Aaron Halfaker, Sumit Asthana -- Wikimedia Research Showcase -- Feb. 2018

Sumit Asthana

Contributor to mediawiki, Wikimedia

About me

Hello everyone, I'm Sumit Asthana. I did my bachelors in computer science from IIT Patna, India. I love computers especially web technologies and machine learning. Apart from that I like to read, mainly fiction or science fiction and also a bit of history. I've come to love this community and I hang around and try to contribute in whatever way I can. I was the org-Admin alongwith User:SSethi_(WMF) for Outreachy/Round_14 and Google_Summer_of_Code_2017

My work

My interest in web has led me here to contribute to this awesome software. I'm currently exploring my interest in Machine Learning and Natural Language Processing and always ready to discuss over these two. I'm also closely collaborating with the Scoring Platform Team where I'm helping them build better models for fighting vandalism on Wikipedia.

I had completed my GSoC project with mediawiki in August 2015 where I developed Extension:WikidataPageBanner for Wikivoyage wikis and now being used by Extension:MobileFrontend to show banners. Right now, I'm the developer and maintainer of the above extension. My

Aaron Halfaker

Principal Research Scientist, Wikimedia Foundation

Think big. Measure what you can. Build better technologies.

About me

Hi. I'm Aaron Halfaker. I'm a scientist. See projects and publications below. I've been a Wikipedian since 2008. I mostly build tools and run studies, but I make edits where I can. In 2011, I started working with the Wikimedia Foundation as a research scientist. This is my staff account. See my volunteer account, User:EpochFail, for my non-staff work.

My work

My job is to build understanding about and support for the socio-technical fabric of the Wikimedia movement. I tend to focus on our computer mediated spaces (Wikipedia, Commons, Wikidata, Wikisource, etc.) and quality dynamics (patrolling, curation, newcomer training, etc.)

See The Rise and Decline for an example of my research and Revision scoring as a service for an example of an experimental technology I'm actively working on.

Wikipedia:Orphan

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

In the Wikipedia glossary, an orphan is defined as "an article with no links from other pages in the main article namespace". These pages can still be found by searching Wikipedia, but it is preferable that they can also be reachable by links from related pages; it is therefore helpful to add links from other suitable pages with similar and/or related information. De-orphaning articles is an important aspect of building the web.

        - @Jayron32: the user add former player to "current squad" of AC Milan. wikipedia is not the place for his Football Manager computer game squad, but the real squad of the team from real world. For his February 2017 edit, he copy entire AC Milan squad to Villarreal CF article. Matthew_hk tc 14:12, 20 February 2018 (UTC)

ʿĀʾishah bint Yūsuf al-Bāʿūniyyah (died the sixteenth day of Dhū al-Qaʿdah 922/December 1517) was a Sufi master and poet.[1] She is almost [clarification needed] the only medieval female Islamic mystic to have recorded her own views in writing,[2] and she "probably composed more works in Arabic than any other woman prior to the twentieth century".[3] 'In her the literary talents and Ṣūfī tendencies of her family reached full fruition'.[4] She was born and died in Damascus.

Wikipedia:Autoconfirmed article creation trial 🔒

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
> 🌰 This page in a nutshell: Until 14 March 2018, autoconfirmed status is required in order to create new articles, as part of a six-month trial. This page is a centralized location to help plan the trial. For an original proposal, please see this archive.
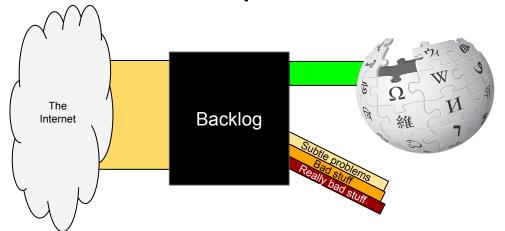

In April 2011, a proposal was put forth to require autoconfirmed status in order to create articles. (Previously only registration had been required.) In May 2011, the proposal was closed with a consensus that a trial should be implemented to test out this new idea. A second RfC was then opened to determine duration of the interventional phase of the trial, and it was decided that the interventional phase should run for 6 months, and then the changes should be reversed for a period of one month while their effects are discussed. The Wikimedia Foundation prevented the idea from going forward in 2011, but in June 2017 agreed to conduct and help implement ACTRIAL as a research experiment. In July 2017, after a post on his talk page, Jimmy Wales issued a nonbinding statement regarding ACTRIAL supporting the use of limited trials to gather data to make Wikipedia policy decisions.

The discussion on the duration and terms of the assessment of the interventional phase was announced at the Village Pump and at Centralized Discussion, and was officially closed by independent admin summary 18 August 2011, in favour of the proposal with "... a clear consensus for a six-month trial, followed by a one-month period of discussion to determine the trial's effects.

Alan Mathison Turing (June 23,1912-June 7,1954), British mathematician and computer scientist ante litteram, considered to be one of the fathers of modern digital computing. In his paper "On Computable Numbers, with an Application to the Entscheidungsproblem" (1936), he proved that there was no solution to the Entscheidungsproblem by first showing that the halting problem for Turing machines (a formal device introduced by Turing and useful in computational theory) is unsolvable. While his proof was published subsequent to that of Alonso Church, Turing's work is considerably more accessible and intuitive.

Welcome to WikiProject Article Rescue Squadron (ARS). Sometimes Wikipedia articles about notable topics exist in poor form, badly written, unsourced— but is that sufficient in itself to remove them from the encyclopedia at Articles for Deletion? No! If an article is about an encyclopedic topic that has received significant coverage in reliable sources that are independent of the subject, the article may simply need improvement.

I had one conversation with Rosiestep at Wikimania'17 and I happen find her and her work inspiring -- so I thought she made for a great example.

She deserves some of the credit, but none of the blame for what I'm talking to you about.
