American Sweet Pea Society.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Newport, R. I., July 15-16.

The Exhibition.

Ideal weather and visitors in goodly numbers attended the seventh annual convention and exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, held in the Casino, Newport, R. I., July 15-16, under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association. It was a wonderful exhibition, a marvel of beautiful coloring that a word picture cannot describe, and the general verdict, based upon the opinions of some of the best authorities is that a greater display of its kind has never been made in this country.

The veranda that led to the main entrance to the hall was a veritable sea of sweet pea blooms grown in tubs and rising majestically to a height of nine feet and six feet through. Pausing at the entrance, and looking across the hall, the exhibit of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., loomed up strikingly, compelling admiration at once. This display was the largest and the most meritorious in the show, covering 200 square feet of space, and said by authorities to be one of the finest sweet pea displays ever staged in the United States. In arrangement, it was most tasteful, every bunch of flowers and every trophy being easily seen. A background of black velvet, artistically draped with olive green, and embellished with tall trophies, brought out in their fullest splendor all of the best and new varieties of Spencers, over 100 varieties being used in the arrangement. Especially noticeable were Fiery Cross, Cherub, President, Illuminator, King White, Royal Purple, Robert Sydenham, Charm, Irish Belle, Empress Eugenie, George Herbert, Crimson Spencer, Hercules, Helen Grosvenor, Charles Foster, Margaret Madison and many others worthy of note. To George W. Kerr is due credit for the splendid arrangement of this display.

Another striking exhibit was that of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass., whose display occupied the entire theater stage. Against a background arranged with palms, bays and sweet peas in tubs, a fine display of Lilium myriophyllum made an exhibit in itself, and also assisted in making a splendid relief for other exhibits that occupied space at the side walls to the right and left of the entrance. Some of the larger exhibits that were in classes arranged for effect, together with the Burpee and Farquhar displays gave to the sides of the hall a beautiful appearance. The center of the hall was filled with three rows of tables and these were thickly covered with blooms in varied arrangement.

On the lower wide veranda were staged sweet peas in tubs, some table decorations and an exhibit by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., which attracted much attention. This consisted of a large and handsome collection of sweet peas of quality that were not staged for effect, and in charge of John D. Hay. Outstanding among the many varieties in this display were Constance Hinton, Royal Purple, Margaret Madison, Elfrida Pearson, Agri-cola, Irish Belle, Charles Foster and Afterglow; also a splendid showing of water lilies.

W. A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., was well represented by a handsome group arrangement of plants in variety near the entrance, and on the upper veranda were staged the mantle and table decorations and the displays of the amateur classes which completely filled both sides of the gallery. The displays in the amateur classes were well filled, many covering upwards of 400 square feet of table space. Many of the blooms shown were very fine, excelling all similar showings in past exhibitions of the society. The school children also came in strong for prizes offered by Mrs. E. B. Auchincloss.

Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif.
President American Sweet Pea Society.

A. T. Boddington, New York.
Treasurer American Sweet Pea Society.

Harry A. Bunyard, New York.
Secretary American Sweet Pea Society.

The Business Meeting.

A business meeting was held in one of the smaller rooms of the Casino during the afternoon. Wm. P. Sheffield welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Newport Garden Association and Wm. MacKay, president of the Newport Horticultural Society, followed in behalf of that organization. Lester L. Morse, president of the American Sweet Pea Society, followed and graciously thanked both for the cordial welcome extended to the visitors. The annual reports were read, including Prof. A. C. Beal's report on the trial grounds at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Papers of interest were followed by discussions.

The election of officers which followed resulted in the selection of the following to serve during the ensuing year: William Gray, Newport, R. I., president; George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa., vice-president; Harry A. Bunyard, New York, secretary; Arthur T. Boddington, New York, treasurer; John H. Pepper, New York, recording secretary; W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., member of executive committee.

Bar Harbor, Me., was selected as the place of the next annual meeting, Lenox, Mass., being second choice.

President Morse's Address.

When I was elected president of the American Sweet Pea Society a year ago, I hoped that the members and friends throughout the eastern states could be present with us for the regular annual convention. However, since Mr. Bunyard found it impossible to be present himself, and as it seems impossible to get a quorum of members present, we decided to have a separate meeting in conjunction with our exhibition.

On June 11 this exhibition was held in the Palace of Horticulture, at the Panama-Pacific exposition, and was a grand success. There were some 30 entries, representing amateurs, professional gardeners and seed growers. There were about 1,200 vases displayed, in fact nearly every new variety of Spencer was represented. The exposition officials recognized the day by sending their special commissioner, who presented me, as president, with a bronze tablet, in memory of the event and designated June 11 on all of their programmes as "Sweet Pea Day." They also furnished Cassasa's band, one of the best in the city and composed of 40 pieces, and we had a delightful concert in connection with the exhibition. We had expected to have the flowers exhibited only one day, but so great was the demand for more time, that we allowed the exhibition to stand three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and kept the room open until 10 o'clock at night, although the building is usually closed at 6 o'clock. It was impossible to estimate the number of visitors, but there were literally thousands upon thousands present and all seemed amazed at an exhibit of such beautiful and magnificent flowers. We allowed nothing to be displayed but sweet peas.

William Gray, Newport, R. I.
President-Elect American Sweet Pea Society.

Although California grows fully 95 per cent of all the sweet pea seed used in the world, flower shows and exhibitions are seldom given. Sweet peas first began to be grown for seed in about 1886, when there were only about seven varieties. The acreage has steadily increased until for the past five years there has been no less than 2,000 acres planted for sweet pea seed alone, and all in what is known as the Coast valleys, from San Francisco south to Los Angeles. It is safe to say that no less than one million pounds a year is the average yield of the California seed farms and these farms are represented by some 10 or 12 large seed growers.

A great many new varieties have been originated in California, but as the growers are largely wholesale dealers only, the novelties are introduced by seed dealers in other parts of the country. While probably only half of the acreage is devoted to Spencer varieties, the other half is made up largely of grandiflora named varieties and mixtures. These latter are still popular for large planters.

Sweet pea seed in California is usually planted in December and January and the fields are in full bloom in June. Harvest begins about August 1. A great deal of development work is still being done and the large seed farms operate very large areas of what they call "workshops" where selections made from crosses and hybrids are being tried out. A great deal of time is now being spent on the development of the early flowering or Christmas Spencer types. As these are very shy seeders they are not handled much as yet in a wholesale way. I estimate that fully 50 per cent of all the California crop goes to Great Britain; some 10 per cent goes to Germany and France and other European countries, and about 40 per cent is consumed at home.

My firm has quite an elaborate exhibition at the exposition grounds, where we are growing sweet peas on the cordon system, or the British exhibition plan. These plants were started in pots in the fall; the ground was prepared in the fall and by budding and proper feeding we have been able to grow some enormous blossoms, quite equal to any I have ever seen in Great Britain. Needless to say they are creating a great deal of interest.

We are hoping that the exhibition given last month is but the beginning of an annual sweet pea exhibit, which will be held as one of the features of the American Sweet Pea Society and will be under its auspices. All members of the American Sweet Pea Society are cordially invited to visit the seed farms should they ever be in California during the blossoming period, which begins about May 15 and ends July 1.

My best wishes to the society for a long and useful career.

President-Elect Gray.

President-elect Wm. Gray, of the American Sweet Pea Society, was born on the Arburthnot Estate, Mavis Bank, near Edinburgh, Scotland, April 20, 1874. His father was head gardener on this estate, and for several generations the profession of gardening has been followed from father to son. Mr. Gray came to America with his parents in 1883 and settled at Middletown, N. Y., his father having secured the position as florist at the State Hospital. After leaving school he served an apprenticeship under his father, and followed this up with an assistant gardener's experience on several private places around New York and in Newport, five years head gardener to Horace Russell, Southampton, L. I., and five years in his present position as head gardener to Mrs. W. B. Leeds, Newport, R. I.

Mr. Gray writes: "It is with a deep sense of the honor conferred upon me that I accept the office of president of the American Sweet Pea Society. Although our exhibitions, from a horticultural point of view, are now greater successes every year, I am sorry to say the financial end is not so bright, and I urgently appeal to the florist, private gardener and amateur to join the society and help the good work along. The private gardener is the one to encourage and build up the amateur interest in this country. In every community the gardener can interest some one in growing sweet peas by giving freely of his advice, and in this way great good would be accomplished, not only to the society, but to horticulture as well. Some of the prominent seed firms are not fully alive to the possibilities of this movement, and should give generously of their support to promote the work of the society. By all working together great good would be accomplished and the society put upon a basis where it would not be compelled to accept an invitation from another horticultural body to hold its exhibitions. The convention should, in my mind, be made up of delegates duly appointed from the different horticultural societies and instructed by a vote of their society as to the best place and time to hold the exhibitions. In this way a time and place could be arranged that would be satisfactory to the majority. I promise to do all I can to prove worthy of the honor conferred upon me."

Convention Breezes.

The exhibits of Percy Brightman, Newport, in the amateur classes were commendable. His blooms were all well staged and he captured five first prizes and a special silver medal awarded for excellence of exhibit.

The table and mantel decorations and all exhibits staged for effect were invariably well done and of high order.

A large vase of the hybrid tea rose, Ophelia, shown by Mrs. M. F. Plant (Ernest Robinson, Gr.), was superb.

The new president, William Gray, was showered with congratulations and good wishes.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club of Boston were the guests of the Newport Horticultural Society, being met at the train and taken to the beach for a shore dinner, followed by an automobile ride around the ocean drive.

It is largely due to the untiring efforts of Secretary Harry Bunyard and Show Manager Alexander MacLellan that everything went so smoothly, and much credit is due both of these gentlemen.

It surely must have been a keen disappointment to the Newport gardeners not to be able to compete more fully than they did. The fog was a severe handicap for them, or otherwise they would have been in strong. As it was, they swallowed their chagrin and assumed a good spirit all round, and in classes that were arranged for effect they showed in their exhibits both skill and artistic arrangement of high order, which had much to do in adding splendor to the show.

The Pandanus.

Pandanus in variety comprise another group of decorative subjects that are well known to the trade and disposed of in large quantities, and the most important to the trade grower are the two old standbys, Pandanus Veitchii and P. utilis.

These graceful plants have had their ups and downs in popular favor, though possibly through no special fault on the part of the plants, but rather from faulty handling and treatment. In the first place, no pandanus should be potted so low in the pot that the soil completely covers the base of the plant, for such potting simply smothers the plant and encourages stem-rot after the plant reaches the ultimate consumer, the latter frequently encouraging the process by systematic overwatering.

Secondly, pandanus require light and air throughout the day, while enjoying a night temperature of 60° to 65°. Thorough syringing is required during the summer months to keep down such pests as red spider and thrips, but as the nights grow cooler it is well to get the foliage dry before nightfall.

PROPAGATION.

As to propagation, there is only one method for P. Veitchii, and that is by means of cuttings formed from the small shoots that appear around the base of the plants, these being preferably taken off with a heel of the old wood at the base of the cutting, and in a warm house will root at any season when placed in sand and not given too much water.

P. utilis is increased by means of those singular compound seeds that are imported from the tropics, one seed or nut sometimes producing only one plant, and at other times may give half a dozen, much depending upon the condition in which the quite tender, requiring a warm house and careful watering, but once well rooted the young plants soon go ahead, but remain rather impatient to over-watering at all times.

New Orleans Horticultural Society.

The annual meeting was held in the Association of Commerce rooms, July 15, at 8 p. m., P. A. Chopin, presiding; E. Farley, vice-president, and C. R. Panter, secretary. There were 27 members present. After reading of the minutes the committee on annual outing, consisting of H. Scheuermann, H. Kraak and P. Abele, reported that they had succeeded in getting the members to bring their wives and families on the outing on the Steamer Hanover. There were about fifty members with their families who took advantage of this pleasurable trip. The report of the committee was received, and the members tendered them a vote of thanks.

The committee on flower show presented the final report showing a profit of $150, which was turned over to the committee of ladies representing the city beautiful movement—this amount to help them in a worthy cause—the beautifying of New Orleans.

The secretary presented the annual report, showing a substantial cash balance in the hands of the treasurer and $600 invested in state bonds.

Election of officers then took place. H. Scheuermann, of the Orchid Store, was unanimously elected president; J. Bollwinkle, well known seedsman, vice-president; Chas. R. Panter, re-elected secretary to serve his thirteenth term; J. Eblen, re-elected treasurer for the thirty-first term. The members then adjourned to the Cosmo cafe, where Caterer Jos. Kieffer had prepared a tempting repast.

Appropriate remarks were made by P. A. Chopin, P. Abele, and E. Baker, the first president of the society, read several verses of poetry which he had prepared for the occasion, which follow. The newly elected officers made appropriate remarks.

From the time it began
With just a modest plan
To interest folks in flowers,
To add grace and good taste
To each home and each place
And employ the idle hours—
Altogether within the bounds of propriety,
The New Orleans Horticultural Society.

'Tis true it has given to city and state,
Without any reward worked early and late
To bring forth things of beauty,
To have brightness and cheer
To drive off dullness and care,
For this it considered a duty—
Thus adding a charming variety,
The New Orleans Horticultural Society.

It's shows have been fine
And first class in their line,
Great pleasure have given to many,
Where prize flowers abound
From ceiling to ground.
As to small ones, there haven't been any—
Without any attempt at notoriety,
The New Orleans Horticultural Society.

It's not labored in vain,
For already its fame
Has spread far and wide in the nation,
For new flowers and new forms,
Like a rose without thorns,
Thus aiding in nature's creation—
All this in the strictest sobriety,
The New Orleans Horticultural Society.

When the tangled cobweb pulls
The cornflower's cap awry,
And the lilies tall lean over the wall
To bow to the butterfly,
It is July.

THE ROSE.

Indoor Planting.

During the month of June a great amount of our forcing roses are planted; perhaps June planting is the practice in the eastern states more so than in the middle or western localities, as there are so many small ranges, and the climatic conditions also differ. Then again below the Mason and Dixon line, the month of June is by far the best month in the year of the warm weather months, and the grower seldom throws out anything until after June 20, and this holds true in many other sections also.

However, everything should be in readiness to rush the planting along now. The houses to be planted should be emptied and thoroughly cleaned. If raised benches are used, they should be strongly repaired where necessary, and everything put into first class shape. The benches should be washed off with the hose and given a good coat of lime wash to which has been added a generous amount of sulphur. After they are dry, a sprinkling of straw should be placed in the bottom of the bench to keep the soil from sifting through the cracks in the bottom. Five inches of soil should be used, firmly packed, and the sides of the bench should be six inches inside. This will leave an inch of siding above the soil, which, if packed firmly, will settle very little afterwards.

Never plant in soil that is wet; great care should be taken to have the soil thoroughly mixed and well broken up. A generous sprinkling of a good grade of finely ground bone, mixed with the soil as it is being brought into the houses, will be greatly beneficial to the plants, as it will begin to act about the time the young stock begins to take hold. About a peck or a little more to 400 square feet of bench surface will be about the proportion of bone to use.

If grafted plants are used, look carefully at the union and plant nothing that is not firmly joined at the splice; also see that the raffia is removed and that it does not cut into the bark; 15 inches in the rows is about the proper spacing for most all of the forcing varieties, except American Beauty or Radiance. Prince d'Arenberg will also do better planted 18 inches apart, as this variety grows exceptionally strong and is of the spreading type. Four rows to a four-foot table will handle well, bringing the outside rows about five inches from the edge of the bed. Grafted plants should be planted deep enough to bring the splice or union below the surface of the soil after the beds have been leveled. We prefer to pack the soil firmly with a billet of wood or rammers for about five inches surrounding the plants, leaving a depression at each plant for water, and this we leave until the plants show some growth in their new quarters. Then we level and cultivate every week. Be sure that the ball of the plant is wet when planting, and water liberally after planting; also keep the soil between the rows dampened, but not soaked, otherwise there will not be enough humidity in the atmosphere of the house to promote growth of the right kind.

The houses should be sprayed early on hot, bright days, and again in the early afternoons, and it will be found advisable to stake and tie the houses as they are planted, completing the task as we go along. Any of the young plants that are found to be burning from a bad light in the roof should be protected; the burning spot can easily be detected by holding a piece of paper over the burned plants, and with a pencil brush, lashed to a long rod, it can be painted out with a brush-full of linseed oil slightly colored with lead. You may rest assured that plants that are burning in this way will make very slow headway, as sometimes an area of six or seven feet is burned by one bad glass during the sun travel across the roof.

Of course, there are a great many plants that are being carried over from year to year that will require careful handling, and as this work is necessarily slow if one has several houses to prune and top dress, the work should be begun in good season. The Killarneys can be started by the first week of July, and the starting really means withholding the water and spraying every day, letting the soil dry out gradually and the wood ripen slowly. Two weeks of this and one can start pruning. Prune within about 18 inches to two feet of the ground, according to the height of the good wood found in the plants, or even higher if the lower eyes are dusty looking and the wood seems too old and hard. The best wood to prune back to will be fresh-looking, with plump eyes and smooth bark. And only experience will make it possible for the grower to prune properly, as only general directions can be given on paper. If the plants are only one year in the beds, the soil need not be renewed. Prune and tie carefully and give the plants a good allowance of bone, and cultivate it into the soil, and water rather sparingly for the first two or three weeks, but spray overhead frequently, preferably early in the morning and at about 4 p. m., not in the hottest part of the day, as a bad case of scalded foliage will be the result.

Richmond will require at least three weeks of drying before pruning, and can as a rule be pruned much harder; also, all roses of this type. Keep the walks dampened and reduce the air towards night, as the stock will do much better than by leaving the ventilators wide open, outside of the risk one runs from sudden storms that may strike at any time during the summer. Do not leave the end doors open at any time, and avoid draughts summer or winter in the houses.

Stock being carried over the third season should have from two to three inches of the old soil removed and replaced with fresh soil, one part cow manure and three parts good sod soil, with the addition of bone meal or ground bone, allowing a handful to each plant. E.

The Osage Orange as a Dye-Stuff.

It will interest our western and southwestern friends to learn that the time is coming when the Osage orange can be put to a much more profitable use than as a mere hedge plant, but the new idea will be no bar to its continued use in hedges.

F. W. Kressman, a government chemist, recently stated before the American Leather Chemists' Association at Atlantic City, that the Osage orange tree is as prolific in properties necessary for manufacture of dyes for leather as fustic. Fustic wood is imported from the East Indies, the minimum market price before the war began being $18 to $20 per ton, which has now been doubled. It was stated at the convention that Osage orange can be shipped from Texas and Oklahoma to middle Atlantic ports for $10 to $14 per ton. Federal chemists state that the dye is in every respect as good as that obtained from fustic. We believe that fustic dye is used in other than the leather industry. A. F. F.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Growing Exhibition Blooms.

The plants being grown for large exhibition specimens will require lots of care from now on, and to be successful with them there must not be any let-up in the work of attending to their wants. They should now be ready for the final potting, which if not finished up by the first of July, valuable time is being lost. The size and condition of the plants at time of potting should govern the selection as to the size of pots or tubs for this final potting. Good, strong plants, well furnished with branches and healthy foliage, now in 8-inch or 10-inch pots, can stand being shifted into pots or tubs 14 inches to 18 inches in diameter when grown one plant to the pot, and if two and three plants to the pot, a larger size can be used, but it should be borne in mind that it is not the large size of the pots that will make the fine specimens, and if the plants are not in vigorous growing condition, with lots of healthy roots at time of potting, it is safest to use smaller size pots rather than pot into extra large pots containing too much soil for the plants to safely take care of. There is a great deal of difference in the growth of the plants, even though of the same variety. Out of six or eight plants, there are some that go ahead and respond to the culture treatment much better than the others and make large plants in considerably shorter time; these are the plants that should go into the larger size pots or tubs.

Two very important items to arrange for at the final potting of these plants is a live, rich soil and plenty of drainage in the pots. Use plenty of broken pieces of pots over the holes in the bottom for drainage, and over these some well rotted manure. The compost best suited for these large chrysanthemum plants is three parts coarse sod loam and one part well rotted manure; to this can be added (when procurable) a liberal amount of leaf mould, sharp, clean sand, bone-meal, and a sprinkling of soot and charcoal. It is most important, especially with the final potting of these plants, that they be potted firmly so as to encourage a short, firm, sturdy growth. Fill in the soil well around the ball of the plant to within two or three inches from the top of the pots, leaving this for top dressing later on as the plants become established. After potting, extra care must be exercised in the watering of the plants, watering sparingly until the roots get well hold of the soil, after which they require a liberal amount of water and must not be allowed to suffer for the want of it. Syringe two or three times a day on bright days and dampen around where the plants are standing to maintain moist growing conditions all the time.

In this section of the country (Illinois) we have learned from experience that it is better to keep these large specimens entirely indoors where we have them under our control all the time, rather than put them outside, exposed to the heavy rain and wind storms, grasshoppers and other insects. Another very important matter is to give them the best bench on the place, where they will get plenty of light and all the air possible during the very hot weather, and do not overlook the necessary attention as regards supports; the branches will soon be lengthening out considerably, and must be supported to guard against being broken. It is also well to bear in mind that training can commence from the very start, so that when any supports are put to the plants the object of the trained plant should always be held in view.

The plants of the early planted single stem cut flower stock being grown for exhibition are now growing vigorously, requiring constant attention in caring for their needs. They should be properly staked and supported and the sideshoots rubbed out as soon as large enough to properly handle. Most of these plants are now setting their summer bud, which must be removed when large enough to do so safely. This bud has a growth on each side of it, and one of these growths should be removed with the bud, and the other allowed to go on to make the growth. Some of the varieties are already throwing up a number of suckers at the stool of the plant, and these also must be removed, being careful not to cut the plant's roots when doing the work.

One very important point to be sure of in connection with this class of stock is to have the soil in the beds firm; if it is soft and spongy the plants will make a soft spindly growth, finishing up with long-neck flowers. What is needful is to encourage a short-jointed, sturdy growth. The soil of the beds is now getting well filled with roots, which means that the plants must not suffer for water, and they require copious syringings daily to keep the foliage in a luxuriant state.

As is advised here for the exhibition stock, so it is necessary with the early planted commercial stock, and the later planted stock will need attention to clear the beds of weeds and even up the surface, watching closely the condition of the soil for watering. The plants of the late varieties still in pots, being brought along for planting the early part of July, must not be neglected in any way. These young plants in pots require very frequent waterings and syringings to keep them in a growing condition.

It is time the pompon and single varieties were planted in their permanent quarters. One of the things the grower must look out for with these varieties is not to give them too strong compost or the sprays will be long-jointed with weak stems. Another important item is to be sure there is enough head room to the bench to safely carry the plants without them getting up in the glass. Most of this class of plants are grown in the nearly natural state, but if fine, long-stemmed sprays are wanted, the plants should only be allowed to carry three or four shoots. Do not neglect the regular spraying to keep down the insects of all kinds, which will quickly put in their appearance if this work is not attended to. C. W. JOHNSON.

Eelworm, Clubroot, Gallworm.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise what difference there is in eelworm, clubroot and gallworm, to which rose growers frequently refer, and whether it is advisable to plant roses infested with any of these.

Pennsylvania. C. W.

Eelworm is a term applied to organisms belonging to the great class, nematoda. These organisms are often, and most properly, called nematodes. Eelworm, therefore, is a general term; any eelworm is a nematode. I have suggested, in this connection, the substantive word nema as being short and capable of linguistic modifications that recommend it. Thus we might derive from it the useful verb "to nematise," meaning to infect with nemas, and thence the adjective "nematized" and the substantive nematizing, etc. Also, by appropriate prefixes, another group of useful, though more or less technical, words suggest themselves, such as: phytonema, zoonema, geonema, hydronema, and very many others. The word nema, however, does not occur in the dictionaries. The word nematode has very little to recommend it philologically. It is badly derived from nematoidea, a word correctly derived from the Greek, meaning "like a thread." This latter term had its origin in the fact that the organisms to which it is applied are relatively long and slender, like a thread, though most of them that attack plants are microscopic or nearly so. "Nematodes and Their Relationships," a pamphlet from the yearbook of the United States department of agriculture for 1914, gives a further explanation of the terms eelworm and nematode.

Clubfoot is a name applied to diseases which cause misshapen roots—especially to that attacking the mustard or cabbage family. The disease differs completely from any caused by nematodes, though there is a certain superficial resemblance. The organism, Plasmodiophora brassicae, Wor., which causes this disease, is a vegetable organism of very low form, belonging to the myxomycetes. The myxomycetes are regarded by some naturalists as being animal organisms.

Gallworm is a species of nematode, Heterodera radicolica, Greef, and is fully described in the pamphlet mentioned above. It attacks several hundred kinds of plants, among them most of our cultivated plants, including roses. It occurs in tropical and mild temperature regions throughout the world, and causes losses amounting to millions of dollars annually.

Whether it is advisable to plant roses infested with this latter disease is a question that can hardly be answered simply by "yes" or "no," though in the vast majority of cases the answer should be "no; it is not advisable." If there is a region where the soil is already thoroughly infested with gallworm, and where the inhabitants, either through ignorance, carelessness or folly, are taking no precautions to reduce the amount of gallworm, roses infested with gallworm might be planted out with no economic offense against the inhabitants of the region. The ethics of the matter I must leave you to work out as best you can. Except in some such case as that mentioned, it would not be advisable to plant out roses infested with a disease of so serious a nature as that caused by the gallworm.

OBITUARY.

Richard James Groves.

Richard James Groves, for 50 years engaged in the florist business at Atchison, Kan., and the oldest florist in that state, died at his residence in that city, July 17, aged 83 years. He was born in Bromsgrove, England, and came to America in 1857, locating in Kansas in 1861.

In 1865 Mr. Groves established the present floral business now operated at 1018 North Third street, Atchison. He learned the florist's trade in England, having been a florist there 14 years, and he got his start in Atchison in a peculiar way. There were only three florists in the state at that time and two of them had greenhouses in Leavenworth. The wife of one of them used to drive to Atchison with a spring wagon full of flowers, and return next day with the wagon empty. She sold out on one visit to O. C. Hager, who was then operating a restaurant. The rats ate all the plants off during the night, and next day Mr. Groves happened to be passing when Hager was throwing them out. One plant, a rose, looked a little better than the rest; Groves paid him 10 cents for it, and took it home, and this was the foundation of the present modern and commodious Groves' greenhouses. On July 6 of this year Mr. Groves turned his business over to his daughters, and the name was changed from Groves' Greenhouse to The Groves Floral Co. The business will be conducted in the future by Miss Marian Groves and Miss Clara Groves, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Groves.

Mrs. Sabina Louise Mallon.

Mrs. Sabina Louise Mallon, wife of Peter Mallon, a well-known florist of Brooklyn, N. Y., died at her home in that city, July 15, aged 64 years. Mrs. Mallon was born in Brooklyn, her maiden name being McDonald. Her father, Thomas McDonald, was at one time captain of the constabulary of Tipperary, Ireland. She had for years been an attendant at St. Francis Xavier's church (R. C.), of Brooklyn and was one of the founders of the Immaculate Conception Day Nursery. She is survived by her husband, two sons and two daughters. One son, William H., is associated with his father in the retail florist business, the other, Peter, Jr., is employed in Prospect park. The daughters are Miss Anna L. Mallon and Mrs. Daniel Bryan. The funeral was held on the morning of July 19 at the church she had attended, with a requiem mass.

A. F. F.

Abram Trueblood.

Abram Trueblood, a charter member of the Indiana Horticultural Society, and one of the best-known nurserymen of Indiana, died July 16 at the home of his son, S. C. Trueblood, at Indianapolis, Ind.; aged 88 years. Mr. Trueblood had lived in Indianapolis only a short time, coming here from Anderson, Ind., where he was a member of the Friends' church.

He is survived by a widow and three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Sherer, of Dayton, O.; Miss Alma Trueblood, of Anderson; Mrs. A. J. Weaver, of Berkeley, Calif., and two sons, S. C. Trueblood and W. D. Trueblood. The funeral was held at the home of his son July 19.

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 P. M.

Bowling Contest of The Ladies of the S. A. F. at alley to be provided. 2 p. m.—Session S. A. F. and O. H.—Discussion, "Are Not Insurance Rates on Modern Greenhouse Establishments Too High, in view of the lighter risks accruing from better and less dangerous construction?" Led by Wm. F. Kasting. Report of the Committee on National Publicity. Irwin Bertermann, Chairman—Discussion.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 19.

THIRD DAY—MORNING SESSION, 9 A. M.

Meeting of The Florists' Hall Association. 10 a. m.—Meetings, time allotted for Rose, Carnation, Chrysanthemum and Gladiolus Societies if desired. 11 a. m.—Election of Officers of the S. A. F. and O. H. for 1916. Polls open from 11 a. m. to 12M.

THIRD DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION, 2 P. M.

Question Box. Deferred Business. Annual Bowling Tournament, S. A. F. and O. H., at Grany's alleys, 924 Market St.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 20.

FOURTH DAY.

S. A. F. and O. H. Day at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

ESSAYS.

In view of the many and varied attractions of the convention and Convention City, the Executive Board decided that it would be unwise to take up the time of the convention with the reading of essays. Realizing, however, the value of the presentation of essays at the Society's conventions, the secretary was instructed to invite essays from various gentlemen willing to prepare them, such invitations and the number of them to be within his discretion, the essays to be furnished to the trade papers for publication during the convention period, and to be printed as part of the proceedings of the convention.

The following essays are presented:

"Is it Advisable for the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists to Establish a National Credit and Collection Department?" by August F. Poehlmann, Morton Grove, Ill.

"The Problems Attending the Establishment of Permanent Convention Gardens," by Theodore Wirth, Superintendent of Parks, Minneapolis, Minn.

"The Necessity of National Publicity to Advance the Interests of Commercial Floriculture in the United States," by Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.

INFORMATION.

Hotel Headquarters—The St. Francis Hotel, Geary and Powell Sts.

The Secretary's Office will be near the main entrance of Halls H, I and J, east side, fourth floor, in the Civic Center Auditorium, where all members should report as soon as possible after their arrival in San Francisco. Members who have not paid their 1915 assessment can make payment at this office and receive the official badge button, but the work of the office will be greatly facilitated if members will make remittances to the secretary prior to the convention.

Those desirous of becoming members of the Society may qualify at the secretary's office and will be accorded the privileges of the convention.

The address of the secretary after July 15 will be Care of Daniel MacRorie, 430 Phelan Bldg., San Francisco.

Life members' buttons will be sent to those entitled to them upon receipt of seventy-five cents, or they may be obtained at the secretary's office.

THE bureau of plant industry, of the department of agriculture, will distribute quite a number of new Chinese trees and shrubs next season, descriptive lists of which may be had on application to Peter Bissett, in charge of Foreign Plant Distribution.

Waste Factory Heat Utilized.

Dresden, Germany, July 13.—Successful results of experiments in increasing yields of gardens by heating the earth with the waste heat from factories and industrial establishments are announced by Prof. Kuebler of the technical high school. Fruits and vegetables grown under this novel condition, according to Prof. Kuebler, have been found to advance about twice as fast as the same things planted simultaneously in normal unheated ground and have attained from 40 to 100 per cent greater size.

Cleveland Flower Show.

The general committee in charge of the Cleveland flower show received the report of the retail displays committee composed of C. E. Russell, of Jones & Russell Co., chairman; C. M. Wagner, and Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros. This is the result of several meetings held during the last week and interviews by several of the committee. The plan is to allot an equal amount of floor space to all the exhibitors desiring to make a display. Each exhibitor will be asked to change his exhibit each day and feature a different line of work on each day. In this way the retail section will contain an interesting collection of special work, illustrating all classes of decorative work the florists are called upon to execute.

It is also planned to have each exhibitor include in the five days of the show one day for table work, one day for corsage work, another for brides' bouquets, basket arrangements, etc., so arranged that a large variety of each class of work is shown each day. This plan was unanimously approved by the general show committee.

American Gladiolus Society.

SHOW AT ATLANTIC CITY.

All arrangements are now perfected and the show will be held at the Royal Palace Casino, situated on the Boardwalk and facing the ocean from three sides, thus insuring a hall as cool as one could wish for. The exhibition dates are August 26-29 inclusive, and the show will be open from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. Admission will be charged as follows: From 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., 15 cents; from 6 p. m. to 10 p. m., 25 cents. There will be a musical program each evening rendered by Schwab's orchestra, the best in Atlantic City, and each afternoon of the first three days a lecture will be given as follows: Max Schling of New York, on "How to Arrange Flowers Artistically"; Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., "The Varieties of Gladioli"; Maurice Fuld, of New York, on "How Best to Grow Gladioli by the Amateur." The fourth day being Sunday, the lecture feature will be omitted.

The hall has been arranged into exhibition spaces, each 6 by 20 feet, which will constitute an exhibition space. Every exhibitor must divert from old methods of exhibiting, displaying his flowers in the most artistic and original way possible, and in this way make the entire show a thing of beauty. Exhibitors are charged a rental of $20 for each space, but the committee pledges itself to refund this amount if the returns from the show warrant it. A number of spaces are unengaged and applications should be made at once to Maurice Fuld, 1 Madison avenue, New York. Applications from foreign firms, both for space for exhibition purposes and advertising space in the souvenir bulletin have been refused.

The committee is confident, that if the weather conditions are favorable, this show will draw an attendance of 100,000 people during the four days, so that the exhibitors have a splendid guarantee of making their exhibit profitable. From the very first they have planned this exhibit for the exclusive benefit of the American growers and dealers, and they will encourage all exhibitors to book as much business as they possibly can.

A special souvenir bulletin and programme is in the course of construction, and the committee is glad to announce that the advertising space in this bulletin has been completely covered, and that further applications must be refused. The bulletin will contain as contributors, the names of every prominent gladioli grower and 10,000 copies of same will be published which will be sold at the exhibition at 10 cents each.

The entire week will be known in Atlantic City, as "Gladiolus Week." This has been originated by the publicity bureau, and the Hotelmen's Association of Atlantic City, who are co-operating with our committee to make our show a tremendous success.

The growers from all over the country will contribute in the neighborhood of 100,000 spikes of cut gladioli, which will be furnished free of charge to all the beach front hotels, who will use them to decorate their dining rooms. In return the hotels will prominently advertise our show on their daily menus. As a further advertising campaign, the newspapers of Atlantic City will help us, and lithograph display signs will be prominent in the lobbies of the hotels, and in all the shop windows along the boardwalk. The committee will gladly help those attending the show, to arrange hotel accommodations for them.

For the benefit of those who are handicapped in the knowledge of arranging flowers artistically, an artist has been engaged who will help every exhibitor to accomplish what he is after. The hall will be open the day previous to the show, and a carpenter and sign painter will be on hand, to be of further assistance.

Buffalo.

Market conditions remain unchanged, with the supply of flowers good. Gladiolus America is coming in perfect shape and the demand is good as it is meeting a long felt want. The sweet peas grown by Jerry Brookins & Son are about as good as any indoor orchid peas as to bloom, color and stem that we have seen. These growers certainly have sweet pea culture down to a fine art.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The annual outing of the Buffalo Florists' Club took place as per schedule, with everything as last year, even to the rain, which fortunately stopped about 2 p. m. The delegation, headed by the committee, arrived about 3 p. m., and following a few minutes after, and greatly to the surprise of everyone, were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Palmer, both taking an active part in the effort to make all enjoy themselves.

The first event on the program was a ball game, captained by Dave Scott for the growers and John Kramer for the retailers. Upon being assured that the credentials offered were satisfactory and a bond being given for his agreeing to be fair in all decisions, L. H. Neubeck was allowed to umpire and "Grandpa" did his work well, considering he had to satisfy Ed Slattery, Louie Hock, Toby Shank and Jake Mayer, the "millionaire chauffeur" of Anderson's, not counting the young blood that had to watch out and not fall over the first named old gentleman. The winning team, as usual, was the growers.

Next was boys' race and after inventory, two Neubecks and one Streit boy were the winners.

Everybody's race was won by Eddie Stroh. Fortunately for him he was so short that a two-minute start was never noticed by the tall ones, and Eddie had a walk-away.

I will refrain from mentioning the names of the participants or the winners in the young ladies' race, only to say that Main street got two prizes, and one lady carried considerable weight. W. J. Palmer was the judge.

The hop, skip and jump race was won by Dave Scott, who just glanced at each one and then jumped over it each time. "Ever Ready Grever" also jumped.

The special race was between Mr. Meyers and Andy Adams. It was nameless and consisted of a combination walk, hop, step back and go forward. Each got a prize and there were no hard feelings.

"Grandpa" Neubeck with a 10-year-old boy on his back ran faster than Joe Streit with a cigar in his hand and his vest on; distance, 50 yards.

The ball throwing contest was good. If Tom Tobin could throw out work like he throws a ball, J. B. Stafford would not need any more help.

"Asthma" Loney and Henry Kraus acted as escorts for several young ladies and did their work in fine shape. At 7 p. m. dinner was announced, and 128 tired and hungry individuals sat down and enjoyed themselves. The prizes were handed out and the dancing followed.

The number of ladies in attendance this year was larger than last year, and next year will see many more. Mrs. Katherine Raeker and Miss Kantlin, who have stores on the west side, were very much surprised when they found out that such a good time was in store for them.

Harry Balsley, of "red pot" fame, was a welcome visitor.

The old men's race was won by William Waring, 74 years old, who, with a small handicap, defeated Ed Slattery and Emil Brooker, somewhat younger in years, but not in activity. "Edward Mepsted, Ottawa, Ont., please note."

visit to Elizabeth, N. J., and Atlantic City for two weeks. BISON.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

The third Thursday of each month we have the use of the Chamber of Commerce rooms, but in spite of the fact that we pay rent we do not use them for July and August and instead have our picnic on the date of the July meeting and through the courtesy of our President, a meeting and afternoon of sports is held at his farm, one of the many delightful places to spend a hot half-day and evening, around this section of the world. Although our membership is limited in number, we had at the July meeting (or picnic), in round numbers about 200 people, thanks to some of our Chester county and Philadelphia friends.

Rocky Springs park was the place and could be reached by trolley for a nickel, but from the number of machines in evidence, the average florists scorns a trolley, and turns up his nose at anything cheap, as a nickel. But the youngsters were made happy by the distribution of tickets that entitled them to any of the various amusements in the park, each ticket being counted as a nickel, and the way those kids got rid of tickets was a revelation to the men who collected them and to the men who contributed toward their purchase, the latter getting the most enjoyment out of it.

At 12:30 a first-class picnic lunch was served to an apparently hungry crowd and then the fun began, a number playing cards for an hour and the balance taking in the sights of the springs or pitching quoits. Three strong games were going all the time on the Lancaster Quoit Club grounds, which were given to us for the day. Mrs. A. M. Herr again showed her skill at this amusement. Unfortunately there was no record kept of these games.

The crowd gathered along the river front of the historic Conestoga and the programme of amusements and field sports was carried out under the able direction of Frank Kohr. Elmer Weaver and Harry Rohrer, the hard-working committee in charge of all arrangements. The awards follow:

Boys' potato race—Edward E. Rohrer, first.

Girls' potato race—Miss Anna Myers, first; Miss Katherine Siebert, second.

Men's potato race—E. S. Rutt, first; J. D. Keohane, second.

Egg race—Miss Anna Myers, first.

Three-legged race—Martin Good, first; Frank Bare, second.

Fifty yard dash for men—Lloyd Weaver, first.

Fifty yard dash for boys—Paul Weaver, first.

Twenty-five yard dash for ladies—Miss Ida Miller, first.

Twenty-five yard dash for girls—Miss Ruth Barr, first.

Fat men's race—T. J. Nolan, first.

The tug-of-war was won through the leadership of S. S. Pennock and the superior strength of T. J. Nolan for their side, as the local men were not up to the wrinkles and seemed just a bit tired after the strenuous week the most of them had getting houses into shape and other little jobs this hot weather.

At 5 p. m. a chicken dinner was served with its accompaniments of vegetables (notice the plural) coffee and desserts. After dinner a general good time was had; those who wanted to danced; those who did not dance, enjoyed the evening crowd from the city.

All of this for a dollar—can you beat it? Any club wanting to give a successful picnic for a little bit of money should get into communication with our committee—for a few hundred dollars, they might be induced to take charge of your outing. ALBERT M. HERR.

Los Angeles.

Staiger & Munwiler dissolved partnership July 1, Paul G. Staiger buying the Munwiler interest, and will continue the business under the firm name of Paul G. Staiger, Nurseryman and Florist. The office and salesyard at 1852 West Washington street and the growing establishment at Lomita are to be vastly improved, both in appearance and in an economical way. In the future more time is to be devoted to the propagating end of the business, which is to be managed by Mr. Kyle at Lomita. A magnificent stock of kentia palms, ferns and begonias can be seen at the greenhouses. John Finken, for some time associated with the old firm, has severed his connection and has gone back to his old line. H. S. K.

STOCK STILL PLENTIFUL.
Stock of all kinds is plentiful and is selling in large lots at low prices. American Beauty roses, especially in the larger grades, are seen at all the stores in large numbers, but are not moving any too well, even at the low prices offered. Roses in general are obtainable in large quantities at bargain prices, with the possible exception of Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia and Double White Killarney. Hoosier Beauty roses are in good demand and continue to clean up well at good prices. Carnations are to be had in large quantities, but the supply is not as large as it has been which does not necessarily mean that what stock is offered is bringing better prices. Orchids are in good supply, but the receipts of gardenias are small. Peonies are offered in large numbers, but the end of the cold storage supply is near and no one will regret when they are gone. Gladioli are in unusually large supply and are selling at extremely low prices, with quite a lot of stock being thrown away each day. Lilies are not as plentiful as they have been, but there are still enough to go around. Lily of the valley is in good supply and in fair demand. Asters are more plentiful, but the quality of the stock offered in most cases is not what it should be. Sweet peas are seen at nearly all the stores in large supply and fairly good stock is obtainable at times. Greens of all kinds are plentiful, and while trade appears to be quiet, the sales so far during July in some instances compare most favorably with those of the same month last year. Outdoor stock of all kinds is in heavy supply, and is going out about the same way as it is coming in, and that is through the back door. It appears as if stock is shortening up somewhat, especially roses,

NOTES.

The thirtieth annual basket picnic of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at St. Paul Park, Morton Grove, next Sunday, July 25, when all members of the trade and their friends are cordially invited to attend. Trains will leave the Union Depot over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road at 9:30 a. m. and 12:40 p. m. and 2:05 p. m. Round trip tickets can be secured at any of the wholesale houses or from members of the committee at the depot for 30 cents each. Zima's band will furnish the music for the dancing and there will be sporting events of all kinds for the ladies, gentlemen and children, with a baseball contest between the wholesalers and the growers. It is rumored that a team representing the retail trade will be on hand to challenge the winner, so there promises to be something doing every minute of the day and from present indications it appears as if everyone in the trade who can possibly do so will be there. No admission will be charged to the grove, so bring the whole family.

Herman Schiller and wife have returned from a 3,000 mile automobile trip through the west, most of the traveling being done in Wyoming and Montana. They had a very pleasant time for a while, but towards the end of the trip they encountered bad roads and at times were forced to hire teams to haul them out of the mud.

Frank Stuppy, with the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., visited friends here July 17. He left for northern Wisconsin the following day on a fishing trip and expects to return in time to attend the big picnic at St. Paul Park, Morton Grove, Sunday, July 25.

Mrs. Horton of the Bassett & Washburn office force, received word from C. L. Washburn this week that his business partner, O. P. Bassett, had left Pasadena July 17, in company with Mrs. Bassett, over the automobile route for this city and expect to reach here about September 1. Miss Schrieber, of the office force, is enjoying her vacation this week. Joe Einweck of the store force, writes from San Francisco, Calif, that he caught such a large fish the other day that it took three men to haul it into the boat. He did not specify what kind of a fish it was, but judging from his letter one would surmise that it must have been either a shark or a whale.

Miss Paradise has returned from a most delightful visit at Marquette, Mich., and is again attending to her duties at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, much to the satisfaction of the proprietor, who performed the office work while she was away.

J. A. Rhoner has opened a new retail store in the Bush Temple at 102 West Chicago avenue, under the name of People's Florist. He was formerly located on Milton avenue, but believes that the change of location will result in better business.

The John Kruchten Co. is offering a good supply of dahlias and an unusually large quantity of gladioli.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg and parents motored to Hampshire and back Sunday, July 18.

Wilbur Gullett, with Gullett & Sons, of Lincoln, was in the city on business this week.

WIETOR BROS.

162 N. Wabash Ave., Long Distance Phone, CHICAGO
 BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS
 Randolph 2081.

Felix Reichling says that Peter Reinberg is having a brisk demand for field grown carnation plants, which are better in quality than in former years, according to one of their customers who has received his supply from this firm for several years back. Emil Reichling is busy making preparations for his trip to San Francisco, Calif., which will be the first vacation that he has taken since he has been in charge at the greenhouses. Herbert Hansen of the store force leaves July 24 to spend his vacation at Avoca, Wis.

George Wienhoeber, the South Wabash avenue florist, is a firm believer in advertising and his liberal use of printers' ink since he embarked in business for himself is the chief reason that he is enjoying such a good season now. He is using the street cars regularly, the daily papers occasionally and always has a neatly arranged window display. Miss Boughton, the cashier is spending her vacation at Detroit, Mich., and Joe Kral is visiting friends at Joliet.

Pochlmann Bros. Co.'s star stenographer, Sam Cohon, is away on his vacation, so Otto W. Frese is doing a little extra work at the store, and if any of the customers should receive a letter in long hand they will know the reason why. Trade in the supply department has shown a remarkable gain the past month, and requests for the new catalog are so numerous and so steady that if they keep up T. E. Waters will soon find his supply exhausted.

Herman Rogers of the Weiland & Risch store force, has returned from a delightful outing at Spring Lake and Detroit, Mich., where he spent the past two weeks with his family. Mr. Rogers says that the fishing was pretty good, but that the only ones he could catch were with a silver hook, and every true fisherman knows what that means. Joe Pfeffer, who keeps the Weiland & Risch books, left this week to enjoy a well earned rest at Silver Lake, Wis.

The Ickes-Braun Mill Co. installed a Kroeschell boiler when their new factory was built and the proprietors are well pleased with their choice of the new type of boiler that Kroeschell recently placed on the market, for it has given the best of satisfaction. In speaking of the greenhouse manufacturing business Carl Ickes says that they are very busy now and that two houses, 37x150 feet, were recently shipped to Lohr Bros., at Ottawa.

A. Vanderpoel, 4013 Colorado avenue, says that his wife, who broke her hip bone when she slipped and fell down stairs several days ago, is getting along as nicely as can be expected at the West Side hospital. Mrs. Vanderpoel is 63 years of age and it will probably be several months before she will be able to leave her bed, and Mr. Vanderpoel's many friends hope for an early and permanent recovery.

Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and wife spent a few days here this week before leaving for San Francisco, Calif., where they will take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Mr. Reukauf and wife expect to be away about eight weeks and will attend the S. A. F. convention in August and will have charge of the Bayersdorfer exhibit.

Wietor Bros. are practically all sold out of chrysanthemum stock and it appears as if they will soon be cleaned up in pompons, for orders are numerous and more are arriving each day. Julius Kline, of the store force, has returned from his vacation which was spent at Lemont, and Chas. Drissler, another of the firm's local storemen, is enjoying a well-earned rest.

Allie Zech says that business has been good at Zech & Mann's store this week and it is surprising how well the shipping trade is keeping up. Joe Erringer, this firm's popular young shipping clerk, will leave next week on a vacation trip, and it is rumored that he will do something that Jimmy did while he was in Pennsylvania recently.

The two new houses, 40x225, that the Foley Manufacturing Co. built for Frank Schramm at Crystal Lake, Ind., are all completed and the proprietor is more than pleased with the way the order was handled. The Foley Co. has just received an order from Pochlmann Bros. Co. for three new plant houses to be erected in the near future.

Louis Wittbold made a trip to Ottawa this week to see how Winandy Bros. are progressing with the erection of the new Garland house, 76x900 feet, that Davis & Steiner are adding to their plant this season. Mr. Wittbold's son John is in the employ of the Winandy boys and so is Bill Garland of Des Plaines.

C. Springer, who has charge of the greenhouses at Tom Taggart's home at French Lick, Ind., was a visitor here this week, when he inspected several of the large commercial establishments that supply a large portion of the stock which is handled in the great central market.

Miss Niessen, of the Percy Jones force, leaves July 24 for Joliet to enjoy a well-earned rest. The relay team that will represent the Percy Jones establishment at the big picnic at Morton Grove, next Sunday, July 25, is in fine trim and will no doubt give a good account of itself.

Bruno Bandel, who has been in the employ of Pochlmann Bros. Co., for some time, has received orders from the Italian government to return home and will sail for Como, Italy, July 29. He is a son of John Bandel of that city, who exports considerable stative, ruseus, etc., to this country.

The A. Dietsch Co. has received an order from C. Sterling of Joliet for three new houses 25x125 feet, to be heated by a Kroeschell boiler. Fred Dietsch says that business is very good now and that the Dietsch factory is running full blast to catch up with the orders.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report business as good as could or can be expected in both the local and shipping departments. A. T. Pyfer, the genial manager, jokingly says that this is the best year the firm has ever experienced.

J. C. Craig, the South Wabash avenue florist, had the decorations at Mt. Carmel cemetery last week for the Archbishop Quigley funeral, when the mausoleum was draped in mourning and surrounded by large palms.

Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., has been in the city this week placing orders with the John C. Moninger Co. for iron gutters and other materials for the reconstruction of four greenhouses 24x110 feet each.

Philip C. Schupp, of the J. A. Budlong company, spent Sunday, July 18, with his family at Lake Geneva, Wis., returning the following Tuesday, when he again assumed charge at the store.

Erne & Klingel are handling a nice supply of summer-stock, especially roses, which are in good demand considering the general market conditions.

Ed. Hunt, who is employed in the shipping department at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store, is away on his vacation.

E. C. Pruner reports a very satisfactory business trip in Texas, Oklahoma and bordering territory.

Vaughan's Seed Store had a very fine display of outdoor Spencer sweet peas last week.

ROSE BUYERS

are steadily realizing that there is only one white rose on the market in summer that gives satisfaction and that particular variety is which has several strong features, viz: Full flower, heavy foliage, better keeper and shipper and last but not least it is whiter than the common strain of White Killarney.

Ed. Mallison, of the Chas. Samuelson store force, had a most unpleasant vacation, for his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hannaford, were killed and two young ladies badly shaken up while automobile riding in Michigan, where a party of 14 were enjoying an outing. It seems that the automobile party left the cottage toward dark to buy some provisions, and that the lights went out on their way back, and that they turned off the path and ran into a ravine, where the machine turned turtle, instantly killing Mr. and Mrs. Hannaford, who were seated in the front, and severely shaking up but not even bruising the two young ladies seated in the rear.

E. F. Winterson is slowly recovering from an operation for blood poisoning which set in in his left leg below the knee when he accidentally drove a spike in it, and while he is able to be about it bothers him more or less, and he is still under a physician's care.

Ed. Enders, with Chas. Samuelson, will leave the latter part of this month for the west, where he will visit the Samuelson fruit farm in Idaho, and later take in the sights of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, Calif.

J. S. Johnson and Andrew Chronis motored to Fox River Park, near Aurora, July 25, where they met Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., who was also taking in the scenery along the automobile route.

Mrs. J. F. Kidwell is getting along very nicely at the Presbyterian hospital and will probably be able to go home in two more weeks, but she is under the care of two nurses and a physician.

Will Wolf, of August Lange's, is at the West Side hospital threatened with blood poisoning from a wound in the leg caused by falling off a ladder.

W. N. Rudd and daughter have returned from Wisconsin, where they have been fishing for the past two weeks.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The Tri-City Florists' Club annual outing, held at the Knees summer cottage on Rock river, Thursday, July 15, was unusually well attended, almost the entire membership and their families being present. The day was perfect, though a trifle warm. Games were indulged in by those who cared to take part; also motor boating and dancing. The music for the occasion was furnished by Ludwig Stapp and added much to the pleasure of the day.

R. E. De Rycke of Viele Villa, showed a fine bunch of heuchera and Statice latifolia that received the favorable comment of those present. Hy. Gaethje showed a vase of gladioli.

Dinner and supper were served on the grounds and liquid refreshments were to be had at all times. The club was called to order for a short business meeting by President Harry Bills and adjourned to meet Thursday, August 12, at the Alta Vista Nurseries, with R. M. C. Rohlfis.

WM. GOOS, Sec'y.

BOSTON, MASS.—Louis Golub and wife have the sympathy of many trade friends in the death of their six months' old baby Ruth, killed in an automobile accident at Holliston, July 13. Mr. Golub is a member of the firm of Golub Bros., Tremont street.

UNION GROVE, WIS.—The annual meeting of the Union Grove and Yorkville Greenhouse Co. took place at Minton's hall, July 12. The same directors were elected, namely, John Martin, J. H. Smith, W. E. Tucker, J. T. Gittings and E. H. Skeeves. Everything was found to be in first-class order. Instead of declaring a dividend to the stockholders, the money may be used to pay up part of the indebtedness.

MARKET HOLDS UP WELL.

Market conditions have held up exceedingly well the past week considering the warm weather. Roses have been in good demand at prices ranging from two to eight cents, but carnations are not doing as well, due to arrival of outdoor stock. Peonies are over except for a few of the late reds and they are very poor. Gladioli are here in quantities, with prices at from two to four cents. Sweet peas have been trying to bloom for the past two weeks but due to the wet weather have been dropping their buds. This week they are coming in fine for the first picking and bring from 20 cents to 50 cents per 100.

NOTES.

W. D. Desmond has returned from his trip north and has been very busy with arrangements for the picnic besides his work at L. S. Donaldson Co.'s store and rebuilding the greenhouses.

C. G. Anderson of the Minneapolis Floral Co. reports his chrysanthemums advertised in the classified columns of THE AMERICAN FLORIST last week as being all sold.

Max Kaiser of the Merriam Park Floral Co. brought the first asters of the season to Oscar Amundson July 16. He has two houses of these that look very fine.

Oscar Amundson and family are contemplating a trip of the lakes the latter part of this month, stopping off at Chicago, Detroit and Buffalo.

C. W. Moore and wife, of Valley City, N. D., stopped off for a few days on their return from the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Ralph Latham is very busy since his return from the north with plenty of work, and his man on a vacation.

H. B. Whitted has had several large wedding decorations out of the city this week.

Hans Rosacker has two of his new houses planted to roses, which look very fine.

O. Swanson has had more decoration for weddings this year than any year previous.

Rice Brothers are closing and all hands are off for the picnic Tuesday.

The Sunshine Florist has a very attractive window of summer flowers.

Herman Swanson of Minnetonka is cutting some very fine dahlias.

Theo. Vogle of Chapman's keeps up a very good window display.

HOT WEATHER AND DULL BUSINESS.

Midsummer is here with its attendant prices and dull business. There is a great oversupply of stock, both out of door and greenhouse grown, in the market, due, no doubt, to the incomparable growing weather we have experienced this spring and early summer. Roses are the best greenhouse grown flowers on the market. The best varieties are Ophelia, Sunburst, Sawyer and Russell. Killarneys are suffering most from the heat we have had the last few days. There is little demand for American Beauties, but orchids meet with a fair demand for weddings and funeral work. The favorable weather has done much for the young carnation stock in the field. Asters are coming in in greater numbers, but are still quite small. Gypsophila is in good supply. Candytuft, feverfew and sweet peas are selling well.

NOTES.

An announcement party of much beauty was the Martin-Gilmartin dinner dance, July 15. The announcement with the date of the wedding August 3, was painted on a separate pink rose petal, hidden in a Sawyer rose at each plate. The table decorations were Sawyer and Sunburst roses arranged in French bisque vases and baskets, and were the work of the decorators of the Flick Floral Co.'s staff.

WARMEST WEATHER OF THE SEASON.
The past week wound up with the hottest weather of the season. So far it has rained nearly every day or night of the week, helping along most of the outside stock. Sweet peas, however, have been ruined, the stock coming in the past week being almost worthless. Asters promise to be fine, the advance flowers being very good. Gladioli are now seen in great variety, Mrs. Francis King being exceptionally showy. Zinnias are offered by several growers; there is no other flower with such a variety of color as this summer favorite; it is bulky to ship, and may not be profitable, but with its great variety of form and color it is artistic to a degree. The summer roses are all good, particularly Sunburst, Mock, Taft, Ward and My Maryland. The whites are below par; Double Killarney is the best, but nothing much to speak of. The old dependable for summer, the Kaiserin, has been cut out by most growers and very few see this market.

NOTES.

"One swallow does not make a summer," nor will the omission of the August florists' club meeting, although unusual, spell disaster, or even show signs of disintegration. The past three years of the club have been as full of achievement, even, perhaps, showing more accomplished, than at any previous time since its organization over twenty-five years ago. Some bright stars have passed away, but the personnel of the members is still quite up to the average. There is just now a summer apathy, but the coming season promises, with the incentive of the great International show, to fully eclipse anything that has gone before. The exodus to the summer resorts is not new; Waretown was discovered and, in fact, inhabited by the more or less bright lights of the club some twelve or fifteen years ago. Ten pins, when in the height of their popularity, furnished quite an incentive and helped attendance at the club, but a florist club that has to depend wholly on its amusements to live is in a very bad way indeed. If our friend "Phil" will man an oar and pull, he will experience some of the "joys of progress," which for some reason appear to be denied him at this time.

As yet there are no bookings from here for the convention, except for a few supply representatives. A few managed to get to Omaha, the farthest west convention of years ago, but "Frisco" is too far. Even the added attraction of the exposition is not sufficient to offset the distance.

The front of Convention hall has been made beautiful through the enterprise of H. A. Dreer, Inc., and the H. F. Michell Co., Inc. These firms are an honor to the profession. May they get big returns.

—Edward Reid and his fine Irish smile are much in evidence these days in describing his fishing experiences. It is wonderful how he catches such big ones.

Gladioli are the features with the Berger Brothers. Their stock is extra fine.

INCREASED SUPPLY WITH LIGHT DEMAND.

The past week opened with cool weather, but heat and humidity increased as the days passed. Saturday, July 17, was probably the most uncomfortable day yet experienced since the beginning of summer. As a matter of course, business has been dull. Under any conditions this is the dull season and heat and humidity make it more disagreeable. Another feature is that such weather brings in a great stock of outdoor flowers. By July 17 there was a great increase in the supply of Gladiolus America. Asters are also arriving in considerable quantities and some very fair stock has been seen. From now on the asters will in a measure, take the place of the carnations, which are being thrown out to make room for the plants from the fields. The supply of American Beauty roses is not as heavy as it was a few weeks ago, but as the demand is light the supply is sufficient. The Cattleya gigas are in smaller supply and wholesale at the rate of $40 per 100, inferior varieties being quoted as low as $10 and $15. In the various roses, other than American Beauty, there is some very good stock. The new rose, Hoosier Beauty, is one that looks promising and seems to be doing well.

July 19.—The heat is oppressive and business, as may be expected, is slow. The supply of asters and gladioli is increasing and there is no shortage in any stock.

NOTES.

All of those we have met who attended the sweet pea exhibition at Newport, R. I., speak highly of the quality of stock exhibited and say that the exhibition was a success. Among those who went from this city and vicinity were Julius Roehrs and wife, of Rutherford, N. J.; Frank Traendly, New York; Julius Chevalley, Blue Point, N. Y.; Chas. H. Totty and Wm. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa.; C. E. Wethered, Arthur T. Boddington, W. A. Sperling, Harry A. Bunyard, J. H. Pepper and J. B. Deamud, New York.

We have recently noted in one of the show windows of Alexander McConnell's store, Fifth avenue and 49th street, three finely flowered plants of allamanda, we believe of the variety Hendersoni. The plants are in large pots and as they are climbers, they have been trained to a considerable height. The leaves are large and grow thick, while the flowers are large and of a yellow-orange color with light spots in the throat.

C. C. Trepel has just awarded the contract for an iron frame greenhouse, 40x100 feet, to be erected on the roof of his store at Broadway and 89th street. The contract calls for its completion by September 15, 1915. A modern elevator will connect the greenhouse with the store. The new greenhouse will be a conspicuous feature, situated as it will be, in the heart of the city.

The Flatbush growers are now actively preparing for another season, and carnation planting in the houses has already begun.

Dailedouze Brothers, in addition to carnations have a fine healthy stock of chrysanthemums coming on.

At the Henry Hession range, the field carnations look fine and will soon be housed.

John A. Wocker has already planted several houses with carnations and his stock looks very fine. Louis Schmutz, Sr., and Louis Schmutz, Jr., are regular plant wizards and their stock is of great variety, including about all the commercial foliage plants and also flowering plants.

It is seldom that oleanders are now seen about a greenhouse, but they are growing them.

Charles E. Koch is another plantsman who has a fine stock of palms, ferns and dracaenas.

A feature of this place is a fine display of landscape and ornamental gardening.
A. F. F.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Preparations are already under way in earnest to make the second annual flower show of the state florists' association eclipse last year's exhibition in every way. The show will be held the first week in November.

New York Florists' Club Outing.

The annual outing of the club was held at Witzel's Grove, College Point, July 14. The day was perfect and the committee deserve credit for ably conducting the affair. The attendance was not as large as it has been in former years, but that was not the fault of the committee, and it is unnecessary to here discuss the various causes for the falling off in attendance. Breakfast was served on the arrival of the boat at the grove, after which there were races and baseball, the results of which are given below. There was also dancing in the pavilion. We may here suggest that if prizes are to be given for skill, strength and endurance, a prize should hereafter be offered for the best dancers. It might create interest in future outings to have something new.

OUTING NOTES.

Comparisons are odious, but the Greek-American florists had a larger attendance at their outing than did the New York Florists' Club. The two clubs might with profit hold a joint outing next year.

The growers from New Jersey helped to fill the gaps made by the absence of many old-timers. John Daly and wife, Harry Baughman and wife, John Birnie and wife, Wm. Otto and Mrs. Wittman and family are all clever picnickers. Also the Flatbush growers, Louis Schmutz, Sr., and wife, Louis Schmutz, Jr., and wife and several younger members of the family, Alfred Zeller and family and Alfred Demeusy, Jr., and wife. Everybody enjoyed themselves.

The following were winners in the games:

Girls' race, under 5 years, 100 ft.—Viola Greer, first.

Boys' race, under 5 years, 100 ft.—Andrew J. Handel, first; Raymond Schwartz, second.

Boys' race, 5 to 7 years, 100 ft.—Harry Grumbach, first; Jerome Trepel, second; John McCarthy, third.

Girls' race, 7 to 9 years, 200 ft.—Irene Mustoe, first; Margaret Smith, second; Martha Schmutz, third.

Boys' race, 7 to 9 years, 200 ft.—Howard Brown, first; Carl Giesler, second.

Girls' race, 9 to 11 years, 200 ft.—Carrie Peterson, first; Mary O'Connor, second; Frances Esch, third.

Boys' race, 9 to 11 years, 200 ft.—Robt. Hildenbrand, first; August Wai-bel, second; Francis Smith, third.

Nassau County Hort. Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, Wednesday, July 14, President Westlake in the chair. A. Mackenzie, J. Adler and G. Hutton were appointed judges for the monthly exhibits, and the awards were as follows: For competition, one dish of raspberries—Jas. Holloway. One dish of red currants—W. D. Robertson. Six peaches—R. Jones. President Westlake's special prize for three vases of sweet peas was won by H. Jones. Jas. Holloway was awarded a cultural certificate for a collection of outdoor fruit (12 varieties).

An invitation was received from the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society to join them in their annual outing, August 17. Further particulars of this event will be given at a later date.

The exhibits at our next meeting will be 12 spikes of gladioli, six ears of sweet corn and 12 mixed asters.

At the sweet pea show held in the Glen Cove Neighborhood building, July 8, some fine exhibits were staged. The following were among the prize winners: Mrs. C. T. Cartledge (W. Noon, gr.); Ralph Pulitzer (T. Hitchman, gr.); Mrs. J. H. Otley (J. McDonald, gr.); and H. C. Smith (A. Walker, gr.).
JAMES GLADSTONE, Cor. Sec'y.

GUTHRIE, OKLA.—The flower and park committee of the Woman's Civic Federation held its first flower show July 3, and the success of the event will make it an annual exhibition.

UNION SETS in the Chicago district grown from the Bermuda variety and used for southern trade have been harvested. There will not be much done on regular sorts until next week. Growers fear tops will be too big, wet weather having continued to July 20.

JEFFERSON, IA.—The Zeller Seed Co. has obtained a location in the factory district on the Northwestern tracks. Work on the new seed house will begin immediately. The building committee has returned from different seed houses throughout Iowa and Illinois and will equip the new plant in the most modern way. The building will be 44x80 feet, two stories high, and of fireproof construction.

VISITED CHICAGO: Watson S. Woodruff and wife, Styles D. Woodruff and Watson S. Woodruff, Jr., New York; Wm. C. Langbridge and wife, Cambridge, N. Y.; Benj. Johnson Seed Co. Bankruptcy Petition.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the Johnson Seed Co., 217 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa., July 17. The liabilities are estimated at $21,000, with assets which it is thought will pay about 40 cents on the dollar. Attorney Frank A. Harrigan acted for Messrs. Johnson. W. Atlee Burpee & Co. and Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, were the petitioners. The court appointed Attorney James O'Brien as receiver to carry on the business for 30 days, during which time a meeting of the creditors will be called and the court asked to appoint a trustee. It is understood that an effort at reorganization will be made and a company formed to carry on the business.

French Bulbs.

More than 150 members of the Syndicate for Defense of Agricultural Interests met June 19, at the Cafe de la Potonde, when it was resolved to maintain more firmly than ever the prices fixed for bulbs, May 1, and to demand cash payment without discount. The syndicate, in the face of a short crop, urges all its members to observe this order strictly.

POSTAL LAW AMENDMENT ADOPTED.

Following a suggestion made by Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., the following amendment to the postal laws committee's report was adopted:

Be it enacted, etc., that all matter embraced in the third class, including catalogues, pamphlets, price-lists, and other similar matter, wholly in print of some form, upon which the postage is now paid at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, fully prepaid, either by postage stamps affixed or without stamps under a permit number, the same rate is hereby extended to apply to the mailing of such printed matter in bulk, to varying addresses, each individual piece to weigh not less than two ounces without stamps affixed, at eight cents per pound or fractional part thereof; and fully prepaid in similar manner as now by law provided for the mailing of matter of the second class; but such pound rate shall apply only when such printed matter is offered in quantities of fifty pounds or more of identical items.

Corn Behind Schedule.

J. B. Maling, of Denver, who has spent much of his time in New York in the interest of Denver and Colorado transportation enterprises, returned to New York recently from a ten-day trip to his western home and is at the Hotel McAlpin. Mr. Maling insists that the optimistic crop reports now being put out, particularly regarding corn and its growing condition, do not square with the facts.

"In the great corn states of Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska this has been the coldest, most backward and rainy season experienced in years," said Mr. Maling, "and the condition of the growing corn gives ample proof of it. In the corn states it is an axiomatic saying that 'corn shall be knee-high on the first of July.'"

"This year corn through the great corn belt of the four states will not average today 14 inches high, and, whereas, under normal conditions, the farmer aims to have his corn fully cultivated and laid by on the Fourth of July, it is in no manner approaching a condition to be laid by at this date."

THE clover acreage in Michigan is reported to be 99 per cent of last year. The acreage plowed was seven per cent, as compared with 14 per cent in 1914.

Credits and Collections in the Seed Trade.

A paper by M. L. Germain, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., Los Angeles, Calif., read at the thirty-third annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, San Francisco, Calif., June 21-24, 1915.

Realizing that credits and collections are among the most important and most bothersome of any of the details of a modern business, I approach the subject with a good deal of trepidation, knowing that most business men are reluctant about taking suggestions or the experience of others in these matters. Every man believes that his credits and collections must be handled by himself according to his own lights, characteristics or disposition, as well as with a strict view to the characteristics of the man from whom he is collecting. It is for this reason mainly that I must force upon you my own experience on the subject.

I am strongly opposed to long credits. Have you ever noticed that the almost invariable defense to a collection suit is an attack on the quality of your merchandise? In most instances it is true this is the only possible defense and is advanced purely for the purpose of delay. However, I know of no poorer class of advertising than a defense of the quality of your seeds. Down-to-date seedsmen spend large sums of money every year to insure against just such attacks, and yet many of them in order to make a few additional sales are willing to run the risk of the very thing which they are attempting to eliminate. One suit with the attendant publicity will more than offset thousands of dollars' worth of advertising. We ourselves have very few complaints on the quality of our seeds from the people who have paid, and it would stand to reason therefore that if you can get in your money before there is any possibility of their attacking the quality of your goods, you are going to have less poor advertising and less expense. Of course we realize that today merchants are looking for volume of business as well as the turnover, and many figure that because some classes of seed only move once a year they must get them out at any cost. This is a fallacy which can be easily overcome by the very simple method of an agreement between the reputable seed houses of the country. The others must follow or fall by the wayside in the competition which will result.

Necessarily all of us believe in the right of the merchant to a legitimate profit, and likewise necessarily believe that the profit in the seed business is legitimate. We also believe in the right of the banks to obtain a legiti-mate profit on the sale of their merchandise—their loans. We undertake to finance the customer and usurp the bank's prerogatives by financing the customer, and yet we receive no greater price from the long term customer than we do from the cash customer. It strikes me that we are admitting, unconsciously, perhaps, that our profits are too big, when in reality, if we will but figure the net profit on our sales, we will readily find that they will not justify long credits as the interest that you pay on borrowed money is just that much taken out of your net profits, your dividends at the end of the year. At the same time you are standing the risk that naturally goes with every credit transaction. The older the debt the harder it is to pay, and thus, often, the debt, through no fault of yours, becomes a matter of paying for "a dead horse." Crop conditions, weather conditions and many other causes leave the customer in a position where he has not only not made any money, but has actually lost, and it is under these conditions that it is hardest to collect. Referring again to the banks, it is their purpose and object to finance corporations or individuals. In most cases if your customer has the confidence of his bank, in other words, if he can so finance himself, he will come to you and pay for his merchandise. If he has no credit standing at the bank, he expects you to carry him without any additional compensation. You make him a present of the interest that he should be paying and you take an excessive risk. As we must realize, short terms (approximately 30 days) eliminate many credit losses, expense of legal proceedings and interest, in addition to bookkeeping, postage, stationery, stenographers and many other items of expense which at the end of the year make a very large hole in the amount of dividends which we receive.

In making collections the very first essential is to have "terms of sale," the second is to never forget them or rather to never let the other fellow forget them—and the other fellow is very prone to forget. It is here that the danger point arises, as many a man approaches his customer with an unwarranted fear in asking that which is only legitimately due him. You will invariably find that the man who objects to being asked for a legitimate debt, which is due, is a man to be watched very closely. Certain conditions, of course, must be taken into consideration in collecting, but I do not believe this is as important as most people think. Your object naturally must be to get your money without antagonizing your customer or without losing him.

At the beginning of our present fiscal year the directors of my company, realizing the hard times to come, decided to pursue a very strict policy of collecting, if necessary, at the cost of losing some business. We hardly expected an increase of business, which nevertheless we have had. And in furtherance of our policy the question came up as to how we could best work out our plan.

One of the first things we did was to get our competitors in line. This was accomplished with but very little trouble, and with the result that today we are all of us working on more or less the same system of collecting. Then the question arose as to the method of collecting, with the least possible investment of time, the least possible expense and the least possible amount of friction. First we made it a point to have our credit man and our salesmen inform every new customer of our terms of sale, and to ascertain if these were satisfactory to him. Then we worked out a series of collection notices and letters at a time when our digestion was good and our disposition the friendliest. This insured a uniform method of collecting and eliminated the possibility of the credit man writing letters which would be dictated more by his heart than his head. The notices and letters are all intended to get the money without offense and are gotten up with considerable care, a feature which we are not always in a position to give to each individual letter as it is dictated. These notices and letters are either printed or multigraphed, allowing accounts to be handled by an assistant without coming to the attention of the credit man until such time as it should have personal attention. The first of the series consists of printed notices, a first and a second. The printing of the notices has as its main object the elimination of the personal element. Your customer must realize that the printed notice which he has received was not printed for his special benefit, but that it is a part of a system which all overdue customers receive and casts no reflection. The first notice is sent out within five days after the account becomes due and is worded as follows:

"This notice is sent you as a reminder that your May (for instance) account was due on the 10th of this month. We will appreciate a prompt remittance to cover."

Now it has been our experience that there is something wrong with a man who will take offense at this notice. This notice will allow the man who has overlooked making a remittance to immediately send the same to you and you would be surprised at the returns that result. Or it leaves open to him the opportunity to communicate with you. Approximately 15 days after the first notice has been sent out, a second notice, also printed, is sent out. This notice states at the top:

"Second notice. Reply wanted," and outlines that his account as shown by our statement of a certain date still remains unpaid, calls his attention to the increased cost of doing business as making it essential that collections be made promptly; again calls his attention to our terms of sale and requests an immediate remittance, unless he desires to pay interest on the account. Our third notice is a multigraphed letter calling the customer's attention to the fact that we have received neither a remittance nor a reply to two communications and, in the case of a retail customer, notifying him that we do not desire to believe that he has ignored them, requests a remittance; in the case of a wholesale customer, it calls his attention to the fact that we have received neither a remittance nor a reply and then continues in a very frank manner as follows: "We ask you to bear in mind that our net profit on wholesale business is about 2-per cent on our sales; that interest and carrying charges on accounts cost us ¾ of 1 per cent a month. Your account being past due has already reduced our profits.

"We desire to continue your account on a mutually profitable basis and will ask you to send us your remittance by return mail."

This letter, of course, will vary in every business. Fifteen days after this notice has gone forth we send out the following letter:

"You have evidently ignored our communications in regard to your account. Such inattention does not tend to the establishment of your credit, and causes us unnecessary expense and inconvenience.

"We have allowed your account to run beyond our usual terms, which make all bills due and payable on the 10th of the month following date of invoice. We have attempted to be lenient in your case, expecting that you would show us the consideration that is due us.

"As we have had no complaint from you as to the quality of our goods, or as to the service which we have rendered, we can only conclude that both of these have been entirely satisfactory, and that we are entitled to an immediate remittance.

"Regretting that we have been forced to insist in this matter, we remain."

Within 15 days after this last notice has gone out the matter is immediately brought to the attention of the credit man and the case receives personal attention. Of course at any time

PRINCESS. 20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; 1/4 oz. $1.00; 1/2 oz. $2.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

- 38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
- 40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
- 42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
- 44—Black—Almost coal black.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

- 22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3 1/2 to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, and many others. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
- 26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long.
- 28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance.
- 30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous.
- 32—GIANT PARISIAN—The flowers are of enormous size, and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground. An unusually showy mixture.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per 1/4-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts, $1.00. Please order by number.

- 48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
- 50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
- 62—Ceily—Steel blue, margined white.
- 64—Goliath—Large curled yellow, blotched.
- 68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue.
- 84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
- 88—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.
- 88—Andromeda—Curled apple blossom.
- 90—Colossea Venosa—Light veined shades.
- 92—Almond Blossom—Delicate rose.
- 94—Aurora—Terra cotta shades.
- 97—The above named Orchid mixed.
- 98—Indigo Blue—Deep velvety blue.
- 100—Light Blue shades.
- 104—Meteor—Bright red brown.
- 106—Fres. McKinley—Yellow, dark blotched.
- 114—Purple—Large rich deep color.
- 116—Peacock—Blue, rosy face, white edge.
- 118—Psyche—Curled white, five blotches.

- 126—Red—A collection of rich red shades.
- 138—White—Large satiny white.
- 140—White with violet blotch.
- 142—Yellow—Large golden yellow.
- 144—Yellow with dark blotch.

RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow, and with other amounts in like proportion.

that the customer communicates with us, we enter into personal correspondence with him, secure a promise of some kind and then hold him strictly to his promise. We have of course had some complaints on this method of collecting, but they have been very few, and as near as I have been able to ascertain our lost customers from this method of collecting have not amounted to ten accounts, though we have had this system in operation for a period of a year. Of course some of our customers have taken exception to receiving notices of any kind, and when these people have stated they would pay their monthly account regularly on a given day of every month, we have refrained from sending them notices. The net result has been that we have 75 per cent less overdue accounts on our books than we had a year ago; that our collection expenses have been reduced very materially; that we have had to borrow considerably less money from the bank than in former years, and that today the number of notices that we are called upon to send out is comparatively small. In other words, our customers have become educated to the fact that if they do not pay we are going to get after them and stay after them until they do, and we find that when other wholesale houses who are selling these same customers are complaining of their collections, it is probably because our account is being taken care of promptly. On the other hand, we have found that many of our customers have requested that we give them a set of our collection notices and letters to use on their customers and are doing a better and cleaner business as a result, that lots of them are actually thanking us for the benefit we have done them rather than censuring us.

I am strongly inclined to suggest to the association that at some future convention the matter of terms and collection methods be taken up with a view to have them uniform all over these United States, thus eliminating the bothersome and unprofitable question of terms as a competitive feature in good sales.

Alfalfa for Flooded Corn Fields.

Rockford, Ill., June 21.—With a large acreage of farm land on which the corn was washed out by rains, or not planted at all because of the rainy weather, A. M. Ten Eyck, county soil expert, advises farmers, if they do not care to sow millet or soy beans, to prepare the land for alfalfa seeding in August. The alfalfa harvest in 1916 will, he declares, more than make up for the loss occasioned by the rainy weather this season.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

ATCHISON, KAN.—Bohannon & Co. have succeeded Ryan & Bohannon.

TOLEDO, O.—The Lucas and Fulton County Horticultural Societies held their outing and dinner at Walbridge park, July 8.

WACO, TEX.—Sheriff S. S. Fleming has delegated one of his deputies to see that the nursery inspection law is enforced in this county.

BOISE, IDA.—Frosts failing to thin fruit trees this year, it has become necessary owing to the heavy yield for growers to resort to hand thinning.

THE third summer convention of the Illinois State Horticultural Society will be held at Urbana-Champaign, July 27-28. Apples are reported to promise a bumper crop in the state this year.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Harry Papworth of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., who offered to plant trees and shrubs gratis along the road for a distance of 1,000 feet in the plan for a parking system in the new Metairie Ridge subdivision, has had his plans approved by the parish authorities.

Immense Forest Nursery.

One of the largest forest nurseries in the United States is conducted by the forest service near Haugen, Mont. It is known as the Savenoc nursery and has a capacity of 4,000,000 young trees a year.

Trees Eight Dollars in Brooklyn.

Beginning next spring, the park department of Brooklyn will furnish to any residents of the borough trees at $8 each to be planted in their yards or along the sidewalks. This is the cost price of the trees and Commissioner Ingersoll guarantees the city will plant the trees, care for them and replace them in case they die of natural causes within three years.

New Indiana Nursery Law.

Indiana nursery men are studying the new nursery law which went into effect June 1. The act is very stringent, requiring every nursery owner, salesman, solicitor and agent to report to the state entomological department and make affidavit that only clean stock will be sold.

Firms located outside the state, but doing business in Indiana, have to send in their original state certificates and take out licenses, while agents and solicitors are required to have a copy of their firm's original certificate and pay one dollar for a license. On demand of an inspector they must show both certificate and license and must furnish the state entomologist with copies of all forms, contracts and agreements.

Violation of any of the act's provisions subject the guilty person to revocation of license and a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100.

English Walnuts in Pennsylvania.

The English walnut is attracting wide interest in Pennsylvania as a commercial orchard tree. Scarcely a week goes by at the Pennsylvania State College without receiving inquiries concerning this nut. These inquiries are usually prompted by the fact that already within the state are bearing trees which have proved both their hardiness and their ability to bear abundant crops of nuts equal or superior to the nuts found in our eastern markets, which are imported from the Old World, California or Oregon, the principal sources of our commercial supply.

Because of the interest manifested, the department of horticulture of the college has planned a thorough investigation of the subject. This will begin with a survey of the state to determine the location of all trees. In order to make this survey as complete as possible, the department urgently requests the assistance of every one who can give facts concerning such trees, especially as to location, character of nuts, age of trees, and hardiness. Owners of nut trees are urgently requested to correspond with the college. It is hoped that this information will be sent in to the department without delay so that the trees may be visited by the investigators and fuller notes and observations made.

Whoever is growing such trees is invited to write to F. N. Fagan, State College, Pennsylvania, giving information both as to the trees and to the property upon which they are located.

Trees and Shrubs with Decorative Fruits.

From this time until April of next year the arboretum will be interesting for the fruits which are to be seen here. Nothing so surprises and delights European visitors who come to the arboretum in summer and autumn as the profusion of showy fruits which are produced here by many trees and shrubs. The bush honeysuckles are perhaps now the handsomest plants in the arboretum with ripe fruit. They produce fruit in great quantities and it remains in good condition for several weeks, and as the different species ripen their fruit from July until the beginning of October the second period of their beauty is a long one. On different species and hybrids there are blue, black, orange, yellow, wine-color and scarlet fruits, and these beautiful and abundant fruits following beautiful flowers make some of the bush honeysuckles desirable garden plants, especially in the northern United States, where they are very hardy and where they appear to fruit more freely than in other parts of the world. The orange-colored translucent fruit of Lonicera minutiflora is perhaps the most beautiful in the collection. This plant is a hybrid between the Tartarian honeysuckle from Central Asia and a species from eastern Siberia, L. Morrowii. L. muscaviensis is covered with large and translucent fruit. The fruits of the Tartarian honeysuckles are sometimes red and sometimes bright yellow. Two hybrids of this species, L. bella and L. notha, bear crimson fruit. L. xylostemum produces large, dark crimson, lustrous fruit, and a hybrid of it, L. xylostemoides, large red fruit. All the numerous forms of L. coerulea in the collection, a species which is found in all the colder parts of the northern hemisphere, have bright blue fruit, and that of L. orientalis is black and lustrous. L. Koehneana, a native of western China, is now covered with large, dark, wine-colored, almost black fruits which follow yellow flowers. This is a native of western China and is a hardy and valuable garden plant. There is a large specimen now covered with fruit among the Chinese shrubs on the southern slope of Bussey Hill. These bush honeysuckles form a group of shrubs worthy of the attention of persons who desire to form collections of large, fast-growing, hardy shrubs, beautiful when covered in early spring with innumerable flowers or in early summer or in autumn when their showy fruits are ripe.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

Roses for Fall Blooming.

Henry Thomas, in the Journal des Roses, writes of his long experience in growing roses in the open for bloom in September and October. He finds the varieties which continue to produce presentable flowers after the early frosts to be few. Some, however, are persistent and hardy, and would be well worth trying for bloom in our long Indian summer. The type of bedding rose for fall blooming is G. Nabonnand, free and beautiful of bloom, keeping its foliage and fine odor well into the autumn. Peace has the same quality, a yellowish G. Nabonnand. Neither of these roses mind partial shade, both open well and are not injured by rain.

Marquis de Querhoent comes next, the foliage not so good, but the flowers lovely, running the whole gamut of color from China pink, salmon to copper yellow. M. Tillier, a fine bedder and one of the rarer deep pink autumn roses. General Galleini, also deep-colored and is finer in fall than summer. Madame Antoine Mari, pink and white, is very pretty when half open, extremely hardy. Souvenir du Pres. Carnot is hardy, but blooms in bouquets, rather spoiling it for cutting. Maman Cochet has the disadvantage of too brittle stems. Mrs. Arthur Robert Wadel is a pretty flower, with durable foliage; flower bi-color, reddish salmon and rose. Lady Roberts, rose color, blooms abundantly in autumn. Betty Berkeley, deep colored, very free, is especially pretty in buds when half open. Luciole, resembles G. Nabonnand. Mrs. Aaron Ward, persistent foliage and pretty flower. Antoine Rivoire, fine in all seasons, loses its foliage a little. General MacArthur, flower brilliant scarlet red, a rare red rose for the fall, blooming freely very late. Among the polyanthas, Leonie Lamesch, with its strange ever-renewed blossoms, and Cecile Brunner, are good late bloomers. A climbing Cecile Brunner is always in bloom and holds its foliage till December. Mrs. Edward Powell should have a great future as an autumn flowering rose. It is to me the best rose of 1910, and Rose George Elger, dwarf remontant multiflora or polyantha; very floriferous, erect growing, reddish green, pliable wood, foliage deep lustrous green above, red brown underneath, flowers in large corymbs, coppery golden yellow passing to light yellow, buds golden yellow. The yellowest of the remontant polyanthas, and might be called a dwarf W. A. Richardson. Forces well. Good either for pots or bedding.

Mme. John Crouch, sport of Lyon-Rose, has the same vegetation and character, but with a salmon-yellow color, salmon rose mixed with yellow on background of rose of Lyon-Rose. Source d'Or, hybrid Erichuriana. Very vigorous, erect grower, dark green foliage. Flowers in clusters of many double flowers, large for the kind. Golden yellow passing to fresh yellow as they open. Buds golden yellow.

Triomphe Orleansais, dwarf remon- tant polyantha. The coloring suggests Jessie and Erna Teschendorff, but the growth is much more vigorous and healthy and the flowers much larger. Madame Norlie Loyer, vigorous grower, fine light green foliage; very large, very double flower, suggesting the form of Mme. Caroline Testout, stiff stem, color a fresh brilliant rose, not changing. Always in flower.

Expert Horticulturists.

An old Irish woman, who kept a small fruit stand in Dublin, was displaying for sale a few watermelons which had been given her. A smart fellow, wishing to take a rise out of her, took up one of the lot, observing: "These are tarnation small apples you grow over here—now in America we have them twice this size."

The woman slowly removed the dudheen she was smoking from between her lips and coolly surveyed her inquirer from head to foot for a second or two. Then in a tone of pity she exclaimed: "Be jabbers, sorr, ye must be a sht ranger in Oireland, and know virry little about the fruit av our country when ye can't tell apples from gooseberries."

Vegetable Prices Low.

The remarkable growing season has had its effect in lowering vegetable prices at New York, July 14, for example, sales were noted as follows:

Wax beans, 100 sacks, $2.50.
New potatoes, 3 bush., 75c to $1.
Copenhagen cabbage, 1c each.
Other early cabbage, 1/2c each.
Black radishes, plowed under, no sale.

At Chicago beets and carrots are selling as low as 20 cents per 100 bunches. Truckers, who last year returned home daily with $125 for their wagon-load of produce, now consider themselves lucky if they can make the amount $25.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, July 20.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 25 to 40 cents; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; asparagus, 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 25 cents; tomatoes, 4 baskets, 50 to 75 cents.

New York, July 20.—Asparagus, per dozen bunches, 75 cents to $3.00; cucumbers, 40 cents to 50 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $1.00 to $1.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per 2 dozen crates, 10 cents to 50 cents; rhubarb, per dozen bunches, 25 cents to 40 cents.

Paper Cups Useful in Tomato Planting.

L. J. Bisbee, of Malverne, L. I., has found a novel use for wax paper drinking-cups after they have been used. He, like many other persons, grows tomatoes in his garden and has discovered that by cutting the bottom out of a drinking cup, slipping the young plant through what is left and planting so that the cup is half buried in the earth, the plant will be safe from cutworms.

Mr. Bisbee says that cutworms attack the tomato vines just at the level of the ground and never come above the surface. The cup acts also as a reservoir, holding moisture in the soil it contains and letting it soak down to the roots without washing out into the surrounding earth.—New York World.

Perfect Greenhouse Tomatoes.

A perfect article would be hard to find in any line, and especially so in a greenhouse tomato. The requirements for a greenhouse tomato are exacting, and therefore, seldom found in any one variety. We will enumerate the several points: Productiveness, which includes easy fruiting; uniformity in size from first to last, which includes moderate dimensions; quality, which means fine meat and firmness for handling; color, which also means uniformity, when ripe from blossom end to stem end. Shape, which must be faultless, free from any cracks or blemishes.

In our search we have tried many, and the nearest approach to our ideal was Bonny Best; yet it lacked size for our market. Among our plants there was one, however, larger than the rest and perfect in every way. By saving this seed and isolating this lot we have succeeded in building up a strain that is the admiration of all, alike in the greenhouse and on the market. These fruits weigh 1/4 lb. each; are intense scarlet, are perfection themselves in color, shape and uniformity, as a basket full looks like a molded product out of a machine shop. There is no deviation in size from the first fruit to the top of the plant—this, of course, under good culture. Too many varieties run over-size at first and then gradually decrease, until the third or fourth cluster comes worthless. It has always been our idea that it is better to select a small or medium tomato for greenhouse culture and get size by heavy feeding, instead of starting a big variety to get medium fruit. During June and July our tomatoes have retailed readily at 5c per fruit, being so uniform that weighing was unnecessary. We would advise greenhouse growers to try hard to save their own seed from plants that come up to their local requirements. MARKETMAN.

Celery Blight Experiments in Ontario.

Celery blight is probably the worst disease that vegetable growers in Ontario have to fight. It is estimated that $10,000 worth of celery is a total loss annually to vegetable growers around Toronto alone. Many of the smaller gardeners have gone out of the celery business entirely on this account, and, as a result, their annual returns are considerably lower than when some celery, at least, was grown. For this reason it was thought advisable to carry on some demonstration work in spraying celery to prevent the disease, if possible. A survey of the district around Toronto was taken, and the plots chosen were those which were very badly affected during the seasons of 1912 and 1913. In all cases, practically all the celery grown during these two years was so badly affected that the sale was impossible. Some of these men had been in the practice of trimming the badly affected stocks and putting thirty-six heads in a bundle in which, ordinarily, twelve would be sold. Some growers went so far as to leave the whole diseased crop in the ground, refusing to dig and sell it as there would be no return for labor.

The Middlesex branch of the department of agriculture was approached on the matter of carrying on similar work in the vicinity of London. This work was entrusted to J. W. Noble, assistant representative for the county, and credit is due him for the efficient manner in which the work was looked after in that county. On the whole, if it were not for the hearty co-operation of the individual growers themselves the work would not have attained any results. Each grower did his part of the work faithfully and they had the largest end to do. The following gardens were taken in charge:

Jenkintown.

These men agreed to allow this work to be carried on and also co-operated by supplying the necessary horse and labor and in some cases the machinery. The Ontario department of agriculture furnished the materials, and helped with the work, and saw that it was properly carried out.

The Ontario Agricultural College and the United States department of agriculture have both recommended spraying with Bordeaux mixture as a preventative, to some extent, of the disease known as celery blight. Experiments have been carried on in large and small ways and good results have been reported. Bordeaux mixture and ammoniacal copper carbonate were used on a number of patches and a description of what was used and how, is described, with illustrations, in an article by S. C. Johnson, in the tenth annual report of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, published by the Ontario department of agriculture, Toronto.

Summer Treatment of Greenhouse Soil.

It is a common practice during the idle summer months to apply lime to greenhouse soils. The benefit, if any, derived from this practice depends upon the soil in question, according to Bulletin 281, January, 1915, of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, Wooster.

Soils that contain large amounts of organic matter, such as all greenhouse soils should, require certain amounts of lime for the production of maximum crops. Nitrifying organisms, to do the most effective work, require soil conditions that are not excessively acid. Soils vary widely in their natural lime contents, a sandy soil being more benefited by an application of lime on the average than one of calcareous origin. Especially would one of the latter soils, when retained for a number of years and watered with hard water, not require an additional supply, as sufficient lime could be reasonably supplied from the water. It must also be taken into consideration that plants vary widely as to lime requirements. Lettuce and cucumbers are reported to be benefited by lime, tomatoes are indifferent or slightly injured, while radishes are severely injured by its application.

Ground limestone seems to be preferable to other forms for greenhouse use. It becomes available with comparative rapidity in such soils and the dangers from the use of caustic or hydrated forms are avoided.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron Boilers.

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:
 "The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now, since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler problem. We have a (—) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place."
 (Signed) C. PETERSON & SON, Escanaba, Mich., June 28, 1913.

Kroeschell Replaces Four Cast Iron Boilers.

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:
 "We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now."

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

The stock on the market has been very fine and quite plentiful, especially gladioli, which took the lead both in shipped and local stock. Roses were good, but not so plentiful, lilies are very fine for this time of the year, and there are a few carnations and dahlias on the market.

NOTES.

The last reminder for the Kansas City Florists' Club picnic. All nurserymen, seedsmen, gardeners and florists, come out and enjoy yourselves. This invitation is extended to all persons in the business under the four different branches from coast to coast. The club would like to show outsiders what a good time you can have in Kansas City. A number of prizes, among them one diamond stick pin, donated by Sam Seligman, with Wertheimer Bros., New York; a wicker lunch basket, by the Burlington Wicker Ware Co.; 10 florists' knives presented by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York; a three foot reed porch box and stand given by A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, Ill.; ten dollars in cash, donated by M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, Pa.; a fancy bird cage, given by H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., and 50 feet of hose by the Revere Rubber Co., Boston, Mass. Date of picnic, July 28, 1915.

We regret to hear of the death of R. J. Groves, of Atchison, Kansas, who was 85 years old, and was the oldest florist operating a greenhouse in Kansas, which covered a period of about 50 years. The trade sends their deepest sympathy.

The hail last week did considerable damage to some of the florists near Independence. H. Worden, who is near the Blue Ridge boulevard, reports that the hail broke nearly all of his glass, and did damage to the plants outside. The Sunny Slope Flower Farm lost 1,000 feet of glass and the outside plants were badly damaged. Some of the hail stones measured one inch in diameter.

H. Kusick & Co. report that business is good for this time of the year. They are handling quantities of gladioli, which are very fine. They are still getting some good carnations from Colorado and a few locally. Roses are better and lilies are very fine and plentiful. Supplies are going well, especially in wire work.

W. J. Barnes has had the best week he ever had for this time of the year, especially in funeral work, which has been very heavy and says it is remarkable how business keeps up. His ferns are all well potted up and the best he has ever grown.

Are You Getting a Uniform Temperature in Your Growing Houses?

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

I don't know how I could get along without it—

Mr. Kranz of Kranz Floral Co., Ottumwa, Iowa.

THERE'S A WHOLE LOT OF SCIENCE to the proper raising of flowers.

Ability to do it properly doesn't come in a day—it takes many years.

But even the shrewdest veteran finds help in the convenience and economy of the "Morehead" system.

He knows that with it installed in his plant, he can always be sure of easily controlled, uniform temperature in ALL of his growing houses——that he will be forever free from the complications and never-ending bother of steam pumps —that he will have a dry, cheerful place in which to work.

WET WEATHER RETARDS OUTDOOR WORK.

Business so far is far ahead of last year. We have had miserable weather for the last month or so, rain and rain again, and plenty of it. The rain has delayed planting by fully four weeks, and it is impossible to do any kind of work out of doors. However, it makes gladiolus and other outdoor flowers bloom and this stock sells well with us. Carnations in the field never looked better; in fact, I never have seen carnations look so fine. Peonies, which suffered greatly from the hot and dry weather of the past few years, have been greatly benefited by the present cool moist season.

Morgan-Shawler Co. sold their fixtures to L. Henderson, who had to move from his present location to Eighteenth and Douglas streets in the Hotel Fontennell. A new building is being erected at Mr. Henderson's old stand, to which he will return on completion of the new structure.

J. J. Hess and wife will leave for the San Francisco convention July 26, as they desire to spend some time on the coast.

The florists' club will have a picnic inside of four weeks. The date has not yet been set.

MARKET IS BADLY OVERLOADED.

Business is very slow. The market is overloaded with stock, and the weak summer demand is only able to take up a part of the offerings. Both lilies and gladioli are in a glut. The receipts of each are very heavy, but only a small part sell at the low prices that prevail. The rose market, too, is crowded; no reasonable offer is ever refused, and still it is impossible to clean up. Most of the offerings in roses and American Beauties are of a very good quality. A few good carnations are still coming into the wholesale houses. Asters are becoming very plentiful, and the quality of the blooms offered up to this time is very good, when you consider that they are the early varieties.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett and C. J. Ohmer's trip to Dayton and Springfield last week in Mr. Ohmer's "Chalmers Six" was a very pleasant one. Their respective wives and Master Jim Ohmer accompanied them.

The first of the season's gladioli from P. O. Coblentz, New Madison, O., came to C. E. Critchell's during the past fortnight. These gladioli have generally been about the best in the market.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Cincinnati Florists' Society at Max Rudolph's it was decided not to hold the usual August meeting of the society.

Chas. Dudley, Jr., and R. T. Virgin of Parkersburg, W. Va., passed through this city recently on a canoe trip down the Ohio river.

Arthur Becker, of the Avondale Floral Co., left July 17 for an extended trip to the Pacific coast.

Gus Adrian and wife plan to leave for their new cottage at the Chenaux July 24.

Visitors: Mrs. Wm. Gerlack, Jr., Piqua, O.; J. F. Keller, Lexington, Ky. H.

Providence, R. I.

There is hardly demand enough to use the supply of flowers offered to the trade, and sales are not numerous enough to keep the wholesaler and retailer busy. The gladiolus is the popular flower of the day. Sweet peas are still coming good and will be still better later on. Asters are still abundant. Many of the rose growers are now drying out the houses and in con-

RODMAN M. EISENHART, Florist, Torresdale, Pa.
Violets a Specialty. Telephone Connection.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1st, 1915.

Mr. Hammond's Paint Works:

I have been using your Paint (GREENHOUSE WHITE) and TWEMLOW'S GLAZING PUTTY for the last fifteen years, and both have given me entire satisfaction, especially the Glazing Putty, which when properly put on, makes a house rainproof and almost air-tight.

Respectfully yours, R. M. EISENHART.

At a special meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, held on the evening of July 8, the members voted to hold a clambake August 21 at the grove of Henkes Brothers, Newtonville. Tickets will be $2 each for the men and $1.50 for the women.

Plans have been filed with the bureau of buildings in Schenectady for remodeling and enlarging the Schenectady Flower Shop of Julius Eger, 735 State street. Tiled floors will be laid in the salesroom, steel ceilings installed and lattice work erected. A new front of latest type with up-to-date lighting fixtures will be a feature. New show cases, ice box and other equipment will be added. In the rear of the property, a brick addition, 30x36 feet, will be built. When completed the store will be 30 feet by 74 feet with 2,200 square feet of sales' space. R. D.

EVERY business method of our concern is in some manner a benefit to our many customers

First, we would explain that we have only one price, which is reasonable and is extended to each and every customer. This avoids all confusions. Your neighbor florists all buy at exactly the same price.

Second, we have only one quality, which is the best. You always get a dollar-for-dollar value when dealing with us, and it is impossible to make a mistake in letting us have your business.

Third, we guarantee entire satisfaction in every respect.

Better write for one of our new catalogues today. It contains forty pages of illustrations and descriptions of things made just for you. It is a handy ready-reference book, as it contains net prices and everything you want to know about certain fittings or parts. We mail them free on request.

Garden Ants Do Little Harm.

An unusual number of complaints have been received this year by the United States department of agriculture from persons who say that ants are injuring their lawns and gardens. As a matter of fact, these ants do little harm and the injury that is attributed to them is usually caused by something else. In large numbers, however, the small conical nests which they build on lawns are somewhat unsightly and on this account it may be desirable to destroy them.

Where there is only a small area to be covered the simplest method is to drench the nests with boiling water or spray the lawn with kerosene emulsion or a very strong soap wash prepared by dissolving any common laundry soap in water at the rate of 1 pound or ½ pound to a gallon of water. Such methods are particularly well adapted to small lawns.

For larger ant colonies bisulphide of carbon, which can be purchased at any drug store, will be found effective. This substance can be placed in the nest by means of an oil can or small syringe. An oil can with a long spout is a convenient instrument as it can be inserted into the nests and the liquid injected without its being brought close to the operator's nose, for the fumes of bisulphide of carbon, although not poisonous, are nauseating. After the bisulphide of carbon has been injected, the opening should be closed by pressure of the foot.

Except for the unsightly appearance of their nests, however, the lawn ants do no appreciable harm. They are frequently noted on roses and on other ornamental and garden plants, and it is naturally supposed that they are doing harm to these. As a matter of fact, it is not the plants that attract the ants, but plant lice. These tiny creatures excrete a sweet liquid of which ants are very fond and which they collect without injuring the plant lice. On the other hand, it is quite possible that by bringing up from the lower depths sand and earth, they may distinctly increase fertility by forming a top dressing or soil mulch, and at the same time permit better aeration of the earth.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Hydrangeas.

The young stock that was propagated this spring can be grown either for Easter blooming with a single stem or for summer blooming with three or four heads. The plants should be now potted in 4-inch pots and plunged in a frame, where they will receive attention. They should have a good rich soil and a strong, sturdy growth encouraged. For those that are to be bloomed early, as soon as the pot becomes full of roots a little liquid manure will help the formation of a good strong bud. Those that are wanted for summer blooming, the tip can be rubbed out and branches will form. Leave the plants outside until the first light frost, which will harden off the wood, and they can then be stored in a cool house or pit where they will not freeze. Those wanted for Easter will have to be placed in heat by the first of the year.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

The early rooted Begonia Gloire de Lorraine will now need shifting into 3½-inch pots, and should be given a little stronger soil than the young stock was potted in, but the manure used should be well rotted, and, where obtainable, a generous addition of leaf-mold. As the plants grow, space them out so that they will not become drawn and so that there is a good circulation of air around each plant. They will need a little shade on the glass for a few weeks, yet, but it should not be too heavy. As the nights become cool it is well to close the frames down if they are outside, or if in the greenhouse, close the ventilators, leaving a small crack of air on, or the house will sweat, which is not at all beneficial to begonias, as it is very apt to cause spot on the leaf. If this occurs remove the leaf at once. Care should be taken in the watering not to wet the foliage any more than possible. The later rooted stock will not need potting up until later, but all the growth possible should be obtained by giving them the best of attention. If the grower has not stock enough on hand, now is the time to purchase before the plants are shifted into large pots, when the price will be higher and the transportation charges increased.

Pyrethrums.

An early summer flower that is very showy and beautiful, ranging in colors from white to the deepest scarlet, with all the intermediate shades, is the Pyrethrum roseum, and it is being much more grown every year for cut-flower purposes. The best flowers are to be obtained by buying named varieties, but good selected seed will give fair satisfaction and many handsome flowers. The greatest trouble in growing these plants in the north is the danger of winter killing and crown rot during extremely wet spells in hot weather. Seed sown during July and August and wintered in houses or cold frames will produce plants that will flower next summer. Obtain the best seed possible and sow in flats and as soon as large enough pot in 2½-inch pots. These can be grown on in a frame until cold weather comes on, when they can be securely covered or carried into a cool house and wintered under a bench, started in March and planted out as soon as secure from frost, and will flower in June and July.

Paper White Narcissi.

The Paper White narcissi are now being received and as soon as delivered should be unpacked and spread out in flats or on shelves in a cool, dry place. If they remain in the original cases, they are apt to become moist or heated when packed closely. They should be handled carefully and not thrown around so that they become bruised or the outer covering torn off.
This covering is a great protection for the bulb, preventing it from drying.
Plan how the bulbs are to be flowered, that is, how many are to be brought forward each week, and start at once to box up the first lot and then continue the plantings at the desired intervals. The flats or boxes should be prepared at once, not only for these, but for the other bulbs. It is the general custom to use any old box that can be obtained, and they are, therefore, of different sizes and different depths. They do not pack closely when placed outside, neither do they seem to fit on the bench in an economical manner. Our experience has been rather than to buy a mixed lot of boxes of different sizes, it is better and cheaper to purchase stock at the lumber mill and saw it into the proper length. Get one-half-inch stock, three inches wide, for the sides and bottom and one-inch stock the same width for the ends. Saw the ends 12 inches long and the sides 24 inches. This will make a flat 13x24 inches by using four pieces for the bottom and will allow proper drainage. A flat of these dimensions will hold about 50 Paper White narcissi or 60 to 70 tulips, and will cost but little more in the price of the box and can be made with much less labor, and when the boxes are all of one size they can be placed upon the benches with much saving of room. As soon as the bulbs are planted in the flats they should be placed in a dark, cool place and covered with soil or ashes until rooted, when they can be brought into the houses. The early planted bulbs will require good heat to bloom them successfully, much warmer temperature than the later planted bulbs.

Sweet Scented Geraniums.

The grower who has a stock of rose or other sweet-scented geraniums can turn them to good account by planting them in a bench in the greenhouse and can obtain some fine sprays for winter cutting. The green is very much appreciated by the best trade and there is always a demand in the stores catering to that class for more of this than can be obtained. The sprays are cut 12 to 14 inches long and are used in the boxes of cut flowers. There is also a demand for the leaves, to be placed in the finger-bowls at luncheons. It is easily grown in a cool house and very rapidly makes long sprays fit to cut. The plants can be set about eight inches apart, which will give them plenty of room, provided the sprays are cut as soon as they are long enough for use.

A Charming Autumn Crocus.

When at Kew at few days ago we were very charmed with a small bed of Crocus longiflorum situated by the rose pergola. Although the circular bed was barely 2 feet in diameter, there must have been well over a hundred of the beautiful lilac blue flowers. Each of these has a vivid orange stigma, which adds not a little to its attractiveness. This charming November crocus is a native of Southern Italy, and deserves to be cultivated wherever a sunny spot can be devoted to it.—London Garden.

ALDEN, N. Y.—Following dissolution of partnership, J. B. Miller will hereafter conduct the business formerly known under the firm name of Miller & Stroh.

NEWTON, KAN.—Fire of an unknown origin, but which is thought to have originated from crossed electric light wires, consumed the boiler room and potting shed and partially destroyed the greenhouses of B. Guenther, July 21. No insurance. Rebuilding will commence at once.

Sidney Hoffman Creditors Choose Trustee.

Representing 72 claims aggregating $32,000, Alexander I. Stoneman was elected trustee in the case of Sidney Hoffman, florist, Boston, Mass., in the first meeting of creditors before Referee in Bankruptcy Gibbs, July 16. Mr. Stoneman also served as receiver. His bond was fixed at $4,900.

Those Summer Windows.

The windows of the florists these days are a little funny and a little pathetic.

They are trying to bring the country to town and box it up behind plate glass.

They have discarded all the hot-house varieties and returned to the simple daisy of the field.

There are black-eyed susans and the white and yellow kind which tell so plainly whether "she loves you or loves you not" when you pull off the petals.

These are not arranged with loops of ribbon or bows of tulle, but are accompanied by little china birds in ponds in tin pans, and rustic baskets.

One window is a grotto, covered with moss, with real birds (in cages) in it.

So, you see, we are not fooled at all and look with somewhat jaded eyes at these denizens of the hedgerows.

We would let every birdling fly and every daisy return where the breezes would play through its long, slender stems and the dew of night bathe its thirsty little face with freshness.

We would have no one touch it but a barefooted child as it pattered over the cool, damp earth of the road.

We would have no birds languishing in "grottoes" when God has given unto them the earth, the sky and all that is therein for their own.

We want no playthings in the shape of china birds and tin pan ponds—only babies in the kindergarten want these—and our babies should be out in the green places paddling their feet in real ponds, catching fish (or thinking they do) with a bent pin.

We do not criticise these windows; they are pretty in their way, but it is the prettiness of a dressed up child, dancing on the stage.

We want to take it away; carry it safely in our arms and set it down in a sweet smelling meadow where little lambs and calves are frisking about in their new found joy of living—Detroit Times.

Telephoned Orders.

A great deal of business now comes to the shop over the telephone. Many things are forgotten until the last minute, then a hurry-up call is made by 'phone and the order given to be filled at once. Extreme cold or otherwise inclement weather keeps customers indoors and recourse is made to the 'phone, which should be always found in good receiving order. All unnecessary calls from the store end should be barred, as to be reported "busy" to an impatient person is often the loss of an order. Whether the trade be large or of medium size, there should be sufficient service. Many a shop gets along on one telephone when they should have two. After the first is installed the second costs only about one-third more, and if there is use for it at all, it is very well worth the extra cost.

The telephone brings out human nature to a degree. Many persons would not address or speak to another as they do over the 'phone if they were face to face over the counter. The oftentimes coarse "hello" in answering the 'phone is changed at once when it is discovered who the caller is. The answer should be in a tone of voice as to a person present. "Yes, this is Smiths, Mr. Brown speaking." If some one else is wanted and not just at hand, the order should, if possible, be taken to be called to the attention of the salesman wanted, or the name and number of the customer secured, to be called at once on his return. Many persons when giving an order in this way do not know just what they want, and not being able to see the stock, it is up to the salesman to suggest something on hand, first finding out, without of course directly asking, the price or limit of cost. Of course all orders should be up to the standard of the shop, always fresh, carefully boxed and delivered on time. But the 'phone order needs all this and a little more, as the least slight or omission brings forth the thought, "I should have selected them personally and I might have seen something I would have liked better."

Many orders are received by 'phone on personal solicitation. This method of getting business has to be carefully conducted. A salesman must know the customer and must only appeal when there is something choice on hand; that is, their favorite flower or plant, or that they would delight in sending to some one else. At another time the market is full of choice flowers, roses for instance, that could be offered at a low price, which bargain often appeals to the customer and a lot of flowers can be moved in this way. Such selling must not be overdone, or one would become a nuisance. Telephones should always be enclosed in booths with order blanks and pencils that belong there. There should be plenty of natural light and electricity for night. A calendar in plain sight is often a great help. It is very important to be ready for instant service, as some persons dislike to be asked to wait or to repeat portions of their message. Customers should be asked to leave some of their personal cards, which can be placed in the box ordered in this way and is much more personal than one written by some one else. K.

Liberty Bell Decoration at San Francisco.

The accompanying illustration shows the Liberty Bell as it appeared on the streets of San Francisco on the way to a place of honor at the Panama-Pacific exposition, and it is doubtful if in all of its travels the historic relic ever had a more beautiful setting. The float upon which the bell was mounted, 14 by 30 feet, was built upon a large auto truck and so designed that the chauffeur could not be seen. Ten thousand American Beauty, Russell and Ulrich Brunner roses and 6,000 carnations were used in the decoration, the flag and shield designs on each side of the arrangement being 5x8 feet and 4x5 feet, respectively.

Angelo J. Rossi, manager of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and chairman of the citizens' Liberty Bell committee appointed by Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, designed and personally supervised the decoration, which was a credit to all concerned. J. R. F.

Sweet Pea Trial Grounds at Cornell Univ.

Report of Prof. A. C. Beal, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., rendered at the annual meeting of the American Sweet Pea Society, Newport, R. I., July 15, 1915.

During the past year we were able to resume our trials with the winter-flowering sweet peas. Although we did not come into possession of the necessary greenhouse space in time to sow them for the early crop, we were able to plant during October, and therefore had an excellent crop of flowers during midwinter and spring. In fact, last year's crop was the best we have ever had. A large collection of varieties were received from Ant. C. Zvolanek and a few varieties from other seedsmen. Some of the older varieties were grown for comparison, and altogether there were sixty varieties in the collection. Among the newer sorts the following are very promising.

Bridal Veil.—A large to very large, much-waved white flower.

King of England.—A large waved flower, of a bright glowing crimson color. In our experience this variety is the best red for greenhouse culture.

Rev. Father Kelly.—A large to very large, much-waved lavender flower. Some of the standards show tints of mauve-rose, but change to the same color as the wings. The exact color is not given in the "Repertoire des Couleurs" being less red than 188 (1) and less blue than 201 (1).

Belgian Hero.—A large waved flower with the standard salmon-carmine and wings purple-rose. This would be called by the trade an orange-pink. When grown in late spring or summer, this variety, unless shaded, shows the blackened veins common to flowerers of this color; but in winter this variety was free from this defect. When well grown it is a fine variety.

Morning Star.—A very large much-waved flower with the standard bright mauve-rose and wings violet-rose. These are the approximate colors, as the real colors lie between the two, and the flower is more nearly a self than is indicated.

Mrs. Calvert.—A large waved deep pink flower. The standards are mauve-rose and the wings pale lilac-rose; a beautiful flower.

Polar Light.—A large waved flower; standard lilac-rose, wings darker.

Waved Christmas Pink.—Appears to be a decided improvement on the widely-grown Christmas Pink.

The above are the best of the collection for commercial culture, but there are others of considerable promise which we have not space to describe as Pacific, Montenegrin, President Wilson and Polar Bear. The above varieties were free from rogues, and all the varieties indicate a very great advance in the winter-flowering section. Of the varieties received from other growers, Selma Swenson is a large to very large waved, pale lilac-rose with light violet-rose wings.

This season in the open ground we have 70 varieties of comparatively recent introduction, and about an equal number of the oldest varieties. The latter we are growing to secure seed so that we may keep them for a few years. It is probable that the plants at Cornell are the only existing plants of some of these old varieties which are so interesting to those of us who wish to note the progress in the evolution of sweet peas. These, of course, were sown in the open ground. The new varieties referred to were not received until the latter part of March, probably because of the war, and were sown in pots at once. Had we been able to forecast April conditions this year, we should have sown them in the open, because when we did transplant, we had a dry period which tended to check the plants. They are now beginning to bloom, although the amount of growth is less than usual. It is too early to estimate the real worth of these varieties. What I shall say, therefore, is only tentative and subject to revision. At present we consider:

Stark's Giant Buff.—This with us is the largest varied variety of its class.

Duchess of Portland (Dobbie, 1915).—A very large cream-pink.

Alfred (Dobbie, 1915).—A good sized clear pale lavender.

Blue Picotee (Dobbie).—Appears to surpass all other blue picotees.

Robert Sydenham.—The first flowers of this have proved a disappointment to us for it burns. We have had very unusual weather in that we have had frequent heavy rains alternated with bright sun. Possibly settled weather would result in better flowers, although the fault is not an uncommon one among the varieties of this color section.

Stark's Soft Salmon is a pretty thing, but we wish to see more of it.

King White is the leading exhibition white, and Wedgewood appears likely to supplant the other waved blues.

Brooklands' Queen, Sincerity, Dobbie's Orange, Spitfire and others may prove desirable.

We hope that conditions may be better this fall and that we can receive seeds earlier next year for outdoor growing. In closing let me urge the members of this society to use their influence to get varieties for the trial grounds. This fall we shall have better facilities for testing winter-flowering sweet peas than we have ever had before. We shall have a new modern house, forty feet wide at our disposal, and the tests will be made under commercial conditions as we plan to use the house and crop as an object lesson in growing winter-flowering sweet peas. If we can secure all the varieties now in the trade for trial with our present notes, we can later issue another publication bringing the subject up to date.

HAIL NOTES.

Hail at Omaha and Council Bluffs.

A severe hailstorm which visited Omaha, Neb., and vicinity, July 18, caused heavy damage to greenhouse glass. At Bonde's Greenhouse, Benson, Neb., all glass was destroyed, with no insurance.

George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.
Vice-President American Sweet Pea Society.

At Omaha, Samuel R. Faulkner, 906 South Fortieth street, and P. B. Floth, 3102 Burt street, suffered losses of 25 per cent and 60 per cent respectively, both covered by insurance. Lewis Henderson's loss was slight. The ranges of A. Donaghue, Chas. Ederer and Hess & Swoboda, on the north side of the city, escaped without damage.

At Council Bluffs, Ia., J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., had 136,000 square feet broken at their range at Lake Manawa. These houses were all in roses and were in splendid shape. This firm's Pierce street establishment suffered no loss; in fact, no loss is reported from Council Bluffs except that to the houses at Lake Manawa.

GRIPPE.

Hail Losses Heavy in West.

Insurance companies carrying hail risks, not having well-distributed business, will show some odd reports this year. Those having business confined chiefly to Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma will have loss ratios running in the neighborhood of 100 per cent. Those whose risks are limited to the northwest will show a nice profit, while those with business scattered from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada will about break even.

Hall at Colorado Springs.

A severe hailstorm, which started about four o'clock on the afternoon of July 18 and continued about half an hour, caused great damage to glass and stock at the range of the Pikes Peak Floral Co., Colorado Springs, Colo. The hailstones were of large size and the greatest damage was on the north and west slopes of the houses, the storm coming from that direction.

Owing to favorable weather conditions since the storm, the stock, which at first appeared to be badly damaged, is coming through better than was anticipated, and enough good carnations are being cut to take care of all orders and there has been no interruption to business. The accompanying illustration gives a good idea of the extent of the damage.

Storm Losses in New Jersey.

Electrical storms, accompanied by heavy hail, swept the territory in the vicinity of Summit, Madison, Chatham and Murray Hill, N. J., July 13. Greenhouse glass suffered severely and truck gardens were cut to pieces by the hail, or the crops torn up by the wind and blown away. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

The establishments of Nason & Son, Murray Hill, and M. L. Force, Morristown, N. J., both suffered loss of glass and stock, while at Westfield the range of Herder Bros. was completely wrecked and the contents destroyed. A dwelling being erected for William Jacobsen at his range at Springfield, N. J., was badly damaged.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met at the office of President S. S. Pennock, 1612 Ludlow street, Philadelphia, Pa., July 20. The appointment of Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill., and John H. Dunlop, Richmond Hill, Ontario, as judges for the rose exhibits at the Cleveland flower show to be held in the Coliseum in Cleveland November 10-15, was confirmed. Robert Scott & Sons of Sharon Hill, Pa., offer a special prize of $25 at this show.

The Hartford rose garden committee, consisting of John F. Huss, Wallace R. Pierson and Alex Cumming, Jr., report: "On June 25 the new roses of the test garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., were closely examined and silver medals were awarded as follows:

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove Pa.—Climbing American Pillar Rose, awarded a silver medal. Scored 85 points; highly recommended as pillar rose.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.—Killarney Queen, hybrid tea, awarded a silver medal. Scored 85 points; recommended as a grand bedding rose.

Hoopes Bros. & Thomas, West Chester, Pa.—Purity, hybrid Wichuriana, awarded a silver medal. Scored 87 points; a splendid grower that is recommended for every collection and garden.

Hoopes Bro. & Thomas, West Chester, Pa.—Climbing American Beauty, awarded a silver medal. Scored 87 points; a grand profuse bloomer deserving to be recommended for every garden.

CHICAGO GRAND FLORAL FESTIVAL, COLISEUM, NOV. 9-14, 1915.

The Plan Shows the Main Floor of the Exhibition Hall, in the Center of Which Competitive Exhibits Will Be Arranged. The Sides and Ends Have Been Reserved for Trade Displays, with Spaces 1 to 27, 30 Cents Per Square Foot; Spaces 28 to 34, 20 Cents Per Square Foot. For Reservations and All Other Information Regarding Space, Address A. Henderson, Chairman Trade Space Committee, 369 River Street, Chicago. First Come, First Served.

Hugh Dickson, Ltd., Belfast, Ireland.—Lady Pirrie, hybrid tea, awarded a silver medal. Scored 85 points; recommended as a splendid bedding rose.

Edward Kress, 2506 North avenue, Baltimore, Md.—Registered as Defiance, hybrid tea; scored 85 points. Highly recommended as a most excellent bedding rose.

There have been added a number of new varieties of American origin this spring which will be watched with great interest in the future, and more are promised for the planting in coming fall. Much interest has been especially devoted to this test garden by the lovers of roses, and the garden has been unusually well visited this season.

The National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia, Pa., next spring is gaining a good deal of attention and interest from the rose growers near Philadelphia.

The Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., presented for registration two (2) new roses, as follows:

Mrs. Bayard Thayer—a sport from Mrs. Charles Russell. Flower is large and full, color outside of petals deep rose, inside clear silver pink; foliage large and very dark green, perfectly flat; no tendency to curl as is sometimes the case with Mrs. Charles Russell.

Mrs. Moorfield Storey—a seedling. (General McArthur X Joey Hill). A large full rose with heavy dark foliage; color shell pink, deeper towards the center; tip of petals deep rose.

These were directed to be accepted and published in accordance with the rules of the American Rose Society.

The Cleveland rose show was discussed and the desirability of holding a meeting in that city during the show was advocated and a motion made to that effect, and carried.

Foley's Ball-Bearing Ventilating Machine.

The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., Chicago, is marketing this year and selling a considerable quantity of its new ventilating machine, users of which say it is the easiest running and best machine so far placed on the market, having special superior points in its construction, which as far as known, have never before been used in ventilating machines.

The special feature which makes it so easy running and capable of handling such a large run of sash is the ball-bearing feature in the machine. The machine is neat and striking in appearance, is not cumbersome or clumsy, is very reasonable in cost and requires very little effort to handle. In addition to being ball-bearing in the machine part, the upper sprocket bracket is roller-bearing. Every part of the machine is built with especial care to meet requirements, and it is the last word, so to speak, in sash operating or ventilating machines.

One of these machines was recently exhibited at the meeting of the Texas State Florists' Association, and was commented on very favorably by all who tried it. These machines are in operation now in many ranges throughout the United States, including a new range constructed for the state of Ohio at the State University, Columbus, O.

Carnation Yellows.

Attention American Carnation Society members! The department of floriculture of the University of Illinois is conducting experiments for the purpose of determining the cause of, and a remedy for the disease known as yellows among carnations. These experiments were started last year and have advanced far enough to promise definite results. There is perhaps no work in which the members of the society could be more vitally interested on account of the prevalence of this disease, and the damage it is doing the carnation industry.

In order to carry on these experiments successfully and to arrive at definite conclusions, they require material from all sections of the country and to that end we ask that all members of the society forward to them a limited number of each variety showing these light spots (in the red and crimson sorts the spots are dark purplish) in the leaves. The experimental benches will be planted during the first two weeks of August, and these specimens should be forwarded during that time. Label each variety plainly. The names of those sending in material will not be made public so that no apprehension need be felt along that score. Address all packages to Department of Floriculture, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

Twin City Florists' Outing.

Florists of the Twin Cities departed themselves at Spring park, Lake Minnetonka, July 20, the occasion being the annual outing of members of the craft from St. Paul and Minneapolis. Over 300 attended, going to the lake by special train.

In the tug of war between St. Paul and Minneapolis, the florists of St. Paul won. In the old women's race, two St. Paul women broke the tape together. Superior hiking by the St. Paul "kids" won three out of five prizes offered in the children's race. St. Paul had the fastest two out of three fat men in the party.

It was in the young women's race that Minneapolis came to the front with a win, but their triumph was short lived, for the Saintry City's elders came through with four old men crossing the finish ahead of a lonely old man from Minneapolis. St. Paul young men also won four out of five places in their race.

Henry Krinke of St. Paul, 60 years old, said to be the oldest florist in the Twin Cities, took the prize for the best old fashioned waltz in the dancing contest.

Not only fleet of foot, but good with the willow, were the St. Paulites, for they ran around the bases and swatted the ball for nine innings of the contest at the national pastime with the "Minnies" until an 11 to 3 defeat was administered.

Chicago Florists' Club Picnic.

The thirtieth annual basket picnic of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at St. Paul Park, Morton Grove, Sunday, July 25, and was largely attended, considering the unfavorable weather and the Eastland disaster the day before, when over 1,000 people were drowned as the boat capsized in the river. The committee held a meeting on Saturday, July 24, in regard to postponing the affair in honor of the dead, but owing to the late hour and committee worked hard, but everything was against them, for it rained the greater part of the afternoon, but the programme was followed out closely.

The baseball game between the Growers and Wholesalers was one of the finest exhibitions ever held on the Morton Grove diamond and was the feature event of the day. The team representing the Growers, led by Peter Olsen, defeated the nine representing the Wholesalers, led by William Lorman, by a close and exciting score of 3 to 1. The winning team received $10 in cash, donated by Peter Reinberg and J. A. Budlong, and 12 bottles of wine donated by the D. H. Sullivan Wine Co., and the losing team, nine pocket knives, donated by Poehlmann Bros. Co. and 50 cigars given by M. J. Hanley.

The results of the races and other sporting events are as follows:

Fat men's race, 100-yard dash—Morris Grossberg, first, $10 in cash, donated by the Foley Manufacturing Co.; J. W. Fink, second, 50 Perfecto cigars, given by the Perfecto Cafe; John Goede, third, one pair of pruning shears, donated by Vaughan's Seed Store.

Married men's race, 150-yard dash—W. Wallace, first, Goodrich Rubber Co. prize, 50 feet of garden hose; Fritz Simons, second, John C. Moninger Co.'s prize, silk umbrella; J. Gurgens, third, three cans of Frat cigars, donated by the George C. Knight cigar store.

Single men's race, 150-yard dash—Luke Schrer, first, 50 cigars, donated by M. J. Hanley; P. W. Brust, second, pair of shoes, donated by Rosenbach's Shoe Store; Ray Harris, third, pair of pruning shears, Vaughan's Seed Store prize.

Growers' race, 150-yard dash—W. Wallace, first, one-half ton of fertilizer, donated by Chicago Feed and Fertilizer

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF TWIN CITY FLORISTS' PICNIC,

The prize-winners in the field events were as follows:

Children's race—Kenneth Steath, Minneapolis, first; Albert Stearn, Minneapolis, second; Gladys Soedren, Minneapolis, third; Eugene Olson, St. Paul, fourth; Mary Bolsky, Merriam Park, fifth.

Boy's race—George Olson, St. Paul, first; Robert Stern, Minneapolis, second; Warren Olson, St. Paul, third.

Young men's race—Chas. Heard, St. Paul, first; Geo. Patterson, Minneapolis, second; Geo. Rowan, St. Paul, third.

Girl's race—Elsie Puvogel, St. Paul, first; Edna Gustafson, St. Paul, second; Helen Olson, St. Paul, third.

Young ladies' race—Bertha Anderson, Minneapolis, first; Dorothy Anderson, Minneapolis, second; Florence Medici, St. Paul, third.

Ladies' race—Mrs. W. D. Desmond, Minneapolis, first; Mrs. L. W. Gray, St. Paul, second; Mrs. Jake Gazetti, Minneapolis, third.

Men's race—H. H. Puvogel, St. Paul, first; Lawrence Milroy, Minneapolis, second; Frank Kenney, Minneapolis, third.

Fat man's race—F. A. Bayley, St. Paul, first; Frank Penas, St. Paul, second; Louis Dancik, Minneapolis, third.

Tug-of-war between Minneapolis and St. Paul—Won by St. Paul.

Tug-of-war between Minneapolis ladies and St. Paul ladies—Won by Minneapolis team.

Base ball, Minneapolis vs. St. Paul, nine innings played—Won by St. Paul score 11-3.

Prize waltzing—Mrs. W. D. Desmond, Minneapolis, and Henry Krinke, St. Paul, first; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rice, second; John Rovik and Miss Anna Loudon, third.

the impossibility of notifying the trade in time, it was decided that the best thing to do was to go ahead and hold the picnic as scheduled. PICNIC NOTES.

W. J. Keimel had to leave rather early in order to meet a sister, who arrived from out of town in the afternoon. Mr. Keimel left his family at the picnic to await his return, but forgot to leave the lunch basket with them, and carried it back with him in his car. He returned in the evening and the way the grub disappeared shows that the growers' families have keen appetites.

Anton Then brought a whole truckload of people to the picnic, all of whom celebrated August Jurgens' forty-eighth birthday. The party had all the lunch they could eat in addition to plenty of the liquid that made Milwaukee famous.

Did you notice how the gentlemen patronized the ice cream stand? The writer could mention some names, but to keep peace in the families he will refrain from doing so.

The Amling boys from Maywood can certainly play ball and were responsible to a great extent in helping the growers win.

Arnold Ringier and James Morton can run some. If you do not believe it watch them some time in the fat men's race.

Ed. Goldenstein was the only gentleman on the grounds carrying a walking stick. Some class to Ed.

P. W. Peterson autoed from Joliet in his new automobile and reports having had a delightful time.

Phil Foley had his two sons, James and Phil, Jr., for a personal bodyguard. Believe me, some escort.

OUTING OF TWIN CITY FLORISTS, SPRING GROVE, LAKE MINNETONKA, JULY 20.

Fred. Liebermann pitched some game and Allie Zech played a dandy game behind the bat.

H. S. Philpott, of Winnipeg, was one of the out-of-town visitors that attended the picnic.

August Pöehlmann and family attended the picnic in a new Winton Six. A. Miller umpired a good game, but should have been in the line-up.

Pyfer & Olsem brought quite a crowd with them from Wilnetta.

Cleveland.

STOCK UNIFORMLY GOOD; PRICES LOW.

There was no perceptible change in the cut flower line the past week from last week's report. Outdoor stock is quite plentiful, with asters and gladioli running far ahead. Roses, with the exception of white, are also plentiful. Stock is uniformly good, with prices ruling low.

NOTES.

Chas. A. Calhoun, aged 73, pioneer resident of East Cleveland, and at one time the largest grower of watermelons in Cuyahoga county, died July 17 after two years' illness at his home, 13226 Euclid avenue. Mr. Calhoun was born in Erie, Pa., and came here in 1848. He followed the truck gardening business. In 1878 he planted 40 acres of melons. He is survived by his widow and two sons, Grant and Willard Calhoun, Willard Calhoun being in the florist business, with greenhouses at 13226 Euclid avenue.

Frank Riley, of the Heefe Co., florists at Akron, Ohio, was entertaining friends from Cleveland the other day and planned to treat them to rhubarb pie. His wife and son went to purchase the rhubarb and some other things. Later his son brought a long parcel to Papa Riley at the store. He guessed at once it was the rhubarb. Riley put the package in the cooler until he went home. When he arrived he laid the parcel on the table, but it Graham, Jr., Tim Smith, Clarence Meyers, Baird, Rotter. The "penny scramble" for the little boys and girls, the "cock fight" and watermelon eating contests, were all exciting and amusing, and created no end of fun and laughter. There were about 25 different contests requiring skill and muscle, and the way the florists went at them showed they were no "mollycoddles." C. F. B.

Washington.

There is very little to say in regard to the market, as stock in general, outside of asters and a few gladioli, are poor, and the best of these can be had for $10 per thousand.

NOTES.

Mrs. J. A. Phillips, the popular florist of Mt. Pleasant, has entered the contest for the most popular land on the hill and from last returns is in a fair way to receive the prize, which is a trip to San Francisco, Calif.

Mrs. G. C. Shaffer and son are enjoying their vacation at Atlantic City, where Mr. Shaffer expects to join them each week end.

FUNERAL WORK RELIEVES DULLNESS.

Occasional days when there is a liberal amount of funeral work is about all that relieves the mid-summer dullness. Flowers of all seasonable varieties are plentiful, and asters are now coming in in such quantities that a market cannot be found for them. Outside sweet peas are still very good, and gladioli are arriving in oversupply.

OBITUARY.

James C. Wallace.

James C. Wallace, a conspicuous figure in the history of the development of the San Gabriel valley, died at his home in Alhambra, Calif., July 11, after a short sickness due to a complication of diseases. He was 83 years of age. Mr. Wallace had not been actively engaged in business for more than twelve years, although until his recent illness he had excellent health. His home has for many years been one of the show places of Alhambra.

He is survived by a widow, two daughters, Mrs. S. M. Kennedy and Mrs. D. L. Reynolds, and five sons, Glen C., J. Wiley, George A., Benjamin W. and Walter J.

Jordan Lawrence Mott.

Jordan Lawrence Mott, millionaire iron master and head of the J. L. Mott Iron Works, of New York, who specializes in garden vases, gates, fences, etc., died at his home on Fifth avenue, July 27. He had been ill for a long time. Mr. Mott was 86 years old.

Far Rockaway, N. Y.

H. Bergman, who recently leased the store and conservatory formerly conducted by Henry Hart, of New York, is doing a good business. During the spring he had large orders for landscape work and planting and employed a number of men. As this is a popular summer resort, business in cut flowers continues good. His conservatory is well stocked with palms and ferns for decorative work. A. F. F.

FORT SMITH, ARK.—The annual meeting of the Arkansas State Horticultural Society will be held in this city, December 7-10.

SIoux CITY, IA.—Work has begun on the new greenhouses for Rev. John Kroonemeyer, which will cost $10,000 when completed.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—A sunken playground for children, and other improvements will be made at Reservoir park this season.

COLUMBUS, O.—E. H. Burkley and J. U. Cassidy have a permit to erect greenhouses at 237-245 Richardson avenue, to cost $1,500.

DAYTON, O.—Mrs. W. G. Matthews is suffering from a nervous breakdown and is receiving treatment in a hospital at Martinsville, Ind.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Nofftz, the Florist, has discontinued his retail store at 106 William street, all business being now handled from his greenhouse, 961 Kempton street.

NEW CUMBERLAND, PA.—The New Cumberland Floral Co., which recently changed hands, is now under the management of W. H. Riley, formerly of Sherburne Falls, Mass.

WEST HARTFORD, CONN.—Carl Peterson, in charge of the Whiting Greenhouses for the past 18 years, and manager for Miss Helen F. Whiting for the past 10 years, has leased the establishment for a term of years and taken possession.

GREENWICH, N. Y.—After having been engaged in the florist business for the past 41 years, P. H. Hulst has sold his greenhouse to Frank H. Westinghouse and will retire. The house will be removed and added to the Westinghouse property on Academy street.

wasn't rhubarb. It was a new corset his wife had purchased.

ANNUAL OUTING.

Between 250 and 300 florists and their friends attended the club's outing at Willough Beach park, July 23. The day was ideal, the grounds and bathing beaches fine, and everyone had a good time. The retailers beat the wholesalers in the indoor ball game by a score of 9 to 7, and the wholesalers retaliated by trimming the retailers in the base ball game to the tune of 13 to 12. The line-ups were as follows:

Indoor ball. Wholesalers—Herb Bates, Al Lungruen, K. Wilson, S. Berthold, J. Talsott, Baird, Geo. W. Smith, C. F. Bastian, Rotter. Retailers—Al Bar-

Cut flower sales have dropped off and design work is about all that the florists can do now. Most of the growers are busy planting chrysanthemums and getting the benches ready for carnations.

NOTES.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island will hold its annual outing in August.

Matthew Macnair is enjoying his vacation and will be away about a month.

W. E. Chappell is enjoying a water trip to Florida as his vacation.

Kresge's flower department will be closed during the summer.

Hews, Oldest Flower Pot Maker.

The well known firm of A. H. Hews & Co., Inc., Cambridge, Mass., manufacturers of flower pots and other earthen ware specialties, is celebrating its one hundred and fiftieth anniversary this year and lays claim to the title of the oldest and largest manufacturers of flower pots in the world, having been established in 1765. We heartily congratulate the firm on the occasion and there is every reason to believe that in its high grade products and fair dealing with patrons this concern will continue to serve future generations of florists with that conspicuous honesty and industry which secured for it the front rank held so long among trade manufacturers.

In addition to the standard sizes of flower pots and pans this firm makes earthen ware specialties of all sizes and patterns to order. A new list of flower pots and florists' ware has just been issued, copy of which will be mailed by the firm on receipt of postal card request.

Chicago to San Francisco.

The transportation committee of the Society of American Florists announces the selection of the Chicago & Northwestern Ry., in connection with the Union Pacific R. R., Denver and Rio Grande R. R. and the Southern Pacific R. R. as the official route from Chicago to the S. A. F. & O. H. 1915 convention at San Francisco, Calif. August 17-19.

The official train which will leave Chicago at 10:00 p. m., August 12, will consist of all steel equipment, embodying all that is modern in railway travel of today, including luxurious Pullman sleeping cars, with open sections, compartments and drawing rooms. The official route selected as given in the schedule below has been selected not only on account of its scenic wonders, but because it will give each member the pleasure of combining his business trip with one of recreation at the least possible cost, and based upon time, safety, comfort and scenery.

A low round trip rate of $62.50, Chicago to San Francisco, with a return limit of three months, but not exceeding December 31, 1915, is in effect daily until November 30, and correspondingly low rates are in effect from other stations to Chicago. These tickets permit a wide choice of routes returning, with liberal stop-over and side trip privileges.

Members of the Chicago party may return east by such individual route as each individual may prefer, with date of departure and stop-over privileges as desired. The route must be selected, however, at the time tickets are purchased.

POOR QUALITY STOCK CROWDS MARKET.

The market during the past week was at a standstill. There are not as many gladioli as last week, but asters are here and there is an over-supply of some flower or another daily. Roses open up quickly and short stemmed stock is a glut. Most of the carnations coming in are poor and do not sell even at bargain prices. Tuberoses are also poor and sell slowly. Dahlias are not selling well, no fancy stock being seen.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The twenty-second outing of the St. Louis Florists' Club took place at Ramona park, July 22. Over 500 were present and pronounced the picnic the best in the history of the club. After the arrival of the reception and game committees, Pelletier's band started the ball rolling, while Geo. H. Angermueller distributed fans and slap sticks and members of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. presented toy balloons. The games were very exciting and the prizes liberal. The ball game was last on the programme, the growers marching off the grounds with the retailers' "scalps" with a score of 22 to 20. H. G. Berning and Al. Gumz umpired the game.

Among the many with smiling faces, who were having a thoroughly good time were Bob Newcomb, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, in his palm beach suit, much admired by the ladies; W. A. Rowe, Frank A. Windler, W. H. Ossick, H. G. Berning and wife, Geo. H. Angermueller, Wm. C. Smith, F. C. Weber and his little son, and F. H. Weber and family. The field events and awards were as follows:

Seventy-five yard dash—O. Ruff, first; J. A. McAllister, second.

Flag race—M. Dahm, first; H. Borkern, second.

Backward walk—G. Hartmann, first; W. Ogle, second.

Necktie contest—Miss Erlinger, first; Jesse Tanders, second.

Ball scramble—John and Gus Cerny, first and second.

Calico contest—Miss Rickey, first; Mrs. Edwards, second.

Guinea catch—Williams Brothers, first and second.

Fifty yard dash—E. Clobes, first; W. Weinberger, second.

Time walk—Mrs. Pilcher, first; Mrs. Lohrenze, second.

Ball throwing—Miss Nieshemmer, first; Miss Woods, second.

Needle threading contest—Mrs. Pring, first; Mrs. Rowen, second.

Fifty yard dash—Joe Hauser, first; J. J. Beneke, second.

Clock contest—Fred Strohmeier, first; Mrs. O. C. May, second.

Seed guessing contest—W. J. Pilcher, first; Jean Andrews, second.

Ladies' tug-of-war—Married ladies won.

Men's tug-of-war—Growers' team won.

NOTES.

Five acres of ground on the south side of Olive street road was purchased last week by C. Young & Sons Co., who plan to build greenhouses of the latest type at a cost of $20,000, Charles C. Young, son of James Young, will handle the management of the range. This firm had been located at the southwest corner of Waterman and Bell avenues, for 30 years, but apartment houses and rapid increase of land values made the location too valuable for greenhouse purposes. Preparations for the building of their new greenhouses will commence at once.

The Diener Floral Co. made up a very handsome design of the new Free bridge, Mrs. Diener being the designer.

BRISK DEMAND FOR STOCK.

There has been a brisk demand for stock all week which was due principally to the terrible disaster that occurred July 24 when the large lake excursion steamer Eastland capsized in the river and over 1,000 lives were lost. The market took a turn for the better as soon as the news reached the wholesale houses which was about 7:40 a. m., Saturday morning, but the real demand did not set in until the following Sunday and Monday and is still keeping up with the market pretty well cleaned up at this writing, Wednesday, July 28. Stocks of all kinds with the exception of long stemmed American Beauty roses cleaned up well especially gladioli, roses, carnations, asters, peonies and other miscellaneous flowers. While roses sold well the demand was principally for short stemmed stock and when this kind was not available the longer stemmed grades moved at good prices. Gladioli were in brisk demand and cleaned up for the first time this week at anywhere near reasonable prices since the season opened. Asters and carnations sold quickly and stock of all kinds that had accumulated for days was sold and a large supply of stock was received from wholesale houses and growers in other cities who were quick to grasp the situation when they heard of the catastrophe and realized that there would be many funerals and probably not enough stock available in this city to fill the orders. Bodies are still being recovered from the wreck and it is estimated that the total dead will probably reach 1,500 and that it will be several days yet before all of them will be found. A shortage of ferns occurred this week and there were very few obtainable

July 27 on account of a washout on the railroad in the state of Wisconsin where most of the stock is coming from just now. Peonies were hauled from the cold storage rooms by the wagon loads all morning long nearly every day this week, and judging from the large quantities used the storage supply must be practically over. With the market cleaned up as it is now the trade should experience good business for the next two weeks at least. Everyone of the dealers have had a good week on account of the large amount of funeral work and the total sales for the last week in July will be considerably larger than the same week last year in all instances as far as the wholesale houses are concerned.

NOTES.

The capsizing of the excursion steamer Eastland as it was moored to the wharf in the river July 24 when over 1,000 people were drowned, caused a great deal of excitement in the market and many of the employes and employers made a trip to the scene to watch the work of removing the bodies of dead. Joe Erringer of the Zech & Mann store force and his friend, Miss Litman, were on the boat at the time of the accident, but were on the third deck and were rescued and did not even have their clothes wet. Joe rescued at least five people and says that the boat capsized at exactly 7:30 a. m. Frank Schleiden, of the Chas. W. McKellar store force, was also on the boat but managed to get off in time. Miss Eleanor Hahn, with A. Lange, and a party of three friends were on the boat; she was the only one of this party rescued and was pulled out of the river with a rope. George Baum, of the A. L. Randall Co., had a narrow escape also and Mr. Schaeffer, of the E. F. Winterson Co., reports that his wife's niece was among the dead. Several other people in the trade were also on the boat and it is rumored that several of their friends are still among the missing. Wm. F. Schofield, the North State street florist, donated the use of both his delivery wagon and automobile to help remove the bodies from the river to the undertaking establishments. The loss of lives in the Eastland disaster is much greater than the Iroquois fire and sets a new record for this city which everyone sincerely hopes will not occur again. Peter Reinberg, president of the County board, Wiator Bros., George Reinberg, J. A. Budlong and Pohlmann Bros. Co. offered floral decorations for public funerals in Cicero, July 28, when automobiles called for the flowers in the morning and took them to the offices of the Western Electric Company, where they were distributed under the direction of the committee on arrangements. The west side florists received most of the funeral orders which called mostly for pillows, wreaths and sprays ranging in price from $3.00 to $5.00 each.

Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn store force, has returned from a delightful trip to San Francisco, Calif., where he took in the sights at the time Panama-Pacific exposition. He also visited O. P. Bassett and E. B. Washburn and families at Pasadena and had the pleasure of meeting C. L. Washburn and wife who are visiting them now.

Wm. Vianki and wife, with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, Minn., are visiting friends here this week. They made the trip from Duluth to the city by boat, arriving in time to witness the terrible Eastland tragedy, July 24, when over 1,000 people were drowned as the ill fated excursion boat turned over.

Vaughan's Seed Store is pushing a moss campaign, moving carload lots every week.

2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass

Wietor Bros. are cutting from a nice crop of White Killarney roses which are cleaning up like hot cakes this week owing to the large amount of funeral work that the retail florists are having. N. J. Wietor says that his firm has almost finished housing its carnations and that the field grown plants are looking unusually fine notwithstanding the heavy rains that have been experienced this season.

Frank Stuppy, with the Stuppy Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., stopped off here for a few hours July 26 on his way home having just returned from a delightful fishing trip in northern Wisconsin. Ernest Mueller, of St. Joseph and Chris. Reissacker were with him and brought back a nice supply of Oswego bass which were on exhibition at the Erne & Klingel store.

Tony Einweck of the Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store force is back on the job after being confined to his home with blood poisoning for a month which resulted from a scratch of a rose thorn while handling stock at the city salesroom.

B. Zima, 3053 West Twenty-second street, used to be a member of the orchestra that furnished the music for the dancing on the excursion steamer Eastland, but resigned last season when he opened a retail store.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., is spending a few days here this week but will leave shortly to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, to be held at London, Ont., August 3-5.

Anton Sykora, who has been employed at the Bohemian National cemetery for over 25 years, has bought a range of greenhouses in West Batavia and will grow stock for the local market.

Sinner Bros. are busy benching their carnations now and are almost through with the work. They are cutting a nice supply of Killarney and White Killarney roses.

John Farmer, with Stollery Bros., and wife, leave for the upper peninsula of Michigan next week, where they will spend their vacation.

Kyle & Foerster's store is gradually being fixed up to a queen's taste, especially the large ice-boxes which are painted a beautiful green.

Chas. Richter, who helps out occasionally at Wietor Bros' store is confined to the St. Elizabeth hospital with pneumonia.

Robert Northam is back from his vacation and is again attending to his duties as manager at the George Reinberg store.

Art Rice, with Rice Bros., Minneapolis, Minn., was a visitor this week returning from Kalamazoo, Mich., his boyhood home.

The Percy Jones relay team copped the honors at the Florists' Club picnic last Sunday, July 25, and a large number of other prizes besides. The relay team consisted of Fritz Simons, J. Jonovz, B. Sweitzer, Morris Grossberg and Luke Schrer, who ran in the order named and it is needless to add Manager Van Gelder is well pleased with the showing the speed boys made. Luke Schrer is enjoying his vacation and is visiting friends at Toledo, O., and McHenry.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a good supply of Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which are grown quite extensively at the Reinberg greenhouses this season. Emil Reichling, superintendent of the greenhouses, will have Arthur Weber for company on his trip to San Francisco, Calif., in August.

Wm. Johnson, with A. L. Vaughan & Co., is enjoying his vacation and is greatly missed at the store this week. Mr. Vaughan and family are having a delightful time with their new automobile and spend most of their spare time motoring through the surrounding country.

Mrs. A. Kindler, of the Raedlein Basket Co., has bought a summer cottage at Long Lake, where she and her son Curtis will spend Sunday during the summer months. Her daughter, Mrs. Edna Graser, is also spending the summer there.

George C. Wagner, 3116 Indiana avenue, and wife, will leave July 31 for San Francisco, Calif., where they will take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition and attend the S. A. F. convention, August 17-19.

J. A. Budlong had a very busy week and was fortunate to have a large supply of stock to fill orders with. Double White Killarney is the principal offering at this store and is always in brisk demand.

J. C. Vaughan brought gladiolus cut blooms from his Hazel Crest farm to the Northwestern depot for the Lake Forest Garden club exhibition, Wednesday, July 27, making the auto run in 66 minutes.

Ed. Winterson, who has been threatened with blood poisoning of the leg, is progressing favorably, but his proposed visit to the Pacific coast is now unlikely on account of his mother's feeble health.

Otto W. Frese says that trade was unusually brisk at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store this week on account of the Eastland disaster and that stock cleaned up completely in practically all lines.

Miss Marie Thielmann and her cousin, Emily Deffner, are making a summer vacation trip to Washington, Baltimore, New York and Niagara Falls, leaving July 27.

James Psenicka is busy planting carnations at his greenhouses in Wilmette and is well along with the work, although he did not start as early as last year.

The North Side Ladies' Garden Club were guests of Vaughan's Greenhouses and Nurseries, Friday July 23.

STOCK IN GOOD DEMAND.

Trade last week was quiet, but Saturday made up for it and everything was cleared out. Excursionists used large quantities of flowers, and there also was an extra demand for funeral designs. There was quite a demand for pot plants. Palms are already scarce, but ferns will soon be plentiful as growers are already potting benched stock. Some very nice hydrangeas are offered on the markets. Sweet peas are plentiful and find a ready sale, but the quality is only medium. Asters are appearing, but the early varieties will be a failure as 75 per cent are gone with stem rot; the rest are affected with it and will produce no first class flowers. The late varieties are looking fine but are not past the danger of the same trouble. Outdoor roses have been splendid, also ramblers. A big demand has been noted for them, many being used for display owing to their showiness. Fruit trees are bearing sparsely this year, the frosts of May having caused more damage than was expected at first. Vegetables are splendid. The weather has been favorable for these crops—abundance of rain with reasonably cool nights and warm days.

NOTES.

The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club annual picnic was held at Chambly Canton, July 21. The attendance was about the usual number. The games were keenly contested. The principal winners were—Ladies Section: Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Luck, Miss Horobin. Members' Events: E. Hayward, J. Murray, J. Luck, J. Tully, Tug of war was won by the team, captained by A. C. Wilshire. Geo. Pascoe won first honors in the fishing contest, making the first and the biggest catch.

Montreal florists are preparing for a trip to London, Ont., August 3-5. As far as known, about a dozen intend to go. A special car is chartered for the trip, and all intending to join should apply to the Secretary, Julius Luck, who has arrangements in hand. The delegation will leave Montreal, August 2 at 11 p. m., via Grand Trunk Ry. Entries will close Monday, August 2, 1 p. m.

St. Louis Park Men Visit Chicago.

Seventeen members of the St. Louis Park Department Association visited Chicago this week, arriving Sunday morning, July 25, for the purpose of inspecting the various parks, playgrounds, boulevards, etc., returning home the following Wednesday evening. The party visited Lincoln Park first and then Garfield Park where Superintendent Theo. Koch escorted them about. J. R. Richards, superintendent of play grounds of the south park system, also devoted considerable of his time in showing the party about the city and furnished an automobile for the ladies who were in the party. After visiting all the parks and playgrounds a visit was made to Pochlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouses at Morton Grove, where Tony Gabel acted as guide and Plants A, B, and C were inspected. Wednesday was a day set aside for the members to do as they liked and the majority of them spent the day touring the business district of the city and inspecting the excursion steamer Eastland, which capsized in the river July 24 when over 1,000 lives were lost. Ernest Strehle, general superintendent of the St. Louis parks and wife, headed the delegation and others in the party included Louis Kittlaus, director of Fairground playgrounds, and wife; John Moritz and wife, overseer of greenhouses, Simon Zeitler and wife, superintendent of Carondelet park; Hugo Schaff, superintendent of public school grounds; Peter Magda, superintendent of Souland Place; Henry Ramke, superintendent of Flora boulevard; Martin Kumaus, superintendent of Forest Park boulevard; John Kostner, superintendent of Buder Memorial playgrounds; Wm. King, superintendent of Yeatman square; John Johnson, superintendent of Gravois park; Tom Smith, superintendent of Carr square; Henry Stocke, superintendent of Folten park; George Robertson, captain of park guards; Chas. Mueheldorfer, George Dubiztke, both head gardeners at the parks and John Sullivan, head gardener at the city sanitarium. The party made the trip in a special car over the Chicago & Alton railroad and stopped at the Hotel Bismarck while they were in the city. Ernest Strehle who acted as spokesman for the party and Louis Kittlaus, president of the association, spoke in glowing terms of the treatment they received while they were in the city and say that they hope the local park men will attend the convention of the American Society of Park Superintendents at St. Louis in 1916, providing that city is successful in inducing the members to select that city as the next meeting place. The St. Louis Park Department Association has about 300 members and the officers are: Louis Kittlaus, president; Joe Piesch, vice-president; Herman Hass, secretary; Hugo M. Schaff, corresponding secretary, John Moritz, treasurer and Richard Hirschberg, sergeant-at-arms.

Milwaukee Florists' Club Picnic.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club will hold its annual basket picnic next Sunday, August 1, at Keipper's Park, when all members, employes and friends are cordially invited to attend. There will be something doing every minute of the day with games and valuable prizes for the ladies, gentlemen and children. To reach the picnic grounds take a Milwaukee Northern car at Fifth and Wells street. Remember the day, next Sunday, August 1. The committee guarantees everyone a good time and expects to find everyone connected with the club present.

SUPPLY ERRATIC BUT DEMAND FAIR.

The market the past week has been somewhat on the "feast and famine" order. Some-days some stocks were not to be had or in very short supply, and the next day the receipts would be so large that it could not be moved. Roses have been having a good demand and have all been cleaning up nicely, with sweet peas and gladioli next in popularity. Asters are coming in fine and bring from two to four cents. Roses range in price from three to ten cents, and American Beauties are scarce and hard to get, bringing from $2 to $4 a dozen. Carnations are quoted at from 75 cents to $2 per hundred and are of fine quality for this time of the year. Shasta daisies sell slow at 50 cents per 100, gaillardias are quoted at 50 cents per 100, sweet peas range from 10 cents to 25 cents and gladioli are priced from $1 to $3 per 100. Lilies are in good supply at prices from 6 to 8 cents.

NOTES.

Managers Desmond and Holm report that the picnic was a financial as well as a big social success. The expenses were $350, the donations from the trade were St. Paul, $100; Minneapolis, $102 and the balance was made up from the sale of tickets, returns from which have as yet not been reported complete.

The accidental discharge of a rifle which J. McMullen and Peter Herzog were cleaning at Will Bros., July 19, resulted in McMullen being sent to the city hospital with a wound in his neck. His condition is reported to be serious. The gun was not loaded—supposedly.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has a very attractive display of its line of baskets and novelties on display at the Radisson hotel. Mr. Metcalf, the firm's representative, reports trade good with liberal orders.

Wm. Vasatka, foreman at the Donaldson Greenhouses returned from the picnic in time to welcome a young lady who had come to stay. Mother and daughter are doing nicely. Cigars at the greenhouses.

Arthur S. Rice of Rice Bros. left for Chicago, en route to Kalamazoo, Mich., where he will visit his mother. He will also visit Detroit and a number of lake resorts before returning.

Lawrence Mathes of the Shotwell Floral Co., Fargo, N. D., spent a few days in this city visiting old friends

FUNERAL CAUSES TREMENDOUS DEMAND.

The death and interment of a well known '89'er caused a tremendously large demand for funeral designs and sprays this week. Florists say that there were more flowers used for this funeral than had ever before been used for a similar occasion in this city. Business ordinarily is very quiet, though not more so than is usual for July.

NOTES.

Mrs. Eager, of Furrow & Co., has gone north for a six weeks' vacation. Mrs. Eager will visit Chicago, New York and Philadelphia, and will make a stay at Chautauqua Lake, N. Y.

It begins to look as though there will be no delegates to the S. A. F. convention from this city; we have yet to locate a single florist who has definitely decided on making the trip.

Fred Pfaff, a florist at Anadarko, Okla., will build a range of greenhouses this summer.

Visitors: A. Gardiner, Magnum, Okla.; Fred Pfaff, Anadarko, Okla. S. S. B.

MUNCIE, IND.—Carnes' Greenhouses, South Jefferson street, have been leased by Wm. M. Treffenger, who will conduct them under the name of Southside Greenhouses.

GLADIOLI IN ENORMOUS SUPPLY.

The city is ablaze with gladioli; never so many at one time before nor so fine, and we are obliged to say—not so low priced. The very best sell for $2 per hundred, while $1 will buy stock good enough for any store. In quantity lots, $5 a thousand bought about the choice of the market and a grade only slightly lower, perfectly fresh, went for $3 per thousand. This looks like a 50-50 partnership with the express companies. American Beauty roses are now leaders, being of good quality and very low in price. Several large growers are offering new crop flowers, while the eastern shipments are more than enough for the demand. Good white roses are scarce, and all the other standard summer favorites appear at present to be off crop or not up to the mark of a week ago. For some reason the outside asters are not doing well, several good growers complaining that the outlook was not promising. Too much rain is said to have blighted them in some way. Double White petunias were considered a good summer crop, but this season there are very few offered. Easter lilies find buyers enough to keep the surplus from becoming too large. Cattleyas move slowly at low prices, while the call for lily of the valley is about normal for the season.

NOTES.

The glazing of the large houses at the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., that suffered from a recent hail storm is about completed. The loss is something less than $1,000; no insurance. The company thinks it as cheap to insure themselves. Although the roofs are of such vast expanse, they find little difficulty in repair work. Several of their young men put on rubber soled shoes and crawl over the houses with apparent ease, finding enough support for their hands and feet, without resorting to staging. The rose stock here looks very good.

Robert Craig is proud of his Norwood beauties, particularly the crotons and dracaenas; they are all wonderfully well colored and vigorous. The best varieties are seen in quantity, Mr. Craig having great faith in the future. Cyclamen is another specialty which is doing wonderfully well. The John Wanamaker fern, now being sent out, is a sterling novelty and looks like a winner.

Samuel Lilly says, immediately the European war is over, he will erect another house 35x250 feet to be planted to carnations. Both of his large houses now up, will be planted with carnations. The varieties are Enchantress, white and pink; Mrs. Ward, pink, and Beacon. His stock the past season was fine.

The herbaceous phlox fields at the H. A. Dreer, Inc., nurseries at Riverton are a blaze of color. This collection is wonderful in variety. Dahlias and cannas, acres and acres of them, have made a great growth with the favorable weather and will soon be in full flower.

We are glad to have W. H. Taplin with us once more, as his coming to Riverton with Henry A. Dreer, Inc.,

MARKET CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Although the market has been quiet during the past week there was less talk of a surplus than formerly. Saturday, July 24, there was nearer to a scarcity of good stock than had been seen for some time. There had been a falling off in the supply of cattleya orchids and we believe there were several sales of C. gigas that came near the dollar mark. All good roses, including American Beauties were rather scarce. In many ranges a considerable amount of stock has been cut back and dried off and at the best this is not the time of year to expect many good roses. The gladioli and asters are now prominent features on the market and some very good stock of both has been noted. The asters are now saleable and useful as the carnations are out, Lilies and lily of the valley remain at about the same figures.

July 26.—The market has opened under fair conditions, for the season. There is no surplus of orchids or roses and the tendency is upward, for the best stock, American Beauties, special, being $25 per 100, with $30 in some instances as an asking price. Cattleya gigas are worth $40 and $50 per 100 with a prospect of higher prices. Gladioli, asters and sweet peas are plentiful and cheap.

NOTES.

It should interest florists who want a supply of azaleas to learn that John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, suggests that we purchase Belgium. Then comes the New York Globe and suggests that we exchange Pennsylvania for Belgium! The Globe suggests that the rule of the Kaiser would not be much worse for Pennsylvania than the domination of the trusts. Now, what do you think about that?

William N. Reed, of Reed & Keller, dealers in florists' supplies, leaves July 31 for London, Ontario, to attend the exposition of the Canadian Horticultural Association, August 3-5. His firm will make a fine exhibit of their wares. Mrs. Reed will accompany him and after the exposition they will make an extended tour of Canada.

F. Weaver, a designer and decorator, who for the past 18 months has been working in the middle west, has returned to this city and resumed his old position with Blaidel's Sons, Ninth avenue and 23d street. He was for a time with John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich.

Paul Meconi, Frank Grumbaeh of Jamaica, and others, recently returned from an automobile trip through the mountains of New Hampshire and Vermont and are talking about the bears and other wild animals—which they did not see.

Walter R. Siebrecht Co., Inc., were fortunate during the past week, in having a good supply of orchids which sold well. Walter R. Siebrecht is on a vacation at Lake George and the store is being ably managed by Tomaso Jacobs.

We have received a card from Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., who is in San Francisco in which he says: "Best wishes. Pretty good state (California) and some exposition. 'Get me?'"

Peter F. McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42d street, is not worrying about "summer dullness" as he has been very busy of late with funeral work.

John Egenbrod of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer's staff has gone on a three weeks' vacation, part of which he will spend with friends in Ohio.

P. F. Kessler, of the Coogan building, has gone for a long vacation; in his absence, Victor Alzen is conducting the business.

Celeste Burque, buyer for C. A. Dards, has gone for a month's vacation to White Lake, Sullivan county, N. Y.

R. E. Blair, bookkeeper at Vaughan's Seed Store, is the happy father of a ten-pound son.

At the store of A. L. Young & Co., Inc., we have recently noted exceptionally fine asters.

Gladioli are now reaching the market from the Flowerfield farm of John Lewis Childs, Inc.

BUSINESS ON PAR WITH 1914 MID-SUMMER

The market remains practically unchanged since the last writing, with over-supplies of everything and very little business to speak of. Trade, however, compares very favorably, we might say a little better, with this time last year. Prices on everything, of course are on a rock bottom scale, and a normal amount of funeral work is about all that can be depended upon to keep things moving. There still remains a very heavy glut on gladioli, and it is really hard to dispose of the choicest varieties for prices that will pay the grower for his bulbs. It seems that everyone with a spare plot of ground is found growing thousands of them, most of which make a hurried exit to the rubbish pile.

Some excellent early asters can be had as low as $1 and $1.50 per 100, which are the only flowers that have much call these days. Owing to the inclement weather we experienced during the earlier part of the year, the aster season is somewhat behind time this year. Lilies are in by the thousands, and find rough treatment in the way of decent sales. Outdoor sweet peas have had a poor season, and the quality of them has been poor. Practically all the outside garden flowers have had a bad season, and the supply of green goods has been over-

DEMAND WEAK AND PRICES LOW.

There is plenty of stock in the market, and good stock too, but there is not enough business to take up more than a part of the offerings. Prices are very low. Last week's business, and that of the first days of this week, was very slow. Roses are plentiful, the outdoor varieties being about the only ones that are finding any kind of a ready sale. The gladioli market is very weak. The supply has been very heavy, while the demand for them has been able to take up only a limited part of the offerings. Lilies including Easter lilies, auratum and rubrum are plentiful. Asters are now coming in very strong. Most of them are excellent in quality, but are not meeting with a very good market. Other offerings include some very fine hardy hydrangeas from the south, snapdragons and carnations. Green goods are plentiful.

NOTES.

The outing of the florists July 21 at Coney Island proved a very successful affair. P. Jackson took first in the bowling with a score of 218, with C. E. Critchell, second. The team captained by Chas. Windram won the baseball game by the close score of 2-1. In the evening many little dinner parties were in evidence at the club house.

Cincinnatians who have signified their intention of attending the S. A. F. convention, San Francisco, Calif., August 17-19, are J. A. Peterson and wife, Miss Ada Kresken and Lawrence Kresken.

C. E. Critchell has been having some very fine double hardy hydrangeas from the south.

Miss Bertha Stoelting of C. E. Critchell's force is on her vacation.

Visitors: Mrs. Floyd Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Lampert, Xenia, Ohio; Wm. Rogers and son, Dayton, Ohio; Sydney Bayersdorfer, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Martin Weber, Brookville, Ind., and Fred Rupp, Lawrenceberg, Ind. H.

NELSON, B. C.—The rose show held here July 1 was a great success, the number of entries being almost double those of a year ago. Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. John Lang and Gen. Jacqueminot were among the familiar varieties that made strong exhibits.

Springfield, O.

TRADE HAS HAD SPLENDID SEASON.

The season just closed has been a very satisfactory one to the plantmen of this city. Many of the large growers report the best six months in their histories, some say that business was about as usual, and the pessimistic can only claim a falling off of 10 per cent. The houses generally were empty about three weeks ago, and are just now beginning to fill up with the fall stock.

NOTES.

Several local florists have left here for their summer vacations. J. M. Good and F. E. Good, of the Good & Reese Company; Roger Murphey, of R. H. Murphey & Sons, Urbana, Ohio, and Will Reeser, of the Urbana Floral Company, with their wives and families, left July 19 for Michigan, where they have a regular summer colony. The several members of the camp have built cottages for themselves and the colony has built extensive boat houses which are used for general assembly rooms. Fishing is the chief pursuit of the florists in this crowd. They will be joined, about August 1, by Opha Jackson, of the American Rose & Plant Company.

Building operations are general among the local florists. The Leedle Rosary has increased its capacity by about 25 per cent by adding three iron frame houses. They conform, in design, to the other fine houses of this company and will be devoted, as is the rest of the range, to growing roses for cut blooms. This company is making a radical change in its heating system by installing a vacuum system to their steam plant. When completed the company will be able to heat all of its houses, including the new ones, with one boiler, where it formerly took two boilers to take care of the place in cold weather.

The Good & Reese Company is the victim of more than its share of city improvements. On Limestone street, the city has paved and is now putting in cement sidewalks. It seems that the present survey shows that the west house of this company extended about two feet on the sidewalk line. As a result the company has had to tear down its last range facing on that street and rebuild. On the Clifton avenue side of this company's property, the city has ordered in cement sidewalks, curbing and gutters, which forces this company to pay for over 1,100 feet of this kind of improvement.

The heavy rains of the past few weeks have done but little damage in this city. The heaviest sufferer was the Good & Welsh peony farm, which had about four feet of water over all of its low lands. The iris and cannas were damaged considerably. Many of the fields where florists' stock was growing were washed, but not seriously enough to damage any of the crops.

The Ridgewood addition to this city, by going through the property of John A. Doyle, has brought much of his land into an extremely valuable residence district. The main street of the addition, North Fountain avenue, took a corner off of his east house. Mr. Doyle tore the house down completely.

The American Rose & Plant Company has abandoned its idea of adding to its present glass area because of the impossibility of getting sewerage connections to the place. Instead of sewer, which the company wants, it is getting sidewalks, curbs and gutters, which it does not want.

The florists' club held its regular meeting at the office of the Good & Reese Company and transacted routine business. There seemed to be no interest in a special picnic, and none will be held this year.

Charles Unglaub is building two new houses to increase his space for growing carnations for the bloom. He has practically all of the local trade in carnations and is shipping in quantity.

Charles W. Schmidt of the Schmidt & Botley Company has gone into camp at the company farm, south of the city, where he has a good time and keeps an eye on the out-of-doors stock.

C. A. Schaefer of the Reeser Plant Company has just returned from a two weeks' fishing trip to southern Michigan. He reports a fine time and excellent fishing.

The Reeser Plant Company is adding one new house this year to take care of its Jerusalem cherry crop.

HOME GROWN FLOWERS ABUNDANT.

Home-grown flowers are in such abundance, as a result of the phenomenally favorable season, as to reduce greenhouse trade below even the usual low mark incident to midsummer. Hospital business, ordinarily one of the mainstays at this time of year, is largely affected by this kind of competition. All reasonable flowers are more than plentiful. The market is flooded with gladioli, growing appears to have been overdone this season, and it is estimated that there is three times the acreage here this year than there was last. Prices are being held up to $1 per dozen, but the demand is not strong. Asters are making their appearance, several weeks ahead of time and are bringing from 50 to 75 cents per dozen. Funeral work appears to be absorbing cold storage Easter lily stock quite satisfactorily.

NOTES.

It is not every florist that has someone set down a million dollar hotel next door to his location. That is what is happening to Graff Brothers. The new Deshler, at Broad and High streets, is now in the steel skeleton stage, and will not be finished for about a year. While this will add large value to the Graff Brothers store,

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, of Floral Park, N. Y., is an enthusiastic collector of birds' eggs.

EGYPTIAN or winter onion sets are a big crop this season and trade slow at reduced prices.

EAST JORDAN, MICH.—The Everett B. Clark Seed Co. is building an addition to its plant in this city.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade July 29 were as follows: Timothy, $5.25 to $6.50 per 100 pounds.

LONDON, ENG.—The market is reported firm for all clover and grass seeds. There is a good demand for Trefoil, with prices firm.

OSHKOSH, WIS.—The Wisconsin Seed & Fertilizer Co. has been incorporated by Carl and Henry Rowekamp and A. Ross; capital, $1,000.

ACCORDING to the Missouri state board of agriculture, the flaxseed acreage for the state is 85, condition 80; cowpea acreage is 91.

At Chicago the seed trade members of the Association of Commerce, division 72, are contributing to the Eastland emergency relief fund.

BERMUDA growers report a scarcity of 9-11 grade of Liliun Harrissii bulbs, the crop of that size being only about five per cent of the yield of the 7-9 grade.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch staves and 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch heads, head material not thicker than 2-5 of an inch.

THE Fabre line has a monopoly on carrying French bulbs and has advanced its rate 25 and 10 per cent. There is no competitive outlet this year via Genoa as before.

BOULDER, COLO.—Long's Specialty Store, which makes a feature of seeds and bulbs, with an extensive mail-order business, is now located in its new store, 2043 Twelfth street.

WEST BRANCH, MICH.—Edward E. Evans reports all old seed stocks cleaned up. The only shortage of the season was in field peas and beans. The 1914 bean acreage was doubled this year, due to war prices for 1914 stock.

WICHITA, KAN.—Ross Bros. Seed Co. report a constant demand for everything grown in the state. Alfalfa seed from second crop will be practically nothing. Seed corn acreage is larger than last year, but not quite up to the 10-year average.

ONION SET growers at Chicago are complaining bitterly of the constant rains and prospective. The tops are down and continuous rain is causing them to rot. So bad is the condition that the atmosphere of some neighborhoods compels the closing of windows.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—Timothy, clover and red top, the three principal crops in this section, are reported as promising very well this year. Excessive wet weather has interfered with planting, but the opinion exists that there will be a large acreage of these three staples.

CLINTON, Mo.—Cowpea seed sales have been very heavy this year on account of wheat ruined by rust, according to Geo. R. Lingle & Sons, who sold 10,000 pounds this year, compared with only 100 pounds last spring. Sales of milo and cane seeds are three times as heavy as usual.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The partnership existing between Wm. Ross, A. S. Chescheir and Chas. D. Ross, doing business as the Ross Seed Co., has been dissolved. William Ross, the retiring partner, has sold his interest in the business to the continuing partners, A. S. Chescheir and Chas. D. Ross, who will conduct the business, continuing the name of the Ross Seed Company.

A DUTCH correspondent of the Horticultural Advertiser (English), reports swedes and turnips very poor crop. Mangel, beet and radish better. Spinach crops poor and should bring good prices next year. Natural grasses such as cocksfoot, meadow fescue and sheep fescue promise good yield. Some other natural grass seed crops have been unfavorably affected by the drouth.

Nebraska Vine Seeds.

Waterloo, July 27.—Chauncey P. Coy & Son write as follows regarding crops in Douglas county: "Vine crops are in very bad shape. We have had losses from insects, hail, excessive rains and floods and as a result nearly or quite half of our planted acreage is gone. There will be many failures and shortages at the best. As a whole the prospect is the poorest for a good many years.

Costa Rica Organizes a Seed Society.

A society call "Junta Agricola Industrial" has just been organized in Port Limon to encourage agricultural industries. Its first efforts will be to furnish free of cost to all planters and farmers all kinds of seeds of vegetables and grains that will grow in this climate. All the prominent merchants and business men, as well as the planters and agriculturists, have joined this organization and promised to support it, thus building up new industries to take the place of the banana industry, which is being killed by the banana disease, now very prevalent here.

Every member pays a monthly fee of 1 colon ($0.40 gold), which is to be spent for seeds, to be given, as mentioned, to anyone who will plant them. Those interested should address Senor Don Filadelfo Granados, secretary, Junta Argicola Industrial, Port Limon, Costa Rica.

Burbank Co. Stock Assessed.

The Luther Burbank Company has levied an assessment of $1 a share on its capital stock, payable on or before August 2. The sales of delinquent stock will be held on August 21, 1915. Accompanying the notice of the assessment, mailed to the stockholders, is a document, which the directors of the corporation call a "reappraisal of the assets of your company." In this reappraisal, among the alleged assets stated, appears the following item: "Value of the exclusive right to use the name of Luther Burbank and to distribute his horticultural productions—$287,500." The total assets as stated, including this item, are $487,700.25. The current liabilities, including notes payable to Luther Burbank of $10,330 for "novelties yet to be delivered" and mortgages payable on real estate, total $73,023.58.

Onion Seed Crop Prospects in Canaries.

With harvesting well under way, reports warrant a forecast of the 1915 onion seed crop in the Canary Islands. Last year this constituted over one-half of all exportations from this district to the United States, hence the outlook is important to American buyers. The coming crop, which should begin moving toward American ports late next month, shows a yield above the average. On the other hand, there was considerable underplanting.

Orders are large, and all dealers report increasing prices and a strong market undertone, due to buying orders of unusual size, not only from the United States but from Cuba and Argentina. Much of the present crop was grown under contract, and many contractors have already sold their holdings at a good profit, before the crop was ready for delivery.

With the outlook tending strongly toward a short supply there is a temptation among some dealers to mix old seed with the new, and detection until after actual sowing is difficult. It is therefore suggested that American buyers deal only with long-established exporters of onion seed, who will allow just claims.

The most vexing question this season will be securing bottoms, as freight rates via British ports are both very high and uncertain. This has caused great expense to American importers, who have found all chances of profit swallowed up in war freights. The route now being looked to by many large shippers is via Havana, Cuba, or directly to New Orleans. This routing seems especially favorable for shipments with an ultimate southern destination, such as Texas which buys largely of Canary Island onion seed. As American buyers of onion seed must pay all freight charges, they should investigate this important matter. Unless explicit directions are given to shippers here, buyers in the United States will often experience excessive freight rates and run chances of having damage by lengthy delays at intermediate ports.

Three lines have published sailings from Canary Island ports, and all carry freight and make either New Orleans or Habana. They have announced the following sailings: The Pinillos Steamship Co., two monthly sailings; the General Transatlantic Steamship Co., one monthly sailing; the Transatlantic Steamship Co., one monthly sailing. These companies maintain agents in New Orleans and Habana and announce that full particulars may be obtained from them.

With an average crop in sight and an increased demand for seed, prices have stiffened considerably, showing a five per cent increase as against ruling prices on June 1. It is generally expected that quotations will advance even higher—due to unexpectedly large buying from Cuban and Argentine agencies.

Dutch Bulb Situation.

A recent writer on war conditions in Holland has the following regarding Dutch bulbs, dated Haarlem, Netherlands, June 19:

"Although the bulb business for which Holland is world famous would seem to be immune from the effect of the war, like other industries, it has had a sad blow, from which it is even less able to recover as time goes on and the war continues. The head of the Bulb Growers' Association of the Netherlands, whose headquarters are in this city, recently reviewed the effects of the war on Holland's ancient traffic.

"Everything in the bulb trade was ready for the export season, which starts in the first week of August, when the war broke out. Our first impression then was that exportation would be impossible altogether, and that the whole season would be lost.

"But the results were really better than we had anticipated. Exportation was found possible to the United States without interruption; also to England, Sweden, Norway and Denmark, Germany and Austria, France and even Russia. Many orders, however, were canceled or cut down. Domestic readjustments made necessary by the departure of many millions of men for the battlefields of Europe caused the abandoning of much of the garden beautifying which is annually planned in the fall. For this reason there came to be an enormous surplus stock on the hands of the Dutch bulb growers, especially of hyacinths, which had already been somewhat too plentiful even before the war.

"Enormous quantities of bulbs also seem to have been sent to public auctions in several foreign countries, to be sold in that way at exceedingly low prices—which did not help the Dutch bulb business. At the end of the export season tulips and narcissi proved to be practically all sold, while there still remained an important stock of hyacinths in the warehouses, which had to be thrown away in the end.

"The prices of most kinds of bulbs went down in August. Hyacinths could be had at any figure; tulips in cases for half the normal price. The official export statistics show only a very slight decrease compared with the record year of 1913, but these figures are deceptive. They can be accounted for by the large size and heavier weight of the bulbs, and also by the large quantities sold at auction, upon which there was little if any profit to the venders or the bulb-growers.

"The financial losses to the bulb-growers, although not perhaps so bad as anticipated last August, have been very serious. But they depend to a certain extent upon the character of the trade supplied by the individual grower. Firms dealing only with the United States have not irreparably suffered, while those exporting chiefly to Russia have had a very bad year.

"This spring the representatives of the bulb firms of Holland have traveled as usual to take orders and make collections for former supplies. They report, generally, that payments, even in the countries at war, are coming in far better than expected. They are, however, booking their new orders as a rule without definite arrangements as to prices, as many large buyers of bulbs prefer to wait until later before confirming their orders. If the war looks as if it might continue on into next spring, of course, many of these orders will be lost, and the plight of the Dutch bulb-growers will be worse than ever.

"It is the smaller bulb growers who suffer most, just as it is the small butcher, baker and candlestick maker in Holland, who so far has had to bear the chief burden of war's misery. The small bulb grower must sell to the large wholesaler, who has the facilities for storing the bulbs and can afford to do so. One large wholesaler of Hille-gom, near here, recently stated that he had received more than 1,000,000 bulbs at his warehouses, of which he had been able to dispose of only 150,000. These bulbs came from the small growers.

"The tulip bulbs are, as a rule, of five years' growth, and are sold in their third year. They are sold while yet in flower, in the case of the small grower by auction, held on the ground by local notaries, who make a very good thing out of it, whether the grower does or not.

"When the crop has been sold, the flowers are cut and heaped in a pile in a corner of the field to rot and serve as fertilizer. Some of the finer ones are sold to dealers in cut flowers; many are given to anybody and everybody who ask for them."

PRINCESS. 20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; 1/2 oz. $1.00; 1/4 oz. $2.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

- 38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
- 40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
- 42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
- 44—Black—Almost coal black.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

- 22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3 1/2 to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, and many others. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
- 26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long.
- 28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance.
- 30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous.
- 32—GIANT PARISIAN—The flowers are of enormous size, and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground. An unusually showy mixture.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per 1/4-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts, $1.00. Please order by number.

- 48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
- 50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
- 62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
- 64—Goliath—Large curled yellow, blotched.
- 68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue.
- 84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
- 86—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.
- 88—Andromeda—Curled apple blossom.
- 90—Colosseus Venosa—Light veined abadea.
- 92—Almond Blossom—Delicate rose.
- 94—Aurora—Terra cotta shades.
- 97—The above named Orchid mixed.
- 98—Indigo Blue—Deep velvety blue.
- 100—Light Blue shades.
- 104—Meteor—Bright red brown.
- 106—Pres. McKinley—Yellow, dark blotched.
- 114—Purple—Large rich deep color.
- 116—Peacock—Blue, rosy face, white edge.
- 118—Psyche—Curled white, five blotches.

- 126—Red—A collection of rich red shades.
- 138—White—Large satiny white.
- 140—White with violet blotch.
- 142—Yellow—Large golden yellow.
- 144—Yellow with dark blotch.

RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow, and with other amounts in like proportion.

Tsuga Caroliniana.

After two of the severest winters of recent years the perfect condition of this southern hemlock in the arboretum shows that it can be depended on to flourish in southern New England. A smaller tree and less graceful perhaps than the hemlock of our northwest coast, T. heterophylla, the most beautiful of all the hemlocks, the Carolina tree is the handsomest representative of the genus which can be successfully grown here. The Carolina hemlock was first raised in the arboretum more than 30 years ago, and among the seedlings are two or three dwarf plants which are broader than high and beautiful subjects for planting in small gardens. Judging by the experience at the arboretum with this tree, it may be placed among the six most desirable conifers for planting in southern New England, the others being the white pine, Pinus strobus, the red pine, Pinus resinosa, the northern hemlock, Tsuga canadensis, the white fir of Colorado, Abies concolor, and the Japanese Abies branchyphylla. — Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

Dressing Pruning Wounds on Fruit Trees.

Fruit growers have long used paints, tars, waxes and other substances as coverings for wounds of trees. Curiously enough comparative tests of the many compositions in use seem not to have been made to ascertain the value of these dressings. Tree pruners seem to have taken it for granted that some covering was necessary, for large wounds at least, and have applied the most suitable material at hand. The substances used as coverings were white lead, white zinc, yellow ochre, coal tar, shellac and avenarius carbolineum.

Bulletin No. 396, issued by the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, N. Y., entitled, "Effect of Various Dressings on Pruning Wounds of Fruit Trees," is a report of the effects of these various substances on wounds made on the apple and on the peach. In all cases undressed wounds have healed more rapidly than those whose surfaces have been protected. The treatment of the peach tree with any of the substances under experiment caused so much injury that it may be said that the wounds of the peach should never be treated with any of them, and it may be inferred that this is true of wounds on trees of all stone fruits. From the results of the experiments the deduction seems quite warranted that the dressings commonly applied to pruning wounds rather retard than accelerate the healing of the wounds.

Annuals and Herbaceous Perennials.

A paper by A. S. Thurston, assistant in floriculture, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, delivered at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., January 30, 1915.

Quite often the decision to have a garden is not made until spring approaches. Then one begins a study of the catalogues, which is a poor way to begin a garden, for the results are sure to be unsatisfactory, and yet the perusing of catalogues is the most popular method. One should begin to plan at least a year ahead; if he intends to start a garden this spring, he should have been preparing for it since last spring, for one cannot satisfactorily choose the flowers unless he has seen them actually growing. Other gardens should be visited, and the particularly fine plants noted; particular attention should be paid to the habit of growth of the plant and good combinations should be noted.

Plants may be divided into two groups, woody plants and succulent plants. I am to discuss the succulent plants of the garden. These run riot in the garden throughout the summer, filling it full of life and joy, but after a frost and freeze our garden is leveled to the ground—it is dead. Trees and shrubs should be used in order that there may be a promise of life for the next year, and we may introduce a touch of life even in the winter by using evergreens and some of our shrubs such as the cornus, kerria, etc., which have brilliantly colored branches. Succulent plants furnishing summer and autumn bloom should be used to supplement the woody plants in the garden; otherwise it would have a rather sombre effect, since shrubs bloom almost wholly in the spring.

Annuals and herbaceous perennials are valuable, not only for the ornamentation of the garden, but for cutting. There are a great many of them that not only have the requisites of good cut flowers, but that also lend themselves readily to vase arrangements in home decoration. These two classes of plants admirably supplement each other when used together in the garden. Succulent plants may be classified as annuals, biennials, or herbaceous perennials.

ANNUALS.

Botanically, annuals are plants that normally complete their entire life cycle within one vegetation year. However, the term annuals is commonly applied to those plants that bloom in the open the same year the seeds are sown, and that do not live over winter. Many tender perennials and biennials bloom the first season, and for cultural purposes may be treated as annuals. The beauty of annual plants, the ease and rapidity with which stock can be raised from seed, their cheapness and the simplicity of their culture, combine to commend them to flower lovers. A plant that lives only one brief summer would be a poor investment of time and money if one has a permanent home, unless it has fragrance, form, or color. Where a person does not own the land he lives on, but rents, and quick returns are required rather than future gain, a wealth of bloom and a pyrotechnic effect of color may be had with annuals for a small expenditure. The best results with perennials come only after the second year, or when the plants are thoroughly established; but annuals are at their best in three or four months.

Annuals are valuable when only a small outlay can be spared for a garden, or when there are gaps in the herbaceous border to be filled in with some special color and timely flowers. They cannot compare with the size of the peony, the earliness of the creeping phlox, and the lateness of the chrysanthemum, but for profusion of flower and duration of bloom, and for fragrance that very many of them possess, and for lavish display of color, annuals certainly eclipse their long-lived rivals. Annuals are everybody's flowers; we find them in the gardens of the rich, also in the piazza flower box of the tenement dweller; they are grown by gray-haired plant-lovers, and also by children who are just learning the mysteries of nature. Some of our most showy garden flowers are annuals, and as a rule, they are easily grown, producing quick results. Improvement by hybridization and selection has led to a great many varieties, affording us a great variety of colors, forms, and foliage. Some of the annuals last only a few weeks in bloom, others continue to bloom throughout the summer. Who can resist the charm of a garden fragrant with the odor of stocks, mignonette, candytuft, and sweet peas?

Annuals may be classified as hardy, half-hardy, or tender. Hardy annuals are those that are sown directly in the open ground where they are to grow. They are vitally strong, developing without artificial heat. Half-hardy annuals are usually sown in February or March in a window or warm frame. The season is usually not long enough to enable them to reach full development in the open. In the early stages of growth they need protection and warmth. Tender annuals require still more warmth, and are started January to May in the greenhouse, and require a temperature of 60 degrees to 70 degrees. The general method of propagation is by means of seed. In buying seed, get good seed; do not buy cheap seed. Only the best seed should be purchased, and it is usually best to get the colors in separate packages. Seeds should be bought only from reliable firms.

When flowers of any annual are wanted, extra early, the seeds should be started indoors in four-inch or five-inch pots or in gardeners' flats. These should be prepared by first putting in coarse material of some sort to provide for drainage and then filling the box with very fine, rich, sandy loam, in which the seeds are thinly sown at a depth equal to twice the diameter of the seed, the soil being firmly compacted. When watering, be careful, as seeds and seedlings are apt to be washed out of the soil by a too violent downpour from a can or hose. Vigorous growth depends upon each plant having room enough to develop and plenty of light and air. Thus the seedlings should not be too thick else they may become "drawn" and spindling. As soon as the seedlings are large enough to be handled, they should be transplanted or pricked off, into other flats about one and one-half inches apart. Before the plants are removed to the open ground they need to be gradually hardened off. The greater number of the common annuals will bloom freely if the seeds are sown in open ground when the weather becomes thoroughly settled. For the reception of seeds, the surface should be mellow and smooth. Proper soil preparation facilitates good drill making, and good drill making facilitates proper sowing. Whether the seeds are sown in lines or rings, the drills should be shallow and even. In open ground seeds can be covered four or five times their diameter. The seeds, however small, should be sprinkled in thinly, so that no two touch each other, then when they come up, each stands singly and the plants may be thinned to their proper distances easily and quickly.

Most novices make five mistakes in planting seeds: First, in not working over the surface soil long enough to pulverize it and remove every lump and pebble. Second, in burying the seeds too deep. Third, in not firming the soil about them so that the first feeble roots may come in immediate contact with their food. Fourth, in sowing too thick. Fifth, in allowing the seeds, or seedlings, to dry out. Annuals, even if short lived, and cheap, should be chosen and placed with care. However beautiful in themselves, a multitude of them unrelated can actually spoil the garden composition as a whole, and the same plants, thoughtfully arranged, can bring perfect harmony into the garden.

BIENNIALS.

Biennials are plants that bloom a year after the seeds are sown; then make seeds and die. Each year, while some are blooming, we must be raising others if we wish to have them in flower annually. There are a few good biennials that are of highest importance and value in the garden, notably hollyhocks, foxgloves, sweet williams, and canterbury bells. Many biennials, such as hollyhocks and others, are practically perennials because they self sow, or multiply by off shoots, so that there is little danger of losing them. Such cases give rise to discussion as to whether a plant is annual, biennial, or perennial.

Marketing Problems.

We have repeatedly pointed out that the selling end is of more importance than the producing end—in other words, at present it is easier to grow vegetables than to sell them. There is no question that our educational factors have spent too much effort upon telling growers how to produce big crops instead of giving a helping hand in the distribution problem. These conditions have existed for some time; one was led to believe that all we needed for success was large yields of high grade produce. This year we have the largest yield of the finest vegetables we ever saw, and yet the grower who has not a good reserve fund is in danger of bankruptcy—the larger his operation the larger the loss. So far this season in our vicinity (Ohio), garden crops have not returned enough cash to pay for the cost of hauling to market.

What is the trouble? Over production on one hand and lack of consumption on the other. The long, dry, cool spring enabled every operator to utilize every hour of his time in planting and preparing; the lowest, slowest ground was available from the first as well as the high land. The cool spring kept every thing back to the same level—it did not make much difference whether an operation was done a week sooner or later, and finally the remarkable even cool summer and copious showers matured everything. For the first time in America have we seen a perfect field of cauliflower—every plant a head and a model of perfection with no sale.

Turning to the marketing problem, we find a greatly diminished demand owing to financial and industering depressions. If the growers through personal wisdom or through organized effort had withheld about half of their produce, they could have held a living price, but the greed of each individual to dispose of his entire output soon upset the market. And right here we must recognize the leading factor, and that is that with each decline in price there comes a decrease in consumption until an article becomes unsalable when offered at a low price. It is the nature of our people to buy what is scarce and valuable and to this there is no remedy. Hence the lowering of prices is undesirable in every way as nobody reaps a benefit except the cheap peddler, who, for a while, extorts an enormous profit by acting as distributor. As it is evidently impossible to organize the growers into a harmonious crowd, the only remedy is decreased production by sheer force of circumstances. In many cases a smaller output sold direct to consumer instead of a large output thrown into a wholesale market would give better returns.

We have given this problem much attention as it proves that if we could all drain, fertilize, irrigate, and till our land up to the highest point of efficiency, we would at once face ruin. There is money for some enterprising grower in getting ahead of his competitors in some way—but if all should fall in line he would lose his advantage. A case in view in our locality is summer lettuce. Since the general installation of overhead irrigation summer lettuce has continued a glut upon the markets where formerly the fortunate grower who had a small lot in July and August, received fancy prices. The fact remains that under present circumstances it would be better if weather condition would each season destroy at least one-half of all plantings. We wish to remind growers that a good many of our set backs and difficulties are a blessing in disguise.

MARKETMAN.

Troy, N. Y.

The Troy florists, like their brethren in other cities, are feeling the summer dullness, but all seem to have something to do. Sambrook Brothers have a nice retail store at 413 Fulton street and a considerable glass area in Water-vliet. J. C. Sambrook of this firm conducts a range of 25,000 square feet of glass at Berlin, N. Y., the firm name being J. C. Sambrook & Co., Inc.

Samuel Hanson, Eighth avenue and 14th street, has a neat range, a feature being excellent landscape and bedding on his grounds fronting the street, which is a good advertisement for any florist.

H. Louis Menand has a nice retail store at 464 Fulton street. His father, L. Menand, has a very fine range and store at Rural and St. Agnes cemeteries, Albany.

At and near Oakwood cemetery, F. L. Post, Lecomte Brothers, Jones Brothers, Mrs. Danderpool and others do a growing and retail business.

James M. Gemmill has a small range at Sixth avenue and Fourth street and we found him busy, but affable and willing to chat a few minutes.

F. W. Faulkner has a neat retail store at 808 River street and also carries stationery and other staple articles.

The Mulholland Brothers have a store at 5 Third street, opposite Proctor's theater and we found them busy.

James H. Reynolds, located on the Brunswick road, is exclusively a grower and is considered a good one.

We found James G. Barrett and his staff, of Burdett avenue, very busy with funeral work. A. F. F.

English Roses at German Prices

If that is a proposition which interests you read on.

Bees, Ltd, of Liverpool, England, said to be the owners of the most extensive rose farm in the British Isles (the acreage under roses is about seventy) have about a quarter of a million two-year-old, open ground, budded trees to spare for the American and Canadian markets to fill the place of those usually bought elsewhere.

But these roses will do more than merely fill the place, they will give you such satisfaction as you have never experienced before. They will delight you primarily on quality. They will please you profitably on price.

It is not too soon to be thinking about where you are going to buy your roses this fall, and the Bees have bought this space in order to tell you something about the roses that they grow on their 200 acre farm.

By the way, don't wait for the other advertisements to come along before you write to Liverpool for prices on your list of sorts. Get a move on NOW. Chance is said to have only one hair on his head, though that probably means only one for each person. Anyhow, grab your hair NOW. You'll then have plenty of time to cogitate later.

BUSINESS FAIR CONSIDERING SEASON.

While sales fell off somewhat the past week, business continues good, when the time of the year is taken into consideration. Stock is plentiful, especially gladioli, which are flooding the market and are of very fine quality. Lilies are also good stock and are more plentiful, and there are some good roses and carnations. Snapdragons, coreopsis, daisies, gaillardias and sweet peas have a good sale and are much used in design work. Asters are improving both in quality and quantity.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. report a fine week's business both in shipping and local trade. Stock has been very good, especially gladioli; also some good roses and carnations. Mr. Noll will leave July 31 for a trip to the Pacific coast and will attend the S. A. F. convention and the expositions.

D. M. Marss and wife of Vinita, Okla., are in town visiting the different florists for the purpose of getting ideas on concrete benches, etc. Geo. Ecke of Lawrence, Kans., was also a visitor among the florists.

W. J. Barnes says business is good in general. He is cutting some fine gladioli. The asters are starting in now. He is making ready to plant carnations, which will be followed by the general repairs.

Samuel Murray had a good week of funeral work and reports business in general is good for this time of the year. Miss Hayden of this firm is at her home in Wisconsin on a vacation.

Arthur Newell reports business very good for this time of the year, with stock very fine and plentiful. He is handling a large quantity of gladioli.

Ed Humfeld has all his chrysanthemums planted and reports the stock in good condition. Business has been very good, he reports.

M. E. Chander is bringing in some fine gladioli which are taken up every day by the trade. He is also bringing in some dahlias.

H. Kusick & Co. say business holds up well. They are receiving some good gladioli, lilies and a few carnations and roses.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has plenty of stock, which is very fine, and reports the trade is taking it up fast.

Miss Lu Boggess will attend both the fair and convention. E. J. B.

NORRISTOWN, PA.—San Salvator's Church could not accommodate all who desired to attend the services conducted over the remains of the late William Cantanese, florist and manufacturer, and who was one of Norristown's younger and successful business men.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Kroeschell Replaces Three Cast Iron Boilers.

We do not have to fire our boiler as often as our brother florists who are using different makes. The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction. It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but the facts."
 (Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.
 July 18, 1913. New Hamburg, N. Y.

Kroeschell Replaces Two Cast Iron Boilers.

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:
 "Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."
 (Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.
 July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Get the Kroeschell First.

Several years ago Mr. Ponting corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell. In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. Ponting, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:
 "We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."
 July 16, 1913. Cleveland, Ohio. (Signed) FRED PONTING.

Los Angeles.

Chas. Winsel, seedsman and nurseryman reports business at the store a little dull. At the nursery at Montebello he is digging large quantities of freesia bulbs. Considerable time and attention is being paid to the budding of rose novelties. He is not going into the newer varieties very strong, as his patrons are constantly demanding the older standard sorts, of which he has large quantities. Mr. Winsel is a strong advocate of the paper pot for tomato and pepper plants, many perennials, roses and deciduous trees. By using the six-inch paper pot he is selling rose bushes throughout the summer, thus disposing of many bushes that otherwise he would have to hold over, and at the same time furnishing his customers with the goods when they want them.

The majority of the local trade are preparing to take their vacation early in August at San Francisco, where they can attend the conventions of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, California Association of Nurserymen, American Rose Society, Society of American Florists and the American Association of Park Superintendents. The conventions begin August 12 and follow in order named to August 20. September 1-3 is the convention of the American Pomological Society. By taking their vacations at this time they can see the exposition and attend all conventions.

Edwin Lonsdale, who has been confined to his bed in a Los Angeles sanitarium, is improving, but slowly. The color is coming back to his face and he feels that the time will soon come when he will be able to again take up his duties at the Lompoc seed farm. Members of the trade call on him at intervals and keep up his good cheer.

Miss Rohr, the florist, reports that owing to the summer season, with so many of her patrons on vacations, business with the clubs and orders for social events are rather slow, but that funeral and lodge orders keep her busy all the while. Her out of town business is comparatively good.

G. E. Elster, of Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario, Calif., was a visitor this week, calling on his old friends here and transacting business for his firm. He seems very well satisfied with his new position, which spells success for him and more business for the company.

Danville Florists' Club.

About 50 persons, including members of the Danville Florists' Club, their families and friends, attended one of the most enjoyable outings in its history, July 15, at Homer park. Games and the varied amusements of the park furnished diversion, and with boating, swimming and dancing the crowd spent a long happy day. At the picnic dinner fried chicken predominated, reinforced with all the regular "trimmings," and when the supper tables were spread another supply of good things were brought forth. The automobile trip back to the city by moonlight was one of the pleasant features of a delightful day. H. C. T.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

Eighteenth Annual Convention, London, Ont., August 3-5, 1915.

The Opening Session.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association was well attended, over 100 members representing nearly all parts of Canada being in attendance when the body convened in Hymans' hall, Tuesday afternoon, August 3. The meeting was called to order by the local chairman, E. B. Hamilton, who introduced Mayor Stevenson. This gentleman extended to the visitors a most hearty welcome to the city of London, and during the course of his remarks, displayed a comprehensive knowledge of matters horticultural. F. Adams, of Toronto, replied to the mayor's welcome, bringing his remarks to a patriotic close that caused the hall to ring with cheer after cheer.

The address of the president, H. B. Cowan, Peterboro, Ont., followed, and his review of the activities of the association during the year was received with enthusiasm and was followed by a discussion. The secretary-treasurer of the organization, Julius Luck, Montreal, Que., presented his reports which showed the association to be in a flourishing condition, with a substantial increase in membership since the annual report of a year previous. The tariff committee, through its chairman, J. Cannon, Hamilton, Ont., made its report, dealing chiefly with the British embargo against Belgian plants, and ways and means to relieve the impediment. A paper on "Fertilizers," by Prof. R. Harcourt, Guelph, Ont., was one of the interesting features of the session and called forth many questions.

Following the announcements, at the close of the session the members found autos in waiting, and were escorted to the J. Gammage & Sons' conservatories, being splendidly entertained as the guests of that firm.

The committee in charge of the programme is credited with the arrangement of one of the most interesting collections of papers and discussions in the history of the association, the range of subjects being not alone varied, but of much educational value. Among the papers and lectures listened to during the convention were the following: "The Cost of Producing Florists' Stock", by A. L. C. O'Brien, Toronto, Ont.; "Irrigation", by Prof. T. G. Bunting of McDonald College; "Insects and Pests that Affect Rose Stock", by W. A. Ross, Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Vineland, Ont.; "Perennials", by W. J. Potter, Toronto, Ont.; "Orchids", by W. J. Jones, Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont.

Wednesday afternoon was set aside for the entertainment of the visiting members, the programme including a trolley trip to Port Stanley over the new electrified road; a baseball game scheduled between London and Canada, followed by luncheon at the Casino at 6 p. m., and the return trip to the city on a special car later in the evening. Thursday afternoon the programme was given over to auto trips to the camp grounds, points of interest in the city, Springbank park and the greenhouses of Fred Dicks.

The annual banquet of the association which was held at the City hotel, Thursday evening was a delightful affair, and brought to a close one of the most successful and most thoroughly enjoyed gatherings in the history of the organization.

The trade exhibit section was a successful feature of the meeting, a large number of exhibits being arranged by firms in both Canada and the United States, and all of the displays proved interesting.

President Cowan's Address.

To the Members and Friends of our Association:

A year ago our association convened in the city of Toronto for its seventeenth annual convention under most trying circumstances. The fearful war, which has since ravaged Europe and affected so many other countries and peoples, had just been declared. A tendency towards panic was evident in business circles. Business conditions were upset. No one deemed able to intelligently estimate what the next few months or year might bring forth. Today we gather for our eighteenth annual convention under much more auspicious circumstances. In the interval, a year fraught with many of the most momentous events in the world's history has passed. While the war which has been and is still being fought has been the most frightful the world has ever known, and while it has had consequences of far reaching importance, it has left us on the whole comparatively little affected. There are those among us who have friends and relatives at the front and some maybe who have lost dear ones—and to all such our hearts go out in deepest sympathy—nevertheless, life in Canada has continued largely on normal lines and business conditions have not been affected to anything like the extent that it was first expected would be the case.

As we look back over the year we realize that we have much to be grateful for. While some of us may not approve of war as the best means of settling international difficulties, the nations as yet have not adopted any other method. This being the case we have much for which we can give heartfelt thanks. Our enemies, in spite of their long years of preparation, have failed in their effort to over-run France, to seize Calais and thus to dominate the English Channel and to crush Russia. The people of Great Britain, although almost totally unprepared for war, have rallied heroically and have counted no sacrifice too great to make for the cause which all have at heart. Thus, while no one can determine how soon the issue may be decided, we look with calm confidence for a successful outcome for the allies in the war that is now raging.

May we not learn a lesson out of what has happened during the past few months. Because the business in which we are engaged is looked on by many as pertaining to luxuries rather than to the necessities of life, it was natural to expect that it would be among the first to feel the effect of the war and the last to recover therefrom. At the outset, therefore, it was natural to expect that the winter's and spring's trade would be seriously affected and that possibly heavy losses would have to be sustained by many. So general was this feeling that some florists failed to prepare for the Christmas and New Years trade on the scale that subsequent events proved they would have been justified in doing. As we know trade on the whole has held up wonderfully. The Christmas and Easter seasons surpassed all expectations. While there have been quiet periods, trade on the whole has held its own remarkably well. What falling off there has been in sales has been largely, if not entirely offset by the making of economies as well as by an increased effort for higher business efficiency. Today, in spite of the war, conditions of the trade on the whole are such as to not only prove encouraging on the whole, but full of promise for the future. Let us therefore take to heart the scriptural admonition to "Take no anxious thought for the morrow for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself." Let us anticipate good trade in the future—prepare for it, work for it and thus deserve it when it comes.

Three important matters have occupied the attention of your executive during the past year. At our last convention, a committee was appointed with authority to ask the government for a grant of $1,000 should a favorable opportunity for the taking of such action present itself during the year. At that time it was not known how long the war might last. It was realized that should the war continue the government would have many calls upon its resources and that this condition would have to be considered. In view of the fact that the government has found it necessary to impose new taxes as a means of raising revenue, your committee has not deemed the time favorable for the pressing of this matter and therefore, no action has been taken. It will be for you to decide whether or not this committee shall be continued.

The establishment of a national plant register was given considerable attention at our last convention. A committee composed of H. J. Moore, James McKenna, and W. T. Macoun, was appointed to look into the matter further and report at this convention. This committee has been giving the matter its earnest consideration during the past year and will have an important report to present at this convention. The chairman of the committee, H. J. Moore, has recognized the difficulties that naturally presented themselves when the feasibility of establishing a plant registry was considered. I trust that the report he will present on behalf of the committee will show that many of these difficulties have been overcome.

Within the past few months your executive has received an appeal to use its influence through the Dominion government on the Imperial government in Great Britain to have the trade restrictions with Belgium in the purchase of florists' stock removed. In this connection it has been pointed out that the people of Belgium are our allies, that the restriction on trade with that portion of Belgium now under the control of Germany are injuring people who are friendly to us as well as many florists in the United States and Canada. It has been intimated that it should be possible to so regulate trade in florists' supplies that it would benefit not only the florists on this side of the Atlantic, but the florists of Belgium, without indirectly benefiting the enemy. Your executive has realized that the issue thus raised is an important one which could not be lightly dismissed. Before, however, venturing to discuss the proposal with our government authorities, it was felt wise to consult the Danish consul at Ottawa. In this way it was hoped to ascertain if the Belgium government would be favorable to the taking of such action. Correspondence has been conducted with Mr. Goor, the Danish consul. The replies received have been somewhat ambiguous, so much so in fact, that we have hesitated to take action and recently decided that as the time of our convention was approaching it would be advisable to defer action until this convention should have an opportunity to pass upon the points that have been raised. As this matter is one which pertains to the activities of the tariff committee it will be laid before you in connection with the report of that committee. The correspondence that has taken place will be open for your consideration.

An earnest effort has been made to provide a programme for this convention which would be helpful to the members of our association. Whether or not this effort will prove successful will depend entirely upon the spirit with which we enter upon its consideration and join in the discussions which we trust will take place. Able speakers will take part. Past experience has shown, however, that the discussions which follow, even the most carefully prepared papers are of more benefit than the addresses themselves. There are many in attendance at this convention who are able to give much helpful information drawn from their own practical experience. We hope therefore, that all will join heartily in the discussions in order that the greatest good for all may thus be derived.

One point especially deserves special mention. At past conventions discussions have been held concerning the feasibility of introducing cost finding methods in connection with the florist business. These methods have proved very helpful and even the salvation of many other business enterprises. They should prove equally beneficial in the florist trade. Year by year competition grows keener. Year by year also, the inefficient are crowded down into subordinate positions in the commercial and business world until they become the employes and assistants of those better equipped to direct and control industrial enterprises. The man who conducts his business by guess work will sooner or later go to the wall. A proper cost finding system enables the up-to-date business man to know where he stands at all times. An expert is to address us on this subject at this convention, and it is to be hoped that great good for the trade will result from this address.

Again we have reason to be thankful for the special Providence which seems to watch over the past presidents of this association. During the seventeen full years that this association has been organized it has had sixteen different men occupy the presidential chair. All sixteen are living and in good health. A considerable number are present with us at this convention. This is a record that is unique among associations of this character.

Our London hosts have extended to us a hearty welcome. They have prepared for us right royally. They expect us to enjoy ourselves to the full throughout our stay in their beautiful city. Let us, therefore, arise to the occasion and not only join freely in the discussions, but in the social features as well. We receive the most benefit ourselves, when we give the most freely unto others. Let us keep this thought before us and thus help to make this, the eighteenth annual convention of our association, such a success that we will long look back to it with pleasure as one of the best conventions which our annals record.

Secretary-Treasurer's Report.

It gives me great pleasure to report a substantial increase of membership in our association. The deadlock of that number, 102, of many years' standing, has at last been broken, so that our membership today stands at 113. It remained for Toronto to do it and this is not the only record Toronto has broken. They also have set a record for the way the association was entertained at the convention. It would be useless to cite names, for one and all, they worked with a will, to make it the splendid success it proved to be, and the everlasting pleasant memories the delegates carried away with them.

WINDOW DISPLAY, HOLLYWOOD GARDENS, SEATTLE, WASH.

The executive committee met here in London, April 10, arranged for this meeting and compiled this programme which I believe the most instructive yet. You will see that all appointed committees are listed to give complete reports. The papers will be read by the authors themselves, which always makes them more valuable in discussing them. The subjects are well chosen and up to date.

Now I desire to say a few words about the membership. This is our third annual meeting in succession in what we call west, and consequently nearly the whole of the membership is made up from the west, Toronto and surroundings. Quebec seems to have dropped to indifference, with Montreal included. There are more members in Toronto now than in all the rest of Canada. The membership would be greatly increased if each member annually would bring in a new member until the thousand mark is reached. The field is large enough, and I recommend that those members who bring in the largest number be honored for it in some way.

Daily Floral Tribute at Busch Tomb.

In the little rustic chapel which was erected more than a year ago over the grave of Adolphus Busch in Bellefontaine cemetery, St. Louis, Mo., members of the family of the millionaire brewer are keeping a continually fresh supply of cut blooms and pot plants, which not only cover the grave, but bank the floor and walls of the building. At present the grave is banked with lilies, American Beauties and other roses, lily of the valley, various cut flowers and numerous pot plants. A mat of growing English ivy covers the grave itself, while the rest of the floor of the chapel is strewn with small cedar branches. The walls of the structure are lined with beech leaves, treated in a way which will preserve their crispness indefinitely.

Here and there in this covering bouquets of cut flowers are fastened. Flowers have been sent to adorn this unique mausoleum nearly every day since it was built. In severe weather the flowers and plants are kept from freezing by oil and carbon heaters.

Window of Hollywood Gardens, Seattle.

During the Shriners' convention at Seattle, Wash., the merchants of that city honored them by the arrangement of special window displays. The accompanying illustration shows one of the most attractive of these, that of the Hollywood Gardens, florists, who arranged a natural display that was admired by all beholders. A shallow tank, 10 by 10 feet, was placed in the window, and in this a brood of yellow ducklings disported themselves in the water. At the rear of the tank was a little birch bark tree house, thatched with straw, with a gang-plank of birch leading down to the water. A portion of the front of the tank was screened off with wires and in this section was a beautiful showing of delicately tinted water lilies. The sides of the tank were concealed by moss, which also covered the balance of the floor space of the window. Tall palms graced the background and in one corner, beneath a spreading bough, was swung a camp kettle over a fire of sticks. English ivy was trained to form a border for the window and golden lilies nodded from the corners, while overhead a tropical creeper swung in the breeze in striking contrast to the native plants below. The other windows of this firm were filled with an excellent display of cut flowers, the famous Washington rose and the gorgeous dahlia predominating.

PLANT NOTES.

Alternantheras.

The propagating bed will not be full at this season, and it is one of the best times to procure a stock of that splendid carpet bedding plant, the Alternanthera paronychioides major. This plant simply refuses to grow during the winter, and it is almost impossible to procure cuttings until late, with the result that the plants are necessarily small. Any amount of cuttings can be procured now and they can be easily rooted either in flats of soil or in the propagating bed. When the cuttings are inserted give them a good watering and keep them shady for two or three weeks, and they will all root. They can then be placed in flats about one inch apart and placed in a frame outside or in the greenhouse. They can be wintered in a warm dry house on a shelf near the glass, and potted in April, and will make fine plants. The other varieties are much more vigorous and will thrive in a lower temperature. A few old plants can be lifted and propagated in the spring in the usual manner.

Mignonette.

The plants of mignonette from seed sown in July will have to be placed in their winter quarters in the bench in September. If extra large and long spikes, that are always so much admired, are wanted, the soil will have to be very rich. To ordinary compost (that is, two-thirds loam and one-third manure), add about as much manure again, making the soil about half and half. The plants should be set about 12 inches apart. Water only around the plant until the roots begin to spread in the soil. Keep the soil free from weeds, well scratched over and loose, that it may not become sour. The tops should be pinched off until six or eight branches have been formed. The cabbage worm will soon make its appearance unless this has been guarded against, and if a leaf is found eaten hunt for them at once. When they first make their appearance they are only about a quarter of an inch long. They are green, just the color of the foliage, but have a velvety appearance, and are generally found on the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Hand picking is the only remedy, and it takes sharp eyes to find them, but they must be gotten rid of or they will soon ruin the plants.

Heaths.

During the hot weather the ericas will demand considerable attention. The plants should be plunged in the coolest location possible, yet where they will get the full sunlight. The pots are full of the very fine roots and if these once get dry the tender roots will burn. There is no plant the florist grows that demands closer watching and more careful watering than the heaths. They are so hard wooded that they do not show neglect as quickly as the softer wooded plants, but if they get once fully dried it means absolute disaster with no flowers the succeeding year. The grower well posted in the culture of these plants can tell at a glance when they should be watered and never neglects them. If the plants are growing unshapely they should be pinched back, so that the form will be kept. The plants that are in small pots will need repotting in September; a fine loam with but little fibre and with no manure is to be preferred for these plants, for their fine roots do not like a coarse soil, and manure of all kinds should be omitted from the soil in which they are grown.

Genistas.

The genistas should be potted by September 1 in the pots in which they are to bloom, and a few days before potting should be trimmed into shape. It is a good plan with all soft wooded plants when growing rapidly not to cut at the top the same time the roots are disturbed, so it is better to do the pinching back before the shifting is done, and then not again until the plants are beginning to grow in the new soil, plainly showing that root action has again begun after being disturbed. The plants that are being grown in prescribed shapes should be kept tied to the form, and as soon as established in the new soil, pinched back. They will stand considerable hard cutting back for some time yet, for the blooming shoots do not set until well into the winter. Keep the plants in as cool quarters as possible until the first of the year, when if a few plants are wanted early they can be brought into warmer locations but these plants are cool growing subjects and do not like any great amount of heat.

Violets.

It will soon be September and time to house the plants of the double varieties of violets that are grown in the field, the more successful growers being of the opinion that the plants should be under glass before the season of heavy dews. In preparing the beds have plenty of old leaves; it is not necessary that they be rotted; in fact, leaves gathered last fall are to be preferred, for they will generate a little heat in the soil and the violet plants seem to grow and push their roots into half-rotted leaves better than in leaf mold that is finely decomposed. A layer of three inches of leaves in the bottom of the bed will prove of great advantage in violet culture. Whatever manure is used should be thoroughly rotted. The violet will not root into fresh manure at all. An old gardener, who was very successful in violet culture, once told us how he prepared his frames. They were made in a similar manner to hotbeds, only instead of manure a foot of leaves was placed at the bottom and eight or ten inches of soil placed on them. The leaves will furnish a mild heat nearly all winter and greatly assist in keeping the frames warm. We tried that method the following fall and thinking that the leaves would not furnish nutriment enough we incorporated a good quantity of half-rotted manure in the soil, the manure still being more or less lumpy. The violets grew finely and produced an excellent crop of large flowers. In the spring when we lifted the plants we found the roots had all gone into the leaves, there being no feeding roots in the soil, and in making their way through the loam had avoided all the manure, this still being in the lumps as when placed in the soil. In lifting the plants avoid allowing the roots to become dry; lift with a good clump of soil and do not keep the plants too long in the air, only lifting what can be handled expeditiously. Plant firmly, but avoid walking on the beds; water as soon as planted and water well, so that the soil will be firmed around the plants. Shade for a few days until growth starts, and then give all the air and light possible.

Stevia.

All stopping of stevia should cease by the middle of August and the tall-growing varieties should be potted in their blooming pots, or if to be grown in a bench, planted out. The potting of these plants should be done carefully for the plant is very brittle where the branches break from the main stem, and are easily broken. The better way is to tie a piece of raffia around the plant, and if it is very large two or three pieces before moving the plant. As soon as potted or benched place a stake in the center to keep the plant erect. Pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard with a stick or other tool. After potting, water thoroughly, and place in a shady place; the plants will wilt more or less and a light syringing will help them to recover from this, but do not keep the soil soaked, yet daily watering for those in pots will be required. As soon as the plants begin to grow remove all shade and the pots can be plunged again outside in a frame. The dwarf varieties will not require to be potted until early in September if planted outside, but if grown in pots should be shifted in their blooming pots, generally 6-inch, before becoming badly pot-bound.

Geranium Propagating.

It is none too early to begin the propagation of geraniums, especially if it is doubtful about there being stock enough. Any plants that have become established and made a growth that will furnish a cutting will not be injured by the taking of the growing end, in fact, they will be benefited, for they will break more shoots for the September propagation. Many growers in making the fall propagation, after trimming the cuttings, insert them in 2½-inch pots in soil, placing the pots on shelves near the glass. This is a very economical way of handling the cuttings after cool weather has set in, but for summer propagation the bench of sand is to be preferred. In making the cuttings trim off all the foliage except the small leaves at the tip. Be sure that the sand is pounded down hard, so that it will retain all the water possible. In inserting the cutting use a small round stick as a dibble, making a hole just large enough in which to place the cutting. This will disturb the bed of sand much less than drawing a knife or other tool through it. After the cutting is placed in the sand, press the sand firmly and then water heavily, so that the sand will settle firmly around the cutting. The cuttings should then be shaded from the sun either by papers or by stretching cheese cloth over them. This will prevent wilting and evaporation. No further watering will be necessary, until the plants begin to root. One of the greatest mistakes made by growers in the summer and fall propagation of geraniums is the continual watering which will invariably cause damping off and rot. Never mind if the surface of the sand becomes dry, if it has been properly packed there will be moisture enough below to cause them to root. If the cuttings wilt a slight syringing or placing wet papers over them will revive them. A good strike can invariably be made by following this method.

Fourth National Flower Show.

W. F. Therkindson, chief of the publicity bureau, advises that plans for the Fourth National Flower Show to be held in Philadelphia, Pa., March 25-April 2, are fast taking tangible shape under the direction of the national flower show committee, consisting of George Asmus, chairman; Adolph Farnwald, vice-chairman; John Young, secretary; W. F. Kasting, treasurer; Chas. H. Totty, W. N. Rudd, Thomas Roland and W. P. Craig. A complete schedule of both plants and cut flowers will be issued in the near future.

Section A will be devoted to flowering plants exhibited by private growers. There will be nearly 50 exhibits in this section, for which prizes ranging from $15 to $50 will be awarded. Groups of flowering plants to occupy a space of 200 square feet, arranged for effect, will also be a feature of this division. The first prize in this class will be $150 for the best arrangement and $100 will be offered as a second prize.

Palms and foliage plants exhibited by private growers will occupy section B, which will contain about 25 exhibits. In this section a first prize of $50 and a second prize of $30 will be offered for the best six foliage plants (exclusive of palms) in not less than eight-inch pots, pans or tubs.

Ferns and selaginellas, entered by private growers, will form the varieties in section C. The highest award in this section will be $25 offered for the best showing in several varieties.

Orchids exhibited by private growers have been arranged for in section D. For the largest collection occupying a space of 50 square feet, arranged for effect, palms and ferns permitted, there will be a first prize of $100 and a second prize of $75. Other awards in this section will vary from $10 to $25. There will be about 20 other exhibits of orchids in this section.

Pots and pans of blooms in the bulbous varieties, arranged for effect with foliage plants, staged by private growers, will occupy section E. The principal prize in this section will be $25, offered for the best exhibit arranged on a table 50 feet square.

Private rose growers will have their exhibits in pots and tubs in section F. The American Rose Society will prepare the roses, of which there will be a dozen separate exhibits. The best displays of rose plants to occupy 100 square feet of space, will be awarded first and second prizes of $100 and $75, respectively.

Commercial growers of flowering plants will have section G assigned to them and there will be several large prizes offered in this competition. The largest prize, $200, will be offered for an exhibit of acacias to cover 200 square feet. The second prize in this class will be $100. A prize of $150 will be offered for the best showing of flowering foliage, stove and greenhouse plants, arranged for effect and covering an area of 200 square feet. This will be one of the largest general sections in the exhibition, and will comprise about 40 individual displays, with many of the prizes in the $100 class.

Section H will also be in charge of the commercial growers and will be given over to bulbous varieties. A special feature here will be a special prize offered for the best display of bulbs arranged as a Dutch garden and covering an area of 500 square feet.

Appropriate accessories will be permitted, and the quality of bloom, artistic arrangement and general effect will be considered in making the awards. The first prize will be $200 and a prize of $100 will be given for the second best arrangement.

Ferns and selaginellas arranged by commercial growers will be placed in section L, and will be awarded prizes varying from $10 to $50.

The orchids in the commercial classes will occupy section J. There will be about 20 exhibits and the highest prize will be $200 for a group of plants in variety, arranged for effect, palms and ferns permitted, and covering 100 square feet. There will be a number of $25 and $50 awards in this section, and a gold medal will be offered for the best orchid hybrid raised in America.

Palms and foliage plants, arranged by commercial growers, will be found in section K. There will be about 25 exhibits in this section with prizes varying from $10 to $50. Commercial growers of miscellaneous plants will be represented in the displays in section L. A first and a second prize of $150 and $100, respectively, will be offered for the finest collection of forced shrubs and herbaceous plants arranged for effect and covering 200 square feet. Trees and vines will be permitted in this exhibit.

In the commercial rose division, staged in section M, roses in pots and tubs will be prepared by the American Rose Society. For the best display of any and all varieties arranged for effect a first prize of $125 and a second prize of $75 is offered. This arrangement is to occupy 200 square feet. Other prizes, which will be awarded other classes in this section, will range from $10 to $75. The American Rose Society will offer its silver medal for the best new variety not in commerce.

Aquarium fish will be given space in section N. The first prize in this section will be $50, and a gold medal will also be offered.

At Convention hall, which will be the scene of the exhibition next spring, many flowering plants, set in large beds, which will be renewed as the seasons change have already turned what was formerly barren wastes into flowering gardens at each side of the main entrance. Plots measuring 45 by 90 feet, one on the east and one on the west of the entrance, have been planted by Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., and Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, and both have used their best effort and deserve credit for the improvement already wrought.

Gardeners' Essay Contest.

The essay committee of the National Association of Gardeners announces the following for the contest for the President Everitt gold prize:

Contestants must have their essays in the hands of the chairman, Wm. H. Waite, P. O. Box 290, Madison, N. J., not later than October 1. The essay must be signed with a non de plume, and must bear no evidence of the author's identification and be mailed in a plain envelope, carefully addressed to the chairman of the committee. The contestant will place his name and full address, stating the position he holds, in a separate envelope, writing the non de plume he signed to his essay on the outside of this envelope, and mail same in a separate envelope to M. C. Ebel, Secretary, National Association of Gardeners, Madison, N. J. This envelope is not to be opened until the judges have rendered their decision on the contest. Write your essay distinctly and use one side of paper only. These rules must be strictly followed to avoid disqualification.

The subjects have been arranged in four classes, as follows:

Class 1—Prize, $35, gold. Subject—Horticulture as a Profession, from the Standpoint of a Gardener.

Class 2—Prize $25, gold. Subject—The Proper Grouping and Culture of Trees, Shrubs, Perennials and Annual Bedding Plants in the Ornamentation of Private Grounds.

Class 3—Prize $20, gold. Subject—Preparation of Ground for and General Treatment of Hardy Herbaceous Perennials. Naming a list of species (limited to one hundred) providing a succession of flowers throughout the entire season.

Class 4—Prize $20, gold. Subject—How to Secure a Year's Vegetable Supply with the Aid of Cold Frames or Hotbeds (but no Greenhouses), Including Soil Preparation.

This essay competition is open to professional gardeners who are engaged in the capacity of superintendents, head gardeners or assistant gardeners.

A contestant is entitled to enter in one class only. The broadest latitude will be allowed in dealing with each subject. The essays are limited to 3,000 words each.

The contest will close on October 1, the judges to report their decision at the next convention of the association, to occur the first week of December. The essay committee will appoint five judges, consisting of three gardeners and two representatives of the horticultural press.

Contestants will address William H. Waite, chairman of essay committee, National Association of Gardeners, P. O. Box 290, Madison, N. J., for further particulars.

American Dahlia Society.

NEW YORK SHOW, SEPTEMBER 24-26, 1915.

When the doors of the Museum of Natural History, New York, are thrown open to the public, September 24, it is expected that the greatest variety and best collection of dahlias ever assembled anywhere in their different types and classes will be on display. The show will continue three days, the closing date being September 26.

There will be a larger number of dahlia growers, private gardeners, amateurs, ladies' garden clubs and surrounding horticultural societies, than at any previous dahlia exhibit. New seedlings and some of the newer varieties that have been either grown here or imported and not exhibited, will be shown for the first time at this meeting. Some 700 or 800 varieties grown by Prof. F. H. Hall, of the New York experiment station at Geneva, with other trial and experiment lots from other sections will be shown. As another feature we will aim to have some one present that will explain the planting, growing and handling of dahlias.

The executive committee have requested the retail florists to put up exhibits of their decorative art and skill in showing the possibilities of this beautiful and many colored and exquisite shaped flower. Each and everyone will be given space free of charge to put up whatever they wish in table decorations, bouquets, baskets and vases of any design that will show the possibilities of the dahlia for ornamental and design work in its season.

The American Dahlia Society is the youngest society claiming notice, but is vigorous and growing for its age. The society is backed by good and experienced men who understand their business, and will make an earnest effort to win the good opinion of their fellow craftsmen as well as the rest of the American public, especially the lovers of the beautiful dahlias.

RICHARD VINCENT, JR., Pres.

Milwaukee Florists' Club.

The annual basket picnic of the Milwaukee Florists' Club was held at Keipper's Park, Sunday, August 1. The weather was ideal; the attendance large and everyone present had a most delightful time. There were sporting events for the ladies, gentlemen and children with a ball game that was a feature event of the day. A nine representing the Cudahy Floral Co. and consisting of John Hachmeister, Earl Schweitzer, Ronald Whitehead, Leo Kaplanek, Frank Lemard, Roy Brown, Fred Retzloff, J. M. Ensinger and Byrant Seeley played a team representing the Holton & Hunkel Co. and consisting of Ed Radtke, George Kostelnik, Al. Rowe, Grover Kash, Al. Hollatz, N. Schmidt.

Ed. Heuer and A. Schumacher. The game was very interesting with the Holton & Hunkel boys carrying off the honors by a score of 17 to 11. The Honorable F. H. Holton acted as umpire and must have played fair to both sides for he was on the job the next day at the store without even as much as a scratch.

The C. C. Pollworth Co., Schroeder Floral Co., Holton & Hunkel Co., W. E. Dallwig, August F. Kellner Co., Edlefson & Leidiger Co., Gustav Pohl, J. M. Fox & Son, R. J. Currie, Nic. Zweifel, Heitman - Oestreicher, Baumgarten Floral Co., W. C. Zimmermann, Chas. Menger, Gimbel Bros., Wisconsin Plumbing & Heating Supply Co., Hummel & Downing, J. Rauschenberger Co., Dever Bros., George Ackerman, Kummer Floral Co., Mueler Greenhouse Co., Fox Point Floral Co., F. Guter-muth & Co., E. Welke Co. and Gust Rusch Co., all donated prizes for the sporting events which were closely contested. The committee consisting of A. Hare, Nic. Zweifel and Walter Halliday, deserve much credit for the splendid manner in which they handled the affair especially Mr. Hare who was on the job early and late. The result of the various contests are as follows:

Tug of war—Holton & Hunkel Co., first.

Race for women—Miss Griebler, first.

Men's race—Albert Rowe, first; Grover Kash, second.

Ladies' peanut race—Hilda Holtz, first; Ruth Voelzke, second.

Girls' race—Ruth Voelzke, first; Florence Holtz, second.

Ladies' potato race—Miss S. Beyer, first; Miss M. Heuer, second.

Lemon eating contest—N. Schmidt, first; G. Kostelnik, second.

Pie eating contest—G. Kostelnik, first; N. Schmidt, second.

Sack race—G. Kash, first; A. Radtke, second.

Ladies' guessing contest—I. Jens, first; Miss Berndt, second.

Men's guessing contest—Mr. Von Trott.

Boy's race—Elmer Kuhl, first; Roy Maggison, second.

Little girls' potato race—Hilda Holtz, first; H. Beyer, second.

Watermelon contest—G. Kostelnik, first; G. Kash, second.

RIDGETOWN, ONT.—A pipe frame house, 30 by 125 feet will be erected by D. A. Leitch.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—John Hanlon is making an addition 16x48 feet to his greenhouse at 8760 Frankford avenue.

SHARON, PA.—The greenhouses of John Murchie are being removed and rebuilt on his property on Irvine avenue.

GUTHRIE, OKLA.—John Furrow, of Furrow & Co., is in Omaha, Neb., where he will dispose of several cars of Oklahoma peaches.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Over 300 persons attended the annual outing under the auspices of the florists' club at Great Falls, July 21.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that the Oak Grove Greenhouse, Tuskegee, Ala., offers for registration, the following coleus: Any person objecting to the use of the proposed name or registration is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration the same will be made three weeks from this date:

Raiser's description—Name, Yellow Trailing Queen. An excellent variety for boxes, baskets or vases; it drops and hangs down two feet or more in a large clump. Center of leaves bright yellow, then around that bright olive green border with deeply serrated edges. Sport from Trailing Queen or Beauty. Has all the good qualities of its parent except color which makes it a trailing mate. A very attractive novelty.

The Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, Mass., offer for registration the following roses described below. Any person objecting to the use of the proposed names or registrations, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive an objection to the registration the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description—Name, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, a sport from Mrs. Charles Russell. Flower is large and full. Color outside of petals deep rose, inside clear silver pink. Foliage large and very dark green, perfectly flat, has no tendency to curl as is sometimes the case with Mrs. Chas. Russell.

Name, Mrs. Moorfield Storey, a seedling. (General McArthur x Joey Hill.) A large full rose with heavy dark foliage. Color, shell pink, deeper towards the center, tip of petals deep rose.

A. T. Pyfer & Company, Chicago, Ill., offer for registration the following Shasta daisy seedling. Any person objecting to the use of the proposed registration, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Raiser's description—Parentage: Leucantherenum Maxima Triumph X Leucantherenum Princess Henry. Size of flower four inches in diameter. Very robust and a heavy producer. Name, Mrs. H. G. Selfridge.

"Where Opportunity Knocks Twice."

It is nearly three score years and ten since the gold seekers started on their memorable journey to the golden state of California in prairie schooners. That was a long and perilous journey attended with much hardship and loss of life. While the distance remains the same the trip from eastern points is now made in a few days and is one of pleasure rather than danger and discomfort, but California is still the land of gold, not so much perhaps the yellow ore of the "Fortyniners" as the golden products of its soil and sunshine.

As horticulturists and florists many of our readers are familiar with some of California's specialties in fruits, flowers and vegetables, but some are not aware that for many kinds of ornamental and useful plants this state is the seed garden of the world, onion and sweet peas being two of the leading items in this industry with a long list of minor flowers and vegetables. California callas and freesias are known the world over and the large areas of petunias and other garden flowers make huge tracts of glowing color in the landscape.

The equable climate of California is said to favor the production of choice seeds and bulbs of many kinds which can not be produced elsewhere of equal quality and for similar reasons marvelous crops of many kinds are produced by farmers, orchardists and gardeners. The garden effects produced in and about many of the cities charm the visitor from less favored sections as much in the unusual plants and trees employed for that purpose as in their beauty and luxuriance of growth.

The eastern craft on their visit to the trade convention at San Francisco, August 17-19, will revel in the splendor of the flower stores found in all leading California cities and the superb art of the florists in the manipulation and display of flowers. To learn something more of the immense possibilities of this great state we can not do better than recommend our friends to secure a copy of the book, the title of which is used as a caption to these comments and read it on the outward journey. This delightful volume by Forrest Crissey was recently published by the Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago.

The Bayersdorfers Return.

Harry Bayersdorfer and wife, of Philadelphia, Pa., have returned from Japan, arriving at San Francisco, July 26. Last Monday morning, August 2, they reached Chicago, and left soon after noon on the Broadway Limited for Philadelphia. The outward trip and part of their return journey in Japan was in every way pleasant and satisfactory. Soon after the return journey was started, however, Mrs. Bayersdorfer was stricken with an eastern form of typhoid, which deprived her of the use of her legs. The best medical skill was provided, and efforts made to detain the patient for treatment in Japan, but Mrs. Bayersdorfer pluckily decided to proceed to Yokohama, and embark for home, which was done, with two native nurses in attendance. During the entire passage to Honolulu the patient was confined to bed with fever, but the ship's doctor promised to have her in condition to walk ashore on reaching the United States, and succeeded in his efforts. At Chicago, Mrs. Bayersdorfer appeared quite cheerful in her wheel chair and overjoyed at the thought of reaching home the next day.

Mr. Bayersdorfer bore up well under the difficulties of the situation, and only regretted that duty to his wife compelled him to forego many of the pleasures planned for Mrs. Bayersdorfer and himself by Japanese notables on their return trip. Fortunately his business at the manufacturing centers was completed before Mrs. Bayersdorfer's illness rendered her helpless. Orders were placed for large stocks of the choicest Japanese novelties in florists' supplies, which will be offered to the trade this fall by H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s representatives.

Belgian Plants.

Resolution unanimously adopted by the Horticultural Importers' Association at a special meeting held at New York, July 22, 1915:

Whereas, The British "Order in Council", effective March 15, 1915, was intended to stop the export trade of the nations at war with Great Britain, but is at present so interpreted by the British authorities as to also stop the exportation of azaleas and other Belgian plants to the United States, because they are grown in that part of Belgium now occupied by the enemies of Great Britain, and

Whereas, This interpretation of the "Order in Council" by the British authorities will do incalculable damage to the interests of the American florists and the Belgian growers, without unfavorably affecting the interests of the enemies of Great Britain, since it is generally known that azaleas are only grown in the vicinity of Ghent, Belgium, and that the enemies of Great Britain also must get them there, and

Whereas, It can be clearly shown that these azaleas and other Belgian plants are of Belgian production and origin, exclusively grown by Belgians, for Belgian interests, and that none other than Belgians get any revenue or benefit from their sale. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Horticultural Importers' Association respectfully requests our state department to use its influence to have the British authorities permit these shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants and bulbs to be exported here the coming fall dating from August 20, and be it also

Resolved, That the secretary of this association be instructed to present this resolution personally to the department of state at Washington.

J. McHUTCHISON, Sec'y.

Winter Flowering Sweet Peas Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

Novelty Yarrawa

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., 1/4 oz., 50c.

Selma Swenson

A beautiful clear light soft pink waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

Rose Queen

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE NOTED.

The past week has been a trifle better as to sales than the week previous. Outdoor stock still arrives in very large quantities, and as to variety—well there are, as one grower of outdoor flowers remarked lately, about "57 varieties," each with a family of its own. Jap lilies with long stems are very plentiful, as are Easter lilies. Candidum lilies can still be had from cold storage, and are good stock. The incessant rains have played havoc with most of the sweet peas, and many arrive soft and mushy; few good ones arrive and they meet with a fair demand. Most of the carnation growers are replanting, and this has lessened the supply of carnations, which were beginning to look like "starved Cubans." Roses from young stock are arriving, and the quality is much better than formerly. Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia and Sunburst are in very good demand, and flowers are exceptionally good. Pink and White Killarney and Kaiserin roses are also better in quality, and the demand for these is also on the increase. Gladioli and asters are "too numerous to mention;" they fill the tables and other corners, and also the rubbish boxes, as there are about three times as many grown as could ever be used by the trade. Lily of the valley has been plentiful and of good quality. Larkspur, phlox, gaillardia, etc., are in fair demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Water lilies are used quite extensively, both in white and colors. American Beauties, owing to their superior keeping qualities, find a good market, and as a summer rose have yet to meet their equal. Snapdragons can be had both in short and long stem.

CLUB MEETING.

Owing to inclement weather there was a small attendance at the meeting of the Florists' Club. Nominations for officers resulted as follows: Herbert Bate, president; Al Lindgruen, vice-president; Claude Tyler, second vice-president; Frank Friedley, secretary; George W. Smith, treasurer. As there was only one nominee for each office the respective candidates are already voted to the several offices. President Henry Knoble announced that nearly $1,500 had been contributed by several women, principally by Mrs. Holden and Mrs. Ingalls, to be used as special prizes at the flower show. These ladies also plan to have a tea garden and dance at the show, the proceeds to be divided between charity and the flower show fund. The announcement was made that one-half of the space for exhibits had been sold, and contracts for a large portion of the balance will be closed in the near future.

GLADIOLUS EXHIBITION.

The third annual exhibition of the Gladiolus Society of Ohio will be held at the Hollenden hotel assembly room (same place as last year), Friday and Saturday, August 13-14. This show will be on a larger scale than last year and all the rare and choice new varieties and the old standard varieties will be exhibited. Table decorations by retailers will be a feature that alone will be worth seeing. Baskets, too, with gladioli, will be shown both days. Cards, inviting the general public, can be had at all the wholesale stores. There will be no admission charged.

NOTES.

All the flower stands at the Sheriff street market are being torn down this week and new ones being put up, which will be more roomy and adapted to the better displaying of flowers.

C. B. Wilhelmy and family have this week returned from a month's stay at "Geneva on the Lake."

Edmund A. Slattery, of W. J. Palmer & Son, florists, of Buffalo, N. Y., stopped here August 2.

Visitor: Milton Alexander of Lion & Co., New York. C. F. B.

Washington.

The market is at a standstill. There is an oversupply of asters and gladioli, while roses are very poor in quality and can be had at buyers' prices. A few fairly good carnations were seen in the wholesale houses this week.

NOTES.

William Gude is an exceptionally busy man at present, getting everything possible in shape for the G. A. R. encampment here, before leaving for the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco. When it comes to hustling he is certainly "there with the goods."

M. Redman, sales manager for S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., is at Colonial Beach, enjoyed a well-earned rest.

Miss M. E. Shea, bookkeeper for S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., is enjoying her vacation at Springfield, Mass.

George C. Shaffer reports a good week, funeral work being heavy.

Visitor: Wm. McKissick, Baltimore, Md. G. C. D.

TRADE VERY QUIET.

Trade has been very quiet the past week, but the sales during the month of July, as a whole, were satisfactory, and in some instances considerably larger than those of the same month last year. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and is to be obtained in large lots at bargain prices. American Beauty roses are of good quality for this season of the year, but are not selling any too well. Roses of all kinds are in large supply, especially Killarney and Killarney Brilliant. Ophelia, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Hoosier Beauty and Sunburst are in good supply and move fairly well, but at rather low prices. Carnations are seen in large numbers and are being sold in quantity lots at bargain quotations. Asters are more plentiful at all the stores and some very good stock is arriving now. The supply of cold storage peonies seems to be exhausted, for very few blooms are seen since the Eastland disaster, when practically all the stock was cleaned up for funeral work. Gladioli are a big factor in the market now and large shipments of all the seasonable varieties are reaching the market daily, but the stock is not bringing what it should, although the quality in some instances is all that could be desired. Orchids do not appear to be any too plentiful, but the supply of lilies and lily of the valley is equal to the demand. A few sweet peas are still seen and daisies, pond lilies, coreopsis, gaillardias and other outdoor stock is as plentiful as ever. There appears to be considerable funeral work around the city, according to some of the retail florists, and while trade seems to be quieter than usual this week a healthier tone to the market may be expected, and one need not be surprised if the total sales during the month of August exceed those of the same month of 1914. A large number of the wholesale houses have been donating a large supply of their surplus stock to clubs and societies who are selling the flowers in theaters, baseball parks and other public places for the benefit of the Eastland sufferers.

NOTES.

A. L. Vaughan and family motored to Valparaiso, Ind., July 31, returning the following day with the report that they had a most enjoyable trip. Wm. Johnson, who has charge of the shipping trade at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, is again attending to his duties after enjoying a well-earned rest. Peter Hoefelder, one of this firm's obliging young salesmen, is visiting friends and relatives at Piper City.

John Walsh, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is on his vacation this week. It is rumored that he was married Monday, August 2, and according to one of the retail florists on the northwest side it must be true, for he saw him and the handsome lady near a church with a party of friends on the date mentioned.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Hancock and daughters, Belle and Miriam, left for San Francisco, Calif., August 3, to take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Miss Franc Hancock, who is attending the University of California at Berkeley, will join the family at the Exposition city.

A. C. Kohlbrand, with the E. C. Amling Co., and family are visiting friends and relatives at Cincinnati, O., and Covington, Ky. Bert Cole, who has charge of the American Beauty roses at Amling's, and wife are back from a 2,200 mile lake trip on the steamer North American.

A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., was in the city on business this week. He is consigning large numbers of cut gladioli blooms to this market, and one variety in particular that is attracting the attention of the buyers is that named Firerlbbon.

John F. Farrell, 4645 South State street, and family are spending their vacation at Hudson Lake, Ind. His brother James, who has just returned from the same resort, will have charge of the store during his absence.

Mrs. Horton, of the Bassett & Washburn office force, says that the total sales during the month of July were very satisfactory, and considerably larger than those of the corresponding month last year.

J. Champ Weiland, of Weiland & Risch, let the contracts the past week for the erection of a handsome twelve-room residence on South boulevard, Evanston.

George Pandall, who operates three stores in Indiana, one at Terre Haute, Ft. Wayne and Indianapolis, visited friends here this week.

The next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Hotel Bismarck Thursday, August 5, at 8 p. m.

Vaughan's Seed Store is sending out new crop French mammoth freesias as well as Liliun Harrisii bulbs.

W. D. Desmond, with the L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis, Minn., spent a few days here this week.

Frank Haegen, with George Reinberg, is spending his vacation fishing at the Wisconsin lakes.

B. O'Neil, of Elgin, was a visitor last week, celebrating his sixty-eighth birthday anniversary.

John Kruchten and wife have returned from a delightful outing at Sister Lakes, Michigan.

Harry Manheim, of the Hoerber Bros. store force, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Frank Oechslin and wife are home from California this week.

2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass

W. H. Englehard, with the Idlewild Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn., and family are visiting here this week. Miss McNulty and Felix Reichling, of the Peter Reinberg store force, have been entertaining them a great deal the past week as well as Mr. Reinberg, so they are having a most delightful time. They are now visiting relatives at Gary, Ind.

Wietor Bros. are cutting heavily in roses, especially Killarney and White Killarney. N. J. Wietor just started to count how many pink roses they cut for the fun of it the other day but after tackling the job for three days he quit pretty well satisfied that the number will reach pretty nearly into seven figures.

Miss Niessen of the Percy Jones office force is back from a delightful vacation trip and is again attending to her duties in the office. The rest of the employes will now enjoy their vacation in turn after one of the best seasons the firm has ever experienced.

F. A. Parkmire and family returned from an automobile trip to Louisville, Ky., Tuesday, August 3, making the return trip in less than 15 hours. He reports that the roads were bad and it rained almost all the time they were on the road.

Mathias Mann, of Zech & Mann, and son Nick are spending a few weeks fishing at Winneconne, Wis. Allie Zech received a card from them this week, reading that the fishing was fine and to expect 20 pounds of pickerel soon.

Chas. Lampros, 155 North State street, has placed an order with Jac. Lederer for an entire outfit for a florist store and will be open for business in the Masonic temple about September 15.

Miss O. A. Tonner and her mother will spend their vacation this year with relatives at Pelican Rapids, Minn., leaving the latter part of this month.

BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS

The florists of this city and vicinity had a special sale on cut flowers and plants, Wednesday, August 4, at 217 South State street, for the benefit of the Eastland sufferers and from last reports the sale was a great success. Nearly everyone in the trade, grower, wholesaler and retailer, did what they could to help the good cause along and many of them helped to sell the stock that they and others had donated. The committee consisting of J. L. Raske, W. P. Kyle, Andrew Chronis, Eric Johnson and Cornelia Ryan, deserve much credit for the time they devoted to the affair which had much to do with the sale being a success.

Otto W. Frese says that business has been very good in the cut flower department at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store during the month of July, compared with last year, and that the demand so far this month has been most encouraging. The supply department has shown a wonderful gain and new orders are continually arriving. T. E. Waters has been busy mailing the new catalogue and says that anyone who has not yet received a copy can obtain same upon request.

A. Hoeg, representing C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis., called on several of the leading florist growers here this week. He and Ernest Rober of Wilmette reached Frank Oechslein's place just as the proprietor and his wife had returned from San Francisco, Calif., where they attended the Panama-Pacific exposition and were pleased with the glowing description of the fair and the beauties of Governor Johnson's state.

Rheinold Schiller, with Schiller, the Florist, West Madison street, will leave soon to take a trip down the Mississippi river by steamer from St. Louis, Mo., to New Orleans, La., and from there to Norfolk, Va., on one of the ocean liners.

A. Lange and family have arranged to leave August 7 for Omaha, where they may join the Chicago convention party next week.

John R. Hellenenthal and wife of Columbus, O., visited friends here this week.

J. T. Conger, Lockland, O., was here on business this week.

Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Baltimore

The annual outing of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Baltimore, Md., will be held at Miller's park, Wednesday, August 18, and the committee in charge have arranged a fine programme for the entertainment of those who attend. A large list of prizes will be awarded to the winners of the various contests, which will include a baseball game and bowling tournaments. The usual crab feast will be one of the features of the outing, and there will be plenty of good music and dancing.

STOCK PLENTIFUL.

Stock of every description is plentiful and is to be had in large lots at very reasonable prices. Roses especially are in good supply and some extra fine Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell are obtainable. The supply of Killarney, White Killarney, Sunburst and all the other roses is also large, which gives the retailer a splendid opportunity to make a magnificent showing at very little cost. Carnations are holding up remarkably well in quality this year and are in good supply. Gladioli are plentiful and the supply of asters and dahlias is steadily increasing. Sweet peas are plentiful and the same holds good for lilies, although the latter are cleaning up well at times. Business is not any too brisk, but still no one is complaining, and judging from the large crowd at the picnic last Sunday, August 1, and the jolly good time all had, a stranger would think that everyone in the trade here was a millionaire.

NOTES.

The Kummer Floral Co. report business as good, with the outlook very encouraging. Mr. Kummer used to be a photographer and drifted into the florist business under rather peculiar circumstances, starting with a few hot bed sash. The roofs and sides of one of his houses is built of old camera plates, 5x7, which naturally attracts one's attention. Mr. Kummer and family will make an automobile trip to Ohio this month, where they will visit friends and relatives. The writer is indebted to Mr. Kummer for driving him about the North Side.

C. C. Pollworth says that his traveling representative, Phil Weil, will represent the C. C. Pollworth Co. at the S. A. F. convention in San Francisco, August 17-19. Walter Holliday, of the store force, has been enjoying a well earned rest at Lake Five, but so far has not sent back any fish. F. J. Boyer is also away on his vacation and Mr. Pollworth and wife returned recently from a delightful auto trip to Marinette, Wis.

Fred J. Manke has about 5,000 feet of glass which he devotes principally to the growing of sweet peas and chrysanthemums. In addition he has 13 acres of ground and a part of this is devoted to outdoor stock such as asters, etc. This year he planted all his outdoor asters from seed and reports splendid results.

Holton & Hunkel Co. is cutting a fine grade of Hoosier Beauty roses, which promise to make as big a hit as their Mrs. Chas. Russell did. H. V. Hunkel believes that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, so he hiked off to tall timbers this week with his family to enjoy a few days' fishing.

F. Gutermuth & Co. are cutting from a nice crop of fine indoor asters which have done unusually well this season. This firm's chrysanthemums are looking fine and are showing splendid growth. Their Boston ferns and outdoor vincas are also worthy of note.

H. W. Koerner cut his first dahlias July 31 and is now bringing a good supply into the market each day. The quality of the stock is better this year than last and the same holds good for gladioli, although the latter did not bring as high prices as formerly.

Currie Bros. Co. has notified the trade that it will tear down its old greenhouses at Twenty-seventh and State streets. The property has been sold to a moving picture concern, who will erect a theater and studio on the old site.

B. A. Loudon, proprietor of the West Side Flower Shop, is attending strictly to business nowadays, for competition is pretty keen in his neighborhood, and he believes in getting every dollar in sight during the summer months.

Grunwaldt Bros., who have taken over the Nic. Zweifel greenhouses and are conducting the business under the firm name of Greenwood Carnation Co., are busy getting the place in shape and are well along with their planting.

Walter M. Maas and wife are spending their vacation in the east this year. Miss Scheriff is in charge of the store and is also a member of the firm which conducts the business under the name of Walter M. Maas & Co.

William Zimmermann, president of the local order of Eagles, is attending Art. Leidiger, with Edlfsen-Leidiger Co., says that Mrs. Chas. Russell and Ophelia roses are the two best selling varieties on their list just now.

Henry Schimmels is well satisfied with business since he opened his store at 474 Twelfth street, and is gradually establishing a good trade.

It is reported that a delegation representing the Chicago Retail Florists' Association will attend the next club meeting.

Rudolph Preuss & Sons are busy planting their carnations and chrysanthemums and are well along with the work.

Louis Manos, with Nohos & Co., says that his wife is able to be about again after having been ill for some time.

MARKET BADLY OVERSTOCKED.

Business continues quiet. Funeral work has been very good, and has helped market conditions somewhat, but there has been a big oversupply of outdoor sweet peas and children are on the streets in numbers selling peas, gaillardias and daisies at five cents per bunch, and the stock in most cases is very good. Asters are making a big bid for supremacy over the carnations in popular favor, but the latter are very fine for this time of the year. Gladioli can be had at your own price. Stock of all kinds is plentiful.

NOTES.

The report and excellent illustrations in THE AMERICAN FLORIST last week, of the outing of the florists of the Twin Cities were highly complimented by members of the craft in both cities.

C. G. Anderson and his family are now installed comfortably in a pleasant flat on Lake street and are favorably impressed with their new location.

A spirit of gloom seems to hang over Rice Bros.' establishment. Art. Rice is away and Frank Stepherson is on his vacation.

J. McMullen, of Will Bros.' force, who was accidentally shot, as reported in these columns last week, is recovering nicely.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. are sending in some exceptionally fine Beauties which the trade are not ashamed to display.

About 15 of the local florists joined the Order of Stags, July 29, and are enthusiastic about the organization.

Neil Neilsen, of Mankato, Minn., accompanied by his son, were in the city for several days, buying stock.

Thomas S. Lynes has a new Oakland touring car and is planning many trips to the lakes with his family.

W. D. Desmond, of L. S. Donaldson Co., is in Chicago on a buying trip.

Oklahoma City.

After four weeks' steady warm, dry weather, we are now receiving a gentle rain, accompanied by lower temperature, and a general beneficial effect will result to all growing crops.

NOTES.

The state of Texas is to be congratulated on their recent successful annual meeting. When the Oklahoma florists reach that stage of progress, which develops an unanimity of mind and desire to work together for the furthering of the trade in general, our state organization will be in a position to emulate the efficient work as being done by the Texas society. In the meantime, our state society's meetings and our projected flower show must remain as dreams in the minds of a small coterie of enthusiasts, who are unable to carry their ideas to fulfillment, because of a lack of interest shown by the members of the trade in general.

With specially manufactured boxes, and by affixing a special delivery stamp, parcel post delivery of cut flowers is becoming the universal method of sending flowers to points throughout the state and the old-fashioned arbitrary rules and regulations of express companies are gone forever.

Business is somewhat dull and storemen find time to indulge in fishing excursions occasionally. Some day perhaps, we shall be enabled to inaugurate an annual florists' outing in this city. There is nothing like a feast and a picnic for bringing the craft members together in unison.

At this writing it does not appear that Oklahoma City will be represented at the S. A. F. convention. This seems strange when we consider how near we are to San Francisco when compared with eastern cities. S. S. B.

FUNERAL WORK HELPS DEMAND.

Funeral work has brought about an increase in a comparatively light demand during the past week, and outdoor flowers were used in profusion at several social functions at the Country club. Aside from these events there was practically nothing doing in social circles. The supply of flowers at present is almost overwhelming, and the quality has not been excelled in previous years, due to the favorable weather conditions that have existed during June and July. The best roses are bringing $6 to $8 per hundred, while other grades of very good quality bring $2, $3 and $4. Shawyer, Russell, Ophelia and Milady are the best selling varieties. Carnations are just coming in from field grown stock, but are so few they are not quoted as yet. Gladioli bring $2 to $3 per hundred. Asters bring $1 to $2 per hundred. Shasta daisies, sweet peas, calliopsis and zinnias make up the variety now offered on the summer market.

NOTES.

A large wedding decoration on August 2 was executed for the Greven-Gilmartin nuptials by the decorating staff of the Flick Floral Co. Large standard vases were filled with huge hydrangeas and America gladioli. The bridal bouquet was composed of lily of the valley, lilies and white orchids, while the maids carried Shasta daisies and Ophelia roses.

OBERLIN, O.—Florists of this city, Elyria, Lorain and Wellington are talking of organizing a florists' club.

RHINEBECK, N. Y.—At the annual meeting of the Violet Growers' Mutual Association, July 10, Chas. Traver of this city was elected president.

LOWELL, MASS.—Damage amounting to several hundred dollars was caused by fire, July 21, to the office building of the McManmon Company, florists, Marshall avenue.

Newport, R. I.

At a meeting of the Newport Garden Club, called by the president, Mrs. Chas. F. Hoffman, to select a member of the board of directors in place of the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Pembroke Jones was elected. It was also voted to hold a mid-summer exhibition of plants and flowers in conjunction with the Newport Horticultural Society and arrangements have been made to hold the exhibition in a vacant lot on Bellevue avenue, August 12-14. A large number of entries have already been made. J. J. B.

HOUGHTON, MICH.—Raids on the peony beds of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., participated in by children resulted in serious damage to many plants.

XENIA, O.—The Engel Floral Co. has arranged several very attractive window box decorations for business establishments in the downtown district that are bringing many complimentary remarks.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Women of the state are taking considerable interest in their new organization, the Ladies' California Floral Society, according to Mrs. J. Wessel, the secretary of the society.

OVERSUPPLIED MARKET PRICES SLUMP.

Gladioli are still the feature of the market; they are much too plentiful, and in most cases do not return enough to pay expressage, $2 being the outside figure for the pick of the stock, while $1.50 and $1.00 is the price for what is sold. As more is thrown away than disposed of, the returns must be very poor indeed. Next in importance are the asters, which are of better quality than last week and very plentiful. Stock without a blemish is selling for $1 per hundred, all colors. Roses are more plentiful again, with quality of the standard summer sorts quite up to the mark. The eastern American Beauties are very good, while the local new crop are quite presentable. The Easter lily machinery appears to be running full time whether the product brings anything or not. Lily of the valley also comes along and trusts to luck—this week it met with fair demand on account of several important funerals. The past few days have been among the hottest of the season, adding much to the discomfort of the dealers and shortening the life of the stock, which is hard to keep over from one day to another. The vacation season is in full swing, there not being an establishment of any importance but what has a portion of its force away resting up for the coming season.

NOTES.

Voller's House of Flowers has had the front renovated and new plant boxes put up. The color scheme is red and white, the entire front being painted white. The four window boxes, one at the top and one at the base of each of the two windows, are red and white, the red galvanized iron inside lining showing through the white palings of the boxes. These are filled with evergreens, while a row of boxes the width of the property are on the top cornice above the sign. These are filled with tall evergreens. The background here is a high cornice with a white framework, giving a pergola effect. The show windows are protected from the sun with a red and white striped drop awning. The effect is very striking and showy.

Frank Polites has sent out notice to all his growers of his removal to 1420 Chestnut street, the first door west of his present location, where he will have a show window on both sides of the entrance to a large office building. Mr. Polites is quite a factor in the business with three other stores.

S. S. Skidelsky & Co. have just received some choice cyclamen and other seeds from Germany, coming by parcels post by way of Rotterdam. Advices received inform this firm that another considerable shipment is under way and should arrive within the next two weeks.

The Jos. Heacock Co. is working up a wonderful stock of palms. They do not wish anybody any harm, but they feel that they can handle a lot of the trade that formerly went to Belgium, in the event of that country not being able to ship the coming season.

CITY SWELTERS UNDER HOT WAVE.

In writing of very hot weather we believe that a "torrid wave" is the accepted phraseology. That does very well in most instances, but that which visited this city during the past week was more like a torrid blanket with a lining of humidity.

It enveloped us early in the week, and though the weather sharps, from their comfortable kiosks, far above the sweltering masses of humanity, kept raining down predictions, they were all ineffective.

If there could be any choice, Saturday, July 31, was the hottest day of the week. It will, therefore, be readily understood that business, which was fairly promising on the morning of July 26, dwindled away as the days dragged on. And yet, considering weather conditions, it was almost surprising that there was as much business as was transacted. Good roses were not plentiful, though there was a surplus of inferior stock, wide open and practically unsalable. Orchids continued rather scarce. In gladioli and asters there was a great surplus, which increased toward the last of the week, and at this writing ice boxes are full of both. It is very fine asters that will now wholesale for 75 cents to $1 per 100 and plenty of them are going at 25 cents per 100 and from that to the dead cart. The gladioli situation is no better, with prices, when there are prices, ranging the same.

August 2.—The market is very dull with a great stock of short roses, asters and gladioli going to waste. Many roses are unsalable when they reach the market. There are practically no good roses, but prices quoted are for the best. There has been rain but the atmosphere is yet very oppressive.

NOTES.

It is stated, from Washington, that in a few days, another "formidable" note from Great Britain, regarding the rights of neutrals at sea and within blockade lines, will be discussed. It is stated that assurances have been received from Great Britain that importation of German sugar beet seed to plant next year's American crop will be permitted. The conditions laid down are that: "It must be shown that the seed is available for purchase only in Germany; shipments must be made from neutral ports only, and there can be no exchange of American goods with the German exporter." We have recently noted an importation of bay trees said to have been held up for two months, and they were a sorry sight. It is stated that goods to the value of $167,000,000 are now held in Rotterdam, Holland, and that some 3,000 American firms are interested in this merchandise, which it must be understood, covers all lines of importations. Possibly azaleas may be allowed to come in under the same provisions as sugar beet seed. A shipment of palms reached this port from Rotterdam July 29.

The New York Florists' Club bowling team went to Barnegat Bay, July 27, on a fishing trip and remained three days. Part of the time they fished from the ocean and caught eight pound bluefish. In the party were William P. Ford, William H. Siebrecht,

But little is being said about a delegation to the convention of the Society of American Florists. Compared with the talk of six months ago, we are reminded of the juvenile classic of the little boy who ran to his mother with the information that there were about "forty cats in our barn." Under a severe cross-examination he finally eliminated all but "our old cat and another one."

Thomas F. Galvin, Sr., is now at his store in this city. Thomas F. Galvin, Jr., is on his vacation. F. Deery, who has been the leading decorator at the Boston stores, will be in the New York store for the remainder of the summer. R. Hole, buyer for the New York store, has just returned from a trip to Boston.

We have received from Secretary John Young the preliminary programme for the thirty-first annual convention of the Society of American Florists, August 17-19, to be held in the Civic Centre Auditorium, Hayes and Larkin streets, San Francisco, Calif.

It has been stated that Thomas W. Head, well known in the trade, has sold his range at Bergenfield, N. J. Mr. Head was formerly superintendent of the estate of Morton F. Plant, in Connecticut.

Miss Mabel Conkling, bookkeeper, and Philip Ditzenberger, foreman at H. E. Froment's, have returned from their vacations. William Sampson of the same store, is now on vacation.

William J. Peake, a well known Buffalo, N. Y., florist, was in this city July 30-31, leaving on the latter date, by the steamship Finland, for San Francisco, via the Panama canal.

J. K. Allen has erected a large tent in the yard in the rear of his store. As there were already two large trees there he can now be comfortable.

J. Callas, a retail florist of Kansas City, Mo., has been spending a week with his brother, who is in business in Brooklyn.

Miss A. Stein, bookkeeper for I. H. Eisenberg, has gone on a month's vacation, which she will spend at various resorts.

S. Hopkins, bookkeeper for William P. Ford, has just returned from a vacation at a Westchester, N. Y., resort.

Myer Othile, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, has returned from a month's vacation, looking as fit as a fiddle.

Miss Hazel Hanft, bookkeeper for Young & Nugent, is on a vacation of several weeks.

BUSINESS TONE VERY WEAK.

Business is very dull. The supply has shortened somewhat, but this shortening means only a shortening in the surplus stock not in the stock that is needed. The demand is about the same as it has been since the beginning of summer. Roses are plentiful, but the great bulk of them are short and not very good. Gladioli and asters are still in a glut and many of the best blooms have had to go to the ash-barrels. Auratum and rubrum have a limited call. Easter lilies are plentiful. Other offerings include dahlias, snapdragons and pond lilies. Some very good asparagus and plumosus is coming in from local growers.

NOTES.

Al. Bradford, of Springfield, Ohio, who is opening a new flower store there, and G. A. Beckman, of Middletown, Ohio, were in town during the past fortnight on buying expeditions.

Miss Mary Rusconi was married to Frank Cebulo, Monday, July 26. After the ceremony the guests adjourned to Dietrich's club house at Ft. Thomas for dinner.

Chas. Pommert of Amelia, Ohio, who has just returned from Peoria, Ill., states that all business there except the florist business seems to be prospering at this time.

The local florists' society will not have a regular monthly meeting in August owing to the fact that many of the florists are away.

C. E. Critchell has been having some very fine home-grown asparagus and plumosus.

Mrs. E. G. Gillett and daughter, Rosalia, leave for Michigan, August 8.

J. T. Conger has returned from a visit to his son at Wichita, Kan.

Gus. Brunner left July 29 on an extended trip through the north.

Visitors: Frank J. Farney, of M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Wm. Gardner, New Castle, Ind.; Carl L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., and F. J. Donaldson, of the Willowdeen Nurseries, Sparta, Ky.

HOUSTON, TEX.—The R. C. Kerr Floral Co. has sold its Washington avenue branch to E. B. Sisk.

DAYTON, O.—Miss Bonnie Ewing has given up her retail store on West Third street. The greenhouse end of the business will be continued.

Kansas City.

Market conditions during the past week have experienced little change. The supply of gladioli has been ample as the demand has not been quite as brisk. The quality is exceptionally fine. Roses are better both in the stem and bud, and the Russell roses arriving now are exceptionally good. Carnations and sweet peas are not as good in quality. Pot plants are still having a good sale.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The second annual outing of the local florists was held at Holsinger Bros.' nursery, Rosedale, Kan., July 28. That it was a success is acclaimed by all who attended. The true Kansas City spirit was everywhere prevalent and in consequence everybody enjoyed themselves to the limit. In the field games the programme was very well arranged and was both interesting and amusing. An arrangement was made whereby no contestant could receive more than one first prize, and as the prize list was a very liberal one, it made it possible for nearly every contestant to win a prize. Ball game and tug of war prizes and the drawing for the diamond pin were, however, not included in this plan.

In the ball game between the greenhouse men and store men, the greenhouse men won out by the close score of 5 to 3. Cigars were awarded the winners. Other events and awards were as follows:

Fifty-yard dash for women—Miss Mildred Rose, first; Miss A. Schultz, second.

Baseball throw for girls under 15 years—Miss Edna Ellsworth, first; Miss Ruth Watson, second.

Baseball throw for boys under 15 years—Harvey Schultz, first; Murray Ellsworth, second.

Baseball throw for women—Miss Elfrieda Brookmiller, first; Miss Alice C. Kidd, second.

Baseball throw by men—L. E. Wilson, first; P. Galliton, second; H. Coffee, third.

Standing broad jump, men—P. Vassel, first; J. Lanni, second.

Horseshoe pitching by ladies—Miss D. Biedermann, first; Miss M. Smith, second.

Horseshoe pitching by greenhouse owners—Ed. Ellsworth, first; E. L. Clements, second; E. Bunyar, third; Will Biedermann, fourth.

ITALIAN growers report onion and cauliflower seed crops short.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.

ENGLISH growers report 50 per cent yield on Cow Horn, Purple Top White Globe and Purple Top Strap Leaf turnip.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade August 4 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.

LILUM CANDIDUM, from Northern France is late in being lifted, owing to lack of help. Extra large sizes are again scarce.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Alfred J. Brown is golfing at his summer home at Northport, Mich., regardless of the demand for winter vetch or crimson clover.

NEW MADISON, O.—The gladiolus farm of P. O. Coblenz is nearly under water, and in a private letter he reports serious damage to his crop and seedlings.

NEWLANDS, IND., August 4.—This is a new onion growing district. Many fields are now under water. It is thought that many growers will lose their entire crop.

FRENCH exporters are offering immortelles at 50 francs for yellow, 60 for colors, to jobbers, f. o. b. French ports. Cases are higher with buyers' risk ocean freight.

THE unusual size of some game fish caught in irrigation ditches in Washington led to the belief that they had fattened themselves by eating alfalfa, and an investigation proved the theory correct.

SOUTHERN FRANCE seed growers have had their books and correspondence seized by the Prefect of the department, as the authorities suspect, they have been trading with the enemy through Switzerland.

CONDITIONAL assurances are received from Great Britain that importation of German sugar beet seed, to plant next year's American crop, will be permitted, as a result of informal negotiations of the state department.

CHINESE narcissus bulbs are being held by the Amoy growers at 50 per cent above prices of 1913, and it would now appear that the crop may again be thrown away because sellers and buyers are unable to get together.

CHARLES M. JACKMAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, writes July 19, from Northern France, that he has had to pass three severe examinations in crossing borders on his trip, and expects two more. He supplements this by a cable, August 4, announcing his safe arrival in Holland. He crossed to England, via Boulogne.

CARLOS JENSEN, manager of the garden seed department of L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark, sailed July 22 from Copenhagen, on the S. S. Frederick VIII., for the United States, where he will call on customers, visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and inspect his firm's seed crops. Mr. Jensen last visited the United States about five years ago, when he made a host of friends in the trade.

Onion Sets at Chicago.

Up to this date, August 4, it has rained practically every day since the last issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, and it is still raining. The condition of the onion set crop in Cook county is still more critical, and good judges predict that a damage of 50 per cent has already taken place.

Peas and Beans.

Wisconsin peas we understand bid fair to produce a normal yield of better seed than we have had for a number of seasons. In the Idaho district it is said the crop is exceedingly late, and much depends upon weather conditions during the next week or two. Much damage has been done by frosts and, on the whole, this section is not expected to turn out the crop it has produced in the past few seasons.

The bean stand is thin, and, while the plants are making satisfactory growth right now, it is expected the crop will be below normal as a whole.

California Seed Crops.

Gilroy, July 30.—The Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co. reports all crops are fair to good except onion, which will not average half a crop, and some sorts, such as Flat Yellow and White Globe, will be very short. There is no big crop of anything, but it is likely there will be enough of all except onion to fill contracts, and some little surplus of a few items.

Onion, very short crop, 25 to 60 per cent, according to variety.

Salsify, about 80 per cent.

Lettuce, 100 per cent.

Radish, 100 per cent.

Endive, 100 per cent.

Parsnip, 100 per cent.

Sweet peas, 100 per cent.

French Seed Crops.

Southern France seed growers report very heavy rains. This, coupled with the lack of necessary labor has caused a heavy loss in vegetable seed crops. The fields are very weedy. Contract prices for next season are certain to be high. A small farmer is sure to restrict his labor principally to the growing of such crops as haricots, potatoes and wheat, which do not require as much detailed labor. This season's crops are the worst experienced in over 20 years.

Onion and leeks will not run 25 per cent. Plants in most districts have a most unhealthy appearance and rain has apparently caused mildew.

Beets and mangels may give one-third of the usual output. There is a root disease on this stock.

Of egg plant and pepper, there is very little grown this year on account of lack of labor at planting-out time.

Maggots are bothering carrot and the crop is very short.

Lettuce will run about 25 per cent of a crop.

Spinach, cabbage and endive are entire failures.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Milford, Conn., July 26.—Beet seed is looking well although the aphid has done quite some damage, and is a new beet seed pest which we will have to look after in succeeding seasons. The aphid has completed its destruction for this season, however, having only worked on certain plants. The general crop is looking well, and bids fair to be normal.

Onion seed is looking well on a full normal acreage for us, and, while the critical period, that of the setting of the seed and filling, has not yet passed, we are sufficiently optimistic to believe that it will make an average crop.

Sweet corn on a normal acreage is making exceedingly rapid growth at this time and, while it is still backward, we believe that we will succeed in maturing a good crop of corn.

Carrot seed on a large acreage for our section is looking very well, indeed, promising a very fine crop.

The turnip harvested was a very good crop on a light acreage.

Commercial Corn Grading.

The United States department of agriculture in Bulletin 163, issued July 15, 1915, under the title of "Grades for Commercial Corn," gives somewhat detailed information in order that producers, dealers and consumers throughout the United States may fully understand the government corn grades.

In the grading of commercial corn no factor is of greater importance than the securing of a sample representative of the bulk. Likewise, no factor is more frequently neglected. In the application of these grades to car-lot shipments of corn it is recommended that not less than five probes with a suitable grain trier be taken in such a way that the composite sample thus secured will represent the average of the car as nearly as practicable.

Representative samples can not be secured by emptying the contents of the trier, after each probe, on top of the grain, then roughly mixing and taking a portion thereof, usually including a part of the surface corn, as a composite sample for the basis of grading. Such samples not only fail to represent the bulk, but are misleading, especially from the standpoint of dirt and cracked corn. In the sampling of large lots of grain, such as occur in the loading of steamers, at least one representative sample made up of a series of samples from the various drafts should be taken for each 5,000 bushels.

Care should be taken to see that the samples used for the detailed analyses are representative of the larger sample as drawn from the car or other bulk. The samples taken from the car or other bulk on which the grading is to be based should consist of not less than 1 quart of shelled corn.

In determining the moisture content, it is desirable that all important samples be tested in duplicate whenever practicable and the final result based on the average of two tests. Results of tests need not be expressed closer than one-tenth of 1 per cent, and the grain should be given the benefit of the doubt in computing averages.

Color determinations should be made on not less than 100 grams of the screened sample; that is, after the "cracked" corn and foreign material have been removed. All grades of white corn require that at least 98 per cent, by weight, shall be white, and all grades of yellow corn require that at least 95 per cent shall be yellow.

The percentage of damage should be made on a screened sample, preferably by using the entire quantity that remains after removing the foreign material and "cracked" corn. In order to simplify the determination for damaged corn and to avoid a double penalty, the damaged "cracked" corn, as used in these grades, shall be considered simply as "cracked" corn; that is, the small quantity of damaged "cracked" corn should not be picked out after screening and classified as a part of the damaged corn. An excess of damage in the "cracked" corn will be evidence of a willful adulteration and a violation.

Imports.

During the week ending July 31 imports were received at New York as follows:

Hillsdon-Watts, Ltd., 22 cases palm seed (Sydney, N. S. W.).

F. B. Vandergriff & Co., one case (Bermuda) palm leaves.

Muller, Schall & Co., 50 bags clover seed (Havre, France).

PRINCESS. 20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; 1/2 oz. $1.00; 1/4 oz. $2.00; 1 oz. $7.50.

- 38—Mine. Perret—Red and wine shades.
- 40—Zebra—Fine striped mixture.
- 42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
- 44—Black—Almost coal black.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

- 22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3 1/2 to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, and many others. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
- 26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long.
- 28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance.
- 30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per 1/4 oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts, $1.00. Please order by number.

- 48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
- 50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
- 62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
- 64—Goliath—Large curled yellow, blotched.
- 68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue.
- 84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
- 86—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.
- 88—Andromeda—Curled apple blossom.
- 90—Colossea Venosa—Light veined shades.
- 92—Almond Blossom—Delicate rose.
- 94—Aurora—Terra cotta shades.
- 97—The above named Orchid mixed.
- 98—Indigo Blue—Deep velvety blue.
- 100—Light Blue shades.
- 104—Meteor—Bright red brown.
- 106—Pres. McKinley—Yellow, dark blotched.
- 114—Purple—Large rich deep color.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The Elizabeth Nursery Co. is erecting a concrete building for packing and storage purposes.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—The Elliott Nursery Company has been incorporated by J. Wilkinson Elliott, Thos. M. Elliott and Rhea F. Elliott.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The Spokane Horticultural Society has secured new quarters at the assembly room of the Old National Bank building.

BOISE, IDA.—The report of the state horticultural inspector shows that many nurserymen have discontinued business and have not renewed licenses.

The forecast of the United States department of agriculture for July estimates the apple crop for Indiana at 7,688,000 bushels, the largest crop ever known in the history of the state.

PEN-MAR, PA.—The summer meeting of the Maryland State Horticultural Society was held here July 29-30. An automobile tour of the fruit growing region of the Cumberland valley was a feature.

SEDALIA, MO.—K. C. Sullivan, connected with the experiment station of the state agricultural college at Columbia, has been making an inspection trip of the nurseries in the state, and compliments the Archias Seed & Floral Co. of this city very highly. He reports the nursery department of that company as being in the very cleanest condition, the stock being entirely free of bugs or insect pests.

Death of Colonel Brackett, Pomologist.

Colonel G. B. Brackett, for the last 18 years chief pomologist of the department of agriculture, is dead at Washington, aged 80 years. He was a native of Unity, Me., and a veteran of the civil war.

Texas Nurserymen's Association.

The Texas State Nurserymen's Association meeting in conjunction with the Texas farmers' congress at College Station opened its session Tuesday, August 3. Prof. H. Ness, of the Texas experiment station welcomed the members of the association, the address being responded to by Wm. B. Mumson, president of the nurserymen's organization. Interesting papers and discussions covering a wide range of subjects were features of the programme. Discussions relative to the nurserymen's part in the state botanical garden and arboretum plan were not made a part of the programme at this meeting, but will come before the regular annual meeting to be held in September. The president's address, report of the secretary, election of officers and other important business will also come before the association at that time.

California Nurserymen's Convention.

No state organization has shown greater vitality, nor covered its field of operations more thoroughly, than the California Association of Nurserymen, which will hold its fifth annual convention this year in conjunction with the thirteenth annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen at San Francisco, August 12-14. The first day and a half of these dates will be occupied by the latter, and the remaining day and a half by the former organization. Both will convene in San Francisco's new Civic Auditorium. Monday, August 16, will be "Nurserymen's day" at the Panama-Pacific exposition, on which occasion the officials and the disciples of potting benches and nursery rows promise some interesting "doings." Following this will come the big event of the year, viz., the annual meet of the Society of American Florists, for which many of the nurserymen will remain over, because also affiliated with that organization. Allowing for the fact that Vice-president Daniel MacRorie of the S. A. F. has increased the membership more than one hundred in California, the significance of this layover will be appreciated.

The programme for the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen's meeting is nearly complete at this writing (July 30) and will be substantially as follows:

Uniform Horticultural Laws, by M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.

Recent Horticultural Legislation, by Dr. A. J. Cook, state commissioner of horticulture, Sacramento, Calif.

Quality vs. Quantity and a Wider Distribution, by S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.

Wouldn't you rather have

English Roses

If you could buy them at German Prices?

You know, of course, or you have been told, that there are no roses like the roses from England. Britain is the home of the rose tree. No doubt you can grow the most splendid blooms with good large stems, but you have got to have the tree first. And it is in the production of the tree that Bees, Ltd., excel. They have methods and means to lay down such a foundation for a superb rose plant as will astonish you.

First the seedling or cutting briar stock is rigidly selected. The buds are chosen with care and put on with scrupulous skill. The culture before and after is thoroughly English and British in its thoroughness. The rose acres are marvels of cleanliness. Hand tools, horse tools and motor tools; tools of world wide fame, patented and home designed, ensure such a tilling of the soil and a killing of the weeds as you might fail to see in the Frenchiest of intensive plots.

Yet with it all there is absolutely no forcing; just natural steady growth, and yet there is nothing more amazingly productive of vigor and health.

Just send your enquiry for for prices right along to Liverpool today. Don't wait for more ad-talk before you write, you'll get that just the same, but get your enquiry in early.

The programme for the meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen is practically complete. The topics and discussions of general interest are as follows:

The Department Store and the Nursery Industry, by Ernest Braunton, Los Angeles. Discussion by John Valance, Oakland, and C. E. Howland, Pomona.

Recent Rulings in re Shipping Plants by Parcels Post, by D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena. Discussion by Fred H. Howard, Los Angeles; George C. Roeding, Fresno, and Leonard Coates, Morganhill.

The Crime of Being a Nurseryman, by W. D. Somerville, Los Angeles. Discussion by P. A. Dix, Roy, Utah, and Frank T. Swett, Martinez.

Why Import What We Can Grow on This Coast? by M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore. Discussion by John J. Reeves, Beverly Hills, and Henry S. Harrison, York, Neb.

Do We Need New Varieties of Commercial Fruits? by Edward J. Wickson, Berkeley. Discussion by Wm. T. Kirkman, Jr., Fresno, and D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena.

A Publisher's Suggestions to Nurserymen, by Frank Honeywell, San Francisco. Discussion by A. T. De La Mare, New York City, and George C. Roeding, Fresno.

For the Good of the Association. A general expression of opinions and suggestions is invited from the floor for the betterment of the organization, and the uplift of the nursery business.

At this writing the indications are for large attendance at all the conventions during August having to do with horticultural matters, not only from Pacific coast states, but from the inter-mountain region, the Mississippi valley, the south and east. With two expositions as attractions and low transportation rates, there is offered inducements to visit the Pacific coast that are not liable to occur again for a decade. For these reasons, all who can should avail themselves of the opportunity to visit California and participate in these gatherings of commercial and amateur plantmen.

Roundheaded Apple Borer.

Under the above title, the United States department of agriculture has issued Farmers' Bulletin No. 675, under date of July 6, 1915. This destructive insect is found principally in the eastern part of the United States. The bulletin treats quite generally of methods of control, mechanical protectors and directions for arsenical spraying.

SOME Michigan growers are raising cauliflower and putting it in brine. Such stock is reported as selling in brine at $8 per barrel.

THE Women's Association, South Water street commission merchants and others are studying a plan to avoid waste in produce consigned to Chicago and arrange for closer relation between growers and consumers.

WASHINGTON.—The bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture received from a special list of truck crop growers, reports relating to the condition of several crops on July 1 and July 15. Estimates of condition were on a basis of 100 per cent representing normal. The results of the tabulation are as follows: Cabbage and onion, 91½; peas and tomatoes, 88½; watermelon, 78½; cantaloupe, 80.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, August 3.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 10 cents; radishes, 50 cents to $1.25 per 100 bunches; asparagus, 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 25 cents; tomatoes, 4 baskets, 40 to 75 cents.

New York, August 3.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 10 cents to 40 cents; cucumbers, $1.25 to $2.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per 2 dozen crate, 30 cents to 85 cents; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Celery Notes.

Each season seems to intensify the damages done by blight unless prevented by proper spraying. To succeed, the fight must begin early. There is no doubt plants should be sprayed in the plantbeds; however, we have seldom been able to do this, owing to pressure of work or weather conditions, but soon after the plants are established in the field, we commence and spare no pains to keep them sprayed until cool weather in the fall. To spray celery successfully is no small task. The leaves are smooth and hard to cover and the only way we have found is to go over the rows rapidly, back and forth, and several times, allowing each coat to dry on. In this way, a uniform spraying is possible. We use the 4-4-50 Bordeaux. As they grow, the expanding leaves break our coat of spray and repetition is necessary. Thus at least once a week renewal is needed and sometimes twice. Hand in hand must go cultivation. Celery demands constant cultivation as the amount of air in the soil strengthens the plants and helps to make them resistant.

We have for years practiced a very successful method of stirring the soil between the plants, by using a big home-made hand rake. This rake has long teeth made by driving powerful spikes through a hardwood head, spaced 2½ inches apart. Immediately after each horse cultivation this rake is used right through the plants, removing any clods that may have rolled between the plants and loosening up the the soil around the plants and between them. It is surprising how the plants respond to this treatment. Generally after two or three such rakings the plants get too large and the practice is stopped, depending henceforth upon the horse tools entirely. The method also reduces hand-weeding to the minimum as the small weeds are raked out and destroyed.

MARKETMAN.

Summer Treatment of Greenhouse Soil.

It is during the idle summer months that sterilization is often undertaken as well as between the lettuce crops. Among the larger growers it is common practice, but there seems to be a diversity of opinion as to times of application. There are two methods in common use at present, viz.: sterilization by steam heat and by formalin drench. For full discussion and instruction regarding these methods the reader is referred to circular No. 57 of the Ohio Experiment station, Wooster.

In brief, sterilization consists in raising the temperature of the soil to about 200 degrees Fah. and maintaining it for an hour or more. This is accomplished by the use of perforated pipes in some shape or by an inverted pan. The former method consists in running perforated pipes through, or inserting them into the soil at regular intervals, covering and applying suitable pressure. The latter is a large, shallow pan which is inverted over the soil, leaving a small air space into which steam is forced. Soil in the seed or plant boxes is often sterilized by placing them in special rooms or cases into which steam is forced under pressure.

Formalin drench consists of an application of formalin at the rate of two pints to fifty gallons of water. The soil after being spaded is thoroughly soaked with this preparation and then allowed to partially dry out. It is not usually safe to set plants in soil thus treated for a week or ten days after treatment.

Steam sterilization results in the destruction of injurious fungi, protozoa, etc., but also has other effects which are not without danger to the plants, as pointed out by Schreiner and Lathrop in United States bureau of soils bulletin No. 89. It is found to increase the water-soluble constituents and at the same time ammonia is formed. This is a direct cause of stimulation of growth which in the case of cucumbers and tomatoes may lead to malnutrition troubles. It increases the acidity of the soil, which leads to the necessity of liming, and if possible this should be done before sterilizing. Both beneficial and harmful compounds are produced, and when the latter overbalance the former the fertility of the soil is adversely affected.

The frequent use of steam sterilization should be avoided. It is an expensive operation and considerable skill and experience are necessary to its profitable use.

'A BIRD IN THE HAND'

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS

For example. We offer:

- Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches.....at $25.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 5 and 6 branches at 20.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 4 branchesat 15.00 the 100
- French Novelties, all the best ones, at 5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

 There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

DREER'S ARAUCARIAS

Only partial imports of Araucarias were received from Belgium the past spring, not sufficient to cover the usual season's requirements, and even if shipments should come through this fall (which at present does not appear likely) newly imported stock would not be available for this season's sales as it takes fully three months for this stock to become established and be fit to sell after its trip across the Atlantic.

We are pleased to state that we have a splendid stock, not sufficient to last the season out, but we offer as long as the stock lasts exceptional values as below.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

PRICE, POSTPAID, $1.25

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.
440 So. Dearborn St.
CHICAGO.

Providence, R. I.

Business the past week has been quiet, and the heavy shipments of stock arriving on the market has little outlet except for design work and a surplus is the result. Gladioli and asters are improving in quality daily, and there are some very good sweet peas, but they sell at very low figures. They are arriving faster than the trade can use them.

Albert F. Crandall, Washington, N. H., has placed on exhibition in the museum at Roger Williams park a number of rare orchids found near his summer home in that city. There are five rare varieties in the collection, not generally found in the state.

John F. Wood has opened a store in the Strand theater, having removed from his former location.

Herbert A. Taylor of the Matthew Macnair staff is enjoying the week-end at Block Island, R. I. H. A. T.

TORONTO, ONT.—Secretary John G. Esler, of the Florists' Hail Association, and party are expected to reach this city August 5, enroute to the San Francisco convention, via the Canadian Pacific railroad.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—you know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 addition for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, planged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

JACKSON & PERKINS COMPANY, NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Wholesale only. Ours are "Made in America."

"We Understand
Our Business Thoroughly"

Our thorough knowledge of the finer points in greenhouse construction enables us to save that much on the cost of our output—and we are giving you the benefit of this saving. We have always given 100 cents value for every dollar—sometimes more. As we have never yet had any complaints, we lose nothing by guaranteeing our material against defects.

Willens Personal Service

Every bit of the work is personally directed by one of the Willens'. If we do the erecting, one of the Willens' personally supervises the work. Careful attention is paid to the minutest details, each of which is conducive to longer life and better greenhouse service. If you have never tried us or are dissatisfied in your past dealings with others, begin now to benefit by our service and material. Write us today.

What They Say:

Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,
Norfolk, Neb.

ACTUAL RESULTS == NOT PROMISES

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the NO. 46 WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER and the No. 14 hot water boiler. They are doing all you claim for them and more.

The No. 14 hot water boiler heating that large house to 62° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

THIS STEAM BOILER I THINK IS A WONDER; a quick steamer and holds the steam; the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

But the threaded boiler tube piping system is the winner; the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

Toledo.

'JULY BUSINESS GOOD.

Business on the whole during July has been better than ordinary because the most of the month was cool and there has been an unusual amount of funeral work. Florists here are not complaining, but are either making much needed repairs and enlargements, or have gone fishing. Asters are coming on the market in fair quantities and are of excellent quality. Long stemmed roses as usual at this season are practically of negligible quantity. Easter lilies are to be had in large quantities but find no sales.

NOTES.

At the recent Home Grown Garden contest held under the auspices of the Toledo Museum of Art, the director asked the florists why it would not be a good idea for them to hold an exhibit of their own at the museum some time next fall. He said they could have the use of the splendid art museum free of charge under certain conditions. This idea met with an instant response and this matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the local florists' club.

Miss Helen Patten, with her mother, is planning a two weeks' vacation in the wilds of northern Michigan. Miss Patten is an ardent devotee of the time honored pursuit of Isaak Walton and the trade awaits some monster fish stories on her return.

Arthur C. Kneisel, advertising manager for Schramm Bros. made a flying trip to Cleveland, Akron and Sandusky last week. He found a great deal of enthusiasm in Cleveland about the coming flower show this fall.

Emil Kuhnke, wholesaler of Holland street, East Toledo, had a very acute attack of indigestion the other day which came very near putting a quietus on his career. Late reports indicate a complete recovery.

Schramm Bros. are hard at work building two new houses which will be of the latest and most modern type. Albert Lehmann, one of the firm, is enjoying his annual vacation this week.

Metz and Bateman report a good business during the month of July. Funeral work has been fairly heavy with this flower shop during the past month.

Elizabeth N. J.

The Elizabeth Nursery Co. is erecting a large concrete building for packing and storage purposes. This company has a large stock of chrysanthemums coming on in its houses.

W. R. Carter and Geo. B. Finch, who do business at 841 Elizabeth avenue, as the Union Square Floral Shop, think of taking a larger store.

J. E. & A. G. Hutchison, who have a good retail store at 227 Broad street, were found busy regardless of summer dullness.

The Golden Gate.

Under the gold of sunset skies—
The narrow portals lie,
No sail in sight; but through the night
The great sea-ships will fly—
From south and west in eager quest
Will hold their storm-swept way,
To enter at the dawn and rest
Safe-anchored in the bay;
Like souls, in wilder seas
On longer quest,
That gain through narrower gates
A sweeter rest.

Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Some of the Horticultural Features.

A Wonderful Transformation.

The grounds of the south shore of the Bay of San Francisco, just inside of the Golden Gate, form such a wonderful setting for the great Panama-Pacific exposition that the visitor can not realize that three short years ago this same 645 acres were a salt marsh, or entirely under the waters of the bay. The engineer first, and afterwards the two landscape wizards, John McLaren and his son, Donald McLaren, have together turned a waste place into one of the most beautiful spots in all of the world.

The engineer first took charge of the work and made an hydraulic fill, using a total of 1,700,000 cubic feet of carefully selected sand and silt. This great amount of material was subjected to hourly tests in order to make sure that the proper proportion of the silt and sand was maintained. This fill could be used to support the buildings, but it was not possible to use it for the plantings until 50,000 cubic yards of the finest forest loam was spread over the surface and 16,000 cubic yards of fertilizer were worked into this. With this seed bed prepared, and the proper irrigation facilities arranged, the landscape gardeners and their men took up the work. The problems of arranging the planting so that during the long season from mid-winter to mid-winter there should always be plenty of color was first solved, and then the individual problems were studied and solved.

The palaces are a uniform height of 60 feet to the cornices and are a light buff color. Against this background it was necessary that the trees should be very large. Cypress and eucalyptus were chosen to be especially featured here, with an occasional fir. Over 500 trees were boxed and moved into position against the palaces, which is by far the largest planting of evergreen trees ever treated in this manner. These trees vary from 30 feet to 50 feet in height.

On account of the varied conditions found in the different parts of the grounds, a great many opportunities were afforded for the use of different classes of plants. Some of the situations are bleak and bare and exposed, while others, especially in the southern closed courts, are perfectly protected and sheltered. In some of these courts are found a high class of semi-tropical trees, such as palms, bananas, tree ferns, wigandias and others.

On entering the grounds at the main entrance the visitor steps into the great South Gardens. This is the territory bounded by the Palace of Horticulture, the Tower of Jewels, the Festival Hall and the 20-foot high fence of mesembryanthemum. This is maintained as a French garden, with its three beautiful pools with fountains, ornamental figures, balustrades, and the beds of color, and the two beautiful palaces at either side, examples of the finest in French architecture. All of the beds in this garden are planted in one color. During the opening days and through March, the beds were yellow daffodils with a ground work of yellow pansies. About April 1, yellow tulips took the place of the daffodils. These were followed in turn later in the spring by a planting of Begonia Erfordii, which will carry the color scheme through until the close of the exposition. Approximately 2,000,000 flowers and plants have been set out in this one garden in order to get the effect which was wanted.

Along the south edge of the garden, and stretching beyond it on either side, is the wonderful growing wall. This wall is made entirely of flats two feet by six feet and four inches deep. More than 7,500 of these flats were used in making the wall. The plant used is Mesembryanthemum spectabile, which is already in full bloom, and by its myriad of tiny pink flowers gives a pink tinge to this most wonderful wall. Perforated water pipes run along the top of the wall and the plants are kept in splendid condition by this means. This is an entirely new effect, as this work has never before been attempted.

Four large groups, 50 feet in height, have been planted on either side of Festival Hall and the Palace of Horticulture in order to properly frame in and correspond to the domes on these buildings. These groups consist of Monterey cypress, Monterey pine, Acacia mollissima, Acacia floribunda banked up with Buonymus japonicus, laurustinus and veronicas of different varieties, while specimen plants of Lawson cypress and Thuya gigantea, interspersed in the surrounding lawns, make a finish to the groups.

The Avenue of Palms, which runs between the Palaces and the South Gardens east and west, is planted with a double row on each side of the driveway with specimen plants of Phoenix Canariensis (Canary Islands date palms), alternating with Washingtonia robusta, or California fan palms, 30 feet in average height. The planting is more than one-half mile in length. The trunks of the date palms have been planted with hardy ferns placed in the crotches of the old leaves and for the color effects, with ivy leaf geraniums, mesembryanthemums and other brilliant plants. Passion vines have already grown well up on the trunks. These vines will ultimately form a festoon effect over the walks. Between the trees, hydrangeas and specimen marguerites, four feet in diameter, have been placed. These are in tubs and have the lawns as a ground work.

Against the south fronts of the palaces, facing on the south driveway or Avenue of Palms, the plantings are largely of special plants of Eucalyptus globulus or common blue gum, 40 to 50 feet in height and banked up with other small growing varieties of eucalyptus such as E. robusta, viminialis, leucoxydon and others, while in front of these are banks of yellow flowering acacias—A. floribunda, latifolia and Baileyana. In front of these again are magnificent flowering effects of California poppies, all spring flowering shrubs and pansies, which are to be followed by flowering perennials and afterwards by dahlias.

The plantings on the Avenue of Progress which runs north and south between Machinery Hall and the Palaces of Mines and Varied Industries, consists of large specimen trees and palms of an average of 20 feet. Groups of Dracena indivisa have been used here with telling effect. Lawns and flowering plants clothe the buildings at the base and give a finished effect. Administration avenue, on the west of the "walled city," is lined with large specimens of Eucalyptus globulus, finished off with other varieties of eucalyptus as in the Avenue of Palms, in front of which are placed escallonias, pittosporums and buonymus, it being necessary to use hardy plants here on account of the exposure of the site.

The plantings against the north facades of the palaces consist of Monterey cypress, 40 to 50 feet in height, banked up with smaller specimens of the same tree, together with an hardy species of acacia. The plantings on the North Gardens consist of extensive lawns interspersed with groups of low growing hardy evergreen shrubs. This plan has been followed because of the wonderful view across the Bay of San Francisco to the green Marin Hills and Mount Tamalpais.

The Fine Arts Lagoon has been treated in the natural style. The plantings here consist of groups of evergreen shrubs placed on small promon-ories and inlets of the lagoon and around the beautiful open dome. Some large trees and shrubs have been used and more than 10,000 Vinca major (periwinkle) make a mass of blue. Several thousand violets have been planted in groups more for the effect of their sweetness than for decorative purposes. To the north of the lagoon is a simple garden finished with quiet little nooks and resting places and ornamented with some very fine pieces of woodland statuary. Cedars and hardy plantings have been used here.

There are five main courts, each with its different plantings and each leading to the other through minor courts or flowered walks. The great central Court of the Universe, with its two huge arches to the Nations of the East and the Nations of the West, and its sunken gardens having the twin Fountains to the Rising Sun and to the Setting Sun. The sunken garden is planted with thousands of rhododendrons raised two feet above the level of the walk. Three tiers rise to the outer level of the court, these being three-foot steps of grass. Myrtle hedges are used against the palaces with pillar roses and many climbing plants freely used.

In the Court of the Four Seasons the central circular pool is enclosed by a flowering hedge. Acacia trees, Choisya ternata and bougainvilleas, trained in columns 20 feet high, are used. Pillar roses and hybrid rhododendrons are also used, while water lilies give abundant color.

The Court of Abundance is of Gothic design with strong Saracen influence to be seen in the decorations. It is the most ornate setting on the grounds and its horticultural features have been planned and carried out with wonderful success. The main feature of the planting consists of 100 bearing orange trees 10 feet high and eight feet across. These are supplemented with a large number of magnolia trees which are planted in the inner circle. Between the orange trees and against the buildings are formal Italian cypress. Spring flowering bulbs, hyacinths, have been followed by the golden California poppy, and these will be followed by a variety of later flowering annuals.

The Court of Flowers is the connecting court between the South Gardens and the Court of Abundance. The chief planting here consists of a magnificent collection of heaths, azaleas and sub-tropical plants. With the exception of the central fountain and the walk the whole court is a huge flower bed. The Court of Palms is the connecting court between the South Gardens and the Court of the Four Seasons. A very fine collection of different varieties of palms have been planted here and a great variety of sweet-smelling shrubs such as myrtle, breath of heaven, lavender, lemon verbena and rosemary. There are in addition to these large plantings, scattered gardens and separate plantings of great beauty.

In addition to what should be called the exposition planting there are many hundreds of gardens and plantings which have been carried out by societies or participating states and nations. There are so many of these that it is impossible even to mention them. Japan, with her very large garden which was literally brought in sections from the "Flowery Kingdom"; Pennsylvania, and a host of others are all very elaborately planned and skillfully executed.

The Royal Horticultural Society of the Netherlands and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society have plantings near the Palace of Horticulture which are of more than passing interest. They both show the very finest in formal gardening, using for their purpose the plants native to their own localities. It would be hard to find examples which are more perfect in all essentials and impossible to reproduce the effect of these gardens, being as they are contiguous to the beautiful Palace of Horticulture with its huge glass dome of iridescent hues and its sympathetic Franco-Byzantine architecture.

The Panama-Pacific exposition is great in every sense of the word, and not only in the influence which it exerts in material pursuits is it potent, but also, and perhaps to a greater degree even, to its exemplification of the aesthetic side of life.

LEONARD CARPENTER.

Premature Flowering of Cyclamens.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

We have about 1,200 cyclamen plants in from four to six-inch pots, part of them in frames outside and part along side benches in greenhouse. Most of them are already flowering quite heavily and we would like to know if they will be in good selling condition for Christmas. They are planted in rather heavy soil, but it seems as though they should not bloom so early.

J. W. W.

The plants should not bloom now if they have been handled properly by repotting, not allowing them to become root-bound, and keeping the whole batch together in the same house, or houses. It is very difficult and almost impossible to grow these plants successfully mixed in with other stock requiring different conditions. I do not think there is anything detrimental in heavy soil, which is rather in favor of the plants.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Nephrolepis.

The Boston fern and its sports, which have been grown in the bench all summer, should now be potted. The bench is full of young suckers, which, if saved, will make fine stock for another year, so in lifting the old plants take a knife and cut around the plant about two inches from the center, and place a trowel under the plant, leaving the young stock in the bench. They will soon start to grow, when they can be placed close together in flats and grown on in a fairly cool house until next spring, when they will make excellent stock for planting out. The plants that are lifted should be large enough to plant in a 6-inch pot. If there is a demand for larger sizes two, three or four may be planted in seven, eight or nine-inch pots. Many of the plants have probably not made an even growth, being more or less one-sided. These should be the ones selected for doubling up in the larger pots. As soon as potted they should be kept close and warm for one or two weeks and frequently syringed; they will then have obtained a good hold in the soil, and should be given plenty of light and air. The call for these plants will begin by October 1, and it is much better to have them well established before they go into the residences, and to do this they should be potted by September. The greatest source of disappointment in these plants is in sending them out before they have become established. The Whitmani and finer leaved varieties are now growing rapidly, and should be given room enough to spread and make fine plants.

Sweet Peas.

To have sweet peas in bloom by Christmas the seed should be sown by September 1. If it is intended to grow them to follow some crop that is now in the beds they can be sown in pots, but if the beds are now ready it is better to sow them in the beds themselves. The growers of large quantities have the rows running lengthwise of the houses, two rows in each four-foot bed, one on each side, with a path in the center, but they can also be grown in rows running across the beds, the rows being about three feet apart. This distance will be found necessary or the plants will get twined together, making a bad snarl of the vines. In sowing the seed in pots, place five or six seeds in a 4-inch pot, and in sowing in drills in the bench, plant the seeds about an inch apart. It is very easy to thin them out if they come up too thick, and one good strong plant to a pot and about eight inches apart in the row is about what should be left to grow on. It is often difficult to get good germination during the hot weather, therefore it is well to plant enough seed. Many growers have trouble with the seed rotting and also the plants dampening off after they have grown to quite a height. They must be watered very sparingly until they begin to climb on the strings. The white seeded varieties are often very difficult to start; a good way which we have found very successful is to sow the seed in the drills on top of the soil, throwing a little sphagnum moss over them until they begin to grow, when they can be lightly covered with soil, and when they begin to climb the drill can be filled in. This will prevent the seed from rotting and proper watering will remedy the damping off.

Marguerites.

The marguerites for winter blooming will soon have to be potted in their blooming pots. This can be done now at any time, and if they are becoming pot-bound the sooner the better. Nine and ten-inch pots are none too large if good flowers are to be grown, and the soil should be good and rich. Pot firmly, using a rammer that the soil can be made solid, and use good drainage. Keep the buds picked off until cool weather sets in; the blooms that are made during the warm weather are of inferior quality and no good flowers will be produced until the plants get a good hold in the new soil. The plants are far better plunged in frames for some time yet than in the houses, for they may become infested with red spider under the glass. The plants in the benches will need to be frequently sprayed to keep them free from insects that can be held at a cool temperature to procure the best results, a house that does not have a night temperature exceeding 50 degrees, and even 45 degrees is better. They will not bloom to any extent until after the turn of the year when they will stand Poinsettias.

The plants of poinsettias, in the northern section of the country, should be in the houses by September 1, for cool nights are apt to occur from that date on, and the successful culture of these plants requires an even temperature. The early struck cuttings should be potted in 6-inch pots and properly staked, the smaller stock to be grown in pans can be grown until October in the small pots. Give the plants a light location in full sunlight, and space out sufficiently to allow a good circulation of air around the plants. In potting the plants if there are no arrangements so that they can be watered with manure water later, leave a good inch of space at the top, so that they can be given a topdressing when the bracts begin to form. An extra feeding at that time will greatly increase the size of the bracts and brilliancy of the color. Close the ventilators on all cool nights as soon as the temperature falls below 60 degrees, and as soon as the night temperatures begin to run lower than that point a little fire heat will be necessary. The one great point in growing poinsettias is in keeping them at an even temperature and growing rapidly.

Annuals and Herbaceous Perennials.

Raised from seed, their cheapness and the simplicity of their culture, combine to commend them to flower lovers. A plant that lives only one brief summer would be a poor investment of time and money if one has a permanent home, unless it has fragrance, form or color. Where a person does not own the land he lives on, but rents, and quick returns are required rather than future gain, a wealth of bloom and a pyrotechnic effect of color may be had with annuals for a small expenditure. The best results with perennials come only after the second year, or when the plants are thoroughly established; but annuals are at their best in three or four months.

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION HORTICULTURAL FEATURES.

and the blooms should be kept picked off of them for some time yet. When cool weather approaches allow the flowers to come along. Cutting can be made at this time which will make nice flowering plants about the turn of the year, at a time when the large plants seem to take a rest and do not bloom profusely. This will ensure a cut throughout the season.

Hollyhocks.

During August and early September is the right time to sow hollyhock seed for the next season's flowering. Seed sown in the spring will not produce a plant that will flower to any great extent that year, and they will have to be carried over the winter to make good, large plants, but seeds sown now will make fine plants for next year. For the last few years the fungus that has attacked hollyhocks has made it difficult to carry the old plants over with any degree of certainty, but with late summer sowing much of this trouble is obviated. Be sure and purchase a good strain of double seed, and sow in a shaded frame, and as soon as large enough pot up in 2-inch pots. Grow them in a frame until November 1 and then pot in 3-inch or 4-inch pots. These can be carried over the winter in a cold greenhouse or in well protected frames, and started in the greenhouse in March and nice plants for summer blooming be assured.

Wallflowers.

The wallflowers that were sown in the spring should now be planted in the benches that they may get a good start before the cool weather sets in. They should be planted in a house a little higher temperature. The soil should be a good rich compost and the plants can be set about eight inches apart. Stake the plants as soon as they begin to grow and keep them tied up so that the spikes of bloom will not become crooked. Constant fumigation will be necessary, for they are likely to be infested with aphids unless guarded against.

LOS ANGELES SCHOOL CHILDREN AS CITY BEAUTIFIERS.

City Lot Formerly Used as a Dumping Ground, Developed Into a Productive Field of Sweet Peas and Vegetables for the Christmas Dinners of the Little Gardeners.

Los Angeles Children as City Beautifiers.

When a general committee of 100 leading citizens of the city of Los Angeles and Los Angeles county was called together to consider ways and means of beautifying their community and entertaining the strangers within their gates, they discovered that they had a tremendous lot of work to do. It was voted to make the city a floral bower for 1915, in order that visitors to the two California expositions would find the city attractive. It was easy enough to vote—in fact, the vote was unanimous—but when the question arose how to proceed, there was much wrinking of brows in the thick silence.

"Couldn't the school children help?" finally one deep-thinking committee member asked, and this query gave birth to what is believed to be the greatest movement toward beautifying a city on the part of children that ever has been launched in this country.

The children could help, and did. When the last of the fall and winter planting is done, according to the estimate of the director in charge, there will have been five square feet of ground put under cultivation by children for every man, woman and child in Los Angeles, figuring the city's population at 600,000.

A plan was evolved during the summer vacation, whereby the sub-committee on city beautifying should work in conjunction with the agricultural department of the city public schools. This branch of educational work already had been well developed. Its efficiency for the beautifying campaign was enhanced by a corps of five expert directors in gardening. With this central directing organization were joined the many parent-teacher organizations of the city. To stimulate the interest of the little folks cash prizes aggregating $18,250 were offered by the committee. These range from $5 for the little individual home gardener, to $1,000 for the district making the best showing in decorative garden work.

Active work was begun when the schools opened last September for the fall term. The approach of winter has but little bearing on garden making in this section of the state, so far as being preventative extends. Fall planting is an established institution and the flower shows are held in the winter, as at that season the rainfall develops the blossoms to their highest beauty. There is no "closed season" for the floriculturist.

Children competing for the prizes were made to register, as the committee has arranged to photograph the gardens in competition. The number registered represents only a small percentage of those taking part in the work of improving the school grounds, vacant lots, and engaged in agricultural work at home. Free seed was furnished by the committee for the home garden and school work done in the competition. Through an agreement with leading seed dealers, who joined with the committee in the publication of a home garden manual for free distribution, seeds for the beautifying work were purchasable at cost by school children with proper credentials.

Instruction in preparing the ground, planting and caring for flowers was given by the directors in charge. Each of the 150 city schools was visited regularly. The children were told how to go ahead, their questions were answered by experts, and they were given the printed directions prepared in style that could be understood by a child. In order to facilitate the work, to enlist interest of the parents and public, the day after Thanksgiving was proclaimed by Mayor Rose as "Fall Planting day." All citizens were called upon to join in the big plan to make Los Angeles a mass of sweet-scented blossoms for 1915. The school children were given an extra holiday. The occasion was the first of its kind ever held in the city and was such a pronounced success that the committee immediately planned another at a later date. It was estimated that 90,000 school children of the city actually planted flowers on "Planting day" alone.

The plan of enlisting the children in flower planting proved Pope's line about the child being father to the man. Many fathers, uncles, mothers, aunts and all sorts of grown-ups found themselves drawn into garden work through the devotion of the little folks. The youngsters were provided with the seeds and full directions and started out with the best of the argument. Thousands of fathers stirred sluggish livers by spading up weed-grown bits of ground in the yard. The decorative scheme was not confined to front yards, but back yards as well. The slogan given prominent place in the home manual reads: "Make your neighbor's front yard jealous of your back yard." Throughout the county, much the same general plan was pursued. There are prizes offered to the country schools as well, so that in the general beautification scheme the children are playing the big part, if not the most important part.

The results so far are most gratifying. Much of the work being done is of permanent character, such as lining school walks with trees, planting rose hedges, setting out shrubs and developing a defined scheme of landscaping. A higher standard of floriculture for the future, the instilling of love of the beautiful in nature in the children, the Florists as Advertisers and Bookkeepers.

A paper by A. F. Koehler, Sherman, Tex., read at the second annual convention of the Texas State Florists' Association, Fort Worth, July 6-7, 1915.

Having been detailed by the programme committee to assist Brother Kerr on the important subject, "Florists as Advertisers and Bookkeepers," I am indeed greatly pleased to impart to the brothers present, what little knowledge I possess of the benefits we have derived from a careful and thor-ence, to know what quantity to grow the coming year, thereby eliminating that awful pest of both retailer and wholesaler—gluts—and then think you have to run to some department store to unload it. A preventative for these gluts, which means a preventative of antagonism among brother florists, can be sifted down and controlled by the two means in this subject:

First—Advertise judiciously and insistently. There are poor ways of advertising as well as good ones and best results can not be obtained without careful study. Select a medium which you know reaches the most desirable customers, make your ad brief and to the point, and above all make your opening display interesting and attractive. Put yourself in the public's place. How many ads do you read that are not started with some catchy phrase? unless you are looking for that certain line of stock, and there are very few people who pick up a paper to find out who is selling flowers the cheapest, or what the most seasonable flower is. It is up to us to catch their eye and make them see who is who in the flower and plant line. Last Valentine's day I decided to use a slide in all the picture shows in town; one can obtain these slides at the office of our daily paper. Being well acquainted with the advertising manager of this paper, he asked me why I didn't use his paper for an ad. I told him I thought the shows would reach more people. His only reply was "Then why do the picture shows in this town use one whole page in my paper to advertise their shows, if your theory works out?" I told him those visiting the shows mighty near had to read the ads when thrown on the screen, while they would never look at them in a paper. He told me if my ad was overlooked it was my fault and not the paper's, and I guess he was about right. However, we have found the following: Picture shows good, leading papers better and direct advertising best. The last named we have worked down to a very fine point. We have tried some of the various folders that are now on the market, but find our own letters pay best, and attribute the enormous growth of our business to this means.

adding to the vacant lots, school grounds and homes of flowers and the general more sightly and cleanly conditions are listed as definitely accomplished.

The claim of Los Angeles to being a city of flower-surrounded homes has been more definitely established through the work of its school children. Any praise that may come from exposition visitors for the floral effects must be credited to the little folks.

Aster Lice.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Nearly all my asters have been killed this year and they seem to have been destroyed by a sort of plant louse that covered the stem near the ground. Can you give me any idea as to how to combat this another year? Should the soil be treated with anything in the fall to prevent the reappearance of the lice another year? It may be that the eggs of the lice were brought in on the young plants that I brought from a garden near my house as that gardener had been having bad luck with his asters. J. E. B.

Illinois.
Root lice cause aster plants to have a sickly, wilted, stunted appearance. Upon pulling up the affected plants the roots will be found to be covered with bluish lice. A mulch of tobacco stems, or tobacco dust, applied early in the season will prevent the attacks. Saturating the soil about the roots of the affected plants with freshly made tobacco water will destroy the lice. As root lice live over the winter in the soil it is not safe to plant asters the following year on land where the lice have appeared.

ough system of these subjects. We are all more or less loose in handling our advertising and book-keeping, but we should not be. What is the use growing a splendid lot of stock, unless one has a means in view of letting the trade, be it wholesale or retail, know what he has; then, what is the use of selling, if one hasn't a system of book-keeping to keep proper record of the sales, not only to know where you stand financially, but for future refer-

In sending out these circular letters for any special day, we prepare these letters—one to be addressed to the married men, one to the single men and one to the ladies who entertain. Each letter is carefully filled in with typewriter, signed with pen and mailed under two cent postage. Of course we endeavor at all times to make these letters attractive and brief. I have with me a copy of one of these letters which proved to be a good "puller," should any of you care to examine it. For our mailing list locally, we use the city directory, carefully marked by someone who is well acquainted in the city. In fact, we have as many as three different clerks check over this list, all of whom are well acquainted in the city, so as to get a very complete list of those persons most likely to purchase flowers. We also use these same letters for our out of town customers, using lists of names furnished us by our local agents in the different towns.

Now, as to our out of town advertising. All ads of this kind should of course be keyed, and all inquiries received, carefully recorded and followed up. For keeping record of the number of inquiries, and of sales through our different advertising mediums, we use a monthly card for each paper, samples of which card I have with me. When an inquiry is received, the name is recorded on a 3x5 card, marked at the top with the numbers from 1 to 31, and a clip placed on the number corresponding to the date on which the inquiry should be followed up. When a sale is made it is duly recorded on this card, and the card then placed in the "sold" file for future reference and for future advertising. Repeat orders are where our profits come; the first order frequently is not of sufficient importance to reimburse us for what it cost to secure, but a satisfied customer is the very best advertisement, and we endeavor at all times to please, for we know if we "sell satisfaction our goods will sell themselves." Advertising is worth little if you do not back it up with A No. 1 quality, the best of service and the most pleasing courtesy. One might think it takes considerable capital and time to carry on this line of direct advertising, but such is not the case. If you are not fortunate enough to have the use of a typewriter, or any of the machines now on the market for this purpose, all you need is pen, ink, paper, envelopes and stamps. There is a druggist in our city, and by the way, one of the leading ones, who follows this method of advertising by the following means. Between the days, he has in mind to use his letters, all his spare time (and we all have much of it) he writes his letters with pen (bear in mind he has a typewriter and multigraph too) but prefers a personally penned letter signed by himself, and he tells me it brings big returns. Another very important item to bear in mind is to select some slogan suggestive of your business or special line, if you have one, and use it always. You will find it will not be long until it is a by-word with all your old customers as well as new ones. We use one in our local advertising, and we contracted with the leading paper here for a number of local ads to run the whole year through and scattered it over various parts of the paper. All we used in these locals was our slogan—"When You Think of Flowers Think of Us," and unless you have tried it you have no idea how much attention it attracts. It will pay any one to try it. In conclusion on this part of my subject I would say advertise, and advertise lots—but, do it judiciously and carefully.

Second—Book-Keeping. So much can be said about this, and so many of us florists need to be hammered and pounded so hard on this point, I scarcely know where to begin. It embraces so much of our line, that most of us think it does not require any book-keeping, and in which we are very badly mistaken. Most any of us can tell any time about how much we owe, or how much is due to come in, but how many of us can go to our books and tell which line of stock paid us best for the past year? I don't mean guess at it, but in actual figures. While our floral department is not kept separate on our books, it is kept in such a way that at any time we can see just where this department stands. For the general book-keeping of the company we keep an account for everything—for instance, all improvements are charged to a separate account, likewise the following items: Interest, implements, live stock, growing, purchases and so on. Every individual thing has an account of its own on our books; then when a sale of these various things is made, it is credited to that account, so that any time we wish, we can see just how that department stands and how much we have in it, and what we are getting from it. Of course most florists do not need so large a system as ours, but I would suggest something like this for even the smallest of us—General sales account, cut flowers, advertising, purchasing, flower store account, greenhouse account, improvement plant purchases, delivery account, live stock or auto account, supplies, etc. Whatever item is a factor in the conduct of the business ought to be in your books, that you may refer to it at any time, and be able to tell how deep you are into it, and put on the check valve if getting an overload. It would be hard for me to state just what one should keep, and each one should be able to tell which are the more important items to keep, but above all—start right now, even if with only a part of the items, and you will like it so well at the end of the year, I am sure you will have a perfect book-keeping system thereafter, and without much extra expense or trouble. Each year you will be able to see where you can improve on it and make it easier and clearer to keep.

There are lots of ways and forms on which to keep these records, but to most of us these need considerable explanation to keep properly, and the busy florist hasn't the time to take a course in such things. I believe it is best to work out a system of one's own, that is very plain, and by his own experience he will gradually improve on it, until he has a plain, neat, compact system that will be a pride to himself as well as a pleasure to all whom he may have any occasion to show or tell it to.

DANIEL MACRORIE, SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
Vice-President Society of American Florists.

The most satisfactory system of book-keeping is the double entry system, which as its name implies, requires two entries for each transaction. This may sound like too much work to do, but by it one can always tell if all items have been posted in the proper amounts. There are only two fundamental rules to be followed to carry out this system, and they are: "All items, cash, flowers, merchandise or whatever we may 'take in' go on the credit side of the proper account, and all items paid out or sent out, go on the debit side of the proper account." The other rule is based on the same principle and is "for every debit there must be a corresponding credit, and conversely for every credit there must be a corresponding debit." For instance, we will send to our flower store a dozen American Beauty roses; we debit our flower store account, 1 dz. A. B. roses $3.00; we credit our greenhouse sales account by 1 dz. A. B. roses to flower store $3.00. Our flower store sells these to Mrs. John Doe for $5, so we credit flower store sales account by $5 and charge Mrs. John Doe's account 1 dz. A. B. roses $5. Later Mrs. John Doe sends us a check so we credit her account, $5 and charge cash account, $5. Thus by charging the proper or selected accounts with the items properly belonging thereon, and crediting these accounts with all items belonging thereon, one is able to determine if it is profitable to run an uptown flower store, or to hire delivery men, or to know out of which flowers, profits are made, etc.

In conclusion of these subjects, I would say the moral of all this talk is—"Don't hide your light under a bushel," but let it shine by careful, judicious advertising and reflect upon the pages of a perfect book-keeping system.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

The eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, at London, Ont., August 3-5, the opening session of which was reported in these columns in our last issue, has been voted one of the most instructive and interesting in the association's history by all who attended, and the city of London, already noted for its hospitality, fairly outdid itself to see that the visitors lacked nothing in the way of entertainment to make their stay a most pleasant one. Drives, games and luncheons and the visits to commercial establishments were well planned and thoroughly enjoyed.

The sessions were all well attended and the papers and discussions were above the average in educational value. An especially interesting discussion followed the paper on "Fertilizers," read by Prof. Harcourt, Guelph, Ont., and E. J. Hayward, Montreal, responded to a request to read his paper delivered before the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, entitled, "The Florist as a Business Man," in which he brought out many excellent points and his paper was listened to with much interest. "The Cost of Producing Florists' Stock," a paper by A. L. C. O'Brien, Toronto, showed much thought in its preparation as well as a thorough knowledge of the subject, presented in such a way that it should be of much value to his listeners. Mr. O'Brien's services will be retained by several florists to install cost keeping systems in their establishments. Other papers presented during the meeting included: "Irrigation and Sprinkler Systems," by Prof. T. G. Bunting of McDonald College, followed by a discussion; "Insects and Pests Injurious to Greenhouse Plants," by W. A. Ross, Vineland, Ont.; "Perennials," by W. J. Potter, Toronto; "Orchids," an interesting talk on their care and proper culture, given by W. J. Jones, orchid expert of the Dale estate, Brampton, Ont.

As chairman of the committee which was to consider the establishment of a national plant register, H. J. Moore, presented a report that was received with much interest. He offered, through the Niagara Parks commission, the use of trial grounds and the care of the same. The association subscribed toward the maintenance and members are requested to send new and rare plants for trial.

About 100 persons, including many ladies, attended the annual banquet which proved to be one of the most enjoyable features of the three days' gathering. Several officials representing the city were in attendance. Toasts were made and responded to by Ex-mayor C. M. Graham, R. E. Blackshaw, Chicago; H. B. Cowan, retiring president; Acting-mayor S. Maness, H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg, and others. E. B. Hamilton, of London, was an admirable toastmaster.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of the following to serve during the ensuing year: Fred Adams, Toronto, president; James Fraser, Prescott, Ont., first vice-president; F. Dicks, London, Ont., second vice-president; Julius Luck, Montreal, secretary-treasurer; executive committee, E. B. Hamilton, E. J. Hayward, E. A. Collins, F. Wise.

The judges of the trade exhibit were as follows: C. A. Smith, Lachine; Walter Muston, Toronto; S. Jordan, Peterboro. A certificate of merit was awarded to Reed & Keller, New York, and a diploma to A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, both for florists' supplies. Among those who made excellent trade exhibits were: Dennis Wire & Iron Co., London, Ont.; Reed & Keller, New York; Spray Motor Co., London, Ont.; King Construction Co., Toronto; Dunlop Rubber Co., Toronto; Cannon Floral Co. and Foster Pottery Co., Hamilton, Ont.; Gammage & Sons, London, Ont.; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.; Schloss Bros., New York; Kirke Chemical Co., Toronto.

ORCHID NOTES.

Cattleya Gigas.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am growing a few orchids and am puzzled about the culture of Cattleya gigas. My plants are throwing up strong new shoots, but do not seem to be forming flower buds. Can you tell me the reason for this? Last year some of the plants did the same thing, while others, receiving the same treatment, produced their flowers.

J. W. C.

Redmond, Wash.

J. W. C. need not be discouraged because his Cattleya gigas have failed to produce flowers this season. At the best, with numerous orchid growers, this fine cattleya does not seem at all eager to produce flowering sheaths, yet will grow satisfactorily in every other respect; in fact, from the native habitat of this orchid, plants have been sent home by collectors that never seem to have produced a bloom in their existence, so some allowance can be made for any failure in this respect when grown under artificial conditions. J. W. C. does not state what treatment his plants have received, yet if the following instructions or methods are different to the methods he has hitherto used, and are carried out, a good percentage may be relied on to bloom annually.

Cattleya gigas requires a long rest in a dry, sunny position, with a slight shade of some description on the roof glass to break the direct rays of the sun. This rest should commence after the new bulbs become matured; an observant grower will notice among a batch of plants, how some varieties will bloom and complete their growth early in summer, while others flower at the end, perhaps three or four months later. In either case the resting period may begin at this stage, and may last six or eight months; during this time little water is needed at the roots, yet on no account should they be neglected for want of sufficient water to keep the bulbs plump and solid at all times. When the natural time for growth arrives, the eyes or leads will break strong; then the water supply to the roots may be gradually increased and abundance given till the flowers are cut, then the same proceedings may be again followed for the next season.

Orchids.

Paper by W. J. Jones, Dale estate, Brampton, Ont., read at the eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, London, Ont., August 3-5, 1915.

In introducing this paper, I wish to speak mainly upon those orchids best grown for both commercial and decorative purposes; therefore I must place the cattleya first, as it undoubtedly is the finest and best known commercial species we have, and with a fair number of its best varieties, it can be had in flower every month in the year.

The species of this popular genus rank among our finest orchids; they are general favorites and there can be little doubt that as the mode of treatment which they require becomes better understood, they will be extensively cultivated. In many of them the pseudobulbs are singular and pleasing in form, and the dark evergreen foliage of the plants, when in a healthy condition, renders them peculiarly attractive. The flowers are large, elegant in form, and scarcely surpassed in their brilliant richness and depth of color, the most frequent tints of which are violet, rose crimson, white and purple, with their intermediate shades.

As soon as the flowering is over is the best time for repotting all cattleyas, except in a few instances, such as Cattleya labiata, which is best deferred till commencing to grow in the spring. I have found cattleyas thrive best in pots, and osmunda fibre as the best material for growing in, with the corn or hard center of the fern chopped up and used for drainage, which the roots seem to prefer better than crocks. The cause of failure by many is through wrong potting, and no plant should remain longer than two or three years at least without repotting. In the case of large plants, they should be broken up and all back bulbs and old and dead roots cut away, and so give them a fresh start. After repotting, watering must be done with care; in fact, cattleyas do not require a lot of water at any time and too much water is apt to cause the bulbs to rot. So long as the soil remains moist, no water is required. The atmosphere should be kept moist by damping the floors and under all benches at least once a day. When the plants have made their growth they should be allowed to rest, and be kept dry, giving just sufficient water to prevent shriveling.

As these plants grow upon the stems and branches of the forest trees, or upon rocks, they must necessarily be exposed to all the breezes that blow. How reprehensible then, is the practice of many growers of orchids in trying to exclude air from their orchid houses. For the well being of orchids, it should be remembered that a free circulation of air is absolutely necessary, as well as an abundance of light, but cold draughts, and also the burning effects of the sun's rays, must be avoided, for it is not essential to their well being to be fully exposed to the blazing sun; indeed the life of the plants would under such circumstances soon be sucked out of them if shading were not prepared. There are so called observers of nature, who blame the cultivator for many of his acts, and he has perhaps suffered more wrong at the hands of this class of persons upon the matter of shading, than upon any other. We are frequently told that in a state of nature, such and such plants grow in most exposed situations, situations open to the full effects of a tropical sun, and nothing can be more erroneous than the manner in which we use "blinds" for the purpose of keeping away the bright light of that luminary. All I can say in answer to the objectors is, that they totally lose sight of the fact that our plants are growing under glass, which has the power of rapidly burning up the leaves and disfiguring our plants for years, if not for life. I must add that all plant growers are keenly alive to the advantage of strong sunlight for their plants, but that they are too practical to allow more than is advantageous to them under the artificial circumstances in which they are placed.

Cattleyas require to be kept perfectly clean and free from all insects; they are subject to white scale, which should never be allowed to accumulate, as it is then difficult to remove, and the plants are in danger of being injured. In order to keep the plants clean they should be frequently looked over and all signs of scale brushed off with a small stiff brush, especially around the base of the bulbs and the axle of the leaves, where the scale mostly accumulates.

Always aim to maintain an even temperature as too great a fluctuation is bound to cause trouble; therefore, a temperature of 55 degrees by night, and 60 to 65 degrees by day, will be found a good winter temperature, always admitting air on favorable occasions.

Our next best commercial orchid is undoubtedly the spray orchid, of which first place must be given to Phalaenopsis amabilis. This magnificent plant, which comes from Manilla, produces its graceful spikes of flowers nearly all the year round. The flowers are at least three inches across; sepals and petals pure white, lip of the same color faintly streaked with rose pink, and continue in perfection a long time, therefore making it an ideal flower for commercial and decorative purposes.

Phalaenopsis Schilleriana, which also comes from Manilla, has beautiful variegated foliage, and the flower spikes often reach a length of two or three feet, with more branches than the other kinds, and the flowers are arranged in two rows along the spike.

The sepals and petals are a beautiful light mauve edged with white, lip of the same color with darker spots, the inside is handsomely spotted; indeed the whole aspect of the plant is very attractive. They are best grown in baskets, and hung near the roof and kept shaded, in a moist atmosphere and when water is required the plants should be taken down and dipped, great care being taken not to allow the water to get into the heart of the plants otherwise decay or spot is likely to occur. A temperature of sixty to sixty-five or a little more will do no harm with sun heat, always giving a little air when weather is permissible.

Oncidiums, with their useful sprays of bronze and yellow, Vanda coerulea with its various shades of blue, and others too numerous to mention here, but which I hope to do at some future date, not forgetting the odontoglossum and cypridium, with its quaint and interesting flowers, have all proved themselves as our best and most beautiful of commercial orchids.

THE ROSE.

Roses and Carnations in Same House.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly advise what varieties of roses and carnations are best adapted to be grown together in the same temperature and under the same conditions as would be the case where both are grown in the same greenhouse?

Minnesota.

A. S. S.

We do not advise growing roses and carnations in the same greenhouse. The conditions of moisture, temperature and airing necessary for the successful culture of roses will not do for carnations. It would be far better to partition the house in the middle, making two sections, using one with a night temperature of 56° to 58° for roses and the other with a night temperature of 50° to 52° for carnations.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Young Stock Needs Close Attention.

The young stock should by this time be moving along nicely, and should be given very close attention day by day. Cultivate the plants every week, and keep all the old spidery foliage that may have gathered on the plants while in the pots removed. This can safely be done after the plants have made some new foliage, and it will save a lot of syringing later on, as in most cases the red spider gets a foothold from this cause. It is very essential to keep the plants tied as fast as the growths are being made, in order to syringe thoroughly, which is also a drawback to red spider and greenfly, and the work of stirring the soil is so much more easily accomplished. Of course, the plants require a great amount of water during the extremely hot weather; at the same time do not get the soil soggy or burned foliage will be the result. Try to allow the plants just enough water to last them from day to day without becoming dry in spots or at the edges of the beds. If one finds the beds drying in spots, caused usually by careless or irregular watering, the dry places should be watered first and then go over the whole bed and try to keep the watering done evenly. A house can often be sprayed overhead when the thermometer inside registers 110° to 115°; at the same time it would not be advisable to water heavily under these conditions for fear of scalding. *This applies to the plants that have been pruned as well as the young stock, especially if the first growth they have made is in an unripened condition, as at this stage there is very little root action to take up the surplus moisture and the foliage naturally goes to the scalding point. Often a whole house is badly burned, and the fault is often thought to be from dryness of the soil, whereas it is usually from over-watering. Another thing, get the watering and spraying done as early in the morning as possible, and they will stand the heat far better throughout the day.

Removing the buds is also a very important part of the work. Do not be afraid to pinch back rather hard when pinching. To do this work right takes time, as the growth should be removed back to the first plump or solid-looking eye, which often requires a lot of courage for the beginner, as apparently the plants have too much of a pruned look, but each successive growth will be stronger, and it is the only way to put good strong blooming wood into the plants.

There are many other things that will require looking after besides the plants. In the first place, see to it that there are no lights out in the roof. Make these repairs at once; a light of glass out here and there means several plants for every light, bolts oiled. The openings can be left open until almost time to start the fires, which will give the boilers a chance to dry out. Place the plates and bolts in a box where they will not become lost or misplaced. Look the grate bars over, and if shaking grates, look at the bolt fastenings in the ash pits, and give the smoke stack and

The Flower Case.

The name refrigerator has a very harsh sound to flower lovers, when used to designate the place in which flowers are kept. Refrigerator at once suggests ice, a frigid air, a killing chill, that will take the life out of a dainty blossom. Flower case is the better name, and if anything is said about ice, the inquirer is told there is just enough chill to keep down the heat that is generated by a lot of vegetation enclosed in a case without ventilation.

AN IMPORTANT FIXTURE.

The flower case is generally the feature of the cutflower store. Some are very simple and unpretentious, while others, in the large establishments, are large and elaborate, a striking feature of the decorative fixtures of the place. The dimensions and the position of the case in the store depend much on the importance of the business and the size of the salesroom. In a number of cases the flower room, as it is often called, is in reality a large refrigerator of which only the door is visible in the store, the customers being taken inside to make their selection. The flowers are seen nicely arranged in groups on the floor or on tables or a step stage, according to the room available. Shelves around the sides contain the orchids and other short stemmed flowers, while smilax and asparagus sprays hang down gracefully along the edges. Such an enclosure when well stocked, is sure to make a good impression on the visitor. A good example of such a case is seen at Charles Thorley's New York "House of Flowers." In the basement, directly underneath, is another similar room for reserve stock.

Most cases, are however, out in the store, with large glass doors, there being as little woodwork as possible to obstruct the view of the stock. Some of these are so large that customers, being put out of a growing condition, through having the water pour on them every rainy day. You will note that these plants will have weak and watery-looking foliage and have a stunted appearance, and these days, when each square foot of bench space must pay a good dividend, one can ill afford to be careless in any way. A leaky rose house or greenhouse is a pretty poor proposition to grow a successful crop in, and the easiest way to keep the roof in shape is to have the lights replaced as soon as a missing one is noticed. It will take such a short time to make these slight repairs that the time will not be noticed. The houses should be painted every other season at least, and we have found that if a good high-grade paint is used, that this will be as often as is practicable, and is often enough to protect the putty by preventing the frost and ice from loosening it. Another little job we are so likely to forget is the oiling of the ventilating gears, also the hinges on the sash and at every frictional point. The sun, pouring down on the metal day after day, will dry out the bearings in every part of the apparatus, besides the ventilating machines are almost in constant use during the summer and fall.

Another suggestion is to look the heating plant over carefully, and give the boilers a general overhauling. If a return tubular, remove all the hand-hole plates, and manhole plate, and by running a long chain in and around the tubes, and through the handholes with the use of the hose, the scale can be loosened up, and also sediment, rust, etc. New gaskets should be fitted to all the plates, and the nuts and chimney a good cleaning; have everything pertaining to the heating apparatus ready to start at short notice. Do not say, "I guess everything is all right," but make sure that it is, or some night next winter, when a young blizzard is raging, our guest may be an expensive one.

or the salesman, may go inside to select or bring out anything desired. The great majority of cases, however, are more confined, being about 30 inches to three feet in depth, six to eight feet in height, with a large space on top for the ice, and a length of from four feet upwards, as is needed for the requirements of the business. There are generally drawers at the bottom for fern leaves, smilax, galax or other greens. In some cases the doors slide on rollers; in others they push up and down like sash. A very useful feature is a door, mirrored on both sides, which opens to one of the sections in which the space is filled with zinc or nicked metal drawers, in which are kept violets, gardenias and other like flowers. There is a clear glass division partitioning some of the sections so that in the summer, when the stock is smaller, only a portion of the case is in use which relieves the too frequent visits of the ice man. In a number of the larger cases the cooling is done by individual electrically operated ice machines, which work automatically, keeping the air down to any desired temperature. Many cases are fitted with plate glass shelves resting in nicked supports, that are adjustable for vases for short or long stemmed flowers.

PENNOCK BROTHERS CASE.

One of the most elaborate arrangements for the display of cut flowers is that of Pennock Brothers, of Philadelphia, Pa. It occupies all of one side of the store, reaching from the floor to the ceiling, the top being ornamental woodwork. This is cooled by an automatic machine which is most satisfactory. This case is some 40 feet in length and is at all times most attractively filled with the best the market affords. Orchids have a section, American Beauties another, various tea roses are arranged together, also carnations and snap dragons have places. Made up baskets are given a suitable space and so on, the whole being a truly wonderful display that cannot help but make a favorable impression on the visitor.

The vases for cut flowers are an important feature, the fibre is the most indestructible, and when enameled white, are very good, though rather clumsy. Some stores use an outside covering of wicker, which gives an air of distinction. Well shaped and commodious vases of clear glass, if kept clean, always look good and will stand considerable wear if reasonable care is taken.

THE BATTLES PLAN.

H. H. Battles, whose business is one of the largest in the country, taboos the iced chamber, and displays his flowers in vases covered with wicker, placed back of his counter and about the store. An immense reserve is kept in the basement, in a vault under the pavement. One large window nearly always contains a great showing of cattleyas and other orchids.

The flower case should always be clean and the stock arranged to show to the best advantage. Anything passe or off color should find a place in the reserve box in the rear or the basement. Only fresh salable flowers should be on view. "Are they fresh?" is uppermost in the minds of all purchasers; "Be sure they are fresh" is often the admonition, as the customer after leaving an order, turns to go. Flowers at best are short lived and the least blemish, such as a mildewed or bruised petal, must always be carefully removed. Each vase should be arranged so as to show to the front; this done with all vases, gives the case a much fuller and more elegant appearance.

The Show Windows in Summer.

Although it is summer time, with comparatively few people in town to see them, the windows must not be neglected. They can be decorated in an inexpensive manner, which at the same time will be attractive and let people know that the place is still open and anxious to do business.

If there are two windows, it is well to arrange one of them in a more or less permanent manner, such as a garden effect, or a bank of ferns as a background for a lily pond, which, when kept filled with cut lilies, is cool looking and attractive. A few caladiums, with their beautifully variegated leaves will give such a decoration the needed touch of color. A garden effect, with a shrubby border, curving walks and flower beds with prepared green moss for grass is sure to attract attention. The surface can be made undulating by a foundation of sphagnum moss; the walks made of sand or fine white pebbles. The flower beds are best made with saucers or shallow boxes of sand, into which are stuck cuttings or the tips of coleus or other like foliage plants. Geranium flowers or others from stock will serve the purpose very well. It is but the work of a few minutes to change and replace the beds and thus keep the display attractive while it is a feature.

For the cut flower window, there should be a background of ferns, a few good Boston or Scotti will do, but one or two cibotiums are best. This grand, decorative fern with its lace-like fronds is a feature of itself. A large vase of gladioli will, with the ferns, be sufficiently attractive. As a change the flowers can be arranged in a large deep vase basket tied with a showy ribbon. A magnolia wreath with gladioli and an appropriate bow of ribbon, makes a good show piece, as does the same wreath with a decoration of purple asters. Windows such as these will make the passerby stop and look, while a collection of faded ferns and vases of flowers that are very passe and which is far too often seen are certainly no credit and a positive detriment to the house. A few well trimmed box or bay trees are a good feature if there is room for them on the curb or about the doorway or windows.

A window full of boxes tied with ribbon bows, some of them wrapped up for shipping and tagged for seashore and mountain resorts, cost nothing and call attention to this branch of the business in a practical way. What is wanted is frequent change; give the young ambitious fellows a chance to try their hand and see what they can do in this dull time. It is always best to have some decorative scheme before the work is started, as very often it is done in a hit or miss kind of way, which when completed, has no special feature, carries out no idea, and is not likely to attract the business so much needed at this time.

Humidity in the Greenhouse.

The relative humidity of the air in greenhouses is a most important factor in the forcing of many greenhouse crops. Some effects of the varying degrees of humidity are given in Bulletin No. 277, entitled, "Fertility and Cultural Studies with Roses," published by the New Jersey agricultural station, New Brunswick.

Circular 47 has also been prepared by the station in order that florists may have directions for determining humidity by means of tables published in the circular.

The quantity of moisture in the air or the humidity may be determined by means of a sling psychrometer. This instrument consists of a wet and dry bulb thermometer attached to a wood, or a metal base, with a handle arranged to permit of whirling or rotating the thermometers in the air. The bulb of one thermometer is covered with muslin and kept moist when determinations are being made. To make a determination the psychrometer should be whirled steadily for a few seconds, and the wet bulb thermometer read. It should then be immediately whirled again and read, and this process continued until the wet bulb shows a constant reading. The difference in temperature indicated between the dry and wet bulb thermometers should then be noted.

After this difference has been noted turn to the tables given in the circular for humidity determinations and note the column under "Air Temperatures." Follow down the column until you find the temperature indicated by the dry bulb thermometer, then read across the page until you come to the column indicating the same difference in degrees as you found between the wet and dry bulb. The figures will indicate the desired humidity reading.

For example, suppose the difference between the wet and the dry bulb was 4 degrees and the temperature of the dry bulb was 62 degrees. Note the 62 in the air temperature column of the table, then read across the table until the column indicating a difference of 4 degrees is reached (eighth column), and the figure 79 will be found. Or, in other words, a temperature of 62 and a wet and dry bulb difference of 4 means a humidity of 79 per cent. Each increase or decrease of .5 degrees between the wet and dry bulb means a difference of 2 to 3 per cent in humidity.

The tables for the determination of humidity, included in this circular, cover temperatures between 50 degrees and 80 degrees. This range of temperature should be wide enough to meet the needs of most florists. More complete directions for the determination of humidity can be secured from the Weather Bureau, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Burpee's Sweet Peas.

There is perhaps no cut flower that has forged so rapidly to the front, and become such a factor in the business as the winter-flowering Spencer, or orchid sweet pea. The long sprays bearing three to four large frilled blooms of most exquisitely shaded colors, and delightfully fragrant, are extremely fascinating, holding their own in competition with the best the market affords. As a flower for the corsage, they take first place, either alone, or in combination with gardenias, lily of the valley or orchids. Up to this time they have proved very profitable to the growers, there being a number of instances where the returns from one crop have paid for the house in which they were grown.

The great improvement of the past eight or ten years, as seen in this lovely flower, in variety of color, size of blossom, length of stem and earliness of bloom, which made possible the forcing under glass, is the work of a number of sweet pea enthusiasts, but the one who stands head and shoulders above the rest, a leader in every sense of the word, is W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa. He has watched every step forward, both in this country and abroad, and no expense has been spared to get the best—and get it first. His recent purchase of the sensational English variety, "Fiery Cross," at $417 per ounce of seed to the amount of three ounces is an example of his aggressiveness in obtaining meritorious new varieties. At his trial grounds at Fordhook are to be seen every new variety from all quarters of the globe, as well as pedigreed seedlings from crosses of his own, made by Geo. W. Kerr, who has had charge of this department for the past six years. The present season's tests of their own new creations alone amount to 135 separate kinds, of which records have been made. A number of these seedlings are wonderfully fine, and will be named and sent out as fast as stock can be worked up. When varieties of merit have been proven, the seed is sent to the Floradale seed farms at Lompoc, Calif., to be grown in the quantity required.

Mr. Kerr, whose extended experience in England, where the growing and exhibition of the sweet pea were his specialty, is looked upon as an expert. His booklet, "Sweet Peas Up to Date," published by the W. Atlee Burpee Co., should be in the hands of every grower of sweet peas. It contains directions for indoor and outdoor culture, together with other valuable information and a list of all the Spencer varieties so far introduced, describing their origin and color. It is a pleasure to talk to Mr. Kerr on almost any horticultural subject, as his business appears like recreation. Hybridizing and records made of everything done, appear to be second nature to him.

Now that sweet peas are over, he is doing great work with gladiolus, crossing the early-flowering precox type with the wonderfully tinted primulinus of southern Africa, and getting flowers remarkable in the orange and salmon pinks, and a whole range of colors that are new to the large-flowering sorts.

In speaking of the difference between the forcing or winter flowering sweet peas and the summer flowering sorts, he stated that the winter forcing types were the result of careful selection over a period of years, nearly all early sorts having sprung from the

Blanche Ferry. Crossing the Spencers with a reselection of the earliest varieties had produced early flowering Spencers, which were now so fixed in color that they should come true from seed every time. While he knew this was not always the case, the trouble was due to growers of seed not "rogueing" their stock plants; that is, taking out all mixed colors as fast as they appear. In this way, if only the color desired is left, the seed is bound to come true, as sweet peas are self-fertilizing, it being almost impossible for insects to get at the germinating parts of the flower until fertilization has taken place. In his work he has to take the bud in a comparatively green stage, before the pollen is ripe enough to fall; then he is sure of his results. It is a singular fact that the first results of this fertilized seed is very disappointing, nothing seeming to come as desired, but the seed saved from these plants produces the next year true characteristics and colors that are fixed and from which selections are made that will reproduce true from seed. He is particularly enthusiastic over his crosses with the new Yarrawa, the products are larger than is the case with existing sorts, with greater stamina and very rich colorings. They can be had in by Christmas and will flower until spring. They are what he calls "easy doers," with which any grower, who will give them ordinary attention, will be almost sure to be successful.

In forcing winter sweet peas, he lays great stress on the preparation of the soil. Ground beds are best, with plenty of head room. Trenches should be three feet in depth, well drained, and with good rich turf at the bottom; then plenty of manure and bone meal. Plants are best started in pots and never allowed to get a check. Most growers are not careful enough with the watering; on no account should they be watered or syringed before being fumigated, as dampness on the foliage appears to hold the nicotine and is very injurious to the vines. When the flowering season commences, a check from chill, or too much or too little water, will pale the color, harden the wood and shorten the stems.

SWEET PEA FIERY CROSS.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s Novelty for 1916. Awarde I Silver Medal of the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain and Silver Medal of the American Sweet Pea Society.

VASE OF SWEET PEA YARRAWA, SHOWING GREAT LENGTH OF STEM.

Five feet between the rows is best for sweet peas. Violets make the best companion crop, but on the side benches may be grown any plant that does not require a temperature over 45° to 50° at night. To get early flowers buy the best seed and start early, rather than bring them on with heat later.

Referring to novelties like the original Countess Spencer, Gladys Unwin, Yarrowa and others, they were, he said, undoubtedly sports — plants grown from seed that had in some way become fertilized with other than their own pollen. Although, as above stated, this would seem very difficult to take place, it seems the only explanation. When growers find their forcing stock of plants mixed with the summer flowering sorts, these latter should be removed, as they take up good and much needed room, and will not bloom until spring.

For the outdoor summer sorts, he advises getting the ground made ready the fall before, as the winter then mellows it and it is ready early in March for planting, when it might be too wet to dig, and much valuable time would be lost in waiting for it to dry out. The ground can be made ready and the seed planted in the fall, but generally the results are not so good, as, if the winter is mild, the sweet peas may start up, to be killed later by a cold snap.

Mr. Kerr feels sure that the sweet pea will gain in popularity as a cut flower in winter, as new varieties even better than existing sorts will be sent out as soon as the stock is sufficiently increased to supply a moderate demand. There will also be further progress made, as many of the hybridizers, both in this country and England are hard at work with each recurring season, doing their best to improve this lovely flower.

All of the new varieties are tried out at Fordhook, and any found to have merit enough to catalogue are sent to their Lompoc seed farms in California to work up the stock. The following is a list of a few of the best sorts for winter forcing of Mr. Kerr's selection:

Blanche Ferry, pink; when true.
Yarrowa, pink; perfectly true.
Fordhook Pink.
Fordhook Rose.

(The last three are new and in many respects superior to the older sorts.)

White Orchid and Miss Spanolin; white and black seeded whites.
Rose Queen; best of its color.
A. Harvey & Sons, Brandywine Summit, Pa., consider the following varieties the best winter-flowering sweet peas:

Christmas Pink Orchid; pink and white.
Lavender Orchid; light lavender.
White Orchid; white.
Mrs. A. A. Skaach; bright pink.
Mrs. Jos. Manda; shell pink.
Orchid Beauty; dark rose pink.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Care of the Plants During August.

Every chrysanthemum grower can now find plenty to do attending to the daily routine work necessary in the care of his plants. The plants growing on the benches for cut blooms have now attained a vigorous plant growth, with the soil full of roots requiring steady attention as regards watering and syringing. To allow these plants to suffer for the want of water will give them a setback from which they may not fully recover. When the drainage is good and the soil porous, chrysanthemums will stand liberal watering, but if there is anything wrong at the roots, the plants will quickly show the effects of it by the young foliage turning a light green and wilting quickly with the sun, denoting a soft growth. When this happens, the beds should be allowed to dry out more between the waterings and extra care taken with syringing of the plants so that the soil does not get soaked during the operation. It is only guesswork to say how often the plants should be watered or syringed; this must be governed by the weather and local conditions and is a detail for the judgment of the grower in charge to decide. A good plan is to take a trowel and examine the soil down to the bottom of the bench to see if it is in the right condition all the way through. It is important that the watering and syringing be done early enough in the day to give the foliage time enough to dry out before night. Now that the plants have made heavy growth, it takes the foliage a longer time to get dry, especially on the side benches, where there is not as free a circulation of air as in the center of the house; wet conditions overnight in the greenhouse, when there is a heavy dew outside, quickly cause the foliage to go bad. Plenty of fresh air is very important at this time to ripen up the wood and encourage the setting of the buds. Full ventilation should be kept on every minute during the daytime and the only lowering of the ventilators at night should be to guard against heavy rainstorms.

The time is drawing near when the buds will be ready for taking. Expert growers of exhibition cut blooms commence selecting and taking the buds on many of the exhibition varieties as early as August 5, and again August 10 and August 15 are important dates for this class of stock, and after the latter date every bud on an exhibition variety should be taken as it appears. Early planted stock of the early October flowering varieties will begin to set their buds about August 15 and they should be taken as they get into condition to safely handle mid-October varieties, and those which mature their blooms early in November will have their buds ready for taking around August 20 and every bud, whether exhibition or commercial, should be taken as they appear after this last date. Care should be taken in doing this very important work so as not to damage the young bud. Do not attempt to take the bud until it is plainly visible and the side growths can be easily removed. A close watch must be kept on the grasshoppers to prevent them chewing the young buds; this is the time they cause so much trouble, as in a very little while they will chew the top or side out of a bud, completely ruining it.

After the buds are formed the suckers will begin to shoot out at the stool of the plant and these should be removed by cutting them off with a sharp knife, being careful not to damage the roots when doing the cutting; also, do not figure to set back and watch the flowers develop without any more trouble after the buds are set. Any side shoots that may have been overlooked will now quickly shoot out, and, unless removed take a lot of strength from the plant, so be on the job all the time.

The well established plants will be greatly benefited by applications of liquid manure once every week or ten days according to the strength of the plants and the treatment they have been subjected to, but it is best to be a little cautious rather than overdo the feeding, especially with the commercial cut flower stock; also, watch the day for applying the manure. A fine day with the soil in a moist condition is the right time for watering with liquid manure as the plants will take up the manure quicker on bright days than they will on dull cloudy days and get more good from it, and under no consideration should plants be given liquid manure while the soil at the roots is in a dry condition, but give the beds a light watering with clear water first and allow them to remain for an hour or two before applying the manure water.

Be sure the plants are properly supported to insure straight stiff stems; also watch out for the aphids, which will be very troublesome if once allowed to work down in the young buds, which are now forming. Red spider and thrips are other insects that must be fought right along to be sure of having perfect flowers later on.

Hail Screens for Greenhouses.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I would like to secure information regarding the use of hail screens on greenhouses, particularly the proper size of mesh, distance the wire should be placed above the glass, and percentage of light that is shut off by the use of hail screens. W. A. P.

North Dakota.

The writer is located in the hail district of Kansas, where hail insurance, if it can be secured at all, is at a very high rate, and has found the following method of screening very effective:

For a continuous range of houses I use $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch galvanized pipe as a support for the screen in gutters, using as a support a pipe frame consisting of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch pipe posts one foot longer than the distance from the plate line to the ridge line, and fitted with 1-inch tees at the top, which allows the $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch pipe at the top to slip through easily, allowing the use of short length or second-hand pipe. At the bottom the pipe posts are fitted with $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch perch flanges, which are fastened to posts about 12 feet apart that support the plate. The object of having the frame one foot higher than the ridge is to allow for opening the ventilators. On the outer slope of each range V-shaped brackets are placed, across which is stretched No. 10 galvanized wire, which serves to hold the wire screen off the glass.

The accompanying illustration shows the exact size of mesh and gauge of the wire used in the electric welded hail screen, which comes in rolls, each containing 400 square feet. This can be had in various widths, but for our purpose we find a four foot width satisfactory. The screen is fastened securely at the plate, and stretched tight crosswise over the ridges, the seams being tied at intervals of 8 to 10 inches with No. 16 galvanized wire. For fastening these seams a 2x12 plank is used long enough to reach from the galvanized pipe support to the ridge, a common hook ladder being fastened over the ridge.

The percentage of light that such a screen shuts out depends entirely upon weather conditions. In locations where there are heavy snow falls and few melting days, the snow will lay on the screen and exclude all sunlight, but in clear weather you can hardly tell the screen is there.

Davis & Steiner, Ottawa, Ill.

The new iron-frame greenhouse, 76x900 feet, that the Garland Manufacturing Co., of Des Plaines, is building for Davis & Steiner at Ottawa is well under way and is attracting a great deal of favorable attention, for it is one of the largest houses of its kind ever built, and to give the reader some idea of how large it really is it takes fully four minutes to travel from one end of the house to the other at a fast walk. Over 1,900 boxes of glass will be used in this one house or in other words it will consist of 95,000 square feet of glass which is equal to 9 houses 28.4x300 feet and will require over 3½ tons of putty. The house is of pure steel-truss construction, and is 27 feet high at the ridge and 6½ feet on the sides. It has galvanized steel cave plates and will have roof and side ventilation. The posts are set at 8 feet 4¼ inch center, insuring a much greater supporting strength than if spaced 12 feet or more as is quite frequently done. The rafters are tee iron instead of flat, which the manufacturers claim will avoid any tendency to buckling. The wall and purlin posts are galvanized and set on post bottoms in concrete. Ample protection has been made with sufficient sway and the parts based to insure against endwise and diagonal strain. By reason of the great width of the house and its high ridge subjecting the gable end to great wind strain ample protection has been made by special gable end bracing to protect it against any post contingency in this respect.

The house runs east and west and as soon as it is completed it will be planted with cucumbers with no benches but walks every five feet and the plants set four feet apart both ways with two plants to a stalk. This house and the old houses which are also quite large will be heated with steam. Winandy Bros., of Chicago, have charge of the erection and Val Winandy says that when the job is completed the house will stand the racket, which means that it will be safe in every respect, for he has been erecting greenhouses for a great number of years and knows when a house is safe and when it is not.

New York Florists' Bowling Club.

With ideal weather, business cares left behind, and everybody in the best of spirits, the members of the New York Florists' Bowling Club left July 28 on the Sandy Hook boat, their destination being Forked River, where "the big ones bite," and the delightful two days' outing will long be remembered by all who were fortunate enough to be in attendance. The sail to the Highlands was delightful, and upon landing the party was met by Joseph Fenrich with his splendid car, and he and W. P. Ford arranged a program that was a wonder. Proceeding in two autos, the trip was made down the Jersey coast, passing through Seabright, Red Bank, West End, Long Branch, Deal Beach, Asbury, and Ocean Grove, with their beautiful homes and magnificent gardens and grounds, and arriving at Mr. Fenrich's beautiful home at Bradley Beach, where Mrs. Fenrich and her husband entertained the party royally during its short stay. The next stop was at Lakewood for refreshments and a delightful ride around the George Gould estate that gave a suggestion of being in dreamland—so much beauty in so short a period. Then on the way through real country to Toms River, a short stop there for refreshments and on the way again, and at 6:30 p. m. the party arrived at Forked River—dirty, hungry, but happy.

The following morning the yacht Evelyn took the party to the fishing grounds, where the weakfish entertained some members of the party more than others, but there was constant laughter as one humorous incident followed another. About 100 fish were caught by the party, Chas. Scott and John Miesem carrying off the honors with about 50 between them, and the other half of the haul about equally divided between the other members of the party.

The second day, following a pre-breakfast attempt to lure the pickerel from the waters of Forked River, by four members of the party (result, one pickerel) the start was made for a 20-mile sail to Barnegat light, where every indication showed that bluefish were about. Seven large ones, averaging eight pounds, together with a goodly number of bass, fluke and poogi were in the haul when the party returned to the hotel at 3:30 in the afternoon and prepared for the homeward journey.

The merry party included the following: John Miesem, Wm. Siebrecht, Sr.; Wm. P. Ford, Joseph Fenrich, H. C. Riedel, Chas. Scott, Peter Jacobson, Wm. Duckham, Chas. H. Totty, Roman J. Irwin and A. J. Guttman. Roman J. Irwin was the official photographer and the accompanying illustration shows that he was right on the job, and the members of the club are taking advantage of their license to tell "real fish stories"—and back them up with the evidence. More About New York Bowling.

John Miesem, W. H. Siebrecht, Wm. P. Ford, P. Jacobson, C. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, Roman J. Irwin, A. J. Guttman, J. S. Fenrich, C. W. Scott and H. C. Riedel, enjoyed their fishing outing at Barnegat Bay, on the Jersey shore, July 29-30. They went by train and boat to Highland Beach, and there they were met by Capt. Jos. Fenrich, and taken in automobiles to Mr. Fenrich's Bradley Beach home and served with refreshments by Mrs. Fenrich. From there they motored to the Forked River house at Forked River, N. J.

There were 49 weak fish caught on Thursday in the bay and 39 blue fish, fluke and sea bass caught on the outside Friday, several of the blue fish weighing from five to eight pounds.

The party left Friday afternoon, motoring to Asbury Park and returned by train to New York. All hands agreed that it was a very successful outing, but John Donaldson's absence was very noticeable.

Cleveland Flower Show Judges.

The premium committee of the Cleveland flower show, made up of Herbert Bate of the Cleveland Cut Flower Company, chairman; Frank A. Friedley of the James Eadie Company, and J. Curnow of Akron (the latter representing the private growers), have just announced the six men who will serve in the capacity of judges at the coming big Cleveland flower show. These six men are: J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill.; Michael Bloy, Detroit, Mich.; Eugene Dailedouze, Brooklyn, N. Y.; John Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., and Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.

The committee announces that they expect to have the final premium list ready for mailing early in September. They would like to receive names and addresses of growers who did not receive copies of the preliminary list mailed early in the spring. Send addresses to Herbert Bate, 356 Leader building, Cleveland.

Encampment Floral Features at Wash.

In order to make the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held in Washington, D. C., the latter part of September a great success, government officials are aiding the citizens' committee, and special floral designs are being laid out on the lawns of the capitol and other public buildings. Under the direction of Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol building, two designs have been laid out, which will add to the beauty of the grounds. On the north, the grand army badge, 20 feet wide and 75 feet long has been laid out, while on the south grounds the badge of the women's relief corps, of similar dimensions has been reproduced. The grounds of other government buildings have been decorated with designs of army corps' badges. About 75,000 plants have been used in the arrangement.

The Yareta or Vegetable Sheep of Peru.

Professor Irving W. Bailey, who for several years resided at Arequipa, Peru, recently sent to the garden for identification a dried specimen of a very curious plant which is known by the native Peruvians as "yareta" or "vegetable sheep." The plant grows abundantly among rocks at high altitudes along the Andes of Bolivia and Peru, where it constitutes a conspicuous feature in the landscape because of its peculiar manner of growth in developing the so-called "polster" or cushion formation.

Similar compact masses of plant growth are frequently found on high mountains, as well as in arctic and antarctic regions. Such, for example, are the relatively small clumps or cushions of Diapensia lapponica L. on the alpine summits of New England and in northern Europe, also several of the saxifrages in the Rocky Mountains, and the well-known "vegetable sheep" (Raoulia mammillaris Hook.) of New Zealand; but nowhere in the world are known to occur such huge masses as are developed by the yareta (Azorella sp.) of the Andes and by other members of this genus in the Falkland islands.

It forms hillocks or small mounds often becoming three feet high and sometimes several feet in diameter. Moreover, the entire mound is made up of a single plant, not of a colony of individuals, and it attains this enormous size and extreme compactness by a process of repeated branching, so that the ultimate branches are closely crowded and the outer surface is continuous. The flowers of the yareta are very tiny, only about two millimeters, or less than one-eighth of an inch, long, and are borne in small sessile, axillary, involucre clusters near the tips of the branches; and the fruit is somewhat like a miniature caraway seed.

Like other members of the umbelliferae—the natural family to which the plant belongs—the younger branches are rich in oil-secreting cells and oil tubes, so that the whole structure becomes completely infiltrated with a resinous content. The dried specimen at hand has much the odor of old honeycomb or beeswax. Living specimens are said to have such a powerful odor that their presence can be detected even at some distance from the plant itself. The presence of such a large amount of resinous content and its exudation over the surface renders the yareta of considerable economic value, since it is gathered in quantity, taken to Arequipa and there used extensively for firewood. One correspondent writes that it is "brought down to Arequipa by the carload and forms the principal fuel of that town." —Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin.

Where the West Begins.

Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
Out where a smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun's a little brighter,
Where the snow that falls is a trifle whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where the friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing,
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the world is in the making,
Where fewer hearts with despair are breaking—
That's where the West begins.
Where there is more singing and less of sighing,
Where there is more of giving and less of buying,
And a mau makes friends without half trying,
That's where the West begins.

ANNUAL OUTING OF WASHINGTON FLORISTS' CLUB, GREAT FALLS, VA., JULY 21, 1915.

OBITUARY.

Nicholas Hallock.

Uncle Nicholas Hallock, the dean of New Yorkers in matters of horticulture and agriculture, died August 5 at Seattle, Wash., and will be placed in the old Quaker burying ground at Milton-on-Hudson, N. Y., Sunday, August 15. "Uncle Nick," as he was long and lovingly known by all the horticultural trade in and about New York, was a rare character, a notable type of that same wholesome Quaker stock so well exemplified in his brother, V. H. Hallock, and in his nephew, the late Edward V. Hallock, so well known and well loved in the S. A. F. Uncle Nick lived at Queens, N. Y., for many years and sold his home farm some years ago to Chas. W. Ward, who named it Cottage Gardens, built greenhouses, and started a nursery there. Last year his neighbors at Milton turned out in large numbers at a surprise party on his eighty-eighth birthday and as a part of the festivities gave him an enormous armful of roses, 88 in number. Of his recent coast trip, which terminated with his death at Seattle, he recently wrote:

"We had a very fine run all the way. Our train went direct to the Grand Canyon for over Sunday. It is not worth trying to describe it to one that has seen it. Since arriving at Pasadena I have done little but see this flowery city, thinking it best to take things a little easy, though I am feeling all right, I want to keep so. I thought Bermuda fine—it is as a tallow candle to an arc light. I find it greatly annoying to see so many things I cannot name and so few that can tell me whom I ask. There is soon to be a flower show here; then I may find out some things. The palms are in such variety no one can name them. In the date palm I recognize two varieties. A lovely little purple flower the girls sell in the street at five cents a bunch. So many of the flowers are gorgeous, but scentless, even calendulas are odorless, so, too, are the roses. Have not seen a scented one yet. The orange groves are of great interest, full of fruit many of them, and the ground covered with fallen fruit. A fine place to rest and leave care behind, as I am doing. We had a fine lot of people after leaving Chicago, got quite chummy before getting here. My hostess said they told her I was the youngest and most jolly man on the excursion. When we got off here our auto went by the observation car and they waved hats and handkerchiefs with a hearty 'good-bye, old sport, good-bye.' So we parted, alas, forever; but the memory will cling with life."

Of his visit to the coast, his dear friend who entertained him, Mrs. Coro Forbes Marsh, writes: "He left Pasadena the picture of health, and also San Francisco, saying he never felt better in his life; but just after reaching Seattle developed pneumonia. Am glad to say that he did not seem to suffer much, as he was unconscious, or at least dozing most of the time. We tried to do everything possible, but the three doctors and two nurses were of no avail and he passed quietly from his earthly sleep to an eternal one. My greatest regret, aside from my purely selfish sorrow of losing such a dear old friend, is that he could not have lived to see his son once more and his old friends. We have lost a wonderfully beautiful life from our midst, but the influence of such a noble spirit can never die. It has been a great privilege to have had 'Uncle Nick' with us these four months and to have seen his joy over the beauties of the western flowers and mountains. I think no one ever had a better time than he and that is our greatest comfort now. My husband is taking him back to Milton, N. Y., and the services will be held there probably Sunday."

William H. Westcott.

On August 5, William H. Westcott died of heart failure. An operation a year ago weakened his constitution and while he recovered and got about fairly well, his strong constitution had been undermined and he passed away suddenly with this final attack.

Mr. Westcott's father was a gardener, and both his sons, William and John, followed in his footsteps. They became associated in the jobbing business in Brooklyn some 47 years ago. After four years, John Westcott was taken into the firm of Penneck Brothers, and his brother William came to Philadelphia and established himself as a grower and retailer at Second and Tioga streets, where he continued for 20 years. He then gave this up, and again associated himself with his brother John and bought out Ferguson's Laurel Hill nursery on Ridge avenue. After 18 years this partnership was dissolved and he and his son, William, Jr., built greenhouses in Roxboro, at 7043 Ridge avenue and for the past five years have grown plants and cut flowers for the trade. William Westcott was a careful and successful grower, taking pride in doing a few things well rather than taking up more than he could care for. He was of a genial disposition and very much liked by the trade of which a large number attended the funeral. There were quantities of beautiful flowers. He leaves a wife, son, two married daughters and five grandchildren. The business will be carried on by his son, Wm. Westcott.

Alfred C. E. Burkhardt.

Alfred C. E. Burkhardt, one of the pioneer professional florists of Portland, Oregon, died at his home in that city of heart disease brought on by acute indigestion. Mr. Burkhardt had worked all day at his floral shop and did not feel ill until after 8 o'clock. He died a few moments after reaching his home.

William H. Barnes.

William H. Barnes, from 1895 to 1907, secretary of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, with headquarters in Topeka, died in that city July 28, of Bright's disease. He is survived by his wife and eight children. Mr. Barnes was born in New York and served in the war as a member of a New York battery. He was an enthusiastic G. A. R. man and twice served on the staffs of national commanders. He was for two years president and two years secretary of the American Federation of Horticultural Societies, and a member of the American Pomological society. He located in Kansas in 1870.

Chicago to San Francisco.

The transportation committee of the Society of American Florists announces the selection of the Chicago & Northwestern Ry., in connection with the Union Pacific R. R., Denver and Rio Grande R. R. and the Southern Pacific R. R. as the official route from Chicago to the S. A. F. & O. H. 1915 convention at San Francisco, Calif., August 17-19.

The official train which will leave Chicago at 10:00 p. m., August 12, will consist of all steel equipment, embodying all that is modern in railway travel of today, including luxurious Pullman sleeping cars, with open sections, compartments and drawing rooms.

A low round trip rate of $62.50, Chicago to San Francisco, with a return limit of three months, but not exceeding December 31, 1915, is in effect daily until November 30, and correspondingly low rates are in effect from other stations to Chicago. These tickets permit a wide choice of routes returning, with liberal stop-over and side trip privileges.

Members of the Chicago party may return east by such individual route as each individual may prefer, with date of departure and stop-over privileges as desired. The route must be selected, however, at the time tickets are purchased.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

The executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association will meet at the Jefferson hotel, Peoria, August 31 for the purpose of arranging dates and place for two meetings to be held next year. The committee will be glad to receive suggestions from any member, for the good of the association.

J. F. AMMANN, Sec'y.

New York May Invite S. A. F.

A special meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, August 16, in the Grand Opera House. Business is to invite the Society of American Florists' convention to New York for 1916 and to hear report of the flower show committee. As the above will have special interest, will our members kindly attend?

HARRY A. BUNYARD, Pres.

American Rose Society.

For the fall exhibition of the American Rose Society to be held at Cleveland, November 10-14, the following special prizes have been offered:

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., $25 for the best 50 blooms of Hadley. Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, silver medal. Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O.; silver cup.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; $10 cash. Robert Scott & Son, Sharon, Pa.; $25 cash for 50 blooms Killarney Brilliant.

These prizes are specials in addition to those of the regular list and in all probability there will be a number of more added. There is much interest arising in this exhibition, and there are two prizes to be offered for the best un-named rose that will be placed upon exhibition.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Belgian Plants.

With reference to fall shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants, which were under embargo by the British authorities, we are pleased to be able to now advise definitely that shipments will arrive this fall on schedule time from Belgium, unless the German authorities intervene or the progress of the war disrupts the present arrangements.

The plan worked out is that permits are given by the British authorities to individual Belgian shippers, when proof is submitted that the stock is of Belgian origin and production, for Belgian interests, and that the enemies of Great Britain do not get any revenue or benefit from the sales. The proceeds of the sales remain in control of the British authorities so long as the Belgians remain under control of the Germans. It was largely by reason of the pressure brought to bear on the British authorities by the Belgian shippers that permission was given. The Belgian shippers through their powerful organization—"The Chambre Syndicale des Horticulteurs Belges" protested direct to the British authorities, and in this protest we understand they were assisted by the British National Organization of Florists.

From our side, protest to the embargo was made through the state department by the New York Horticultural Importers' Association, assisted by individual importers and backed by the powerful Merchants' Association of

New York. The combined pressure, strong but just, caused the British authorities to investigate, with the result that Belgian shippers who have secured permits can ship their orders to the United States.

This decision is important to florists who depend largely upon azaleas for their Christmas and Easter sales, but still more so to the Belgian shippers, since the United States is practically the only market left open to them.

McHUTCHISON & Co.

Greenhouse Maintenance Cost.

During the past few years the matter of cost systems and the proper distribution of expense in the florists' business have been the subject of much thought and discussion, and a summary of a statement of the cost of maintaining a greenhouse range of approximately 55,000 feet of glass for a period of one year ending August 1, 1915, the establishment being devoted to growing stock for the retail trade, will no doubt be of interest to our readers. The condensed summary taken from the statement of the owners of the range is as follows:

Christmas goods	$ 1,267.86
Supplies	1,642.45
Plants	1,416.47
Cut flowers	1,232.60
Bulbs	689.44
City water	194.19
Legal expenses	183.80
Taxes and insurance	769.41
Interest	425.40
Advertising, print'g, postage	1,953.56
Labor	11,353.16
Freight, express and dray	1,052.74
Repairs	455.35
Construction	3,182.13
Coal	1,691.50
Coal hauling	366.96
Coal freight	1,184.46
Telephone toll	128.67
Light	74.12

Total.....$29,264.27

Deducting from this total the cost of construction and labor on same, in all $3,521.90, the cost of maintenance proper amounts to $25,742.37. The net sales for the year were $30,631.92, the dividend was $1,900 and the net profit for the year $2,989.50.

Winter Flowering Sweet Peas Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

Novelty Yarrowa

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long, stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., ¼ oz., 50c.

Selma Swenson

A beautiful clear light soft pink waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson, and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; ¼ oz., $2.50.

Rose Queen

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10.00; ¼ oz., $2.50.

Los Angeles. CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held August 3, in Kruckeberg hall, and the feature of the session was an address by P. D. Barnhart, one of the best posted authorities on horticulture in this section. He chose for his subject "The Trials of a Gardener," and his hearers who thought he intended to dwell on the trials and troubles encountered in the care of plants soon found they were wrong, for the theme of his talk was the relations between the employer and the gardener. Mr. Barnhart told of many experiences with different employers, emphasizing the fact that the employer seldom knew the habits and characteristics of plants, and in forcing the gardener to do certain things, dissatisfaction was the result when the plant was unsatisfactory at maturity. The speaker advocated a closer confidence between employer and the gardener, which would bring about the giving to the latter of more latitude in his work, a longer time to produce results that would be satisfactory, rather than holding him down to a certain time limit, with fertilizers, water and insecticides. After his talk there was a spirited discussion, following which a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Barnhart. Jacob Dieterich was appointed by the chair to tell what he saw and heard at San Francisco, and his description was listened to with interest.

As the annual picnic has been abandoned for this season, the chair appointed Jas. M. Grant, chairman; Jacob Dieterich, W. W. Felgate, Jas. MacGillivray and Hal S. Kruckeberg as a committee to go into the matter of holding smokers once a month at different cafes. The idea of the smoker is to enable the boys to get together, have a good time, and each member attending, share his portion of the expense, thereby leaving the treasury intact. Treasurer MacGillivray gave his semi-annual report, which was indeed gratifying to all members. The balance in the bank is well up and the dues are coming in very promptly. No doubt this is due to the special attention that Mr. MacGillivray is giving his office. C. H. Corbrey, Joe Jarvis and John Polder were proposed for memberships in the society and favorably acted upon.

A specimen leaf was brought in for identification, and after passing several experienced authorities, it was pronounced as a member of the solanum family. J. Roberts was final and called it Solanum robustum. The leaf was some eight or ten inches long and about three inches wide. When the leaf is matured there is a row of thorns on the back and down the midrib. The flowers are small and purple; about Christmas time the berries, which are about the size of a small cherry, turn a beautiful red.

NOTES.

A. G. Bartlett, of Hollywood, has a Castanospermum australe in bloom and invites all interested to see the tree. The flowers are borne on the body and branches of the tree, instead of on the new wood or the wood of the previous year's growth.

Fred H. Howard of Howard & Smith states that in spite of the dull times they have done the largest business for the season in the history of the firm. His only complaint is the slowness of collections.

The Pasadena Horticultural Society will hold its annual fall flower show, October 28-30. The schedule can be had of Secretary Geo. H. Kennedy, 497 Bradford street, Pasadena, Calif.

Walter Armacost, Ocean Park, states that business at the beach town is better than in the past and looks for a great improvement this fall and winter.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, who has been visiting in California, spent two days in this city visiting florists and nurseries.

Miss Florence Yoch, who is on her vacation, will open offices in this city to take up the practice of landscape architecture on her return.

Chas. A. Chambers, formerly of the Fresno Nursery Co., of Fresno, has been on a vacation at San Diego.

The Dean Iris Gardens have just issued their revised price list, listing over 500 varieties of the iris.

HAL S. KRUCKEBERG.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.—Advice from florists in all parts of the United States is being sought by the local chamber of commerce in an effort to make the best selection of a flower emblematical of this city. A red flower is desired, which will bloom about the time of the 1916 fall festival. Seeds will be given out next spring so that flowers can be planted in every section of the city.

AVIATOR

was placed on the market for the first time last season, but was withdrawn later and afterwards came into our possession, when we leased the Chicago Carnation Co.'s greenhouses. Aviator is the greatest money maker for any one to grow. You can count more profits in six months from Aviator than any other scarlet, on account of its wonderful productiveness, producing twice as many blooms as any other carnation, and a heavy crop for Christmas. Will produce 30 blooms per plant per season. The color is an intense scarlet and the flower has a fine full center. The stem is thin, wiry and stiff, and the calyx non-bursting. Aviator is a cross between a Red Sport of Maceo and a Red Seedling, and has the habit of Maceo. Every break develops into a fine flower in a remarkably short time.

HEAVY OVERSUPPLY FINDS NO SALE.

The market has been very quiet during the past week and many flowers had to be thrown away unsold, as cuts on asters, roses and carnations still remain very heavy. It were better not to mention gladioli, as they can be had anywhere by the thousands, and it is disgusting the way such large fancy spikes are being sold for little more than nothing. Of course the poor stock does not stand the ghost of a chance, and very often entire shipments are compelled to be thrown away without any sales. Lilies are selling well and bring fair prices considering what the other flowers are bringing. The sweet peas in this section have all been destroyed by the heavy rain storms we have had up until this week. American Beauties are scarce and command tip-top prices, as most of the growers are off crop for the summer months. The vacation season, especially among the wholesalers, is drawing to a close, as trade is expected to pick up again within a few weeks.

NOTES.

We are very sorry to announce the death of Otto Loeffler, of 1005 Chestnut street, North Side, who for three years had been in the employ of the McCallum Co. as a salesman. Mr. Loeffler died August 4 from a very short siege of galloping consumption. Funeral services were held August 7 in St. Mary's Catholic church, with interment at St. Mary's cemetery, Mt. Troy.

The festive feature of the past week was the Market House picnic at West View park, which was preceded by a large parade, in which the Blind Floral Co., Ludwig Floral Co., E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Annie Garrity, Carrie Jordan and Thos. Joyce all had massive floats. Business at the three Pittsburgh markets was suspended for the entire day.

Wm. Loew and his brother have left for the convention and exposition at San Francisco, expecting to make a stay of eight weeks. I. V. Kinder, of Charleroi, also left August 4 for the same destination and announces that his son, Warren, has opened a retail store in Donora.

George Marshall, of the McCallum Co., is resting up "on the farm" near Warren, Ohio. Geo. McCallum is spending a week in camp at Negley, Ohio, on the Connequenessing river.

Wm. Turner is spending six weeks motoring through the eastern cities in his Studebaker. Wm. Colligan has just returned from a similar trip in his machine.

W. A. Clarke of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is spending his "principal" vacation at his summer cottage at Stowe, N. Y., on the shores of Chautauqua lake.

J. M. Johnston contemplates the opening of a new retail store in Duquesne. He is at present operating stores in Homestead, Braddock and McKeesport. G. M.

St. Louis.

Dullness in all branches of the trade is reported. There is no outlet for flowers except funeral work and an occasional anniversary. Everything is coming in, carnations from the field, roses, gladioli and lilies.

NOTES.

Mrs. M. M. Ayres, who is retiring from business, and who is the sole lady member of the florists' club, will tender her resignation at the next meeting. Mrs. Ayres has for many years been one of the foremost florists and her retirement from the active field will be regretted by many.

The next club meeting will be held at the home of Joe Hauser, Webster Groves, where the election of officers will take place.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. had a large supply of seasonal flowers from local growers.

H. G. Berning had a large stock in all reasonable varieties of plants and flowers last week.

C. A. Kuehn had his tables well filled with all varieties in cut flowers the past week.

All the wholesale houses are painting and making repairs to prepare for fall work.

The feature at Shaw's Garden this week is the splendid water lily display.

Joseph J. Windler and Miss Bernice Olga Poss were married August 4.

Otto Bruening dislocated his arm while cranking his delivery car.

Visitors: Morris Levine, of Lion & Co., New York, and Jos. E. H. Moriehard, with S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

W. F.

ST. PETER, MINN.—Fire, caused by a bolt of lightning, completely destroyed the heating plant and office building of the St. Peter Greenhouses. The loss is nearly $5,000; insured.

HOUSTON, TEX.—George E. Kessler, consulting landscape engineer, among other suggestions for the park development in this city, has recommended that a range of greenhouses for the growing of plants and shrubs for the city parks be erected under the supervision of the park superintendent.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Several business propositions of an urgent nature which will require his presence in this city will prevent Harry Papworth, president of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., Ltd., and S. A. F. state vice-president for Louisiana, from attending the San Francisco convention August 17-19.

GOOD STOCK MOVES FAIRLY WELL.

The choice stock in the market is finding a pretty fair sale, but the poorer grades hardly move at all. The general demand for flowers, while a little better than it was, is not steady and is active only at the beginning and end of the week. Prices average about the same as before. The cut of roses has let up somewhat during the past fortnight. It includes, however, some pretty good summer American Beauties. Easter lilies are plentiful and are excellent. Some auratum and plenty of good rubium lilies may also be had. Asters at the time of this writing are between seasons. The last of the early ones comprise the bulk of the receipts, while the midseason and late ones are just coming in. Gladioli receipts are easily sufficient for immediate needs. A few snapdragons and pond lilies may also be had. The supply of greens is ample.

TRADE A TRIFLE BETTER.

Trade has been quite good the past week and stock in all lines was pretty well cleaned up at times with the exception of gladioli, asters and other outdoor flowers. Roses cleaned up quite well at fairly good summer prices, but this was not due so much to the increased demand as it was to the general shortening up of stock. American Beauty roses have moved better the past week than they have for some time and the same holds good for Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are not as plentiful as they have been. A few Hoosier Beauty are arriving but not in any great supply and are moving nicely at good prices. Some very fine Ophelia are now being offered but are selling well at good figures. Lilies are in fair supply and the same holds good for lily of the valley, although both of these items are none too plentiful at times. Orchids have been on the short side all week and at times it is rather difficult to pick up enough blooms in the entire market to fill the orders. Carnations are plentiful and are moving as nicely as can be expected, especially indoor stock from the young plants. Some outdoor carnations are being picked and while they do not sell as readily as the indoor stock they move well at times and it probably pays the grower to pick and ship the blooms into the market. Gladioli are in large supply and while they are in good demand the prices are not what they should be and the same holds good for asters, which are none too good in quality, although at times fairly good stock is obtainable. The early crops are about done and it is a question whether the late crops will amount to anything or not. A few dahlias are arriving but are very poor and do not cut much figure in the market. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and some especially fine ferns are to be had. Trade the past summer has been satisfactory compared to last season and many of the dealers are surprised to find that in some instances the sales during the summer months are much better than in 1914 which is indeed gratifying to hear.

NOTES.

Walter F. Weed, 18 years and Wibur A. Hard, 21 years, were sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Kersten August 5, for the murder of William Weil, florist, who was found strangled to death and robbed in his place of business at 421 West Sixty-third street on the night of April 5. The youths pleaded guilty after Assistant State's Attorney W. W. Witty had consented to waiving the death penalty. The confessed murderers did not take the witness stand. They admitted strangling their victim and robbing him of a small sum of money.

Herman Leitz, of New Haven, Ind., accompanied by his assistants, Thos. Harlor and the Misses Bertha and Marguerite Sturm and Marion Todd, were here on a visit this week. Mr. Leitz placed an order while he was in the city with Kroeschell Bros. Co. for two No. 46 Kroeschell water tube steam boilers to heat his three new Moninger houses, 28x232 feet. He says that he has been a regular subscriber to THE AMERICAN FLORIST for over 22 years.

Joe Erringer, with Zech & Mann, has returned from South Bend, Ind., where he spent his vacation and was agreeably surprised to be promoted to the position of salesman upon his return. Gale Fanning was given a boost up the ladder of success and now has the title of shipping clerk tacked to his name. Allie Zech and wife will leave next week on their vacation, which will be spent at Tomahawk Lake fishing.

Mr. Miller says that this is the largest orange tree he ever saw so far north and that it must have carried at least 300 oranges.

Ronsley, the Florist, 106 South Dearborn street, is going to make a number of changes in his store which will give him the necessary room that his increasing business demands. He now has the contract to decorate the lobby of the Majestic theatre which calls for a daily change of flowers.

Albert Hall, with A. Lange, is spending his vacation at Paw Paw Lake, Mich. Tom McAllister of the same firm leaves this week with the local delegation for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the S. A. F. convention and the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Fred. Liebermann, with Kennicott Bros. Co., is back from his vacation and is again attending to his duties at the store.

Victor Young, manager of the George Wittbold Co.'s North Clark street store, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Our Specialty

The Symbol of Progress

Why in spite of reverse business conditions are we steadily increasing the volume of our sales? As the sturdy oak from a tiny acorn has grown, so have we from a small business in the center of a Flower Market grown to the Flower Market's Business Center.

Why?

Because our organization is composed of energetic and capable men.

Because this force, together with a great number of successful growers of high class stock, places us in a position to fill your wants to the letter, even tho' you be the most exacting of buyers.

Because we will not be satisfied to rest on our laurels and will not allow to-day to be the high water mark of our attainments.

Because like a Symbol of Progress, we are ever active, daily advancing.

Because we are always alert to meet market changes and business conditions as they present themselves, in a modern, forceful, effective, yet conservative way.

TO YOU who would achieve success, who would satisfy, and gain the confidence of your customers, you cannot find a more direct way than by giving us the same opportunity to gain your confidence.

In Conclusion we wish to say to our loyal customers, you reputable florists, who have given us your continued patronage, we take this occasion to thank you, and promise to serve you with a deeper interest in your future welfare. To give you a full 100% of service—both the 5% of inspiration, and 95% of perspiration.

YOU CANNOT

hire any help, or get a partner whom you can depend upon more or who will work as hard for you, as

Very truly yours,

The special sale of cut flowers and plants for the benefit of the Eastland sufferers, Wednesday, August 4, at 217 South State street, was a great success, and over $300 was turned over to the Tribune fund. The committee, consisting of J. L. Raske, W. P. Kyle, Andrew Chronis, Eric Johnson and Cornelia Ryan, worked early and late to make the affair as much of a success as possible and wish to thank everyone for the stock that was donated and the services rendered. The Misses Evelyn Olson, Caroline Morrison, Minnie Martin, Bessie Jones, Lovey Cook, Carrie Weissgerber, Martha Gunterberg, Genevieve Spencer, E. Clark and Mrs. W. P. Kyle and Mrs. Joseph Raske acted as salesladies. The weather was very unfavorable the day of the sale, otherwise the returns would have been considerably larger.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. report a brisk demand for grafted and own root rose stock and chrysanthemum and pompon plants and are having a special sale this week to move what stock is left. The demand for this stock has been enormous this year and another week will probably find everything pretty well cleaned up. Field-grown carnation plants are in good demand right now and shipments are going out every day and new orders are continually arriving. The supply department is busy mailing out the new catalogue which is just off the press, and anyone who has not yet received a copy can obtain same upon request. August Poehlmann and family spent Sunday at Long Lake, making the trip over the automobile route in a new Winton Six.

Mrs. Horton, who has charge of Bassett & Washburn's office, says that she expects C. L. Washburn and wife home next week from California where they have been visiting friends and relatives at Pasadena and taking in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Miss Harper, who assists Mrs. Horton in keeping the Bassett & Washburn books, is now enjoying her vacation at Booth Lake, Wis.

E. G. Hill, with the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., called on several of the growers here this week previous to his departure for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the S. A. F. convention. His firm has two new roses that will be distributed this fall and placed on exhibition for the first time in this vicinity at the Grand Floral Festival, to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14.

Louis Hirsch, son of M. B. Hirsch, the proprietor of the store doing business under the name of the Willard Florists, 346 East Fifty-first street, was taken home from the Michael Reese Hospital this week. He broke his right leg above the knee some time ago and is reported to be doing as nicely as can be expected.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., has returned from London, Ont., where he attended the eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, August 3-5, and is undecided whether he will go home this week or leave for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Percy Jones is handling a large quantity of green goods, especially ferns, and reports a brisk demand for same. This firm will handle boxwood on a large scale again this fall and are now booking orders for same.

Wm. F. Kasting and son, William the second, of Buffalo, N. Y., en route to the San Francisco convention, took advantage of their stopover between trains here, August 9, to call on a few of their friends.

John Sinner is busy gathering his fishing tackle together at the store during his spare moments, which means that he is going to hike to the Wisconsin lakes on a little fishing trip.

H. B. Rime, with Rime & Son, Humboldt, Ia., was in the city several days this week on business and pleasure combined. He is making his headquarters at Percy Jones' store.

Herbert Stone, with the Atlas Floral Co., is manufacturing a dandy furniture polish which he is selling as a side line and retails at 25 cents per bottle.

Louis Wittbold writes from Ottawa that he and his family are having a delightful time on their vacation seeing the La Salle county places of interest.

Joe Pfeffer, bookkeeper for Weiland & Risch, has returned from a delightful visit at Silver Lake, Wis., where he spent his vacation.

J. C. Bruckner, the Princeton Florist, 248 West Fifty-ninth street, has returned from a delightful fishing trip.

Mrs. J. F. Kidwell, who was operated upon for appendicitis recently, was discharged from the Presbyterian hospital this week.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg leaves this week for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the S. A. F. convention and the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The John Kruchten Co. is fitting up its office in grand style and will soon be all set for another year's business.

Anton Then and Fritz Bahr left for California this week with their wives and a party of friends.

Miss Kate Harris, of Memphis, Tenn., is spending a few days here this week.

E. C. Pruner reports a brisk demand for Elastic-Lyke putty.

Ed Meuret of Park Ridge bought a new automobile last week.

Peter Reinberg cut his first Golden Glow chrysanthemums August 10, which, to our knowledge, are first to reach the market. This firm is receiving a large number of orders for field grown carnation plants and new ones are arriving each day. Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Reinberg greenhouses, will spend his vacation at San Francisco, Calif., this year, taking in the S. A. F. convention, August 17-19.

Wietor Bros. are pretty nearly through with their planting, according to N. J. Wietor, who says that the last carnations are being benched this week. This firm is cutting a good supply of roses which are cleaning up nicely, especially Killarney and White Killarney. Gus. Alles, who so ably assist Mr. Wietor at the store, is planning on leaving soon to enjoy a well-earned rest.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report business as good with a clean-up each day in roses. Gladioli and asters are seen in large supply at this house. Mr. Vaughan is spending his vacation this year in touring the nearby country in his machine with his family taking a few days each week.

J. A. Young, proprietor of the Moosehart Greenhouses, Moosehart, passed through here in his automobile this week enroute for Michigan to join his family where they are spending the summer. He is building two new Foley houses 40x300 feet.

George Manos, the Union Depot Florist, has returned from a delightful trip in the east where he visited all principal cities. He returned home last week and made another trip to Erie, Pa., accompanying his sister-in-law home.

A. T. Pyfer is acting as bookkeeper, stenographer, cashier and manager at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store during the absence of right-hand assistant Miss Parker, who left for California August 7.

The Raedlein Basket Co. have a large display of baskets at its Milwaukee avenue salesroom, which was arranged purposely to give the out-of-town visitors a chance to inspect its line.

J. A. Budlong is one of the few growers in this vicinity who has much bench space devoted to the rose Double White Killarney, which has been in such brisk demand all summer.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a good supply of roses which are good property this week and are cleaning up completely each day.

Henry Dunn, with Wm. F. Schofield, 734 North State street, and wife, leave August 14 to visit friends and relatives at Boston, Mass.

Miss Shepperd, able assistant to R. P. Atwell, Ft. Dodge, Ia., is spending a few days here with her mother.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports calla bulbs now on hand. Liliium Harris bulbs were shipped last week.

John Propps, with the Alpha Floral Co., is spending his vacation at Milton, Ind.

Phil Weinberg is now employed in Hillman's floral department.

Visitors: Milton Alexander, with Lion & Co., New York; R. E. Kidder, with the Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich.; Harry Balsley, Detroit, Mich.; Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; John Bauscher, Freeport; Walter E. Cook, representing Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, with family, enroute to Pacific coast; Henry H. Wenderoth, representing Nicholas Wapler, New York.

Oklahoma City.

E. Pomeroy, of the LeGrange Bulb Farm, Donna, Texas, was a visitor this week on his way to California to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Mrs. O. G. Hornaday, florist at Lawton, left for the Panama-Pacific exposition, August 5. She will attend the S. A. F. convention while there.

Business is very quiet. Stock from outdoors is fairly plentiful, and good, making it possible for the florists to keep up fine window displays.

LEWISTON, ME.—The annual exhibition of the Lewiston and Auburn Gardeners' Union will be held in the city hall, August 27-28. Mrs. Geo. A. Whitney, secretary, 151 Winter street, Auburn, Me.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Bismarck, West Randolph street, Thursday, August 5, and was largely attended. John Michael, 7074 Stony Island avenue; Morris Grossberg, 56 East Randolph street; Allie Zech, 30 East Randolph street, and Stanley Weir, Western Springs, were elected to membership and the applications of Emil Ehrhardt and Gus. Stege, Park Ridge; Paul Weiss, Maywood, and Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, were read.

Michael Fink, chairman of the Good-of-the-Club committee, reported that the annual picnic, held at St. Paul Park, Morton Grove, July 25, was a financial success and that there was a balance of $30 after all the expenses had been paid.

George Asmus reported that the preliminary premium list was out for the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, to be held at the Coliseum, November 9-14, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, and the Chicago Florists' Club, copies of which were distributed at the meeting and may be had on application to N. P. Miller, 179-183 North Wabash avenue. August Poehlmann announced that he had received several checks from A. Henderson, chairman of the trade space committee, which shows that there will be quite a number of exhibitors at the fall show at the rate reservations for space are being made.

E. F. Kurowki reported that the committee that was appointed to solicit donations for the fund to be spent in entertaining the visiting florists to the San Francisco convention of the S. A. F. & O. H., August 12, was meeting with good success and that the visitors would be treated to an automobile ride about the city, leaving the Auditorium hotel at 1:30 p. m., and entertained at dinner at the Bismarck Gardens at 6 p. m.

Vaughan's Seed Store had a splendid exhibit of delphiniums, which attracted much favorable attention.

RAIN HURTS OUTDOOR STOCK.

There is still a large quantity of stock on the local market, although the rains lately have beaten much of the outdoor stock out of the running, particularly sweet peas and also some of the asters. On August 7 very few good asters were to be had, while the poorer grades are still overplentiful. Roses, too, are away off crop just now, and Kaiserin are plentiful. Larkspur, summer lilac and Baby Breath fern find a good market. Orchids have been scarce.

NOTES.

A letter received by the boys at the Cleveland Florists' Exchange from Geo. W. Smith, who, with his wife is on his way to the coast via Yellowstone Park, dated at Council Bluffs, Ia., stated that they were enjoying the trip immensely. Mrs. Smith, who is in poor health, is feeling remarkably fine just now. He writes it has been so cool that overcoats would be welcome.

W. G. Mather, president of the Ohio Horticultural Society, this year, has shown his practical interest in the "training garden" section of the vacant lot and home garden movement here by donating $350 toward a fund to pay for instructors on the training grounds.

Miss Hester Getz of Westman & Getz is spending a month or six weeks visiting in Colorado. Miss Bailey, who has charge in her absence, reports being very busy with work, both funerals and cut flowers.

Miss Wilhelm of the Eadie Co. will return to work Monday from a three weeks' vacation. Mr. Schoen reports business good, a Jewish funeral and an Italian wedding being part of Sunday's business orders.

Fred Steinbrenner, florist, at 9104 Lorain avenue, won second prize in the decorated float parade held by the West End Business Men's Association. One hundred and ten vehicles were in the procession.

Russell Ball, of the Jos. Eadie Co.'s force, will spend about three weeks at Mt. Clemens, Mich. He will take the baths while there.

H. B. Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., spent the past week at Erie, Pa., narrowly escaping the flood by only a few hours.

Walter Priest, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co. and wife, are spending a week at Chippewa Lake, Ohio.

James Wilson, wife, and son, Kenneth, are spending a few weeks at Lakeside.

Ben Fellmer, of the Weller Pottery Co., Zanesville, spent several days here. C. F. B.

GLADIOLI LEAD THE MARKET.

Gladioli still lead the market, being plentiful, and not bringing the price they have in past weeks, ranging from $1 to $2 per dozen, and the flowers not so large. The asters are coming in better, both in quality and quantity, and selling at fancy prices—from 75c to $2.50 per dozen in all colors. Easter lilies took a jump on the market, coming in more plentiful and with fine flowers, the buyers saying they are the best they have ever seen for this time of the year. There are some good roses coming in, especially in Milady and Mrs. Chas. Russell. Carnations and sweet peas are practically off the market.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. report a very good week, but say business could be better. They are handling a large supply of gladioli and some very fine Easter lilies, which are surprising in their quality. Asters are better, with better flowers and longer stems and sell read-

M. F. Parker, president of the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., has gone to Outing, Minn., on a vacation. The store has been receiving some good stock, especially in gladioli and asters which sell to the last one, and in general the business holds up well for this time of the year.

W. J. Barnes says the trade is extra good for this time of the year. He is sending out lots of funeral work, with bouquets for the sick a good second. He is cutting some fine gladioli and asters. Mr. Barnes went on a fishing trip to Beau Lake. Same old fish story, "we ate the fish."

Funeral work has been keeping Biederman & Son busy, and it certainly helps out at this time of the year. They are cutting some very fine asters, and report the chrysanthemums are looking especially good.

T. J. Noll & Co. says business is extra good, but reports that stock is scarce. He is receiving some fine gladioli and asters, which are disposed of readily. The shipping trade keeps up to the mark.

In general the business in Kansas City is passing all records for summer months, as all the florists are kept busy and the stock is the best that has ever been on the market at this season.

Arthur Newell and his force are busy with funeral orders which for this time of year has been the best he has ever had. He is receiving some extra good asters and gladioli.

Miller Carter, of Wm. L. Rock Flower Co., has gone fishing on the White river. This firm has had a good week of funeral work and reports the stock selling out clean.

Samuel Murray reports business in general good, and especially so in funeral work, which is encouraging to handle, with the stock so clean and good.

Miss J. E. Murray says it is surprising how the trade keeps up in the summer months, especially in funeral work.

MARKET CONDITIONS VERY POOR.

Market conditions have been very poor during the past week. The heavy rainfall has destroyed many outdoor flowers and has done much to hinder the shipping business. Roses moved slowly, although white varieties found a better market than they did last week. The quality of carnations being shipped now is very poor and meet with light demand. Good asters bring from $1 to $2 per 100, but the bulk of the shipments are very poor and consequently sell at low figures. Gladioli are more plentiful and are moving slowly.

GLADIOLI EXHIBITION.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society held its annual gladioli exhibition at Horticultural hall, Saturday and Sunday, August 7-8. There was a very fine exhibit of gladioli, phlox and dahlias. One of the most noteworthy exhibits was that of Chas. F. Fairbanks, of Milton. Although Mr. Fairbanks is an amateur, he has over 200,000 gladioli bulbs and his flowers are of exceptional quality. He had an exhibit covering 600 square feet, which was artistically arranged in baskets. The exhibit was awarded a silver medal. Mr. Fairbanks won first prize on 50 spikes of any variety with Daisy Rand. He also won first for best twelve varieties, with L. Immaculee, Daisy Rand, Mrs. G. Moulton, Panama, Gaiety, Joe Coleman, Fair Columbian, Myrtle, Empress of India, Gov. Hanley and Electra.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, had a very fine exhibit of gladioli covering 500 square feet. He was awarded first prize for the best 100 vases. Among the best of his varieties were noted Myrtle, Schwaban, Panama, America, Niagara, Halley, Fascination, Brenchleyensis, Princes, Mrs. F. King, Chicago White and Europe. All these are very fine commercial varieties.

Wm. Rosenthal of the Boston Cut Flower Co. won first prize for the most artistic basket of gladioli with a combination of Myrtle and Halley, which was very effective. The display of phlox by R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass., was very fine and attracted much attention. Alexander, of Bridgeport, Mass., had a large display of dahlias. He had a large assortment of good varieties, including some very fine seedlings.

Special prizes have been offered for next year's gladioli exhibition for the best single spike of any new seedling—$25 first and $10 second, by Chas. F. Fairbanks.

NOTES.

President P. Welch, of the S. A. F., and wife left for the convention at San Francisco August 4. Mr. Welch was tendered an informal luncheon at the Parker House on the evening previous to his departure by a few of his intimate friends. He was accompanied by Thos. J. AUGUST BUSINESS UP TO STANDARD.

For the first week of August business was quite up to the standard, if not a little better; there were several funerals of prominent people at which the floral tributes were large and handsome and this demand relieved the situation considerably. There has been a tremendous amount of rainfall, scarcely a day passing without a heavy shower. This continued rain is hard on the asters and other outdoor flowers, the asters particularly showing the effect on the foliage, giving it a rusty appearance. It is hoped the later varieties will show up better. Gladioli are still very plentiful, few of them bringing over $1.50, while by the thousand they go very cheap. Roses are plentiful in the medium and lower grades, but not too many specials. The higher grades seem to find a good demand. Easter lilies are as plentiful as usual, the man who gets out on his lilies, sends them in regularly, for he is sure to find a good market at times, and with the occasional better prices, manages to get something more than cost in returns. Orchids are coming into their own; the crops are off with several growers and what few are offered are grabbed up at fancy prices—60 cents to 75 cents is the price at this writing.

NOTES.

Arthur Niessen, chairman of the house committee, who has been active in fathering the monthly social gatherings inaugurated by President Burton, is very enthusiastic over the success of these gatherings, which have been largely attended. One of the old time crack bowlers who had not been attending, because of so many novices, was present one night recently and was surprised to have to take third place. Mr. Niessen sees no lack of interest in the club and thinks the future very bright.

The Robert Craig Co. has a great fern in their new sport of Scholzeii, which they have named John Wanamaker. It is a much stronger grower than its parent with beautifully waved fronds. In the almost innumerable variations of the Boston, it would seem as if there was nothing more worth noticing, yet in this variety the Craig Co. has a distinct and valuable novelty which is being purchased in quantity by all the large growers.

Karl Cortis says the Jos. Heacock Co. will close their wholesale store August 14 and open again about the middle of September. The stock of roses of new varieties, particularly Ophelia, are coming along nicely, although the new reds, Hoosier Beauty and Hadley, do not make the strong growth of other sorts. White grubs have also given them a great deal of trouble, they having to be on the alert for them all the time.

Eugene Burnheimer has parted with "old Dobbin" and ordered a Ford car. But a few years ago an auto delivery car was a novelty, now the man driving a horse to a delivery wagon will soon be likened to, and pointed out as, an "old timer," indeed.

Berger Brothers are well satisfied with their summer business as some mornings it takes all hands moving full time to get their orders out. They cannot get enough good asters to supply the demand.

WEATHER COOLER AND BUSINESS BETTER.

The weather of the past week was cooler, and if any distinction can be made, business was a little better than during the previous weeks, which however, is not saying much. Orchids were scarce and the best stock was quoted at from 75 cents to $1 each, wholesale rates. The supply of American Beauty roses fell off toward the last of the week and specials were priced from $20 to $25 per 100, or at that rate. Good tea roses have been scarce, but what little good stock was in the market brought a price. We got our share of the great storm of August 3-4, which worked havoc in other parts of the country. Crops in outlying districts were beaten down and roads damaged. The aster supply was somewhat reduced, which has not created inconvenience, as there are yet four times as many asters on the market as there is any use for. Lilies continue plentiful and cheap. Good lily of the valley has been doing a little better, but inferior stock is hard to move.

August 9.—The market is very quiet. In roses there is a light supply and most of that is poor stock, arriving too open. American Beauties continue scarce and specials sell at the rate of $25 per 100. There is a great surplus of gladioli and asters. Orchids continue scarce. There is the usual supply of lilies and lily of the valley.

NOTES.

Traendly & Schenck, we are pleased to note, during this period of dearth of good roses, are receiving some fine Taft, Shawyer, Mock and other varieties. Papa Traendly is still rusticated on the farm at Rowaton, Conn., and only comes to the city once in a while, but when he does come he "makes a noise like a farmer."

The writer is not as young as he used to be and therefore appreciates youth. A number of fishing boats were upset and several men drowned in the great storm of August 3. John Miesem and C. W. Scott had planned to go fishing that day; in fact, they went to the shore, but being wise old "sea dogs," they scented danger and did not go out.

OUTING PREPARATIONS.

Plans for the clambake at Henkes Brothers' grove, Newtonville, Saturday, August 21, took up the attention of the members at the August meeting of the florists' club. Louis H. Schaefer, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported the tickets printed and distributed and asked for returns a week in advance of the bake so that the proper number of persons may be provided for. Thomas F. Tracey, acting chairman of the meeting, named Fred Goldring, Edward P. Tracey and Patrick Hyde, members of a committee to arrange for transportation to the grove. James H. Snyder, John J. Haggerty and William Newport were named a committee to prepare a program of sports. The entertainment committee and Fred Henkes were instructed to proceed with the bake and to make such arrangements as to assistants as they deemed necessary. John J. Moore, gardener for Archland Dederick, of Loudonville, was elected a member of the club, and one application was received to be voted upon at the September meeting. H. C. Newark, a visitor, was given the privilege of the floor and told interestingly of the work of his concern, the Albion Greenhouses, Albion, N. Y., formerly large growers of vegetables for the market and for canning, but lately the concern has gone into growing flowers, and is pushing out for business. The invitation of Fred A. Danker to hold the meeting on the evening of September 2 at his place, 744 Central avenue, was accepted. Following the meeting the club enjoyed refreshments served by the hosts.

and O. H., who arrived with Mrs. Welch and a party of eight in a special car, August 4. President Welch was on his way to San Francisco to attend the annual convention of the S. A. F. He left Boston in the morning and at stops made at several cities in Massachusetts the local florists were on hand with gifts of flowers and boxes of candy for the ladies. The train arrived in Albany at 3:55 p. m., and a delegation of Albany and Troy florists was at the union station to extend a welcome. A large bouquet was added to the collection in the drawing car, and the ladies were also remembered with candy. The car was attached to a New York Central train for the west which left at 4:35 p. m. Stops were made at Syracuse, Rochester, and Buffalo on the way to Chicago. The party expected to reach San Francisco August 12 and plan to spend the following four days in sightseeing. They expect to leave San Francisco, August 23, for Los Angeles and plan to be in Chicago, August 30. They will reach New York on the return journey September 1, and Boston the following day.

George T. Sambrook of Sambrook Brothers, Troy, is expected home shortly after a 52 days' trip to the Pacific coast, during which he visited the two expositions. He is accompanied by his daughter. R. D.

VALUABLE EVIDENCE

Perhaps the greatest test of a real flower store is the ability to meet the variety of requirements for those in search of the unusual and original.

MARKET GLUTTED WITH GOOD STOCK.

Gladioli and asters are about the only flowers in which there is any activity. Both are excellent stock, but the market is glutted, as a result of largely-increased local planting this year. A fetching effect seen in some florists' shops is a solid window of asters in fancy baskets of color to match the flower. Asters are bringing from 35 cents to 50 cents a dozen, and gladioli from 75 cents to $1. Sunburst roses of a very fine quality are beginning to appear on the market, and some few cuttings of Ophelias are seen. In each case they are as yet more of a novelty than a regular feature of stock, but a couple of weeks hence will see them displayed in considerable quantities. Florists complain that hospital trade is far below the normal. The increase this year in outdoor and porch planting, so marked during earlier months, is still reflected in an unusual demand for Boston ferns. Funeral work has been fairly satisfactory so far during the summer. Local florists have about completed their planting of carnations.

NOTES.

The Munk Floral Company has discontinued its branch store in the lobby of the Brunson office building, where it coupled the sale of cigars with flowers. The experiment did not prove to be a financial success, and the company has disposed of its lease to a cigar concern.

Friends of R. W. Munk, of the Munk Floral Company, are pleased to learn that his wife, who recently underwent a serious operation at Grant hospital, following some weeks of illness, is convalescent, with prospects of speedy recovery.

A new and much more attractive location has been taken on by the Washington.

Funeral work during the last few days has helped to keep the local trade busy. For the funeral of W. J. Boardman, all of the florists in this city supplied a few designs each and J. H. Small & Sons, Gude Bros. and George H. Cooke had orders for some very elaborate pieces.

M. Clark, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., was a visitor this week. He also inspected the water lily farm of W. B. Shaw at Kenilworth.

Miss Toogood, bookkeeper for the Washington Florists' Co., is spending several weeks' vacation at Atlantic City and the New Jersey highlands.

David Bissett is adding two new houses, each 25 by 150 feet, to his range, which will be planted with a general assortment of stock.

A. Hopkins, of Z. D. Blackstone's staff, is receiving congratulations and wearing "the smile that will not come off"—Yes, it's a boy.

Mrs. Kimmel has closed her store for the balance of the summer season and will join her husband at Colonial Beach.

TRADE VERY QUIET.

The present business lull, which is to be expected during the hot months, has settled down too comfortably to please anyone, and at present there seems to be no indications of an early return of better business. A large number of regular store patrons have gone to the summer resorts, with the result that that channel of the trade has been somewhat cut off. This week asters are arriving in large quantities, as are also gladioli. There are very few carnations, almost all the growers have cleaned them out and are refixing the benches. A number of the growers are now bringing in good Boston ferns that are finding a ready sale. Sweet peas on account of the week of rain and cloudy weather we have had are not very good, but with a few days of good old sunshine they will soon be back again as good as ever.

Among other flowers noted here are cosmos, dahlias, phloxes and gypsophilas, but the call for these flowers is very light. At the greenhouses everything is active. Things never looked better at this time of the year. The early mums are looking good, the growers are all busy filling their carnation beds and from the present outlook the carnation crop this year should be a good one.

J. F. Wood opened his new flower store in the Strand theatre building August 7, under the name of the Strand Florist. Mr. Wood has a very neat store in this new building.

The last few days have kept nearly everyone busy with funeral work, while the cut flower trade is only moderate.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The second annual outing of the above named club was held at Gillette, N. J., August 5. It had been planned to hold it on the day previous but the great storm prevented. However, storms clear the air, and when the club members and their friends assembled at Lincoln park, Newark, N. J., the weather was perfect. A number of automobiles were in waiting and the party, numbering nearly 150, were taken 17 miles through a beautiful country to the grove at Gillette. On the trip many evidences of the storm, as damaged crops and roads, were noted, but no mishaps occurred. Upon arrival at the grove, more evidence of the storm was seen. The Passaic river had overflowed its banks and a part of the ground was a lake, which in the end furnished great amusement for some of the boys, who like ducks, love the water. Some of the New York visitors were surprised that clams, lobsters and fish in such large quantities could be found so far inland, but they were there in great plenty. We have said clams, lobsters and fish, because we are not certain whether clams and lobsters are fish or animals. We intend to submit that question to our friend, Joe Manda, who was on the ground and is an expert on such matters.

Continuing our story, there was clam chowder to start with, then on a great mound of fire, clams, bluefish and sweet potatoes were baked and corn and chickens were roasted. We believe roast is the proper word for corn and chicken, but it was all done on one big fire. We may add that two good meals were served with accompaniments of various liquid refreshments. There was a game of baseball, jumping and races.

The officers of the club are: John A. Rassbach, president; Henry Harnecker, vice-president; Edward Jacobi, Jr., secretary; Edwin Persson, treasurer. The outing committee was as follows: Richard Yuill, chairman; James J. McLaughlin, secretary; A. C. Bergerow, treasurer; W. L. Jones, Ernest Hansmann, R. Plebarny and John L. Pfeuffer. All these gentlemen were untiringly active in their efforts to show everybody a good time and they were eminently successful. Our old friends, John Crossley, W. G. Badgley, W. G. Muller, Jacob Hauck, W. Brunner, and others, were also active in lending a hand. A large number of ladies and children added gaiety to the occasion. Visitors from New York were: Walter F. Sheridan, Charles Schenck, Patrick J. Smith, Harry Riedel, A. H. Langjhar, Roman J. Irwin and wife, and J. K. Allen and wife, whose home is near Newark.

The winners in the various events follow:

Baseball game, Married vs. Single men—Won by married men; umpire, W. G. Badgley; scorer, H. C. Riedel. It was a four-inning game and a home run was made by E. Hausmann in the third inning.

Standing broad jump—Harry McDonough, first.

One hundred yard dash for men under 35 years—Ernest Hausmann, first.

One hundred yard dash, men over 35 years—Harry Stein, first.

Three-legged race—G. Haden Plebarny and Harry McDonough, first.

Horticultural Society of New York.

There will be an exhibition (principally gladioli) of this society, Saturday and Sunday, August 21-22, in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden. An invitation is extended to all interested to take part in this exhibition. Schedules are now ready, and will be sent upon application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

GEORGE V. NASH, Sec'y.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.—A. H. Harrison, who has been first field deputy in this district, has resigned and will accept a position with the Kentucky Tobacco Products Co., of Louisville, Ky.

SOUTHINGTON, CONN.—Frederick N. Francis and John Olson have acquired the Francis Greenhouses on West Center street. They will be taken down and removed to the corner of Main and Bristol streets.

DETROIT, MICH.—A stranger who previously ordered a $4 bouquet by phone and presented a worthless check in payment, is being sought by the local authorities charged with swindling the Miller Floral Co. out of the flowers and $5 in cash in addition.

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

ROCHELLE, ILL.—The Rochelle Seed Co. has closed its establishment.

NILES, MICH.—John Bauman will reopen his seed warehouse in the near future.

SEEDS valued at $28,555 were imported from Germany by the United States in May, 1915.

LEXINGTON, KY.—With limit of liabilities fixed at $100,000, the name of C. S. Brent, Inc., has been changed to C. S. Brent Seed Co.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade August 11 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.00 per 100 pounds.

VISITED CHICAGO: George H. Dicks, of Cooper, Taber & Co., London, Eng.; Eltweed Pomeroy, LaGranja, Donna, Tex.; A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Jas. J. O'Brien, receiver for the Johnson Seed Co., reports liabilities $21,000, assets $5,000 to $15,000. The latter will be offered at public sale August 24.

CLARINDA, IA.—The Berry Seed Co., Inc., has increased its capital stock from $75,000 to $150,000, fully paid up. The company with its reserve now has a working capital of $200,000.

FRENCH BULBS just arrived in New York are none too bright in appearance or above grade in size. Their condition seems to indicate lack of skilled labor in assorting as well as in packing.

EXAMINATIONS for the position of aid for seed testing in the United States department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., will be held August 18. The position pays $720 per annum and is open to both men and women.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—At the annual meeting of the Springfield Seed Co., R. R. Ricketts, president; W. B. Murray, vice-president; A. S. E. Sanders, secretary and treasurer, and M. C. Baker and M. D. Ricketts, directors, were re-elected.

ON the farm of Charles Hyde of Southbridge the second crop of alfalfa grew 15 inches in the 15 days after the first crop was harvested, according to Prof. Hasket of Massachusetts Agricultural College, who kept a record of the growth for that period.

FRENCH advices of July 30 indicate an advance in Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora, 13-centimeter up to 20 francs, and 14-centimeter up to 25 francs, and add the information that Hollanders and certain American growers are asking for prices on 12-centimeter sizes.

ONION SETS at Chicago now in the crates, but a small percentage of the crops in the field, do not present an attractive appearance and their keeping qualities are certainly open to suspicion. All hands are active in the fields now lifting the crop as fast as possible. We have had five days without rain, starting again August 11.

Danish Seed Crops.

Carlos Jensen, representing L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, who recently arrived in the United States, reports that owing to drought, insect or other unfavorable conditions crops of beans, beets, cabbage, carrot, chervil, dill, parsley, peas, radish, red cabbage, salsify, celery, spinach and turnip are middling to poor. Cauliflower and brussel-sprouts give good promise. In flower seeds biennials are promising but the annuals are late owing to cold and dry weather.

German Seed Crops.

According to mail advices just received the area of biennial flower seeds is about the same as in former years and the plants are in excellent condition. The dry weather helped materially to develop the flowers and a good crop may be expected. Pansies suffered from the heat but recovered well under the recent rains and the crop will be more than middling. Larkspurs are exceptionally fine and promise a good harvest. Hollyhocks are fine and healthy so far. Asters suffered somewhat during the excessive heat, but the plants saved are full of vigor and are sure to recover under the present cool weather. Perennials are doing well, the heat having done no harm to the early and second early crops. At present delphiniums, gaillardias, lychnis and such like perennials make a good show.

The novelties will include Dimorphothea aurantiaca in many new colors, Myosotis alpestris elegantissima carminea, the darkest of the red-flowered Alpine forget-me-nots (perfectly distinct from all other red or pink varieties as proven by the color of the seed which is dark gray instead of black), and Ricinis laciniatus, a distinct new variety of medium height with deeply cut leaves, the lobes being divided nearly to the stalk, elegantly narrow, the appearance of the whole plant graceful.

Long Island Seed Crops.

Floral Park, July 28.—Cabbage seed on the Island, in so far as my crops are concerned, is somewhat above the average yield. The sample of seed is very good. The wet season we have had filled the pods out well, so that there is very little small seed. Kale is not so good as it has been for the past three seasons, due to the poor start that it got last fall. The weather was exceedingly dry at the time of sowing and the result was small stock, which was hurt by lice. The yield was about 500 pounds per acre.

A.

Mattituck, July 28.—The cabbage seed harvest is now well under way, and for the most part the yield promises to be a fair one. Some fields have been badly blighted and the result on the different varieties will be quite uneven, although the average result we think may be regarded as fairly satisfactory. It is probable that a delivery of from 60 to 75 per cent of the early varieties will be made on contracts, while the late ones are quite likely to be delivered in full or very nearly so. L.

New Jersey Seed Crops.

Pedricktown, July 28.—Our season as a whole from the time seeding started and plants were first set in the fields last spring has been very unfavorable to plant growth, to say nothing of insects which were more numerous and destructive than ever before in our experience. The rain fall has been abnormal and ruinous to crops in flat lands. The excessive moisture and hot suns have brought blight and aphid on vine crops, especially muskmelon and cucumber. The latter is practically a failure in this section. Pepper and tomato crops have been hard hit by cutworms and beetles, causing much replanting and in some instances fields are very uneven and backward. Egg plants have not escaped anything and have been attacked by aphid, root and branch. Some fields have been plowed up. Both summer and winter squash and pumpkin are backward only crop that has not suffered to any extent and is normal, with a goodly and uneven stands. Field corn is the acreage. If we can have dry weather from now on, with an occasional shower and a good warm fall, we may get a fair harvest of seed, but crops and weather conditions do not look very encouraging at present.

P.

Swedesboro, July 27.—The tomato crop does not look over 75 per cent, egg plant, 75 per cent; pepper, squash and pumpkin, 100 per cent; cucumber, cantaloupe and watermelon, 20 to 25 per cent. Corn looks good. We are having heavy fogs, which are killing the tomato vines, and the continued wet and cold weather is retarding the growth of all crops. Vine crops are in particularly bad shape; many fields will be failures. H.

"Vegetables for Profit."

The full title of this 174-page paper covered book is "How to Grow, Pack and Ship Vegetables for Profit," by Chris. Reuter, of New Orleans, La., in which he gives the result of his 36 years' experience and observations in gardening, farming, marketing, etc., in the south. The author covers a wide field very thoroughly, giving much information of value to southern truckers. The long list of contents includes: "Marketing and Distribution," "Water Supply," "Good Roads," "Shipping Facilities," "Truck Growers' Associations," "Profits and Losses," "Storing Perishable Vegetables," "Use of Hot Beds and Cold Frames," "Acres to Plant for Carload Daily," "Shipping Rules and Grades," "Packing Fruits and Vegetables," "Spraying Methods for the Vegetable Garden," "Frost Notes," etc.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Burpee's Winter-Flowering Spencer Sweet Peas

Originated at Fordhook Farms and grown at Floradale Farm. Absolutely fixed—true to color and type.

We began hybridizing the original Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas, namely, Burpee's Earliest of All (Christmas Pink), Burpee's Earliest White, Burpee's Earliest Sunbeams and Burpee's Re-selected Earliest of All with the finest varieties of the summer flowering Spencers at our FORDHOOK FARMS in 1909. It is, however, quite a slow process to thoroughly "true" and "fix" these seedlings, and it being against the principles of our business to put any novelty on the market in an unfixed condition, we are offering only two varieties at present. The stocks of these, we know to be absolutely fixed, true to color and type. After our crops are harvested we may be in a position to offer, in a limited way, several other winter-flowering novelties, particulars of which will be found in Burpee's Annual for 1916.

FORDHOOK PINK

This is the result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1909. The color is a beautiful shade of rose-pink on white ground; the coloring deepening towards the edge of the standard and wings. The flowers are of largest size, exquisitely waved and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Unsurpassed for cut flower trade. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.25; per oz., $4.00.

FORDHOOK ROSE

The result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1910. This lovely novelty is a charming shade of rosy carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long stiff stems. Awarded Certificates of Merit at the INTERNATIONAL SHOW, New York, March 20, 1915, and at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.25; per oz., $4.00.

YARRAWA

The Sweet Pea par-excellence for Winter Flowering under glass.

We were awarded Certificate of Merit for this superb novelty at the INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, in New York, March, 1914, at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March, 1915.

YARRAWA is an easy and good "doer," invariably giving excellent account of itself whether grown in pots, boxes, raised benches or solid beds.

YARRAWA has the heavy foliage and rank strong growth of the summer-flowering type and is a true winter blooming Spencer. From seed sown early in October at Fordhook Farms, the plants came into bloom December 20th and flowered profusely until May. The flowers are exquisitely waved and when well grown will average two and one-half inches in diameter, many of them being duplex, or double flowered, thus adding greatly to the general effect of the bunch. They are borne usually in fours on extra long, strong stems. The color is a most pleasing shade of bright rose pink, with light wings.

Floradale-grown seed exclusively—¼ oz., $1.00; per oz., $3.50; ¼ lb., $12.50; lb., $45.00.

PRINCESS. 20—The New Upright Pansy

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weather-proof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

- 500 Seeds 20c; 1000 Seeds 35c; 1/4 oz., $1.00; 1/2 oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50.
- 38—Mme. Perret—Red and wine shades.
- 40—Zebra—Flue striped mixture.
- 42—Adonis—Light blue, white center.
- 44—Black—Almost coal black.

seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

- 22—KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3 1/2 to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, and many others. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
- 26—KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long.
- 28—MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, large flowers of great substance.
- 30—GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES—A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich velvety colors, reds are particularly conspicuous.

NEW SEED NOW READY

All sorts and mixtures, except the new Pansy Princess, are $5.00 per oz.; $1.25 per 1/4-oz.; 5000 seeds, $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 pkts, $1.00. Please order by number.

- 48—Lord Beaconsfield—Purple shaded white.
- 50—Bronze—Beautiful bronze.
- 62—Cecily—Steel blue, margined white.
- 64—Goliath—Large curled yellow, blotched.
- 68—Emp. William—Ultramarine blue.
- 84—Superba—Orchid tints of red and wine.
- 86—Sunlight—Yellow with brown blotches.
- 88—Andromeda—Curled apple blossom.
- 90—Colossea Venosa—Light veined shadea.
- 92—Almond Blossom—Delicate rose.
- 94—Aurora—Terra cotta shades.
- 97—The above named Orchid mixed.
- 98—Indigo Blue—Deep velvety blue.
- 100—Light Blue shades.
- 104—Meteor—Bright red brown.
- 106—Pres. McKinley—Yellow, dark blotched.
- 114—Purple—Large rich deep color.
- 116—Peacock—Blue, rosy face, white edge.
- 118—Psyche—Curled white, five blotches.

- 126—Red—A collection of rich red shadea.
- 138—White—Large satiny white.
- 140—White with violet blotch.
- 142—Yellow—Large golden yellow.
- 144—Yellow with dark blotch.

RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow, and with other amounts in like proportion.

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

FARGO, N. D.—W. C. Stephens will enter the nursery business in this city.

TIPTON, IND.—Wilson Chandler, veteran nurseryman, and resident of this city for more than 40 years, is dead at the age of 75 years.

DALLAS, TEX.—The 1915 premium list for the Texas state fair to be held in this city October 16-31 is ready for distribution. The list is larger and more comprehensive than ever before.

BRAVO, MICH.—The Michigan State Horticultural Society, in conjunction with the Sangatuck Horticultural Society and the South Haven and Casco Pomological Society, held a midsummer meeting, August 12. An auto trip through the Bravo fruit district was one of the features of the programme.

MCKINNEY, TEX.—At a meeting of the McKinney Nursery Co., July 27, the capital stock was increased from $20,000 to $30,000 and officers were elected as follows: W. W. Robinson, president; F. K. McGinnis, vice-president; W. A. Dowell, second vice-president; W. E. Anderson, secretary-treasurer. Offices will be maintained in this city and at Dallas.

Florida Nursery Ruling.

The new rule concerning the certification of nurseries, which was adopted by the state plant board, has been objected to because, some nurserymen contend, it increases their burdens. The rule requires that the certification tags which are required by law shall be purchased of the state nursery inspector, and that a complete record of sales be kept and sent to the inspector.

American Pomological Society.

The thirty-fourth biennial meeting of the American Pomological Society will be held at Berkeley, Calif., September 1-3, with an elaborate programme. Prominent fruit growers from all sections of the United States will be in attendance and many from foreign countries. No Quarantine o Chestnut Nursery Stock

Following a public hearing on the subject, the federal horticultural board has determined not to quarantine chestnut nursery stock for the purpose of preventing the distribution of the chestnut bark disease. The board announced that the disease spreads slowly and opportunity has already existed for several years for the distribution of this disease in small quantities to areas where extensive new plantings of chestnut are being inaugurated. Recommendation is made that plantings of chestnut stock be carefully inspected for the presence of the disease.

The Bagatelle Rose Trials.

Despite the war the judging of new roses, which are planted in the grounds of the "Chateau de Bagatelle" in the Bois de Boulogne near Paris was made June 18. Owing to the circumstances the foreign members of the jury had sent their excuses and the judges were only Frenchmen. All the roses of German and Austrian origin had been discarded. Sixty varieties were entered in the competition and awards made as follows:

Madame Raymond Poincare, H. T., a superb rose, a glorified Mrs. Aaron Ward, originated by Jules Gravereaux, of l'Hay (Seine), gold medal.

Mme. Marcel Delanney, H. T.—strong build and growth, a blush colored large rose, originated by Leenders of Steil Tegelen, Holland, gold medal.

Queen Mary, H. T.—A Dickson & Sons, Belfast, Ireland, first class certificate.

Eticelante, H. T.—An improved Gruss an Teplitz, presented by Chamberd of Lyon, second class certificate.

Louis Sauvage, a dark garnet red multiflore climber from E. Turhat & Co., Orleans, first class certificate.

Gustave Bienvenu, a nice red Wichuriana hybrid climber, from Auguste Nonin of Chatillon sous-Bagneux, second class certificate.

Guaranteed English Roses for Germany's Customers

Well why not be frank about it. As many folks are curious to know why Bees are offering English roses here, we may as well tell you why.

Fact is, there are about three or four millions of men so busy looking after the old country, that gardens are going to be neglected to some extent. Where the husband is away, the wife doesn't feel just like laying down money for rose trees. Where the son is at the front, the old lady is too anxious to be pottering about over much, and the professional gardeners—honor to them—have enlisted to such an extent that work of an extensive description has simply got to be left over.

Now if you will just visualise the state of affairs you will see that Bees' Rose stocks, intended for a hugely increased trade in peaceful times, were likely to be somewhat too heavy in these altered circumstances, and the problem was solved by this straightforward industrial warfare against the German rose in the American market.

Of course Bees Ltd. will also find a considerable number of customers amongst those who are on the look out for a more satisfactory article. In concluding this brief word of explanation, it may be said that this export of English Roses will be maintained so long as the American and Canadian markets respond.

Tilia Vulgaris.

As a rule European trees do not grow as well in this part of the country as the native species or those from eastern Asia of the same genus. Many specimens of one of the European elms have lived in Massachusetts for a number of years, however, and have grown here into large and splendid trees, and the European beech becomes a better tree than the American beech when this is transplanted from the forest to the park. One of the European lindens is another exception to the general rule that native trees are better trees to plant than exotic trees, for the best lindens that have been planted near Boston are trees of Tilia vulgaris which is now in flower. This tree is sometimes also called T. europaea, T. intermedia and T. hybrida, and is considered by some of the best observers of European trees a natural hybrid between the two species of western Europe, T. platyphyllos and T. cordata. Although widely distributed in Europe, Tilia vulgaris appears to be much less common than either of its supposed parents, and the variation in the size, shape and color of the leaves makes its hybrid origin possible. On some individuals the lower surface of the leaves is quite green and on others it is bluish or even whitish, but leaves on different parts of the same branch differ in this respect, and on shoots produced from the bases of old trees the large leaves are quite green. It is a fine, round-headed tree with rather small, somewhat pendulous branches, and appears to have been more often planted in the neighborhood of Boston than any other linden. There are a number of large specimens on Centre street, near Orchard street, Jamaica Plain, and in Olmsted park, and large individuals can be found in all the suburbs of Boston. The young lindens which have been recently planted on Huntington avenue and on Louis Pasteur avenue in Boston are of this variety.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July 9, 1915.

European Willow Supply Cut Off.

Because the European supply of willow rods has been largely cut off, several American manufacturers of willow furniture and baskets have asked the United States department of agriculture for the addresses of persons in this country who have taken up willow growing. For some years the department has distributed willow cuttings of imported varieties with a view to developing the production of high-grade willow rods in the United States. The usual imports of willows come chiefly from England, Belgium, Holland, France and Germany, but these sources have been practically closed for several months.

One manufacturer reports that Japanese osiers are taking the market formerly supplied by Germany, at a slightly higher price. Finished willow baskets from Japan have come in where split bamboo was the only Japanese basketware on sale before the war. As a consequence of the shortage of imported osiers, it is said, the price of American willows has increased and growers here are meeting with a heavy demand for their product.

Nearly two million willow cuttings have been distributed free by the forest service of the department among state experiment stations, forest schools, and individual growers. The value of willow culture as a profitable means of utilizing overflow lands not

New York, August 10.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 10 to 35 cents; cucumbers, 25 cents to $1.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $3.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per 2 dozen crate, 50 cents to $1.50; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Celery Spraying.

An investigation of a number of complaints received by the United States department of agriculture indicates that many Florida celery growers have been careless in spraying their celery and that, as a result, quantities of copper in excess of what is believed necessary or healthful have been found on the celery when ready for consumption. The use of salts of copper in food products has been officially pronounced injurious to health, and in previous seasons the department has warned growers of the necessity of their complying with this decision.

The copper is deposited on the celery in the form of dried Bordeaux mixture (lime and copper sulphate), which is used extensively to prevent the destruction of the crop by blight. Unless the plants are sprayed at certain periods of growth with this mixture it has been found impossible to bring them to market in good condition. With proper care in spraying, however, there is no reason why any undue quantity of copper should be deposited upon the stalks. The excessive amounts of copper sometimes found on the stalks of celery are due to faulty methods of spraying, a frequent cause being the use of knapsack instead of power outfits. The knapsack sprayers do not operate at a sufficiently high pressure to make a fine spray or mist; hence, by their use the Bordeaux mixture reaches the plants in a number of fine streams, which fail to cover the leaves as does the mist or fog, but run down between the stalks. The mixture thus accumulates at the base of plants, giving a blue-green appearance to the base of the celery.

With an efficient apparatus working under high pressure—150 pounds or more—this trouble does not exist. The spraying should be stopped as soon as the leaves are thoroughly covered with the mist or fog. Thus there is no opportunity for the mixture to run down the stalks. As for the leaves, when there is an appreciable amount of copper salts upon them, they should not be eaten under any circumstances.

That growers have not been careful enough in the use of their spraying apparatus is indicated by the fact that the department has found as much as 34.9 parts of copper per million on washed inner stalks. In other cases the proportion has run as high as 17.4, 13, and 11.3 parts per million. On the other hand, in many of the specimens examined it was found that copper was not present in undue amounts, which emphasizes the point that care in spraying is all that is necessary.

As a matter of fact, if bunches of celery are broken up and the stalks thoroughly scrubbed before being eaten, practically all the copper from the Bordeaux mixture will be eliminated and there will be no danger of bad effects to the consumer. It is recommended, therefore, that this practice be followed wherever there is any reason to suspect from the color of the celery or otherwise that copper has been allowed to accumulate upon the stalks.

Potash Value in Fertilizers.

The shortage of potash which some people claimed would lead to a great crop reduction this year, has had little effect so far. The weather has been so favorable that the country at present has probably the largest crops of vegetables ever experienced. In our own vicinity (Ohio) potatoes and onions are more plentiful than for the last 15 years and prices rule low. It is extremely hard to draw fast conclusions dealing with nature.

We may now jump to the other extreme and declare potash is not needed and another year face a serious mistake. We have long ago stated that there is a certain balance between fertility, moisture and temperature—thus a rich field will get along with less rain than a poor one. This year crops had ample time to hunt for the last available element in the soil and next year it may be the opposite. However, it is safe that the importance of potash has been overestimated, especially by the people interested in its sale. Our own experience dictates that an ample supply of manure, completed by the addition of phosphates, and the land kept in correct form by lime, in most cases good farming.

We can learn a lesson from the florists under glass, who must feed their crops practically from the hand. They depend exactly upon the same elements; a soil of good body to commence with—manure, bone meal and lime. Potash is very sparingly used.

generally in the form of wood ashes. These notes are intended for soils of good body; black muck and peaty lands, also, very sandy fields do not come under this heading. On some of these types potash is the controlling factor. MARKETMAN.

DREER'S ARAUCARIAS

Only partial imports of Araucarias were received from Belgium the past spring, not sufficient to cover the usual season's requirements, and even if shipments should come through this fall (which at present does not appear likely) newly imported stock would not be available for this season's sales as it takes fully three months for this stock to become established and be fit to sell after its trip across the Atlantic.

We are pleased to state that we have a splendid stock, not sufficient to last the season out, but we offer as long as the stock lasts exceptional values as below.

Hollyhock Rust Remedies.

The potassium permanganate solution for hollyhock rust is as follows:
Potassium permanganate ... 1 part Soap 2 parts
Water 100 parts
On account of its expense this preparation can be profitably used only on greenhouse or a limited number of garden plants.

Bordeaux mixture is the preparation usually recommended for controlling this disease, but entirely satisfactory results have not always followed its use. The modified bordeaux, known as 5-5-50, is the one to be used in this case, the formula being

Copper sulphate 5 pounds
Lime 5 pounds
Water to make 50 gallons

One experienced gardener has recently reported that spraying the plants with a weak solution of Cabot's Sulpho-Naphthol will keep the rust in check.

Licorice in California.

Sutter county, California, is experimenting with licorice. The growth already made is satisfactory and a good crop is expected this year. Over 1,000,000 pounds of the root were imported in the fiscal year of 1913, in addition to a great quantity of paste.

WASHINGTON, N. J.—A greenhouse to occupy 2,400 square feet is being erected by Alonzo J. Bryan. Part of his range is being remodeled.

AURORA, ILL.—Chas. McAnniff, for the past four years in charge of the extensive farm and garden operations of the Sisters of Mercy here, resigned his position and left August 4 for Des Moines, Ia., on account of illness in his family.

Movement From City and Town to Farms.

"Back to the land" is a real movement to agriculture in this country, but it does not conform to the descriptions in newspapers and magazines, according to George K. Holmes, bureau of crop estimates. It is not a strong movement, it is not a concerted one, and it is not actuated by a single-minded purpose to promote agriculture for agriculture's sake. It is largely localized, it is a very composite movement, and it does not create in kind and characteristics the agriculture that is prevented by the migration from farms nor replace in kind and characteristics that migrated population.

One-third of the population having census occupations is agricultural, and the fraction has declined from 83 per cent in 1820 to 44 per cent in 1880, 39 per cent in 1890, 35 per cent in 1900, and 32.4 per cent in 1910, the figures for 1880 to 1910 being based on the census classification of 1900. These figures do not mean that this element of the population has absolutely declined. On the contrary, it was never so large in numbers as it is today, with probably more than 30,000,000 men, women, and children in the total of those with agricultural occupations and of their dependents.

Five main classes appear in this movement: First, there is ownership of the farm, with residence thereon throughout the year, with exclusive devotion to agriculture, and this is the chief class. Second, there is a small class, with ownership of the farm, residence throughout the year, some devotion to agriculture, and with continuance of former occupation in the nearby city or town. Third, the farm is owned for seasonal residence, with some devotion to agriculture; this movement is small, but is steadily advancing and occupying a larger and larger part of the farming area. The fourth class is a slight movement to hire farms, and the fifth is the movement of wage labor to farms almost entirely for temporary employment.

From the farms there is a migration to cities and towns, and there are small return currents, but these return currents, to the extent of their size, do not make good the losses of the farm in the characteristics required for an effective agricultural population, with noticeable exception in the cases of some classes of those who move to the farm for permanent residence and exclusive devotion to agriculture, among whom are immigrants from foreign countries.

The agricultural population is a diminishing fraction of the total population in nearly all industrial countries for the reason that agricultural labor is made more and more efficient by the use of machines and by better agricultural processes. In the United States on an average in every three families one is devoted to agriculture. To what extent a "back-to-the-land" movement is needed for economic reasons and to increase the food supply has been much discussed in these recent years of high food prices. The movement from the farms is popularly deplored and regarded as a national calamity, and the contrary aspect of the matter has hardly been noticed.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otakasa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

JACKSON & PERKINS COMPANY, NEWARK, NEW YORK. Wholesale only. Ours are "Made in America."

HYDRANGEAS, Otakasa, in bloom, from 25c to $3 each. Small plants, 3-inch pots, $5 per 100. HENRY SMITH, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Get the Kroeschell First

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."
(Signed) FRED PONTING.
July 16, 1913, Cleveland, Ohio.

Kroeschell Best of All

The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction. The Kroeschell is the best boiler we ever handled.
(Signed) CHARLES TOTTY.
Madison, N. J., June 30, 1913.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.
It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."
(Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.
July 18, 1913, New Hamburg, N. Y.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

We are heating 6,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell House Boiler you furnished last fall, and we think it can take care of more.
We maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the greenhouses and have no trouble keeping temperatures, even in the coldest weather.
The boiler does not require attention after 9:00 p. m., except in the coldest weather, when we bank at 11:00 p. m.
The boiler has given entire satisfaction. We doubt if your boiler could be improved upon; it is by far the best we have ever used, and we've been using heating systems for the past 30 years.
(Signed) THE AVENUE FLORAL CO.
E. W. Elchling, Sec'y.
New Orleans, La., March 3, 1913.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

I am heating between 17,000 and 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the No. 12 Kroeschell, maintaining 50 to 54 degrees in the greenhouses.
I have night fireman and we fire about every hour in extreme cold weather, but in ordinary weather every two or three hours, leaving the boiler run five to six hours at the last firing.
Have had three different makes of sectional cast iron boilers, but would not return to the sectional boiler under any consideration.

Plant Riot.

"Plants develop antipathies," says a scientist. Just think of a lot of enemy vegetables meeting in a beef stew!

The carrot cried, "Atrocities!"
The parsnip answered, "Slush!"
The onion poked the spinach
A hot one in the mush.
The bean deplored in Bostonese
Such awful waste of blood,
While the lentil swung, and handed
A black eye to the spud.
—Chicago American.

Somebody's Got to Pay.

"Farm products cost more than they used to," said the city chap. "Yes," replied the farmer. "When a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raising an' the entomological name of the insect that eats it, an' the pharmaceutical name of the chemical that will kill it, somebody's got to pay."

Red Spider or Rust.

"Antirrhinums kept sufficiently dry to avoid rust are carried off by red spider," the reckless grower complained to Bob Newcomb, who suggested that his subscription to THE AMERICAN FLORIST had probably lapsed or it would not be necessary to complain of such trifles.

A Landscape Architect.

A new path is being laid out between the Wild Onion school house and Hog Ford. Sidney Hocks has been engaged to open up the path by walking back and forth every day for the next few weeks.—The Hogwallow (Ky.) News.

Parsnip Wine.

Word comes from Texas that both bread and wine can be made from parsnips. But so long as the world has wine made from dandelions and bread filled with caraway seeds, what is the sense in trying to achieve anything worse?—Providence Journal.

Too Much Business.

Doctor: You must go away for a long rest.

Overworked Merchant: But, doctor, I'm too busy to go away.

Doctor: Well, then, you must stop advertising.—St. Louis Times.

Choose Your Flowers.

There are certain flowers that certain people ought to wear either in their natural or artificial guise. It is all a matter of years and height.

Daisies belong only to youth.
Banksia roses are for the debutante.
Lilacs can only be well worn by a tall figure.
Violets are charming for either youth or age.
Crocuses are pretty for the young; tulips are not.

Lilies of the valley are for youth or middle age.

Thistles are for the elderly woman with white hair.
Neither are popples for the petite, nor things that grow in bunch form.

Panicles seem fitted for riper age, though the pansy-eyed girl looks well in them.
Mignonette does not belong to youth, nor do sweet peas and daffodils belong to age.

Chrysanthemums look well on youth or maturity but do not seem to belong to age.

Roses belong to all ages but need to be chosen with care as to their color and size.

Snowdrops that would look foolish on a middle aged woman look sweet on a young debutante.

To a Spring Onion.

How innocent thy slim white grace appears!
Yet thy ingratitude I mourn with rueful pen.

I saved thy life, as, time and time again,
I checked the onslaught of the neighboring hen.

And altruistically I bought sen-sep;
Muddled my shoes to harvest thee, and then
"I pressed thee to my lips—and hence these tears!"

The Quality Place of Boston

Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.

Glad He Bought a Generator

Wish to express my complete satisfaction with your Generator which I purchased in November.

In extreme cold spell of January 14th to 14th, when the thermometer registered 6 below zero and the wind blowing at a gale of 70 miles an hour, temperature of carnation houses stayed at 52 at all times; this would not have been possible without the Generator.
(Signed) JOHN S. HASS.
Newport, Rhode Island, Jan. 19, 1914.

Kroeschell versus Cast Iron

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 square feet of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 feet. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50 degrees in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.
(Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.
Menominee, Mich.

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13th. I had a breakdown; one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13th, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15th, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers had done easier and better in every way.

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Convention Proceedings.

The thirty-first annual convention of the Society of American Florists was called to order on schedule time, August 17, at 2 p. m., in the Civic Center auditorium, San Francisco, Calif., by Vice-President Daniel MacRorie who introduced Mayor James Rolph, who then welcomed the visitors, Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., responding. There was an excellent and thoroughly representative attendance at the opening session.

The mayor in cordially welcoming the visitors, spoke of the early history of San Francisco and the civic triumphs of her citizens. He referred to the trials of the "shake and fire" period and the zeal of the inhabitants in rebuilding the beautiful and prosperous city which greets the Panama-Pacific exposition guests within her gates, representing all the civilized nations of the earth. He dwelt on the horticultural attractions of the city and the great work of the McLarens, father and son, in its adornment. His Honor's frequent reference to Vice-President MacRorie showed unmistakably the highest appreciation of the worthy Daniel's splendid missionary work for the city in connection with this and other noteworthy conventions. At the close of Mr. Gude's eloquent response, President Patrick Welch, of Boston, Mass., was introduced and assumed control of the proceedings.

Following the president's able and exhaustive address, the reports of Secretary John Young, Treasurer Wm. F. Kasting and Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the William R. Smith Memorial and tariff and legislative committee and the society's Washington representative, were presented.

In the nomination of cities for the convention of 1916, W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind., presented the claims of Houston, Tex., and was supported by Wm. F. Gude and A. T. De La Mare. John Young, Richard Vincent, Jr., and E. G. Hill spoke for New York and Wm. Allen and C. W. Ward for New Orleans. The reports of the state vice-presidents were ordered printed in the proceedings and adjournment followed the announcement of committees for convention work.

President Welch's Address.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

On any occasion the members of this society, especially those residing east of the Rockies, could have visited this city with pleasure and profit, but at this time when the great Panama-Pacific exposition is being held here, we deem ourselves most favored. It is needless for me to say that I am honored as the presiding officer of this great national society, one of the few in the United States possessing a charter issued under a special act of the national congress and signed by the president. This great opening of our convention proves that we are not an association of New Yorkers, New Englanders, Pennsylvanians or Virginians, but confirms our boast that we are a national association in representation, as well as in name. We should, and we do feel proud of our profession for the wonderful progress it has made. According to the last available census, that of 1899-1909, the sale of plants and flowers advanced from 18,758,864 in 1899 to 34,872,329 in 1909, an increase of 91 per cent. The total number of establishments in the United States in our business in 1909 was 10,614.

The leading states in value of flowers and plants are:

New York	$5,110,000
Pennsylvania	3,761,000
Illinois	3,681,000
New Jersey	2,839,000
Massachusetts	2,432,000
Ohio	2,357,000
California	1,374,000
Indiana	1,202,000
Michigan	1,132,000
Connecticut	1,042,000

Membership.—A society gains much of its influence and usefulness from a large membership, and while the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists has been adding strength to its membership, I feel we can do much more in that direction. What work can be more pleasant than the gathering together in one great organization of all our business associates in this country? Experience has shown us that what is everybody's business is not attended to by anyone, and so I say, let the increasing of the membership be an individual matter of pride to us all. We all have a high estimate of the benefits derived from membership in our society, let us mortalize it during the coming year by doubling our membership list.

This is an age of co-operation and affiliation, and what was formerly advanced individually, is now accomplished only by thorough organization. If we are to perform the mission of this society we can only be satisfied when we have joined to its ranks every man engaged in floriculture and horticulture, whether he is doing business in the North, South, East or West of this grand country of ours.

Every state in the Union in which we have members is wisely entitled to a national vice-president; wisely, I say, because every state has then at least one national officer within its limits. One of the principal duties of the vice-president is to increase the membership in his state, therefore I urge the vice-presidents during this year to conduct active, spirited campaigns for new members in our society. Very few men join an organization such as ours without being invited, and anyone on being informed of the progress which this society has made in the last 30 years will hardly hesitate to become a member when he is invited. We are proud indeed of the position of our society to-day with 2,000 members and $30,000 balance in our treasury, thanks to the wise, discreet and courageous policy displayed by our officers. I feel that with a little effort on the part of our vice-presidents especially, our membership can be materially advanced and our usefulness increased accordingly.

National Flower Show.—For the past six years we have witnessed the success of the national flower show and recognized its great value as a medium for educating the public in the love and admiration for horticulture and floral products. It has proved a safe financial enterprise for the society. To insure the continuance of the national flower show, and in keeping with the ambitions of the society, it is necessary that the best and most efficient members should be placed on that committee. There is no branch of the work which the S. A. F. has undertaken to put through, that calls for co-operation with all other interests as much as the work of the flower show committee—co-operation with the rose, carnation, sweet pea and gladiolus societies, the private gardener and all other kindred organizations. What can be accomplished through co-operation in other fields, can likewise be accomplished here. All that is required is to emphasize the benefits that are to be derived and the determination to secure them.

We have always been successful in securing the aid and support of the horticultural interests in the city where the national flower show has taken place, and that we must always continue to have, for without it we cannot have a full measure of success. There is no better agency for horticultural advancement than the one which has for its end a national flower show once in two years.

School Gardens.—I am much impressed with the work accomplished in the past by the permanent committee on school gardens under the leadership of its able and efficient chairman, Benjamin Hammond. This work is of much practical benefit and interest to the boys and girls of this nation, bringing health and strength to growing children. Its installation in school districts throughout the country would bring thrift to many a rising family. The school garden affords much pleasure and broadens mentality. The training tends to improve home surroundings. A little instruction in this line helps to form habits of thrift and economy. Every member should assist in this work with a hope that it may create an interest in your town or city and be of inestimable value to the future welfare of commercial floriculture

The Convention Gardens.—Our convention gardens of Minneapolis and Boston have undoubtedly met with the approval of the great majority of our members and the profession in general. Their value from an educational and commercial point of view is recognized by all and the question before us now is; "How can we best continue this important work, in what way and manner can we improve and advance its scope, and how can we secure for those gardens permanent existence in the cities where we establish them?"

In the way of advancement it should be made possible to improve upon the plan of the Boston garden. I should like to see those gardens designed and executed in such a way that they will represent good garden landscape effects, as well as good plant cultivation. It is necessary that all proper planting material and appurtenances known to good garden architecture be employed in the creation of those gardens, where each individual plant or group of plants would be given its proper place in the garden as a whole. This, I realize, cannot be done in one short season and would require not less than two years of planning and execution. To make this possible it would be necessary to select the convention city two years ahead of the meeting in place of one and I want to advance the question at this time, as to why this could not be done.

R. C. KERR.

Vice-President-Elect Society of American Florists.

If the convention garden work can be enlarged upon, along the lines of this suggestion, I believe that the secretary and the local authorities of the convention cities, having the execution of the plans in charge, should have the assistance of a permanent committee of the S. A. F. consisting of three members well versed and experienced in this work. They shall be appointed by the president, one for three years, one for two years and one for one year. Each president thereafter would make an appointment annually. In this connection I recommend that after the appointment of this committee, the first question they should consider would be an amendment to the constitution providing for the choice of the annual convention city two years in advance. Their recommendation should be submitted to the executive board for consideration before being acted upon by the national convention.

Legislation.—The pioneers in commercial floriculture took conditions as they found them, surmounted difficulties and conquered many obstacles. They did it in their own way without any great assistance from legislation, but that method can no longer go on. We must see to it that no hostile laws are put upon the statute books. Legislation, emanating either from congress or from any of our state legislatures, may be helpful or result in great injury unless prevented by the active work of our legislative committee.

The requirements of this committee call for a reasonable annual appropriation to be used when needed to encourage favorable and prevent hostile legislation. I would strongly recommend that the chairman be given power to secure counsel in Washington, or in any of our states, to appear before national or local legislative committees, and make known our needs whenever in his judgment this may be necessary. I would also recommend that our representative in Washington should in the future be given the same privilege that is accorded all other executive members, namely, the right to vote on all questions that may be brought up for adjustment before the board of directors at the annual meeting. At present he is required to attend all meetings of this board but is denied the right to vote, which is depriving the society of the benefits that would accrue from the exercise of this privilege by a member whose judgment and experience is of great value to the society.

Election of Directors.—The constitution and by-laws under which we now work is practically as adopted at a meeting of the incorporators of the society in Washington in 1902, immediately after our charter had been signed by the late President McKinley. I am satisfied from observation and experience in its workings that the election of two members of the board of directors annually, in place of their appointment by the president, would result in creating a much livelier interest in the annual convention, bringing the work of the society nearer to the members and relieving the future presidents of the difficulty of making these selections. Ex-President Frank R. Pierson in his address at Rochester, N. Y., in 1910, had the same idea in mind when he said, "I am firmly of the opinion that we would more nearly follow out the ideas of democratic government by the election rather than the appointment of directors."

The changes which have taken place in the make-up of our board of directors within the past two years make it necessary that the society itself should elect two directors annually, especially since the privilege is extended to local clubs and the national organizations having one hundred S. A. F. members to elect one. I would recommend that this society in convention authorize the amendment of the constitution so that hereafter two members shall be elected to the board of directors at our annual convention.

Co-operation.—The parent society has ever been renowned for her many activities in behalf of advanced horticulture. It has played an important role with patience, zeal and determination, to the end that co-operation between the allied societies should be a fitting and notable achievement. To the committee comprising Theodore Wirth, George Asmus and William F. Kasting, we owe a debt of gratitude for their labor, loyalty, unflinching patience and persistence.

The first practical step towards real affiliation with the kindred societies and florists' clubs throughout the country was passed at the last convention in Boston. Under the terms of this amendment the New York, Boston and Philadelphia florists' clubs, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society are now represented on the board of directors by their presidents. This increase in the board ought to prove of great value to this society and contribute much toward a liberal policy between the clubs and the parent society.

The wisdom and success of having the various minor organizations made a sectional portion of the S. A. F. & O. H. is no better exemplified than in the instance of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and the consequent effects upon the parent body. This organization has grown immensely within the past four years. Approximately 235 firms have joined the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and resultantly members of these firms are also members of our national society. The benefits from this important branch of the flower business are not retained by the retailer alone, but are passed on through the various branches to the humblest employe of the grower. This certainly makes it worth while for every retailer of standing to join and receive the benefits of its workings and also to assist the national association which has helped materially in its formation.

We ought to make every effort to induce other clubs throughout the country to become interested in this movement. I would recommend that the constitution be amended so that the members before taking their seat in the board of directors have the consent of the majority of the club or society they represent.

Publicity.—It is needless to point out the value of publicity for the dissemination of proper knowledge and educating the public in the more general use of horticultural products. It is necessary for the society to organize a "Publicity Bureau" whose work would be along the lines of a campaign, directed primarily for the annual increase of the sale of flowers, plants and plant products, through new and varied channels and also to take means to prevent any society, corporation or individual from decrying the use of these products for special occasions. We very often learn of repeated attempts made to discourage the use of our products. Such cases should be taken up by the publicity bureau and every means possible taken to offset the effects of such adverse influences.

I am very much in favor of a standing committee of five members, whose duty shall be to co-operate with the retailers, wholesalers and producers so that our business shall be brought before the public in a much more favorable and effective light than it has been in the past. We should have recourse to the leading daily papers throughout the country, which I believe will gladly publish from time to time articles on commercial floriculture. This will have a wonderful effect for it will bring before the American people the merits of our business and the enjoyment derived from the use of our products.

The hour has come when we should give this question our best thought and action. I think greater benefits can be secured from aggressive work of this nature than any we can engage in. I feel that the results would justify a reasonable expenditure annually for the maintenance of such a committee.

National Credit and Collection Department.—I am forcibly reminded by a large number of the members of our society of the pressing necessity for creating a national bureau of credits, a central office where credit information can be kept and references obtained. The commercial interests of our business have grown to such an extent during the past 15 years as to call for a more up-to-date standard of business practice.

There ought not to be any objection to such a movement as it is highly probable that it would do a great deal of good and there is but little danger that it would do any harm. It should, however, be carefully guarded so that it could be used mutually by both debtor and creditor. The slightest intimation that a creditor was benefiting to any extent at the expense of the debtor would create dissatisfaction and lead to serious results. The preservation of the rights of commercial life, liberty and the pursuit of trade should be upheld and not interfered with. It is apparent, however, that ways and means should be considered and adopted by which the financial standing, honesty and integrity of the commercial florists could be measured, determined and circulated among our members to the end that honest, upright, just and creditable business men may be singled out from the unjust and unscrupulous operators.

I regard this problem a fundamental one, and believe it should be considered and adopted only after a very careful study. I would suggest the appointment of a committee of nine members to be selected from the large floral centers of the country, to consider this subject and report at the meeting of the board of directors in 1916.

American Products.—There is a constantly growing sentiment in this country among those who have given the subject study that the time has now arrived when a large part if not the whole of the horticultural products which have been grown and imported from Europe should be grown in this country. This is something I have had in mind for some time past. We should not seek to take advantage of the unfortunate conditions existing in Europe at the present time, and this society will do its part toward helping to maintain the commercial honor of the United States so that we shall emerge from this war period with the love and admiration of all nations concerned. Our climate, soil and other conditions are, according to our best authorities, well adapted for the growth of palms, bulbs, nursery stock, etc., which now go to make a total of imports of over $2,000,000 annually.

I recommend that a permanent committee of three be appointed to study this problem and seek the advice and counsel of the United States department of agriculture, and devise ways and means by which those interested may be encouraged and assisted in taking up this work which ought to bring about good results, and report annually to the society in convention.

Voting.—Experience has taught us that our present system of electing officers at our annual convention occupies too much time. It is wrong to ask a man to stand in line for half an hour and some times longer before he can cast a ballot for the choice of officers.

As a remedy for this condition I would suggest that a list of the members be alphabetically arranged in four books:

Book No. 1 to include all names beginning with the letter "A" and ending with the letter "D."

Book No. 2 to include all names of members beginning with the letter "E" and ending with the letter "K."

Book No. 3 to include all names beginning with the letter "L" and ending with the letter "R."

Book No. 4 to include all names beginning with the letter "S" and ending with the letter "Z."

It will be necessary that one teller for each book be appointed to check names, also one to receive the ballots. This calls for an amendment of our by-laws which I hope will be passed and made effective at the opening session of our next annual convention.

In Conclusion.—The trade and commerce in seeds, plants and flowers are of such national magnitude and importance that they are justly classed among the great business interests in this country. There is no more charming art and occupation than the cultivation of flowers, plants and fruit-bearing trees; there is no calling more conducive to human welfare than that of the horticulturist. Today let us applaud the work of our chosen officers for what they have done in the past, but let us make this applause count by seeing that the good work continues. Let us see to it, that the society is built up, its influence increased by the combined efforts and with the co-operation and assistance of all kindred organizations, so that the next generation can look with pride on the work accomplished and take for their motto the inspiring words of Edward Everett Hale, "Look up and not down, look out and not in, look forward and not back and lend a hand."

Secretary Young's Report.

IMPROVED TRADE CONDITIONS ANTICIPATED.

At the time of our last convention the florist trade, in common with many other industries, was feeling the effect of conditions brought about by the regrettable war precipitated in Europe, and while these conditions have not improved by any means, we have become somewhat accustomed to them, and we should congratulate ourselves that business has not been much worse. Some localities have felt the depression more than others, while in other communities business has been near to the normal point. The cut flower section has felt the decline perhaps more keenly than other sections of the business, but preparations for another season have been pushed along in an atmosphere of cheerfulness, with the hope that the business horizon will clear before the end of the year.

EXHIBITION.

Our trade exhibition has suffered this year from causes beyond control. The florists' supply trade has been unable to make the usual showing, for the reason that imported goods are just now a very poor possibility, and our own manufacturers have not had time to adjust themselves to circumstances, at least as far as the production of novelties in various lines is concerned. Distance, and cost of transportation to San Francisco are other factors which have tended to cut down our exhibits. Notwithstanding, our trade exhibition is this year most creditable, and the interest it has provoked quite as strong as at previous conventions.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING.

A meeting of the executive board of the society was held at Chicago, March 1-2, 1915. This was the first meeting of the board of directors under the new affiliation plan and it was decided to make no change in the quorum number, notwithstanding the fact that the board comprised 17 members.

A request from the Chrysanthemum Society of America that the S. A. F.

and O. H. award its silver and bronze medals at the annual exhibition of the chrysanthemum society, to be held in conjunction with the exhibition of the Cleveland Florists' Club, next November, and similar medals at the exhibition of chrysanthemums, to be held under the auspices of the C. S. A., at the Panama-Pacific exposition, San Francisco, in the fall, promoted by the gardeners and florists of the Pacific coast, was referred to the national flower show committee with the recommendation that the request be granted. It was voted that it was the sense of the board that the national flower show committee be authorized to offer medals only.

Owing to existing conditions in the national capital, the Wm. R. Smith Memorial committee reported it has been more or less handicapped with the work on this project. Quite a nice sum has been deposited with a trust company and bearing interest, and a few projects had been considered, all of which would be dealt with later. Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee, has hinted that among the forms under consideration which the memorial might take was an educational garden, and that some assistance in this direction would probably be obtained from congress.

During the session of the executive board, a number of matters of importance were considered and referred to proper committees, to be reported upon at the annual convention.

MEMBERSHIP.

The bulk of our increase in membership is provided by California and the Pacific coast states. While it is not unusual for the society to experience a large influx of members from a convention city and nearby territory, the business standing of those initiated this year is extraordinarily high in the aggregate, and your secretary hopes this means that the names of these new members will long remain on our membership roll, reminding us that their interest in the society and its work was not merely of a "passing" character.

Since our last convention one or more names for membership have been sent in by the following: Vice-President Daniel MacRorie, 102; Florists' Telegraph Delivery, 24; State Vice-president E. T. Mische, 11; Director J. J. Hess, 3; State Vice-president J. W. Duncan, 3; President Patrick Welch, 2; State Vice-president J. F. Huss, 2; State Vice-president Harry S. Betz, 2; Florists' Hail Association, 2; A. Farenwald, 1; J. H. Dick, 1; L. M. Gage, 1; F. H. Holton, 1.

NECROLOGY.

Since the last convention we have lost the following members through death:

P. R. Quinlin, August 27, 1914.
 Peter Bohlender, September 8, 1914.
 W. L. Palinsky, October 10, 1914.
 Godfrey Aschmann, October 28, 1914.
 J. B. Steussy, September 2, 1914.
 D. Y. Mellis, November 21, 1914.
 John Monson, December 29, 1914.
 Richard Groves, January 30, 1915.
 Wm. B. Patterson, March 16, 1915.
 H. Frank Darrow, February 21, 1915.
 John Zech, April 29, 1915.
 Professor J. F. Cowell, May 1, 1915.
 Simon Rodh, April 19, 1915.
 E. J. Welch, Jr., May 17, 1915.
 Chas. F. Krueger, June 4, 1915.
 Samuel Thorne, July, 1915.

FOURTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

A meeting of the national flower show committee, held at Chicago, March 1-2, and presided over by chairman George Asmus, was attended by all members of the committee. It is hardly necessary to touch upon all of the details of the work that have been disposed of by this committee so successfully. The premium list is well in hand and a complete list of plants and flowers for which awards will be made will be issued in the near future. Convention hall, which has been secured for the exhibition on very advantageous terms, is well arranged for the purpose, and the Fourth National Flower Show, Philadelphia, Pa., March 25 to April 2, promises to surpass any previous exhibition of its kind.

Treasurer Kasting's Report.

The report of Treasurer William F. Kasting was presented and made a part of the record. The financial affairs of the society were shown to be in excellent condition. A summary of the report follows:

PERMANENT FUND.

The balance on hand January 1, 1915, was $17,815.19; total receipts to August 1 were $1,192.31, making a total of $19,007.50.

GENERAL FUND.

The balance on hand January 1 was $14,376.48; the receipts to August 1 were $2,732.00, while disbursements to the same date amounted to $5,347.28, leaving a balance in the general fund of $11,761.20.

SPECIAL FUND.

The balance on hand in the special fund January 1, 1915, amounted to $1,589.82, to which interests for the first six months in the year amounting to $31.94 were added, bringing the total in this fund to $1,621.76.

As stated in Treasurer Kasting's report these amounts have been invested as follows: Dunkelberg Bond & Mortgage, Fort Wayne, Ind., $5,000; City and Suburban Realty Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., $1,500; deposited in banks, $12,507.50. Total, $32,390.46.

Washington Representative's Report.

The past year has been one of watchful waiting rather than strenuous action in the national capital, so far as the interests of our society are concerned. The demands on your representative there have not been excessive, from which I assume that the florists of the country have no fault to find with the laws enacted by congress during the year.

In the early part of the winter a communication was received by your representative, in which objection was raised to the classification of express rates on pot plants and plants not in pots. Another communication was received in relation to bills introduced in the state legislatures, providing for the inspection and regulation of steam boilers. Both of these communications were referred to the committee on legislation and will, doubtless, be dealt with by that committee in its annual report.

The most important event of the year, both locally and nationally, was the formal dedication of the rose gardens at Arlington Farms, June 2, 1915. About 50 florists came from different cities, as far away as Boston, to be present at the ceremonies. A meeting of the American Rose Society was called in the rooms of the American Institute of Banking, Washington, D. C., where the entire party met, on the date mentioned, at one o'clock p. m. After this meeting, the party went in automobiles to the Arlington Farms, three miles away, in a down-pour of rain. While the gardens were in full bloom and showed up well, the drenching rainstorm, which had lasted three days, had a very depressing effect on the general beauty of the gardens. After viewing the gardens, the party returned to the city, where the formal dedication took place. Interesting addresses were made at the dedication by officers of the national government, the president of the American Rose Society, and others.

After the dedicatory exercises had been concluded, the party went by automobiles to Twin Oaks, the home of Mrs. Charles J. Bell daughter of the late Mrs. Gardner G. Hubbard, donor of the Gardner Hubbard memorial medal. Mrs. Bell had extended a kind invitation to the party to inspect her rose gardens. The party was most cordially received by Mrs. Bell. After the inspection of Mrs. Bell's gardens, refreshments were served. An hour and a half was pleasantly and profitably spent at this beautiful home, after which the party returned to the city, and left for their homes. The affair was voted a big success and one of the most interesting events in the annals of floriculture and horticulture.

I am pleased to state that the pride taken in the S. A. F. and O. H. by the florists of the national capital, is surpassed by no other city in the Union, and is attested by the presence here today of nearly a dozen members of this society, from Washington, 3,000 miles away.

WM. F. GUDE.

Tariff and Legislation Committee.

Perhaps the most important action your committee was called upon to take, was in reference to the fall shipments of azaleas and other Belgian plants, which are at present under embargo by the British authorities. These plants are exclusively of Belgian origin and production and since the enemies of Great Britain do not get any revenue or benefit from their sale, it was felt that the embargo—while not helping the British forces—would work considerable harm to the Belgian shippers and the American importing florists.

This matter was taken up with our state department by request of Mc-

GIANT REDWOODS (SEQUOIA SEMPERVIRENS) IN HUMBOLDT COUNTY, CALIF.

C. W. Ward and Party at the Base.

BEDDING IN INDIANAPOLIS PARKS, 1914.

Hutchison & Co., New York. The United States trade advisers informed us how to proceed in the matter of securing permits for the importation of azaleas, etc., from the British authorities, and we have good reasons for believing that those shipments will arrive this fall on schedule time. Definite information will be given in the trade papers as soon as an official decision is rendered by the British authorities.

Your committee had but two propositions referred to it during the past year. One of these propositions was brought up by J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who complained of the classifications of express rates in reference to plants shipped in pots and plants shipped out of pots, insisting that there should be a lower rating on plants shipped in pots or tubs. The matter was promptly taken up with the interstate commerce commission, and the commission, in turn, corresponded with the several transportation companies, requesting an expression of their views. After receiving all the data that could be reasonably obtained, including copies of the correspondence between the interstate commerce commission and the express companies, your committee reached the conclusion that, as the express companies seemed to be losing money on the present rates, it was an inopportune time to attempt to bring about a reduction of our rates. In other words, your committee felt that it would be the part of wisdom to "let well enough alone," that an agitation of this matter at this time might result in our rates being raised, rather than lowered, under the authority given the interstate commerce commission by congress, in March last, to revise or change the express rates. Subsequently, your committee received notice from the interstate commerce commission that a hearing would be given on the question of express rates, May 26, 1915. Feeling that the florists should be represented, your committee had A. Leftwich Sinclair, an attorney, appear at this hearing, as counsel for our society.

In his reports, attached hereto, Mr. Sinclair explains the purpose and scope of the hearings attended by him and points out the procedure which will have to be followed, if our society wishes to obtain a formal hearing on the question of the rating on plants. Mr. Sinclair also suggests that, before filing the necessary petition with the interstate commerce commission, our society should arrange for a conference with the representatives of the various express companies with a view to an amicable adjustment of this matter.

The other question referred to your committee relating to legislation was concerning boiler inspection. It appears that, from time to time, numerous bills are introduced in the state legislatures to require the inspection and regulation of boilers. It has been suggested that, within the next year or so, there will probably be a large number of bills of this character introduced in the state legislatures, and that our society should provide machinery by which we can resist the passage of legislation which would work a hardship on our industry.

As illustrating the vicious character of some of these bills, your committee is informed that, only a short time ago, there was introduced, in the legislature of the state of Pennsylvania a bill requiring every owner of a low pressure heating boiler to pay $5 a year for the inspection of that boiler, if his boiler should be over four foot of grate area and carry over ten pounds of pressure. Had that bill passed, every florist in the state of Pennsylvania would have been obliged to pay to that state the sum of $5 a year, or more, depending on the number of boilers in use. Your committee is also informed that there are statutes in force in several of the states which provide that every steam boiler carrying over ten pounds of steam pressure must be in charge of a licensed engineer, and that a movement is on foot looking to the enactment of similar laws throughout the country.

All such propositions, in the opinion of your committee, should be fought by our society with all the force at its command. It is, therefore, recommended that the scope of your committee be enlarged, without delay, so that the committee can keep in touch with proceedings of the state legislatures, as well as those of congress, and be prepared to resist the passage of all bills found to be detrimental to the members of our society.

If the foregoing recommendation of your committee is adopted, your committee should be authorized to arrange for a reporting service of some kind, and to employ counsel to represent the society, whenever in the judgment of your committee the services of counsel are required.

Smith Memorial Committee Report.

On account of the general depression in business all over the United States, and further on account of various other disturbances throughout the world, which affect us generally, the memorial committee thought best not to push the project during the past year. The following statement shows the money collected to date, received since last meeting:

Your committee feels hopeful of receiving some goodly sums from influential citizens and liberal support from Congress. Your committee has not decided what form of a memorial to suggest, as their decision will no doubt be largely governed by the amount of subscriptions collected and government influence that they may be able to secure.

Report of W. E. Britton, Entomologist.CHRYSANTHEMUM PESTS.

All who have been troubled by the chrysanthemum leaf miner or marguerite fly, Phytomyza chrysanthemi Kowarz, should obtain Bulletin No. 157 of the Massachusetts agricultural experiment station, Amherst, issued recently.

For the past 25 years this insect has caused damage to composite plants in the northern states. The adult is a two-winged fly which lays an egg in an incision just under the epidermis of the leaf. This egg hatches in five days and the larva mines in the parenchyma of the leaf for about two weeks, when it transforms to the pupa stage inside the leaf. Two weeks later the adult emerges. There are 10 generations each year. Spraying the plants with nicotine solution is a remedy. If "Black Leaf 40" is the kind used it should be diluted at the rate of about one part in 400 parts of water or, roughly, two teaspoonfuls in a gallon.

Another chrysanthemum pest new to our continent is the chrysanthemum midge, a European insect which has recently caused much damage in some large commercial greenhouses in Michigan. It causes a swelling on the main stem near the surface of the ground, galls or enlargements on the midribs of the leaves, and close ill-shaped heads which ruin the plant for commercial purposes. It will probably be difficult to control this pest.

Further injury to chrysanthemums may be here recorded by a mite, Tarsonemus pallidus Banks, mentioned in my report of last year. This time it occurred in October in a commercial greenhouse at Hartford, Conn., and many of the petals had withered and turned brown.

NEW PINE TREE PEST.

During the past year one of the destructive European sawflies Diprion (Lophyrus) simile Hartig, has been found in this country where it has apparently become established. The insect passes the winter in its cocoons on or under leaves and rubbish near the ground. There are apparently three broods each year in Connecticut, the cocoons of the first and second broods often being formed on the twigs. The larvæ are about an inch long, greenish yellow with brown markings, and have the appearance characteristic of sawfly larvæ. They feed upon the needles of several species of pine, including the white pine, Austrian pine, Pinus densiflora, P. excelsa and P. flexilis. It will doubtless be found to attack other species as well.

The eggs are laid in longitudinal incisions in the needles and are placed end to end. The cocoons are brown, oval bodies about three-eighths of an inch long and of a tough, leathery texture. The adults have a wing-spread of from about half an inch in the male to three-fourths of an inch in the female. The male is black, but the female has yellow thorax and abdomen. Though this insect occurs in four towns in Connecticut it will probably be found in other states. Just how it was brought to this country is not known, but probably cocoons came over on nursery stock and either passed the inspectors or perhaps came in before the inspection system was established. Parasites of this sawfly have been observed in Connecticut. Spraying the pine trees with lead arsenate (3 lbs. in 50 gallons of water) is the best remedy. A preliminary illustrated account of this insect may be found in the Journal of Economic Entomology, Vol. 8, pages 379, June, 1915.

JUNIPER WEB WORM.

Several samples have been received by the writer of juniper twigs webbed together by this insect. On rearing the adult it proved to be Dichromerus mar- ginellus Fabr. Dr. E. P. Felt* has recorded this insect from Long Island and from the Hudson river valley in New York state. This is also a European species which has appeared in the United States during the past few years. The real damage from it will be in ornamental plantings in parks and on private grounds, and doubtless may be prevented by a thorough spraying of lead arsenate early in spring and again late in summer.

School Gardens Committee Report.

Our country is so large that to nationalize any movement is no small work, and to hold the interest of each section in a particular work or object is difficult, but one effort to stir up common interest certainly meets with a well nigh universal appreciation, and that is "School Gardening." The florists of this country are in a trade that helps greatly to develop beauty all around, and in the efforts made by the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists to stimulate interest in some practical labor by teaching in our schools a little gardening and floriculture. The answers come from many points, which shows without question that the effort is having a helpful result.

This season our letter sent to every school board or school superintendent where is located a member of the S. A. F. and to each and every state commissioner of education, had, as a leading picture, the beautiful statue and surroundings of Washington in the Grand avenue park at Milwaukee. This picture with its spirit of emulation represented by the mother and her boy as she directs his attention to Washington as his pattern, certainly seemed to strike a chord of admiration.

In one place where efforts are made to have the children interested in gardening the report comes—"the children want flower seeds, and the flower beds wherever started set an example. The demand comes for geraniums, coleus, dahlias and roses." The newspapers of the country are paying more and more heed to this flower gardening, and small yards of the cities show the effect.

Schools can never take the place of parental oversight and encouragement. In one dark back yard overshadowed by other buildings two boys came to invite us "to come see our garden." Sure enough those youngsters dug up a bit of waste ground, planted it, weeded and watered the 10 or 12 feet square which look like an irrigated patch near Denver, Colo., so prolific it was, and those lads were pleased. This kind of work aids to develop American citizens of character. In many villages and small towns improvement societies exist, and these societies are usually excellent supporters of the florist's craft directly and indirectly. By small prizes well distributed it encourages the children to keep up the home yards.

In California this year, Superintendent of Schools Thomas L. Heaton of San Francisco has been busy in his efforts for a school garden exhibit at the exposition. In San Diego and Los Angeles these cities of the Pacific coast stand out boldly in the common efforts of the school authorities to fix up and look nice, and to encourage the children gardening at home. This year in Los Angeles (the "City of the Angels") we learn in a letter recently received from Morris M. Rathbun that cash prizes ranging from five dollars ($5.00) to the individual student home gardener to five hundred dollars ($500.00) for the school making the best showing in the exposition year in 1915 were distributed. This work cleaned up in many places neglected lots, turning waste places into beauty spots. Los Angeles to do this work well employed an expert teacher florist, and this work and its effects is seen in many of the cities and towns of the Pacific coast. At Portland, Ore., work of this kind is being carried on under the direction of a landscape artist from Chicago, who is especially employed to give instruction in this line.

In every state in the American Union this good work is being carried on. School gardening has its greatest application in our great cities. School gardening aims to take hold and interest the city boys. At a flower show held in New York in the Museum of Natural History, the school children came in classes to view the exhibits. They were children born in congested sections of New York and some of them never had been in the country, and the wonder at seeing so many flowers was expressed without reserve.

In the city of Philadelphia the school garden work is well organized, and the back yards of the thousands of little houses reveal a taste and industry of great importance to any one. No one city probably is doing more by organized effort to make up home and public gardening instruction than is Toronto, Ontario. Here is a climate the opposite in its make-up to that of southern California, yet the same appreciation of the beautiful and the value of economic thrift is evidenced in both sections. Down the Ohio river, city after city, its entire length, this school gardening and home gardening is being carried on. Evansville, Ind., the home of our old friend and pioneer member of the society, J. D. Carmody, has encouraged this sort of work and lately given valuable land for garden and park use. This illustration serves simply to show the interest in this great work. It is one that grows, and no craft can do more to encourage it and profit by it than the florists of America, and in so doing the homes of the people of America are made the more beautiful.

President's Reception.

The reception to President Welch at the St. Francis hotel on the evening of the opening day was a brilliant affair, the hall being handsomely decorated for the occasion. The function was of a strictly informal nature and was largely attended by the delegates and their ladies. Excellent music added to the pleasure of the evening, refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

Wednesday's Proceedings.

At the morning session of the second day's proceedings, the result of the 1916 convention city was announced as follows: Houston, 105; New York, 28; New Orleans, 12.

Resolutions of sympathy with Edwin Lonsdale in his illness at Los Angeles and Wallace R. Pierson, who had to undergo a serious operation soon after his arrival at San Francisco, were adopted. Mr. Pierson's illness continued all the way from Chicago, appendicitis developing on his arrival in the convention city. A telegram from J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, congratulating the society on its thirty-first annual convention in San Francisco was read and received with applause. Addresses were made by Wm. F. Kasting and Irwin Bertermann.

Chairman George Asmus of the national flower show committee presented the report of that body. The report of the committee on president's address was also presented, all of the recommendations of the latter being adopted.

National Flower Show Committee Report.

Since making my last report to the convention in Boston a year ago, matters pertaining to the show in Philadelphia next spring have progressed rapidly and favorably. At a meeting held in Philadelphia last November, the general local organization work was drafted and chairman of committees carefully selected. They are as follows:

Committee on press, publicity and advertising, W. F. Therkildson.

Committee on securing exhibits, William Kleinheinz.

Committee on decorations, John Harbermehl.

Committee on special premiums, Wm. F. Craig.

Committee on special features, Chas. Grakelow.

Committee on lease and contracts, A. Farenwald.

Committee on music, Leo Niessen.

Committee on printing, S. S. Pennock.

Committee on concessions, Henry F. Michell.

Committee on trade tickets, E. J. Fancourt.

Committee on lectures, J. Otto Thilow.

Bureau of information, Frederick Cowperthwaite.

Secretary and treasurer, A. A. Nlesen.

Committee-at-large, George Burton, Louis Burk, Robert Craig.

These gentlemen were appointed from among the craft in Philadelphia with others to serve on these committees. The chairmen of these committees form what is known as a local executive committee to carry out in detail the work of the show. Such committees have met from time to time, about once a month, and are enthusiastic about the coming exhibition. Through the generosity of the H. F. Michell Co., Inc., and H. A. Dreer, Inc., the grass plots in front of the big Convention hall, where the show is to be held, have been beautifully planted and serve as a beautiful advance guard of what will happen in the near future in the building. There recently appeared in the Philadelphia Record about a half page, showing the building, in front and grounds, as treated by the above mentioned firms. This shows the good work that is being done by the publicity bureau of which W. F. Therkildson is the head.

I also wish to mention the good work of Adolph Farenwald and the committee on lease and contracts. By their earnest efforts the rental for this mammoth building has been secured at the low rate of $100 per day. We have been able to secure the co-operation of the American Carnation Society. This being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of that society, the celebration of same will be characterized by a silver jubilee to be held at Philadelphia in connection with the show. Their premium list has been prepared by them and, underwritten by the society, will be published in the next edition of the "Premium List" which will be sent out some time this fall. By this time the American Rose Society will have their list completed, and same will also be a part of the next schedule.

The plant growers, of whom there are so many in the vicinity of Philadelphia, are already making preparations. The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society have also joined hands and have appointed a committee of three to work in conjunction and act as part of the local executive committee. The guarantee fund of $10,000 has been completed and contains the usual country-wide list of guarantors. William P. Craig, chairman of committee on special premiums, reports a very large list of donors and expects to more than double what he now has in the near future. The total premium list, as offered, is $15,000, the largest sum ever offered in this country before at a flower show.

The size of the building, which will enable the show to be arranged on one floor, should work out very favorably, and then the large balcony with its great seating capacity will prove to be a part of the show that will appeal to the public as it seems to delight the patrons to sit among the flowers and listen to the music.

I will conclude my report by saying that in my estimation the coming exhibition in Philadelphia will, from all standpoints, surpass all previous national flower shows and I have no doubts about the financial success. The annual convention of the S. A. F. not being held in the East this year will no doubt help to sell space at the national flower show as the records of previous exhibitions show that the attendance by the trade at the past exhibitions has been greater than at the convention, and it is at a season of the year when the buyer is usually in the market for his spring or Easter business.

Nomination of Officers.

Nominations for officers were made at the morning session, Wednesday, August 18, and resulted in the naming of Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco, for president; Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., for vice-president; John Young, New York, and John R. Fotheringham, San Francisco, for secretary, and Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y., for treasurer.

National Publicity Committee Report.

National publicity is a much talked of problem hard to solve, yet with wonderful possibilities and a great future, particularly in the field of the florists' profession. As a sequence to the talk of Philip Breitmeyer during the board of directors' meeting at Chicago, March 2, our president appointed the following gentlemen, George Burton, Irwin Bertermann and W. F. Kasting as a committee to deal with the problem. Little has been done further than making the following report which we trust may have a stimulating effect in an undertaking the national society stands much in need of.

Large appropriations for the furtherance of publicity throughout the land are impractical from a financial standpoint, and unless carefully safeguarded and given detail attention, there is much liability that a large percentage of the same be wasted. Advertising experts of the larger cities have in several instances made suggestions to prominent members of the S. A. F. in regard to national publicity. In the main, their ideas were practical and would no doubt bring results, but it was also very evident that the cost of the same was at no time in accord with the measure of direct returns receivable by the florist fraternity. In fact, one prominent expert had it that $25,000 would be a very reasonable sum with which to start in the city of New York. This, of course, sounds well and no doubt would be of immense value, but at the same time it would be impossible to carry such a project forward through the country.

One of the self-evident features that has brought itself clearly to the front in the past few years is the following: That the great national flower shows given in larger centers, the extensive advertising campaigns of the larger individual firms of the country and the national publicity campaign of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery show that there is a great wealth of strength in the S. A. F. and O. H. itself, and that we have a strong advertising feature to stand on within our organization. There are approximately 2,000 of the better florists throughout the country closely united, willing and only waiting the proper call to send forth the proper issues before the public. It is true that one florist hasn't the strength in the smallest fraction of a large newspaper, but one individual florist has within himself the power to carry forward a campaign which will interest thousands of people. The florists of a large city like Chicago alone, if properly united on a single subject, can place the same before its immense population. This is shown in the newspaper features of united florist advertising in Detroit, Cleveland and Philadelphia newspapers.

It is the firm belief of this committee that if any special line of advertising be taken up and set before the members of this organization in the proper manner that the advertising will be carried throughout the breadth of the country and the expense from the parent source be entirely within the reasonable bounds to be expected. A few hundred dollars expended by this organization, or obtained collectively from individuals, in properly placing an outline before its members and in aiding them to carry it out will within a reasonable time make its appearance as a national message to the flower buying public. This has been clearly demonstrated through the efforts of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. Each individual member using feature advertising on his letter heads, on a majority of one million folders or in his advertising space in newspapers and periodicals. This same plan can easily be carried forward as there is not a member of you who is not willing to aid the parent association and himself in such a manner. The sum of money expended at the start, whether it be $1,000 or $5,000, will easily return to the source in the way of strength and influence or in membership itself, for every one connected will be pleased with the results and satisfied with the good accomplished.

We say confidentially that if the Society of American Florists wants its members to sell a particular flower next Christmas, or if it wants a certain line featured, or if it has any publicity of any special nature in mind, that it can safely do so through its membership and at a cost that is less than one-twentieth of what would be charged by any professionals who are interested in doing the work without the aid of 2,000 florists themselves. It did not take long for Madame Russell rose to be known generally. Why? Because thousands of florists boosted it. Neither would it take long for any worthy publicity to reach the public if handled along the same lines.

The coming great Philadelphia show will in itself add a stimulus to the local flower business and with an advertising secretary of the S. A. F. acting with its members themselves, publicity space could be procured for a few dollars that could not be had for a larger sum in a direct manner. Many new, also immensely worthy, exhibits will be shown there and great good will come to this organization and financial benefit to the trade if this be used as a small instance, by every florist in his dealing with the public.

IRWIN BERTERMANN,
GEORGE BURTON,
WM. F. KASTING.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers was held Thursday morning and resulted in the selection of Daniel MacRorie as president and R. C. Kerr as vice-president. John Young was re-elected secretary, J. R. Fotheringham withdrawing in his favor, and Wm. F. Kasting was re-elected treasurer.

Florists' Hail Association.

At the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association of America, held Thursday morning, August 19, the reports of the officers showed the affairs of the association to be in excellent shape, with membership numbering over 1,600. The present officers were re-elected and C. L. Washburn, Fred Burki and Chas. Mueller were elected to the board of directors.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association held its annual meeting, Wednesday morning, August 18, Vice-President Wm. F. Gude presiding in the absence of President Bertermann, and the report of Secretary Pochelon was read by Douglas A. Brown, secretary pro tem. The present officers were all re-elected to serve for the ensuing year, and F. D. Pelicano, San Francisco, A. Lange, Chicago, and Frank Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo., were chosen to succeed the retiring members of the executive committee.

The Trade Exhibition.

The trade exhibition was small in comparison with previous years, the war in Europe affecting the production and importation of novelties, and distance and cost of transportation to San Francisco, proving factors that tended to cut down the number of exhibits. The displays were, however, most creditable and interest in them was not lacking.

Chicago to San Francisco.

The convention party leaving Chicago on the Northwestern Railway August 12 at 10 p. m., numbered thirty-three persons as follows:

T. McAllister, R. Schiele, W. J. O'Carroll, E. Reichling, A. Weber, M. Barker, Miss Martha C. Gunterberg, Chicago; L. N. Kresken, Miss A. H. Kresken, J. A. Peterson and wife, Cincinnati, O.; F. A. Windler, John Carter, St. Louis, Mo.; Theo. Diedrich, Congress Heights, D. C.; R. Vincent, Jr., and wife, White Marsh, Md.; W. J. Keimel and wife, Elmhurst; H. W. Reiman, John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind.; Benj. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; Wm. Sievers and wife, Buffalo, N. Y.; F. L. Morris, Bloomington, Ind.; W. A. Kennedy and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; Wm. F. Gude and wife, Misses Amelia and Louise Gude, Christian Schellhorn and wife, Washington, D. C.

On reaching Council Bluffs, Ia., the party stopped off four hours, and on arrival were taken in autos to the home establishment of J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., thence to the club house of the Council Bluffs Rowing Association at Lake Manawa, where a delicious lunch was served, the tables handsomely decorated with flowers from the local establishment. Attractive Wilcox badges were here distributed to the guests, and Louis Henderson and Geo. Swoboda delivered keys, giving entrance to the city of Omaha.

After lunch the visitors were taken to the hail-stricken Wilcox range, where many men were at work on the roofs of the houses, burning the old putty off the rafters. The Herman plant was next visited and the party proceeded to Omaha, calling at Hess & Swoboda's and Louis Henderson's, where refreshments were served. Here Mrs. W. D. Desmond, of Minneapolis, Minn., and W. B. Perry, of Cresco, Ia., joined the travelers, who returned to their train, cordially thanking the various members of the trade who made this break in the journey so pleasant. The visitors were received by the Wilcox and Herman brothers, Lewis Henderson, Geo. Swoboda, Michael Stauch, L. Rogers, Geo. Sorenson, H. Boss, A. Lange, Chicago, and others.

Arriving at Denver Saturday morning, with only two hours stopover, the party was greeted by J. A. Valentine, of the Park Floral Co., and other leading representatives of the trade. Autos were in waiting and the visitors were driven without delay to the Hotel Metropole, where breakfast was ready, a delicious meal served in fine order to the belated and hurrying conventionites. The tables were well decorated with flowers, among which were some specially good gladioli. R. Vincent, Jr., and wife visited the establishment of the well known dahlia specialist, W. W. Wilmore, and the other visitors were taken around the city in automobiles.

On arrival at the Hotel Metropole, Mr. Valentine briefly welcomed the visitors, saying the Denver trade was greatly pleased with this opportunity to show some appreciation of the numerous courtesies of fellow-craftsmen eastward. Wm. F. Gude responded for the guests of the day.

Among Mr. Valentine's assistants in the entertainment of the visitors were Frederic W. Taylor, Gus Benson, Ben Boldt, S. A. Lundy, Geo. Cooper, Al Mauff, Chas. Benson, E. S. Kenny, Henry Weiland, O. Herman, H. Meyer, T. Capel, W. W. Wilmore, J. E. Glauber, J. E. E. Minton, Fred Hall and Fred Maler.

San Francisco the next stop; everyone pleased with trip.

PLANT NOTES.

Peonies.

Now is the the best time to move or divide peony roots. Plants that have been in one location for a number of years will grow too thick, and will not produce either so many or so good flowers as younger plants, although the peony does not produce the best quality flowers the year after transplanting. The ground in which peonies are to be spring can be more heavily covered and be easily handled after the warmer days of spring arrive. If there is no suitable cellar they can be wintered outside, but it would be better to build a frame around them and cover with shutters, for it is a very disagreeable job shoveling off the snow and frozen covering during the cold winter days. Where they are to remain outside, it is better to plan about how many are to be brought in each week, and place them together in the charges of these two methods is considerable, adding materially to the cost of the plant shipped by express. A fine assortment of palms is a necessity at this season and should be obtained at once in the saleable sizes as befits the trade. Kentias and arecas from two to four feet high can be bought from $1 to $5 each, and are the sizes most in demand. Phoenix Roebelenii is a very decorative palm, and in the smaller sizes finds a good sale, but the larger sizes are still quite expensive, and can be handled only by high class trade. Ferns of the nephrolepis family and dracaenas will be in demand, in fact, a full line of good decorative stock is a necessity at this time in any up-to-date establishment having a retail trade. The stock on hand should now be in active growth and should not receive any check. It is well to be prepared to give these plants a little fire heat as soon as the nights become so cool that the temperature in the houses drops much below 60 degrees.

Winter-Blooming Geraniums.

The late cuttings that were saved for plants for winter blooming should now be thrifty, well-branched plants in three or four-inch pots, and should be shifted to 5-inch pots. If they have been kept disbudded, as soon as they become well established in the 5-inch pots they will come into flower. There will be a demand for these plants as soon as the first frosts kill the outside stock and a few with flowers on them at that time will be wanted. The larger amount of the plants will not be in demand until later, and by that time the pots will be full of roots and a constant blooming plant will be assured. There may be some small, shapely plants in the field that will do for winter blooming; if so they should be lifted and potted, but they will not bloom as well as the pot plants grown for this purpose.

Greenhouse Piping.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise amount of four-inch pipe to use to heat a house 40x84 feet with hot water. Floor line to ridge 15 feet, floor line to eaves four feet.

Illinois. C. J.
The question does not state the temperature to be maintained, which will make considerable difference in the amount of radiation necessary. If 50 degrees is sufficient, and provided there is no glass in the side walls, twelve 4-inch pipes will suffice. Of these one-half may be flows, or it will answer if four flows and eight returns are used. For a temperature of 60 degrees, sixteen pipes should be used, of which from five to eight should be flows.

Instead of using 4-inch pipe, we would prefer to put in four 2½-inch and one 2-inch flow pipe and thirteen or fourteen 2-inch returns, the exact number of returns varying with the amount of exposure of the house. Place the 2-inch flow about four feet below the ridge, and the others on the plates and about half way down the sash bars on each side of the ridge, supported either by purlins or purlin posts. Attach a coil of three 2-inch returns to each 2½-inch flow pipe and connect the others with the 2-inch flow. For 60 degrees use five 2½-inch flows and twenty 2-inch returns, locating the flows as suggested above, and connecting each of them with four 2-inch returns.

ESSEX COUNTY, N. J., FLORISTS' CLUB ANNUAL OUTING.

A Jolly Group.

planted should be well enriched and deeply spaded in preparing it for the young plants. In digging the plants, dig all around the plants and then carefully insert the spade underneath and lift the plant, taking pains that the large roots are not broken, for these pieces of root if left in the soil sometimes start new growths and if other varieties are later planted in the ground, cause a mixture. The roots can be cut up into quite small pieces, but it is better to leave three strong eyes to each piece and not divide into too small plants. Set the plant good and deep and firm and if the ground is dry, give it a good watering.

Tulips and Narcissi.

The tulip and narcissus bulbs should be placed in the pans and boxes as soon as possible after their receipt. It does them no good to leave them lying around, and it is far better to get them in the soil as early as possible. Much of the trouble in blooming these bulbs is laid to the tardy treatment of the growers by the bulb merchants of Holland, and in case of failure they are quick to use this as an argument, as the cause. If the bulbs are planted early, they will at once start to make roots and the forcing of them is then a comparatively easy matter. Have the flats all ready, as has been written of Paper White narcissus of convenient size. Any old rose or carnation soil is good enough, but if it binds too closely, mix in a generous quantity of sand. Set the bulbs close together and pack the soil firmly around them. Have a place prepared outside and set the flats on strips of boards and water thoroughly. It is not advisable to depend upon a rain, but unless the fall is exceedingly dry they will not need further watering. Cover the pots and boxes with about three inches of soil, over which throw some old straw or litter to prevent too rapid evaporation. Here they can remain until freezing weather sets in, when if there is a dark, cold cellar, those that are to be forced during the winter can be moved into these quarters, while those that are to be bloomed in the so that it will not be necessary to open up too many places, but have the different varieties that are to be taken out successively placed after each other and together, and much of the hard, cold work can be dispensed with.

Geraniums.

All the cuttings that can be taken should be secured now, for a frost that will cut everything down may be expected before many weeks in the northern part of the country at least. In making the cutting all the large leaves should be removed, leaving only the smaller leaves and the top. The most economical way to propagate these fall cuttings is to insert the cuttings in 2½-inch pots filled with sifted soil, into which a liberal amount of sand has been mixed. After the cuttings have been placed in the pot, they should be given a good watering and placed on shelves, preferably near the glass, and shaded with papers for a couple of weeks. The papers will prevent too rapid evaporation, and consequently continual watering, as the stem is likely to rot if the cuttings are kept too wet. It is much better not to wet the cuttings, after the first watering, until they show signs of wilting. A sprinkling of the foliage in the morning will carry the plants along for some time before watering the pots will be required. If cuttings enough cannot be secured the plants should be lifted and potted that a good supply of cuttings may be secured early in the winter.

Decorative Plants.

The return of the customers from their country and seaside summer homes will create an immediate demand for palms, ferns and other decorative stock, and the retailer or grower who has not already prepared himself should do so at once. Plants can be purchased at this time and shipped safely, and in order to save expense they should be purchased at once before colder weather sets in, for they can be transported by freight now and after freezing weather it will be necessary that they be forwarded by express and the difference

THE CARNATION.

Planting.

The next four or five weeks are busy days for the carnation grower; it is the time of transferring the plants from the field to the greenhouse benches. Some of the growers who grow large numbers of plants have the majority of their plants already planted, but the planting in general over the different sections of the country is usually done during the four weeks following July 20, and commencing at this time the work should be pushed along as speedily as possible.

In the first place attend to all the necessary requirements of preparing the houses and filling the benches. Give the houses a thorough cleaning out, removing all the old soil and rubbish, wash out the benches, and give the sides and ends of the houses a good cleaning down. Make sure that all boards in the benches are in good enough condition to carry through the season; if any show signs of decay, so that it is doubtful whether they will stand the wear through the season, remove them and replace with some that are stronger. Now is the time, before bringing in the soil, to do this; to have a part of the bench give way after the soil and plants are in means a lot of extra work to fix it up. Before beginning any of the work, put a mud shading on the glass. It makes it comfortable to work while cleaning out, and is also needed for the plants directly after planting until they have fully recovered from the transplanting.

While every effort possible should be given to speedily carry on the work of transferring the plants from the field to the benches, yet at the same time there are many things that have to be done to keep the plants outside in good condition right up to the time the last one is brought into the greenhouse. The plants are growing very rapidly, stretching out their shoots, in a very little while causing the work of topping them back to be a regular job every few days. This applies to whether the plants are intended for own planting or to be sold as field-grown plants, and it is not a square deal to neglect in any manner the plants that are offered for sale; yet, we have seen plants received with most of the shoots stretched out to bud and bloom. Still, pay the same attention to keep the soil open by going over the ground frequently with the hand cultivator while any plants remain on the land.

THE SOIL.

A good live soil is one of the essentials for the successful culture of carnations as well as any other plant, and any study and thought that will work out the improvement of the soil a grower has to use will be repaid many times over during the season. A little thought regarding the soil may improve the keeping qualities of the flowers, put texture into the petalage and substance to the stems, as well as guarding against stem rot. Soils from swampy land should not be used for carnations, unless by adding a portion of clay loam it can be opened up by itself, as it will quickly sour, causing a scum to form on the surface, preventing it from drying out properly. Neither should green cattle manure be used. The plants may not show any bad effects from its use for quite a while after planting, but before the season has advanced very far the plants will be making a heavy succulent growth at the expense of bloom, and a number of the flowers will have bursted calyxes.

Most growers make soil preparations months or weeks ahead of the time it is needed, and when ready to wheel into the houses, a little mixing is all that is necessary, but still there are a number of growers who turn over a piece of sod land a few weeks previous to the time of filling the houses, adding one part well-rotted manure to three parts of soil. The best way to do the mixing under this method is to shake and break up the sod, then haul it into piles handy for wheeling into the house, making each pile three loads of soil and one load of well-rotted manure, spreading the manure evenly over the soil, mixing it thoroughly together when shoveling it into the wheelbarrow.

The soil that was stacked with layers of manure last fall and turned over early in the spring is in fit condition for putting into the benches, and any mixing it gets through the operation of bringing it in helps it greatly.

FILLING THE BENCHES.

The regulation bench, five inches deep, holds enough depth of soil to serve the carnation plants throughout the season, but not any to spare, and this should be borne in mind at the time of filling the benches. A good body of soil sustains the plants and gives the roots plenty to work on all the time. Fill up the bench even full, but not pressed down, and unless the soil is in a very dry condition it will settle to the right depth. Should the soil be dry it will need a little pressing down, but under no consideration should soil be brought in while saturated with water.

BONEMEAL AND OTHER FERTILIZER.

The composition of the soil determines the value of bone or any other fertilizer, and to the soil taken from a fresh cattle pasture or clover land it may not be as necessary as it is when made up sod from the same land has to be used every second year. The plan regarding the soil and filling the benches that has given us the best results is to spread a thin layer of well-rotted horse and cow manure mixed over the bottom of the bench, then put in the soil, and on the surface of the soil work in a light dressing of fine bone and the same of limestone screenings. The plants do not get any extra feeding till after the cuttings for next year's stock are taken from them, and very little then. The flowers keep well, and so far we have had very little trouble with the calyxes bursting and lose very few plants from stem-rot.

LIFTING THE PLANTS IN THE FIELD.

The one most important thing to bear in mind when lifting the field plants is to save the roots as much as possible. One man should do the digging and another pick up the plants, loosening a little of the soil from the roots, and set them upright in boxes, and another should haul them to the greenhouse without any delay, so that they will not wilt from the sun or wind.

After periods of heavy rains, allow the plants to remain in the field a few days to dry out and harden off, rather than lift them while saturated with moisture. The plants recover much better when hardened by a dry spell than what they do when continued heavy rains have softened them up.

PLANTING THE PLANTS.

This is one of the particular parts of the work, taking two men to do it properly and speedily; one to do the planting and another to clean and lay out the plants. The planter should be an experienced carnation grower, understanding the reason for not planting deep and why it is better to spread the roots out and not stick them down in a bunch.

Nine by ten inches apart is the usual distance of setting the plants; it may vary a little, according to the width of the bench, to get in another row, but extra close planting is not advisable, neither is a lot of space for each plant necessary. All that is required is space enough to allow the air and light to penetrate freely around the plants. Leave a slight depression around each plant to allow the plant to be watered without wetting the rest of the soil until the roots begin to work out into it. Give the plants light syringings two or three times a day to maintain a moist atmosphere and guard against the plants wilting. It is necessary to keep the mud shade on the glass until the plants commence to take hold of the soil, then it should be gradually removed.

Zinnias for Winter Bloom.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise the temperature and best method to raise under glass zinnias for January blooming.

J. J. H.

Regarding raising of zinnias under glass for January blooming, would suggest sowing the seed in August and after germinating, potting in two-inch pots and planting in larger pots or in benches the first week in October, keeping the temperature about 50 degrees at night, rising to 60 degrees in the day time, with plenty ventilation and the benches well watered. If zinnias are grown warmer it is quite possible that they would make an abundance of growth without any flower maturing.

White Crusted Pots.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please tell me if the hard white crust on flower pots in constant use is caused by the kind of clay used in making them or is it due to the chemical composition of the soil that I use. What can I use in the water to soften this slime when I wash the pots?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Pot makers claim this crusting may be caused by lime in the clay of which the pots are made or by lime in the soil or water. Most florists remove this crusting by scrubbing the pots with plain water.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—About 150 members of the Illinois Horticultural Society attended the third annual summer meeting, held here July 20.

WEBSTER CITY, IA.—The Curtis Floral Co. has leased its greenhouses on Second street to A. E. Flindt, formerly of Boone, but will continue to operate their ranges in Hampton and Algona.

Sweet Pea Show In London.

The British National Sweet Pea Society held its fifteenth annual exhibition in Royal Horticultural hall, Westminster, July 13, 1915. The weather was pleasant and not too warm, and the crowds that came to admire the flowers were therefore not inconvenienced by the heat and stuffiness of the hall, so apparent on very hot days. The flowers, too, looked all the better for the cooler atmosphere, and presented a charming combination of pleasing colors that no other flower seems to possess on the exhibition tables.

With one or two exceptions, every one of the 35 classes in the schedule was filled, and the competition was keen in many of them. Something like 130 exhibitors came from all parts of the kingdom, and Scotland and Ireland were well represented, both by the trade and by amateurs. Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, and also Dickson & Sons, Belfast, with their "Hawmark" displays, were conspicuous champions of the Celtic fringes, while the purely English trade exhibitors were represented by R. Bolton of Warton, Carnforth; Jarmon, of Chard; C. Stark & Son, of Great Ryburgh, Norfolk; James Box, of Lindfield, Sussex; John K. King, of Coggeshall, Essex, and one or two others.

Speaking generally, there were no striking features of the show. It was on the whole, quite up to the standard of previous years so far as the size and excellence of the blooms were concerned, and the coloring was as pure and as vivid as ever. The keenest interest centered around the winner of the Eckford challenge cup, and this was carried off in triumph by the gardener to Lord North, Wroxton Abbey, Banbury, Oxon, from eight other competitors, with 12 bunches of magnificent size, quality and coloring. W. H. Holloway, Post Hill, Shrewsbury, came second, while the gardener to Sir Randolph Baker, Bart., Royston, Blandford, Dorset, was third.

The Sutton cup for 18 bunches, distinct, was also carried off by Lord North's gardener (E. R. James), Sir Randolph Baker's gardener being second. A few other trophies of lesser importance attracted several competitors, the most conspicuous being the E. W. King challenge cup for 12 bunches, distinct, varieties that had been "offered for sale and catalogued during the autumn of 1914 or the spring of 1915." R. Sandford of Mildenhall, Suffolk, won this with a very handsome exhibit.

For the W. Atlee Burpee & Co. challenge cup and the gold medal of the society, there was only one entry—Mrs. Baird, West Malvern, whose gardener, (J. W. James) was awarded the prize for a display of waved varieties arranged on a space three by eight feet, and not to exceed four feet in height.

As to novelties, there were practically none. The nearest approach to something new was in the class set apart for seedling varieties not yet in commerce, but nothing very startling came forth. Indeed, it is not too much to say that the sweet pea seems to have reached its zenith, so far as size, color and variation are concerned, and the only chance for new breaks seems to be in the direction of improvement in the yellows, and in increasing the number of flowers to the stalk. In connection with the latter point, the commonest number still seems to be four, but I counted a good many "fives," and that leads me to hope that this number will in the near future become as common as the "fours" now are. In the Holloway exhibit I saw a spray of the beautiful orange pink, Edrom Beauty, with seven flowers upon it—but alas, the stem was fasciated! I was told, however, that another spray of Marks Tey had also seven flowers upon it, and that without fasciation. But I did not actually see this particular spray with my own eyes.

The great war, of course, has made some difference to the sweet pea trade, and business was not so brisk as on previous occasions. Many enthusiasts from the continent of Europe were this year conspicuous by their absence, and I do not think there was any American visitors (that is, directly interested in the trade) present, and there generally are a few of them poking about the exhibition. The annual dinner of the society, usually held on the same day as the exhibition, was this year called off on account of the war, but it is hoped that next year there will be all the greater enthusiasm.

As to the crops of sweet peas in England, grown this year, there seems to have been better quality and deeper color than usual, and complaints of "streak" have been few and far between. Lately the gales have knocked the plants about somewhat, but taking it altogether the sweet pea is just as popular and as extensively grown as ever, and continues to attract new recruits to its shrine every year. American Ass'n of Park Superintendents.

The seventeenth annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents was held at San Francisco, Calif., August 18-20. At the opening session on Wednesday morning the delegates were given a warm welcome by Mayor James Rolph, which was responded to by President G. X. Amryhn, of New Haven, Conn., followed by admission of new members, reports of officers, introduction of resolutions, etc. The afternoon session of that day opened with reports of committees, new business was brought up and papers and addresses were read. The election of officers which closed the session resulted in the selection of the following to serve during the coming year: Emil T. Mische, Portland, Ore., president; J. W. Thompson, Seattle, Wash.; J. F. Walsh, New York; Alex Stuart, Ottawa, Can.; E. P. Griffin, East St. Louis, Ill.; L. P. Jansen, St. Louis, Mo.; E. V. Goebel, Grand Rapids, Mich., vice-presidents; R. W. Cotterill, Seattle, Wash., secretary-treasurer. New Orleans, La., was selected as the convention city for 1916. In the evening stereopticon lectures, addresses and papers and unfinished business preceded the closing ceremonies.

The visitors were given a trip by steamer around San Francisco bay Thursday forenoon, followed by a luncheon at Oakland and a trip by auto through Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley as guests of the Oakland board of park directors. In the evening there was a stag smoker for the gentlemen at the Elks' club, and the ladies were entertained at a theater party.

Friday was devoted to sightseeing, including a tour of inspection of the parks, playgrounds and boulevards of San Francisco, the ride terminating at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

John McLaren, San Francisco, was honored by the association in the election to the office of honorary president, in recognition of his splendid work in the San Francisco park system.

Railway Gardening Association.

The Railway Gardening Association met at Detroit, Mich., August 17-20, for its ninth annual meeting, the Hotel St. Clair being the headquarters. Following the address of President Paul Huebner, the reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented, and a number of very interesting papers were read, and the subjects freely discussed. At the election of officers to serve during the ensuing year, the following were chosen: J. A. Byrne, B. & O. R. R., Relay, Md., president; C. W. Eichling, Q. & C. R. R., New Orleans, La., and R. J. Rice, M. C. R. R., Niles, Mich., vice-presidents for the four-year term and short term to succeed J. A. Byrne; Chas. E. Lowe, Penna. Co., Sewickley, Pa., secretary; J. K. Wingert, C. V. R. R., Chambersburg, Pa., treasurer. The newly elected secretary, Chas. E. Lowe, acted as secretary of the meeting, in place of W. F. Hutchison, who was unable to be present. The business sessions came to a close Wednesday noon, following the selection of New Orleans for the 1916 meeting, and during the afternoon the delegates were the guests of the local florists on an auto trip through the city and parks. The following day a steamer trip was taken up the beautiful Detroit river and was much enjoyed by all. Among those in attendance were the following:

Paul Huebner, Philadelphia, Pa.
Chas. E. Lowe, Pittsburgh, Pa.
I. K. Wingert, Chambersburg, Pa.
John Rinck, New Orleans, La.
John Gigner, Niles, Mich.
J. A. Byrne, Relay, Md.
John Foley, Philadelphia, Pa.
I. T. Worthley, Philadelphia, Pa.
W. R. Wingert, Chambersburg, Pa.
Levi W. Burdge, Lakewood, N. J.
P. Foy, Roanoke, Va.
E. Steibner, Champaign, Ill.
F. W. Vail, Dunellin, N. J.
E. Engleman, Altoona, Pa.
S. Silber, Millintown, Pa.
R. J. Rice, Niles, Mich.
F. Sagsworth, Ypsilanti, Mich.
N. Castie, Pittsburgh, Pa.
C. B. Little, Sewickley, Pa.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the above society was a hot one, and in consequence the usual large attendance was lacking; nevertheless, there was a fairly good number of the members present. President Seeley occupied the chair. Honorable mention was voted to Owen A. Hunswick for a fine specimen plant of Torenia Fournieri grandiflora, the only exhibit of the evening. Several letters from friends of the society were read, offering substantial prizes for the fall show to be held in Stamford, Conn., November 5-6. The outing committee made its report, which was accepted, and a vote of thanks given the members of the committee for the pleasing programme offered at the recent outing at Edward's Rye Beach Inn, Rye Beach, N. Y., August 10. Messages were read from several of the society's members in attendance at the exposition at San Francisco, and all reported a grand time en route. There being no lecture scheduled for the meeting, an adjournment was taken until September 10, at which time it is expected there will be an interesting display of seasonable flowers.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The annual outing was held at Edward's Rye Beach Inn, August 10. The day was ideal; in fact, the first pleasant day in several weeks. The society's members, together with their families, and a goodly number of trade representatives and members of the trade press made up a large and happy party. We were greatly pleased to have a large delegation of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society join us at dinner, which was a special feature of the day—a regular shore dinner, served by the hotel management. After dinner the humorous pastime of "breaking the flower pots" was indulged in, followed by a tug-of-war, and an excellent programme of field sports. The events and the awards follow:

Quoit match, between Westchester and Fairfield—Won by Westchester; score, 23 to 18.

Tug-of-war—Won by Fairfield.

Wheelbarrow race—Neil McInnes and Colin Aitchison, first; Wm. Whittin and Alex. Clarkson, second.

Boy's race (not over 7 years)—Edwin Wynne, first; Willie Peterson, second.

P. W. POPP, Cor. Sec'y.

Gladiolus Society of Ohio.

THIRD ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW.

The third annual flower show of the Gladiolus Society of Ohio was held in the assembly room of the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, August 13-14, and was much larger and more interesting than the exhibition last year. The displays of retailers were much larger, and the arrangements of tables and baskets were of high standard. The completeness of the displays of the growers was noteworthy and were at all times surrounded by interesting throngs. The exhibition was open to the public from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. on both days of the show, and hundreds of the flower loving public were in attendance, viewing the many new seedlings as well as the old favorites, all attractively staged, and admiring the clever work of the retailers, represented by numerous artistic arrangements.

Among the growers represented, all of whose exhibits were of the very highest order, were the following: W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O.; The Perkins-King Co., West Mentor, O.; R. E. Huntington, Painesville, O.; Munsell & Harvey, Ashtabula, O.; Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O.; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; Miss L. C. Mizer, South Euclid, O.; Matthew Crawford Co., Cuyahoga Falls, O.; Jos. Coleman Co., Lexington, O.; R. A. Cawley, Painesville, O.; E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich.; Bidwell & Fobes, Kinsman, O.; A. H. Austin Co., Wayland, O.; Jas. F. Rychlik, Painesville, O.; Jacob Thomann & Son, Rochester, N. Y.

The displays of the local florists were varied and attractive and were much admired by the visitors. A basket arrangement of Niagara and Panama, displayed by Westman & Getz, was cleverly done, and their table decoration of Niagara with corsages and boutonnières was excellent. The J. M. Gasser Co. was represented by an artistic table arranged with Niagara and Baron Hulot, with fancy leaved caladiums and scabiosa; also an artistic basket arrangement of the same varieties. The Jones-Russell Co.'s display, which consisted of a table arrangement, which embodied a miniature fish pond and birch-bark vases containing America gladioli, was at all times the center of an admiring throng. A basket of America and Niagara, well arranged, was also a feature. A table of Niagara, arranged with heather and adiantum, staged by Knoble Bros., received many well-deserved compliments, as did a basket of Mrs. Francis King and Niagara, also a part of the same exhibit. A. M. Albrecht had a novel and artistic arrangement of a bride's bouquet in which white gladioli were used. Pink gladioli in quantity arranged in the form of a beehive were shown by the James Eadie Co., and was very attractive. Smith & Feters showed a table arranged with a high centerpiece, red gladioli being used at the base and white at the top. Four attractive small baskets of red gladioli were also noteworthy in their excellent display. Charlesworth & Son showed two attractive baskets of gladioli, one of pink and the other yellow. The Ohio Floral Co. showed an excellent basket of gladioli in pink. Carl Hagenberger of Painesville staged several vases of gladioli in several varieties, cleverly arranged; also a vase of very fine asters.

The judges of the show made special mention of the splendid exhibit of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. This firm arranged an especially attractive display of Fordhook hybrids, the rare and remarkable shadings and colors being well worthy of the honor. Kunderdi Glory, exhibited by R. A. Cawley, Painesville, a gladiolus of the muffled, wavy petal type, is said to be the first one of its kind in the world, having taken A. E. Kunderd, the gladiolus expert of Goshen, Ind., 23 years to develop it to its present state of perfection and beauty.

Next year's exhibition of the society will be held in Cleveland about the same time of the year. The business meeting was held Saturday, August 14, at which minutes of the last meeting were read and other details discussed, after which an adjournment was taken until the time of the fall show of the Cleveland Florists' Club in November, at which time officers will be elected.

The awards were as follows:

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Katherine Wiegand.

Mrs. Katherine Wiegand, widow of Anthony Wiegand, and mother of George and Homer Wiegand, of Anthony Wiegand & Sons Co., the well-known Indianapolis, Ind., florists, died recently at her home in that city. She and her husband were among the pioneers in the florist business in Indiana and their indefatigable efforts aided greatly in putting the florists' business of Indianapolis upon its present high plane, of which the splendid Wiegand establishment is an example. Mrs. Wiegand enjoyed the respect and friendship of hundreds, and was known for her kindly, unassuming disposition and her open-handed charity. The high regard in which she was held was shown by the large number of beautiful floral tributes that accompanied her to her last resting place.

Joseph Frese.

Joseph Frese, retired nurseryman, one of the oldest residents of Quincy, Ill., and a pioneer of that vicinity, died in that city, August 7, aged 84 years. For the last three years he has been failing in health, and his death was the result of a complication of diseases.

Surviving are his wife, four sons, Louis, Henry and Joseph of Quincy, and John of Gilkarson, Ark.; three daughters, Mrs. William Bockenfeld and Mrs. Frank Winking of Quincy, and Mrs. Frank Knuffman of Newtown, Ill.; 37 grandchildren and 22 great grandchildren.

William Waring, Sr.

William Waring, Sr., well-known representative of Wm. Scott Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., and proprietors of the Montrose Greenhouses, Corfu, N. Y., having been connected with that firm for over 30 years, is dead. His jovial disposition and kindly personality won for him a host of friends, both old and young, to whom the news of his demise will occasion sincere regret. He will be missed by all who were fortunate in being numbered among his friends—and they were many.

A. N. Crouch.

A. N. Crouch, one of the pioneer florists of Knoxville, Tenn., and until a few years ago connected with his father, Chas. W. Crouch, well-known florist of that city, died at his home in Knoxville, July 20. While not actively engaged in the florist business at the time of his death, he was well known to the trade in many cities. All of the Knoxville florist stores closed during the funeral services, which were held July 22, and floral tributes in profusion were sent by a host of friends.

MADISON, WIS.—The Wisconsin State Horticultural Society will probably have its annual appropriation reduced by nearly one-half by this session of the legislature. Heretofore this society has had an appropriation of $9,000 annually. The assembly has just passed a bill reducing this appropriation to $5,000.

OMAHA, NEB.—The annual outing of the Omaha Florists' Club announced for August 19, at Krug's park will, it is expected, prove one of the most pleasant in the club's history. There is a well arranged programme of field sports, and following the supper in the evening "The War of the Nations," an elaborate fireworks display, will be an added attraction.

KENOSHA, WIS.—The new flower shop of Lewis Turner & Sons at Park avenue and Main street was formally opened to the public August 14, and is conceded to be one of the most beautiful retail stores ever opened in this city. Complete in all its appointments, with interior finishings of white enamel, a tile floor of unusual beauty and its attractive show windows filled with choice blooms, the new shop is already one of the real attractions of the city's shopping district.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA.

SECRETARY'S REPORT FOR YEAR ENDING AUGUST 1st, 1915

The insurance on glass effective at present date in the Florists' Hail Association, subdivided by States, is as stated below:

The above is equivalent to an insurance upon 40,411,003 square feet of glass. The total receipts for the year ending August 1, 1915, and including last year's balance, as per Treasurer's Report, are $61,590.90.

The total expenditures, as per Treasurer's Report, for the year ending August 1, 1915, are $24,860.78.

The cash balance on hand is $36,730.12, of which $1,713.90 belongs to the Reserve Fund. The Reserve Fund now amounts to $35,713.90, of which $34,000.00 is invested in first class municipal bonds, and $1,713.90 cash in hands of the Treasurer.

The amount of interest collected on bank deposits for the year is $431.44.

The amount of interest collected on Reserve Fund investments for the year is $1,347.50. Twenty-two hundred losses have been adjusted since the organization of the F. H. A., involving a total expenditure of nearly $317,000.00.

The number of Members at date of closing is 1621.

An equivalent of 110,276 square feet of single thick glass was broken by hail, for which the Association paid $5,513.80; and an equivalent of 196,733 square feet of double thick glass was broken, which cost the Association $13,771.28.

The F. H. A. liabilities at the close of this report are a number of unadjusted losses, the proofs of which are not at hand.

	No. of hail storms from June 1, 1887 to Aug. 1, 1915.	No. of losses paid from June 1, 1887 to Aug. 1, 1915.	No. of hail storms for year ending Aug. 1, 1915.	No. of losses paid for year ending Aug. 1, 1915.

Newport, R. I.

The mid-summer exhibition of the Newport Garden Club and the Newport Horticultural Society, August 12-14, was a varied one, the displays including many varieties of plants, flowers, fruits, vegetables and made up designs. The show was held in tents, a large portion of grounds being enclosed with 10-foot cedar trees, and the various displays showed off to splendid advantage against the background of clean, white canvas. Cedars, standard bays and hydrangeas in tubs lined each side of the avenue that led to the exhibition grounds, where the main tent, 60 by 150 feet, made the background for several smaller tents of striped canvas that held special exhibits. Four canopies formed corners of a square about a pond of water lilies which made a center piece of the grounds, and on the opposite side of the main tent was the bandstand and an open tent furnished with seats. Bay trees, hydrangeas and handsomely trimmed privet were placed in the open and added greatly to the attractiveness of the general arrangement. Tall palms and magnificent ferns made a most graceful center for crotons, caladiums, begonias, gesnerias, pandanus, campanulas, etc., and added to the effect of the displays arranged on tables that surrounded the sides, which consisted of exhibits of gladioli, gloxinias, calceolarias, and hardy phloxes in variety, the latter predominating. The orchid exhibits had a prominent place and gave tone to the general exhibition. The show on the whole was considered a complete success and a brilliant social affair, many of the leading society women being noted among the list of patronesses.

The trade was well represented, excellent displays being noted from the following, among the long list of entries: Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.; Newport Nursery, Newport, N. J.; John K. Alexander, East Bridge-water, Conn.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; Wm. Tricker, Arlington, N. J.; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

John T. Allan, Victor May and Joseph Greatorex of Newport; William Anderson, Lancaster, Mass.; Joseph Clark, South Lancaster, Mass., and William N. Craig, Brookline, Mass., were the judges, and the following were among the most prominent in the long list of prize winners:

Vincent Astor (James Boyd, Gr.), Mrs. French Vanderbilt (Daniel Hays, Gr.), Newport Nursery, Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; Mrs. Geo. D. Widener (Wm. Allen, Gr.), Mrs. Wm. G. Weld (Jas. Watts, Gr.), Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks (Jas. Bond, Gr.), Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss (John Mahan, Gr.), Galen Stone, Mrs. Stuart Duncan (Jas. MacGillivray, Gr.), Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer (Jas. Rochester Exposition Flower Show.

The attractive proposition made by the management of the Rochester, N. Y., exposition flower show has invited the attention of the best known growers in the country, as had been expected. With no charge for space, the promise of adequate service and a daily average attendance of over 20,000, it would have been surprising if the big growers had not responded to the invitation to send exhibits to the Rochester show. August 30 to September 11 are the dates. The management of the Rochester exposition declares that the flower show is to be an annual event. The exposition itself is on a permanent basis. It is held at the city's own exposition park and is now in its eighth year. The park has 10 large fireproof buildings, and one of the best has been assigned to the flower show. A committee of the Rochester Florists' Association is co-operating with the management and hopes to make the Rochester show a meeting place for florist and grower, seedsman and importer. They believe that there is need for such an exhibition, as it will give the florists a chance to see, without traveling the country over, what the growers have to offer in new and standard varieties of plants and flowers. That the plan has every promise of success is evidenced by the permanency of the exposition itself, which is practically under municipal auspices.

A personal invitation has been sent to every florist in New York state, as well as in some adjoining states, informing them of the names of the exhibitors and suggesting that they combine business with pleasure by arranging to spend an early fall vacation in the "Flower City," and, at the same time, see what the growers have to offer.

Following is a list of the exhibitors: J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass.; C. Betscher, Canal Dover, O.; John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.; Wilbur A. Christy, Warren, O.; N. Harold Cottam & Son, Wopingers Falls, N. Y.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; Burt Olney Greenhouses, Albion, N. Y.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Geo. L. Stillman, Westery, R. I., and the following Rochester houses: Edward Brockman, Geo. T. Boucher, George B. Hart, J. B. Keller Sons, W. T. Logan, Henry P. Neun, Salter Bros., F. Schlegel & Sons, Jacob Thomann & Sons, James Vick's Sons, H. E. Wilson.

Figuring Costs.

These rules for figuring costs and profits are recommended by the National Association of Credit Men:

1. Charge interest on the net amount of your total investment at the beginning of your business year, exclusive of real estate.
2. Charge rental on all real estate or buildings owned by you and used in your business at a rate equal to that which you would receive if renting or leasing to others.
3. Charge in addition to what you pay for hired help an amount equal to what your services would be worth to others; also treat in like manner the services of any member of your family employed in the business not on the regular pay roll.

4. Charge depreciation on all goods carried over on which you may have to make a less price because of change in style, damage, or any other cause.

5. Charge depreciation, on buildings, tools, fixtures, or anything else suffering from age or wear and tear.

6. Charge amounts donated or subscriptions paid.

7. Charge all fixed expenses, such as taxes, insurance, water, lights, fuel, etc.

8. Charge all incidental expenses, such as drayage, postage, office supplies, livery or expense of horses and wagons, telegrams and telephones, advertising, canvassing, etc.

9. Charge losses of every character, including stolen goods, or sent out and not charged, allowance made customers, bad debts, etc.

10. Charge collection expense.

11. Charge any other expenses not enumerated above.

12. When you have ascertained what the sum of all the foregoing items amounts to, prove it by your books, and you will have your total expenses for the year; then divide this figure by the total of your sales, and it will show you the per cent which it has cost you to do business.

13. Take this per cent and deduct it from the price of any article you have sold, then subtract from the remainder what it cost you (invoice price and freight), and the result will show you net profit or loss on the article.

14. Go over the selling prices of the various articles you handle and see where you stand as to profits, then get busy in putting your selling figures on a profitable basis and talk it over with your competitor as well.

State Fairs.

The following is a list of coming state fairs with the names and addresses of the superintendents of the horticultural and floricultural departments so far as obtainable:

WALLACE R. PIERSON, of Cromwell, Conn., operated upon at San Francisco, August 13, for appendicitis is progressing favorably.

THE meetings of the San Francisco convention, contrary to expectations, were well attended throughout and a large volume of good work completed in record time.

Belgian Shipments.

It is reported that there is a possibility of arranging shipments from Belgium, conditional that payments are deposited in an English bank. It is hardly probable that shippers will agree to this as the money will not be paid to them until a more favorable period.

Exposition Last Year.

Greatest Permanent Municipal Exposition
in the Country.

Aug. 30 to Sept. 11

To the Florists.

Come to the Rochester Flower Show; see the new and standard varieties in plants and flowers. You cannot plan a better vacation than to visit the Exposition and see the Flower City. If the florists in New York and other nearby states will give us their support by attending, another year will see almost every prominent Grower as Exhibitor. An annual Mid-Summer Exhibit is needed, where Florists can see the different lines and meet the Growers without traveling the country over.

List of Exhibitors.

To the Growers.

The Exposition and Flower Show opens August 30. There is plenty of time to secure space. Write the Committee the amount required. Prospective Exhibitors will receive every attention, including a good location.

A Declaration.

We hereby declare that our next year's Flower Show will be larger and better, although you will see, by looking over the list of exhibitors, that we are going some this year.

TRADE AT LOWEST EBB OF SEASON.

Trade during the past week reached the very lowest ebb of the dull summer season, the monotony not being relieved by the usual call for funeral work to any considerable extent. Aggravating the situation is the constantly increasing influx of the season's field flowers, with more than enough roses for the meager demand. Gladioli and asters lead in the items creating the immense surplus, and the quality of the same is up to the usual standard. Lilies were never before so plentiful on this market in the summer season, and only a fraction of the excessive supply is used and the prices realized are correspondingly low.

CLUB MEETING.

A special meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held on the premises of A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich., August 11. This meeting was called by President Danzer for the purpose of annulling the annual election held August 2, when barely a quorum was present, and for the purpose of holding an election with a more representative attendance. Twenty-two members answered the call by their presence, and after cancelling the former election, proceeded to ballot for officers for the ensuing year, resulting as follows: Frank Danzer, president; E. A. Fetters, vice-president; Henry Forster, secretary; Robt. Rahaley, treasurer.

Mr. Danzer enters upon his third term as president of the club, while Mr. Rahaley continues the office held by him for many years. Vice-president-elect E. A. Fetters is the well known and very popular retailer, with his main store on Woodward avenue at Clifford, and a branch store and conservatory building on Woodward avenue near Pallistin. The new secretary is the leader of the working force at the Fetters store and is one of the most recently elected members of the club. After the election, the remaining time of the session was given up to the discussion of plans for bringing the club back to its former glory and activities, and to that end it is proposed to have a bowling team and a dinner to precede the club meeting and bowling practice as formerly. Immediately after adjournment Mr. and Mrs. Stahelin served refreshments to the members, after which an inspection of the stock consumed the time before the return trip to the city was made. Of particular interest was the large house of roses planted about the middle of June. This house, 72½ by 400 feet was first used last year for sweet peas and the present venture is Mr. Stahelin's first experience with roses here. The house contains 18,000 roses of the following varieties: Killarneys, Richmond, Aaron Ward, Cecile Brunner, Hoosier Beauty, Bon Silene and Ophelia. Grafted stock is used and all are planted in solid beds with tile drainage, the soil being peculiarly suitable for roses and splendid results are confidently looked for as the plants at present are in good condition and all conditions favorable to them. The eight movable houses here will soon be moved over about 60,000 carnation plants, which are growing outdoors and looking fine. J. F. S.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—Joseph A. Thomas, who has been conducting the greenhouses established by his father, since the latter's death, has resigned from the firm of A. J. Thomas' Sons. Following re-organization the firm will be known as the Thomas Floral Co., with Albert A. Thomas, youngest son of A. J. Thomas as manager.

Kansas City.

DEMAND WEAKENS A TRIFLE.

Market conditions during the past week were not up to the usual standard, and while there was an ample supply of stock to be had, rains had caused some damage to gladioli and asters. Prices have dropped considerably as compared to what the quotations have been for several weeks past. Gladioli and asters are still the leaders in the popular demand, and both are now arriving with long stiff stems and large perfect flowers. They find a ready sale and it is a real pleasure to handle and sell them. The supply of roses is light.

NOTES.

Henry Kusik & Co. report that city business has shown a slight decrease during the past week, but shipping trade is better than usual, and business on the whole is satisfactory. They are handling very fine stock in gladioli, asters and lilies. Business in their supply department is holding up very well.

W. J. Barnes is busy making extensive improvements in his greenhouses which when completed will make his range one of the most up to date in the city. He is cutting good stock in asters and gladioli.

Adolph D. Mohr has some excellent Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias; also poinsettias of equally high quality. He reports stock in general at the greenhouses as being in perfect condition.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. have everything at the greenhouses in A No. 1 condition. The carnations and chrysanthemums are about the best they have ever grown.

A visit to Ed. Humfeld's range shows everything to be in the very best of shape. Some extra good asters were a noteworthy feature at his establishment.

At the Rosery, Ed. Ellsworth reports everything, especially poinsettias, in splendid condition. About 10,000 especially fine plants were noted here.

Mrs. T. A. Mosely not only reports business better than is usually the case at this season of the year, but predicts fall business beyond expectations.

S. Bryson Ayres is cutting exceptionally fine asters in all colors. His gladioli are still plentiful and he is kept busy filling orders.

Wm. Foith has his greenhouse stock in good shape. Everything at this range looks clean and healthy, especially the carnations.

M. Hepting has his stock in excellent shape, carnation plants especially, showing fine condition.

TRADE CONDITIONS UNSATISFACTORY.

Weather conditions during the past two weeks have been extremely unfavorable for business. Rain has fallen in torrents nearly every day, and business has been almost at a standstill. There have been no funerals of note lately and few weddings. Pre-nuptial parties, feteing the September brides have occasioned a demand for table decorations and house decorations. There is a limited supply of stock at present. Gladioli in the various colors are making the best showing. Asters come next, and are of really good quality, with long stems and good-sized blooms. At the growers' quarters everything is spic and span and in readiness for the fall trade. Most of the greenhouse ranges in the vicinity have been overhauled and all the young stock is planted and has obtained a fair growth.

NOTES.

A motor party to Toledo and Detroit, Michigan, last week was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive, Miss C. B. Flick, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and Miss Marguerite Flick. The trade was visited in both places, and stops were also made at Defiance, O., and Napoleon, O.

The New Haven Floral Company's houses at New Haven, Ind., are making a splendid showing in the young stock. The carnation plants are being put in at present. This company makes a specialty of fine carnation blooms.

J. F. Knecht and family motored to Detroit recently, and called on the wholesale houses particularly.

ROSES CLEAN UP WELL.

There is no great change in the market conditions since last week, and stock of all kinds is plentiful, with the exception of roses, orchids and lily of the valley. American Beauty roses are in good demand and stock under 24 inches in length is scarce and is bringing almost as good prices as the longer stemmed flowers. Some choice Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are being offered, and while the receipts of this variety are quite heavy they are cleaning up well at good summer prices, and the same holds good for all the other roses. Orchids are none too plentiful, nor is lily of the valley. Gardenias are in larger supply and the receipts of dahlias have increased considerably. Gladioli are in mammoth supply and choice stock is being offered in large quantities at ridiculously low prices, which has a tendency to hold the prices on other stock down. Asters are in good supply and some especially fine indoor-grown stock is obtainable and is bringing good prices. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful this week than they were last, but Golden Glow, of course, is the only variety being offered. Outdoor stock of all kinds is seen in large quantities and is selling in large lots at bargain prices, especially daisies, gaillardias and gypsophila. Greens of all kinds are in large supply and some very choice ferns are being offered. Carnations are plentiful, but have sold at better prices the past week than they have for some time, but at that they are not bringing the prices that they should.

ego expositions. He had occasion to visit the site of the Panama-Pacific exposition on one of his previous visits and was surprised to see such a wonderful change in so short a time, when in less than three years 645 acres of salt marsh were transformed into a place of beauty by the engineer and the two landscape artists, John McLaren and his son Donald McLaren. The same holds good for the San Diego exposition and he says that neither one of the shows would be complete without the horticultural exhibits. Mr.

30 East Randolph Street, CHICAGO.

Washburn had the pleasure of meeting G. A. Davidson, president of the San Diego exposition, who told him that he is just beginning to appreciate what the horticultural exhibits mean to the fair and agrees with the genial wholesaler that it is one of the greatest advertisements that the trade could ever have. Mr. Washburn would have liked to remain for the S. A. F. convention, but returned home to meet his business partner, O. P. Bassett, and wife, who have just reached here from Pasadena, Calif., in their Packard automobile. Mr. Bassett's many friends in the trade are pleased to hear that he is in good health and that they arrived safely.

Allie J. Zech, who was appointed manager at Zech & Mann's store, after the death of his father, the late John Zech, is no stranger to the trade, although many are not aware of the fact that he is in charge. He started to work in the wholesale cut flower market May 11, 1898, at J. A. Bnd-long's store, and was with Vaughan & Sperry for a long time. In 1905 he started to work for Zech & Mann when they opened and had charge of the shipping trade. Mr. Zech is thirty-two years of age and is thoroughly experienced in the wholesale commission business and will give the firm's customers the same honest treatment in the future that they have received in the past.

Harry Manheim has returned from his vacation and is again attending to his duties at Hoerber Bros.' store.

2,000,000 Feet of Modern Glass

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a good supply of Golden Glow chrysanthemums which are in good demand at the store and clean up nicely each day. This firm is continuing to have a brisk demand for chrysanthemums, pompons, rose and carnation plants and every mail brings in new orders. The palm department is also having a busy season, but has plenty of stock on hand to fill all the orders that may arrive. Miss Burkhart has returned from her vacation and is again assisting T. E. Waters in the supply department, which is busy mailing its new catalog.

Peter Reinberg has booked an exceedingly large number of orders for field grown carnation plants, according to Felix Reichling, since their page advertisement appeared in the Convention Number of THE AMERICAN FLORIST last week, and nearly every mail is bringing in new ones. This house is cutting a large number of asters from its own field and the receipts of asparagus plumosus nanus from the greenhouses are quite heavy.

James J. Shields has returned after a two months' vacation on the Pacific coast. He says California has never been more beautiful than at the time of his visit and speaks in glowing terms of both the Panama-Pacific and the San Diego expositions. He regrets not being able to remain for the S. A. F. convention, but will make another trip about September 5, and will remain on the coast until December 1.

Wietor Brothers are all through planting their carnations and everything is in splendid shape at the greenhouses and the proprietors are ready for another busy season. N. J. Wietor says that orders are numerous for field grown carnation plants this week and while they have a large supply still on hand, he is confident that every one of them will be sold as usual before the season closes.

J. A. Budlong is receiving large shipments of choice roses now, among which quite a number of Double White Killarney is particularly noticeable. William Homberg and Fred Price, two of Budlong's baseball fans, are already picking the White Sox as the winners in the city series, that is, providing the Cubs do not cop the pennant in the National league. Oh, you White Sox!

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have had a good week and are offering a fine line of stock of all kinds, particularly American Beauty roses. The receipts of gladioli at this house are extraordinarily large and are moving as nicely as can be expected, considering the unusually large supply of this stock that is reaching the market now.

F. Simons of the Percy Jones store force was on the sick list for several days this week, but is able to be about again. Luke Schrer is back from his vacation and is again on duty at the store. Manager Van Gelder has more employes on Percy Jones' payroll right now than ever before and every one of them manages to keep busy.

James Friedl, the enterprising florist at 3538 West Twenty-sixth street, and wife have returned from a week's outing at Fox Lake, making the trip by auto with a party of twenty friends. They had a splendid time and deserved a vacation after the strict attention they have paid to business the past season.

G. Hampton, representing Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, Pa., called on trade here this week. He had quite an exhibit at the Palmer House, which was inspected by a large number of the local florists.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are pleasing their customers with a fancy grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses from the Pyfer & Olsom greenhouses at Wilmette.

H. E. Philpott left for Winnipeg, Can., August 15, stopping off at Milwaukee, Wis., for a short visit.

The visiting florists to the San Francisco convention were entertained here Thursday, August 12, by a committee representing the Chicago Florists' Club and headed by President Keimel, H. N. Bruns, E. F. Kurowski, Guy W. French and James Morton. The party consisted of F. L. Morris, Bloomington, Ind.; John Riemann and John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind.; W. A. Kennedy and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; R. Vincent, Jr., and wife, White Marsh, Md.; Wm. F. Gude, wife and daughters Amelia and Louise, C. Schellhorn and wife and Theodore Dietrich, Washington, D. C., and Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y. After an automobile ride through the principal parks and boulevards in the city the visitors were entertained at dinner at the Bismarck Garden on the north side. All the above mentioned parties attended the banquet and others seated at the tables were Fred. Lautenschlager, Mrs. Guy W. French, H. E. Bruns, Walter Rupp, Leonard Vaughan, George Sykes, G. W. Brown, Geo. Sykes, Jr., Arnold Ringier, E. A. Ollinger, Phil. Foley, Phil. Foley, Jr.; J. A. Cairns, Philadelphia, Pa., and C. D. Mueller, Columbus, Mo. Quite a number of people in the trade saw the party off on the official train, which left the Northwestern depot that same evening at 10 o'clock, and those who made the trip to California and were unable to attend the dinner were Frank Windler and John Carter, St. Louis, Mo.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; J. A. Peterson and wife, Cincinnati, O.; Robert Simpson, wife and daughter Lillian, Clifton, N. J.; L. M. Kreske and Miss Kreske, Cincinnati, O. Those who left for San Francisco on the special train from this vicinity were W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Tom McAllister, Miss Martha C. Gunterberg, Emil Reichling, Arthur Weber, Rudolph Schiele, M. Barker and W. J. O'Carroll.

A party representing himself to be W. Scoch and an employe of A. Lange, signed several tickets for that house in the wholesale market this week, under that name, and at the same time accepting the flowers that the regular buyer had ordered, is wanted by the police. The theft of the flowers was discovered when the regular pick-up man called for the goods and it was then learned that the first party was an impostor. The dealers should be on lookout in the future for this trick has been worked several times during the past year and no doubt will be tried again and probably by the same party who seems to be pretty well acquainted with the market and knows just when to call.

The Lorain Avenue Greenhouse Co., a new corporation of West Park, O., a suburb of Cleveland, has placed an order with the John C. Moninger Co., for eight greenhouses 30x300 feet, of the new style, "bolted thru" construction. The plant will also be equipped with a modern fireproof boiler and packing room. Chas. C. Christensen, of Rocky River, is president of the new firm and H. M. Bemer represented the Moninger Co. in the transaction.

John C. Schubert is reported to be quite ill at the Kenilworth Sanitarium. He was a brother-in-law of the late

M. F. Gallagher and succeeded him in business at the well known Gallagher stand at Wabash avenue and Monroe street where John Mangel was located up to the time he moved into the Palmer house.

R. E. Blackshaw and W. W. Randall are back from a business trip to London, Ont., where they represented the A. L. Randall Co. at the eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, August 3-5.

Emil Jehlik, 1825 South Ashland avenue, and wife will leave for San Francisco, Calif. this week to take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition. He has just bought a new six-cylinder Overland touring car.

Miller & Musser are handling a nice supply of stock of all kinds and have made arrangements with several chrysanthemum growers to handle their entire cut this season.

George Wagner and wife write from Tijuana, Mexico, that they are having a lovely time and that the flowers, palms and orange groves are a wonderful sight to see.

Joe Papacek, who was formerly in business on west Twenty-sixth street, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his brother, whose death occurred this week.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Amling Co., and family are back from a pleasant visit with friends and relatives at Cincinnati, O., and Covington, Ky.

B. Juergens and son Walter of Peoria were in the city this week on their way east, where stops will be made at all the principal cities.

Miss Florence Scriven, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is making an automobile tour of the New England states with relatives.

Jens Jensen, the landscape architect, made a trip to Detroit last week where he is improving the grounds of Henry Ford.

Richard Parker, representing Pochlmann Bros. Co., has returned from a business trip through Wisconsin.

Henry Arnold, with O. A. Tonner, is back from a delightful visit at Eagle River and Rhinelander, Wis.

D. E. Freres is giving his wholesale store a new coat of paint this week.

Miss Catherine Kidder, of the Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich., is the guest of Fred Longren and wife.

J. Russell, of Terra Haute, Ind., is the guest of his brother-in-law, Chas. Erne, of Erne & Klingel.

At Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store a new entrance is being built to conform with the new city ordinance.

Miss Nelda Wolf is back from her vacation and is again on duty at Zech & Mann's store.

Miss O'Neil, bookkeeper for George Reinberg, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Agatha Greely is now acting as correspondent for the John Kruchten Co.

Los Angeles.

Charles Gutting, proprietor of the Superior Nursery, is with the crowd at San Francisco. In addition to the convention work and the exposition, Mr. Gutting who is a bowler of some repute will enter into the games to be played there following the convention. He left the nursery in good shape, with particular stress upon the ferns. Mrs. Gutting, who is the right hand man, is taking care of the business during his absence.

Perhaps one of the most amusing papers read at the California Association of Nurserymen's meeting at San Francisco was the one entitled "The Crime of Being a Nurseryman," by Mr. W. D. Somerville, sales manager for Howard & Smith, of this city.

DECORATIONS KEEP TRADE BUSY.

Business the past week has been very satisfactory. There has been an abundance of orders for funeral work, evenly distributed, and most of the florists have been busy. The opening of the theatres and several large decorations, one of which is occasioned by the opening of the new Minneapolis Athletic club, with its 14 floors, will give trade an impetus during the coming week. W. D. Desmond, of L. S. Donaldson Co., is in charge of the athletic club decoration, which will be the most elaborate plant and flower decoration ever seen in this city. Carnations are getting scarce and roses are none too plentiful. Asters and sweet peas are seen in quantity, and gladioli are arriving in such numbers that some of them find their finish in the barrel.

NOTES.

Mrs. W. D. Desmond and party met the florists' convention train at Omaha. She will attend the S. A. F. convention and visit a number of points of interest on the Coast before returning home.

Theo. Wirth left for the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco last week, accompanying the delegation of park superintendents who visited this city en route.

Will Bros. have thrown out their carnations, after one of the best seasons in the history of the firm, both in quality of the blooms and quantity produced.

A. A. Villas, the Sunshine Florist, was married August 11 to Miss Emily Opperand at the home of the bride's parents.
T. C. R.

St. Louis.

We have had warm weather, with a full supply of everything. The prices on gladioli, which had stiffened, were again lowered by heavy shipments from Chicago. Carnations are poor and do not keep, the field grown holding up best. Asters and single tuberose are coming in freely. The rose stock consists chiefly in Pink Killarneys and Wards. There is fairly good demand for good American Beauty roses and Mrs. Chas. Russell.

NOTES.

The florists' club meeting was largely attended at Joe Hauser's place. The following officers were re-elected: Jules Bourdet, president; N. S. Wells, vice-president; Wm. C. Smith, treasurer; J. J. Beneke, secretary; Walter Rowe, Frank Windler, acting trustees. W. W. Ohweiler was elected trustee for three years, together with the other two above named. A letter from Mrs. M. M. Ayres was read which announced her resignation. It was accepted and Fred Ammann made a motion that Mrs. Ayres be made an honorary member, which was carried. A vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Hauser for their hospitality. Refreshments were provided. The September meeting will take place at Weber's Nursery, September 10.

A meeting of the wholesalers was held at C. A. Kuehn's store, where it was decided that on and after September 15 the wholesale houses would close every evening at six o'clock, including Saturday, and would remain closed Sundays all winter.

John Nyflot has completed three houses, one for calla lilies, one for chrysanthemums and one for bedding stock; also new heating apparatus.

Al. Gumz is in full charge at the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., Frank Windler having gone to the S. A. F. convention.

Washington,

The market is still crowded with stock (such as it is) and much of it has to be thrown away. Carnations are in short supply and are poor in quality. Asters and gladioli are on hand in immense quantities—in fact, form the bulk of the stock in the stores, and meet the eye at every turn.

NOTES.

E. R. Soundersbury, an employe of the botanic garden, met with a severe accident last week while driving one of the garden wagons. He is laid up in a local hospital, but from latest reports is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mrs. G. Suppin, saleslady for Gude Bros., left for her vacation last week and will visit New York and vicinity. She will be away about a month. W. Halle of the same firm is enjoying a needed rest in the country.

Miss Louise Daugherty, bookkeeper for Geo. C. Shaffer, is enjoying her vacation cruising along the Atlantic coast, aboard one of the finest yachts in these waters. They say Louise is "some sailor". Yes?

Superintendent George Hess, of the United States botanic garden, has returned after a visit with Senator Broussard of Louisiana. He is looking his best and says he had the best vacation ever.

Elmer Maybury, manager of the Dupont Floral Co., is having the store repainted and brightened up preparatory to the opening of the fall business.

J. H. Van Zant, bookkeeper at the botanic garden, is spending his vacation in Tennessee.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club met in regular session at R. M. C. Rohl's Alta Vista Nurseries, August 12. A walk over the grounds proved very interesting and showed everything to be in splendid condition, and the marked improvement over a year ago showed the owner to be a progressive member. The meeting was called to order by President Harry Bills and in addition to general routine business the picnic committee presented their report, which was on motion approved and the committee consisting of Wm. Knees, Jr., A. Anderson, G. Garsen, J. Hanssen and J. Staack, were extended a vote of thanks for the very satisfactory way in which the outing arrangements were carried out. A vote of thanks was also given to Ludwig Staap for furnishing the excellent music which was a feature of the day. Ex-President John Staack was appointed a committee of one to attend the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Peoria, August 31, with a MEDIOCRE QUALITY STOCK IN OVERSUPPLY.

"Valley is valley and orchids are out of sight"—the first being handled by the bunch and the cattleyas one at a time. There is no time of the year when they are as scarce as at present. As regards lily of the valley, how about the coming season? The latest reports say there are to be no azaleas; last season it looked bad for a time, but finally a plentiful supply came through all right, both of azaleas and lily of the valley. German seeds are arriving by parcels post almost daily and it is hoped that there will be some way out at least for the lily of the valley. Asters are offered in large quantities; the quality of the majority of the stock is only fair, although some growers are shipping light grade stock. Gladioli are on the wane. There are still more than the market can handle without waste, but the glut is past and good stock should bring a fair price. Hydrangea paniculata is now very plentiful and much in evidence in the store windows. Roses have shortened up a bit, white particularly being scarce. Wards, Sunburst, Maryland and Mocks are the leaders, with a fairly good supply of eastern and local American Beauties. The stores report very little doing the past week aside from the ever present demand for funerals.

NOTES.

With the example set by the Cleveland brethren, as shown by the prospectus of their coming fall show, and later by the Chicago bright lights for their grand fall flower festival with a guaranteed premium list of $10,000, it behooves the Philadelphia brethren, with the prestige of the great national show on their hands, to get together and boost, and work up public interest in every possible way. To be successful there must be a record attendance. In its every department, this show is to excel; our growers are noted as prize winners in all prominent floral exhibitions the country over, and the show under their management should be at least one step ahead of all those that have gone before.

This is convention week and not a delegate from this city, outside of the gentlemen from supply houses. California appears to be prepared for the coming of all the rest of the nation, and the convention will no doubt be a success. There is an abundance of talent west of the Rockies, which together with the few bright lights of the east and middle-west, captained by President Patrick Welch, are sure to keep the grand old S. A. F. moving forward.

The Vollers House of Flowers looks very chic with its decorated front in white and red. Red and white striped paneled boxes below and above the windows and the addition of a row of large tubs above the sign on top of the building, all filled with evergreens, makes a striking display. A red and white striped awning is also a very conspicuous feature.

Improvements in the retail shops are going on during this dull season. The London Flower Shop, Eighteenth and Chestnut streets, has connected the second floor with the first, with a wide

GOOD ASTERS ARRIVE AND SELL WELL.

At last some really good asters are arriving on the local market, and these are much in demand, good stock cleaning up daily on advance orders; of the smaller sizes there is still an over-abundance. A few very select dahlias are to be seen and are also in demand. "Don't wait until I order—send them over," is what one retailer said. It will take a few cool evenings to harden the dahlias, after which they will keep better. Other outdoor stocks, which meets with a good demand, are summer lilac, larkspurs, snapdragons, phloxes and achilleas. Roses, especially pink and red, are scarce, while white roses (Kaiserin) are a little more plentiful. A few belated sweet peas and carnations are arriving, and are fairly good stock. Water lilies are not much in demand. Lily of the valley is plentiful, sufficient for all requirements. Easter and Japanese lilies have been plentiful. String smilax is not equal to the demand. American Beauties are in good supply, with a fair call, and the stock is good. Gladioli are the same as last week, plentiful, with prices ruling rather low.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

There was little change in the cut flower situation during the past week. Roses of the better grades were a little more plentiful, but there was no increase in the demands. Prices on special American Beauties dropped off to $15 and $20. The shorter grades of tea roses were very cheap. Lily of the valley did not go very well toward the last of the week. Gladioli and asters continue in the spot light.

June 16. — With continued hot weather, the market is very slow. The supply of roses is increasing, but not the demand. There is a surplus of asters and gladioli. Dahlias are now beginning to appear. Orchids continue in light supply.

SPECIAL CLUB MEETING.

In compliance with a call issued by President Bunyard, a special meeting of the above named club was held in its rooms on the evening of August 16. In the absence of Secretary Young, who is in San Francisco, John H. Pepper acted as secretary pro tem. By a unanimous vote, an invitation was extended to the Society of American Florists to hold the convention of 1916 in the city of New York.

The flower show committee on a show in New York in the spring of 1916, reported and their report was discussed at length. The committee was continued and the subject matter of their report went over as unfinished business.

NOTES.

From Madison, N. J., comes the interesting news item that Miss Nellie Hentz and Alexander Schultz were married August 10. The bride is the daughter of Henry Hentz, Sr., of Madison, who is head of a firm of cotton brokers at 22 William street, this city. A brother, Henry Hentz, Jr., is a well known grower of Madison and a member of the firm of Moore, Hentz & Nash, of this city. The groom is well known here, having formerly been in business as a rose grower at Madison. For some time past he has been superintending the estate of his bride's father.

Will our San Francisco friends kindly look after Wallace R. Pierson, John G. Essler and Oscar Boehler, who are representing the florists of this section at the exposition and S. A. F. convention. They are a long distance from home and being good men we would hate to lose them.

S. Jacobs & Sons, greenhouse builders of Brooklyn, are making good progress on the new greenhouse they are erecting for C. C. Trepel on the roof of his store at Broadway and 89th street. When completed it will add a very attractive feature to that locality.

Vaughan's Seed Store has been displaying on its counter for the past three weeks complete sets of high-class named gladiolus, from 30 to 50 different kinds being shown every day. Many interested amateurs make notes every morning.

William P. Ford has just returned from a week spent at his Pennsylvania farm, and visiting other points. He reports that excessive rains have damaged carnations and other stocks in the fields.

A number from this city attended the outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society at Rye Beach, N. Y., August 10. The day was fine and there was a good attendance.

Anton Schultheis, the well known plantsman of College Point, accompanied by Mrs. Schultheis, is attending the S. A. F. convention and the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Alex. M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania Terminal florist, is now quite busy, his two clever assistants, William Scharf and William Trepp, taking turns on vacation.

Harry Riedel of Badgley, Riedel & Myer, is on his vacation. Among other events that he intends to cover is the clambake of the Albany Florists' Club, August 21.

While John Young is absent in San Francisco, his partner, George Hildenbrand, is kept quite busy. Good roses are now a feature at their store.

B. Frank, formerly of Brooklyn, who recently sold out to his brother, will open a retail store at Broadway and 94th street, September 1.

Victor Alzen, salesman for P. F. Kessler, is just tickled to death over the arrival of his first son. All are doing well.

Paul Meconi is taking advantage of the dull season to have his store thoroughly repainted and renovated.

Joseph J. Levy, the 26th street wholesaler, is summering with his family in Sullivan county, N. Y.

Miss Rose Graffman, the popular bookkeeper at J. K. Allen's, is away on an extended vacation.

Angelo Dentale, of Young & Nugent's staff, has returned from his vacation.

C. Albert Small and Mrs. Small are at their summer home, Sea Gate.

Buffalo.

Death this week claimed two members of the craft that have been identified with the trade for many years. Louis Rapin, of Pine Ridge, who from boyhood has been connected with the florist and nursery trade to some extent, but of late years devoting nearly all of his time to real estate in the vicinity of his home, passed away. He was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity. The other death was that of William Waring, Sr., who has been in the employ of the Wm. Scott Co. for over 30 years, and who was well known to all the trade, old and young, and whose jovial disposition won for him hosts of friends. He will be missed by all who were fortunate to know him.

This city is not represented in great numbers at the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco this year, but the weight and intelligence are there, and Postmaster Kasting, who is also treasurer of the florists' national organization, and William Mansfield will be sure to let everybody on the Pacific coast know that Buffalo is on the map, and is a good town to be "put off at."

There has been no change in market conditions worthy of note during the past week. It might be mentioned that we have had two pleasant days, however—something out of the ordinary. Stock is plentiful and of average quality, but with the exception of funeral work, which was plentiful last week, everything is quiet.

The manager of the florists' bowling club will call the "champions" together about September 10 and start practice for the match game to be rolled in Cleveland between Rochester and Buffalo—and it is going to be "some game," too.

Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, Pa., was a welcome visitor this week, as were also Steve Green, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of the same city, and Wm. Johnson, of the Burlington Willow Ware Co., Burlington, Ia.

Miss Edna Grubin, of S. A. Anderson's force, is spending her vacation at Akron, Ohio.

THE SEFTON MFG. CO., 1333 W. 35th Street CHICAGO, ILL.

Long Beach, Calif.

The Long Beach Horticultural Society will hold a fall flower show in the Auditorium, October 21-23, where all classes of flowers, plants, shrubs, bulbs, fruits, etc., will be included in the exhibition. For further information as to entries, etc., communicate with the secretary, Samuel Whitford, 1508 Appleton street, Long Beach, Calif. The society holds its meetings in the public library on the third Thursday of each month.

Mira Mar Nursery shows signs of good business. In the field the most striking thing is the rows of pink cannas; from their appearance they look like Hungaria. Hans von Hofgaarden, the proprietor, is taking his vacation at San Francisco, attending both the conventions of the California Association of Nurserymen and the Society of American Florists, as well as the exposition.

The greenhouse of A. G. Adams, proprietor of the Long Beach Nursery, is well stocked with ferns, coleus, aspidistras, begonias, fuchsias and Ficus elastica. In the yards, one of the most curious plants was a Ponderosa lemon tree in an eight-inch pot; foliage about a foot over the top of pot with two mature lemons. There are also some fine specimens of Liliun speciosa.

Loses' Flower Shop is showing some elegant ferns, asters and amaryllis. The exterior and interior of the shop are odd and pleasing. From the front, out over the sidewalk, is built a beautiful pergola, covered with birch bark; the inside wall supports are also covered with the bark, and at the top of each support are branches from the birch tree.

The Acme Nursery reports business good, considering the season of the year, with better prospects for fall and winter. The nursery is well kept and shows some fine roses, dahlias, cannas, and Princess gladioli, also a magnificent stand of primulas.

Arthur Falkenhayn, who was formerly superintendent of parks, has severed his connection, and will soon start in the nursery business in this city. H. S. K.

Atlantic Highland, N. J.

John Bennett has sold his Hillside greenhouses to his son, William H. Bennett, and will hereafter devote all his attention to his nursery and landscape work. He has recently increased the area of his nursery and has a fine stock, California privet being noteworthy. William H. Bennett is growing a general stock and doing a retail business. A. F. F.

Navesink, N. J.

The Navesink Greenhouses comprise a neat range and there is a good variety of stock necessary in their retail business. A. De Vestry is for the present managing the business. A. F. F.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer, Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

VISITED NEW YORK.—M. Koster, of Boskoop, arrived on steamer Rotterdam, August 15.

GROWERS of onion sets at Chicago, who have part of them in the crates, say the sets are not showing rot as yet.

THE movement of Chinese narcissus bulbs from Amoy is reported blocked because of lack of trans-Pacific freight shipping facilities.

NEW YORK.—The Holland-American line advises that no bulbs from Rotterdam have arrived within a month except a few sample cases.

HOLLAND reports of August 1 indicate that Dutch bulbs will be from two to 20 days late in moving this year because of heavy and continued rains.

DUTCH advices say that the mails are being delayed again, correspondence from England requiring four days, from France nine days and from Germany 11 days.

PERMITS for the shipment of 50,000 bags of beet sugar seed from Germany to the United States have been issued by the British government after lengthy informal negotiations conducted by the state department. All shipments will be consigned to the secretary of agriculture, who will distribute the seed to growers.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., and family, returning from a Pacific coast trip; Alfred J. Brown, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Henry Windheim and son, Omaha, Neb.; Carlos J. Jensen, representing L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., Odense, Denmark; A. T. Ferrell, Saginaw, Mich.; Alfred W. Hincks, representing C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif.

ONION SETS at Chicago had two fair days last week, and the fields were filled with harvesters Monday forenoon. A heavy rain fell Monday afternoon, and all work is off indefinitely. It is reported that some lots are molding in the crates; other fields will not be harvested because the tops already show decay.—Three days now (August 19) without rain and the lifting of the set crop is being pushed with all possible speed. In some fields more than 125 workers are busy.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade August 18 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.00 per 100 pounds.—Rudolph Feige, cashier, employed by the Leonard Seed Co., of this city, was robbed by two highwaymen of a satchel containing the pay-roll of the firm. The money was insured and the company has been reimbursed for the loss. Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Clark and family of Wakeman, Ohio, arrived in this city Friday, August 13, returning from a trip to the Pacific coast. Early Sunday morning their daughter, Harriet, was stricken with appendicitis and operated on at the Washington Park hospital, where on Wednesday she seemed to be progressing favorably. Mrs. Clark and daughter Hazel remained here.

The Late John M. Clark.

John M. Clark, secretary of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, died last Sunday morning, August 15, at 5 o'clock, following an operation for ulcers of the stomach. He was at the office Tuesday as usual, but was taken quite sick Wednesday and by night his condition was so serious that he was removed to the Suburban Hospital for an operation, which was performed Thursday night.

He was born at Kirkcubrightshire, Scotland, May 8, 1860, and came to this country at the age of seven, locating near New York City, where he received his schooling. He first worked for the clothing firm of Brooks Bros. of that city and later started in the seed business for Cowan & Co., of New York, and afterward worked for the Robert Buist Co., of Philadelphia, and J. C. Vaughan at Chicago. He went to work for S. F. Leonard about four months after he started in business, and was later elected secretary of the firm, a position which he held up to the time of his death. He was well known to the trade in this city, as well as elsewhere and was recognized as an authority on vegetable and garden seeds, and for many years was a member of the state board of agriculture. He attended many of the conventions of the American Seed Trade Association and had a host of friends throughout the country to whom his death will come as a sad surprise.

The Late John M. Clark.

The funeral was held from the family residence at 5954 West Huron street, Tuesday afternoon, August 17, and the remains were laid to rest in the family lot at Forest Home Cemetery. It was largely attended by seedsmen, florists and private gardeners and the many beautiful floral offerings that were sent to the home show the esteem in which he was held by his fellowmen. John C. Leonard, vice-president and A. H. Smith, treasurer of Leonard Seed Co., and three other employees, C. S. Carlisle, Gus Schloyer, Edw. S. Reynolds and James C. Oram, a relative of Mr. Clark, acted as pallbearers. Mr. Clark is survived by his wife, daughter Marguerite, age 16, and two sons, James and Leonard, age 27 and 22, respectively.

Dutch Crop Reports.

Hyacinths.—Crop fair; some well shaped bulbs, but not in the same large quantities as in 1914.

Tulips.—Quality medium. There is report of good demand from England for various varieties as the prices at Covent Garden market were much higher last year than formerly.

Crocus.—Quality medium.

Narcissus.—Crop and quality good.

Scillas.—Good sized crop, up to the average.

Gladiolus.—Gandavensis type. Acreage planted was smaller than usual because of reduced prices. The crop appeared promising on August 1.

Spirea.—Prices have been so low in recent years that growers are discontented and the acreage somewhat curtailed.

Iris.—Crop excellent.

It rained every day the last half of July and the bulbs can be seen exposed to the weather on the top of the ground. Such weather is most unfavorable for the curing of bulbs and containing the moisture they do it would be unsafe to ship early. Even with good weather, shipments will hardly begin before August 20.

Imports.

During the week ending August 14 imports were received at New York as follows:

The SS. Rotterdam brought 384 cases. Many were, however, of French origin.

Vaughan's Seed Store, 375 cases bulbs, (Marseilles, France).

F. B. Vandegrift & Co., 74 cases bulbs, (Marseilles, France).

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., 11 cases bulbs, (Marseilles, France).

Stump & Walter Co., 225 cases bulbs, (Marseilles, France).

R. F. Feist, 300 pounds clover seed, (Bordeaux, France).

Maltus & Ware, 1090 cases bulbs, (Marseilles, France).

Burpee's Winter-Flowering Spencer Sweet Peas

Originated at Fordhook Farms and grown at Floradale Farm.
Absolutely fixed—true to color and type.

We began hybridizing the original Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas, namely, Burpee's Earliest of All (Christmas Pink), Burpee's Earliest White, Burpee's Earliest Sunbeams and Burpee's Re-selected Earliest of All with the finest varieties of the summer flowering Spencers at our FORDHOOK FARMS in 1909. It is, however, quite a slow process to thoroughly "true" and "fix" these seedlings, and it being against the principles of our business to put any novelty on the market in an unfixed condition, we are offering only two varieties at present. The stocks of these, we know to be absolutely fixed, true to color and type. After our crops are harvested we may be in a position to offer, in a limited way, several other winter-flowering novelties, particulars of which will be found in Burpee's Annual for 1916.

FORDHOOK PINK

This is the result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1909. The color is a beautiful shade of rose-pink on white ground; the coloring deepening towards the edge of the standard and wings. The flowers are of largest size, exquisitely waved and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Unsurpassed for cut flower trade. Awarded Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.35; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$2.25; per oz., \$4.00.

FORDHOOK ROSE

The result of a cross made at our Fordhook Farms in 1910. This lovely novelty is a charming shade of rosy carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long stiff stems. Awarded Certificates of Merit at the INTERNATIONAL SHOW, New York, March 20, 1915, and at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915.

In sealed packets containing twelve seeds each. Per pkt., 25 cents; $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.35; $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., \$2.25; per oz., \$4.00.

YARRAWA

The Sweet Pea par-excellence for Winter Flowering under glass.

We were awarded Certificate of Merit for this superb novelty at the INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, in New York, March, 1914, at the Spring Show of the PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia, March, 1915.

YARRAWA is an easy and good "doer," invariably giving an excellent account of itself whether grown in pots, boxes, raised benches or solid beds.

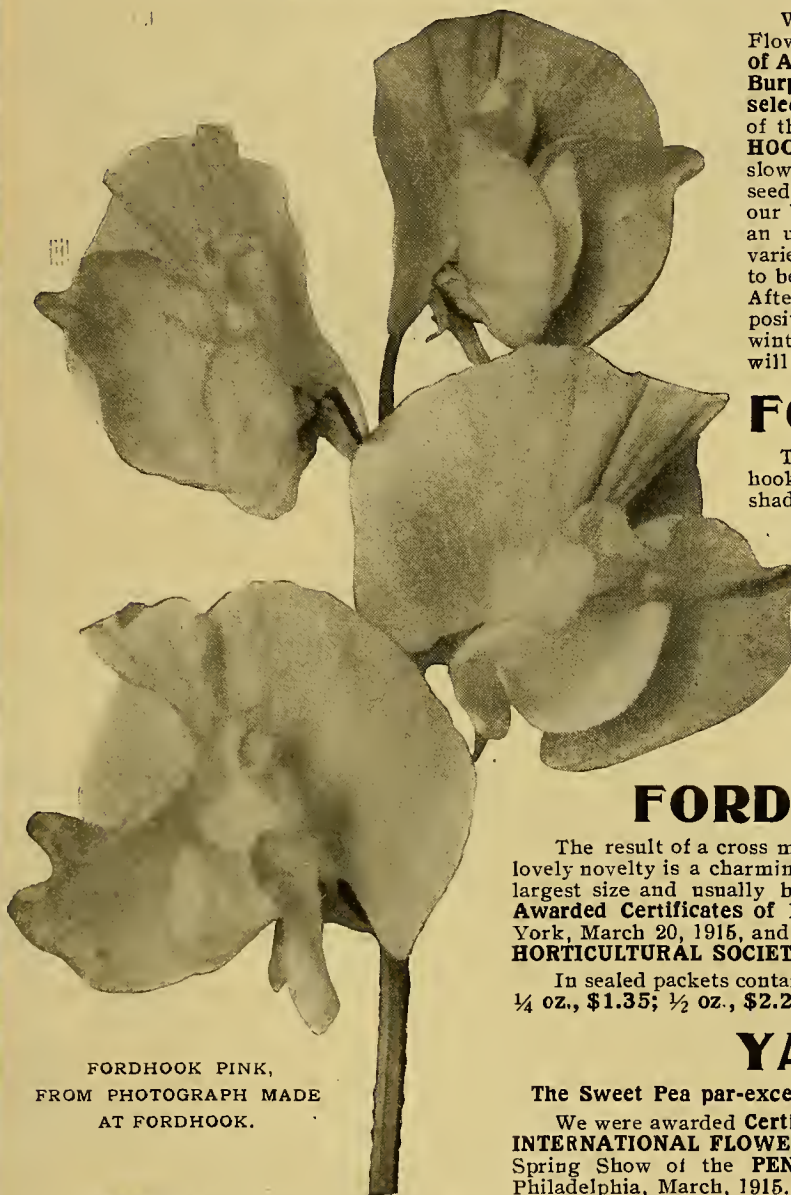

YARRAWA has the heavy foliage and rank strong growth of the summer-flowering type and is a true winter blooming Spencer. From seed sown early in October at Fordhook Farms, the plants came into bloom December 20th and flowered profusely until May. The flowers are exquisitely waved and when well grown will average two and one-half inches in diameter, many of them being duplex, or double flowered, thus adding greatly to the general effect of the bunch. They are borne usually in fours on extra long, strong stems. The color is a most pleasing shade of bright rose pink, with light wings.

Floradale-grown seed exclusively— $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.00; per oz., \$3.50; $\frac{1}{4}$ lb., \$12.50; lb., \$45.00.

Winter Flowering Sweet Peas Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "roguing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

Novelty Yarrowa

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long, stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., 1/4 oz., 50c.

Selma Swenson

A beautiful clear light soft pink waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson, and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

Rose Queen

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

WE are in receipt of a beautiful specimen of "Ray" peach, above medium in size and fine color, from the Harrison's Nurseries, Berlin, Md.

Texas State Horticultural Society.

A meeting of the Texas State Horticultural Society, consisting of three sessions, was held at College Station, August 2-3, in connection with the state farmers' congress. An interesting programme had been arranged, which was well received. Regular business of the society was transacted, and the election of officers resulted in the selection of the following: Fritz Englehardt, Eagle Lake, president; Eltweed Pomeroy, Donna, vice-president; G. L. Blackmon, Dallas, secretary-treasurer. J. H. Arbenz, Sarita, was named as representative of the society on the executive board of the farmers' congress.

California Nurserymen's Convention.

The fifth annual meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen, in conjunction with the thirteenth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, was held in the new Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, Calif., August 12-14. The meeting was characterized by a representative attendance of nurserymen, horticulturists and plant lovers from San Francisco and contiguous territory, augmented by many interested visitors from a distance.

The meeting was called to order by President Fred M. Howard of Los Angeles, and applications for new memberships was the first order of business. Following the address of the president, the report of the secretary was presented, followed by the appointment of the convention committees. Both the forenoon and afternoon sessions Saturday, August 14, were given over to the reading of papers and discussions, and expressions of views on matters pertaining to the betterment of the organizations and the uplift of the nursery business. Among the interesting papers on the programme were the following: The Department Store and the Nursery Industry Interests, by Ernest Braunton, Los Angeles; Recent Rulings in re Shipping Plants by Parcels Post, by D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; The Crime of Being a Nurseryman, by W. D. Somerville, Los Angeles; Why Import What We Can Grow On This Coast? by M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.; Do We Need New Varieties of Commercial Fruits? by Edward J. Wickson, San Francisco; A Publisher's Suggestions to Nurserymen, by Frank Honeywell, San Francisco; For the Good of the Association, by A. T. De La Mare, New York.

Monday, August 16, was designated as "Nurserymen's day" by the officials of the Panama-Pacific exposition, and appropriate features added to the pleasure of the delegates. Following the close of the meeting the visitors were invited to visit Southern California and the San Diego exposition.

The Late Col. G. B. Brackett.

Col. G. B. Brackett, for 18 years chief pomologist of the United States department of agriculture, whose death which occurred at Washington, August 2, as chronicled in these columns, issue of August 7, was born of Quaker parents in Unity, Me., emigrating at an early age with his parents to southern Ohio, where he received his education in the public schools, finishing in the high school of Cincinnati. From his father he inherited a strong desire for outdoor life among fruits and father and son went to Iowa, where they established a nursery and fruit farm. From Denmark, Ia., he volunteered to command a company in the Civil war, and his splendid work was highly praised by both Grant and Sherman.

After the war he returned to the nursery and fruit farm, took an active part in public affairs, served on numerous commissions in matters representing the state, more especially agriculture and horticulture, and attracted the attention of national pomologists in 1876, when he made an especially attractive exhibit of wax models, the work of his own hands, of Iowa fruits, at the Centennial exposition. The United States department of agriculture became much interested in the possibilities of fruit models and in 1891 he was invited to prepare models of the fruits of the United States for permanent reference use in the department and also for use at expositions. Later, 1896 or 1897, he became chief pomologist and remained such until his death, being relieved of executive duties during the last two years.

Though a fighter in fighting times, Col. Brackett was a gentle, warm, full-souled, winsome character that attracted the "peace-loving people" of his later days as strongly as it did "the men of steel" during the days of his youth. In civil life he will be longest remembered for his genuinely good advice about varieties of fruit, importance of good tillage, good spraying, effective grading and packing, and about a host of other matters pertaining to fruit-culture. He has written numerous short articles for the pomological societies, journals, reports and proceedings, and several bulletins upon specific orchard problems. As an active member and some time secretary of the American Pomological Society, he will be greatly missed by a host of fruit growers throughout the land. Not alone in America but in Europe as well, will there be sadness at his departure. In 1900 the Government of France conferred upon him that exceptional honor, Chevalier du merite agricole, for distinguished services to agriculture, especially in pomology.

DAYTON, O.—A meeting of the Montgomery County Agricultural Improvement Association, the Florists' and Gardeners' Association and other interested dealers, was held August 7 for the purpose of framing a new market ordinance.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, August 17.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 25 to 30 cents; radishes, $1.25 to $2.00 per 100 bunches; asparagus, 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 25 cents; tomatoes, 4 baskets, 35 to 75 cents.

New York, August 17.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 10 to 35 cents; cucumbers, 25 cents to $1.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per 2 dozen crate, 50 cents to $1.25; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Tomato Insects.

Under the title of "Tomato Insects," the University of Florida agricultural experiment station, Gainesville, has issued Bulletin 125, which will be sent free to anyone interested upon application to the station. The booklet is illustrated and treats of the life history and methods of control of over 20 species of pests that the tomato is a prey to. A list of other plants numbering nearly 50, which are also subject to infestation, is also given.

Among the insects mentioned in the bulletin are the following: Boll-worm, thrips, cutworms, horn worms, aphids, flea beetles, blister beetles, white-lined morning sphinx, army worms, grasshoppers, suckfly, tomato whitefly, plant bugs, miscellaneous insects, and also two diseases to which the tomato is susceptible, root-knot and white mold.

Vegetables Contracted for by Cannery.

Reports received by the Bureau of Crop Estimates for cannery of the United States indicate that the acreage this year for canning purposes of sweet corn is about 4 per cent larger than last year, of peas 18 per cent smaller, and of tomatoes 10 per cent smaller. These estimates are based upon the following totals:

Product.	Number Reporting.	Acreage.			Per Cent.
		1913	1914	1915	Increase.	Decrease.
Corn	25	139,455	131,135	145,138	4	..
Do	239	119,146	131,135	10	..
Peas	179	88,096	81,758	72,544	..	18
Do	162	83,707	81,758	2
Tomatoes	530	97,226	87,654	10
Do	708	150,484	141,825	6

According to the most recent figures of the United States Department of agricultural, 1,305,000 tons of hay, valued at $17,626,000, are brought each year into the 11 southern states. In other words, the South produces only four-fifths of the hay that it consumes and imports the other one-fifth.

Spraying Diseased Plants.

There is a widespread belief that spraying, to be effective, must begin before diseases get a start. This is only partly correct. While we cannot recover lost ground, nor make a sick plant well by spraying, we can check the spread of blight, often sufficiently to secure our crop. We have proved this to our satisfaction on melons, tomatoes and celery. In the case of melons, blight often attacks a field just as the fruit is maturing, and if left alone, a lot of inferior fruit is the result, while with careful spraying the foliage can be preserved long enough to mature most of the fruit in good shape. This is true of tomatoes.

It is a serious mistake to believe that the loss of foliage on tomato plants is beneficial to the fruit—they may ripen in color, but the quality is inferior. If only part of the foliage could be saved until the main crop has been gathered, it would be a large gain. Last year we interplanted early cabbage with Golden Self-Blanching celery. Owing to the great growth of cabbage, we could not spray the celery until the cabbage was marketed. By that time the celery was almost dried up from the effects of blight. We started to spray twice a week, and after several weeks, once a week, and raised a fine crop of celery by November. What is needed in such cases is constant attention—every few days to carefully cover all new growth made.

Root action goes hand in hand with foliage, hence any foliage saved means increased root action. The mistake commonly made is that operators expect one spraying to turn the trick.

BEGONIA "GLORY OF CINCINNATI" (As it looks in December)

NO Winter-flowering plant of recent introduction has given better satisfaction for the Holiday trade, to the florist and customer alike, than this beautiful Begonia when properly grown; it lasts in bloom in the residence for a long time, and gives satisfaction.

We have this season a fine lot of young thrifty plants to offer (the best we ever had), strong plants from 2½-inch pots ready for 4-inch, at $18.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1000; extra heavy plants in 4-inch pots ready for 6-inch, at $40.00 per 100; these will make fine specimens for the Christmas Trade.

What plant can you grow that gives you better and quicker returns?

'A BIRD IN THE HAND'

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS

For example. We offer:

- Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches.....at $25.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 5 and 6 branches.....at 20.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 4 branches.....at 15.00 the 100
- French Novelties, all the best ones, at 5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes!!!

They are all in six inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 in addition for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

Irvington, N. J.

Irvington is so near to Newark that it is somewhat overshadowed by the big sister, but it is a very promising young city, or town, and is growing rapidly. At present our chief interest is in its florists, there being a large and thriving colony of growers.

E. W. Fengar, whose range is known as the Irvington Greenhouses, has about 80,000 square feet of glass and grows a variety of stock. At present he has an immense stock of chrysanthemums coming on (about 35,000 plants to be exact) and they look very fine. About an equal number of carnations have just been planted, and thus a heavy crop of cut flowers may be expected. In the field there is a large lot of geraniums, salvias and other bedding plants, which will be utilized for getting up a large stock for next spring's business. Edwin Persson is the very capable foreman of this range.

While we believe that the address of Hausmann Brothers is Hilton, they are so near to Irvington and so closely related to it in a business sense, that they must be included. They have a well built range, in which carnations, sweet peas and other stock is grown. Their place is famous for its dahlias and their stock comprises the finest varieties. They are likely to exhibit at the approaching dahlia show in New York, and they have been first prize winners at previous shows.

In one block on Springfield avenue there are four growers. They are John L. Pfeufer, Charles Deisler, George Deisler and Ernest Helms. All these men have neat ranges and seem to be prosperous.

R. Plebany & Son are having a new house 32x100 feet, erected, which will be planted to sweet peas. This house will give them 20,000 or more square feet of glass.

E. Jacobi has a neat range and grows a variety of stock, also conducting a retail store. Of late he has been cutting fine stock of Gladiolus America.

William Haas & Son, 79-85 Halstead avenue, are good growers and find a ready market for their stock.

William Gahr has greenhouses on 40th street, but his specialty is the retail trade.

Nashville, Tenn.

Summer quietude hangs over the flower market in this city. Trade is extremely quiet, with the exception of funeral work, which is always more or less in order. Flowers, too, are scarce and the quality is none too good. Some lilies are still seen on the market and asters are a stand-by for most purposes, while gladioli, with odds and ends, serve to fill such orders as occasionally come in. A most protracted and distressing drought has prevailed for some weeks past.

NOTES.

In a recent issue of a southern publication, Nashville was spoken of as the largest and best flower producing market in the south. Without exaggeration there are a wonderfully large number of flowers grown in this city and vicinity.

The Joy Floral Co. has a very clever summer decoration in its show window, simulating a Florida scene, with lake and alligators, white sand, southern moss and tropical plants. It looks cool and attracts much attention.

The McIntyre Floral Co. has abandoned its branch store uptown until a more propitious season.

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

THE CUSTOMER'S INTEREST FIRST—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horsepower). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell principle to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
"THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY"

Our Boilers were installed to heat 2,304,450 sq. ft. glass in 1914 is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

The Kroeschell

13,468,320 sq. ft. of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years.

The Kroeschell

has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

The Kroeschell is sold direct from factory to users. This eliminates the unnecessary middle-man's profit.

Every Boiler Made at Our Works is of the Highest Standard

MATERIAL—governed by Kroeschell specifications—the best that money and brains can produce. WORKMANSHIP—the kind that is an inspiration to all other boiler makers. BOILER EFFICIENCY—determined by actual tests under working conditions. BOILER RATINGS—honest and true blue—guaranteed actual working capacities.

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned, we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is manufactured and sold only by KROESCHELL BROS. CO.—We have no agents, and as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

Get the Kroeschell First.

In 1911 I purchased a No. 1 Kroeschell boiler to heat our uptown plant and can truthfully say that this boiler has given entire satisfaction, as it does the work so easily.

At our other place we had a large cast iron sectional boiler; two years ago we cracked two (2) sections and but for the mild weather would have lost everything before we could make repairs. That experience was enough for me to show me that the cast iron boiler man has the best of it when I went to him for new sections, as they could only be gotten from him and he made the price to suit himself. So this year (1913) I thought I would take no more chances, so we just installed a No. 5 Kroeschell. I can get better results with the Kroeschell than with any other boiler I have ever fired. I believe if the Kroeschell were better known amongst the growers generally they would use no other.

The Closing Sessions.

There were two candidates for the secretaryship when the members assembled for the election of officers at the morning session, August 19, and everyone was looking forward to a warm contest. The candidates were John Young, the present incumbent, and John R. Fotheringham, the well-known traveling man of New York and San Francisco. Mr. Fotheringham is very popular with the trade east as well as west, but he dashed all their hopes when, in what he characterized as "the best interests of the society," he withdrew his name, thus making the election of all candidates for office unanimous. By this magnanimous course Mr. Fotheringham not only strengthened all the old ties of friendship, but added a host of new names to the already long list. When it is realized that much of the preliminary work of the Fourth National Flower Show has been done by Mr. Young, the full significance of Mr. Fotheringham's withdrawal will be appreciated by every member of the society.

Most of the business following the election was of routine character, the striking exception at this session being a discussion of Mothers' day methods, arising from a question as to the best treatment of the plants to insure an increased supply of white carnations for this day. While no unusual way of increasing the supply of white carnations was disclosed, many well-known members gave their views on Mothers' day advertising, including Messrs. Gude of Washington, Ward of Eureka, Coles of Kokomo, Hill of Richmond, Mueller of Wichita, Smith of Cleveland, and others, the majority of the speakers being in favor of the exploitation of all kinds of flowers and even plants, for this occasion. J. J. Hess, of Omaha, here raised the question of a suitable reward for Miss Anna Jarvis, the founder of Mothers' day, and after considerable discussion, the matter was referred to the executive committee.

The genuine interest taken in the proceedings throughout, and the large attendance at all the meetings, must afford President Welch and the local trade much gratification. Many of the convention veterans, some of whom have attended most of the annual meetings since the organization of the society at Chicago in 1885, say the San Francisco convention, in point of enthusiasm and attendance at meetings, was the most successful they can recall. The trade exhibition was perhaps the only disappointing feature, but when the times and the great distance most of the regular exhibitors had to ship, are considered, the display was quite creditable. The exhibits were of fine quality and their display all that could be desired.

Friday, August 20, had been designated by the officials of the Panama-Pacific exposition as S. A. F. and O. H. day, and the closing exercises of the convention were held on the exposition grounds in front of the Palace of Horticulture, when Director Vogelsang, on behalf of his exposition associates, addressed the members and presented the commemorative bronze tablet of the exposition to the society.

C. W. Ward's Response.

C. W. Ward responded with an excellent statistical record of the progress of the trade during the life of the society. His address follows:

Mr. Director of the Panama-Pacific exposition, President of the Society of American Florists, Ladies and Gentlemen, and Fellow-members:

We have listened with the greatest satisfaction to the kind and hospitable welcome extended to us, and we have fully appreciated the many compliments bestowed in the address just given by the distinguished director of this greatest and most successful of all national expositions and we fully appreciate the gift of this splendid tablet.

No doubt Mr. Vogelsang has become somewhat accustomed to flowery bouquets of praise, consequently I am inclined to make my remarks simple and homely, and shall not endeavor to round out the expression of our appreciation of your most kind and hospitable entertainment in grand figures of speech, but will dismiss that part of my address with the simple declaration that we are all satisfied, and delighted. We do not think you could have done better. We came to your State of Golden sunshine, to your peerless city and to your grand exposition—We have seen, and acknowledge that we have been conquered. It has been my privilege to visit all except three of the national expositions held in the United States since 1870, and I am free to say that the Panama-Pacific outclasses them all. There is no need to tell you this over and over again. You will hear it many more times before the exposition closes, and you will know that it comes from the heart, for no one from east of the Rockies, or from anywhere else can visit your beautiful state, and partake of your generous and kindly hospitality, without being glad that he is alive, glad that he has had the opportunity to partake of your life in the golden west. Two years ago I came to California ill and discouraged. I expected to remain only a few weeks. I am still here, ill and discouraged no more, but happy and well and anxious to do things. If any of my brother florists do not want to catch that spirit of California, which will bind them to the shores of the Pacific, better go back home soon—you can't remain here many moons without contracting a deep love for California, and once you fall in love with her, you can not break the spell of her charms with ease; you will have to come back and finally remain.

Now I hope I have convinced Mr. Vogelsang that we fully appreciate the magnificence and greatness of California, but I am not sure that he as yet fully appreciates the importance of our Society of American Florists and its subsidiaries, nor the benefits which California florists will derive from our visit here, and begging your pardon for reading, I will give Mr. Vogelsang a little idea of what the Society of American Florists is, what it is doing for the general welfare, and how it has grown during the past 30 years from a tiny acorn to a grand and stalwart oak.

The Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, the only association of its kind possessing the unique distinction of having a national charter, was organized in 1884. Its original membership of 30 has now increased to over 2,000.

There are in existence seven subsidiary national societies with over 100 members each, namely:

Chrysanthemum Society of America, organized in 1889.

American Carnation Society, the strongest of the subsidiary societies, organized in 1891.

American Rose Society, organized in 1899.

American Peony Society, organized in 1903.

American Sweet Pea Society, organized in 1909.

American Gladiolus Society, organized in 1910.

American Dahlia Society, organized in 1915.

There are three kindred associations, viz.:

American Association of Nurserymen, organized in 1876.

American Seed Trade Association, organized in 1883.

Florists Hail Association, organized in 1884.

There were 33 national and sectional horticultural and floricultural societies and 58 local florists' clubs and societies in existence in 1909.

The following statistics show the growth of the florist industry since the S. A. F. was organized in 1884:

Ohio	2,357,000
California	1,374,000

Among the principal flowers used by commercial florists, carnations and roses stand first and practically equal in importance. The annual value of each of these flowers consumed running into several millions of dollars—violets, sweet peas, orchids, dahlias, gladioli, peonies, lily of the valley, Holland bulbs and a host of other flowers, as well as palms, ferns, cyclamen, begonias, heathers, hollies, ardisias, asparagus and other decorative material, make up the balance of the great sum of $50,000,000, the probable present consumption of florist products.

In the matter of Christmas greens alone millions of dollars are expended. The southern states furnish wild smilax, holly, galax leaves, ferns and various other evergreen foliage, cut Asparagus plumosus, long moss and air plants which are collected in immense quantities. The northern states furnish ferns in variety, lycopodium, wintergreen, mosses of various kinds, Christmas trees and evergreen branches in equal abundance.

The Pacific states furnish vast quantities of Oregon grape, huckleberry foliage, Mexican Ivy, ferns, madrona, bay or pepperwood, camphor, California red berry and much other material. Rhododendrons and azaleas are collected in large quantities in New York, Pennsylvania, the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia. Large areas of Christmas trees are cultivated in Maine, Michigan, New York and other states.

The florist industry is constantly ransacking the world in search of new and rare decorative plants to satisfy the constantly growing and critical demand of the flower-loving American people. The jungles of South America, Africa, India, the Philippines and the East and West Indies are compelled, by an army of collectors to yield up their treasures in orchids, the annual trade value of which runs into many figures. The hybridizer plays a most important part in creating new features in florists' flowers as the great improvements in the carnation, rose, peony, gladiolus, sweet pea, pansy and dahlia as well as many other plants bear ample testimony to.

California, though possessing by far the most favorable conditions of any of the states for the successful production of florists' stock, such as bulbs of all kinds, rhododendrons, azaleas for forcing, other broad-leaved evergreens, as well as coniferous evergreens, palms and ferns, stands seventh on the list in sales. Californians should organize a live, wide-awake state association and correct this inequality in the value of their florists' productions and also reduce the value of imports from foreign countries. A very large proportion of the azaleas and rhododendrons and coniferous evergreens now imported from Holland, France, Belgium and England, can be grown in California and the same is true of much stock now imported from Japan.

BETWEEN THE "HIGH JINKS" AT THE SAN FRANCISCO CONVENTION OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Thursday Evening, August 19, 1915.

In all probability the holding of this convention in San Francisco will stimulate California florists and nurserymen to wake up and organize a live wire association and this will result in a marked increase in the value of their respective productions. Already large industries are contemplated, which if successful, will produce large values in azaleas, rhododendrons, evergreens, ornamental plants and bulbs of many kinds which are now imported from other lands.

In the practical working out of its mission this society maintains standing committees on legislation and tariff, transportation, and a committee to encourage beautifying school grounds and maintaining school gardens where premiums are offered locally in order to awaken the love of flowers and the beautiful in the young. Convention gardens are established in those cities where it holds its annual conventions, many of these remaining permanent. Extensive experiments in floriculture are carried on with governmental aid and supervision at Washington. A national flower show is annually held in some large city where an extensive list of premiums is competed for, these premiums amounting to many thousands of dollars.

Viewed from its commercial standpoint the florist industry is of very great importance and ranks high among American industries, but its practical value to the American people is far greater than its commercial importance would indicate. Flowers help us to enjoy the fullness of real living. They cheer the bride at the beginning of her dual journey through life, giving her a light heart and kindly feelings towards all mankind. They encourage the young graduate, make perfect the ball room and festive board, and welcome the tender babe. Finally they enable us to bear up under grief and sorrow and reconcile us to the loss of those nearest and dearest to us.

Today flowers are no longer a luxury. They are a necessity to the full enjoyment of life at its best. They broaden one's view of life and exert a refining influence at all times and contribute as much, or more, to the happiness and welfare of the human race as any other one thing and their reasonable use should be encouraged and increased—certainly not discouraged.

Following the address of Mr. Ward, which was listened to with much interest, the proceedings terminated with the adoption of final reports and resolutions. Before the gathering dispersed to view the exposition, however, President Welch and his good lady were apprised of the appreciation and esteem of their associates in the presentation of a handsome silver set by Wm. F. Kasting, the president responding with much feeling.

While the eastern friends of the society are surprised and pleased with the success of the convention, dazzled with the scope and splendor of the exposition, and amazed at the magnitude and beauty of John McLaren's work in transforming the huge, shifting sand dunes of the Pacific into Golden Gate park in all its superb loveliness, not forgetting his artistic setting of the convention garden, the thing that will remain most deeply graven on the hearts of the visitors, is the cordial welcome and firm handclasp of the Pacific coast trade and the royal burst of entertainment, culminating with the glorious "high jinks" at the Elks' hall, when President-elect Dan MacRorie was awarded the prize for securing the record list of new members, 126 in number.

Report of Judges of Trade Exhibition.

Your committee on awards begs to submit the following report:

We find only two entries for competition, also a number of exhibits worthy of consideration; we therefore recommend that a certificate of merit be awarded to H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for their elaborate and instructive display of new and novel florists' baskets and supplies.

We recommend that a certificate of honorable mention be awarded to the

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for a large and interesting display of florists' accessories and novelties.

The committee also highly commends the elaborate trade exhibit of florists' supplies of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

We also recommend certificate of merit for the high quality exhibit of novel ribbons and also baskets exhibited by S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

To Domoto Brothers of San Francisco, Calif., the society's bronze medal for new double hydrangeas.

We further recommend the society's bronze medal be awarded to H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for new and novel ideas in baskets.

To Richard Diener of Colma, Calif., the society's gold medal for improved and unusual gladioli in sizes and color.

The Ferneries, San Francisco, Calif., certificate of merit for exceptional high class collection of ferns and palms.

To Henry J. Kessel, honorable mention for Fern California.

Superior Nursery Co., Los Angeles, Calif., certificate of merit for ferns.

The Swiss Floral Co., Portland, Ore., honorable mention for exhibit of rare well grown petunias.

The society's bronze medal to Herbert & Fleishauer, McMinnville, Ore., for exceptionally large and finely grown asters.

Mrs. F. J. Reidy, San Jose, Calif., bronze medal for exceptionally fine and meritorious display of dahlias.

J. A. Peterson & Son, Cincinnati, O., silver medal for Begonia Mrs. J. A. Peterson.

John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind., bronze medal for new detachable pipe hangers.

Advance Company, Richmond, Ind., certificate of merit for general display of ventilating apparatus and greenhouse accessories.

Final Resolutions.

Whereas, The officers and members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists in thirty-first annual convention assembled in the City of the Golden Gate during its exposition year, have enjoyed to the utmost that magnificent hospitality which is peculiar to the California coast, and have had every want anticipated, convenience and comfort afforded, by our hosts of San Francisco and the Pacific coast, and

Whereas, The manifold labors incident to the preparations for this convention and our entertainment while here have been most efficiently performed, and have been contributed to by so many of the citizens here as well as by our brothers in the trade and allied industries, that it would be invidious to select individuals out of the many deserving mention, therefore, be it

Resolved, That individually and collectively, we, the visiting members of the society and our ladies, with grateful appreciation, tender our unstinted thanks to our hosts, one and all, including his Honor, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., the officials of the Panama-Pacific exposition, the various committees of the city and state local organizations, the nurserymen of this locality, and all others who have contributed to make our stay here so enjoyable, that we will carry home remembrances of the many kindnesses shown us which will linger like the perfume of the California flowers blooming beneath its cloudless skies.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

The ninth annual meeting of the Ladies' Society of American Florists was held at the Panama-Pacific exposition, San Francisco, Calif., on the morning of August 18. Mrs. Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., president of the society, in opening the business session, said:

It is with much pleasure that I welcome you to this, the ninth annual session of the Ladies' Society of American Florists, and I extend to each of you a cordial and heartfelt greeting. We are assembled here to consider the work of the past year and to make plans for the future. May our deliberations be guided by wisdom, and may this session be so filled with good work that nothing will mar the harmony of the occasion. May our past experiences help us to improve our present opportunities. Keeping in mind at all times the saying that it is good for men to dwell together in unity and practicing that, it is even better for women to meet and confer together in harmony, sincerity and devotion to our cause, assisting the men in their able calling by enabling us to make them brighter and happier by the inspiring influences gathered at these meetings. And so when we return to our homes from this convention, may we all feel better and happier for having met, refreshed in health and spirit, and better enabled to pursue our duties for the coming year. May good health, happiness and prosperity ever abide with you.

The reports of the secretary and of the treasurer were presented, showing a substantial increase in membership and the finances of the society in good condition.

At the election of officers, the following were chosen to serve during the ensuing year: Mrs. John Vallance, Oakland, Calif., president; Mrs. W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind., vice-president; Mrs. Robt. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex., second vice-president; Mrs. Geo. W. Smith, Cleveland, O., secretary; Mrs. A. M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., treasurer.

Texas Florists Appreciate Convention Honor

The florist trade of Houston, the state of Texas and the craft in the south generally, are elated over the selection of Houston as the S. A. F. convention city for 1916 and plans are already being discussed for future work in an effort to make the next gathering of the society the greatest in its history. In acknowledging the honor, Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, vice-president elect of the society of American Florists, writes: "I want to express for Texas and the florists of the south, our gratefulness for this convention, and I assure you we are going to try to make this the greatest annual gathering the society has ever held. We propose to give it all possible publicity and pull hard for a large attendance. We have the support of the Chamber of Commerce, the city of Houston as well as the Rotary Club and other civic organizations, and this support will be a great help when it comes to entertainment.

"We want to call your attention to the fact that we have one of the largest auditoriums in the south for convention and exhibition purposes. We have a citizenship that has never left a thing undone to make visitors enjoy their stay in our city. We have many side attractions which make it worthwhile for conventions in Houston. Our future work will show that we are not unmindful of this great honor, and we feel that we are deeply indebted to our many friends for their hearty support."

The Necessity of National Publicity.

A paper by Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, presented at the thirty-first annual convention of the Society of American Florists, San Francisco, Calif., August 17-19, 1915.

This subject has been given to me and I will try and treat it from the standpoint of secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, an association which has done a great deal of work in the way of publicity. So far, of course, every member has been doing his or her share in their different localities to draw their patrons', or would-be patrons' attention to the telegraph or out-of-town service, and the results gained in the past few years, were very much beyond expectation.

This much for the introduction of the points which I will bring out now. If the florists throughout the country can be indorsed by a national advertising campaign, drawing the public's attention to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery shops all over the country, and the public impressed that F. T. D. does not stand for telegraph orders only—no, it must stand for the best in service, prompt pay, sure and honest delivery that can be obtained in the florist trade of today.

Immediately after reading the above lines you may think that I am too much F. T. D., but that is not at all so. Just remember that every good retail florist in the United States and Canada has the same right to join the F. T. D. and work with us, not alone for his or our benefit, but for the good of the florist trade. Today you may consider the F. T. D. a pretty good organization of the sales department in the florists' trade, and if you want to make a start for a national campaign, you will have to get a body of retailers who are businesslike enough to see the benefit of such a campaign and who will have to get up a fund to spend for this advertising, and this fund must be guaranteed before any attempt at spending it is made. This campaign must go through periodicals as well as daily local papers.

For many years this relaying of orders has been, you might say, limited to steamer deliveries in New York or for funeral work, but the day is here when this relaying can be applied to every occasion for which we sell flowers in our shops. Many a retailer has shipped flowers from his town for one hundred or more miles and felt that he would rather make the sale than relay the order; has he gained anything by so doing? No, he has hurt the florist trade in almost every instance. These shipments have arrived poorly, where, if the man in the respective town would have made this delivery the patron would have received the full value for his money beside the advertising of the florist out-of-town service.

Do not forget for one moment that you may do $10,000 worth of advertising and then not be able to deliver the goods right and faithfully. By such methods you will do more harm than good to the florist trade. I, therefore, advise, first of all, before any national advertising campaign is done to investigate who can handle and deliver the goods the best and so back up his advertising. I would hate to think that an order sent by me to a brother florist in another town would not be handled as conscientiously as I would want to fill it myself.

There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that our florist trade is still the least advertised of many a trade, but it seems a lot of retailers are waiting for someone outside the trade to advertise their goods and you may rest assured they surely will have a long wait coming. If we had 500 retailers around the country like Henry Penn and a few others who I could name, who have spent money on a large scale for advertising and yet doing this cautiously, the whole florist trade would gain a lot, but just now, instead of being thankful to such men, what do a great many narrow, jealous retailers do? They knock, criticize and run down the many advertising florists; at the same time they forget that if all the people they have made flower buyers of, would go back to their shops for everything they need, they could not handle the business. Many a man or woman have I induced to use flowers on their tables and if all would come and trade with me alone I would not care to handle all that amount of business.

Let each retailer make up his mind to cultivate a want for flowers at occasions where people now do not think of using flowers instead of watching with jealous eyes his florist neighbor's store and criticizing his way of doing business and we all will be better satisfied aside from being better men and better florists. I think it is folly for the New York men to dictate to the man in Detroit how to advertise. It is a much safer way for each man to study a plan or system of how he can get the most publicity in his locality. After this is done an indorsement of a national campaign is absolutely in order, but before that it would be throwing away money.

National advertising is a good deal like co-operative advertising. It is up to a few to do the work to the best of their ability and even after they can show the best results it is hard for the few to collect the money from the others. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that Mothers' day would never have become the great benefit to the florist trade had it not been for the florists in their different localities taking this proposition in hand and following it up so that some day I hope Mothers' day will become the same as Easter or Christmas is to the florist trade. Yet, ask the fellows who do the actual work, and see and hear what they have to say about plugging to get even a hearing with some of their brother florists. You might be surprised when I tell you they sometimes almost have to beg and plead for the other fellows to come in with them, aside from doing the hard work, and I venture to say right here, if they were unsuccessful and did not get the results they would never be forgiven and even the best of us can make a misjudgment sometimes. Cleveland is going to have a big flower show next fall and the way they go at the advertising is a study worth while being appreciated by a great many.

In the florist trade not just one or two individuals will get the largest benefit from same and the men who are doing the work should be honored and appreciation shown to them by their brother florists and I sincerely hope they will get this without any curtailing. If publicity and advertising in the florist trade will help in increasing as it has within the last five years I can safely state that in another five years the florist trade will be on more of a business basis than it is now. The time has past where a merchant or business man could not be a florist unless he was a graduate from a greenhouse. Today the most prominent retail florists have graduated from merchants' offices or business institutions. The grower, of course, does not like this as well, but let the grower raise a pretty plant, or cut flowers, then add the artistic taste of the up-to-date retailer, and let him place it in his method on the market, and watch the success.

The success of the Ford automobile organization is not so much the mechanic who puts the machine together, but the merchant's ways of publicity—the office, the clerical and financial departments which have had more to do with the upbuilding of this organization and thousands of other large and successful concerns that have been built up in this country, and in every case you will find that the largest part of the publicity was studied out by not so much the practical and theoretical man, as the man with the most modern up-to-date business ideas. Of course I have to come back to my first saying, that advertising must first start by getting up an article which will stand on its merits, and which you can fully back up before you reach out for the publicity.

I could keep on writing on these lines, but the same substance will always lead me back to my first saying, that before we can think of national advertising campaign, we must have, first of all, representative retailers in every town, who will back up our preaching and give the best of service, followed up with a prompt payment of their bills and not allow them to run along for three, four or six months, or even longer. There are so many florists in this country who seem to forget that prompt payments of bills is one of the greatest reputations a man can get. After all, it is nothing else but business like.

Yours in hope that within the next few years advertising publicity will be increased so that no town will ever be able to report in the florists' trade papers about a glut or overstock of the market. It is up to the retailers to get rid of the grower's production, not up to the grower.

Permanent Convention Gardens.

Paper by Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn., presented at the thirty-first annual convention of the Society of American Florists, San Francisco, Calif., August 17-19, 1915.

There can be no question as to the importance and desirability of arranging for convention gardens wherever our annual meetings are to be held. The usefulness and value of such gardens as a medium of publicity and education will not be doubted by any one who gives the subject due consideration. There is, to the best of my knowledge and belief, no great difficulty in establishing such a garden for each convention, and the only real problem, it seems to me, is to make it permanent. This necessarily is a question which, in the main, must be solved by the local promoters of the garden. The same spirit that was employed in its creation, should be able to solve the question of its future existence, permanency and growth.

I have, in the past, presented the question whether or not it would be possible to select the convention city two years in advance, instead of one, in order to provide for two years' growth of the hardy material, which could be used to advantage in the planting of the garden. Personally, I wish this could be done, because I realize the great and resulting benefits that would accrue; and I believe that all plantmen will agree with me. There can be no doubt but what the value of the gardens, from every point of view, would be greatly enhanced by this additional time given them in preparation; and that the interest of professionals and the public alike, before and after, as well as during the convention, would be correspondingly increased. However, if this plan is not deemed feasible, there is still one advantage open with the present arrangement, which has not been made use of in our past undertakings along this line.

If our brother florists and horticulturists of the city, ambitious of securing the next convention are real anxious to have the best garden thus far made, they will select a piece of land for that purpose, far in advance, and will submit a well arranged plan to the convention at which they make their bid for the next meeting. If they land the prize, they should prepare the grounds at once, and secure without delay all planting material that can be transplanted to advantage in the fall. In this way, most of the perennials, shrubs and trees will be well established in the spring, and make a very good showing by convention time.

Early solicitation amongst prospective exhibitors is, for many reasons, absolutely necessary. A time limit should be set for allotment of space in the garden, and the special attention of such prospective exhibitor must be called to this. All space not applied for by a certain date, should then be offered to nearby and local growers with a slightly extended time limit. This limit should be set so as to give the committee in charge an opportunity to secure suitable planting material for filling the unsold spaces in the garden in good time. It is absolutely necessary, in my opinion, to give the committee in charge of the garden all necessary power and means, and to concentrate the actual directions and supervision in one active, experienced, dependable man. Tell this man to go ahead, and then do not interfere with him; but give him all the assistance he needs, when he asks for it. I believe it would be a good investment, generally speaking, to send him on a two months' trip to visit personally the principal growers in all parts of the country for the purpose of soliciting exhibits. Let him start right at the convention. The right man will thereby awaken the general interest of the trade and secure the desired support; correspondence would not be nearly as effective.

I cannot lay too much stress on the necessity of giving all exhibits the best possible attention and care, and of guarding the interests of the exhibitor in every possible way. Be sure that he gets the space he bought; that his plants are properly labeled, and his firm's name is properly displayed. Give him all he is entitled to and as much more as you can. It is too much to expect that very many distant firms will keep up their exhibits after the convention year. Yet some of the wide-awake and progressive growers will undoubtedly be glad to permanently make use of our gardens and thus exhibit their goods and special novelties in different parts of the country at the same time. In most instances, it will, therefore, become desirable and necessary, after the first year, to change the layout of the garden and to devote the larger part of the grounds to hardy material, and a much smaller portion to the tender annual bedding plants. This we have now done at Minneapolis and the new layout will be as beautiful and instructive to our people from now on as the real convention garden was to us professionals two years ago.

The convention garden must, in my opinion, always be created and maintained under the auspices of the national society. The price for space should, if at all possible, be the same wherever the garden is, and same should be high enough to defray the expense of maintenance. The chairman of the local garden committee should be appointed a member of a similar committee of the national society and as such could act as the executive officer of both committees.

Our esteemed president, Patrick Welch, has assigned to me the subject herein presented, but I am not sure that I have covered the ground to his entire satisfaction. There are really no great problems, no great obstacles, that I can see, attending the establishment of permanent convention gardens, and I believe that if the old saying—"where there is a will, there is a way"—is applied at all times, there can never be any doubt as to our ability to establish such convention gardens wherever we may go, and to make them successful in every instance.

The Aster as a Cut Flower.

The month of August, and early September is aster time, when they have the field largely to themselves. They come at a time when there is not much doing in the world of flowers, but with their variety of form and color and good lasting qualities, they are made welcome and given the place of honor in the last month of summer.

The most important work at this time is the demand for funerals for which this flower, with its beautiful shades of lavender and purple, is especially fitted. We know of no more effective arrangement in flowers than a solid wreath of dark purple asters, relieved with a cluster on one side of lily of the valley or lily of the valley and cattleyas. A spray of Sunburst roses on such a wreath makes a very striking piece. A wreath of all lavender or lavender and white asters is also effective. On wreaths of dark magnolia leaves, the aster in almost any color makes a very finished and showy piece. If the magnolia wreath is well made, from a half to a third may show, the balance being decorated with asters and the piece will probably be considered more artistic than if almost covered. A solid ivy wreath, decorated the same way, with dark purple asters is very appropriate for the funeral of an elderly person. A standing cross of purple asters, with a loose showy foot of purple and white, and the center of the cross decorated with lily of the valley and white roses, with perhaps a garland of the same flowers hanging across the arms, make a handsome large design.

A casket cover of asters (we would hardly call it a blanket) should be an important part of an elaborate funeral order. The simplest form and of easy construction is made on a foundation of smilax. Set up a board the size of the casket top on pot covers on the work bench, across which strings of smilax the right length to hang down and cover the casket are laid side by side. These are wired together with long pieces of No. 22 wire wrapped around each string from one end of the cover to the other; about six lengths of wire four inches apart, from edge to edge of casket, will be enough. Be careful not to tie the leaves of the smilax in with the wire. On this are wired the flowers with little if any stem. They can be placed fairly close together, the weight of the flowers on the side strings will keep them hanging straight. The ends of the casket can be finished with short pieces of smilax fastened to the top to look like the sides. If the cover is purple, a cross or wreath of white asters in the center makes a good finish, or if white, a purple or lavender cross should be used.

The double spray is most useful as a casket cover where the blanket effect is not desired. This is not at all difficult to arrange. Simply make two large rather loose long sprays and bring the ends together so as to leave but little space to be filled up. Bind the stems firmly, and then fill in with similar flowers to those used in the clusters. These should be stemmed on sticks, when they can very readily be stuck into the rather bulky mass of the stems. A nice ribbon bow, the rather long ends woven through the flowers from the center of the cluster, makes a nice finish; laid on and fastened to a double pair of cycas leaves, the points of which project slightly beyond the ends of the sprays, they are a worth while addition and also useful as a support.

For sprays the aster is especially useful, all the choicest sorts or varieties of asters, with their stout stems and perfect flowers in the various shadings making ideal arrangements.

The gladiolus works up very well in combination with asters. America gladiolus, lavender or purple asters, and with Mrs. Ward or Sunburst roses near where the ribbon is tied, if nicely arranged, will produce an effect that will please most customers. The ostrich plume or tasseled asters make very showy sprays when loosely arranged. A lovely shade of pink of this type makes up into a spray that would be singled out in any number of pieces. Asters also make a very good crepe spray, as lasting as carnations.

To change the subject, but hold to the lovely flower, these same plume asters are wonderfully fine for wedding flowers, the white for the bride's bunch and the pink for the bridesmaids'; the tassel-like form lends itself particularly to the shower bouquet. The various shades of pink and white are fine for house decoration, there being nothing better than choice asters as a vase flower.

When cut flowers are ordered for the sick room, the aster is the flower for this purpose; all colors combined are sure to make an attractive gift. When sent to the hospital it is best to arrange them in a bunch ready for the vase. This saves trouble for the nurse, who may or may not have the time. Try and have them delivered early rather than late in the day, as there will be at least one good day of freshness which might not be the case if not well cared for over night.

Asters should have the stems cleared well of foliage immediately after they are received, as that which is immersed so soon fouls in the water. To prevent this shake a few drops of formaldehyde in the water; two or three to six drops is enough to a gallon of water. This prevents fermentation and will do away with the slimy stems so often seen with asters that have been kept over one day.

American Gladiolus Society.

SIXTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

Under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association, the American Gladiolus Society staged its sixth annual exhibition at the Casino, Newport, R. I., August 18-19, and the show was magnificent—a marvelous aggregation of superb varieties, wonderfully rich in color and substance. The floor, stage, galleries and two long balconies were completely filled with magnificent displays, and a remarkable feature of the exhibition was the thousands of blooms that came from far distant places, but having the appearance of having been freshly cut. So many and varied, and of such uniform excellence were the exhibits that the judges were unable to complete their work the first day.

The exhibition was arranged in several sections. Entering at the main door the hall was laid out with three rows of tables on aisles extending the entire length of the room, while space at the side walls was completely filled with blooms in varied arrangements. The exhibit of Charles F. Fairbanks, president of the American Gladiolus Society, which was augmented with palms and ferns from the greenhouses of Governor R. Livingston Beeckman, was magnificent, caught the eye of the visitor at once and held it. This display, however, was not in competition. Opposite, at the end of the hall, the entire space was arranged by B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., who staged a gorgeous display, and which was awarded first prize for best collection and arrangement.

The upper west balcony was devoted largely to the trade exhibits, prominent among which were displays by Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., and A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., the introducer of the ruffled type of gladiolus. Both of these gentlemen were present and the courteous treatment extended to the many who called upon them and the valuable information given in reply to inquiries were a pleasing feature of the show. Other exhibitors in this section included John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y.; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland; Heather Home Garden, New York; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., who took second prize for best collection and display, and Chamberlain & Co., Wellesley, Mass. Passing to galleries of the main hall, a grand display of palms, ferns and gladioli from the gardens of T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., and which occupied the entire main gallery, was the attraction, while on the side gallery the exhibits in the amateur classes were staged.

The general attractiveness of the entire arrangement of the show was enhanced by tall, graceful palms, hanging baskets of ferns, cedar trees and made up lattice, covered with oak leaves and all tastefully placed. The exhibition was said to be the finest in the history of the society.

The following are some of the varieties in the list of first prize winners:

Best six spikes, white—Europa.
Best six spikes, pink—Panama.
Best six spikes, yellow—Sulphur King.

Best six spikes, red—Princeps.
Best six, any other color—Loveliness.
Best 25 spikes, white—Alaska.
Best 25 spikes, red—Mrs. Francis King

Best 25 spikes, yellow—Mongolian.
Best 25 spikes, blue—Baron Hulot.
Best 25 spikes, pink—Panama.

Most artistically arranged basket—America.

What was thought on good authority to be the pick of the show was a new seedling originated with A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind., and exhibited by L. Merton Gage, Natick, Mass.; color, creamy pink.

The best outstanding varieties in several large displays in the Fairbank's exhibit were Titanic, Golden King, Loveliness, May Fennell, Rochester, America, Panama, Schwaben, Pride of Goshen, Pink Perfection and Mrs. G. W. Moulton.

In the collection exhibited by B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass. Niagara, Primilinus, Apollo, Glory of Holland, Pink Perfection, Loveliness, Rogue Troch, Schwaben and Madame Butterfly were the outstanding varieties.

The display of Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., was a grand showing of advanced types of Primilinus hybrids in shades of pure yellow, white, cream and orange; also a new variety, Evolution Perfectus, of a delicate rose-pink shade, with lower petal splashed with white. Outstanding were the varieties War, Peace and Dawn.

In the Kunderd collection were shown some of the new Primilinus hybrids now offered for the first time, Alice Tiplady, large and grand of most beautiful orange saffron color, and Primunella, a beautiful, ruffled, butterfly orchid-like flower, seeming to be the best outstanding. Among the 1915 novelties of the new ruffled type were the following: Kunderdi Glory, creamy apricot tinted pink; Jules M. Fairbank, blue; Red Amaryllis, brilliant blood red; Mrs. Frank Pendleton, bright rose pink, and Myrtle, pink, all of which are exquisite.

Outstanding in the collection staged by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., which was in charge of the firm's representative, John S. Hay, were Cardinal, Eugene Lefebvre, Henri Lemoine, Mme. Monneret Sully and La Couronne.

From a bird's-eye view of the main hall, the writer picked Mrs. Dr. Norton, Rochester White, Hulanda, Loveliness, May Fennell, Florence, Titanic, Apollo and Panama as being outstanding.

It was said that the reason for so few entries by local growers being made was due to the fact that, owing to the magnitude of the show, an impression existed that there would not be room for all, and the few that did enter fared well. President Mackie of the Newport Horticultural Society, entered in the open class with 25 red and captured first prize; Miss Fanny Foster won first for the best 36 spikes, and Mrs. Weld's collection also was first. Mrs. W. W. Sherman's dainty centerpiece, arranged by Andrew Ramsay, gardener, also received first prize.

The judges were James Wheeler, Natick, Mass.; James Leestraten, Sax-onville, Mass.; William Andrews, Sterling, Mass.; Bruce Butterton, James Robertson and Andrew S. Meikle of Newport, and while the high character of the displays made their work difficult, the decisions were very satisfactory. T. A. Havemeyer, manager, and Henry Youell, assistant manager, assisted by Alexander MacLellan, Bruce Butterton, William Grey and others, accomplished an enormous amount of work in the arrangements, and it must be very gratifying to these gentlemen that their efforts were crowned with such deserved success, for which both members of the society and visitors alike are duly appreciative.

Two exhibits, one from Munsell & Harvey, Ashtabula, O., and one from A. H. Austin & Co., Wayland, O., arrived in good condition, but too late to be judged. The former firm showed Hazel Harvey, a handsome, glowing, red variety, and the latter staged a seedling, Evelyn Kirtland, a strong-growing pink.

Two of the larger exhibits were arranged by Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy and Miss Rosa Gurtler. Both of these ladies were indefatigable workers and showed artistic taste of the highest order. They were also first to have their exhibits staged.

The judges were some time in making the award in the class for the best arranged basket or hamper of not more than 25 spikes, as there were eight entries in this class. A vase filled with Niagara, with the appearance of having just been picked from the field, entered by Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, and tied with ribbon, was awarded first honors, and a hamper filled with America, arranged with a ribbon bow, shown by J. G. Leiken's Newport branch store, second. The judges' task did not end here, however, for it was found that the Tracy exhibit was one spike over the limit of 25, which disqualified the exhibit and gave the Leiken's entry first prize. Mrs. Tracy, however, received a special award of a silver cup for the artistic arrangement of her hamper.

The subjoined verses were composed by Alexander MacLellan during the exhibition and dedicated to T. A. Havemeyer of New York:

When the rose has had her day, and shed;

The sweet peas straggled off to bed,
Then wakes the gay, but not frivolous,
Bold and aggressive gladiolus.

Her sword leaves, long, two-edged and sharp,

Straight as a string, without a warp,

The flower spikes tall of stately mien,
In beauty's realm a reigning queen.

The annual meeting of the society was held in the governors' room at the Casino. It was voted to have the meetings hereafter biennially instead of annually. The executive board recommended New York as the next place of meeting. Votes of thanks were extended to Messrs. Bruce Butterson and T. A. Havemeyer. The following officers were elected: Charles F. Fairbanks, Boston, Mass., president; Theodore A. Havemeyer, New York, vice-president; Henry Youell, Syracuse, N. Y., secretary; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind., treasurer. Executive Board—Henry Youell, A. E. Kunderd, Theodore A. Havemeyer and Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y.

THE AWARDS.

Open Class.

Best six spikes, white, any variety—C. F. Fairbanks, Boston, Mass., first; T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., second.

Best six spikes, pink or any shade of pink—C. F. Fairbanks, first; R. W. Sweett, Saxtonville, Mass., second.

Best six spikes, any yellow—Galen Stone (Arthur E. Griffin, Supt.), first; T. A. Havemeyer, second.

Best six spikes, blue or lavender—C. F. Fairbanks, first; T. A. Havemeyer, second.

Best six spikes, red or shades of red—R. W. Sweett, first; C. F. Fairbanks, second.

Best six spikes, any other color—B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., first; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., second.

Best collection, 10 varieties, six spikes of each—B. H. Tracy.

PLANT NOTES.

Dahlias.

As the cool nights approach it pays to make preparation to cover the best varieties and protect them from the early frosts. Generally the first frosts are followed by two or three weeks of pleasant warm weather, when flowers are more or less scarce, the outside stock being cut down and the greenhouse stock not being yet in full crop, and a supply of dahlias is a great boon at such a time. See that the plants are properly labeled so when it comes to lifting time there will be no mistakes made. A good large label placed beside each root with the correct name is essential in growing this crop. This label can be tied on to the root when the clumps are lifted and all danger of misnaming be obviated. Keep the plants securely tied to the stakes so that the high winds which are prevalent in the fall cannot break the plants down or the branches off.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

The plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine should now be making active growth, the bud shoots starting and the plants taking on shape. The earlier struck cuttings will now be fine plants in five and six-inch pots and will need a center stake to keep them erect. It is yet too early to tie the plants into shape, but if any of the branches are long enough to hang over the edge of the pot, they should receive some support. These branches hanging over the edge of the pot are in the way when watering and if the leaves get wet, it takes some time for them to dry off and many will become spotted, and besides the branches grow crooked and are much harder to tie into place later on when this will have to be done. Keep the plants in a good warm house from this on until the buds begin to show color, when they can be placed in cooler quarters, but do not keep the house too close. Give a little ventilation every day possible. If kept too close and moist some of the foliage will spot and be ruined. Constant light fumigations will be necessary to keep down the green aphid. These plants do not like heavy fumigation but light fumigation carried on frequently will keep the vermin in check and not damage the plants. These insects must be conquered before the plants begin to bloom or they will cover the young blooming shoots completely.

Violets.

The single violets should be planted in the houses now as soon as the beds are ready. In lifting the plants in the field try to get a good ball of earth with the roots and avoid as much as possible the roots becoming dry. These roots are very soft and succulent and if they become too dry new roots will have to form and it will take some time for the plants to become established in their new quarters. The better way is not to try to handle too many plants at a time, but to lift a few and plant them out at once. When the plants are lifted all the runners should be removed and the plants as soon as set should be well watered. They should then be shaded during the warm days, the length of time necessarily depending upon how quickly they will take hold in the new soil. Give the plants all the air possible but avoid draughts if possible until they begin to show growth.

Fall Propagation.

There are many of the plants used for bedding purposes that are better propagated in the fall, for cuttings are more readily obtained, root easily and allow time for the growing of good stock. Ivy geraniums, to have fine plants in the spring, are much better propagated at that time. Vincas for the spring sales propagated in September make fine plants by the first of May. The long shoots can be cut up to two eyes each and they will root in three or four weeks, then potted in 2½-inch pots and kept cool until February, when they should be potted into 4-inch pots and grown along the sides of the beds or benches. Abutilons should be handled in a similar manner. The tender tips should be used for the cuttings, and these should be kept well watered and shaded until roots are formed, when they can be potted and kept cool until towards spring. The pelargoniums that were cut back and dried off in August should now be made into cuttings and should be taken and placed in the cutting bench. There are also many plants that the stock should be looked out for at this time and a few plants lifted and housed before frost. Many growers prefer to raise their salvias from cuttings and in this case a few plants can be potted and grown on. Any extra good double petunias should be lifted. Pyrethrum or feverfew, coleus and the other soft wooded plants should be selected and potted that they may become established before cool weather.

Sweet Peas.

The early sown sweet peas will soon need some support, and the plan most generally adopted by growers with peas inside is to pass strings around the plants fastened to stakes at each end of the row. If the rows are lengthwise of the bench stakes to which the strings may be fastened will have to be arranged about every ten feet. As soon as the plants have attained a height of six inches the first string should be tied on and strings should be added every six to eight inches as the plants grow taller. The plants must be kept growing straight throughout their culture, so they must have strings quite close together for their twining arms to catch upon, and if when the plants are in bloom they are not kept tied up a large number of the flowers will have crooked stems. Care must yet be taken with the watering and until the plants show active growth, they should receive but little water, being kept on the dry side. If allowed to be too wet, stem rot will result and the plant will die. If sweet peas are to follow the early chrysanthemums the seed can now be sown. Three or four seeds in a 4-inch pot will be right for this time, for they will have to grow in the pots about six weeks, the middle of November being about as early as the chrysanthemums can be cleaned out and the beds made ready. Careful watering will be the watchword for the young seeds and do not thin out too early. Wait until the plants are in good growing condition, when they can be thinned out to one plant in a pot.

Anemones and Ranunculus.

The grower desirous of having something out of the ordinary in early spring should grow a few anemones and ranunculus. The bulbs are inexpensive and will help to increase the variety at a time when the flower users are looking for something that they have not seen all winter. No doubt failure in starting these bulbs has caused many growers to give up the attempt of their culture, but if once understood they are as easily grown as any other of the bulbous flowers. The bulbs should be planted in flats close together and covered with about half an inch of soil and then placed under a bench in a cool house. Under no circumstances water the soil or place them where water will drip upon them, for if they become wet they will surely rot. Place papers over the flats to prevent evaporation and in about three weeks the bulbs will throw out roots and the tops start. They can then be placed in pans or in the benches and grown as any other bulbs are handled.

Cyclamens.

In order to have nice large plants of cyclamens for another year, now is the time to sow the seed. This can be deferred until later and the seed planted at any time until the first of the year, yet it is much better to start them early and obtain a nice well-foliaged plant full of bloom in a 6-inch or 7-inch pot than a smaller plant with but a few blooms and flowers, which is sure to be the result with the later sown seed. Soak the seed for about 24 hours in tepid water and place the re-ceptable in a warm place, and plant in flats about one-half to three-quarters of an inch apart and there will be need for but little further labor until later in the winter. Be sure and have a light porous soil with a good proportion of leaf mold. The plants that are to be in bloom for Christmas should now be making good growth and be in the blooming pots. Any buds that show up at this time should be removed. Give the plants plenty of room and leave them from now on in full sunlight and in a cool, well-ventilated house. A sharp lookout for aphids must be kept up and regular fumigation continued. The plants for late winter and spring blooming can be kept out in the frames as long as safe from frost and then placed in cool quarters until time to give them more heat, which will depend upon the time they are wanted in bloom.

Pansies.

The pansies for early spring trade should be placed in the frames that they may become established before freezing weather commences. Make the soil good and rich. It is the plants with large flowers in the spring that find the quick sales and these cannot be obtained in poor soil. Set the plants about five inches apart and water well after planting. Keep those of a kind together and plant all the mixed lots adjoining. There is more time wasted in the retail selling of pansies than any other flower, traveling back and forth over a mixed bed trying to pick out a nice assortment. This is especially so with some customers and in setting out the plants try to prevent this as much as possible. When freezing weather comes cover the frames with sashes which will prevent the snow from lying too heavily upon the plants and also much freezing and thawing. If frozen for months and covered with sash no harm will be done, but if a warm spell should come on, the sashes should be raised to allow ventilation.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the finest fall perennials is the Anemone Japonica, which is now in bloom, and if it is not included in the grower's stock at present, it should be procured. There are both white and pink, but for general use the former is to be preferred. Where the plants are in bloom a framework should be built over them that heavy cloth may be drawn over and protect them from the early frosts, and they will bloom for some two or three weeks yet. If it is desired to increase the stock, a plant can be lifted and the roots cut into several pieces about an inch long and the pieces inserted in the propagating bench and they will root in about four weeks. Pot them up in 2½-inch pots and when the roots have spread into the soil the pots can be placed under a bench and run dry until spring, when they should be potted in 3-inch pots and grown on until all danger of frost is passed and then planted out.

Philadelphia Convention Hall Decorations

Convention hall, Philadelphia, Pa., which will be the scene of the fourth national flower show, to be held in that city March 25-April 2, 1916, is already taking on a festive appearance and calling attention to the coming event. What has heretofore been barren wastes surrounding the building are being fast transformed into attractive gardens, and a great improvement has already been wrought, Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and the Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, who have been responsible for the pleasing effect, deserving great credit for their public-spiritedness.

In front of Convention hall, as shown in the accompanying illustration, gardens and lawn, having a frontage of 90 feet and a depth of 45 feet, have been arranged by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., while at the rear and next to the building, a large informal border 90 feet long and varying from 10 to 16 feet in depth has been planted by the same firm. The rear of this border is planted with Canna Louis Reverchon, and in front of these, Canna Gustav Gumper, the entire bed being bordered with Pennisetum Ruppellii. The two large oval beds contain Dreer's single fringed petunias. Between these there is a large specimen plant of Phoenix sylvestris. The gardens and lawn are now in a flourishing condition and are causing a great deal of favorable comment.

THE CARNATION.

Seasonable Care of the Plants.

The plants that have been planted in the benches for 10 days or more are beginning to get established in the new soil, and from this time on will be able to stand more sun without wilting. The mud shading on the glass can now be gradually removed. In our locality (Illinois), the heavy rains have done a good job in cleaning off the shade, and all that remains now, is a thin scum; this we shall allow to stay on for another week or so, and then give the glass a good washing off. It will take a brush and plenty of water to clean the glass thoroughly, but the sturdy growth of the plants after the glass has had a good cleaning off, well repays for it.

The weeds will begin to spring up very quickly in the fresh soil and the work of cleaning them out should be the next thing to claim our attention. They ought to be attended to as soon as large enough to handle and it is a serious mistake to allow them to remain to get large enough to cover the surface of the bed and prevent the sun and air from penetrating the soil. Go over the beds while the weeds are small, then, if necessary, attend to it a second time.

The grower's principal aim during the weeks closely following the housing of the plants should be to get the soil in a fit condition for the roots to work freely and at the same time give to the plants a sturdy, vigorous growth. For the first month or six weeks after planting, keep the surface of the soil open by frequent scratchings, watching out not to disturb the new roots that are springing out from the plant. At the end of this period go over the beds and level off the surface so that the beds can be watered evenly. If the soil is light, a moderate pounding down will improve it greatly, but this should not be practiced with a stiff clay soil, the main object being to get the soil in condition for the water to pass freely through it and not retain an over abundance of moisture.

Syringe the plants daily on bright, warm days to keep the red spider in check and to moisten the atmosphere, but do not saturate the soil. Remember that syringing and watering should be two entirely different parts of the work. Go over the beds first and water any of the dry places that need it, then attend to the syringing of the plants.

Topping back the growths should be continued, excepting on plants from which early flowers are desired, but do not allow the plants to bloom before they have attained a good size or there is a demand for the flowers. The topping from this time on should mean the pinching back of the shoots that are stretching out into bud, and to keep them in shape the plants will need going over once every week or 10 days. Quick growing varieties like Beacon can be topped farther into the season and still produce an early crop of flowers, and with the red varieties when the main crop is wanted for the Christmas holiday, this should also be borne in mind. Rosette, Matchless and other varieties with corresponding heavy growth and foliage ought not to be topped very much after September 1.

As soon as the soil in the beds has been put into condition, the work of putting the rings, strings and wires to the plants should be pushed forward for the plants grow very rapidly during the months of September and October, and if not properly supported, they become diseased and a lot of the shoots and foliage ruined.

This is the season when it is necessary to attend regularly to the work of spraying the plants with insecticide to keep the insect pests in check. All the available ventilation should be on both night and day. Carnation plants delight in plenty of fresh air, and when careful attention is given them in this respect, will respond with a sturdy, healthy growth.

Stumpp's Southampton's Establishment.

The accompanying illustration shows the summer establishment at Southampton, L. I., of G. E. M. Stumpp, well-known New York florist, whose main store is located at 761 Fifth avenue. The Stumpp establishment at Southampton caters to the needs of the Long Island summer colony of the elite at Southampton and vicinity and has proven a most successful venture. The flower shop, shown at the right in the picture, has a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 75 feet. Here, in addition to a large stock of cut flowers, numerous novelties for the table and porch together with useful ornaments for the lawn and summer home are carried.

The house in the center of the picture is occupied by Mr. Stumpp, and the attractiveness of the landscape arrangement at the front as shown, is heightened by a lily pond in the center, the whole encircled by a driveway.

WITH THE GROWERS

The Joseph Heacock Co.

Nothing succeeds like success—and it appears as if success is the specialty with the Heacock Co. Hard work, with intelligent foresight is the secret. When the business outgrew the equipment at Wyncote, there was no thought of tying up or discouraging the increasing demand; it must be encouraged and the great rosehouses and dairy at Roelofs are the result. The dairy was at first a side issue, a by-product, as it were, but as it grew it was also encouraged until now its business amounts to over $40,000 a year cash money, with several by-products that turn in considerable more. The manure, which was to be the main feature of the dairy, is now all velvet. The farm with its 40 acres of well established alfalfa, its hundred and more acres of corn and other crops, is a model of successful handling.

The large rosehouses are in the best possible condition. The thousands of Killarneys, white and pink, although they have produced as well as ever, which is indeed almost a record for the varieties wherever forced, are to give way in rather a large percentage to provide room for Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and possibly a few other of the newer sorts. Everything is planned here for expansion; there is an excess of boiler capacity, abundant water supply, cold storage facilities; acre after acre of adjoining land lying just right for such ideal houses as have been erected. A large peach orchard is full of vigor and just right after its two years' growth for a good crop this season.

At Wyncote, the specialty is kentia palms grown there from the seed bed up to the large made-up specimen. Nowhere else are they done any better, at least in this country. They are first salable in 2½-inch pots for the centers of fern dishes; then in 4-inch and on up to 8-inch single, and after that many are made up into the bushy plants of commerce. Earthen pots are tabooed above 7-inch, all the larger sizes being grown in cedar tubs, which are much easier to ship and preferred by the decorators for their work.

Cibotium ferns were tried here, on a small scale at first, their growth not being encouraged because they took up so much room. Later it was found that they could be grown suspended from the roof without interfering with the palms beneath, and from that time on they became a standard crop and are now called velvet, because they are grown almost entirely in the air space of the houses that could not be utilized in any other way and get the benefit of the heat and light without being charged for table space. Many Scott ferns are also grown in this way and make splendidly finished stock. The large cibotiums are finished on iron pedestals, which take up no room from the stocks underneath.

The orchids, particularly cattleyas, are a feature. They occupy one large house with several subdivisions and overflow into and fight for place with the ferns on the rafters of the palm houses. To sum up, the Heacock Co. does things with such a degree of fitness and method to insure profitable results that they are easily among the first men of the land in their specialties.

K.

Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.

Anton Schultheis has a well established reputation as a florist, and his activities as a plantsman have for many years been appreciated, not only by the retailers of New York, but also by those of many other cities. For the coming season he will have a great stock, and even at this early date, it is very interesting to visit his range and grounds, for not only is there a large greenhouse stock, but also several acres covered with fine plants that have been plunged and are making fine growth.

In the greenhouses there is a fine stock of orchids. The houses made vacant by the spring sales and the removal of thousands of plants to the open, have been filled up with pot chrysanthemums, and when the season arrives he will have a great stock of these ready for the market. Of the many other good features none are more interesting than his great stock of ardisias, which he has grown from both seed and cuttings. He has thousands of these plants, part of which will be ready for this season's market, while others will be grown on. A large stock of the latter are in the outside frames.

Mr. Schultheis is not worrying about the possible holding up of azaleas, as he has a considerable stock on hand and anyway he says: "I have plenty of other plants." There are thousands of hydrangeas, in various sizes and all in splendid condition. There has been almost too much rain for some stock but it is hard to drown the hydrangea. The heather, of which there is a large stock, is another very interesting feature and it looks well.

varieties. Many of the plants are of large size. Cyclamen and camellias take up space in several houses and these stocks are very promising.

The stock of Boston and other ferns is in fine condition. If anybody thinks that old Bostoniensis is going out they will change their minds by Cibotiums Suspended Over Palms.

This range has long been noted for pot roses, and is now well ahead of previous years. Mr. Schultheis is always on the lookout for rose novelties, and he now has a number which look very promising, but visitors will find the usual great stock of ramblers in variety and other old favorites in pot roses. A house filled with dracenas is another interesting sight. The well known D. terminalis is prominent and there are other good visiting this range. We have thus briefly sketched the leading features in the plant line. A constant supply of lily of the valley is sent to market and many lilies are grown. In addition to seeing the place it is worth while to see the man, as Mr. Schultheis has been quite a traveler and is an interesting talker. Accompanied by two of his sons he has recently returned from a trip to Niagara Falls and other northern points. A. F. F.

Frederick A. Danker, Albany, N. Y.

Although Frederick A. Danker is quite well and favorably known to many in the trade who have met him in business, or socially, all cannot know the extent of his activities in his home city of Albany. Let us state in the beginning that what is here written is not what the correspondents of the great newspapers call an "inspired" article. We simply went to Mr. Danker's range to see it and are jotting down a few thoughts. The range and nursery is located in a fine section of the suburbs of Albany and easily accessible from the business center. There are, we judge, about 50,000 square feet of glass and a variety of stock is grown, a large section being devoted to roses and another to carnations. There are orchids, lilies, ferns and other stock called for in conducting a high-class retail business, for though this is the dull season, we found business quite active at the store on Maiden lane. In the nursery there are many good features, noteworthy being a fine selection of blue spruce. There is an abundance of land and the nursery might, and probably will, be further extended. Located near the range is a handsome residence, which is the family home. A. F. F.

The Florist as a Business Man.

A paper by E. J. Hayward, Montreal, Que., read at the eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, London, Ont., August 3-5, 1915.

Probably in no other business occupation has such slow progress been made in the introduction of business methods as by the general run of the ordinary florist. Why is this? If we go back into history we find that horticulture was at the forefront in the time of Adam. Can it be that our lack of progress has been caused by the fact that in most cases (like my own) the ordinary florist has risen from the bottom of the ladder? He may have had to leave school with but a limited education and then to rub along through the general course of training until he became a full-fledged gardener. Then, if he has sufficient ambition, and if he has managed to save up a little capital, he may launch out into what is generally known as the florist business.

Such a florist may have had a thorough training in the culture of plants and vegetables, but as regards a business training (with very few exceptions) he has had none. There is reason to believe that we have growers who do not even keep a record of their sales, and much less a record of their expenses. A local grower, not many weeks ago, told me that when he first commenced business as a grower he decided that he would just draw a weekly wage and leave the balance in the business. Now he finds that some weeks after expenses are paid he has nothing left to draw from. This man is one of our hardest workers.

It is my belief that to be a successful florist you should keep a regular set of books. You should be able, at any moment, to turn up and see what on a certain day the previous year the number and value of your sales were, and at what price you sold and who was your buyer. You should also be able to tell exactly what your day's expenses amounted to. A record should be kept also, as far as possible, of the cost of producing any certain kind of plant or flower grown. It is no excuse to say you have not the time to attend to such trifles. If you are really too busy, I would advise you to engage an experienced bookkeeper. Their services are easy to obtain. Do this, even if it is only for an hour or so one evening a week. If you do you will in the long run be more than fully repaid.

SALESMANSHIP.

If you are a wholesaler you will find experience necessary in salesmanship. In the olden days nearly every salesman, when visiting the trade, imagined that he had to be a bit of a sport. One of his principal assets was an ability to hand out a good-sized cigar and drummer's yarns. The man who could spin the best yarn generally secured the best order. That time has gone. The salesman of to-day has to be clean in his methods as well as in his accounts. He must have the right quality of goods and his prices must be right. He must use good judgment. He must know when to stop trying to press a sale. He should never talk too much. He must know when it is time to say good-day.

If a grower is able to collect C. O. D. he is a lucky man. As a wholesaler it is nearly impossible, in fact, it is hardly to be expected that this can be done. Still, the florist should have terms. Short terms of 30 days are far the best, as the older a debt is, the more difficult it will be to collect it. If you are a poor collector, hand it over to your bookkeeper, who, because of his experience, will know how to get after it.

COMPETITION.

Competition is the spice of life. I know of no better stimulant than competition. It keeps the grower wide awake and forces him to try to produce the right quality of goods. Still, there is many a man who wastes too much time wondering what the other fellow is doing, and trying to figure out how his competitor can sell a certain plant or flower at such a low price. I often think that the worst thing a man could do to his competitor might be to send him a copy of his orders. Then his competitor would waste so much time wondering how to get them that he would neglect his own business.

Success generally attends the man who minds his own business and who keeps on friendly terms with his competitor and who does not try to beat him down.

MANAGEMENT.

Many a first-class grower makes a very poor manager. He is far too easy in his methods and willing to take over all the responsibility from his employes. This is a mistake. He should foster reliability, which is best gained by accepting responsibility. Every one under his supervision should be responsible for a certain amount of work, even down to the boy that washes the flower pots. The real manager will never expect a man to do a thing that he would not like to do himself. He should pay him a fair wage for the amount of goods he is capable of producing. He should not take all the holidays and forget his man at home. If a man is not worth a holiday he is not worth keeping. He should be courteous to all his employes and try to make them happy, as it is only the contented man who will do a real day's work.

A manager must be a sticker. He must stick to business no matter what drawbacks and disadvantages crop up. He ought to take an interest in his local florist club meetings, remembering they are being held for his benefit. He should be a regular exhibitor at horticultural and floral shows, presenting his goods before the public, and thereby keeping in touch with the members of the trade. He should always try to be on hand at all flower exhibitions to give advice to the amateur whenever asked, remembering always that the amateur is the backbone of the trade.

Storm at Houston Causes Heavy Loss.

The recent storm which swept the Texas gulf coast did much damage in the city of Houston and its environs, and losses to florists' establishments there are heavy. At the greenhouses of the R. C. Kerr Floral Co. the loss will amount to about $5,000, the range being completely demolished, as shown in the accompanying illustrations. H. H. Kuhlmann's loss is also very heavy, estimated at $5,000 also. The store of the Cotney Floral Co. on Washington avenue was destroyed, and Mr. Cotney and his family caught in the wreckage, he being injured, but his condition is not thought to be serious. W. T. Hauser, of the Houston Floral Co., lost about one-half of his greenhouses, the damage being estimated in the neighborhood of $3,000. The Brazos Greenhouses suffered small damage, escaping with the loss of about 400 feet of glass, the houses being of modern construction and withstood the storm very well.

The down-town store of the Forestdale Nurseries suffered loss of three large plate glass windows and much damage to stock. The store and conservatory of the R. C. Kerr Floral Co., also in the business district, was only slightly damaged, being protected from the force of the storm by several tall brick buildings. At H. H. Kuhlmann's retail store two plate glass windows were destroyed, while at the establishment of the Gulf Florist, a small greenhouse in the business center, the damage was heavy. C. H. Blecker, located at Glenwood cemetery, had the top of his store blown off, and the greenhouses also suffered considerable damage.

While it is the consensus of opinion that it is too late in the season to do anything now, except what is necessary to protect the stock on hand, the florists take their losses optimistically and of the nature of a blessing in disguise. They will build modern houses to replace the old ones that have been in use for the past ten or fifteen years, and visitors to the S. A. F. convention at Houston next year will be impressed with the modern establishments of their Texas brethren. All of the wreckage will be cleared away in the near future, and preparations will be made for the erection of the new ranges in the spring.

Summer Care.

The usual weather of mid-summer, which includes not only high temperature, but also fairly high humidity, is quite a help for the grower of palms, for such conditions do much to promote the growth of the stock, provided that watering, syringing and crops were not quite ideal, but with a favorable autumn much lost ground may be regained, for it is remarkable how much growth is made during September and October, with a combination of bright weather and cultural care.

Areca lutescens seems to be among the palms in light supply the present season and this cannot readily be blamed on the European disturbances, Fumigating With Hydrocyanic Acid Gas.

The materials necessary for fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas are potassium cyanide (98 to 99 per cent pure), commercial sulphuric acid, and water; and the utensils required are half-gallon or gallon stone, earthen or granite jars and a supply of ordinary small paper bags. It is impossible to give a set formula prescribing the exact quantity of potassium cyanide to be used, says John J. Davis, assistant to the Illinois state entomologist, in charge of greenhouse investigations, in a recent circular, owing to differences in the tightness of greenhouses. In those of average tightness I have used it on roses and cucumbers, without injury to them, at the rate of one ounce to 3,500 cubic feet of space.

The number of cubic feet in the house should first be accurately calculated. The methods of doing this may be illustrated by a simple computation on the dimensions given in the accompanying figure, the understanding being that the length of the house is 100 feet.

The cubic contents of the rectangular part of the house, $a c d e$, equals $24 \times 6 \times 100 = 14,400$ cubic feet; that of the triangular part, $a b x$, equals $8 \times 8 \times 100 \div 2 = 3,200$ cubic feet; and that of the other triangular part, $b c x$, equals $8 \times 16 \times 100 \div 2 = 6,400$ cubic feet. The cubic contents of this house are, therefore, $14,400 + 3,200 + 6,400 = 24,000$ cubic feet. Assuming the house to be of no more than the average tightness, we may safely use the potassium cyanide at the rate of one ounce to every 3,500 cubic feet of space, and 24,000 divided by 3,500 equals 6.8+, which is the number of ounces required in this illustrative case.

The next procedure is to get the materials in readiness for use, and to place the jars in the house. For every ounce of the potassium cyanide used, two ounces of sulphuric acid and four ounces of water are required. Two ounces of the cyanide is about the right quantity for each half-gallon jar, therefore for a house of the above dimensions four jars should be placed at equal intervals along the aisles, and the 6.8+ ounces of it divided into four equal parts, and each part put into one of the paper bags. These are used not only for convenience in handling the cyanide when placing it in the jars, but also because they slightly delay the action of the acid upon it, thus giving the fumigator ample time to leave the house before the reaction occurs.

The jars being placed and the cyanide properly weighed and bagged the next step is to close the ventilators in order to prevent all avoidable escape of the gas. The water—four fluid ounces to each avoirdupois ounce of cyanide—is then placed in each jar, the sulphuric acid—half as much as of the water—is added, and as soon after as possible the bags of cyanide should be put into the jars and the house vacated immediately. Doors should be locked and labels posted designating the danger. No one should enter the house until it has been thoroughly aired by opening the side doors, and the ventilators if convenient. It is advisable to fumigate in the evening, keeping the house closed until morning. I have never found a greenhouse so tight that the fumes would remain proper attention to ventilation be given.

A little ventilation at night in addition to fairly liberal airing during the day, tends to prevent an over-accumulation of moisture on the foliage, and also has an influence toward the prevention of fungoid growths on or about the plants, for in houses so continually warm and moist as is the average palm house, there is much encouragement for fungus on the woodwork of the benches and about the plants.

A sprinkling of slaked lime under the benches is also a help to the atmosphere and discourages snails to some extent, the latter pest being sometimes quite troublesome, especially on the young growths of kentias. Two of the worst periods for the reproduction of scale insects are found in the months of May and September, and if these pests can be kept down at those periods, there will be much less trouble during the remainder of the year.

Those who grow palms in quantity have to depend upon dips and spraying with various insecticides, from the fact that it is practically impossible to give the time to each plant that may be afforded by those who only carry a few dozens of palms in stock, but in either case most of the work of this character is likely to be done during the summer months, when there may be a little more time devoted to such work than can be spared in the busier seasons of spring and fall. This fact probably accounts for some of the insect tribulations to which the grower is exposed, as he is seldom able to find time to fight insects during the spring rush, and by this means new colonies are distributed before the danger is appreciated.

The present season is not quite a normal one in many parts of the country, a cool spring having been followed by an unusual rainfall, so that the growing conditions for indoor for arecas were seldom imported from Europe by the American trade. But beautiful as this palm is, a shortage of arecas would not be felt quite so much as a lack of kentias, the latter having easily the first place in the palm trade of this country.

Kentias and cocos are undoubtedly the palms for the million at this stage of the florists' art in America, and the necessities of these admirable plants are well understood by numerous growers, who put out good stock in considerable quantities each season.

Seaforthias and ptychospermas were rather more common to the trade 15 to 20 years ago than they are now, and as a matter of fact were used for decorative work before the kentias absorbed so much attention, but it is apparently a case of the survival of the fittest, and instead of using Seaforthias for decorating, they are being added to the outdoor garden in those favored localities of the south where palms add so greatly to the permanent effect in the outdoor planting.

Phoenix canariensis and other strong-growing members of that family are also frequently in demand for outdoor use, while the dwarf date, Phoenix Roebelenii, continues to be in demand for house decoration, under which condition it is eminently satisfactory and unquestionably beautiful. In fact as Phoenix Roebelenii becomes more plentiful and more reasonable in cost, it has found further usefulness even in small sizes, in being used to some extent for the centres of fern pans. Livistona rotundifolia is one of the most charming of dwarf palms, but is easily spoiled by insects, requiring constant vigilance on that account, while a comparatively high temperature and moist atmosphere are also essential to its welfare.

W. H. TAPLIN.

OSKALOOSA, IA.—Theo. Greve, North Ninth street florist, is erecting a greenhouse.

In it in dangerous quantity all night, nevertheless, it is safest to air the house well before entering.

As cyanide of potassium is a powerful poison it should be handled as little as possible, and if touched with the bare hands they should be thoroughly washed at once. It should be stored in tightly closed cans or jars, plainly labeled, and kept where it will be inaccessible to persons not acquainted with its poisonous properties. Only a grade which is 98 to 99 per cent pure should be used. Sulphuric acid should not come in contact either with hands or clothes, as it will severely burn the flesh and ruin the clothes. It must not be placed in metal receptacles, as it will soon eat them to pieces.

Always put the water into the jars first, adding the acid later. Never pour water into the undiluted acid. After placing it in the jars the bags of cyanide should be added as soon as possible, for any delay will interfere with the proper reaction of the chemicals, owing to the fact that the acid acts most powerfully when it first unites with the water. The manner of putting the cyanide into the acid is also important. The bags should not be held a foot or more above the jars and dropped in, as the concussion might cause them to be thrown out by the reaction. Each bag must be carefully laid in the jar; but the fumigator must not lean over the jar as he does it, nor remain near it to watch the reaction.

The best shaped jar, when using two ounces of cyanide to a jar, is one four or five inches in diameter and about nine inches high. If more cyanide is to be used in each receptacle a larger jar must be used. The foliage of plants to be fumigated should be perfectly dry; otherwise it will absorb the gas and be burned. Fumigate in the cooler part of the day, and avoid, if possible, a temperature above 60° to 65°, since at a higher one plants are more liable to be injured. After a few fumigations the operator often becomes less attentive to the prescribed directions and precautions. This tendency should be promptly checked, the utmost care and caution being uniformly exercised.

The Sweet Pea.

Paper by J. Harrison Dick, New York, read before the American Sweet Pea Society at the annual convention, Newport, R. I., July 15, 1915.

For the pain that you may have to suffer in having me inflicted upon you this afternoon you must censure your honorary secretary Mr. Bunyard. When I tried to wriggle out of being in this position he said something about it being an honor if I would consent; he meant an honor to the society. He is an inveterate joker. The honor is mine, and I am glad to have this opportunity to make the acquaintance, personally, with many New England growers. For my part I am still largely an Old England grower and lover of the sweet pea.

To a very large extent this fragrant and graceful flower is a product of the British Islands. It was to Dr. Uvedale's wonderfully rich collection of rare fruits and flowers in his garden near London in the year 1700 that Franciscus Cupani, the Italian priest, first sent seeds of the sweet pea from Sicily, where he had found them on plants that were growing wild, and as proving to how large an extent the sweet pea is an English flower, no less a person than the President of our American Sweet Pea Society, Lester L. Morse, is quoted as saying that fully 90 per cent of the Californian export business in sweet pea seed and over 50 per cent of the total business in sweet peas, is done with Great Britain, 10 per cent going to Holland, Germany and France. The California sweet pea crop is worth about $250,000 annually to the grower and that great Western state plants 2,000 acres of land to sweet peas for seed every year, yielding over 1,000,000 lbs. of seed.

MODERN HISTORY.

Comparatively speaking, the sweet pea has a short history, nothing to be compared to the rose, the carnation, the tulip, or even the dahlia. Although introduced to culture 215 years ago, it was largely a neglected flower until within our generation. The year 1850 marks the beginning of what the late Richard Dean, a famous English florist, called "the golden period of floriculture," when hollyhocks, pansies, geraniums and many other flowers were being improved. Yet Eckford only began to crossbreed and select sweet peas from the few simple varieties then existing in 1870, and not until 1882, twelve years later, did he send out his first novelty, the variety Bronze Prince. At that time I was a youngster just making my first journeys to school, and although my father was a raiser of seedling carnations, and took an especial interest in roses, daffodils and auriculas among other flowers, I completely fail to remember whether we grew any sweet peas. I believe that was the general state of affairs at that date. Sweet peas were but little grown. Twenty years after, in 1902, it was not only the professional gardeners and commercial florists who were growing sweet peas, but practically every man in the country who had a few square yards of ground.

The names employed in pre-Eckfordian days were simple, as Invincible Blue, Invincible Striped, Scarlet Invincible, and Violet Queen. The term "Invincible" was given to any especially good strain or stock. At that time some of the German growers were also taking an interest in our flower, for Crown Princess of Prussia, salmon-buff, and Fairy Queen, white, were each sent out from the Fatherland.

It was with some of these earlier peas that Henry Eckford began to work in 1870. The sweet pea is constructed so as to insure self-fertilization, while the great majority of other flowers ostensibly solicit cross fertilization. Eckford must have been a close observer to notice that the sweet pea not only guards its reproductive organs with wonderful ingenuity but also becomes self-pollinated and fertilized when the flower is still only half developed or little more.

In new shades of color he had already given the lovers of sweet peas more than a dozen varieties by 1895. Mr. Eckford worked slowly and cautiously, and was not in a hurry to get rich, consequently did not sell any novelty until he was well assured that it would keep true. By 1895 he had sent out between 36 and 40 varieties, or at the rate of about three each year. During the last ten years of his life Eckford added between 50 and 60 other varieties, the total number of novelties sent out by him being 115.

AMERICA'S PART.

But during the 80's and 90's the American raisers had also been very active; indeed, some of the finest varieties that have been grown came from this side of the Atlantic, not to speak of the winter or early-flowering section, which is typically American, interest in which seems to be taking hold among our English friends. A list of the outstanding American varieties down to about six years ago (1909) shows that there were over 80 of them, 43, or more than one-half being introduced by the firm of C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco, while well over a quarter of the number (23), were sent out by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., the remaining one-fifth being the combined output of all the other firms. Alba magnifica, 1891, Henderson. America (red striped on white), 1896, Morse.

Looking over this list it will be seen that the earliest American production of all was Blanche Ferry, in 1886; one of the great peas of history, and as a starting point for an entirely new race is possibly the most famous of all, Countess Spencer alone excepted. This variety, Blanche Ferry, mated by Zvolanek with a precocious sport from the bluish-white Lottie Eckford (1890) gave the first of Zvolanek's crossbred varieties for winter flowering, which he named his Christmas Pink. Burpee's Earliest of All, which is also a pink and white, was however introduced in 1898 a year ahead of Zvolanek's variety. Then came Emily Henderson, strains of which are still in cultivation and this was probably the finest white until the appearance of Eckford's Dorothy Eckford in 1901. I hold this latter to be one of the finest and most perfect of the grandiflora varieties that have ever appeared. Its advent was contemporaneous with Countess Spencer. Our American raisers also were early in the field with striped sweet peas, although Eckford's Mikado (buff, with crimson stripes) was actually the first of this class, in 1895. A year later Morse followed with the famous America, a totally different flower and far superior to Mikado. Gray Friar was a twin of that year, too, to which was added Pink Friar by the same firm in 1899. That was the year of birth, so to speak, of three other champions of their day, Burpee's Navy Blue, Eckford's Capt. of the Blues, and Morse's Gorgeous. The last named had an orange standard and pink wings and took rank as the best of the orange bicolors until the appearance of Helen Lewis (1904) eleven years ago. This is another of the great historical peas, a delightful flower, a strong grower, very floriferous, and a grand autumnal at least according to its behavior in England. It has been superseded there and is but little grown, but in America we wisely stick to it.

The Cupid strain appeared in California in 1893 from a sport found in a row of Emily Henderson. Almost at the same time this dwarf form occurred at other places in America and in Europe.

So one might go on enumerating the names and merits of these charming sweet peas of other and earlier days. It scarcely seems twenty years since we had Countess of Radnor, Lottie Eckford, Mars, Orange Prince and Stanley in our gardens and gloated over them as the newest marvels of the period. But although they were the idols of their time they faded into the background and were forgotten as new queens and floral stars appeared, and by the opening of the present century the acquisitions of the five years since 1895, had almost quite displaced the older ones.

The work since those days has been continuously toward enrichment of the red and orange shades; the refinement of the lavender and gray blue kinds, and the improvement of the pink and white bicolors, and the addition, recently, of those with art shades like Charles Foster, R. F. Felton, Prince George and Rosina. But there is still room for a better scarlet, a better blue, a much better yellow, and new combinations in bicolors.

In a manner, the introduction of Countess of Spencer in 1904 caused the breeders to begin work all over again. They had to get the Spencer form in all the pre-existing colors. This they have surely achieved. Now the latest break is the double or duplex type, which I certainly think deserves attention. Whether there would be any gain in getting a successful cross with perennial species of Lathyrus is problematical. Such a cross might give more resistive foliage, fewer tendrils, longer spikes, and new colors, and ought not to be impossible after what has been done with orchids and with some other flowers.

LITERATURE.

In regard to the literature of the flower, America has the honor of having produced the first book exclusively devoted to the sweet pea, the readable and helpful "All About Sweet Peas" by the Rev. W. T. Hutchins; a second edition was published in 1894. His writings breathe a spirit of the warmest affection for this flower of his choice, and betoken an almost uncanny insight to its needs. Mr. Hutchins must have exercised a powerful influence in spreading a love and knowledge of the sweet pea in the earlier years of its development here. His symbolic description of the flower has been quoted too often to require repetition now, but is a literary classic second to no other in its true and beautiful similes, and was first delivered as the peroration of his address, as I remember well, at the Bicentenary Conference in London in 1900. His work seems to me to deserve prominent recognition at the hands of the American Sweet Pea Society. In 1899 he followed this with "Sweet Peas Up-to-Date," being a complete description of all varieties then known. At that time sweet peas were greater favorites here than in England and Eckford found a better market for his novelties than at home.

Messrs. Wyman and Kains at Cornell were also among the very earliest writers, and issued "A Second Account of the Sweet Pea" in Bulletin 127, in 1897. When their earlier bulletin was published I am not sure. After that time the books on the sweet pea, down to the present date, have come in such a steady stream that the enthusiast can, if he likes, fill a whole shelf in his library with a collection of about four dozen of them. The remarkably careful and exhaustive publications on the history of the sweet peas, with descriptions of varieties and hints on cultivation, the work of Prof. Alvin C. Beal and issued by Cornell University, also add to the value and importance of the American literature on sweet peas, and give to it an enviable and honorable position.

DISEASES.

Again, America's part in the elucidation of our knowledge of the sweet pea is prominently emphasized in the fact that more investigatory work of a successful character on diseases has been done in this country than in any other, chiefly by J. J. Taubenhaus of the Delaware College agricultural experiment station. His complete investigations were published in Bulletin 106, "Diseases of the Sweet Pea," in November, 1914. Therein he fully describes three root-rot diseases: Thielavia basicola, Rhizoctonia sp., and Fusarium lathyri, also a fourth caused by eel-worm (Hederodera radicolica); while of stem diseases there are Scler- otinia libertiana, a form of botrytis, causing the damping off of the seedlings; anthracnose or wilt (Glomerella rufamaculans), which begins at the top of the stem, working downward, and has been found to be the same disease as the one causing the bitter-rot of the apple; thirdly, streak, caused by Bacillus lathyri, and lastly the mosaic disease of the leaves, which is also thought to be caused by a bacillus, though not yet detected. The bud dropping trouble he attributes to a high and unbalanced nitrogen supply. This work of Taubenhaus has given us a scientific understanding of the microscopic enemies of our plants and how best to control them.

THE STIMULUS OF BIG PRIZES.

A word or two might be said here in regard to the impetus given to the cultivation of the sweet pea in England by the National Sweet Pea Society through its exhibitions, its annual trials of novelties, and its admirable Year Book or Annual. Perhaps the latter was one of the most valuable features of its whole work, and it would seem to be desirable that the American Sweet Pea Society, in order to reach its widely spread membership, should furnish them also with as much information from year to year as can be collected and published. By this trinity of agencies—the exhibitions, trials and yearbook, the sweet pea became the great popular flower of the masses, so much so that one of the leading London daily newspapers saw fit to offer a first prize of $5,000 for a single bunch of sweet peas at a great exhibition of the flower specially arranged for in the Crystal Palace, London. Other lesser prizes were also offered by the same paper, the Daily Mail. Naturally, with the constant advertisement that the paper gave to its scheme, with a daily circulation of upward of a million copies, spread all over the British Isles by means of express trains run especially by the newspaper, everybody took to growing sweet peas. Even outlying villages had their enthusiasts who were keenly competing for the coveted large sum. It happened that the first prize went to a grower in the South of Scotland, nearly 400 miles from London, while the second prize went to another grower in the Isle of Wight, as far south as it is possible to reach, in England. Welsh and Irish growers likewise competed. This was probably the climax of the sweet pea boom, although immense interest still holds there. The following year the firm of Henry Eckford, now conducted by John S. Eckford, in a series of advertisements followed the lead of the Daily Mail, and also offered a first prize of $5,000 for a bunch of sweet peas grown from seeds supplied by the firm. This was also continued the second year. Every horticultural society and every village that had a flower show made great displays with the sweet pea, and for the time being it was everybody's flower.

POINTS IN CULTIVATION.

I cannot conclude these remarks without some few references to matters of cultivation. The enormously keen competition that these big prizes engendered led to a revision in the methods of cultivation of the sweet pea. Not being content with the ordinary spade cultivation of the soil, and the sowing of the varieties in the ordinary way in lines, leaving them fairly close to form a hedge, the growers took to trenching their ground early in the autumn 2½ feet and even 3½ feet deep—sometimes more than this, also heavily manuring with farmyard manure, and with dustings of bone meal, wood ashes, soot and lime. Then it became the practice to plant or thin the seedlings to six or eight inches apart, and enthusiasts set their plants much wider even than this in the row. Tendrils and all lateral growth were cut or pinched off in order to throw vigor into the main stem, foliage and flowers. This gradually evolved the cordon or single stem method of cultivation, in which the plants are run up a tall bamboo cane, sometimes 8 feet or 10 feet high. The firm of Dobbie & Co. also did much to foster this superlative form of cultivation by its crops under glass, the plants being very carefully attended in order to produce first-class blooms for the early May exhibitions. These very early flowers of the summer-flowering strain, shown at the great Temple shows in London, were sensational at first; now they have become general, as other growers have followed suit. But the tendency seems to be to try to get the flowers still earlier, and doubtless the American early-flowering strain will be utilized by the breeders to promote precocity.

A successful English gardener summed up the routine of sweet pea culture in the following words: "Trench deeply, manure liberally, plant thinly, stake quickly, water early, and dispoed promptly."

I offer the following as my conclusions as to the most essential points in sweet pea cultivation for summer blooms namely, planting as early as it is at all safe to do so. The sweet pea is a hardy annual, withstanding very severe weather, and requires a long season for its early root growth in order to strike deeply and so secure a supply of moisture and nourishment during the hot days of summer. The second point I would emphasize is the need of entire liberty and freedom for each plant. One of the most fatal things is to cause attenuated growth, or to prevent the maximum development of leaf and stem growth; these build up a robust, disease-resistant plant, and lay the foundation for large, long-stemmed, solid, bright colored, fragrant blooms. Thirdly, I think all tendrils or nearly all should be nipped off at an early stage, together with quite a considerable amount of lateral growth, but not all. Given enough space, a number of branches may be allowed to develop, the laterals from them, however, being nipped. Fourthly, the need of the utmost care in keeping the plants free of aphids or other insect pests from the start. Aphids is far more dangerous than most of us are aware of. No carnation grower would for a moment neglect fumigating or spraying if he desired anything like a successful crop of first-class blooms. A few aphids in the growing point of a shoot will do enough harm in a couple of days to upset the energies of a healthy vine for some time, and may have paved a way for the entrance of disease germs. As to feeding and watering, they are largely subsidiary, although the manuring of the ground ought to receive careful attention at the time of digging and trenching; afterward, very little feeding should be necessary and watering must be done with judicious care. The late Henry Eckford never watered his peas at all I believe, but relied upon surface cultivation. Water, however, may be necessary occasionally, then a thorough soaking of all the ground should be given.

WORK FOR THE FUTURE.

The sweet pea is a plastic flower, else it could never have created such world wide interest. It has a future as large as the United States—and that is literally true, for although it is grown in every state and territory, we want to feel that it is not only grown and prized in every state but in every section and in every suburban home-plot. There is a great and grand field to be tilled, in a double sense, by the American Sweet Pea Society, which certainly won't be neglected. Yet in the progress of time, if the fragrance of our flower gradually diminishes and is only known to posterity through the records of today, who shall bear the blame? The sweet pea scentless! What a travesty and tragedy. Yet again, whose could be the blame? The raisers, the growers? No, only our Sweet Pea Society which awards 25 points to a novelty for length of stem, 25 for color, 20 for size, 15 for substance, 15 for number of flowers on a stem and not one for fragrance! But we will prefer to regard this as too hypothetical to become a fact.

Those who know most about the sweet pea are the most optimistic as to the possibility of its further development. As a society we have before us the improvement of the doubles; the strengthening of the winter Spencers; the betterment of the Cupids; the quest of a blue that will equal Salvia patens; a yellow that will rival the buttercup. We have, indeed, as much work as will keep us all busy for the next ten years. Then we can take stock again.

American Plum Borer.

In Bulletin No. 261 issued by the United States department of agriculture under date of July 19, 1915, E. B. Blakeslee, entomological assistant in deciduous fruit insect investigations reports the results of research into the distribution, feeding habits and character of injury, remedial measures, etc., of the American plum borer, the food habits being especially interesting as contrasted with those of other wood boring species.

The American plum borer does not by any means confine its attacks to plum. It has been taken feeding on plum, peach, Chinese plum, Kiefer pear, mountain ash, persimmon, apple and Russian mulberry, and will probably attack the trees of any common stone or pome fruits when the proper conditions are presented. As has already been stated, the food habits of this insect are of especial interest when contrasted with those of other wood-boring species. The plum borer prefers trees which are not dead and yet are not in a too vigorous condition.

Beginning at some scar, wound, or crevice, where a bark scale offers partial protection, the larva works its way back into the living tissue, in broad, shallow, irregular galleries just beneath the bark. Apple trees partially girdled by collar blight and trees injured mechanically by frost or by some other factor offer the ideal condition for the work of this borer. Without injury of some sort to its host plant the borer rarely succeeds in establishing itself, and entirely healthy and uninjured trees are in little danger from its attacks. On the other hand, where a tree has suffered injury the work of this borer may, in many cases, considerably shorten its life.

While various authorities have at different times reported this borer as being prevalent in the United States generally, and some parts of South America, specimens in the collection in the United States National Museum, and the correspondence, notes and the collection of the bureau of entomology indicate that the insect occurs in the following states: Arkansas, Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Missouri, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, New York, Ohio, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington, and the District of Columbia.

The plum borer will probably never become a pest of more than ordinary importance, except in occasional isolated cases. Its food habits are such that it is entirely unable to establish itself upon vigorous, healthy, uninjured trees. However, in common with a number of other insects it does deserve some attention on account of its ability to do considerable real injury where the proper conditions are presented, i. e., where trees have been injured by hail, frost, or attacks of fungous diseases, and its rather indiscriminate choice of food plants increases its opportunities in this direction. One of the most common instances of this in the observation of the writer is in the case of the collar blight of apple, where the injury done by this disease is frequently supplemented by subsequent attacks of the plum borer. When the ordinary precaution of cutting away the dead bark and painting the wounded areas is followed, this may be regarded as sufficient for the control of the borer. Where the borer has established itself already the cutting-out method is the only one that can be followed. Nothing may be expected from the application of poisonous washes.

TEXARKANA, ARK.—Herbert D. Enoe has purchased the State Line Floral Co.

BAY CITY, MICH.—Boehring Bros. have purchased the Bay City Flower Store.

FULTON, ILL.—Jos. W. Lawson, of York, Neb., has purchased the vegetable houses of J. E. Kerman.

SPOKANE, WASH.—The flower show, under the auspices of the Spokane Horticultural Society, will be held September 10-11.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—The Grand Trunk Horticultural Society held its eleventh annual flower show in this city, August 24-25.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—O. M. Watson has succeeded R. G. Bridge as assistant horticulturist, University of Tennessee. Mr. Bridge resigned and has returned to his home at Joplin, Mo.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—Solano and Marin are the only two counties in the state not supporting a county horticultural commissioner, according to Dr. A. J. Cook, state horticultural commissioner.

LINCOLN, ILL.—The employes of W. H. Gullett & Sons' greenhouses spent an enjoyable day August 13 with a picnic at Steinhauer's grove, about eight miles north of the city. There were about fifty present from both of the Gullett plants.

OBITUARY.

The Late James W. Lynes.

James W. Lynes, for 11 years in the flower seed department of Peter Henderson & Co., New York, died suddenly at his residence, 137 West 14th street, in that city, Friday, August 20, from a stroke of paralysis. He had been ailing for some months, but his condition was not considered serious and the end was not looked for.

Mr. Lynes was born in England in 1866 and came to this country about 25 years ago, and had previously been engaged in the florist's business in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Iowa, and in the seed department of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn. He was married to Miss Stella M. St. John in 1903. He was a member of

The Late James W. Lynes.

Thistle Lodge I. O. O. F. of Somerville, Mass.

He was greatly admired and respected by all with whom he came in contact, and his loss is felt keenly by his employers and many friends. The funeral services were held on Sunday at his late residence and the interment was at Summitville, N. Y.

C. C. L.

L. W. Kervan.

L. W. Kervan, head of the Kervan Co., 113 East Twenty-eighth street, New York, died at the Roosevelt hospital in that city, August 24, aged 72 years. He was a civil war veteran and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. After the war he lived for some years in Florida, and there founded a great business in florists' green, which was later transferred to New York. He was a man of very fine character. A widow and four sons survive.

New Parcel Post Insurance Ruling.

By order of the Postmaster General, the postal regulations governing the insurance of parcel post were expanded August 21, to include packages valued at from $50 to $100 and to extend the insurance privilege to parcels valued at $5 or less for a fee of three cents. Twenty-five cents is named as the fee for insuring parcels in an amount not more than $100.

The order amends Paragraph 2, Section 488, of the Postal Laws and Regulations and is immediately effective. Until now a fee of five cents has been charged for insuring all valuations up to $25. For valuations ranging from $5 to $25, the five-cent insurance fee will be charged as heretofore. For valuations between $25 and $50, the fee will continue to be 10 cents.

New York Botanical Garden.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY PROGRAMME.

The twentieth anniversary of the appropriation by the City of New York of 250 acres of land in Bronx park for the use of the New York botanical garden will be commemorated at the garden during the week commencing September 6, 1915. Botanists from all parts of North America are invited to attend. The following programme is planned:

Monday, September 6. Assemble at the garden as convenient in the morning; 1:30—Lunch at the garden; 2:30—Address of welcome and an account of the history of the garden; 3:30-5:30—Inspection of a portion of the grounds and buildings; 5:30-7:00—Visit to the zoological park.

Tuesday, September 7. 10:30-1:00—Session for the reading of papers; 1:30—Lunch at the garden; 2:30-4:00—Session for the reading of papers; 4:00-6:00—Inspection of portions of the buildings and grounds.

Wednesday, September 8. Salt Water day on Staten Island, for a study of the coastal flora. Lunch at 1:30, with subsequent opportunity for scientific oratory.

Thursday, September 9. 10:30-1:00—Session for the reading of papers; 1:30—Lunch at the garden; 2:30-4:00—Session for the reading of papers; 4:00-6:00—Inspection of portions of the grounds and buildings.

Friday, September 10. Visit to the pine barrens of New Jersey, under the guidance of the Torrey Botanical Club.

Saturday, September 11. Visit to the Brooklyn botanic garden and an excursion to some Long Island locality. Other excursions of more special characters will be organized if opportunity offers.

Chrysanthemum Bonaffon.

In the obituary notice of the death of the late Thomas Foulds in some of the trade papers recently, mention is made of his having raised the well known and very valuable chrysanthemum, Major Bonaffon. This is an error, as it was a seedling, raised by the great carnation expert, Fred Dorner, of Lafayette, Ind. In the early nineties he became interested in the chrysanthemum and raised several good varieties, among which was this sterling yellow. In the fall of 1893 it was exhibited at the Chicago exposition and attracted a great deal of attention. At the suggestion of Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa., it was named after a personal friend of his, Major Bonaffon, then visiting Chicago, to whom Mr. Dorner had taken a great liking. Major Bonaffon, a Philadelphia city official, was very fond of flowers and greatly appreciated the honor conferred on him. The variety was purchased by Robert Craig and the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind. It was sent out by them the following year, and has proved the most popular and profitable variety ever introduced.

School Gardens at Lynn, Mass.

Under the direction of School Garden Instructor Ralph E. Hawley, more than 4,000 school and home gardens have sprung into existence about the city of Lynn, and not only are wonders being accomplished along the line of floriculture and horticulture, but a great improvement has been seen among the youngsters, along the lines of vacation conduct. With 4,000 home and school gardens, it means that at least 4,000 Lynn school children have found opportunity to enjoy not only unusual recreation, but an education, and, incidentally, to keep out of mischief during the vacation period, according to the Lynn Item. These gardens vary in size from the humble window box to the pretentious plot of one acre.

A striking example of what is being accomplished in the cultivation of home gardens is shown in the efforts of two boys who have combined in working out a plot near the Sanderson avenue playgrounds, and have already reaped a profit of nearly $80 from the product of their work. They have only one acre, but through their untiring efforts they have obtained wonderful results.

In the school gardens the use of fertilizer has been eliminated, allowing the youngsters to work solely upon their own resources, and, according to competent judges, the results have been remarkable.

White Fly on Asters and Tomatoes.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please let me know how to get rid of white fly on asters and tomatoes in the open ground. G. W. K.

Bloomsburg, Pa.

The United States department of agriculture, department of entomology, reports that it has never known of serious infestation to plants by white flies in the open ground in the country north of Washington, D. C., the injury usually being confined to a certain type of weather, preferably warm and dry, and the insects being readily destroyed by change in weather conditions. Cool, damp weather does not seem to favor their growth. In Louisiana and certain other portions of the south, white flies may become more injurious through protection by certain species of introduced ants to such plants as gardenia and other forms of ornamental shrubs. In such an event, it becomes necessary to adopt the treatment usually accorded to the citrus white fly in its attacks on oranges, the publication on which may be received on application, to the above department, Washington, D. C.

Important to Subscribers.

The date on yellow address label on your copy of THE AMERICAN FLORIST will show when your subscription expires. Please renew subscriptions promptly on expiration to make certain of receiving your copy of each issue.

WALLACE R. PIERSON, of Cromwell, Conn., who underwent an operation for appendicitis at San Francisco, August 18, as announced in these columns last week, continues to progress favorably, according to latest reports.

CALADIUMS, fancy leaved, are now used to a considerable extent in the cut stage, for decorative work and in summer last well in water. The plants are extensively used in basket work during the greater part of the year, the roots being started in succession for this purpose.

ROSES MORE PLENTIFUL.

Roses are more plentiful now than they have been for several weeks and the quality in nearly all instances is exceptionally fine. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in large supply and are moving as well as can be expected. American Beauty roses are in fairly good demand, but there are not very many short-stemmed flowers reaching the market. Ophelia, Sunburst, Prince de Bulgaria and Mrs. Aaron Ward are to be had in large quantities and the same holds goods for Hoosier Beauty, Hadley, Rhea Reid, Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, White Sawyer, Killarney Brilliant, Killarney, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Francis Scott Key, Milady, Richmond, Killarney Queen, Lady Hillingdon, My Maryland and Cecile Brunner. Carnations are in fair supply, but do not cut much figure in the market now. Asters are in good supply and fancy stock is obtainable at reasonable prices. Gladioli are still seen in extraordinarily large numbers at all the wholesale stores, but are not moving any too well, and it is a question whether it is paying the grower to cut and ship them into the market. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and are in fair demand, with the retail florists using them mostly for show purposes in their window displays. Orchids are none too plentiful and the same holds good for lily of the valley, which has advanced in price the past week. Lilies are plentiful enough to supply the demand. Dahlias are to be had, but there does not seem to be as many around as in former years. The local trade has been quiet the past week, but the out-of-town demand has been good. Everywhere one goes one finds the florist busy making preparations for fall, which means that the vacation days are nearly over and everyone is again getting down to brass tacks,

NOTES.

Paul Richmond, formerly with George Walther, 6310 Normal avenue, has accepted a position as salesman and designer with W. J. Smyth, 3101 South Michigan avenue, and will fill the vacancy which occurred when Arthur A. Weatherwax resigned to embark in the retail business for himself. Mr. Richmond was quietly married this week to Miss Grace Goodall, who was also in the employ of George Walther.

C. C. Taylor and G. F. Leonard, with the Kentucky Tobacco Product Co., Inc., Louisville, Ky., have spent the week here on business. Mr. Taylor says that trade the past year has been very good and that his firm has no cause whatever to complain of dull times.

Arthur A. Weatherwax, who bought the Drexel Flower Shop at 828 East Forty-seventh street last week, will have a grand opening, September 4, when he takes possession.

Fred Stielow is cutting a fancy grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses at his Niles Center greenhouses, which are in brisk demand at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store. He is growing all told about 10,000 plants of this variety this season.

Joe Schuler, of Hoopston, called on A. L. Vaughan & Co., August 20, when he was in the city to meet his wife and children, who have been visiting Mrs. Schuler's parents at Council Bluffs, Ia.

Allie Zech, with Zech & Mann, and wife, are spending a few weeks at Tomahawk Lake, Wis. Fred Ottenbacher is in charge at the store during his absence.

Miss Anna Meyer, with the Rentschler Floral Co., Madison, Wis., visited several of the leading local retail establishments during her visit here last week.

Klimes & Vyhanlek, West Eighteenth street, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Klimes has just opened a new store at 1257 West Eighteenth street.

Victor Young, manager of the George Wittbold Co.'s North Clark street store, is back on the job after enjoying a well earned vacation.

C. Frauenfelder, 3343 West Madison street, wife and daughter Hazel, have returned from a most delightful visit in California.

The John C. Moninger Co. has received an order from the Cudahy Floral Co., Cudahy, Wis., for another house, 28x17 1/2 feet.

Michael Fink, with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Erne & Klingel are featuring a fancy grade of asters and dahlias at their store this week.

V. Bezdek, of Wilmette, is the proud father of a baby girl.

WIETOR BROS.

162 N. Wabash Ave., Long Distance Phone, CHICAGO
Randolph 2081. BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS

Mrs. Horton, of the Bassett & Washburn office force, is spending her vacation in Wisconsin. Miss Harper has returned from a delightful visit in the Badger state and is again on duty at the store. Miss Ruth Wattman is the latest addition to the office force, and everyone is pleased to see her back in the wholesale market. C. L. Washburn and O. P. Bassett and wives made a trip to Aurora August 24, where Mr. Bassett is interested in a large printing plant.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a nice supply of roses each day and the stock is cleaning up in grand shape at good summer prices. Everything is in splendid condition at the greenhouses, and if business is at all good this fall this firm will have no complaint to make, for they will have plenty of stock to fill all their orders with. Gus Alles has returned from his vacation and is again on the job at the store.

At John Kruchten Co.'s store everything appears to be going along nicely and both Miss Greely and William Jacobs are now on the job, which means that this firm will make a strong effort to secure more business this fall. Mr. Jacobs is also representing the Illinois Pipe & Manufacturing Co., of this city, and can be found at the Kruchten store every Saturday hereafter.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. are cutting a good supply of fine roses in all the leading varieties, but the stock is cleaning up well each day, according to Otto W. Frese, who is kept busy writing orders nearly all day. Walter Stokloss has returned from a pleasant visit in Canada, stopping off at St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., and Milwaukee, Wis., on his way back.

Felix Reichling reports a brisk demand for Ophelia roses at Peter Reinberg's store, which are now in good supply and are being grown in large quantities at the greenhouses. Chrysanthemums have been cleaning up nicely each day at good prices, notwithstanding the fact that the supply of Golden Glow is steadily increasing.

E. C. Amling and family are spending their vacation touring the surrounding country in their auto. Max Awizzus, of the E. C. Amling Co., and Henry Wehrmann and families have returned from a delightful automobile trip in Wisconsin, where they spent their vacation.

Percy Jones is certainly handling a large supply of greens, especially ferns, and reports a brisk demand for same. This firm has had a good summer's business and evidently expects trade to continue to be good, for several salesmen have been added to the store force recently.

Miss Cornelia Ryan and Leonard Koehler stole a march on their many friends when they were quietly married one day this week. They are well known to the local trade, for they have both been in the employ of Kyle & Foerster for some time.

Hoerber Bros. are giving their wholesale store a new coat of white paint. Fred Hoerber is well pleased with the stock that his firm is cutting now, for the quality of the roses is magnificent and the foliage is as clean as a whistle.

BUSINESS IS VERY GOOD.

Business during the past week has been very good, and diversified in variety. The opening of the new building of the Minneapolis Athletic Club created a demand for basket and bouquet work, and the orders were quite evenly divided among the local florists. Practically all of the large palms in the Twin Cities were used in the decoration. Funeral orders have been coming in well and there has been a good demand for cut flowers for social functions and weddings. Roses are a little more plentiful, but carnations are over. Asters, gladioli, sweet peas, cosmos, Shasta daisies and cornflowers furnish the bulk of the stock in the market at present.

NOTES.

H. Rosacker and wife have invited the members of the local florists' club to attend a field day and picnic at their new plant on Stinson boulevard, August 25. Baseball and other sports will be part of the programme.

B. F. Siebrecht of Winona, Minn., has leased a large store on the main street of Aberdeen, S. D., and will open a flower shop in that city about September 1.

PRICES LOW BUT SALES LARGE.

Roses are again in good supply, color and size improving daily, particularly Ophelia, Sunburst, Shawyer and Russell being good stock. American Beauties are good and the demand up to expectations. A large amount of funeral work helped to move considerable stock, and while prices are low, sales average high. Offerings this week include dahlias, gladioli, asters, Easter lilies, Jap lilies, heather, larkspurs, summer lilac, achillea, phlox, hardy hydrangeas, gaillardias and lily of the valley. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

Burglars entered the stores of the James Eadie Co. and the Cleveland Florists' Exchange on the night of August 16. In both cases entrance was made through transoms over rear doors in dark alleys. At the Eadie Co.'s store, a suit of clothes and some stamps was the extent of the loss, the crooks being unsuccessful in an attempt to force the safe. After being rifled the Cleveland Florists' Exchange establishment looked as if it had been visited by a cyclone. Office desks, both upstairs and downstairs, were emptied and contents strewn over the floors, but nothing of value was secured. The Cleveland Cut Flower Co.'s store was entered in much the same manner a week previous and a small amount of cash taken, and the McCallum Co.'s premises have been entered three times in as many months and money taken. Police have failed to locate the thieves.

AUGUST BUSINESS BELOW AVERAGE.

There is practically nothing doing in the local florist trade, aside from funeral work, and that has been rather slow for the past ten days. Gladioli, from reaching a stage of congestion, where they almost had to be given away, show some shading off on supply, but prices are still low. They are advertised in show windows at 50 cents a dozen, but some choice stock is bringing 75 cents and $1. Everybody planted about the same time. Better returns are expected of the second crop, as the good flower-buyers will have returned home from summer vacations by the time it reaches the market. The present August has proved to be one of the quietest for several seasons, owing mostly to the great abundance of outdoor flowers. Planting of carnations is going forward on a large scale. Florists are generally hopeful of a good fall and winter trade. Dull times have held back any notable additions to greenhouse space.

NOTES.

In the horticultural department exhibit of the Ohio State Fair, to be held in Columbus the last two days of August and the first two days of September, premiums are offered professional growers as follows: Decorative and flowering plants, 15 first premiums ranging from $5 to $20, same second premiums, $3 to $12; cut flowers and floral designs, 12 first premiums, $5 to $25; same, second premiums, $5 to $15. A special contest is on the finest decorated dining table, first premium $80, second $60, third $40, fourth $25. For a display of cut flowers of not less than 25 varieties, of six each, shown in vases, premiums are offered of $25, $15 and $10.

The Columbus Market Gardeners' Association will hold its annual picnic at Heimindale grove, a few miles south of town, August 25. Some 35 prizes, contributed by local business houses, are to be contested for in athletics. The Livingston Seed Company heads the list with a cash prize of $15, and also furnishes a badge for each person attending. T. J. Ludwig and F. Viereck, florists, offer, respectively, a Boston fern and a Bohemian vase. The committee of arrangements for the picnic are Peter Fornof, Otto Gall and Frank Held.

The Munk Floral Company, which makes a specialty of growing roses, will have this year the first important crop of Ophelias ever produced here. Some of the early cuttings now on display at their retail store give evidence of fine results with this experiment. They are also showing some beautiful advance cuttings of Sunburst and other fall roses of their own growing.

WEATHER INFLUENCES MARKET.

Weather conditions during the past week greatly influenced the market. Last Friday we had one of the worst storms of the week, growers in the county being deprived of both railroad and street car service. Roses are soft and the substance is lacking even in American Beauty roses. The stormy weather ruined the outdoor carnations.

NOTES.

Wm. C. Smith and wife have returned from their vacation in the Ozarks. Billy looks fine and says he is busy getting ready for fall work. His partner, Will Ossick, will take his vacation later.

F. X. Gorly is always on the job and finds time to visit the market daily, notwithstanding the fact that he is taking the place of V. J. Gorly during his absence.

The county growers have requested the wholesalers to report and argue the question of Sunday closing with them at their next meeting.

George H. Angermueller is always in line when it comes to supplies and is now busy getting ready for the fall trade.

C. A. Kuehn, who is a cardinal rooster, still has faith in the ability of the cardinals to win the flag.

Marion Uhlschmidt, manager of Grimm & Gorly, is busy redecorating and beautifying the store.

The park department has been busy gathering up fallen trees, etc., from the recent storm.

H. G. Berning has some A-1 asters. The demand, however, in everything is slow.

Ostertag Bros. have a fine show of Boston ferns and other decorative plants.

Alex. Siegel, from all reports, is having a good time.

GOOD STOCK IN LIMITED SUPPLY.

Business very quiet, with good flowers scarce. A few growers here and there appear to have some roses to cut, but most of them are grooming their plants for the struggle of the coming season. The summer American Beauties are very good for the season and have the field to themselves when anything choice is wanted. Asters are plentiful; about one-third are good or high grade and the balance medium or poor. While lily of the valley is scarce, there appears enough for the demand. Gladioli have shortened up somewhat. Dahlias are making their appearance, and there should be a record crop of this flower. Last season they were a failure on account of the dry weather; they have made a very strong growth this year and should flower profusely.

NOTES.

Herman Zimmer took a trip to Montgomery county to the W. Atlee Burpee Co.'s seed farm August 16 to see the new gladioli. He had as companions Charles Hartley of snapdragon fame, Rupert Keinle and Robert Kift. The party had a royal time at Fordhook. The gladioli, asters, early chrysanthemums, zinnias and other cut flowers were particularly interesting. Mr. Kerr, the manager, although a busy man, found time to show the visitors around. He is especially proud of the new early flowering gladioli that blossom the first year from seed. A pleasant half hour was spent with Mr. Burpee in his sanctum. On the return trip a stop was made at Chalfont to inspect the plant of the Chalfont Carnation Co., owned by Samuel Lilley and Max Helberg. This is an up-to-date plant of two houses, each 35x250 feet. They were busy planting carnations and finished that week. The varieties are Enchantress, white and pink, Pink Ward and Beacon. The stock looked fine, having made a splendid growth in the field. Max Helberg is a practical grower, a graduate of Harry Weiss & Sons, the noted Haboro, Pa., growers. Samuel Lilley handles all the stock through his commission house in this city. This combination should work out well and would seem to be ideal.

In his recent automobile trip with his family, Edward Reid visited Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Rochester in New York, Cleveland and other Ohio cities, returning by way of Pittsburgh. Leaving Pittsburgh at 8 a. m. he made a record run home, reaching his garage at 11 p. m. the same night. At least three hours were spent visiting the trade along the route and inspecting the Gettysburg battlefield. His car is a "Cadillac Eight." He made the entire trip without a puncture or trouble of any kind.

While the trade exhibits at the late San Francisco meeting were lacking in quantity, this city kept up her reputation as being much the largest exhibitor. H. Bayersdorfer & Co., the M. Rice Co. and the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. making fine exhibits. The Bayersdorfer display, considering the distance from the home office, was very large and varied.

Asters of splendid quality and assortment, together with high grade gladioli are the features of the Berger

USUAL AUGUST DULLNESS PREVAILS.

In reviewing the past week there is not much of anything meritorious to speak of regarding the flower market, as business still lulls away in the true August fashion. August is considered the worst month of the year for business in Pittsburgh, so very little could be expected at this time. The market does not have much to offer in the variety of flowers, and asters are foremost as selling factors. The late crops of these flowers are now arriving and as a rule are of splendid quality. The supply of gladioli has shortened up, and they have not been nearly so plentiful as they were throughout the earlier part of the summer. A good grade of carnations can still be had,

New York.

To drop into the vernacular of the sailor-men, business is "wallowing in the trough of the sea," with the usual pains and penalties of dogdays, particularly mosquitoes, much in evidence. It may be a little hotter in August at Houston, Texas, than it is here, but if mosquitoes are more plentiful there than they have been here this summer, it will be a sad place to hold a convention. Otherwise, we congratulate our southern friends for their enterprise and its success. There is an abundance of stock on the market to supply all demands. Roses are not over-plentiful, but there are enough. There is a larger supply of asters and many good blooms. In some localities the recent storm beat down the crops, and in trying to get up again to the light, many stems of the crook-necked squash style of growth were produced, which hurts the sale of otherwise good stock. We have noted, however, that in funeral work, asters are being almost exclusively used. While there is good stock of gladioli on the market, much that is now arriving has the appearance of culls and had about as well have been left in the field. Orchids continue scarce. There is an average supply of lilies and lily of the valley.

August 23.—There is an increased supply of roses and they move very slowly. A great stock of asters is yet arriving and as they sell cheap they seem to have the preference, wherever they can be used. Orchids continue scarce and bring a good price. There is little change in lilies and lily of the valley. Some very fair dahlias are now on the market. There are more gladioli than can be used.

GLADIOLUS SHOW.

The gladiolus show in the Museum building, Bronx park, August 21-22, was well attended and brought out a good lot of stock. The largest number of first prizes went to T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y. (A. Labodny, Gr.) and Adrian Iselin, New Rochelle, N. Y., (Jos. Tierney, Gr.) also made a good showing. Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., was awarded first prize for the best six varieties, six spikes of each. In the competition for the best table center piece, P. W. Popp was first and James Stuart, second. Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., captured a special prize with a collection of perennials, including phloxes, cannas and other flowers. Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., also received a special prize for a collection of delphiniums. They also made an excellent display of hibiscus in red, white and pink. A certificate of merit was awarded to Wm. A. Finger, Hicksville, N. Y., for collection of seedling dahlias.

PLANT GROWERS' ASS'N OUTING.

The New York and New Jersey Association of Plantgrowers will hold its annual outing at Valley Grove, Northport, L. I., Tuesday, September 7. The steamer "Commander," has been specially chartered and will leave the Battery landing at 9:30 a. m. and after a three hour sail, dinner will be waiting on arrival at the grove. There will be plenty of good eats, drinks and smokes on board, with good music and dancing, and fine bathing. Tickets are $5 per person, including everything. Please inform the secretary, Wm. H. NOTES.

Mrs. William A. Phillips, wife of William A. Phillips, who is associated with his father, John V. Phillips, in the retail business in Brooklyn, recently met with a serious accident near Upton lake, Dutchess county, where she has been spending the summer. She was motoring, accompanied by her children and a sister, when the machine turned over. Mrs. Phillips was the most seriously injured and was removed to Vassar hospital, Poughkeepsie. Her sister was badly bruised, but was able to go home. The children were unhurt. We are glad to learn that Mrs. Phillips is improving.

Miss Adelaide Foster Peck, secretary to Alexander McConnell, Fifth avenue and 49th street, was married to Richard Batten, Jr., at St. Nicholas (Dutch Reformed) church, August 9. Rev. Dr. Mabon officiated. Under the direction of Mr. McConnell the church was beautifully decorated. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon on the Pacific coast. It is pleasing to Mr. McConnell, who says he is getting to be an "old fellow," though he does not look it, to hear from time to time of his former employes, for they all hold him in kindly remembrance.

At G. E. M. Stump's, August 21, 30 designs and a casket cover were made up for one funeral. John Einsel, buyer for this store, is on a two weeks' vacation in the Green Mountains of Vermont. In the store, as in the wholesale district, everybody misses John. William Spohn, the bookkeeper, is at his summer home, East Rockaway. S. Fukura, the clever Jap, who has been at the Southampton store part of the summer, is again at the New York store.

George Blake of Bonnet & Blake, Brooklyn, is back on the job after six weeks spent in Rochester. Buffalo and other up-state points. His father is a resident of Rochester. Christian Bonnet of this firm is with his family in the Adirondacks and will probably remain there until October 1.

Frank L. Derry, who for a number of years has been associated with the Galvin stores in Boston, has assumed the management of the New York store, Fifth avenue and 47th street. He is not only an all-around florist, but likewise a clever and amiable gentleman.

The trade of this city seems well pleased over the news of the re-election of John Young as secretary of the Society of American Florists. Without prejudice toward others who may aspire to the office, we consider Mr. Young an efficient secretary.

Leo M. Frank was buried, August 20, in the family lot of the Frank family in Mt. Carmel cemetery, Brooklyn, and the grave was covered with wreaths and clusters of smilax, lily of the valley, orchids and roses.

Rita Frank, 22-months-old daughter of Frank Frank of M. Frank & Sons, retailers of 1561 Third avenue, died August 23, after a short illness. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of many friends.

William Kessler and wife of 113 West 28th street, have returned from a pleasant vacation spent at a Sullivan county resort, and we are glad to see them well and happy.

Ferdinand Fleischman has gone to Canada on a fishing trip. Ben Warendorff says that as a humane proposition, the fish should be warned.

Though this is the dull season, S. Masur of Fulton street, Brooklyn, says he has no reason to complain, as there is always something to do.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to William Hanft, designer and decorator for Young & Nugent, whose wife died August 20.

James Conlon, the Smith street, Brooklyn, retailer, has recently been quite busy with funeral work.

The irrepressible Wm. H. Kuebler, and brothers, Brooklyn florists, are always busy.

TRADE GOOD CONSIDERING SEASON.

Funeral work during the past week has held up well and has helped materially in moving quantities of stock. Roses and lilies were in good demand, while large quantities of Gladiolus America and Hydrangea paniculata were used to advantage. In addition to the call for funeral designs there is a small demand for flowers for hospitals and summer parties. American Beauty roses are in good demand and August weddings have created a call for lily of the valley and white roses. Asters are in heavy supply, notwithstanding the recent heavy rains. Prices hold up fairly well considering the great surplus of stock. Many of the local greenhouses are cutting from their young rose stock and the carnation stock looks very promising for fall.

NOTES.

At the Williams-Randall wedding, August 21, bonnets filled with Sunburst roses and tied with Sunburst ribbon were arranged for the bridesmaids. An arm bouquet of lily of the valley with clusters of white orchids was carried by the bride. These were furnished by the Flick Floral Co. The decorations for the wedding at the Randall homestead were carried out by the Bradley Floral Co., effective outdoor flowers such as hydrangeas, gladioli and small flowers being used in profusion.

At the greenhouse of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, the force is busy housing the young stock. The carnation stock will be doubled this year. The principal varieties of roses they are cutting at present are Sunburst, Ophelia and Shawyer. In the orchid houses, cattleyas and labiatas are coming on nicely and will be ready to cut in September.
H. K.

TACOMA, WASH.—This city has planted more flowers and its lawns and gardens are more resplendent with bloom this year than at any time in its history.

SPRING LAKE, N. J.—Many handsome prizes were awarded at the Spring Lake annual flower show, which was held in the Italian gardens of the Essex and Sussex hotel, August 15. More than 1,500 persons attended and were much interested in the exhibits, which included about 70 varieties of flowers, fruits and vegetables.

MARKET MORE ACTIVE.

The market is apparently firmer than at the last writing, but the gross business for the week is not any larger than that of the preceding week. The supply is more than ample for present needs. Shipping business is active. The supply of roses has increased greatly during the past week, and shows also a marked improvement. Some excellent American Beauties, Ophelia, Radiance and Taft may be had. A strong cut of asters is coming in and is larger than the sales require. Gladioli are still plentiful and are of good quality. Easter lilies have become scarce. Other offerings include carnations and rubrum lilies. The supply of greens is easily sufficient for present needs.

NOTES.

Chas. Miller, of Covington, had several ribs and an arm fractured, and also suffered other injuries when hit by an auto last week.

Mrs. Garges and Miss Garges are spending the current two weeks on a visit to relatives in Chicago.

C. E. Critchell has been having a fine lot of roses.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held Thursday, August 19, at 8 p. m., H. Scheuermann, presiding, and J. Bollwinkle, vice-president, and C. R. Panter, secretary, at their respective stations. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted. The finance committee reported their approval of the report of the secretary and the correctness of the books of the treasurer and secretary. The secretary made a supplemental and final report of the past flower show, which was adopted.

It was decided that at the next meeting the question of giving a spring show would be decided and the secretary was instructed to notify all the members to be present and vote on same. A. Von Damerau was elected to membership. There being no further business the meeting then adjourned.

NOTES.

A. Verlinde sold to H. Kraak and M. Scheinuck one house of Roosevelt ferns. He also has a fine stock of ficus on hand. Mr. Verlinde is in the wholesale business only.

Holyoke and Northampton Florists' Club.

The annual picnic of the above club was held at Smith's Ferry Wednesday, August 18. Mobilization began at 10 a. m. and by dinner time, counting old and young, male and female, some 75 persons sat down to a generous lunch. Captain Gallivan brought a wheelbarrow load of corn from his farm, which Quartermaster Rackliffe cooked to a nicety. J. Brunner, the well known paste board box drummer, was going past on a trolley car when he spied the water melons, and jumped off and joined the bunch, and after dinner he came near sending the baseball over Commodore Sinclair's mammoth greenhouse and down his skyscraper chimney. There was something doing all the time. The baseball game was between the single and married men, the single men winning, but when it came to the tug of war they weren't in it against such men as Corporal Strugnell, who tips the scale well on toward the 200-pound mark. Then there were races for the single men, for the married men, for the sweethearts and wives, and for the little tots. Every one had a good time and has felt younger ever since. E. J. C.

Business the past week has been very quiet. All stock is a drug on the local market, especially asters and gladioli, which are coming in too fast for the trade to use them. Sweet peas are starting to come in again and are getting better every day. Several of the greenhouses have chrysanthemums in fine shape and almost ready to bloom.

NOTES.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club held their annual outing August 18 and it was well attended. The party sailed down the bay, had a shore dinner at Rocky Point, and then cruised around Prudence Island and back to the city, arriving at 8 p. m. Every one voted that they had a good time.

SIoux CITY reports field corn three weeks late.

VISITED CHICAGO: Julius Nielsen, representing Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, Denmark.

ALL canna plants are late this season. Cold nights and continuous rain have retarded them as they have the corn crop.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Helen Dudley Breck and S. F. Willard, Jr., at Wethersfield, Conn., September 11.

ONION SETS at Chicago have changed in the last week, if anything for the worse. It rained at least three days the past week.

SAGINAW, MICH.—A. T. Ferrell and family plan to visit the Panama-Pacific exposition early in November, going via the northern route.

THE death of James W. Lynes, for 11 years connected with Peter Henderson & Co., New York, is recorded in our obituary column this week.

NEW YORK.—Arthur L. Deal, representing W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., is now at the Hotel Imperial, making his annual journey in America.

THERE has been considerable damage to beans in Michigan from blight and anthracnose. There is no doubt that some of the wax beans will be short another season.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A seed and grain show will be held in this city in January, under the auspices of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE has commenced operations on the erection of an onion set storage house on the Morton Grove switch. Room will be provided for a few cars of miscellaneous storage.

PRIVATE information from Erfurt, Germany, indicates that the flower seed plantings of last spring are only one-third of the planting in former seasons. These crops are, however, fairly well taken care of by the help of women and children.

HARRY A. BARNARD, representing Stuart Low Co., Enfield, Middlesex, Eng., sailed from Liverpool for the United States on the S. S. St. Louis, August 21. His address while calling on the trade in this country will be Hotel Albert, University place, New York.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade August 25 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.00 per 100 pounds.—Albert H. Smith, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., is spending his vacation in Alaska.—It is reported on country stocks of timothy sold for September delivery, some 75 cars will be late, due to rainy weather.

Winter Flowering Sweet Peas Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

Novelty Yarrawa

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long, stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., 1/4 oz., 50c.

Selma Swenson

A beautiful clear light soft pink waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

Rose Queen

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

DREER'S ARAUCARIAS

Only partial imports of Araucarias were received from Belgium the past spring, not sufficient to cover the usual season's requirements, and even if shipments should come through this fall (which at present does not appear likely) newly imported stock would not be available for this season's sales as it takes fully three months for this stock to become established and be fit to sell after its trip across the Atlantic.

We are pleased to state that we have a splendid stock, not sufficient to last the season out, but we offer as long as the stock lasts exceptional values as below.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—George Philander Davis, one of the pioneer nurserymen of this city, died here August 8.

MADISON, WIS.—The nurseries in this state growing trees, shrubs and plants for sale will be inspected for disease and insects, by the state entomologist with the new department of agriculture just created by the legislature.

FROM a summary of reports received from over 100 members of the Illinois State Horticultural Society, it is estimated that taking the state as a whole the 1915 apple crop will be from five to seven times as great as last year.

MERIDEN, CONN.—The Nettleton Nursery, Fruit & Orchard Developing Company has incorporated, for the purpose of developing, working and operating farms, orchards, nurseries, etc. The capital stock authorized is $50,000, divided into 2,000 shares of common stock, par value $100. The amount of capital stock with which the corporation will begin business is $1,000. The incorporators are Joseph N. Nettleton, Berkeley C. Stone and John G. Nettleton.

Chinese Pear May Save State Millions.

The state horticultural commission of California has announced that experiments conducted in Oroville, in that state, to propagate the blight-resisting Chinese wild pear, have been successful. B. B. Whitney, a deputy inspector, has conducted the experiments and the Chinese imports growing at his place are large and thrifty. It is believed that by budding Bartlett pears upon the blight-resisting stock of the Chinese pears, pear blight can be eliminated and millions of dollars saved the state.

Nursery Stock in Mails Ordered Returned.

All nursery stock received in the mails from abroad must be returned to the point of origin immediately, according to a recent order. This action was taken for the reason that importers have endeavored to withhold the return of such shipments until they could communicate with the department of agriculture with a view of having an exception made in some particular case.

Nursery stock, which is prohibited from entering this country by mail, includes all growing or living plants, seeds, and other plant products, for propagation, except field, vegetable, and flower seeds. It includes also bulbs, roots, and tubers, and, with the exceptions noted, the seeds of all trees, shrubs or other plants. The only plants or plant products excepted from the prohibition are those ordered by or intended for and addressed to the Office of Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.—Agri. Dept. news-letter.

Wire Fencing and Trees.

In running wire fences it may be necessary or desirable to attach the wires to trees along the fence lines. In many regions old fence rows have grown up naturally to trees; in others, windbreaks have been planted between fields, making tree lines to which wire fencing may be attached without the labor and expense of setting posts.

In attaching wires to trees, however, it is bad practice to fasten them directly to the trees, according to a news-letter of the United States department of agriculture, for when this is done the wire will be grown over and embedded within the tree itself. This has a number of disadvantages. Not only do the wounds mar the appearance of the tree, but they also afford entrance for diseases which cause decay. In the second place, if the tree is ever cut for lumber either the best part of the trunk has to be thrown out and wasted, or else, if the wires and staples are deeply embedded, the tree may be sawed into without any knowledge on the part of the sawmill men that the wires are there. The results are likely to be disastrous to the saw, and may even endanger human life. Further, it is impossible after the wire is grown over to move the fence without cutting the wire or chopping deep into the tree.

A better way, and one that protects both the tree and the fence, is to nail to the tree a strip of wood from 4 to 6 inches wide and an inch or more thick and of a length to suit the height of the fence. The wires can then be stapled to this strip. As the tree grows the strip is forced out and the tree is not injured. The strip can be nailed tighter from time to time, the wire fence always remaining stapled to it. If there is occasion to move the fence or cut the tree, the strip can be pried off without any difficulty.

Our Guarantee—We will replace with three all plants not proving true to description.

Bees' English Roses are Amazingly Fibrous-rooted.

Top growth alone is not a safe criterion of the value of a rose to you. True, you must have vigorous and healthy branch and leaf development in order to ensure a solid foundation for the subsequent life of the tree. But these things are often procured in highly fed soils where the formation of root fibre is retarded or negated. When you get such trees into your forcing or flowering beds, there is a long wait before the roots become acclimatized, so to speak. This is simply due to the fact that the necessary equipment of feeding fibres, which enable the trees to go straight on with their work, after being transplanted, does not exist. Abundance of root fibre was not necessary in the period of forced growth, in heavy over-fed soil consequently nature did not provide it. The result is a fat, lazy tree, of actually less value to you than a starveling.

What you want is a tree that has had more or less of a struggle for existence; that has had to work for its living. A prize-fighting-boxer sort of tree that is trained up to the last ounce. Such trees can be grown only under suitable conditions. They are grown by the million on Bees' 200 acre farm in North Wales, Eng. Bees' nursery is part of a huge plain situated on the banks of the River Dee, within hail, almost of Chester, on the one hand, and Mt. Snowdon on the other. The land is actually reclaimed silt, deposited by the Dee during past ages, and is swept from end to end by the bitter gales from the Atlantic Ocean.

See how splendidly these two factors combine to produce the ideal rose tree. First, there is the naturally rich, humus-laden, silt soil. It is in a finely divided condition, and encourages—makes necessary—the formation of multitudinous root fibres. Neither light nor heavy, and neither too wet, nor too dry, it is the ideal rooting medium. Then the climate, the most searching and severe in the British Isles, comes into play. Every effort at exuberant growth is keenly contested. The tree has veritably to fight for its life. Wind, cyclonic in violence, almost tears the trees up by the roots; but the result is a more thorough and firm anchorage of fibrous roots. Alternating climatic conditions of Arctic severity or delusive mildness, compact the plant tissues to iron wood hardness. The result at lifting time is a short-jointed, stocky tree, with a perfect mat of fibrous roots, which grows and blooms with almost magical luxuriance when transplanted to milder quarters.

Sample Bees' English rose trees this fall. Send your list of requirements for pricing.

Do it NOW. This very minute. "Lest you forget."

Chicago, August 24.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 50 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 40 to 50 cents; radishes, $1.25 to $2.00 per 100 bunches; asparagus, 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 25 cents; tomatoes, 4 baskets, 35 to 60 cents.

New York, August 24.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 10 to 35 cents; cucumbers, 25 cents to $1.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per 2 dozen crate, 50 cents to $1.25; rhubarb, per 100 bunches, 75 cents to $1.25.

Choosing the Fall Crop.

The most serious problem before the grower at this time is what to plant for a fall crop. There is no use denying the fact that growers have got into a rut by producing heavy crops of lettuce in the fall months when demand as a rule is slow. There is only one way to get out of the rut, and that is to get out, either by curtailing operations or by the production of something else. Personally, we could never subscribe to the first remedy; hence, we must write about the second plan—produce something else. Any number of business men have to face the same thing sooner or later, as conditions are constantly changing, and what may have been a bonanza 10 years ago may not pay today. The very fact that we must meet the future should encourage us to cast about for other crops to take the place of leaf lettuce, at least for part of the year. We believe there is a great future for the vegetable forcing business if growers gradually enlarge their operations by producing a greater variety of products. Of course, this cannot be done on a large scale at once. On the one hand, there are few operators thoroughly posted on the different lines, and the markets are unprepared. But a start must be made at anything, and continued effort will bring results. At present we are living under very peculiar conditions—the average citizen loves to wail about the high cost of living—by that he generally means the cost of food, and he spares no pains to make a dollar go as far as he can, while, on the other hand, that same citizen spends money lavishly on motor cars, gasoline, theaters, travel, musical instruments, etc. But a turn will come some day, when our citizen will realize that after all, the biggest thing is nutrition, and he will consider more carefully the food he eats, which incidentally means he will be glad to pay a better price.

As regards crops to grow, the field is not as limited as it appears. Only a few years ago both cucumbers and tomatoes under glass were practically unknown, and now they are already staple crops. We recently visited a grower who tried one house each of lima beans and cantaloupes. He is on the right road and while his first attempt failed with the limas, his melons were extra fine. He allowed the limas to run at will, which was wrong. He should have headed them in and cut to spurs same as the melons, which would have spelled success. He will do better next time. When one realizes the enormous prices people are willing to pay for fresh green limas after the first hard frost has cleaned up the outside crops, it does seem that this would be a good subject to introduce into the greenhouses. They will stand low temperatures and dark weather surprisingly well, once the beans have set, hence, the crop could be put under way with the natural heat of the early fall and then held cool waiting for the market. The same is true of string beans. Kentucky Wonder, or some strains of it should make a desirable crop for late fall use under glass. Among the smaller vegetables, any or all of the following can be used: Norfolk spinach, Crosby Egyptian beet, Scarlet Globe radish, Icicle radish, Long Brightest Scarlet radish, winter onion, chives, parsley, leek, endive, cauliflower, White Vienna kohlrabi, (a favorite forcer in Europe) and short carrots. Any of these crops in small lots would be preferable to unsalable leaf lettuce—in fact, we would prefer a crop of Golden Bantam sweet corn somewhere around Thanksgiving day, to leaf lettuce.

There is another side to this problem—the disease troubles. Nothing induces diseases to get a hold more than the attempts to hold crops long after they are mature, as in the case of lettuce, when the market is glutted. If we could move our crops faster and practice some rotation, diseases would be easier to control. MARKETMAN.

Farmers Tired of College Advice.

Agricultural colleges and the country schools throughout the nation, the "bulwark of American progress," were condemned as failing to meet the needs of the rural population of the country at the final meeting of the farmers-bankers' conference at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, recently. William Hirth, editor of the Missouri Farmer, criticised present methods of agricultural education, suggesting a complete change from the present system of "free advice thrust upon the farmer as to how to run his business by technical professors from colleges and boys and girls holding teachers' diplomas in the country schools."

"Farmers are tired and irritated by the flood of advice thrust upon them as to how to run their business," said Editor Hirth. "Agricultural schools, as a rule, have reached the end of their rope. Half of the people discredit their teachings. We cannot rely upon the bulletins or technical lectures from technical professors. They are talking to empty benches. Our rural schools are not handled right; they do not give the right kind of instruction that advances the boy and girl of the farm."

BEGONIA "GLORY OF CINCINNATI" (As it looks in December)

NO Winter-flowering plant of recent introduction has given better satisfaction for the Holiday trade, to the florist and customer alike, than this beautiful Begonia when properly grown; it lasts in bloom in the residence for a long time, and gives satisfaction.

We have this season a fine lot of young thrifty plants to offer (the best we ever had), strong plants from 2½-inch pots ready for 4-inch, at $18.00 per 100; $150.00 per 1000; extra heavy plants in 4-inch pots ready for 6-inch, at $40.00 per 100; these will make fine specimens for the Christmas Trade.

What plant can you grow that gives you better and quicker returns?

"A BIRD IN THE HAND"

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS

For example. We offer:

- Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches.....at $25 00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 5 and 6 branches.....at 20.00 the 100
- Otaksa with 4 branches.....at 15.00 the 100
- French Novelties, all the best ones, at 5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otakasa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 addition for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

JACKSON & PERKINS COMPANY, NEWARK, NEW YORK.

Wholesale only. Ours are "Made in America."

HYDRANGEAS, Otakasa, in bloom, from 25c to $3 each. Small plants, 3-inch pots, $5 per 100. HENRY SMITH, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

Thursday, August 19, the regular car for Elizabethtown was filled with florists bound for the Avondale farm and nurseries of our president, B. F. Barr. Along with our own members we had as guests, Bertram H. Farr, president of the American Peony Society; H. C. Huesman and F. H. Laucks, Reading, Pa.; C. E. Smith and wife, and August Shaeffer and wife, York, Pa.; and last but not least, Dennis Connor.

After an inspection of the nursery, each man, according to his taste, indulged in bowling on the green, croquet, cards, quoits and conversation. In the bowling contest, Jacob Fleer carried the honors for the greatest number of points made by one man. In the first match between teams made up by B. F. Barr and Albert M. Herr, the Herr team won out with flying colors, and in the match between teams made up by Geo. Goldbach and Rudolph Nagle, the Goldbach team won out. In the croquet, J. Ralph and J. Rutter Hess, from the Gap, showed Ira Landis from Paradise, and Chas. B. Herr from Strasburg that the Gap is not a "sleepy town" in spite of its name. In the quoits, Willis Girvin, of Leola, and August Shaeffer, showed they had some science and knowledge of things other than those pertaining to the florist's business. In cards, I think Elmer Weaver of Ronks, won the booby. In conversation H. A. Schroyer, Frank L. Kohr, A. F. Strickler and Dennis Connor, seemed to be in the lead.

About six o'clock Mrs. B. F. Barr took the party in charge, (and evidently believing in the adage of "to reach a man's heart feed the brute"), fed us royally, and was ably assisted in the serving by Rodney Eshlemen and Chas. B. Herr.

The Japanese lanterns were then lit all over the lawn, giving it a delightfully picturesque appearance, and the oil lamps were filled and lit for the porch, the cigars passed, and a half hour of general sociability indulged in to allow the feed to reach our hearts, after which a unanimous vote of thanks was extended to the host and hostess for their generous hospitality.

The regular meeting was called to order at 7:30 p. m., and aside from the regular routine business, a report was heard from the dahlia show committee to the effect that they had secured 800 square feet of space in the main building at the Lancaster county fair grounds, about half of which will be reserved for out of the county trade exhibits, as this will be an exceptional opportunity for the dahlia growers to show their products to several hundred thousand people. Volunteers were asked for to help at this show, and there will be two or more members of the club in attendance all the time to make it educational and advertise the dahlia. The date is September 8 to October 1, inclusive.

B. H. Farr was scheduled for an address on peonies, but unfortunately, was unable to stay for the evening meeting. Frank Suter made an elegant display of dahlias and received the thanks of the club. The meeting adjourned in time to take the eight o'clock car back to the city, and will long be remembered as one of the red letter days for the year 1915 by those who were with us. ALBERT M. SUPPLY SHORTENS BUT QUALITY IS POOR.

The supply of stock shortened somewhat during the past week, due to weather conditions, but prices were below the standard owing to poor quality of the offerings. Gladioli are practically off the market with the exception of a few that are sent in by local growers. Asters are improving both in stem and flowers, and some with extra long stems find ready sale. Lilies are of good quality and continue plentiful, and roses are coming in somewhat better, some very fine American Beauties, Russell and Killarney being seen in the shops. Carnations are still off the market. Funeral work has been fair and has helped out.

NOTES.

Business at Arthur Newell's is holding up well. The supply of good stock is plentiful and there is a good demand for funeral designs. Miss Mamie Klein of this establishment has returned after a trip of five weeks to the Pacific coast, where she visited the Panama-Pacific and San Diego expositions; also a two weeks' stay at Los Angeles. She called on the trade in several of the coast cities, and returned home well pleased with her trip, which was instructive as well as beneficial.

Henry Kusik & Co. report trade about as usual. They are receiving some exceptionally fine roses, especially American Beauties, Russell and Killarneys, all of which sell readily. Asters and lilies in plentiful supply and of good quality are also a feature at their establishment, the lilies especially being about the best seen in this market. Good statice is also being received from the West.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. are receiving some excellent roses, but they do not bring the prices their quality deserves. Gladioli are off and asters are shortening up. Funeral work has been fair with this firm.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports a fairly good volume of business during the week, funeral orders being a big factor. Their showing of asters are about as fine as are seen on the local market.

Alpha Floral Co. reports shipping trade exceptionally good, and funeral work, which is a big help at this time of the year, is holding up very well.

At J. T. Lovett's range we recently noted great activity in packing and shipping pot-grown strawberry plants. Over twenty varieties of strawberry plants are grown at this place, and while all have merit, the Van Fleet hybrids are doubtless the most noteworthy, they being a distinct advance in strawberry culture. Of these the Edmund Wilson, Early Jersey Giant and Late Jersey Giant are fine specimens. As stated, a large business is carried on in strawberry plants, but there are many other good features. There is a fine collection of pot-grown roses, of peonies, irises and other herbaceous stock, and the nursery contains many fine trees and shrubs.

Dean & Co., who have hitherto been better known as rose growers, have taken up carnation growing and have a considerable area of their range thus planted and the stock looks well.

The Clipper

There are three things that destroy your lawns—Dandelions, Buck Plantaio, and Crab Grass. In one season the Clipper will drive them all out. Your dealer should have them—if he has not, drop us a line, and we will send circulars and prices.

Clipper Lawn Mower Co., Box 15, Dixon, Ill.
