The Tragedy of M. Arden of Feueshame.

(Enter Arden, and Francklin)

Franklin A Rden chere vp thy spirits and droup no more

 Hær are the deedes sealed & subscribed w̄ his name and the Read them, and leaue this melancholy moode

Arden. Francklin thy loue prolongs my weary lyfe,
 And but for the, how odious were this lyfe:
 That shewes me nothing but tormentes my soule,
 And these soule obiects that offend myne eies,
 Which makes me wish that for this vale of Heauen,
 The earth hung ouer my hede and couerd me.
 Loue letters palt twirt Mosbie and my Wyfe,
 And they haue preuiue meetings in the Towne:
 Nay on his finger did I spy the King,
 Which at our Marriage day the Prest put on,
 Can any grefe be halfe so great as this?

Fran. Comfort thy selfe swete frānd it is not strange,
 That women will be false and wauering.

Arden. I but to doat on such a one as he
 Is monstrous Francklin, and intollerable.

Francklin. Why, what is he?

Arden. A Botcher and no better at the first,
 Who by base brocage, getting some small stock:
 Crept into service of a noble man:
 And by his seruile flattery and fawning,
 Is now become the steward of his house,
 And brauely iets it in his silken gowne.

Fran. No noble man will countnaunce such a pesant,

Arden. Yes, the Lord Clifford, he that loues not me,
 But through his fauour let not him grow proude,
 For were he by the Lord Protector backt,
 He shold not make me to be pointed at,
 I am by birth a gentle man of blode.

 See his disleuered ioints and sinewes toerne,

Fran. Be patient gentle frænd and learne of me,
 To ease thy griefe, and sauе her chastitye:
 Intreat her faire swete wordes are fittest engines
 To race the flint walles of a womans breast:
 In any case be not too zelyouse,
 Nor make no question of her loue to the.
 But as securely, presensly take hōse,
 And ly with me at London all this feareme
 For women when they may, will not,
 But bēing kept back, straight grow oufragious.

Arden. Though this abhorres from reason yet ile try it
 And call her forth, and presently take leauue: How Ales,
 Heere entes ales.

Ales. Husband what meane you to get vp so earely.
 Sommer nights are short, and yet you rysē ere day,
 Had I bæne wake you had not rise so sone.

Ard. Swæt loue thou knowist that we two Ouid like
 Hauie often chid the morning, when it gan to peepe,
 And often wilsh that darke nights purblind stædes,
 Would pull her by the purple mantle back:
 And cast her in the Ocean to her loue.
 But this night swæte Ales thou hast kild my hart,
 I heard thee cal on Mosbie in thy slæpe.

Ales. Tis lyke I was a slæpe when I nam'd him,
 For bēing awake he comes not in my thoughts:

Arden. I but you started vp, and suddenly
 In stæde of him: caught me about the necke.

Ales. In stæde of him: why, who was there but you,
 And where but one is, how can I mistake.

Fran. Arden leue to vrdge her ouer farre.

Arden. Pay loue there is no credit in a dzeame,
Let it suffice I know thou louest me well.

Ales. Now I remember where vpon it came,
Had we no talke of Mosbie yesternight.

Fra. Mistres Ales I hard you name him once or twice,

Ales. And thereof came it, and therefore blame not me

Arden. I know it did, and therefore let it passe,

I must to London swete Ales presently.

Ales. But tell me do you meane to stay there long?

Arden. No longer there till my affaires be done.

Fran. He will not stay aboue a month at most.

Ales. A moneth aye me, swete Arden come againe
Within a day or two, or els I die.

Arden. I cannot long be from thē gentle Ales,

Whilest, Michel fetch our horses from the field,

Franklin and I will down vnto the key:

For I haue certaine gods there to vnload,

Meantime prepare our breakfast gentle Ales,

For yet ere none wele take horse and away,

Excunt Arden, & Francklin.

Ales. Ere none he meanes to take horse and away:

Swete newes is this, Oh that some ayrie spirit,

Would in the shape and liknes of a horse

Gallope with Arden crosse the Ocean,

And thow him from his backe into the waues.

Swete Mosbie is the man that hath my hart:

And he vsurpes it, having nought but this,

That I am tyed to him by mariage.

Loue is a God and mariage is but words,

And therefore Mosbies title is the best,

Tushe whether it be or no, he shall be mine,

In spight of him, of Hymen and of rytes.

Here enters Adam of the Flourdeluce.

And here comes Adam of the flourdeluce,

I hope he bringes me tydings of my loue.

The Tragedy of M. Arden

How now Adam, what is the newes with you?
Be not affraid my husband is now from home.

Adam. He whome you wot of Mosbie ~~Pistres~~ Ales,
Is come to towne, and sends you word by me,
In any case you may not visit him.

Ales. Not visit him?

Adam. No nor take no knowledge of his bēinghāre
Ales. But tell me is he angrē or displeased.

Adam. Should seeme so, for he is wondrous sad.

Ales. WERE he as mad as raving Hercules,
Ile see him, I and were thy house of sorte,
These hands of mine should race it to the ground:
Unles that thou wouldest bring me to my loue.

Adam. Nay and you be so impatient Ile be gone

Ales. Stay Adam, stay, thou wert wont to be my frēd
Aske Mosbie how I haue incurred his wrath,
Weare him from me these paire of siluer dice:
With which we plaid for kisses many a tyme,
And when I lost, I wan, and so did hē:
Such winning and such losing, Jeue send me,
And bid him if his loue do not decline,
Come this morning but along my doze:
And as a stranger, but salute me there,
This may he do without suspect or feare.

Adam. Ile tell him what you say, and so fare well.

Exit Adam.

Ales. Doo, and one day Ile make amends for all:
I know he loues me well, but dares not come,
Because my husband is so Jelious:
And these my marrow prying neighbours blab,
Vnder our meetings when we would conserre.
But if I live that block shall be remoued,
And Mosbie, thou that comes to me by stelth
Shalt neither feare the biting speach of men,
Nor Ardens looks, as surely shall he die,
as I abhorre him, and loue onely thee.

How now Michaell, whether are you going?

Michael. To fetch my masters nagge,
I hope youle thinke on mæ.

Ales. But Michaell sse yon kepe your oath,
And be as secret, as you are resolute.

Michaell. Ile see he shall not liue aboue a weeke.
On that condition Michaell here is my hand
None shall haue Mollies sister but thy selfe.

Michaell. I understand the Painter hære hard by,
Hath made reporte that he and Sue is sure.

Ales. There's no such matter Michaell beleue it not,

Michael. But he hath sent a dagger sticking in a hart,
With a verle or two stollen from a painted cloath:
The which I hære the wench kepes in her chest,
Well let her kepe it, I shall finde a fellow
That can boþ write and read, and make rime too,
And if I do, well, I say no moze:
Ile send from London such a taunting letter,
As shall eat the hart he sent with salt.
And fling the dagger at the Painters head.

Ales. What needes all this, I say that Susan's thine

Michaell. Why then I say that I will kill my master
Or any thing that you will haue me do.

Ales. But Michaell sse you do it cunningly.

Michaell. Why, say I shold be toke, ile nere confesse,
That you know any thing, and Susan being a Maide,
May begge me from the gallous of the Shriefe.

Ales. Truste not to that Michaell.

Michaell. You can not tell me, I haue seene it I,
But mistres tell her whether I liue or die.
Ile make her moze woorth then twenty Painters can,
For I will rid myne elder brother away:
And then the farme of Bolton is mine owne.

The Tragedy of M. Arden

Here enters Mosbie.

Ales. Wonder comes Mosbie. Michaell get thee gone,
And let not him nor any knowe thy dights.

Mosbie my loue,
Mosbie. Away I say, and talke not to me now.
Ales. A woorde or two swete hart, and then I will,
Tis yet but early daies, thou needest not feare.
Mosbie. Where is your husband?
Ales. Tis now high water, and he is at the key.
Mos. There let him be, hence forward know me not.
Ales. Is this the end of all thy solemne oathes?
Is this the frute thy reconcilement buds?
Haue I for this given thee so many fauours,
Incurd my husbands hate, and out alas,
Made shipwreck of myne honour for thy sake,
And doest thou say hence forward know me not?
Remember when I lockt the in my closet,
What were thy words and mine, did we not both
Decree, to murder Arden in the night.
The heauens can witnes, and the world can tell,
Before I saw that falshoode looke of thine,
For I was tangled with thy tylsing speach.
Arden to me was dearer then my soule,
And shall be still, base pesant get thee gone.
And boast not of thy conquest over me,
Gotten by witch-craft, and mere sorcery.
For what hast thou to countenaunce my loue,
being discended of a noble house,
And matcht already with a gentleman,
Whose seruant thou maist be, and so farewell.

Mos. Ungentle and unkinde Ales, now I see
That which I euer feard, and finde too true:
A womans loue is as the lightning flame,
Which euern in bursting forth consumes it selfe,
To trye thy constancie haue I bene strange,

Gre. Pardon me mistres Arden, I must speake,
For I am toucht, your husband doth me w<sup>r</sup>ong:
Towring me from the little land I haue.
My living is my lyfe, onely that
Kesteth remainder of my portion.
Desyre of welth is endles in his minde,
And he is gredy gaping still soz gaine,
Noz cares he though young gentlemen do begge,
So he may scrape and horde vp in his poutche,
But seeing he hath taken my lands, Ile value lyfe:
As careles as he is carefull soz to get,
And tell him this from me, Ile be reuenged,
And so, as he shal wilhe the Abby lands
Had rested still, within their former state.

Ales. Alas poze gentleman, I pittie you,
And wo is me that any man should want,
God knowes tis not my fault, but wonder not
Though he be harde to others, when to me,
Ah maister Greene, God knowes how I am vsde,

Greene

of Feuershame.

Gre. Why mistres Arden can the crabbed churle,
Use you vnkindely respects he not your birth?
Your honoorable frænds, nor what you brought:
Why? all Kent knowes your parentage, and what you are

Ales. Ah M. Cræne be it spoken in secret heere,
I neuer live god day with him alone:
When he is at home, then haue I froward looks,
Hard words and blowes, to mend the match withall:
And though I might content as god a man,
Yet doth he keepe in every corner trullies,
And weary with his trugges at home,
Then rydes he straight to London, there sozsooth
He reuelles it among such filthie ones,
As counsels him to make awry his wyfe:
Thus live I dayly in continuall feare:
In sorrow, so dispairing of redres
As every day I wish with harty prayer,
That he or I were taken forth the worlde.

Gre. Now trust me mistres Ales, it græueth me,
So faire a creature should be so abused.
Why who would haue thought the ciuill sir, so sullen,
He looks so smoothly now sye upon him Churle.
And if he live a day he lives too long,
But frolick woman, I shall be the man,
Shall set you free from all this discontent:
And if the Churle deny my intereste,
And will not yelde my lease into my hand,
Ile paye him home, what ever hap to me,

Ales. But speake you as you thinke?

Gre. I Gods my witnes, I meane plaine dealing,
For I had rather die then lose my land.

Ales. Then maister Greene be counsailed by me
And auenger not your selfe, soz such a Churle,
But hyre some Cutler soz to cut him shorȝt,
And her's ten pound, to wager them with all.
When he is dead you shall haue twenty more.

Ard. Why you paltrie knaue,
 Stand you here loytering, knowing my affaires,
 What haste my busines craues to send to Bent?

Fran. Faith frend Michaell, this is very ill,
 Knowing your maister hath no more but you,
 And do ye slacke his busines for your owne?

Ard. Where is the letter sirra, let me see it,
 Then he giues him the letter.

Sae maister Francklin, heres proper stufte,
 Susan my maid, the Painter, and my man,
 A crue of harlots all in loue forsooth,
 Sirra let me heare no more of this.

Now for thy lyfe, once write to her a wozde,

Here enters Grene, Will, and Shakebag,
 Wilt thou be married to so base a frull.
 Dis Mossies sister, come I once at home,
 Ile rouse her from remaining in my house:
 Now M. Francklin let vs go walke in Paules,
 Come, but a turne or two and then away,      Exeunt.

Gre. The first is Arden, and thats his man,
 The other is Francklin Ardens dearest frend,

Will. Zounds Ile kill them all thre,

Gre. Nay sirs, touch not his man in any case,
 But stand close, and take you fittest standing,
 And at his comming forth spedde him:
 To the Pages head, ther is this cowards haunt,
 But now Ile leave you till the deed be don:    Exit Greene

 As vnexpected, to the slaughterhouse:
 So haue I sworne to Mosby and my mistres.
 So haue I promised to the slaughermen.
 And shoule I not deale currently with them,
 Their lawles rage would take revenge on me,
 Tush I will spur ne at mercy for this once.
 Let pitie lodge where ſable women ly.

of Feuers shame.

If feare of God, or common speach of men,
Who mangle credit with their wounding words,
And cooch dishonor, as dishonor buds.
Might ioyne repentaunce in her wanton thoughts,
No question then but she would turne the lease,
And sorow for her desolution.
But she is rooted in her wickednes.

Peruerse and stobburne, not to be reclaimde,
Good counsell is to her as raine to waedes
And reprehension makes her vice to grow,
As Hydreaes head that perisht by decay.
Her faults me think are painted in my face.
For euery searching eye to ouer reue.
And Mosbie's name, a scandale unto myne.
Is deeply trenched in my blushing brow.
Ah Francklin Francklin, when I think on this,
My harts grefe rends my other powers,
Worse then the conflict at the houre of death.

Farn. Gentle Arden leauue this sad lament,
She will amend, and so your gréeses will cease
Or els shele die, and so your sorrows end.
If neither of these two do happily fall,
Yet let your comfort be, that others bears
Your woes twice doubled all with patience.

Ard. My house is irksome, there I cannot rest.
Fra. Then stay with me in London, go not home.
Ard. Then that base Mosbie doth usurpe my roome,
And makes his triumphe of my beeing thence.
At home, or not at home, where ere I be.
Heere heere it lyes, ah Francklin here it lyes,
That wil not out till wretched Arden dies.

Here enters Michaell.

Mic. Almost ten.
Ard. Ha ha how runnes away the weary time,

The Tragedy of M. Arden

Come M. Franklin, shall we go to bed.

Exeunt Arden & Michaell.

Manet Francklin.

Fran. I pray you go before, I'll follow you,
 Ah what ahell is fretfull Ielousie?
 What pitty moning words? what dæpe fetcht sighes?
 What grēuous grones? and overlading woes,
 Accompanies this gentle gentleman.
 Now will he shake his care oppresed head,
 When fir his sad eis on the soilen earth,
 Ashamed to gaze vpon the open wold.
 Now will he cast his eyes vp towards the heauens,
 Looking that waies for redresse of wrong,
 Some times he seeketh to beguile his griefe,
 And tels a stoy with his carefull tongue.
 Then comes his wives dishonor in his thoughts,
 And in the middle cutteh of his tale.
 Pouring fresh sorrow on his weary lims.
 So woe begone, so inlye charged with woe,
 Was never any lyued and bare it so.

Here enters Michaell.

Mic. My M. would desire you come to bed.

Fra. Is he himselfe already in his bed?

Exit Fran. Manet Mic.

Mic. He is and faine would haue the light away,
 Conflicting thoughts incamped in my brest
 Awake me with the Echo of their strokes:
 And I a iudge to censure either side,
 Can give to neither wished victory.
 My masters kindnes pleads to me for lyfe,
 With iust demaund, and I must grant it him.
 My mistres she hath forced me with an oath,
 For Sulsans sake the which I may not breake,
 For that is nearer the a masters loue,
 That grimfaced fellow, pittiles black Will,
 And Shakebag Starne in bloody Stratageme.

Two

Two Ruffer Ruffins never liued in Bent,
 Haue sworne my death, if I infringe my vow,
 A dreadfull thing to be considred of,
 Me thinks I see them with their bolstred haire,
 Staring and grinning in thy gentle face,
 And in their ruthles hands, their dagers drawne,
 Insulting oze there with a peck of oathes.
 Whildest thou submissiue pleading for releefe,
 Art mangled by their irefull instruments.
 Me thinks I heare them aske where Michaell is
 And pittiles black Will, cryes stab the slau.
 The Pesant will detect the Tragedy.
 The wrincles in his sowle death threatening face,
 Gapes open wide, lyke graues to swallow men.
 My death to him is but a merryment,
 And he will murther me to make him sport.
 He comes, he comes, ah M. Francklin helpe,
 Call vp the neigbors or we are but dead

Here enters Fran. & Arden.

Eran. What dismall outcry calls me from my rest?
 Ard. What hath occasiond such a fearefull crye?
 Speake Michaell, hath any iniurde thee?
 Mic. Nothing sir, but as I fell a flæpe,
 Upon the threshoile leaning to the staires.
 I had a fearefull dreame that troubled me,
 And in my slumber thought I was beset,
 With murtherer theeuers that came to riste me.
 My trembling ioints witnes my inward feare.
 I craue your pardons for disturbing you.

Ard. So great a cry for nothing, I nere heard.
 What, are the doores fast lockt: and al things safe?
 Mic. I cannot tel, I think I lockt the doores.
 Ard. I like not this, but I le go se my selfe.
 Nere trust me, but the doores were all vnlockt.

The Tragedye of M. Arden

Let me haue no more such pranckes as these Come M. Francklin, let vs go to bed.

Farn. I be my faith, the aire is very colde,      Exeunt.
Michaell farewell, I pray thee dreme no more.

Sha. Black night hath hid the pleasures of þ day.
Here enters Will, Gre. and Shak.

And sheting darknesse ouerhangs the earth,
And with the black folde of her cloudy robe,
Obscure vs from the eisight of the worlde,
In which swete silence such as we triumph.
The lassie minuts linger on their time,
Loth to giue due audit to the howre:
Til in the watch our purpose be complete,
And Arden sent to everlasting night.
Gre. get you gone, and linger here about,
And at some houre hence, come to vs againe,
Wher we will giue you instance of his death.

Gre. Spede to my wish whose wil so ere sayes no,
And so ile leauue you for an howre or two.    Exit Gre.

Will. I tel theo Shakbag, would this thing wer don,
I am so heauy that I can scarle go:
This drowsines in me bodes little good.

Shake. How now Will, become a precission.
Pay then lets go sleepe, when buges and feares,
Shall kill our courages with their fancies worke,

Will. Why Shakbagge thou mistakes me much,
And wrongs me to in telling me of feare,
Wert not a serious thing we go about,
It should be slipt, til I had fought with thee:
To let thee know I am no coward I,
I tel thee Shakbag thou abusest me.

Sha. Why thy speach bewrayed an inlye kind offeare.
And sauourd of a weak relenting spirit.
Colorward now in that we haue begonne.
And afterwards attempt me when thou darest.

Wil. And if I do not heauen cut me of,
But let that passe, and shew me to this house.

Wheres.

of Feuershame.

Where thou shalt see Ile do as much as Shakbag.

Sha. This is the deore, but soft, me thinks tis shut.
The villaine Michaell hath deceived vs,

Wil. Soft let me see, shakbag tis shut indeed.

Knock with thy sword, perhaps the slane will heare,

Sha. It wil not be, the white luerd pesant is gon to bed
And laughs vs both to scorne.

Wil. And he shall by his miriment as deare,
As euer coistrell bought so little spoyn,
Nere let this sworde assist me when I neede,
But rust and canker after I haue sworne:
If I the next time that I mete the hind,
Loppe not away his leg, his arme or bothe,

Sha. And let me never draw a sword againe,
Nor prosper in the twilight, cockshut light,
When I would sleeve the welthe passenger,
But ly and languish in a loathsome den:
Hated and spit at by the goers by.
And in that death may die, vnpittied.
If I the next time that I mete the slane,
Cut not the nose from of the cowards face,
And trample on it, for this villany.

Wil. Come lets go seeke out Green I know hele swear

Sha. He were a villane and he would not sware,
Twould make a pesant sware amongst his boyes.
That nere durst say before but yea and no.
To be thus flouted of a coystrel.

Will. Shakbag lets seeke out Green, & in the morning
At the Alehouse buttyng Ardens house,
Watch thre out comming of that prick eard cur,
And then let me alone to handle him.

Excunt.

Here enters Ard. Fra. & Michaell.

Ard. Hirra get you back to billensgate,
And learne what time the tide will serue our turne,

The Tragedy of M. Arden

Come M. Francklin, you shall go with me.
 This night I dreame that beeing in a parke,
 A toyle was picht to overthow the deare.
 And I vpon a little rising hill,
 Stoode whistely watching for the herds approach.
 Even there me thoughts a gentle slumber tooke me,
 And sommond all my parts to swete repose.
 But in the pleasure of this golden rest,
 An ill the w<sup>d</sup> foster had remoued the toyle,
 And rounded me with that beguyling home,
 Which late me thought was pitcht to cast the deare,
 With that he blew an euill sounding boyme,
 And at the noise an other heard man came:
 With Fauchon drawn, and bent it at my brest.
 Crying aloud thou art the game we seeke,
 With this I wakt, and trembled evry ioynt,
 Lyke one esured in a lytle bushe,
 That sees a lyon foraging about,
 And when the dreadfull forrest King is gone,
 He pryes about, with timerons suspect,
 Thronghout the thorny casements of the brake,
 And will not think his person daungerles.
 But quakes and shewers though the cause be gone.
 So trust me Francklin when I did awake,
 I stode in doubt whether I waked or no:
 Such great impression tooke this sond surpize:
 God graunt this vision bedeeme me any god.

Fran. This fantassie doeth rise from Michaels feare,
 Who being awaked with the noyse he made,
 His troubled sences, yet could take no rest.
 And this I warant you procured your dreame.

Ard. It may be so God frame it to the best,
 But often times my dreames presage to frew.

Fran. To such as note their nightly fantasies,
 Some one in twenty may incurre beliefe,
 But vse it not, tis but a mockery.

Ard.

of Feuershame.

Ard. Come M. Francklin wele now walke in Pau'es
 And dyne togeather at the ordinary,
 And by my mans direction draw to the key,
 And with the tyde go down to Feuershame,
 Say M. Francklin shall it not be so?

Francklin. At your good pleasure sir,
 Ile beare you compayne. Exeunt.

Here enters Michaell at one doore.

Here enters Grene, Will, and Shakebag,
 at another doore.

Wil. Draw Shakbag, for hars that villaine Michael,

Gre. First Will lets heare what he can say,

Wil. Speak milkesope slaye, & never after speake.

Mic. For Gods sake sirs let me excuse my selfe.

For heare I sweare by heauen and earth and all,

I did performe the outmost of my task,

And left the dores vnbolted and vunlockt,

But see the chaunce Francklin and my master,

Were very late conferring in the porch,

And Francklin left his napkin where he sat,

With certain gould knit init, as he said

Being in bed, he did bethinke himselfe,

And comming down, he found the dores vnshut,

He lockt the gates, and brought away the keyes

For which offence my master rated me,

But now I am going to see what stode it is,

For with the tyde my M. will away.

Where you may frenshim well on Haynum downe,

A place well fitting such a stratageme.

Wil. Poor excuse hast somewhat molysied my choller,

Why now Greene tis better now noz ere it was,

Gre. But Michael is this trew?

Mic. As trew as I report it to be trew.

Shak. Then Michael this shall be your pennance,

To feast vs all at the Salutation,

Where we wil plat our purpose throughtly.

Gre. And Michael, you shal bear no newes of this tide
Because they two may be in Raynū down before your M.

Mic. Why Ile agree to any thing yowle haue me.
So you will except of my company. Exeunt.

Here enters Mosby.

Mos. Disturbed thoughts dryues me from company,
And dryes my marrow with their watchfulnes,
Continall trouble of my moody braine,
Fables my body by excelle of drinke,
And nippes me, as the bitter Northeast wind,
Doeth check the tender blosoms in the spring.
Well fares the man how ere his cates do taste
That tables not with soule suspition:
And he but pines amongst his delicats,
Whose troubled minde is stult with discontent.
My goulden time was when I had no gould,
Thought then I wanted, yet I slept secure,
My dayly toyle, begat me nights repose:
My nights repose made daylight fresh to me.
But since I climbd the toppe bough of the tree,
And sought to build my nest among the clouds.
Each gentle stary gaile doth shake my bed:
And makes me dread my downfall to the earth,
But whether doeth contemplation carry me.
The way I soke to finde where pleasure dwels,
Is hedged behinde me that I cannot back,
But needs must on, although to dangers gate:
Then Arden perish thou by that decree.
For Greene doth erre the land and weede thē vp,
To make my haruest nothing but pure corne.
And soz his paines Ile heave him vp a while,
And aftersmother him to haue his ware.
Such bees as Greene, must never live to sting.
Then is there Michael and the Painter to,
Chese actors to Ardens overthrow:
Who when they shall see me sit in Ardens seat,

They

of Feuershame.

They wil insult upon me for my mede,
Or fright me by detecting of his end.
Ile none of that, for I can cast a bone,
To make these cures pluck out each others throat,
And then am I sole ruler of mine owne:
Yet mistres Arden liues, but she's my selle,
And holy Churchrites makes vs two, bat one,
But what for that I may not trust you Ales,
You haue supplanted Arden for my sake,
And will ertirpen me to plant another:
Tis feareful sleeeping in a serpents bed.
And I wil cleanly rid my hands of her.

Here enters Aes.

But here she comes and I must flatter her.
How now Ales? what sad and passionat?
Make me pertaker of thy pensiuenes:
Fyre deuided burnes with lesser force.

Ales. But I will damne that fire in my breast.
Till by the force therof, my part consume, ah Hosbie.

Mos. Such depe pathaires lyke to a cannons burst,
Dischargde against a ruined wall,
Breakes my relenting hart in thousand pieces,
Wingentle Ales thy sorrow is my soze,
Thou knowest it wel, and tis thy pollicy,
To forge distressefull looks, to wound a breast,
Where lyes a hart, that dies where thou art sad,
It is not loue, that loues to anger loue.

Ales. It is not loue, that loues to murther loue.

Mos. How meane you that?

Ales. Thou knowest how dearly Arden loued me.

Mos. And then.

Ales. And then conceale the rest, for tis too bad,
Least that my words be carried with the wind.
And publisht in the world to both our shames,
I pray thee Hosbye let our springtime wither,
Our harvest els will yeald but lothsome weedes.

The Tragedy of M. Arden

Forget I pray the what hath past betwix vs,
For now I blushe and tremble at the thoughts,

Mos. What are you changde?

Ales I to my former happy lyfe againe.
From tytle of an odious strumpets name,
To honest Ardens wife, not Ardens honest wife,
Ha Mysbytis thou hast rised me of that,
And made me flaudrouous to all my kin:
Euen in my foreheade is thy name ingrauen,
Ameane Artificer, that lowe boorne name,
I was bewitched, woe worth the haples howze,
And all the causes that inchaunted me:

Mos. Nay if thou ban, let me breath curses sooth,
And if you stand so nicely at your fame:
Let me repent the credit I haue lost,
I haue neglected matters of impoſt,
That would haue staded me aboue thy state:
For slowde abuantages, and spurnd at time.
I Fortunes right hand Mysbie hath forſooke,
To take a wanton gigloote by the leſt,
I left the Mariage of an honest maid,
Whose dowry would haue weyed down all thy wealth,
Whose beauty and demianoſ farre exceeded theſe.

This certaine god I lost for changing bad,
And wrapt my credit in thy company.
I was bewitcht, that is no theame of thine,
And thou vnhallowed haſt enchaunted me:
But I will breake thyſpels, and ercirlimes,
And put another ſight vpon theſe eyes,
That ſhewed my hart, a rauen for a dowe.
Thou art not faire, I viud thee not till now.
Thou art not kinde, till now I knew the not.
And now the raine hath beaten of thy gilt,
Thy worthles copper ſhowes thee counterſet.
It grieues me not to ſee how foul thou art,
But maddes me that euer I thought thee faire,

Go

of Feuers bame.

Go get thēe gone, a copesmate for thy hyndes.

I am too god to be thy fauorite.

Ales. I now I see, and too soone find it frew,
Whiche often hath bee neould me by my frēnds:
That Hosbie loues me not but for my wealth,
Whiche too incredulus I nere beleued.

May heare me speake Hosbie a word or two,
Ile byte my tongue, if it speake bitterly:
Loke on me Hosby, or Ile kill my selfe,
Nothing shall hide me from thy stōmy loke:
If thou cry warre, there is no peace for me
I will do penance for offending the.
And burne this prayer booke, where I here vse,
The holy word that had conuerced me,
Hēe Hosbie I will feare away the leaues.
And al the leaues, and in this golden couer,
Shall thy sweete phrases, and thy letters dwell,
And thereon will I chiefly meditate,
And hould no other sect, but such devotion,
Wilt thou not loke: is all thy loue ouerwhelmde?
Wilt thou not heare: what malice stopes thine eares?
Why speaks thou not: what silence ties thy tongue?
Thou hast bene sighted, as the eagle is,
And heard as quickly as the fearefull hare:
And spoke as smoothly as an orator.
When I haue bid thee heare, or sēe, or speak.
And art thou sensible in none of these?
Waigh all thy god turns, with this little fault,
And I deserue not Hosbies muddy looks.
A fence of trouble is not thickned still,
Be cleare againe, Ile nere more trouble the.

Mos. O no, I am a base artificer,
My winges are seathred for a lowly flight,
Hosby fy no, not for a thousand pound,
Make loue to you, why tis vnpardonable,
We beggers must not breath where gentiles are.

Or whether I loue the smell of gunne powder,
Or dare abide the noise the dagge will make.
Or will not wincke at flashing of the fire.
I pray thee shakbag let this answer thee.
That I haue tooke moze purses in this down,
Then ere thou handledst pistols in thy life.

Sha. I happily thou hast pickt moze in a throng,
But shoud I bragge what booties I haue tooke,
I think the ouerplus thats moze then thine,
Would mount to a greater somme of money,
Then either thou, or all thy kinne are worth.
Zounds I hate them as I hate a toade,
That carry a muscado in their tongue.
And scarce a hurting weapon in their hand.

Wil. O Gréne, intollerable,
It is not for mine honor to beare this.
Why shakbag I did serue the King at Bulloyne,
And thou canst bragge of nothing that thou hast done.

Shak. Why so can Jack of Feuershame,
That sounded for a philope on the nose:
When he that gave it him hollowed in his eare.
And he supposed a Cannon bullet hit him.

Then they fight.

Grene. I pray you sirs list to Esops talk,
Whilest two stout dogs were stryving for a bone,
There comes a cur, and stole it from them both,
So while you stand striuing on these termes of manhood,
Arden escapes vs and deceau vs al.

Having forsworne it with such vehement oathes,
And at the instant so approued vpon her,

Fra. First did she cast her eyes down to the earth,
Watching the drops that fell amaine from thence,
Then softly drawes she forth her hand kercher,
And modestly she wypes her teare staind face:
Then hemd she out to cleare her voice shold seeme,
And with a maiesy addrest her selfe,
To encounter all their accusations.

Pardon me M. Arden I can no more:
This fighting at my hart, makes shorte my wynde.

Ard. Come we are almost now at Raynum dwyne,
Your pretty tale beguiles the weary way:
I would you were in state to tell it out.

Shak. Stand close Will I heare them cumming.

Here enters Lord Cheiny with his men.

Wil. Stand to it Shakbag, and be resolute,
Lord Che. Is it so neere night as it seemes,
Or wil this black faced cuening haue a showre?
What M. Arden, you are well met.

I haue longd this fortnights day to speake with you,
You are a stranger man in the ile of Shepny,

Ard. Your hono<sup>r</sup>s always bound to do you service,
Lord Che. Come you from London & nere a man with Ard My man's comming after, (you)
But her's my honest frend that came along with me.

Ard. I beseech your honor pardon me.
I haue made a promise to a gentle man,
My honest frend to meeete him at my house,
The occasion is great, or els would I wait on you.

Lord C. Will you come to morrow & dyne with me.
And bring your honest frend along with you:
I haue dyuers matters to talke with you about.

Arden. To morrow wele waite upon your honor,

Lord C. One of you staye my horse at the top of the hil
What black Will, for whose purse wait you?
Thou wilt be hanged in Kent, when all is done.

Wil. Not hanged, God save your honor.

I am your bedesman, bound to pray for you,

Lord C. I think thou nere saidest prayer in all thy lyfe,
One of you give him a crowne,
And sirra leane this kinde of lyfe.
If thou beeest tainted for a penny matter,
And come in question, surely thou wilt trusse.
Come M. Arden let vs be going,

Manet Black Wil & Shakbag.

Wil The Deuill break all your necks, at 4 myles end,
Zounds I could kill my selfe for very anger.
His Lordship chops me in, euen when
My dagge was leaueld at his hart.

I wold his crowne were molten down his throat,

Sha. Arden thou hast wondrous holye luck,
Did ever man escape as thou hast done.
Well Ile discharge my pistoll at the skye,
For by this bullet Arden might not die.

Here enters Greene.

Gre. What is he down, is he dispatcht?

Sha. I in health towards Feuershame, so shame vs all

Gre. The Deuill he is, why sirs how escapt he?

Will. Preserued, a figge, the L. Cheiny hath preserued
And bids him to a feast, to his house at Shozlow: (him)
But by the way, once more Ile meete with him,
And if all the Cheinies in the world say no,
Ile haue a bullet in his breast to morrow,
Therefore come Grene and let vs to Feuershame.

Gre. I and excuse our selues to mistres Arden,
Dhow shelle chace when she heares of this.

Sha. W<sup>t</sup>hy ile warrant you shel think we dare not doit

Wil. W<sup>t</sup>hy then let vs go, & tell her all the matter.
And plat the newes to cut him of to morrow. Exeunt.

Here enters Arden and his wife, Francklin and Michael.

Ard. H<sup>e</sup>re how the how<sup>r</sup>s the gardeant of heauens gate
Haue by their toyle remoued the darksome cloudes.
That Sol may wel deserue the trampled pace,
Wherin he wount to guide his golden ear,
The season fits, come Francklin, let's away.

Ales. I thought you did pretend some speciall hunt,
That made you thus cut shozte the time of rest.

Ard. It was no chace that made me rise so early,
But as I could thee yesternight to go to the Isle of Sheppy:
There to dine with my Lord Cheiny.
Foz so his hono<sup>r</sup> late commanded me.

Ales. I such kinde husbands seldome want excusis,
Home is a wilde Cat, to a wandring wit,
The time hath bene, would God it were not pass,
That hono<sup>r</sup>s tytle no<sup>r</sup> a Lords command,
Could once haue drawne you from these armes of mine,
But my deserts, or your deserues decay,
Or both, yet if trew loue may saue desert,
I merite stil to haue thy company.

Manet Michaell.

Mic. Ho faire whether after you,
For before you lyes, black Will and shakebag,
In the bōome close, to close for you,
Theyle be your ferrymen to long home,

Here enters the Painter.

But who is this the Painter, my corinal,
That wold nedes winne M. Susan.

Clark. How now Michael how doth my Mistresse,

Cla. Sick, of what disease?
 Mic. Of a great feare.
 Cla. A feare, of what?
 Mic. A great feuer.
 Cla. A feuer God forbidde.
 Mic. Yes faith, and of a lordaine too,
 As bigge as your selfe.
 Cla. O Michael the spleane prickles you.
 Go too, you carry an eye ouer mistres susan.
 Mic. I faith, to kepe her from the Painter.
 Cla. Why more from a Painter, then from a seruing creature like your selfe.
 Mic. Because you Painters make but a painting fabble of a pretty wench, and spoile her beauty with blotting.
 Cla. What meane you by that?
 Mic. Why that you Painters, paint lambes, in the lyning of wenches petticoats
 And we seruingmen put hornes to them, to make them become shæpe.
 Cla. Such another word wil cost you a cuffe or a knock
 Mic. What with a dagger made of a pensell?
 Faith is too weake,
 And therefore thou too weak to winne susan.
 Cla. Would susans loue lay vpon this stroke.
 Then he breakes Michaels head.
 Here enters Mosby Greene & Ales.
 Ales. Ile lay my lyfe, this is for susans loue,
 Stayd you behinde your M. to this end?
 Hauie you no other time to bable in
 But now when serious matters are in hand?
 Hay Clarke, hast thou done the thing thou promised?
 Cla. I heare it is, the very touch is death.
 Ales. Then this I hope, if all the rest do faile,
 Will catch M. Arden,
 And make him wise in death, that lived a foole.

Whyn shold he thrust his sickle in our corne,
Or what hath he to do with thee my loue?
Or gourne me that am to rule my selfe,
For sloth for credit sake I must leue thee.
Nay he must leue to live, that we may loue,
Nay live, may loue; for what is lyfe but loue?
And loue shall last as long as lyfe remaines,
And lyfe shall end, before my loue depart.

Mos. Whyn whats loue, without true constancy?
Lyke to a piller built of many stones:
Yet neither with good morter, well compact,
Nor semell, to fasten it in the ioynts.
But that it shakes with every blast of winde,
And being toucht, straight fallest vnto the earth,
And buries all his haughty pride in dust.
No let our loue be rockes of Addamant,
Which time nor place, nor tempest can a sander.

Gre. Mosbie leare protestations now,
And let vs bethinke vs what we haue to do:
Black Will and Shakebag I haue placed,

 He where he comes, to further my intent,
 M. Arden I am now bound to the ſea,
 By comming to you was about the plat of ground,
 Which wrongfully you detaine from me.
 Although the rent of it be very ſmall,
 Yet will it helpe my wife and children:
 Which here I leave in Feuerhame God knowes,
 Nedy and bare, for Chrifl's ſake let them haue it.

Ard. Francklin hearest thou this fellow ſpeake?

 For in thy discontent I finde a death,
 A death tormenting more then death it selfe.

Ales. Nay hadst thou loued me as thou doest pretend,

Wil. Sirra Græne when was I so long in killing a man.

Gre. I think we shall never do it.
Let vs give it ouer.

Sha. Nay Zounds wele kill him.
Though we be hangd at his doore for our labour.

Wil. Thou knowest Græne that I haue liued in London this twelue yers.

Wher I haue made some go vpon wodden legges,
For taking the wall on me,
Dyuers with siluer noses, for saying,
Wher goes blackwill.

I haue crackt as many blades,
As thou hast done Nutes.

Gre. O monstorous lye.

Will. Faith in a maner I haue.

 There dorst not a whores set vp, unlesse she haue agreed with me first, for opning her shoppes windowes.
 For a crosse worde of a Tapster,
 I haue pearced one barrell after another, with my dager,
 And held him by the eares till all his beare hath run out,
 In Temes stræte a brywers carte was lyke to haue runne
 ouer me, I made no more ado, but went to the clark and cut all the natches of his tales,
 and beat them about his head. (watch,
 I and my compayne haue taken the Constable from his
 And carried him about the fields on a colt staffe.
 I haue broken a Sariants head with his owne mace,
 And baid whome I list with my sword and buckler.
 All the tenpenny alehouse sould stand every morning,
 With a quart pot in his hand,

Here enters Ales and Michaell.

Gre. Yence Will, here comes M. Arden.
 Ales Ah gentle michaell art thou sure thei'r frends
 Mic. Why I saw them when they both shoke hands,
 When Hosbie bled, he euen wept for sorow:
 And raid on Francklin that was cause of all.
 No soner cams the Surgeon in at doores,
 But my M. looke to his purse, and gaue him money.
 And to conclude sent me to bring you word,
 That Hosbie, Francklin, Bradshaw, Adam swle,
 With divers of his neigbores, and his frends,
 Will come and sup with you at our house this night.
 Ales. Ah gentle Michaell, runne thou bak againe,
 And when my husband walkes into the faire,
 Bid Hosbie steale from him, and come to me.

And this night shal thou and Susan be made sure,
Mic. Ile go tell him.

Ales. And as thou goest, tell John Cooke of our guests,
And bid him lay it on, spare for no cost. Exit Michaell.

Wil. Nay and there be such cheere, we wil bid our selues
Mistres Arden, Dick Græne & I do meane to sup w<sup>t</sup> you,

Ales. And welcome shall you be, ah gentlemen,
How mist you of your purpose yesternight?

Gre. Twas long of shakē bag that valuckye villaine.
Sha. Thou doest me wrong, I did as much as any.

Wil. Nay then M. Ales, Ie tell you how it was,
Wher he shold haue lockt with both his hiltz,

He in a brauery florish over his head
With that comes Francklin at him lustely

And hurts the slaye, with that he slinks away,
Now his way had bene to haue come hand and seke,

one and two round at his costerd.
He lyke a soole beares his sword point halfe a yarde out:

If the devill come, and he haue no more strength then fence

He shall never be at me from this warde,
Ile stand to it, a buckler in a skilfull hand,

Is as god as a castell.

Nay tis better then a sconce, for I haue tryde it.
Holbie perceiving this, began to faint.

With that comes Arden with his arming sword,
And thrust him through the shoulder in a tryce.

Ales. I but I wonder why you both stode still.
Wil. Faith I was so amazed I could not strike.

Ales. Ah sirs had he yesternight bene slaine,
For every drop of his detested blode.

I would cramme in Angels in thy fist.
And kist thee too, and hugd thee in my armes.

But wherefore do you bring him hether now,
You haue giuen me my supper with his sight, (gone.
Mos. M. Arden me thinks your wife would haue me
Arden. No good M. Mosbie, women will be prating.
Ales bid him welcome, he and I are frends.
Ales You may inforce me to it, if you will.
But I had rather die then bid him welcome,
His company hath purchest me ill frends.
And therfore wil I neare frequent it more.
Mos. Oh how cunningly she can dissemble.
Ard. Now he is here you wil not serue me so.
Ales. I pray you be not angree or displeased
Ile bid him welcome seing youle haue it so,
You are welcome M. Mosbie Will you sit down.
Mos. I know I am welcome to your loving husband,
But for your selfe, you speake not from your hart.
Ales. And if I do not, sir think I haue cause.
Mos. Pardon me M. Arden, Ile away.
Ard. No good M. Mosbie.
Ales. We shal haue guests enough, thogh you go hence
Mos. I pray you M. Arden let me go.
Ard. I pray thes Mosbie let her prate her fill.
Ale. The dozes are open sir, you may be gone.
Mic. Nay thats a lye, for I haue lockt the dozes.
Ard. Hirra fetch me a cup of Wine.
Ile make them frends.
And gentle M. Ales, seing you are so stout,
You shal beginne, frowne not, Ile haue it so.
Ales I pray you meddle with that you haue to do.
Ard. Why Ales? how can I do too much for him,
Whose lyfe I haue endaungered without cause.
Ale. Tis true, & seing twas partly through my means
I am content to drinke to him for this once.
Here M. Mosbie, and I pray you hence forth,

And so to Flushing there is no staying here,

At Hittinburgh the watch was like to take me.

And had I not with my buckler couerd my head,

And run full blanck, at all aduentures,

I am sure I had nere gone further then that place,

Foz the Constable had 20 warrands to apprehend me,

Besides that, I robbed him and his Man once

at Gades hill,

Farewell England, Ile to Flushing now. Exit Will.

Here enters the Maior, Mos bye, Ale, Michaell,
Susan, and Bradshaw.

Maior. Come make haste & bring away the prisoners.

Bradshaw

of Feuersham.

Brad. M. Arden you are now going to God,
And I am by the law condemned to die.
About a letter I brought from M. Grene,
I pray you M. Arden speak the trueth,
Was I ever privie to your intent or no?

Ales What shold I say?
You brought me such a letter.
But I dare sweare thou knewest not the contents.
Leue now to trouble me with wooldly things.
And let me meditate vpon my saviour Christ,
Whose blode must saue me for the blode I shed,

Mos. How long shall I live in this hell of griece?
Convey me from the presence of that strumpet.

Ales. Ah but for thee I had never bene strumpet
What can not oathes and prote stations doe?
When men haue opportunity to woe.
I was too young to sound thy villanies.
But now I finde it, and repent to late.

Su. Ah gentle brother, wherefore shold I die.
I knew not of it, till the deed was don.

Mos. For thee I mourne more then for my selfe,
But let it suffice, I can not saue thee now,

Mic. And if your brother and my Missres.
Had not promised me you in marriage,
I had nere giuen consent to this somle deede.

Maior Leue to accuse each other now,
And listen to the sentence I shall giue.
Beare Mosbie and his sister to London straight,
Where they in smithfield must be executed.
Beare M. Arden unto Canterbury,
Where her sentence is she must be burnt.
Michaell and Bradshaw in Feuerhame must suffer death.

Ales Let my death make a mends for all my sinnes,

Mos. By upon women, this shall be my song.

But beare me hence, for I haue liued to long.

The Tragedy of M. Arden

Susan. Being no hope on earth, in heauen is my hope.
 Mic. Faith I care not saying I die with Susan.
 Brad. By blode be on his head that gave the sentence,
 Major To spedye execution with them all. Exeunt
 Heere enters Francklin.

Fran. Thus haue you seene the trues of Ardens death
 As for the Russins, Shakbag and blacke Will,
 The one tooke Sanctuary, and being sent soz out.
 Was murthered in Southwark, as he past
 To Grenewitch, where the Lord Protector lay.
 Black Will was burnt in flushing on a stage.
 Grene was hanged at Osbridge in Kent.
 The Painter fled, & how he dyed we know not.
 But this aboue the rest is to be noted,
 Arden lay murthered in that plot of ground,
 Which he by force and violence held from Rede,
 And in the grasse his bodyes print was seene,
 Two yeres and more after the døde was done
 Gentlemen we hope youle pardon this naked Tragedye,
 Wherin no fied points are foisted in,
 To make it gratiouse to the eare or eye.
 For simple trues is gratiouse enough:
 And needes no other points of glosing stusse.

FINIS.
