BLOOMS, AND SNOW TIME.
How the year's are fading from us!
How the summers come and go!
Scarce the earth is filled with blossoms Ere 'tis whiter with the snow.

And the blossoms, and the snow-flakes,
In their turn, about our dead!
Which were so fair, bloom, or snow time, Never mourning heart hath said.
Songs the birds have heard, but sing not—
Other than than from of bees, Mothers list for in the silence Of the shadow of the trees.

Something other than the brightness From above, and from below, That the eyes of travelers homeward, Missing footsteps in the snow.

If but years were fading from us, Did but just the east winds stir, That sweep, snow-white, from the playground Into Death's dark aisle drift.

Which more joyous, bloom, or snow time Never forget heart might know, So the child's song wooed the blossoms, I And its footfall marked the snow.

"THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET" AND ITS AUTHOR, SAMUEL
WOODWORTH.

I have heard it said from my childhood that the author of this beautiful poem was a native of Weymouth, and I am told that some have even seen the house where he lived. This tradition seemed to me worthy of additional credence when I saw it stated in a short biographical notice of Samuel Woodworth, in Hilliard's Fifth Reader, and also in Allen's Biog. Dictionary, knowing however how readily one writer copies from another, a fact so unlikely to be mistaken, I was still open to the conviction, (on sufficient proof) that these authorities were all incorrect.

This proof I have found in a book published by Asten & Lones of New York in the year 1818, entitled, the Poems, Odes, Songs, and other Metrical Effusions of Samuel Woodworth, Author of "The Champions of Freedom," &c., containing a biographical sketch of the Poet, from which we collate the following information:

Samuel Woodworth was born in Scituate, Mass., Jan. 13, 1785. He was the youngest of four children, his father being a farmer, and a soldier of the revolutionary army; being unable to give his children an education equal to his wishes, our author's acquirements, at the age of fourteen, comprised but a partial knowledge of reading, writing, and arithmetic.
No school was taught in the village, except during winter months, but the subject of this sketch had evinced traits of genius, in several trifling effusions in verse, and he was placed under the care of Rev. Nehemiah Thomas, where he remained one winter, during which time he was taught the English and Latin grammars, and made some proficiency in the study of the classics; but the unpropitable employment of writing verses retarded his more useful pursuits, and his advancement in life was ever opposed by the same unpropitious attachment to an art which found him poor and kept him so.

The reverend preceptor was so highly pleased with his pupil that he began to conceive ways and means to give him a liberal education, and after consulting with his more wealthy parishioners, he found so much reason to anticipate success, that he imparted the project to the boy, who could hardly contain himself at the prospect of his most ardent wish being gratified. But both were destined to disappointment. No one came forward to aid the design, and his friends decided that he should learn a trade. He chose that of a printer, and was bound apprentice to Ben Russell, then editor and publisher of the Columbian Sentinel, with whom he continued until his apprenticeship expired, in 1806. During this period he employed his leisure hours in writing poetry for different publications, under the signature of Solim. On the expiration of his apprenticeship, he continued with his employer for a year, when he suffered himself to be drawn into hazardous speculations, the result of which was a temporary absence from the State.
He was furnished with funds by a friend, and having directed his views to the South, he procured employment in the town on the way. This expectation met with disappointment, for after vainly applying at the printing establishments on the road, he found himself in the city of New Haven, a stranger, with blistered feet and an empty purse. Here he obtained employment, and after working nine months, procured a press and type and commenced the publication of a weekly paper entitled the "Belle-Lettres Repository." As might have been expected, the "cash receipts" were insufficient to meet the expenses, and in two months the publication was suspended, and encumbered with a burden of debt he gave vent to his feelings in a poem of 600 lines and left the city. By a few weeks employment in Hartford he was enabled to return to his paternal home, "the pale, dejected picture of despair." After spending a few days in Scituate, he again set out on foot, in search of fame and fortune, assuring his friends, in the most solemn manner, that he would never again revisit the spot of his birth, unless he was accompanied or preceded by one or both of the objects of his pursuit. He was next found in Baltimore, and the following spring proceeded to New York, where in 1810 he formed an attachment for a young lady, with whom he was united in marriage, and was blessed with four beautiful children.

During the contest between the United States and Great Britain Mr. Woodworth conducted a paper called "The War," and a monthly magazine devoted to the promulgation of the doctrines of the "New Jerusalem," of which church he was a professor and for some time a licenciate in the city of New York. Neither of the publications were profitable, and the materials were sold for debt.

Discouraged by failures, he obtained the situation of foreman in the office of the daily Columbian, where he continued till 1816, when Mr. C. N. Baldwin contracted with him to write a history of the war in the style of a romance, entitled the "Champion of Freedom." Though already known to the public as the author of several poems, which had met with a very flattering reception, the character of a novelist was altogether new to him, and he undertook the task with difficulty. The work was commenced in March, and ready for delivery in October following, during most of which period he faithfully discharged the duties of foreman in the office where it was printed.

If further proof is needed it may be found in one of the poems in this Vol. entitled "My Mother's Grave," which contains among others the following lines: Then as the shades of evening veil'd the plains, Back to yon mansion we would getly stroll, The humble benefice which still sustains The careful guardian of the Christian soil.
Beneath that roof, I first inhaled the air, Poor were my parents, hard they earned their bread, &c., &c.
Along yon flag-steps, where the whispering reeds And fragrant flags upon its borders play Where through those cedars it meand'ring leads,
My infant footsteps first were taught to stray.

A foot note describes the "mansion" above as the "Parsonage House of the North Parish of Scituate, about a mile and a half from the harbour," and the "streamlet" as a "well-known brook, leading from Beaverdam Swamp to the harbour."

The following copied from the town records of Scituate supplies the last link in the chain of proof.

"Samuel Woodworth, son of Benjamin Woodworth and Abigail his wife, born January 13, 1784."

Samuel Woodworth died, (so says Allen's Am. Biog. Diet.) in New York, Dec. 9, 1842, aged 57.

NATEAUNTE.

A LIVE TOWN.

Here is a Western story and like many things that comes from the West, is good to read and laugh over.

A minister from a certain town started to go one day on a kind of missionary enterprise. He drove his own team; and when within about six miles of his journey, he met a man limping along, with the blood running down one side of his face. The minister asked him if he was on the road to Oshkosh.

"Yes, you are on the right road. I've been up there having a little fun with the boys."

About two miles further on he met another man, one arm in a sling, one eye badly lamed, and his clothing in a badly delapidated condition.

"How far is it to Oshkosh?" asked the minister.

"Only (he-ci) five miles," answered the pitiable object. "Oshkosh is a live town.
I've just been up there having a little fun with the boys."

With a sad heart the minister drove on, falling into a reverie on the depravity of man in general, and the Osh-koshians in particular, when he suddenly came upon a man sitting upon the opposite side of the road. One arm was sprained, one bitten off; and seated by the side of a puddle of water, he was seeking relief by bathing the parts affected.

The minister was perfectly awe-struck.
Stopping his horse, he enquired of the man what terrible accident had befallen him.

"O, not any at all," faintly responded the bleeding wreck. "I have only just been up to Oshkosh, having a little fun with the boys."

"I suppose you mean by that, that you have been engaged in some brutalizing fight," said the minister.

"Yes," said the man, "I have heard that's what they call it down at Fond du Lac where they are civilized; but they don't call it by that name up at Oshkosh. There they call it having a little fun with the boys."

"What do you suppose your wife will say when she sees you?" asked the reverend gentleman.

At this the man looked up with a sardonic smile. Putting his remaining well hand into a pocket, he pulled out a piece of a nose, a large lock of hair, to which a large piece of the scalp was attached, and a piece of flesh he had bitten from the cheek of his opponent, and holding them out for the minister's inspection, growled out:

"There, what do you suppose his wife will say when she sees him?"

This was a speechee. As anxious as the minister was to overcome sin and do good, he was not yet prepared to invade the devil's stronghold; and turning around, he returned home. The next time he starts on a missionary enterprise to the frontier town of Oshkosh, he will take good care not to go alone. He like a little fun now and then, but he don't care about having it with the boys.

KNIGHTS OF ST. CRISPIN.
CIRCULAR.

The order of KNIGHTS OF ST. CRISPIN take this method to dress you as Journeyman Boot and Shoe Makers, to call your attention, if possible to the great necessity at the present time for Boot and Shoe Makers to look to their own interest, and work for their own welfare.
A few candid thoughts from any sober-minded man must be convincing proof that shoemakers as a class, for the last fifteen or twenty years, have worked in direct opposition to their own well-being and the good of the trade generally.

To be brief, let us consider what shoe-making was, and what it now is. Any journeyman who has worked at the business say from twelve to twenty years, knows that the time when a shoemaker could get work twelve months in a year, without begging for it, and at a fair price, and without feeling that he was a burden on the community, and placed here for no good whatsoever, only because it happened to be an accident that he could not help. But how is it to-day? We can generally have plenty of work, and at fair prices, and feel that our services are needed six months in a year. It may possibly happen, one year out of five, our services are needed eight months, but usually not more than six. Comments upon this state of affairs are unnecessary; but, to say the least, it is certainly unpleasant. When manufacturing commenced to go West, workmen could run away from this state of affairs by going West, where their services were needed twelve to eighteen months in a year; but this has now found its level.
Workmen have now got as numerous in the West, in proportion to the amount of manufacturing, as they are East; consequently they are needed here only six months; and this six months is not in the winter, when there is nothing else that a man can do, but in the busiest part of the year, when there is plenty of outdoor work. Is this right? Is it as it should be? Is there any reason why shoemaking should be the poorest mechanical business in the country? We think not. But cannot we devise some means by which we can better our condition as a class of mechanics? This is in question of great importance, and one for ourselves to settle. We, of course, are aware that the above does not apply to every shoemaker; for we know there are always a few favored ones that it is necessary to keep at work the year through; but we are speaking as a general rule.

Now, let us consider what the cause for all this is. In treating a disease, the proper course is first to remove the cause, and the disease soon passes away.
Now, is it proper for us to put the cause of all this on the manufacturer? Is he the one who has made us better off than our forefathers? Has he done more than we would have done with the same chance?
Is it not perfectly natural, and not only natural but actually necessary, for him to get his goods manufactured as cheap as possible? In fact, he must do this to compete with his neighbors, or he cannot succeed. We say, let us exonerate the manufacturer from blame, and let it rest upon him rightfully belongs, until every man rises in his strength, and does what he can to remedy the evil. What, now, is the real cause? Two short and simple words answer all—SURPLUS HELP.
Is not this an undeniable fact? Can any man, doing this, be a better off than our forefathers? We answer, No! No!
Then, admitting this, we come home to the point at once. We are the guilty party, after all, and the only guilty ones; or who has manufactured surplus help but ourselves? No one. Then admitting this fact, who can better remove the trouble than ourselves? Is any one else capable of doing it? Can any one else do it successfully? We think not.
Then what is the cause for us to pursue?
In what way can we succeed? We say, ORGANIZE! ORGANIZE! By all means, and that immediately. The first thing you will probably say is: O, we cannot do that; for we have got such an element to contend with, we cannot do it. It has been too often tried, and always failed; no use of this. We contend that it is not so. We have never organized as to mean business. To get up a petty organization in every city and town, and each to work on a plan of their own, and different from each other, without any real principle or harmony of action, of course cannot succeed. It is impossible. Let us look at organizations that have been gotten up. How have they been managed? We think they have not had any real principle to work on, we, at least, no principle that was to strike at the root. As far as our knowledge goes, these organizations have been kept in too small a space; have not been extended as they should have been; and generally the principle worked on was to get more pay. This was to be accomplished by strikes—nothing else. Now, a strike, if taken at the right time, may yet what is demanded for the time being.
But does this go to the bottom? Does it strike at the root? As soon as sales are over, where is your strike? Your employer does not forget, and knows his time has come, and does not often fail to take advantage of it. You have not yet steps to reduce the amount of help, but probably have multiplied it to a considerable degree, thereby increasing the evil. These organizations have usually failed after running a short time, from the fact that there was nothing to bind them together. Business was made too public a thing; outsiders knew us much as those inside; and as soon as the excitement was over, the interest was gone, and the whole thing soon failed.

Now, admitting that the cause of the disease is too much surplus help, and suppose an organization was in successful operation all through the manufacturing States, under one great head, with the one great principle of not allowing its members to learn new hands without the consent of the society; is it not easy to see that, in a short time, we must use up this surplus help? And, with no surplus help in the business, we should have no trouble in getting constant work, and at fair prices, and all this without even a strike or any hard feelings.— Strikes always produce bad feelings, and in the end do more harm than good, as reaction is sure to follow.

We will here explain what the Knights of St. Crispin are. The boot and shoe-makers of this place, feeling the great necessity of some movement to at least improve our condition, called a private meeting of a few of the craft, talked the matter over, and decided to organize on a different plan from the one usually adopted; and, judging the future by the past, we decided unanimously to establish a secret organization—something that, to our knowledge, has not been tried in this country. We therefore drafted a constitution, by-laws, and such forms and ceremonies as we thought proper, with the main principle of not allowing members to learn new hands without the consent of the lodge; and, knowing that St. Crispin was a shoemaker by trade, we took upon ourselves the name of Knights of St. Crispin, and commenced to initiate with great success, far better than we at first expected. But we well know that, if we confined it to this place alone, we should never accomplish the great object.
What we desire is, to extend this organization all over the country, and thinking of distributing circulars to all the large manufacturing cities and towns, showing what we have done in this direction, we might wake up a feeling in other places of the same kind; then have a convention of all the Unions of Boot and Shoe-makers, and organize a National Lodge, and establish a permanent thing. We can then easily accomplish our object. But with little petty societies here and there, working on such a small scale, without any general understanding with all other societies of the craft, we shall never accomplish much. We would therefore invite all Boot and Shoe Makers Unions, and all men upon that business, to the effect of establishing a National Union, so that we may have a general understanding, and work together in harmony with each other, and we shall see that in union we shall have strength.

But, shoemakers, wake up! Organize in every manufacturing city and town.
Let us soon have a national organization that we may be proud of. We are the majority; we can do as we please if we will unite and work together for our own interest.

Any information in regard to the above will be given by addressing K. CRISPIN, East Weymouth, Mass.

THE RAMPAGIOUS BRAKEMAN.

Soon after the opening of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, there chanced to be travelling over the line, in a car where there were but few passengers, a gentleman who was seated opposite the stove, wrapped up in his shawl and meditations. Night came on, Presently in bounded a brakeman, loudly slamming the door behind him—one of those country geniuses, who with a laudable ambition had a day or two ago abandoned the fiddle, the fiddle, and the plough, to "climb in the world," and became a brakeman. He had been the king-bee at all neighboring frolics, at the house-raising, at the corn shuckings, and at the cross-road's doggerly fighting ground, and now he felt sure that he was a king-bee on railroads. Strutting up to the stove he slammed down his lantern, kicked the mud from his huge boots, on the foot-board of the seat, spit the tobacco juice copiously and noisily on the hissing stove, crossed his muscular thighs, took a view of the firebrand below, with harness leather straps, and then bethought himself of the "customer" sitting opposite, on whom he proceeded to bestow a lengthened and saucy look, as though he doubted the "customer's" right to be in the coach at all. At length he sought knowledge:

"What are your name, Mister?"

"To Dalton, sir," responded the gentleman quietly.

"Pleaser, ain't you?"

"No, sir, I am not; but why do you ask?"

"Oh! nothing, only I thought I saw
'Hark from the tomlins' sticking out all over you like the measles. You know me, I reckon?"

"I am sorry to say that I do not."

"Well, I'll just be cam; why whar were you raised?"

"At Maryville, East Tennessee."

"Oh! that excuses you, for I never heard tell of that settlement before, and I knows every place, I dus'."

"You seem to be well acquainted with the place you are now occupying; remarked the stranger, almost choking with efforts to suppress his laughter.

"What place do you mean, Mister?
This ere 'red bairn' covered with the dried skins of cows' tongues, or my affects?"

"I allude to your office, and by the way, what is your position on this road?"

"Brakeman, by the jumpin' gamony; I tho't everybody know'd that; brakeman over the Yeast Tennessee and Georgia Railroad."

"Unfortunately I did not know it."

"Well, you'd soon find the fact out if you'd cut off my shimes now; yere, lug gin' wimmin, or trying to steal anyboddy's carpet bag, or talking sassy to the conductor or 'rith. I'd a chucked you but foremos' thru' that window, like dar-tin' clap-bards through the cracks of a barn, for I nuthin' to run this ere train on high moral principles, I dus. An' you didn't know I was the brakeman on this yere railroad?"

"Indeed, sir, I did not."

"Well, old Shidecase, all I has got to say is that for a man of your looks, you knows that any man I ever saw. How do you manage to make a livin' any how?"

"I receive a salary; I am President of this road; Wallace is my name; but I have not the pleasure of knowing yours, will you be kind enough to inform me?"

All symptoms of 'king-bee' disappeared at this thunderbolt announcement, and in their stead were seen timid humility, crushed pride of place, a strong 'get up and git' expression, and a most refounded hang-dog 'done up' and 'dog-gone' appearance generally. The brakeman slid.

LEATHER TANNING.

Catechu will practice four or five times the quantity of leather that oak bark will. A considerable quantity of this tannin is used, but the quality of the leather from catechu is not equal to oak bark tanned leather. The process is much quicker and the tanner is able to save time by the use of catechu; nevertheless the action of this substance on the leather is not satisfactory, as the leather is soft and spongy and absorbs moisture.

Valonia is the fruit of a tree which is known by the name of "beech cups"; it comes from Italy, Turkey and the East Indies. The leather tanned with Valonia is not liable to absorb moisture, and for this reason is preferred by many to oak bark, and presents the advantage of imparting to the leather a smooth, soft, and nice texture, which is thoroughly impervious to water. Two pounds of this tannin will make one pound of leather.

Catechu is taken from a tree, acacia catechu, which grows mostly on the Malabar coast. The sap or bark of this tree is boiled, the solution evaporated, and the astringent matter is taken by this process. There is another kind of catechu brought from the East which is known by the name of gambir. This is collected on the shore of the Malacca; the wood, bark, and leaves are boiled in water, and when evaporated there is added sago to give it a body; it is then

A SMALL TRANSACTION.—Some Rip Van Winkle elements of our neighboring town of Colasset have lately become impressed with the notion that "public good and necessity" required the removal of the unoffending telegraph poles of the South Shore Railroad Co. from their position on the Common in that place...

COLASSET, MAY 13, 1867.

To the Selectmen of the Town of Colasset: Gentlemen.—The South Shore Rail Road Company, respectfully request your honorable board, to give them a writing, specifying where posts may be located, for a telegraph line for their use, according to the Revised Statutes of Mass., Chap. 64 sec. 3.

Very respectfully,
South Shore R. R. Co.,
by T. Henry Perkins, Pres.

At a meeting of the Selectmen this day begun and held for the purpose: On the request, aforesaid, ordered, that the South Shore Rail Road Co. by T. Henry Perkins, President, have permission to erect a line of telegraph from the depot in Colasset to Pleasant Beach, thence to the junction of Jernsalem Road and Rockland street to connect with a line running to Hull, over Nantasket Beach in Hull.

Very respectfully,
J. Q. A. LOTHROP, Selectmen
SOLOMON J. BEAL, ZACHARIAS RICH,
Colasset, May 18, 1867.

The Corporation has been served with the following notification of the action of the town:

To T. Henry Perkins, President of the South Shore Rail Road Company.
Dear Sir:—Enclosed please find an attested copy of a vote passed by the town at its last annual meeting in regard to the telegraph poles now erected upon the Common.

You are requested by this Board to remove or cause to be removed on or before the first day of May next all telegraph poles on said Common belonging to you or the South Shore Rail Road Company in accordance of the within vote of the town.

Respectfully yours,
J. Q. A. LOTHROP, Selectmen
MARTIN LINCOLN, Colasset, Colasset, March 24, 1868.

Copy. CLERK'S OFFICE,
COLASSET, March 13, 1868.

At a legal meeting of the inhabitants of the town of Colasset qualified to vote in town affairs, held in the Town Hall, the second day of March 1868, in pursuance of warrant for calling the same, it was voted, on the 17th article, viz:

What action will the town take in regard to the telegraph poles erected on the Common? as follows:

That the Selectmen be instructed to remove all of the telegraph poles standing on the Common.

A true copy of Records, Attest,
EDWARD TOWER, Town Clerk.

The travelling public on the line of the South Shore Railroad are directly interested in this matter, as the facility of telegraphic communication between the office at North Braintree and the residence of the President at Colasset, gave additional safety in the running of trains, especially in case of delay or accidents, and public reinsurance would, we think, soon rectify this unjustifiable and causeless interference with a necessary appliance of the road.

A GOOD OMEN.—Last Friday afternoon, while the workmen were raising the shaft of the Soldiers' Monument at North Weymouth a large American eagle came sailing gracefully from the North, and passed over the monument to the southward. Such a circumstance, in the times of the old Romans, would have been considered a happy augury, and we may conclude that in this case the patriotism and public zeal which has produced so elegant a memorial to the dead heroes, has received a recognition from the monarch of the forest and emblem of American liberty.

DECORATION OF SOLDIERS' GRAVES.

Post 49, G. A. R. of North Weymouth, assumed the duty of decorating the graves of the departed soldiers of this town with floral offerings last Saturday, and faithfully and becomingly fulfilled their trust. The sky was somewhat lowering, but notwithstanding this unfavorable indication of bad weather, a good number of the command, with the children of the public schools, and citizens, formed in procession at the headquarters, and marched to the Old North Cemetery. Before the line of march was taken up, a delegation of soldiers' widows, seven in number, escorted by Mr. J. Ford, approached the column, and, through their leader, Mrs. Starbuck, presented a most American flag to the post, with the following address:

Mr. Commandant and Soldiers of Post No. 49, G. A. R.

Before us is our national emblem, the Stars and Stripes! They speak to us with many tongues, of sorrow and of joy. In the days when you bore it on field of conflict—when our brave ones fell one by one, when sudden grief had smote our hearts, and our eyes fell on its drooping folds, we saw in it the sadness of death, the unutterable woe of bereavement. When your arms had succeeded, and the free winds tossed its folds above, we saw victory written on our banner, and the sunlight of hope glisten from every star. To you, members of Post 49, we present this flag, as widows and mothers of those who have joined that invincible Grand Army of the Republic, who were once comrades with you. In your hands may it ever symbolize those lofty principles, which only are eternal. Plant its staff firm and high, above the flags of error, where the sun of truth may gild its folds, and the stars of heaven in its darkest night baptize our stars with purity and love.

Though taken completely by surprise at this, (to many of the command) unexpected offering, the commander of Post 49, Gen. B. F. Pratt, made a fitting reply paying a tribute to the unwearied and self-sacrificing labors of the heroic women of our country during the rebellion. The march was then commenced, and on arrival at the Cemetery prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Emery, followed with remarks by Rev. Mr. Rockwood, the remarks of the reverend gentlemen being prefaced with a short address by the commander, recounting the circumstances, which had called the assembly together. The guard of honor then stepped from the ranks, and as the color bearer trailed the flag over grave of each soldier, the floral offerings were deposited by them.

The command then proceeded to the Landing Cemeteries in carriages, where prayer was offered by Rev. G. Cole, thence to South Weymouth, where Revs. Messrs Hayes and Howett offered prayer, and continued to East Weymouth, where a large gathering of people had assembled. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Waldron, and about eight o'clock the ceremonies were closed by singing "America." In all, forty-six graves were visited, as follows:

JULY 4, 1868.

At an adjourned meeting of the citizens of the town of Weymouth, Monday evening, June 1st, for the purpose of taking into consideration the Dedication of the Soldiers' Monument, Benj. F. Pratt was chosen Chairman, and J. M. Whitcomb, Secretary. After a lengthy discussion of the whole matter, it was voted to choose a committee of five, to nominate a committee of twenty-two, in addition to the S. M. Committee, with them to make all necessary arrangements towards carrying out the plans proposed, which were to have customary Dedictory services, a procession, and after the ceremonies of dedication, a collation, or dinner on the picnic plan. Elias Richards, James L. Bass, James Humphrey, George W. Fay, and Francis B. Pratt, were chosen, who after consultation reported the following named gentlemen as that Committee, and they were chosen:

Benj. F. Pratt, Wm. O. Nash, Elihu Pratt, Henry Newton, James Humphrey, Alexis Torrey, Augustus Beas, Eudiah Bates, Abner P. Nash, Henry Lord, A. J. Gray, Z. L. Bicknell, John Hart, S. W. Nash, Edward Lewis, John Blanchard, Wm. Dyer, Charles Hayes, Josiah Reed, Jeremiah Holbrook, E. W. Hastings, J. M. Whitcomb, Nelson Blanchard, E. C. Pierce, Darius Smith, Jr., John T. Dyer, T. H. Humphrey.

Noted that the Committee be authorized to fill any vacancies that may occur, and enlarge the Committee by appointing others, if in their judgment they deem it expedient.

The Committee voted to meet at the Town Hall on Friday evening, June 5, at half-past 7 o'clock.

New York City had fair to become a well known place to every man, woman and child in this vicinity, the various steamship lines having reduced their fares to $1.00, under the pressure of competition between the companies. The long trains of cars over the O. C. & Newport Railway the past week laden with tourists' bound to the great emporium, evinces a public appreciation of cheap fares from which other routes of travel may take a hint in the way of reduction. How this "Millkenny cat" strife of the companies is to end, we know not, but would advise all who desire to see the sights of Gotham to invest the trifling sum demanded and improve the present opportunity, as this pleasant state of things may terminate ere long. The Newport and Bristol lines are the most popular, as the boats of these companies are superior to any others on the Sound, carrying large numbers of passengers with safety and convenience. By permission of the able manager of the Bristol line, Harrison O. Briggs, we passed over that route a few weeks since, and found their splendid boats in tip-top order, a wry fitted for the present season, with Capt. Simmons and Drayton in charge, and Messrs. McGowan and Morse at the steward's post. A home-like aspect of comfort with elegance of outfit, pervades the Providence and Bristol—two of the most magnificent steamers ever launched!—and the general expression of satisfaction which pervades the countenances of passenger, over this route, proves that the "Commodore" who inaugurated the rivalry in cheap fares will be worsted in his attempt to kill off these formidable competitors.

DEMOCRATIC GATHERING AT NORTH WEYMOUTH.—There was a gathering of the friends of Democracy in Webster Hall, North Weymouth, on Wednesday evening, of last week, to rejoice over the acquittal of Pres. Johnson—an event more important than has ever transpired in the history of this Republic. The decisive battle has been fought and the victory won—a new era has opened for this Republic. For more than twenty years a war has been waged by the enemies of this Republic, but it still stands as a monument to the world. These enemies have met us in disguise as true Republicans, when they were nothing more than traitors. They have ever refused to show an open and manly fight, but sought to obtain and retain the reigns of government by false pretenses. The people have met them at every point until they were forced to throw aside their masks and meet them in open battle. They stalked their all and lot, and thank God the Republic, though shattered, still stands, firmly resting upon that rock, the Constitution, from which she cannot be shaken for centuries to come.

The meeting was called to order by Noble Morse, Esq. A. Pressat Nash was chosen Pres., Albert Tirrell, 2d, Sec., Henry Cushing, Esq., A. T. Pratt, Esq., Leonard Torrey, Esq., L. H. Lord, Esq., Vice-Pres. Mr. Clark then addressed the meeting, and A. T. Pratt, Esq., of Braintree, was called upon, who favored us with a very lengthy and profound speech, mixed with wit, which kept the audience in continual laughter. Speeches were then listened to from Messrs. Pratt, Lord, Jones, Newton, Torrey and others, after which we were all invited to retire to the hall above and refresh the inner man. An oyster supper was then furnished for all that wished. Everything was in order, and did credit to those gentlemen who had it under their charge. After refreshing themselves the company separated, perfectly satisfied with the occasion and believing there were better days in store for us. ALBERT TIRRELL, Sec.

A FEW NOTES FROM "MUSIC"

Music's soothing strains should be— Full of sweetest harmony. But now, alas, its gentle tones— Make discord in the heart of Jones, And cause him to wobble first— In columns of last week's Gazette, Because a critic chanced to see Some errors in his melody.

Instead of trying to do better, He drops his notes to write a letter, To which he bravely signs his name, Attacks his judgement with a dash, And calls his harshness only "hash," But "hash" is never hard to swallow, Nor is advice, we need not follow; So, if improvement, was not needed, "Why was the critic so much hooped?"

Errors in pitch, cannot doleful, But harsh words show an inward rill; Mistakes in time, in kind will mend— It pointed out by some kind friend, So let our friends of ancient Spain, Strive to improve with might and main Their singing, always sweet to hear, And then no critic need they fear: Hold sweetest harmony in view— And keep their time and tempers too; Till then as true, they must confess, The criticism of

HUNTRESS.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH.

The ladies in that part of South Weymouth called Union street, held a grand levee at Everett Hall Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of last week for the purpose of making improvements in the burying ground, which is considerably run down, and we are glad to say, that the people responded quite liberally to their call. The tableaux were of superior quality and in good taste, under the direction of Mrs. B. Whitman, the stage being under the direction of Mrs. C. E. Rogers, whose exquisite taste in that department needs no comment. The supply of needlework was very large, for which they found a ready market. The tables were covered with refreshments of every description, among which we noticed a guess cake, under the charge of Mrs. Rockwood, who by her perseverance received quite a large sum, people guessing from three pounds up to fifty. Messrs. N. R. Torrey, Shaw and Perie, coming within half an ounce, became owners of the cake. As they could not agree in dividing it, it was given up to Mrs. Rockwood, to be disposed of by lottery the next night.

The levee passed off in a very social manner, mingled with singing from Bicknell Brothers, Misses Vining and others, who sang some of their most popular pieces. The party broke up at an early hour, leaving the managers with quite a hand some sum for their trouble. P. K. O.

Mr. Editor.—There is a small full-blooded Jersey cow in this place, which, when three years old, made one pound butter from three quarts of milk, fed on hay only. The first six months she will average eleven quarts of milk per day; the last six months six quarts of milk per day, at the age of six years, and will make one pound of butter from less than six quarts of milk. If I had a full-blooded Jersey cow that was giving 17 to 21 quarts per day, and it required six quarts of her milk to make one pound of butter, I should look after her pedigree. W.

A CHAPTER OF HORRORS.—In addition to the terrible tragedy at Kingston—the murder of Mr. Cornelius Holmes—the public in this vicinity has been excited by the death of Mr. Otis Hollis, run over by the cars, and the suicide of Mr. Huntress, of North Weymouth, at Quincy. The particulars of this latter event are, as we learn, as follows: Mr. H., on Tuesday last hired a team at the stable of Peter Cudling, and drove to Menard's resort at Germantown, where he endeavored to secure the company of a daughter of Mr. M., in a visit to the manager. Failing in this, he determined to commit suicide, and procuring a razor at the barber's shop of Mr. Emerson, he drove round till about 9 o'clock in the evening, when he committed the fatal act in the carriage, letting his throat in three places. The Superintendent at the Sailors' Snug Harbour, heard the noise of a carriage on the grounds, and going out found Huntress lying in the bottom of the vehicle, covered with blood. He was sensible of his condition, and being removed to the house efforts were made to dress his wounds, but he was too far gone for recovery, and died next morning.

ENGINE PLAYING.—Union Engine Co., turned out last week, and pumped out the well of Mr. E. F. Linton, who has sent them the following acknowledgment:

Weymouth, May 26, 1868. Officers and Members of Union Fire Co.—Gentlemen:—I beg leave to tender my sincere thanks for the kindness shown me last Monday evening in drawing the water from my cistern. I should be most happy to lend you a helping hand whenever occasion offers if in my power to do so. Yours respectfully, Edward F. Linton.

At the annual meeting of the Union Engine Co., held May 4, the following persons were elected officers for the year: R. Gillespie, Foreman; A. M. Gerrold, 1st assistant; S. W. King, 2d assistant; O. Houghton, Clerk and Treasurer; D. Galvin and T. F. Barrell, Axemen; L. Mulligan, E. Bates, P. Mathews, and T. O. Sullivan, Stokersmen.

LOVELL'S CORNER.—The Quartette Club of East Weymouth gave a concert in Shaw's Hall, on Friday evening of last week for the benefit of the Ladies Union Circle in this vicinity. Notwithstanding the severity of the rain storm, quite a family gathering assembled. The various pieces rendered by the vocalist—with the efficient services of Mrs. Waldron at the pianoforte, were excellent and the warm approbation with which they were received, signified the satisfaction of all present. After the Chorus, "Good Night" came lemonade and luncheon, some friendly intercourse, and then a general departure, all feeling they had been well repaid for the discomfiture they experienced in coming and going to their homes.

The ordinance of baptism will be administered by Rev. G. Cole next Sabbath at 2 o'clock P. M., at the usual place. The afternoon service at his church will commence at 3 o'clock, and consist in giving the hand of fellowship to those who have been baptized during the month.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Rev. G. H. Vibart will deliver a free lecture in Lincoln Hall next Wednesday evening, on the subject "Ought the Laws to protect our homes or the liquor dealers."

The Concert by the Hutchinson Family at Lincoln Hall, last Wednesday evening, well maintained the "immortal fame" of these "children of song." A good house awaited them, and the entertainment was eminently pleasing in its character. The "second generation" bids fair to excel even the "originals" in musical attainments. The family will give a concert at the Town Hall Monday evening next, and the public should not fail to hear them.

KILLED.—Mr. Otis Hollis, of Braintree, was run over by the express train on the O. C. & N. R. railroad Tuesday afternoon, and instantly killed. He was walking on the track at the time, and stepped in front of the engine from the other track, being, as it is supposed, in an intoxicated condition. The body was shockingly mangled.

We call attention to the advertisement of Dr. J. R. Dillingham, Dentist, No. 12 Winter street, Boston. Those wishing the services of an experienced operator, cannot do better than give the Doctor a call.

BRAINTREE.

The cause of prohibition in Braintree received its share of attention on Saturday evening last, in our town house. Quite a number of the prohibitionists assembled to discuss the temperance issue, and consider what is duty in the coming campaign. There was a fair and candid expression of opinion in favor of and against the expediency of forming a Prohibitory Club in our town. It may appear strange to many of the readers of the Gazette that those who were not in favor of forming a Prohibitory Club should have been allowed a voice and control in a meeting apparently called by those in favor thereof. The call and notice for the meeting however, were to the "temperance voters who were in favor of total abstinence as a principle and the entire prohibition of intoxicating liquor as a beverage," in order that they might consult upon the best measures, to do their part in sweeping from the statutes books the present infamous License Law. Braintree has for the past few years been noted for hard fought political battles; hence it was thought advisable by the leaders of this movement to have a full, fair, and candid discussion and as large an expression of opinion on the part of the active temperance men of the Republican party as could be secured, that the decision of the majority of the Prohibitionists might be known and followed out in action.

There was perfect unity on the point, that no candidate should be supported who was wanting in the principles in which we believe. The question as to expediency or policy drew out much practical information in regard to the workings of the political parties in Braintree. Much talent was thrown into the arguments, and on the whole it was quite a feast to one who loves intellectual contents. The perfect good feeling which existed heightened the pleasure of it. We have no doubt but that more than a majority will be found in favor of coming out squarely, in which case, of course, there will be no way for the rest but to fall into line.

After a spirited and earnest discussion till about 11 o'clock the meeting adjourned for two weeks when the vote will probably be taken. It is expected that a large number of voters will be present. Tuesday evening, Mr. Allen of Washington, D. C., recommended by U. S. Grant, (who is in favor of Temperance,) lectured in the Good Templars Hall. As he is quite apt in referring to "Grant and Colfax" we have no doubt but that he will succeed in raising the national quite as much as the Temperance issue, which is well.

BALDNESS, GRAYNESS, AND OTHER IMPROPERIES of the Hair will be regarded as an example after a trial of Mrs. S. A. Allen's REMEDY, (see style) Hair Restorer or Dressing, for sale by L. S. Duggan, 151 N. Broadway, New York.

The largest assortment of Family Medicines, Cooking Extracts, &c., made by any one person in New England, is the well known series known as Dr. Henslow's Family Medicines, prepared by a physician of many years practice, who now devotes to them his whole time. They will be found safe, pure and efficient. To confirm the truth, just the first of our Despatch Bitters, a pure medicine, which saves spring and summer seasons.

HOW GLAD. How glad the people all appear, That milder days are now so near; How hope the merchant's pulse do move, At signs that business will improve. How glad are the industrious poor, That want, ere long, will leave their door, Because they get work to do, And thus get food and clothing too. How glad the merry boys will be, To gambol on the grassy lea, And those who want new clothes to wear, To buy at FENSOR'S in Dock Square.

DISPENSIA. There is no disease which experience has so amply proved to be remediable by the FERROUS SUIPER. (A protected solution of the Protoside of Iron,) as Dispensia. The most inveterate forms of this disease have been completely cured by this medicinal, as ample testimony of some of our first citizens proves.

FROM THIS VENDOR. ARCHDEACON SCOTT, D.D. DUSHAM, Canada East. THAN 25 YEARS STANDING. I have been so wonderfully benefited in the three short weeks during which I have used the Ferro-Suiper, that I can scarcely persuade myself of the reality. People who have known me are astonished at the change. I am widely known, and my name is mentioned by others that which has done so much for me."

ANOTHER CLERGYMAN WRITES AS FOLLOWS: "My voyage to Europe is indefinitely postponed. I have discovered the 'Fountain of Health' on this side of the Atlantic. These bottles of Ferro-Suiper, which I received from the hands of the Rev. Dr. Scott, are a gem in the medicine chest. A pamphlet of 32 pages, containing a history of this remarkable remedy, with a treatise of scientific research and experiment, has succeeded in dissolving one of my greatest enemies of Lintine to such that since my use, the most extraordinary results have followed its use, particularly in Scrofula and kindred diseases. Circulars free. Dr. H. Andros' Ferro-Suiper for sale by J. P. DINSMORE, 36 Day Street, New York, and all Druggists.

SCROFULA—CONSUMPTION. By LEGAL, of the most eminent Chemists of Europe, said: "The most astounding result is may be anticipated when Lintine can be dissolved in pure water. Dr. H. THE WEYMOUTH GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1868.

GEN. H. CUNNINGHAM is the duly authorized General Agent for the Gazette, and all receipts given by him will be acknowledged.

LICENSE.—The County Commissioners announce in another column that they will sit next Tuesday to assign a time and place to hear applications for licenses under the liquor law. We learn that the Selectmen of this town will issue a warrant next week appointing the 29th inst. as the day for voting on the question of open bars. If the town should vote adversely on this point, the Commissioners cannot issue licenses for such places, except to innholders, to be sold to bona-fide guests. It is suggested by one of our foremost temperance men that the ladies of the town turn out in a body on the day of taking the vote, and visit the town house, to influence the sterner sex in a temperance course on the question.

TROUBLE AMONG THE SHOEMAKERS. Capt. Garey, of this town, was one of the Constabulary force sent to Ashland last week to check the riotous disposition of the Knights of St. Crispin in that place, they threatening to clean out a manufacturer who would not come to terms, but instead of employing the discarded operatives, sent to Maine and imported a hundred new hands to take their places. The course of the operatives is generally condemned, but when there is so much smoke there must be some fire, and a mutual conciliatory course on the part of employers and employees would prevent many of these outbreaks of ill-paid labor. There are business men in some communities who seem to forget that the "laborer is worthy of his hire," and unscrupulously crowd their employees to a low water mark of wages until the outraged workmen are driven to unwise and unlawful measures, like those which have disgraced the "Knights of St. Crispin" at Ashland.

FROM GEORGIA.—By a recent letter of June 1st from middle Georgia, we find they have been revelling in a profusion of strawberries, plums, currants, cucumbers, beets, and lettuce, for near a month past. Crops, owing to the heavy storm of May 15th, accompanied with heavy rains, are rather backward, but are now improving slowly. Politics are rather quiet since the election, and as the legislature meets on or before the 29th inst it is hoped that harmonious ratification of the action of the late constitution convention will bring to them law and order, and consequent prosperity, the lack of which now is so deeply deplored. Once restored, with all the state machinery in good working order, Georgia has resources that will soon rank her as the banner state of the south.

On Saturday, a complaint was entered against two brothers living in East Weymouth, for assault and disturbing the peace, and officer Garey proceeded to arrest them, when one of them swore he would never be taken alive, and started on a run, with the officer in pursuit, the chase being kept up for half a mile, when the man threw off his coat and struck a belligerent attitude, but was soon quieted by the use of the billy and a pair of handcuffs. The parties were brought before Justice Bumpus, and one of them sentenced to three months in the House of Correction—the other ordered to give sureties in $100 to keep peace for three months, and failing to do this he was committed.

PALATIAL.—An East Weymouth correspondent of the Randolph Register says—"Last week, by invitation, I visited the new and splendid house of Mr. Erastus Nash, of Weymouth Landing. It is one of the finest and most costly houses of its size in Norfolk County. The main house is 32x42 feet, two stories in height, with a French roof, and connected is a large porch. The building is to be lighted with gas, and has all the other modern improvements. Mr. Nash will move into this week. It was built by Mr. William Pennington of Braintree. The cost of the place, including furnishing and out-buildings will be about $40,000.

LECTURE.—The lecture by Rev. G. H. Vibbert at Lincoln Hall, Wednesday evening, on the subject announced in our last, is pronounced by those who attended, a most eloquent and forcible exposure of the rottenness of the license system. He defined the object of law to be the prevention of encroachment on individual rights; that dealing in intoxicating drinks was prejudicial to the general good, the sanction of such a traffic by license granting indulgence to do wrong, and therefore contrary to sound principles of law. The hall was well filled, and the lecturer applauded in his remarks.

During the opening days of summer how often do we hear it said: "What can I get to tempt the appetite?" "It is hard finding something to relish." If we might be allowed to speak from experience, we would say: "If you happen to be in the city, just call on C. D. & J. H. Presbo, at Nos. 10, 12 & 14 City Hall Avenue, and see what tempting varieties are there, and if you do not come away perfectly satisfied, then—why, give up in despair, that's all."

At a meeting of the Committee of Arrangements for the Fourth of July, held in the Town Hall, Friday evening, June 5, Gen. Benj. F. Pratt in the chair, J. M. Whitcomb, Secretary, it was voted that Col. James L. Bates be invited to act as Chief Marshal.

Voted, that Post 40 G. A. R., and all other organizations of Soldiers, also all returned officers, soldiers, sailors, and marines, be invited to unite, and join the procession on that day.

Voted, that Major E. C. Pierce be invited to take charge of that part of the procession, and that all soldiers report to him.

Voted, that Gen. Pratt, Col. Bates, and Major Pierce, be a Committee to decide with the Soldiers, in relation to uniforms, &c.

Voted, that the several Masonic, Odd Fellows, Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, and Fire Dept. Organizations, and all other benevolent organizations, also the High Schools, and Public Schools, the Clergy, the Soldiers of 1812, and all other persons in town, be invited to join the procession.

Voted, that the Chairman of the Monument Committee, be invited to join with us, and perform escort duty to the procession, on the occasion.

Voted, that the Chairman of the Monument Committee, the Chairman of the Selectmen, and the Chief Marshal, be a Committee to invite such persons from abroad as they think proper.

Voted, that the Selectmen of the town be added to the Committee of Arrangements.

Voted, that the Committee of Arrangements be still further enlarged by the addition of 15 ladies from the first District, ten from the second, and five from each of the other Districts in town, the ladies in the several districts to be appointed by each district Committee, and they be requested to meet with us, at our next meeting.

Voted, that when we adjourn, it be to this place, next Wednesday evening, June 10, at half past seven o'clock.

Voted, that the Monument Committee be authorized to select places for the performance of the Dedicatory Services, and also for the Refreshments.

In accordance with the suggestions of the Committee, it was voted that a Picnic be given at the Grove at North Weymouth.

Voted, that a Committee of three be appointed, to consider the subject of providing another band of music for the occasion, and to report at our next meeting. Z. L. Bicknell, Alexis Torey, Esq., and Capt. C. W. Hastings were appointed.

Voted, that the Chairman of the Committee be authorized to furnish an account of the doings of this meeting for the Gazette, also to notify the Soldiers, and all organizations, of the invitations voted at this meeting.

Voted to adjourn.

In behalf of the Committee, and in accordance with votes passed at the meeting on the evening of June 5, for making arrangements for the procession, the dedication, and the picnic on the Fourth of July, an invitation is hereby most respectfully and cordially extended to all returned soldiers of the town, organizations, and citizens, to unite on the occasion of the dedication of the monument to those noble men who braved the perils of war for the loftiest motives of patriotism the world has ever seen, and laid down their lives to make this country a free and undivided Republic.

The place for forming the procession, and the route, will be designated hereafter. B. F. PRATT, Chairman of Committee. Weymouth, June 8, 1868.

According to adjournment the committee of arrangements consisting of ladies and gentlemen from all parts of the town, met this evening, and made further arrangements for the fourth of July, and at eleven o'clock P. M. adjourned to meet here next Wednesday evening at half-past seven o'clock for the purpose of completing the arrangement.

ACCOMPLISHING THE ARRANGEMENT. OCT DOOR GAMES.—A green lawn occupied by a merry party of croquet players forms a pleasing picture in rural scenes. Those who have not as yet furnished this beautiful and fascinating game for themselves and children should call at D. B. Brooks & Brother's, 55 Washington St. Boston, and purchase a set of croquet, which they will furnish at very low rates.

THE LIFE OF GEN. GRANT, by Richardson, for which Mr. Bassett has been very successful in canvassing this town, is to have additional features in a condensed life of Colfax, and copies of correspondence between Grant and various rebel generals whom he overcame. The work will be one of the best and most complete published.

PETERS' VIOLIN COMPANION for the Flute, Violon &c., and Peters' Monthly Glee Hymn are excellent publications, for the amateur or professional musician, furnishing a large variety of music at a low figure. Address J. L. Peters, Box 5429, New York.

Mr. Editor:—To-day the Legislature of Massachusetts will close its labors. It is sad to part from the many friends we have made there, but I think we shall part with the understanding that the Old Bay State still keeps her head above water, notwithstanding many of her citizens thought it had sunk to rise no more. The Legislature this year consisted of 210 men, all of good character, and fine appearance, many of them being hard working men. They will remember not only the friendships formed with each other, but also the abuse received from quite a large number of our citizens, who have vilified the body as the "Drunkard Legislature."

Many of us do not feel satisfied with the appropriation of five millions of dollars for the Hoosac Tunnel, to be put through under a contract. It seems to me that the people have had about all the tunnel they want; it only brings the State so much deeper in debt, it having already cost us about six millions of dollars, while no one believes it can be done for fifteen millions. It was carried by thirteen majority, and I think if any of us chance to go that way in 12 years from now we shall see a tomb stone at the bottom of that madman with these words, "here lies fifteen millions of the State treasury, never to be seen again," and those that voted for it must suffer the consequences. Rev. Wm. Alger, Chaplain of the House, was presented with a nice gold watch costing $285.

A. RAYMOND, Jr.

BRAINTREE.

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENTS.—The lumber trade has for long years been the principal feature of business at the Braintree and Weymouth Landings, and in connection with this enterprise we have now a new establishment, recently put in operation by Mr. Henry Gardner, who has erected a large steam mill, called the "Monatiquit Mill," for the preparation of building material in sawing, planing, jointing, &c. The water power of the Monatiquit river is available a portion of the year in carrying the machinery, but as an auxiliary an engine of 40 horse power has been placed in the mill. The machinery is ample to perform all the work required by builders, consisting of three planers, a clap-board machine, jointing, matching, moulding, saw, shab, boring, and tenoning machines, turning lathe, jig and other saws, to operate which, in connection with other work, from twenty-five to thirty hands are employed. Connected with the mill arrangements is a stone dry house, fitted with Berkeley's method for seasoning, by which green lumber can be dried from the vessel and dried in thirty-six hours, without checking. The business has so largely increased that the proprietors contemplate enlarging the mill, to accommodate more workmen. The new wharf is also to be lengthened about 250 feet, to make room for piling of lumber, and the erection of a building for storage of finished lumber will be commenced soon on the south side of the river, where the railroad company propose to construct a switch, from Holbar's mill to the crossing, to facilitate loading and unloading.

In connection with the mill business Mr. Gardner has made arrangements for carrying on an extensive lumber business, having in addition to the two wharves in Braintree, leased the Reed wharf at Weymouth Landing, which will give ample room for delivery of lumber freights. We doubt not the enterprise of Mr. G. will give a renewed impetus to this branch of business in town.

Intemperance with all its attendant wretchedness is terribly prevalent at the present time in parts of our town. Scenes of rude and boisterous revels by night and by day are witnessed, such as to demand the strong arm of an active state constable to suppress. One of the demerits of the bottle was this week taken before the justice and given a six months residence in the House of Correction. This is well, but if moderation had the same or a worse punishment attached to it, it would be much better. Those who have considered well the temperance question, have come to the conclusion: that the larger part of crimes and injuries in our land comes not from the beastly drunk but from those who are a little stimulated. The beastly drunk are not placed in responsible positions and have not the opportunity to do the immense injuries which are committed by moderate drunkards. Every man who drinks should be denominated a drunkard whether he is a little drunk or terribly drunk.

REMOVAL.

THE GOODS stolen from the manufacturer shop of Geo. H. Pratt, at North Weymouth, on the night of the 28th of May, comprised the following: 24 pairs Buff Creole Congress Boots.—Bottoms unfinished; 12 pairs Buff Opera Boots, unfinished; 24 pairs Buff Opera Boots, finished, English bottom, black shank and heel; 12 pairs Calf Opera Boots, box toes, finished as above; 12 pairs Buff Opera Boots, box toes, finished; 8 Calf skins; about $2,000 worth of Revenue Stamps, issued for a last manufacturer. The shop was entered by prying open a window.

Editor Gazette: The past week has been an exciting one in this city. On Monday we had our city election, which was closely and warmly contested, and at about 11 o'clock Monday night it was announced that Mr. Given, the Conservative candidate, had been elected by a majority of 115 votes. Out came the Democracy in all their glory; they procured a band of music and proceeded to Mr. Given's residence, and serenaded that gentleman, in great style. After repeated calls he appeared upon the balcony, and made quite a long speech, congratulating them upon the victory they had won, and laying down the policy he intended to pursue, during the next year. After he concluded the crowd gave three cheers for each of the seven re-elected Senators, and three times three and a tiger for Jeff Davis, and then went home to dream of the good time coming under Democratic rule. But in the morning what a change came o'er the spirit of their dreams. The Morning Chronicle announced that Mr. Bowen, the Radical candidate, was elected by 36 votes. They looked and wondered, but refused to believe till two o'clock in the afternoon, when Mayor Wallach announced officially that his next successor would be Mr. Bowen, who was elected by a majority of 83 votes. One hour after that it was totally impossible to find a man in the city who took part in the Democratic celebration of the night before. Tuesday night the programme was reversed: Mr. Bowen was serenaded by his Republican friends. In the course of his remarks he uttered the following: "You have secured by this victory a name and fame that put at rest forever the question of your right to vote in the District of Columbia. You have elected a city government in accord with the great majority in the National Legislature, thus insuring the aid of Congress in the many improvements required to render the streets, avenues and public squares worthy the metropolis of the Nation. You have fixed the Summer gun in the great Presidential campaign that sets in motion the ball that will fly through the land in November, and stop only when the great captain of the age is seated in the chair of state."

I am sorry to have to state, that one man was killed and another was seriously injured that night by colored men. The circumstances attending these sad affairs are not definitely known, as the police have been unable to find the perpetrators. The next night another murder was committed, both parties being white. Both men had been drinking. The funeral took place this afternoon, and was largely attended; he leaves a wife and three children, in destitute circumstances. The man who was killed by a negro, was young and unmarried; he was regarded as a very quiet, inoffensive man, and was very much esteemed by a large circle of acquaintances. We hope that we shall have no more of these horrible affairs, but a great many apprehend trouble next Monday night, when the colored people propose serenading Mr. Bowen again. The blood of both parties is quite hot, and it would not require much to bring on a general riot. The weather has been quite hot for the past two days, indicating that summer has come in earnest. Strawberries are only 10 cents per quart, cherries, 15 cents, and plenty of them, so almost every one can have plenty of fruit.

C. W. HAYWARD.

Post 40, G. A. R. At a regular Encampment of this Post, on Monday evening, June 8th, the following vote was unanimously passed: That this Encampment tender its sincere thanks to those who contributed money and flowers for the ceremonies on Saturday, May 30; to the ladies who with tender hands, and sympathizing hearts, arranged the floral offerings at Post Headquarters; to the wives and mothers of our dead comrades for the gift of the beautiful flag; to the Rev. S. L. Rockwood for his eloquent address at the Cemetery; to the Revs. Messrs. Emery, Cole, Hayes, Hewett, and Waldron, for their participation in the ceremonies at the different cemeteries in town; to James Rand Esq., Jas. L. Bates, and Z. L. Bicknell, Esq., for their kind assistance and attention in ascertaining the locality of graves; to the musicians for their services, and finally to each and every one, who aided in making the decoration of patriot graves in Weymouth by this Encampment so successful, and whose sympathy made the day so universal and so solemn a commemoration.

CHAS. G. JONES, Post Adjutant.

We call attention to the advertisement "Agent wanted" for the Travellers' Insurance Co., which has already done a large business in this and adjoining towns, through the efforts of their efficient agent, Mr. H. B. Peirce. An opportunity is now offered for an energetic man to acquire a permanent business in this vicinity.

The Massachusetts Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, publishes a monthly sheet at $1.00 per annum, devoted to this important and philanthropic reform. The office is at 16 Washington street, Boston.

WASHINGTON MADE EASY.—W. G. Nash & Co., of South Weymouth, are the agents for an article which is just what housekeepers need in the weekly washing. Butler's Dirt Eradicator does not belie its name in the ease in which the work is accomplished by its use, and the beautiful whiteness and clearness imparted to the clothes, without injury to the texture. The agents' sales are very large, and it is sold at a low price, it is brought within the reach of all. A trial of the Eradicator in our family warrants us in saying that it is an excellent article.

LADIES, ATTENTION!—Do you want a good Sewing Machine? If so, buy the best, which purchasers pronounce to be the Howe. Manufacturers' attention is also invited to this machine, which is warranted to be the most serviceable and thoroughly constructed machine in use, never failing to give satisfaction. 24

For all those distressing and afflicting maladies which originate in Scrophulous humors, such as Pimples, Bores, Ulcers, &c., nothing can equal the tonic and purifying effect of Dr. Anderson's Iodine Water, a pure solution of Iodine dissolved in pure water without a solvent.

Mr. Partridge says diseases is very various, very. The Dr. says old Mrs. Haze has two little ones, her lungs—one dies of hermitage of the lungs, another of brown cretaceous—one has backache, the other an embolism in the neck. Now, Dr. Anderson's Iodine Water, and as for that, all the ailments and scrophulous humors take care. The Dr. is a dear man.

PIQUANTS, An Indiana paper, a little fast on the subject of impeachment, talks spicily to Johnson as follows: "It is time for you, Andrew Johnson, to be going. Take with you your man servant Seward; your maid servant, Grandmother Welles; your ass, Alexander W. Randall, and those to the mountains."

There is a story of a man who bought a lot of hogs in Illinois, and drove them to Chicago, where he sold them at loss. Being asked as to the profits of his operation, he replied, "I reckon I didn't make much money out of the trip, but I had the company of the hogs down."

A fresh arrival from England went the other day to a livery stable and expressed a wish for a sleigh, when the man in attendance asked if he would like a hubbalo. The stranger seemed startled, and stammered out, "Well, I think I'd rather have a loss."

"Ah, mum," said a beggar to a lady who had just given him a dollar. "If it hadn't been for this, I'd been driven to something desperate—something I've long feared I'd come to at last!" "What's that, poor man?" "To work, mum," responded the unhappy man, with a melancholy shake of the head.

Abijah Hunt, an old resident of Weymouth, well remembered for his love of a joke, on one occasion went to Boston, and at the hotel dinner inquired for chicken, which proved to be remarkably tough, whereupon the old gentleman asked the landlady where the fowl came from, to which she replied, it came from Weymouth.

"Impossible for the town has not been incorporated over forty years," said the wife.

A city quack invented a wonderful invigorating fluid, and applied to an editor for a testimonial. He gave it in these terms: "A little applied to the inkstand has given it a coat of bristles, making a splendid pen-wiper at little cost. We applied the latter to a ten-penny nail, and the nail is now the handsomest lather brush you ever saw, with a beautiful soft hair growing from the end of it, some five or six feet in length. Applied to door stones, it does away with the use of the mat; a little weak lather sprinkled over a lawn, makes it impervious to the wind, rain or cold. It is good to sprinkle on the roadside, or anywhere where luxurious grass is wanted for ornament."

Ben Bowditch says we can form but imperfect conceptions of cockroaches here, and says while his schooner was lying at anchor at Havana, all hands below at dinner, light breeze blowing off-shore, cable grated through the hawse-hole and felt a motion of vessel as if she was getting under way, went mate on deck, who reported that the anchors were asleep, and the cockroaches had manned capstan, hoove up anchor, and hoisted the mainmast; that when he went on deck they were swaying up the main peak, and schooner had begun to pay off before the wind. Called hands to set things to rights, and in the meantime cockroaches eat up our dinner."

HYPNOTISM.—Punch indulges in the following leader-ship on this subject: I cannot eat the old horse. I rode long years ago. I'm sure my teeth would fail me. And foolish tears might flow. For bygone hunts come o'er me. With cuts from round and side, I cannot eat the old horse. On which I used to ride, I cannot eat the old horse. For visions come again. Of glorious meads departed, And runs in soaking rain; But perhaps when raging hunger Shall set its hand on me, I then may eat the old horse. And hope he'll tender me.

A stupid fellow tried to annoy a popular preacher by asking him whether the fatted calf of the parable was male or female. "Female, to be sure, for I see the male yet alive in the flesh before me," was the reply.

A baggage master on the S. S. Railroad, while engaged in his duties the other day, kicked an ugly little cur who got in his way, which sent him out of the train yelping. The owner of the dog, in high dudgeon, asked him why he did so.

"Was that your dog?" "Certainly it was; what right had you to kick him?" "He's mad," said he. "No, he's not mad, neither," said the owner. "I should be mad if anybody kicked me in that way," responded the waggish brakeman.

A man was thrown from a team and broke his leg so badly that an amputation was necessary. Upon being consoled with by a friend, who remarked that it was a very bad accident, the sufferer replied, "Yes, especially when wind is so high."

An exchange tells young ladies what to beware of if they would have a fresh and youthful appearance: Late hours, large criminal, tight corsets, confectionery, hot bread, cold draughts, pastry, de-cocted dress, modern frocks, false eyebrows, late suppers, thin shoes, lack of knowledge, imbibing between meals, ill temper, fear of growing old.

BOOK AGENT'S WANT.

To solicit orders for DR. WM. SMITH'S Dictionary of the Bible, the only edition of the kind. It is compiled by Dr. Smith's own hand. In one large octavo volume, illustrated with over 125 steel and wood engravings.
Agents and subscribers will see the advantage of dealing directly with the Publishers, for descriptive circulars, full particulars and terms, address the Publishers, Messrs. H. B. Burd & Co., 101 N. B. St., Boston.

The Springfield Republican says this edition published by Messrs. Burr & Co. is the genuine thing.

BUTLER'S DIRT EXTRACTOR.

For Household Purposes. Without the Use of the Wash-Board or Washing Machine.

Nothing like it in the world, for cleanliness and Durability. Used by all first-class hotels and families. By this method, resulting in a great saving of time and labor, proving far less destructive to the ring apparel, than any other method of washing, the ingredients being removed from all nutritious substances whatever.
The washing for a family of twenty persons, completed before breakfast, thereby saving the household from washing-day annoyances. The finest linens, lace cambrics, &c., can be readily and perfectly cleaned and whitened, without rubbing, or rubbing the skin off one's hands, nor wearing the clothes out upon the wash-board.
For cleaning paint, silver plate, and glass of all descriptions, there is nothing so complete with BUTLER'S DIRT EXTRACTOR.

For cleaning all kinds of leather, ready for oiling; for removing grease spots and stains from wool and fur trappings, and also paint or grease from wearing apparel, there is nothing so sure, cheap, and safe as Butler's DIRT EXTRACTOR.

For sale by W. G. NASH, South Weymouth, agent of the inventor, and by J. H. B. BURD & CO.,

PHOTOGRAPHS AND TINTYPES.

CARD PHOTOGRAPHS, taken with all the late improvements. All kinds of Photographs like those from the smallest Tintype to 1/8 Size Portraits, executed in the best style.

Special attention paid to copying From Old Daguerotypes, Ambratypes, the Tintype, &c. This branch of the business he makes a Specialty, and would call attention to the fact that he seldom fails to give a Perfect Satisfaction in copying from Old Portraits which have been injured by stains or otherwise, and spoiled to themselves.

Many having copies of deceased friends are willing to trust them in the hands of a Photographer to copy, for fear they may be lost or injured. The most extreme care will be used by him with such pictures while in his hands. He employs one of the best Artists in Boston, who renders his pictures in the best and Colors equal to any city work, and at less prices.

THE OLD RED SLEIGH.

'Almon Craig—halloo there?'

I stopped short. Jem Studley was behind me, waving his fur cap and as nearly out of breath as a fellow with his splendid lungs could be.

'Are you walking for a wager?' he asked, as he came up. 'You are striding as though you wore the seven-league boots.
I have been looking for you all the morning. We are getting up a sleighing party—you will go?'

'Yes,' I said. 'You might have contended on that before you asked me. Where is it?'

'We meet at Huldah Whipple's—at her father's I mean,' said Jem blushing —for Huldah was his sweetheart—and we drive to the Red Farm, and have our dinner and supper there. As usual, you invite whom you please to share your sleigh, always providing it is a lady, and—'

'But you'll meet with us tomorrow night. At our home, you know, sharp eight; and I'll not detain you here any longer for you seem in a hurry.'

'I was in haste, I told him, and promised to meet them; and went my way.
It was the same way it had often been—the short cut to the house where Hepsey Harrow lived.

'I had a fashion of going that way about twilight when the district school was closed and she (the teacher) had gone home for the evening. I never staid long, but I went often—always telling some little story as to how I happened to pass, and I thought I'd stop and speak to her.

'Any other young fellow would have owned to coming on purpose, and would have spent more time to the purpose than I—any one who liked Hepsey as well as I did.

'Liked? that was a good word for it—I loved her. I had loved her ever since I first saw her coming through the gold fields in her white dress, making me think of Ruth among the reapers, because she looked like a picture painted by some great artist that I had once seen, which illustrates that beautiful story—so like the Ruth in that picture, only prettier. I did not know it was love for a long time; but suddenly I found out why the world was brighter when she was near, and why I began to like some things I had never liked much for before—music, poetry, and sentimental stories.

'It frightened me to know the truth, for how could she like me? I was not handsome, perhaps. A tall, straight, angular Maine youth, with yellowish hair and light blue eyes. But I was certainly not handsome. Then we are poor—mother and I. We lived in a little frame house which we never had the means to repair or paint, and our few acres barely kept us from want. Only for mother, I should have left the place before; but she clung to it, for there her young husband had brought her on her wedding day, and from its upper window she could see the white stone which marked his resting place, and that of her children.

'I was too poor to marry, certainly; but after I had felt that I could be happy if Hepsey liked me, I resolved, come what would, to make some effort which would lift us above the condition which bordered so close on poverty. If I could only first obtain her promise to be mine, I should be inspired to accomplish anything I undertook; but to go away, leaving her quite free and with no knowledge that I cared for her—knowing that there would be but little hope that my return would find her still Hepsey Harrow, was impossible.

'Yet it seemed almost impossible to speak to her on the subject. I had resolved to do so a dozen times, but her presence averted me. She liked me,—that slender young beauty, so bright and witty, so much admired. She—'

'The speech I had prepared always diverted upon my lips, and I went home knowing I had uttered stupid truisms about the weather and the crops, and was no nearer the point I wished to gain than before.

'But that evening having spoken with Jem Studley on the sleigh ride, I went on with a lighter step. I could muster courage I thought to ask her to go with me.

'One word. There is no such fun as a sleighing party. City folks know nothing of it.

'The long sleigh ride, fast and furious, amid jingling bells and merry laughter, each young fellow with the girl he likes best nestling by his side, with a chance for once at least, to say what he chooses to her, to discover the state of her heart, or even put the question. The steamy spray tossed up by the horses' feet, the breeze just sharp enough to rub down the pretty cheeks and clings, and put warmth and lightness into every heart.

The supper and the dance at an end, and the starlight home going. It is hard to tell which like it the best—the girls or the boys, or who is the happiest, the individual who in virtue of being the best dancer, or owning the best horse, takes the lead or he who being last, has the easiest tete-a-tete, with the happiness of knowing that if his arm should steal about a taper waist, there is no malicious joking watcher behind, to take notes.

'If Hepsey Harrow would go with me, when I had her all alone with me under the cold stars, I might whisper what I had only dared to dream thus far. At least I could judge how she would take the knowledge of my living.

'I was very brave until I stood face to face with her. Then my courage deserted me. The blood rushed into my face, I looked at the carpet instead of at her, and stammered and hesitated. But I found when I went away, that I had asked her to ride with me and she had agreed to go.

'I whistled all the way home, and atter I had met Jem and the rest, and we had settled matters, I could not help turning into the shed where our little sleigh stood, and looking at it. It was shabby, and the cushions needed patching. I took it for mother to do. She had no cloth to match, but she put a blue piece in. A good square patch; but velvet cushions would not have been fine enough for Hepsey.

'It's shabby,' I said, 'confoundedly shabby.'

'That's almost swearing, Almon,' said my mother. 'What's the matter with the sleigh? It used to be good enough. Going to take a girl on?'

'Who ever went on a sleighing party alone? I asked.

'I would look funny,' said mother. 'Lather sleighs. I was fond of 'em once.
I'd as lief you'd put my feet in a tub of water, and ring the tea bell in my ears in a draughty entry, as to take me to any one. Wrap up well, Almon. There's nobody a death caught a sleighing. You remember speaking of my uncle Eben?'

'Yes, said I. Did he catch his death dying?'

'No,' said my mother. 'He proposed a sleighing. It was a dreadful thing for him. What a life she led him. He couldn't say his soul was his own while she lived, poor man. Who are you going with?'

'Miss Harrow.'

'The school ma'am?'

'Yes.'

'Don't wonder you talked of the sleigh's being shabby,' said mother.
'They say she takes such airs. I never saw such a haughty. You take notice of it?'

'What do I know of women's hauntoners? I asked, poking the fire.

'Oh, well,' said mother. 'Men don't know much, poor critters; besides, she'll likely wear a head sleighing. But one that puts all on her back isn't the wife for a poor man. I hope when she marries I will be a rich one.'

'I hope so too,' said I.

'Eh?' asked my mother sharply.— Then she went on with her knitting with a puzzled face. There had been a meaning in my words which I had expected her not to fathom; but I think she did.

'After mother had gone to bed I went up stairs and brought down my writing desk. There were some delicate covereds, which had been there for months stored within, and a silver pen and pen-holder, which had been a birthday present in my school days.

'I took them out, and the ink-bottle also. The ink was thick, for we did not write much—either of us—and I brought the vinegar cruet from the closet and looked at the paper. Then I went to the stairs and listened to see that mother was not coming down. Then I actually seated myself, squared my elbows, and began to write. This is what I wrote:

'Dear Miss Harrow; I am a coward.
Not I hope, in one sense, but certainly as regards you. For a year I have loved you. Yet no more would I have dared to say so than I would have dared to tell you a lie. Perhaps because I do not cherish a hope that you like me.

'To-morrow you and I will ride together. To-morrow I had made up my mind to try my fate, but I know I shall not dare to speak. So I write. I will give you this letter to read at home. If the answer be 'No,' it will be easier for both of us. Will you try to think enough of me to be my wife some day.

'I love you better than my life, and I will do all a man can do to make life happy for you. With a little hope I can make my way in the world as other men do. I am young and utterly ignorant.
If I am not to have that hope, give me some sign—give a line, or name only, anything to show me why you mean. If I am to be miserable, let me know. I can't answer. Silence shall mean 'No.'

I could not bear to see or speak to you after that.

'This is an awkward letter no doubt.

'I am not used to writing letters of any kind, lately. I never wrote one said a word of love to any one before. That must be its excuse. But were ever so elegant it could not mean less. For I offer you all the love of my heart. The only love I ever felt or shall ever know.'

Almon Craig.

I sealed this note in the finest envelope I possessed, and wrote Hepsey Harrow's name on the back, and I hid it in the desk from mother's eyes, sharp eyes that looked anxiously after me. I drove away old Dobbin and the little red sleigh the following evening.

'She was ready for me. My mother's hint was in my mind, and I looked at her dress. All that I discerned was that it was blue; but her furs were good.
I could judge of furs.

'She must marry a rich man, or one on his way to wealth,' I said. 'She shall too. I've more to start with than Washington had. And I took her into the sleigh, and drove off to the place of meeting.

'It was a pleasant drive, and a merry dance and supper; but as time went on I felt glad I had written the letter. For I could not have said what it would say for me. It was at the last moment, when we were driving homeward, that I mustered courage to ask her for the little retriever she carried, as the other girls did with a brush and some flowers in it, for they had touched up curls and braids after the windy ride before the dance.

'Why do you want it?' she asked.

'To put something in it which you must not look at till you reach home,' I said.

'You arouse my curiosity,' she answered. 'I shall look the instant I have a lamp.'

'And as she spoke I had dropped in the letter and snapped the clasp.

'Not a word more could I speak. But at the door I tried for the first time to kiss her. Her lips closed mine, and I dared not repeat the attempt.

'I took the old red sleigh home and waited, waited hopelessly, as I knew attended for an answer. None came—day, a week, a month. Then all hope was over. I had seen her. She had given me a little cold, smileless bow. I was rejected.

'Mother, I said that night, 'we must have some one to farm the place. I am going to the city.'

'Why? said she.

'To make my fortune,' I said.

'For that girl—the school ma'am?' asked my mother, bitterly.

'No,' said I, never for her.

'Mother sat down beside me as I sat down on a low stool. She put her hands on my shoulders, and looked in my face.

'You didn't dare to refuse you,' she said. 'Boy, I know you are in trouble.
I'm your mother. Tell me.'

'She did not accept me,' I said.

'The haughty ma'am,' said my mother.
—Then she burst into tears.

'And that's to part us?' she said.

'Not if you will go with me,' I answered.

'But she would not leave her home, and I went alone. In the frosty morning, as I turned back to look at the village from the top of the old stage, I saw the children filing in at the schoolroom door and caught a glimpse of Hepsey's dress beyond—only a fold of her dress, but I knew it. The school bell was ringing, but it did not say, 'Turn again' to me, as it should have done had I been such a prophet as Whittington.

'I made my fortune. I had a cousin in New York who was deep in the mysteries of Wall street. He helped me. So did his wife. In five years I was a moderately rich man. My mother wanted nothing but my presence. She would not come to me, but urged me to return to her.

'At first my heart was too weak to be trusted among those old familiar scenes.
To have met Hepsey would have been too much to bear. But time helps us all. At the end of five years I wrote to my mother:

'I am coming home again since you will not live here with me. Expect me to-morrow.'

'And on the morning I went. My mother had not altered much. But I had grown a long, light beard and was a youth no longer—a fact which troubled her. There were changes in the place, too. Girls were married. Old people died. The tallest, handsomest man I remembered had met with an accident and crippled about a worn-out cripple. The church was rebuilt, and the luts in the hollow had been torn down. A factory had arisen, and the factory people's houses were around it. Instead of the old frame school house was a brick building with many windows and a cupola.

'Who was the teacher? Was she there—Hepsey Harrow? I dared not ask.

'Ily I summed the about the house, painted and furnished now; and idly in the evening of my second day at home I went out to the shed where the little red sleigh stood—the shabby old thing with a green patch on the cushion.

'It ain't been touched since you left,' Almon, said my mother. 'Poor old Dobbin! how smart he used to take it round!' I felt as if I had lost a friend when he died. Remember my patching the cushion?'

'She lifted it as she spoke. From behind it dropped something. What? Of leather, blue with mould, crushed by its long lying under the cushion, but a retriever for all that,—Hepsey Harrow's retriever!

'I opened it. There lay a comb and brush, an artificial rose—how well I remembered it in her hair!—and my letter. Yes, my letter that she had never seen, never known of.

'What's the matter, Almon?' asked
my mother.

'For a few moments I did not know.
At last I spoke.

'It is Miss Harrow's retriever.'

PIQUANTS.

"Madam, could you lend me a frying-pan? I belong to a picket-duty team."

"Yes, sir," and forthwith came the pan. He took it, looked at it, turned it over, and looked at the bottom, and then turned it over again, and looked into it very hard, as if not certain it was clean.

"Well, sir," said the lady, "can I do anything more for you?"

"Could—could—could you lend me a piece of meat to fry in it, ma'am?" And he laughed in spite of himself. He got it.

The next thing the child knew his father's hand came down on his ear, and his father's voice thundered forth, "I'll teach you to use your dad!" Tom gave up being polite.

On one occasion, when walking by the Thames, a gentleman fell in and disappeared. Friends came up, but could see nothing of him; and, however, miser or better acquainted with his habits than the rest, got a pint pot, and stretched over the water at the end of a long pole. There was a moment's suspense, and then a hand was feebly raised from the river towards the glistening pewee. "Ah," said the knowing friend, "I knew Tom couldn't resist that," and straightway he plunged in and brought him out.

At a wedding in Delaware, when all was arranged and the minister called on any one to speak who objected to the marriage, a husky voice from the corner cried out, "I do!" all eyes were turned in that direction, when a man emerged from the crowd, holding his eyes and blubbering. "Why do you object?" asked the minister. "Because I want her myself!"

A fellow in an oblivious state, took his lodgings on the sidewalk. He woke the next morning and straightened himself up, looked on the ground on which he had made his couch. "Well," he said, "if I had a pickax, I would make up my bed."

A young man sent his photograph to his father in the country, saying he was poor and required money. The father refused to aid him, stating that he could not be very poor to be living surrounded by marble vases, rosewood furniture, and choice flowers, as his photograph represented him.

An Edinburgh paper lately contained the following advertisement:—"Wanted, a handsome young lady, about seventeen years old, to go to a ball on Thursday evening of next week. No girl who eats oatmeal need answer."

A noon petition—An application.

SEDDY people—Agricultural storekeepers.

Can cock-sparrow be called (ch)enchanting?

The last strike—That of the shoe-makers.

SHEET music—Crying children in bed.

If all that political editors say of each other is true, they are the most unscrupulous pack of scoundrels on God's footstool; those having the greatest influence being the greatest knaves—B. East, Brick, Pomroy and Greeley stand about first on the list.

THE WEYMOUTH GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1888.

W. G. THAYER'S is the duly authorized General Agent for the Gazette. All receipts given by him will be acknowledged.

THE BAY VIEW HOUSE.—This is the name of a pretty little cottage built for the convenience of a select company of friends who wish to spend an occasional warm day at the sea-shore. Having a warm of their own, they avoid the show and parade, as well as the unnecessary expense attending a sojourn at any of the fashionable sea-side hotels, while at the same time they secure the fine view of the ocean, the invigorating sea breeze, the rest and recreation which such a sojourn anticipates. Whole families—the men from their close shops, the women from the routine of household work, the children from the confinement of school—may come here together and enjoy a day of real freedom.

The Bay View House is exceedingly convenient, situated in a picturesque spot on Quincy Green Hill, about three miles from Quincy village, commanding a fine view of the bay, and is easily reached by land or water. It is sufficiently near to the very orderly and well kept house of Mr. Mears to enable parties to obtain many conveniences from his house. Mr. Mears has shown himself to be a very kind and obliging gentleman, and has the hearty good will and gratitude of the company.

Wednesday, June 17th, was appointed as the occasion of the first occupancy of the house. At an early hour, two fine sailing boats, the "Mary Ellen" and the "Ellen Snow," put forth from Elm Tree Harbor, richly laden with every good thing in the provision line which the town of Weymouth affords, and bearing the larger part of the company. A few (who were evidently not Baptists, since they feared the water) chose to go in carriages, and a pleasant ride through Quincy soon brought them to the Bay View House. Several national flags were displayed from the portico and top of the house. The weather was charming and the scene delightful; beautiful bouquets adorned the tables, and the everything combined to render the occasion one of real enjoyment. Suitable remarks were made on taking the first meal in the new house. Messrs. Gove and Williams furnished some facts about the building of the house. Rev. Olympia Brown, being called upon, made a characteristic speech, but as our reporter was busily engaged in dissecting a hand-ome orange, we are unable to give a verbatim report, and can only furnish a few heads.

The speaker made appropriate allusion to the day and the occasion, dwelling at some length on the necessity of recreation. These notions most eminent in intellectual attainments had been most noted for their amusements, illustration being made to the Greeks, in allusion. But when amusement leads to neglect of duty or business—when it contributes to exhaust the body or to exhaust the mind, it fails to accomplish its object; it ceases to be recreation, and becomes injurious, irksome, and wicked. When amusement is sought at improper times, or in unsuitable ways, it becomes both—an offense to all good men. This house was to be dedicated to health and the highest forms of pleasure; here we were to find rest from the cares and perplexities of business; here, in companionship with our friends, in converse upon lofty themes, in general social intercourse, we were to gain a larger sympathy with our fellow-beings; here, in calm meditation, viewing the works of nature, the soul would be brought nearer to the Infinite—the spiritual eye opened—and we should feel the presence and the goodness of God. Here, too, we should meet the bright hopefulness of youth and the sweet innocence of childhood, and in companionship with them our hearts would be touched and softened and prepared for the kingdom of God. May Here come the graceful, a change of thought to find; Here the devout their praying temple close; And here the best most has favoring mind. But was he to that one who shall pervade this place, with its sweet opportunities for soul growth, improvement and recreation. Let no man lower our standard of enjoyment or introduce anything here inconsistent with our lofty aims, or detrimental to the promotion of health and the highest, truest pleasure. May no drop of intoxicating liquors ever come within these walls, and may the house never be polluted with tobacco smoke; but rather let the fragrance of the spring flowers mingle with the aroma of the goodly food which testifies at once of the skill and the love of our wives and mothers. May this be no house for rioters and Sabbath breakers; may its doors be closed upon the Sabbath, and whenever we shall congregate here may the time be so spent that all will feel it good to have been here. And may we many times in the years to come assemble in this place, and always find it serving its legitimate purpose, contributing to the highest health of body and mind—the scene of the purest and loftiest enjoyment.

The speech was well received, and a vote of thanks was extended to the speaker. The remainder of the day was passed very pleasantly. A delegation went over to Nut Island, at low tide, and exchanged greetings with a company who were spending the day at the Nut Island House—among them the Rev. G. Cole. During the afternoon the steamer Massachusetts passed on its way to Quincy Point, and the whole company united in three rousing cheers by way of salute. At evening the company parted; a light breeze bore the Ellen Snow and the Mary Ellen to their port, and thus the day ended. Not one person of the party, old or young, bears away an unpleasant recollection of that day.

The town meetings in several towns of the State have decided not to permit the open traffic in liquors, and this probably will be the result in a large majority of the towns. The Selectmen of this town have issued their warrant for a meeting on Monday next, when our voters will be asked the question of the town to be declared.

Mr. Editor.—A portion of your paper has been devoted, of late, to the use of a couple of literary gentlemen for the purpose of waging a "musical warfare," as you are pleased to call it. At first their letters were of the nature of protest, and they now seek to gain honor and immortality as poetical writers, and possibly are disposed to think that Shakespeare and Byron, and that posterity will look back to them as the greatest of American poets.

In your last issue it was announced that they intend to "fight it out" on that line it takes all summer; and fearful lest we should be bored, enter my protest against publishing any more of it, in order to gratify a desire to gain notoriety as a musical critic, or, as one possessed of such extraordinary abilities that he can tell at a glance, by the appearance of a person, whether he is omnivorous or whether he lives on a diet purely vegetable. What does it matter to the majority of the readers of the Gazette, who every Friday eagerly scan its columns for items of importance and interest, whether the "poor Indian" has been regenerated, or "Music" was prompted to write his criticism by envy, hatred, or jealousy? I but echo the sentiment of nearly every reader of the Gazette when I say, it matters not to them. The "poor Indian," so called, is no longer an object of interest or curiosity; his war whoop has long since ceased to alarm the inhabitants of Weymouth, (no pun meant), and as for "Music," it is my humble opinion that he was unknown to most of your subscribers previous to his attempt to gain honors as a critic and a man of letters.

I have a word to say also in relation to the other side, requesting him to bear in mind that the "Old Spain" is but a small place in comparison with the rest of Weymouth. Besides, it shows a bad taste to speak derogatory of a person's character in the columns of a newspaper which might overdo great injury to his reputation. You have probably read the fable of the boys and the frogs, and while it may be fun to those writers to dilate their verses, I can say that although it may not be death to us it is far from being any source of instruction or amusement. To "Music" and his opponent I would say, forget the Pilgrims, turn your attention to some more profitable employment, and no more remember the columns of the Gazette with such heavy material as your communications are composed of. W.

BASE BALL MATCHES.—A match game was played at Old Spain, on Saturday last, between the Young America's of the Landing, and the Lightweights of Old Spain. The score being Y. A.'s, 9, to L. S.'s, 14. The Young America's offer their thanks to the members of the Lightweights, for kind treatment, and bountiful supply of Chloride.

A match game was played at N. Weymouth, between the 2nd nine of the Young America's and the 1st nine of the Terrors, on Saturday last. The score being Y. A.'s, 69, to the T's, 12.

A friendly game was played on Saturday last, between the Independents of East Weymouth and the Unions of North Weymouth, which resulted in favor of the Independents, by a score of 13 to 1.

A match game between the Minot club of Cohasset and the Tri-Mountain club of Braintree, was played at Hingham, Wednesday, which resulted in favor of the former, 16 to 25.

The Soldiers' Monument Dedication at Quincy took place yesterday afternoon, attracting a large crowd of people. A procession was formed at the Unitarian church, comprising two military companies, one from Boston; the fire companies of the town and the "Union" Co. of Weymouth; carriages containing invited guests, many of the Soldiers' Song Society, and a body of young misses representing the States of the Union. Soldiers of 1812, with a long array of children of the public schools, each decorated with a badge across the breast, designating the different epochs. The music was by Gilmore's, Stetson's, Weymouth, Quincy and Dorchester bands. The procession passed through the main streets and from there to the monument on Mount Wollaston, where the oration was delivered.

NORTH WEYMOUTH.—The article published in the Gazette some weeks since, giving an account of the valuable cow, owned by Thomas Bicknell, of North Weymouth, created quite a sensation among some of his neighbors. He has a very nice cow, one that is seldom met, both for quantity and quality of milk. Mrs. Bicknell made one pound of butter from five quarts of milk, from the cow one day last week, which is a gain of seventeen per cent, since the cow has been turned out to pasture. The calf which Mr. Bicknell is raising from this cow, is said by those that have called to see it, to be the handsomest calf they ever saw a man from Abington called to see it, when it was six weeks old, and before leaving, offered Mr. Bicknell fifty dollars for the calf, which Mr. B. refused. A gentleman from Worcester called a few days since to see this cow, one who was well experienced in raising stock; after examining her he turned to Mr. Bicknell and said to him, "I can bring you a plenty of customers that will give you two hundred and fifty dollars for her; I am satisfied this cow will do all you say," which was exactly what was published in the Gazette some four weeks ago.

The next cow on the list is one owned by Henry Newton, Esq., said to be a full blooded Alderney, one that took the first prize at the Weymouth Agricultural fair last year. Mr. Newton has made from one week's milk from this cow, eleven pounds of butter, besides using all the milk needed in the family, also supplying two other families. If there is any one or any body in Norfolk county that has a cow that will bear such owned by Mr. Bicknell and Mr. Newton, of which a true and correct statement has been made, we would think them to inform us through the Gazette.

See SUPPLEMENT for a report of the meeting at the Town Hall, and the programme for the dedication July 1.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH.—On Monday evening last, the second of a series of temperance meetings to consider the duties of the citizens of Weymouth in relation to their action at the coming town meeting on the question of licensing the open sale of liquors, was held in the vestry of Rev. Mr. Hayes's church. The meeting was called to order by the President, J. S. Fogg, Esq., and after remarks by Rev. Mr. Howitt, J. S. Fogg and others, the following resolutions, prepared by Rev. Mr. Hayes, were presented by Rev. A. A. Ellsworth, Esq., Principal of the High School, and unanimously adopted as the sentiment of the meeting:

Resolved, That intemperance in the use of whatever intoxicates is a deadly foe to civil liberty, material prosperity, social progress, and our divine religious principles, and the greatest evil that besets our Christian civilization in this nineteenth century.

Resolved, That the recent legislation in this Commonwealth, mainly procured by those interested in the traffic and use of intoxicating liquors, resulting in the repeal of our excellent and salutary prohibitory laws, substituting thereby the present license laws, is a stigma upon the lawmaking power of the State, and calls for such immediate and persistent efforts to resist the influence of such legislation as our wisest men may be able to suggest.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the citizens of this town, to avail themselves of every liberty the law affords for the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and therefore every proper effort should be made in view of the approaching town meeting to give the popular sentiment a right direction.

MORAL SUASION.—Resolved, That inasmuch as free room under our present license laws, may prevail among us and be under no efficient legal restraint, it is the duty of every good citizen to unite at once, and enter on such a course of moral measures as may elevate, enlighten, and strengthen the popular sentiment against the terrible evil, and bring all, male and female, young and old, to take a right position and fearlessly maintain it.

Resolved, That there is abundant evidence that intemperance is greatly increasing among us, steadily drawing into its ruin young and old, and rapidly preparing the way for such results as we should rather contemplate, already disturbing the peace of neighborhoods, and threatening the safety of those who walk unprotected in the streets, and therefore demands immediate efforts to restrain it.

Resolved, In view of all the momentous interests involved, it is a violation of every principle of decency and civility to suffer to go on without using our moral influence against it, and hence it is the duty of neighborhoods to have regular meetings of the citizens for such consultations, discussions, and measures as may seem in their wisdom practicable and necessary.

DUTY OF THE PULPIT.—Resolved, That inasmuch as intemperance is an evil of such formidable magnitude, and at war with interests of humanity, it is the duty of ministers of the gospel faithfully to teach the people all the bearings of the subject, and to neglect it, is to be recreant to their high commission.

EAST WEYMOUTH.—The annual meeting of the Palestine Missionary Society was held in the Congregational church, last Tuesday at 2 P. M. Rev. Mr. Tracy, of the Madura mission, India, "Rev. Isaac R. Worcester, of the American Board, and Deacon White, Rev. H. D. Walker, and Dr. W. Waldron, addressed the meeting on topics connected with the missionary work in foreign fields.

Samuel Blake, Esq. of South Abington, was elected President of the Society, H. D. Walker, Secretary, and Dr. Ebenezer Alden, of Randolph, Treasurer, for the ensuing year. The meeting was one of much interest, and was well attended.

FUNERAL.—Funeral services were held on Sunday, in the Congregational church, over the remains of Joseph Larney, formerly a member of Co. 12th Mass. Volunteers, Rev. Mr. Waldron officiating. Thirty-six of the old associates of the deceased were present, and the house was filled with a sympathizing audience. Mr. Larney had been engaged in from forty to fifty battles and skirmishes, and was a brave soldier. In the words of Capt. Garey, his old commander, "he was as good a soldier as ever carried a musket."

At a meeting of the Union Guard Associates, called in consequence of the death of one of its bravest comrades, and one of the best soldiers of the late Co. 12th Regt.,—Joseph Larney—whose record as a good soldier during the war of the Rebellion now can question, it was resolved that while we—his associates—lament his early death, we are pleased and proud to honor the hero, dead, who never failed in his duty in camp or in the battlefield.

Resolved, That we members of the Union Guard Associates, and comrades of the deceased in the field, tender our deepest sympathy and condolence to the family of our lost associate, in this hour of his affliction, and desire to assure his bereaved widow and child, that we in common with them, will cherish his memory, and sacredly guard his honor as a soldier.

Resolved, That we solicit the honor of relieving the family of our comrade, of all the care and expense of his burial.

Resolved, That we will appear in a body at the funeral of our comrade, and escort his remains to the grave.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the widow of our fellow soldier, and also to the Gazette for publication. A. J. GARDY, Adjt.
