ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

I. ANDREW DOKET.

- p. 31. Peter Hyrford, is thus mentioned in the bursars' accounts :
 I. M. J. 1484-85. fo. 27. b. In oblatione ad missam pro mro Petro Hyrforde iij^d.
- p. 33, l. 27, for see p. 77 read see p. 80.
- p. 48. Andrew Docket is here spoken of as principal of St Bernard's hostel, following Dr Caius and archbishop Parker and other common authorities : it must be however confessed that none of the college deeds describe him as such.
- p. 60, l. 11, read IV. M. J. 1563-64. fo. 38. b. Item pro consti-tuendo picturam m^{ri}. Andrei Ducket in tumulo suo ij^s. vj^d.
- p. 61, l. 2, read Wenloke.
- p. 73. According to Gage (Thingoe, p. 8) Lady Margery Roos was 26 years of age at the death of her father in June 1424: she must therefore have been 80 years old at her death in 1478.
- p. 75, l. 12. Her son Thomas Wentworth is thus mentioned in the Grace book A :
 An. 1475... Mr Thomas Wentworth filius dn̄e de ly Roose intrat in jure canonico. (MS. Baker xlij. fo. 160. b).
- p. 82, l. 9 from bottom. The 'Inquisitio ad quod damnum' is dated 9 Nov. 12. E. 4. 1472. Lady Joan Burgh possessed also two messuages at Lenham, Kent.
- p. 87, l. 7, add: (Misc. B. fo. 3.)
- p. 92, l. 2 from bottom. The will of William Yorke is preserved at the principal registry (London) of Her Majesty's Court of Probate (Wattis 25).
- p. 93, l. 25. The will of Mr John Collinson is preserved in the London Registry (Logge 25).
- p. 101. Another fellow of Queens' belonging to the period 1448-1484 is mentioned in a MS. of Wycliffe's *Commentary on St
 Mark's Gospel*, in the possession of Lord Dillon at Ditchley Park, Oxfordshire, which bears the inscription : 'Pray for the soule of Maister John Crowland fellow of the Quenes college of Cambrigge and parson of South Wokyngton, Essex.' In Newcourt, Rep. ii. 448, among the rectors of South-Okendon, we find John Crowland, mentioned in succession to Nic. Hubert, who became rector in 1446. He was succeeded on his death by John Hill on the presentation of the bishop of London 'per Laps.' In Weever, Fun. Mon. 648, he is mentioned as commemorated on a monument at Romford Church with Avery Cornburgh esq. and Beatrice his wife. The marginal inscription contained the unfinished date 1480, which may however have been the date of John Crowland's death. On the monument itself was a long inscription consisting of eight verses of seven lines each commemorating the foundation of a chantry in that church. (Newcourt, Rep. ii. 338-9).

Dionysius Spicer, rector of St Botolph's 1479-..., was bursar of the college 1485-6-7-8 and 'prælector bibliæ' 1490-91: he died about 1500, his executors being mentioned I. M. J. 1499-1500, fo. 137. b. Item pro expensis mri Wytford euntis London. ad executores mri Spycer in negociis collegii.....xij^d. He also may have been a fellow in earlier years.

II. THOMAS WILKYNSON.

- p. 104. Thomas Wilkynson was at some time not stated fellow of Michaelhouse, though he may also either before or afterwards have been fellow of Queens', with which he is found in different deeds closely connected.
- p. 105, l. 20, for Johannis read Johanni.
- p. 105, l. 24, for Cori read coci.
- p. 109, l. 9. The Privy Seal of... Dec. 1484 was merely to correct two clerical errors in the first form of the deed of 5 July 1484, printed p. 97-8.
- p. 111, l. 4, for '—Ruggely' read '[Nicolao] Rugeby.' He is named in the deed of 11 Feb. 2 Ric. III. 1484-5 in the Public Record office, mentioned p. 109.
- p. 119. For the convent of the Dominicans within Ludgate, see Newcourt i. 28, Tanner, Not. Mon. 313, Weever, Fun. Mon. 388, Stow Survey 374, 487.
- p. 120, l. 17, read pro scriptura copie ejusdam indenture.
- p. 121, l. 9. William Lyncolne died 1509. His will is preserved at the registry of the university (Vol. i. fo. 25).

- p. 122, l. 18. The date of Dr J. Drewell's death is taken from the college commemoration service, and may not be correct.
- p. 126. Mr Wilkynson's will, made 7 Nov. 1511 and proved 23 Jan. 1511-2, is preserved in the principal registry of Her Majesty's Court of Probate at London (Fetiplace 25).
By it he bequeathed 13s. 4d. to each fellow of Queens', and to the master and each fellow of Michaelhouse, where he himself had been sometime fellow, also 13s. 4d.
- p. 128, l. 4 from bottom, read commissarii.

III. JOHN FISHER.

- p. 136, l. 9, read Cantebrigiae vixit, [Græcas literas perlegit...].

IV. ROBERT BEKENS AW.

- p. 144. In J. S. Brewer, Letters and Papers, Vol. i. we find:

3487. Privy Seal for Robert Bekynsall, D.D. almoner to the Queen. Grant of a canonry and prebend in the collegiate church of St George the Martyr Windsor, void by the death of W. Cokkes. Greenwich 23 Oct. 4 Hen. VIII. (1512).

4434. Signature of Robert Becansaw to some commissions of Catharine the queen, Regent, 3-5 Sept. 5 Hen. VIII. 1513.

5735. A warrant to the treasurer of the Chamber, John Heron, to deliver £100 to Robert Bekynsals to be distributed in alms in groats at the funeral of Henry VII. (with receipt for the same,) dated 9 May 1509.

- p. 153, l. 14. This date is given from Le Clerc: in the London ed. of 1642 (lib. viii. ep. 1) it is 'Cantabrigiæ e collegio Reginae decimo sexto Cal Septembr.' The second (lib. x. ep. 10) is dated 'Cantabrigiæ e collegio Reginae, natali divi Bartholomæi,' the third (lib. x. ep. 16) 'postridie Bartholomæi' in the ed. of 1642.
- p. 159. Dr R. Becansawe's will, made 18 Nov. 1525 and proved 18 Feb. 1525-6, is preserved in the principal registry (London) of Her Majesty's Court of Probate (Porch 3).
In it he says: 'Item I will the Quenes college in Cambridge have xls. for a dirige and a masse.'

V. JOHN JENYN.

- p. 169. Dr Jenyn's will has not been found.

VI. THOMAS FARMAN.

- p. 173. Dr Farman's will has not been found.

VIII. SIMON HEYNES.

- p. 181, l. 14 from bottom. A letter to the King from Dr Heynes while abroad is contained in MS. Cotton Caligula E. 1. fo. 40 : though it has suffered from the fire, it is mostly legible, but does not seem of much interest.
- p. 188, l. 3. The 'Alienatio terrarum et tenementorum in Gilden Morden' II. Lease book (fo. 1.) is dated 9 Dec. 22 Hen. VIII. 1530.
- p. 188, l. 6. The 'Alienatio terrarum Holbech, Whaplode et Multon' in II. Lease book (fo. 3.) is dated 8 March 25 Hen. VIII. 1534-35.
- p. 188, l. 9. The 'Alienatio Bernard. hospitii' in II. Lease book (fo. 4.) is dated 2 July 26 Hen. VIII. 1534.
- p. 197. Nicholas Ridley was 'lector in scholis publicis' in the year 1536-37, and as such had from the college the sum of 12s. 6d. as his year's stipend (III. M. J. 1536-37. fo. 21. Ridley, Life of bishop Ridley 133 ff.)
- p. 199, l. 2. The account of this embassy may be read in Dr Nott's Life of Wyatt, prefixed to his works (the works of Henry Howard earl of Surrey, and of sir Thomas Wyatt the elder, 2 Vols. 4to. London 1816, pp. xxxix-lxv.) 'Heynes and Bonner' (he says) 'did no good whatever to Henry's cause. They rather discredited the embassy by drawing down contempt on themselves by their indecorous conduct. Bonner in particular, though a clergyman, behaved with a degree of levity that bordered on licentiousness, and manifested a disrespect for the Roman Catholic religion, that was not at all consistent with his subsequent intolerant zeal for its support.'

Though it is painful to find sir Thomas Wyat complaining of the malice of Bonner and Heynes, yet the chief share seems to fall to Bonner, as we find Wyat saying (Oration, p. 304), 'I pray you now let me turn my tale to Bonner, for this riseth of him; yea, and so I think doth all the rest: for his crafty malice, I suppose in my conscience, abuseth the other's simpleness.' The only clear charge against the two clerical ambassadors, in which Heynes must bear his share of the blame, is contained in the following (Oration, p. 303):

Another occasion there is, that I should say: 'They were more meet to be parish priests than ambassadors.' By my truth, I never liked them indeed for ambassadors; and no more did the most part of them that saw them, and namely they that had to do with them, but that I did not, on my faith, with no stranger. But if I said they were meet to be parish priests, on my faith, I never remember it; and it is not like I should so say, for as far as I could see, neither of them had any great fancy to mass; and that ye know were requisite for parish priests; for this can all that were there report, that not one of them all while they were there, said mass, or offered to hear mass, though it was but a superstition. I said both Mason and I, because of the name that Englishmen then had to be all Lutherans, were fain to entreat them that we might sometimes shew ourselves in the church together, that men conceived not an evil opinion of us.

The charge of immorality, which Bonner had brought against Wyat, falsely as he declares, Wyat seems in return to bring against Bonner (Oration, p. 305): against Heynes he makes no accusation of the like sort, nor indeed of anything except what is above mentioned.

- p. 199, l. 11. The letter is addressed to Mr Butt the king's physician (sir William Butts, M.D.; Cooper, Ath. i. 87.)
- p. 200, l. 7. Edward Crome, D.D. of Gonville hall, preached the sermon founded by lady Alice Wyche at St Dionys Backchurch, London, at Easter 1531 and Easter 1534. In the State papers, Henry VIII. (i. 843.) is a letter from Dr Heynes "admonishing Dr Crome to be ware of his brethren at London and not to yield to their fantasies, and to be ware that he saide not these words 'that he came not to recant.'"
- p. 201. The 'Articles' are in MS. Harl. 604. fo. 64. They have been carelessly printed by Dr Oliver: for sustentacon, porcon, and the like, read sustentacon, porcon.

- p. 208, l. 2. Dr Heynes' will, made 12 July 1552 and proved 12 Nov. 1552, is preserved in the principal registry (London) of

Her Majesty's Court of Probate (Powell 29). Beside Joseph Heynes he had another son named Simon, probably the person mentioned p. 210, l. 5.

IX. WILLIAM MEY.

p. 214, l. 26, add State Papers, Henry VIII. xi. 285, 290, 312.

p. 223, l. 18. On obtaining this promise the college wrote at once to Thomas Cromwell the King's secretary asking for the site of the house of the Carmelites. One reason for the annexation is certainly ingenious. The letter is here transcribed from MS. Cotton, Faustina C. vii. fo. 102:

Si tuæ Amplitudinis fidem et erga bonas literas affectum singularem in publicis Academiæ negotiis non fuisset experti, nobilissime Dñe, tam ingentia tua et ad universi hujus regni statum tuendum et conservandum pertinentia negotia, nostris petitiunculis obturbare vehementer formidassemus. Neque enim sumus nescii potuisse tuam Dominationem (etiãsi neque autoritas tibi esset tam ampla, quantam nunc apud regiam majestatem vix ullius esse novimus, neque prudentia tam insignis, qualem in nulla fere memoria legimus, neque occupationes tam variæ tamque graves, quæ in te semper incumbant) jure tamen nostram vilitatem contemnere et tanquam nimium audaces asperè atque acerbè repellere. Sed ita nobis est cognitus animi tui candor, tam est perspecta notaque humanitas, ut vel tenuissimos homunculos ad quidvis audendum possit impellere. Venimus igitur ad te supplices et tuæ lenitati comitaturque fidentes non solum te tantisper interpellare donec causam audieris, verum etiam consilium atque spem implorare tuæ Celsitudinis ad id quod molimur audemus. Cœnobium est Carmelitarum non solum vicinum sed etiam adherens affixumque collegio nostro, perangustum certe et non ita pridem parte quadam Regii collegii sociis dividitum (see p. 233) propter inopiam diminutum. Hujus cœnobii fratres, deflorescente religionis fuco et propterea vectigalibus emendicationum suarum exarescentibus, propemodum omnes abiire. Unus tamen relinquitur et nonnunquam alter qui prioris et conventus utcumque tumentur nomen; et hi, quia neque se ali neque sarta tecta domus diu defendi posse vident, libenter quidem (si per Majestatis Regiæ veniam liceret) domo cederent et ædificiis obirent. Quocirca non dubitamus quin Regia Majestas, (cuius est singularis providentia et in ejusmodi rebus summum imperium et autoritas ex augustissimi sui concilii sententia, cuius te non immerito caput et principem esse putamus,) in alios usus meliores et probiores illud cœnobium brevi convertet. Quod si velit eo augere collegium aliquod et precipue nostrum, etiãsi non est ille locus admodum amplus et spatiosus, nobis tamen accessio videbitur facta maxima, et faciet certe Majestas Ejus rem Academiæ gratam, nobis necessariam et nobilissimo Principi ac posteris ejus fortasse non injucundam. Solebant enim illustrissimi Regis nostri majores, si quando forte fortuna Cantabrigiam venissent, in nostrum collegium fere semper divertere, vel quod ab oppidi strepitu et turba sit remotus vel quod anni vicinus vel quod non inamœne situm sit. Itaque si locus ille, pro lapsis jam cœnobii ædificiis, vel horreis vel fortasse coriarii officina fuerit interceptus, poterit et nobis esse incommodus et si quid tale contingat Ejus Majestati et augustissimæ soboli esse molestus: sin fuërit ad necessarios nostri collegii usus, ad quos tale quiddam desideramus et vehementer egemus, distributus, non solum nos immortaliter eo beneficio nostra causa gaudebimus, verum etiam vehementer lætabimur, quod et ad Regiam quoque Majestatem nonnullum illius beneficii fructum perventurum esse speremus.

Quocirca te majorem in modum rogamus, amplissime Dñe, ut ipse annuere ac favere petitioni huic nostræ velis; quod si feceris, apud Regem serenissimum ac benignissimum nrm Dnm tanti scimus (nec injuria) tuam esse auctoritatem, ut vehementer speremus nos id quod postulamus brevi impetraturos. Quod quidem si contingat, sciat tua Dominatio te tuis oratoribus rem maxime necessariam et iucundissimam fecisse et cuius memoriam non ingratus semper sumus habituri. Bene valeat tua Dominatio in Chrō. Cantabrigiæ ex collegio Regiæ viij^o Augusti.

p. 245, last line. The following letter (MS. Harl. 604. fo. 75. 76.) by 'William Glynn, priest,' to 'Mr Thomas Cromwell, secretary to the king's highnes,' and therefore written between 1534 and 9 July 1536 (Cooper, Ath. i. 73) may have been the composition of William Glynn, fellow of Queens'; where he then was living is not stated; in that period he may have had leave of absence and been engaged in serving some church.

p. 246, l. 10. The following is the account of William Glynn's behaviour on this occasion given by Alban Langdale (Cooper, Ath. i. 509) in the Epistola nuncupatoria (pp. 7-8.) prefixed to his Catholica confutatio cujusdam determinationis D. Nicolai Ridlei (4to. Lutet. 1556).

Quid multis? primi dici disputatione sic peracta, publice ante dimissam scholam, visitatorum jussu, tale edictum subito proponitur, ut si quis infra unum et alterum diem velit contrariam partem (catholicam dicimus) defendere ac tueri, liceret: quod ita gestum est, quasi, si nemo assurgeret, ipsi perpetuo omnibus silentium sua autoritate imponerent. Jam hic alius subinde alium aspectat, imo qui huic muneri se ultro offerat, expectat potius. Silent omnes, et trementes quidam, ne tam gloriosam apud suos victoriam reportarent, quum re ipsa, invicta argumentorum vi, quæ contra eo die vibrata sunt, ipsi jam vulnerati plane ceciderant: ne, inquam, vicisse se (quod ubique solent) et cunctis ora clausisse gloriarentur, timebant omnes boni. Tota itaque concione alto silentio persistente, ecce tibi virum [‘D. Glynum indicat nunc Bangoriensem episcopum.’ Marg.] qualem vis dicam? certe, vel illorum omnium judicio, et gravitate maturum, et pietate doctum, qui jam cognitione linguarum peritus, et sacræ Theologiæ, lectionem publicam, professor, magna cum laude diu prelegerat. Is se murum æreum (ut prophetæ verbis dicam) pro vero Israele opponere non dubitavit, et respondentis sedem suo tempore capessens, declarationem suam (quam positionem Cantabrigienses appellamus) sic e psalmo orsus est: Credidi (ait propheta) propter quod locutus sum: et nos (inquit ille) credimus propter quod et loquimur, et cætera: quo quidem orationis suæ divino exordio, illorum animos sic percussit, sic piorum mentes refecit, ut hos erectos, illos jacentes jam videas. De ejus viri responsione quid dicam? eorum sophismata, seu confictas contra veritatem rationes ita dissolvit, ita effregit, ut quivis, nisi qui sibi lumina ipse clauserat, videret.

THE HISTORY OF THE QUEENS' COLLEGE, OF
SAINT MARGARET AND SAINT BERNARD IN THE

THE FOUNDATION.

IN their present form, most of the colleges in the old universities of England are the result of many successive enlargements, for at first their foundations were often very humble. They were also not unfrequently derived from small previous colleges or halls; Gonville and Caius college, Trinity college, St Mary Magdalene college, Christ's college are examples of this; but the one whose early history most nearly resembles that of Queens' college is the neighbouring King's college, where on the site of St Nicholas' hostel (among others) the small foundation of the King's college of St Nicholas for one rector and twelve scholars soon expanded into the magnificent one of the King's college of our Lady and St Nicholas with its provost and seventy scholars.

In a similar way the existing Queens' college of St Margaret and St Bernard had a predecessor in the college of St Bernard, named probably after the still earlier St Bernard's hostel.

As it existed only 16 months, its history is necessarily a very short one, but since (as will be seen) the two foundations were intimately connected, what is known of St Bernard's college will fitly come first.

Of the history of St Bernard's hostel, whose principal, Andrew Doket, was the first president of Queens' college, nothing is known previous to the middle of the fifteenth century. Andrew Doket may have been the founder of the hostel as he was certainly the owner of it, but the date of its establishment and erection have not come down to us. After the foundation of the college, the hostel became a mere appendage to it; and though it is mentioned by Fuller among the larger hostels for 'Artistæ' and as having a considerable number of Regents, besides non-Regents above them and young students beneath them, residing in it, yet the particulars concerning it that are recorded are very few in number; and as besides this the hostel itself had no share in the foundation of the college, an account of it will be found with the history of the other hostels that belonged to Queens' college.

The College of St Bernard,

FIRST FOUNDATION, 3 DEC. 1446.

CAREFUL search has failed to bring to light any earlier document or paper referring directly to this short-lived college than the charter of Henry VI. for its foundation. The deed itself is not preserved, but there is an enrolment of it in the Public Record Office (Charter 25 and 26 Hen.VI. n. 37. Documents relating to the univ. and coll. of Cambr. Lond. 1852, i. 49), and the loss of the charter is the less to be regretted, as its contents may also be known from a subsequent deed of 21 Aug. 1447.

By this first charter the King Henry VI. did,—‘to the glory and honour of Almighty God, in whose hands are the hearts of kings, and of the blessed virgin Mary, the mother of Christ, and of the glorious confessor St Bernard, for the extirpation of heresies and errors, the augmentation of the faith, the advantage of the clergy, and the stability of the church, whose mysteries ought to be entrusted to fit persons, who should shine like stars in their courses, and, by learning and example alike, instruct the people,'—on 3 Dec. 1446 found a college for a president and four fellows, more or less, according to the increase or decrease of their means, in the university of Cambridge by the name of St Bernard's college.

The site whereon the college was proposed to be erected was a plot of ground described as situate in the parish of St Botolph, between messuages of the nuns of St Radegundis (Tanner, Not. Mon. 43), Andrew Docket clerk and others, on the south side, and messuages of the convent of Sawtry (Tanner, 194) and Benet Morys dyer, on the north side, abutting on the east side on Trumpington street, and on the west on the street leading towards the Carmelite friars. The length from east to west was 277½ feet, and its breadth from 72 to 75 feet. It had been made over to the King for this purpose of founding a college, by Richard Andrewe, burgess of Cambridge, by a deed of the previous 8 Nov. (1446).

The society, as constituted by this charter, consisted of

Andrew Docket, president, and John Lawe,
 Alexander Forkclowe,
 Thomas Heywode,
 John Carewey, clerks, the first fellows.

By this charter also

John Somerseth, chancellor of the king's exchequer,
 John Langton, chancellor of the university,
 Richard Cawedray,
 Peter Hirford,
 Gilbert Worthington, and

were appointed to draw up statutes for the government of the new college of St Bernard.

The land given by Richard Andrewe did not however become the site of the actual buildings, and part of St Catherine's college stands on it. For before anything could have been done towards beginning the walls, the society procured a piece of ground near to the river, and this, together with four tenements obtained about the same time, they made over to the King by the following deed of 1 Aug. 25 Hen. VI. 1447:—

Omnibus ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit, Andreas Docket, clericus, presidens collegii sancti Bernardi in Cantebrigia et socii ejusdem collegii, Salutem in Domino sempiternam.

Sciatis [quod] nos unanimi assensu et voluntate dedimus concessimus et hoc presenti scripto nostro pro nobis et successoribus nostris confirmavimus illustrissimo principi et domino, domino Henrico, Dei gratia nunc regi Anglie et Francie et domino Hybernie, unum mesuagium cum domibus et gardino eidem mesuagio adjacentibus que Benedictus Lyster tenet ad firmam, et jacet in Cantebrigia predicta in parochia sancti Botulphi inter tenementum Johannis Morys armigeri et tenementum collegii Corporis Christi ac tenementum Thome Forster et viam regiam vocatam Smalebriggestrete ex parte australi et habitationem fratrum Carmelitarum ville Cantebrigie ex parte boreali, et abbuttat ad unum caput super ripariam versus occidentem et ad alterum caput abbuttat super venellam vocatam Milstrete versus orientem: que quidem mesuagium domos et gardinum nuper [24 Jul.] habuimus ex dono et concessione predicti Johannis Morys et Elizabeth uxoris sue. Dedimus etiam et concessimus et hoc presenti scripto nostro pro nobis et successoribus nostris confirmavimus, prefato domino Regi quatuor tenementa cum gardinis eisdem tenementis adjacentibus et ceteris suis pertinentiis situata et jacentia in dicta parochia sancti Botulphi inter angulare mesuagium nuper dicti Johannis Morys et Elizabeth uxoris sue jacens juxta ripariam ibidem ex parte occidentali et tenementum dicti collegii Corporis Christi in Cantebrigia ex parte orientali et viam regiam vocatam Smalebriggestrete ex parte australi et gardinum nuper prefati Johannis Morys et dicte Elizabeth uxoris ejus ex parte boreali,—que quidem quatuor tenementa cum gardinis et suis pertinentiis nos prefati presidens et socii nuper [26 Jul.] habuimus ex dono et concessione predicti Johannis Morys et Johannis Battsford de Chesterton, habenda et tenenda omnia et singula predicta mesuagium domos gardina et tenementa cum omnibus suis pertinentiis prefato domino Regi heredibus et assignatis suis imperpetuum.

Et nos vero prefati presidens et socii et successores nostri predictum mesuagium domos gardina et tenementa cum suis pertinentiis eidem domino Regi heredibus et assignatis suis contra omnes gentes warrantizabimus et imperpetuum defendemus.

In cuius rei testimonium huic presenti scripto nostro sigillum nostrum commune est appositum hiis testibus: Thoma Crosse, tunc majore ville Cantebrie, Simone Renkyn, Johanne Scot, Johanne Sexteyn, Johanne Lawe, tunc ballivis ejusdem ville, Benedicto Morys, Willelmo Alrede, Henrico Symson, Roberto Malpas et aliis. Datum apud Cantebriam predictam, primo die Augusti, anno regni predicti domini regis Henrici sexti post conquestum vicesimo quinto.

To this document the college seal is appended. It is round, nearly two inches in diameter. The field is divided into three compartments. In the centre one is seen St Bernard under a canopy holding a book in his right hand, and in his left a pastoral staff: beneath him is a shield bearing the royal arms of England and France quartered. On each side of the saint are elaborate canopies: beneath that on the dexter side are four kneeling figures, and beneath that on the sinister side is one kneeling figure, doubtless to represent the four fellows and the president of the college. Behind the president is a standing figure of an angel in an alb, swinging a censer. The inscription in small gothic letters is

The deed itself is of parchment and measures 13 inches by 5 inches.

The society also returned the foundation charter into the king's chancery with the petition, that it might be cancelled and another charter granted refounding the college on the new site next to the house of the Carmelite friars: for this seemed to the president and fellows more favourable to the prospects of their new college, as giving greater scope to its buildings; this they mentioned in the deed of surrender, referred to in the charter of 21 Aug.

The messuage and tenements thus conveyed to the King form the site of the first court, of the cloister court, and of part of the fellows' building. The tenements belonging to John Morys, Thomas Forster, and Corpus Christi college, which occupied the position of the 'return' of the fellows' building, were not acquired till later.

SECOND FOUNDATION, 21 AUG. 1447.

The King acceded to the request of the society, and a charter of the following 21 Aug. (25 Hen. VI. 1447) revoked the former charter, and refounded the college of St Bernard on the new site. It is by this deed, still remaining in the college treasury, that we are made acquainted with the provision of the charter of 3 Dec. 1446.

The name of the college, the president and the four fellows constituted by it, are the same as in the earlier charter, but as in the mean time John Langton, chancellor of the university, and Gilbert Worthington had died, other framers of the statutes were appointed in their stead, viz.

John Sperhawk, and Hugh Damlet.

The college was empowered to hold lands, and advowsons and other ecclesiastical property in mortmain to the amount of £100 per annum, a licence which was soon after greatly extended. In this charter the King appears in some degree to claim the credit of being the founder of the college, as the reason for its exemption from all corrodies, pensions, etc., (which might be granted by the King 'ratione dicte foundationis nostri') is expressed in the words, 'eo quod collegium predictum de fundatione nostra, ut premittitur, existit.'

The witnesses to this charter were John Stafford, archbishop of Canterbury, lord high chancellor,

William Booth, bishop of Lincoln,
 Marmaduke Lumley, bishop of Carlisle, lord treasurer, Adam Moleyns, bishop of Chichester, lord keeper of the privy seal,
 Richard, duke of York, father of Edward IV,
 Humphry Stafford, duke of Buckingham,
 Edmund Beaufort, marquis of Dorset,
 William de la Pole, marquis of Suffolk,
 Richard Neville, earl of Salisbury,
 John Talbot, earl of Shrewsbury,
 Sir Ralph Cromwell, afterwards lord treasurer, Sir John Stourton, treasurer of the royal household, and others.

The charter of foundation is as follows :—

Per ipsum regem et de data predicta auctoritate parliamenti.

Appended to the charter is the great seal of England.

About this time Margaret of Anjou, the queen of Henry VI., addressed a petition to him, begging to have the foundation and naming of the college. It is here given from the original preserved among the college muniments:—

Margaret

R H

To the King my souverain lord.

BESECHETH mekely Margarete quene of Englond youre humble wif, Forasmuche as youre moost noble grace hath newly ordeined and stablissed a collage of seint Bernard in the Universite of Cambridge with multitude of grete and faire privilages perpetuelly appertenyng unto the same as in youre lres patentes therupon made more plainly hit appereth In the whiche universite is no collage founded by eny quene of Englond hidertoward, Plese hit therfore unto youre highnesse to yeve and graunte unto youre seide humble wif the fondacōn and determinacōn of the seid collage to be called and named the Quenes collage of sainte Margerete and saint Bernard, or ellis of sainte Margarete vergine and martir and saint Bernard confessour, and therupon for ful evidence thereof to have licence and pouoir to ley the furst stone in her owne persone or ellis by other depute of her assignement, so that beside the mooste noble and glorieus collage roial of our Lady and saint Nicholas founded by your highnesse may be founded and stablissed the seid so called Quenes collage to conservacōn of oure feith and augmentacōn of pure clergie namely of the impresse of alle sciences and facultees theologic. . to the ende there accustomed of plain lecture and exposicōn botraced with docteurs sentence autentiq' performed daily twyes by two docteurs notable and wel avised upon the bible aforenoone and maistre of the sentences afternoone to the publique audience of alle men frely bothe seculiers and religieus to the magnificence of denominacōn of suche a Quenes collage and to laud and honneure of sexe femenine, like as two noble and devoute contesses of Pembroke and of Clare founded two collages in the same universite called Pembroke halle and Clare halle the wiche are of grete reputacōn for good and worshipful clerkis that by grete multitude have be bredde and brought forth in theym, And of youre more ample grace to graunte that all privileges immunitees profites and comodites conteyned in the l̄res patentes above reherced may stonde in their strength and pouoir after forme and effect of the conteine in theym. And she shal ever prey God for you.

This document is written on parchment, 13 inches by 7 inches: the queen as a royal personage puts her name at the top, and the letters R H are the King's own sign manual, by which he countersigned the petition on returning it to the queen granted. Its date must be between 21 Aug. 1447 and 30 March, 1448.

What prompted queen Margaret to undertake the patronage of the college,—whether (as Fuller says) ‘as Miltiades’ trophy in Athens would not suffer Themistocles to sleep, so this Queen beholding her husband’s bounty in building King’s college was restless in herself with holy emulation until she had produced something of the like nature, a strife wherein wives without breach of duty may contend with their husbands which should exceed in pious performances,’—or whether Andrew Doket, finding the King too busy with the affairs of state and the management of his own two foundations, King’s college and Eton college, contrived to engage the queen’s interest in a similar work,—there is no evidence to shew.

Any how the college gladly accepted the queen as their patroness, and a second time returned their charter into chancery to be revoked, and resigned into the King’s hands all the lands which they possessed, with the petition that he would grant them to queen Margaret together with the licence to found ‘another college in honour of the glorious virgin St Margaret and of St Bernard, on the ground late of John Morys of Trumpington esquire.' The King acceded to the joint request of his queen and the college, and so St Bernard's college finally disappears. Its only memorials are the charters, a few deeds referring to its sites and its seal; for though the will of John Caraway of Cambridge (mentioned p. 30) contains a bequest to St Bernard's college, it really belongs by its date (26 May, 1449) to queen Margaret's college.

The Queens' college of St Margaret and St Bernard, 30 March, 1448.

LETTERS patent under the great seal were issued on 30 March, 1448, granting to Margaret of Anjou the lands of St Bernard's college and licence to found a college. It is printed in the 'Documents relating to the university and colleges of Cambridge,' iii. 1 ff. in the Inspeximus charter of 1 Henry VIII. This is the charter mentioned in the calendar of the Patent Rolls

(1802, fo.), 26 Hen. VI. p. 292, n. 39, as 'Perampla fundatio ac dotatio pro collegio S. Bernardi Cant.'

It is here transcribed from the original in the college treasury:—

Preterea concessimus et licentiam dedimus pro nobis et successoribus nostris quantum in nobis est per presentes prefate consorti nostre quod ipsa (immediate post foundationem erectionem facturam et stabilimentum collegii predicti ac post perfectionem et ordinationem predictorum presidentis et sociorum ejusdem collegii per eandem consortem nostram in forma predicta fiendam) predicta fundos sive sola et tenementa cum pertinentiis prefatis presidenti et sociis et successoribus suis, tam pro domibus et edificiis eorumque mansionibus et aliis necessariis suis in et super eadem fundos sive sola et tenementa construendis et faciendis, quam in perpetuam augmentationem sustentationis eorundem presidentis et sociorum et successorum suorum, dare possit et concedere, necnon eisdem presidenti et sociis quod ipsi fundos sive sola et tenementa predicta cum suis pertinentiis a prefata consorte nostra in forma predicta recipere et tenere possint sibi et successoribus suis imperpetuum similiter tenore presentium licentiam dedimus specialem, dicto statuto de terris et tenementis ad manum mortuam non ponendis edito non obstante.

Et insuper volumus concedimus et licentiam damus pro nobis heredibus et successoribus nostris quantum in nobis est per presentes, prefatis episcopo, Johanni Somerseth, Ricardo Cawedray, Petro, Hugoni, Thome Boleyn et Willelmo Millyngton quod ipsi septem dum vixerint seu eorum major pars, et post decessum alicuius vel aliquorum eorum sic superviventium major pars ordinationes et statuta predicta corrigere emendare reformare seu totaliter mutare et cum eis dispensare ac nova ordinationes et statuta pro bona et sana gubernatione collegii prenotati facere poterunt vel poterit, juxta que presidentes et socii collegii prelibati ex tunc in eodem collegio futuri et existentes regi et gubernari debeant, ac modo et forma prenotatis amovendi et privandi existant.

Ulterius concessimus et licentiam dedimus pro nobis heredibus et successoribus nostris quantum in nobis est per presentes prefatis presidenti et sociis, quod postquam iidem presidens et socii in forma predicta perfecti creati et ordinati existant, ipsi et eorum successores presidens et socii collegii predicti perquirere possint terras tenementa et redditus nec non advocaciones ecclesiarum et aliorum beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum quorumcumque tam de terris et tenementis que de nobis in capite per servicium militare aut per aliquod aliud servicium seu de aliis quam de nobis per quodcumque servicium teneantur, que quidem terre tenementa redditus et ecclesia et alia beneficia ecclesiastica quecumque ad ducentas libras per annum se attingunt, habenda et tenenda terras tenementa redditus et advocaciones illa eisdem presidenti et sociis et successoribus suis in liberam puram et perpetuam elemosinam imperpetuum, et eadem ecclesias et beneficia quecumque appropriare et ea sic appropriata in proprios usus suos tenere sibi et successoribus suis pro eorum sustentatione in victu vestitu aliisque necessariis eorum agenda imperpetuum absque molestatione vel impetitione nostri heredum seu successorum nostrorum aut aliorum quorumcumque, statuto predicto seu aliquo alio statuto sive ordinatione in contrarium edito facto seu ordinato non obstante :

et hoc absque aliquo feodo magno vel parvo aut fine quocumque nobis heredibus seu successoribus nostris reddendo solvendo vel faciendo pro premissis vel aliquo premissorum, quod expressa mentio de aliis donis et concessionibus per nos prefate consorti nostre ante hec tempora factis in presentibus facta non existit juxta formam statutorum inde editorum non obstante.

In cuius rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Westmonasterium tricesimo die Martii anno regni nostri vicesimo sexto. KIRKEHAM.

Per ipsum regem et de data predicta auctoritate parliamenti.

This deed measures 26 inches by $17\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and has appended to it the great seal of England.

In the letters patent, which in pursuance of this permission the queen issued on 15 April 26 Hen. VI. 1448, she first recites the King's charter of 30 March, and then, repeating the provisions of it in her own name with little or no variation, proceeds 'in the name of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, and of the glorious virgin Mary, and of St Margaret and of St Bernard, by virtue and authority of the King's licence,' to found a college for one president and four fellows, by the name of the Queen's College of St Margaret and St Bernard; or, in Latin, Collegium Reginale Sancte Margarete et Sancti Bernardi.

As this charter contains no new points, the queen's own words only are transcribed from the original in the college treasury; indeed, this charter is quite ignored in the confirmation charters of 2 Hen. VIII. and 3 Edw. VI., where the King's charter alone is recited.

MARGARETA DEI GRATIA Regina Anglie et Francie et Domina Hibernie, Filia Regis Sicilie et Jerusalem, Universis et singulis sancte matris ecclesie filiis, ad quorum notitiam presentes litere et contenta in eisdem pervenerint, Salutem in omnium Salvatore.

Cum illustrissimus et metuendissimus Princeps et Dominus meus, Dominus Henricus nunc rex Anglie et Francie et Dominus Hibernie sextus post conquestam vicesimo primo die Augusti anno regni sui vicesimo quinto, per quandam cartam suam, ad laudem gloriam et honorem omnipotentis Dei, etc. (nearly as in the king's deed of 30 March)

NOS VERO premissa interna meditatione fore pia et meritoria intime considerantes eaque perficere ac perimplere cupientes et ad hujusmodi collegii erectionem foundationem et stabilimentum, in nomine Sancte et Individue Trinitatis, Patris Filii et Spiritus Sancti, et gloriose virginis Marie sancteque Margarete et sancti Bernardi prelibatorum, vigore et auctoritate licentie regie nobis (ut prefertur) in hac parte per litteras superius specificatas date et concesse, procedimus ad laudem gloriam et honorem omnipotentis Dei, etc. (nearly as before).

In quorum omnium et singulorum premissorum testimonium has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes.

Datum quinto decimo die Aprilis anno regni predicti domini mei regis Henrici sexti post conquestum vicesimo sexto supra-dicto.

This deed, measuring 37 inches by 23 inches, bears appended the seal of the queen which is circular, $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter, and shews the queen's arms crowned and supported by a griffin and an eagle, surrounded by the inscription

Sigillum Margarete dei gratia regine anglie et francie et domine hibernie filie regis sicilie et ierlm.

From the words 'auctoritate apostolica et regia,' used in a document transcribed p. 46, it would seem, that besides the royal charter a papal bull was procured for the foundation of Queens' college, as was the case with most colleges and universities in those days. If this were the case, the bull was sent to London in 1535 together with all charters, statutes, etc. of the university and the colleges, and possibly destroyed, as Mr W. Nelson, of the Public Record office, was not able, after diligent enquiry, to discover it there; nor is there any transcript of it among the 'Vatican papers' in the British Museum (Addit. MSS. 15351—15400). However, archbishop Parker in the account of the colleges appended to his work, De antiquitate Britannicæ ecclesiæ, and written about 1571, has in his notice of Queens' college placed the words 'ex diplomate pontificio' opposite the statement, that Andrew Duket was the founder of the college: may we conjecture from this, that he saw the papal bull for the foundation after the reformation, and that therefore it may yet be in existence?

In these two charters of Henry and Margaret, the same society was constituted as in the earlier ones of St Bernard's college, viz.

Andrew Doket, president, and John Lawe,
 Alexander Forkelowe,
 Thomas Heywode, and John Carewey, clerks, the four fellows.

They were to form a corporation able to sue and to be sued, with a common seal, and having licence to hold property in mortmain to the amount of £200 per annum.

The statutes were to be framed by William Booth, bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, John Somerseth,

 Richard Cawedray,
 Peter Hirford,
 Hugh Damlet,
 Thomas Boleyn, and William Millington, clerks.

* * *

We will now glance at the history of those persons who were concerned in the foundation of the two colleges.

Of the royal patroness, Margaret of Anjou, it is not necessary to say much. She was daughter of René, count of Anjou and of Provence, duke of Bar and Lorraine, and titular king of Sicily and Jerusalem, and was born 23 March 1428-9; she was espoused to Henry VI. in Nov. 1444, married to him at Southwick Hampshire, 22 April, and crowned at Westminster, 30 May, 1445. She was then, at the time when she accepted or assumed the patronage of the college, only in her nineteenth year, but in spite of her youth was becoming rapidly the most important personage in the realm.

Of Andrew Doket, the first president of the college, it will be more convenient to put together all that is known in his place in the series of the presidents of the later foundation.

Concerning the four fellows appointed by the charters of 1446, 1447 and 1448, not much has been found.

In the list of witnesses to the deed of surrender of St Bernard's college, the name of John Lawe, bailiff of Cambridge occurs; he may have been a relation of John Lawe, clerk, fellow of the college. The name of this latter occurs in a list of benefactors of about the year 1480.

Alexander Forkelowe, clerk, was the second on the list of the first fellows. He was living in 1472, as he is mentioned in the 'Vellum Inventory' of that date as having in his possession a chalice belonging to the chapel. Mr Thomas Faircloughe, probably a relative of the fellow, occurs in the list of benefactors above mentioned. He was vicar of Rickling, Essex, being instituted 13 April, 1444; he resigned before 1 Oct. of the same year (Newcourt, Rep. ii. 493). In MS. Baker xxx. 200, we find, 'Anno 1444 Jul. 27, admissus fuit Th. Fairclogh ad ecclesiam parochialem de Lolworth,' and in the register of bishop Bourchier (MS. Addit. [Cole] 5826, fo. 15[16]), '13 Nov. 1448 Holbourne, the bishop adm. and inst. Sir Wm. Marleburgh, chaplain, to the R. of Lolleworth on the Resig. of M. Tho. Fairclogh by his proxy M. Alexander Fairclogh at the present. of Hen. Langley esq., reserving to Mr Tho. Fairclogh an annual pension till he should be provided with another benefice. fo. 19 b.' Another of the same name, Geoffry Ferklow or Faireclogh, was fellow of Pembroke hall in 1444 (Hawes and Loder's Framlingham, 215).

The surnames of these two fellows occur in the deeds of the first site of St Bernard's college. On 20 Aug. 1446, John Lawe and Thomas Forkelawe, clerks, and John Aldreth, citizen, bought two separate tenements in St Botolph's parish, the one of Henry Symmesson and Agnes his wife, the other of Henry Symmeson and Thomas Good, citizens of Cambridge. These two they made over to Richard Andrewe on 6 Sept. On 20 Oct. a tenement adjoining to it and touching it on the east side was made over to Richard Andrewe by Agnes, widow of Thomas Jacob, and John More, clerk, and Richard Sextein, executors of the deceased. These three properties formed the piece of ground given by Richard Andrewe to the King on 8 Nov. for the purpose of founding a college. John Lawe was probably the fellow, and Thomas Faircloughe or Forkelawe the rector of Lolworth above mentioned.

Of Thomas Heywode nothing appears, save that he is mentioned as fellow of Queens' college in a deed of 6 March 1448-9. He was alive in Sept. 1459.

John Carewey was the fourth fellow. Mr John Carawey of Cambridge, son of.....and Margaret Carawey, bequeathed to the new college of St Bernard all the books which he had in gift from his uncle (patruus) Mr John Carawey, 'in perpetuam memoriam pro anima ipsius et anima mea habendam inter socios dicti collegii,' except a book 'cum devotionibus,' which he left to Andrew Doket, and a portiforium, which was to be sold, and its price laid out for the souls of his uncle and himself. He desired to be buried within the sanctuary of the church of St Vigor at Fulbourn, and left small bequests to that church and to St Botolph's in Cambridge. His executors were Andrew Doket, Mr Geoffry Bishop, vicar of Fulbourn All Saints (Blomefield, Collect. Cantab. 41), to whom he left 'unum caminum de ferro,' and Mr Thomas Carawey. As supervisor of his will he appointed William Wilflete, rector of Fulbourn St Vigor's, master of Clare hall, chancellor of the university 1458, and dean of Stoke college 1454—70 (Masters's Hist. of C. C. C., App. p. 38). His will was made 26 May, and proved 5 June 1449 before the vice-chancellor Dr Nicholas Swaffham in the adjoining house of the Carmelite friars. By a reference to the dates it will be seen, that though he mentions the new college of St Bernard, that college had more than a year before been transformed into that of St Margaret and St Bernard. He therefore perhaps was not the fellow. Also, since he mentions a rector of St Vigor's, he was not the John Carewey, rector 15 Oct. 1442, 'who gave above 100 acres of land to that parish, and who was buried in that church, where his monument still exists.' (Blomefield, Collect. Cantab. 37, Charity Reports, xxxi. 118, Lysons' Cambr. 198).

A fifth fellow appears on 6 March 1448-9, Peter Hyrforde, whom we have seen nominated as one of the framers of the statutes in all the foundation charters, and who, in a deed of the above-mentioned date, occurs with Thomas Heywode as fellow. On 22 Feb. 1412-3, Peter Hirforde, B.A., in the new chapel of the university before Eudo la Zouch, LL.D. the chancellor, and the venerable congregation of the masters, regent and non regent, renounced the conclusions and opinions of Wycliffe, and took an oath that he would never teach, approve or defend those conclusions, opinions, books or treatises, but resist the same and all favouring them in the schools or elsewhere, to the utmost of his power. Wycliffe's name is not mentioned in the instrument setting forth the proceedings, but his opinions are referred to as those which had been condemned by a provincial constitution made at St Paul's, London (MS. Hare, ii. 26, Cooper, Ann. i. 153). In Lewis' life of Reginald Pecoock (ed. 1820, p. 142) he is mentioned with Gilbert Worthington, William Millyngton, Hugh Damlet and other doctors as opponents of bishop Pecoock in their sermons, lectures, and determinations. He was confessor to John duke of Bedford, regent of France, and witness to his will made 10 Sept. 1435 (Nicolas, Test. Vetusta, 243). Peter Hirford [Peter Irforth] also occurs as one of the arbitrators in a dispute between Pembroke hall and St Thomas hostel respecting the appointment of the outer principal of the hostel on 16 Sept. 1446. (MS. Baker, xxxv. 384). He was D.D. and was a benefactor to the college. His exequiæ were celebrated in the college chapel, with those of William Alnewyk bishop of Lincoln, on 6 April.

In a MS. in Caius college library n. 249. art. 9. p. 193, at the end of a history of the early times of Cambridge by John Herryson is a short list of members of the university, among whom as belonging to the author's times (1464) is mentioned Mr Petrus Bev'ley alias Hertforth.

Annexed is a table of the framers of the statutes appointed by the several charters :

John Somerseth, chancellor of the king's exchequer, 19—25 Hen. VI., was also one of the framers of the statutes of King's college. He was fellow of Pembroke hall (Leland, Collect. v. 403. Hawes and Loder's Framlingham, 212), and it was through his and Langton's influence with Henry VI. that the king was so great a benefactor to that college. Somerseth was also a benefactor to other colleges, and was one of those to whom Henry VI. gave in trust all the possessions of the alien priories in England (Rot. Pat. 19 Hen. VI. [1441] p. 1. m. 30). He was physician to the king, 'who in 1428 granted him an annuity of £40 by way of reward out of the issues of the city of London during pleasure, also a furred robe and lining, as other royal physicians had been accustomed to have.' He was one of the witnesses to the will of Thomas duke of Exeter, 29 Dec. 1426 (Nicolas, Testamenta Vetusta. 210). He attested in his own hand that the 'Bedford Missal' was presented by the duchess of Bedford to the king in 1430 (Gough, Account &c. 19). In 1443 he was keeper of the Exchange and King's Mint within the Tower of London, and of the coinage of gold and silver within the realm of England (Rot. Pip. 21 Hen. VI. Lond. and Midd.). In 1442 Thomas de Beckington the king's secretary, and afterwards bishop of Bath and Wells, was sent on an embassy to the count of Armagnac to negotiate a marriage between Henry VI.

and one of the count's daughters. On his return from France in 1443, the bishop stayed at the house of Mr Somerseth at Maidenhead or Chiswick.

In 1446, King Henry VI. by letters patent granted to master John Somerseth licence to found a hospital and fraternity or guild, in a certain chapel likewise founded by him at Brentford-end in the parish of Isleworth, to be dedicated to the honour of the Nine Orders of Holy Angels (Rot. Pat. 25 Hen. VI. p. 1, m. 9). In this deed we find that among the trustees to whom the king grants a certain piece of land for the purpose of this charity are master Peter Hynford (probably Peter Hyrford above mentioned), master William Lychfield, rector of All-hallows the great, London, who died 1447 (Newcourt, i. 248. Stow, Survey), and John Coloppe, who are all mentioned as benefactors to Queens' college in the list in Misc. A. (see p. 45).

In his old age he seems to have met at Cambridge with some ungrateful return for all his labours, and on this subject wrote some satirical verses. (Fuller, Cambr. a. 1443. Hearne, Tho. de Elmham, 347 [Querimonia Joh. Somerseth]. 351 [Ob-serv. of Mr Baker.])

John Somerseth died in 1464 (Esc. 4 Edw. IV. n. 20). His exequiæ were celebrated at Queens' on 18 April. He gave or bequeathed a splendid piece of plate to the college, weighing 84 oz.: it was a covered cup in the shape of a tower, and bore the inscription 'Memoriale modicum Johannis Somersete etc. (Inventory of 1472 [see p. 77]).

He was a married man, and his wife Agnes occurs among the benefactors of the college: she is mentioned in Beckington's Journal.

A Master John Somerset was excepted from the effects of the act of resumption 28 Hen. VI.: in the following year the commons prayed that he, with others, might be banished for ever from the king's presence, and he is spoken of as 'late discesid' in 33 Hen. VI. (Rot. Parl. v. pp. 72, 198 b, 216 b, 339). (Nicholas, Journal of Thomas Beckington, 8vo. Lond. 1828, p. 95 and index. Aungier, Hist. of Syon Mon. 215, 220, 460, 544. Tanner, Bibl. Brit. 682. *Not. John Langton was elected fellow of Pembroke hall 1412, and master of that college in 1428. He was prebendary of Lichfield 1421 to Jan. 1427-8, prebendary of Hereford 1437 to 1441. In 1442 he was chancellor of the university, in 1446 vicar of Warsley, Huntingdonshire (Hawes and Loder's Framlingham, 212—214), and made bishop of St David's 1447, being consecrated 7 May. On his death, 20 May of the same year, he was succeeded in the mastership of Pembroke hall by Hugh Damlett. His arms, as given in Blomefield, Collect. Cantab. p. 166, were: Quarterly Or and Sa. over all a bend of the second.

Richard Cawedray was rector of St Vedast, Forster Lane May 1421 to March 1421-2, rector of St Dunstan in the East 1422 to 1435, archdeacon of Bedford 1423 to 1431, prebendary of Holywell in the cathedral of St Paul, Jan. 1424-5, prebendary of Southwell 25 July, 1425 to 22 Oct. 1431, prebendary of Bedford minor in Lincoln cathedral 1427, prebendary of Aylesbury 1431, archdeacon of Lincoln Oct. 1431, and prebendary of Corringham 1435, master or warden of King's hall 1431 to 1439, chancellor of the university 1433 to 1435; he was dean of the collegiate church of St Martin-le-grand 1434, and in Kempe's Historical Notices of the church of St Martin-le-grand, 8vo. London, 1825, pp. 114—151, we find an account of the efforts made by Dean Cawdray to defend the privileges of his church, particularly its right of sanctuary; he was also rector scholarium regis apud Cantebriam 20 to 22 H. VI., about 1441-43 (Doc. relating to the Univ. and Coll. of Cambridge, i. 65). Besides holding these different pieces of ecclesiastical preferment he was much employed in state affairs; in 1418 to 1420 he is mentioned as being much engaged in the negotiations with France, in the earlier instruments he is called clerk of the council, in the later the king's secretary (Rymer, ix. 632, etc.): in 1429 and 1433 also he is mentioned as clerk of the council (Rot. Parl. iv. 361, 437): in the latter year with the annual fee of 40 marks. He died before 26 Aug. 1458, and was commemorated among the benefactors of the college.

There is a Richard Candry mentioned in Fox (ed. Townsend, iii. 717—8) who was proctor for Henry VI. against the Pope's legate, probably identical with the above.

Of Peter Hirforde, who afterwards became fellow of Queens', some mention has already been made.

Gilbert Worthington, D.D. was rector of St Andrew's Holborn from 1433 till his death about Aug. 1447, 'and that he was a most famous preacher and greatly noticed for his good life is testified by Mr Stow in his Chronicle. He was a gentleman well descended, being a younger brother to Hugh Worthington of Worthington Hall within the parish of Standish, in Lancashire' (Newcourt, Rep. i. 274).

Thomas Boleyn was master of Gonville hall from 1454 to 1472. He was besides rector of Chelsea 15 July 1442 (Newcourt), prebendary of Hereford 1441 to 1447, of St Paul's 1447 to 1451, subdean of Wells 1450, and precentor 1451 to 1472. On 7 May, 1434 he had the king's letters of protection for half a year, being about to accompany Edmund Beaufort, earl of Mortaigne, to the general council at Basil (Rymer, x. 578).

John Sperhauk was fellow of Pembroke hall, having been elected during the mastership of John Sudbury, 1411 to 1428. He probably died before 30 March 1448. He was D.D., resigned the church of Abington-by-Shingay, and gave books to Pembroke hall (Hawes and Loder's Framlingham, 213).

Hugh Damlett was fellow of Pembroke hall and B.A. in 1426, proctor of the university in 1432, master of Pembroke hall 1447-50, and rector of St Peter's Cornhill from 18 Oct. 1447 until his death, 17 May 1476 (Hist. of Pembroke hall by Bp. Wren in Leland, Collect. v. 382—412. Hawes and Loder's Framlingham). He was appointed one of the royal commissioners to report to the Pope the dangerous heresies of bishop Reginald Pecock. His arms (as given in Blomefield, Collect. Cantabr. 166) were Sa. ten lozenges arg. two cantons ermine. By his will dated 16 July 1475 and proved 20 April 1476, he bequeathed to Queens' college a copy of Josephus, still preserved in the library (C. 11. 20). 'Item lego collegio domine Regine Cantebryg. Josephum in Antiquitatibus et de bello Judaico in uno volumine.' (MS. Baker xxvi. 358). It is a fine folio printed by Mentelin, 1470? (Brunet, ii. 733 b).

William Booth was prebendary of Southwell 1416 to 1422, chancellor of the church of St Paul, London before 1423, prebendary of Consumpta-per-mare in the same church 1421 to 1443, archdeacon of Middlesex 1429 to 1441, and chancellor to queen Margaret. By the pope's bull of provision, dated 26 Apr. 1447, he was constituted bishop of Coventry and Lichfield; he was consecrated 9 July in the same year, and on 21 July 1452, was translated to York. In 1463 he was chancellor of the university. He died at Southwell in Sept. 1464, and was buried there. His brother, Laurence Booth, was archbishop of York, 1472—1480. (Fuller, Worthies of Cheshire. Le Neve. Newcourt.)

William Millyngton was born at Pocklington, in Yorkshire, and (being D.D.) was appointed first rector of St Nicholas college, and afterwards, in 1443, provost of the King's college of St Mary and St Nicholas. He was deprived of the provostship in 1446. He seems afterwards to have recovered the king's favour and lived at Cambridge in good reputation. He is described as a man of great learning and a staunch opponent of bishop Peacock. He died in 1466, and was buried in St Edward's church, Cambridge. (See Geo. Williams, B.D. fellow of King's college, Notices of William Millyngton..., among the communications made to the Cambridge Ant. Soc. i. 287—328.)

When the crest of the college arms was granted by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux king of arms in 1575, the arms of queen Margaret, with a green border, were in use. In his warrant the queen is stated to have granted to the college 'her arms to be used in the said college.' Of this, however, no evidence has been found, though we might reasonably expect it to be true, as the King by letters patent assigned a coat of arms to his college. The first seal of Queens' college bears indeed the queen's arms, but these were on the second seal replaced by those of queen Elizabeth Wydeville and of England. A seal of the time of Henry VIII. has only the latter; and the present one, engraved 1675, none at all.

The arms as blazoned by the herald were: 'Quarterly: the first quarter barry of eight argent and gules' (for Hungary); 'the second asur semy flowerdelucis gold a labell of three points argent'

(for Naples); 'the third argent a crosse batune between fower crosses golde' (for Jerusalem); 'the forth asur semy flowerde-lucis golde a border gules' (for Anjou); 'the fifte asur two lucis indorced semy crosse crosselets golde' (for Bar); 'the sixt golde on a bend gules thre egles displaide argent' (for Lorraine). 'All the which sixe cotes are inclosed within a border vert.'

On the first seal of the college and on that of queen Margaret the third coat is thus given 'Arg. a cross potent between four small crosses potent or,' but on the coins of Louis I. count of Provence, 1382-84, and even of king René we find a cross potent between four small crosses plain or.

Amid all these foundations and resignations the buildings of the college were actively progressing for the reception of the society. At what precise time they were begun, no documents remain to shew, it must however have been after 24 July, 1447, when the present site was made over to the society by John Morys. On 14 Apr. 26 Hen. VI. 1448, the president and fellows made a contract with John Veyse, draper, and Thomas Sturgeon, carpenter, of Elesnam (Elsenham), Essex, for the wood work of a part of the first court, for £100. This was probably the time when the buildings began to rise out of the ground, as on the following day the first stone of the chapel was laid. The part of the first court, to which the document refers, consisted apparently of the whole of the north and east sides and the eastern half of the south side, comprising the library, chapel, and great gate, with rooms for fellows and students.

This portion seems to have been completed within a year, as in 6 March, 27 Hen. VI. 1448-9, the society made another contract with the same tradesmen, wherein the 'syde next to the freres' is mentioned as being 'now ready framed.' This second contract was for the roof of the hall, the benches in it, the roofs of the buttery, pantry, and kitchen, the other wood work for them, and for the remainder of the south side of the court; it amounted to £80, and was to be done by the contractors 'in as hasty wise as they may goodly after the walls of the seid houses be redy.'

The first indenture of 14 Apr. 26 Hen. VI. 1448, is to the following effect:

The meaning of some of the uncommon terms of carpentry here used, is extracted from the Glossary of Architecture (3 Vols. 8vo. Oxford, 1850):

Ashlers, ashler pieces, short upright pieces, about three feet high, fixed between the rafters and the floors in garrets, in order to make more convenient room by cutting off the acute angles at the bottom.

Gistes, joists, the horizontal timbers in the floor.

Greses, gresyngs, steps or stairs.

Jopees, studs and braces in the roof.

Wynbeam, windbeam, a cross beam used in the principals of many ancient roofs, occupying the situation of the collar in modern king-post roofs, or, also, the ridge piece of a roof.

In consequence of the prevalence of the plague at Cambridge in Jan. 1446-7, the parliament, which had been convened thither, was removed to Bury St Edmunds. The same cause prevented Henry VI. from laying the first stone of King's college chapel on Michaelmas day, 1447 (Cooper, Ann. i. 198-9); and a like reason may have deterred queen Margaret from laying the first stone of the chapel herself, 'pro forma primi operis foundationis illius,' and compelled her to do it by proxy. Though the queen was not present, we may, from the general custom of that age, the fact of the college claiming her patronage, and the number of persons of high rank and position who are recorded among its benefactors, conjecture that the foundation stone was not laid without much pomp and state. The queen's commissioner was sir John Wenlock, her chamberlain, who on 15 Apr. 1448, the very day on which her own charter of foundation was executed, laid the first stone at the south-east corner of the chapel. Her commission to him for this purpose, dated at Windsor, 8 Apr. 26 Hen. VI. 1448, is subjoined:—

Sir John Wenloke, Kt, who acted as the queen's commissioner for the purpose of laying the first stone of the college chapel (primaria petra ecclesie collegii illius), is described as the queen's chamberlain. He was the son of William Wynell alias Wenloke, of Wenlock co. Salop, and was constituted eschaetor for the counties of Buckingham and Bedford in 17 Hen. VI. In 25 Hen. VI. he was usher of the chamber to queen Margaret and the following year he was knighted and made constable of Bamburgh Castle Northumberland. In 28 Hen. VI. he became chamberlain to the queen; he was wounded at the battle of St Albans 1455 and in 36 Hen. VI. was sent to Antwerp in Brabant and other places within the dominions of the duke of Burgundy for dispatch of the most important affairs in those parts. Soon after which he was made knight of the order of the garter. In 38 Hen. VI. he joined the Yorkist party, and when Edward IV. had obtained possession of the throne, he was created a baron and made one of the privy council. King Edward employed him much in embassies to the courts of France, Burgundy and Britany, but when the earl of Warwick restored Henry VI. in 1470, lord Wenlock took part with him, and was killed in the battle of Tewkesbury 4 May, 1471. He married twice, first Elizabeth daughter of sir John Drayton, who was buried in Luton church Bedfordshire, where he had built a handsome chantry, and secondly, in 1468, Ann daughter of Having now given an account of the origin and progress of the college up to its settlement as a corporate body under its present title, the further events in its history will be conveniently distributed under the several masterships, in which they happened. Accordingly we will now proceed with the notices of the different presidents, who during the last four centuries have borne rule over the Queens' college of St Margaret and St Bernard.

THE PRESIDENTS OF QUEENS' COLLEGE.

K. Andrew Doket.

26 Hen. VI.—2 Ric. III.

IN the foundation charters the president is simply termed magister Andreas Doket. Of his earlier history we know very little.

He was principal of St Bernard's hostel, one of the many non-collegiate lodgings for students in Cambridge. It stood in Trumpington Street, on the north side of the churchyard of St Botolph's church, adjoining to the back court of the old Benet college. Mr Doket was also incumbent of that church. In he was presented to the vicarage of St Botolph's, by the society of Corpus Christi college, and became rector 21 Oct. 1444, when the great tithes were restored to it by that college, in whom the patronage of the living was then vested. (Hist. and Ant. of Barnwell Abbey, 65. Lamb, Hist. of C. C. C. 305.)

In 1432 Geoffrey Couper occurs as vicar of St Botolph's, and in a deed of 1439 Andrew Doket. The date when the vicarage of St Botolph's was made again a rectory is taken as above from Dr Lamb, but among the deeds of St Botolph's is one referring to the sale of some land to Andrew Doket, rector, dated 28 March, 22 Hen. VI., i.e. 1444, six months previous.

In the year he was made one of the prebendaries of the free chapel of St Stephen within the palace of Westminster. This preferment he exchanged in 1479 with Dr Walter Oudeby, provost of the college of Cotherstoke or Cotterstock in the county of Northampton near Oundle (MS. Harl. 6963. p. 175). The exchange is thus enrolled in the Patent Rolls of Edward IV. (pat. 19 Edw. IV. m. 19) in the Public Record office.

R. omnibus ad quos etc salutem. Sciatis quod cum magister Andreas Dokket prebendarius in libera capella nostra sancti Stephani infra palatium nostrum Westmonast. et Magister Walterus Oudeby decretorum doctor prepositus de Cotherstoke prebendam et preposituram illas intendunt (ut asserunt) ad invicem canonice permutare, Nos te gratia nostra speciali ac pro eo quod predictus Andreas litteras nostras patentes sibi de prebenda predicta factas nobis in cancellariam nostram ex causa permutationis huiusmodi faciende restituit cancellandas, dedimus et concessimus prefato Waltero dictam prebendam quam predictus Andreas habuit et obtinuit in capella nostra predicta, habendam et tenendam cum suis juribus et pertinentiis quibuscunque. In cuius etc. T. R. Apud Obourn. (Woburn) xxx die Septembr.

Per ipsum et de data etc.

About the year 1336 John Gifford, clerk, canon of York, began a college or very large chantry, consisting of a provost, twelve chaplains and two clerks in the church of St Andrew Cotherstoke. Walter Oudeby was made provost 28 May, 1467. (Reg. Jo. Chedworth, Ep. Linc.) The next provost mentioned is John Deye, M.A. who became provost 1 Oct. 1498. (Reg. W. Smith, Ep. Linc.) This chantry was granted 1 Edw. VI. to Sir Robert Kirkham (Dugdale, Mon. vi. 1374. Tanner, Not. Mon. 387. Bridges, Northamptonshire, [2 vols. fol. 1791] ii. 437-41, where is an imperfect list of provosts.)

St Stephen's chapel within the palace of Westminster was founded 1347 by Edward III. for a dean, twelve canons and other officers; it was suppressed in the reign of Edward VI. In Newcourt, Repert. i. 745-50, is an account of it, but he only gives a list of deans and canons during the reign of Edward III.

In the college treasury is preserved the following deed, which connects Andrew Doket and Walter Oudeby, in reference to some lands at Cotterstock:—

Sciant presentes et futuri quod ego Johannes Morys senior de Cantebrigia armiger filius et heres Nicholai Morys dedi concessi et hac presenti carta mea confirmavi Andree Dokett presidenti collegii sanctorum Margarete et Barnardi Cantebrigie, Radulpho Scropp Radulpho Shawe Waltero Oudeby Johanni Rypplyngham Willelmo Bond et Radulpho Songer clericis omnia terras tenementa prata pascua pasturas redditus et servicia cum omnibus et singulis suis pertinentiis jacentia in villis et campis de Goderstoke Assheton et Sothewyk in com. In cuius rei testimonium presentibus sigillum meum apposui. Data die et anno supradictis.

This deed bears a small seal with an indistinct device.

Andrew Doket became prebendary of Ruiton in the church of Lichfield, being collated to the prebend 22 July 1467. In 1470 he exchanged this for the chancellorship of the same church, which office he resigned 6 July 1476. (Brown Willis, Lichfield, 459, 407. Hardy's Le Neve, i. 584, 622.)

In 1470 he resigned the rectory of St Botolph's, and (as just mentioned) in 1476 became provost of Cotterstock.

There are a few memorials of the private life of Andrew Doket still extant.

Among the Manuscripts in the Library of Jesus College is a volume labelled 'Miscellanea Theologica MSS.' The inscription

lib' magri Andree Doket re^{ct}oris sc̄i Botulfi Cantabr.'

shews, that it once belonged to the first president of Queens' college, though it does not appear among those in the college library in 1472; indeed neither it nor any other book is mentioned in his will. It bears beside the inscription Liber Thomæ Cave.

Quicquid erit, superanda omnis fortuna ferendo est.

(Virg. Aen. v. 710.)

It contains the following tracts :

Libellus valde utiliū p̄ceptorum atq; consiliorum de libris officiorum beatissimi [pape] Ambrosii Mediolanensis collectorum.

Liber S. Jeronimi presbyteri contra Jovinianum.

Sermones Ambrosii de Sacramentis.

Among the deeds in the college treasury is a document of some interest, as connecting Andrew Doket with a clergyman, whose monumental brass still remains in Balsham church Cambridgeshire. It is an acknowledgement by his executor that Andrew Doket had returned certain books borrowed by him of the defunct. It is as follows:—

Noverint universi me Galfridum Blodvell de Balsham in Com. Cantabr. gentyلمان executorem testamenti magistri Johannis Blodvell nuper rectoris de Balsham predicto defuncti recepisse et habuisse die confectionis presencium de magistro Andrea Dokett de Cantabr. clerico novem libros nuper dicti magistri Johannis Blodvell videlicet

Item alium librum in papiro Johannis Andree super sextum secundo folio 'ad rationes'

Item alium librum secundo folio 'glorioso'

Item alium librum secundo folio 'abbas qualiter'

Item alium librum secundo folio 'qualiter per hom . . .'

Item alium librum secundo folio 'sanz confession'

Item Brito secundo folio 'sicut purificasti'

de quibus vero novem libris superius expressatis fateor me bene contentum dictumque magistrum Andream inde acquietum et quietum per presentes sigillo meo consignatas. Datum sexto die mensis Aprilis anno Domini mcccclx^{mo} tercio et anno regni regis Edwardi quarti post conquestum Anglie tercio.

The first work was the Novellæ or commentaries on the five books of the decretals, by John Andree a celebrated professor of canon law at Bologna who died 1348. The second is his Glossæ Mercuriales in vi^{tum} librum et in Clementinas.

John Blodwell was born at Llan-y-blodwell near Oswestry in Shropshire about 1380, and having studied the law at Bologna and practised at Rome, became dean of St Asaph's in 1418, was collated to a prebend in Lichfield cathedral 25 May 1432, to one in that of Hereford 1433, and to a canonry in St David's Cathedral. He was also administrator of the temporalities of the see of Ely for Louis of Luxemburg, archbishop of Rouen, who held it in commendam. (Newcourt, II. 292.) Dr Blodwell was rector of Balsham in 1439. Having grown blind in his old age, he resigned his preferments, having a pension for life reserved, and dwelt at Balsham till his death 16 April, 1462. He is buried in the nave of the church, and on his tomb is a very handsome monumental brass, representing him standing under an arch.

(Illustrations of monumental brasses published by the Cambridge Camden Society, 4to 1846, p. 72. Blomfield, Collect. Cantab. 203-4.)

This document is in a very bad state of preservation, and the writing is in part almost illegible.

There is yet a document of still later date extant, viz. Andrew Doket's deed of fraternization with the Franciscans of Cambridge in 1479.

In Christo Jesu s' fruituro [ac venerabili viro m^{ro} Andree Doget] Fr. Johannes, sacre Theologie Doctor, fratrum minorum conventus Cantebrig. guardianus et servus, salutem in Domino sempiternam et per presentis vite merita regna celestia promereri. Amen.]

The words in brackets are written in a different (fainter) ink from the rest of the deed. The document is of parchment measuring 13½ in. by 5 in.: it has no seal: the initial I is roughly illuminated red and green: it is very much damaged and rubbed.

The house of the Franciscans, Minorites, or Grey-Friars was after the reformation converted into Sidney Sussex college. (A. Pulson, Collectanea Anglo-Minoritica, or a collection of the antiquities of the English Franciscans, 4to, London 1726, where however is no mention of Dr John the Cambridge warden).

‘Most of y^e authors, who mention him of late’ (says Mr Cole) ‘suppose him to be a Minorite or Franciscan Fryar, and y^e Author of y^e History of y^e Antiquities of y^e English Franciscans, to reconcile his being a Secular, as being Rector of a Parish, and holding other Preferments, against the rules of that order, suppose him to have been made a Suffragan Bishop, p. 205, and that he held his benefices to maintain his Dignity. But I think it would be much more reasonable to supposé, that he never was of that Order, seeing we have no authority to support that opinion.’ (MS. Cole vii. Addit. 5808.)

Dr Caius (1574) makes no allusion to this; R. Parker (1622) is mentioned by Pulson as the authority for this opinion. The document just recited may be the cause of it.

We find (Cooper, Ann. i. 192) that master Andrew Dokett, clerk, was one of those who had ceded land to the King for the purpose of his new college, which the king granted to the provost and scholars 10 Feb. 1448-9.

“ A messuage situate in the late parish of St John the Baptist in Milnestrete . . . which messuage the king had by the gift and grant of Hugh Tapton and Andrew Dokett clerks.”

Also among the extracts from the high gable rental of the town of Cambridge for 1483 (Cooper, Ann. i. 228) we find in Mill Ward, “ Master Andrew Docket for a tenement, late in the tenure of William Hed, tailor, 2^d.”

On 4 Nov. 1484 Andrew Docket departed this life, after having prudently and successfully governed his two colleges, St Bernard's college and Queens' college, during 38 years.

His will, dated 2 Nov. 1484 and proved 25 April 1485, is as follows:—

In Dei Nomine Amen. Secundo die mensis Novembris, anno Domini m^l.cccc^{mo} lxxxiii^o Ego Andreas Docket, primus presidens collegii Reginalis Cantebrie, compos mentis et sane memorie, condo testamentum meum in hunc modum.

Imprimis commendo animam meam Deo omnipotenti, beate Marie virgini, et omnibus sanctis, corpusque meum sepeliendum in choro capelle collegii predictae, ubi lecte sunt lectiones.

Volo et quantum in me est precipio omnibus sociis dicti collegii, ut meum post decessum eligant in presidentem dicto collegii meum successorem magistrum Thomam Wilkynson.

Item volo annuatim et pro perpetuo de hospitio meo sancti Bernardi Cantebrie quod percipiantur xl solidi ad sustentationem panis vini cere et olei pro lampade in capella predicti collegii pro sociis dicti collegii ibidem celebrantibus. Insuper volo quod si xxvj^s. et viij^d. non possunt percipi annuatim de terris pasturis apud Stapylforde in comitatu Cantabr. predicto collegio pertinentibus pro complimento voluntatis domini Willelmi Lassby capellani emptis, quod tunc de dicto hospitio tantum exeat quantum ad contentationem dicte summe sufficiat. Residuum annuatim de dicto hospitio proveniens volo quod remaneat executoribus meis, et quod ipsi dum vixerint, vel dum alter eorum vixerit, habeant seu habeat regimen seu discretionem dicti hospitii, et pecunias inde provenientes recipient, et post decessum executorum meorum volo pro perpetuo quod predictum hospitium remaneat dicto collegio, sic semper et in omnibus observent predictam meam legationem de dicto hospicio, cum hoc quod et observent exequias meas in die anniversarii mei conjunctim cum exequiis omnium benefactorum dicti collegii in capella predicti collegii. Et presidens dicti collegii seu ejus vicesgerens ad predictas exequias presens habebit iij^s iiii^d, et unusquisque socius dicti collegii tunc ibi presens xij^d: et volo quod in dictis exequiis distribuantur inter pauperes et specialiter inter pauperes parochie sancti Botulphi Cantebrie pro anima mea et animabus omnium benefactorum dicti collegii usque ad summam xx^s.

Item volo de tenemento in angulo juxta ecclesiam Sancti Botulphi Cantebrie, quod vendatur secundum discretionem executorum meorum, si eis visum fuerit, et de pecuniis per venditionem provenientibus volo quod emanatur terre pasture et tenementa, ita quod de pecuniis inde provenientibus volo quod sint ad discretionem executorum pro salute anime mee, Reginaldi Ely et omnium benefactorum dictorum, et quod executores mei dum vixerint vel alter eorum dum vixerit habeant seu habeat regimen dicti tenementi seu aliarum terrarum per dictos executores meos emptarum, et post decessum executorum meorum volo quod predictum tenementum vel alia terre tenementa per eos empta remaneant vel remaneat dicto collegio, sic quod observent exequias pro anima mea et anima Reginaldi Ely et animabus omnium benefactorum dicti collegii in ecclesia sancti Botulphi Cantabr. in die anniversarii Reginaldi Ely.

Item volo de tribus meis tenementis, in quibus modo habitant tres paupercule mulieres, sint pro perpetuo pro pauperibus ad orandum pro me et animabus omnium benefactorum dicti collegii; et executores mei dum vixerint regimen habeant imponendi pauperes in dicta tenementa, et post decessum executorum meorum impositio pauperum in dicta tenementa presidenti et sociis dicti collegii pro perpetuo remaneat.

Item volo quod omnia proficua proveniencia et debita ad festam sancti Michaelis ante datam presentium omnium terrarum tenementorum pasturarum boscorum seu quovis alio modo pertinentium dicto collegio remaneant executoribus meis, et quod predicti executores mei percipere possint absque interruptione cuiuscunque omnia predicta arreragia de annis preteritis usque ad festum sancti Michaelis ante datam presentium, sic quod predicti executores mei solvant sociis predicti collegii pro salariis suis ad predictum festum eis debitum.

Item volo de gardino meo ante portas dicti collegii juxta tenementum m^{ri}. Duffyld remaneat pro semper dicto collegio, sic quod nullo modo predicti presidens vel socii dicti collegii perturbant vel inquietant, vel aliquis eorum perturbaverit seu inquietaverit executores meos meam perimplendo voluntatem. Quod si (quod absit) predicti socii fecerint vel aliquis eorum fecerit, tunc legatum meum de dicto meo gardino pro non legato habeatur. Et tunc regimen et dispositio predicti gardini mei remaneat discretioni executorum meorum prout eis melius videbitur pro salute anime mee et omnium benefactorum dicti collegii.

Residuum vero omnium bonorum meorum non legatorum do et lego m^{ro} Johanni Rypplyngham et Willelmo Thurkylle, quos ordino et constituo meos veros et legitimos executores, ut ipsi disponant pro salute anime mee et omnium benefactorum dicti collegii.

In cujus rei testimonium sigillum meum apposui, hiis testibus m^{ris} Radulpho Songer, Milone Redall, Geraldo Burelle, Johanne Buttler et Willelmo Fitzjohn et aliis, die et anno quibus supra.

The executors named in the will declined the office and the vice-chancellor granted letters of administration to the president and fellows of the college, 23 Apr. 1485.

Thomas Tuppyn, sacre theologie professor universitatisque Cantabrigie vice-cancellarius dilectis nobis in Christo Thome Wilkynson clerico et presidenti collegii Reginalis ibidem, Radulpho Songer clerico, Dionysio Spycer clerico, Hugoni Trotter clerico omnibusque et singulis dicti collegii sociis salutem in Domino sempiternam.

Quia magister Andreas Dokett primus presidens dicti collegii Reginalis diem clausit supremum, et executores suo testamento nominati ex certis causis eos in hac parte moventibus administrationem ejusdem recusarunt, cujus pretexto omnium bonorum suorum administratio administrationisque commissio tam de consuetudine quam de jure notorie ad nos dignoscitur pertinere, Nos volentes hujus bona in pios usus converti, vobis de quorum fidelitate confidimus ad colligendum et voluntatem defuncti perimplendum committimus vices nostras, quos ab ulteriori compoto calculo sive ratiocinio nobis et officio nostro in hac parte reddendo, salvo jure cujuscunque etiam dimittimus et absolvimus per presentes.

Datum Cantebriegie sub sigillo officii cancellariatus xxiiij^o die mensis Aprilis anno Domini millesimo cccc^{mo} lxxxv^o.

Thus did Andrew Docket pass away from the scene of his labours. He had lived long enough to see his small beginning of four fellows grow into the more stately number of seventeen, and his college richly endowed and flourishing under the protection of the sovereign, who had already several times shewn a strong predilection for it.

In spite of the great names which figure in connexion with the foundation of the college, the words of Dr Caius still must be held true of Mr Docket: 'cujus opera in ædificando collegio et procuranda pecunia tanta fuit, ut sunt qui putent id collegium ejus solius luculentissimum opus extitisse.' (Hist. Acad. Cant. 70.) This also was the opinion of the writer of the list of benefactors in Misc. A. fo. 3-7, where he is styled 'primus presidens ac dignissimus fundator hujus collegii.'

What Andrew Docket's age was we can but guess. He was made vicar of St Botolph's about 1435, and so may have been 74 years old in 1484.

Of his degrees we know nothing except that he is styled 'magister' even to the very last, and so probably was not doctor in any faculty.

As we have seen, he directed his tomb to be 'in choro dicte capelle ubi lecte sunt lectiones.' 'He is buried' (says Cole, writing about 1777) 'in the chapel of his own college under a gravestone of grey marble, exactly in the middle, in the antechapel under the step as you ascend into the choir. In Vol. II. p. 17 of these collections is an awkward sketch of it. He is in a Doctor's Habit, but being continually trod on twice a day, as People go into the chapel, it is no wonder, that the strokes are worn away and that it is now almost a plain smooth piece of brass.' (MS. [Cole, vii.] Addit. 5808, p. 124.) No such brass now exists in the chapel.

Impressions of two seals of Andrew Docket are affixed to many deeds in the college treasury. One is in the form of a small rectangle with the corners cut off, about $\frac{6}{10}$ in. long and $\frac{1}{2}$ in. wide, bearing a St Catharine's wheel within which are the letters AD interlaced. The other is circular, about $\frac{1}{2}$ in. in diameter, and bearing only the above letters (though larger) interlaced as before.

His arms as depicted on a table of the President's in the lodge are thus blazoned: Sa. a saltire Arg.

A few notices of Andrew Doket remain in the Bursar's accounts of Queens' college.

In the I Magnum Journale, which begins immediately after his death, we find at the year 1484-85 the following:—

- (fo. 16. b.) Item pro rasura m^{ri}. Andree iij^s. iiij^d.
 Item pro probatione sui testamenti x^s.
 (fo. 27. b.) Item in exequiis m^{ri}. Andree Dokett primi presidentis ut patet per billam liij^s. ob.

and in IV M. J., under the year 1563:—

- Item pro constituendo picturam m^{ro} Andree Dokett in tumulo suo ij^s. vj^d.

Also in the old register of the university (Grace Book A), under the year 1456 we find:—

- Item de magistro Andrea Doget, m^{ro} collegii Sancte Margarete pro cineribus plumbi xvi^s. viij^d.

* *

E now turn to the events in the history of the college which belong to Andrew Doket's presidentship. In order to render this more complete it may be useful before going further to arrange in order the events belonging to the foundation:

- 3 Dec. 25 Hen. VI. 1446. First foundation of St Bernard's college.
 1 Aug. 1447. Resignation of the site, &c. into the King's hands.
 21 Aug. Second foundation of St Bernard's college.
 Petition of Queen Margaret (undated).
 Second resignation of lands, &c. of St Bernard's college.
 30 March 26 Hen. VI. 1448. The king's charter for the foundation of Queen's college.

8 April	Queen Margaret's commission to Sir John Werloke.
14 April.....	First contract for wood work.
15	The laying the corner-stone of the chapel.
4 March 27 Hen. VI. 1448-9.	Privy seal for £200 (p. 62).
6.....	Second contract for wood work.
19 July	1449 Warrant for the payment of the £200.

It is a matter of regret, that for the whole of this long period of nearly 40 years, from 1446 to 1484, when the growth of the college was most rapid, the materials of its history are so scanty. It would be interesting to be able to trace the gradual progress of the college both in buildings and wealth, to be able to say with certainty when the different benefactions were bestowed, to observe the increase of the society, and to shew an accurate list of the fellows and other prominent members of the college. This is impossible from the want of those account books of the bursars and other college books, which will be found of so great assistance in subsequent presidentships. For though the deeds of many benefactions exist, yet it will be seen that in some cases the college did not at once enter into possession of the estates, while of many smaller benefactions no trace remains.

It is fortunate that the name of one of the most munificent of the benefactors of the college has been preserved, that of bishop Marmaduke Lumley, whose gift of £220 must have helped the infant society very considerably, when we find that the King only gave the smaller sum of £200. The date of his benefaction is not recorded, but if the description 'Lincoln. episcopus' is correct, it must have been in the year 1450.

He was second son of Ralph first baron Lumley, of Lumley castle Durham, and was master of Trinity Hall in 1429, arch-deacon of Northumberland till 1427, chancellor of the university 1427-8, bishop of Carlisle 1429-1450, whence he was translated to Lincoln; here he died in the same or following year. (Godwin de Præsul. Carl. et Linc. Le Neve. Newcourt, i. 739.) He was buried at the Charter House (Stow, Survey of London). His will is not at Lambeth, nor in the Prerog. office (Brown Willis, Lincoln, 57).

Besides giving to the college the weight of her name and patronage and procuring a charter of foundation, there seems no doubt that to queen Margaret the college owes indirectly considerable pecuniary assistance.

In MS. Baker xxv. 449, we find this document :

Priv. Sig. 4 March 27. H. 6. [1448-9] It is shewed unto us by our welbeloved the President and Felowes of the College of saint Margarete and saint Bernard in our universite of Cambrigge which is of the foundation of our moost dere and best beloved wyfe the Quene, how that, for as much as the seid president and felowes have not wherwith to edifie the seid College in housing and other necessaries but only of almesse of Cristes devoute people therto putting theire hands and dedes meritorye nor that the seid edification is not to be performed at any wise withoute that the supportation of our moste noble and benygne grace be shedded unto them in this partie—we have yeven them CCⁱⁱ.

And this privy seal was carried into effect, for among the Exchequer Issue Rolls of 1449 in the Public Record Office, we find Die Sabbati xix^o. die Julii presidenti et sociis collegii sancte Margarete et sancti Bernardi universitatis Cantabr. ex fundatione Margarete regine Anglie In denariis iis liberatis per assign. isto die factam per manus Andree Doket in persolutionem CCⁱⁱ quas Dnus Rex eisdem presidenti et sociis suis liberare mandavit in relevamen paupertatis presidentis et sociorum predictorum, habend. de dono suo per breve de privato sigillo inter mandata de hoc termino.

(See Fr. Devon, Cal. of Exchequer Issue Rolls London 1837. p. 464.)

The date of this is two days before the signing of the second contract for woodwork above quoted.

Of any direct contribution by queen Margaret to the building fund or endowment of the college, no traces remain. If she did supply any thing towards the college, whose patronage she gladly assumed, and her known liberality makes it difficult to believe that she did not, the record of her benefaction must have disappeared at a time when the college might be perhaps not anxious to make much display of the fallen queen's favour. We find however that some of her friends were commemorated as benefactors, as Sir John Beaumont, Lord of Bardolf, steward of her manor, Sir John Wenloke, her chamberlain, etc.; and no doubt her influence was exercised in securing the countenance and support of the nobility of her court to the furtherance of the new college.

Of the progress of the structure of the college, no memorials occur beyond the two indentures for the woodwork of 1448 and 1449 given above. From them however we see that the first court was completed before the war of the Roses broke out, while the greater part of the other buildings is of much later date. The material selected for the structure was red brick with stone dressings, and in consequence of the imperishable nature of the former, the first court of the college remains almost unaltered as it was in 1454. The area of the court is about 100 ft. by 85 ft. The entrance to this is by a massive gateway on its east side. The groined roof of the gateway remains in a perfect state of preservation, the figures of St Bernard and St Margaret forming the decoration of the bosses. According to a common arrangement of collegiate buildings, the chapel and library occupied the north side of the court, and the hall, butteries and kitchen the west; while the south side, and the buildings towards the east on either side of the tower, contained chambers for the inmates of the college. The president's lodging was in the north-west angle between the hall and the library, and the tower itself formed the treasury, where the charters seal and deeds and other valuable effects of the community, plate and money, were kept.

One contribution towards the building, which must belong to the very early times of the college, is thus recorded in a list of benefactors contained in Misc. A. (fo. 6).

Thomas Parys de Boston mercator et Margeria et Margareta uxores ejus, qui dederunt decem libras pro factura camere supra librariam ac magnam mappam cum sex manitergiis operis diaperii.

We have already seen the bequest of books to the college by John Caraway in 1449, and also the license for divine service in the chapel by the bishop of Ely, William Gray, 12 Dec. 1454.

In 1456 the society of Corpus Christi college determined to build a new bakehouse of the same length with the new house built by Andrew Docket, rector of St Botolph's, which had given some offence by dropping on their ground, and of the same height as St Bernard's hostel, to which it adjoined, that they might not be overlooked by some new windows made in it (Masters, Hist. of C.C.C. 44, 45).

Dr Plumptre in his MS. history of Queens' college states that besides the framers of the intended statutes appointed by the charters of 1446, 1447 and 1448, the following were appointed by queen Margaret by letters patent under the king's seal in 1457, viz.

William Booth, then archbishop of York, Richard Cawedraie, Thomas Bullein, William Millington, and Hugh Damlett.

The foundation of the statement seems to be a notice in 'Dr Walker's MS.' which besides the statutes contains also some account of the foundation, and a list of the presidents, fellows, bishops, and doctors, &c. of the college, drawn up in 1565-67, where at fo. 68 b. we read :

'Margareta regina Anglie et Francie et domina Hybernice, filia regis Sicilie et Ierusalem etc.

1 Martii 1457.

Per hoc scriptum constituuntur isti statutorum conditores

Gulielmus Archiep. Eboracensis	} clerici ediderunt
Ric. Cawedraie, Thomas Bullein		} statuta collegii
Gulielmus Milington et Hugo Damlet		} Reginalis.'

The Rev. G. C. Gorham, who edited the college statutes in 1822, has written at the top of the page: 'The statements respecting the statute framers are somewhat erroneous, as appears by the charters themselves.' He does not notice these new statute framers in his historical introduction to the printed statutes, so it may be presumed that he could find no documentary evidence of the above statement. (Cole transcribed both Dr Plumptre's MS. and the Walker MS. ; they will be found in MSS. Addit. 5849, p. 233 ff. and 5848, p. 325 ff.)

William Holt and Stephen Tychemerssh, the executors of the will of Thomas Barry, 'nostro collegio non modicum propitii inter multiplicia sue caritatis opera edificationem collegii non postponentes,' having 'ad perquisitionem fundi dotalis ejusdem collegii,' given £100 sterling, the college in 1454 agreed to insert the names of Thomas Barry, William Holt and Agnes his wife, Stephen Tychemerssh and Agnes his wife, among the names of the benefactors of the college, 'ea namque in libro scribi vite summis optamus viribus', and to celebrate every 15th of May exequiæ mortuorum, with mass on the morrow.

The month is not given, but as the deed is dated also 33 Hen. VI., it must have been executed between September and December 1454. Of this deed only a transcript exists in a paper volume containing Compositions for fellowships, 'Forinseca Recepta' 1529-58, &c. (referred to hereafter as Misc. B.) fo. 11.

In the 'Form for the commemoration of benefactors' of the college, printed 1823, we find (p. 2): '1446. Thomas Barrie citizen of London purchased and afterwards gave us by will the land on which this college was actually built.' This is repeated from previous commemoration services even as early as 1616 (MS. Baker xxxvi. 75): but it seems to be wrong, as it was only in the following year that John Morys of Trumpington gave the land in question to the society of St Bernard's college. The mistake appears in part already in the Walker MS. above mentioned.

In 1458 Richard Withermerch, 'gentylman,' gave to the college 40 marks to acquire lands and tenements of the annual value of 40s., in order to procure bread, wine, and wax for the celebration of masses in the chapel, receiving from the college during his life an annual sum of 26s. 8d. out of the rents of St Bernard's hostel. The composition for this benefaction is dated at the monastery of St John, Colchester, on 18 Apr. 36 Hen. VI. 1458 (Misc. B. fo. 9).

In 1459 William Lasby, of Colchester, clerk, gave the college a house in the parish of St Botolph Cambridge at the corner of Queens' Lane and Smallbridge street (now Silver street), to provide the stipend for a bachelor or scholar in divinity of the college having no other preferment, who, being thereto chosen by the president and fellows of the college, should preach the Gospel of God 'in locis quibus magis necesse est in salvationem et relevamen quam plurium animarum,' for which he was to receive £1. 6s. 8d. per ann. If the college failed to elect a preacher, the chancellor of the university for the time being was to appoint one of the said college. The deed of gift is dated 24 Sept. 38 Hen. VI. 1459.

Richard Andrewe, alias Spycer, burgess of Cambridge, by his will dated 30 Aug. 1459, proved 1 July 1461, left to the college 80 marks in money, a tenement in the parish of St Botolph, another in the parish of St Peter Cambridge by the great bridge or 40 marks instead, a messuage in the parish of Haslingfield of the value of £10, and one in the parish of Madingley of the value of £18, for the maintenance of a Bible clerk, 'clericus ad legendum Bibliam ad prandium et cenam infra collegium,' on condition that yearly on the anniversary of his death, an obit should be celebrated in St Botolph's church for himself, his wife, his parents, friends, and benefactors. In the inventory of 1472, his benefactions are described as the hostel of St Nicholas in St Andrew's parish, and four tenements in St Botolph's parish: an exchange of property may have taken place, as another of his bequests consisted of 'a house in St Andrew's parish abutting on Preacher's lane,' which sufficiently describes the position of St Nicholas' hostel (Cooper, Ann. i. 210).

The prior and convent of Barnwell had been possessed of the rectory of St Botolph's from the time of Eustace, bishop of Ely (1197), who appropriated it to the use of that convent, reserving only a stipend to the vicar. In 1353 they were, by licence from the bishop, empowered to transfer all their right therein to Corpus Christi college, upon condition that they paid them four marks annually for the same. This payment was made regularly down to the time of John Botwright the seventh master, when upon an omission of four years a warm contest arose betwixt them, which both parties at length (1446) agreed to refer to sir John Fray, chief baron of the exchequer (whose widow married John lord Wenlock), William Lichfield (see p. 33), and Gilbert Worthington, clerks, who, after inspecting their deeds, determined that the payment should still be continued, and that the convent should deliver up to the college all their evidences relating to the rectory, and assist the society as much as possible in getting it appropriated to the college. However, instead of this, they were advised by some friends, who were lovers of peace, to buy off this pension, which they accordingly did in 1459 at the expense of 100 marks, and the following year sold the advowson to Queens' college for 80 marks, reserving to themselves only the liberty of making use of the church for praying, singing and saying mass, as often as they should have occasion and as they were obliged to do by statute (Masters' Hist. of C. C. C. 20, 21). The deed is dated 12 Jan. 38 Hen. VI. 1459-60, and is as follows:—

Sciunt presentes et futuri quod nos Johannes Botright magister sive custos collegii Corporis Christi et beate Marie Cantebrie ac scholares ejusdem collegii unanimi assensu et consensu concessimus Andree Docket presidenti collegii Reginalis in Cantebria fundati in honore sanctorum Margarete et Bernardi ac sociis ejusdem collegii advocacionem ecclesie sancti Botulphi Cantebrie cum pertinentiis, (quam quidem advocacionem quondam habuimus ex concessione Radulphi nuper prioris et conventus de Bernewell in comitatu Cantebrie) habendam et tenendam predictam advocacionem prefatis presidenti et sociis dicti collegii Reginalis et eorum successoribus imperpetuum. The seal of Corpus Christi college is appended.

On the same day, 12 Jan. 38 Hen. VI. 1459-60, Corpus Christi college sold to Queens' college a small vacant place in Smallbridges street, the original site of Andrew Doket's almshouses.

Now reach the time, when the change of dynasty threatened ruin to a foundation almost as intimately connected with the deposed sovereign as King's college. The contest between the Lancastrian and the Yorkist parties had begun in 1452, and after the battle of St Albans, 23 May 1455, Henry VI. was by the Parliament placed under the regency of Richard, duke of York; but in the beginning of 1456, the King recovered his uncontrolled power. Peace lasted till 1459, when war again broke out. Many battles were fought with varied success, but though Edward IV. mounted the throne 4 March 1460-1, on the deposition of Henry VI, hostilities did not cease till 15 May 1463, when the loss of the battle of Hexham and the captivity of Henry forced queen Margaret to relinquish for a time her hopes of the crown.

When Edward IV. had reduced the affairs of the kingdom into a somewhat settled state, he married 1 May 1464 Elizabeth Wydeville. She was the eldest daughter of sir Richard Wydeville of Grafton Northamptonshire (created by Edward IV. lord Rivers), and Jacquetta duchess dowager of Bedford, and was born about 1431. In 1453 she married sir John Gray, who afterwards succeeded to the title of lord Ferrers of Groby, and having been one of the maids of honour to queen Margaret received on her marriage from the queen a portion of £200. After her marriage she continued in immediate attendance with the queen as one of the four ladies of the bedchamber, lady Margery Roos, a great benefactor to the college in somewhat later times, being another. Lord Ferrers commanded the cavalry of queen Margaret at the second battle of St Albans, 17 Feb. 1460-61, but died of his wounds 28 Feb. After obtaining possession of the throne, Edward sent Richard Neville, the great earl of Warwick, to obtain for him the hand of Bona, daughter of Louis duke of Savoy. However the King met the widow of the Lancastrian general, and married her privately on 1 May 1464 at Grafton, whither she had retired on the death of her husband and the subsequent loss of her property. The marriage was publicly declared in Reading Abbey Church on Michaelmas day in the same year, and Elizabeth was crowned at Westminster, Whitsunday 1465. (Dugd. Bar. ii. 230, i. 719.)

As closely connected with queen Margaret, Elizabeth Wydeville was doubtless well acquainted both with Andrew Duket, and Queens' college, and we may suppose that, on the watch for opportunities to forward his design, the president eagerly solicited the new queen's favour and patronage for the college, in room of that support which he had lost by the misfortunes of Margaret.

If this were the case, Andrew Duket must have been successful in his application. Elizabeth was pleased to undertake the carrying on and finishing the work, which her predecessor had begun, considering herself apparently as foundress by right of succession.

At her request Edward IV. granted to the college, by writ of privy seal, dated 25 March 5 Edw. IV. 1465, licence to hold property in mortmain to the yearly value of £200, the same amount as the society had been permitted to hold by the charter of foundation. In this deed the college is styled "Collegium quod de patronatu Elizabeth regine Anglie consortis nostre carissime existit."

The deed is to the following effect:—

EDWARDUS DEI GRATIA Rex Anglie et Francie et Dominus Hibernie, Omnibus ad quos presentes littere pervenerint, Salutem.

Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali et absque fine seu feodo nobis in hac parte solvendis, concessimus et licentiam dedimus pro nobis et heredibus nostris quantum in nobis est magistro Andree Docket presidenti et sociis Reginalis collegii sancte Margarete et sancti Bernardi in universitate Cantebrigie, (quod de patronatu Elizabeth regine Anglie consortis nostre carissime existit, ut ipsi et successores sui apud Altissimum ac devotius pro salubri statu nostro et prefate consortis nostre dum vixerimus et pro animabus nostris cum ab hac luce migraverimus ac animabus nobilium progenitorum et antecessorum nostrorum et omnium fidelium defunctorum deprecentur et exorent,) quod ipsi et successores sui presidentes et socii predicti perquirere possint terras tenementa et redditus necnon advocaciones ecclesiarum et aliorum beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum quorumcumque, que quidem tenementa redditus et ecclesie ac alia beneficia ecclesiastica quecumque de aliis quam de nobis tenentur in capite et ad ducentas libras per annum se attingunt ultra onera et reprisas:

In cujus rei testimonium has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Westmonasterium vicesimo quinto die Martii anno regni nostri quinto. MUNDES Per breve de privato sigillo et de data predicta auctoritate parlamenti.

'In the early part of that year (1465) she appropriated a part of her income to the completion of this college' (Cooper, Memorials of Cambridge, i. 280). This statement may refer to the above, but of any direct benefaction to the college from the second queen patroness all account has been lost. We only know that she was commemorated among the benefactors of the college together with Cecily duchess of York, (the mother of Edward IV. and Richard III.,) George duke of Clarence, and other members of the house of York, of whose benefactions also no particulars remain.

The following description of queen Elizabeth is given by Hall in his Chronicle: 'She was a woman more of formal countenance than of excellent beauty, but yet of such beauty and favour, that with her sober demeanour, lovely looking and feminine smiling (neither too wanton nor too humble), beside her tongue so eloquent and her wit so pregnant, she was able to ravish the mind of a mean person, when she allured and made subject to her the heart of so great a King.'

The second of the two old accounts of the early times of the college above mentioned, continues the history beyond the times of queen Margaret in the following words:—

Felicis memorie et Dei gratia regina Anglie Margareta conjux devotissimi regis Henrici sexti, sperans salutem animarum et orthodoxe fidei incrementum, auctoritate memorati principis fundavit et edificare cepit collegium sanctorum Margarete et Bernardi Cantabrigie, ut supra jam dictum est. Ejusdemque collegii discretum virum, prudentem et Deo dilectum, Andream Dokett instituit primum presidentem, cuius precibus, ut creditur, predicta fecisse videtur. Sed quia adversante quadam fortuna et Deo permittente, memorata regina sic cessit dignitate, ut quod inceperat nec consummare potuit, hinc est quod Elizabeth regina et conjux illustrissimi regis Edwardi quarti, uti jure successionis vera fundatrix, quod a predecessore sua inceptum erat nec tamen completum usque ad finem illa perduxit, statuta edidit, pluraque privilegia a rege impetravit, procurante semper eodem primo presidente Andrea Dokett, cuius jam opera manifesta sunt.

Scripta sunt hec, ut sciant futuri, que fuit prima fundatrix, quis primus presidens, quodque exordium huius collegii Reginalis sanctorum Margarete et Bernardi Cantabrigie.

In 1468 queen Elizabeth Wydeville visited Cambridge (Cooper, Ann. i. 216. MS. Baker xlii. 160).

The benefaction of Lady Margery Roos seems to belong to the year 1469. She gave 'certan monay wherew^t certan lands wer purchaced and bought, that is to say the manors off Horsham hall, Mone hall, Cromes hall, and Hompsted hall with thappurtenances and also certeyn lands... in the townys of Haverell and Wycham in the counties of Essex and Cambrege, and also lands... to the yerely value off ix^{li} in the towne and felde of Abbotyslay in the countie of Huntyngdon,' to found five priests fellows of the college to pray for the soul of dame Margery Roos, sir Philip Wentworth kt., and sir John Roos kt. with a stipend of £6. 13s. 4*d.* The college, by an agreement with her executor Dr John Rypplingham of 8 March 21 Hen. VII. 1505-6, was to keep on the feast of St Alphege a dirige, and on the morrow a mass of requiem, 'atte wyche obite the said president and felowes atte their dyner and soper shall have an honest repast,' and the president should receive 3s. 4*d.*, each fellow 12*d.*, each bible-clerk 4*d.*, the manciple 4*d.*, and the under-manciple 2*d.* At the same obit they were to pray for Dr John Rypplingham, late fellow and special benefactor of the college (who gave three silver pots with a spice plate of silver, and a close in Chesterton), and also for his parents, and for this the president was to receive 12*d.*, and each fellow 4*d.*

Horsham hall was purchased 5 Oct. 9 Edw. IV. 1469; when the manor of Abbotsley was bought does not appear, but it was confirmed to the college by letters patent of 24 Jan. 17 Edw. IV. 1478.

So liberal a benefactor to the college as Lady Margery Roos deserves more than a passing notice. She was the daughter of sir Philip Spencer (or le Despencer) of Nettlestead, Suffolk, and married while still young John lord Roos of Hamlake, who was killed 22 March, 1421, in the 23rd year of his age, while serving the king in France (Esc. 9 Hen. V. n. 58). By his wife, whom he left a young widow, he had no issue. Lady Margery married to her second husband, sir Roger Wentworth, whom also she survived. Of the children that she had by him the eldest son, sir Philip Wentworth, died before her, leaving as heir to lady Margery Henry Wentworth, who died about Jan. 1500. The expression 'patris mei,' used apparently by a clerical error for 'sui' in the transcript of Lady Margery Roos' will in the Court of Probate, London (Wattis 33), with reference to sir Philip Wentworth, has involved her genealogy in great confusion. She died 20 Apr. 1478, and was buried under her window of St Margaret and St Bernard on the north side of the college chapel, which she seems to have given. She gave also many books and vestments, and some plate for the use of the chapel. Other benefactions will be found in her will, which was made 30 Aug. 1477, and proved 28 May, 1478. From her the earls of Cleveland were descended. (Morant, Essex, i. 320 b. Banks, Baronage, ii. 441. Dugdale, Baronage, i. 552, 398-9, ii. 310. Claus. 9 Hen. V. m. 4 [her dowry]. Nicholas, Test. Vet. 346. 439.)

Her will is here given from the transcript above mentioned :—

The house of the Grey Friars at Ipswich was founded by sir Robert Tiptot of Nettlestead, in the time of Edward I. In their church many of her family were buried, among whom was Elizabeth lady Spencer, the mother, and two brothers and a sister of lady Margery. (Tanner, Not. Mon. 530. Weever, Fun. Mon. 750. A. P(ulson) Collect. Anglo-Minorit. ii. 20.)

On the resignation of the rectory of St Botolph's by Andrew Doket in 1470, the college presented John Chapman, B.D. to it; the bishop instituted a commission to enquire into the right of patronage, when Queens' college was found to have the presentation, and Chapman was accordingly instituted. The proceedings are thus described in bishop Gray's register (MS. Addit. [Cole xxv.] 5826, p. 95, 96. MS. Baker xxx. 44 ff.):—

(Bishop Gray's Register, fo. 80. b. 81. a. b.)

The monumental brass of W. Malster (ob. 1492,) still remains in the chancel of Girton church; Rich. Brocher was rector of Landbeach 1462-89 (Masters, C. C. C. C. App. 22. Clay, Landbeach, 107); Walter Smyth was rector of St Benedict's 1446-88 (Masters, App. 7), and Wm. Rudde, vicar of Grantchester 1460-83 (Masters, App. 16).

In 1470 William Syday late of Cambridge, physician, left to the college a certain tenement called Bilney's, in the parish of St Mary-juxta-forum to found a chaplain in the college to pray for his soul, those of Katherine his wife, Margaret his daughter and other relations, and to celebrate his anniversary on the feast of St Dunstan the archbishop. The deed of the college accepting this foundation, is dated 23 Oct. 1470. This house was afterwards called St Paul's Inn, and was sold in 1529.

William Sida was one of the wardens of the church of blessed Mary near the market, and as such was concerned in the cession of a piece of ground in Scole-lane by the parish to Henry VI. before 10 Feb. 1448-9, for the intended college (Cooper, Ann. i. 192).

IN 1470 queen Margaret of Anjou made an alliance with the earl of Warwick, who was much annoyed at the King having sent him to arrange a marriage with a foreign princess, and then not concluding it. Says Fuller, "Warwick stormeth thereat, that he had taken so much pains about nothing, highly sensible of the affront, seeing a potent arme is not to be employed about a sleeveless errand. He resolves revenge, and because he could not make her Queen whom he desired, he would make him King, whom he pleased." (Ch. Hist. B. iv. sub anno 1463.) Warwick accordingly delivered Henry VI. from the Tower, and restored him to the throne in Oct. 1470, while Edward in his turn was taken prisoner, but he soon escaped and fled to Flanders. King Henry's restoration was not of long duration, for Edward, returning from beyond seas, defeated the earl of Warwick at the battle of Barnet 14 Apr. 1471 (when the earl lost his life), and queen Margaret at the battle of Tewkesbury 4 May. She was captured and sent to the Tower, where Henry was murdered on 21 May. 'Henceforth King Edward passed the remnant of his days in much peace, plenty, and feasting' (Fuller, Ch. H. sub anno 1470). Queen Margaret was kept for four years in custody at different places, while queen Elizabeth requited the kindness of her former mistress by using her influence for the alleviation of her hard and sad lot. In 1475 she was ransomed by her father, and then retired to Anjou, where she lived until her death, 25 Aug. 1481, when she was buried in her father's tomb in the cathedral of Angers.

In consequence of the unsettled state of England, the college deemed it advisable to obtain two general pardons from Edward IV.

The first pardon was dated 1 Sept. 10 Edw. IV. 1470, just before king Henry's restoration and his own flight into Flanders. It extended to all offences committed before 25 Dec. 1469, with a proviso that it should not extend to his enemy Henry VI., late de facto, but not de jure king of England, (at that time a prisoner in the Tower,) nor to Margaret his wife, nor to Edward son of the said Margaret, nor to any persons who were with Margaret and Edward out of England, or who adhered to them.

After king Henry's death, 21 May 1471, Edward IV. granted another pardon to the college, dated 29 May, 13 Edw. IV. 1473, extending to all offences committed before 30 Sept. 11 Edw. IV. 1471.

He further granted 4 Oct. 14 Edw. IV. 1474, as a consequence to this pardon, a mandamus to the treasurer and barons of the exchequer not to molest the college. (Both these deeds are recited in the confirmation of the manor of Abbotsley dated 24 Jan. 17 Edw. IV. 1477-8.)

This pardon of 1473 was casually lost and the college sent John Ripplingham, one of the society, to represent this upon oath to the court of chancery, and to obtain a copy of it. Accordingly letters patent were issued 21 Oct. 21 Edw. IV.

1480, reciting the enrolment of the former pardon, and mentioning the fact, together with the obligation the above John Ripplingham had entered into, viz. that if ever the original deed were found, it should be returned into chancery to be cancelled.

The subject of these pardons has nothing to do with the history of Queens' college: only so much therefore of the recital of the last pardon is here given, as refers to the fact mentioned above:—

EDWARDUS, DEI GRATIA Rex Anglie Francie et Dominus Hibernie, omnibus ad quos presentes litere pervenerint Salutem.

Constat nobis per inspectionem rotulorum cancellarie nostre quod nos literas nostras patentes fieri fecimus in hec verba :

EDWARDUS &c. (reciting the pardon of 29 May, 13 Edw. IV. 1473,)

NOS autem pro eo quod litere predictae casualiter sunt amisse, (sicut Johannes Rypplingham clericus unus sociorum collegii predicti coram nobis in cancellaria nostra personaliter constitutus sacramentum prestitit corporale, et quod ipse literas, si eas imposterum reperiri contigerit, nobis in cancellariam nostram predictam restituet ibidem cancellandas) tenorem irrotulamenti literarum predictarum ad requisitionem presidentis et sociorum predictorum duximus exemplificandum per presentes.

In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes.

About 1470 Johr Marke, citizen and haberdasher of London, gave an inn called the Christopher and nine messuages in Bermondsey Street, in the parish of St Olave Southwark, to found a fellow to pray for him after his death, for Elizabeth his wife, for Henry Somer late chancellor of the exchequer and Katherine his wife. The college accepted this gift by deed of 10 Dec. 11 Edw. IV. 1471, and bound themselves to keep the anniversary of his death with exequiæ, and a funeral mass. We find this to have been kept on 2 October. No fellow is mentioned till 1490.

In 1472 Andrew Doket had 'an inventory of all and singular the goods of the Queens' college in Cambridge' drawn up. It is dated 1 Sept., and gives a catalogue of the books in the library, a list of the vestments and service books belonging to the chapel, and of the plate and linen of the college. The volume is written on vellum of 8vo. shape. After the inventory follows 'Nomina fundatorum collegii Reginalis Cantebriegie,' and as it mentions the foundation of four priests by Richard duke of Gloucester, this part must have been written between 1477 and his accession to the throne in 1484. It has however been much added to at different subsequent times. The volume contains also 'An inventorie of things in the chappell, September 16, 1580,' and some other later notes.

About the year 1472 Dame Alice Wyche founded a fellowship. She was daughter and coheir of John Stratton, esq., and married first, sir Hugh Wyche, kt., alderman and merchant of London, who was lord-mayor in 1462, and secondly, William Holt, mercer, whom she survived. Her sister Elizabeth married John Andrews of Baylham Suffolk, esq. Their daughter Elizabeth was the wife of Thomas Wyndesor, esq. of Stanwell Middlesex, and from them the barons Windsor and earls of Plymouth were descended (Collins' Peerage [Brydges], iii. 658). After his death in 1485 Elizabeth Wyndesor married sir Robert Lytton, kt. Lady Alice was buried in St Denys Backchurch, London. By her will, made 16 June, 1474 and proved 16 Nov. 1474 (Nicolas, Test. Vet. 336. Wattis 19), she left very liberal legacies to her sister's children; to the poor of the neighbourhood of Lewes, Sussex, where her husband, William Holt, was born, £100, to the poor in other places £100, to a hundred poor householders a milch cow, three ewes and 13s. 4d. each, and for marriage portions to poor maidens of good conversation, and for mending the highways, £200. To the college she gave £320 wherewith to purchase lands in Whaplode, Holbeach and Mutton, Lincolnshire, the college receipt for the last £80 being dated 7 March, 14 Edw. IV. 1473-4. The yearly value of this estate was £12, and we find the following points agreed upon on 15 Feb. 5 Hen. VII. 1489-90, between the college and Robert Lytton, esq. under-treasurer of England and Elizabeth his wife, late wife and executrix of the will of Thomas Wyndesor, executor of the will of dame Alice Wyche: the fellow was to be a priest and to pray for the souls of sir Hugh Wyche, kt., William Holt, mercer, and dame Alice Wyche, and to have for his stipend £6. 13s. 4d.; a sermon was to be preached at St Denys, Backchurch, London, on Easter day, by him or some other fellow, to receive if B.D. 6s. 8d., if D.D. 13s. 4d.; a lecture of divinity was to be read according to the statutes and ordinance of the college by him or some other fellow, with a stipend of 40s.: the college was to receive the aforesaid sir Hugh Wyche, William Holt and dame Alice Wyche, for special benefactors to the college, and to keep a solemn dirige by note on the vigil of St Cosmas and St Damian, and on the festival itself (27 Sept.) a solemn mass of requiem by note; and to the fulfilment of these covenants the college bound themselves by an obligation of £400.

The fellow of Lady Alice Wyche's foundation is mentioned in 1484. In the inventory of 1472, we find that she gave some vestments of cloth of gold to the chapel, and there the sum that she gave the college is stated to be £360 (Vellum Inventory, fo. 9. b).

The sermon at St Denys Backchurch was duly preached on Easter day till 1687, when the rector, Lyonell Gatford, refusing his pulpit to John Wootton, fellow of Queens' college, the college allowed it to fall into abeyance.

On 5 March, 13 Edw. IV. 1472-3, King Edward IV. granted permission to Lady Joan Burgh, widow of Sir John Burgh, knight, to give to the college the manor of St Nicholas Court in the Isle of Thanet, by the following deed:—

EDWARDUS, DEI GRATIA Rex Anglie et Francie Dominus Hibernie, omnibus ad quos presentes litere pervenerint Salutem.

In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Westmonasterium quinto die Martii, anno regni nostri tertio decimo. FRYSTON.

To this deed the great seal of England is appended.

The yearly value of this estate was then thirteen marks, as also appears from the following endorsement on the licence of mortmain of 25 March 1465 :—

Memorandum quod quinto die Martii anno regni regis infrascripti tertio decimo presidens et socii infrascripti virtute istius licentie perquisiverunt diversa terras et tenementa in Com. Kant. tenenda sibi et successoribus suis imperpetuum in valorem tresdecim marcarum in partem satisfactionis ducentarum libratarum terrarum tenementorum reddituum et advocacionum infrascriptorum.

She gave this estate by deed of 20 March following (1473-4), and on 1 Apr. the college granted it back to her for the term of 80 years, which was to determine at her death.

The college seal appended to the deeds belonging to this grant is small and round and bears a pelican, that of Lady Joan Burgh is likewise small and round and bears St Christopher carrying the Saviour.

The following document of 3 March, 13 Edw. IV. 1473-4, preserved in the college treasury, shews one of the ways, in which Andrew Doket procured funds for the endowment of his college :—

This endenture made betwene maister Andrewe Doket president of the Quenes college in the universite of Cambrigge and the ffeliship of the same college on that oon partie, and Robert Rocheford grocer and Robert Carvell mercer, citezenis of London on that other partie witnesseth: that the seid president and ffeliship have receyved the day of the date of these presentes of the seid Robert and Robert for the soule of Edmund Carvell late citizen and grocer of London now dede xx li. sterling to thentent that the seid Edmond shall be taken and receyved as benefactour of the forseid college and to be made partener of all the suffrages prayers masses and alle other merytory dedes that shall be seid and doon w'tynne the same college for other benefactours of the same, And also that the soule of the same Edmond shall be remembered among other benefactours of the same college atte Dirige and masse of Requiem to be seyde for them oons in every year w'tynne the same college. And to thaccomplysshment of the same, the seid president and ffeliship have promysed by these presentes, that alle the prestes now beyng of the same college and hereafter shall be, shall be sworn to performe the same. In wittenes wherof the same president and ffeliship their commone seale and the Robert and Robert their seales to these indentures changeably have set.

Yeven the iij^{de} day of March the xiiijth yere of the regne of kyng Edward the fourth.

Although so many provisions had been made in the several charters of foundation concerning statutes for the college, none probably were drawn up for the government of the college, till queen Elizabeth gave a set of statutes by her letters patent dated 10 March, 15 Edw. IV. 1474-5. The queen's words 'ad humilem supplicationem et specialem requisitionem Andree [Dokett] primi presidentis ... collegii [Reginalis] ad quedam statuta et ordinationes pro fundatione et stabilimento collegii illius fiendo ut vera fundatrix ejusdem ... procedimus in hunc modum,' which occur in the preface to the statutes of 1475, seem to shew this. These statutes continued in force till 1529.

By will dated 5 April, 14 Edw. IV. 1474 and proved, John Raven clerk directed that at his death certain lands and tenements in Buckworth in Huntingdonshire, and a yearly rent of 16s., issuing from lands at Gilden Morden in the county of Cambridge, should go to the college for the foundation of a poor scholar, as lector biblie or bible-clerk. By a deed of 4 Jan. 15 Edw. IV. 1475-6, the college states that it has received £30 from the sale of the lands at Buckworth, and the value of £14. 5s. 2d., in money, jocalia, and certain books of the gift of the said John Raven; also that Mr Ralph Shaw and Mr Thomas Mawdesley, Mr William Bond, and Mr Ralph Songer were feoffed in 16s. of yearly rent from lands in Gilden Morden, for the use of the college; and undertakes to maintain such a poor scholar, for ever to be called Raven's clerk. The estate at Gilden Morden was in 21 Hen. VIII. 1529-30 exchanged with Dr Manfeld for one at Eversden. (The Deed in the college treasury, the will is transcribed in Misc. B.)

On 6 Oct. 15 Edw. IV. 1475 the island on which the brew-house and the stables stand, together with the fellows' garden and the grove, was granted to the college for 40 marks, by the mayor bailiffs and commonalty of the town of Cambridge, "ad contemplationem literarum honorabilium metuendissimi domini nostri regis, excellentissime principisse domine nostre regine, ac illustris et prepotentis principis Edwardi primogeniti domini nostri regis." The piece of ground is described as lying between the "communis riparia," which goes down from the King's and Bishop's mills, and the "communis riparia" which goes down from Newnham mills, and the Newnham road between the small bridges. At the same time the college undertook to lengthen the small bridge next the college by 12 feet, in consideration of which it was to be freed from all repairs of it for the future. The college was also to widen the river on the east side of the island to 51 feet, and had leave to build a bridge across it, the arches of which should be as wide as the arches of the bridge of King's college.

Omnibus ad quos presens scriptum indentatum pervenerit Major burgenses et communitas ville Cantebrie Salutem in Domino. BY deed of 1 April, 17 Edw. IV. 1477, Richard duke of Gloucester and Admiral of England, and John Pilkington, and John Huddleston, knights, William Hopton, Esq. and Thomas Barowe, clerk, the feoffees 'ad usum et proficuum ejusdem ducis, de et in manerio sive dominio ipsius ducis de Fulmere' (Foulmire) in the county of Cambridge, granted 'ad mandatum et speciale preceptum dicti ducis' to the president and fellows of Queens' college, the manor and advowson of Foulmire, according to the tenor of certain indentures between the above and the college. The attorneys appointed were William Alyngton, the duke's chancellor, John Ponsaby and Richard Aldrede. The deed is tested by Sir James Tirrell, William Tunstall, John Kendall, and others, and is dated 'apud castrum nostrum de Sherefhoton' (Sheriff-Hutton, near York). It is signed R. Gloucestre and bears the five seals of the duke and his feoffees.

Richard, the eleventh child of Richard duke of York, was born 2 Oct. 1452, and therefore was only 9 years of age when his brother the earl of March became king by the name of Edward IV. and at this time was only 24 years of age. Rous, the Warwick antiquary, a strong partisan of the house of Lancaster, fixes his birth on 21 Oct. 1450, but William of Wyrcester gives the above later date as of his own knowledge (C. A. Halsted, Richard III. as duke of Gloucester and king of England. 2 vols. 8vo. London, 1844).

Sheriff-Hutton Castle was one of the ancient strongholds of the Nevilles, in whose family it had remained for 300 years, until forfeited to the king by Warwick's attainder after the battle of Barnet. It was then given by king Edward to his brother Richard in 1471, and that prince bestowed so much attention in repairing and beautifying this magnificent structure, and in improving the demesne altogether, that the lordship and manor was within a brief period from the period now under consideration [1478] purchased by the king from his brother for the sum of £500 (Halstead, i. 331). A great number of documents of the duke are dated from the castle.

On 10 April of the same year, the king granted permission, by a writ of privy seal dated at Windsor, to the above feoffees to give and to the college to accept the manor and advowson of Foulmire, with the usual condition of praying for the king and his ancestors, also for Richard, duke of Gloucester, and Anne his wife, and Edward their son, and for the souls of John Vere, late earl of Oxford, and Elizabeth his wife, and all faithful departed.

On 17 July, 17 Edw. IV. 1477, the indentures above mentioned were made, rehearsing the purposes of the grant, viz. to found four priests, fellows of the college, to be called the four priests of the duke of Gloucester's foundation, who were to study theology, and to pray for the family of the duke, and the feoffees and the duke's friends who were slain at the battles of Barnet (14 Apr. 1471), Tewkesbury (4 May 1471), etc., with a stipend of £8 per annum, and they were to preach in Advent and Lent, with other double feasts. The advowson of Foulmire was on the next vacancy to be appropriated to the college, for the proper use and behoof of the president, so long as he should be actually president; the college was also to keep a dirige and mass of requiem on St Sylvester's eve for the souls of the duke's family, and to enrol the duke among its benefactors; the chancellor of the university was appointed visitor of the duke's foundation with power to fine the college, if after three monitions any breach of the indentures was left uncorrected.

The duke of Gloucester also founded a college for a dean and six priests at Middleham, Yorkshire, in 1477, the parliamentary sanction being granted on 16 Jan. 1477-78 (Rot. Parl. vi. 172), and ordained statutes for its government 4 July, 18 Edw. IV. 1478. Sir William Beverley, previously rector of Middleham, was appointed dean (Rev. W. Atthill, Docu- ments relating to the foundation and antiquities of the collegiate church of Middleham, published by the Camden Society, 1847. Whitaker, Hist. of Richmondshire, i. 335 ff.). His successors were to be taken from among the six priests, if they be found worthy, or lacking them, from among the four priests of his foundation at Queens' college, Cambridge, or for want of such, from among the graduates of the university of Cambridge.

The deed is as follows:—

This indenture tripartit made the xvij day of Jule the yere of kyng Edwarde the fourth the xvij betwix the ryght high and myghti Prince-Richarde duke of Gloucestre, Constable and Admarrall of Ynglonde, sir John Pylkyngton, sir John Huddelston knyghtes, William Hopton sqwyer and Thomas Barowe clerke, feoffys of the sayde duke of Gloucetre in certayn his lands late belongynge to Elizabeth contese of Oxforth, of the oon partye,—and the president and felawes of the Qwenys college in Cambrige of the other partye,—

This deed bears the seal of the duke, and in the margin his autograph, R. Gloucestr.

Elizabeth, countess of Oxford, here mentioned, was the wife of John II. earl of Oxford, who was attainted in Nov. 1461, and beheaded 26 Feb. 1461-2. Her father was sir John Howard, the younger, and her grandfather, sir John Howard, the elder, had married Margaret the daughter and heir of sir John Playz. Elizabeth, countess of Oxford, by right of her grandmother, was seized of certain manors including that of Foulmere (Dugdale, Baronage, ii. 9), and when her husband was attainted, her feoffees were compelled to make over her estates to other feoffees for the duke of Gloucester's use, to whom Edward IV. had granted the earl's estates.

In 1478 the college received a benefaction of £40 from Elizabeth Yorke executrix of William Yorke of London, towards the foundation and 'a mortassing of a priest to be a fellow in the said college.' The acknowledgment is dated 14 Feb. 17 Edw. IV. 1478.

In 1478 John Collinson, archdeacon of Northampton, and rector of Over in Cambridgeshire, gave to the college 300 marks to found a fellowship of the value of 10 marks (£6. 13s. 4d.) per ann., with his chamber and such other alms as the other fellows of the college received. His fellow was to pray for the Archdeacon, his parents and John Chadworth bishop of Lincoln, and to preach the word of God 'per se vel per alium' in the church of Over twice a year, in Advent and in Lent. His composition with the college is dated 26 Aug. 18 Edw. IV. 1478. With his benefaction the college purchased the estates of Stanbourn and Motts near Bumpstead Essex, and the manor of Shadworth at Swaffham Prior Cambridgeshire. (Deed in the college treasury).

The seal which is affixed to the deed of composition bears the inscription Sigillum Johannis Colynson archidiaconi Northampton; in the field are the Virgin and child in a fine niche: below this his arms, an escallop shell between three trefoils.

John Collinson was Prebendary of Louth in the church of Lincoln 1455-82, Archdeacon of Stow 1460-68, of Bedford 1468-71, of Northampton 1471-82, admitted rector of Over 26 March 1472 (MS. Baker xxx. 49. bp. Gray's reg^r). He died 1482, and was buried in the chancel at Over, where his arms still remain on the miserere of one of the south stalls.

The following extract from the bursar's accounts refers to this benefaction:—

I. M. J. 1484-5. fol. 16. b. Item M. Hugoni Trotter in plenam solutionem suarum expensarum in emendo tenementum Staneburne hall xx^s.

About 1479 John Grene esquire, by his will founded a fellowship endowing it with "le floodwers, ebbwers et leynys pro ostriis," belonging to part of a marsh called Alfood marsh in Prettowell and Eastwood in Essex, and with £5 per ann., issuing from the said marsh and the estate of Petits at Fulbourn in Cambridgeshire, consisting of a tenement and 60 acres of land.

His fellow was required to pray for John Grene and all his relations, and to be present in the parish church of Widdington, Essex 'si requisitus fuerit' in Holy week, Easter week, for three weeks after Ascension day, and during the twelve days of Christmas, provided that the lord of the manor or the rector would give him food and lodging for those times. The composition for this fellowship between Edith Grene, and William Grene his executors and the college is dated 26 July, 19 Edw. IV. 1479. (Deed in the college treasury.)

On 8 Nov. 21 Edw. IV. 1481 John Alfray, of Ipswich, gentleman, made an agreement by indenture with the college for founding a fellowship after his death, out of lands lying at Capel, Brentwenham, Barholt and Bentley in Suffolk. The fellow was to pray for the said John Alfray, Helena his wife, John his son, Anne her mother, lady Margery Roos, William Wareyn, Andrew Groton, their relations and benefactors and all christian souls. The college bound itself to keep his obit in the chapel on the day of his death 'with Dirige and messe of Requiem by note,' the president to receive xx^{d.}, the officiating priest xij^{d.}, and each of the other fellows iij^{d.}. 'And over this the said president and felawes schal have the same day at there dyner a bove and be side there comon fare every mess a dyssch to the value of iij^{d.}. or a bove.'

The above indenture was tripartite between the college on the one part, John Alfrey 'gentyelman' on the second, Mr John Chapman clerk, Mr John Rypplingham clerk, Thomas Selle gentleman, John Barnby gentleman on the third. Of these the two former are in the college treasury. John Alfray, John Barnby and John Chapman, probably the rector of St Botolph's, were witnesses to lady Margery Roos' will, p. 75.

In 1483 Thomas Duffield, D.D. late fellow, left to the college by will 23 marks to provide 'unam lampadem ardentem coram summo altari infra capellam collegii,' on the condition of their enrolling him, and praying for him among the benefactors of the college. His executor William Bounde, clerk, actually paid to the college 25 marks 10 sh., and for this they undertook to provide the lamp, and to pay the dean of the chapel 13s. 4d. per ann., for its continuance. The lamp was to be burning on every festival during the time of divine service, and every day from six o'clock in the morning, or when the first mass was celebrated, until the last was said. The deed of the college by which the benefaction was accepted, is dated 30 June 1483. There probably was some doubt as to who was King of England on that day, Edward V. or Richard III., who said himself 'for as moche as we be infourmed that there is grete doubtte and ambiguyte amiong you for the certaine day of the commensing of oure reigne' (Letter quoted in Sir H. Nicolas, Chronol. of Hist. 307), and so the regnal year is not given. (Deed in the college treasury.)

A Thomas Duffield clerk is mentioned with Thomas Heywood in a deed of 25 June 1458. As Heywood was a fellow, perhaps Duffield was also then already a fellow. He was one of the fellows of lady Margery Roos' foundation.

WE have seen the foundation by Richard duke of Gloucester of four fellowships in Queens' college. His liberality towards the college is mentioned in the petition, which the university presented to him as Protector during the minority of Edward V. on behalf of archbishop Rotherham the chancellor, who had been committed to the Tower for holding with the queen dowager. It is also mentioned in a decree of the university dated 16 March, 1 Ric. III. 1483-4, for the observance of an annual mass of Salus Populi, for the King's happy state during his life time, and after his death of exequiæ and a mass of requiem (Cooper, Ann. i. 225, 228). We must now turn to those great endowments, which he bestowed on the college, after he became king. His reign dates from 26 June, 1483, and he was then of the age of 30½ years.

On 25 March, 1 Ric. III. 1484, the King granted his licence to the college to hold property in mortmain to the annual value of 700 marks (£466. 13s. 4d.) by the following deed :

RICARDUS, DEI GRATIA Rex Anglie et Francie et Dominus Hibernie, omnibus ad quos presentes litere pervenerint Salutem. Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali (ad laudem gloriam et hon-per breve de privato sigillo et de data predicta auctoritate parliamenti.

Some of these estates belonged originally to Anne daughter of Richard Beauchamp, earl of Warwick and Albemarle (ob. 1439), and sister of Henry duke of Warwick (ob. 1445). She married Richard Nevill, eldest son of Richard Nevill earl of Salisbury, who in 1449 on the death of Anne daughter and heir to the duke of Warwick was created earl of Warwick, and became possessed of all the estates of his brother-in-law, and who was killed fighting against Edward IV. at the battle of Barnet in 1471. 'After his death, his countess underwent no little distress, being constrained to take sanctuary in the abbey of Beaulieu in Hampshire, where she continued for a long time in a very mean condition; and thence privately got into the north, where also she abode in great straits; all her vast inheritance being by authority of parliament' (Rot. Parl. 14. Ed. 4. n. 20) 'taken from her, and settled upon Isabel and Anne, her two daughters and heirs, as if she herself had been naturally dead' (Dugdale, Bar. i. 248. 306). Of these Isabella was the duchess of Clarence, having married in 1469 George brother of Edward IV, while Anne was wife first of Edward prince of Wales, who was killed after the battle of Tewkesbury 1471, and afterwards (in 1473) of Richard duke of Gloucester. It was out of these lands of the countess of Warwick thus in the possession of queen Anne, that Richard III. granted to the college the manor of Covesgrave, the lordship of Stanford, and other estates.

This grant must have been intended some time previously to the date of the above deed, as it is mentioned in the following terms in the decree of the University of 16 March, 1 Ric. III. 1483-4 acknowledging the king's various benefactions: 'Whereas the most renowned Prince the King of England and France and Lord of Ireland, after the conquest the Third, has conferred very many benefits upon this his University of Cambridge, and especially has lately liberally and devoutly founded exhibition for four priests in the Queens' college: and now also the most serene Queen Anne, consort of the same Lord the King (that most pious King consenting and greatly favouring) has augmented and endowed the same college with great rents....' (Cooper, Ann. i. 228-9).

In the inventory of college plate of 1544 [Misc. A. fo. 39 b.] this item occurs :

Item antiquum sigillum argenteum ex dono Ricardi ^{secundi} R. Anglie insculptum porcellis seu apris.

The word 'secundi' is evidently a clerical error for 'tertii,' as a boar was not Richard II's badge, and the college was not in existence in his time. This seal has long been lost, and no impression of it has been found.

Richard III. also gave to the chapel many vestments for the officiating clergy.

Fuller (Hist. of the Univ. sub anno 1448) ascribes to him the grant of another coat of arms, which the college bears :

'No Colledge in England hath such exchange of Coats of Armes as this hath, giving sometimes the Armes of Jerusalem (with many others quartered therewith) assigned by Queen Margaret, their first Foundresse. It giveth also another distinct coat, (viz.) a Crosier, and Pastorall Staffe Saltyre, piercing through a Boars head in the midst of the Shield. This I humbly conceive bestowed upon them by Richard the third (when undertaking the Patronage of this foundation) in allusion to the Boar, which was his Crest; and wherein those Church implements disposed in Saltyre or in form of St. Andrews Crosse, might in their device relate to Andrew Ducket so much meriting of this foundation. However at this day the Colledge waves the wearing of this Coat, laying it up in her Wardrobe, and makes use of the former only.'

As the bursars' books first begin in 1484, it is only here and there that we meet with a notice of members of Queens' college before that year.

The only fellows (besides the very earliest ones) whose names occur, are the fellows of lady Margery Roos mentioned in her will: Dr Thomas Duffield, Mr John Rypplingham, Dr Thomas Mawdislay, Mr Bewice, and possibly Mr William Newman: the three last are not elsewhere mentioned as fellows of Queens' college.

Ralph Scrope, Ralph Shaw, Walter Oudeby, Thomas Wilkinson, and William Bond, clerks, who are mentioned in different deeds as closely connected with the college, were probably also fellows.

In the list of proctors we find Ralph Songer in 1475, and Gerald Borell in 1477, who were fellows in 1484.

In bishop Gray's register we find no mention of members of Queens' college ordained between 1464 and 1477 except perhaps Ralph Songar who is however described as 'Socius Collegii Regal. Cantabr.' (MS. Add. [Cole] 5826, p. 202).

'An. 1465 Mr Henricus Caeus, Prior S. Mariæ de Overesse et quondam de Collegio Regin. incipit in Theologia' (MS. Baker, xlii. 159. Grace book A). This was probably the same as Henry de Burton, who became Prior in 1462 and died 1486 (Dugd. Mon. ed. Caley, vi. 169. Information from C. H. Cooper esq.).

Hugh Oldham, bishop of Exeter 1504-19 is said to have been a member of Queens' college (Cooper, Ath. i. 21. Oliver, Exeter, 117). He does not appear to have been a benefactor to the college, though so liberal a contributor towards the foundation of Corpus Christi college Oxford and the founder of a free school at Manchester.

In the first grace book of the university (A) we find the dates of the degrees of several persons, who were fellows in 1484.

During the presidentship of Andrew Docket the College made use of two different seals.

The first which in character resembles that of St Bernard's college dates probably from 1448. It is circular, $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. in diameter and bears the following inscription in gothic letters.

Sigillū coc p'sident' & socior': collegii reginalis scē margarete & scī bernardi de cantebriq:

In the centre of the field St Margaret, thrusting her erozier into the dragon's mouth, and St Bernard with his book and pastoral staff stand side by side under handsome canopies. Beneath them are the arms of Lorraine. The president kneels on the sinister, the four fellows on the dexter side of the shield. At the sides of the centre canopies are two much smaller ones filled with angels kneeling in adoration. The workmanship is very good.

The second seal dates probably from the time when queen Elizabeth Wydeville assumed the patronage. It is a little larger than the previous one. Its inscription in gothic letters is

tebrigiē :*

In the centre, St Margaret and St Bernard stand under canopies, and at the sides are other canopies containing figures holding shields, that on the dexter side containing the arms of England, that on the sinister side those of Wydeville. Below the two saints is a shield with the arms of London.

The workmanship is somewhat inferior to that of the earlier seal.

Æ. Thomas Wilkynson.

Nov. 1484—Apr. 1505.

2 Ric. III.—20 Hen. VII.

ANDREW DOKET died 4 Nov. 1484, and, as we have seen, recommended in his will Thomas Wilkynson as his successor in the presidentship: ‘Quantum in me est precipio omnibus sociis dicti collegii, ut meum post decessum eligant in presidentem dicti collegii meum successorem magistrum Thomam Wilkynson.’

The statutes of 1475 enjoin the election of the new president on the eighth day after a vacancy, so that we may assume 11 Nov. as the day of Thomas Wilkynson’s accession to the presidentship. He was not in Cambridge at the time, as in the bursars’ accounts of 1484–85 (I. M. J. fo. 31.) we find this item:

Item pro expensis servi [̄]mri Johannis Repplyngham, equitantis pro magistro ad suam electionem ij^s. iiij^d.

The college of Thomas Wilkynson and the dates of his degrees are not anywhere recorded; he is described on his monumental brass as M.A., yet he seems to have taken the degree of B.D. in 1479 from the following notice in Grace Book A, p. 58. (in the office of the registry of the university) under that year:

Concess. M. Wilkynson quod possit incipere in theologia.

It is not impossible that he had been a fellow of Queens’ college, as in a deed of 1480 he is associated with J. Ripplingham and Ralph Songar, who were undoubtedly fellows.

At the time of his election he held the rectory of Harrow-on-the-hill, a sinecure to which he had been presented 5 Feb.

1478-9 by Cardinal Bouchier, on the death of Thomas Winterbourne, dean of St Paul's (Newcourt i. 637).

Besides the rectory of Harrow-on-the-hill, Thomas Wilkynson also held the rectory of Orpington, Kent, and the prebend of Studley Magna in the collegiate church of St Peter, and St Wilfrid at Ripon. He was appointed rector of Orpington in 14..., and resided there in part, as appears from the following entry in the bursars' accounts (I. M. J. 1497-98, fo. 121).

Item in expensis m^ri. J. Jenyn [the senior bursar] in itinere ad Horpington, ut patet per billam..... x^s. i^d.

The prebend of Ripon church, vacant Sept. 1510 by the death of Richard Bryndholm, he obtained on 11 Jan. 1510-1, after he had ceased to be president of Queens' college.

He resided chiefly at Harrow, whence he visited the college for elections to fellowships, Stourbridge fair, and the audits:

I. M. J. 1493-94 fo. 85. Item pro expensis Tho^o. Pate [bibliotiste] equitantis in Harwe ad presidentem collegii ij^s. ix^d.

1494-95. fo. 94. b. Item solutum magistro nostro quum venit pro electione sociorum pro expensis suis. xiiij^s. iiij^d.

I. M. J. 1501-02. fo. 148. Item Johannis Lane pro feno equorum M. presidentis in nundinis Sterbrig. anno xvj^o regis nunc ij^s. iiij^d.

1503-04. fo. 164. b. Pro vino et succar' et serevisia tempore quo M^r. president erat hic in quadrag'. v^s.

Uxori Roberti Cori pro lotione vestium M. presidentis erga adventum ejus ad nundinas et pro expolitione pelvis et lavatorii et candelabriiiij^d.

fo. 165. [M^ro Yoman] pro vino pro M. presidente tempore nundinarum Sterbriggeviiij^d.

1504-05. fo. 178. b. Item pro expensis m^ri Wilkynson, tunc presidentis, tempore quo erat Cantibrigie propter electionem sociorum [Easter 1505. 23 March] ut patet per billam xxv^s. vii^d.

After the election, John Ripplingham and William Thurkylle, the executors of Andrew Docket's will, renounced their trust, and letters of administration were granted 23 Apr. 1485 by Thomas Tuppyn, D.D. vice-chancellor of the university, to Mr Wilkynson, the president, and Ralph Songer, Dionysius Spycer, and Hugh Trotter, clerks, and all and singular the fellows of the college.

THE presidentship of Mr Wilkynson began under most favourable auspices for the prosperity of the college. Richard duke of Gloucester, who had shewn so much favour to the college, had lately (26 June 1483) ascended the throne; in order to strengthen his position, he strove to propitiate the clergy and people of England by munificent grants for religious and educational purposes, and his queen maintaining the position of foundress and patroness of the college, which seemed to have become a tradition with the queens of England, was pleased to continue the good offices of her predecessors towards it. 'After this bloody act, King Richard endeavoured to render himself popular. First, by making good laws in that sole Parliament kept in his Reign,...yet this would not ingratiate this Usurper with [the people], the dullest nostrils resenting it done, not for love of vertue, but his own security...Next he endeavoured to work himself into their good will, by erecting and endowing of Religious Houses; so to plausibelize himself, especially among the Clergy....He is said also to have given to Queens College in Cambridge five hundred marks of yearly rent (Stow in his Annals, p. 470); though at this time, I believe, the College receives as little benefit by the Grant, as Richard had right to grant it. For, it was not issued out of his own purse, but given out of the lands of his enemy, the unjustly proscribed Earl of Oxford; who being restored by Henry the Seventh, made a resumption thereof' (Fuller, Ch. Hist. sub anno 1484).

And R. Parker in his Skeletos (Leland, Collect. [Hearne] v. 226) says, 'Nec his contentus, ut aliquo sanctitatis artificio crudelitatis suæ maculam expungeret, pergrande illud ac honorarium Johannis Vere 13^{thi} Comitis Oxonii patrimonium cum omnibus Dominiis, Maneriis, Castris et Feodis, quia S. Michaelis montem in Cornwallia contra Edwardum 4^{thum} in belli sedem elegerit, ac Lancastriensi familiæ semper tenaciter adhæserat, Collegio huic donavit. Quod tamen Henricus Septimus. regale solium expetens, quasi hereditarium Comiti restituit.'

As we have seen, some part at least of the estates granted in 1484 had belonged to the queen's mother, the countess of Warwick.

The grant made to the college was a very large one, but more in appearance than in reality, as on 1 March, 2 Ric. III. 1484-5 the college granted to William Catesby, 'armiger pro corpore domini regis', and to John Catesby of Olthorp a perpetual lease of the manor and advowson of Buckby with 1000 acres of land, 1000 acres of pasture, 100 acres of wood, and 'viginti libratas redditus' in Buckby for the sum of £60 per annum. Besides on 3 March the college granted to William Catesby a life annuity of £4 out of this rent, 'pro bono concilio et favore, que dictus Willelmus nobis impendit, et de ipso in posterum habere confidimus.' The first of the two deeds is as follows:

Hec indentura facta primo die Martii anno regni regis Ricardi tercii post conquestum Anglie secundo inter presidentem et socios Reginalis collegii sancte Margarete et sancti Barnardi confessoris in universitate domini regis Cant. ex una parte et Wyllelmum Catysby armigerum pro corpore dicti domini regis et Johannem Catysby de Olthorp ex altera parte testatur, Quod predicti presidentes et socii eorum communi assensu et consensu per presentes dederunt concesserunt et confirmaverunt prefatis Willelmo et Johanni manerium de Bukby cum pertinentiis et advocacionem ecclesie ejusdem manerii ac mille acras terre mille acras pasture centum acras bosci et viginti libratas redditus cum pertinentiis in Bukby in com. The second deed is to the following effect:

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit, presidens et socii Reginalis collegii sancte Margarete et sancti Bernardi confessoris in universitate domini regis Cant. Salutem. Cum nos dicti presidens et socii nuper per scriptum nostrum indentatum cujus data est primo die Martii ultimo preterito dederimus et concesserimus Willelmo Catysby armigero pro corpore domini regis et Johanni Catysby de Olthorp manerium de Bukby cum pertinentiis et advocacionem ecclesie ejusdem manerii ac mille acras terre mille acras pasture centum acras bosci et viginti libratas redditus cum pertinentiis in Bukby in com. In cujus rei testimonium huic presenti scripto nostro sigillum nostrum commune apposuimus. Datum tercio die Martii anno regni regis Ricardi tertii post conquestum secundo.

In Dec. 1484 'the president and felowes of the Quenes College of Cantebrigge' had 'a Prive Seale to the Chauncellere of England and to the Maister of the Rolls for the amendment of their Patents of the Lands granted to the said place; by raising out certain words and inserting others in their stede' (MS. Harl. 433 fo. 87).

On .. Feb. 2 Ric. III. 1484-5 the president and fellows had a pardon of £20 due to the king, for licence to accord with the queen in a plea of covenant of 4000 acres of land (MS. Harl. 433 fo. 96 b).

On 11 Feb. 2 Ric. III. 1484-5 the king gave 'commaundment to the Baillieffe of Cosgrave to pay to the president and felowes of the Quenes colledge of Cantebrigge alle such arrerags as er behinde of the said lordshipe' (MS. Harl. 433 fo. 207).

On 23 January, 1484-5, the college granted the right of presentation of the rectory of Stanford Berkshire, for the next turn to Robert Ripplingham, clerk, and Robert Malyard, merchant of Scarborough. The former was brother of John Ripplingham, the fellow of the college who in 1480 was deputed to procure a copy of the pardon of 1473, and who at this time was one of the priests of king Richard's foundation. They were sons of William Ripplingham of Kingston-upon-Hull, merchant of the staple of Calais, and were (according to the monumental brass at Stretham Cambridgeshire, of their mother Joan who remarried to John Swan and died 1497) both rectors of Stretham (Cooper, Ath. i. 20. 525).

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit, nos Thomas Wylkynson presidens et socii collegii Reginalis sancto-rum Margarete et Bernardi Cantebrigie, Salutem in Eo qui est omnium vera salus. Noveritis nos presidentem et socios antedictos unanimi consensu pariter et assensu concessisse et hoc presenti scripto nostro confirmasse Roberto Rypplyngham clerico et Roberto Malyard mercatori de Scarborowe, primam et proximam vacationem et presentationem rectorie nostre ecclesie parochialis de Stanford in comitatu Berk., cum rectoria illa per mortem cessionem resignationem privationem sive dimissionem jam incumbentis seu quovis alio modo proxime vacare contigerit, Habendam et tenendam prefatis Roberto et Roberto ac eorum alteri pro prima et proxima vacatione et una sola vice tantum, Ita quod bene liceat et licebit eisdem Roberto et Roberto ac eorum alteri quamcunque personam sive clericum ydoneum ad rectoriam predictam (cum sic proxime vacare contigerit) nomine nostro loci illius diocesano sive in ejus absentia cuicunque alteri potestatem habenti et pro tempore existenti presentare et nominare, ac personam sive clericum illum in rectorem perpetuum dicte rectorie ecclesie predicte cum suis juribus et pertinentiis universis ad legitime instituendum et inducendum facere absque aliqua reclamatione contradictione seu variatione nostris seu successorum nostrorum in futurum. In cujus rei testimonium huic presenti scripto nostro sigillum nostrum commune unanimi consensu nostro apposuimus. Datum apud Cant. predictam vicesimo iij^o die mensis Januarii anno regni regis Ricardi tertii post conquestum Anglie secundo.

The time during which the college possessed the lands of the king's gift was very short, as the grant was made 5 July, 1484, and the king was killed 22 Aug. 1485; hence the only accounts of these estates that exist refer to the half-year from Michaelmas 1484 to Easter 1485; the second half-year's accounts to Michaelmas were never begun, the property having apparently at once reverted to the original owners or their representatives.

The yearly value therefore was £265. 15s. 8d., a very large income for a time when the value of the fellowships of the king's previous foundation was only £8 a year, while for many years later the yearly income of the college did not exceed £200.

The king apparently intended to give the college a fresh body of statutes, or at least to supplement those of 1475 by a set regulating the new endowment, as in his grant to the college we find that its revenues were to be applied 'juxta ordinationes et statuta per nos in hac parte ordinanda et superinde statuenda manutenenda subeunda et supportanda.'

The expences attending the king's gift were very great, thus I. M. J. fo. 1. b, we find,

In the first bursars' day-book (I. M. J.) the accounts of the 'antiqua dotatio' (comprising the private foundations and the duke of Gloucester's gift) and of the 'nova dotatio' are kept separately: the latter on fo. 1-12. On fo. 4 we find:

Whether from these extracts we may infer that there were as many as 33 fellows of queen Anne's foundation or not, it seems difficult to say. The number is large, and the income of the foundation would hardly provide a stipend equal to that of the rest of the society.

No name of any fellow of the foundation of queen Anne has come down to us, except — Uldall.

On 16 March 1484-5 died Anne Neville queen of Richard III., being (as in the following reign was believed) poisoned to make way for his marriage with Elizabeth, the eldest daughter of his brother King Edward IV.

We find the following reference to the queen's death:

By the duke of Gloucester's deed of gift the exequiæ of his father the duke of York were to be observed on the eve of St Sylvester 30 Dec.

AS has been said, the time during which the college held possession of the last gift of Richard was very short: for once more the house of York had to give place to the rival line, and on 22 Aug. 1485 the battle of Bosworth-field gave the English crown to Henry, earl of Richmond: by his marriage with Elizabeth of York, daughter of Edward IV. and queen Elizabeth Wydeville, he obtained an additional title to the throne, while the parliament which met at Westminster on 7 Nov. 1485, tired of war and change, and disgusted with the miseries of the last thirty years, was only too eager to confirm him in his possession of it by the act conferring the crown on him.

And now the prosperity which had depended on Richard's life came to an end. All the estates with which he had endowed the college as duke and as king were taken away from it, 'the college no whit grieving thereat, as sensible no endowment can be comfortable, which consists not with equity and honour' (Fuller).

In the first parliament of Henry VII. which met 7 Nov. 1485 the earl of Oxford on his petition was restored to all his possessions and honours (Rot. Parl. 1 Hen. VII. m. 10), and all grants made by his mother's feoffees to the duke of Gloucester were declared void.

The following extract from the petition refers to the lands which the duke had given to the college:—

Furthermore, where Elizabeth late Countess of Oxenford deceased, moder of the said John Veer, whose heire he is, for the true and faithfull Allegeaunce and service, the whiche as well shee, as the same John Veer, owed and did to the forsaid most blessed Prince King Herrie, was so manassed, put in feare of her lyfe, and ymprisoned by Richard the III late in dede and not of right King of England, whilsh hee was Duke of Glouc' in such tyme as the same John Veer was not att his Libertee, but in Prisone, for that drede, and by meane of the same, the same Countess, in Salvacion of her Lyfe was compelled to do and make, and cause her Feoffees to do and make, such State, Releases and Confirmacōns and other thynges, to the said late Duke of Glouc' and other to his use, of divers Lordshippes, Mannors, Lands, Tennements and Hereditaments of inheritaunce, as by the same late Duke and his Councell was advised, as hit is notoriously and openly knowne, ayenst all reason and good conscience; whereby the said John Veer, is likely to be disinherit of grete part of his inheritaunce, unless some remedie be for him provided by auctoritee of Parlement in thys behalf, Please hit youre Highness...to ordeine establish and enacte that all Estates, Releases, Confirmacōns and other things doone or made or suffered to be done or made, by the said Countess or by anie Feoffee or Feoffees anie tyme to her use, of any Castles, Lordshippes, Mannors, Landes, Tennements, or Hereditaments, of her or of any other to hir use to the forsaid late Duke of Glouc', or to any other to his use, be utterly voide, and of no force ne effecte. (Rot. Parl. vi. 281. Pro comite Oxon' et al'.)

In order to take away all doubt as to the countess' rights, in the parliament of 1495 the following act was passed:—

11 Hen. VII. c. 38.

Pro comite Oxon.

To the right discrete comons in this present parliament assembled.

Where Elizabeth Countesse of Oxenford decessed, Moder to John nowe Erle of Oxenford, whose heire he is, and divers persones feoffees to her use, of and in divers Manoris, Londs, Tenementis and other Hereditamentis with their appertenaunces of her enheritaunce, weer by Richard late in dede and not of right King of Englund, while he was Duke of Gloucetir, of his inordynate covetyse and ungodely disposicion, for the true and feithfull alliegeaunge and service the whiche aswell she, as John late Erle of Oxenford her husbond, as the seid nowe Erle then not at his libertie, owed and did to the moste blessid and cristen Prince King Henry the vj^{te}, enforced by greate threttis and heynous manasse of losse of lyfe and by imprisonment, to doo and make suche estates releasses confirmacions and other thinges to the seid late Duke and other to his use, as the seid late Duke and his counsell wold advyse; In consideracion wherof at a parliament holden at Westminster the vijth day of November the first yere of the raign of the King our Sovereign Lorde that now is, it was ordeyned and stablissed by auctorite of the same parliament amonge other thingis that all states releasses confirmacions and other thingis don and made or suffred to be don or made by the seid Countesse, or by any feoffee or feoffees at any tyme to her use, of any Castellis Manoris Londes Tenementis or Hereditamentis to the seid Duke of Gloucetyr or any other to his use, shuld be utterly voide and of noe force ne effecte, as in the same acte is expressed more at large; and hou be it that then it was and yet ys pleynly and notoriously knowen by greate parte of this Realme, that suche states releasses confirmacions and other thingis as weare made by the seid Countes and her seid feoffees, of her inheritaunce to the seid Duke, were made by compulcion cohercion and emprisonement as is before seid, yet ther was noe mencion made of recorde of any wisse or prove therof, the which myght remayne hereafter to the perpetuell evidence and knowledge of the same, Therfor their be cōmen at thynstaunce and desire of the said Erle into this present parliament divers Worshipfull and credible persones, that is to sey, James Tyrell Knyght, John Risley Knyght, William Tunstall, (Statutes of the Realm, ii. 605).

Elizabeth countess of Oxford, as has been already mentioned, was wife of John II. earl of Oxford, who was beheaded 26 Feb. 1461-2. Their son was John III., who in 1470 took part with the Lancastrian party, and after the battle of Barnet retired to Cornwall, where he held St Michael's Mount against Edward IV. Being compelled to surrender, he was attainted and imprisoned in the castle of Hamms in Picardy, whence in 1484 he escaped, and joining Henry earl of Richmond assisted him in his invasion of England. On the earl becoming king, he was rewarded with grants of land and high offices of state: he died 10 March, 1512. His first wife Margaret was daughter of Richard earl of Salisbury and sister of Richard earl of Warwick the king-maker (Dugdale, Bar. i. 188, 304).

As regards the property which had belonged to the countess of Warwick, the king in the third year of his reign procured an act of parliament annulling the former one of 14 Edw. IV. which conferred her estates on her daughters the duchesses of Clarence and of Gloucester (queen Anne), 'as against all reason conscience and course of nature, and contrary to the laws of God and man'. And in consideration of the true and faithful service and allegiance by her borne to Henry VI., as also that she never gave cause to such disherison, he restored unto her the possession of her inheritance with the power to alienate the same or any part thereof: she did not however enjoy it long, as the same year, by a special feoffment bearing date 13 Dec. and a fine thereupon, she conveyed it wholly to the king, entailing it upon the issue male of his body, with remainder to herself and her heirs. The lordships contained in that grant are enumerated in Dugdale, Bar. i. 307, (Rot. Parl. vi. 391).

The following entries in the bursars' accounts may possibly refer to some proceedings on the part of the college with respect to the act of resumption :—

I. M. J. 1484-85, fo. 31 b. Item solutum magistro pro expensis ejus in negotiis collegii, ut patet per billam.....	viiij ^d . xij ^s . x ^d .
Item pro expensis Hugonis Trotter, London. per xij dies pro materia collegii in principio parliamenti ultra negotia propria.	xj ^s . iij ^d .
1485-86, fo. 39. Item nuncio ferenti literas magistro presidenti, London.	ij ^d .

Thus of all the gifts of Richard III. nothing now remains in the college, and the only memorial which it possesses of him is a letter directed to it by him, recommending William Ustwayte, B.A. for election to a fellowship. It is dated 29 Dec. only, which (as the king's reign falls between 26 June, 1483, and 22 Aug. 1485) may be either in 1483 or 1484. It is on paper very much decayed.

BY THE KING.

Trusty and welbeloved we grete you wele. The good and vertueux disposicion, whiche oure welbeloved S^r William Ustwayte bacheler of arts by credible report unto Us made is reputed to be of, with the right herty affeccion that he hath unto lernyng and for other spial causes, move Us to write unto you at this time, Desiring and hertily praieng you, that (such persons prefered whom we hertofor by oure other lres have recōmended unto you) ye will doo the said S^r William to be elect among you as oon of the felowes of our college that w^t all such rightes and dueties as to a felow of the same belongen, wherein ye shall ministre unto Us thing of right singlier pleasir w^t des^rvyng oure spial thanks. Yeven under our signet at our palois of Westm^r the xxixth day of December.

Addressed:

To our trusty and welbeloved the Master and felowes of o^r college called the Quenes College in o^r univ^rsity of Cambrigge.

In 1484 the bursars' account books, called the 'Magnum Journale,' begin, from which many facts connected with the private life of the college have been derived. The first volume contains the accounts of the years 1484-1518.

From the first half-year's account, from Michaelmas 1484 to Easter 1485, we learn that 17 fellowships were in existence at that time, founded as follows :

4	endowed by	Richard duke of Gloucester.
5	Lady Margery Roos.
2	Dr John Druell.
1	John Collinson, archdeacon of Northampton.
1	John Alfray, gent.
1	John Barby.
1	Dr William Syday.
1	William Grene, esq.
1	Lady Alice Wyche.

We find however I. M. J. 1484-85, fo. 27. b, under ' Titulus exequiarum antique dotationis' :

Item pro exequiis M^ri Druell [Jan. 22] s. (solutum) xix sociisxix^s.

In the following years two fellows of Collinson's foundation are mentioned till 1492.

These 17 fellowships were soon reduced to 13 by the loss of the 4 royal fellowships. In 1485 the Otware fellowship appears, but in the following year it was united with the Barby fellowship. Although the Marke fellowship was in a manner endowed in 1471, it was only in 1490 that it was filled. Soon after that date, the founders of the fellowships, which the several members of the society held, are no longer mentioned.

In 1491 the lady Joan Ingaldesthorpe, relict of sir Edmund Ingaldesthorpe of Burgh-Green, Cambridgeshire, aunt and co-heiress of Edward Tiptoft, earl of Worcester, and cousin of lady Margery Roos, founded a fellowship. By a quadripartite indenture made between the lady Joan Ingaldesthorpe, the college, the wardens of the goldsmiths' gild in London and the convent of the Dominicans within Ludgate in London, the lady Joan Ingaldesthorpe gave the manor of Great Eversden for the endowment of a priest ' at the least a scholar of divinity,' to sing and pray for the soul of the said dame Jane, John late earl of Worcester, Edmund Ingaldesthorpe, Kt., and Geoffry Downes, to have 10 marks for his salary; the college was also to pay yearly to the friars, by the hands of the wardens of the goldsmiths' company, the sum of 20 marks, 10 marks whereof 'shalbe employed and remaȳ to the weall and profittes of the saide hous and convent,' of the remaining 10 marks £3. 6s. 8*d.* was to be the salary of two friars daily saying mass, 26s. 8*d.* to be distributed on St Luke's day among the friars, and 40s. to be the salary of a schoolmaster. The college further agreed to keep 'an obite of placebo and dirige solely by note and messe of requiem on the morwe also by note, and after the seid messe of requiem so seid the said fellows to have at there dyner amonges them iij galons of wyne.'

The deed is dated 5 Nov. 7 Hen. VII. 1491, and is referred to in the following extract:—

I. M. J. 1491-92, fo. 72. b. It' pro scriptura cuiusdam indenture dñe Yngyllsthorpe vj^a.

In John Abbot of the monastery of St Augustine, Canterbury, 'considering the gret and manifold benefits don and shewed for the comō weale and profet of [the] monasteri by the charitable person Geffrey Downes esquier,' promised by bond to Thomas Wilkinson, president of the college, under the common seal to provide for the saying of certain prayers for the soule of dame Jane Ingaldesthorpe, Geoffrey Downes and all Christian souls and also to present to the rectory of St Andrew's Canterbury when void one of the fellows of Queens' college, with a preference to the fellow of lady Joan Ingaldesthorpe's foundation. The college presented two of its members, but lost the right at the dissolution of the monastic houses. (Statutes of 1529, p. 51.)

Dame Jane Ingaldesthorpe likewise, on 24 June, 8 Hen. VII. 1493, endowed the prior and convent of Ely with certain lands in Dullingham and Burwell in Cambridgeshire for the salary of 1*s.* a week of two priests, 'brethren of the said prior,' to pray for the souls of herself, John earl of Tiptoft, and Joyce his wife, and of John late earl of Worcester. At the obit, the prior was to divide among the monks 16s. 8d., to give to the sexton for wax 20d., to the ringers 12d., to the poor 33s. 4d. in bread and ale. (Statutes of 1529, p. 50.)

Lady Joan Burgh seems to have died in 1493, as in I. M. J. for 1493-94 we find among payments to the fellows and lecturers that 26s. 8d. was paid 'Dno W. Lyncolne, celebranti pro anima dne J. Burwe,' for his services for one term beginning 2 Feb. 1493-4. William Lyncolne does not appear again, nor among the foundation fellows at all.

As this lady was one of the greatest benefactors to the college, it is very unfortunate that about her so little information exists. Even in 1565 the same uncertainty existed about the date of her death. (Walker MS. fo. 71. b.)

On her death the estate at St Nicholas-court in the Isle of Thanet, which she had given to the college in 1473, and which had been regranted to her for her lifetime, reverted to the college. Of the deed of composition for her fellow, only the following transcript remains, the date also being omitted.

Donatio domine Borowgh.

(Misc. B. fol. 29. b.)

The earliest mention of this estate in the college accounts occurs in the year 1504-05.

Besides providing for the fellow and scholar of her foundation, she is mentioned as the donor of a silver-gilt chalice.

On 16 March, 10 Hen. VII. 1494-95, an indenture was made between William Wilde, 'chanon of Powles' and executor of the will of Dr John Drewell, also canon of St Paul's, who died 1494, and the college, for the purpose of regulating the foundation of two fellowships and one bible-clerk made by the latter. Dr J. Drewell had in his lifetime given lands in Abbotsley, Haslingfield and Pampisford, to the value of £24 a year, each fellow to have £6. 3s. 4d. for his salary, and the bible-clerk to be provided for as the poor scholars were. They were to pray for him, and his obit was to be kept in St Botolph's church, where he was buried, on St Vincent's day (22 Jan.), with mass on the morrow.

I. M. J. 1494-95, fo. 93. b. Item sol. pro expensis mri Fitzjohn quum equitavit Londoniis (sic) pro pecuniis receptis a mro Wylle xiiij^s. iiij^d. ob.

Mr Wilde also was a benefactor, having given lands to the annual value of 63s. 8d., and was accordingly to be commemorated at Drewell's obit. In 16 Hen. VII. 1500-01 he gave the college £66. 13s. 4d. (Misc. B. fo. 16. Misc. A. fo. 6. b).

John Drewell, LL.D. was rector of Fulham, Middlesex, 1452-58, prebendary of Osgate in the church of London, 1457-67, and treasurer of the same church 1458-67; in 1467 he resigned his preferments in it (Newcourt). To him refers probably the following grace of the year 1469 :

'Item concessum m^{ro} Johanni Cruell de collegio Regine [quod possit absentare se a congregationibus quibuscunque nisi nominatim vocetur a cancellario sive vicecancellario]' (Grace Book A.)

William Wilde was rector of St Leonard's, Colchester, 1464-67, treasurer of St Paul's 1467-74, precentor 1474-....., prebendary of Oxgate 1467-77, and of Bromesbury in the same church 1477-..... (Newcourt).

In the accounts of the year 1494-95 (fo. 92) we find the cloister (here first mentioned) being repaired :

Inprimis sol. pro uno bigatu de ly lyme pro claustro ij^s. vj^d.

There are many other entries of sand and work for the cloister.

In 1495 (?) Thomas Wilkynson, president, and the fellows of the college, in consideration of the bequest of twelve tenements in Bermondsey-street, Southwark, made to the college by John Barby, undertook to provide a priest as fellow of the college and also for the reading of a lecture on Holy Scripture within the said college. Of the deed only an undated transcript remains (Misc. B. fo. 30): no earlier deed pertaining to this fellowship exists, but the fellowship was in existence in 1484, and we find in the original part of the inventory of 1472 (fo. 10. b), a mention of vestments for priest, deacon and subdeacon given by him. He was a mercer of London (I. M. J. fo. 47. b). According to the inventory of 1472 (fo. 15. b) and the Statutes of 1529 (fo. 54. b), the fellow was to have 8 marks for his stipend: but as the statutable stipend of a priest-fellow was 10 marks, part of the benefaction of John Ottwar was joined to that of Barby, so as to produce 10 marks per annum.

On 1 Sept. 1498, Henry VII. and his queen Elizabeth of York visited Cambridge on their way from Lynn to Huntingdon. In the bursars' accounts for this year we find the following :

I. M. J. 1497-98, fo. 121. In expensis adventus regis et regine, ut patet per billam vⁱⁱ. ob.

On 8 June, 17 Hen. VII. 1502, the college gave to Hugh Trotter, D.D., treasurer of York cathedral, a receipt for the sum of £253. 6s. 8d. (Misc. A. fo. 21. b). With this sum an estate was purchased at Fulbourn of Mr John Ormesby, £100 being paid in 1499-1500, £100 the year following, and the remainder £53. 6s. 8d. in the year 1501-02 (I. M. J. fo. 139, 151. b, 158. b). Dr Trotter had been a fellow of the college till 1490, when he became provost of the collegiate church of Beverley. He wished the college to elect Mr Stackhouse to a fellowship represented by his donation, but as he was of Yorkshire, of which county there already was a fellow, and the statutes of 1475 forbade two fellows of that county being on the foundation at the same time, he was admitted as a member of the college, not in perpetuity, but only during the pleasure of Dr Trotter. It was not till 1549 that Trotter's priest was enrolled among the foundation fellows.

I. M. J. 1499-1500, fo. 137. Item pro expensis m^{ri} Jennyn et m^{ri} Colyns et unius servientis, when visiting Dr Trotter at Beverley in causis collegii xxx^s. v^d.

1501-02. fo. 157. Expensis M. Jenyn versus Doct. Ryplyngham cum literis collegii ad M. Trotter vj^d.

Queen Elizabeth of York, the fourth queen consort since the foundation of the college, died 11 Feb. 1502-3, aged 38. She does not seem to have done anything to further the prosperity of the college, nor are there any deeds in which she claims the position of patroness. The only trace of her in the college is the following fragment of a mandate for electing — Billington to a fellowship or scholarship. It bears her autograph in the margin.

BY TH

Elizabeth	Trusty and welbeloved we grete you procede to the liting and chosing of ordenance and foundacion of the same Billington scoler for the good and
-----------	--

A memoir of her is prefixed to the 'Privy purse expenses of Elizabeth of York: Wardrobe accounts of Edward the Fourth,' by sir Harris Nicolas (London, 8vo. 1830), pp. xxxj—civ.

In 1504 the president and some of the fellows had to appear for some unrecorded reason before the privy council in London:—

Item pro famulo et equo gerenti cartam Londinias eodem tempore iij^s. iiij^d.

Two of the fellows Yoman and Pomell were in London for the same purpose. The expenses of the former amounted to 5^{li}.

1504-05, fo. 178 b. Pro expensis servientis magistri Wilkynson tunc presidentis collegii, quum veniebat propter quasdam cartas videndas coram regis consiliariis vj^d.

In April, 1505, Mr Wilkynson resigned the rule over Queens' college. The resignation is proved by the following notice in the bursar's book, for that year:

I. M. J. 1504-05, fo. 178 b. Item pro expensis [m^{ri} Jenyns Vicepresidentis et m^{ri} Pomell] dum equitabant Colywestoniam ad loquendum cum matre regia propter resignationem officii magistratus collegii et pro expensis Thome Barbour versus Harow of hyll et domi, ut patet per billam..... vij^s. iij^d. ob.

Pro expensis factis super Addirton servum matris regie quum attulit literas collegio..... iij^d.

He does not appear to have been a benefactor to the college; we find however in Misc. A. fo. 39, mention of 'ij tabyll cloythys of diaper w^t ij tooells of dyaper' of his gift.

In Misc. A. fo. 22, is the copy of a letter in English, without address or any further date than 12 April, referring to the resignation of his office by the then president. It occurs between copies of two titles for orders, dated respectively 18 March, 1504-5, and 7 May, 1505, and as it mentions the bishop of Rochester, it can only refer to the resignation of Mr Wilkynson.

It is to the following effect:

Ryght reverent and worschypfull and to us att all tymys most syngular and specyall good mast^r, Wee yo^r scolars and dayly beedmen humble recōmend us unto yo^r mast'schyp And for as mysch as wee underston be y^e lett's of the moste excellent p^rnces my lady the kyngs mother and allso by y^r lett's that ye be at this tyme myndyt to resigne the p^rsidentship of this our colage called the qwenys colage, so that ye myght knowe our myndys in this thing, wherefor we write unto yower maist'ship at this tyme signifyyng unto you y^t we ar fully det^rminate and doth promyse you to elect such a man as is thoght unto you necessary and profitable unto this our colage the lorde bisshop of Rochest^r. Frome Cambrige in haste the xijth daye of Ap^rll.

On 13 Dec. 1511, Thomas Wilkynson died, aged....., and was buried at Orpington. His monument consists of a slab, with the brass figure of a priest on it, habited in a plain cope. On a plate beneath his feet is the following inscription:

Orate pro aīa Thome Wilkynson Arcium magistri quondam p^rbendarii in ecclīa sancti Wulfranni de Rippon et rectoris de Harowe super montem et Orpyngton qui obiit xiiij^o die Decembris a^o dⁿi m^o b^e xj^o cui^o aīe propicietur Deus.

His arms, as depicted on a MS. Table of the presidents in the Lodge, are:

Gu. a fess vairé; in chief a unicorn courant, or.

He was succeeded in the rectory of Harrow, 16 Dec. 1511, by Cuthbert Tunstall, afterwards bishop successively of London and Durham, and in the prebend of Ripon, on 4 March, 1511-2, by Christopher Joycc, alias Joyc, archiepiscopo cognatus (a relation of Cardinal Baynbrigg, archbishop of York).

(Information from the late rev. J. Ward, rector of Wath near Ripon, and rev. W. Falcon, vicar of Orpington.)

Besides the Magnum Journale there are no documents shewing the state of the college, except three inventories of the chapel of 1496-1503. These shew a very great increase over the similar inventory of 1472; and it may be presumed that the rest of the college kept pace with the chapel in this increase of wealth and comfort.

We find a few notices of poor scholars employed in menial offices:—

- I. M. J. 1495-96, fo. 100. Item duobus pauperibus scolaribus laborantibus circa pontem ij^d.
 1496-97, fo. 111. Item solutum duobus pauperibus scolaribus portantibus ly sekkates ad cooperiendum tectum aule super magnam fenestram in aula tempore pluvioso ij^d.

Among the documents preserved in the college, by its date belonging to this presidentship, is the following licence, not filled up, to the holder to enjoy special privileges as to absolution, at the moderate charge of one gold florin, to go towards the Crusade against the Turks, which the Popes, alarmed for the safety of Italy and even Europe, urged, with small success, all Christendom to undertake.

The reigning pope was Innocent VIII. 1484-1492. John de Gigliis, of Lucca, the collector of the Apostolic Chamber, was canon of Wells 1478, archdeacon of London 1482, and bishop of Worcester 1497: he died 25 Aug. 1498. (Newcourt, i. 61; Anglia Sacra, i. 538.)

XXX. John Fisher.

... Apr. 1505—c. 1 July 1508.

20—23 Hen. VII.

VEN as early as 1565 great ignorance seems to have existed respecting the leading facts and dates in the college history. The date of the end of Thomas Wilkynson's presidentship is in the Walker MS. (fo. 93. b) given as 1500. A like confusion will be found in Fuller's account of the succession of bishop Fisher to the vacant mastership.

Fuller's account of the reason of this transaction is as follows: Bishop Fisher 'was Chaplain, and Confessour to the Lady Margaret, Countesse of Richmond, at whose instance, and by whose advise, She founded, and endowed Christs- and S. John's-Colledge in Cambridge. Employed in building of the latter (her posthume Colledge of S. John's) and effectually advancing that work, he wanted the accommodation of a convenient Lodging, when Dr. Thomas Wilkinson, President of Queens-Colledge, opportunely departed this life: and that Society requested Bishop Fisher to succeed in his place, which he gratefully accepted, faithfully discharged, and thereby had the advantage to finish his new Colledge in the lesse time, to his greater contentment.' (Church History, Book v. sect. 3, no. 3.)

St John's college was not founded till 1511, and hence bishop Fisher could not during the three years of his presidentship have done anything towards its buildings. Christ's college however was founded by lady Margaret in 1505, 'though the statutes were not given, nor the foundation perfected till the year following'. It may have been for the purpose of superintending the progress of this latter college that bishop Fisher accepted the office of president.

Dr Plumptre, in his MS. history of the college, assigns as the reason of his election 'to give him a place of residence in the university, chancellors being in those times generally resident and executing their office in their own person.' He does not seem to have been aware of the resignation of Mr Wilkynson, although the bursars' books plainly state it.

Whatever circumstance may have been the cause of a vacancy in the presidentship, it is certain that on the resignation of Thomas Wilkynson, John Fisher bishop of Rochester, and at that time chancellor of the university, was elected as the third president of Queens' college. The election must have taken place soon after 12 April 1505 the date of the letter from the college to Mr Wilkynson and before 7 May, when the bishop appears as president in the title for orders of Thomas Austyn, one of the fellows.

John Fisher took his B.A. degree in 1487 as a student of Michaelhouse, was soon afterwards elected fellow, was vicar of Northallerton, Yorkshire, 1491-94, and in 1497 became master of that college. About the same time he was appointed confessor to the lady Margaret, countess of Richmond and Derby, mother of king Henry VII. In 1501 he was created D.D., and was chosen vice-chancellor of the university. In 1503 lady Margaret appointed him her first Divinity reader in the university of Cambridge, and in Oct. 1504 he was made bishop of Rochester. In the same year he was elected chancellor of the university, to which office he was re-elected annually for ten years, and was then appointed for life.

At the time of his death in 1535 he is generally stated to have been 77 years of age; at the time of his B.A. degree he would have been 28 years; and when he became bishop 46 years old: this latter age does not agree with his own statement, that he was made a bishop when very young, and the former age would make him very old among the undergraduates of his time. Fixing his birth in 1469 may perhaps be nearer the truth: he then would be 36 years of age when he became bishop: six months after this, he became president of Queens'.

Soon after his election, he visited his college:—

I. M. J. 1504-05, fo. 178 b. Item pro expensis in primo adventu domini magistri nostri, ut patet per billam ij^s. viij^d. ob.

The society had sometimes to consult him at his episcopal residence:—

I. M. J. 1505-06, fo. 187. Item pro expensis M. Jenyn adversus Rochester..... iij^s. iiij^d.

After the death of queen Elizabeth of York in 1503, the lady Margaret, countess of Richmond and Derby, mother of Henry VII., seems to have fulfilled the functions of queen consort towards the college, interesting herself in its behalf and in its management.

By indenture of 15 June, 20 Henry VII., 1505, Edward duke of Buckingham (Cooper, Ath. i. 24, Dugdale, Bar. i. 170) bestowed on the college, (for his safe state while living, and for the good of the souls of his ancestors and of his own soul after his death,) at the instance of the most excellent princess Margaret, countess of Richmond and Derby, the king's mother, 31 acres of meadow land in Essex, near Bumpstead Helyon. (Misc. A. fo. 22. b.)

The lady Margaret's second husband, sir Henry Stafford, was great uncle to the duke.

I. M. J. 1504-05, fo. 179. Pro expensis M. Vicepresidentis et Ricardi Staynbank thesaurarii...dum equitabant ad dominum Bukyngamie cum literis matris regie propter certas parcelas terre jacentes in Haverhill et Horsham Hall, ut patet per billam xlviij^s. v^d.

In 1505 the countess of Richmond visited Cambridge, when she appears to have been received with much honour and great marks of respect, the university proceeding as far as Caxton to meet her. (Cooper, Ann. i. 275.) At the same time she paid Queens' college a visit, as appears from the following entries in the accounts of the college:—

I. M. J. 1504-05, fo. 178 b.	Carpentario laboranti per diem in cameris collegii erga adventum matris regie	v ^d .
	Pro sirpis pro camera ejusdem domine	ij ^d .

DURING bishop Fisher's rule over the college, Desiderius Erasmus made his first visit to Cambridge. He had already visited England in 1497, at the invitation of William Blount, lord Mountjoy, who in the previous year had been his pupil at Paris. It was on this occasion that he formed a friendship with John Colet, afterwards dean of St Paul's (1505-19), and other distinguished Englishmen. Among other friends of this period we find Richard Whitford, a fellow of Queens' and 'Guilielmi Montjoi a sacris,' to whom he addressed Letter x. of Le Clerc's edition (10 Vols. fo. Leyden, 1703). The date there given is 1497. Perhaps this is not correct, as it was only on 3 March 1497-8 that the college gave Whitford leave to go with Lord Mountjoy beyond seas. He ceased to be a fellow at Easter 1503-4. On coming to Cambridge in 1506, Erasmus had his grace to commence D.D. in the following terms:—

Conceditur Des. Erasmo ut unicum, vel si exigantur, duo responsa, una cum duobus sermonibus ad clerum, sermoneque examinatorio, et lectura publica in Epistolam ad Romanos, vel quævis alia, sufficiant sibi ad incipiendum in Theologia; sic, quod prius admittatur Baccalaureus in eadem, et intret libros sententiarum, Bedellis- que satisfaciat. (Grace-book F. 1505-6).

In this year also he dedicated his edition of Lucian's Tyrannicida (dated Ruri Kal. Maji 1506) to Richard Whitford. Of his letters as contained in Le Clerc's edition, only seventeen belong to the ten years 1501 to 1510, while about forty belong to the year 1499 and twenty-one to the year 1511. He could not have remained long at Cambridge, as in a letter to dean Colet (civ.) dated Paris 19 June 1506, he mentions his recent return to France from England. In the following letters cv. cvii. written from Paris 1506 and 1507, he alludes to the friends that he had made in England, 'tam multos, tam doctos, tam integros, tam amantes, tam officiosos, tam jucundos, denique sic de me promeritos,' but gives no particulars of his stay. The next (cvii.) is addressed to Colet from Cambridge 1 Nov. 1507. Apparently he was at that time really in the county, as he says: 'et ipsi rus concesseramus, sed vini inopia fortasse nos Cantabrigiam rediget.' There is however much difficulty in ascertaining the real dates of Erasmus' life from his letters. When they were first published, 'erant amici, qui per litteras monuerunt, singulas juxta temporum ordinem digerendas esse; id etiamsi fuisset in promptu, ob certas causas non est visum consultum: ... porro si quis aliquid tale desiderat, diem et annum in calce singularum adjecimus' (ERASMUS Lectori). In this task however his memory or his notes must often have deceived him.

In 1508 he was in Italy and took the degree of Doctor of Divinity, either at Bologna, or Turin: 'Doctoratum in sacra Theologia nuper accepimus, idque plane contra animi mei sententiam, ac precibus amicorum expugnati' (App. cccclxxxvi, written apparently at Florence in Oct. 1508.) He stayed a year at Bologna, visited Rome and Venice, and in 1510 returned to England. There are no letters written during this Italian journey in Le Clerc's edition.

1505. Desiderius Erasmus Roterodamus fuit pensionarius 21^o Henrici sept.

Of this visit of Erasmus to Cambridge no traces remain in the college books, nor indeed are any trustworthy accounts of it to be found in our writers. Knight (Life of Erasmus, 82) says: '[Erasmus] had not been long in the City, before he accepted the Invitation of Dr John Fisher to go down to Cambridge:' but no letters confirm this. The account given by Dr Caius of the visit (Hist. Cant. Acad. 127) contains many errors. The following part of his statement however, though controverted by Knight (p. 87), seems to be true.

'Paulo ante nostrum adventum inter alios Erasmus Roterodamus vir notæ famæ et doctrinæ, qui circa annum Dom. 1506. (quo tempore Henr. etiam 7. Angliæ rex prudentissimus Cantebrigiam invisit) Cantebrigie vixit,' [Græcas literas perlegit...].

In 1506 Henry VII. visited Cambridge. He arrived on 22 April, the eve of St George's day, and was received with all the complicated court ceremonies of that age. The mayor and bailiffs rode out two or three miles to meet him, and near to the town he found all the members of the university and of the different monastic establishments, standing in order. 'At the end of them was the Unyversyte Cross, wher was a Forme and a Cushin &c. as accustomed, where the Kyng dyd alight, and then the Bysshopp of Rochestre, Doctor Fisher, then beyng Chaunceller of the Unyversyte, accompanied by odir Doctors, sensyd &c. the Kyng, and aftir made a litle Proposition and welcomed hym; and then the Kyng took hys Horse ageyn & rood by the Blackfriers, throughe the Towne, to the Queens Colledge, wher hys Grace was at that tyme lodgged, and ther rested the space of an Houre, & then did on his Gowne and Mantell of the Gartier, and all odir-Knyghts of the Ordre there beyng present gave their attendance in the Habit of the Ordre as apperteyneth, and roode from the Kyngs Logginge to the Chappell of the Kyngs Colledge, which was for the same cause ready appointed with Scochins [of the knights companions arms], as ys yerely accustomed. The Byshopp of Rochestre, being there Chaunceller, did the Divine Service, both the Even, the Day, both at Mattens &c. and sang the Mass of Requiem on the Morrow.' (Ashmole, Instit. &c. of the order of the Garter, 558, 487; Cooper, Ann. i. 281.)

The following extracts from the bursars' accounts seem to refer to this visit:—

I. M. J. 1505-06, fo. 186. Item fabro pro clausuris fenestrarum vitrorum in camera regine erga adventum domini regis ... iij^s.

fo. 187. Item mag^o. Fawne pro vectione ornamentorum tempore regis viij^d.

1506-07, fo. 194 b, is this note at the top of the page:—

Hoc anno rex H. 7^{us}. moram traxit in collegio, et episcopus Roffensis presidens collegii moram traxit in domo sancti Michaelis.

fo. 197. Item pro constructione metarum erga adventum principis iij^s.

1507-08, fo. 202. Item pro allôcatione cōis servientis m^{ri} pro tempore, quo rex erat Cantibrigie viij^d.

IN 1508 bishop Fisher resolved to resign the presidency, and sent notice of his intention to the society by John Jenyn, one of the body, who eventually became master of the college. Hereupon the society sent him the following letter dated 14 June, 1508:—

Reverendo in Christo patri nostro ac domino, presidique facile meritissimo, domino Johanni, Deo bene consulente Roffensi episcopo, nostroque cancellario cumprimis digno, college Reginalis collegii Cant. unanimiter Salutem et quam amplissimam obedientiam.

Retulit pridem nobis Jeninus tuus et idem noster, jussu (ut aiebat) tuo, benigne antistes, parare jam te decessum a nobis huncque presidis locum velle alteri cuiquam designatum iri: nuncium certe nobis omnibus non tam novum et inopinatum quam et molestum et lacrimabilem planeque dolorificum, quippe qui persuasissimum habemus te nostrum presidem (propter et integritudinem vite bonitatemque singularem, tum ob multijugam eruditionem nominisque celebritatem neque non ingenii consiliique divinitatem quandam, denique ob non modicam auctoritatem) posse prestare nobis quantum aut alius nemo aut sane quam rarus.

Nam de te (facessat adulatio) quisquis exemplum capit, haud facile dixerimus an aliunde unquam accepturus est ad probitatem atque adeo omnem animi ingenuam honestissimamque culturam incitabula fomentaque potiora. Porro quod ad collegii negotia pertinet, poteris in illis tractandis etiam si apud nos non intersis, vivacitate ingenii perspicacitate consilii ad hec et auctoritate tua, plus unus efficere (et quidem ex sententia animi nostri) quam alii bis mille. Nempe tibi tribuimus ut nobis nequeat non esse apprime gratum quicquid tu feceris; sed et nulla re possumus (ita nos Deus amet) voluptari magis, quam ut te presidem habeamus, quem ut officiose deamamus, ita (mehercules) censemus quovis et amore et honore dignum: quin te preside atque capite nostro est unde etiam atque etiam veluti quibusdam admoniti aculeis exagitemur, non modo nos sed et nostri posterius, ut te propositum nobis exemplar et contemplemur crebrius et studiosius imitemur.

Quare per Jesum obsecramus age nobis dominum Martinum sanctissimum et clementissimum presulem, qui se exorari passus est a suis, 'Domine (inquiens) si adhuc populo tuo sum necessarius, non recuso pro eis laborem.' Quod si dixeris, non licere tibi apud nos manere, hoc neque aliis hic multis presulibus licet, neque nos desideramus; at manere poterit continuo frugalitas prudentissimi consilii tui, manere poterit et auctoramentum nominis, quo et ipsi famigeraiores nobilitatioresque evademus et erimus dubio procul ad virtutes bonasque litteras capessendas exhilaratiores. Jam, que tui est animi benignitas ac mansuetudo, noli nos deserere, noli nobis tuis ovibus non amplius esse pastor, noli (per misericordissimum Deum!) ita obfirmare te, ut vel nostri non miserearis, vel nostros animos sinas (si modo repulsam patiamur, nostrasque preces simus frustrati) et languidos esse prorsus atque attonitos consternatosque. En nos tue Paternitati deditissimos. In tua manu est situm vel voluptare nos si perrexeris, vel discruciare si cessaveris, idque novit Deus Optimus Maximus, qui te beatificet.

The reference to St Martin in this letter is explained by the following extract from Lectio V. ad Matut. in the Roman breviary service for the feast of St Martin of Tours, Nov. 11:—

Post factus Episcopus Turonensis, monasterium ædificavit, ubi cum octoginta monachis sanctissime aliquamdiu vixit. Qui cum postea ad Candacensem vicum sue Diocesis in gravem febrim incidisset, assidua Deum oratione precabatur, ut se ex illo mortali carcere liberaret. Quem audientes discipuli, sic rogabant: 'Cur nos, pater, deseris? cui nos miseros derelinquis?' Quorum voce commotus

Martinus, ita Deum orabat: ‘Domine, si adhuc populo tuo sum necessarius, non recuso laborem.’

The bishop’s answer to this appeal is unfortunately lost, however it expressed his unchanged determination to resign. The society then again wrote to him on 19 June offering him the nomination of his successor in the presidentship, as follows:—

Reverendo in Christo patri nostro ac domino presidique ac cancellario cumprimis insigni, domino Johanni Dei gratia Roffensi episcopo, college Reginalis collegii unanimiter Salutem et obedientiam.

Quod nostras litteras tanti feceris et quod in te contulimus vel officii vel pietatis ingente laude fueris prosecutus, certe rem fecisti neque novam, neque non precognitam nobis, Quis enim nescit qui modo satis te novit, eam esse bonitatem ingenii tui, que vel ea grata ducat, que non fecisse foret non ingratitude modo sed et nefarii sceleris? Itaque sicut alios longo intervallo eruditione politiorique literatura antecedis, ita humanitate certum est evincere. Agnoscimus igitur quanta maxima possumus pietate, illustrem tui animi benignitatem; teque pollicitum esse quibuscunque nostris in rebus tuam operam, velleque inter nos annumerari semper, tam gratum tamque jocundum est nobis omnibus, quam et optatum et necessarium; tantumque hoc nomine debemus tibi, quanta te et animi propensione et ardentissima quapiam adversum nos caritate non dubium est promississe. Quod autem scribis constitutum tibi jam esse et comparatum animo super sedere hocque magistratu defungi, quamquam percusi hoc verbo sumus mirum in modum, quamquam consternati et veluti in extasim adacti, tamen ne videamur actum (ut ajunt) agere, frustra que et importune voluntati tue obstrepere et vel hoc titulo parum tibi esse morigeri, en nos, optime pater, obsequentissimos tibi, nobis utere ut libet: alioquin tantum abest ut tollere abs te hunc magistratum [velimus,] ut liberrimam tibi potestatem faciamus designandi nobis presidis, quicunque tibi videbitur decere. Te namque certum habemus neminem esse prepositurum nobis, qui non referat imaginem tui tuasque virtutes aliquatenus scilicet. Proinde quicquid in hac re feceris dictum ac factum puta, idque sub testimonio non modo sigilli nostri communis sed et nostrarum manuum.

Cantebrigie, decimo tertio Kalendas Julias anno Christi millesimo D. octavo.

The bishop accepted the offer, and recommended Dr Robert Bekensaw, fellow of Michaelhouse, his own old college, whom in consequence the fellows elected president. The election was notified to the lady Margaret, (whose almoner the new master was at that time or soon after, and who seems to have interested herself in his behalf), to Dr Bekensaw, and to the bishop, in three letters, here following, of which, as of the preceding, the copies or rough drafts exist in Misc. A. fo. 24 b.—26 b.

II. Letter of the fellows to Dr Bekensaw, 6 July 1508.

Nuper non sine nostra omnium anxietate meroreque prope diximus incredibili cessit hic apud nos presidis loco reverendissimus in Christo pater, Roffensis antistes, vir citra assentationem non tam humanitatis ingenueque eruditionis egregie prudens, quam nobis omnibus apprime carus: cui utinam equa voluntas fuisset apud nos presidendi, quam nobis fuit illius retinendi. Huic a nobis discedenti neutiquam par erat nostram in illum pietatem [non] aliquousque monstrare, suamque erga nos nunquam obliterandam tum operam tum bonitatem non aliquantisper remetiri. Fecimus igitur ei potestatem (quandoquidem supersedere jam omnino certum fuerat) designandi constituendique nobis presidis, quemcunque is censeret convenire. Ille autem, sicuti est homo non obscuri neque insinceri iudicii, teque et tuas virtutes non vulgari humanitate prosequens, proposuit alioquin et preposuit te nobis. Cuius quidem iudicio ac testimonio tuarumque laudum honorifice mentioni tantum tribuimus, ut te jam dudum nobis presidem delegerimus unanimiter, nihil prorsus veriti aut diffisi, quin quas tibi commendationes ascripsit universas, sis ipse vel adequaturus vel superaturus, potius scilicet et te operam esse daturum non ambigimus quam potes maximam, ut scilicet te duce ac capite res nostra publica non ruinam minuetur, sed vigeat, floreat, frondescat, frugescatque. Hoc et ut velis, exercitium te oraremus obsecraremque, ni magnitudinem et animi tui prudentiam bonitatemque haberemus certius quam ut ullo vel leviculo instigatu sit opus. Quare nostrum in te collatum hoc tantillum munusculum tam grato animo tamque exporrecta fronte suscipe, quam est a magnatibus et presertim domina nostra regia genetrice multa de nobis demerendis patiente permittenteque religiose et studiose expetitum et a nobis oblatum non invitis sed neque vel pauxillum recalcitrantibus. Nos te presidem agnoscimus nostrique domini Roffensis episcopi legitimum successorem, quod tum litteris tum sigillo decernes nostro. Datum Cantebriege pridie Nonas Julias per supranominatos tuos.

III. Letter of the fellows to bishop Fisher, 7 July, 1508.

Quod tue Paternitati sumus polliciti ecce jam a nobis prestitum, electum viz. successorem tuum et presidem nostrum esse quem designasti Doctorem Bekensaw, qui et abs te et propositus et commendatus est, atque ab optima principe genetrice Regis. Non poterat nobis neque debebat vel hiisce nominibus atque adeo tam excellentibus testimoniis non interesse et carus et jocundus. Tuique et sumus et erimus pro viribus quantuliscunque nostris, quem et vicissim habemus certum in nullo sive humanitatis sive pietatis genere nobis esse concessurum. Bene et feliciter vale. Ex Cant. sub sigillo nostro communi. Nonas Julias.

After his resignation of the mastership, the worthy bishop lived in peace and honour till the reformation in Germany, when he wrote many controversial works against its leaders. He took the part of queen Catharine of Aragon in the Divorce case, and that of the Pope in the matter of abolishing his power in England. It is not therefore surprising that one by this double title obnoxious to the king, should have at last fallen a victim to his resentment. He was twice attainted of misprision of treason, in 1533 for not having communicated to the king the pretended prophecies of Elizabeth Barton the holy maid of Kent, and in 1534 for refusing to take the oath to the succession, when by act of parliament his goods were forfeited, and his bishopric declared to be void from 2 Jan. 1534-5. He was now kept in most rigorous imprisonment in the Tower. The pope created him a cardinal, by the title of St Vitalis, 21 May 1535, but on 17 June he was arraigned in Westminster Hall on a charge of treason for having denied the king to be supreme head of the church of England, a title which queen Elizabeth afterwards rejected. He was tried by a jury (being treated as a commoner, because he had been deprived of his bishopric), found guilty, condemned to death, and beheaded on Tower hill 22 June 1535. As has been stated, he is said to have been 77 years old, but this seems wrong, and perhaps 67 is a near approximation to his age. (Cooper, Ath. i. 52-4.)

The bishop does not appear to have been a benefactor to the college, probably his great interest in and liberality towards St John's college made him unable to do anything for a college over which he had for so short a time borne rule. He seems however to have kept up some connexion with the college; as the following extracts from the bursars' books shew:—

I. M. J. 1510-11, fo. 236. Expense facte super domino Roffensi et super servo reginali, ut patet per billam..... viij^s. iij^d. ob.
1515-16. fo. 286. b. Item pro quodam munusculo dato episcopo Roffensi, vino vocato ypocrace, et aliis speciebus viz. sugarplate et sukkettes, quum visitavit collegium sancti Johannis iij^s. ij^d.

His arms were: Arg. a dolphin embowed between 3 wheat-ears or, within a border ingrailed of the last, and the motto, "Faciam vos piscatores hominum."

A few miscellaneous items from the account books of the college during the bishop's presidentship may here be given:

RO. Robert Bekensaw.

23 Hen. VII.—10 Hen. VIII.

ROBERT Bekensaw (or Bekenshall), whom bishop Fisher selected to be his successor in the presidentship of Queens' college, was the son of George Beconsall or Bekonsawe, esq. of Croston, co. Lanc. and was at the time of his election fellow of Michaelhouse. He was B.A. 1492-3, M.A. 1496, proctor of the university 1500, and B.D. 1502. He was instituted to the vicarage of Croston, his native parish, 24 Jan. 1504-5, on the presentation of the abbess and convent of Syon, a benefice which he held till his death (Raines, Lancashire Chantries, 170, 171 [C. H. C.]). He commenced D.D. 1507, and was elected to the mastership 6 July 1508 or just before. At the time of his election he was at court, as appears from the following :

I. M. J. 1507-08 fo. 202. b. Item pro vino soketis et comfētis expensis in primo adventu magistri nostriij^s. x^d. ob.
1508-09. fo. 214. In expensis factis per magistrum Yrelonde et magistrum Staynbanke quum equitabant ad curiam regis pro magistro noviter electo xxxij^s. iiiij^d.

He was president for about ten years and a half, till about March 1518-9, and during this period he became rector of Bradwell-super-mare Essex, 8 July 1512, on the presentation of queen Catharine of Aragon, and canon of Windsor, 28 Oct. 1512. On 3 Feb. 1512-3 he was admitted treasurer of the cathedral church of Lincoln, which office he resigned in 1516. He was also succentor of Wells cathedral, rector of Chagford, Devonshire, and chaplain to queen Catherine, and her almoner before 10 July 1510. In the year 1506-7 he obtained a dispensation from residence in the university, on the ground of his being engaged with the countess of Richmond.

'Conceditur D^{ri} Bekynshaw ut non artetur ad residentiam propter negotia que habet circa regis genetricem, sic quod observet actus.' (Grace-book F. MS. Baker, xxxi. 168.)

He was inducted to the deanery of the collegiate church of St John Baptist, at Stoke-by-Clare (MS. Baker, xix. 143), in the patronage of the queens of England, on 3 Feb. 1517, a benefice then valued at £43. 6s. 8d. (Strype, Parker, 8). There seems to be some confusion in the date of his induction to the deanery of Stoke, as if by 3 Feb. 1517 is meant 1517-8, we find Bekensaw apparently residing at Stoke on July 1517. Possibly the year 1517 is really meant, as is also the year 1548 in the date of the Order of the Communion, which is 8 March, 2 Edw. VI. 1548, meaning really 1548 not 1548-9. Dr Bekensaw was mostly non-resident, dwelling at Windsor or later at Stoke, whither the fellows went to consult him about the affairs of the college.

There are several other journeys to Stoke mentioned.

He seems however to have come to Cambridge for elections of fellows and bible-clerks, and for the audit.

 R Bekensaw had not long been president when Henry VII. died, and Henry VIII. ascended the throne, 22 Apr. 1509.

The lady Margaret, mother of Henry VII., survived her son two months and died 29 June 1509, aged 68. Her first husband was Edmund of Hadham, earl of Richmond, who died 3 Nov. 1456, leaving his son Henry only fifteen weeks old. By her other husbands sir Henry Stafford, son of Humphry duke of Buckingham, who died 1481, and Thomas lord Stanley, earl of Derby, who died 1504, she had no issue. After her third husband's death she took a vow of chastity. The inscription on her tomb in Henry VII.'s chapel in Westminster Abbey was composed by Erasmus, for which he had a reward of twenty shillings. (Dugdale, Bar. ii. 123, 237; i. 167. C. H. Cooper in C. A. S. Communications, i. 71. C. A. Halsted, Life of Margaret Beaufort, countess of Richmond and Derby. London, 1839, 8vo. Baker's preface to bishop Fisher's Sermon.)

On 10 May 1509 a general pardon was granted to the college for all offences committed before 23 April, the second day of his reign (Deed in the college treasury); and on 25 Nov. 2 Hen. VIII. 1510 an Inspeximus charter was issued reciting and confirming the deeds of 30 March 26 Hen. VI. 1448, for the foundation of the college, and of 5 March 13 Edw. IV. 1472-3 for the grant of St Nicholas' Court.

It is as follows :

The following letter refers to the benefaction of Dr Trotter already referred to. The year is not mentioned, but the date seems to be 8 March 1510-11.

To Mayst^r docto^r Melton.

Ryght worshypfull & honorable mayst^r Chawnceler we yo^r trewe bedemē the vicep^rsident and the fellows of the qwenys coladge ī Cambridge hath us recomēdyd to yo^r mayst^rshyppe ī owr moost charytable man^r. (Misc. A. fo. 18. b.)

On 2 Dec. 8 Hen. VIII. 1516 a composition was made with Dr Melton (Cooper. Ath. i. 37), establishing a fellowship with the endowment of Dr Trotter. The fellow was to be of the diocese of York, and in the fifth year of his regency to preach in York Cathedral in memory of his founder. This arrangement continued till 1838, when by the Queen's letter all restrictions as to the birthplace of a fellow were done away.

In Ralph Songar, fellow of the college in the time of the first two presidents, gave to the college a field, probably that called Songar's mead of Furneaux Pelham, Herts. (note by Dr Plumpton). This first his brother James and after his death his executors kept from the college. In order to recover it, the two following petitions, dated 10 July 1510, were addressed, the one to the chancellor of queen Catharine, the other to the queen herself:—

I.

Religioso et venerabili patri domino cancellario regine præsidens una cum sociis collegii Reginalis Cantebregie salutem in Domino Jesu.

Facit nos audaces, vel ea que manifestaria est vite tue integritas vel quem adversum ingenuas disciplinas harumque affectatores habes precipuus amor, sollicitare istud mite pectus tuum ut optimam principem reginam nostram, cui tu merito a secretis es, in rem nostram pro qua nunc ad illam scripsimus, velis quoad potes adhortari. Breviter in summa res hec est: Radulphus Songar pridem collega noster vir probus et literatus, agro nos quodam suo donavit, post cujus hic decessum frater ejus Jacobus Songar illicite agrum occupans multos annos a nobis annos (ut erat homo versutus et turbulentus) distinuit. Ipso nunc vita defuncto successerunt alii, quos non latet nostrum esse agrum illum, adduci tamen nolunt utpote viri mundo dediti et egregie tenaces ut hujus nostri juris imperturbati potiamur, sed et dudum irrumpentibus aliis idque illis auctoribus possessionem adimere conati sunt. Quare per Jesum te obsecramus, ut tua opera patronam habeamus reginam quatenus per equissimum vel sui vel regis consilium nostra injuria vindicetur, intelligantque homines isti qui molestare gratum habent quid sua intersit facere. Itaque nostrum hoc Regine collegium demereberis et nos regine scholasticos beneficio donabis, cujus erga Deum non erimus immemores. Bene vale. Cantebrie sexto Idus Julias anno Christi M.CCCC^oX^o. Fidem in hoc nostro negotio quesumus adhibere velit paternitas tua optimo et fidissimo presidi nostro elemosinario regine.

II.

Serenissime atque excellentissime principi D^{omi}ne Catherine Dei gratia Anglie et Francie Regine et Domine Hybernie, domine nostre supreme, humiles ac devoti illius subditi et oratores presidens et socii collegii Reginalis Cantebrie humilem subjectionem servitutem et obedientiam.

Quum quidem, inclytissima princeps, preter et Tui generis nobilitatem et forme gratiam, etiam Tue Celsitudini beneficio Dei Optimi Maximi splendor quidam virtutum eximius accessit, usque adeo ut consentiente fere omnium voce optima prediceris, insuper quum Tue Majestati debere se plurimum litterati ac studiosi homines intelligant et nos Tue Amplitudini scolastici simus atque hoc quod incolimus abs Te regina Reginale collegium appelletur, facile persuasum habuimus pro Tui animi singulari clementia et benignitate nostras preces apud Tuam Bonitatem non repulsam esse passuras, Nos proinde domestici Tui ad Te (pace dixerimus Tua) domesticam nostram principem et dominam audacter confugimus supplicissime obsecrantes ut presidio tuo possimus citra inquietudinem sacre eruditioni vacare. 'Sed quorsum hec?' inquires. Certe quidam olim collega noster dictus Radulphus Songar sacerdos homo doctus et pius fundum quem habuit nobis dedit. Ceterum frater ejus Jacobus Songar, ut erat homo vario et perquam astuto ingenio, nos beneficio quamdiu vivebat defraudavit. Is nunc mortuus executores reliquit qui hunc fundum veraciter sciunt nostrum esse, attamen nolunt nos illo frui pacifice, sed antiquam alterius proterviam emulantes salutem anime ejus neglectui habent. Denique jam dudum cum injuria nostra nobisque invitis adegerunt alios invadere et preoccupare hunc nostrum agrum. Quare impense oramus Mansuetudinem Tuam ut, pro judicio atque ex sententia consiliariorum vel tuorum vel regis, res hec discutiatur, quo tuum hoc collegium non falso diutius perturbetur. Universam hanc rem, optima princeps, plenius tibi audiendi erit ex preside nostro homine fidelissimo elemosinario Nobilitatis Tue. Que nostre partes sunt et esse debent, preces tibi nostras certo polliceri poteris ad misericordis-simum Deum qui tuis votis adnuat gratiaque sua illustret semper. Amen. Ex Canteburgia sexto Idus Julius anno Salutis m^o quingentissimo x^o.

Excellentissime Tue Majestatis devotissimi atque obsequentissimi subditi et oratores presidens socii et scolastici collegii tui.

(Misc. A. fo. 28)

At Clavering, Essex, is the brass of — Songar and his wife, c. 1480, beneath whose figures are two small groups of children, one of nine daughters, the other of four sons. As one of these sons is represented as a priest, this may be the monument of the father and mother of Ralph Songar, and he the priest among the sons. Ralph Songar was 'Capellanus R. Ricardi tertii' (or more correctly, Ricardi ducis Gloucestrie) in 1485, from Michaelmas 1485 he appears as Capellanus Otware, from Michaelmas 1486 as Capellanus Alfrey, and his name disappears from the list of fellows after Easter 1486. As his death is spoken of as 'cuius hic decessus,' he seems to have died in college, and the words 'multos annos' would well enough represent the period between 1486 and 1510. The praise of his learning (according to the standard of those times) is borne out by the entries in the bursars' books.

IN answer to letters written by Erasmus from Rome on April 29 and April 30, lord Mountjoy, on 27 May 1509, wrote to Erasmus urging him to return to England (Ep. x. wrongly dated 1497, see address 'Ad lectorem'). Erasmus accordingly came to England, where he was on 8 Feb. 1510 (Ep. cix.). He seems to have paid a visit to Paris, as Ep. cx. is dated thence on 27 April 1510. On 21 Dec. 1510 he was at Cambridge (Ep. cxi.), where he continued to reside for four or five years, often visiting London. In May 1511 he went on a pilgrimage to the shrine of our Lady of Walsingham, and left behind him a copy of Greek Iambic verses as an offering (Ep. cxiv.). Between 11 July and 17 Aug. 1511, he went to London (Epp. cxvi. cxvii. cxxi.), and on his return he resided in Queens' college for some time.

'Queens Colledge' (says Fuller, sub anno 1447) 'accounteth it no small credit thereunto, that Erasmus (who no doubt might have pickt and chose what House he pleased) preferred this for the place of his study, for some yeers in Cambridge. Either invited thither with the fame of the learning and love of his friend Bishop Fisher, then Master thereof, or allured with the situation of this Colledge so neer the River (as Rotterdam his native place to the Sea) with pleasant walks thereabouts.'

A great number of letters are dated from Cambridge during the years 1510 to 1513, but as they give no particulars of his residence in Queens' they are not further noticed. Among the Cambridge men whom he had made his friends he mentions (Ep. cxlviii.) the names of the following fellows of Queens': Henry Bullock (Bovillus), John Fawn (Phaunus), who succeeded him in his professorship, John Vaughan (Vachanus) and Humphrey (Umfridus) Walkeden.

The difficulty mentioned above in determining an exact chronology of Erasmus' life from his letters, seems to be greatest during the period of his residence in Cambridge. Le Clerc in his 'Vie d'Erasmé tirée de ses Lettres' in the Bibliothèque choisie [Amsterdam 12mo.] v. vi. 1705, which formed the groundwork of Jortin's longer 'Life of Erasmus' (London, 1758. 2 Vols. 4to.), expresses his opinion thus: 'Je croi qu' Erasmé lui même en publiant ses Lettres confusément, comme il le fit, y mit quelque fois des dates telles que sa mémoire les lui fournit, sans les comparer ensemble.' (v. p. 206). Also see Rev. J. S. Brewer's pref. to 'Letters and Papers foreign and domestic in the reign of Henry VIII.' Vol. I. p. xv. ff.

And again Le Clerc says with reference to this particular period: 'Pour revenir à nos Lettres, il y a un grand desordre dans les dates de plusieurs lettres datées de cette année (1513) et des deux suivantes, qu'il n'a pas été possible de redresser' (v. p. 188).

Only three of Erasmus' letters are dated from Queens' college in Leclerc's edition of his Works, Vol. III.; they are numbered cxvi, cxvii and cxviii.

The first is written to Andreas Ammonius of Lucca, the pope's collector in England, Latin secretary to the king, canon of St Stephen's Westminster and of Salisbury, and is dated 'Cantabrigia e collegio Reginæ 17 Augusti anno 1511.'

The second is addressed to dean Colet, and was written 24 Aug. 1511. Neither of these contains any information about his stay in Queens' college: in the latter he mentions the accidents of his journey from London.

The third is here transcribed:—

Erasmus Rot. Andreae Ammonio suo S.D.

Mitto ad te literas ad Bombasium scriptas. De statu meo nihil adhuc novi est, quod scribam, nisi iter fuisse incommodissimum, et valetudinem adhuc subdubiam esse a sudore illo. Videor mihi saltem ad dies aliquot in hoc collegio commoraturus. Auditoribus nondum copiam mei feci, cupiens valetudini inservire. Cerevisia hujus loci mihi nullo modo placet nec admodum satisfaciunt vina; si possis efficere, ut uter aliquis vini Græcanici quantum potest optimi huc deportaretur, plane bearis Erasmum tuum, sed quod alienum sit a dulcedine. De pecunia nihil sis sollicitus; mittetur et ante tempus, si voles. Jam hoc commodorum quæ ex bullis sanctissimis capiuntur, initium est, siti enecamur. Tu conjicito cætera. Et nondum trajecimus. Bene vale, charissime Ammoni. Ex collegio Reginæ 25. Augusti, An. 1511.

In the lives of eminent men, by John Aubrey, printed at the end of "Letters written by eminent persons, publ. from the originals in the Bodleian Library and Ashmolean Museum" (2 vols. 8°. Lond. 1813), we find some traditional notices of Erasmus' sojourn in Queens' college derived from Andrew Paschal, fellow of Queens' and rector of Chedsey, Somersetshire, 1652-1663, communicated in 1680 (ii. 340—344).

'The staires which rise up to his studie at Queen's College, in Cambr. doe bring first into two of the fairest chambers in the ancient building; in one of them, which lookes into the hall and chief court, the Vice-President kept in my time; in that adjoining, it was my fortune to be, when fellow. The chambers over are good lodgeing roomes; and to one of them is a square turret adjoining, in the upper part of which is the study of Erasmus; and over it leads. To that belongs the best prospect about the colledge, viz. upon the river, into the corne-fields, and countrey adjoining. So y^t it might very well consist with the civility of the House to that great man (who was no fellow, and I think stayed not long there) to let him have that study. His sleeping roome might be either the Vice-President's, or to be neer to him, the next. The room for his servitor that above it, and through it he might goe to that studie, which for the height, and neatnesse, and prospect, might easily take his phancy.'

Aubrey says: 'He studied sometime in Queen's colledge in Cambridge, his chamber was over the water. He mentions his being there in one of his Epistles, and blames the beer there. One long since wrote in the margent of the book in Coll. Libr. in which that is said—Sicut erat in principio, &c. and all M^r Paschall's time they found fault with the brewer.'

Thomas Fuller's account of Erasmus represents the tradition of an earlier age than Andrew Paschal by a quarter of a century, as he was admitted a pensioner of Queens' 29 June 1621. He says (sub anno 1504):

About this time ERASMUS came first to Cambridge (coming and going for seven years together) having his abode in Queens Colledge, (vide the date of his first Epistle libro 8.) where a Study on the top of the South-west Tower in the old Court stil retaineth his name. Here his labour in mounting so many stairs (done perchance on purpose to exercise his body, and prevent corpulency) was recompensed with a pleasant prospect round about him.'

No traces of his residence in Queens' are to be found in the bursars' books, nor in any other document belonging to the college. It has been however a constant tradition at Queens', that he was for some time resident in it; and as no other college has any tradition on the subject, or puts forward any claim to the honour of having sheltered the great scholar within its walls, in spite of the want of contemporary evidence on the subject beyond the dates of the above three letters, he must be still regarded, if belonging to any college at all, as belonging to Queens'.

From the words, 'Videor mihi saltem ad dies aliquot in hoc collegio commoraturus', it would seem that the college was not the abode of Erasmus during the whole time that he resided in the university. In one of his letters to Henry Bullock, Ep. cxlvij; dated Rochester, 31 Aug. 1513, (really 1516 see 'Ad lectorem') among greetings to Cambridge friends he says, 'Salutabis ... veterem hospitem meum Gerardum'; this probably was Garret the bookseller (bibliopola, Ep. cxli); Erasmus may have lived in his house, and hence Garret would be well acquainted with his habits. Roger Ascham, who came to the university about 1530, says in his Toxophilus, written in 1544 (London, 4to. 1571, fo. 10): 'Pastimes for the minde only, be nothing fit for studentes, because the body, which is most hurt by study, should take no profite at all thereat. This knewe Erasmus very well, when hee was here in Cambridge: which, when he had been sore at his book (as Garret, our bookebynder, hath very oft told me) for lack of better exercise, would take his horse, and ryde about the market hill and come' (perhaps it should be 'home') 'again.' (Jortin's Life, ii. 720.)

Samuel Knight in his 'Life of Erasmus' (8vo. Cambr. 1726) has the following, p. 124; it were to be wished that he had given his authority for his statements:—

'As Erasmus then was first invited down to Cambridge by Bishop Fisher, Chancellor of the University, and Head of Queens' College; so we find it was to this Prelate that he ascribes all the Advantages he found in that Place, being accommodated by him with everything needful in his own Lodgings at Queens, and promoted by his means to the Lady Margaret's Professorship of Divinity and afterwards to the Greek Professor's chair, which places, tho' they were more honourable than profitable, yet were of great service to the University.'

In a note he adds 'This seems to contradict a Tradition in this College, that he kept in another Chamber, which bears his Name to this Day: and not in the Masters Lodge, but this more probably was his study.'

Mr Knight gives an engraving of the rooms between the hall and Silver-street, and along Silver-street, shewing the tower, which contains Erasmus' study.

The Lady Margaret's Professorship seems to be alluded to in the following extract from Ep. cxxiii. to Andreas Ammonius, dated Cambridge, 15 Oct. 1511.

Hactenus perlegimus Chrysoloræ Grammaticen, sed paucis; fortassis frequentiori auditorio Theodori Grammaticam auspicabimur: fortassis et theologicam lectionem suscipiemus, nam id nunc agitur. Quæstus minor quam ut me moveat, tamen interim et bene meremur de studiis pro nostra quoque virili et menses aliquot (ut Ovidiano utar verbo) decipimus.

He alludes to his teaching at Cambridge in a letter (Ep. App. viii.) to Servatius, prior of the regular canons of Stein, dated from Ham in Picardy, 9 July 1514, where in speaking of the encouragement he had received in England, he says:

Sunt hic duæ Universitates, quarum utraque ambit habere me, Oxonia et Cantabrigia: nam Cantabrigiæ menses complures docui Græcas et sacras Litteras, idque gratis, itaque semper facere decretum est. Sunt hic collegia, in quibus tantum est religionis, tanta vitæ modestia, ut nullam religionem sis præ hac non contemturus, si videas.

In 1515 he left England and wandered about from town to town in the Netherlands, returning once to London, till in 1521 he finally settled at Basle, where (with the exception of six years) he remained till he died, 12 July 1536.

N 20 April 1513 there was a great fire in Cambridge, which destroyed many houses: amongst them was a house near the mills, given to St Peter's college by Dr John Warkworth, master of that society (Cooper, Ann.). The fire was near to Queens' college, and is thus alluded to in the college accounts:

I. M. J. 1512-13. fo. 254. b. Martino Jonsoon pro duobus hominibus qui portaverunt palos a magno igne qui tunc erat circa collegium vij^d.

In 1514 a subsidy of a tenth and a fifteenth was granted by the parliament to the king for the purpose of carrying on the war with France (Journals of the House of Lords, Vol. I. p. xxv.)

I. M. J. 1513-14. fo. 265. b. Item pro expensis m^{ri} Staynbank et m^{ri} Pomell cum serviente et tribus equis per quinque dies Londoniis dum acquirebant brevia pro exoneratione unius xv^o et x^o nuper concesse, ut patet per billam xxxiiij^s. v^d.

In 1514 the cycle of colleges was arranged for the appointment of proctors to avoid the controversies which had previously prevailed at their election. In 44 years Queens' college was to have 8 appointments, St John's; and King's also having 8, and the hostels between them 10.

In 1515 a pavement was laid down in front of, and also within the college.

I. M. J. 1514-15. fo. 271. b. Item vj^o die Aprilis Ricardo Cooper et socio ejus pro factura unius pavimenti ante hostium collegii continens xiiij^{xx} ix virgas, et pro factura pavimenti infra collegium continens lvj virgas, et pretium virge 1^d ob. xl^s.

fo. 272. Item solutum est Johanni Orton vectori pro arena et ceno pro sexaginto bigatis arene pro pavimento infra collegium et pro pavimento ante magnam portam collegii xv^s.

In 1517 there was a dispute, of which the particulars are lost, between the college and John Ireland, who had been one of the fellows, but had left the society in 1513.

I. M. J. 1516-17. fo. 294. b. Item m^{ro} Nelson procuratori in causis collegii adversus m^{rum} Yrelonde ij^s.
Item vicecancellario pro actione incepta se coram adversus predictum m^{rum} Yrelonde ij^d.

It seems to have been amicably settled, and on 14 Oct. 9 Hen. VIII. 1517 the college gave him a release of all claim on him (Misc. A. fo. 30. b). He appears to have visited the college in 1525 and 1527, and to have been received hospitably.

On 3 March 10 Hen. VIII. 1518-9, Dr Bekensaw and the fellows of the college by indenture granted permission to John Craforth, M.A. one of the fellows to go to the court or any other place for his learning or profit for three years with the full stipend of a resident fellow, £6. 13s. 4*d.*, John Craforth agreeing to resign his fellowship on the Lady-day then next ensuing. For the due observance hereof they gave a bond of £40.

On 24 Jan. 11 Hen. VIII. 1519-20, the college released Mr Craforth of all claim on him on their part (Misc. A. fo. 31, 32).

There seems to have been some dispute between the college and Craforth, but no particulars have been found. He had been fellow since 1514. He was afterwards canon of Cardinal college, Oxford, 1525, master of Clare hall, 1530, fellow of University college, Oxford, 1539, and master of that college, 1546. He died 1547 (Cooper, Ath. i. 92).

II. M. J. 1518-19. fo. 7. M^r Craforth receipt ultra stipendium suum sibi debitum pro hoc anno ex consensu magistri et sociorum iiij^h. vj^s. viij^d.
fo. 14. Item Edwardo Heynes notario communi eo quod scripsit renunciationem societatis M. Johannis Craforth..... iiij^s. iiij^d.
1519-20. fo. 25. Item solutum est m^{ro} Johanni Crafforthe pro finali determinatione inter illum et collegium... xvj^h. xiiij^s. iiij^d.
(Preter quinque marcas quas Doctor Jenyns presidens collegii dedit dicto Johanni Crafforth ex propriis pecuniis. Marginal note.)
Item solutum est m^{ro} Doctori Nateras pro eadem determinatione pro predicto M. Crafforth..... xxxiiij^s. iiij^d.
Item in expensis super arbitros inter collegium et m^{rum} Crafforth xvi^d.

Dr Bekensaw resigned the presidentship about March 1518-9: the bursars' accounts contain the following items referring to this event:—

I. M. J. 1518-19. fo. 14. Item in expensis factis per magistrum in tempore renunciationis sui officii, ut patet per billam coci vij^s. iiij^d. ob.
Item pro expensis factis per magistrum in tempore sue resignationis quum erant socii noviter electi, ut patet per billam... v^s. iiij^d. ob.

(Simon Heynes, Thomas Hathway, Walter Bygrave and — Hobson were elected fellows about 18 March 1518-9.)

Nothing is recorded of the motives which led to this step.

On 13 June 1523 he was installed prebendary of All Saints' in Hungate in the church of Lincoln, having been collated to it on 11 May (Le Neve).

He died 21 Jan. 1525-6, aged about 50.

At his death he left a legacy of 40*s.* to the university (Gracebook B. fo. 480), but he is not recorded as a benefactor to the college.

His arms were: Gu. a saltire engrailed and voided between three fleur-de-lis, or.

In the time of this president a fourth seal was in use in the college; it is a very debased copy of the third one, the inscription only being slightly different:

Sigillu. coe collegii. reginalis scor' margarete et bernardi cant'.

There is a small seal of the college, which may belong to this period. It is oblong, of the Vesica piscis shape, measuring $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $1\frac{1}{4}$ in. It bears only St Margaret with her dragon under a canopy, and the inscription in gothic letters,

S. ad causas collegii regial. cant.

The workmanship of this seal is very poor.

The following miscellaneous extracts from the bursars' books belong to the presidentship of Dr Bekensaw:—

- I. M. J. 1511-12. fo. 243. a. Quatuor pauperibus scholaribus emundantibus curiam exteriorem et interiorem per duos dies et dim. erga festivitatem Pasche..... xvj^d.

- II. M. J. 1517—18. fo. 3. Item Ricardo Robyns pro emendatione unius libri portorii in scolis nostris iij^d.

U. John Jenyn.

c. March 1518-9—c. Dec. 1526.

10—18 HEN. VIII.

AFTER Dr Bekensaw's resignation, John Jenyn was elected fifth president of the college, probably in March 1518-9. He was the first president who is recorded to have received his education in the college; he was elected fellow before Easter 1495, at which time he first appears among the 'socii sacerdotes,' being then M.A. In the years 1496-97 and 1497-98 he was bursar of the college. In 1499 he appears as 'principalis exterior hospitii sancti Bernardi.'

I. M. J. 1499-1500. fo. 137. Item allocatum m^{ro} Jennyn principali exteriori hospitii sancti Bernardi pro pensione unius sisatoris in hospitio dicto..... ij^s.

He was dean of the chapel in 1501-02, and Lasby preacher in 1504-06.

In 1503 he served the office of proctor of the university, was vice-president of the college in 1505, and having proceeded B.D. in was presented 19 Nov. 1509 to the vicarage of Harrow-on-the-hill by Thomas Wilkynson, rector of Harrow. (The church of Harrow had formerly both a rector and a vicar; the rectory was a sinecure, to which the archbishop collated a rector, who thereupon became patron of the vicarage: it is now only a vicarage. Newcourt, i. 638.) This living of Harrow he kept till his death in 1538.

Although John Jenyn's name disappears from the list of fellows after Christmas 1510, probably at the expiration of his year of grace, he yet kept up some connexion with the college, as we find him in 1516 and 1517 employed by it to superintend some work done on the college estate in Bermondsey street, Southwark.

- I. M. J. 1515-16. fo. 285. Item paid to m^r Jenyn vycar of Harrow of the hill for such sōmes as he hadd paid to Thomas Hall, carpentar for the frame at Barmyssay strete vj^{li}. xiijs. iiij^d.
- fo. 286. Pro pipionibus pistis in iiij^{er} pastellis et sumptu pisture eorundem, quorum unum erat datum cancellario regionali, secundum m^{ro} Jenyne, et duo erant comesta Londini per vicepresidentem m^{rum} Jenyne et ballivum occupat' in causis collegii apud Barmyssay strete ij^s. vj^d.
- 1516-17. fo. 295. b. Item pro uno pastello pepionum destinato m^{ro} Jenyn et pro vectura ejusdem Londinias xij^d.

In March 1518-9 he became president of Queens' college, and in 1520 commenced D.D.

IN 1520 Cardinal Wolsey visited the university and was received with great honours. Complimentary orations were made before him by Bryan Roo (or Rowe) M.A. fellow of King's college, and Henry Bullock, D.D. fellow of Queens' college, the latter being delivered 'præsentibus Cæsaris oratoribus et nonnullis aliis episcopis' (Cooper, Ann. i. 303. Ath. i. 34, 41). During his stay in Cambridge he lodged at Queens' college, which had been cleaned and whitewashed for his reception.

- II. M. J. 1519-20. fo. 22. Item solvi Johanni Bonvalence pro opera ij dierum circa albefactionem magne camere erga adventum dni. Cardinalis xij^d.
- Item Johanni Bonvayle pro labore v dierum circa albefactionem aule claustrii et sacelli erga adventum dñi. Cardinalis... ij^s. vj^d.

(Part of the fen at Earith on the Ouse near St Ives is called Crane Fen.)

Item eidem Johanni pro iij cignis datis dn̄o Cardinali xv^s.

Item solvi cuidam paupercule pro cirpibus [rushes] camere dn̄i Cardinalis iij^d.

(Many other similar items occur, as well as gifts to the servants of the cardinal.)

On his departure the cardinal left as a present to the college £10. (II. M. J. fo. 19, note).

In 1517-18 the queen Catharine of Aragon had intended to visit the college.

II. M. J. 1517-18. fo. 5. b. Item in riguardo dato Willelmo Telar

 Item d^{no} Bigrave pro duabus clavibus ostii cubiculi sui et pro reparatione duarum serarum quas fregerunt famuli regine viij^d.
 fo. 36. Item solvi magistro pro vino quod comparavit erga ad-ventum regine xxv^s. vj^d.

The college made the queen a present, which cost them
 £2. 18s. 5d. :—

- II. M. J. 1520-21. fo. 35. Item Miloni Bethune pro dono quod collegium dedit regine lvij^s. v^d.

John Lambert (B.A. 15...) procured queen Catharine's letters recommendatory to the college for the purpose of obtaining his election to a fellowship. The college resisted this, and wrote to the queen's council and to the queen herself the letters given below. The latter gives full particulars of the reasons of their opposition. (Misc. A. fo. 32. b. 33.)

I.

Prudentissimis ac gravissimis viris, gratiosissime ac nobilissime regine consiliariis.

Jam pridem litteras a nobilissima ac modis omnibus gratiosissima regine ad nos transmissas, quicquid alii dixerint (quibus credimus vos, que vestra est gravitas et experientia minime ascultaturos), ea reverentia, que dicet scolasticos ejus Celsitudini addictissimos acce-pimus, quarum summa huc pertinebat, ut dominum Lambertum in artibus baccalaureum in hujus nostri sodalitatem reciperemus; quod non solum perlibenter sed incunctanter fueramus facturi, si talis extitisset qualem nobis statuta nostra prescribunt et nos jurejurando interposito tenemur ad hoc qualecunque sodalitiū eligere. Ceterum ut intelligeretur nichil nobis charius aut antiquius post Deum ejus beneplacito, non solum electionem nostram hactenus distulimus, sed et patrem hominis ad nos vocavimus rogantes ut filium suum exercitande eruditionis causa ad nos perduceret habiturum integrum socii stipendium, per annum, et si interea inveniretur idoneus, absque ulteriori prorogatione admitteretur in socium. Hanc conditionem recusavit pater,—quam consulte vestrum erit judicium. Rogamus igitur et obtestamur vos per vestram prudentiam et generositatem, ne credatis cuiquam aliquid sinistre de nobis referenti qui arbitramur vos vestrapte facturos, et nos si quid jusseritis quod non repugnat divinis et nostris legibus quam libentissime vobis obtemperabimus. Valetē in Christo Jesu, patroni singulares. Ex Cantēbrigia, nonis Juliis 1521.

By the mast^r and felaws of yo^r coledge callyd the quenys coledge ī Cābrydge.

This was John Lambert, who was afterwards (1538) burnt at Smithfield for denying the real presence in the Holy Eucharist (Cooper, Ath. i. 67). In spite of this remonstrance he seems to have been elected fellow, but not to have continued so long, as he is mentioned in the bursars' books as such only from Michaelmas 1521 to Easter 1522.

The following items in the college accounts refer to the above:—

- II. M. J. 1520-21. fo. 36. Item pro cera pro literis sigillandis ad reginam j^d.
fo. 43. Item Willelmo Schawe pro vino et ala quum aderat m^r Lamberde ix^d.
fo. 44. Item pro sizatione dⁿⁱ Lamberde et communiis ejusdem vj^s.

In 1518 and 1522 Dr Matthew Makarell, the celebrated abbat of Barlings (Cooper, Ath. i. 61. 531), seems to have been a resident in the college.

- II. M. J. 1520-21, fo. 35. b. Item (x^o Martii m^{ro} presidenti) pro factione unius obligationis d^{ris} Makerell iiij^d.
fo. 36. Item m^{ro} Garrett pro absentia doctoris Makrell in festis Pasche et Nativitatis Domini anno quo ipse fuit thesaurarius (1518-19) viij^d.
1521-22, fo. 44. Item m^{ro} Hadway pro cisatione doctoris Makerell, ut patet per librum m^{ri} Hadway ij^s. iiij^d. ob. q.

In 1522 King Henry VIII. visited the university (Cooper, Ann. i. 305); the college expenses connected with this visit are appended:—

II. M. J. 1521-22, fo. 40. b. Item Johanni Sturde laboranti apud nos erga adventum regis per duos dies	vii ^d .
fo. 43. b. Item pro cignis datis regi in suo adventu ad Cantabrigiam	xxvii ^s . ij ^d .

Item in vino et ala pro servientibus regis	xij ^d .
Item pro piscibus recentibus emptis tempore quo erat rex in urbe	xij ^s . viij ^d .

In 1522-23 we find the first mention of the plays afterwards so frequently performed by the members of the college in the hall. It was one of the comedies of Plautus, as appears from the following extracts from the bursars' accounts:—

II. M. J. 1522-23, fo. 51. b. Item Ricardo Robyns [carpentario] pro labore suo quum agebatur comedia Plauti etc.	ij ^d .
Item pro clavis dictis Tenternayles, quibus firmabantur ornamenta edium in eadem comedia	j ^d . ob.
fo. 52. Item m ^{ro} Smythe [pro tunc majori] pro cereis sive funeralibus que emimus propter comediam Plauti, quum agebatur apud nos.....	ij ^s . v ^d .

On 10 Apr. 15 Hen. VIII. 1524, a bond for £40 was given by Dr Jenin, president, and the fellows of the college, to Dr Robert Shorton, master of Pembroke hall, 1518-34 (Cooper, Ath. i. 55), and Dr William Capon, master of Jesus college, 1516-46 (Cooper, Ath. i. 100), commissioners of Cardinal Wolsey, that they would 'suffer the ward, arbitrement, ordinance and judgement' of the said commissioners to be made between Anthony Maxwell and Symon Heynys, clerks, 'to take effect accordyng to the same in every poynt; withowt ony maner let or disturbance of the seyde president and felaws.' (Misc. A. fo. 34. b.)

- II. M. J. 1523-24. fo. 60. b. Item pro dono dato doctoribus Shirton et Capon vj^s. viij^d.
 Item pro uno pottell de ypocras pro doct. Shirton et Capon... xx^d.
 Item pro alteri pottell pro doctore Capon xx^d.
 Item pro ly caraweys eodem tempore iiij^d.
 Item pro bona ala eodem tempore ij^d.
 Item pro scriptione obligationis inter collegium et doct. Shyrton et Capon viij^d.
 Mich^s. 1526—Mids^r. 1527, fo. 88. Item solutum pro expensis m^{ri} Harvi m^{ri} Maxwell m^{ri} Townley in causis collegii coram doctore Shurton doctore Capon et doctore Nateras ut patet per billas iiiij^h. xvij^s.
 (The whole of this article is erased with the pen.)

In 1525 some differences which had arisen between the fellows and the president came to a head. They turned chiefly on the allowances to the master for his scholar, his horses, his fuel, and his bills for his expenses 'in causis collegii.' In that year Mr Simon Heynes, afterwards president, was sent to London by the society to complain of the misconduct of the president before Cardinal Wolsey and the other counsellors of the queen. (An agreement made between the president and the fellows in Jan. 1528-9 will shew very minutely the causes of this disagreement.) The affair lasted $1\frac{3}{4}$ years, and Mr Heynes made many journeys to London. At last Dr Jenyn was removed from the presidentship, probably about Dec. 1526. The following entries in the bursars' book refer to this contention :

- II. M. J. 1524-25, fo. 67. b. Item in expensis factis versum Londinum per m^{ros} Pomell, Hayns, Hervy et unum ministrum ut patet per billam xvij^s. vj^d.

Dr. Thomas Farman.

Dec. (?) 1526—Sept. (?) 1528.

18—20 Hen. VIII.

THOMAS Farman was elected fellow of Queens' college about 19 March 1513-14, being then B.A. His title for priests' orders is dated 10 Feb. 1515-16, and is addressed to Richard [Fitz James] bishop of London. He is therein described as 'exorcist' and of the London diocese. In the accounts of 1516 (Easter to Michaelmas) he occurs as 'socius sacerdos'. He was B.A. 1511-12, and M.A. 1515. In the year 1514-15 he held the office of bursar, and in 1517-18, and 1519-20 that of dean. In 1522 he proceeded B.D. and 1524 commenced D.D. In 1522 and 1523 he preached the sermons founded by Lady Alice Wyche and apparently also in 1527. On 7 Feb. 1524-5 he was instituted to the rectory of All-hallows, Honey lane, London, on the presentation of the Grocers' company (Newcourt, i. 252).

On the deposition of Dr Jenyn, he was elected president. The date of his election to the presidentship is nowhere given, but in a deed of Shadworth's manor at Swaffham Prior of 12 Jan. 18 Hen. VIII. i.e. 12 Jan. 1526-7 he is mentioned as president.

- II. M. J. 1525-26, fo. 81. b. In expensis nuncii cum duobus equis missi a seniore socio et majorem partem sociorum ad Londinum pro novo presidente presentando secundum formam statuti ij^s. viij^d.

Pro expensis eorundem equorum ad Londinum priusquam presidentens equitabat viij^d.

Pro expensis dicti presidentis, duorum sibi servientium et nuncii a Londino et pro cena eorundem prima nocte v^s.

Mich^s. 1526—Mids^r. 1517, fo. 88. Item in riguardo dato coquo aule Pembroke pro damno equi et fractione ephippiorum quando primo venit magister ad collegium xij^d.

Fo. 89. Item solvi pro expensis m^{ri} Newman quum presentabat magistro litteras electionis sue; ut patet per billam xj^s. xj^d.

Dr Farman was one of a number of persons in the university who at the first beginnings of the English Reformation used to meet and ‘to confer and discourse for edification in Christian knowledge’ at the White-horse Inn, in Trumpington street, opposite to Benet street (Cambridge Portfolio, 364) “which was therefore called ‘Germany’ by their enemies. This house was chose, because they of King’s college, Queens’ college, and St John’s were wont to come with more privacy at the back door” (Strype, Ann. i. 367, Parker, 6, 7). Mr Heynes is also mentioned as one of those who used to resort thither.

When rector of Allhallows, Dr Farman was 19 March 1527–28, suspended from saying mass or preaching publicly before the people, until he should otherwise be dispensed with, by Cuthbert Tunstall, bishop of London, for keeping Luther’s works in his possession, whereby he was involved in the sentence of the greater excommunication, by the authority of pope Leo X. (Strype, Mem. Bk. i. eh. 8). Fuller puts him among the learned writers of Queens’ college with this note: ‘Dr. Foreman (saving is as good as making of books). He concealed and preserved Luther’s works, sought for to be burnt;” and among the advancers of the Protestant religion, he mentions him with the same praise. (Hist. of the Univ. sub annis 1447 at 1524–25.)

the works of the reformers in Oxford, 'whereby many were enlightened in the truth of religion.' He suffered martyrdom about the year 1540 (Strype, Mem. Bk. i. ch. 23).

His servant Geoffrey Usher is mentioned by Robert Necton as a purchaser of Tyndal's New Testaments in English, and other Lutheran books (Strype, Mem. Bk. i. app. no. 22).

Dr Farman died in 1528 before 31 Oct. on which day he was succeeded in the rectory of Allhallows by Lawrence Cook, D.D. (Newcourt, i. 252). His successor in the presidentship, William Frankelyn, is mentioned in a deed of 18 Oct. 1528, so he probably died while president, about Sept. 1528.

In the Walker MS. he is put down (fo. 93. b) as the sixth president 'per annum et ultra' from 1525 to 1526, while at another place (fo. 117. b) we find 'D' Farman fuit per annum tanquam presidens ejecto D^{re} Jenyns.' This statement was written in May 1565. In the register of the presidents in the vellum copy of the statutes of 1559 p. 67 he is mentioned as president in parts of the years 1526 and 1527.

In the General Index to the publications of the Parker Society, p. 330. b, he is miscalled Robert, though described as the Rector of Allhallows Honey Lane. He is mentioned as being harassed as a Reformer (3 Tyndale, 193), and as having his teaching misrepresented by Sir T. More (3 Tyndale, 208).

Concerning Dr Farman see also Ellis' Letters (3) ii. 78; MS. Cole, vii. 128; Fox's Acts and Monuments.

Q^N 12 Jan. 18 Hen. VIII. 1526-27, Paul's Inn in the University of Cambridge, was surrendered by Silvan Clyffton or Clifton (Baker MS. xxviii. p. 76.), Edmund Clifton and Parson Michael John Williamson priest the majority of the scholars or inhabitants of that house, into the hands of the Society of Q. C. The deed is signed by Silvan Clifton, Oswald Myers, Edmund Clifton, before Edmund Nateres, V. C.

XXX. William Franklyn.

20 HEN. VIII.

THE same authorities as were quoted under Dr Farman mention William Frankelinge or Franklyn as his successor for one year and three quarters. As in the former case no exact dates are given. However, in a deed of the goldsmiths' company of 18 Oct. 20 Hen. VIII., 1528, he is mentioned as president. He probably was elected on the death of Thomas Farman. As no documents in the possession of the college now exist giving any account of the president, his life is here borrowed from Coopers' Athenæ, i. 141, 547.

'William Franklyn, born at Bledlow Buckinghamshire, was educated at Eton, and elected thence to King's college 1496. He was bachelor of canon law 1504, and was appointed archdeacon of Durham 1515, in which year he also became master of the hospital of St Giles at Kepyer in the county of Durham. He was also temporal and spiritual chancellor of that diocese, and receiver of the bishop's revenues. He was installed prebendary of Heydour-cum-Walton in the church of Lincoln 12 Feb. 1517-18; occurs as rector of Houghton-le-spring in the county of Durham 1522, and held the prebend of Eveston in the collegiate church of Lanchester in the same county. He was one of the counsellors appointed to be resident with Henry Fitzroy duke of Richmond the natural son of Henry VIII., was collated to the prebend of Stillington in the church of York 15 Feb. 1525-6, and about 1527 was elected president of Queens' college, which office he held about a year and a half. He occurs in a commission to treat for peace with the king of Scots 1 Oct. 1528, and we find him recorded as being present at Holyrood 31 July 1534, when the king of Scots swore to observe a peace then concluded. He was installed dean of Windsor 19 Dec. 1536, and became rector of Chalfont St Giles in his native county 15 Nov. 1540, in exchange for his prebend at Lincoln. His signature both as dean of Windsor and archdeacon of Durham is affixed to the decree of 9 July 1540 declaratory of the invalidity of the marriage of Henry VIII. and Anne of Cleves. On the dissolution of the college of Lanchester he had a pension of £1. 3s. 8d. per annum. He held also the prebend of Auckland in the collegiate church of Auckland, and on its dissolution obtained a pension of £3 per annum. On 14 Jan. 1544-5 he surrendered to the crown the hospital of Kepyner. As dean of Windsor he alienated some of the revenues of that church, and in consequence of the complaints against him on that account was obliged to resign the deanery about the close of 1553. He died Jan. 1555-6, and was buried at Chalfont S. Giles. By his will he bequeathed goods and money for uses then deemed pious, but soon afterwards adjudged superstitious. On one occasion, the date of which is not specified, he recovered the castle of Norham from the hands of the Scots, and for his prowess and policy had a grant of the following arms: A. on a pale between two saltires engrailed coupe G. a dolphin in pale A. on a chief Az. a lion rampant A. langued G. between 2 birds O collared G. There is extant a curious letter from him to cardinal Wolsey respecting coal-pits and other temporal rights of the bishopric of Durham.

Hardly any notices of him are to be found in the college books.

VIII. Simon Heynes.

... Jan. 1528-9—... June 1537.

20—29 Hen. VIII.

IMON HEYNES was B.A. 1515-6, M.A. 1519. He was elected fellow of Queens' college about the feast of St Edward 18 March 1518-9, and continued 'socius non sacerdos' till 1522; his title for orders, addressed to Nicholas [West] bishop of Ely is dated 24 Feb. 1521-2, Heynes being then an acolyte and of the diocese of Norwich.

As a specimen of the form of the college title for orders, that of Simon Heynes is transcribed from Misc. A. fo. 33 b.:

Titulus Simonis Heynes.

Reverendo in Christo patri et domino domino Nicholao miseratione divina Eliensi episcopo aliive cuicumque episcopo catholico sui officii pontificalis executionem obtinenti, sui humiles et devoti Johannes Jenyn sacre theologie professor collegii Reginalis sanctorum Margarete et Bernardi in Cantabrigia presidens et ejusdem loci socii universi, omnimodas reverentias tanto venerabili patri debitas omnium cum honore. Quia pium et meritorium Deoque placitum esse dinoscitur clericos ad sacros ordines promoveri quos tam morum gravitas quam litterarum scientia commendat, hinc est quod dilectum nobis in Christo Simonem Heynys in artibus magistrum ac nostri collegii antedicti socium perpetuum Norwic. diocesis accolitum laterem presentium vestre paternitati reverende presentamus, humiliter devoteque supplicantes quatenus eundem Simonem ad omnes sacros ordines quos nondum est assecutus per vestrarum sacrarum manuum impositionem ad titulum nostri collegii antedicti promoveri digne-mini cum favore et caritatis intuitu. In cuius rei testimonium sigillum nostrum commune presentibus apposimus. Datum Cantabrigie in nostro collegio predicto, vicesimo quarto die mensis Februarii anno Domini m^occcc^oxxj^o.

He was bursar of the college 1519-20, and dean 1520-21, though then only in minor orders.

He continued fellow till Lady day, 1528, when his name disappears from the bursar's books.

In 1528 he proceeded B.D., and on 28 Nov. 1528, was instituted to the rectory of Barrow Suffolk (near Bury St Edmunds), on the presentation of the abbot of Bury and Stephen Gardiner as assignees of sir Richard Wentworth, kt. deceased.

He had been the chief agent employed in the complaints made by the society against Dr Jenyn, and when William Frankelyn ceased to be president he was elected his successor about Jan. 1528-9.

HENRY VIII. being desirous of obtaining the opinion of the universities as to the legality of his marriage with queen Catharine, on 16 Feb. 1529-30 ordered the university of Cambridge to give their decision under their common seal, and sent Dr Stephen Gardiner, his secretary, and Edward Fox, provost of King's college, his almoner, to use their utmost exertions to procure a determination in accordance with his views. The matter was referred by the Senate to 29 syndics, and the decision of the majority of them was to be taken for the determination of the university. The list of delegates, including the name of Mr Heynes, was sent up to the king by Gardiner and Fox, those who were already of his grace's opinion in the matter being marked with A. Mr Heynes was one of these. (Cooper, Ann. i. 337-9.)

In 1531 the president commenced D.D. and was vice-chancellor of the university in the two years 1532-33 and 1533-34.

On 23 May, 1533, he attested archbishop Cranmer's instrument, whereby he as archbishop and legate of the apostolic see pronounced the king's marriage with Catharine of Aragon to have been null and void from the beginning. This sentence was given at the priory of Dunstable, near to which place at Amphill queen Catharine was living.

On the morrow of St Edward, 14 Oct. 1533, Dr Heynes, V.C. went to London with letters from the university to the king and other high personages, and authority to sue to the king for the confirmation of the privileges of the university. He continued there all the winter, Dr Buckmaster being his deputy, and on 29 Jan. 1533-4, was admitted vicar of Stepney, Middlesex, on the presentation of Richard Layton, LL.D., sinecure rector, afterwards an active agent in the suppression of the monasteries. (This preferment he resigned before 29 May, 1537. Newcourt, i. 740.) In the same year (1534) he was with Dr Skip sent from the court to Cambridge to preach in favour of the king's supremacy and against the authority of the pope. On 2 May, 1534, the university formally declared that the Roman pontiff had 'not greater authority or jurisdiction over this kingdom of England granted him by God [in the Holy Scriptures] than any other foreign bishop.' This decision was sent to the king probably by the vice-chancellor, as we find Dr Heynes in London on 9 May. (Cooper, Ann. i. 366-7.)

II. M. J. 1532-33, fo. 187 b. Item famulo D. Shaxton vehenti quasdam schedulas a collegio ad presidentem morantem Lon-dini in termino Michaelis viij^d.

He was appointed one of the proctors of the university in the disputes between the university and the town, which were terminated by a decision of the privy council, 24 July, 1534. (Cooper, Ann. i. 369.)

In Dr Lamb's Cambridge Documents, p. 35, is a letter, written from London by Dr Heynes apparently to Dr Buckmaster, his deputy, on 9 May, 1534, urging the university to a zealous defence of the academic privileges against the encroachments of the townspeople. (Cooper, Ann. i. 367-8.) In another letter of Ralph Aynsworth, master of Peterhouse, the townsmen are described as 'wonderfull malicious,' and as prosecuting 'ther seyde sute with vncharitable lyes.' (Lamb, 34.)

In Wright, Letters on the suppression of the monasteries (published by the Camden Society, 1843), we find the following mention of Dr Heynes in a letter of Thomas Dorset, written in the year 1535 or 1536 (p. 37):

Doctour Heyns prechithe before the kyng, as he is appoyntid every Wedynsday this Lent, and on Wedynsday in the Ymbre [after the first Sunday in Lent] he saide in his sermone, that God hathe brought the truthe of his worde to light, and princis be the ministeris of it to give comaundement that it shold goo forward, and yet is no thynge regarded, and make of hym but a Cristmas king.

In the 'Sermons and Remains' of bishop Latimer (Parker Soc. 1845) we find the bishop in a letter to Cromwell (p. 387) alluding to dean Heynes preaching at court: unfortunately it is undated.

In May, 1535, he was sent in great haste with Christopher Mount, 'an honest German, who was long employed by the Crown of England' (Burnet, Ref.), to sir John Wallop, the ambassador, for the purpose of alluring Melancthon over to England; when it was found that the German reformer was not likely to go into France, Mount was sent after him and Heynes in August 'ordered to go to Paris there to understand the opinions of the Learned and their affection, how they stood inclined both to the King's proceedings and to the Bishop of Rome's usurped power and authority.' (Strype, Mem. B. i. ch. 32.)

II. M. J. 1534-5, fo. 213. Item xvij^o Augusti m^{ro} Wylks pro expensis ad Londinum in causis collegii, cum magister noster ad transmarinas partes ibat xij^a.

On 24 Dec. 1535 he was installed canon of Windsor, having been appointed by patent on 21 Dec. On 27 July 1536, he was presented by Stokesley bishop of London to the rectory of Fulham, which he retained till his death (Newcourt, i. 608). In 1537, on the deprivation of Reginald Pole, he became dean of Exeter (elected 16 July and confirmed 28 July), having just before (certainly before 20 June and probably before 14 June) resigned the presidentship.

In MS. Baker, xxxvii. 394-430, are two lectures of Dr Thomas Smith, on the study of Civil Law. In the second he commends the king's reformation of religion, his encouragement of every art, and his judgment shewn in the men that he selected for preferment; among these he mentions Dr Heynes, then dean of Exeter, of whom he says (p. 404): 'At in minore ordine Decanatu affectit Exoniensi virum integritate, religione ac liberalitate in studiosos singulari Simonem Heynum.'

SOON after his election the following articles were agreed upon between him and the fellows, from which the chief articles at least of complaint against Dr Jenyn plainly appear:—

Matiers of variaunce before this tyme depending betwix the master or president of this college M. doctor Jenyn and the felowes of the same, now clerly determyned and ended for a perpetuall qwietnes within this college by thassent and consente of Mr Heynes now president of this college and all the felowes thereof, as hereaffter articulary folowith. the said president being absent as present, and the commens of another servaunte only whan the said president is in towne and resident in the college, and the commens of this servant to be taken by hym in recompense of such charges as he and all presidents shalbe putto in fynding ij servants to ride with hym in causis collegii and to take nō other allowance of the college for his said ij servaunts wages, but only the commens of oon servant besid his scolar that kepith his chamber and that, whan he is present: and the said president and his successors to pay in the college for his owne sising and his servants at his owne coste and charge, and whan he ride in causis collegii to have only expenses for hym and his 2 servants and no wages for them.

2. Wheras Doctor Jenyn had of the college haye, litter, provonder for his horsses within the college and his horss shoing and also xij^d. every day whan he ridd in causis collegii for the hier of his horsses, It is now concludid and by the said maister and felowes fully determynd that the president now being and his successors shalbe only content to have iij horsses fownde whan he lith at this college, that is to say hay litter provonder for thre horsses and he shall not aske any other allowance of the college for his 3 horsses, which he shall bye at his owne coste and charge with sadellis, bridollis and all other things to them apperteyning.

3. That where Doctor Jenyn had of the college cost fierwood candellis and russhis sufficient for his chamber and his wassing both for hym and his servaunts, Now it is fulli agreed and determynd by the said maister and felowes that nether the said president now being nor his successors shall have theis things nor any of them at the colleges coste or charge, but he to pay for all theis things of his owne stipend like as a felow of this college doth.

4. That where Doctor Jenyn had his costes of the college whan so ever he did cum from his benefice to do his dewti in the college, It is now determynd that whan and asoffte as the maister of this college shall resorte hither to the college he shall cum of his owne cost and charge from his benefice.

5. That wher Doctor Jenyn wolde not of late dais make a bill of his particular expenses in causis collegii but a gross bill, because the statute gyveth the maister his resonable expenses in causis collegii affter his owne conscience, It is determynd that asofften as the maister shall ride forth in causis collegii, he shall make a bill particularly of all his expenses, so as the same may appere to be reson-able and to stonde with good conscience, not exceding a resonable sum by the daye.

6. That when Doctor Jenyu wolde every terme ride to London pretending to be occupijd ther in causis collegii to the grett charge of this college, whan the college mani tymes had other nothing to do ther or vere litle that shuld require his presence, It is therfore by the said maister and felowes determynd, that the maister of this college shall never ride to London nor to non other farr place in causis collegii except he first counsaile with the felowes and have ther advise and consent before: so that if the materes that he wold ride or may be cumpasid well and conveniently otherwise, that than the maister to remayne at home and not to put the college to ony charge.

Provided always that if herafter it shall fortune londes to be procurid or gyven to this college, wherby the stipend of the president shall be augmentid, that than theis ordinaunces now made (because the londes of the college be not now otherwise able to maynteyn the nombre of felowes according to the compositions) may not than be onything prejudiciall to the said M. Simon Heynes now president nor unto his successors maisters or presidents of this College.

Per me Symonē Heynes Presidētem hujus collegii manu propria.

(II. M. J. fo. 106 b.)

Most of the subjects of these articles were afterwards settled by statute in the manner here agreed upon.

As William Frankelyn was president on 18 Oct. 1528, the above date 20 Jan. 1528 is actually 20 Jan. 1528-9.

On 20 Sept. 1532 it was agreed to give the master £4 per annum in lieu of the hay, litter and provender referred to in § 2 for his three horses, on condition of his residing three months every year in the college. At the same time he obtained the garden or orchard opposite the college gate for his sole use (II. M. J. fo. 172).

On 24 Feb. 1534-5 this sum of £4 per ann. was granted to the master for his horse with only one month's residence, but he was to 'ask none other allowance for his expenses in causis collegii at London' (II. M. J. fo. 203 b).

Item pro equis magistri nostri hujus anni et pro expensis in negotiis collegii Londini iiij^u.

Again on 12 Feb. 1528-9 the following agreement was made, conferring on the president very large powers over the estates of the college:—

M^d. that the xij^h day of February in the chapell of this college it was determynd and agreid by the Maister of this college and felowes of the same that theis things following shall perteyne to the maister or president aforesaid to do by vertue of his office. A^o. dñi 1528.

First it is agreid by the seid president and felowes that the president of this college now being, by vertue of his office or rowme, shall by his discretion leate or sett forth all londes of this college to ferme, which he shall think convenient to be leten, and for as many yeres as he shall think good, gyving hym full auctorite to make all covenants with fermors to be cumprised in their indentures and to cess or allevy such fynez for leates as he shall think to stond with reson, both for fermes leten by indenture and allso for londes taken up by copy: and what so ever the said president herin shall doo, the whole felowship and college agreith to approve and ratefye: provided that the said president do rede the indentures to the cumpany before thei be seald.

Also auctorite is gyven to the president now being to sell all woods perteyning to this college which ar convenient to be fellid and solde and by what price so ever the said president shall sell them, the felowes agreith to be content.

All bargeynes for new londes to be purchasid, the said president shall make in the college name and for the most advauntage of the same, as much as he may possible, all reparations or new buyldings to be done in the towne or contre, the president shall se done likewise for the colleges most advantage: and generalli what contracte covenant or bargeyn is to be made for the college, the doing and execution therof is committed to the president. Allso all rekenings accompts and billis of accompts as well of the bowsers and other felowes of this college as allso of all bayliffs fermors and other accountants yerly at their audet and other tymes of the yer, shalbe oversen by the said president now being, gyving to the same full auctorite to alow and disalow that which he shall think convenient to be alowed or disalowd. And what soever the president of this college now being shall do in theis things or in ony of them, the whoole college agreith to ratefye and approve.

In witnes wherof aswell the maister or president as well as also all the felowes hath setto their hands the day and yer above written :

Per me Simonem Heynes, presidentem collegii, per me Robertum Garrett	per me Robertum Pomell per me Walterum Bygrave	per me Thomam Hathwey per me Henricum Vavasor	per me Johannem Newman per me Johannem Gough per me Nicholaum Saunders

(II. M. J. fo. 107 b).

In this agreement the words 'now being' have been substituted for 'for tyme being' so as to restrict to Mr Heynes the powers hereby granted.

In the year 1529 and following years many sales of college estates took place, because they had for many years been only the source of loss to the college.

On 10 April 20 Hen. VIII. 1529 St Paul's hostel and the White hostel adjoining to it (situated in Great St Mary's and St Michael's parishes) were sold to Simon Trew, Thomasina his wife, Lawrence Bouger, Peter Cheke (father of sir John Cheke, Cooper, Ath. i. 39), James Haccumbleyn, Richard Lychefeld, Henry Vesey and William Bellingham of Cambridge for £80, to be paid in eight yearly payments, "ad opus et usum ipsius Simonis True." (Misc. A. fo. 36 b.) It was sold because in consequence of heavy repairs the college had been obliged to pay the stipend of Mr Syday's fellow, whose endowment this formed, out of its other revenues. With this £80 land was bought by the college of the value of £4 per annum, and the 'socius sacerdos' changed to 'socius non sacerdos'; 'neque hanc fundationem sua auctoritate tantum mutaverunt, sed auctoritate etiam summi pontificis viz. domini Clementis hujus nominis pape septimi desuper obtenta' (Codex Chadertonianus, p. 68).

This hostel afterwards became the Rose Inn, and stood where Rose crescent now is. Of the Rose Inn two farthing tokens are found, struck in the middle of the 17th century.

In 1529 it was also decreed that the Otware and Marke fellowships should be united, as the houses in Bermondsey-street, Southwark, which had furnished the endowment of the latter, were (from their bad state of repair) no longer able to do so. The same took place in the same year with the Otware and Barby fellowships, though these would seem to have been united in 1486. Probably at this time definitely the three fellowships were reduced to two.

The estate at Prettiwell, Essex, given by John Grene in 1479 to found a fellowship, had in 1529 become of little or no value to the college for several years, in consequence of the expense they were continually put to in distraining for the rent of it. At last, wearied out, the college were glad, after wasting £60 in law expenses, to sell the estate consisting of a yearly rent of 100^s, and two weirs Ebbweir and Floodweir, issuing from and belonging to a part of a marsh called Alflod in Ash in Prettiwell and Eastwood, Essex, to the very parties who had given so much trouble, Dr John Allen, LL.D., master of the prerogative of Cardinal Wolsey (Cooper, Ath. i. 49) for £120. Lands to the value of the purchase-money were to be bought by the college, and the fellow of Mr Grene's foundation changed from 'sacerdos' to 'non sacerdos' (Misc. A. fo. 35 b. Misc. B. fo. 8, Statutes 1529, p. 55), 'auctoritate sanctissimi domini domini Clementis hujus nominis pape septimi' (Codex Chadertonianus, p. 62).

In 1530 the college estate of Gilden Morden given in 1474 by John Raven was sold to Edward Brisley for £80, and lands at Eversden late of Dr Manfeld were purchased.

In 1534 the lands of which the college was possessed in Holbeach, Whaplode and Multon, Lincolnshire, given by Lady Alice Wyche, were sold.

In 1535, Dr Heynes sold St Bernard's hostel to Corpus Christi college, of which William Sowode was then master, for the sum of one hundred marks.

SOOON after Simon Heynes' election to the presidentship in 1529 the Easter term was dissolved from to the morrow of the Visitation of the B. V. Mary (3 July) for fear of the plague (Cooper, Ann. i. 330).

In the same year (1529) the statutes given by queen Elizabeth Wydeville in 1475 were altered and the new ones confirmed by papal authority.

The following extracts from the bursar's books refer to this change:—

(For Sygar Nicholson see Cooper, Ath. i. 51; for Gerard Goodfrey or Garrat Godfrey's appointment as one of the stationers to the University, see Cooper, Ann. i. 369.)

In 1529 the college changed its seal :

Dr Fawn, fellow of Queens' college 1496-1513, the friend of Erasmus, and his successor in the lady Margaret's professorship of divinity, seems to have owed the college a large debt, to recover which legal proceedings had to be taken :

II. M. J. Mids^r.-Christmas 1527, fo. 96. Item ix^o die Decembri m^{ro} Heynes pro expensis suis factis in causis collegii apud Londinum in termino sancti Michaelis, ut patet per billam suam xxvij^s. x^d.

In 1533, while Dr Heynes was vice-chancellor, some disturbances took place in connexion with the election of the proctors for the ensuing year, which took place on 10 October:—

Apud St Denys Eve [8 Oct.] was there a greate Cumpany of Lawyers a Jettyng [rioting, 'larking'. Cooper, Ann. i. 160], w^{ch} came to the Quenes College, & to dyvers other Howses yn the nyght, abowte ten of the clocke, making a Proclamasyon at every Gate, after thys fasshyon, 'How yes, How yes, Take hede whome ye make youre Proctor, for fere of that that shall cum after yf ye do Standysshe wrong; Loke ye, make ye Stronge, &c.' The nexte nyghte after, they came agayne to every House with a greater Cumpany, by estymatyon there was 3 or 4 score, knocking likewise at the Vycechancelors Gat, byddyng them cum owte, Knavys, Cowards & Heretyks, wherupon the Cumpany drove them away with Stones, and they cried fyre, to fyre the Gats, and that nyght the callyd a Congregatyon on thys maner, 'Congregatio Regentium tantum in Scolis publicis cum gladiis et fustibus.' (MS. Baker xxvi. 76. Cooper, Ann. i. 362.)

By the act of parliament (Stat. 26 Hen. VIII. c. 3) passed in the year 1534, the firstfruits and tenths of all ecclesiastical property was given to the crown. All bishoprics, abbeys, colleges, parsonages, chantries, &c. were valued by commissioners, and in the survey of the diocese of Ely, made by virtue of this act, the then two richest colleges, King's and St John's, were valued respectively at £751 and £507. In the valuation of the other colleges, Queens', which stands highest, was valued at £230. In consequence of this act it was decreed by the college 27 Feb. 1534-5 that the number of fellows in priests' orders should be reduced from twelve to ten. The tenths were to be paid by the college, the firstfruits by the incoming fellow (Cooper, Ath. i. 211, Dr Bill).

The college order is as follows:—

Md. that the xxvijth day of februarie in the xxvjth yere of kyng Henry the viij, Whereas by the kyng our soveraigne lord and his parliament it is enacted at the last session that every monasterie and colledge among other thyngs shall pay the xth part of the clere yerly valor of all ther rentes to the kyng ower soveraigne lord and his heires, so that this hows cannot susteyne the old accustomed number of prestes felows and scholers with other charges and also pay the seid xth part, It is therfore agreed and determyned bi the seid president and felows the day and yere abovesaid, that when and as sone as the romes of prestes within the said colledge may be void, no mo prestes shalbe in wagis accordyng to the statutes of this coledg but only ten.

Provided allway that every man that is now prest shall have the stipend of a prest fellow styll as hath bene accustomed, and that sir Umfrey, because he is now subdecan, assone as he is preste shall lykewise have the wages of a prest fellow accordyng to the statutes (II. M. J. fo. 203 b. at the end of the accounts of 1533-34).

(Edmund Umfrey took priest's orders about Easter, 1535. His title for orders is dated 12 Dec. 1534.)

In the college accounts we find the following references to this matter :—

However the two universities and the colleges of Eton and Winchester were in 1536 discharged for ever of firstfruits and tenths by Act of Parliament (Stat. 27 Henry VIII. c. 42), the king being apparently forced into this measure by the fear of ruining the universities as places of learning. With the cause the effect also contained in the above college-order no doubt ceased. Dr Crayford the vice-chancellor (master of Clare hall and formerly fellow of Queens' college), and Ralph Ainsworth of Peterhouse, the senior proctor, were the agents of the university in procuring this bill.

In 1534 Alexander Alane, or Ales, the Scotch reformer, was sent by Henry VIII. to Cambridge to read a lecture on the Holy Scriptures. He became a member of Queens' college. Writing to Martin Bucer, 1 Sept. 1550, he says: 'Audiui autem ægotasse te et revaluisse et nunc profiteri sacras literas Cantabrigie, ubi ego olim habui jucundissimum sodalitium in collegio Reginae. Hoc tantum molestum fuit, quod cogebam sequi Crumvellium pro stipendio, quod nondum persolutum est, sed nihil dubito quin tibi fideliter numeretur.' (MS. Parker, cxix. 215.) He began to read in the Schools on Ps. viij., but some opposition being made, and the vice-chancellor Dr John Crayford favouring his opponents, he left Cambridge and went to London; he seems never to have returned to the university. (Cooper, Ath. i. 238.)

In the beginning of Oct. 1535 Thomas Cromwell, the king's vice-gerent in matters ecclesiastical and chancellor of the university (successor in this office to bishop Fisher), was appointed by Henry VIII. visitor of the university with full powers. At the same time the king promulgated certain injunctions for promoting piety, and extirpating error, heresy, superstition, hypocrisy, and idolatry; and requiring the university to renounce all obedience to the pope of Rome, and that his authority be received as supreme under God.

According to these injunctions, Queens' and the other colleges were to found two daily public lectures, one in Latin and one in Greek, the divinity lectures were to be upon the Old and New Testaments, 'according to the true sense thereof, and not after the manner of Scotus, &c.;' the commentators on the Sentences of Peter Lombard were to be abandoned altogether with all similar writers and their 'frivolous questions and obscure glosses;' and that 'students in arts should be instructed in the elements of logic, rhetoric, arithmetic, geography, music, and philosophy, and should read Aristotle, Rodolphus Agricola (Reid's Mosheim, 1848, p. 544 b), Philip Melancthon, Trapezuntius (Reid's Mosheim, p. 537 b), &c. and not the frivolous questions and obscure glosses of Scotus, Burleus, Anthony Trombet, Bricot, Bruliferius, &c.'

Thomas Legh, LL.D. (Cooper, Ath. i. 87. 535) was appointed Cromwell's delegate. He issued other injunctions on 20 Oct., one of which directed that the university and all the colleges 'should before the feast of the Purification of the blessed Mary then next [2 Feb. 1535-6] deliver their respective charters of foundation, donation or appropriation, statutes, constitutions, pontifical bulls, and other diplomas and papistical muniments, with a rental of their immoveables and a true inventory of their moveable goods, into the hands of Master Thomas Cromwell, the king's visitor-general, to await his good pleasure.' Accordingly, on or about 25 Oct. 1535, the university and the several colleges acknowledged the king's supremacy and renounced the authority of the pope, and all papal bulls, exemptions, indulgences, and dispensations; and they soon afterwards sent up their charters, statutes, bulls, &c. with a rental of their lands and an inventory of their goods to the king's visitor. (Fuller, Hist. Univ. of Camb. ed. Prickett and Wright, 215 ff.; Cooper, Ann. i. 374 ff.)

The deed, by which the president and fellows of Queens' college made their submission to the king, has not been found; a similar deed of the society of Gonville hall, dated 25 Oct. 1535, is given in Fuller's Hist. of the University of Cambridge (ed. Prickett and Wright, 216).

The following items in the bursars' books refer to this visitation:—

The parliament met on 8 June 1536, and an act was passed (Stat. 28 Hen. VIII. c. 10) for 'extinguishing the authority of the bishop of Rome,' and requiring an oath of renunciation and supremacy, to be taken by every person 'promoted or preferred to any degree of learning in any university within this realm.'

The records of the university were restored in 1537:

Cum itaque ad Henr. 8. celeberrimi regis tempora, qui omnem Pontificiam exterminavit potentiam, multæ Papales bullæ ad confirmanda Cantebriensis Academiæ privilegia superessent, inclitissimus ille Rex, etsi ea auferri, ne pontificum deinceps obtenderetur auctoritas, jusserit, eorum tamen beneficium Academiæ salvum, integrumque esse voluit. ON 12 Feb. 1536-37, a difference between the college and the Carmelite friars about a stone wall between the college and the convent was composed, by the purchase of it from the friars, as appears from the following document in the college treasury:—

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos presens scriptum pervenerit, Georgius Legatte, clericus, prior domus et ecclesie fratrum Carmelitarum Cantebrie in com. Cantabr. et ejusdem loci conventus, Salutem in Domino sempiternam.

To this deed are appended the seals of the prior and of the community of the friars.

The impression of the seal of the prior is very much worn; it was oblong, $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. by $1\frac{1}{2}$ in.; the centre bears a representation of the Annunciation under a canopy, below is a small shield; the inscription is very indistinct, but seems to be

SIGILLV PRIOR' ET FRM DE CARMELO CANTEBRIGIE.

The seal of the community is circular, $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. in diameter, and represents an altar, on which stands a chalice touched by a hand from heaven, the whole being surmounted by a kind of canopy. The inscription, partly in Latin and partly in Gothic letter, is

S'. COITATIS FRM DE CARMELO CANTEBRIG'.

The following extracts from the bursars' books refer to this purchase:—

- III. M. J. 1536-37, fo. 29. Item xi° Februarii coquo pro prandio duorum fraterculorum qui comitabantur priorem vii^d.

Soon after the date of this deed Dr Heynes resigned the mastership. The date, which is nowhere stated, is determined approximately by the following extracts from the college accounts :

II. M. J. 1536-7, fo. 29*. Item xiiij^o Junii magistris Wilkes et Glynne pro expensis suis, quum ibant ad Swapham ad examinandum terminos illius acre, quam m^r D. Heynes dedit collegio xix^d.
 Item xx^o Junii m^{ro} Glynn quum deferebat literas ad magistrum electum xiiij^s. vj^d.

He certainly resigned before 20 June, and probably before 14 June, 1537.

Some miscellaneous extracts from the college account books during the presidentship of Dr Heynes are here given :—

N 16 July, 1537 (as has been stated), Dr Heynes was elected dean of Exeter, and in that capacity attended the baptism of prince Edward (afterwards Edward VI.), 15 Oct. 1537. (Strype, Mem. Vol. ii. B. i. ch. 1. p. 5.)

Being a great statesman he was sometimes employed in weighty embassies to foreign princes, and was very successful in most of the affairs that were committed to his charge. (Downes.)

In May, 1538, the dean and Bonner (afterwards bishop of London) were sent into Spain, and joined in commission with sir Thomas Wyat, resident ambassador to the emperor. 'Impressed with the conviction, that sir Thomas treated them slightly, Bonner, in a letter to Cromwell, 2 Sept. 1538, from Blois, charged him with traitorous correspondence with Reginald Pole, and with using disrespectful language of the king. Cromwell, who was a firm friend of Wyat and could not fail to have perceived the intense malignity of Bonner, treated the accusation with contempt'; but, after his downfall, Bonner and Heynes renewed their accusation against Wyat, but with no better success; for though he was imprisoned in the Tower, and arraigned on a charge of treason, yet he was acquitted. This was about the year 1540. (Cooper, Ath. i. 80.)

The act of VI. Articles was made in the parliament that began on 28 April, 1539, though not without 'great striving and struggling in the house about passing these articles,' the king coming in person into the parliament-house to force it through. While the debates were still going on, 'at Eaton . . . there was a stout Priest, that blazed abroad triumphantly, that transubstantiation is determined to be believed as an article of our faith, &c. and two other things.' Hereupon Dr Heynes wrote a letter (MS. Cotton, Cleopatra E. v. art. 9) to 'some certain men of the court, as it seems, of great authority,' admiring how the king could pretend authority of Scripture for those articles, there being not any express word of God written for them: unless men use Scripture (said he) for proving these, as the bishop of Rome quoteth the Scripture to prove his authority to be ex jure divino: he observed also, that if the king with the lords spiritual and temporal, &c. 'should establish these articles to be true jure divino without any authority of Holy Scripture, or else by authority wrong understood,' it ought to be considered that the emperor and the French king had the like power in their dominions to decree other things to be true, jure divino, from Scriptures likewise wrong understood; so likewise the bishop of Rome in his dominions, and all the princes of Germany and Italy in theirs, and therefore much more a general council of the legates of these princes may determine things to be institute of God in his Holy Scriptures, by Scriptures wrong understood, as the primacy of the Roman bishop, his power over kings and princes and the permanent obligation of monastic vows: which might compel him 'unawares finally to undo all that' he 'hath done heretofore against the bishop of Rome, monks, and friars, &c.' Dr Heynes was of opinion that nothing ought to 'be decreed nor made by man to be an article of our faith, except the same be manifestly grounded upon Holy Scripture written, or at the least wise manifestly and plainly deduced out of Holy Scripture written;' and though speaking his mind boldly to his correspondent, trusted that his fears might not be realized. (Strype, Mem. Vol. i. Book i. ch. 47, p. 352. App. cviii.)

On 17 Dec. 1540 Dr Heynes was appointed (by patent 32 Hen. VIII.) the first prebendary of the first stall in the cathedral church of Westminster upon the new foundation thereof, 'as a reward for the services he did in Embassies he was employed about by the King' (Strype, Mem. Vol. ii. B. ii. ch. 18, p. 386).

About the year 1541, or 1542, Dr Heynes with sir Philip Hoby and his wife and others were by Dr London, Dean of Wallingford, a busy persecutor, and some others combining together, put into a paper of complaints, which was presented to bishop Gardner, the King's great Privy Counsellor (in which Plot himself privily was), 'as Aiders and Maintainers of one Antony Persons, a good Preacher in Windsor, who was about that Time burnt.' And Heynes was moreover accused as a Common Receiver of suspected Persons (Strype, ubi supra).

About the year 1543 he was by Thomas Sothorn (or Sothoron) treasurer of the church of Exeter (1531-57), and Dr Brewwood, chancellor [archdeacon of Barnstaple 1528-44, Oliver, Exeter, 294], accused to the council for preaching against the superstitious use of holy bread and holy water, 'and that he should say in one of his sermons (having occasion to speak of matrimony) that "marriage and hanging were destiny," whence they would have gathered treason against him, because of the king's marriage, as though he had an eye to that. But however on this accusation he was sent to the Fleet, with sir Philip Hoby accused by Bishop Gardiner' (Strype, ubi supra).

Dr Heynes was one of the compilers of the 'Order of the Communion' of 1548 and of the Prayer-Book of 1549, and in consequence in Samuel Downes' edition of bishop Sparrow's Rationale upon the Book of Common-Prayer of the Church of England (London 1722, 8^{vo}), a sketch of his life is to be found.

He was instituted to the rectory of Newton Ferrers Devonshire 25 March 1538. This living he held till his death, his successor John Pollard being instituted 19 Jan. 1552-3.

In the royal commission dated 12 Apr. 1549, he was associated with archbishop Cranmer, bishops Goodrich of Ely, Heath of Worcester, Thirlby of Westminster, Day of Chichester, Holbeach of Lincoln, Ridley of Rochester and others, for inquiring into heretical pravity.

In May 1549 he was placed among the commissioners for visiting and reforming the colleges and university of Oxford. In this capacity he was one of the five who presided at the public disputation held in the divinity school there for three days between Peter Martyr and Dr William Tresham, canon of Christ's church, and others, concerning Transubstantiation (Strype, Cranmer, B. ii. ch. 14).

DR Heynes drew up, probably soon after the dissolution of the religious houses, some articles for reforming the constitution of his cathedral: as they were never acted upon, they probably never received the approbation of the king, to whom they were submitted. They have been printed by Dr Geo. Oliver in his Lives of the Bishops of Exeter, &c. (Exeter 1861, 8^{vo}) pp. 477—483, from Harl. MS, No. 604. 59.

From his work they are here given, as assisting us somewhat in forming an estimate of the Dean.

CERTAIN ARTICLES NOTED FOR THE REFORMANCE OF THE CATHEDRAL CHURCH OF EXCESTER, submitting them unto the King's Majestie.

1. First, that the names of Dean and Chapter, with the names of Chaunter, Treasurer, Chauncelor, Subdean, Prebendaries, Chanons, &c., may be chaunged into names of holy scripture as pastor of the church and prechers of the gspell. And that all londs and other yerly emoliments heretofor given to the Dean and Chapter and other Dignitees by the names aforesaid maie remaine to the use of the pastor and prechers of the same Church and be employed only to such uses as hereafter ensewith.

2. That the pastor having care of the church, may have to his owne use for the sustentacon of himself and his howshold all manner yerly revenewes whiche the Dean had before, with the porcon of on prechar like as the Dean had before, this office of the pastor to be evermore at the gift and disposicon of the kings majeste. The pastor to be ever a doctor of divinite lafulli admitt in an univerte of this realme.

3. That there may be also eleven other prechars, doctors or ellis bachelers of divinite, lefully admitt within an universite of this realme, whiche with the pastor shall preache by cowrss an sermon within the said cathedral church every Sondaie and halidaie in the yer; every of them to have yerly fifty pownds, thes eleven prechars to be evermore at the gift of the Bushope, provided that if the Bushope do by any sinister affecon promote any unable man to the rowme of a prechar, that then he shall forfaite the gift of all the said prechars to the kyngs grace during the liff of the Bushop so offending, and the unable persone nevertheless to be deprived. And that the said pastor because he hath cure of the church shall be bownd to preache four sermons over and besids his porcon of the prechars sermons, upon these four fests following, that is to say, an sermon upon All Hallowes daie, an sermon upon Christmas daie, an sermon upon the Epiphany daie, and an sermon upon thAssencon daie and that in his owne person, if he be present and not seike, etc., and if he be absent or lettid by sekenes or otherwise, than to provide at his owne cost and charge, that the said sermons be done by lerned and able prechars. Upon all the residew of Sondaies and halidaies, the pastor shall be non otherwise bownd to preache, but by cowrss and as other prechars are bownd. Item that the said pastor and prechars and every of them may be bownd yerly to preache abrode in the diocese of Excester spetialli in churches appropriat unto the said cath. church eight sermons, that is to saie evry quarter two upon peine, &c.

4. That the said pastor and prechars every Sondaie and halidaie as they shall be resident and present, may be bownd to sing high mass, and to execute suche divine service within the said cathedral church, as it shall please the kyngs grace to assigne. Provided, that the pastor shall execute only upon the fests folowing if he be present upon All Hallowes daie, Christmas daie, Epiphani daie, on the Purification of our Ladies daie, Good Fridaie, Ester daie, Whitsonday and thAssencon daie, upon all other Sondaies and holidiaies, the said eleven prechars by cowrss to sing high mass and to execute other divine service as they shal be present.

5. That the said pastor and prechars and evry of them may be bownde to kepe hospitalite and to be present at morow mass or ellis at high mass daily by the space of forty daies together or at several tymes, evry quarter of the yer and evry of the said forty daies, either to dync or suppe in his owne howss. Provided alwaie, that when so ever it shall happen the said pastor or ony of the other prechars to be seke within ther own howses at Excester that during the time of ther seknes they may be discharged of the qweir provided also that if it shall happen ony of the said pastor and prechars to be sent ambassadors from the kyngs majeste unto ony forein prince or place beyond the see, orellis to be sent for to be present at ony convocation or cownsaile within this realme, that evry of them so being absent by the kyngs graces commandement shal be accepted as present in the said churche, and have all manifold profits of a prechar resident and keping hospitalite in the same, from the daie of his knowledge of the kyngs graces pleasor in the premises, unto the daie of his retorne unto the kyngs majeste and eight daies affter. And unto thend of suche cownsaile or convocacon, and eight daies affter the same cownsaile or convocacon is ended. Provided also, that the said pastor and prechars being absent in preching ther quarter sermons in the diocese, shalbe accepted as present for so long as they ar occupied in that busyness.

That the pastor and prechars entering residence in the said cathedral churche, may enter frely withoute paying ony money to the cathedral churche or to any other persone or persones for the same, except anly the first fruts and the tenth dew to the kyngs majeste by his lawes and the ordinari fees dew to the Bushop and pastor for institucon and induccon in the same. Ony statute or custome of the said churche hertefore made to the contrary notwithstanding.

7. That the corporacon of the churche, which was by the name of Dean and Chapter of Seint Peters Churche in Excester may be changed, and to be called now the pastor and prechars of Christs Churche in Excester and the comen seale which now hath graven in it the image of Seinte Peter with a triple crowne may be likewise alterid.

8. That the correcon of the priests and peple within the Closs of the churche of Excester, and of all churches and parishes appropriate to the same may pertyn unto the pastor aforesaid, as of right it pertyned before unto the Dean, who hath the jurisdiccon of an Arche-decon within the churche, and within all parishes appropriat to the same, as apperith by sufficient writings under seale, for now, neither the Archedecon from whom they be exempte, nor yet the Dean unto whom such correcon perteyneth, do correcte the enormitees of priests and other within the peculiar jurisdiction of the said Dean. Maie it therefore, please the kyngs majeste to restore unto the pastor the jurisdiction of an Archedecon with like comoditees fees and profits within the said cathedral church and parishe churches appropiat, as Archedecons hath of churches within ther jurisdictions, &c.

9. That ther may be in the said church a lerned man in holy scripture, that shall rede a lecture openly in the church three days evry weke (he to have forty marks for his labor) and that the said pastor and prechars may be bound daili both at dyner and supper to have som parte of holy scripture redd at ther tables, &c., the said redar to be chosen, & upon just causes to be removed by the pastor and six other prechars of the said church, and the said pastor and prechars being in towne may be bound dailie to be present when the lecture is redd.

10. That there may be in the said cathedral church a fre song scole, the scholemaster to have yerly of the said pastor & prechars twenty marks for his wages and his howss fre, to teach forty children frely to rede, to write, syng and play upon instruments of music, also to teach them ther a. b. c. in greke and hebrew and evry of the said forty childre to have wekely 12d. for ther meat and drink and yerly 6s. 8d. for a gowne, they to be bownd daili to syng and rede within the said cathedral church such divine service as it may please the kyngs majeste to allowe. The said childre to be at comons all together with three priests hereafter to be spoken of, to see them well ordered at their meat and to reform their manners.

11. That ther may be a fre grammar scole within the said cathedral church, the scholemaster to have 20l. by yer, and his howss fre, the ussher 10l. and his howss free, and that the said pastor and prechar may be bound to fynd 60 childre at the said grammar scole, giving to evry on of the children 12d. wekely to go to comons within the cite at the pleasor of ther frends, so long to contynew as the scholemaster do see them diligent to lern. The pastor to appointe eight, every prechar four, and the scholemaster four: the said childre serving in the said church and going to such scole to be preferred before strangers. Provided always, that no child be admitted to the exhibicon of the said church, whose father is knowen to be worth in goods above 300l. or ellis may dispend above 40l. yerly of enheritance.

12. That the said pastor and prechars may be bound to find twenty-four scolers at the universitees, twelve at Cambridge and twelve at Oxford, every of them to have five marks yerly and on of the twelve in either universitee to be painmaster unto the residew and he to have 13s. 4d. yerly above the porcon of others, the scolers browght up in the scole of Excester to be preferred to these exhibicons before strangers. Six to be assigned by the bushop, six by the pastor, and every other prechar to assigne one.

13. To find also twenty-four poor men, maymed in the kyngs warres, blinde, lame, or aged and impotent, having no londs nor goods to live on, nor able to get ther living by labor, evry of them to have 12d. wekely, and yerly a gowne price 6s. 8d. and ther howss fre. Non of them to begg, upon peyn to be put owte of that rowme. The maier and his bretherne at evry vacacon to present unto the pastor and prechars three of the moste poore men, and the pastor and prechars to be bound to take on of three so by the maier and his bretherne named.

14. To find three honest prests daili to say morow mass in the said cathedral churche and daili at the same tyme to declare unto the peple being present a parte of the Paternoster in Englishe, a parte of the ten commandments, orellis a part of the articles of Christs faithe. And all the children both of the song scole and gramar scole to be bound daili to be present thereat, with ther scolemasters. And that on of the said priests also by cowrss may be bownd to sing daily high mass and evry of thes prests to be bownd to be present at all divine service, with the master of the song scole, every of them also bownd whan nede shall require to minister all sacraments, and to visit seek men within the parische of the said cathedral church, to be chosen by the pastor and six of the prechars and upon resonable causes by them to be put owte, evry of the said three so long as they diligentli execute ther office to have yerly for ther wages 20 marks, they to go to comons together with the scolemaster of the song scole and all the forty childre with them, to thintent they may see the good ordre of the same childre.

15. That two of the said twelve prechars may be yerly chosen at the fest of Seint Michael, to receive and pay such sumes of money as ar to be received and paid, and to make ones in the yer a trew and perfite accompte and either of them to have 4l. over and besids ther porcons above limetid.

16. To fynd also a clerk to write their rekenings and to make ther books of accompte perfite, he to have yerly 20 nobles wages, and meat and drink with the pastor and prechars present, where he list to take it.

17. To fynd a lerned man in the lawes of the realme resident for the more parte in Devonshire to be present at all law daies and courts of the said pastor and prechars to se justice executed and peace kept among ther tenants and he to have 20 marks fee yerly.

18. To find an honest man, to be verger of the churche to se silence kept in tyme of sermons, lectures and other divine service within the same, daily to attend upon the bushop being present, and in his absence upon the pastor being present, the said verger to have 8l. yerly wages meat and drink with the bushop being present and in his absence with the pastor being present.

19. To fynd a man to kepe the gates of the closs, the clocke and chyme and to ring in dew times unto sermons lectures and other divine service, he to have 5l. wages, and meat and drink with the said pastor and prechars being present.

20. Because upon certeyn holidiaies ther be distribucons given unto the Dean and Chanons to kepe them at home in the cathedral churche, whan it were most expedient they wer abrode in the contre to preache the word of God, and ageyn at Assisis and Sessions (when it were the kyngs graces honor, and all ther honestees to be at home, to kepe hospitalite for them that resort for the execucon of justice and of their tenants, &c.) thei be absent. Therefor may it please the kyngs grace to converte the 52l. by yer given for mayntenance of hospitalite upon halidaies to the mayntenance of hospitalite, at Assisis and Sessions, that is to say, that the said pastor and every other prechar being present either at Assise or Sessions holden quarterly at Excester to have 20s. so that every of them kepe two messes of meate within their owne howses, by the space of two daies, both at dyner and supper in tyme of the said Sessions and Assisis.

21. That the said pastor and every prechar, ones begyning his quarter residense, although he deye before the same quarter residense be finished, shall have his porcon wholly for that quarter as if he had fully kept forty daies residence, and had preached his sermons, and the statute de anno post mortem to be utterly abrogate, &c.

22. That the said pastor and prechars do not diminishe the summe of the comon tresor now remayning in the said cathedral church to pay the ministers of Godd's worde and scolers aforesaid ther wages, unto new rents certain, upon pain to be deprived of their benefices.

23. That it may be lefull to the pastor and prechars at the yeres end, all manner duties paid ordinary and extraordinari and after that the common tresor of the church provided before hand be fully restored and a perfite accompte finished what to every man shall clerly remayne of the yerly revenew of the same cathedral church, that to devid equalli among the said pastor and prechars resident, according as hath ben accustomed. Provided that evry man deying before his quarter be ended, and evry man being absent upon the lefle causes before rehersed, shall have his porcon of this dividint, like as if they wer resident.

24. Finalli that it may be lefull to the said pastor and prechars and to their successors to make ordinances with the consent of ther bushop, for the good ordre of the said two scoles and ther scole-masters and of the said three prests, verger and other officers, so that suche ordinances to be made by them be no point contrary to the kyngs graces ordre taken for reformacon of the said church, by acte of parliament.

Edmund Lacy bishop of Exeter died in 1455, and was buried on the north side of the choir of the cathedral. The people had conceived the highest veneration for his memory, and after his death 'many miracles were said and devised to be done at his tomb, whereupon great pilgrimages were made by the common people to the same.' To put a stop to this, Dean Heynes removed the brass from the slab (Leland, Itin. iii. 45): the slab still remains. (Oliver).

Dr Heynes died in Oct. 1552 (Strype, Mem. Vol. ii. Book ii. ch. 18).

His canonry and prebend in Exeter cathedral were given on 28 Dec. 1552 to John Blaxton, his rectory of Newton Ferrers three weeks later to John Pollard (Oliver, Exeter, 276, 477), his canonry at Westminster to Dr Andrew Perne fellow of Queens' college, who was installed 8 Nov. and the rectory of Fulham on 21 Nov. to Edmund West (Cooper, Ath. i. 118. Newcourt).

By his wife Joan —, he left a son, Joseph, aged above five years on 16 July 1555. His widow soon married Dr William Mey, his successor in the presidentship of Queens'.

He died before 21 Oct. when his successor was presented to the rectory of Fulham.

His arms were: Gu. crusily and a cinquefoil Or.

Some books, formerly belonging to Dr Heynes, were presented to the college library by Dr Thomas Yale. They were Tertulliani Opera, Basileæ, 1528, fo. (M. 9. 20).

Cypriani Opera, studio curaque D. Erasmi Rot. Basil. 1525, fo. (M. 9. 19).

The latter contains the dean's autograph, and the binding of both bears the inscription

SALVS . MEA . DNS.

S. H.

Under pieces of thin horn fastened to the bindings of these books is the following written on parchment:

(Fox, Acts and Mon. ed. Townsend. v. 359.)

The manor farm of Newberry Barking, at the dissolution of Barking Abbey, to which it belonged, was granted by the king to Sir Richard Gresham. In 1578 Joseph Heynes esq. purchased it, who in 25 Eliz. got the queen's pardon for acquiring the same to himself...without her Majesty's licence (Newcourt, ii. 33, where Heynes is miscalled Harris), and Simon Heynes his son and heir conveyed it in 1625 to Th. Styck, esq. (Lysons, Environs, iv. 80). The manor of Wangay was granted to Joseph Heynes by queen Elizabeth in 1601, and his son Simon sold it in 1623 to Thomas Fuller, esq. Joseph Heynes died 1621, and was buried in Barking church (Lysons, Environs, iv. 94).

On 20 Sept. 1575, a grant of arms was made to Simon Heynes of Mildenhall Suffolk by Robert Cooke Clarenceux king of arms (Lemon, Cal. of State Papers, 1547-80, p. 503).

Æ. William Mey.

June 1537—c. Nov. 1553.

29 Hen. VIII.—1 Mariæ.

AFTER the resignation of Dr Heynes, William Mey LL.D. succeeded to the presidentship. He was a native of Suffolk, and a fellow of Trinity Hall; he proceeded bachelor of civil law 1526, ('Conceditur d^{no} Maye ut studium septem annorum in hac universitate in jure civili secundum formam statuti sufficiat sibi ad intrandum in eodem jure.' Grace book Γ, MS. Baker xxxi. 184) and commenced doctor in that faculty in 1530 ('1529-30. Conceditur m^{ro} Meye ut studium 3: annorum in jure civili post gradum Bac: sufficiat sibi ad incipiendum in eodem jure.' Grace book Γ, MS. Baker xxxi. 187).

In the notes to 'The Pilgrim,' written by William Thomas clerk of the council to Edward VI. and edited by J. A. Froude M.A. (8vo. London, 1861), we find (note A, pp. 83, 84) references to a Dr May. Inigo de Mendoza, the secret agent of Charles V. in England, writes to that king on 17 June, 1529: 'Dr May has written to me of his interview with the Pope. He has sent me a copy of the protest which he has entered in the Queen's behalf.' And M. de Praet, the king's minister at Rome, writes thence on 5 Aug. to Charles: 'Dr May has reported to your Majesty a conversation which he has held with some of [the Cardinals] touching benefices and the like.' Mr Froude was unable to afford any information as to who 'Dr May' was, but as these letters were written in the summer of 1529, and William Mey did not take his LL.D. degree till 1530, the two cannot be the same person.

He may have been one of the early band of Gospellers mentioned under Dr Farman, as we find him executor in 1529 to Dr Richard Smith, another fellow of Trinity hall, one of those early adherents of the reformation who were accustomed to meet at the White Horse, and who is stated to have been for sometime imprisoned on the charge of heresy (Cooper, Ath. i. 37); he was however in July 1529 employed by the college in procuring the papal confirmation of their statutes. (See p. 188.) He was chancellor to Nicholas West bishop of Ely, after whose death in 1533 he became a great favourite with bishop Goodrich his successor: he acted as his proxy at his installation at Ely 2 May 1534.

In Nov. 1533 he brought down letters to the university from Dr Heynes the vice-chancellor, who was then in London to procure the confirmation and enlargement of the university privileges (Cooper, Ann. i. 362).

In 1534 archbishop Cranmer appointed him his commissary for visiting the diocese of Norwich (Strype, Cranmer, B. i. ch. 7); and although bishop Nikke at first disputed his authority, yet he was at last compelled to yield. On 27 March 1535 he was instituted to the rectory of Bishop's Hatfield Hertfordshire on the king's presentation, which he held by a dispensation from the archbishop, as he was not yet in priest's orders. On Trinity Eve 7 June 1536 he was after the fashion of those days (see Simon Heynes' title for orders, p. 178) ordained subdeacon, deacon, and priest all at once, by bishop Goodrich, in Holbourn chapel (Cole MS. Vol. xlvi. p. 131). As proctor for the diocese of Ely he signed the articles of 1536. In 1537 Dr Mey was appointed by archbishop Cranmer one of the commissioners for devising a wholesome and plain exposition of the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, the Apostle's Creed, and the Sacraments, and 'to set forth a truth of religion purged of errors and heresies' (Strype, Cranmer, B. i. ch. 13). Their labours produced 'The godly and pious Institution of a Christian man' or 'the Bishops' Book,' printed in that year.

About June 1537 he was elected president of Queens' college, though by what influence is no where stated: Dr Heynes may however have procured his election as his successor to forward the opinions to which he himself was attached. Dr Mey became sinecure rector of Littlebury Essex 12 May 1538, and on 17 Oct. 1540 bishop Goodrich collated him to the rectory of Balsham Cambridgeshire.

(We find here the president termed master, and the vice-president president, according to the custom of most of the other colleges.)

On the refoundation of the church of Ely 10 Sept. 1541, he was appointed to a canonry (third stall) therein.

III. M. J. 1556-46, fo. 138 b. Item m^{ris} Hutton et Deconson missis Eli ad consulendum presidem in negotiis collegii et pro cimba et ei qui eam rexerat vj^s. j^d.

In 1545 an act of parliament was passed 'for the dissolution of colleges,' which empowered the king to appoint commissioners to enter into all such colleges, chantries, hospitals, fraternities, &c., as should be specified in their commission, and on their entry into the same, vested them in the king. This act placed all the foundations in the universities at the king's disposal; and as the courtiers were suing the king to survey their lands and possessions that they might get their share of them, certain friends of the university persuaded the king not to appoint any of his officers of state for that purpose, but Dr Matthew Parker master of Corpus Christi college then vice-chancellor, Dr John Redman, master of King's hall, and Dr William Mey. These were empowered to enquire into the possessions of the several colleges in this university, and to ascertain how the statutes were observed. The king's commission is dated 16 Jan. 1545-6. A summary of the surveys was presented by the three commissioners to the king at Hampton court, and the result was that the colleges were saved from dissolution, and even from being forced to exchange their lands for impropriations, which they feared almost as much.

On 1 Nov. 1545 Dr Mey became prebendary of Chamberlain's wood in the church of St Paul, of which on 8 Feb. 1545-6 he was elected dean (Newcourt). There was some difficulty about his election, for on 24 Jan. 1545-6 the privy council wrote to the chapter to proceed to the election of Dr William Mey, the king's chaplain, to the deanship without further delay or cautel used by them under pretence there wanted the great seal unto the king's letters in that behalf. Bonner was then bishop of London, and may have had something to do with these delays.

As dean Dr Mey continued, notwithstanding the opposition of the bishop, to further and advance the reformation to the utmost of his power.

In August 1546 he and sir William Petre were sent to Calais to treat with the commissaries of the king of France, and sir William describes Dr Mey as 'a man of the most honest sort, wise, discrete and well lernyd, and one that shall be very mete to sarve His Majesty in many wayes' (Cooper, Ath.).

At the time of the death of Henry VIII. and the accession of the young king Edward VI. (28 Jan. 1546-7) the reforming party was in power, and a royal visitation for all the dioceses was decreed in May 1547. Among the visitors for the western dioceses of Salisbury, Exeter, Bath, Bristol, and Gloucester, were the two deans Dr Mey and Dr Heynes.

In the same year he was (together with sir W. Paget, high steward of the university, sir Thomas Wendy the king's physician, sir Thomas Smith, sir William Cecil, and John Cheke) empowered by the university to determine all disputes between the university and the town (Cooper, Ann. ii. 6).

In the early part of 1548 he was associated with the primate and other 'notable learned men' in drawing up the 'Order of the Communion' published 8 March 1548 (i.e. 1547-8). The same commission afterwards brought out 'The book of the Common Prayer and administration of the Sacraments, and other rites and ceremonies of the church, &c.', commonly called the first Prayer-book of Edward VI, which was established by the Act of Uniformity, Stat. 2 and 3 Edw. VI. c. 1, and ordered to be used by Whitsunday 9 June 1549, though in London it was in use as early as Easter-day 21 April.

On 12 Nov. 1548 he was appointed one of the commissioners for visiting the university. This visitation began 6 May 1549 and terminated 4 July.

He was one of the commissioners for the suppression of heresy, for reforming and codifying the laws ecclesiastical, and (8 Sept. 1549) for examining his own bishop Bonner for several matters of contempt of the king's order, but the dean though present does not seem to have taken any prominent part in the latter proceedings. He was one of the judges of Georg van Parre, the Dutchman tried 4 Apr. 1551 for Arianism, for which he was burnt. (Fox, Acts and Mon. ed. Townsend, v. 750-800.)

Dr Mey was a friend of Dr Matthew Parker, master of Corpus Christi college, and assisted him in the revision of the statutes of that college, which was made at the beginning of the reign of Edward VI. (Masters, C.C.C.C. 78.)

On 2 Jan. 1551-2 Dr Mey was empowered with others to assist the lord chancellor in hearing causes, and became one of the masters of requests 6 Edw. VI. 1552. In 1552 or 1553 he married Joan the widow of his predecessor Dr Heynes.

Edward VI. died 6 July 1553, and his sister Mary ascended the throne. In consequence of the change of religion which soon followed, Dr Mey lost most of his preferments, including the mastership of Queens'. His doings in queen Mary's reign and his subsequent career will be related hereafter.

We find the following references to Dr Mey as dean in the Chronicle of the Grey Friars of London, ed. by J. G. Nichols for the Camden Society, 1851.

'1549. The ij^{de} sonday of Lent preched Coverdalle, and whan hyc masse was done the dene of Powlles, that was that Dr Mey is described as being well skilled in the constitution both of church and state, and (as has been seen) there was scarcely any considerable step taken towards the reformation of the prevailing corruptions and abuses in either, without his opinion being taken.

E turn now to the history of the college during the sixteen years of Dr Mey's first presidentship.

The chief event undoubtedly was the surrender of the neighbouring monastery of the Carmelite friars to the crown and the acquisition of their land and buildings by the college: this is therefore perhaps the best place to put together what is known of the history of that house.

The Carmelites or White Friars came over to England in the reign of Richard I. Those who settled near Cambridge lived first at Chesterton, and afterwards (since 1249) at Newnham, where Michael Malherb gave them a habitation. Here they built a number of cells 'ecclesiamque claustrum et dormitorium et officinas satis honestas,' covering altogether about three acres of ground. Only a portion of this was given by Malherb, the rest they had from other benefactors and by purchase. By writ directed to the mayor and bailiffs of Cambridge, tested 14 July, 1270 (Rot. Lib. 54 Hen. III. MS. Baker xxv. 20), king Henry III. required them to pay out of the farm of the town to the friars of the order of Mount Carmel dwelling in Cambridge the sum of 52 shillings, being the king's gift for their expenses.

The following is the account of the monastery given in Rotuli Hundredorum of 1279 (ii. 360 b. London, 1812-18 fo.). It consists of part of the survey of Cambridge drawn up by certain jurors for the information of the Court of Exchequer:

Item fratres de Monte Carmeli habent quendam locum ubi inhabitant et ubi ecclesia eorum fundata est in Neunham, cujus vero loci quandam partem habent de dono Mich. Malerbe in perpetuam elemosinam et aliam partem de perquisito et de dono plurimorum, et continet in se tres acras terre et amplius; utrum autem habeant confirmationem de dono regis [vel] non, ignorant.

The friars only remained about 40 years in Newnham. In 1290 (18 Edw. I.) they petitioned the parliament that William de Hamelton might give them a house which he had in the town of Cambridge, where they might build their habitation anew, because they then dwelt without the town, viz. at Newnham, where in winter they suffered many and great inconveniences on account of the inundation of the waters, so that the scholars could not have access to them to hear divinity, nor could they go to the town to obtain their victuals. On this petition an inquisition was awarded (Rot. Parl. i. 51). Their new house was built in the parish of St John Milnestrete, many houses being destroyed to make way for their buildings, and in 1292 they removed thither, and there remained till the dissolution of religious houses. King Edward I., sir Guy de Mortimer, and Thomas de Hertford were great benefactors to them. About the same time Humphrey Necton, one of the friars, was permitted by the university, at the request of William de Ludham, bishop of Ely and chancellor of the university, to graduate in theology; afterwards he read lectures in the house of the Carmelites.

In 1291 a composition was made between Barnwell Abbey and the Carmelites 'pro indemnitare ecclesie sancti Johannis.'

By letters patent dated 16 Oct. 5 Edw. III. 1331, Joan de Caumpe had license to give to the monastery a messuage with its appurtenances contiguous to their dwelling.

The Carmelites from the different monasteries in England, who studied at Cambridge, dwelt in this house till they graduated in divinity, when they returned to their several abodes. A list of such of these as were learned writers is given in Fuller's History of the University, sub anno 1282 (ed. Prickett and Wright, 69).

The 'Trinity chest,' a sum of £100 given in 1348 by bishop Bateman of Norwich to be lent on pledge to members of the university, was in the custody of the Carmelites. This chest was seized by the townspeople in the great riots of 1381.

In the processions which were held to commemorate the benefactors of the university, and which took place on the first Friday in Advent, the Friday next before Palm Sunday and the Friday next before the Ascension, the Carmelite friars took the third place in the procession (Cooper Ann. i. 118, a. 1380).

In 1388 a parliament was held at Cambridge, and during its session Willam Courtney archbishop of Canterbury, and Edmund of Langley duke of York and earl of Cambridge, lodged in the house of the Carmelites.

No mention is made of the Carmelite friars in the visitation by archbishop Arundel in 1401, though the house of the White Canons and the nunnery of St Rhadegund were visited by the commissioners.

Lady Margery Roos bequeathed them 40s. in 1477 and Roger Drury of Hawstead 3s. 4d. in 1493 (Cullum's Hawstead, 117).

In the High Gable Rental of Cambridge we find the Carmelites assessed at 16d. (Cooper, Ann. i. 228). After the dissolution of the friary we find this payment continued by the college.

Under the presidentship of Dr Heynes is given the account of the settlement of a dispute between the college and the Carmelites about a party wall on 12 Feb. 1536-7. The latter may have hoped by timely concession to make themselves friends among that body, which in the tottering state of the monastic system in England was perhaps felt to be necessary. But the foundation of the houses was soon taken away by the parliament, and their ruin followed very rapidly. The first act of parliament, stat. 27 Hen. VIII. c. 28, passed in the session which began 4 Feb. and ended 14 April 1536, granted to the king all 'such monasteries, priories, and other religious houses of monks, canons and nuns' and their property, as were not able clearly to expend above £200 a year. This act suppressed 376 of the smaller monasteries and nunneries. The 'Pilgrimage of grace,' and other risings in favour of the old form of religion in 1536 and 1537, having been put down, a new visitation was appointed 'to examine everything that related either to the conversation of the Religious or their affection to the king and the supremacy, and to discover all that was amiss in them and to report it to the lord Vicegerent.' The prospect of what this visitation might bring forth worked on the fears of the heads of some of the larger monastic bodies to induce them to surrender their foundations to the crown, while bribes and promises produced the same result in other cases. In 1539 the king procured the passing of an act of parliament (stat. 31 Hen. VIII. c. 13) not to suppress the larger monasteries, but to vest in him all such monasteries as had been surrendered since 4 Feb. 27 Hen. VIII. 1535-6, or should afterwards be surrendered. And soon the whole of these houses, even those, 'wherein, thanks be to God, religion is right well kept and observed,' (praise bestowed on some by the previous act), were induced by various means to surrender or were forfeited to the crown by the attainder of their abbots for high treason.

In the survey of the diocese of Ely of 1534 (Valor Ecclesiasticus, Cooper, Ann. i. 370) this house of the Carmelites is not mentioned, so that its value is not known, however, 'Friars were by their profession mendicants and to have no property,' (Tanner, Not. Mon. 1744. p. xxviii.): it escaped dissolution under the former act, as 'Houses of friars not being named in this act (27 H. 8. cap. 28. [Apr. 1536] for dissolving the lesser monasteries) they continued to the fall of the greater houses, and it hath been argued, that if the love of money had been the only cause of putting down the religious orders, the friars would have been spared: for except the Trinitarians and some few others, they had scarce revenues enough to keep their houses in repair.' (Tanner, Not. Mon. Catalogue of the Greater Monasteries, note h.) It may also have been spared as a place for the academic education of the English Carmelites; for in this year certain general injunctions were given on the king's behalf to all monasteries and houses of religion, one of which required the abbot or president to keep and find in some university one or two of his brothers, according to the ability and possession of the house ; who after they were learned in good and holy letters might, when they returned home, instruct and teach their brethren, and diligently teach the word of God. (Burnet, Ref. Records, Part. I. Book iv. no. 2.)

However, between the passing of the two acts the Carmelites surrendered their house to the president and fellows of Queens', by deed dated 8 Aug. 30 Hen. VIII. 1538.

Of the priors of this house, the following belonging to the last days of its history are recorded :

Andrew Barsham is mentioned as prior of the house of his order in the university when he proceeded B.D. in 1535 (Cooper, Ath. i. 57).

William Watson occurs as prior on 18 Feb. 1535-6 (Cooper, Ath. i. 162).

George Legate was prior on 12 Feb. 1536-7, and on 8 Aug. 1538 (Cooper, Ath. i. 68).

Clement Hubberd alias Thorpe, was prior or president (according to the wording of two deeds of the same date) on 28 Aug. 1538 (Cooper, Ath. i. 68).

On 8 Aug. 30 Hen. VIII. 1538, the Carmelites surrendered their house to Dr Mey president and the fellows of Queens' college by the following deed :—

Be it knowen to all men, that we George Legat prior of the house of friers Carmelites in Cambridge comonlie called the White friers and the covent of the same howse by these present writyng testifieth,

That we the prior and covent aforseid gladly ffrely and willynglie do give and graunt and surrender into the hands of the right worshipfull M^r William Mey doct^r in law civill master or president of the coledge of Seynet Margaret and Bernard comonlie called the Quenes coledge in Cambridge and to the ffelawes of the same coledge and ther successors all that owr howse and grownd called the White friers in Cambridge, with all and singular the appertinences therof and therunto belongyng. And we also by these presents do testifie that when we shalbe required therunto we shall depart from the seid

This deed has appended to it the seal of the prior.

On 17 Aug. 30 Hen. VIII. 1538, the king issued his commission to Dr George Daye provost of King's College, Dr Mey president, and Richard Wilkes and Thomas Smith, two of the fellows of Queens' College, to procure the surrender of the house of the Carmelites, then to take possession of it for the king, and to draw up a perfect inventory of all their goods, which was to be sent to him.

The king's commission is here subjoined:—

Henry the eight by the grace of God king of England and of Fraunce, defendor of the feyth, lord of Irelande, and in erth immedyately under God supreme hedd of the churche of Englande, To our trusty and welbeloved chapelains George Deye docto^r of dyvinitie provost of our colleadge of Cambridge, William Maye docto^r of the lawe maister of the Quenys Colleadge within the same town, Richard Wilkes and Thomas Smyth M^{rs} of Arts and to two of you, greeting:

Forasmuch as we understande that the house of the White friers w[']in that our towne and universitie of Cambridge remayneth at this present in suche state, as it is neyther used to the hono^r of God nor to the benefite of o^r cōmenwealth, myndyng for the conversion of it to a better purpose to take it into o^r own handes, We latt yo^u witt that having speciall trust in yo^r approved wisdoms and dexterities, We have named and appointed you that repaying unto the said howse immediatly upon the receipt hereof, ye shall receive of the prio^r ther in our name and to o^r use such sufficient writing under the convent seale of the said howse, as by yo^r discretion shalbe thought mete and covenyent for the surrendre of the same; The which surrendre so made, We wooll that ye shall take possession of the said howse, and soo to kepe the same to o^r use tyll further knowlege of o^r pleaso^r, taking a true and a perfite inventory of all the goodes of the said howse, the which o^r pleaso^r is ye shall send unto us incontynently, to thentent our further mynde maye therupon be declared unto yo^u w^t more speed and celeritie. And these o^r l^res shalbe your warraunt in this behalf. Geven under o^r privie seale at the castell of Arundell the xvijth day of August the xxxth yere of our reigne.

Thomas Cromwell.

The commissioners set to work with dexterity and celerity, and soon obtained from the friars the required writing. Ten days only elapsed between the issuing of the King's commission and the surrender of their house by the Carmelites. Of the deed of surrender, dated 28 Aug. 30 Henry VIII. 1538, two copies exist in the college treasury, varying only in some small particulars, which are noticed in the following copy of one of them:—

From this meagre inventory we must conjecture either that the Carmelites were a very poor community, which after an existence of 250 years seems hardly possible to this extent, or that they had made away with their more valuable effects before this date, seeing their destruction resolved upon.

The following extracts from the college accounts refer to the above:—

III. M. J. 1537-38, fo. 40. Item 7 Augusti [1538] m^{ris} Wylkes et Smythe pro expensis Londini in negotiis Carmelitarum per manus m^{ri} Burbank v^{li}.

In the Forinseca Receipta of 1540-1 and following years (Misc. B. fo. 39 ff.), we find the account of the different sums of money received by the college for the old building materials of the Friary. They amounted to more than £60, which afforded the college a reasonable profit on the £20 that they had paid the king. Some of the items are here given: from them we learn, that there were a church and cloister, chapter house and bell tower, hall, dormitory and kitchen.

For. Rec. 1540-41, fo. 39. b. Item (c. 2. Jan.) a m^{ro} Meeres et [Ric.] Nox pro ferro et vitro in edibus preter magnam fenestram orientalem (30s.)

On 1 April 33 Hen. VIII. 1542 the king leased the site of the Carmelite friary to William Mey, clerk, from 21 years from Michaelmas, 1541, for 13s. 4d. per ann., payable half-yearly, excepting that part of it which had been granted to the provost and fellows of King's college.

On 26 Nov. 34 Hen. VIII. 1542 William Legh gave a receipt to Dr Mey (described as chancellor to the bishop of Ely) for £20. 13s. 4d., £20 being the price of the old materials, and 13s. 4d. the rent for one year of the site of the Carmelites' house and garden.

- III. M. J. 1541-42, fo. 91. Item 22^o Martii expensæ factæ circa acquisitionem firmæ totius situs domicilii fratrum Carmelitarum collegio adjacentis x^{li}.

On 12 Sept. 36 Hen. VIII. 1544 the king did by his letters patent grant, among other things, the site of the Carmelites' house to John Eyre, of Bury, esquire. (For John Eyre see 9th and 10th reports of the deputy keeper of the Public Records.)

On 8 Nov. of the same year John Eyre sold to Dr William Mey clerk LL.D. all the site of the Carmelite friary, to be held in free soccage of the king and not in capite, and appointed Dr Thomas Smith his attorney, to give possession of the said land.

- III. M. J. 1543-44, fo. 110*. b. Item misi Londinum ad magistrum pro terra e regione collegii nuper Carmelitarum ... xxxvjs.

On 30 Nov. of the same year (1544) William Mey of Cambridge, doctor of laws, did (for a certain sum received of the president and fellows of Queens' college) grant to them the site of the Carmelites or White friars in Cambridge, which he lately bought of John Eyre, of Bury, esq., with the intent (as he adds in a memorandum of 10 Dec. on the back of the deed) that the site which he had purchased with the college money of master Eyre should be made sure unto the said college.

- III. M. J. 1544-45, fo. 121. b. Item (4 Dec.) accepit Marke Broghton pro scriptione le dedes de fratribus iij^s.
- 1546-47, fo. 148. b. Item Willelmo Harryson shryffe pro copia cujusdam brevis quod vocatur 'Distringo,' quod non certiores fecimus eos qui sunt in scaccario quando emimus terras Carmelitarum ij^s.

The following documents, referring to the Carmelites, are among the deeds of King's college :—

25 Nov. 25 H. 8 1533. Lease from the Prior and Convent of the White Friars to W. Dussing D.C.L. (fellow of King's) of a garden with a house thereon, built on the N. side of the Church of the said Friars for 12 years from Mich^s. then last.

10 July 27 H. 8 1535. Grant from the Prioress and Convent of Swaffham Bulbeck to the Provost and Scholars of King's College of a piece of ground the house of the Carmelite Friars in Cambridge and a rent of 5s. 4d. issuing thereout.

18 Feb. 27 H. 8 1535-6. Bond from John Erlich and Edw. Haynes to the Prior and Convent of the Carmelite Friars to build their wall from Mill Street to the river, by the garden purchased of the said Friars.

6 Sept. 37 [? 27] H. 8 (? 1536). Féoffment from John Erlich, M.A. to Rich. Lyne, Hy. Byssell and Roger Dalyson Masters of Arts (fellows of King's) of a parcel of ground purchased of the Carmelite Friars.

— H. 8. Petition to the King to grant letters Patent to John Erlich & Edw. Heynes.

30 June 5 E. 6 1551. Receipt from Thos. Yale, Bursar of Q. C. to the Viceprovost and Bursar of King's College for £26. 6s. 8d. in full contentation of an agreement made between the master of Queens' College and M^r. John Cheek, Esquyer, Provost of King's College, concerning a piece of ground late the garden of the Carmelite Friars.

[For. Rec. (Misc. B.) fo. 45. Recepta pro anno mⁿⁱ. Yale (1550-51).

Item ultimo die Junii recepit de collegio Regis pro muro edificando xxvj^{li}. vj^s. viij^d.]

In the library of Queens' college on the north side are five windows, the glass of which seems to have come from some part of the Carmelite convent. They are each of two lights, and are glazed with quarries of various patterns, while in the upper part of each light is inserted the head of a Carmelite friar. A narrow border of red and blue glass runs round each light. There are fragments of inscriptions inserted in the border.

When⁴ the house of the Black friars within Ludgate was surrendered into the king's hands 12 Nov. 30 Hen. VIII. 1538, the payment of £13. 6s. 8d. due to that convent under lady Joan Ingaldsthorp's composition, became due to the king and was sought to be redeemed by the college in 1542:

- III. M. J. 1541-2, fo. 90. Item primo Junii vicepræsidi eunti Londinum ad numerandum pecuniam debitam fratribus aut pro impetranda remissione solutionis ejusdem pecuniæ ... liij^s. x^d.

fo. 93. b. Item x^o Augusti D. Smyth persolventi arreragia pensionis debitæ fratribus Dñicalibus Londini xxx^{li}.

The pension continued to be paid to the Crown for many subsequent years:

- III. M. J. 1553-54, fo. 222. b. Dominae reginae pro reditu
Le fratrum..... xiiij^{li}. vi^s. viij^d.
1558-9, Dec. fo. 258. b. Domine reginae pro reditu le fratrum quat. ann. liij^{li}. vj^s. viij^d.

In September 1542 the university was assessed at £24, to provide ten soldiers to go with the duke of Norfolk, the high steward, into Scotland. King's college was assessed at £4, St John's at £3, Christ's and Queens' at £2. 6s. 8d., and the other colleges at smaller sums.

- M. J. 1541-2, fo. 91. Item 6 Septembris m^o Meerys preconi pro expensis militum comitantium ducem Norfolciæ adversus Scotos xlvj^s. viij^d.

The duke entered Scotland on 21 Oct. with 20,000 men; but as the lateness of the season forbad any long campaign, he contented himself with destroying the fruits of the harvest then just gathered in, and devastating the Border for 15 miles from the Tweed for nine days. The Scotch nobles refused to risk a battle, and when the English army retired to Berwick, they too returned to their own homes. The greater part of the English troops were soon disbanded. (Froude, Hist. of England, iv. 185, 186.)

an act was passed for paving Cambridge, ordering the street before every house to be paved by the owner of the house. Accordingly, the college paved all the roads running round the college and in front of their almshouses in Smallbridges-street, now Silver street. The accounts of this work we find in III. M. J. 1543-44, fo. 107-8. Part of the paving-stones came from the old Carmelite friary. The total expense was about £18. (Cooper, Ann. i. 409 ff.)

Dr Thomas Smith fellow of Queens' college was vice-chancellor in the year 1543-44, and during his term of office on 11 May 1544 a statute was made by the university for the due registration or matriculation of its members. (Cooper, Ann. i. 413-5.) It is from this year only that we possess any approach to a list of the students of the college, as before that time all that is known is the names of the presidents and fellows, of some of the bible-clerks, and of a few graduate members, the amount of whose college bills has now and then been entered as received by the bursar.

In 1544 the goods of the college were inventoried. (Misc. A. fo. 43 ff.)

The duke of Norfolk having been appointed to command the vanguard of the army intended to act in France, wrote to the university on Shrove Tuesday 25 Feb. 1543-4 to know how many archers on foot and how many bill-men they could furnish to serve the king. (Cooper, Ann. i. 412.) In the college accounts we find:—

III. M. J. 1543-44, fo. 110. Item m^o Mere pro militibus Academicæ xxij^s.

In the campaign of the summer of 1544 Boulogne was taken by the English, 14 Sept.

On 4 May 1544 an English army of 10,000 men, under the earl of Hertford, landed at Leith, and the next day, strengthened by 4000 horse under lord Evers, took Edinburgh. They soon returned into England, and thence the main part were transported to Calais, but a considerable body of men, under lords Evers and Wharton, remained on the border, and burnt and ravaged and plundered the Scottish territory through the summer and autumn. (Froude, iv. 321 ff. Cooper, Ann. i. 413.)

III. M. J. 1544-45. fo. 121. Item xxv^o Septembris (1544) pro vino quod habuimus quando ubique struebantur ignes pro rebus feliciter gestis in Scotia viij^d.
Item eodem tempore pro caseo cerevisia et zitho vj^d.

To meet the great expense of the war in Scotland and France, the privy council decided in Jan. 1544-5 that, instead of a war-tax, a benevolence should be levied exclusively from the richer classes. The college contributed £18.

III. M. J. 1544-45, fo. 123. b. Item 4 Marcii solvi m^{ro} Meyres bedello pro sumptibus dⁿⁱ vicecancellarii pro rata nostra portione, quum profectus est Londinum pro benevolentia quam solverunt collegia regi iij^s. viij^d.
fo. 126. Item pro benevolentia quam solvit collegium Regiæ majestati xvij^{li}.

In Feb. 1545-6, the report of the income and expenditure of the colleges was laid before the king by the three commissioners, Dr Parker, Dr Redman, and Dr Mey.

The whole is printed in 'Documents relating to the University and Colleges of Cambridge' (published by direction of the University commission, 3 Vols. 8vo, 1852), Vol. i. pp. 105-292; the part relating to Queens' college is on pp. 212-226.

The total income of the college is given as £272. 2s. 7¼^d. The president's stipend was £3. 6s. 8^d. : he had besides for his commons £3. 16s. 8^d. and was allowed £6 for his three horses. The 17 fellows in priests' orders received £6. 13s. 4^d., the fellows not priests £3. 18s., while the scholars or bible clerks had each £2. 12s. The total expenditure of the college is represented as £273. 4s. 7^d. exceeding the receipts by £1. 1s. 11¾^d. As this excess of expenditure over income was found to be the case with all the colleges except St Mary Magdalene, the King asked the commissioners the reason, and they answered 'that it rose partly of fynes for leases and indentures of the fermours renewing their lessys, partly of wood salys.' At Peterhouse the excess was nearly £50, the income being £138; in no case were the accounts so nicely balanced as at Queens' and Michaelhouse.

On 19 Dec. 1546, king Henry VIII. united King's hall,

Michael house, and Physwick hostel into one college: in the college accounts we find the following notices of the erection of the new buildings:—

- III. M. J. 1546-7, fo. 148. b. Item 7^o Aprili dedi m^{ro} Cooke pro ejus consilio quando Jacobus regis famulus cupiebat succidere nostras arbores apud Bumpstede pro structura novi collegii Trinitatis xx^d.
- Item 13 Maii pro vino pro Jacobo regis famulo tum in cubiculo præsidis tum in aula viij^d.
- Item 16^o Maji pro expensis meis et m^{ri} præsidis cum vendidimus lx arbores apud Bumpstede pro xjⁱⁱ viij^s. x^d.

Henry VIII. died 28 Jan. 1546-7, and was succeeded by his son, Edward VI.

On 13 June 1547 Mr Yale, one of the fellows, took up the charter of confirmation of 25 Nov. 2 Hen. VIII. 1510, to be confirmed by the new king. The confirmation, which recites that earlier deed, is dated 7 May 3 Edw. VI. 1549. The expenses attending this confirmation were £5. 14s.

WA. SOUTHWELL,

pro triginta solidis solutis in hanaperio.

It bears the great seal of England.

On 12 Nov. 1548 the king appointed bishops Goodrich of Ely and Ridley of London, sir William Paget, K.G. comptroller of his household, sir Thomas Smith, formerly fellow of Queens' college, one of his principal secretaries of state, sir John Cheke, his tutor, Dr William Mey, master of the requests and dean of St Paul's, and Dr Thomas Wendye, his physician, commissioners for visiting the university with power to amend and alter the statutes of the colleges. The visitation began on 6 May 1549 and ended 4 July. Queens' college was visited on 20 May, and the old statutes of 1529 were revised. In the account of the visitation in Dr Lamb's collection of documents (p. 111), we find it stated, 'on the Munday which was the xxth day thei sate at the Quenes college and made an ende and supped ther.'

The notices referring to this visitation in the college accounts are as follows:—

- III. M. J. 1548-49, fo. 173. b. Item 5 Maii m^{ro} Gascocyn pro membrana et scriptione omnium eorum qui sunt in collegio ut ostenderetur commissionariis regis ut patet per billam ejus xvj^d.
 Item pro cena commissariorum ut patet per billam ... iiij^h. xij^s. j^d.
 Item m^{ro} Rogers in regia visitatione xxiiij^s. iiij^d.
 (Part of a sum of 20 marks that the visitors ordered to be given to the registry by the university. Cooper, Ann. ii. 32.)
 1549-50, fo. 188. b. Item Weldysshe pro scriptura statutorum ij^s. viij^d.
 1551-52, fo. 207. Item D. Perne pro scriptione statutorum collegii x^s.

On 2 May 2 Edw. VI. 1548 the hostel of St Nicholas, in the parish of St Andrew without Barnwell gates, was sold for £40 to John Mere.

Among the divines who assisted in the compilation of the 'Order of the Communion' of 1548, and the first Prayer book of Edward VI. (1549), we find besides Dr Mey, the president, two members of Queens' college, viz. Dr Simon Heynes, the late president, now dean of Exeter, and Dr John Taylor, formerly fellow of Queens' and (since 1538) master of St John's college, and afterwards bishop of Lincoln.

The commissioners who brought out the second Prayer book of Edward VI. (1552) seem not to be known.

EDWARD VI. died 6 July, 1553. The lady Mary was on her way from Hunsdon Hertfordshire to London, to attend her dying brother, but hearing of his death and the proclamation of lady Jane Grey, she turned back and went first to Sawston Cambridgeshire, and then to Kenninghall Norfolk, where the nobility and gentry of the eastern counties gathered themselves round her. The opposition which the council at first intended to make to Mary's accession soon seemed hopeless, and they accordingly yielded, and she was proclaimed queen at London on 19 July, and at Cambridge the day after.

The queen reached London 3 Aug., and immediately released Stephen Gardiner bishop of Winchester, and Thomas duke of Norfolk, who soon afterwards resumed their old offices in the university, the former as chancellor, the latter as high steward. On 13 Aug. the university sent Gardiner a letter of congratulation, in which they deeply deplored the proceedings of the last reign, and begged him to undo all that had been done by the reforming party. The answer was not long in coming. On 20 Aug. the queen sent a letter to the chancellor and the heads of houses, directing them to restore the ancient statutes both of the university and the colleges.

The chancellor, unable himself to go to Cambridge, deputed his chaplain Thomas Watson (afterwards bishop of Lincoln) to act on his behalf. Accordingly, Mr Watson visited Queens' college about 28 Aug. The records of this visitation do not seem to exist; but about 30 Aug. Mr J. Stokes, the vice-president, and Mr Bernard, were sent by the society to the president to inquire about the old statutes of 1529.

III. M. J. 1552-53, fo. 216. Item [c. 28 Aug.] in vino zitho et aliis rebus quando m^r Watson cum assessoribus suis visitabat collegium pro summo nostro cancellario xiiij^d.

Item [c. 30 Aug.] in expensis magistrorum Stokes propresidis et Bernard equitantium ad magistrum quando a sociis mittebantur ad perquirenda antiqua statuta collegii ut patet xxviiij^s. iij^d.

Dr Mey was then at London, as on 27 Aug. he (together with archbishop Cranmer and sir Thomas Smith) was brought before the queen's commissioners in the consistory of St Paul's. (Strype, Life of Cranmer, B. iii. ch. 1, Life of sir Th. Smith, ch. vi.) It is of the result of this interview probably that bishop Bonner wrote on 6 Sept., the day after his restoration to his bishopric, whence he had been expelled in the previous reign, 'This day is looked that Mr Canterbury must be placed where is meet for him; he is become very humble and ready to submit himself in all things, but that will not serve; in the same predicament is Dr Smith my friend and the dean of St Pauls [Dr Mey] with others.' (Burnet, Hist. Ref. Part ii. B. ii. Records, No. 7.)

The public use of the Latin mass was restored very soon after Mary's accession, and altars were set up again 'faster than ever they were put down.' By 1 Sept. 'all the altares at Poules are up and all the oulde service sayd in Latin and almoste throughoute London the same.' And a letter of 8 Sept. says, 'Heare is no newese but candelsticks, books, bells, censores, crosses and pixes... The high aulter in Poules church is up again elevated 5 or 6 steps above the nayve; but for makeinge haste the worke fell. I hope it wilbe a token of some ill chaunce to come again, which God send quickly.' (MS. Harl. 353, fo. 143, Fox, ed. Townsend, vi. 767.)

In Cambridge the mass was celebrated again in September, and till 20 Dec. the old and new service-books were used by different clergymen according to their several tendencies; but from that date such divine service, as was commonly used in the last year of Henry VIII., and none other, was (by 1 Mariæ, stat. 2, c. 3, which repealed nearly all the reforming statutes of Edward VI.) to be used.

Towards the end of 1553 Dr Mey vacated the presidentship, but whether he did so voluntarily, or whether (like Dr Aynsworth of Peterhouse) he was deprived by the chancellor for being married, does not appear.

His deanery was not filled up till 10 March, 1553-4, when John de Feckenham was appointed dean. On his removal (Nov. 1556) to be abbot of Westminster, he was succeeded by Dr Henry Cole, who was elected 11 December.

HE college account books furnish us with the following items belonging to this presidentship:—

III. M. J. 1537-38, fo. 37. b. Item 20 Octobris (1537) famulo regis pro munere nunciandi principis Edwardi natalem diem...iij^s. iv^d.

Item 21 Aprilis Georgeo Ray pro ferramento lato affixo solaro per sacellum per manus m^{ri} Smythe xviii^d.

Thomas Smith was elected fellow of Queens' college on 25 Jan. 1529-30, and soon became one of the leaders of the revival of learning in the university. In 1533, in which year he commenced M.A., he was appointed by the university to read the Greek lecture; in 1538 he was chosen public orator, and in 1540 appointed the first regius professor of civil law. 'His oratory and learning intermixed was so admirable, and beyond the common strain, that Queens' college carried away the glory for eloquence from all the colleges besides and was rendered so famous by this her scholar, that it had like to have changed her name from Queens' to Smith's college.

‡. William Glynn.

5 Dec. 1553—c. Oct. 1557.

1 Mariæ—4 et 5 Ph. et Mar.

It has been already stated, that on the revival of the old forms and doctrines of religion the presidency of Queens' college became vacant: the post was soon filled up by the election of Dr William Glynn.

He was the son of John Glynn of Glynn in the commot of Maltraeth in Heneglwys Anglesey (who is said to have been rector of Heneglwys), by Joannet daughter of Meredith ap Gwilim, and was born about the year 1504, according to the date on his monument in Bangor cathedral. In Fox's Acts and Monuments (ed. Townsend), vi. 212, he is described as being of the age of 41 years in 1551: however, the ages of other persons examined at that time concerning Stephen Gardiner bishop of Winchester, as given by Fox, differ much from the dates received in Cooper's Athenæ Cantabrigienses: though in this case the date of his first degree seems to support the statement of Fox. He was B.A. 1526-7, M.A. 1530. In 1530 he was elected fellow of Queens' college, was junior bursar in 1532-33, senior bursar in 1533-34, and dean in 1539-40.

He proceeded B.D. in 1538, and commenced D.D. in 1544, about which time he was elected lady Margaret's professor of divinity, vacating his fellowship about May 1544.

On the foundation of Trinity college, 19 Dec. 1546, he was appointed a fellow, and became the first vice-master. Under Edward VI. he was inhibited from acting as lady Margaret's professor, and in June 1549 resigned this office. In that month he took a leading part in the dispute on the Holy Eucharist, held at Cambridge before the royal commissioners for the visitation of the university (Fox, Acts, ed. Townsend, vi. 305-335). Though he here took the roman catholic side of the arguments, yet he seems to have conformed to the alterations in religion, as on 7 March 1549-50, he was, in succession to another fellow of Queens' Bernard Sandiforth who resigned, instituted to the rectory of St Martin Ludgate London, on the presentation of Thomas Thirlby bishop of Westminster (which preferment he resigned before 22 May, 1553), and to that of Heneglwys on 3 Feb. 1551-2. He was also rector of Rhoscolyn near Holyhead. (Newcourt, Rep., Rowland, Mona antiqua, 374.)

In 1551 he was chaplain to Dr Thirlby, who was then bishop of Norwich.

The date of his election to the presidentship of Queens' college is approximately fixed by the following extract from the bursar's accounts:—

III. M. J. 1553-54, fo. 219. b. (Dec. 1553). Billa expensi facti per magistros Bewmont et Yale Londinum proficiscentes ad D. Glynn in presidem collegii noviter electum lijs. ix^d.

In Dr Walker's MS. copy of the statutes the date of Dr Mey's ceasing to be president and Dr Glynn's election, is given as 5 December; the date is probably correct, and seems to shew that Mey was deprived. It was in December also that Dr Parker was constrained to resign the mastership of Corpus Christi college.

Gulielmus Maie legum doctor fuit nonus Presidens per annos 14, viz. ab anno Dom: 1539 usque ad annum 1553, i. e. ab anno 30^o Henr: oct: usque ad primum Mariæ et quint: decembris.

Gulielmus Glyn sacræ theologiæ professor et Episcopus Bangoriensis fuit decimus presidens per annos tres, viz: ab anno Dom: 1553 et 5^o decembr. usque ad annum 1556 et 16 Novemb. i.e. ab anno 1^{mo} Mariæ usque ad 4. ejusdem. (MS. Walker, fo. 93. b. 94.)

This account was written 7 May 1565.

DR Glyn was one of the six delegates who were sent by the university of Cambridge to Oxford to assist at the disputation held there 16-20 Apr. 1554 with archbishop Cranmer and bishops Ridley and Latimer (Fox's Acts and Mon. ed. Townsend, vi. 439 ff.). The following grace appointing them was passed 7 April 1554, by the senate:—

Conceditur ut Dominus Procan., Doctores Glyn, Atkynson, Scot, Watson et Mr Segiswick vestro nomine Oxoniam proficiscantur ad propugnandam veram et catholicam fidem et contrariam doctrinam impugnandam, et literæ ea de re ad Oxonienses conscriptæ sigillo vestro communi consignentur.

On this visit to Oxford he was incorporated D.D. there.

Though an old friend of bishop Ridley he is described as having behaved very contumeliously towards him. 'After this,' says Fox (vi. 491), 'Dr Glyn began to reason, who (notwithstanding master Ridley had always taken him for his old friend,) made a very contumelious preface against him. This preface master Ridley therefore took the more to heart, because it proceeded from him. Howbeit he thought, that Dr Glyn's mind was to serve the turn; for afterwards he came to the house wherein master Ridley was kept, and, as far as master Ridley could call to remembrance, before Dr Young (the vicechancellor of the university of Cambridge) and Dr Oglethorp, he desired him to pardon his words. The which master Ridley did even from the very heart, and wished earnestly that God would give not only to him but unto all others the true and evident knowledge of God's evangelical sincerity, that, all offences put apart, they being perfectly and fully reconciled might agree and meet together in the house of the heavenly Father.' Glyn's words were these: 'I see that you elude or shift away all scriptures and fathers: I will go to work with you after another sort:—Christ hath here his church known in earth, of which you were once a child, though you now speak contumeliously of the sacraments.’ To this the bishop replied: ‘This is a grievous contumely, that you call me a shifter-away of the scripture and of the doctors. As touching the sacraments I never yet spake contumeliously of them...’

Dr Glynn took no part in the disputations with Cranmer and Latimer, and but a very small one in that with Ridley.

He was chosen vice-chancellor of the university of Cambridge for the year 1554-55, but only served part of his term of office, being sent in Feb. 1554-5, to Rome with bishop Thirlby of Ely, Anthony Browne, viscount Montacute, sir Edward Carne, and others, on an embassy to the Pope, to make the queen’s obedience to his holiness, and to obtain a confirmation of all those graces, which cardinal Pole had granted in his name. They arrived there 24 May, and returning, reached London 24 August. The journal of this embassy is printed in Hardwicke, State Papers, i. 62—102. (Strype Mem. Vol. iii. (Mary) ch. xxviii. p. 227.)

In the same year he was elected bishop of Bangor, and was consecrated 8 Sept. 1555 at London House by Edmund Bonner bishop of London, Thomas Thirlby bishop of Ely, and Maurice Griffin bishop of Rochester, and received the temporalities 25 September.

On 15 Aug. 1557, he assisted at the consecration of bishops David Pole of Peterborough, and Thomas Watson of Lincoln. (Strype, Mem. Vol. iii. (Mary), ch. li. p. 390.)

When he ceased to be president is stated in Dr Walker’s copy of the statutes to have been 15 Nov. 1556; but this must be wrong, as we find him mentioned as president in Dec. of that year (p. 253).

He is also mentioned as bishop and president on 3 Feb. 1556-7, in the return of the college property of that date.

No reason is given for his vacating his office, which he did in 1557 after 1 Sept. and before 1 Dec.: his bishopric can hardly have been the cause, as we find John Christopherson, master of Trinity college, consecrated bishop of Chichester 21 Nov. 1557, and yet retaining the mastership, from which he was only dispossessed by the return of his predecessor, Dr W. Bill; bishop Ridley also retained the mastership of Pembroke college, till he was deprived in the beginning of queen Mary's reign.

He is mentioned as bishop but not as president in Oct. 1557:

III. M. J. 1557-8, fo. 248 b. [Oct.] Imprimis pro itinere Ottes ad episcopum Bangoriensem xl^s.

Item ei pro pane equino ij^d.

At this time he was probably in Wales, as he held a diocesan synod at Bangor on 4 Nov. 1557.

Dr Glynn died 21 May 1558, and was buried in his cathedral on the north side of the choir in the place where the Easter sepulchre used to stand. His tomb has the following inscription on a brass plate:

Gulielmus Glyn natus in insula Mona, Cantebrieg. Doctor Theologiae, episcopus Bangor, Romam vidit, concionator egregius, sua lingua valde doctus. Vixit integerrime annos 54. Moritur anno 1558 et Regni Mariæ quinti. Duw adigon.

(Browne Willis Bangor Cathedral (London, 1721, 8^o), p. 30.)

In Thomæ Caii Vindicie Antiquitatis Academicæ Oxoniensis published by Th. Hearne, Oxf. 1730, we find (Vol. ii. pp. 647—650,) the following account of the bishop from the pen of his successor bishop Humphreys:—

Papers original MSS. sent by Bp. Humphreys, then of Bangor, to Mr. A. Wood, now in the hands of the Reverend Dr. Kennet, Bp. of Peterborough.

William Glyn the Bishop was the Son of John Glyn, Rector of Heneglwys in Anglesey (descended paternally from Eneonap Gwalchmay) and of Joanett the daughter of Meredyth ap Gwilim. This John Glyn, who himself was the Son of one Sr. Griffith ap Evan ap Tudur a Priest, had a great many children by severall women (of which I conceive, John Glyn the Dean of Bangor to be one, tho' I am not not certain of it) but he names many of them in his last Will (which is dated Junii 6^{to} 1534.) as Geffrey Glyn (after LL.D. founder of the free School at Bangor), David Glyn, Hugh Glyn, Owen Glyn (afterwards M.D.) and two Daughters, and makes his Son William Glyn then A.M. his Executor and Overseer. 1551. Febr. 3. this William Glyn then D.D. was instituted to Heneglwys (his Father's Preferment, but a very mean one, scarce worth 40 lib. per an̄. at this day). We have no more of him in our Register, till his being made Bishop. But in Fox Vol. 3. in 1554, you find he was one of them, that disputed with Bp. Ridley at Cambridge [at Oxford] and thò he was Ridley's old Friend, yet made a contumelious Preface against him, which Bp. Ridley took ill, and for which Glyn afterwards begg'd pardon.

After the See of Bangor had continued void near 3. years (from Bp. Bulkeley's death) 1555. Sept. 8. William Glyn S.T.P. was consecrated Bishop. Upon his first coming to Bangor, he held there a Diocesan Synod or Convocation, which began on Munday next after Trinity Sunday 1556. and wherein after a Solemn Procession, and the Masse of the Holy Ghost, he preached, and then ordered the Decrees and Canons of the last Provinciaall and Legatine Synod to be read, and admonished the Clergy to obey them. I suppose, these were Cardinal Pool's Decrees and Canons which passt in the Convocation that began Nov. 2. 1555. and are inserted in the 14th. Vol. of the Councils (Edit. Labbe) Fol. 1733. Then was read the Pope's Bull of plenary Indulgence, and a Mandate from the Bishop of London (Bonner) to observe the Contents. After this, and Conference with the Clergy about severall matters relating to the public State of the Diocese: It was unanimously decreed, there should be two Diocesan Synods at Bangor every year; one the next Court day post Festum Omnium Sanctorum; the other next Court day after Dominicam in Albis, at which all the Clergy in the Diocese were to be present, to appear in their Surplices for Procession, and to bring their Boxes, to have consecrated Oyle for the Chrisme. And lastly the Clergy presented the Bishop with a Benevolence of 100. Marks, according to the antient and laudable custome of the said Diocese, upon the coming of a new Bishop.

At the next Diocesan Synod, held at Bangor Nov. 4. the same year, he ordered the aforesaid Decrees of the Legatine Synod to be read again, and strictly admonished the Clergy to observe them, under the Penalties therein contained.

At another Diocesan Synod at Bangor Nov. 4. 1557 he monished the Clergy to pay their Arrears of Subsidies, to exhibite Terriers and Inventaries of their Church goods by the next Synod, under pain of Deprivation, and enjoyned Residence and Hospitality. He was a zealous Papist, but no Persecutor, that I can finde. On the contrary, tho' he deprived many of the married Clergy, he generally gave them some other Living instead of that, they were deprived of, and often permitted them to exchange.

1558. 21 die Maii, dictus Reverendus Pater Willimius, Episcopus Bangor, summo diluculo, diem claudebat extremum, sedit annis duobus, mensibus octo, et diebus tredecim. He was buried before the High Altar, and hath this Inscription on his Grave.

Duw a Digon.

His arms were: Barry of 6, Arg. and Az. three sea-horses naiant Or, two and one.

Fuller (Worthies of Anglesea) gives bishop Glynn the following character: 'An excellent scholar, and as I have been assured by judicious persons, who have seriously perused the solemn disputations (printed in Master Fox) betwixt the Papists and Protestants, that of the former none pressed his arguments with more strength and less passion than Doctor Glynn: though constant to his own, he was not cruel to opposite judgments, as appeareth by the appearing of no persecution in his diocese; and his mild nature must be allowed to be at least causa socia or the fellow cause thereof.'

N consequence of the restoration of the roman catholic religion the statutes of 1529 were again put in force and many other changes took place in the college. Those concerning the chapel will be found under that head: some others are here given from the bursars' account books.

In 1548 during Dr Parker's vice-chancellorship, the university had sold their great silver processional cross, weighing 336 oz., for £92. 13s. On 4 April 1554, the chancellor bishop Gardiner wrote to them, stating that he had willed master Yonge the vice-chancellor to provide a seemly cross of silver, to be used in their processions among them as in times past; it cost £30. 0s. 8*d.*, towards which Trinity college contributed £5. 6s. 8*d.*, King's college £4, St John's college £3. 4s., Christ's college £2. 15s., and the other houses smaller sums than the share of Queens' college. Mary was married 25 July, 1554, to Philip, prince of Spain and king of Naples; the event was thus celebrated at Queens':—

In 1555, at the instance of bishop Gardiner, the university imposed on all graduates the subscription to certain articles, affirming the leading doctrines of the mediæval church. The names of the greater part of the fellows of Queens' college are in the list of subscribers given in Dr Lamb's Cambridge Docu- ments, 175, 176. It includes Thomas Yale afterwards dean of the arches to archbishop Parker (Cooper, Ath. i. 379, 566), Nicholas Robinson afterwards bishop of Bangor (Cooper, i. 503), John Mey brother of the late president and afterwards bishop of Carlisle (Cooper, ii. 233, 549), John Josselyn afterwards archbishop Parker's secretary (Cooper, ii. 366), Richard Worme afterwards counsellor and solicitor to the dean and chapter of Peterborough (Cooper, ii. 50, 544), and William Harward, who played a somewhat conspicuous part in the visitation of 1556-7, but afterwards was made canon of Windsor (Cooper, ii. 51, 544).

DURING the months of January and February, 1556-7, a general visitation of the university and colleges took place under the authority of the chancellor cardinal Pole as the pope's legate. In Dec. the chancellor cited all graduates to appear before the visitors at St Mary's church on 11 Jan. and this citation was made known to all persons concerned by the vicechancellor Dr Perne. (Cooper, Ann. ii. 112.) The visitation was accordingly opened on that day at King's college chapel with mass of the Holy Ghost, and a Latin sermon at St Mary's against heresies and heretics, by Thomas Peacock, B.D., afterwards president of Queens' college. The trial and condemnation of Martin Bucer and Paul Fagius lasted from 12 Jan. to 1 Feb. Burning their remains and a cartload of heretical books in the market-place, reconciling Great St Mary's church, and a procession with the Eucharistic bread, occupied the 6th, 7th, and 8th of February; and on the 16 Feb. the new statutes were promulgated after mass at St Mary's, and the next day the visitors left the university. The visitation of the colleges went on meanwhile, beginning at King's college on 14 Jan.

Dr Glynn was not present at the visitation, although the college had informed him of the arrival of the visitors, as on 13 Feb. the visitors mention 'the absence of the master.'

The proceedings at Queens' college are thus described in John Mere's diary (MS. Parker cvi. Art. 330; Dr Lamb, Camb. Doc. 184 ff.): the expression 'the president' there used means (as it often does) the vice-president, John Dale:—

xviii Januar. On Monday as before with some snow. It. the visyters came to the Quenes college di. houre before vij, and in the gate howse a forme sett with carpet and cussshyns, where first the president receyved them with holy water and sensinge in a cope, and all the company in surplesses with crosses and candlestycks. After that thei went to the chapell processionaliter and had masse of the Holy Gost songe, which don they sitting styll in the stalles the president delivered the certificat of all the companyes names and I called them, and then thei wente upp to the awlter and so to the vestrye perusinge all thinge as they did at the kings college. Then thei wente to the master's lodgyngs and there sate in examination untill x, at what tyme the Vic. came and fet them to S. Maryes, but Dr Thomas Watson the bishop of Lincoln, and Dr Cole provost of Eton and dean of St Pauls, two of the visitors, remayned styll at the Quenes college and there dyned and continued tyll affter iiij of the clocke.

The following account of this dinner is taken from Fox's Acts and Monuments (ed. Townsend), viii. 273 (see App. p. 769):—

The commissioners (for they were marvellous conscionable men in all their doings) had great regard of the expenses of every college where they should make inquisition. Wherefore, to the intent that none of them should stretch their liberality beyond measure, or above their power, they gave charge at the beginning, that there should not in any place be prepared for their repast above three kinds of meat at the most... Thereupon when they came to Queenes college the 18th day to sit upon inquiry, and one capon chanced to be served to the table more than was prescribed by the order taken, they thrust it away in great displeasure. These thriving men, that were so sore moved for the preparing of one capon, within little more than one month, beside their private refections, wasted in their daily diet well nigh a hundred pounds (£82. 10s. 4d.) of the common charges of the colleges, so that the university may worthily allege against them this saying of our Saviour, 'Woe unto you that strain out a gnat and swallow up a camel.'

Of the further proceedings at Queens' we find the following particulars in Mere's diary:—

xx Jan...It. M^{rs}. Cosyn, Morley, both the proctors, Gwyn, Bronstead and I supped with M^r Yale at the Q. Coll.

Cardynalles grace, under payne of bothe frustratyng the election and losinge ther voices for after, and thereof syr Baley and I were called and taken as wytnesses, and the visitors willed the company to be good to W. Lamas the cooke and to give that the statute apoynted hym.

xiv. Februar....It. M^{rs}. Dale and Yale willed me to deliver to the Datarye in the name of the felows a byll with these names: M^{rs}. Shaw, Ketleston and syrs Robinson, Brysko and Newell, whom thei meant to chose fellowes of ther howse.

Of these only John Newell was elected fellow about Mich. 1557: he died however in about 18 days.

Primo Martii. It. The Quenes college entered questions.

The visitors investigated the way in which the statutes of 1529, (which had been brought back in the previous November,) had been observed by the society. The answers of the fellows to the questions put by the visitors have been preserved. They are here transcribed from MS. Parker, cxviii. p. 395—400, where however the paper containing them stands in the midst of documents belonging to the year 1559:—

Collegium Reginale, prima inquisitio

It would seem that John Josselyn and Richard Longworth afterwards master of St John's college (Cooper, Ath. i. 399), were expelled by the visitors. Nicholas Robinson, John Mey, and John Igulden took priest's orders in the course of the year.

In Fox's Acts and Mon. (viii. 274) we find the following, referring to this visitation:—

As Ormanet the pope's datary was sitting at Trinity college, John Dale one of Queens' college came to him whom he had commanded before to bring with him the pix, wherein the bishop of Rome's god of bread was wont to be enclosed. For Ormanet told them he had a precious jewel, the same was a linen clout that the pope had consecrated with his own hands, which he promised to bestow on them for a gift. But Dale misunderstanding Ormanet, instead of the pix brought a chalice and a singing cake called the host, which he wrapt up and put in his bosom. When he was come Ormanet spake him courteously, demanding if he had brought him the thing he sent him for: to whom he answered he had brought it: "then give it me" (quoth he): Dale pulled out the chalice and the singing cake. When Ormanet saw that, he stepped somewhat back, as it had been in a wonder, calling him blockhead and little better than a madman, demanding what he meant by those things, saying he willed him to bring none of that gear, and that he was unworthy to enjoy so high a benefit: yet notwithstanding for as much as he had promised before to give it them, he would perform his promise. Whereupon with great reverence he pulled out the linen cloth and laid it in the chalice and the bread with it, commanding them, both for the holiness of the thing, and also for the author of it, to keep it among them with such due reverence as belonged to so holy a relic.

The visitors of the university 'sent out a commandment that the master of every college by the advice of his house should cause to be put in writing, how much every house had of ready money, how much of yearly revenues, how much thereof had been bestowed about necessary uses of the college, how much went to the stipends of the fellows, and the daily diet of the house, how much was allowed for other extraordinary expenses, how much remained from year to year, what was done with the overplus, with a due account of all things belonging to that purpose.' (Cooper, Ann. ii. 120-1.) The date of this decree was 11 Jan. 3 & 4 Phil. et Mar. 1556-7. The return from Queens' is still preserved in the college, and is dated 3 Feb. 1556 (i. e. 1556-7).

In 1557 pope Paul IV., out of dislike to cardinal Pole, recalled him to Rome, and on 14 June appointed a Franciscan, William Peyto, who had been (1506-11) fellow of Queens' and whom the pope had formerly known at Rome, Legate a latere of England and Ireland. The queen fearing the result of the appointment of a mendicant friar of great age, and who 'had neither birth, nor abilities, nor a reputation equal to the post he was designed for, especially after such a predecessor, kept the papal decree in her possession, and the whole affair a secret to Peyto, who never exercised the functions of the position to which he had been nominated. The queen remonstrated with the pope, and either he gave way and reinstated cardinal Pole or the negotiations were not finished when Mary died.' (Th. Phillips, Life of Pole, ii. 184—204.)

The queen being in want of money issued commissions for raising money by way of loan; the university on being summoned by the commissioners for the county of Cambridge, on 8 Oct. to appear before them, complained to the privy council and obtained an order to the commissioners 'to forbear to meddle' with the university or any person or member of the same. (Strype, Eccl. Mem. iii. ch. 55.)

The following items in the college accounts probably refer to this:—

¶ Thomas Pecoche.

... Oct. 1557.—c. May 1559.

4 et 5 Ph. et Mar.—1 Eliz.

HE next president was Thomas Pecoche. He was a native of Cambridge, and probably son of Thomas Pecoche, burgess of that town, whose will (dated 1528, and proved in the court of the archdeacon of Ely in 1541) contains the following clause: 'Item I bequethe to my sone Thomas Pecoche x^{li} to be payd to hym at xx^{ti} yeres of age, yf that he be a mane of the world, and yf that he wyl be prieste, yt to be payd to hym when the same day that he schall syng hys fyrste masse.'

He was admitted fellow of St John's in the 25th year of Henry VIII. (22 Apr. 1533—21 Apr. 1534), took the degree of B.A. in 1533-4, and commenced M.A. 1537. He was afterwards chantry priest in St Lawrence's church in Ipswich, and rector of Naeton Suffolk.

On 23 Apr. 1554, he was installed a canon of Norwich, in which year also he proceeded B.D. His name is subscribed to the Roman Catholic articles of 1555. He was one of the chaplains of Thirlby bishop of Ely, and as such was present at Ely when Wolsey and Pigot were condemned to be burnt for heresy 9 Oct. 1555.

On 25 Oct. 1555 the bishop collated him to the rectory of Downham in the isle of Ely, and on 30 Nov. 1556 to a canonry

(7th stall) in the church of Ely, for which he had exchanged his canonry at Norwich. (Bentham, Ely, 260.)

At the visitation of the university in January 1556-7, Mr Pecoche preached the opening sermon ad Clerum on 11 Jan. in St Mary's church before the whole university and the visitors, inveighing against heresies and heretics, as Bilney, Latimer, Cranmer, Ridley, &c. The service itself, 'a masse of the Holy Ghost,' had been previously sung in King's college chapel, as on account of the interdict divine service could not be performed in the university church.

Mr Pecoche is mentioned among the contributors towards 'the lone to y^e queene 1557' in MS. Parker cvi. 339.

It is uncertain how he became president of Queens' college, whether by free election or otherwise. The exact date is also uncertain. The list of presidents in Dr Walker's MS. copy of the statutes (written 7 May 1565) puts his election on 23 Nov. 1556, bishop Glynn's resignation being put on 16 Nov. 'Thomas Pecoche sacrae Theologiæ baccal: fuit undecimus præsidens per annos...viz: ab anno dom: 1556 et 23 Nov: usque ad annum 1559 Julii primo. ab anno 4 Mariæ usque ad 1^{am} Elizabethæ.' These dates are wrong, as appears from the following item in the bursars' accounts already quoted:

III. M. J. 1556-57, fo. 243 [December 1556]. Ejus expensa qui proficiscebatur ad magistrum nostrum episcopum Bangoriensem significandi gratia visitatorum adventum xxiiijs. ij^d.

The date is approximately given by two leases, one of which is dated 1 Sept. 4 et 5 Phil. et Mar. [1557] granted during the mastership of Bishop Wm. Glynn, the other being dated 1 Dec. 4 et 5 Phil. et Mar. [1557] during that of Mr Pecoche: so that Mr Pecoche became president in the autumn of 1557. (II Lease-book 1530-1613, pp. 28, 30.)

III. M. J. 1557-58, fo. 249 [Oct.]. Item pro expensis mri Stokes equitantis pro mro..... iiijs.

Towards the end of the reign of queen Mary, bishop Thirlby of Ely presented Thomas Pecoche to the rectory of Barley Herts. The date of institution is given by Newcourt (i. 798-800) as 31 Jan. 1558. He resigned this living, and his successor, Thomas Dobyson, M. A., was instituted, according to the same authority, on 7 March 1559. As however the latter was instituted by bishop Grindal, who was not consecrated till 21 Dec. 1559, in succession to Bonner, who was displaced 30 May 1559, the date of that event must really be 7 March 1559-60. So that Mr Pecocke was instituted to the rectory of Barley on 31 Jan. 1558-9, and resigned it before 7 March 1559-60.

On 17 Nov. 1558, queen Mary died, and queen Elizabeth ascended the throne :

III. M. J. 1558-59, fo. 258. a. Expensæ pyræ in proclamatione reginæ ijj^s. ij^d.

In consequence of the changes in religion which soon afterwards followed (the act of uniformity coming into operation on 24 June 1559), Mr Pecocke lost all his preferments. He resigned the presidentship not long after 5 May 1559. From that time lived in retirement.

On his resignation the college made him a present :

III. M. J. 1558-59, fo. 260. b. [June] M^ro Pecoke ex consensu mri et sociorum iiijⁿ.

On 1 May 1563, he gave to the churchwardens of Trinity parish in Cambridge (in which he appears to have been born), and their successors, an annuity of 20s., payable out of the messuage or inn called the Crane.

On 23 Oct. 1581, he gave £20 to the corporation of Cambridge, they covenanting to distribute 16*d.* a month among the prisoners in the Tolbooth. No notice of him later than this has been found. (Cooper, Ann. ii. 388, Athenæ, i. 460.)

His arms were: Or a chevron gu. between three peacocks heads erased Az.

WE will now turn to the events of Mr Pecocke's short presidentship, and the dispute which arose between him and part of the fellows respecting an election to the then vacant fellowships.

The society of Queens' college was divided into two parties, the one holding with the master, the minority being opposed to him, and claiming to favour the reformed opinions. Among the former it is surprising to find John Mey, the brother of the late president Dr William Mey. The exact circumstances of the dispute have not come down to us. It would seem that the minority was opposed to the election of three bachelors of arts of that year as fellows, John Hendmare or Hyndmer, B.A. (Cooper, Ath. i. 180. matr. Nov. 1552) who was already fellow of Christ's college, John Welles, B.A. of Pembroke hall (Cooper, i. 284?), and Edward Harnesse, B.A. of St John's college. Both parties wrote to sir William Cecil the chancellor of the university, and certain persons, apparently John Dale, William Harwarde the senior bursar, and George Gardiner, were deputed by the president to go to London and explain the case to him, and lay a copy of the college statutes before him.

Cecil, who as secretary of state resided at London, not feeling able to do even justice at so great a distance from Cambridge, wrote to Pecocke, directing him to proceed no further in the election or admission to fellowships until he should have decided what course to pursue, and deputed Dr Pory the vicechancellor and master of Corpus Christi college, Dr Parker afterwards archbishop of Canterbury and Mr Edward Leedes afterwards master of Clare hall (Cooper, Ath. i. 320, 327, ii. 65) to investigate the complaints, and adjudicate between the two parties. The commissioners seem to have been satisfied with two of the recently elected fellows, and Cecil wrote to Pecocke authorizing him to admit them, although they are mentioned as having been admitted by him at the time of the election. John Hendmare only appears among the 'socii non sacerdotes' for the year Michaelmas 1558-59, while Edward Harnesse continued fellow till about Michaelmas 1560, and John Welles till about January 1563-4.

The MS. Parker cxviii. in the library of Corpus Christi college Cambridge contains (pp. 335-415) a set of documents referring to this subject including the copy of the statutes which had been sent up to Cecil; from the Public Record Office in London another set (Elizabeth, Domestic series, vol. iii. no. 29-31, 36-38. Lemon, Cal. 1547-80, pp. 125-6) has been obtained; these two sets are here arranged in proper order.

Facit incredibilis humanitas tua, illustrissime Vir, æquitas, prudentia, amor in omnes nos, ut quem communem patronum cuncta Academia communi iudicio adoptarit, eum nobis dari iudicem in causa quadam nostra sic vehementer lætemur ut disceptatorem alium aut arbitrum si optaremus non haberemus. Sed accidit perincommodum ut hoc præsertim tempore gravissimas tuas occupationes interpellare cogere mur, qui enim assiduis de summa Republica deliberationibus distineris, veremur ut possis aliquid tribuere temporis nostris controversiis. Quare rem omnem et causam brevi complectemur, et quæ præterea sunt dicenda, qui has ad te literas perferunt, coram explicabunt. Præsident (sic enim appellatur a nobis, qui gubernat, et regit domum nostram) quum non ita pridem advocarat omnes socios, communicaratque nobiscum de conquirendis et seligendis adolescentibus quos in socios cooptare poteramus; visum est nobis omnibus rectissimum, et e re nostra publica magnopere fore, ut hoc potissimum tempus præfinitum huic haberemus negotio. Est equidem jam aliqua copia et delectus adolescentium, consequuntur enim (ut fortasse meministi) his proximis diebus infimum apud nos doctrinæ gradum juvenes, quibus fere supplentur inanes in collegiis loci. Quum ventum ad locum et pene ad suffragia esset, presidensque recitaret eorum nomina qui peterent, succlamatum est a nonnullis nostris, jura et domesticas leges violari, si de iis qui nominarentur quispiam in numerum nostrum adscriberetur, et nisi sacerdotes, ut se res tum haberet, per statuta neminem legi potuisse. Sed cum et præsidens ipse et nos etiam id non vere sed calumniandi animo dictum videremus, eosque quorum nomina pronunciarentur et jure et more institutoque majorum et privatis legibus, beneficio nostro et suffragatione frui potuisse constaret, non sensimus committendum ut propter eos qui offendebantur sine causa repudiaremus (præsertim in tam orba Academia) adolescentes et indole et doctrina præstantes. Illi quum non proficerent, injustis querimoniis se tum appellare certis verbis, et ad tuam auctoritatem confugere professi sunt. Nos ut ceperamus progressi sumus, et quosdam in numerum sociorum nos-

tem invigilas, non perturbavisset hoc tempore (Vir honorate) si vel scelere caruisset reticentia nostra, vel tam honorarium arbitrum nanscisci potuissemus, qui aut propter auctoritatem valeret, aut propter charitatem vellet, hominum in bonarum litterarum studiis delitescentium controversias æquo jure tollere. Cujus æquitatis certissima spe cum universa adducta Academia se suosque et omnem politionem litteraturam tibi commendavit, tum etiam nos quasi parentis vestigiis insistentes, Reginei collegii alumni, iniquo presidentis et intollerabili sociorum quorundam dominatu ad collegii calamitatem et perniciem pressi, ad Dominationem tuam, ne prorsus obruamur, confugimus, qui violentiæ injurias et sensimus sæpe et pertulimus moderate, dum aliqua vel specula illuxerat emendationis vitæ in illis, quos vel Religio ad pietatem, vel fides ad officium revocare debuit. Verum cum omnem quam statutis collegii debuerant abjecissent obedientiam, sibi que putavissent licere quicquid fuit libitum, impunitasque fuisset tanta proposita quantam et sperabant iniquiores, et æqui vix cogitabant, diutius profecto tantam improborum hominum conspirationem ad lacerandum collegii statum, ad agendas prædas ex ejusdem bonorum direptione ferre non potuimus, nec tamen præter Dominationem tuam habuimus quenquam, qui æquo amore esset tam florens litterarum domicillium, tam amabilem pietatis sedem complexurus, quæ quibus rationibus deformata jaceat, quibusque de causis jam perturbetur, etsi ad referendum esset facile, ad otii tamen tui rationem foret perlongum; illud vero caput est, in quo universa continentur, quod superioribus diebus præsidens, animo nescimus quo pestifero, certe suorum suasu, electionem sociorum absolverit quandam, nec ex more et consuetudine nostra, nec statutorum observantia præstita, nec ad collegii decus seu litterarum incrementum futurum, verum vel metu quodam Reformationis expectatæ, vel conscientia rerum perverse et nequiter gestarum, vel quadam innata malitia in eos, qui visitorum iniquitate pulsi suis sedibus olim videbantur. Hæc ille nuperrime cum sua aleatorum et oberatorum hominum cohorte summis viribus et contentione egit, nobis interim et rogantibus, ut memor officii collegii dignitatem tueretur et suam, et tandem appellando nomen invocantibus tuum (ut in scriptis latius apparet), cujus privilegio sperabamus collegium tutius futurum: verum ille nec rogationes tulit nostras, et nominis tui appellationem contempsit. Quapropter contendimus vehementius a Dominatione tua, ut vel certi probique delegantur homines, quorum judicii hoc quicquid est litium terminetur, vel alio transigatur res tota modo, quo et collegio provideatur et litterarum quies non interrumpatur, totumque hoc extingatur confusionis incendium. In hac causa nihil nobis erit tua prudentia antiquius, et quicquid statueris nobis erit sacrosanctum. Dominus Jesus Dominationem tuam ad Reipublicæ

the election of sirs Hendmare, Welles and Harnesse as fellows. Undated.

(MS. Parker cxviii. no. 17, p. 385-90.)

Beynge unjustlye greved by the manyfolde prejudiciall doyings of Mr Peacocke Master of our Colledge, and often gentlye desyring redresse therof at his hande, and offerynge the case of M^r Mey his fellowshippe touchinge the yeare of promotion to be compromitted to M^r Doctor Maye, and further to give our voyces to theme that the master would have, upon knowledge of theme by small differringe of the election, which we might better do than to suffre so manye to be voyde, which offre the M^r touchinge M^r Meye his case wolde not suffre to be done, and touchinge the other matter ones he wolde have taken yt and thought yt resonable to differre the electyon and put yt to voyces and founde the greter parte contentid so to differre yt, the which beyng graunted, he perceyvid M^r Meye and M^r Haussope and Gardyner beyng capita factionum myscontentid, goeth over theme agane, reclaiminge two of theme againe which were content to differ yt, for what purpose this inconstant earnestnesse shoulde be, your wysdome judge: thus finding no hope of redresse or amendement at his hand, but ever the longer the further of, were compellid to require justyce at hygher pours, and to y^{em} for that effecte to appeale speciallye frome a late pretensid election attemptid by him and others whiche ys comytted to your wysedome to be considered how of no force yt ys, because the saide M^r al the tyme of his beyng with us wold never suffre us to nominate nor electe none bud preastes or at the least within holye orders, beringe himself so to do upon the statute, and that at this tyme he gave suche answers to honest men makinge sute for very fyte yonge men beyng no prestes to be fellowes, that he wolde not consent to choise anye non-sacerdos, yet proceedinge contrarye to the accomplishinge of the purpose of certan evell dysposed persons, and elected three by common fame most unworthie in all the townne, not knowen or sene ever before to us, where boythe the custome and the statute dothe will 'eligendos' to be nominate and knowen before, and that everye one of theme to go sevearallye to everye fellowe to be examined yf yt please anye fellowe so to do, which beyng not observed arguythe evidentlye what was ment by suche unordynate doynges, that ys the maineteyninge of sectes, disapoynting of all reformacons of visitors or restoringe of suche as without juste cause were put out, keaping always the greater parte of unlerned and unthriftye and such as God amende, wherof we desyre your worshippe to make a profe; for these causses and others that followethe we appealid for reformacon to have the saide pretensid election disanullid or rather pronounced as yt ys of no force, as we shall thus declare,

First, because the said electionn was attemptit contrarye to the statute, as apperthe by the statutes capite 2^o viz. 'Volumus quod in eodem collegio sint octodecim socii quorum quatuordecim volumus esse sacerdotes, juxta ultimas voluntates fundatorum eorundem, reliquos socios non-sacerdotes esse permittimus etc,' the same statute so pleadid and alledgid to this effecte by theme that nowe dothe against yt before the late visitours so takin interpretid and declared and ever since hathe bene so practysed without contradiction untill this late attempte.

The seconde cause, that the said M^r and others wold not procede to electe so manye as shoulde fulfill the voyde rowmes of the hole nombre but so manye as belyke was for ther purpose, seyng there wantid and wantythe seven fellowes and hathe so done al the tyme of the incumbence of this master, what time M^r Josselyne, M^r Langworthe and others verye honest and lerned men were unjustlye expelled and handlid cruellye, surmysinge al thinges to be lawfull that they dyd borne by the late visitors as principall champyons of ther doynge at that tyme and everye tyme since the M^r might have furnished the said voyde roumes yf he wolde have consentid to the election of anye non-sacerdos and some preistes to honest and lerned boythe at this tyme and afore.

The statute dothe expresslye prohibite anye felowshippe to be voyde above a yeare Capite 8^o, whiche ys not observed as there appeareth. Bud the colledge unfornishid with fellowes or rather deformed with y^e same and the treasure y^t shoulde be bestowed that wayes suffred in there handes that be y^e doers of these busynesses ministers of complayntes and lyes to the late visitors by unlawfull meanes and as rewarde of there suche well doynge made officers, who have the colledge moneye in ther handes as M^r Meye—xlviijⁱⁱ. and more, M^r Harward xxijⁱⁱ. and above, M^r Haussope now boucer as we beleve xlⁱⁱ. or therabouts, besides that he hathe lett out the colledge treasure upon his private authoritye upon gages, so that the store of the colledge lyethe in pawnys takin in not all (or noethinge) withoute usurye.

The thirde cause, y^t wher our statutes dothe require the M^r to injoyne 'in virtute juramenti singulis sociis etc' Capite 8^o to nominate him or theme that they knowe most fytttest, which injunction the M^r pretermitted which thinge arguythe as before.

The fourthe cause, for that the M^r himself alone receyvid the voyces of suche as gave anye, the statute requiringe a scrutyne of him and two of the seniours.

The fyfte, for y^t y^e M^r pronounced suche as before by us declared in this forme, 'Ego Thomas Peacocke etc pronuncio hos vobis in socios' not namege theme severallye, whereof one of theme viz. Hyndmer was bothe fellowe and scoller of Christ colledge borne in Westmerlande of whiche countreye they have chosen before one Cragge to y^e colledge and ys there yet for the same countreye; and two cannot be by the statute of one countreye, capite nono.

The sixt, for y^t y^e master suffred theme to be present and to geve voyces, that had no interest so to do; as first M^r Meye ys no fellow which we do thus declare:

The saide M^r Meye about April 1557 freelye resigned his fellowshippe or rowme in the colledge and the same was declared to the fellowes and acceptid of them, and so he counted and reputid himselfe no fellowe and came nether to y^e colledge nor commins a certan tyme; yet, contrarye to this, intrudid and intrude himselfe without sufficient authority to be fellowe in the same place and rounge beinge once no fellowe.

Item the statute byndethe all the fellowes to departe ther fellowshipe imperpetuum post annum suæ promotionis capite 8^o: M^r Meye promoted asked had and enjoyed annum suæ promotionis, yet notwithstandinge his othe and the statute he intrudythe himself for a fellowe still.

Item the late visitors, whiche favored the said M^r Meye and his other fellowes well for their stoute accusacōn as some of heresy and callinge other scismaticall and favoringe heretykes, other suspectid of heresy for not subscribinge, in whose authoritye M^r Meye in these controversies placeth all his warrantes, pronounced him no fellowe in case he shoulde plaie at cardes or dyse, which notwithstandinge he hath done accordinge to his used custome ever since; therefore no fellowe ipso facto by these words of there injunctions.

Item the statute capite duodecimo pronouncethe him expelled ipso facto in perpetuum, beyng bowcer and after his accompte kepithe in handes above xl^s of the colledge moneye; bud he kept after his accompte in his handes l*j*^s and hathe kept the same frome the colledge these iij yeares and dothe yet kepe xlviij^s: therefore no fellowe.

Item the statute capite decimo saethe that he that lyethe oute of the colledge after the thirde leyng forthe shalbe no fellowe; and M^r Meye hathe leyne owte (God knoethe howe oft) bud above iij tymes: shalbe proved ergo no fellowe.

Item the statute prohibitethe the receavinge of anye privileg or dispensacion: contrarye to the statute capito 8 M^r Meye vouchethe the late visitors not by ordre of the statute to restore him bud by privileg or dispensacion, elles he ys no fellowe beyng once none or he ys periured receyvinge the dispensacion, and therfor no fellowe.

Item M^r Hawssope was ther presente, which is undre the same statute beforehersid for lyinge oute of the colledge, as he dothe to ofte at M^r Gilles, as well the goodman beynge frome home as when he ys: more of his unworthye behavioure beyng impertinente to this present cause shalbe declared in tyme and place convenient, bycause by statute he ought to be for them deprived, rather then by the wordes of the statute alreadye deprivid.

Item M^r Gardyner was there present, a notoriouse diffamer of the fellowes of Christes colledge by open libelles, he beyng scholler ther, and for suche manors most fittest for there factiouse purpose, having no good qualitey, was by theme thruste fellowe into the colledge: he haithe so ofte leyne owte bothe at one baskett makers and other blinde and unsemelye places and plaid at cardes and dyse hole nightes, that we belyve he cannot be called a fellowe of the colledge, and we think he takethe himselfe so, for we never se him in the colledge bud against busynesse nether holyedaie nor workdaie.

And moreover he ys a comon talecarier and a shamefull sclauderer and evell reporter of men, veyre unquiet to lyve withall when he ys in the colledge and for his audacitye able to be compared with the best of theme.

Item M^r Sherebroke was there present, who hathe leyne oute of the colledge above the tyme lymitted him by the statute the space off vj wekes, practisinge of himselfe in servinge of a cure, not doynge his duetye in the colledge nor at the colledge, but at a pinche to manetene sectes: therefore no fellowe.

As for Sir Huet whiche was also theire, we rather lamente his case then anye elles, because he lost all at the cardes, yet upon hope or trust he plaethe still at Katerynne Hall and other wheres; he also ought to have bene prest or this by the statute.

Item there was one Sir Cragge there present, lerned as the reast, which was undowbtlye borne in a towne called Dente in Yorkshyre and had a brother borne their and electid to the colledge before for the said shire off Yorke, yet bicause of towardenes to the purposes, contrarye to the othe and the statute electid hym fellowe, the saide Sherebroke beyng before of Yorkshire in the colledge, ergo never fellowe by the statute.

Other enormities of maners and intollerable breache of statutes by them we do not purpose nowe to trouble your wysedomes withall, because theye are not all together properlye appendent to this cause of election for tyme and place yf occasion be geven the hole evell regiment of the colledg with the breache of statutes as well by the saide m^r as by the forenamed his evell counsellours shalbe declared, and proved desyring of (these premisses beyng sufficientlye proved) justyce and reformacion at your worshippes hands.

Objections against suche as theie have chosen :

Sir Hyndmer one elected by theme a comon player at dyse or cardes and therbye the better acquainted with theme and speciallye with Gardynner, with whome he hathe bene in a maner continuallye at cardes or dyse at the basketmakers and other places where theye use the said exercyse.

Item the reporte of him in Christes college ys, that he ys unlearned, for that he never kept their so muche as his owne probleame nor anye other exercyse, as others do of his place and tyme.

Item the cōmon reporte ys that he hathe landes to the value off x^{li} by yeare, which cannot stande with our statute.

Item the said Hyndmer was by theme nominated and billed for Comberlande and for that shire by theme electid, wheras he hath bene bothe scoller and fellowe for Westmerlande 'in Christes colledge' (margin) and so confessethe himselffe still to be, bud that thei for there purpose wolde have him to denye his contreye.

Item one Sir Welles butler of Penbrokhal was by them elected, whiche ys reportid bothe in the said housse and otherwhere to be a verye stubbornne unquyet quarrellinge and chydyinge fellowe, whiche as yt ys lyke for these his good qualities was preferred at the sute and request of M^r Gyrlington and m^r Yonge, beyngre grete compaynons and familiers with M^r Meye M^r Haussop and M^r Gardyner.

Item one Sir Harnesse of Sant Johns was also electid lykwyse by theme, of whome as yet we have asked or lerned verye lytle, savinge that he ys reported to be unlearned and preferred by Sir Huet and Sir Cragge, whose qualities and affections we do well knowe.

Moreover the said Mr hathe so borne with these his accomplices, that for their sake he hathe sufferid theyr muche commendid frende M^r Thomas Lete not only to have of the colledge x^{li} more then his lande was worthe by our estimation which was apoyntid to vewe the landes he solde to the colledge, and as the truthe is by any mans judgement that knowethe the matter, but also sufferithe the said M^r Thomas Lete to retaine in his handes of the colledge money vj^{li} which the said M^r moved us to consent to the remittinge therof, to whom allso at M^r Hawsoppes pleasure the said M^r have gyven certayn of the colledge woode under pretence, that it is a custome to geve allways the colledge woode to all copiholders to buylde what they would therwith.

As concerning other brechys of the statutes by our m^r and his evyll regiment, because we canne not tell whether they fully appertayne to his appellacon; we will not trouble your woorshipes withall at this tyme, reservinge them to place and tyme more convenient.

Draft of letter from Sir William Cecil to M^r Pecocke, president of Queens' college...March 1558-9.

(Public Record Office, Domestic Elizabeth, vol. iii. no. 31.)

Et litteras tuas quæ mihi a tuis datæ sunt, perlegi, et reliqua tua scripta quæ ad me afferebantur, diligenter evolvi, audivi etiam eos quos misisti ad me, quorum ex sermone de tota hac causa certior fieri cupiebam. Verum neque scriptis litteris tuis neque sermone eorum sic mihi ea res exposita est, ut putarim mea sententia hoc tempore definiendam. Quamobrem ne vel statuti vestri mens et sententia lædatur, vel alius quisquam debito suo commodo careat, decrevi exemplum defuncti Episcopi Wintoniensis Cancellarii vestri hac in parte sequi (see p. 255), neque hunc hominem, de quo nunc contenditis, esse adhuc in societatem vestram admittendum, neque vobis, ad novos quoscumque eligendos, donec ego de hac re sententiam meam interponam, ulterius esse procedendum, atque hanc voluntatem meam reliquis ejus collegii consociis cupio imprimis a te significari. Cæterum si quid tibi aut illis supersit adhuc, quod mihi hactenus non exposuistis, quo hec caussa fieri potest apertior, volo id, ornatissimis viris et mihi sane charissimis, Domino Vicecancellario et Doctori Parkero, a vobis quamprimum aperiri: qui id mihi suis litteris referent, ut et mature hæc causa et ex æquo et bono possit terminari.

Marche 1558. To the Master of
 and the felowes.

To the master of Christs college

There seems to have been a controversy at Christ's college as to the qualification of fellows: this draft may from its double indorsement have been intended to serve for letters to both Queens' college and Christ's college.

Of these possible letters the one to the master of Christ's college exists in MS. Parker cxviii. p. 414 (now p. 407). It is nearly identical with the above draft and continues:

Bene vale. Ex Aula xxij^o Marcii 1558.

To my very loving ffrend	Collegio vestro valde addictus
the M ^r of Christes college	Gul. Cecilius.
in Cambridge.

It is however addressed :

M^r Doctor Parker.

Quoniam absum ipse Academia, neque per cæteras occupationes meas, quod vos scitis, vacare mihi his rebus licet, non putavi alienum, quæ ipse, propter absentiam, procurare non possum, vicaria in illis opera vestra qui presentes estis et diligentia uti. In quo peropportune accidit, vos mihi hoc tempore dari, quibus hanc causam committendo, academiæ curam quæ mihi credita est, non modo non negligere, sed optimam ejus rationem habere, videri possum. Contentio nescio quæ de electione quadam inter præfectum Collegii Reginæ et socios quosdam ejusdem proximis his diebus exorta est. Huic sedandæ meam operam utraque pars multis verbis imploravit. Ego vero neque per absentiam possum, neque per negotia licet mihi, de hac re cognoscere. Nolo tamen committere propter eam spem, quam academia apud me deposuit, ut aut innocentia alicujus injuste opprimatur, aut audacia videatur defendi. Quapropter optimum esse duxi, huic causæ vos dare cognitores, quos scio et propter solertiam vestram posse, et velle etiam propter bonitatem, eam ita statuere, ut et Academia sibi pacem peperisse, et hij, qui litigarunt, justitiam consecuti videantur. Dedi seorsum literas ad utramque partem quibus significavi sententiam illis in hac causa a vobis esse expectandam. A vobis igitur magnopere contendo, ut et istam litem diligenter audiatis, et quid in ea decernendum putetis, mihi per literas vestras mature velitis renunciare. Bene valete. Ex Aula xxj^o. (MS. Parker cxviii. no. 23. p. 413.)

Aegerrime quidem fero quod in eo collegio in quo primum educatus et quasi (ut ita dicam) fere natus fuerim, hæ sunt exortæ controversiæ, per quas (si quidem leges et statuta collegii fuerint non ad æquum et bonum, sed ad jus strictum exactæ) alteram necesse est partem exactum iri. Sed id me rursus consolatur, quod ad vos (ut audio) refertur causa tota, qui componere potius per æquitatem quam ad extremum eam intorquere velitis. Quid sentiam in tota causa Gasconus amicus meus, qui idem et leges ac statuta nostri collegii novit optime, potest narrare. Vos oro ut æquum bonumque sectantes, id spectetis quod collegium illud non imminuere sed auctoritate vestra possit augere. Bene valete. Londini xxj°. Martii Anno regni Elizabethæ primo.

Sir William Cecil to the president and fellows of Queens' college.
Draft, undated. Answer to no. 1.

(Public Record Office, Domestic Elizabeth, vol. iii. no. 36.)

Accepi litteras vestras scriptas ad me vj° (sic) Martii, ex quibus dissentiones quasdam vobis cum reliquis illius collegii vestri consociis ortas esse, et intelligo et doleo. Quid est enim minus audiendum, quam homines bonas litteras profitentes pacem et concordiam, qua una litteræ omnes maxime florere solent, non tueri? Cum legerem ea quæ scripsistis ad me et nuntium etiam vestrum in eadem re convenire, videbantur illi mihi, a quibus in electione vestra provocatum est, non parum certe reprehendendi. Etenim quum vestris litteris multum tribuerim, tum ita semper judicavi, pro statutis et publicis illis collegii vestri decretis, esse sentiendum. Quæ quidem si ab illis lædi, a vobis vero diligenter observari, liquere mihi his litteris vestris omnino potuisset, et vos merito laudassem, et illos ut oportuit, justa reprehensione fuisset prosecutus. Antequam statuissem apud me, quid in hac causa vobis responderem, supervenit unus ex illis, qui adversas partes tuentur, quem etiam, ut erat æquum, se suosque defendentem audire non recusavi. Is et litteris quas dedit mihi a suis, et sermone etiam suo, fecit hanc causam mihi ad cognoscendum aliquanto difficiliorem. Quamobrem tutissimum esse existimavi rem universam quorundam hominum cognitioni, qui apud me fidei sunt, apud vos vero authoritati esse debent, committere qui auditis et vestris et eorum rationibus, possint aut controversiam hanc componere aut mihi significare quid in ea sentiant faciendum. Ei rei venerabiles viros et mihi valde (sic) Doctorem Porye Academiæ Vicecancellarium, Doctorem Parkar, et Edwardum Leedes, arbitros designo. Quibus vos, sicut vestri adversarii facient, causæ vestræ rationes et firmamenta ita exponetis rogo, ut illis, quid in ea re decernendum sit, certo possit constare. In quo vos, et hortor et moneo, ut quod ab illis in ista lite statuatur, in eo velitis libenter acquiescere.

(Public Record Office, Domestic Elizabeth, vol. iii. no. 37.)

Legi litteras vestras quas dedistis ad me 17. Martii. In quibus collegii vestri Præfectum et consocios quosdam vestros acerbe et graviter accusatis. Uteumque enim hæc res ab illis acta est, a vobis erat aut dissimulanda injuria, aut justitia modeste et humiliter postulanda. Etenim quum tam acriter contendatis, neque adversariorum causam quidquam minuitis, et vestram interim litem pene mihi suspectam facere videmini. Quominus vos, in hac causa, contra præfectum socios audivissem, nisi vellem et innocentiam imprimis tueri, et audaciæ si quæ forte concepta esset, occurrere. Et quoniam absum ipse vobis, neque per litteras vestras liquido mihi constat quid sit in hac controversia statuendum, dedi huic liti arbitros ornatissimos viros Doctores Porye et Parker, et Magistrum Edwardum Leedes. Quibus omnem vestram causam manifeste aperietis, ut eorum sententia tota hæc contentio quæ inter vos est tandem componatur. Quod autem illi decernendum ea in re duxerint, id a vobis imprimis et recipi et probari volo.

(MS. Parker cxviii. no. 18. p. 393-4.)

SIR,

As I have ben a meane to procure you some busynes by my master which you shall perceyve by his lres̄ to you, so I am bolde to trowble you my selfe with theis my lres̄, Desyering you most hartely in the proceding to the determinacion of this mattier committed to you with others, you will have speciall regard of the state of thuniversitie now (as you know) sore decayed, who is like (if suche eleccōns maye go forward as the masters will now attempt) to be pestered with suche a nombre as she shall rather take harme of than honestie. I moved my m^r for a generall staye for a tyme, the which thing he liked well, but yt was somewhat to late. And therfore in this cause I have declared to him the condition of the parties on both sydes, which he partely before understode, and therefore at my motyon or rather of his owne mynde he thought good contrarie to the desyer both of M^r Smyth and the partie for whom I am enformed he wryteth to you for to take this ordre therin. As for M^r Smyth he is the rather offended for that he was not desyered on the other syde to be an help. I have talked with him in this mattier at large and have burdened him with the disorder that of late hath ben and yet remayns, wherein he cannot muche gainsaye me. I cannot wryte all that I would for lacke of tyme and multitude of busynes, wherfore breifly I commend unto you the state of thuniversitie as I said which woule be reformed, thinclinacion of my masters mynde which yet goeth not from justice, and my small request which is grownded not of the parties themselves, but upon that knowledge I have of the condicion of them both. And thus I bid you most hartely fare well. From the courte the xxijth of March 1558.

Yours to command

WILLM̄ DEY.

M^r Doctor Parker.

10.

Sir William Cecil to Mr Pecocke, 28 April 1559.
(MS. Parker cxviii. no. 26. p. 415.)

After my hartie commendacions. Understanding by sir Thomas Smyth and Doctor May my frends somewhat more of the estate of your colledge and the statutes therof, who bothe for the good will they beare to the colledge hath ben sutors to me for the matter, and for the tyme they have ben there and the rule they have borne there, do best knowe theeffecte of your statutes, I have moved the Quenes highnes herin that for so muche as the eleccon of the fellowes is past and (as I can learne by them whom I take to be best sene in the statutes of the colledge) not against your ordres there, hir highnes hath declared unto me, that it is not hir pleasur to stave their admission, partely because the inhibition did only extend to eleccons not then made, and partely because hir highnes favoring thencrease of learning wold be loth that the poore schollers elected shold be longer differred from their stipend and commons due unto them, which they shall lacke untill they be admitted. And therefore if their be no other cawse, ye shall procede to the admission of them according to your statutes, anye restraunte or inhibition to the contrary notwithstanding. Having in mynde this that as hir highnes is so well mynded to learning as never prynce was more, se that you w^t your prayers and good conformitie do shew yourself again not unmyndfull of your duetie to God and to hir Ma^{tie}. Fare ye well. From the courte the xxvijth of Aprill 1559.

To my loving frende mr Pecocke the mr of Quenes college in Cābrige.

Sir William Cecil to Dr Parker. 5 May 1559.

(MS. Parker cxviii. no. 21. p. 409-10.)

After my very hartie commendations. Foras muche as I am credibly informed that the two young men lately chosen to be ffellowes in the Quenes Colledge be both forward in learning and also well mynded in the service of God, so as by their admission into the same howse our common cause of relligion shall no whitt be impaired or hindred, and for that also I understand by Sir Thomas Smith that Mr Pecocke nowe president of the said colledg is fully mynded to gyve over his interest and title in the same to Doctor Mey, (which thing I like very well), I have therfore sent downe my letters for their admission accordingly. And to th'intent that as in the beginning of this matter I made you partaker of the paynes for the understanding therof, so finally to participate with you the determinacion of the same, I have sent you a copie of the said letters inclosed herin, whereby you shall perceyve what I have done therin. I doubt not but as the younge men by their admission shall thinke themselves benefited, so shall thother parte who moved some dowbte therin, by chaunging of the master, avoide all suche inconveniences as was supposed wold have insued, and they all together henceforth lyve in more quiet than hitherto they have don.

Youre assured loving frend

W. CECILL.

To my assured loving frend M^r Doctor

Mr Dale and Mr Harwarde seem to have been removed from their fellowships, the latter on the feast of St Mary Magdalene. Dale continued a recusant (Cooper, Ath. i. 212), but Harwarde conformed to the changes in religion: in Oct. he became rector of St Clement Danes, Westminster, and died in 1589 canon of Windsor.

The following notices in the bursars' book refer to this affair:—

1558-9. fo. 259 b. [March 1558-9]. Expensa facta per magistrōs

Item pro expensis propriis (m ^{ri} Harwarde thesaur.) Londini ex mandato magistri circa admissionem sociorum	xiiij ^s . viij ^d .

The number of students matriculated from the year 1552 to 1561 inclusive was very small, viz. only 66; before 1552 the matriculations were about twice, and after 1561 nearly three times the average of those 9 years.

In the bursar's accounts of this presidentship we find the following miscellaneous items:—

William Mey (restored)

...May (?) 1559—8 Aug. 1560.

1.—2 Eliz.

LIKE as in queen Mary's reign, the reforming heads of houses elected or appointed under Edward VI. made way for adherents of the unreformed faith by resignation or expulsion, so now the principles of the reformation finding support in queen Elizabeth and her parliament, similar changes took place, though in the opposite direction, and the masterships of colleges were filled with men well affected to the new order of things. At Queens', as we have seen, Thomas Pecocke resigned, and Dr Mey recovered quiet possession of his mastership.

He is by most authorities represented as having been forced to go abroad at the accession of queen Mary to save himself from the persecution of that reign, and as not having returned to England till her death. This was the tradition in the college as early as 1620, as Dr Mansel, then president, writes in the 'Old Parliament Register' (fo. 123. b.): 'Saviente a pontificiis vivi-comburio, coactus est secedere in partes transmarinas, anno circiter 1553.' Downes in his life of Mey, prefixed to his edition of Sparrow's Rationale (8vo. 1722) says: 'In the first year of queen Mary he was ejected out of the deanery of St Paul's, and stripped of all his other preferments. Where he concealed himself during her bloody reign, and how he escaped the dreadful persecution, I cannot find.' Neither Dr Mansell's statement, nor Downes' fears, had any foundation in fact. Strype (Ann. Vol. i. ch. 2) with more truth mentions Doctors Mey, Parker, and Bill, as 'all under king Edward, heads of the university of Cambridge, but cashiered by queen Mary, and remaining obscurely in England in her reign.' Dr Parker seems to have been in some danger, having to escape on one occasion by night (he says) 'from such as sought for me to my peril' (Cooper, Ath. i. 329), but Dr Bill 'lived in retirement at Sandey, not far from Ashwell' (in Hertfordshire, where his family was settled), 'where I find him consulted, and a civil answer returned by him to the master and fellows' (Baker, History of St John's College). Dr Mey would appear to have been allowed a similar peaceable retirement, though he certainly lost his deanery and the mastership. He must have conformed, to a certain extent, with the changes in religion, as he seems to have retained his canonry at Ely (Bentham, Ely 247), and in 1557 he became rector of Pulham Norfolk (Browne Willis, Ely 381), and of Stanton St Michael Cambridgeshire, on 3 Dec. 1557. In bishop Thirleby's register (MS. Baker xxx. 222) we find:

3 Dec. 1557, idem Commissarius [Tho. Yale, LL.D.] admisit venerabilem virum Magistrum Willelmum Meye, LD. ad ecclesiam de Stanton Sancti Michaelis per mortem ultimi incumbentis ejusdem vacantem, et ipsum instituit in persona Johannis Redman.

(His brother, John Meye (B.A. 1549-50, M.A. 1553, D.D. 1564), was rector of the same church on 28 Jan. 1560-1, when the bishop of Ely made a return of the clergy of his diocese to archbishop Parker (MS. Baker xxvii. 198). He continued rector till some time before 18 March 1571-2, when William Plowgrave, M.A. was instituted on his resignation. He was instituted to the rectory of Aston Sandford Bucks., on the presentation of Anne countess of Oxford, 16 Nov. 1557, and this he resigned before 9 March 1558 (1558-9) (Lipscombe, Bucks. i. 47), probably on his becoming master of St Catharine's hall.)

This seems partly confirmed by the fact of his not appearing among the exiles in Germany and Switzerland, since so zealous a reformer as the dean of St Paul's would scarcely have sunk there into complete obscurity. (See also Strype's Life of Sir Thomas Smith, ch. vii., where he is mentioned as not among the exiles in the last reign.) He could also not have resided very far from Cambridge, as the expense of a journey to him was not great.

III. M. J. 1556-57, fo. 242. b. Dedit M^r Dale famulo D. Mey proferenti vetera statuta..... vj^d.

1557-58, fo. 252 [shortly before Midsummer 1558]. Item pro expensis propriis in equitando ad D. Maye in negotiis collegii xvj^d.

Dr William Mey seems moreover to have had rooms in college in the years 1555 and 1558:

III. M. J. 1554-55, fo. 227. b. [March]. Item Jacobo de Coptehall (near Waltham, Essex) pro albifactione graduum cubiculi mri Doctoris (written in full) and whiting the chimeni xij^d.

The 'cubiculum D. Mey' is mentioned also fo. 232 [Aug.], and fo. 232. b. [Sept.].

1557-58, fo. 250. Item scopanti cubiculum D. Maye vj^d.

[Dec. or Jan.]. Item pro clavi ad cubic. D. Maye et reparatione sere xij^d.

Dr Mey was one of the seven divines, who with sir Thomas Smith were appointed to revise the Prayer-book of Edward VI. previous to its being re-enacted by the parliament. This they did in April 1559.

WE have seen that, on 5 May 1559, Mr Pecocke was 'fully minded to give over his interest and title' in the college to Dr Mey, and the latter was probably soon afterwards replaced in the mastership. Dr Walker's MS. says 1 July.

III. M. J. 1558-59, fo. 260. b. Magistro Pecoche ex consensu magistri et sociorum..... iiij^u.

On St John Baptist's day, 24 June 1559, the use of the Prayer-book of 1552, with a few alterations, became obligatory by the act of uniformity (Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2).

At London, Dr Henry Cole the dean of St Paul's under queen Mary (elected 11 Dec. 1556) gave place to Dr Mey, apparently on 11 June:

'June the 11th being St Barnabas day [1559] the Apostles' mass ceased, and no mass was said any more at St Paul's... and now Dr Mey, sometime dean of St Paul's, took possession of his place in the church as dean: and that afternoon was none of the old evensong then, and so abolished.' (Strype, Annals, Vol. I. ch. xi. p. 134, ch. xv. p. 192.)

Le Neve (ed. Hardy, ii. p. 315-6) gives 23 June as the day of Mey's restoration, but in queen Elizabeth's commission for the visitation of the university dated 20 June 1559 he is described as dean of St Paul's (Lamb's Camb. Doc. 275-8), which seems to confirm Strype's statement.

On 20 Sept. 1559 Dr Cole delivered over to Dr Mey several books belonging to the cathedral, among which were the following: a book of statutes and ordinances of the new grammar school of St Paul's, a book entitled 'Statutes used in dean Colet's days,' a book entitled 'Liber visitationis Joan. Coleti, Decani Ecclesie Sancti Pauli, Londini, sub anno Dom. 1506,' a book written on parchment of certain statutes collected by dean Colet, being bound in board and covered with black leather. (Dugdale, St Paul's, 28 b.; Strype, Parker, B. ii. ch. 2.)

The visitation of the diocese of London began about 18 June, that of St Paul's 11 Aug. (Strype, Ann. i. 167 ff.)

In Alex. Nowell's sermon before the queen at the opening of parliament 11 Jan. 1563 among Nowell's works published by the Parker Society (p. 229), he speaks of 'your almoner' as lately dead, and in a note we read, 'Dr Mey archbishop of York elect.' This seems to be wrong, as Dr Bill was appointed chief almoner very soon after the accession of Elizabeth, and held that office at Dr Mey's death, whom he survived, dying 15 July 1561 (Cooper, Ath. i. 211).

Dr Mey was one of the commission appointed 20 June 1559 for visiting the university, and of that issued 20 Oct. following to take the oaths of ecclesiastics.

On 6 Dec. 1559 the queen issued her commission to Anthony Kitchen bishop of Llandaff, and others, to consecrate Dr Matthew Parker as archbishop of Canterbury. This bears the at-testation of Dr Mey and others 'of the chiefest civilians in those times,' that it was of sufficient force for that purpose (Lemon, State Papers, Dom. Series 1547-80, p. 143; Strype, Parker, B. ii. ch. 1). The archbishop elect constituted him (7 Dec.) one of his proctors to William Barlow, heretofore bishop of Bath and Wells, and the other bishops, who were the queen's commissioners for his (Dr Parker's) consecration, to do and act all things for him before them. Dr N. Bullingham (Cooper, Ath. i. 350) however was the acting proxy at the confirmation at the church of St Mary-le-bow on 9 December.

In the year 1560 Dr Mey was nominated to the archbishopric of York, having been proposed for that see apparently before 6 June (Lemon, State Papers, 154). Sir W. Cecil wrote to sir W. Petre on 4 June 1560: 'I perceyve grete lack hereaway of a Bishopp of York. I think if yow wold move her Majesty, she wold pass the congee d'Eslyer for Dr Maye; suerly the sooner it be doone the better.' (Haynes, State Papers [Burghley Papers], p. 323.)

He died on the very day of his election 8 Aug. 1560. He was buried on the 12th in the choir of St Paul's cathedral, and Dr Edmund Grindal bishop of London, one of his executors, preached his funeral sermon.

Of his monument there is no description extant, the inscription on it has been preserved by Dugdale (St Paul's 63).

His age is not recorded; but if he came to Cambridge young, as he had resided seven years in the university in 1526, he could not have been much more than fifty five years old.

Dr W. Mey was a married man, his wife being Joan Walron the widow of Dr Heynes, his predecessor in the mastership. She survived him also.

III. M. J. 1559-60, fo. 272, Aug. 1560. Item insumebatur in vino, zitho et aliis, cum aderat relicta doctoris Mey cum suis.....ij^s.

By her he had two children, a son William and a daughter Elizabeth, who married John Tedcastel of Barking, Essex, and by whom she had nine sons and seven daughters. She died 27 Oct. 1596, aged 43, and was buried at Barking, where is a monumental brass to the memory of her and her husband. It is engraved in 'Views by J. R. Malcom' intended as an appendix to Lysons' Environs of London. It represents the figures of the husband and wife standing, a coat of arms being between them. The inscription is as follows:

Here under lieth y^e bodies of John Tedcastle Gent and Elizabeth his wyfe daughter of william Mey Doctor of Laws and had issue betweene them ix sonnes and vii daughters. The said Elizabeth deceased the 27 of October AN^o 1596 at y^e 43 yeare of her age. The said John deceased y^e ... day of ... an. ... in y^e ... of his age.

Of her brother William no particulars are recorded.

Her half-brother, Joseph Heynes, was buried in the same church (Lysons, Environs iv. 94).

From Elizabeth Tedcastle's age, it would seem that Mrs Heynes did not long remain a widow; but when she married Dr W. Mey, what became of her during queen Mary's reign, or when she died, does not appear.

John Tedcastle bought the manor or farm of Withfield (parcel of the possessions of the dissolved monastery of Barking) in 1598, and in 1604 conveyed it to John Aston (Lysons' Environs, iij. 79).

Dr Mey's arms were: Sa. a fess arg. between three lions passant regardant, Or.

His will made on 7 Aug. 1560, proved 6 May 1561, is preserved in the principal registry (London) of H. M.'s Court of Probate (Loftes 16). It is as follows:

In the name of God amen. The vijth daye of Auguste in the yere of ower Lorde God 1560 I Willm Mey Doctor of lawes deane of the cathedrall church of Paules in London beinge feeble and sicke in boddie but of good memory and understandinge thankes be given to God, doe make and ordaine my laste will and testamente in manner and forme followinge, first cōmyttinge my soule to the infinite merce of God and my boddie yerthe to yerth. THE act of uniformity, which passed the two houses of parliament on 28 April 1559, prescribed the use of the Second Prayer-book of Edward VI., with certain alterations, from the feast of the Nativity of St John Baptist 24 June next following.

It does not appear that any changes in the Society were occasioned by this change in the form of divine worship. In the chapel however the altars were taken away and a communion table introduced.

The visitation of the university began 17 Sept. 1559, but no detailed account of the proceedings has been preserved. The statutes of Queens' college and some other colleges were revised, while in King's college and elsewhere the authority of the visitors was resisted, and the old statutes remained unaltered (Cooper, ii. 157-8). At Queens' the statutes as revised under Edward VI. in 1549 were again established, and Dr Mey's signature occurs to them together with those of the other visitors.

The college was about this time very prosperous, and though they had recently purchased an estate at Eversden of Mr Leete for £60 (see p. 276), they had a large sum still in hand. The earl of Bedford offered some lands for sale; some of the fellows went to inspect some lands at Bozeat near Wellingborough Northamptonshire; a Mr Dabbes also was willing to sell land to the college. This was in the autumn of 1559. In Feb. 1560 Mr Anthony Pope offered to the college the manor, advowson and estate of Hockington near Cambridge, formerly belonging to Croyland Abbey, and this they soon purchased for £770.
