TO THE ELECT OF LOVE,—OR SIDE-BY-SIDE
IN RAPTEST ECSTASY, OR SUNDERED WIDE
BY SEAS THAT BEAR NO MESSAGE TO OR FRO
BETWEEN THE LOVED AND LOST OF LONG AGO

SO were I but a minstrel, deft
At weaving, with the trembling strings
Of my glad harp, the warp and weft
Of rondels such as rapture sings,—
I'd loop my lyre across my breast,
Nor stay me till my knee found rest
In midnight banks of bud and flower
Beneath my lady's lattice-bower.

And there, drenched with the teary dew,
I'd woo her with such wondrous art
As well might stanch the songs that ooze
Out of the mockbird's breaking heart;
So light, so tender, and so sweet
Should be the words I would repeat,
Her casement, on my gradual sight,
Would blossom as a lily might.

RILEY LOVE-LYRICS

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

AS ONE who cons at evening o'er an album all alone,
And muses on the faces of the friends that he has known,
So I turn the leaves of fancy till, in shadowy design,
I find the smiling features of an old sweetheart of mine.

The lamplight seems to glimmer with a flicker of surprise,
As I turn it low to rest me of the dazzle in my eyes,
And light my pipe in silence, save a sigh that seems to yoke

Its fate with my tobacco and to vanish with the smoke.

'Tis a fragrant retrospection—for the loving thoughts that start

Into being are like perfume from the blossom of the heart ;

And to dream the old dreams over is a luxury divine—
When my truant fancy wanders with that old sweetheart of mine.

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

Though I hear, beneath my study, like a fluttering of wings,

The voices of my children, and the mother as she sings,
I feel no twinge of conscience to deny me any theme
When Care has cast her anchor in the harbor of a dream.

In fact, to speak in earnest, I believe it adds a charm
To spice the good a trifle with a little dust of harm—
For I find an extra flavor in Memory's mellow wine
That makes me drink the deeper to that old sweetheart
of mine.

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

A face of lily-beauty, with a form of airy grace,
Floats out of my tobacco as the genii from the vase ;
And I thrill beneath the glances of a pair of azure eyes
As glowing as the summer and as tender as the skies.

I can see the pink sunbonnet and the little checkered dress
She wore when first I kissed her and she answered the caress

With the written declaration that, "as surely as the vine Grew round the stump," she loved me—that old sweetheart of mine.

And again I feel the pressure of her slender little hand,
As we used to talk together of the future we had planned—

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

When I should be a poet, and with nothing else to do
But write the tender verses that she set the music to :

When we should live together in a cozy little cot
Hid in a nest of roses, with a fairy garden-spot,
Where the vines were ever fruited, and the weather ever fine,
And the birds were ever singing for that old sweetheart
 of mine :

When I should be her lover forever and a day,
And she my faithful sweetheart till the golden hair was gray ;
And we should be so happy that when either's lips were dumb
They would not smile in Heaven till the other's kiss had come.

* * * * *

AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

But, as! my dream is broken by a step upon the stair,
And the door is softly opened, and—my wife is standing there;

Yet with eagerness and rapture all my visions I resign
To greet the living presence of that old sweetheart of mine.

A' OLD PLAYED-OUT SONG

I T'S the curiousest thing in creation,
Whenever I hear that old song
"Do They Miss Me at Home," I'm so bothered,
My life seems as short as it's long!—
Fer ev'rything 'pears like adzackly
It 'peared in the years past and gone,—
When I started out sparkin', at twenty,
And had my first neckercher on!

Though I'm wrinkelder, older and grayer
Right now than my parents was then,
You strike up that song "Do They Miss Me,"
And I'm jest a youngster again!—
I'm a-standin' back thare in the furries
A-wishin' fer evening to come,
And a-whisperin' over and over
Them words "Do They Miss Me at Home?"

You see, Marthy Ellen she sung it
The first time I heerd it; and so,

A' OLD PLAYED-OUT SONG

As she was my very first sweetheart,
It reminds me of her, don't you know;—
How her face used to look, in the twilight,
As I tuck her to Spellin'; and she Kep' a-hummin' that song tel I ast her,
Pine-blank, ef she ever missed me!

I can shet my eyes now, as you sing it,
And hear her low answerin' words;
And then the glad chirp of the crickets,
As clear as the twitter of birds;
And the dust in the road is like velvet,
And the ragweed and fennel and grass
Is as sweet as the scent of the lilies
Of Eden of old, as we pass.

"Do They Miss Me at Home?" Sing it lower—
And softer—and sweet as the breeze
That powdered our path with the snowy
White bloom of the old locus'-trees!
Let the whipperwills he'p you to sing it,
And the echoes 'way over the hill,
Tel the moon boolges out, in a chorus
Of stars, and our voices is still.

A' OLD PLAYED-OUT SONG

But oh! "They's a chord in the music
That's missed when her voice is away!"
Though I listen from midnight tel morning,
And dawn tel the dusk of the day!
And I grope through the dark, lookin' up'ards
And on through the heavenly dome,
With my longin' soul singin' and sobbin'
The words "Do They Miss Me at Home?"

A VERY YOUTHFUL AFFAIR

I'M bin a-visitun 'bout a week
To my little Cousin's at Nameless Creek,
An' I'm got the hives an' a new straw hat,
An' I'm come back home where my beau lives at.

AN OUT-WORN SAPPHO

HOW tired I am! I sink down all alone
Here by the wayside of the Present. Lo,
Even as a child I hide my face and moan—
A little girl that may no farther go;
The path above me only seems to grow
More rugged, climbing still, and ever briered
With keener thorns of pain than these below;
And O the bleeding feet that falter so
And are so very tired!

Why, I have journeyed from the far-off Lands
Of Babyhood—where baby-lilies blew
Their trumpets in mine ears, and filled my hands
With treasures of perfume and honey-dew,
And where the orchard shadows ever drew
Their cool arms round me when my cheeks were fired
With too much joy, and lulled mine eyelids to,
And only let the starshine trickle through
In sprays, when I was tired!

Yet I remember, when the butterfly
 Went flickering about me like a flame
 That quenched itself in roses suddenly,
 How oft I wished that I might blaze the same,
 And in some rose-wreath nestle with my name,
 While all the world looked on it and admired.—
 Poor moth!—Along my wavering flight toward fame
 The winds drive backward, and my wings are lame
 And broken, bruised and tired!

I hardly know the path from those old times;
 I know at first it was a smoother one
 Than this that hurries past me now, and climbs
 So high, its far cliffs even hide the sun
 And shroud in gloom my journey scarce begun.
 I could not do quite all the world required—
 I could not do quite all I should have done,
 And in my eagerness I have outrun
 My strength—and I am tired. . . .

Just tired! But when of old I had the stay
 Of mother-hands, O very sweet indeed
 It was to dream that all the weary way
 I should but follow where I now must lead—

For long ago they left me in my need,
And, groping on alone, I tripped and mired
Among rank grasses where the serpents breed
In knotted coils about the feet of speed.—
There first it was I tired.

And yet I staggered on, and bore my load
Right gallantly: The sun, in summer-time,
In lazy belts came slipping down the road
To woo me on, with many a glimmering rhyme
Rained from the golden rim of some fair clime,
That, hovering beyond the clouds, inspired
My failing heart with fancies so sublime
I half forgot my path of dust and grime,
Though I was growing tired.

And there were many voices cheering me:
I listened to sweet praises where the wind
Went laughing o'er my shoulders gleefully
And scattering my love-songs far behind;—
Until, at last, I thought the world so kind—
So rich in all my yearning soul desired—
So generous—so loyally inclined,
I grew to love and trust it. . . . I was blind—
Yea, blind as I was tired!

And yet one hand held me in creature-touch :

And O, how fair it was, how true and strong,
How it did hold my heart up like a crutch,
Till, in my dreams, I joyed to walk along
The toilsome way, contented with a song—

'Twas all of earthly things I had acquired,
And 'twas enough, I feigned, or right or wrong,
Since, binding me to man—a mortal thong—

It stayed me, growing tired. . . .

Yea, I had e'en resigned me to the strait

Of earthly rulership—had bowed my head
Acceptant of the master-mind—the great

One lover—lord of all,—the perfected

Kiss-comrade of my soul;—had stammering said

My prayers to him;—all—all that he desired
I rendered sacredly as we were wed.—

Nay—nay!—'twas but a myth I worshippéd.—

And—God of love!—how tired!

For, O my friends, to lose the latest grasp—

To feel the last hope slipping from its hold—
To feel the one fond hand within your clasp

Fall slack, and loosen with a touch so cold

AN OUT-WORN SAPPHO

Its pressure may not warm you as of old

Before the light of love had thus expired—
To know your tears are worthless, though they rolled
Their torrents out in molten drops of gold.—

God's pity! I am tired!

And I must rest.—Yet do not say “She died,”
In speaking of me, sleeping here alone.

I kiss the grassy grave I sink beside,
And close mine eyes in slumber all mine own:
Hereafter I shall neither sob nor moan

Nor murmur one complaint;—all I desired,
And failed in life to find, will now be known—
So let me dream. Good night! And on the stone
Say simply: She was tired.

THE PASSING OF A HEART

O TOUCH me with your hands—
For pity's sake!

My brow throbs ever on with such an ache
As only your cool touch may take away;
And so, I pray

You, touch me with your hands!

Touch—touch me with your hands.—

Smooth back the hair
You once caressed, and kissed, and called so fair
That I did dream its gold would wear away,
And lo, to-day—

O touch me with your hands!

THE PASSING OF A HEART

Just touch me with your hands,

And let them press

My weary eyelids with the old caress,

And lull me till I sleep. Then go your way,

That Death may say :

He touched her with his hands.

“DREAM”

BECAUSE her eyes were far too deep
And holy for a laugh to leap
Across the brink where sorrow tried
To drown within the amber tide;
Because the looks, whose ripples kissed
The trembling lids through tender mist,
Were dazzled with a radiant gleam—
Because of this I called her “Dream.”

Because the roses growing wild
About her features when she smiled
Were ever dewed with tears that fell
With tenderness ineffable;
Because her lips might spill a kiss
That, dripping in a world like this,
Would tincture death's myrrh-bitter stream
To sweetness—so I called her “Dream.”

Because I could not understand
The magic touches of a hand

“DREAM”

That seemed, beneath her strange control,
To smooth the plumage of the soul
And calm it, till, with folded wings,
It half forgot its flutterings,
And, nestled in her palm, did seem
To trill a song that called her “Dream.”

Because I saw her, in a sleep
As dark and desolate and deep
And fleeting as the taunting night
That flings a vision of delight
To some lorn martyr as he lies
In slumber ere the day he dies—
Because she vanished like a gleam
Of glory, do I call her “Dream.”

I

HE called her in from me and shut the door.
And she so loved the sunshine and the sky!—
She loved them even better yet than I
That ne'er knew dearth of them—my mother dead,
Nature had nursed me in her lap instead:
And I had grown a dark and eerie child
That rarely smiled,
Save when, shut all alone in grasses high,
Looking straight up in God's great lonesome sky
And coaxing Mother to smile back on me.
'Twas lying thus, this fair girl suddenly
Came to me, nestled in the fields beside
A pleasant-seeming home, with doorway wide—
The sunshine beating in upon the floor

Like golden rain.—

O sweet, sweet face above me, turn again
 And leave me! I had cried, but that an ache
 Within my throat so gripped it I could make
 No sound but a thick sobbing. Cowering so,
 I felt her light hand laid
 Upon my hair—a touch that ne'er before
 Had tamed me thus, all soothed and unafraid—
 It seemed the touch the children used to know
 When Christ was here, so dear it was—so dear,—
 At once I loved her as the leaves love dew
 In midmost summer when the days are new.
 Barely an hour I knew her, yet a curl
 Of silken sunshine did she clip for me
 Out of the bright May-morning of her hair,
 And bound and gave it to me laughingly,
 And caught my hands and called me "Little girl,"
 Tiptoeing, as she spoke, to kiss me there!
 And I stood dazed and dumb for very stress
 Of my great happiness.
 She plucked me by the gown, nor saw how mean
 The raiment—drew me with her everywhere:
 Smothered her face in tufts of grasses green:
 Put up her dainty hands and peeped between
 Her fingers at the blossoms—crooned and talked
 To them in strange, glad whispers, as we walked,—
 Said this one was her angel mother—this,
 Her baby-sister—come back, for a kiss.

Clean from the Good-World!—smiled and kissed them, then

Closed her soft eyes and kissed them o'er again.

And so did she beguile me—so we played,—

She was the dazzling Shine—I, the dark Shade—

And we did mingle like to these, and thus,

Together, made

The perfect summer, pure and glorious.

So blent we, till a harsh voice broke upon

Our happiness.—She, startled as a fawn,

Cried, "Oh, 'tis Father!"—all the blossoms gone

From out her cheeks as those from out her grasp.—

Harsher the voice came:—She could only gasp

Affrightedly, "Good-bye!—good-bye! good-bye!"

And lo, I stood alone, with that harsh cry

Ringing a new and unknown sense of shame

Through soul and frame,

And, with wet eyes, repeating o'er and o'er,—

"He called her in from me and shut the door!"

II

He called her in from me and shut the door!

And I went wandering alone again—

So lonely—O so very lonely then,

I thought no little sallow star, alone
 In all a world of twilight, e'er had known
 Such utter loneliness. But that I wore
 Above my heart that gleaming tress of hair
 To lighten up the night of my despair,
 I think I might have groped into my grave
 Nor cared to wave
 The ferns above it with a breath of prayer.
 And how I hungered for the sweet, sweet face
 That bent above me in my hiding-place
 That day amid the grasses there beside
 Her pleasant home!—"Her pleasant home!" I sighed,
 Remembering;—then shut my teeth and feigned
 The harsh voice calling me,—then clinched my nails
 So deeply in my palms, the sharp wounds pained,
 And tossed my face toward heaven, as one who pales
 In splendid martyrdom, with soul serene,
 As near to God as high the guillotine.
 And I had envied her? Not that—O no!
 But I had longed for some sweet haven so!—
 Wherein the tempest-beaten heart might ride
 Sometimes at peaceful anchor, and abide
 Where those that loved me touched me with their hands,
 And looked upon me with glad eyes, and slipped

Smooth fingers o'er my brow, and lulled the strands
 Of my wild tresses, as they backward tipped
 My yearning face and kissed it satisfied.
 Then bitterly I murmured as before,—
 "He called her in from me and shut the door!"

III

He called her in from me and shut the door!
 After long struggling with my pride and pain—
 A weary while it seemed, in which the more
 I held myself from her, the greater fain
 Was I to look upon her face again;—
 At last—at last—half conscious where my feet
 Were faring, I stood waist-deep in the sweet
 Green grasses there where she
 First came to me.—
 The very blossoms she had plucked that day,
 And, at her father's voice, had cast away,
 Around me lay,
 Still bright and blooming in these eyes of mine;
 And as I gathered each one eagerly,
 I pressed it to my lips and drank the wine
 Her kisses left there for the honey-bee.
 Then, after I had laid them with the tress

HE CALLED HER IN

Of her bright hair with lingering tenderness,
I, turning, crept on to the hedge that bound
Her pleasant-seeming home—but all around
Was never sign of her!—The windows all
Were blinded: and I heard no rippling fall
Of her glad laugh, nor any harsh voice call;—
But clutching to the tangled grasses, caught
A sound as though a strong man bowed his head
And sobbed alone—unloved—uncomforted!—
And then straightway before
My tearless eyes, all vividly, was wrought
A vision that is with me evermore:—
A little girl that lies asleep, nor hears
Nor heeds not any voice nor fall of tears.—
And I sit singing o'er and o'er and o'er,— “God called her in from him and shut the door!”

HER BEAUTIFUL EYES

O HER beautiful eyes! they are blue as the dew
On the violet's bloom when the morning is new,
And the light of their love is the gleam of the sun
O'er the meadows of Spring where the quick shadows run

As the morn shifts the mists and the clouds from the skies—

So I stand in the dawn of her beautiful eyes.

And her beautiful eyes are as mid-day to me,
When the lily-bell bends with the weight of the bee,
And the throat of the thrush is a-pulse in the heat,
And the senses are drugged with the subtle and sweet
And delirious breaths of the air's lullabies—
So I swoon in the noon of her beautiful eyes.

O her beautiful eyes! they have smitten mine own
As a glory glanced down from the glare of the Throne;
And I reel, and I falter and fall, as afar
Fell the shepherds that looked on the mystical Star.
And yet dazed in the tidings that bade them arise—
So I groped through the night of her beautiful eyes.

HER FACE AND BROW

AH, help me! but her face and brow
Are lovelier than lilies are
Beneath the light of moon and star
That smile as they are smiling now—
White lilies in a pallid swoon
Of sweetest white beneath the moon—
White lilies, in a flood of bright
Pure lucidness of liquid light
Cascading down some plenilune,
When all the azure overhead
Blooms like a dazzling daisy-bed.—
So luminous her face and brow,
The luster of their glory, shed
In memory, even, blinds me now.

LET US FORGET

LET us forget. What matters it that we Once reigned o'er happy realms of long-ago,
And talked of love, and let our voices low,
And ruled for some brief sessions royally?
And ruled for some brief sessions royally?
What if we sung, or laughed, or wept maybe?
It has availed not anything, and so
Let it go by that we may better know
How poor a thing is lost to you and me.
But yesterday I kissed your lips, and yet
Did thrill you not enough to shake the dew
From your drenched lids—and missed, with no regret,
Your kiss shot back, with sharp breaths failing you:
And so, to-day, while our worn eyes are wet
With all this waste of tears, let us forget!

WHEN SHE COMES HOME

WHEN she comes home again! A thousand ways
I fashion, to myself, the tenderness
Of my glad welcome: I shall tremble—yes;
And touch her, as when first in the old days
I touched her girlish hand, nor dared upraise
Mine eyes, such was my faint heart's sweet distress.
Then silence: And the perfume of her dress:
The room will sway a little, and a haze
Cloy eyesight—soulsight, even—for a space:
And tears—yes; and the ache here in the throat,
To know that I so ill deserve the place
Her arms make for me; and the sobbing note
I stay with kisses, ere the tearful face
Again is hidden in the old embrace.

LEONAINIE

L EONAINIE—Angels named her ;
And they took the light
Of the laughing stars and framed her
In a smile of white ;

LEONAINIE

And they made her hair of gloomy
Midnight, and her eyes of bloomy
Moonshine, and they brought her to me
In the solemn night.—

In a solemn night of summer,
When my heart of gloom
Blossomed up to greet the comer
Like a rose in bloom;
All forebodings that distressed me
I forgot as Joy caressed me—
(Lying Joy! that caught and pressed me
In the arms of doom!)

Only spake the little lisper
In the Angel-tongue:
Yet I, listening, heard her whisper—
“Songs are only sung
Here below that they may grieve you—
Tales but told you to deceive you,—
So must Leonainie leave you
While her love is young.”

LEONAINIE

Then God smiled and it was morning.

Matchless and supreme

Heaven's glory seemed adorning

Earth with its esteem:

Every heart but mine seemed gifted

With the voice of prayer, and lifted

Where my Leonainie drifted

From me like a dream.

HER WAITING FACE

In some strange place
Of long-lost lands he finds her waiting face—
Comes marveling upon it, unaware,
Set moonwise in the midnight of her hair.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW

I

AS one in sorrow looks upon
The dead face of a loyal friend,
By the dim light of New Year's dawn
I saw the Old Year end.

Upon the pallid features lay
The dear old smile—so warm and bright
Ere thus its cheer had died away
In ashes of delight.

The hands that I had learned to love
With strength of passion half divine,
Were folded now, all heedless of
The emptiness of mine.

The eyes that once had shed their bright
Sweet looks like sunshine, now were dull,
And ever hid from the light
That made them beautiful.

II

The chimes of bells were in the air,
And sounds of mirth in hall and street,
With pealing laughter everywhere
And throb of dancing feet :

The mirth and the convivial din
Of revelers in wanton glee,
With tunes of harp and violin
In tangled harmony.

But with a sense of nameless dread,
I turned me, from the merry face
Of this newcomer, to my dead ;
And, kneeling there a space,

I sobbed aloud, all tearfully :—
By this dear face so fixed and cold,
O Lord, let not this New Year be
As happy as the old !

THEIR SWEET SORROW

THEY meet to say farewell: Their way
Of saying this is hard to say.—
He holds her hand an instant, wholly Distressed—and she unclasps it slowly.

He bends his gaze evasively
Over the printed page that she Recur to, with a new-moon shoulder
Glimpsed from the lace-mists that enfold her.

The clock, beneath its crystal cup,
Discreetly clicks—“Quick! Act! Speak up!”
A tension circles both her slender
Wrists—and her raised eyes flash in splendor.

Even as he feels his dazzled own.—
Then, blindingly, round either thrown,
They feel a stress of arms that ever
Strain tremblingly—and “Never! Never!”

Is whispered brokenly, with half
A sob, like a belated laugh,—
While cloyingly their blurred kiss closes,
Sweet as the dew’s lip to the rose’s.

JUDITH

O HER eyes are amber-fine—
Dark and deep as wells of wine,
While her smile is like the noon
Splendor of a day of June.
If she sorrow—lo! her face
It is like a flowery space

In bright meadows, overlaid
With light clouds and lulled with shade.
If she laugh—it is the trill
Of the wayward whippoorwill
Over upland pastures, heard
Echoed by the mocking-bird
In dim thickets dense with bloom
And blurred cloyings of perfume.
If she sigh—a zephyr swells
Over odorous asphodels
And wan lilies in lush plots
Of moon-drown'd forget-me-nots.
Then, the soft touch of her hand—
Takes all breath to understand
What to liken it thereto!—
Never roseleaf rinsed with dew
Might slip soother-suave than slips
Her slow palm, the while her lips
Swoon through mine, with kiss on kiss
Sweet as heated honey is.

HE AND I

JUST drifting on together—
He and I—
As through the balmy weather
Of July
Drift two thistle-tufts imbedded
Each in each—by zephyrs wedded—
Touring upward, giddy-headed,
For the sky.

And, veering up and onward,
Do we seem Forever drifting downward
In a dream,
Where we meet song-birds that know us,
And the winds their kisses blow us,
While the years flow far below us
Like a stream.

And we are happy—very—
He and I—

Aye, even glad and merry
 Though on high
 The heavens are sometimes shrouded
 By the midnight storm, and clouded
 Till the pallid moon is crowded
 From the sky.

My spirit ne'er expresses
 Any choice
 But to clothe him with caresses
 And rejoice;
 And as he laughs, it is in Such a tone the moonbeams glisten
 And the stars come out to listen
 To his voice.

And so, whate'er the weather,
 He and I,—
 With our lives linked thus together,
 Float and fly
 As two thistle-tufts imbedded
 Each in each—by zephyrs wedded—
 Touring upward, giddy-headed,
 For the sky.

THE LOST PATH

ALONE they walked—their fingers knit together,
And swaying listlessly as might a swing
Wherein Dan Cupid dangled in the weather
Of some sun-flooded afternoon of Spring.

Within the clover-fields the tickled cricket
 Laughed lightly as they loitered down the lane,
And from the covert of the hazel-thicket
 The squirrel peeped and laughed at them again.

The bumble-bee that tipped the lily-vases
 Along the road-side in the shadows dim,
Went following the blossoms of their faces
 As though their sweets must needs be shared with him.

Between the pasture bars the wondering cattle
 Stared wistfully, and from their mellow bells
Shook out a welcoming whose dreamy rattle
 Fell swooningly away in faint farewells.

And though at last the gloom of night fell o'er them
 And folded all the landscape from their eyes,
They only know the dusky path before them
 Was leading safely on to Paradise.

MY BRIDE THAT IS TO BE

O SOUL of mine, look out and see
My bride, my bride that is to be!
Reach out with mad, impatient hands,
And draw aside futurity
As one might draw a veil aside—
And so unveil her where she stands
Madonna-like and glorified—
The queen of undiscovered lands
Of love, to where she beckons me—
My bride—my bride that is to be.

The shadow of a willow-tree
That wavers on a garden-wall
In summertime may never fall
In attitude as gracefully
As my fair bride that is to be :—
Nor ever Autumn's leaves of brown
As lightly flutter to the lawn
As fall her fairy-feet upon
The path of love she loiters down.—
O'er drops of dew she walks, and yet
Not one may stain her sandal wet—

Aye, she might dance upon the way
 Nor crush a single drop to spray,
 So airy-like she seems to me,—
 My bride, my bride that is to be.

I know not if her eyes are light
 As summer skies or dark as night,—
 I only know that they are dim
 With mystery: In vain I peer
 To make their hidden meaning clear,
 While o'er their surface, like a tear
 That ripples to the silken brim,
 A look of longing seems to swim
 All worn and wearylike to me;
 And then, as suddenly, my sight
 Is blinded with a smile so bright,
 Through folded lids I still may see
 My bride, my bride that is to be.

Her face is like a night of June
 Upon whose brow the crescent-moon
 Hangs pendant in a diadem
 Of stars, with envy lighting them.—
 And, like a wild cascade, her hair
 Floods neck and shoulder, arm and wrist,
 Till only through a gleaming mist
 I seem to see a siren there,
 With lips of love and melody

MY BRIDE THAT IS TO BE

And open arms and heaving breast
Wherein I fling myself to rest,
The while my heart cries hopelessly
For my fair bride that is to be . . .

Nay, foolish heart and blinded eyes!
My bride hath need of no disguise.—
But, rather, let her come to me
In such a form as bent above
My pillow when in infancy
I knew not anything but love.—
O let her come from out the lands
Of Womanhood—not fairy isles,—
And let her come with Woman's hands
And Woman's eyes of tears and smiles,—
With Woman's hopefulnes and grace
Of patience lighting up her face:
And let her diadem be wrought
Of kindly deed and prayerful thought,
That ever over all distress
May beam the light of cheerfulness.—
And let her feet be brave to fare
The labyrinths of doubt and care,
That, following, my own may find
The path to Heaven God designed.—
O let her come like this to me—
My bride—my bride that is to be.

HOW IT HAPPENED

I GOT to thinkin' of her—both her parents dead and gone—

And all her sisters married off, and none but her and John
A-livin' all alone there in that lonesome sort o' way,

And him a blame old bachelor, confirmder ev'ry day!

I'd knowed 'em all from childern, and their daddy from the time

He settled in the neighborhood, and hadn't airy a dime

Er dollar, when he married, fer to start housekeepin' on!—

So I got to thinkin' of her—both her parents dead and gone!

I got to thinkin' of her; and a-wundern what she done

That all her sisters kep' a-gittin' married, one by one,

And her without no chances—and the best girl of the pack—

An old maid, with her hands, you might say, tied behind her back!

And Mother, too, afore she died, she ust to jes' take on,

When none of 'em was left, you know, but Evaline and John,

And jes' declare to goodness 'at the young men must be
 . . . bline

To not see what a wife they'd git if they got Evaline!

I got to thinkin' of her; in my great affliction she
 Was sich a comfert to us, and so kind and neighborly,— She'd come, and leave her housework, fer to he'p out little Jane,

And talk of her own mother 'at she'd never see again—
 Maybe sometimes cry together—though, fer the most part she

Would have the child so riconciled and happy-like 'at we Felt lonesomer 'n ever when she'd put her bonnet on
 And say she'd raily haf to be a-gittin' back to John!

I got to thinkin' of her, as I say,—and more and more I'd think of her dependence, and the burdens 'at she bore,—

Her parents both a-bein' dead, and all her sisters gone
 And married off, and her a-livin' there alone with John—
 You might say jes' a-toilin' and a-slavin' out her life
 Fer a man 'at hadn't pride enough to git hisse'f a wife—
 'Less some one married Evaline and packed her off some day!—

So I got to thinkin' of her—and it happened thataway.

WHEN MY DREAMS COME TRUE

I

WHEN my dreams come true—when my dreams come true—

Shall I lean from out my casement, in the starlight and the dew,

To listen—smile and listen to the tinkle of the strings
Of the sweet guitar my lover's fingers fondle, as he sings?
And as the nude moon slowly, slowly shoulders into view,
Shall I vanish from his vision—when my dreams come true?

When my dreams come true—shall the simple gown I wear

Be changed to softest satin, and my maiden-braided hair
Be raveled into flossy mists of rarest, fairest gold,
To be minted into kisses, more than any heart can hold?—
Or “the summer of my tresses” shall my lover liken to “The fervor of his passion”—when my dreams come true?

II

When my dreams come true—I shall bide among the sheaves
Of happy harvest meadows; and the grasses and the leaves
Shall lift and lean between me and the splendor of the sun,
Till the moon swoons into twilight, and the gleaners' work is done—
Save that yet an arm shall bind me, even as the reapers do
The meanest sheaf of harvest—when my dreams come true.

When my dreams come true! when my dreams come true!
True love in all simplicity is fresh and pure as dew;—
The blossom in the blackest mold is kindlier to the eye
Than any lily born of pride that looms against the sky:
And so it is I know my heart will gladly welcome you,
My lowliest of lovers, when my dreams come true.

NOTHIN' TO SAY

NOTHIN' to say, my daughter! Nothin' at all to say!

Gyrls that's in love, I've noticed, ginerly has their way! Yer mother did, afore you, when her folks objected to me—

Yit here I am, and here you air; and yer mother—where is she?

You look lots like yer mother: Purty much same in size;

And about the same complected; and favor about the eyes:

Like her, too, about livin' here,—because she couldn't stay:

It'll 'most seem like you was dead—like her!—But I hain't got nothin' to say!

She left you her little Bible—writ yer name acrost the page—

And left her ear bobs fer you, ef ever you come of age.
I've allus kep' 'em and gyuarded 'em, but ef yer goin' away—

Nothin' to say, my daughter! Nothin' at all to say!

You don't rikollect her, I reckon? No; you wasn't a year old then!

And now yer—how old air you? W'y, child, not “twenty!” When?

And yer nex' birthday's in Aprile? and you want to git married that day?

. . . I wisht yer mother was livin'!—But—I hain't got nothin' to say!

Twenty year! and as good a gyrl as parent ever found!
There's a straw ketched onto yer dress there—I'll bresh
it off—turn round.

(Her mother was jes' twenty when us two run away!)

Nothin' to say, my daughter! Nothin' at all to say!

IKE WALTON'S PRAYER

I CRAVE, dear Lord,
No boundless hoard
Of gold and gear,
Nor jewels fine,
Nor lands, nor kine,
Nor treasure-heaps of anything.—
Let but a little hut be mine

Where at the hearthstone I may hear
 The cricket sing,
 And have the shine
 Of one glad woman's eyes to make,
 For my poor sake,
 Our simple home a place divine;—
 Just the wee cot—the cricket's chirr—
 Love, and the smiling face of her

I pray not for Great riches, nor
 For vast estates, and castle-halls,—
 Give me to hear the bare footfalls
 Of children o'er
 An oaken floor,
 New-rinsed with sunshine, or bespread
 With but the tiny coverlet
 And pillow for the baby's head;
 And pray Thou, may
 The door stand open and the day
 Send ever in a gentle breeze,
 With fragrance from the locust-trees,
 And drowsy moan of doves, and blur
 Of robin-chirps, and drone of bees,

With afterhushes of the stir
 Of intermingling sounds, and then
 The good-wife and the smile of her
 Filling the silences again—
 The cricket's call,
 And the wee cot,
 Dear Lord of all,
 Deny me not!

I pray not that Men tremble at
 My power of place
 And lordly sway,—
 I only pray for simple grace
 To look my neighbor in the face
 Full honestly from day to day—
 Yield me his horny palm to hold,
 And I'll not pray
 For gold;—
 The tanned face, garlanded with mirth,
 It hath the kingliest smile on earth—
 The swart brow, diamonded with sweat,
 Hath never need of coronet.

IKE WALTON'S PRAYER

And so I reach,
Dear Lord, to Thee,
And do beseech
Thou givest me
The wee cot, and the cricket's chirr,
Love, and the glad sweet face of her.

ILLILEO

ILLILEO, the moonlight seemed lost across the vales—
The stars but strewed the azure as an armor's scattered scales ;
The airs of night were quiet as the breath of silken sails ;
And all your words were sweeter than the notes of nightingales.

Illileo Legardi, in the garden there alone,
With your figure carved of fervor, as the Psyche carved of stone,
There came to me no murmur of the fountain's undertone
So mystically, musically mellow as your own.

You whispered low, Illileo—so low the leaves were mute,
And the echoes faltered breathless in your voice's vain pursuit ;

And there died the distant dalliance of the serenader's lute:

And I held you in my bosom as the husk may hold the fruit.

Illileo, I listened. I believed you. In my bliss,
What were all the worlds above me since I found you thus in this?—

Let them reeling reach to win me—even Heaven I would miss,

Grasping earthward!—I would cling here, though I clung by just a kiss!

And blossoms should grow odorless—and lilies all aghast—

And I said the stars should slacken in their paces through the vast,

Ere yet my loyalty should fail enduring to the last.—

So vowed I. It is written. It is changeless as the past.

Illileo Legardi, in the shade your palace throws
Like a cowl about the singer at your gilded porticos,
A moan goes with the music that may vex the high repose
Of a heart that fades and crumbles as the crimson of a rose.

THE WIFE-BLESSÉD

I

IN youth he wrought, with eyes ablur,
Lorn-faced and long of hair—
In youth—in youth he painted her
A sister of the air—
Could clasp her not, but felt the stir
Of pinions everywhere.

II

She lured his gaze, in braver days,
 And tranced him sirenwise ;
And he did paint her, through a haze
 Of sullen paradise,
With scars of kisses on her face
 And embers in her eyes.

And now—nor dream nor wild conceit—
 Though faltering, as before—
Through tears he paints her, as is meet,
 Tracing the dear face o'er
With liliated patience meek and sweet
 As Mother Mary wore.

MY Mary, O my Mary!
The simmer-skies are blue;
The dawning brings the dazzle,
An' the gloamin' brings the dew,—
The mirk o' nicht the glory
O' the moon, an' kindles, too,
The stars that shift aboon the lift.—
But nae thing brings me you!

Where is it, O my Mary,
Ye are biding a' the while?
I ha' wended by your window—
I ha' waited by the stile,
An' up an' down the river
I ha' won for mony a mile,
Yet never found, adrift or drown'd,
Your lang-belated smile.

Is it forgot, my Mary,
How glad we used to be?—

MY MARY

The simmer-time when bonny bloomed
The auld trysting-tree,—
How there I carved the name for you,
An' you the name for me ;
An' the gloamin' kenned it only
When we kissed sae tenderly.

Speak ance to me, my Mary!—
But whisper in my ear
As light as ony sleeper's breath,
An' a' my soul will hear ;
My heart shall stap its beating
An' the sougling atmosphere
Be hushed the while I leaning smile
An' listen to you, dear !

My Mary, O my Mary !
The blossoms bring the bees ;
The sunshine brings the blossoms,
An' the leaves on a' the trees ;
The simmer brings the sunshine
An' the fragrance o' the breeze,—
But O wi'out you, Mary,
I care nae thing for these !

We were sae happy, Mary!
 O think how ance we said—
 Wad ane o' us gae fickle,
 Or ane o' us lie dead,—
 To feel anither's kisses
 We wad feign the auld instead,
 An' ken the ither's footsteps
 In the green grass owerhead.

My Mary, O my Mary!
 Are ye daughter o' the air,
 That ye vanish aye before me
 As I follow everywhere?—
 Or is it ye are only
 But a mortal, wan wi' care?—
 Syne I search through a' the kirkyird
 An' I dinna find ye there!

HOME AT NIGHT

WHEN chirping crickets fainter cry,
And pale stars blossom in the sky,
And twilight's gloom has dimmed the bloom
And blurred the butterfly :

When locust-blossoms fleck the walk,
And up the tiger-lily stalk
The glow-worm crawls and clings and falls
And glimmers down the garden-walls :

When buzzing things, with double wings
Of crisp and raspish flutterings,
Go whizzing by so very nigh
One thinks of fangs and stings :—

O then, within, is stilled the din
Of crib she rocks the baby in,
And heart and gate and latch's weight
Are lifted—and the lips of Kate.

WHEN LIDE MARRIED HIM

WHEN Lide married him—w'y, she had to jes dee-fy
The whole poppilation!—But she never bat' an eye!

Her parents begged, and threatened—she must give him up—that he

Wuz jes "a common drunkard!"—And he wuz, appearantly.—

Swore they'd chase him off the place

Ef he ever showed his face—

Long after she'd eloped with him and married him fer shore!—

When Lide married him, it wuz "Katy, bar the door!"

When Lide married him—Well! she had to go and be A hired girl in town somewheres—while he tromped round to see

What he could git that he could do,—you might say, jes sawed wood

From door to door!—that's what he done—'cause that wuz best he could!

And the strangest thing, i jing!

Wuz, he didn't drink a thing,—

But jes got down to bizness, like he someway wanted to,
When Lide married him, like they warn'd her not to do!

When Lide married him—er, ruther, had ben married
A little up'ards of a year—some feller come and carried
That hired girl away with him—a ruther stylish feller
In a bran-new green spring-wagon, with the wheels striped red and yeller:

And he whispered, as they driv
Tords the country, "Now we'll live!"—
And somepin' else she laughed to hear, though both her eyes wuz dim,
'Bout "trustin' Love and Heav'n above, sence Lide married him!"

HER HAIR

THE beauty of her hair bewilders me—
 Pouring adown the brow, its cloven tide
 Swirling about the ears on either side
And storming around the neck tumultuously:
Or like the lights of old antiquity
 Through mullioned windows, in cathedrals wide,
 Spilled moltenly o'er figures deified
In chastest marble, nude of drapery.
And so I love it.—Either unconfined;
 Or plaited in close braidings manifold;
Or smoothly drawn; or indolently twined
 In careless knots whose coilings come unrolled
At any lightest kiss; or by the wind
 Whipped out in flossy ravelings of gold.

LAST NIGHT—AND THIS

LAST night—how deep the darkness was!
And well I knew its depths, because
I waded it from shore to shore,
Thinking to reach the light no more.

LAST NIGHT—AND THIS

She would not even touch my hand.—
The winds rose and the cedars fanned
The moon out, and the stars fled back
In heaven and hid—and all was black!

But ah! To-night a summons came,
Signed with a teardrop for a name,—
For as I wondering kissed it, lo,
A line beneath it told me so.

And now the moon hangs over me
A disk of dazzling brilliancy,
And every star-tip stabs my sight
With splintered glitterings of light!

A DISCOURAGING MODEL

JUST the airiest, fairiest slip of a thing,
With a Gainsborough hat, like a butterfly's wing,
Tilted up at one side with the jauntiest air,
And a knot of red roses sown in under there
Where the shadows are lost in her hair.

Then a cameo face, carven in on a ground
Of that shadowy hair where the roses are wound;
And the gleam of a smile O as fair and as faint
And as sweet as the masters of old used to paint
 Round the lips of their favorite saint!

And that lace at her throat—and the fluttering hands
Snowing there, with a grace that no art understands
The flakes of their touches—first fluttering at
The bow—then the roses—the hair—and then that Little tilt of the Gainsborough hat.

What artist on earth, with a model like this,
Holding not on his palette the tint of a kiss.
Nor a pigment to hint of the hue of her hair,
Nor the gold of her smile—O what artist could dare
 To expect a result half so fair?

SUSPENSE

A WOMAN'S figure, on a ground of night
Inlaid with sallow stars that dimly stare
Down in the lonesome eyes, uplifted there
As in vague hope some alien lance of light
Might pierce their woe. The tears that blind her sight—
The salt and bitter blood of her despair—
Her hands toss back through torrents of her hair
And grip toward God with anguish infinite.
And O the carven mouth, with all its great
Intensity of longing frozen fast
In such a smile as well may designate
The slowly murdered heart, that, to the last
Conceals each newer wound, and back at Fate
Throbs Love's eternal lie—"Lo, I can wait!"

TOM VAN ARDEN

TOM VAN ARDEN, my old friend,
Our warm fellowship is one
Far too old to comprehend
Where its bond was first begun:
Mirage-like before my gaze
Gleams a land of other days,
Where two truant boys, astray,
Dream their lazy lives away.

There's a vision, in the guise
Of Midsummer, where the Past
Like a weary beggar lies
In the shadow Time has cast ;
And as blends the bloom of trees
With the drowsy hum of bees,
Fragrant thoughts and murmurs blend,
Tom Van Arden, my old friend.

Tom Van Arden, my old friend,
All the pleasures we have known
Thrill me now as I extend
This old hand and grasp your own—
Feeling, in the rude caress,
All affection's tenderness ;
Feeling, though the touch be rough,
Our old souls are soft enough.

So we'll make a mellow hour ;
Fill your pipe, and taste the wine—
Warp your face, if it be sour,
I can spare a smile from mine ;
If it sharpen up your wit,
Let me feel the edge of it—

I have eager ears to lend,
Tom Van Arden, my old friend.

Tom Van Arden, my old friend,
Are we "lucky dogs," indeed?
Are we all that we pretend
In the jolly life we lead?—
Bachelors, we must confess
Boast of "single blessedness"
To the world, but not alone—
Man's best sorrow is his own.

And the saddest truth is this,—
Life to us has never proved
What we tasted in the kiss
Of the women we have loved:
Vainly we congratulate
Our escape from such a fate
As their lying lips could send,
Tom Van Arden, my old friend!

Tom Van Arden, my old friend,
Hearts, like fruit upon the stem,
Ripen sweetest, I contend,
As the frost falls over them:

Your regard for me to-day
Makes November taste of May,
And through every vein of rhyme
Pours the blood of summertime.

When our souls are cramped with youth
Happiness seems far away
In the future, while, in truth,
We looked back on it to-day
Through our tears, nor dare to boast,—
“Better to have loved and lost!”
Broken hearts are hard to mend,
Tom Van Arden, my old friend.

Tom Van Arden, my old friend,
I grow prosy, and you tire;
Fill the glasses while I bend
To prod up the failing fire. . . .
You are restless:—I presume
There's a dampness in the room.—
Much of warmth our nature begs,
With rheumatics in our legs! . . .

Humph! the legs we used to fling
 Limber-jointed in the dance,
 When we heard the fiddle ring
 Up the curtain of Romance,
 And in crowded public halls
 Played with hearts like jugglers'-balls.—
Feats of mountebanks, depend!—
 Tom Van Arden, my old friend.

Tom Van Arden, my old friend,
 Pardon, then, this theme of mine:
 While the fire-light leaps to lend
 Higher color to the wine,—
 I propose a health to those
 Who have homes, and home's repose,
 Wife and child-love without end!
 . . . Tom Van Arden, my old friend.

TO HEAR HER SING

TO hear her sing—to hear her sing—
It is to hear the birds of Spring
In dewy groves on blooming sprays
Pour out their blithest roundelays.

It is to hear the robin trill
At morning, or the whippoorwill
At dusk, when stars are blossoming
To hear her sing—to hear her sing!

To hear her sing—it is to hear
The laugh of childhood ringing clear
In woody path or grassy lane
Our feet may never fare again.

TO HEAR HER SING

Faint, far away as Memory dwells,
It is to hear the village bells
At twilight, as the truant hears
Them, hastening home, with smiles and tears.

Such joy it is to hear her sing,
We fall in love with everything—
The simple things of every day
Grow lovelier than words can say.

The idle brooks that purl across
The gleaming pebbles and the moss,
We love no less than classic streams—
The Rhines and Arnos of our dreams.

To hear her sing—with folded eyes,
It is, beneath Venetian skies,
To hear the gondoliers' refrain,
Or troubadours of sunny Spain.—

To hear the bulbul's voice that shook
The throat that trilled for Lalla Rookh:
What wonder we in homage bring
Our hearts to her—to hear her sing!

THE RIVAL

I SO loved once, when Death came by I hid
 Away my face,
And all my sweetheart's tresses she undid
 To make my hiding-place.

The dread shade passed me thus unheeding ; and I turned me then
To calm my love—kiss down her shielding hand
 And comfort her again.

And lo ! she answered not : And she did sit
 All fixedly,
With her fair face and the sweet smile of it,
 In love with Death, not me.

A VARIATION

I AM tired of this!
Nothing else but loving!
Nothing else but kiss and kiss,
Coo, and turtle-doving!
Can't you change the order some?
Hate me just a little—come!

A VARIATION

Lay aside your "dears,"
 "Darlings," "kings," and "princes!"—
Call me knave, and dry your tears—
 Nothing in me winces,—
 Call me something low and base—
 Something that will suit the case!

Wish I had your eyes
 And their drooping lashes!
I would dry their teary lies
 Up with lightning-flashes—
 Make your sobbing lips unsheathe
 All the glitter of your teeth!

Can't you lift one word—
 With some pang of laughter—
Louder than the drowsy bird
 Crooning 'neath the rafter?
 Just one bitter word, to shriek
 Madly at me as I speak!

How I hate the fair
 Beauty of your forehead!

How I hate your fragrant hair !
How I hate the torrid
Touches of your splendid lips,
And the kiss that drips and drips !

Ah, you pale at last !
And your face is lifted
Like a white sail to the blast,
And your hands are shifted Into fists : and, towering thus,
You are simply glorious !

Now before me looms
Something more than human ;
Something more than beauty blooms
In the wrath of Woman—
Something to bow down before
Reverently and adore.

WHERE SHALL WE LAND?

“Where shall we land you, sweet?”—Swinburne.

ALL listlessly we float
Out seaward in the boat
That beareth Love.
Our sails of purest snow
Bend to the blue below
And to the blue above.
Where shall we land?

WHERE SHALL WE LAND?

We drift upon a tide
Shoreless on every side,
 Save where the eye
Of Fancy sweeps far lands
Shelved slopingly with sands
 Of gold and porphyry.
 Where shall we land?

The fairy isles we see,
Loom up so mistily—
 So vaguely fair,
We do not care to break
Fresh bubbles in our wake
 To bend our course for there.
 Where shall we land?

The warm winds of the deep
Have lulled our sails to sleep,
 And so we glide
Careless of wave or wind,
Or change of any kind,
 Or turn of any tide.
 Where shall we land?

We droop our dreamy eyes
Where our reflection lies
 Steeped in the sea,

WHERE SHALL WE LAND?

And, in an endless fit
Of languor, smile on it
 And its sweet mimicry.
 Where shall we land?

“Where shall we land?” God’s grace!
I know not any place
 So fair as this—
Swung here between the blue
Of sea and sky, with you
 To ask me, with a kiss,
 “Where shall we land?”

THE TOUCHES OF HER HANDS

THE touches of her hands are like the fall
Of velvet snowflakes ; like the touch of down
The peach just brushes 'gainst the garden wall ;
The flossy fondlings of the thistle-wisp
Caught in the crinkle of a leaf of brown
The blighting frost hath turned from green to crisp.

THE TOUCHES OF HER HANDS

Soft as the falling of the dusk at night,
The touches of her hands, and the delight—

The touches of her hands !

The touches of her hands are like the dew
That falls so softly down no one e'er knew
The touch thereof save lovers like to one Astray in lights where ranged Endymion.

O rarely soft, the touches of her hands,
As drowsy zephyrs in enchanted lands ;

Or pulse of dying fay ; or fairy sighs ;

Or—in between the midnight and the dawn,

When long unrest and tears and fears are gone—

Sleep, smoothing down the lids of weary eyes.

A SONG OF LONG AGO

A SONG of Long Ago:
Sing it lightly—sing it low—
Sing it softly—like the lisping of the lips we used to know

When our baby-laughter spilled
From the glad hearts ever filled
With music blithe as robin ever trilled!

Let the fragrant summer-breeze,
And the leaves of locust-trees,
And the apple-buds and blossoms, and the wings of honey-bees,
All palpitate with glee,
Till the happy harmony
Brings back each childish joy to you and me.

Let the eyes of fancy turn
Where the tumbled pippins burn
Like embers in the orchard's lap of tangled grass and fern,—

There let the old path wind
In and out and on behind
The cider-press that chuckles as we grind.

Blend in the song the moan
Of the dove that grieves alone,
And the wild whirl of the locust, and the bumble's drowsy drone;
And the low of cows that call
Through the pasture-bars when all
The landscape fades away at evenfall.

Then, far away and clear,
Through the dusky atmosphere,
Let the wailing of the kildee be the only sound we hear:
O sad and sweet and low
As the memory may know
Is the glad-pathetic song of Long Ago!

WHEN AGE COMES ON

WHEN Age comes on!—

The deepening dusk is where the dawn
Once glittered splendid, and the dew
In honey-drips, from red rose-lips
Was kissed away by me and you. —
And now across the frosty lawn
Black foot-prints trail, and Age comes on—
And Age comes on!

And biting wild-winds whistle through
Our tattered hopes—and Age comes on!

When Age comes on!—

O tide of raptures, long withdrawn,
Flow back in summer-floods, and fling
Here at our feet our childhood sweet,
And all the songs we used to sing! . . .
Old loves, old friends—all dead and gone—
Our old faith lost—and Age comes on—
And Age comes on!

Poor hearts! have we not anything
But longings left when Age comes on!

FARMER WHIPPLE—BACHELOR

I T'S a mystery to see me—a man o' fifty-four, Who's lived a cross old bachelor fer thirty year' and more—
A-lookin' glad and smilin'! And they's none o' you can say
That you can guess the reason why I feel so good to-day!

I must tell you all about it! But I'll have to deviate
 A little in beginnin', so's to set the matter straight
 As to how it comes to happen that I never took a wife—
 Kind o' "crawfish" from the Present to the Springtime of my life!

I was brought up in the country: Of a family of five—
 Three brothers and a sister—I'm the only one alive,— Fer they all died little babies; and 'twas one o' Mother's ways,
 You know, to want a daughter; so she took a girl to raise.

The sweetest little thing she was, with rosy cheeks, and fat—
 We was little chunks o' shavers then about as high as that!

But someway we sort o' suited-like! and Mother she'd declare

She never laid her eyes on a more lovin' pair

Than we was! So we growed up side by side fer thirteen year',

And every hour of it she growed to me more dear!—
 W'y, even Father's dyin', as he did, I do believe
 Warn't more affectin' to me than it was to see her grieve!

I was then a lad o' twenty; and I felt a flash o' pride
 In thinkin' all depended on me now to pervide
 Fer Mother and fer Mary; and I went about the place
 With sleeves rolled up—and workin', with a mighty smilin' face.—

Fer sompin' else was workin'! but not a word I said
 Of a certain sort o' notion that was runnin' through my head,—

“Someday I'd mayby marry, and a brother's love was one Thing—a lover's was another!” was the way the notion run!

I remember onc't in harvest, when the “cradle-in'” was done—

When the harvest of my summers mounted up to twenty-one

I was ridin' home with Mary at the closin' o' the day—
 A-chawin' straws and thinkin', in a lover's lazy way!

And Mary's cheeks was burnin' like the sunset down
 the lane:

I noticed she was thinkin', too, and ast her to explain.
 Well—when she turned and kissed me, with her arms around me—law!

I'd a bigger load o' heaven than I had a load o' straw!

I don't p'tend to learnin', but I'll tell you what's a fact,
 They's a mighty truthful sayin' somers in a' almanack—
 Er somers—'bout "puore happiness"—perhaps some folks 'll laugh

At the idy—"only lastin' jest two seconds and a half."—

But it's jest as true as preachin'!—fer that was a sister's kiss,

And a sister's lovin' confidence a-tellin' to me this:—

"She was happy, bein' promised to the son o' farmer Brown."—

And my feelin's struck a pardnership with sunset and went down!

I don't know how I acted—I don't know what I said,
 Fer my heart seemed jest a-turnin' to an ice-cold lump
 o' lead;

And the hosses kindo' glimmered before me in the road.
 And the lines fell from my fingers—and that was all I knowed—

Fer—well, I don't know how long—They's a dim remembreence

Of a sound o' snortin' hosses, and a stake-and-ridered fence

A-whizzin' past, and wheat-sheaves a-dancin' in the air,

And Mary screamin' "Murder!" and a-rumin' up to where

I was layin' by the roadside, and the wagon upside down

A-leanin' on the gate-post, with the wheels a whirlin' round!

And I tried to raise and meet her, but I couldn't, with a vague

Sorto' notion comin' to me that I had a broken leg.

Well, the women nussed me through it; but many a time
I'd sigh

As I'd keep a-gittin' better instid o' goin' to die,

And wonder what was left me worth livin' fer below,

When the girl I loved was married to another, don't you know!

And my thoughts was as rebellious as the folks was good and kind

When Brown and Mary married—Railly must a-been my mind

Was kindo' out o' kilter!—fer I hated Brown, you see, Worse'n pisen—and the feller whittled crutches out fer me—

And done a thousand little ac's o' kindness and respect—
 And me a-wishin' all the time that I could break his neck!

My relief was like a mourner's when the funeral is done
 When they moved to Illinois in the Fall o' Forty-one.

Then I went to work in airnest—I had nothin' much in view

But to drown'd out rickollections—and it kep' me busy, too!

But I slowly thrived and prospered, tel Mother used to say

She expected yit to see me a wealthy man some day.

Then F'd think how little money was, compared to happiness—

And who'd be left to use it when I died I couldn't guess!
 But I've still kep' speculatin' and a-gainin' year by year,
 Tel I'm payin' half the taxes in the county, mighty near!

Well!—A year ago er better, a letter comes to hand
 Astin' how I'd like to dicker fer some Illinois land—
 “The feller that had owned it,” it went ahead to state, “Had jest deceased, insolvent, leavin' chance to speculate,”—

And then it closed by sayin' that I'd "better come and see."—

I'd never been West, anyhow—a most too wild fer me
I'd allus had a notion; but a lawyer here in town
Said I'd find myself mistakened when I come to look around.

So I bids good-bye to Mother, and I jumps aboard the train,
A-thinkin' what I'd bring her when I come back home again—

And ef she'd had an idy what the present was to be,
I think it's more'n likely she'd a-went along with me!

Cars is awful tejus ridin', fer all they go so fast!
But finally they called out my stoppin'-place at last;
And that night, at the tavern, I dreamp' I was a train
O' cars, and skeered at sompin', runnin' down a country lane!

Well, in the mornin' airly—after huntin' up the man—
The lawyer who was wantin' to swap the piece o' land—
We started fer the country; and I ast the history
Of the farm—its former owner—and so-forth, etcetery!

And—well—it was interestin'—I su-prised him, I suppose,

By the loud and frequent manner in which I blowed my nose!—

But his su-prise was greater, and it made him wonder more,

When I kissed and hugged the widdler when she met us at the door!—

It was Mary: They's a feelin' a-hidin' down in here—

Of course I can't explain it, ner ever make it clear.—

It was with us in that meetin', I don't want you to fergit!

And it makes me kind o' nervous when I think about it yit!

I bought that farm, and decided it, afore I left the town,

And fu'thermore, I took her and the children—fer, you see,

They'd never seed their Grandma—and I fetched 'em home with me.

So now you've got an idy why a man o' fifty-four,
Who's lived a cross old bachelor fer thirty year' and
more,
Is a-lookin' glad and smilin'!—And I've jest come into town
To git a pair o' license fer to marry Mary Brown.

THE ROSE

IT tossed its head at the wooing breeze ;
And the sun, like a bashful swain,
Beamed on it through the waving trees
With a passion all in vain,—
For my rose laughed in a crimson glee,
And hid in the leaves in wait for me.

The honey-bee came there to sing
His love through the languid hours,
And vaunt of his hives, as a proud old king
Might boast of his palace-towers :
But my rose bowed in a mockery,
And hid in the leaves in wait for me.

The humming-bird, like a courtier gay,
Dipped down with a dalliant song,
And twanged his wings through the roundelay
Of love the whole day long :
Yet my rose turned from his minstrelsy
And hid in the leaves in wait for me.

The firefly came in the twilight dim
My red, red rose to woo—
Till quenched was the flame of love in him
And the light of his lantern too,
As my rose wept with dewdrops three
And hid in the leaves in wait for me.

And I said : I will cull my own sweet rose—
Some day I will claim as mine

THE ROSE

The priceless worth of the flower that knows
 No change, but a bloom divine—
The bloom of a fadeless constancy
That hides in the leaves in wait for me!

But time passed by in a strange disguise,
 And I marked it not, but lay
In a lazy dream, with drowsy eyes,
 Till the summer slipped away,
And a chill wind sang in a minor key:
“Where is the rose that waits for thee?”

* * * * *

I dream to-day, o'er a purple stain
 Of bloom on a withered stalk,
Pelted down by the autumn rain
 In the dust of the garden-walk,
That an Angel-rose in the world to be
Will hide in the leaves in wait for me.

HAS SHE FORGOTTEN?

I

HAS she forgotten? On this very May
We were to meet here, with the birds and bees,
As on that Sabbath, underneath the trees
We strayed among the tombs, and stripped away
The vines from these old granites, cold and gray—
And yet indeed not grim enough were they
To stay our kisses, smiles and ecstasies,
Or closer voice-lost vows and rhapsodies.
Has she forgotten—that the May has won
Its promise?—that the bird-songs from the tree
Are sprayed above the grasses as the sun
Might jar the dazzling dew down showeringly?
Has she forgotten life—love—everyone—
Has she forgotten me—forgotten me?

II

Low, low down in the violets I press
My lips and whisper to her. Does she hear,
And yet hold silence, though I call her dear,
Just as of old, save for the tearfulness

HAS SHE FORGOTTEN ?

Of the clenched eyes, and the soul's vast distress?
Has she forgotten thus the old caress
That made our breath a quickened atmosphere
That failed nigh unto swooning with the sheer Delight? Mine arms clutch now this earthen heap
Sodden with tears that flow on ceaselessly
As autumn rains the long, long, long nights weep
In memory of days that used to be,—
Has she forgotten these? And in her sleep,
Has she forgotten me—forgotten me?

III

To-night, against my pillow, with shut eyes,
I mean to weld our faces—through the dense Incalculable darkness make pretense
That she has risen from her reveries
To mate her dreams with mine in marriages
Of mellow palms, smooth faces, and tense ease
Of every longing nerve of indolence,—
Lift from the grave her quiet lips, and stun
My senses with her kisses—drawl the glee
Of her glad mouth, full blithe and tenderly,
Across mine own, forgetful if is done
The old love's awful dawn-time when said we,
"To-day is ours!" . . . Ah, Heaven! can it be
She has forgotten me—forgotten me!

BLOOMS OF MAY

BUT yesterday!
O blooms of May,
And summer roses—Where-away?
O stars above,
And lips of love
And all the honeyed sweets thereof!

O lad and lass
And orchard-pass,
And briered lane, and daisied grass!
O gleam and gloom,
And woodland bloom,
And breezy breaths of all perfume!—

No more for me
Or mine shall be
Thy raptures—save in memory,—
No more—no more—
Till through the Door
Of Glory gleam the days of yore.

THE SERMON OF THE ROSE

WILLFUL we are in our infirmity
Of childish questioning and discontent.
Whate'er befalls us is divinely meant—
Thou Truth the clearer for thy mystery!
Make us to meet what is or is to be
With fervid welcome, knowing it is sent
To serve us in some way full excellent,
Though we discern it all belatedly.
The rose buds, and the rose blooms and the rose
Bows in the dews, and in its fulness, lo,
Is in the lover's hand,—then on the breast
Of her he loves,—and there dies.—And who knows
Which fate of all a rose may undergo
Is fairest, dearest, sweetest, loveliest?

Nay, we are children: we will not mature.
A blessed gift must seem a theft; and tears
Must storm our eyes when but a joy appears
In drear disguise of sorrow; and how poor

We seem when we are richest,—most secure
 Against all poverty the lifelong years
 We yet must waste in childish doubts and fears
 That, in despite of reason, still endure!
 Alas! the sermon of the rose we will
 Not wisely ponder; nor the sobs of grief
 Lulled into sighs of rapture; nor the cry
 Of fierce defiance that again is still.
 Be patient—patient with our frail belief,
 And stay it yet a little ere we die.

O opulent life of ours, though dispossessed
 Of treasure after treasure! Youth most fair
 Went first, but left its priceless coil of hair—
 Moaned over sleepless nights, kissed and caressed
 Through drip and blur of tears the tenderest.
 And next went Love—the ripe rose glowing there
 Her very sister! . . . It is here; but where
 Is she, of all the world the first and best?
 And yet how sweet the sweet earth after rain —
 How sweet the sunlight on the garden wall
 Across the roses—and how sweetly flows
 The limpid yodel of the brook again!
 And yet—and yet how sweeter after all,
 The smouldering sweetness of a dead red rose!
