Louisville Civil Service Board
Room 300
City Hall
Louisville, Kentucky.

Gentlemen:

I have been informed that the Chief of Public Safety Division, Civil Intelligence Section, SCAP, has made a request for an extension of my leave of absence for another year.

There is a lot of work remaining to be done with the Japanese Police System if the American Occupation is to be a continued success so that our recent war efforts and sacrifices will not have been in vain.

While my principal interest is, and, I suppose, always will be, with the Louisville Division of Police, I feel that it is my duty to assist in completing the program of reorganizing and establishing a police system in Japan comparable to the best American standards so that the United States occupation can continue to be the outstanding success that it is at the present time.

Therefore, it is requested that my present leave of absence from the Louisville Division of police be extended from 1 January 1948 to 1 January 1949.

Respectfully,

A. E. KIMBERLING,
Police Administrator.

Dear Sirs:

One of the greatest single factors in the demilitarisation and democratization of Japan is the reorganization of the Japanese Police System. Supreme Commander General MacArthur has taken a keen interest in the progress of this accomplishment. The manner in which the Japanese Police have affected the lives and behavior of the Japanese people is too extensive a subject to reiterate here.

The Public Safety Division considers itself fortunate and wishes to express gratitude to your Board for the valuable and capable services of Police Administrator A. E. Kimberling. From his rich experience in police work, he has displayed intelligent insight and versatile adaptability in administering the needs for the reorganization of the Japanese Police Force. However, many of the programs on which he is now engaged will be jeopardized unless the provisions of his leave of absence from the Louisville Police Department can be extended.

It is requested that the Louisville Civil Service Board extend the leave of absence of Police Administrator A. E. Kimberling from 1 January 1948 to 1 January 1949. It is earnestly hoped that your Board will favorably consider this appeal. It is felt that such extension will mean much to the success of the occupation and the actual democratization of Japan.

Very truly yours,

Memo to Col. Pulliam:

Could this letter be considered as a 90 day notice of termination of employment as of 15 October ---- with such termination NOT taking place if Louisville city officials approve an extension of leave of absence for Kimberling?

Kimberling is "on the spot" right now. He wants to stay another year, and will do so providing he gets an extension of leave of absence from Louisville. On the other hand, if they refuse to extend his leave of absence, he cannot afford to let our rules of prior notice of termination interfere with his return to the states. It would jeopardize his job there.

SUPREME COMMANDER FOR THE ALLIED POWERS

Public Safety Division

APO 500
25 July 1947

Honorable Kim Sigler
Governor, State of Michigan
Lansing, Michigan

Dear Governor:

The War Department, at our instance, has been requested to ask Captain Harold Mulbar of the Michigan State Police to accept a contract for service in Japan as a police administrator with the Public Safety Division, CIS, of G-2, General Headquarters of the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers.

The Public Safety Division is engaged in reorganizing the Japanese Police Force on a national level, a problem of paramount importance to the Allied Occupation. Captain Mulbar assisted former Commissioner Oscar Olander of your State Police in formulating a plan for a national rural police force for Japan. Mulbar is therefore well acquainted with the details of the plan and his services in connection with the organization of such a force would be highly desirable.

In view of the above, and the fact that the services of competent police administrators sufficiently active and capable are most difficult to obtain, it is requested that you permit Captain Mulbar to accept a contract without prejudice to his standing in Michigan State Police Force.

Without the assistance of competent people from home it will be a most difficult task to win the lasting peace for which our people fought so long and courageously. I believe that the creation of an adequate modern and democratic Japanese police force is one of the basic aspects of our problem in Japan.

Respectfully yours,

H. E. PULLIAM

APO 500
16 June 1947

Honorable Phil M. Donnelley
Governor of the State of Missouri
Jefferson City, Missouri

Dear Sir:

Captain Byron Engle of the Kansas City Police Department was granted leave of absence effective 26 August 1946, to permit assignment as a Police Administrator in the Public Safety Division of General MacArthur's staff.

Captain Engle has been assigned the task of preparing the curriculum and revitalizing the entire training school system for the training and re-training of Japans 93,000 civil police. This is a tremendous job and Captain Engle is doing an excellent piece of work.

As the expiration date of leave granted him approaches, we find that the program in which he plays such an important role, is in that phase where the continuation of his services is extremely vital to the occupation mission. His loss at this time would seriously effect the program and for all practical purposes bring to an abrupt halt an important element of the occupation.

In view of the above and what this program will mean to the Japanese nation, it is requested that Captain Engle's leave of absence be extended a year, from 26 August 1947 to 25 August 1948. I can assure you that your assistance in this matter will be helpful service to a worthy cause and greatly appreciated.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of December 24th. inquiring as to my interest in and availability for an assignment in Japan in furtherance of the mission of the Occupation Forces.

Naturally, I am pleased that such a distinguished legal schclar as Dean Pound should have recommended me for this assignment, and I am interested in it to the extent that it may be of importance in the development of the legal system of Japan.

Before any decision could be made, I would have to know something more about the nature of the work to be done and the responsibility for that work. Availability would depend on a number of factors, such as the period of time involved, when I would be expected to report, what arrangements I would be able to make for carrying on my work here, etc. My income as Dean and Professor of Law (including Summer School teaching) was $9,000.00 in 1946 and an increase for all University facuty is in prospect for this year.

I should be glad to receive further details about the assignment.

Sincerely yours,

Your letter of December 24, 1946, APO 500, has just been received after forwarding here.

I would, indeed, be much interested in an opportunity to study the legal system of the Imperial Japanese Government. My acceptance would be contingent on securing a leave of absence from the University of Nebraska, and also contingent on my being able to have my wife accompany me to Japan. Chief Prison Administrator,
CIS GHQ SCAP
APO 500, c/o Postmaster,
San Francisco, California

Dear Lewis:

I have thought a good deal about your letter of November 27 just received. I think the best men I can recommend to you are, first, Charles Sager Collier, Professor at George Washington University Law School. Collier would seem to me particularly suited for such a position. He graduated summa cum laude from Harvard College in 1911, studied at Paris in the École des sciences politiques, took the degree of LL.B. in 1915 and S.J.D. 1932 at the Harvard Law School, has taught in Columbia University Law School, practised with Rounds, Schurman and Dwight in New York for a time and since 1920 with the exception of a year when he was at Harvard as Thayer Teaching Fellow has been teaching Constitutional Law at George Washington University. He is a man of learning and experience, trained not only in Constitutional Law but in Anglo-American law generally, and with not a little knowledge of comparative law. Among other things, he has been special assistant to the Attorney-General of the United States since 1942.

Next I would suggest Clyde L. Colson, Professor of Law at the University of West Virginia. Colson is a Georgian, a graduate of Emory University, B.A. 1921 and of the Harvard Law School, LL.B. 1929, S.J.D. 1934. He taught law for a time at Emory University but has been a Professor of Law at West Virginia since 1935. He is an all round good lawyer with some knowledge of comparative law, and has been teaching constitutional law for some years. He is a man of much ability, capacity and energy.

Next, I would suggest Robert L. Howard, Professor of Law in the Law School

Declassified E.O. 12065 Section 3-402/NNDG NO. 775009

Law School of Harvard University of the University of Missouri. Howard is a graduate, A.B. 1917, A.M. 1918, LL.B. 1925 of the University of Missouri, and S.J.D. 1933 of Harvard. He taught economics and political science for a time at the University of Missouri, but since 1925 has been a Professor of Law in that institution. He has taught constitutional law and administrative law for more than ten years. He is a well trained lawyer, a man of much good sense and sound judgment and I am sure would do the work which you have in mind very well.

I can also recommend Robert H. Wettach, Dean of the Law School of the University of North Carolina. He is a graduate, A.B. 1913, M.A. 1914, LL.B. 1917 of the University of Pittsburgh, and S.J.D. 1921 of the Harvard Law School. He practised law in Pittsburgh for a time, but has been Professor of Law at North Carolina since 1921 and Dean since 1941. He has taught in summer sessions at Pittsburgh, Kansas, Minnesota, Northwestern, and Texas. He has been teaching constitutional law at North Carolina for more than ten years. He is well trained in law particularly in constitutional law and administrative law, and is a man of much ability and administrative capacity.

Also I can recommend Lester B. Orfield, 737 West Aldine, Chicago, Illinois. He is a graduate, A.B. 1924, LL.B. 1927, of the University of Minnesota, M.A. 1928 of Dune University, S.J.D. 1929 of the University of Michigan. He held the Brandeis Research Fellowship at the Harvard Law School 1933-34. He has practised in Minnesota, has held a Professorship of Law in the University of Nebraska for some years, was senior attorney of the Social Security Board 1936-37, and member of the United States Supreme Court Advisory Committee on Rules of Criminal Procedure in 1941. He has taught constitutional law, has written a good deal on criminal law and on different legal subjects, is author of a very good book on Criminal Appeals in America (1939) published by the National Conference of Judicial Councils, and of a book, From Arrest to Appeal, dealing with criminal procedure which is now in press. He is a man of energy, ability, and capacity and would fit the job you have in mind excellently.

I can recommend to you any of these men and should consider you fortunate if you succeeded in getting some one of them.

With cordial regards

Dear Lewis:

I appreciate very much your letter of 2 November. But it would be quite impossible for me to go to Japan next spring. I am already engaged to the Chinese government to go back to China as soon as I have finished my years teaching here and stay in China until the work which I began last summer is completed. I expect to retire from teaching at the end of this school year, but shall have my hands full as University Professor until some time in June. Then I must go at once to China, and as I have said, stay there until my work for the Ministry of Justice is completed. That may very likely take two or three years.

With cordial regards

Yours very truly,

Roscoe Pound

Dear Sir:

Your letter of 28 October has been received in which you make application for employment as a Police Investigator with the Public Safety Division.

Unfortunately, there are no vacancies open in this job classification at this time. Job vacancies will occur from time to time in the future. Sometimes they are filled by persons renewing their contracts, and sometimes they are filled by the placement of new personnel. We can not determine this in advance inasmuch as we cannot foresee whether or not our personnel expect to renew their contracts. Obviously, if a person has done a good job, we afford him the opportunity to renew his contract.

I have been visited several times by Mr. Graham who has spoken in your interest. He has recommended you highly.

Please feel assured that we shall keep your application on active file and shall give it careful consideration when the next vacancy occurs.

Police Organize a New System to Track Down Criminals.

Excellent Results of Constable L.-GEORGES BOUDRIAS Work.

Congratulations from Sheriff CINQ-MARS.

Yesterday afternoon, Constable L-Georges BOUDRIAS, in charge of the Bureau of Criminal Identification in the Police Department, gave an interesting lecture to the Police Department. This lecture, which many police agents attended, was under the auspices of Sheriff P ALFRED CINQ-MARS, president of the Police Board.

New Section.

Constable BOUDRIAS, who has been taking special courses in all phases of legal identification for a year, was introduced with quite appropriate terms by the deputy chief, J A PRUNIER, director of the Disciplinary Section. Mr PRUNIER informed the gathering that the organization of the new section, the Bureau of Identification, in the Police Department, as called for in the "Modus Operandi," was finally completed and had already given proof of its capacity.

Constable BOUDRIAS then explained that the new system is nothing more or less than a dividing into primary and secondary sections, etc, of the ways in which all the crimes which trouble humanity are committed.

A Recognized Fact.

"The basis of this system," declared the lecturer, "is the universally recognized fact that, as soon as criminals have accomplished a wicked deed in a certain manner, they always work the next time with the same "method of operation". For example, a bandit will specialize immediately in one of the 10 or 12 ways of breaking into a safe, and it will be impossible for him to change afterwards. Yet if he tries to change his method as the result of a meeting with another specialist, he loses his nerve and takes flight before accomplishing his crime, or else he returns fatally to his old habits. It is the same with all crimes."

"The new system," continued the lecturer, "which is a minature of the systems employed by Scotland Yard and other great centers, is made up of nearly a thousand sections and sub-sections. It is composed of an index of the names of the criminals who pass through the department," an index of their aliases, a very elaborate index of their criminal specialities (for example, burglary in restaurants only, always at the same time, in the same circumstances), an index of the manner in which each one operates (for example, breaking a pane of glass with a rubber hose), an index of the criminal's style (for example, passing himself off as a government veterinary to defraud inn-keepers), an index of the trade-mark of his activity (for example, cutting telephone wires), an index of the individual peculiarities of the criminals (such as scars, amputated fingers, crossed eyes, special way of walking, etc), an index of streets, and of course, the gallery of the criminals' photographs."

The lecturer touched upon certain technical details, and he insisted upon the co-operation of all members of the department. A master card is prepared, he said, including the photograph and all the peculiarities of each criminal, and it is put on view on the bulletin board in the guard room. In this way, all the policemen become thoroughly acquainted with the thieves of SHERBROOKE and vicinity and of every nook of the country, since there is a continual exchange of information between our police department and those of the principal centers in the country. The police are thus much better prepared to protect the lives and properties of our fellow citizens.

The "Spoken Portrait".

Constable BOURDIAS next said a few words about the "spoken portrait", which refers to a system of describing an individual that permits members of the Bureau of Identification to draw a caricature fairly closely resembling the criminal without ever having seen him. The lecturer said he was preparing a pamphlet on this system, a copy of which will be given to each member of the department.

The lecture ended with a striking example of the efficiency of this system. Recently, the authorities handed over to the Bureau of Identification a series of false checks which had been circulating through various business establishments in SHERBROOKE since 1934. A "Modus Operandi" of these frauds was prepared, and in a few days, Constable BOURDIAS sent back to Deputy Chief J A PRUNIER two photographs of criminals which Mr PRUNIER showed to the proprietors of the hotels and stores where the misdeeds had taken place. Through the medium of the Central Bureau of Identification of the Royal Constabulary in OTTAWA, the department learned that these two swindlers are at the present time in ALBERTA, and a warrant for their arrest has been initiated in ALBERTA.

Congratulations from M CINQ-MARS.

The president, Alfred CINQ-MARS, warmly congratulated and thanked the lecturer, and he stressed the importance of esprit de corps among members of the department. He requested the policemen to feel free to furnish the Bureau of Identification with all the information they could obtain in the course of their regular rounds, even observations which at first glance, might appear insignificant to them. He also suggested that they take note of the photographs and descriptions which are now regularly posted on the bulletin board in their quarters so that they can keep up-to-date on the identity of old offenders.

Shooting Match.

Mr. CINQ-MARS then announced to the agents that there will be a shooting match between the SHERBROOKE team and the MONTREAL team around the end of the month. The mayor and the council will be invited. At that time, Mr GARGURY, director of the Security League for the Province of QUEBEC, will come to present certificates to 25 policemen who completed courses at the Societe Ambulanciere (TN presumably, first aid courses) last autumn, and he will lecture on the league.

Deputy Chief PRUNIER congratulated the lecturer and warmly thanked President CINQ-MARS for his devotion to the police cause in SHERBROOKE and for the encouragement he has given it.

Efficient Service for the Police.

The city police Bureau of Identification had a visit yesterday from Under-inspector H R BUTCHERS of the Canadian Royal Constabulary, who is now in the process of making an inspection and indoctrination tour throughout the province. Mr BUTCHERS spent the day at the Bureau of Identification in the Municipal Police Headquarters and said that he was quite satisfied with the work to date in SHERBROOKE.

He examined the files containing thousands of finger prints and photographs and congratulated the chief of police and Agent Louis-Georges BOUDRIAS, in charge of the Department of Identification, for the excellent co-operation they have given the central bureau in OTTAWA.

Mr BUTCHERS will make an inspection tour of all police posts in the eastern cantons during the course of the week.

False checks, threatening letters, questionable receipts, questionable signatures in hotel registers, false signatures on bills of purchase by second-hand dealers, all are photographed in this manner. The original is filed, while the copies alone are sent to whom it may concern for investigation or otherwise. We invariably use 5 x 7 process film for such reproductions.

From time to time, letters suspected of containing secret messages are sent to us for study. A great many chemical products are employed, such as sympathetic or invisible inks. However, only professionals are up-to-date with this combination. Amateurs usually use slightly acidulous liquids such as juice from lemons, onions, apples, etc, or just milk or wine. When these liquids have dried, they are fairly invisible on certain sheets of paper. But placing a burning match nearby is enough to reveal the letters of the secret message, and the message is then developed permanently.

The heat test is the first one we apply when an ordinary document is entrusted to us. Then, if the test fails, we expose the document to ultra-violet rays, unfortunately, we do not yet have that apparatus in our (laboratory) equipment. The rays, which come from the WOOD lamp, are extremely useful for revealing fingerprints in certain cases, (on underwear, for instance), for revealing blood stains, etc, for betraying forgeries, (for example, when a signature has been "washed" to make way for a superimposed forged signature), etc.

Then the document is submitted to various other chemical tests. Below, (TN See photograph) a secret message is beginning to come through from the effects of concentrated ammonia, revealing that the "ink" was a solution of phenolphthalein.

(TN: Below the photograph:) When a fingerprint taken at the scene of a crime has uncovered the author of the crime, it is necessary to "mount" it in such a way that it can be exhibited in court as evidence toward conviction.

The hidden print is enlarged and pasted on a large white card. The identical print which was in the files, enlarged to the same proportions, is pasted on this same card. Next, numbered lines indicate all characteristic points found on the two prints. The lines must be very fine and as symmetrically arranged as possible, clearly indicating the characteristic without touching it.

The essential point in these "mountings" is that the judge and the jury may be able to verify at a single glance that the two prints mounted on the card are beyond a doubt identical.

In addition to the aforementioned enlargements, a copy, normal size, of the direct print and of the print as it was found at the scene of the crime must be added.

The above photograph shows the mounting being prepared for the case, "The King versus Arthur HAYWENDEN".

Meaning of "vimissures" unknown.)), rubber gloves, a Graflex Fingerprint Camera for fingerprints, brushes of chamois hair, a miniature camera with a synchronized electric reflecter, a tube of printer's ink, blanks for fingerprints, powders for hidden prints, a tripod, vaporizers, iron saw, pliers, hypodermic syringe to secure skin caught in the finger-tips of cadavers, (for example, Jean-Marie MASSE, alias LUPIEN, alias HOULE), etc.

No. 27679

(TN Above the photograph:) Below, the scene of a crime as it looks in many cases to the technician at the Legal Identity (Section).

Often, at first, the scene presents nothing abnormal. In the case illustrated by this photograph, we are concerned with a burglar who forced the bedroom window at Mrs Georges St PIERRE's home, 86 Court, Apt No 2, and let himself into the afore-said room, seized a satchel while Mrs St PIERRE was receiving company in her parlor, and escaped by the same window with the satchel, the contents of which he scattered in neighboring courtyards after having taken bank-notes to the amount of $40.00. (TN Decimal point has been removed by hole punched in paper.)

While a member of the police was making inquiries in the neighborhood, the Identity technician "powdered" the window, which permitted him to develop a partially hidden fingerprint at the exact spot indicated by the arrow. This print was removed by means of transparent "plaster", pasted on a little microscopic slide, and taken to the Identity laboratory.

Some time later, this print revealed that the author of this burglary, identical with about 20 others, committed at the same time, was named Arthur HAFFENDEN, arrested in 1939.

When HAFFENDEN was arrested, he denied having participated in these burglaries. However, when he was told that his fingerprints had betrayed him, he pleaded guilty. Sentence: three years in the penitentiary.

When a document is submitted for investigation to the Legal Identification Section, a letter of extortion for example, it is first photographed from two directions in the condition in which it was sent to us.

Next, the document is immediately submitted to investigation for fingerprints. The document in question is treated with nitrate of silver and, in this case, a strong electric light will reveal all hidden fingerprints which can be found; or else we use vapors of metallic iodine.

This process, which is the most popular here as well as at the central bureau in the Royal Constabulary at OTTAWA, it seems, consists of placing the document on a grill which rests an inch from the bottom base of a glass receiver. The bottom of this glass receiver is covered with metallic iodine.

The glass receiver is then lightly heated above an alcohol lamp, as the photograph below shows. The document must be watched closely, through the sides of the receiver, because a few seconds are enough to bring out any prints (and also certain invisible inks) which may be there. As soon as the prints are sufficiently clear, the document must be removed without delay. These prints are photographed; then the document is fixed flat between two sheets of transparent cellophane paper and filed according to the case number.

If the document in question must be returned to the police intact, the fingerprints and stains are made to disappear by heating it with vapors from a solution of ammonia. The document then becomes as white as when it was sent to us, and no one would guess that it had been submitted to investigation.

SUBJECT : Employment of Police Investigator.

THRU : Deputy Chief, Civil Intelligence Section.

TO : Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2.

1. Louis Georges Boudrias, Captain, Canadian Intelligence Corps, presently on loan from the Canadian Army to the Screening Section (position of chief), Washington Document Centre, Intelligence Branch, War Department, U. S. A., has made application for and is acceptable to the Public Safety Division, CIS, G-2, FEC, as a Police Investigator, CAF-9. In accepting this employment, applicant will be released from the Canadian Army. He states his intention to apply for United States citizenship.

2. Although applicant is not a United States citizen, his services are urgently requested. His education and experience cause him to be very highly qualified for the assignment to Japan as a Police Investigator. He is highly qualified in specialized police work as evidenced by documents to that effect, but is also familiar with Japan and the Japanese language, both oral and written. He was head of the Sherbrooke Criminal Investigation Bureau and Chief of the Bureau of Identification. He is efficient in written and spoken Japanese, as well as other languages, and appears to have done an excellent job in the collection of documents here in Japan in the early days of the Occupation. He appears to be intelligent, energetic and well qualified. This conclusion is reached by a review of documentary evidence and orally from various reliable sources who are personally acquainted with the work of the applicant. His qualifications cause him to be particularly desirable.

3. Although applicant is not a national of the United States, he is the national of a friendly nation whose common national interests - past, present and future - are interwoven with those of the United States probably as much or more than that of any other nation. His long experience and responsible position in the Intelligence Branch of the United States Army should be some indication of his quality of trust. However, insofar as security provisions are concerned and his assignment in the G-2 Section, there should be no hesitancy because no Police Investigator in the Public Safety Division has access to any classified material with the possible exception of a matter which may bear directly on his activity which is rare. Such instance would be seldom and remote from the usual type of security found in G-2 activity.

Efficient Service for the Police.

The city police Bureau of Identification had a visit yesterday from Under-inspector H R BUTCHERS of the Canadian Royal Constabulary, who is now in the process of making an inspection and indoctrination tour throughout the province. Mr BUTCHERS spent the day at the Bureau of Identification in the Municipal Police Headquarters and said that he was quite satisfied with the work to date in SHERBROOKE.

He examined the files containing thousands of finger prints and photographs and congratulated the chief of police and Agent Louis-Georges BOUDRIAS, in charge of the Department of Identification, for the excellent co-operation they have given the central bureau in OTTAWA.

Mr BUTCHERS will make an inspection tour of all police posts in the eastern cantons during the course of the week.

False checks, threatening letters, questionable receipts, questionable signatures in hotel registers, false signatures on bills of purchase by second-hand dealers, all are photographed in this manner. The original is filed, while the copies alone are sent to whom it may concern for investigation or otherwise. We invariably use 5 x 7 process film for such reproductions.

From time to time, letters suspected of containing secret messages are sent to us for study. A great many chemical products are employed, such as sympathetic or invisible inks. However, only professionals are up-to-date with this combination. Amateurs usually use slightly acidulous liquids such as juice from lemons, onions, apples, etc, or just milk or wine. When these liquids have dried, they are fairly invisible on certain sheets of paper. But placing a burning match nearby is enough to reveal the letters of the secret message, and the message is then developed permanently.

The heat test is the first one we apply when an ordinary document is entrusted to us. Then, if the test fails, we expose the document to ultra-violet rays, unfortunately, we do not yet have that apparatus in our (laboratory) equipment. The rays, which come from the WOOD lamp, are extremely useful for revealing fingerprints in certain cases, (on underwear, for instance), for revealing blood stains, etc, for betraying forgeries, (for example, when a signature has been "washed" to make way for a superimposed forged signature), etc.

Then the document is submitted to various other chemical tests. Below, (TN See photograph) a secret message is beginning to come through from the effects of concentrated ammonia, revealing that the "ink" was a solution of phenolphthalein.

(TN Below photograph:) The municipal legal identification (section) is able o photograph, lable, edit, and develop its own motion picture film as the above photograph shows.

Recently, a piece of film 400 feet long and double 8 mm, to prove the necessity of annexing COLLINSVILLE to SHERBROOKE, was completed in four days in our laboratories.

(TN Above the photographs:) The following are some examples of photographs which we have had taken for various reasons.

In the photographs below, the owner of the heel was discovered as well as the truck that made the tire tracks. A thumb print was taken from the windshield of the truck which revealed the author of burglaries at Sherbrooke Machineries. Result: plea of guilty. Five years!

Below that, the fetus after the ice was melted, as it was taken to the medico-legal expert for autopsy.
