1862. 20 The first sense of Sorrow.
"The first sense of sorrow I ever knew, Steele says in the Tatler, was upon the death of my father, at which time I was not quite five years of age, but was rather amazed at what all the house meant, than possessed of a real understanding why nobody would play with us. I remember I went into the room where his body lay, and my mother sat weeping alone by it; I had my battledore in my hand, and fell a beating the coffin, and calling Papa, for, I know not how, I had some idea that he was locked up there. My mother caught me up in her arms, and, transported beyond all patience of the silent grief she was before in, almost smothered me in her embraces, and told me, in a flood of tears, 'Papa could not hear me, and would play with me no more, for they were going to put him underground, whence he would never come to us again.'"— ance for the purpose. This well-known occurrence took place in Ireland (at Castle-bar) during the year 1799.

"While this ceremony was proceeding, Kimlin, with a dogged resolution, listened in sullen silence to his accuser. The detail ended, Denis, turning upon the undaunted felon a look that would have quailed the stoutest heart, demanded to know the names and haunts of his companions, but the robber spoke not, and met the eye of his judge with a scowl of deadly hatred."—

- hoisting the signal for "boats to assist ship in distress with all speed." By this fatal accident upwards of 800 people were drowned, together with Admiral Kempenfeldt and most of his officers."—Captain Marryat.
1841. 468 Lord Anson's arrival at Spithead with his prizes, after his victorious action with the French fleet under the command of Mons. Jonquiere, off Cape Finisterre, on the 3rd of May, 1747. On the extreme right is a portrait of La Diamant of 66 guns, dismantled, with other prizes. The large ship is St. George, bearing the flag of Vice-Admiral Lord Anson, just having come to an anchor. The next ship, passing the Admiral, is a portrait of Le Serieux, Admiral Jonquiere's flag-ship. The next, half seen, is Defiance, 60 guns, fore top mast and bowsprit shot away, and on board of which his brave young captain—Grenville, was killed, gallantly defending his ship against a fearful odds of five sail of the line. The next large ship is the Devonshire, Rear-Admiral Warren, and between her and the spectator is the Mars, 74, hove to, whose barge is seen passing to the St. George. In the distance on the extreme left, crippled ships coming in from sea.
1842. 254 A squadron of Dutch men-of-war getting under weigh, with the Stadtholder's yacht in the foreground—olden time.

1845. 242 The Arrival of His Majesty the King of the French in Portsmouth Harbour, October 8, 1844. On the extreme left is Lord Wilton's yacht dressed with flags, and saluting; the next yacht, with the blue flag, is the Elizabeth, R. Wright, Esq., of Southampton; close to the Gomer is the Kestrel yacht, the Earl Yarborough, then Gomer; next Pluton, French war steamer; Victory, dressed and saluting; French yacht-brig La Reine Amélie; the Dockyard, etc.; and among the boats the city authorities of Portsmouth in their red robes, going to present their address to the King of the French.
- Old Palace, Croydon.*
1846. 296 Battle of Trafalgar: time 3h. 3 m. while Victory, Redoubtable, Temeraire, and Vanguard lay fighting, and grinding along side of each other, all four locked fast together; The Dingy being just then sent by Captain Hardy, with Lieut. Hills, to inform Vice-Admiral Collingwood of the death of Lord Nelson. On the left of the picture is the Royal Sovereign, with the Santa Anna (her prize); and behind is Rear-Admiral Dumanoir, running down the line, saluting all nations, while making his escape with five sail of the line.

11, Kent Terrace,
Regent's Park.
1860. 610 Lord Rodney's action with Count de Grasse, off Guadeloupe, 12th April, 1782. Rodney's ship "Formidable" is represented in the centre of the picture—having, by luffing up, just broke through the French line of battle, followed by the "Namur," "Duke St. Albans," and the remaining ships of his division. On the left is seen the rear of the British van; the enemy's ships are coming down in confusion before the wind, between the two British divisions.

1871. 108 A gallant rescue; naval incident of the French war.
While cruising on the Spanish coast in the frigate "Endymion," Captain the Hon. Sir Charles Paget described a French man-of-war in the last extremity. Sir Charles instantly bore down to assist his enemy, spite of the gale that was blowing, and 700 brave lives were saved. The "Endymion" herself being now in desperate peril, hauled to the wind, let go her starboard bower

5, Mary Place, Edinburgh.

1840. 510 Queen Elizabeth viewing the performance of the "Merry Wives of Windsor" in the Globe Theatre. "The tradition recorded by Rowe, that Queen Elizabeth commanded Shakespeare to show Falstaff in love, furnishes the historical foundation for the picture. The first rude building of the Globe, the public theatre, exclusively belonging to Shakespeare's company, is supposed to be represented. Those of the characters which belong to history are introduced without strict adherence to their relative ages. In the royal box, in attendance on the Queen, are the Earl of Leicester, in armour, the Earl of Essex, and Walsingham. Towards the foreground is Sir Walter Raleigh, in a light red dress, between whom and Shakespeare, who stands upon the landing-place at the end of the seats, are Spenser, his hands on his breast, the Earl of Southampton, Fletcher, and Beaumont. To the other side of Shakespeare are Ben Jonson, in a black doublet, Thomas Sackville, Earl of Dorset, and Dr. Dee, who addresses a youth. The group behind the figure of Shakespeare represents Cecil, Lord Burleigh, Mildred, his wife, and a son and daughter. In the line of seats before these, but farther from the spectator, stands Sir Philip Sidney, and higher, towards the left, Francis Bacon and Drake, Massinger, Harrington, etc. are meant to be represented by other figures."

The principal group in the picture represents the Neptune, English 98-gun ship, knocking away the main and mizen-masts of the Santissima Trinidad, Spanish four-decker of 136 guns, after having done the same to the Bucentaur of 84 guns, Vice-Admiral Ville-neuve, the French commander-in-chief. On the Nep-

- tune's* starboard bow are Nelson's ship the Victory, with the Redoubtable, Téméraire, and Fougueux, and the French 80-gun ship; Neptune, ahead of them, firing into the Victory and Téméraire. The ships astern of the English Neptune are the Leviathan, 74; next to her the Conqueror, 74, is seen hauled to the wind, firing into the Bucentaur, whose foremast is in the act of falling: beyond the Bucentaur the Britania, Ajax, Orion, etc., are seen coming down into action under all possible sail; whilst on the extreme right the French 74, Le Héros, the sternmost of the ten ships of the combined van, is lowering her boats to get her head round, previously to making off with other ships, under Rear Admiral Dumansire." — Vide James's Naval History.

"The arches of the Coliseum on the morning of a gladiatorial show in the reign of the Emperor Nero. A young barbarian slave is about to enter the arena to combat for the freedom of himself and his mother, the boon of emancipation being frequently accorded to a victorious gladiator. The "lanista," trainer and master of the young gladiator, is expatiating on the high muscular condition of his slave, who is eagerly scanned by the betting men of the period busily engaged in giving and taking the Odds on the contest. The armed female on the right illustrates the remarkable fact of women being allowed during Nero's reign to contend in these revolting spectacles." 1874. 518 "Iago. What, are you hurt, lieutenant?
Cassio. Aye, past all surgery, etc."

 778 Thomas Fagan. This extraordinary character was taken in a wood in Ireland, July, 1810, by a party of military, whose vigilance he had, from his great activity, eluded for a length of time; he had been about fourteen years concealed, and had attained every appearance of a wild man, being completely covered with hair. When taken, he refused almost every kind of clothing, and preferred animal food in its raw state. They captured him under the idea that he had been a deserter; and were on the march, with other men of that description, to the depôt in the Isle of Wight, when the sketch was made, 9th September, 1810, at Ripley, Surrey, while the party were halting at the White Horse public-house in that village. He was not proved a deserter, but most probably had been active in the rebellion of 1798, and had concealed himself in that state to evade the military.

Dionysos was the son of Zeus and Semele. He first united the savage tribes of India under one government: accomplishing this famous conquest without bloodshed, and instructing the people in the civilizing arts of agriculture, especially the culture of the vine, and of poetry. In order to reach India, he built a bridge over the Eu-

- phrates, but arrived at the Tigris, Zeus, his father, sent him a tiger, on whose back he safely passed it, as well as other impediments to his journey. In India he was everywhere received with acclamations by the people, who joyfully submitted to his wise and benevolent rule. Gifted by Zeus with immortality and perpetual youth, he was worshipped as a type of the ever-fresh and recuperative power of Nature by the people, whose happiness he had promoted.

Along uninterrupted series of fields, from which the grain had recently been reaped, lay between them and General Cope's position. Morn was already on the waters of the Forth to their right, and the mist was rolling in large masses over the marsh, and up to the crofts to their left; but it was not yet clear enough to admit of either army seeing the other."—Chambers.

- 434 Cimabue and Giotto. "A boy was tending his father's flock in the neighbourhood of Florence. His humble birth and poverty seemed likely to condemn him to an obscure and miserable life; but nature inspired him with that talent which afterwards made him one of the greatest ornaments of his country. Cimabue, happening to pass one day, surprised the boy sighing over a rude sketch which he had traced on a stone. The great man saw at the first glance what might one day become of the unknown shepherd. Cimabue felt instantly the desire to protect so happy a disposition; and being sure that he would leave to his country an heir worthy of his glory, he resolved to adopt this youth, a disciple of nature; and by doing so Cimabue acquired a new claim to the gratitude of Italy, which honours him as the restorer of painting and the master of Giotto."

- 519 Columbus asking bread and water for his child at the door of the convent of Santa Maria de Robida. "About half a league from Palos, on a solitary height, there stood, and stands at the present day, an ancient convent of Franciscan Friars, dedicated to Santa Maria de Robida. A stranger, travelling on foot, accompanied by a young boy, stopped one day at the gate of the convent, and asked a little bread and water for his child. While receiving the humble refreshment, the guardian of the convent, Friar Juan Perez de Marchena, happening to pass by, was struck by the appearance of the stranger, and observing from his air and accent that he was a foreigner, entered into conversation with him. That stranger was Columbus, accompanied by his young son, 1840. 404 Gil Blas introduces himself to Laura as his master, Don Mattias de Silva. "I threw myself in a transport at the feet of my nymph; and the better to imitate the beaus, pressed her in a petulant manner to make me happy. She seemed a little moved by my entreaties, but thought it was too soon to yield; therefore, pushing me gently from her, 'Hold,' said she, 'you are too forward, and have the air of a libertine; I am afraid you are no better than a downright rake.'" — Le Sage.

1841. 429 Mary, Queen of Scots, and her retinue returning from the chase to the castle of Stirling in 1562. This picture is intended to represent the young Queen of Scotland and her court soon after her return from France, when, in the words of Sir Walter Scott, "hunting, hawking, and other sports filled up the day, and music and dancing were the usual amusements of the evening." The Queen, mounted on her white palfrey, occupies the centre of the picture; on her right is her half brother, the Lord James Stuart, afterwards Earl of Murray and Regent of Scotland; immediately behind, in a dark dress, is Douglas, Earl of Morton, who succeeded Murray in the regency; then follow the ladies of the royal court, called, both in history and ballad, "the Queen's Maries," with Chatelet, the French cavalier and poet; the Queen's secretary, Maitland of Lethington, and the captain of the royal guard, and the men at arms. In the foreground is one of the Queen's falconers, carrying his tray of hawks, accompanied by Highland gillies with dead red deer and other spoils of the chase; the Queen's dwarf holds in the leash two of the royal stag-hounds; on the left of the picture is a group of the inhabitants of Stirling; the castle and palace of which are represented as they stood in the year 1562.

1841. 567 John Burnet, Esq., F.R.S.

1842. 103 Hagar and Ishmael. "And she departed and wandered in the wilderness of Beersheba and the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under the shrubs, etc." — Genesis.

491 Alfred dividing his last loaf with the pilgrim. "During King Alfred's concealment from the Danes a poor pilgrim knocked at his gate, and begged a morsel of food: the humane king called his queen, Elswitha, and desired her to give the poor man part of what provision there was in the house. The queen only finding one loaf, brought it to Alfred, to show how slender their store was: at the same time representing the distress the family would labour under should their followers return from their foraging unsuccessful. The king, not deterred by this scanty view from his charitable purpose, but rather internally rejoicing at this trial of his humanity, cheerfully gave the poor Christian one half of the loaf, etc."

1845. 523 The arrest of William Tell, for refusing to pay homage to a cap of Gessler's. "On the 18th of November, 1307, Herman Gessler, bailiff of Ari, among other indignities, had the audacity, in the public market of Altorp, to hang his cap upon a pole, and to enjoin the passengers to salute it, under pain of death. William Tell, of Bürglen, in the Canton of Uri, having disregarded this order, Gessler caused him to be arrested; but knowing his extraordinary skill as an archer, the tyrant, with the most refined cruelty, offered Tell his liberty, provided he would hit an apple on the head of his son at an hundred yards distance. Tell accomplished the feat, and afterwards roused his countrymen to throw off the yoke of Austria, and give freedom to Switzerland.

- (The exhibits from 1803 to 1805 seem to belong to Josiah Slater, and were it not for 1806, in which year a distinction is made, I should have put them under his name. J. W. Slater ends in 1820, and after that year the name is printed I. W. Slater. It is just possible that J. W. Slater was a brother of Josiah, and that Isaac W. Slater was the son of one of them.*
- In the early catalogues J and I are often used indiscriminately, so it is impossible to classify them properly. D. N. B., Bryan, and Redgrave give no assistance.)*

"The rage and jealousy of Venus imposes on the beautiful Psyche, as the punishment for her temerity, the necessity of descending to Erebus to obtain from Proserpine a portion of her charms, which was given to Psyche, inclosed in a casket accompanied by an injunction not to examine its mysterious contents; on her return to earth, her curiosity overcame her fears, and, seated on a rock, she opened the fatal box; but instead of aught which could charm or delight, a noxious vapour issued, which deprived her of sensation, and she sunk lifeless on the rock. Cupid, ever watchful over the destiny of his beloved Psyche, instantly flew to her assistance, and by his efforts, dictated by his love, recalled back her fleeting spirits to existence."—Apulcius.

1826. 869 Plans, elevations, etc., for completing the south side of Downing Place, and connecting the same with the new Council Office, the Board of Trade, and the Treasury by a triumphal arch. This arch, decorated with statues of His Majesty, the Duke of York, and the Duke of Wellington, the battle of Waterloo in basso-relievo, and other appropriate sculpture, is intended to perpetuate the military glory and invincible valour of Great Britain. The arch at the end of Downing Place, decorated with statues of his late Majesty, Lord Howard of Effingham, and Lord Nelson, with the defeat of the Spanish Armada and the Battle of Trafalgar represented in basso-relievo, is intended to record the glorious and ever memorable achievements of the British Navy. Downing Place, thus enlarged and enriched with national monuments, commemorative of the splendid successes of the British arms by sea and land, and containing likewise some of the principal public offices and the official residences of several of the great Officers of State, would form a suitable approach to the House of Lords from the new Palace in St. James's Park whenever His Majesty should be graciously pleased to open the Session of Parliament in his Royal Person, and the procession would be no longer compelled, as at present, to pass under the low arches and gloomy vaultings of the Horse Guards. At the south-east corner of Downing Street is the proposed new Home office, and southward the new Record office, chambers for the Judges, the Colonial office, Board of Control, etc.

- The exterior of these public buildings . . . might be connected together by a triumphal arch, etc. King Street is considerably widened and continued in a straight line towards Westminster abbey church, etc. The building at the northern extremity, containing the office of the Secretary of State for the Home department, is proposed to be new fronted and added to the Treasury chambers.
- 871 Model of part of the new State Paper office, etc.
1835. 975 An architectural sketch. (French quotation from Rousseau.) 1836. 951 A design for the improvement of the buildings adjacent to Westminster Hall, for two new Houses of Parliament, and Courts of Judicature, from the original drawings made in 1796.
- 952 A portfolio design for a British Senate House; from the original drawings made in Rome, 1779. This design was composed without regard to expense or limit as to space—in the gay morning of youthful fancy, amid all the wild imagination of an enthusiastic mind, animated by the contemplation of the majestic ruins of the sublime works of Imperial Rome.

1836. 953 A design for a new House of Lords, made in obedience to an order of a committee in 1794.

1851. 817 An awkward position. "Oliver Goldsmith, towards the close of 1762, removed to 'Merry Islington,' then a country village, though now swallowed up in omnivorous London. In this neighbourhood, he used to take his solitary rambles, sometimes extending his walks to the gardens of the White Conduit House, so famous among the essayists of the last century. While strolling one day in these gardens, he met three daughters of the family of a respectable tradesman, to whom he was under some obligation. With his prompt disposition to oblige, he conducted them about the garden, treated them to tea, and ran up a bill in the most open-handed manner imaginable; it was only when he came to pay, that he found himself in one of his old dilemmas,—he had not the wherewithal in his pocket. A scene of perplexity now took place between him and the waiter, in the midst of which came up some of his old acquaintances, in whose eyes he wished to stand particularly well.
 When, however, they had enjoyed their banter, the waiter was paid, and poor Goldsmith enabled to convey off the ladies with flying colours."—*Washington Ir-

1836. 290 The battle of Trafalgar. Painted for the Senior United Service Club.
The picture represents the centre of the combined fleet at half-past two o'clock, about an hour and a half after Lord Nelson received his death-wound. The Victory, the ship that bore his Lordship's flag, after sustaining a heavy fire from four of the enemy's ships, is in the act of disengaging herself from the Redoubtable, a French 74, at that time lashed alongside the Temeraire, a British 98, and at the moment the Fougueux, another French 74, became the prize of the latter. On the left of the spectator is Vice-Admiral Collingwood, in the Royal Sovereign, with her prize the Santa Ana, totally dismantled, and the other ships of the lee division. On the right of the Victory is the Bucentaure, a French 80, Admiral Villeneuve, with her main and mizens masts shot away, the Santissima Trinidad, a Spanish four-decker, both ships unmanageable wrecks, from the heavy raking fire of the Victory, Neptune, Leviathan, etc.

- 205 Dutch boats running into Saardam—Amsterdam in the distance.
- 254 The action and capture of the Spanish xebecque frigate El Gamo, of 32 guns and 319 men, commanded by Don Francesco de Torris, and H.M. sloop Speedy, of 14 four-pounders and 54 men, commanded by Lord Cochrane (now Earl Dundonald) off Barcelona on the 6th May, 1801.
- After a mutual chase and warm action, the El Gamo was carried by boarding; the commander of the Speedy (Lord Cochrane) ordering every soul in the brig to board, leaving only the surgeon, Mr. Guthrie, in charge of the helm. The Speedy had eight wounded and three killed; the El Gamo had 45 wounded and 14 killed, including the commander, Don Francesco de Torris. From the great disparity of force, this was justly considered one of the most gallant exploits of the last war.

1853. 57 H.M.S. "The Victory" (with the body of Nelson on board) towed into Gibraltar 28th of October, 1805, seven days after the battle of Trafalgar. "Battle stained and tempest tossed, a mighty ship comes on,
No shout of triumph welcomes her for the glorious victory won,
For she carries her dead admiral, killed in Trafalgar's Bay, And Nelson's flag hangs droopingly on that triumphant day.

Sail on, proud ship! thy battered hull proclaims thy place in war, A fitting bier for him who fell in the fight at Trafalgar."

"Disabled ships continued to arrive for several days, bringing with them the only four prizes rescued from the fury of the late gale. The anchorage became covered with ships. In the mole lay six dismasted hulls, whose battered sides, dismounted guns, and shattered ports presented unequivocal evidence of the brilliant part they had taken in the gloriously contested battle; a little beyond, the more recently arrived lay at their anchors. At this proud moment no shout of exultation was heard, no joyous felicitations were exchanged, for the lowered flag which waved on the Victory's mast marked where the mourned hero lay, and cast a deepened shade over the triumphant scene."—Lieut. Nicholas.

"There was no trace by which the name of the ship could be ascertained. The wreck had evidently drifted about for many months; clusters of shell-fish had fastened about it, and long seaweeds flaunted at its sides. But where, thought I, is the crew? Their struggle has long been over—they have gone down amidst the roar of the tempest—their bones lie whitening among the caverns of the deep.

Silence, oblivion, like the waves, have closed over them, and no one can tell the story of their end. What sighs have been wafted after that ship! what prayers offered up at the deserted fireside of home! How often has the mistress, the wife, the mother, pored over the daily news to catch some casual intelligence of this rover of the deep! How has expectation darkened into anxiety—anxiety into dread —and dread into despair!
Alas! not one memento shall ever return for love to cherish, all that shall ever be known, is, that she sailed from her port, and was never heard of more."—Washington Irving.

Dr. Cole then preached a furious sermon against him, which being concluded Cranmer knelt and began his own devotions; then rising, he exhorted the people to obey the king and queen, to love and live in charity one with the other; concluding with a confirmation of his faith. 'And now,' said he, 'I come to the great thing that troubleth my conscience, and that is the setting abroad of writings contrary to the truth, which I here renounce and refuse, and writ for fear of death. And forasmuch as my hand offended in writing contrary to my heart, therefore my hand shall first be punished; for if I come to the fire, it shall be first burned.' 1841. 507 The stolen interview of Charles 1st, when Prince of Wales, with the Infanta of Spain.
"The Infanta having gone one morning to the Casa de Campo to gather May dew, Charles rose with the sun, and, accompanied by Eudymion Porter, explored the house. Not finding La dame de ses pensées, he pursued his way into the orchard, where a wall and a double-locked and bolted door opposed his passage. The prince scaled the wall, and resolutely leaping from the height, hastened towards her. The old marquis, her guardian, falling on his knees, implored the prince

- to consider for a moment that the hoary head of his supplicant was at stake."—D'Israeli.

1866. 246 Stealing the Keys. "It was already day. In sooth we were in sad plighte; our poor father a prisoner in his own house, the which was in the hands of the brutal Round-head soldiery. No way was to free him, save by good fortune we mighte get the keys of his prison chamber before that the troopers should waken after their orgies. . . . This my sister took upon herself to do, our good, faithful Margery quaking in the doorway." 1867. 444 Nell Gwynne. "Unfit for further service, having given their best strength and often their very limbs in the late struggle between King and Parliament, the old soldiers were cast adrift to wander about in rags. Nell Gwynne, the orange girl, carrying her 1868. 639 An interrupted duel.

1869. 60 The Princess (afterwards Queen) Elizabeth obliged to attend mass by her sister Mary. "The Princess Elizabeth, Protestant heiress to the throne of England, for some time resolutely refused to attend mass, but was at length persuaded to accompany her sister to the Chapel Royal on the 8th of September, 1553, on the commemoration of the Nativity of the Virgin. The Spanish and French ambassadors, with others of her enemies, who were plotting to prevent the Princess's succession to the throne, hoped her behaviour would compromise her with the Queen; but altho' she is said to have yielded with a bad grace, and to have gone to the chapel with tokens of repugnance, she does not appear to have overstepped the bounds of prudence." 1870. 891 Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn observed by Queen Katharine. "Indeed, all this time there is no doubt but good Queen Katharine both heard by report, and perceived with her eyes, how the matter was framed against her, although she showed neither to Mistress Anne nor to the King any spark or kind of grudge or displeasure, but took and accepted all things in good part, and with wisdom and patience dissembling the same."

1871. 104 1, Langham Chambers.
The royal nursery, 1538. "The King's grace was well pleased to see his heir so goodly a child of his age, although the little Lady Elizabeth was considered worthy of the honour of being admitted to keep company with the young Prince Edward, her brother, her father took but little note of her."
1872. 111 Edward II and his favourite, Piers Gaveston. "Gaveston was not only the Adonis of the English Court, but remarkable for his knightly prowess, graceful manners, and sparkling wit. It was the latter qualification which rendered him peculiarly displeasing to the English nobles, whom he was accustomed to deride and mimic for the amusement of this thoughtless sovereign; nor was the queen exempted when he was disposed to display his sarcastic powers."

 to have inspired James with an unworthy jealousy, and to have caused him to form the resolution of keeping her single. In her childhood, however, she had been acquainted with Mr. William Seymour, the second son of Lord Beauchamp, and in 1609 they met again at Court; their early friendship quickly grew into love, and they were secretly married,

- but James never forgave her for this step; the youthful couple were separated and imprisoned, and the Lady Arabella, after in vain imploring for pardon, died in the Tower a pitiable lunatic, on the 27th of September, 1615.”

 a young lady whose charms instantly fixed his attention.
 She was dressed in green, and her gown was embroidered with violets. Golden locks waved over her shoulders.

"Her neck was well-formed, and her complexion animated by the tints of nature, which art vainly attempts to imitate. . . . She was not only magnificent, but elegant, in her dress, particularly in the ornaments of her head, and the manner of tying up her hair; and we 1875. 853 The 28th Regiment at Quatre Bras.

This regiment played a conspicuous part in the battle of Quatre Bras, June 16, 1815. Formed together with the Royals into square in a field of "particularly tall rye" (Siborne's Waterloo Campaign), it was repeatedly assaulted by the enemy's cavalry, Cuirassiers, and Polish Lancers, who closed a long series of unsuccessful attacks by a furious charge, simultaneously delivered against three faces of the square, where it was "mainly composed of the men of the 28th" (Siborne). The picture represents the last effort of the enemy at about 5 p.m.

The failure of these attempts to break their formation was productive of much levity on the part of some of the younger soldiers, instances of which are traditional in the regiment.

The mounted officer, Major, afterwards Sir Richard, Lluellyn, K.C.B., was severely wounded on the 18th at Waterloo.

- 1092 Historical picture of the embarkation of His Majesty George IV at Kingstown in 1821. All the leading figures are portraits—the great officers of State and of the Household, with the nobility and gentry, who surrounded the King on that memorable and important occasion. The subject is taken at the time His Majesty had received the address of the Lord Mayor and the citizens of Dublin on his departure; when the King graciously replied, "Gentlemen, I approached your shores with pleasure; I now quit them with regret!" The painter had been honoured with sittings from His Majesty, and all the personages represented in the picture. The new pier at Kingstown is shown as it then appeared. (I at first attempted to distinguish the miniatures from the oil paintings, but had to abandon the idea as impracticable. Several critics of this "Royal Academy Exhibitors" have suggested that some such distinction should have been made, but a careful comparison of the above list with the catalogues will show it could not be successfully carried out, owing to want of information in the catalogues themselves. Mr. Thorburn continued painting miniatures up to 1858, and then commenced painting in oils, although he still sent some miniatures after that date.)

Carolon, who was on a visit at his Lordship's, found himself greatly neglected, complained of it in the presence of the foreigner. 'When you play in as masterly a manner' (replied his Lordship) 'you shall not be overlooked.' Carolon wagered with the musician, that though he was almost a stranger to Italian music, yet he would follow him in any piece of music he played, and that he himself would afterwards play a voluntary, in which the Italian would not follow him. The proposal was acceded to, and Carolon was victorious."—Life of Carolon.
