

Our City Comment & Discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

THE most important function of a newspaper is the revealing of the current thoughts of the community and in this way share in the guiding of its destiny.

EVERY thought to which an individual has given some thinking force is entitled to consideration. If the thought is logical, selfish, greedy or lacking in service to the community its defects will show up very clearly.

APRIL was the only month so far this year that failed to go over the million mark in building permits.

MASS MEETING IS CALLED FOR MAY 4

Formation of New Improvement Ass'n. Will Be Effected

EAGLE ROCK, May 1.—A mass meeting of Eagle Rock citizens has been called at the Woman's clubhouse on the evening of May 4, for the purpose of organizing an Eagle Rock Improvement Association.

It has been stated by those in charge that this association will work to develop a community and neighborhood spirit through social gatherings as well as the regular business meetings.

There is a feeling among some that a spirit of opposition may result from the formation of two civic bodies, and doubtless many who are opposed will be at the mass meeting to see how plans of those furthering the movement go.

Those who proposed the club realized the lack of social activity here and felt that an organization of this kind could reach the majority of the people.

A program of musical numbers and special speakers has been arranged for Friday night. No matter what organization anyone is now a part of, those calling this meeting solicit his attendance at this time, and ask that he become a part of the new improvement association of the people.

Beware of the willing worker—he may try to work you.

TRESPASSER OPENS DOORS BUT DOES NOT STEAL

EAGLE ROCK, May 1.—Mrs. L. A. Hutchins, residing at 162 Paloma avenue, arrived home yesterday to find her house, which she is positive that she locked securely upon leaving it a few hours before, open, but no trespasser in sight. The family watchdog was still tied up and sound asleep. Mrs. Hutchins was confident that she fastened the doors and she suspected that someone had used a pass-key and entered her home, although nothing had been touched.

TWO ACCIDENTS REPORTED IN EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, May 1.—Accidents to be more prevalent in the vicinity of Eagle Rock lately. Two were reported today.

George Sarby, 201 South Satsuma Avenue, while backing his automobile out of his driveway, into the street, collided with another motorist who was driving south on Satsuma avenue and turned left without a warning. Mr. Sarby was unable to learn the identity of the other party in the accident although he took the number of his car. The rear bumper on Mr. Sarby's car was bent and the end of the body was crushed in.

Mrs. Bessie D. Anderson of 1120 E. Wilson avenue, Glendale, reported a more serious accident about 4 o'clock, immediately after it happened. Her husband, driving a Ford, started to cross Colorado boulevard at Kenilworth avenue, when a heavily loaded gravel truck turned in front of his machine without giving any signals. Other machines were passing, and to avoid striking the truck, he kept clear of two other automobiles which were near Mr. Anderson ran off the crossing, up over the railway right of way, and struck a tree. His car was badly damaged, two tires punctured, a wheel smashed and the driving rod and one fender bent. Mrs. Anderson stated that the car was further damaged but upon looking it over immediately after the accident these were all the "injuries" noticeable. The wrecked machine was turned over to the Ford garage for "first aid." Neither Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Anderson, or Miss Marian Brown, also of Glendale, who was a passenger in the car at the time of the accident were hurt.

After the accident the driver of the truck did not stop, but continued some distance down the street to his destination with the load of gravel. Mr. Anderson attempted to get his name, but when he refused to give it Mr. Anderson took the number of the truck and will locate the owner as soon as possible. He will seek damages for the wrecked automobile.

None of Old Parts to Be Visible From the Street

A permit to operate an auto wrecking business on East Broadway just west of the Harrower laboratory under the name of the Glendale Auto Wrecking company was granted to M. Dasso and H. Dvoron by the Glendale city council Monday night. The decision was reached by the council after an agreement between Attorney Anspach for the owners of the property and Attorney Olive Clark for the protestants. These attorneys met with the council in committee of the whole session at 6:30 o'clock and the matter was completely gone over. The permit was issued with the understanding that none of the old automobile parts should be visible from the street and that the business should be conducted in an orderly manner.

AUTO WRECKING PERMITTED ON BROADWAY

For weeks the matter of the granting of this permit has been held under consideration by the council. A protest signed by practically all the owners of property on East Broadway was filed at a previous meeting. At last Thursday night's meeting Attorney Oliver Clark appeared for the protestants and made an able plea for the preservation of high business standards in Glendale. At that time it was decided to meet last night to thresh the matter out.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM IS OUTLINED

Patriotic Bodies of City Gather at Wilson Avenue School to Plan

A meeting was called at the Wilson Avenue school last night by the G. A. R. of representatives from the various patriotic bodies to work out plans for the Memorial Day exercises. There will be a program at Grand View at 10 o'clock in the morning and in the afternoon a big parade will start from Brand boulevard and Colorado street. This will be followed by a program and exercises at Forest Lawn.

Rev. C. R. Norton was elected general chairman of arrangements. The following were also elected: Richardson D. White, secretary; Col. Fraser, chairman parade committee; Commander Barrett, chairman program committee; R. E. Tucker, chairman publicity committee; Messrs. Headlee, Fraser, White and Gordon, transportation committee.

An invitation is extended to all organizations in the city to take part in the parade and co-operate in the exercises of the day. There will be another meeting of the committee on May 10.

EAGLE ROCK IS GROWING AS A "HOME CITY"

EAGLE ROCK, May 1.—Building permits have totaled $209,715 this month, which is a substantial increase over the record last year, although it does not reach the total for March of over $300,000. However, owing to the fact that no extremely large permits were issued this month, and most of those granted represented residential buildings, would make it noticeable that Eagle Rock is growing as the "home city."

WARSAW, May 1.—The Society of Friends of the Tatra mountains is working out a plan for transforming the Tatra mountains into a national park on the lines of Yellowstone park.

"YOU CAN'T FOOL YOUR WIFE" WINS AT THE T. D. & L.

Paramount picture featuring Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi, Lewis Stone and Pauline Garon is the feature at the Glendale theater where it has been presented for the first time on an enthusiastic audience and was heartily received.

Lewis Stone, the leading man, is constantly rebuked by his wife for his attentions to other women. When she is unable to stand it any longer she leaves him. By a queer twist of affairs, the couple is brought together at the home of a noted physician where Garth McBride (Mr. Stone) is taken for treatment after having been assaulted by thugs. His wife (Leatrice Joy) accidentally becomes the nurse in attendance. Miss Naldi has an exceptionally strong yamp role, and Pauline Garon is a sophisticated ultra-modern flapper.

In the supporting cast are Paul McAllister, John Daly Murphy, Julia Swane Gordon, Tom Carriagan and Dan Pennell playing the minor, yet important roles. George Melford directed this production, which is equivalent to saying that it is of the highest Paramount standard.

The committee has asked the Glendale Press to express its most grateful thanks for this co-operation on the part of the business men of Glendale.

Chiropractic Health Talks

RHEUMATISM is easily remedied by Chiropractic

Rheumatism is a disease of the joints and muscles and is characterized by shifting pains and soreness of muscles. The affected parts often become swollen and inflamed. The symptoms are chilliness, sometimes accompanied by high fever, pain in the joints, which become enlarged. The urine is scanty and highly colored, showing a reddish sediment after standing. There is belching of gas, showing fermentation in the stomach and intestines, which finally spreads throughout the system, causing toxic poisoning. You will also find tender spots along the spine, which is nature's warning that there is nerve impingement, causing irritation of the nerves and also inhibiting the flow of nerve energy, which is so essential to health. Chiropractic adjustments will correct this condition. Then by the proper massage of the affected parts the condition is soon relieved and health restored. Phone Glen. 764 for an appointment.

Bankers Who Know Their Community

LONG association with business here has given our officers an intimate understanding of the problems and needs of their community. In efficiently serving those needs, the personal acquaintance which they have with their customers, and their appreciation of the problems of this vicinity, are important factors.

The elastic credit capacity of their bank, derived from its power to command the vast combined resources of the entire Pacific-Southwest Banking System, indicates their ability to care for those legitimate needs.

MAY DAY PARTY AT ACACIA AVENUE SCHOOL TODAY

Miss Mary Lamereaux to Be Enthroned As the Queen for 1923

Children of the Acacia avenue school are having a real old-fashioned May Day celebration this afternoon. When the noon hour strikes books will be put away and mothers who will be the guests of the day will begin to arrive with baskets filled with good things to eat at the picnic lunch which mothers and children will have together about 12:30, members of the court-ship committee of the P. T. A. serving coffee to the mothers.

The afternoon's program will begin about 1:30 with the May-day procession for the queen, who is Mary Lamereaux of the third grade who was elected to the throne by her classmates.

She will wear a crown of Cecil Bruner roses and her throne will be banked with roses and greenery. Of course she will have the usual retinue attendants, including flower girls who will strew a path of rose petals for her to tread upon, and a page who will present the crown upon a pillow just like real royalty.

The decorations will take the form of May baskets big and little, and about 1:30 the program will begin. Following the professional and amateur dancing a Danish dance of greeting will be performed. It will be followed by a group of songs sung by the sixth grade. Then will come a little play, "Hansel and Gretel." This will be succeeded by a whistling solo by Mary Ellen Pittinger and a Japanese drill. Another play, "The Best Kind of a Gift" will follow, and then comes the usual May Day dance "The Highland Fling." The kindergarten orchestra will play and the program will end with the children grouped around the maypole.

Society LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES BARD SECTION TO HOLD AN INFORMAL PARTY ON MAY 11 UNIVERSITIES ENTERTAIN HI SCHOOL FOLKS

An all-day business session of the members of the Shakespeare section was held at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse yesterday with Mrs. Walter Jones, curator, in charge. In response to many requests which have been received by the section it was decided to give an informal dance and card party on Friday evening, May 11, in the clubhouse. This will be the first dance that has been given by the club members and will be open to members and their friends. This will be for the purpose of raising funds to complete the payment on the section's purchase of flat silver for the club. Tickets will be 50c per person and may be obtained from members of the Shakespeare section. Music for dancing will be furnished by Kelly's Shrine Club orchestra.

Plans were discussed for the annual luncheon to be given by the section the latter part of this month. Mrs. Chester O'Neil held at the clubhouse. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to finishing up business for the year and reports of committees.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN HAIR FASHION REVUE Through the enterprise of the Glendale Odd Fellows' lodge and Carnation Rebekahs, Glendale is to have something novel in the way of an entertainment next Friday evening at Odd Fellows' hall, 201-A West Broadway, when a "Hair Fashion Revue" and dance will be given, for which Kelly's Shrine Club orchestra will furnish music, and all for 50c.

As every Glendale woman wants to be initiated into the latest fashions in hair coiffure and every man wants to be in the mode, there will probably be a great rush for tickets. The proceeds will be used for the purchase of additional regalia, which is badly needed because of the rapid growth of the local lodges.

The men's class accepted a challenge from the Friendship class for a membership contest to end the third week in June. Games and light refreshments completed the evening's entertainment. Mrs. W. Q. Widdows is teacher of the Friendship Class.

MISS SNELL'S OLD CLASS CALLS ON HER Last Saturday members of the class in the Tropic Presbyterian Sunday School that Miss Tirza Snell used to teach went with their present teacher, Mrs. Hyers, to Monrovia for a visit and picnic lunch with Tirza and her sister, Phoebe Snell, who are doing settlement work in a Mexican mission there. Phoebe devotes all her time to it but is assisted evenings by Tirza who is employed during the day in a store at Duarte. They like the work and the people are so appreciative that they have procured a Ford car for their use in getting to the Mexican stock and others who need their ministrations. It was a great pleasure to the two young women to see the Glendale delegation which numbered about sixteen.

TRAILING WILD ANIMALS AT THE GLENDALE

Manager Howe Shows the Safe Way to Do It by Film Route

The Metro presentation of Martin Johnson's "Trailing African Wild Animals," the seven reel sensation which has opened at the Glendale theater has probably been endorsed by more organizations than any other picture ever shown in the city. Henry Fairfield Osborne, president of the American Museum of Natural History in New York, has even suggested to Mr. Johnson the advisability of inserting on the introductory title of the Martin Johnson picture a caption which should read as follows: "Endorsed by the American Museum of Natural History as a scientific record of the free wild animals in Africa, in their native haunts." Mr. Osborne goes on further to say that in view of the museum's endorsement and as a part of the record of this agreement that they desire to have a copy of the Martin Johnson picture deposited with the museum where it will be available for research and scientific studies and will become a part of the museum's reference library of motion pictures which is intended to include only authentic natural history records.

EDITORIALS BY THE PEOPLE

Editor Glendale Press:

I was very much interested in the article "Doing Away with the Trees."

I have wished for a long time some one would bring the subject before the people. Trees surely lend enchantment to any community.

I fall to see why they are in the way of progress only in rare cases. Whenever I see these beautiful palms, peppers, etc., destroyed I want to say: "Woodman, spare that tree! Touch not a single bough!"

I will surely not be a lovely California if all these lovely trees are done away with.

I heartily agree with the writer of the article that the Sanitarium grounds should be acquired by the city for a public square. Glendale needs such a convenience greatly. It would help bring more tourists to our city. I have frequently heard people bemoan the fact about having no park close in.

The grounds are so centrally located and it would be an ideal spot for Glendale's square.

FREE CIRCUS FOR ALL THURSDAY EVENING

City Actors to Repeat Fun Revue at High School Auditorium

Yes, free to everybody, no admission charge. Circus day on Thursday evening at the high school, and everybody invited to come absolutely free. The Glendale Community Players have consented to repeat this sparkling musical comedy under the auspices of Community Service on Thursday evening in the high school auditorium at 8:15 p. m. The first part of the Fun Revue is called Circus Day. Clowns will be there, and the snake charmer, and the wild woman—come and see for yourselves. The second part is called the "Wedding Day"—everybody loves a lover, and here you will see a beautiful bride almost married to the wrong man—but the right man at the last moment and—but come and see; it will cost you nothing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. M. Burton, who have recently moved to a new home in the northwest district, were shocked Monday to receive news of the severe injury of Mrs. Burton's sister, Mrs. A. A. Rock, wife of Dr. Rock, in an automobile accident in Milwaukee. Mrs. Burton made all preparations to leave last night if her sister was still alive at the time of starting. She has another sister who lives in Ashville, N. C.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR MRS. EASTON ON WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held at the Seavern Undertaking Parlors Wednesday at 2 o'clock for Mrs. Sarah E. Easton, mother of Mrs. Flora Hollenbeck of 1123 Western avenue, and H. E. Easton of 1119 Stanley avenue, Glendale, also W. H. Easton of Montebello, Cal., and Mrs. Anna Corgan of Wagner, Okla.

The accident which resulted in her death occurred Thursday last at 6 o'clock about two miles south of Tulare. Accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Easton, the mother and uncle of Mrs. W. H. Easton, she was returning from a visit to San Francisco. The right front wheel of the car broke causing the auto to overturn and she was crushed beneath it. She was removed with other injured members of the party to the Tulare Hospital and there passed away Friday morning at 3 o'clock.

Her son who was driving the car suffered a fractured arm and two or three broken ribs. Her daughter-in-law also fractured an arm and broke a collar bone. Mrs. W. H. Easton's mother suffered a severe nervous shock and was badly bruised but no bones were broken. Mrs. Easton's uncle fractured an arm and had his back severely sprained.

Mrs. Sarah E. Easton was born in Dixon, Ill., May 4, 1854, and died in Tulare, April 27, 1923. She had resided in Glendale for fifteen years. She was a widow, her husband having passed away in 1917. She was the mother of three other children who died several years ago. For a number of years she had been a member of the Church of the Brethren. The services will be conducted by Brother Eikenberry of Long Beach, and interment will be made in Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

SPILLS FRUIT FOR MARKET Fruit attacked by the orchard-leaving roller larvae when small, develops into very irregular shapes and is unfit for market, says Anthony Spuler, entomologist at the State College of Washington. The first work of the larvae is upon the opening buds, blossoms, newly formed leaves and forming fruit, all of which may be partially or entirely destroyed. In cases where the trees are severely infested the leaves may have all the leaves eaten off. Trees that thus lose their leaves one year are in no condition to bear fruit the next.

Beware of the pensive maid, young man; she is apt to develop into an expensive wife.

An eight-room $4000 duplex is being finished at 825 North Pacific avenue for Frederick Farum of 415 South Lincoln street.

Mrs. Sophie McKay of Los Angeles has ordered a five-room special stucco bungalow for 1122 Green street, which is now under construction.

Contract was signed with D. F. Richardson for the construction of a $3800 five-room frame residence with garage to match. The appearance of this bungalow will be distinguished by an outside fireplace. Ground has been broken at 210 West Palmer avenue for a $29,900 sixteen unit bungalow court, consisting of six duplexes and four apartments, which Mr. Beran will own himself. Lumber will be the principal material.

Another job to be started soon is a $15,500 four-unit building to be erected at 535 North Glendale avenue for J. J. Gribbin. This will be two-stories in height and of stucco over frame.

One of the largest jobs on the books is a $31,070 apartment house for the northwest corner of Harvard street and Glendale avenue. The property has a frontage of sixty-seven feet on Harvard street, and a depth of 110 feet on Glendale avenue. The building will cover almost the entire lot. Its interior will be divided into sixteen single apartments and four double apartments. The construction will be stucco over frame. It will be completed in less than ninety days.

Employment is given to about sixty-three men by the S. S. Beran company. This number includes eight plasterers, nine finish carpenters, two crews of rough carpenters, two crews of cement workers

OIL PROMOTERS STANDARDIZED BY NEW LAW

Unscrupulous Operators to Feel Effect of New State Statute

SACRAMENTO, May 1.—Legitimate business has been materially aided and a staggering blow struck at unscrupulous oil promoters and stock jobbers by Governor Friend William Richardson signing assembly bill No. 983 by Assemblyman Elmer P. Bromley amending the corporate securities act, otherwise known as the California blue sky law. This announcement was made today by Commissioner of Corporations Edwin M. Daugherty.

This bill includes three of the most drastic and important changes in "blue sky" legislation in years. They are: Controlling operations of "individuals" dealing in mining and oil securities; bringing within the purview of the Corporate Securities Act flotation of bond issues by "individuals" and bonding brokers.

Many "individuals" were actually companies resorting to subterfuge seeking to avail themselves of any technicality or loophole in the corporate securities act so as to evade supervision in flotation of questionable oil securities. The rulings of the Attorney General backing the department in its effort to curb the riot of wild promotion in the California oil fields stood until the first of March when a decision came down from the court of appeal in favor of the plaintiff in the case instituted by E. A. Lamb, a Los Angeles oil promoter.

The corporate securities act heretofore specially exempted "individuals" from its control. The Lamb case involved an "individual" floating and selling to the general public oil securities.

The bill just signed by Governor Richardson and which was prepared by Assemblyman Bromley with the aid of representative northern and southern California business men, it is believed will close up these loopholes in the law.

Within the past year or two, the increased number of bond issues by "individuals" where the securities issued were greatly in excess of the limitation usually placed upon companies have alarmed the investing public, bankers and public officials. In several instances the "individuals" have issued bonds on property of inflated value. With no sinking fund or amortization provision to protect the purchaser, in case of decline in value, this became alarming.

Hereafter "individuals" will be required to make the same showing as companies before they can sell their securities to the general public in California.

Security brokers in California will be required by the amendment to provide a bond of $5000 payable to the state of California. This bond is required to insure a faithful compliance with the provisions of, not only the corporate securities act, but all state laws.

Most brokers in California have adhered rigidly to a conscientious performance of their duty to their clients. There have, however, been some brokers, however, who have persistently engaged in fraud and have sold to the public securities that may prove to be worthless.

The act also is amended providing for a routine procedure in holding hearings on charges against brokers and agents. It now will be required that any one making a formal complaint against a broker or agent must file an affidavit with the state corporation department. The department then will notify the broker or agent accused and furnish him with a copy of the accusation before holding a hearing.

The Bromley bill passed the legislature with the unanimous approval of the assembly and senate of California.

PILULA PLUTONIS

By HIRAM A. GRAVES

Luke 4:6-7:— "And the devil said unto Him, all this power I will give Thee, and the glory thereof: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will, I give it. If Thou therefore wilt worship me all shall be Thine."

How often are we tempted by the devil with this age-old plea: how frequently he exhibits to us his earthly power, possession or honor; but with the glory that to it, that "string on it," that present final condition—"if you will worship me!" Not that he always uses just these terms; oh, no; in these advanced days he is too well versed in diplomacy and politics to come right out in the open in such a fashion. In these times of philosophical erudition his proposition is always painted, gilded, perfumed and gilded, and presents a very alluring front. And men are still so gullible; they still fall for the gilded lie; they gulp down the devil's pill when it is sugar-coated, just as they always have done. But if the pill is scraped; if we BITE the pill, the sickening result will be a sure cure—at least for the time being; but with the generality of mankind the old schemer with hoofs and horns is wise enough to concoct another pill, thicken the sweetening and procure a more attractive, slicker tongued minion to play the physician and administer the pill; but, like any other quack, he is always on time with his bill. The conditions are never varied. "Take power, possessions, glory, but GIVE ME YOUR SOUL."

Frequently the pill is so temptingly presentable, so sweet smelling, that although just a little dubious, one is apt to swallow it, washing it down with the water of desire, and perhaps perceiving no bad taste; but invariably the time ar-

Yank Whamphitheatre Still Too Small for Ruth, Thinks Dummer

Human Flies Trying to Make Upper Berths with Aid of Swiss Mountain Climbers a High Note; Dummer Got in Wrong Gate and Is Still Walking to Grandstand

By O. HOWE DUMM (Per H. I. Phillips)

I went up to Poughkeepsie last week and saw Babe Ruth open the new Yankee Whamphitheatre.

The Babe opened it at 4:04. He might as well have closed it for the day at the same hour, as nothing of consequence happened thereafter, except for a gent who fell asleep in the upper berth of the new grandstand and, nearly falling out, would have been dashed to pieces on the rockbound Red Sox couple of thousand feet below if he hadn't been saved by a couple of Woolworth Tower policemen especially hired for just such emergencies.

George Herman knocked the ball into the right field bleachers between the Harry & Mannie sign and the oil painting of the Hotel Commodore. Two men were on at the time. It made the Babe and 74,200 fans very delirious.

After that the Boston Remnants decided that big as the new park looked to them it was still a tight fit for Ruth, and tossed no more balls where his mettle could touch 'em.

There is nothing else about the game worth remembering. All it proved to me, outside of the fact that Ruth is batting as well as before he was sued for breach of promise, is that all the stuff I have read about adrenalin being used to bring the dead to life is a fake. If it could do any such thing they would have tried it on the Red Sox.

As a matter of fact, I got my big thrill out of the Whamphitheatre itself and the biggest crowd that ever elbowed its way into a baseball park in the United States or Brooklyn. I went to the game with Dummer, but he got into the center field bleacher gate by mistake. He started for the grandstand at once, but up to a late hour last night was still on route. If you don't play the right pocket at the new stadium it throws you back three or four hours.

You can get an idea how big the park is by the fact that it will seat Bill Edwards comfortably. In fact, it did.

Outfielders commute, and fly balls take twice as long to come down as in an ordinary baseball park, believe it or not. Throws from deep center will reach home by parcel post almost as quick as you can deliver them yourself.

There are stops for lunch between bases, and a number of good roadhouses in which a player can rest en route from the outfield to the dugout.

A band played in the left field bleachers yesterday, and people in the grandstand wanted to know whose idea it was to put in a phonograph without using a loud speaker.

Thirty thousand yards of concrete, I saw by the program is represented in the stadium, not counting Miller Huggins. This is about 10,000 yards more concrete than was used by the Yankees in the world's series last October.

I personally figured the park was much too big for Judge Landis to have complete jurisdiction over, and that it would look a lot more becoming on Judge Taft.

Once there was a dispute with one of the umpires, who immediately rushed to the far end of the grounds and claimed exemption on the ground of non-residence in this state.

The grandstand is an eye-ful. It is a three-decker and yesterday everything was full from steerage to first cabin. A number of well-known human flies managed to make the top row in the upper tier without mishaps. This was due largely to the thoughtfulness of Prince Rupert of Bronzkhau, who had a number of trained Swiss mountain scalars at work as guides.

Every time I took a slant at the 74,000 paid admissions yesterday I couldn't help thinking what a rough deal fate gave Colonel Ruppert when it took him out of the beer business and put him into the baseball industry.

John Philip Sousa led the band. It played "Auld Lang Syne" before the game. The Scotch influence on American life was shown by the fact most of the fans stood up and took off their hats.

locking UP instead of DOWN, we shall find that he will forget us; he is too all-fired busy with "marathon dancers" on the floor of "saxmania," and other easy marks; and he will never waste time with the one who pays no attention to him whatever. Those mistaken belligerents who stand and fight him "on his own ground" and with "his own fire" are apt to give him strength to overpower them; for he has no strength except what we give him; so let us forget him and starve him to death.

Let us direct our thoughts ever UP; being light-hearted under all afflictions; for although this is a very hard pill to swallow, and it has no sugar-coating, once taken, IT CURES! That's the answer. If we take that kind of medicine as is offered by The Wise Physician, we become immune to the "devil and all his works." It is but accept Christ as our ONLY Physician, our permanent cure is assured; and if we live as He tells us to live, all trouble, illness and want automatically disappear.

When we find ourselves acquiring a surplus of Christly courage and energy, then let us divide freely with our neighbor who may be down in the dumps. It is easier for us to cure the morally and mentally ill with Christ's Love, radiated from ourselves, than it is for all the religions in the world to capture the self-satisfied egotist who believes himself spiritually perfect; but beware how we come to feel our healing and helping power; for as soon as we begin to be perfectly conscious of our virtues, they begin to split! Let us do our part of the work and give all honor to Christ, who works through us; for what can we do without Him? We must FORGET SELF; for self-consciousness of our inner virtues is a standing invitation for the coming of the devil; it is a "radio call" for the demonic doctor and his pill case. So beware!

Whenever we contemplate an act, think of uttering a word, or formulating a thought, let us pause long enough to consider whether it is worthy of a true disciple of Christ, and if at all doubtful, FORGET IT AT ONCE. If it is right He will plainly show us that it is so, if we ask Him. He will never leave us in doubt; therefore, this is a safe measure of the import. If in doubt, do not do, say

U. S. BOATS FOR ALASKA TRADE

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.—One more step in "opening up" Alaska will be taken when the government begins operation of river boats on the Yukon and Tanana rivers this summer, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society here recently.

"Thus Fairbanks, interior metropolis of Alaska, becomes officially the place where rails and rivers meet," says the Geographic News Bulletin, "Fairbanks marks the apex of a traffic triangle with one leg planted at Seward, south end of the Alaska rail route, and the other on Bering Sea, where flow the waters of the Tanana and the Yukon."

"Fairbanks has its slogan, like its sister cities back in the states. It wants more roads and railroads, and the capital for development of its surrounding coal fields. Therefore its appeal about to realized in part. 'Give us the railway and motive power, and we will pay the nation's war debt.'"

"The Yukon is one of the world's great rivers. If its mouth were at New York City its source would be near Salt Lake City. The Tanana, the less familiar portion of the new government boat route, is the Yukon's chief southern tributary. It drains the vast Tanana valley, rich in gold, other minerals, and virgin farm lands. This Imperial Valley of the far north, as large as West Virginia, now has a white population of less than 7,000. In a dozen years after the first substantial gold output, in 1903, yellow ore worth $68,000,000 was mined.

"Steaming up the Yukon in summer time the visitor will reach a town of many flowers, where numerous homes have hot-houses, some have bird boxes on their peaks, and practically all have vegetable gardens. Wild roses and Scotch blue-bells grow in the fields.

"The town of flowers and birds and gardens is Tanana. Turning into the river of that name the visitor is assailed by less pleasant evidence that Alaska is not all winter. Mosquitoes and mooseflies abound. The Tanana is broad and placid. Green willows and poplars push out over the water's edge, for the earth banks are soft and the dirt melts away as in many places the water digs a cave beneath.

"Often turning and twisting, your boat will pass Tolovana where, on a clear day, Mt. McKinley, 100 miles away, is visible. Farther on is Nenana, now the terminus of the broad-gauge Alaska railroad from Seward. Today passengers must change here for the narrow-gauge line to Fairbanks. With the opening of the 700-foot single-span bridge across the river at this point, the narrow-gauge track width and trains will run through.

"The government railway made or think it; but put Satan behind—

10 CRACK GOLFERS INVADE BRITAIN

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 1.—Ten of America's good amateur golfers are now in England preparing to go after the Walker international cup and the British amateur title. Chances are very good for an American victory in both events.

Joe Kirkwood, the Australian star, says that one of the ten should win the amateur title, and he looks upon Jess Sweester, the Yale star and American champion as the probable winner. Kirkwood established himself as a good picker last year when he said that Walter Hagen would win the British open title.

If Sweester or one of his teammates should come out first in the tournament it would mean the passing from the Britishers of the last important title that has been saved from the invading sport army of Uncle Sam. Since 1904, when W. J. Travis won the championship the Britishers have always produced some home talent capable of beating the best in this country.

Jock Hutchison and Walter Hagen put the American program in the ascendancy in 1921 and 1922 when they won the British open championship, and with Hagen and Gene Sarazen leading the American invasion this year it seems almost certain that another American victory will result.

Babe Ruth, in the opinion of Irish Meusel, the hard-hitting Giant outfielder, will hit sixty homers this season. The Giant star also ventures the prediction that his brother, Bob, the Yankee outfielder, will smack out about forty. But the older brother says, has cut out his foolishness and will step out into the river like the good ball player that he has always given promise of becoming. It has been common belief ever since Bob came up to the big league that he would become a great star just as soon as he made up his mind to do it.

Nenana a busy little town of neat buildings and up-to-date stores. So anxious are its citizens for a 'spotless town' ideal that they prohibit any dogs within a mile of their community. The next town is Chena, which hopes to wrest future laurels from Fairbanks as the next St. Louis of inland Alaska.

Today Fairbanks retains little trace of a mining town. It has electric lights, stores, telephones, an agricultural college, jitneys run out to nearby towns and camps, and its women are reputed to be the most modishly dressed in the territory.

"The electric lighting plant is used for the chicken houses as well as homes in the dark winter, small farms and dairies are springing up around the city, and their celery, growers insist, is on Fairbanks tables before that of Massachusetts reaches Boston consumers."

"Wagner's father was a great lover of music and poetry, but unfortunately he died when Richard was only a year old. We know little about his mother except that she was fond of art and religion, and was very proud of Richard.

"The year after his father died his mother married a young lawyer who was a painter as well as an actor and poet. This was fortunate for Richard, because there was still an atmosphere of art about the home. His stepfather wanted him to become a painter. But the day before he died he heard Richard play, and said, 'Is it possible Richard has musical talent?'

Truths in Epigram

But words once spoken cannot be recalled.—Horace.

But oh ye lords of ladies intellectual inform us truly—have they not henpecked you all?—Byron.

Wisdom crieth aloud; she uttered her voice in the streets.—Old Testament.

A woman never forgets her sex. She would rather talk with a man than an angel any day.—Holmes.

TWO TYPES OF PACIFIST

Secretary of War Weeks recently issued a statement concerning pacifists. He did not mention them in terms that could be construed as complimentary. He accused them of working hand in hand with the forces that are preaching communism and the establishment of a communistic government. The careful observer of the situation is forced to concede that the secretary was right. Nevertheless to condemn the pacifist utterly would be to include many fine citizens. There is more than one type of pacifist.

The good Doctor Crane declares himself a pacifist because he hates war. If by reason of such hatred he comes within the definition, he has as company a great majority of his countrymen. Citizens of this class hardly would advocate destruction of the army and navy. It does not seem possible that they could hope to see their nation stripped and helpless in a warring world. It is a strong nation. Its capacity to defend itself, or, in the cause of righteousness, to back its conscience by force, is the sign and token of its strength. It has a great moral influence because of its potency. Deprive it of power, and it would lose this influence. It would be as a law devoid of penalty, and so, scoffed at by the evil-doer. It would be the policeman barchanded in a rabble of armed ruffians.

The elements working subtly to undermine the government, by creating contempt for the constitution, all would be glad to have the army and navy abolished. In the present absence of this possibility, they seek to cripple and hamper both these arms of defense. When pacifists, inspired by quite different reasons from those actuating the reds, join in this attempt, they are helping the reds. They do not know it. They think that their detestation of war is sufficient excuse for their conduct. When they send out misleading statistics, as they did, and as the secretary makes clear, they are not waging a proper fight for principle. They are playing into the hands of the enemy. They are pleasing the bolshevist, the I. W. W., the ultra-radical, believer in bomb and torch. All of these would be glad to see army and navy crushed out. They must chuckle in their sleeves to see how they have enlisted the aid of the decent and respectable.

In respect of being pacifist, because of believing war useless and wicked, intelligent men and women of this country form a solid group.

But as to depriving their government of means to maintain its standing, to back its opinions when necessary, the same men and women disappear, and the dissolving group holds only the rag-tag and bobtail of society, scum or dregs of the melting pot; alien anarchists, masked bolshevists, sinister even if unwitting agents of revolution and chaos.

CONCERNING CHARITY

The late Stuyvesant Fish left nothing to charity. In taking his course he was within his legal rights. However, had he said nothing of the subject in his will, the testament would have been more nearly in consonance with good taste. The inevitable suggestion of the document is that the testator felt himself to be evading a duty, and thus called upon to establish what might be termed a moral alibi.

"Having observed and always believed that charitable bequests afford the testator a means of gratifying his vanity at the expense of his heirs, I make none." So ran the paragraph.

If vanity is to be considered, then such a will as this is certain to draw far more attention than had it made modest provision for worthy people or causes.

Among the essays of Bacon is one entitled, "Of Goodness." In this is a paragraph that seems pertinent. It is as follows:

"The desire of power in excess caused the angels to fall; the desire of knowledge in excess caused man to fall; but in charity there is no excess; neither can angel or man come in danger by it."

A quotation far more familiar is from the New Testament: "Charity shall cover the multitude of sins."

Fish did not have an immense fortune as measured by the Carnegie standard. The aspersions upon the motives of the charitable perhaps was incited by the Carnegie record. The old ironmaster faced a great problem. Possessor of vast sums, he could take no part of them with him. Probably he did enjoy the wonderment occasioned by his lavish bestowal before his death. He may have thought with satisfaction of the view the world would take of his aggregate bounties after he had gone. Whatever selfish element entered into his giving of gifts may be overlooked. At least it was not the type of selfishness that withheld benefits. Better even to boast of a good deed than of the omission to perform a good deed.

A diet of milk has been found beneficial to the intelligence of under-nourished school children in England. Quite naturally, as any other wholesome diet might have been. The juvenile mind is not at its best in a famished body.

By April 28 the number of traffic accident fatalities in Los Angeles country for 1923 had reached a total of 155. When population is considered, this doubtless is the banner record for badness. Most of the accidents were of the easily avoidable class, but the trouble to avoid them had not been taken.

Bergdoll has been seen in Tia Juana, it is said. Imagination runs so free that the statement in itself is small indication that the much-wanted slacker ever was near the place.

ENGAGING SUPERSTITION

The allegation that the explorer of Tutankhamen's tomb was killed by "elementals," spirit guardians placed there on watch many centuries ago, does not seem to have perished by its own folly yet. It is kept alive by the fact that superstition survives. To the normal world of thinking, the report could not appear as other than the fantasy of a jester, or the expression of a mind diseased.

Perhaps the misfortune that has overtaken the intelligence of Conan Doyle has wide influence. There seems to be a wondrous spell exercised by the "spirit" picture, a production exposed times without number, as a fake. Any professional magician, accustomed to entertain the public by mysterious tricks, is able to give it all these pictures that it may care to see. The magician, however, makes no pretense to being genuine. Spectators know that their senses are being deluded. So deftly is the foolery perpetrated that they enjoy it. The Conan Doyles of the present are different from the magicians, in that they believe themselves, and expect others to believe them.

There are milder types of superstition, not only tolerated but encouraged. A writer for a daily paper "interprets" dreams. In the next column another explains the character and destiny of the individual, all of this important information based on the date of birth. Whether one be born April 25 or April 26, ordinarily would be deemed a trivial circumstance. But the reader of the stars puts in a negative. The whole future of the subject depends upon it, including health, longevity, morals and success.

All this is as silly a superstition as that which keeps elementals posted in a royal tomb for 3500 years for the purpose of slaying trespassers at the end of the vigil.

The woman who marries a man to reform him should not let him become aware of the game.

The Value of Babbitt

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Just been reading "Babbitt." I was a little late perhaps; but I always wait until a popular book has run the gamut of criticism and comment before I take it up.

This is not a book review. I'm only releasing a few practical thoughts suggested by Sinclair Lewis' delicious novel, "Babbitt" is delicious because the author has given an ordinary business man his normal reactions. There is nothing ideal about "Babbitt"; such dreams as he has are too anaemic to survive the chill atmosphere of public disapproval and he is restless, confused and rather pathetic.

But the point is that no one, reading the book will ever, because of it, leave the world of actuality and grow morbid and unhappy longing for a fictitious world where men function not as men but as heroes or gods. And that point is important. How do I know? Because I have seen many a good wife and mother spoiled by reading about the heroes of flaming fiction, like those so popular a generation ago. It is my solemn conviction that Ouida's novels ruined more homes than the bootleg industry is ever likely to ruin. As a child I watched a neighbor, the mother of one of my playmates, wreck her home, made her husband and children wretched and give herself over to lamentations and despair, all because she fancied that she was pre-eminently fitted to live the life of "Wanda, the Countess von Zahlrass" or "The Princess Napraxine."

Before somebody took this dame to the public library and got her to reading she was a substantial, hard-working, rather testy housewife of the middle classes; after that she was the limit, also the neighborhood lament.

Salt tears were her daily ration, for she wept for "her own." Yes, actually I heard her say it lots of time; and even as a kid the situation struck me as ridiculous. How could this substantial wife of a railroad man, who had never been out of her state, "understand" so well the lives, vanities and ambitions of the selfish and unthinking aristocracy of decadent European states?

She did not, of course; the point is that the book was artificial and it ruined a decent woman's reactions to reality. How much unhappiness are the romanticists responsible for? I wonder.

"Babbitt" may be a bit heavy in spots; it surely is so lifelike that at times it palls, especially if you have just been delivering a talk before "The United Brotherhood of Bounding Boosters." But boosters act like boosters and not like demigods and that is what "Babbitt" shows.

"Babbitt" will ruin no homes, cause no tears, though it often causes mellow laughter. Idealism is all right when it confines itself to pointing a new way; but when it idealizes or canonizes the ordinary human it's apt to confuse the vision of a good many plumbers' wives and sales girls; and heaven knows that most of them are sufficiently confused by facts.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

SHALL AND WILL (Find this error in this article.)

Requests for discussions of shall and will are very frequently received by "The Right Word." Some one wrote in the other day, saying they thought this problem one of the most difficult in the English language. Articles on the subject have appeared in the column from time to time. Today they are continued, and more will follow.

Examine the following sentence: "In reply to your request let me say that I will go to the hall at nine." The pith of the remark I made was "I will go to the hall at nine." I made a promise to go, and to make a promise in the first person I must use the word will.

What sort of answer do I expect when I ask, "Should you like to have me assist you?" You will reply as follows: "I should," i. e., "I should like to have you assist me. You use the word in my question, should, that I expect to receive in your reply. And in your reply you should not use would, for the word I would, and I like should never be placed together. The reason for this last statement is that would in the first person means determination, and the idea of being determined to like is absurd.

Now apply the foregoing arguments to the following sentences, which are correctly written:

"We should have been very much pleased if he had attended the meeting."

"We shall appreciate an early reply."

"Will he like what we have prepared?"

(Note: In the third person, shall has the same force as will in the first person.)

Yesterday's Error

Wrong: We should have been a lot pleased if he had attended the meeting.

Right: We should have been very much pleased if he had attended the meeting.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A man stood on a street corner, in the old days. He may stand on some street corner now. But perhaps not as frequently.

Because his day is not exactly past, but passing.

He stood on a small platform. Lighted with flaring gas jets.

Near him was a box-like receptacle with soap and liniment and corn medicine. Upon his head was a silk hat.

He wore a coat that was known in those days as the Prince Albert.

And he had what the boys in the street call "a fine line of talk."

As he talked he manipulated his hand. Using soap and various other things. Sometimes corn salve. Sometimes a bottle of liniment.

Any of the articles could have been bought at the corner drug store for a few cents. But the corner drug store man did not have the line of talk.

A crowd gathered at the gas-lighted platform. Listened to the man talk. Observed the silk hat and the Prince Albert coat.

And waited to discover what it was all about.

For crowds gather easily and are curious. There is a kind of capillary attraction about people. Human capillaries draw others to them.

The man with the silk hat finally took a ten dollar bill from his pocket. A bright, new, attractive one.

Marvelous the attraction of a bright new ten dollar bill for people. It represents purchasing power. The gratification of desire.

And having displayed the ten dollar bill to the crowd, the man put it in an envelope. Plainly in sight. Sealed it up.

And you could almost see the bill in the envelope.

If you did not quite see it, imagination did the rest.

Then the silk-hatted man wrapped up a cake of the soap. Held it in the same hand with the envelope enclosing the ten dollar bill. Held the hand high.

And said: "I want to introduce this soap. Who will give me a dollar for the soap and the envelope?"

And a number of persons in the crowd reached forward with dollars.

The first one with the dollar up got the soap. And the envelope. All out of the upraised hand. Retired to the edge of the crowd. Opened his envelope. And found—Nothing.

And he did not cry out. For he did not want to be known as a "sucker."

But he sought the man out afterward. And berated him.

And the man said: "I gave you a cake of soap for a dollar. You would have taken a ten dollar bill from me for a dollar. You are as great a cheat as I am."

Which indicates that in the game of get rich quick, the same spirit seems to animate both the buyer and the seller.

Songs of the Poets

To Violets—By Robert Herrick

Welcome, maids of honor,
You do bring
In the Spring,
And wait upon her.

She has virgins many,
Fresh and fair;
Yet you are
More sweet than any.

You're the maiden posies,
And, so graced,
To be placed
Fore damask roses.

Yet, though thus respected,
By and by
Yet do lie,
Poor girls, neglected.

THE FRENCH POINT OF VIEW

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT IS well for every one to try and get the other fellow's point of view.

France at present seems to be a gauntlet thrown at the rest of the world. But before we definitely condemn her we should try to get into the French mind and understand the way it looks at things.

M. Couderier, de Chassigne, one of the most widely known of French journalists, gave a pretty fair statement of the French idea in the London Sunday Times not long ago.

He brings out these points. First of all, public opinion in Paris is more difficult to gauge than in London, for the ordinary Frenchman takes but little interest in politics. The French, however, like every other people, hate to pay taxes and they are heavily taxed. Therefore all the wire pulling which goes on in the Chamber of Deputies is explained by the fact that it is an attempt to make the French pay all the state needs without realizing it.

When foreigners reproach the French for imperialism the Frenchman shrugs his shoulders and laughs. No nation is more indifferent to dreams of world power and cares less about dominating the rest of humanity.

Even in the case of Alsace-Lorraine, if that province had become a free state, a sort of Switzerland, everybody in France would have been delighted.

No one in France desires that his country should either occupy forever or annex German territory. It would be a real disaster for the country if large sections inhabited by the German race were to be forced into the French family.

The Frenchman is not quite a fool. He knows that peace has been as cruel as war and that it is now too late to get from Germany what ought to have been taken on the very morrow of victory. The Germans have been cunning and clever, and whatever money was available four years ago has now been safely stored away in far-off lands.

What France wants is "Safety." This is what has rallied the French nation around M. Poincare.

The fact that Germany has no money is no proof that she will not make war. English people make a

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

This column does not undertake to say that Mexico ought to be recognized. Its avowal is that it knows of no good reason why recognition should be withheld. Doubtless some suspicion exists as to the good faith of the request for recognition, due to the fact that it is backed heartily by the Hearst papers. Despite this handicap, however, belief in the justice of the claims of Mexico has been growing.

The law seems to be maintained there, life to be as safe as elsewhere in civilization. President Obregon has announced his determination to educate his people. He is planning to aid them industrially. He invites capital, and pledges that it shall be secure. Whatever the man's faults may be, he is the best president that Mexico has had. Diaz was a great executive, but in reality a dictator. He was looking out for the interests of Diaz rather than those of Mexico.

Mexico is potentially rich. It offers a market for American finished products, and great supplies of raw material are available there.

Along the northern border of the United States is the peaceful Canadian stretch of many hundreds of miles. On the southern border, in time, there should be another area as peaceful. If the present is too soon to go about arranging this, the public, respecting the efforts of Mexico, would like to know what the delay is about.

Michigan harbors one of these frequent but peculiar groups, with a leader supposed by his followers to be inspired. Their institution was known merely as The House of David. The police had occasion to investigate, and concluded that if it was David's house he was not keeping a very nice place.

The concern turns out to be exactly what might have been counted upon with certainty, a typical nest of immorality and nastiness.

The statement is made that a negro and a Mexican jointly were guilty of setting fire to a Japanese school at Sacramento. In the fire ten Japanese children perished. The crime appears to have been committed not as part of a campaign against the Japanese, but as the outgrowth of some underworld grudge.

There is some satisfaction in being able to tell the world that California, however much opposed to the presence of Japanese, will not tolerate the use of violence against them.

If the guilt of the suspects becomes established, there would seem to be a peculiar obligation resting on the community, to give them the limit of the law quickly.

Harding, Hughes, Hoover and Root are among the men holding an opinion concerning the world court plan that is not held by Borah. Thoughtful observers sizing up the two sides, are likely to conclude that Borah is wrong as usual. But he has a fine chance to bellow, which is his specialty.

Five hundred Russian refugees are to be admitted to this country. There need be no fear that they won't be glad and grateful. In all likelihood they will develop into good citizens. They are Russians who sought to beat back the tide of bolshevism, and were forced to flee to escape being overwhelmed.

Two cattlemen met on a ferry boat going over from Oakland to San Francisco. Evidently they did not like each other, for with brief preliminaries they began shooting. Neither was killed, but observers were scared out of a year's growth apiece.

The real point of the episode is that if the morose cattlemen had not been carrying weapons they could not have acted in such a dangerous and disagreeable manner. However, everybody who wants to tote a pistol seems to do so unquestioned.

In a recent New York tenement fire a dozen were killed and twenty injured out of the 500 occupants of the ramshackle and unkempt old structure.

New York still regards life beyond its limits as the experience of "camping out." Nevertheless it permits residents to be cooped in inflammable and insanitary shacks that would not be tolerated in any other American city.

George Ruth, a ballplayer of eminence in his profession and commanding a high salary, was sued not long ago by a young woman who alleged that he had wronged her. Later the suit was withdrawn, the plaintiff confessing that she did not know Ruth, and the whole thing was a plot.

This is not the point at which the incident should be regarded as closed. It should be closed only with the closing of jail doors, with the plotters inside.

Two "bandit queens" have been sentenced to the penitentiary. It was about time for the unthroning of the type of criminal royalty. Heretofore there had seemed to exist a belief that gallantry towards the weaker sex should extend to the she thug and robber, quite evidently an ethical error due to oversteering the value of courtesy.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

The old professor used to say that it isn't necessary to work at all in this world.

"Anyhow," he said, "not if you can do enough thinking."

The old professor had hardly proved up on his theory. He had been a crook of sorts all his life, and during that period of it in which I was able to observe him had worked harder at being dishonest than any honest man I know. But there is a grain of sense in his idea for all that. The more you think the less you need use the shoulder muscles. As Charlie Collins has been able to prove.

Charlie has been running a tannery on the capital of a shoestring, so to speak. The future looks bright. But for the immediate, pressing, unpleasant present his progress toward a brighter day resembles a gentleman hurriedly beating it across paper-thin ice. The hindmost foot is forever in the water. I couldn't run that sort of a concern myself. I'd call in the creditors and tell 'em to take it. Charlie has a different system.

"I do not like that last bill of goods," he said to one man last week. "It doesn't seem just up to your standard."

The shipper had called on Charlie with the intention of getting pay, his goods back, or two or three of Charlie's right eyes. But the moment the quality of the shipment was impugned his attitude changed. In the end Charlie consented—consented, mind you—to try to get along with this doubtful material a little while longer. "And neither said a word about pay."

"I had to stand him off that way," said Charlie to me. "I didn't have the money. So I worried him instead."

That may do for Charlie, but it would not do for me. A juggler may be able to keep a plate in the air. But if it ever does fall, it's done for.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

A purple dye used by the natives of Guatemala at the present time is obtained from a species of shell-fish very similar to the one from which the famous Tyrian purple of old was derived.

The average stand of Douglas fir in the northwest at the beginning of the white settlement was not over a third of the acreage volume which represents the maximum possibilities of such forests.

The average length of life of the tractors used on the farms in the Corn Belt is estimated to be 6.6 years.

The British government has purchased the ship used by Captain Scott on his South Polar trip of 1901 for a scientific expedition to trace the migration, numbers and rate of reproduction of whales in the Antarctic.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Harvey's recall has been demanded by a number of persons who lack authority or influence.

The allies, negotiating peace with Germany and Turkey both, seem likely to experience a period of being busy.

Public schools will be guarded against the insidious attacks of ultra radicals, and don't you forget it.

Soviet propaganda would not have a ghost of a show in this country if the truth concerning Russian conditions ever became fully known.

"No White House for Me" says Mrs. Henry Ford. Probably an excellent guess.

Police seem to be pulling down the pillars of the House of David.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE INEVITABLE NOMINEE

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

No tradition in politics is better fixed than that a President is entitled to renomination for a second term. The only President since the Civil war who did not receive the honor—leaving the controversial case of Roosevelt out of consideration—was Hayes and he announced himself a one-termer by choice from the first. Even William H. Taft, admittedly unpopular as his administration had become, was not denied this customary measure of party approval.

Nothing less than a positive declaration on President Harding's part would persuade his party to nominate another in his place in 1924. Nothing less than positive physical disability would be likely to inspire the President to refuse the honor. Recent formal announcements by men close to the President that he will be a candidate again in 1924 are to be taken rather as strategic moves than as statements of anything new or surprising.

It is difficult to imagine anything surer in politics than that the republican national convention next year will renominate Mr. Harding and with him, presumably Vice President Coolidge. In all probability there will be complimentary votes cast for a few favorite sons, though even this is not certain. Strong

REED FURNITURE AUCTION TO BE HELD HERE

The Lambert Reed Furniture store, 223 South Brand boulevard, to introduce its large and varied stock of reed furniture, will put on an auction, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, and it will be possible to buy high grade furniture at almost your own price. Mr. Lambert, proprietor of the store, says this three-days auction will be one that should bring people from every part of the surrounding country, and he plans on putting out some goods on these days that will be the biggest bargains ever offered in this section, Los Angeles not excepted.

The auction sale is given as an introductory event. Mr. Lambert has put in one of the biggest stocks of reed furniture to be found anywhere, and having his own manufacturing plant, is in a position to sell very low. He wants to acquaint the people of this section with his goods and to do this is going to give a three-days auction at which unheard of prices will be made.

Do not fail to be on hand at the auction. You will be surprised to see the line of high grade furniture carried here.

The magazine poet may be equal to his task, but few of his readers are.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

OLD STUFF

I said to Little Mary, with her hair that gleamed like gold,
Little Very Modern Mary who was only five years old:
"Oh, see the great big bear!" And she said to me: "Just where?"
And I answered: "Don't you see it hiding right behind your chair?"
Then she said: "There is no bear there and you know it very well."
And you ought to be ashamed, Sir, such a fairy tale to tell."

JAMES W. JOLEY I apologized profoundly and I said: "It used to be. There were bears in every corner if you only chose to see."

And she answered me: "I know it and it was a burning shame To make-believe such nonsense and you parents were to blame. No wonder little children were neurotic and depressed When you frightened them with bears and things and kept them so distressed."

"Yes, you filled the minds of children up with nonsense and with fear, And you made them highly nervous, and it cost them very dear. You made them scream with laughter quite hysterical, both boys And girls, when all the time you should have taught them what is wise. And fairy tales we know are trash and all those silly rhymes Of Riding Hood and Mother Goose—you're quite behind the times."

"I hope you will admit there is no bear behind my chair. And so let us to the movies there to see a soul laid bare. The children of this present day are not like those of old, And fairy tales and Mother Goose and those things leave us cold." And then she took me by the hand and we went forth from there And saw a moving picture where they laid a soul quite bare.

VALENCIA ORANGE SHOW TO TELL ITS STORY

Show to Open at Anaheim on May 22

The story of the California Valencia orange will be told in pageant, song and color, at the third annual Valencia orange show which will be held at Anaheim for nine days beginning May 22. A colorful pageant, depicting the origin, early struggle and final triumph of the famous product will be presented, participated in by a bevy of pretty misses and a large number of school children.

The presentation is now being arranged by Miss Lettie Carroll, a resident of the orange belt metropolis and a keen student of the citrus fruit industry. A hundred or more school children, appropriately costumed, will represent the barriers that stood in the way of the early orange cultivators, such as scale, red spiders and other parasites. A Santa Ana "typhoon" will be included, in which a bevy of young ladies in streaming robes will take part.

There will be a chorus of "smudge pots" who will take part in the battle against the parasites. Many of the early pioneers of the orange belt will appear costumed as in the days of old and will lend effective atmosphere to the scene. Special scenery and elaborate costumes are now being designed. The pageant will be presented at one of the evening performances.

The indications are that the 1923 California Valencia Orange Show will be one of the greatest affairs of its kind ever held in the southland. Malcolm A. Frasher, manager, announced that virtually all of the exhibition space in both the citrus tent and the automotive tent had been contracted for.

The music war which raged between the exponents of classic airs and jazz melodies has been settled to the satisfaction of all. The Philharmonic musicians, under the leadership of A. R. Sherhard have been engaged and will dispense popular melodies. The Henry Le Bonte-Harry Girard quartet has been engaged to render vocal numbers. Both will present daily programs, appearing in the afternoon and the evening.

Henram Stern, chairman of the executive committee, states that the city will be able to handle the largest crowds in its history, during the entire nine days of the exposition.

Make "care with fire" your watchword in the woods.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., May 1.—The boy police officers of the safety patrol organized in the public schools of this city are polishing up their badges for an active season's work. Chief of Police M. T. Accident prevention is the aim of the patrol. The youthful officers try to keep the little ones from stealing rides on automobiles and other vehicles, warn them against running into the street without looking both ways, cut short too
