condition. The use of covers in the warehouse also prevents the possibility of cabinet scratches and enables the dealer to deliver his instruments with the knowledge that they are perfect in every detail."

PLAN EMERSON DEALER CO-OPERATION

Arthur H. Cushman, sales manager of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., returned to the New York offices of the company early this month following a ten-day visit to the Emerson Co. at Philadelphia, where co-operative plans for greatly increasing the sale of Emerson records in that territory were arranged. The Fall campaign exploiting the Emerson product will be quite elaborate and includes plans for assisting dealers materially in increasing the sale of records.

ATTENDED CONVENTION OF THE ELKS

The convention was a great success, and provided Mr. Frangipane with a respite from his duties in taking care of the big and ever growing business being done by the Mutual Co.

MAKES SURVEY OF RURAL FIELD

Investigation by Garver Bros., Canton, O., Discloses Drop in Interest in Radio—Special "Talker" Concerts Prove Successful

CANTON, O., July 3.—That radio is fast losing its popularity with the farmer is indicated from an interview this week with Harold Fashbaugh, manager of the music department of the Garver Bros. Co. store at Strasburg, O., known as the world's largest country store. In 1920 this store did a $1,000,000 business.

"Waning of radio interest in the rural districts is being reflected in talking machine sales," said Mr. Fashbaugh. "Radio is becoming less popular with the farmer and for the past three months there has been a noticeable increase in the number of talking machine inquiries, in some weeks there being double the number received as in the same length of time four months ago."

The head of the Garver Bros. Co. music department said he had just completed an extensive survey of the rural communities in this section of Ohio. "I have learned," he said, "that three-fourths of the farmers who have had radio sets installed are tiring of them and are returning to talking machines."

More attention is to be given talking machine merchandising in the future, it was said at the Garver store this week. A specially equipped, light truck for the delivery of machines has been purchased and from now on larger appropriations are to be forthcoming for advertising and special exploitation.

One profitable exploitation stunt in which the store has been successful is in holding special talking machine concerts at the more prominent granges throughout this section. Mr. Fashbaugh, after receiving permission to hold a demonstration in the grange hall, gets the mailing list from the master of the grange and mails each of the members a postcard telling of the proposed concert. This has been twice attempted and each time there was a large attendance. At intervals Mr. Fashbaugh stops and explains the many features of the machine to the interested listeners.

The survey previously referred to has disclosed that the average farmer will spend $100 for a talking machine and no more unless he is a man of means. The upright is in most demand, although of recent weeks the console model has been gaining attention.

SON OF W. A. WILLSON DIES

BOOK ON ACCOUNTING NOW READY

"Accounting for Retail Music Stores" Now Available to Trade Members

The Trade Service Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce has just issued a bulletin to the trade calling attention to the book on "Accounting for Retail Music Stores," which was presented so prominently at the Chicago convention and made a distinct impression on retailers.

The book, which is now ready for delivery, was compiled by Prof. Archie M. Peisch, of the Amos Tuck School of Dartmouth College, as a result of investigations of over 100 retail music establishments made by M. W. Newcomb and E. D. Smith, of the Dartmouth College student body. The various accounting methods and forms included in the book have been successfully installed by Prof. Peisch in a number of music stores. The book is offered to association members for $2 a copy and to non-members for $3.

NEW ORLEANS

Intensive Sales Campaigns Augment Excellent Business—Noon-day Concerts Attract Business Women—Other News of the Trade

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 7.—Talking machine dealers and distributors of this city are very well pleased with the volume of business being received. In many cases it has far exceeded anticipations and continues to progress very favorably. Not content to lie back in jubilation over the encouraging position it has ascended to music men are prosecuting sales vigorously, intent upon establishing greater records. Extensive advertising and the introduction to the market of the latest factory models of machines, spot releases of "jazz" numbers that enjoy unbelievable popularity among the disc selections and similar processes are being pursued with the idea of creating a volume of trade that has heretofore been unheard of during this period of the year.

"The music trades' convention held in Chicago last month brought out the largest delegation of talking machine men from all parts of the country that I have ever witnessed at any similar conclave which I attended," declared J. D. Moore, manager of the music department of the Maison Blanche Department Store. "Not only were they on hand for the sessions, but all seemed eager to participate in the various discussions, leading toward the building up of the trade and landing it in its rightful place in the field.

"The annual exposition, in my opinion, was the most successful one ever attempted by the trade and it is bound to produce results. A great deal was accomplished and memory of it is certain to linger in the minds of those who were present for a long time to come."

Referring to the present state of affairs in the talking machine trade in New Orleans, directly bearing on his house, Mr. Moore said that they are doing their share of business.

The Maison Blanche Co., through Mr. Moore, is furnishing daily lunch-hour concerts on the Victrola to young women who eat their noon-day meal at the Young Women's Christian Association. A machine is loaned the luncheon room and a young saleslady is assigned daily to the task of operating it. She attends to the playing of the music. Cards are circulated and the diners write down their desires for particular records and artists, giving also their daily lunch hour. When they return, either the following day or as soon as it is possible to get around to them, the records wanted are played. This idea has proved extremely popular and a number of purchases have been made from the house by means of it. The prevailing wish, however, seems to be for the classical, rather than the popular numbers. The music period lasts for about an hour and a half each day.

The Junius Hart Piano House, Ltd., distributor of Okeh records for this territory, is enjoying a brisk demand from dealers for these records. The Okeh line is making steady strides in popular favor, as evidenced by the growth in size and quantity of orders. Although this particular season of the year is looked upon as a slack period Okeh record dealers are quite evidently doing more than their share of business.

J. A. Billiet, manager of the retail department of the Diamond Music Co., exclusive Edison distributor and dealer, stated that he regarded the past month as having been normally productive and quite satisfactory. The William and Mary console is achieving well merited demand. The house recently disposed of a Sheraton model machine that is to be used by the instructor in typewriting at the McDonogh Girls' High School next session to simplify and assist the students in the study of the course. On the wholesale side of the firm Vice-president Schreiber finds the situation in the territory very promising indeed. Two new agencies have recently been added to the list. Messrs. Griggsby and Waggoner have been appointed in Hattiesburg, Miss., and L. C. Keoun in the town of Springhill, La. Manager Twigg, who lately returned from a visit through Louisiana and Mississippi, started out a few days later on another business trip.

"Our talking machine department is enjoying an excellent business and we could not possibly ask more," said Harry B. Loeb, president of the Harry B. Loeb Piano Co., Brunswick dealer. Portables seem to continue in popularity, according to Mr. Loeb. "Swingin' Down the Lane" has proved to be one of the most popular numbers handled by the house.

John A. Hofheintz, wholesale manager of Philip Werlein, Ltd., announced the approaching release of six picked records of Victor manufacture sung by colored artists. These numbers are expected to be very popular. In "Taint Nobody's Business If I Do" Clarence Williams, New Orleans negro, plays the accompaniment and, as he has obtained considerable attention in the North, due to the clamoring desire for records of his make, it is thought that the numbers will be doubly popular.

Sales of the Aeolian flat-topped Vocalions are greatly hampered by the prevailing inability to obtain the necessary stock, according to Manager Howard Hill, of the music department of the D. H. Holmes Co. The instruments have established themselves in the hearts of the local lovers of good music by their magnificence of appearance and the demand for them has been great. It is expected that, when they are obtainable in large consignments, little difficulty in disposing of them will be experienced.

Victor dealers in town are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the new Models 00, 05 and 410, which are due very shortly. Catalog pictures of them have created a deep impression. Some tentative sales have been made on the strength of photographs. They will be handled by Philip Werlein, Ltd., L. Grunewald Co., Dugan Piano Co. and several others.

Installation of several additional hearing rooms for record selling was a necessary factor to accommodate the ever-growing trade of the Collings Piano Co. The business in Gennett records alone has been built up until its annual figure is close to $10,000.

Splendid success in June sales of Victrolas and records was made by the Dugan Piano Co., according to Manager Crigler. He is well pleased with the month's returns and predicts that a greater business era is at hand.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the twenty-eighth of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

RELATING RECORDS TO THEIR ORIGINS

It might be supposed that American talking machine manufacturers and merchants would have little or nothing to learn from their fellows in foreign lands, but the assumption is not necessarily true. Things of which one is most certain are often the very things which it is fatal to accept in an uncritical spirit. Among these is the belief that everything worth knowing about the talking machine business has already been discovered in the U. S. A.

During the recent conventions of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce one man connected with the talking machine industry pointed out a weakness in the accepted American method of cataloging and classifying records. He pointed out, if I understood him rightly, that a grave error is perpetrated in the practice of listing numbers extracted from continuous operatic or instrumental works, under titles which do not indicate rightly their origin. In this I quite agree, so much so, in fact, that I think it worth while to make clear to the readers of The Talking Machine World how much harm is thus done to the sale of high-class records.

Backbone of the Business

High-class records, it is universally admitted, are the backbone of the talking machine business. They sell steadily and without any need for elaborate propaganda. They are readily kept in the public mind by mere inclusion in catalogs, plus occasional special reminder in monthly bulletins. They are perfect bringers of satisfaction and most of them will live forever or at least until others, of the same music and much better done, come to take their place. This is specially true of the instrumental records and of those which are extracted from the better-known operas and bear the names of very well-known artists, such as Caruso and Galli-Curci. All these are steady profit makers and are justly regarded as the very foundations of the prosperity of the talking machine business.

Now, the complaint which I have to make is that, following a practice of the older days when it was not so necessary to think of fine details, the classifying and listing of these high-class numbers are done in a manner which makes it almost impossible, for the unlearned salesclerk and customer alike, to know the real significance of a vocal or instrumental piece. For instance, most high-class music is primarily known by traditional titles, which in the case of a vocal aria is nearly always the Italian, French or German of its first few words, or, in case of instrumental numbers, the technical term (such as Andante) which is placed by the composer at the head of each movement of a work to indicate its general tempo or phrasing. This practice is, however, defective because it tends to give the impression that each piece stands by itself, without organic relation to any other. And this is a mistake because it hinders the sale of other organically related numbers and at the same time renders more difficult the task of interesting the buying public in high-class music.

Wrong Emphasis Placed

When I say that the practice of thus artificially individualizing pieces which owe their origin and sole real interest to their position in some opera or instrumental composition works against general public interest in good music, I mean simply that when a number is related in the owner's thought to nothing else in music it tends to be taken merely as an example of some artist's singing or playing, and not as a specimen of music. This means, again, that the influence which might be exerted by each such record in familiarizing its owner with the name and story of some opera, some symphony or some other work fails to appear, and the piece remains unrelated and useless, save as an exhibition of some artist's performance. It is not thus that music is made to be understood of the people nor thus that the talking machine becomes an apostle of good music, leading to an ever-growing demand for better and more numerous specimens of the best in musical art.

Operas Complete

I should like to see a reform in this matter. I should especially like to see an attempt made to interest buyers of records in complete operas. To this end, of course, a good deal of filling-in would be necessary, but already there are some operas complete (Pagliacci, for instance) and in many other favorites the numbers already existing occupy all the strategic places in the work, requiring only some filling of gaps. But, unhappily, the buyers do not know that even now they can have most of some and all of one or two. Nor, for instance, is there any way of telling them, save by referring them to a dry catalog, that the tenor solo, "Celeste Aida," which Caruso sang so finely, belongs in the same opera with the fine Homer-Caruso duet ("Aida a me togliaesti"). What is the relation between the two? In fact, how many people buy any "Aida" record at all save the "Celeste Aida?"

Now, all operatic records are, of course, cataloged under the name of the opera to which they belong, but unfortunately even such a splendid publication as the Victor Book of the Opera does not suffice alone for the gigantic task of educating the ignorant public into asking for all the interesting records which exist of every interesting opera. There is the problem. When this is solved we shall have the record business on a basis so healthy that nothing will be strong enough to tilt it from its foundation.

No Ready Panacea

I have no patent remedy, but I think that a great deal can be done if we begin by acquainting the great public which uses talking machine records with the operas and the great instrumental works as entities to which individual records belong, and of which they should always be considered parts. In the countries overseas this is done to a greater extent by far than occurs here and many more complete operas are in existence. I am fortunate in possessing many splendid records from abroad, many of them made at the European branches of American houses, and can testify how much more convenient and practical is their practice of relating pieces, vocal or instrumental, to their sources, instead of listing them in a way which leads the uninformed to remain in ignorance of their origin. It is better to deal with an opera or a symphony as a whole, better for everybody. It is better to talk about a record as an excerpt from such and such an opera, and not merely as somebody's singing or playing of something-ending-in-io. In the first case, it is possible to say "have you heard also so and so and so from the same opera?" Which is salesmanship.

As I said, I do not possess any simple way of putting over this reform, but I am quite convinced that the talking machine business is in a shape to-day where it can take itself seriously enough to consider an improvement of the kind without laughing at it. Of course, some one will say, "There are only one or two numbers in even the best-known opera which any one ever buys"; to which the answer is, "Naturally; how could it be otherwise when they have never been taught to know about the others?"

We ought to be ready by now to take a leaf out of the book of our foreign fellows and begin to treat our grand collections of fine music intelligently. By so doing we shall take a long step toward that idea of the future which sees every normal person owning a good phonograph, at least a library of well-selected records of the highest kind of music and lasting prosperity in the trade.

CLEVELAND

Jay Iglauer Demonstrates How to Sell at June Meeting of Music Merchants—Jobber-Dealer Co-operation—New Stores—The News

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—Value of the trade association to its members, and proof that attendance at meetings only will get the first-hand information that is helpful to the individual dealer, was demonstrated at the June meeting of the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio, when Jay Iglauer, merchandise manager, the Halle Bros. Co., delivered a most instructive address. Mr. Iglauer was the guest of J. L. Du Breuil, sales manager, the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co.

In brief, Mr. Iglauer illustrated, by explaining a theoretical sale of a phonograph, that all that prophesies is not profit. First of all he showed that wise merchants no longer recognize gross profit. They call it gross margin. The only profit is that which is left for the merchant to put into his own pocket. Mr. Iglauer used an instrument that would retail at $200 to illustrate his talk. This machine would cost the dealer $120, giving him, he might suppose, $80 profit. Yet the cost of the machine is only part of the cost of doing business with it, Mr. Iglauer showed. Other costs include those of selling, rent, delivery, advertising, service for one year, storage, insurance, taxes and the general overhead charges. Estimated conservatively, Mr. Iglauer asserted that these costs would total 31 per cent of the cost of the article, or $62, which made the machine cost the dealer $182, not $120, and thus leaving him a profit of $18, not $80, or approximately 9 per cent. The reason for this false viewpoint, in the opinion of Mr. Iglauer, is that dealers are prone to consider the cost of the goods, rather than what they can get for them, yet it is only what the goods will sell for that can count with the dealer seeking a profit.

Since the trade-in is a factor with which the talking machine dealer must now reckon seriously Mr. Iglauer supplemented his conclusions in a new machine sale with those pertaining to the used phonograph. He took another theoretical machine, that sold several years ago for $150, and for which the dealer had allowed $75. Mr. Iglauer offered the opinion that, with competition of both new and old machines, it is hardly likely that the dealer could get better than $65 for the old instrument. Then there are the items that must be included in the cost of selling this machine, such as rent, insurance, taxes, service, etc. The items included in addition to these were not included in this illustration, it being supposed that the sale of the new machines might cover them. Using the same percentages, it was found that the added costs to dispose of the old phonograph would amount to $26.75, and this figure, added to the original allowance for the machine, would not give the dealer a profit. More, he would have actually lost $8.75, since he would have absorbed the profit on the new machine.

The ideas given the members who attended the meetings were considered so good that Mr. Iglauer will be invited to a meeting of all music merchants when meetings resume next September to give this same talk again.

Helping to Finance Sonora Dealers

Taking advantage of the lull in retail business, due to the excessively hot weather during June, both jobbers and retailers have been laying plans for Fall and Winter business. One of the particularly constructive efforts is that being inaugurated by the Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. This plan comprises arrangement with a large financial house in New York City to finance the small dealer's time payment deals. Briefly, the plan calls for the advancement of the money involved in the sale of talking machines sold on a time basis, the dealer to make his payments back to the finance company twice a month. Since the dealer virtually retains his capital, for which service he pays a nominal charge, he is placed in a position whereby he may expand his business and anticipate his requirements. This move comes at a time, in the opinion of J. T. Pringle, general manager of the local Sonora offices, when dealers need finance in order to be able to obtain their apportionment of the Sonora stock for the balance of the year, since there will be limited supply of machines owing to the overselling of this year's production.

Inaugurate Drive on Edison Records

Another good method for going after new business at this time has been adopted by the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor and retailer. The new Edison records are being used as the basis for this campaign. A letter explaining the new records, a list of the better and later pieces and a return post-card, on which the prospect indicates the six records most desired, were sent out a few weeks ago. The response was beyond expectations, according to E. S. Hershberger, secretary, since approximately one-third of the records sent out remained sold. The records were shipped in a special carton, in which those not desired might be returned. The results were satisfactory enough to warrant using another and stronger letter and an augmented list of recordings, and indications were that the returns would be doubled. The big thought behind the move, in the opinion of Mr. Hershberger, is to get the people to hear the new music, rather than to get them to buy immediately, but the actual sales of records by this plan are more than satisfactory.

Digging Up Brunswick Prospects

Several interesting features have been developed by the local Brunswick organization, under the management of Leslie I. King. Foremost among these may be considered the plan that helps the small-town dealer to get new people into his store. Figures were compiled by Mr. King that showed that it costs the average dealer 90 cents a month to bring each new person into his store through ordinary methods. By the new plan this cost is reduced vastly. The method consists, primarily, in getting local civic organization members interested in voting on certain types of machines, followed by a drawing of the votes, with the winning voter being awarded a Brunswick machine. How valuable and economical this is to the dealer was proved in at least one instance, points out Mr. King, where a retailer in a central Ohio town actually brought 4,700 new people into his store during the period the voting was conducted and 1,000 of these proved to be live prospects.

Concerts Boost Record Sales

A tour of the Isham Jones Orchestra, for the benefit of dealers, was planned for the last week of June by the Brunswick organization here. The orchestra played for dances or concerts at Punxsutawney, Pa.; at Lake Road Inn, near Cleveland, in Cleveland proper and at Youngstown for the Yahrling & Rayner Co., and at Akron for the George S. Dales Co. Both dealers and public attended the events at which the orchestra played. The immediate results, according to returns from dealers to Brunswick headquarters here, are that records by this orchestra far outsell records by any other orchestra.

Attended the Smith Opening

Local Brunswick executives assisted in the opening of the E. E. Smith new store at Clearfield, Pa. The event marks nine years in the talking machine business for Mr. Smith, who started less than a decade ago in a tiny store. To-day he has a two-story brick building on one of the principal corners of Clearfield. More than 8,000 persons attended the opening.

Playing of Bands Creates Demand

From the talking machine trade viewpoint some of the best results for music were obtained by the presence here of the fifty or more bands with the Grotto Convention during the early part of June. These bands played constantly throughout the week in hotels, office buildings and before music establishments. First shipment of "Yes! We Have No Bananas" records were received here about the time the bands were doing their part, according to T. S. Buel, secretary-treasurer, the Record Sales Co., and within a day or two the consignment, of Okeh product, at any rate, was exhausted. Other pieces the bands played went almost as fast.

An Edison Phonograph Agency Is Valuable for Many Reasons:

It adds prestige to any business; it brings customers into the store frequently (new records are issued every week); it makes your store the musical centre of the community (real "hits" are available on the Edison first): Quick turnover, steady profits and the satisfaction of selling the only phonograph that Re-Creates music so perfectly that it cannot be distinguished from the actual performance of the artist.

Drive on Sonora Portables

The Sonora Phonograph Ohio Co. has started a campaign of joint advertising for local dealers, using the portable machine as the chief attraction at this time. The move is simultaneous with the demand for small instruments that campers and others may take with them outdoors. The ads list all Sonora dealers.

C. E. Kraner in New Post

Carl E. Kraner, recently appointed manager of the southern Ohio territory for Sonora, has taken over his district and has been covering, with J. L. Du Breuil, sales manager, Ohio and Kentucky territory prospective clients. While in Cincinnati they arranged for the Sonora exhibit, which will be part of the Music Merchants of Ohio Convention musical exposition.

Annual Columbia Picnic

About fifty members of the Columbia branch in Cleveland and those connected with the Detroit and Buffalo offices, which are part of the local branch, attended the annual picnic at Cedar Point. Most of the members went by boat and wore Grafonola caps, which added that always necessary touch of publicity. Manager S. S. Larmon and H. C. Schultz, of Detroit, managed the affair.

C. D. McKinnon in Charge Here

C. D. McKinnon, of the Aeolian Co., New York, has been spending the past few weeks at the local offices of the C. L. Marshall Co., Vocalion record distributor. Mr. McKinnon is in charge of this company's business during Mr. Marshall's vacation, which the latter is spending at his Summer place in northern Michigan.

Invents Dancing Doll for "Talker"

A new dancing doll device, which shimmies, fox-trots and waltzes, according to its inventor, soon will be available to talking machine dealers. The device is synchronized with the music of the talking machine records and appears to dance on the record itself. The inventor, Charles R. Barber, of Cleveland, is about to patent it. Officials of the Eclipse Musical Co., Victor wholesaler, may look into its merits, according to P. J. Towell, vice-president.

Many Stores Remodeling

The L. Meier & Sons Co.'s main location on the West Side is being redecorated and an enlarged shipping department added.

The Wolfe Music Co. has officially opened its new talking machine department on the second floor of its Prospect avenue store. Every type of machine is displayed. Demonstration rooms are maintained on the first floor. In about a month a branch store for the Wolfe Music Co. will be opened in the East End. Both the Wolfe and the Meier establishments are Victor dealers.

WHY CLERKS ARE DISCHARGED

A survey among retail stores in New York covering a twelve-month period to determine what percentage of clerks were discharged and the reasons, according to the Milwaukee Retail Journal, showed that:

- Thirty per cent lacked industry.
- Twenty per cent were unable to follow instructions.
- Twelve per cent lacked courtesy and tact.
- Eight per cent lacked sticking power; they could not hold the job.
- Seven per cent lacked confidence.
- Seven per cent would not or could not learn their merchandise.
- Seven per cent could not cope with the customers' objections.
- Four per cent went stale and lost interest in their work.
- Four per cent were discharged for sundry reasons.

COLUMBUS

Weddings and Commencements Help Sales—Effective Windows and Constructive Sales Ideas Evident

COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—Features of interest for dealers during the past few weeks were college and school commencements and June weddings. These were made the subjects of considerable advertising, as well as window displays, with good business results. One firm followed up the many weddings that have taken place by sending circular letters to the newlyweds, which were followed up a little later by a personal call from a representative of the house. In this manner a number of machines were sold.

The Spence Music Store, Victor dealer, believes in having motion in the window displays and in telling the public something about the wares it is selling. A card, which explains either the type of the machines or the characteristics of composition recorded on the disc, is attached to every machine and record on display.

In the front part of the window a toy dancing figure can always be seen hopping around to the tunes of popular jazz hits. The music is made audible through the use of a magnavox.

Harry Patton, manager of the Elite Music Store, Victrola specialists, 211 South High street, recently featured foreign records in a very attractive window display. A large card, carrying the message: "The music of the world is yours through the Victrola," was placed in the front part of the window. A large map of Europe constituted the background. Ribbon bands leading from familiar points on the map through a console Victrola to the records of many countries displayed on the floor space visualized how it is possible to possess the music of the world. Beside each record a foreign catalog was placed.

"Yes! We Have No Bananas," a fox-trot recorded by the Great White Way Orchestra, Victor artists, is unusually popular with dance enthusiasts of this city. The F. & R. Lazarus Co. recently featured this number in a window display and in a newspaper advertisement.

There were all kinds of fruit shown in the window of the store, but, in place of bananas, numerous records which contained the above-mentioned fox-trot were scattered among the tropical fruit. So successful were the window display and the advertisement in bringing patrons to the Victrola department that as many as eighty-seven recordings of this number were sold during a single afternoon.

The Georgian model Brunswick machine provided by the Robins Piano Co. had a prominent place in the display of electrical equipment at the $40,000 model home in Grandview, a suburb of Columbus.

E. M. Levy, manager of the Victor department of the Otto B. Heaton Co., accompanied by his wife and daughter, is spending his vacation at Atlantic City, N. J. Before returning to Columbus Mr. Levy will stop for a few days at the Victor Co. plant. In his absence Miss Ruth Cochran is in charge of the Victor department.

Miss Hazel Woolley, of the C. C. Baker Music Store, has arranged an unusual program of music compositions to be broadcasted by radio during the late Summer and early Fall. The program consists of compositions produced in the different periods of time, beginning with the middle English period down to to-day.

Dave Levy has been added to the sales force of the Complete Music Store, according to Sol Goldsmith, president. Mr. Levy will serve in the Brunswick department of this firm.

George Hooke, Brunswick representative of the Cincinnati office, was a local visitor recently.

The ready reference label system has just been installed at the Elite Music Store, Victrola dealer in this city, by Miss Celia Kellhofer. Miss Grace Barr, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., will give a series of lectures to the music appreciation classes that are to be conducted at Ohio University in Athens from July 30 to August 17. The Victrola and Victor records will be used.

W. F. Davisson, vice-president and secretary of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Victor distributor, has been visiting the Victor plant.

COLUMBIAN GOINGS AND COMINGS

G. W. Hopkins on Visit to Canada—B. W. Jennings Back From West—Joseph LaCalle in Cuba—Recent Visitors at New York Office

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned a few days ago from a trip to Toronto, where he conferred with E. A. McMurtry, Canadian branch manager. Mr. Hopkins found conditions in Canada very satisfactory and the outlook for the future most promising.

B. W. Jennings, manager of the Columbia branch service division, returned to his desk last week from a visit to Chicago and Cincinnati. In Chicago Mr. Jennings spent several days with John McKenna, branch manager, whose territory also comprises Cincinnati and the adjoining territory.

Joseph LaCalle, musical director of the Columbia export department, sailed on Saturday, June 23, for a three weeks' stay in Cuba, during which time he will take care of a number of important matters concerning the Columbia export catalog.

Among the recent visitors to the executive offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co. was D. H. Delzell, of the Columbia Stores Co., Salt Lake City, Denver and Spokane, who commented optimistically upon the business situation in these three important territories. W. S. Parks, president of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., Baltimore, Md., accompanied by Messrs. Swartz and Anderson of his organization, were also recent visitors to the Columbia offices.

GROWING DEMAND FOR PORTABLES IN BROOKLYN

Small Instruments Lead in Popularity—Popular and Dance Records in Vogue—Window Displays and Publicity Bringing Business—Plan Sonora Dealers' Convention—Loeser's Selling Records by Phone—The News

The brightest feature of the talking machine business in the Brooklyn and Long Island, N. Y., territory at the present time is the fair demand for popular and dance records and also portable instruments. Brooklyn is in an exceptionally advantageous position as regards proximity of Summer resorts. A goodly part of the north and south shores of Long Island are devoted to Summer cottage colonies and popular beaches, and one of the principal means of reaching these is through Brooklyn, which is within reasonable riding distance on elevated and surface cars. Another thing which reacts in favor of this section is the fact that this city is the shopping center for the people in the many small towns which dot the Island. Most of these people own their own homes and are prosperous, making the best possible type of prospects for talking machines and records. The demand for the better class of music is not so great as it might be if the dealers exerted greater efforts in pushing these numbers, according to the head of a large jobbing house in that territory, who has made a study of dealer methods and general conditions.

Windows and Other Publicity

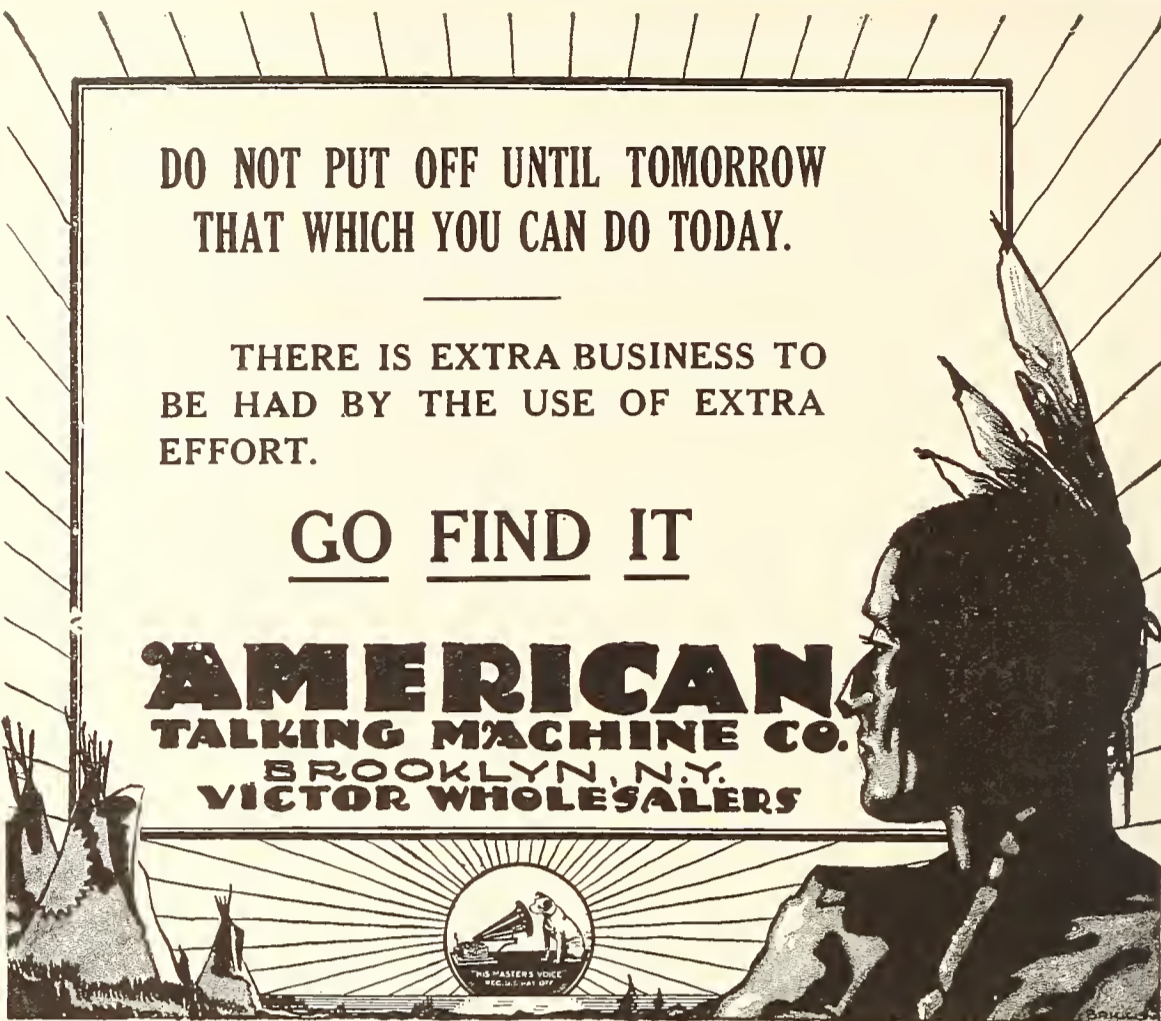

Window displays are recognized as an important means of stimulating business, regardless of seasons, and, consequently, the merchants in the Brooklyn field are making the best of this opportunity. Another thing that has helped considerably in stimulating interest in windows on the part of both the public and retail trade is a window dressing contest which is being staged under the auspices of the sales council of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. A prize is to be awarded to the window considered by the judges to be the best in the city and one concern in the music trade which stands an excellent chance of carrying off the honors is the local branch of the Aeolian Co., which is managed by C. G. Davis. This concern has two windows entered in the contest. One contains three instruments—a grand piano and a console and upright model Vocalions. Several of the Vocalion Red records are placed on the floor of the window and the whole display is brought out in a most artistic manner by a background of yellow. Another window in the rear of the establishment also features two models of the Aeolian-Vocalion and an upright piano. Other dealers are featuring portable instruments in their windows, while still others are cashing in on combination displays of small musical instruments, records, sheet music and portables.

Advertising Bringing Rewards

Consistent advertising is also bringing tangible results to a number of live merchants in this territory. A typical example of the publicity methods in force by the more aggressive dealers is that of Al Bersin, one of the most successful dealers in Brooklyn, who operates two establishments, one on Fulton street and another on Bedford avenue. The Victor, Sonora and Brunswick lines are handled. Mr. Bersin makes it a point to advertise in all musical club programs, dance programs, etc., etc. Considerable newspaper space is also utilized to bring the music message to the people and the results to date have been very satisfactory. It is noticeable that those dealers who have curtailed their publicity are doing very little business in comparison to those who have kept their publicity work up to the maximum point.

Planning Sonora Dealers' Convention

Plans are under way by Robert H. Keith, of the Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora distributor for the Long Island territory, for a convention of Sonora dealers in the Bossert Hotel on August 30. A luncheon and entertainment will precede the business session, which will be devoted to consideration of the problems of the dealers and the necessity of placing orders for Fall in time to avoid a shortage similar to that which hampered sales during the Christmas season last year. When Mr. Keith was at the convention of Sonora jobbers, held in Saginaw, Mich., recently, he placed orders with the Sonora Co. for a large stock of instruments in order to insure dealers against a repetition of the same conditions that existed last year. However, even with this large stock on hand the continued development in business, which, according to Mr. Keith, bids fair to make this a banner year, will bring about another shortage to those dealers who delay too long in making known their wants for the Fall and holiday trade.

Believes Dealers Should Push Good Music

The better class of music on records should be pushed, according to R. H. Keith, who declared that, from his observations, too many members of the retail trade take the line of least resistance in selling records. He pointed out that jazz and dance music has a natural demand and little or no effort on the part of the dealer is necessary to do a fair volume of business in these numbers. On the other hand, many people who are now buying jazz records could be converted to purchasers of good music with very little trouble if the proper line were taken.

New Twist to Telephone Sales Plan

Making sales of records over the telephone is proving a successful method of speeding up sales and at the same time augmenting the already excellent service at the talking machine department of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn department store. A new twist has been given to this plan by Mabel Arend, who recently came from Toledo, O., to assume the management of this branch of the business. There are a number of saleswomen in this department and Miss Arend has arranged matters so that each saleswoman keeps track of her own patrons and when a record is received which any particular patron is likely to favor the saleswoman who has served that customer in the past uses the telephone to acquaint her with the recording. The saleswomen make notations of the type of music their customers purchase and this information is contained in a book, with names of customers listed alphabetically. A study of the information contained in this little book is interesting in itself. For example, one woman patron likes only vocal selections, another is a lover of all good music and there is one customer who purchases a particular kind of needle and will use no other.

The fact that each saleswoman telephones only those customers whom she has served in the past has resulted in each of them becoming thoroughly acquainted with their customers. The plan has resulted in greater confidence on the part of patrons in the ability of the saleswomen to select records which they will like and, since this stunt has been in operation, many sales have been made over the telephone.

Victor Dealer Honored

Irving Riesenburger, prominent Victor dealer of Corona, L. I., is now a director of the largest bank in this section—the new Queensboro National Bank of Corona. He is also the largest stockholder in the new institution.

Airplane Helps Dealer in Publicity Drive

An unusual publicity stunt, at least as regards retail music publicity, was recently staged by H. H. Lindenberger, manager, and J. M. Collins, assistant manager, of the Hempstead Music Shop, Sonora dealer, Hempstead, L. I., on the occasion of the first anniversary of the business. The drive was started with a series of teaser ads in the local newspapers and on a Saturday following the teaser advertisements an airplane with the name of the store painted on the body as well as the word "Sonora" flew over the town, stunts being resorted to to attract attention. A large number of envelopes containing Sonora literature were dropped from the plane and these were eagerly grasped by the watching throngs.

Drive on Sonora Portables

There is a feeling of optimism among all large Sonora dealers regarding record Fall business. The dealers in the Brooklyn territory are conducting a campaign to increase the sale of Sonora portables. The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora jobber, is co-operating in this campaign by the distribution of attractive signs as

Dealers to Discuss Problems

A meeting of all Sonora dealers in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn has been called for Friday, July 27, at 11 a. m. Robert Keith, general manager, and J. J. Schratwiser, sales manager of the Long Island Phono. Co., Sonora jobber, will address the dealers, with a view of stimulating business.

VICTOR WHOLESALERS CONSOLIDATE

G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., Joins With the American Talking Machine Co.—A Strong Organization Now in the Field

Effective on Monday, July 2, the G. T. Williams Co., Inc., Victor wholesaler, of Brooklyn, N. Y., consolidated with the American Talking Machine Co., likewise Victor wholesaler in that territory, with headquarters at 356 Livingston street, Brooklyn. In announcing the consolidation it was stated that G. T. and S. W. Williams will be associated with R. H. Morris, treasurer of the American Talking Machine Co., in the direction of that business at the Livingston street offices, which will be continued.

All the executives associated with the combined enterprises are men of long service and wide experience in the wholesale Victor business. G. T. Williams organized the G. T. Williams Co. several years ago, prior to which time he was an active factor with the New York Talking Machine Co.

The American Talking Machine Co. was organized twenty years ago and R. H. Morris, its treasurer and managing head of the business, has been connected with it practically since its inception.

The consolidation of the two companies is calculated to insure for the business a particularly strong position and to make for greater efficiency in the handling of the dealers' requirements. The American Talking Machine Co. has been particularly strong and active in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory and will continue to give direct attention to that section.

BUSINESS CONTINUES SATISFACTORY DESPITE SHORT-LIVED STRIKE OF TELEPHONE OPERATORS

Stores Decorate in Honor of Masonic Convention—Dealers Inaugurate Early Closing Plan During Remainder of Summer—Changes in the Trade—New Stores Opened—Other Activities

BOSTON, MASS., July 6.—On the whole, the past month was most satisfactory in the talking machine trade. Toward the end of June business was a bit interfered with by a telephone strike, which was called by one faction of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s operators. The strike was badly handled, the grievances, or rather alleged grievances, were of the flimsiest sort and there was little sympathy extended by the public even as a matter of principle. The strike was called for 7 o'clock in the morning of June 26 and at the end of two days it had petered out and by Thursday the situation was to a large extent normal.

Masonic Clubs Greeted by the Trade

During the middle of June the National Association of Masonic Clubs held a week's convention in Boston and on one day there was a big parade which enlisted the services of a great many of the music trade. In honor of the visiting Masons many of the talking machine shops decorated their places of business and when the line of march took the men through Boylston and Tremont streets they were greeted with many colorful tributes.

Early Closing Now in Force

Five o'clock closing is now in force with most of the stores and immediately after July 4 many of them will not open at all Saturday, those in particular which are members of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. More and more is Saturday during July and August ceasing to be a business day and it won't be many years before the idea will be very widespread in the business world.

Manager Herbert Shoemaker, of the Eastern Co., told The World representative that business has been coming along very well, despite the fact that June is not usually a busy period in the trade. He spent a week at the factory toward the end of the month, taking over with him G. B. Waldron, the Eastern Co.'s city salesman, this being in line with Manager Shoemaker's plan mentioned last month to see that all the staff gets to the factory at least once a year, so as to familiarize themselves with such details as are essential for them to know in their contact with the trade. Before going to the factory Mr. Waldron spent a week at his farm near Franklin, N. H. An earlier visitor to the Victor factory from this same house was J. C. McDonald, head of the record department, who spent several days getting a valuable line on things in general pertaining to the business.

Manager Kenneth Reed Reviews Conditions

Manager Kenneth Reed, of the Victor department of M. Steinert & Sons, reports that the business for the first two weeks of June was very acceptable, but for some reason or other there was a decided falling off toward the end of the month. Nevertheless, he says, June stood out conspicuously ahead of the same month in 1922. Mr. Reed has established his family at Orleans, down on the Cape, for the Summer, and he goes down each week-end. He's got a fund of fish stories which he will relate to anyone giving a listening ear.

P. R. Spencer Visiting Trade in Maine

Platt R. Spencer did not get far into Maine on his recent trip in the interests of the Brunswick because of the threatening forest fires which obtained in the eastern part of the State. He was able, however, to visit Portland, Augusta, Lewiston and Bath, in all of which places he found business very good. At the present writing he is again in Maine, taking in the points not touched before and visiting also cities and towns in New Hampshire and Vermont.

New Victor Dealer and Changes

A new exclusive Victor dealer has opened up in Natick. He is J. M. S. Glidden, with a location at 3 Pond street. A change has been made in the Bellows Falls, Vt., Victor representation. A. S. Brazil has bought out Mason Bros. and is now conducting the store under the name of Brazil's Music Shop.

Edison Sales Make Fine Showing

Frederick Silliman, who so successfully shapes the destinies of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co. in the New England territory, says that business in the Edison line is making a very creditable showing; in fact, the sales in this territory up to July 1 were far ahead of what they were last year up to October 1, certainly something Mr. Silliman and his staff should be proud of. Mr. Silliman has a group of men around him that he has Summered and Wintered with for a number of years, and as a team they all work together in a way that brings results.

Attended "Opening" of Outlet Store

Herbert Shoemaker, manager of the Eastern Co.; E. W. Kilgore, sales manager, and E. P. Johnson, of the sales force of the company, went down to Providence a fortnight ago for the opening of the Outlet Co. and a dinner and dance were pleasant features of the occasion. H. G. Russell, of the Outlet Co., was a caller here on the trade a few days ago.

Brunswick Phonographs for U. S. S. "Leviathan"

Before the now-famous "Leviathan" of the Shipping Board fleet left Boston on its trial trip to Southern waters it was equipped with Brunswick machines, five of them, which were put aboard the craft while she was in the dry dock being repaired. These Brunswicks are the Oxford models, made of walnut, and were specially constructed for this boat. One is located in the ballroom of the "Leviathan," another is in the music room and the other three are scattered at advantageous points about the boat. With the machines went a large number of the choicest Brunswick recordings.

K. T. Finney Attended Conference

Harry Spencer, of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, the local wholesalers of the Brunswick, and who went to the Chicago convention, was unable to return to New York for the conference of salesmen because of illness and hurried straight home. In his stead, Kenneth T. Finney, manager of the New England department, went over and he came in contact with the twelve salesmen from Philadelphia, New York and Boston. The company spent an entire day going over the new records and fortifying themselves with an intelligent fund of selling information. Mr. Finney returned to Boston, thanks to this trip, better able than ever before to reel off the special qualities of this and that record.

Artistic Ditson Wins Praise

In recording the news of the month in Boston one must not forget to make special mention of the handsome window at the Oliver Ditson Co.'s store in Tremont street. The window specifically advertises Charles Kellogg's Victor records of bird songs. The entire window is strewn with hemlock boughs and at the rear is a large cage enclosing brilliantly plumaged birds, while outside the cage and scattered about the window there are other handsome examples of the feathered tribe. The birds used in this exhibit are all foreign songsters. All about the window, too, are a number of Mr. Kellogg's records. Henry Winkelman, manager of the Victor department of the Ditson Co., is mainly responsible for the display, while the actual work on it was done by the company's window dresser.

Henderson Opens in Park Square

Henderson's, Inc., which has a well-patronized shop in Boylston street, has leased another place in Park Square, only a few feet around the corner from Boylston street, where eventually the Brunswick, Victor and the Vocalion lines will be carried. The store was opened a few days ago and for the present only the Victor line will be carried.

Appreciate Okeh Record Hits

At the Boston offices of the New England department of the General Phonograph Corp. there is rejoicing that the Okeh is so soon to have songs from the "Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" on the market. Already consignments have been received of "Born and Bred in Brooklyn" and another of the popular songs of this Cohan musical comedy and the Okeh dealers have many orders for these numbers. The Cohan songs always go strong in the Okeh line.

Lopez Orchestra Makes Okeh Dealers

As a result of Vincent Lopez Orchestra's appearance in Worcester a week ago on the occasion of the senior promenade of Holy Cross College, Manager N. B. Smith, of the New England department of the General Phonograph Corp., was able to open up three new dealers in that city to handle the Okeh line.

Columbia Artist Making New England Tour

The local New England headquarters of the Columbia Co. are following with interest the appearance here of one of its artists, William Kennedy, who was here the week of July 2. Other dates in New England include such places as Holyoke, New London, Lynn and New Bedford. The Columbia Co. has two of Mr. Kennedy's records and they go big. Manager Mann has seen to it that the New England dealers have been well circularized for what is known as "Babbling Brook" week, when "Beside a Babbling Brook" is to be featured everywhere.

Like the Good Old Days

All the office staff of the Eastern Talking Machine Co. went to the Barnum & Bailey-Forepaugh's Circus Thursday evening, June 22, and they filled up on peanuts and pink lemonade like all good faithful circus habitues.

It is of interest that the circus tickets this year were for sale downtown in the talking machine warerooms of the C. C. Harvey Co. In other years they were sold in the Hallet & Davis headquarters next door, but owing to the removal of the offices farther out near Copley square this new location was not a convenient point for the general public.

Death of Mrs. Caroline Winkelman

To-day it has stores in South Manchester, Bristol and Hartford, Conn., and is one of the best-known music houses in the New England States. Among the instruments which it handles is the Steinway, the A. B. Chase and other well-known lines, as well as the Aeolian player line.

PURPOSES OF ADVERTISING

Excerpt From an Address by H. D. Robbins Before Advertising Men in Atlantic City

"Advertising has rightly been called a business force. It is a force the dynamics of which, through the cumulative power of its organized ideas, nullify the customs of ages and break down the barriers of individual habits, of limited thinking," declared Harry D. Robbins, chairman of the National Vigilance Committee, in a stirring address before advertising men at the Atlantic City Convention last month. "It works for the future and establishes concepts related to higher standards of living. It is at once destroyer and creator in the process of ever evolving the new. Its constructive effort is to superimpose new conceptions of individual attainment and community desire. Advertising plays near the heart of humanity, for it touches the mainspring of individual ambition and group desire. It is one of the creative mechanisms of our day, involving individual and group aspirations. It is at once master and servant of those who wield its power. It is master when it sets the energy impulse of man toward the realization of wishes, desires and wants. It is a servant of the advertiser when, through its form, it speaks the right word at the right time in the right place and in the right mood. And it is at this particular juncture of advertising analysis and modern experience that the truth concept was born."

W. H. DITTMER GOES WEST

William H. Dittmer, secretary of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., left during the last week of June for an extended trip of some four or five weeks throughout the West. Mr. Dittmer will cover the principal cities in the interest of Pathé phonograph and radio products.

SOLD 10 PER CENT OF POPULATION

Monroe Music Shop Disposes of 500 Sets of Walter Camp's Health Builder Records in Town of 5,000 Population as a Result of Using Original and Energetic Methods

Selling 500 sets of Walter Camp's Health Builder exercise records during the past season in a town with a population of less than 5,000 people is the record set by the Monroe Music Shop, Athol, Mass., and the record is due, not to luck, but to an intensive cultivation of the field and the paying of attention to school children as possible sales producers.

When he started to feature the records Mr. Monroe arranged for a series of fifteen classes in calisthenics in the local schools once each week, the classes being conducted to the accompaniment of the Walter Camp records. There was much rivalry between the classes during the Winter and the interest was such that, when at the close of the school year in June Mr. Monroe had a public exhibition of calisthenics in the High School Stadium, over 3,000 pupils took part in the event.

The advertising value of the plan was developed right through the season and the publicity given its closing exhibition served to attract an audience of several thousand not alone from Athol proper, but from the country districts and from the towns in the vicinity. It is believed that Mr. Monroe's record of selling a set of the health records to one in every ten of his town's population has set a new high mark for energetic dealers to shoot at.

STOP DOOR PLAYING IN BIRMINGHAM

OUTING WINDOWS PRODUCE SALES

Pacific Coast Dealers Feature Outing Portable in Windows—A. J. Cote Comments Upon Value of This Form of Publicity

The accompanying illustrations showing window displays used by two prominent dealers in San Francisco, featuring the Outing portable phonograph, will give some idea of the splendid co-operation the Outing Talking Machine Co. is receiving from its representatives. These displays, which were presented by Clark Wise &

Outing Display of Clark Wise & Co.

Co. and the Nathan-Dohrmann Co., not only attracted considerable attention from passers-by, but also served to stimulate sales considerably.

Referring to these two very attractive windows A. J. Cote, president of the Outing Talking Machine Co., commented as follows: "The success of every retail house depends on two things; first, the dealer must acquaint the public with the kind of goods handled through advertising and, second, to sell the public quality merchandise exactly as advertised.

"Advertising by the retailer may be done through the medium of newspapers, circulars, etc., but, although these methods of advertising are recognized generally as the most productive, the window display follows closely as an effective method of reaching the public. Ninety percent of the buying public who stop to look at window displays are in a buying mood and will remember what they have seen in the window when the newspaper advertising may not have attracted their attention. For this reason, in order to make a window display effective, a dealer should show only one or two articles, according to the size of the window. We are particularly pleased with the attractive windows prepared by these two dealers on the Pacific Coast, which carry out this idea of window display advertising to excellent advantage.

Daillargeom, president and general manager; Albert Melops, treasurer, and Beatrice Girard, secretary. COMPOSERS HELP RECORD SALES

The local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. sponsored recently a publicity stunt in the Gotham Shop, 50 Broadway, New York, which produced splendid results. Frank Silver and Irving Cohen, composers of "Yes! We Have No Bananas," the most popular song hit of the present day, appeared at this Columbia establishment during the noon hour and autographed Columbia records and sheet music. The appearance of these two composers attracted considerable attention and Irwin Kurtz, owner of the Gotham Shop, was highly pleased with the excellent sales results obtained from this unusual and effective publicity.

A well-planned and properly executed sales promotion drive will result in business, regardless of season or weather.

SAN FRANCISCO

Approve Plans for Coast Victor Plant—Prominent Artists in New Opera Company—Business Satisfactory—News of the Month

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 3.—The average talking machine dealer gets just about what he expects in this world. If it is vacation time and he expects dull business he usually gets it; if it is holiday time and he expects a rush he usually gets that. Unconsciously, to a large extent the dealer tunes himself up for a poor or brisk business. There is no accomplishing the impossible, but there is such a thing as putting one's self in a proper receptive mood. In the proper mood the merchant is naturally stimulated to make the best of his opportunities. Business was a bit slow on portable talking machines at the City of Paris last week, so what did Manager Storms do but scratch his head and resurrect an idea, a selling idea. It occurred to him that there were no music ads in the outing sections of the daily newspapers—A-ah! Just the place for a cute little ad featuring portable machines! He acted upon his impulse and as a result he sold more portables in the next few days than he had in a month previously.

New Pressing Plant for Victor Co. in Oakland

Plans for the new pressing plant of the Victor Talking Machine Co., which is to be located in Oakland, have been approved by the directors of the company and construction work is expected to commence without unnecessary delay. This is the report sent here to Andrew McCarthy, of Sherman, Clay & Co., by the two engineers of the Victor Co., E. S. Shumaker and C. S. Wickes, who have been on the Coast working out the details of the proposed factory.

Progress on New Sherman-Clay Building

The new wholesale establishment of Sherman, Clay & Co., on Mission street, this city, is up as far as the second story. If all goes well the building will be ready for occupation by the middle of September.

Grand Opera for San Francisco

San Francisco is to have a permanent grand opera company at last, it was announced this week. Prominent public-spirited people have decided to give the company financial backing. The leading tenor of the company will be Giovanni Martinelli, one of the most popular of the Edison artists. Martinelli was the leading tenor of the operas given at the Stanford University Stadium last year. Others of the same company will be members of the new organization.

Wiley B. Allen Co. Activities

Frank Anrys, general manager of the Wiley B. Allen Co.; J. J. Black, treasurer, and Lawrence Lindsay have returned from their trip East, where they visited their manufacturing connections and attended the annual convention of the National Piano Merchants' Association in Chicago. George Hughes, of the same company, has departed on his annual fishing trip to southern Oregon. He took with him this year C. A. Ericsson, president of Ludwig & Co. Raymond Wolfinger, manager of the retail talking machine department of the San Francisco store of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is taking his Summer vacation in Los Angeles.

Billy Morton, manager of the retail talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co., will leave for his vacation at the Russian River next week.

Edison Popularity Grows

Edison Phonographs, Ltd., Coast distributor of Edison phonographs and records, with headquarters in this city and offices in Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles, Cal., is enjoying an excellent business, and, according to the size and number of orders being received from dealers, the Edison is more firmly entrenched in public favor on the Coast, thanks to the enterprise of A. C. Ireton, general manager.

Console Type in Favor

The flat-top console is winning a sure place in the popular demand on the Pacific Coast, but the old standard uprights are holding their own, too. The upright will not be crowded out by any other type of machine in the opinion of the leading dealers here.

Victor Representatives at N. E. Exhibition

Miss Donzella Cross, of Sherman, Clay & Co., is in charge of the Victor exhibit at the Hotel Oakland, Oakland, Cal., where the National Educational Association is holding its annual convention. She is also giving lectures on music appreciation at the Summer School of the University of California, in Berkeley.

Mrs. Frances E. Clark, head of the educational department of the Victor Co., is attending the N. E. A. convention, also, and is assisted in her demonstration work by Miss Daniels, who has charge of the Victor educational work in southern California.

C. G. Child to Visit Coast

C. G. Child, head of the artists' department of the Victor Co., one of the greatest sound experts in the country, will visit California during July, and, incidentally, will be a guest at the jinks of the San Francisco Bohemian Club at Bohemian Grove on the Russian River.

Fradkin Helps Increase Brunswick Sales

Frederick Fradkin, one of the star artists for the Brunswick records, is filling a two weeks' engagement at the Orpheum Theatre. He has promised to autograph the first two hundred records of his violin selections to be sold at the Kohler & Chase talking machine department. The first month of business on Brunswick machines and records at the Kohler & Chase store has been fully up to expectations. George Q. Chase and Leon Lang have just returned from a five weeks' Eastern trip. They went as far as Boston.

New Location for Stacy

Stacy, the well-known talking machine merchant at Third avenue and Clement street, has moved to the location formerly leased by the Brace-Davis Co., Sixth avenue and Clement street. Stacy is one of the most prominent talking machine dealers in the fashionable Richmond district. Brace-Davis, Inc., have retired from the music business.

Woman Swindler Apprehended

A woman who recently swindled the music dealers of this city out of seventeen talking machines and eleven pianos has been apprehended here and is now awaiting trial. The instruments were purchased by the woman on the installment plan and sold through auctioneers. Seattle, Wash., and New York City dealers were also victimized, it is said. The Music Trade Association and the Downtown Association are making an effort to secure the conviction and punishment of the woman, as well as some of the auctioneers who are suspected of having been accomplices.

Brieflets

Columbia machines and records are being featured in a large number of sales this month.

James Muir, president of the Gramophone Co., of Great Britain, recently visited San Francisco in the course of his trip around the world.

A new music store, known as the Oroville Brunswick Phonograph Shop, has been opened at 616 Montgomery street, Oroville, Cal.

STIMULATES SPANISH RECORD SALES

Columbia Branch Makes Valuable Population Survey—Co-operates With Metropolitan Dealers in Developing Record Business

The local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. of New York recently inaugurated a plan whereby the sale of Spanish records was stimulated materially. The branch obtained information as to the centers of Spanish population in New York City from Spanish publications, circulated among the Spanish residents, and by co-operating with the dealers in these particular territories a steady outlet was found for the Columbia Spanish catalog. Many of the dealers did not know of the existence of Spanish communities in their particular territories until the population survey was completed.

DETROIT

Brisk Record Sales a Feature of Local Business — Bright Outlook Creates Optimism — The News

DETROIT, MICH., July 9.—The machine end of the talking machine industry has not been as active as dealers would wish during the past two months, while record sales have been brisk. However, for the first six months of this year as compared with the same period of 1922 sales have shown a healthy increase, and dealers are inclined to feel that after the dull months of July and August have passed business will be very good during the remainder of the year.

Although this and next month are considered as the naturally dull time of the year by the trade generally, many of the dealers have not appreciably relaxed their efforts to secure business, and this has been reflected in a better sales volume than would ordinarily have been the case. Window displays, advertising and publicity of all kinds and canvassing are all playing important parts in maintaining business at its present volume, and, of course, those merchants whose sales promotion work is most intensive and consistent are doing the most business.

Industrially this city is in an excellent position and from the standpoint of salaries received by workers in local factories, etc., there is no sound reason why business should not be as good now as at any other time. The whole matter resolves itself down to a matter of going out after the business and keeping eternally at it, as those dealers who follow this plan of procedure have discovered. The demand for portable instruments is good at the present time and inasmuch as this instrument is most in vogue during the vacation period the response to advertising and other sales promotion work has been better than anticipated. Taking conditions as a whole there should be no complaints regarding business, and, furthermore, the outlook is anything but gloomy.

R. B. Alling, manager of the Phonograph Co. of Detroit, Edison distributor, has left for Wyoming where he expects to spend a month on his vacation. Hunting, horseback riding and fishing will be his routine of amusement while out West.

S. E. Lind, of the Lind & Marks Co., says that business is jumping ahead by leaps and bounds, showing consistent and steady gains, which is a healthy condition. The Lind & Marks Co. is the distributor in Michigan for the Vocalion.

It was announced recently by the C. L. Marshall Co., of this city, wholesale distributor for the Pooley phonograph, that its territory for this line of instruments had been enlarged, and,

A number of record artists have appeared on the stages of Detroit theatres the past few weeks and this has stimulated the sale of their records. Among them was Elsie Clark, Okeh artist, who appeared at the Regent and Miles Theatres. The Starr Piano Co. had one of its artists for two weeks at the Capitol Theatre and a week at the Adams Theatre, singing a duet with his own record played on the Starr phonograph.

During the months of July and August most of the neighborhood talking machine dealers will close their stores two or three evenings each week.

M. D. Greene, who has been with the Cheney Talking Machine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., for four years, has been selected as manager, succeeding Frederick Doerr, resigned.

The J. L. Hudson Music Store has been pushing the sale of portable talking machines with splendid success. Campers, tourists and those who have Summer homes have purchased them in large numbers.

SUMMER SALES ACTIVITY PRESAGES BUSY FALL SEASON AND CREATES OPTIMISM IN THE TRADE

Dealers and Jobbers Unanimous in Reports of Good Half Year Sales Volume—Optimistic Over the Outlook for Fall Season—Leaders in Jobbing Field Stimulating Dealers—Other News

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 5.—Ordinarily quiet June days were extraordinarily active during the month which has just closed. There was no rush save in the isolated case of a department store which placed on the market at very greatly reduced prices a line of discontinued stock made by one of the well-known producers, and which the public eagerly bought under the captivation of bargains. But staple business proceeded with just a little more vim than had been anticipated, and to that extent was most gratifying; moreover, the very satisfactory character of the tone of the market was interpreted by the trade as indicative of more to come. It may perhaps be too optimistic to expect that July and August will be up to the June record, but it is conservative to believe that in comparison with the corresponding months of last year they will show a gain. Evidence of large purchasing power by the public is seen by the trade in the character of the sales.

Good Half Year for Penn Co.

The Penn Phonograph Co., Victor wholesaler, has just completed inventory and found that the story the figures told for the first half of the year was most satisfactory. A contributing reason is believed by the firm to be its series of large posters for window display advertising. These will be continued and the management is confident that the latter half of the year can be made even more satisfactory than was the first half. In pursuance of its policy of effective display window advertising, the firm is displaying, against a background of patriotic red, white and blue, a heroic Tungs-Tone Needle, standing seven feet high and resting on a proportionately large Red Seal record worked out on oil-cloth. The sales organization is making a mid-Summer concentration on holiday orders, as an insurance against probable shortage of stock. President T. W. Barnhill has installed his family in an Ocean City cottage and will make week-end trips to the seashore resort.

New Brunswick Service Room

A most charming and inviting sales and service room, with every forethought given to the comfort and prompt service of patrons, has been completed by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 1002 Arch street, under the supervision of Oden F. Jester, manager of the phonograph division. It is on the second floor and represents the complete renovation and modernization of the old record and sales room. Steel racks have been installed with a capacity of 200,000 records. The room has been decorated in a green and ivory effect, the Unit Construction Co. having installed the partitions of the individual soundproof booths and sales offices for the executives. Inviting overstuffed wicker furniture and harmonizing rugs with rest and comfort rooms, writing desks and other conveniences make the place delightful for customers. There is reported during the last six months a doubling of the business, a result attributed to the co-operation between the sales organization, which laid the ground work, and the executives departments which, through service and publicity, has widened the field; window displays and newspaper ads have made helpful sales promotion for the dealers. There are being featured at this time records made by John Barclay, exclusively for this company. He appears in person at the Stanley Theatre on July 9. A tie-up campaign with the Jewish World, a newspaper of Philadelphia, has been made by the appointment of E. M. Goldman, 623 South street, and who is doing a record-breaking business as a result among the Jewish-speaking people.

Edison Conditions Most Satisfactory

"Business has taken a decided turn upward, if we are to judge from our volume of sales and from the attitude of our dealers," said A. W. Rhinow, of the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor. "While sales through the outlying districts, and particularly throughout the coal-mining regions, have shown a consistently brighter outlook than those in the bigger cities, and especially in Philadelphia proper, during the first half of 1923, the city of Philadelphia has shown a definite improvement during the past few weeks.

"When we consider in this connection that a great many people in Philadelphia are spending time and money at the numerous seashore resorts and that the extremely warm weather has been a serious handicap to the retailer, we believe that the increased volume which we are now enjoying with the dealer shows a fundamental improvement of more than passing importance.

"We are buying heavily for the Fall, because we are looking for the biggest Fall business that we have ever experienced. At the present time we are taking steps to provide transportation for our phonographs from the Edison Laboratories to Philadelphia during the Fall, so that we shall be almost wholly unaffected by the extreme car shortage which is being predicted by railroad officials throughout the country. During the last three months of 1922 we brought all phonographs from the Edison Laboratories at Orange, N. J., to Philadelphia by motor truck, and it is likely that the unique caravans which caused so much talk last year will again be seen this year.

"While we are cautioning dealers to lay in a sufficient stock to meet their needs at least for the early Fall months we are making every effort to continue the service which we have been able to maintain thus far during 1923."

Columbia School of Salesmanship

A school in salesmanship for records and machines, but particularly for the former, has been started by the Philadelphia branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., 50 North Sixth street. It will be under the efficient management of Miss Ida Fischer, and it offers a service to dealers at once unique and practical. While the technique of record making will be gone into only to the extent that it is of real value, Miss Fischer will concentrate on sales suggestions and will carry the class through in every detail from the placing of the order with the distributor to the completion of the sale and the delivery of the goods, making, in the meanwhile, many practical suggestions for increasing the volume of sales and of giving better service and thereby developing the return orders by the customer. It is hoped, through the school, also, to increase the number of competent record salesmen and saleswomen. Manager N. E. Gardner, lately transferred from the Detroit branch, reports a brisk June business and describes satisfaction of dealers in the announcement of new models replacing the discontinued lines. There are now in stock in the Philadelphia headquarters two of the console—441 and 442, first of the fourteen new creations. It is expected that the complete line will be received by August in time for the Fall stocking in dealers' stores. The branch recently played host to its sales and office force, numbering almost fifty, motoring them to Halcyon Park, near Pitman, N. J., for an outing and afternoon of sports. The office force defeated the sales staff at baseball by a score of 7 to 4.

There has been added to the sales force Alexander Bard, who comes from Hungary, and who has been in this country nine months. He speaks eight languages and will look after the foreign dealers' needs in the Philadelphia territory.

E. W. Keefe Renewing Old Acquaintances

Everett W. Keefe, manager of the Edison department of N. Snellenburg & Co., this city, has just begun a combined business trip and vacation. Mr. Keefe will spend several weeks visiting Edison dealers in the Manhattan district and throughout the New England States, especially in Boston and Fall River, Mass., where he first began his career in the Edison business about ten years ago.

Prior to his connection with N. Snellenburg & Co., Mr. Keefe was in charge of the Edison Shop, at No. 10 Fifth avenue, New York, and this is the first time since having come to Philadelphia two years ago that he has spared himself sufficient time to renew his wide acquaintanceship among the Edison trade.

Building Up Export Business

Everybody's Talking Machine Co., 810 Arch street, is launching, with intensity, an exporting business, and it proposes to appoint a number of foreign agencies, starting in Australia. Occupancy just has been taken of a new warehouse at Ninth and Filbert streets, a three-story building, in which surplus materials will be carried. The firm specializes on talking machine parts and accessories, and covers a national field. Its own specialty is the Honest Quaker main-spring. President J. A. Fischer is Summering at Atlantic City. Secretary Samuel Fingrut is now in Atlantic City on business, but will spend his vacation in Betterton, Md. He will take charge of the export department. Treasurer and Sales Manager I. B. Grabuski is now in the Middle West and will remain there until after the middle of July.

Many Callers at Buehn Headquarters

C. E. Sheppard and F. B. Reinick, of the Louis Buehn Co., Victor wholesaler, in late June motored to Coatesville to attend the opening of the Victor record department of the Miller Piano Co. Recent callers at the Buehn establishment included George Marris, of W. J. Doyle & Bros., St. Paul, Minn., whose son graduated from a New York institution, and Albert Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., whose families are cottagers for the Summer at Ocean City.

In helpfulness to dealers the Lincoln Business Bureau, wholesale distributor of Vocalion records, has begun the experiment of sending out releases a month in advance in order that dealers may feel out their trade and buy effectively. Among the August records there are nine standard gems which the company is issuing in advance in order to stimulate sales for its distributors and which is the newest feature of its activities.

Mr. Ulrich has been Philadelphia representative for the Outing for the past two years, but the Trumpet-Tone just has been added to the stock.

Operation for Gimbel Manager

Robert S. McCarthy, manager of the phonograph department of the Gimbel Bros. store, has been discharged from the Orthopaedic Hospital after an operation on the jaw bone for an injury which resulted from an infected tooth. During his absence from duty his assistant, Frank P. Anton, looked after the business. Mr. Anton shortly will take a vacation trip through Canada. There was conducted, during June, an intensive sales campaign on the discontinued models of the Columbia line, in which were offered to the public several thousand machines at an extremely low price, and which were speedily disposed of at the cut prices prevailing during the sale.

Quits Newspaper for Edison Shop

George L. Anderson, Edison dealer in Avondale, Pa., has relinquished ownership in the "Avondale Herald," and has taken complete charge of the Edison business since the departure of his son, Laurence Anderson, for the Pacific Coast.

During his visit to the offices of the Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia Edison distributor, Mr. Anderson stated that the outlook promises a very satisfactory Edison business for the remainder of the year and that he hopes to at least double last year's business.

Everybody's Enjoys Good Demand

M. Grabuski, president, and Samuel Fingrutd, secretary, of Everybody's Talking Machine Co., recently completed a motor trip through the Pennsylvania territory, calling on the retail trade throughout this State. They found business generally good throughout, with a marked determination on the part of the dealers to make the Fall of 1923 surpass all others in volume of business.

M. Grabuski reported that Everybody's Talking Machine Co. is doing exceptionally good business. In commenting upon this situation he said: "Our business, thus far this year, has gone ahead of previous years. We have found that the demand has always been for quality merchandise. This, together with the fact that applied energy always brings results, has built up exceptionally good business for us."

PETER R. HAWLEY ENTERTAINED AT TESTIMONIAL DINNER

Manager of Girard Phonograph Co., Edison Jobber, Dined by Edison Dealers and Business Associates as a Mark of Appreciation of His Energetic and Tireless Efforts in the Philadelphia Zone

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 6.—On the evening of June 29 a very unique testimonial dinner was tendered to Peter R. Hawley, manager of the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison jobber of Philadelphia. The banquet was held in one of the private dining-rooms at the Manufacturers' Club, of this city, and was given by the Edison dealers and business associates of Mr. Hawley as a mark of appreciation of his energetic and tireless efforts in behalf of the Edison retailers located in the Philadelphia zone.

The dinner was a complete surprise to the guest of honor and possessed many features of interest. The table was arranged in a long "U" shape with exquisite floral decorations. At the open end a lively dance orchestra of six pieces furnished popular music and a quartet rendered some close harmony numbers. The dinner program, in addition to an excellent array of magicians, ventriloquists, dancers and singers, included two special features by Edison artists. The first was Charlie Kerr's Orchestra, which made a tremendous hit, and the second artist was Miss Aileen Stanley, who was appearing at Keith's Theatre during the week and who kindly consented to entertain the Edison dealers after her regular performance. She was in fine voice and greatly pleased the assemblage.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Everett W. Keefe, manager of the Edison department of N. Snellenburg & Co., introduced the toastmaster, Arthur W. Rhinow, of the Girard Phonograph Co., who read a telegram containing some very warm-hearted sentiments from Thos. A. Edison, and another from the Phonograph Corp. of Indiana of the same purport. He then introduced the speakers of the evening, Arthur Bloch, member of the firm of N. Snellenburg & Co.; Fred C. Beattie, assistant to the vice-president of Thos. A. Edison, Inc.; Raymond Bill, of The Talking Machine World; E. H. Philips, credit manager of Thos. A. Edison, Inc.; M. M. Blackman, Edison jobber of Kansas City, Mo.; H. Royer Smith, Edison dealer of Philadelphia; Chas. E. Stapleton, former manager of the Edison Shop, Fifth avenue, New York, and R. J. Rich, a member of the organization of H. Royer Smith. Each of the speakers paid tribute to the work and character of Mr. Hawley and each stressed on the uniqueness of an affair at which the head of the selling end of the line was royally entertained and honored by the people at the buying end of the line, namely, the retail dealers handling the Edison.

GEO. W. LYLE LEAVES FOR COAST

Strand President Will Visit Trade Throughout Country—New Strand Models Well Received

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the Strand phonograph, left New York on July 3 for a trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Lyle is accompanied by his son, Edward G., a student at Blair Academy, who is making his first trip to the Far West. According to his present plans Mr. Lyle will proceed to the Pacific Coast by way of the Middle West, coming back to New York by way of Dallas and New Orleans.

In a chat with The World, prior to his trip, Mr. Lyle stated that the sales for June were very satisfactory, figures showing an increase of 100 per cent over last year. The new Strand models have met with the enthusiastic approval of Strand representatives and dealers, who are making plans for a banner Fall trade.

PLANS TO TRAIN SALESMEN

American Management Association Outlines Elaborate Educational Campaign

Steps to train America's vast army of salesmen will soon be taken under the direction of the Sales Executive Division of the American Management Association, according to John A. Stevenson, of the Equitable Life, who is vice-president of the Association. Office, traveling and agency schools will be established, tests and examinations devised and conventions and educational conferences held. Correspondence courses and sales manuals are other features being planned and the salesman will be shown how to put the knowledge thus acquired into practice by joint work in the field.

Explaining the purposes of the movement, Mr. Stevenson said: "Manufacturing and commercial companies have given as their reasons for not training salesmen the opinion that salesmen were born and not made. Other companies did not make any effort to supply systematic training for their employes, because 'they could only learn by experience.' Still another reason given was that 'no one person could be employed who was not qualified to teach all jobs.' "It has been found, however, that salesmen can be trained, that the trial-and-error method of experience can be carried to a point which is wasteful, that it is not necessary to have an instructor qualified to teach the technique of every job. As a matter of fact, no excuse really exists at the present time for the failure to train the man on the job. To a considerable extent, the way for a man to get ahead is to do as far as possible the things his supervisor would want him to do if he were already ahead."

J. J. DAVIN LOOKING FOR "WORLDS"

Intensive Activities of Dealers Keep Sales Up to Satisfactory Standard—Move Sonora Offices—Trade Changes—Other News

PITTSBURGH, PA., July 9.—To the satisfaction of a large number of progressive talking machine dealers the past four weeks proved to be very satisfactory, as far as sales of talking machines and records were concerned. By dint of intensive sales activity these up-to-date merchants so utilized their publicity methods as to bring the maximum of results in the matter of brisk sales. While there was no rush of business in the particular talking machine shops operated by the several dealers there was sufficient business handled to more than justify the special efforts put forth to make a month that ordinarily is looked upon as slow in retail talking machine circles—briefly, efforts brought results.

All Jobbers Busy

All of the large jobbing representatives and distributors of the various manufacturers, such as the Victor, Edison, Sonora, Columbia, Brunswick, Pathé, Starr and Strand, reported a very satisfactory volume of business and were frank to say that the outlook for Fall business is most reassuring.

Frank Dorian, manager of the General Radio Corp., distributor of Strand phonographs, Modernolette portables and Okeh records, said: "Our business has steadily forged ahead and I am confident that we will enjoy a highly satisfactory Fall trade. Okeh records are meeting with unusual success and we are in an excellent position to care for the demands of our patrons promptly. The Strand is also being well received. As I view it the outlook is very good for us in this territory."

Move Local Sonora Offices

The offices of the Sonora Phonograph Distributing Co., which also handles the Vocalion records, have been moved to 217-219 Stanwix street, on the first floor of the Empire Building. H. Milton Miller is manager. The new location is well adapted for the Sonora and Vocalion lines. The showrooms are large and attractive and there is also a fine display window, in which the various models of the Sonora phonograph are shown to excellent advantage. Mr. Miller stated that all indications pointed to a very brisk Fall season. He said: "Our business for June showed a tremendous increase over the corresponding month of last year and we believe that July will also be a good month for Sonora dealers. We are enjoying an excellent demand for the portable Sonora phonograph. In fact, wherever this instrument has been shown sales have been made." Mr. Miller cited an instance of Sonora dealers, Russell & Rigg, Altoona, Pa., who in a short time had disposed of more than twenty portable machines merely by an attractive window display.

Two of the Live Buehn Phonograph Co.

At the present time Jack, Tom and Dave, as they are affectionately called by the dealers in their respective territories, are engaged in a friendly but spirited contest to see who can most quickly and efficiently secure dealers in open towns or build up weak points in his territory.

J. K. Nichol - T. A. Dillon

Since the first of January fifteen new dealers have been appointed in the Pittsburgh zone, six in the territory covered by Mr. Nichol, five in that of Mr. Dillon and four in that of Mr. Hartley. There are on file at the present time a number of other applications for dealerships which, when acted upon, may change the positions of the contestants.

New Sonora Accounts

Among the new Sonora retail dealers are Waid & Walker, Girard, Pa.; Imhoff Music Co., Clarion, Pa., and Todd & Stevens, Monongahela, Pa. New Vocalion record dealers are Waid & Walker, Girard, Pa.; R. H. Miller, Sharpsville, Pa., and Frank Sportolari, Bridgeville, Pa.

Frank J. Coyne in New Post

Frank J. Coyne, who was formerly connected with the talking machine department of the Rosenbaum Co., on July 5 assumed the managership of the talking machine department of the Kaufmann & Baer Co. Mr. Coyne is well known to the trade and has the best wishes of the fraternity in his new position.

C. R. Parsons, manager of the Rosenbaum Co., returned from a recent trip to New York and Atlantic City. He reports June business in both talking machines and records as brisk.

Alterations at Yahrling-Rayner Store

The Yahrling-Rayner Music Co., of Youngstown, O., has just completed extensive alterations in its store, which is now one of the most modern music houses in the Class A district. The Victrola department, which has heretofore been located on the second floor, has been moved down to the first floor, giving a battery of fifteen excellent listening rooms, finished in ivory and mahogany. The formal opening of the new department occurred Friday, June 29.

J. W. Laing Sells Business

J. W. Laing, dealer in musical instruments and Victrolas, near Coalport, Pa., recently disposed of his business to Gill & Lomire, who will hereafter conduct the business under the above name. Mr. Gill has been connected with Mr. Laing for some years and will, therefore, bring to the business considerable experience in the talking machine line.

Brisk Demand for New Columbias

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., in referring to business conditions, said: "Our new models of the Columbia line and the new process records are making a decided hit among our dealers and we have enjoyed a marked volume of business for June which was much larger than for the same month a year ago. Our retail dealers are enjoying good business and our advance orders for Fall delivery show that the Columbia dealers are keenly alive to the possibilities of brisk business and wish to have an ample supply of merchandise on hand to display at the proper time. It is my candid opinion that our Fall business will be the greatest that we have enjoyed for that season." Mr. Nichols was a recent visitor to the general offices of the company in New York.

Edison Demand Gaining

H. M. Swartz, of the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, stated that trade conditions for the Edison line, both in phonographs and records, were showing a satisfactory improvement. A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the company, who attended the Edison jobbers' meeting in Chicago, the latter part of June, is quite optimistic relative to the Edison business for the Fall season.

Edison dealers who recently visited the Buehn Co. offices were A. L. Livengood, of Somerset, Pa.; H. C. Crawford, of Uniontown, Pa.; Ross Burns, of Waynesburg, Pa.; I. F. McGaw, New Brighton, Pa.; E. S. Tyler, Point Marion, Pa., and D. C. Feather, Pitcairn, Pa. The latter was confined to his home for some time past by illness.

Adopt Summer Closing Schedule

The leading downtown talking machine shops who are affiliated with the Piano Merchants' Association of Pittsburgh have agreed to the usual Summer closing schedule, effective as of June 16 and ending September 3 inclusive. The closing hour on Saturdays is 1 p. m. and 5 p. m. on other business days of the week.

W. C. Hamilton Convalescent

Wm. C. Hamilton, president of the S. Hamilton Co., Victor dealer, who early in June underwent an operation in a New York hospital, is now at his home here recuperating. His proposed European trip, scheduled for July, has been canceled, on the advice of his physician, who advised against a long ocean voyage so soon after his leaving the hospital.

Miss Margaret Stuart, of the Victor department of the S. Hamilton Co., is on her vacation.

Victor Business Never Better

George H. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., said: "Business was never better for

Stage Annual Outing

The Lechner & Schoenberger Co., dealers in Victor, Columbia and Edison machines, held their annual outing on Saturday, June 30, at Peel's Farm. The store was closed the entire day and more than 200 persons participated in the picnic, which was a rousing success.

One of the handsomest talking machine departments in western Pennsylvania is that of Nathan's, at Johnstown, Pa., one of the largest department stores in the State. The Edison and Sonora phonographs are featured, the Sonora being handled exclusively by Nathan's in Johnstown. The talking machine department is located on the third floor of the new Nathan Building, which was formally opened a few days ago. The demonstration booths are especially attractive. The color schemes are ivory and mahogany. H. Reed List is manager of the department. His assistants are Misses Zelma Clark, Lillian Martin, Mabel Johns and Justina Ridenour.

Constructing New Building

M. Aaron, of the Aaron Co., Connellsville, Pa., who has a chain of house furnishing stores in Connellsville, Greensburg and Uniontown, is building a beautiful four-story building on the former site of the Central Y. M. C. A. in Uniontown, in which will be housed one of the finest and most accessible departments in this section. It will be located on the mezzanine floor near the main entrance and will be devoted, as are all the Aaron departments, to the Victor line exclusively. Mr. Aaron had not previously engaged in the talking machine department in Uniontown, but recently secured the agency conducted by P. W. Simon, in that town, which Mr. Aaron will move to his new department.

News Gleanings

John Henk, head of the Columbia Music Co., Edison and Columbia dealer, declared that business in June exceeded that of June of 1922.

H. C. Niles, of the Starr Phonograph Co., stated that Starr phonographs and Gennett records were increasing in popularity and that reports from his retail dealers indicated a very satisfactory volume of business.

George J. Meyer, Jr., of the Pittsburgh offices of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., reports that the local retail dealers are enjoying a very brisk trade. Mr. Meyer looks forward to a big volume of trade during the Fall months.

E. G. Hays, of the E. G. Hays Co., Brunswick dealer, returned from a brief stay at Cambridge Springs, Pa.

Robert Raugh, manager of the Victrola department of Stone & Thomas, Wheeling, W. Va., motored to Pittsburgh over the week-end of June 21 with Mrs. Raugh and young daughter, Janet. Mr. Raugh reports an excellent year's Victrola business.

J. W. Dickson, proprietor of Lowe's Music Store, Punxsutawney, Pa., Victor dealer, was a visitor to the offices of the Standard Talking Machine Co. Thursday, June 28. Mr. Dickson's store was recently burned out, but he has since secured a much better location than the old and has equipped a fine new music store.

G. C. Hodson, traveling representative of the Pooley Phonograph Co., was a recent caller on the trade here. He had just returned from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast.

M. I. S. CO. SPONSORS DEALER HELPS

Timely Sales Helps for Victor Retailers Well Received—Victrola Price Cards a New Item

The sales promotion department of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, Victor jobber, has been meeting with considerable success in the introduction of service items to the trade and many Victor dealers throughout the metropolitan territory have congratulated the company upon the practical value of these sales helps. One of the recent sales promotion ideas introduced by this company consisted of a set of price cards to be placed on the turntable of the Victrola. These cards, in addition to their value as a sales help, serve to keep the dust off the turntables, thereby enhancing the attractiveness of the wareroom stock. There are twenty-two cards in the complete set and they can be used to advantage by Victor dealers.

Another sales idea announced recently by this same company was a six-page booklet, entitled "There is no accepted style of phonograph which is not now represented in our wide line of instruments for your home, your cottage, camp or country place." The pages of this folder feature a complete Victrola line, including the portable model and the table models, which are particularly adapted for use during the Summer months. On the first page of the folder there is ample room for the dealer's reprint and this sales help is being used with success by Victor dealers in the development of Summer business.

SHELTON BROOKS SCORES A HIT

Alan Dale, famous dramatic critic for the New York American and a recognized leader in his profession, is now in Europe, studying the dramatic offerings abroad. Mr. Dale recently attended the Revue at the "Pavilion" in London, where the principal stars are colored artists from the United States. Among these artists is Shelton Brooks, who sings for Okeh records exclusively, and, referring to his performance in this Revue, Mr. Dale commented upon the fact that Mr. Brooks had scored a terrific hit, stating that the audience "went wild."

Sales Drive on Rural Dwellers Brings Results — Retailers Adopt Vigorous Methods—Mouth's News

RICHMOND, VA., July 7.—The Colonial Piano Corp., Columbia retailer, reports that it is getting good results from a special drive for talking machine business in rural districts contiguous to Richmond, several canvassers in automobile trucks being assigned to this territory. The canvassers make it a point to penetrate sections which are difficult to reach because of bad roads, and they have found these sections a fertile field because the people are rarely solicited and only at long intervals find it convenient to come to the city to make purchases. Moreover, because of their seclusion these people are easily sold when the recreative features of a talking machine are impressed upon them. For the most part, they buy the cheaper models, usually the Columbia D-2, which sells for $60. The company undertakes to cover territory within a radius of fifty miles, but it concentrates on territory in counties adjacent to Richmond. Many colored people are included in this trade and they nearly always prefer jazz records. Practically no portable machines are sold in the country districts, table models being preferred, as a general rule.

The Colonial Piano Corp., which has occupied new quarters at 18 West Broad street for several months, moving from 205 East Broad street, has increased its business greatly since making the move, according to James Cowan, proprietor, the new stand being more advantageous in practically every way.

The interior of the store is attractively finished in ivory, no expense having been spared to make it as attractive as possible. Business of the house during the first six months of 1923 was fully 100 per cent greater than that done in the corresponding period of last year, according to Mr. Cowan.

Other Richmond houses handling talking machines also report highly gratifying business for the first half of this year. Walter D. Moses & Co., Victor retailer, reports that its sales for that period have run far ahead of last year. It is now taking inventory for fiscal year which ended July 1. Most of the other talking machine firms close their fiscal year January 1.

Salesmen for the Moses Co. cover North Carolina and West Virginia, as well as Virginia, and they report that talking machine trade is especially good in North Carolina, the people in that State being more ready spenders than in the other States traveled by them. Upright models are favored over the flats throughout the territory, $150 being the most popular price.

A. L. Wiggins, vice-president of the Trust Co. of South Carolina, and general manager of J. L. Coker & Co., Inc., Edison dealer in Hartsville, S. C., was a recent visitor to the C. B. Haynes Co., Inc., Edison distributor, and placed a substantial order for records. Mr. Wiggins stated that he looks forward to greatly improved conditions throughout the State this Fall, and that his company plans to increase the facilities of its Edison department with a view of doing a larger business.

Wm. Benjamin & Sons, Edison dealers in Exmore, Va., have moved into their new building, which is considered to be the finest structure in that part of the State. H. E. Benjamin, general manager of the concern, stated that the new store facilities would enable them to do a much larger Edison business. An elaborate program has been arranged for the formal opening of the store, which will be featured by the appearance of an Edison artist.

J. Flegenheimer, field representative for the C. B. Haynes Co., Edison distributor, returned to Richmond headquarters after a month's work among the trade in the Carolinas. He reports dealers doing good business in North Carolina, and the dealers in South Carolina are very optimistic over the promising outlook of a good Fall crop.

New Edison dealers recently established include O. V. Hutchins, Yadkinville, N. C.; F. H. Lilly Furniture Co., Norwood, N. C.; R. E. Knight & Son, Alexandria, Va., and T. J. Hoover, Ashboro, N. C.

The Corley Co., Victor distributor, has been pushing a vacation sale of portables priced at $50 and reports a ready response from the trade. Boy Scouts as well as girl scouts have bought these models in goodly numbers preliminary to going away on camping trips. A number have also been sold for use on porches and lawns.

Dance records are easily the leaders with these machines and they are also favored, for the most part, with other models.

The Corley Co. finds that the console model is favored over the upright by its trade, the best sellers ranging in price from $100 to $200.

The C. B. Haynes Co., Edison jobber, reports a greatly increased sale of Amberolas since the price of these models was materially reduced along with the records, which are selling at 35 cents. The several models are now retailed at $30, $50 and $75. E. Bowman, president of this company, visited Orange, N. J., and had an extended interview with Thomas E. Edison. Mr. Edison, he says, was enthusiastic over prospects for the new Edison and is expecting an extra big business this Fall. He found the inventor in particularly fine health and spirits.

Recent visitors to the establishment of the Haynes Co. were George B. Corrie and C. B. Hubert, Edison dealers, respectively, at Crewe, Va., and Victoria, Va. Both reported outlook was for good business in their territory during the next few months.

DISPLAY BOOSTS PORTABLE SALES

Gulick-McFarland Co., Burlington, Ia., Devotes Large Window to Display of Portable Instruments With Excellent Results

BURLINGTON, IA., July 7.—The Gulick-McFarland Co., large furniture house which operates a store in this city and another in Ft. Madison, Ia.,

Simple but Effective Portable Display

pays considerable attention to its talking machine department. Recently the window display illustrated was staged and the results, according to Leland Q. Selzer, manager of this branch of the business, increased the sale of portable instruments and also the larger models.

This concern has another stunt which has been found unusually effective in making newspaper readers remember the firm's advertising when they happen to pass by the store. The advertising of the company in the local newspaper is always under a series of cartoons which feature the matrimonial adventures of "Jiggs." To tie up with this the firm has made an enlarged replica of this famous cartoon character, which is so placed near the entrance to the store that persons passing by cannot fail to see it, thus drawing their attention to the window.

MAMIE SMITH'S NEW OKEH RECORDS

Portable Instruments Lead in Local Machine Sales—Koerber-Brenner Co. Purchases Putnam-Page Co.—Other Trade Activities

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 9.—Business in this territory during the past month has, on the whole, been quite satisfactory, although sales were spotty. Portable instruments came into their own during the latter part of June and popular and dance records have maintained the undisputed leadership in the record sales field. Although the larger and more expensive models are not in demand just now many dealers are going after prospects with such energy that some sales are resulting.

Sales Drive on Columbias

Manager Geissler, of the Famous & Barr Co. talking machine department, recently staged a successful sales drive on discontinued models of Columbia instruments which covered a period of three weeks. The sale was about the most successful of the kind in St. Louis talking machine history. A considerable force of extra salesmen was needed. Double-page advertisements, followed by single pages in local newspapers, heralded the event.

Enlarged Duties for "Talker" Managers

In each of three large department stores here talking machine men are now in charge of both the piano and talking machine departments. In two the managers of the piano departments have recently been removed and the pianos turned over to the talking machine manager. The Stix, Baer & Fuller store was the first to take this step. Following the resignation of Manager Dockstader, of the piano department, the jurisdiction of Manager Horning, of the talking machine department, was extended over both. The most recent example of the same thing is the action of the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Co., following the resignation of Manager Elam, of the piano department, in turning that department over to Manager Hosier, of the talking machine department. Practically the same thing happened when Manager Ditzel, of the Famous & Barr piano and talking machine departments, resigned. Manager Geissler, now in charge of the two departments, has always been a talking machine man. The changes are part of the department store insistence upon more rapid turnover. It means that an effort is to be made to merchandise pianos the talking machine way in the hope of speeding up the turnover—a desirable consummation.

Early Closing Resumed

The department store talking machine departments will be closed all day each Saturday from June 14 to the first of September, resuming the custom which was inaugurated two or three years ago and which has been found satisfactory. The regular music stores will close at noon or 1 o'clock on Saturday.

Local Jobber Purchases Putnam-Page Co.

The Koerber-Brenner Co., Victor distributor, has purchased the stock and good will of the Putnam-Page Co., Victor distributor at Peoria, Ill. The Peoria office is being closed and all the merchandise, good will and experience of the Putnam-Page Co. is being brought to St. Louis. This will mean greater concentration of resources at the hub of this trade territory and the Koerber-Brenner Co. believes the acquisition of this company will add materially to its ability to better serve all of its dealers.

Drive on Edison Phonographs

Sales of the official Edison laboratory model at $295 are being promoted by Retail Manager Gold, of the Silverstone Music Co., by a trade-in campaign among Edison owners. The proposition made to them is to allow them full value on low-priced machines bought within the past six months, with a warning of a deduction of 10 or 15 per cent if it goes over into the seventh month. The campaign was especially successful in June because of the large number of December sales to work on.

Mark Silverstone, president of the Silverstone Music Co., has returned from a business trip to Chicago. M. Goldberg, vice-president, is planning a motor trip to Atlantic City this month. Geoffrey Menne is traveling in southeast Missouri. O. A. Reynolds is traveling in Illinois.

The Artophone Corp. reports excellent sales of Artophone, Spencerian and Outing portables and Okeh records.

Brisk Business at Artophone Corp.

Edwin Schiele, president of the Artophone Corp., accompanied by his wife, is touring Europe. They will not return until about September 1.

T. W. Hindley in New Post

Manager T. W. Hindley has resigned from the Aeolian Co. Vocalion department to become a distributor for the Emerson Phonograph Co.

Issues Folder on Portables

The Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. has just issued an attractive four-page folder on portable talking machines. The front page pictures its use in a canoe and the back page gives some good arguments for owning one. This is a companion to the folder issued by the same company on records of music from the Municipal Opera selections.

Frederick Keller, general manager of the Sterling Devices Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill., was a recent visitor to New York, calling upon some of the manufacturers and jobbers in this territory. In a chat with The World Mr. Keller stated that his company was making plans to rapidly increase its production of tone arms, sound boxes and attachments, in order to take care of the requirements of Fall trade. He expects to announce several important plans in the near future regarding a manufacturing and merchandising campaign for the balance of the year.

NEW OUTING DISPLAY CARD

Handsome Three-color Window Card Ready for Outing Dealers—Features Popular Slogans

The Outing Talking Machine Co., Mount Kisco, N. Y., has just issued for the use of its dealers a handsome three-colored window card which it is supplying to the trade without cost. This card is reproduced in black and white in another section of this issue of The World, although the black and white reproduction hardly does it justice. This company recently devised a new trade-mark, which is featured to advantage on the new display card. It carries out the idea of the Outing slogan, "Master of Movable Music," and also illustrates the slogan "One handle handles it." The display card is already being featured by Outing dealers generally, who are enthusiastic in praising its publicity value.

WALTER S. GRAY VISITS NEW YORK

Popular Pacific Coast Accessory Jobber Spends Week in New York—Closing Excellent Business With Standard Lines

Walter S. Gray, president of the Walter S. Gray Co., San Francisco, Cal., one of the most successful wholesale houses in the industry, was a recent visitor to New York, spending over a week in this city, visiting business and personal friends. Mr. Gray has been identified with the trade for many years and is recognized as one of the best-posted wholesalers in the trade.

In a chat with The World Mr. Gray stated that business on the Pacific Coast was excellent and that his company's sales for the first five months of the year showed a substantial increase over 1922. Mr. Gray has been particularly successful in developing business for the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., the Strand, the Outing Talking Machine Co., the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. and the Peerless Album Co., besides carrying a complete line of accessories of all descriptions. The members of his sales force visit the dealers from Oregon to Southern California and, in order to give the trade efficient service, he has established branches in Los Angeles, Cal., and Portland, Ore. Associated with Mr. Gray is his son, Robert G. Gray, who, as vice-president of the company, is proving an invaluable aid in the stimulation of accessory business on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Gray visited New York after several days in Washington, attending the Shriners' Convention, and left for the Coast by way of the Southwest.

Optimism Pervades Trade as Dealers and Jobbers Enjoy Satisfactory Business—D. Thompson in New Post—News of the Month

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, July 6.—Talking machine and record sales have been excellent despite adverse weather conditions, according to statements of dealers and jobbers. Special sales drives have been largely responsible for overcoming a natural lethargy in trade at the present time. The members of the trade, generally, are optimistic and determined to get their share of business, regardless of season.

Henry Gardner, for many years with the Daynes-Beebe Music Co. and one of the most popular men in the trade, has been given charge of the new phonograph department of the Z. C. M. I.

Dick Thompson, advertising manager of the Daynes-Beebe Music Co., has been called East by the death of his mother.

Mrs. Z. Fullmer, phonograph department of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., has returned from a month's vacation in Los Angeles taken with her mother. Manager Berry, of the phonograph department, and Manager Palmer, of the piano department, Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., with their respective families, have gone to southern Utah on a pleasure trip.

With the co-operation of the Western Arms & Sporting Goods Co., of this city, the Consolidated Music Co. got up a fine "outdoor" window, in which portable phonographs were featured. The window was arranged by Dean Daynes, brother of Manager R. W. Daynes, of the company. Much interest was aroused. The Glen Bros.-Roberts Co. has also had a nice "outdoor" window during the month, in which portables were featured.

"Ukulele" Hughes, of the O'Loughlin Co., Brunswick dealer, has had his system of teaching the ukulele, Hawaiian guitar and tenor banjo accepted by the Goodman-Rose Music Publishing Co. for early publication. The O'Loughlin people are to put in a piano department right away, according to a statement made by Harry O'Loughlin, head of the firm.

The Glen Bros.-Roberts Co. will hereafter carry only the Edison and Victor machines.

Charles Lutz, formerly employed by the Consolidated Music Co., has returned to this house to assume the position of manager of the phonograph department. He succeeds Charles Pike, who is now with the John Elliot Clark Co.

The O'Loughlin Co. has installed a lot of new fixtures and equipment and generally put this popular store in fine shape.

John Elliott Clark, head of the well-known local Victor retail and wholesale company bearing that name, is visiting the Victor factory in Camden, N. J.

Manager Spratt, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., states that the record business is showing a considerable increase. The sale of machines is also very fair, he said.

Miss Olson, of the T. C. Martin Music Co., Pocatello, Idaho, was a recent visitor.

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh branch of the Columbia Co., recently visited New York City. He spent some time at the local branch of the Columbia Co., visiting with Mr. Ireland, assistant manager of the New York branch.

"Treasure Chest" Will Aid Record Sales

Selected Records of Music Typical of Foreign Lands Is Plan Conceived by the House of Bruno to Boost Group Record Sales

One of the most important problems confronting the talking machine retailer at the present time is the sale of more records. Undoubtedly, not enough attention has been given by some dealers to this important phase of merchandising. Many instances have been found where a machine has been sold to a customer and, after the initial sale of records accompanying the machine is made, no intensive or well-planned scheme was followed to build up the customer's collection. True it is that the monthly supplement is mailed regularly, but it has reached the point where that alone will not suffice. Every retailer is confronted with the problem of whether he is to merely handle records or energetically sell them. Waiting three weeks of the month for the one busy first week has become an antiquated form of record merchandising. New forms of record exploitation, not only of the new releases but of the general catalog numbers, must be found. That there is a decided demand on the part of the dealer for new ideas in record merchandising is found in the great interest manifested by him in all suggestions for increasing his record sales.

The latest, and probably most unique, method for helping the retailer sell more records has

is represented by "My Little Sweetheart Polka," "Tarantelle of Potenzeze"; Spain by "The Little Tippler" (La Borrachita) and "The Exile" (El Desterrado); Mexico, "Mavi Waltz" and "Night of Sorrow"; Norway, "The Chalet Girl's Sunday" and "Solveig's Song" (Sunshine Song); Germany, by "O, Thou Azure Sea" and "The Cab-driver's Song," and Russia by "Song of the Volga Boatmen" and "The Bright Moon."

While some of these selections may be unfamiliar to the average person, nevertheless they are presented as being the most appropriate gems in Victor recordings which are characteristic of the countries they represent. All these selections are instrumental. Thus the inability to comprehend a foreign tongue is eliminated, but, at the same time, a full realization of the beauty of the music is available. Each record is contained in a separate envelope, which has on it a spirited and effective drawing appropriate for the music, together with an interesting and vivid annotation.

This individual description of the composition is worthy of particular note, for the owner of the set is made familiar at once with the important musical values of the selection and general interesting facts about it. The illustrations appearing on these record envelopes are again handsomely reproduced in colors on the container. It is said to be one of the most beautiful record containers that has ever been presented to the trade. It is not only entertaining to a high degree, but instructive as well, as it in reality provides the purchaser with a musical travelogue for his home. It possesses a high educational value and, while it will be a year-round seller, it is expected that it will prove particularly attractive as a holiday gift.

William J. Haussler, president of the company, in commenting on the new record "Treasure Chest," remarked: "It has never been the policy of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., in the production of material or creative ideas, to be selfish in any degree; we have rather had the purpose in mind of benefiting the Victor industry as a whole. In introducing the 'Treasure Chest' I might say that, exclusive of the amount of time devoted by members of this organization to its production, costs have already far exceeded any amount that we might hope to realize for some time to come. Furthermore, it is not our intention to retain the sole sales of these sets ourselves, but plan to place them in the hands of every Victor wholesaler. We believe that the 'Treasure Chest' will open up a new avenue of record sales activity for the Victor retailer. Aside from its value as a gift every owner of a Victrola will, doubtlessly, realize that it is a requisite to a complete record collection. In considering the preparation of this chest we also had in mind its value as a window display article. We believe that its opportunities in this respect are inexhaustible. In presenting the 'Treasure Chest' to the trade we have solely in mind the development of the record business through the selling of records in sets or in quantities, rather than the individual one-time, one-record sale over the counter. We believe that we have made the 'Treasure Chest' so attractive that it will well accomplish its purpose and open up new avenues of profit for the Victor retailer, as well as establishing the custom of selling records in groups."

A REAL PORTABLE MACHINE

Hungarian Inventor Credited With Producing Machine of Size of Watch

According to a story in a German newspaper, a Hungarian engineer by the name of Stephan Badasz has invented a talking machine which, with ten records, can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. It is stated that the instrument is about the size of a large watch with a total diameter of eight centimeters and a thickness of three and one-half centimeters. It is operated by a small clockwork motor. The record is seven centimeters in diameter and is scarcely a millimeter thick. It is capable of recording music and speeches running from five or six minutes on either side, so that the ten records can carry twenty pieces of music. It is claimed that, when placed under a table, it will record conversation that takes place around the board.

been evolved by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York City, Victor wholesalers, through their president, William J. Haussler, who has long given much attention to the subject of how best record sales may be increased. This new idea, the "Treasure Chest," is a presentation in tangible form of Mr. Haussler's concentration on this important subject. The "Treasure Chest" is a record set described as "Victor Gems of Many Lands" and is durably boxed, showing six illustrations in attractive colors. It contains six ten-inch double-faced Victor records, each selection carefully chosen for its characterization of the music of a particular country. The countries represented in this selection of music are Italy, Spain, Mexico, Norway, Germany and Russia, two selections from each country. Italy

It is pretty generally realized by now that the showing made in the way of displays and exhibits by the talking machine interests at the recent convention of the music industries in Chicago was considerably surprising to almost everybody. What is not so generally realized is that almost up to the last moment a great many talking machine and accessory men, who finally came in, were thoroughly undecided and, in fact, in many cases much bewildered over the whole proposition. There were many to say that a convention of the music industries is all right for piano men, but not good for others; and in some quarters it was freely predicted that from the talking machine point of view the exhibition would be a failure. As we all know, of course, precisely the opposite turned out to be the case. Better counsels prevailed, the doubters became convinced and the talking machine contingent made an excellent showing, from the great Brunswick room in the corner of the mezzanine floor to the many smaller but not less meritorious displays on other corridors. Not that the result was fully representative. On the contrary, one had reason to mourn the absence of some very distinguished names, but that only shows that even the best of ideas require time for their propagation. Those who did exhibit are now unanimously glad, so far as can be learned by the present writer, that they took the plunge. Some of the accessory manufacturers have been literally astounded, upon reckoning up debits and credits, with the remarkable results achieved in the way of actual sales. We can say from actual inspection of figures in certain cases that results vastly exceeded expectations. Now for next time!

FOR excellent reasons, economic and artistic alike, the art of music recording has hitherto been practiced and conducted almost entirely in the Eastern part of the country. But signs begin to appear which suggest, if no more, that the domination of the Atlantic seaboard is at last threatened in this respect. Only a short time ago, for instance, there was a settled practice of taking down to New York local orchestras and other talent whose work it was desirable to record. A little later the experiment was tried of setting up out here temporary recording plants, and the results have been so satisfactory that at present all but one or two of the recognized recording organizations are doing work in Chicago at regular intervals. It is now certain that what has proved to be more than satisfactory and convenient in some cases will be equally so in others and that in consequence we shall soon have Chicago recognized equally with New York as a settled recording headquarters. There will be many advantages in this state of affairs, which is already well on the way to accomplishment. The mid-West capital is a recognized music center. Its symphony orchestra is justly regarded as one of the very finest in the country. In the opinion of many, it is the finest. Chicago is turning out annually a remarkable number of competent young musicians, whose work is certain to lead them along the road of fame. There is, in fact, already a distinct mid-West flavor among the others in the musical mélange, and this flavor, whether in popular or in artistic music, needs to be caught and retained. It is an encouraging sign of the interest in this condition of affairs when recording houses begin to plan making Chicago their second headquarters.

EVERYBODY will agree, no doubt, that the "Midnight Frolics" of the Piano Club of Chicago gave a very good time to all the thousand and more who attended them; but it probably has not occurred to everybody that there was another side to this joyous occasion. The fact is that no less than sixteen different musical organizations, including some of the best-known recording dance orchestras in the country, appeared to play for the diners and dancers, so that for the first time in their experience hundreds of dealers in talking machines, from all parts of the country, saw and heard at first hand the work of organizations whose names and playing were familiar at second hand through their records which these merchants are all the time selling. The direct contact thus established was of the utmost value, of course, since it gave all these dealers the priceless ability to say to their customers that they had heard the work of such and such an orchestra and could compare it consequently with the recorded work. Then, again, from another point of view, it is worth noting that some of the orchestras and bands which played at the Frolics had never yet done any recording. Their work was, however, noticed and some of them have been asked since to try their hands at the delicate art of playing for the wax disc. Here are two definite facts about what was to almost everybody merely the occasion of a very noisy good time and a fit ending to one of the most successful conventions the music industries had ever carried out. Incidentally, the whole affair reflects the utmost credit upon the Piano Club of Chicago, which got up the affair and was wholly responsible for the great success achieved. We are informed, on what appears to be good authority, that nearly one-half the members of this club are connected, directly or indirectly, with the talking machine trade. The moral may be left to the intelligent reader's intelligence.

THE writer of these commentaries heard the other day a most interesting story, the truth of which he has not undertaken to investigate, but which, in all the circumstances, seems to be most probably accurate. One of the retail salesmen in the talking machine business in Chicago asked us the other day whether we had noticed how very good is the reproduction of the Kimball phonographs. We had noticed this and said so. Our informant then went on to say that when the W. W. Kimball Co. first began to make talking machines the advice was sought and obtained of professional talking machine experts in relation to general construction, but that some two years ago the company's technical men, themselves highly skilled in piano and pipe-organ tone-production, began to feel that there was more to this matter than had at first been supposed. They therefore experimented, and soon perceived that the experience and skill of men who have achieved a vast reputation as builders of fine pipe-organs ought to be turned to account in a field which, to say the least, seems to run parallel. In consequence, it is said, investigations were pursued in directions suggested by Kimball pipe-organ experience, with the result that a new dimension schedule and new design for the reproducing equipment were completely worked out, based upon the phenomena known to be associated with the motions of air columns in wooden and metal pipes. As was said, we do not know officially how far this may all be true in detail, but we feel that it is very likely quite true. Anything the Kimball people do not know about organs and tone production through pipes is not worth knowing, while the parallel between organ pipe work and the amplifying chambers of talking machines is about as close as it can well be. At any rate, Kimball talking machines possess remarkable powers for the faithful reproduction of music. And perhaps these lines may carry a hint to some who are wandering the wilderness of tonal experiment.

THROUGHOUT the West there prevails a very optimistic feeling regarding the business outlook for the coming Fall. Jobbers are emphasizing to good purpose the necessity of dealers analyzing their requirements for the Fall and holiday season so as to insure a plentiful supply of talking machines and records. Now is the time to act. Dealers can strike a fair average of the amount of stock they will need to meet their demands, and they should keep in touch with their jobbers so that by mutual understanding the most satisfactory results may accrue. There is no question but that those dealers who are studying merchandising in its truest and best sense are being properly rewarded by increasing business.

GOOD BUSINESS RESULTS FROM ENERGY OF THE TRADE IN SPITE OF EXTENDED PERIOD OF HEAT

New Models Brought Out by Manufacturers Stimulate Trade—Parts in Demand—Planning Brunswick Ad Campaign—Important Moves of Distributors and Retailers—The News

CHICAGO, ILL., July 8.—An extended period of continuous heat—the hottest temperatures ever recorded in Chicago—seemed to have little effect on the local business. The boys in this section stuck to the work, in spite of the torrid spell and managed to keep things going.

The most fortunate men in the retail trade are those who carry a line of band instruments, ukuleles and other small goods, as well as an assortment of portables, in conjunction with their regular line of uprights, consoles and records.

Before the coming of portable talking machines and musical instruments into the retail talking machine stores there was nothing else for these men to sell than the large machines and records during the hot weather season. In fact, they had little to induce people to purchase at these particular times. However, with the coming of the portable talking machine, the ukulele and other small musical instruments the retail dealer now has some incentive for refusing to become downhearted. He is now in a position to govern his trade according to weather conditions, as it were, and thereby keep his business running along at a normal level.

Convention Stimulated Trade

The recent music trade convention, as mentioned in these columns last month, stimulated the activity of various manufacturers considerably and, although quite a number of new designs were exhibited at that time, many more new models have been brought to life in the various factories since then. The tendency of the manufacturers at present is to bring out high-grade goods at acceptable prices. There is a great deal of consideration being given to the construction of cabinets and, beginning with the Fall season, we may look forward to the introduction of these new models. Some of them embody some very well-thought-out principles which have heretofore never been offered; but just how they will appeal to the trade remains to be determined later.

Mushroom Business Gone

The manufacturers as well as the retailers have at last agreed that there is a tremendous field of activity before them. Some of them have always maintained this, whereas others believed that the talking machine business would come all of a sudden and go the same way; and when it went would stay gone. But, happily, the fellows who believed this have gone the way they thought business was going and, if anyone cares to harken back to the days of the world war, when there were hundreds of men putting out machines, he can easily convince himself that these mushroom concerns have gone the way of all mushrooms. Happily, the men who believed that the business was here to stay are still on deck. These men know that the activity at one period of the old days was tremendous and that there is no reason why it cannot reach the same stage again. For the hundreds who produced machines in those days there are only tens now, but these tens are determined to push the talking machine business to the healthy position it was in when it was temporarily invaded by the hundreds of mushroom manufacturers. They know that business is there to be had and that high-quality goods carrying popular prices or prices within reach of the public can bring about another boom in business. They are working consistently to bring this boom about as quickly as possible.

Big Call for Talking Machine Parts

The local manufacturers of talking machine parts are reporting that this increase of business is a certainty, as their order books are showing that the various firms they have been supplying are increasing their orders constantly. Quite a number of these manufacturers assert that they are practically sold up for the coming months and that the only way that they can take care of more business will be to increase their capacity to a considerable extent. Wherefore many of these manufacturers at present are taking on more space and equipping it with machinery and other necessary adjuncts that will enable them to keep in line with the coming stimulation of activities.

arms, and it is these very motor and tone arm men who were the pioneers in the belief that there was tremendous talking machine business to be had when the trade stabilized itself. Their dreams, if we may be permitted to call them dreams, are at last being realized, as the trade has stabilized itself to a remarkable degree. The old hit-and-miss methods are a thing of the past. Manufacturers and retailers are at last in accord with one another and the buying public may rest assured that the goods they are getting to-day, as well as those they will get tomorrow, will carry a value worthy of the price asked for them.

Brunswick Expansion in Several Directions

A. J. Kendrick, sales manager of the Phonograph Division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., makes the announcement that one of the most remarkable national newspaper advertising campaigns ever organized by any industry in the history of the country is in preparation and will be launched at an early date. The details these plans embrace have not as yet been disclosed by Mr. Kendrick, but it is understood that a tremendous amount of daily newspaper space will be utilized during the campaign.

Mr. Kendrick also gives out the information that the Brunswick Co. will soon announce to the trade plans for expansion in Brunswick cabinet production at all plants of the company. Several months ago plans were put into effect which enabled Brunswick to increase its cabinet capacity considerably. These plans were decided upon in an effort to anticipate Fall and Winter demands.

Owing, however, to the recent activity of the Brunswick sales force throughout the country, the cabinet plants were worked to capacity and consequently there is at present no possibility of getting supplies of cabinets on hand to take care of anticipated Fall and Winter increases. Therefore it was found necessary to take care of this increase, a large per cent of

A Letter to the Trade

We have insisted since January 1st that 1923 would be a banner year. We have had faith in American business. Therefore we could see nothing but prosperity ahead of us.

The U. S. Treasury report as of June 30th, 1923, shows a surplus of $309,657,460.00 for the close of its fiscal year. We feel well rewarded for our faith in American business.

Not only in the talking machine industry, but in every other line of activity in this country, we find that all anticipations for the balance of the year are highly optimistic.

At this particular time there is usually a decline in business owing to the vacation season, etc. The Blood Tone Arm Co., however, like all other manufacturers of high grade products, now finds itself working to capacity in an effort to take care of this constantly growing demand for Blood products.

Those who are using, or planning to use, the famous Blood Mono-Turn tonearm or other Blood products should at once anticipate their Fall requirements. Present indications convince us that there will be a still further increase in business activities for the balance of the year and we would therefore suggest that orders be given well in advance, whereby deliveries when deliveries are needed may be assured.

Orders are handled as received and filled for shipment accordingly.

Have faith in the business of America.

which is already booked, and the new departure regarding production was decided upon.

It might also be mentioned here that Mr. Kendrick, with several other heads of the Brunswick Co., expects to leave for a six weeks' coast trip beginning July 20. The purpose of the trip is to not only confer with the district managers through the West, but with Brunswick dealers as well, in order that first-hand information may be had regarding the activities contemplated by the Westerners during the balance of the year.

Gigantic Paramount Campaign

The New York Recording Laboratories, manufacturer of Paramount records, used a striking two-color, full-page advertisement in a recent issue of the Chicago Defender to feature "Bleeding-hearted Blues," a new record by Alberta Hunter, well-known negro artist. This company has been making a special drive on developing the demand for records by negro artists and results to date have been very satisfactory. Quite a number of Paramount dealers in this territory co-operated with the New York Recording Laboratories in tying up with this excellent publicity.

A Window Display That Excited Comment

Andrew J. Petersen, of Petersen's Milford Music Shop, 3301 Milwaukee avenue, recently had a Sonora window display which proved remarkably effective in spite of its extreme simplicity and the fact that it required no outlay, all of the materials and goods being on hand. The window, which is always decorated with attractive rugs, pedestals, artificial flowers, etc., contained two Sonora models, one of the console type and the "baby grand" upright. Around the window Sonora catalogs open to the illustrations of the various period styles were placed on fixtures. The window pane was bordered sides, top and bottom with the Sonora "walking doll" novelties. Sonora window posters, the agency authorization, etc., were also used to good effect. That was all there was to it, but the number of comments made on the display caused Mr. Petersen to think it one of the best they have ever made.

Taking Advantage of Radio Popularity

The Ellers, father and son, of the Ellers Music Shop, 2702 West Division street, this city, are anything if not progressive, and the window displays which are handled by the younger man always betray initiative and progressiveness. At the outset of the radio craze he made up his mind that the radio would prove in the end a vast benefit to the talking machine and music business as must any medium of spreading musical knowledge. He believes that the demand for better music inculcated by the classical programs will eventually lead to an increased demand for musical instruments of all kinds.

In the meantime he took advantage of the popular programs to increase the sale of records in an ingenious manner. The programs of the concerts were cut out of the evening papers and pasted on the window the next morning with ribbons tipped onto the numbers of which he had records in stock, and leading back to those records attractively displayed on individual fixtures around the window. Occasionally instead of the record the ribbon would lead to a card stating "We have in stock the record of this selection you heard on your radio last night." The plan was discontinued during the embargo on popular copyright numbers, but will be revived as it proved decidedly successful and was the means of increasing record sales.

R. L. Rayner Tells of Pacific Coast Conditions

A visitor was R. L. Rayner, of the Munson-Rayner Corp., of Los Angeles, Cheney distributor of that city. He was returning from an Eastern trip and on his way home stopped off for a few days in Chicago to visit the Cheney headquarters here. He spent considerable time with the local World representative, telling of the business outlook in the California section. He also told, in a most simple and unaffected manner, exactly what he thought of the Cheney talking machine, what Munson-Rayner is doing to further Cheney sales and the prospects for Cheney's future in the territory looked after by his organization. The impression Mr. Rayner left with The World representative was that, if all talking machine distributors were as thoroughly sold on their instruments as Mr. Rayner is on Cheney, it would not be long before the talking machine industry would be the leading industry of the entire country.

will be in oils. The latter are to be erected in various towns and cities for the purpose of featuring local dealers and the former along the great and well-traveled highway from San Diego to San Francisco. The color scheme of these posters will be of the three-colored type, using the primary colors with combinations of each compounded so as to bring out vivid oranges, greens and purples in conjunction with pleasing shadows of red, yellow and blue. Of the painted boards there are at present fifty erected, each poster bearing the name and address of the local Cheney dealer, as well as a large portrait of a Cheney console model. All the posters which are erected in cities will be electrically lighted at night.

Okeh-Strand Publicity

A. F. Bennest, who travels the northern Indiana territory for the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., recently purchased a new automobile, replacing the old one which he used to cover this territory. In order to get the utmost of

Great Cheney Signboards in Colors Used by Munson-Rayner Corp. on Highways

Mr. Rayner also talked concerning the advertising plans being put into effect by the Munson-Rayner Corp. and its Cheney dealers on the Coast and said that by the first of September there will be 250 outdoor billboards featuring the Cheney talking machine. Each billboard is to be forty feet in length by ten feet in height, with pilasters on either end and surrounded by a well-kept patch of lawn.

Of these 250 billboards 150 will be of the twenty-four-sheet poster type and the other 100

This auto is becoming well known throughout the territory Mr. Bennest covers and word comes that the idea has enthused other talking machine travelers in that territory, who are contemplating the decoration of their autos in like manner.

Speaking of automobiles, we are again reminded of the activities of Harry Schoenwald, sales manager of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., who recently received a floral piece from admiring friends when he broke all speed

Westphono Manager on Trip

Ben Wood, sales manager of Westphono, Inc., left Chicago the first of the month for a three weeks' trip through the Eastern territory, where he will call on the trade. The portable talking machine known as the Spencerian, which is put out by this concern, has, since its introduction to the trade, made quite an impression on the dealers and jobbers throughout the country. This proved to be especially true at the time of the convention in Chicago, where it was on exhibit.

Now Jobbing Swanson

The Consolidated Talking Machine Co. has just taken on the exclusive representation of the Swanson portable talking machine in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and part of Ohio. Although the Consolidated Co. took on this line but two weeks ago President Fearn is very enthusiastic over his success with these well-known machines.

The Swanson portable is one of the oldest instruments of its kind in the trade. It is considered one of the lightest that has ever been put on the market and embodies many unique features which are fully covered by patents. One of the Swanson's foremost features is the tone arm, which is a hollow wooden tube, wherein is inserted the reproducer. The distant end of this tube is swung on a pivot and an opening at this end directs the sound directly into a corner of the top lid, thereby utilizing this lid as an amplifier.

Okeh Records in Chicago

Taking advantage of the appearance of some of its foremost talent in Chicago the Okeh record division of the General Phonograph Corp. established a temporary record laboratory in this city on June 21, 22 and 23. This is the first time in the history of Okeh recording that a temporary recording laboratory was established in this city, but the results obtained were so encouraging that it was decided to do the same thing again in Chicago late in August, and then for an indefinite period. The recordings here were handled by Fred W. Hager, manager of the Okeh recording laboratory, assisted by Charles Hibbard. The executive work of this recording, as well as the handling of various artists who appeared, was looked after by Ralph S. Peer, of Okeh's executive department.

Piano Club Closes Membership Drive

The Piano Club of Chicago now boasts a membership of 345. That number, according to Harry D. Schoenwald, sales manager of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. and treasurer of the Piano Club, was reached as the result of a membership drive which closed on June 25, during which seventy-five new members were taken in, of whom fifty-eight are resident members and seventeen non-resident. When the drive was put on twenty teams of five men each, all members of the Club, were enrolled for the purpose of getting new members and the winners are to receive prizes. The membership committee team, headed by Mr. Schoenwald, scored a total of 18½ points, the next team, headed by J. T. Bristol, scored 13½ points and the third place was captured by R. E. Davis, whose team scored 12 points. The points were won on a basis of one point for resident members and one-half a point for non-resident members.

Oro-Tone's First Picnic

The Oro-Tone Co., manufacturer of the well-known Oro-Tone tone arms, Victor-Edison and Edison-Victor attachments, and Oro-Tone portable talking machines, held its first picnic on Saturday, June 23, at the country home of Mrs. L. K. Scotford, wife of the late L. K. Scotford, former president of the Oro-Tone Co. The Scotford Summer home is located in the North Shore district, near Waukegan, Ill., and the fifty or more members of the Oro-Tone Co., who met at the plant Saturday morning, motored to the scene of the gathering in large motor buses.

En route to the picnic the motor buses passed the North Shore Cemetery and the party stopped for a few minutes in order to place a wreath on the tomb of Mr. Scotford and pay their respects to his memory. On reaching the Scotford Summer home the party indulged itself for a day with lake bathing, dancing to music of the Oro-Tone portable talking machine, baseball games, racing and so forth. Prizes were donated by the company to the winners of the various events.

The picnickers returned to Chicago at a late hour Saturday night and such an enjoyable time

J. G. Griswold Returns From Europe

After ten weeks of visiting the British Isles and Europe J. G. Griswold, vice-president of the Widdicomb Furniture Co., has returned to headquarters at Grand Rapids, Mich. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Griswold and two members of the Widdicomb Co., Andrew Johnson, superintendent, and William Balbach, designer. All the important cities and art galleries in Europe were visited.

Jewel Phonoparts Active

One of the busiest plants in this section so far during the Summer months is that of the Jewel Phonoparts Co. According to A. B. Cornell, treasurer and sales director of this concern, the talking machine industry has stabilized itself in a remarkable manner and the manufacturers of complete instruments, parts and accessories have before them only a clear field. The last few months have shown that there is a tremendous amount of business to be had and that all that remains for the producers to do is to give the trade what it wants; namely, high-class goods at reasonable prices, and there is nothing to prevent the man who does this from cleaning up an immense amount of business.

"There is nothing remarkable about the increased activities of the Jewel Phonoparts Co.," continued Mr. Cornell, "as we have always maintained that high-grade goods would, sooner or later, get the preference of the business to be had and this can be proved conclusively if one cares to look back a few years and compare the vast number of manufacturers of those days with the small number of to-day. This indicates that the few of to-day are producing genuine merchandise and it is due to this alone that they were able to weather the period of depression."

New Stores and Changes

The Avalon Music Shop is the title of a new retail store which was recently opened with headquarters at 1549 East Seventy-ninth street. The proprietor of this new establishment is J. J. Pendergast, who will retail Okeh and Odeon records, Strand talking machines and a number of high-grade accessories. The location of this store is within a stone's throw of the immense municipal bathing beach on the South Shore, in which section many of Chicago's elite maintain their Summer residences.

H. Schuckert has taken over the store formerly conducted by Joseph F. Neises at 5451 South Ashland avenue. This retail shop is one of the most flourishing in the West Englewood section, handling Okeh and Odeon records and Strand talking machines.

The Phonograph Shop, of Oak Park, handling Brunswick talking machines and records and Okeh and Odeon records, has moved from its old location at 121 Marion street to new and larger headquarters at 124 Marion street. The new location now boasts of five beautifully equipped hearing rooms.

A. Bastiani, proprietor of a talking machine store at 410 West Division street, announces the opening of a new retail store at 2707 West Thirty-eighth street. The Division street store handles a line of Okeh and Odeon records and Strand talking machines and the new store will represent the same lines.

The Austin Music Shop, at 5748 West North avenue, one of the liveliest Okeh, Odeon and Strand accounts in this section, has taken on the entire line of Consolidated musical instruments. The Consolidated Co. was recently appointed exclusive jobber for Chicago territory for a number of the best musical instrument manufacturers in the country.

Audak Now Strong With Trade

Quite a number of Chicago concerns have recently equipped their retail warerooms with the celebrated Audak devices for the demonstrating of talking machine records. These little instruments are cleverly devised for the purpose of increasing the available hearing room space for record customers. They can be arranged on counters or small tables outside the regular hearing rooms for the purpose of listening to records, so that the proprietor of the talking machine store may utilize his regular hearing rooms exclusively for the demonstration of the talking machines he handles. Among the many places of business which have recently equipped their talking machine departments with Audak are The Fair and Rothschilds Co., two of Chicago's biggest Loop department stores.

Old-time Concern Dissolving

The Michigan Phonograph Co., of Grand Rapids, which at one time marketed a talking machine known as the Lauzon, is bringing its activities to a close. This company was one of the first in the Grand Rapids furniture district to market a high-grade talking machine. The heads of the concern since its inception were George M. Cook and H. W. Knoblauch. The company was in good financial condition at the time of its dissolution and the discontinuance was brought about by the ill health of the partners, especially Mr. Cook.

Brunswick President on "Leviathan"

A number of Chicago's most prominent business men have returned to this city after enjoying themselves for a few days on the trial trip of the "Leviathan." Among the Chicagoans who made the trip was B. E. Bensingler, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., who received his invitation from Alfred D. Lasker, chairman of the Shipping Board, and an old business friend. In civil life Mr. Lasker is president of Lord & Thomas, Inc., the advertising agency which has its main headquarters at Chicago and which directs all advertising of the Brunswick Co.

Planning 1923 Radio Show

Extensive plans for the holding of the 1923 Radio Show at the Coliseum, Chicago, are being put into effect. The plans for this show are under the direction of U. J. (Sport) Herman and supervision of James F. Kerr, the same man who so successfully pulled off the Radio Show of 1922 at the Coliseum.

Although last year's show went down in history as the first really successful radio exhibit ever held in this section of the country, indications are that the 1923 show will far surpass it. The date of the coming exhibit has not been definitely arranged, but it will take place some time in November.

The plans this year call for arrangements in broadcasting and receiving which are scheduled to be very interesting and enlightening to the public and from present indications the gate receipts of the coming show will prove it to be one of the greatest expositions ever held in the Coliseum.

W. D. Montgomery Returns to Unico

After several months engaged in special work pertaining to the sale of talking machines, W. D. Montgomery has returned to his desk as district manager of the Chicago division of the Unit Construction Co. During Mr. Montgomery's absence the Chicago office was looked after by George A. Lyons, assistant general sales man.

Nearly Two Million Krasco Motors in Use

At the present moment we are more than doubling our output. During the past year our sales have tripled—WHY?

Because the trade has become critical and discriminating.

The PUBLIC demand silent motors.

The DEALERS demand trouble-proof motors.

The MANUFACTURERS demand sturdiness, quality, design and finish.

And right now the makers—dealers—users demand sharp, close prices.

Our steadily increasing business is due to the fact that the KRASCO motor (the same motor used in the Krasco Assembled Unit) meets all these demands. To do this it must be a better motor.

Mandel Mfg. Co. He recently became associated with the Excel people and since his joining this company has made a remarkable showing in the sale of Excel products. Besides a full line of upright, console and portable talking machines, this concern is exhibiting its well-known little Columbian baby grand piano. This little instrument has made quite an impression upon furniture dealers because of its tone and small size, which is fifty-nine by fifty-six inches.

Local Vocalion Activities

Announcement is made this month by F. W. Clement, manager of Vocalion's Chicago headquarters, that this office is now Western distributor for the Pooley Furniture Co., of Philadelphia. Mr. Clement now has on display the entire line of high-grade Pooley talking machines, consisting of uprights and consoles, ranging in price from $115 to $250.

Mr. Clement also gave out the news that his office has been appointed mid-Western distributor for the Standex, manufactured by the Musical Products Distributing Co., of New York City. Standex is a cleverly designed little record display stand. It is made of stamped sheet steel and comes packed six in a carton, which sells to the trade for $2.75. This little display stand is very neat in appearance and may be used for displaying ten-inch or twelve-inch records. Its finish is in black crystallized lacquer.

In commenting on business Mr. Clement stated that June proved to be one of the best months so far this year and that July promised even to exceed the business of June.

One of the best little trade stimulators that was ever handled by Mr. Clement is the little combination Vocalion record cleaner and needle holder which was recently announced by his concern. This little cleaner is in reality a round tin box, which holds 500 needles. On the back is printed a facsimile of the well-known Vocalion label and the upper lid is covered by a piece of colored velvet, which can be utilized as a record cleaner. These little cleaners have been greatly appreciated by the local trade because they offer a new avenue for the sale of needles.

Improved Record Department

The retail roll and Okeh record departments of the W. W. Kimball Co. were recently consolidated and put under the sole management of Miss Ruth C. Strickland, who has had charge of the talking machine department of this concern for the past ten years.

Miss Strickland says the consolidation of both roll and record departments stimulated trade because buyers coming for rolls will invariably interest themselves in records and vice versa. The department is arranged so that the shelves on one side contain records and on the other side rolls. Both are within easy reach of the hearing rooms, each of which contains a player-piano and a talking machine.

Regarding the sales of Kimball instruments Miss Strickland says that the Kimball Style H upright, coming in mahogany, walnut and oak, is proving to be an exceptionally good seller; and the same holds true of the new Kimball console Style S, which comes in mahogany, walnut or oak finish. Style S is fully equipped with six albums, automatic stop, two-spring motor, and its size is 35 inches high, 37½ inches wide and 21¾ inches deep.

Whelan Twin Weds

On the afternoon of July 10 Miss Afra K. Whelan, one of the twin daughters of Eugene Whelan, assistant manager of the retail department of the W. W. Kimball Co., will become the bride of Woodburn Winings, technical expert for the Goodyear Rubber Co. The wedding will take place at the Whelan residence, at 5328 Hyde Park boulevard.

Pathé in Loop Office

The Interstate Phonograph Co., local wholesale representative of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Co., is now located at 533 South Wabash avenue, having moved from its old location at 427 West Erie street. The new headquarters continue to be directed by W. E. Hotchkiss, who is one of the best-known men in the talking machine business and at one time was connected with several of the largest manufacturing concerns in the East.

In the new headquarters there is now being shown the entire line of Pathé phonographs, Pathé records and Pathé radio parts and among the most prominently featured in these show-rooms is the new Pathé console, which was recently announced to the mid-Western trade. The Pathé Co. is fortunate in the location of its newly acquired mid-Western production plant, which enables the trade in this section to get immediate shipments of the new lines of consoles the Pathé Co. announced a short time ago.

According to Manager Hotchkiss the new Pathé needle-cut record has been well received by the local trade. New accounts taking on the new Pathé machines and records are constantly growing in number, there being approximately 1,000 of them since the first of the year.

The new Pathé consoles are known as Nos. 31, 36 and 40, ranging in retail price from $110 to $185 and $15 additional for electric motor equipment. Model No. 40 is of the Italian renaissance period, furnished in mahogany and oak and carrying the Universal tone arm. No. 36 is the Queen Anne type, furnished in brown mahogany and walnut, and No. 31 is furnished in brown mahogany and oak. The new Model No. 15 is of the upright type and comes in mahogany finish and the Pathé portable may be had in mahogany, golden oak, fumed oak or fabrikoid leather.

Miss Wiswell Graduates With Honors

Miss Elizabeth Wiswell, daughter of Leslie C. Wiswell, of Lyon & Healy, prominent Victor jobbers, has graduated with honors from the Francis Sheimer School extension course of the University of Chicago.

Take on the Cheney Line

It was announced at headquarters of the Cheney Talking Machine Co. this week that Young & Chaffee Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., had taken on the complete Cheney line, and elaborate preparations have been made for the retailoring of this well-known line of instruments. Young & Chaffee conduct the largest department store in the western part of Michigan and maintain their headquarters in the heart of the business district. This concern has proceeded to set forth the merits of the Cheney line in a manner which is proving agreeably surprising even to the population of Grand Rapids, where the Cheney factories and the Cheney name are thoroughly familiar.

Opens New Store

The Benson Music Shop, at 2135 West Chicago avenue, one of the best-known retail music concerns of this section of the city, has opened a new store at 5915 Division street, where the entire line of Brunswick talking machines and records are being handled.

Remodeling Headquarters

The Reichardt Piano Co., at 1311 Milwaukee avenue, is making major preparations to take care of anticipated Fall business. This concern, one of the oldest retail establishments in Chicago, has been handling Victor and Columbia talking machines and records for many years, as well as a number of high-grade pianos. During the time it has been in business the Reichardt Co. has built up an enviable clientele. Among the many plans which this company has for taking care of an increased Fall business is one which brings about a complete remodeling of the entire store. Heretofore the talking machine department was located on the first floor, but the new remodeling plans call for its location on the second floor. This change admits of greater possibilities for increasing the talking machine department, as well as the installation of many more new demonstration and hearing rooms.

Rusticating in New Jersey

A. B. Cornell, of the Jewel Phonoparts Co., left Chicago on Saturday, June 30, for his farm at Somerville, N. J. Mr. Cornell contemplates staying the entire month of July in company with his family on the farm. While on his vacation Mr. Cornell will keep in close touch with activities at the Jewel plant and he expects to devote some time to planning and making preparations for business during the balance of the year.

The Jewel Co. has a number of interesting features concerning its product which it expects to announce to the trade during the coming months and in all likelihood we may look forward to some new Jewel products to be added to the line which will prove of great interest to Jewel clientele.

Miss Powell Motors to Kentucky

Miss E. E. Powell, secretary of the Tonofone Co., left Chicago July 5 for a ten days' motor tour of the South. She is accompanied on the trip by her sister and infant niece. The party left Chicago and motored directly to Paducah, Ky., where Miss Powell's parents reside. A stop for several days will be made there and then the party will leave for Memphis, Tenn., to visit other relatives before the return trip is made.

amount of inquiries for the semi-invisible hinge which it manufactures. Not only are these inquiries from local concerns, but they also have been received from all parts of the world. This hinge is so constructed that it is placed on the top and bottom edges of the doors of the talking machine. Material used in this construction is highly tempered ribbon steel and at the same time the tempering will permit its bending rather than breaking when under a strain. The Lakeside Supply Co. also reports that dealers throughout the country are showing an exceptional interest in radio during the Summer months and many of these dealers are anticipating their Fall wants by placing orders. It is the common belief in this section of the country that the coming Fall months will bring about a big increase in the radio business.

Eckhardt With Ad Agency

Walter Eckhardt, who for the past year was in charge of the retail dealer sales department of the Wallace Institute, manufacturer of the well-known Wallace reducing records, has severed his connection with that institution and is now associated with the firm of Maxwell & McLaughlin, an advertising agency, with headquarters in the People's Trust Building, this city.

Prior to his coming into the talking machine field, over five years ago, Mr. Eckhardt was associated with several nationally known advertising concerns which specialize on music copy.

During his association with the Wallace Institute Mr. Eckhardt built up a considerable retail clientele throughout the music field and he was helped materially in doing this by virtue of a large dealer acquaintance gained in his many years' service as sales manager for the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with headquarters in Chicago. In view of his long association with the talking machine trade, Mr. Eckhardt will continue to specialize in this field.

The Cheney Resonator

The June edition of the Cheney Resonator has just come from the printers and, as usual, the entire four pages are full of interesting articles and items concerning Cheney, as well as a number of prints showing the style of newspaper advertisements that the Cheney advertising department has prepared for Cheney dealers. One of the important articles printed on the first page gives some interesting facts about the fine new Cheney posters which were recently printed. These posters, by the way, show a sort of phantom or X-Ray view of the

Cheney instrument and the text matter calls attention to the patented Cheney acoustic system which is a progressive series of resonators that scientifically controls sound.

Another item of important interest printed in the Cheney Resonator is the second article of a series of articles on the scientific basis of Cheney construction. This series of articles is so written as to be extremely interesting and takes the reader through the various steps and stages of sound wave recording and reproduction and then goes on to tell how the Cheney acoustic system regenerates these sound waves.

CUTTING & WASHINGTON SALES PLANS

Prominent Minneapolis Radio Manufacturers Will Introduce Special Product for Talking Machine Trade—Herbert A. Brennan in Charge of Sales for the Company

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., July 6.—Considerable interest has been aroused here by a recent announcement coming from headquarters of the Cutting & Washington Radio Corp. that this concern will introduce a new model radio receiving set in a few days. It is understood that this new instrument, which carries the most modern radio developments, is built especially to cater to the requirements of the talking machine field.

For the past fifteen years both Dr. Fulton Cutting and Bowden Washington, heads of the company, have been regarded as leaders in the radio field and they have originated many important units used in radio receiving. Much of the equipment brought out by them is considered standard and this is said to be especially true in so far as present-day naval radio equipment is concerned.

Sales of Cutting & Washington instruments are being handled by Herbert A. Brennan, whom the talking machine trade has known for many years. Mr. Brennan was formerly associated with the Victor Talking Machine Co. and the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. and more recently has made a detailed study of the sales possibilities for radio product in the talking machine field.

Extensive plans for the music dealer have been made for the Cutting & Washington Radio Corp., under the direction of the Reincke-Ellis Co., a prominent advertising and dealer service organization, which maintains headquarters in Chicago. These plans call for publicity of every form that will enable the retailer to hold the attention of the purchasing public. Reincke-Ellis have for many years made a specialty of this particular branch of advertising and in the talking machine field have concentrated their activities upon the Victor retail trade, working with the Victor distributors.

RECEIVES SEDAN ON BIRTHDAY

A. Abelowitz, Metropolitan Dealer, Celebrates Fifty-fifth Birthday

The entire family of A. Abelowitz, well-known Victor and Brunswick dealer, who has been engaged in the talking machine business in New York City for more than twenty years, participated in the anniversary of his fifty-fifth birthday on July 5. A surprise gift of a Paige sedan was presented to Mr. Abelowitz by his four children, Chester, Harry, Sam and Hannah. The former is the metropolitan sales representative of the Brunswick Co. and the latter three are connected with their father's business, the Abelowitz Phonograph Co. Neil Abelowitz, another member of the family, recently purchased the Ansonia Music Shop on Broadway.

SAIL FOR EUROPEAN TOUR

A visit to England and a tour of the Continent have been planned by Mrs. Ralph L. Freeman, wife of Ralph L. Freeman, director of distribution of the Victor Co., and their three children and Mrs. Edward K. MacEwan, a sister of Mrs. Freeman and wife of the secretary of the Victor Co., who sailed recently on the United States liner "Pittsburgh."

Among the recent visitors to the Victor Talking Machine Co. in Camden, N. J., was Jerome Harris, manager of the jobbing interests of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., New York City.

Haverty-Columbia Deal—Watkin Honored—New Concerns—Distributors Make Satisfactory Reports

DALLAS, TEX., July 5.—The Columbia Graphophone Co. has just closed a deal whereby the Haverty Furniture Co., of Dallas, has purchased the entire stock of the former company carried in its Dallas and Atlanta warehouses. This is said to be the largest talking machine deal ever made in the Southwest and includes transfer of more than 1,000 machines for a little more than $100,000. Five different models of the Columbia machines were included in the lot. The purchase was made by B. T. Stanford, secretary of the Haverty Furniture Co. and general manager of the Dallas store. Victor B. Lowrey, advertising manager and in charge of talking machine sales, has already launched a big advertising campaign and has placed the newly purchased machines on sale at special prices. Mr. Lowrey has already sold more than three carloads of talking machines so far this year and reports business unusually good for the Summer season. He anticipates little difficulty in disposing of the entire lot of Columbia machines.

Work of R. N. Watkin

Robert N. Watkin, of the Will A. Watkin Co., 1207 Elm street, Dallas, who, as reported in The World, was recently elected president of the National Association of Music Merchants, has been largely responsible for the remarkable growth of the musical industry in the Southwest in the last few years. To his efforts is largely due the success that has attended the inauguration of Music Week in Dallas, which has now spread to other cities and towns in Texas until there is hardly a community that does not observe Music Week, and the musical industry receives a big impetus therefrom.

Plan National Musical Week

Mr. Watkin reports that the National Association of Music Industries, through its chairman, Otto H. Kahn, of New York, is now at work on plans for a National Music Week next year. Governors of all the States that have held Music Weeks have been invited to become members of the honorary committee, and Mr. Watkin, president of the National Association of Music Merchants, and Mrs. John F. Lyons, of Fort Worth, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, have been chosen to represent Texas on the general committee. Dallas is one of the three cities in the country that have held music week for the last three consecutive years. About 150 cities in the entire country have held music week for two consecutive years.

Dallas now boasts of three presidents of music industries organizations: D. L. Whittle is president of the Dallas Music Merchants' Association; William Howard Beasley, of the State Music Merchants' Association, and Robert N. Watkin, of the National Association of Music Merchants.

New Concerns Organized

The Gunst Music Co. has been organized at Fort Worth, Tex., and has opened a retail store at 500 Houston street, with Ernest L. Conkling, formerly with the Citizens' Savings & Loan Association, as sales manager. The Gunst Music Co. has secured a long lease on the building at 500 Houston street, formerly occupied by the Conkling-Grimes Piano Co. The company will handle pianos, sheet music, various musical instruments and several standard makes of talking machines. Jesse S. Aldridge, well-known music merchant of Fort Worth, is manager of this company.

The Mason Music Co., Inc., is the style of a recently organized music company in San Antonio, Tex., which has been incorporated with capital stock of $20,000. Incorporators are G. W. Parish, L. E. Robinson and J. W. Mason. The company will retail pianos, musical instruments of all kinds, sheet music and talking machines.

The Phonograph Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., has been organized with capital stock of $25,000 to conduct a retail store, dealing in Edisons. The incorporators are A. C. Dennis, R. H. Sherman and W. J. Davidson.

Good Business Enjoyed

Dallas distributors of various makes of talking machines report continued good business. Good crop prospects over Texas have induced a marked feeling of confidence and the retail trade in the various cities and towns continues good, despite the seasonal dullness, according to reports received by Dallas jobbers, and their sales bear out these statements.

Sanger Bros., jobbers of Victrolas and Victor records, which firm perhaps sells more talking machines to the small town merchants in this trade territory than any other firm in Dallas, owing to the fact that it is an old well-established firm and has been selling goods for more than half a century, reports an unusually heavy demand for new machines and for records. The

Prominent Dallas, Tex., Edison Distributor in Permanent New Quarters—Former Warehouses Destroyed by Fire Some Time Ago

DALLAS, TEX., July 2.—The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, whose headquarters in this city were so badly damaged by fire recently that the concern was compelled to secure other quarters in order to avoid interruptions in supplying its large clientele with Edison instruments and records, is now located in the spacious and well-equipped building shown in the illustration, in front of which are standing part of the warehouse and office personnel. Despite the confusion and loss occasioned by the fire the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co.'s service to its dealers suffered little interruption and business is now going on at a normal pace.

development of radio in the Southwest is believed in part responsible for the heavy demand for Victrolas and records. Many homes in the small towns and rural districts have installed radio receiving sets to pick up programs from Dallas, Fort Worth and other broadcasting centers and once the programs are picked up there is created at once a desire for more music. Investigation shows that nine out of ten homes equipped with a radio receiving set also have talking machines and good selections of records.

The Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., distributor of Edison machines in Texas and Oklahoma, is now well established in its new building on Jackson street, and O. G. Feltner, manager, reports business is altogether satisfactory.

The Sonora Distributing Co., of Texas, of which Earle D. Behrends is president, distributor of Sonora phonographs and Vocalion records, reports a satisfactory demand for both machines and records. The record business is somewhat better than the machine business, according to Mr. Behrends.

Numerous retail music stores in Dallas, dealing in talking machines of various makes, are following the lead of the Haverty Furniture Co., which has put on special sales of Columbia discontinued models.

Early Closing in Effect

The Dallas Music Industries Association, which includes all merchants in Dallas dealing in musical instruments, has voted to close their places of business on Saturday afternoons during the months of July and August. The Association has discontinued its weekly luncheon meeting for the Summer and the next luncheon will be in September, at which Robert N. Watkin will be the chief speaker.

MATT HOHNER IN EUROPE

Matt Hohner, of M. Hohner, harmonica and musical instrument manufacturer, of New York, sailed for Europe recently on the "George Washington." He will visit the Hohner factories in Trossington, Germany, and will return to New York some time in September.

A SIGNIFICANT QUESTION

MORE than 5,000 times this test has been made by more than 75 artists. Five million music lovers could detect no difference between the Edison performance and the living performance.

SIGNIFICANT indeed is the question asked on the back cover of this magazine.

The answer would reveal that more and more discriminating music-lovers are demanding the one phonograph that dares the test of direct comparison with the living artist.

Live Methods of Dealers Pay Dividends—How L. E. Carl Makes Summer Sales—Meeting of State Sonora Dealers—Month's News

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 7.—Talking machine business in this city and surrounding territory has been very satisfactory during the past month or six weeks. This is partly due to the unremitting efforts of the more aggressive dealers in sales promotion work of all kinds. Advertising, window displays and other methods of bringing the various types of merchandise handled before the public are playing a large part in the satisfactory conditions prevalent here now and indications for the immediate future of business are excellent.

Proof That Summer Trade Is Active

A typical example of the way in which some dealers are determined to get business is that of Leslie E. Carl, Edison dealer at Deposit, N. Y., a fair-sized community not far from here. The photograph illustrates the confidence of Mr. Carl in his ability to make sales during the Summer months. This is only one of several shipments of Edison instruments which have been made to this enterprising merchant. Although Mr. Carl's store is located in a town of about 1,000 population he has established a very good business by reaching out into the surrounding communities. He is a firm believer in canvassing and many sales have been made through this agency. Publicity and advertising of all kinds have also helped materially. Mr. Carl is the type of merchant who believes that sales can be made regardless of the season or weather and the fact that Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., Edison distributors, with headquarters in Syracuse, find it necessary to make regular shipments of all models of the New Edison is sufficient indication that he is doing an excellent business, despite the fact that the Summer season is upon us.

State Sonora Dealers Meet

The “get-together” meeting of New York State Sonora dealers, held on June 25, under the auspices of the Gibson-Snow Co., Sonora distributor, of this city, was well attended by merchants from all parts of the State, also by W. W. Gibson, president of the Gibson-Snow Co.; George E. Brighton, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co.; F. V. Goodman, E. D. Coots, of the Sonora Co.'s sales division, and L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co. The dealers met to become better acquainted with each other and with the Sonora organization, but mainly to hear the story of Sonora. These purposes were more than accomplished and the meeting proved a great success.

The morning session was addressed by E. D. Coots, who is an authority on the reproducing properties of a phonograph, and his talk on the distinctive reproducing qualities of Sonora will long be remembered by those who heard it and will, no doubt, be of inestimable benefit to the dealers in presenting the Sonora to the public. At a luncheon at the Onondaga Hotel Nelson P. Snow, of the Syracuse branch of the Gibson-Snow Co., introduced Mr. Brighton, whom the dealers received with enthusiasm. His talk was both instructive and constructive; he cited many interesting details about the early days of Sonora and outlined the remarkable development of Sonora popularity during the past nine years. In his congenial, yet convincing, manner he spoke of the strength and principles of the Sonora Co., making the dealers realize more than ever before the excellence of the phonograph they sell.

After Mr. Brighton's talk W. W. Gibson gave a number of very conclusive reasons why the dealers could expect good business for the balance of the year, stating that every indication pointed to prosperity ahead.

C. T. Malcomb, Sonora manager of the Gibson-Snow Co., advised the dealers strongly against waiting until November and December before placing their holiday orders, reminding them of their struggles for merchandise in 1922. He spoke of the splendid plant at Saginaw, where the Sonora is made from start to finish,

Selling a Service That Satisfies

WHY the GIBSON-SNOW CO. is GROWING

The Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., distributor for Sonora phonographs and Vocalion records, not only supplies its dealers with merchandise promptly and efficiently, but helps its dealers in their sales problems.

The Gibson-Snow organization comprises an experienced, capable sales staff that is qualified and willing to help Sonora and Vocalion dealers in its territory increase their sales totals.

GIBSON-SNOW CO., Inc.

with the exception of the motors, which are made in the Sonora Co.'s own factory in Switzerland. With all its excellent equipment, however, the company is not able to put through sufficient machines to supply the demand and he urged the dealers to insure themselves against loss of business and disappointment during December by placing orders now for future delivery.

L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the Sonora Co., then addressed the meeting and foretold the advertising possibilities for the balance of the year and also gave many points of good advice about the mediums of advertising available to the dealers and the proper use of the advertising material sent to them by the Sonora Co.

Closing the session was Mr. Goodman's sincere counsel to the dealers to place their orders as early as possible in order to prevent a repetition of their experience last Fall, when they could not obtain merchandise to meet the demand. The distributors, he told them, have contracted for practically every machine that will be turned out by the factory for the rest of the year and will not be able to secure further shipments after their allotments have been shipped. It, therefore, behooves the dealers to estimate their probable needs now and have the machines set aside for them. Making an estimate should not be a difficult matter if the dealer will refer to his sales for the past three years, note the increase in the past and take into consideration the ever-growing demand for the quality phonograph.

It was the opinion of all present that meetings of this kind should be held once or twice every year and Mr. Malcomb expressed himself as being well pleased with the results of the present gathering.

Immense Summer Trade in Victors

The W. D. Andrews Co., of this city, Victor jobber, reports a brisk trade with an exceptionally big demand for Summer Victrola models and the latest dance and song hits. Located in the center of the playground of America and supplying dealers catering to clientele in such points as the Thousand Islands, Adirondack Mountains, Catskill Mountain resorts, the celebrated Finger Lakes region of New York State and the Green Mountain district of Vermont, the W. D. Andrews Co. is admirably qualified to obtain an accurate idea of Summer business. There is an active demand for small Victrolas for use in Summer cottages, camps and tents and on all of the water craft Victrolas can be heard playing the latest dance and song hits for the entertainment of vacationists.

Victor dealers throughout the State are very optimistic in commenting upon the business outlook, stating that the new Victrola models, which are about ready to be placed on the market, represent the best values that could possibly be presented to the public.

Curt C. Andrus Reports Progress

Curt C. Andrus, the Edison dealer, at North Tonawanda, N. Y., stated in an interview the other day that about 20 per cent of his business is from talking machine owners who hear the New Edison in their friends' homes and appreciate its natural tone and are willing to trade their talking machines in for the Edison. If a dealer allows the right price on these trad-ins he can work them off readily without loss. Much favorable comment is heard about the promptness with which the Edison factories are issuing the hits of the day. This is having a decided influence on sales. The demand for the console model of the Edison is increasing right along in this city.

NEW DEALER PUBLICITY ON "PAL"

Plaza Music Co. Issues Special Display Sign for Use of Dealers

The Plaza Music Co., manufacturer of the "Pal" portable talking machine, has just issued a new display sign for dealers' use. The illustrations are for the purpose of showing the all-year-round use to which a portable machine can be put. The many purposes to which the "Pal" portable can be put will tend to create many additional sales and should not confine consumer interest to the strictly Summer season. The advertising department plans to continue the interest of the dealer and the public throughout the whole year and much additional publicity material has been issued for the purpose of continuing and intensifying the interest in the portable instruments.

COLUMBUS, O., July 7.—An artistic local store is that of C. C. Baker at 43 South High street, which was opened a little more than a month ago, and referred to in our columns before. The interior of the establishment, reproduced herewith, shows the excellent arrangement of the twenty-four record demonstration booths and machine display rooms and the service counters and record racks which line one entire side of the store. As may be seen from the illustration, C. C. Baker has spared no expense in making this the last word in talking machine store arrangement. The show windows also are a feature, and the artistic simplicity of the displays which have thus far been arranged indicates the value of restraint in achieving the beautiful in window displays.

Every Branch of the Trade Represented at Monster Picnic at Spring Park—All Dealers and Jobbers Report Good Sales Volume

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., July 7.—By the time this issue of The World appears the mammoth picnic on Tuesday, July 10, at Spring Park, on Lake Minnetonka, will be history. At this writing 1,000 people are expected, comprising the 500 men and women of the trade and their families. The invitation is extended to jobbers, retailers, salesmen, piano tuners and piano movers. The idea originated with Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the George C. Beckwith Co., Victor distributor.

The party will leave the Minneapolis parade grounds for the lake in automobiles. Sports include a baseball game refereed by two huge piano movers, Hans Christianson, of the Reliable, and Andy Anderson, of the Skellett Transfer Co., and the loving cup, a two-quart oil can, will be presented by Frank Gage, known for his oratorical gifts. A married folks' race, pie-eating contest and aquatic events, a basket luncheon and a dinner at the Hotel Del Otero, to be followed by dancing, are on the program.

The committee heads are: Chairman, A. E. Monson, Stone Piano Co.; secretary, K. E. Stommel, Cable Company, and treasurer, L. E. Crocker, Foster & Waldo; general arrangements, Charles K. Bennett; music, P. A. Simon, Metropolitan T. M. Co.; transportation, M. L. McGinnis, Starr Phonograph Co.; location, C. L. Carlson, Howard-Farwell; advertising, H. H. Schumann-Heink Sings for Veterans

One of the brightest stars in the Victor galaxy of artists, Schumann-Heink, has made herself even more beloved here by her gracious visit to Minneapolis to sing for "her boys," who gathered in this city, June 25 to 28, for the annual convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Victor Educator Here

The Victor interests are being admirably served in this district by Miss Ada Bicking, special Summer representative of the Victor educational department, who is giving eight weeks to lecturing on "Musical Appreciation" before the Summer sessions of colleges and normal schools. She lectured at the University of Minnesota last week and arranged meetings with the Twin City dealers. Monday afternoon of her Minneapolis stay she talked to Minneapolis dealers at an informal gathering.

Good Edison Demand Continues

Laurence H. Lucker, Edison jobber, says: "Our out-of-town business is 60 per cent ahead of last year at this time. We look for a big country business from now on." Popular songs are selling well, according to J. Unger, of the Laurence H. Lucker Co. Many sales are being made of the new $100 model and the $135 and $175 consoles, he said. The company has just sold a $1,000 console and also made the sale of three Edison consoles to one man. All the models retail for over $300.

A. H. Curry, of Orange, N. J., vice-president of the Edison Co., paid a flying visit June 27 to the local offices on his way to Dallas. He accompanied Mr. Lucker from the Chicago meeting of Edison jobbers. Mr. Unger is back at his desk, after a vacation spent fishing, and at the present time A. L. Topel, office manager, is on his vacation fishing. The company is sending out literature in anticipation of the county fairs, for which country dealers are getting ready. "Si" Poppler, president of the Poppler Piano Co., of Grank Forks, Edison dealer, plans a large display of Edison machines and records at the North Dakota State Fair.

Victor Popularity Grows

"Business is good," says George A. Mairs, head of the talking machine department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., Victor jobbers. He adds the cheering word that South Dakota is picking up after a long quiet period.

George C. Beckwith Co. Busy

"Sales for the first six months of this year are considerably ahead of last year," according to Charles K. Bennett, manager of George C. Beckwith Co., Victor jobber. "Most of the business is out of town and the record business is considerably increased," he said. Portables are selling well and the new console Models 215 and 405 are also going well.

C. H. Jensen, who has just returned from a sales trip, says that the Victor business in southern Minnesota and South Dakota is better than he expected and conditions are looking better than a year ago.

The Beckwith Co. has instituted the Beckwith Business Booster, designed for the sales forces of Victor dealers, which the company issues once or twice a week, containing pertinent material.

Georgie Price, Victor artist, who appeared here with the "Spice of 1922," gave Victor dealers an exhibition at the Beckwith offices.

Brisk Sales of Okeh Records

The Consolidated Music Co. branch here is specializing on a line of talking machine accessories, according to Miss B. C. Eggar, manager, who recently returned after a five weeks' absence. Okeh records are in good demand here.

Artists' Appearances Help Sales

Brunswick dealers are selling many records by Arnold Johnson and His Orchestra, which played in Minneapolis and St. Paul recently, according to Eugene F. O'Neill, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Minneapolis and St. Paul dealers tied up with some excellent full-page advertising.

Regret Death of R. H. Bach

Profound regret is expressed among music industry men over the death a fortnight ago of R. H. Bach, of Owatonna, one of the oldest Brunswick and Victor dealers in this territory and one of the most important dealers in southern Minnesota, having stores in Faribault and Rochester, as well as Owatonna.

News Gleanings

Cliff Hunt, Brunswick and Victor dealer, is back at work after an enforced vacation due to an automobile accident.

"Doc" O'Neill says the popularity of Isham Jones' "Swingin' Down the Lane" promises to equal that of "Farewell Blues," which was such a big Brunswick seller. We understand that Isham Jones is expected in the Twin Cities for a personal appearance some time this Summer.

Edward G. Hoch, Cheney distributor, has just returned from a business trip to the northern Minnesota towns.

S. W. Goldsmith, vice-president of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Milwaukee, was in Minneapolis last month and spent a day at the home of Charles Bennett talking over old times and their experiences as phonograph salesmen.

MAKING DELIVERIES OF "LITTLE TOT'S"

Regal Record Co. Starts Quantity Production of Children's Records

The Regal Record Co., Inc., manufacturer of records for children under the trade name "Little Tot's," is now making deliveries of this product in quantities. In conjunction with the campaign exploiting these children's albums and records the company has issued a complete series of display signs, cut-outs, hangers, consumer circulars, newspaper mats and other publicity material. Every phase of publicity which would produce sales has been thoroughly canvassed by the advertising department and the result is that the trade and consumer literature undoubtedly will prove effective in creating business for dealers.

OGDEN DEALERS AFTER RURAL TRADE

Bulk of Sales Are Made to Suburban Residents—Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. Amends Charter—Activities of the Month

OGDEN, UTAH, July 5.—The suburban districts are furnishing the greatest part of the talking machine business of Ogden dealers. The farmers, too busy to come to the city, are easy to approach when machines are taken to their homes.

T. J. Holland, sales manager of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., states that he finds his greatest success in "spotting" talking machines in the homes. "We leave them a day or two after playing several records, providing them with a varied selection of records. When our salesman calls again he usually finds that the family has been 'sold' on the phonograph and the machine stays in the home."

This firm keeps a daily record of the movements of talking machine records and a competition is kept up between the clerks. The sales people take a keen interest in their records and a large volume of sales is the result. T. J. Holland recently completed the organization of a Scout band at Layton, Utah, placing twenty instruments and a library of music.

The Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. filed with the Secretary of State amendments to its articles of incorporation increasing the authorized capital stock by $150,000, extending somewhat the corporate authority and also altering the directorate. Amended articles provide for 3,500 shares of common stock, no par value, into which outstanding common stock shall be converted on terms satisfactory to the directors and the owners of such stock, and also the $150,000 of preferred stock. G. S. Glen is president and R. D. Roberts secretary.

An unusual spurt of business is reported by Ezra Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Shop, who sells Brunswick and Sonora instruments. He attributes his good business to personal calls and keeping in touch with his patrons after the machines have been placed. They are furnished with the latest records, and this, coupled with advertising in the newspapers, keeps the records moving.

The Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., Edison distributor, reports fair business in Utah, Idaho and parts of Wyoming and Nevada.

The Williams Music Co. is maintaining a steady business in talking machines, especially portables, and reports a demand for records.

Browning Bros., Brunswick dealers, are contemplating the removal of the talking machine department from the mezzanine to main floor.

NEW CANADIAN COPYRIGHT LAW

Two Cents Royalty for Mechanical Reproduction of Copyright Music on Rolls and Records Provided for in New Law, Effective January 1

The new Canadian Copyright Law, which has been passed by the House of Commons and the Senate and which goes into effect on January 1, 1924, embodies many new features in copyright legislation which are of interest to publishers and copyright owners both in Canada and the United States for the reason that the new law may be used as a sample for certain clauses in any new copyright legislation introduced in the United States.

The chief features from the angle of the talking machine trade are naturally those provisions applying to the mechanical reproduction of copyright music through the medium of records, and these provisions include:

(1) A royalty of 2 cents a playing surface (that is 4 cents on each double-sided record) will be collected from the phonograph record manufacturers, for the use of copyrighted music.

(2) A royalty of 2 cents will be collected on each player-piano roll, containing copyrighted music, sold.

(3) The "manufacturing clause" is in. That provides for all countries, not adhering to the Berne Convention, having to print in Canada to secure copyright protection here. As Russia, for the time being at least, is not an important factor in the international copyright situation, the United States is the only great power not in the Berne Convention. At the present time there is before the United States House of Representatives a bill intended to bring the United States into the Berne Convention.

The life of the copyright under the new Canadian law is fifty years, and this half-century of protection also applies in the case of mechanical reproduction.

MANY DEALERS IMPROVE STORES

Installations of New Equipment by Van Veen & Co. Indicative of Confidence of Trade in Future Prosperity of the Business

General activity in beautifying the warerooms on the part of many talking machine dealers is reported by Van Veen & Co., Inc., New York City, manufacturers of talking machine wareroom equipment. Among the most recent jobs completed by this company is that of the Pravder Music House, of 531 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. This is the second Van Veen installation for this company, Van Veen & Co., Inc., having equipped the other store of the Pravder Music House in New Rochelle. The Brooklyn installation consists of eight booths, together with a piano salon and a large reception room in the front of the store. A special feature of this installation is a domed ceiling connecting the booths and running down the center of the store. The walls are handsomely decorated with hand-painted frescoes and the color scheme of the equipment is in antique blue and ivory. In addition to the booths and large record department equipment was installed for sheet music racks and wall cases for musical instruments. The new warerooms of the Pravder Music House will carry the Edison and Columbia lines.

Van Veen & Co., Inc., have also just completed an attractive installation in the warerooms of the Fox Piano Co., Stamford, Conn., where twelve booths were installed in the talking machine department, in addition to wall cases for musical instruments and racks for records. The interior treatment was particularly attractive, the woodwork being in the Adam period and the color scheme ivory and gray. It is said that this installation in the Fox Piano Co. makes these warerooms one of the most attractive in Stamford.

A. L. Van Veen, president of the company, reports that five or six installations are now being finished, which anticipates the activity on the part of these dealers for good Fall trade.

Comparative Figures for Six Months Past Show Big Gain Over Last Year—Local Columbia Branch in New Home—Month's News

CINCINNATI, O., July 7.—Sales of talking machines and records have held up remarkably well in Cincinnati as the warm weather has approached. Usually, with the advent of Summer and the many outdoor attractions which accompany it, there is an inclination on the part of the public to turn to open-air amusements. But this year there is no slump noticeable on the part of local dealers, who report that their volume of business is maintaining a steady pace. Of course, there has been some decrease in the total amount of business in comparison with the months of March, April and May, but this is to be expected. On the other hand the most encouraging sign is the large increase in sales over the same period last year. Many firms do not hesitate to say that their business is far better than at this time in 1922, in some cases showing an increase which approximates 100 per cent. In one specific instance the sales increased 150 per cent over last year. This is merely an indication of how good business is in Cincinnati for the talking machine dealers. The decrease in the total sales over May is a negligible factor when the increase over last year is taken into consideration. The sales of talking machines are heaviest on the console models. The portable camp model is proving to be popular and many of them are being sold by local dealers, who have made an especial effort, through window displays and newspaper publicity, to dispose of them.

Starr Co.'s Big Publicity Stunt

A publicity stunt enacted recently by the Starr Piano Co. caused much interest and excitement in local circles. Probably the most popular and best-known dance orchestra in Cincinnati is Justin Huber's Orchestra, which has gained fame dispensing dance music at the Hotel Gibson and has been featured at the more important of the private dances in this city. Lloyd Kidwell, pianist and composer, who is also the assistant director of Justin Huber's Orchestra, composed a popular number, entitled "Japanese Lullaby." The Starr Piano Co. engaged Huber's Orchestra several weeks ago and had it play in the window of its store, featuring "Japanese Lullaby." First the orchestra would play the piece and then the Gennett record of "Japanese Lullaby" would be played. To make the comparison of the two better the orchestra would play part of the song and then the Gennett record would finish playing it, the change from the orchestra to the record bringing no change in sound that was noticeable to the auditors. The crowds which gathered in front of the Starr Piano Co. were so large that traffic was blocked. The feature proved so good an advertising venture that large sales of "Japanese Lullaby" resulted and the Starr Piano Co. and Gennett records gained some highly valuable publicity in addition.

New Quarters for Columbia Co.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has moved its local office to West Fourth street and the large six-story building formerly occupied on East Eighth street has been leased to a paper company. This move is in line with the recent decision of the main office to discontinue the district office in this city. Reports received from dealers indicate that the sales of Columbia records are large and that increases in the total volume of sales have been realized.

J. F. Ditzell Addresses Brunswick Sales Force

J. F. Ditzell, manager of the sales promotion department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Chicago, was in the city on June 29 and made an address before the salesmen of the Cincinnati district office at a dinner given in his honor. On July 20, at Richmond, Ind., one of the company's leading musical organizations, the Isham Jones Orchestra, will play at a dance at the Romey Furniture Co. This is one of the best-known dance orchestras in the country and it is expected that the many dealers in this territory handling Brunswick machines and records will profit by the appearance of the Isham Jones Orchestra in this vicinity. The district office of the Brunswick Co. states that business during June was approximately 150 per cent better this year than in 1922. This is partly attributed to the new system of releasing records whereby new records are issued daily, rather than monthly. Plans are being made by the district office for participation in the State convention of music dealers, which will be held in Cincinnati in September. Brunswick machines will also be displayed at the Fall Festival, which will be held here in the latter part of August.

C. M. Robinson on Vacation Trip

C. M. Robinson, of the Robinola Co., who says that business has been very good during the past month and that console models in particular are selling well, expects to go East next week on a vacation trip to Washington and Newport News.

Sterling Roll & Record Co.'s Fine Record

Ben Brown, of the Sterling Roll & Record Co., states that his volume of sales has been 150 per cent in advance of last year. The best sellers are "Yes! We Have No Bananas" and "Barney Google." Orders are being received for Okeh records by this company from great distances, according to Mr. Brown.

Rose Helburg, formerly with the Columbia Co., has become associated with the Sterling Roll & Record Co. in trade promotion work. Larry Naber, of this company, is getting good results on his sales trip through Kentucky. Glenn Buck, traveling through Indiana, also has been getting some fine orders.

High-grade Demand at Baldwin's

Miss Stevens, head of the Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co., says that business has improved wonderfully in the past few months. She believes that there are excellent prospects for the future and that business will continue to be good throughout the Summer. High-grade machines in the console models and No. 111 Victrola upright machines have been in good demand. Music rolls are also selling well. Camp machines have been in considerable favor and many of them have been sold.

Edison Sales Continue Active

Manager Pohlman, of the Phonograph Co., Edison jobber, reports that the sales of Edison records have been holding up splendidly in the last few months. The Edison phonograph has been in much favor, also, and it is expected that the good business on both the Edison machines and Edison records will continue.

Novel Display Window

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop had a novel window display during the past week. It showed Barney Google leading his charger, "Spark Plug," towards the race track at Latonia, Ky., where the racing season is now on. This window display was very successful in disposing of many of the Victor records of "Barney Google." The Chubb-Steinberg Co. is going to increase its space very shortly and at present is engaged in remodeling the basement of its present store on East Sixth street.

Patriotic July Fourth Window Helped Sales

Morris Fantel, manager of Widener's Grafonola Shop, says that patriotic records and even bugle call records are selling well. This is probably due, in large measure, to the patriotic Fourth of July window display, which has succeeded in stimulating sales wonderfully.

H. & S. Pogue Co. Pleased With Outlook

Business is good in the talking machine department of the H. & S. Pogue Co. The warm weather has lowered sales somewhat, but they are still good and it is expected that they will continue to be good during July and August. Each month this company devoted one of its large, handsome display windows to talking machines, resulting in a splendid stimulus to sales.

Ormus E. Kellogg Promoted—Baker Music House Staff in Conclave—Sales Maintain Good Volume

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—Ormus E. Kellogg has been appointed general sales manager of the Baker Music House, Inc., to succeed F. A. Brown, general manager, whose resignation took effect July 1. Mr. Kellogg has been sales manager of the company and will be assisted in his new position by John H. Anderson, as general representative, whose duties will be to assist the three main stores and the twenty agencies in the promotion of sales of phonographs and records. The new managers are planning to start aggressive sales campaigns. Mr. Anderson has been the special representative in the Utica division of the Baker territory.

The branch store at 440 State street, Schenectady, has become inadequate for the increasing business and larger quarters, at 508 State street, were occupied June 29. The formal opening of the new store will take place as soon as the decorations and new fixtures have been placed, which will be about July 15, and will be attended by all the officials of the company. Albert J. Clapper is manager of the Schenectady business.

The convention of the branch managers and sales staffs of the Baker Music House was held here recently with over forty in attendance and, after a day of enlightening business discussions and addresses by men in and out of the organization, including Frederick W. Teele, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., the members of the organization were transported to Schenectady by automobile, where they inspected the company's new store in that city and had dinner. The accompanying photograph shows the members of the sales organization gathered in front of the local store just before starting for Schenectady.

The Baker Music House, Inc., has made a contract with the C. G. Conn Co., Elkhart, Ind., whereby its line of musical instruments will be placed on sale in all the stores and agencies.

All of the local retailers report excellent business. The Thomas Music Store has been working the rural districts the past month and reports larger sales than in June of last year. The Pommer Music Store also reports a better business for June than that of the corresponding month in 1922. Mr. Pommer says that when people leave the city for Summer vacations the way to keep up the business is to go after them. A representative has begun the canvass of the Summer camps, showing the new portable Brunswick models and taking orders for records to be delivered at the camps.

The popularity of the Edison in this territory is growing, if the business being enjoyed by the American Phonograph Co., Edison distributor for this city and adjacent territory, may be taken as a criterion. As far as most Edison dealers are concerned no Summer slackness has materialized and, with the excellent sales record thus far this year, the outlook is bright for a record Fall business and optimism pervades the trade.

Szilagyi & Co., Inc., has been incorporated in June to deal in phonographs in the Borough of Manhattan. The authorized capital stock is $10,000 and the directors are Elemer Szilagyi, Morris Grossman and Esther Grossman, all of New York.

Al Edelson, of the Strand Temple of Music, who is noted for his unique window displays, again excelled in his Fourth of July window show. In the center of the window was a large figure of Miss Columbia holding a flag, surrounded by a shield of stars and stripes as a frame. The remainder of the display was of firecrackers and Victor records.

The W. M. Whitney department store featured a sales drive on a carload of talking machines during June. Transportation charges were prepaid to any point in New York State and a large proportion of the sales were made outside of Albany, due to extensive advertising.

HEALTH BUILDERS, INC., EXPAND

Will Shortly Open Three New Factories for Manufacture of "Camp-Fone"—R. B. Wheelan Sails for European Vacation

R. B. Wheelan, president of Health Builders, Inc., New York City, accompanied by Mrs. Wheelan, sailed for Europe the last week in June, where they intend to spend a vacation of probably two months. While away they will visit France, England, Switzerland and Germany. Mr. Wheelan, before he left, stated that the business of the company was good. The "Camp-Fone" portable is selling extremely well and the usual amount of record business is being received. An initial order of 5,000 "Camp-Fones" has just been received from a Western distributor. In order to meet the demands production on the "Camp-Fone" will be materially increased through the addition of three new factories. In addition to the large plant at Boston, factories will shortly be opened in Garden City, Peekskill and Chicago. Thus, not only will production be increased, but facilities for prompt delivery will be readily available in all sections of the country.

IN DES MOINES

Retail Dealers and Jobbers Form Trade Association—Portable Instruments Have the Call—News and Activities of the Month

DES MOINES, IA., July 7.—In spite of the usual Summer lull in the talking machine business, June sales volume has been very satisfactory, according to local retailers and jobbers. Business in portable lines has been good, although heavier machines have been moving somewhat slowly. June trade has been better than that of the same month last year. In fact, every month of this year has shown a larger volume than that of the same month last year.

Mickel Bros., jobbers in Victrolas and Victor records, have about completed the transfer of their Des Moines stock to Omaha, according to H. B. Sixsmith, local sales manager. Orders are now being filled from the Omaha headquarters and the Des Moines office has been retained only as a sales headquarters for travelers in this section of Mickel Bros.' territory.

The sales contest inaugurated by Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers, has, so far, produced very gratifying results. Fully 50 per cent more sales have been reported during the contest thus far than during the same period of any previous contest. June business, as reported by Harger & Blish, is somewhat better than that for June of last year.

Des Moines dealers have formed an association composed of all retail dealers and jobbers of talking machines in the city. The aim of the Association is to adopt retail policies that will be mutually beneficial to the retailer and the customer. At a recent meeting of the Association the dealers decided to discontinue the "records on approval" plan after July 1. R. B. Townsend, of Davidson Bros. Co., is president of the new Association, and H. B. Sixsmith, of Mickel Bros., is secretary.

H. W. Burnett, commonly known as "Burnie" to the Victor dealers of the southeastern part of the State, has been ill for the past month. At the present time he is somewhat improved and will soon be on the road again for Mickel Bros.

Clammer Bros., of Cresco, Ia., have recently

Complete Stocks Enable Dealers to Render High Type of Service—Earle G. Poling Co. Making Alterations—Other Activities

AKRON, O., July 3.—In common with some other sections of the country the Akron district provided a volume of sales for talking machine dealers during June that in some cases was little short of surprising. The fact that stocks have been very complete has probably had something to do with the trade volume. The rubber industry, upon which this city is largely dependent, promises to be extremely active for the balance of the Summer. The various plants were shut down only a few days for the purpose of taking inventory and then resumed on full schedule.

The J. H. Johnson Sons Co., Alliance, O., announces that it will concentrate on the Victor line in the talking machine department and is disposing of stocks of goods of other makes. Some alterations in the store are planned.

Miss Carolyn Martin, formerly connected with the jewelry section of the Geo. S. Dales obtained the Victor sales rights for the territory in and about Cresco.

The Massey Piano Co., this city, has taken over the business of the Haddorff Piano Co. The Massey Co. will handle pianos and the Victor line of instruments and records.

W. F. Boy has succeeded to the business of Boy & Paulson, at Dell Rapids, S. D. Mr. Boy will continue to handle Edison instruments and records.

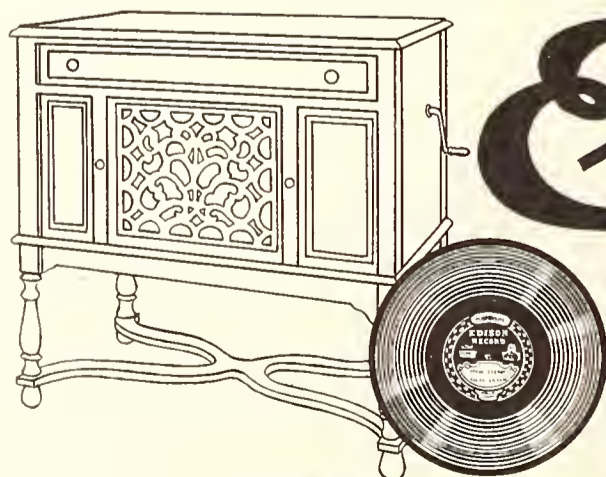

The Whitley Music Co., Corydon, Ia., has installed a Bristol audiophone at the front end of the store for broadcasting new record releases. On quiet days the music may be heard several blocks from the store. According to Manager Whitley, this method of introducing new records has been very successful.

Co. here, has been appointed head of the record department, succeeding Miss Frances Draper, who was married recently and resigned the position, which she held for five years.

The Earle G. Poling Co. is making a number of alterations in its store for the purpose of making room for a new sheet music department to be opened shortly. This company has been featuring portables with considerable success and reports a substantial record business.

The Vernon Piano Co., Alliance, O., has been attracting some attention by offering to send out any Victor machine in stock without a down payment, sixteen records to accompany the machine. The move is said to have been made for the purpose of stimulating Summer business.

Brunswick record sales have increased close to 100 per cent in this territory following the recent appearance here of Isham Jones and His Orchestra, of Chicago, which gave a concert before a capacity audience at Goodyear Hall, under the auspices of the Geo. S. Dales Co. During the evening members of the audience had opportunity to dance to the music of this well-known orchestra.

KANSAS CITY

Blackman Music Co., Edison Dealer, Moved Into Beautiful New Showrooms—Victor Dealers Stage Meeting—News of the Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 6.—The biggest event in talking machine history in Kansas City during the month of June was the removal of the Edison Shop from 1012 Grand avenue to 12 Walnut street. The new location is only a very few feet from Twelfth and Walnut streets, which is perhaps the busiest corner in the city. The new home of the Blackman Music Co. is one of the most beautiful in the West. The building has a 75-foot frontage and is at least 150 feet deep. The showroom, which is entered from the street door, is perhaps 75 feet square, and in it various Edison models which would please even the most fastidious are grouped. The broad staircase, very short, made attractive by palms and an oil painting of Mr. Edison, entices one to the cool rooms below. The basement is largely given over to the Edison department with eleven booths for record demonstrations.

Two exquisitely furnished and decorated sound-proof conservatory rooms have been arranged, one on the main floor and the other below for concerts and recitals. On the mezzanine floor a special Edison room, which has been prepared like the music room in a home, is another feature.

Ample storage and repair space in the back of the building completes every need of this institution, of which M. M. Blackman is manager.

The Victor dealers from this territory held a meeting in Kansas City the evening of July 2 at the Baltimore Hotel. The new 125 model Victrola was on display and the records released for the month of August were played so that dealers could determine their orders for the coming months. The selection made at the previous dealers' meeting (which was the first ever held) was pronounced by Mrs. McArthur, of the Wunderlich record department, and Miss Miller, of the J. W. Jenkins Sons' record department, as the most splendid lot of releases they have received in months.

Messrs. Wentworth, of Leavenworth; Houston, of the J. H. Bell Music Co., of Lawrence, Kan., and Miss Grace Davis, of Topeka, were out-of-town visitors to the meeting.

C. A. Bibler, of Florence, Kan., recently succeeded O. L. Patton as Victor dealer of the Sanders-Ridgway Co., Bonitta, Okla.

The secretary of E. W. Gootengerg; Miss Rae Wise, who has been with him ever since the coming of the Artophone Corp. to this city, was called to Texas on account of the illness of her sister. She is not expected to return, and Miss Anna K. Eaton has succeeded her.

The Artophone Corp. is having success in the sale of the album set called "The Unfinished Symphony," which is the Symphony in B Minor by Franz Schubert, played by Eduard Moerike. The set consists of three twelve-inch Okeh double-disc records in a black and gold album which sells for $5.

Fred B. Jenkins, Jr., and his wife, are motoring to Denver, Col., and will return the first of August.

The Phonograph Co. of Kansas City, Edison distributor for this territory, has experienced a satisfactory month's business. The Edison is one of the most popular instruments sold locally and, according to the reports of dealers, both phonographs and records are in good demand, and indications are that a continuation of these conditions may be expected for the remainder of the Summer.

An attractive postcard has been arranged for the J. W. Jenkins Sons' talking machine department to send out to Victor dealers over the territory announcing the special releases which come out from time to time.

DEALERS ORDERING EQUIPMENT

Broadman Woodwork Fixture Co. Closing Many New Contracts—Local Dealers Remodeling Warerooms—Indication of Optimism

That dealers are realizing the advantages resulting from up-to-date and attractive installations of wareroom equipment, and acting accordingly, is evidenced by the activity reported by the Broadman Woodwork Fixture Co., New York. Among recent installations made by this company are those for H. Brodwin & Co., New York; the second installation for A. Lesser, 115 Boulevard, Rockaway Park; the complete remodeling of the headquarters of Landay Bros., 311 Sixth avenue, New York; a piano showroom for Owens & Beers, 1075 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., whose store was completely equipped several months ago; the Greater City Phonograph Co., 234 West Thirty-ninth street, New York; Sonora jobber, and Mullins & Co., 70 East 125th street, New York.

A. Broadman, president of the company, states that a number of new contracts have been received during the past few weeks, including that of the Kings Highway Music Shop, Brooklyn, N. Y., for the installation of eight hearing rooms, two showrooms for talking machines and pianos, musical merchandise cases, record racks, service counters, etc., which will make this a store of the most modern type.

BUFFALO

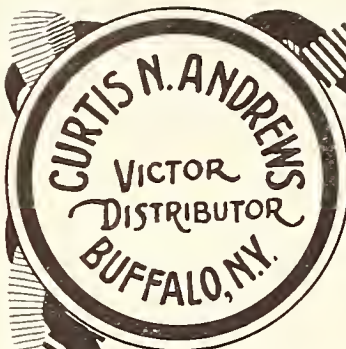

Victor Dealers' Association Annual Outing a Big Success—New Models in Demand—Month's News

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 7.—The annual outing of the Victrola Dealers' Association of Buffalo, held June 27 at the Woodcliff Club on Lake Erie, was the largest in the history of the organization. In attendance were 130 dealers and members of their families. Aside from a few minor casualties in the baseball game a pleasant time was had by all, so to speak. The baseball game was a real thriller, the "Bananas" finally winning from the "Spark Plugs," 20 to 19. The losers demanded an audit of the score card and this is now in progress. Charles Beschinger was struck in the eye by a bounding ball and was severely injured. Gus Blank suffered a sprained elbow and there were minor casualties, due to the fierceness of the battle.

Many athletic games and races also had a place on the program. Winners in these were: Fifty-yard dash, ladies, Miss D. Wagner; fifty-yard dash, ladies (heavyweight), Mrs. J. M. Kibler; broad jump, Mrs. H. Childs; balloon race, Mrs. C. Wright; fifty-yard race, men, J. White; fifty-yard race, men (heavyweights), F. E. Russell; wheelbarrow race, Wright and Beschinger; tug-of-war, Melzer team; three-legged race, Levi and Cohn; boys' race, H. Levi; girls' race, Charlotte Kibler.

An elaborate dinner was served at 6 p. m. and was followed by dancing. A. H. Fleischmann, president of the Association, and Frank Russell, chairman of the committee, were aided by the following: E. R. Burley, C. H. Heinke, J. M. Kibler, William Gunnell, J. Wills, H. Childs and A. Schwegler.

June business in this territory was featured by heavy sales of new models and unusually brisk record business. This has been true of practically every make of machine and record, according to reports. Most firms report June business substantially in excess of that of the corresponding month of 1922.

A romance of a music shop came to a happy conclusion recently when William Herbert, manager of the talking machine department of the Erion Piano Co., and Miss Effie Louise Howard, formerly a saleslady with the same firm, were married. They are now at home after a honeymoon tour of the Great Lakes region.

H. B. Clark, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., is another recent bridegroom. He was married a few days ago to Miss Laura Stewart and is now being congratulated by his associates and acquaintances.

Goold Bros. have opened their new store at 203 Falls street, Niagara Falls. The firm has 2,500 square feet of floor space and a most advantageous location, together with tasteful furnishings. The company is featuring Sonora and Victor machines, also Victor and Vocalion records. Chester E. Campbell is manager of the new store.

C. E. Siegesmund, sales manager for C. N. Andrews, Victor jobber, reports the trade greatly interested in new models and placing very substantial orders for those recently presented. Record sales of "Yes! We Have No Bananas" promise to break all western New York records, according to Mr. Siegesmund.

Sidney Brooks, for many years proprietor of a music store at Grant and Ferry streets, this city, died at Atlantic City, where he had gone in the hope of regaining his health. He was formerly with Bing & Nathan, of Buffalo, leaving their employ to open his own store.

William F. Drews has joined the sales force of the Laurens Enos Co.

E. P. Erion, of the Erion Piano Co., is enjoying a motor trip through New England.

W. H. Daniels, of Denton, Cottier & Daniels, was serenaded by the U. S. S. "Leviathan" Orchestra when it played recently in Shea's Theatre, adjoining the Denton store.

A. H. Fleischmann, of the talking machine shop of the William Hengerer Co., reports business as very gratifying and showing steady gains over 1922.

Many Sales to Newlyweds Bring Summer Sales Volume to Satisfactory Point—Two Music Houses Retire From Trade—The News

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 9.—Much to the gratification of the local trade talking machine business so far this Summer has been of a much better character than in any previous year, with the possible exception of 1919, which was a wholly unusual year. Following a June which produced more business than almost every corresponding month in the past dealers in this city believe that July will set new records as well. The manner in which business is developing is actually remarkable, for in recent years the trade has become accustomed to counting June, July and August as "slack" months.

Many Sales to Newlyweds

June sales, now that a good perspective can be obtained, loom up even brighter than the enthusiastic reports made concerning business in the last issue of The World. Throughout the month a good many sales were made which were predicated upon wedding gifts and, while the art styles and more expensive types had the favor of this class of business, many of the standard styles in the medium range of prices were sold either to parents or relatives of newlyweds, or to the couples themselves.

Early Ordering in Evidence

Wholesale business is reported by the various distributors of the best-known lines to be more active than usual in mid-July. For several years dealers in this territory were not disposed to start laying up stocks for the Fall and holiday season until September and October. This year they are anticipating their requirements unusually early. One of the reasons, probably, is that they are expecting a shortage of instruments as well as records and accessories when the Fall rush begins. Another is that dealers, as a rule, are better fortified financially to accumulate stocks, while, at the same time, the prospects for next September, October and November are considerably improved over the same period in the past three years.

Strong Victor Demand

"Basing opinions alone on trade so far this year talking machine trade next Fall should surpass all past records," said Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. "At the same time current trade is more active than usual. While there is nothing sensational about business at this time we feel that some significance attaches to the manner in which dealers are buying Victor goods, both for immediate and deferred delivery. So far as records are concerned we have great trouble in keeping our stock filled in, for there is a heavy demand which ranges all the way from the most popular to the numbers on the Red Seal records which we have never had occasion to look to for strong release."

Cashing in on Sales Promotion Work

There is something about Brunswick business in this territory that seems to be attracting the rapt attention of distributors and dealers of the line in all other parts of the country. Notwithstanding this eminent position Manager Thomas I. Kidd, of the local Brunswick branch, maintains his usual attitude of modesty. He is a quiet, unassuming worker and the best "dope" is that he is now beginning to reap the real results from several years of intensive cultivation of the talking machine end of the extensive interests of his company.

One of the best outlets for the art styles of the Brunswick is the J. B. Bradford Piano Co., with a main store at 411 Broadway and a branch at Second and Mitchell streets. Accompanying its notable achievement of selling eleven Mason & Hamlin grand pianos, which it handles, in less than two weeks after the middle of June was the fact that it sold a number of art styles of the Brunswick. Probably the most important was the sale of a beautiful Italian console model, specially decorated, to Mrs. Myron MacLaren for the sun room of the magnificent million-dollar mansion on the shore of Lake Michigan.

Sales of New Columbias Grow

The Columbia line has been establishing new marks in the merchandising of its new line of products, notwithstanding the fact that at the time of this introduction Gimbel Bros. were offering a large part of the stock of obsolete styles at low prices in this territory. One of the distinct features of Columbia business in the past few months have been its records, which are gaining in popularity at a rate never equaled by any line of records.

Singer T. M. Co. Changes Name

The Singer Talking Machine Co., one of the earliest concerns to engage in the manufacture of instruments in Milwaukee and vicinity, has recently amended its corporate articles so that its name henceforth will be the C. A. Kitz Furniture Co. While continuing the manufacture of talking machines, cabinets, etc., the concern for some time has been devoting more and more attention to the production of high-grade furniture specialties.

Sonora Machines and Okeh Records Popular

The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Wisconsin and Upper Peninsula distributor of the Sonora and the Okeh record, continues to maintain its high position among local jobbing houses. It is confidently stated that there has been no advance in talking machine merchandising greater than the success of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co. with the Sonora and the experience of the past month has been entirely demonstrative of this fact. Fred E. Yahr, president of the company, and personally in charge of the Sonora and Okeh promotion, looks forward to the best holiday business in the history of the house and, if his predictions come true, as they promise to do, another new high record is going to be hung up in 1923. Mr. Yahr was one of a party of 100 leading Milwaukee jobbers and manufacturers who participated in the twentieth annual trade extension tour of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce in the middle of June. One of the features of the equipment of the special train in which the party traveled an entire week was a Sonora talking machine and a liberal supply of Okeh records.

Old Firm Dissolves

The oldest talking machine house in Appleton, Wis., one of the principal cities of the famous Fox River Valley of Wisconsin, passed out of existence recently when the stock, goodwill and accounts of the Kamps & Stoffels Co. were acquired by the Irving Zuehlke Music Co., of the same city. Harry Stoffels has joined the staff of the Wilson Music Co., of Oshkosh, Wis., and on July 1 took charge of its branch house in Stevens Point, Wis., which has just moved into permanent quarters in the new Hotel Whitening Building.

Cheney Styles in Demand

The art styles of the Cheney have been selling well at the Edmund Gram Music House. At the same time the Columbia and the Vocalion are moving well and Miss Julia Wolff, manager of the talking machine department, says that this has been the finest Summer selling season the Gram Co. has ever experienced.

LOS ANGELES

Business Maintains Fair Average—Question of Trade-ins—Exhibits at Monroe Centennial Exhibition—The Mouth's Activities

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 2.—Reports from the various talking machine departments are somewhat conflicting. One manager said that while the total sales of his department for the month showed an increase over those for June, 1922, this increase is very small. On the other hand, several managers declared that business had been excellent and has maintained its proper level with a large percentage of increase over the corresponding period of last year. The query is often made by salesmen regarding the effect of radio and many opinions of varied kind are advanced. There is one thing positive, however, and that is that all are alert and keeping their wits working so that no opportunity will escape or plan for increasing business and sales be neglected.

One great bugaboo, however, exists, and that is in regard to the valuation of trade-ins; there is still a tendency on the part of many salesmen and managers to let themselves be persuaded into giving extravagant allowances on old instruments. A talking machine which is two years old is not worth more than one-half of its cataloged price and a fair basis for estimate is to deduct 5 per cent, 10 per cent, 15 per cent additional for the third, fourth, fifth year, respectively, and so on. The trouble seems to be that the dealer allows himself to be too often persuaded by his eager salesman to grant a too liberal price for a trade-in and then—perhaps because his accounting system is not lucid or plain enough—he fails to realize what a bad stroke of business he has made and, repeating his mistake, puts off the day of final reckoning. The policies of stores are like barrels of apples —one rotten one is apt to affect the rest; but when there are two or three rotten ones, then it is difficult indeed to save the rest.

Maryland Victor Dealers Entertained by Cohen & Hughes, Inc., E. F. Droop & Sons and H. R. Eisenbrandt & Sons, Wholesalers

BALTIMORE, Md., July 1.—Cohen & Hughes, Inc., E. F. Droop & Sons and H. R. Eisenbrandt & Sons, Victor distributors of this city, tendered a dinner, entertainment and dance to the Maryland Victor dealers on June 21 in the garden of the Belvedere Hotel and the management gave possession of the garden for the entire evening.

Alexander Eisenbrandt was toastmaster and introduced, at the conclusion of the banquet, Frank K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who was the guest of honor and speaker of the evening. Mr. Dolbeer gave the dealers and their employes who attended a most interesting talk on matters of general interest to the trade. His address was divided into three parts, in the first section of which he took up and described in detail the tremendous Victor organization, its plant and its innumerable activities. In the second portion he described the various departments and spoke of their executives. The conclusion of his address consisted of a most interesting story of the beginning of the Victor product from the time of its inception by Eldridge R. Johnson. Mr. Dolbeer's talk was enthusiastically received and heartily applauded.

Among others present was Miss Aileen Stanley, well-known Victor artist, who happened to appear during the week as the headliner at the Maryland Theatre, the local Keith house. She sang a half dozen of her most popular selections, which so delighted the audience that at the conclusion she was given a rising vote of thanks.

George Castille, a former member of the Metropolitan Opera Co., ably rendered two selections in English and one in Russian. Clarence Johnson's Jazz Band, one of Baltimore's foremost orchestras, had been engaged to play continuously during the dinner and again at the conclusion of the entertainment until well after midnight for dancing purposes. Approximately 200 people were present at the affair, every dealer in Baltimore being represented, as well as numerous other dealers throughout the State.

Members of Maryland Victor Trade Present at Dinner Tendered by Distributors

The affair was a decided success and much credit is due William Biel, secretary of Cohen & Hughes, Inc., and William Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., who served on the entertainment committee. Seated at the speakers' table were: Alex. S. and W. A. Eisenbrandt, Aileen Stanley, William Biel, W. C. Roberts, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Castille, I. Son Cohen, W. T. Davis and F. K. Dolbeer.

Although we jumped from a cold Spring into real mid-Summer weather the middle of last month, talking machine business generally has been good, running anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent better than the same period of last year. Dealers here generally are optimistic over the outlook for Fall trade and the only cloud on the horizon now will be the inability to supply the goods for Fall and Christmas trade. Practically every jobber here is making strenuous efforts to have dealers place their orders early in order to avoid this and it is said that the response from the trade has been very encouraging.

W. C. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons, is one of the most optimistic jobbers here and, as he put it himself, it is not based on "hot air, but on facts," as the business of his firm has been steadily on the increase every month of the six months so far this year.

All dealers report a great demand for "Yes,

We Have No Bananas," which record is making a bigger hit in Baltimore than any record put on the market since "Dardanella," while "Barney Google," in the opinion of many dealers, may make even a greater record in sales.

T. Ralph Clark, sales manager of Cohen & Hughes, reports a good business the past month, with dealers placing large orders for Fall. A semi-monthly bulletin service to dealers has been inaugurated by this house which is used as a method of moving dealers' surplus stocks of records. The firm recently sent out a questionnaire asking their dealers to name twelve Black Seal and six Red Seal records on which they were overstocked and from the returns the bulletin is made up featuring these records and each dealer receives a large sign in a frame for each of his booths. The bulletins are sent out so they can be posted on the 10th and 20th of each month when ordinarily there are no new records on the market, with the idea of creating a demand for the records which are featured in the frames. Answers to the questionnaire are also used as a means of relieving the dealer who is overstocked on any record which may be in demand with other dealers.

Dealers have also been supplied with a number of addressed postals which are to be used on rush orders for records, and other plans for getting overstock from the hands of one dealer into the hands of others who may use them are now being worked out.

L. A. Randall, of the Cohen & Hughes sales force, has just returned from a trip to the Victor factory, which he took with a number of dealers in his section. Irving Cohen, nephew of the head of the firm, has been taken from the office force and placed on the outside sales force, where he has been very successful.

C. F. Shaw, manager of the local Brunswick branch, returned to Baltimore yesterday after spending three weeks on his honeymoon trip through New England. During his absence H. H. Sheldon has been looking after the business of the local agency and reports a very substantial increase in business. New contracts signed by the Brunswick agency during the past month were Moore's Music House, of Burlington, N. C.; Tulane Music House, of Newport News, and others are pending. One of the best contracts landed by a Brunswick dealer in this territory, according to Mr. Sheldon, was that of Lansburgh & Bro., of Washington, D. C., who supplied a Brunswick machine and records for the Broadway Limited, a special train which carried the Spanish-American Delegation from Washington to San Francisco.

W. S. Parks, former manager of the local agency of the Columbia Grafonola Co. and later president of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., successors, has been succeeded in the presidency of the latter company by L. L. Andrews. William H. Swartz still continues to hold the position of secretary and treasurer of the company and reports a very substantial increase in the business of the firm since its inception. Outlook for the Fall trade, according to Mr. Swartz, is very encouraging. The record business, according to Mr. Swartz, has been increasing ever since the new process Columbia records have been put on the market.

Joseph W. Hoover has opened a new talking machine shop at 11 West Antietam street, Hagerstown, and the Talking Machine Shop, of the same city, will shortly move into its new store at 4 South Potomac street.

Frank K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., was a visitor to this city during the latter part of June. He spent several days in Baltimore on the occasion of the dinner tendered by the local Victor distributors to the Maryland dealers and used that time in visiting Victor dealers of Baltimore, accompanied by William Davis, local Victor representative.

The Northern California Music Co., Sacramento, Cal., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000.

GENERAL MUSIC STORE A FIELD FOR LARGER PROFITS

Some Logical Reasons Why the General Music Store Idea Has Made Rapid Strides in Popularity During Past Few Years Among Members of the Talking Machine Fraternity

No little consideration has been given by many talking machine dealers to the idea of a general music store. However, where retailers are doing an extensive business in talking machines, records and accessories no importance is given the matter—and justly so—for, if talking machines and records and their adjuncts bring a sufficient volume of business, there is no need to add other outside interests. In many communities, however, the increased sales resulting from the general music store are most satisfactory and, in certain localities, such a store performs a function and service that makes its establishment logical and worth while.

The progress of the general music store idea has, it is believed, made greater strides during the past two years than for any other period in the last decade. Talking machine dealers throughout the country are constantly making analysis of their market for the purpose of giving consideration to the opening of sheet music and musical merchandise departments, both of which to-day are highly profitable where properly operated.

Sheet Music an Important Item

There seems to be a tendency among dealers to give more consideration to the musical merchandise field than to sheet music. Of course, there are many reasons for this, as a sheet music department means the addition of many petty details. Outside of a strictly popular sheet music counter it is impossible to run a successful sheet music department without taking care of such details. Otherwise it will be a hit-or-miss proposition, probably not profitable and certainly not conducive to building the general music store, of which, after all, sheet music is one of the most important items. For that reason it is generally conceded that the opening of sheet music departments should be under the guidance of one with a thorough knowledge of the business and for a time, at least, under such direction until such employes as are necessary have undergone sufficient training to carry on.

The development of musical taste is centered in musical publications. Sheet music and music publications are the direct center of all music business, around which all music activities, including the artistic and commercial, must rotate. If this were not so there would be little development in musical taste; musical progress would be practically stagnant. This is proved conclusively in sections of the world where tribe music holds sway and, in a manner, is again brought to mind where folk songs predominate. However much the folk song is to be recognized as music worth while, the concentration on such musical activities and the mere admittance that such is the height of musical development for the masses retards progress.

Sheet music, then, makes for musical development, arouses more and more interest, makes possible the great strides for the cause of music and, in the end, this is reflected in the volume of manufacture of musical instruments of all kinds. So, from the standpoint of musical progress, which is of prime importance to all engaged in the music business, sheet music is constantly enlarging the market for musical instruments and is making for versatility of taste which is even of more importance to those engaged in the production of musical goods.

This, roughly, is the status of sheet music in its relationship to and its effect on musical instrument manufacture. But of more important interest to the retailer is the status of sheet music in its relation to his business in the retailing of goods, what it means to stock such merchandise, what are the profits, the advertising value and the general aid to business. It is found that sheet music is profitable. It is an attraction to any store and, therefore, has advertising value. The more people that enter an establishment the more familiar piano and other prospects are with the merchant, his organization and his store. It must be remembered that, in attracting such buyers to his establishment, the merchant is catering directly to a class that composes his prime prospects.

Vital Considerations

One of the important situations for the retailer who does not now stock sheet music to consider is the fact that, after he makes the sale of a piano or any other musical instrument, the purchaser must go to some other establishment for the wherewithal—sheet music—to operate the instrument. Generally, this means going to the store of the competitor and this can hardly be considered good business. Going to the competitor's store for sheet music will educate the purchaser to go to the same store for other small wants—for service—and, in the end, this means that the other store will assume, in the eyes of the purchaser, the establishment of the greater importance. The name of such a competitor, in time, will become more familiar and, in thinking of music, they will think of such a store. In their daily conversation such an establishment is more frequently mentioned and the probabilities are, when prospective purchasers of talking machines or pianos are spoken of, the general store, all other things being equal, will have a distinct advantage.

the retailer to allow teachers and even others a commission on sales that were made through their efforts. This, to a great extent, has been eradicated, but it is still a factor in making some sales. Now the teacher and all others who are in a position to speak with authority on pianos, undoubtedly, are doing business with an establishment that handles sheet music. Therefore, by the opening of a sheet music department, the retailer attracts the best musical minds of his city to his establishment; he makes his place the musical headquarters for all musical activities and he, indirectly, makes many, many sales through this arrangement. Despite what may be said to the contrary musicians and other music lovers are clannish; they belong to a distinctive class; they know it and demand recognition accordingly. Despite their evident culture and refinement they are not broadminded and to those engaged in commercial pursuits this weakness should be given consideration.

Many years ago, in the city of Detroit, when a lone piano store, which afterwards became a great factor as a music distributing organization, wanted the agency for what was then, and is now, one of the most widely known and recognized musical instruments the manufacturer stipulated that such an agency could be obtained only upon one condition and that was that the retailer would open a sheet music department. This manufacturer of a nationally known instrument realized that the store that would make the most piano sales would be that one which stocked sheet music; one that could attract the teachers of the community to his establishment. As history proves, the manufacturer was right and the same situation holds true to-day. The market for the sale of pianos, of course, is greatly enlarged and volume of production has increased and so this important idea is now too often overlooked, but it means as much, if not more, than ever before. More because our cities are ever growing. Too much of the personal touch is necessarily lost and sheet music is one of the few things that will take its place.

To the retailer who spends large sums in advertising, to those who are not above giving a small commission on piano sales, sheet music holds out a simple but still profitable form of gathering prospects with less expenditure. In fact, the general music store has an inestimable value as a producer of sales.

FEIST RUSHING NEW NUMBER

"Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake, Make Yourself at Home," to Be Widely Exploited by House

Early last week Leo Feist, Inc., took over a song in manuscript form. The melody and lyrics made an immediate appeal and a conference was called at the Feist offices, with the result that it was decided to issue the number immediately. Plates, title pages and orchestrations are being rushed through and a campaign exploiting this issue will be inaugurated.

Aside from its other merits the number is apparently quite timely. It carries the humorous title "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake, Make Yourself at Home." The professional department of the company has already rehearsed several acts with the number and it, undoubtedly, will be programmed widely in vaudeville. Orchestrations will be sent out at once.

The title is one that should be a by-word during the Summer season. Naturally, all the wise guys who claim to be "the life of the party" will take advantage of the song.

A new idea in effective orchestration covers was recently introduced by Stark & Cowan, Inc., who have issued two of their orchestrations with title pages in several colors, reproductions of the sheet music covers.

"BESIDE A BABBLING BROOK" WEEK

Jerome H. Remick & Co.'s Successful National Drive of Special Week on This Number

Jerome H. Remick & Co., who for some weeks have had a national campaign on the song, "Beside a Babbling Brook," recently arranged an increased publicity drive on the number, which included the celebration of a "Babbling Brook Week," commencing July 2. Vaudeville performers who are programming the number made a special feature of it during the week in question. Dance orchestras everywhere played it, and theatre and motion picture houses also included it on their programs. The trade also co-operated most enthusiastically in giving special space to title pages and other display material in its windows.

"Beside a Babbling Brook" is one of a series of songs issued by Remick this Spring which have reached great popularity. "Barney Google," the novelty song of the catalog, has had a particularly large sale. "Babbling Brook," however, was hailed as one of the best ballads issued in some time. It has been fortunate in being given special stage settings and in other ways has been made an unusual feature in vaudeville. The result should be that the coming week's celebration should bring the number to the height of its popularity and create thousands of additional sales for it in sheet music form, as well as add considerably to the sales of rolls and records of the number.

"SWINGIN' DOWN THE LANE" IN MANY WINDOW DISPLAYS

Two Outstanding Examples of the Way in Which the Dealers Are Featuring This Late Feist Number in Their Show Windows—A Title Which Goes Well in Pictorial Representation

Besides being a leading orchestra figure and of talking machine records and the recent attaining national prominence for records made releases have brought even further prominence.

A June Bride Window of "Swingin' Down the Lane," Shallk's Brunswick Shop, Chicago

Visualizing the Title of "Swingin' Down the Lane," the Cable Piano Co., Chicago

by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Isham Jones recently came in for further publicity through the fact that he is one of the authors of the Leo Feist, Inc., success, "Swingin' Down the Lane."

"Swingin' Down the Lane" has achieved national success as a song. It, too, has come in for popularity as a modern fox-trot. It has been recorded by all the leading manufacturers

In the city of Chicago, where the Isham Jones Orchestra has been a feature for the past few years, the sheet music and talking machine record dealers have all taken particular interest in "Swingin' Down the Lane." Undoubtedly, they look upon it as a Chicago offering. This feeling has induced many retailers to make full window displays of the records and of the sheet music. In most instances these window dressings have been on an elaborate scale, have been attractive and many of them involved substantial appropriations. Herewith are shown windows in the Cable Piano Co. warerooms, State and Wabash avenues, and Shallk's Brunswick Shop, Kedzie & Lawrence avenues, Chicago, both of which will give an idea of the care and attention given to their arrangement without the addition of descriptive details. These are but a few of the displays which dealers have used in featuring this number in their windows, and which in the majority of instances have been instrumental in greatly stimulating sales.

EDDIE CANTOR SINGS "BEBE"

Witmark Number Sung by Well-known Artist in Ziegfeld's "Follies"

Eddie Cantor, who returned to Ziegfeld's "Follies" after an absence of several seasons, is singing the M. Witmark & Sons number, "Bebe." The song, with a lyric by Abner Silver and music by Sam Coslow, is a typical Cantor design and for that reason he will do much to make it popular. The number, however, is not confined to the "Follies" production, but will be introduced in vaudeville. It has many catch lines and comedy chorus and is arranged for singles, doubles, trios, quartets and dancing, in all keys. The professional department of Witmark's will make it one of the leading songs of the catalog.

"MEMORY'S GARDEN" NEW BALLAD

J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. Foresees Big Future for Its Latest Publication

"Memory's Garden" is the title of a ballad recently added to the catalog of J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co., Kansas City, Mo. The sales and professional departments of the music publishing division of the Jenkins organization look forward to this latest addition to the catalog as being the best piece of property published in some years. Preliminary arrangements for giving the number publicity by the aid of bands and orchestras are already under way and during early Fall it will have a vaudeville introduction. An intensive professional and sales campaign will be inaugurated in August and "Memory's Garden" is expected to be an unusually active seller during the Fall months.

"SNAKES' HIPS" UNIQUELY FEATURED

Old Pit Show Idea Used by Day's Music Store of Elyria, O., With Much Success

In the old days when wax museums and other similar attractions had their vogue it was not unusual for what were termed fakers to rent empty stores, paint up the windows, possibly with peep-holes to attract the curious, and thus establish a current attraction almost anywhere with more or less success.

This idea of attracting the curious was recently revived by Day's Music Store, Elyria, O., and was one of the few times, if not the only time, that such methods were used to give publicity to a song. In this case the Leo Feist, Inc., number, "Snakes' Hips," which is a particularly appropriate title to demonstrate the side-show idea, was used. Reproductions of the window are herewith shown, "before and after looking."

The entire window was painted over, with water-mixed paint, easily removed, in glaring colors similar to those used in the title page. Looking through the peepholes the curious saw a display consisting of a river scene made of natural materials with an artificial snake with hips. The caption on the window read "It's Alive," and looking behind the window the further announcement, "It's a Live Hit—"Snakes' Hips.'" This is unusual and, no doubt, was a profitable means of attracting attention. Not every song title would lend itself readily for such use. The main idea, however, is that it is an attractive and unique window display, and attractive windows invariably mean sales and profits.

Given a peep-hole and ninety-nine out of a hundred will look.

These arrears have all been caught up, it is declared, and at the present time every division of the Patent Office is keeping its work current.

"Barney Google" has set out to win fresh laurels—this time as a snappy fox-trot, or shimmy one-step. The Georgians have the leg up on this number, and their super-syncopated efforts bring Record A-3902 home ahead of the field.

EDISON POSTER OF NATIONAL VALUE

Miss Anna Case's Gift to President Harding Forms the Basis of Very Effective Tie-Up Campaign for Edison Dealers

Recently, when in Washington, Miss Anna Case, the distinguished exclusive Edison artist, presented President Harding with the first minted fifty-cent coin commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine (1823-1923). Needless to say, numerous photographers were on the job when this happened, and photographs showing Miss Case on the porch of the White House, with the President and Mrs. Harding, have appeared in the rotogravure sections of practically every metropolitan daily throughout the country, in addition to most of the moving picture news films. In order to help Edison dealers tie up with this extensive and remarkable publicity given to an Edison artist, a handsome poster has been made up by the advertising department of the Edison Co. for the use of Edison dealers in their windows, reception booths, etc. At the top is a large photograph of Miss Case with President and Mrs. Harding. Underneath is a caption explaining the photograph. Then there follows a paragraph explaining the Edison re-creation of the art of Anna Case and an invitation to hear the latest records by this artist. The poster is printed in duotone sepia on buff stock.

"Mammy Jenny," the well-known black-face singer who plays the part of Aunt Jemima on the vaudeville stage, has just made her first recording for Banner records. The Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co. states that this "Mammy Jenny" record will appear with its September list. The sales department of the Plaza Music Co. states that aside from the fact that the title in question is that of an exceptionally meritorious song the recording work of this new artist will give this release further value. The Plaza Co. expects to have recordings by this popular artist each month.

REPAIRS BOOST SUMMER BUSINESS

Burrows & Sanborn Make Drive on Machine Repairs With Good Results

LYNN, MASS., July 9.—Burrows & Sanborn, Inc., Victor dealers of this city, operate a repair department which certainly is bringing in the business. This concern is not satisfied with merely operating this department, but they have successfully utilized direct-by-mail publicity to bring this service before the public, and, incidentally, boost Summer business. A special scale of prices has been prepared for various kinds of repairs to be made at the home of the customer or in the store. Work done out of the store costs a trifle more due to the fact that the time of the repairmen in going to and from the residence of the machine owner consumes valuable time. The price scale, which is sent to all patrons, is headed with the words "Prices on Repairs." This is followed by the price list, 'phone number and address of the firm. With this price list is mailed a small pamphlet which bears the self-explanatory message "Exchange Your Old Victrola for a New Console." This is followed by a sound sales talk on the new types of instruments and the exchange offer by which an allowance will be made for the old instrument.

AEOLIANITES STAGE ANNUAL OUTING

Exciting Battle on Diamond Results in Tie at Annual Baseball Game and Dinner of Aeolian Sales Organization in Tarrytown

The annual baseball game and dinner of the sales staff of the Aeolian Co. was held on Saturday, June 30, and in every way proved one of the most successful of the series of such outings in which the salesmen have participated. As usual, the officials in charge of the Hackley School, at Tarrytown, turned over the use of the excellent baseball field and the gymnasium of the school to the Aeolianites through the efforts of C. A. Laurino, and the result was a baseball game worth going miles to see.

The first team was known as the "Duo-Art Reproducers" and opposed to them were the "Vocalion Graduolas." The game proceeded for seven innings amid much excitement on both sides, as home runs were hit and perfect flies muffed. Each side came out of the game with the full confidence of being the victor and then it was discovered that no one had kept score. The result was that one man's guess was as good as another and so peace was maintained by declaring the game a tie with the score 8-8. Charles Beady, head of the shipping department, acted as umpire.

There were no casualties and after the players had enjoyed a refreshing dip in the Hackley School pool the entire party proceeded to the exclusive Briarcliff Lodge for dinner, during which Al Rienzo and Harry Braun gave elaborate exhibitions of two and four-hand piano playing, the former favoring the delegation with a number of his own compositions.

After a brief study of the distant Hudson by moonlight, the members of the party, which numbered over fifty, proceeded to their homes.

A recent musical stunt which received a lot of favorable comment was a Saturday morning show for children held at the Allen Theatre. This consisted of piano and vocal selections, several dances and a sketch arranged by Mr. Berliner, the leader of the Ritz Carleton Hotel Orchestra, entitled "A Peep Into the Recording Laboratory." The finale was rendered by little girls especially trained to take the part of the characters mentioned in the actual record as it was played, each character emerging from the doors of a mammoth Victrola in the centre of the stage and enacting her part before taking her place in the line.

WINNIPEG DEALERS SHOW INITIATIVE

Originality of Sales Promotion Plans of Local Merchants Results in General Stimulation in the Demand for Records—News of Month

WINNIPEG, MAN., July 3.—Wilfred Robson, of Dauphin, Man., has rather a unique way of featuring popular hits. He works in conjunction with the Dauphin Theatre, where he arranges to feature different selections. As an example of this, when "Underneath the Mellow Moon" came out, he arranged to have this demonstrated on a Victrola from the stage of the theatre and played simultaneously with the playing of the $10,000 organ installed in this theatre. In addition, during the evening, several slides are shown, suggesting that people call at Robson's Drug Store, where the records of special hits can be obtained.

Farquhar & Shaw, of this city, have started to popularize Brunswick records by the use of a large out-of-doors easel, slots being left in which the names of ten leading records can be inserted each month.

The Province of Saskatchewan is taking most kindly to the portable phonograph, and this season there seems to be a far greater demand than ever for this kind of instrument.

Art. P. Saer, Victor dealer, North Battleford, Sask., operates a printing department, and immediately new records come out he has post-cards run off and sends them to customers. This has resulted in excellent record business.

P. W. Bird, of Heintzman & Co., Saskatoon, Sask., had rather a novel idea regarding the featuring of Red Newman and the Jock Holland records at the time the Old Dumbbells visited Saskatoon recently. The Edison, Victor and Brunswick lines, as well as pianos and musical merchandise, will be handled.

Mr. Marshall visited the Davis-Kaser Co., of Walla Walla, where George Cooper was recently appointed manager of the music department and James L. Arthur Stein, manager of the Sherman, Clay & Co. retail Victrola department, says: "Our only trouble during the past month has been to get enough of the new flat-top console models to meet the demand. The 220, 215 and 210 models are our best sellers and the demand in June was for consoles.

Omer N. Kruschke, of the Kruschke Sales Co., San Francisco, who recently organized his own company to handle the Pathé phonograph and records, was a recent visitor to the trade in Portland territory.

The Reed-French Piano Co. reports a big increase in business. Allen E. McLean, in charge of the Edison, Victrola and Hallet & Davis phonograph department, says: "We have again more than doubled last year's business in our department and I attribute this partly to the fact that our stock was never so complete and our display of all models and finishes is an incentive to increased business."

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co., which has the Victor and Cheney phonographs, reports excellent business. Edward Gust, who made a three weeks' trip into the eastern Oregon district, and Jess Major, who covered Marshfield and southern Oregon for the same length of time, returned to headquarters with books full of orders. A music memory contest was the closing feature of this year's school term in Portland and out of 350 grade pupils who competed 110 made a perfect score, a fact regarded as quite remarkable in that the youngsters had to name the composition, its character and composer.

At the recent biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs, held at Asheville, N. C., Portland was selected as the next place to hold this important event, which will be in 1925.

AEOLIAN CO. ANNOUNCES FIRST LIST OF RACE RECORDS

Initial Release Includes Six Double-face Records by Leading Negro Artists With Special Appeal to the Large Colored Trade—Cultivating New Distributing Field

The Aeolian Co. has just announced a distinct innovation in the Vocalion Red record catalog through the addition of the first Vocalion Race Bulletin, in which are included the first half-dozen special records made by prominent colored artists and designed primarily for the consumption of the large negro population of the country. It has been recognized for some time that the negroes had their own favorites among artists of their own race and that records by such artists, particularly of "blues," had a much stronger appeal than similar records made by white singers.

The result was the development of the special series of "race" records, the first of which have already been recorded and will be released shortly. In this connection the Aeolian Co. has placed under exclusive contract Ethel Waters, considered to be one of the foremost singers of "blues," and who is a prime favorite on the colored vaudeville circuits in the East, particularly through the South. In addition, records have been made by Lena Wilson and Viola McCoy, also among the prominent headliners of the colored stage. The piano accompaniment to the songs are played by Fletcher Henderson and Porter Grainger, and have a distinctiveness that in itself makes the records interesting.

In addition to the vocal selections there is an instrumental record by Fletcher Henderson and his orchestra, one side bearing the "Gulf Coast Blues" and the other "Downhearted Blues," both fox-trots. The orchestra is well balanced and offers an exceptional brand of blues for those who enjoy that class of music.

The five vocal records included in the first release are: No. 14631, on one side of which is "Your Time Now" and on the other side "I Need You to Drive My Blues Away," both sung by Lena Wilson to the accompaniment of Fletcher Henderson; No. 14632, "Sad 'n' Lonely Blues" and "Just Thinkin'," sung by Viola McCoy, accompanied by Porter Grainger; No. 14663, "Bleeding Heart Blues," and "If You Want to Keep Your Daddy Home," sung by Viola McCoy, with Grainger as accompanist; No. 14634, "Kind, Lovin' Blues" and "I Want My Sweet Daddy Now," sung by Ethel Waters, accompanied by Fletcher Henderson, and No. 14635, "Down South Blues" and "Where," also sung by Ethel Waters.

The Race Bulletins will become a part of the regular Vocalion record service and will be issued monthly. In connection with the new records there will be issued special supplements, hangers and window strips for the use of dealers, and it is believed that those located in centers where there is a large colored population will find in the new records an excellent medium for developing Summer trade, as well as business for the rest of the year. Incidentally, the records are expected to appeal to a large portion of the white race.

COLLINS AND HARLAN TO MAKE TOUR

Prominent Phonograph Recorders Form Concert Organization

Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, whose Collins & Harlan phonograph recordings are widely known, have recently formed a concert organization which is being booked for dates starting August 15. They will make an extended transcontinental tour of the United States. The complete personnel of the company is not yet made up but a supplementary array of artists will accompany these two well-known artists on their tour. In this connection the Edison Co. announces that the Collins & Harlan program will include among other features an Edison tone-test given in conjunction with an Edison phonograph, thereby providing an excellent opportunity for dealers to tie up to as the singers appear in their respective cities.

SPECIAL VICTOR RECORD RELEASE

Three New Dance Records by Benson's Orchestra to Be Placed on Sale on August 1

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just announced the special release of three new records by the Benson Orchestra of Chicago, which is achieving much success at Atlantic City during the present season. The first record is of "I'm Drifting Back to Dreamland" and "Just for To-night," waltzes; the second, "Nobody Knows But My Pillow and Me" and "I Never Miss the Sunshine," fox-trots, and the third, "The Cat's Whiskers" and "In a Tent," also fox-trots. The records are from the September supplement and will be placed on sale about August 1.

TO LENGTHEN EMERSON RECORD LIST

Charles C. Hasin, manager of the recording department of the Emerson Phonograph Co., Inc., states that during the Summer months the Emerson record list will be considerably lengthened. Exceptionally good titles will appear in both instrumental and vocal form, and other additions to the record list are to be made from promising numbers other than those which would justify inclusion in a monthly release.

WIDE MARKET FOR MUSICAL MERCHANDISE IN SUMMER

Small Musical Instruments Have Their Greatest Vogue During the Vacation Season—Carefully Planned Sales Promotion Campaigns Should Be Effective at the Present Time

The hot weather is now with us and people are flocking to the mountains and seashore for the Summer and for brief vacations. The talking machine dealer from past experience knows that sales of the larger model talking machines and the more expensive instruments are difficult to make in this season and that in many cases there is a dropping off in sales. It is a well-known business maxim that when one thing will not sell there is still hope of selling something else to tide over the slack period.

During the Summer the talking machine merchant has two excellent opportunities for booming his sales volume. One lies in the portable talking machine and the other in the sale of musical merchandise. This article will deal with the latter instruments. As a matter of fact, stringed instruments such as ukuleles, banjos, mandolins, etc., as well as harmonicas have their greatest vogue in the Summer months, and those dealers who have had the foresight to establish musical merchandise departments and who have the energy and ability to get right out and dig for business should have no difficulty at all in making the next few months very profitable.

One thing is sure—sales of small musical instruments will not come easily, for the simple reason that people planning vacations are so busy preparing that this item of the outfit is often overlooked. Therefore, it is up to the merchant to see that his prospects are reminded in time that a small musical instrument will add greatly to the enjoyment of the Summer.

Advertising and direct mail publicity will accomplish this result. The dealer should plan a careful campaign and in his advertisements reiterate again and again the enjoyment to be derived from a banjo, ukulele or other instrument. The opportunity of broadcasting a message through the newspapers to the public is unsurpassed and a live dealer certainly can cash in on this branch of his business.

One very successful talking machine house in the metropolitan district which recently added a line of musical merchandise to its stock has instituted such a campaign and the results to date have been beyond expectations. This merchant directs his advertising message mainly to the young folks and just prior to the closing of the schools for the vacation period pamphlets were distributed to the pupils in all of the local schools. This publicity was tied up with window displays in which small musical instruments and portable talking machines were made the basis of creating a picture of the Summer cottage and music. Several direct sales were traced to this window, people stopping to look and then coming in to inquire and finally going away with an instrument under their arm.

Many more people looked at the window and then passed on, perhaps to come back later and make a purchase.

This little incident is merely related to show that the Summer can be made a time of prosperity and that there is no reason in the world why the talking machine dealer should go through a period of depression when there is business at hand. As has been stated before in this column, a small stock of musical merchandise requires very little capital and the space taken up by this department is usually space which can well be spared for this purpose and which is otherwise largely wasted.

Then, too, in view of the fact that the Summer months are the best for the sale of musical merchandise, the dealer is enabled to turn over his stock very quickly, thereby realizing an excellent profit on his investment. It is not too late for those dealers who do not handle musical merchandise to cash in on Summer trade. The best part of the vacation season is still before us and small musical instruments in sufficient quantity can quickly be secured.

HARMONICAS IN CHURCHES

ACTION ON RETURNED GOODS EVIL

Association Moves to Put Stop to the Promiscuous Return of Merchandise

Following the adoption by the National Musical Merchandise Association at the recent convention of a resolution to put an end to the abuse by many dealers of the privilege of returning merchandise to jobbers and manufacturers, William J. Haussler, president of the Association, has recently sent to the various members of the Association letters on the subject. Mr. Haussler calls attention to the resolution and asks the co-operation of the members in having the substance of the resolution printed on all requisition blanks and invoices.

The letter follows:

"You have probably received by this time a copy of the resolutions passed at our meeting at the Drake Hotel, in Chicago, on June 6. I desire to call your particular attention to that one having reference to the returning of merchandise. From several of the members who were present I have received inquiries as to whether the notice was to go out to the trade immediately.

"My purpose in writing you at this time is to say that it was my understanding that the stipulation in question was to be printed at once on all requisition blanks and invoices. In order that prompt and unanimous action may be taken in the matter your co-operation is necessary and I trust you will find it agreeable to act immediately.

"It was the consensus of opinion of those present at the meeting that the Association should endeavor to put a stop to the promiscuous returning of merchandise on the part of the retail dealers and it was decided that a notice be printed on all orders, acceptances, billheads, etc., to the effect that no goods are to be returned without written permission from the seller.

"May I ask you to advise me promptly of your purpose?"

BRUNO FEATURING MARTIN VIOLINS

Instruments Made to Measurements of Those Produced by Old Masters

In response to a decided demand on the part of dealers for high-class violins at popular prices C. Bruno & Son, Inc., importers and wholesalers of musical merchandise, New York City, are featuring E. Martin violins, which they describe as "The King of Instruments." In discussing this violin with The World a representative of the company stated that, although all were not so fortunate as to be owners of valuable "Strads" or "Amatis," the Martin violin was placed within everybody's means and that this company produced faithful reproductions of Stradivarius, Amati and Joseph Guarnerius. These instruments are made to the exact measurements of the "Old Masters."

HOHNER DEALERS REAPING PROFITS

From Large Volume of Publicity Received During Recent Harmonica Contests

Retailers handling the Hohner line of harmonicas report that they have reaped considerable benefits from the exceptional amount of publicity that this popular line has received recently. The harmonica contests featured in the various cities have, of course, had a decidedly favorable effect. Another strong bit of publicity received was during the Silver Jubilee, held in New York City, when, during one of the parades down Fifth avenue, a Hohner float containing forty boys created considerable comment as it progressed down the line of march. A contest was held en route, in which all boys entered heartily. It has also been found out that the picture appearing in the Subway Sun, taken at the New York Zoological Garden, showing the bear playing the harmonica, shows a Hohner. The cumulative effect of all this publicity has materialized in general sales stimulation.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 15—Your Close of the Sale—and How to Handle It

There is a psychological time to close every sale, whether it is large or small. To attempt to do this too soon is to arouse the suspicion of crowding, or of undue anxiety. Sales-resistance springs up and the good work done before is likely to be upset.

On the other hand, to delay the close of the sale too long is to run the risk of the reaction which customers so often experience, as to whether or not this after all is the best buy and the accepted time to make the final decision. How, then, are we to know when the moment has arrived?

One keen student of men declares that he seldom is in error if he observes the changes in the eye of the prospect—that in his experience the pupil of the eye dilates when the customer is free from prejudice and objections and is a little excited or stirred with interest and ready to go forward and close the matter up. On the other hand, this observer tells us that withdrawal, objections and failure to be convinced are usually shown by a contraction of the pupil of the eye. This calls for a mental record on the part of the salesman as to the appearance of the eye upon the approach of the prospect. And it may be the reason why the salesman is always reminded to look the man he is doing business with in the eye, on the level. It may account in a measure also for our suspicion of the shifty-eyed person.

A frank statement that the salesman desires the customer to be thoroughly satisfied and to look around if he cares to make comparisons nearly always has the opposite effect. The prospect reasons that the salesman must feel pretty certain of his ground to be willing to make this offer. Then, many people actually have a little difficulty in coming to a decision. They have been brought up in the notion that someone else must cast the deciding vote—and they wait for the deciding factor, whatever that may be.

A telling argument, held in reserve for this very moment, a further reminder as to quality, service or some little inconsequential concession will often prove the weight which will bring the scales down on the sales side. Or all that may be necessary is a polite inquiry, as to which of two apparently favored selections finally will be chosen.

As the sale nears its close, it is the part of good judgment to narrow the selection down to as small terms as possible. It will often be noticeable that the prospect who is apparently sold will take a sudden turn and, as it were, begin all over again, going back to the starting point.

Avoid the slightest sign of impatience in manner or tone and repeat the original sales facts already used, also bring out another and, if possible, stronger one and then lead the prospect swiftly back to the point of closing. This reverting to the point of beginning is a primitive but basic tendency of the human race. Story tellers and theatre producers understand it and have the final scene array side by side and account for all the characters. They plan the last scene to link in a satisfying manner into the opening one.

When the sale is closed, be careful to treat the customer as it is evident he wants to be treated. Do not drop him unceremoniously. The impression left is bad. Taper the conversation off tactfully and lead away from any doubtful topics.

Aim in the last and closing steps of the sale to reassure and to make the customer feel that there is no question about his having done the right thing in coming to the decision which he has reached. Do this whether the transaction involves a few cents or many dollars and the close of the sale will then do what it ought—namely, to pave the way for further and pleasant business relations. Quite as often as not this will be implied and not stated in words at all. Learn not only to close but to close each sale right.

Geo. Girardin to Handle Well-known Lines of Pianos and Talking Machines

WORCESTER, MASS., July 3.—George Girardin, who for many years past has been a salesman for the Marcellus Roper Co., this city, has now established a business of his own at 654 Main street. Mr. Girardin has a large and commodious store, where he will handle a complete line of pianos and feature the Brunswick phonograph and records. He is to handle the Behning, Kohler & Campbell, Gulbransen, Poole and several other leading makes.

LANSBURGH & BRO.'S GOOD WORK

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 9.—Lansburgh & Bro., Brunswick dealers in this city, emphasized their aggressiveness recently when they used good sized newspaper space to make the following announcement: "When the Broadway Limited leaves Union Station to-morrow at 3:30, it will carry the diplomatic representatives of the Latin-American countries to the Los Angeles exposition. Their trip will be more pleasant for the placing at their disposal by Lansburgh and Brother, in their observation recreation car, a model No. 212 Brunswick phonograph and a library of Brunswick records, including selections by artists in the Brunswick New Hall of Fame." This is the kind of work that sells the store and the product.

HEALTHY SITUATION IN CANTON, O.

W. L. Milner Co., of Toledo, Closes Local Store —Business Spotty, But Substantial Increases in Sales Volume Recorded—Other News

CANTON, O., July 6.—Business in this section for the past month has been a little spotty, which is customary this time of the year, but fundamentally the situation is healthy and there is quite an optimistic feeling regarding the outlook for the Fall.

The passing of another talking machine agency was occasioned with the closing this week of the local store of the W. L. Milner Co., which concern is widely known in Toledo, O., due to the inability to secure another downtown location when the building was leased to a chain corporation. The store maintained a large talking machine section, where sales the past year have been very substantial, according to C. R. Sayre, manager.

With the personal appearance in Youngstown the night of Friday, June 29, of Isham Jones and His Orchestra, Brunswick artists, sales of that orchestra's records, especially featured at the dance-concert, were almost doubled over the week-end, according to the Yahrling-Rayner Music Co. The orchestra appeared at Southern Park Friday night before one of the largest crowds in the history of the resort and the floor was so crowded that it was almost impossible to dance.

The Vanderlice Radio Sales Co. has sold out to the George C. Wille Co., Canton music dealer.

Crooks, at East Liverpool, O., Edison dealer, reports a substantial increase in record sales as a result of special advertising. According to store officials the Edison machine is increasing in popularity in upper Ohio valley towns and sales this year will show a gain over those of 1922. Inadvertently, the writer associated Crooks with the Victor line in this letter last month. Crooks handles the Edison.

While not up to the volume expected the talking machine business of the C. M. Alford Co., Cheney and Starr distributor, is very satisfactory at the present time.

HOW GRAPHOLUX INTERESTS PUBLIC

Increasing numbers of talking machine dealers are making use of the Grapholux, an electrical display frame for record posters, made by the Shelton Electric Co., New York City. This display outlines the poster in a tube containing a continuously flowing electrical red ray and is attention-compelling to a high degree. The fact that it is a cold light allows it to be operated at a cost of a small fraction of the usual electric display sign and the flowing red ray seldom fails to attract those passing to the window. Many dealers have already placed orders for Fall delivery, and it is, therefore, logical to assume that this new display fixture will be seen in all sections of the country during the coming Fall and Winter seasons.

A MOST ARTISTIC EDISON COVER

The cover on the latest Edison catalog of Recent Record Releases is most artistic. In addition to the title proper, there is a trademark bearing the slogan "Comparison with the Living Artist Reveals No Difference," and an excellent picture of Frieda Hempel, set into a very finely engraved and artistic border design.

NEW BRUNSWICK SUPPLEMENTS

Brunswick Records Featured in New Type of Supplement Which Has Many Advantages—
 John F. Ditzell's Plan Well Received

The sales promotion department of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. introduced a new idea in the compilation of its record supplement with the July list. The new Brunswick supplement consists of a twelve-page folder, conveniently sized and listing in strong bold type the various classes of records featured in that particular month, accompanied by small illustrations of artists making the records. There is very little descriptive matter in the listings, the main idea being to feature the names of the records as strongly as possible in order to give Brunswick dealers an opportunity to thoroughly appreciate the timeliness and importance of the various recordings. One entire section of the new supplement gives a résumé of the records presented during the previous six months, making the supplement up-to-date. John F. Ditzell, manager of the sales promotion department, is responsible for this new supplement, and the reception it has received from Brunswick dealers reflects the wisdom of his decision to make a change in the usual form of record supplement.

*Business Satisfactory Throughout Southern Territory — Dealers
Add New Lines—News of Month*

ATLANTA, GA., July 9.—Business in this city and the Southern territory is, for the most part, quite satisfactory, according to reports of dealers and jobbers. Machines of all styles are selling as well as could be expected at this time of the year, and, as far as the record end of the business is concerned, the popular numbers are in greatest demand.

"Louisville Lou" was featured by several of the local moving picture house orchestras. It sprang into instant popularity. For several weeks Vocalion was the only record of this selection, and dealers reaped a harvest. The demand is still strong and all companies are featuring the number.

M. E. Lyle is back in town after a trip down the State to Augusta and over into South Carolina. He reports business far ahead of this time last year, with excellent prospects ahead.

D. S. Bloch, who has, for a number of years, managed the piano department of J. B. White & Co., Augusta, Ga., has taken over, in addition, the Victrola department. Former Manager Ray has joined the staff of The Elyea Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber of Atlanta.

John Mohl, assistant manager at the Columbia Co., has returned from his vacation.

The Camp-fone portable has made its initial appearance in this territory. It is one of the lines handled by M. E. Lyle, who finds a tremendous interest in a portable selling at $25.

J. P. Riley, local Columbia dealer, and family spent a couple of weeks on a pleasant motor trip to Florida.

Walter & Smith, Tampa, Fla., Brunswick dealers, are planning to move during the Summer to larger and more convenient quarters.

June, the month of brides, seems also to have been the month for new music house accounts at Brunswick's. Among the dealers who signed up during June were: Cable Piano Co., Atlanta; Jesse French & Sons Piano Co., Mobile and Montgomery, Ala.; Williams-Guttenberger Co., Macon, Ga.; Laverty Music Co., Gadsden, Ala.; Moore Music Co., Thomasville, Ga.

A recent visitor to Brunswick headquarters here was John Turner, the well-known music dealer of Tampa, Fla.

Phonographs, Inc., Edison jobber for the Southeast, has recently added five new dealerships in central and southern Alabama territory, which has been unusually quiet for the past two years. The dealers in question seem to be highly enthusiastic and are producing a good volume of business traceable directly to aggressive sales tactics.

The Edison Shop, Atlanta, Ga., is contemplating adding some new booths to its department in order to take care of the increased demand for records.

The most popular Brunswick models continue to be the York and Tudor. Portable sales are limited only by the stock available. Sales of these instruments have been beyond the most sanguine expectations of most members of the retail trade.

Bessie Smith, "blues" singer and exclusive Columbia artist, is on a ten-weeks' vaudeville tour throughout the Southern States. She appeared at the 81 Theatre in Atlanta during the week of June 25, and her appearance was without doubt the most successful one that ever occurred in this city. The 81 packed a full house throughout the entire week. She rendered the numbers that have been recorded by her for Columbia. All local dealers found an enormous demand for her records while she was in the city. The Ludden & Bates Piano Co. sold her records at the theatre and cashed in in every way possible, as did all other live local dealers. On Tuesday night, June 26, she broadcast from the Atlanta Journal's Radio Station, WSB. On Friday night, June 29, a midnight performance was given by the 81 for white people, and the house was packed to full capacity. It was estimated by the officials of the theatre that one thousand people were unable to gain admittance on account of the large crowd. During the week of July 2 she appeared at the Douglas Theatre in Macon, Ga., where big sales of her records also followed.

From Macon Bessie goes to Birmingham and from there to Chattanooga and Knoxville, then to Nashville, Memphis and New Orleans. Her ten-weeks tour will carry her to all of the larger cities in the South. Columbia dealers throughout the entire territory are looking forward to large sales on her records during the next three or four months.

The local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has added to its list of dealers the Williams-Guttenberger Co., of Macon, Ga., an old-established house with one of the most favorable locations in Macon.

Westervelt Terhune, branch sales manager, has just returned from a trip to New Orleans where he spent several days with Columbia salesman, J. E. Bivins and officials of the New Orleans sub-branch. Mr. Terhune reports conditions as being very good, the outlook for a large Fall business as being very bright. He also spent several days with H. H. Irwin, Columbia salesman, covering the northern part of Louisiana.

THERE are a few towns in our Zone covered by the Southeastern States where we have no representation and a few other towns where we need additional representation. Our proposition to those interested is an attractive one, and we are prepared to give the very best of service to Edison Dealers.

constantly increasing Brunswick record business. The new plant will have an additional capacity, which when developed will enable Brunswick to put out 200,000 records per day from this new unit alone. When this amount of records is added to the present Brunswick capacity, it can be readily seen that the total output will enable Brunswick to take care of the immense amount of business already booked for the Fall season as well as the large volume of new business which is being secured throughout the entire country by the opening of new accounts by the distribution branches.

The construction of this new plant is modern in every respect, and it is equipped with record presses and other machinery necessary for the manufacture of Brunswick records. A number of prominent Brunswick officers will be present for the opening, which will go down in the history of Muskegon as a gala event, since it offers employment to a large number of Muskegon citizens.

FIRST "BRILLIANTONE RECORDGRAM"

Trade Receives First of a Series of Messages From Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. on Miniature Record Attached to Blotter

The Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, has addressed a novel message to the trade on a 3¼-inch record, attached to a blotter, entitled "Brilliantone Recordgram No. 1," which would infer that other messages are to follow in the not far distant future. The card bears a line suggesting that the reader "Play this record with a Brilliantone full-tone needle." The card states: "Let us talk things over—here is my story, let your answer be a signed order blank." Order blanks, of course, accompanied these blotters. The recorded message attractively sets forth the many qualities of the Brilliantone steel needle and the absolutely uniform length. The various tones comprising the Brilliantone line are stated and mention is made of the new combination needle container and record cleaner. It is stated that the factory of the Bagshaw Co., Lowell, Mass., manufacturer of the Brilliantone needle, is very busy and warning is given that Fall orders be placed early.

H. W. Acton, secretary of the company, in speaking of conditions in the field, stated: "We are enjoying prosperity such as we have never enjoyed before. The volume of business transacted during the first six months of 1923 has equaled the entire yearly amount of some years past. Our foreign business is also exceptionally good. This is particularly remarkable when it is considered that we have never gone out after this business, but all we have received has come to us. An analysis that we recently made of market conditions is particularly encouraging. The market has been well cleaned up, which presages the rapid movement of merchandise."

KOERBER-BRENNER CO. EXPANDS

Victor Wholesaler in St. Louis Purchases Business of Putnam-Page Co., Peoria—E. C. Rauth Discusses Company's Sales Plans for Future

The Victor trade learned with interest recently that the Koerber-Brenner Co., of St. Louis, Victor distributor, had purchased the business of the Putnam-Page Co., Peoria, Ill., also a Victor jobber. This important transaction was closed on June 29 and the Koerber-Brenner Co. took over the Putnam-Page Co.'s stock and good-will, moving the entire stock to St. Louis.

With the consummation of this deal the Koerber-Brenner Co. will have an opportunity to extend its service over an important territory, including particularly the cities of Peoria, Bloomington and Champaign. E. C. Rauth, secretary of this company, states that for a number of years it has voluntarily restricted Koerber-Brenner service in order to give dealers whom it serves maximum service. This method of distribution has worked out very satisfactorily and the former Putnam-Page dealers in the territories that will be covered by the Koerber-Brenner Co. will be furnished with every practicable form of co-operation.

Mr. Rauth has for many years been one of the most active Victor wholesalers in the country, numbering among his personal friends the executives of the Victor wholesale organizations from Coast to Coast. His thorough knowledge of the Victor industry has been an important factor in his company's success and he has received letters and telegrams of congratulation from all over the country upon the consummation of the Putnam-Page purchase.

SUGGEST GROUP SALES OF RECORDS

Lambert Friedl and Other Members of Talking Machine Men, Inc., Give Some Business-building Suggestions at June Meeting

The June meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., at the Café Boulevard, New York City, was featured by discussions of vital problems relating to the retail trade, entertainment and the appointment of the following membership committee: Nathan Goldfinger, chairman; Chester Abelowitz, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.; J. C. May, Chas. H. Ditson & Co.; C. A. True, Silas E. Pearsall Co.; C. L. Johnstone, Blackman Talking Machine Co.; Max Berlow; Cass Riddle, Emanuel Blout; James J. Davin, Musical Instrument Sales Co.; E. Fontan, New York Talking Machine Co.; S. B. Schoonmaker, Silas E. Pearsall Co.; David Roach, Collings & Co.; J. O. Miller, G. T. Williams Co.; Chas. Offerman, American Talking Machine Co.; E. G. Evans, C. Bruno & Son, Inc.; Lee Coupe, Long Island Talking Machine Co.; Maurice Landay, Greater City Phono. Co.; Herbert Young, Sonora Sales Co. of New Jersey; O. P. Graffen, Granby Phonograph Co.; Murray Gruehn, Aeolian Co.; E. B. Shiddell, General Phonograph Co. (New York distributing division), and Kenneth Mills, Columbia Graphophone Co.

In line with the new plan of the Association to have members discuss various trade problems at every other meeting several gave brief talks. The first speaker was Lambert Friedl, manager of the talking machine department of the New York John Wanamaker store. Mr. Friedl traced the development of merchandising from a period dating before the war, when, he declared, the talking machine business was conducted in a clean and progressive manner. He pointed to the changes which the war brought, the rapid growth of the stencil instruments and the "gyp" dealers who are undermining the business. He spoke of the swing of the pendulum from the extreme of good business to that of bad business practices and the fact that the industry is now slowly reaching the stage where quality will be the basis of sales.

Mr. Friedl also came out strongly in favor of group sales of records, i. e., sales of whole operas in groups, special records sold in albums, etc. He compared methods in this country with those of making record sales in England, where the group sales plan is being used with considerable effect by the trade.

In a dissertation on radio and how it will affect the talking machine business he urged the trade not to shun radio, but to handle the problem carefully and not to be afraid to tie up with this new development when the time is right.

The next speaker was Walter S. Gray, who is a member of the trade on the Pacific Coast. He praised the local Association for its progressive spirit and stated that the work of the organization in the recent New York Music Week was worthy of emulation by other trade associations.

A. Bersin advocated the exchange of credit information between various dealers, so that "dead beats" could be kept track of. The Association is planning to gain the co-operation of the Credit Bureau of the Furniture Association of New York in the exchange of such information.

It was announced by President Kurtz that no definite date had as yet been set for the annual outing of the Talking Machine Men, Inc.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the entertainment furnished by L. Wolf Gilbert, prominent composer, who sang some of his latest numbers, including "Nobody Else," which will soon be put out in record form; "Natchez and the Robert E. Lee," "Our Little Home" and "On a Midnight Night."

DEATH OF MISS NELSON'S MOTHER

Miss Mary Nelson, secretary to Geo. W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is receiving the sympathy of her friends in the Columbia organization upon the death of her mother, who passed away recently at her home in Bayside, L. I. Miss Nelson is now away for a fortnight's vacation and rest and is expected back at her desk next week.

CHENEY ADDS NEW CONSOLE MODEL

New Instrument, Known as "The Salisbury," Is Destined to Win Much Popularity

As an addition to a line of models already very complete the Cheney Talking Machine Co. has recently announced another old English period console design, named the Salisbury, which is to retail east of the Rockies at $200.

Although planned to meet the demand for a low-priced console, the Salisbury is every inch a Cheney. It is made of richly figured walnut or mahogany overlaid with sequoia burl, with the metal parts heavily plated in a Roman gold finish. The top measures 21 3/16 inches by 38 7/8 inches; it stands 33 3/4 inches high. Like all Cheney phonographs, this new model is equipped with reproducers for playing all records.

The design of the Salisbury is a simplified interpretation of the work of the late eighteenth century, of which some very fine examples are to be found in the ancestral halls of Lord Jersey in England. Study of certain authentic pieces there by Sheraton and Shearer resulted in the development of this latest Cheney console, which is quite outstanding in its dignified simplicity and beauty of line.

Though developed very recently it has already reached quantity production in the Cheney factory and its popularity is attested by the fact that orders are well ahead of production capacity.

NEW EDISON IN MODEL HOME

The Waco (Texas) News-Tribune has erected and furnished a model home which all the residents of that city have been invited to inspect. Included in the furnishings is a William and Mary console model of the New Edison.

Great Gathering of Philadelphians Give Popular Talking Machine Man a Fine Send-off in Recently Purchased Business

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 10.—E. Lewis Stapf, who recently purchased a Victrola store from M. M. Johnson, at 2530 W. Lehigh avenue, this city, had his formal opening on Saturday night, July 7. The orchestra, which was furnished by Joseph De Cou from the instrument order department of the Victor factory, was placed in the window of the store and rendered the popular music of the day as well as many selections of the higher order.

Several floral baskets were received from the distributors, also one from the Victor factory. Mr. Delano, of the Red Seal School, and Mr. Thompson, of the advertising department of the Victor factory, assisted in the opening, as well as the distributor's representatives.

Mr. Stapf has made quite a number of changes in the store, having rearranged the entrance and enlarged several of the booths. The woodwork is finished in gray and white.

Mr. Stapf was formerly employed by the Victor Co., and has a large number of friends among his former associates.

LITTLE TALKING MACHINE STORE FAIRY TALES

By Frank H. Williams

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store that always hit it right in stocking up on records.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store that never had any grief in running the business.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store customer who came in and bought a record without asking for a demonstration.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store proprietor who never kicked about the condition of business.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store salesman who had never once thought that some of his patrons were nuts.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store that made a big success of selling records which it demonstrated on a bum machine.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store salesman who didn't drop dead when a customer highly praised the new style needles the salesman had recommended.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store which made a big success without advertising.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store which was dingy and dirty, and which was very poorly lighted and which was a tremendous success.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store proprietor who never thought he might have made a bigger success in some other line of business.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store that always gave rough-neck treatment to its customers and which was a big success.

Once upon a time there was a talking machine store that was active and alert and enthusiastic and which failed to make good.

The advertisements covered practically every product of national standing which is marketed by Dennis & Co. Among these was a full-page advertisement devoted to the Edison phonograph. BRISK TRADE IN OMAHA TERRITORY

Sales Volume of Dealers Largely Regulated by Their Activities and the Aggressiveness of Their Sales Promotion Plans

OMAHA, NEB., July 7.—Sales of talking machines and records in this territory have been as good as could be expected at this time, although in many cases dealers who have resorted to aggressive methods of making sales have succeeded in boosting business materially. It is noticeable here, as it no doubt is in other centers, that the sales volume of the dealers is regulated to a large extent by the effectiveness of their sales promotion work. Those merchants who have instituted special Summer drives on the lines they handle have no cause for complaint as regards dull Summer business, but, on the other hand, there is a certain class of dealers who are inclined to slow down during this season and, naturally, they have suffered a loss in business. However, reports of jobbers and retailers in this section of the State indicate that conditions in the trade are quite satisfactory and the late Summer and early Fall should see a brisk business, if the predictions of those who should know come to pass.

One of the leading local distributing houses here is Shultz Bros., Inc., Edison jobber, with headquarters at Sixteenth and Howard streets. The Edison, by the way, is firmly entrenched here in popularity and the good business enjoyed by Edison dealers is reflected in the substantial orders being received by Shultz Bros.

The Brunswick Shop, Inc., San Antonio, Tex., is moving to new quarters at 118 Losoya street.

MOVE AGAINST PULLMAN SURCHARGE

Commercial Travelers and Business Interests Heard by Interstate Commerce Commission

CHICAGO, ILL., July 7.—Railways of the country were on the defensive before the Interstate Commerce Commission in a drive of powerful forces to wipe out the 50 per cent surcharge on Pullman fares, which, according to one witness, yielded nearly $33,000,000 in 1922. While technically the Pullman Co. is the respondent, the surcharge revenue goes to the railroads and it is therefore their interests that are under fire.

The attack on the extra tariff is being led by the International Council of Commercial Travelers' Associations, with the United Commercial Travelers assuming a position in the front lines. Many business organizations, while not formally intervening, are said to be supporting the move to abolish the surcharge because it so materially adds to expenses of their traveling representatives.

The Pullman surcharge, which was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission on August 26, 1920, is, according to counsel for the carriers, merely a perpetuation under another name of the "additional passage charge" instituted June 10, 1918, as a war time measure while the roads were under Federal control. The United Commercial Travelers sought to have it abolished in 1922, but the Commission permitted it to remain in force.

Those who would do away with the surcharge contend that the emergency that brought it into effect has long passed, and, as a petition of the Travelers' National Press Bureau put it, it now stands as "a device to whip the devil around the stump, to enable the railroads to receive additional compensation beyond the rates fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as being just for the service rendered the public."

EDISON RECORD DISPLAY FIXTURES

The advertising department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has recently issued what is known as the Edison Streamer Display Fixtures, which are designed to promote the sale of records. One display is for use in the window and the other for the interior of the store of Edison dealers. These displays are in the form of a large book opened wide and the caption across the top reads "Edison Recent Record Releases." Underneath the caption, running down on either page, the dealer pastes on the streamers showing the recent releases of Edison records and Edison Broadway Flashes. The book design carries out the effect on a large scale of a catalog. There is room for eight of the Flash streamers or sixteen of the standard Black and White streamers.

Ditson & Co., now located on the eighth floor of the Ditson Building, on Thirty-fourth street, just east of Fifth avenue, will shortly be moved to the third floor of the building, according to an announcement from the company's headquarters. MR. & MRS. TROUT'S SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. S. Edwin Trout, of Pottstown, Pa., celebrated their silver wedding anniversary on July 2 at their bungalow at Ringing Rock Park. Guests were there from Pottstown, Chicago, Harrisburg, New York, Philadelphia, Reading, Royersford, Spring City and other nearby towns.

Mr. Trout, for the past twenty-two years, has been in the music business in Pottstown, and conducts, in conjunction with his piano department, an up-to-date Victrola department. He is one of the town's leading merchants; is president of the Kiwanis Club, a member of the Brookside Country Club, a trustee of the local Order of Elks and several other prominent organizations of the town.

A splendid entertainment was provided by talent from Philadelphia, and a delightful luncheon was served. Mr. Trout received quite a number of telegrams of congratulation from business houses with which he has had dealings in the course of his business career. Many beautiful presents were received.

A Message to the Industry

AFTER many years of study the originators of Oh! Pep! tone arms were rewarded by being able to offer the trade for the first time a full-drawn seamless solderless one-piece brass tone arm. Heretofore (ask any brass man) a taper and bend in one piece was considered impossible. (The same thickness prevails throughout the entire length of Oh! Pep!) Naturally, many were curious to know how Oh! Pep! accomplished this "Impossible Achievement." This curiosity led to more or less hindrance in our production of Oh! Pep! tone arms and therefore threw us off of our production schedule.

We are now fully organized; our tool and die men are with us 100% and we are now practically in position to guarantee delivery of Oh! Pep! tone arms within 30 days.

The same situation applies to In-Viz hinges, another achievement of our mechanical engineers.

The trade may now rest assured of prices, terms and delivery on Oh! Pep! tone arms and In-Viz hinges.

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

REGARDING THE SIZE OF HORN

Baltimore, Md., June 11, 1923.

Editor, Talking Machine World:

Dear Sir:—Does the size of horn have anything to do with depth and volume of tone? If so, what size horn would you suggest, as I would like to make a horn that will give a deeper and louder tone than the usual horns give forth.

R. EISENBERG.

Answer:—There is no question, of course, but that the size of the horn affects the depth and the volume of tone.

It would be a difficult matter to tell you just exactly what size or shape to make your horn, inasmuch as this would be a matter of your personal selection to suit your requirements for cabinet space, etc. Taking a Brunswick oval wood horn as an example and making a horn about a foot longer, at the same time making its walls thicker, will give you a deeper tone. Of course the material used will also make a difference, some of the best proved woods are mahogany, oak and spruce.

You will find that if the throat of the horn is made of cast iron, the sound will carry further and the volume will be increased.

If you examine the different horns of the standard makes of talking machines you will find that the Victor Victrola uses a horn of about 2-3 cast iron and 1-3 wood, the Columbia about the same proportion, and in some smaller models all metal; the Brunswick, all wood; the Edison Disc., all metal; the Cheney, all wood. There are also several makes using a composition horn which produces very good tonal qualities, especially on violin and symphonic music. In testing the qualities of a horn or amplifier you must be absolutely sure that the tone arm and sound box are of the same proportionate size and of the same degree of value as to quality, etc.

Adjusting an Edison Motor

Lebanon, Pa., June 17, 1923.

Talking Machine World, New York:—I have an Edison disc machine, and I have trouble with the governor, which will suddenly start to hum and rattle. I have adjusted it time and again, I loosen the set screws and adjust it till it runs smooth and quiet, then I tighten the screws, but it don't last, and I must do this about twice a week to keep it running right. Can you help me out?

EARL G. YORDY.

Answer:—I would look for the trouble you write about in three different places in the motor: first, the little pads, in the ivory settings, which bear against the governor friction disc; second, the teeth of the governor drive gear and the spiral cut on the governor shaft; and third, the main drive gear.

There is a slight possibility that the main spring needs to be graphited, while a dry main spring, jumping, would cause the governor to jerk.

It is my opinion that the trouble might be found in either of the first two causes I have mentioned, it being understood that the governor springs are good and tight and that the governor spindle is allowed a trifle of end play.

WANT SPECIAL MUSIC WEEK STAMP

Although the date for the holding of the National Music Week celebration in 1924 is somewhat distant a movement has been started in Dallas, Tex., under the auspices of Mamie Folsom Wynne, music editor of the Dallas Dispatch, to have the postmaster-general sanction the use of a special postage stamp throughout the country in honor of the celebration, as has been the practice in connection with various national and international expositions in years past.

It is suggested that the special stamp bear the portrait of Edward MacDowell, the noted American composer, or perhaps a portrait of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-spangled Banner." Texas music merchants are strongly in favor of the suggestion, among them being Robert N. Watkin, president of the National Association of Music Merchants.

Better Class Products in Greater Demand—Trade in Lethargic Condition—King and Queen's Record a Best Seller—New "Winner" Record Exchange Plan—Question of Record Exchange Discussed by Wholesalers and Retailers—Representatives of All Lines at British Music Industries Convention—R. W. Pentland's Address—Other Important News

LONDON, E. C., July 2.—It is a somewhat curious fact that, while in musical instrument circles of manufacture the piano side is comparatively busy, that of the gramophone section is unusually quiet even for this time of year. Competition in both departments of trade remains as keen as ever, each is active in the development of business, yet gramophone sales lack vigor. Wireless trade is also slow, so we cannot blame that for any decline of talking machine and record turnover. What is the cause? I hear in imagination so many and varied answers as to leave one bereft of a reasonable solution. The fact, unfortunately, remains that the gramophone trade this side needs a big fillip. If one were to classify I should say that the better-class products are proportionately in greater demand than the cheap stuff. It is significant!

The Buxton music convention gave scope for the discussion of many subjects of pertinent interest. The record exchange question, in particular, drew large audiences of dealers and factors. Reports appear elsewhere in this section, from a frank perusal of which it will be appreciated that a great battle has been fought and won on behalf of jobbers and dealers.

The King and Queen's Record

Since my last report the Royal record containing Empire Day messages from their majesties the King and the Queen of England to the boys and girls of the British Empire has been issued for general public sale through the "His Master's Voice" dealers. Doubtless, it is now obtainable in the States through Victor agents. Their majesties have made a splendid record, clear and distinct in every detail, inflexion of voice and delivery breathing the spirit of so great an occasion. This record is now listed in the company's program as No. R. E. 284. As a seller it easily beats any record ever issued and, as may be imagined, will long remain a treasured possession in hundreds of thousands of English homes.

A Novelty in Gramophone Needles

Quite a novel needle has recently been introduced here. Called "Xylopin," it is made of wood, being about the same size and shape of a steel needle. With a fibre needle an adaptor is required for most sound boxes, so that the Xylopin, which fits any reproducer, is of general utility value to gramophonists. This wooden point is beautifully silent, though, of course, volume is much reduced. Nevertheless, reproduction is pure and loud enough on most records. The tone can be strengthened by shortening the needle.

Sir Landon Ronald Eulogizes the Gramophone

An important recognition of the educational value of the gramophone was made by Sir Landon Ronald, director of the London Guildhall School of Music, in the course of an interesting speech at the British Music Trades Convention. He said, in part:

"The gramophone wonderfully reproduces the performance of an orchestra and gives it out over and over again in the homes of thousands of listeners. In the case of a great many of those listeners it is the gramophone reproduction to which they owe their knowledge of the orchestra, it is the gramophone reproduction which forms their taste for orchestral music and which inspires in them a love of the masterpieces of orchestral composition they else might never have had, but which, once they have it, is a permanent and an unrivaled possession. And whenever they can, therefore, they hear the orchestra itself and they are able, by reason of what the gramophone has taught them of orchestral tone, of orchestral color, of the music itself and of the conductor's interpretation and the players' performance, to enjoy more fully the actual tone and the actual color of the actual orchestra and the work of its conductor and its players."

The "Winner" Record Exchange Scheme

Apropos the current question of unsalable stock and its return for credit, it is interesting to observe that J. E. Hough, Ltd., carried through an exchange scheme between June 1 and 15 on the basis of 2 to 1, i. e., for every record returned the dealer was called upon to place an order for two others. This scheme applied to new records only, broken or scratched records being treated as old material at 6d. per pound. In the absence of general acceptance of the new record exchange proposals made at the recent music convention, the firm's offer can be regarded as satisfactory. Nevertheless, it is good news for the dealer that manufacturers are coming to regard this question as one justifying a modification of the present general policy.

Tutankhamen's Favorite Song is not represented on Winner record 3808. Compensation is found in the fact, however, that the hits which made history in the Victorian days are faithfully revived on this disc. "She Was One of the Early Birds," "My Fiddle Is My Sweetheart," "Hi-tiddley-hi-ti," "Little Dolly Daydreams," "At Trinity Church I Met My Doom" and other typical reminders of past times which we fain would live o'er again. "Veterans of Variety" is the appropriate title of a first-class record.

Alleged Infringement of "Polly"

G. F. Luxmoore, K.C., in the Chancery Division, appearing for plaintiff in the action brought by Frederick Austin, the composer and arranger of the music and the opera "Polly," against the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., asked his Lordship to fix a date for the hearing of the action.

He stated that the action was for alleged infringement of plaintiff's musical copyright in the opera by gramophone records and a number of expert witnesses would be called, including Sir Frederick Cowan and Sir Frederick Bridge. The hearing was fixed for July 3.

Wholesalers Discuss Record Exchange

At the British Music Industries Convention at Buxton the meeting held under the auspices of the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers was attended by Louis Sterling (Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd.), president; M. F. Cooksey (J. Thibouville-Lamy & Co.), H. J. Cullum (Lockwood's & Perophone, Ltd.), A. E. Liedtke (Columbia), A. J. Mason (Aeolian Co., Ltd.), E. C. Paskell (Colmore Depot), A. T. Paskell (London), Wilfred Samuel (Barnett Samuel & Sons), H. Moorby Smith (Johnson Talking Machine Co.), Herbert Smith (Keith, Prowse & Co.), and the secretary, C. E. Timms.

Full consideration was given to the suggested "Exchange Scheme for Obsolete and Unsalable Records," a subject which has engaged the attention of the General Committee of the Association over a period of twelve months.

E. C. Paskell (Colmore Depot, Birmingham), in opening the discussion, urged the necessity for some definite exchange scheme satisfactory to all parties and said he would endeavor to show that in the interests of the trade generally this was a matter which could be and should be dealt with, and a system adopted which would dispose of a good deal of the disadvantages and dissatisfaction which had always existed.

This question of obsolete and unsalable records is, he said, bound up very closely with the question of price maintenance. Price maintenance is an achievement in the record trade which has such benefits to the trade generally that anything which tends to upset this valuable advantage is a menace to the well-being of the trade. Were it not for price maintenance, the difficulty of disposal of obsolete and unsalable records is one that could be dealt with by selling the records at the market price, but with price maintenance they had the problem of a trader loaded with goods which he has to sell at a price which no buyer will pay. The position, he said, must be clearly understood, that no matter how careful a trader may be in ordering his stock of records he is bound to be left with a proportion which are unsalable.

In the newspaper trade the publishers took back a certain proportion of papers, and in the past gramophone record manufacturers had endeavored to deal with this matter by means of exchange schemes, generally on a three-to-one basis, but this had often left the dealer and factor in a worse position, and they all knew of factors and dealers who, by various means, which could not be called the highest form of trading, had got rid of some of their surplus stocks.

The scheme as recommended does not interfere with present prices, is entirely optional on the part of the factor and effectually distributes the loss entailed. This scheme is that twice in each year, on February 15 and August 15, the factor should be entitled to return to the manufacturer up to 10 per cent of the preceding six months' purchases, and to procure in exchange for the records he returns two-thirds of the quantity returned, i. e., the factor loses a third of the bad or unsalable records thus returned.

Put in very plain figures, this means that if a factor purchased 300 records he would be entitled to return thirty of those records and to receive for the thirty returned twenty new records. He would, therefore, lose the equivalent of ten records on 300, which is equal to 3 1/3 per cent.

After a full discussion, which was contributed to by Louis Sterling, H. J. Cullum, A. E. Liedtke, A. J. Mason, H. Moorby Smith, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That twice in each year the factor may return to the manufacturer 10 per cent of the preceding six months' purchases and secure in exchange for the records he returns two-thirds of the quantity, i. e., the factor loses a third of the bad or unsalable records he returns. The two dates in each year for these returns to be August 15 for 10 per cent of purchases between January 1 and June 30, February 15 for 10 per cent of purchases between July 1 and December 31."

This scheme secured the unqualified approval of the two manufacturing houses represented at the meeting, viz., the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., and the Aeolian Co., Ltd., and it is confidently anticipated that it will also be adopted by other manufacturers of gramophone records.

The Dealers' Point of View

By the time this appears in print the Gramophone Dealers' Association will have held a committee meeting and doubtless have issued to its members a report of its deliberations. Meanwhile, in discussing the matter with one or two prominent dealers the following points of view emerge:

That the A. G. M. I. M. proposal has one advantage over the various schemes already in operation, viz., it gives the dealer the opportunity to exchange any records he desires up to 10 per cent. Against this the dealers urge that it is not an adequate proposal, in that it merely offers an exchange. What the dealers are out for is the abolition of any kind of exchange. They have given some years' study and discussion to this very vexing question and they feel that they should be entitled to return records, in new and salable condition, up to 10 per cent of their purchases, and receive in return a clear credit for two-thirds of the trade value. This would enable the dealer who studies his business to keep his stocks salable and up to date, if he is not compelled to give a covering order. For instance, a dealer purchasing £100 worth of records at exchange would be able to return £10 worth and be credited with £6 13s. 4d., to be worked out in new orders as and when required. He would only lose, therefore, £3 6s. 8d., or 3 1/3 per cent, a merely nominal loss well within the limit customarily written off for depreciation. The credit of 6 2/3 per cent allowed for returns could be counted as additional capital.

Under the existing systems a dealer has had to overload his stock of records merely because of keeping a full selection, of which at least 10 per cent has speedily lost value. We will estimate that there are from 6,000 to 8,000 record dealers in the country and the average of unsalable stock at about £30 each. Figures are ever fallacious, we know, but this means something like a quarter of a million pounds of capital is tied up and useless. The dealers contend that under their proposal, in a year or so, the accumulated unsalable stocks would decrease to well below the 10 per cent allowed for return, and a large amount of, at present, dead capital, would be available to the benefit of both the manufacturer and dealer.

British Music Industries Convention

The convention, held this year at the famous Spa-Buxton, was attended by about 200 representatives of retail and jobbing trade and manufacturers in all lines of the music business. Restrictions of space preclude more than a condensed report of the proceedings.

President R. W. Pentland, who welcomed the guests, delivered a very interesting address and pointed out that last year he spoke of the immediate future of the piano industry in very optimistic terms. It is satisfactory to know that his anticipations have been more than fulfilled. Estimates regarding the output of pianos last season vary to some extent, but we know that the figure was not less than 82,000 and not more than 90,000. This was a very substantial increase on the previous season's trade.

In speaking of the development in the Gramophone industry during the last year, he said: "The output of gramophones and records was most satisfactory. It is estimated that the number of gramophones amounted to between 100,000 and 200,000, while the number of records totaled between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000. Mr. Pentland also pointed to the growth in exports and the increased competition by foreign manufacturers which must be met.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—Portable Phonograph. John L. Lind, Siren, Wis. Patent No. 1,454,389.

This invention relates to improvements in sound reproducing machines and more particularly to those of the portable type, in which the sound arm, reproducer, and record table are removed and stored within the main cabinet or box of the machine to be readily carried from place to place. The present application forms a continuation in part of pending United States application, Serial No. 397,185, filed July 19, 1920.

Figure 1 is a perspective view of a portable phonograph constructed in accordance with the present invention, showing the manner in which the device resembles an ordinary suit case when in condition for carrying from one place to another; Fig. 2 is a view similar to Fig. 1 but illustrating the instrument in condition for use; Fig. 3 is a side elevation with the door swung open to expose the record table and other parts normally carried in the box or cabinet; Fig. 4 is a horizontal section as indicated by the line 4—4 of Fig. 5; Fig. 5 is a longitudinal sectional view.

Sound Box for Sound Reproducing Machines. Walter Spofforth, St. Paul, Minn. Patent No. 1,454,297.

This invention relates to improvements in sound boxes, the primary object being to amplify sound and to produce clearer reproduction thereof than heretofore.

In the accompanying drawing forming part of this specification, Fig. 1 is a side elevation of the improved sound box; Fig. 2 is a section taken on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1; Fig. 3 is a side elevation of the sound board when removed from the sound box; Fig. 4 is a side elevation of one of the spider elements for supporting the sound board in the sound box; Fig. 5 is a section of a detail showing the construction by which the sound board is removably secured in the sound box, and Fig. 6 is a plan of the needle or stylus support which assists in transmitting the vibrations of the needle or stylus to the sound diaphragms.

Sound-Reproducing Machine. Albert G. Nyquist, deceased, Minneapolis, Minn., by Hilda L. Nyquist, administrator. Patent No. 1,454,134.

This invention relates to sound reproducing machines, and particularly, to such a machine in which are supported a plurality of records which are adapted to be individually selected and played. It is an object of this invention to construct such a machine in which a plurality of disc records are grouped and supported about a central point, the machine being controlled by the manual operation of a controller which may be located at some distance from the machine proper.

It is a further object of the invention to have the machine electrically driven and electrically controlled in the selection of records, and the controller can therefore be connected to the machine by a suitable flexible cable of any desired length.

Another object is to control the machine by a motor of special design which co-operates in a novel way with the selecting mechanism.

Still another object is to mount the sound box so that the same is disposed in a plane parallel to the records, the latter being preferably mounted in radial vertical planes, and the sound box being further equipped with means so that it can co-operate with the record on either side thereof.

The object of this invention is to provide an improved form of stylus or vibrating arm, that is connected between the diaphragm and the needle, that will have the effect to balance the vibration and thereby greatly improved results are obtained.

This invention has for its object the construction of a phonograph cabinet which has a spring operated top upon which a latch is provided which, after the playing of a record is finished, can be released, allowing the top to spring up into open position, which thereupon automatically stops the rotation of the record-holding table and raises the tone arm together with the attached reproducer from the record, thereby putting the machine in a position to be reset for another record or for the replaying of the same record.

A further object is the provision of a phonograph cabinet which acts in the manner described above without the introduction of unnecessary or cumbersome apparatus and with the use of a simple construction which cannot ordinarily be distinguished from the construction now commonly in use in the ordinary phonograph cabinet, and which, moreover, can be readily installed in any make of instrument now in use.

Figure 1 is a top plan view of a phonograph cabinet showing the cover removed and with this invention applied thereto. Fig. 2 is a sectional view taken on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1, some parts being removed and showing the cover in place and looking in the direction indicated by the arrows. Fig. 3 is a section taken on the broken line 3—3 of Fig. 1 looking in the direction indicated. Fig. 4 is a section taken on the line 4—4 of Fig. 1 showing the cover in position and looking in the direction indicated by the arrows. Fig. 5 is a detail view showing the construction and operation of the braking mechanism. Fig. 6 is a section taken on the line 6—6 of Fig. 4. Fig. 7 is a section taken on the line 7—7 of Fig. 6 showing the operating arm in place. Fig. 8 is an enlarged section taken on the line 8—8 of Fig. 1. Fig. 9 is a sectional view similar to Fig. 2, showing a modified form of construction of the invention. Fig. 10 is a section taken on the line 10—10 of Fig. 9, parts being omitted. Fig. 11 is a section

Phonograph Turntable. John J. Reinhold, Marietta, Pa. Patent No. 1,455,355.

This invention relates to phonograph turntables and has for its object to provide a simple, cheap and durable device for guiding or centering phonograph records while they are being placed upon the turntable. A further object is to provide a device of this character which is applicable to records of different diameter.

This invention relates to certain improvements in brushes and it is an object to provide a novel and improved brush particularly designed and adapted for use in the cleaning of phonographic records and more especially of a disc type.

Another object of the invention is to provide a novel and improved device of this general character comprising a brush head supported for sliding movement in opposite directions, the movement of the brush head in one direction positioning the same above and in contact with a record, the movement of the brush head in the opposite direction positioning the same to one side of the record, together with means of operating upon movement of the brush head in one direction to cleanse the same.

Figure 1 is a view in elevation of a brush constructed in accordance with an embodiment of the invention, with the head extended into position to engage a phonographic record. Fig. 2 is an enlarged sectional view taken longitudinally through the device as herein disclosed with the brush head in retracted position. Fig. 3 is a fragmentary longitudinal sectional view taken through the device as illustrated in Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a sectional view taken substantially on the line 4—4 of Fig. 3.

Sound Box. Daniel F. Snyder, Garwood, N. J., assignor to the Aeolian Co., New York. Patent No. 1,454,909.

This invention relates to mechanism for modifying the effect of the diaphragm and, in particular, to controlling the effective area of the diaphragm.

In the drawing referred to, Figure 1 is a front or face view of the improved sound box. Fig. 2 is a sectional view of the same on substantially the plane of line 2—2 of Fig. 1. In both the views referred to the parts are adjusted to utilize the full expanse of the diaphragm. Figs. 3 and 4 are views similar to Figs. 1 and 2, showing the parts adjusted to reduce the effective area of the diaphragm.

Sound Box Structure. Carl Scrabic, Urbana, O. Patent No. 1,455,972.

This invention relates broadly to talking machines, and has particular reference to the sound reproducing mechanism thereof, the object of the invention being fundamentally to provide a sound box of such construction that the same will automatically act to position itself in such manner that its needle or stylus will be properly centered in the groove of a record with which the sound box is employed, the construction being such that the stylus will be located in the center of gravity of the sound box and will be maintained in proper relationship with the record irrespective of position variations which the latter may assume during its rotation.

Phonograph Sound Box. William M. Venable, Pittsburgh, Pa. Patent No. 1,455,942.

The principal object of this invention is to improve the quality of the reproduced sounds. This is accomplished by a structure by means of which it is possible to regulate the tone and the volume of the reproduced sound and to eliminate objectionable qualities commonly introduced by present methods of reproduction, although not existent at the time of recording. The foregoing is accomplished by means of a novel construction which employs some improved parts corresponding to old parts now in common use as well as certain new parts designed to perform new functions not hitherto recognized in this art.

tone arm. Fig. 4 is a plan view of the underside of the sound box. Fig. 5 is a sectional view corresponding to that of Fig. 3, illustrating a somewhat modified arrangement. Fig. 6 is a sectional view similar to that of Fig. 1, but illustrating a modified form taken on the line 6—6 of Fig. 7. Fig. 7 is a face view partially in section taken as indicated by the line 7—7 in Fig. 6. Fig. 8 is a section on the line 8—8 of Fig. 7. Fig. 9 is a section similar to those of Figs. 3, 5 and 8, but with certain parts omitted, such, for instance, as the diaphragm and the vibration lever, illustrating a further modification. Fig. 10 is a partial sectional view illustrating a detail of the assembly.

Phonograph Record. Wm. H. Rose, Jersey City, N. J., assignor of one-half to Howard S. Neiman, New York. Patent No. 1,455,886.

This invention relates particularly to records known commercially as disc records.

There are certain physical reasons necessitating a blank, or unrecording surface, upon portions of the record, thus causing a further limitation to the record area capable of sound reproduction.

The standard phonographs are so constructed that imperfect, or no, sound reproductions can be obtained from a record having a diameter of greater than twelve inches.

This invention allows a very considerably longer sound reproduction with regard to a time period than can be obtained from a flat disc record of the same diameter and this increase is obtained without a diminution of sound perfection. It further allows the standard phonographs to reproduce a longer sound record than they can reproduce from any other known record.

The invention is, therefore, a new, novel and useful phonograph record, producing results unobtainable from a flat disc record.

This invention relates to a repeating device for phonographs, whereby the playing of a record on the turntable may be repeated automatically as many times as desired.

SELLING MUSICAL MERCHANDISE

By J. R. FREW

This is a practical book that describes the methods pursued by a successful music dealer in conducting his musical merchandise departments. It covers every routine problem incident to establishing and operating a department devoted to band and orchestra instruments.

This branch of the music industry has had a very prosperous year and an excellent opportunity awaits other dealers who take it up. It requires a small investment, gets quick turnover, involves no risk and, in addition to being highly profitable itself, increases the sale of talking machines, records, etc., and helps make a given store the music center of its community.

GRINNELL BROS. STILL EXPANDING

Grinnell Bros., of Detroit, continue to open new stores in and around Detroit as new sections build up. They now have the following retail places in the Motor City: Headquarters at 1515 Woodward avenue; Broadway, near Monroe street; East Jefferson avenue, in Fairview district; Joseph Campau, near Yemans; Michigan avenue, at Thirty-second street; West Jefferson avenue, near the River Rouge post office, and the newest store is on Grand River avenue, half a block above Joy road. Add to this their chain of retail stores in the State, as well as Ohio and Ontario, and you can see that Grinnell Bros. probably operate more retail establishments than any other concern in America.

The SCOTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesmaker by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

TWELVE POINTS

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailor-made appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitivity to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap soundboxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber basket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.

EMANUEL BLOUT TO HANDLE PIANOS

Well-known Talking Machine Dealer to Install Piano Departments in Stores in New York City, Poughkeepsie and Bayonne—Leases Fine New Quarters at 2786 Broadway, New York

Emanuel Blout, well-known dealer in Victrolas and Victor records in New York, has arranged to install complete piano departments in his several stores. Several well-known makes of pianos have already been selected and the complete line to be handled will be announced shortly. The Blout stores, in addition to the headquarters in New York City, include one in the Fordham section of New York and others in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Bayonne, N. J.

Mr. Blout, who has occupied a large store at the corner of 108th street and Broadway for the past twelve years, recently sold the property and has leased a new location at 2786 Broadway, between 107th and 108th streets, with a large "L" running to the latter thoroughfare. The new quarters, comprising several thousand square feet, include a commodious basement for the storage of reserve stock. A fine new front has been built in the Broadway side and the interior is now being decorated and equipped in an elaborate manner. The Broadway section will be given over to a talking machine department, with a generous battery of sound-proof booths and record racks to take care of the business, and the piano department, which will be in direct charge of Sam Semels, will be located in the "L."

Mr. Blout, who has been spending the Summer in Maine with his family, has come down to New York each week to observe the progress made in arranging the new quarters, which will be open to the public on September 1. The new store is located in an exclusive residential section where Mr. Blout has built up a very substantial talking machine business.

COMBINES BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

A. H. Curry Spends His Vacation Calling on Members of the Trade in the Northern New York and Canadian Territories

A. H. Curry, vice-president in charge of the phonograph division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., left the early part of August for a combination vacation and business trip, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Curry and three of their children. The first stop was at Buffalo, where he boarded a boat to Toronto. In this city he called on the Edison jobbers, R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd. He then proceeded by boat to Montreal, where he visited the Edison jobbers in that city, which is also the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd. The itinerary, then, was by boat to Quebec, and from there by train to St. Johns, New Brunswick. Here he conferred with the Edison jobbers, W. H. Thorn & Co., Ltd., and from there he is to go by boat to Boston, and from Boston home. In Boston he will confer with the local Edison jobbers, the Pardee-Ellenberger Co. Mr. Curry is expected back in Orange about August 20.

ARTISTS FOR EDISON TONE TESTS

The Edison tone test Fall season is now rapidly getting under way and on quite an extensive scale. The Edison artists who will cover every section of the country during the forthcoming season include Helen Davis, Victor Young, Elizabeth Spencer, Harold Lyman, Glen Ellison, Sybil Sanderson Fagan, Walter Hill, Marie Morissey, John Glockner and others. Edison dealers, realizing the value of this unique form of sales promotion, are still making bookings with their respective Edison jobbers.

NOTABLE RECEPTION FOR WHITEMAN

Special Committee Welcomes Popular Orchestra Leader Upon Return From England—Unusual Stunts Feature Welcoming Program

Paul Whiteman, the prominent and popular dance orchestra leader and exclusive Victor record artist, returned to New York with his orchestra aboard the "Leviathan" on Monday, August 13, after having filled an engagement of several months in England, and it is doubtful if any musician ever received a more elaborate welcome to his home country.

When it was learned that Mr. Whiteman was homeward bound a special welcoming committee was organized, with Phil Kornheiser, professional manager for Leo Feist, Inc., the music publishers, as chairman, and with a number of prominent musicians, music publishers and talking machine men as committee members.

The official committee went down the bay on a specially chartered steamer to welcome Whiteman, being accompanied by a large band, as well as members of the staff and chorus of "Little Jessie James." Musicians in airplanes and others floating about in safety suits were features of the reception program.

On Tuesday evening, August 14, a banquet was tendered Mr. Whiteman and his orchestra at the Waldorf-Astoria, with William Collier as toastmaster.

G. F. SCHAFER IN FINE NEW STORE

Prominent Batavia, N. Y., Dealer Opens Artistically Arranged Quarters

BATAVIA, N. Y., August 7.—George F. Schafer, prominent music dealer, of this city, opened his attractive new warerooms at 52 Main street this week. The fixtures and decorations are the most modern obtainable, having been installed by the Van Veen Co., of New York, specialist in designing store interiors. This establishment, which is about twice the size of the former store, is, without question, one of the most attractive in this part of the State and the large stock of Columbia machines, pianos and musical instruments of all kinds makes this an ideal place for shopping for musical instruments.

TALKING MACHINE INCORPORATION

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the American Music Sales Co., of Wilmington, Del., under the laws of the State to deal in talking machines with a capital of $50,000.

The sudden death of President Warren G. Harding, which occurred in San Francisco on August 2, while he was en route home from a visit to Alaska, cast a pall of sorrow over the entire country. It marked the passing of the head of the nation as well as an individual who, through his noble and amiable character and high ideals, had endeared himself to the people as a whole. President Harding was a martyr to duty, for the weakened condition that brought about his death was due primarily to his great and constant activity in office.

The death of the President was a particularly sad blow to the music industry, for he was a lover of music and had gone on record on numerous occasions as to his interest in the propagation of the art.

The talking machine industry joins with the people of the United States at large in paying a last sad tribute to the twenty-ninth President, who was thus cut down in the middle of his executive activities for the benefit of the nation.

BROOKLYN DEALER OPENS NEW STORE

Ormonde Music Shop Holds Formal Opening—Maine H. Rountree's Orchestra Scores Hit

Herchenroder Bros., owners of the Ormonde Music Shop, 1314 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y., recently purchased the Victor store of Abraham Lesser at 114-15 Boulevard, Rockaway Park, L. I., which will be conducted hereafter under the name of the Ormonde Music Shop at the same address. The feature of the opening of the new store was Maine H. Rountree and His Orchestra, which drew a capacity crowd, in spite of inclement weather. Mr. Rountree conducted his orchestra, which played the latest dance hits and which incidentally was responsible, in a great measure, for the sale of an exceptionally large number of dance records.

GALPERIN MUSIC SHOP IN NEW HOME

CHARLESTON, W. VA., August 8.—The Galperin Music Shop, of this city, and one of the largest music houses in the State, has recently moved into its new four-story building at 17 Capitol street, two doors removed from its former location. The concern features Victor machines and records, Columbia machines and a complete line of other musical instruments and supplies.

AMERICAN MUSIC CORP. CHARTERED

WILMINGTON, DEL., August 8.—The American Music Corp., of this city, has been chartered under the laws of this State, with a capital of $1,200,000, to deal in Decca Disc automatic coin-operated phonographs. Incorporators are M. L. Rogers, L. A. Irwin and W. G. Singer, all of this city.

ADDITIONS TO TRAVELING STAFF

The Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, Edison jobber in the metropolitan district, recently announced three additions to the general traveling staff. They are J. T. Jackman, G. T. McCrea and Herbert C. Snyder. Further additions are planned in the near future.

Developing Home Territory in Summer

Why Stay-at-Homes Can Be Sold More Expensive Instruments in Summertime if a Vigorous Sales Promotion Drive Is Prosecuted

Much has been said and written concerning the opportunities of making sales of machines and records to those people who go away on vacations during the Summer months, with the portable type of instrument as the ideal machine to push in most cases, especially to campers, owners of small cottages, etc. While this is an avenue to sales which the wise talking machine dealer will make the most of, there is still a greater field for the sale of both machines and records right at home. When all is said and done a surprisingly small percentage of the people who are logical prospects go away for vacation at the seashore or mountains and of these by far the largest percentage go away only for two weeks to a month, so that the vacation exodus is at no time a serious matter for the dealer to contend with. To hear some talk one would think that practically all of the residents of a community rushed away at the first sign of really warm weather, to remain until the early Fall.

Vigorous Drives Bring Business

There are some dealers, and these are the ones who are doing the largest business right now, who have already instituted vigorous campaigns for the remainder of the Summer and Fall. These are the merchants who have taken advantage of every opportunity to make sales. They have tied up their advertising with admirably arranged window displays. In the window of one establishment, for example, there was a display a few weeks ago which pictured a section of the porch of an attractive home. Wicker furniture had been carefully placed about the porch and there was also an upright model talking machine. The window looked cool and inviting and it was noticeable that many pedestrians stopped to look at the display.

Why One Dealer Is Busy

One prominent talking machine dealer in the metropolitan district in discussing business with the writer made the following statement regarding his method of going after business during the Summer season: "We never curtail our efforts, regardless of the time of the year and the apparent unfavorable conditions which seem to make sales impossible. Service is responsible for our success and it seems to me that only through service can dealers make instruments stay sold. We make periodical inspections of the instruments sold by us and when we discover anything broken that part is replaced at cost without charge for labor. Minor adjustments are made on the spot and so our patrons' instruments are always in good order and we never have any trouble or dissatisfaction with them. Now these people are boosters for us and, therefore, more valuable than any advertising could be. Through them we are constantly securing the names of friends or relatives who do not possess instruments and these prospects we follow up without loss of time.

"In endeavoring to interest a prospect in a talking machine we have found that personal contact is by far the most effective method. A courteous salesman can get into a home and arouse the desire of the prospect to such a pitch that a demonstration at the store is sure to follow and the chances of making the sale are excellent.

"Thus far this Summer our business has maintained a fairly good volume. Not only have we sold a number of portable types of instruments, but we have also disposed of a fairly large number of upright and console models. Advertising, window display and aggressive salesmanship did the trick, and, moreover, through our canvassing and sales efforts during the Summer we have come in contact with many people who will be ready to buy in the early Fall. It is my belief that continuous effort is necessary, whether the weather is warm or cold. The point is that there are always possibilities of making sales and while during the Summer business may not be up to the mark desired the cumulative effect of regular advertising and other sales promotional work is bound to result in sales later in the season."

This particular dealer knows whereof he speaks. He operates two handsome talking machine stores and he is conceded by other dealers in the territory immediately surrounding him to be the most successful in that particular section of the metropolitan district. What this merchant has done you can do. It may require hard work and the results at first may not be what you expect, but when once the business ball has started rolling it will gain momentum and the volume of sales will constantly increase.

Practical Hints for Increasing Business

Frank H. Williams Describes Several Stunts Designed to Boost Sales Which Any Dealer Can Utilize With Very Little Trouble

Are there more men than women buying records from the talking machine dealer? Or do women predominate among the store's patrons? How many of the purchasers of records are young people of twenty-one years or under?

If the dealer analyzed his customers with these questions in mind and then presented the information in his display window with an appropriate sales argument he would find that it would be a distinct boost for his business. For instance, if the women predominate among the store's customers the information could be played up in the window in this way:

"MORE WOMEN THAN MEN—

"Have been purchasing talking machine records at our store recently.

"The reason is not that the women of this city love music any more than men. The reason is that women generally do the shopping for the family and so shop for phonograph records.

"Men, turn the tables and do some buying of records yourselves. Give your families a treat by bringing home a bunch of new records TONIGHT."

A placard showing the percentages of men and women among the store's patrons adds interest to the display. If the men predominate among the patrons then that fact could be played up with copy urging women to do more shopping for records and vice versa.

This sort of display and sales talk is always timely and generally gets a lot of attention. It stimulates interest and is a good thing for business generally.

Selling the Summer Cottagers

A successful Middle Western talking machine dealer has secured considerable Summer business by sending salesmen to each nearby Summer resort at the opening of the season to sell machines and records to the cottagers. The salesman is generally some man or woman who spends a good part of the Summer at the resorts and so is familiar with them, and the type of machines and records that make the bulk of sales are portable machines and light, lively records.

The method used by the salesman is to go, first, to some cottage that has a wide veranda and where there are young people who will spend all or at least the greater part of the Summer at the cottage. The salesman then sells these cottagers on the proposition of having a machine for dances on the veranda on Summer evenings and of having a portable machine which can be taken out on the lake and to picnics. Generally it isn't a very difficult proposition to sell a machine to such people. If the prospect already has a portable machine then an effort is made to sell the cottagers on the proposition of having a larger machine which will give better music for dancing. If a large machine is owned then the salesman tries to "sell" the idea of the additional enjoyment to be derived from a portable instrument, which can easily be carried around.

After the salesman has sold this first cottage he works every other cottage in the neighborhood and uses the initial sale as an argument why the others should also buy machines.

In this way a large number of sales are made which, otherwise, would probably never have been made and, while selling machines, the salesman also demonstrates and sells large quantities of records.

Prizes for Largest Record Libraries

A publicity stunt which is both unique and profitable is for the dealer to inaugurate a contest to find out who the five people are in his territory who have the largest record libraries and to then play up the records in these collections and urge other people to also try to get as large and as varied collections. The offer of a prize of three or four records to each of the five people having the largest libraries would make all talking machine owners take a deeper interest in the affair. Announcement of the contest might be made through the medium of advertisements in the local newspapers and by means of letters sent to all customers.

After the prizes had been awarded to the owners of the five largest record libraries among those entering the contest the dealer could cash in by arranging a window display in which photos of the prize winners and placards giving the names of all the records in each of their record libraries were prominently displayed. Also some information on the placards as to when the prize winners purchased their instruments, what they think of the records handled by the dealer and all that sort of thing is the finest kind of publicity.

Displays and contests of this character create comment and it might even be possible to get the local newspapers to say something about the contest in their news columns, as all of the readers of the papers who had machines of their own would be much interested in learning about the large record libraries of the city and in learning about the names of the records contained in these libraries.

No great effort is required to inaugurate a contest of this kind and the results will more than justify all the time, thought and labor put into it.

A Needle Display That Pulls

Who among the store's patrons buys the greatest quantities of needles? Of course, the people who buy the greatest quantities of needles play their talking machines most frequently and keep their records in the best condition. It would, therefore, be a good stunt for the dealer to dig up some information along this line and to get short interviews with the large needle purchasers, securing information about the times and ways in which they play their instruments and about the great amount of pleasure they get from their machines and also describing the improvement in reproduction of music by change of needles after each record.

This information, presented to the public through the medium of an interesting window display, should create considerable interest. The display should contain large quantities of needles and also the original packages in which needles are shipped to the store. Placards, on which information about the store's largest needle users is interestingly presented, are necessary. Another placard urging people to buy more needles and change needles every time they play a record induces action. And with this the store could say that it was hurting its own business by putting out this window display as the less needles people purchase the shorter time their records will hold up and the more records they will have to buy. It could also be stated that the store was putting out this window display simply for the purpose of rendering more service to patrons and talking machine owners generally, as it is always striving to do.

A unique display such as this is certain to get a lot of attention, and that is what the live merchant strives for in his window displays.

J. J. HAMMER IN NEW POST

SPOKANE, WASH., August 3.—J. J. Hammer, formerly manager of the local branch of Sherman, Clay & Co., was recently appointed general manager of the Seattle branch of the firm. W. E. Austin, of San Jose, Cal., who has been connected with the company for some time, succeeds Mr. Hammer as local manager.

GOOD WORK OF IRWIN KURTZ

Irwin Kurtz, president of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., and a well-known metropolitan talking machine dealer, has been actively at work, as the chairman of the Board of Commerce committee of Harlem, in making plans for "The Walk of the Heroes," which will soon be constructed in Central Park in honor of Harlem men who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War.

Many a person—even a talking machine man—has made a false step in standing still.

The Sonora Appeals to the Buyer of Quality

The Sonora dealer is right now preparing not only to make the year 1923 the largest in his history, but also the year 1924—indeed, all the years to come.

Because every Sonora he sells adds to his reputation as a quality merchant, the complete satisfaction and confidence engendered by Sonora performance raises his enterprise to the position held by all merchandisers of quality products.

FINISHED PRODUCT PERFECTION

Increased Record Sales

Peerless Album is a lasting invitation to its owner to purchase 12 records. The profit on a Peerless Album is as great as the profit on a record—and the album doesn't have to be played or demonstrated—hence, no overhead selling expense and it induces 12 record sales, too.

Peerless Albums are of a quality which will lend distinction to your line and add to your reputation for merchandise of acknowledged merit.

Push the sale of Peerless Albums! Advertise them, display them. Concentrate your salespeople's efforts toward a wide distribution of them—get them into the homes of your prospective record customers!

Phil Ravis

There are two elements of manufacturing perfection in which the Peerless Album excels, namely—quality and uniformity.

To maintain quality, the markets of the country are combed to procure the best in raw materials and, from our tremendous annual purchases, only the finest of all this material is chosen to go into the Peerless Record Album.

Uniformity, so essential to the name and reputation of a product (with the universal recognition of Peerless), is insured by a most rigid supervision of factory workmanship and an inspection system which passes to the trade only an album worthy the trade-mark it bears.

Thus our responsibility for finished product perfection is reflected in your business when you stock and promote the sale of Peerless Albums.

TRADE PROSPECTS FOR FALL AND WINTER

CONSIDERED from every angle, business in the talking machine industry continues in a most satisfactory condition. It is possible that in the retail field more effort is necessary to close sales, but this is a healthy development. The selling qualifications of dealers are being tested and it is a case of the survival of the fittest. The dealer who is content to wait for customers to come to his store is not doing as well as the dealer who is conducting a campaign to capture trade by keeping in close contact with his prospective customers and interesting them in his product.

The trade possibilities for the Fall are excellent and of particular significance are the increased savings deposits in the banks throughout the country, as well as the great number of new homes which are now being erected, every one of which will require a talking machine.

It is estimated by the National Industrial Conference Board in its review of industrial-economic conditions in the United States, that contracts totaling $3,000,000,000 have been awarded for residential buildings and that housing quarters sufficient for 1,000,000 families will be ready by the end of the year. When you consider that every one of these million homes will have, or should have, a talking machine and a goodly library of records, who will deny that there is an opportunity here for really serious and effective sales work in the talking machine field the coming Fall and Winter?

Now, when we add to this the fact that the savings banks authorities state that there has been an increase of $860,000,000 in savings deposits for the period ending June 30, 1922, while more recent reports for 1923 show a still larger percentage of deposits in this country, we can get a conception of the increased sales possibilities that exist in the talking machine industry.

Moreover, employment has rarely been so widespread at this time of the year and the workers seem to be piling up a surplus, not only to meet immediate needs, but to spend for such necessities in the enjoyment of life as music and the mediums whereby it can be interpreted.

When one analyzes the situation in detail there can be no question as to the splendid possibilities for capturing a larger measure of trade that prevail during the coming Fall and Winter for talking machine men of energy and ability. And this can be done without recourse to price-cutting or other questionable practices existing in the industry. Fair merchandising principles can and should prevail in the field of competition.

AVOIDING LOSS IN HANDLING OF TRADE-INS

THE trade-in or exchange problem which has been long prominent in the piano industry is now cropping up in the talking machine field, and its evils and pitfalls for the dealer are well worth watching and studying. Members of the trade who have given this subject consideration believe that there is a tendency toward too high allowances for used instruments turned in in exchange for new ones and not enough thought given to whether the sum allowed for the instrument will show profit for the seller.

The instructive address of Jay Iglauer, merchandise manager of Halle Bros., Cleveland, on this topic before the local Music Merchants' Association last month, was most timely. He pointed out that wise merchants no longer recognize gross profit; they call it gross margin. The only profit is that which is left for the merchant to put into his own pocket. Mr. Iglauer used an instrument that would retail at $200 to illustrate his talk. This machine ordinarily costs the dealer $120, giving him, he might suppose, $80 profit. Yet the cost of the machine is only part of the cost of doing business with it, Mr. Iglauer showed. Other costs include those of selling, rent, delivery, advertising, service for one year, storage, insurance, taxes and the general overhead charges.

Estimated conservatively, Mr. Iglauer asserted that these costs would total 31 per cent of the cost of the article, or $62, which made the machine cost the dealer $182, not $120, thus leaving him a profit of $18, not $80, or approximately 9 per cent. The reason for this false viewpoint, in the opinion of Mr. Iglauer, is that dealers are prone to consider the cost of the goods, rather than what they can get for them, yet it is only what the goods will sell for that can count with the dealer seeking a profit.

Since the trade-in is a factor with which the talking machine dealer must now reckon seriously Mr. Iglauer supplemented his conclusions in a new machine sale with those pertaining to the used phonograph. He took another theoretical machine, that sold several years ago for $150, and for which the dealer had allowed $75. Mr. Iglauer offered the opinion that, with competition of both new and old machines, it is hardly likely that the dealer could get better than $65 for the old instrument. Then there are the items that must be included in the cost of selling this machine, such as rent, insurance, taxes, service, etc. The items included in addition to these were not included in this illustration, it being supposed that the sale of the new machines might cover them. Using the same percentages, it was found that the added costs to dispose of the old phonograph would amount to $26.75, and this figure, added to the original allowance for the machine, would not give the dealer a profit. More, he would have actually lost $8.75, since he would have absorbed the profit on the new machine.

This "trade-in" question is a vital one and the dealer who wants to do business along correct and profitable lines must as a matter of duty make a closer analysis of what it costs him to do business, so that for his own benefit, as well as that of the sales force, he will know exactly what allowances he can make for exchanges and yet make a profit. Competition is growing keener every day, but no merchant who desires to stay in business can afford to do business at a loss. The margin of profit in the retail trade to-day is not by any means large and it behooves dealers to be careful that this is not decreased by any unwise allowances for used instruments exchanged for new ones.

This is a subject that The Talking Machine Men, Inc., of New York might discuss with profit and the same applies to every local association interested in merchandising talking machines.

NEED FOR A CREDIT SERVICE IN THE TRADE

A NUMBER of members of the talking machine trade, and particularly those engaged in the manufacture or sale of supplies such as motors, tone arms, etc., are becoming increasingly insistent on the point that there is real need in the industry for some sort of a credit service, either conducted through organized channels or developed through the interchange of credit information among the manufacturers themselves.

The trade has developed to a point where such credit service is fully warranted, as it will prevent loss not only to manufacturers through bad credit risks, which at present are now out of proportion to those experienced in other trades, but it will likewise serve to protect the legitimate talking machine manufacturer from inroads made by fly-by-nights and irresponsible parties.

Unfortunately at the present time there is no national organization in the talking machine trade which could take up this work and establish a credit bureau as a part of its activities, nor is there any prospect of such an organization being formed in the near future.

In studying the possibilities for organizing some sort of credit service, it has been suggested to The World that the matter be placed before the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, with which a number of talking machine manufacturers and some dealers are affiliated as individuals.

The suggestion is based on the fact that the Chamber has for some time past been conducting a very successful credit service for piano manufacturers, as well as a similar service for the Musical Supply Association, the membership of which consists of manufacturers of piano supplies of various sorts.

Having developed these two credit services to a point where they are operating accurately and efficiently, it is felt that the Chamber is in possession of information regarding plans and methods that could be used to great advantage in the cause of the talking machine supply men.

It might be well for those members of the trade who are genuinely interested in the organization of a credit service for the industry to take up the matter with the officials of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, either with the idea of having that body undertake the work or, at least, of gathering information that will serve as a guide for those in the industry itself should they desire to undertake the work of their own accord.

THE DEVELOPMENTS IN THE RECORD FIELD

THE record situation and concomitant developments during the past year or so have, without question, been a most interesting factor in the talking machine trade for the reason that the prosperity of the industry and of those who have to do with the distribution of the product rests primarily upon the record turnover. As a matter of fact, those who have entered and remained in the trade actuated by the idea of permanence have most generally considered the sale of machines more or less incidental to the opening up of new record accounts.

It was not so long ago that the monthly record release was accepted as the established practice; then with the development of the dance craze and the demand for early releases of the records of the new dance hits by popular orchestras there came the call for special releases between monthly supplements. Now we find record manufacturing companies definitely committed to the practice of weekly or almost daily releases of new records.

It is generally believed that the new practice will prove of benefit to the trade, outside of its consideration from the angle of competition, for the reason that it will provide retailers with new records to offer at frequent intervals. Experience has proved in certain cases that the individual who would hesitate about investing nine or ten dollars in records from the monthly supplements will not hesitate in the least about spending a couple of dollars each week for new selections.

Particular interest is evinced in the announcement of the Victor Co. that beginning in September releases of Red Seal records in double-faced form will be made. This move has aroused widespread interest. The rearrangement of the catalog has proved a formidable task, but it has been accomplished in what is apparently a most successful manner, with the selection on one side being backed up with a number of corresponding character by the same artist on the other.

It has been maintained, and properly, that the secret of maintaining the customer's interest in the talking machine through giving him a library of permanent rather than transient value lies in affording him the opportunity of appreciating and buying records of the better sort. With the new Red Seal records offered in double-faced form, and at what represents a substantial reduction in catalog prices, the dealer has the means for interesting every machine owner in at least some records that, even to the uninitiated and more or less unappreciative, represent both commercial and artistic value.

"Breaking Into" Apartments for Business

How a Live Dealer Succeeded in Solving the Problem of Securing Apartment House Trade, Selling Five Machines in One Building

Many talking machine dealers, especially those in the cities and larger towns, are faced with a real difficulty in carrying on their outside sales and canvassing operations in the apartment house districts, which every city now boasts. This is true in greatest measure where the dealer endeavors to make personal contact with residents of the better class apartments. In many cases the salesman finds the superintendent a real enemy to his progress and often after he has passed this "guardian of the portal" his reception by the mistress of the apartment, after stating his business to the maid or whoever opens the door, is cool indeed and quite often the rebuff leaves no room for doubt as to the attitude of the mistress of the house toward salesmen in general.

Not an Insurmountable Problem

This is a most natural condition and there is really no cause for either the dealer or his outside sales organization to be discouraged. When one method fails another should be tried, and if the dealer or salesmanager persists he is bound to finally hit upon a plan which will eliminate the difficulty to a greater or lesser extent. "How?" asks the dealer, and the best answer we can think of is to describe the methods which have proved successful for another talking machine merchant, the Dorn Music Co., Inc., John Dorn, proprietor, who features the Edison phonographs and records and a line of pianos at 604 Bergenline avenue, West New York, N. J.

Mr. Dorn's location is in a district devoted largely to apartment houses, some of medium class and many others the last word in this type of dwelling. Experience quickly taught him that ordinary methods of approach were unproductive. Sales were not what they should be in proportion to the time and effort expended by the outside salesmen and Mr. Dorn, who himself often goes out after business. He spent considerable time in thinking over this problem and finally evolved the plan which caused astonishing results. To make a long story short, Mr. Dorn decided that the key man or woman in each apartment house was the superintendent or janitor and he decided to gain their co-operation by making his first advances to them, i. e., his idea was to make a sale to the superintendent or janitor of each apartment house, and if this was not possible, to at least secure their friendship and co-operation.

Selling the Superintendent

A short distance from Mr. Dorn's store there is a large, high-class apartment house and he decided on this as the field for one of his first attempts to put his new plan into execution. Accordingly, he approached the superintendent, who, fortunately, did not own an instrument, and after selling the idea of the Edison to this man and his wife he was permitted to place an instrument, which he had brought along in his machine, in their apartment for a trial of several days. When he returned at the expiration of the stated period not much persuasion was necessary to close the deal on the spot. The superintendent and his wife liked the instrument so much that they would not allow him to remove it.

The Second Step in the Plan

The first step accomplished and Mr. Dorn and the superintendent on a friendly basis, an agreement was reached between the two, which was in effect that the superintendent was to find out who in the apartment did not possess a phonograph. This was easy for the superintendent when the tenants paid the rent. He had only to call attention to the fact that he had just purchased a machine from the Dorn Music Co. and the conversation thus started made it a comparatively simple matter to discover which tenants owned an instrument.

Sells Five Edisons in One Building

The information was passed over to Mr. Dorn, who then visited each one of the non-owners in that apartment house. Vigorous follow-up resulted in the sale of five Edisons in that one apartment house. That is the story in a nutshell, and, moreover, the plan is being utilized regularly by Mr. Dorn and although five phonographs placed in one building remains as the top-notch sale, the results of the campaign in new business and the overcoming of a serious waste in outside sales effort have produced dividends of the most satisfactory kind—increased profits.

What Mr. Dorn is doing other merchants can do. There is no reason why the dealer and his salesmen can not make the apartment house districts in his territory, where population is concentrated, bring returns in sales with minimum effort and time. Furthermore, the sale of a machine is merely the start, or, at least, it should be, of many future purchases of records and accessories. It is the business man who can think out plans for overcoming obstacles and who can put those plans into execution who is most certain to reach the pinnacle of success in the talking machine business or any other enterprise.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. Forms Subsidiary Company to Make Tires, Turning Over Space Formerly Used for This Purpose Entirely to Manufacture of Phonographs

CHICAGO, ILL., August 8.—P. L. Deutsch, secretary of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has given out the following statement describing a new and important move which has been made by the Brunswick interests. He says:

"We have formed a subsidiary company to manufacture and sell Brunswick tires, with executive offices in New York, and sales offices in Akron, O., where all manufacturing will be done. This new subsidiary company will be operated independent of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., and we believe that the success we have enjoyed with Brunswick tires in the past will become far greater in the future, because of possibilities the subsidiary company has to concentrate solely upon this business.

"The transfer of our manufacturing interests in automobile tires to Akron, O., became necessary because of the rapid expansion of our phonograph division, making it imperative for us to extend our manufacturing facilities.

"The factories at Muskegon, Mich., which were formerly used in the manufacture of tires and which immediately adjoin our wood-working plants will be converted at once to the manufacture of phonographs. These buildings, along with the new record factories under construction, will undoubtedly enhance our position in the phonograph industry.

"To-day we are enjoying the greatest prosperity in the history of this company, and we are doing everything that is humanly possible to meet the great demand for Brunswick phonographs and records.

"While the new additions to our factories make possible the greatest production in both phonographs and records that we have ever planned, we do not by any means believe that we will be in a position to supply our dealers' orders this Fall 100 per cent. Many of our dealers to-day realize the physical impossibility on our part to produce enough phonographs and records to meet the Fall demand, and have accordingly placed orders covering their requirements up to the first of the year. This splendid co-operation on the part of our dealers, along with the tremendous manufacturing expansion, will place us in a far better position to meet the retail demand, and consequently bring to the dealer a greater service.

"The addition of these new factories is just one of the many steps taken by this company in its expansion of the phonograph division. We have every confidence that this Fall and next year will produce for every Brunswick dealer, not only greater business than he has ever experienced, but it will reach a volume unthought of a few years ago.

"The Brunswick Co. is fully aware that this vast expansion of its manufacturing facilities is due in a great part to the loyalty and activity of Brunswick dealers, and every effort that is possible will be put forth by the Brunswick Co., not only to meet the demands already created, but to increase this demand year after year by intensified advertising and service to the dealers."

DANCING DEMONSTRATION A SUCCESS

Columbia Dealer Uses Effective Publicity—
Dancers Demonstrate Columbia Records

The Palace Talking Machine Shop, 62 Lenox avenue, New York, Columbia dealer, staged a successful window dance demonstration at its quarters recently. With the aid of Mrs. Eastman, of the New York wholesale branch of the Columbia Co., two young dancers, brother and sister, known as Dolly and Jerry, were secured for this purpose. Handbills were printed and distributed in the neighborhood and the dancers appeared at half-hour intervals.

Crowds were attracted and drawn to the store in great numbers and the dancers performed to the music of Columbia records, which were so advertised in the windows.

Making Artist Tie-ups Doubly Effective

The Volume of Sales of Records Resulting From the Appearance of a Prominent Artist Depends Largely on the Advertising Used

The majority of talking machine dealers have come to realize the importance of tying up in their advertising with the appearance of well-known record artists in their vicinity, and the tours of the leading concert and vaudeville artists throughout the country are marked by advertisements of dealers who call attention to the fact that they are appearing in their particular cities on certain dates, and that the artists record exclusively for this or that to take too much for granted in his appeal to the public and for that matter the special advertising furnished to the dealer by the manufacturers themselves frequently shows this fault. The advertisement gives due prominence to the artist, and the dates of his or her concerts, but neglects to tell what particular records by that artist may be found in the catalog.

This sort of advertising does very well for the music lover who favors the artist so strongly that anything that artist sings is considered a worthy addition to his library, but it does not do for the average record buyer who wants his records to have two points of appeal—one that they are made by an artist of prominence of whom he can talk to his friends, and the other that the selection itself has intrinsic value from his viewpoint.

It is, therefore, well for the dealer in his local advertising to not only emphasize the coming of the artist and the fact that he makes records for a company whose line the dealer handles, but that a fairly good list of the records is included in the advertisements. In some cases it would be quite impossible through lack of space to list all the recordings of a particular individual, but it is nevertheless quite possible to list those numbers featured in the current season's repertory, probably to the number of half a dozen or so, and several other selections.

The accompanying illustrations of advertisements featured last season by Grinnell Bros., of Detroit, and Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco, give an idea of the possibility of listing records in an advertisement. It happens that both artists sing for the Victor, but the same plan could be carried out in connection with artists who sing for other record companies.

In a surprising number of cases the machine owner has been thinking of buying the record of some definite selection, and, when he sees the advertisement, may find that record listed. The fact that he can hear it in local concert, or that it is recorded by an artist of prominence, serves to bring the customer to the buying point.

It frequently happens in the experience of the average talking machine salesman that record buyers appear to be of the opinion that the leading record and concert artists record only the heavy classic and operatic numbers, and many sales have been made through the fact that a salesman has been able and competent to explain to that particular customer that the majority of artists also record many dainty little concert numbers, or ballads, that are more

THE PERFECT PLAN

TWO ANNOUNCEMENTS OF IMPORTANCE FROM VICTOR CO.

New Records to Be Released Weekly on and After September 1, 1923—Double-faced Red Seal Records to Be Offered to the Public at Same Time—Much Interest in Latest Moves

The Victor Talking Machine Co., under date of August 1, made two important announcements to its dealers in relation to record policies that should have a distinct effect upon future record business, and particularly that of the coming Fall and Winter. The new plans of the company, as announced, have been rumored for some time past, and their confirmation has aroused widespread interest.

The first announcement is to the effect that beginning September 21 next the Victor Co. will adopt a weekly supplement plan for all regular listings in the general catalog. On and after that date, Friday of each week will be simultaneous opening day for the sale of new Victor records, except U. S. foreign language records, which will be handled as heretofore. The weekly releases will be apportioned among the different classes of music, as at present.

In connection with the new system of record releases it is stated that the issuance of advance lists, order blanks and general publicity matter will be made as at present, with the exception that they will be on a weekly basis.

It is the general consensus of opinion among Victor wholesalers and dealers that the weekly record releases may be expected to stimulate sales to a considerable degree by offering to the public something new in the line of records each week and thus keeping interest in their machines constantly alive.

The adoption of the fixed plan for weekly releases follows logically the practice of the Victor Co. during the past year or so in announcing special releases of timely records, particularly dance numbers, at intervals during the month and between the monthly supplements.

The second announcement of the Victor Co. is of equal importance and marks a decided innovation in talking machine record manufacture, in that it provides for the issuance of Red Seal records in the future in double-faced form, the first listings of which are expected to go out in connection with the first regular weekly supplement of records to be placed on sale September 21.

At the present time the company is manufacturing a stock of double-faced Red Seal records made up from the present single-faced listings. Their preparation has been considerable of a task and the arrangements should make a strong appeal not only to those who appreciate music of the better sort, but those who are strongly attached to the recordings of particular artists, for the reason that in each case records have been backed up with selections of a somewhat corresponding character sung by the same artist.

In connection with the announcement there have been sent to the trade copies of a new Victor Red Seal catalog, in which are included all records listed up to and including August, 1923, in single-faced form at new catalog prices, and also, with few exceptions, in double-faced form at corresponding new catalog prices.

It is the opinion of the company's officials, as well as members of both the wholesale and retail trade that there will be a substantial augmented demand for single-faced Red Seal records, but with a view to providing wholesalers and retailers with an opportunity for adjusting their stocks according to their own judgment the company states there will shortly be announced a plan for a Red Seal record exchange which will be on the usual generous terms.

VALUE OF TRADE PAPER TO DEALERS

How One Live Merchant Makes Use of the Suggestions Contained in The World

The value of the trade paper in any field depends in a large measure on what use the various business-building suggestions contained therein are put to by the dealer or head of the business to which the paper goes. Often the business man merely glances through the publication and then lays it aside, never to be opened or referred to again. One dealer in the talking machine business who gets a great deal from his trade papers is Saul Birns, well-known New York City merchant. Mr. Birns, for example, has found that in each issue of The Talking Machine World there are many suggestions which may at some time or another be useful to him in the operation of his large business. Therefore, he has made it a practice to clip these articles and file them for future reference. The file is so arranged that he can secure any item at a moment's notice. Often at the weekly meetings of his large sales staff some article which applies particularly to the problems of his selling organization is read. Other of the numerous articles on business management are in his files, ready whenever needed. This is an excellent example of how the utmost value can be realized from a publication such as The World.

Widening the Field for the Best Music

Time Has Been Reached in Talking Machine Business When Music Instead of Personalities Should Be Stressed, Says W. Braid White

What I am going to say is rather radical. Some will say that it is very radical, which will be enough to damn the entire proposition for them. Nevertheless, radical suggestions are usually interesting, if only because of the fact that they are unusual.

Salesmanship, as I see it, is the art of organizing the distribution of goods. Industry produces and salesmanship distributes. Salesmanship in its highest manifestations, however, is not mere vulgar push. It is true that, under the exaggerated ideas which are prevalent about profit-earning as the sole end of industry, salesmanship is often prostituted to unworthy ends; but those who sell musical goods can hardly be accused of working in a medium unfavorable to the best side of business, since to sell a musical product is to sell musical satisfaction, than which nothing finer can be said to exist. Especially is this true of the talking machine industry, where the possibilities are still so much greater for the future than any realization of them is yet current.

This being so, there should be no objection to my talking about a somewhat advanced side of salesmanship as applied to our great industry. Addressing myself to retail salesmen in the record business, I ask whether the utmost of satisfaction can be had from the selling job unless one can feel that one is helping a great many men and women every month to solve the problem of obtaining musical food for their souls. It is the doing of work like this which constitutes the difference between selling music and selling groceries.

What Is a Record?

Well, now, what I want to tell my retail salesmen friends is that a record for a talking machine may be looked at in two ways. It may be thought of as something which sells because it bears the name and reproduces the voice or instrument of some artist. Or it may be thought of as music; as something which, apart from the question of who is or who is not playing or singing it, is in itself beautiful and desirable, to be considered as such and on this basis to be sold to others. The first of these two possible methods is that which the retail salesman usually practices. The second is the one I should like to see all salesmen practice.

Let us look into the matter a little further before we either condemn or accept this new notion. Let us admit in the very beginning of the argument that the talking machine business has been built up, unquestionably, by means of the great prestige value which has attached itself to names celebrated in the world of music. To be able to say that Paderewski, Caruso, Mary Garden, Pablo Casals, John McCormack had transferred their vocal and instrumental magic to a disc ready for reproduction at will through the mechanism of a talking machine is to be able to swing a prestige-argument of enormous weight and compelling power. The quality of prestige is the most powerful sales-making quality which any piece of goods can possibly possess. Naturally, then, it is upon the personalities of great artists that the huge structure of retail record selling has been successfully built.

I do not propose to tear down this edifice of prestige—far from it. I wish merely to suggest that hereafter the emphasis be not placed exclusively on the side of personality, and that in fact we begin to talk to our customers just a little more about the music and just a little less about who sings and plays.

I hope that now this has been set down in print, it does not look so radical as might have been supposed from the preamble to these remarks.

The talking machine business can no longer be said to be in its infancy. In fact, it is in a healthy childhood, not yet grown to maturity, for maturity with it is still in the far distant future; but a healthy and well-grown child, nevertheless. This being so, it is high time to realize that the child need no longer be helped about the floor, but is quite able to stand up and run unaided, and upon occasion to fight the neighbor's boy next door without the slightest difficulty. In a word, we no longer need fear lest a customer may not know what a record or what music is, and it is therefore high time for us to begin talking about the music given by records as if we really believed in it ourselves.

Splendid Work Under Discouragement

So long as we always talk to all our customers about the personalities which stand behind the performances, and never about the personalities which created the music in the first place, we shall always be limited and confined in our salesmanship. We shall not be selling music, but names. And as a natural consequence a very large quantity of our records languish on the shelves, simply because they do not happen to represent the performances of personalities known to everybody. To allow this one-sided salesmanship is a great mistake. The manufacturer would be much better pleased if there were a more even distribution and at the same time would be encouraged to make a wider choice and selection of titles for recording. As things stand at present there is no real encouragement for the manufacturer to go ahead and produce a widely ranging catalog, covering all kinds of music. The greatest manufacturers have gone much further than they have ever been warranted in going by any encouragement they have received from the retail trade. All the great catalogs have been much finer, in fact, than might have been expected from the meager support the retail trade has given to numbers which were not actually self-selling. The Victor catalog, in particular, has always been a standing wonder to me, quite as much a wonder as the indifference of the retail trade to everything an inch beyond its nose. Still, it is plain to be seen, by careful examination of even the Victor catalog, that intensive development has been much retarded on account of the impossibility of getting retail salesmen to sell thoughtfully and intelligently. A little co-operation would produce an instantaneous response and we should soon be able to dismiss the present reproach that the catalogs of record music are incomplete, sketchy and only adapted to the immediate sale of what needs no personal intelligence to sell. The reproach is not justified and it should never have been made.

Should Think a Little More of Music

Now, have I made myself clear? What I want is that retail salesmen should henceforth think a little more of music, which, after all, is what they are selling. Let them study this, talk it and demonstrate it, less as so many samples of so-and-so's performance than as so many examples of such-and-such music. By so doing they will help to improve their customers' musical ideas and will thus open up wider fields for the distribution of good music in record form.

How a Small Town Dealer Wins Business

Wm. Bliss Stoddard Tells How a Live Dealer Makes Consistent Mail Contact Pay and Another Profits by an Appeal to Local Pride

A great many merchants in small towns are afraid to take on a line of high-class talking machines, thinking their field is not wide enough and that mail order competition is too strong. They might think differently if they could know of the success that has been made by Berry & Reed in the little country town of Lonoke, Ark.

"Just how did you work up such an excellent business?" I inquired, noting the dozen machines on hand and the tasteful window, trimmed for Fourth of July, with machines and records in a setting of shields and flags and miniature cannon.

Mr. Berry smiled: "My system is merely this: Every time a person comes into the store and displays the slightest interest in a machine—and there are always two or three set where they cannot fail to be seen—I get his or her name. Then, if they have no machine, I mail them literature concerning the talking machines I carry, telling them of my easy credit system and reminding them how the possession of this instrument cheers a home on the long Winter evenings, as well as furnishes music for dancing on a Summer night. The general run of people to-day want the largest and best machine they can get for their money, and I have, therefore, found that the cabinet variety sells best in this locality. The smaller ones still have somewhat of a vogue, and there is scarcely a month that I do not order one, but we find it most profitable to keep in stock only the larger size, higher priced machines.

"If the patron already has a machine I secure his name and when my monthly or semi-monthly stock of new records comes in I mail a circular, giving the name and price of the latest pieces, informing him that I now have them on hand and they are perfectly welcome to come in and try them out. Of course, in a small town like this we cannot afford to have a special demonstrator, but everybody who has a machine knows how to operate it, so they simply try them out themselves without the assistance of a clerk. We make it plain that they are perfectly welcome to do this, whether they buy or not. And they are truly welcome, for they generally bring several friends with them and, while they are in the store, they make many other purchases. Then, too, they talk to their friends about the new records, and that gives us more valuable publicity than we could secure through the newspapers or even direct mail advertising.

"Another thing that has contributed greatly to our success is the fact that we—or at least I—understand the machine from top to bottom, from A to Z. No question concerning it can stick me. There is where a great many dealers fail. They don't know their goods. The result is that when a customer begins to ask questions the dealer doesn't know. He hems and haws and finally hunts out books and literature and attempts to answer the questions asked. It irritates a customer. He wants to have his answer right off the reel. Then he is sure that you know what you are talking about. Then tell nothing but the truth. If your particular machine has won prizes in competitive contests say so. If it hasn't it's best to be silent on the subject."

"Have you any special method of conducting your advertising?" I next inquired.

"We diversify it as much as possible," he answered. "We use the newspapers, both local and towns adjacent; the moving picture slides in the town theatre; circulars, whenever they contain something of real interest and are not just mere 'publicity stuff,' and display space regularly. We consider the window one of our very best ads and never a month goes by that we do not remind the public of our line by a special display of some kind, suiting it to the season.

"I suppose all of these methods are used by the majority of dealers, but I want to tell you of a little pet stunt of mine. I watch the papers and whenever I see an announcement of an engagement or a marriage I drop a friendly and congratulatory letter to the newlyweds, calling attention to our store and its line and stressing the pleasure that music gives in the home. The friendly interest helps immensely, especially in a small town, and much business is gained through these letters."

"UNFINISHED SYMPHONY" ON RECORDS

Schubert's Masterpiece Issued in Special Album by General Phonograph Corp.—Enthusiastically Received by Lovers of Best in Music

The General Phonograph Corp., New York, reports phenomenal sales of the Schubert "Unfinished Symphony" records recently issued by the company. This set, which comprises three double-faced twelve-inch records in a special album, bears the Odeon label and is the only complete recording of the "Unfinished Symphony" now on the market.

During the past few weeks the General Phonograph Corp. has received many letters of appreciation from music students and music lovers who have taken advantage of the opportunity to study Schubert's famous symphony through the medium of the Odeon record. Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., who is responsible for the introduction of this series of records, has been congratulated upon his initiative in placing this wonderful work of Schubert in complete form in the hands of the music-loving public.

WE KNOW YOU ARE A LOVER OF GOOD MUSIC

Therefore we cordially invite you to enjoy a rehearsal of the San Diego Conservatory Orchestra in our music salon Monday evening.

The orchestra is composed of talented young musicians, under the leadership of the well-known local orchestra leader, Chesley Mills.

An evening of splendid entertainment will be enjoyed by all who attend. No admission is charged—and there will be seats for all.

In order to encourage local talent the Bledsoe Co. had several records made of selections rendered by this orchestra and these were displayed during the concert and demonstrated to any who wished to hear them during the intermission. This gave prospective purchasers a chance to compare the original and reproduced music—and the latter was found to be so true to nature that many sales of these records resulted.

At later concerts the general public was invited, through invitations contained in regular ads in the daily papers, and the many people who came to enjoy the music and remained to chat had a chance to observe the complete music line carried, which was just what the firm desired.

Gentlemen:-

As stated to your representative some time ago, conditions in the phonograph business since 1920 have changed to such an extent that every progressive dealer will - sooner or later--have to revise his sales methods in order to continue business on a more profitable basis.

We have been looking into your instruments for the past few months and found that the AUDAK solves this problem very satisfactorily. The twenty booths we now have will all be taken out, with the exception of about six, which will be used for demonstration of machines only.

We have decided to equip our new Phonograph Department throughout with your AUDAK machines and are particularly interested in your style X-T.

Please let us know how you stand on deliveries of these and whether we may have them in French gray.

Very truly yours,

Building Business Among the Foreigners

The Foreign Colonies in Any City Are a Gold Mine for the Merchant Who Plans a Systematic Drive for Some of This Business

One of the greatest fields for development in the talking machine business lies in the sale of foreign records, especially music of the better class. Some members of the trade are sceptical as to the possibilities in this direction and, seemingly, it is a difficult matter to prove to them that a worth-while business can be built up in foreign recordings. There is not a city or town in the country that has not a goodly percentage of foreigners who will purchase talking machines and records if the proper methods and sales promotion work are resorted to.

Good Music Sells Here

The writer recently had occasion to pass through the downtown section of New York City. This part of Gotham is thickly populated by Italians, Hebrews, Armenians and a conglomeration of all the nations of the globe. It is a real melting pot. Little stores and shops, indicating by their appearance various degrees of prosperity, are bunched close together; the curbs are lined with merchandise of all descriptions and in the streets are pushcarts loaded to the gunwales with wares. In the densest part of this section within a radius of a block and a half are three talking machine establishments almost as crude as their surroundings. These concerns are all enjoying prosperity, despite the keen competition. Stranger still, most of the sales of records consist of the better class of music, and by far the largest number of sales are in foreign records. Jazz has little place here and the few numbers handled are for the younger element, who occasionally demand this type of music. The older people, however, to a large extent, stick to the customs of their respective homelands and the folk songs and operas have just as much, if not more, charm for them here than before they came to the land of opportunity. Perhaps these melodies bring back memories. Who knows? At any rate the foreign records are the feature of the talking machine business in this section.

Some Cashing In on Opportunity

For the reader with an analytical mind the foregoing paragraph presents some interesting possibilities, especially in view of the fact that foreign communities in practically every city and town in the country differ no whit from the one described except in size. Another case in point appeared in a recent issue of The World, when the story of the development of the business of James K. O'Dea was related. Mr. O'Dea, entirely through the medium of newspaper advertising, has built up a tremendous foreign record business and many talking machines are also sold to foreigners by this aggressive dealer.

Another concern which realizes the possibilities in the foreign record field and is profiting thereby is the Elite Music Store, 211 South High street, Columbus, O. Harry Patton, manager of the Elite Store, recently staged a window display of foreign recordings which was not only unique but which also resulted in sales and considerable publicity. In the front of the window a large sign was placed which bore the following message: "The music of the world is yours through the Victrola." The background consisted of a map of Europe with ribbons leading from various countries through a handsome console Victrola to the records in the language of each country which were displayed on the floor. To make the picture even more vivid and to indicate that many records in each language were obtainable foreign catalogs were placed beside each record.

Credit Risk Not Great

There are also many merchants who are aware of the sales possibilities to the foreign element in their communities, but who hesitate to go after this business because they consider the credit risk too great. This, of course, is a problem, just as that presented by sales made on the deferred payment plan in the ordinary course of events. It must be remembered that the average foreigner is a thrifty person and a surprisingly large percentage of them start saving as soon as they secure their first jobs in this country. It is a good maxim in business never to judge by appearances and this applies with especial force to the foreign element in our cities. Record sales should, of course, be made on a cash basis and, in the case of machine sales, no attempt should be made to sell these people the higher priced models. A little discrimination here will prevent loss and repossessions.

Portables Sell to Foreigners

An enterprising dealer in a small city adjacent to New York has achieved some excellent results during the past year in the sale of portable instruments to the foreign people in his community. Since the Italian element predominates he secured the services of an educated young Italian-American who worked this territory in a systematic manner. He carried with him a portable instrument and a small stock of recordings in the Italian language. Because this salesman could speak their language his reception in the majority of instances was friendly and, in addition to many sales of machines, a large number of records were sold. The instruments, although costing a comparatively small sum, were sold on the instalment plan, but with the stipulation that payments were to be made weekly. Not one instrument was repossessed nor were there any defaults in payment or attempts at evasion of the obligation incurred by the purchaser. The merchant referred to attributes this excellent record to the fact that he insisted that payments be made on the weekly basis, thus bringing each payment down to such a small sum that the customers had no difficulty in paying promptly.

It is not necessary to cite further examples of how merchants are boosting their sales volume through the foreign settlements in their communities to show the wonderful opportunity existing in this field. Suffice to say, however, that it is the merchant with vision who develops most rapidly. This is the type of dealer who digs out the opportunities existing on every side and then proceeds to cash in on them.

E. A. STRAUSS GUEST OF RAY GUNTHER

Ray Gunther, of Gunther & Kenny, Middletown, N. Y., prominent Brunswick dealers, very recently invited E. A. Strauss, of the Brunswick New York offices, to his camp in the mountains for a few days' fishing. Mr. Strauss did not bring back any photographs with him, but upon his return to New York was unable to work for several days after the trip, devoting most of his time to a description of the wonderful fish that he caught, maintaining throughout the discussion that he was not telling "fish stories."

AGGRESSIVE NEW HAMPSHIRE DEALER

LACONIA, N. H., August 6.—John E. St. Claire, who conducts a very beautifully arranged store at the corner of Beacon and Canal streets, this city, is one of the aggressive dealers in this section and has made phenomenal progress in the year that he has been in his new store. He handles the Baldwin and Poole pianos and the Brunswick phonographs and records. He also handles musical merchandise and sheet music and is one of those who believe business can be secured by going after it earnestly and intelligently.

BESSIE SMITH'S RECORDS POPULAR

The sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, reports an exceptional increase in the sale of records by Miss Bessie Smith, exclusive Columbia artist and one of the most popular singers of "Blues" selections now making records. Members of Golden Rule Victor Sales Staff, St. Paul, Minn., Organize Music and Art Study Club for Musical Study

Inspired by the beautiful arias and stirring orchestrations with which their work familiarizes them, a group of St. Paul girls in the Golden Rule's Victrola department has banded together as the Music and Art Study Club. Interested in music, the seven young women are determined to make themselves so familiar with the best music and the great artists' rendition of it that the club's influence will be felt in their daily work.

The Victrola department, with the sanction of G. A. Zoller, manager, furnishes records with which the study of each opera is illustrated. The hostess for the evening explains the opera and during her recital appropriate records are placed on the Victrola. A small club fee will furnish funds for tickets for the St. Paul appearances of opera stars. The young women are willing to enlarge the organization by the addition of persons who are able to contribute something to the club and who have a genuine interest in music.

Miss Edith Clark, the most notable songstress among the club members, has a Summer's leave of absence to study under Madame Valeri in Chicago and has rejoiced the hearts of the other club members with the news that in competition with other Summer school students she has won a $150 scholarship. The other two club members studying with Malcolm McMillan are Miss Helen Schulte and Miss Bernadette Leonard.

The club's officers are president, Miss Cora Freier; vice-president, Miss Helen Schulte, and secretary-treasurer, Miss Leonard. The other charter members include the Misses Marie Schulte, Bessie Roach, Mary Nest and Miss Clark. Mr. Zoller and the store's management are very enthusiastic about the spirit of the club and its members and are offering their co-operation in its aims.

He will have associated with him H. C. Marston, who is widely and favorably known, having been paymaster of the Pine Tree Pulp Co., and a thorough business man. Mr. Marston will manage the business and conduct the affairs of the store in this city, which will be known under the title of the C. E. Downing Co.

PLANS FOR HOMES BEAUTIFUL WEEK

Plans for the National Homes Beautiful Week, which will be held the week of October 8 to 14 under the auspices of the American Homes Bureau, are rapidly taking shape. Some of the leaders in the movement are the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, National Retail Furniture Association, American Art Bureau and many other affiliated associations. An elaborate publicity campaign in connection with this occasion is already under way and from present indications the event this year will be more productive of results than any previous efforts for a demonstration of this type.

A statue of John Wanamaker is to be erected in Philadelphia during the coming Winter, necessary funds having been secured through popular subscription.

The Sonora window display used by Widener's, Newark, N. This window display demonstrates the excellent results that can be obtained at a small cost through the use of reasonable ingenuity and resourcefulness. The entire display costs less than $10, practically everything in the window having been borrowed from neighboring merchants whose co-operation was gladly given.

The window has a small tank containing six small turtles, each of which have painted on their backs a letter for the word Sonora. A small card informs a passerby that $10 worth of records will be given to the person who finds the turtles lined up so that the letters on their backs spell consecutively the word Sonora. The tank cannot be seen in the photograph, but is situated directly in front of the record album with the card resting against the canoe.

Service Builds Business for Live Dealer

Brooklyn Dealer Gets Lead on Potential Patrons From Satisfied Customers—Insurance and Other Collectors Locate Prospects

SERVICE, spelled with capital letters, a sincere desire to make friends of customers and several unique methods of securing new prospects have been successful in building more than one business on a Gibraltar-like foundation. In no business enterprise are these three things more necessary than in the retailing of talking machines and records—at least, so believes E. Shapiro, who operates a talking machine store at 676 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., and he speaks with authority in view of the fact that he has built a large business, simply by observing these rules, despite keen competition and the drawback of a store in a poor neighborhood, largely populated by foreigners who are not over-prosperous in many instances.

A Type of Service That Pays Dividends

The service extended by this enterprising dealer has been instrumental in opening the way for many sales to friends of satisfied customers. Free repairs of a minor nature, such as oiling the instrument whenever necessary, tightening and adjusting the mechanism, etc., have resulted in securing the entire confidence of his large clientele. Under the circumstances customers are pleased to give information of friends who do not own machines, and in several cases prospects secured in this way have ordered instruments similar to the ones owned by their friends without even taking the trouble of coming into the store to examine the line.

Securing and Following Up Prospects

Another method of securing prospects which has been productive of many sales is through the co-operation of insurance collectors, as well as furniture salesmen and collectors. These men have access to the homes of their own clientele and as they have the confidence of these people through long contact they secure the information desired by Mr. Shapiro with comparatively little trouble. This information, of course, includes the names and addresses of those people who do not own talking machines or pianos, as well as the attitude of the prospect toward ownership of such an instrument. These data are incorporated in the files of the store and a systematic sales promotion campaign is instituted. This consists of, first, a letter calling attention to the excellence of the line handled by this concern and, second, the letter is followed up by a salesman, who endeavors either to close the deal on the spot or have the prospect come into the store to inspect the line. No opportunity is allowed to slip by when a customer once enters the store. For example, in the case of a man who visited the establishment to purchase a record, inquiry and follow-up resulted in the sale of three machines.

How Payments Are Handled

Of course, most of the business is done on the instalment basis and, in view of the fact that most of the patrons are not any too well off as regards finances, weekly payments at the store are the rule. If a customer neglects to make the payment when due three days' grace are extended and then a first, second and third collection letter is sent to the customer's home, urging prompt payment. Of course, each letter is a little stronger than the last. If these still are unsuccessful in bringing in the money a personal visit is made to the home of the patron and the matter is thoroughly threshed out, not in a manner which is likely to reflect on the business, however, nor in a manner which will antagonize the customer. Tact is used. The advantage of the weekly payment plan is indicated by development of record and accessories sales through this frequent contact. Although Mr. Shapiro has succeeded in selling more medium and high-priced instruments than any other kind to these people repossessions have been kept down below the 5 per cent mark. During this year alone he has succeeded in selling four $750 machines, and the record sale for any single day is eight talking machines, three pianos and $150 worth of records.

How These Methods Have Brought Success

Mr. Shapiro's success is attested to by the fact that his annual business is between $50,000 and $65,000. In the case of talking machines he secures a 20 per cent down payment and 10 per cent is the smallest initial payment on a piano. All this has been accomplished in the face of the keenest competition by the exhaustive follow-up of every prospect. Sales have been made to persons residing long distances from the store in surrounding communities and even in the neighboring State, New Jersey. Business has developed to such a degree that Mr. Shapiro has been forced to enlarge his store.

This is an example of what can be accomplished by hard work—not spasmodic effort, but a consistent drive for business during twelve months of the year. Thought translated into action is the keynote of success in the talking machine field and those dealers who practice this without dallying by the wayside have little to fear about the future.

VICTOR DEALER'S FORCES AT OUTING

Buckley-Newhall Co. Well Represented at Ulmer Park Outing—E. W. and Wm. Geng Officiate at Field Sports and Baseball Game

The employes of the Benevolent Society of Brooklyn held their field day and picnic at Ulmer Park recently, at which the principal feature was a baseball game between the Waterman Co. and the Buckley-Newhall Co., well-known furniture house and Victor retailer. The Waterman Co. was the victor by a score of 5 to 2. Subsequent to the baseball contest a series of field sports were held, the day's festivities including a dinner and dance. E. W. Geng, vice-president, and Wm. Geng, manager, of the New York store of the Buckley-Newhall Co., together with a corps of assistants, handled the affair admirably, every event going through on schedule. Both Messrs. Geng are experienced A. A. U. starters and timers and they are being mentioned as officials for the Talking Machine Men's outing that will be held on August 14 at Glen Head, L. I.

OUTING PORTABLE FEATURED

Cunningham Co., of Detroit, Uses Portable as Basis for Effective Display—Other Forms of Publicity Also Produce Results

DETROIT, MICH., August 6.—Cunningham's Phonograph Shop, of this city, has been featuring the Outing portable to excellent advantage, using attractive window displays to interest the Cunningham's Clever Outing Window public. A recent display is shown herewith and will give some idea of the effectiveness of these displays. W. R. Fife, manager of the Cunningham Co.'s phonograph department, has devoted considerable time and effort to developing his portable business this year and the results have been very successful. This store issues a monthly bulletin which has a circulation of 75,000 copies and Mr. Fife states that many Outing sales have been created through the medium of this publicity.

CHANGES IN VICTOR DESIGNS

Victor Co. Makes Important Announcement in Regard to Changes and Shipments on Certain Designs of Talking Machines

A communication recently sent to distributors by the Victor Co. reads:

"In order to provide for the inauguration of changes in the design of certain of the horizontal Victrola line, comprising Nos. 240, 260, 300 and 330, there must be a lapse of shipments until October.

"Victrola No. 240, as produced hereafter, will be larger than the present model and will have a lower and more attractive lid. It will be first supplied in the new composite mahogany finish. Our list price on this instrument will be $125.

"Victrola No. 260, as produced hereafter, will be slightly larger than the model now on the market. It will have a new lid and carving on the front posts. On this type our list price remains unchanged. Shipments during the balance of this year will be in English brown mahogany finish.

"Production on the other models of this line will have to be deferred until after January 1 next.

"We desire to take this opportunity to also announce a new model of Victrola No. 50. Outwardly the new product will not be unlike the model now on the market, but it will have added conveniences, including a very ingenious container for needles, means for carrying six records on the turntable spindle and a more conveniently located winding key. There will be no change in our catalog price on this type. We expect to have the new model available about September 15 and, in the meantime, shipments of the present model will be very limited.

"Taking the above outlined changes into account the Victrola instrument line may be looked upon as definitely established for at least the remainder of 1923."

TEN-RECORD NEEDLE NOT INCREASED

In a recent article covering the activities of the Wall-Kane Needle Mfg. Co. it was stated that the price increase on Wall-Kane needles would be effective September 1. S. Kaminsline, secretary and general manager of the company, calls attention to the fact that this price increase applies only to the Jazz and Concert needles of the line, which are one-time steel needles made in all tones. There will be no increase, Mr. Kaminsline explains, in the price of the Wall-Kane ten-record needle.

A sense of humor has saved many a business man from becoming discouraged.

Cashing In on the Universal Instrument

Some Worth-while Suggestions by Lester G. Herbert on Merchandising Talking Machines and Records in an Efficient Manner

Happily, the love of music is born in nearly every human heart. All people, however, cannot produce music for themselves. Opportunity, desire, or actual ability in this direction, may be lacking and so, if it were not for the invention of what we may term the universal instrument, of moderate price and of great flexibility in its repertoire, these people would be barred from much of the pleasure and refining influences of music. In fact, they would be dependent upon their friends and paid entertainments for their musical enjoyment. But the universal instrument—the modern talking machine—has remedied the situation and has filled a great need.

Not only do those who are not musicians enjoy this musical instrument, but those who are finished musicians as well, for the latter frequently long to hear great artists or to entertain guests with a program other than their own.

Getting in Touch With Prospects

The dealer who recognizes the tremendous appeal of the talking machine will reach out by logical means to get in touch with those, first, who have not an instrument and, second, with those who have them.

Let us consider, first of all, the people who already have these instruments in their homes. All of these owners are live record prospects and many of them would be only too glad to have a new and higher grade talking machine if they could dispose, at a fair price, of the machine which they already have. By working out an equitable plan of allowances on trade-ins a very large number of new talking machines may be placed every season.

And when people have a talking machine to which they like to listen, and which affords worthy entertainment for their friends, they are always much freer buyers of records. It often happens that when people find that the allowance on their old machine takes into account wear, depreciation and the second-hand status, the owner will decide to keep the cheaper machine and to use it for camp, or Summer home, or put it into the nursery for the children, or present it to some school, or grade in a school, which is not provided for musically.

Getting Rid of Used Instruments

Actually stirring up replacement prospects is bound to prove mighty profitable business. Then, if a number of second-hand machines accumulate, there are several ways of getting rid of them. The best means of doing this is to keep all of these machines out of sight until a number accumulate. Then a special sale may be advertised featuring used machines. After the sale is over any remaining used machines should be put away out of sight again and only shown if somebody comes in in search of something of this kind. That is to say, the business should be kept distinct from the new goods.

The third plan has a merit of its own, as it deliberately uncovers a good many prospects who, with proper handling, will buy new machines. By this plan the retail store either advertises or sends out a personal solicitor, or both, to find out and to compile a list of those who have not a talking machine in their homes and who would consider buying a good used one at a reduced price.

The explanation could be made that the used machines are not carried in stock at all by a progressive musical company, but that many people, wishing to buy new machines, desire to dispose of their old ones. If such a plan is worked the store can take in the used machines, knowing that they have a list of people ready to consider buying. Or the owner of the used machine can be given three or five names of prospects to whom he, individually, can sell it.

Building Prospect List by Personal Contact

In one case where a list of used prospects was compiled a young woman did the work of personal calls and solicitation. Her method was to approach the people in the home pleasantly and to say that she was representing the Monarch Music Co. Her next inquiry was as to whether or not they had a talking machine. If they had one she had a small carrying case with half a dozen very attractive new records, and she asked to be allowed to try these and offered to make any minor adjustments the machine might need. The service, she assured her hearers, was free. Nearly always she succeeded in selling several records for later delivery and, in not a few cases, interested these people in better machines.

If the people called on had no talking machine at all then she spoke of the delight in having a good instrument and invited these people to come into the Monarch store to look around and to hear the instruments. If it was clearly evident that the people could not afford or would not be interested in a new machine she was ready to switch over and to talk a used machine to them. In any case she had one of three entries for the mailing list: (1) Record prospects. (2) New machine prospects. (3) Used machine prospects.

The ways indicated of cashing in on the universal instrument are practical. They involve no extra investment and very little extra expense in salesmanship. In any event, expense disappears in extra profits.

The man who is not willing to spend $10 to get $200 has made a mistake to attempt to act as a business principal. Either he must make over his mental outlook or be content to act as a business mate while someone else serves as captain.

JAPANESE FAVOR PORTABLES

Nipponese Carry Music With Them—Modern Dancing Taking Hold of Japanese

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 3.—Talking machines and records, the products of four of our leading manufacturers, are rapidly growing in favor in Japan, according to Dr. Ito Wanuchi, who is visiting this country on business. Dr. Wanuchi declared that, while high-grade instruments are in demand in his country, the portable models easily enjoy the greatest popularity because the Japanese like to take their music with them when they travel. The demand, especially for American records, is traceable to the growth in popularity of modern dances and a real liking for the modern Occidental music, and this has been further augmented by the many Japanese who have received their education in this country. American instrumental numbers as played by leading musical organizations have a great vogue in Japan and the natives are very partial to them because of the distinctive work of the bands and the perfection of recording. Although the United States exports large numbers of machines and records to Japan the latter country also manufactures a considerable number of talking machines and is at present engaged in working up export business with Far Eastern countries. A typical example of the progressive type of Japanese talking machine manufacturer is The Nipponophone. This firm has an export manager, an American, who is developing trade along real Yankee lines.

USES WINDOWS TO ADVANTAGE

Otto F. Gobel, manager of the music department of R. H. Muir, Inc., East Orange, N. J., Brunswick dealer, is a keen believer in the merchandising value of effective window displays, but in common with many department store managers frequently is obliged to compete in window display attractions with expert window dressers in the same building. However, Mr. Gobel has evolved a number of exceptionally handsome window displays that have not only attracted the favorable attention of all passers-by, but have proved important factors in the sale of Brunswick phonographs.

The Future?

THE demand for BAGSHAW NEEDLES is unprecedented—it is more than double that of last year, and as you know, we had our own troubles filling last year's Fall orders.

WHAT the future holds in store for us we do not know. However, we have not been able to protect ourselves sufficiently on steel at present prices to see us through the rest of the year. At the moment we don't know whether we will be able to do so later. The best we can tell you is that prices will certainly be no lower—also that there are limits to all factory facilities. But Our sales to July 1st are larger than for the entire year of 1922. We don't have to remind you that we had some difficulty last year in filling your orders. Frankly, we don't know where we stand this year. So far we have been able to take care of this doubled business without delaying shipments, and we do not contemplate any difficulties. Just the same, it would be just as well if you look into your Fall requirements and let us know what you expect from us. Present prices cannot be guaranteed indefinitely, but we do want to know, as quickly as possible, how far and how fast we will have to push our factory facilities.

Our Advice Is—

that you order immediately your Fall and Holiday order and indicate how you would like your deliveries spread out. Orders accepted by us now will assure you present prices and delivery when you want them. If you don't act upon this suggestion, don't blame us later for possible developments which may mean higher prices and curtailed or delayed deliveries.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST SCORES

Much Publicity and Increased Interest in Music Amply Repay Roberts Music Co. for Staging Contest in Seward, Neb., Schools

SEWARD, NEB., August 4.—A very successful music memory contest was staged among the pupils in local public schools by J. R. Roberts, of the Roberts Music Co., well-known Victor dealer, of this city. Twenty-five carefully selected Victor records were used in the contest and the competition was keen for the gold medals which were donated by Mr. Roberts for the winners. Considerable valuable publicity was derived for the Roberts Music Co. as a result and the intensified interest in things musical among the children is considered by this enterprising dealer well worth the time and money spent in promoting the contest.

abroad. This is Mr. Brophy's first vacation in ten years and in order to properly celebrate the event his associates at the Brunswick recording laboratories gave him a send-off.

While at the pier, Brophy's Brunswick Bitters were distributed among the members of the Brunswick party, who were keenly appreciative of their many virtues. Among those who were present when the "Laconia" sailed were Mr. Brophy's daughter, Miss Beatrice Brophy; Walter G. Haenschen, director of popular recording; Walter Rogers, director of classical recording; Don Leopold, manager of the record department of the Brunswick Co.'s New York division; James O'Keefe, Simkler Darby, Heber McDonald and others.

Geo. W. Case, Jr., Brunswick patent attorney and well known throughout the talking machine trade, also sailed on the "Laconia" with Mr. Brophy. In all probability, Mr. Brophy while abroad will meet B. E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., who sailed for Europe a few weeks ago.

Miss Elinor Remick Warren, a talented young Pacific Coast pianist, makes her first appearance in the talking machine industry through the medium of Okeh record No. 4873 in the September list, issued by the General Phonograph Corp. Schirmer, Inc., and many others.

For her first Okeh record Miss Warren selected two well-known compositions, "Papillons" (Ole Olson) and "Country Dance Number 1" (Beethoven). Last Spring Miss Warren appeared in several concerts at Aeolian Hall, New York, accompanying such well-known artists as Miss Florence Easton and Mme. Matzenauer.

CARD BRINGS PROMPT PAYMENTS

Clever Collection Stimulator Reduces Delinquent Accounts

KANKAKEE, ILL., August 5.—The Lecour Department Store here has adopted a plan for stimulating collections which has proved very efficient. It consists simply of a little card bearing the following message:

"Successful business demands prompt collections and prompt payments. We request prompt payments in the same courteous spirit in which we solicit your esteemed trade. Both are necessary for our success."

The store pursues a very active policy in stimulating the expansion of its credit business, but simultaneously devotes a great deal of attention to maintaining standards of prompt payment from the very beginning of the opening of a new account. There is a suggestion in this for talking machine dealers who sometimes experience trouble in making collections promptly.

ENJOYS RECORD BUSINESS MONTH

Mutual Phono Parts Mfg. Co. Adds New Machinery to Plant to Facilitate Production

Andrew P. Frangipane, secretary of the Mutual Phono Parts Mfg. Co., New York, reports that July was one of the biggest months in the history of the organization. The amount of business placed during July of this year surpasses the total of May, June, July and August of 1922. The exceptional volume of orders placed during this Summer month presages considerable activity on the part of talking machine manufacturers for Fall production. The Mutual Co. has added new machinery to its factory during the past month, substantially increasing production facilities and providing increased service for the prompt filling of future orders.

Mr. Frangipane states that there is a strong tendency towards steadily increasing prices on raw materials, such as mica and metal, although up to the present time this has not affected the prices of Mutual products.

CLEVER PLAN FACILITATES DEMONSTRATION OF RECORDS

Revolving Record Racks in Demonstration Booths of Summerfield's Furniture Store, Worcester, Mass., Eliminate Lost Motion and Wasted Time in Securing Records for Customers

R. V. Lewis, manager of the talking machine department of Summerfield's Furniture Store, Worcester, Mass., has hit upon a clever and successful idea for handling demonstration records in booths with a view to the convenience of both the salesman and customer, as well as to their selling possibilities. In each booth in the department is placed a large revolving rack. On the outside is found space for four records. The records are placed in large envelopes on the outside of which appears the name of the artist, the title of the selection and the type, whether soprano or tenor solo, orchestra number, etc. When the customer is ushered into the booth the salesman inquires what sort of records are desired. If the customer wants a dance selection the rack is turned and out of one of the pockets is pulled a late dance number by one of the prominent orchestras. Should the request be for a tenor solo, a number of that type also is easily found in the rack, and so on.

The plan is particularly convenient when the customer desires to hear a particular machine play records of various types. When the customers is impressed with dance records it is a simple matter for the salesman to go to the record rack and pick out several corresponding numbers, and the same holds good with other types of music. Much time is saved, however, at the outset when, instead of having to search through the records for certain selections the salesman finds them available on the rack within the booth. The rack is large enough to hold practically a complete monthly series of records and it has been found that the system serves to keep the dealer constantly informed as to the selling possibilities of various numbers. For doing this he keeps a record on the back of the envelope and the number of sales of that particular selection that have been made, and can gauge his business accurately enough to eliminate guessing in ordering.

Another good feature of the plan is that the customer who comes in and insists on dance records, if left alone for a while by the salesman, is, nine times out of ten, inclined to look over the rack and play three or four selections of other numbers, which in itself proves an excellent sales producer.

NEW BOOK ON MUSIC APPRECIATION

Victor Talking Machine Co. Announces Important New Addition to Its Literature

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has announced that there will be ready for distribution a new and thoroughly original course for the teaching of music appreciation in the elementary schools, the course in book form bearing the title "Music Appreciation With Victrola for Children." In announcing the new publication the company says:

"Our earlier publication, 'Music Appreciation for Little Children,' designed for the kindergarten and primary grades, met with great favor and did valuable pioneer service in this field. However, in response to the insistent demand of music supervisors and teachers, we have enlarged, rewritten and revised the course to embrace the work of the first six grades.

"'Music Appreciation with the Victrola for Children' presents a series of practical discussions on the fundamentals of the study of music appreciation, together with valuable helps and suggestions on organization and teaching, and a complete course of more than one hundred and forty definite sequential lessons, illustrated throughout by Victor records. It has 288 pages; is cloth bound with gold imprint, and contains many illustrations in half-tone and color.

"This book will meet with a very heavy demand, for it is the only complete course on music appreciation in the elementary grades on the market to-day." The list price of the book is $1.50.

RECORDS SELL TALKING MACHINES

Selection of Proper Records for Demonstration of Machine Has Important Bearing on Mood of Customers and Sales Results

Experience has proved to progressive talking machine dealers that the selection of records used in the demonstration of machines has a very important bearing on sales. One dealer has instructed and taught his sales people to try to analyze each machine prospect and before demonstrating the instrument select music which is certain to please the prospective patron, thus placing him or her in a mood receptive to the sales talk. A successful dealer stated recently to the writer that he had discovered that music which pleased customers made the work of the salesmen in selling instruments much easier. He also declared that where doubt existed as to the musical preference of the customer a waltz was the best type of music to play, this because of the fact that waltz music appeals both to lovers of the more enduring type of music and to those who prefer jazz and also to young and old alike.

SHOWING THE RECORD'S STRENGTH

SAN PEDRO, CAL., August 2.—The San Pedro Furniture Co., of this city, Columbia dealer, has utilized a novel method of demonstrating the strength of Columbia New Process records, at the same time calling attention to the Columbia phonograph. A New Process record is hung from the ceiling of the display window by a strong cord running through the hole in the center of the record and another cord passing through the same hole is fastened to a cradle which is made fast to an upright Columbia phonograph. A window card labels the stunt as follows: "New Process Columbia Record Holding a Weight of Over 150 Pounds."

PENDLETON HOUSE HOLDS OPENING

PENDLETON, ORE., Aug. 4.—The Pendleton Music House, of this city, recently held its formal opening in its newly renovated warerooms on Main street. MUSIC'S DELEGATE IN FRANCE

Mrs. Eleanor Starkey, of the Aeolian Co., Back From Trip of Good Will Delegation

After spending about six weeks abroad as representative of the Aeolian Co., New York, in the Good Will Delegation to the Devastated Regions of France, Mrs. Eleanor S. Starkey has returned to New York City. The delegation of which Mrs. Starkey was a member arrived in France on May 30, making, together with the guides and official photographers, a party of 112. Their first official act was to place a wreath, sent by the American Legion, on the grave of the unknown soldier of France.

The outstanding feature of their trip was a nine-day tour through the devastated regions of France, including Chateau-Thierry, Rheims, the Argonne, Soissons and Verdun. Mrs. Starkey spoke of the latter place as being the scene of the worst devastation. One of the most impressive sights was the bayonet trench, where a monument has been erected by Robert Trent. The bayonets are still visible protruding from the soil.

At Chateau-Thierry an old phonograph was found in the corner of a hotel formerly occupied by the American troops and a further search revealed some Vocalion records. Mrs. Starkey, as the only representative of the music industries, was presented with a bouquet of roses at Fontainebleau, where one wing of the Fontainebleau palace was turned over to the visiting Americans. The delegation sailed for home June 30, after having been each individually awarded a bronze medal as a token to those who came to assist France.

GRIFFITH INCREASING FLOOR SPACE

Newark Music House Takes Additional Store, Giving It Large Increase in Floor Space

The floor space of the Griffith Piano Co.'s Broad street, Newark, store will be nearly doubled in a few weeks, when the store adjoining it on the South is annexed as an additional showroom. The adjoining store has been the property of the Griffith Piano Co. for a number of years and has been occupied by H. Nadler, a dry goods merchant. With the expiration of the latter's lease a few days ago the Griffith brothers grasped the opportunity for enlarging their floor space and alterations were started at once. The plastering will be done to match that of the main store and the wall has been cut through in two places to allow the movement of pianos from one store to the other.

Dow R. Trent & Co., carrying a line of pianos, Victrolas, sheet music and records, are about to open for business in the Simonton Building, North Manchester, Ind.

DEALERS COMBINE FOR AD DRIVE

Alliance, O., Victor Dealers Pool Interests to Boost Sales of Latest Record Releases Through Advertising in Local Newspaper

ALLIANCE, O., August 6.—Although keen competitors three music stores of this city, all Victor dealers, get together each month in exploiting the month's new record releases. The Alliance Review, on the first of each month, uses a stereotype mat of Victor records released for the month, issued by the Victor Co. This is reproduced, together with comment on the various records. All three of the Victor dealers—J. H. Johnson's Sons, Cassidy Drug Co. and Vernon Music Co.—use a third-page space of display advertising on Victor products. This is the first instance in this section where competitors have pooled their interests in this way.

GIMBELS FEATURE R C RADIO SET

During July a deal was closed by Gimbel Bros., well-known department store, with the Radio Corp. of America, involving a purchase of 20,000 Radiola receiving sets. The only model featured in this sale was the R C set, which is well known in the radio trade, but which will not be manufactured any longer. Gimbel Bros., together with a chain of department stores throughout the country, placed the instruments on sale at a figure considerably lower than the original retail prices.

THE WORD "PLEASE" PAYS

Someone told Tom Dreier, who writes so interestingly in Forbes Magazine, that not less than $1,000,000 was paid last year for the use of the word "please" in telegrams. This led him to remark sententiously that "fortunately it doesn't cost us anything to use it in our daily conversation."

CLEVER TRUCK AD SELLS RECORDS

Hockett-Bristol & Cowan, Live Fresno, Cal., Dealers, Make Truck Pay Dividends

FRESNO, CAL., August 1.—Hockett-Bristol & Cowan, live Edison and Columbia dealers, 1253 J street, this city, are securing a great deal of excellent record publicity which is resulting in sales from their delivery automobile. As may be seen in the illustration, a large imitation record has been secured to the body of the vehicle. The record is covered with tin and is four feet in diameter. Each late dance number is featured on this record for one week. This and the fact that local orchestras feature the number at the same time have boosted sales.

NEW ARTISTS MAKE OKEH SPIRITUALS

The Morehouse College Quartette, of Atlanta, Ga., representing one of the best-known colored colleges in the South, makes its debut in the talking machine industry with two numbers just announced on Okeh records. These selections were recorded during the recent trip of the special recording expedition sent down to Atlanta by the General Phonograph Corp. under the direction of R. S. Peer. The first record by this college quartette features two time-honored colored spirituals, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" and "Down by the Riverside."

ADVOCATES "TALKERS" FOR COURTS

Texas Judge Predicts Time Will Come When Talking Machines Will Be Used to Speed Course of Justice and Cut Expenses

"It is my firm belief that before many years have elapsed court proceedings will all be recorded by means of phonographic records," said Judge E. B. Muse, of Dallas, Tex., in speaking of the remarkable strides taken by science in recent years.

"Such being the case," he continued, "instead of long-drawn-out second and third trials, all that will be necessary is for photographs of the principals and the records of their testimony to be placed before the judge and jury.

"Further, wills can also be recorded with any parting admonition, such as the division of property, included on the record.

"If a system of this kind were introduced into our courts the decrease in the cost of court proceedings can hardly be counted in dollars and cents, because of its magnitude. Witness fees would only have to be paid once. The jury would have to be held about one-eighth as long, to say nothing of the expense of special prosecutors and the like. Judges would have more time to dispose of more cases. Bailiffs and other attendants could be greatly diminished. In fact, there are innumerable expenses that could be eliminated."

BRAIN, WILL POWER AND LABOR WIN

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the great pianist, whose Victor records are so universally popular, is, in the opinion of an eminent writer, an outstanding example of the successful man. Through his talents as a pianist he accumulated a fortune only to give practically all of it to his country, Poland, in the hour of her need. Then he came to America on a concert tour and in the short space of six months earned another fortune of half a million dollars. Easy money? Hardly. It has been a rule of Paderewski's life to practice on the piano eight hours a day. He was born, of course, with a gift and taste for music, but it was brain and will power and labor that made him the incomparable artist.

A PROGRESSIVE LACONIA DEALER

Leroy Thomas, who recently bought out the interest of C. L. Howe, in the Portsmouth Flower Shop, Laconia, N. H., has redecorated the establishment and installed a number of new record racks and two new booths finished in white bungalow style, which are arranged in a very attractive manner. Mr. Thomas enjoys a very high-grade clientele in both Victor talking machines and records and the Pooley line.

F. Van Vogart, formerly manager of the Victor department of the A. E. Gardner Co., Iowa Falls, Ia., is now manager of the talking machine department of the Davidson Co., prominent concern in Waterloo, Ia.

What Is the Worth of Your Trade Paper?

Value of Trade Paper Depends Upon Use Made of It—System for Classifying and Preserving the Items of Value From Each Issue

"I don't have much time for reading," said E. E. Peck, an Iowa wholesaler, recently, "but there are two or three trade papers coming to my desk which I always make it a point to read. I do this even if I have to stick them in my pocket and take them home with me.

"If I see anything in them that looks like an idea or a suggestion that ought to fit in with our business I make a note of the article on the cover page, and when I take it back to the office with me in the morning it is passed among the executives or salesmen responsible for the particular phase of our business to which it applies."

Mr. Peck is a very busy man. He must read to a purpose and to a point. Hence he selects his trade papers as being the most valuable for the time he has to spare. He has a very good reason for doing this, and that reason is because he has found that it pays.

Another Iowa business man whom I used to know was a very careful and systematic reader of his trade papers. His name was W. A. Spurrier, Jr., and he conducted something like fourteen separate and distinct businesses with the same organization, all of which were more or less closely related.

"There are dozens of workable ideas presented in your trade paper every year," he said to me in telling about it, "but, for the most part, the average man doesn't take affirmative steps to preserve such ideas and such information.

"We used to pile the trade papers on top of the desk here and let them go. If anything came up we ran through the pile and hunted up the tip or the article we had read on the subject. Sometimes we found what we wanted and sometimes we didn't. You know how it is when you are hunting for the thing that you want.

"Then, about twice a year, we'd get tired of that dusty pile of periodicals on top of the desk and chuck them into the janitor's waste basket; maybe some one in the office would 'borrow' the periodical and not bring it back. From one cause or another we didn't seem able to put our fingers on the thing we wanted.

"That's poor business—any one knows that. I came face to face with the proposition a few weeks ago, when an important article was lost and I spent $3.50 in telegrams and two hours' time trying to get another copy, and I decided that it was time to call a halt.

Simple Filing System

"We arranged a simple system, at slight expense, which will make it possible for us to lay our hands on the vital points of interest to us brought out in each issue of our trade periodicals. It is working to excellent advantage because we are finding it possible to use a great deal more of the ideas presented than we thought possible, simply because they are now available at a moment's notice."

Then he went ahead and outlined the system. It is so simple that any business man can make use of it, no matter what business he may be engaged in, or where his business may be located.

Mr. Spurrier liked to take his trade papers home with him to glance through in his hours of relaxation. He marked on the cover of the periodical the numbers of the pages on which matter pertinent to his business was to be found, and opposite each notation the initials of his executive who was to read the same. As soon as he returned to the office the following morning the trade paper was sent the rounds of the executives. When they had read the particular matter called to their attention the periodical was returned to the stenographer, whose duty it was to make up a card index of the article listed on the cover page.

This index is alphabetical and arranged under general headings like Advertising, Prices, Markets, Selling, Office Plans, etc., so that the particular plan, tip or article may be easily called up when needed.

The card index is placed in a simple little box cabinet such as can be purchased from any office appliance house and is placed on a corner of the stenographer's desk, says Chesla C. Sherlock in the Retail Ledger, Philadelphia. She keeps the index and the file and is personally responsible to have it up to date all the time.

The trade papers are filed away in a large, legal-sized cabinet wide enough to take all sizes of periodicals in plain alphabetical classification, according to trade or branch of the trade and the date of their publication. They are ordinarily kept in this file for six months, after which they are destroyed as having lost their timeliness, unless they are of such importance as to cause them to be placed in the "Year" file, where they are kept for a full year. All periodicals taken from the year file have the remaining important matter, which is quite likely to be permanently important, clipped and filed away in a scrap book.

This plan makes it possible for the business man to have at his fingertips a constant source of new and vital ideas applicable to his business operations. The idea is at once practical and inexpensive. The file is never cluttered up with useless material, for the unimportant has been sorted out at the first reading of the trade paper. If certain issues contain nothing of importance they need not be filed and so the file can be kept free of material that is not vital and worth while.

Suppose a problem in merchandising came up in the Spurrier office in the course of the day's work. The girl was called in and something like this took place:

"Miss Smith, we are confronted with a problem in merchandising. Will you bring me the periodical file index card on that subject?"

It was the work of but a few seconds for Mr. Spurrier to run over the list on that subject and determine whether or not suggestions covering the point were on the file. If anything was located, it was the work of a few more seconds to have it laid before him.

The advantage of this plan is that it is "liftable," it may be used by any one who does business, whether he be operating a crossroad store or managing a mammoth manufacturing concern. And it is just such liftable ideas as this, applied by business men everywhere, that are raising the standard of business the country over and making the day's work easier. If it is worth while to take your business papers it certainly will be worth several times their cost to you in the course of the year to be able to put your hands on the information they offer that is vital to your business.

Examples of Use

An example of how business men have used ideas taken from their trade papers to marked advantage may be cited here as a basis for the foregoing contention:

The very first one that comes to mind is one which arose in the experience of W. A. Spurrier, Jr., himself. Through reading building trade papers the idea grew in Mr. Spurrier's mind that home builders are often handicapped because they don't know just how their hardware would look on the finished building or were doubtful as to its serviceability. So Mr. Spurrier spent some weeks trying to figure a way in which to demonstrate his wares. At last he built telephone booths which are miniature bungalows in his store for the accommodation of his customers and in which he had put the lines of hardware he wanted most to push. These booths, each wall having a different finish, each window and door having different hardware, attracted a great deal of attention and caused local builders to flock to his store.

No man can be cheated out of an honorable career in life unless he cheats himself, declared Emerson. If you believe in yourself and in your capabilities, you will not be cheated.

INDISCRIMINATE GRANTING OF CREDIT A POOR POLICY

Losses Resulting From Dishonesty and Repossessions Because of Inability to Pay Are Evils of Lack of Care in Extending Credit—How a Department Store Checks Up on Patrons

Reasonable care must be exercised by the talking machine dealer in granting credit to prospective purchasers. Despite the fact that by far the majority of people are honest and intend to meet their obligations promptly the fact that they are permitted to purchase on the instalment plan any instrument they desire often leads to purchasing something beyond their means. The ultimate result, unless the dealer restrains the customer, is that payments become irregular and sometimes repossession, with all its attendant evils, is necessary.

To safeguard against such conditions many dealers have evolved plans for determining the credit standing of customers before the instrument is delivered. The form reproduced below is an excellent example of the thorough system of the department stores to safeguard their own interests. This particular form is used by the talking machine department of L. Bamberger & Co., Newark, N. J.:

Salesman	Manager Dept.

A. R. Filante, manager of the talking machine department of L. Bamberger & Co., who has had wide experience in the talking machine business, in commenting on the granting of credit, declared that the average customer is inclined to resent the questions on a form such as this and that only by the tactful explanation of the salesman as to the reason for this precaution before granting credit could antagonism and embarrassment be averted. "The salesman should put the matter right up to the customer," said Mr. Filante. "He should exercise the greatest tact and diplomacy in putting the customer in the position of the store if conditions were reversed and, if this is done, in ninety-nine times out of a hundred the patron will see the light.

"I can almost instantly tell whether a customer is straight and intends to meet his or her obligations. I am more inclined to suspect the customer who submits to the questions on the form without protest or embarrassment than to the customer who becomes indignant and flustered. Because a person takes the matter coolly, however, is no reason why motives should be questioned, but it is always better to be careful. One never can tell and in the instalment business an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

OTTO HEINEMAN VISITS "WINDY CITY"

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., spent a week in Chicago recently, making his headquarters at the offices of the General Phonograph Corp., of Illinois. He conferred with S. A. Ribolla, general manager of this company, regarding sales plans for the coming Fall and was gratified to learn that the demand for Heineman motors in Chicago territory showed every indication of hitting a high-water mark during the 1923 Fall season. Mr. Heineman also visited the offices of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Okeh jobber in Chicago, where, E. A. Fearn, president of the company, submitted figures indicating that Okeh records were gaining new friends in Chicago territory day by day.

An attractive new furniture and talking machine establishment has been opened at 4441 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., by Harry Lenowsky, of this city. Modern fixtures have been installed throughout.

PRAISES SONORA DURABILITY

Geo. E. Brightson Receives Interesting Letter From Sonora Owner—Instrument Giving Splendid Service After Being Mishandled

Geo. E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Co., New York, received recently a very interesting letter from F. C. Goodyear, Norwalk, Conn., owner of a Sonora phonograph. In his letter, which constitutes a remarkable tribute to the Sonora phonograph, Mr. Goodyear states as follows:

"In the Spring of 1916 the freighter 'Marion' went down in Norwalk Harbor. Included in its cargo was a shipment of Sonora phonographs consigned to your local dealer. At that time I was conducting the Royal James Inn at Norwalk. The day the 'Marion' was raised the agent for the steamboat line came in for lunch with the insurance adjuster. Half jokingly, I think, the agent suggested that I might buy one of the badly water-soaked Sonoras.

"I was not such a vain prospect and asked to see the machines. I selected the least damaged case. I had little to judge by in the matter of motors, but I saw that they had been thoroughly bathed in oil before shipment. Notwithstanding the days it had lain in the water and mud of Norwalk Harbor a cabinet maker, for very little cost, restored the case as good as new; the motor ran perfectly—all I needed was a motor board and crank handle.

"I have told the story of its reclamation to hundreds of friends. Never have I heard a sweeter or clearer toned instrument. Nearly every day one or the other of my three children are playing it. Somehow it never jars one's nerves. It is so mellow and unmechanical. You may be sure that no offer of money could induce me to part with my Sonora, which has been such a companion of instruction and pleasure. Not for years will I need a new machine, but when I do you may take my word for it, it will be a Sonora. (Signed) F. C. Goodyear."

The Necessity for Ethical Merchandising

Dissertation on Need for Practice of the Golden Rule by A. G. Farquharson, Secretary, Music Trades Association of Southern Cal.

Sales of phonographs and records seem to have been about normal during the past month. The volume of sales of the former do not appear to have shown the large increase to which, month after month, dealers have become accustomed in recent years, although there have been increases over the corresponding period of last year in all cases, but not so great. Managers of departments are naturally anxious to show the greatest possible increase and they grasp every opportunity that presents itself for bringing more new customers into their stores.

In the opinion of the majority of phonograph managers, however, there is a great difference between the new and the old and established forms of advertising—old and established, however, only in that they must be strictly truthful and follow along lines as laid down by the old-line talking machine manufacturers in those days when the latter were able to enforce their opinions of fair and truthful advertising. It is considered harmful to the prestige of a house to advertise sales which may be perfectly legitimate and carried out to the letter in their fulfillment, but which, nearly always, imply something beyond.

The advertisement may be set up in such a fashion that an important word, modifying a sales offer, is in small and insignificant type and will easily escape the notice of the reader and prospective buyer. Or, there may be an insinuation that the sale covers other goods or makes, which are, however, never meant to be included in the sale. A moderately clever advertising man can easily invent a score or two of ways of misleading the public and yet still keep within the law. Then there is the scheme of advertising ridiculously low terms and, at the same time, instructing the salesmen that the conceding of such terms to customers will mean the reduction of their commissions or the losing of their position. These are tricks pure—or rather impure—and simple; they could be played by two or more, but are generally despised by the high-class houses.

Again, there are large and small houses which, taking advantage of the custom of the majority of their fellow dealers to charge a certain rate of interest on deferred payments, or to accept a minimum payment each month, advertise verbally and in the newspapers that they will charge a lower rate of interest, or none at all, and will accept lower first and monthly payments. It is a curious fact that the dealers who indulge in this kind of competition, invariably boast that their customers make larger payments than is required of them and although they declare they stand ready to carry out the advertised low payments it is not necessary.

Of course, a continual dose of such tactics has the effect of influencing the men who are striving to sell quality rather than terms, and who shrink from stretching, or playing hide-and-go-seek with, the truth in advertising. They find themselves wondering sometimes whether so-called "merchandising" can cover every violation of the golden rule in regard to one's competitor and justify a reckless attempt at all times to fool the public.

Questions and conditions of these kinds arise and have arisen in every big city and they generally lead to a general acceptance by all. One by one, or several in a body, dealers slash their terms or their rate of interest—generally going one better or lower; sensational sales—with jokers in them—are put on by one and all, until all are equal in their schemes of "merchandising" or degradation. After all that, there is an armistice or peace.

"The survival of the fittest," shouts the big merchant, and adds, "We want to serve the public." "Merchandising," squeaks the little man, who thinks that he can get away with lower overhead and rise to be as big as the rich "public servant." "Let us keep our business on a high plane," sighs the old-established dealer. "Everybody loses out in the long run," observes the onlooker. Recently a great analyst of business and business conditions stated that religion was necessary in business. If this is true, then surely the merchant should love his competitor as himself. It is quite possible that some day the merchant prince and the little man and the old-established dealer may have a few quiet moments of retrospection just before retiring to take the long, long sleep. It is said that such retrospections are very vivid and complete. Will they feel justified in respect to their duties to their neighbors? They loved their neighbors as themselves—as far as possible. But their competitors? Well, the competitors were neighbors, of course, but in business, you know, one cannot let sentiment interfere. That would ruin all opportunities of "merchandising."

"United" Phonograph Motor-Users, Everywhere, Welcome This Innovation In Motor Service

All service men agree that most phonograph troubles are spring troubles.

And all are familiar with the difficulties attending the replacement of a broken spring in a customer's home.

To replace spring, take off the two nuts shown on triangular casting and slip in new United spring assembly.

The New Way—the "United" Way replaces a spring in 2 or 3 minutes —without even soiling the fingers!

To replace spring, remove set screw at end of barrel shaft and slip in new United spring assembly.

It is simplicity itself—we supply our trade with the complete spring assembly and all it is necessary to do is to slip out the old barrel and slip in new one.

On our No. 5 and No. 6 Models all the repair man has to do is to take out set screw at end of barrel shaft, slip out the shaft and exchange old barrel for new.

On our new No. 7 Series, he unscrews the two nuts at the ends of the suspension rods, puts in new barrel and replaces nuts.

Dealers with customers on the farm or at a distance, can send new barrel and let the customer make the exchange himself.

THIRTEEN EXCELLENT REASONS FOR LOSS OF CUSTOMERS

Investigation Discloses Interesting Data Showing Various Reasons for Discontinued Patronage—Indifference of Salespeople Leads in Driving Trade Away From the Store

Thirteen reasons for discontinuing patronage were given by 200 former customers of a merchant in answer to a letter asking for an honest expression of why they no longer favored him with their patronage. The letters were sent to all customers on this merchant's books from whom he had heard nothing for a year or longer and the responses were as follows:

1. Indifference of salespeople.....	47*
2. Attempts at substitution.....	24*
3. Errors	18*
4. Tricky methods	18
5. Slow deliveries	17
6. Overinsistence of salespeople.....	16*
7. Insolence of salespeople.....	16*
8. Unnecessary delays in service.....	13*
9. Tactless business policies.....	11
10. Bad arrangement of store.....	9
11. Salespeople's ignorance of goods.....	6*
12. Refusal to exchange purchases.....	4
13. Poor quality of goods.....	1
Total	200

* Salespeople responsible for loss.

One hundred and forty, or 70 per cent, of these customers said they discontinued their patronage because of seven ways in which the store's salespeople failed to please them, says the Philadelphia Retail Ledger. These seven ways were thus described:

1. Indifference of salespeople.....	47
2. Attempts at substitution.....	24
3. Errors	18
4. Overinsistence of salespeople.....	16

- 5. Insolence of salespeople..... 16
- 6. Unnecessary delays in service..... 13
- 7. Salespeople's ignorance of goods..... 6

Customers lost by these.....140
Forty-seven, or 23½ per cent, gave as their reason for leaving "indifference of salespeople."

Sixty, or 30 per cent, of these customers were lost because of six other things they did not like about the store. But these six things lost less than half the loss by the seven ways in which the salespeople failed to please.

This merchant's experience shows the human relations to be the most important factor in winning, pleasing and holding a store's customers.

- Customers expect salespeople to
 - Be alert.
 - Be courteous and respectful.
 - Be eager to serve.
 - Be attentive.
 - Be accurate.
 - Know the goods they sell.
 - Tell the truth about merchandise.
 - Call attention to new merchandise.
 - Give quick service.
- A merchant can help his salespeople by
 - Giving proper training.
 - Giving incentives to better selling.
 - Keeping accurate records of what each salesperson sells and does.
 - Rewarding salespeople according to their ability.

CARRIAGES HELP "TALKER" SALES

Brooklyn Dealer Finds That Baby Carriage Line Brings Women Into Store and Paves Way to Increased Talking Machine Sales

Talking machine dealers more than ever before in the history of the business are turning to sidelines to help defray overhead charges and bring people into the store. In most instances the sideline consists of some musical product, such as small musical instruments, sheet music, etc., but occasionally it is something entirely foreign to the music business. This is the case with Oblo's Phonograph Palace, 687 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y., which features Vocalion and Sonora machines and a line of pianos and musical instruments, and which recently added a line of baby carriages, baby beds and furniture. Space which was formerly largely wasted now is being used for this branch of the business. The experiment has not only proved very successful in fusing a cash business with the instalment music business, but its most important and far-reaching effect has been to bring the mothers of the neighborhood into the store. Of course, when a woman comes to purchase an article of furniture for her child the dealer does not neglect the possibility of making a sale of a talking machine, musical instrument or some records.

There is a certain danger for the dealer in handling a sideline in that the sideline may dominate the merchant's time to the detriment of his talking machine business, but if sidelines are relegated to different departments and care is exercised to subordinate them to the main business in hand—selling talking machines and records—the sideline can be made not only profitable in itself, but it can also be made to increase the sales of the regular line.

CROSELY MFG. CO. HOLDS CONVENTION

Prominent Radio Manufacturer Holds Two Days' Convention of Distributors—Powel Crosley, Jr., Leads Interesting Discussion—New Crosley Models Meet With Approval

CINCINNATI, O., August 3.—The Crosley Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturer of Crosley radio sets, held a two-day convention recently at which Crosley distributors and their representatives from all parts of the country were in attendance. In his discussion Mr. Crosley paid particular attention to the new Crosley Model XJ, which is similar to the well-known Crosley Model X, one of the most popular four-tube sets on the market. At the close of the meeting Mr. Crosley addressed the convention visitors, starting a discussion involving manufacturing and merchandising topics of vital interest to everyone present. Luncheon was served at the Cincinnati Business Men's Club, after which the delegates were taken on an automobile tour of the various plants in which Crosley apparatus and printed matter is produced.

The first stop on this tour was that of the National Label Co., where circulars, catalogs, etc., are printed. From there the visitors went to the Precision Equipment Co., the home of the Ace radio receivers, and then to the American Automobile Accessories Co., finally visiting the Crosley wood-working plant, where Crosley cabinets are made. All these companies are owned and operated by Mr. Crosley, who is recognized as one of Cincinnati's foremost manufacturers and business men.

The visitors then assembled at the Hotel Sinton, where dinner was served, during which brief addresses were made by many of the delegates in attendance, together with the Crosley officials and Douglas Allen, advertising counsel.

O. H. Kincaid and E. O. Payton have leased quarters in La Grande, Ore., where they will open a retail piano store with a full line of Baldwin pianos. Both partners have represented the Baldwin Co. there in the past and have wide experience in music merchandising.

Crosley Mfg. Co. Distributors Present at Convention

tendance. The convention was a decided success and, from beginning to end, was a round-table discussion, filled with practical and helpful ideas for all the jobbers and their representatives. The guests were first called together in the WLW broadcasting studio on the top floor of the main building of the Crosley plant, where Powel Crosley, Jr., president of the company, gave the delegates a careful and complete description of the new models in the Crosley line and reviewed carefully the various apparatus that the company has introduced so successfully.

CHANDLER CO.'S SPLENDID STORE

Dealer in Santa Ana, Cal., Attains High Degree of Artistic Perfection in New Store Plans

SANTA ANA, CAL., Aug. 2.—Congratulations are being received from all sides by the B. J. Chandler Music Store for the high standard of interior decoration attained in its new $90,000 building which was recently opened. Among the features of the store are the walls, which have a golden bronze appearance, accomplished by special artistic construction, and adorned with distinctive mirrors. Draperies made of the rarest hues of silk, artistic floor lamps of exquisite design and a unique indirect lighting system combine to present real elegance.

The stock, consisting of over 100 pianos, and an equal quantity of Victrolas, is proportionately distributed over the two floors and basement, five demonstration rooms being situated on the mezzanine. The Chandler Co. has been in the music business in Santa Ana for eighteen years, occupying its former location at 11 West Fourth street for fifteen years. With the opening of this new establishment at 426 West Fourth street it is predicted that other companies will follow it into this semi-residential district, where enough room to grow is still available and which is one of the best retail sections of the city.

SONORA USED IN BROADCASTING

Portable Machine Scores Triumph in Exacting Test Given by the Radio

The Sonora portable is making good in broadcasting work, according to J. Elliott Jenkins, of the Midwest Radio Central, Inc., Chicago Broadcasting Station WDAP. In a letter to the Sonora Phonograph Co. of Illinois Mr. Jenkins said last week:

"The little Sonora portable phonograph is a beauty and its fine, clear tone is splendid for modulating our transmitter. Radiophone transmission is a very severe test for sound waves of any character. Any distortion or roughness is greatly increased on its way through the transmitter. After testing the little Sonora I can say that its tone quality is most excellent. It has become one of the most useful articles in the station."

STADLMAIR CO. CHARTERED

The Henry Stadlmair Co., to handle talking machines in New York City, has just been granted a charter of incorporation with a capital stock of $100,000. G. C. Henckel, G. G. Kreuzler and H. C. Sorenson are the incorporators.

Elias Liner, who operates housefurnishings stores in New Philadelphia, Pa., and Pottsville, Pa., has discontinued the former establishment and is planning enlargements to the latter store. A modern talking machine and record department is a feature of the business.

NEGRO RECORDS

A booming field discovered, developed and led by OKeh

A LARGE demand always existed for records by negro artists—particularly in the South. But it remained for OKeh alone to first recognize and appreciate the possibilities that this field had to offer, and, as pioneers in the field, to release the first Negro Record. Since then, each succeeding year has shown a remarkably rapid increase in the popularity of OKeh Negro Records until today they are nationally famous.

MAMIE SMITH
(Exclusive OKeh Artist)

We are proud of this fruitful field which we discovered and developed. "The Original Race Records" are the best and most popular records of their kind today. Every effort is made to release promptly the latest hits that have the greatest appeal to those who buy Negro Records. These hits are recorded only by Negro artists whose fame and popularity are unquestionably established.

Sara Martin, Mamie Smith, Eva Taylor, Esther Bigeou, Lucile Bogan, Clarence Williams and Handy's Orchestra are but a few of the famous colored artists whose talents are available on OKeh Records.

The growing tendency on the part of white people to hear their favorite "blues" sung or played by famous colored "blues" artists, added to the already immense demand by the colored race for such records, has made the Negro Record field more fertile than ever before. OKeh dealers are amply assured of getting their full share of this booming demand, for they alone have the privilege of offering to their customers "The Original Race Records."

COLUMBUS

Great Activity in Local Trade —Store Changes, Remodeling and Other Important Trade News

COLUMBUS, O., August 7.—A feature of business in this city is the excellent demand for records of popular numbers.

Forest Cheney, inventor of the Cheney phonograph, spent three days in Columbus last week. He claims two cities as his residence now, Grand Rapids, Mich., where his factory is located, and Columbus, where his wife and daughter recently moved to live with his son, F. Marion Cheney, because of the inventor having to be away from home so frequently. During his stay here he spent considerable time at the Robert L. Seeds Co., Cheney dealer, with which firm Mr. Cheney's son is connected.

In order to make it easier for patrons to own a Victrola and build up a record library, the Z. L. White Co. has worked out a special Victrola club plan of payments, which is resulting in good business.

The six weeks' course in music for supervisors of music at Ohio State University was so successful that plans for a school of music at the Ohio State University are now under consideration. This move is particularly satisfactory to Mrs. Esther Reynolds Beaver, educational director of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Victor distributor, who has been co-operating in the movement.

Miss Ethel Boyl, formerly of Zanesville, is now in charge of the Victor record department of the Stewart Bros. Furniture Co.

J. G. Hobson has taken over the music store in Chillicothe, formerly owned and operated by Martin G. Chandler. He will handle Victrolas and Victor records.

The Robert L. Seeds Co., Cheney and Columbia dealer, has secured a twenty-year lease of new and more commodious quarters at 112 South High street. The property, to be occupied about September 1, consists of four stories and a basement. After extensive remodeling it will be one of the finest phonograph and record establishments in the city.

Victor dealers are happy over the fact that another popular Victor artist will visit Columbus during the coming concert season. This artist is Mme. Schumann-Heink, who has always had a big following here. Her concert is scheduled for the evening of November 7. Other Victor artists scheduled to appear here are Feodor Chaliapin, Russian basso; Erika Morini, violinist, and Salvi, harpist.

The special list of "blues," recently released by the Victor Co., was featured in a window display at the Elite Music Store and resulted in a good many sales of those records.

E. M. Levy, manager of the Victrola department of the Otto B. Heaton Co., reports good sales of the Victrola portable and the one hundred dollar console.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Francis White have just returned from a three weeks' honeymoon motor trip and are now making their home at 844 Franklin avenue. Mr. White is associated as traveling representative with the Perry B. Whitsit Co., wholesale Victor distributor.

As a result of the State Music Memory Contest held here last Spring, a series of concerts will be held in Lancaster during the coming Fall and next Spring, under the auspices of the Quota Club.

The first concert will be held in the City Hall Auditorium on the evening of November 5. Sophie Braslau, contralto, and Victor artist, will be the attraction. The other concert will be held at the same place on March 10 and Lambert Murphy, tenor and also a Victor artist, will appear. The seat sale for this series will be held at the Welton Music Co., Victor dealer. Miss Mary Welton, of this firm, is on the publicity committee.

Assisting the Quota Club in this undertaking is Mrs. Esther Reynolds Beaver, educational director of the Perry B. Whitsit Co., who worked very enthusiastically during the State Music Memory Contest and is happy over the fact that this concert course has resulted from it.

NEW OKEH RECORD CLEANER

Service Item Has Many Practical Merits—Pictures of Okeh Artists Make Cleaners Unusually Attractive—Will Appeal to Buyers

The advertising department of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, has issued a new service to its dealers in the form of a novelty record cleaner, which is the exact size and color of the well-known Okeh label, featuring a picture of a prominent Okeh artist with the name of the dealer embossed in gold. As an advertising medium this cleaner has a threefold purpose, in that it keeps the Okeh trade-mark, the name of the Okeh artist and the name of the dealer constantly before the public.

Dealers may obtain assortments of pictures or the picture of any particular artist, and among the Okeh artists whose photographs are furnished with these new cleaners are the following: Vincent Lopez, Michael Markels, Sophie Tucker, Mamie Smith, Rega Dance Orchestra, Gerald Griffin, Crescent Trio, Aileen Stanley, Ernest Hare and Virginia Burt.

THESE BURGLARS MUSICALLY INCLINED

As evidence of the universal demand for the Davega stock of talking machines, records and sporting goods, Abram Davega, vice-president of Davega, Inc., reports that burglars again broke into the 125th street store of the company and took away on memo a considerable portion of the merchandise.

HARPER & BROS. IN FINE NEW HOME

Publishers of "Bubble Books" Move to 49 East Thirty-third Street—Famous the World Over as Book and Magazine Publishers—New Home Ideally Located and Perfectly Appointed

Harper & Bros., publishers of "Bubble Books" and one of the world's most famous book publishers, are now located in a new six-story home at 49 East Thirty-third street, New York. This institution has been established in New York

New Home of Harper & Bros.

since 1817, having been located originally on Dover street, moving in 1825 to Cliff street and in 1853 to a large building in Franklin square in the lower part of New York. The uptown move into a more convenient neighborhood was long contemplated and, after the mechanical processes of printing and binding were transferred to the company's new plant in Jersey City, the editorial, sales, advertising and textbook departments moved into the new building at Thirty-third street, near Fifth avenue.

This new Harper building is especially designed to express in its Georgian facade the dignified traditions of one of the greatest publishing houses in the world. On the second floor of the new building are located the art department, the office manager and the rest room; the third floor is given over to the collection, circulation, promotion and mechanical departments; on the fourth floor are the assistant treasurer, the bookkeeping, service, personnel and filing departments; on the fifth floor is the vice-president's office, customers' room, sample room, library and the special order, publicity, sales, text-book and manufacturing departments; on the sixth floor are the directors' room, president's office, the office of the editor of Harper's Magazine, reference library, literary, editorial and advertising departments.

Among the famous authors whose works have been brought out by Harper & Bros. are Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, G. P. R. James, Chas. Reade, Wilkie Collins, Mark Twain, George DuMaurier, Bulwer Lytton, Walter Besant and Thomas Hardy. To come down to later days there are Sir Gilbert Parker, Mrs. Humphry Ward, H. G. Wells, Conan Doyle, Israel Zangwill and many others. Harper's Magazine, which was founded in 1850, has won fame the world over as a foremost exponent of literature, art and scientific discoveries.

In the talking machine trade Harper & Bros. have become popular through their publication of Bubble Books, "the little books that sing," which were placed on the market in 1918 and which during a period of five years have sold to the extent of two million copies. Ralph Mayhew, who is known as the "Bubble Book" man, is responsible for the introduction of the idea of combining talking machine records with a children's book and he has been ably assisted by Miss Rhoda Chase, who has illustrated the books, and Burgess Johnson, who has collaborated with Mr. Mayhew in the preparation of the verses.

Since the introduction of radio Bubble Books have become even more popular than previously, for Mr. Mayhew has broadcasted Bubble Book records regularly from WJZ station at Newark, N. J. At the present time there are fourteen Bubble Books on the market, the two newest ones being entitled "Chimney Corner" and "Child's Garden of Verses." There is hardly a town of any size in the country where Bubble Books have no sales outlet. In fact, the sale of Bubble Books has become worldwide and these books of children's verses in record form are not only serving as a form of entertainment, but as a valuable educational medium to America's children.

MISS PATRICOLA AND THE VOCALION

Well-known Vaudeville Artist Makes Her First Recording for Vocalion Records

A new addition to the Vocalion Red record list of artists and singers has been made recently. Miss Patricola, who has one of the few successful single female acts on Keith's circuit, has made her first recording for the Aeolian Co. This record was released as an August special and was released for sale by Vocalion dealers about the fifteenth of this month. She has recorded one of the hit numbers of "George White's Scandals of 1923," "Stingo Stungo," coupled with a blues song by Donaldson and White, entitled "Oh, Sister, Ain't That Hot?" Both of her selections are accompanied by the Ambassadors.

Miss Patricola is so well known among vaudeville theatre patrons that the Aeolian Co. is sure this announcement is going to be welcome news to dealers and record buyers throughout the country.

LEVERICH RETURNS TO DESK

L. L. Leverich, advertising manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is back at his desk after spending two weeks' vacation at his new home in West Englewood, N. J. Mr. Leverich did splendid service in putting the house in order, but also managed to find time to wear off the tennis courts.

Four-Minute Conference on Business Topics

No. 16—Your Follow-up—and How to Conduct It

Many a sale is actually made or the work is well advanced in that direction—but is lost through failure to follow up the interested individual.

Just how this follow-up work shall be done depends, in very large measure, upon the class of goods being sold. And for this reason the same business establishment will often use different follow-up methods, as may be indicated. In order to make this need very clear let us take a rather striking example of a place of business handling both large and small articles, as automobiles and accessories; talking machines and records; washing machines and hammers. These instances will serve to make the point clear.

If a prospect is manifestly interested in an automobile, a talking machine or a washing machine good salesmanship demands that he will be given proper attention at the time he is in the store or place of business and that, if he fails to buy, he will be promptly followed up by a personal representative, who will find out just what his needs are, what difficulty stands in the way of an immediate decision and by suitable means will keep alive the interest already shown.

Frequently a great deal of tact will have to be used in order that no offense will be given or the prospect prejudiced in any way.

One salesman was very unsuccessful in his follow-up work because he chose inopportune times to see and talk to those he went after. In fact, he had sort of a habit, without realizing it, of making a nuisance of himself. His efforts actually represented a loss to his house as they cost money and drove people away.

The tactful follow-up man will know when to approach. Sometimes he will go by appointment or, if he takes his chance of finding the prospect at liberty, he will be keenly alert as to how much time he should take, or whether he is justified in claiming a single moment.

The point is this: Those who are about to spend a substantial sum of money usually do so after consideration. Do not give them too much rope or too much time to get out of the humor of buying. And remember that if you are not on the job in the follow-up work the other fellow probably is and will get the sale away from you.

The case is different where small articles are sold, as accessories, records or hammers. The chances are that the person who fails to buy of you will soon buy of someone else. The expenditure is not large and less thought is required. Nevertheless, follow-up work is much needed in order to keep your establishment in mind. Constant newspaper advertising and direct-by-mail approach regularly are necessary. The newspaper advertising should be gauged to reach all classes likely to be interested in what you have to sell.

A mailing list should be built up and constantly revised in order that it be alive and complete. A circular or card sent once a month to this mailing list will build business if it contains a definite selling message. A letter once in three months built large business for a dealer who used it year in and year out.

The wise use of these two means of publicity, with proper emphasis upon quality, convenience and service, will prove the best method of combating "foreign" or out-of-town competition.

Occasionally these follow-up methods can be supplemented by demonstrations staged where there are gatherings of people, as at a fair or an event attracting a good many people.

Follow-up work may be briefly defined as keeping in touch. You know how much friendship amounts to when we lose sight of people altogether—and how pleasant and profitable friendship can be when we keep in touch. This is true in a business way and we need not be surprised that people patronize those who have interest enough to keep in touch constantly.

GEORGE S. DALES CO. EXPANDS

Akron Business in Good Shape—Music Dealers in New Mutual Protective Association—Other Important Activities of the Trade

AKRON, O., August 6.—The music business had its biggest month of 1923 in June, according to the monthly bulletin of the Akron Merchants Association, with which retail music dealers are affiliated. This increase was 27.97 per cent over the same month last year. Meanwhile July and early August business is holding its own with a call for the $115 to $150 machines. Portable instruments have come into their own and helped some of the stores maintain their Summer volume. Many firms have salesmen scouting through the rural territories hereabouts, with excellent results in sales.

The talking machine department of the George S. Dales Co., Victor distributor, will be greatly enlarged under the plan of expansion to become effective early next year, George S. Dales, head of the firm, announces. The sales and display floor will be fully twenty feet wider. This will give more space for the record booths as well as the display floor. The Dales Co. has completed negotiations for the building adjoining its present store. Alterations will not be started until Spring. The talking machine department will continue on the second floor.

Akron music dealers are enrolling with other retail merchants in the formation of a Mutual Protective Association. The proposed division will function in the apprehension and prosecution of shoplifters, check workers, charge account swindlers and other store criminals.

The Kirk Furniture Co., South Main street, a new Sonora representative in Akron, plans extensive remodeling so as to give more space to its phonograph section.

The store of the Kratz Piano Co., Edison and Victor distributor here for thirty years, will remain at its original location, 29 South Howard street, it was announced recently. It was planned three years ago to erect a modern business block on South Main street, and officials of the company at that time purchased a site, but this plan now has been dropped.

The Federman department store, one of the largest in Akron, will add eight new departments, including a talking machine and general music section.

The Starr phonograph and Gennett records are holding their own this Summer, according to Charles Currie, manager of the Superior Music Parlors, in which these lines are featured.

C. E. GOBER ENTERS FIELD

KEENE, N. H., August 6.—One of the most popular music merchants of this city is C. E. Gober, proprietor of Gober's Music Shop, which was known as the Sturtevant Music Co. until it was purchased by Mr. Gober. A fine stock of talking machines, records, sheet music and musical merchandise is handled by this enterprising merchant, who is widely known locally as a musician.

C. Rhindfleisch has been appointed manager of the talking machine department of Chase & West, Des Moines, Ia., Victor dealers.

member of the company's sales staff. Mr. Berlow, who has been identified with the talking machine industry for the past fourteen years, is one of the veterans of the wholesale trade and has a host of friends in the industry who will be delighted to learn of his association with the Sonora jobber in New York.

NEW HOME FOR J. D. McCARTHY

LEWISTON, ME., August 6.—J. D. McCarthy, live local music merchandiser, recently moved his business into fine new quarters at 25 Lisbon street. The growth of his business is indicated by the fact that the present establishment has three times the floor space of the former store. Mr. McCarthy is well known in local music circles; he is an accomplished musician and he has also been responsible for bringing many well-known artists here for concert appearances. Columbia phonographs and records and Okeh and Vocalion records are handled, as well as a complete line of pianos.

CLARENCE WILLIAMS EXCLUSIVE OKEH

Clarence Williams, the well-known composer, publisher, singer and pianist, as well as Okeh record artist, recently signed a new contract, whereby he will record for Okeh records exclusively. An Okeh record featuring two piano solos by Mr. Williams, entitled "Mixing the Blues" and "Weary Blues," has just been placed on the market. Mr. Williams is also well known for the accompaniments that he plays for Sara Martin and Eva Taylor, both well-known Okeh artists, for whom Mr. Williams has composed special "blues" numbers.

SALT LAKE CITY

Dealers and Jobbers Report Improved Business—Industrial Prosperity Presages Busy Fall Season—Month's News of the Trade

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, August 6.—The talking machine business seems to show an improvement again; indeed, some of the local men claim it has been good all Summer, though others report a slump of a rather definite character. The John Elliot Clark Co., Victor distributor and dealer, reports the retail business as making a stronger showing than the wholesale, though Mr. Bain, who has charge of the wholesale department, said the wholesale is picking up nicely. W. G. Sadler, of the firm, has just returned from a trip through Idaho, where he found business conditions excellent. He said his tour had been very successful. The Victor people are finding a better demand for Nos. 210, 215 and 220 than anything else, according to Mr. Bain. Dean Daynes, speaking for the Consolidated Music Co., said they have done well with portable machines this Summer. The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. reports business as "good," as does the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., which has aggressive men at the head of its phonograph department. The O'Loughlin people report a nice phonograph business, in spite of the fact that they have branched out into other lines and cannot give the talking machine sales all their attention as heretofore. Speaking for the Brunswick Co., R. F. Perry told the writer that things looked good in Idaho, from which State he had just returned after a business trip covering two or three weeks. Mr. Perry said he thought there would be a satisfactory business this Fall from the Idaho territory.

The industrial conditions in Utah and its distributing area are highly satisfactory. Crops are good and prices for most things are satisfactory, with excellent transportation facilities. Mines are working steadily, factories are busy and there is no unemployment. In addition to this Utah is rapidly gaining fame as a scenic State and this year sees a greater "crop" of tourists than ever before.

Mrs. Frances Elliot Clark, mother of John Elliot Clark, of this city, is spending her vacation here with her son. Mrs. Clark, who is head of the educational department of the Victor Co., gave a talk to the Victor dealers and their employees at the offices of the Consolidated Music Co. a day or two ago.

C. B. Sampson, of the Sampson Music Co., Boise, Idaho, Victor dealer, was a recent visitor to this city.

O'Loughlin's, on Main street, Brunswick dealer, has opened a radio department. This well-known house is to install in the near future a passenger and a freight elevator service. The second floor is to be remodeled to make room for expansion of the business.

The Daynes-Beebe Music Co. is running the new talking machine department at the Zion Co-operative Mercantile Institution.

M. S. Browning, of the Browning Bros. Co., of Ogden, is dead. He was one of the best-known capitalists in the Mountain States and was a brother of John M. Browning, world-famous gun inventor.

Branch Manager Spratt, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is at present on a short fishing trip in eastern Utah.

The Brunswick office announces the appointment of two new dealers in Salt Lake City, where the Brunswick line will be handled by the Daynes-Beebe Music Co. and the phonograph department of the Z. C. M. I.

M. W. Lundstrom has been appointed manager of the phonograph department of the Lundstrom Furniture & Carpet Co., of Logan, Utah. This concern handles the Brunswick and Sonora lines.

The Jenkins Furniture Co., Brunswick dealer, of Boise, Idaho, reports greatly increased sales in its phonograph department, with prospects bright for an early Fall business. W. B. Harper has been appointed manager of the Brunswick department, succeeding Mr. Quereau.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bruce, of the Bruce Music Co., Pocatello, Idaho, were recent visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright, Brunswick dealers, of Evanston, Wyo., have recently returned from a motor trip through California.

Edward Thoreson, of the Palace Drug Store, Blackfoot, Idaho, recently announced the opening of his enlarged store. He has added a very attractive music room to care for his increasing phonograph and record business.

T. Hansen, Brunswick dealer, of Ephraim, Utah, was a visitor to Salt Lake City during Merchants' Week.

"This principle applies equally well to the merchant in the quiet residential district or the big fellow in the center of the city."

It also applies to merchants in the talking machine business.

The talking machine trade can be counted most fortunate in the amount, style and standard of its advertising. A good proportion of the material that reaches the consumer's notice rection. The amount of time and attention that is given to consumer literature and other advertising matter for the trade by various advertising departments, the large appropriations involved for this phase of publicity and the general encouragement in its use has reached a point where the talking machine industry must be considered second to none as a volume publicity creator.

A case in point showing the wide range, keting the "Little Tots' Nursery Tunes," a series of records of songs, games and stories for children. These are double-faced records, with illustrated verse pictures accompanying each record and a special album. The additional records are sold in separate loose-leaf pockets, with picture cards ready for insertion in the loose-leaf album.

Included in the consumer advertising material are dealers' advertisements, arranged with space for the dealer's imprint, carrying appropriate illustrations of giants, bears and other figures relating to children's stories, which can be colored by either the grown-ups or the youngsters. They are included in a series of newspaper advertisements sent to the trade in mat form, available in various sizes. In addition each dealer is sent a large rotogravure display sign with cut-out to hold a complete "Little Tot" album, hangers, catalogs, multi-colored cut-outs similar to the display sign and metal fixtures holding individual records.

"TALKER" TO TEACH LANGUAGES

COLUMBUS, O., August 6.—An improved talking machine for instruction in foreign tongues has been devised by Professor Robert E. Rockwood, acting head of the department of romance languages at Ohio State University.

The machine may be used simultaneously by eighteen students. Eliminating use of the single horn Professor Rockwood has provided a head-piece for each student, thereby permitting individual instruction. A control device permits effective registration of the various shades of word tones. A record-cutting device provides for the recording of the pronunciation of each student when he or she takes up the course. By means of this method each student can make personal observation at the end of the course of the progress made.

FISHING NOT THEIR STRONG POINT

As Fishermen This Quartet Represents Excellent Victor Salesmen—"Jim" Donnelly Plays Host to Local Victor Men

Four well-known members of the talking machine trade recently devoted an entire day to the pursuit of the "finny" tribe and, judging from all reports received at this office, the day was a wonderful success so far as the weather was concerned. The members of this fishing expedition consisted of "Jim" Donnelly, popular South Norwalk, Conn., Victor dealer; George Kelly and Ernest Fontan, of the New York

The Waltonians of the Industry

Talking Machine Co., and J. J. Davin, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co.

Mr. Donnelly played host and although he prepared everything in advance the quartet found themselves short of bait when they were about ten miles from land. Half of the day was consumed in finding the necessary bait and at the end of the day's festivities Mr. Davin figured out that the total expense involved was $89.96, with a gross catch of four fish. In other words, each fish was valued at $22.49, which even in these days of high finance can be considered a pretty good figure. However, everybody thoroughly enjoyed the outing and better results are hoped for next time.

GOOD VICTOR MACHINE DEMAND

Business Better Than Anticipated by Collings & Co., Victor Distributors—Popular and Dance Numbers Lead in Record Sales

NEWARK, N. J., August 7.—L. W. Collings, head of Collings & Co., well-known Victor distributors of this city, is much pleased with the volume of sales during the Summer months. The sale of machines in the Collings territory has been somewhat larger than anticipated and record sales have been quite heavy.

Mr. Collings stated that the great majority of record sales during the Summer months have been of popular numbers, particularly dance selections. It is his opinion that this trend in popular sales will continue until early Fall. He has made a complete analysis of the cause and development of consumer record purchases and is under the impression that business is running in a cycle of impermanent character. Mr. Collings looks for a return of interest in standard numbers and the Red Seal catalog during the early Fall.

NEW DISTRIBUTOR OF THE AUDAK

Munson-Rayner Corp. Now Audak Wholesaler—Record Demonstrating Device Is Now Equipped on Special Tables—Demand Growing

Maximilian Weil, inventor and manufacturer of the Audak, a record demonstrating device manufactured by the Audak Co., 565 Fifth avenue, New York City, announces a substantial increase in the number of distributors of the device in the various parts of the country. Among these is the Munson-Rayner Corp., the well-known jobbing organization of Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Audak is now being delivered to the trade equipped on record demonstrating tables which are ready for immediate operation upon delivery to the dealer. Recently a well-known department store in New York City ordered twenty of the specially equipped tables and, following their installation, forwarded a letter to the Audak Co., stating that it was particularly pleased with the results obtained with the Audak's use.

In describing some of the merits of the Audak, Mr. Weil stated that aside from the fact that the Audak carries a series of exclusive patented features, it would be possible, nevertheless, to manufacture the product in quantities at a much lower figure than that at which it is at present marketed. However, the company has borne in mind the extraordinary hard usage that such a demonstrating device must undergo over a long period, and for this reason only the highest quality of materials is used by the company. The Audak also is turned out by skilled mechanics; it is manufactured of brass, steel and aluminum. The tables are of the highest quality cabinet work, made to withstand long wear.

Gerald Griffin, the well-known Irish tenor and exclusive Okeh artist, who sailed recently on the White Star liner "Cedric" for an extended visit to Ireland, appeared at several of the ship's concerts and his singing was enjoyed to such an extent that, as soon as the "Cedric" landed on the other side, the International Mercantile Marine cabled to the New York offices of the company to purchase a complete set of Gerald Griffin's Okeh records for each one of the liners operated by that organization. This is certainly a great tribute to this artist, as well as to the excellence and accuracy of the reproduction of his voice on the records.

SALES TOTALS SHOW INCREASE

Greater City Phonograph Co. Closing Excellent Sonora Business—Maurice Landay Suggests That Dealers Anticipate Requirements

In a recent chat with The World, Maurice Landay, president of the Greater City Phonograph Co., New York, Sonora jobber, commented upon the fact that his company's sales totals for the first seven months of 1923 showed a substantial increase over the corresponding period of 1922. Mr. Landay is suggesting to his dealers that they anticipate their requirements for the 1923 Fall season as much as possible, so that their sales totals for the balance of the year will equal all expectations.

Mr. Landay referred to the fact that at the recent Sonora jobbers' convention, held in Saginaw, Mich., all of the distributors placed orders for their requirements for the entire year in an effort to secure sufficient merchandise for the needs of their dealers. It will, therefore, be to the advantage of each Sonora dealer to anticipate his business for the remainder of the year and place his orders accordingly.

WOULD CUT DISTRIBUTION WASTE

Government to Formulate Clear Definitions of Various Steps in Distribution Process

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 6.—A clear definition of the functions of the retailer, wholesaler and manufacturer in every industry will be sought by the division of domestic commerce of the Department of Commerce, with a view to eliminating the overlapping and duplication of activities, as one of the first steps to be taken as a result of the recent retail conference held in Washington.

The retailer performs the final function in the distribution of commodities and gives fulfillment to all preceding efforts by making merchandise available to consumers at the time and place and in the form required by them, it was determined by the conference. The retailer's true function is that of serving as a purchasing agent for his community.

As a result of the conference the music and other trades will be asked to define the functions of the various branches—manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer—so that the information may be studied in the division of domestic commerce and plans made for the elimination of waste in distribution.

WURLITZER LOS ANGELES BUILDING

Company to Erect a Thirteen-story Building in That City at an Estimated Cost of $1,500,000

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug. 4.—Negotiations have just been made public by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., of Cincinnati, O., concerning the erection of a new thirteen-story and basement edifice at 816 South Broadway, starting September 1, at an expenditure of $1,500,000. The site on which the improvement will rise has a frontage of fifty-one feet on Broadway with a depth of 150 feet to a twenty-foot alley, and is said to have brought a price in excess of $400,000. Tentative plans outlined by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. show that the first six floors, mezzanine and basement of the building will be utilized by them with the upper seven stories subdivided into office space. The office portion of the building will be so designed that it can be taken over by the music house whenever needed.

The ground floor of the structure will be used by the company as a general display room for phonographs and records. The executive offices will be located on the mezzanine and the remaining five floors will be used for the displaying of pianos and other musical instruments of all kinds.

A feature of the new building will be the recital hall in the basement to be used as a civic hall, theatre, concert room and organ display salon. The hall will have a seating capacity of about 250 people and will be similar to the recital room in the Wurlitzer Building in New York.

Not only is the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. planning a great expansion program for Los Angeles, but it is also formulating plans for the establishment of twenty or twenty-five branch stores in Southern California, it is generally reported throughout the trade.

HOW LIVE DEALER SECURES TRADE

Henry Vigneault, of Keene, N. H., Has Built Up Large Business by Progressive Advertising and Sales Methods

KEENE, N. H., August 7.—What can be accomplished by the live talking machine dealer in a small town is exemplified by the record of Henry Vigneault, Brunswick dealer of this city, who opened a small basement store about five years ago and now occupies warerooms triple the size of the original store at 68 Main street. Mr. Vigneault has built up a large clientele here and in surrounding communities as well entirely through his aggressive methods of publicity, which include regular advertising in the newspapers and billboard advertising on thoroughfares leading into Keene. Another publicity stunt which has been very successful in attracting attention to his store and his line consisted in placing a Brunswick instrument in one of the leading local Summer dance halls and playing the latest records during the periods when the orchestra rested. In addition to phonographs and records this live dealer handles sheet music and musical merchandise and he is now planning to install a line of pianos.

BUSY FALL PREDICTED BY BROOKLYN DEALERS

Increased Buying Trend Taken as Indication of Prosperous Fall Season—Dealers Planning Campaigns—Urge Early Ordering—Temporary Stores in Summer Resorts Bring Business—Other Important Activities

A distinct upward movement has marked the trend of the talking machine business in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory during the last several weeks, according to a prominent jobber. In fact, the opinion seems to be quite general among the better informed members of the trade that this condition is a barometer of an exceptionally busy Fall, and as a result the more aggressive merchants are already making tentative plans for their Autumn sales and advertising drives.

Requirements for Fall Now in Order

While comparatively little ordering of Fall stock has been done at this early date, indications are that dealers are beginning to consider their requirements for the next five months. Jobbers have placed large orders with the manufacturers to avert as much as possible a repetition of the conditions which existed last year when dealers were caught short of instruments just prior to the holidays and, as a result, lost many sales, and they have been urging the retailers to place early orders for sufficient stock to meet all demands or to let the wholesalers know what their estimated requirements will be, so that provision can be made to meet demands.

Planning for the Fall Campaign

Now that the Summer vacation season is drawing to a close and the public is again settling down to the ordinary routine, outside sales activities are being gradually resumed and while sales from this source are not coming easy, sufficient business is being done by dealers who are utilizing this method of making sales to make the effort worth while.

Opens Temporary Stores at Summer Resorts

A method of offsetting the possibilities of a slackening business during the Summer months has been used effectively by J. J. Jones, Sonora dealer, Brooklyn, N. Y. During the Summer months he opened several small shops at nearby seaside resorts. These stores are run by his two brothers, who attend college and are at liberty during the Summer. Portable instruments, records and sheet music form the greater part of the business, but the opportunity is

Check Up Source of Prospects

That effective window displays play no small part as a source in securing prospects is the opinion of C. G. Davis, manager of the Aeolian Co., of Brooklyn. He states that a window display is used just as long as it is judged to be effective. Mr. Davis employs a system among his salesmen whereby they are able to ascertain the source from which the prospect comes. The method employed consists simply of the salesman requesting the customer to relate how he or she first became interested. The question is accompanied by the explanation that the company has spent considerable money in advertising and in other ways to secure business, and it wishes to check up on the results as closely as possible in order to be sure that a proper return is secured from its investment. This serves a twofold purpose; first, the prospect is impressed by the good business methods employed by the concern the salesman represents; secondly, it gives the salesman a re-entry where the conversation has already been closed.

The local branch of the Aeolian Co. also employs a system of securing good prospects in the different branches of trade and industry. For example, if bricklayers are unusually busy and prosperous the members of this trade are intensively canvassed with the object of making sales. Lists of the members of the various trades and professions are first carefully compiled and when the proper time comes salesmen are put on the job. This system has been found very effective in producing business.

Sales Drive Among Farmers Successful

The Cavenaro Music Store, Riverhead, L. I., is meeting with considerable success in selling talking machines among the Long Island farmers. A number of machines are loaded on a truck, which is driven around the locality, and the farmers in this way have a means of securing a demonstration which they would not otherwise be able to enjoy.

New Sonora Accounts

The Long Island Phonograph Co., Sonora distributor for Long Island territory, has secured several new accounts, among these being the Lerch Music Shop, Port Jefferson, L. I., and the Colbrink Furniture Co., 529 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn.

J. J. Schratweiser, of the Long Island Phonograph Co., has just returned from a two weeks' vacation. He spent the time with his family at their Summer cottage in Lynbrook, L. I.

R. H. Keith, president of the company, accompanied by his family and C. W. Keith, vice-president, and his family, are planning to motor to South Fairlee, Vt., where they will visit Miss Janeth Keith, R. H. Keith's daughter, at Camp Aloaha.

Building Good Will Among Bus Users

A unique method of getting people to come into the store is being used by the Woodhaven Music Shop, 9303 Jamaica avenue, Woodhaven, L. I. This company distributes slips among persons using the various bus routes into town. The slips provide a place to list the names and addresses of the persons using the buses as a means of transportation. After paying the bus fare the passenger obtains the signature of the bus driver and upon reaching town, by presenting the slip at the Woodhaven Music Shop,

H. L. Terry & Son Open New Store

H. L. Terry & Son, prominent Victor dealers of Sayville, L. I., are now occupying their new store in the business center of Sayville. They have also made extensive improvements to their establishment at Islip, L. I., including the installation of new demonstration booths.

Victor Demand Grows Steadily

Victor business in the Brooklyn and Long Island territory has improved to a considerable extent during the last two months, if the orders for instruments being received by the American Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, are a criterion, according to Richard H. Morris, secretary-treasurer and general manager of the company, who stated that the sales volume of this period exceeds that of the same months last year. Mr. Morris also declared that in his opinion a good Fall business is in store for the trade.

Most of the details connected with the consolidation of the G. T. Williams Co., Inc., with the American Talking Machine Co. have been completed and the combined organization is prepared to render more efficient service to dealers than ever.

Remodeling Store to Handle Growing Trade

Alterations are under way at the establishment of E. Shapiro, 676 Broadway, Brooklyn, Sonora dealer, whose business has increased to such an extent that he has found it necessary to remodel his establishment so that more efficient use will be made of the space he occupies. The type of service and the unique and effective method of securing prospects used by this progressive merchant have been largely responsible for his success. Many live prospects are secured through insurance and furniture salesmen and collectors, who, when a sale is made to a prospect turned in by them, are paid a fair commission. These men supply Mr. Shapiro with names, addresses and other necessary information of prospects. This is immediately followed up by a letter calling attention to the excellence of the line handled and if no action results within a period of a few days a salesman is put on the job. Many good prospects are secured through recommendations of old customers who have become firm friends of the store through the service rendered by the company. This service consists of free minor repairs to the instrument and periodical inspection.

ACKERLEY'S TIMELY ADVERTISING

Progressive Victor Dealer Uses Effective Sousa Publicity—Advertising Produces Results

Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa, the world's greatest band master, accompanied by his famous band, is now making his thirty-first annual tour and fourteenth transcontinental tour. Sousa's band makes Victor records exclusively and Victor dealers throughout the country are taking advantage of this concert tour to use timely and effective publicity.

At a recent concert given by Sousa and his band at Patchogue, L. I., Jerome Ackerley, prominent Victor dealer, used the back page of the program for his advertising. On this page Mr. Ackerley presented publicity that featured Sousa's Victor records, Victor supremacy and the Ackerley store. This timely advertising produced splendid results and stimulated materially the demand for Sousa's Victor records and other recordings as well.

COLUMBIA CO. MEN ARE GUESTS OF GEORGE W. HOPKINS

Twenty Members of Sales and Executive Staffs Entertained at Long Island Yacht Club by Vice-president and General Sales Manager—Look Forward to Heavy Sales Totals This Year

Twenty members of the executive and sales staffs of the Columbia Graphophone Co. were the guests recently of George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the company, at the Long Island Yacht Club, Bayside, L. I. These twenty Columbia enthusiasts included the company's executive sales cabinet, K. Mills, manager of the New York branch, and the visiting managers of the West Coast branches, in whose honor the meeting was called.

When they arrived at Bayside the visitors immediately made their way to a table overlooking the Long Island Sound, where an old-fashioned duck dinner was served. After doing ample justice to the dinner the guests settled down to business, and P. S. Kantner, San Francisco manager, gave an interesting talk describing how he handles the same distribution and service problems that are met with by Columbia branch managers throughout the entire country.

W. F. Stidham, manager of the Los Angeles branch, entertained the guests by a detailed description of some of the many successful accounts in his territory. He described two types—dealers who are enjoying a big volume of business through consistent, intelligent newspaper advertising and practically no outside work, and dealers who put their efforts in outside work with less emphasis on the advertising. "There are two things these dealers have in common," said Mr. Stidham, "one, the ambition and knowledge to go after business, and, two, the success that always rewards intelligent sales effort." Mr. Stidham then described the third dealer, probably the most successful of all, who combines advertising with outside selling. W. H. Lawton, of Seattle, told the meeting of some of the outstanding features in his territory, and Mr. Mills spoke enthusiastically of the bright outlook for a big volume of business in the Empire State. Robert Porter, field sales manager of the company, who recently returned from an extensive visit to the West Coast branches, discussed some of the more recent developments in the problems of the phonograph industry as a whole. "The music industry," Mr. Porter said, "particularly as affecting the phonograph field, is undergoing a silent, invisible but progressive change. Consumers are becoming the dictators of the situation. It is their wishes which are dominating the trend of the manufacturers and dealers' policies. As manufacturers get closer to the consumer and shape their policies to meet the consumers' preferences and requirements, the industry will become less affected by industrial and trade influences. This applies to styles, finishes, mechanical performances, terms, advertising plans and retail store sales practice. Spectacular sales, long-winded terms, high-pressure methods, concessions in price or gifts to stimulate buying are passing like the old men of yesterday. Why? Because the consumer is intelligent enough to recognize legitimate value from clap-trap. The consumer is forcing the industry to revise practices which unrestrained aggression is blind to, but will fall a victim to, eventually."

Up to this point the meeting had been an enthusiastic one, but the members had been personally conservative. However, when Mr. Hopkins arose to discuss the new phonographs and Columbia New Process records he was greeted with tremendous applause. The manager in attendance stated that every dealer who had seen the new phonographs had been unqualifiedly enthusiastic in voicing his approval, and they are looking forward to the receipt of good-sized shipments of this merchandise in order to attain record-breaking sales totals. After discussing the new product from every angle, Mr. Hopkins invited questions or additional remarks from his guests, and at the close of an interesting round-table discussion the meeting adjourned and the party returned to New York.

Business Holds Up Well—Dealers Discuss Merits of Various Record Release Methods—Remodeling for Fall—The Month's News.

CINCINNATI, O., August 6.—Both the talking machine and record business in this city are holding up remarkably well during the warm weather and there are indications that Cincinnati dealers will not have sufficient stock on hand to supply the rush when the Fall season opens. The first six months of this year were as prosperous as any known in the history of the talking machine and record business in this city, but dealers had anticipated a marked decrease in demand when Summer arrived and the open-air amusements offered their attractions to the public. But, even though there has been a decrease in the volume of business to some extent, it has not been as noticeable as was expected. Business during July, in most cases, ran approximately from 25 to 100 per cent ahead of July, 1922, thus maintaining the pace which was set in the previous months of this year. The outlook for August is very bright and it is thought that the volume of sales this month will equal that of July and possibly surpass it.

Discuss Record Release Problems

There has been some discussion locally about the method of releasing records. Some dealers favor a bi-monthly release, contending that the dealer will have fifteen days in which to push and dispose of records and that daily release of records tends to slow up the sales of all records except those which are just being released. On the other hand, those who employ the daily release believe that, when the public is educated to the fact that it can secure the latest records each day, it will buy records at the store where they can be purchased right up to date. There will be enough demand for back numbers to dispose of the shipments of records received, according to the contention of those favoring the daily release. Both those advocating daily release and those favoring the release of records less frequently agree, however, that the method of release is not so important as the attitude and activity of the local dealers. When the dealers are alive to the merits of both systems and to the possibilities of increasing their own business a much larger volume of sales is almost certain to eventuate.

Say Radio Aids Trade

The question of the effect of the radio upon music is another much-talked-of subject. Everyone knows that the radio made a phenomenal, whirlwind kind of entrance into the musical life of America. Under those conditions it is not much wonder that people bought radio equipment and supplies in preference to talking machines and records. But, now that the first rush is past and the novelty of the radio is beginning to wear off, some say that the radio is actually aiding the sale of both talking machines and records, instead of directly competing with them. One point which is emphasized is that people soon get tired of local music, but do not care to sit up at night until ten or twelve o'clock to hear music from other cities by radio, whereas the talking machine can be used at any time that the hearer wishes. In fact, it is said that through the radio farmers are hearing good music and the farm trade on talking machines and records is increasing.

Another point in favor of talking machines is that the great artists will not broadcast their music by radio and, if people care to hear them, they must buy records. A prominent Cincinnati dealer maintains that the radio introduces new dance music and that people then come into his store to buy the record. This dealer suggests that the only trouble is that new pieces are not introduced by radio soon enough.

Look Forward to Victor School

A great deal of interest is being manifested by various dealers in Cincinnati territory in the classes to be held by the Victor Co., in which dealers will be taught more about Red Seal records. Dealers here are alive to the fact that they cannot know too much about their product and are behind every effort in their behalf.

Children's Records Popular

Children's records and educational records are becoming more and more popular. A novel arrangement of ten duets for children has been arranged by Miss Kinsella, who plays the teacher's part on the talking machine record, while the child in the home plays its part on the piano. This arrangement is to be used in the public schools and the outlook is excellent for its success.

Public Favors Consoles

A majority of the machines being sold in Cincinnati stores are of the console type. The Ohio Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, in view of the preference for the console models, is getting in two new types of consoles, Nos. 400 and 405.

Dealers Increasing Facilities

With the bright outlook for Fall just ahead several concerns are equipping themselves to handle a large volume of business, larger than they have ever taken care of before. The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, East Sixth street, has purchased the fixtures of the phonograph department of the John Shillito Co., which is closing out its line of phonographs. These fixtures will be used by the former to help equip the thirteen new display rooms which are being constructed in the store. The addition means that about four hundred square feet of display space will be available in the early Fall, as well as an enlarged and better-equipped repair room in the basement. Widener's Victrola Shop, West Fourth street, is also adding eight to ten record selling rooms.

Edison Dealers Cashing In

The Phonograph Co., Edison wholesaler, of this city and Cleveland, O., is receiving its full share of the wave of prosperity which is sweeping over this section of the country. The Edison is one of the most popular instruments sold in this State and the live dealers handling this line are doing an eminently satisfactory business, and the outlook for a record Fall trade is excellent.

Miss Mae K. Brigel With Brunswick

Miss Mae K. Brigel, who has had a wide experience selling records during the past six or seven years and also is an accomplished composer, is now with the Brunswick Co. Her work will be to assist the dealer in finding the best commercial value of his records and give him or his salesmen help in opening stores or in conducting special sales. Miss Brigel has started on her first trip through the South. There is a rapidly growing demand for Brunswick machines, according to the local district office.

A. F. Hubbard in New Post

A. F. Hubbard has been appointed to the traveling staff of the New Edison Co. Mr. Hubbard was formerly in charge of the Edison agency in Athens, O., and later had his own store at Huntington, W. Va.

Orchestra Boosts Record Sales

Reports have reached Cincinnati of the phenomenal success of a dance given in Richmond, Ind., late in July by a Brunswick dealer, the Romey Furniture Co., through a college fraternity of that city. The Phi Delta Kappa fraternity sponsored the dance, which had as its chief attraction the famous Brunswick artists, Isham Jones and His Chicago Orchestra. Over 350 people were among the dancers and spectators, people attending from practically every one of the cities and towns of eastern Indiana and western Ohio. Mr. Henderson, of the Cincinnati district office of the Brunswick Co., also was present. Needless to say that the appearance of Isham Jones and his orchestra stimulated the sales of not only the records made by

Compose Successful Song

The sale of music rolls for player-pianos has been exceptionally good among the Cincinnati dealers. Karl Bamberger, a clerk in the Victrola department of the Baldwin Piano Co., and Miss Stevens, manager of the department, are responsible for the song "Daddy's Lullaby," which has been recorded on Q R S Melody, U. S. and Standard rolls. The former composed the music and the latter wrote the words. The song is reported to be selling very well.

Fine Starr Window Display

The Starr Piano Co., West Fourth street, has a window display showing the various stages of operation necessary in making Gennett records. This display has attracted much interest and there is already a large number of music dealers seeking to obtain this outlay for display purposes.

Lose Instruments in Fire

Justin Huber's Orchestra, which has been recording lately for Gennett records, suffered the loss of its instruments and much valuable music, some of which cannot be replaced, when Chester Park, Cincinnati amusement resort, had a disastrous fire several weeks ago. Huber's Orchestra had been playing for dancing at the Park clubhouse, which was one of the buildings destroyed by fire.

News Gleanings

Mr. Bates, of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., has just returned from an Eastern trip which consumed five weeks. He spent considerable of the time with his family at Ocean City, N. J., where he has an attractive cottage.

Business is reported to be very good with the Sterling Roll & Record Co. Ben L. Brown, manager, had a very successful trip through Ohio territory the past week. Larry Naber, of this company, had a good week traveling through Hamilton, Middletown, Dayton and Columbus. According to the road salesmen the demand for records is heavy in all parts of western Ohio and from present indications a prosperous Fall season seems to be assured.

The Chubb-Steinberg Music Shop, East Sixth street, has gotten much business through its motto, "Harmonize the instrument with the home." This company has a man who follows up deliveries and adjusts the instrument to the best-looking position in the room. This service has been instrumental in creating much satisfaction among customers and it also has resulted in considerable new business.

The Cheviot Phono Music Shop, at Cheviot, O., has recently changed its name to Grismer's Music Shop.

W. C. Fuhri, representative of the General Phonograph Corp., New York, was a recent visitor to Cincinnati.

FAVORITE CO.'S LARGE BUSINESS

Demand for Parts and Accessories Grows Steadily—Announces Springs in Individual Boxes—Bright Outlook for Fall

Carl Kronenberger, head of the Favorite Mfg. Co., in a recent statement to a representative of The World, said that the sales for the month of July of tone arms, sound boxes, mica and other talking machine parts were larger this year than any Summer month of the post-war period. This, he feels, indicates a most active Fall season. Of particular importance, he also stated, is the fact that the demand has seemingly been for quality products.

In addition to its large business with talking machine manufacturers the Favorite Co. also distributes a large volume of steel springs to talking machine dealers for repair purposes. In conjunction with its spring business the company now announces the delivery of springs in all sizes in individual boxes, each carrying on its cover a description of its dimensions, thus saving the time of the repair man in selecting a needed spring and aiding considerably in keeping such stock up to date.

MARGARET YOUNG SAILS FOR EUROPE

Exclusive Brunswick Artist Will Spend Vacation in Europe—Brunswick Executives and Staff Bid Her Bon Voyage

Miss Margaret Young, exclusive Brunswick artist, sailed for Europe recently on the "Orduna," of the Royal Mail Line. Among the members of the Brunswick staff who were present to bid Miss Young bon voyage were H. Don Leopold, manager of the record department of the Eastern phonograph division; James O'Keefe, of the recording laboratories, and C. R. Salmon, of the New York sales force.

Miss Young is well known to theatregoers and talking machine owners throughout the country, as for a number of years she has been a headliner on the Keith Circuit, in addition to making records that have met with a popular sale. She has made a large number of records for the Brunswick catalog and is generally recognized as one of the leading exponents of modern-day syncopation.

Cluett & Sons Co., operating stores in some of the leading cities in New York State, have concluded arrangements whereby the Victor line will be handled in their Troy and Schenectady stores. This house is one of the oldest music retail organizations in the country, and Victrolas and Victor records will be given splendid representation in the two stores where they will be carried.

SOPHIE TUCKER IN MOVIES

It is rumored that Sophie Tucker, well-known vaudeville star and exclusive Okeh artist, will shortly be featured in moving pictures. Miss Tucker has been engaged in making a picture at Hollywood during the past few months, and in all probability it will be released in the very near future.

Making Imperishable the Art of the Greatest Artists of This Generation

Formerly the art of the great musicians died with them, or lived only in the memory of contemporaries.

The art of Adelina Patti, of Jenny Lind, of Pauline Lucca, died with them. The playing of great masters of violin, or 'cello, or piano, who flourished a generation ago, is forgotten.

But every generation has its great artists with wonderful voices, or marvelous ability to wrest music from man-made instruments. And today Brunswick is making the art of these new artists imperishable.

Most of the great modern artists make records exclusively for Brunswick. Famous musicians have learned the supremacy of Brunswick recording. Its clearness, absolute fidelity to tone and mood and inflection. So the great lights of the New Hall of Fame are Brunswick artists, that their art may live beyond them in all its infinite beauty.

Brunswick's double-faced gold seal artist records have gained world recognition. Every one of these should have a place in every record album, for they represent the highest achievement in modern music.

Coupled with this recording of classical music Brunswick offers the best modern, popular music. No dance music equals that of Brunswick. And for this too there is an insistent and incessant demand.

Dealers who handle Brunswick phonographs and records enjoy the prestige of a line which has gained a position of unquestioned eminence in the musical world. They gain the large profits of a fast-moving line with a moderate investment. And they are assured the protection of a line handled only through factory branch offices and distributors who are in harmony with Brunswick's liberal and fair policies. Brunswick dealers are never at the mercy of jobbers with conflicting interests.

IN DES MOINES

Sales Show Increase Over Same Period Last Year Despite Slackening of Business—No More Records on Approval—Month's News

DES MOINES, IA., August 6.—Retail sales in Iowa have slowed up somewhat according to the usual seasonal trend, although the volume is much better than during the corresponding period last year. Harger & Blish, jobbers of Edison products, report that the retail sales of their dealers are fully 50 per cent greater than during the same period last year. Little of the present volume, however, is being taken from jobbers' stocks. Most dealers seem to be cleaning out their stocks before placing orders for Fall and Winter business.

Portable machines are in fair demand, although many dealers claim that this phase of the business is not living up to expectations. One jobber remarked on the increasing popularity of console models. According to this authority even the people in the smaller communities are demanding this type machine. Retail dealers in Des Moines have noticed an unaccountable spurt in the record business during the past few weeks. Business, on the whole, is better than usual for this time of the year.

Leading local music dealers have all posted notices at prominent places in their music departments informing the public of the discontinuance of the "records on approval" policy after August 1. At their next meeting, to be held during the latter part of August, the music dealers of the city will discuss "trade-in" policies. Most dealers feel that some standard policy can be reached that will be fair to both customer and retailer.

During Des Moines Merchants Market Week, August 6 to 11, Des Moines jobbers kept open house to their visiting dealers. Local retailers co-operated very successfully by prominently displaying their talking machine lines.

J. A. Keyes, who has been doing special sales work for Harger & Blish, will join the music department of Davidson Bros. on September 1.

The new six-story building of Chapman Bros., Sixth and Walnut streets, is rapidly nearing completion. The company expects to move in about August 20. The entire balcony of the store will be fitted up for and devoted to the talking machine and record business.

Ed. Hadoval has purchased the drug and talking machine business of E. H. Tadage at Wyoming, Ia. Edison products will be handled as in the past by the new proprietor.

L. L. Sherman has purchased the Gilmore drug and jewelry business at Gilmore, Ia. Mr. Sherman will continue to handle Edison phonographs and records.

Evelyn Ashby, formerly of Cedar Rapids, Ia., took over the management of the talking machine department of Chase & West on August 1.

Ruth Uhl, of the record department of Davidson Bros., and Helen Lindquist, in charge of record sales for L. Ginsberg & Sons, have just returned from a two weeks' outing at Northern Lakes.

Jno. Garwood, of the Mickel Music Co., Marshalltown, Ia., has found a new market for Victor products. Just recently he sold machines and assortments of records to three different musically inclined baseball teams.

F. Van Vogart has been appointed manager of the talking machine department of Davidson

Co., Waterloo, Ia. Mr. Van Vogart was formerly manager of the Victrola department of the A. E. Gardner Co. at Iowa Falls.

THOS. A. EDISON ON VACATION TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Edison, in Company With Friends, Are Motoring Through the Middle West—Will Spend Some Time in Camp

Thomas A. Edison left on a three weeks' vacation with Mrs. Edison on August 2, starting from their West Orange, N. J., home in an automobile—not a Ford—presented them by Henry Ford.

Their journey will be westward, through New York and Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin and on the way West they will pick up Mr. and Mrs. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Firestone, with whom they will spend some time in a camp.

The trip will be made entirely by motor and the party will make a tour of the northern peninsula of Michigan, as well as along the southern shores of the Great Lakes. The inventor expects to be back in his laboratories by the first of September.

V. W. MOODY MAKES AUTO TRIP

V. W. Moody, of the sales staff of the Silas E. Pearsall Co., Victor wholesaler, New York, spent a few days recently on a combined pleasure and business trip, which included a visit to the cities in the Hudson River territory, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Mr. Moody, who made the trip by automobile, was accompanied by his family, and during the course of the journey visited many Victor dealers throughout that section of the country. He found the general business outlook very satisfactory, with all the dealers preparing for a banner Fall and holiday season.

THE TWIN CITIES

Retailers and Wholesalers Optimistic Over the Fall Prospects—Brisk Demand Continues—The Month's Trade News and Activities

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., August 7.—Business in the talking machine field is good and getting better in the Twin Cities and its environs. A distinct note of optimism pervades the jobbing houses. A gratifying volume of orders is coming in both for immediate and Fall delivery, many of these from dealers who have done very little buying in the past two or three years.

George A. Mairs, head of the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., Victor distributors, says: "We are doing a big business, away ahead of last year. All models are selling well and we are not able to get enough of the new art console, No. 405, to supply the demand."

Mr. Mairs feels it is too early to forecast much about Autumn business, but adds that dealers are optimistic. Business in North Dakota, he says, is better in spots, although conditions are so dissimilar in the various parts of the State as to make a general statement about the State inapplicable. Indications that prosperity in North Dakota is looking up are evidenced by the fact that several dealers who visited the Dyer firm within the last month bought more records than they have for two years. The indications are that South Dakota also will buy, according to Mr. Mairs, and sales conditions are pretty fair in Iowa.

"Future delivery orders are reaching us in a gratifying manner," said H. S. Sharer, manager of G. Sommers & Co., Pathé distributors located in St. Paul, who says that Minnesota business is fair. The firm's receipt in his department will be about the same as last year.

"Business in Edisons is better than last year and better than last month, according to J. Unger and A. L. Topel, of the Lawrence H. Lucker Co., Edison jobber. Conditions, they say, are especially good in the big towns in its territory. The iron range towns are doing a splendid business, Mr. Unger states, and Lucker's is doing a very nice record business.

William A. Lucker, who conducts the big Edison store in St. Paul, has just sold his fifth Edison phonograph to the same family, clearly indicating that the buyer was more than pleased with his previous purchases.

Gust Ardin, of Cook & Rose & Beland, of Two Harbors, has been added to the list of Edison dealers by Lawrence H. Lucker, Northwest Edison distributor.

Visitors to the offices in July included O. V. Karlberg, Albert Lea; A. C. Mason, Chippewa Falls; H. M. Hershey, Litchfield, and R. W. Hyneman, Eden Valley.

Edward G. Hoch, Cheney distributor, says: "Business with us is 20 per cent ahead of last July, the last ten days, following the extreme heat, having been particularly good. The increase is due to orders from people who have been dormant for some time. This revival means that we are getting back to stable demand. The business that is coming will be getting us back to normal."

Mr. Hoch has opened a new account in Great Falls, Mont., a direct result of the Dempsey-Gibbons prize fight in Shelby, Mont. Among the many visitors to the State who made Great Falls their headquarters at that time were a group of New York business men, familiar with the Cheney, who endorsed the line so highly that the Great Falls man was impressed to the extent of putting in the Cheney products.

Business is much better than a year ago at the George C. Beckwith Co., Victor jobber, according to Charles K. Bennett, general manager, and Fred Strum, and July results are ahead of last year's figures. "The encouraging thing is that practically all obsolete models are off the Twin City markets and dealers are placing new orders," said Mr. Strum, who visited the Minneapolis and St. Paul dealers. "Dealers are going to do a tremendous business because we have just the models which the public wants, particularly a good line of flat-top consoles, which are popular now."

The Gregg Music Co., Menomonie, which has been employing a special sales expert from Beckwith's for a week, has succeeded in disposing of eighteen machines during his stay and asked for his return in the Fall for another campaign of a similar nature.

At the time of publication C. K. Bennett will be visiting Camden and New York. At that time he will arrange for a meeting in September, when the Northwest dealers will come to Minneapolis for a general meeting to consider salesmanship, financing, advertising, intensive campaigning and machine demonstrations. The plans also include an exhibition by representatives of the various music publishers, explaining how songs are written, published and "plugged."

Joe Nylin, of the Nelsou-Nylin Music Co., St. Paul East Side Victrola dealer, has enjoyed a steady business this Summer due to his cooperation with the Parents and Teachers' Association, the Canoe Club, school and church organizations, clubs and lodges at whose meetings and social affairs he furnished Victrolas and records. He has attracted the children by children's records and accompanying lectures.

Cliff Hunt, of Davis & Ruben, 313-321 Hennepin avenue, East, Minneapolis, reports a good business in machines. His attractive window display of portables brought him good results. He distributed 1,000 Victor trade-marked balloons, obtained through Beckwith's service department, at a recent picnic of the Central avenue merchants at Columbia Heights.

TURNOVER IS THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IN MERCHANDISING

Declared Homer J. Buckley at Convention of Retail Advertisers' Association in Instructive and Interesting Address on "Putting the Retailer on the Profit Side of the Ledger"

Every village and town in this country offers opportunity for a merchant to get rich if he will chart his purchases, his sales and his advertising, Homer J. Buckley, head of Buckley, Dement & Co., Chicago, told the Retail Advertisers' Association in an address on "Putting the Retailer on the Profit Side of the Ledger" during the recent convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs in Atlantic City, N. J.

Referring to the fact that the average life of a retail store is seven years, the speaker said that many misguided persons shout excessive overhead as the cause of numerous failures, when overhead cuts no figure if sales turnover is large enough.

More Sales Essential

"Instead of spending our time in finding out ways and means of reducing overhead, which in time means lower wages and less buying power," he said, "let's spend our time figuring out ways and means of selling more merchandise, getting a bigger turnover out of our stocks through the means of the higher wages.

"You never see a big salesman cutting down expenses. He is always thinking of how he can spend more to sell more and all big sales and big salesmen have as their background liberal expenditures in some form or other.

"When we begin to look around for ways and means of increasing sales or turnover what do we find? We find gross inefficiency—we find no analysis of the market—we find no budget of finance and purchases. We find no preconceived plan of action. We find no sales strategy. We find no advertising ability.

"With these fundamental principles all stores, all businesses can and will succeed, even though they may be in the most limited locations. In other words, there is little science in the retail business and too much guesswork and trust to luck. Next to poor salesmanship the greatest leak of profits in the retail store is the waste of time. This leak is more often caused by not having a plan and working it out.

Advertised Lines Best

"Advertising and sales events should be laid out weeks, and in many cases months, in advance and buying should be regulated on such a plan. This will enable goods to be ordered, displays arranged and the clerks posted, thus everything will be thoroughly co-ordinated.

"The salvation of the dealers, in many instances, is advertised lines. The retail merchant who tries to sell goods under his own private brand is years behind the times, while, on the other hand, the merchants who push goods which have behind them the power of advertising are the merchants who are on the profit side of the ledger these days.

"Most dealers do not spend enough money in advertising and have no regular advertising policy.

"Lay out with the dealer and the local daily, weekly or semi-weekly paper and with other papers in his trading radius a regular campaign of advertising.

"Direct mail work will make a lot of sales if there are enough real live prospects on the list."

MELODY SHOP ADDS NEW LINES

MEMPHIS, TENN., August 7.—The Melody Music Shop, 111 Madison street, Saul Bluestein, manager, has added Buescher saxophones and other small musical instruments to its stock of Brunswick and Sonora instruments and records. A booking agency for orchestra concerts in this city has been established in the Melody Shop. The agency is under the management of Joe Bennett, well-known local musician.

EARLY BANNER RELEASES OF HITS

The Banner record division of the Plaza Music Co. made an advance release of the new Leo Feist, Inc., number, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home." The sales department of the company is making a specialty of early releases of acknowledged hits. The initial orders for this new comedy song have been heavier than for any recent record release, which would indicate that the late Summer and early Fall sales of popular records are to show a substantial increase.

IMPORTANT "SONORA BELL" ISSUE

July-August Issue of Sonora House Organ Noteworthy for Practical Sales Value—Frank J. Coupe and L. C. Lincoln Contribute Interesting Articles—Many Valuable Sales Helps Listed Make This a Live Booklet

The July-August issue of the "Sonora Bell," the house organ issued monthly by the Sonora Phonograph Co., is one of the most interesting and important issues that have ever been prepared for the use of Sonora dealers. This number may be called a Sonora organization number, for it gives details regarding Sonora product, personnel and the sales organization as a whole that cannot fail to prove invaluable to Sonora retailers. The first page features a practical sales talk by Frank J. Coupe, vice-president and sales manager of the company, entitled "Why Sonora Can Be a Profit Maker for You."

On the succeeding pages there are shown illustrations of some of the various departments in the immense Sonora factory at Saginaw, Mich. This plant is considered one of the finest and best-equipped phonograph manufactories in the world and the illustrations give some idea of the completeness of the plant. There are also presented photographs showing the plant at St. Croix, Switzerland, where Sonora motors are manufactured, and on succeeding pages there are shown some of the distinctive mechanical features of Sonora product, such as the brass tone arm, wood tone arm, all-wood amplifier, etc. Two pages are devoted to a description of the Sonora motor, together with a phantom view of a complete instrument, which emphasizes the most important constructive features of this product. Under the heading of "Where Sonoras Are Sold in Quantities" there are listed some of the most prominent merchandising institutions that retail Sonora product. Some of these establishments are shown in two-page illustration form and there are also reproduced some of the advertisements used by these retail stores.

L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., contributes a helpful article, entitled "How Sonora Helps Its Dealers Sell the Line," and in this article Mr. Lincoln comments upon the mammoth Sonora electric sign on Broadway, the painted sign along the New York Central Railroad, which is credited with being the largest sign in the world, and mentions briefly some of the many sales helps issued by his department the past year. J. W. Boothe, general manager of the music department of Barker Bros., Los Angeles, Cal., tells an interesting story in an article entitled "How I Sell One Million Dollars' Worth of Sonoras Yearly," and on six or eight pages there are featured letters from prominent Sonora dealers throughout the country, referring to the splendid business they are closing with this line, and illustrations are used to reproduce some of the window displays and store interiors sponsored by the retailers.

A personal touch is given to this issue of the Sonora Bell by the use of photographs of the members of the sales and advertising staffs, together with brief biographies. Among those featured in this way are L. C. Lincoln, advertising manager; R. H. Meade, assistant advertising manager and editor of the Sonora Bell; F. V. Goodman, assistant manager, sales department; E. D. Coats, assistant sales manager; H. J. O'Connor, J. M. Ervin, J. E. Hornberger and J. A. Read, special representatives of sales department, and F. Roediger, mechanical supervisor.

Vacation Season on in Full Sway—Cheney Sales Staff Stages Dinner Meeting and Theatre Party—
 New Home for Gillis & Co.—Annual Machine Shortage in Sight—The Month's News

BOSTON, MASS., August 6.—July and early August, which have shown a fair degree of activity in New England, have seen and still see many of the staffs of the stores away on vacations, and this state of things will continue through the current month and up to Labor Day, which automatically brings the Summer to a close and sees the end of vacations. The stores are therefore depleted in their personnel, but that has not made much difference, in a way, for those still on the job are competent to handle the Summer business, which, as already stated, has been good; much better in some cases than it was last year. It is of interest that each Summer since the war there has been an improvement in conditions. This is by no means confined to the Summer months, as each of the twelve months is showing an improvement.

Dinner Party of the Cheney Sales Staff

In the latter part of July the Cheney Sales Corp.'s New England representation met at the Boston offices, 376 Boylston street, for a dinner and theatre party. Those present included G. Dunbar Shewell, president; Stephen A. Colahan, general sales manager for New England; John Elliot, of the Cheney department in the Shepard Co.'s store, Providence, R. I.; Ford Sperry, of the R. H. White Co., Boston; Louis Scott, of the F. C. Henderson Co., 156 Boylston street, Boston; S. J. Horgan, of Barnard, Sumner & Putnam, of Worcester; Frank A. Colahan, of Forbes & Wallace, Springfield; Alexander Baillargeon, of the Woonsocket Phonograph Co., of Woonsocket, R. I.; William Hallet, of Burrows & Sanborn, Lynn; Oscar Freed, of John Z. Kelley, Lynn; William Milton, of the A. M. Hume Music Co., Boston. Following a session at the Boylston street executive offices, where the future of the Cheney was intimately discussed and some of the new models were exhibited and commented on, the company adjourned to the Copley-Plaza, where they visited with President Shewell for a time, and later went to a Boylston street restaurant for dinner. At 8 o'clock the company found itself in the Tremont Theatre, where all the men enjoyed "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly," George Cohan's latest musical comedy.

Gillis & Co. Lease New Home

Walter Gillis, who for several years has been a Victor dealer in one of the piano stores of Boylston street, has taken a lease of the premises at 429 that same thoroughfare, where he has a beautiful place, under the name of Walter Gillis & Co., which promises to become a popular rendezvous for his many patrons. Mr. Gillis is carrying the Strand, Cheney and the Victor lines, and the warerooms are filled with the latest models of all these machines. The front of the store is attractively done in ebony and gold and both inside and out are singularly attractive. Mr. Gillis is a popular member of the New England Music Trade Association and has many friends in the talking machine business in this territory.

Shortage of Victor Models

The Eastern Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, is complaining of a shortage of several models, especially Model 80, for which there is a persistent demand because of its popularity. The first of the new art models, already mentioned in earlier letters, began to come through the latter part of July. General Manager Herbert Shoemaker, of the New England department, accompanied by E. P. Johnston, of the sales force, took a trip through Maine the middle of July, visiting such important centers as Portland, Bangor, Brunswick, Boothbay and other cities along the route.

New Sonora Model in Demand

Joe Burke, manager of the Sonora Co. of New England, has been making his first trip through Maine, combining business with pleasure. He was accompanied by Mrs. Burke, and the places that were visited included Portland, Bangor, Auburn, Augusta, Hallowell, Lewiston, Waterville and others. The new Barcarole model of Sonora has just arrived at the Boston headquarters and shipments of it are expected very shortly, enough for the present, at least, cellent system devised by Manager Burke—is being widely recognized by dealers, and the filled-in blanks enable the local headquarters to keep well posted pretty well in advance of what the trade will require month by month.

New Brunswick Accounts

The Brunswick business in New England has been forging ahead in commendable fashion, and it is stated at the local headquarters of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Brunswick distributors, that thus far this year there has been a 40 per cent increase over the same period last year. A new concern to take on the Brunswick line is the United Music Co., which will carry these instruments at its stores in Plymouth and Brockton. Corier's furniture store at Nashua, N. H., is another concern to sign up for Brunswick representation.

Pleased Over New Victor Release Plan

Your correspondent was in the Arch street office of M. Steinert & Sons a few days ago when Manager Kenneth Reed, of the Victor department, received the first official information regarding the new Victor plan of a weekly supplement of records beginning September 21, and there was much enthusiasm when it was discovered also that in addition to the weekly releases the Red Seal records were to be double-faced. This does not mean the elimination of the single-faced Red Seals, which will be continued for some time yet. Manager Reed, through this new plan of releases, sees a quick increase in the Victor record output. Speaking of the general wholesale business, he said that the Steinert output for the month of July showed more than 100 per cent increase over the distribution volume of July of 1922.

Inaugurates Hallet & Davis Drive

Lester G. Jones, who is in charge of the talking machine activities of the Hallet & Davis Co., is planning no vacation this Summer and is concentrating all his attention right on the work in hand. He says that several new accounts have lately been signed up which look very promising. Beginning right away he is entering upon an intensive sales campaign throughout New England that should bring big results.

N. B. Smith Starts Intensive Drive

Manager N. B. Smith, of the New England department of the General Phonograph Corp., started from Boston the latter days of July for some intensive work in the southern New England field, planning to make his headquarters and special destination at Hartford, Conn. He went first to Springfield, stopping at several places en route to Hartford, and his program called for a week or more in that territory.

Attend Cheney Dealers' Conclave

Stephen A. Colahan, New England representative of the Cheney, was in Philadelphia in July attending a dealers' convention. Those present were: A. C. Harper, president of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., who came East from Chicago; G. Dunbar Shewell, president of the Cheney Sales Corp.; Charles Wilkinson, the Philadelphia representative of the company; Sam Saunders, the New York manager of the company. The principal topic discussed was the Fall business, and it was the consensus of opinion that the Cheney is to be well represented in the East this Fall and the indications are good for some splendid sales.

Isham Jones' Concerts a Success

It is pleasant news to learn that the concerts given by Isham Jones' Orchestra around Massachusetts were so well managed by Kenneth T. Finney that record audiences were the rule everywhere. Mr. Finney attended all of them in person and in some places the halls were not large enough to accommodate the crowds of people desirous of hearing this famous organization. So successful were these musicians who play for the Brunswick that it is not unlikely that they may be heard in a wider New England field next Winter. As might be expected, the concerts were the means of kindling a new interest in the Isham Jones Orchestra's records and the demand made upon Kraft, Bates & Spencer severely taxed the stock on hand as dealers called for these recordings. This concern has found its new location at 80 Kingston street admirably adapted to keeping in close touch with the trade.

C. C. Harvey Co. Improving Quarters

Several of the departments of the C. C. Harvey Co., notably the floor where are located the executive offices, are being improved and rearranged in order to better facilitate business. Manager Francis T. White, of the talking machine department of this Boylston street concern, who has thus far had a very good Summer business, left home the latter part of July for his vacation, which he is spending with his family at Falmouth Heights, to which place he motored in his new Buick. Two particular trips which he had planned for while away were to Provincetown, at the tip of Cape Cod, and in the opposite direction to Newport, R. I.

Okeh Artists Score in Concert

"Handy's Famous Original Band," which plays for the Okeh and whose playing is recorded on the Okeh records, gave a concert in Symphony Hall on Sunday evening, August 5, and with the band appeared Sarah Martin, "sensational phonograph star and world's greatest 'blue' singer," as the bills put it. The management of this concert was largely in the hands of New England Manager Smith, of the General Phonograph Corp.

Combines Vacation With Business

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co., was able to combine business with pleasure on his recent motor trip through southern New England, and he visited dealers as he proceeded into New York, where he was in conference with the executive officers.

We Serve New England!

THOROUGHLY complete stocks of all Okeh and Odeon Records, modern methods of distribution and an invaluable knowledge of the needs of the New England market from all angles enable us to give our dealers a distinctive service that is dependably prompt and certain at all times.

Due to the unusual demand that now exists for Odeon Records and Okeh foreign language records, we are now carrying extra large stocks of records in Italian, Polish, German and other foreign languages.

We still continue our maintenance of a special list of all Irish records.

Fred C. Collins on Vacation

Fred C. Collins, who covers Vermont and Connecticut for the Columbia Co., traveling out of Boston, is spending a well-earned vacation with Mrs. Collins at Atlantic City. On his way thither Mr. Collins stopped at the Columbia executive offices in New York, where he visited General Record Sales Manager Benz, Field Sales Manager Porter, Advertising Manager Leverich, Vice-president Yerkes and General Sales Manager Hopkins. While in New York Mr. Collins also called upon some of the larger talking machine departments, picking up a number of new and practical ideas.

Salesman E. W. Hanna, who travels the Boston territory for the Columbia Co., will soon start on his vacation and while he is away his territory will be taken care of by Mrs. A. W. Graves, of the Columbia record sales promotion department. Mrs. Graves is widely known among Columbia dealers.

Picnic of General Phono. Forces

The picnic held on the Fourth of July by the New England department of the General Phonograph Corp. was a great success and reflected much credit on Messrs. Smith, Connolly and Donovan, who were the committee of arrangements. Mention of the picnic was made in the July issue, but it was not stated that at Lake Boone, where it was held, there was a spirited baseball game between the Okeh boys and a team from Ace High Cottage, in which the former won three to one. Smith was the pitcher and Connolly was the catcher for the Okeh boys and there was some real sport all around before the day was over.

Columbia Educator Teaching in School

Mrs. Grace M. Drysdale, formerly associated with the Columbia educational department in the New England territory, and now head of the Drysdale School Service in Harvard square, Cambridge, is one of the teachers at the Summer school at Castine, Me. Music supervisors and teachers are finding the Drysdale School Service of invaluable assistance to them.

Jack Wittstein, of Wittstein's Music Shop,

Kenneth E. Reed Discusses Conditions

In a chat with The World, Kenneth E. Reed, of M. Steinert & Sons, Victor wholesaler, stated that business in Boston and New England was generally good and, in fact, considerably better than last year. May, June and July all show a substantial increase over the same months of 1922, including both Victrolas and Victor records. Every indication points to an exceptionally fine business for the Steinert wholesale Victor department during the coming Fall and Winter. Mr. Reed commented upon the fact that industrial conditions are somewhat unsettled in several cities, such as the shoe towns, which are comparatively quiet, and the textile cities, which are quiet at the present time, owing to the closing of some of the mills. However, on the whole, conditions are generally satisfactory and the outlook is bright.

"There is every indication of a greater supply of Victor merchandise this year than in any previous year," said Mr. Reed, "and still we can see a shortage of instruments, particularly of one or two of the most popular-priced styles. It is, therefore, advisable for every Victor retailer to start laying in a reserve supply of instruments now while he can secure them, and the retailer who uses a little foresight will undoubtedly do a far larger volume of business this year than in any previous year. This is what we expect to do ourselves as wholesalers and feel sure that the great majority of other Victor wholesalers and retailers will do the same. In fact, 1923 should prove a banner year for all merchandisers of Victor products."

New Strand Models Admired

Seven new types of Strand instruments have arrived at the quarters of the A. C. Erisman

Co., in this city, and they are being enthusiastically taken by dealers throughout New England. In fact, the demand has been so great that Mr. Erisman's place has been a perfect hive of industry all Summer and not till this month have the employes been able to consider vacations. These new types of instruments include the Hepplewhite, Queen Anne, Louis XV and Italian Renaissance as especially beautiful ones. Mr. Erisman is planning a special opening during the first week in September when these models will be exhibited under the most favorable conditions. It is of interest that Mr. Erisman delivered more than 3,000 portable instruments, these including the Camp-fone and Outing, during June and July.

New Strand Representatives

Speaking of the Strand, Manager Erisman has lately signed up for still further representation in New England, the latest ones being William H. Avery, of Concord, N. H., who has lately opened up new stores in Laconia and Newport, N. H.; Barney's Music Store at Newport, R. I.; James Bloomberg, in Chelsea; Eastern Furniture Co., at Bangor, Me.; the Edwards Furniture Co., at Fitchburgh, Mass.; the Hirschen Furniture Co., at Springfield, Mass.; Prime Furniture Co., in Boston; George H. Richmond, in Roxbury, Mass., and the Wallace Co., at Pittsfield, Mass.

Popularity of Vocalion Records

Vocalion records in the New England territory are practically selling themselves, says Arthur C. Erisman, and no new dealers have been taken on for many months. The Vocalion was early in the field with the two numbers from George Cohan's latest musical comedy, "The Rise of Rosie O'Reilly," and these cannot be secured fast enough to supply the demand. Business Vocalionwise is accordingly very big.

Trade Interest Centers on Fall and Holiday Prospects—Predict Machine Shortage—Sales Maintain Excellent Volume—The News

MILWAUKEE, WIS., August 9.—Interest of talking machine men at present is centered largely on Fall and holiday business and it is significant that the mental attitude as the big season approaches is very favorable, due to the good business which has come to dealers all through the year thus far. The past month was a relatively excellent one for Summer volume and the first week of August has witnessed a further demand for instruments and records. It is to be noted particularly that the console style is steadily becoming the biggest factor and, while the standard upright style is still selling well, dealers and public lean toward the console.

Accumulation of stocks for Fall and holiday business is now going on and as early as this time dealers are of the belief that there is not going to be a surplus of merchandise available. Many stores are placing orders for stocks up to the limit of their financial resources, being confident that even then they may have to requisition emergency stocks in early Winter.

Predicts Victor Shortage

"We look for a big Fall business and our only worry now is to get enough instruments to fill our orders," said Harry Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber for Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. The Victor Co. is rushed, but the way production is being absorbed throughout the United States makes it look as if there is going to be a considerable shortage of merchandise later on.

"One of the things that is striking is the manner in which the rural districts in Wisconsin are buying Victor instruments. We have been hearing and reading—mostly the latter—about the dire results of 'dollar wheat,' but so far as Wisconsin is concerned, this is not a pressing problem. We all realize, of course, that the prosperity of wheat farmers is something to be much desired, yet I cannot help thinking that Wisconsin, with her great dairy industry, is out of the pale of the direct effect of the low price of wheat. This is the foremost dairying State in the Union and the products are bringing fine prices, which gives our farmers a strong buying power and enables them to gratify their desire for music as expressed in the talking machine.

"A year ago the rural districts of Wisconsin were in rather sore straits, but business in dairying has picked up wonderfully well and to-day there is little left to be desired. Southern Wisconsin is especially active in respect to our line of business. In the northern sections, where iron mining is a big factor, conditions likewise are more favorable. In Upper Michigan, where copper mining is the main pursuit, business is not quite so good, but it is bound to improve."

Mr. Goldsmith commented upon the good demand for the console types of the Victrola and said that Nos. 400, 405 and 410 are selling in large volume. Victor record trade, which was rather slow during the early Spring months, has taken a strong upward bound.

Yahr & Lange Co. Busy

Fred E. Yahr, president of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co. and supervisor of its large musical instrument and merchandise department, featuring the Sonora, is an enthusiast over present and prospective business. Mr. Yahr said that Summer sales to dealers in the Wisconsin and northern Michigan territory have been far and away above anything ever experienced in a past July, and advance orders on the books are very gratifying as well. Yahr & Lange are one of the biggest outlets of the Sonora factory and the condition of its trade is usually regarded as a hall-mark of national trade.

Expect Record Brunswick Business

P. H. McCulloch, manager of the talking machine department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., reports a very healthy state of trade.

"Our dealers are making arrangements for large shipments of Brunswicks in anticipation of a big Fall trade," said Mr. McCulloch. "I feel that we will have the best Fall and holiday business in our history if the supply can be kept adequate. Dealers are asking for immediate shipments of their Fall orders and we are behind on deliveries right now."

A big demand for portable styles of the Brunswick was experienced this Summer and every one of these instruments that it was possible to get from the factory and from other distributors was required to fill orders.

Adolph Orth a Benedict

Adolph Orth, son of Fred William Orth, vice-president of Chas. J. Orth, Inc., was married recently to Miss Mildred Fox, who has been in charge of the talking machine record department at Orth's for several years. Mr. and Mrs.

Orth spent their honeymoon in the famous northern Wisconsin lake and forest region.

Brunswick Shop, Inc., Chartered

The Brunswick Shop, Inc., is the name of a new corporation organized with $15,000 capital at Sheboygan, Wis., by Herman G. Bendler, Paul F. Schmidt and G. W. Buchen. It succeeds to an established partnership business at 807 North Eighth street, which is now doubling its floor space and installing four new booths. The Edison and Brunswick lines will be handled.

Victor Dealer Gets Free Publicity

The firm of Chas. H. Schefft & Son, 849 Third street, was the subject of an interesting illustrated article in a local daily newspaper, which stressed the fact that this is one of the few music concerns in Wisconsin which devotes its entire attention to the sale of Victrolas and Victor records exclusively. No other lines of instruments or goods are stocked. The store was established less than fourteen years ago and is one of the largest Victor dealers in the Milwaukee territory.

Meeting Success With Okeh

The Lyric Music Co. is meeting gratifying success in marketing the Okeh record, which is distributed in this territory by the Yahr & Lange Drug Co. The Okeh has gained in popularity to such a degree that it is now as well known as the other principal lines and its sale is running into a very large volume each month.

News Gleanings

The new Columbia styles are selling well in Milwaukee and the call for Columbia records continues to increase to the point where new selling marks are established each month.

Edison business is reported active, both at wholesale and retail, and the leading dealers in Milwaukee look forward to the best holiday trade in their experience.

The Polzin Music Co., well-known west side Aeolian-Vocalion dealer, will move shortly to its new building at 4409 North avenue, which is designed as a model music shop.

J. W. White, manager of the talking machine department at Gimbel Bros., Milwaukee, is back from his vacation.

The Hayden-Gummer Music Co., Brunswick dealer, at Oshkosh, Wis., is now located in its new quarters at 20-22 Waugoo street. The floor space has been increased 100 per cent.

The Kunzelmann-Esser Co., a large furniture and talking machine concern of the South side in Milwaukee, will invest $100,000 in remodeling its big store and adding a three-story wing.

Edward Seidel, of Seidel Bros., Brunswick dealers, 1115 Third street, Milwaukee, is away for a six weeks' vacation trip which is taking him far into Canada.

THE ORO-TONE AUTOMATIC No. 16 TONE ARM AND REPRODUCER

Plays All Records, Giving Perfect Reproduction
No Adjustments to Make—No Weights to Shift

Special Advantages

Here is a tone arm and reproducer that is the "last word" in solving the problem of weight adjustment — AUTOMATICALLY. By simply turning the reproducer to play either lateral or vertical cut records, the weight is automatically adjusted, the needle is centered and the correct angle is secured for playing the record.

A simple turn of the hand and the Oro-Tone No. 16 will play any record you wish. Besides, because of the correct weight adjustment and the perfect centering feature, Edison records can be played with the ordinary fibre needles.

FOR LATERAL CUT RECORDS

Note the perfect needle center (shown by dotted lines). This reproducer rests on the record with the same weight and angle as the regular Victor Reproducer; a feature never before accomplished AUTOMATICALLY.

OUR GUARANTEE

We guarantee every tone arm and reproducer to be free from all mechanical defects, perfect in operation and reproduction. Any item proving defective or unsatisfactory will be replaced without charge.

FOR VERTICAL CUT RECORDS

When you turn the Reproducer to play Edison records you AUTOMATICALLY secure the correct Edison weight, position of reproducer and perfect needle center (shown by dotted lines). The pressure on the record and the position of the reproducer are guaranteed to be the same as the regular Edison reproducer—a feature never before accomplished AUTOMATICALLY.

Reproducer Thrown Back in Edison Position
The above illustration shows the Reproducer thrown back in the Edison position. Note the fibre needle. All reproducers are fitted with clear mica, or our special indestructible Oro-Tone diaphragm.

Preferred by Public Under Strict Tests

We invite you to make this test. Play our No. 16 Automatic Tone Arm and Reproducer and any other tone arms and reproducers before a group of your office and factory employees as before any public group. Without knowing which tone arm and reproducer is being used, have them choose which one they prefer. This is the method by which this No. 16 has been developed. You will find the tone superior—deep, rich, mellow—and that is what makes for increased sales.

Send for Sample on Approval

You do not have to take our word for a single assertion made on this page. We want you to find out for yourself, and, by a direct comparison with any other tone arms and reproducers, find that the Oro-Tone No. 16 Tone Arm and Reproducer is the "last word" in the development of the AUTOMATIC adjustment features.

with each record, has been designed by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., for the use of Edison dealers. The object of the fixture is to promote the sales of records by providing a suitable interior display of streamers. The fixture has a capacity of eight flash streamers or sixteen black and white streamers, and a dealer needs at least two stands, so that both types of streamers can be used adequately. Thumb tacks are used to affix the streamers to the stands. The purpose of the book design is to suggest the Edison record catalog.

PLANNING FALL DRIVE ON "PAL"

The sales organization of the Plaza Music Co. is developing extensive plans for a Fall campaign on its "Pal" portable talking machine. This is the result of the success which attended the first Fall offering a year ago. A complete series of new advertising helps is being prepared by the company and this will include display signs, dealer and consumer circulars, featuring the "Pal" portable in its all-year-around uses.

Among the new distributors of the "Pal" portable is the Munson-Rayner Corp., of Los Angeles and San Francisco, which states that it finds an unusually heavy demand for this machine throughout the States of California, Washington and Oregon.

IRREGULAR BUYING MARKS CLOSE OF SUMMER SEASON HERE AND IN SURROUNDING TERRITORY

Sales Greater Than in Same Period Last Year, Sales Particularly Brisk—Indications Point Despite Certain Unfavorable Conditions—Record to Record Fall Trade—News of the Month

PHILADELPHIA, PA., August 6.—The business among the retailers of talking machines and of records for the past month almost was as diversified as the weather and the tendency was toward fair conditions for the new month. July never is a period of bustling activity save for the limited amount given by intending vacationists. This year the number of the wealthy who are remaining in their town houses is believed to be considerably larger than ordinarily. That fact tended to restrict sales of machines, but particularly of records for the seashore and mountain homes of the elect. But despite this fact there was a gain of considerable proportion attained this year in comparison with last year. The stay-at-homes were not large buyers of machines, but they were of records. Active machine buying was done by the industrial classes and by the anthracite mine workers throughout the State. Anticipating strike possibilities, they apparently have made some provision financially for it and then decided to invest at least a part in music for entertainment.

Jobbers Beat Last Year's Sales

Many of the wholesalers took account of stock as of the end of July and their figures showed that business had been decidedly ahead of July of last year, thus confirming by the exactness of statistics the opinion of competitors whose fiscal year does not end at this time. The number of inquiries received was pronouncedly in excess of those of a year ago and the trade is confident that these presage Fall activity. The first of the orders for September and afterward deliveries are coming in, but while there are many of these, all are still small.

Interest in New Victor Red Seals

The outstanding development of interest among the Victor distributors was receipt of the announcement on August 1 by the Victor Co. that beginning September 21 it would distribute double-face Red Seal records. The big Victor plant in Camden closed down at the beginning of the week to remain so until August 13 that all its employes might enjoy a two weeks' vacation with pay. Advantage is being taken of the close-down to give the plant a thorough mechanical overhauling.

Records by Colored Artists Popular

Columbia dealers report large sales among the colored population of the records made by Bessie Smith, colored artist. They have had a steady run for the whole month past. Not only are they popular in the city, but also throughout the State. The Victor records are by colored artists, Edna Smith, Lizzie Mile, Lena Wilson, Rosa Henderson, many of them well known to Philadelphians because of their association with the "Shuffle Along" show, which had a long run in this city last season.

New Weymann Victor Dealer Publicity

H. A. Weymann & Son, Inc., Victor distributors of this city, are providing their dealers with a new vehicle for Victor publicity in the form of envelope-stuffers. These pieces of literature, three in number, deal with the subject of "Artists and the Fidelity of the Reproduction of These Artists on Victor Records and the Victrola," "Mirrored Tone" and "The Selection of a Victrola." An effective tie-up with these messages and the warerooms of the dealer is provided through an attractive frame with button back, also furnished by Weymann's, and which is planned to accommodate an enlargement of the literature which has been sent through the mail. This is suitable either for the demonstration room or show window.

General Radio Corp. Planning Fall Drive

Walter L. Eckhardt, president of the General Radio Corp., reports that the dealers it serves are very optimistic over the outlook for Fall. "In fact," stated Mr. Eckhardt, "our dealers are not only looking forward to Fall business, but they are doing a fine business at the present time. We will shortly inaugurate our Fall campaign not only in the present lines, but expect to present to the trade many new articles which we are developing and which give every promise of being exceptionally good profit builders."

J. R. Wilson Co. Guest of W. L. Marshall

A motor boat outing to Tuckerton was enjoyed by the employes of the J. R. Wilson Co., well-known local Victor dealer, which operates four stores, with headquarters at 929 North Broad street, on a recent Sunday, when they were the guests of W. L. Marshall, of the advertising department of the Victor Co. In addition to the boat trip fishing was indulged in with considerable success.

Victor Executives on Vacation

Ernest John, advertising manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., is spending his vacation at Chester Lake, Pa., where he is visiting his elder son, who is a student in the Summer school and art colony there. Frank K. Dolbeer, sales manager of the Victor Co., and his family are spending their vacation in the Adirondacks. Edward J. Dingley, assistant sales manager, will leave on his vacation following the return of Mr. Dolbeer. He is planning a trip through New England with his family.

Believes in Publicity and Benefits Thereby

I. Grabuski, president, and Samuel Fingrut, secretary and general manager of Everybody's Talking Machine Co., Inc., have both returned from their vacations greatly benefited and have already enthusiastically taken up plans for a Fall campaign. Business is reported to have continued good straight through the Summer months and every indication points toward a good Fall season. Everybody's Talking Machine Co., Inc., is a strong believer in publicity and a campaign covering the Fall season will present the entire line in a forceful manner to the trade.

Guarantee Co. Enlarges Line

The Guarantee Talking Machine Supply Co. is now placing on the market a variety of talking machine supplies, the quality of which it is approving through placing upon these products the label of the company, which is the word "Guarantee" within a diamond. The latest product to bear this label is graphite produced in various-sized cans. Messrs. Keen and Posner, who compose this firm, report that the volume of business being received is growing steadily and both look for big business during the Fall season.

T. W. Barnhill Enjoyed Maine

T. W. Barnhill, president of the Penn Phonograph Co., Victor distributor, of this city, returned to his desk on Monday, July 30, after several weeks spent in the invigorating climate of Maine. Mr. Barnhill stayed at the Troutdale Cabins, situated on the shore of the lake of the town of that name. Mr. Barnhill entered enthusiastically into all the recreation afforded by the camp and returned to his desk well equipped for the arduous duties which will, doubtlessly, be attendant upon the big Fall business expected.

Remodeling New Home

Extensive improvements designed to develop attractive service and demonstration rooms and offices and to expedite shipments necessitated by doubled business are being completed by the Emerson Phonograph & Record Co., recently removed from 810 Arch street to the 8,000 square feet of space on the second floor of 420 Market street, with Harry Fox in charge. Improvements consist in the equipment in mahogany of display booths and executive offices

General Radio Corp. in New Quarters

New quarters, double the size of the old, were occupied during the month at 128 North Tenth street by the General Radio Corp., distributor of Okeh and Odeon records and Strand phonographs. The new quarters have a large frontage and are most attractively appointed. There is provided on the main floor of the building a display room whereon a large assortment of the talking machines and the record stock will be carried. The General Radio Corp. is conducted by its organizer, Walter Eckhart, widely known in the trade.

Receive New Columbia Consoles

There are now on display by the Columbia Graphophone Co. all models of the new consoles and by the middle of September a stock of these fifteen models, retailing at from $50 to $225, will be available. There was enjoyed during the month a visit from O. F. Benjamin, of New York, general manager of record sales. E. D. Woodward, of the sales force covering Scranton and Wilkesbarre, is spending his vacation as a lieutenant in the National Guard in Camp Meade. J. J. Doherty, head of the credit division, is spending his vacation in Atlantic City. Miss Rose Klein, head of stock department, is vacationing at the seashore.

Solotone Co. Elects Officers

A new executive personnel was elected during the month by the Solotone Phonograph Co., 1715 Walnut street, these being: President, Jerome Macdonald; vice-president, Vergne Sweet; secretary, S. M. Campbell; treasurer, L. Bertrand Sweet.

Mrs. Morell Wagner, wife of Morell Wagner, of the firm of Luedeke & Wagner, 5108 Baltimore avenue, distributors of Edison and Brunswick records and machines, is seriously ill at her home.

Enlarge Stock and Department

Mrs. Theresa Quimby, of the talking machine department of the Estey Piano Co., is spending a month's vacation in Detroit, accompanied by her son Gerald, head of the radio department. Before returning to Philadelphia they will make a tour of the Great Lakes. Upon the return of the heads of these departments there will be stocked in the enlarged quarters on the second floor of the building a greatly increased stock of Sonora, Cheney and Victor machines. The second floor recently was added to the department for the display of machines, while the records will be confined to the lower floor rear.

Sell Many Discontinued Columbia Models

When the inventory of the talking machine department of Gimbel Bros. was completed, August 1, by Manager G. F. Wurtele, he was able to report to R. S. McCarthy, manager of the music department, a virtual clean-up of the proportionate share of the 53,000 Columbias recently purchased by Gimbel Bros., New York and Philadelphia, in conjunction with other branches and buyers.

Who Won the Game?

Who won the game—that's the mystery of the scoring in the golf match held on the course of the Philadelphia Golf Club during the month between the phonograph department of Wanamaker's and the players of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 1002 Arch street. From unofficial sources it has been disclosed that a decided victory was scored by one of the departments, but owing to the secrecy maintained by both companies it remains a mystery. We would like to know what's the idea?

To Enlarge Sales Organization

Announcement has been made by the Gennett record division of the Witlin Musical Instrument Co., distributor of Gennett records, of the acquisition of the Howard Lanin Arcadia Orchestra, which is broadcasting through Lit Bros. WDAR radio station. The Lanin Orchestra made this month the first of a series of records of popular numbers. The Witlin Co. is planning to place during August additional salesmen and special record salesmen in the eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland territories. Ben Witlin, head of the firm, has just returned from a trip to Atlantic City with his family.

How Starr & Moss Co. Advertised Its New Store informed the Starr & Moss Co. that its new phonograph store at 3639 Germantown avenue, conducted in conjunction with its jewelry store at 3635-3637 Germantown avenue, stands in the forefront in artistic attractiveness and in facility for doing business. The store has the new idea windows, four feet wide, on the street front, but converging to the doorway in their ten feet of depth, so that spectators may view the display out of the sun's glare and free from traffic annoyance and be led by the eye into the store itself, a full view of which is possible through the rear of the window. The store is finished in hardwood with solid oak wainscoting, walls above and ceiling being in blue and cream effect. On the store level there are five booths, all elegantly appointed and with capacity for the display of thirty machines, the lines carried being the Edison, Sonora and Brunswick. The basement has capacity for 150 machines and for a large stock of records and a repair shop. The three stores have a frontage on Germantown avenue of sixty feet and a depth of seventy-five feet. The proprietors are Christian Starr, Harry T. Moss and Harry S. Sommers, the latter giving his entire attention to the phonograph business founded eight years ago.

Relinquish Vacations for Work

At the weekly sales meeting of the field staff of the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, last week, the members voted unanimously to voluntarily relinquish their vacations this Summer and to continue their missionary work throughout the territory. This action was the result of a suggestion made by W. C. Stiver, a member of the staff, that their sales quota could be better reached by consistent and continuous effort and that a fitting celebration upon having reaching their goal would be preferable to a vacation at this time.

New Radio Departments Opened

A radio department has been opened by the Star & Moss Co. The firm will carry a complete line of radio sets and attachments with a repair department in its talking machine store adjoining its jewelry establishment. Both the stores are most attractive in construction and fixtures and considered among the finest in the Germantown avenue section.

Complete sets of the Crosley and Kennedy radio equipment and accessories are now being carried in the newly opened radio department of the United Music Stores Corp., 619 Cherry street. The new department is under the management of Oscar Kern.

Substantial Reasons for Optimism

"It may seem odd to say repeatedly that we are optimistic, but we cannot help it," remarked A. W. Rhinow, speaking for the Girard Phonograph Co., Edison distributor. "This is especially true right now. Despite the fact that many people are away on vacations and are spending money for outdoor pleasures, our business has taken a decided upward turn even earlier than we had expected.

"To our minds this condition implies an extraordinarily healthy Fall business. Because we are jobbers of Edison phonographs only and sell only to the dealer, when we do business it means that the dealer likewise is doing business. There is good reason, therefore, for us to be optimistic all along the line.

"Our field staff has already signed up quite a number of dealers for Fall tone-tests and it is likely that all of the larger towns and quite a few of the smaller towns will have at least, one. Last year we thought that we had reason to be proud of having two different tone-test groups on the road at the same time. This year we hope to have three.

"Within the next week or two Mr. Edison will make an announcement to our dealers direct from Orange concerning a new feature in the distribution of Edison re-creations. While we do not wish to anticipate his announcement by making the plan known as yet, we are gratified that Mr. Edison has chosen our dealers with whom to take this forward step and we look forward to an ultimate increase in re-creation business from this source."

To Increase Stock of Sonoras

Manager E. S. White, of the Philadelphia headquarters of the Sonora Phonograph Co., announces that orders for the Fall trade have been coming in plentifully from Maryland, District of Columbia, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Featuring the MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES of the TALKING MACHINE

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the twenty-ninth of a series of articles by William Braid White devoted to the various interesting opportunities which prevail in the domain of education for the retailer of talking machines. The subject is one of great interest and we commend these articles to the consideration of all who are devoting attention to the featuring and developing of the musical possibilities of the talking machine.]

REALIGNING TO NEW CONDITIONS

Last month I argued for a system of cataloging and classifying records which should relate them to their origins, rather than to the personality of the recording artist. It was, of course, not intended to suggest in the course of this argument that the personality of a great singer or instrumentalist is not of the utmost value to the sale of all high-class records, whether or not directly originated by him or her. That is to say, the fact that Caruso sang, that Heifetz plays the violin and Casals the 'cello, that Rosa Raisa sings, and so on, in itself helps the sale of all high-class records by all high-class artists. It is, of course, primarily to the interest of every record manufacturer to secure as many great artistic names as possible; but at the same time it is not good business to deny that this competitive game has its grave disadvantages.

Name or Music?

There are only just so many very great names in the world of music. Singers, who are in no sense musicians, are the least dependable and the most ephemeral of all the well-advertised figures in this world. They come and they go. The tenor or the soprano who was greatly acclaimed last year may have so badly fallen off during the following season that the public is no longer interested, but instead, under the direction of the music critics, is acclaiming another star. For this reason, out of the many voices recorded only the very few immortal ones are likely to be in great demand for more than a season or two.

Instrumentalists are in better positions. For one thing, they are trained musicians, in the sense that they must have something more than a mere natural gift. They must possess some intellectual power; whereas a singer may be a throat and no more. The instrumentalists, moreover, are more lost in their art than are the singers, and a fine instrumental record is likely to hold its place year after year despite competition, where a singer would soon be displaced by the shifting of the public thought in a new direction at the bidding of the tireless publicity man.

From these considerations there emerge, naturally, two important points. On the one hand, it is plain that the vocal records, despite their vast popularity, have not the same individual permanency that pertains to instrumental records of equal caliber; while, on the other hand, it seems equally clear that the argument for relating records (especially those which come as extracts from operas) to their origins is much strengthened.

Relate Singer to Opera

In other words, it seems the part of wisdom to relate the product of the singers henceforth to the operas of which the arias are parts. Most of the popular high-class vocal records come from Italian opera, and because so much of Italian opera is uninteresting little attempt is made to record any parts of them save these favorite arias. On the other hand, there are certain Italian operas which are universally liked, and for information about which there is always a good public demand. "Aida," "Trovatore," "Traviata," "Otello," "Barber of Seville," "Pagliacci," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "La Boheme" and "Madama Butterfly" are examples of operas which could be sold in their entirety with good success, because thousands have heard parts of them and more thousands have heard them all. What with radio now coming to broadcast the operas this Winter, it is plain that the opportunity of the record people is at hand to take advantage of the broadening of interest in operatic music sure to result, by not only classifying and relating to their origins all the vocal operatic records already in existence, but also by rounding out the collections of records relating to each of the favorite operas which will be performed again and again this Winter, thus putting dealers in a position to make capital of the competition of radio.

In a word, if the people can occasionally hear through radio just enough opera to stimulate their interest, there will be a great opportunity to capitalize this interest for the benefit of the talking machine. The radio gives what the broadcasters choose to have it give; but the record and the talking machine preserve permanently. Here is something to think about.

How to Help Dealer Tie-up

But to enable the dealer to tie up his merchandising with all these considerations it is necessary that the manufacturer should help by reclassifying his records and by beginning to advertise them in their proper and true relations. I have already discussed what I mean by this in the article of July, to which reference may be made. In precisely the same way, and for the same reasons, instrumental records of pieces which belong in larger works, such as concertos, symphonies and sonatas, ought to be so classified and so advertised consistently. In this connection, however, it should be said that more progress has been made with such a wise classification in the instrumental than in the vocal division. Even so, it is silly to catalog the slow movement from the Tschaikowsky string quartet as "Adagio Cantabile, Tschaikowsky." It should rather be "Slow movement, from Quartet, Op. 11, Tschaikowsky, played by the Elman Quartet." I can testify that, having reclassified all my own records, both instrumental and vocal, by this system in a card index I find the convenience very great and the simplicity of arrangement still greater.

Permanent and Always Available

But the argument is even stronger from the commercial point of view. At the present time there are talking machine dealers feeling, or at least allowing it to be supposed that they feel, a good deal of uneasiness as to the future of the business in which they are engaged. They believe, or profess to believe, that radio threatens their prosperity. Well, if they believe this they are wrong. But it will be of great use to such weak minds (and to the strong ones as well) to change the general view about the position of the talking machine record. This record must henceforth be regarded, advertised and sold as the permanent and always available preserver of the floods of music which move across the consciousness of the people daily and nightly from concert room, opera house, theatre and dance hall. "All that you can hear is more than you wish to preserve; but what you wish to preserve only the talking machine can preserve for you." That is the contemporary argument for the "talker."

Is my argument clear? If I am right, it is for us all to recognize the facts which confront us and to take steps to meet them in a masterful fashion. To maintain itself against the shifting currents of public favor the talking machine has to emphasize its irresistible strengths. It is the perfect preserver and the ever-available fountain of all music. It never stops, never goes to sleep, never asks wages. Its records, then, which are its blood and bone, must henceforth be sold as what they are. They must be adequately classified and adequately merchandised. The merchant and the manufacturer alike in their advertising propaganda must be able to show that they can give the people all that radio can give them, and more. They must show that everyone can have what I, as one individual, am fortunate in having, whole symphonies and concertos, whole operas. It is only necessary to let the music-loving world know what we have for them. At present they do not know, and many a fine collection of record music, existing at present only in its would-be owner's imagination, is waiting to be translated into fact by the intelligent service work of intelligent merchants and manufacturers.

FELT

SATISFACTION

PERMANENT patronage is invariably the result of satisfaction.

Leading manufacturers of talking machines continue to favor us with their orders for turntable felt, year after year, for one reason only—satisfaction.

Other manufacturers may be interested in knowing about this source of felt supply. An inquiry will receive careful attention.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., August 7.—John Duncan, Brunswick dealer in this city, recently closed an interesting sale of a Brunswick phonograph to the members of a graduating class of a local school. With his usual progressiveness Mr. Duncan learned some time ago that the members of this class had some money to spend with which they wanted to buy a fitting present for the school. He immediately interviewed the principal of the school and was invited to demonstrate the Brunswick phonograph to the entire class, numbering over 200. After the demonstration Mr. Duncan withdrew while the class held a vote and a few minutes later he was delighted to learn that it had been unanimously decided to purchase the Brunswick phonograph, together with a good-sized library of Brunswick records.

NEW BRILLIANTONE ORDER BLANK

Brilliantone Steel Needle Business So Far This Year Passes Last Year's Total

The Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York City, has just had printed a new order blank covering the entire Brilliantone line. This new blank, in addition to being efficiently arranged to a marked degree, is attractive in its arrangement as well, and in conjunction with the dotted line in each case are shown illustrations of the packages in paper envelopes, tins, imprinted tins and the combination record cleaner and needle container.

Mr. Bedrick has for twenty years been one of the big factors in the retail distribution of talking machines and records and his many friends will be glad to learn that he has returned to this city.

WARNER'S SEVEN ACES WITH OKEH

One of the recent additions to the fast-growing list of Okeh artists is an orchestra from Atlanta, Ga., known as "Warner's Seven Aces." This organization is very well known throughout the South, having appeared recently at two prominent theatres in Atlanta and, in addition, it has for several months been broadcasting from Station WGM, controlled by the Atlanta Constitution. The orchestra is known to radio fans as the Constitution Orchestra. Byron Warner, pianist and director of Warner's Seven Aces, is popular throughout the South as one of the leading exponents of modern dance music.

IN PITTSBURGH

Sales Gain in Satisfactory Manner—Warn of Machine Shortage—Passing of David S. Hartley—Dealers Preparing for Fall Trade

PITTSBURGH, PA., August 9.—Volume of talking machine business handled in July showed a marked increase over the same month a year ago. Jobbers and retail dealers alike are agreed that from now on there is bound to be an upward trend in the talking machine business that will reflect in a marked degree the general prosperity that prevails in the Pittsburgh district. Busy mills, factories and mines are factors that cannot be disregarded in the business calculations of the trade.

While there are a number of persons away on their Summer outings and vacations there are enterprising dealers in talking machines and records who are not allowing the usual "Summer lull" to interfere with their business plans. The mails are being utilized to reach patrons who are at the seaside, at the lake shore or at the mountain resort.

Warns of Victor Machine Shortage

A note of warning concerning a shortage of Victor merchandise has been sounded by Thomas T. Evans, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co. He said: "As I have intimated several times recently relative to a shortage of certain lines of the Victor talking machines, the situation to-day emphasizes the correctness of predictions. A year ago at this time we had ample stocks of Victor merchandise in our warehouse and were in a position to care for the requirements of our clients in a satisfactory manner. To-day the situation is reversed and we are, or rather will be, short of Victor talking machines. This is not an unusual situation, but it is a condition brought about by the tremendous demand for the Victor line. Dealers who heeded warnings about a possible shortage and placed orders for their requirements ahead will be in a very pleasant position when the Fall trade opens up in real earnest. As I view it the Fall trade in Victor products, both in talking machines and records, will be unprecedented."

C. C. Mellor Co. Busy

H. H. Fleer, manager of the retail Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., before leaving for Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., to spend the month of August on his annual vacation, stated that business in the Victor department for the month of July had been uniformly brisk.

Attractive G. R. C. Quarters

The new quarters of the General Radio Corp. in the large office building at 1005 Liberty avenue, where Manager Frank Dorian is in charge of two large floors, have been attractively fitted up. The seventh floor of the building is utilized for the private office of Mr. Dorian and the general business offices, with space set aside for the office and sales forces. In the rear is a display section, where the line of talking machines and records handled in the Pittsburgh offices are on exhibition. A general line of the "Geraco" products is also shown. The eighth floor is used for stockroom purposes. In speaking of business conditions, Mr. Dorian said: "It is very gratifying for me to state that our business has gone forward. At this season of the year when everyone naturally talks of Summer dullness and off seasons we cannot find any excuse for such statements. Our June business was the best for any month since we located in Pittsburgh, while July has also shown a very satisfactory volume of business handled. A feature that is rather pleasing is the manner in which the retail dealers are preparing for their Fall trade in stocking up in a sane manner. It is my candid opinion that we are on the eve of a very brisk era of business and general prosperity."

The Strand phonograph, as well as three styles of portables and Okeh records, are distributed by the Pittsburgh office.

Advertising Brings Business

Thomas A. Coyne, new manager of the talking machine department of the Kaufmann & Baer Co., stated that business has been showing a better tone for the past few weeks. He said that record sales have been satisfactory, due to judicious advertising methods. In his department the Victor, the Strand and the Nightingale instruments are handled, as well as Victor and Vocalion records.

Preparing for Big Fall Trade

A. A. Buehn, treasurer of the Buehn Phonograph Co., stated that the outlook for Fall business is very satisfactory and that the company is taking time by the forelock in preparing to meet the demand of increased business. Harry M. Swartz, manager, spent his vacation at the seashore.

New Edison Dealers

New Edison retail dealers appointed by the Buehn Phonograph Co. are D. W. Cummings, of Cadiz, O.; R. E. Caplan, of McKeesport, Pa., who took over the Edison dealership of the Keefer Phonograph Co.; H. W. Piper, of Saltsburg, Pa., and J. C. Jones, of Wellsburg, W. Va.

C. N. Shorts Buys Out Partner

C. N. Shorts, of the firm of Shorts & Lutz, Edison dealers at Emlenton, Pa., has purchased the interest of Mr. Lutz in the firm and will hereafter conduct the business personally.

Death of David S. Hartley

David S. Hartley, for the past thirty-five years connected with the music trade in this State and for many years sales representative of the Buehn Phonograph Co. in this city, passed away late last month following an operation. The deceased was a pioneer in the music business in Pennsylvania and during his many years in the trade he had made a host of friends who are mourning his passing. He is survived by two sisters and three brothers.

Dealers Add Sonora

H. Milton Miller, manager of the Sonora Distributing Co., stated on his return the past week from a vacation trip to Virginia that indications point to brisk Fall business in the Sonora phonograph and Vocalion record lines. Sonora dealers are placing Fall orders now in anticipation of a good season. New Vocalion record dealers are the Avalon Pharmacy, Avalon, Pa., and A. G. Gabosch, Brighton road, Northside.

F. Roediger, of the Sonora Phonograph Co.'s general offices in New York, was a recent visitor to the Pittsburgh offices.

Big Demand for Victor

George H. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the W. F. Frederick Co., in reviewing the business situation, declared: "There is every indication of a very brisk Fall demand for the Victor line. In fact, the demand appears to be so great, in the shape of advance orders, that it will be rather difficult to fill the orders of the trade."

Excellent Columbia Demand

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Co., in discussing trade conditions, stated: "We are disposing of all the Columbia machines and records that we can secure, and it is my firm belief that the Columbia sales in the Pittsburgh district this Fall will be larger than ever. Even our mid-Summer sales are showing a decided increase over the same period a year back. Our new process Columbia record is meeting with wonderful success. As I view it, our main concern will be to secure ample merchandise to meet the requirements of our dealers for Fall delivery."

News Brieflets

R. W. Longfellow, of the service department of the Aeolian Co.'s Vocalion record department, spent several weeks here conferring with Vocalion dealers.

George J. Meyer, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., stated that trade conditions were showing unmistakable signs of improvement here.

C. R. Parsons, manager of the talking machine department of the Rosenbaum Co., stated that sales for July were away ahead of the same time in 1922, record sales being especially good.

John Henk, of the Columbia Music Co., Edison and Columbia dealer, also reports a satisfactory volume of business for July.

C. B. Hewitt, manager of the sales department, was a visitor to New York recently.

A. O. Lechner, secretary of Lechner & Schoenberger, Edison, Columbia and Victor dealers, is back at his desk after a vacation.

A. R. Meyer, manager of the talking machine department of the Joseph Horne Co., was a visitor to New York recently.

Henry Wood, manager of the Boggs & Buhl talking machine department, was a visitor to the Cheney exhibit at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Colored People Big Purchasers of "Blues" Records—New Dealers Appointed—News of the Month

RICHMOND, VA., August 8.—By circularizing 4,000 homes of the better class of Richmond colored people recently the Corley Co., Victor jobber and retailer, succeeded in increasing greatly its sales of "blues" records. Results from this method of reaching the colored trade were almost immediate, according to J. H. Steinbrecher, manager of the retail department of the company. With the circulars were enclosed illustrated folders featuring in particular four 75-cent double-faced new "blues" records. With few exceptions this business is cash and it is appreciated all the more on that account. Many of them in making purchases after being circularized have brought the folders with them to make sure that they are getting just what they want. Failure of newspaper ads to pull with them is attributed to the fact that but few of them read the papers closely, if at all. On the other hand, they rarely fail to read a circular letter, even though it comes to them with one-cent postage, for there is no race that likes to get mail as they do.

New Edison Dealers

The C. B. Haynes Co., Edison jobber, announces the appointment of the following new dealers: R. E. Knight & Son, Alexandria; Chipley's Pharmacy, Moorefield, W. Va.; Community Shop, Marion, Va.; Gulley Furniture Co., Nashville, N. C.

W. W. Bowman, vice-president of the C. B. Haynes Co., is planning to spend his vacation fishing in the waters of eastern Virginia.

The Haynes Co. is looking ahead to a particularly big Fall business, as are other Richmond jobbers and dealers. Indications point to excellent crops in Virginia, as well as other contiguous States, heavy rains of recent date having counteracted the effects of the drought experienced in this territory earlier in the Summer. Industrial conditions are also reported good throughout the territory.

The Haynes Co. reports that business is running considerably ahead of last year. Illustrating the upward trend, business for June was 28 per cent greater than that in June of 1922, which was the poorest month last year.

Mrs. C. H. Dietz, office manager of the Colonial Piano Co., Columbia dealer, is spending her vacation at Atlantic City.

A. L. Steinbrecher a Benedict

A. L. Steinbrecher, city salesman of the phonograph department of the Corley Co., and Miss Nellie Woodson, a popular Richmond girl, were married recently. Wedding bells also rang recently for Major A. Vivian, road salesman of this company. His bride was a pretty, young nurse of Richmond.

Rowlett's, 418 West Broad street, is closing out its phonograph department, with a view of concentrating entirely on bicycles and sporting goods. It has been handling the Brunswick machine and records for the last three years.

Health Record Display Boosts Sales

Good results were achieved from a recent window exhibit of health records made by the Corley Co., with the assistance of the athletic director of the Young Men's Christian Association, who went through physical exercises in the window for four hours one Saturday afternoon. A number of sets priced at $3 each were sold as a result of the exhibit. These records are especially popular with stout women, who exercise to reduce. Several of these women bought machines as well as records after viewing the exhibit and many prospects were secured.

Predicts Gain in Sale of Better Music

Frederick W. Schwoebel, manager of the wholesale department of the Corley Co., is expecting the sale of Red Seal records to be stimulated greatly, now that it has been decided to put double-faced records of that make on the market. He believes that the trade throughout the territory covered by his firm will respond liberally. He is also enthusiastic over the prospects for sales of the new Art model. Mr. Schwoebel is just back from a trip to Norfolk, where he found conditions picking up somewhat, and Charleston, W. Va. He reports that the C. I. Coffey Book Store, of the latter city, Victor dealer, has transferred its Victrola department to the Gulperin Music Co. Reynolds & Smith, Victor dealers, Clifton Forge, Va., recently underwent a reorganization, the present name of the firm being Reynolds & Co.

Friends of Frank W. Corley, vice-president of the Corley Co., will doubtless be pleased to learn that he has fully recovered from the effects of a fractured collar bone which he sustained when thrown from a horse several weeks ago. Mr. Corley spent several days early this month in Chicago on a business trip.

Walter D. Moses & Co. Remodeling

Walter D. Moses & Co., Victor dealers, are giving their store a thorough overhauling. They have installed a new elevator and are painting the store inside and out. New fixtures are also being installed. The firm claims to be the oldest music house in Virginia.

WEILER STORE INCORPORATED

QUINCY, ILL., August 6.—The music business started at 121 North Fifth street by Joseph Weiler, who died recently, will be continued as a corporation in the future. The capital stock is $120,000, which has been subscribed and paid in as follows: Charles Weiler, $56,000; Alice Weiler, $49,900; Lenore Weiler, $10,000, and W. P. Martindale, $100. The business will be conducted as heretofore, the corporation dealing in pianos, musical instruments, talking machines and jewelry.

Activities of Jobber and Dealer Organizations Result in Much Publicity and Business—New Agencies Opened—Month's News

CLEVELAND, O., August 7.—Taking advantage of mid-Summer and its attendant outdoor attraction the Brunswick interests here, headed by Leslie I. King, district manager, have been preparing the way for next Winter's business. Most conspicuous effort in this direction has been achieved, since daily newspapers, hitherto somewhat averse to recognizing music and musical instruments as news of interest to their readers, have been induced to co-operate with dealers, with the result that the latter have been getting attention in the news columns and the newspapers, in turn, getting paid advertising that they might otherwise not get. This accomplishment has been made in and near Buffalo, a part of the Cleveland Brunswick district that during August will have a campaign in which some ten Brunswick artists will make personal appearances sponsored by local dealers. So well has this thought been received by newspapers that many have run material, supplied by Mr. King, ahead of the campaign and dealers, in turn, have been advertising as well. About twenty-one newspapers will co-operate in this work, according to Mr. King. Already about a third of this number have run news material about the artists particularly and the talking machine and music generally, and some eight dealers in Buffalo have taken, individually, close to 200 inches of paid advertising space ahead of the campaign.

Edison Sales Drive Nearing Close

The sales contest being conducted by the Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, is nearing its close. Nearly 100 dealers and salespeople are participating in this event, looking to the winning of cash prizes totaling $250 and a special prize as well, and at the same time adding to their selling ability. Leaders to date, and the divisions they are leading in, have been compiled by E. S. Hershberger, secretary, who is conducting the contest. These leaders are:

Division 1, towns up to 5,000 population: C. S. Stilson, Gibsonberg; C. J. Benedict, Utica; E. F. Ulmer, New Washington. Division 2, 5,000 to 15,000 population: O. D. Zoll, Norwalk; Miss Olive Lawes, Tiffin; H. E. Olin, Kent. Division 3, more than 15,000 population: A. E. Sauer, Lorain; Don O. Thomas, Barberton; Russel Jastatt, Warren. The contest is being conducted in the Cleveland zone. Leaders will assemble at the Phonograph Co.'s headquarters after the contest to receive prizes.

Sonora Campaign Under Way

The way is being paved by the Sonora Phonograph-Ohio Co. not only for more business for present dealers, but for dealers, in Sonora, in prospect. Many new prospects are being lined up in Ohio by J. L. Du Breuil, sales manager, and Karl E. Kraner, southern Ohio and Kentucky representative. These are being sent much literature, catalogs, advertising material and novelties by General Manager J. T. Pringle and many indicate they will be ringing the Sonora "bell" with the turn of Fall. Meanwhile dealers in the smaller towns and smaller dealers in the bigger cities are not idle, but are pushing for business, many making personal calls in their respective territories and getting new customers right along, they advise Mr. Pringle. One of the newer Sonora dealers to be added lately is Leo A. Gerhardtstein, who has been in the music business for fifteen years in Sandusky.

Cleveland T. M. Co. Starts Poster Drive

Supplementing its post-card service, which features certain individual records and which dealers have been using to great advantage in their record business, the Cleveland Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber, has started a poster distribution that is unique in talking machine trade annals. These posters, each featuring some one record and listing a group of similar records, have been issued in the last few weeks to some 400 dealers and everyone who has used them reports an immediate boost in all record business, according to Howard J. Shurtle, general manager, and originator of the poster idea. The posters are three feet by two feet, in bright colors and characteristic of the record featured, the first, on "The Cat's Whiskers," naturally containing a picture of cats licking their whiskers. The second features Hawaiian songs and has a picture of a Hawaiian girl.

Artists' Concerts Boost Brunswick Sales

In line with its timely work for dealers the local Brunswick organization is continuing its effort with the personal-appearance Brunswick orchestra or band. At present the Bennie Krueger Band is appearing in western New York under auspices of dealers in that vicinity, following an unusually successful tour of the Isham Jones Orchestra. The work of the latter aggregation is especially noteworthy, since Mr. Jones himself took part in the dances or concerts that dealers arranged. In one tour, which was conducted by the Yahrling-Raynor Co., Youngstown; E. E. Smith, Clearfield, Pa.; Melody Music Shoppe, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Halshoff's Brunswick Shoppe, Lockport, N. Y., and Dale's, of Akron, some 5,000 fans were given away, these being patterned after a record, with the words of the chorus of "Swinging Down the Lane" on the other side. Mr. Jones made every attendant join in singing this song. One instance indicates the results of this effort, one dealer reporting he sold 150 of these records the day following the appearance of the Isham Jones Orchestra in his town.

One local dealer linked up prettily with the appearance of this orchestra in Cleveland by distributing 10,000 miniature copies of the chorus of this song, with the words and music. The idea was conceived by I. H. Buescher, of the Buescher Co., and carried out by Leslie I. King, district manager of the Brunswick Co., without cost for printing the miniature copies, these being done by the Leo Feist music publishing house.

New Cheney Models Popular

New console models of the Cheney, available at comparatively low prices, have met with such instant acclaim by the dealer element that practically the entire quota for immediate shipment was taken from pictured folders and descriptive literature, according to T. R. Buel, secretary-treasurer of the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co. This is taken to indicate that the dealers who have the goods are willing to stake on the future for good business. Meanwhile a constructive policy of entertainment has been inaugurated by the local Cheney organization in personally conducted trips for dealers to the Cheney factory in Michigan. Every other week, for the rest of the Summer, twelve dealers will be taken up the Lake on the Detroit boats. These will be conducted either by George R. Madson, president; T. R. Buel, secretary-treasurer, or some other local Cheney executive. The first trip was made this week and among those present were dealers from Cleveland, Akron and Pittsburgh, the trip being conducted by C. V. Hammond, Pittsburgh representative.

New Sonora Store Opened

An unusual opening, in which Sonora was featured, is that reported by J. M. Irvine, special representative of Sonora in this territory. This includes the opening of the James Horne Co. in Pittsburgh, the feature of which was the use of all the store windows to display every model of the Sonora line, including the $3,000 Bernardi instrument.

New Columbia Agencies

Expansion of Columbia interest locally and nearby is being accomplished by the intrepid staff of the Columbia district organization, under the gifted leadership of Branch Manager S. S. Larmon. Among the newer dealers to be added to Columbia are Joseph Hoffman and E. W. Phillips, Rochester, and A. Maisel and the Black Swan Music Co., Buffalo. The J. Drombrowski Co., Buffalo, has enlarged the record department and George F. Schafer, at Batavia, has acquired a new location in the central business district of that city.

Advocates Diversified Lines

While there is much to be said on both sides of the much-mooted question as to whether a dealer should be "exclusive"—that is, carry only one line of talking machines—or whether he should carry more than one line, some good advice on one side of the issue is offered by J. T. Pringle, general manager of the Sonora Phonograph-Ohio Co. After careful study and analysis of the results obtained by both kinds of dealers it is Mr. Pringle's belief that the dealer who has more than one line of instruments is in a better position to close sales than the one who carries only one line. Principal argument for this, according to Mr. Pringle, is that with only one line a dealer exhausts his arguments. When confronted by the almost inevitable problem of having the customer go elsewhere "because my sister has such-and-such a machine and I would like to look at it before deciding," the dealer is forced to let that prospect go out, seldom to return. On the other hand, having more than one line, it is likely that he may have just the instrument she wishes to look at or, if not, another kind from the one she has seen in his store and he is then ready for additional argument. In this way, experience has shown, Mr. Pringle says, the dealer is better equipped and can come more nearly to closing the prospect without unnecessary delay.

It adds prestige to any business; it brings customers into the store frequently (new records are issued every week); it makes your store the musical centre of the community (real "hits" are available on the Edison first): Quick turnover, steady profits and the satisfaction of selling the only phonograph that Re-Creates music so perfectly that it cannot be distinguished from the actual performance of the artist.

Victor Health Girl Performs

Downtown Cleveland, made up principally of the tired business man, was refreshed somewhat during the hot wave in July by the appearance, for two weeks, of Miss Marjorie Barnhardt, publicly known as the Victor Health Girl and in private life the health record exponent of the Cleveland Talking Machine Co. Miss Barnhardt appeared in one of the store rooms of the Miles Theatre Building to impress upon the people that the Euclid Music Co. is doing business on the floor above and is a considerable downtown music establishment. Later she appeared at the Wolfe Music Co., gracing the new crystal front of that establishment. Incidentally, she served to increase business immediately for both establishments.

An Unusual Store Opening

One of the most unusual openings, in point of attendance, aided by the local Brunswick organization, was that of the E. M. Kotz Furniture Co., Syracuse, N. Y., to mark the introduction of the Brunswick line. One of the big features was the dropping of 5,000 invitations from an airplane, and approximately that number attended the opening. About half of those who visited the new establishment received souvenirs, candles and candelabras for the same. An orchestra supplied plenty of Brunswick music. The entire window space was given over to Brunswick displays, except where they were overcrowded with floral pieces from merchants and friends in and out of town.

How the Trade Press Helps

The far-reaching effect of publicity in the trade press is attested to by the request from a Texas dealer that he be permitted to use the Eclipse Musical Co.'s book on standard Victor records, which made its appearance a month or so ago. The dealer has been shipped several thousand copies and other inquiries also will be taken care of in like manner, according to Edward B. Lyons, general manager. All dealers who have been using this book find that these fine records, comparatively unknown to the jazz followers, find ready sale as soon as their clientele is advised of it.

George W. Savage in New Post

George W. Savage, for many years connected with both wholesale and retail interests in the Victor field here, has joined the Cleveland Talking Machine Co. as sales and special representative. Versatile in his knowledge of dealers' needs, a mechanic of unusual ability and an artist whose gift is reflected in sensational window decorations, Mr. Savage is expected to make a notable showing in his new connection.

Edison Music Shoppe in Larger Quarters

The Edison Music Shoppe is now located in attractive new and larger quarters in the Glenville Masonic Temple, St. Clair avenue and East 106th street, this city. The complete line of Edison phonographs and records is handled in this modernly equipped establishment.

Huge Picnic Furnishes Prospects

A prospect list of some 75,000 names and addresses has been obtained by the L. Meier & Sons Co., Victor dealer, in linking up with the largest picnic ever held in these parts. The event was sponsored by Clark avenue merchants, 150 of them, and attracted 35,000 people to Puritas Springs Park, where they overflowed onto the country surrounding the park.

The Euclid Music Co., of this city, well-known talking machine dealer, has secured the wholesale representation through Ohio territory for the foreign records imported by Macksoud, of New York.

PATHE CORP. IN NEW HOME

On August 1 the New York offices of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp. were moved from their former location at 18 East Forty-second street to new quarters at 150 East Fifty-third street. The move provides greatly increased facilities, as the company will occupy the entire building at the new address. The recording laboratories of the company are also located in the new quarters.

Sales Thought And not sales talk

Victor dealers whom we are privileged to serve know the importance of ascertaining what character of music appeals before beginning a sales demonstration.

Business Up to Expectations—Lehman and Shattinger Companies Suffer Heavy Fire Loss—New Firms—Lines Added—Month's News

St. Louis, Mo., August 6.—July closed and August opened with business as good as anybody expects it to be at this season and in not a few instances better than expected. Several houses reported that their July business showed a satisfactory improvement over the same month last year and the indications are that August will show a like gratifying condition. Portables, which had a sprightly movement at the opening of the picnic and vacation season, are slowing down. Among the machines the medium-priced consoles seem to have a little the best of the sales, but there is also a pretty good demand for uprights of medium cost. Most of the record movement is in the light stuff which fits the hot-weather mood. Radio sales are beginning to improve and all the indications are for gradual improvement through this month, culminating in big business in September.

To Concentrate on Talking Machine Trade

Manager Geissler, of the Famous & Barr Co. music department, has arranged to have himself relieved from the immediate direction of the piano department so as to be able to give the greater part of his attention to the talking machine division. Howard Terry, formerly with the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., Pittsburgh, has been appointed sales manager of the piano department, but both departments will remain under the general management of Mr. Geissler.

Suffer Heavy Loss by Fire

Plans for resumption of business by the Lehman Piano Co. and the Shattinger Piano & Music Co., 1101 and 1103 Oliver street, which were burned out on July 19, are in abeyance pending the adjustment of the insurance. Phil Lehman, president of the Lehman Co., has announced, however, that he will open up at the old stand as soon as the building is restored. This will take sixty days, probably, though, and in the meantime he is merely maintaining an office at 1105 Olive street, and has released his organization. Oliver Shattinger, president of the Shattinger Co., has not decided what he will do, but is keeping his organization together. The company has temporary quarters at 1213 Pine street. The entire talking machine and record stock of the Lehman Co. was destroyed. The Shattinger Co. did not handle talking machines or records. The Artophone Corp., occupying part of the Shattinger Building, lost 300 machines and 3,000 or 4,000 records, but the greater part of its stock was stored at 1213 Pine street. For that reason the company's service to its trade in machines and Okeh records was not greatly interrupted. It has rented the adjoining building, 1215 Pine street, and is taking care of all orders.

A. C. Link to Feature Brunswick

The Brunswick franchise at 2024 East Grand avenue has been transferred from J. Happle to A. C. Link, who has for many years conducted a jewelry store in the next building to the above-mentioned. Mr. Link is planning a formal opening as soon as extensive changes are made.

Mathew Kaemmerer, Brunswick dealer, at 2902 North Vandeventer avenue, has leased a large store at 3199 South Grand avenue, where he will operate his Brunswick Shop No. 2, and is remodeling the building in an elaborate manner, characteristic of Mr. Kaemmerer, to ably care for his requirements. Mr. Kaemmerer plans a formal opening of the new store as an exclusive Brunswick Shop about August 15, which will be in charge of Arthur Kaemmerer.

Police to Record All Movings

St. Louis music merchants who sell talking machines on instalments are now protected by an ordinance which requires the police to keep a record of all removals of such machines or other articles. The police do not like the added labor involved and President Brockman, of the Police Board, has been trying to find a way out of it, but the City Counselor and the Attorney-General have advised him that the law is sound and the service will have to be performed.

Fay-Buchanan Music Co. Incorporated

The Fay-Buchanan Music Co., of St. Louis, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, to sell at wholesale and retail pianos, phonographs and other musical instruments and carry on a general music business. The incorporators are: Earl E. Fay, William H. and Lynden S. Buchanan, of St. Louis.

Announce Ad Campaign

Announcement of plans, preparations of which have not all been completed, for one of the most extensive advertising campaigns ever launched by a manufacturer of phonographs and records is being received in a most enthusiastic manner by all Brunswick dealers in this district. The campaign is so broad in its scope that all Brunswick dealers, to whom the plan has been outlined, have decided to take immediate action in the preparations for a very broad, individual advertising campaign of a local character, tying up to the campaign as planned by the Brunswick Co.

Brunswick dealers and others who recently visited headquarters in St. Louis included the following: A. J. Kendrick, general sales man-

Miss Helen Hatfield, who manages the broadcasting for the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., believes in giving her public some information along with their entertainment. Miss Hatfield is also a member of the staff in the Victrola department and, for recent broadcastings, has been giving a series of readings from the "What We Hear in Music," a Victor publication, illustrated by the playing of records. For the radio owner who is interested in knowing more about music this is an excellent opportunity. For bed-time stories Miss Hatfield uses the charming stories for children given in the book "Pan and His Pipes," also a Victor publication. These have been well received.

Meeting of Brunswick Association

A meeting of the Brunswick Dealers' Association was held at Hotel Statler July 17. S. K. Gerhardt, of Zerweck Jewelry Co., East St. Louis, was elected chairman of the Association, to succeed E. C. Storer. Other officers elected were Mathew Kaemmerer, vice-chairman, and R. F. Novy, of the Brunswick Co., secretary. A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager of the Brunswick Co., was present at the meeting, and spoke optimistically of the business outlook for the Fall and Winter. Those present included: S. K. Gerhardt, the new chairman; A. J. Kendrick, R. W. Jackson, J. H. Bennett, R. F. Novy, E. F. Stevens, F. S. Horning, R. M. Clucas, G. F. Standke, C. Hoffer, E. C. Storer, J. H. Kirkland, W. A. GOOD PROSPECTS FOR SOME DEALER

FARNS, W. VA., August 7.—Two hundred of the two hundred and fifty miners employed by the Gulf Smokeless Coal Co. here own talking machines, according to information coming from excellent authority. Every one of the fifty who does not possess an instrument is a good prospect and can be sold if the proper procedure is followed. This is an excellent example of how solidly a prosperous community can be sold by an aggressive and live dealer.

Warner's Seven Aces, a recent addition to the Okeh record library, is also introduced in an interesting article in this house organ and there are several personal items of interest regarding Gerald Griffin, Shelton Brooks, Sophie Tucker and other Okeh artists. The new Okeh record cleaner is described in the house organ and Mrs. A. MANY NEW INSTALLATIONS

Zimmerman-Bitter Co. Reports Increased Activity Among Local Dealers—Musical Merchandise Departments Installed by Many Dealers

That the talking machine dealer is discovering a new source of profit in musical merchandise is the opinion of A. H. Bitter, of the Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co., New York City, who states that more orders have been received for the installation of musical merchandise cases in the last six months than at any other period in the history of the company.

Some of the work recently completed by this company includes the installation of new equipment in the three stores of Emanuel Blout, this installation including new musical instrument departments, plate glass show cases for small goods and sheet music department. A re-order for an addition to the sheet music department has been received from the Windsor-Poling Co., of Akron, O. The Zimmerman-Bitter Construction Co. is completely equipping the store of E. Linehart, 1365 First avenue, the installation comprising hearing rooms, record racks, musical instrument cases and a redecorating of the entire store. New record racks have been added to the store of Bucci Bros., 163rd street and Third avenue, New York.

Among the new contracts recently received is that of S. L. Shott, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., for the equipping of two floors, and this installation will comprise five hearing rooms, record racks with a capacity of 20,000 records, musical instrument, small goods and sheet music departments. The entire premises will be redecorated in French period design with an ivory finish.

OFFERS SPRING SAVING MACHINE

Andrew H. Dodin Distributor for a Clever Device for Use of Repairmen

As set forth in his announcement in the advertising section of The World this month, Andrew H. Dodin, well-known talking machine repairman of New York, has arranged to act as distributor in the United States and Canada for the Ruffo Spring Saving Machine, a clever device that makes possible the reversing and re-winding of main springs so that broken ends may be removed and the spring repunched for further use.

Mr. Dodin came across the machine some time ago and has used it extensively in his own work, with results satisfactory to all concerned, and believes that it should prove particularly interesting to dealers and repairmen located at considerable distances from supply centers, who can not only save the cost of new springs, but at the same time overcome the delays incident to waiting for the receipt of new springs from the factories.

Henry B. Pye & Co., Inc., dealers in furniture, etc., 2918 Third avenue, New York, have discontinued their talking machine department.

IMPORTANCE OF WINDOW DISPLAYS IN BOOSTING SALES

George W. Lyle, President of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., Makes Some Constructive Observations on the Profits Which Can Be Derived From Properly Arranged Windows

"What's the Window For?" is part of a message prepared for Strand dealers by George W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., New York, but it has meat enough in it for any phonograph dealer who understands the practical value of the effective window display.

"Maybe you run a big store on the right side of the best business street in town, with twenty or more record booths and a young army of clerks," says Mr. Lyle. "And you've got two or three large, roomy show windows. Or maybe you operate a small store, with three booths and four or five salespeople, and you have just one window, with not too much room in it. Well, either way, keep those windows dressed right! Change them often! Make them work! With new records and new models of the phonographs you carry—and plenty of record bulletins and posters and price cards and attractive signs.

"You can make your windows pay a profit in the rent they cost you. That's what windows are for! Once a week isn't too often to redress your windows. If you have a liberal amount of space behind plate glass utilize every foot of it to best advantage. If you have only a small window area you can't afford to waste a single inch of it!

"Count the people who pass your store every day and you will begin to realize the importance of this feature of your sales work. Yes, sales work, because a well-arranged, attractive window is one of the most efficient sales producers you can employ. The big department stores, like Wanamaker's in New York and Marshall Field's in Chicago, Snellenburg's in Philadelphia, Famous-Barr in St. Louis and Filene's in Boston, pay big salaries to their window dressers.

"If you're on a side street—all the more reason to make your windows work. Good windows are one of the most effective ways of making a side-street store worth putting your

ONE SUGGESTS THE OTHER

Mid-West Point of View

WESTERN DIVISION OF THE WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL., AUG. 8, 1923.

EVERY so often a Cassandra arises amongst us who talks about "saturation." It is a nice mouth-filling word and one calculated to strike terror into the heart of the unthinking, but it really does not mean much in the talking machine business. We in the mid-West have had our share and more of the troubles which came from the reckless and improvident methods which some manufacturers saw fit to indulge in during the period immediately succeeding the entrance of the United States into the World War. To cry over spilt milk helps no one; but it is worth remarking that those who talked of the trade reaching the point of saturation had, three years ago, something like reason on their side. A market filled to overflowing with what might well be called "junk" was a market which had to break sooner or later. Break it did; but that saturation then was a very different sort of condition from anything which does or could exist at the present time. All competitors notwithstanding, the fact is undoubted that the talking machine market is no nearer saturation than it was twenty years ago. The public need for talking machines and for talking machine music is greater than ever, despite all counter attractions. In fact, every competing device or system for the reproduction of music merely serves to emphasize the enormous superiority of the talking machine in its own field. It is the universal recorder and preserver of all music, and nothing can touch it as such. All we have to do is to continue improving the product and finding better ways of telling our story to the great music-loving masses. One way or another we have for every musical taste what is positively the best of all music makers and until that ceases to be true we need care not a snap for the spoil-sport who tells us that the market is saturated. . Saturated? It is not wet all through yet!

Saturation
Not in Sight

THE formation of another local association in the music industries brings prominently to mind the fact that Chicago has no body devoted to the interests of retail talking machine dealers. This is the more a pity since other cities are having excellent results from the formation and maintenance of such associations. There are many reasons why a retail talking machine merchants' association would be of general advantage in Chicago. For one thing, the individual merchants of our community have yet to learn that competition need not mean unfriendliness and that, in fact, there is much more to be gained in the way of personal advantage by cooperation than by hostility in matters of common importance. Every body of men engaged in any line of retail business sooner or later finds out that only by acting as a body instead of individually can its members solve what are always actually the most important of their business problems. All problems in retail business are so much alike that, irrespective of the particular articles sold by each individual merchant, his business is vastly like that of his competitor in every essential. When, therefore, all the merchants in any one line get together and propose to exchange information, each individual soon finds that, while he has something to give, he has always vastly more to receive. The universal experience of members of trade associations is that just so soon as each one makes up his mind to give freely of his own knowledge for the benefit of his fellows he begins to draw from his fellowship with them far more than he ever can give out. Moreover, one of the healthiest results of trade association membership is that the individual member so soon discovers how little his cherished "secrets" and methods really mean. He finds that everybody else has them or something much like them. He finds that his fellow-members are just as decent fellows as he is. He finds that there is far more to confer about than to quarrel about. Because, then, these qualities of collective action for the common good are painfully absent from the local retail trade it is very evident that a trade association would be very beneficial to merchants in this territory. Who will be the first to set it going?

Local Association Needed

THE mid-West territory generally is such a big consumer of talking machine records and so well typifies the general tastes of the whole country, aside from the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, that whatever is observed here as to the sale of and demand for all kinds of records may be taken as typical. Observations show that the great jobbers who work out from Chicago, as well as the more successful retail merchants in this city, alike find their very best market is what may be technically termed "class" records; that is to say in records featuring special and distinct types or classes of music. The heterogeneous population of the great Central States divides up pretty evenly into urban and rural, but all are interested in dance music, and the development of the modern form of such music, irritating and offensive as it is in the extreme manifestations, does respond to a popular need. Those who are doing their best to discover exponents of the most artistic in such dance music and to record their finest efforts are having remarkable success, as the figures plainly show. But dance music will not float a record manufacturing business and the manufacturers who understand the value of the "class" theory understand also that the rural and the urban divisions of the population are themselves divisible into subdivisions, each of which has its own particular pet ideas as to musical wants. Thus there is a demand for negro numbers in some sections and little of it in others. There is a demand for religious music in some sections and little or none in others. There is a sharp distinction between the demand for jazz of the extreme sort and for artistic modern dance music. It is apparently the part of wisdom to take into consideration all these classes and to build up the modern library with strict attention to them all as the basis for classification and selection. Nor does this mean neglect of the high-class numbers. What is most needed is to bring customers into the store. If, when they are once inside, there is no more intelligence than to let them go out with one seventy-five cent dance record when another one at twice the price could just as easily be sold in addition, that is the fault of the merchant, not of the manufacturer. The latter can do a great deal to make his monthly bulletin more catchy; but when he has done this it will not be his fault if the merchant has no better salesmanship ability than merely to hand out what is asked for. The appeal to distinct classes is important and necessary, and not less because thereby the appeal to the better instincts in music is rendered easier and is, consequently, more productive of results.

Success of "Class"
Records

A SURVEY of the news which comes to us through various channels and which may be taken as based on the highest authority, indicates that the seasonal fallacy is losing its grip upon the mind of the trade in this territory. It really begins to look, from all the signs, as if mid-West merchants at last had waked up to see the great truth that business is to be had on one set of terms only, but on these to an illimitable extent. These terms may be expressed in the single phrase "going and getting." We refrain from saying "go-getting" because there is no advantage in talking like a sophomore when one is dealing with stern fact. Business is to be had, then, by creating it and not by waiting for it to create itself. This is true in every other line of business and in many is thoroughly recognized, but it has taken the talking machine merchants a long time to realize that, no matter how extensively and skillfully advertised may be the machines and records they sell, those machines and records have to be brought before the customer, put up to him or her and sold then and there in each individual case. The advertising makes the sales resistance much less, in fact, turns the scale; but the personal contact does the trick. This being so, Summer is as good a season as Winter. This is the lesson that talking machine merchants in this part of the world seem to be learning, for which thank goodness! Nor ought we to forget that the recently learned lesson of "tie-up" advertising is having its great effect, as has been proved time after time.

GENERAL PROSPERITY MARKS TALKING MACHINE BUSINESS IN CHICAGO AND ITS ENVIRONS

Sales of Portables, Records and Small Musical Instruments Keep Trade Up to Par in Chicago Proper—New Firms Enter Field—Expansions and All the Important Trade News

CHICAGO, ILL., August 9.—Reports from retailers in this section indicate that business for the last half of July and the first part of August was very spotty. Some sections, particularly the corn and wheat belts, reported quite a let-up in business, while others, such as the dairy territories, reported an exceptional spurt in retail trade. This increase in business in dairy districts is attributed by dealers to the fact that the farmers recently benefited by an increase in the price of milk, and these prices naturally tended to tone up the business situation. In the corn and wheat belts the reports are that exceptionally fine crops have been, or are being, cut and this production will soon be on its way to market. Should history repeat itself we could then look forward to an increase of business in these sections as well.

Locally the trade had somewhat of a let-up in the console business, but small musical instruments, portable talking machines, rolls, records and sheet music brought in sales which enabled the dealer to do a fairly good business, all told.

The labor situation of Chicago is very encouraging and building is gradually increasing. The only trouble in this line that we can find lies in the fact that there is somewhat of a scarcity of mechanics as well as laborers, which is attributed to the fact that wages have been so high that the workers just can't stand their prosperity and have been taking lengthy vacations at nearby Summer resorts.

The manufacturers of talking machine parts are still very busy and are working to capacity throughout this section. In the past we have always found that when these men were busy the general condition of the trade throughout the talking machine field was exceptionally good. In using the activities of these men as a barometer, we can see quite a bit of activity ahead of us for the coming month in so far as manufacture of talking machines is concerned.

There is quite a number of dealers in this territory who have discovered that their sales departments are following along those lines of least resistance which proved so popular several years ago, but which at the same time did not move record stocks from the shelves. These clerks have been taking good sales stimulators, such as the popular numbers, and selling lots of them and patting themselves on the back that they have been salesmen. As a matter of fact, everyone knows that this is only order-taking, as the publishers of the music themselves have been boosting the songs to such an extent that the buyers naturally walk into the store and do the purchasing.

While it is true that splendid profits are being made on these trade stimulators the fact remains that the dealers' shelves in many instances are being entirely neglected in so far as standard numbers are concerned. Therefore, there is a great deal of good money tied up, lying idly by, while the sales people are merely taking orders. We are happy to say, however, that this situation does not prevail throughout the entire trade in this section, but it does maintain in quite a number of places whose proprietors are gradually waking up to the fact that the popular records are not only money-makers but trade-builders as well, which can be used in the moving of the higher priced numbers.

Illinois Wages Increase

According to the June review of the State industrial situation which was recently made by the General Advisory Board of the Illinois Department of Labor, the wage earners in Illinois had more money to spend in June than at any time in the last two years. It is understood that the workers employed, by 1,496 employers, had $10,535,595.31 for spending purposes during one week in June alone. This makes June the banner month of Illinois industries, since the business revival started some months ago. The amount is 33/10 per cent more than the workers had to spend during the corresponding week in the month of May.

Mr. Rudolph was, for a number of years, president and general manager of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., of Chicago, manufacturer of the well-known United line of enclosed self-lubricating talking machine motors. Before coming to this country Mr. Rudolph was associated with a number of large concerns in Australia, among which was the company with which he is now president. Since severing his connections with the United Co., of Chicago, he has given a great deal of his time to looking over the various lines of talking machine equipment manufactured in this country.

New Brunswick Demonstrator

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has brought out a new upright instrument which is known as Style 1177. This instrument is finished in ivory enamel and carries gold plated trimmings. The enamel is applied in seven heavy coats. The instrument is especially for demonstrating purposes in retail stores, for which its attractive and unusual finish makes it particularly appropriate if the plant or store is finished also in ivory or white. These instruments are being produced exclusively for Brunswick retailers.

Otto Heineman Visits Chicago

Otto Heineman, president of the General Phonograph Corp., has been a visitor to the Chicago trade. He spent several days in company with S. A. Ribolla, manager of the General Phonograph Corp. of Illinois. Both gentlemen called on the trade in this section. The purpose of the visit was to get the views of the trade regarding the coming Fall and Winter business, and the reports received by both men during their calls are very encouraging. From present indications the trade in Chicago has already begun to prepare for this business and although it is at present conceded

Speaks Well for Kimball Phonograph

A Kimball dealer on the Pacific Coast has written the following letter to the talking machine department of the W. W. Kimball Co.:

"The Style 'G' sold to Mrs. M. M. Angleton has been a good advertisement for the reliability of Kimball talking machines. It was first at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, was then transferred to a warship where it had the hardest kind of use, was on the water three years, going with the fleet to South America, to Cuba, and was finally unloaded at San Pedro. We inspected it and found the motor and tone arm in perfect condition, but, of course, the case was pretty well knocked about."

It transpires that Mrs. M. M. Angleton is the wife of one of the crew who was a member of the Pacific Fleet and purchased a Kimball phonograph, Style "G," about four years ago. It was one of the Kimball upright types, and when Mr. Angleton stopped into the Kimball dealer on the Coast to make arrangements to change it for a Kimball console the above-mentioned facts were brought out.

Employees of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Dubuque, Iowa, plant, who recently formed a band of forty members, are giving concerts during the evening, not only to the regular employes of the company, but to the townspeople as well. During the recent visit of the Brunswick sales force to the Dubuque plant the employes' band made such an impression on the members of the sales

Dodge Returns Cheerful

H. W. Dodge, sales manager of the Walbert Mfg. Co., has returned from a sales trip which took him to the Gulf and Coast States. He called on practically every dealer from Chicago to New Orleans, Los Angeles, Spokane and Denver and brought back with him very encouraging reports concerning the prospects of the retail dealers in the territory covered by him. The trade, as a whole, believes that with the beginning of the Fall season the talking machine business will increase tremendously, and all of these dealers are now making plans in accordance with these anticipations.

Oh Lady! Oh Lady!

The local trade is beginning to think that the sales force of the Chicago Talking Machine Co. is paying too much attention to the young ladies. By that we do not mean to imply that the boys are running after the ladies, but it seems that the young ladies are coming to them. For example, in the last week the wife of V. A. Corcoran presented him with a beautiful young daughter and at practically the same time the wife of Charles Hyde, who is also connected with the sales force of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., presented a brand-new daughter to him. purpose of recording some of the local talent of that city which has been signed up exclusively. Among the artists who were recorded in Chicago were Erskine Tate and his Vendome Theatre Orchestra. This organization is one of the most popular colored orchestras in Chicago, and for some years has been at the Vendome Theatre at Thirty-first and State streets, Chicago.

Erskine Tate is recognized as being one of the cleverest Blues writers in the country, and has recently published "Cutie" and "Chinaman Blues," which two numbers are among those he did for Okeh during their Chicago recording. Not only has Tate a reputation as a Blues writer but he is an excellent violinist and all-around teacher, who, for many years, has conducted several very successful music schools in Chicago's Black-belt.

Another musical organization recorded in Chicago last month was King Oliver's Jazz Band. It will be remembered by many who took in the Piano Club Frolics during convention week that a certain negro jazz band made a tremendous hit with its playing during the entertainment. That organization was none other than King Oliver's Jazz Band. On the night of the frolics this organization was the last on the bill and was scheduled for twenty minutes' playing, but the applause was so great and Oliver was so good-natured that the band did not leave the hotel for nearly two hours.

King Oliver is known to practically every musician in the country and is acknowledged to be the originator of the trick cornet playing in vogue to-day. He is constantly getting out new tricks with his cornet, and is always in demand by other cornetists who are desirous of learning these tricks. The records of both of these organizations will be released to the trade in August.

Edison Manager Optimistic

W. A. Schmidt, manager of the Phonograph Co., Illinois and Wisconsin distributor for Edison, has just returned from a trip throughout the Wisconsin and northern Illinois territory. The outlook for Fall business is very encouraging, according to Mr. Schmidt, and many dealers have already started their Fall campaigns. This is particularly true in the dairy communities of both Wisconsin and Illinois, and also in the tobacco-raising sections of Wisconsin. In the tobacco-raising communities it is understood that tobacco growers are forming a pool, and the outlook for this new organization is very encouraging. Wisconsin is famous all over the world for its binder tobacco, which is used in cigar making.

The headquarters of the Consolidated Talking Machine Co. was recently appointed exclusive distributor for Spencerian, covering Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

In addition to these appointments the Illinois Musical Supply Co. is also an exclusive Spencerian distributor for the State of Illinois.

Mr. Wood reports encouraging sales of Spencerian all over the country, and he is planning an Eastern trip which will bring him in contact with dealers and distributors of Spencerian throughout the Eastern territory.

Mr. Wood recently received a report from Sales Manager Guttenberger of the Artophone Corp., of Kansas City, Mo., in which it was said that Mr. Guttenberger had just returned from a trip, during which he established many new Spencerian accounts.

Van Zile Returns to Desk

R. P. Van Zile, who travels the Iowa territory for the Chicago Talking Machine Co., has just returned from a two weeks' vacation, which he spent in the Ozarks.

Meet Frank F. Paul

In a recent issue of The Talking Machine World we ran a little news item in the Chicago department, announcing the appointment of Frank F. Paul as general sales manager of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co. This month we have the pleasure of publishing a counterfeit presentment of Mr. Paul and, no doubt, many of his old friends in the trade with whom he came in contact during the past few years will recognize him. Although this is Mr. Paul's first entrance into the talking machine trade as an active member he has for many years been in contact with talking machine manufacturers by virtue of his connection with concerns whose business it is to supply goods essential to the manufacturers of motors, tone arms, etc.

For six years Mr. Paul was associated with

H. L. Mills, vice-president and general manager of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., when both gentlemen were associated with the American Specialty Co., of Chicago, manufacturer of machine tools and supplies. At that time Mr. Mills was president of this concern and Mr. Paul was general manager. After severing their connections with this concern both were associated in a company which manufactured home electrical lighting plans and electric lighting systems for farm use. Mr. Paul's next association was as general sales manager of the Rowe Mfg. Co., of Galesburg, Ill., and from there he went over as general sales manager of the Ironsides Co., of Columbus, O., manufacturer of lubricants.

In this latter connection, as well as while associated with the American Specialty Co., Mr. Paul came in contact with the talking machine industry. Since his coming over as general sales manager for the United Mfg. & Distributing Co. Mr. Paul has called on a number of the largest manufacturers of talking machines in the country and has been instrumental in opening numerous accounts for the benefit of the United Mfg. & Distributing Co.

New Publicity Company

The Ad-Press Service Co. is the title of a new concern which has just been organized in Chicago with J. P. Seinberg as director of retail merchandising aids. The purpose of the new organization is to produce for the trade window displays of exceptional character. Already this concern has turned out a large number of beautiful eight-colored window displays featuring the latest Isham Jones record "Down Among the Sleepy Hills of Tennessee." The Ad-Press Service is located in Room 803 at 21 East Van Buren street, and will devote its activities exclusively to the interests of the Brunswick organization.

Announce New Excel Consoles

The Excel Phonograph Mfg. Co., of this city, has just announced an addition to its line of talking machines. The addition consists of four beautifully designed console models which will be known as 10, 20, 30 and 40. These instruments will be finished in mahogany and walnut with nickel or gold trimmings as designed.

The company also announces a new portable talking machine of the two-spring type finished in Fabrikoid leather. This little instrument weighs 16 pounds, and its dimensions are 14 x 12 x 7 inches.

The addition of the new instruments to the Excel line enables the company to offer one of the most comprehensive and popular-priced lines of instruments that are being made in this section of the country.

The piano department of the Excel Co. has been exceptionally busy during the past few

Brunswick Colored Character Records

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. made the announcement that, beginning in August, samples of its special colored character records will be distributed to the trade. The records are by such popular negro artists as Hamtree Harrington, Edna Hicks, Lena Wilson, Lizzie Miles and others. The list will also include characteristic selections by the Cotton Pickers, an exclusive Brunswick organization. Special supplement hangers printed in purple and yellow are being prepared to go forward at the earliest possible moment.

The Oro-Tone Co., of this city, announces that it has appointed R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., of Montreal, Canada, as Canadian distributor for Oro-Tone No. 4, Edison attachments. The Heart of the Phonograph

"The heart of the phonograph is its motor," is the slogan which appears on the front cover of a new twenty-page catalog which has just been published by the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., of this city. The opening paragraphs request the reader to think of the talking machine motor as its heart, as it is upon this "heart" action that a talking machine depends for its staying qualities, especially in the matter of staying sold. The reading matter then goes on to tell of the good qualities of the United motor and shows some very good cuts of the various styles of United motors. It also goes into detail and takes the various units, going into the manufacture of United motors, such as

New Store Opens in Wilmette

The talking machine trade of this section has been increased by the recent opening of an exclusive Brunswick shop at Wilmette, a fashionable suburb of Chicago. The new shop is owned by Orion A. Galitz. It is equipped with four hearing rooms, demonstration booths and a large record and roll department, as well as a complete selection of sheet music counters and record racks. The color scheme was carried out in old ivory, and all the furnishings and decorations were installed by the local branch of the Unit Construction Co., under the personal supervision of Manager W. D. Montgomery of that organization.

Extra Loud Oro-Tone Equipment

An extra loud low-priced tone arm and reproducer known as Oro-Tone No. 20 was added during the month to the Oro-Tone line of tone arms and reproducers. The newcomer is of the throw-back style and of standard size, carrying the famous Oro-Tone adjustable length features. The No. 20 was built especially for those who are desirous of securing a thoroughly dependable tone arm and reproducer at a low price which is capable of producing a powerful deep tone and giving lasting service free from complaints. It is of the combination type, permitting the playing of both the hill and dale and lateral cut records, and the needle centers perfectly when in either position.

Sonata Mfg. Co. Enlarges

The Sonata Mfg. Co., Inc., of 665 West Austin avenue, this city, has acquired additional space and now occupies the entire building of three stories and a basement. This concern was recently incorporated under the State laws of Illinois with a fully paid-in capital. The officers are: J. H. Liner, president; D. Feigenberg, secretary, and William Piotrowski, treasurer. The Sonata Co. manufactures a line of console and upright types of talking machines, as well as a large assortment of household furniture.

En route to the Coast the couple will stop off at Denver and Yellowstone Park, and from there will go directly to Seattle, Wash., for a week's visit at the home of Mr. Hunt's mother. They will then go by rail from Seattle to San Francisco and by boat from San Francisco to Los Angeles, at which point they will board a train returning to Chicago and stopping off en route for a visit to the Grand Canyon of Colorado.

"Senator" Ford Records His Monologues

"Senator" Ford of the Orpheum Circuit, "who never wishes to be construed as the Luther Burbank of the auto industry, who grafts radiators on roller skates" is one of the latest acquisitions to the Brunswick family of recording artists, and has made a number of monologues for Brunswick which will be released some time in October. "Senator" Ford is one of the best-known monologuists appearing in vaudeville circuits, and it is believed that his records will be readily received by the public.

In order to provide more warehouse space for their rapidly increasing business, particularly at the wholesale end, Lyon & Healy, Inc., have just acquired the building of the Republic Metalware Co., at 1532-36 South Wabash avenue,

Krasco Acquires More Stop Patents

The Krasco Mfg. Co. has just closed a deal whereby it becomes licensee under another string of Strietelmeier patents. This gives the Krasco Co. control of the Brooks-Klemm, Strietelmeier, Brown-Niblack and Stimson patents, nearly thirty in all. All of these are for automatic repeating and stopping devices for talking machines. In addition to having control of all the Niblack automatic repeating and stopping devices for playing a talking machine record a predetermined number of times, the patents involved now enable the Krasco Co. to offer the trade several repeating devices which may be attached to any talking machine.

The Krasco Co. has been exceptionally busy during the Summer months and within the past few weeks has closed large contracts in Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, New Zealand, Australia, Japan and England. At present negotiations are being carried on with several other countries and indications point to a universal use of Krasco motors and Krasco assembled units. The production department of this concern was held up for a while during the last week, owing to the unfortunate breaking of a large die used in the manufacture of the Krasco assembled unit. The die has been rebuilt and production is now going forward rapidly.

Reports from all parts of the country regarding Krasco assembled units indicate that many in the trade have been able, through using it, to increase their trade and uphold prices.

Sensations Promised for New Ballroom

Some place in these United States there is already, in fact, or in the making, an orchestra which is due for considerable prominence ere long. Everybody remembers the recent opening of the million-dollar Trianon ballroom and the sensation created when it was announced that Paul Biése and His Orchestra had been brought from New York to Chicago and paid $25,000 to play for the opening week of this magnificent dancing palace.

Since we are fairly well sold on the idea that history repeats itself, we are convinced that something of a like nature will take place within the next few months with the opening of the new "Minuet," which is now being erected on Milwaukee avenue, near California. The "Minuet" will occupy a space of 65,000 square feet and will carry an erection cost of $1,250,000, which will embody a ballroom, an outdoor dancing terrace, fronted by a business building.

The movement is fostered by the business men of the vicinity, who hope to create a big business center around the ballroom. It will have a frontage of 225 feet on Milwaukee avenue, with an average depth of 350 feet. The actual dancing area of the ballroom is 13,000 square feet, with a lounging and seating space of 15,000 square feet.

been announced by Josef Brandstetter, president of the Alto Mfg. Co. The new device was designed and built in its entirety by Mr. Brandstetter and will automatically and perfectly grind the cutting edge of the Alto fibre needle cutter. Since it was put in operation the Alto Co. has been able to increase its output of Alto cutters practically 100 per cent.

"The building of this new grinding machine was made necessary," according to Mr. Brandstetter, "because of the constantly growing demand for fibre needle cutters. There is evidence on every hand that the use of fibre needles is becoming more and more popular each day and I am firmly convinced that the trade as a whole is beginning to recognize and give publicity to the virtues of the fibre needle. This has its reaction on the cutter business and the increased production of Alto cutters followed.

Changes in Department Prove Successful

The recent changes in the talking machine department of The Fair, when the entire department was moved from the fifth floor to the seventh, have been very successful in stimulating increased sales. Some months ago this department was changed. Additional space was provided in the new location and about twenty hearing rooms were installed, of the latest design. The entire department has been arranged with the most modern methods in view, with the result that The Fair now has one of the most up-to-date talking machine departments in the city. There is a large small goods section, with a new line of ukuleles as well as a complete line of all musical merchandise. This is found towards the front on the right-hand side. In the front part of the department the various lines of talking machines are attractively displayed, including the Sonora, which is the latest acquisition to the standard lines the department handles. Towards the rear a large record department has been installed and, with the many hearing booths, the large transient trade that this store enjoys can be promptly and adequately served. Summer sales have been exceptionally large, with the medium-priced talking machines and console models comprising the bulk of the sales.

New Kimball Leaflet

The mailing department of the W. W. Kimball Co. has been busy for the past week or so mailing out thousands of the new little eight-page fliers which they have had printed and which show the entire line of high-grade upright and console Kimball machines. The fliers can be used for envelope stuffers and are printed with a space on the back wherein the local dealer may insert his name and address. In all there are cuts of ten Kimball talking machines shown, printed in mahogany. Inside each cut are printed the specifications.

Becomes Music Roll Distributor

Cole & Dunas announce that they have just been appointed distributors for the Connorized Music Roll Co., of New York. They will cover the entire trade throughout the Chicago territory. The class of Connorized rolls to be featured by Cole & Dunas will be those specialties containing ukulele chords on rolls. These chords are printed alongside of the words. Similar rolls for banjo, ukulele mandolin and ukulele banjo will also be specialized in by Cole & Dunas. In conjunction with these popular hits a complete line of Connorized rolls will be kept in stock for distribution.

Clever Fibre Needle Publicity

One notices that just lately the trade as a whole has been doing more in the way of publicity than ever before. We know not a single manufacturer in this section who is not working his mailing list for all there is in it, in addition to his regular trade-paper advertising. This results, we believe, in the present unusual activities seen in the trade to-day. One concern that we have in mind has been doing an unprecedented amount of mail advertising and that is none other than the Hall Mfg. Co., manufacturer of the famous Hall fibre needle. This concern is getting out every imaginable kind of an envelope stuffer to be used by the dealer in boosting his trade and educating the ultimate

The slogan on this little leaflet reads: "We request that until you have made your selection these records be played only with Hall fibre needles. This is, as can be seen, a very subtle little piece of publicity for the benefit of Hall needles and is worded in a clever way by H. J. Fiddelke, general sales manager of the Hall Co., so that it will cause the person who gets the record on approval to be more careful in his handling of it.

"United" Offers New Service

After years of study the United Mfg. & Distributing Co., maker of the well-known Unit motors, has decided that the most important service that can be offered by any manufacturer of motors pertains to the spring. With this end in view the United motor was made so that the spring could be removed and reassembled with a minimum amount of work and trouble. This is particularly true in its No. 6 series, where it is only necessary to remove two nuts from the end of the suspension rods in order to take off the spring assembly.

It is this structural advantage which makes it possible for the United Mfg. & Distributing Co. to offer its customers a service whereby the United Co. will ship United motor users as many complete spring assemblies as said user feels he may require.

The new idea is that the manufacturer, jobber or dealer who handles United motors may now be in position to make an immediate adjustment of a broken spring with a minimum cost of time, labor and money. In other words the United Co. is willing to do 98 per cent of the work required in repairing broken springs and make no charge for it.

Clever Columbia Feist Window

The Symphony Music Co., well-known Columbia dealer, of this city, recently featured an effective and ingenious window display, using as a centerpiece a large map of the world with the slogan, "The World Over, You Can't Go Wrong With Any Feist Song." Every Feist song featured was tied to the centerpiece and to the Columbia record of that selection with a colored ribbon.

Montgomery Meets With Accident

On Friday morning, July 27, W. D. Montgomery, manager of the Chicago district of the Unit Construction Co., met with an accident at Fourteenth and Michigan avenue, Chicago. Mr. Montgomery was a passenger in the automobile of James Franey, vice-president and general manager of the City Tire Co., exclusive Brunswick tire dealer, and while driving south on Michigan avenue a speeder forced Mr. Franey's car against a safety island, overturning it. Both Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Franey were pinned under the car and were badly injured, Mr. Franey suffering lacerations of the face and Mr. Montgomery suffering lacerations of the face and a fracture of the frontal sinus of the skull. Latest reports coming from St. Luke's Hospital, where both were rushed, say that Mr. Franey has recovered sufficiently to be discharged and Mr. Montgomery will be out on Tuesday, August 7.

Vitanola Opens Chicago Headquarters

The Vitanola Talking Machine Co., of Saginaw, Mich., has moved the general sales office and display rooms back to Chicago. These are now located at 738 South Michigan avenue, on the first floor. The wareroom is beautifully fitted and carries the complete Vitanola line of uprights and consoles. A large show window, looking out on Chicago's busiest thoroughfare, is equipped with a beautiful Tudor model Vitanola, which bears the trade name "No. 46." This instrument is finished in genuine mahogany and carries the Vitanola motor and tone arm. Its size is 35 1/4 inches high, 40 inches wide and 24 inches deep. The amplifier is centrally located, on either side of which are compartments for record albums. The entire metal trimming of the instrument is in gold plate.

The move was made in order to facilitate the business of the rapidly growing Vitanola Talking Machine Co. However, it is expected that these headquarters will not be permanent, as plans are being made to establish permanent Vitanola headquarters in the big new Furniture Mart, which will in all probability be ready for occupancy on January 1. This building is said to be the largest of its kind ever attempted and is being erected at Lakeshore Drive, near the Municipal Pier. The new Vitanola offices are being supervised by Messrs. M. C. Schiff, president, and S. S. Schiff, vice-president and general manager.

Attractive Victor Window

One of the most attractive Victor windows that have been seen in Chicago during the Summer has been shown by Lyon & Healy, Inc. The window depicts a Summer home and shows in the background the veranda of a bungalow. In the foreground is seen the figure of a woman listening intently to an upright Victrola and at her side is a tree from which hangs a swing, whereon the figure of a child is seated. The turntable of the Victrola is in motion, as is the swing, and the picture as a whole is very life-like. In either corner of the window may be seen a number of Victor Red Seal records and a Victor portable instrument.

GEORGIE PRICE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Victor Artist, Appearing in "Spice of 1922," Meets Minneapolis Dealers in Offices of George C. Beckwith Co.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., August 6.—The recent appearance in the offices of the George C. Beckwith Co., Victor jobber, of this city, of Georgie Price, Victor artist, who is appearing in "Spice of 1922," in an exhibition in connection with his records, has resulted in increased interest of Victor dealers and members of their sales organizations, who were present, in this artist's recordings. Added interest was given to the event because Mr. Price's wife, a Minneapolis girl, also appearing in "Spice of 1922," was present. The picture shows Mr. Price with his arm on the Victrola, Charles K. Bennett, vice-president and manager of the George C. Beckwith Co., on the extreme left and a number of local Victor dealers and salespeople.

SPEED UP ALBUM PRODUCTION

New York Album & Card Co. Rushed to Meet Growing Demand for Its Products

Max Willinger, president of the New York Album & Card Co., New York and Chicago, reports that the tendency manifested during the early Summer for quality albums is growing steadily and there is not the slightest doubt that the Fall will witness a strong quality market. Mr. Willinger recently returned from Chicago, where he spent considerable time with both the manufacturers and wholesalers. He stated that business was decidedly good and that much optimism is manifested regarding the Fall outlook. Many manufacturers, he reported, are already planning for increased production to take care of the demand. Production in both the New York and Chicago factories of the New York Album & Card Co. has been speeded up to keep pace with the increased volume of album orders being received. Mr. Willinger also stated that the new record delivery envelope which the New York Album & Card Co. recently placed on the market is in good demand.

DISCUSS QUESTION OF RECORDS

Talking Machine Men, Inc., of New York, Plan to Protect Dealers Against Prohibition of Store Door Playing in Gotham

The leading topic of discussion at the meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., at the Café Boulevard, New York, in July was as to whether it would be a good thing for the trade to handle 50-cent records and the matter was discussed pro and con, many relating their experiences in handling various-priced records.

A motion was passed empowering the executive committee of the association to protect the interests of the metropolitan trade against the passage of a city ordinance prohibiting the playing of instruments in store doors to attract trade. This action is expected as the outcome of certain dealers abusing the store-door playing privilege by attaching loud speakers to their instruments. If an ordinance is proposed the executive committee plans to suggest that only the use of amplifying attachments to instruments in such use be prohibited and not the playing of the machine itself.

Sol Lazarus, chairman of the outing committee, reported that all plans for the annual outing of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., to Glen Head, N. Y., on August 14 had been made and he urged early reservations, as a limited supply of tickets was available.

The members of the association unanimously voted in favor of the formation of an Okch division and the election of an Okch vice-president.

The Joe Morris Music Co., music publisher, New York City, provided a pleasing entertainment with some of its latest numbers sung by Vernon Dalhart, well-known record artist. The program included "Just to Hide Away With You," "Cuddle-Uddle Up," "Just for Remembrance" and "Sarah Sitting in the Shining Shop."

The next meeting of the organization will be held in September, the August meeting being dispensed with. Usually meetings have been suspended in July and August, but the many important matters remaining to be settled before the close of the Summer season made the July meeting necessary.

"TREASURE CHEST" MAKES A HIT

New Group Record Merchandising Ideas Sponsored by C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Received With Enthusiasm by the Talking Machine Trade

The "Treasure Chest," the new record merchandising idea designed by William J. Haussler, general manager of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Victor wholesalers, New York City, has met with immediate popularity throughout the talking machine trade. As explained last month, it consists of a record set of six double-faced, ten-inch discs from the Victor catalog within individual record envelopes containing interesting descriptions of these records and attractively cartoned. The theme followed out in the collection consists of musical gems from six different foreign lands.

Mr. Haussler reports that 70 per cent of the accounts on the books of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., are already selling the "Treasure Chest." Of the remaining 30 per cent the great majority have not, up to the present date, received a personal call.

In commenting upon the "Treasure Chest" Mr. Haussler said, in part: "The results are entirely gratifying and have met our fondest expectations. When I say results I am not referring to the commercial aspect of the situation, for we have already spent in development, exclusive of our personal efforts, an amount that would be hard to realize for many months to come. The 'Treasure Chest' is the beginning of a new idea in the merchandising of records. It is something bigger than the individual sale of a record and, when I say the results are so gratifying, I refer to the enthusiastic manner in which dealers took hold of this new idea. Wherever the 'Treasure Chest' was shown the dealer invariably gave a spontaneous criticism favorable to a high degree. The dealers have placed themselves whole-heartedly behind the 'Treasure Chest' and several have devoted newspaper advertising space to its exploitation in the home. It is our intention to shortly place at the disposal of the dealer attractive window material on the 'Treasure Chest'."

SPECIAL VICTOR RECORD RELEASE

A special early release of six fox-trots on Victor records, to be placed on sale by retailers on August 22, has been announced by the Victor Talking Machine Co. OPTIMISM PERMEATES OMAHA TRADE

Carefully Planned and Executed Summer Sales Campaigns Responsible for Unusually Brisk Business the Past Month—The News

OMAHA, NEB., August 8.—Generally speaking, the month of July is one of the dullest in the entire year in so far as the music business is concerned, but this year seemed to have been an exception. At any rate, this is the case in Omaha, for on every side one hears nothing but optimistic reports from the talking machine dealers, and there seems to be a bright outlook for the balance of the month of August.

This may be due to the fact that dealers in this city planned their Summer campaigns carefully in advance, instead of taking it for granted that business must, of necessity, fall off during July and August.

R. S. Pribyl, district manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., with headquarters in Omaha, has recently been out over the surrounding territory, directing the campaign and speeding up sales, and he reports conditions to be excellent in their line. Sales have exceeded their expectations. The demand for the console type of machines is still very marked, yet in many localities the upright model is still "going strong."

The Schmoller & Mueller Music Co. reports business in the talking machine trade to be excellent.

K. R. Moses, sales manager of Shultz Bros., Edison jobbers, declares that the amount of business done by his firm for the last month doubles that of the previous month. This firm recently took over the talking machines of Rouse Bros., an Omaha firm of retailers, and has been conducting a very successful sale of these machines. The report from the record department of Shultz Bros. indicates good business.

Okeh records and Sonora talking machines are more than holding their own during the Summer months, according to the Lee-Coit-Andreesen Co. The Okeh records lend themselves to the vacation spirit which pervades everything just now, and the sale of the dance records has been especially good.

P. G. Spitz, manager of the talking machine department of J. L. Brandeis Co., has just left for a trip to New York and other Eastern cities. Mr. Spitz recently put over a remarkable sale of Columbia machines and "went over the top" during July in general sales to a very gratifying extent. Miss Ruth Carlson, who is in charge of the record department, declares that the record business has set a high mark during July. They were compelled to enlarge the space and shelving in this department, owing to increased business.

Frank H. Resnick, manager of the phonograph department of the Union Outfitting Co., reports an increased volume of business during July. This company installed the Brunswick machine a few months since and has been featuring this make.

Miss Lois Ferrin, manager of the phonograph department of the Burgess-Nash Co., one of the largest department stores in Omaha, is putting on a big sale of radio outfits. Due to the great purchasing power of the Burgess-Nash Co., they are offering these machines at a price that is proving a great drawing card.

LIVE OGDEN DEALERS WIN BUSINESS

Aggressive Merchandising Methods Return Dividends in Increased Business—Glen Bros.-Roberts Co. Prepares to Move—Other News

OGDEN, UTAH, August 6.—Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. is busy arranging for the removal in September to the new store to be located at 2546 Washington avenue. T. J. Holland, sales manager, said the company is to make a number of innovations in the new home to provide for more efficient handling of the trade.

"We are building a twelve-foot turn-table in the display window," he said, "which will be large enough to hold a grand piano or several Edison phonographs. The record department will be rearranged under the direction of a single stock clerk, or more if necessary. The salespeople will get their records direct from the stock clerk instead of hunting through the files and cabinets as has been the custom in the old store. This will give the salespeople more time to devote to actual selling and it will also give the customer better service."

Business during July was very good, Mr. Holland said. Despite the heat, Glen Bros.-Roberts had an excellent demand for records and phonographs moved fairly well. Portables are still selling as briskly as they were in the early Summer.

Charles T. Kaffenberger, of Buegeleisen & Jacobson, called on Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. on his twenty-ninth annual trip for his house.

Ruth Davis and Bertha Monson, of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Co., have returned from their annual vacation. Mrs. Peggy White is spending her vacation in Oregon. T. J. Holland, the salesmanager, is preparing for an automobile trip through Yellowstone Park with his family.

Browning Bros. Co. reports a growing inquiry for console type Brunswicks. The demand for portables continues.

C. E. Armstrong, Edison and Pathé dealer, reports a steady demand for popular records. Business is good for this time of year, Mr. Armstrong said. "We have begun to feel the influence of the Fall inquiry," he said. "Calls for portables are giving way to queries for the cabinet and console types, with the latter in favor."

The Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., Edison distributor for Utah and Idaho, gives a sanguine report on business conditions. "We are getting the edge of the Fall buying," Robert

The demand of the public for the NEW EDISON was never greater. The models never more artistic. The records never better. The service in record releases never so prompt.

Proudfit stated. "Our men have gone into the field again this month confidently expecting a good turnover. Business has held up well during the Summer and we have no cause for complaint."

Mr. Proudfit reported that Keith & O'Brien, Salt Lake department store merchants, have discontinued both the Victor and Edison lines. The phonograph department was abandoned on account of reduced space in the firm's new home.

C. B. Sampson, of the Sampson Music Co., Boise, Ida., Edison dealer, said on a visit to Ogden that "business is something to boast about in Boise." Mr. Sampson has just completed painting signs along 1,600 miles of his "Sampson's trail." Mr. Sampson, at his own expense, has spent $8,000 on orange colored paint to blaze the way from all points in Idaho and Utah to his store at Boise. Automobile tourists in the two Western States have been benefited by Mr. Sampson's hobby. He said he will blaze a trail through the Idaho panhandle and then stop for the Summer. He only recently completed the trail from Boise to Ogden.

Ezra Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Shop, dealer in Brunswicks and Sonoras, is enjoying a fast moving record business. The sale of records this year was 100 per cent better than during the Summer of 1922, he said.

Mr. Jones and family have returned from Bear Lake, a Utah-Idaho mountain lake resort, where they spent several days.

Unremitting Efforts of Dealers Have Brought Prosperity—Bright Fall Outlook—The Month's News

ALBANY, N. Y., August 9.—Albany talking machine dealers, without exception, have had a good Summer business. This has been due in part to better business conditions than last year, but largely to unremitting efforts and up-to-date methods of sales promotion. Window displays, advertising and canvassing were the means used to maintain business to the satisfaction of the dealers and to meet future anticipations. The new consoles or period models of talking machines have given the dealers something better to talk about than they have had before and the public has shown a decided interest in them. The Victor dealers, Strand Temple of Music, Thomas Music Co., Boardman & Gray, McClure & Dorwaldt and Diamond Disc Co., have just received the new Victrola models, Nos. 400, 405 and 410, and they are enthusiastic over the sales prospects of these instruments.

L. W. Schutter, manager of the Thomas store, has been making a drive for rural business with excellent results and consequently sales volume for the past three months far exceeded that of the same period last year. Willard Marshman, of the sales force, has returned from a vacation at Asbury Park, and Herbert Earl and Miss Molly Rogers are vacationing this month.

Mr. Losey, representative of the Music Sales Co. of New York, called on the Victor dealers recently and was full of enthusiasm over the new Victrola models, which he said were going big throughout his territory.

The Brunswick dealers have also received the new console Stratford and Tudor models. The Pommer Music Store sold several as soon as received and it is advertising them extensively. The new Brunswick catalog of "blues" is expected soon. There have been many inquiries for these popular records. The Pommer Music Store is completing its second year in business and reports a big increase over the first Summer's sales, so that plans are being made for increasing the sales organization of the record department.

Edison demand has held up in a most surprising manner and consequently the American Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, with headquarters at 707-09 Broadway, this city, has enjoyed a satisfactory business during the Summer months. Dealers are looking for a continuance of this satisfactory condition and an even greater improvement during the Fall and Winter, and this optimism is reflected in the manner in which the Edison merchants are making their plans for the Fall.

William Caine has been placed in charge of the musical merchandise department of the Baker Music Co.'s local store, to succeed Anthony LaRosa, resigned. Mr. Caine is well known in Albany musical circles and is a good player of stringed instruments. The first shipment of Conn band instruments has arrived at this store and they are being extensively advertised in the first Sunday rotogravure section of the Knickerbocker Press for August. Mr. Caine will feature daily recitals in the store. O. E. Kellogg, new general sales manager of the company, has returned from a week's motor trip over the Lackawanna trail and Delaware Water Gap to New Haven, Conn.

Arrangements have been made for the complete representation of Brunswick phonographs and records for the Baker Schenectady store. John H. Begley has been engaged as manager of the musical merchandise department, in which is being featured the new line of Conn band instruments. The new store at 508 State street is now fully furnished and the new Brunswick models fit pleasingly into the artistic arrangement of the store. Manager A. J. Clapper sold his first shipment promptly and wired for more machines. He is now taking a vacation at Oneida Lake and the store is in charge of Charles H. Riley.

Edgar Kahn, representative of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., of New York, was a recent caller on Albany dealers.

Increase in Automobile Production Felt in Greater Prosperity of Retail Trade—Month's News

DETROIT, MICH., August 7.—Just why July talking machine business should have been so good this year Detroit dealers themselves cannot understand. All they know is that sales for the month and collections are considerably ahead of the same month a year ago, and frankly, they did not anticipate conditions would be so good. They looked for a big slump—but it did not come. With some dealers the portable machines have been very big sellers. One retail furniture instalment house sold something like 250 in one week.

The big business men of Detroit were predicting last May and June that July would see the demand for motor cars falling off and as a natural consequence the automobile factories would be laying off thousands of men. Even the manufacturers themselves expected something like this to happen, but instead orders have piled up all during the month and every factory has been operating to capacity. Even August has started out most auspiciously, and it looks now as if the Detroit plants will be kept busy for months to come. This is a condition that helps retail business immensely and is probably responsible for such good business with talking machine dealers.

Grinnell Bros., through C. A. Grinnell, president, entertained their employes on July 26 at the old Detroit Motor Boat Club, which is the property of Mr. Grinnell. All the Detroit stores and the wholesale departments and Detroit factory were closed at 1 p. m. that day and the employes met at the club house. The afternoon was given over to sports of all kinds for both men and women; there was a baseball game, tug of war, etc., prizes being given to the winners of all contests. After dinner was served the evening was given over to dancing. The various entertainments were handled through the auspices of The Goodfellowship Club, which comprises the male employes.

A. A. Grinnell, treasurer of Grinnell Bros., who is sojourning in Europe with Mrs. Grinnell, sent cards in the other day to the effect that he was thoroughly enjoying his trip, but that the more he saw of Europe the better he liked America—and that nowhere in Europe is there the hustle and bustle that one sees in the big American cities, such as Detroit, New York and Chicago.

R. B. Alling, manager of The Phonograph Co. of Detroit, Edison jobber, as well as The Edison Shop, retailers, returned August 2 from an extended vacation, which he spent on a ranch in Wyoming. He told The World correspondent that much to his surprise business

S. E. Lind, of Lind & Marks Co., can't help but feel enthused over Fall prospects when he considers what he has been doing during July with the Vocalion line, for which he is the exclusive Michigan distributor. Mr. Lind is one of the oldest and best-known talking machine men in the country. For years he was Detroit manager of the Columbia Co., resigning to take a much-needed rest. Three years ago he organized the Lind & Marks Co. to distribute Vocalion products, and that the company has more than made good is proved by the fact that he has enlarged the storage space and the selling organization. Mr. Lind states that he has sold a raft of the Vocalion portable machines this Summer.

The Michigan State Fair, to be held at the Fair Grounds in Detroit, will take place as usual during September and already a number of talking machine firms have contracted to take space. Grinnell Bros., of course, will have a large display of the complete Victor line, the latest in records, etc. It is also likely that the J. L. Hudson Music Store will have an exhibit as well as a number of piano concerns. Musical merchandise will also be exhibited.

Columbia Artist Appears in Atlanta Theatre—
Novel Performance Attracts Attention

Bessie Smith, popular blues singer and exclusive Columbia artist, is touring the South. During the week that she appeared at the Eighty-one Theatre, a large negro playhouse in Atlanta, a performance exclusively for white people was given. This was the first "Midnight Frolic" for white people ever offered in Atlanta. The idea originated with the Lyric Theatre of New Orleans, where this type of performance has become an institution. It serves a double purpose, an evening's entertainment and an opportunity for white people to see the progress made by the colored performers.

The "Treasure Chest"—A Decided Success

Victor Dealers of twenty and more years' experience—those who know the business from A to Z and backwards—are strong in their praise of the "Treasure Chest." They frankly say that it "fills the gap" and answers "a dire need." That's why everybody's talking "Treasure Chest" today—the big idea of the year.

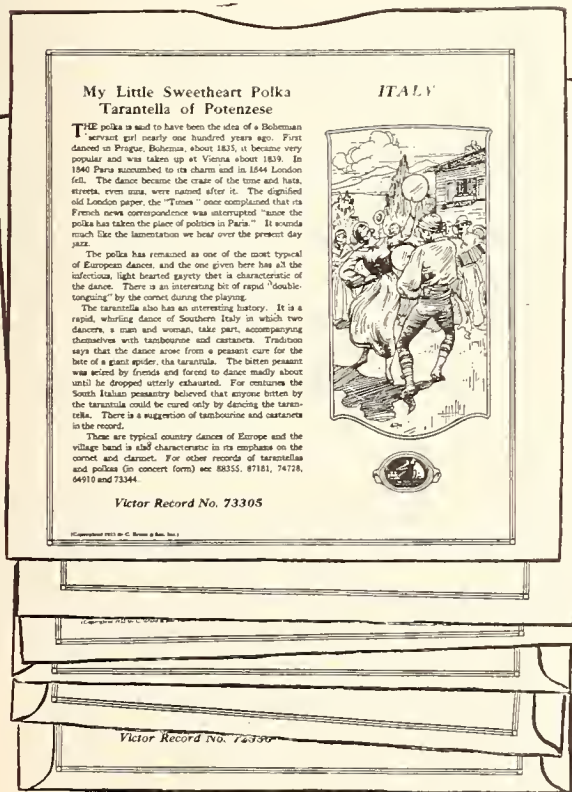

Less than three weeks from the day of its announcement just 72% of our accounts added the "Treasure Chest" to their stock—a particularly high commendation considering the season of the year.

Victor Dealers, the "Treasure Chest" offers you a brand-new record merchandising stunt that has real intrinsic value. It is an item well worthy of your time and investment. It does more than sell itself. It is chuck-full of "human interest" that will create favorable comment about your store—'twill make people know that you're a specialist in Victor products; gets them in the habit of knowing that you're ever-watchful, up-to-date, that anything having the merit of Victor is to be had at your store.

The "Treasure Chest" fully meets the demand for novelty and entertainment. It comprises six 10-inch double-faced Victor records (12 selections) of the choicest instrumental music of foreign lands—every selection being a musical gem and novelty. The "chest" and envelope of each record has on it a spirited and effective drawing appropriate to the music, together with an interesting and vivid annotation. Where you previously sold one record, Mr. Victor Dealer, you will now sell six and with less effort.

Let your Victor wholesaler know that you are interested in the "Treasure Chest." Place your order with him. The rest he will do.

Summer Trade Exceeds Expectations—New Models Please—Outlook for Fall Bright—The News

BUFFALO, N. Y., August 8.—The usual Summer slump in the talking machine trade was not so noticeable this year in Buffalo as in years past. Dealers, with very few exceptions, report trade far exceeding their expectations and running ahead of last Summer. Popular records are moving in large volume. Portables are in good demand, due to the unusual camping facilities and canoeing and motoring craze in and about Buffalo, dealers report. One Main street dealer said he has had a number of calls for portable machines for motorists who are planning long trips.

F. F. Barber, manager of the J. N. Adam Music store, said: "We have had a very good Summer business in the higher-priced talking machines. We have gone over the top of last year's business each and every month, and we expect very good Fall trade." Mr. Barber has just returned from New York, where he arranged for his Fall stock.

Curtis N. Andrews, Victor jobber, spent a few days on a business trip which included a visit to New York, where he called upon some of his many friends in the trade. Mr. Andrews found general conditions very satisfactory, with the Victor jobbers and dealers all making plans for a banner Fall trade. Upon his return Mr. Andrews was glad to learn that the dealers in this territory are keenly enthusiastic regarding the outlook for the coming season, particularly in view of the recent important announcements made by the Victor Co.

The Iroquois Sales Corp. opened up the store of the North Park Electric Shop in Kenmore with a supply of Okeh records. Strand phonographs are still keeping ahead of last year's demand and the Wm. Hengerer Co. is handling the Strand special with real success.

Joe Armbruster's Orchestra, popular society dance orchestra of this city, will leave soon for Narragansett Pier for the home of Peter A. Porter, where it has been engaged for several days. From there it will go to the General Phonograph Co., in New York, to make its first Okeh recordings.

Appearance of Bennie Krueger and His Dance Orchestra, Brunswick artists, greatly stimulated sales of his records here. The orchestra was brought to Buffalo by Albert Poppenberg, new

A Suggestion

Without question Victor retailers will enjoy this coming Fall the greatest season in history and we are all making plans in this direction.

However, we will offer the suggestion to Victor dealers in our territory that they anticipate their Fall and holiday requirements if possible in order that we may give them maximum co-operation and service. There is going to be a shortage of Victor products this Fall, and the farsighted dealer will place orders now wherever possible, so that the 1923 Fall and holiday season will find him prepared and ready to meet the requirements of his trade.

This is only a suggestion which is offered to our dealers in a spirit of timely goodwill.

proprietor of the Braner Music Shop, Brunswick and Columbia dealer. A number of improvements will be made in the Braner Music Shop by Albert Poppenberg, who recently purchased the business, before his Fall stock is received. Mr. Poppenberg was formerly in the music trade with his brother, G. H. Poppenberg, and dissolved partnership about a year ago.

O. L. Neal, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., says the new Victor models, 405 and 400, are receiving a warm reception from the trade here. These two models are a radical departure from what the Victor Co. has put out before and already a noticeable demand indicates they will not be able to supply orders which are sure to come in for Fall trade.

The Bakertone, an instrument manufactured in Buffalo which has been successfully demonstrated as removing all surface noises of the disc, has recently been improved so that it now not only removes disc sounds, but brings out the full tone of the needle, and in many instances, according to J. T. Kimberley, district manager in Buffalo, brings out greater than needle volume. Arrangements are now being made by the Bakertone Co. to give the instrument national distribution. Distributing stations are being established in all leading cities of the continent.

The Bellanca Furniture Co. will move into its new quarters on Niagara and Virginia streets, about September 1. A great deal of careful planning has been done for the arrangement of the talking machine department. The new building, now receiving its finishing touches, is built of brick and tile at a cost of $40,000.

Charles Liske is making extensive improvements in his store at Genesee street and Fillmore avenue.

Alexander Maisel began improvements in his store on Broadway this month. The entire interior of the store will be improved and rearranged.

M. Truda has moved from the old location on West Ferry street to the rapidly growing section of the city at Delaware avenue and Delaware road.

The Iroquois Sales Corp., of this city, Okeh jobber, states that its Okeh sales this year are about 50 per cent ahead of the corresponding period of 1922. F. D. Clare, general manager of the company, attributes a considerable portion of this increase to the splendid foreign catalog issued by the General Phonograph Corp., which contains a great many numbers that are in constant demand.

The popular dance numbers in the Okeh lists are meeting with a steady and active demand and Mr. Clare believes that the recent edition of the numerical and alphabetical Okeh catalogs will serve to increase the sale of the standard and semi-standard selections, as well as the general catalog. Mr. Clare looks forward to the coming season as the most prosperous one in the history of the Iroquois Sales Corp., with the ratio of increase for the remainder of the year exceeding the 50 per cent figures for the first six months.

In a recent chat with The World O. L. Neal, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, commented upon the fact that business conditions throughout this territory are excellent. The company is particularly concerned in the prospect of a shortage of Victor merchandise during the Fall and Winter months, as all indications point to a substantial shortage of Victrolas and Victor records. Mr. Neal is now away on a month's vacation at his farm in Nichols overlooking the Susquehanna River, where he is forgetting all about Victor merchandising and enjoying a well-deserved rest.

Buffalo dealers featured in window displays Victor records made by the Royal Blue and White Marimba Band, which recently appeared in the Hippodrome for a two weeks' concert. Many sales were created through the feature.

George Goold, of Goold Bros., Inc., recently entertained newspaper men of the Buffalo press at the Transit Valley Golf Club, where a tournament was being conducted. Mr. Goold is president of the club. He proved himself an ideal host and the day was most enjoyable for the men of the press.

Charles Hoffman, of the Hoffman Piano Co., has returned from a hunting trip in Canada feeling fit and fine for preparations for a huge Fall business.

George H. Castle, Niagara street music merchant, is making his window especially attractive through a display of Egyptian antiques.

Ralph W. Liske, Niagara Falls dealer, is selling out his Columbia stock preparatory to going out of business.

F. A. Russell, sales manager for Neal, Clark and Neal, reports an especially good demand for the Victor selling from $180 to $250.

A number of talking machine dealers were losers in the $750,000 fire in Salamanca recently, which destroyed a large part of the business section of the town. Among those who suffered loss were: Fred Forness, loss $50,000, partially covered by insurance; Manieri Furniture Co., $6,000, covered, and J. Zafron, $5,000, partially covered.

A warehouse of the H. E. Turner Co., in Batavia, N. Y., was recently destroyed by fire. The company's loss did not include its stock of talking machines, which were stored in another building.

Defective wiring caused a blaze which damaged the store of W. L. Foehley, in Hamburg, dealer in furniture and musical instruments. His loss is estimated at about $10,000.

Frank A. Grohs, prominent Exchange street music merchant, died recently in the Emergency Hospital, following a long illness. He was fifty-nine years old. He organized the Grohs Piano Co. about twenty-two years ago and was known as the first merchant in Buffalo to sell instruments on the part-payment plan.

John W. Casement, fifty-two years old, dealer in musical instruments and furniture in Albion, N. Y., died recently in his home in West Bank street. He had conducted the store for more than fifteen years.

CAUSE OF COMMERCIAL DISASTER

Secretary of Credit Men's Association Emphasizes Importance of Knowing Business Costs

We can say two and two are five, and base our calculations accordingly; but four is all that we can truly ever get from this addition, says J. H. Tregoe, secretary of the National Association of Credit Men. A large proportion of our commercial accidents occur for the reason that the operators of a business enterprise are endeavoring to convince themselves and others that two and two make five. Estimates may be drawn up, but, unless these estimates provide for every possible cost and every reasonable emergency, the final result will not bear out the estimate.

Were I asked to name the paramount duty of business operators, whether large or small, I should immediately respond, "Know your costs." Everything may seem to be going along gaily, with plenty of sales. The situation will change rapidly, however, when it is discovered that the profits were more than eaten up by the costs. Let us shout it from the house-tops, "Know your costs." They are at the base of price movements.

J. N. BLACKMAN ON "AUTO" TRIP

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, accompanied by Mrs. Blackman and their son Albert, who was graduated recently from the University of Pennsylvania, spent ten days this month on an automobile trip through the Berkshires and the Green Mountains, returning to New York by way of the Adirondacks.

Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager of the company, spent ten days at his Summer home in Lake Mahopac, N. Y., and will probably return there for another week during the latter part of the month.

Leviten's Music & Sporting Goods Shop, New York, has just filed papers for incorporation and will have an assigned capital of $10,000. F. and P. Rodgen and R. Mayer are the incorporators. R. S. Deutsch, 261 Broadway, will act as attorney.

Again—a dealer writes:—
"Just one year ago we put in our first BANNER RECORDS. We cannot say enough for them—we certainly have pleased our customers—they are always ready and waiting for new releases."

This commendation has special significance. Banner brought repeat sales in July—excellent proof of its selling power. It turned this dealer's usual slump season into a profitable season.

Certainly the Banner merchant finds that Banner pays in quick, numerous sales, and pleased "willing-to-buy" customers.

The reason is obvious. Banner at 50c gives a full 75c record value. That value has created for Banner a wide preference everywhere.

Keen Interest of Music Trades in Announcement of Band Contest—L. M. Cole in New Post—Planning Ad Drive—The News

SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 8.—Talking machine dealers in this city are keenly interested in an announcement recently made by the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce stating that this organization will hold a band contest in connection with Syracuse Day at the New York State Fair, to be held in this city September 10. This band contest is open to all New York State non-professional bands, Class A bands up to forty instruments and Class B bands of not over twenty-five instruments. Very generous cash prizes are offered for first, second and third places in each class and band instruments will be awarded for some other ratings.

Band Contest Arouses Interest

This band contest has aroused a great deal of interest all over the State and bands from all corners of New York have sent in their applications to compete for the prizes. The details of this band contest are being handled by a special committee appointed by the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce, including some of the leading bandmasters of the country. The local music dealers are co-operating with this committee and have circularized the entire State on lists of bandmasters and others especially interested in this class of music. Included in the applications already received are some of the leading town bands, factory bands, organization and lodge bands throughout the State.

Test Piece for Each Band

A test piece will be furnished to each band filing an application for the contest and then each organization will be allowed to play a march of its own choice immediately upon taking its place on the band stand. This march will not be judged, but will be for the purpose of allowing the players to "tune up" and then the test piece as furnished by the contest committee will be played and judged. All competing are required to play in uniform and a representative from each band will participate in drawing for place and position. In addition to all of these amateur bands the famous bandmaster, Patrick Conway, and his band have been engaged by the State Fair committee to give daily concerts during the entire week of the State Fair.

Attractive Sonora Display

Considerable attention was drawn last week to the window display featured by the Clark Music Co., presenting in a rich and dignified setting the handsome Italian Renaissance Sonora. This enterprising dealer made a special showing of Sonoras during the week, having a number of artistic period models on the floor. This display stimulated sales materially and was commented upon very favorably by local music lovers.

Excellent Victor Business

Victor dealers in Syracuse report a very active record business, especially in the popular songs and late dance numbers, with more than the usual amount of Summer trade in small instruments and portable types of Victrolas for use in Summer cottages and camps. The first samples of the new Victrola art models were received by the local dealers with keen enthusiasm and will be featured extensively through the use of effective and timely advertising.

L. M. Cole With Gibson-Snow

Lionel M. Cole, one of the most popular wholesale men in this section of the State, is now covering eastern New York territory for the Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., Sonora jobber, of this city. Mr. Cole was a member of the Gibson-Snow staff a number of years ago, being associated more recently with the Iroquois Sales Co., of Buffalo. He numbers among his friends practically all of the talking machine dealers in eastern New York territory, and his return to Sonora activities will be welcome news to these dealers.

W. D. Andrews on Auto Trip

W. D. Andrews, president of the W. D. Andrews Co., of this city, Victor wholesaler, spent a few days recently touring through the lake and mountain resorts of New York State, completing his trip with a few days at Atlantic City and a call at the Victor Talking Machine Co.'s plant at Camden, N. J.

Planning Advertising Campaign

In the near future the Gibson-Snow Co., Inc., Sonora jobber, will start an advertising campaign in this city which will feature the mechanical construction and tone quality of the Sonora. This campaign will be launched in conjunction with a nation-wide advertising drive which the Sonora Phonograph Co. is planning to inaugurate for the benefit of its trade.

Activity Among Edison Dealers

Edison dealers in Syracuse and the surrounding territory, in which the House of Bolway, Edison distributor, is located, are all making plans for a banner Fall trade, and in all probability there will be a greater activity in behalf of Edison product than for several years. Quite a number of Edison dealers are making arrangements to use consistent publicity through the

DEAD MEN ARE POOR PROSPECTS

Sending Literature and Mail to Prospects That Do Not Exist Can Be Eliminated by Revising and Correcting the Mailing List

A writer in one of the advertising journals recently pointed out that "Dead men buy no shoes, or soap or mining stocks." This writer then went on to say that thousands of advertisers make the mistake of buying or compiling a fairly accurate mailing list and then forgetting all about it. Mailing pieces go out more or less regularly. And a certain percentage of them come back marked "Dead," "Moved," "Out of Business," "Not at Address Given," etc.

Nobody thinks to check off these names from the mailing list. Again mailing pieces go out to these same "dead" names. And again they are returned undelivered. When this condition has obtained for a year or, as is frequently the case, for several years the mailing list is carrying enough dead wood to blast the hopes of even the best of direct advertising campaigns, says Office Topics.

A recent investigation in a typical retail field disclosed the fact that there were in a single year 24 per cent changes in addresses. On this basis an uncorrected mailing list four years old, let us say, would be practically worthless. In your field the percentage of change may be more. It might, quite possibly, be a little less. But, at best, it is certainly sufficient to warrant the closest kind of check to avoid errors.

An even stronger argument for keeping the mailing list in tune with the times is the fact that new prospects for your merchandise or your service are continually entering the field. You want to get your story before these folks. The only sure way to do is to make certain that their names are properly entered on your mailing list. Failure to remove a "dead" name means at worst that you have simply wasted money in printing and postage. But failure to get a "live" name on your list may mean the loss of a great deal of profitable business.

Perhaps the greatest single fault of an average mailing list is its incompleteness. Initials wrong. Names spelled incorrectly. Street addresses omitted. All these are common evidences of carelessness. And yet some men wonder why direct advertising doesn't bring better results for them.

Many Dealers Add New Lines—Activities of Dealers Reflected in Excellent Business—Brisk Record Demand Feature of Trade

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., August 7.—The passing of the Summer will, no doubt, prove to local dealers that the talking machine and record business is not dependent entirely upon the trade of the Fall and Winter months. In every instance the record business has shown a gain over a corresponding period of last year and in some cases the trade has doubled, which all points to the fact that the dealer's business in the future will not be seasonable, but will be distributed throughout the year.

Many New Edison Dealers

H. G. Anderson, of the sales promotion department, and L. P. Brock are covering the territory of the Edison Corp. of Indiana and looking to the establishment of new branches. Dealers are showing a desire to handle the Edison line. Intensive canvassing during the past month has brought an increase in business, and new dealers have been established, chief among whom are the Circle Talking Machine Co., of Indianapolis; Meskill Music Co., of Indianapolis; Frank E. Felt, New Castle, Ind.; Andree Swinson, Bemet, Ill.; G. G. Grahm, Veedersburg, Ind.; Orville O. Wisheart, Shirley, Ind.; the Kellar Co., Fowler, Ind.; J. A. Vest, Scottsburg, Ind.; F. M. Baker, Shoals, Ind.; F. E. McDonald, Sheridan, Ind.; L. E. Moore, Rossville, Ind.; Hardin Drug Co., Flat Rock, Ill.; R. C. Weg Drug Co., St. Bernice, Ind.; Menefee & Sons, Auburn, Ind.; Jordan Drug Shop, Paxton, Ill. There is evident an increasing interest in the Edison phonograph and Edison records in this territory.

The closing of the local Edison Shop has been consummated and the Carlin Music Co., which handles the Edison line, has taken over all the accounts of the former store. This marks the retirement of Walter Kipp, who for many years has been associated with the Edison Corp. and who is now in the West for his health. William H. Meskill, who has just recently formed the Meskill Music Co., was formerly resident financial manager of the Edison Corp. Joseph Wilson, assistant secretary of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has been in the city for the last ten days, going over the local accounting system.

Forest Cheney Gets in Touch With Trade

The Brunswick Shop is showing an unusual business these days in all styles of machines, with a nice gain in records. This is attributed to the growing popularity of the Brunswick products in this territory.

The L. S. Ayres Co., through its talking machine department, is making a drive on Victor machines, both in the new and discontinued models, which has already resulted in doubling the business as shown by the same period of last year.

Edward Mayer, manager of the talking machine department of the Kiefer-Stewart Drug Co., wholesale distributor of the Sonora, is in Europe on business for the firm. Orders for Fall deliveries are showing a nice gain.

T. H. Brackin, local manager of the Starr Piano Co., states that the Gennett records have doubled in sales over July of last year. This is due to the wider acquaintance of the Gennett products and the promptness of getting popular numbers on the market.

A. H. Bates, vice-president of the Ohio Talking Machine Co., of Cincinnati, O.; William Everly, of the Vocalion Co., of New York; Carlin & Quick, Kokomo, Ind.; Frank M. Baker, Shoals, Ind.; Eugene Osborn, Nobelsville, Ind., were recent visitors here.

It is his intention to later add a line of player-pianos and other musical merchandise.

MANY IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE TORONTO TERRITORY

His Master's Voice Records Made by King and Queen of England Placed in Museum—New Stores Opened—Trade Members Change Positions—Dealers Add New Lines—Other Trade News

TORONTO, ONT., August 8.—The Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto has placed in its collection the two His Master's Voice-Victor records made by Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary of England.

E. A. McMurty, manager in Canada of the Columbia Graphophone Co., with headquarters here, is of the opinion that the outlook for the four months ending December 24 next is so promising that in spite of the company's heavy factory commitments for the different designs announced in the new Columbia line there is likely to be a shortage of instruments by next December. The new Columbia line, which is now announced to the Canadian trade, embraces five consoles at $125, $150, $175, $200 and $240, providing cabinets of Queen Anne, Sheraton and William and Mary lines, according to the individual customer's desire. Beside the new Columbia portable at $62.50, the school model at $150 and the table model at $95, there are upright Grafonolas at $125, $140, $150, $175, $190, $215 and $270.

The yearly picnic or outing of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s manufacturing and sales employes took place recently at Center Island and was a marked success. On this occasion Mr. McMurty, who recently took up residence in Toronto as Canadian manager, was introduced to the Columbia employes, who cordially welcomed him to Columbia ranks in Canada.

James P. Bradt and Mrs. Bradt have taken up residence in Toronto for the Summer season. THE MONTH'S ACTIVITIES AMONG DEALERS IN WINNIPEG

Some Free Publicity for Old Local Concerns—Canadians Hear Feist Song Hits Over the Radio—Sells Records to Mounted Police in the Far North—General News of the Trade

WINNIPEG, MAN., August 7.—A recent issue of the Calgary, Alta., Herald devoted several pages to the local firms that have been in business in Calgary for fifteen years or more. These included D. J. Young & Co., Ltd., established twenty-one years; Alberta Piano Co., Ltd., twenty years; Heintzman Co., Ltd., nineteen years, and C. B. Clarke, fifteen years.

The Killarney Music Store, Killarney, Man., has been reopened by Proprietor Cooney with a stock of records and sheet music.

Ernest Hammond, of Leo Feist, Ltd., Toronto, has been singing a number of Feist song hits over the radio in Edmonton, Alta., recently.

The Alberta Piano Co., Calgary, Alta., recently remodeled and enlarged its store, moving the record stock and a portion of the Victrola stock from the basement to the main floor.

Heintzman's Edmonton, Alta., branch has had the unique experience of sending records almost to the top of the world. BUSINESS IN MONTREAL MAINTAINS EXCELLENT VOLUME

Appearances of Artists Increase Sales of Records—Retail Dealer Starts Mail Order Business—Col. Phinney Retires From Business—Window Display Attracts Attention

MONTREAL, CAN., August 8.—Business during the past month has been fairly good and well up to last year's average of the same period.

Creatore's Band, Columbia artists, are playing at Dominion Park from August 4 to 19. Whenever this band appears up goes the sale of Columbia records.

Eleanor Ball, the noted violinist who records for His Master's Voice, appeared lately at the Imperial Theatre. Brown's Talking Machine Shop supplied her with a selection of records which were played on the stage with a Victrola and profited by increased sales.

Definite arrangements have now been made for Mme. Melba, exclusive Victor artist, to make a concert tour of Canada this Autumn.

Some time ago we referred in these columns to the introduction of a new system by the postmaster general, by which merchandise could be sent parcel post c. o. d. Advantage has been taken of this by Brown's Talking Machine Shop, Inc., which has started a mail-order business.

It has been announced that Col. Phinney, of Halifax, N. S., has retired from the management of Phinney's, Ltd., music house, to take a partnership in a local law firm.

*Business Holds Up Despite Heat—
Geo. W. Lyle a Visitor—Empire
Music Co.'s New Store—The News*

ATLANTA, GA., August 8.—Mid-Summer dullness has naturally had its effect on trade in the territory; business, nevertheless, is holding up in a most satisfactory manner.

Geo. W. Lyle, president of the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., whose product, the Strand line, is winning favor from coast to coast, was a recent visitor here. Mr. Lyle stopped here on his return from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast. He is most optimistic as to talking machine conditions, the great problem for the Fall being the question of sufficient goods of the type now generally demanded. The call is for console product, and the vogue for this class of machines is attested by the appearance on the market of the latest Victor models, No. 400 and No. 405, two beautifully designed flat-top instruments. These have just made their entry into local dealers' warerooms and are being most favorably received.

The Empire Music Co., which for the past six months has been conducting the Victrola department at High's Department Store here, has branched out by opening another department in the Arcade, one of Atlanta's most central and best-patronized shopping centers. The full line of Victor records and machines, and the Strand line of period design consoles, are featured. Mr. Barfield, president of the Empire, is delighted with the way business has started off in the new place. To distinguish it from the other establishment operated by the company, the Arcade store is called "The Music Shop."

John Mohl, the genial assistant manager of the Atlanta branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., left early in the month for an extended trip throughout the territory.

The entire line of 1924 Strand models is now on display at the showroom of M. E. Lyle, local representative for the Manufacturers' Phonograph Co., Strand manufacturers.

The current advertising of Okeh records is specially featuring releases by Warner's Seven Aces, one of the most popular local dance orchestras.

Alterations are booked to start this month on extensive remodeling of the showroom of the Cable Piano Co. It is planned to make this one of the finest and most efficient music stores in the city.

Westervelt Terhunc, manager of the Atlanta regional branch of the Columbia Co., just returned from a trip to the New Orleans territory. He reports that dealers are optimistic and looking forward to big Fall business.

of "Reducing Records," have reached town. The portable is unique because of its completeness, and yet is one of the most compact machines thus far introduced here. It is handled through M. E. Lyle, who represents Health Builders in this territory.

Sales for the first seven months this year show a gain of more than 100 per cent over a year ago, according to E. F. Parr, secretary-treasurer of Phonographs, Inc., Edison distributor here. Business in general seems to be improving and the sale and demand for Edison phonographs are increasing.

W. L. F. Rosenblatt, of Phonographs, Inc., has just returned from a trip through South Carolina, where he called upon Edison dealers, and reports prospects good for that section.

E. F. Parr was on a trip last week to Savannah, Ga., where he found conditions good.

G. H. Kelley, of the Kelley Music Co., Edison dealer, Gainesville, Fla., visited the offices of Phonographs, Inc., last week and reported good prospects over his territory and that he expects to do a large Fall business.

During the past few days three new dealers have been added to the list of Phonographs, Inc., and prospects are bright for the addition of several other names to this list during the next few weeks.

Garber-Davis Dance Orchestra filled a week's engagement at Asheville, N. C., commencing August 6, playing for a benefit cabaret for the Biltmore Hospital. Columbia dealers in this territory placed orders for their requirements of Garber-Davis records in order to fill the demand as a result of this engagement.

Columbia Artist Bessie Smith appeared in Bessemer, Ala., after having filled a week's engagement in Birmingham. Previous to this she appeared in Atlanta and Macon, Ga. All engagements are going across "big." Columbia dealers are reaping big profits as a result of Bessie Smith record sales.

"Sweet Pal," written by Bob Miller, manager of Reinhardt's Grafonola department, Memphis, Tenn., is showing great popularity throughout the Southern States. Columbia dealers are expecting substantial sales of this selection when released on Columbia Record A-3737.

Walton-Ivey Furniture Co., Columbia dealer at Rockwood and Harriman, Tenn., is erecting a new building at Harriman, and is making plans to enlarge its Columbia department. This dealer reports that business is better than it has been in years. All of the mills are working on full-time basis.

Recent visitors to Columbia headquarters here were: Mr. Skelton, of the Skelton Furniture Co., Lindale, Ga.; Mr. White, of the White Music Co., Columbus, Ga., and Mr. Hood, of the Walker-Hood Co., Waycross, Ga.

Richard H. Reamy, 623 Pennsylvania avenue, S. E., Washington, D. C., recently added the Starr line of phonographs to his stock.

THERE are a few towns in our Zone covered by the Southeastern States where we have no representation and a few other towns where we need additional representation. Our proposition to those interested is an attractive one, and we are prepared to give the very best of service to Edison Dealers.

Record Demand Holds Up Well—Dealers and Jobbers Report Gains —Prominent Dealers Add New Lines—New Models Please Trade

BALTIMORE, MD., August 8.—While all talking machine jobbing houses report a very good business for the past month, with increases running from 50 to 80 per cent over that of July, 1922, the retail trade was rather dull, owing to the unusually hot weather prevailing practically all the month which seriously interfered with all lines of retail business. The record business, however, continued good throughout the month and sales of a number of portable machines for campers also helped out on the total business.

Good General Record Business

The record business the last month, taken as a whole, was one of the largest that the trade generally has experienced in several years. This is especially true of the negro records of the Columbia Co., according to William H. Swartz, treasurer of Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., who said that he finds it impossible to keep up the orders for these records from the Southern portion of the trade in his territory. The Columbia New Process records of classical music are also meeting with big results in this territory, which Mr. Swartz attributes to a large extent to the newspaper and magazine advertising which the company is doing in this section. Another reason assigned for the large increase in sales is that the dealers generally are using large numbers of the post-card record advertising with very good results, as well as liberal displays of window advertising.

John A. Oldewurtel, of the Vocalion Co. of Maryland, distributor for the Aeolian Co., also reports big increases in the Vocalion record sales throughout the State and believes this Fall and Winter season will prove one of the best in the history of the firm. Extensive advertising which the company has been doing for some time past is showing very good results in the number of orders being placed daily for the Red records.

Both E. F. Droop & Sons and Cohen & Hughes, Victor distributors, report large increases in sales for the past month or two.

Prominent Dealers Add Brunswick

C. F. Shaw, local manager of the Brunswick branch, reports business of the agency as being very good, with July business running about 80 per cent ahead of that of the corresponding month of 1922, and that even this record would have been eclipsed had he been able to supply the trade with a number of popular models of the Brunswick, especially with the York, on which the local branch has been oversold ever since this model was put on the market. Harry C. Grove, of Washington, one of the largest dealers in this territory, has just been added to the list of Brunswick dealers. Mr. Grove, who is one of the pioneer exclusive talking machine dealers, has one of the largest and handsomest establishments in the capital city, and Manager Shaw feels very much elated over having placed the Brunswick machine in the store. Another new account opened by the Brunswick the past month is that of the Moon Music House, of Burlington, N. C., and the Two Lane Music House, of Newport News, Va. In order to take care of the rapidly increasing business of the agency Mr. Shaw is making a number of extensive improvements which will greatly facilitate the handling of business. The third floor will be given over entirely to the record business which will leave the second floor for office and display rooms.

Mr. Shaw is very enthusiastic over the extensive newspaper advertising which the Brunswick people will launch throughout the country on the 15th of this month. Very encouraging reports, according to Mr. Shaw, have been received from W. D. Causey, the Virginia salesman for the Brunswick, as well as from M. M. Kuhn, of North Carolina, both of whom report very good prospects for the Fall and Winter trade.

New Victor Models Popular

T. Ralph Clark, sales manager for Cohen & Hughes, said business during July showed a very substantial gain over July, 1922, and that dealers generally are placing heavy orders for Fall trade, especially on the new art model. Mr. Clark said this is a very good sign, as dealers for the past several months had been buying rather close. He attributes this increased ordering to a large extent to the handsome new models which the Victor Co. is putting out, especially the 400's and 405's, on both of which the house has been oversold ever since they were placed on the market.

New Columbia Models Admired

Business of the Columbia Wholesalers, Inc., distributor of the Columbia line, shows a very substantial increase each month, according to William H. Swartz, secretary and treasurer, who says that the agency has been practically cleaned out of all old models and is heavily booked on the new models with exclusive Columbia features. This is especially true, he said, of the new $100 upright machine, which is the biggest seller in this territory that the company has ever put out and on which, he said, they had sold out a carlot in one day with a number of unfilled orders still on the book.

Interesting News Brieflets

William C. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons, has just returned, with his family, from an auto trip through New England. Mr. Roberts left on the 29th of July and reports having had one of the pleasantest trips since he started taking his vacation in an auto.

Trade Situation Most Encouraging—Hyatt Talking Machine Co. in New Home—Preparing for Fair—Children's Recitals Make a Hit

PORTLAND, ORE., August 4.—After making the rounds of both the jobbers and retailers of the talking machine and record industry here it is most apparent that business for the month of July was far above that of the corresponding month of 1922, and although nothing out of the ordinary transpired the sale of machines and records kept up a steady pace.

Hyatt Co.'s New Quarters

The Hyatt Talking Machine Co., for several years located at 350 Alder street, opened for business July 30 at 386 Morrison street. The new establishment gives this firm more than 20 per cent more room for merchandise and display purposes than at its previous location. On the main floor are a well-appointed service counter, six phonograph demonstrating rooms, and two large rooms for pianos, which will be included in the stock in the near future. On the mezzanine floor are three large rooms for machines, two for console and one for upright models. The console rooms are large enough to display in splendid style forty machines, while the upright room will easily accommodate twenty machines.

The Cheney line has been added since moving into the new location, which gives this firm the Victrola, Edison, Brunswick, Columbia and Cheney phonographs. The store is finished in French gray woodwork with velvet French gray carpets and wicker furniture used throughout the store, with bright cretonne drapes, which give the needed touch of color.

Mr. Hyatt anticipates splendid business in his new location and is looking forward to a busy year. A repair shop has been established at 522 Washington street, to be known as "The Phonograph Shop." It has been put in charge of Ira Holdiman, and aside from the repair work he will carry Mr. Hyatt's line of phonographs and records.

Exhibit at Multnomah County Fair

The Reed-French Piano Co. had a most elaborate display of musical instruments at the Multnomah County Fair, July 31 to August 14, inclusive, where it showed the Edison, Victrola and Hallet & Davis phonographs, and the Hallet & Davis line of pianos. The Reed-French Co. was the only music firm represented and its booth, which was artistic in every detail, was the rendezvous of throngs which attended the fair and many live prospects were secured.

Saturday, July 28, was the biggest day since December, was the report of Helen Briggs, manager of the Victrola and Brunswick department of the Seiberling, Lucas Music Co.

Visits the Edison Dealers

Mr. Marshall went on to San Francisco and expects to return to Portland about the third week in August.

Features Recitals by Children

The phonograph department of Meier & Frank, representatives of the Victrola, Edison, Columbia and Sonora phonographs, is featuring Saturday morning children recitals in conjunction with the Meier & Frank radio station, KFEC. Wm. Hodecker, manager of the department, reports great interest in the concerts and expects to continue with them through the Summer months. Mr. Hodecker left August 1 for an extended trip East, where he will visit several manufacturers whom they represent.

Arthur Stein, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., has returned from an extensive vacation trip through California and as far South as Tia Juana, Mexico. Mr. Stein visited all of California's principal music establishments, where he studied methods, etc., and reports gaining many splendid ideas which he hopes to put into local practice. A handsome new Dodge truck has been added to the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co. to take care of their rapidly increasing retail business.

W. H. Lawton, Pacific Northwest representative of the Columbia Co., with headquarters in Seattle, visited J. P. Carney, local representative, for several days recently while en route to the Columbia factory. Mr. Lawton was joined at San Francisco by P. S. Kantner, Coast representative of the company.

Miss C. Hogan, for the past year one of the most popular young ladies in the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., has resigned and returned to her home in Oakland, Ore.

FRIEDA HEMPEL'S PLANS FOR FALL

SAN FRANCISCO

Unusually Brisk Demand for Records Features Mid-Summer Trade —Revenue Agents “Collect” on “Talkers”—Month’s News of Trade

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., August 2.—Record business is unusually heavy for mid-Summer, according to the statements of the wholesale distributing agencies, and business in general is not discouraging for the Summer period.

Revenue Agents Collect on “Talkers”

Overzealous on the part of certain representatives of the Internal Revenue Department caused a commotion in San Francisco this month, but the trouble is all over now. These agents attempted to collect taxes on talking machines which had gold fittings and did actually collect money from a few dealers. The Music Trades Association of Central California immediately took the matter up with the Government and a speedy adjustment was made. Eventually, it is presumed, those who paid the tax will have their money refunded. Dick Quarg, manager of the Phonograph Studio, Powell and O’Farrell streets, was one of those who were held up and who paid.

Local Artists With Brunswick

The famous jazz music of Paul Ash and His Syncopated Orchestra is soon to be perpetuated for posterity. Paul Ash, who is conducting at the Granada Theatre, this city, has signed up with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. to make records. Some difficulty is being experienced in finding a proper hall for reproducing the music. These records will be made in San Francisco, but the report that the Brunswick Co. is to establish a regular pressing plant on the Coast is without foundation, says P. F. Corcoran, the Pacific Coast sales manager of the Brunswick phonograph department.

A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., accompanied by Messrs. Darbee and Henchen, are in San Francisco on an official visit from the Chicago headquarters.

GLEANINGS from the WORLD of MUSIC

SEES GOOD IN PRESENT TENDENCIES OF "JAZZ" MUSIC

Carl Engel, Curator of the Congressional Library, Looks Forward to Original Type of American Music Being Developed From So-called "Jazz"—True "Jazz" Already Passé

Carl Engel, curator of the Music Division of the Congressional Library, is one of the many prominent musicians of national and international fame who do not follow the mental attitude of those who denounce "jazz" music. While, naturally, he does not advocate it as the best American type of music, he sees much good in these original music tendencies and looks forward to there being developed from them a distinctly American type of music which should win recognition from the lovers of better-class music.

This brings to mind the erroneous conception of the term "jazz." In popular music publishing circles, which are responsible for the publication of such music, the term "jazz" has almost become passé. There are a few of the present-day numbers that will be so termed by popular publishers. Indeed, the strictly "jazz" numbers are not now creating wide sales. Of the current successes probably only two songs would come under such a heading. Unusually good "jazzy" pieces continue to have some popularity, but the limitations are so defined that the publishers are wary of accepting them for publication.

Most of the "jazz" numbers are to-day published by various small houses and are written particularly for colored performers and for rendition on talking machine records, the manufacturers of which have developed a wide colored following. These are mostly songs and are billed as "blue" numbers. Several female colored artists have won national popularity through the singing of such songs. Their very titles generally carry the word "blue" in some form. They are really a particular type of colored song.

To the better class of music lovers, particularly those who are considered authorities, all present-day popular numbers are called "jazz." The result of this is that newspapers continue to frequently refer to "jazz" music. This is a misnomer, however, as probably 98 per cent of current fox-trots are strictly melody numbers. In their original form they can be sung to advantage as good vocal selections. For the use of the dance orchestras the arrangers in orchestrating often include additional music which gives full use to the modern orchestra. If the publisher does not do this the arranger for the leading orchestras adds those features.

Such orchestras, however, term themselves syncopated symphonists and, whether or not this is the best descriptive term, it must be admitted that most of the present-day orchestras, either appearing on the dance floor or in the vaudeville theatres are greatly improved combinations over the "jazz" aggregations which were so prominent in the early post-war period. The success of those earlier orchestras was based upon the volume of noise, the special tricks, the weird use of the clarinet and saxophone and the addition of old hats, tin buckets and bells, to get unusual effects.

Most of the modern dance orchestras have eliminated such effects altogether, or they are used to a very small degree and possibly once in an evening's performance to give novelty to the program. The word "jazz," rightfully used, is taking longer to die than jazz music, which is almost extinct.

NEW BERLIN NUMBER GOING WELL

"When You Walked Out Someone Else Walked Right In" to Have Heavy Campaign of Exploitation Behind It

Irving Berlin, outside of the music for his "Music Box Revue" shows, has written few songs in recent seasons. However, those that he has written have attained national popularity. His latest popular song is entitled "When You Walked Out Someone Else Walked Right In." The campaign of exploitation behind this newest offering is hardly under way, as the plans of Irving Berlin, Inc., the publisher, contemplate making it not only one of the leaders of its catalog, but one of the big hits of the year.

Despite this song's youth it is not only heard from where songs are given publicity, but it has succeeded in obtaining for itself some unusual comment in newspapers throughout the country. Anything Berlin does is always good for several paragraphs from the writers on music.

One of the severest critics of daily papers is known as "Davis," of the Cleveland Press. A word of praise from this source is unusual, but in a recent edition of that publication a lengthy article on Berlin's song, "When You Walked Out Someone Else Walked Right In," appeared under the caption "Off With the Old Love, On With the New" (described as the theme of a bright new dance song by Irving Berlin). In praising Berlin's song Davis took the opportunity of rapping the modern orchestra, in which he says "Modern dance pieces depend greatly

He found no such fault with the rendition of Berlin's song and as regards the lyrics he shows even more enthusiasm by reprinting the end of the chorus. The whole article carried a five-column head and should assist sales materially in Cleveland territory.

E. C. MILLS NOW CHAIRMAN OF THE A. S. C. A. AND P.

Chairman of the Music Publishers' Protective Association Also Becomes Executive Head of Composers' Organization—Plans European Trip to Arrange Reciprocal Agreements

E. C. Mills, chairman of the executive board of the Music Publishers' Protective Association, after a series of conferences with a committee from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, has accepted the chairmanship of the executive committee in that organization.

For the past several months the A. S. C. A. and P. has endeavored to acquire the services of Mr. Mills. However, he showed some hesitancy in accepting the office through the fact that the Society's original plea was for his exclusive services.

Under the present arrangements Mr. Mills will continue in his executive capacity in the M. P. P. A. and will also undertake the responsibility of directing the activities of the Composers' Society.

Mr. Mills plans a trip to Europe in the early Fall for the purpose of closing arrangements with composers' societies of Europe, including those in England, France, Italy and Germany, whereby, through a reciprocal arrangement, fees will be collected by the various societies throughout the world and an equitable distribution be made of same.

The A. S. C. A. and P. will shortly inaugurate some new plans for the purpose of interesting more of the standard publishing organizations in its activities. This, together with some entirely new, original and fair methods of collecting license fees from vaudeville, motion picture theatres, as well as cabarets and dance halls, is planned.

INTENSIVE FEIST CAMPAIGN

Puts Heavy Publicity Behind "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home"

Leo Feist, Inc., is running one of the biggest publicity campaigns on the new novelty song, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home," ever inaugurated by that progressive publishing house. A large advertising appropriation has been made to exploit the number and every channel of publicity which will aid the number to popularity is being covered.

Some particularly attractive dealer material has been forwarded to the trade. This includes hangers, cutouts, window strips and other sales creators. A particularly appropriate piece of material for counter use is a cutout of a large chocolate-covered cake with an easel back which can be placed anywhere in the store. The effect obtained with this multi-colored cutout is quite realistic, showing, as it does, a cake from which a generous slice has been served and a knife in a position ready for this service.

REVIVAL IN "BLUES" NUMBERS

Edward B. Marks Co. Declares Such Publications at Height of Popularity

According to the sales department of the Edward B. Marks Music Co., there has been a revival in the craze for "blues" numbers. In fact, it is this firm's opinion that the demand for "blues" is at its height. To justify this contention is the eagerness of mechanical reproduction companies for real "blue" numbers.

The Marks organization believes that "blues" are distinctly the creation of colored people. They live them, they breathe them and they write them and from this viewpoint some of the best "blue" numbers, naturally, will come from colored writers.

The Edward B. Marks Music Co. has given much thought and attention to the selection of "blue" compositions. Among the earlier works of this type that were published by that organization and proved popular were "Tishomingo Blues," "Corinne Blues" and others of like caliber, all of which are still popular and enjoying an excellent demand.

Recently the sales department of the Marks Co. obtained a series of numbers which had attained popularity in and around Memphis, Tenn. The songs composed by Bob Miller are "Strut 'Long, Papa" and "Uncle Bud" (Bugle Blues). These two offerings have already had some popularity in Northern territory and with a campaign, as inaugurated by the present publisher, their success on a national scale seems assured.

Among the recording artists that are doing these two numbers is Daisy Martin, and both of these songs will, undoubtedly, be included in early Fall releases of practically all mechanical companies catering to purchasers of "blue" music.

Other outstanding "blue" numbers in the Marks catalog are "Brown Baby," "There'll Be Some Changes Made," "Memphis Man," "Two A. M. Blues," "Log Cabin Blues," "Georgia Blues" and "Papa String Beans."

NEW COMPOSITION BY MISS BAUER

Marion Bauer, the celebrated composer, whose works are being programmed by leading musicians of the country, has recently written a set of three "Preludettes," which have just been issued by G. Schirmer, Inc., of New York, which, according to musicians who have had the privilege of trying them, are destined to have quite a vogue, particularly among teachers of children. They are, as might be expected, admirably written.

ROCCO VOCCO RECEIVES MEDAL

Chicago Manager of Leo Feist, Inc., Receives Appreciation of One of His Abilities

With much pomp, ceremony and salaaming Rocco Vocco, Chicago manager of Leo Feist, Inc., was recently presented with a magnificent medal by a personal representative of the Skorum Club of Sahara. Mr. Vocco's linguistic abilities enable him to converse freely in many languages and he is especially fluent with the difficult Egyptian tongue. Golfing being something new for Sahara-ites Mr. Vocco had the good fortune to be paired in a match with the Hon. Arru Shallah Jey, to whom golf scores were as blank as the desert itself.

The Hon. Arru was an awful bust at the game and did eighteen holes in 134, but the ever-gallant Rocco deftly slipped him his own card of seventy-seven, much to the surprise of the Egyptian gentleman. On reaching the clubhouse he was proclaimed as a hero, cheered to the echo and féted extensively.

Hundreds of Egyptian members of the Skorum Club with a membership throughout the world contributed to the medal presented to Mr. Vocco and his photo now graces the many clubrooms of the organization. Rocco, stunned by it all, asked his suave friend the Hon. Arru Shallah Jey what "Skorum" meant. The Hon. Arru Shallah Jey, salaaming with much dignity, backed slowly to the door and, drawing himself up to his full height, hissed in pure Chicago-ese "Liar!"

Lee S. Roberts' latest song, "Oh, Harold," published by Forster, Music Publisher, Inc., Chicago, Ill., seems bent upon being as popular as some of Roberts' past successes. Lee Roberts seems to have the knack of writing songs and instrumental selections that have a wide appeal and "Oh, Harold" is fast attaining national prominence in song and dance form.

PUBLISHERS WIN IN COURT

A final decree was recently handed down by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania whereby a long list of theatre owners are perpetually enjoined and restrained from publicly performing a number of popular songs.

The cases involve some twenty-nine defendants in suits brought by a number of publishers, members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, which have been before the courts for adjudication for the past two years.

In addition each defendant is fined $250 and the court costs, involving close to $100, and are compelled to pay attorney fees of $150 by order of the court.

While no new legal decision is involved in the above cases, the verdict is a sweeping victory for the Society, inasmuch as it involves a score of defendants in one particular territory.

PUBLISHERS' DEALERS' HELPS AND THEIR UTILIZATION

Co-operation Offered the Dealers by the Publishers One of the Most Important of Sales Stimulators at Their Disposal—The Question of Standardization in the Material Furnished

At the past two conventions of the National Association of Sheet Music Dealers, the form, style and dimensions of standard music publishers' literature for the consumer to be used by the dealer have been discussed. Some suggestions have been made and given consideration towards standardization, so far as size is concerned, of much of this material. However, it has been clearly shown and proved that all material will not conform admirably to any standardized arrangement.

At times there have been some expressions from dealers as to the value of this consumer material. One dealer went so far as to state that 90 per cent of it was worthless, which, of course, was an ill-advised statement that the speaker would hardly attempt to prove. Most of the dealers value consumer literature and make good use of it. In some instances they receive a greater volume of circular material than can be used. But in the majority of cases the way is generally found to at least use the greater proportion.

No doubt, if more attention were given by the trade to the amount of such literature ordered, or accepted, thousands of dollars would be saved publishing organizations during the course of the year. This material is all prepared with great care; the minutest details are covered before allowing it to go to press. It is issued for the guidance of music lovers and for their appeal. Thus it is generally a sales creator and, consequently, of considerable value to retail dealers.

Most of the publishing organizations have a high-salaried and at least a high-class advertising and publicity department. The leading publishers, too, have had long experience as retailers. They know, of course, the retailer's problems in regard to consumer literature and they have the consumer's viewpoint. There are hardly any instances where such material is a total waste. It may not be used for the purpose for which it was designed, and, therefore, find the wrong abiding place, but its proper use, undoubtedly, serves its end, and that is to arouse interest and create sales.

This brings to mind the position of the trade paper as a medium of information for the dealer. Occasionally, it is said that trade papers use too much "plug" material and, looking back a few years, there was undoubtedly a basis for this opinion. To-day, however, the well-regulated trade paper eliminates the strictly "plug" news item. Naturally all new issues are mentioned in some form, and it is well they should be, for that is news if the writer's imagination has not been allowed to intrude upon the strictly news end of the song's release.

There should, however, be a standard to the style and a limit to the "puffery." If this is adhered to, news items on current successes, the opening of shows, the release of new numbers, the amount of energy placed behind their exploitation, the caliber of the house and the size of its appropriations given consideration, the columns of the trade press, whether it is mentioning a love song, a ballad, or a jazz number will be found most valuable to any wide-awake dealer.

Naturally, there is much other news material besides "plug" stuff which is most appropriate for dealer consumption and which aids him considerably in the conduct of his business. Over a short period this may not be so noticeable, but in any given quarter or yearly period we know the time spent in reading trade news will be found most profitable.

MEETING THE COOLNESS DEMAND

Strand Theatre in New York Uses Two Feist Numbers in Hot Weather Program

An original plan to give a touch of the cool country to those who must stay in the city over hot week-ends is bringing big results and making a rich man of its originator, Joseph Plunkett, director of the Mark Strand Theatre, New York City.

Mr. Plunkett has turned his theatre into what is in effect a country meadow. Artificial breezes cool the dim recesses of the big auditorium. The odor of fir trees which stand in the lobby fill the air, while overhead ice water runs through hidden pipes with a tinkling sound that suggests an April shower.

From the orchestra pit come the realistic singing of birds and the humming of bees. The curtain rises on the kind of woodsy scene that the audience has been dreaming about all the hot, humid day. Boys and girls in cool whites and greens form part of the picture, which is, however, merely a background for the most cooling feature of all, the lilting, airy melody of the Summer's favorite fox-trot songs, "Swinging Down the Lane" and "Saw Mill River Road." And while the Summer boys and girls sing the tired audience dreams of shady lanes and eventide on river roads.

BIG FORSTER CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY

Exploitation Drive Introduces Several Numbers in Eastern Territory Which Have Met With Success in the Middle Western Field

The recently opened New York offices of Forster, Music Publishers, Inc., in the Hilton Building, 1591 Broadway, are actively engaged in an intensive exploitation campaign in Eastern territory on several numbers from the above catalog which have previously shown activity in the Middle West.

The office and staff are under the management of Dan Winkler, formerly sales manager of Fred Fisher, Inc., and who was previously connected with other leading publishing organizations. Mr. Winkler is widely known in professional, band and orchestra and trade circles. In addition, for a number of years he had close connections with the leading mechanical reproduction companies.

The present Forster campaign includes the introduction of "Rose of Sunny Italy," also Lee S. Roberts' latest foxtrot success "Oh! Harold." This latter number, in addition to its favor received by orchestras as an unusually good foxtrot, has had the added publicity of being used as the theme song in conjunction with the exhibition of Harold Lloyd's success, "Safety Last."

The Forster organization, seemingly, never started the Fall season with more meritorious numbers nor any that have received such quick recognition. Besides the above two songs it has released a novelty called "Animal Fair." It is among the numbers featured by John Fink, who has been acting as professional manager for the Forster Co. in Atlantic City, N. J.

Morris L. Adler, general sales manager of the company, has just returned to Chicago, following two weeks spent in Atlantic City and in the New York office.

BUSINESS WHILE ON THE OCEAN

Saul Bornstein Places Berlin Number With Daphne Pollard While on Trip to Europe

Saul Bornstein, general manager of Irving Berlin, Inc., who recently returned from Europe, evidently believes in making hay while Saul Bornstein and Daphne Pollard the sun shines. On the trip across Daphne Pollard, the well-known English singing comedienne, was one of the passengers. Mr. Bornstein took the opportunity of placing the new Irving Berlin song, "When You Walked Out Someone Else Walked Right In," in Miss Pollard's hands and the publisher and singer are herewith shown going over the number.

Daphne Pollard has an inimitable way of putting over a popular song. To have her include this ballad in her coming programs will assist materially in giving the song popularity.

SCORE BIG POPULAR SUCCESS

Chappell-Harms, Inc., Has Big Call for "Roses of Picardy" and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," Which Are Making a Hit

Two songs that are making a tremendous impression, judging from public appreciation, are "Roses of Picardy" and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," published by Chappell-Harms, Inc., 185 Madison avenue, New York. These songs are being sung by a number of headliners throughout the country and promise to be among the sensational sellers of the season. Judson House has been using these songs with great success at the Strand Theatre and Vincent Lopez has created quite a sensation with "Roses of Picardy" at the Palace Theatre.

It is interesting to note that "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" was interpolated in "George White's Scandals" at the Globe Theatre, New York, and at the Colonial Theatre in Chicago, and in each instance these songs have won no small measure of individual favor.

A distinguished line of artists in the concert field have endorsed these ballads and they are now being featured on records and on music rolls. A recent Columbia release featured these two songs as played by Paul Specht and His Orchestra, popular Columbia artists.

NEW NUMBER BY SILVER AND COHN

By special arrangement with Frank Silver and Irving Cohn, writers of the unusual success, "Yes! We Have No Bananas," the publishers, Shapiro, Bernstein & Co., Inc., have released a new novelty entitled, "I Got the Yes! We Have No Banana Blues," words by Lew Brown, music by James F. Hanley and Robert King. The number has already been placed in one of the Broadway shows and is being programmed by several prominent vaudeville artists.

It is hardly expected that it will have the popularity of its predecessor, which, by the way, is having a good sale.

EDISON ARTISTS BACK FROM EUROPE

Among the recent arrivals from Europe were Helen Davis and Victor Young. They have been making a tour of Europe, in the course of which they gave a number of concerts and also several Edison Tone Tests. Both of these artists, who are very popular with the Edison retail trade, are planning an extensive tour through America during the forthcoming season. In chatting with The World Mr. Young said to be sure to mention the fact that he is back from Europe "without a monocle."

Dealers Optimistic Over Fall Prospects as Busy Summer Draws to Close—New Dealers—L. A. Guenard Planning to Move—The News

NEW ORLEANS, LA., August 7.—“Barring the unexpected, the Southern States will display an epoch-making business recovery by the time the Fall season sets in in earnest. The trade in talking machines, both from a jobber's and a retailer's standpoint, in the States along the Gulf seaboard are going to reflect a general business advance that will easily overshadow previous records in the history of the industry in this section of the country. Briefly, the territory within the warmer parallels crossing the United States is slated to chalk up returns for profitable operation that have heretofore seemed impossible, when one considers the sparseness of the population of the section, in comparison to the Nation's Northern half,” is the assertion of Manager W. W. Twigg, of the Diamond Music Co., local Edison jobber. Mr. Twigg only recently returned from an extended business trip throughout the States of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

New Edison Dealers

According to Mr. Twigg, he found business being conducted on a sound basis, with the merchants serenely satisfied regarding the present trend and equally optimistic of the possibilities for the future. Three important results, as far as the firm is concerned, were achieved on this trip. Manager Twigg succeeded in consummating arrangements whereby many new Edison representatives have just been added. The Jesse French Music Co., of Mobile, Ala., a large music house in that city, and the Heidelberg Furniture Co., of Jackson, Miss., are two of the more recent new accounts opened. The Oliver Music Co., of Houston, Tex., also has been placed on the list of new dealers. Musing on the subject of Summer trade, Manager Twigg cited a condition that now exists, as undeniable proof that a greater warm-weather business is featuring the present season. In fact, the Diamond Music Co. is experiencing difficulty in supplying dealers with sufficient stocks. Figures compiled by the house show that total business done in the first six months of 1923 was 40 per cent greater than that done during the same period of the last year and all indications point to an even busier season for the remainder of the year.

Retail Manager J. A. Billiet, of the same firm, reports that his end of the game is showing excellent results. July record sales are double those of the corresponding month of last year. Likewise, the month's total shows a decided increase over those of June, this year. The baby console model seems to have struck a favorable chord among his customers; they are extremely popular. Two new salesmen have been added to the staff in order to cope with the business growth.

Big Demand for Victor

J. D. Moore, manager of the talking machine department of the Maison Blanche Co., feels highly elated over the fact that July, just concluded, has handsomely overlapped business done in the same period in 1922. Mr. Moore predicts that the Victor 400, 405 and 410 models, due very shortly, will unquestionably prove to be big business getters. Although they have not been displayed as yet in New Orleans, several sales have been practically concluded on the strength of the illustrations of the machines in the booklets. The record business of the department, both in the Victor and Brunswick lines, has shown up well. Of great assistance is the reordering system used by the house whereby if a customer wishes a record which does not happen to be in stock he or she may have it within the minimum of time, as it is ordered by telegraph that day from representatives of the house in Eastern cities.

R. W. Jackson to Visit Here

R. W. Jackson, manager of the St. Louis district branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., was expected by Mr. Moore on one of his semi-annual visits to the territory in a supervisory capacity. It is expected that while Mr. Jackson is in town he will take up the matter of the Brunswick sub-station maintained here. The company was unable to secure the quarters desired when it located the station here last year. It is thought that Mr. Jackson will inspect several prospective sites, with the view of obtaining a lease on larger quarters for the ever-growing city business of the line. Mr. Moore states that the portables are in great demand and record sales have increased steadily.

L. A. Guenard Planning to Move

L. A. Guenard, Columbia dealer and Gennett and Okeh record distributor, is planning to remove from his University place location to a more desirable one, although he has not definitely decided upon the new location. Mr. Guenard voices the sentiment of the majority of the local record men when he states that the number, “Yes, We Have No Bananas,” is evidencing extreme popularity. An order of 500 copies of the number was disposed of within a very short time. Bessie Smith's “Gulf Coast Blues” are also sharing in the popularity race.

Manager Staples, of the firm of L. Grunewald & Co., regards present conditions as extremely satisfactory. “Yes, We Have No Bananas” is meeting with the hearty approval of Mr. Staples' customers, approximately 700 copies having been disposed of in a week's time.

Preparing for Holiday Stock

A huge general clearance sale on discontinued models was launched by Manager Howard Crigler, of the Dugan Piano Co.'s talking machine department. The cleanout began August 1. The machines were offered as special attractions, designed to reach at least 2,500 persons, who are known to be in a position to buy. Of course, it is not limited to that number and no prospective purchasers will be turned down on application. Mr. Crigler expects flattering results when the final reckoning is made on the sale. This weeding-out is being conducted in order to make way for the Christmas stock.

ANNUAL OUTING OF THE TALKING MACHINE MEN, INC.

Every Prospect of the Annual Summer Get-together Party of Local Talking Machine Dealers and Friends Proving a Thoroughly Successful Affair—Elaborate Program Prepared

As The World closes its last form this month the members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., and their friends are all set to start on the annual outing of that organization, scheduled to be held at Glen Head, Long Island, on August 14.

In past years the members of the organization have made a practice of traveling to the picnic grounds in automobiles, so the committee this year varied the program by chartering the steamer "Sea Gate" for the sail down the Sound to the popular resort. The headquarters for the outing will be at Karatsonyi's, a place noted for its shore dinners and facilities for entertaining.

The boat is scheduled to reach Glen Head just in time for luncheon and a complete program of athletic events has been prepared for the afternoon, including swimming races, a ball game between the "Bootleggers" and the "Prohibitionists," the former captained by Jimmy Davin and the latter by Morris Owens. The field sports include a 100-yard dash for dealers who are active members of the Association; a similar contest for clerks; a 220-yard relay race participated in by teams composed of the members of the Victor, Columbia, Brunswick, Sonora, Edison and Okeh divisions; fat men's walk of 220 yards, to reduce avoirdupois; two-mile race for members of the trade press; jobbers' race, swimming and diving contests, elimination dance, watermelon eating contest and other mirth-provoking events.

It was planned to run off the sports while the ball game was in progress in order to economize on time and the judges and clerks of the course, Max Landay, Herb Berkeley, J. Flanagan, Fred Roth, Jim Donnelly, Emil Schweiger and Louis Barg have prepared for a busy and interesting time acting as Solomons to decide the winners. The starters and timers are:

E. W. Geng, vice-president, and William Geng, general manager of the Buckley-Newhall Co., A. A. U. starters and timers, who also will have their hands full.

Despite the keen enjoyment occasioned by the sports, the gastronomic activities, scheduled for 6 p. m., consisting of a shore dinner such as only Karatsonyi's know how to prepare, and participated in by everyone and all starting from scratch, will easily be the leading sport of the day. The dinner will be followed by dancing in the park to music by Selvin's Orchestra, which also will supply musical entertainment on the boat to and from Glen Head.

There is every indication that the outing will be one of the most successful in the history of the Association, for the committee has worked hard to perfect all the details and the members at large have evinced much interest in the affair.

Baltimore Edison Dealer Plans to Double Original Capitalization in Order to Handle Rapidly Growing Volume of Business

BALTIMORE, Md., August 9.—As the result of a special meeting held by the stockholders of the Frank Caulfield Co., Edison dealer of this city, it was decided to double the original capitalization in order to meet the increased volume of business which it is now enjoying.

Frank Caulfield, president of the firm, has for a long time felt the need of additional capital to carry on the business on a larger scale and arranged to have P. R. Hawley, manager of the Girard Phonograph Co., Philadelphia Edison distributor, address the stockholders at the meeting.

Mr. Hawley cited numerous instances where dealers have demonstrated that it was merely the need of adequate financial equipment that prevented them from taking complete advantage of the business to be had and pointed out several reasons why the business of the Frank Caulfield Co. should double itself in and around Baltimore in a short time if sufficient capital were provided.

Following the meeting Mr. Caulfield stated his intention to put renewed effort into the business and will begin by organizing a new sales staff of ten men to work wholly in Baltimore and the nearby towns.

CELEBRATES 12TH ANNIVERSARY

TEMPLE, TEX., August 7.—The Best Furniture Co., Edison dealer of this city, has recently celebrated its twelfth anniversary in business and on this occasion received a very fine write-up in the local newspaper, the Temple Daily Telegram. The story described the steady growth of the organization and paid fitting tribute to the enterprise of D. B. Boyd, the president, and his wife, who have been considerable of a factor in the success of the business. Through up-to-date merchandising methods the Edison department of the Best Furniture Co. has been developed until at the present time it is one of the most important branches of the business. The department itself is modern throughout, with a large machine and record stock.

MUSICAL MERCHANDISE WELL ADAPTED FOR DISPLAYS

Best Results Can Be Obtained From Window Displays Devoted Exclusively to One Line—Conglomeration of Articles Is Confusing and Fails to Register in Mind of Passer-by

The average talking machine dealer carefully plans his window displays to show his instruments to the best advantage so that passers-by will be attracted, with the object in view, of course, of increasing sales. Where musical merchandise is handled in connection with talking machines, however, the usual stunt is to place a number of small musical instruments in the window with talking machines and records, the latter dominating the display to the detriment of the window as a whole, thus reducing the possibility of making sales of either musical instruments or talking machines through the display.

There is only one right way to arrange a window when a variety of goods is handled, if the maximum results are to be obtained, and the merchant who has added a musical merchandise department to his business should make it a rule to devote a portion of his window display space exclusively to small goods. If there is only one window frequent changes of display should be made, alternating between musical merchandise and talking machines. In this manner justice can be done to both lines.

An excellent example of how not to dress a window was recently seen by the writer, who had occasion to pass a certain establishment. In this display was a conglomeration of talking machines, band instruments, stringed instruments, records, etc. It certainly was a bewildering array and the thought came to mind that the merchant carried his entire stock in the window, but there were entirely too many articles and the whole presented a neutral mass which certainly did not arrest the attention and, since this is the prime function of a well-arranged display, this particular one failed of its purpose.

Now, how much more forceful this display could have been had there been, say, one attractive model of a talking machine, with a suitable background and perhaps a few records and other necessary accessories or an exclusive musical merchandise window! There are infinite possibilities in the display of musical merchandise which a little thought will bring to the mind of the dealer or head of this department. Orchestra, band instruments and stringed instruments lend themselves readily to artistic displays and the results more than justify the expenditure of the effort required.

One talking machine dealer with two windows devoted one of them entirely to musical merchandise displays and these, with other sales promotion and publicity plans, helped to make this department one of the most important of the business. One week this aggressive dealer instituted a drive on saxophones, the next on some stringed instrument and another week it would be a certain band instrument. During the week of a drive on any particular instrument a carefully planned window display was devoted exclusively to this one piece of goods. Direct-by-mail, newspaper and other forms of publicity were resorted to and the usual result was that the end of the week saw a fine record of sales of the instrument pushed and sales of other instruments were, in several instances, greater in volume than usual.

This dealer even goes to the trouble of arranging special lights to bring out the display to the best advantage during the evening and other little refining touches are given to the window at comparatively little expense which make the displays of this establishment stand out in contrast to the other displays of other retailers in his immediate vicinity.

It is now a generally recognized fact among live merchants in all lines that the window display is one of the best means of bringing the wares of the store to the people who pass by. These passers-by see a fine window display and remember it. If the displays are of such a type that they remain in the memory and if they are changed frequently enough there can be little doubt of the influence which they ultimately must have when any of these people are thinking of purchasing some musical instrument. The first thought which probably comes to the prospective purchaser is the store where the window attracted his or her attention.

You are paying rent for your window space and also for the people who pass your door and there is no sound reason why you should neglect to make the best of this opportunity or why carelessness in displays should be exercised. So get busy and make your window sell.

DEALERS ORDERING "SMALL GOODS"

Manufacturer of Store Equipment Receiving Many Orders for Musical Merchandise Equipment From Talking Machine Dealers—Steadily Increasing Demand for This Type of Equipment in Talking Machine Trade

"Musical merchandise is apparently making rapid strides towards becoming an established line among the talking machine dealers," said an executive of one of the leading companies installing store equipment. "During the past six months there has been a greater activity in the installation of musical merchandise equipment in talking machine stores than at any time in the past ten years. The orders we receive not only call for the construction of equipment for the display of musical instruments, small goods and sheet music, but many dealers who have maintained these departments in the past are adding new booths and new equipment in order to handle their increasing trade.

"Judging from the reports received from the dealers who have placed this business, talking machine merchants are finding in their musical merchandise departments an additional source of income. However, this should be expected (Continued on page 140)

JAMES R. FREW IN NEW YORK

James R. Frew, vice-president and manager of the four musical merchandise stores operated by the Euclid Music Co., in Cleveland, O., spent two weeks of his vacation in New York City motoring and visiting manufacturers and jobbers.

While spending a week-end at the Summer place of Irving Loehr, of C. Bruno & Son, Inc., Mr. Frew had a thrilling experience. He and Mr. Loehr had taken a canoe out on the waters off Fire Island and had rigged a sail on the boat. When they had reached the three-mile limit a squall came up and capsized the light craft. They floated about for about two hours, clinging to the overturned boat until they were picked up by the yacht of Joseph Beddell.

PUSHING MUSICAL MERCHANDISE

A growing volume of newspaper advertising of small musical instruments of all kinds by talking machine dealers has been noticeable of late. This is an indication of the increasing favor with which talking machine dealers are viewing the installation of small goods departments. More and more is the trade realizing the value of a side line, such as band and stringed instruments, as a source of profit.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR UKULELES

C. Bruno & Son, Inc., wholesalers and importers of musical merchandise, New York City, report that there has been a heavy demand during the Summer months for ukuleles and banjo ukes. In the banjo uke field C. Bruno & Son, Inc., have presented the trade with a new instrument. This banjo uke is fingered as the ordinary ukulele or banjo uke, but has eight strings instead of four. The strings are of steel and are tuned in octave tuning. The new instrument supplies a new and pleasing effect and great volume of tone. It has already created for itself a big field, as the demand for this instrument has reached large proportions, with no drop in popularity evident.

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, is a member of the "Committee of One Thousand," recently appointed by Louis E. Pierson, president of the Merchants' Association of New York, to crystallize public sentiment upon the urgent need of building additional subways in Greater New York. This committee has been circulating petitions among the New York residents for the past few weeks and it is expected that several million names will be affixed to these petitions when they are finally delivered to the Board of Estimate for action. The Committee has already met with considerable success, for a week ago the Board of Estimate definitely approved two of the routes involved in the proposed subway additions. Mr. Blackman is the only member of the talking machine trade included in this committee.

BERLIN OFFERS NEW KING TUT SONG

Alex Gerber and Jack Egan's "Three Thousand Years Ago" Soon to Appear

There have been several King Tut songs, and at least two of them had some popularity. Up to the present time, however, they have not proved overwhelming successes. It is somewhat surprising, therefore, to see a large publishing organization accept a new song carrying a "Tut" title. The fact that Irving Berlin, Inc., will publish Alex Gerber and Jack Egan's "Three Thousand Years Ago," a comedy song of the "Tut" style, speaks well for its merit.

In this new offering the writers have tried to make comparisons between the present and ancient Egyptian days. The result is a comedy song with a long list of extra verses, five of which are reproduced in the piano copies. The vocal rendition of the number has been reserved to the team of Murray and Alan, now playing Keith vaudeville.

Brisk Demand for Records Features Business—Fall Prospects Encouraging—Popularity Contest Stimulates Sales—The News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 6.—The outstanding feature of the talking machine business in this city during the month of July were the fine sales of records. This seems to have been general with all the companies. Business in machines has been fairly good, also, and all agree that the Fall prospects are encouraging, in spite of the low price of wheat. The building boom in this territory has slackened somewhat, but the report on the first six months, just issued by the Federal Reserve Bank, shows that during the period it has been the largest in the history of the country. Residences and apartments have led in the relative increase in the number of building permits and the amount of money invested in construction.

Fine Columbia Business

The local branch of the Columbia Co. has had a splendid business record this year. The business in June was larger than that in May, and the business in July exceeded that of June. In like manner, the sales of 1923 were in excess of those of 1922. According to C. L. Schwager, assistant manager of the Kansas City branch, this is largely due to the phenomenal sales of their records of the songs of Bessie Smith, the colored singer. Her records have been in demand in all parts of the territory, but especially in the South. The purchases have been made, it is stated, by both white and colored people, and the number of purchasers have been about equally divided between the races.

The new models of the Columbia consoles have met a large demand, and the orders for delivery in September have reached several thousand in the Kansas City branch office, according to Mr. Schwager. The plan has been to have the dealers unload as many of the old models as possible before the Fall business opens, and then have the new models to make a drive for business. The plan has appealed to the dealers, and has not only secured the advance orders for Fall delivery, but has stimulated selling during the Summer months.

Manager R. R. Sparrow, of the branch, has just returned from a three weeks' visit to relatives in Yellow Springs, O. He has also recently visited the executive offices of the company in New York, where he planned the campaign for the Fall and Winter. C. L. Schwager, assistant manager of the branch, will visit in New Orleans and the South during August.

T. G. Devine Transferred

T. G. Devine, who for a number of years has been traveling representative of the Columbia Co. in Kansas City territory, has been transferred to Canadian territory, and will make his headquarters in Montreal. He made a fine record here, and his many friends are rejoicing in his promotion. W. E. Parker, of Dallas, Tex., will take the place vacated by Mr. Devine.

It is interesting to note, though there is no special significance in the fact, it is stated, that the Columbia executives and salesmen are going North. The former manager of the Kansas City branch is now in Toronto, and the present manager came from New Orleans. The sales representative goes from Kansas City to Canada, and his successor comes from Texas.

Popularity Contest Boosts Sales

The C. S. Bradbury Electric Co. has recently closed a popularity contest, in which there was unusual interest. The grand prize was a Grafonola, console type, and it was won by Miss Marcia Wallace, who received 603,000 votes. The last day of the contest was the best, the sales including five machines on that day. This broke the record of the dealer in his five years of business.

New Victor Model Pleases

A sample of the new Number 400 console has reached the Victor wholesale department and is being shown to dealers who call. It is pronounced an unusually attractive model, and the English brown is quite popular. The new features in the mechanism are also appreciated. Orders for future delivery are being received in a satisfactory number.

The best seller among the Victor dealers has been "Yes, We Have No Bananas" during the past few months. It has been a great hit, and the dealers have been taking advantage of the fact by pushing the sales. One of the attractive window displays which has been widely used has been worked out around the stem of a bunch of bananas—the bananas all taken off. Under this, occupying the center of the window display, is the title of the song, and around it copies of the song and samples of the records. The three Benson specials on sale August 1 have gone over bigger than any other specials with the Victor folks that have been released in a number of months.

Fred Jenkins, manager of the Victor Kansas City branch, has recently returned from a month's vacation in Colorado, where he enjoyed with his family the delights of the mountains. He tried to see some of the dealers on his way in, but they were all off on their vacations.

The J. W. Jenkins Sons Music Co. is putting on its twenty-sixth annual Summer sale, and while it especially features pianos, yet talking machines have their place in the sale, and are being moved in a satisfactory manner.

F. M. Briggs Resigns From Brunswick Co.

Owing to the recent death of his father, and the consequent demands upon his time to care for the estate, F. M. Briggs, manager of the talking machine department of the Kansas City branch of the Brunswick Co., has retired from the position, and has been succeeded by M. C. Schoenly, who was assistant in the department, and was previously manager of the phonograph department of the Schmelzer Co. Since taking charge of the department Mr. Schoenly has been going over the territory with representatives of the Brunswick Co.

Paul Bradford, general manager of the Brunswick Co. in Kansas City, states that the company will give more attention to the phonograph part of its business, now that it is going out of the tire business.

Edison Sales Maintain Volume

Edison business has been quite satisfactory in this territory throughout the greater part of the Summer. The rewards of the dealers have been in direct proportion to the efforts to secure business which have been put forth. The Phonograph Co. of Kansas City, Edison distributor, with headquarters at 1215 McGee street, has enjoyed a prosperous season, ample proof of the popularity of the Edison in this section of the country. Orders have been coming in in a satisfactory manner and the outlook for Fall and Winter business is most promising for those handling the Edison.

Edgar Music Shop Adds Brunswick

The Edgar Music Shop, of Tulsa, Okla., is a new Brunswick dealer. It celebrated the introduction of this new line into its fine shop by the addition of a mezzanine floor, and by holding "open house." There was special music by the White and Black Serenaders, and refreshments during the evening, and flowers for the ladies and souvenirs for the children.

Some Outstanding Windows

The Brunswick Shop, of this city, is showing some unusually attractive windows nowadays. H. E. Ferris, assistant to George C. Anderson, proprietor, is said to be responsible for working out the ideas. The displays are built around the record releases of the Brunswick Co.

Successful Prospect-Finding Plan

The Brunswick Shop, of Kansas City, Mo., is finding that a prospect-finding plan which it has introduced is working to its entire satisfaction. The shop is mailing out twenty-five cards a day, offering to call at the home of the owner of a Brunswick machine, and put the machine in good order without expense to the owner. To make it easy to arrange for the call, the card has six lines on it, one for each day of the week, in which there are spaces for the a. m. and p. m. dates. The recipient is asked simply to check the time it will be convenient for the representative of the Shop to call, and sign name and address. During the visit numerous suggestions as to prospective buyers in the neighborhood are secured, and these leads are followed up with great profit.

NEW EDISON RELEASES

Among the new releases of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was a double selection by the Original Memphis Five. The two numbers are "Shufflin' Mose" and "The Great White Way Blues."

THE "JUNIOR OPERETTA SERIES" OF RECORDS ANNOUNCED

Vulcan Record Corp., of New York, Introduces Novel Series of Non-breakable Records Based on Well-known Fairy Tales Augmented by Cleverly Written Lyrics and Appealing Music

The "Junior Operetta Series" is the name of a new series of records now being placed on the market by the Vulcan Record Corp., 15 East Fortieth street, New York. Fred Hedinger is secretary and general manager of the company and, as he has been identified with the talking machine industry for a number of years, his plans for manufacturing and marketing these new records are based on a thorough knowledge of the requirements of the trade.

The Junior Operetta Series was created to furnish children with a series of high-grade records on a par in every way with the records produced for adults. This series of records is based on the many well-known and popular fairy stories, such as "Little Red Riding Hood," "Cinderella," "Snow White," "Goldy Locks," "The Three Bears," etc. It is planned to present these fairy stories in a most original and interesting way by writing proper lyrics with suitable music for each story. Mr. Hedinger, in a chat with The World, emphasized the fact that the Junior Operettas are entirely different from any type of records heretofore produced, as they are not nursery rhymes and will not be merchandised as nursery rhymes.

The executives of the Vulcan Record Corp. have been engaged in the development and perfection of the Junior Operettas for over a year and they state that these records are being manufactured in order to stimulate and foster among children an appreciation for good music. They maintain that an understanding of good music is a fundamental factor in the child's education, and these records will aim to supply this important essential.

The first series of records in the Junior Operetta library will be devoted to a presentation of "Little Red Riding Hood," and this series is now ready for the trade. The rendition of this famous fairy tale comprises three double-faced ten-inch records, giving the story in detail. In writing the music and lyrics for "Little Red Riding Hood" there was used a full ten-piece band, a male quartet, a female duet, a well-known whistler and one of the foremost animal imitators. The three records are packed in a handsome container, suitably illustrated with scenes from the fairy tale, and with each container there is furnished a complete libretto, giving in detail the music and lyrics presented on the various records. The first five parts of "Little Red Riding Hood" are in music and story form, while part six is a recitation of the story of "Red Riding Hood" in verse. The orchestra for this series of records was under the direction of Charles A. Prince, formerly musical director of the Columbia Graphophone Co. and nationally famed as an orchestra director.

Aside from the musical importance of the Junior Operetta Series a very important factor in the marketing of these records is the fact that they are absolutely indestructible. The records are being manufactured under a special patented process which has been in course of development for a number of years and the Vulcan Record Corp. is offering the records to the trade with the distinct understanding that they are unbreakable, and any records that are broken in ordinary handling will be replaced without charge. This will be one of the principal features in the company's sales and publicity campaign, especially as the Junior Operettas are intended for use by children and will, therefore, be subject to more than average wear and tear.

Mr. Hedinger states that "Little Red Riding Hood" is the first of a series of twelve, or perhaps twenty-four, operettas based on similar subjects, now in course of preparation. The company plans to market the records through jobbers and dealers, with the usual trade discounts and sales co-operation.

THE marked increase in the sales and popularity of Okeh Records for 1923 firmly establishes them as one of the fastest selling records on the market today.

To the dealer who handles a record with so rapid a turnover as Okeh, prompt delivery of all record orders is of vital importance. Our complete stock of every record in the Okeh catalog enables us to give dealers in the South quick, reliable service.

Our dealer proposition is an interesting one. It will pay you to investigate the advantages that accompany the handling of

THREE "EDISON" FISHERMEN

Members of L. H. Lucker's Staff Prove Excellent Fishermen—J. Unger Proves to Be the Champion Angler of the Organization

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., August 6.—J. Unger, of the staff of Laurence H. Lucker, of this city, Edison jobber, recently spent a Sunday as the Proof of Brother Unger's Skill as Fisherman guest of Mayor Ralph W. Hyneman, Edison dealer, at Rice Lake, Minn. Mr. Unger did splendid work as a disciple of Izaak Walton, as the accompanying photograph will indicate.

In the second photograph Mr. Unger is accompanied by A. L. Toepel, office manager, and L. R. Sours, credit manager for Laurence H. Lucker, who were also Mayor Hyneman's guests. According to this trio of fishermen one morning's catch consisted of eight bass, six pickerel and a dozen nondescripts, and Mr. Unger maintains that the fish were biting so rapidly that the members of the party were obliged to hide behind trees in order to bait their hooks.

WINNERS TO VISIT EDISON PLANT

As announced in The World last month, Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers, of Omaha, Neb., have been conducting a special sales contest, with the prizes consisting of a trip to the Edison headquarters at Orange and a stop-off at points of interest en route. The prize-winners will make the trip during the month of August. Plans are now being made for their reception at the Edison laboratories.

Assisted by a perfectly balanced male quartet, Lucy Gates has recorded two truly marvelous sacred song numbers on Record A-6227.

"Come, Come Ye Saints" and "O Ye Mountains High," from the famous "Songs of Zion," are these unusual offerings. Each is in every way worthy of this artist who recently thrilled a vast audience at the Salt Lake City Tabernacle.

"MUSIC COLIC" HITS RECORD SALES

Too Much Jazz Music, Cause of Disease Mentioned, Results in Musical Fast

The reason that some folks quit buying records is that they have music colic, in the opinion of the Koerber-Brenner Co., Victor distributor. "Here's the way we dope it out," says the company in its September Advance List:

"A lot of Victrola owners—most of 'em, maybe—indulge in an unrelieved diet of jazz. And that's about as bad as an unrelieved diet of pickles and candy. Zowie! But what a case of musical colic those folks do get!

Naturally, they stop the diet. And, what's worst of all, most of 'em don't replace it with more wholesome, substantial musical nourishment.

"Educating people to like the music that's good for them—that's one of the most important things we have to do. When we get it done we'll all have our record business in such a shape that we'll never have to worry about it any more. It'll be a thing of profits and a joy forever.

"Of course, your salespeople talk up good music to customers, and suggest records for them to hear. That's fine. Keep them doing it. That way they'll gradually foster a taste for worthwhile music in folks whose tastes were originally depraved. But think how much easier it would be to sell good music, think how much more of it you could sell, if everybody had been taught from childhood to appreciate and love good music."

EDISON DEALER GETS PRIZE

HAZEN, N. D., August 7.—In a patriotic parade recently held in this community the honors for the best decorated car in the parade fell to the R C U Store. The second prize came to the Hazen Drug Co. The latter concern in its float featured the Edison phonograph and records.

Charles Dornberger's Orchestra to Record for Victor

Orchestra, who will make Victor records exclusively. Mr. Dornberger is now the musical director for George White's "Scandals," playing at the Globe Theatre, New York, and recognized generally as the most successful musical revue on Broadway. The orchestra has a scene entirely to itself in the second act and it is proving one of the hits of the show.

Charles Dornberger is one of the many musicians who succumbed to the lure of the saxophone, giving up a position as chief clerk in a California mercantile office to take up a job as saxophone player in an orchestra at $4 a night. He advanced rapidly and played in Paul Whiteman's Orchestra for one year. His fame is now general and the success of his Victor records is assured. Mr. Dornberger and His Orchestra were among the organizations which welcomed Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra upon their return from Europe on the "Leviathan" Monday of this week.

NEW BERLIN COMEDY SONG

"Nobody Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can" Is Title of More Recent Addition to the Catalog of Irving Berlin, Inc.

A new comedy song has been accepted for publication by Irving Berlin, Inc. While it is the most recent addition to this catalog the sales and professional departments have already decided to exploit it widely. The number is entitled "Nobody Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can" and is from the pens of Billy Baskette, who has written a number of popular successes in the past, and William Downs. Several vaudeville singers have introduced the song and the early indications seem to point to wide popularity. This, together with the fact that the Berlin organization is showing unusual interest as to the future of this song, should insure a large sale for it.

Advertising of Low Terms Has Adverse Influence on the Trade—Transfer of Okeh Jobbing Agency—Other Important Activities

LOS ANGELES, CAL., August 3.—Talking machine business for July was up to its usual volume, according to reports from managers of departments, but there seems to be a tendency towards smaller first payments and longer terms. This is doubtless due to advertising of low terms which, in the opinion of many sales managers, may result in larger sales in the long run but is very destructive to short accounts. So long as one or two houses are allowed by the others to monopolize this low-term advertising, the former may attract an increased number of customers, but as soon as everyone begins to advertise in a similar fashion it merely becomes a case of educating the public to make small payments instead of large and, when the task is completed, no dealer will have gained any advantage.

A. J. Kendrick in Town

A. J. Kendrick, popular sales manager of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., arrived in Los Angeles during the latter part of July and is spending several days here. He found matters in a most satisfactory condition in this territory, with sales showing a remarkable increase.

Okeh Jobbing Agency Transferred

W. E. Henry, Pacific Coast representative of the General Phonograph Corp. for Okeh records, who established headquarters in this city some three or four months ago, has transferred the distributing agency for southern California to the Okeh Smith Co. C. N. Smith, proprietor of the Okeh Smith Co., secured the jobbing privileges for this part of the country early last month and started operations at once. Mr. Smith has been engaged in the record business for some time and has had considerable experience, retail and wholesale, in Eastern cities; he states that conditions are even better than he anticipated.

George W. Lyle a Visitor

George W. Lyle, president of the Phonograph Mfg. Corp., was a local visitor in the interests of the Strand phonograph, of which his corporation is the manufacturer. Mr. Lyle was accompanied by his youngest son, Edward, and they motored from San Francisco with Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gray. A new line of instruments, which have just been announced, was shown to Los Angeles dealers on the occasion of Mr. Lyle's visit and a number of orders were placed with the local distributor, the Walter S. Gray Co.

Cheney Jobber Returns From the East

R. L. Rayner, vice-president of the Munson-Rayner Corp., has returned from an extensive trip which he recently made to New York and other points. In addition to visiting the Cheney factory, Mr. Rayner secured several agencies for his house, which, besides jobbing the Cheney phonograph and Vocalion records, has an extensive phonograph supply business. The exclusive agencies for the Audak, Walter Camp's "Health Builders" and Campfone were among those for which Mr. Rayner made arrangements during his trip to the East.

Dave Langlan Buys Lankershim Store

Dave Langlan, popular assistant manager of the musical merchandise wholesale department of the Southern California Music Co., has purchased the Yates Music Co.'s store in Lankershim and will in the future conduct the store, which is advantageously located, under the name of the Lankershim Brunswick Shop.

Transfer Stock to New Store

Irving Westphal, manager of the phonograph department of the Southern California Music Co., returned last week from his two weeks' vacation and is already busy transferring all of the Brunswick and part of the Victor stock to the new store at 808 South Broadway. The Victor and Brunswick will be featured in the new store, and the Edison and Victor at the old store, 334 South Broadway. The grand opening of the new headquarters will not take place until September, although it will be open for business before then, it is hoped.

John Steel Hears His Voice Calling

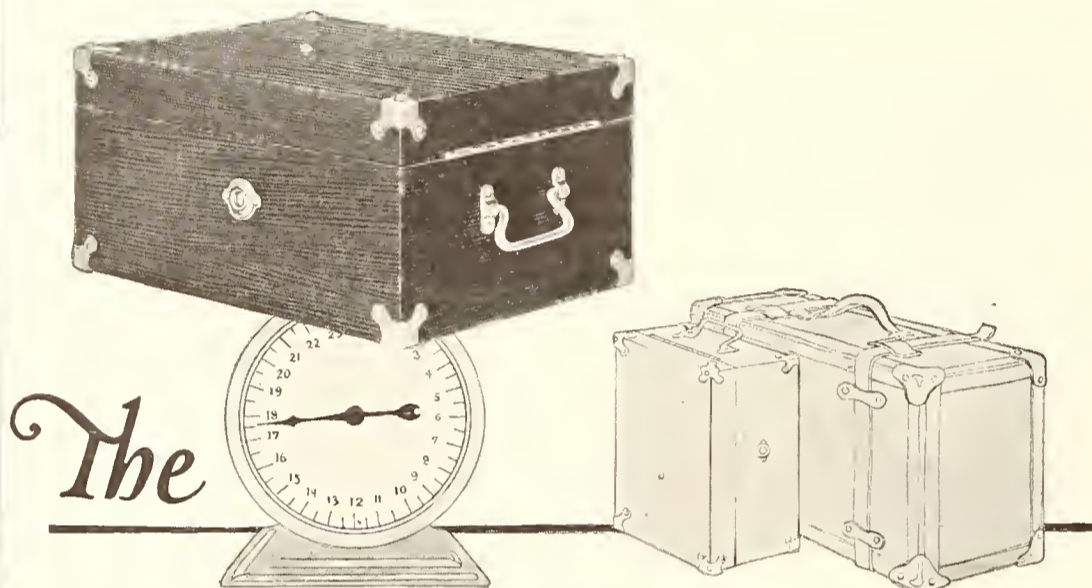

John Steel, the well-known and gifted tenor, who has been singing recently at the Orpheum, was driving home along Seventh street recently when he heard a voice which sounded strangely familiar to him singing "Just An Old Love Song." Ordering his chauffeur to stop—it was right opposite Richardson's, Inc.—he got out of the machine and instructed his man to drive around the block—it being after parking hours. When he asked about the voice, he learned that it was his Victor record, just released, which he had recorded three or four months before.

Brunswick Dealers Hold Meeting

The Brunswick dealers of Orange County were invited to be the guests of the Los Angeles Brunswick branch at St. Ann's Hotel, Santa Ana. John P. Murphy arranged for the affair and in addition to the announcement of some new records for future release by Howard L. Brown, Los Angeles manager, the wisdom of pushing the sale of high-class records of selections by the great composers was pointed out in a strong sales talk. The meeting was instructive and profitable for those present.

General Phonograph Corp. Official Here

W. C. Fuhri, of the General Phonograph Corp., visited Los Angeles this week in order that he might meet C. N. Smith, of the Okeh Smith Co., new Okeh jobber. Mr. Fuhri will leave soon for San Francisco with W. E. Henry, Pacific Coast representative of the General Phonograph Corp.

Radio Industry Is Entering a New Phase

C. Kurtzmann, of Federal Telephone & Telegraph Co., Describes Development of Radio From "Fad" Stage to Permanent Position

We are about to witness the opening of the second stage of development of the radio industry. Like the telephone, the phonograph and the motion picture, it was apparently necessary that this new industry should first go through its infancy period—the plaything stage—before casting off its swaddling clothes and putting on the garments of adult life. Yet neither the telephone nor the phonograph, in this plaything period, ever gripped and held public imagination as hard as the radio, with its suggestion of magic and the mystery of luring sound out of the thin air.

With the possible exception of baseball and, to a certain extent, the motion picture no form of entertainment has ever been accorded the amount of general publicity that has been given to the radio, not because of any particular "pull" that anyone had with editors and publishers, but because of the pull of the thing itself on public interest. Unlike baseball it appeals to every member of the family—from the baby in its crib listening to the "Bedtime Stories" to grandmother in her easy chair, listening to a sermon on Sunday morning. Unlike the motion picture its place of enjoyment is in the home, rather than in the neighborhood theatre, however near at hand that may be. It is this combination of universal appeal and intimate quality that is, in part, responsible for the unique distinction of radio.

Advance in Broadcasting

Aside from the mystery and romance, much of the popularity of radio is due to the far-sightedness and the earnest efforts of the broadcasters to provide programs combining the elements that are really a part of its universal character. Having no precedent to guide them, they have had to find their own way in a new field of entertainment and they have provided programs of the broadest possible range, covering education, instruction, amusement and the useful news of the day, thus at once occupying a field that comprehends the functions of the newspaper, the lecture platform, the concert stage and the theatre, all in one. The steady improvement in the character and range of these programs from their small beginnings, and the possibilities of the future, can best be gauged by comparing the earliest output of the motion picture with the offerings of that industry to-day. The same proportionate advance may be expected in the radio programs, even though they started on a higher plane of perfection. The future programs that will be developed, and the undreamed-of uses of the radio, beggar description.

The parallel between the telephone, the phonograph, the motion picture and the radio is well nigh complete, in that all had to go through their infancy stages before being accepted by the world as a useful and necessary adjunct to modern life in a more serious sense. All were looked upon with a certain amount of interest and indulgence, but credited with being passing fancies. Just as all these others have emerged from that early stage into one of great usefulness and profit, so is the radio just now emerging from its early period into one of permanence as a real industry with a future the magnitude of which is too great to be foretold.

Everybody predicted that there would be a reaction from the first wild rush of radio interest once it had ceased to be "a fad." It had been so with the others, why not with the radio? The interesting thing is that radio has passed from the first excess of excitement over into its permanent place without any marked retrogression of interest. The demand to-day for radio equipment is greater than at any previous time since people began to talk glibly about "antennae" and "static." But there is a marked change coming over the nature of the demand, indicating the change in the character of the relation of radio to the public. Formerly the demand was almost entirely for "parts," so that home-made sets could be assembled, thus adding instruction in electrical science and its kindred branches to the value of the radio itself. With the improvements in broadcasting, particularly with the co-operation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. in relaying important news from its sources, thus bringing the value of programs into the field of news distribution, the character of the demand has perceptibly changed.

The business man now recognizes that, in addition to its qualities as an entertainment provider for the home, for the farm, for the convalescent in his weary bed, the radio has entered upon a field of great usefulness as a con-veyor of important information. It is no longer a thing merely to be talked about, marveled at and played with, but a necessary adjunct to his business establishment. Like himself, it goes from the home to the office and finds something to do in both places. It is the business man who does not want to buy a lot of parts which are to be assembled, any more than he would buy his automobile by parts and assemble it himself. He wants to buy his radio, in fact, as he would buy his car; made up of the most perfectly and soundly manufactured parts, assembled by experts and then given an outward form that can only be attained by the highest skilled body designers and builders. He does not want a lot of unsightly wires straggling about his office, nor wet batteries leaking over his office rugs. He wants the completely assembled set housed, or contained, in an attractive cabinet that will harmonize with his home or office furnishings, the whole forming an ornamental utility of supreme usefulness.

Where the Phonograph Dealer Comes in

That want is about to be fulfilled by Federal and other radio manufacturers. Heretofore the buyer of radio parts has gone to the electrical shop, which will continue to be the purveyor to that demand. But with the coming assembling of radio sets into handsomely designed and well-built cabinets the natural outlet is through the phonograph dealer. For the radio, which is already closely allied to the phonograph, will be of even closer kindred in this form and it is the phonograph dealer who is logically the best equipped to handle it.

Not only has he the necessary showroom for distribution, but his salesmen are trained in the selling of such a similar product that he can "talk" his goods with very little additional selling information. He is, likewise, accustomed to think in the comparatively large figures of his product, and he is financed and equipped to sell on a time basis, which has come to be an essential part of such transactions, as in the piano trade and in the marketing of the more expensive phonograph cabinets.

The Talking Machine Co., of Camden, N. J., has been chartered under Delaware laws to manufacture talking machines, with a capital of $210,000.

BRUNSWICK EASTERN SALES FORCE HOLDS CONVENTION

Members of Brunswick Phonograph Staff in East Convene at Asbury Park, N. J.—H. A. Beach in Charge of Meetings—Many Important Sales Topics Discussed

Asbury Park, N. J., was a Brunswick town during the week of August 6 when the Eastern forces of the phonograph division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. held their 1923 convention. Brunswick men from the Eastern sales division from Carolina to Canada gathered at the Jersey seashore city beginning Tuesday night and immediately started work on the convention proceedings.

The Brunswick phonograph welcomed the visitors upon their arrival, as a $200 "Raleigh" was convention proceedings. Mr. Beach gave interesting statistics as to Brunswick progress in the East, stating that the sales figures showed an increase of 75 per cent over the previous year, of which 50 per cent represented new accounts with established music dealers.

Promotional representatives of leading metropolitan newspapers in the East addressed the convention on Wednesday afternoon. They brought with them the plans of a proposed cooperative promotion campaign and the discus-

Co., contributed to the meeting some interesting facts pertaining to selling. He told the delegates what the retailers want to know from a wholesale man and he told his story concisely and well. J. Louis Buchner, of the order department of the company, presented to the meeting an interesting paper on "Detail Requirements," which was an exposition on what a national organization must have in the way of detail reports in order to facilitate service.

Golf was the theme Thursday afternoon and C. F. Shaw, district manager of Baltimore, was in charge of the tournament, which was a signal success and which demonstrated the exceptional ability of quite a number of the delegates. On Friday morning F. W. Teele, credit manager of the Eastern division of the company, addressed the meeting on "Credits," his talk being directed primarily on how to help the dealer to avoid bad credit conditions. On Friday afternoon, in respect to the late President Harding, the meeting adjourned.

Among those who attended this very successful Brunswick convention were the following: Harry A. Beach, P. A. Ware, H. D. Leopold, H. L. Spencer, E. A. Strauss, C. F. Shaw, O. F. Jester, J. T. Callahan, H. H. Sheldon, Miss Florence Haenle, C. I. Abelowitz, E. L. Brown, F. Elliot, C. R. Salmon, W. C. Zabriskie, W. A. Hanft, J. L. Buchner, N. R. Mann, Edward Wallerstein, D. W. Causey, M. M. O. W. Ray, manager of the wholesale Vocalion record department of the Aeolian Co., who, with Mrs. Ray, has been spending the Summer on a tour of Europe, combining business with pleasure, is due back at his desk in Aeolian Hall on August 16.

set up in the lobby of the Ocean Hotel, which was the convention headquarters. The meeting was opened on Wednesday morning by Harry A. Beach, Eastern sales manager of the Brunswick Co., who stressed the importance of the "Raleigh" as an instrument that was destined to be a leader in the Brunswick line during the coming season. He called attention to the attractive cabinet design of this model, also emphasizing its distinctive mechanical features. The remainder of the Wednesday morning session was devoted to a general outline of the sessions in connection with the campaign indicated that there is considerable activity in Brunswick circles just now along these lines. P. A. Ware, sales promotion manager of the Eastern phonograph division, presided over the Wednesday afternoon session and introduced the newspaper representatives. Mr. Ware later discussed the Brunswick plans of tying up Brunswick activities with the newspaper campaign, bringing out important details of this work. Sales promotion activities, dealer advancement work and Brunswick publicity ideas aside from the newspaper campaign were briefly discussed by Mr. Ware at this session.

H. D. Leopold, manager of the record department of the Eastern division, presided at Thursday morning's session and discussed new record distribution plans, giving a resumé of the capacity and efficiency of the newly erected record pressing plant at Muskegon, Mich. He also told of the company's elaborate program for the East Coast, gave statistics of Brunswick record growth in the East and outlined to the delegates the newest Brunswick release plan. Miss Florence Haenle, in charge of the Brunswick Idea Shop, also talked on record promotion during the Thursday morning session.

Exclusively with Emerson

Popular, versatile, and brilliant Benny Davis, the writer of such well-known hits as "Dearest," "Stella," "Margie," "Lost a Wonderful Girl," and many others, now takes his place in the bright constellation of exclusive Emerson Stars.

Such captivating, rollicking records as his latest: "My Sweetie Went Away," and "Stella"—Record No. 10650—will turn many a dull evening into a riot of good fun for the army of Emerson Record Users.

And his records sell at the new Emerson price—only 50 cents—the greatest news for record dealers and record users in the history of the Talking Machine business.

Read the inside story, on this same page, of why we decided to make this startling reduction.

Now— Emerson Records 50c

Sound economical reasons lie at the bottom of the startling new price reductions in Emerson Records.

Only after a thorough analysis of present conditions in the phonograph industry, and consultation with the most prominent and successful phonograph dealers in the country—who all agree with our decision—did we determine on a retail price of 50 cents for Emerson Records.

Several considerations entered into our final decision: Because of the established popularity and leadership of Emerson Records, we realized that if they were offered at the popular price of 50 cents the resulting greatly increased demand would materially lower all manufacturing and selling costs; and it has always been the policy of the Company to pass on to the dealer and the public any such reductions. Also we discovered that there was a well-defined need in the phonograph industry for a high-class record, marketed under a selling policy entirely in harmony with the best standards of the industry, which would sell for 50 cents.

The Emerson Company has solved the problem. It now offers the same high-quality Emerson Record—the best musically, artistically and mechanically that it is possible for it to produce—with the established Emerson Policy of selling only to legitimate phonograph dealers, at this substantial reduction in price. And we confidently believe that this new policy is bound to be the dominant factor in the industry within the next few months.

Think of the increased turnover—which is the key-note to profit—that this great reduction will mean to every high-class dealer in the country.

The biggest hits first at a fast-selling price and the same profit that you get from the higher priced records.

W. J. BRYAN RECORDS FOR GENNETT

"The Great Commoner," and Former Secretary of State, Makes Four Records for Starr Piano Co.—To Be Released at an Early Date

Interesting additions will be made to the Starr Piano Co.'s catalog of Gennett records shortly with the listing of four records by William Jennings Bryan, "The Great Commoner," and regarded as one of the greatest orators of the day. Three of the records are of religious character and one of the patriotic type, and they will all be listed in one of the early Gennett record supplements.

The first record by Mr. Bryan is of his well-known speech on "The Ideal Republic" and is backed up by the "National Emblem March," played by the Gennett Military Band. The second record is of his speech "Immortality," backed up by the hymn "The Virgin Birth"; the third, a recitation of the Lord's Prayer to musical accompaniment, backed up by "Nearer, My

W. J. Bryan Making Gennett Records

God, to Thee," sung by the Westminster Quartet, and the fourth, a recital of the Twenty-third Psalm, with a rendition of "Lead, Kindly Light" on the other side.

The accompanying photograph shows Mr. Bryan making one of his records at the recording studios of the Starr Piano Co. at Richmond, Ind., the record being made to the accompaniment of sacred music played by a quartet.

5000 SERIES RETAILS AT $1.75

In an advertising announcement in this month's issue of The World the General Phonograph Corp. lists a price of one dollar and fifty cents for its double-faced twelve-inch Odeon and Fonotopia records in its 5000 series. This is an error, as the list price for these records is $1.75 instead of $1.50.

6,000 educational leaders at the Albany, N. Y., armory were amazed to discover that the NEW EDISON PHONOGRAPH could not be distinguished from the living artist when heard in direct comparison.

And, important to you, the opportunity to represent this miracle phonograph is still available to a few far-sighted merchants who can qualify.

LIVE DALLAS DEALERS DO BUSINESS

Aggressive Tactics Bring Prosperity in Texas City—A. H. Curry, of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Addresses Real Estate Board

DALLAS, TEX., August 6.—The talking machine and record business in this territory has held up in a remarkable manner throughout the Summer and the expectations of most of the dealers here handling the leading lines of talking machines and records are that the Fall will witness one of the busiest seasons in some time. Business has not come to the "watchful waiters" in any great measure, but to those retailers who have the gumption to go out and "dig" in spite of heat or any other real or imaginary obstacles. The live members of the trade here have let nothing stand in the way of developing business. Every means of increasing sales has been consistently utilized. Window displays, advertising and other forms of publicity, canvassing, etc., have all been instrumental in building up substantial sales volumes for those merchants who have made use of them. Fall campaigns are now being planned and these will be put in effect as soon as the vacation season closes.

A. H. Curry, vice-president and in charge of the phonograph division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and president of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison jobber of this city, recently made an address before the Dallas Real Estate Board at a luncheon held in the Oriental Hotel. During the course of his talk Mr. Curry stated that he considered real estate in Dallas and El Paso to be the best investment of any town or city in the country, and Mr. Curry has traveled from coast to coast and from border line to border line!

THESE THINGS SOMETIMES HAPPEN

Constant playing of "Yes, We Have No Bananas" on a talking machine was responsible for George Gonzales, proprietor of a novelty store at 129 Nassau street, being brought into Tombs Court, New York, the other day on a summons obtained by Edward A. Wealti, a lawyer with offices across the street. Magistrate Oberwager had the two men shake hands and said he would decide later whether to issue a complaint against Gonzales.

DEATH OF CANADIAN EDISON JOBBER

ST. JOHN, N. B., CANADA, August 6.—The death of the Hon. Senator William Henry Thorne in his seventy-ninth year at the Montreal General Hospital recently is deeply regretted by the phonograph trade here. The Hon. W. H. Thorne was head of the firm of W. H. Thorne & Co., Ltd., Edison jobbers, and for many years he was actively connected with the distribution of the Edison here.

Live Edison Dealer Carries Phonograph Demonstrations Into the Homes of His Prospects by Means of Automobile Truck

Among the recent visitors to the Edison laboratories in Orange, N. J., was Sylvester Cavanaro, Edison dealer, of Riverhead, L. I. He is a firm believer in outside canvassing and stated that his business during the Summer period has been excellent. In fact, he is now going to add another truck for canvassing purposes. In the illustration Mr. Cavanaro is seen standing beside one of the trucks which he has found so profitable in facilitating outside selling. Instruments loaded on this vehicle to be carried to homes of prospects for demonstration purposes have been found to increase the possibilities of making sales.

APPOINTED OKEH JOBBER IN DALLAS

Texas Radio Sales & Engineering Co., of Dallas, Appointed Okeh Jobber

DALLAS, TEX., August 6.—The Texas Radio Sales & Engineering Co., of this city, has just been appointed a jobber for Okeh records, manufactured by the General Phonograph Corp., of New York. W. C. Fuhri, general sales manager of the latter company, was a recent visitor to Dallas and closed this deal while here.

In addition to handling the Okeh line as a jobber the Texas Radio Sales & Engineering Co. is making plans to carry other products in the talking machine field and is also a distributor for the Radio Corp. of America, manufacturer of Radiolas. The company is well known in this territory and is planning an aggressive campaign to interest the dealers in this section in the sales possibilities of the Okeh records.

CLEVER STUNT BOOSTS RECORD SALES

Placards Over Records in Window Display Prove Excellent Sales Stimulators

A most effective show window device for selling phonograph records has been utilized during the past week by the New Edison Shop, Fifth avenue, New York, and a marked increase of sales has been noted. The scheme was to hang descriptive placards bearing the words "Big Hit," "Classical," "Dance to This," "Sacred," etc., on the various records on individual stands in the show window. By way of experiment, several different records were labeled "Big Hit" during the week, with most satisfactory results, one record in particular, which was overstocked at the early part of the week, having been re-ordered from the factory five successive times. In addition, a local news placard service has just been subscribed to by the Edison Shop, with the result that a steady stream of customers of the "silent salesman" has been more than doubled.

CABINET HARDWARE ACTIVITY

H. A. Guden Co. Closing Healthy Business—Hardware for Portables in Active Demand

The H. A. Guden Co., Inc., New York, manufacturer of cabinet hardware, has been receiving substantial orders during the past few weeks, indicating that talking machine manufacturers are preparing for an active Fall trade. This company has specialized in the manufacture of cabinet hardware for a number of years and an interesting feature of this business this Summer has been the receipt of good-sized orders from manufacturers of portables. Judging from the present outlook this company will enjoy an active demand for needle cups, stay arms and, in fact, its general line of cabinet hardware this coming season. The executives of the concern are now making plans to give the trade maximum service and co-operation.

BOSTON'S NATIONAL MUSIC EXHIBITION

H. L. Katz, President of National Exhibition Association, Tells of Plans Under Way for Big Show Opening November 26

Boston is to have a National Music Exhibition during the week beginning November 26. H. L. Katz, president of the National Exhibition Association, reports that the early reservation of the exhibit section, and contracts already signed and delivered, presage the success of the affair. This exposition, he states, is commended by leading professional trade and civic interests and endorsements of the enterprise have been received from such prominent personages as M. Pierre Monteux, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the Mayor of Boston. Boston is strategically situated for exposition purposes, drawing upon the entire New England section, and it is expected that it will stir up great public interest. The exhibition will be held in the building of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association, which is excellently situated, for crowds going to and from the concert hall, picture gallery and other floors offering general attractions, pass through the aisles of the exposition halls devoted to the exhibits.

During the course of the week an elaborate schedule of public entertainments in the concert hall under the direction of the management is planned for both afternoons and evenings. A notable feature of the various exhibits will be a contrast between the instruments of other days and those of the present time, showing what a remarkable advancement has been made. In the picture gallery inspiration of music, as depicted by noted artists, ancient and modern, will be shown. It is predicted by Mr. Katz that the affair will be a great success in every way.

WEEKLY VOCALION RECORD RELEASES NEW EDISON WINDOW DISPLAY FEATURES SINGLE RECORD

Beginning on Friday, September 28, the New Vocalion Records Will Be Issued to Dealers Each Week, to Be Placed on Sale at Once

The Aeolian Co. has announced that plans have been completed for the weekly release of all new Vocalion records, the first of the weekly releases to be effective as of Friday, September 28, 1923. It is felt by the company that the weekly release plan will prove of decided advantage to the dealer in permitting him to offer something new to his customers each week and thereby keep their interest sustained. For some time past the company has been issuing special releases of Vocalion records during the interim between monthly supplements and dealers were enthusiastic over that practice.

In announcing the new plan, it is stated that dealers will be privileged to place the new records on sale each week on the day they are received from the wholesale headquarters, rather than be compelled to wait for a fixed release date.

A definite advertising policy is now being developed in connection with the new release plan which will soon be made known both to Vocalion record distributors and dealers.

PLAN BIG CANVASSING DRIVE

F. Bowman & Son, Allentown (Pa.) Dealers, Purchase New Cars to Aid in Drive—Tone-tests Prove Big Business Asset

ALLENTOWN, PA., August 8.—Evidently F. Bowman & Son, Edison dealers, of this city, intend to get business by going after it. According to Earl Bowman, member of the firm, they have just purchased several new cars with which to conduct a really intensive campaign of canvassing throughout this section and are already making plans for their Fall tone-test, with which they expect to close practically all of the sales still pending at that time.

Mr. Bowman states that they have had at least one tone-test each year since the Edison laboratories originated them about eight years ago and that they still prove themselves to be by far the biggest sales asset.

JAMES WATTERS AGAIN WITH PATHE

James Watters, connected for many years with the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. as secretary, has returned to the fold and rejoined the ranks of the Pathé Phonograph & Radio Corp., Brooklyn, N. Y., on Monday last, in charge of the radio division of the company. During Mr. Watters' absence from the Pathé organization he was connected with one of the prominent radio concerns and is well qualified to assume his new duties.

G. E. HORTON'S PRESENT ACTIVITIES

G. E. Horton, of the Horton-Gallo-Creamer Co., New Haven, Conn., having spent some time calling upon the trade, is now taking care of the inside details of this Victor distributing house. Mr. Horton is a son of the late Henry Horton and is giving his particular attention to dealer service. E. C. Gallo, in charge of the organization, reports that dealers in his territory are enjoying excellent business conditions and looks forward to big business this Fall.

CHANGES NAME TO HUNT PIANO CO.

PORTLAND, ME., August 8.—The Miller & Hunt Co., prominent talking machine and music dealer, of this city, has changed the corporate name of the firm to the Hunt Piano Co. The officers of the company remain as follows: Ralph W. E. Hunt, president, and Burton R. Miller, treasurer. The concern handles the Victor line of talking machines and records and a complete line of the leading makes of pianos and small musical instruments.

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Releases First Display Under New Policy of Featuring Individual Records—Striking Colors and Artistic Arrangement Produce Effective Exhibit

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has now adopted the policy of featuring individual Edison records in window displays prepared for the use of Edison dealers. This policy has been adopted on the grounds that a general record display has a primary interest only for people who already sumer public is, without doubt, most interested. The first display in line with this new policy is released for September. It is built around "Duna, the Song of the Sea." The central piece is done in striking colors and is highly pictorial of the character of the selection. The two side own phonographs, and that a phonograph display should logically feature the performance rather than the phonograph itself, whereas the window display featuring a single record interests both owners and prospective owners in that it features the result in which the entire con-pieces feature the idea "Come in Now" and pictorially tie up with the center piece. This display is one of the most effective of many fine exhibits produced by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and it should prove a real stimulator of record sales.

HEALTHY TONE TO TRADE IN TOLEDO

Industrial Situation Active—Dealers Report Big Retail Gains as Compared With Last Year—News Happenings of the Month

TOLEDO, O., August 8.—Merchants are enjoying a volume of trade well above that of a year ago. While there is a temporary seasonable lull the recession is but slight. Dealers are confidently looking to the Autumn to provide a healthy stimulus to trade. And this is not expecting too much, for local industries are operating on a basis considerably in excess of normal. There are practically no idle workers. Each is slowly building a reserve which is reflected in savings bank deposits.

At the Toledo Talking Machine Co. sales for the past month again show an increase. Merchants are being urged by Chas. H. Womeldorf, general manager, to place orders for machines now and not wait until the Fall demand is upon them. Further, the Victor weekly record release which will start in September is sure to have a highly stimulating effect upon record sales. The trade is optimistic over the sales value of the Red Seal double disc records which will soon be in the stores. A local Victor dealer service inaugurated by this house consists of special hangers, announcements, etc.

Harry L. Wasserman has purchased the Victor stock of the Talking Machine Shop and has opened an exclusive Victor store at 434 North St. Clair street under the title United Music Co. Mr. Wasserman was formerly located in Detroit.

The Lion Store Music Rooms are enjoying a Summer sales increase. Lawson Bell, assistant manager, reports Cheney, Victor and Brunswick machines share in the growth. The store outing day was one of the features of the Summer. A. J. Pete, manager of the department, was chairman. Mr. Pete is now vacationing at Wampers Lake, Mich.

The Cable Company is featuring the special Benson Orchestra release, "In a Tent," through an elaborate window. A tent upon the beach, with corresponding fittings and setting, is attracting much favorable attention and aiding sales, Manager W. A. Grubbs states.

At the Goosman Piano Co. Columbia and Vocalion record sales are growing each month.

Fred N. Goosman, president, has been named chairman of a committee of retail merchants to promote the annual outing of the retail merchants' board.

The Talking Machine Shop has taken on the Columbia line of machines and records, Fred Frame states, and an aggressive sales campaign will soon be started.

The J. W. Greene Co. is experiencing a very excellent Summer machine and record business. Cheney, Brunswick and Victor machines are dealt in here. A fitting tribute to the late President Harding is paid in a window set apart to his memory. His likeness, surrounded with good music, is the center of the display.

At Grinnell Bros. plans are being formulated for a Fall campaign to start soon after the turn of the month. The sales plan of concentrating upon one number at a time instead of scattering efforts is effective in closing sales.

At the LaSalle & Koch Co. Music Shop Manager F. O. Edwards reports gratifying sales the past month, with portables still in favor.

PRESIDENT'S VOICE STILL LIVES

Although the Nation will mourn the loss of the late President Warren G. Harding, it is gratifying to know that something of the benevolent spirit of the man and his voice still lives through the medium of talking machine records, made by the President for the Victor Talking Machine Co. during the drive last year of the American Red Cross, which is still receiving royalties from the sale of these records.

GOURLIE CO. MAKES PHONE PAY

Live Miami, Fla., Concern Boosts Sales of Records by Demonstrations Over Phone

MIAMI, FLA., August 8.—The Gourlie Music Co., of this city, has taken advantage of the telephone in selling the new talking machine records each month. Advertising in the local newspapers calls attention to the new releases and suggests that readers telephone and ask to have any of the new records played over the phone.

They have the phone in a booth and the record called for is played, the open phone being put face to the horn and near enough for the record to be heard over the phone. As many records are played as the customer asks for and those that are selected are delivered by the company. This stunt has speeded up record business in a most satisfactory manner.

Hohner Expansion Is Necessary

Considerable changes have been made in the arrangement of the New York headquarters of M. Hohner, manufacturer of the well-known Hohner harmonica and accordion. These changes have been made possible through the addition of another floor, thus making two floors available for the carrying on of the greatly increased business of the company. Lauri Wylie in the London Times, under date of March 25th, says the following of Whiteman's sensational London engagement: "There are only two men the thought of whom might reconcile me to forswear my native land and transform myself into an American citizen. They are Abraham Lincoln and Paul Whiteman. The dead man stands for American freedom, thought and principle. The living one represents modern American tyranny in its most efficient and devastating development. America has taken us in thrall not merely by the magic of the dollar, but by her efficiency in jazz. And Paul Whiteman is the King, the Emperor, the Great Pandrum, the embodiment of Jazz."

HUSTLERS SCORE IN CANTON TRADE

Dealers Adopt Aggressive Methods and Successfully Compete With Cheap Automobile Dealers—Retailers Preparing for Expected Fall Boom—Activities of the Month

CANTON, O., August 7.—Hustlers are doing the business these days despite competition of the cheap automobile, which is having considerable adverse effect on the talking machine business. A survey of the larger stores this week disclosed that all dealers are prepared to take care of increased business expected during the early weeks of the Fall season, when quite a revival in the industry is predicted. Record sales have taken on new life and this month's list appears to be one of the most acceptable released in the whole year. Industrially the city continues to boom and workers are being paid high wages.

Philip Dorm, representing the Eclipse Music Co., Cleveland, visited with local talking machine dealers the past week, calling on the George C. Wille Co., William R. Zollinger & Co., and others.

W. E. Pyle, manager of the talking machine department at William R. Zollinger & Co., expects to leave on his vacation on August 20.

With the pottery industry operating at top speed, and other industries working full time, the Carrollton, O., store of the Alford & Fryar Piano Co., Starr and Cheney dealer, of Canton, is enjoying a big business, according to Al Waltamath, who is in charge of the new branch.

Miss Margaret Gallagher, in charge of the record department of William R. Zollinger & Co., has resigned her position.

Talking machine sales showed a gain of 15 per cent at the store of the Garver Bros. Co., Strasburg, the month of July. Total sales to date this year at the Garver store have been $432,182.93, an increase over the corresponding period a year ago of $99,743.20.

Two well-known talking machine stores will figure prominently in the dedication of Cleveland avenue, when the celebration is held on Halloween. The George C. Wille Co. and the Rhines Edison Shop, both located on this thoroughfare, are lending co-operation to the committee in charge of the promotion.

Eight Canton talking machine dealers have pledged their co-operation in helping make Trade Extension Week next month a success. An extensive publicity drive in which special edition newspapers will be distributed throughout the countryside for a distance of 50 miles is planned. C. M. Alford, local Cheney and Starr dealer, is chairman of the committee on stunts.

Standard Musical String Co. Making Rapid Progress in Talking Machine Trade—Attractive Display Cases Available for Dealers' Use

The Standard Musical String Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturer of Truesolo strings, has been spending considerable time and effort in the introduction of this product to the talking machine trade. The results of this campaign to date have been very successful and talking machine dealers throughout the country have placed substantial orders for Truesolo strings, with the idea of featuring them during the year.

In order to co-operate with the dealers in the introduction of these strings the company has prepared several attractive display cases that can be used to splendid advantage in the dealers' windows and on counters. Talking machine dealers in general are evincing keen interest in the sales possibilities of Truesolo strings among their patrons and for the coming Fall and holiday season the Standard Musical String Co. has prepared an intensive sales campaign.

VISITORS TO COLUMBIA OFFICE

There was a Pacific Coast delegation recently at the executive offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., 1819 Broadway, New York, and among the visitors were P. S. Kantner, manager of the Columbia Co.'s San Francisco branch; W. F. Stidham, manager of the Los Angeles branch, and W. H. Lawton, representing the company at Seattle. The visitors conferred with Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the company, regarding plans for the Fall season and, without exception, they were enthusiastic in predicting that the remainder of 1923 would be one of the most active seasons in Columbia history. S. S. Larmon, manager of the Cleveland branch, was also a visitor.

Trade Leaders Vacationing—Anticipate a Brisk Fall Business—H. Germain, Treasurer of Plaza Music Co., New York, a Visitor—Portables Meet With Popular Favor—Wireless Conditions in an Unsettled State—Gramophone Co., Ltd., Announces New Instrument—D. J. Blaikley Made President of Gramophone Association—Other News of Interest

LONDON, ENGLAND, August 2.—Throughout the gramophone trade and its associated industries these days leading men are taking a well-earned rest, leaving their executive and junior staffs to discuss among themselves holiday plans ahead or fulfilled. This is not to imply that they have nothing else to do because, although not by any means brisk, there is a certain amount of business to look after.

By all anticipations a good Fall season is assured. Plans are well forward in design and production of new models and, judging by the great activity prevalent even at this time among supply houses, an early sales start should be made this year. I am inclined to the belief that foreign gramophone goods will not enjoy such freedom of sale in our market as last year.

Herman Germain Visits London

Among distinguished visitors to London recently was Herman Germain, treasurer of the Plaza Music Co., New York, which handles Banner records, albums of nursery rhyme discs, etc. Though not quite so elusive as the Scarlet Pimpernel, Mr. Germain was "here, there and everywhere" around the trade during his short time here and I was fortunate in passing a pleasant hour with him, gleaned much of American business hustle in contrast to our perhaps less strenuous activity. One object of Mr. Germain's visit was to appoint a suitable firm to represent the Plaza products in the British market. To this end I understand negotiations are still proceeding.

Portable Gramophones Having Their Day

There is an all-the-year-round demand for good portable gramophones, but it cannot be said their sales are unaffected by weather conditions. Given such a real fine spell of sunshine as we have been experiencing open-air enjoyment, naturally, takes precedence of indoor amusements. Hence, at this time, do we find that of all gramophone sales it is the day of the portable. It would not be a difficult matter to itemize no less than fifty varieties, ranging in price from 30s to £10. Wherever one may go evidence accumulates in the shape of special window displays, demonstrating that dealers are alive to the big sales value of portable machines. This branch of our trade is, therefore, a good, paying proposition, capable still of greater development than has been accomplished.

British Wireless Conditions Unsettled

Wireless trade at present shows little sign of revival in the British market. Following the extraordinary boom last Autumn and Winter a period of stagnation was experienced and the slump in sales seems to inspire a general belief that it is to prove more of a seasonal trade than at first thought. The opening of new transmitting stations and the promise of more still leaves a fair amount of territory unprovided for. The progressively increased service may, however, reasonably be expected to exert a good influence upon sales of receiving sets.

The "Gramola" Causes a Stir

The talk of the trade these last few days centers around the news that the Gramophone Co., Ltd., plans to issue, within the near future, an instrument of table grand design to retail, oak £5, mahogany £6. It will not bear the imprint of "His Master's Voice" trade-mark, but be marketed under the above name as manufactured by the Gramophone Co., Ltd. This action indicates the adoption of a really competitive policy which has seriously concerned the many other manufacturers and assemblers of similarly designed instruments round about these prices!

Important Gramophone Law Action

Much interest has been manifested in gramophone and musical circles in an action by Frederic Austin, musical composer and author of the musical setting of Gay's opera "Polly," now running at the Savoy Theatre, against the Columbia Co. for an injunction and damages for alleged infringement of his copyright through the sale of gramophone records, entitled "Selections From Polly." Defendants denied the allegations. Mr. Luxmore, K. C., who appeared for plaintiff, said that the first gramophone record of the work was naturally of great value to his client, who gave the first right of production not to the defendant company, but to the Gramophone Co., Ltd., makers of "His Master's Voice" records. The defendant, he continued, had infringed the plaintiff's copyright by making a manuscript, orchestral score and band parts, reproducing a great deal of the plaintiff's music and had put upon the market double-sided records a week before the Gramophone Co.'s authorized records. Evidence was given pro and con by a number of leading musicians and composers. Justice Astbury, in handing down his decision on July 24, made a very interesting resumé of the history of the musical setting of "Polly" and, in closing, stated that he was of opinion "that the defendants had infringed Mr. Austin's copyright in his music by making, or authorizing to be made, an orchestral score and band parts wherein substantial parts of Mr. Austin's music were reproduced, and by making therefrom gramophone records, by means of which substantial parts of the plaintiff's music had been mechanically performed.

"There would be judgment for the plaintiff for the injunction claimed and an inquiry as to damages. Defendants must pay the costs of the action."

On the application of Sir Duncan Kerly, K. C., for the defendants, his lordship granted a stay of inquiry and of delivery up of the records, on notice of appeal being given within twenty-one days.

Annual Meeting of Gramophone Association

At the annual general meeting of the A. G. M. I. M. and W. D., held at the Federation offices recently, D. J. Blaikley (Boosey & Co.) was unanimously elected president, with H. J. Cullum, M. B. E. (Perophone & Lockwoods), vice-president. The retiring president, Louis Sterling, emphasized the great value of the Association during the five years of its activity. The committee for the ensuing year comprises: Gramophone Trade Section: J. E. Hough, A. J. Mason, Geo. Murdoch, E. C. Paskell, H. Moorby Smith, Louis Sterling; Musical Instrument Trade Section: M. F. Cooksey, Geoffrey Hawkes, A. G. Houghton, Frank Samuel, George Wallis.

Demonstration of an Improved Gramophone

The "Bestone" is well and favorably known throughout the English markets, but to christen a series of new models a special press demonstration was given in London on July 18. This brought a full attendance of representatives of the trade and public press, professional musicians and members of the nobility. Albert Sammons, the famous violinist, gave a number of selections to a delighted audience and after each piece the same record was played on one of the new Bestones. The contrast was sufficiently effective as a test of good reproduction, confirming that the all-metal unit design of the Bestone models is based upon really scientific acoustical lines.

It might be as well to explain some of the novel features of the Bestone all-metal unit which is embodied in all new models. The metal motor board, motor, tone arm and interior horn or amplifying chamber comprise a complete unit separate from the case and easily detachable if necessary. Being made of polished aluminum the unit is both light and strong and rustless. It is a fine piece of engineering skill, highly efficient in sound delivery and sonority. Heartly good wishes for success to the British Gramophone & Wireless Co., Ltd., who, by the way, have recently taken over the sales of the Bestone products from the C. H. Roberts Mfg. Co., Ltd., who will continue the manufacturing side.

A New Record for the British Market

An important item of news that will create much interest in trade circles, especially this side of "the pond," concerns the marketing of another gramophone record proposition. Pending final settlement of negotiations and policy actual details are not at present available. However, The World is in a position exclusively to announce the coming of the "Parlophone" record in ten and twelve-inch sizes, with an entirely new repertoire appropriate to English taste. It will be handled by a strong company with a generous financial backing, early registration of which, in London, may be expected. The promoters and those directly concerned with the success of this venture, I am assured (and, in part, can confirm), are men of experience, possessing a wide and intricate knowledge of the gramophone business and its requirements, applicable to conditions prevailing in the English field. The "Parlophone" record prices, I understand, will coincide with what are known as standard. Arrangements for recording are well advanced; a big initial list is planned for early issue and thereafter regular monthly additions will be made.

Miscellaneous News Items

Allotment of space at the great 1924 British Empire Exhibition is almost complete. Plans are now under way for the building which will house the musical instrument exhibits. Arrangements are in the hands of the Federation.

Compared with the returns for the month of May the official figures relating to exports during June show a decrease of over £8,000,000, or about $40,000,000.

The secretary of the Gramophone Dealers' Association, Robert R. Brown, has tendered his resignation. During his period of office, about sixteen months, Mr. Brown was instrumental in increasing the membership by over 220. G. H. Russell takes over the vacant position for the time being.

The British Industries Fair will be held at the White City at the end of April and the beginning of May next year.

"His Master's Voice" Co. announces that recent price reductions have had the effect of still further increasing the demand for its instruments. Good!

J. E. Hough, Ltd., continue to make regular monthly issues of "Winner" records bearing right up-to-date hits. As a result a very steady demand is experienced at this time, when in many directions gramophone trade remains exceedingly slack.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 8.—Phonograph. Carl J. Hofmann, New York, assignor of one-half to Edwin M. Hecksher, Belle Harbor, N. Y. Patent No. 1,455,913.

The invention relates to certain new and useful improvements in phonographs and more particularly in the mode of attaching and supporting the horn or amplifier within the cabinet, so that the sole contact between the horn and the other elements of the phonograph is by means of a relatively loose connection between the upper end of the horn and the under side of the tone arm support or other fixed part of the frame, preferably in the form of a slip joint which admits of the horn being readily applied and removed or substituted by a horn of different character, the particular advantages of such an arrangement being the substantial elimination of all noises or sounds incidental to the operation of the machine, except the sounds specifically designed to be reproduced, which latter are delivered and amplified by the horn with the fullness and integrity of tone and quality which have not been capable of realization with machines of the standard type, in which the horns are usually rigidly attached to the casing or cabinet at various points and which, therefore, transmit all of the sounds and noises produced by the operation of the motor and other movable parts of the mechanism, to the serious impairment of the reproduction of the phonograph record.

Figure 1 is a side elevation, partly in section, of a cabinet phonograph having the improvements aforesaid associated therewith. Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the horn and one element of the slip joint for connecting or suspending the same within the cabinet. Fig. 3 is a fragmentary rear elevation showing the joint between the horn and its support.

Phonograph Record. Walter C. Hadley, New York. Patent No. 1,456,434.

The object of the present invention is to provide a phonograph record which may be used on any of the well-known phonograph machines provided with an automatic stop, so constructed that it may be possible to accurately set the stop mechanism to be operated at a definite point and, having been once set, it may be permanently locked and operate with any record embodying this invention, no matter what the width of the reproducing surface may be.

Automatic Record-transferring Mechanism for Phonographs. George A. Behlen, Greenville, S. C., assignor of one-half to C. C. Rush, same place. Patent No. 1,456,614.

This invention relates to an automatic record-transferring mechanism for phonographs and it has for its object to provide a simple and reliable mechanism whereby a plurality of records may be placed in a magazine and the machine set in motion, the machine, without further attention, playing the records in succession and, if desired, over and over again indefinitely.

The invention contemplates the provision of mechanism whereby the machine may be coin controlled or manually controlled from a distant point. Furthermore, means are provided whereby the playing of any record may be interrupted and such record returned to the magazine and another substituted whenever desired.

Amplifier for Sound Reproducing Machines. Paul Raddis, Miami, Okla. Patent No. 1,456,678.

This invention relates to an improved amplifier or horn for sound reproducing machines and it has for its principal aim to provide an amplifier of this class which is such in construction as to act as a resonator for decidedly affecting the quality of the tones reproduced to an extent to deaden or mute undesirable scraping and scratching noises and reinforcing the vibrations to produce clear and harmonious tones.

The aim is to construct a horn or amplifier of suitable design and shape from specified pieces of wood treated in a way to permit them to retain their natural or inherent tone resonating and amplifying qualities and obviating the necessity of bending and treating the wood by methods now utilized which seem to be detrimental to the production of mellow and clear tones.

Stylus Mounting. Thomas A. Edison, West Orange, N. J., assignor to the New Jersey Patent Co., same place. Patent No. 1,456,687.

This invention relates to stylus mountings and more especially to mountings for phonographic styli formed of a jewel, such as diamond or sapphire, and in which the stylus is partially enclosed in a metal holder and projects from a reduced end portion thereof. The principal object of the invention is to provide an improved mounting of this character whereby the stylus will be firmly and rigidly held in its holder so as to effectually prevent the same from being loosened in use.

Figure 1 is a diagrammatic view partly in elevation and partly in section, of an electroplating cell illustrating the preferred method of applying a reinforcing collar to a stylus mounting in accordance with the invention. Fig. 2 is an enlarged view, in elevation, partly in section, of a stylus mounting in a suitable support therefor, after the reinforcing collar has been electro-plated on the reduced end portion of the holder of the mounting. Fig. 3 is an enlarged view in side elevation of a finished reinforced stylus mounting embodying the invention.

Phonograph Amplifier Mounting. Vincenzo Minelli, Pittston, Pa. Patent No. 1,456,903.

This invention relates to a mounting or supporting means for phonograph amplifiers. A prime object is to provide means which may be efficiently disposed on and secured to a support separate from as well as on a phonograph cabinet, when desired, for mounting a phonograph amplifier, particularly of the general type covered by Letters Patent No. 1,395,053 issued on October 25, 1921, in order that such an amplifier may be used as an attachment for and in place of the usual amplifier means of phonographs to enable the advantages of such an improved amplifier to be attained in existing phonographs as well as one which is initially equipped with such an amplifier.

Another object is to provide in an article of this kind a base to swivel a supporting pedestal or frame, and with co-operating means on the base and securing means for sections of the amplifier to limit the swinging movement of the amplifier.

Figure 1 is a side elevation illustrating improvements in connection with a phonograph turntable and with the mounting secured to a support separate from the phonograph cabinet. Phonograph Tone Rectifier and Amplifier. Charles A. Tremain, Bellingham, Wash. Patent No. 1,457,678.

This invention relates to improvements in tone rectifiers and amplifiers for phonographs, and the object is to produce a simple and inexpensive device which when placed between a phonograph turntable and the record thereon will improve the reproduced tone both as to quality and volume.

This object is attained with the device illustrated in the accompanying sheet of drawings, in which Figure 1 is a plan view of the device,

Fig. 2 is a side elevation of Fig. 1, and Fig. 3 is a plan view of a phonograph turntable and reproducer with the device in operative position thereon.

Similar characters refer to similar parts throughout. Certain parts are broken away to show other parts hidden thereby.

Broadly, the device comprises a thin, flat, sonorous body adapted to intervene between the turntable of a phonograph and the record thereon.

Tone Regulator. Charles O. Tucker, Hutchinson, Kan. Patent No. 1,457,327.

The primary object of the invention is the construction of a tone regulating or modifying attachment for phonographs, wherein pressure may be exerted on the needle to a more or less degree so that the varying resistances produced will correspondingly change the vibrations to effect the modified tones desired.

Figure 1 is a face view of the sound box, provided with the attachment. Fig. 2 is a side view of the sound box, provided with the attachment, parts being shown in section. Fig. 3 is a detail view, showing the adjusting means for the rod. Fig. 4 is a detail view of the bent portion of the rod and the pressure contacting surface therein. Fig. 5 is a section view, taken on the line 5—5 of Fig. 4.

Phonograph. Ralph W. Morrison, Omaha, Neb. Patent No. 1,457,313.

This invention relates more particularly to the sound conducting tube and the sound reproducer of a phonograph, and has for its object, broadly, to provide such a construction that at least three diaphragms may be used and that sounds may be reproduced from any of the disc records now in use. The invention includes a sound reproducer adapted to be rotated for adjustments longitudinally of the sound conducting tube to dispose its apertures in register with the apertures of said tube, and to provide a required weight or pressure for the several styli in their playing positions, and also to dispose each stylus, when in its playing position, at the same distance from the axis of movement of the tone arm.

By use of the herein described invention, the sound reproducer may be rotated for moving it longitudinally of the sound conducting tube to dispose the stylus of any desired diaphragm in a playing position, and simultaneously therewith supplying the required pressure for the stylus in the groove of the disc record, no adjustments being required for operation after the sound reproducer has been disposed in its playing position. In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a plan view of the device. Fig. 2 is a view in side elevation of the sound conducting tube, the sleeve for the three-part sound reproducer being in section. Fig. 3 is an end view showing the arrangement of the parts of the sound reproducer, parts being in section. Fig. 4 is a side view of the sound conducting tube showing the sound reproducer mounted thereon. Fig. 5 is a side view of the sound conducting tube and sound reproducer. Fig. 6 is a plan view, partly in section, of the sound conducting tube. Fig. 7 is a side view of the sound conducting tube. Fig. 8 is a sectional view on line

8—8 of Fig. 4. Fig. 9 is a sectional view on line 9—9 of Fig. 4. Fig. 10 is a sectional view on line 10—10 of Fig. 4. Fig. 11 is a detail relating to Figs. 6 and 7, being a transverse section through the sound conducting tube taken in the endless groove thereof.

Phonograph. Herman Rothkirch, New York. Patent No. 1,458,596.

This invention has for its object to provide a phonograph which is of maximum efficiency in the reproduction of the records being played and in which all objectionable as well as foreign noises are eliminated from said reproduction.

Figs. 5 and 6 are detail views of the tone arm. Fig. 7 is a view of a detail of the invention.

Mounting for Stylus Levers. George W. Slight, Brooklyn, N. Y. Patent No. 1,459,695.

This invention relates to mountings for stylus levers in sound boxes. The general object is the provision of a simple and efficient mounting for stylus levers in sound boxes, provided with a self-compensating means for taking care of the wear in the bearings.

These objects are accomplished by providing a stylus lever, having a trunnion extending at right angles thereto, forming bearings in the casing, one of which is a groove extending at an angle to the axis of the trunnion, and mounting on the casing a spring which tends to draw the trunnion along the groove to compensate for wear.

the line 3—3, Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a section along the line 4—4, Fig. 1. Fig. 5 is a bottom plan view of a modification of the self-compensating mounting. Fig. 6 is a section along the line 6—6, Fig. 5.

Phonograph Record Cleaner and Clarifier. John O'Donnell, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,459,549.

This invention consists of a novel construction of a phonograph record cleaner and clarifier, wherein is employed a brush or cleaning means for removing particles of dust from the sound grooves of a phonograph record positioned upon the latter in advance of the stylus thereof, said brush being so arranged as to clean the sound grooves of any particles of dust, while also clarifying the reproduction of the sound without retarding or impeding the vibrations of stylus, stylus holder or sound box diaphragm.

Figure 1 represents a plan view of a phonograph record cleaner and clarifier embodying the invention, showing the relative position the parts assume with respect to a record when the latter is being played. Fig. 2 represents a rear elevation of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 represents a front elevation of Fig. 2. Fig. 4 represents a perspective view of the brush-supporting arm, seen in Figs. 1 to 3, in detached position. Fig. 5 represents a side elevation of a brush detached from its holder. Fig. 6 represents a section on line 6—6, Fig. 5.

The SCOTFORD TONEARM & SUPERIOR REPRODUCER

HOW TO SELL A PHONOGRAPH

To the Dealer or Salesman:

The Scottford Tonearm and Superior Reproducer are used by a number of manufacturers of high grade phonographs. If your store handles any one of these instruments you can increase your sales and profits by thoroughly learning and then informing the customer of the "Twelve Points" of superiority given below. Remember it is no proof of selling ability to take an order for a phonograph, the preference for which has been fixed in the customer's mind by big national advertising campaigns. Such order taking proves the power of advertising—not the sagacity of salesmanship. The saving in advertising cost is made up for by extra quality and extra profit for the store in the Scottford equipped instrument. There is a better future for the business in the lasting satisfaction of the purchaser who takes an instrument of genuine music into his home. Give the customer a comparison of tone on all the different makes. If he is not deaf, he must appreciate the extraordinary difference in tone—the Scottford's genuine musical reproduction, without the metallic sharpness, and without the scratch. Then prove yourself not an ordertaker but a salesman by continuing with a detailed explanation of why the Scottford is better as analyzed in the "Twelve Points."

Keep the tonearm unscrewed at the base, so you may lift it off in your hand for thorough examination inside and out—not necessary to screw it down until sold and ready to deliver

TWELVE POINTS

- 1—Its good looks. A neat, trim, tailormade appearance. Nicely proportioned lines which any artist will approve. Not the swollen appearance of the continuous taper nor angular lines in conflict with the cabinet design.
- 2—The substantial, simple construction—cast parts of solid white brass, long straight tube of yellow brass, hard rubber bushing to prevent metallic vibration at the reproducer connection elbow.
- 3—No obstruction anywhere inside—an absolutely clear passage, with the approved two-inch inside diameter at base, and a solid 45-degree deflecting plane at the turn to direct the sound waves straight downward into the amplifying chamber.
- 4—The simple swinging movement of the tonearm base—how freely it floats when lifted up onto the record—but how a supporting lug inside the base at back prevents the arm from swinging when off the record and does not allow the needle point to let down so low as to mar the cabinet.
- 5—The handy lift-up or side turn, affording two ways to change the needle.
- 6—Light pressure on the record—the squareness of the turn causing the weight to be supported by the base, whereas a more curving turn would throw too much weight forward to the needle point.
- 7—How perfectly the needle centers the groove—turning the reproducer for playing lateral or vertical cut records leaves the needle on exactly the same point at the same and only correct angle. A minimum of surface noise on records noted for scratch.
- 8—Reproducer frame split clear through—making it a spring, held under tension by the long screw which adjusts the pivotal mounting of the stylus bar.
- 9—Any looseness that might ever develop in the pivoting of the stylus bar may be readily detected and instantly corrected by adjusting the long screw until the needle holder and stylus bar feel tight.
- 10—The inclined position of the reproducer and angle of the stylus bar by which a greater impulse is imparted to the diaphragm, with finer sensitivity to minor vibrations than the ordinary straight upright design.
- 11—Fineness of the mica diaphragm—a perfect crystal edge disc of selected clear India mica costing five times as much as the "seconds" and "thins" used in cheap sound boxes.
- 12—Perfect insulation—a rubber basket entirely separating the reproducer frame from the backplate, and again a complete break in the contact of metals by the hard rubber bushing in the tonearm. This double insulation insuring against metallic effect in the tone, and preventing the surface scratch being magnified by the metals of the reproducer and tonearm.

The Reproducer turns on its axis—the needle remaining on exactly the same center and at the same correct angle in both positions

THE SUPERIOR LID SUPPORT

Balances the Lid at any point

The final point of excellence in the equipment of a cabinet that often decides the sale. A touch of one finger lifts or closes the lid, which stops at any point desired. Cannot warp the cover. Noiseless in operation. The simplest support made. Easiest to install.

We are prepared to supply this Tonearm and Reproducer to a number of additional manufacturers of phonographs in certain parts of the United States, and contracts remain open for some foreign countries. Write us for particulars and prices.

We are able to supply this Support in any quantity. Made of steel, high grade nickel or gold plate finish. Samples sent to manufacturers anywhere for trial. Write for low quantity prices. State type and weight of lid.

A. H. CURRY RETIRES FROM HIS IMPORTANT EDISON POST

Chas. Edison Pays Tribute to His Work as Vice-president and Manager of Edison Phonograph Industry for Past Two Years—Will Concentrate on Edison Jobbing Business in Dallas

Chas. Edison, chairman of the board of directors of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., on September 8 issued the following statement:

"The board of directors of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., announces with regret the resignation of Mr. A. H. Curry, who has been vice-president and manager of the Edison phonograph industry during a successful two years' regime. Mr. Curry's clean fighting qualities, hitting ability and business sagacity have been of inestimable aid in placing the Edison phonograph industry in its present healthy condition. Mr. Curry leaves on October 1, approximately in accordance with his original idea. A successor to Mr. Curry will be introduced shortly."

A. H. Curry, whose resignation from the vice-presidency of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was announced in the foregoing official communication, has been the manager of the Edison phonograph industry for the past two years. On the eve of his departure for his Edison jobbing headquarters in Dallas, Tex., Mr. Curry kindly agreed to review for The World some of the many progressive accomplishments of the Edison Co. during the past two years—improvements which have been apparent to the entire phonograph industry. He modestly disclaimed any individual responsibility for these developments, and insisted that he was merely of assistance because of his practical knowledge of general business principles and his long experience as an Edison dealer, Edison traveler, Edison jobbing house manager and Edison jobbing house proprietor. He said in part:

"A few years ago the phonograph industry was in the grip of the greatest business depression it had ever known. The men selected to take the helm of any manufacturer's business had a man-size job cut out for them. The buyer orgy was over; sensible conservative business policies were needed—selling methods and expenses had to be tempered with veteran business judgment.

"The progress of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in the face of this condition and during the past two years is found in such noteworthy accomplishments as the reduction in the prices of records, both disc and Amberol; the reduction in the prices of certain disc phonographs and of Amberol phonographs; and the introduction of a new line of low-priced disc models of remarkable value. Needless to say, these price reductions and attractive additions to the Edison line have greatly reduced the selling resistance offered to Edison dealers. Better trade discounts have been passed along to jobbers and dealers. The dealer's margin of profit was never so great, and there is, therefore, now a much greater incentive for dealer activity.

"A safe and sane phonograph order system has been installed which is advantageous to the dealer, jobber, Edison sales division and the Edison production division. Over-stocks, the constant danger signal in the phonograph field, are prevented by this shrewd system, which, nevertheless, provides for excellent service.

"One year ago the Edison Co. conceived and launched the idea of instantaneous record release, which has proved a boon to the entire phonograph industry. This clever plan prevents over-stock anywhere along the line and insures rapid turnover by jobbers, dealers and the factory.

"The foregoing record of accomplishments was made possible, to a great extent, by decided economies in the Edison phonograph industry at Orange—savings which have been reflected in the various discounts passed on to the Edison trade and in improvements in the Edison product.

"Obviously, the Edison phonograph business was never on a more solid foundation and never so well equipped to forge ahead to a lofty pinnacle of lasting prosperity. In fact, it is safe to predict that it will continue to improve from year to year for the next decade at the same rate it has grown in 1923 as compared with 1922."

Regarding his plans for the future, Mr. Curry stated that he has some rather revolutionary merchandising ideas which, when applied to Edison dealers, served by his Edison jobbing house, the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., of Dallas, will double or perhaps treble their sales of Edison phonographs and probably at a reduced cost of selling. At the moment Mr.

A. H. Curry

Curry declined to discuss these plans in detail. He said, however, that it is his intention to diligently devote himself to the Edison jobbing business and asserted that he will find unbounded pleasure in renewing direct contact with all of his old dealer friends in Texas and Oklahoma and will interest himself in their welfare as heretofore. In this connection Mr. Curry wisely insists that unless the dealer profits no one in the industry profits and the industry is weakened thereby. Consequently, Mr. Curry's interest is always centered in dealer welfare.

Having made many personal friends in the Edison organization while directly connected there, and his affection and respect for Mr. Edison made more profound during the two years of personal association, there was a note of sadness in Mr. Curry's voice when he spoke of his departure. He found consolation though in the fact that he will visit Orange and "the wizard" several times each year in accordance with his usual custom as an Edison jobber.

DESCRIBES NEW ZEALAND METHODS

L. Alfred Eady, Whose House Handles a Substantial Talking Machine Business in That Country, Offers Some Interesting Views

A trade visitor of unusual importance during the past month was L. Alfred Eady, managing director of Louis R. Eady & Son, Ltd., Auckland, N. Z., who came to the United States with Mrs. Eady to attend the International Convention of Rotary Clubs in St. Louis, and then made an extended visit to England and Germany, stopping off in New York and Chicago, both going and coming.

Mr. Eady's company is very active in the talking machine field of New Zealand, handling both "His Master's Voice" and Columbia lines of machines and records. He stated that at the present time New Zealand is in a particularly prosperous condition and is enlarging its field for dairy products, exporting them to many parts of the world. He stated that 90 per cent of the country's business is made up of the handling of agricultural products, for which good prices were being realized.

Incidentally, it might interest talking machine dealers in this country who are straddling the fence on the interest question to learn that in New Zealand, under what is known as the "hire purchase" system, interest is charged on all time sales. The interest is taken on a flat basis. In other words, if a machine is to be paid for in twelve months 5 per cent interest is added to the total price. If it is to be paid for in twenty-four months 5 per cent per year, or 10 per cent in all, is added to the original cash price, and the principal and interest divided into regular monthly payments. This is done because under the "hire purchase" law interest does not figure, the customer simply hiring the instrument month after month until final payment is completed, when the title changes. If he defaults on a payment the contract is broken automatically and the dealer can recover the instrument without further ado.

Mr. Eady spent some time calling on the various manufacturers of talking machine products and accessories in New York and then left for Chicago on his long journey home. He stated that business methods in New Zealand were distinctly similar to those followed in the United States and that they were, in fact, patterned largely after our most successful systems.

Delivery Service as a Business Builder

Problem of Speedy, Economical Delivery Service Solved by the Use of Motorcycle—Increased Business Justifies the Expense

A Western dealer writes in to state that he contemplates establishing a special delivery service for records and for musical merchandise with a view to making more rapid deliveries to customers, but has hesitated taking the final step in the belief that possibly the expense of the service would outweigh any increase of business that might be traced thereto.

As a matter of fact there are a number of talking machine retailers in various sections of the country who credit no small part of their business increase to the fact that they put such a service in operation, gave it full publicity in their newspaper advertising and circulars and gave the public the impression that, if they wanted anything in the record or accessory line, they could get it quickly from that particular store.

Better Service Means More Business

It is generally recognized by the average dealer that in sections where competition is strong about the only thing he has to offer the customer that is individual and which cannot be offered in the same way by a competitor is better service. He cannot always do this through the operation of a wagon delivery, no matter how earnest the attempt, for the reason that a truck or wagon must be routed carefully to cover definite sections and as much ground as possible during the day if delivery costs are not to prove prohibitive.

In the routing of the wagons it is sometimes necessary to hold up special deliveries for several hours until there are a sufficient number of orders from a certain section to warrant a trip. It is here that the special messenger service proves of value, whether the messenger travels by street-car or whether he uses a modern conveyance, the motorcycle—preferably one equipped with a commodious box as a side-car. Not only is the cost of maintaining a motorcycle very small, but it is also calculated in many cases to save the cost of an extra wagon or truck for the reason that good-sized machines, as well as records, accessories and musical merchandise may be carried about with it with little difficulty.

Speed Results in Economy

In a number of cases all record deliveries, with the exception of those made in company with a machine, are handled by motorcycle and side-car, for it can get about quicker and can leave the wagon free to deliver machines only and deliver more of them within a given time.

The selling argument for the special delivery is that customers may phone for any desired records and have them delivered within the city limits within an hour or so. On the face of it it looks as though the offer was overliberal and liable to prove costly, but the fact is that only about 10 per cent of those who phone are in any particular hurry for the records and hardly one in a hundred complains if they are not delivered within an hour or so. In the case of the other 10 per cent, however, it is quite possible that sales may be lost through slowness.

If a youth on a motorcycle were kept waiting throughout the business day for the purpose of making special deliveries of records the cost of such service would be entirely out of proportion to the possible profit, but when the service is used for practically all record deliveries, as well as the delivery of small instruments, it can accomplish as much as the average truck or wagon in the course of the day and at a tremendous saving in maintenance.

Experience has shown that where the special service is used for regular delivery the messenger is seldom away from the store for more than an hour at a time even in large cities and is thus available for any hurried deliveries that may develop during the day. One dealer solved the cost problem by using a motorcycle equipment for errands as well as special deliveries and using one of the porters to operate the machine.

Efficient Operation Necessary

The question of a special delivery service, as with any other part of store service, is that of operating efficiently and at minimum expense. This can be worked out successfully when the service is used to its maximum and the messenger kept sufficiently busy to earn his pay. If the repairman out in his territory needs some extra parts the special service can bring them to him. If there are mail orders to be filled the same service can carry packages to the post office and leave larger wagons free for haulage purposes, and at the same time the dealer has at hand a very strong talking point in making a plea for business from those who appreciate prompt service.

There are, of course, some stores whose business does not warrant the maintenance of any permanent system and who find it cheaper to send an errand boy out with records and to hire a truck for the delivery of machines, but where the business warrants the permanent use of even one wagon which is occasionally taxed to cover the territory properly, then the special motorcycle delivery will not only effect a saving in money, but help business.

Sales Arguments That Win the Customer

Every Dealer From Time to Time Must Cope With the "Difficult" Patron—Frank H. Williams Cites Methods of Several Retailers

A talking machine dealer in the Middle West had been spending almost an entire morning demonstrating various instruments in his store to a man and a woman, both of middle age, who were unable to make up their minds to buy. In fact, as it drew on toward the noon hour it became evident that the prospects were going to leave the store without anything definite having been accomplished at all toward closing the sale. Upon seeing this intention on the part of the prospects the dealer determined to put the sale over if it was the last thing he ever did. He did some rapid thinking on the proposition and just as the prospects, after the usual line of excuses and statements about coming back again, were turning to leave the store he said:

"Mr. Jones, you've told me that you are in the furnace business. You have had a wide experience in selling and so perhaps you can help me out. I'm up against a certain difficult selling proposition and I don't quite know what to do about it. Will you help me out in it?"

Mr. Jones looked somewhat flattered at this. "Sure, I'll help you out, if I can," was the reply.

"Well," said the dealer, "the proposition is this: Two prospects come into the store, show an interest in all the machines I have for sale and are very evidently going to buy a machine. But—I can't sell them! What sort of an argument can I put up to these prospects to make the sale? Why is it that I can't put the proposition across? You know, in your own business, how important it is to know whether you are falling down in any particular part of your business or not. It's equally important to me to know if I'm falling down in any part of this business and I sure will appreciate it if you'll help me out. Why is it I haven't been able to sell a machine to you and your wife?"

This blunt way of putting the thing was a facer for Mr. Jones. He looked a trifle surprised and embarrassed at first. Then he smiled.

"Say," he said, "you're all right. You put the thing up to me in a way I'd never thought of before. If I was in your place and had spent as much time as you have in being courteous to us and then didn't make a sale I'd be mighty sore."

This led to some further talk about the question of clinching sales which eventually put the sale across for the dealer.

How Sales of Records Were Increased

And there is probably a worth-while suggestion in the experience of another Middle Western dealer who had a customer come in and spend the greater part of a busy afternoon in one of the hearing rooms and who then bought only one $1.25 record. The dealer naturally cast about in his mind for some way of increasing sales to this customer. It was, really, a puzzling proposition and, for a moment or so, the dealer felt that the best thing to do would probably be to let the customer get away without trying to sell her any more goods. He finally hit upon a plan, however.

Accordingly, when putting the customer's one lone purchase into an envelope the dealer said: "Mrs. Brown, I notice that all of the records you have been trying this afternoon have been classical records and I have been wondering what you and your children like among the more popular selections we have on hand. I know that you have a musical family and that the members of your family are all splendid judges of music and so I would much appreciate it if you'd let me pick out some popular selections to try out at your home to-night and then tell me to-morrow which of them you like the best and which your family likes best."

Mrs. Brown agreed to this proposition and the dealer accordingly gave her a dozen of the newest and most popular selections handled by the store. Then the next day he went around to Mrs. Brown's house and she bought eight of the records!

In explaining this sale the dealer said:

"When I was figuring out ways and means of selling more records to Mrs. Brown I happened to remember that she has three lively young children who, naturally, would be greatly interested in dance music. So I thought that if I could get some popular selections into her home and get her to try them out on their own instrument the children would demand their purchase and the sale would be made. And that's just exactly what happened. And it is my opinion that numerous sales of popular selections could be made by dealers to families which have concentrated too heavily on classical selections if the dealer would only recall which families these are and then get the popular selections into their homes."

Sales Arguments That Made a Machine Sale

And here is the way that another dealer put over a difficult sale:

A rather elderly man and his wife came into the store to look at talking machines and right away the dealer saw that the man wanted to buy a machine, while the wife was hanging back.

"We're looking around for a wedding present for our youngest daughter, who is going to get married soon," the man explained, "and I say we ought to get her a phonograph, while my wife's got her mind all set to buy them a washing machine."

Of course, upon hearing this the dealer realized that he was up against a hard sales proposition and that the person in the ease who must be sold was the wife, as the husband was already sold on the proposition.

Consequently, as the dealer showed and demonstrated various kinds of machines he was busily thinking of sales arguments.

"Of course," he said, "you want to give them something they will appreciate."

"Indeed, we do," said the wife, "and I just know my daughter will appreciate a washing machine more than she will a phonograph."

"Perhaps," said the dealer, "but look at it this way: The washing machine would be used on only one day of the week or, perhaps, only one day every other week. The phonograph, on the other hand, would be used every day and several times every day and it would help to make home cheerful every day of the week, it would help your daughter in getting her friends to her house and it would help her in feeling happy all the time. Isn't a gift which will remind your daughter and husband every day of the week of the givers better than a gift which is used only once every other week?"

The woman saw the point at once and the result was that the sale was made by the dealer.

Principles of Retail Advertising Success

Some of the Many Angles of Advertising Which Dealers Must Consider in Preparing and Placing Copy Analyzed by W. Braid White

Advertising is called "salesmanship on paper," and, in a large sense, the name is not inaccurate. In a more restricted and special sense, however, there is a vast difference between the sort of salesmanship which works through the medium of print, illustrations and paper and that which depends upon the personal contact of the salesman with his prospective customer. In the talking machine business the difference is so complete and the distinctions so clear that there never need to be the confusion which constantly exists as to the functions of the two.

Articles from my pen in The Talking Machine World have often stressed various sides or facets of the art of salesmanship, always from an analytical point of view. The aim has always been less to give concrete rules than to stimulate thought; for salesmanship, as William Maxwell has said, is much like acting. All the lessons in all the dramatic schools in the world can do no more than instruct the student actor or actress what not to do. Only natural feeling for the art can never teach one, on the contrary, what positively to do. The salesman, therefore, in his individual contact with the prospect, will be able, if he has the natural flair for his work which marks out the man destined for success, to treat each problem as it comes along. The more he has learned what not to do the more he is likely to do positively the right thing at the right time. On the other hand the salesman in print (the advertising man) cannot make the definite individual contact. He cannot deal with the complex personality of each person who is likely to read his advertising copy. He is, therefore, driven to base his appeal on the ideas or beliefs which appeal to the largest number of people; that is to say, to the largest number of those who read, or are likely to read, the media in which the advertising is inserted.

What Is the "Largest Number"?

This elementary truth is, however, likely to be confounded with the pestiferous notion so prevalent among certain advertising men that "the largest number" always means the same thing, no matter in what medium the advertising is done. The "largest number theory" does not mean always the same thing. On the contrary, there is a largest number of average newspaper readers, a largest number of readers of the American magazine type of literature, a largest number of readers of the Saturday Evening Post mentality and a largest number of readers of the Atlantic Monthly and Harpers' type. Each of these artificial classes corresponds, moreover, with an actual class of existing tastes and mentalities; so that if salesmanship in print is to meet all requirements it must take on diverse shapes and be embodied in as many forms as may be needed to reach each of the classes aforesaid.

The Newspaper Argument

Obviously the largest number of those who read the daily newspaper is only average in point of education and ability to think, while at the same time every other class is represented, so that it is the part of wisdom not to key newspaper advertising too low. The highest type of mentality will respond to reason and so should be catered to by seriously written and rational arguments. On the other hand, the lower mental type, representing the majority, will respond to prestige and this should be capitalized to the utmost in all newspaper advertising.

The only appeal which is sufficiently broad besides these is the appeal based on price and terms. Newspaper advertising is advertising for immediate results, and to this extent must be based upon arguments which make for immediate action. Prices and terms are, of course, the most powerful of these.

Nevertheless, even in the most ephemeral rapid-fire sort of newspaper advertising the prestige argument should always be made. It is never safe to leave out any distinctive motto, name or symbol which has become identified with the article of sale in the public mind. That is why the Victor dog is always shown in every advertisement relating to Victrolas and records, no matter how small and ephemeral.

Such mottoes as "The Re-creation of Music" (Edison), "The New Hall of Fame" (Brunswick), "Plays All Records Better" (Cheney) are not only useful, therefore, but absolutely essential. They help to build up in the minds of readers of advertising (which means everybody) mental pictures which make the work of the human salesman easier. And it is this making easier the work of the human salesman which the salesmanship on paper can best—and, indeed, can only—accomplish.

Advertising Not Direct Seller

There may be some articles—such as ready-made foods and other things of the kind—which can be sold directly by advertising. In fact there are such articles. Chewing gum is one of them. But talking machines cannot be sold in this way and there is no sense in hoping that they can. Advertising can and will put a prospective customer inside a store door and can, and will, cause that customer, in some cases, to ask to see a certain machine; but that is all. So long as selling has to be done through retail merchants—in fact, so long as there is any kind of competition between machines of anything like similar styles and price—the ultimate decision will be in the hands of the salesman, or at least will be between the salesman and the prospect. It is the mission of advertising to prepare the way for the salesman, and this mission it can most effectively perform by impressing in the minds of as many readers as possible the idea of Prestige as indelibly associated with the article advertised.

Copy Varies With Medium

Here comes in the question of class of medium. When I spoke above of the theory of the largest number I also said that there are classes, and that "largest number" must mean, for our purpose, the largest number in each class. This is undoubtedly true, and requires to be thoroughly grasped and practiced. The community as a whole is made up of many types and classes of mentality, varying in natural gifts, in educational opportunity and in culture. To each and every one of these, however, the most powerful argument which can ever be made is the argument of Prestige, for it is this argument which, when assimilated and made its own by the members of each class of readers, delivers them, as it were bound, into the hands of the salesman. Prestige, however, has to be translated into as many tongues as there are classes in the community, if maximum results are to be achieved in talking machine or any other advertising.

It might be said, very roughly, that there are four classes thus to be dealt with, which, for purposes of illustration, may be divided as follows: The Atlantic Monthly class, the New Republic class, the Saturday Evening Post class and the daily paper class. These, in rough classification, may be called the Solid, the Radical Intellectual, the Main Street and the Mob classes. Of course, there are divisions even in the last-named, which in its largest sense means all of us; at least, all of us some time each day. Even among daily paper readers there are, of course, many different strata, and what will please the reader of the New York Times will probably not please the reader of the New York Journal. Generally, however, and with due regard to the grand division between high and low in the newspaper class, one may say that in the four classes of media mentioned above Prestige may be built up by (1) the argument of establishment, solidity of position and social favor, (2) the argument of tone, (3) the argument of what all the better people in town are doing and (4) the argument of bargain, price and sensation.

A VIGOROUS POLICY IN RETAILING NEEDED

THE business outlook, as far as any reasonable deduction can be made, promises well for the Fall and Winter seasons of activity upon which the trade is now entering. The leading authorities are a unit in declaring that with the settlement of the strike in the anthracite coal regions—one of the most disturbing factors in curtailing prosperity—we may reasonably expect a considerably larger volume of business for the remaining months of 1923 than for the same period of 1922.

How much of this business will come to the talking machine dealer rests largely with himself. The keen competition in the retail field to-day calls for the utilization of every new idea possible in interesting the public in the products handled. The dealer who can get away from the beaten track is the man who is going to win. The time is past when a man can depend upon the public coming in voluntarily to buy his goods. The talking machine man who thinks thus is not in touch with the times. Business can be had if it is sought—that is, if it is sought intelligently and strenuously. There is still a big, unexplored field in which to operate. The public has plenty of money to spend if convincing arguments are presented whereby it can be demonstrated that a talking machine and a goodly library of records are essentials.

Judging from the report of the New York Savings Banks Association there is a veritable reservoir of wealth in this State alone, a fair portion of which is available to the talking machine trade. It is noteworthy that the savings deposits in this State have now passed the three billion mark by a considerable amount. Even in New York City, where money is spent so lavishly, there are more than 2,800,000 savings deposits representing the largest share of the State's savings. In the United States at large savings deposits amount to practically $17,500,000,000. Bear in mind that these savings accounts are largely in the names of salary and wage earners, who after all are the biggest purchasers of musical instruments of the talking machine type. These "Franklinites," or any other people in the United States for that matter, will not spend money willingly, but they can be induced, if dealers go after them intelligently and persistently, to spend a reasonable proportion of their surplus savings for the tremendous enjoyment which the talking machine affords in the home.

The prosperity of the talking machine industry rests entirely in the hands of the dealers, and they can, if they will, make it more prosperous than it is to-day. In this campaign they will have the unlimited and enthusiastic support of manufacturers and jobbers who are always aiding them in a most effective way to acquaint the people with the merits of the products which they are handling. From now until the Spring of 1924 we should witness in this country the greatest and most successful campaign of retail selling ever recorded, and we hope that every talking machine dealer will recognize his importance in achieving this end.

NEW CAMPAIGN TO DEVELOP RECORD SALES

ANNOUNCEMENT of new developments in the marketing of standard and classical records by prominent artists that have already been made, and moves that are in the offing, lead to the belief that the coming months will show a substantial increase in the demand for records of the better sort—the kind that are calculated to form the basis of permanent libraries and keep the talking machine owner more keenly interested.

The issuance of double-faced records of a high-class order and the readjustment of list prices give the dealer the necessary stimulus to go after this sort of business with the confidence that he can capture a very substantial share of it. Certainly a great many retailers have been inclined to follow the easiest way in handling record business by catering only to popular demand and it is believed that even these individuals will see the possibilities of the reopened channel for record sales. The fact is generally accepted that popular records seldom sell themselves in a large measure—that the current advertising by the record companies and the popular character of the records keep them moving without any great effort on the part of the dealer or his salesmen. In fact, it often happens that the problem is to get the hits soon enough and in sufficient quantities to meet the ever-present demand.

With this condition existing, it would seem as though any business that may be built up with better class records means that much more profit for the dealer. It may require a little selling effort, but if the customer will buy a few popular numbers voluntarily it is worth a little salesmanship to persuade him to take one or two records of the better class at the same time. With these new inducements in the record field and with lines of machines that have been rounded out during the past few months with numerous desirable models there is no reason to believe but that the Fall and Winter business will be just what the dealer cares to make it. He has the best opportunity offered in many years to capitalize on the progressive methods of the manufacturers by going after prospective customers more aggressively and consistently and with more convincing arguments.

The element of competition will, of course, enter as it always does, but if the selling system is right that fact is not going to keep even the average dealer from getting his share of business.

CAUTION IN EXPANDING IS ADVISABLE

THERE is evident at times a tendency on the part of many talking machine dealers, whose business has been exclusively devoted to dealing in talking machines and records, to stock other lines of goods in an endeavor to increase the volume of their business and consequently their profits. A number of the dealers who have spread out have done so with distinct success largely as a result of confining themselves to a line of goods of musical character, such as musical merchandise, sheet music, band instruments, and recently radio equipment. If the lines are properly selected and produce a rapid turnover, the move is certain to give the dealer increased income without making any great inroads into the capital necessary to the conduct of his principal business.

It happens, however, that some dealers have seen fit to tie up money in lines not even indirectly associated with music and the result has been disastrous in some cases. It is logical to assume that a talking machine or record buyer is interested in music and that eventually he or some member of his family may be inclined to buy a band or orchestra instrument of some sort or, perhaps, even a piano and will come to the store that he regards as his music center to make the purchase.

It is not logical for the dealer, however, to expect that regular customers will come to a talking machine store for merchandise that belongs in a hardware, paint or drug store, and the result is that waiting for transient trade his turnover is slow and the money he needs for his talking-machine business is found to be tied up in slow-moving stocks of other goods.

It might be well for dealers with limited capital to look well before they leap in expanding their business, for the big things to be considered are first, turnover, and second, the appeal the added lines are likely to have to those who already patronize the store regularly. When the dealer stocks something that requires a special sales organization and a special line of customers, then he is entering a new business rather than expanding an establishment, and entering a new business under any conditions entails a certain risk.

Perhaps certain dealers may not feel that their talking machine business is producing all the income they desire and see no immediate way of expanding it to the desired proportions, but it is much better to go slow in adding other lines foreign to their established calling than, perhaps, jeopardize their entire business career.

PROBLEMS ASSOCIATED WITH REPLACEMENTS

WITH the introduction of elaborate new models of talking machines, particularly of the period, console or horizontal types, there has developed in the trade a substantial replacement business which has given rise to a number of problems associated with the handling of instruments taken in trade and which have long been familiar to other lines of business, including the piano industry.

In view of the used machines that are piling up in warerooms and storehouses of some active dealers, there arises the question as to just how energetically this replacement business should be followed or, rather, how it can be handled profitably rather than as a result of gathering trade-in stock.

There is without question a logical field for replacements. The vacationist who has bought a portable or cheap table model for bungalow use is a logical prospect for the sale of a large cabinet instrument for his permanent home when the Summer season is over and to neglect such a prospect is poor business. Likewise there is the individual who invested in one of the non-descript "bargains" that were offered so generously a few years ago and who, becoming dissatisfied with his purchase, is a ripe prospect for a standard machine of guaranteed quality.

If the average dealer follows up his regular prospects for new machines energetically and conscientiously and in addition gives attention to the two profitable fields for replacements mentioned above, he should, under ordinary conditions, have a distinctly satisfactory volume of business without being forced to take in exchange cabinet machines more or less modern in character for the sake of placing in the home a console model. There should be, and in a number of cases there is, a distinct line of demarcation between replacement business that helps the dealer by giving him a direct profit on the resale as well as opening up a fresh channel for record sales, and the replacement that calls for a trade-in that, unless a quick turnover is made, cuts the profit to the quick and means the piling up of dead new stock.

In accepting trade-ins of any sort the dealer might well follow the methods utilized successfully in other trades and allow only as much for the old machine as can be realized when it is resold, deducting from the allowance, of course, repair and re-selling costs. It must be remembered that as soon as a new machine leaves the dealer's store it becomes a used instrument and suffers an immediate depreciation in value. According to some automobile men this depreciation amounts to 25 per cent of the retail price to cover the selling cost and expenses incident thereto. If the dealer, therefore, first deducts the 20 or 25 per cent selling cost from the purchase price of the used instrument and then deducts a proper amount for depreciation, due to age, wear and tear, he is going to arrive at a valuation that may not always prove pleasing to the customer, but will at least be fair to himself.

If the average dealer gives proper attention to new prospects and then, in order, to former purchasers of portable and non-descript models, and, finally, to owners of upright cabinet models who can be persuaded to buy consoles, he is not likely to handle a sufficient amount of the latter class of business to cause him embarrassment. And it might be said right here that the taking of a portable model in exchange for one of the cabinet types is in 99 cases out of 100 the result of bad salesmanship somewhere. Keep the portable sold for next Summer's vacation.

Management Reflected in Sales Results

Sales Manager Largely Responsible for Achievements of Salesmen —Too Much Managing Curtails Initiative and Business Declines

Upon the sales manager of the talking machine establishment or the proprietor, if he acts in that capacity, depend the results obtained from the sales organization. In other words, getting maximum results as represented by volume of sales from the selling force is no sine-cure and keen foresight and knowledge of the business and the various characteristics of each member of the staff are necessary. There are some sales managers who have the happy faculty of keeping their men on their toes all of the time and who, through scientific handling, consciously or unconsciously, are able to keep the enthusiasm of the men for the line and concern they represent to a high pitch. There are also sales managers who, in the belief that they are all-wise and infallible, are constantly rubbing the "fur" of their men the wrong way. This constant friction creates a dissatisfaction and multiplicity of other feelings on the part of the men, kills the real enthusiasm for the house and for the merchandise which is most necessary to the maximum sales results and, consequently, sales are nowhere near what they would be if harmony existed and the best was encouraged and brought out in each individual.

Must Consider Individuals

The sales organization consisting of several or more men should not be looked upon as a mass, but the sales manager should consider each man as an individual. The most successful sales managers in the country in all lines of business realize this fundamental of good management. They are aware of the fact that, while one man produces the best results through driving, another will not respond to this treatment at all. On the contrary, there is a certain type of salesman who, if driven, will become nervous, irritable and dissatisfied, when, if different tactics were used, this type could be made an enthusiast and consistent producer. It depends, in a large measure, on the sales manager.

Too Much Management Harmful

There are many other considerations involved in the efficient handling of the sales organization. Probably one of the greatest faults in management to-day is too much management. In short, unintentionally, initiative and independent thinking, to a large extent, are discouraged and the result is that many salesmen who could go out and clean up if they were given wider scope refrain from doing so. The sales manager of one of the largest and most successful sales organizations in the East stated the same facts in slightly different language to the writer recently. "Those salesmen who are made to realize that they must use their own wits and skill to deliver the goods will produce the best results," he declared. "I do not mean that the house and the sales manager should not do everything possible to help the men, but what I do mean is that the average salesman will not progress as rapidly as he might if his abilities are not recognized and he is not given a chance to display them. A long time ago we corrected one of the worst mistakes a house can make and as a result our sales increased steadily. The situation was this: We have a large outside sales organization and these men are responsible for bringing many people into the store. Now it was formerly the practice for the salesman to deliver his sales talk to the customers up to a certain point and then turn him over to one of the floor managers to close the sale. Now, you know as well as I do that every salesman should have the ability to close his own sales, but this had been the method with this house and it was continued until sales dropped to such an extent that something had to be done. As soon as the salesmen were placed on their own responsibility they went to work with renewed enthusiasm and confidence in their ability, which was reflected in an immediate increase in business."

Sales Conferences Helpful

Fortunately this is a very rare condition in the talking machine business, but it serves to illustrate how overmanagement can do more harm than good. To overcome any possibility of overmanagement, especially where a considerable force is employed, there is nothing quite so effective as sales conferences where salesmen and their manager can discuss and suggest freely and frankly. It must be remembered that the men on the outside come in contact with many prospects each week and they have the opportunity of observing conditions and problems which are seldom encountered in the store. Open discussions of those problems in which all of the men have an opportunity to voice their opinions often bring about a solution and, consequently, pave the way to more sales. It is, indeed, a wise sales manager who realizes that the men under his direction can help him to achieve greater results and that, after all, is what he is or should be most concerned in. Indeed, his reputation depends to a large extent on the performance of his men.

How Letters Pave Way to More Business

Concrete Examples of the Type of Direct Mail Literature Which Is Bringing Customers to the Sterling Piano Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The importance of a consistent direct-by-mail drive for business has been stressed many times in the columns of The World and many talking machine retailers are finding this a prolific source of business and live prospects. However, a large percentage of the members of the trade are skeptical of the power of such a campaign and, consequently, this medium for bringing the sales message of the dealer to his patrons is too often neglected. Of the live and successful concerns who are realizing excellent results from direct mail, refuting the contentions of those who believe these drives represent money wasted, is the Sterling Piano Corp., 81-87 Court street, Brooklyn, N. Y., which is constantly extending its business by this means. This concern, by the way, is one of the most successful in the entire metropolitan territory, not only in the merchandising of talking machines and records, but in the sale of pianos and general musical instruments as well.

The latest piece of direct mail literature which is being sent out by E. T. LeTure, the aggressive manager of the talking machine department, is an unusually effective folder setting forth the merits of the Victor and Sonora machines, which it handles, and an extensive line of radio merchandise, including the Kennedy Intermediate receiver and the R. C. A. line of radio outfits. The side of the folder on which the address of the prospect appears bears the legend: "Happiness Right Out of the Air for You." This curiosity stimulator impels the recipient to open the folder, where the real message strikes the eye. On the right-hand margin of the opened piece of publicity appear reproductions of various models of Victor and Sonora instruments and on the left-hand margin are pictured several models of the radio receiving units handled by the firm. Below a large heading: "Phonograph or Radio Offers Perfect Enjoyment," there are two columns of text, one devoted to talking machines and the other to radio, as follows:

"The wealth of happiness and pleasurable satisfaction that a phonograph brings to your home!

"The golden voice of Caruso, the appealing charm of John McCormack, the strains of soul-stirring Sousa Marches, or the scintillating syncopated dance rhythms of Paul Whiteman's Orchestras.

"All are yours to enjoy, to revel in to your heart's content.

"We have assembled in our phonograph department a noteworthy collection of the best instruments.

"Here you may find out by actual test and comparison the particular instrument best suited to your individual requirements.

"A moderate initial payment will give you immediate access to the World's Greatest Music and Musicians. The balance may be distributed in convenient amounts extending over a period of many months."

"What's on the air to-night?"

"A complete Broadway Musical Comedy—a celebrated speaker—an operatic concert—dance music—and a long list of items of fascinating interest.

"Day and night the air is full of good things for the Radio owner.

"The Radio is far more than a musical instrument.

"It brings a world of information on timely topics that are always interesting and instructive.

"The Radio instruments at the Sterling store have been chosen for their simplicity and all-round reliability.

"And, if you wish, we'll install your Radio for you complete, ready to 'tune in.'

"We should like to demonstrate how easy it is to operate and derive a maximum amount of pleasure from the 'air.'"

The opened folder also discloses a self-addressed post card, the text and form of which, abbreviated, is reproduced below:

The Sterling Piano Corp., in addition to selling many talking machines, does a large business in pianos and E. L. LeTure, manager, believing that these satisfied piano customers are good talking machine prospects, has reached out after this business by sending the piano customer the following letter on its regular stationery and signed by the manager of the talking machine department:

"Some time ago we had the pleasure of selling you a Piano. The transaction was so satisfactory from our standpoint, and we hope from yours as well, that we are anxious to extend these pleasant business relations.

"You have undoubtedly found a great deal of pleasure in your piano, but even a piano has its limitations.

"Doubtless you have frequently desired vocal, violin or orchestra music—some form of music which it is not possible to obtain from your piano. With a Victrola every musical longing can be satisfied.

"With it you can enjoy such artists as Caruso, Gallucchi, McCormack and Melba; and can also have Sousa's Band, Victor Herbert's Orchestra and other famous musical organizations. These artists are under exclusive contract to perform only for the Victor.

"Then there is the little dancing party, in your own home, with perfect dance records supervised in the making by such great exponents of modern music as Paul Whiteman. These are just a few of the possibilities of the Victrola. Allow us to convince you at our expense of the pleasure you can obtain from this wonderful musical instrument.

"May we have the pleasure of seeing you in our Victrola Department soon? Let us explain to you our easy method of purchasing a Victrola on the deferred payment plan. We would like to show you the beautiful instruments that may be had to suit every purpose. Very sincerely."

This tie-up with piano customers has resulted in the sale of many talking machines, the sales coming the more easily because these prospects were already satisfied customers of the house.

Another clever piece of direct-by-mail work, designed to interest people who are already customers as well as those who have never purchased from the Sterling Piano Corp. and which has been productive of big results, is the following letter:

"Everyone loves Music! That is why we feel that you, as a valued patron and friend of our store, will be interested in knowing about our Victrola Department, to which we cordially invite you.

"You will find this Department splendidly equipped with all the latest Victrolas and thousands of Victor Records. You will also find an intelligent sales force anxious and willing to assist you in every possible way in selecting the instrument or records you may desire.

"Won't you come into our Victrola Department the next time you are in our neighborhood? You will be surprised at the easy terms of payment we will be happy to make you on any instrument you may select.

"If it is not convenient to come into our store mark on the enclosed post card the outfit you are particularly interested in. Mail it to us. Full information will be sent you immediately and without any obligation on your part. Very sincerely."

"P. S.—If you own a Victrola and are not buying your records from us, begin now to use our service. Our stock is complete. Each record we sell you is guaranteed to be in perfect condition and we will be pleased to open a charge account for you in purchasing records."

As has been mentioned in the introductory paragraph the Sterling Piano Corp. is one of the successful music houses in the metropolitan territory, and what is of even greater significance is the fact that this firm's business is steadily increasing. Direct-by-mail has played an important part in the development of this business and it is certain that what has been accomplished by one live dealer can be duplicated by others. There are several important factors which must be considered by the dealer who contemplates a drive of this character. These include the type of people to whom the literature is to be sent and preparation of copy accordingly, appropriation (if the appropriation is very small do not send out cheap literature in an effort to reach a great many people. Quality is necessary even if the mailing must be limited as a result), follow up of prospects; upon the latter depends the ultimate result of the drive.

Ernest J. Lavagnino has purchased the music store operated in Sonora, Cal., by A. McDowell under the name of the Oakdale Music Co.

New Kennedy Radio Sets In Beautiful Furniture Models

THIS is the first of the new Kennedy Furniture Model radio receivers—of particular interest to music dealers. They mark the perfection of radio sets, for, added to their appealing exterior beauty—their purity and harmony of design—are many other characteristics which make them especially desirable as radio furniture.

Each is a completely self-contained unit, with ample internal space for all dry batteries. The absence of “extras” makes stocking, displaying and selling easy.

And, added to the profit and prestige in handling Kennedy radio sets is the assurance of perfectly satisfied customers. Far-seeing music houses, recognizing the value to them of being appointed exclusive dealers for Kennedy sets are applying for exclusive territories.

If interested in a profitable radio business, whether or not you are in a position to assume exclusive agency, write for further details of the new sets and merchandising policy.

C. C. ALEXANDER WITH J. K. POLK

Becomes Member of Sales Staff of Wholesale Phonograph Division of Atlanta Distributor

ATLANTA, GA., September 5.—P. C. Brockman, sales manager of the wholesale phonograph division of James K. Polk, Inc., Southeastern distributor of Okeh records, Honest Quaker main springs and repair parts, and other talking machine accessories, announces the recent appointment of C. C. Alexander as a member of the company's sales staff.

Mr. Alexander, who has been connected with the Polk organization for the past year, is thoroughly familiar with the many lines distributed in the Southeast by this company, and it is expected that he will make many friends among the talking machine trade within a short time. He is now on an extended trip in Alabama and Florida and reports business as being good in this territory, stating that prospects are very bright for the big Fall and Winter season, for which the trade in this territory is making preparations.

NEW EDISON FRANCHISES GRANTED

Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, Edison Jobber, Predicts Busy Fall Season

Among the new Edison accounts established by the Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, Edison jobber in the metropolitan district, are Roseville Music House, Newark, N. J.; George Brooks & Co., Sommerville, N. J., and Graham Music Shoppe, Jersey City, N. J. This company reports a good business among its dealers for the month of August and an excellent outlook for the Fall. In the mining districts of eastern Pennsylvania the dealers are exceedingly well pleased over the settlement of the coal strike and, as a consequence, wholesale orders are coming in far in excess of those placed a year ago at the same time.

Paul Kochanski, popular Polish violinist, whose first Vocalion record was released recently and who is to record for this company exclusively in the future, has completed plans for a transcontinental recital tour, upon which he will start early in October. An interesting feature of the tour will be the use by Mr. Kochanski of an inlaid Stradivarius violin declared to be one of three made by the great master for the Court of Madrid, and which was used at one time, it is said, by the famous Ole Bull.

Kochanski's full itinerary will be announced shortly and dealers in Vocalion records will have an excellent opportunity for tying up directly with his appearances in the various cities.

I. RIESENBURGER RETIRES AS DEALER

Popular Victor Merchant Sells Business to Jack and William Abrams—Store Redecorated

Irving Riesenburger, furniture dealer in Flushing, L. I., for about twenty-five years and exclusive Victor retailer, has decided to retire

J. J. Davin, J. J. Abrams and I. Riesenburger from active business and enjoy life. In pursuance of this idea he has sold out his entire business at 27 Main street to Jack J. and William Abrams, brothers, who conduct eighteen furniture stores in New York City and nearby towns. They have been in business for the past twenty years, and are well known in retail circles.

A new double-deck front is being added to the store occupied by Mr. Riesenburger, which will add materially to the window capacity. The new owners plan to institute an aggressive campaign, featuring the Victor line, and their long experience in the retail field will undoubtedly enable them to attain pleasing success in their new proposition.

Mr. Riesenburger is retiring with the good wishes of a host of friends. He was recently elected a director of the Queensboro National Bank of Corona, and he is also a director of the Business Men's Division of the Flushing United Association. According to his present plans Mr. Riesenburger will visit California this Winter, accompanied by his wife and son.

A new talking machine store was recently opened in Broughton, Pa., by Harry Goldman.

Aeolian-Vocalion, in commode of Adam design, constructed of satinwood with delicate inlay, the two doors decorated with floral plaques. Designed and executed by Tiffany Studios of New York

THE Aeolian Company produced the first period phonographs, which set a standard in the phonograph field that demanded that these instruments be as beautiful to see as to hear.

The Aeolian-Vocalion, constructed on principles developed by the world's leading experts on reproduced tone, had gone a long way to banish mechanism in favor of music. The Aeolian classic period styles set this instrument in a worthy, artistic cabinet and a new era began for phonographs.

THINK what it means when you use the superlative sales phrase—“The World’s Most Beautiful Phonograph”—to have your statement endorsed by the greatest designers, craftsmen and decorators.

This innovation gives Aeolian representatives an unquestioned lead in the luxury market. Think of the many homes where an

Undeveloped Fields in "Talker" Selling

New Opportunities for Making Sales Await Alert Retailers—Possibilities in Group Sales of Instruments—Men as Prospects

One of the most vital considerations in the talking machine retail business is the securing of new live prospects. Every member of the trade must be on the alert for new avenues of sales and a never-ending campaign is necessary to make the prospect list worth while. It is astonishing how few merchants really make any serious effort to secure new potential customers. In a canvass made by the writer covering about a dozen dealers only one made any effort to get prospects and three utilized the services of skilled outside salesmen to make the personal contact which so often leads to sales. Another significant factor was the assertion by these three dealers that they only occasionally made personal outside calls or had their salesmen do so; nor did any of them utilize direct-by-mail to come in contact with their prospects. According to their own statements they made no effort to secure new prospects, but depended chiefly upon the recommendations of former purchasers and their advertising for new business. It is significant that all of these dealers with the exception of the one who made an effort to dig up new prospects and then followed the matter up in an aggressive manner were more or less affected by the Summer slump.

Time and time again The World has published articles showing how live dealers have achieved success and done a large business through some systematic method of adding new names to the prospect list and then going after this potential business through direct contact, direct-by-mail, etc., etc. There are any number of ways in which the dealer can keep his list up-to-the-minute with comparatively little trouble. Of course the real stunt is making the sale and here the dealer must use his own initiative.

Making Group Sales of Machines

There is nothing new in the group sales plan in other lines of business and it has been tried in the record end of the talking machine business with considerable success. In fact, the so-called "group" sales plan is receiving more and more attention from the most successful members of the trade. This applies to records only, however. As far as machines are concerned, little or no effort has been made to make group sales. Yet, there exists an unparalleled opportunity for this type of sales promotion work. Take, for example, fire houses: Much of the time of the firemen is spent in lolling around the headquarters with comparatively little to do between alarms. Here is the best kind of a prospect. A live salesman should have very little trouble in selling machines to every fire station in his community and those in surrounding towns and villages. If he takes a good machine with him, sets it up in the fire house, makes a thorough demonstration and explains a plan to the firemen whereby they can all contribute a small sum to pay cash or purchase on the instalment plan, he is pretty certain of making sales. Moreover, he makes a contact with the firemen which, with tactful questioning, enables him to determine which members of the organization do not possess instruments in their homes and while the men are all together he may be able to close two or three additional sales of machines for delivery in homes. School teachers offer another similar opportunity and this also goes for the police department and other city departments where there are groups of men.

Men as Prospects

In the past talking machine dealers have concentrated largely on women as prospects on the theory that the woman of the house is the deciding factor in such matters. In a surprisingly large number of instances such is not the case. The breadwinner of the household often offers the best opportunity of making sales, and, therefore, he should not be left out of the scheme of things. A man will often buy a machine on the strength of the argument of the salesman that he owes it to his wife and children to increase their enjoyment of life by providing them with music, etc. Then, again, many factories and business houses these days provide rest rooms for their women employes and in a large number of business organizations there are recreation rooms. A canvass of the larger factories and business houses in the community where the dealer has his establishment and adjacent territory will add many fine prospects to his list. The head of a business to-day realizes that happy employes are the best producers and the business man has intelligence enough to see the point when the salesman for a talking machine house points out that music is one of the best means for insuring happiness and contentment on the part of employes. In addition, through the sale of an instrument to a business house, the fact that employes see and play the instrument constantly impresses on their minds whether the instrument is good, bad or indifferent. If the dealer handles a standard line of goods there is no reason why other sales should not be made to employes, the instruments to be used in their homes, of course.

Only a Few of Many Opportunities

These are only a few of the many opportunities which await the live dealer and, moreover, these fields have been largely neglected. There are many other methods of securing new business which the dealer will unearth if he sets his mind to it. Thought translated into action is the thing. With the keen competition existing in the talking machine business to-day the dealer, if he desires to grow, must not let any opportunities slide for securing new prospects and then following up energetically until the sale is made or lost. Remember, every sale of a machine means just so much gain in record and accessories business. Before this can be realized, however, the machines themselves must be sold and it is absolutely certain that the dealer who does not have energy enough to go after business will not expand to any great extent, considering present competition.

Making Every Employee a Prospect-Getter

How Lyon & Healy, Inc., Enlisted Every Employee As a Prospect-Hunter, Realizing 6,000 New Names and $450,000 in Business

In every retail music house there is a latent selling force which too often the head of the concern fails to encourage, to the detriment of his sales volume. That force is the personal contacts of all employes on the payroll. Whether it be the office boy or the store porter, the head of a department or some other equally important executive, each one of them has a large number of personal contacts which, if properly utilized, can be made to create sales. A store having any number of employes can thus reach a considerably large number of people who in many cases are not touched by the regular sales force and a considerable number of sales can be made that otherwise would go to competitors, or not be developed at all.

But this latent sales force does not spring into activity of its own volition. It must be brought into existence, that is, active experience, through the action of the house itself. Many of the percentage of those who are sold is high, as any music man can see. C. H. Anderson, secretary of the company, recently described this system in the Retail Ledger as follows:

"It never seemed good business to ignore the fact that our 1,000 employes must continually come in contact with relatives and friends who need pianos and other musical goods, or hear of strangers who might be interested.

"This idea, growing all the time, caused the president, Marquette A. Healy, to inaugurate a plan in the early part of 1921 which would offer an incentive to employes of the non-selling divisions to use their eyes and ears for the benefit of the sales staff. Mr. Healy gave the crude idea to a member of the sales staff and myself to develop.

"At the start there were arranged thirty teams of eight employes each, including a captain for each team, the team captain selecting his own figures mentioned at the start of this article. This is due partly to the fact that the team captains are in position to keep the interest alive, the captains being chosen because of their interest in the plan, their ability and the attitude of the employes toward them.

"Team captains make it a point from time to time to ask their team-mates about prospect cards and in this way the stream of cards is never allowed to slacken. When sales show the need for a stimulant they can be helped by using effort along this line.

"'How about filling out a card for us to-day?' a team captain asked a young woman in a department on his floor a few months ago when the prospects were not coming in as they should. This young woman did not like to fill out a card. She took one to hold until she could think of a name. Later she recalled that a few days previously she heard a woman mention the fact that a relative of the woman would have purchased a second-hand piano of a neighbor had she known of the instrument being for sale. The young woman lost no time in getting the required information over the telephone from her friend. She filled out and filed a card and the salesman did the rest. This opportunity might have been overlooked.

Commissions Paid Cheerfully

"This organized effort to solicit prospect names from employes was not used much prior to August, 1921. As a matter of fact, very little encouragement was given the employes to seek business on their own time.

"We found it to be of sufficient interest to employes for them to know that they would receive their commission without any difficulty and that they would not have to resort to argument to prove that they were entitled to the commission. Lyon & Healy let them see that the store was glad to pay the commission. Employes were assured that every effort would be made to close the sale for them.

"One of the strongest factors in retaining the support and interest of the employes is that the department is directly controlled from the executive office. It assures the employes a fair deal and, from the other angle, serves as a lever on our sales departments to give the proper attention to prospects filed.

"A glance at the prospect card shows it to be self-explanatory. As soon as an employe hears of a prospect for any of the merchandise that we sell he secures a card from his team captain or sub-captain and fills it out in duplicate. When he receives this pair of cards the captain makes out one for his own file, sending the first two to the executive office, which is the headquarters for the Inner Sales Division.

"'John Johnson' filed the specimen card reproduced on May 15, showing that 'John Smith' is a prospect for a piano. On the reverse side of this card appear notations showing the progress of the follow-up and the results of the case. The promptness and thoroughness with which prospects thus secured are handled impresses the employes with the fact that it is an important part of the business.

"These notations, typical of many actual cases, show that on May 16 and 17 our sales department called on this prospect. On May 25 we had not received a further report on this prospect, so a tracer from the office was sent. The final form shows the result of the tracer—on May 27 a piano was sold for $1,425, less the credit from an old piano accepted in trade for $125, leaving the net sale $1,300. The commission of 5 per cent would amount to $65, which would be due on or before June 15, as this was a cash sale.

Lyon & Healy, Inc., Employees' Prospect Cards

leading music retail houses of the trade have studied this question carefully and have developed plans whereby this auxiliary selling force has been a consistent factor in creating volume. Such houses as Sherman, Clay & Co., the Pacific Coast chain, the Knight-Campbell Music Co., of Denver, Col., have worked out and have in operation plans which make practically every employe on the payroll a constant source of prospects, through offering commissions and other remuneration to employes who turn in prospects that are ultimately sold. In every case this system has proved profitable, not only in direct results, but in creating a better spirit among the employes, in linking them more closely with the house and developing that feeling of solidarity which is one of the most valuable factors in any organization.

The Lyon & Healy System

Lyon & Healy, Inc., of Chicago, is one of those houses which have carried this system to its greatest development and which have thus received the greatest results from it. It is stated that the "Inner Sales Division," as it is termed, has received $25,000 in commissions since August, 1921, which represents a great total of sales directly traceable to that work. During that time the names of 6,000 prospective customers were turned in, of which 20 per cent were sold $450,000 worth of merchandise. Names, it is stated, come in from this division at the rate of from 200 to 400 per month, and members. Individual meetings were held each day until all had been instructed as to how to obtain prospect names and the amount of the commission.

"Captains" on Each Floor

"Since then a more practical and more successful arrangement has been made. Now the Inner Sales Division is divided into floors, one team to a floor, because of the fact that each floor is devoted to one line of goods or closely related lines in one group. One employe on each floor is responsible for instructing new people as to the system and the general history of the division. He also accepts prospect cards. If the floor carries a large number of employes the captain will have a sub-captain to assist him. In addition to this instruction, the personnel department assembles employes who have joined our organization during the last few months, and I give them a short talk on the history of the Inner Sales Division and the benefits they may derive.

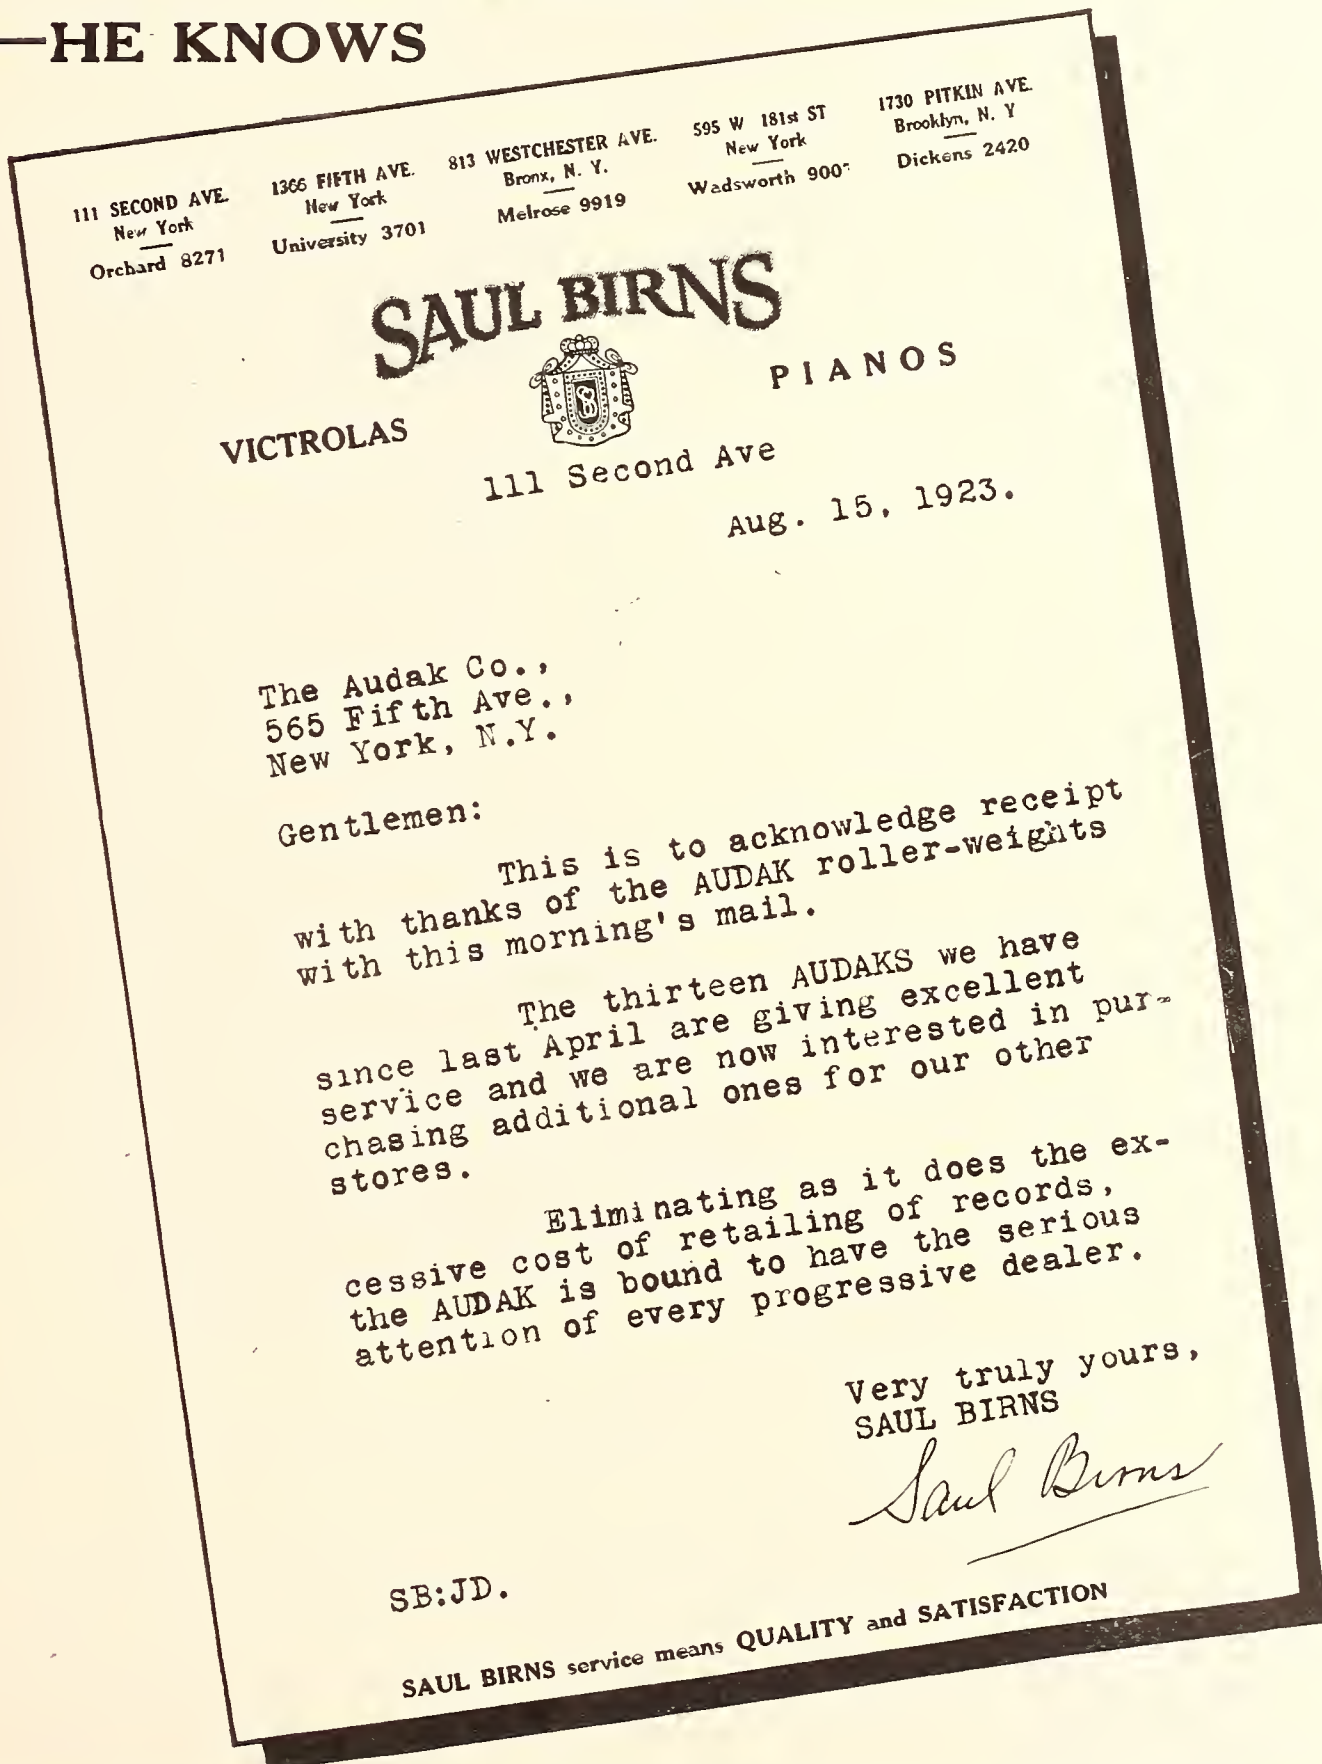

"We allow a captain a commission of one-half of 1 per cent on all sales secured from prospect cards turned in by employes on his floor and the commission to the employe who turns in the card amounts to 5 per cent of the net amount of the sale.

"This plan has proved to be most satisfactory to both employes and the store. Where we had only forty-six prospect cards in three months in the first tryout, they jumped to the higher

EMPLOYEES AS PROSPECT-GETTERS

"On term sales, as soon as 25 per cent of the net sale has been paid the commission of 5 per cent is paid to the employe turning in the prospect card that led to the sale.

No Duplication of Prospects

"Before a card is turned over to the sales department—such as pianos, phonographs and so on—a search is made to learn whether or not a prospect card has been turned in previously covering the same prospect by another salesman or non-selling employe. If the prospect has already been handed in the card is returned to the Inner Sales Division and the employe who turned it in is told immediately that the name is already on file. This forestalls any feeling of unfairness and gives early opportunity for any adjustment of the matter.

"If no record is found of the name as a prospect it is given to the sales department interested and followed up as closely as the example mentioned previously.

Aid in Closing

"Sometimes the salesman following the case suggests that the employe turning in the name can be of help in closing the sale, and in such a case the employe is so advised and his or her aid solicited. The salesman may report that the prospect is not interested and advise that the card be put in the 'dead' file. In that case the employe turning in the card is so notified and asked to co-operate with the sales department, a plan that has resulted in many 'dead' prospects being revived by employes.

"Each day there comes to the Inner Sales Division a list of the sales made in each department and a young man in this office compares the names on these lists with the prospect card file, in order to pick out the sales that are the result of these Inner Sales Division prospect cards. In each case thus found the young man makes a notation on the reverse side of the prospect card and places it in the sales file. The floor captain is then notified that a sale has been made for one of his members.

"At the end of the month the young man delivers the cards to the accounting department where the number of payments made on each account during that month are listed. Thus this office learns when 25 per cent of the net sales amount is reached. We do not ask the employe to call at the cashier's desk to ask for his commission, nor is he compelled to put up any argument with us as to what is due him. As soon as the required 25 per cent is reached we bring the money to him. This practice has earned for us a great amount of good will among the employes.

Helps in Selling Employes

"Running back to the early part of 1921 many firms doubtless will recall that when salaries were necessarily reduced it became difficult to retain the loyalty of employes. It was then that the first of our Inner Sales Division plans was launched. Now our employes are very much interested in this work. Owing to the fact that they are removed from selling activities we had some difficulty in selling the plan to our factory employes, but by holding monthly meetings to show them that the house is willing to pay them commissions for simply handing in the names of friends interested in our goods we have enlisted their co-operation.

"To keep the interest at a high point we hold floor meetings about twice a year. These meetings are addressed by Mr. Healy and by employes whose success in securing prospects' names has been very marked. Recitals of these employes as to how they handle the work stimulates others who might drift into indifference.

"One of the duties of the floor captains is to question the employe filling out the card with the idea of ascertaining whether or not it is worth sending a salesman to call or is just a name. This helps us to keep the percentage of live prospects to a high mark. As I have mentioned before, we sell about 20 per cent of the prospects received in this way.

"Sometimes prospects come far in advance of the date the employe gives as the probable buying date, such as a birthday, a wedding, or graduation date. We set them in the files to come to attention about a week ahead of the date the employe sets.

"Employes are invited to call at the Inner Sales Division at any time to investigate the situation in regard to any cases they are interested in, and this scanning of reports sometimes helps them to help the salesmen on the job. Sometimes the employes themselves, on their own time, follow up the prospects. Sometimes they influence the prospects to come to the store. Probably one-third of the prospects who come to us in this way ask to see the parties who gave us their names. That fact indicates that the employes have been doing some talking for the store.

"Experience Meetings"

"When the 'experience meetings' of the employes begin to bring out the methods that have produced commissions for the successful, all of the employes can see that they come in contact with live prospects almost daily.

"For instance, a friend with an old piano that has outlived its usefulness can get a credit for it to apply on the purchase of a new one. But until the idea is suggested the friend of the employe interested never gives the matter serious thought.

"'We've got a fine piano,' a matron told one of our women employes, 'but we seldom play it.'

"'Why do you not secure a player-piano?' our employe suggested. 'You can secure credit for your piano—then you can have a piano that any of you can play, and pay for it on easy terms.'

"That started another prospect card that gave the outside salesman a chance to finish a sale.

"A boy in the community may be asking so strongly for a saxophone that his father is thinking of buying one for him—and if one of the Lyon & Healy employes happens to hear of it that means another prospect. A piano salesman may learn that there is no phonograph in the home where he has just sold a piano. Many times a sheet music salesman or a salesman in our small goods department will learn of a home that lacks a piano through the counter conversation with a stranger. An employe may put on a card the name of some friend or acquaintance's friend who is about to be married, to graduate or to celebrate a birthday. Perhaps some family known to an employe is about to move into an apartment or flat where the upright piano of the old type will be too large. In clubs, lodges, church circles and other circles our employes have always been hearing of prospects—our Inner Sales Division is encouraging them to make profitable use of their 'tips.'

Prizes Stimulate Effort

"Last year, during the month of May, as a special inducement to the employes we offered three prizes that stimulated prospect-getting! As the first prize a two weeks' vacation on full pay was awarded to the employe having the highest amount of sales; as the second, one week's vacation, and the third, four days' vacation. In order to participate an employe had to file at least five bona fide prospect cards. The members of our tuning department had to sell twice as much as an employe of any other department. Our sales chart for that May showed a substantial increase in sales and the effort and prizes were justified."

TO FEATURE RED SEAL RECORD LIST IN FALL CAMPAIGN

Victor Co. Announces List of 140 Red Seal Records by Noted Artists That Will Be Featured Specifically in October and November Magazine Advertising

CAMDEN, N. J., September 4.—In announcing to Victor dealers its advertising plans for the remaining months of the year, and particularly for October and November, the Victor Co. calls attention to the fact that in the October and November issues of the magazines which it customarily uses there will appear groups of records by twenty-seven of the leading Red Seal artists, the single and double-faced records of each selection being featured with equal prominence in the copy.

In view of the readjustment of Red Seal prices and the announcement of the double-faced Red Seal records this advertising program should serve to stimulate materially Red Seal business throughout the remaining months of the year and, for that matter, during the opening months of 1924.

As has already been announced, the new double-faced Red Seal records will be offered to the public formally on or about September 21, and the daily newspapers will be used to carry the message to record buyers at that time. However, the October issues of a number of the national magazines featuring the special series of Red Seal records will in many cases be for sale on newsstands on the fifteenth of September or before.

One hundred and forty records in all have been selected for the special exploitation. They are divided into nine groups and the artists represented in the list include Paderewski, Melba, Kreisler, McCormack, Gluck, Rachmaninoff, Gigli, Galli-Curci, Elman, Chaliapin, Jeritza, Scotti, Martinelli, Bori, DeLuca, Werrenrath, Alda, Heifetz, Schumann-Heink, Farrar, Homer, DeGogorza, Samaroff, Zimbalist, Stokowski, Coates and Mengelberg.

CONDUCTORS' BATONS FOR TEACHERS

S. V. Goddard, of the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Makes Some Interesting Suggestions for the Benefit of Music Merchants

S. V. Goddard, manager of sales and sales promotion for the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., musical instrument manufacturer and importer and Edison distributor, of Toronto, Ont., makes the interesting suggestion that dealers handling band instruments and musical merchandise might take profitable advantage of the growing importance of music in the schools by going after teachers to develop the sales of conductors' batons.

Various boards of education, of course, provide long pointers for the use of teachers, these pointers being used for beating time to music, as well as for indicating items on the blackboard. Mr. Goddard maintains that the ordinary baton might prove much more convenient than a ruler, not only in connection with musical work, but in carrying on general classroom work where the teacher in moving about desires to point out errors.

Certainly a baton of convenient size would prove much more acceptable to the teachers than does a long ruler that for ordinary work is awkward to handle. It might be well for music dealers to give thought to the suggestion, for the sale of batons would not only mean a certain percentage of direct profit, but might be calculated to lead to a closer contact with the teachers and therefore to subsequent sales.

Create Interest in New Phonograph Styles

Dealers Can Find a Profitable Field for Sales Among Owners of Talking Machines Bought Years Ago—Some Plans of Procedure

One great field for sales of talking machines which is neglected by too many dealers is that composed of people who already own instruments. It is safe to say that in every community there are many people who own talking machines which are of a type not suited to their needs. In other words, instruments that have become old, that were purchased when the family purse was smaller than at present, that do not harmonize with the rest of the furnishings of the home, etc. Proper canvassing and publicity methods will, no doubt, give the dealer a profitable return in sales of new instruments.

Opportunity in Selling Owners

Take the case of people who own old, and now obsolete, models of talking machines, or instruments which are not of standard make, discontinued models, etc. The very nature of the machine owned gives the dealer an entering wedge of the best kind for a good sales argument on why the latest model instruments are best. In the first place, the instruments produced to-day are more beautiful as regards cabinet work than ever before and in the last few years improvements have been made to the mechanical parts of the machines which make for much better musical reproduction. Here is an argument which few music lovers who own old types of machines will be able to resist if it is presented strongly enough. The arguments in favor of well-known talking machines of standard make over those of doubtful quality and discontinued models are too obvious to need repetition.

Then there are the large number of people who managed to scrape enough money together to purchase a cheap instrument in the days when they were not so well off financially as they are at present. Now, it is a well-known fact that during the past year, at least, labor has never been so well paid nor so steadily at work. It necessarily follows that all classes of mechanics and tradesmen are now prosperous and well able to afford good instruments. The dealer can easily determine just what models of talking machines have been purchased from him in the past by inspecting his books and records. Every customer who has an instrument which, in the opinion of the dealer, might be replaced with a better one should be solicited.

Question of Trade-ins

In this connection the question of trade-ins assumes considerable importance and there are some members of the trade who try to steer clear as much as possible of taking in old instruments as part payment on more expensive models. This evil can be removed, to a large extent, if the dealer is tactful. A dealer in the metropolitan district who made quite a few sales to people who already owned talking machines got around the difficulty by offering a very low price for the old machine. When customers objected he pointed out to them that, although the instrument was probably worth more than he offered, he was not in a position to offer a greater sum, due to the fact that the overhead involved in bringing the instrument to the store, reconditioning it and finally selling it was so great that a loss would be sustained by the firm. In every case he suggested to prospective customers that they could realize a much greater price by selling the instrument themselves. He pointed out that a small advertisement in the classified columns of the local newspaper would most readily accomplish this result and the cost would be very little. The result of this was that the firm in very few cases was compelled to take in old instruments in exchange and, when it did take them in, the allowance was small enough to make the resale yield a profit, a small one to be sure, but, nevertheless, a half loaf is better than none, as the saying goes.

Re-creates Interest in Records

Then, too, it must be remembered that every time the dealer succeeds in selling a new instrument he re-creates the interest of that customer in the talking machine and the music it can produce. Thus, he opens the way for record sales and still greater profits. A campaign of the sort suggested is not expensive and, if properly carried out, the results should be very satisfactory from the standpoint of profits and stimulated business.

BRUNSWICK RECORD PRESSING PLANT IN LOS ANGELES

Move Made to Meet Big Demand for Brunswick Records in Pacific Coast Districts—Closing Great Recording Expedition—A. J. Kendrick, General Sales Manager, a Visitor

LOS ANGELES, CAL., September 6.—One of the most important developments of the month has been the announcement to the effect that plans are being made by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. for the establishment of a permanent record-pressing plant in this city to take care of the steadily increasing demand for Brunswick records throughout the Pacific Coast districts. A. J. Kendrick, general sales manager of the Brunswick Co., accompanied by S. K. Darby, W. G. Haenschen, director of popular music, and other members of the main laboratory staff in Chicago, were in this city recently making records of local orchestras and artists, including Lyman's Coconut Grove Orchestra.

From here the party, which is equipped with a complete recording outfit, moved to San Francisco and later planned to go to Seattle and Portland for the purpose of making records of local organizations in those cities. It is said to be the first time that such a recording expedition has been undertaken in this country and has enabled the Brunswick Co. to make numerous records that otherwise could not have been obtained because of the inability of the orchestras and artists for one reason or another to go to the Chicago headquarters.

Another angle of the move is that the company will be able to offer to its dealers on the Pacific Coast the numbers that are particularly strong hits in that section of the country. The records made by the expedition will be pressed in Chicago, but, after the pressing plant in this city is completed, all the work will be handled here.

In discussing the move Mr. Kendrick stated: "We have found that Los Angeles and the Pacific Coast have originated a large part of the fine and popular musical numbers which are much sought after for recording purposes and feel that the time is rapidly approaching when it will be found more economical to make our own records here than to defray the expenses of orchestras and artists in bringing them East for recording purposes."

CASHES IN ON DOLLAR-DAY DRIVE

BANGOR, ME., September 4.—The Andrews Music Co., one of the leading concerns of this city, received considerable publicity recently through its co-operation in helping to make the Dollar Day staged in Bangor a success. In order to stimulate the interest of the public in the event the company donated a portable talking machine and a piano as gifts to lucky shoppers on that day.

NEW SCHOOL SERVICE LEAFLET

Portraits of Forty-two Composers for Use of Contestants in Music Memory Contests Just Issued in Flat Sheet Form by Victor Co.

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just issued an interesting addition to its great volume of educational literature in the form of a special sheet bearing the portraits of forty-two famous composers designed to be cut out and pasted in music appreciation and music memory contest notebooks as an aid to the memory of the contestant. The pictures are in black and white, each measuring $1\frac{3}{8}$ by $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches and are printed on coated paper. The growing number of music memory contests and established character of that method of arousing interest have made worth while a great deal of literature calculated to assist in the conduct of such affairs, and this sheet of composers' pictures should fit well into the general scheme. Dealers are urged to bring the sheets to the attention of music supervisors in schools in order that they may be used as extensively as possible.

FIDDLIN' JOHN CARSON JOINS OKEH

Picturesque Southern Mountaineer Makes Okeh Record—Is Fiddling Champion of South

A picturesque addition to the Okeh record catalog is the announcement of Okeh records by Fiddlin' John Carson, an old mountaineer from the hills of northern Georgia, who made these records during the recent visit of the special Okeh recording expedition to Atlanta. Once each year all of the best-known fiddlers in the South gather in Atlanta for a convention, where they compete for the championship and the prizes. Fiddlin' John Carson has won the championship for seven years in succession and his name is familiar to everyone throughout the South. On his Okeh record Fiddlin' John Carson plays the accompaniment for two famous Southern selections and sings the numbers in his own quaint way.

CONVENTION HELPS BUSINESS

MEMPHIS, TENN., September 5.—Talking machine and music dealers generally cashed in on the Cotton States Merchants' Convention which was held here late last month. The convention lasted three days and the trade took advantage of the opportunity to bring the various lines to the attention of the thousands of visitors through special window displays and also through musical features connected with the convention itself.

Concentrated Canvassing Insures Results

Many Retailers Pay Too Little Attention to the Possibilities of the Canvassing Drive—Some Attendant Problems and Solutions

A recent survey of the talking machine trade in greater New York and the cities immediately adjacent thereto disclosed the fact that comparatively few dealers realize the benefits of canvassing and outside selling. A personal visit to the home of a prospect is the exception, rather than the rule. This applies particularly to exclusively talking machine stores. Where pianos and other lines are handled in combination personal visits and canvassing are resorted to much more often. In fact, the consensus of opinion among retailers who handle both pianos and talking machines seems to be that canvassing and personal outside contact with live prospects is the most effective manner in which to bring about a sale. However this may be, the fact remains that in many instances talking machine dealers pay too little attention to the possibilities of getting business through ringing door bells.

Advantage of Outside Workers

The very fact that a salesman or canvasser covers intensively a territory surrounding the store—within a radius from which customers may logically be drawn—is bound to be beneficial. These workers come in direct contact with the prospect and merely by delivering the sales talk they impress on the minds of the potential customers the name of the store and the line featured. While the immediate effect of a canvassing drive may not be entirely up to the most sanguine expectations of the retailer the cumulative returns are almost certain to result in a substantial dividend.

Bearing out this point is a little story by C. C. Casey in the current issue of Printers' Ink Monthly. Although the instance mentioned relates to another business it applies with equal force to the talking machine trade. The story follows:

"A typewriter agency had a 'salesman' who was not getting anywhere—he already had been carried too far on 'hopes.'

"The manager went to him one day and made him a proposition:

"'You go out to-day and make calls—all the calls you can make. Don't worry about sales. I'll pay you five cents for every call you make. Just go in and ask them, 'Do you need any typewriters to-day?'" and leave your card and get out. Remember, five cents for every call.'

"The salesman went out and 'made calls.' He went into an office building where offices were only a few feet apart and asked that question, over and over—eighty times the first day.

"The answer was invariably the same—always 'No.' But at the end of the week he had brought his name and his typewriter to the attention of over 400 offices. Eight of these offices telephoned his branch before the first week was up and ordered typewriters."

The point of this story is obvious and needs no further elaboration as to value of personal contact.

Making Canvassing Effective

Merely sending canvassers out into the territory and allowing them to cover whatever part of the city they desire is inefficient and will not bring returns commensurate with the amount of energy expended. The entire territory to be covered should be mapped out into sections and one section should be assigned to each canvasser. Moreover, his daily route should be planned so that a definite schedule will be followed. The only kind of a canvassing campaign that has ever brought home the bacon has been the one where the canvasser worked intensively, i. e., visited every house on one block before going to the next. When this procedure is followed faithfully and finally completed the retailer may be sure that he knows who are the potential customers in his community.

Collecting Data for Later Use

It is important that the canvassers turn in a report to the dealer each evening of each individual prospect called upon. These data should include all possible information which will be of help in deciding whether the person called upon is really a live prospect. Once the dealer has this information properly classified into groups composed of live prospects, owners of instruments, record prospects, etc., he can get busy with his direct-by-mail work, and his regular salesmen can also get busy in making personal calls on the live machine prospects with the intention of making sales. Of course, those people upon whom the canvassers have called and who do not offer any possibilities for sales are immediately eliminated from the list. To do anything else would be wasteful and foolish.

Now Is the Best Time for a Canvassing Drive

The vacation season is now ended and Fall is with us once more. The average family is again settled at home preparing for the Winter season, and whether these preparations and plans include talking machines and records depends to a large extent on the retailer. This is the ideal season for a canvassing and outside sales campaign and it behooves those members of the talking machine trade who desire to make capital of this opportunity to take action at once by carefully mapping out their campaigns.

INTERESTING NEW BOOK ON MUSIC

"Messages of Music," Recently Published, Leaves a Story About Each Composition and Refers Its Readers to Victor Records

A book with which Victor dealers should become familiar is that entitled "Messages of Music," written by the Rev. Henry Brenner, of the Order of Saint Benedict, and which has been published by the Stratford Co., of Boston. In the book the author treats of no less than 300 compositions, setting forth the stories connected with them, the ideas suggested in the minds of the composers when they were written, or other interesting material calculated to develop a stronger and more lasting interest in each of the selections.

An interesting fact regarding the book from a trade angle is that direct reference is made to the Victor records of the compositions mentioned in every case where they have been recorded, and there is also an index of Victor artists classed by the character of their music, whether vocal or instrumental, etc. The volume should interest the dealer from the fact that it will furnish him with some interesting facts regarding the music he handles which should aid him in his record selling. It is most authoritative and educational.

GIVES RECORDS TO DANCERS

San Francisco Dealer Conceives Unusual Manner of Securing Record Distribution

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., September 3.—J. Allen Grisham, who was formerly connected with the Carey Music Shop, Golden Gate avenue, this city, has now taken over the talking machine and record concession in the Fillmore Drug Co., 1641 Fillmore street. Mr. Grisham will devote the entire mezzanine floor to the display of talking machines and records and is planning to introduce a novel sales stunt which bids fair to be a master stroke in record sales promotion. He has fitted up a dance floor to which admission of 75 cents will be charged. This permits visitors to dance as long as they wish and for the charge of 75 cents each visitor is given a record valued at that price.

WHISTLING IN DANCE RECORDS

An interesting novelty among the recent Vocalion records is the bird whistling of Sibyl Sanderson Fagan as a part of the dance record of "Tweet Tweet," played by Albert E. Short and His Tivoli Syncopaters. The whistling effects by Mrs. Fagan, well known in musical circles, are excellent.

A live dealer increased his record sales by placing cardboard discs (imitation records) on the turntables of machines on display. These bore titles and prices of records.

KOCHANSKI RECORDS FOR VOCALION

First Records by Noted Polish Violinist to Be Released This Month by Aeolian Co.

The latest addition to the growing list of noted artists recording for the Vocalion records is Paul Kochanski, the prominent Polish violinist, two of whose Vocalion records will be released this month. The first bears on one side Kochanski's rendition of "La Gitana," a Spanish gypsy song of the eighteenth century, arranged by Kreisler, and on the other side the Hungarian Dance No. 1 by Brahms-Joachim. The second record bears on one side Kochanski's playing of "Le Carnaval Russe" and on the reverse side Sarasate's "Malaguena."

Kochanski is generally accepted as being one of the leaders among the later Polish school of violinists, and has achieved genuine triumphs in European capitals as well as having won success in the United States. Arrangements have been made to release several other records by this violinist following his introductory number.

BRODWIN OPENS NEW WAREROOMS

Increasing Business Forces Bronx Merchant to Move Into Larger Quarters

A remarkable economic metamorphosis has been completed this month by Harry Brodwin, a New York music merchant, who has just opened an up-to-date piano and phonograph wareroom at 149th street and Cortlandt avenue. Nine years ago Mr. Brodwin entered the piano business as an outside canvasser for William

The New Brodwin Wareroom

Knabe & Co., under John W. Post, with a six-dollar-a-week drawing account. After five years' work he started a small store of his own in the Bronx, at 535 Cortlandt avenue, where his business has grown until it has become necessary to move into his new larger quarters across the street.

The new store of Brodwin & Co. is a model for medium-sized showrooms anywhere. The ground floor, shaped like an L, is utilized for displaying new pianos and phonographs. Brodwin carries the Schubert, with the Virzi tone-amplifier, the Autopiano, Schencke and Sterling pianos and the Knabe. Four neat sound-proof booths, well lighted and equipped with electric fans, afford space for demonstrating Sonora and Brunswick talking machines and records.

In addition to his brother, Irvin, who was recently given an interest in the business, Mr. Brodwin has four or five canvassers in his employ. The store is a striking example of studied organization and scrupulous neatness. According to the proprietor, there is nothing magical about his success, which can be traced to two governing precepts—perseverance and honesty—to which he conscientiously subscribes. A walk through the Brodwin concern establishes the same atmosphere of completeness that one feels in any metropolitan music house.

CRISWELL HOLDS FORMAL OPENING

HERMOSA, CAL., August 28.—The formal opening of C. C. Criswell's new Brunswick Shop, 1320 Hermosa avenue, was held here recently, and a varied musical program by local artists marked the occasion. The new establishment will carry pianos and musical instruments as well as the Brunswick line of records and phonographs.

Mrs. Ralph L. Freeman, wife of the director of distribution of the Victor Co., accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Edward MacEwan, returned recently from a two months' trip to the British Isles and the Continent.

WATCH REGISTERED LIBERTY BONDS

Treasury Department Holds That Parents Cannot Transfer to Merchants Registered Bonds of Minors in Payment for Merchandise

Talking machine dealers who have made a practice of accepting Liberty Bonds in full or part payment for machines or record purchases have been warned by the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce to observe care in accepting bonds from minors or registered bonds owned by minors and transferred to the dealer by the parent.

Having learned of dealers who met with difficulties and loss in handling such transactions the Chamber took up the question with the Treasury Department at Washington, which held that the transfer of a registered bond of a minor could only be made to prevent actual hardship or deprivation. The Chamber claimed that to deprive a child of a musical instrument to be used as part of its education might be construed as a hardship, but the Department refused to take this view of the case and its ruling said:

"In considering the question presented the following facts must constantly be borne in mind: First, that the above quoted provisions of the said Sixth Supplement do not apply to any case in which there is a legally qualified guardian. Legal qualification in substantially all the States requires appointment by a court of competent jurisdiction. Second, that registration in the name of the minor or in a form substantially similar to 'John Jones, a minor, by Samuel Jones, father, natural guardian' vests title to the security in the minor. Third, a parent as such or as natural guardian has in general no power or right to dispose of property owned by his minor child. Such property can legally be sold or transferred only by a legally qualified guardian. Fourth, that parents as such are legally bound to support and educate with their own funds their minor children, furnishing such support and education as is appropriate for the children with due consideration of their station in life, and that such parents are not entitled to use for this purpose property of the children themselves.

"Based upon these considerations the Department will require assignment by a legally qualified guardian for any transfer or exchange of registered securities owned by minors, with one exception: That where the gross estate of the minor does not exceed $500 in value and where the parents are financially unable upon the evidence submitted to furnish proper support and education from their own funds the Department will, upon a proper showing, permit the sale of registered securities in the name of the child upon assignment by the parent as natural guardian. This provision is intended to relax the strict requirements of the law where the requirements would entail actual hardship or deprivation as the result of the expense incident to the appointment of a legally qualified guardian. It cannot be taken advantage of unless it can be definitely shown, first, that the parents are financially unable to furnish support and education in accordance with the child's station in life; second, that the proceeds of the sale are actually necessary in order that the child may receive the support and education to which he is entitled, and that such proceeds are actually to be used for that purpose. In general the Department will require evidence which would justify a judge of a court of probate in authorizing the sale by a legal guardian of the principal of the child's estate for the purposes of support and education.

"I recognize that it is not inconceivable that cases might arise where a musical education is sought as a direct means of livelihood and certain cases of this description might come within the provisions of that portion of the Sixth Supplement to which I have referred. Where, however, as in most cases which have been presented to the Treasury, a musical education is sought principally or entirely for the purpose of social or cultural benefit, I am unable to concede that such education is actually necessary, within the meaning of the regulations."

SHOW DURING "BETTER HOMES" WEEK

INCREASES CAPITAL STOCK

No. 4 Tone Arm
No. 4 Reproducer

Introducing Number Four

The phonograph world moves in common with the rest of the universe. People are trying to get away from the conventional, always in quest of things new and better. Realizing this our engineers set to work to design a Tone Arm and Reproducer that is original, attractive and good.

The result is our No. 4 Throw-back Tone Arm with Swelled Base and No. 4 Pentagon-shaped Sound Box—a welcome relief from the staid equipment used heretofore. Its pleasing appearance lends an air of distinction to the best of phonographs, and appeals to the taste of the purchaser.

But the real achievement of our engineers was not alone in the design, for a phonograph cannot sell solely on its outward aspect. After weeks of experimenting they perfected a full, resonant-toned reproducer which defies comparison.

Samples can be obtained at the following prices:

Tone Arm No. 4, with Reproducer No. 4	$4.50
Tone Arm No. 4, only	2.75
Reproducer No. 4, only	2.25

A NEW FIELD FOR WOMEN'S WORK

Howard, Farwell & Co. Use Woman to Adjust All Complaints and to Follow Up New Sales in Order to Keep the Customers Satisfied With the Musical Instruments Sold Them

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Sept. 4.—Tell your perplexities to the attractive young woman in the picture. Miss Myrtle McLaughlin or "Mac,"

Myrtle McLaughlin

as she is known, smooths out perplexities and adjusts complaints for purchasers from the St. Paul, Minn., store of Howard, Farwell & Co. Her position is quite unique, representing service in one of its most attractive forms.

Shortly after a piano or high-grade Victrola is purchased "Mac" and her smile appear at the customer's door, ready to help in player-piano operation, Victrola operation and to ascertain if the purchase is proving as satisfactory as the purchaser expected it to be. Her services are particularly appreciated by player-piano purchasers.

Her prompt appearance and her offers of continued help from Howard, Farwell's service department are winning many friends for the store, as well as the many live new prospects. When a prospect materializes into a purchaser, Miss McLaughlin introduces the friend who suggested the prospect to a wonderful array of premiums, including 1847 Rogers' silverware, a set of dishes, a half dozen Phoenix hose, watches, clocks, cigarette cases, etc. These premiums are available to anyone who has suggested a prospect who buys either a piano or Victrola.

When not engaged cementing the company's and customers' good-will, Miss McLaughlin takes a musical census which yields the firm a list of prospects.

Charles P. Wagner, assistant treasurer of the company, heads the service department and was chiefly responsible for the creation of the post of field representative which Miss McLaughlin fills so capably and successfully.

It is possible that some other concerns have carried out the idea to a greater or less degree in certain instances, but it is doubtful if in any single instance the policy has been followed out as consistently as in the case of Howard, Farwell & Co. The plan has passed the experimental stage and has proved of definite value not only in cementing friendship between the house and its customers, but in bringing in actual business through direct sales and the securing of actual prospects as well as satisfying the customers.

The success of the work is due in no small measure to the pleasing personality of Miss McLaughlin, who has firmly established her faculty for securing satisfaction for the complaining customer and turning him into a firm friend of her company.

PAUL SPECHT WELCOMED HOME

Head of Columbia Recording Organization Given Dinner on Evening of August 20

Paul Specht and His Orchestra were the guests of honor at a dinner given late in August by the representatives of music industries, including music publishers, songwriters and others, at the club rooms of the National Vaudeville Artists, 225 West Forty-sixth street, New York. This famous orchestra arrived in New York recently on the S.S. "Aquitania" after spending eight weeks in London in appearances at Lyons' New Corner House, the largest restaurant in the world, the Empress Rooms of the Royal Palace Hotel and the Coliseum and Alhambra theatres of London. The success of Paul Specht and His Orchestra in London was sensational, and the orchestra returned to New York to open an engagement at the Alamac Hotel, Seventy-second street and Broadway, New York, beginning September 15.

At the dinner E. C. Mills, chairman of the M. P. P. A., officiated as toastmaster, and among the guests were many prominent members of the theatrical and musical worlds. Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Welfare of the City of New York, represented the city administration, and George W. Hopkins, vice-president and general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was also one of the speakers of the evening. Paul Specht and His Orchestra make Columbia records exclusively.

ARMSTRONG CO. DAMAGED BY FIRE

Newark Piano House Suffered Smoke and Water Loss—Reconstruction Under Way

A considerable part of the stock of the Armstrong Piano Co., 587 Broad street, Newark, N. J., was damaged by smoke and water in a recent fire, which started on the floor above its showrooms. According to estimates, the total damage, which affected two or three adjacent stores, exceeded $15,000, but that suffered by the Armstrong store was covered in the main by insurance. The stock from the showrooms, including many expensive Knabe grands and Ampicos, has been transferred to the stockroom of the Lauter Piano Co., at 14 Central avenue.

Workmen are already busy repairing the damage caused by the fire, the ceiling of the establishment having been considerably damaged. The work is being rushed and the store will be reoccupied in a month or so.

TIME THE LITTLE "BIG MAN" HAD RECOGNITION

By A. M. BURROUGHS
Accounting Specialist, Burroughs Adding Machine Co.

It is high time that the little "big man" had his inning.

All the fine things that have been said and written about the captains of industry and finance are well deserved. But for every big figure in national life who has directed his million-dollar corporation wisely and profitably there are dozens of smaller business men—retail merchants, retail distributors of every conceivable kind of manufactured commodity—who have done fully as well in their more limited fields.

There comes to mind that type of merchant who handles his thousands with the same wisdom, the same foresight as the merchant prince his millions.

In every community there is one or more men of that type. Business comes to his store in panicky times as well as in boom times. His store is a clearing house for goods. His purchases and sales over a year bulk large. Wholesaler and manufacturer value a connection with him. His business yields a steady stream of profit. His banker welcomes his visits.

What is the difference between John Small and John Big? Size only. For their methods are pretty much alike.

John Small's store is a 1923 model. Next year it will be a 1924 model. Small never condemns an innovation simply because it is new. Nor does he rush in headlong after some untried frill.

There is this everlasting similarity between Small and Big. They think and act in the terms of "Two and two are four."

What an interesting, yet dismal, story those 22,000 merchants who failed last year would tell.

It would be a composite of "I thought—I didn't think—. That looked all right—. This seemed to be a good way—. I guess I could. My friends thought, etc."

John Small's hardest competitor can say nothing worse of him than: "John is a good manager."

Simmer it down to one thing and it is: Get the facts and use them.

We are not stripping any glamour from the crown of John Big when we reveal the secret of his success. He measures every situation in his business by a yardstick. He can buy so much merchandise with so much money. He can sell it again by certain definite methods. He can foresee practically every contingency.

John Small operates the same way. He wants to stock a two weeks' supply of a certain brand of goods. Well and good. Now, what is a two weeks' supply? It may be window-screens, windlasses, harmonicas or essence of winter-green. It is something that the public will buy. He can make a profit by selling it.

Small can't remember how much he sold last month or the corresponding two weeks of last year. But he can go to his sale records and see the accurate figures.

John Small is just as big as John Big. Standing beside the yardstick of success their height is the same. Both are good managers.

Small and Big both have reservoirs of information about their business. It lies in their ledgers and other bookkeeping records. It is there, ready to be pumped out for them. And it comes out every day in the form of definite, usable facts. They run their business on the strength of them. There is no such thing as guess in either the Small or Big store. A guess is kicked out before it has time to get in the door.

Small is just as important to the country's good as Big.

Manage your business or your business will manage to freeze you out.

Antidotes were given as quickly as possible and, after a strenuous fight, he was relieved. After a short stay with his brother-in-law, Dr. Rothblatt, 704 West 180th street, New York, he left for his country home at Gansevoort, N. Y.

Securing and Keeping Up the Mailing List

Pointers on How Best Results Are Secured Through a Mailing List Which Is Kept Fully Up to Date—Eliminating the Deadwood

Building up a mailing list is one of the problems that are always before the retail dealer who believes in keeping his name and the name of the product he represents constantly before prospective customers. There are some who simply handle the mailing list as a matter of course and do not give it the attention it deserves, but the merchant who seeks real results must give as much thought to his mailing list as he does to the prospect list upon which the salesman work personally.

The retailer would not think of sending his salesman to see a prospect who had died or moved away, and he should take just as much care to see that his valuable mail matter is not sent to people who have moved, or who for one reason or another do not exist. This means constant checking and building up.

The well-known channels for getting names for the mailing list have been pretty well worked, such as the telephone directory, lists covering certain exclusive localities, the social register, etc. Likewise, an increasing number of dealers find the newspaper announcements very successful prospect sources and see to it that all newly married couples are placed on the mailing list. This same information regarding the newlyweds can be obtained from the list of marriage licenses issued by the various cities and published in local newspapers, or at least placed on file at the License Bureau, where they may be perused by anyone interested.

Real estate records also offer possibilities for first-class mailing lists, for the buyers of suburban homes make excellent prospects, provided, of course, they are not already supplied with machines. In any event, they loom up as possibilities for record sales.

New Sources for Prospects

There are now and then some original methods developed by individual salesmen for digging up prospects and in this connection a story is told of a young Italian who got a job as outside salesman for a dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y. The new man went to work earnestly and for the first couple of weeks he turned in to the house each day from five to ten prospects. The best part of it was that a very fair percentage of them bought machines and records during that period. There could be no question regarding the authenticity of the lists. The manager was puzzled at the success of the new man and finally, unable to control his curiosity any longer, said: "Where do you get all these names, Joe?" "Pretty good, eh?" the Latin answered evasively. "Come on, be a sport. I just want to find out your system for the sake of my other men. How many families, having talking machines, do you call on each day before you get the names of six prospects?" asked the dealer. "None," laughed the fellow, enjoying his employer's confusion.

"Well, now, listen here, Joe," said the dealer suspiciously; "if you mean to say that you call on only six or seven people a day and find them all without talking machines, somebody is giving you those names. Come now, who is it?"

"Sure, somebody gives me names. He give me names and address. My father and brud they all in the moving van biz, five trucks, and each day they move five, six ten peep, see no talking machine on truck, give me his name."

It does not happen that every salesman or every dealer lists among his friends a moving van owner who will give him such explicit information, but if he approaches some of the real estate dealers in his vicinity in the proper way it is no great problem to get from them lists of new tenants who may be solicited in the regular way, and often with good results.

Keeping the List Really Alive

It is not always a question of getting new names, however, for care must be taken to see that certain names are bona-fide and worth following up. In some cases arrangements can be made with the local postmaster to revise the dealer's mailing list so far as it covers his territory, bringing it up-to-date at a nominal charge for clerical work. But even when such service is not available the dealer can have a fairly accurate check on his list by imprinting his envelopes with a return postage guarantee and then seeing that the returns are not simply thrown aside, but are checked up very carefully against the list.

In addition to those who die each month, it often happens that a certain portion of the people on the mailing list have succumbed to the wiles of competing salesmen and bought machines and records of other makes. For the purpose of checking up these it is well occasionally to send out a "tickler" in the form of a return post card to be filled in, by the recipient stating what kind of machine he owns, if any, what kind of records he uses and whether or not he is interested in continuing to receive bulletins and other printed matter.

Checking Up From the Recipient's End

While on the subject of mailing lists, it might also be apropos to suggest that the dealer check up occasionally to see how his printed matter is being received by his prospects. This applies particularly in cases where the dealer goes to considerable expense in preparing original forms of mail matter in the hope of arousing special interest. A big user of mail matter suggests that before any new mail matter is sent out, particularly material printed on cardboard more or less delicate in character, the dealer have several samples mailed to himself from various localities. When it is received he can inspect it and see whether it has been properly packed or whether the envelope used is of the right sort to give full protection. Should anything be wrong he can remedy it before sending the material out to the full list.

It happens very frequently that expensive calendars printed on cardboard, and with considerable filigree work, are received by prospects in so mangled a condition as to be useless and the story is told of a manufacturer who conceived the bright idea of having his message recorded on small records and sent them to his clients. In order to attract attention he left the envelope blank and included no literature. Even the record did not bear his name, simply the fact that it bore a message of interest to the client. The trouble came when a large number of records through improper packing were all smashed up when they reached the recipient. In all such cases the important message on the record remained a secret. The unfortunate part was that in his eagerness to be original the manufacturer placed no key on the envelope or contents that would permit of the recipient writing to him for another record to be more securely packed.

Soliciting by mail is, at best, a more or less expensive practice and it stands to reason that a piece of literature to be sent by mail, if it is worth preparing, is worthy of careful attention in the matter of shipping and certainly should contain the name of the sender.

Making Small Advertisements Effective

Originality in Lettering and the Use of Small Cartoons Make the Copy Stand Out From Straight Type Ads and Get Attention

The talking machine dealer who handles any one or several of the established lines of records has at his command probably more free publicity matter of high quality than is to be found in any other line of business, for not only do the manufacturers themselves spend hundreds of thousands of dollars each year in supplying window cards, bulletins, cut-outs, etc., for the use of dealers, but many distributors follow the same practice and many music publishers, as well, have also seen the possibilities of having their songs in record form suitably featured in the dealer's window by specially prepared cards.

The complaint seems to be, and justly so, that a great many dealers do not take the fullest advantage of the opportunity of informing the public of the new features among the records. Either they neglect to display some of this material entirely or they display it in a way that shows lack of thought in its arrangement. This criticism, of course, does not apply to those retailers who believe in individuality in presenting the record hits to the public and who arrange individual window displays to attract attention either to a single record or to a special group.

There are a class of dealers, fortunately, who not only make full use of the advertising equipment supplied by the manufacturer, but who junction with straight type advertisements the special lettering stands out like a sore thumb and the campaign has reached a point where many record buyers admit that they look for the advertisements just as they do for the other special features of the newspapers. Certainly the results of the campaign indicate that it has gone over.

E. H. Jackson, owner of the Jackson Talking Machine Shop, makes excellent use of the cartoon in giving character to many of the advertisements. It might be said here that the cartoon has also been used effectively by other also create individual advertising to give additional punch to the publicity. They realize that, with a half dozen or more dealers in their own section handling the same line and using the same publicity, the passer-by is not likely to be attracted particularly to their own store, even though he may become interested in the record itself. In other words, the general publicity is just as likely as not to bring a certain amount of the business to competitors.

In the preparation of the individual advertising the dealer can offset this tendency to a certain degree. When the record buyer has seen the record featured in the same way in a half dozen stores and then comes across an original presentation of it he is very likely to find his curiosity developing into a buying urge and to give his business to the retailer who has had gumption enough to go after it in a new way.

This originality in advertising can be adopted in newspaper advertisements as well as in show window cards and the idea has been carried out successfully in numerous cases. In other words, instead of simply publishing the name of the record, something of its history and perhaps a picture of the orchestra playing it or the artist singing it, the dealer uses a cartoon or special type arrangement that is distinctly out of the ordinary run.

A case in point is found in the series of specially lettered record advertisements used in the local newspapers by the Jackson Talking Machine Shop, of Rockford, Ill. Appearing in con-dealers, among them Ned Straus, manager for the A. B. Clinton Piano Co., Hartford, Conn., whose cartoons were reproduced in The World some time ago. Mr. Straus, as well as Mr. Jackson, has a belief that the tired business man and his wife like a little humor in the advertisements, with the result that most of the cartoons are calculated to develop a smile on the part of the reader, as well as to attract his attention to what the announcement is all about.

The sum and substance of the matter is that anything that makes for individuality in publicity, whether in the newspapers or in the store, is likely to elevate that particular dealer above the general run of his fellows and concentrate on his store the interest that ordinarily might be divided among a half-dozen competitors.

It is natural to assume that no one dealer can get all of the business, but if he does things a little differently in his advertising and his selling and service methods he is liable to get sufficiently out of the rut to be able to capture more than his proportionate share of business.

Mr. Langlands has been assistant manager of the musical merchandise department of the Southern California Music Co. of Los Angeles for eleven years, and recently organized a band at Culver City.

T. A. EDISON'S RECENT DISCOVERY

A new artist is likely to be added to those making records for Thomas A. Edison, Inc., as a result of the vacation motor and camping trip recently taken by Mr. Edison and his friends, Henry Ford and Fred Firestone. It seems that while in Paris, Mich., Mr. Edison heard of the skill of a local "fiddler," Jasper E. Bisbee, and, after hearing him play the music in vogue for dancing fifty years ago, Mr. Edison promised to arrange for the making of test records at the Edison laboratories in Orange, N. J.

A FACTOR IN AUGMENTING SALES

How the Audak Demonstrating Device Operates in Making the Dealer's Sales Department More Effective in Service to Customers

In these days of modern merchandising with heavy overhead, due to increased costs for salaries and the demand of customers to be waited on promptly and efficiently, with all that this means in extending service, the retailer willingly grasps at any proved plan that aids in the simplification of sales. In this connection several leading dealers and a number of department stores, in planning to eliminate lost motion and add to the speed in making sales, have recently adopted the Audak demonstrating device. A particularly popular model of this product is the Audak No. 10, mounted on a small table, occupying very little space, at which the prospective customer may sit and hear any number of records without interference from record renditions at adjacent tables. This equipment is delivered in the color of the woodwork of the store and can be set up for demonstration without delay immediately upon delivery. A series of such tables occupy very little floor space. A group of popular selections is placed in the rack before the customer and a demonstration of those selected is made by the prospective purchaser. The floor salesman, from time to time, exchanges or adds to the records set aside for the individual's demonstration, who requires little other attention until the sale is about to be completed. In this manner a full battery of tables, equipped with the Audak, can not only be cared for by one salesman, but allows him sufficient time to extend to the various prospective purchasers other minor services. When the store is unusually crowded this has been found one of the most feasible, successful and profitable methods of record demonstration. The majority of folks seem not only well satisfied with such methods, but often show particular pleasure with the arrangements. It is a weakness of human nature to desire attention; if the store is crowded to the extent that the salesman cannot take care of all those before the counter a seat at the table where a series of records may be gone over not only suffices to hold the customer within the confines of the establishment, but gives more than a little assurance that he will make a reasonable amount of purchases.

BROADCASTING PIANO SOLOS

Microphones are the prime essentials in radio broadcasting and their perfection is one of the trials of the radio engineers. It is quite simple to broadcast the human voice, for the speaker or singer stands directly in front of the microphone. It is equally simple with the violin or even a full orchestra, in the latter case the combined sounds of the instruments being gathered into a large receiving horn by means of a curved sounding board.

But until within a recent period or so the transmission of piano pieces had not been as satisfactory as the radio engineers felt was possible. Now they are, due to the perfection of a device by radio engineers in the largest transmitting station up the State. By means of coils anchored to the piano sounding board and a magnetic system connected with the coils and attached to the piano frame itself every tone is faithfully reproduced electrically, with all the tonal shadings, and so sent on to the broadcasting machine.

MAKING TALKING MACHINES IN SYDNEY

We are in receipt of a copy of the Australasian Manufacturer, published in Sydney, a most interesting magazine, by the way, in which appears a three-page illustrated story of the construction of the Raxonola talking machine, which is made by the firm of Jackson & Macdonald in Sydney. This instrument is a complete Australian product and the writer of the article, who describes its manufacture in the fullest detail, naturally expresses pride in the fact. Two illustrations of recent Raxonola styles also appear.

Creators of a new style of dance music

A LITTLE over one year ago Vincent Lopez and His Hotel Pennsylvania Orchestra boldly departed from the beaten paths of mere syncopation and created a new style of dance music.

It was startlingly unusual—oddly original. It was daringly different from anything the dancing public had previously heard. Soon, by means of nightly playing at the Hotel Pennsylvania, the world's largest hotel, wireless broadcasting and phenomenally successful, record-breaking Keith vaudeville tours, the fame of this delightfully novel dance music spread far and wide. Today, this very same style of inimitable dance music, coupled with superb musicianship, has attained for Lopez and his talented organization a tremendous popularity that is unparalleled by any other dance orchestra. Their exclusive Okeh recordings are acknowledged to be the finest dance records obtainable.

As an Okeh dealer, your share of the ever-growing demand for Lopez's exclusive Okeh Records is assured. Get it more quickly—make it as big as possible. Get behind these incomparable dance records and give them some real, honest-to-goodness sales effort. Let the public know you have Lopez records. Talk them up. Play them for your customers at every opportunity. Give your neighborhood the Lopez habit. Dealers all over the country are doing it—and steadily cashing in big as a result of their sales efforts.

Your share of this Lopez boom is there for you to get. Why not go after it?

HARRY CUDDEBACK WELL AGAIN

Head of Da-Lite Co. Back at Desk—Company Revises Schedule of Panel Distribution to Comply With Victor Record Release Plan

TOLEDO, O., September 6.—Harry Cuddeback, head of the Da-Lite Electric Display Co., in this city, well-known manufacturer of electric display signs for the Victor dealer, is back at his desk after a six months' illness. Mr. Cuddeback has resumed activities with his usual energy and is now making plans for an aggressive Fall campaign.

Coincident with the recent Victor announcement to the effect that Victor records will hereafter be released weekly the Da-Lite Electric Display Co. will issue one panel each week, featuring the outstanding record of each particular list. This arrangement will provide for fifty-two panels per year, instead of forty-eight as heretofore, thereby giving the dealer a series of timely, effective displays that will undoubtedly act as a most effective sales stimulant the year round.

H. LAUTER CO. ADDS NEW MODELS

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., September 6.—The H. Lauter Co., of this city, well-known manufacturer of talking machines and furniture, has just added six new console models to its talking machine line. The company is preparing an attractive circular featuring these models, emphasizing the fact that the cabinets are made at the Lauter plant and that the equipment includes well-known standard products. The six new models in the Lauter line are known as Models D, E, F, G, H and I and are manufactured in combination American walnut and combination brown mahogany. The cabinet designs are distinctive and the company is preparing to take care of the active Fall demand which present conditions indicate.

BLOOMINGDALE DEPARTMENT MOVES

Talking Machine Quarters Now in Fine Location on Third Floor—Audaks and Other New Equipment Add to Department's Efficiency

In order to take care of its increased business the talking machine department of Bloomingdale Bros., Inc., has moved to new quarters on the third floor directly in front of the elevators. The department took possession of its new home on September 4, and H. G. Berkeley, manager of the Bloomingdale phonograph division, states that his department is making plans for the greatest Fall trade in history.

The present home of the department is new in practically every sense of the word, as almost all of the old equipment was discarded in order to introduce new ideas to cope with changing conditions and modern requirements. A battery of Audaks is being used instead of booths, as only a few of the latter were retained. Unique display fixtures for presenting machines are located at vantage points in the department and maximum service is offered the store's clientele. Mr. Berkeley states that no change is contemplated in the lines to be handled by the department, which now comprise Victor, Sonora, Brunswick and Pooley.

OPENS WHOLESALE ESTABLISHMENT

The Specialty Phonograph & Accessories Co., manufacturer of "Specialty Brand" phonograph products, recently opened a wholesale establishment at 212 East 113th street, New York, N. Y. This company will manufacture the "Specialty" motor, suitable for portable and small talking machines, and will also be a jobber of parts and accessories, including needles, tone arms, main springs, sound boxes, tools for repair work, etc. The concern, which is well equipped to efficiently serve a large clientele, is planning a vigorous drive for business.

OKEH ARTISTS COMBINE IN TOUR

Dealers in Cities in Which Sara Martin and Handy's Band Are Scheduled to Appear Taking Advantage of Opportunity by Tie-ups

Two prominent Okeh record artists, Sara Martin, well-known blues singer, and Handy's Band, popular New York organization, have joined forces and are now on a concert tour. Under the direction of the National Music League, Inc., of New York, these artists are booked ahead through the South until October 1, after which they are planning to go to the Pacific Coast. They are playing to capacity audiences and attracting considerable attention on the road. The itinerary to date has included such well-known cities as Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro and Charlotte, N. C.; Columbia and Greenville, S. C.; Augusta and Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Memphis and Nashville, Tenn.; Paducah, Louisville and Lexington, Ky., and Cairo, Ill.

Sara Martin has won considerable popularity through her distinctive rendition of colored melodies and her Okeh records have won favor from coast to coast. W. C. Handy, leader of the band bearing his name, is well known as a publisher, composer and orchestra director and constitutes a perfect accompaniment for Miss Martin's singing. The artists sing and play all of the selections they have recorded for the Okeh library, and Okeh dealers in the cities where the company appears are using a great deal of very effective publicity featuring the concerts to excellent advantage.

Home Building Movement Felt by Trade in Increased Sales—Business Prospects Good—The News

OGDEN, UTAH, September 5.—Prospects for brisk Fall trade are exceedingly bright in this district, according to George S. Glen, of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co. "Already we have felt the influence," said Mr. Glen, "and if present indications may be taken as a criterion we have reason to believe that a decided impetus will be given the talking machine business in northern Utah, southern Idaho and western Wyoming. Particularly gratifying are the sales of higher-priced console Victor machines, which seem to be the most popular right now. The home-building movement is reacting in our favor. Many of the home buyers are young folks who are furnishing their places completely and we are benefiting by the sale of pianos, talking machines and small goods."

Thomas J. Holland, sales manager of the Glen Bros.-Roberts Co., reports an unusually successful campaign among the women attending the annual cooking school conducted by a local newspaper. Daily demonstrations of pianos and talking machines were conducted before 2,000 women, altogether, he said. They were shown the latest types of machines and heard the latest records, both popular and classic. "This gave us a valuable personal contact with the women, who are the actual buyers," said Mr. Holland, "and we benefited very materially."

Mr. Holland recently returned from a tour of southern Idaho and the prospects of bumper crops this Fall have put the farmers in a very optimistic mood, he said. "The outlook in southern Idaho and northern Utah appears so bright that the company has put men in these territories permanently."

Ezra Jones, of the Jones Phonograph Shop, Brunswick and Sonora dealer, has returned from a business trip to Wyoming with Leroy Madsen, of the Lyric Music Co. They arrived at Kemmerer, Wyo., just after the explosion in the Frontier mine that killed ninety-eight men.

The trip took the two into the Jackson's Hole country of Wyoming, where they sounded business conditions. The abundant rain has benefited the dry land crops and lifted the ranchers out of the depression they have been in for the past two years. Mr. Jones said he sold a number of phonographs on the trip and at Big Piney, Wyo., a ranching town, he sold talking machines to the two hotels. He remarked that local business has improved and that he is preparing for a very active Fall season.

Glen Thomas, of Browning Bros., Brunswick dealers, who has returned from his vacation spent in Jackson's Hole, Wyo., says that business, although quiet during the Summer months, has picked up materially. The demand for popular records is still good and business in the more classical numbers is improving.

The Proudfit Sporting Goods Co., distributor for the Edison, states that indications point to the resumption of active business that has been in a slump. The outlook has improved to such an extent, the company said, that Thomas S. Hutchinson, field representative, is being kept the greater part of the time in southern Idaho, where prospects for the sale of machines and records are unusually good.

The William Music Co., Steger and Pathé dealer, reports a revived interest in talking machines.

C. E. Armstrong & Co. report that business is keeping up well in view of the usual slow season. "Better business than usual" is the report of this concern. The company handles Edisons and Pathés.

"RED HEAD GAL" CONTEST

Live Brunswick Dealers Promote Sales of Records by Unique Popularity Contest

Hallett & Pierson, Brunswick dealers in Rutherford, N. J., have achieved considerable publicity recently by asking who is the most popular "Red Head Gal" and offering a reward for the answer. Announcements over the signature of Hallett & Pierson, giving the details of this unique contest, read as follows: "To the auburn-haired lady receiving the most votes between now and September 10 we will present a beautiful ukulele. Ten votes are given with each purchase of Brunswick records, regardless of selection, but if you want to get enthused over auburn hair hear 'That Red Head Gal' by the Isham Jones Orchestra on record No. 2412, and by Marion Harris on record No. 2444." The contest provided a number of interesting questions, particularly as to just what shade of hair may be called auburn and not red.

THE TREASURE CHEST

“Add to Your Treasure”

The “Treasure Chest” is not a thing that happened over night, nor through accident. Nor is it the result of a pet idea. It is the “brains” of merchandising experts, keen minds in the talking machine business; men who have had years and years of thorough, hard and practical schooling—yes, those who know what will “go over” with the public.

Not only was matured thought necessary to create the “Chest” but it required the outlay of a large sum of money.

And what was all this done for? To profit in selling “containers and record envelopes” to Victor Dealers? No indeed!

Mr. Victor Dealer, the “Treasure Chest” itself returns no profit whatever to us nor any other Victor Wholesaler. It was not gotten up with that thought in mind. The “Treasure Chest” was made solely for one purpose—to produce greater record sales for Victor Dealers. And it does precisely that.

Dealers who are handling this wonderfully attractive offering well know its value—and equally appreciative is the public who have seen it.

The BRUNO organization sincerely works in the interest of all enterprising Victor Dealers. What it creates or produces is for the sole benefit of those Victor Dealers everywhere.

Now’s the time to “add to your treasure” by adding the “Treasure Chest” to your stock.

*Ask your Wholesaler for the “Treasure Chest.”
He will serve you.*

The “Treasure Chest,” beautifully printed in full color, comprises six ten-inch double-face records (12 selections) of the choicest instrumental music of foreign lands. The Chest and envelope of each record has on it a spirited and effective drawing appropriate to the music, together with an interesting and vivid annotation.

NOVEL RECORD ADVERTISING STUNT THAT WENT OVER BIG

Souvenir Records of the Appearance of Marion Harris, Brunswick Artist, in Local Cafe, Prepared by the Fitzgerald Music Co., of Los Angeles, Sell Like Proverbial Hot Cakes

One of the most novel advertising "stunts" for tying up with the local appearance of an artist was recently put over by the Fitzgerald Music Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., during Miss Marion Harris' appearance at a local café, the Club Royale, on Washington boulevard, near the City of Angels.

The Fitzgerald Music Co. is an exclusive Brunswick dealer and Miss Harris is an exclusive Brunswick artist, so, in addition to a great amount of newspaper publicity and to an unusual window display featuring Marion Harris' appearance and her Brunswick records, the Fitzgerald Music Co. evolved the idea of hav-records sold might be kept as souvenirs of the occasion and be lasting reminders of Miss Harris, the Club Royale and the Fitzgerald Music Co. This label is a cut-out, so that when pasted on the records neither the name Brunswick nor

Autograph Souvenir Record Distributed

The wording on the label above the signature and address of the Fitzgerald Co. reads: "Souvenir autographed Brunswick record commemorating Marion Harris' Club Royale appearance, July-August, 1923. Sincerely yours, Marion Harris (Signature). Singing at the Club Royale, Los Angeles' most distinctive cafe."

the title or number was hidden, but prominent on the label was the name of the Club Royale Café, with Miss Harris' own personal signature just above and the Fitzgerald Music Co.'s name on the bottom. The background of the label was white with crimson and gold letters.

In the lobby of the Club Royale Café the Fitzgerald Music Co. placed a table with a display of Marion Harris souvenir records and had in attendance at this table a very attractive young lady dressed in Spanish costume who sold the records. Attractively engraved cards announcing the sale of the records were placed on each table in the café.

Miss Harris sang twice during each evening; first at 10 o'clock and the second time at 12 o'clock, and directly after each one of Miss Harris' appearances the young lady in charge of record sales would go around among the tables with a tray of souvenir records and sell or take orders for them.

The records delivered to the customers in the café were enclosed in an envelope specially designed and printed for the occasion, but in most cases the young lady merely took orders and had the records delivered to the customers the next day, thus saving the purchasers the trouble of carrying a package of records with them and demonstrating the firm's service.

The idea was entirely new and novel, but went over in the biggest sort of way—the first week or ten days the record sales at the café averaged almost one hundred per night—and this in view of the fact that the price of these souvenir records was raised from 75 cents to $1 each, but the actual sales made at the café were really one of the smallest benefits derived. The great advertising and publicity received by the Fitzgerald Music Co. from this unusual sort of tie-up have been inestimable.

As the Club Royale Café is one of the largest and highest class "dance palaces" in Southern California, and as some six to eight hundred better-class, amusement-loving people visit this café each night, the value of the "stunt" in an advertising way can readily be seen.

A NEW FORM OF RETAIL SWINDLE

So-called Talking Machine Salesman Works Fast in Ohio and Mulcts Dealer of Money, Machine and Records

It sometimes happens that a talking machine dealer is called upon to guard against dead beats within his own establishment, as well as those outsiders who make a practice of endeavoring to get something for nothing. A case in point has come up in Ohio where a so-called salesman has developed a somewhat new form of swindle, which is described in a letter sent to Secretary Hyre of the Music Merchants' Association of Northern Ohio as a warning to other music merchants in that section of the country. It might be well for trade members to study the case in order to be on their guard against a similar experience, which is described in a letter as follows:

"One of the things our Music Merchants' Association is for is the protection of its members, and we feel it our duty to pass along the benefit of a recent experience.

"A good-looking stranger with a foreign accent came to town and asked for a job selling machines on a commission basis, stating that he could pick up a few orders among the Polish people who preferred to deal with one of their own countrymen.

"Agreeing that no results, no pay was the contract, we let him have catalogues, and later in the day he phoned in that he had a sale for a portable Victrola, asking that it be gotten ready for him to demonstrate to a customer. Later, still, he came for a machine, with a list of Polish records, stating that he had a prospect for a larger machine, also.

"A few minutes before closing time he rushed in with a check purporting to be given by a local Polish resident and made out for a few dollars more than the price of the Victrola and records.

"We cashed back the balance plus 10 per cent commission and the good-looking gentleman departed with a promise of 'More business tomorrow'."

"Of course the check is no good, so the loss is machine and records plus a few dollars of real cash.

"The name of John Potocki was given, the man being about forty years old, five feet eleven inches tall, well dressed and well posted on phonographs and pianos."

RICHMOND

Jobbers Are Rushed Supplying Retailers — Plenty of Employment and Good Crops Create Optimism

RICHMOND, VA., September 7.—The fact that there is plenty of employment for everybody who wants to work, coupled with the fact that crop prospects in the Richmond territory are declared to be better than they have been for several seasons, is helping to stimulate business greatly.

Indications point to an exceptionally good Fall business, according to Richmond talking machine jobbers and retailers. H. Wallace Carner, Starr jobber, says that orders are coming in so fast that he is finding it difficult to supply the demand in the Virginias and Carolinas which he covers. Demand is particularly brisk for console models which, he says, are now selling 50 per cent better than cabinet, whereas the latter used to be the leader in demand. While he has appointed no new dealers in recent months, he has been having his hands full keeping up with the business coming in from those already appointed. Record business is also brisk, having doubled within the past year. The new Gennett record, "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake," gives promise of equaling, if not surpassing, "Yes, We Have No Bananas" in popularity, he says. Mr. Carner has just returned from a business trip through southwest Virginia and reports the outlook in that section better than ever before.

Bright Prospects, Says R. C. Gentry

R. C. Gentry, who travels southern Virginia and both the Carolinas for the Corley Co., Victor jobber, reports that there is a marked improvement in conditions in South Carolina, which had been considerably below standard for some time. The boll weevil menace is not so great this year, he says, and the farmers are looking for a better cotton crop as a consequence. Conditions are also improved this year in eastern North Carolina, where cotton is the staple crop. In western North Carolina, where there is a greater diversity of industry, everybody is apparently prosperous and looking ahead to big Fall business in practically every line. Virginia is likewise on a stable basis, with bright prospects ahead. Tobacco, the staple crop of this territory, gives promise of bringing big prices.

Live "Victor" Dog in Window Attracts

Medium-priced consoles are the leaders throughout the territory, Mr. Gentry ascertained, in calling on various dealers. In Greensboro he came upon one dealer who has devised a novel advertising scheme to exploit the Victor. The advertisement consists of the display of a live fox terrier in a front window that is a facsimile of the famous Victor trade-mark. The dealer is the Greensboro Music Co.

In Charlotte Mr. Gentry and several other Victor salesmen chanced to come together and were thus enabled to exchange views on business, all being pleased with prospects.

In the group besides Mr. Gentry were Dave Pruitt, Victor factory representative; Clem Salter, Parker Gardner, Charlotte, and C. H. Ray, Elliott Talking Machine Co., Atlanta.

New Victor Dealer Appointed

The Corley Co. announces the appointment of Winstead's, of Conway, S. C., as a new Victor dealer. This firm reports that colored artist records are going best in Virginia and the Carolinas.

Walter D. Moses Co., Victor dealer, reports business having been from 10 to 20 per cent better in August than in the corresponding month of last year. This is taken as an indication that September and the other Autumn months are going to be better than the same period in 1922.

Brisk Demand for the Edison

The C. B. Haynes Co., Edison jobber, found August a better month than July and the company is anticipating greatly improved business during the Fall. Substantial sales have already been made and in addition there has been an extra number of inquiries. Encouraging reports were brought in recently by the following dealers visiting the Richmond house: Bernard Allsbrook, Dixie Furniture Co., Scotland Neck, N. C.; George I. Allen, Worley Furniture Co., Wilson, N. C.; N. Strauss, Bennettsville, S. C.; C. D. Hubert, Hubert Jewelry Co., Victoria, Va.

Edisons as Charity Contest Prizes

The C. B. Haynes Co. announces that the Methodist Orphanage of Richmond won first prize in the charity contest, in which a radio outfit and eleven Edison machines were offered as prizes, that institution polling a total of 5,392,969 votes. As it was already equipped with a talking machine, the orphanage selected the radio set. Sheltering Arms Hospital came second with 4,149,759 votes and St. Joseph's Orphanage third with 3,197,184 votes. The Baptist Home for Aged Women captured fourth place with 2,220,452. Twenty-nine Richmond business houses participated in the contest. Under its terms a vote was allowed for each penny's worth of purchase. Most of the participating houses expressed themselves as well pleased with results achieved.

The Haynes Co. thinks so well of it as a sales promotion idea that it has circularized its dealers suggesting that they endeavor to have similar contests staged in their communities.

A. L. M. Wiggins, vice-president of the Trust Co. of South Carolina, president of the Southern Retail Merchants' Association and general manager of J. L. Coker & Co., Inc., Edison dealer in Hartsville, S. C., was a recent visitor to Richmond on the occasion of the Southern retail merchants' annual conference, over which he presided. Mr. Wiggins called on the C. B. Haynes Co., Edison distributor, and placed a substantial order for Edisons.

J. D. Spiers, Edison dealer in Smithfield, N. C., and Mrs. Spiers were visitors to the C. B. Haynes Co. Mr. Spiers has been enjoying an increasing business all Summer and is preparing to do an exceptionally large Edison business this Fall. Other visitors included H. B. Lasting, in charge of the Edison department of S. Lasting & Bro., Portsmouth, Va.

F. W. Danner, Edison field representative for the C. B. Haynes Co., has returned from a successful trip through North Carolina. Mr. Danner has turned in an exceptionally large volume of business from the dealers he called on and reports that dealers are preparing for a large Fall business.

Goldberg Bros. Busy in New Home

Goldberg Bros., Pathé jobbers and dealers, who recently moved from 1211 East Main street, this city, to more spacious quarters at 5 North Thirteenth street, report a brisk business in Pathé concert models designed for use in dance halls and other public places. One of these models was recently sold to the Lakeside Country Club. Another country club of this city has asked that one be placed on display.

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

THE SALESMAN AND THE MACHINE

In the construction of a talking machine there are any number of important little facts that a salesman should make himself thoroughly conversant with, so that, when a customer wants to know this or that about the machine being demonstrated, he will be able to answer accurately and promptly.

The placing on the market of so many different machines in the last few years has put the salesman in a different position than he held formerly, when he sold his goods by name only, the customer never asking, or, for that matter, caring, what was on the inside of the machine.

To-day one must show what merit the motor has in comparison to another, what the good points of the sound box and tone arm are and how the cabinet is made and finished to be equal to, or better than, another make.

The salesman should first get all the information he can from the manufacturers of his particular machine, particularly in relation to the motor construction, and then he should make his own comparisons with the machines of the same type and price in other makes.

He should acquaint himself with the different parts of the motor, the width and length of the main springs and the number of records it will play with one winding.

He should be able to point out to the customer the proper places to oil and grease the motor and should make it very plain that it is to their benefit to oil the motor every few weeks to prevent wear of parts and to insure perfect running.

He should be able to point out the construction of the governor and explain the action of the governor regulator, how by moving the speed screw it in turn moves the governor lever and friction pad, allowing the governor to go faster or slower, which raises or lowers the pitch of the voice or music, as the case may be.

The sound box is most important and the customer is always very much interested in how the voice is obtained from it. Get acquainted with its construction. Is the diaphragm made of mica, paper, aluminum or some special composition? Are the insulating gaskets of solid rubber or tubing? Has the tone arm a universal joint enabling you to play any make of record, and can you regulate the volume of sound in any other way than by changing to a softer-toned needle?

Are the panels of the cabinet made of three or five-ply material, which parts are of solid wood and which veneer; has the cabinet been given two coats of varnish or three; how many records can be placed in the record compartment? These are some of the numerous questions which the average customer asks and for which the salesman should have ready, intelligent answers.

TALKING MACHINE MEN'S OUTING

Sports and Sail on Long Island Sound Contribute to Enjoyment of Gotham Dealers and Friends at Annual Outing of Association

With perfect weather as an added attraction, the members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., thoroughly enjoyed their annual outing held on Tuesday of this week. This year's event took place at Karatsony's Hotel, Glen Cove, L. I., where last year's outing was held, but the entertainment committee provided a program that made the 1923 outing the best ever.

Instead of using buses, the dealers and their friends assembled at Pier A on the North River, where the steamer "Seagate" was waiting for their special accommodation. A delightful two and one-half hour sail up the sound provided the necessary incentive for an enjoyable "shore breakfast," subsequent to which various athletic games were scheduled. Sol Lazarus, chairman of the entertainment committee, was in charge of the field sports. An interesting baseball game between teams captained by "Jim" Donnelly and "Jim" Davin resulted in a victory for the former by the score of 6 to 5. In the swimming and diving events O. P. Graffen proved the champion, winning several prizes after keen contests. In the three-legged race H. E. Speare and "Chick" Mariniss, representing the Musical Instrument Sales Co., were the winners. Mrs. Norman won the ladies' race on the cinder track and also the ladies' swimming race. The prize fox-trot was captured by "Jim" Davin, with Mrs. Sidney Coleman as his partner. Otto Goldsmith, dancing with Sol Lazarus' daughter, Ethel, was the winner in the lucky number waltz contest. The fat man's race was won by one of the members of Selvin's Orchestra, which furnished music during the outing.

After the games were finished the members of the party did ample justice to an excellent shore dinner, and the ride home by moonlight was a fitting climax to a day of enjoyment.

PLANS "PHONO-VAUDETTE" CAMPAIGN

Commercial Art Shop, Covington, Ky., Arranging for Drive on Clever Phono-entertainment Device—Excellent Window Attraction

The Commercial Art Shop, Covington, Ky., is making plans for an energetic sales campaign in behalf of the "Phono-Vaudettes." This unique product consists of a miniature stage which is just large enough to stand on the phonograph in front of the table. It is artistically designed and brightly colored, furnishing a realistic setting for the performers, who dance to the record as it plays.

The operation of the Phono-Vaudette is very simple, but unusual effects are received by reason of the fact that the performers are constantly going through new and original evolutions while keeping step to the music. The dancing characters presented in Phono-Vaudettes include "Shuffling Sambo," "Scotch Lassie," "Hawaiian Dancer" and "Tramp Comedian." The Commercial Art Shop has suggested to the dealers that Phono-Vaudettes can be used to advantage as a window attraction to draw the attention of passers-by, and this is especially true during the Fall and holiday season. The company is planning to co-operate with its dealers along practical lines in developing a demand for this novelty.

OUTING GREETINGS FROM THE AIR

At the recent outing of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held at Glen Cove, L. I., one of the interesting features was the appearance in the skies of the "Brunswick Aeroplane," from which were scattered greetings to the outing visitors from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. The aeroplane "Brunswick" is maintained in Jamaica, L. I., by Archie Smith, of Smith's Brunswick Shop, and under an arrangement with H. A. Beach, Eastern sales manager of the Brunswick Co., it appears frequently over the Polo Grounds and at other outdoor sporting events in Greater New York.

TAX PROBLEMS ARE AGAIN TO THE FORE IN WASHINGTON

Coming Session of Congress Likely to Take Up the Entire Tax Situation Once More—President Said to Favor Such Action—Strong Move Likely to Enact a General Sales Tax

WASHINGTON, D. C., September 8.—With the return from Europe of Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, who will be chairman of the Senate Finance Committee in the next session of Congress, plans are taking shape for the reopening in December of the tax question. During the coming session of Congress there is no doubt but that energetic efforts will be made to secure the repeal of all remaining war taxes, with which will be coupled, in one form or another, a sales tax which is expected to furnish the revenue which would be lost by the elimination of the other levies.

It is understood that President Coolidge is in favor of the opening up of the tax question in a general way, so as to bring about a reduction in income taxes, particularly in the lower brackets and the surtaxes on large incomes. At the same time the Administration is on record as favoring a constitutional amendment under which bonds now exempt from tax would be reached. It is estimated that more than $10,000,000,000 have been invested in such bonds, and that money returns no revenue to the Government. On the other hand, Senator Smoot is opposed to the opening of the question because of the fear that the radicals will take advantage of the opportunity to slip in legislation providing for a return of the excess profits tax and other features that the leaders are side-stepping.

The House of Representatives, generally speaking, favors tax reduction and tax revision. A big fight will be waged, if the opportunity is afforded, for a return of the excess profits tax. The sales tax will be seriously opposed, and it is doubtful if it can be put through, especially in view of the many changes in the House membership just brought about at the last elections. The farmers are antagonistic to this proposal, and the farming interests will wield far-reaching influence in the next Congress. Senator Smoot, however, will again push his sales tax plan, and expresses optimism as to the result, and the United States Chamber of Commerce, representing about half of the business men of the country, has gone on record as being in favor of such a tax and has carried its recommendation to President Coolidge. The Chamber advocates the repeal of all remaining war excise taxes, with any revenue which might be needed as a result of their elimination to be collected by the tax on sales, making all share the burden equally.

Tax legislation, under the Constitution, must originate in the House. President Coolidge will talk with House leaders on the matter of revenues, but Senator Smoot and his Senatorial colleagues will have a great deal of influence with the Administration in mapping out the kind of legislation to be sought. While this legislation must originate in the House, it is generally in the Senate that the final pruning is given to bills, and it is in the upper branch of Congress that undesirable legislation is most often defeated. The Finance Committee is the most powerful body in that respect, and with a decided Republican majority there would be no doubt as to the fate of legislation introduced by opponents of the Administration. However, the Republican majority in the Senate, which was twenty-one at the last session, has been cut to six, and of the ten Republican members of the old Finance Committee only five will be in Congress this year. It is probable, in view of the reduced Republican majority, that there will be a demand for increased Democratic representation on this committee, and also for more complete representation of the so-called farm bloc.

Missive Addressed to "Best Music House" Reaches Proper Destination

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., September 7.—That the music house of S. Ernest Philpitt & Son in this city stands pretty high in the estimation of the postal officials was indicated recently when a letter addressed simply "Best Jacksonville Music Store, Jacksonville, Fla.," was delivered without delay to the Philpitt offices. As a matter of fact, the post office was right, for the letter was intended for that particular music house, as were several previous letters bearing similar general addresses.

Theodore H. Bower, manager of the local Philpitt store, with Mrs. Bower, will leave this week for a vacation trip through the North, stopping at Baltimore, New York and various points in New England.

Concert Plans of Famous Record Artists

Opportunities for Dealers to Tie Up This Fall With Leading Singers and Instrumentalists Who Record for Leading Companies

Judging from the announcements that have already been made regarding the plans of prominent musical artists for the coming season and the additional tours that are now being arranged, the season will undoubtedly be one of the most interesting in a number of years. Not only are those artists who make annual tours of the country arranging to do so again this season, but there are several who have never been heard before in America or who have not been here for a number of years.

From the angle of the talking machine dealer who realizes the permanent good that comes from featuring high-class records by well-known artists, the elaborate plans for the new season are prolific with opportunities for tying up with the various artists while appearing in this or that city. The itineraries are always published well in advance and the dealer can get them either from the record company whose product he represents or direct from the artist's manager.

The local appearance of a great record artist can be capitalized most successfully by the retailer who thinks clearly and can arrange his plans well in advance. It is conceded that no amount of printed literature regarding the artist and no amount of selling talk can be made quite so effective as personal contact with the artist himself through the medium of the local concert stage. Numerous instances are on record where individuals with no particular musical training or enthusiasm have attended recitals of big artists largely from curiosity or because it was the thing to do and then became consistent and persistent buyers of records of these artists. In such cases the contact developed through the local recitals makes the talking machine owner feel as though he was buying the recordings of a friend, or at least of some person who represented something tangible in the flesh rather than simply a name.
