Conferences for Empire Premiers Should Be Roving

Such Is Opinion of Rt. Hon. W. F. Massey, New Zealand's Prime Minister; Empire Trade and Immigration.

Premier Massey of New Zealand, on his way home from the Imperial Conference in England, told members of the Canadian Club at their luncheon to-day that the British Empire has arrived at the stage that never again will its fighting forces seek for territory or indemnities or national aggrandizement.

It has not happened for a long time, and it will never happen again," he said. He said that other empires in the past were out for glory through aggrandizement.

British Emigration. Mr. Massey pointed out the great stream of emigration that has been going out from England for the last fifty years, and going not to British Dominions, but to other nations to build up those nations.

WISH A SHARE IN CONFERENCE

South China Leaders and Washington Gathering. Want Various Pacts and Concessions Abrogated. Washington, Sept. 10.—Formal declaration of the new government of China that it will refuse to recognize any decision relating to China reached by the Washington conference for the limitation of armaments unless "a delegation of armaments men attends and takes part in the work of the conference," was made in a letter handed to Secretary Hughes by Mr. Sze, official representative of the Canton administration.

Toll of Life Was Taken by Flood in San Antonio, Texas

Estimate Puts Deaths At Not Above 100; Twenty-two Bodies Recovered; Property Loss Is Stated to Be $5,000,000.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 10.—The Mayor's office at San Antonio to-day telephoned City Hall officials here that San Antonio does not need food or medical help at present. The loss of life was estimated at not more than 100 and the property loss at $5,000,000.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 10.—With twenty-two bodies recovered out of an unknown death list, and with a property loss variously estimated at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, San Antonio to-day had suffered the worst flood in its history. A cloudburst in the Olmos Valley, north of the city, sent a flood of water down the San Antonio River which joined with flood waters from the Alazan and San Pedro Creeks on the west and inundated a large part of the business section and several residence sections.

The residence section, in which the greatest loss of life occurred, is occupied largely by Mexican families. Two thousand persons are homeless.

MOTORISTS WIN A CONCESSION

Signs Will Now Guide Parking Rules.

In response to the insistent demands made by local motorists the prohibited and permissible parking areas in the downtown section of the city are at last to be distinguished by official signs. The police department has now prepared a stencil which will be used to mark all prohibited areas with the plain warning "Park No Cars," accompanied by a hand indicating the direction and place to which the sign will refer.

This sign will be stenciled upon the curb at all prohibited points, and these entrances, departmental stores, bank entrances and other places of business in the business section. In addition all permissible parking areas will be signified by painting of lines on the curb of the street, showing in what manner cars must be parked at that point.

On streets where no parking is permitted the sign will be on the curb, but no marking lines will be there. On streets with parking on one side, parallel or diagonal lines will be painted in white on the curb to indicate how the cars must be parked.

Thus a stranger coming into town will be met with the sign "Park No Cars" at all prohibited points, and will be guided by white lines on the curb in the manner in which to park in all permissible points. The by-law with this elucidation will now be workable, it is thought.

POLISH CABINET GIVES RESIGNATION

Witos and Colleagues Give Up Task.

Warsaw, Sept. 10.—The Polish Cabinet headed by Vincent Witos resigned to-day. M. Witos assumed the Premiership on July 24, 1920. In May last, M. PAINFUL NEURALGIA TORTURING SCIATICA

Both Come from the Same Cause; Thin, Watery Blood.

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in head or face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thus neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease are the same. The pain in neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood which carries nourishment to the nerves has become thin and impure and no longer does so, and the pain you feel is the cry of the nerves for their natural food.

President Harding and the Washington Peace Conference

(By A. A. Freeman)

Mr. Harding, while a Senator, opposed the ratification of the Peace Treaty embracing the League of Nations. As a candidate for the Presidency, he continued to announce his opposition to that treaty. Since his election he has caused invitations to be sent to the numerous powers of the world inviting them to send delegates or representatives to Washington to consider matters tending to a world peace.

This step on the part of President Harding has invoked some criticism. "If President Harding," say the critics, "is so favorable to a world peace, why did he not join President Wilson in the creation of the League of Nations for that purpose?" This question is easily disposed of. In the first place, it must not be forgotten that two men may be seeking to accomplish the same purpose and yet differ widely as to the best means of accomplishing a common purpose. Two men are seeking to reach the same town or city; side by side they are traveling together until they reach a point where the road forks. The travellers differ with one another as to the proper road and they separate. Both are honest but both cannot be right.

I take it that Senator Harding was as much in favor of a world peace as President Wilson but there were provisions in the Paris Treaty that Senator Harding believed did not conduce to that end, but on the contrary were calculated to provoke war. He particularly opposed section 10, which practically made the United States a party to all European controversies, thus violating its time-honored traditions which from Washington to Wilson have warned it to avoid all foreign complications. Mr. Wilson, himself, declared in one of his speeches that the League of Nations, if adopted, would supersede the foreign policy inaugurated by the Fathers. That so far from refraining to interfere with any foreign complications, the League would make the United States parties to them. For this reason mainly Senator Harding opposed the ratification of the Paris Treaty. The convention called by the President to meet in Washington has not, as I understand the President, been called for the purpose of entering into a formal treaty. It will discuss the matter of peace of a world peace, and though it may reach no resolution it cannot fail to accomplish much and lasting good. This other thought occurs to me. This peace talk will have as great and binding force on the parties participating in the proceedings as a formal treaty, for treaties, themselves are not binding any longer than the parties choose to be bound by them. The words "treaties," which the nations as Hugo Grotius tells us, is that such violation releases the other party and Vattel and other international law writers, as I understand hold the same doctrine. Nations are an aggregation of individuals. The individual bound by

JUDGE A. A. FREEMAN.

SAVED FROM LIFELONG MISERY

And a Dangerous Operation, by Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MRS. M. J. GORSE.

3228 Union St. Vancouver, B. C.
"I suffered with all the symptoms of Female Trouble, with chronic Constipation and constant Headaches—had pains low down in the back and sides of the body. I tried various remedies without relief, and then put myself under a doctor's care and he advised me to have an operation. I refused. Then, I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives'; and from the outset, I felt better, and this medicine has completely relieved me of all my misery and suffering. My weight was only 143 pounds and now it is 168 pounds. I am free of pain and headaches and the terrible Constipation; and what saved me from misery is the splendid fruit-medicine, 'Fruit-a-tives'."

An agreement distasteful to him becomes restive and at once seeks some means of securing his release, but assure him that the agreement does not bind him beyond his willingness to be bound, tell him that when his contract becomes oppressive he may throw off the yoke, and he becomes at once reconciled and begins to consider the many good things that may accrue to him by means of the contract.

I do not mean of course, to underestimate the value of treaties. My purpose being to disabuse the mind of the reader of the idea that treaties are a panacea for all international troubles. The words "treaties," which well get along without some understanding between the leading powers, but a treaty or convention that the other party may denounce, while more than a scrap of paper is by no means a band of steel.

President Harding, among many of his other strong holds, is a good judge of human nature; he knows that the best way to get men to do right is to give them the power to do wrong. I do not mean, of course, that they ought to be permitted to commit crime. What I am inveighing against is sumptuary and restrictive legislation. A citizen ought to be allowed to eat and drink what he pleases, and to say what he pleases, provided, of course, his language is not treasonable or seditious. Jefferson said that the best governed people are those who were least governed. Mr. Harding is also familiar with another thing pertaining to the matter of peace, and that is, the mode in which to perpetuate it is to keep talking about it. The converse also is true. Take two men who are at odds; let them continue to talk with their neighbors, each airing his own wrongs and his neighbors sympathize with him and a conflict is sure to result. Let, therefore, our talks be talks of peace, so that our thoughts may be thoughts of peace, and we shall soon acquire the very inspiration of peace. It will come a part of our moral and spiritual being, and we shall reach a condition of mind in which we shall regard wars as not only a monstrous but a crime—committed by one of the parties—sometimes by both. I am not to be understood as propounding the doctrine that no man should under any condition enter the war. International writers, such as Grotius and Vattel, tell us that there are just wars and unjust wars. War sometimes becomes a necessity, as in the late great conflict, neither Great Britain nor the United States could remain out of the conflict without inviting a calamity greater than that which the war inflicted.

The Washington Conference or convention has this about it that challenges our approval. If it should not do a great deal of good, it can do no harm and will be productive of a closer relation of amity and goodwill between the people of the world. It will not improve the relations existing between the United States and Great Britain, because they are in no need of improvement. It depends for its existence upon the support of the English-speaking people, but it will very much enhance the power of the English-speaking people to enlist in the cause of peace other powers of the world, and it is to be hoped, therefore, that the Washington conference will be well attended.

The ostensible purpose of the convention is to consider the matter of disarmament, but disarmament is the first step towards peace; therefore, I have discussed the matter in that light. Nations are like men, you give a big gun, let him carry it about and he soon gets weary of the monotony of carrying it. He wants to shoot something and is very apt to do so. Take his big gun away from him and he becomes a peace man. Such, therefore, is the purpose of the convention at Washington, it is to get the big men to lay aside their guns, the little men are then no longer feared. If Great Britain, United States, France and Belgium should determine there should be no more wars, their disarmament will not endanger the peace of the world.

Let peace be apotheosized. Build for her a temple, let her fair brow be crowned with the laurel, give her for a scepter the olive-branch, which though the symbol of peace, represents more power than the sword, because its conquests are more lasting and which causes enemies to become friends.

"Peace hath her victories no less than wars," said Milton. Grant said: "Let us have peace!"

"VIROL rallied him"
BABY JOHNSON. 140, Raglan Avenue, Toronto, May 13th, 1920.
Dear Sirs, This is just a word to express our appreciation of the virtues of Virol as a food for babies. Just after our little son was born, his natural supply of food having failed, he developed a bad case of diarrhoea, losing weight rapidly. He went down from 94 pounds to less than 6 pounds. Virol was the food that rallied and sustained him. We have since been giving him Virol, and now at the age of seven months he weighs nearly 20 pounds. His flesh is firm, his skin clear, and he is healthy in every way.
Yours sincerely (Sgd.) CHAUNCEY E. JOHNSON. (Sgd.) (Mrs.) PEARL F. JOHNSON.

How Jobs For the Jobless May Be Found

That Satan will find work for the idle hands to do if we fail to anticipate him in this line of endeavor seems to put into a nutshell the compelling reason for the unemployment conference called by the President of the United States. Destitution, distress, bread lines and soup kitchens in our larger cities, and a material increase in crime throughout the country are predicted for the coming Winter in dozens of newspaper editorials because of the almost unprecedented unemployment situation which the country now faces. "Industrial controversies, resulting in stoppage of production" is advanced by The St. Paul Dispatch for the present unemployment condition; "A debt-ridden and mutilated world, which has decreased its buying, thus curtailing production," is responsible in the opinion of The Norfolk Virginian Pilot. "The high price of steel, which hampers building operations, high freight rates, high wages and high cost of material, which keeps up the buyers' strike" are some of the reasons given for unemployment by The Houston Post, while The Buffalo Express believes the situation was caused by the "orgy of Government spending."

Whether President Harding can bring about an agreement between capital and labor to cooperate in fighting the causes of depression, the country shall soon know, for Secretary Hoover already has drawn the plans for the conference. This conference, in the opinion of The Philadelphia Public Ledger "is likely to spur Congress into action." While the Socialistic New York Call says that the present situation "indicates clearly enough the damnable incapacity for leadership on the part of the rulers of the United States who run away to the seashore and the mountains when a real problem is put up to them," The New York Evening Post points out that it is not the custom to heed a "serious social emergency" until the cry of the hungry actually is heard.

All angles of this most pressing problem which confronts the country are treated in the leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST for September 10.

SMITH & CHAMPION THE BETTER VALUE STORE NEAR CITY MALL

Washington conference, I may relate a scene that occurred on the 4th day of July, 1899, as an apology for this distinction. There was a distinguished assembly at The Hague, the representatives of twenty-six nations were gathered there to do honor to the memory of Grotius, now almost two centuries after his death. A silver wreath was laid on his tomb, bearing this inscription:
To THE MEMORY OF HUGO GROTIUS Reverence and Gratitude From the United States of America on the Occasion of the International Peace Conference at The Hague, July 4, 1899.
It adds to the splendor of this tribute to the memory of Grotius that it many during the next year or so will be able to reconcile the various elements and control the country's economic difficulties without a number of developments that will cause her own and the statesmen of other countries many sleepless nights.

LABOR AND WOMANHOOD.

Although the invitation of President Harding ostensibly concerns the Governments of the great powers which are to take part in the forthcoming conference at Washington this does not appear to be anything to suggest that the delegations chosen by the participants should not be of such a comprehensive nature as to include representatives of the various strata of human society.

NOTE AND COMMENT

HOUSING PROBLEM.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. W. C. A. was held at the Association Headquarters, 745 Yates Street, Friday afternoon at 2.30, the president, Mrs. Charles Bishop, in the chair, eighteen members being present.

POLITICS. Alex Smith, K. C., Speaks No Group Government. MacKenzie King and Meighen Knighted Statesmen Scarce.

Alex Smith, K. C., of Ottawa, former lieutenant of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, is back at the Capitol after sizing things up politically during a trip through Ontario.

Mr. Smith declares that there will be three substantial groups in the next Parliament, the most active at present being the farmers.

“But there will not be group government,” he says. “There is a tendency to replace principles by organization which in itself is useful, for when people desire to have certain views, ideas or principles prevail, they form an organization to help carry them along just as a highway is made to carry traffic, but the highway is not the traffic.”

To impress this, Mr. Smith declares that “the general adherents of political parties punish their leaders for hesitating to espouse a principle which the parties themselves, as represented in conventions, organizations and councils are afraid to avow.”

Mr. Smith holds that the electors, after all, are the sovereigns before whom politicians and statesmen must bow or bite the dust. This, he feels sure, will be clearly shown after the next election, as it doubtless will be found that whoever has best expounded the political principles of the majority of those elected will be the man to guide the ship of state.

Mr. Smith contends that there will not be group government in the next Parliament, for the bond of union will be a guiding principle to which the majority of elected members will adhere. The minority will be free to oppose until something else turns up. As there are 235 members to be elected, a government will be strong enough to assume the direction of affairs during these exacting times would necessarily have to have a large following.

The London Times has been trying to size up the Hon. William Lyon MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party in Canada. Hon. Mr. MacKenzie King was the first subject treated of in a series of articles being published by The Times on “Party Chiefs in Canada.”

Organized labor, he says, is opposed to the admission into Canada of industrial workers from other countries, because of the fear of an increase in the labor surplus and the resulting tendency of wages to fall.

Education in FIJI ISLANDS. Superintendent of Education on Visit Here. Education problems in Fiji are of a totally different character to those which beset Victoria.

Not one of the four overseas Premiers who attended the recent conference in London is a knight; neither is David Lloyd George, who represented Britain itself.

Canadian and English newspapers have been pointing out this fact as an indication of the apparent unpopularity of titles on the part of the leaders of democracy in the Empire.

It is also being pointed out that none of the Provincial Premiers of the Dominion can boast of a title, the last of them in possession of one being Sir Lomer Gouin.

The Montreal Standard, after recalling that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was one of those Canadians who were proud of their titles, tells how his executors in opening the safety deposit box, where the dead statesman kept his personal papers, found a holograph letter from King George offering Sir Wilfrid a peerage.

“Seventy per cent. of Canada's imports during the year ending June 30, came from the United States, The Buffalo Express points out.

“Yet the Canadian situation will need careful nursing in the next few years,” says The Express. “The Fordney tariff has not helped matters any, and the rate of exchange is a hindrance. It is hoped that blundering in Congress does not lose us a good and consistent customer.”

Since Premier Meighen has thrown down the tariff as his election challenge, the extent of Canadian trade with the United States, as in the 1911 campaign, will be one of the issues before the country for the next couple of months.

Canada has always bought immensely more from the United States than we have sold to her, and it was only possible for us to do that because we were selling immensely more elsewhere than we were buying elsewhere, The Toronto Star points out. Not satisfied even with that, the framers of the Fordney bill evidently want Canada to sell nothing at all to the United States.

The trend of thought in Canada is not towards a greater participation in the management of the Empire, but towards a more complete autonomy in the management of the Dominion's own affairs, according to The Toronto Star Weekly.

“Canada is, in effect, a nation within the Empire,” says The Star, “and that it should be wholly so is the ambition cherished by a majority of its people.”

“The separatist movement is so insignificant as to be negligible. The movement for participation in an Empire parliament is almost equally feeble in numbers and influence.”

Sir John Willison in The Montreal Star emphasizes the differences that have arisen; particularly in Western Canada, between the labor elements and the farmers, generally, over the immigration question, which is growing in importance in Ottawa.

Sir John points out that although the farmers and labor have formed a sort of political alliance in parts of Canada, the two are at odds over this issue, which has to do with the immediate material condition of Canada.

Organized labor, he says, is opposed to the admission into Canada of industrial workers from other countries, because of the fear of an increase in the labor surplus and the resulting tendency of wages to fall.

The other point of view held by the agrarians calls for farm labor to fill a “grave scarcity” and also for “hundreds of thousands of people” to take up the unoccupied lands of Western Canada.

There are signs that the railway companies are actively on the side of the farmers in this.

William Duncan, Vitagraph's western star, has bought a new horse which he introduces into his moving picture stunts. Duncan's new purchase was something of an accident. He was passing an auction stable when he was attracted by a "little brown steed" that reminded him of one he had used during his animal and subsequent events proved that he had a bargain. He will be riding his find in his new western production "Steelheart."

PRINCESS
The evening performance at the Princess to-day will be of "Peg o' My Heart," the beautiful Irish comedy drama with Miss Page in the title role. Peg is a lovely part and one that suits to perfection the popular leading woman of the Princess Theatre. In fact, it is as beautiful and satisfactory a piece of work as anything given during the long stay at the Princess, and everyone is full of praise for the play from beginning to end. Byron Aldern is giving a splendid portrayal of a difficult part, and brings forth much merit from the delighted spectators. Arthur Elton is also very good, and James Coote is giving a real performance of a beautiful part. Len Jaxon in a minor role is making the most of it, and Miss Dean, the new member of the company, is splendid and wears some stunning gowns. Jimmy Mullaly in a tiny maid part is as usual her dainty, charming little self, and Miss Lisle and Bob Thom are both doing their bit toward making the play a success.

CAPITOL
Fine local color was given to the court room scenes in Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The Conquest of Canaan," Booth Tarkington's story, at the Capitol Theatre to-day, through the use of the court house at Asheville, N. C. The Paramount company, under the direction of R. William Neill, used the court room immediately after a real murder trial had been completed in which two men were sentenced to life imprisonment for killing. The same jury that tried the murderers was used for the film murder trial, the only difference being that Mr. Meighan as "Joe Louder," the young lawyer, succeeded in getting his man released. The jury was "fixed" of course.

ROYAL VICTORIA
Once more has Benjamin B. Hampton demonstrated that as a producer of "best sellers" in pictures he stands without a rival. Zane Grey's "Desert Gold," most powerful of the famous American novelist's productions, coming to the heels of Mr. Hampton's tremendously successful Great American achievement, Stewart Edward White's "The Westerners," has won him a place in cinema production occupied by few American producers of genuinely big pictures.
In association with Eltinge F. Warner, a new and welcomed addition to the ranks of powerful producing factors, and Zane Grey himself, Mr. Hampton in "Desert Gold" has given to the silver sheet what two million people are clamoring for—realism, as did the author himself, is the living, breathing reproduction of the greatest of Zane Grey's stories.
Distinguished by all unapproachable artists in the roles they were called upon to portray, lend added distinction to "Desert Gold," E. K. Lincoln, star of many successful productions, heading a cast comprising Margery Wilson, Eileen Percy, Walter Long, Russell Simpson, W. Lawson But, Arthur Morrison and William Bainbridge.
W. W. Hodgkinson Corporation offers "Desert Gold" at the Royal Victoria Theatre for the last time to-day, as the year's greatest motion picture treat for every class of American playgoers.
This comedy, "The Game Lady," and a Chester Outing, are two good short subjects that are also shown. Miss Belle McEwan will also sing "Bonnie Sweet Bessie" and "Sing to Me the Auld Scotch Songs."

DOMINION
When picture fans read the title of "The Hell Diggers," Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture, which comes to the Dominion Theatre for the last time to-day, they will doubtless wonder what it means. The title of the picture refers to the enormous gold dredges used in the great gold mining districts of California and elsewhere. This is the first time, so far as can be learned, that they have been featured in a picture. Mr. Morgan, the author, made an intensive study of gold dredging and knows his subject thoroughly. He also wrote the scenario for the picture. It is the first he has written for Paramount which has not dealt with some phase of motoring.

COLUMBIA
Maurice Tourneur comes to the front again with a brand new atmosphere setting for his latest feature, "Deep Waters." This time it is a light house, the story weaving itself around the construction of the light, with thrilling action during a heavy storm and a shipwreck at night.
Many new photographic effects have been cleverly done in this Tourneur offering. Night scenes with the huge beam playing incessantly on the rocky coast, the town and its people, and the author, made a gripping sea story.
In addition, the excellent cast does some fine work. Betty West, the girl of the story, played by Mr. Tourneur's new find, Barbara Bedford Jack Gilbert, who adapted the story from F. Hopkinson Smith's book, "Caleb West, Master Diver," also plays an important part in the story. "Deep Waters" will be shown at the Columbia Theatre for the last time to-day.

VARIETY
Many picturesque scenes are shown in the new William DeMille Paramount production of Sir James M. Barrie's play, "What Every Woman Knows," which will be shown at the Variety Theatre to-day for the last time. The story is laid in Scotland and London and deals with a young student with political ambitions and with his matrimonial experiences with a young woman whom he agrees to marry that he might secure the means to finance his career. One of the most unique settings in the picture is a cheap London barber shop which has been converted into the political headquarters of the young candidate for Parliament. This set has been pronounced perfect in detail and atmosphere by those who are familiar with London. Conrad Nagel is the leading man.

COMING TO DOMINION.
The genuineness of the scenes depicting a Russian ball in "The Great Moment," Gloria Swanson's first Paramount starring picture, and the accuracy of detail, such as in the settings, costuming of the players, and the invective were greatly enhanced by the aid of Michael Kustoff, an ex-staff captain of the Imperial Russian army, who provided director Sam Wood much valuable data regarding such an affair, besides loaning several of his military uniforms, trappings and weapons, in which he had seen actual service in Russia and Siberia.
All who see this new Paramount picture at the Dominion Theatre next week can rest assured that the Russian episodes are perfect and true to life in every detail. Mr. Kustoff is a rather interesting record. When the war broke out in 1914, although then only sixteen years old, he volunteered and soon afterward began training at a military school. He was commissioned third lieutenant. Soon afterward he was sent to the trenches and when the Russian Revolution broke out, he served in the royal army.
This verdict is rendered a thousand times every week—no corn can live, it must pass out, drop off, if Putnam's Extractor is applied to corns and warts. Use the old reliable "Putnam's," it never fails, 25c. at all dealers. (Adv't.)
Earle Williams may take double pride in his latest production, "Bring Him In." In addition to being the star of this new picture, he is also, in conjunction with Robert Emminger, the director of the piece, "Bring Him In" is a stirring drama of the Royal Mounted Police and is regarded as one of the best Earle Williams productions to date, as well as being a different one, for the star, who so frequently has portrayed the polished, dress-suited hero, takes the role of a man who can live in the open, ride hard and fight with his gun or his fists when called upon to do so. This is the star's first big out-door characterization since his notable success in the film version of Eugene Walter's famous stage play, "The Wolf."

THE AUTOMOBILE

Station on Summit of Malahat Is Popular

Mountain Drive Made Popular By Excellent Service Rendered to Motorists; a Charming View.

A service station that fills more than the usual requirements of the touring tourist and which is the only one of its kind on Vancouver Island is that maintained and known as the Hamsterley Malahat, located on the Island Highway just north of the actual summit of the mountain.

One night an elderly man was taken with heart trouble and had it not been for the fact that Hamsterley's comfortable little retreat on the mountain existed serious consequences might have occurred, as the man was in a bad way. He was taken in, and made comfortable until a doctor could be notified.

On another occasion a large touring car with twenty passengers skidded in the gravel and broke over the edge of the roadway. The telephone convenience at Hamsterley's enabled the immediate summoning of relief.

Apart from these material and useful purposes which Hamsterley's serves, the fact that the spot chosen for the erection of the charming buildings provides one of the biggest scenic attractions on the Malahat makes it imperative that every motorist should stop in the course of his or her journey to enjoy all that the place has to offer.

A fountain of clear running water is placed in the centre of the plot and behind this stands the Hamsterley building which harbours so many good things to eat and drink. There is always hot water ready and a cup of tea and light refreshments may be had without any waiting. Supplies of souvenir views of all kinds are on sale and everything about the place spells comfort.

A. Fine Growth.

The view from the rear of the buildings includes a splendid panorama of Saanich inlet with the Peninsula and the waters of the Straits beyond. The wooded hills and the abundance of green growth make a beautiful foreground, and the whole presents one of those scenes, which, impressed on the mind amid the stillness and beauty of nature creates a lasting picture of peacefulness, beauty and repose.

There are not many habitations on the Malahat and the fact that Hamsterley's is to be found open Summer and Winter adds very materially to the pleasure of making the trip as it removes any feeling of loneliness and adds the assurance that there is one place to appeal to in case of trouble. Without doubt Hamsterley Malahat is doing a great deal toward making the Malahat famous as a tremendous number of motorists have stopped there since the place was opened this Spring. Gasoline, oil and other conveniences for the motorist are provided.

MANY VISIT CITY.

Not less than five hundred tourists passed through Cranbrook during the month of August. Of that number two hundred and seventy-seven registered at the local office, and one hundred and seven took advantage of Cranbrook's free parking accommodation. A conservative estimate places the value of the tourist trade for August at $7,000. Cranbrook's free parking accommodation came in for some very favorable comment from a large number of the campers. Remarks on the register says "An unusually well furnished camp, "Camp site A." "Splendid camp and best roads in whole of British Columbia." "Roads and camp grounds equal any in west; people very hospitable and eager to help strangers." "Roads good, people good, scenery best." "We're coming back to the oasis next year."

Washington Ross, an Italian chemist in the laboratories at Barcelona, claims to have invented artificial rubber, which possesses all the qualities of natural rubber at one-twentieth of the usual cost.

Care of Valves.

Valves seldom give any trouble other than to get dirty as a result of carbon collecting on the valve seats. The carbon deposit prevents the proper closing of the valves, and permits the gases under compression to escape, resulting in loss of power and uneven running of the engine.

Valve Grinding.

It is necessary that valves be re-ground onto their seats whenever they become pitted or scored. To remove the valves, unscrew the valve chamber plugs and also take off the valve cover on the side of the engine. Holding down the valve head, lift the valve springs and remove the valve spring retaining collar. This can be done by removing the pin or collar holding this spring retainer in place. Remove the valve by pushing it up then remove the springs and spring retainers cups. Screw down the push rod adjusting screw so as to allow clearance between the valve stem and push rod. After washing the valve face in gasoline and having closed the cylinder entrance with a piece of cloth you are ready to grind the valves, which is done as follows:

Use a good valve grinding compound. If you cannot prepare a good valve grinding compound mix some cylinder oil and emery flour to the consistency of a thin paste. Spread a small quantity of this paste on the valve bevel face and also on the bevel-faced seat in the cylinder. A light spring placed on the valve will assist in raising the valve from its seat when grinding. Replace the valve in the cylinder with a light spring under the head, if possible, and using a valve grinding tool or screw driver give the valve a semi-circular turn, exerting very little pressure.

Caution: Do not turn the valve through a complete rotation as this will scratch the entire circumference of the valve. This semi-circular movement should be continued, backward and forward, for a short time, and then the valve removed for examination. Occasionally remove the valve from the seat, turn it half way around and continue grinding, until a bright face appears on the beveled edge of the valve and also on the valve seat. When the proper seat has been made both the valve and valve stem guides should be thoroughly cleaned with gasoline and wiped dry. There must not be any particles of the compound left on the working surfaces.

Remove the cloth from the cylinders. Do not use waste, as particles of it might lodge in the cylinder and harm would surely result. There must not be any particle of the valve grinding compound allowed to get into the cylinders, as it would score them. Thoroughly oil the valve stems and valve stem guides before re-assembling the valves.

Before replacing the valve stem or spring cover it will be necessary to readjust the push rods as directed in last week's article. An occasional application of kerosene on the valves and stems often saves grinding. This removes the

Using Carbon Remover.

We do not recommend it to Day-Elder owners but carbon remover can be placed in the cylinders in the following manner:

Remove the valve port plugs and crank the engine until two of the pistons are at the very top of their travel. Place the carbon remover in these two cylinders and allow it to remain for about two hours; then remove by siphoning it out. Do not leave remover in longer as it has a tendency to eat metal. After removing the liquid, dry out the combustion chamber as much as possible with a clean cloth. Repeat the same process for the other cylinders.

Spark Plugs.

Spark plugs are an important part of the engine and must be kept clean in order that they may fire the compressed gas in the cylinders. Should the engine develop a miss or run unevenly, short circuit each spark plug by touching top of plug and cylinders simultaneously with a screwdriver with insulated handle, trying each one in turn until one is found that will not slow the engine down. Remove the plug from this cylinder and if the porcelain is not cracked and the plug spoiled, clean the points with gasoline. The distance between the point on the spark plug should be from 1-16 of an inch to not more than 1-32 of an inch. Next week the subject of bearing adjustments will be discussed.

SINGS EN ROUTE WITH SURFACE CAR

New York, Sept. 10.—New York has a singing motorman. He is Leo Marks, once a member of George Primrose's minstrels. He runs a surface car up and down Seventh Avenue, and whenever the traffic clears and things are rolling merrily, he bursts into song. His passengers often ride blocks beyond their destination for the pleasure of hearing him, and the traffic cops are always looking for his car. Once in a while an officious inspector reports him, but Leo goes on singing. It's old-time favorites that he sings. Leo explained he had left the stage because motoring was a good steady job the year around, with something definite in the pay envelope the end of every week.

SCENIC FEATURES TO BE PRESERVED.

On August 24 a committee from the civic clubs of Portland held a meeting with Governor Olcott at which plans for preservation of timber along public highways was discussed. A committee was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws for an organization having for its object the preservation of scenic features in the State of Oregon. Governor Olcott consented to act as a temporary president and Lieutenant Harold Jones as temporary secretary pending the organization of the association. The plan is to make this a statewide association in order that local problems may have the attention of all local committees.

ISLAND ROADS ARE BIG ATTRACTION

Hundreds of Satisfied Motorists Have Enjoyed Tours This Season

A survey of motor travel conditions throughout the Island made by a special representative of The Times staff discloses that the roads this year, with but very few exceptions, have been in most satisfactory condition during the entire season.

As a matter of fact, motorists find it slightly inconvenient to make the necessary detours occasioned by the Government work in laying hard-surface paving between Colwood and Langford, and for a short stretch south of Nanaimo but this is inevitable and the ultimate satisfaction of having an unsurpassed roadway to travel on offsets any annoyance that might be felt.

There are a few stretches where the gravel is somewhat shifty and motorists should exercise the greatest care in driving over this kind of road, particularly when passing other cars, as every driver is aware that a swiftly moving motor car is liable to swerve in gravel without warning and serious consequences may result.

Hundreds of motorists have enjoyed the advantages of Vancouver Island's good roads this summer and the beautiful scenery encountered on the various routes. Port Alberni, Sprout Lake, Great Central Lake, Cameron Lake on the West Coast, and the innumerable resorts on the East Coast as far north as Campbell River have been patronized to a greater extent this year than in any previous year in the Island's history.

Invariably these motorists have commented on the excellent condition of the roads and the pleasure they have experienced in driving over them. The good roads of the Island are proving a great and valuable advertisement through the medium of the visiting motorists who are arriving yearly in increasing numbers to tour over the now famous routes.

PORT RENFREW WILL PERSIST IN ROAD CLAIM

Will Follow Up Good Roads League Recommendation for Extension

Port Renfrew residents are greatly pleased with the results of their representation at the convention of the Good Roads League of British Columbia held at Port Alberni at which Tom Baird of Port Renfrew was successful in having the convention adopt the resolution favoring the extension of the highway from Jordan River to Port Renfrew to give through road connection between Victoria and that section of the Island.

Messrs. Baird and Armstrong were appointed delegates to the convention but after supplying all the necessary data he had at his disposal in support of the case Mr. Armstrong decided that Mr. Baird would be sufficient representation on the Port Renfrew claim for road extension.

Reports will be submitted to the Government by Port Renfrew from men competent to judge of the situation, showing that a narrow road can be constructed at a comparatively low cost. Settlement of this rich district has been retarded considerably through lack of road connection with Victoria and some of the old pioneers have almost become discouraged. The settlers at Port Renfrew point out that it has always been the practice of governments to give road facilities to pioneer settlements and Port Renfrew has waited many years for the road that has not yet reached their settlement.

The Port Renfrew district abounds in riches of all kinds. The timber, mineral, fishing and other natural resources have been practically untouched and the residents of the district naturally look to Victoria as their logical market.

The Good Roads League was pleased to learn that Port Renfrew has had a Good Roads Association for some time past and this body has decided to become affiliated with the Provincial organization.

In the meantime, the people of Port

DISCOURAGED IN NORWAY.

As far as automotive progress is concerned, that of Norway is positively nil. In a letter to Automotive Industries from an American representative in Christiania, we learn of the most peculiar situation in the world. The large importation of motor cars into Norway during the last two years is usually blamed for the falling of the Norwegian krone to about half of its normal value in international exchange.

The increased use of motor cars and motor trucks on Norwegian roads, which were built for light traffic only, has damaged them so seriously that all the main roads, even those built in the last two years, will have to be entirely reconstructed.

Motor traffic is considered merely a luxury here, and this, together with old traffic regulations, has discredited the automotive industry with the authorities.

In an endeavor to improve the exchange, the Norwegian Government has taken the drastic action of restricting the importation of everything they consider a luxury, and the first thing singled out was the passenger car. Norwegian dealers in passenger cars were not permitted to import more cars than they had in transit and paid for before and on the first of August last. No more passenger cars will be permitted to enter Norway before the rate of exchange has improved considerably.

Owing to the enormous expense of rebuilding the Norwegian roads, the authorities have found it necessary to regulate traffic to suit the roads instead of building the roads to carry the traffic.

PART II

Victoria's Childhood

The child herself was extremely fat, and bore a remarkable resemblance to her grandfather.

Before long, the world began to be slightly interested in the nursery at Kensington. When, early in 1821, the Duchess of Clarence's second child, the Princess Elizabeth, died within three months of its birth, the interest increased.

When she was five years old, however, a change came, with the appearance of Fraulein Lehzen. This lady, who was the daughter of a Hanoverian clergyman and had previously been the Princess Fedora's governess, soon succeeded in instilling a new spirit into her charge.

Little "Drina." But no echo of these conflicts and forebodings reached the little Drina—for so she was called in the family circle—as she played with her dolls, or scampered down the passages, or rode on the donkey her uncle York had given her along the avenues of Kensington Gardens.

kind. When she was seven years old, she and her mother and sister were asked by the King to go down to Windsor. George IV, who had transferred his fraternal ill-temper to his sister-in-law and her family, had at last grown tired of sulking, and decided to be agreeable.

Warm-hearted, responsive, she loved her dear Lehzen, and she loved dear Fedora, and her dear Victoire, and her dear Madame de Spath. And her dear Mamma—of course, she loved her too; it was her duty; and yet—she could not tell why it was—she was always happier when she was staying with her Uncle Leopold at Claremont.

At first, indeed, she was appalled by the little Princess's outbursts of temper; never in her life, she declared, had she seen such a passionate and naughty child. Then she observed something else; the child was extraordinarily truthful; whatever punishment might follow, she never told a lie.

the constitution of the State. The power of the Tories, who had dominated England for more than forty years, suddenly began to crumble. In the tremendous struggle that followed, it seemed for a moment as if the tradition of generations might be snapped, as if the blind tenacity of the reactionaries and the determined fury of their enemies could have no other issue than revolution.

had been paled by the Reform Act. He grew insignificant and almost harmless, though his ugliness remained; he was the wicked uncle still—but only of a story.

The Duchess's own liberalism was not very profound. She followed naturally in the footsteps of her husband, repeating with conviction the catchwords of her husband's clever friends and the generalisations of her clever brother Leopold.

Her Training.

But her mother's sight was by no means an easy thing to escape. Morning and evening, day and night, there was no relaxation of the maternal vigilance. The child grew into the girl, the girl into the young woman; but still she slept in her mother's bedroom; still she had no place allowed her where she might sit or work by herself.

Trees That Cause Fires.

Can a forest be fired through the rubbing together of tree branches in a gale? So many doubts have arisen on the point that a well-known naturalist has tried to settle the question once and for all.

With our Young Folks at work and Play

WHAT DOES THIS SCHOOL TERM MEAN TO YOU?

SCHOOL again, after several happy months of playtime! There is something of expectancy, tinged with regret, in going back to school. Expectancy for the new faces that will greet us, and a swiftly passing regret that the Summer holidays are over for another year. Yet there is a factor in school life that we would soon miss if holidays lasted forever and ever, and that is the progress that we make year by year.

It is only a very few unfortunates who will return to their former classes. Most children will start the new term one step higher along the ladder of knowledge than the year before. Perhaps it is the knowledge that the new term means new work and interesting companionships to be made, that soon takes the regret out of our feeling and lets us buckle down to the work of a new year.

Lucky are those who return to school with their minds keen for the new work, and harder work; others lose several weeks trying to catch up with what has been forgotten in the Summer holidays, and so prepare the way for the fresh ground that must be covered ere the examinations release us for holidays anew. For the first week of school, what a busy time we have, talking over the multitudinous events of the Summer holidays, recounting what we saw and heard, and where we travelled. This phase soon gives way to the work of the new term and its pleasures.

We, of school age, are inclined to laugh at our parents when they tell us that school days are the happiest that we will ever know, yet one by one we grow up and find that to be a fact, that the work of school, was really play, and play with a very important object, the fitting of our minds and bodies for the real work of living. At school we are inclined to wish we had "grown up" of a sudden, and need not attend school any more, but if we take our parents' word for it, we should be in no hurry to grow up, unless

Y. M. C. A. HOLDING CORN ROAST TO-DAY

Taking advantage of the last few days of Summer weather the Preparatory and Junior groups of the Y. M. C. A. to-day set out for Horseshoe Bay, Beacon Hill, there to indulge in a corn roast, an old-fashioned delight that comes all too rarely these days. The remaining Saturdays of this month will be utilized for similar outings, as long as the weather holds fair.

With the first hint of rain the Preparatory and Junior groups will begin their indoor training, comprising basketball for the elder boys and swimming and field sports for all. An extensive programme of athletic promise has been prepared for the Winter schedule, and the boys will most likely start upon their indoor training by the nineteenth of this month. A full list of the activities ahead of these two groups, comprising the younger members of the Y. M. C. A., will be announced shortly. Mr. Harold C. Cross, Boys' Work Secretary is now hard at work, in conjunction with the physical department, in its preparation.

The two junior groups of the "Y" are still urgently in need of a good model biplane of any standard type, for the purpose of illustrating lectures upon elementary flying. The boys are taking the keenest delight in the preliminary study of the science of aviation, and the acquisition of a model aeroplane, of almost any nature (even if only temporary) would be a blessing to the classes now awaiting such an object to enliven their lectures on this point.

we are fitted to take care of ourselves in the life that lies ahead.

After all, let us look at school in this way, everyone on this earth has a duty to perform, that of taking care of those weaker than themselves. The boy grows up to be a fine man who in time takes his place as the wage-earner of the household and support his sisters and mother by the earnings of his brain or handicraft, as the case may be. The girl grows up to take her place in the household, helping her mother, or to seek a position that will pay for her expenses and perhaps help the family at home in many little ways.

All too soon we will be old enough to leave home, for like the birds we cannot all stay in the nest for the rest of our lives, but must contribute to the good of all, either by looking after ourselves, or, if we are able, doing that, and aiding others into the bargain. We are not really doing all that we were intended for unless we can take care of ourselves and give a helping hand to others less fortunate than ourselves.

So, looking at life that way, school is a very real and practical help to us, training us to the exact degree we work, for our duty in life. The less we work the harder it is going to be to get into the big class of the grown ups, who are able to help others as well as themselves. The more we work the less the risk of facing life only by the kindness of others who must then support us. The knowledge that we get at school is only a training of how to acquire a training as it were. We learn, or we should learn, to use our minds, and with a wide-awake mind we may readily train ourselves then for the battle of life.

Let us make a compact. Suppose this term we work with all our hearts, and keep our mind so wide-awake that nothing will get by us. In time we will find the more interest we take in our lessons, the easier they will become, until after a little practice they become more like play than work, and that is the real test of our ability to work. If we like our work, we will be successful at it, and succeed in after life. If we do not like our work, it is going to be a very difficult struggle for us to find a corner for ourselves when we grow up, for indeed, the world is now full of men and women who are both able and anxious to work, and we must be highly trained to stand up to that competition. It follows without saying that if our work is easy to us, we will have plenty of time for play, and in work and play we have two companions that will never forsake us, as long as we do our duty on this earth.

SAANICH TOYCRAFT WILL TRAVEL FAR

The time is not far distant now when from the municipality of Saanich an interesting exhibit of home-made toys and artefacts will be despatched to the annual Toyecraft Exhibition of the Gray's Inn Road Hospital, London, England, which will be held this Fall in the headquarters of the Artists Rifles, a famous territorial battalion in that great city. H.R.H. Princess Mary will declare the exhibition open, and in a place of special prominence will be displayed the Saanich Exhibit from Vancouver Island, 6,000 miles away.

Needless to say little fingers are toiling feverishly to have their entries ready in time. The opportunity was secured for the children of Saanich by Trustee Y. Thorne, who is a brother of Dr. Thorne, in charge of the Gray's Inn institution. That the Saanich exhibit will be interesting in the extreme is vouched for already by the many models constructed to take their part in the joint display. The exhibit will include toys, models of all natures, raffia and basket work, and many novel features that will come as a delight and a surprise to many little children in the great city of London, England.

Special prizes are to be given for the design of the now ageing Golliwog and Teddy Bear. It goes without saying that Saanich children are hard after this high honor, and their efforts will at least bear to the shores of England the well wishes of all on this side of the water. The exhibit is to be collected shortly and despatched on its long journey.

Preparing Busily For School Again

Shrouded in Clouds Jupiter Cools Off

Here on this earth we are apt to get the impression that the earth is the only heavenly body of any note at all, and indeed that may be true as far as we ourselves are concerned, but speaking from the viewpoint of the bodies of the whole universe, our earth is a very small pebble on a very large beach. Of the inner planets Venus, Mercury, and Mars we have taken brief note, now it is time to look at what is termed the greater planets, and these are truly gigantic in aspect.

Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune comprise four of the greater group of planets, Jupiter being the closest to the sun of the quartette and Neptune the furthest away. Jupiter makes a tour around the sun in approximately twelve years, Saturn in twenty-nine years, Uranus in eighty-four years and Neptune takes his time about the job and does it in 165 years. It is Jupiter that we will now consider, and indeed his enormous size and wonderful aspect is well worthy of our amateurish attention.

Jupiter, the largest of all planets, is something like 1,200 times greater than the earth, or another way of putting it would be to say that 1,200 earths rolled into one body would about equal the magnificence of Jupiter, although they would weigh something like four times the weight of the great planet Jupiter. Jupiter for all his size is not a solid fellow, and indeed magnifies his size tremendously by large masses of clouds that surround him on all sides. He makes a complete revolution on his own axis in something under ten hours, and that means he presents a different half of him to us in five hour periods.

Jupiter is interesting to us for many reasons, he is not solid we are told, but indeed his shape in motion takes on the shape that would be assumed by a liquid under the same conditions. To prove this observers quote that he is not round but bulges in his mid-section, like a prosperous old man. This is misleading as he is not old and indeed in progression he has not yet reached that stage at which the earth arrived many years ago. In fact he is still so hot that he creates large masses of clouds to hide his anger, and forbids any water to settle as such upon his griddle-like surface. In time, we are told he will get over it and cool down enough to form oceans and continents of his own, but by that time the earth is likely to have grown far too cold to interest us, even if we were endowed with perpetual youth and might remain to witness the spectacle of an ice-clad pole on Jupiter.

Further from the sun, the heat Jupiter receives from that source is only about a twenty-fifth of what we are permitted to enjoy, but he does not mind that being very hot internally in his own composition. Jupiter for all his great size is only 300 times as heavy as the earth, and he, if made as the earth, would be about 1,200 times as heavy as our planet. Astronomers tell us that Jupiter has retained the great mass of his heat by being larger than the other bodies and taking very much longer to cool off. We, then like him for the reason that he represents for us what this earth must have been many years ago, and long before it grew cool enough for us to live and thrive upon.

Surrounded nearly all the time by great masses of clouds, Jupiter is a great, mysterious fellow, and avoids observation by all but the most wary and scientifically inclined.

A RARE COMPLAINT

"I hear George was operated upon. What did he have?" asked a man, of his companion. "Money," was the laconic rejoinder.

Naval Brigade Hears Glad Tidings From Boys on Board Ships

The Boys' Naval Brigade this week took part in a historic function on the Canadian-American border line at the town of Blaine, where they were represented by their band. The band had the honor of responding to the National Anthem played by an American band, by playing the Stars and Strips, in the Peace Ceremony which celebrates 107 years of peace along the 3,000 miles of border line between the two great portions of this continent.

Happy tidings of the Canadian Government freighter importer reached the Naval Brigade here this week, when it was learned that the past members of the local division, on board that ship, were safe and none the worse for their venture, some experience when the ship sprang a leak. The boys were the second list of Naval Brigade boys to be in a mishap at sea, two others being on the Canadian Exporter when she broke in two and foundered on the Willapa bar some time ago.

In both cases the boys bore themselves with quiet courage that exercised the good will of their officers and added prestige to the laurels of the local division, which has now well over fifty boys at sea. It is a manly calling, and the boys write back to their companions still in training, that they like the life and are glad they entered the service, one of the highest in the world, the Merchant Service.

MANY SNAKES BUT NO SEA SERPENTS

Sea-snakes there are, but not sea-serpents. You have no doubt heard much of the fabulous sea-serpent, little reader, that annually makes its appearance in public in the tales of the witty, to be repeated by the over-credulous. Students of marine life, however, deny that any such reptile exists, and give the explanation for the original story to an observer who, seeing a school of porpoises leaping in Indian file, was under the impression he was witnessing a sea-serpent in fact.

Water snakes there are, however, and these may be seen in thousands in some places of the Indian and Pacific Oceans. More than fifty species of water snake have been identified by naturalists in this connection, and most of these are highly venomous. Some are seen as large around as a man's thigh. On several voyages members of the crews of different vessels have been bitten and died in spite of all aid given to them by expert medical attention.

The sea-snake is roughly of three different species—the Hydrophis, Pelamys and the Chersydra—all three being found in the Indian Ocean and certain parts of the Southern Pacific. The appearance of these snakes is much as the land snake, but the tail is invariably flattened or clubbed, acting as an effective oar to propel the reptile through the water. In Summer these snakes may be seen on the surface of the water, apparently basking asleep in the sun, or swimming in schools after fish and medusa, which are their main articles of food. They are frequently banded and colorful in appearance, and quite often have been known to approach ships lying at anchor with the utmost display of curiosity.

ELIJAH UP TO DATE

BOASTFUL FROGGIE MEETS HIS END

FROGGIE sat at the edge of the pool feeling very elated with himself. You see he was only a young frog and had just managed to achieve a croak that really satisfied him. Not that he had obtained the true croak all of a sudden, for he had not, but now, after weeks of practice he was able to croak just like a real fully grown frog.

It was on one of those evenings when the moon rises early beyond the rim of the horizon and mounts rapidly across the sky, that Froggie found his voice. He was not alone in the choral hymnal by any means, for every other frog within the same pool, and many more pools like it was giving all their efforts to a really energetic try-out, one of the first of the season if the truth be told.

Across the pond from our friend was Alf, the king frog of that pool. Alf was known, far and wide, for his wonderful deep throated roar, and it was Alf that the tourists meant when they said to one another, "Listen to the frogs," for the great voice of Alf carried far beyond all others in that and the surrounding pools and was to be heard a long distance off. It was Froggie's ambition, shared by most other youngsters, to have a real croak like the Alf-roar, and so he practiced every night with a will, until, on the night in question, he did seem to have approached very nearly to the zenith of that perfection.

Ambition in the very young is a dangerous thing, for it quite often leads to a degree of swelled headedness that is often the undoing of the youngster concerned. It was in this manner that Froggie met an untimely end, and that is the real purpose of this story.

Not far from the pond which was the habitat of Froggie and his relatives there lived a boy called Skinny, or at least that was the name by which he was most widely known. Skinny was the organizer of all the village fishing expeditions among the other folk of his own age, and was an adept in the art of catching frogs. Skinny, though not a cruel boy by nature had some ways about him that might easily be understood by the very austere of the village.

Industry Gains Leisure Hours

The circus had come to town, so Dolly and her younger sister Eileen, were in a fever of excitement, for they liked nothing half so well as a circus. Mother told them they might do that very afternoon, if they finished their work in time, each having some chores to do about the house in which they lived.

Dolly hardly waited to be told, before she was hard at work at the first job, and that accomplished, tackled the next, and so on with ever-increasing rapidity, until her allotment had been completed.

Eileen, who if the truth be told, had a good deal less to do than her sister, sat down and recounted to herself all that she must do, she despaired of ever accomplishing the tasks allotted before the time arrived when the great parade would take place through the streets of the town. Presently, in desperation Eileen began three of the chores at once, doing a little bit of each and then flying to do a little of something else.

It was not long before she was all mixed up over her work, and had nothing completed, this continued for some hours. At last Dolly, who by now was fully through, and was waiting for her sister to join her came to see what the delay was about. Dolly found Eileen sitting down in the middle of the floor in tears, and around her parts of work that remained to be completed. Like a good sister, Dolly set to and helped Eileen at her work, and in the end both sets of chores were done, and all were ready to attend the circus.

The moral, if you need to be told such an obvious matter, is that with plenty of work ahead that must be accomplished, it pays to take the first thing first and to finish that. Undue haste is always the cause of future trouble, but a calm and workmanlike efficiency, accomplishing work in the right order will perform seeming miracles. Dolly, self-reliant and energetic to a degree, as they grew up together, stood always on her own feet and was not of the leaning type. She accomplished what she set out to do, and by the same means did a great deal more

For instance when Mrs. Murphy's cat limped home with a severe sprain in one ankle Skinny was blamed for that deed, and deserved the blame in this case, but then the villagers did not know that the cat had stolen a piece of bait that Skinny had needed for a fishing venture that was about to take place. Skinny, in the matter of getting frogs was the king of the village, though his methods might not measure up to our standards of kindness to other creatures.

What is commonly called a "sting-shot" was the boy's favorite weapon, and with this Skinny could hit most anything that he wished, within reason, and often out of it also. Skinny, equipped with a bicycle lamp at night would lead an expedition of barefoot youngsters down to the pool in which Froggie lived, and there the party would range themselves in silence on the bank, and watch for a while. Presently Skinny would be seen to take aim at something, and a frog would splash back into the water dead. Skinny did not know as we do that it is wrong to kill frogs for fun, and he had often read of them being eaten as a delicacy in other countries than his own.

For a long time this party had been trying to get the king of all frogs, Alf, but had not succeeded, and this night a strange and tense interest was attached to the cruel sport when the voice of what appeared to be Alf was heard on a log quite near the bank facing the party.

Skinny watched in the semi-darkness until he made out a ripple of water as the frog moved on its watery perch. It must be Alf he thought, as the large frog sat erect and emitted a fine deep throated croak. He took quick aim and the frog fell. It was not Alf but Froggie, who, pleased at what he had considered an admiring audience had been indulging in croaking practice, which led to his sudden and tragic end. Alf, the wise one of the pool, saw all that happened from a point not two feet from the "fishing" party, but kept his counsel—truth to tell he was quite glad to be rid of the impending opposition of that youngster's croak. So Froggie died of over-ambition.

TELEPHONE PUZZLES VISITING TINKER

than anybody else, without half the fuss. Eileen on the other hand was never able to finish anything alone, and had continually to be helped with this, that, and everything.

TELEPHONE PUZZLES VISITING TINKER

That pussy cats recognize the sound of the individual voice is born out by the following, true incident. A lady about to leave her residence for a space of a few weeks arranged with another family to take care of the pussy cat in her absence. Accordingly, Tinker, for that was his name, was taken over in a basket to his "holiday home" and there left to make the acquaintance of his new companions. In course of time his owner returned and preparatory to making arrangements for the return of the pussy cat telephoned the house. The boy of the family answered the telephone and more as a joke than anything else placed the receiver to the ear of the pussy cat. Tinker, it was afterwards learned, was interested and jumped down, searched every corner of the house high and low for the possessor of that voice. It was quite clear he remembered the voice and was more than anxious to find its owner. Upon failing to find his owner Tinker sat down, and "meow-ed" angrily for some time, and indeed was not appeased until he had been brought home to his original setting, which happened in due course.

SCHOOL REORGANIZED

Cathedral Sunday School to Meet in Two Sessions.
Instruction classes for boys and girls of all ages will commence a new season's work to-morrow in the Sunday School conducted by the parish of Christ Church Cathedral. Owing to the increase of membership and the limited accommodation available until the new building is constructed, the Sunday School work has been re-organized and both morning and afternoon sessions have been planned for.

Commencing on Sunday, September 11, the Cathedral Sunday School will meet in the following divisions:
(1.) Primary School (classes for children, ages 4-5, 6-8), to assemble in the Primary Room at 2.30 p. m.
(2.) Junior School (classes for boys and girls, ages 9-12), to assemble in the main schoolroom at 2.30 p. m.
(3.) Senior School (organized classes for boys and girls in the teen age), to assemble in the main schoolroom at 10 a. m.

Miss A. B. Cooke is superintendent of the Primary School, and A. R. Merris is acting as superintendent of the Junior School and Senior School. In connection with the opening of a new season's work members of the school who are confirmed have been invited to join the officers and teachers of the school in a corporate communion at the eight o'clock service to-morrow morning in the Cathedral, and a children's service will be conducted in the afternoon at 2.45 p. m. in the Cathedral.

CATHOLIC PRELATE HONORED BY CHURCH

Bishop O'Dea Has Been 25 Years Head of Seattle Diocese

The Rt. Rev. Edward J. O'Dea, of Seattle, on Thursday celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Seattle Diocese. The event aroused the widest interest in ecclesiastical circles because of the bishop's long association with the life of the Northwest.

Bishop O'Dea was the celebrant of pontifical mass at St. James's Cathedral at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and in the evening was guest of honor and a speaker at a huge mass meeting held at the Hippodrome. Citizens representing every walk of life were present on the platform when W. W. Connor, former speaker of the state house of representatives, called the meeting to order. The big building was filled with friends and admirers of Bishop O'Dea gathered to pay their respects to the prelate.

The mass at St. James's Cathedral was an impressive and elaborate ceremony. It began with the march of Bishop O'Dea, preceded by bishops, archbishops, monsignors and priests in their robes, from Cathedral Hall to the altar of the cathedral.

Dr. F. S. Palmer, cathedral organist, played the processional march, "Joan of Arc" while the ecclesiastics marched to their appointed places.

Comparing the difficulties confronting the disciples of Christ with those which Bishop O'Dea encountered when consecrated Archbishop Alexander Christie of Portland, Ore., preached the sermon.

"But you," said the archbishop, turning to Bishop O'Dea, "but you have met and conquered those difficulties and as we look back over the twenty-five years we may see how much has been accomplished by you for God and the church."

"To-day you must accept the homage of the people assembled here and the homage of the Northwest—Catholic and non-Catholic. And let me say that there are no better people in the world, even though they are without the blessings of our faith, than the non-Catholics of America."

Extra Programme.—At the New Thought Temple there is quite an extra programme for the week. Dr. Butler will speak on Sunday morning on "How We Are Saved," and in the evening on "Finding Yourself." On Monday there is a free lecture on "Applied Psychology," and Wednesday evening healing meeting, when treatments and demonstrations, in healing are given to all who may desire them. On Thursday and Friday evenings Rev. Henry Victor Morgan, of Tacoma, will speak. Admission is free, and all are cordially invited.

DEAN RETURNS FROM CONFERENCE

Lectured to University Students; To Preach To-morrow.
Very Rev. C. S. Quinlan, Dean of Columbia, has returned to the city from Seabrook, Washington, where he delivered lectures at a conference of university students assembled for a Summer camp under the auspices of the National Young Women's Christian Association of America. Over 120 students attended.

At Cathedral To-morrow.
The Dean will be the preacher at both choral morning and evening services in Christ Church Cathedral to-morrow. At the eleven o'clock service, Dean Quinlan will preach on "Christian Service," and at 7.30 p. m. on "Hindrances to Finding Christ a Personal Reality." The Holy Communion service will be held in the Cathedral to-morrow at 8 a. m. and 9.30 p. m.

RESURRECTION LECTURE—At Their larger quarters, room 217 Pemberton Building, Sunday, 8 p. m., the speaker will take for his subject, "The Mystery of the Unseen." This is a most interesting and instructive subject. The public is invited.

Ship Righted and Making For Port at Three Knots

CRIPPLED C. G. M. M. SHIP CANADIAN IMPORTER

BOOTLEGGER IN DISTRESS PICKED UP BY ALGERINE

Gas Boat Mamook Located in Trouble Off Prohibition Coastline

It fell to the lot of the salvage steamer Algerine while off Eureka, bound for the Canadian Importer after taking aboard supplies, to pick up a disabled bootlegger. The Algerine came across the Vancouver gas boat Mamook about 20 miles west of Eureka. The engine of the boat was out of commission and the craft leaking. The crew was taken aboard the Algerine and the boat in tow. The only details of the rescue were contained in a radio message received last night by the Pacific Salvage Company as follows:

"Picked up disabled gasboat Mamook in N. W. gale thirty miles W. of Eureka. Leaking badly. Has cargo of whisky aboard. Saved crew and vessel. Towing to Eureka. Owned by Andrew Morgan & Co., 1055 Hamilton Street, Vancouver, and Milne, 1662 Robson Street, Vancouver."

The Mamook is known on the waterfront here as a staunch craft which formerly engaged in the logging business out of Vancouver.

Cause of Leak on Canadian Importer Still Undetermined

S. S. Canadian Winner Returns From Scene of Mishap; Importer Is Jogging Along At Three Knots and Is Expected to Reach Esquimalt on Tuesday; All Aboard Safe and Well.

The cause of the leak which flooded the engine room of the S. S. Canadian Winner had not been determined when the S. S. Canadian Winner left the convoy and will not be ascertained until the crippled ship has been drydocked at Esquimalt for survey. Bucking a head wind the Canadian Importer, in tow of the powerful tugs Sea Lion and Sea Monarch, is making about four knots and is expected to reach this port on Tuesday morning.

The deckload has gone and the vessel has righted herself, the list being very slight. The members of the crew of the disabled ship, including the eleven men who were adrift in an open boat for two weeks, are well and safe aboard the Canadian Importer.

Comparatively little that would throw further light upon the mysterious mishap to the Canadian Importer was learned from the S. S. Canadian Winner, which arrived at William Head at midnight from the scene of the disaster.

Capt. Logan Mack, of the London Salvage Association, returned here on the Canadian Winner, but he declined to discuss the ship or the condition she was in when he left her, further than she was all right and would make port early next week.

Capt. W. H. Logan, of the London Salvage Association, returned here on the Canadian Winner, but he declined to discuss the ship or the condition she was in when he left her, further than she was all right and would make port early next week.

Capt. W. H. Logan, of the London Salvage Association, returned here on the Canadian Winner, but he declined to discuss the ship or the condition she was in when he left her, further than she was all right and would make port early next week.

The Canadian Winner, after attempting to tow the Canadian Importer and following the arrival of the tug Sea Lion, said off her towline and has since been hauling the heavy wire cable in her wake. The recovery of this cable had the effect of delaying the Winner at William Head. The tug proved to be very difficult and the ship will be delayed in Parry Bay several hours.

Stores were sent out to William Head last night and were this morning put aboard the tug. She will proceed direct from quarantine to Vancouver.

The nature of the leak or its cause is not known, and will not be known until the ship has been unloaded and placed in drydock," said Capt. Finnegan. "We learned from the Winner that the ship is in fairly good shape and, despite the water in her, is making steady progress behind the big tugs having her in tow. We expect the Importer will reach Esquimalt on Tuesday morning."

The officers and men are all safe and well, and the men rescued from the ship's boat by the Sea Lion have recuperated from their experiences. It was stated.

The Canadian Winner was running short of supplies, and it meant either putting into San Francisco to replenish or coming on here. The latter course was decided upon, but when the Winner reached quarantine her supplies were exhausted. Orders were placed for supplies here and today the Winner's complement are getting all they can eat.

The Canadian Observer is conveying the Importer, and will probably come on to Esquimalt with the ship, together with the Algerine, which is now steaming for the convoy from Eureka.

This morning the Algerine was reported thirty miles off Eureka, making ten knots, and headed back to the Canadian Importer. She reported a northwest swell, light wind and dense fog.

Pumps Working Finely.

The Algerine's gas pumps on the Canadian Importer are keeping the water down and will continue to do so until the ship is safely delivered at Esquimalt.

The disabled ship is now riding with about six feet of freeboard and carries a list of about two feet.

MORE SALVAGE GEAR IS SENT TO AID GIVENCHY

Vancouver, Sept. 10.—Two more screws and considerable equipment has been forwarded to the stranded Government steamer Givenchy which went ashore on Chaffield Island last Saturday, and it is expected that work will commence to-morrow on raising the boat.

I. M. M. AGREEMENT WITH BRITAIN IS SUBMITTED TO U. S. SHIPPING BOARD

Washington, Sept. 10.—The International Mercantile Marine through its president, P. A. S. Franklin, has submitted to the Shipping Board a new agreement entered into with the British Government as a substitute for the agreement which bound the corporation, to pursue no policy injurious to the interests of the British mercantile marine or British trade.

INFANT INDIAN DROWNED TRYING TO BOARD CANOE

Little Girl on Esquimalt Reserve Meets Sad End

Following the traditions of her race, for generations living and travelling in canoe, Elsie Jones, an infant girl of Indian parents on the Esquimalt reserve met her death yesterday evening while trying to crawl into a canoe.

The little child had been left in charge of her grandmother, and was placed on a raft on the shore for play. Being unwatched for a few minutes it is thought the infant attempted to emulate the example of her brethren and toddle towards a large canoe that was moored to the raft. The infant succeeded in crossing the raft, and was in the act of climbing into the canoe—it is surmised, when she fell between the side of the raft and the canoe, into shallow water, but yet sufficiently deep to cause the tragedy.

The little child had been fifteen minutes later by a young girl, who picked the little limp body from the mother who had left the child on the raft.

Dr. McCallum, of Esquimalt, was rushed to the scene but the infant was beyond all human aid, having been submerged in the water for nearly quarter of an hour. The body was found between the raft and the canoe, half out of the water on some floating drift-wood there.

The tragedy has cast a gloom over the reserve, and the mother of the infant collapsed on hearing the news of the tragedy. No inquest will be held, it being established by provincial police that death took place much in the manner detailed.

 G. W. V. A. Auxiliary Met.—A standing vote of sympathy to Mr. R. H. Pooley, M. P. P., was passed at last night's meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the G. W. V. A., with Mrs. Ricketts, the president, in the chair. The meeting passed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Villiers, Mrs. Wilkinson, and Mrs. Bryson for visiting the patients in the tubercular ward of the Jubilee Hospital and a further donation of $10 was voted to the committee to be used in the purchase of cigarettes and candies for the patients. It was decided to have a refreshment booth at the fair during the Fall week, and Mrs. Laxton was appointed general convener of a committee comprising Mesdames Taylor, McGregor, McIntyre, Wilkinson, Morrison, Ricketts, Chambers and Miss Forester.

NIAGARA CLEARS FOR AUSTRALASIA

Big Two-stacker Takes Out Large List of Passengers and Good Cargo

The Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara, Capt. J. T. Rolis, reached port from Vancouver at 8 o'clock this morning, and cleared this afternoon on her outward voyage to Australasia.

The ship was held at the Outer Docks until 2:30 p. m., city time, to permit Hon. W. P. Masse, Prime Minister of New Zealand, to address the Canadian Club here.

The liner carries nearly 500 passengers in all classes. She is also well laden with cargo, the ship drawing 20 feet.

LOST 29 POUNDS. DYSENTERY WAS THE CAUSE.

Dysentery is one of the worst forms of bowel complaint, and hardly any other disease so quickly undermines the strength and brings about a condition of prostration and utter collapse that often terminates fatally.

To check the unnatural discharge without bringing on constipation you should use that grand old remedy with a reputation extending over 78 years.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY

Mr. G. H. McVagh, Mawer, Sask., writes: "About eight years ago I had a severe attack of dysentery. I weighed 154 lbs. when I took sick and 125 when I got it stopped. I think I tried every medicine on the market, but did not find relief until I used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and one bottle did it. I think there is nothing like it for diarrhoea or dysentery. I always keep some on hand as a person does not know when he will need it."

Price, 50c a bottle, but only by The T. Millard Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHINAMAN FOUND HANGING IN CABIN; DEAD TWO DAYS

Police Think Circumstance Surrounding Death of Gar Lock Points to Suicide

Missing for the last two days Gar Lock, an elderly Chinaman, was found hanging by the neck in his cabin, No. 22, in the rear of 555 Figard Street, late yesterday afternoon by the police, who were brought to the spot by a friend, named Quen Bing. The elderly Chinaman, it was stated, was in an alling condition for some time past and had been under the care of Dr. Haynor, the police finding a tonic on his table at the time of his death.

The Chinaman, it is held by the police, made a few simple preparations and hanged himself, and had been dead for at least two days when found. The body was removed by the police to the undertaking parlors, and Coroner E. C. Hart notified.

Suicide is given as the explanation of the tragedy, with the reason for the deed being the ill health, and despondency of the old man.

Mr. Herbert Osborn Tells How Cuticura Healed His Wife

"My wife began to be troubled with itching and burning of the palms of her hands and the soles of her feet. Later the skin cracked and became inflamed, making walking or even standing very painful and preventing sleep at night. Later it became necessary to bandage both hands and feet.

"She was treated but obtained no relief. She saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. She bought more and after using two boxes of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Herbert Osborn, 135 Sherbrooke Ave., Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 2, 1919.

Cuticura is ideal for every-day toilet uses. Soap to cleanse and purify. Ointment to soothe and heal.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c. Sold throughout the Dominion. Canadian Depot: Watson, Limited, St. Paul St., Montreal.

Cuticura Soap saves without soap.

Chinaman Found Dead—Deprived of his private opium smoking outfit, and his meagre stock of the drug, an elderly Chinaman was found dead today in his quarters on Figard Street. About a week ago his residence was raided by a police posse and the opium smoking gear removed pending a charge of being in possession being laid against the occupants at the time. Nothing further transpired until the body of the elderly man was found today. Death had apparently taken place from natural causes.

RADIO COMPASS NOW AT TATOOSH

Wireless Direction Finding Service Will Greatly Assist Navigators

Seattle, Sept. 10.—With the establishment of a radio compass station at Tatoosh Island, which has just become operative, navigators of all manner of vessels supplied with radio apparatus are requested to use this service no matter what the weather. This is in order to perfect the service. Orders to this effect were received by the United States naval radio service transmitted to Lieut.-Commander Milton H. Anderson, district naval communication superintendent, and by him in the shape of a request for co-operation on the part of ship operators.

The radio compass service is designed to safeguard all vessel approaching the Pacific Coast and a number of these stations have recently been equipped and installed from Cape Flattery south.

The station completed at Tatoosh Island, the regular United States weather observatory for this district, is now in operation, and all mariners are invited to use this service whether in thick weather prevails or not, in the hope that practice will insure perfection in the matter of transmitting messages whether condition are obscure or otherwise.

The exact geographical position of the Tatoosh station is promulgated in the notice being sent out by the radio compass service, as follows: Latitude 44.25 to Latitude 41.14 North, by Longitude 124.44 to 112.77 West.

Ships within this radius are urged to use this service whether bound for Puget Sound or not, thus insuring by practice this method of safeguarding the approach to Pacific Coast harbors.

British Israel Bible Depot.—A British Israel depot has been established on Fort Street, near Quadra Street. The depot has a large assortment of works on prophecy and books and literature dealing with the subjects of the British Israel World-wide Federation.

WILL HOLD MASS MEETING ON AMALGAMATION

Returned Organizations Plan to Get Together

Delegates from the several returned men's organizations in this city, met last night in the club rooms of the Veterans Association to draw up preliminary plans for the discussion of the amalgamation question, mooted for some time past.

It was stated that Victoria had been first to establish returned men's organization and that the city should be the first to lead the way in the Dominion-wide movement for amalgamation.

NO POLITICS

In reply to rumors that the veterans were dabbling in politics the following resolution was passed by the assembly last night, representing every organization of returned men in the city.

That the delegates, on behalf of their respective organizations, having in mind the paramount necessity for amalgamation, and realizing the danger of permitting party politics to be injected into the present discussion of the question, authorize the statement that none of the existing veterans' organizations of Victoria has officially endorsed the candidature of any person for the forthcoming Federal general election.

Plans For Meeting. Comrades Robert McNeil and C. K. Christian were appointed chairman and secretary, respectively, of a provisional committee on amalgamation. The committee was instructed to proceed with plans for the mass meeting.

PARKDALE PARENTS PROTEST TO BOARD

Declare the Children Waded Through Swamp to Tillicum

Parkdale mothers turned out en masse last night and organized an imposing deputation to Royal Oak, where they laid before the Saanich School Board a vigorous complaint against having to send their children to Tillicum School.

Must Cross Bogs. The chief complaint was that Parkdale parents, taking their children to school on Tuesday morning, found to their amazement that pathless fields and uncrossable swamps intervened between the homes of the majority of the youngsters and Tillicum School.

It was pointed out that the construction of the new four-roomed addition to Tillicum had not been realized by residents of Parkdale as affecting them, and it was with surprise that they found their children refused admission to Toimie and directed there. This was thought a setback for children already advanced in studies, while the requirement that young entrants should show proficiency in fields to Tillicum was denounced as intolerable.

Not Explained Enough. The deputation also protested against omission of the Board to hold explanatory public meetings in the district. Mrs. Sutton pointing out that, if more such get-together gatherings were held, the number of kicks-and-misunderstandings would greatly decrease.

Board Promises Action. Chairman Holloway sympathized with the deputation and promised that the trustees would immediately ask the Council to contribute to the school. Mrs. Sutton pointing out the failure to enlarge Toimie School as due to action of the Saanich Council in refusing to grant extraordinary estimates as originally submitted by the Board.

Denies Surprise Action. Trustee Mrs. Humphries pointed out that the change was no new thing and that the press had published all details repeatedly, including the re-division of the district. She felt that there had been some unfair criticism of the Board.

Mrs. Sutton explained that the deputation was in full sympathy with the Board in the refusal of the Council to supply funds, and moved a vote of thanks from the delegation for the hearing and the promised action, this carrying with enthusiasm. After the deputation left the Board passed a resolution asking the Saanich Council to construct the needed sidewalks on Seaton Road and Cadilliac Avenue to Burnside, and also to establish traffic warning signs on Burnside Road as the Parkdale children have to cross that highway.

High School Fees MOUNT IN SAANICH
Total for Year Will Exceed $10,000; Greatly Increased Attendance
The Saanich School Board last night accepted the proposal of the Victoria School Board that High School fees should be on the basis of $54 yearly per pupil. The Trustees were informed that already 115 permits have been issued to Saanich pupils, with more expected to be applied for. This makes it almost a certainty that Saanich will pay more than $10,000 for High School tuition during the coming year, the permits now issued requiring $9,560. It was remarked that the Victoria High School is now practically full, and makes imperative consideration of plans for a Saanich controlled High School. The Board decided that it would contribute towards the fee of Saanich pupils attending Oak Bay or Esquimalt High Schools, up to the amount paid for pupils attending the Victoria High School, viz., $34 for the coming year.

They Need Shelter
THERE is only one sure way of sheltering your loved ones from the storms of adversity. The experience of thousands of capable business men is that in the "last analysis" life insurance is the one dependable asset. When wills are probated it is often a cause of intense surprise and keen disappointment that there is no estate, and the life policy then becomes the one sure refuge—"a shelter in the time of storm". On the principle of co-operation the Mutual Life of Canada has developed an institution so strong as to be storm proof and this household protection can be secured at net cost. The Mutual is the only Canadian company equipped to furnish life insurance at net cost. It is the only one owned entirely by the policyholders. Protect your family by life insurance. It is an absolute necessity. Protect your family by means of mutual life insurance. It gives the largest possible amount of sound life insurance for the least possible outlay.
