After they shall have filled the country with their clamor, they will then tell the people with great gravity, where there is so much smoke, there must be some fire! Until that time that distinguished individual is to have no one virtue; is to have done no one good act during his whole life; is to be represented as an usurper, a tyrant, a tool, a knave; and finally, just on the eve of the election they will be sure to kill him and go into deep mourning, as they did some years ago.

Who is the opposition candidate? Is it Mr. Clay? Mr. Calhoun? Mr. Wirt? The United States Bank? Or all of them? What do the friends of these four candidates expect? That the people will elect any one of them; or that they will be able to throw the election before congress again, and trust to bargaining? Do the opposition suppose that they can kick up such a dust that the people cannot see what they are at Cannot they be induced to respite general Jackson a moment-give him an hour's peace while they tell of the many virtues, the high claims, the promising prospects of their favorite candidates; and of the wonderous things which they will achieve when elected? > The Pirates .- A few weeks since it was reported at this place, that five or six men of suspicious appearance had landed on one of the small islands near our coast, off Bayou Calloux, with a considerable quantity of specie. Several of our fellow citizens volunteered their services and progued permission from the colle tor to go in search of the pirates, or those supposed to be pirates. The company has returned, with $2400, Mexican coin, which they found in the possession of some individuals of Brushy Island. They have taken from into custody, (four in number,) who are to be examined to day, before the committing magistrate. One of the men brought up for trial states, that from what he has been able to learn, the money was brought to the I-land by a Frenchman, who spoke the English soimperfectly as scarcely to be understood: name not reco lected; who, when questioned about the manner in which he had obtained the money, said that he had been em-ployed to carry a family from Mobile to the Spanish country, where he remained, and continued trading un-til he had amassed the money be had with him! He brought to the I land seven sacks, one of which, appear to us to be marked diamond T. with the figures 452. The sacks are made of common hemp bagging.

> and believe, that he come honestly by his money; and for services rendered him, he divide it with the men it whose possession it was found! Originally the seven sacks must have contained at least from ten to twenty thousand dollars. The men now on trial, are the same that were on Brushy Island, and received part of the money that was carried there by the Frenchman.
