

HE DENOUNCED THE SOCIALISTS

REV. J. E. HUNTER HAS PRONOUNCED VIEWS

Evangelist Expresses His Opinion in a Very Forceful Way Last Night.

At the evangelistic meeting held under the charge of Crosby and Hunter last night in the Metropolitan Methodist church, Rev. J. E. Hunter unburdened his mind with respect to Socialism.

"I have no sympathy with this so-called socialism," he said. "I will take no second place with any man as the friend of the workingman. The great enemy of the workingman is this Socialism. I would as soon vote for the devil as for a Socialist."

These words were uttered as the evangelist gave a running commentary upon the story of Zachaeus. It was no sin to be rich, he added. He did not feel jealous of a man who rode in an automobile. The Socialist wanted them to share up for selfish purposes.

There are no sons nor no children in Hell. I don't want to go there," said the impulsive member of the evangelistic team.

Later, referring to the conversation between Jesus and Zachaeus when the past was revived, the speaker said they began to discuss old debts. Thus a sudden impulse seized him and Mr. Hunter broke out with the sentence "It would scare the infidelity of this town if you were to begin to pay your old debts."

The terseness with which Mr. Hunter brings home every day truths gives him a wonderful hold upon his hearers and he continues to make fast friends in the city.

TO BENEFIT FARMERS. ILLNESS OF BRITISH PREMIER

Calgary, Nov. 14.—The annual shareholders meeting of the Society of the Equity Co., Ltd., was held here and the delegates ousted J. M. Moran, who was very active in the organization of the company at its beginning a year ago.

The aim of the society was to unite the farmers of the province in order that they should derive more benefit from their labors. The great majority of the delegates representing in all 821 votes did not approve of Mr. Moran's administration, and the result was that he was retired and another president, Grier, of Macleod, elected.

The very evident wish of the shareholders appeared to be to get out of the company with as little loss as possible and the express intention of the new president and board of directors was to wind up the affairs of the company at once.

The new directors elected were: H. Long, W. J. Greer, Thos. Margatz, H. W. Wood, Mr. Owens, and M. Matheson.

Doctors attended the sufferer until the sharpness of the attack had ceased. The premier's condition is such that London doctors have been summoned. Heart trouble is believed to be the cause.

London Physicians Summoned to Bristol to Attend Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman.

Bristol, Nov. 14.—The premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, after addressing a political meeting, was seized with sudden illness last night at the residence here of Wm. Howell Davis, Liberal member of parliament for South Bristol.

Doctors attended the sufferer until the sharpness of the attack had ceased. The premier's condition is such that London doctors have been summoned.

Calgary, Nov. 14.—Owen Copas, one of Calgary's old timers, left for Victoria last night where he will reside with his family in the future.

INTERESTING FUNCTION. Gold Watch and Chain Presented to Vice President of Farmers' Elevator Company.

Carlisle, Nov. 14.—At the directors' meeting of the Farmers' Elevator Company at this point, a very pleasing function took place.

Carlsle, Nov. 14.—Edwin T. G. Mostyn, 46 Bank street, through his solicitor, Mr. Gordon Henderson, yesterday filed a writ of damages against the C. P. R. for $2,000.

The facts in the case are of peculiar interest. While on his way to Kingston recently with the body of his late wife, Mr. Mostyn was forced to avoid an alleged collision to jump the train near Sharnot lake, and he says over a dozen other passengers jumped upon him as he lay on the ground.

The conductor of the train in question, with a brakeman, rushed into the coach in which he was sitting and called to the passengers to jump for their lives as a collision was going to occur.

LEAK IS FOUND AT GOLDSTREAM

Esquimalt Waterworks Company Believe That Over Million Gallons a Day Were Lost.

The Esquimalt Waterworks Company is now engaged in diverting the water from the ditch which leads to Cabin Pond, so that the water will be carried in another way to Cabin Pond.

The workmen are now engaged in cutting a ditch to divert the water to Waugh Creek. This will allow of necessary cement work being done on an existing ditch to keep the water within bounds.

Formerly the ditch to Cabin Pond allowed about two and three-quarter million gallons to go to waste into the old bed before reaching Cabin Pond.

L. Lubbe says that three years ago this was overcome by putting in cement work, reducing the loss to about a third of a million gallons, which was considered of no moment.

No test was made of the leakage this year until a short time ago, when it was found that with 11,000,000 gallons passing through the ditch the leakage was found to be 975,000 gallons a day.

Work is now undertaken to right it. The cement work required will not be great, and the loss will be stopped.

DISCOVERS HER HUSBAND IS CROOK

Revelation Causes Woman to Desert Him—He Pursues Her to Toronto.

Hamilton, Nov. 14.—A woman who was at the railway station with two children yesterday told a strange story to a constable.

She said she had just arrived from England with a man she married three years ago. She intended to go to Toronto and desert him.

The reason given was that on the way out on board ship she discovered that her husband was in league with a gang of sharks and swindlers.

The two men who came to this city with him claimed to have $100,000, and the wife believed if her husband got the money he would not have any more to do with her.

He had threatened to kill her if she squealed on him and his gang.

The woman went to Toronto, and a few minutes later the husband appeared, and finding his wife had checked the trunks for Toronto he followed her on the next train, leaving his two companions here.

The police are looking for them.

INTERCEPTING THE SUN'S LIGHT

Planet Mercury in Transit Across Face of Great Heavenly Body To-Day.

New York, Nov. 14.—Astronomers throughout the country are training their telescopes and cameras on the planet Mercury this morning.

The transit of the planet will occur three and a half hours.

The most important of the observations in the vicinity of New York will be those of Professors S. A. Mitchell and John Elison of Columbia University.

They have mounted a forty foot horizontal camera at Larchmont and will try to obtain several pictures of the little planet's trip across the sun.

Mercury's journey will not be observable with the naked eye, but may be seen with the aid of an ordinary field-glass. The last transit of Mercury was in November, 1904.

ON TRIAL FOR BROWN MURDER

PROSECUTION FEARS UNWRITTEN LAW

Attorney for Annie Bradley May Depend on Plea of Insanity.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The first day's trial of Mrs. Annie Bradley on the charge of murdering ex-United States Senator Brown of Utah, was consumed entirely in an effort to obtain a jury.

When the court adjourned yesterday at 4 o'clock, that preliminary was still uncompleted, notwithstanding that sixty-one talesmen had been examined.

The day was without special incident, but the question put by the counsel for the prosecution and for the defence served to define to some extent the line which would be followed by each side.

It was evident that the attorney for Mrs. Bradley will depend upon the plea of insanity. If there is any confidence in a plea of justification, it was not expressed.

The prosecution manifested apprehension that the jury might consider the case in the unwritten law to shield the defendant from conviction on account of her sex, but it appeared it took no pains to obtain assurances that there were no lurking ideas in the minds of the talesmen to stand in the way of punishment in accordance with the testimony.

Many talesmen were excused because they were opposed to capital punishment.

Industrial Retrenchment in Some Parts But General Welfare is Apparent.

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The Toronto Star says that correspondents in different parts of Canada have sent dispatches indicating the state of industries in their districts.

A number of places report a policy of retrenchment affecting employees. Some have been laid off while others have been put on shorter hours.

The national hymn was repeatedly sung and the Emperor was vigorously cheered.

The city is quiet. A few hundred students gathered in the vicinity of the palace but did not attempt to make a demonstration.

GERMAN CLAIMS IN MOROCCO

Unfavorable Reply to Franco-Spanish Note Proposing International Commission.

Paris, Nov. 14.—The Matin this morning declares that the reply of Germany to the Spanish-Franco note proposing an international commission to examine into the claims for damages arising from the bombardment of Cadix, Blanca, by French and Spanish warships is similar to the Alexandria commission of 1882, and is most unfavorable.

It presents obstacles to the speedy settlement of the question and demands in addition a separate German commission to settle the claims of German merchants.

Paris, Nov. 14.—After further debate yesterday, the chamber of deputies rejected the Socialist motion demanding the complete internationalization of the Franco-Spanish action in Morocco, and condemning the expedition to, and bombardment of Case Blanca as unjustified, and by the big majority of 400 to 50 voted its confidence that the government would assure the respect of the rights of France in Morocco, and keep her engagements toward the other powers.

TWENTY ARRESTED FOR TREACHERY

Sensational Plot, by Which Russians So'd Military Secrets to Germany, Is Unearthed.

Warsaw, Nov. 13.—The authorities of the city made a number of arrests to-day in connection with the discovery of a sensational plot for the sale and conveyance of a quantity of military documents to Germany.

The information upon which the arrests were made was furnished by state detectives. A total of 20 persons were taken into custody. Among them were two train masters of the Warsaw-Vistula railroad line and their wives, who were apprehended at Alexander and unlined.

The luggage of the trainmen was then seized. It was made up of several double bottom valises, containing the train schedules of the railroads of Poland, as well as eight plans setting forth the number of trains, with their size, speed and capacity, and the hours of their arrivals at the frontier. These documents laid bare the possibilities of concentrating troops in Poland.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

C. P. R. Fireman Found in Unconscious Condition Between Fort William and Port Arthur.

Fort William, Nov. 13.—Ambrose Kelly, a fireman on the C. P. R., running out of Schreiber to Fort William, was found to-day in an unconscious condition in a ditch on the road between Fort William and Port Arthur. He was taken to the hospital at this city, where he was immediately attended by Dr. Birdsall, coroner.

His injuries consist of a blow or blows on the head, producing concussion of the brain, and both hands were frozen. He must have been lying in the ditch for several hours before being found, and he is in a very critical condition.

He is supposed to have been relieved from duty to attend the trial of Conductor McCarthy at Port Arthur, and may have been walking from Port Arthur to Fort William. He is partially conscious, and is unable to make any explanation, though he thinks he had $500 on him. A watch, chain and diamond ring are also missing. In a large barn in the vicinity, known as McCarr's barn, about 9 p. m. last evening, some person speaking with an English accent called out: "You have done enough, let me go."

It is a bad neighborhood, and, at this time of the year, the home of many tramps. A brother of Kelly, at Schreiber, was notified.

All of the killed were factory workmen and foreigners.

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES.
Former Winnipegger Met Terrible Accident in Denver.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—Christopher Wilson, a mechanic, and formerly of Winnipeg, died in Denver, Colorado, yesterday as a result of injuries received at the Burnham shops some days ago. A steel tire of a wheel from one of the Denver & Rio Grande engines fell on him, striking him below the knee of both legs and crushing them fearfully.

It required the assistance of six men to lift the enormous weight from the old man's legs, and a call was sent in for the police ambulance. When the police arrived Wilson was unconscious from the pain he had suffered. The legs were temporarily dressed, and the man removed to the St. Joseph's hospital, where he died.

HOW HAYTI DEALS WITH TRAITORS
Five Political Prisoners Taken to Burial Ground and Shot--Their Crimes.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Private advices from responsible foreign sources in Hayti give details of the execution of five political prisoners recently reported in a dispatch from Minister Furness to the state department.

According to these advices, some weeks ago several men were arrested and condemned to death on the charge of conspiring against the government. One of the men was condemned because he made a military coat for another man, and another was condemned because he lived in a house between the two others, and in each of the two a rifle had been found. On October 30th some one put a rifle cartridge on the table, and the first engine that passed exploded it.

The president had five of the condemned men taken to the burial ground and shot. The names of the five men were: Helvetine Traversiere, Alexander Delaunay, Moise Nestor Doumay, Edouard Edouard and Exem Jean.

Hands Terribly Cracked
ZAM-BUK HEALED THEM.

Over and over again the value of Zam-Buk for chapped and cracked places has been demonstrated. Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, adds her testimony, and says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that I could not put them near water. When I tried to do so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and the hands succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands completely."

Hands that are chapped may be restored to the smoothness of health by judicious application of Zam-Buk.

The value of Zam-Buk, either as a protective or a corrective, cannot be overestimated. A box should be on every dressing table.

Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, hemorrhoids, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

KAISER'S APPEAL TO HISTORY
HIS UNSWERVING DESIRE FOR PEACE

Emperor Drives Through London's Crowded Thoroughfares Where He Is Received in Silence

London, Nov. 13.—Emperor William of Germany, the guest of King Edward, made a speech to-day at the Guildhall, where he was entertained by the City of London. He urged the strengthening of Anglo-German relations and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. Their majesties drove several miles through streets brilliantly dressed with bunting and lined by troops from Paddington railroad station, where they arrived from Windsor, to the city's historic hall, where an assembly of some eight hundred persons, including members of the royal family in uniform and with their breasts glittering with orders, formed a brilliant picture. An address of welcome was presented to the Emperor in a magnificent gold casket.

In reply His Majesty recalled his previous reception at the Guildhall in 1891, and emphasized his unalterable desire to foster the peace of the world. His Majesty during his remarks, said: "I said then on this spot that my aim is above all the maintenance of peace. History, I hope, will be just in stating that I have pursued this aim unswervingly ever since. The main prop and base for the peace of the world is the maintenance of the good relations between our two countries."

"The day passed off without the expected Socialist demonstration and without any disorder or rioting. The reception given Emperor William by the people of London has been respectful, but compared with that given some other royal visitors, of recent years, it was in no sense enthusiastic. The atmosphere which has prevailed during his appearance in public has been tinged with decided coolness, and there is no doubt that the English officials are relieved that the passage of the German Emperor through the streets of this city took place without any disagreeable incidents.

The anti-German feeling among a large section of the English people, which just at present is particularly strong, derived fresh impetus from the antagonism which cropped up between the two nations on various lines during the recent conference at The Hague. Emperor William intends, evidently, that his visit shall inspire better feeling, but the result of it remains to be seen.

However cordial the relations between the ruling houses of Great Britain and Germany may be, the better part of the public does not share this feeling. The large majority of the English people insist on believing that Germany is Great Britain's one enemy among the nations, and this enmity has been fanned by continuous warnings recently from certain leading newspapers, as well as from military experts, that Germany's chief naval and military activity is directed toward schemes for the invasion of England—that Germany plans to surprise England when she is fully prepared to strike suddenly, just as Japan surprised Russia.

"The German invasion" is becoming a hobby of the anti-Germans, and a subject of ridicule for the pro-Germans. It has, however, unquestionably affected the mind of the public, and it has tended to surround with suspicion Emperor William's professions of his desire for peace.

KEPT FIND A SECRET.
Rich Mine May Have Been Found While Sinking Holes for Telegraph Poles.

Quartz mining in Cariboo has long ceased to create anything bearing excitement for the discoverers of late years have not been of such a nature as to warrant excitement.

Quite lately, however, a discovery of borinite ore was made that warrants investigation, and as has often been the case, it is in a locality that has been traversed by thousands of persons, including mining men looking for just such properties.

Some two or three years ago Leo St. Laurant, a young man and resident of Quesnel, while sinking a hole for a telegraph pole struck rock that attracted his attention enough for him to remember that it was unusual in appearance from the country rock, and his subsequent action in keeping the find to himself and mentioning it a few days ago to T. J. Corwin, a prospector, is an admission that he had an idea it was valuable.

He took Mr. Corwin to a point on the Quesnel-Barkerville road nearly to the 13 Mile House, and removing the soil to a depth of about three feet disclosed an iron capping of about 12 or 15 inches, this removed, the borinite ore was discovered.

Eight claims were staked at this time and since, many more have been staked.

Mr. Corwin found a wall on one side but failed to find the other wall within 12 feet, as that the width of the ledge is undetermined. The trend of the vein which Mr. Corwin believes to be "true fissure," is northwest and southeast. At intervals for three miles or more outcroppings have been discovered ending at the canyon of the Quesnel river.

Mr. Corwin likes the appearance of the ore and its apparent quantity better than anything he has seen on the coast. He has taken a 50-pound sample to have it assayed, and if satisfactory will return to the property and sink a shaft.

The presumption is that the discovery is a large body of high grade borinite ore.

PREMIER MAY COME WEST.

If pressing and ever increasing business of state will permit Sir Wilfrid Laurier will make a tour of the country, coming as far west as British Columbia, next year.

The Globe further says: "Reverting to the influx of Japanese into British Columbia, it is easy to make the inevitable application. The natural resources of the Province are enormous; the white population is small and scattered; the methods of acquiring property are easily understood and put in operation; the process of naturalization offers no difficulty and little delay.

There is absolutely nothing to hinder the Japanese from becoming within a single generation the virtual owners of the physical resources of British Columbia and the controllers of its political destiny. They can live more cheaply than white men can reasonably be expected to live; they can underbid white men, therefore, in the matter of wages and profits.

The common answer to this presentation of the case is that white labor cannot be obtained; the obvious rejoinder is that development can wait. These are the two sides of the issue, and the time for decision seems to have arrived.

ment, traditions and almost everything which we regard as the special qualities of ourselves, we do an incalculable injury to the state."

LEADING LIBERAL PAPER ON ORIENTAL IMMIGRATION.

The Toronto Globe has from the date of the anti-Asiatic disturbances in Vancouver taken a deep interest in the subject of Oriental immigration as it affects British Columbia at the present time or may affect it in the future.

Our eastern contemporary has given closer attention and displayed a more intelligent grasp of the economic and political phases of the subject than any of the leading newspapers of the East.

It unhesitatingly and firmly expresses its conviction that the future of this province depends absolutely upon effective measures being taken to secure the exclusion of the Oriental races. Dealing with the enlargement of the scope of Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King's commission, it says: The appointment of Mr. W. L. M. King as commissioner to inquire into the conditions connected with the importation of Oriental immigrants into British Columbia during the past few weeks is ample proof of the determination of the Dominion government to get at all the facts of the situation.

The evidence brought out by the commissioner has already cleared up to some extent the mystery of the sudden descent upon this province of thousands of Orientals. The means by which Japanese and Hindus have been induced to come here have been made clear. If the Japanese government and the Indian government cannot be induced to put an end to the system and to effectively close the gates, we trust the government and Parliament will act promptly.

ILLNESS OF THE BRITISH PREMIER.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman may not be a towering political figure compared with many statesmen who have guided the destinies of the United Kingdom. We know that in some respects he can be compared with Mr. A. J. Balfour as the leader of a party or as an orator. In every respect he is the direct antithesis of his great predecessor, Mr. Gladstone. But Sir Henry has proved his capacity by consolidating one of the most heterogeneous parties that ever supported a government in the House of Commons.

He is the man Great Britain required at a critical period of her political history, when there was a revulsion of feeling against certain so-called ultra-imperialistic tendencies with a corresponding development of crude radicalism verging on the boundaries of socialism. There was probably not another man of commanding influence in the ranks of the Liberal party who could have succeeded so well as Sir Henry has in checking the disposition to rush to dangerous extremes in legislation which has been so pronounced a feature of the present Parliament.

By reason of indisposition the Premier should be compelled to retire from public life, it is not easy to select from the leading men of the party a successor equal to the manifold difficulties of the situation. It is often said that few men occupying conspicuous positions in public or private affairs are so essential to the proper conduct of such affairs that their places cannot be immediately filled. We know from our own experience in Canada that that dictum cannot be accepted unreservedly.

The Conservative party of Canada practically fell in pieces when Sir John Macdonald was removed by death. Sir John Thompson was a man in many respects superior in attainments to the great leader. The Conservative chief-tain was an inflexible judge of character. He discovered Sir John Thompson in a post of comparative obscurity and at once elevated him to the position in the government of the day for which his eminent abilities fitted him. Nevertheless it is true that Sir John Macdonald's shoes were too large for the feet of Sir John Thompson. Something more is required in a leader of men than intellectual force and stern strength of character. The subtle quality which attracts men and holds them in loyalty is essential to such commanding success as was exemplified in the life of Sir John Macdonald, and has been even more convincingly displayed in the public career of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It may be accepted as a fact that there is something in the nature of a strong personal equation in the character of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman or he would not have proved such an unexpected success under circumstances of unexampled delicacy and difficulty.

SUBDIVISION OF THE UPLANDS

SPECIAL FEATURES TO BE INTRODUCED

J. C. Olmstead Tells of Some of the Proposals in Connection With Work.

John C. Olmstead, of Brookline, Mass., is registered at the Driad hotel. About six months ago Mr. Olmstead was here to advise professionally in connection with the projected creation of an ideal suburb on the property known as the Uplands Farm.

This property, which is located on Cadboro Bay road, comprises about 55 acres. It was purchased some time ago by J. H. Oldfield, of Winnipeg, for his firm of Kirby, Oldfield & Gardener. The lots will be sold under restrictions calculated to insure the consummation of the artistic plan.

According to the scheme in view, the Upland suburbanites will be a community within itself. For instance, there will be a contract on the part of all residents looking to the achievement of excellence. By the wording of the deeds, in which title to the lots will be given, each of the land owners will likely be asked to join in establishing a board of trustees, to be elected on a general vote of owners, and these trustees are given a right to assess an annual fee in proportion to the frontage on every lot, not to exceed 50 cents a front foot.

It is merely given the neighborhood the right to abate the deterioration. This idea has been incorporated into other communities with the organization of which Mr. Olmstead has been professionally associated and it has proved decidedly successful.

Olmstead Bros., the firm which the visitor represents, has been associated with the making of over 200 public parks, boulevards and squares, and about 20 universities, colleges and endowed schools. They have also laid out a great many land subdivisions similar to that projected here.

It was the Olmsteads, represented by the father of the present member of the firm, who made the plan of the mountain park in Montreal in 1878. The drive up the mountain was built on their plan, but the commission which then had the work in hand went out of office, and the Mount Royal Park scheme was not completed until all the details planned for its beautification.

In Brockville, Ontario, the Olmsteads advised in connection with the beautification of the residence of G. T. Fulford, the work was done on Olmstead plans. This work was undertaken by a state commission, which was given a fund of borrowed money to purchase and improve lands. The reservation embraces about 300 acres. It includes Goat Island and Prospect park. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been expended on this work.

ROMANCE OF MEXICO. Of lost mines that have been rediscovered and are now thoroughly exploited by modern capital, none is more noteworthy than the turquoise mines of New Mexico. The most famous and the most ancient of these are those of Mount Chalchihuitl (the Indian name for turquoise). These were worked ages ago by the aborigines, and then by the Spaniards until about 1850. When the reconquest of New Mexico was accomplished by de Vargas twelve years later, an effort was made to reopen the mines of Mount Chalchihuitl, but it was found impossible to persuade the Indians to enter them. Not caring to precipitate another general revolt, the authorities gave over the endeavor, and the turquoise mines of that region gradually passed into the realm of dim tradition, remaining unknown and all but forgotten for the better part of two centuries. New Mexico was full of traditions and legends concerning the turquoise mines, and some of great value were frequently obtained from the Indians; but the mystery of the location of the mines was as profound as that now surrounding the whereabouts of the diamond mines of the Usumacinta river. The search for the lost turquoise mines of New Mexico began with the class of the Mexican war, and was prosecuted unavailingly for more than a quarter of a century. Several times prospectors reached established towns and mining camps with small specimens of precious turquoise or matrix, and the announcement that the lost mines had been rediscovered; but in every case hostile Apaches or Comanches massacred the discoverers before the exact location of the mines was made public. Not until the last of the Indian wars of the Southwest had been fought and the last frontier thoroughly subdued were the turquoise mines demonstrated to be more than an insubstantial myth. The mines of Mount Chalchihuitl were rediscovered in 1885, and are now controlled by the Tiffany company of New York. The celebrated Azure mine of this district is said to be the richest turquoise mine in the world. It is currently reported that a single mass of pure turquoise was taken from this mine a few years ago that was valued at five million dollars. It is said to have been broken into small pieces and placed on the market in fractional quantities, to avoid destroying the value of this gem.

What Other People Think

THE ORIENTALS AGAIN.

To the Editor:—Mr. E. Kim need not trouble himself about the caste or ism A. R. Sherk belongs to, nor how much he pays to a travelling missionary.

A. R. Sherk is well known in Victoria, and is not afraid or ashamed to openly express his opinions over his own signature. I have always been able to earn a living and compete with my neighbors, but when I see my fellow white neighbor trying to support a family, which he cannot do on less than $2 a day, and see a Yee Chinaman offering to supply Chinese labor to do the same work for $1.25 per day, and thus take the bread out of the mouths of white children, then I believe it is my Christian duty to take up my fellow white neighbor's cause and assist him, if I can, even if such cowards as E. Kim, hiding behind a non de guerre and under the cloak of Christianity, shout: Lazy, lazy! Shame, shame!

I do not deny being the descendant of some Asiatic tribe, but it strikes me that E. Kim is the person Darwin was so anxiously looking for. E. Kim says: "Look how he treats us in his domain. Then we should only return the hearty and just feeling to him." Have Europeans ever been granted and guaranteed full and free liberty in all parts of China and Japan, to enter into and compete with them in all branches of labor and trade? And even if they had, would it be possible for us to live on a cheaper or lower scale than they in their own domain, that we might there accumulate means in a short time, so as to retire and leave the field of strife and labor to hordes of others, as is or has been the case here?

If E. Kim has such "horrid sights among his own creed and color" then consider it his Christian duty to go and do missionary work right there, for Paul in 1 Timothy vi, 8, says: "If any provide not for his own, and specially for his own kindred, he is worse than an infidel." E. Kim states that "It is easy to reply to A. R. Sherk," but he does not attempt to reply. All his remarks summed up is just this: We should remove the barriers of restriction that we might Christianize them.

A few of us believe that charity begins at home, and our first care is for those depending on us, and we consider that we are trying at least to prevent such horrid conditions as the slums of some of the over-congested cities, and in doing so we believe we are doing a good Christian act and are not acting the part of a hypocrite. The Asiatic considers the European only a foreign devil, and if we wish to teach him our religion, we must go about it in some systematic way, and not allow them to fuddle us out entirely, or else we would soon lose both our country and our religion. A. R. SHERK.

EVANGELISTIC WORK.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—Rev. Dr. Chapman, who, during the past three weeks, has been conducting evangelistic meetings here, will visit Winnipeg again in June next, when he comes to attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada, which meets here at that time. It is understood that Dr. Chapman has evolved a plan for evangelistic work which he intends to place before the Assembly. W. W. B. McInnes is in the city to-day.

IMMIGRATION INQUIRY.

McKenzie King Discovers That Vancouver Men Are Officials in Nippon Supply Company.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 14.—Close questioning of Japanese witnesses by McKenzie King, federal commissioner, has brought out the fact that prominent local men are head officials in the Nippon Supply Company, which has an important immigration and contract department.

Further developments are expected, as yesterday the commissioner told the Japanese they were lying, and the house keepers' union is denying statements made when he was before the same commissioner on the claims for damages.

As there are only a limited number at this price, act quickly. Latimer & Ney 13 Troncoe Ave. Phone 1246. FLEAS A NATIONAL DANGER. That fleas are a national danger was contended by Sir Lauder Brunton, in opening the winter session of the London School of Tropical Medicine at Connaught road, Albert dock. Sir Lauder said that the study of tropical diseases was becoming to a great extent identified with the study of the insects which transmit them, as in the case of malaria and the mosquito—and there really ought to be established by government an institute of scientific entomology. Although malaria and sleeping sickness were of imperial importance, they did not directly affect the health or well-being of the taxpayers of this country, and it was difficult to arouse interest in them. But there was another disease which was liable, almost at any time, to do this, namely, the plague. He was informed by Prof. Simpson that during the first six months of this year no fewer than 1,000,000 deaths from plague occurred in India, and that in the Punjab, one in every forty inhabitants had died from this cause between January and June. It seemed now to be demonstrated beyond the possibility of doubt that although in some instances infected food might possibly produce the disease, yet fleas are the main instrument of disseminating infection of plague. The mines of the world employ 5,000,000 persons and more than one-third of them are in the British Empire. Jews are more numerous in Russia than in any other country.

UP FOR STEALING. Gold Chain and Locket Were Borrowed but Not Returned. In the police court this morning Sidney B. Appleby was charged with stealing a gold chain and diamond locket, the property of Helen Hartwell. The defendant, it would seem, picked up the chain and locket in the girl's room and asked permission to wear them for a few days. As he did not return the property, the police were called in to help emphasize the request. It was then found that the trinkets had been pawned. Appleby has a poor character. He did six months in the provincial jail on one occasion. He will come up again to-morrow morning for sentence. James McKnight was brought up charged with being drunk and was remanded, as it is probable that a further charge will be made against him before to-morrow. PROSPECTS IN NORTH. J. Lipscombe Has Arrived From Atlin and Tells of Conditions. J. Lipscombe, who represents the White Pass & Yukon Company in Atlin, has arrived in the city for the winter. He reports that the past season has been a very good one in the northern town, and the general outlook is good for the North. The White Pass Company are building a branch line to the copper mines near White Horse, which will materially assist the industry. The prospects are excellent for work at the Conrad mines next season, all difficulties having been adjusted. The Guggenheims have taken a lot of supplies in this year, which has taxed the transportation facilities. At Atlin the Guggenheims have operated a steam shovel with excellent result, and the prospects are good for the continuation of operations by this method. PROVINCIAL FRUIT. Will It Stand the Rub? "Aye, there's the Rub"-the frequent mopping and scrubbing-not only the daily wear and tear but the exposure to water, the subjection to extremes of heat and cold-that's apt to show up real quality of a floor varnish. Housewives and their servants seldom know how a varnished floor should be cared for and their semi-weekly cleanings usually prove a severe test of varnish quality. Our No. 61 Floor Varnish has stamina enough to successfully withstand these attacks. It is absolutely waterproof. It is very easy to clean, as its surface is extremely hard and durable; therefore, the dust and dirt are not ground into it by the feet, and it escapes the destructive rub-rub-rub necessary to clean floors finished with ordinary varnish. No. 61 Floor Varnish gives a finish remarkable for its brilliancy-a surface that will not mar, scratch white, or show heel marks. No Practical Test Too Severe, If the "Star" Is on the Can. Japan's Ships Subsidized. "Japan has two rookeries, I think, on Saghalien island and on Behring or Robin Island, from which they have excluded even their own people. As they have done that, why should they not assist other powers in calling a halt in wiping out the herd. At the time of the Paris award the Japanese were not sealing at all. Old Faithful A NEW March and Two-step BY ABE HOLZMAN. Price 35c HEAR IT PLAYED AT Fletcher Bros. 88 GOVERNMENT STREET. RICH COUNTRY. Primitive Methods on Queen Charlotte Islands Gives Good Returns. Frank Watson, who has just bonded his Gold Peak group of copper claims on Moresby island to the Tretlow brothers for $10,000, speaks very enthusiastically about the mining possibilities of Queen Charlotte Islands. He states the islands constitute the most richly mineralized section of British Columbia, instancing the occurrence of coal, petroleum, gold, copper and silver in large quantities on Moresby and Graham Islands. The timber wealth of the islands is also very great. As illustrating the richness of the veins he mentioned that John McEellan, a prospector who owns a group three miles from Watson's claims near Douglas harbor, made an average of 375 per week this season by simply crushing the quartz in a hand mortar, a slow and laborious process, in which all the gold cannot be recovered. When Mr. Watson left, his friend was installing an arrastra, with the expectation that much better results would be secured.

MASS MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

J. G. BROWN CALLS ATHLETES TOGETHER

Question of Provincial Union to be Considered—Other Items of Sporting News.

In connection with the proposed athletic Union, a mass meeting of representatives from the various athletic organizations in the city will be held next Wednesday evening to discuss the question. The meeting is being called by J. G. Brown, who has received circulars from the committee which was appointed at the meeting on the 8th instant at Vancouver, asking that an expression of opinion be given by all athletic bodies in the city as to whether this proposed union should be formed and what form it should take. Every athletic club in the city is requested to send a representative empowered to act for his club. Every association of clubs is also requested to send a representative with similar powers. Through the kindness of the Y. M. C. A. the meeting will be held in their hall at 8 p. m.

The Canadian Amateur Athletic Association's definition of an amateur is as follows: "An amateur is a person who has not competed in any competition for a stated bet, money, private or public, or gate receipts, or competed with or against a professional for prize money, who has never taught or assisted in the pursuit of any athletic exercise or sport as a means of livelihood; who has never directly or indirectly received any bonus or payment in lieu of loss of time while playing as a member of any club, or any money consideration whatsoever for any service as an athlete, except his actual travelling and hotel expenses, or who has never entered into any competition under a name other than his own, or who has never been guilty of selling or pledging his prizes."

It will be noticed that according to that clause a man is a professional if he competes with or against a professional for prize money. One would certainly think that competing with or against a professional, if there was no prize money at stake, would be quite legal, but the recent ruling at Vancouver makes it otherwise.

Another point over which the Amateur Union quibbles is the rule which reads, "who has never taught or assisted in the pursuit of any athletic exercise of sport as a means of livelihood." Mrs. Smith, who is the representative of the Athletic Union, is also physical director of the Y. M. C. A. in Vancouver, making his living by conducting and teaching physical exercises and games, yet he claims he is not a professional. If he is not, then surely the man who acted as linesman when a professional was playing could hardly expect to be made a professional. How the referees came to escape when the linesmen were professionalized is one of the ludicrous things about the middle.

Football players look rather with contempt upon the wobbly ways of the C. A. A. U. and most of them will object to the new B. C. Union, if it is formed, connecting itself with that association. It seems almost impossible for those playing under English rules, as all here do, to accept the rulings of the C. A. A. U.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL MEET AT LADYSMITH

The annual schedule meeting of the Vancouver Island Football Association will be held at Ladysmith on Saturday evening the 23rd inst. Entries for this league's competition (senior, intermediate and junior), must be in the hands of J. G. Brown, P. O. drawer 433, Victoria, B. C., on or before the 21st inst. It is expected that several new clubs will enter the competition this year, the most notable being Nanaimo and James Bay teams. At this meeting the proposed formation of a B. C. Amateur Athletic Union will be discussed and probably a delegate will be appointed to represent the association at the meeting to be held in Vancouver on the 8th inst.

ENGLISH LEAGUE

English exchanges show that Manchester United is still leading the Association football league with 13 points to its credit for ten played. Sheffield Wednesday is second with 13 points for the same number of matches. Bury third with 13 points for 12 matches, and Manchester City fourth with 12 points for nine games. Everton, last year's runners-up for the cup, is fifth, having made 12 points for 10 games.

Manchester United is secure at the head of the table for some time to come, given a modicum of luck, as the team is far ahead of the others, having dropped only two points out of a possible twenty. Bury's position is insecure, as Manchester City and Everton are only a point behind with three and two games, respectively, to play.

BOYS TIE

The match yesterday afternoon at Beacon Hill between the boys of North Ward and Collegiate ended in a draw, each team scoring one goal. It was a very close game and pretty fast, at times getting quite exciting.

ATHLETICS WIN FOR SHRUBB

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 13.—In the fifteen mile race at the Arena rink to-night between Alfred Shrubb, the English professional, and John Marsh of Winnipeg, Alfred Shrubb won by two laps, running the fifteen miles in one hour twenty-one minutes and forty-three seconds, Marsh being about two laps behind. The result would have been much closer had not the Manitoba farmer been obliged to stop and change his shoes during the race, thus losing nearly all the distance which separated the runners at the finish. Shrubb leaves almost immediately for the east to give exhibitions.

VETERAN'S GREAT WALK

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Edward Eason Weston, the pedestrian, reached the Iroquois hotel a few minutes before 6 o'clock this evening. He was met by a crowd of at least 1,000 who jammed the hotel corridor and entrances. It took half a dozen policemen to clear a passage to the desk where the veteran registered. The crowd called for a speech and the veteran was lifted upon the desk from which he made a neat little address. Later on he was tendered a reception at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Weston covered the 48 miles between here and Batavia and Buffalo in the face of a forty-mile-an-hour gale. He was tired but in excellent spirits. He will resume his journey to the West early to-morrow morning.

Among physicians who examined Weston on Oct. 21st was Dr. A. T. Bull, an Octogenarian, who made a medical examination of Weston when he passed through Buffalo forty years ago.

YALE BEATS HARVARD

Newhaven, Conn., Nov. 13.—Yale's cross country runners proved to be fitter of foot than those of Harvard in the annual meeting here to-day. Her first six men home scoring 65 points to 44 by the first six who wore the crimson. M. B. Vilas, of Yale, finished first and Crosby of Harvard, second. The distance was a little short of seven miles, the adjoining town of Orange being the starting and finishing point. Vilas' time was 37 min. 51 sec. The teams consisted of nine men each.

ANNUAL EVENT

The annual meeting of the Fifth Regiment Athletic Association will be held this evening in the men's room at the Drill hall commencing at eight o'clock sharp. Mr. Doyle and A. J. Brace, who have drawn up a provisional programme for a big indoor athletic meet to celebrate Paardeberg Day, will report. It is understood that the committee will recommend a ten-mile Marathon race, starting and finishing in the hall, also a relay race with the beginning of each relay in the hall. A tug-of-war will also be a feature. This will be one of the great events of the winter. All the other athletic associations of the city will be asked to co-operate in the celebration of the day which Canadian drew towards them the eyes of the whole world.

THE RING

BURNS IS FAVORITE London, Nov. 13.—"Gunner" Moir, the English heavyweight champion has accepted a bet of $1,500 to $1,000 about his chance of winning the world's championship from Tommy Burns, the Canadian, in their bout at the National club next month.

Moir's Optimism

New York, Nov. 14.—Representations from England have it that Gunner Moir, who will fight Tommy Burns for the heavyweight championship of the world on December 2nd, at the National Sporting Club, London, is in prime condition. Moir has been training for a long time and he declares that he will put Burns to sleep inside of twenty rounds.

WITH OWLS TO-NIGHT

The big boxing and wrestling event arranged by the Owls will take place this evening at the A. O. U. W. hall. Four boxing bouts and two or three wrestling matches, one or two of which will be jiu jitsu exhibitions, make an evening of sport that must satisfy the most enthusiastic lovers of the manly art and of the Japanese game. The society of Owls have been working hard to make this par excellence the event of the season, and so far as it is possible to forecast, they have succeeded. Those attending the athletic exhibition to-night are assured of gentlemanly exhibitions in which there will be no slugging. Already the tickets at the ring-side are almost sold out, but the galleries of the hall give just as good an opportunity to watch the fun as from any other point. The contestants will have to break clean at the call of the referee, and eight ounce gloves will be used. This does not mean that the bouts will be tame. For fast and exciting fights it is always preferable to slugging. The following events will take place: Lynn White, the young Australian waterweight, will meet Tom Field, to weigh in at 143 pounds and box ten rounds for points; Colley Hill will meet Ritzche; Billy Hill and Vinson will box four rounds in the bantam class; Suggs of the Channel Fleet, meets Samson, of the Shearwater at catch weights. Japanese experts will give an exhibition of jiu jitsu.

RUGBY FOOTBALL STANFORD COMING

As forecasted in the Times, the victorious Stanford Rugby team will visit British Columbia about Christmas to play a series of matches with the coast teams. Most of the games are scheduled to be played in Vancouver, Victoria being given only one. The schedule is as follows: November 16—V. A. C. vs. Wander-

New York, Nov. 14.—According to a dispatch to the Times from Pittsburgh, Jack Johnson, heavyweight fighter, was matched yesterday to fight Jack O'Brien. Johnson was represented by his manager, while O'Brien took care of his own interests. The Philadelphia man favored a six round bout to take place in Philadelphia, but will go to the Pacific coast if he can get for twenty rounds, and if he can get a good purse. The main point discussed was whether bandages should be permitted. It was finally decided that both bandages and short fingered gloves would be allowed.

Semi-ready Tailoring B. WILLIAMS & CO., 68 YATES STREET.

Arrangements are being made to form a Pacific Coast Y. M. C. A. Basketball League the matches in which will probably commence about the early part of December. This will include Vancouver, Seattle, Tacoma, Bellingham and Victoria. Last year a somewhat similar league was formed and some interesting games were the result. This year it is expected that the Victoria association will take an important part in the league and it is not by any means impossible that the coast honors may be landed here. The Victoria Y. M. C. A. is decidedly on the "up-grade" in the matter of athletic games and their basketball team is in line with the rest.

LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Preliminary arrangements were made last night to form a basketball league for the city and district. L. Tait presided and there was a good representation from the city athletic associations.

My Lady Cinderella

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson

The room which Jimmy East, Emmy East, Baby East, and I shared as a bedchamber was up under the eaves of the villa, with a ceiling that slanted in unexpected places, and attempted to knock one's brains out of one's ears in the darkness to soothe the baby's cries.

Adjoining was the abode of the one servant, whose many tasks it was my part of my daily duty to lighten. I went upstairs heavily, past the floor where Mr. and Mrs. East's domain and the "spare bedroom" did their best to grace a self-respecting Peckham villa. Before the top of the second flight, the voice of Cousin Sarah rang out through the closed door:

"Nasty, ungrateful hussy! She'll know it when she gets an afternoon out again!"

This was a challenge, though she was only haranguing Emmy and the baby; and it ought to have spurred my falling courage. But there was something spiritually relaxing to me in the air at Haptholme. It was a white-faced coward who reluctantly opened the door and prepared to "face the music."

"I'm sorry, Mrs. East" (she did not approve of being addressed more familiarly), "that I am late," I said; "I didn't think it would be Mousie's bedtime yet."

She had been sitting by the wash-hand stand with her back to me, but she founced her chair round, turned a flushed, virago face upon me.

"Oh, you designed to come back, have you? I wonder you didn't stop away a little longer, dine at the Savoy, and go to a box at the Opera. This is what I get for being good-natured and letting you go tramping about town while I stay at home and look after your business."

Of course, her children were by business; at all events, I should hardly have breath enough to dispute the assertion against her. I therefore quietly took off my hat and gloves, and advanced to retrieve the baby, who had now begun to yell under his mother's jerkings and pullings. But Mrs. East watched him back against her ample breast.

"Now that I've done all the work, you'd step in and get all the credit, would you?" she snapped. "Let me alone. I'll finish what I've begun. But this day's been a lesson to me. I'm tired of giving away my food and my house room for nothing. You don't get out again, to deny me, in a hurry, my lady."

Her tone, her words, were unbearably insulting. Coward that I was, and had too often been in the presence of this big grenadier of a woman, who looked too large for her own house, my blood leaped now; and my ears tingled as if she had boxed them.

An instant ago I had not meant to speak of what had happened to-day, what was to follow a few days later, until she should be in a more promising temper. But my anger I lost my shrinking dread of her, and was bitten with the temptation to fling in her fierce face the knowledge that somewhere I was wanted and appreciated, if not here.

CHAPTER IV.

I Flung Down the Gauntlet of Fate.

"I have never wished not attempted to defy you, Mrs. East," I said, trying to speak calmly, though my voice trembled. "But there is a limit even to my endurance. I am not a slave; I am of your own flesh and blood, and by hard work from early morning till late at night I have earned over and over again the food, the shelter, you so grudgingly allow me. Now—"

"Upon my word!" she broke in, beating me down with her loud vituperation. "You'd answer me back, would you? A third cousin, that's all you are—is no cousin at all. For years I've kept you, out of charity, ever since your mother, a poor, useless invalid, no good to herself or anybody else, for all her fine boastings—died in a railway carriage and left you on the world. This is the reward I get for it; but that's life—that's life," I suppose, of course you've been made to work; you couldn't expect to sit idle all day while I slaved for you. But you've not done half what a hired nursemaid would have done. Henry East's silly kindness has spoiled you. I could get in a girl and pay her four shillings a week, not a quarter as much as your clothes and your pocket money have cost me—yes, I could get her in to-morrow, and she'd do better without any practice than you do after five years."

Fortunately, or unfortunately, I was born with a sense of humor, so that, little movement as was in my heart, I was seized with a sudden hysterical gust of laughter at Mrs. East's boast of generously giving "pocket money." She had been knowing to deal me out a postage stamp at a time for a letter to Mrs. Bayden or Anne; and she sat sulking by, talking of her own financial sacrifices for her family's sake, while her husband tossed a shilling into my plate at breakfast. But she had no sense of humor and, not fathoming the cause of my laughter, it infuriated her the more. She glared and swallowed hard, but I did not yet allow her to begin again.

"Wait!" I exclaimed. "I have something to say to you, Mrs. East. As it will be easy for you to fill my place, you will be glad to hear that I have made up my mind to relieve you from the burden of my presence at the end of the week. It is only fair to give you so much notice, I think, and for the children's sake."

"How dare you!" she flung at me. "You go away! You leave a good home like this! Catch you doing it. You know too well which side your bread's buttered, though I've the best mind in the world to take you at your word—"

"I want nothing else," I asserted. "Indeed, I have wished for long to go. To-day an opportunity has been offered me. I have had a most advantageous offer."

"She began to look at me sharply, the 'boiled gooseberry' eyes, which had such an unpleasant, catty fascination for me, snapping with anger.

"Ah, she sneered, 'perhaps the Queen has begged you to come and be a maid of honor?'"

"Really, you are not so far wrong," I retorted. "A lady—a woman of title—has invited me to pay her a visit. After that she has intimated that she will help me to find work."

"Of all—the liars—you are the worst and the most dishonest," howled Brand. "Brand" indeed, I always say it meant the brand of Satan."

The blood rushed so hotly to my face that the tears were forced, stinging, to my eyes.

"Leave my room, woman!" I exclaimed, pointing to the door; "for while I am here in this house it is and shall be mine."

I had hardly known what I was saying, but when the full force of my temerity swept over me I was not even then dismayed. An end was coming now; the earth quaked in the old world that I had known.

She slid the frightened, whimpering two-year-old from her knees, and springing to her feet towered above me.

"You brat! you charity child! you tell me to leave this room! I tell you to leave my house, not in a week, not to-morrow, but now, this minute. Out you go!"

I faced her quivering.

"Do you mean it?"

"As much as I mean that I'm sick to death of you. Not a stick of luggage do you wait for. It can be sent after you to your lady of title. Bah! you make me ill. Go!"

I shut my lips together without a word. I do not think that I could have spoken then if I would. A shower of glittering sparks seemed to be falling before my eyes; but, tumbling, I found my hat and put it on. My gloves, too, which lay beside it on the bed, I mechanically picked up, crushed them in my hand. Then, without turning to look back, I left the room.

Outside in the passage the whirlwind of my quick, blind flight knocked against something, and tumbled over it over. Startled, I collected my faculties sufficiently to see Jimmy, who had thus been punished for listening at the keyhole, and to help him to his feet.

He sneaked downstairs at my side, his small six-year-old body striving to hide itself in my skirt as he went. Half way down, a strident voice from above hurried some inarticulate abuse after me, but I neither paused nor looked up, and Jimmy only cuddled the closer.

At the front door the little boy clung to me with white, grimy hands.

"Don't go—don't go, Connie!" he implored. "Maybe she'll be sorry to-morrow. Anyhow, I love you, and I'll be better to you after this if you'll stay; so'll pa. I'll tell him on her, see if I don't. Connie, I can't get along without you—honest true I can't."

CHAPTER V.

Gently, but firmly, I loosened Jimmy's little hands.

"I'm sorry to leave you, dear," I said. "But after what's happened to-night I can't stay any longer. I won't forget you. And by and by I'll write you a letter to your own name. If I have any money, I'll send you a present, too."

Jimmy's tears ceased to fall.

"Will you, true? you live?"

"Yes. And perhaps I shall come back to see you one day in a carriage. Who knows?"

I bent and kissed him, despite the smudges with which his small face was ever adorned save at early morning. Then, before he could grasp me again, I had put him away and closed the door between us. Running down the steps, and out at the gate, I hurried away in the fading twilight, hardly realizing that the dust of Haptholme Villa had indeed been shaken from my feet.

For a long time I flew on, aimless, panting, paying no heed to the way I went. But at last sheer fatigue caused my speed to slacken, and with a shock of surprise it dawned upon me that I did not know where to go.

I had told Lady Sophie de Gretton that I must give Mrs. East a few days' notice before leaving her children, after a residence of five years in her house. Lady Sophie would doubtless have arranged matters in accordance with that expressed intention of mine, so that now it might be inconvenient for her if I were to make my appearance earlier, announcing that I had come to stay.

At all events, it would be impossible for me to go to Park Lane to-night, as she had mentioned that she was dining out, with a theatre party afterwards. Clearly, it would not do to arrive in her absence, with only the servants at home nor could I hang about the door, like a tramp, until twelve o'clock or so, when she might be expected to return.

I began to feel a little frightened, though I by no means regretted my precipitancy in leaving that most inappropriate named domicile, Haptholme. In my shabby purse, which I had possessed since before my dear mother's tragic death, coyly nestled one penny, one half-penny, and an impracticable farthing. As I walked on more slowly I examined and thought over these resources.

With the malicious contrariness of human nature, though I could not have eaten the most delicate morsel a few moments ago had it been temptingly served to me in Mrs. East's house, I now began poignantly to feel that I was hungry.

A clock over a cheap jeweler's shop told me that it was half-past eight. I had lunched hastily at twelve on a piece of bread and cheese before going out to join Anne, and I had been far too much excited at Lady Sophie de Gretton's to do more than crumble a bit of leing on my tiny cake as I tasted the tea in one of her Dresden cups.

Oh, how faint I was beginning to be! How my head throbbed, and how delicate I was! A brilliant destiny might be fluttering before me, like a Will-o'-the-wisp, but the present brought tears of loneliness to my eyes. I did not know what I was to do, where I might hope to spend the night.

Mrs. Bryden had still kept the boarding house in Bloomsbury where my mother and I had lived for several years I might now have gone there. Mrs. Bryden would gladly have accommodated me for a night or two, and let me pay when I could. But she had moved to Surbiton, and I had no money for my railway fare, so that it was hopeless to think of finding shelter with her.

Some people spent their nights in wandering up and down, or dropping into a troubled drowse upon the seats on the Embankment. I knew; but I had not the courage to face such an experience, and finally, with extreme reluctance, I permitted the thought of Mrs. Leatherby-Smith to grow within my mind. I had never seen Mrs. Leatherby-Smith, though I seemed to know her only too well from Anne's description of her employer, and I had no reason to believe, from the knowledge which I possessed, that she would give her companion secretary's insignificant friend a warm welcome.

Still, much as I disliked a grudging favor, I thought it would be preferable to entreat Mrs. Leatherby-Smith's hospitality for one night rather than walk the streets, or apply to a Refuge for Homeless Young Women—all spelled with capital letters.

Whatever I did, it was clear that I could not present myself at Lady Sophie de Gretton's till next day at earliest, and Mrs. Leatherby-Smith appeared to be my only other hope. I might sleep with Anne, I reflected, and, after all, I need not make trouble for anyone else in the house.

Having once arrived at a decision, I felt better. But the next thing was to reach Addison Road, where Mrs. Leatherby-Smith lived; a penny would not take me half the distance in an omnibus, and I must ride as far as I could, and accomplish the rest of the journey on foot. My remaining half-penny I expended at a baker's upon a cake so stodgy as to be particularly filling at the price, and ate it, furtive and abject, at a street corner while waiting for the bus to come in sight.

As I did so, with such poor pretence of jauntiness as I could maintain, I thought of Lady Sophie de Gretton, and of the two dainty occupants of the mysterious victoria, wondering grimly what would be their impression if they could see me now.

Somewhat revived, I was ready to make the necessary exertion when the omnibus had brought me as far as it would for a penny and I had to descend and walk.

It was a very long walk, which I made still longer by losing my way more than once. Weary, faint, and miserably doubtful of my reception, I was almost too far gone, when at last I reached Addison Road, to rejoice that I was so near by journey's end.

Mrs. Leatherby-Smith, who had occupied a suite in a fashionable hotel when she first came to London for the season (which meant so much to her nouveau riche ambition), had not been long in Addison Road; but I had written to Anne since her arrival, and I was sure of the address.

"Holland Park House" was the name which I had scrawled on one or two envelopes during the past four weeks; and now, seeing the two words, "Holland Park," glittering in gold letters on a tall iron gateway, I did not wait to let my eyes travel farther along the line, but ventured inside.

A short drive led up to a large building of brick and stone, dignified with a deep porch, the roof of which was supported by massive pillars. I knew that Mrs. Leatherby-Smith was lavish of the money left her by a deceased Birmingham husband, and that she had chosen a place in Addison Road expressly that she might be able to give garden parties; but I had hardly expected to see such an imposing mansion as this. It looked big enough for two or three Mrs. Leatherby-Smiths to give parties all at the same time.

Big double doors stood hospitably open. Within, other doors, half composed of jeweled glass, were tightly closed. A light shone through, and here and there in the house other lights filtered through drawn curtains; but many windows were dark. Probably, I thought, Mrs. Leatherby-Smith was out; but Anne would be at home; and not yet in bed, as it was not much after ten o'clock.

I touched an electric bell, and an elderly man, in a plain, business livery, answered my ring.

"Is— is Miss Bryden at home?" I hesitated.

"The man looked puzzled.

"Miss Bryden? I don't know the name," he replied.

"She is Mrs. Leatherby-Smith's companion."

The cloud of his bewilderment did not lift.

"Is Mrs. Leatherby-Smith visiting here?" he inquired with an air of polite conscientiousness. "We have no tenant by that name, miss."

"But this is Mrs. Leatherby-Smith's house, isn't it?" I questioned hastily.

"Surely Holland Park House—"

"Ah, you've made a mistake, then. This is Holland Park Mansions. Holland Park House is next door but one, miss. I'll show you, if you like."

"Thank you," I had begun, and was already moving farther from the door, when from within a man came out in so great a hurry that the janitor was obliged to forget his dignity and give a funny little hop-out of the way.

I, too, stepped aside, expecting to see the man continue his headlong career down the drive to the gate; but instead he stopped abruptly on the threshold and gazed at me.

He was a man of middle age, well dressed and substantial looking, with old-fashioned side whiskers, gray hair, and round, gold-bowed, smoked spectacles that lent him a benevolent air. In his hand was a telegraph form, crushed up with the opened envelope.

"I beg your pardon," he said; then paused, as if undecided how to follow up his preface. I gleaned a rapid impression that he fancied we had met before, and, though his face was strange to me, oddly enough I vaguely had the same feeling in regard to him.

The pause was very short; he had scarcely given himself more than time to draw breath, although it certainly had seemed that for the fraction of a second he had sought eagerly for an idea, an inspiration.

"Then, 'I beg your pardon,'" he said again. "But didn't I hear you inquiring for Holland Park House? The people there are your friends?"

"I don't know Mrs. Leatherby-Smith," I confessed humbly. "But her companion, Miss Anne Bryden, is a friend of mine."

"The face of the middle-aged man brightened with a smile. I racked my brain to think where, if ever, I had seen him before; but the recollection would not come.

"Ah, Miss Anne Bryden! She is a friend of mine also. It is a great pity, if you are going to Holland Park House to-night, that Mrs. Leatherby-Smith and Miss Bryden are both away. They are not expected to return until tomorrow. You may have heard Miss Bryden speak of me."

"No," I replied, my heart sinking at the news of Anne's absence. "I don't think she has mentioned you. But, then, I haven't seen much of her since she and Mrs. Leatherby-Smith came to live in Addison Road. It is very odd, however, that Anne said nothing to me when I was with her this afternoon about going away for all night."

"I dare say she did not know, then," Mr. Wynnetay explained, regarding my changed countenance intently. "Mrs. Leatherby-Smith is a woman of quick decisions. They—er—left quite suddenly, as I happen to know. I'm sorry my little friend Miss Bryden forgot to mention my existence, for, had she done so, you would be more ready to let me help you in any way possible if you are inconvenienced by her unexpected absence. I trust, however, that—er—you are not inconvenienced?"

If I had been quite myself I might successfully have maintained an air of graceful reserve; but I was weak with fatigue and hunger, which had developed into a wily headache, with little hot and cold flashes of giddiness. My eyes were so full of tears that a fall of my lashes sent two plashing over my cheeks, and after that it was useless to pretend that I was indifferent.

A Serious Question.

A persistent bad cold will run into consumption unless it is relieved in time. So it is with the little daily wants of the people—they grow serious if not promptly filled. You can afford, for instance, to have that house tenantless for a little while, but when it continues tenantless month after month it becomes a serious matter. The timely "want" ad ends the trouble.

DIVORCE LAWS IN PROVINCE

JUDGMENT GIVEN BY
MR. JUSTICE CLEMENT

Holds Opinion That British Columbia
Courts Have no Authority
Dealing With Subject

An epitome of the judgment given by Mr. Justice Clement, relative to divorces in British Columbia, appeared in the Times a few days ago. The full judgment is now available. In the divorce case of Watt vs. Watt, which came before Mr. Justice Clement, the learned justice raised the point of local jurisdiction, and questioned the legality of any divorces previously granted. Other judges, such as Sir Matthew Begbie and Mr. Justice McCreight also took the stand that British Columbia courts had no authority to grant divorces. Mr. Justice Clement, in referring the matter to Ottawa, gives the following reasons:

I see no reason why a judge should apologize at any time for a speedy delivery of judgment. And, in this particular case, the issues involved are of such vital importance, not only to the immediate parties as to such quieting possibilities of undesired opprobrium that as speedily as may be those issues should come before a court empowered to deal with finally upon them. In the divorce case of Watt vs. Watt, which came before Mr. Justice Clement, the learned justice raised the point of local jurisdiction, and questioned the legality of any divorces previously granted. Other judges, such as Sir Matthew Begbie and Mr. Justice McCreight also took the stand that British Columbia courts had no authority to grant divorces. Mr. Justice Clement, in referring the matter to Ottawa, gives the following reasons:

In S. vs. S. (1877) 1 B. C. pt. 1, p. 25, the act in which is discussed the question with which I have now to deal, the then three judges of the court (Begbie, C. J., Grey and Crease, J. J.) sat, not in banc or as an appellate tribunal, but in supposed conformity with the requirements of the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857, to hear a petition for a decree nisi of marriage on the ground of impotency. The two puisne judges held that they had jurisdiction in the premises. The C. J. dissented. Owing, as I am given to understand, to his refusal to join in the exercise of the alleged jurisdiction, the view put forward by Mr. Justice Grey that one judge sitting alone could exercise the full powers of the court was adopted in practice and has since been uniformly followed.

If I do not discuss at length the views expressed by the learned judges in S. vs. S., it is not because I have not carefully considered them. When first called upon to exercise jurisdiction in the divorce, I was at once struck by the fact that the jurisdiction, if it exists, is unhappily in one way so fettered and in another so unfettered as to place a judge in a very unenviable position. Tied down to the law of 1858, he has none of the safeguards which now obtain in England against collusive actions—I mean the granting in the first instance of a decree nisi and the reference in the case to the King's Proctor for investigation and, if necessary, intervention. While, on the other hand, as the Full court has held in Scott vs. Scott (4 B. C. 516), there is no appeal from his decision to any tribunal in this province. This very unsatisfactory state of affairs led me to an anxious consideration of the whole question of the court's jurisdiction and to ask at the first opportunity that counsel should argue in support of the court's jurisdiction. I have endeavored to keep an open mind throughout Mr. Wilson's able argument, but if I may say so without offence, he has advanced nothing that I had not already carefully debated in my mind. Since the argument I have read with care all the cases he cited and many others. In the result the view I take is so decided that, for the reasons above indicated, I should give judgment at once.

I assume for the purpose of this judgment that the jurisdiction of this court prior to 1871 was and still is of the widest character, viz., as stated in Sir James Douglas's proclamation of June, 1858, establishing the court, jurisdiction in all cases civil as well as criminal arising within the province. But an enactment creating a court and defining its jurisdiction does not usually, and it did not in this instance, add to the existing body of substantive law. It provides usually, and it provided in this instance, a tribunal to safeguard and enforce such rights only as exist under the substantive law from time to time in force. So that usually and in this instance we must look elsewhere for the substantive law.

Admittedly there is no legislation emanating from a British Columbia legislature prior to the date (1871) when British Columbia became a Canadian province dealing specifically with the subject of the dissolution of marriage. And, of course, there could be none since that date, "divorce" being one of the matters assigned to the exclusive ken of the federal parliament. And that parliament has passed no act on the subject. But the contention is that the law of England, civil and criminal, as it existed in November, 1858, was introduced as an early date into British Columbia, and that this law of England, so introduced into British Columbia, included a law on the subject of divorce. If so, it would clearly be the right and duty of this court to uphold and enforce whatever rights and remedies existed under or were provided for by that law. The question of course is: Was any such law introduced?

To solve this question it is necessary to consider in the first place the language of the enactment by which English law was introduced into British Columbia. By proclamation of 19th November, 1858, Sir James Douglas, governor of the Mainland colony of British Columbia, and certain parts of the island and mainland colonies of the same existed at the date of said proclamation, and so far as they were not from local circumstances inapplicable to the colony of British Columbia were and should remain in full force within the said colony. Subject, of course, to future legislation. After the union of the island and mainland colonies the above provision was extended to the united colony.

I am of the opinion—at all events I assume—that the use of the double negative throws the burden on him who contends that a given English law, statutory or other, was not introduced into British Columbia. He must establish the affirmative proposition that the law in question was "from local circumstances inapplicable" to British Columbia. This drives me at once to an examination of the English law on the subject of divorce as it stood in November, 1858. So far as concerns the question of a dissolution of marriage by judicial decree—which is all I have to deal with—the examination is necessarily limited to the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857. Prior to the passage of this act, such judicial decrees were possible only by the operation of parliament could dissolve the marriage tie. What then was this law embodied in the act of 1857?

Here again we have an enactment, one large purpose of which was to create a new court, the jurisdiction of which in so far as it follows out this purpose, is essentially local. The court was to be composed from time to time of judges occupying certain positions on the bench of existing English courts, and it was to have the jurisdiction heretofore exercised by the ecclesiastical courts in England and certain new and additional jurisdiction. The ecclesiastical courts of England, it may be noted, had no counterpart in the colonies. In re Lord Bishop of Natal's Moo. P. C. (N. S.) 115. It really seems idle to labor further the proposition that, in so far as the act of 1857 was limited to the creation of a court it was a purely local law clearly inapplicable to British Columbia.

But substantive law is sometimes (e.g. in the Judicature Acts) found among the clauses of a statute the main purpose of which is to create a court, and to some extent this is the case in the act of 1857 under examination. Having created an exceptionally strong court to take over the jurisdiction theretofore exercised by the ecclesiastical courts, it was deemed expedient to withdraw divorce legislation from parliament—practically though of course not legally—and to elevate a moral right to legislative favor into a legal right enforceable in a court of justice. But not in any of the ordinary courts; in this exceptionally strong court, and in it only when constituted in an exceptionally strong way of three judges, of whom the judge of the newly created Court of Probate was to be one.

The act did not, under the examination, create a new right as between husband and wife in England, but in my opinion only sub modo. That new right was so inseparably incidental to and bound up with the jurisdiction of an essentially local court that I cannot bring myself to view it as any other right, or to legislative favor into a legal right enforceable in a court of justice. In my opinion to segregate the bare right to a judicial decree from the local conditions as to its enforcement. Those local conditions did not and could not exist in British Columbia. Sir William Grant's description of the Mortmain Act (Atty. Gen. vs. Stewart 2 Mer. at p. 180) might well, it appears to me, be taken as a pen picture, occurring in every detail, of the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857:

"In its causes, its objects, its provisions, its qualifications, and its exceptions, it is a law wholly English, calculated for purposes of local policy, complicated with local establishments, and incapable without great incongruity of being transferred as it stands into the code of any other country."
Atty. Gen. vs. Stewart was approved of and followed in the House of Lords: Whicker vs. Hume, 7 H. L. Cas. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 898.
In short I am of the opinion that the law enacted by the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857 was for local circumstances wholly inapplicable to application to British Columbia; and I cannot bring myself to hold that the establishment by colonial enactment, touched in general terms, of what I may call an auxiliary court with general jurisdiction throughout the colony was intended or would suffice to make it an extraordinary court with the extraordinary, almost revolutionary, jurisdiction of the lately created English Divorce court.

I might suggest, without going further than mere suggestion, a somewhat analogous question: Could the colonial court exercise jurisdiction in bankruptcy, as the phrase was understood in England, without a local colonial law on the subject of bankruptcy? And I might refer to L'Union St. Jacques vs. Belisle L. R. 6 P. C. 21, for a definition or description of bankruptcy as a conception dependent upon legislation. So, in my opinion, was the right of a judicial decree dissolving marriage dependent upon and conditioned by the legislature which created it.

One question, not touched upon in S. vs. S., appears to me to have an important bearing. If the jurisdiction extended for exists, does a decree of divorce pronounced by this court confer a right to re-marry. Evidently a most vital question, the final solution of which ought not to be delayed for one moment longer than necessary. This question of the right to re-marry after divorce is discussed in the carefully considered judgment of Sir Creswell Crosswell (speaking for the Full court) in Chichester vs. Chichester 32 L. J. P. 146, at page 151: "The Ecclesiastical Court . . . after the expiration of that time."

The right, then, is a statutory right under section 57. But section 57 depends upon and is to be read with section 56. Section 56 is a section unequivocally local, providing for an appeal to the House of Lords. No such appeal lies from any colonial court. The right to re-marry arises only upon the expiration of the time for appeal, "but not sooner." Is that time in the case of a decree of this court, to be fixed, by analogy (with reference to the time within which a final appeal may be taken to the Privy Council)? What was that time in 1858? What is it now? This is an incongruity greater, it seemed to me, than any in the mind of Sir William Grant when he spoke the words I have quoted above from Atty. Gen. vs. Stewart, and makes it impossible for me to say that the law enacted by the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857 was other than inapplicable in British Columbia when such a vital matter as the right of re-marriage would be left to depend on the arbitrary adoption of a doubtful analogy.

There is, in my opinion, no authority binding me to do the contrary to my own deliberate conviction as to what is the law. In the only case (Scott vs. Scott) above referred to, before an appellate tribunal, it was unnecessary to consider the larger questions. The Full court held that it at all events was without jurisdiction in divorce. It is unnecessary to cite authority for the proposition that want of jurisdiction can never be cured by reiterated instances of its exercise, or, perhaps I should say, of attempts to exercise it. Ex nihilo nihil fit. To this case the principle of stare decisis, valuable rule of expediency as it undoubtedly is, can have little application. The question, however, can never, being a question of jurisdiction, be "decided" short of the Privy Council, or, better still, by legislation. But I realize fully the responsibility I shoulder in giving effect to my own view in face of many decrees pronounced by British Columbia judges. Against that I may put these facts: (1) that this question of jurisdiction has never, so far as I can learn, been considered in any case other than S. vs. S. and (incidentally) Scott vs. Scott; (2) that at least three very able judges in British Columbia have, as it well known, decided in favor of jurisdiction; and (3) that no attempt to ever been made, so far as I know, to invoke the aid of the courts in Manitoba or the Northwest Territories along this line, notwithstanding the fact that the law of England, as it stood in 1870, was introduced there in terms almost identical with those of Sir James Douglas's proclamation. I might add that the course taken by Sir Gorell Barnes in Dodd vs. Dodd (1906) p. 189, would seem to be a precedent for the course I have felt myself bound to take in this case. He decided under the circumstances of that case to follow the reports and decisions of two eminent judges of co-ordinate jurisdiction.

It becomes unnecessary in the view I have taken to express my opinion on the question as to how the jurisdiction is to be exercised if it exists. It seems to me, however, that if the right to a judicial decree of dissolution created by the act of 1857 became the right of a spouse in British Columbia by virtue of the Douglas proclamation, it was a right to be enforced by the ordinary procedure of the court as laid down in the rules of court promulgated by Begbie, C. J. That he made no specific provision for proceedings in divorce cases shows, in my opinion, that he, co-eval with Mr. Justice Gray expressed in the law in British Columbia, had no notion that the English Divorce Matrimonial Causes Act of 1857 had operative effect in British Columbia.

The petition is dismissed, but without costs. I may, I think, be pardoned for expressing the strongest possible terms the hope that those charged with the oversight of the administration of justice in this province will take forthwith such steps as may be necessary to have this delicate question promptly set at rest.

At counsel's request entry of judgment is stayed until further order.

KIPLING'S CHINESE FRIEND.

Kipling anecdotes are not numerous. One of the best which his admirers have gathered is this:
A New York gentleman, who for a summer lived near a neighbor to Mr. Kipling in Vermont, tells this story: "I was walking down the main street of Brattleboro one day, and saw Kipling coming towards me. He was dressed in a bicycle suit, and came swinging along at an easy gait. Just ahead of me was a little Chinese laundry, and the Chinaman was standing in the doorway. When Kipling reached him, he addressed the Chinaman in Chinese and began rattling conversation with him in that language. The Chinaman gave a gasp of surprise, but answered him, and in a few minutes Kipling had him smiling from ear to ear, and both of them were laughing away in Chinese. I understood afterwards that every time Kipling came to town, he stopped for a chat with the Chinaman. The Celestial would never tell the wonderful neighbors what Kipling talked about, and when asked only replied: 'Him welly fine man. His welly great man.'"

WEEKLY WEATHER SYNOPSIS.

Victoria Meteorological Office,
6th to 12th November, 1907.
The weather during this week was unusually fine and dry for this season of the year, and in this portion of Vancouver Island no rain was recorded, while the average daily amount of bright sunshine was over five hours. On the Lower Mainland the rainfall was light, and occurred on the first day of the week. This fine spell was due to the constant prevalence of high barometric pressure over the North Pacific slope, while from California eastward it was comparatively low. These conditions caused dry northerly winds throughout the Pacific slope. No high winds were reported, except that, at the entrance to the Strait of Fuca, local conditions caused a fresh easterly gale, which on Saturday, the 9th, reached a velocity of 42 miles an hour. Light frosts occurred on the Lower Mainland on the 9th, 10th and 11th. There has been no cold weather in the Kootenay district, nor were any very low temperatures reported in Southern Cariboo, and in Atlin, with the exception of the first two days, mild weather was general. The weather was mostly fine in the prairie provinces, and on the last two days of the week a pronounced cold wave extended from these districts southward to the Mississippi valley, the lowest temperatures reported being 4 above zero in Manitoba and 25 above at Memphis.
Victoria—Total amount of bright sunshine, 39 hours and 42 minutes; no rain; highest temperature, 58.4 on 9th; lowest, 37.5 on 10th.
Vancouver—Rain, .46 inch; highest temperature, 51 on 6th; lowest, 32 on 11th.
New Westminster—Rain, .20 inch; highest temperature, 56 on 10th; lowest, 24 on 9th and 11th.
