Gardenias and Their Culture.

Requirements Easily Supplied.

The gardenia has always been con- sidered a choice cut flower, and until the past two years has commanded a high price. The great demand encour- aged a number of growers to give it a trial, but in the majority of cases for various reasons, such as not being able to spare a house exclusively for its cul- ture, or to give it the proper attention, the necessary degree of heat, or lack- ing in many of the other essentials, the result was unsatisfactory returns or failure. Many have even devoted a house to this plant and put their best energies to its culture, but failed to get a crop until late in the spring, when the market was full and prices at the lowest ebb. Growing gardenias successfully is like attaining perfec- tion with any other plant; very easy when you know how. To get this knowledge requires experience; you can read the rules, as it were, out of a book, but it may take a long time to interpret them correctly. However, if growers will profit by their failures, and not become too easily discouraged, they will most likely win out in the end.

Amongst the most successful grow- ers of gardenias for the Philadelphia market is the firm of Macaw Bros., of Norwood, Pa. Beginning in a small way, they experimented along, until being reasonably sure of a crop they went into it more extensively, and this flower is now quite a factor in their business. Listening to the description and the rules of culture as laid down by Duncan Macaw it looks as simple as growing geraniums; in fact, Mr. Macaw says there is no secret in grow- ing the gardenia; they never having had the slightest failure of any kind that they could not account for in some careless treatment, such as too much or too little water or allowing the plants to get chilled, which shows up later in the poor color of the leaves or a dropping of buds or failure to set the same.

Cuttings for stock for the following winter are taken after the first of the year, and require three to four weeks in the sand; they are then put into small pots and finish or grow into good strong plants about June 1, when they are planted into six-inch pots or set out on the bench in soil, where they become well established by fall. Good soil is important; theirs is composed of one-third compost, one-third cow manure and one-third light leaf mould. Soil of benches should be four inches in depth. There is no topdressing dur- ing the winter, but manure water will increase the size of the flowers. The temperature is important; it should never be allowed to fall below 70 de- grees at night, and many failures are caused by neglect in this respect. Wat- ering is to be very carefully done; they are easily overwatered, which is a stumbling block to many growers. Although they did not heat their water Mr. Macaw believed it would be better with the chill taken off or brought up to a temperature of 70.

From good healthy plants set out in June they commence to cut the latter end of October, and continue until spring; the foliage or shoots that usu- ally comes either side of the bud has to be taken away to throw all the strength of the shoot into the flower. If the bud promises not to develop, then one of the shoots is left to grow on and will soon set another bud. When long stemmed flowers are de- sired only the strongest shoots are en- couraged, all flowers on the weaker branches being cut away. The cause of falling buds, or of turning black at the base, or failure to open, he at- tributes to too much water or possibly a chill at some earlier period. The latter error is the most common, as many growers are not able to keep their house to this temperature all the time. The variety forced is Gardenia Veitchii. Gardenia florida makes a flower twice as large as Veitchii, but cannot be forced in winter, not bloom- ing until spring.

There is no difference in the amount of flowers obtained from plants in the bed or those planted in pots; from 10 to 15 good salable flowers are taken from strong healthy plants during a season. Asked about insects, he said they give them very little trouble, the chief and almost sole offender being the mealy bug. If plants are strong and healthy they seldom appear, but if they do, a little nicotine, a 2½-inch pot full in a bucket of water applied with an atomizer will generally fix them.

There is no particular selection of the wood for cutting; any good plump shoots will do, but they should never receive a check, being kept on the jump all the time. Some growers keep their plants in for the second season; these two-year-old plants flower very profusely, but the blooms are generally smaller and do not grade very high. We like to start with strong young stock, from which we feel we get the best results. In the spring when the season is about over we lift our stock from the bed and pot the plants into six-inch pots, which soon become established, and for which we find quite a market. As an Easter plant we believe a well-flowered gardenia in a pot or small tub is quite the equal as a seller to any of the popular plants to be found in the market at that time.

We believe that if growers would try to grow higher-classed blooms, rather than such a quantity of small ones, which when thrown on the market in quantity find their way to the street at ruinous prices, the gardenia would regain its prestige as a high-class flower and better sales would result.

Calendula for Christmas.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

When should seed of calendula be sown and the plants benched to bloom for Christmas? We have two benches affording about four feet headroom and wish to know what can be grown with them in these benches.

E. C. C.

Montana.

The seed of calendula for winter flowering should be sown in August and as soon as large enough, transplanted into the benches 10 inches apart and given the same treatment as mignonette. There is quite a difference in the flowering qualities of various strains, some being very much earlier in blooming and more prolific. If you find any plants that show the tendency of being free in flowers, save the seed from these plants. The bench-room, as stated, will be all right for these plants.

Dahlias.

The dahlia will soon be here in quantity, and during the month of September is a large factor in the cut flower business. Dahlias of late years show great improvement, something new and distinctly superior being added to the already large list every season. Jack Rose, Minnie McCullough and Dorothy Peacock are three of the bright lights, and there are a number of others, up to a dozen varieties at least, that are especially suited for cut flowers, their form and brilliant colorings making harmonious or contrasting color schemes, and with the manipulation of the artistic designer effective arrangements are produced at very small cost.

The advent of the dahlia may be said to start the season, and for the wide-awake storeman it presents an opportunity to commence his winter campaign by a judicious use of these low-priced flowers. To those of his customers that he can reach at this time, a box of selected blooms with his compliments will be appreciated and a favorable impression made.

It is now time to give more attention to the show windows; inexpensive and very attractive displays with unique color effects may be made with the various types of this flower. All one color arranged in zinc-lined baskets of various sizes with ribboned handles is very conspicuous. Al. McCullough is another variety that makes a striking display. The brilliant red is a great favorite and one of the most popular. When this flower is at its height it is a good plan to push it to the exclusion of other favorites, which will have their inning later on. By keeping a good stock and having it attractively arranged a good impression is made which is helped along by the salesman who talks dahlias, calling attention to their fine form and color, their size and how seasonable. Other flowers, if mentioned, will be at their best later, but for the present there is no flower like this garden favorite.

Sprays of dahlias are just the thing at this time for funerals, Delice, a cactus, with a tassel-like flower of a lovely shade of pink, makes up into an elegant piece, just as handsome as roses. There are a number of other choice varieties especially suited for this work. Wreaths of white or colored dahlias are quite as handsome and effective as any other flower of the season; they also combine well with the bronze magnolia, such work being almost sure to be satisfactory.

As a decorative flower for the table, particularly for a large banquet, they are most gorgeous in low rose bowls, combined with taller vases and garlands laid on the cloth, or as a center for individual tables there is nothing quite so showy.

Taking the Inventory.

One of the most essential, and yet we venture to say, the duty that is the least attended to is that of the inventory. The average retail storekeeper looks about him and is satisfied that his stock is worth about as much as it was last year at this time, but as to just what it represents in actual money expended, he is unable to say. Books can not be satisfactorily balanced without the account of stock on hand, whether it be baskets, pottery, decorative material, wire designs or other items that are found necessary in the equipment of the store. Every firm should know exactly how they stand at least once a year; in fact, if the books are kept properly, the monthly balance gives a very good idea as to condition or the progress of the business.

This article will not interest the successful stores who have long recognized the importance of careful book-keeping and system in conducting their business. There are, however, many establishments both large and small, who are considered fairly successful, but who push along without this systematic way of doing things, who if they would go over their stock, piece by piece, sort it out, throw away the old style and rubbishy shop-worn goods that have so long lumbered their shelves or basement, they would be astonished at the amount of this there was. In every such collection there will be found quite a lot of baskets that can be made presentable by a few repairs and a touch of paint or gilt and the addition of a zinc pan. Nothing should be handled in the store but bright, fresh, up-to-date stock; there is such variety in baskets, vases or jardinières that anything that is fresh looking and clean, whether of last season's vintage or even the year before, is liable to find a customer. In going over the pot covers and pedestals, a number will be found that need repairs, which will probably give them another year of usefulness, but which if left until the busy time, would not be considered fit for use and likely be thrown away.

It will often be found that price marks or tags have been lost from a number of pieces; these should be looked up and renewed, so that any of the salespeople can give intelligent answers to customers.

These features go to make the stock taking of much greater interest as values are added that would otherwise be lost. In every store a book in which to make a note of things wanted will be found very useful. Stock articles, such as cycas leaves, wheat sheaves, stemming sticks, wire and wire designs, tin-foil, letters, ribbons, etc., will get low, and if entered will be ordered before they are entirely out. If it is found that the stock of wreaths or other designs of magnolia leaves are low, now is the time to work them up. A good line of this class of goods is a great help when the busy season sets in. K.

Art Floral Co's San Francisco Store.

The accompanying illustrations show the Art Floral Co.'s store, San Francisco, Calif., as it appeared, specially decorated, during the S. A. F. convention in that city, August 17-19. The lattice work was built especially for the occasion and in addition there were four panels with figures of girls carrying bouquets of flowers. The figures were painted on heavy cardboard and then cut out with a knife, the first representing a bride carrying phalaenopsis for a bridal bouquet, the rest of the decoration around the panel being arranged with white hydrangeas making a perfect setting. Other figures were decorated in similar manner to represent the bridesmaids and others in a wedding party, the entire arrangement being highly artistic and pleasing, and greatly admired by both visitors and local people.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Taking the Bud.

The term, "taking the bud," means the selection of the bud to remain to develop into the flower. New beginners in the growing of chrysanthemums are often puzzled by what is meant by the term of taking the buds. Many of the plants are now forming clusters of buds, most of which from this date on are called terminal buds and consist of a center or main bud, surrounded by a number of others; the taking of the buds in this case means the removing, or rubbing out the surrounding buds, leaving the center one to go on to make the flower. The difference between the bud now forming, and the earlier one, which was removed three or four weeks ago, is that the earlier bud (which is called a crown bud) had a growth shoot on each side. One of these, together with the center bud, was removed; the other allowed to go on into growth, and now at the apex of this growth the terminal bud is forming, but now our aim is to save the center bud and remove those around it, they being only side bud shoots and not having any main growth to support them in making large blooms. Growers experienced in the growing of chrysanthemums for exhibition cut blooms, as well as the early planted stock of the early flowering and other commercial varieties, have the buds on most of their plants already selected, but those planted later and many of the midseason varieties are now setting buds which will produce the best blooms. August 20 to September 15 is the period for the commercial varieties to set their buds to bring the best results. Chrysolora, Ivory, Pink Ivory, Chas. Razer and Chieftain, begin to be ready for bud selection about August 20 and by September 1 most of the buds on these varieties are taken. September 1-10, Timothy Eaton, Yellow Eaton, Col. D. Appleton, W. H. Chadwick, Golden Chadwick and Yellow Chadwick and other mid-season varieties should be ready for taking, but when the plants have had careful attention throughout the growing season, and the side growths removed on time, it is safe to take buds on most all varieties as they appear after August 25. You will find that some will be ready and others of the same variety will stretch out to the first week of September, but be on the job to look after them at this time. Any delay after the first week of September means a smaller flower.

After the bud is taken, any side shoot that has been missed anywhere down the stem, will quickly branch out and draw strength from the plant, so still be on the lookout for these stragglers; also, the suckers at the stool of the plant will take on a rapid growth and should be removed, being careful not to damage the roots when cutting them out.

Among the important parts of the routine work in caring for the cut flower stock is to be sure the plants are properly supported to carry them upright, and again do not neglect the spraying with insecticide to keep the insects in check. Toward the latter part of September we may expect some cool, still nights and these should be taken advantage of to do some fumigating, so that the plants will be thoroughly clean before the petals begin to unfurl.

It is now time to be extra cautious regarding the water and syringing. The plants must not be allowed to suffer for water, but they do not require anywhere near as much watering or syringing as they did a month ago.

Large specimen plants for exhibition must now be given close attention. They ought to have the best possible position in the houses to develop and shape themselves, and the training and spreading out of the branches should be attended to up close so that there will not be any danger of the shoots getting broken. Application of liquid cow or horse manure twice a week will be beneficial to the growth of these plants, but do not apply the manure to any plant while it is dry at the roots, but first water with clear water and let it remain for an hour before applying the liquid manure.

Any chrysanthemums growing in the field, with the intention of lifting them for potting to be grown into market pot plants, should now be taken care of. Pot them up into a live, fairly rich soil, keeping them in the shade, spraying the foliage two or three times a day until they become established, after which give them a light, airy bench. Attend to work of supporting them, and when well established apply liquid manure liberally.

Do not neglect the pompon and singles being grown for cut flower sprays. Cut out the thin, spindly wood to give the stronger sprays a chance and as soon as the buds appear, treat the plants to applications of liquid manure twice a week. The plants will respond quickly with a vigorous, healthy growth.

Vacant-Lot Gardens in Toronto.

Through the efforts of the Rotary Club, of Toronto, 130 vacant city lots have been secured and turned over to needy families for the raising of vegetables. Members of the club, with the mayor of Toronto and members of the city council, made a tour of inspection of this work on August 12, when it was found that 96 families and 432 persons in all have already been benefited by this movement to have vacant city lots put to some good use. So much pleased were the mayor and councilmen with the results that it is likely that lots at the disposal of the municipal authorities will soon be used for growing vegetables for the poor of Toronto. Owing to the over-speculation in town lots and in laying out unnecessary additions to the city, Toronto has many acres of land within the corporate limits that could be profitably used to aid needy people in accordance with the plan adopted by the Rotary Club.

MINOT, N. D.—George Walker has purchased property in the business district in this city and will erect one of the finest flower shops in this section of the country.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Summer Care of Young Stock.

The latter part of the summer is a season of preparation in the fern houses, this being the period when the small ferns are potted off from flats or pans in readiness for use during the winter in filling ferneries. If sufficient bench room is at hand the young ferns may well be placed in the greenhouses after potting, provided that plentiful ventilation can be given, so that the growth of the plants will be short and stocky, for ferns with lanky and soft foliage are of but little use for the table fernery.

If space is still scarce in the houses, the young ferns will come along nicely in outdoor frames, where they may be protected from the weather with sashes that are raised above the frame about one foot so that abundant ventilation may be had both day and night, and as a matter of fact the plants will really be better in the frame than in the greenhouse if the weather continues warm, for the growth will be more stocky and there will be less likelihood of the foliage damping off with such an abundance of fresh air at all times.

The question of varieties that are most valuable as florists' ferns has been frequently discussed in these columns, but it may be briefly re-stated by saying that several pteris are among the favorites, for example: P. Cretica albo-lineata, P. Wilsonii, P. Wimsetti, P. Mayii and P. adiantoides, Aspidium tsussmense (decidedly one of the best), Cyrtomium Rochfordianum, and Aspidium chrysoloba. These few are sufficient for all ordinary work, and are usually to be had in quantity at reasonable prices from the fern specialists, but anyone who desires a greater variety may readily increase the list.

It will be noted that no maidenhairs are included in this list, but as some customers may insist on having this beautiful and extensive family represented in their ferneries, it may be well to include a limited quantity of Adiantum cuneatum, true cuneatum rather than A. Roenbeckii being preferable as a pot plant, while for cut fronds it makes but little difference whether the original type of Adiantum cuneatum or its variety, Roenbeckii, be used.

The ever increasing list of nephrolepis varieties still includes some of the best sellers among florists' ferns, even though many thousands of them are distributed by the department stores in our large cities every season at rather reprehensible prices, when looked at from the florists' viewpoint. But it must be taken into consideration that the above-mentioned department stores buy the ferns from growers who are quite willing to clean up a large block of good, bad, and indifferent plants at a certain price for cash, and that the department store rarely sells below cost, and also reaches a class of customers who seldom go into a florist's store.

However that may be, the growers, and there are hundreds of them, too, are now busy in the preparation of nephrolepis for the fall and winter trade, potting up the young plants from the propagating bed, potting on the older ones into larger pots and pans, and in all cases giving the stock as much space as can be spared for the purpose, with the intention of producing sturdy and well-finished plants that will find a ready market, and with this spacing out of the stock it should be given plenty of air and sunshine, for commercial ferns, generally speaking, will stand a great deal more sunshine than was once thought possible. Of course all ferns that are treated after such a plan will require proper attention in the matter of watering, and will stand a great deal more of the hose than those that are grown under the coddling system that once obtained.

Considerable quantities of the birds' nest fern, Asplenium nidus, are now being grown for the trade, plants in four, five and six-inch pots being among those most in demand, the light green and shiny leaves of this fern being so distinct and striking that they seldom fail to attract attention. This marks one of the advances in the fern trade, for only a few years ago a bench filled with Asplenium nidus would attract almost as much attention as though it were filled with that singular West Indian fern, Hymenodium crinitum, the large uncut leaves of which are covered with black hairs, and remind one of elephants' ears rather than fern fronds.

PTERIS.

THE ROSE.

Work in the Houses.

The work in the rose houses at this time varies but little outside of the suggestions mentioned in our last article. The cultivation should be attended to regularly, and where extremely early planting was done and the feeding roots are found near the surface, then the cultivating should be stopped and a light top-dressing of thoroughly decomposed manure of almost any kind should be put on the beds; just enough to barely cover the soil, something to wash around on the soil to keep the roots cool and to protect the soil from cracking or baking. Russel, Ophelia, and any variety that has a tendency to black spot should be kept tied up, care being taken not to tie the plants too compactly, but just enough to keep them from swishing around when syringing with considerable pressure. This will enable the plants to dry out more rapidly and furnish a free circulation of air between the rows. Use plenty of air-slaked lime dusted through the base of the plants and in the walks, particularly in dark or rainy weather and as the nights grow cooler, the plants should be dusted during the day with grapedust. We usually apply the dust just as soon as the foliage is thoroughly dry, and let it remain on the foliage during that day and the next; then on the following day syringe it off carefully. If the plants require water in the meantime we avoid wetting the foliage. In this way we rarely have any trouble with mildew or spot. All the pruning should be finished up, and do not be in too great a hurry to feed up the newly pruned plants. They should be allowed to make some good foliage, and the first growth should be well ripened before attempting any feeding, then a light mulch of good manure can be used if it is well rotted.

Grafted American Beauty.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Is grafted stock of American Beauty grown to any great extent? What are the advantages if any of grafted stock of this variety?

GROWER.

Replying to the above inquiry, we will state that we have tried grafting the American Beauty rose on Manetti stock (which is the stock used universally), and the results did not come up to those obtained by using the own root stock of this variety. We have seldom found it beneficial to graft a variety that has a tendency to break freely or throw strong canes from the root, on a variety that forms a large callous in the cutting bed. Varieties having these tendencies are inclined to break away at the union, being forced apart at the spliced joint by a knotty growth, or clubbed growth, formed by an extra amount of hardened sap or callous formation. American Beauty, being a free breaking and exceptionally vigorous grower, could be very little benefitted by grafting, excepting perhaps where the soil was badly infested with eel worm, then a difference might be noticed for the better if grafted. E.

Atlantic City Gladiolus Exhibition.

This exhibition, given under the auspices of the American Gladiolus Society, and a sequel to the Newport gladiolus show, was held in the Casino of the Royal Palace hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., August 26-28. The room, 60 by 100 feet, was filled to its capacity with the exhibits, several of them somewhat crowded, but all arranged with more attention to detail than is generally seen. There were superb flowers of the most recent introductions, as well as large vases of the standard forcing and garden favorites.

The feature of the show was the large, artistically arranged baskets, the work of Max Schling of New York, which occupied the center of the room. The flowers, which had been furnished by the society, were very tastefully arranged in a number of large baskets. One large floor basket, with a diagonal handle, standing about six feet high, filled with spikes of lavender and yellow, the handle decorated with handsome ribbons in orange and green, was very striking. A table decoration set for six persons was of montbretias and Primulinus gladioli, giving an orange and red coloring. There was a round plateau effect in the center, with six small vases arranged around it. A bridal shower bouquet was of white gladioli, with narrow ribbon streamers with buds and smaller flowers attached; also one of pink, with spray effect. These were very much admired. There was also a large table covered with some 300 blooms of America, and several other large baskets showing color effects. This display was a splendid example of the florists' art, and a credit to Mr. Schling, whose individual work it was. The various other exhibits were staged around the sides of the building.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., staged a splendid lot of his choice varieties—Peace, War, Blue Jay and other fine sorts were seen in perfection.

A center of attraction was the table of W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s Fordhook hybrids, splendidly arranged. The flowers were large and in great variety of colors, all seedlings. A basket contained a quantity of spikes all from seed, sown this season.

H. F. Michell Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., made an interesting display with gladioli, herbaceous phloxes and other perennials.

John Lewis Childs staged his usual fine assortment of flowers. Sunburst, Winsome, Dazzler, Melrose and Liebesfeur were prominent sorts.

Knight and Struck Co., New York, had a nicely decorated exhibit, using palms against a blue silk screen for a background. There were a number of choice varieties of gladioli. Blue and white display cards carried out the color scheme.

B. Hammond Tracy of Wenham, Mass., had a fine collection of splendid spikes of his own seedlings and standard varieties.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., staged fine gladioli, relieved with cocos palms and ferns. This firm also decorated the stage with palms.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., displayed vases of herbaceous flowers and vases of outdoor roses.

The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., had a large display of Rochester White gladioli and cut herbaceous flowers. Fancy evergreens in tubs were also a feature.

A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind., had a small display of his new type of gladioli. They are a great novelty.

For such a fine show there should have been a much better attendance. Maurice Fuld had worked very hard in exploiting the exhibition, but for some reason, apathy or other attractions, the people did not come out as expected. Max Schling spoke on "How to Arrange Gladioli Artistically." Arthur Cowee spoke also on the individuality of varieties, and Maurice Fuld gave amateurs instructions in growing gladioli. There was no premium list or awards of any kind. K.

Lake Minnetonka Flower Show.

The Lake Minnetonka Amateur Flower Show Association opened its second annual show Friday, August 27, at Lake Minnetonka, Minn., but Saturday was forced to close on account of a rain storm, and continued the exhibition Sunday. The tent was open to visitors from 2 p. m. until 7 p. m. After the show the flowers were sent to the hospitals of the Twin Cities. There were sixty prizes given and Calvin G. Goodrich won the gold medal. Other prize winners were W. O. Winston, John F. Wilcox, Mrs. Elbert L. Carpenter, Isabella Bladon and Mrs. Louis Hanson. That the association is growing fast is shown by the fact that last year there were only nine tables, while this year there were 20 large, well-filled tables, and they have already taken up the matter of securing the new varieties of plants, bulbs and seeds for next year. Wm. D. Desmond acted as judge and found it a very difficult position, as the quality of the flowers shown would have done credit to professional growers. T. C. R.

Lake Forest Flower Show.

The grounds of the Onwentsia club, Lake Forest, Ill., were the scene of the flower show held in conjunction with the "Country Fair," given by the Lake Forest Horse Show Association, Saturday, August 28, and the exhibition proved to be one of the most successful, both in point of attendance and number, quality and variety of the displays ever held on the North shore. The premium list provided for awards in 50 classes for cut flowers and seven classes for baskets, table arrangements, bouquets, etc., and so keen was the competition that the judges, Wm. Longland and Henry Martini, of Lake Geneva, found themselves confronted with no small task, and it was near the closing hour before the last prize-winning ribbon was attached. The weather was ideal—bright and cool, the large tent in which the show was staged was well ventilated and the blooms appeared to splendid advantage during the entire day. Even at the closing hour a "sleepy looking" flower was an exception. Circling the tent on the outside, an excellent display of fruits and vegetables was staged, awards being offered in over 40 classes.

Entering the tent, the attention of the visitor was immediately arrested by what appeared to be a veritable riot of wonderful colors occupying a space about 100 square feet. This was the exhibit staged by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and the splendid display of blooms in great variety was the center of an admiring throng from the opening until the closing hour. Here were gladioli of most gorgeous and showy coloring on long, strong spikes, over 40 distinct varieties being noted in this display. Included in this collection the following seemed to be the leaders in popularity: Princeps, brilliant scarlet - crimson; Schwaben, the new yellow; Dazzler, bright salmon-scarlet, with red-orange blotch on lower petals; Jean Bart, bright crimson-red; Charles L. Hutchison, rich blood-red; Orange Glory, with 8 to 10 flowers to a spike; Gerald, carrying nine blossoms of deep rose on a spike of graceful form; Mme. P. Palmer, rose suffused with carmine; Mme. Brunet, rosy lilac and carmine. Chicago Salmon, Phlegeton, Madrilene, Desdemone and Primulinus Sunbeam also had many admirers, and of course, Mrs. Francis King, America, Peace, and others of the old favorites, were not forgotten. Among the roses were seen splendid vases of Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Ophelia and Mrs. Russell, and Canna Firebird did its full share to add to the wonderful color scheme. Queen of the Market and Little Gem were both noticeable among the asters. Tritoma Pfitzeri, Delphiniums Gold Medal Hybrids and King of the Delphiniums, Buddleia variabilis Vietchiana and Vaughan's Colossal zinnias also made splendid showings. This display was not in competition.

For a general display of annuals, James Thorne (M. Zschau, Gr.) was awarded first prize with a splendid collection of zinnias, helianthus, ageratum, mignonette, asters and scabiosa; also first award for display of pansies.

For collection of asters, three blooms of each color, first prize was captured by D. W. Cummings (K. Lofving, Gr.). For the best display of Sutton's Ray aster, the honors went to Mrs. K. H. Addington (L. E. Wallis, Gr.). Mrs. H. F. McCormick's excellent showing of asters won the second premium and Mrs. Bryon L. Smith was third.

In the collection of dahlias, not less than eight varieties, John, T. Pirie was awarded first premium. Some of the seedlings were marvelous in coloring and size of bloom.

In the competition for honors for best collection of outdoor roses, W. C. Egan secured first premium, showing among other varieties some excellent blooms of Caroline Testout, Radiance and Florence Pemberton. Mrs. Edward S. Moore and Mrs. Byron L. Smith, who also made most creditable displays, were awarded second and third premiums, respectively.

Mrs. Stanley Field made excellent displays in both the classes for annual phloxes and salpiglossis and received first premiums for both.

In the class for calliopsis, excellent displays were made by both Mrs. E. A. Moore and H. B. Clow.

First award in the class for show dahlias went to Mrs. Byron L. Smith, who staged an exhibit of splendid blooms.

For the best arranged vase of garden roses, the first premium was given to G. A. McKinlack (Oscar Carlson, Gr.).

In the competition for best centerpiece for dining room table, Reuben Hunt was first, Mrs. Stanley Field, second, and Ralph Poole, third.

A display of African marigolds, Sutton strain, splendidly grown, attracted much attention. Competition in this class was close, and resulted in the award of first prize to R. A. Poole (G. Erickson, Gr.) with H. B. Clow (James A. Wilson, Gr.) a close second.

In the class for single dahlias, first and second awards were made to John T. Pirie and W. C. Egan (Geo. Francis, Gr.), respectively.

For the best general display of perennials, first honors went to Cyrus H. McCormick, who staged a splendid exhibit.

W. C. Egan (George Francis, Gr.) had a grand display of perennial phloxes, many of the blooms being the size of a silver dollar, and for which he was awarded a first prize. He also secured first premium for cactus dahlias in variety.

In the class for snapdragons, first premium was awarded to Mrs. H. F. McCormick.

Excellent displays were also made by W. O. Lindley (Olof Persson, Gr.), Mrs. John Chapman, A. B. Dick (F. R. Kuehne, Gr.); Mrs. F. C. Letts (L. A. Swanton, Gr.), Louis Swift, Mrs. Jas. B. Heyworth, Mrs. B. A. Eckhart, Mrs. R. H. McElwee, and others.

Carnations as a Profitable Crop in Texas.

Round table discussion led by Bird Forrest, Waxahachie, Tex., at the second annual convention of the Texas State Florists' Association, Fort Worth, July 6-7, 1915.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We feel rather doubtful of our calling in coming before you with a talk on what really amounts to growing carnations in Texas—so many of you have been in the business longer, and have had more experience along this as well as other lines. However, as I have been selected for this part, I will do the best I can.

Growing carnations for profit means growing them so as to get the very largest possible returns from the plants, with the smallest possible outlay consistent with growing good stock, and the profits will be larger if you err on the side of more attention than is absolutely necessary than they will if you are a few hours late in watering, a few days late in putting on supports, or cultivating, and neglect the red spider until it gets hold.

Our conditions are entirely different in many respects to those of our brothers further north. Our stock must be rooted much earlier to be established in the pots before the sun gets too hot, and to be ready for our earlier planting in the field. Also, the period when there are no outdoor flowers is much shorter here, so we must use every effort to get as much as possible out of our stock during our shorter period. This makes it necessary that we have heavy, stocky plants to bench; plants that will get right to work; that we give them the best of soil in the benches, and constant care and attention; see that they are planted just the right depth; that they get enough, and still not too much water; that weeds and grass are kept pulled out, and the soil frequently stirred. Effective supports should be put on early. Given good plants at benching time, the year's returns depend on constant and prompt attention to the needs of the plants.

The varieties of carnations we now grow originated in a cooler climate than ours. The cool nights come earlier in the fall and start the plants off vigorously while ours are sweltering in the heat. This disadvantage can be overcome to some extent by close attention to watering and spraying. Can't some of you more experienced growers breed up a strain of carnation that will be, you might say, native to our climate and more resistant to our hot, dry, summer atmosphere? The proposed greenhouse at College Station would be useful along this line.

Our greatest enemies to the carnation are red spider and stem rot. Red spider is easily handled by promptly spraying with arsenic every spot where they appear; one pound to ten pounds sugar, made to a thick syrup or paste with warm water (not cooked). One ounce of this mixture to one gallon of water, put on with compressed air sprayer will keep them cleaned out. The mixture is not strong enough to be dangerous, as you would have to eat a big bunch of stems to get enough to hurt you. The past two years we have practically eliminated stem rot in the greenhouses by having our soil clean, clean benches and proper attention to watering at benching time.

We firmly believe in cement benches as the very best way to handle carnations inside. Our benches are cast in one piece, five feet wide, six inches deep, with plenty of drainage holes. When changing the soil several years ago, we emptied one bench, cleaned and whitewashed it, and filled it as we emptied the next one; that is, a man would carry out a bucket of old soil from bench No. 2 and bring back a bucket of new soil for bench No. 1, using the same bucket. This we found would leave a small quantity of old soil with the new—enough to transfer any disease or fungus that might be in the soil. We had an attack of club root four years ago. We then adopted the method of cleaning soil out of the entire house, washing the benches thoroughly and then giving them a thorough whitewashing; also, whitewashing shovels and buckets before handling the new soil to fill the benches. This almost eliminated the trouble, but we still had a little of it. We thought possibly the infection was carried on the carnation support stakes, of which there is one to every plant. Accordingly, last season, in addition to other precautions, we soaked the stakes in whitewash. The past season we have been entirely free of it. Infection can also be carried in freesia and gladioli bulbs that are grown in carnation benches, but these can easily be cleaned by washing in formaldehyde solution. In cleaning ours, we also put them in a candy bucket and poured a teaspoonful of carbon bisulphide on them, putting a paper over the top to keep the fumes in. One or the other, or both of these plans effectively cleaned them.

No form of bench can be so easily cleaned and disinfected as the one-piece cement bench; also, it lasts a lifetime and cost of material is less than the cost of lumber to make the same bench. A cement bench five feet wide, with three rows of legs spaced four feet apart, costs less than 35 cents per running foot, including labor; gravel at $2 per yard, cement at 50 cents per sack. We have on exhibition here a set of pictures of a cement bench in course of construction, with notes on same. We will be glad to give any information wanted to those inquiring. No, we don't want to sell you one, but just to help along. This may be considered a digression from the subject in hand, but we believe anything that tends to lessen the cost of production is pertinent to the subject, and cement benches that never need repairs, do not decay, do not hold bugs, insects and fungus diseases from year to year are certainly an item when it comes to keeping down expenses.

To get back to carnations, there are a few of the things we have found essential: Healthy stock from which to take cuttings (we do not like to pull leaves off the cuttings or top them, as both leave open wounds); an absolutely clean cutting bench, with good drainage, and clean sand. Also, we have better success without bottom heat. Cuttings spaced far enough apart to see the sand freely between each one; watered well when put in, and sprinkled lightly every sun-shiny day. Covered with papers the first two weeks on sun-shiny day; papers put on about 9:30 or 10:00 a. m., and taken off about 3:00 p. m. Our best plants have always come from cuttings put in sand December 10 to January 1.

Pay close attention to the little plants in pots; see that they are kept in good shape (we keep them in a cool house), planting to the field March 10-20; kept perfectly clean and plowed at least once a week. To get shapely plants, this is the most important time. Keep them topped and standing straight up and benched June 25 to July 10. See that they are not planted deeper than they were in the field. If planted deeper it is an invitation to stem rot. We plant ours seven rows across a five-foot bench, 11 inches between the rows. We have had excellent success planting in soil made by high water, deposited along the creek. Any soil that will grow bloodweeds 12 to 15 feet high will grow good carnations. We haul our soil up one year ahead, put in layers five loads of soil to one of manure from cotton seed meal fed cattle. This is turned over twice to get it in good shape.

In conclusion, let me say that if you have good carnations and plenty of them and any kind of market for them, the profit will show up all right.

Albany, N. Y.

On Saturday, September 11, will be held in the common council chamber, city hall, an exhibition from the gardens of the public school children of the city. Should the council chamber be too small the overflow exhibits will be staged in Academy park, across the street. A number of prizes have been donated for the occasion by business men and citizens. It is expected that every school will be represented. A cash prize will be awarded to the school making the largest exhibit, and one to the school making the most artistic display of its work. The prizes will be awarded by Mayor Joseph W. Stevens, C. Edward Jones, superintendent of schools; Jacob Herzog, president of the board of education, and Arthur L. Andrews, corporation counsel. Children to the number of 1212 entered the contest early in the season and the number of gardens visited by Miss Virginia Hastings, superintendent of gardens of the Woman's Club of Albany which started the contest, is about 1,000. The cash prizes amount to $178 of which Fred A. Danker, William C. Gloeckner, and Mrs. E. S. Hazelton, florists, contributed $5 each. The influence of the Albany garden contest has reached Hudson, where next spring the women's club of that city will organize one for the school children.

Richard D. Griffin, one of the well known members of the Albany Florists' club, died at his home, 192 Second street, on the night of August 26 after a few days' illness with pneumonia. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, August 29, and was attended by many members of the club. The Rev. Paul Birdsall, rector of Grace Protestant Episcopal church, officiated. Mr. Griffin was born in Albany 57 years ago, attended the public schools and as a young man entered the fire department under his father, who for years was a prominent fireman. He was always a lover of nature and entered the employ of the bureau of parks where he worked as an assistant gardener for several years. Following a change in local politics in 1899 he left the city service and was employed by many well-to-do families to look after their lawns and flower beds, a work he followed up to his death with increasing success. He is survived by his wife, one son, Russell P., and one daughter, Mrs. John Linden, all of this city. Mr. Griffin was in attendance at the clambake of the Albany Florists' Club on August 21 and apparently in good health.

Over 150 members, their wives, and friends attended the ninth annual outing and clambake of the florists' club at Henkes Brothers' grove, Newtonville, Saturday afternoon, August 21. The bake was opened about 4 o'clock and the guests were seated at three long tables. The sky was overcast but no rain fell until the bake was well over and some had started for home.

Among the visitors were Roman J. Irwin and wife and Henry C. Riedel, of Bagley, Riedel & Meyer, New York.

Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt is reported to be negotiating for a part of Erskine Park, the estate of the late George Westinghouse at Lenox, Mass. Mrs. Vanderbilt has leased Shadow brook, the placed owned by Spencer Shotter at Lenox, for the season, but is anxious to secure a property of her own. Erskine Park is a tract of 600 acres laid out in part in fine landscape effect.

From San Francisco comes the report that the state of New York has been awarded 60 medals and two honorable mentions for exhibits by the agricultural department. It is believed that the judges have not all completed their work and that more awards will also be made. R. D.

OUTDOOR STOCK IN PROFUSION.

This summer has been the most remarkable in many years. The weather has been very cool and there has been the greatest amount of rainfall in 50 years. Vegetation has never been so prolific; outdoor flowers are everywhere, and in nearly all of the yards can be seen flowers such as dahlias, gladioli, zinnias, etc., that would do credit to any florist. The largest corn crop ever known in this section will be harvested soon, but other farm crops such as hay and wheat have been damaged very much by wet weather, and as this is a center of a farming community, future business in all lines depends much on crops in general.

NOTES.

The Terre Haute Rose and Carnation Co. is building a large cement block stack. The carnations are in and are looking fine. About 40,000 feet of glass are devoted to them, and there are about an equal quantity in the field which they are selling to the trade. Manager Winton says that they are the largest plants that he has ever had in the field.

Cowan Bros. & Co. are making extensive improvements at their establishment on Twenty-first street. Mrs. Jane Cowan, mother of the proprietors, suffered severe injury in a fall down the stairs leading to the boiler room recently, breaking two ribs and suffering other injuries. She is improving slowly.

Fred Wunker has returned from a trip to Mt. Pleasant, Mich. Miss Dora Wunker has gone to the Pacific coast where she will visit the expositions and other points of interest. She will return in about two months.

Heinl & Weber, Plumb street, have just completed one new house and a nice office and entrance which makes a very nice addition to their establishment.

The Davis Gardens are preparing to build three more houses each 72 by 600 feet. They are said to have the finest service buildings in the state.

Henry Graham is building an addition to his residence on South Seventeenth street and beautifying the grounds. He has a beautiful place.

Miss Minnie Dunweg, of John G. Heinl & Son's store force, has returned from a vacation spent at Louisville, Ky., with her sister. B. S.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The first fall meeting of this society was held Friday evening, August 27, in the County building, Hartford. President Warren S. Mason sent word that he would be unable to be present on account of sickness, but Vice-President G. H. Hollister, superintendent of Keney park, presided over the meeting in his stead. G. Ogren, gardener for Mrs. William H. Bulkeley, displayed a vase of Crego asters of unusual size and beauty—pink, white and lavender. The judges named by the chair were Francis Roulier, Oscar Gritzmacher, and Alfred Cebelius, who awarded the exhibit a certificate of merit.

An interesting discussion took place regarding the use of a paper collar for bleaching celery, one exponent claiming that one man could cover more plants in one hour by this method than he could hill-up in a day. These collars, so-called, are inexpensive and may be used for a number of years. Mr. Hollister commented upon the absence of the elm leaf beetle around Hartford, especially as they were so plentiful last year. He was unable to account for their absence. The meeting was well attended.

The executive committee convened at the close of the meeting to plan for the dahlia show to be held the latter part of September. Entries are being received from prominent growers, and at this writing there are indications of an unusually fine exhibition. The next meeting of the society will be held September 10. ALFRED DIXON, Sec'y.

THE 1916 CONVENTION CITY.

One week has passed since the storm and the florists have about cleaned up the wreckage, and are beginning to rebuild. After checking up the stock we find the damage to extend to about 25 to 35 per cent. In about two or three weeks we will not know we had a storm. Everybody is working a large force of men, and will soon have things straightened out.

All the florists are enthusiastic over the S. A. F. convention for next summer. Very shortly we will name our committees, and get busy early in the game. We propose to make this a record breaking convention for the society. I firmly believe it will come right up to the best convention the S. A. F. has ever known, if it is not a record breaker. In view of the line of publicity we are going to give the convention the coming year, it will stir up interest throughout the United States, and very few of the members will feel like staying at home.

As far as trade exhibits are concerned, we have a large auditorium, and I am sure it is going to be packed to its capacity. I cite you for example our Texas State Florists' Association, which is as yet a small organization; and we were enabled to stir up enough interest to fill a good size building with exhibits. Now compare, if you please, the Texas State Florists' Association and the great S. A. F. and you will have in comparison the kind of an exhibit we will have at the 1916 S. A. F. convention in Houston.

R. C. KERR, Vice-Pres. S. A. F.

The Late Thomas A. Ivey.

Thomas A. Ivey, head of the florist firm of Thomas A. Ivey & Sons, Ltd., of Port Dover, Ont., with branches in several cities in Canada, and well-known to the florist trade in both the United States and the Dominion, was killed August 14 when a taxicab in which he was riding was struck by a locomotive. He was 68 years of age. A widow, three daughters and four sons survive, the sons being associated in the business.

DEALERS report the glass market firm, prices having advanced about two and one-half per cent since spring and that present quotations will probably hold until late in the fall.

PRESIDENT WELCH'S haste in returning to Boston from California was explained on arrival at Chicago when it was found that the bean crop had been stricken by frost. Such a calamity is well calculated as sufficient to alarm every true-hearted Bostonian and American citizen under present distressing harvest conditions.

Funeral Flowers Must Be Burned.

The latest health regulations drawn up by the Illinois State Board of Health require all the flowers at the funeral of a person who died of a contagious disease to be burned after the body is removed from the house.

Hall at Kansas City, Mo.

A severe hailstorm accompanied by heavy rain is reported to have damaged the greenhouses of the Joseph Austin Floral Co., to the extent of $1,000. W. J. Barnes, Thirty-eighth street and Euclid avenue, sustained a loss of 2,000 square feet of glass in five minutes.

Business Conditions.

The Central Trust Co., Chicago, says August 21: "Business conditions generally are good throughout the country and will improve as soon as the movement of crops is well under way. The best conditions are found in the western and Rocky Mountain states and the poorest conditions in the south-eastern states, in central New York, central Pennsylvania and on the western edge of the Pacific slope."

Missouri Hospitality.

A number of the San Francisco convention visitors reached Kansas City, Mo., Sunday morning, August 29, on the return trip, the party including President Welch and wife and Miss Claxton, of Boston, Mass.; A. Lange and wife, Homer Lange and M. Barker, Chicago; A. Kakuda and K. Furuya, New York. The travelers visited the establishments of Samuel Murray, W. L. Rock Flower Co., and Arthur Newell. Mr. Murray's new place was greatly admired and pronounced second to none in the country for elegance, accommodation and up-to-date equipment. Mr. Murray and wife, Arthur Newell, Henry Kusik, Fred Fromhold, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., and the Misses Hayden welcomed the visitors. The genial Sam entertained the entire party with dinner at the Hotel Baltimore, the large oval table being handsomely decorated by the Misses Hayden for the occasion. The drive in automobiles over the city's beautiful and extensive boulevards completed the day's entertainment, which was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Los Angeles Barbecue.

Members of the Society of American Florists and American Association of Park Superintendents, returning from the San Francisco conventions of those organizations, by way of Los Angeles, were agreeably surprised to find invitations to an auto ride and barbecue in their mail boxes the morning after arrival in the latter city. The promoters of this entertainment were H. R. Richards, representing the Los Angeles Horticultural Society, Park Superintendent Shearer, Fred Howard, Morris Goldenson, Fred Hills, Henry W. Turner, Fred Sperry, Hal S. Kruckeberg, J. Dieterich, and others representing the trade, who were joined by Mayor Sebastian in welcoming the visitors to the angel city, where as one of the travelers expressed it, heaven seemed so close that an average size man could stand on the top of one of the buildings and break a piece off the moon, which shone so clear. The visitors and their local guides assembled Thursday morning, August 26, at Howard & Smith's store, Ninth & Olive streets, and taking autos, were driven to South and Exposition parks, Doheney gardens and greenhouses, thence to Westlake, Sunset and Griffith parks, where on the famous spot reserved for that purpose a genuine Spanish barbecue was served.

During the afternoon the party visited Busch's gardens, the Huntington estate, Eastlake and Elysian parks and Oak Knoll, where refreshments were again served. One of the novel experiences of the afternoon was a sandstorm or Santa Ana, as it is known locally, in which the furious wind was accompanied by clouds of sand and dust. The visitors sustained no material injury, however, and rather enjoyed the unusual spectacle. Mr. Richards assured the writer that the storm was not a part of the programme as some eastern residents seemed to consider it in this land of sunshine and surprises.

American Sweet Pea Society.

A committee appointed by President Gray to pass upon the sweet peas grown in Newport on account of C. C. Morse & Co., California, have awarded certificates to the following varieties: Jessie Cuthbertson, New Miriam Beaver, Duplex W. T. Hutchins.

JAMES ROBERTSON,
WILLIAM MACKAY,

German Goods Unmolested.

The daily newspapers within the past few days have given currency to the following: "All concessions that Great Britain may make to expedite shipments of American owned goods from Germany and nearby neutral territory will be regarded as unofficial by the United States. That has been decided by the president and Secretary Lansing. Their position is that all such goods, and all goods sent direct from neutral countries to United States ports, are entitled to unmolested passage, and it is the intention of the administration to make this clear to England in the note that awaits only final approval by the president and the signature 'Lansing' to make it official. Negotiations between the trade advisers of the British embassy and the state department and the representatives of the American importers are entirely unofficial. Secretary Lansing, it is learned, has refused to discuss them as head of the state department and the advice he has given Judge Fleming, who represents the United States, has been as counsellor and not as secretary."

[Our German imports include lily of the valley pips, sugar beet seeds and many kinds of flower seeds.—ED.]

Convention Bowling.

There was a good attendance at Graney's alleys, San Francisco, where the individual howling contest took place, August 19, for the Aphine Mfg. Co.'s trophy and other prizes. The contest was confined mainly to California bowlers, the visitors including W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind., and George W. Smith, of Cleveland, O. Victor L. Podesta, San Francisco, was first with a total of 531; C. F. Gutting, Los Angeles, second with a total of 514 and Geo. W. Smith, Cleveland, O., third with a total of 493. The details of the scores were as follows, 12 bowlers participating:

American Florist Co., 440 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

Oklahoma City.

There has not been much transient or decorative business this week, but funeral calls have been more than plentiful. Particularly did the funeral of Mr. Overholzer, father of the mayor of the city, create a large call for designs and emblems. Weather conditions continue to be most favorable for all growing things. Even out-door roses are flowering profusely, a most unusual occurrence for this city in August.

The next meeting of the Oklahoma State Florists' Society has been postponed to the second Monday in September. This has been done in order that any contemplated labor day celebrations may not interfere with the meeting.

Florists here are jubilant over the fact that Houston, Texas, has been selected as the next meeting place for the convention of the Society of American Florists. It goes without saying that there will be a good attendance at that meeting from this city and state.

Lon Foster, manager of the store of Furrow & Co., intends to take his vacation about the middle of September. He will visit Kansas City and Chicago.

Boston.LOW PRICES PREVAIL.

Although a better business tone was expected this past week on account of the visiting governors, and the many functions which were held in their honor, there was barely any material improvement in market conditions. Gladioli continue to be the most abundant flower, consequently prices are very low. Many fine spikes were sold as low as 50 cents per 100, the highest price being 25 cents per dozen. Asters are not as plentiful now as they generally are at this time of the year, on account of the heavy rains we have been having. Prices for good quality flowers are above the usual run, as the flowers bring from 50 cents to $3 per 100. Not much that is encouraging can be said about roses. The demand for them is light, although the crop from the young plants is steadily increasing. An improvement in conditions is hardly to be expected until the bulk of the outdoor flowers is past and cool weather comes to stimulate business in general.

NOTES.

L. Merton Gage, of Natick, Mass., has a very fine looking field of gladioli at present. He has an extra fine lot of the new pink variety, Mrs. Frank Pendleton, that is in full bloom. One of the very best gladioli that he grows is his new seedling, Mrs. Dr. Norton. It is a beautiful shade of light pink of an extra large type. Mr. Gage is working on a strain of Primulinus hybrids, that have exceptionally delicate and harmonious colorings.

The Mycologist Club held a show at Horticultural hall, Monday, August 23. There was a very interesting display of mushrooms and fungi, showing the many edible varieties that are generally supposed to be poisonous. One specimen, which was nearly three feet tall and about 18 inches wide, attracted much attention. The finder said that it was edible, but it did not look very appetizing as it lay on the table.

Wm. Sim continues to be the largest shipper of gladioli to the Boston market. Europe and Independence are his best sellers now as America seems to have passed its best days for popularity. Panama will be more extensively grown next year on account of its good selling qualities.

The exhibition of children's gardens was held at Horticultural hall, Saturday and Sunday, August 27-28. The show was very interesting and showed the marked advance in the way in which the children are taking hold of agricultural work. Both halls were filled and many of the products shown would do credit to experienced gardeners.

Some of the finest asters coming to Boston are grown by Henry A. Stevens, of Dedham, Mass. The variety is one of his own origin, which he has been selecting and improving upon each year. Many of the flowers are as large as and closely resemble chrysanthemums.

John Barr, of South Natick, Mass., is awaiting the delivery of a recently purchased Ford truck, which will be used to carry his flowers to the market during the coming season. Mr. Barr is very enthusiastic about his new touring car which he recently purchased.

Max Fishelson, son of N. Fishelson, the Copley Florist, has opened a store on Winter street. With this good location and the tuition received from his father, there is hardly a doubt but that he will soon build up a good business.

Matthew Roane, the well known Waltham florist, had a narrow escape from drowning August 26, when the float upon which he was taking part at the Waltham river carnival capsized, drowning three of its occupants.

Kansas City.LOCAL STOCK SCARCE.

Business is on the advance again both in the wholesale and retail line, all the florists reporting trade A-1 and future prospects looking brighter. Local stock is not as plentiful and good as usual, due to the heavy rains and hail storms of late, which did considerable damage to stock outside, but not so much to inside stock. The out of town stock is coming in better, especially roses, which are extra fine. Asters are holding their own. Easter lilies are still plentiful with fine large flowers. Carnations are arriving, and are fine for this time of the year. Gladioli are still on the market.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. report that business is getting back into its old stride again. They are handling some fine stock. The asters and gladioli from Denver are fine and the roses are extra good and low in price, especially in pink and white Killarney, Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauties. The carnations are local grown and very fine. Out of town trade is good with supplies moving fast. The first of the month they will receive a carload of supplies.

J. Austin had 2,542 square feet of glass broken by the hail storm August 22, and the outside stock was damaged considerably. W. J. Barnes lost about 2,500 square feet of glass by the same storm, with considerable damage to stock, both inside and outside. A. Mohr's range was hit by the storm and he lost about 1,000 square feet of glass with a total loss of stock outside due to the heavy downpour of rain.

T. J. Noll of T. J. Noll & Co., who returned from the Pacific coast on August 25, says the trip was valuable as well as delightful. He attended the S. A. F. convention while there. The stock is better at this store in the roses, asters, lilies, etc. He is receiving some very fine carnations from Denver.

Arthur Newell reports a good week with business running along in good shape and the prospects looking good. Funeral work has been extra good.

Beidermann & Son were not damaged much by the hail but suffered a great loss to stock outside by the heavy downpour of rain.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has a quantity of stock in roses in all varieties. The demand for funeral work is A-1.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports a week of good business, especially in the funeral work, which has been heavy.

Visitors: James J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and Geo. Hampton with J. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, Pa.

Wichita, Kan.SUMMER BUSINESS AS USUAL.

Business for July and August has followed about the usual summer routine. Funeral orders furnish the real volume, with sick-room and gift flowers for variety. Due to the unusually cool summer and ample rainfall the outdoor grown stock has done well, and the quality of asters, gladioli, dahlias, etc., is very good. Carnations with few exceptions have done well and are mostly housed and starting off fine. Chrysanthemums promise well, but, as usual, the earliest flowers for the stores will come from further north.

NOTES.

The special summer windows in the stores of Chas. P. Mueller and W. H. Culp & Co. attracted much favorable attention. W. H. Culp & Co.'s window was especially elaborate, depicting a woodland scene with rocky hills, flowing stream of water, waterfalls, pond, picnic party, bathing beach, etc. Care was taken to maintain proportion as far as possible. Last year, azaleas, 24-inch araucarias, etc., furnished the trees. All pots were hidden. Green sheet moss covered the ground and nothing in the way of a vase of flowers or anything to jar the naturalness was allowed in the window.

Colorado has little edge on Kansas for climate this summer. Cool weather has been the rule. At Wichita, 89° was the maximum for August and on two days only, with 46°, the lowest.

Wayne Frye, with W. H. Culp & Co., filled his two weeks' vacation with an automobile trip, swinging a circuit through Colorado, New Mexico, north-west Texas and Oklahoma.

Charles P. Mueller and wife, who have been touring the Pacific coast, midst expositions and conventions for the past seven weeks, are expected home this week.

Ferdinand Kuechenmeister is rebuilding two of his houses.

W. H. C.

Rumson, N. J.

Frank McMahon, who for a number of years has been a well known shipper to the New York market, has a large range, probably 80,000 square feet of glass. At present, roses and chrysanthemums, are noteworthy features. This is one of the few ranges where the Bridesmaid rose is yet extensively grown, and the stock looks fine. The landscape and bedding work on the grounds of Mr. McMahon's home are noteworthy.

William Mears has a good range. In addition to cut flowers for the wholesale trade, he grows a general stock and does a retail and landscape business. A large storage house has just being erected, the walls being of hollow tile. A good stock of various bedding plants was noted. Timothy Coffey, who is the clever foreman of this range, has a new yellow canna, a sport from Meteor, which looks very promising.

TRADE MUCH BETTER.

The climax of a summer of topsyturvy rainy weather came Monday, August 30, when the local weather bureau registered the coldest August day in twenty-eight years. At five o'clock that morning the mercury stood at 47.2 degrees, the same figure recorded August 26, 1887. The month arrived with wet feet and departed at midnight August 31 with frost-bitten fingers. Everyone is asking who shuffled the calendar and made a misdeal, temperately speaking, by shoving November in after July. The cold spell seemed to help business considerably, for stock in all lines has sold better this week than it has for some time, and even gladioli, which have been a glut on the market for several weeks, cleaned up surprisingly well at better prices. Roses have sold unusually good, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, which are reported scarce at times, but the scarcity of this variety was not due to a shortening up of stock so much as it was to the increased demand. Some especially fine Killarney Brilliant, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, Ophelia and Milady are obtainable, and the same holds good for all the roses which are in good supply but are moving satisfactorily. American Beauty roses are in fairly good demand and fancy stock in the longer stemmed grades is obtainable. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful, both white and yellow, but are selling well at good prices. Orchids are none too plentiful, and lily of the valley was never so scarce as it is at present, and in many instances fancy stock is bringing as high as $5.00 per 100 right in the city. Asters are still arriving in large numbers, and some good stock is to be had in this line. Dahlias are of better quality but are none too plentiful. Outdoor stock in general is not as plentiful as it has been, and a few more cold nights like those experienced this week will soon put an end to this stock, which no one will regret, for there is plenty of indoor stock to move now without handling this kind of stock. Indoor carnations are arriving in larger quantities, and while they are still a little short in stem they are in good demand and cleaning up well at good prices. Lilies are plentiful. Taken all in all, there is a healthier tone to the market than there has been for some time, and while stock is not scarce a few brisk days would find the market pretty well cleaned up.

NOTES.

John Poehlmann has made so many trips to Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouses at Morton Grove in his automobile with trade visitors the past season that he feels it will not be necessary to go along in the future, for his Winton Six knows the trail itself pretty well by this time. Mr. Poehlmann and son John, Jr., have returned from a pleasant trip out west, where the latter was enrolling students for the Culver Military Academy, at Culver, Ind. He will now assist his father at the wholesale store at 72-74 East Randolph street.

H. J. Weiland and wife, Denver, Colo., are visiting relatives at Evanston this week. He is a son of M. Weiland and a brother of George Weiland, the well known retail florist. Mr. Weiland is engaged in the wholesale business at Denver, and is getting along splendidly, and says that he had the pleasure of having Emil Reichling and Arthur Weber in his car when the visiting florists to the Panama-Pacific convention were entertained by the Denver florists at the Hotel Metropole, Denver, Colo., August 14.

A. I. Simmons, 242 West Sixty-third street, has returned from Dixon, where he has been acting as depot quartermaster for the troops that have been in encampment there for the past seven weeks. When it comes to feeding a large number of people on short notice one has simply got to take off his hat to Captain A. I. Simmons.

John Canger has returned from the east where he visited the leading retail stores in all the principal cities. He had the pleasure of seeing a sister in Buffalo, N. Y., whom he had not seen for nearly 20 years, so one can imagine what a pleasant meeting it was.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a large supply of Killarney Brilliant roses this week in addition to their regular line of stock. N. J. Wietor's youngest son, Harry, was operated upon this week for tonsillitis at the Chicago Union hospital.

Ernest Farley is visiting old acquaintances here this week. He has been employed at Minneapolis, Minn., and Aberdeen, S. D., the past year.

J. A. Budlong is cutting from a nice crop of roses and is showing some particularly fine Ophelia and American Beauties at the store.

Fred. Hoehstra, superintendent of Freyling & Mendel's greenhouses, Grand Rapids, Mich., is visiting friends here for a few days.

The annual Schobermesse of the Luxemburger Bruderbund will be held at Karthausers Grove, Sunday and Monday, September 5-6.

Mrs. Horton, of the Bassett & Washburn office force, is back from her vacation and is again on duty at the store.

Morris Grossberg, with Percy Jones, has returned from a successful Wisconsin business trip.

The wholesale store occupied by Sinner Bros. and M. C. Gunterberg has just been redecorated and presents a most inviting appearance. John Sinner just received a card from Miss Gunterberg, who is traveling with Nettie L. Parker, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., which reads that they are having a delightful time in California and Mexico. Mr. Sinner smiles when he reads that they are in Mexico and is willing to gamble that they are not very far into that country—near the war zone at least.

O. P. Bassett, senior member of the firm of Bassett & Washburn, and wife left for their home at Pasadena, Calif., over the automobile route, Monday, August 30. They will go via of Denver, Colo., over the old Santa Fe trail, taking in the Grand Canyon and petrified forest, arriving home about September 25. They made the trip from Pasadena to this city in their car and found it so pleasant and interesting that they decided to return home in their Packard over a different route.

Dan Lubliner will hereafter be in charge of the William Lubliner store at 41 South Wabash avenue. William Lubliner will look after the Milwaukee, Wis., store in the future and it is rumored that the change is more to his liking for there is some other attraction outside of the florist business that draws him to the Badger city. The big event is rapidly approaching so one need not be surprised to hear one of these days that he has joined the ranks of the benedicts.

Frank Ayres is back on the job at Chas. W. McKellar's store after enjoying a pleasant vacation. He is quite an outdoor fan and spent most of his time on the golf links and at the bathing beaches, but adds that an overcoat was more comfortable than a swimming suit as far as taking a dip in Lake Michigan was concerned the past few days.

Schiller the Florist had the order to decorate the Arcadia Hall for the North Shore Exposition, which is quite a society affair and is attracting large crowds each day. Herman Schiller, who has charge of the North side store, has 10 society girls selling flowers in the hall, the proceeds of which he is donating to the Civil War Veterans' fund. H. Van Gelder, of Percy Jones, had the pleasure of attending the affair and pronounced the decoration as a very elaborate one and the Shiller help to the event is greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Frank Schramm died at the home of her son-in-law, Wm. Koehler, at Des Plaines, Monday, August 30, at 5:45 p. m., at the age of 79 years. She is the mother of Fred and Chas. Schramm of Park Ridge, and Frank Schramm of Crystal Lake, who are well known to the trade, for they have been operating greenhouses in this vicinity for some time. The funeral will be held from the Koehler residence at Des Plaines, Thursday, September 2, at 1 p. m., and burial will take place in the Town of Main cemetery, Park Ridge.

President Welch, of the Society of American Florists, and wife, reached this city August 30 with their friend, Miss Claxton, returning from the San Francisco convention. The party and some local friends were entertained at dinner by August Lange and wife at the Illinois Athletic Club, Monday evening, the Bostonians resuming their journey homeward Wednesday.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is showing a fancy grade of asters at its Michigan avenue establishment, as well as a fine supply of Milady roses. Miss Florence Schriener and Michael Fink have returned from their vacations and are again attending to their duties at the store.

Ralph Southerton, eight-year-old son of R. J. Southerton, was run down near Highland Park by an automobile carrying Mrs. Burridge E. Butler and a party of friends. The boy was riding a bicycle when the heavy touring car struck him and he died an hour after being removed to the hospital.

The Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s range at Morton Grove, was visited this week by President Welch, who critically examined every feature of this mammoth establishment, including the plant, cut flower and service departments and said he had never seen a commercial stock in finer condition.

The Bohannon Floral Co. decorated three carts for the Horse show held at the Lake Forest country fair Saturday, August 28. The Horse show is always a big event at Lake Forest and practically all the carts entered were beautifully decorated with cut flowers for this occasion.

Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Peter Reinberg greenhouses, and Arthur Weber have returned from San Francisco, Calif., where they attended the S. A. F. convention and took in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition. They both report the best time ever.

BRIGHT WEATHER AND STOCK IMPROVES.

We have been experiencing a very unusual occurrence during the past week. No rain has fallen within the week and the florists and agriculturists alike are beginning to take new heart with their outdoor crops. Gladioli are more than plentiful and are correspondingly cheap. One dollar per hundred buys the choicest varieties. Asters bring 50 cents per dozen retail, and are of enormous size, but do not sell as readily as they might in the florists' shops owing to the extremely low prices quoted at the local vegetable market.

Indoor stock is coming on very fast. Roses hold the lead and are showing up well in large quantities and of good proportions. The chrysanthemum has made her debut in the local flower stores. These are the Golden Glow variety and retail at $3 per dozen. Carnations are coming on nicely but in small quantities. Greens of all kinds are quite plentiful.

NOTES.

A large new McCray refrigerator is being installed in the Flick Floral Company's store this week. The store is being redecorated and thoroughly cleaned and gotten into shape for the fall business. A new auto delivery car has been ordered for fall delivery.

A handsome new auto delivery car arrived at the range of W. J. and M. S. Vesey last week. The fall business is already well under way at the Vesey greenhouses and the stock is in prime condition.

The Lanternier Flower Store has some especially fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums on display. They report the demand good, especially for early fall weddings and decorations.

Recent visits of the stork were made to Mr. and Mrs. Dick Vesey, where he left a fine rousting boy, and to Mr. and Mrs. David Vesey, to whom he presented a baby girl. H. K.

MARKET CLEANS UP NICELY.

The market the past week has been kept cleaned up pretty well. The weather is cool and the people are returning from the lakes. There have been numerous social functions and an abundance of funeral work. Roses bring from two to eight cents, American Beauties from six cents to 25 cents, asters from 50 cents to $1.50 per 100, gladioli from 75 cents to $2.50 per 100, sweet peas from 10 cents to 25 cents per 100, and lilies from 5 cents to 8 cents. Lily of the valley is quoted at 5 cents and is scarce.

NOTES.

About 75 members of the trade and their families and friends enjoyed the hospitality of Hans Rosacker at his place on Stinson boulevard, August 25. The afternoon was spent in games, and also a game of soccer ball between Messrs. Taylor's and Desmond's nines. The score was: Desmonds, 33; Taylors, 15. Ralph Latham was taken out as umpire, and H. E. Philpott of Winnipeg finished.

C. A. Smith, an old time florist for 40 years in Minneapolis, and former owner of the Donaldson greenhouses, passed away at Fargo, N. D., August 23, aged 86 years. The funeral was held at Lakewood chapel, August 26. A large number of the florists attended. There was a large number of handsome floral offerings.

FUNERAL ORDERS CLEAN UP MARKET.

There is not much change in local market conditions this week from last reports. Enough stock to meet all requirements is to be had at all times. Several very large funeral orders during the week cleaned up the market of nearly everything excepting asters and gladioli. Lily of the valley, American Beauties, orchids and the better grades of pink roses were very much in demand. There is a lot of mildew on roses at present. A few of the first indoor carnations have arrived, but will not be a factor for some time to come. Dahlias are becoming more plentiful. Lily of the valley ran short of the demand.

NOTES.

Ptomaine poisoning did not prevent Miss Katherine Rabe, 19, from marrying John F. Brotz, florist, at 9724 Lorain avenue. She was too ill Tuesday to go for a marriage license. M. Matheron, who some years ago became well known as the carnation grower at the Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y., now has a fine range here. His range can be reached from Baldwin, Hempstead or Freeport, but whichever way visitors go, they should take an automobile if they can afford it—as it is some distance from the transportation lines. His houses are new, well constructed and large, and he has a great stock of carnations coming on. One of the oldest and best carnation growers of Long Island has said that Matheron as a carnation grower, cannot be beat.

George T. Schunemann has long been noted as a grower of sweet peas. His orchid flowering peas have been exhibited and won prizes and certificates of merit at various shows and are well known and popular with the members of the New York Florists' Club.

P. Hoehel, who was formerly a foreman for George Peters & Sons, of Hempstead, about two years ago, is located near the Matheron range. He has a large house planted with a fine stock of carnations. A. F. F.

SHELburnE FALLS, MASS.—P. R. Burt has purchased the Fife greenhouses and is making improvements with a view to entering the florist business here.

ROSES ONLY SHORT CROP.

Trade in the stores is very quiet, there being very little doing except for funerals. The stock offered is abundant in all lines except roses, which, while most varieties grade rather low, are saved by Sunburst, Russell and American Beauties, all of which are improving. The asters are not quite so plentiful, although there are sufficient for all demands. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are seen in limited quantities; not enough demand for anything fancy keeps the price down. Dahlias are seen here and there and the stock promises to be fine. Some extra fine flowers of the variety, John Wanamaker are being offered. They are from the Peacock Dahlia Farms, Berlin, N. J. Hydrangea paniculata is handled in quantity, being much used by the stores in window and store decorating and for funeral work.

NOTES.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., who are always on the gallop, have improved their Andalusia seed trial grounds and nursery to such a state of perfection that they have invited some 1,500 members of the craft in and about this city to board their special train and after an inspection of the grounds to take lunch with them. The vote to accept is unanimous; the day, Wednesday, September 8. Train leaves Broad street station at 11:30 a. m. Since the last public inspection there have been many additions and changes to meet their growing business, the extent of which will surprise the visitors.

The acres of perennial phlox at Henry A. Dreer's Riverton nursery are wonderful in their wealth of brilliant colors. The dahlia fields are also just coming into full flower. The variety and form of the newer cactus and their gorgeous color combinations tax one's vocabulary to describe them. A half day's inspection is well worth while.

The Leo Niessen Co. have started its efficiency campaign in the handling of dahlias. The stock is so far advanced that they can supply any quantity desired. Their systematic handling of this bulky, low priced flower has increased their sales until in the height of the season the business is enormous.

The winter campaign of the florists' club will open Tuesday, September 7, with Robert Pyle of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., who will tell us of the S. A. F. convention. Mr. Pyle is very thorough in all that he does and there is a treat in store for the full house which will no doubt be present.

Frank Polites has had to vacate his basement store at Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, the new lessees requiring the space for their own use. He still retains the case on the sidewalk.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., W. Atlee Burpee & Co., and Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., were all extensive exhibitors at the gladiolus show at Atlantic City the past week.

The Pennock-Meehan Co. have a new "Vim," the latest of the light delivery cars. Charles Grakelow has also MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

As September 1 drew near, the market assumed a firmer tone. The call for stock is steady, but not very much larger than it was at the last writing. There is plenty of stock for all requirements. Roses are plentiful and very good. Up to this time, however, they have met with a demand that was good at times and very slow at other times. Carnations come in regularly and are fairly good for early stock. Asters are in a large supply and include many fine blooms. The cut of Easter lilies is again up to normal. America gladioli are not very plentiful, but there are more than enough to go around of the other varieties. Other offerings include dahlias and hardy hydrangeas. New wild smilax is in the market. Other greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Wm. Murphy, accompanied by his physician and nurse, has gone to his cottage at the Cheneaux to escape the hay fever.

C. E. Critchell received his first lot of new wild smilax, the first of the season, last week.

Walter Gray, Jr., of Hamilton, Ohio, has started on a month's vacation.

Visitors: Mrs. J. W. Crouch, Knoxville, Tenn.; Miss D. E. Rush, Shreveport, La.; G. L. Rambler, decorator for Miss Rush, Shreveport, La.; R. E. Mapes, with Chas. L. Baum, Knoxville, Tenn., and Ellis Woodworth, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF GOOD STOCK.

Relating to the volume of business, there has been no perceptible change since our last writing. The supply of some one stock occasionally runs short for possibly half a day, and figuratively speaking, the price goes up. Some buyers will offer most any figure when they feel sure they cannot get what they want, and no matter how high the offer is, it is of no benefit to the wholesaler if he does not have the stock. We may repeat that a scarcity is very rare in this market. Referring to the quality of stock, no fault can be found for this time of year. In American Beauty roses there is a marked improvement in quality. Of other varieties, very creditable stock is arriving, and each week shows an improvement in the quality. While there are various kinds of aster stock on the market, and a surplus of all, some of it is remarkably fine. There are good gladioli to be had, but as a whole, the quality of the stock is deteriorating. There is a perceptible increase in the supply of dahlias, but they will move very slowly while there is such a large supply of good asters on the market. Lilies and lily of the valley have been moving fairly well and the prices for good lilies have improved. There is no surplus of cattleya orchids and prices are steady.

August 30.—There was a continuous downpour of rain throughout Sunday, August 29, which continues with slight intermissions today. There is an abundance of stock and the market is very quiet.

NOTES.

Funeral services for the late Lawrence W. Kervan were held at the family residence, 7 West 108th street, at 8 p. m., August 26. The services were conducted by the members of Lafayette Post, No. 140, Department of New York Grand Army of the Republic, of which the deceased had been a comrade. There was a large attendance and the esteem in which Mr. Kervan had been held by his business friends was shown in the many fine floral tributes from the leading florists of this city. The remains, accompanied by the family, were taken to Montague, Mass., where he once resided, for interment. One son, who was on a trip in the mountains of the west, could not be reached by telegraph. Mr. Kervan served with the Fifth Connecticut regiment in the Civil war and was taken prisoner at the battle of Cedar Mountain and confined for 40 days in Belle Island prison. He was born in this city and after the events here noted, and briefly mentioned in our issue of August 28, he returned here about 20 years ago and established the business which will be continued by his sons, the Kervan Co.

After an intermission of two months the florists' club will resume its meetings in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of September 13. Very important matters will come up for discussion and it is hoped that every member who is able to be up and about will be present. Secretary Young and others who attended the San Francisco convention will be present and are sure to have something interesting to say. We are not quite sure whether Chairman Kessler of the house committee will have a roast pig or something just as good, with ginger ale to wash it down.

An interesting double wedding took place in the church of Our Lady of Mercy, Brooklyn, August 24. Miss Mae Golden, well known as a retail florist of Lafayette square, married Edward Geraghty, and her sister, Margaret, was united to Thomas Francis Reilly. Margaret and Helen Golden, young nieces of the brides, as flower girls, carried baskets of Killarney roses. The brides carried shower bouquets, the flowers being orchids and lily of the valley. The church was decorated with palms and golden rod. The happy couples went by auto to the Berkshire hills for their honeymoon.

We must all go to Houston next August, as Texas is progressive, not only in horticulture, but also other matters. A man down there has raised a pea pod two feet nine inches in length. Also note that Texas is establishing colonies of bats to kill mosquitoes. A bat's appetite for mosquitoes is said to be keener than a stage lady's for lobsters, which is going some.

Walter Anker, formerly employed by David Clarke's Sons, and a brother to Edwin Anker, of Traendly & Schenck's force, who has been pitching good ball for the Tenafly, N. J., team since the season opened, has been signed by Connie Mack and goes to the Philadelphia Athletics.

We expect there will soon be an increased demand for flowers. One society reporter states that: "The first considerable function of the season for the formal presentation of monkeys * * * of the younger set was held on Wednesday evening at the Majestic."

It is stated that Mrs. Jack Trepel, of Brooklyn, recently lost $2,000 worth of jewelry, which she had checked in a bath house at one of the beaches. Mrs. Trepel's husband is buyer for his brother, Joseph Trepel, who has a chain of retail stores in Brooklyn.

A meeting of the flower show committee of the florists' club was held at the office of Harry A. Bunyard, August 30. A joint meeting of the committee with the council of the Horticultural Society of New York was held September 1.

M. L. Vlachos, the Astoria Florist, whose store is opposite the great Astoria apartments, upper Broadway, says that business has been very good of late.

P. Velotas, who has two retail stores on Broadway, had a birthday August 28 and his friends were wishing him many more birthdays. Peter is all right.

TRADE VERY UNSATISFACTORY.

Business the past week was very unsatisfactory. Even funeral work was very scarce, and as for the market, there is nothing special as stock is still poor; in fact, the only good roses to be had are American Beauty, Mock and Sunburst. All others are short and poor. Carnations are coming a little more plentiful, but are poor in quality.

NOTES.

Geo. C. Shaffer decorated the Poli theater for the opening, August 30. The decoration throughout the theatre consisted of large banks of palms, ferns, oak foliage, goldenrod, American Beauties, and large baskets of gladioli, while flowers were given to all as they entered. There were more than 2,000 roses given.

Geo. Lavelle is sending some very good dahlias to Leo Niessen Co., which find a ready sale, as they are all show dahlias. Some of the varieties have never been grown in this vicinity before. Mr. Lavelle is adding another house to his range.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Pfister, after spending the last two years in Switzerland, are back and looking in the best of health and expect to open up on Connecticut avenue this fall.

Gude Bros.' employes turned painters the past week and made a good job, both outside and inside.

Harry Jones is paying his annual visit to Washington and is looking up some of his old friends.

Visitors: A. Niessen, Philadelphia, Pa., and W. McKissic, Baltimore, Md. G. C. D.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I.—A new flower shop will be opened by Chas. Lapham in the Littlefield building.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — Several houses have been added to the range of G. Van Bochove & Bro. on Rose Hill.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y.—Augustus Embury of Yonkers and W. E. Gilbert of Bronxville have formed a partnership and will conduct a flower shop and nursery.

DENHAM, N. H.—James Macfarlane of Werden, N. Y., has been appointed instructor in horticulture at the New Hampshire agricultural experiment station.

GREAT SUPPLY OF GOOD STOCK.

Never before in the history of this city has there been so many good flowers of all kinds. Such an abundance of flowers in every section of the city and all around it to be had gratis for any occasion, cuts the florist business down a whole lot, and together with the dull season gives every florist some right to say "Florist biz is bum." Roses have been more abundant than ever before, sweet peas are going to waste everywhere, dahlias were plentiful over a month ago, and at present asters and dahlias are spoiling by hundreds of thousands. Soil and climatic conditions have been especially favorable all this season for the growth of fine stock and really there seems to be no limit to beautiful flowers. For several days we have had unusually hot and humid weather—no rain since July, and no doubt with a continuance of such days, the outdoor stock will suffer, but plenty will be left, however.

Everywhere the field grown carnations are doing well, so that good stock will be ready to plant in soon. We do not learn of any of the late sorts being tried out, and in fact there seems to be about five sorts of carnations that are good enough and probably less than a dozen sorts of chrysanthemums. Every new rose can be found however as soon as it can be had, and our rose show and dahlia show always bring the call for everything new.

For two months the sales of cut flowers have been disappointing, but plants of all kinds are receiving call—probably better than ever, but taken as a whole this spring and summer will be counted one of the poorest for several years and only a good fall and winter business will even it up.—"ere's 'oping."

FIFTH ANNUAL DAHLIA SHOW.

Never before in the history of Pacific northwest has there been such a display of fine dahlias and fall flowers as the one just staged, free to all the public, on the roof garden of the Rhodes Bros.' department store. The number of vases required to hold the display was about one-third more than at any previous local flower show of any kind and a grander display of dahlias has probably never before been staged in America. Every class, color, and variety was out on parade with probably 200 new seedlings, representing every known kind. Many of the seedlings will do to displace older ones. Every color but blue was shown, and in sizes from that of a quarter dollar up to a foot in diameter. Such a display of other sorts of fall flowers would have made quite a show alone if spaced out and individualized somewhat. The display of cut flowers made from the grounds of the state insane asylum was very fine and that of J. H. Bentham was almost a show itself. Other displays of collections of fall flowers were fine and that of Jas. R. Thompson won the special $10 prize. The city parks display of plants and cut flowers was very beautiful and nicely arranged. All the members of the Tacoma Dahlia Society deserve a lot of praise and great encouragement for the work they did in giving us such a grand show without price to any one except possible loss of time from some other labor or pleasure while attending. Several florists were represented in a very creditable manner and some of them were on the job early and late working to make a success of the show. Jas. R. Thompson, secretary of the society, sure is a devoted and hard worker for the success that makes a good show.

Mrs. Emma F. Alexander won first prize with a total of 221 points, and Mrs. L. E. Bailey was second with 105 points. J. R. Thompson captured the $10 special prize donated by Tacoma florists, and the six vases of fall flowers calling for the award were some beauties.

A great many eastern tourists are in our city each day and many visited the show and it was notable to hear the comments and exclamations of wonder and surprise.

As there was no admittance charges the awards were confined to three grand prizes—one cup and the $10 and highest honorable mention, blue, white and red representing winning vases and awards in the order above given.

It takes time, energy and some money to put such a worthy show before the public without cost, but it builds up our city or community in the love of the things beautiful and home love and civic pride, so after all it pays well. We invite every one to come to our Tacoma rose show and dahlia show next year. S. L. H.

OAKFIELD, N. Y.—J. J. Bates will erect a greenhouse on his property on Drake street.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer, Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

CORVALLIS, MONT.—The Atlanta Seed Co. is building a warehouse 60 by 120 feet.

NEW YORK.—There are rumors of a combination of two wholesale firms here operating in bulbs.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—John Lewis Childs' fall retail catalogue just out quotes "everything prepaid."

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Lester L. Morse, who has been in rather poor health for some time, is at San Jose recuperating.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—The Hoermann Seed Store has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000, to conduct a business in seeds and plants.

LOUISVILLE, KY., August 24.—We have the same worries here you have in Chicago regarding the possible damage to the onion set crop from rainy weather.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—The Shugart-Ouren Seed Co. has increased its capitalization from $50,000 to $100,000. The life of the corporation has also been renewed for a period of 10 years.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The St. Louis Seed Co.'s annual outing for its employees and their families was held at Waterloo, Ill., August 29. A well arranged programme of field sports and a chicken dinner were features that added to the day's pleasure.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade September 1 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.—Miss Harriet Clark, daughter of C. S. Clark of Wakeman, O., who was operated upon here last week, leaves for home accompanied by her mother, September 3.

A. C. KENDAL and wife, of Cleveland, O., passed through Chicago August 27. They were just in time to accompany Mrs. C. S. Clark and her daughter Harriet, who was able to leave the hospital on that day. Mr. Kendal enjoyed his visit at San Diego where he called on Former President Chas. N. Page of the American Seed Trade Association.

A. H. GOODWIN, of the W. W. Barnard Co., returned to Chicago from his Indiana summer place at Wawasee. Typhoid there has caused an exodus of resorters. Hotel keepers have experienced an exceptionally bad season on account of the cold summer. Mr. Goodwin is making an eastern trip and considering a Christmas visit to Paris.

ONION SET growers at Chicago have had 10 days of clear weather except light showers one day. The stock is being rushed into crates and stacked in the field. The problem of how the sets will keep is still an open one and those who harvested early before the tops fell are congratulating themselves. Growers who are working now in the hard baked soil are having a lot of trouble in getting the sets out and separating them from the lumps.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Walter E. Cook, of the Stump & Walter Co., New York, and wife, returning from the San Francisco convention, called on friends here and left August 29 for Detroit, Mich.

Michigan Beans Damaged.

A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, writes as follows, August 31: "There has been a lot of damage done to the bean crop by recent frosts, how much we can not tell until we get in our reports. The temperature went as low as 22 degrees in some places and made ice. We are very much discouraged but will have to make the best of it."

Saginaw, August 31.—The firm of W. H. Grenell reports that as near as can be learned up to the time of writing, about 25 per cent of the bean crop has been damaged by the recent freeze.

New York Seed Trade.

Down in the seed trade district, where the street car horses snort with disdain at stalled automobiles and overloaded trucks, there are now many interesting features to be noted. Every seedsman is putting his best foot forward, so to speak, in anticipation of good autumn business. We recall years when the farmers and landscapers said it was no use to sow seed because the ground was so dry. There need be no such complaint this year; there has been plenty of rain and conditions are promising. Heavy shipments of Dutch and French bulbs have already arrived and orders are being filled. The fall catalogues are being mailed and show the usual handsome pictures of flowers. We may add, that it is said that some florists, a long time ago, were driven insane because they could not grow flowers to match those in the catalogues. The catalogues that have reached us at this writing are from Vaughan's Seed Store, Wm. Elliott & Sons, Weeber & Don and Burnett Brothers.

Weeber & Don are receiving unusually large orders for grass seed, the major portion to be used on golf courses. They further state that there is a heavy demand for grains, such as wheat, rye, etc. They have just received a large consignment of Dutch bulbs which came in on the S. S. New Amsterdam. In size and quality, they claim these are the finest ever received. They are exhibiting in their windows blooms of their new aster, Miss Alice Don, the seed of which was first offered last spring. It is an exceptionally large pink with curved center petals. It should become popular. The extensions and improvements in their store are now completed and it is very attractive.

At Vaughan's Seed Store there is a fine window display of bulbs. Paper White narcissus, amaryllis, callas, freesias and other bulbs are prominent. The clever window dresser has arranged on a background of Paper Whites, other lighter colored bulbs to spell the words: "Vaughan's Bulbs." Manager Deamud has recently had an artist at work on the bunch of radishes that hang over the main entrance and they now look good enough to eat, though of course they could not be eaten, for it is rumored that they are of ivory, mother-of-pearl or some such expensive stuff.

In the large show window of J. M. Thorburn & Co. there is a large placard, which reads: "In the days of Washington and Jefferson there were Thorburn's Seeds." Which may be interpreted as meaning that the Thorburns were here when the site of Central park, like ruined Babylon, was a resort for the owls and the bats.

Peter Henderson & Co. have in their windows a very handsome display of fancy leaved caladiums, begonias, water lilies and acalyphas. All the other features of a high class seed store are also noteworthy.

During the summer dullness Wm. Elliott & Sons have been busy improving their store and adding more modern conveniences. Their auctions will be resumed early in September.

The Macniff Horticultural Co. has recently received large consignments of bulbs. Auctions of plants will begin at their rooms at an early date.

A. F. F.

Imports.

During the week ending August 28 imports were received at New York as follows:

MacNiff Horticultural Co., 3 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Vaughan's Seed Store, 131 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Ralph M. Ward & Co., 40 cases and 1 crate bulbs (Bermuda).

W. E. Marshall & Co., 32 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Yokohama Nursery Co., 15 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

L. Benet Floral Co., 10 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

A. T. Boddington, Inc., 3 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Stump & Walter Co., 37 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Elliott Auction Co., 4 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

P. Henderson & Co., 168 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

J. M. Thorburn & Co., 68 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Weeber & Don, 25 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Henry & Lee, 10 cases bulbs (Bermuda).

To Order, 2392 cases bulbs, 529 bags seeds, 42 cases plants.

American Association of Nurserymen

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

WACO, TEX.—The annual meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association will be held in this city, September 28-29.

HOUGHTON, MICH.—E. W. Murphy, representative of the Western New York Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y., died at his home in this city recently.

COLUMBUS, O.—Norman E. Shaw has been elected chief of the nursery and orchards department of the state agricultural department by the new state agricultural board.

MOBILE, ALA.—W. H. Reynolds and H. P. Loding have returned from Montgomery, confident that the legislature will report favorably in the matter of the appropriation of $25,000 to eliminate citrus canker and other diseases.

LONDON.—The Overseas club is to adopt a suggestion from Canada to sow seeds of the maple round the graves, cemeteries or by the roads leading to the cemeteries where Canadian soldiers are buried in France and Flanders. Consignments of seeds are being despatched from Toronto.

Association of American Cemetery Supts

The twenty-ninth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents was held at Minneapolis, Minn., August 24-26, with headquarters at the West Hotel. The first meeting was called to order on the morning of August 24, the delegates being welcomed by Hon. W. G. Nye, mayor of Minneapolis, and after the response, the president's address, reports of officers and appointment of committees followed. In the afternoon an auto trip to the several local cemeteries and parks was made.

One of the important addresses delivered at the meeting was by J. Warren Roberts, of Minneapolis, whose theme was The Co-ordinate Function of the Funeral Director and Cemetery Superintendent. In his address the speaker dwelt particularly on the necessity of better business methods in the undertaking world along the line of higher education and ideals. He called attention to the course in embalming in the state university, which has placed the profession on an established scientific basis.

Other interesting papers were read as follows: Brawn and Muscle, by W. N. Rudd, president Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Chicago; A Few Hints on Old-Fashioned Flowers, by John Reid, Detroit, Mich.; Different Sources of Income for Cemetery Corporations, by James Currie, Forest Home, Milwaukee, Wis.; Advantages and Disadvantages of Deferred Payments on Lots Purchased, by T. H. Little, Mt. Hope cemetery, Chicago; Best Methods of Eliminating Unightly Objects on Lots Without Offense to Owners, by C. E. Kera, Spring Grove cemetery, Cincinnati, O.; Birds and Their Value to Cemeteries (illustrated), by Prof. F. M. Washburn of the Agricultural College of Minnesota; Cost Accounting and Care Funds, by Robinson Farmer, Columbus, O.

At the closing session, August 26, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: James Warren, Jr., Providence, R. I., president; W. N. Kestersen, Knoxville, Tenn., vice-president. Bellet Lawson, Jr., Elmwood cemetery, Chicago, was elected secretary and treasurer for the fifth time. The following were elected to the executive committee: W. N. Adams, Boston, Mass.; Geo. N. Painter, Philadelphia, Pa.; Geo. E. Troupe, Buffalo, N. Y.

The convention closed with a boat trip around Lake Minnetonka, a drive through the parks of Minneapolis and St. Paul, followed by a luncheon at the St. Paul Commercial club, August 27.

T. C. R.

Connecticut Nurserymen's Association.

The morning of August 19 dawned bright and clear and everything looked good to the members of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association, their ladies and enthusiastic friends, as they motored to the annual summer outing, held this year at Lake Compounce.

On arrival at this beautiful summer resort, the autos were parked, greetings exchanged, after which a baseball game was played with Messrs. Burr & Campbell as captains. Burr's team, nicknamed the "Barberry Thunbergiis," were defeated by Campbell's "Forsythias" by a heavy margin. The features of the game were Burr's coaching, Hunt's batting, Hoyt's catching, Campbell's pitching and Wilson's base stealing. Dinner was partaken of, after which the party visited the points of scenic interest about the lake, grounds and mountain. A short business session was called later on, and one new member added to the association. All present voted it a most enjoyable occasion.

F. L. THOMAS, Sec'y.

Marketing the Peach Crop.

The peach crop of the country will amount this year, it is estimated, to more than 58,000,000 bushels. With the application of more scientific methods the crop has increased greatly in recent years and the peach grower is now confronted with problems of marketing rather than of production. Owing to their perishable nature peaches are unusually difficult to dispose of without loss, and good distribution is essential to prevent the glutting of some markets while scarcity and high prices prevail elsewhere.

In order to facilitate proper distribution the United States department of agriculture has just published Bulletin 298, the results of a study of the movement of the peach crop in 1914. Georgia, it is found, ships practically double the amount of any other state, 4,803 carloads coming from there in 1914. California, Washington, Ohio, Michigan and Colorado follow with shipments of between two and three thousand cars. The other states bring the total to 30,000 carloads.

Wider Market for Raspberry Growers.

If raspberries were carefully handled they could be satisfactorily shipped much farther than the distance which is now regarded as the limit for successful marketing, according to recent investigations of the United States department of agriculture. In the important raspberry districts in the Puget sound country 2,000 miles has hitherto been regarded as the most distant market to which berries could be shipped. In practice this means that fresh Washington raspberries do not come farther east than Minneapolis and that the surplus, if utilized at all, must be canned. Government experiments, however, the results of which are now published in Bulletin No. 274, indicate that with more careful methods of handling and shipping the Washington crop of fresh berries could be sold over a much wider range of territory.

The most common causes of decay in berries while in transit or after arrival on the market are mold fungi, usually gray mold or blue mold. Neither of these fungi is likely to injure firm, sound berries, but they spread quickly where the fruit has been injured in handling or is overripe and soft. In 1911 the Government investigators made comparative tests of the keeping qualities of carefully handled raspberries and commercially handled raspberries. Several lots of each kind were held in an ice car for varying periods and then examined for the percentage of decay.

After four days in the ice car it was found that the carefully handled berries showed only 0.4 per cent decay, while the commercially handled fruit had 4.6 per cent. After eight days in the car the difference was vastly greater. The carefully handled fruit showed only 2.2 per cent decay, but with the commercially handled this percentage had risen to 26.7, or more than ¼ of the entire shipment. When the fruit was examined a day after it had been taken out of the ice car, the evidence was equally strong in favor of careful handling.

The following year experiments were made with actual shipments instead of with the stationary refrigerator car, and the results confirmed previous conclusions. Carefully handled fruit that was four days in transit, and had then been held one day after withdrawal from the refrigerator car, showed less than one per cent of decay, whereas commercially handled berries subjected to the same test showed nearly 10 per cent. The difference between the carefully handled and the commercially handled lots of berries consists chiefly in extra care in picking and in the scrupulous exclusion of any soft, overripe berries. Another cause for decay is the inclusion in shipments of overripe berries.

With the best of care, however, the weather must remain a very important factor in determining the success of shipments. During wet, rainy periods the berries become soft, very tender, and full of moisture. During protracted periods of wet weather, therefore, picking becomes impracticable and the berries tend to become overripe. Prompt cooling or loading, in order to get the berries under the influence of low temperatures as quickly as possible, is essential.

Investigations were also made into the value of pre-cooling. The results brought out clearly the fact that pre-cooling is of great service and value to raspberries that are in maximum good condition. The pre-cooling, however, must be done promptly and thoroughly to be of greatest value.

Yellow Sweet Corn.

In recent years the positions of varieties of sweet corn have undergone some changes owing to the introduction of the yellow varieties. These yellow sorts were slow to gain recognition, but now that they have gained popularity they threaten to carry the whole field. In our own experience it is now hard to sell the white varieties. We were fortunate in foreseeing this demand, hence planted heavily of the yellow kinds for this season and have been able to sell our product at good prices in the face of an overstocked market in general. The two varieties we are using this season are Golden Bantam and Golden Evergreen. Of these the Golden Bantam is easily the most popular. This suits us, too, as being so much smaller, it is easier to handle and it brings the better price.

Golden Bantam is, strictly speaking, for the fancy trade, as it is too small to feed the hungry man. Its culture presents two difficulties: It is weak in constitution, therefore, demanding the best of land and treatment, and it goes out of condition very quickly, hence constant replanting is necessary. Of the yellow Evergreen we can say that its chief fault is lack of uniformity. It has produced ears of every description, from the tiny Golden Bantam to the monstrous Stowell's Evergreen—all beautifully golden yellow and of fine quality and scattered over a long period of ripening. It has proved thrifty and productive and a money maker.

Sweet corn in general retains its hold upon the public. In the summer and fall months it easily outsells all other vegetables, not excluding tomatoes and melons. People do not seem to tire of corn and the south is a big factor in breaking down our markets as with other lines. One grower recently remarked that their success in the summer depends directly upon a constant supply of corn. As long as they have good corn the customers will come and buy other things, but if they are out of corn, these people go elsewhere and the loss of trade is serious. He further says that in spite of great pains they are often out of corn. We have been very successful by planting a bunch of varieties the same day. These were used this season: Early Iowa, Quincy Market, Champion, Early Evergreen, Stowell's Evergreen. Then by planting the Evergreen every ten days up to July 1 we have no break. This has been the best corn season we ever saw as the constant showers and moderate temperatures have produced perfect ears in abundance—that is where weeds were kept in control.

MARKETMAN.

Rail Shipped Tomato Crop Sources.

Beginning early in the year and continuing until late in the fall, tomatoes are shipped commercially from over half of the states of the Union. There is probably no other perishable vegetable commonly grown out of doors in the United States which appears on the market through a longer season than does the tomato.

Florida, of course, with its location and climate, stands as the premier tomato state and starts the tomato movement each year in January. The northern states, such as New York and Ohio, finish out the season in October, and by the time the movement is over, approximately 12,000 cars are moved for table consumption, according to a recent survey made by the United States department of agriculture and published in Bulletin No. 290, "Rail Shipments and Distribution of Fresh Tomatoes in 1914."

Florida ships about half the tomatoes moved (6,000 cars), with Mississippi, New Jersey, and Texas handling approximately 1,500 cars apiece. The other states grow tomatoes in smaller quantities, but in certain districts such as western Tennessee, the crop is of great local importance.

The different tomato-growing localities endeavor to raise their crop so as not to be in competition with each other, and every effort is made to rush the crop to market before the local tomatoes come in. The last of the southern crop is frequently wasted because it cannot sell in competition with northern tomatoes.

The bulletin published by the department of agriculture contains charts showing the shipping periods of the various states, a map with the tomato-producing sections indicated, and a list of the railroad stations shipping tomatoes with the amount shipped from each.

"A BIRD IN THE HAND"

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS

For example. We offer:

- Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches.....at $25.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 5 and 6 branches.....at 20.00 the 100
- Otaksa, with 4 branches.....at 15.00 the 100
- French Novelties, all the best ones, at 5.00 the 100 addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

Chrysanthemum Manual

The best work on Chrysanthemum culture for the florist. Treats the subject in a concise manner, covering the whole work from care of stock to staging blooms. Price, 50c postpaid.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.

West Hoboken, N. J.

Herman C. Steinhoff now spends much of his time at his West Norwood range and nursery, where he has a large and varied stock. At West Hoboken we found Foreman Dwyer busy planting bouvardia from the field to the houses. Pot roses, bouvardia in variety, lilies and bedding plants are staple products of the Steinhoff ranges. The bouvardias are grown for cutting, and this season there are about 200,000 plants. It would seem to be a fairly profitable crop as cutting begins three weeks after planting in the houses.

Somebody has recently said that nearly all the farmers were growing asters this year. That remark was probably intended as a joke, but no matter who grows them, they are very plentiful, but all are not good. At Rudolph Wittman's we have recently noted exceptionally fine asters. Mr. Wittman is also a good plantsman and always has a fine stock of bedding plants for the spring trade. He also grows a good stock of bouvardia.

Since the readjustment of postal routes in this section, the address of John Tschupp & Co., is North Bergen, but as they are just across the Hudson boulevard, visitors to West Hoboken can conveniently visit them. This range is also noted for good bedding plants, and good chysanthemums are also grown.

John Birnie, like his lamented father, is a good plantsman, and also has a fine stock of carnations and chysanthemums coming on.

George Giatras, who is a grower of ferns, has recently made great im-

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otakasa, with 7 to 10 branches at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 addition for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

JACKSON & PERKINS COMPANY,

NEWARK, NEW YORK.

"We Understand
Our Business Thoroughly"

Our thorough knowledge of the finer points in greenhouse construction enables us to save that much on the cost of our output—and we are giving you the benefit of this saving. We have always given 100 cents value for every dollar—sometimes more. As we have never yet had any complaints, we lose nothing by guaranteeing our material against defects.

Willens Personal Service

Every bit of the work is personally directed by one of the Willens'. If we do the erecting, one of the Willens' personally supervises the work. Careful attention is paid to the minutest details, each of which is conducive to longer life and better greenhouse service. If you have never tried us or are dissatisfied in your past dealings with others, begin now to benefit by our service and material. Write us today.

Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,

L. Backendorf,
Norfolk, Neb.

Putting One Over.

The local advertising solicitor of a Hannibal, Mo., paper called upon an enterprising florist of that town, fully confident that he would receive a half page ad from the florist to be placed in a special edition. The florist could not see the why and wherefore of such an investment, and asked the ad-man to bring out its strong points. The fellow did his best and during the course of his talk an upward movement of his arm was the sign of attraction to a hanging basket which gave him a severe jolt on the head. This particular florist grows vegetables as well as flowers and it so happened that he had an abnormal cucumber on exhibition in his window display, the cucumber being 21 inches long and weighing five and three-fourths pounds. A smaller, but mis-shaped cucumber lying on the counter offered food for the newspaper man's talk. "Now", said he, "why do you not place that smaller cucumber in the window? It is because you know it will not attract attention as the large one does." Instantly the florist replied, "No, that little one will do the trick just as readily." The ad-man, having lived in the state all his life, had to be shown and the next day the little cucumber was in the window with the following piece of home talent:

This is the cucumber
With the crumpled horn,
That grew in the glass house
In the early morn.
It will bring woe
To the newspaper man
Who said I could not attract
As much attention as the big one can.

Business was better—but not for the newspaper man.

Parisian Flower Markets in War Times.

The Industry Makes Good Showing.

Primarily flowers, even cut flowers, are much more than funeral souvenirs. Some day the real popularization of flowers will come in the United States, the "vulgarization," the French call it, but prices will have to come down, and flowers will have to be much more readily obtainable than now, where the chief adjuncts of an American florist's shop are marble floors and tables, plate glass mirrors and high prices. In Paris, there has ever been very few flower shops of this variety; indeed, the chief sales are made on the Seine-side quays, the steps of the Madeleine, alongside the Conciergerie, or in the sidewalk markets of the big boulevards. Often the flowers are carried home with the vegetables by the purchasers from the big weekly, middle-of-the-street markets of the quarters.

The above mentioned are some of the things which have tended to make flowers for the Paris populace, bon marche (cheap), and therefore abundant and everywhere to be found. The boulevardier has no more difficulty getting ready at hand his boutonniere gardenia than has the midenette her corsage bouquet of muguet or of violets.

When war's fell blow first swept over Europe, the bulb crop of southern France had just been marketed, and those not sold, replanted for the coming campaign when, as fleurs couplees, the ample tiges of White Roman hyacinths and Paper White and Grandiflora narcissi ultimately expected to find their ways to the flower markets of Paris, London, Berlin, Petrograd and Brussels. How few were ever cut is recalled by the fact that from one little side-track railway in the Department of the Var in southern France, from whence in normal times a quarter of a million postal packages of cut flowers were sent during the winter campaign, there were forwarded but a bare six thousand. It was more than defeat; practically it was disaster, take it as a whole. Only those growers and shippers with well laid business foundations were able to turn even a moderate profit. The rest totaled up their balances on the wrong side of the ledger.

Without discussing the whys and wherefores of warfare, its effect on trade in general, or on cut flowers in particular, it was the outbreak of the war in Europe a year and a quarter ago that brought the Paris flower trade in one short fortnight to the lowest ebb it had known since it began in the days when Alphonse Karr, the author-gardener, first sought to popularize the flowering blooms of the Midi of France on the streets of Paris, and thus founded that great and growing richesse, which was second only to the hotel industry of the French Riviera. By September, things had brightened up considerably and good business, if not big business, came to rule.

The trade by no means blighted itself out of existence and has, in fact, become more vigorous today than many allied industries, except possibly that of artificial mortuary wreaths of which the French have—by some inexplicable expression of bad taste directly contrary to all other traditions—ever preferred to natural flowers as a funeral symbol. This, however, is only a sidelight, but the glass-bead flower (?) wreaths and bronze palms and bay-leaves industry has taken a bound toward prosperity which they have never hitherto known.

If anyone had, at the beginning of the war, predicted that fresh flowers would have been continuously available in the Paris markets, he would have been classed as a too optimistic optimist. What with cheap prices, and they have been cheaper than ever, a universal taste for flowers by all classes of society, a great demand as hospital gifts for the wounded, and for what funeral uses may have been made of them, there has been a very notable volume of business accruing as a result—the silver lining to the cloud. In spite of all the worries and sorrows, flowers, of all modern luxuries, if they be not actually necessities when regarded from a psychological point of view, have been most in demand in these days of war in la ville lumiere.

At the beginning, because of the universal upset state of labor and transport and the excitement of the first days of mobilization, the Paris market was bereft of a single bloom. As conditions improved a few auctions were held in the Carre des Fleurs in the Halles Centrales—supplies whose standing orders had not been countermanded during the first excitement. Fortunately this led for the most part to a re-arranging of supply in comport with the demand, with the result that more or less regular orders were booked by most of the former growers who supplied Paris markets regularly. Largely the available stocks came from suburban Paris growers, who were producing sometimes in the open and sometimes under glass. Orders filled by Riviera growers were at this time fewer, but still they got a share, and with improving railway facilities and the re-establishment of the parcel post, which had been suppressed during the first days of war, business regularly increased.

The energetic president of the National Horticultural Society of France, Monsieur Vigier, who is also a government official, was able to induce the P. L. M. railway—though it had perforce been obliged to suppress its famous "Cut Flower Express" of recent years—to make a heroic effort to expedite all perishable flower shipments from Mediterranean France, with the result that the "arrivages" on the Paris markets came through with almost an ante-war regularity and rapidity. Today the fast expresses between Paris and the Riviera take only an appreciable hour longer than formerly, at a speed, let it not be that any arrogant American will deny, that is a very near approach to the "twenty hour trains" from New York to Chicago. And this is war-time France, with one-seventh of its area and over 50 per cent of its cotton, woolen and metal industries in the hands of the enemy. Cheerful optimists, the French!

The wholesale flower distribution on the Paris markets today, as almost continuously since the beginning of hostilities, may be claimed to have exceeded expectations. That's encouraging, and since everything is relative, the flower dealers of Paris have far less complaint of bad business than the green grocer on the corner who, often, has not potatoes to sell, or the epicier down the street who may have no salt to sell at any price. For a fact, these are but momentary defaultances, but salt and sugar and potatoes do seem to have slipped up once and again, and prices have accordingly gone soaring, something like five cents a pound for the former, 20 cents, or more, for the second and for potatoes anything you can be made to pay, as also coal, which latter cost during the last days of winter something like $24 a ton for something which resembled the genuine black diamond of tradition very little. The artificial heating of glass houses by this last standard becomes the really great problem of the suburban Paris flower grower for the season to come.

If a fair quantity of flowers, pot plants and cut flowers as well, have been sold, it is well to remark that fleurs de choix, the most lavish, luxurious and high-priced varieties, have met with an enormous lowering of prices, due largely to the suppression of social functions in the grand monde, dinners, dances, soupers, receptions and the like. The fashionable restaurants went in for something cheaper, too, or none at all. There was no reforwarding of French flowers to foreign countries, as there had been formerly, to Russia, the Scandinavian countries, to Germany, to Belgium or to London. Otherwise it appears that the ordinary varieties met with as satisfying a sale as could have been expected, more so even. There was a falling off in the quality of much of the stock, caused chiefly by inexpert handling on the railways and delays en route, stocks often arriving on the market as they were more or less approaching the end of their lease of life. Accordingly once and again they were sold at derisory figures, but at that there was business doing all along the line, and all of the time.

From the above slight resume alone it would seem that, to the French temperament at any rate, flowers are a necessity, therefore the trade therein is one that not even war can kill, though it may curtail. The exceptional period through which Paris has passed, tends to prove that no matter under what conditions, the Parisian public will have its cut flowers—"flowers being the complement of existence, as indispensable in sorrow as in joy." The sentiment is manifestly French and the writer makes no claim to originality. Actually they are the words of the president of the syndicate des Marchands des Fleurs en Gross de Paris. It is a good text for any one who is looking for a slogan to spread broadcast as an advertising feature of his business in America. It might well be traced in letters of gold in the marble halls of the florist palaces. It is only a question of who takes the idea first to perhaps become a leader in his line. It is not too much to prognosticate, that when this devastating war meets its end, the French flower traffic will become more vigorous than ever before. This is as it should be.

recent price courant of cut flowers in the open market of Ollioules in southern France, one of the chief sources of supply for Paris through the most strenuous period of war-time. It shows that the fluctuation in average prices, above or below those of normal times, was very little. From three cents to 20 cents a dozen, with an average of from eight to 12 cents, was the quotation on carnations. Ranunculus oscillated between three and 18 cents a dozen. The narcissus for a long time held its own at from 40 cents to a dollar a hundred and, for a period, extraordinarily went up to six dollars, falling again to four dollars and finally to 60 cents.

The season was by no means brilliant judged by standards which had gone before, but was so far superior to that of many of the northern markets that what results accrued were gratefully appreciated, the profits pocketed and plans made for the future with a steadfastness of purpose which is seemingly only an attribute of the cultivation of the soil, whether the crop be carrots or carnations.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Plant Stock for the Store.

With the advent of September come dreams of business—after the long rest of summer, it is hoped that a gradual demand will develop that will continue to grow and expand until finally, in November, the normal winter business will set in, which, as a rule, is continuous the season through.

To give the store a dressy appearance, to encourage this budding trade, there is nothing like an assortment of ferns in the various sizes. Scottii is one of the best in sizes, and up to eight-inch pots. Teddy Jr. is a good second; a few of the tassel leaved varieties like Elegantissima Improved, To-deaoides and Schlozellii are necessary, while the good old Boston and Harrisii are best in larger sizes. It is not necessary to have many of a size; better a few and keep the stock constantly replenished and fresh as they sell. If in a neighborhood where there is continuous traffic, it is a good plan to start the season with a special sale of ferns. Blocks of Scottii can be bought at low figures from growers who are anxious to make room. A quantity, of say, 100 plants, well displayed, marked to a low figure, but which, if bought right, will give a reasonable profit, generally move off quickly and prove a good opener for the season. In addition there should be a few kentias in various sizes. With their luxuriant, dark green foliage, so vigorous looking at this season, they are hard to resist when one needs something to take the place of last winter's favorite, which is now so dilapidated. Dracæna fragrans, with their luxuriant corn-like foliage are good stock, as are terminalis with their bright centers. One should never be without aspidistras, but not the "skinny" kind so often seen. A scant six to eight leaved plant will stand around and get dusty, while two or three of such specimens together in one pot, with their leaves polished up, will present a finished appearance and are much more likely to find a customer.

There are a few novelties that give tone and add variety. One of the best and most moderate in price is the bird's nest fern. This is being done nicely by a number of growers and it does well in the house if given reasonable care and is distinctly different from all other ferns. Pheonix Roebelenii is rapidly becoming more popular, its beautiful fountain-like form, together with its sturdy and vigorous growth in spite of neglect, makes it a very desirable plant for the house.

Every store should have a plant or two of the cibotium. This beautiful fern is distinctly in a class of its own, next to the kentia or areca. It is the most valuable decorative plant that has ever been introduced and it will succeed in the ordinary dwelling as well as the Boston, and is especially fitted for an elevated position.

It is time now to present an assortment of fresh table ferns as the ferneries will be coming in for their first filling, they being about the first thing to receive attention when the family returns. It is important that this commission should have most careful attention as it may control much future business. In displaying the plants for sale, get together the jardinières and pedestals that are perhaps down stairs or stored about in odd corners. Have them cleaned and polished up and they may be worked off, filled with the plants, when homes are being refurbished for the winter season. A table near the front, of ferneries, nicely filled, is attractive and in addition to sales made, suggest to the visitor that the empty one at home should be put in condition for use on the table, and the order is secured.

At least once a week all store plants should be taken back and given a good hosing; it freshens them up wonderfully, washing off the dust and restoring the healthy lustre that adds so much to their appearance. K

Cost Accounts for Florists.

Abstract of a paper by A. L. C. O'Brien, Toronto, Ont., read at the eighteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, London, Ont., August 3-5, 1915.

The system of accounts known as cost accounts is of comparatively recent origin. Cost accounts are a natural development of the immense improvements in general producing methods. The great increase in intensity of competition has brought the producer into touch with different conditions than formerly existed. Larger markets have been made available for all. This has brought greater competition into the home market of practically each and every producer. Thus it has become necessary for him to know at all times the exact circumstances under which his business is conducted. If he is to succeed he must be prepared to meet the varying conditions affecting his own trade. He must be always alert to keep constantly in mind the necessity for improving the quality of his product, the volume of his productions and of decreasing his costs. A study of the matter will make it apparent to anyone that a standard system of determining the actual cost of the product will have a considerable influence on each of these three essential points. The prime objects of cost accounting and of establishment organization (which are closely interwoven) are,

1. To ascertain whether or not a business undertaking is profitable.
2. To secure the highest attainable efficiency in each department.
3. To know exactly the producing cost of each article sold.
4. To provide a means of determining the basis upon which it is advantageous to sell.

No two establishments will be found exactly similar in their organization of business methods. Thus it is desirable that careful study of existing conditions shall precede the introduction of a system of accounts for any business already established. It is not practical to lay down a system which will be adaptable to all establishments even in the same class of business. Nevertheless, a general plan may be made which can be arranged to suit the various necessities of individual concerns.

When it is decided to establish a system the first step is to prepare a statement of the business showing the assets and liabilities. From this, the proper accounts will be arranged so as to show the investment of the proprietor, the value of the plant and equipment, buildings and such other investments as pertain to the business. Then follow the accounts provided by the cost system to which subsequent entries are to be made. This is not so great an undertaking as may be supposed. The elements of cost in all producing enterprises are made up of three principle divisions, which are subdivided:

(1) Material. (2) Labor. (3) Indirect Expense. The first two mentioned are subdivided into (1) Direct; (2) Indirect, i. e., direct and indirect material and labor.

Direct material is that element of material that enters into the product itself, and can be charged to that article.

Indirect material consists of such material as supplies used in process, but which does not enter into the product itself.

Labor. The subdivision of this item is similar to that of material. Indirect expense would consist of indirect labor, indirect material, light, heat, power, maintenance, insurance, taxes, interest, rent, depreciation, and in short any expense that does not enter into the product itself. These are in turn divisible into two general classes, one of which may be apportioned to certain products, because they are incurred in a particular place for the benefit of a certain thing or class of things. The other class consists of such expenses as are incurred for the benefit of the entire establishment and must be distributed over all departments on an equitable basis.

The cost of direct material is a matter of market price at the time of purchase and is easily obtainable.

Direct labor is not difficult to calculate, especially if piece work system is used. I shall deal with these items later when speaking of the records I would suggest.

The dealing with indirect expense is a different matter. It requires careful consideration when arranging the records. This item might run anywhere from 50% to 250% or more of direct labor according to conditions. Too great care cannot therefore be given in the determination and distribution of this division of "cost." Amid the pressure of business many men, while recognizing the necessity of having suitable records, are not careful to see that the cost system is completely carried through, i. e., that all quantities and amounts, etc., for which a cost system provides are duly entered, totaled and agreed as between one record and another. Thus, through laxity, the advantages provided by a system are nullified.

My observations of the business of the florist lead me to suggest that it is advisable first to divide the establishment into various departments. Assign to greenhouses producing certain articles an account to which is to be charged all sums expended thereon. For instance, the accounts could be named "House No. 1" and so on. I do not recommend that an attempt be made to ascertain the costs on products of each bench, until such time as it might be found advisable to extend the system to more minute detail.

A cost system is not only useful as a means of obtaining the cost of production, it goes much further, as it furnishes the necessary data incident to reducing costs either by eliminating certain unnecessary expenses, or increasing the production of such articles where insufficiency is shown. It constitutes the basis for inaugurating the more modern methods in equipment required to increase capacity in certain places where a balancing factor is necessary between various departments or commodities. Thus it prevents a great deal of lost time which is one of the principal losses in any business. It places you in a position to plan the policy of your business in definite form. The value of the systematization of any business is measured by the difference between what is done and what can be done, and the commercial success of your business depends upon the answer you can give to the question:—

"Do you know positively at what figure your profit ends, and your losses begin, on each of your products?"

Gladiolus Growing for Pleasure.

A paper by P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., written for the Bulletin of the American Gladiolus Society.

The gladiolus is easily the most popular outdoor flower of today, as almost every color taste may be gratified. The gladiolus will thrive and give results with but little care, and again the most remarkable results will reward any extra care or attention that is rendered. A season of bloom from July until cut down by hard frosts, may be enjoyed by successive plantings. Even early in June, flowers may be had, where the convenience of a greenhouse or hot bed is at hand. To start the corms that may be planted in the open after danger of frosts is over, a convenient method and one within the reach of all, is to use the ordinary square quart size berry basket. From one to three corms may be planted, according to size, barely covering them and having the baskets about level full of earth. Ordinary garden soil with the admixture of a little sifted coal ashes makes a good compost, friable and easily drained, to which the roots will cling when the basket is removed prior to planting out. This is easily accomplished by cutting the corners with a pruning shears, and sliding the entire "ball" out, which is then planted without disturbing the roots.

Plant so as to have the top of the corms at least three inches below the surface. A depression may be left about each one, which will catch the rains and also allows the sun's rays to penetrate and warm up the soil. Cultivating will gradually level up the surface these deep planted gladioli require. Very little support is required when the plant is large and bearing a heavy flower spoke. As a precautionary measure against the blue aphid or other insects that are sometimes found under the outer covering of the corms, I always soak them for a few minutes in a tobacco or nicotine solution, "Aphine" or any other good commercial product, using a solution slightly stronger than that recommended for spraying. This also acts as a repellent to any insects that might be in the soil.

The ideal fertilizer for any crop is well decomposed stable manure, but this is not always available. A "complete" manure such as used for potatoes is an excellent substitute. Bone meal or pulverized sheep manure are also good. Alternate these with wood ashes fortnightly, cultivating after each application, and watering thoroughly when necessary. An occasional dressing of air-slaked lime is very beneficial in keeping the soil sweet. After the flowering spike is well defined, a light application of Scotch soot worked into the soil is a grand medium for intensifying the colors of the flowers, especially the pink shades.

The real beauty of the gladiolus is only realized in September or later, when the flowers have more substance, the colors are brighter, and the spikes finished with a greater number of open flowers at a time. The blue, heliotrope and lavender shades are especially fine in July and August, but the hot sunshine and the pollenizing effects of insects cause the flowers to "go to sleep" almost as soon as they open.

For a long season of bloom the following method will be found convenient and practical: About April 1 take out all the gladioli from the winter quarters and divide each variety in as many parts as it is desired to have plantings. Take paper bags and mark the planting dates on each; in the vicinity of New York July 1 is about the latest safe planting date. To insure getting all the blooms, and assure ripening of the corms, select all the largest and heaviest corms for the last planting; all bulblets and small corms are best planted at the first planting. Each set of bags, according to planting dates, are then placed in boxes, leaving the top of the bags open for circulation of air and to prevent heating. These boxes are then placed in a dry, cool cellar until the special dates for various plantings occur. A good vegetable cellar is an ideal place. Of the many methods tried, I have found this to be the very best, as I find but little shrinkage in the last lot planted. We plant double or zig-zag rows five inches apart and 24 inches between the rows. This allows convenience in cultivating and gathering the flowers. High cultivation sometimes renders it necessary to afford some support. This we furnish by driving stout bamboo canes in a single line, four feet apart, stretching jute twine down one side of the row and up the other side, turning a loop around each stake. This allows a free circulation of air, and supports the spike as long as necessary.

Cowee Gladioli in Moving Pictures.

There is no disputing the fact that the moving picture film has become an established institution, both as an educator and entertainer, and no small part of the difficulties that beset the director of the scenario is the proper staging of the story amid scenes that will add to the interest by pleasing and appropriate surroundings, but it is doubtful if any stage setting has ever been more appropriate and at the same time possessing more natural beauty than when the Edison company of photo-players, through courtesy of Arthur Cowee, the famous gladiolus specialist of Berlin, N. Y., the scenario for a new film story, entitled "Gladiola," was taken amid thousands of spikes of bloom, gorgeous in coloring, at Mr. Cowee's gladiolus farm, near Berlin.

The particular appropriateness of the setting at once becomes evident from the fact that the heroine of the story, Gladiola, spent her childhood on a gladioli farm of her parents, and many later events in the pastoral, as shown in the film, are brought out most naturally amid the fields of bloom, at the height of their glory when the picture was taken.

THE CARNATION.

Plant Requirements During September.

We can safely class the month of September as being one of the most critical periods that the carnation plants will have to pass through. A greater part of the time during the first three weeks the days are usually intensely hot, followed by heavy dews and excessive moisture at night, and when we consider the fresh soil in the benches, together with these conditions, we must know that the plants will make a rapid luxuriant growth, easily susceptible to stem rot and other diseases, and it is the business of the grower in charge to attend closely to the many details in the care of the plants to encourage them to make a healthy, vigorous growth and keep free from disease. Cleanliness around the houses and about the plants is an important factor for the plants' well-being, as well as an encouragement of an healthy growth. It is also a great pleasure to everyone connected with the establishment to have everything looking neat and clean.

By this time, the plants planted the latter part of July or early in August will have good control of the soil and be growing rapidly. They do not need any coddling, but must be given careful attention to their wants as regards watering, airing and supporting. Next to the finishing up of the housing of the plants, I believe most growers feel a greater satisfaction when the job of wiring and putting on the supports is complete than from any other work connected with carnation culture. This is especially true when the man in charge has other lines that demand his attention, and it is also best for the plants' welfare that they be supported before the branches get large enough to fall on the soil and become diseased from lack of air and excessive moisture. It pays to attend to this work without delay, so that before the plants are allowed to bloom they will be properly supported.

It is very important that during the next month the greatest care be given to the watering. Now that the roots are working freely through the beds, and fast getting control of the soil, so that it will stand liberal watering whenever dry, the grower has the conditions well in hand and can attend to the watering according to the conditions of soil and weather. Not all of the beds will dry out the same way, and it is therefore the best plan to examine the soil every day and water according to its requirements; touch up the dry places one day, then, if conditions are such as to warrant it, give the whole of the bed a thorough watering the next, the main object to work for being to get the soil in a condition that it will dry out evenly and take water freely. Let the watering and syringing be two different parts of the plants' care. Water the soil because it is in need of it, and syringe the plants to keep them free from red spider. As the season advances it will be necessary to water more frequently and syringe less. We are now getting two or three days at a time when it is hot with lots of humidity, so that the only drying out is a few hours in the middle of the day. These are the days that we have to look out for, to guard against stem-rot, especially after an out-door season such as the plants have had this year, there having been altogether too much rain for them to have become well hardened. Attend to all the necessary watering early enough in the day for everything about the houses to dry up well before night. Another very important matter is not to allow heavy rains to beat down on the plants through open ventilators or broken glass. Any glazing that has to be done should be attended to right away. Do not leave it for a sudden cold spell to remind you that it is necessary to be done. It is a good plan to have everything tight, so that the first cold night the houses can be fumigated to clean out the insects before the plants come into flower. Another thing—be sure the roof is free from drip; if not go over it and run the rafters with liquid putty. There should not be any time lost in getting the heating apparatus in shape for the winter's work, and to be in readiness for the first frost. Every grower is naturally anxious for his plants to commence to bloom, but do not be in too big a hurry—let the main object be at this time to build up the plant; get every shoot you possibly can. Plants carrying 10 and 12 shoots can be allowed to produce a few flowers, but a plant with only four or five growths should not be allowed to bloom yet. Do not expect long stem flowers for a while yet, and remember that the growths at the bottom of the short stems are of greater value than a few inches more stem. Do not rub them off to get the longer stem; better to be satisfied with short stem flowers, allowing the shoots to remain to produce the long stem flowers later in the season.

Keep up the regular sprayings with insecticide to check the thrips and other insects which quickly get the upper hand if not prevented.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Gloxinias.

The genus gloxinia was founded in 1785 upon a plant obtained from Brazil and named in honor of P. B. Gloxin, a botanist of Strassburg. In 1817 another plant from Brazil, closely related, was named Gloxinia speciosa and it was from this species that our present horticultural varieties of gloxinia originated. Later it was found that this parent of our garden gloxinias was not a true gloxinia, botanically speaking, but belonged to another genus in the same family, namely, sinningia. The name gloxinia had become too well fixed among growers to be changed, however, and consequently there exists the peculiar condition of a plant bearing what is supposed to be its botanical name, but which in reality is only a common name derived from a botanical name, erroneously applied. In all probability these plants will continue to be known as gloxinias, but if one wishes to refer to them under the genus to which they belong, the name sinningia should be used.

During the last ten years gloxinias have been wonderfully developed by various growers. Flowers now range from pure white, pink, and pale blue to deep red and purple. The newer French, spotted hybrids, though less robust in habit and with more delicate flowers, are a valuable addition to the older types. These are marked and spotted with colors varying from pink and mauve to dark blue, red, and even chocolate.

Anyone with a warm greenhouse or even a hot bed at their disposal, by selecting good seed and following the hints given below should be able to produce a brilliant display of blooms within seven or eight months after sowing the seed. It is best to sow the seed in mid-winter in deep, well-drained pans filled with a mixture of rich soil and sand. The pans should be kept at a temperature of about 75° F., and may be covered with glass until the seedlings appear. Great care should be taken to turn the glass night and morning as gloxinias are especially liable to "damp off" in too moist an atmosphere. As soon as the first leaves develop, the plants should be pricked off into shallow pans or pots, and when the seedlings are established they may be removed from the hot bed into a fairly moist atmosphere at 65-70° F. When large enough to handle easily, the seedlings must again be transplanted into a soil as fibrous and porous as possible, peat, sand and leaf mold making a good combination. Careful watering is most important at this stage. If possible, the water should be slightly warmer than the air of the house and moreover should never be applied unless really necessary. The atmosphere, however, should always be moist, and the leaves may be lightly sprayed night and morning.

In the final potting—this time into six or eight-inch pots—a good mixture of equal parts of peat, leaf mold, clay, and sand should be used, and the soil ought not to be colder than the house atmosphere. The plants should be kept at a temperature of from 65 to 70° F., never less than 60°, and given all the light possible without exposure to the direct rays of the sun.

Further feeding is not necessary during the first season. Plants started in January or February should bloom in July or August. When the flowers appear, a little weak manure water may be of benefit, but its use can easily be carried too far. It is sometimes advisable during the blooming period to remove some of the center leaves which may otherwise cramp and smother the opening flowers.

After flowering, water should be gradually withheld and as soon as the leaves have ripened, the plants should be stored at a temperature of about 45° F. Only enough water should be given to prevent the tubers from withering. In February the tubers should be cleaned and placed in small pots filled with the soil mixture referred to above. Until active root growth begins but little water should be given, and as soon as the pots are filled with roots, it is necessary to transfer the plants into six-inch pots. Plants from last year's tubers should bloom in about five months, and the same tuber may be grown for several years.

To sum up: gloxinias require plenty of heat and moisture, protection from direct sunshine, a rich, open, light soil, and above all, unremitting and intelligent attention to watering and ventilation. To one who can give all these, the joy of growing them from seed to flower will be ample compensation for the time and labor expended.

on each of the homeward trips as well as on the outward trips. This will put an additional 16-knot American steamer on the route, making three altogether, all of which are subject to the call of the government in time of war for use as auxiliary naval cruisers, as provided by the Ocean Mail Act of March 3, 1891. It also assures regular and expeditious service to the United States from Samoa, including our naval station there, service from which at present is via Sydney and thence to San Francisco, as the steamers do not now call at Pago Pago on the homeward trips. The new arrangement will commence with the sailing from San Francisco, October 26, 1915.

THE ROSE.

Preparing the Houses for Cold Weather.

During the month of September, the grower should have his heating plant in readiness to push the steam or hot water heat around at almost a moment's notice. At this date we are using two coils and a 2-inch main in each rose house from midnight until 7 a. m., in order to prevent mildew and loss of good foliage through the great change of temperature, between day and night. As the houses are running at about 90 degrees with full air on during the day, and the temperature for several days has dropped to from 48 degrees to 52 degrees at 4 a. m., a difference of 40 or more degrees is rather too great for the good of the plants. Under these conditions a crack of air of several inches, and with steam enough on to bring the temperature up to 65 degrees, the plants can be gradually hardened, until a normal

Postal Changes.

Postmaster General Burleson has concluded arrangements with the Oceanic Steamship Company whereby the steamers of that company plying between San Francisco and Sydney via Honolulu and Pago Pago, Samoa, will sail from San Francisco and Sydney once every three weeks instead of once every four weeks as heretofore, and will call at Pago Pago and Honolulu winter's night temperature is reached; otherwise, the sudden changes will cause a check, bringing on black spot, mildew and the loss of much foliage. Green fly, at this season, will soon get the upper hand if one does not take the precaution to close down the houses and fumigate. It is far safer to have the night man on duty from now on, and he can attend to the fumigating and also the application of sulphur to the pipes. A good time to fumigate is about 4 a. m., selecting a clear day so that the plants can be sprayed thoroughly following the fumigating. The spraying will put the finishing touches on a great many of the little pests that would eventually escape if spraying immediately afterwards was not resorted to. One should keep the foliage affected with black spot picked off, and frequent dustings of air-slaked lime around the base of the plants, under the tables, and in the walks, will keep the atmosphere sweet and clean; it is not necessary to apply it heavily, just enough to cover the foliage low down, lightly. Apply only when the foliage is absolutely dry, and it can all be readily removed when syringing. Do not let the plants lie around the house; keep them tied in place and pinch back the growth judiciously, allowing just enough good stock to come on the strongest plants of the young stock to keep up with the demand, providing of course, this does not cut some of the late planted stocks back too hard. Early planted stock should now have roots quite near the surface of the soil, and especially stock that is being handled on raised benches, so to cultivate under these conditions would be injurious to the plants. A light top-dressing of some old, thoroughly rotted manure of any kind, scattered around, will keep the soil from baking and cracking; it will also make it possible to water evenly. In some cases it may be necessary to go over the benches or beds and firm the soil at the sides with the fingers to prevent the wasting of the water, but mainly to have the water go into the soil instead of running away at the sides.

The carried over stock will now require a good mulch of cow manure, but care should be taken in selecting manure that is not too green. A dusting of pure ground bone, fine enough to be soluble, should first be applied; about a good handful to two square feet of surface is a practical way to apply it, scattering it evenly over the soil. Then apply the manure, preferably in piles that can be washed down with the hose, or level as one desires, the main point being to get at the watering before the manure begins to dry; if once it dries very little plant food can be gotten from it.

The airing should be handled carefully from now on; it will not do to leave it on all day, but reduce it gradually, and open up gradually. Do not close down the houses tightly at night; carry air and steam as stated before whenever you can, on cold rainy days and particularly early in the morning, around and just before daylight. If the foliage should be found covered with condensation in the morning, look out, as several mornings in succession of this condition will do the plants more harm than can be estimated. So in order to save all around, put the night fireman on the job with proper instructions, and call it good business.

New York Gardeners' Examination.

Following are the questions asked at the last examination for gardener, a new test for which is now scheduled in the city service:

Name at least three conditions which should be kept in mind in selecting a site for a flower garden.

If you had a piece of ground not under cultivation and you decided on making a garden out of it, state how much of the surface you would use for walks and paths. Describe how walks should be made.

Explain the best way for caring for lawns and grass plots in spring, summer and autumn.

Name half a dozen flowering plants suitable for cultivation in circular plots on lawns, and state how each of these plants should be cared for during their growth.

Show how important it is to have a steady supply of water for a garden, and explain the watering process in dry weather.

Give examples showing the benefits of pruning, and describe how and when this work should be done in the case of small trees and shrubs.

Name five garden tools, describe the work to be done by each, and state the proper manner of caring for these articles.

The Late Lawrence W. Kervan.
See Obituary, Issue of Aug. 28.

Describe the precautions to be taken by gardeners in potting and transplanting. Give examples with reasons.

Specify a few of the dangers to which plants and flowers are exposed by insects, and state the proper remedy to be applied in each case mentioned.

A tree about a year old is to be removed from one part of the garden to another. Describe the operation from beginning to end.—Evening Telegram, June 27.

The Illinois State Florists' Association.

One of the most successful meetings ever held by the executive board of the Illinois State Florists' Association, was the session at Peoria, August 31, 1915. The meeting was presided over by President C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park, Chicago. Those in attendance in addition to the president were: Secretary J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; Treasurer F. L. Washburn, Bloomington; Vice Presidents E. W. Guy, Belleville; A. C. Brown, Springfield; Andrew Peterson, Hoopston; John Staack, Moline; Ex-president Chas. Loveridge, Peoria, and George Washburn, Bloomington.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Moline, March 7-8, 1916, and the secretary was instructed to invite the Iowa State Florists to meet with the Illinois association. The president and secretary were instructed to arrange the program. It was also decided that hereafter all members pay for their own banquet tickets, the cost of same being not to exceed $1.50 per plate. It was also agreed that hereafter the judges be selected by the president before the meeting, and that all new varieties of any flower be judged by regulation scale of points.

The secretary was instructed to draw up resolutions for publication to amend the constitution to the effect that all members who have paid a total of $10 in dues shall be entitled to a life membership certificate, the same to be presented at the next annual meeting for adoption.

The visitors were royally entertained by Ex-president Chas. Loveridge and family. The meeting was held in the spacious directors' room of the Farmer's Loan Association building, through the courtesy of Mr. Loveridge, who is vice-president of the institution, and their secretary, Fillmore Millard."

Liquids Mailable in Parcel Post.

Under the restrictions governing such shipments in the domestic parcel post, liquids, oils, pastes, salves or other articles easily liquefiable may be sent on and after September 1 by international parcel post from the United States to the Bahamas, British Honduras, Costa Rica, Curacao, Danish West Indies, Jamaica, Newfoundland and Trinidad. Heretofore liquids have been admitted to our international parcel post only between the United States and Austria, Brazil, Germany, Great Britain and Norway.

The new agreements are subject to stringent packing requirements applying in the domestic service and stated in Paragraph 4, Section 474, of the Postal Laws and Regulations as amended by the Postmaster General's Order No. 7884 of March 13, 1914. The prohibition directed against the mailing of poisons, explosives, etc., set forth in Section 472, and against drugs forbidden to commerce generally, contained in Section 480, Postal Laws and Regulations, are also contained in the new agreements.

The Late Joseph H. Bechamps.

Joseph H. Bechamps, for many years a grower of Astoria and Bayside, New York, died at his home in Flushing, City of New York, September 6. He was 76 years old to a day. Mr. Bechamps was horn in New York of French descent, being a son of the late John G. Bechamps of the Yorkville section. Joseph H. Bechamps went into the florist business at an early age and had been a successful grower of carnations and other stock. He had been ill for some time and the range at Bayside has been conducted by his sons, Eugene and Edward. He was a civil war veteran and a comrade of George Heintzman Post, No. 50, G. A. R., of Flushing. He is survived by three sons, Joseph J., Eugene F., and Edward C., all of whom are florists, and three daughters, Eugenie C., Josephine M. and Mrs. Maria A. Dwyer. Mr. Bechamps was a good citizen and highly respected by many friends and business associates. A. F. F.

BEACON, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond, the well-known insecticide manufacturer, has returned from the San Francisco convention and speaks very favorably of the meeting, also the exposition and the Los Angeles school garden movement.

OBITUARY.

Edwin Lonsdale.

American floriculture has lost one of its brightest lights in the passing of Edwin Lonsdale, who died of cancer, Wednesday, September 1, at the Naturopathic Institute, Los Angeles, Calif., where he had been for the past four months. From his youth up Mr. Lonsdale was always passionately fond of flowers. Born in England, October 6, 1845, he was early apprenticed as a gardener, working on several large estates and Regent's park, London. Emigrating to America in 1869 his first position was with Thos. Meehan, in Germantown, Pa. In 1873 he went to San Francisco, Calif., where he spent two years with Miller & Seivers, and later with Levi Sanderson, in San Jose, Calif. Returning to Philadelphia in 1875 he purchased greenhouses in Thorpe's lane, Germantown.

Mr. Lonsdale about this time visited England, where he married Miss Sarah Burton, sister of John Burton, returning immediately to his Philadelphia home, where he grew plants and cut flowers for the wholesale market, five years later forming a partnership with his brother-in-law, Mr. Burton. They purchased ground and erected greenhouses on Milton Grove avenue, Wyndmoor, Chestnut Hill, and made a specialty of forcing roses and other cut flowers for the Philadelphia market, being very successful. They were first in the market with the hybrid rose, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, and for several years did well with the flowers, and later supplied the trade with plants. Cosmos was another flower in which they were pioneers. This partnership was dissolved in 1887, Mr. Lonsdale erecting houses on adjoining land, where he forced roses, principally American Beauty and hybrids, with which he was very successful. He also devoted himself to the culture of orchids, having a large stock of cattleyas and cypripediums. Cypripedium Sanderianum was found in a lot of imported C. Lawrenceanum, and was sold to Sander, of St. Albans, Eng., at a record price. He made a lot of crosses and raised a number of cypripedium seedlings. He was first to import the Crimson Rambler rose, a large plant in full flower on his lawn, the first to flower outside, making a great sensation. He was very fond of carnations and raised a number of meritorious seedlings, amongst them Grace Battles, Brunette, Mrs. Cleveland, Jewell and Helen Keller, the latter a beautifully striped variety. Adiantum Farleyense was taken up, and although a puzzle to him for a time, he soon became famous for his splendid plants and fronds of this difficult plant. Begonia Gloire de Lorraine was another favorite. He was first to import this plant, and was early successful in propagating it. He soon had a stock that when in flower was pronounced the most beautiful pot plant ever offered to the public. A lighter shade of pink developed with him; one that held its flowers. He named it the Lonsdale variety, and it soon became very popular as a Christmas forcing plant. He also imported the first swainsona, which proved to be a most useful cut flower. Crotons attracted him, and several beautiful sorts were the result of hybridizing. These seedlings he sold to Robert Craig, the varieties Edwin Lonsdale and Craigii being standards in their types.

In 1894 Mr. Lonsdale sold his business and took charge of the greenhouses and grounds at Girard college where under his care the beautiful bedding became a great feature of the outdoor work. In 1909 he resigned this position to become superintendent of the seed farms of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at Lompoc, Calif. The farewell dinner given to Mr. Lonsdale by his friends in the craft at this time will ever be remembered by the large company present. It was a heartfelt testimonial to one they all loved as a brother, and carried their best wishes for his success in his new home. In his numerous activities Mr. Lonsdale found time to contribute to the columns of THE AMERICAN FLORIST many important articles on matters pertaining to commercial floriculture. His descriptions of new varieties and cultural directions on carnations, roses, orchids, ferns, palms, begonias and other plants were especially valuable. He also was foremost in all matters looking to the advancement of the trade, being one of the charter members of the S. A. F., serving first as secretary of that body in 1887, and elected president in Atlantic City in 1894. He helped to organize the American Carnation Society in 1891 and was its first president, serving three years. In the permanent organization of the Florists' club, Philadelphia, October, 1886, he was elected secretary, serving in that capacity until October, 1887. He was one of the members who signed the charter in December, 1888, elected president in October, 1893, and served as presiding officer until 1895, when he was elected secretary, serving until May, 1906.

Mr. Lonsdale was never happier than when engaged in the social work of the club. He had a most lovable disposition. Everyone who knew him was his friend. Sunshine accompanied him everywhere. His hearty laugh was most infectious. No social club gathering or dinner was complete without his singing that famous song, "That Brave Old Duke of York," in which all joined in the chorus with great gusto. The loss of his two daughters, Bertie and Jennie, by drowning in the surf while bathing at Ocean City, N. J., and the death of his remaining daughter, Annie, two years later had a depressing influence from which he and Mrs. Lonsdale, who survives him, never fully recovered.

The remains were brought on to Philadelphia, the funeral being held September 8 from the residence of John Burton, Wyndmoor, Pa. There was a large attendance of the craft. The Florists' Club of Philadelphia sent a handsome floral tribute, and the room was filled with beautiful wreaths, sprays and clusters of the choicest flowers, many of them coming from friends in all sections of the country. The interment, which was private, was in Ivy Hill cemetery.

It is sad news to learn of Edwin Lonsdale's death. Even though the dread event was looked for as something near for some time past, yet the blow falls heavily on those who loved, admired and respected him. They were many, and comprised all who had the honor of his friendship, for to know him was to love him. The grim reaper rarely garners one whose loss will be felt more keenly than kindly, gentle, generous, lovable, talented, manly Edwin Lonsdale. Peace be to his ashes. His work in horticulture is well known and will, no doubt, be reviewed by those who were intimate with his achievements in that field. It is the man we will miss, the inspiration for better things which emanated from him. The whole souled spirit of him appealed to everyone who knew him, the genial companionship of him charmed them, the helpful attitude of him towards all won hearts and held them. It could indeed be said of him as of the noble Roman, "His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man.'" PATRICK O'MARA.

All who knew him will always lovingly think of him, with his wealth of horticultural information, his enthusiasm in gardening, his cheerful magnetic presence, and the most wholesome, winning laugh it was ever my good fortune to hear.

ROBERT CRAIG.

Edwin Lonsdale was born in a small hamlet near Shrewsbury, Shropshire, England, but with his parents at an early age removed to Shenstone, near Litchfield, Staffordshire. After leaving school, he served some years in various Staffordshire gardens, including those of Manley Hall, and about 1865 moved to Hanover Lodge, Regent's park, London. Later he returned to Staffordshire, and was employed there under the late Stephen Taplin, of Detroit, Mich., in the gardens of Enville Hall, where in a short time he gained a more thoroughly practical knowledge of the business than in all the previous years he had devoted to it.

When the national chrysanthemum society was organized at Buffalo, N. Y., August 22, 1889, under the name of American Chrysanthemum Society he was elected secretary, and served until the first annual meeting at Chicago November 11-15, 1902, meetings during the intervening years being held at the annual conventions of the S. A. F.

George Walther.

George Walther, a pioneer florist of Chicago, died at his home at 6436 Lowe avenue, Wednesday, September 1, following a paralytic stroke. He was 78 years of age and was born in Germany but came to this country at an early age. He built several greenhouses in 1883 which he planted to vegetables but gradually drifted into the florist business, of which he had active charge until about two years ago, when his daughter, Louise, and son, George, Jr., assumed management. He was well and favorably known to the trade and by dint of hard work established a good paying retail trade and was active about the greenhouses until the past year when he took things a little easier. The funeral services were held from the home, Saturday, September 4, and the remains were laid to rest in Mt. Hope cemetery. He is survived by a wife and seven children, Anna A., Catherine D., Louise L. and George Jr., of Chicago; Ed J., Billings, Montana; Fred D., New York, and Ralph A., Lake Forest, Ill.

EDWIN LONSDALE, whose death is recorded elsewhere in this issue, will take high rank among the pioneers of American floriculture. The trying labors of the early days brought him small pecuniary reward but he toiled on cheerfully for his fellow-craftsmen through all the years, blazing the way with a big heart and the warm sunshine of a lovable personality.

Foreign Mail Burned.

Maltus & Ware, New York, advise that they received a cable, September 6, from the Association of Holland Nurserymen to the effect that the greater part of the mail on the S. S. Rotterdam was destroyed by fire. This vessel left New York August 21 and arrived at Rotterdam September 2. The association requests that duplicates of all letters be mailed.

Belgian Plants—Latest Cable Advices.

It has been understood that the British authorities would issue permits for the exportation of Belgian stocks—bulbs, plants, palms, bay trees, etc.—but it now develops, according to cable received by THE AMERICAN FLORIST, September 6, that the Belgian growers themselves expect possible opposition by the German authorities to the exportation of their stock under British permit. A final decision has not been reached.

Siebrecht Awarded Exposition Medal.

The landscape treatment around the New York state building at the Panama-Pacific exposition has been awarded a gold medal, said to be the only prize given for landscape treatment at the exposition. The stock for the ornamentation of these grounds was shipped from Siebrecht & Son's Rose Hill Nurseries last fall. All was from New Rochelle. Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., made the plans for landscape work and lay out; Henry A. Siebrecht, Sr., executed the work last winter when he was in California for four and a half months.

State Fairs.

The following is a list of coming state fairs with the names and addresses of the superintendents of the horticultural and floricultural departments so far as obtainable:

OPENING SALE OF THE FALL SEASON
On Tuesday, September 14, at 11 o'clock a. m.

Palms, Ferns, Rubbers, Dracaenas, Etc.

Also Mammoth Shipments of Holland and French Grown Bulbs

Cleveland.

STOCK PLENTIFUL, BUT DEMAND STEADY.

There is plenty of stock of both indoor and outdoor varieties. Gladioli, asters, and dahlias lead in quantity. There are also Jap lilies, pokers, larkspurs, lilac and baby breath. Lily of the valley has been short of the demand. Roses are in good demand. Sunbursts are fine stock, as are American Beauties. Killarneys show the warm weather effect, being quite open on arrival. The rain September 4 did not seem to stop buyers, who were on the market early and bought heavily. It continued to rain on Sunday also, which is not unusual lately.

NOTES.

F. C. Bartels, of the J. M. Gasser Co.'s greenhouses at Rocky River, O., spent part of last week visiting greenhouses in Canada. He made special mention of the Dunlop range just outside of Toronto, where everything was going on fine in spite of "war talk." The Shawyer, Russell and other stock, like Richmond, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst and Ward, were in good condition; also a new seedling rose, a cerise pink, very double, having all the good points of other roses, which will soon be ready for market.

The executive committee of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association, meeting in Columbus this week, decided to change its convention dates to November 12-13, so that the teachers may be in Cleveland at the same time the Cleveland flower show is held. The educational features of the show are expected to be of benefit to the teachers. The flower show will be one of the most important expositions of floral art by growers and dealers in the country this fall.

The Jones-Russell Co. has leased the store in the Taylor arcade, facing Euclid avenue with a side entrance in the arcade, giving them a fine opportunity for display. It is something on the "stand" order, but Jones-Russell quality and prices will prevail. It will be known as their "lower down town store." So far the name of the manager of the store has not been revealed and they will be on the market for a "good man." The store opens October 1.

The September meeting of the local florists' club will be held Monday, September 13, on account of Labor day conflicting with the regular date. Try and be at this meeting.

J. R. Cowgill, Canton, Ohio, brought his baby this week to Lakeside hospital. He is suffering with indigestion. Mrs. Cowgill is staying with the baby at the hospital.

C. F. B.

Minneapolis, Minn.

Everything in the market in the line of flowers has been cleaning up at good prices with a slight advance over last week, with the exception of asters, which bring $1 to $4 per 100. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful with good demand. Lily of the valley is scarce at five cents. The Minnesota state fair is on and will consume a large amount of stock, according to the number of entries.

NOTES.

There is a friendly rivalry on between St. Paul and Minneapolis florists' clubs over the silver trophy given by the fair association to the club having the best display. Mr. Olson is in charge for St. Paul and Mr. Desmond for Minneapolis, and everyone working for their home town.

Ralph Latham lost a package containing 100 gladioli off his machine one day last week on his way in from the lake, and when a gentleman drove up to his store with them, he said, "keep them, as I have too many and they are not worth putting in water." Mr. Latham has cut close to 10,000 gladioli so far this season.

The next meeting of the local florists' club will be held at the plant of the Minneapolis Floral Co., September 14, at 8 p. m., on invitation of Supt. C. G. Anderson.

A. A. Villas and wife have returned from their honeymoon, having visited the principal cities of the east and several resorts in Michigan.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association will be held September 9, at the store of Holm & Olson, St. Paul.

Theo. Vogel has resigned his position with Chapman's and will renew old acquaintances in Chicago this week.

Max. Kaiser, of Merriam Park Floral Co., has some very nice 8-inch cyclamen plants in bloom at the fair.

Look for news of Minnesota state fair in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issue of September 18.

H. B. Whitted had a decorated automobile in the window for the "speed kings."

Hans Rosacker is sending in fancy Richmond and Killarney roses.

O. H. Carlson is cutting fancy Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia roses.

Will Bros. are cutting some roses after their short rest. T. C. R.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Charles Reitman, of 110 Bond street, Trenton, N. J., filed a petition in the United States District Court against Bonnot Bros., of Jersey City, N. J., and also against the individual members, Emil Bonnot and Leon Bonnot. He claims they are insolvent and asks that they be declared bankrupt. He alleges that they owe the New York Cut Flower Company $6,935, and that this claim has been assigned to him.

Dreer's Herbaceous Peonies

We will begin to dig this season about September 15th, over one hundred thousand roots of the following choice varieties of our own growings, true to name, strong divisions, with from 3 to 5 eyes.

Double Herbaceous Peony.

	Per doz.	Per 100
Asa Gray. A very distinct flower, bright lilac, sprinkled with minute dots of deeper lilac in such a manner as to appear dusted on; blooms very large; mid-season.....	$3 50	$25 00
André Lauries. Strong vigorous grower with medium sized flower of deep Tyrian rose. $90.00 per 1000....	1 50	10 00
Augustin D'Hour. Brilliant dark red with slight silvery reflex. Very large, compact, bomb-shaped flower; mid-season	4 00	30 00
Arthemise. A strong grower of upright habit, free bloomer in clusters, large, violet-rose with light mauve shadings. A good mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Agnes Mary Kelway. A tall, vigorous-growing variety of good habit and free bloomer, light violet rose with creamy white center, mid-season, very showy. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Couronne d'Or. Immense ball-shaped blooms, snow white with golden yellow stamens and delicate carmine markings on the central petals. Strong upright growth; one of the choicest late flowering varieties. $225.00 per 1000	3 50	25 00
Charlemagne. A very vigorous grower with strong stems and large compact, globular flowers. Lilac-white with a slight blush center. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Canary. One of the freest blooming varieties, of medium size; pure white guard petals with amber white center. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Delachai. Very large cup-shaped flowers, deep crimson-purple, a strong grower and free blooming mid-season variety. $140.000 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Duke of Wellington. An ideal cut-flower variety, large, well-formed flowers on long stiff stems, color sulphur-white, quite fragrant, one of the finest mid-season sorts. $100.000 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Duchesse de Nemours. Superb cup-shaped flowers of sulphur-white changing to pure white. Particularly beautiful in the half-open bud state. $100.000 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Dr. Caillot. Blooms on long stems, brilliant Tyrian rose. A very striking late flowering variety.....	3 00	20 00
Duc de Cazes. Another of the really first-class Pæonies for all conditions, never failing to produce an abundance of flowers for Memorial Day. Upright growth with large flat flowers of perfect shape, fine bright pink shaded violet, lighter center and silvery reflex. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Egonard André. Compact growing variety, with globular semi-double flowers of dark carmine violet with metallic reflex, and golden yellow stamens. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Eduis Superba. The earliest variety in our collection, being frequently a week ahead of any other sort, making it particularly valuable for Decoration Day sales in late seasons or in latitudes where other sorts will not bloom previous to that date. Also a variety which has done well, blooming freely under the most adverse conditions. Flowers of a deep rose pink with lighter shadings. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00

	Per doz.	Per 100
Eugene Verdier. Immense globular flowers, delicate flesh color deepening towards the center, tall stately grower and profuse bloomer, distinct and desirable.....	3 50	25 00
Felix Crousse. The ideal self-colored red Pæony, large globular and compact, an even shade of bright red without trace of any other color, a strong vigorous grower with long stems make this variety one of the most important commercial cut flower sorts. $200.00 per 1000.....	3 50	25 00
Francois Ortegat. Brilliant crimson; full double flower, one of the richest dark varieties. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Festiva Maxima. This truly superb variety, the finest white in cultivation, has for nearly three-quarters of a century been the standard by which all other sorts have been judged. A giant in growth. No other variety combines the wonderful purity of color, freedom and earliness of flower, and handsome foliage as this "Queen of Pæonies." This variety is probably better known throughout the world than any other. $180.00 per 1000.....	$2 50	$20 00
Louis van Houtte. One of the most conspicuous of the dark colored varieties, blooms are produced in clusters on strong upright stems well above the foliage, color rich dark crimson, developing a slight silvery tip as the flowers age, making quite an attractive color combination. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
L'Éclatante. Very large, showy, compact, brilliant, red flowers in clusters, vigorous growth, extra good commercial mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
L'Indispensable. Immense flowers of a delicate lilac pink with darker shading towards the center. Tall, upright grower and profuse bloomer. A very desirable late flowering variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Lady Bramwell. A beautiful silvery-rose of fine form, a free-blooming and vigorous growing variety, together with the beautiful soft colored flowers make this one of the particularly attractive mid-season cut flower sorts. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Mme. Calot. One of the best of the early sorts, large flowers of a pale hydrangea pink color. Very delicate when cut in bud state. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00
Mme. de Verneville. Beautifully formed flower, very broad sulphur white guard petals and compact white center, touched carmine. A most chaste mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Mme. Ducl. Perfectly formed globular flower, dwarf, vigorous habit, color bright silvery pink with salmon shadings and silvery reflex. Magnificent cut flower variety and fine bedder	3 50	25 00
Marie Jacquin. A variety especially adapted for landscape work, flowers semi-double, almost pure white with the yellow stamens partly visible in the center. Very aptly named "Water Lily Pæony." $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Mme. Boulanger. A very choice delicate colored variety; in form not unlike a decorative cactus dahlia. The flowers of a soft lilac tinted white are formed of broad, regularly arranged petals of great substance, greatly enhancing the lasting qualities	5 00	40 00
Meissonier. Large convex blooms on long stems, guard petals brilliant purple red, centre deep crimson. A splendid self-colored variety. $140.000 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Mons. Jules Elia. Probably the largest flowered Pæony in cultivation; color pale lilac-rose with silvery reflex. Strong grower, pleasing fragrance and early.....	6 00	45 00
Na Plus Ultra. Semi-double, pure mauve, early to mid-season variety. $90.00 per 1000.....	1 25	10 00
Princess Galitzin. Medium size pale lilac rose colored flowers in clusters, center of bloom composed of many narrow threadlike creamy white petals. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Queen Victoria. A strong growing pure white variety with creamy white center. One of the most popular standard cut flower varieties. $90.00 per 1000.....	1 50	10 00
Rosea Elagans. Tall upright habit; color pale lilac-rose with creamy white center, pleasant fragrance. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00

BUSINESS IS GRADUALLY IMPROVING. Trade has been quite good the past week, and is gradually improving, especially the shipping trade. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, with the exception of lily of the valley, which continues to be very scarce. Choice lily of the valley is bringing as high as $4.00 and $5.00 per 100 right in the city, and more could be obtained if the dealers raised their prices, but they are satisfied with the prices that they are receiving and experience no difficulty in disposing of their stock long before it reaches the store. Roses are plentiful enough to supply the demand with the exception of good Double White Killarney. Mrs. Chas. Russell are in better supply than they have been, and the same holds good for American Beauty roses. A few short stemmed American Beauty roses are arriving, but clean up quickly at almost as good prices as the longer stemmed stock. Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Killarney Brilliant, Killarney Queen, Richmond, Hadley, Rhea Reid, Milady, Prince de Bulgarie, Hoosier Beauty, Cecile Brunner, My Maryland, Lady Hillingdon and Mrs. George Shawyer are more plentiful and very fancy stock in all these varieties is to be seen at the stores. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and are moving well but so far the only varieties offered are Golden Glow in yellow and Early Frost in white. Orchids are none too plentiful yet. Carnations from indoors are more plentiful and are improving in quality. They are cleaning up well each day at prices ranging from $1.00 per 100 and up. Asters are still plentiful, and the same holds good for dahlias, gladioli and all other miscellaneous outdoor stock. Now that most of the people have returned from their vacations and the schools are open all the dealers are expecting a big improvement in trade, and from present indications it appears as if they are not going to be disappointed.

Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store is going to look pretty nifty when all the alterations are completed. H. B. Kennicott is trying to get the firm upstairs to remove the sign which reads "We sell at retail" and hangs above the main entrance to their store, for they do a strictly wholesale business and they feel that an outsider is likely to believe that the sign belongs to them. Max Ringier of the firm is away on his vacation.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a large supply of fancy asters in addition to his regular line of stock. Felix Reich-ling says that business during August was very good and that the sales during that month were considerably larger than those of August last year. Miss Marguerite McNulty, who keeps the Reinberg books, has returned from a delightful visit in California.

Tom Conlon, superintendent of the plant department at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouses, says that the shipping trade is remarkably good now and shipments are going out on nearly every train. The crotons and pandanus are certainly looking fine and a nice lot of Begonia Vernon in bloom are ready for delivery.

C. E. Schafer, of the La Crosse Floral Co., La Crosse, Wis., was in the city on business this week. He has an unusually large church and home wedding decoration for September 11, which calls for a large supply of stock.

Tesfel Grabowski, 4523 Addison street, is building three new Moninger greenhouses which will be heated by Kroeschell boilers.

Walter Kummer, of the Kummer Floral Co., Milwaukee, Wis., and family were in the city in their automobile, September 6.

BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS

The attendance at the annual Schermeresse of the Luxemburger Bruderbund, held at Karthausers Grove, Sunday and Monday, September 5-6, was the largest in years and everyone present had the best time ever. The floral display was as usual one of the main attractions and the chief exhibitors in cut flowers were Wietor Bros., Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette, Fischer Bros., of Evanston, and Nick Reding, with Wietor Bros. the winner in practically all events. Pyfer & Olsem also copped a number of prizes and the George Wittbold Co. took first honors in the palm display. The Ringler Rose Co. also had an exhibit and while the display of cut flowers was very good, it was out-classed by the vegetable display, which N. J. Wietor says was remarkable and easily the feature of the show.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in chrysanthemums and are showing a fancy grade of Golden Glow in yellow and Early Frost in white. Mr. Washburn had a pleasant visit from Eugene Dailedouze of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was his guest at dinner at Hinsdale, September 5. Mr. Dailedouze was particularly impressed with Bassett & Washburn's new seedling carnation, Belle Washburn, as he saw it growing in the greenhouses at Gregg's station.

Eugene Dailedouze and wife, of Brooklyn, N. Y., stopped off here for a few days this week on their way home from a lake trip from Buffalo to Duluth, Minn. Mr. Dailedouze reports having had a delightful time and was particularly impressed with the beautiful scenery of Mackinac Island and other points along the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Miss Margaret Didier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Didier, and grandchild of M. Weiland, and Chas. Hilhoff, were married at St. Nicholas church, Evanston, Wednesday, September 8. The happy young couple are well known to the trade and all their friends wish them every success for a safe voyage on the sea of matrimony.

August and Adolph Poehlmann and their families made an automobile trip to Milwaukee, Wis., September 4, where they visited with friends and relatives for several days. E. Paselk, who is employed in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s office at Morton Grove, and wife, also made a trip to the Cream City in their machine the following day.

Several of the local wholesalers are seriously thinking of renting the entire third floor of the Le Moyné building, in which the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. are now located. As yet no definite arrangements have been made, but it is very likely that the deal will go through. Further particulars will be published later.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a good supply of short, medium and long stemmed American Beauty roses, which are in good demand at their store. N. J. Wietor says that Friday, September 3, was the biggest day as far as sales are concerned that his firm has had in three months.

V. A. Kohout, proprietor of the Lawndale Floral Co., 3212 West Twenty-second street, and family have returned from a well enjoyed vacation at New Buffalo, Mich. Mr. Kohout is Morris Grossberg has returned from a business trip through the southern part of the state and as usual brought home a number of nice orders for Percy Jones. H. Van Gelder says that he is going to add a couple of more salesmen to his staff in the near future.

Fritz Bahr of Highland Park says that he had a delightful time in California on his recent visit. Anton Then did not accompany him home but remained a few weeks longer to more fully take in the sights of Dan MacRorie's state.

George Walther, 6310 Normal avenue, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred Wednesday, September 2, an account of which appears in the obituary column this week.

The George Wittbold Co. had a large number of orders for the Peck funeral, held this week. The late Dr. Comfort Edson Peck was vice-president of the Bowman Dairy Company for 30 years.

Frank Pasternik, who does the buying in the local market for the Ernst Weinhoer Floral Co., and wife have returned from a pleasant visit with relatives at Paw Paw.

W. M. Reid and C. O. Wilcox, two of the W. W. Barnard Co.'s traveling men, spent Labor day in the city, leaving the following Tuesday for another trip on the road.

The John Kruchten Co. is handling a large supply of stock in all the seasonable offerings, but particularly noticeable is the fine grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

Tony Einweck has resigned his position in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s cut flower department to go to work for the Deering Harvester Co., at Billings, Mont.

The Atlas Floral Co. had a very pretty window display of outdoor flowers this week which was one of the best that Herbert Stone ever arranged.

Adolph Malchow, 3745 North Clark street, says someone threw a stone through his large plate glass window, Wednesday, September 1.

Paul Klingsporn of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association attended the Schramm funeral at Des Plaines, Thursday, September 2.

E. F. Winterson is still receiving treatment for blood poisoning which set in when he ran a spike in his leg several months ago.

L. Lozier, of the Kyle & Foerster store force, is back on the job after enjoying a well-earned vacation.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have fixed up their office in grand style and are now ready to tackle the fall business.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Bismarek Hotel, Thursday, September 9, at 8 p. m.

H. Munson is now comfortably located in new quarters at 1353 North Clark street.

Weiland & Risch are giving their store a new coat of white and green paint.

L. Hoekner is installing a new boiler in his range at Crystal Lake.

A. L. Vaughan, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., is using his automobile to good advantage by calling on his growers whenever the occasion presents itself. He visited the range of the Des Plaines Floral Co. at Des Plaines and Elmer Sigwalt's place at Arlington Heights and reports that he found the young stock at both places in splendid condition. Miss Paradise, who keeps the firm's books, completed eight years of faithful service this week.

H. N. Bruns has been entertaining his brother-in-law, Albert Bietschke, this week, who has just returned from San Francisco, Calif., where he attended the annual convention of the Park Superintendents. Mrs. Bietschke stopped off here while her husband went on to the coast. Mr. Bietschke is head gardener at the Ziegler estate in Connecticut.

A. Engbrecht, 2159 West Twenty-first place, left this week to visit his son, who has taken up a homestead in Saskatchewan, Canada, and expects to be away until some time in November. Mrs. Engbrecht will have charge of the store during his absence.

About 100 horticulturists from Lake Geneva, Lake Forest, Winnetka and other nearby gardening centers visited Vaughan's nurseries and greenhouses at Western Springs, September 8, taking keen interest in the many high grade novelties there under test.

Chas. W. McKellar received a postal from George Asmus and wife, dated September 4, which read that they were having a delightful time in Yellowstone Park on their way home from the San Francisco convention.

Philip Schupp has made a number of changes in J. A. Budlong's store force. Fred Price now has charge of customers and is ably assisted by Jack Byers, who has had many years of experience in the local wholesale market.

Fred Nelson, of the George Wittbold Co., and Joe Schouten, with the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co., returned recently from a delightful automobile trip to St. Louis, Mo.

The state fair takes place at Springfield, September 17-25. For information regarding horticultural exhibits address J. J. McComb, 3327 Potomac avenue, Chicago.

Allie Zech has returned from a pleasant fishing trip at Tomahawk Lake, Wis., and is again attending to his duties as manager at Zech & Mann's wholesale store.

George F. Griffin, president and general manager of the Griffin Car Wheel Co., is the donor of the new $20,000 band stand recently dedicated in Lincoln park.

George Asmus and wife, who have been visiting Yellowstone park on the return trip from the San Francisco convention, are expected home September 9.

Treasurer Wm. F. Kasting, of the Society of American Florists, passed through the city September 6, returning from the San Francisco convention.

Thos. McAllister, of A. Lange's, returned from the San Francisco convention September 7.

Carl Vaughan, with Vaughan's Seed Store, has just returned from a Wisconsin trip and leaves this week on a western route.

The next annual meeting and exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Moline, March 7-8, 1916.

W. W. Coles, wife and daughter reached this city September 8, returning from the San Francisco convention.

Miss Frances Ludlow, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is spending her vacation in New York and Boston.

Columbus, O.

TRADE IS DULL.

Sizing up the chrysanthemum outlook, a leading local florist estimates that the half-dozen or more larger concerns will each have an average of 20,000 blooms. This is quite an increase in planting over last year, and would seem to indicate that there will be a bountiful home supply on standard varieties at least. The promised quality of stock is excellent. Some delicate shades of yellow, shipped in from a distance, are now on display at $3.50 to $4 a dozen. There are also some cuttings from local greenhouses, but the blooms on this early stock are small. With the wane of the gladioli, prices have stiffened a little from the bargain quotations of 50 cents a dozen by which florists have attempted to unload. Gladioli have not added much to profits, with heavy growing and light demand. The second crop will have been exhausted locally by another week. As sales have been such a drag, it is not believed that this flower will be shipped to any extent. Recent cuttings of roses show blooms about one-half the size they would be normally. Continuous cloudy weather has had a very bad effect upon all flowers during the past week. Business is generally dull, funeral work being the main standby.

NOTES.

The flower display at the Ohio state fair, which was on at Columbus for five days ending with September 4, proved to be the largest and most beautiful of any yet attempted at this annual event, according to Superintendent Stevens. It was found necessary to rope off one of the main aisles of horticultural hall in order to accommodate all the floral exhibitors. One of the finest displays was that of the Livingston Seed Company, which carried off first honors for the best decorated dining table. First money was $50. Mrs. Hope A. Bell, of Columbus, took second money, $60. The Indianapolis Floral Company won the third prize, $40, and the Hardesty Floral Company, fourth prize, $25. The Livingstone prize table display consisted of Sunburst roses, delphinium and lily of the valley, arranged in pieces of cut glassware.

FLOWER SHOW PLANS.

Arrangements for the flower show to be held in Houston November 14-20 were made August 30, by the Houston Florists' Club at a meeting in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. The convention of the Society of American Florists to be held in Houston next June was discussed. An attendance of 2,000 is expected by R. C. Kerr, who was elected vice-president of the society at the San Francisco convention. A barbecue with a trip down the ship channel to the San Jacinto battleground will be given the visitors. It was decided to award certificates of merit at the flower show instead of cash prizes. The following committees were placed in charge of arrangements:

Committee on recommendations—R. C. Kerr, general chairman; P. M. Carroll, treasurer; A. L. Perring, secretary.

Trade display—W. J. Baker, Fort Worth, chairman; H. O. Hannah, Sherman; Charles Alf, Jr., Austin.

Exhibition and hall—C. L. Brock, Houston, chairman; A. H. Kohle, Sherman; Bird Forrest, Waxahachie; E. E. Stone, Dickerson.

Premiums and judges—Tom Wolfe, Waco, chairman; Edgar Hall, Austin; J. E. McAdam, Fort Worth.

Admission—P. M. Carroll, Houston, chairman; C. H. Bleker, Houston; A. L. Perring, Houston.

Publicity—S. J. Mitchell, Houston, chairman; L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth; Louis Oesch, Dallas.

Amateur exhibits—R. G. Hewitt, Houston, chairman; W. T. Hauser, Houston; Henk Dirken, Houston.

Entertainments—H. H. Kuhlman, Jr., chairman; all members of the Houston Florists' Club.

The Islip Greenhouses, of which Robert Kerr and E. J. Skinner are the proprietors, are well located and a variety of stock is grown. The garden and landscape features of this place are noteworthy. The grounds are well laid out and a great variety of herbaceous flowering plants were noted. As they are in view of the railroad station, that is a good advertisement.

HEAVY FUNERAL DEMAND HELPS TRADE.

On account of several important funerals, at one of which it is estimated there were between three and four thousand dollars worth of flowers used, the business of the week can be said to have been fairly satisfactory. There is a good supply of almost everything seasonable. In roses, American Beauties, Russell & Mock are leaders. New crop Hadley, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are coming in, all of course rather short in stem. White roses are scarce, others about normal. Easter lilies shortened up, or appeared to, on account of the demand, as well as lily of the valley, which has been quite scarce for the past two weeks. There is still an abundance of asters; the locals are running low, but quantities are coming from New York state and these latter are of excellent quality. The dahlias are now here in earnest; almost any of the leading sorts can be had in quantity, and as this is their time, it would help a lot if the storemen would boost this fall flower, benefiting both the grower and themselves at the same time. There are still some fine gladioli, which are a great help in made up work and in all kinds of decorations, particularly fall store openings, which are just commencing.

NOTES.

The Wanamaker fern, the latest sport of this very varied family, is meeting with public favor. Nearly every order received by the Robert Craig Co. includes some of this fern. Mr. Craig reports that their crotons were never finer, the strongly colored sorts being in the best shape they have ever had them. Cyclamens and begonias have also done splendidly, owing to the cool summer.

The news of the death of Edwin Lonsdale was quite a shock to the craft of this city generally. He was the friend of everyone that knew him, and the memory of the many joyous hours spent in his company, while he was actively engaged with us here, will ever remain a cherished memory.

Mr. Eschner, of the M. Rice Co., is back from the S. A. F. convention trip. He is immensely pleased with the convention and the beautiful country he passed through enroute, both coming and going, and is now a better American than ever.

Jos. Heacock will open his city store about September 15. The stock is now being handled by Stuart Miller. Shipments of palms have been going out lively the past week, the first of their reserve orders for the coming season.

Berger Brothers are right in it with choice asters and dahlias received direct from their own farm, where the crop promises to be fine. Select lily of the valley is also a feature.

The Leo Niessen Co. are now busy with their first shipments of dahlias in quantity. American Beauty roses and Easter lilies are also features.

Edward Reid is handling very choice asters from New York state. He says he will have them all through September.

George Anderson is reported about the same, recuperating slowly. His family is hopeful of his early recovery.

BUSINESS ABOVE THE AVERAGE.
Business during the summer months has certainly been above the average, and September has started out in a way that would indicate that business for the fall and winter will be beyond expectations of even the most optimistic florist in this city. Stock is coming into the market more plentifully and of better quality and sells readily. After a week of good sunshine and no rain, roses are improving, especially American Beauties, Mrs. Charles Russell, Bulgarie, Hadley and the Killarneys. Some very good asters are to be seen, in addition to good quality stock in lilies, carnations and

COOL WAVE HELPS MARKET.

There were days during the past week when business was fairly active in the wholesale district. That was brought about more by the cool wave that cut down the supply of roses, than by any great increase in the demands. It is true, that in some sections, the asters are now well cut out, but it is scarcely noticeable in the market, and it is probable there will be more or less aster stock until frost comes. Dahlias, panicles of Hydrangea paniculata and tritomas are all plentiful enough to be factors in the market, and at some stores it has been said that the hydrangeas and tritomas sell well, which is not surprising as they are to some extent novel and attractive. The quality of rose stock is steadily improving, both in length of stem and quality of bloom, and less of the washed out colors are now seen. A few very fair chrysanthemums have arrived and from now on the supply will be on the increase. Considerable quantities of short carnations are on the market, but it would appear, considering the low price for which they sell, that it would be better to top the plants and save their strength for the future. There is enough of both cattleya and oncidium orchids to supply all demands.

September 6.—This being Labor day and a public holiday not much business was expected and though there was some buying in the morning, most of the wholesale stores closed at noon.

NOTES.

William Plumb, who spent his vacation here, started on his return to Cuba, September 4. He had been there since last autumn, engaged in beautifying the grounds of the estate of a wealthy sugar planter. On his return he took several assistants with him; also material for an orchid house, the idea of a house being to protect the stock from excessive wind and rain. We judge that Mr. Plumb has plans on foot to extend his activities in the landscaping business in Cuba.

The dissolution notice of the firm of Komitsch & Junge, growers, Secaucus, N. J., will be found elsewhere. Both these men are well and favorably known in the trade of this city, they having been, for some years, heavy shippers of orchids, chrysanthemums and sweet peas to Traendly & Schenck. Both are hard working and energetic men, and as they go their respective ways both will be followed by the good wishes of many friends.

The Flatbush (Brooklyn) growers are well up with their work and their stock looks promising. Though there have been complaints from carnation growers in various sections of the country about the wet season, the stock of the Flatbush growers does not seem to have suffered much. The plants, as a rule, are now well established in the houses and are making good growths.

James Coyle, a well-known wholesaler of 28th street, will soon occupy the store at 64 West 26th street, opposite the Coogan building, where the New York Cut Flower Co. and the Cut Flower Exchange are located. He has taken the entire building and it will be finely fitted up for doing business. Mr. Coyle has a good record and we wish him abundant success in this venture.

Secretary John Young, of the S. A.

THE MONTREAL FLORAL EXCHANGE, Ltd.

140 Manfield Street - Montreal

The Wholesale Commission House of Canada, Featuring the Products of its Best Growers

F., reached home, September 2, looking well and happy. After the convention he visited the Yellowstone National park, Salt Lake and other points of interest. He was much interested in the wonders and novelties. Among the novelties are bears so tame and civilized that they take their meals at the Yellowstone hotels.

At the D. Y. Mellis range, of which W. J. Boyd, formerly of Rochester, is now foreman, there is a great variety of good stock. A large cemetery business is done at this range, and both plants and cut flowers are grown. Mr. Boyd retains his Rochester home, but Mrs. Boyd has recently been visiting him.

The news of the death of Edwin Lonsdale, while not unexpected, was received by the trade of this city with feelings of unalloyed sorrow. He was one of nature's noblemen. Peace to his ashes, and may his pure and upright spirit shine in a brighter world where pain and anguish are unknown.

Dr. David Eisenberg, son of I. H. Eisenberg, the well known grower and retailer, and Miss Bertha Cohen, were married at the home of the bride's parents, 230 West 113th street, September 1. It was, of course, up to Papa Eisenberg to furnish a fine decoration, and he arose to the occasion.

N. A. Doganges has removed his retail business from 2683 to 2687 Broadway, where he is well fitted up. His brother, Thomas Doganges, is making great improvements in his establishment at 695 Columbus avenue and will have one of the finest stores in that section of the city.

A. C. Forman, of A. H. Langjhar's staff, has just returned from a vacation of two weeks, looking well and happy. Mr. Langjhar is now receiving from the Peacock Dahlia Farms, Berlin, N. J., fine blooms of the dahlias Dorothy Peacock and John Wana-maker.

Louis Schmutz, senior and junior, have rebuilt two plant houses this summer and made general repairs throughout their two ranges. They have a fine stock of plants for the coming season.

Percy Rigby, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., who, with Mrs. Rigby, has been on vacation in the lake region of this state, has returned to business. His store is now handling good roses.

Martin Grotewohl, the Reid avenue, Brooklyn, retailer, has recently been very busy re-fitting his store and conservatory. Martin is fortunate in having a good wife, who is also a good florist.

It now seems certain that a flower show will be held here in the spring of 1916, under the joint direction of the New York Florists club and the Horticultural Society of New York.

A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., after eight months spent in looking after his company's exhibit at San Francisco, has returned to this city.

In addition to a great stock of chrysanthemums and carnations, all of which look fine, Dailledouze Brothers have a promising stock of roses.

Moore, Hentz & Nash, of the New York Cut Flower Co., are now receiving fine roses for the season, particularly the variety Ophelia.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., are now receiving fine cactus and other dahlias from Victor Zuber & Son, Whitestone, N. Y.

At the Henry Hession range, which is one of the largest in this vicinity, there is a great stock of carnations.

J. W. Mortimer, also of Van Pragg's, will soon take a trip to Vermont, combining business with fishing.

A. Demeusy has a fine carnation stock. He is growing a promising pink sport of Enchantress.

L. F. Rossow, of Van Pragg's 40th street store, is with his family on a vacation in Vermont.

The always-cheerful G. Messeberg has good carnations and a variety of other good stock.

J. Stokes, 413 Gates avenue, has a very neat store and seems to have a good business.

Craig Muir, 40th street retailer, has recently finished redecorating his store.

Walter F. Sheridan is handling good stock of the rose Mrs. Charles Russell.

BUSINESS RETURNS AFTER SUMMER LULL.

With the summer season gradually drawing to a close, it pleases us to report that business is again returning in the Pittsburgh territory; not a stellar showing, however, but prosperity is being breathed from the very atmosphere. Cooler weather, we may add, has helped things noticeably. According to our local weather reports the month of August has been the coolest August for 30 years. There is plenty of stock, but no variety. Gladioli and asters are prime factors. The September gladioli far excel those of the earlier summer in quality, and there are lots of them, too. The wholesale men are having a hard time getting rid of their asters without giving them away. The late crop stock is excellent, but there are so many of them around that they attract little attention. New crop carnations are appearing daily, and the excellent condition of the plants in the local green-houses is causing much comment.

NOTES.

We regret to announce the death of John Bubach, of Brooklyn, N. Y., which occurred Saturday, August 28. Mr. Bubach was very well liked by the trade, and at the time of his death was western road agent for the McCallum Company, having been connected with Schloss Bros., New York, some time ago.

The McCallum Company have added a basket manufacturing department to their growing florists' supply business, with John Schuler in charge, who has catered to the best retail trade in the same capacity until August. E. J. McCallum is on a business trip to Cleveland.

Henry Wiggins promises some great surprises when he opens his new retail store on one of our leading avenues this fall. "Just wait until I show you some new ideas", says Wig. We'll wait!

Carl Zilinski has opened a retail flower store in Montooth borough, at the terminus of the Beltzhoover car line, having operated a range of green-houses for a number of years.

Mrs. E. A. Williams' store is again in good shape, after a long interruption to business, caused by raising the flood level throughout the downtown district.

FUNERAL WORK ONLY OUTLET FOR STOCK.

The warm weather the past week materially increased the supply of stock, and outside of funeral work there was but little doing. A frost severe enough to kill outside stock is about the only remedy to force business. There are some good asters now coming in, prices ranging from two to three cents. Carnations are also arriving but the stock looks poor. All kinds of roses and lilies are plentiful, American Beauty and Mrs. Charles Russell being in fair demand.

NOTES.

Five wholesalers journeyed to Kirkwood, September 1, to attend by request the growers' meeting. The feature of this meeting was how the wholesaler stood on the early closing question. After a debate the wholesalers concluded to close every evening at six o'clock after September 15, but positively agreed to keep closed Sunday.

John Steidle, of Olivette, who has heretofore shipped his stock to a prominent retailer, is now consigning his entire cut in roses and carnations to H. G. Berning. John is a first class grower and his stock will be welcomed by the florists in general.

W. A. Seeger, Jr., president of the Mullanphy Florists Co., and Miss Beulah Kirk Radford, of Chattanooga, Tenn., were married August 31. Congratulations are in order.

J. E. Schaeffer, formerly head designer for Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, has now accepted a position with the Mullanphy Florists, at their downtown store.

The florists and nurserymen's union had beautifully designed floats in the Labor day parade. Grimm & Gorly and the Mullanphy Florists were also represented.

Geo. H. Angermueller has already begun his holiday campaign in supplies. He expects a full line in all novelties for fall and holiday trade.

H. G. Berning had a fine supply in fancy asters last week. Large quantities of roses are coming in and are sold in lots in order to move.

Vincent Gorly and wife have returned from the coast just in time to receive their handsome new delivery car.

William Grey, formerly with the Mullanphy Florists, is now with Patrick Larkin, of Kansas City.

Mrs. Rosie Schoenle, of the Schoenle Floral Co., has remodeled and handsomely decorated her store.

Alex Siegel will return this week and will have no difficulty in starting his bargain sales.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has a fine large stock of fancy wooden easels.

J. Young & Sons have started to build their greenhouses on Olive Road.

Tom Carr at the Union market reports trade as picking up.

Miss Doussart, of East St. Louis, reports trade good. W. F.

Oklahoma City.

Business has fallen off considerably within the last week, there being little doing in any class of work.

In the Labor day parade put on here, there was but one decorated float; this was done in natural flowers and was the work of The Stiles Co.

Judging from the appearance of some of the asters that are reaching here from Chicago, the crop must be below its usual standard of quality this year.

September 1 rounded out the first year's business of Furrow & Co. as retailers in this city. Their success has been beyond all expectations and they look for still greater business during the year to come.

Mrs. Eager, of the firm of Furrow & Co., returned September 4, from a six weeks' vacation spent in the north. Mrs. Eager spent some time in Chicago and called upon many of the wholesale and retail dealers while there.

Visitors: A. Smith, of the Interstate Rustic Company, Wichita Falls, Tex.; A. A. Anderson, representing Cordley & Hayes, New York; Mrs. T. S. Hillyer, Austin, Tex., on her way home from the S. A. F. convention, accompanied by her daughter.

SHORT STOCK HARD TO MOVE.

Business is steady and better than it was, but as yet is not strong enough to take up all receipts. The better and longer grades of blooms sell fairly well, but the short ones crowd up. Asters continue in a very heavy supply and include many excellent offerings. Gladioli receipts are large and more America are arriving than for the past few weeks. In roses, good blooms in all reasonable varieties may be had in quantities. Easter lilies and rubrums are plentiful. Some fine dahlias are coming into the market. Other offerings include carnations and cosmos. The supply of greens is sufficient to take care of all present needs.

NOTES.

C. J. Ohmer and wife and Master Jim Ohmer have returned to this city after motoring through Ohio.

The installation of the county recorder and county treasurer on Labor day used many flowers.

Max Rudolph has the big Alms & Doepke Company fall opening decoration this week.

The E. G. Hill Floral Company has a number of large openings for this week.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent American Beauties.

Visitors: W. C. Laurence of Laurence Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga.; J. G. Botkin and family, Urbana, Ohio; S. Geller, representing the Geller Florist Supply Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York; George Hampton, of J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and J. T. Heidegen, Aurora, Ind. H.

Windsor, Ont., Horticultural Society.

The first annual flower show given under the auspices of the Windsor Horticultural Society, which opened September 2 in the Agricultural building was a truly remarkable exhibition, when it is taken into consideration that the majority of the exhibitors were school children who raised the flowers and vegetables displayed from penny packets of seeds, which they purchased from the horticultural society last spring, and many of the children had only clay in which to grow their plants.

In the section devoted to flowers almost every reasonable variety was to be seen. There were many tasty arrangements of cut blooms and pot plants, and many of the basket arrangements would have received an award in competition with more experienced "grown-ups." The exhibition was an artistic one, and from an educational point of view it was a splendid success, and it will doubtless be repeated next year on a much larger scale, as the interest in the initial event this year was attested by an attendance of more than 10,000 persons, many coming from Detroit.

Carter & Howe, florists, assisted the ladies of the society in arranging the attractive exhibits, taking every pains to make the affair the success it proved to be.

Winter Flowering Sweet Peas Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

Novelty Yarrawa

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long, stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., 1/4 oz., 50c.

Selma Swenson

A beautiful clear light soft pink, waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson, and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

Rose Queen

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10.00; 1/4 oz., $2.50.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Lester L. Morse will leave shortly for a two months' stay north, where he hopes to regain his health.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A. W. Schisler, of the Schisler & Kaercher Seed Co., has purchased the Blue Ribbon farm of 377 acres, located 14 miles from this city, for $60,000. It will be used by the company as an experiment station.

ONE Michigan grower writes: "It is difficult to tell now just what damage has been done but we have been hurt by flood, rust and frost and we look for the shortest crop of beans in our history as growers."

VISITED CHICAGO: Fred B. King, of Mandeville, King & Co., Rochester, N. Y., returning from the Pacific coast, with wife and family; G. C. Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; George H. Dicks, representing Cooper, Taber & Co., London, Eng.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The auction sale of the bankrupt stock of the Johnson Seed Co., under the direction of the receiver, James O'Brien, was held August 24. The appraisal was something over $12,000, but at the auction prices realized were very poor.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade September 8 were as follows: Timothy, $5.75 to $8.00 per 100 pounds.—Robert Newcomb, formerly with Vaughan's Seed Store, is now with the W. W. Barnard Co.—D. D. P. Roy, formerly with A. Henderson & Co., is opening an office at 168 North Michigan avenue for the sale of seeds, bulbs and plants.

Onion Set Growers Affected.

At Wheeling, near Chicago, all intercourse between the farms is prohibited because of foot and mouth disease quarantine. Some onion set growers are affected.

Onion Sets.

Warmer and generally clear weather in the Chicago district has been favorable since our last issue for getting this crop in crates and sheltered. Late gathered sets are said to be forming new shoots and indicating a disposition to start into growth.

Corn is improving. Melon seed crops have been hurt by cold.

Cold Weather and the Crops.

The Produce News of September 4 says that at Petoskey, Mich., Louis Darling lost 400 acres of seed beans, while Frank Grueller & Sons lost heavily. Cadillac, Mich., reports white beans, corn and pickles wiped out, potatoes badly hurt. At Ludington on the lake the losses were not so heavy, 75 per cent of beans cut down. Green Bay, Wis., reports the coldest August day since 1887. Potatoes generally damaged in northern Michigan and northern Wisconsin. Ice formed at La-Crosse, Wis., with lowest August temperature, 35 degrees.

Bean Damage in Michigan.

RAIN MORE HARMFUL THAN FROST.

Jackson, September 1.—"From reports that we get from the northern part of the state," writes S. M. Isbell & Co., "there has been some damage done by frosts, the most damage having been done by the extremely wet weather which induced blight and anthracnose. Further south on the sandy lands the damage has not been so bad. One dealer who made an extensive trip in his automobile, phones us that he thought in some places the light frosts were a benefit rather than a damage, as the extremely wet weather had made an excessive growth of vines, and that by killing off the few top runners and leaves the sun would be able to penetrate and cure what beans there were. Here in the immediate vicinity of Jackson, there has been no damage done by the frosts. We look for a 50 per cent crop of garden beans, perhaps a little better. If we should get real good weather, it may exceed this somewhat."

Alpena, September 1.—Rogers Bros. report as follows: "Frost at least in one of our districts in southern Michigan does not seem to have done much damage. We do not think that our crops have been injured by frost to any extent but they have been damaged considerably by the extreme wet weather."

Saginaw, September 6.—The firm of W. H. Grenell reports as follows: "Some farmers report a better crop than others, and some a total loss. We are having wet weather at present, which is of course not encouraging, and should it continue, the bean crop will suffer considerably more."

Holland Seed Crops.

Sluis Brothers, of Enkhuizen, advise that owing to the high prices of foodstuffs contracting for biennial seed crops was extremely difficult the past season and will be still more so for 1916. The weather conditions also during the past season have been very unfavorable so that the general outlook in vegetable seeds is far from promising.

In flower seeds the early ripening stocks were harvested in fair quantity and of good quality with few exceptions. The later ripening stocks will afford smaller yield, owing to unfavorable conditions during the harvesting period.

New York Seed Trade.

The MacNiff Horticultural Company will soon start their auctions, announcement of which will be found elsewhere in this issue. In the mean time their counter trade in seeds, bulbs and plants is constantly increasing.

John S. Nicholas, the Grand Central florist and seedsman, has recently received a large shipment of Holland bulbs. Mr. Nicholas is encouraged by the success of his seed department.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. have recently exhibited a collection of fine blooms of the best asters. In their show windows bulbs in variety are featured.

John Wilk, who has a seed store on 33rd street near the Pennsylvania station, says he is well pleased with the outlook for fall business.

At the office of the H. Frank Darrow Co. it was recently stated that letters from Belgium advise them that azaleas will be shipped.

The Yokohama Nursery Co. has received from Japan shipments of callas, freesias and formosum lily bulbs.

J. M. Thorburn & Co. have a very fine exhibit of bulbs. A. F. F.

Rice on the Bean Crop.

Cambridge, N. Y.—The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. writes as follows September 6: "The bean situation is most unsatisfactory and we fear that dwarf wax beans are in as bad condition as we ever saw them at this season of the year and the tender podded green dwarf sorts are also practically gone, while the later and hardier varieties are hanging in the balance and will require good weather all through this month to mature and save them. In the first place, beans were late in being planted this year. The wet, cold weather not only made it impossible to plant at the regular time, but delayed their growth throughout the season. Many fields it was impossible to cultivate owing to the continued rains and these conditions finally brought about a condition of blight, of rot and of rust and finally many fields were caught by frost, so that it seems as though about everything has happened that could happen. Taking it altogether on dwarf wax and dwarf green pod beans we do not remember more than two or three years when the outlook at this season of the year has been so bad as it is now in all the history of our business."

Imports.

During the week ending September 4 imports were received at New York as follows:

John Wilk, 36 bags vegetable manure (Hull, Eng.); 2 cases bulbs (Marseilles, France).

Vandegrift & Co., 16 cases peat moss, 129 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).

Stumpp & Walter Co., 60 cases bulbs (Marseilles, France).

W. E. Marshall & Co., 94 cases bulbs (Marseilles, France).

C. W. Wood, 42 cases bulbs (Marseilles, France).

To order, 7,416 cases bulbs, 1,158 barrels seeds, 641 barrels peat moss.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

ROBERT PYLE, of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., passed through Chicago September 3, returning from the west.

BOSKOOP, HOLLAND.—W. B. Van Eyk, for the past nine years United States and Canadian representative of G. W. Van Gelderen, has entered the reorganizing concern as a partner, the firm to be known as Van Gelderen & Co.

Stand Under Thirty Thousand Dollar Tree.

Thirty members of the American Pomological Society, touring the orange groves of southern California while enroute to Berkeley for their annual vacation, made Whittier their mecca, with the famous $30,000 avocado tree on the H. J. Woodvard ranch as their principal objective.

Re-establishing Ruined Vineyards.

Two hundred thousand acres of vineyards planted with European vines, it is estimated, have been destroyed in California by phylloxera since its introduction into this country. Except in the case of vineyards which can be flooded cheaply and the insect killed in this way, the only means of re-establishing these vineyards is to grow the European varieties on native stocks that are resistant to phylloxera.

To assist grape growers to do this, the United States department of agriculture has just published Bulletin No. 209, "Testing Grape Varieties in the Vinifera Regions of the United States," which records the results of investigations carried on at a number of experiment vineyards in the years between 1909 and 1913. The chief feature of this bulletin is a series of extensive tables showing the behavior of the important European varieties of grapes when grown on their own roots and also when grafted on the various stock varieties whose roots are resistant to phylloxera.

New French Roses.

Mme. Raymond Poincare, hybrid tea (Prince de Bulgarie x Mme. Melanie Soupert).—This rose received the gold medal at LaBagatelle for the best new rose of French origin. It is a strong grower, free blooming and has good strong stems. The bud is well shaped and opens well. The flower is well-shaped, double, of pinkish yellow color tinted with salmon.

Mme. Marcel Delanney, hybrid tea.—The flower is very double with large broad petals; color that of LaFrance, with a fine edge of bright pink. The flower is carried on a stiff stem with few thorns; foliage a fine green. Free blooming. Received the gold medal at LaBagatelle for the best new foreign rose.

Enticelante, hybrid tea (Gruss an Teplitz).—A fine bedding rose; large, free blooming; robust bush of great vigor. The flower is elongated and double, of a velvety crimson red color.

Candeur Lyonnaise, hybrid remontant (issue of Frau Karl Druschki).—Hardy, vigorous, branching; foliage dark green; thorns few; fine oval bud on stiff stem. The flower is very large, of a fine pure white, sometimes lightly tinted with pale sulphur yellow. It retains the best qualities of Frau Karl Druschki, but is more double and much larger, and opens fully without showing stamens and pistils.

Mme. Bardou Job, remontant (issue of Prince de Bulgarie).—Strong plant, with bright green foliage; buds borne on strong stems, mostly solitary. The color is chrome, canary or lemon yellow and flowers large, satiny and double.

Gustave Bienvetu, Wichuriana.—Resembles Hiawatha, semi-double; color intense crimson red; flowers numerous, in clusters.

Mlle. Louise Crette.—Very similar to Candeur Lyonnaise.

Mme. Royet, multiflora (issue of Climbing Rambler and an unnamed sort).—Retains of the latter great freedom of bloom, but much larger and deeper colored flowers. Plant vigorous and branching, and should stand in the front rank of climbing roses.

Ranuncule, polyantha of M. Barbier.—Foliage shining green, continuous and free flowering in clusters of 15 to 50 blooms; flowers of medium size, double in form of a ranunculus; color a very pretty brilliant salmon rose, very different from other sorts; good plant for beds, groups or borders.

Paul Noel (Wuchuriana x M. Tiller).—Broad shining foliage; flowers in clusters of two to five, double, shrimp pink, shaded sulphur yellow; pretty, upright bud; early and long flowering.

Mme. Pierre de Bouchaud, hybrid tea (Marquise de Ganay x Liberty).—

Vigorous shrub with erect branches and fine foliage; flowers cup-shaped, double, medium in size. Color varies from coppery carmine to brick rose, resembling the bignonia; reverse, deep bluish carmine.

Lucien Chauve, hybrid tea (Mme. Abel Chatenay x Pie X).—Flesh pink, shaded to light creamy pink, shining center. The flowers are very large and regular, produced in profusion till November. Excellent for forcing or bedding. Has retained all the good qualities of Mme. Chatenay.

Lady Dunleath, hybrid tea.—Flower ivory white, shaded with yolk of egg yellow; fine form, very fragrant; bud long and pointed; stem long and stiff; vigorous, always in bloom, superb.

Mme. Colette Martinet, hybrid tea.—Continues to prove itself a superb variety; most vigorous and free blooming, and reminding one of the William Allen Richardson by the brilliant coloring of its flowers.

Asters Under Glass.

As before reported in these columns, we have made quite an effort for several years to produce high grade asters under glass in the summer months. For this purpose we use several plant houses that lack head-room for cucumbers or tomatoes, houses that would otherwise stand idle. Asters have so many enemies here out-doors that it is almost useless to try to grow them for cut flower purposes outside. The modern demand is for a perfect, clean, clear colored flower on a long stem, such as it is hard to produce exposed to every wind and weather and bug that comes along. Recently we have noticed that the striped melon bugs have taken a liking to the expanding blossoms and they attack them by the thousands, making sorry looking rags out of the finest blossoms. Inside we have had little trouble. Red spider is controlled by syringing with the hose; we aim to give the plants a good undercut once a week; thrips are checked by spraying with "Black Leaf 40", while occasional cutworms, caterpillars and bugs are hand-picked. We have grown a glorious crop of flowers this season, the best we ever raised—in fact the crop is a revelation to ourselves, proving that there are possibilities in asters yet unexploited. Our asters are so fine that many believe they are chrysanthemums. As regards varieties, we never used the Queen of Market strain; we cannot get the houses in time for them. For the early crop, from August 15 on, we use Early Non-Lateral Branching White and Shell Pink; to follow these, Imperial White and Shell Pink; next, Giant Purity and Giant Daybreak. For late, Simplex Late-branching in white and shell pink. We have lost money in purple and lavender asters and have quit them entirely. Violet King is a grand aster under glass, but the color is not popular. We do not like the Victoria class; they are too formal, while the Comets or ostrich plumes are too hard to handle. Our seeds are American-grown and it is a great pleasure to find such a superior article, American-made. In fact, the above strains leave nothing to be desired. These flowers are so beautiful they sell themselves—each shipment means a call for more. Our success with asters is not a mushroom-growth; no overnight lucky stumble, but the result of years of patient work.

This region is a limestone country; the type of soil is rather heavy and bakes hard after being moistened; these conditions are unfavorable to asters. What they need is a loose soil full of humus. We have had our best results by using spent hotbeds, throwing out ground, manure and all in the fall and using this for the aster beds next summer. Thus this soil is about one half well decayed horse manure and one-half garden loam. Again the plants have done better on benches with four inches of soil than in deep solid beds. Spaced 9x9 inches we have, by pinching the crown buds, from 6 to 10 fine blossoms and often a lot of short ones later on. After the plants are well started on the benches, we dust them freely with hydrated lime, which is then washed into the soil by a copious watering. This is repeated several times and induces a strong, healthy growth. When the buds appear we top-dress lightly with a mixture of equal parts pulverized chicken manure and acid phosphate, which is all the extra feeding they get. We generally manage to care for the asters during rainy spells, thus giving all garden hands a chance to put in full time. This season, owing to the endless showers, we were able to disbud all our asters, same as is practiced by carnation men, which no doubt accounts for the magnificent flowers grown. Finally, as regards returns, we find the receipts about the same as for any good greenhouse crop in the winter months, with no charge for heat. Asters flourish under frequent syringing and showering in hot weather, and this detail of culture under glass needs close attention. On the other hand, rust is easily induced by wet foliage over night or during rainy weather. In general, the old established greenhouse rules apply.

"Market Gardening."

A new book on "Market Gardening," by F. L. Yeaw, manager of the Oasis Farm & Orchard Co., Roswell, N. M. and formerly professor of market gardening at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, has just been issued, containing 102 pages, 5x7, with 36 illustrations. It is an elementary text book and a practical, reliable and handy guide for all growers of vegetables, its purpose being to furnish in condensed form, information as to the methods and best practices of growing the commoner varieties of vegetables, 23 in number. The contents include: "Location for the Market Garden," "Cultivation," "Fertilizers," "Hot Beds," "Seeds and Seed Sowing," "Transplanting," "Irrigation," "Vegetable Gardens," "Storing and Packing," "Crops." The book is now ready bound in cloth, and can be obtained at THE AMERICAN FLORIST office, price 75 cents.

"A BIRD IN THE HAND"

You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several Azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the Azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock when there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS

For example. We offer:

- Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches.....at $25.00 the 100
 - Otaksa, with 5 and 6 branches..... at 20.00 the 100
 - Otaksa, with 4 branches.....at 15.00 the 100
 - French Novelties, all the best ones, at 5.00 the 100
- addition for the same sizes.

They are all in six inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage, and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next Spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

TRADE SHOWS SOME IMPROVEMENT.

Trade during the past week has shown some improvement with the retail shops, there being plenty of funeral work and the orders quite evenly divided. There was plenty of stock, such as it was, and the retailers had a chance to make a little profit. Roses are still poor in quality, and while a few chrysanthemums are arriving, there is little demand for them as some of the local asters are superior to them in quality and can be had at half the price. Some extra fine Easter lilies are arriving and there is a good demand for them. Cosmos is seen on the market but is not plentiful enough to be considered a factor.

NOTES.

Everybody that attended had a splendid time at the annual crab feast given by Ed. Schmidt at Fred H. Kramer's conservatory. As is always the case, there were plenty of good eats, good music and local talent assisted by performers from the theaters.

G. Supper, salesman for George C. Shaffer, is enjoying his vacation, and is in training trying to reduce his weight. G. C. D.

Providence, R. I.

BUSINESS CONTINUES QUIET.

Asters are now coming in in large quantities and are extra good, while business is very quiet with only an occasional busy day of funeral work. Gladioli are fine and are selling very low on the market. It seems as if every one of the growers stocked up heavily on this bulb this year and on account of the rainy weather we have had, they have been wonderful in every way, both for size and quality. Roses are shortening up now and whites are very scarce, just when the florist needs them, as this month has had many calls for them.

NOTES.

The Carmicheal Nurseries are flooding the local market with gladioli, a surplus of fine varieties. They also ran a large sale in one of the local department stores September 4, and disposed of a large quantity in this way.

Henry A. Taylor, of Macnair's force, is on his vacation, spending the time at Oak Bluff, Mass., and different parts of the state.

S. H. Moore, New Haven, Conn., was a visitor to Providence over Saturday, taking in all the points of interest.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., is shipping some extra fine ivy plants to some of the local florists.

It is reported that Hoffman Bros., of this city and Atlantic City, will open a new store some time soon.

Macnair received a large shipment of tropical plants from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., this week.

J. F. Wood reports business good, with several large funeral orders for this week. H. A. T.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

DEMAND IN GENERAL IS SATISFACTORY.

Business has been good. Funeral work has been most plentiful, and a few fall weddings have moved a quantity of stock. Roses have increased considerably in supply, and are improving in quality. American Beauties are showing a decided improvement. Asters are in the prime of condition, and are almost rivaling the chrysanthemums in size and popularity. They bring $2 to $3 per hundred. Roses bring from $3 to $8 per hundred. Gladioli, especially America, are still holding their own.

NOTES.

Some extra fine October Frost chrysanthemums are on display in the show

At present large shipments of fine quality roses, lily of the valley, Liliun giganteum and gladioli are being made. The principal varieties of roses grown at this place are American Beauties, Sunburst, Killarney, pink and white, Ward, Taft and Francis Scott Key.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 additional for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, plugged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS

The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.

Albany, N. Y.

Members of the local florists' club held their September meeting at the establishment of Fred A. Danker, 744 Central avenue. Mr. Danker, as treasurer of the clambake held at Newtonville, August 21, reported receipts, $274.75; expenditures, $202.07; balance on hand, $72.68. He turned the money over to the secretary to be added to the club's treasury. A prize of a $5 gold piece, offered by Mr. Danker to the person selling the most tickets for the clambake, was given to Fred Henkes, formerly president of the club, who was responsible for the sale of 99 tickets. Oscar Middlebrook of Fourth avenue, an employe of the city park department, was elected a member of the club by acclamation.

The meeting adjourned early to enjoy refreshments provided by Host Danker and a social hour. As the members left the Danker place they stopped to admire a handsome red, white and blue flash electric sign that Mr. Danker has erected at the entrance to his place on Central avenue, which is the main highway to Schenectady and traveled by hundreds of interurban trolleys and automobiles. A row of hydrangeas, leading from the street to the greenhouses, was also in full bloom on the evening of the meeting and proved a great attraction. The shrubs were remarkable for their size and the profusion, beauty and girth of the blossoms on them. R. D.

Frank Abrams has finished planting his carnation range and his stock looks very fine. Mr. Abrams has a large range, about 125,000 square feet, entirely devoted to carnations. His stock is considered among the best that reaches the New York market.

Charles Fish, formerly in partnership with H. F. Lecluse, has gone into carnation growing on his own account, having erected a house 40 x 200 feet, which is now planted with good stock.

John K. Vanderveer, Jr., who last year erected a large carnation house, starting as a grower, has added another house.

H. L. Lecluse has also a large carnation range and his stock looks fine. A. F. F.

Bayshore, N. Y.

H. L. Patthey has a fine range of 30,000 or more square feet of glass, and grows many carnations. He also grows a variety of other stock. At the time of our visit, September 2, his cannas, of which he had a fine lot, were a very attractive feature. Of these, Wyoming, Princess Weid and others were noteworthy. He has shipped many asters and has a variety of other outdoor stock. Mr. Patthey has been in business at Bayshore for Cemetery Greenhouse Work.

Fall Preparations.

Looking ahead before the outdoor season closes, there is a busy time in store for the gardeners connected with these establishments. Beginning with the first week of September, the propagating houses, which have been idle during the summer season, should be made ready to carry on the propagation of the many plants necessary to stock up for next season's business, and all the available cuttings should be placed in the propagating beds without any delay; a good supply of healthy young plants is far better than carrying over lifted, old stock plants.

The first work to be done is to get the propagating house in good working order, and to do this all the old material should be cleaned out, both in the benches and underneath, and do not let there be any corners of the house filled with waste material to start decay and fungus. After the benches have been cleaned out, bring a good pressure of water to bear on them, thoroughly washing out every corner and crack, after which give the insides a good coat of fresh lime wash. A clean sharp sand, and good drainage to the propagating beds, are the next important things to provide for. The matter of drainage under the sand, so that the water will pass freely through it, and later on to allow the bottom heat to penetrate up through the bed, is of the utmost importance. Any material that is liable to decay and cause fungus should not be used; neither should the cracks between the boards be stuffed with moss or anything that will make the bench water-tight. Coarse limestone is the best material that has come under our notice for using as a drainage for the propagating bed, it being perfectly clean and free from vegetable matter. Spread a layer of the limestone evenly over the bottom of the bench and then fill in with the sand, using a clean, sharp sand, as free from clay and dirt as possible. Many times the cuttings have to remain in the sand beyond the time they are ready to come out, and it is better for them when the sand is a little coarse, than if extra fine. Fill up the benches at the start, but do not water down; then as the cuttings are made ready, prepare and water parts of the sand to receive them, allowing the rest of the bed to remain dry until such a time as it is needed for use.

When starting in to make the cuttings, it is a good plan to do a little figuring as regards the different kinds of plants needed, and commence the propagating with those that are most tender and of which large numbers are required. To get a good start on these will save a lot of scurrying around at the approach of early frosts. Alternantheras, being one of the most largely used plants for cemetery work, large numbers of them are required and it is well to give them first attention. As a rule it has been our practice to propagate these plants outside in frames during the summer, but this season, owing to so much rain and cool weather, outside propagation was a failure and the inside propagating beds will have to be used. As quickly as the alternantheras are rooted, pot them up and get them moving in the soil, so as to be well established before the dark, cold weather begins. Should the weather conditions prevent enough cuttings of these plants being rooted, some of the old plants can be taken up, sheared off a little, and potted up, but do not allow them to lay around with the roots out of soil for any length of time or they will be ruined. When allotting a place for the winter quarters of the alternanthera, remember they need a high temperature with full light and held a little to the dry side.

Geraniums, the most popular of all bedding plants, can be propagated now so as to have a good stock well in hand early enough to save carrying over large numbers of old stock plants. Growers, who have a good stock of plants in the field, are now putting in the first batch of cuttings, and when this first lot can be finished up by September 15, the field plants will produce another batch of cuttings in time to be taken off before severe frost cuts them down. The first lot of cuttings are very succulent and have to be handled very carefully to be able to obtain a successful stand of cuttings. Plenty of light and air and water sparingly should be the rule with these early cuttings of field grown geraniums. Run the cuttings in the sand in the usual manner, pressing the sand firmly around the cutting, water them in, then allow the sand to stand until it shows signs of being very dry before giving any more water. Do not allow the cuttings to remain in the sand longer than is necessary after they become rooted; they easily become hard in the stem and the roots waxy, from which condition they take considerable time to grow out of.

Coleuses, achyranthes, heliotropes, salvias, fuchsias, pileas, ageratums, double lobelias and sweet alyssums are other plants in line for propagating; these plants root easily and need to be shifted along as quickly as they become ready.

Cuttings made from the runners of the English ivy can now be put in. The best means of propagating these is to put the cuttings in shallow flats filled half full of fine soil, then fill up the other half with clean sand. After the flats are filled with cuttings, they can be set along the walks of the greenhouse in the shade, and as they become rooted they can be potted up and moved out to the light.

Seed of cinerarias, primulas and calceolarias for spring sales can be sown now. It must be remembered these seed are very small and should be covered lightly. It is best to cover the seed flats with glass to start out with, removing it a little while each day to drain off, and as soon as the seedlings appear remove the glass entirely, and as quickly as the young seedlings can be handled safely, they should be transplanted and when well established in these second flats, they can be potted up. From the very start of their existence these plants are troubled by green fly, and the only way to keep them in check is to fumigate regularly. Attend to the lifting and potting of the field grown hydrangeas. They need a good live soil that does not contain an abundance of fresh manure. Plenty of drainage is also essential, and after potting, stand in a shady place until root action commences, after which they should be given full light and plenty of air. Ferns, palms, dracenas and other vase plants now held outside in frames, should be moved into the greenhouse within the next week or ten days. Before bringing in the plants that have been plunged, examine them to make sure the drainage is not stopped up to cause them to waterlog. Sash should be in readiness to cover frames of echeverias and other stock plants that cannot be accommodated inside before the time frosts are due.

August sown pansies are now ready for transplanting in the cold frames for their winter quarters. Make up the soil into a fine pliable condition, but firm well down before transplanting so that the frost will not crumble it up. Set the plants about four inches apart, taking extra pains to see that the roots are loosened out and not jammed down into the holes. Water as the plants need it and keep clean of weeds. Before it is too late gather the seed of Begonia luminosa or any other plant that seed is wanted from.

Bible and Spray.

The spray as shown here is a trifle too large and covers the book underneath to such an extent that its shape is not readily seen, so that it can not be determined at a glance just what design it is. As can be seen from the accompanying illustration, the piece has been nicely handled and the fault in its appearance is likely due, in a great part, to the work of the camera, whose light and shade work is often very deceptive.

The Hydrangea in Florists' Work

In the late summer, just before the autumn days, that grand shrub, the hardy, white Hydrangea paniculata, blossoms out in all its glory. As an ornament for the lawn, it stands ahead of all its rivals, with its great nodding heads of snowy white flowers, which gradually take on the hues of autumn in keeping with the changing foliage of all outdoor life.

As a cut flower it has great value. We know of no other flower which gives so much for so little. At this time when the cut-flower business is at its lowest ebb, with practically only the demand for funeral flowers to keep it going, there come days of activity that keeps the force moving to get the orders out. It is then that the hydrangea is the great factor. All kinds of design work can be blocked out and completely covered with the broken heads, which when nicely stemmed, present a smooth or rounded surface that is an excellent background for almost any kind of embellishment. Take a pillow for example. Many florists stem the flowers on long sticks or wires and stand them loosely over a surface of green. This will look well for a time, but soon wilts and then looks anything but satisfactory. Rather cover the surface of pillow mossed fairly full and high with the hydrangea, leaving a crescent shaped space at each side of the center running from the top to the bottom corner; fill this rather full with white roses, letting a few fall, tassel like, from each corner, then finish down the center with a few small lavender asters and Sweetheart roses. Some small spray flowers, such as feverfew, white sweet peas or achillea around the edge, makes a finish to a very pretty piece.

All kinds of color variations are possible with the hydrangea, which, while it is but the background or foundation, plays a most important part in the construction. For the wreath or other standing design it is just as useful. Where a number of orders are to be gotten out, this foundation work can all be done the day before, when it will keep fresh and bright, and be ready for the embellishing work with the more perishable flowers.

Every florist knows the value of the hydrangea in all kinds of decorative work—large vases with green oak foliage and long sprays of privet are handsome in themselves, or make very showy combinations with the various shades of the gladiolus. When they change into their beautiful shades of bronzy red, pink and green in the early fall, they can be made to hold for a long time if properly cured, which is done by cutting them, when the flowers have come to the full and are well colored. They are gathered, tied in bunches of about one dozen sprays, and hung up in a dry, cool shed or cellar, where there is not too much draft. They will then keep for a long time in the dwelling and make up nicely with plumes and grasses for tops of closets and wall baskets for decorating other parts of the dwelling or store.

Dahlias in the Show Windows.

For brilliancy of coloring there is no flower that exceeds the dahlia; there is also great variety of form—the single, the show type, the cactus and the pompons are as varied as if they belonged to separate species. With all they are the lowest priced flower on the market, and are obtainable in the largest quantities. Coming as they do at the beginning of the season, when it is desirable to put up a good front, so that early buying may be encouraged, their sale should be pushed with vigor, largely by means of a large stock, well displayed. No store can afford to be without them, the windows especially being kept well decorated.

If the windows are large and roomy a supply of ferns will make a good

GALAX PILLOW WITH CLUSTER.

By John C. Gracey, Philadelphia, Pa.

background. Wicker vases in various shapes with zinc linings, tastefully filled in self or harmonizing colors, will be sufficient. Handle baskets in medium sizes, filled with one variety and tied with ribbons all alike in tone, give a blaze of color. One or perhaps two large baskets with high handles, if well filled to present a striking example of the florist's art will get more than a passing glance, and in the window are often as effective as a more elaborate display. It will make a hit to fill a lot of cut-flower boxes with choice flowers in good measure, for a week-end sale. People are often induced to buy something that looks like a bargain and is ready to take right along.

When the autumn leaves begin to color up, they work in nicely with dahlias. A window of this character, before most people know they have reached the market, makes them stop and look. Small baskets, a trifle larger than the popular tumblers, filled and suspended from the top of the window in varying distances producing a sort of shower effect are effective, but there must be a number of them, so that they are about one foot to fifteen inches apart each way, and seem to completely fill the decorative space.

Slender glass vases that will hold about six choice flowers, tied with a bow of ribbon the color of the flower, make a very pretty window. If the vase and flowers are reasonably priced a number of sales will likely result. For a few days an exhibit of all the best varieties, about a dozen of a kind in vases, all named, is sure to attract attention and orders may be taken for the tubers for next season.

The large flowered white and smaller pompons make a very pretty and effective wreath, and made-up work of this character, with examples of decorated magnolia wreaths, in different colors, make an effective window. As the time comes for the debutante sprays or bunches of the choicer blooms, loosely arranged and tied with ribbons, or new style baskets filled with the single varieties or other choice sorts, and well ribbioned, gives a unique effect. Neatly printed cards, calling attention to the various displays, are well worth while. Passers by will often be attracted by the cards and stop to read them and then look at the flowers or arrangements they describe.

The windows should be in the decorator's mind all the time and the various changes arranged for ahead, there will then be some system to the work that will carry it along to success without the confusion so often seen.

National Association of Gardeners.

The summer meeting of the National Association of Gardeners was held in the Civic Center Auditorium, San Francisco, Calif., August 18, 1915. In the absence of President John W. Everitt, of New York, Vice-President William S. Rennie, of Ross, Calif., presided. Although the meeting was not as largely attended as some of the mid-summer meetings have been in the east, what was lacking in numbers was fully offset by the general interest and enthusiasm manifested by those present in the proceedings of the meeting.

Mr. Rennie in welcoming the visiting members to California, expressed his regrets at the inability of the president of the association to be on hand. He presented a message to the meeting from the president, however, in which the latter stated in part:

"Whether we come from the east, the west, the north or the south, as professional gardeners our aim should be to produce a broader development for ornamental horticulture which cannot fail to bring greater recognition to our profession, and which will ultimately result in increasing benefits to those in it. A strong national association of the gardeners, heartily supported by those who follow the profession, I believe, could be made most powerful and influential in its work for the good of the profession, although it may at times prove disappointing to individuals seeking direct benefits from it. It is, as you are aware, the policy of our association to develop along lines where it will serve its members and aid those striving to advance and better themselves in their calling. We have committees at work endeavoring to thrash out the problems with which an organization like ours is confronted in its development stage, and these committees, and also your officers, at all times court and welcome suggestions from members which may be valuable in aiding the progress of the organization."

Following the reading of the president's message Vice-President Rennie called on the different members present for a few remarks and in responding, Robert Williamson of Greenwich, Conn., said:

"I am indeed glad to be here to meet the gardeners of the west. I am somewhat disappointed that there are not more of our eastern members present, as we expected to have a large body with us, but, of course, we are rather young as an organization, and on account of the distance being so great, we must make allowance for so few of us here from a distance, but personally I am glad to have taken the trip to meet with the other gardeners here."

David F. Roy, of Marion, Mass., referring to President Everitt's message, said: "I can quite understand why it is that he is not here. Men in our position, if they want to succeed, find that one of the first requisites is that they must cater to the wishes of their employers. I have been a gardener for a number of years and have often heard it stated, 'Well, you can only get so far and no further,' but I must say that I cannot always agree with that. My experience is that a man has a great deal to do with what he makes of himself; in other words, the tide will find its level. If it is in the man, he will get there."

L. P. Jenson, of St. Louis, Mo., in urging a campaign to increase the membership, remarked: "I am one of the newer members of the organization. This is the first opportunity I have had to be with this body of gardeners. I hope in the future I will be with you often. I came in as a member early this year. Previous to that time I had heard very little about our organization, and it seems to me that the gardeners throughout the country do not know enough about it. I think we need publicity. I think we ought to make a strong effort to have our members throughout the country get in new members. That is one thing that we should make a point of, and in that way in a short time we would have a strong representative body of men throughout the United States."

W. T. Lee, of San Francisco, Calif., speaking on increased membership, remarked: "It seems to me that as we develop and get more members we should have local organizations if it can be done, to affiliate with the central body in some way, so that we could meet once in a while. I understand that there are quite a number of members on the coast, so Brother Rennie tells me. I did not know that there were so many as he says there are."

A. Bischke, of Noroton, Conn., speaking on the pleasures of the trip and the future of the association, said: "I do not know how our other gardeners will feel when they find what we have seen and heard here. I know that they will greatly regret that they were not able to join our party and come here to the west. I must say that I am greatly surprised to see the strides that have been made by these great western cities; for instance, Minneapolis and Seattle. Then, take Tacoma, with its giant trees; we have to take our hats off to those trees, lakes and boulevards. We have nothing like them in the east. There may never again be an opportunity in our lifetime to see what we have seen who are here. Who would take the bother to show a single man the things that we have been shown on this trip? Every park superintendent has been anxious to show us around and let us see the best that they had. I think we should strive to start a propaganda in each city and in each community to develop our association right now. It should not be a local society. It should be a national organization. The more members we can get in, the better, and scattered all over the United States. If we could get a great number of men to work hand in hand it would be well. Our profession is a great one. What would a city like Minneapolis or New York, or any of the greater cities, be without their parks or without gardens and trees? They would be a barren waste."

Percy Ellings, of Menlo Park, Calif., secretary of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society, extended an invitation to the visiting gardeners to come to Menlo Park and be the guests of the society for a day, stating "that they had made arrangements to take the gardeners all through the principal estates down on the Peninsula, and afterwards to treat them to a good old-fashioned Spanish barbecue, which would be a novelty to the visiting gardeners."

Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, Minn., on being called on, said in the course of his remarks: "I simply want to say this, that while I am a park superintendent now, I came to that position as a gardener, and I am proud to be a gardener and always have been proud of it and always will be. There are many possibilities in our profession, so many different ways to develop that it is certainly very important that we make more effort in the future than in the past to get together and enlarge the usefulness of the National Association of Gardeners. The only way that this can be done best in my opinion is through the formation of local organizations and having them represented by delegates sent by these local organizations to the national meetings wherever they may be held. You all know that very few of the gardeners are financially situated so that they can travel clear across the continent to attend these meetings. You also know that there are very few employers that realize the value of these meetings. They really do not know, chiefly because they are not informed as to what we are trying to do; consequently, there are very few of them who are willing to pay the expense of their gardeners to attend here, although they might be willing to do so if they were properly informed of the value to the gardeners and to themselves of these meetings. The time will come when they will be willing, I believe, to help us along these lines."

Vice-President Rennie next called on Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md. In responding Mr. Vincent said: "In regard to this matter before us, I am something like the boy who made his first trip out in the country, and saw a great big something there; he did not know what it was, and he looked around and inspected it on all sides. He said, 'That is aarnation funny house, with no chimneys, doors or windows to it.' An old farmer that he met there said, 'That is no house.' 'Well, what is it?' 'A hay-stack.' The boy replied, 'I may be a greenhorn from the city, but you can't fool me that way. Hay don't come in humps like that.' I may be a little green as to what the idea of this association is, but I think that the suggestion in regard to building up the organization is an excellent one. Every man who wants his organization to go ahead ought to put a little energy into it. Now, in regard to the appointment of a number of vice-presidents, of course, you can do that, but what is the use of a large number of vice-presidents? They are likely to be simply dead timber, and instead of their stirring up membership for the society, nine times out of ten they will want more stirring up than the men that they are supposed to stir up.

"I know what a struggle it is to success. I have a baby of my own to care for, the American Dahlia Society, which has only been born within the last six or seven weeks, yet we are hustling all over this country for membership, and we are going to have it. We are going to show the world what dahlias are. You gardeners have to carry your products somewhere to show the people what you have got. You have got to entice the people to go and see them. It is only by thorough work that you can make this organization what it ought to be. It is now in its infancy, but it can and will grow, if you will only put your shoulders to the wheel and give it a little push up hill. So I believe if you push this thing, you cannot only keep up with it, but get ahead of it. It needs push all of the time. I hope if it is ever my privilege, if I live long enough to address this body again, that I will tell you something better than I have this afternoon."

Mr. Vincent was followed by some of the members from the Pacific coast, and what they had to say indicated that they were thoroughly interested in the work that could be accomplished by an organization such as the National Association of Gardeners and that they might be counted on to give their support and co-operation.

An invitation was received at this time from the American Association of Park Superintendents to join the meeting of the park superintendents to attend the illustrated lecture of Hon. Samuel E. Hill, president of the Pacific Highway Association on "Good Roads." At the suggestion of Vice-President Rennie and Mr. Wirth, the meeting adjourned to attend the lecture. It was intended to re-convene after the lecture, but owing to so many other attractions of the exposition city there was no re-convening and the meeting stood finally adjourned.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—Thos W. Head, formerly superintendent of the Plant estate, Groton, Conn., has been appointed superintendent of the J. Ogden Armour estate here. Mr. Head left for the east September 13, to bring on his family. Joseph Burgess, late superintendent, returned to England, having resigned his position for that purpose.

Ornamental Bedding at Girard College.

One of the show places in Philadelphia, Pa., of especial interest to the craft is Girard College, where the beautiful lawns and wonderful bedding surrounding its various buildings, and particularly in front of the main structure, have for a long time stood as examples of high art in ornamental gardening. It is here that the croton was first tried as a bedding plant. Up to the time of this experiment it was not known that it would stand the sun, and Mr. Gebhard Huster, the gardener at that time, about 1890, planted it with much misgiving. The result, however, was wonderful; the plants made a remarkable growth and colored up as they had never done under glass. It was not long after this before they became general favorites and standard plants in all fancy garden and lawn decorations. Edwin Lonsdale, who succeeded Mr. Huster at his death, was a great croton enthusiast and raised a number of seedlings of merit, which were disseminated by Robert Craig, Philadelphia, Pa. A brilliant red was named by Mr. Craig after Mr. Lonsdale and is to be found in every collection.

Charles W. Cox, who is now in charge, succeeding Mr. Lonsdale about three years ago, is continuing the good work of his predecessors, and the beds as laid out by him are particularly fine. The lawn in front of the main college building is about an acre in extent—it is the entrance to the grounds, and here are laid out the principal flower beds. At present the tulips which have been gay with their gorgeous colorings, are being removed and pansies, transplanted in full flower, have taken their place, which in about two weeks will give way to the permanent summer planting of crotons, pandanus, dracenas, coleus, etc. The two large center beds, each 31 feet in diameter, are filled with crotons, and when finished are raised to about six feet in the center, with a large Phoenix dactylifera rising from a mound of Baron Rothschild. This is surrounded by four varieties, Queen Victoria, Robert Craig, Faciatus and Edwin Lonsdale in separate blocks, divided on the outer edge by a wedge or triangle of Abutilon Savitzii. In the center of each of these triangles is a plant of Phoenix Roebelenii. The border is acalpa and an outer row of Achyranthes Lindenii.

The crotons, numbering about 1,500 one and two year old plants, are used in these two beds and are hardened off before being planted out, when they go constantly forward. The beds are not especially prepared or fertilized, the rains through the winter covering of manure over the tulips being sufficient to enrich the soil. In the fall, when the plants are lifted, the two year old stock is discarded and the smaller plants kept over for stock and next year's planting.

There are smaller beds at intervals about the borders of the lawn which are also filled with crotons, one variety to a bed, generally with a center plant of Pandanus Veitchii or dracena bordered with Abutilon Savitzii and alternanthera or Achyranthes Lindenii. These beds are very effective. The long center ribbon beds, 75 feet long by eight in width, which border the center walk to the main building, are filled with General Dryden geraniums and bordered with Achyranthes Lindenii. These ribbon beds are divided in the center by a circular bed about 12 feet in diameter filled with Pandanus Veitchii and bordered with achyranthes. These make very striking and effective centers. Geraniums are used in other parts of the grounds in borders, etc., the varieties found being S. A. Nutt, Marquis de Castellane, White Swan, and Mountain of Snow variegated. Beds are planted with Ficus elastica and F. pandurata, both of which are very striking in their robust foliage.

Two large sub-tropical beds for a half shady place, made up of a general collection of all kinds of foliage plants, that when finished Mr. Cox describes as a tropical jungle, is, he considers, one of the most attractive spots in the gardens. Foliage and flowering begonias with Dracena Sanderiana, make a show on the outer edge. Two large cactus beds with echeverias always find many admirers and are sure of a place every season. Another bed that always looks well in a shady place is of Aucuba japonica with acalpa border.

Evergreen border beds, to shield walls or rear places, when not set too closely together so that plants for summer bloom may be placed between for color effect, are very satisfactory. The evergreens are mostly broad leaved varieties, as they are more sure to stand our winters, and as much variety of color is secured as possible. Next the walk or lawn room is left for a row of geraniums and borders of achyranthes or coleus for a color line.

About May 20, which is celebrated as "Founder's day," some of the beds are planted with blue and yellow to represent the civic colors. A large number of yellow shrubby calceolaria and blue pansies are grown for the purpose, being plunged in the pots and removed later to other locations to make room for the summer bedding. Some very well budded azaleas and genistas have been kept in cold frames outside all winter and are now heavily shaded to keep them back for the "Founder's day" exercises. They have never felt fire heat and are just bursting into bloom.

A row of rambler roses in variety, will be a great sight about the first of June, they being heavily set with buds. Mr. Cox is taking a great interest in the work. The trees have been a problem, many of them being too close together. He has gradually managed by stealth and partial consent to get a goodly number of them out of the way, and by so doing greatly added to the health of the remainder and the beauty of the grounds.

Mr. Cox is of English birth; getting the fundamentals of the business in that "country of gardeners," he has added greatly to his knowledge by his American Dahlia Society.

A tremendous amount of enthusiasm is being shown in every section of the country in the American Dahlia Society, which was formed in New York in May by ex-President Vincent of the Society of American Florists and other dahlia lovers. It is the pleasure of the secretary to advise that over a hundred dahlia lovers have joined as charter members, and that there is every prospect of this number being increased to 250 before the annual meeting.

The annual meeting will be held during the first show of the organization September 24-26, at the Museum of Natural History in New York. Here will be held what is expected to be the largest and grandest dahlia show ever held in the United States. Expectations are that over $300 will be offered for competition at this show. Copies of the preliminary schedule have been issued, and may be obtained by writing to either George V. Nash, secretary of the Horticultural Society of New York, Bronx Park, or Joseph J. Lane, secretary of the American Dahlia Society, 11 West 32nd street, New York.

Among other things which are being done to promote interest in this show and make it a success, may be mentioned the fact that the executive board at its last meeting authorized the secretary to prepare 2,500 double post cards, these post cards to be sent out through the co-operation of dahlia dealers in various parts of the country to the best customers of the dahlia. These 2,500 cards have already been mailed, and great returns are looked forward to.

This card is an urgent appeal to the dahlia lover to join the American Dahlia Society, now in its infancy, and so get charter membership. All joining before September 24 become charter members. The dues are $1 for initiation, $2 for active membership, and $1 for associate membership. It is stated in this post card that it is the intention of the society to publish an information bulletin for members as soon as the events of the organization permit. As has been stated previously, President Vincent has offered to supply the dahlia blooms to any florist who will enter into the competition for the various prizes offered for dahlia shown in use for decoration.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., have offered gold, silver and bronze medals. The Society of American Florists has recognized the society, and has offered one of its medals for competition for showings of new and rare varieties of dahlias. John Young, the secretary of the Society of American Florists, will take charge of the exhibition.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, have offered $10 in prizes; Harry A. Bunyard Co., Inc., New York, $5; Stumm & Walter Co., New York, $10; Fottler, Fiske & Rawson Co., Boston, Mass., $10. The Horticultural Society of New York, in conjunction with which the dahlia society is making exhibitions, has offered $100, to be distributed as prizes. W. W. Willmore, of Denver, one of the most enthusiastic dahlia lovers in the West, has offered $25 in prize money. The Garden Magazine has offered one of its achievement medals, and prizes are promised from John Lewis Childs, Inc., and Henry A. Dreer, Inc., also W. Atlee Burpee & Company. Everything points to this being one of the most successful individual flower shows that has ever been held in this country. Intense enthusiasm is being manifested among the trade, and the amateurs are certainly doing their share to make it a successful exhibition. An attempt is being made to get together flowers from all the growers possible and to make an exhibition of one flower of each of as many varieties as possible. This, I believe, will be of very great interest to the visitors.

It is expected that guides will be on the floor of the exhibition hall to inform and help the visitors in acquainting themselves with the dahlia and various varieties. The secretary and the executive board are desirous of securing prompt and early co-operation from the trade and from amateurs in general. They will appreciate hearing from those who are willing to cooperate. As the show will be held September 24-26, prompt action is necessary.

New York Botanical Garden.

The week's celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the New York botanical garden opened September 6, with more than 100 delegates from different parts of the country in attendance. Dr. W. Gilman Thompson, president of the garden, delivered the address of welcome. He was followed by Thomas W. Whittle, who spoke for the park department. Dr. N. L. Britton, director in chief of the garden, made the final address in the nature of a historical sketch. Starting with the old Torrey botanical garden in 1888, he told of the inception and growth of the present park and garden in the past twenty years. He said in part:

"An act to provide for the establishment of such a garden, drawn by Judge Charles P. Daly and Judge Addison Brown, was introduced in the legislature March 6, 1891, and became a law by the approval of Governor Hill April 28, 1891. This act established a corporation with the name 'The New York Botanical Garden,' for the purpose of maintaining a botanical garden and museum and arboretum therein for the collection and culture of plants, flowers, etc. There were 49 incorporators, among whom were Seth Low, Charles A. Dana, Hugh J. Grant, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Morris K. Jesup, J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, D. O. Mills, William C. Schermerhorn, William G. Choate, Jesse Seligman, Samuel Sloan, Robert Maclay, Charles F. Cox and Percy R. Pyne.

"This act of incorporation authorized the commissioners of public parks to set apart 250 acres of Bronx park after a fund of not less than $250,000 should be obtained by the incorporators by subscription. The required sum was obtained from twenty-two contributors. Among the donations were gifts of $25,000 each by Columbia College, the late J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius Vanderbilt, John D. Rockefeller, D. O. Mills and Judge Addison Brown.

"The full amount was obtained by June 18, 1895, and on the last day of that month the park commissioners approved the present site in Bronx park."

The delegates loudly applauded Mr. Britton's address, and as many of them said that they would like to have copies it was decided that it be printed and presented to them before the end of the week.

Previous to the addresses, a luncheon had been served. After Dr. Britton had finished his address, an inspection of various features of the park and garden was made, including one of the conservatories, the flower garden and the zoological park. At 7 p. m. dinner was served in the Rocking Stone restaurant.

Among those who attended were: Dr. J. A. Samuels of Washington, D. C.; Dr. L. H. Harvey of Kalamazoo, Mich.; Samuel Alexander of Detroit, Mich.; Professor Mel T. Cook of Rutgers College; Alfred H. W. Povah of the University of Michigan; Oakes Ames, the orchid expert of North

Easton, Mass.; and Harvard University; Dr. A. H. Chivers of Dartmouth College; Frank S. Collins of North Eastham, Mass.; Dr. Arturo Rosquey Torralbas of Havana, Cuba; L. J. Pessin of the Georgia Botanical Society; Dr. J. Arthur Harris of the Carnegie Institute at Cold Spring, L. I.; Oliver A. Farwell of Detroit; Miss J. H. Stebbins of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. M. R. Goodhue of Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. Susan P. Nichols of Oberlin, Ohio; Professor A. F. Blakeslee of the Connecticut Agricultural College; Professor Frank D. Kern and Professor C. R. Orton of the Pennsylvania State College; Professor George F. Atkinson of Cornell University; Dr. D. T. MacDougal, Professor Alexander W. Evans, Professor R. H. Harper, Professor Caroline A. Black of the New York State Agricultural College; Professor and Mrs. A. Vincent Osmun of the Amherst Agricultural College; Dr. J. M. Greenman of the Missouri botanical garden, and Dr. Edmund W. Sinnott of Harvard University.

Many papers were read on September 7. On September 8, "salt water day", the delegates visited points of interest on Staten Island.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—An unused wing in the Livestock Exchange building will be converted into a conservatory, and flowers and shrubs will be grown under the direction of A. Jarabek, landscape gardener for the exchange company, for planting on the company's grounds next spring, with the intention of making one of the most beautiful parks in the city.

Florists' Exhibits at Minnesota State Fair.

Floricultural exhibits staged at the Minnesota State Fair this year were the best ever shown in variety of plants, arrangement of exhibits and in number of entries, and the Floricultural hall was at all times the center of an admiring throng of visitors. The state fair association awarded premiums amounting to $1,305 to professional florists and $254 to amateurs.

Merriam Park Floral Co. carried off the high award, with Minneapolis Floral Co. second and Holm & Olson third with an excellent display.

For the best collection of ferns and decorative plants the first prize was awarded to Holm & Olson, with Merriam Park Floral Co., Minneapolis Floral Co. and the Nagel Greenhouses, Minneapolis, second, third and fourth respectively.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE PICKNICKERS.

Some Employees of the Chicago Stores and Friends at J. C. Vaughan's Farm, Homewood, Ill., Sept. 12.

Possibly the only unsatisfactory feature in connection with the 1915 exhibition, was the dissatisfaction with the judging, due to the one man system, many of the exhibitors at the fair this year stating that they will not exhibit again under the same arrangement.

The Minneapolis Florists' Club was awarded a silver cup for the fine display and general arrangement of their space, which was the work of W. D. Desmond, who took charge of the display for the club. The water wheel, with the mill running and the log cabin on the hill were features of the building and was always surrounded by an admiring crowd.

Holm & Olson, St. Paul, were first in the class for decorative plants; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

In the class for table decorations, Holm & Olson were first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second, while third and fourth honors went to Boardman, of St. Paul and Oscar Amundson, Minneapolis, respectively.

Holm & Olson secured the first prize for bridal bouquets, with Minneapolis Floral Co. a close second, and both of these concerns were finishers in like positions in the class for corsages.

Minneapolis Floral Co. captured the first honors for original design and Max Kaiser of Merriam Park was second with a most excellent display.

D. W. C. Ruff, of Bald Eagle Lake, was first in both gladioli and dahlias.

Hanging baskets of foliage plants arranged for effect were a feature of the display, and many excellent arrangements were noted. In the awards Max Kaiser was first, Holm & Olson second and Minneapolis Floral Co. third. Excellent displays of blooming plants arranged in a space of 100 square feet were made and the Mer-

In the rose class, Holm & Olson were successful in wresting first honors from the Merriam Park Floral Co.

Excellent displays of dahlias were made by the Swenson Greenhouses at Wayzata and George Tong, of Long Lake, and both were entered on the prize list.

J. V. Bailey of St. Paul was superintendent and Wm. H. Bofferding of Minneapolis acted as his assistant.

GUTHRIE, OKLA.—A fall flower show will be held in October, under the auspices of the City Federation.

Cleveland Fall Show.

One of Cleveland's wealthy citizens, James W. Corrigan of the firm of Corrigan & McKinney in the iron ore business, has taken it upon himself to increase the interest of private growers in Ohio, by offering them a silver cup made by Tiffnay, New York, the actual cost of which is $500. This will be competed for in the Cleveland flower show by private growers only of Ohio and is attached to a special class of 36 chrysanthemums, two vases, six varieties. This probably will not bring out a big entry this year, but for the next few years it will be competed for very strenuously because it must be won three times before becoming the final property of the winner. The final premium list is said to contain the names of many prominent gardeners who are taking a great interest in the coming show to the extent of offering special prizes. John D. Rockefeller, also Ex-Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, are two of the best known.

Boston:

ALL STOCKS SELL SLOWLY.

During the past week business has been very quiet. The Jewish New Year took away many buyers and the trade was generally slack. Gladioli, although the supply has shortened, continues to sell slowly. Prices on these range from 50 cents to $2 per 100. Asters also are selling poorly. The quality of flowers as a whole is good, but prices are low. Roses took a drop in price, and only the white and newer varieties find a good market. Carnations are becoming more plentiful, prices on them ranging from 50 cents to $2 per 100.

NOTES.

R. W. Swett, of Saxonville, is shipping to J. M. Cohan at the Co-operative Market a fine lot of gladioli. Among the best selling varieties were noted Mrs. Frank, Pendleton, Halley, Princes, and the new red variety, War.

Frank Dolansky, of Lynn, is marketing some very fine orchids at present. He has fine flowers of oncidium, Odontoglossum crispum, O. grande, Dendrobium formosum, Cattleya labiata and cypripedium.

HORTICULTURISTS AT VAUGHAN'S NURSERIES, WESTERN SPRINGS, ILL., SEPTEMBER 8.

The annual dahlia exhibition was held at Horticultural hall, September 11-12. There was a very fine exhibit of dahlias and fruits and the show had a remarkable attendance. One of the most notable exhibits of dahlias came from J. K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, Mass.

J. K. Chandler has his new house completed except for the steamfitting. The house is planted with carnations, which are doing nicely. He has four houses planted with chrysanthemums, Chas. Razer, Dr. Enguehard and Major Bonnaffon being the main varieties.

Hoffman, Inc., has added to his delivery service a motorcycle side car. The van is painted to represent one of his flower boxes and it makes a neat and modern looking means of delivery.

Patrick Norton, one of the pioneer florists of this city, passed away at his home in Dorchester, September 9. His death was deeply felt by his many friends.

WARM WEATHER; BUSINESS SLACKENS.

Weather conditions in this vicinity are sadly disarranged. August weather is now being enjoyed by all, with a consequent condition of trade in keeping with it. Asters are coming in well, the late varieties better than ever. Gladioli are getting poorer, while roses show improvement and carnations are very scarce. Calendulas, lilies and tritomas are welcome additions to a store for use as decorations. Several stores are preparing for their fall openings with stock from the florist that has only a summer suggestion. Autumn foliage, chrysanthemums and other suitable stock cannot be had the first or second week in September in good quality or color. Yellow and white chrysanthemums are on sale, but look very much like a tired child overworked on a hot day. The early man with some flowers is a hero, but the one with chrysanthemums is about as welcome as the one who gets his lilies in three weeks after Easter. He has no place for his stock, and who wants 'mums when you have asters, dahlias and other flowers in your garden, and are enjoying balmy breezes on your veranda or are out motoring. That is the pleasure of Buffalonians now, and I only speak for Buffalo.

NOTES.

Alterations and repairs to green-houses are about completed. W. J. Palmer & Son, at Lancaster, N. Y., are all through; S. A. Anderson has now all houses with cement benches and an innovation in a new place to force bulbs; L. H. Neubeck and the Wm. Scott Co., Inc., have made several changes in their places and are now ready for winter business. Jerry Brookins & Son will be better prepared than ever to supply their trade with carnations, sweet peas and roses.

There are rumors of a wedding in Buffalo among the florists. No names mentioned, but if an English reservist is conscripted, there will be a Red Cross nurse go also and a guarantee of both in the same regiment. Should they go they will call on father at his place in Hanover square, London.

E. C. Armbrust, who has been with S. A. Anderson for two years, has resigned to engage in business for himself in Rochester. The best wishes of all are with him in his new location on East avenue in the "Flower City."

There will be a meeting of the New York State Federation of Florist Clubs at Syracuse, Thursday, September 16. Several from this city are going to help the association along and visit the state fair.

BISON.

Cincinnati.

HOT WEATHER CAUSES SLOW MARKET.

Hot summer weather set in shortly after the first of the month, and since that time business has slowed up somewhat. The supply has increased greatly. Shipping business is good. Roses are in a very heavy supply. Many blooms are coming in soft and not in a fit condition for use. Carnations have become much longer and better than they were at first. Easter lilies are plentiful, but do not meet with a particularly strong demand. Some very fine American gladioli are to be had. Asters are still in a heavy supply and of fair quality. The supply of greens is sufficient for all present requirements.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' club meeting Monday evening, August 13, was well attended. President Max Rudolph was in the chair. John Van Leerwen was elected a member of the society. J. A. Peterson gave an interesting talk on the S. A. F. meeting at San Francisco and the exposition, while Mr. Van Leerwen spoke on co-operation among the florists in buying.

NOTES.

J. A. Peterson plans to leave on an extended auto trip within the coming fortnight on which trip he will call on his trade.

C. E. Critchell has been having very large cuts of the new roses.

J. T. Conger is visiting at Anderson, Ind.

Visitors: Geo. Lampbert, Xenia, O.; Joseph Hill, Earl Mann and Fred Lemon, Richmond, Ind. H.

Oklahoma City.

We are having very warm weather and business is only "so-so"—not any duller, however, than is usual for this season of the year. Fashion week is to commence this year on September 24. This event usually marks the beginning of the fall season and brings with it quite a little decorating business for the florists.

NOTES.

There is some talk of having only annual meetings of the Oklahoma State Society of Florists and of forming an Oklahoma City Florists' Club. If this can be accomplished, it will be another step in the direction of bringing the local members of the craft closer together.

Furrow & Company are looking for a suitable site on which to erect a range of glass. They expect to build quite a large glass area and also to move their Guthrie plant to this city some time in the future.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lon Foster, September 10. Mr. Foster is manager of the store of Furrow & Company.

C. W. Stiles has returned from a business trip to Memphis, Tenn.

C. J. Bickes has been called to his home town, Decatur, Ill., owing to the serious illness of a sister. S. S. B.

"SUBSCRIBER" should repeat his query, giving full name and address to secure the desired information about trees.

THERE are no new developments this week in the Anglo-Belgian-German controversy regarding imports of European plants, bulbs, roots and seeds.

JOHN RAUM, a private gardener well known around New York, writes from Nuernberg, Germany, to send him a few pounds of white flour to make a cake. There is plenty to eat and drink he claims, and music, but no white flour.

Personal.

E. H. R. Green, who has been living for more than two years in New York, with his mother, Mrs. Hetty Green, will return to Texas to take charge of the Green interests in the southwest.

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas.

It will be recalled that in our issue of August 14, page 165, some selections of sweet peas for winter flowering were named. We now take pleasure in adding the latest selection of varieties by Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., well known as a successful grower of sweet peas under glass. Mr. Sim names the following varieties: Christmas Pink Spencer, White Orchid, Mrs. Skaach, Rose Queen, Venus, Lavender Unwin and Orange Orchid.

Revised Freight Rates.

We give below the latest freight rates on transatlantic steamships with those of last year for comparison. The prices are given in shillings per 40 cubic feet. For shipments to Philadelphia via New York add to the rates quoted two shillings per 40 cubic feet.

Spiraea and lily of the valley	25s	30s
Plants and shrubs, including evergreens and conifers	18s	20s
All other nursery stock	15s	...
Young deciduous trees (not shrubs, evergreens nor conifers)	...	17s
Plants in hampers, tubs and canvas, each containing one plant	...	15s
Plant, loose	...	15s
Elms, plantanes, and similar cheap standard trees (shrubs and young deciduous trees excepted), loose or partly packed	...	15s
Cheap standard trees in cases above 12 feet in length	...	15s

Import Permits.

I am informed by the Merchants' Association of New York that it is stated unofficially by the foreign trade advisers in behalf of the American importers that the incurring of liability for the payment of goods by the American importer prior to March 1, 1915, is to be the basis on which permits for shipments will be issued in future. No payment needs to have been made, but the American purchaser must show that he was legally bound to pay for the goods before that date. Evidence that will substantiate the above facts should be submitted to the foreign trade advisers by interested houses as follows:

(a) An affidavit giving the history of the case and showing all the documentary evidences submitted.

(b) Either the original contract or certified copies of the same.

(c) Copies of order sheets, the original acceptances, invoices and consular invoices if available. In addition to these proofs all marks, numbers, values and cost of goods, and the name and address of shipping agent in neutral port should be given.

Such evidence will be kept on file by the foreign trade advisers and as soon as the department of state is officially notified by the British authorities that such claims will be received and considered by the British government, it is the purpose of the foreign trade advisers to file these claims with the British embassy in Washington in the order in which they are received by the department of state. It would be well, therefore, that all interested houses should forward a sworn statement to Judge W. D. Fleming, Foreign Trade Adviser, Department of State, Washington, D. C., as soon as possible if they desire an early movement of their goods.

As soon as the department of state receives official confirmation of the above, they will be notified.

CHARLES A. DARDS.

New York, Sept. 10, 1915.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

To the Members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists:

My report and paper which I was to send to the annual convention was forwarded by registered mail to San Francisco and reached there on August 15. They were returned to me on August 29. I mailed them to the president that she would understand I had kept faith with her and was not responsible for my report not being at the meeting. I feel that it is only right and proper that all should at least see the report and I have therefore asked THE AMERICAN FLORIST to print the same.

Chinese Dictator Buys English Home.

Yuan Shih-K'ai, president of the republic of China, has during the past month completed the purchase of one of the finest of English country seats in the midland counties. The price paid is said to have been very large, which is not altogether surprising, in view of the fact that the big park, with trees hundreds of years old, is entirely surrounded by either stone walls or high iron railings.

That he should thus have purchased a property of this kind in Great Britain, where no less than five of his sons have been receiving their education for the last two years, lends color to the rumors according to which he is heartily tired of his dictatorship at Peking, of the terribly hard work which its possession entails, and, moreover, is wearied beyond all measure by the constant attempts that are being made on his life, and which necessitate such elaborate precautions that his existence has been reduced to a species of gilded captivity comparable only to that suffered in the Forbidden City by the late Emperor Kwang-Su.

TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Boiling hot weather has returned to us again after quite a long cool period. All the growers are beginning to ship their new crops of carnations, roses and lilies, but asters and gladioli still remain as strong as ever. Trade continues to hold up well, despite the heavy supply, so really there is not much to complain about. It is a shame to witness the great amount of asters that are being thrown away daily. The late crops are at the height of their season, which also hurts the sales and prices of other flowers to some extent. With good times back with us again, we may say that collections are somewhat better than they have been throughout the year. The supply business is brisk, as it is now time for the retailers to lay in their needs for the fall season, many of whom are placing their advance orders for Christmas goods. We might add that no shortage is expected in the line of immortelles, ruscus, statice, Diana grass and frieze this year.

NOTES.

Ray J. Daschbach reports a very busy season so far, running heavy on funeral work and decorations. A large floral blanket, 12x14, was a feature last week. Miss Friel, of the store force was compelled to return early from her vacation, which she was spending at Atlantic City, to help out with the rush.

Frank Kilgallen, of Daschbach's had an exciting experience while canoeing on the Allegheny river August 5, with a companion. The boat upset in mid-river, Frank managing to swim ashore, but his companion went down. The river has been dragged, but his body is still unfound.

Oliver Langhans is breaking in as a salesman at the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.'s wholesale store, after spending the summer at the firm's greenhouses in Bakerstown. Joseph Gotti has resigned his position with this firm.

Nuerenberg and Boyle have opened a retail store at Turtle Creek. Mr. Nuerenberg was formerly with the Braddock Floral Co., and of late was manager of Wm. Turner's Wilkinsburg store. Best wishes for success!

Earl Tipton has arrived in the city after spending the summer at the A. W. Smith Co. greenhouses, at Canfield, Ohio, having been greatly benefited in health by the change of surroundings.

Wm. Turner collided with a telegraph pole in his Studebaker touring car, on a road near Avalon, September 9, causing $200 damages to his car. Mr. Turner escaped unhurt.

Peter Hopman is cutting heavily on his new crop of roses, the condition of which looks very promising for his second season.

Visitors: Oscar Leistner, Chicago; Mr. Kent, of Kent Bros., Newark, O.; Julius Dilhoff, of Schloss Bros., New York. G. M.

Minneapolis, Minn.

MARKET CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

The local market during the past week has been very good. Roses are coming in more freely, mostly from new stock, and while of short stem, sell readily at prices ranging from two to six cents. Sweet peas have shortened up and bring from $2 to $3 per 100. Lillies are plentiful, but in little demand. Chrysanthemums are moving satisfactorily and are quoted at prices ranging from 10 cents to 25 cents.

Gladioli are still in evidence in quantities, but have deteriorated in quality, and prices vary from $1 to $2 per 100. Lily of the valley continues scarce at five cents. Asters are quoted at from 50 cents to $2 per 100 and smilax and greens move freely.

NOTES.

At the annual election of officers of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, held September 2, at Holm & Olson's store, St. Paul, the following were elected: W. D. Desmond, Minneapolis, president; Max Kaiser, Merriam Park, vice-president; A. Lauritzen, Como Park, treasurer; Thomas C. Rogers, 409 Hennepin avenue, Minneapolis, secretary. A vote of thanks was tendered retiring President O. J. Olson and other officers for their efforts in the welfare of the association during the past year. Nine new members were elected to membership.

O. H. Carlson and C. F. Rice of this city and J. R. VanBochove of Kalamazoo, Mich., equipped with a touring car and 1,000 rounds of ammunition are on their way to southern Minnesota to exterminate ducks and prairie chicken.

Carl F. Wahl of the Sunnyside Greenhouses has returned from bass fishing at Clearwater lake. He brought back a splendid catch, all over four pounds.

Carl I. Lindskoog has purchased the property he has been occupying and is putting in a conservatory and making other improvements.

Walter Montain, formerly with Carl Lindskoog, is on the Rice Bros. force.

Visitors: W. Jaan, Lester Park Greenhouses, Duluth, Minn.; E. Samuelson, St. Peter, Minn.; A. Miller, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; J. R. VanBochove, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dreer's Herbaceous Peonies

We will begin to dig this season about September 15th, over one hundred thousand roots of the following choice varieties of our own growings, true to name, strong divisions, with from 3 to 5 eyes.

Double Herbaceous Peony.

	Per doz.	Per 100
Asa Gray. A very distinct flower, bright lilac, sprinkled with minute dots of deeper lilac in such a manner as to appear dusted on; blooms very large; mid-season.....	$3 50	$25 00
Andre Lauries. Strong vigorous grower with medium sized flower of deep Tyrian rose. $30.00 per 1000....	1 50	10 00
Augustin D'Hour. Brilliant dark red with slight silvery reflex. Very large, compact, bomb-shaped flower; mid-season	4 00	30 00
Arthemise. A strong grower of upright habit, free bloomer in clusters, large, violet-rose with light mauve shadings. A good mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Agnes Mary Kelway. A tall, vigorous-growing variety of good habit and free bloomer, light violet rose with creamy white center, mid-season, very showy. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Couronna d'Or. Immense ball-shaped blooms, snow white with golden yellow stamens and delicate carmine markings on the central petals. Strong upright growth; one of the choicest late flowering varieties. $225.00 per 1000	3 50	25 00
Charlemagne. A very vigorous grower with strong stems and large compact, globular flowers. Lilac-white with a slight blush center. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Canary. One of the freest blooming varieties, of medium size; pure white guard petals with amber white center. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Duke of Wellington. An ideal cut-flower variety, large, well-formed flowers on long stiff stems, color sulphur-white, quite fragrant, one of the finest mid-season sorts. $100.000 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Duchesse de Namoura. Superb cup-shaped flowers of sulphur-white changing to pure white. Particularly beautiful in the half-open bud stage. $100.000 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Dr. Caillot. Blooms on long stems, brilliant Tyrian rose. A very striking late flowering variety.....	3 00	20 00
Duc de Cazes. Another of the really first-class Peonies for all conditions, never failing to produce an abundance of flowers for Memorial Day. Upright growth with large flat flowers of perfect shape, fine bright pink shaded violet, lighter center and silvery reflex. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Edouard Andre. Compact growing variety, with globular semi-double flowers of dark carmine violet with metallic reflex, and golden yellow stamens. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Eduis Superba. The earliest variety in our collection, being frequently a week ahead of any other sort, making it particularly valuable for Decoration Day sales in late seasons or in latitudes where other sorts will not bloom previous to that date. Also a variety which has done well, blooming freely under the most adverse conditions. Flowers of a deep rose pink with lighter shadings. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00

	Per doz.	Per 100
Eugene Verdier. Immense globular flowers, delicate flesh color deepening towards the center, tall stately grower and profuse bloomer, distinct and desirable.....	3 50	25 00
Felix Crousse. The ideal self-colored red Peony, large globular and compact, an even shade of bright red without trace of any other color, a strong vigorous grower with long stems make this variety one of the most important commercial cut flower sorts. $200.00 per 1000.....	3 50	25 00
Francois Ortegat. Brilliant crimson; full double flower, one of the richest dark varieties. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Festiva Maxima. This truly superb variety, the finest white in cultivation, has for nearly three-quarters of a century been the standard by which all other sorts have been judged. A giant in growth. No other variety combines the wonderful purity of color, freedom and earliness of flower, and handsome foliage as this "Queen of Peonies." This variety is probably better known throughout the world than any other. $180.00 per 1000.....	$2 50	$20 00
Louis van Houtte. One of the most conspicuous of the dark colored varieties, blooms are produced in clusters on strong upright stems well above the foliage, color rich dark crimson, developing a slight silvery tip as the flowers age, making quite an attractive color combination. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
L'Eclataante. Very large, showy, compact, brilliant, red flowers in clusters, vigorous growth, extra good commercial mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
L'Indispensable. Immense flowers of a delicate lilac pink with darker shading towards the center. Tall, upright grower and profuse bloomer. A very desirable late flowering variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Lady Bramwell. A beautiful silvery-rose of fine form, a free-blooming and vigorous growing variety, together with the beautiful soft colored flowers make this one of the particularly attractive mid-season cut flower sorts. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Mme. Calot. One of the best of the early sorts, large flowers of a pale hyacinth pink color. Very delicate when cut in bud stage. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00
Mme. de Varanville. Beautifully formed flower very broad sulphur white guard petals and compact white center, touched carmine. A most chaste mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Mme. Ducl. Perfectly formed globular flower, dwarf, vigorous habit, color bright silvery pink with salmon shadings and silvery reflex. Magnificent cut flower variety and fine bedder	3 50	25 00
Marie Jacquin. A variety especially adapted for landscape work, flowers semi-double, almost pure white with the yellow stamens partly visible in the center. Very aptly named "Water Lily Peony." $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Mme. Boulanger. A very choice delicate colored variety; in form not unlike a decorative cactus dahlia. The flowers of a soft lilac tinted white are formed of broad regularly arranged petals of great substance, greatly enhancing the lasting qualities	5 00	40 00
Meissonier. Large convex blooms on long stems, guard petals brilliant purple red, centre deep crimson. A splendid self-colored variety. $140.000 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00

HOT WEATHER AFFECTS TRADE.

This city has experienced some unusually warm weather this week and the temperature Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, September 13-14-15 reached the unseasonable figure of 85 to 90 degrees. Straw hats were again seen on the streets and nearly all the bathing beaches in the city were open so the enthusiasts who bravely bore the chilly blasts of July and August had a chance to enjoy the tardy summer. While stock has suffered somewhat on account of the hot weather there is quite a lot of good stock reaching the market especially roses which are plentiful. American Beauty roses are arriving in good condition but are none too plentiful and have advanced slightly in prices during the past week. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good supply but are selling well considering the general market conditions. Some fine Ophelia and Sunburst are arriving now and the same holds good for Killarney which in many instances is showing unusually fine color. Carnations are seen in larger numbers and fancy stock is in good demand. Chrysanthemums have suffered considerably from the warm weather but at that there is plenty of stock to go around. Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, Early Frost, October Frost and Chrysolora are the varieties offered but the latter are none too plentiful. Asters, gladioli, dahlias and other outdoor stock is still plentiful but is not selling any too well. Lily of the valley is in better supply and the same holds good for gardenias and orchids. Taken all in all there is plenty of stock of all kinds to go around at this writing but a few brisk days would find the market pretty well cleaned up. The weather at this writing, Wednesday, September 15, is much cooler and the weather man says that the thermometer will register 65 degrees soon, where it rightfully belongs in mid-September.

Ed. Siebrecht, well known to the trade locally as well as in other cities, having been connected with several representative florist establishments in the country, and himself of a widely known family of florists, will embark in business for himself and will open an attractive flower shop at 6972 North Clark street, September 25, under the name of The Rosery Florist. Special fixtures have been designed for the establishment by Buchbinder Bros., 518 Milwaukee avenue, with a view to artistic decoration and up-to-date service befitting an excellent location. Ed. has many friends both in and out of the trade who wish him the fullest measure of success. The George Wittbold Co. has had a busy week in its retail department, the demand being principally for funeral work and a visit to the establishment shows that Fred Nelson and his force of assistants are using outdoor flowers in this class of work to good advantage, with splendid results. August Poehlmann's two sons, Roland and Earl, left this week to resume their studies at school. Roland is finishing his last year at the Western Military Academy at Alton and Earl is attending school at Urbana. Adolph Poehlmann's son Walter is also attending school at Urbana and so is H. W. Bruns' son, Henry. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Levy, 6016 Princeton avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alta, to Samuel F. Bloom, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bloom, 6134 Vernon avenue, who is engaged in the retail florist business at 822 East Sixty-third street.

BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department advertised a special sale on cypas leaves, quoting prices on both the dull and glossy finish, just to find out which kind was in best demand. So far the sales are running about even, but it seems that some florists prefer the dull finish on short leaves for wreaths and base work, which probably is due to the fact that they have a more natural appearance.

Victor Young has resigned his position as manager of the George Wittbold Co.'s North Clark street store and will be with Ronsley the Florist, 106 South Dearborn street, on and after Monday, October 4. Mr. Young will leave for the east in a few days to visit the leading retail stores in the principal cities, returning in time to look after his interest at the Ronsley store at the specified date.

The Raedlein Basket Co.'s establishment on Milwaukee avenue is being remodeled and when the alterations are completed their salesrooms will present a much better appearance. Mrs. A. Kindler and son, Curtis, who have been spending the summer at their cottage on Long Lake, have returned from their vacation and are again attending to their duties at the store.

At Zech & Mann's store chrysanthemums are arriving in larger quantities but Golden Glow is the only variety that has been offered this season up to this writing. Allie Zech says that the demand for Mrs. Chas. Russell roses has been unusually good this week and that his firm has had no trouble whatever in disposing of all the stock that it had to offer.

Hoerber Bros. are receiving a nice supply of roses from their greenhouses at Des Plaines, especially Killarney, which is now in good crop. Fred Hoerber says that business is showing a gradual improvement and from the looks of their newly painted wholesale store one can instantly see the proprietors are fully prepared to handle the fall business.

Miss Nettie Parker has returned from a delightful visit in California and is again attending to her duties as secretary at the A. T. Pyfer & Co. wholesale store. She parted company with Miss M. C. Gunterberg at Los Angeles, Calif., where she will visit with friends and relatives a few more weeks.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association's lease on the store now occupied at 176 North Michigan avenue, does not expire until May 1, 1916. The proprietors are undecided whether they will remain where they are after that date or move into new quarters on North Wabash avenue.

Henry M. Hirsch is again doing the buying in the local market for Zalinger & Hirsch, after having been quarantined at his home for over a month with scarlet fever. Zalinger & Hirsch operate the store in the rotunda of the Insurance Exchange building at 175 West Jackson boulevard.

Peter Reinberg and his large range of greenhouses received a complimentary illustrated write-up in the September 6 issue of the Illinois Staats-Zeitung, one of the leading local German dailies. Mr. Reinberg left this week for the Wisconsin wilds on a hunting and fishing trip.

The John Kruchten Co. has added a plant department to its ever growing wholesale business, which is in charge of Miss Agatha Greeley. Miss Greeley has had considerable experience in this line and is bound to make a success of the venture from the start.

Wietor Bros. are in good crop with American Beauty roses which are in good demand at the store and clean up quickly each day. Field grown carnation plants are also in good demand and new orders are arriving each day.

A. L. Vaughan & Co., are handling large quantities of asters in addition to their regular line and the demand for them has been fairly good this week. This firm is showing a good supply of American Beauty roses.

Percy Jones' wholesale store presents a most inviting appearance since it has been re-decorated and Manager Van Gelder and his able force of assistants are now making a strong bid for their share of the fall business.

Theodore Vogel and wife have returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where he has been employed for some time and will remain here if he can find a suitable position in one of the local retail establishments.

N. P. Miller and wife celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary, Wednesday, September 15. Mr. Miller is the senior member of the wholesale firm of Miller & Musser, doing business at 179 North Wabash avenue.

Wm. H. Robertson, formerly with the McCray Refrigerator Co., is now in business for himself, which he is conducting under the firm name of Wm. H. Robertson & Co., 20 East Jackson boulevard.

Bassett & Washburn report business as good, especially in the shipping line. This firm is cutting heavily in chrysanthemums as well as roses and both items are cleaning up well at the store each day.

J. A. Budlong has had a brisk demand for Double White Killarney roses all during the summer months and at times the call was so heavy that it was impossible to fill all the orders.

George Perdikas says that his retail trade dropped off considerably during the hot spell, but that business as a whole so far during September was quite good compared with last year.

W. A. Kennedy, of C. C. Pollworth Co., and wife, Milwaukee, Wis., stopped off here September 9 on their way home from San Francisco, Calif., where they attended the S. A. F. convention.

A. T. Pyfer says that indoor carnations have improved wonderfully in quality the past week and that fancy long stemmed stock is in good demand at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store.

Henry Dunn and wife have returned from a pleasant visit with relatives at Boston, Mass., and he is again attending to his duties at Wm. F. Schofield's North State street store.

William Tricker, well known water lily specialist, Arlington, N. J., has been visiting his son, W. E. Tricker, at Western Springs, for nearly a week.

Elsie Schnapp has returned from the west where she has been engaged in the retail business for some time and will remain here permanently.

Edw. Kirsch recently opened a new cigar store in the Schiller building. Nearly everyone in the wholesale market knows B' & Bey Eddie.

Gust. P. Constantino, proprietor of the Chicago Floral House, 41 West Randolph street, has been on the sick list for over a week.

H. F. Halle has moved from his old stand at 801 Sheridan road to new quarters at Broadway and Lawrence avenue.

Wm. D. Rettig, South Bend, Ind., bought a new greenhouse boiler while he was in the city this week.

I. N. Stuart and wife are expected home this week from an automobile trip to Montreal, Can.

T. E. Waters will celebrate his fortieth birthday next Sunday, September 19.

A new florist store will be opened in the Sherman Hotel in the near future.

Martin Goerger, with Goerger Bros., Arlington Heights, received word from his brother and partner Albert that he is still alive and is now serving in the German Crown Prince's army near Verdun. Mr. Goerger says that both Goerger Bros. and Elmer Sigwalt's range had several lights of glass broken during the heavy wind storm last week.

Vaughan's Seed Store city employes and friends to the number of about 50 held their annual picnic at the senior member of the firm's Homewood farm, September 12. J. C. Vaughan and Leonard H. Vaughan helped with the details and everyone thoroughly enjoyed a very pleasant day in the country.

The A. L. Randall Co. is moving a part of its office nearer to the cut flower department, which makes it much more convenient for Eric Johnson and his able force of assistants to transact business.

Anthon Then, who recently returned from California, has only one regret, namely, that he can not connect Shasta Springs with his home water tap.

Erne & Klingel are showing a good supply of asters and gladioli at their store, which are moving well, considering the general market conditions.

Secretary John J. Esler, of the Florists' Hail Association, visited this city last week, returning from the San Francisco convention.

Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, is still calling on the trade and reports business as good.

Guy French is attending the Wisconsin state fair at Milwaukee this week.

Visitors: E. Valdejo and wife, New Orleans, La.; Mrs. M. E. Irby, Mrs. Turbiville and Master Richard Turbiville, Memphis, Tenn.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Bismarck, Thursday, September 9, when Emil Ehrhardt and Gus. Stege, Park Ridge; Paul Weiss, Maywood; Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake, and J. A. Young, Moosehart, were elected to membership, and the applications of Otto Amling, Herbert A. Amling and Ernest C. Amling, Maywood, and August A. Traeger, Bellville, were read.

Michael Fink, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, made his final report on the last annual picnic, held at Morton Grove, July 25, stating that there was a balance of $19.70 to be turned in to the treasury. The report was accepted and the committee discharged with a vote of thanks.

E. F. Kurowski reported that the committee appointed to solicit donations for the fund spent in entertaining the visiting florists to the San Francisco convention of the S. A. F. and O. H., in this city August 12, received $135, and that the unused portion, amounting to 40 per cent, had been returned to the contributors.

N. P. Miller spoke of the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, to be held at the Coliseum November 9-14, stating that all the preliminary premium lists had been mailed and that anyone who has not received a copy may obtain same from him upon request at 179 North Wabash avenue.

A communication was received from Chas. Loveridge, Peoria, thanking the club for electing him an honorary life member and wishing the organization and the Horticultural Society every success for a banner fall show.

C. W. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, informed the members that the executive board meeting of the society, held at Peoria, August 31, was one of the most successful ever held, and the annual convention will be held in Moline next March.

Wm. Tricker, Arlington, N. J., was a visitor and gave an interesting talk on water lilies, stating that they were a factor in the New York market in winter, and that sooner or later he expected this would prove true of the great central market. He has grown water lilies for over a quarter of a century, and one of his best varieties, which is an ever-blooming one, was named after the late Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. He has a new one which he calls Panama-Pacific that appears to be equally as good, and of which more will be heard in the near future.

President Keimel gave a lengthy talk on his trip to the S. A. F. convention and the wonders of the Panama-Pacific exposition, which was so interesting that the club gave him a rising vote of thanks.

Vaughan's Seed Store had a splendid exhibit of Kaiserine Augusta Victoria, Delice and Holsetra dahlias and a vase of Buddleia Veitchiana, commonly called summer lilacs.

The club decided to hold the amalgamation banquet at the next regular meeting, Thursday, October 7, and all members in good standing will receive a free ticket by mail.

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL.

The weather the past week and at this time of writing, is hot and sultry and trade, with the exception of funeral work, has been at a complete standstill. This is a very trying time for the wholesalers, stock arriving very soft and unsalable, and even with forced down prices, is hard to move. Roses of all kinds are plentiful as well as short and medium American Beauty. Asters of good quality are plentiful and prices low.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the florists' club took place September 9 at Weber's Nursery, about 60 members being present. Officers were installed, speeches made and refreshments served. A general vote of thanks was given for the hospitality afforded the members. E. Guntty and A. S. Cerny applied for membership and Fred Frow and Tom Carr were elected as members. The next meeting will be held at Jules Bourdett's greenhouses and residence.

E. H. Pieper has increased his business and now has two ladies and three men engaged on various decorations. His partner, L. Hirt, formerly with the late August Schuermann, has just returned from Marion, Ill., where he built floats for the Labor day parade. This gentleman, together with Mr. Pieper, will enter into a general decorative business in all lines.

Wm. A. Seeger of the Mullanphy Florists, and wife, left September 12 for an extended visit through the south. They will visit his sister in Hulseburg, Miss., and from there will go through New Orleans, Mobile, Gulfport, Birmingham, Ala., and Chattanooga, Tenn. They expect to be gone about 15 days.

Mrs. Fannie Zell worked a new game on several of the local florists in an endeavor to show her neighbors how popular she was. She ordered flowers by telephone for herself with the cards of prominent men attached and charged to them.

Saturday, September 11, was the last Saturday of early closings. All wholesale houses will now be open until six p. m., but will close up Sundays entirely.

It is rumored that the downtown branch of the Mullanphy Florists will move a few doors west to more commodious quarters.

Wilfred Beneke, son of J. Beneke, was hurt in an automobile collision September 11. It is hoped it will not prove serious.

Walter Young's auto caught fire and was badly damaged while he was visiting greenhouses being erected in the country.

Joe Sink, of Milwaukee, Wis., was a visitor to this and other cities, enjoying a two months' trip.

The second outing of the park department took place at Sim's grove, September 11.

Miss Meinhart has returned from the coast and now attends the market.

Alex Siegel has returned looking fine, but says it is too warm to work. W. F.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the Deere conservatories, with A. Anderson and C. Sorensen as hosts. A stroll over the private grounds adjoining the Deere and Butterworth homes proved an interesting feature of the day. President Bills called the meeting to order, and Wm. Knees, member of the committee on a pleasure trip to the caves at Maquoketa, reported the trip a success and all attending as well pleased; nine autos filled with florists and their wives made the trip.

Ex-president John Staack, committeeman to Peoria August 31, reported he was well received by the president and executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association, and that the next state meeting and flower show would be held at Moline, March 7-8.

A committee was appointed to formulate a plan and see what is best

From Moline—J. Staack, chairman; Wm. Knees, Jr., A. Anderson, W. C. Wilson.

From Rock Island—L. Stapp, H. Gaethje, Ed. Patten.
From Davenport—H. Bills, C. O. E. Boehm, H. Pauli.

From Bettendorf—Wm. Goos.
The club by a rising vote expressed their thanks to Ex-president John Staack for his efforts in its behalf in securing the state meet for Moline. After enjoying lunch and refreshments, a vote of thanks was extended to the hosts of the evening and the meeting adjourned to meet October 14, at Turner hall, Rock Island, Ill.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS OPENS LIGHT.

The first week of September opened very quietly, the business being very light, but there is a great abundance of flowers. Asters are seen in quantity, much of the stock coming from New York state, and the quality is fine. New crop roses are being pushed on the market a little too fast, the demand being so light they accumulate and are offered at extremely low prices. The newer sorts promise to be in good supply the coming season. Ophelia, Hadley and Hoosier Beauty are coming in from a number of growers. Ophelia is very promising, but pops open very soon in the hot weather, an almost record breaking spell of which we have been experiencing the past week.

Dahlias are now in full swing; they should be a paying crop, as they have never been seen of such good quality and in greater variety. Carnations are being offered, very good stock for the season, but the asters now have the call. Easter lilies, high grade stock, about hold their own, the demand being limited. Gladioli are still seen in quantity; they are useful but prices rule very low. Golden Glow is still the only chrysanthemum, and even with the field to itself, does not meet with ready sale, although the flowers are fine.

NOTES.

If on Wednesday, September 8 you were tagged at H. F. Michell Co., Inc., and wore one of the green Michell diamonds, you were all right for passage on their special train to their seed farms and trial ground at Andalusia. It was a merry crowd, something over 1,200 strong, mostly men, but there were quite a number of ladies along. The grounds were beautiful in their wealth of bloom. Large stretches of canvas dotted the extensive lawn, on which was served a substantial lunch. There were games, or other contests, various races and other events for the amusement of the guests. After the athletic events there was speaking by Robert Craig, Walter Fancourt, E. Berlet and Maurice Fuld. Mr. Craig spoke feelingly of the late Mr. Lonsdale and his great work in the advancement of horticulture. Mr. Fancourt spoke in the same strain. Mr. Fuld predicted a great future for the House of Michell which treated its employes so well that they seldom left, but spent all their time in boosting the business, which is growing faster than any house in the same line in this country. There was a display of cut flowers of all the plants in bloom at the time. These were very nicely arranged in the large packing shed. There is no question that this business is growing fast; additional acreage has been added and new ranges of glass erected since the last public inspection. Everything about the place is up-to-date and all laid out with the idea of future expansion.

The September meeting of the florists' club was fairly well attended. The feature was the travelogue of Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa. The celebrated climate was described as a trifle erratic, there being cold winds and sand storms and a great difference between the day and night temperatures, but as a whole he found the country delightful. were all renominated for election at the October meeting. Preparations for the national flower show were reported by Adolph Farenwald to be progressing favorably. The plan now is to do everything possible to get the general public interested, as the success of the exhibition depends so largely on a record breaking attendance.

John Burton in giving reminiscences of Edwin Lonsdale, stated that when young men together, he told "Ned" that he had made up his mind to go to Australia, where he had a relative who was doing well; in fact, had purchased his steamer ticket. Ned said, "Why I am going to the states, why don't you come with me?" In a jocular way, I said, "for a sixpence I would." Instantly he plunged his hand into his pocket and pulling out

HOT WEATHER BRINGS DULL MARKET.

The business of the past week was very slow. As previously noted, there was a great exodus from the city for Labor day, and the intense heat of the remainder of the week kept everybody away that could stay away. The Jewish New Year, which was observed September 9, and its attending celebrations, were expected to make some business for the florists, but partly on account of the hot weather, it did not amount to much. In any event, the Jews seem to be better sellers than buyers. The weather has had a bad effect on roses, much open stock arriving. There is yet a great volume of asters arriving, also gladioli, while the supply of dahlias, carnations and chrysanthemums is on the increase. The demand for dahlias, carnations and chrysanthemums is negligible, and will be while so many good asters are about, and the asters are a better hot weather stock than any of the others. The supply of cattleya orchids is increasing with a downward tendency in prices. Very fair gardenias, for the season, are on the market, but they are very hard to move. There is movement in lilies and lily of the valley, but an ample supply is arriving and prices vary. To briefly sum up: there will be no good business in this market until much colder weather, say a "swinging" big frost, arrives, so it's useless to worry.

NOTES.

Since they started to turn Sing Sing prison into an amusement resort, murder, robbery and other crimes seem to be on the increase in this state. Isaac S. Hendrickson, manager of the wholesale department of John Lewis Childs, Inc., Floral Park, N. Y., recently removed his residence from Floral Park to Flowerfield. The Childs establishment at Flowerfield also embraces the post office of the district and it has been customary for the Childs safe to house the post office valuables. On Mr. Hendrickson's arrival at Flowerfield he took advantage of the protection (?) of the Childs safe for his household silver, a collection of rare coins and Mrs. Hendrickson's jewelry. At the same time enterprising burglars, planned and successfully carried out the robbery of the safe. They probably figured on the postage stamps and small change and were doubtless agreeably surprised when Mr. Hendrickson's collection come into their hands. At this writing no trace of the robbers has been found.

Richard Vincent, Jr., president of the American Dahlia Society, visited this city September 9. Though it was a blistering hot day, he presided at a meeting of the society at 11 a. m., visited Bronx park in the afternoon, and later held a conference with John Young and Secretary Lane at the former's office, relating to the approaching dahlia show, which will open at the American Museum of Natural History, September 24 and continue three days. John Young will manage the show, which is a good word for it at the start. President Vincent and Secretary Lane will be on hand to render valuable assistance. After President Vincent had completed his labors in connection with the show, he entertained a party of friends at a dinner at Moquin's and took the train for Baltimore the same evening, which was a good day's work, but consider what a lusty young fellow he is.

The visiting botanists who were in attendance at the New York botanical garden celebration during the week ending September 11, visited the Brooklyn botanic garden on the latter date. They inspected the garden, had luncheon, and later went to the salt marshes near Merrick, Long Island. The delegates had a strenuous week, the weather being very warm. They visited Staten Island and several points in New Jersey on trips of botanical research. A number of papers were read by leading botanists. A number of women were in the delegation, noteworthy being Dr. Susan P. Nichols of Oberlin, O., and Mrs. A. Vincent Osmun, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst.

E. J. Hession, 984 Madison avenue, who already had a fine store and conservatory, concluded to improve it this season. To give the workmen full scope, the business was temporarily removed to a vacant store, next door. The improvements will soon be completed and it is safe to say that it will be the finest store of the conservatory type, in this city. The roof was stripped of glass and the brick walls were built much higher and the roof re-glazed. Very elaborate show windows are being placed and the basement enlarged and concreted for a work and store room. The interior decorations will be very fine.

A. N. Pierson of Cromwell, Conn., was in this city September 11. Mr. Pierson stated to the writer that his son, Wallace R. Pierson, who, it will be remembered, recently underwent a severe operation in a San Francisco hospital, is now rapidly recovering and is on his way home, traveling by easy stages, so to speak. He is stopping at various points of interest to take short rests, thus avoiding the fatigue of a continuous journey.

A peculiar accident happened on board the steamer Ryndam, in port from Rotterdam, Holland, September 9. Two of the crew, sent below to work at unloading bulbs, were overcome by carbonic acid gas generated in the bulbs, and were dead when hoisted to the deck. A fireman who went down in an attempt to rescue them, though he wore a respirator, had a narrow escape.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., are receiving the new orchid shade seedling chrysanthemum from Frank Dinda, of Farmingdale, which is extraordinarily fine for this time of the year, selling at $5 per dozen, also new seedling carnation, Olive Whitman, which is now producing excellent flowers.

Frank Traendly and his interesting family are now back in their Brooklyn home, after spending the summer at the farm, Rowayton, Conn. Mr. Traendly has had a severe attack of hay fever, but his friends comforted

News has been received by J. K. Allen, that Mrs. Wm. Krider, who as Miss Mona G. Smedley before her marriage, was his bookkeeper for over seven years, died in Philadelphia, September 11. As Miss Smedley, she was well known and popular in the wholesale district.

Mrs. Marie Sophie Merian, wife of A. N. Merian, a well known landscape gardener, formerly superintendent of the Virginia estate of Thomas F. Ryan, died at her home in Rye, N. Y., September 7, in her 57th year. She was a native of Basle, Switzerland.

Leo Klein and wife, visited Philadelphia September 12, to attend a wedding. They also visited several of the leading attractions of the Quaker City.

William Iler, manager for E. C. Horan, has just returned from Lake Mohawk, N. Y., where he spent a happy vacation with his family.

Andrew Scott, buyer for Alexander McConnell, has gone to the Adirondack mountains, with Mrs. Scott, for an extended vacation.

The Kervan Company, dealers in greens at 119 West 28th street, have just put on a new motor truck of 25 horse power.

George Hildenbrand, of John Young & Co., is now taking his vacation

New York Florists' Club.

The first meeting of the New York Florists' Club, since the summer vacation, was held on the night of September 13, with a good attendance, President Bunyard in the chair. The feature of the meeting was the lecture of Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wrentham, Mass., on the gladioli. The lecture was beautifully illustrated by lantern slides and at the close Mrs. Tracy received an ovation. The flower show committee made a detailed report concerning arrangements made with the Horticultural Society of New York, relating to the holding of a spring exhibition. A contract has been made with the company that controls the Grand Central Palace for the use of that building, the show to open April 5. The former method of individual guarantees was dispensed with, the club agreeing to the proposition of the horticultural society that each organization guarantee $5,000 against any possible loss. The committee was given power to continue the work of preparation for the exhibition.

There were a number of very meritorious exhibits of flowers. Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., exhibited gladioli, as did T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y. Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., exhibited a fine new rose, named Gorgeous. P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., made a fine display of gladioli, largely of recent introduction; also a display of giant singles of fine size and color. Frank Dinda, Farmingdale, N. Y., exhibited a fine yellow seedling chrysanthemum. The Knight & Struck Co., Flushing, N. Y., exhibited giant cosmos.

Chairman Kessler and Myer Othille, of the house committee, were on hand and active in serving the eats.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held September 7. The speaker scheduled for the evening, Jacob Dieterich, not being present, the chair called on different members of the society to describe what they saw and heard at San Francisco during the S. A. F. convention. Among those who responded were J. D. Merivether, James MacGillivray, Alexander Day, James Grant and James Taylor, the latter having made notes of many of the horticultural features of the exposition and his descriptions were very interesting. He spoke with particular emphasis on the wall of mesembryanthemum, which he described as nearly one mile long, 15 feet high and about two feet thick. The planting of trees and shrubs around the buildings produced a good effect and the bedding of Begonia semperflorens, pansies, hydrangeas, etc., made a good show, and the gladioli were described as excellent, the dahlias fine but the roses poor, the speaker being disappointed in the award of the $1,000 prize for the best variety of rose. He complimented the exhibit of C. C. Morse & Co., of sweet peas, annuals and perennials; also the exhibit of a Dutch firm of tuberous begonias planted out in beds. In conclusion the speaker remarked that the general view of the exposition from a floral standpoint was excellent. Mr. Taylor was given loud applause for his thoughtfulness in keeping note of these items and taking the place of the appointed speaker.

The form letter sent out by the National Association of Gardeners was read. On motion by Mr. Grant and seconded by Mr. Felgate, the same was adopted as read. Secretary was instructed to communicate with them, stating the action taken by this society. W. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre, displayed a splendid showing of giant zinnias. If more of the members would bring in a little exhibit of their own growing, as does Mr. Felgate, it would add greatly to the interest of the society. J. D. Merivether made a motion which was promptly seconded, that a note of thanks be spread on the minutes, thanking Mr. Felgate for his splendid showings.

The chair appointed Dr. A. D. Houghton as the speaker for the next meeting, his subject to be on begonias. There being no further business before the society, the meeting stood adjourned. After the meeting the committee on the smoker, composed of Jas. M. Grant, chairman; Jacob Dieterich, W. W. Felgate, Jas. MacGillivray and Hal S. Kruckeberg, held a short meeting and resolved to hold a smoker every three months at a different cafe. The date for the first smoker was set for Saturday evening, October 9, at 7 o'clock, at Fred Harlow's cafe, each member attending to pay his share of the expense. Tickets will be on sale at the next meeting, Tuesday, October 5.

NOTES.

Benjamin Chase, the grand old man from Derry, N. H., who is nationally known as the "Plant Stake and Label Man", called during the week. Mr. Chase always takes in the conventions of the nurserymen and always calls at this office when in this locality. He attended all three conventions at San Francisco and also spent two or three days at the exposition. After spending a few days in Los Angeles, calling on the trade here, he went to San Diego to remain there with his daughter until November 1.

kentia and Cocos plumosa palms; also leptospermum and coprosma. He is building two new greenhouses 16x30 feet at the salesyards on Washington street. The purpose of these new additions is to allow the ferns and plants dug at the nursery to get established before marketing.

Albert V. Amet, general manager of the Mountain View Nurseries, Santa Monica, states that business is fair considering the season of the year. He has leased more land in the same district, where he will grow flowers for his cut flower trade. He is looking forward to a big business during the coming fall and winter.

Frank Lewin, of Hawthorn, states that his rose gardens are in a condition far beyond expectation for this season of the year. The blooms that he will pick this fall will surprise any rose grower. The buds he believes will be equal to or better than those produced in Europe.

T. D. Robertson, proprietor of the Robertson Nurseries of Fullerton, has been moving his nursery and glass houses across the street. He is rebuilding his glass and promises to have one of the finest small establishments in southern California.

C. H. Corbrey, formerly with the Germain Seed and Plant Company, has severed his connection and opened a business of his own, under the firm name of C. H. Corbrey Seed and Plant Co., with officers in the Chamber of Commerce building.

James MacGillivray, foreman of Eastlake park, feels very proud over the success he has attained in growing, and the blooms he has produced of Victoria regia. Hundreds have been attracted by the blooms and frequent the park often to watch them.

Theo. Payne's planting of California native plants at Exposition park are looking fine. All are showing remarkable growth for the time they have been in, and will in time be one of the places of interest to all horticulturists.

DEMAND IS IMPROVING.

Asters are still coming in as good now as ever. There are some extra fine varieties, but the wholesale price on all stock is very low. Gladioli have jumped up in price, as the market on this flower is shortening up. Funeral work still holds up well, and the cut flower trade is slowly increasing. There are several large weddings scheduled for this month, and with the funeral work, every one seems to have plenty to do. Carnations are starting to come in, and while the stems are short, the flowers are very good. There are a few chrysanthemums, but they have really no call as yet.

NOTES.

While years ago cibotium ferns were very little used in decorative work, the past year they are being used by almost every one. At one time none were seen in the florist shop windows, but now nearly all of the florists have them on display. While the demand for this plant is very poor, they are worth their keep and for an advertising feature they cannot be beaten, as they certainly attract the passerby to your window.

Howard Almy, of Simmonsville, is to return to the south again after the cold weather sets in, and his greenhouses will be handled by Jess Taghini, who had them last year.

There are plenty of good Boston sword ferns seen here this year, and the call for them is very good, one florist handling over 300 of them in a month's time.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer, Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, left for New York September 15.

LESTER L. MORSE is spending his vacation at Bradley Springs, Calif.

BEANS in central Michigan were further hurt by heavy rains during the week ending September 11.

COMPLAINTS of underpaid postage on foreign letters mailed in the United States are constantly reaching the authorities.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade September 15 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.

It is reported that Japanese jobbers of Lilium giganteum bulbs in Japan are trying to bull the market, claiming a 20 per cent shortage.

CHARLES JOHNSON, Mariette, Pa., American agent of Denaiffe & Son, hereafter will be located at 1095 Virginia street, Berkeley, Calif.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—The Aggeler & Musser Seed Co., of this city, have received a gold medal for an exhibit of seeds at the San Diego exposition.

VISITED CHICAGO: R. M. Eldrige, of the Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; L. D. Langworthy, of the F. B. Mills Seed Co., Washington, Ia.

THE Dutch firm of E. H. Krelage & Son is offering its new daffodil Mrs. Ernst H. Krelage, white trumpet, at the modest war price of $162.50 each. Why the extra 50 cents?

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are standing in crates in the field. There has been considerable heat as well as strong dry wind, with occasional driving rain storms.

LAWRENCE COY, of the C. Herbert Coy Seed Co., Valley, Neb., and Miss Margaret McCoid, of Lincoln, Neb., who were married September 10, are spending their honeymoon in the east.

KELWAY & SON, of Langport, Somerset, Eng., have issued a roll of honor which includes the names of 33 members of their staff who have joined the colors since the outbreak of the war.

AMSTERDAM, HOLLAND, September 15.—Cable advices are to the effect that eight St. Remy, France, seed growers have been convicted of disposing of their seeds to Germans through Swiss channels.

As a sample of Idaho crops of white clover seed it is reported that one grower harvested from 16 1-5 acres 275 bushels of fancy seed for which he received $5,900. This was in the Twin Falls district.

It is the opinion of well posted seedsmen that potatoes will be one of the very short items this year. The unseasonable frost August 26, was especially hard on this crop, hitting most northern potato districts.

PAPER WHITE NARCISSUS are so scarce in Holland that Dutch growers are offering their sorts Elvira and Ashasia as substitutes, while American jobbers, who recklessly oversold, are hunting their holes.

Two men, it is alleged, lost their lives on the S. S. Ryndam, of the Holland-American line, at New York, September 9, through gas generated from a cargo of bulbs. The men were George Trossit, a steward and William Deusholm, a coal passer.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—The Door County Seed Co. has moved from the Hay building to their new warehouse on lower St. John street. They have storage room in bins for 6,000 bushels of peas, besides room for much more in bags. The new crop will soon be coming in, when this will be a very lively place. The seed will all be hand picked here this winter.

It is suggested that American dealers in seeds and nursery stock furnish the American consulate at Pekin, China, with a number of catalogues, as they often receive inquiries from residents in this country for American seed and nursery catalogues. The climate of Pekin is dry and cold in the winter and damp and hot in the summer, with a temperature ranging between zero and 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

WASHINGTON, IA.—The Mills Seed Co. proposes an extension to its creditors of two years under the trusteeship of two local men. It is understood that money borrowed for continued operation of said business is to be repaid out of the first receipts and assets of said business before payment of any claims now existing. General ratification by all the creditors is of course necessary to put the deal through.

French Bulbs.

French bulbs have held a practically even price in growing districts the whole season and those who advertised them at demoralization prices have had troubles of their own in making two-third deliveries or less. Those who talk about a break in prices at this date must be misinformed as to the uses of Paper White narcissus, dates at which they are wanted, or both, as well as of actual conditions in France.

Johnson Seed Co's Affairs.

James J. O'Brien, receiver for the Johnson Seed Co., bankrupt, at Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The sale of the stock and fixtures of the bankrupt, which was recently held, realized the sum of $2,400 and that the only other assets I can find are book accounts of which about $1,000 are collectable. The debts are upwards of $20,000, including a claim for rent scheduled at $4,000. There is little likelihood of the creditors receiving much of a dividend."

Colorado Vine Seeds.

Rocky Ford, August 30.—The vine seed crops here are about two weeks late. The setting of fruit is not as heavy as a year ago, excess rains at this point interfering with the progress of the crop. A fair crop will doubtless be harvested if we have a good September. The vine seed crops farther north are late and backward. No possible show for a big crop this year in these lines. R.

Allan's Peas and Beans.

Sheboygan, Wis.—The John H. Allan Seed Co. advises as follows, September 7: "The writer visited one section last week where we have about 1,500 acres of beans, which were damaged by frost, blight and rust fully 75 per cent. This was quite largely by frost. We hope we have no other section suffering to equal extent, but from all sources where we are growing beans we hear of damage by some or all of the above named causes, and our advice to all our customers is that they should use great caution when selling beans and not make sales until they know something of probable deliveries. The loss on peas also this year has been very great on account of the rain, but we are hoping to make good general deliveries on peas."

Clover Seed of Poor Quality.

Since July 15, 1915, twenty-six lots of crimson clover seed have been imported. In three of these lots, containing enough seed to sow over 2,850 acres, there was no seed that could be expected to grow under field conditions. The seed in five other lots, aggregating enough to sow 8,600 acres, germinated only from 45 per cent to 55 per cent. The importation of this seed, together with 1,000,000 pounds of seed of low germination imported during May and June makes it more important than ever that farmers should know the germination of the crimson clover seed they are seeding. As the department is without power to prevent the admission of seed of low germination, unless particular attention is given to the germination of crimson clover seed this fall many crop failures are sure to result from sowing dead seed.—Department of Agriculture News-letter.

LITTLEFIELD & WYMAN
North Abington, Mass.

Montreal.

The Montreal Horticultural Society held its exhibition September 8-9 in the Winter Club hall, which in winter is used as a skating rink, has a cinder floor and therefore splendidly suited for a flower show on account of the great keeping qualities of the exhibits. The show was opened by Acting-mayor St. Pierre, with a suite of aldermen as assistants. The principal features were the big groups of flowering and foliage plants, also the asters, which must be mentioned for their excellence. Fruit was little seen compared with former years, but the vegetables were splendid.

The principal prize winners were: Macdonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue; D. Lorne McGibbon, Jos. Deltorgnio, B. B. Angus, R. Burrows, Senator Mackay, H. Schoning, A. Haigue Sims, Jos. Bennett, W. J. Wilshire, C. P. Beaubien, J. Theule, W. G. Pascoe, H. Irving, Hall & Robinson, Julius Luck, C. B. Gordon, J. Bartlett, J. Langford, Geo. Trussel, F. S. Watson, Ignace Morrand, C. D. Schnably, E. Dunn, G. Weir, T. J. Church, J. Bale and G. Dale.

Montreal has passed just through a series of horticultural exhibitions. Lachine was the first this year, followed by St. Lambert, Greenfield park, Montreal West and Verdun, which kept many of our private gardeners and florists busy judging. These suburban shows are mostly of an amateur gardener's style with but few sections for the professional, but the quality ranks very high sometimes.

Special prizes were donated by Dupuy & Ferguson, Lord & Burnham Co.; The Glass Garden Builders, the Mayor, C. B. Gordon, the William Ewing Co., the executive committee and the Montreal Floral Exchange.

Champaign, Ill.

John E. Yeats has taken over his old greenhouse which he had leased for the past eight years to Gus Johnson, who filed a petition of voluntary bankruptcy June 1. He already has a new greenhouse with store and garage well on the way to completion on the old site. This, with the new addition he is going to build at his country place, will give him 60,000 square feet of glass. His country place is almost entirely planted with his new rose, Mrs. Sarah Yeats, which will be on exhibition at Chicago Grand Floral Festival, November 9-14. E. C. P.

Newport, R. I.

The Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association will hold a dahlia exhibition at the Garden Association's grounds, Old Beach road, September 23-24. Both organizations have offered a list of prizes for competition. The show will be free to the public. J. J. B.

Winter Flowering SWEET PEAS Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

NOVELTY YARRAWA

The color on opening is rose, changing as the flower develops to a light pink standard-tinted buff with blush wings. The flowers are exquisitely waved, many being double flowered and produced on long, stout stems. Oz., $2.00; lb., $30.00; trade pkt., ¼ oz., 50c.

ROSE QUEEN

A Christmas flower, rose pink Spencer, a popular Indianapolis novelty. Our seed grown and saved from originator's stock. Oz., $10; ¼ oz., $2.50

SELMA SWENSON

A beautiful clear light soft pink, waved petals, strong grower and good forcer, originated by Mr. August Swenson, and introduced exclusively by us. This is seed of Mr. Swenson's growing. Oz., $10.00; ¼ oz., $2.50.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Grauite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary, Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

TEAS' weeping mulberry is one of the short items and high worked stock should find ready sale.

THE department stores are finding some shortage of penny grades of catalpa and similar stock.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the fortieth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at Detroit, Mich., June 23-25, 1915.

EUREKA, CALIF.—C. W. Ward has purchased additional ground adjoining his present nurseries and has completed plans for the erection of two additional houses.

D. S. LAKE, the veteran nurseryman of Shenandoah, Ia., says the nursery business is likely to continue dull for the next two or three years on account of over-production in the west and northwest.

RECENT bulletins issued by the New York agricultural experiment station, Geneva, include "The Blooming Season of Hardy Fruits," "Dwarf Apples," and "Ripening Dates and Length of Season for Hardy Fruits."

MOBILE, ALA.—D. B. Hill, president of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., of Dundee, Ill., has purchased large acreage near this city, which he will use for nursery purposes. He will build a handsome residence on the property.

VISIT CHICAGO: C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York; Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala.; Fletcher Bohlender, of Peter Bohlender & Sons, Tippecanoe City, O., enroute to his Iowa reservation of apple stocks.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—To more effectively wage war upon the scale, which is attacking olive, orange and other fruit trees in this section, the state horticultural commission is importing from Italy a new variety of ladybird (Chilocorus bi-pustulatus), one believed to have a voracious appetite and to breed rapidly.

Landscape Gardening Short Course.

To meet the needs of ambitious young men who would like to gain an elementary knowledge of landscape gardening, but who cannot afford or spare time for a regular college course, Edward J. Canning, Northampton, Mass., a practical landscape architect, and for 19 years instructor in horticulture and practical landscape gardening at Smith College, Northampton, Mass.; also for a time instructor in plant materials at Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, has arranged a fall and winter course in practical landscape gardening and the study of plant materials. The course will be divided into two terms of six weeks each, the first term beginning November 9 and ending December 23, 1915, and the second term beginning January 4 and ending February 17, 1916.

The course will include a critical study of trees, shrubs, evergreens, vines and herbaceous plants, with lectures, laboratory work and observation trips. The cost of the course, including room, board and tuition, is $180.

Nursery Catalogue Development.

Business pulling catalogues are an important factor in the successful nurseryman's business, and it is doubtful if any line of trade offers opportunity for more attractive illustration and presentation of its products than the nursery business, with the result that marked advance has been made in the development of artistic as well as sales stimulating catalogues for this branch of trade in the past few years.

Lithography, the process formerly in general use for the production of illustrations in colors, whereby in order to present a colored print of an apple or basket of fruit, it was necessary to make from seven to eleven press impressions, an impression for each color or combination, was a few years ago superseded, as far as high class horticultural printing is concerned, by the method known as color process printing. In this mode of reproduction the ornamental subjects are first photographed, and in many instances the artist's brush brings out some of the detail that may have been lost in the negative, while in the lithographic process, all of the design was made by the artist as nearly true to nature as was possible for the eye and hand to make it, but the majority of horticultural lithographs are far from being true to the subject.

In color process printing, when the negative is completed a photograph is given to the engraver, who makes four halftone copper plates, each one to print a different color. One plate is to print black, one for yellow, another for red and the fourth for blue. The colors used are opaque, and the combination of these four makes the red, green, yellow, brown, pink, black, blue, purple, and through these direct colors several lighter tints are also produced, only four operations of the press being required for a natural portrayal of the subject.

Located in Rochester, N. Y., the "Flower City," famous for its many beautiful parks and splendid horticultural institutions, the Gillies Lithographing and Printing Co., one of the pioneers in the method of process printing, is making a specialty of catalogues for the nursery trade. In fact, being so well equipped for the work mechanically, aside from the advantage of being able to secure near at hand photographs of the best horticultural subjects in great variety, this company is publishing an 80-page stock catalogue for nurserymen. Each edition is printed separately, thus allowing the addition of personal introduction pages, original illustrations and firm name at the top of each page.

An attractive cover, illustrated in two colors, gives the whole an air of individuality.

American Crabapples.

Several of the American crabapples are now in bloom. Those of the eastern states produce large, pink, very fragrant flowers which do not open until the leaves are partly grown, and depressed-globose, fragrant, greenish yellow fruits covered with a sticky exudation. The earliest to flower, Malus glaucescens, may be seen in the Peter's Hill group. It is a native of western New York and of Ontario, and is a treelike shrub or small tree distinguished from the other northern species by the pale lower surface of the leaves and the hairy covering on the outer surface of the calyx of the flower. The best known of the northern species, M. coronaria, flowers a little later and can be seen in the old collection on Forest Hills road opposite the end of the Meadow road. Here also are M. ioensis from the Mississippi valley and its double-flowered variety known as the Bechtel crab. The double pink flowers of this tree look like roses, and when it is in bloom excite the interest and admiration of visitors to the Arboretum. In the old collection, too, are plants of M. fusca, the only wild apple tree in the Pacific states, and a plant of M. Dawsoniana, a hybrid between M. fusca and the common apple which appeared many years ago in the Arboretum. The crabapple to which the southern forests owe so much of their spring beauty, M. angustifolia, fortunately has proved hardy in the Arboretum, and there are large specimens on Centre Street walk in the rear of the hickories and in the Peter's Hill apple group. It is the latest of the American species to flower, and the flowers are of a rather deeper pink than those of the other American species. In the Peter's Hill collection may be seen several plants of M. Soulardi, a tree which occurs occasionally over large areas in the Mississippi valley and is believed to be a natural hybrid between M. ioensis and the common cultivated apple.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

Market Gardener Grows Flowers.

A Michigan market gardener in a recent letter says: "This year I tried out cut flowers as a side line with good results. There appears to be an opening here that can be made a good thing. When people in country towns need flowers for funerals they will buy and pay from $2.50 up, but they can not afford that for the table, so I made up bunches of flowers that I thought would sell for 10 cents and tried it out. People with yards full of flowers do not like to cut them, but will buy instead, and even the cashier of the bank wants them in the front window. Altogether I am very much pleased with this year's start."

Fall Cucumbers.

There is a growing demand for nice slicing cucumbers in the fall months, in fact, we believe this demand to be stronger than for greenhouse tomatoes at that time of year. Immediately when the outdoor crop of cucumbers fails, the indoor crop should be ready to take its place. This is especially important, as it is so much easier to get a crop earlier in the season than late, when the dreary weather sets in. We believe the single stem method of culture is preferable to the trellis at this time, as we can compel the plants to produce their crop in a shorter time, hence gaining the house for lettuce when the bad weather makes future culture of cucumbers unprofitable.

To those who are new to the cucumber crop, we would say that probably the controlling factor is temperature. They are exceedingly sensitive to cold nights, hence the heating plant must be in good shape and ready for instant help. Under no circumstances should the temperature be permitted to drop below 60 degrees and 65 degrees would be better. Another advice at this time of year is to close all doors and repair all glass; allow no holes for the yellow melon bug to enter the houses. By carrying air only on the ridge vents, and these vents a little subdued, we can keep these bugs out fairly well. Any stragglers appearing indoors should be hunted down at once, as they are sure to lay eggs at the roots of the plants and cause heavy losses.

We have never before seen the outdoor crop of cucumbers and pickles in poorer shape than this year, owing to the cold wet summer, and we believe there will be a good opening this fall for cucumbers under glass, and for that matter, tomatoes too.

MARKETMAN.

Truck Crops Report.

The bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture has received from a special list of truck crop growers in 18 states, reports based on 100 as representing normal relating to conditions of certain crops on August 15. A summary of the tabulation of these replies follows: Cabbages, production, 94 per cent; cantaloupes, condition, 70 per cent; onions, production, 86 per cent; tomatoes, condition, 77 per cent; watermelons, condition, 69 per cent.

The condition of onions for the state of New York was reported August 15 as being 70 per cent of a normal crop. About 75 per cent of the normal acreage is planted. In the state of Ohio, high winds and floods have probably reduced the acreage to about 50 per cent of that of last year, and the attacks of the onion thrips and blight have reduced the state condition on the planted acreage to 34 per cent of normal. The conditions that have so disastrously affected the onion crop in New York and Ohio have operated to a large extent in Indiana, where the condition of onions on August 15 was reported at 68 per cent, and the probable production at 61 per cent. Such reports as have been received indicate that the acreage in California, Oregon and Washington is about normal. The condition for California is reported at 89 per cent, and the probable production at 96 per cent.

Special agents of the bureau have investigated the acreage and condition of the cabbage crop in the two principal cabbage producing states, New York and Wisconsin. There has been an increase in acreage in those states of about 25 per cent, which supplemented by the promise of at least an equal increase in yield, indicates a bumper crop.

Who Gets the Difference?

Farmer William W. Cocks of Westbury, Long Island, was in Brooklyn, September 10, and he and a Brooklyn man got to talking on that old but interesting subject, namely, Who gets the difference between what is paid the grower and what the ultimate consumer pays? Mr. Cocks said that he got a dollar a hundred for cabbages when there was any market, but now many truck farmers are plowing them under. He said he got 35 cents for large baskets of peaches, but prices got so low that some growers did not gather them. The finest potatoes brought only one dollar a barrel. It is said that never in 10 years have onions been so cheap. On the other hand a humorous "middleman" says that, "Nobody is eating this year."

SUPPLY AND DEMAND BALANCE.

The supply of flowers is just large enough to meet the demand at present. Chrysanthemums are very scarce, but there is not a considerable demand for them. Carnations are coming in in larger quantities now, most of the growers cutting them from the young stock and there are a great many medium lengths in roses on the market. Gladioli are about over, there being only a few of inferior quality on the market. Cosmos and dahlias are coming, arriving in large quantities.

NOTES.

The New Haven Floral Company experienced a heavy loss, September 10, when a high wind storm damaged their greenhouses to a considerable extent. The tornado wrecked and completely demolished several new greenhouses which were in the course of construction. Herman Leitz has not yet reported the full amount of his loss, which is believed to have been covered by insurance.

The Flick Floral Company's store has the redecorating completed, and the new cooling room installed. The large display fountain in the store has been retained for the large, showy flowers and is now making a fine appearance with the early chrysanthemums.

Edgar Wenninghoff, the Calhoun street florist, has been featuring some very pretty window decorations. He reports an increase in business during the past few weeks.

The Lanternier Florists are showing some fine Chinese asters and early chrysanthemums. They have had a considerable amount of funeral work lately.

Miss Doswell's live store on West Main street has a fine showing of all varieties of seasonable flowers well displayed in suitable baskets.

The Bradley Flower Shop is showing some good Russell roses. They are also displaying crocus bulbs for fall planting.

Sandwich, Ont.

Every variety of seasonable flower, arranged with ferns and foliage plants, splendidly staged by the exhibitors, formed a magnificent display which completely filled the municipal building on the occasion of the Sandwich Horticultural Society's flower show which opened September 10. Prizes, many of them plants, were awarded and included in the long list of prize winners were many school children. Every visitor to the exhibition was presented with an aster, and in the voting contest for the most popular flower, which was a feature of the show, over 1,000 votes were cast. A majority of over 200 were cast for the aster, with the result that it becomes the official flower of the society, and will be engraved on its medals and stationery, and the aster at the same time becomes the official flower of Sandwich and Essex county and will in future be chosen for corsages and boutonnières. Speeches and music assisted in rounding out an excellent programme, among those assisting in the entertainment of the visitors being Harry Gignac, chairman; Mayor Donnelly, Oliver Wilcox, M. P., and Judge Dromgole.

Carter & Howe, the well-known florists of Windsor, donated prizes to the value of $25 and Albert Carter gave an interesting talk on the subject of flower cultivation. Alex McKee offered a beautiful silver cup for the best display of flowers grown in Sandwich, among the many other valuable prizes offered.

200,000 Field-Grown Carnation Plants

Exceptionally fine stock ready for benching. Our Carnation Plants are recognized as the finest obtainable and repeat orders from old customers mean that they must have proven very satisfactory in former years, otherwise they would not have ordered from us again this season. This year the plants are better than ever so send an order to us as quickly as possible, for immediate or later delivery. Hurry!

There were many excellent displays of baskets and designs. A beautiful floral boat designed by J. Marentette was awarded first prize and an aeroplane constructed of flowers by Master Harold McDonald was second. Miss Eleanor Cruickshank had an excellent display of eight pieces and captured first honors in the class for basket arrangements. Union Jacks were a feature in the arrangements by boys and girls, and all were very creditably done, a number of them showing fine sense of color arrangement. Mary Dibley, aged six years, had a floral flag that was quite clever.

Among others in the long list of successful contestants were the following: Mrs. E. R. North, Mrs. Joseph Sparks, Mrs. E. Breault, Mrs. O. Desrosiers, J. Stutz, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Geo. Harrison, Doris Zimmerman, Miss Kate Gluns, Mrs. M. Warner, Mrs. Geo. Elliott and Mrs. J. Robinet.

J. E. K.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., Wednesday, September 8. President Westlake in the chair. W. Robertson, S. Trepass and J. McDonald were appointed judges and first awards were made to R. Jones for celery, J. Robinson for muskmelon and F. Hitchman for tomatoes. A specimen plant of Nephrolepis Smithi, exhibited by J. W. Everitt, was awarded a cultural certificate and a vase of early flowering chrysanthemums, exhibited by H. Goodbrand, was given a vote of thanks. J. Holloway was also given a vote of thanks for a fine display of outdoor fruit.

The annual dahlia show of the society will be held in Pembroke hall, October 7. Schedules may be had

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

HYDRANGEAS.

"A Bird in the Hand"—You know the adage. Well, a Hydrangea in America is worth several azaleas in Belgium right now. Of course, the azaleas may get out of Belgium; we don't know; conditions may change; certainly it is not possible to get anything out of Belgium at present. The war may end next week, but the chances are it won't. Are you going to take that chance? Can you afford to depend altogether on imported forcing stock? When there is plenty of good forcing stock right here at home—"Made in America"—stock that you know you can depend on?

HYDRANGEAS, for example. We offer Otaksa, with 7 to 10 branches, at $25 the 100; 5 to 6 branches at $20 the 100; 4 branches at $15 the 100. FRENCH NOVELTIES, all the best ones, at $5 the 100 addition for the same sizes. They are all in six-inch pots now, plunged outside, and growing like weeds, rich deep-green, healthy foliage and "fat" stems that promise big heads of bloom. They will grow into money for you, and you can cash 'em next Easter.

There won't be any surplus of blooming plants next spring. Stick a pin in that. We want every progressive florist to get in touch with us.

JACKSON & PERKINS COMPANY,
NEWARK, NEW YORK.

THE LEADING GROWER IN VERMONT.

I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years; it is heating 17,000 square feet of glass. NO OTHER BUT A PLATE BOILER FOR ME.

(Signed) H. M. TOTMAN, RANDOLPH, VERMONT.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO., 452 WEST ERIE ST.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Kansas City.

HOT WEATHER INCREASES SUPPLY.

The past week has found this section in a belt of extremely hot weather, for this time of the year with quite a bit of rain, and frequent wind storms. The market is advancing in the supply of stock, which is very plentiful in some lines, especially good roses in the varieties of Mrs. Russell, Milady, Ophelia, Sunburst, American Beauties and the Killarneys, which find ready buyers. The lilies are plentiful and the carnations are a little better, both in quality and quantity. Asters were very plentiful, and the new asparagus green is coming in, with supplies taking a jump.

NOTES.

Geo. M. Kellogg's Flower and Plant Co. had a fire August 6, which started in the basement about 11 a. m. The lightning struck the smoke stack at the greenhouses and tore it down one-fourth of the way. Mr. Parker of this firm started to go into a closet where the store supplies are kept and in the dark jabbed a large nail in his head, which was very painful, and made a very bad wound. This firm had a decoration last week for a church wedding in Kansas City, Kan., using over five loads of palms and decorative plants.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that business is picking up fine, and fall trade looks prosperous. They are receiving some very good asters with large flowers and long stems from Colorado; also, some good roses and a contract has been closed with Mr. Stevens for all of his carnations for this season. The supply line is good with the pot business picking up, having filled one order this week amounting to $140.

R. S. Brown & Son are cutting plenty of stock for funeral work, and are now cutting some fine cold storage lilies. This firm is growing more ferns this year and not so many chrysanthemums. Mr. Brown has purchased 45 acres of good land in Johnson county, Kan., as an investment.

H. Kusik & Co. are receiving some fine Russell, Milady, Ophelia, Sunburst, American Beauties and Killarney roses, which find a ready sale. The asters are very plentiful and the carnations are a little better. This firm received a car load of moss the past week, which is selling fast.

Arthur Newell reports business in general as good, having made a special the past week of baskets filled with flowers for the sick and hospital work. The baskets were filled to carry out the autumn effect.

W. J. Barnes was very busy with funeral work last week, also decorating one of the large dry goods store for their fall milinery opening.

PLEASE

Send us a post card giving the number of Carnations you grow in a short row, crosswise of the bench, and we will send you our Improved Continuous Ring Supports for 100 plants, free of charge. Be sure and state the number of plants in a row, as we furnish as many rings in each connected stradd as the grower has Carnations crosswise of his bench.

These Carnation Supports overcome the objectionable features of all other makes.

Mr. Stevens is cutting about 1,000 carnations every other day, the chrysanthemums are looking good and he expects to cut in a few days. His asparagus green is looking fine.

Biederman & Sons report funeral work A-1 with the decorations picking up. The stock in the greenhouses is looking good.

Jacob Tobelar is repairing the greenhouses and building a boiler shed. The trade has been very good with him.

Business across the line is picking up, with plenty of funeral work and a prospect of quite a lot of decorating.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Good Times Predicted By Prominent Men In Our Trade Organizations.

In the East.

The 1915 season should be one of the best cut flower seasons we have had for years. Many have taken the pessimistic view that business in general, and the florist business in particular, has gone to the bad and that it will be a long time before it recovers, giving as the main reason the European war. I can not agree with this general view of the situation. For a year before the European outbreak there was a general slump which the first six months of the war did not help, but as the public got over the scare and loosened its grip on money we experienced the best business we have ever had during April, May and June, and I feel sure the coming season will be as good as any of its predecessors. The loss of steamer business is really over-balanced by those liberal travelers who are spending this season's income at home. The present strong speculation stock market conditions mean much to the entire flower industry here.

FRANK H. TRAENDLY, New York,
Ex-President S. A. F.

Florists' Plant Trade.

We have had the best August and September demand of any previous year. Decorative stock for retail florists is moving out very satisfactorily, which I think is a very good barometer. This fall's demand for herbaceous stock for the lawn and garden from our catalogue trade is very heavy from all over the country. We are somewhat handicapped in not having a few specialties like bay trees, boxwoods, acacias, camellias, and a few other odd things for which we have to depend on European growers, and which may or may not come, or be in unsalable condition when they arrive. In general, however, we are better supplied than ever. Our stocks of palms and foliage plants are very complete. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and I feel that with so much foreign war money coming into the country florists should be able to turn a lot of it into plants and flowers, peace products that create and carry sunshine wherever they go.

J. D. EISELE,
Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.

In the South.

The prospects for florists and horticulturists in the south were never brighter for a prosperous year's business than for the coming season. I have had many communications from florists throughout the south, and they are certainly optimistic. Cotton prices are soaring higher and higher and higher. We are having bumper wheat and other grain crops. Consequently our farmers are prosperous, thereby increasing the bank deposits and keeping our merchants busy. New skyscrapers, new homes, new pavements are giving our material concerns all they can do and employ great numbers of laborers. The florists and horticulturists do not know that war exists, insofar as business is concerned. I firmly believe the coming year will be the most prosperous we have ever seen.

R. C. KERR, Houston, Tex.,
Vice-President-Elect S. A. F.

On the Pacific Coast.

The trade conditions around San Francisco in both the retail stores and nurseries have been unusually good during the past year. There is every indication of a continuance of such conditions. Wholesale florists pronounce 1915 better by far than any previous year. Retailers report similarly. An evidence of the prosperity in the retail stores in San Francisco is shown by the fact that employes in most of the larger establishments were compelled to forego their regular vacations owing to the pressure of business. September, 1915, finds more prospective work and more advance contracts for landscaping and ornamental planting than in any previous year.

D. MACRORIE, San Francisco,
President-Elect S. A. F.

In the West.

Merchants here are generally reporting better business than a year ago. Crops are fine, while mining and stock industries are prosperous and the labor situation is satisfactory. Reports from southern sections tributary to Denver are conflicting, but business from there holds up in volume, while collections are better than at the same season last year. The florists' business will probably recover more slowly than staple lines, but I am optimistic and anticipate a good season, with a tendency to higher prices.

J. A. VALENTINE, Denver, Colo.,
EX-President S. A. F.

The Seed Trade.

I am of the opinion that prospects of the American seed trade are such as to inspire the greatest confidence. In some instances we are confronted with short crops, but the situation is not so bad as to seriously embarrass the trade as a rule. We have reason to believe the farmers and market gardeners averaged fair crops, and while some of the market gardeners' products have been sold at low prices, the abundant yield has in most instances offset this disadvantage. With money plentiful, and farmers securing a fair share of the prosperity of the country, the seed trade may look with confidence to the future.

JOHN M. LUPTON, Mattituck, N. Y.,
Pres. American Seed Trade Ass'n.

The Nursery Trade.

The outlook for the nursery trade might be considered good. Most firms report agency business very good. The volume of sales in this branch is about up to the average. The tendency is to book fewer orders for fall delivery, which reduces the demand for stock for fall delivery. Mail order trade is usually very limited for fall delivery. Buyers are purchasing very cautiously. This feature is having a tendency to cause the growers to weaken and prices are averaging lower than the supply really justifies. I believe that most lines of stock will clean up reasonably well by the time the spring trade is taken care of.

E. S. WELCH, Shenandoah, Ia.,
Pres. Am. Ass'n of Nurserymen.

Lily of the Valley.

The outlook for the importation of lily of the valley looks very doubtful. The shipping of German goods to the United States at present is at a standstill, and there does not seem to be any relief in sight, unless our government would force or insist upon the English government not interfering with our trade in non-contraband goods to and from neutral ports. However, conditions may improve before the season is over, and our shippers will undoubtedly try to get lily of the valley over if there is a possible chance to do so.

H. N. BRUNS, Chicago.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mrs. J. A. Phillips, proprietor of The Flower Shop, Fourteenth and Harvard streets, defeated all other contestants in a popularity contest and will take a trip to the Panama-Pacific exposition, with all expenses paid.

Flowers at a Store Opening.

Of late years a pleasing feature of many store openings has been the "good luck" and "good wishes" floral designs sent by friends of the proprietors. This custom seems to be on the increase in New York and it is pleasing to the florists as well as to the recipients. The most elaborate display of this kind that has ever come to our notice was seen September 20 at the opening of Bedell's Fashion Shop, a store for women, at 19 West 34th street, New York. In addition to many baskets and large bunches of American Beauty roses there were a number of elaborately arranged designs, all bearing inscriptions voicing good wishes and good will. It is a conservative estimate that the total cost of the floral display was considerably over $1,000. Noteworthy designs were arranged by Alexander Warendorff, Young & Nugent, and Charles Abrams of Brooklyn. All these, surrounded by what the proprietors said were "the most exclusive styles in women's dress," made a fine picture.

A. F. F.

The Debutante.

What a boon to the flower trade is the debutante? What a wealth of flowers is necessary as a setting for this lovely young lady just stepping on the threshold of life? Everyone wishes her well and accompany their good words with dainty blossoms, which go a great way to make the occasion memorable to the fair bud, and all her friends as well. Nothing appears too good for the work these occasions demand. The longest stemmed American Beauty roses, the choicest orchids, expensive colonial bouquets, elaborately made baskets, all tied with the choicest ribbons, are all more or less used, according to the circumstances of the family.

The newer varieties of roses introduced the past two or three years, like Sunhurst, Mrs. Ward, Bulgaria, Mrs. Shawyer, Cecile Brunner, Hadley and others together with the old favorites now afford great variety and where a number of bouquets are ordered for one such occasion, it is possible to have no two alike yet all of equal value if desired. Colonial bouquets of small buds are considered very chic. They bring a good price as they are tedious to make, something else should be suggested when time presses on a busy day. Close buds of any of the varieties in short grades are available for this work. Little Sweet-heart buds and valley also work in nicely.

BASKETS.

Many offerings take the form of baskets. The customer, who has sent a number of bouquets or clusters, thinks something different would be better this time and selects a basket that is filled with a combination, mostly as the florist suggests. The brown Jap baskets with zinc lining arranged with Sunburst roses are much favored, as when nicely tied with a two-toned ribbon to match the flowers, they are very attractive. A few gardenias add a distinctive touch.

WIRED CARNATIONS IN CLUSTER.

SPRAY OF WHITE KILLARNEY ROSES, ORCHIDS AND LILY OF THE VALLEY.

The soft, pliable hat baskets are also much in evidence when nicely arranged with roses, all one color or in combination. The Mrs. Ward, in not too large a receptacle, is much admired. A little valley with the bow of ribbon adds a finish. Long stemmed American Beauties, with a bunch of violets or valley, Sweetheart or other small roses where the ribbon is tied, offer a contrast to the great size of the larger roses, and is sure to get a second look.

COMBINATIONS.

There are so many combinations possible with the great variety of flowers now in the market and which appears to be ever increasing, that it is hard to single any one out as better than another. Mignonette, together with cypripediums, make an all green bunch or basket that is very striking. The stunning new red Rose Hadley with its rich velvety sheen is catching on rapidly; what a wonderful color, so full of life. A bunch of valley to one side of a bouquet of this newcomer makes a sure winner. Snapdragon in its various shades is much used to add variety to basket arrangements. Plants of brilliant hued crotons, or branches cut off, work well into baskets of chysanthemums. Clusters of choice blooms of the "Queen of Autumn" are very conspicuous; a few pompons where the ribbons are tied make a pleasing finish.

ORIGINALITY.

In all of this work an effort should always be made to show originality; just placing one flower below another until all are used up is not enough. How different one man's work is from that of another's, even when both are good. How often we see high grade stock tightly bunched together or used with apparently no thought as to the proper contrasting of colors. A plain bunch or cluster of roses, all one color, is improved and made to look quite different by the addition of a few buds of another color placed a little to one side of the center, or added where the ribbon is tied. They should be rather close together to make an effective spot of color.

Along with dainty ribbons are now used butterflies of spun glass, which attached to the handles of baskets or the centers of clusters on tiny spring wire, appear to hover about with every draft motion or tremor of the house. K.

Postal Automobile Delivery.

FACTS ABOUT OPERATING COSTS.

More than 500 automobile rural routes have been authorized by Postmaster General Burleson. Of these 288 are in operation. Their preliminary experience has convinced postal authorities that the new service will greatly improve the farmer's mail and express facilities. Time schedules are better maintained and routes more regularly served in all weather conditions by automobile than by horse-drawn vehicle. Forcasts that the automobiles could not do 50 to 60 miles a day upon regular schedule are not borne out. Temporary carriers, appointed by the postmasters of the communities whence the new auto routes emanate, are providing the present service. The first permanent carriers, chosen by civil service examination, have now been named. They are Fred W. Zuch and Edward K. Terry and they will serve the two pioneer routes, established July 1, at Quarryville, Pa. Appointments of other permanent carriers will now follow rapidly.

At salaries of $1800 a year, Zuch and Terry will be required to furnish their own machines and wear uniforms corresponding to those worn by the city letter carriers. Letters of instruction are being sent to them inclosing a blue print showing the type of automobile body which the department deems most suitable. It is the desire of the department to standardize the rural automobiles as far as possible. Similar letters will be sent to other permanent carriers when appointed.

Under the existing maximum salary of $1,200, many rural carriers are providing and using automobiles on routes varying from 24 to 30 miles in length. They do so because they believe the auto more economical and reliable. Interesting reports from carriers now using automobiles are being received by the department. A Kansas carrier, now using a light machine over a 29½-mile route, declares the higher salary will fully meet the additional cost to the carrier of serving the larger routes and leave him a larger net income than rural carriers have ever received. First speaking of his present situation, this carrier says that "although we have had a very wet year, and all my roads are dirt roads, my expense has not been any greater than those who carry with horses and rigs. I have been out in some very heavy rains, have all kinds of roads and have never been pulled in." Then the Kansas carrier gives his experience as to cost, as follows:

Set of tires (average life 6,000 miles) $60.

Gasoline. 1 gallon to 15 miles at 15 cents a gallon, though he is now paying 11 cents, $60.

Oil, 1 gallon to every 150 miles at 45 cents a gallon, $18.

Depreciation, (Based on 72,000 miles as the life of his car), $40.

Repairs per 6,000 miles, $30.

Cost of operation per 6,000 miles, $208.

From the above, the cost of operation per mile comes to $0.03466. Applying this figure to his 29½-mile route, this carrier found this to be his outgo for running expenses:

To serve route 250 days by auto at $1.02 per day, $255.

To hire horse and conveyance at $1.50 a day for 57 days, or during the period in which he could not use the machine, $85.50.

Cost to serve route, $340.50.

Deducting $340.50 from his $1,200 salary, the carrier's net income now is $859.50. Applied to a 55-mile route, it works out thus:

To serve route 250 days, $477.50,

To hire substitute at $3.33 a day to cover that part of route which the regular carrier could not do by horse-drawn conveyance during the period in which he could not use his machine, and to hire horse and conveyance at $1.50 a day to do the remaining half of the route for 57 days, $270.50.

Total cost of serving the long route, $758.00.

Hence, this carrier, if he received $1800 a year for covering 55 miles six days a week, figures that his net income would be $1042—or $200 more than he is now getting.

The following table shows by states the number of motor routes thus far established and authorized:

Chicken Manure as Top Dressing.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Kindly advise me as to how much chicken manure should be used as a top dressing for chrysanthemums.

Missouri. L. LEC.

Chicken manure should be used with caution as a fertilizer for any kind of plants. Personally, I have never been able to get any better results from the use of chicken manure than from cow or horse manure—and the latter are safer to use. I would advise the inquirer to use the manure in weak liquid form on a small scale at first to note the effect on the plants. An ordinary bucket full of the manure to a barrel of water and let stand a couple of days before using will be plenty strong enough. Should the liquid appear to be too strong, dilute with more water before applying to the plants.

C. W. JOHNSON.

New York State Federation of Floral Clubs

The annual meeting of this organization was held at the office of Commissioner Wilson at the state fair grounds, Syracuse, Thursday, September 16. There were present: President W. F. Kasting, Vice-President Earl A. Bates, Secretary John Young, Treasurer W. A. Adams, and Messrs. F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown; C. H. Vick, Rochester; Prof. Lumsden, Ithaca, N. Y.; Henry Youell, Syracuse; Baker, Syracuse; Workman, Oswego; R. H. Bard, Syracuse; Dr. Mills, president of the Syracuse Rose Society; Moeller, Ithaca; Eastwood, Auburn; George Thorp, Syracuse; Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca; A. Bard, Syracuse; Fail, Ithaca; Bultman, Syracuse; Morgan, Auburn; Sheeran, Syracuse. President Kasting occupied the chair.

The report of the committee appointed to consider the question of whether a state society would be more beneficial than the federation was received and discussed. The committee was of the opinion that a state federation of organized interests would accomplish more than a society made up of individual interests. The delegates present sharing the same opinion, the suggestion was adopted, and the committee discharged with thanks.

Some discussion ensued as to the advisability of changing the name of the organization, so that it included "Horticultural Societies," and thus become better descriptive of the federation, and on motion of F. R. Pierson seconded by Dr. Bates, it was resolved that the name be changed to read "New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs."

The subject of the movement to obtain an appropriation of $60,000 from the state for the erection of greenhouses for the purpose of carrying on experimental work with flowers and vegetables came up for discussion. President Kasting reported the vetoing of the bill passed by both houses, and expressed his opinion that the only course was to have the bill introduced again. Messrs. Pierson, White, Vick, Thorp, Bates and others presented their views on the matter, and finally on motion of Mr. Pierson, seconded by Mr. Thorp, it was resolved that a committee of three be appointed to meet with the trustees of Cornell University, and determine if possible upon the most adequate framing of a new bill. It was the consensus of opinion that the trustees of the university should add to their regular budget for state appropriations an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the proposed buildings. If this were not feasible, it was understood that a bill should be introduced as before. The president appointed Messrs. Pierson and Vick, with himself, as such committee.

The next subject for discussion was the necessity of a building at the state fair, embodying means for taking proper care of exhibits of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, the quarters now in use not being suitable for the necessary preservation of exhibits during the fair period. Messrs. Pierson, Bates, Kasting, Thorp, White, Vick, and others took prominent parts in the discussion, and many suggestions as to the best way to secure the required facilities were offered. It was very generally agreed upon, that if a suitable horticultural building were erected at the head of Empire court, the florists would see that a very creditable planting of flower beds around it was carried out, stock to be donated, and the only cost to be defrayed being the labor of planting, and taking care of the beds. Such a planting would give this section of the grounds a park-like appearance, and render them pleasing to visitors, in striking contrast to their present appearance which was practically offensive. On motion of Dr. Bates, seconded by Mr. Pierson, it was resolved that a committee of two be appointed to confer with the Western New York State Horticultural Society, the New York State Fruit Growers' Association, and the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association, and solicit their co-operation in an effort to evolve ways and means for getting an appropriation for the erection of a suitable building. Dr. Bates and Mr. Kasting were chosen as such committee. The discussion lasted some time, and much enthusiasm was evident.

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, president; Dr. Earl A. Bates, Syracuse, first vice-president; Chas. H. Vick, Rochester, second vice-president; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, third vice-president; John Young, New York, secretary; W. A. Adams, Buffalo, treasurer. The chair appointed F. R. Pierson chairman of the legislative committee, and George Thorp chairman of the state fair committee, and they were given power to strike their own committees.

The report of the treasurer showed a substantial balance in the treasury.

The meeting adjourned until next February, when there will be a meeting in Ithaca, during Farmers' Week. It was the most interesting meeting held since the organization of the federation.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Orchids From Burma.

Consul Maxwell K. Moorhead writes from Rangoon, July 31, as follows:

"The Agri-Horticultural Society of Burma, Kandawglay, Rangoon, is now in a position to collect and ship orchids to the United States. Owing to the alternating dry and wet and cool and hot seasons, the orchids should be collected during December and January and packed and dispatched from Rangoon during February. Orders should be received in Rangoon not later than November 15. The following orchids can be collected to order, the prices given being for 100 plants: Cypripedium bellatulum, $16.22; C. Parishii, $11.35; C. Spicerianum, $24.33; Dendrobium crassinode, $16.22; D. formosum giganteum, $12.97; D. chryso-toxum, $12.97; D. fimbriatum, $9.73; D. nobile, $16.22 to $32.44; D. thrysiflorum, same; D. Dalhousianum, same; D. Wardianum, same; Vanda coerulea, same; V. Kimballiana, $9.73; V. teres, $9.73; Saccolobium Blumei, $9.73.

"These prices are for good plants. Extra selected specimens of some kinds will be more in proportion to size."

ALTOONA, PA.—Meyer Bros. are now located in their new flower shop at Allegheny and Penn streets.

Italian Horticultural Convention

At a conference held in Rome in 1914, representatives of this country signed a convention setting forth restrictions on the trade in plants that they were prepared to recommend their governments to carry out. The restrictions, if agreed to, will very seriously affect the horticultural trade of this country. They have, however, not yet been carried out, nor has this country assented to them, but sooner or later the subject will come up again, and it behooves the horticultural industry in this country to be ready for that time.

If this country assents to this convention, how will it affect the trade? Firstly, all nurseries and establishments supplying plants, seeds, etc., will be registered, licensed and inspected. Secondly, all nurseries will have to notify at once the appearance of certain scheduled diseases. Thirdly, they will have to adopt standard methods of dealing with certain diseases, spraying, fumigating, tipping or the like. Fourthly, their methods of packing and transport will be inspected and controlled. Fifthly, they will have to obtain for each consignment of living plants destined for sale or for export, a certificate from an inspector as to its freedom from certain diseases or as to the nursery itself being free from certain diseases.

This last will, perhaps, be the most troublesome, as it involves the inspection of each consignment by an inspector before it is packed and after it is packed. The consignment must be packed according to the instructions, and the certificate specifying its contents must go with it.

A further clause in the convention lays down that plants cannot be imported from any country that either does not adhere to the convention or that has no service of officials for giving certificates, so that all importation of any plant at all, say, from China or Tibet, would appear to be absolutely stopped.

There is no question but that this procedure is going to be troublesome.

gards imports and exports respectively? What are these, where do they go to, where do they come from? Are the imports of new wild plants from, say China, more important than the import of cultivated new varieties from Europe? If a clause in the convention concerns, let us say, the importation of Japanese maples and deciduous nursery stock from Japan, are we affected or not?

There are countless points of this sort which can only be answered by a knowledge of what the imports and exports are, what kinds of plants, of necessary information on which to judge whether to recommend adhesion to the convention, whether to stand aside, or whether to ask the government to seek to modify it.

It is impossible in a single article to make clear what the effect of the convention will be, but I propose in the next to explain the regulations already adopted in France in anticipation of this convention being adopted. Whether this country adheres or not, the effect will be far-reaching, and we hope the trade will give the committee the help it needs by filling up the forms and returning them when completed to the secretary, Royal Horticultural Society. The information will be treated as strictly confidential, and the only use made of it will be to compile tables of the total imports and exports of living plants, with the countries of origin or destination.

H. M. LEFROY.

[The above article written by Professor Lefroy with the object of pointing out to nurserymen and others engaged in export trade, the importance of providing the information required by the committee which is at present engaged in an inquiry into the possible bearing of the Rome convention on the horticultural trade of this country, has been forwarded to us by Mr. F. Keeble, Director, Royal Horticultural Society Gardens, Wisley.—Editor.]—Horticultural Trade Journal.

European Flower Trade in War Time.

A curious phase of the effects of the war on popular sentiment is shown in the constant demand for flowers. A visiting Hollander stated last winter that the one business which escaped depression in Holland was the trade in cut flowers. "Among the horrors that surround us," said he, "the sight of the brightness and beauty of plants and flowers seems to have become a necessity."

In France, the Revue Horticole of July 16 expresses the same fact. Growers in the south of France quite abandoned themselves to the general depression at the outbreak of hostilities. Later tentative shipments of cut flowers meeting with ready sale, although at moderate prices, plantings and cuttings were resumed, and the general results have been very satisfactory.

BOSTON GARDENERS' AND FLORISTS' CLUB FIELD DAY.
On the Grounds of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co. Sept. 11.

Is it worth it? If this country does not adhere to the convention what will happen? Its export trade in plants with adhering countries will cease to a large extent, if not wholly. It will be unable to send any living plants into any of the twenty-five countries that have joined the convention. It will be able to send plants to the United States, but only by carrying out a similar procedure in order to satisfy their requirements. Whether to adhere or not is evidently a very difficult question, and a joint committee formed under the auspices of the Royal Horticultural Society has been engaged on this problem. Clearly there are many things to be taken into account. What diseases are there which we do not desire to be admitted into this country? Where do they come from and how? Have we suffered in the past from introduced diseases? Will the convention's restrictions keep diseases out or will they simply restrict trade and be of no use?

To answer these questions we must have information and we are using this interval to get that information so that when the time arrives for discussion the trade can take up a definite position and back it with facts. We have collected information about the diseases and pests which have been carried from country to country in the past and what carried them. We have information about the restrictions on trade at present in force. We have information about the diseases which do not exist in this country and which we do not want admitted; but we have no information as to the trade itself in this country, and this is a necessary part of the inquiry.

Particularly we require this: What is the position of the industry as re-what value and amount, where from and where to, and whether the imported plants are from the forest or jungle or from foreign nurseries.

In the hope of getting this information, the Royal Horticultural Society has addressed a letter to every firm dealing in live plants. Attached are forms so prepared that each firm may give, with the least trouble, the information that the committee wants, and the committee very strongly urges all members of the trade to give the information asked for. Sooner or later a decision will have to be taken.

The board of agriculture has intimated that it will not adhere to the convention if it be against the interests of the trade, and it is extremely important that the trade should have the Fourth National Flower Show, Phil'a, Pa.

Preparations for the Fourth National Flower Show, to be held in Philadelphia, March 25 to April 2 next, are in active progress. Space in the areas set apart for the trade exhibits is being freely reserved, and at present the bookings amount to over $4,000 in the aggregate. One exhibitor who had booked for a liberal space, recently increased his booking to 1,200 square feet, equivalent to a $1,200 stand.

Chairman George Asmus of the National Flower Show committee will call a meeting of his committee shortly, at which the second preliminary schedule will be settled. The schedule will include the American Carnation Society's premiums and the carnation section; this section will, it is expected, have more than usual prominence, for the reason that the A. C. S. is to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary or silver jubilee at this show.

The American Rose Society and American Sweet Pea Society's premiums, with the sectional premiums, will also appear in the new schedule. Special prizes offered by H. A. Dreer, Inc., H. F. Michell Co., Inc., John Cook, Zandberger Bros., of Holland, and others will also be announced.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society has decided to abandon its customary spring show for 1916 and to throw its influence into the work of the National Flower Show, and to this end has appointed W. F. Therkildsen, Robt. Craig and David Rust a committee to act in conjunction with the National Flower Show committee.

J. Otto Thilow, chairman of the lecture committee has the work of his committee well in hand and the lectures will be an important feature of the show. The committee on special features and the other local committees are all making good progress and have their plans well on the way to completion.

Much favorable comment by the trade has been passed upon the two plantings outside the exhibition hall which have been very conspicuous this summer and have helped considerably to attract attention to the forthcoming show. H. A. Dreer, Inc., and H. F. Michell Co., Inc., who provided these plantings are to be commended for their interest and forethought.

Treasurer F. R. Newhold of the Horticultural Society of New York, who is taking a very active and kindly interest in the show, has obtained promises of assistance from the members of several ladies' garden clubs and societies, and he reports that all seem ambitious to even outdo the efforts of the ladies whose excellent assistance was such an important feature of the success of the 1915 New York show. That the show has the interest and attention of the trade in all its branches throughout the country is evident from the letters received at the secretary's office, and there is every prospect that the national exhibition of 1916 will eclipse all preceding flower shows.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

The Cleveland Show.

The Cleveland flower show, already the most talked about event of the trade of the present year, is making a new bid for popularity by offering to share its profits with the trade exhibitors. The executive committee of the Cleveland flower show is so encouraged by the present outlook for the exposition to be held November 10-14, that they recently announced 25 per cent of the net profits would be turned pro rata to the trade occupying space in the show. This is the first floral exposition to emulate Henry Ford, and the decision was reached after the executive committee found that the present sale of space and the prospect for an unusually large attendance at the show more than guaranteed the sum necessary to put on the show. The Cleveland dealers are not in the show for individual profit and have made it a co-operative enterprise by setting aside a liberal share of the profits for exhibitors.

At a joint meeting of the executive and general committees of the Cleveland flower show held Friday evening, September 17, in the Hollenden hotel, steps were taken to establish a new precedent for the conducting of flower shows. A motion was unanimously passed, giving the trade exhibitors the right to reserve 25 per cent net profit of the show to be divided among them pro rata according to amount of space occupied by each, with the provision that none is to reserve more than 50 per cent of the total amount paid for space.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one being attended by practically a full membership. S. Prentiss Baldwin, chairman of executive committee; Wm. G. Mather, president Ohio Horticultural Society; H. P. Knoble, general chairman all show committees; together with F. A. Friedley, Timothy Smith, Herbert Bate, F. C. W. Brown, C. E. Russell, H. P. Merrick and George Bate, were present. That the general outlook for the show could not be better was demonstrated by the reports made by the chairmen of the various committees represented. It is expected that the space allowed for trade exhibitors will be oversold before the end of the present month.

Import Permits.

EDITOR AMERICAN FLORIST:

I am in receipt of the following information from the Merchant Association of New York. Will you be kind enough to give it the necessary publicity through your paper, and oblige?

"Referring to previous correspondence relative to your desire to bring forward from Rotterdam goods of Belgian origin, I have to inform you that the department has received from the American ambassador at London the following telegram, dated September 8: "2769, September 8. Foreign office today sends me printed form now being sent to all persons desiring to export goods of Belgian origin from Holland. Form is as follows:

"The under secretary of state for foreign affairs presents his compliments to Messrs. — and, in reply to their letter of the —, relative to the exportation from Belgium to — of — is directed by Secretary Sir E. Grey to state that his majesty's consular officer at the port of shipment will be instructed to issue the necessary permit as soon as Messrs. — have produced to the satisfaction of the Foreign Office:

"First. A declaration or certificate from the competent Belgian local or municipal authority that the goods in question are of Belgian origin or manufacture; and

"Second. A written guarantee from a bank in this country that the purchase money for the goods has been deposited with them, and will not be withdrawn, without the special authorization of his majesty's government, during the continuance of the occupation of Belgium by the enemy; or alternatively clear evidence that the purchase money was remitted to Belgium before July 31, 1915, such as an affidavit of the bank in a neutral country through which the money was remitted."

"Please request persons approaching embassy in cases of this description to furnish documents set forth above.

Unless you have submitted to the office of the foreign trade advisers the necessary undertaking as to payment and the required proof of the Belgian origin of the goods you desire to import I suggest that you do so at once."

HOT WEATHER DEMORALIZES MARKET.

The extreme hot weather which we had this week completely demoralized the market. Quantities of flowers found no sale, and the retailers suffered from the lack of business as well as the grower. Roses were plentiful and sold at low figures. Practically any offer was taken to dispose of the surplus. Gladioli are not as plentiful, but prices do not vary from those of previous weeks. Quantities of carnations are seen but the market for them is very poor.

NOTES.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has commenced to cut Chrysanthemums Golden Glow and Smith's Advance. They also are shipping very fine lilies and asters. Their new garage has been completed and two motor trucks will be added to their delivery service.

The florists of Boston are organizing a bowling club to be known as the Boston Florists' Bowling Association. Application for membership may be sent to J. Sloan at the Boston Flower Exchange.

David Duncan of Arlington was on the sick list this week with an attack of ptomaine poisoning. He has recovered sufficiently at the time of writing to resume his business.

Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., have added a White delivery car to their service. Considering the dull times, their business during the summer has been very satisfactory.

A. M. Eaton of South Sudbury is cutting a fine lot of carnations at present. His Matchless, Alice and Ward are especially good.

Robert Montgomery and wife, of Natick, returned from their summer cottage at Bustus Island, Maine, September 24.

BUSINESS IS ON THE INCREASE.

The demand during the past week has shown a substantial increase, and with stock not quite as plentiful as it has been, some of the trade found it difficult to get what was required for special orders. Funeral work has been plentiful, and the demand for decorations on the increase. American Beauty roses are short in supply, but there is a more plentiful stock of Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady and Killarneys, all of which find ready sale. Carnations are improving in quality, and are more plentiful, and chrysanthemums are coming in better. Lilies are still to be had and dahlias are very plentiful and of excellent quality.

NOTES.

H. Kusik & Co. report trade very good, the demand for supplies being especially heavy. They have some very fine home-grown carnations, and chrysanthemums, both in pink and white, are arriving in larger quantities and are much better in quality than heretofore. Roses are in great demand, orders being received for quantities in excess of the receipts. Henry Kusik spent three days in Chicago on business last week.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving some very fine Colorado grown gladioli, and their carnation stock is better than it has been for some time. The rose receipts are not equal to the demand and clean up before they reach the ice-box. Here's hoping it keeps up all winter.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports good business, both in funeral work and decorations. The out-of-town trade is picking up, but for the past week or so high water in this section has interfered with this branch of the business.

J. B. Masson says his carnations, roses and chrysanthemums are looking fine and he is expecting big crops. His repairs are all completed, and his houses are in splendid shape for winter.

Samuel Murray used yellow and pink dahlias in his window decorations during the past week, and the artistic arrangements were much admired and favorably commented upon.

J. Austin has practically finished repairs and straightening up after the hail storm that did considerable damage to his range. Stock here is coming along nicely.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. had some very attractive window decorations during the past week, wild flowers being used to carry out the artistic arrangements.

Ed. A. Humfeld says the chrysanthemums are coming along in excellent shape, and that stock in general at his establishment is first class.

M. E. Candler, of the Elmhurst Landscape & Nursery Co., is sending some very fine dahlias to the market, which find ready sale.

Patrick Larkin is fully prepared for the fall and winter trade and reports business so far has been good, especially in funeral work.

August Luther reports stock at his greenhouses as looking good. A big baby boy arrived at his house August 31.

Visitors: M. Anderson, representing A. J. Randall Co., Chicago; C. S. Ford, manufacturer's agent; Arthur Schwerin of the Burlington Willow Ware Co.; Frank J. Farney, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

WARM WEATHER CONTINUES.

The thermometer during the past week has continued to rise and business suffered considerably as a result, but a fair amount of funeral work has eased up the supply of cut flower stock. The funeral of Jesse B. Grice, ex-mayor of this city, occasioned a very heavy demand for flowers the latter part of the week.

The Bradley Flower Shop furnished the bouquets for the Mungovan-Young wedding, which was celebrated September 16. The bride's bouquet was a shower arrangement of White Killarney roses and swainsona blossoms, while the maid of honor carried Shawyer roses and the bridesmaid carried delicate pink asters.

Will J. Vesey, Jr., has returned from the state fair held in Indianapolis last week, and had a successful trip with business and pleasure combined.

The Flick Floral Company furnished a number of handsome floral offerings for the funeral of the late Jesse B. Grice, ex-mayor of this city. H. K.

Wisconsin State Fair.

The floral exhibits on a whole at the Wisconsin state fair for 1915 were, from the view of a professional, about the same as in former years, both as to quantity and quality. It is a pity that the time has not yet arrived where the members of the Wisconsin state board of agriculture and those of the Milwaukee Florists' Club co-operate in order to make the display of plants and cut flowers first, a credit to the trade; secondly, inducements to bring out more and better exhibits, and thirdly, a creditable factor for the fair itself. In regard to judging it has mostly been the same lingo with the exception of this year, when for the first time three practical florists served in that capacity. With a firm determination to adjust matters to secure better cooperation with the state fair board, the Milwaukee Florists' Club will begin the task at its October meeting and not wait till the time is too short and everyone too busy to make good. With a suitable exhibition place, a revised premium list and competent judges, just as served this year, the results all around would prove more instructive and ornamental than in the past.

Illinois State Fair.

The floricultural display of the Illinois State Fair was held at Springfield, in the Dome building of the fair grounds September 20-22, and was a great success. There was a good showing of plants and cut flowers as well as the usual number of retail exhibits, which is always one of the main features of the display. The principal exhibitors were the Capitol Greenhouses, George M. Brinkerhoff, Heimbreyer & Cole, Janssen Seed & Floral Co., A. C. Brown, Gullett & Sons, George A. Kuhl, Poehlmann Bros. Co., Bassett & Washburn, J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., A. T. Hey Floral Co. and the Charleston Greenhouses. Bassett & Washburn exhibited a vase of their new seedling carnation, Belle Washburn, and the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co. a vase of its new seedling carnation, Aviator.

TENDER stock outdoors may survive far into the fall in good condition if protected through the early frosts at small expense.

JOHN J. CANNING, the well known specialist in chrysanthemum plants, of Ardsley, N. Y., is studying how to move specimens with 17-foot spread.

SECRETARY ESLER, of the Florists' Hail Association, reports having paid $30,000 of losses since his return from the convention and booked nearly half a million feet of new business, over one-third of it east of Pittsburgh.

Personal.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., expects to reach home September 25.

Violet Prospects at Rhinebeck.

One of the leading growers of violets at Rhinebeck, N. Y., writes as follows, September 11: "The weather here in July and August was very wet and damp, which forced an abnormal growth in the violet plants, and made them soft. They are now getting affected with leafspot and crown rot, which is the result of the above named conditions."

Remailing Parcel Post Matter.

Complaints have been received by the Post Office department to the effect that parcel post matter is being held for postage in cases where post office addresses are changed because of rearrangements of rural routes. It is pointed out that such post-masters are in error since Section 595, Paragraph 5 of the Postal Laws and Regulations provides for the remailing of parcels without additional postage when post office addresses are changed "on account of the establishment of or a change in rural-delivery service."

EXAMINING COMMITTEES.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Otis street, Boston, Mass.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaetter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wieter (chairman), George Asmus, Wm. E. Tricker. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2.00 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and November 6, 13, 20, 27.

Due to annexation and the changing of street names the secretary's address now is 2134 West 110th street, Chicago.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

The Late Charles F. Hoffmeister.

Charles F. Hoffmeister, of Cincinnati, Ohio, died September 17 at his home in his fifty-sixth year, after an illness of three months' duration. Mr. Hoffmeister was connected with the Hoffmeister Floral Co. for about 14 years. During the last six years he has had his own greenhouse establishment at Ft. Thomas, Ky., where he specialized in the growing of sweet peas.

His wife, Mrs. Augusta P. Hoffmeister, a daughter, Miss Marie A. Hoffmeister, Otto H. Hoffmeister, associated with his brother in the Chas. Hoffmeister Floral Co., and Chas. H. Hoffmeister, an attorney at the Cincinnati bar, survive the deceased. Mr. Hoffmeister was a brother of the Misses Mary and Carrie Hoffmeister and August Hoffmeister of the Hoffmeister Floral Co., of Cincinnati.

Chicago Grand Floral Festival.

BIG PREMIUMS IN VARIOUS CLASSES.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Grand Floral Festival, held at the offices of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., September 16, much routine business was transacted. A. Henderson, W. N. Rudd, W. J. Keimel, N. P. Miller, George Asmus and M. Barker were in attendance. Considerable space was reported sold in the trade exhibits' department, including a number of the prominent retailers. Arrangements were made to materially extend the private gardeners' section of the premium list so as to conform to the wishes of exhibitors. A number of additional committees were suggested which will be announced as soon as completed.

The preliminary premium list is now ready and copies may be had on application to N. P. Miller, 179-183 North Wabash avenue, Chicago. The exhibition will be held at the Coliseum, November 9-14, and the liberal prizes include the following:

HOT WEATHER AND DULL TRADE.

Market conditions are practically unchanged from last week, so there is little we can offer in the way of news that has not been read before. The hot weather continues to bless us. Asters, good and poor, are flooding the market, and there are plenty of gladioli. Lilies and American Beauties are also in good supply. Business is on a slump for the present, but not much can be expected during this torrid heat. The far-sighted florists are taking advantage of the opportunity and are ordering their stocks of fall supplies and accessories now, instead of waiting until later, when time is money.

NOTES.

Wm. Loew returned from his convention trip September 11, reporting a delightful time. During his sight-seeing in Winnipeg he was arrested by a park policeman, charged with being a suspicious person. He proved later, however, that he was merely a visitor, just killing time, and had nothing up his sleeve as was suspected, whereupon he was released.

News comes from Clearfield, Pa., that Harry Bock, a florist of that place, discovered the cave of Davy Lewis, while hunting near Bedford. Lewis was the famous outlaw of 1815, who robbed to aid the poor families in and around Bedford.

The Woodville Floral Co., operating a range of glass at Woodville, has opened a new retail store on South Main street, West End, formerly called the borough of Temperanceville.

Wm. Colligan has resigned his position as floor salesman at the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

Nick Marron has returned from a long stay at Cambridge Springs, Pa.

DEMAND GOOD BUT SUPPLY HEAVY.

The demand in the market is active and steady, but is not as yet strong enough to take up the entire large supply of stock we are having at the time of this writing. The demand from out of town is good. Roses are in a large supply and generally of a pretty good quality. The list includes American Beauties, pink and white Killarney, Radiance, Ophelia, Russell, Taft and My Maryland. Easter lilies are plentiful and very good. Carnations are in a pretty good supply and excellent quality for the time of the year. Asters receipts are very heavy. Large cuts of good dahlias are coming into the market. Other offerings include gladioli, rubrums, a few auratum and lily of the valley and cosmos.

NOTES.

G. A. Beckman and wife, of Middletown, were in town last week buying stock for the floral parade in their city, scheduled for September 30. Other out of town buyers were Walter Gray and Henry Lodder, Hamilton, Ohio; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; G. W. Frisch, Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. Lampert, Xenia, Ohio.

C. E. Critchell recently furnished large quantities of wild smilax to Julius Baer, for the opening decoration at Kline's, also to Max Rudolph for the opening at the Alms & Doepke stores, and to the E. G. Hill Floral Co. for the Gidding store.

Visitors: Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York, and I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. H.

Cleveland.

SUPPLY OF STOCK DIMINISHES.

There is considerably less stock on the market this week than previously reported. Asters are on the toboggan, and stock now is generally small and poor. The extreme hot weather, and then the heavy rains, have nearly put outside stock out of the running. Gladioli still arrive in quantity and meet with a fair demand. Summer lilac, larkspurs and gaillardias are in good supply and clean up daily. Lily of the valley has been more plentiful. Orchids have been very scarce for some time. Easter lilies are equal to the demand. The warm weather has made dahlias very soft and they fall quite easily. Roses have shortened up some also, although just about enough to meet demands are arriving. American Beauties are good stock, with the demand excellent, and Kaiserin roses are still arriving. Ferns and adiantum are in good supply. The demand for flowers has been steadily increasing.

NOTES.

Geo. W. Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, arrived home September 19 after a seven weeks' trip through the west. He is feeling fine and looking well. Mrs. Smith, who has been in poor health for some time, remained in Colorado and will not return until she regains her health.

Last week was "style show week" and, as usual, the local florists got a few of the prizes. The Smith & Fetters Co. received honorable mention, and the J. M. Gasser Co. retail store was awarded a prize for its window.

The Cleveland Florists' Club bowling tournament will be held during flower show week, November 10-14. All who wish to take part in games please notify C. J. Graham, chairman of committee.

Johnson's Seed Store is offering a fine lot of fancy plants, such as swainsona, mignonette, cineraria, calendula and stocks.

R. Schiller, of Schiller the Florist, Chicago, stopped in Cleveland this week on his way east. C. F. B.

ATLANTA, GA.—Ralph S. Deans, well-known florist, has purchased one-half interest in the West View Floral Co., and has become manager of that concern.

STYLE WEEK BRINGS ACTIVE BUSINESS.

This week has been an active one in the florist business in our city, "Style week" among the merchants, calling out all palms and decorative plants from the florists, each one getting his share of the business, as every live merchant gaily dresses up his store for the occasion. Quantities of southern smilax were used also. The extremely hot weather which prevailed for the past week has about cleaned out the aster crop, but dahlias are taking their place. Funeral work kept all florists busy this week, business being unusually good the past four days.

NOTES.

The opening of the New Miami hotel, October 8, will call out all the best there is in plants and cut flowers, as more than 3,000 tickets have been sold for the charity ball given in connection with the event. Matthews, the Florist, has "carte blanche" order for the decorations both inside and out.

Miss Grace Hopper has severed her connection with Matthews the Florist and taken a position with Miami Floral Co., in their store at the Rike-Kumler Dry Goods Co.

Miss Dorothy Duerr of Newark, O., who has been employed by the Livingston Seed Co. at Columbus, Ohio, has accepted a position with Matthews, the Florist.

E. E. Schaeffer, manager of the Advance Floral Co., is again in business, having opened up a fine store on South Main street this week. He reports good business.

C. W. Hoffman, nurseryman, outside the city limits, has several acres of gorgeous dahlias. His entire crop is purchased by W. G. Matthews.

Miss Ethelyn Ruhl, of Lexington, Ky. and Gus Hirsch of this city will have charge of W. G. Matthews' new store in the Miami hotel.

Matthews, the Florist, will decorate the remodeled market house, using two hundred palms, 50 baytrees and 10 cases of southern smilax.

Dayton Floral Co. had two very busy days with funeral work for Franklin, making the trip both days in their big Buick truck.

Ed. Bissell, formerly with John Bohner, florist, is now private gardener for John Stoddard in Dayton View.

W. G. Matthews is in Chicago buying supplies for his new store in the Miami Hotel which opens October 8.

Bartholomew, south Broadway florist, reports an unusually good week on funeral work.

M. Ramsey of Bellbrook has some fine late asters that find a ready market.

Dreer's Herbaceous Peonies

We will begin to dig this season about September 15th, over one hundred thousand roots of the following choice varieties of our own growings, true to name, strong divisions, with from 3 to 5 eyes.

Double Herbaceous Peony.

	Par doz.	Per 100
Asa Gray. A very distinct flower, bright lilac, sprinkled with minute dots of deeper lilac in such a manner as to appear dusted on; blooms very large; mid-season.....	$3 50	$25 00
Andra Lauries. Strong vigorous grower with medium sized flower of deep Tyrian rose. $30.00 per 1000....	1 50	10 00
Augustin D'Hour. Brilliant dark red with slight silvery reflex. Very large, compact, bomb-shaped flower; mid-season.....	4 00	30 00
Arthemisa. A strong grower of upright habit, free bloomer in clusters, large, violet-rose with light mauve shadings. A good mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000	2 00	15 00
Agnes Mary Kelway. A tall, vigorous-growing variety of good habit and free bloomer, light violet rose with creamy white center, mid-season, very showy. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Couronne d'Or. Immense ball-shaped blooms, snow white with golden yellow stamens and delicate carmine markings on the central petals. Strong upright growth; one of the choicest late flowering varieties. $225.00 per 1000.....	3 50	25 00
Charlemagne. A very vigorous grower with strong stems and large compact, globular flowers. Lilac-white with a slight blush center. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Canary. One of the freest blooming varieties, of medium size; pure white guard petals with amber white center. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Duka of Wallington. An ideal cut-flower variety, large, well-formed flowers on long stiff stems, color sulphur-white, quite fragrant, one of the finest mid-season sorts. $100.000 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Duchessa de Namours. Superb cup-shaped flowers of sulphur-white changing to pure white. Particularly beautiful in the half-open bud state. $100.000 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Dr. Caillot. Blooms on long stems, brilliant Tyrian rose. A very striking late flowering variety.....	3 00	20 00
Duc de Cazes. Another of the really first-class Peonies for all conditions, never failing to produce an abundance of flowers for Memorial Day. Upright growth with large flat flowers of perfect shape, fine bright pink shaded violet, lighter center and silvery reflex. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
Edouard Andra. Compact growing variety, with globular semi-double flowers of dark carmine violet with metallic reflex, and golden yellow stamens. $100.00 per 1000	1 75	12 00
Eduis Superba. The earliest variety in our collection, being frequently a week ahead of any other sort, making it particularly valuable for Decoration Day sales in late seasons or in latitudes where other sorts will not bloom previous to that date. Also a variety which has done well, blooming freely under the most adverse conditions. Flowers of a deep rose pink with lighter shadings. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00

	Per doz.	Per 100
Eugene Verdier. Immense globular flowers, delicate flesh color deepening towards the center, tall stately grower and profuse bloomer, distinct and desirable.....	3 50	25 00
Felix Crousse. The ideal self-colored red Peony, large globular and compact, an even shade of bright red without trace of any other color, a strong vigorous grower with long stems make this variety one of the most important commercial cut flower sorts. $200.00 per 1000.....	3 50	25 00
Francois Ortegat. Brilliant crimson; full double flower, one of the richest dark varieties. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Festiva Maxima. This truly superb variety, the finest white in cultivation, has for nearly three-quarters of a century been the standard by which all other sorts have been judged. A giant in growth. No other variety combines the wonderful purity of color, freedom and earliness of flower, and handsome foliage as this "Queen of Peonies." This variety is probably better known throughout the world than any other. $180.00 per 1000.....	$2 50	$20 00
Louis van Houtte. One of the most conspicuous of the dark colored varieties, blooms are produced in clusters on strong upright stems well above the foliage, color rich dark crimson, developing a slight silvery tip as the flowers age, making quite an attractive color combination. $100.00 per 1000.....	1 75	12 00
L'Eclatante. Very large, showy, compact, brilliant, red flowers in clusters, vigorous growth, extra good commercial mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
L'Indispensable. Immense flowers of a delicate lilac pink with darker shading towards the center. Tall, upright grower and profuse bloomer. A very desirable late-flowering variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Lady Bramwell. A beautiful silvery-rose of fine form, a free-blooming and vigorous growing variety, together with the beautiful soft colored flowers make this one of the particularly attractive mid-season cut flower sorts. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Mme. Calot. One of the best of the early sorts, large flowers of a pale hydrangea pink color. Very delicate when cut in bud state. $180.00 per 1000.....	2 50	20 00
Mme. de Vernaville. Beautifully formed flower, very broad sulphur white guard petals and compact white center, touched carmine. A most chaste mid-season variety. $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Mme. Ducl. Perfectly formed globular flower, dwarf, vigorous habit, color bright silvery pink with salmon shadings and silvery reflex. Magnificent cut flower variety and fine bedder.....	3 50	25 00
Maria Jacquin. A variety especially adapted for landscape work, flowers semi-double, almost pure white with the yellow stamens partly visible in the center. Very aptly named "Water Lily Peony." $140.00 per 1000.....	2 00	15 00
Mme. Boulangier. A very choice delicate colored variety; in form not unlike a decorative cactus dahlia. The flowers of a soft lilac tinted white are formed of broad, regularly arranged petals of great substance, greatly enhancing the lasting qualities.....	5 00	40 00
Mons. Jules Elia. Probably the largest flowered Peony in cultivation; color pale lilac-rose with silvery reflex. Strong grower, pleasing fragrance and early.....	6 00	45 00

TRADE IS IMPROVING.

Business is much better at this writing that it has been for some time, and stock the opening of the present week was none too plentiful. Carnations are selling better and at times the markets is completely cleaned up, and it is impossible to fill all orders. Asters have seen their best days, and what little stock is arriving is of poor quality and shows the effect of the weather. Gladioli are still seen in good supply, but the receipts have dropped off considerably the past week, and while the season is nearly over, some fairly good stock is still being offered. Outdoor stock in general is not as plentiful as it has been, and in another week or so will not be much of a factor in the market, so an advance in prices in indoor flowers may be expected. Chrysanthemums are in good supply and have improved wonderfully in quality the past week. American Beauty roses are none too plentiful and what fancy stock is arriving is cleaning up nicely at good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good demand and are cleaning up well each day. Some especially fine Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Sunburst, Milady, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Hadley are arriving, but like all the other roses are selling readily. Gardenias are in much better supply and the same holds good for orchids, especially cattleyas, dendrobiums and oncidiums. Lily of the valley appears to be more plentiful than it has been, but continues to clean up at an early hour. Cecile Brunner, George Elgar and Fireflame roses are to be had and are being used largely in corsage and basket work. Lilies are in good supply and in fair demand. While short roses in general are arriving in larger quantities, there is a good market for them, but taken all in all business this week is starting off fine, and as the writer predicted in last week's market report, certain items are scarce and will continue to be for some time if business is at all good. The retail as well as wholesale florists report an improvement in trade, and it looks as

NOTES.

Bassett & Washburn, the well known wholesale florists, have leased new quarters in the Le Moyne building, where the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. are now located. Bassett & Washburn will occupy the store on the main floor, one door north of the E. C. Amling Co., which is 21x120 feet, and also the basement, which includes the space beneath the sidewalk. Their new lease reads to May 1, 1921, and C. L. Washburn says that they expect to move into their new home about October 1, after which date their business address will be 178 North Wabash avenue. An entire new set of store fixtures, including an icebox, will be installed, as well as an ice machine. The change in location should prove to be very beneficial, for this is one of the best stands in the great central market located on the ground floor.

F. H. Sherwood, son of Chas. Sherwood, well known florist of Waterloo, Ia., was in the city this week on business connected with the remodeling of a part of his father's range, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago. Mr. Sherwood leaves the business almost entirely in charge of his sons, F. H. and Albert, who look after the greenhouses, and Herbert W., who has charge of the store.

Miss Carrie Zech, who has been confined to the Presbyterian hospital with neuritis for several weeks, was able to go home this week and her many friends in the trade will be pleased to hear that she is in better health than she has been for some time.

BEAUTIES-ROSES-CARNATIONS

Weiland & Risch are showing a few blooms of their two new pink roses Champ Weiland and Feamma at their store this week. The variety Champ Weiland looks better to the writer every time he sees it, for it appears to be full of life and has the rose Mrs. Chas. Russell backed off the boards as far as color is concerned.

Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and wife, passed through the city September 19, on their way home from San Francisco, Calif., where they attended the S. A. F. convention and took in the sights at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

J. C. Craig has been busy with funeral work the past week at his store at 120 South Wabash avenue, and at the time of the writer's visit the Craig boys were making up a casket cover of lily of the valley in addition to several other large designs.

A. Vanderpoel, 4013 Colorado avenue, says that his wife, who broke her hip some time ago, is recovering as nicely as can be expected, and that if nothing unforeseen happens she will be removed from the hospital to her home this week.

Miss Martha Gunterberg writes from Portland, Ore., that she is having a delightful time in the mountains, where her party is doing most of their traveling on horseback. She is expected home in another week or two.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a noticeable increase in their shipping trade this week. Their local trade is also improving and stock of all kinds is cleaning up well right along now at this establishment.

Andrew Benson, superintendent of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses, is attending the state fair at Springfield this week, where Belle Washburn, the firm's new seedling carnation, is on display.

Al. Fischer, 2737 North Clark street, is having a good time in his Buick automobile, which was stolen from him the first week he had it, but was recovered by the police after a careful search.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are rapidly outgrowing their present quarters, due to increasing business, but manage to get out all orders on time, notwithstanding the fact that they are crowded for room.

The John C. Moninger Co. is building a private conservatory for Joy Morton at Wheaton and also one for Mrs. Maurice Rothschild on South Michigan avenue.

George Reinberg's wholesale store looks splendid since it has been painted, and meets with the approval of Manager Northam and his able force of assistants.

John Poehlmann, Jr., and A. F. Longren have charge of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s exhibits at the state fair at Springfield this week.

Louis Ancarola has returned from Wisconsin, where he spent his vacation, and is back on the job at the A. T. Pyfer & Co. store.

D. E. Freres' wholesale store looks real classy since the proprietor has dolled it up and presents a most inviting appearance.

A. Lange started the ball rolling this week by doubling his usual fall advertising space in two of the leading morning dailies with splendid results. Manager R. J. Mohr says that business is much better than it has been and that they have made a feature of gladioli the past few days. Miss Bupert will succeed Miss Olsen as book-keeper, who resigned for the same reason that many other charming young ladies do, and that is—well, coming events cast their shadows before. Miss Hass, another one of Mr. Lange's faithful employes, will act as cashier. Anthony Pagleno is again attending to his duties at the store after enjoying a pleasant visit at Oak Park.

At Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store the receipts of gardenias are considerably larger and choice stock in the line is obtainable at this store. The shipping trade continues to be very brisk at this hustling establishment and the force is kept on the jump at all times to fill and pack the steady stream of orders that keep continually arriving.

H. Van Gelder, the able manager at Percy Jones' wholesale store, does not use the street cars much these days since he bought his new Buick roadster. He is on the job at his place of business every day and has his chauffeur bring him down to work each morning and take him home at night in his car.

George Heim & Co., who succeeded Heim Bros. when they dissolved partnership at West Pullman, July 1, 1915, when his brother Ed sold out, has everything running along smoothly at his new range and also the one that he rebuilt and has all told about 85,000 feet of glass.

Phil Schupp is well pleased with the increase in shipping orders at J. A. Budlong's store this week and trade was so brisk that he was obliged to give the boys a hand in the shipping department.

John Sinner says that business at Sinner Bros.' store is very good this week and that stock is selling readily at much better prices than heretofore.

Michael Smith, a well known gardener, and vice-president of the Lake Shore Horticultural Society, died at his home in Winnetka, Sunday morning, September 9, from apoplexy. He had been employed at Mrs. J. L. Houghteling's place for a long time and had a host of friends in this vicinity who will be surprised to hear of his sudden death. The funeral was held from the family residence at Winnetka and the body was laid to rest in Memorial Park cemetery. The funeral was largely attended and many members of the society of which he was vice-president turned out in a body and sent a beautiful floral piece to the home. Mr. Smith leaves a wife and two children, Arthur and Maybelle.

W. G. Matthews, Dayton, O., was in the city this week on business, which was his first visit here since the S. A. F. convention was held in this city. He is opening a new store in the new Hotel Miami and will have his grand opening Friday, October 8, when he will furnish the decorations for the opening of the hotel, when the proceeds of the banquet will be donated to charity. Mr. Matthews has secured the services of Miss Dorothy Duerr, Newark, O., who will look after the trade in the new store.

Matthias Mann, of Zech & Mann, took in the sights at the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses at Joliet this week and brings back the report that Superintendent Peterson has everything in splendid condition, especially Aviator, the new carnation which is the chief object of interest. He says that no one will make a mistake in planting a live one, meaning Aviator, next season.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association and Bassett & Washburn did not receive their stock from Downers Grove and Greggs' station until a late hour Tuesday, September 21, owing to a freak railroad wreck at Western Springs the evening before, when a speeding limited crashed into a car which got loose from a freight train and quite a number of passengers were injured.

Felix Reichling says that he is experiencing no trouble in disposing of all the carnations that Peter Reinberg is cutting even though the daily receipts total some 10,000 blooms. This firm is cutting a good supply of roses, especially white Killarney and Mrs. Chas. Russell.

Philip J. Foley says that Foley Manufacturing Co. shipped its first carload of greenhouse materials to J. A. Young at Mooseheart, which will be used for the magnificent new range that the Loyal Order of Moose is building for the purpose of teaching floriculture to the younger generation, and of which more will be heard from in the future.

O. Johnson, city salesman for the Batavia Greenhouse Co., and Chris. Pederson are two of the best checker players in the market and take great delight in showing their many friends the finer points of the game. Sometimes certain parties are lucky to reach the king row.

Walter Amling, Herbert Amling and Wm. Schmitz of Maywood, and Miss Grages and Allie Zech and Joe Eringer of the Zech & Mann force, and wives, had a little party at Riverview Park, Wednesday evening, September 15.

C. L. Washburn has just received word from Andrew Benson, superintendent of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouses, that their new seedling carnation, Belle Washburn, was awarded first prize at the horticultural display at the state fair.

Wieter Bros. are cutting heavily in carnations which are in good demand and clean up well at their store each day. Business was very good at this house this week with both the local and out-of-town demands brisk.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. and Peter Reinberg are exhibiting at the Prosperity Exposition, which is being held at the foot of Chicago avenue and was officially opened by Mayor Thompson Monday evening, September 20.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports receipt of advices to the effect that its new giganteum lily bulbs are afloat.

Joe Marks, representing the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., is back from a successful business trip.

Miller & Musser report a brisk demand for gladioli this week, which they are handling in quantity.

Visitors: Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.; George Dysinger, with the Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich.; Miss Elsie Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; Mrs. Elizabeth Weissinger and De Witt, of the Beaumont Floral Co., Beaumont, Tex.; J. A. Evans, Richmond, Ind.; J. R. Fotheringham, San Francisco, Calif.

Minneapolis, Minn.

BUSINESS GOOD AND PRICES FIRM.

Roses are arriving in quantities sufficient to meet all demands and prices are holding up well. Carnations are also coming in but are rather short of stem. The demand is in excess of the supply, while gladioli, which are of extra fine quality, have little call. Asters show the effect of rain more than any other stock and sweet peas are about over. Dahlias are seen in quantity and are of the finest quality. Chrysanthemums are a little slow, Golden Glow being the only variety to put in an appearance so far. Roses are offered at from two to six cents, carnations, two cents; gladioli, from one cent to two cents, with asters and dahlias bringing from 50 cents to $2 per 100. Lily of the valley is scarce at five cents.

NOTES.

The florists' club held a meeting at the Minneapolis Floral Co.'s greenhouses, September 14, with an attendance of 52 members. T. C. Rogers was elected to membership. The main feature of the evening was the address by Theo. Wirth in which he spoke of his travels to the Panama-Pacific exposition and return, mentioning all points of interest along the line as to park systems, planting private estates and said that Portland, Wash., was well named the "Rose City," but that the Minneapolis parks and rose gardens are not behind the times. C. G. Anderson furnished a nice collation with Emil Olson doing the honors.

Oscar Amundson had for a window display 98 varieties of dahlias in single stem glass vases, neatly arranged with names on each variety, and had a large sale on cut blooms and secured plenty of orders for spring delivery.

James Mandes, formerly with the Sunshine Florist, has taken charge of the cut flower department for Boosalis & Papas at Sixth and Marquette streets.

Thomas Lynes and his staff were very busy last week with funeral work and finds his delivery car very convenient in getting out the large orders.

O. H. Carlson, C. F. Rice and J. R. Van Bochove returned from their hunting trip with a nice bunch of ducks, mostly mallards.

W. D. Desmond and a party of friends motored out last Sunday and closed his cottage at Anoka for the season.

LIGHT DEMAND BUT STOCK GALORE.

Almost record breaking continuous hot weather for this season of the year had a most depressing effect on business, the only demand being of the necessary kind, such as funerals, anniversary occasions, or store openings. There have also been a few early weddings, which helped some. There is a great abundance of flowers; asters, gladioli, roses galore, carnations, dahlias, Easter lilies, in fact, everything that is looked for at this season floods the market to the straining point. Even cattleyas are getting plentiful. The great heat greatly interferes with the handling of the stock, most of which does not keep from day to day. The dahlia men now complain of the drought, there having been no showers for a couple of weeks until Saturday last. The frequent rains of summer induced a strong surface root growth, the plants not finding it necessary to push down for moisture. The hot dry spell soon exhausted this surface moisture and the plants, not having strong tap roots, cannot go down after the reserve supply. Cooler weather and more rain is confidently expected, so that the crop of the next three weeks is expected to be a record breaker. The department stores promise to get more largely in the game and become an increasing factor in the handling of plants and cut flowers. They have lacked in system, but a few well managed trials, directed by men who have furnished the stock and guaranteed them against loss, has opened the way to wider activities along these lines. As an outlet for surplus or overgrown stock, these agencies have been used with great advantage by large growers. In one instance recently, a surplus stock of 500 gardenias from which a winter crop of flowers had been sold were offered as low as $10 per hundred, but with little sale. They were potted up, and through these agencies disposed of at almost $50 per hundred. Large lots of crotons, cocus palms, ferns, roses, and, in fact, all kinds of stock that can be handled in quantity, is disposed of with great rapidity. The word "Bargain" works the trick, of course; there must be a big eye for the money. A large block of the stock is placed where thousands pass in an hour, the big price cards, such as a $1.00 plant for 49c, and the buying spirit, which is so infectious when a crowd gathers, does the rest. The imperfections of one plant are not apparent in a block of 100, nor is there time to discuss it. The sale is made and the money paid, and after it gets home one often wonders why they bought it.

NOTES.

The cyclamen stock of the Robert Craig Co. is coming along splendidly; for months past quantities have been going out to growers who bring them into flower later. Those potted up for the fall and Christmas sales promise to be very fine. Several large houses of chrysanthemums look very promising.

Edward Reid, who is somewhat of a sprinter, has managed to get his sprained tendons in shape again after his strenuous race at the Mitchell contest. He says he will in the future

INTENSE HEAT PARALYZES MARKET.

"The melancholy days," of which the poet warbled, seem to have reached this city and vicinity, anywhere from six weeks to two months in advance. That of course is speaking in a strictly unsentimental sense. The sweltering millions who reside hereabouts, would welcome hail, rain and snow, all in one day, to bring relief from the almost intolerable heat and humidity that has prevailed for the past week. Conditions are so unusual for this time of year that the cut flower business has been practically paralyzed, the temperature day after day, running up into the nineties. The promises of cooler weather are getting to be old stories. A trip through the growing sections, September 15, showed that such weather is having a bad effect on stock. Roses are soft and open too freely, and in some ranges the stem rot is causing uneasiness to carnation growers. As for the outdoor stocks, such weather will soon finish the asters and gladioli, which will be no calamity as both have had a long run. The week closed with very light business as Saturday, in hot weather, is usually a dull day. A thunderstorm that visited the lower part of the city on the afternoon of September 17 somewhat reduced the temperature and the following day was the coolest of the week. The weather sharps predict another warm week, but possibly they may be mistaken.

September 20.—The market opened this morning under somewhat more favorable conditions. A heavy rain on the morning of September 19 reduced the temperature and there is less suffering from heat. Good tea roses and carnations seem to be moving better than any other stocks. As previously noted, the hot spell was very hard on roses, and now passably good stock is selling. The asters are about out, which creates more demand for carnations and the supply has greatly increased during the past week. Some special carnation stock sold this morning at $1.50 per 100, wholesale, but there is short stock on the market that goes as low as 35 and 50 cents per 100. In our quotations elsewhere we aim to give the average market prices. The supply of chrysanthemums is increasing, very fair stock of Golden Glow and October Frost being now seen. Smith's Advance has not been good at this writing. Cattleya orchids are now plentiful and cheap, as are oncidiums. Gardenias and lily of the valley move slowly, as do American Beauty roses.

NOTES.

Charles Abrams, of Brooklyn, furnished an unusually large basket of flowers, September 20, as a token of good will for the opening of Bedell's new store at Fifth avenue and 34th street, Manhattan. The basket, including handle, was 10 feet high and four feet in diameter. It contained 150 special American Beauty roses and 100 Golden Glow chrysanthemums and a large number of L. rubrums. Laurel and Asparagus plumosus nanus were used for greens. A broad band of American Beauty shade of ribbon inscribed in gold letters, "Best wishes, Bedell's," completed the decoration. It was from the employes of Bedell's Brooklyn store. The arrangement was by J. Spiro and A. Mack, employes of Abrams.

At William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street, there is evidence of increased prosperity. Mr. Ford has a line of rose, carnation and chrysanthemum growers that is second to none in the country. His fall stock will be of the best, and he has a staff of intelligent and capable salesmen.

David Dean, of Charles Millang's staff, has just returned from a vacation spent at Mount Pocono, Pa., and speaks in glowing terms of the delights of that region. Mr. Dean, it may here be stated, is a son of James Dean, a past president of the Society of American Florists.

Woodrow & Marketos, 39 West 28th street, had the church decoration, September 18, for the wedding of Miss Olga Wilborg and Sidney Webster Fish at Easthampton, L. I. The groom is a son of Stuyvesant Fish, a well-known financier and railroad man.

Otto Muller, who recently bought land at Flushing, has finished one house 30x100 feet and has another well under way. He has also erected a good building for boiler house, packing and storage, concrete being largely used in the construction.

Although the hot weather has caused considerable complaint relating to the quality of roses, Joseph A. Millang, who handles the stock from the F. R. and P. M. Pierson ranges, has a constant supply of fine American Beauties and other stock.

Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, is now cutting good gardenias and has a large stock of L. rubrums coming on. The plant features of this range such as heathers, ardisias, dracaenas, and many other plants, are remarkably fine.

At the store of David Clarke's Sons, 2139-2141 Broadway, noteworthy improvements have recently been made in their large show windows which will greatly add to the beauty of their window decorations.

John H. Small, Sr., and wife, of Washington, D. C., visited this city the past week as guests of C. Albert Small and wife, also visiting points of interest in this vicinity.

Jasper McMullen, of Whitestone, has a fine stock of chrysanthemums, carnations and lilies coming on. He is also an extensive grower of bedding plants.

Robert Christatos is now buyer for his father, N. Christatos, of Sixth avenue and 58th street. He is a clever young man and popular with those who know him.

At the range of the Knight & Struck Co., Flushing, Manager Darlington is showing fine stock in heathers, acacias and other plants.

Percy Richter, formerly salesman for E. G. Asmus' Son, is now manager for the United Cut Flower Co., 111 West 28th street.

George J. Polykranas, late with the United Cut Flower Co., Inc., is about to open a wholesale store at 104 West 28th street.

FUNERAL WORK MAINSTAY OF TRADE.

Local florists report both demand and supply rather slow. The social season has not yet opened, and the chief feature of the trade continues to be funeral work. Gladioli are very scarce, although prices remain low. The most plentiful flower is the dahlia, but the last cuttings are being received. The average price is 50 cents a dozen. They will disappear from the market about the time they would be at their height in ordinary years. The rainy weather not only brought about premature blooming, but caused the better yield ever known here. With the scarcity of other flowers there is an increased demand for lilies. Carnations are beginning to come in, but are short-stemmed. They are selling at 50 cents a dozen. In chrysanthemums, Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are on display, but they are somewhat inferior in size and quality. They command $2, $3 and $4 per dozen. Cuttings of roses are more free, and are fairly good stock, considering the season. Fancy-leaf caladiums are an attractive feature of some florists' windows.

NOTES.

A good advertising idea was put into effect by the Fifth Avenue Floral Company during the fall festival event of last week. While the night parades were on, employes of the company were stationed at darkened windows just above the store and dropped flowers on the crowds below. There was a scramble for every bloom, which created fun for spectators as well as participants. A large quantity of roses, carnations and dahlias were given away in this manner.

At a public open-air wedding, which preceded dancing on the asphalt in the

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

SEED crops are poor in Europe everywhere and prices high.

HOLLAND seed crops are below the average in quality and yield.

SOUTHERN growers of tuberoses and cannas report crops in good condition.

SIoux CITY, IA.—The Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., has plans for a one-story warehouse to be erected this fall.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Rudy-Patrick Seed Co. has completed contracts calling for 250,000 pounds of alfalfa seed.

HOUSTON, TEX.—The Reichart & Schulte Co. reports a large volume of business, the recent storm having destroyed late planted crops.

C. S. CLARK & SON, of Wakeman, O., report very hot weather, in fact, the only real corn weather they have had this summer. If this weather continues it will materially improve corn prospects.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The first meeting of creditors of the Johnson Seed Co., bankrupt, will be held Monday, October 2. The receiver's account will be audited. He asks an allowance of double commission for conducting the business.

MECHANICSBURG, O.—Joseph E. Wing, of the Wing Seed Co., died September 10 at the Sawyer sanitarium, Marion, O., after an illness of several months. He was well known as a lecturer on agriculture and spent four years in South America in the interest of the government, having been sent there by former President Taft. Mr. Wing was known as the alfalfa king, having given special attention to that crop.

THE warm weather has not stimulated retail buyers to dig up their good summer flower beds. It has been almost too much to expect them even to come in and ask for a fall catalogue. Even under these conditions the mail orders are beginning to come along in fair volume and any backwardness only aids the force to get the accumulated mass of trade orders out of the way.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade September 22 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.—Albert M. Smith, with the Leonard Seed Co., and wife have returned from a delightful vacation trip to Alaska where they made a short run by steamer up the Yukon river and later visited all the principal cities on the Pacific coast to lower California where they attended the Panama-Pacific and San Diego expositions and inspected the seed growing districts in California. Mr. Smith says that on his entire trip he did not see any outdoor sweet peas or dahlias that anywhere near compared in quality and size to the magnificent stock grown in the Alaska region.

CITRONELLE, ALA.—A farm for growing bulbs that will thrive under semitropical conditions has been started by Otto Fehrlin.

ONE New York jobber in French bulbs, it is reported, has fallen down completely on some kinds contracted for. Perhaps still waiting for break in prices!

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Louisville Seed Co. has been incorporated by George E. Hays, Joseph Marshall, Owen T. Watts and Harvey D. Hays; capital stock, $100,000.

THE bean growing districts of northern central New York report serious damage to crops from rains all season. Growers expect no surplus of wax sorts or green pod.

St. LOUIS, Mo.—The St. Louis Seed Co. reports receiving shipments of European bulbs as follows: On the S. S. New Amsterdam, 66 cases; S. S. Noordam, 38 cases; S. S. Sant' Anna, 135 cases.

VENTURA, CALIF.—The lima bean crop has been damaged by the recent hot spell. The damage is streaked, some sections being free, others injured from 10 to 30 per cent. The heat in the Santa Inez valley reached high record, 110 degrees.

Seed Trade Prospects.

We anticipated a very large demand for both flower and vegetable seeds, but it is doubtful regarding the supply as, of course, the present disturbances abroad leave it uncertain as to what we can secure, both in flower seeds and vegetable seeds. At the present time we are assured that we will get the goods ordered subject to only slight delay, but of this, of course, we can not be certain.

F. W. BRUGGERHOF,
J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York.

The Bulb Trade.

This season's bulb trade is normal and excepting for some trans-Atlantic shipping trouble and loss of mail would go forward well. Because of above difficulties jobbers' stocks will not be full until three weeks later than usual.

Vaughan's Seed Store has handled a carload of Lilium Candidum from the French liner, Chicago. This is a short item this season and much in demand.

Lilium multiflorum will arrive the coming week.

Canadian Peas.

Except where grown for canning factories, peas are decreasing in popularity. While there was too much rain for best results the crop is regarded as doing fairly well, although complaints are made by some of late podding and of mildew. The pea aphid is still reported in several districts east and west. Most of the regular field peas remain to be pulled.

New York Seed Trade.

Though bulbs are much in evidence at all the seed stores it is estimated that not over one-third of the Holland crop that will eventually reach here has yet arrived. In grass seeds, sweet peas and pansy seed for florists there is a good movement. The auction houses have started their sales, and though it is now too hot to expect a large attendance, their outlook for fall business is good.

Weeber & Don are sending out a very complete catalogue of the herbaceous peonies they offer for sale. It also contains "A Few Hints for Success with Peonies." They report heavy sales of grass seeds.

It now appears, relating to azalea shipments from Belgium, that about the only progress that has been made thus far is in winding and unwinding red tape.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is handling fine palms, ferns and other plants, also bulbs, and their weekly announcements should be carefully noted.

At Vaughan's Seed Store they continue their artistic window displays of bulbs. Mr. Vaughan arrived from Chicago, September 17.

Peter Henderson & Co. have their usual fine window display of cut flowers, dahlias and cannas being now the leading features.

At Hermann's Seed Store, 140 East Thirty-fourth street, we have recently noted activity in grass seeds and bulbs.

Chas. Schwake & Co. are quite active in the line of lily bulbs and lily of the valley pips.

Michigan Beans Advanced.

Michigan bean growers at a meeting held last week at Flint, threw a bomb into the camp of the Bean Jobbers' Association by declaring for a price on 1915 crop beans of $3 a bushel for October shipment. Jobbers gathered at Ann Arbor, on learning of this action left for their homes and will conduct negotiations by mail or wire. A large export business is looked for owing to the scarcity of beans in Europe and the large needs of the allies, and as a result of the failure of imports a considerable increase in domestic demand is expected.

The Michigan bean crop is short. Growers estimate an output of 30 to 40 per cent of last year. Growers at the Flint meeting decided on $3 a bushel of 60 pounds for October and an advance on a sliding scale of 10 cents a bushel per month for November, December and January, and thereafter, until May 1, five cents a bushel advance per month. Growers have thrown a rope to the jobbers by announcing the appointment of a committee consisting of one delegate from each of the 16 bean growing counties in Michigan, with instructions to meet with the jobbers to determine price adjustment.

Winter Flowering SWEET PEAS Spencer Types

Our expert California seed growers have spent much time "rogueing" the original stock seed of the so-called "Winter Flowering" Spencer types. Many untrue colors were found and many of the old "Grandiflora" type, sometimes forty per cent wrong. These have been thrown out.

It authorizes the forester to order trees planted wherever he deems it desirable, and to assess the cost against the owners of adjacent property.

LANSING, MICH.—Professor H. J. Eustace, chief of the department of horticulture at the Michigan Agricultural College, has been granted leave of absence for one year, during which time he will make a tour of inspection of the fruit sections of the United States, reporting conditions as he finds them to the federal department of agriculture, and commending measures most needed for the advancement of the fruit growing industry.

Spur Blight of Red Raspberry.

Spur blight on red raspberry caused by Sphaerella rubina is the title of Bulletin No. 206 issued by the Colorado Agricultural College experiment station, Fort Collins. The first indications of the injury make their appearance about the middle of July, and if the young green canes are examined, chocolate brown discolorations will be found on the lower portions of the cane in the region of the point of attachment of the leaves. Spraying with an adhesive Bordeaux mixture, composed of three pounds of copper sulphate (blue-stone) two pounds of stone lime and 50 gallons of water to which two pounds of rosin fish oil soap, added as a sticker, is recommended for the control of the disease.

Peony Bulletin.

We are in receipt of the first bulletin of the American Peony Society, which will be welcomed by all peony growers, commercial as well as amateur. A publication of this character has been much needed for the assemblage and preservation of peony data. Secretary Saunders has presented the first number in attractive form, the contents including the society's proceedings for 1914 and 1915, lists of the officers and members, with their addresses, and a number of interesting articles as follows: "The Experiences of an Amateur in the Vicinity of Philadelphia with Peonies During the Spring of 1915," by James Boyd; "Peonies in Missouri," by Benjamin C. Auten; "Growing for Cut Flowers," by W. J. Engle; "Some Notes from the Pacific Coast," by Howard Everts Weed; "Peonies, Good, Bad and Indifferent," by H. W. Groschner; "On Raising Seedlings," by Eugene Secor, Everett P. Wheeler, O. L. Ringle, and A. P. Saunders.

In addition we note important communications from A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass., and A. Dessert, Chenonceaux, France, with an exhaustive report on the exhibition held at Boston, Mass., last June. The bulletin is primarily intended for members of the society, but no doubt others can secure copies on filing their applications for membership with Secretary A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.

National Forest Receipts Distribution.

The portion of the national forest receipts for the fiscal year 1915, to go to various states in which the forests lie, amounts to more than $850,000. The money is paid over to the states for school and road purposes. Montana gets the largest share, having contributed the largest amounts of receipts for the sale of timber. Idaho comes second and California is third.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Among the professional florists, prominent among the winners of first premiums at the floral display at the state fair were Lewis Henderson and Hess & Swoboda of Omaha and Frey & Frey of this city.

east of the village of Manchester, September 14, aged 85 years. He was born in Harbury, Eng., December 18, 1829. In 1854 he came to the United States, locating first in Albany, where he lived for 20 years. From Albany he came to Manchester, where he had made his home for the past 40 years.
In 1849 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Reading Hawk, in Lemington, Eng., who died May 8, 1897.

crate, 25 cents to $1.00.

Vegetable Growers' Association.

The annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was held at Cleveland, O., September 7-9, with a good attendance. Some of the growers' problems were discussed and many of those present complained of the low prices obtained for their products the past season. The invitations for the next convention included one from Chicago, which was well received, but decision in this matter will be made by the executive body later.
The officers elected for 1916 are as follows: Martin L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O., president; Howard W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., vice-president; E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O.; treasurer; Sam W.
Severance, Louisville, Ky., secretary.

Home Canning.

The canning of fruits and vegetables is increasing in favor. We find now that any number of agencies are urging this subject—universities, schools of home economics, farmers' organizations, etc., and especially the makers of canning machinery and supplies.
These latter parties are important factors, for too often the commercial party is more aggressive than the purely educational. There is no question whatever that the proper place to can is where the crops are grown—upon the farm, and with the discrimination of expert knowledge on the subject, home canning is bound to grow.

Several years ago we installed machinery to can our surplus crops of vegetables, and while we were successful from the start in producing a fine article, we had plenty of trouble in selling it. Our business being mostly wholesale, to stores, hotels and commission houses, we soon found that we were in direct competition with the large canning factories, and that all these parties had only one aim—to buy as cheaply as possible, regardless of contents. Along this line the venture proved a failure, but finally we succeeded in placing some of our products with influential private parties, and since then the demand has grown by leaps. Now we have orders to be canned instead of canned goods to be sold. There are several advantages in farm canning. First and most important, we can use defective goods, especially tomatoes. Thus the tomatoes are graded for market in fancies, and canning grade. The canning grade means all cracked skins, undersized fruit, irregular shape, ground spotted fruit, etc. Thus we can grade our fancies extra fine, and use up the others to good advantage. The next advantage is a staple price. Our canned goods have a fixed price, while the market on fresh vegetables is always subject to violent changes. The third advantage comes from finding employment for all hands in bad weather, for we believe that the farm labor problem is first and last a problem of steady employment the year around at a living wage.

We recommend steam pressure outfits, which will handle both glass and tin cans, and anything that can be put up. These can be bought from $15.00 to $200.00 complete, according to the capacity, and the beginner is furnished reliable instructions.

LITTLEFIELD & WYMAN

North Abington, Mass.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

About 5 p. m. September 16 a telephone message notified the writer that Richard Vincent, Jr., his son Robert, and two of their foremen were at the Brunswick, in response to a request from the writer also that they give us a paper or talk on dahlias for this meeting of the club.

It is characteristic of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons' Co. that they never do anything by halves, and we not only had a paper that was a gem from every point of view, but we also had some 125 varieties of dahlias from White Marsh, Md., on exhibition, all correctly labeled, and a revelation to some of our local people. Robert Vincent read the paper, and told us the history of the dahlia from its earliest inception down to the present day, with cultural notes and suggestions. Richard Vincent, Jr., told in his own inimitable way some of his experiences at the convention, and invited us all to join the National Dahlia Society and come to the show in New York, and also to their exhibition at White Marsh, Md., which, unfortunately, comes the same week as our own show.

In addition to the flowers exhibited by our visitors, we had a fine vase of dahlia blooms exhibited by our newly elected amateur, David Rose, who does not hesitate to pay the price for new varieties. Rudolph Nagle exhibited a very fine vase of Chrysanthemum Smith's Advance, also a yellow sport from the same.

The dahlia show committee reported progress in all lines, and asking for volunteers, received the offer of the services of at least a dozen of the club members. Wild smilax was ordered for the decoration of the tables, vases contributed by several of the members, and offers received from members having machines to collect these vases and help us in any other way, so that with such a unanimity of helpfulness it will not be our fault if the show is not a success. The programme committee reported having a promise from Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., for a talk for the October meeting, and this report met with the enthusiasm that it deserved. The visiting committee reported as having nothing arranged, but would probably make the first visiting trip of the season, one to Reading, during the week of their show. Chas. Tucker was elected to membership as an amateur and Edward Becht as a professional. The Vincents were given a unanimous vote of thanks for their generosity in coming all the way to Lancaster by automobile with such a fine exhibit of flowers and such a valuable paper for the club, and we trust they recognized the fact that it was a real vote and not merely a perfunctory one.

The quarterly meeting of the Oklahoma State Florists' Society was held September 13, with a fairly good attendance. A. S. Gray, Lon Foster, and Mrs. Hornaday were appointed a committee to revise the constitution and by-laws. There was much discussion on ways and means to enlarge the membership of the society but no definite plan was adopted. The apathy shown toward the society by some members of the craft is very much to be deplored; there is no doubt, however, that the apathy displayed is more the result of unfamiliarity with the benefits that accrue from a trade organization than from any other cause, and, when once the reasons why a trade society should exist, are better understood, we shall have plenty of enthusiastic members.

Business is rather quiet, but better things are expected in the near future as the state fair opens September 26, and that event usually brings a little extra trade to town. From present indications there will not be much of a

HYDRANGEAS.

Our hydrangeas grown for delivery to our customers this fall; 40,000 of them in 6-inch pots. The foliage is rich, dark green; no yellow leaves. The branches are strong and thick, promising big heads of bloom. Here are the prices: Otaksa, the staple, standard, salabre sort, has made more money for florists than all others put together. Plants with 7 to 10 branches, $25 per 100; with 5 and 6 branches, $20 per 100; with 4 branches, $15 per 100. The best of the French varieties, Avalanche, Bouquet Rose, La Lorraine, Mme. Maurice Hamar, Mme. E. Mouillere and Radiant, in the same size at $5 per 100 more for each size. All in 6-inch pots. Consider the size, the number of flowering branches, the price and the quality of the stock. A combination of good points that ought to bring your order by return mail. How many of these fine plants do you want? Jackson & Perkins Company, Newark, New York.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Better business all around and a stiffening of prices are the glad tidings. After the past two months everyone here is feeling more encouraged now that the florist business gets better, but most everyone tells of over-supply of asters and sweet peas, and even though the call has been better than ever before, they go to waste. Too many fine flowers for the amount of business is the report of all, but rain and hail have ruined a lot of stock, so the benefit comes to the florist as a consequence. Carnations are somewhat scarce lately and not many good ones are to be had. Some chrysanthemums are appearing, but only yellow, and there is no great call or sale for them. Home grown roses are coming in, and this is the first season that our market has had any sort of a supply of local grown flowers from indoors. Some very good blooms have arrived, and had a fairly good call, especially white, although yellow had the demand too. Sunburst seems to be the real thing in the yellow. Ophelia is simply grand and sells readily at the highest price of any rose, not excepting American Beauty. From some cause the American Beauty comes in rather a washed-out color and not rich and attractive as in the east, so Ulrich Brunner goes instead at American Beauty prices. Very fine weather prevails, and up to the present no frost to injure anything. Field carnations have done exceptionally well and a big percentage has been moved inside and are making a fine start. From reports not as many will be planted in as last season. Many growers had too much of a loss from over-supply, for they could not be sold, even at ridiculously low prices.

Practically no new buildings have been erected this year, but extensive repairs and rebuilding had to be done at several places. A great many tourists have visited our city this season and business from them was quite a help to the florist trade, and they all expressed admiration for our "floral city."

Providence, R. I.

TRADE WEAKENS UNDER HOT SPELL.

Weather conditions here the past week inclined everyone to think that summer was starting instead of being on the wane. All stocks increased greatly with the warm days, and as the thermometer went up business began to slacken. Roses are now in heavy supply, the receipts being almost more than the trade can handle, and as a result prices are correspondingly low. Carnations are coming in with better length of stem, and the quality generally is improving. Asters are still seen in quantity, but the quality is not up to the usual standard. Gladioli have shortened in supply, and prices have advanced in consequence. Dahlias are arriving, but it seems this flower decreases in popularity with each succeeding year. Some of the varieties are excellent for display work, but as a cut flower there is little demand for them.

NOTES.

Johnston Bros. had one of the most attractive window decorations seen in the city this season. It called attention to the fact that “flowers by telegraph” was one of the features of their business, and a window full of cards and tags from florists in all parts of the United States with ribbons running from them to the respective cities shown on a large map, carried out the idea. It was unique, the arrangement was excellent, and it attracted considerable attention as something out of the ordinary.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society held its September flower show at the Narragansett hotel last week. The attendance was good, both day and evening.

The opening of several lunch rooms furnished some additional business this week, orders being placed for palms and ferns for decorations.

H. A. T.

Albany, N. Y.

Among those who attended the flower show in Rochester was William C. Gloeckner of this city. He returned with a good report of the exhibits of gladioli and the roses sent by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. On the way from Rochester Mr. Gloeckner stopped at Utica to visit the establishment of Brant Brothers. He found

First Annual Exhibition, New York, September 24-26, 1915.

Success Crowns Initial Show.

The first annual exhibition of the American Dahlia Society, held in co-operation with the Horticultural Society of New York, opened in the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and Seventy-seventh street, on the afternoon of September 24, 1915. The quality and volume of the stock placed on exhibition was very gratifying to the officers and members of the society and pleasing to the general public. There was no charge for admission.

Noteworthy and extensive exhibits were made by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Richard Vincent, Jr. & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md.; George L. Stillman, Westery, R. I.; N. Harold Cottam & Son, Wappinger's Fall, N. Y.; John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y.; O. P. Chapman, Jr., Westery, R. I.; George H. Walker, North Dighton, Mass.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York, and other. The exhibits of baskets, table decorations and other decorative features, by a number of New York retail florists were very fine. These were by Alfred Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue; Max Schling, 22 West 59th street; G. E. M. Stumpp, 761 Fifth avenue, and Young & Nugent, 42 West 28th street. There were bridal bouquets of dahlias, and while we may not expect the dahlia to come in great vogue for this purpose, the artists showed clever work. The collections of cactus, show and decorative dahlias were very fine and the originators and growers are certainly keeping abreast of their brethren, whose fancy and genius turns to other flowering plants. While some of the commercial men may look askance at the dahlia, it is a fine subject for the amateur.

A certificate of merit was awarded to John Scheepers & Co., Inc., for a collection of cactus dahlia seedlings not in commerce. This collection was understood to be of English origin.

Special prizes were also awarded for meritorious exhibits not provided for in the schedule to Wm. Shillabas, Essex Falls, N. J., and to Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Plainfield, N. J. The judges were as follows: J. C. Clarke, Philadelphia, Pa.; Prof. F. H. Hall, Geneva, N. Y.; Jas. Kirby, Huntington, N. Y.; Leonard Barron, New York; F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J.; Geo. W. Kerr, Philadelphia, Pa.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Prof. Geo. W. Fraser, Storrs, Conn., and J. Harrison Dick, New York.

On the afternoon of September 25, interesting lectures on the dahlia were delivered by Prof. Hall of the Geneva, N. Y. experiment station and Prof. Norton of the Maryland State Agricultural College, College Park, Md.

Business Meeting.

The business meeting of the society was held on the evening of September 24 in the lecture room of the American Museum of Natural History. The meeting was well attended and much interest was manifested in the proceedings.

Following the address of President Richard Vincent, Jr., it was announced that invitations for the dahlia show of 1916 had already been received from the Rochester Florists' Club and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. The president recommended that the first show be held at Rochester another, the next week, at Philadelphia and a third, following at New York. He added that the American Dahlia Society was one of the promising children of the Society of American Florists and had a bright future. Secretary Lane spoke of the increase in membership and predicted that before the close of this show it would reach 200. He took the optimistic view that before the meeting of 1916 the membership would reach 500. Seventy-five per cent of the present membership are amateurs. Treasurer Austin made a satisfactory report. Brief remarks were made by Prof. Hall of Geneva, N. Y. and Geo. L. Stillman of Westery, R. I.

The present officers were re-elected as follows: Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., president; Joseph J. Lane, New York, secretary; F. R. Austin, Tuckerton, N. J., treasurer. The following were elected vice-presidents: Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., north; Prof. Norton, College Park, Md., south; E. Stanley Brown, East Moriches, N. Y., east; W. W. Wilmore, Denver, Colo., west. The executive committee consists of G. W. Kerr, Philadelphia, Pa.; Jas. Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; Isaac S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; J. Harrison Dick, New York. The following constitute the nomenclature committee: Prof. F. H. Hall, Geneva, N. Y.; Prof. Geo. W. Fraser, Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn.; Jas. Kirby, Huntington, N. Y.; L. P. Peacock, Berlin, N. J. and Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y. Prof. Hall called attention to the work before the committee by saying that there were now over 4,000 names of dahlias that are grown in this country.

It was left to the executive committee to decide the meeting place for 1916. Greetings were sent to W. W. Wilmore of Denver.

President Vincent's Address.

Ladies and gentlemen and members of the American Dahlia Society:

We meet today for the first time before the public, and have put forth our first efforts to give you an idea of the immensity of the dahlia loving public and of the growing love for this beautiful flower, that can be grown and flowered by the humble cottage as well as by the prince or king. Surely a man having a garden of beautiful, well grown dahlia flowers, no matter how humble his position in life, feels rich and happy in being the owner of so much that makes the garden and home beautiful.

Of course, as with everything else, there are apt to be failures in dahlias as in other varieties of flowers. Even the large growers have their ups and downs to contend with, but taking one year with another, the dahlia cannot be surpassed for producing a good crop of bloom. Sometimes from slight circumstances the amount of bloom, size, etc., is materially reduced, and again the insect pests, which gather, not generally on the dahlia, but on other things planted near them, when short of other food will attack the dahlia. To avoid these ills, we would advise that separate plantings be made at an interval of two or three weeks between plantings.

R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.
President American Dahlia Society.

The late planting very often does the best, as it has the cooler and longer nights, makes a more sturdy and insect resisting growth, and generally produces the best and finest flowers. The early planted ones very often get woody, but cutting the flowers with long stems, or cutting the plants back, this, if done early in the season will renew the growth and produce nearly as good flowers as the later planted ones.

The main thing is, do not be afraid to use the knife on them. This is often required in thinning out, some varieties growing too thickly to produce fine flowers. Again, if extra large flowers are wanted, these are obtained by what is termed disbudding; that is, as soon as the buds can be seen, pick out all the buds but the main one, then the entire strength goes in that one flower. This can only be done in the large flowering type. The smaller flowered varieties do not justify this amount of trouble. One point where many people fail and complain, is in the wintering over of their roots. The varieties that form large clumps with big tubers are not so hard to keep; they will keep where potatoes keep good; but some of the finer varieties do not make much else but a mass of fine rootlets, which are very hard to keep. In this case they want bedding in sand, earth, or some material that will keep from drying up.

My own experience with the dahlia goes back a goodly number of years, when as a boy, my father had a dozen or so of double ones in the garden. I was so struck with them that I thought nothing could equal them, and I offered my father a sixpence that I had saved up for something else to allow me to call one dahlia plant mine. My next experience was in Maryland during the Civil war. As a young man, I had charge of the dahlia patch on the place my father was managing, and I had the privilege of putting a lot of them on exhibition at one of the horticultural shows held in the Maryland Institute in Baltimore. This was apparently the first exhibition of dahlias given in Baltimore. It attracted attention, many hardly believing they were flowers. If I remember rightly this collection was purchased from the late Peter Henderson, and I believe that if the American history of the dahlia could be traced out, he was the first to introduce the dahlia in variety and quantity to this country.

My sincere hope is that this American Dahlia Society may continue its good work so nobly begun so that in every home, no matter how humble, wherever there is a garden spot, dahlias may be planted and the country beautified.

Notes.

W. Atlee Burpee's display, that captured the gold medal, was as noteworthy for its artistic arrangement as for the quality of the stock. A background of black velvet, or velveteen, brought out the flowers in fine relief, but the quality of the stock was excellent and arranged with grasses. In this collection were noted such favorites as Mrs. Hugh Dickson, pink; Beliot, crimson; Delice, pink; Britannia, salmon pink; Mrs. D. Fleming, white, and The Lion, pink. George W. Kerr supervised the arrangement of this exhibit.

As the exhibition season is now opened, before we forget it, we would say a word to prospective exhibitors. If your stock is worth exhibiting it is worth while to label it properly. If there is no device in existence for properly labeling flowers in an exhibition, there are plenty of bright men who could soon invent one. We scribes do the best we can to report the shows, but a label that looks like a doctor's prescription, sometimes causes intemperate language.

Our friend and neighbor, W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., is a valuable man for the exhibitions. He calls his place the "Universal Horticultural Establishment" or something like that, and as the lamented Lincoln used to say: "he is more than half right." His dahlias, Albert Manda and Mrs. Du Pont, are wonders. Albert Manda, a single pink nearly a foot in diameter, took first prize for the largest dahlia in the show.

The ladies were noteworthy as exhibitors. Sunshine, a beautiful yellow single, exhibited by Mrs. C. H. Stout, Short Hills, N. J., was a prize winner. The exhibit of Mrs. O. P. Chapman, Jr., Hillcrest Dahlia Gardens, Westery, R. I., was well staged and attractive and contained good stock. Several well arranged baskets and hampers were noted in this exhibit. It was not placed in competition.

Miss Eleanor F. Fullerton, 13 years old, of Medford, L. I., N. Y., captured a special prize for 25 distinct varieties, one flower each. Little Miss Fullerton is just naturally a florist; she could not help it. Her father, H. B. Fullerton, is director of the agricultural development of Long Island, and her mother knows more about flowers than half the florists in this country.

No exhibit was more carefully arranged than that of Geo. W. Stillman of Westery, R. I., and though the word "specialist" is sometimes misplaced it seems to fit Mr. Stillman. His stock was good and finely arranged.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., made a fine display and had the largest number of blooms of any exhibitor. They were mainly arranged in pyramidal form, encircled by many vases of choice blooms. This exhibit captured the silver medal. It must be remembered that the flowers for this exhibit had a long journey.

It was agreed and so ordered, that President Vincent was a good mixer and that Manager John Young was sometimes mistaken for a college president. Also, that Secretary Lane was an indefatigable worker.

J. C. Vaughan of Chicago, who was in this city, visited the show as a guest of President Vincent. Mr. Vaughan was so well pleased with the show that he became a member of the society.

In addition to dahlias, John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., represented by I. S. Hendrickson, exhibited gladioli, montbretias and the Celosia Childsi, or Chinese wool flowers.

An arch with 2,500 dahlia blossoms from Richard Vincent Jr. & Sons, White Marsh, Md., was a striking feature, displaying over 100 varieties.

While the pompons were not so numerous, they were interesting. C. Louis Alling's smallest pompon was about the size of a 25 cent piece.

W. A. Finger, of the Long Island Dahlia Farms, Hicksville, N. Y., is one of the young men who may be called a specialist.

George L. Stillman went from New York to Trenton, N. J., to exhibit at the state fair that opened September 27.

John F. Anderson, Bernardsville, N. J., exhibited 12 seedlings not yet in commerce.

Outdoors at Dreer's.

When anything is said of the nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at River-ton, N. J., the great ranges of glass immediately flash up in the picture as seen in the mind's eye of most people and the place is recognized. To those, however, who have explored it in its entirety, who have gone to the limit of its broad acres, the greenhouse section is seen only as a part, an area protected from the rigors of winter.

The original grounds, on which are built over three acres of glass, have been added to, until there was no more room for expansion. The ground occupied here is about 50 acres. In addition to the houses there are acres of frames and slat sheds for the care of stock in both winter and summer. The surrounding grounds are given to rose gardens, acres of herbaceous stock in great variety, hardy border ferns, a splendid rock garden, show and stock water lily ponds, and a section planted with a wonderful variety of foliage and plumed grasses.

The first extension to proper care for the space loving cannas and dahlias is found a mile away at Riverview, where 150 acres are filled with large quantities of the best varieties of these plants. Hundreds of long rows of cannas three or four hundred feet in length run at right angles from the Pennsylvania railroad which passes the place. These extend the full width of the nursery, making a solid mass of color a quarter of a mile or more in width. Everything introduced in cannas is given a trial here. It is interesting that one or two plants of a variety are not sufficient to demonstrate its value, there must be enough to make a block or mass of color before its right to a place in the catalogue can be determined.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY'S NEW YORK SHOW.

Sixty acres are here planted in dahlias; there are over 750 varieties in a total of over 300,000 plants. As with the cannas, every new sort is given a chance to demonstrate its usefulness. The great masses of color seen in the various large blocks of one kind are very striking. Hydrangeas are also a feature here, the newer French hybrids dominating. A number of the sorts bloom more or less all summer and have so far stood the winters admirably.

Three miles further inland is the locust farm, named from the rows of these splendid trees that line the entrance on either side. Here are 75 acres of rich, sandy soil on which are grown some 250,000 peonies, acres of herbaceous phloxes, acres of roses, own root ramblers, hybrid perpetuals and other species. A block of 20,000, budded on Japanese multiflora was an experiment that particularly interested Mr. Eisele. The two year old peonies were being taken up, four horses and three men handling the plow that loosened the roots. There are also quantities of other plants. Japanese irises were seen in quantity. A new scarlet sage, much better than existing sorts, was a mass of color. The phloxes were a sight—one block of 500,000 in full flower were dazzling. Near by was another block of 100,000.

The variety of these outdoor stocks is bewildering, and the quantity grown gives some idea of the extent of this great business. Many things, that the small amount of stock on hand does not warrant, and others for which there is a limited sale, do not get into the Dreer catalogue. There is a great and increasing demand for water lilies. Although there is nothing more decorative than a well planted lily pond, they cost less than flower beds of much less extent. One plant will cover 25 to 30 square feet, flower all summer, and cost but 50 cents. Eight or ten plants will cover a large pond and the cost is trifling. A few gold fish will keep the pond free from mosquitose.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY'S NEW YORK SHOW.
First Prize Basket Exhibited By Alfred Kottmiller, New York.

Houston Flower Show, November 17-20.

The flower show promises to exceed last year's show by 100 per cent. About 50 per cent of the florists of the state expect to make exhibits. They realize the value of this from last year's show, and are all coming in on this year's show. Aside from this, all of the out of the state exhibitors of last year and a great many additional are planning exhibits for this year, which shows they find it worth while. We feel that the S. A. F. convention for Houston in 1916 has a great deal to do with the added interest in our flower show here.

Postal Inspection of Plants.

PLANTS ADDRESSED TO ARIZONA.

The state of Arizona has established places for the terminal inspection of plants and plant products, under the provisions of the Act of March 4, 1915, embodied in Section 478 $\frac{1}{4}$, Postal Laws and Regulations, appearing on page 49 of the May, 1915, supplement to the Postal Guide.

All postmasters are, therefore, informed that packages containing plants or plant products addressed to places in the state of Arizona may be accepted for mailing only when plainly marked so that the contents may be readily ascertained by an inspection of the outside thereof. The law makes the failure so to mark such packages an offense punishable by a fine of not more than $100.

The plants and plant products subject to terminal inspection in the state of Arizona are described as follows:

"All florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, fruit pits and other seeds of fruit and ornamental trees or shrubs, and other plants and plant products for propagation, except vegetable and flower seeds."

Postmasters within the state of Arizona shall be governed strictly by the provisions of paragraphs 3, 4, 5 and 6, Section 478 $\frac{1}{4}$, Postal Laws and Regulations, in the treatment of all packages addressed for delivery at their offices containing any plants or plant products above described as subject to terminal inspection.

The place to which a postmaster in the state of Arizona shall send for inspection, after receiving the required postage therefor, under the provisions of Section 478¼, Postal Laws and Regulations, a package containing plants or plant products subject to terminal inspection is the one in the list below which is nearest to his office: Clifton, Douglas, Kingman, Phoenix, Thatcher, Tucson, Yuma.

Owing to the perishable character of plants and plant products the packages containing such matter must be given prompt attention.

Any failure of compliance with the foregoing instructions, or with the provisions of Section 478¼, Postal Laws and Regulations, coming to the attention of any postmaster should be reported to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Classification.

PLANT INSPECTION IN CALIFORNIA.

Referring to the plants and plant products subject to terminal inspection in the State of California, as described in the third paragraph of the instructions pertaining thereto, appearing on page 5 of the June, 1915, supplement to the Postal Guide, postmasters are informed that bedding plants and other herbaceous plants and roots are no longer excepted from such terminal inspection and hereafter packages addressed to places in the state of California containing bedding plants and other herbaceous plants and roots shall be treated in the manner in which packages containing other plants and plant products subject to terminal inspection in that state are treated.

First Party for Houston Convention.

William Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., writes R. C. Kerr that he will organize a party from his city for the Houston convention of the Society of American Florists. He says that the florists of his city expect to take advantage of this opportunity to visit the south. It is more than likely that this party will go by boat from New York to New Orleans or Galveston—this, however, will be decided later. Mr. Gloeckner says—"Houston is a long way from home, but I am going to do everything in my power to attend the convention next year and I will try to get every florist in Albany to accompany me on this trip."

The indications are, plans being formed so early, that this is going to be a record breaking convention.

Court Decision in Lost Bulbs Suit.

In a recent court decision rendered at Louisville, Ky., in the suit of the F. Walker Co., florists, vs. the Kanawha Dispatch, claim being made to cover loss of two barrels of bulbs and for overcharge in collecting freight charges on six barrels when four only were delivered, the original freight bill showing two barrels short and so noted by the railroad company, the judge rendered his decision in favor of the railroad company, based upon the following reasons:

That the F. Walker Co. had failed to present the deposition of the clerk who made out the original bill of lading, as evidence that it was the original as made out by him for the railroad company.

That in the claim for refund of freight charges, claim being made for charges collected on two barrels, or one-third of the shipment, lost and not delivered, decision was rendered against the F. Walker Co. for the reason that it had failed to weigh the four barrels received so as to make a claim by weight instead of presenting claim for one-third of the amount of the charges paid on the entire shipment.

By the decision the F. Walker Co. loses the value of the two barrels of bulbs, lost through negligence of the railroad company, and not denied by the latter; also the overcharge on undelivered freight, and, in addition, the F. Walker Co. will have to pay the court costs.

American Rose Society.

The Cleveland flower show is progressing and it seems as though it will prove to be considerable of an exhibition. The interest in the rose exhibit is developing. Two more special prizes have been offered, one from Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., of $25 and another of $10 for the prettiest vase of cut roses, the decision to be made by a vote of lady visitors. There will also be a meeting of the American Rose Society held at that time in the Coliseum. The executive committee will meet in New York October 11.

NOTES.

The semi-centennial of the town of Kirkwood will be celebrated this week. Luther Armstrong, the oldest settler of Kirkwood, is 78 years old and the 100 acres he lives among were purchased by his father for $7 per acre and are now worth more than $1,000 per acre.

Ed. Kalisch, of Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., expects to deal largely in all varieties of gold fish this winter. He has just returned from the east where he made purchases and got some pointers. He has fitted up a fine new aquarium.

Ed. Beuchel, of the Riessen Floral Co., has been laid up with rheumatism the past two weeks. Mrs. Beuchel's mother is also on the sick list.

The officers of the local florists' club will meet at Frank Windler's home before the regular club meeting in October.

H. G. Berning has been receiving very good roses. Carnations, however, are not in general good quality.

Grimm & Gorly have the decorations for the automobile show at Forest Park Highlands next week.

Alex. Siegel has special sales in roses and carnations. Alex. has the bait and catches the fish.

Julius Schaeffer, of Mullanphy Florists, entertained some Chicago friends September 25.

Dave Geddes, of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, reports satisfactory fall trade.

SUPPLY SHORTENS AND PRICES ADVANCE.

The market is not nearly so crowded with stock as it has been—beginning last week when asters played out, the supply of stock generally has decreased. Dahlias only are coming in good supply. Roses have shortened in supply and many orders could not be filled Saturday, September 25. Carnations are increasing in supply, but the quality is not yet up to a fair standard, and reds predominate. There are a few Easter lilies coming in. Lily of the valley is still short of the demand. Jap lilies can be had in quantity. Larkspur, Buddleya, or summer lilac, Shasta daisies, etc., clean up daily. Orchids are more plentiful. American Beauties continue to be in fair demand. Gladioli are short of requirements and are bringing a better price. Swainsona takes the place of lily of the valley in many bridal bouquets.

NOTES.

Pupils of the Cleveland Normal School displayed vegetables and flowers they have raised in their own gardens as part of their school work, September 24. Each girl has been required to have a garden this year as part of her training for a teacher. They have also been required to learn the rudiments of landscape gardening.

Frank Smith is in New York this week buying supplies for a decoration for the Smith & Fetters Co., which takes place next month. He is also visiting Louis Koons, who formerly worked for the Smith & Fetters Co.

After an active service of 27 years with the J. M. Gasser Co., L. F. Darnell has resigned the management of the company and disposed of his interests satisfactorily to all parties concerned.

Frank Ritzenthaler of Knoble Bros. has been quite ill the past week. A serum, injected into his system, instead of helping him, made him deathly sick. At last reports he is feeling somewhat better.

Russell Ball, of the Jas. Eadie Co., is in Charity hospital, where he has undergone an operation on his feet and limbs, several bones having been taken from his heel and knee.

Bert Evans, formerly with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, Minn., will have charge of the new store of the Jones-Russell Co., in the Taylor Arcade.

Mrs. Anna Nosek, 5307 Broadway has been ill for several days the past week. She was down town for the first time, September 24.

F. C. Bartels left for Kansas City, Mo., September 23, for a two week's vacation. His family is there and will return with him.

The florists' clubs in various cities have been invited to participate in a howling contest in this city during the flower show.

One of the Best Peony-Flowered Varieties for Cut Blooms.

Minneapolis, Minn.

STOCK SCARCE AND DEMAND GOOD.

Roses are bringing from two to ten cents and are cleaning up well, and carnations are also in good demand at prices ranging from two to three cents. Chrysanthemums are scarce with the supply of Golden Glow about over. The late varieties are not in bloom. Asters, what few there are, are selling at from $1.50 to $2 per hundred. Sweet peas are quoted at $1, and gladioli, which are still good, especially America, sell at two cents. Dahlias range from $1 to $3 per hundred. Ferns have advanced to $2 per thousand, lily of the valley remains at five cents and smilax is $2 per dozen. The rains during the past week have made the outdoor stock look rusty.

NOTES.

Mrs. W. D. Desmond has returned from the California expositions and a trip up the coast and speaks very highly of the expositions, the country and the courteous treatment she received while on her trip.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held at the Donaldson greenhouses Tuesday evening, October 5. Everybody invited.

E. A. Farmer, of the Farmer Nursery, is expecting to go to his Florida nursery and continue the business without interruption, soon as the frost knocks the outside plants here.

Some of the department stores bought Boston ferns for decoration purposes fashion week, and closed them out at reduced prices later.

The team of Thos. Hall ran away from in front of Rice Bros.' store last week and demolished the delivery wagon. No one was hurt.

Mrs. R. Wessling has returned from a two months' visit to relatives in North Dakota, very much improved in health.

S. S. Cargill has his range in fine shape and expects to have a large cut of roses and carnations this season.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. had 14 pillows to make one day last week, besides a number of other pieces.

Visitors: Miss O. A. Tonner and mother, Chicago; Edwin J. Fancourt, representing S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; E. P. Holm and O. R. Eckhardt, St. Paul, Minn.; Wm. Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT FLORAL FEATURE.

With stock arriving in sufficient quantity and better in quality, prices have advanced somewhat, and there has been a good demand in all lines. Roses, however, have been short of supply, and there has been a good call for American Beauties, Ophelia, Radiance, Hoosier Beauty, Mock, Kaiserin, Killarney Queen, Killarney Brilliant and Double White Killarney. The G. A. R. encampment gives promise of good business, and a number of luncheon and dinner decoration orders have already been booked.

NOTES.

Wm. Gude was guide and host to a number of notable horticulturists visiting the city, among whom were Prof. Corby, Dr. Van Fleet, Dr. True, Admiral Aaron Ward, S. S. Pennock and Robert Pyle. After luncheon he had the pleasure of taking his guests to the Arlington trial grounds, and after a pleasant hour they motored to Mrs. Chas. Bell's rose garden, which is considered one of the finest in the south. They spent considerable time here viewing the new varieties. Returning to the city, they were again the guests of Mr. Gude at what he called a "snack," but which some of his guests called a banquet.

Gude Bros. have a very attractive window decoration this week. Two large columns are surmounted with Boston ferns with a number of doves arranged on each. The background is of American flags and ferns, with a Grand Army badge made of cape flowers and immortelles in the center. This firm also had the decorations for the Court of Honor, Camp Emery, Pension building and the Union depot. In all, over 10,000 yards of laurel roping and 300 palms and ferns were used.

The window of the Washington Floral Co. is very attractive, with a decoration in the form of a huge Grand Army badge. It was arranged by Fred W. Miller, formerly of Charlotte, N. C.

George C. Shaffer's window is an immense bank of the national flower, the goldenrod, with American Beauty roses, with an American eagle perched on a stump.

It seems that the florists are arranging some elaborate window decorations to attract attention during the encampment. No expense is being spared.

Z. D. Blackstone has a very attractive window. It has brought forth much favorable comment, not only from visitors but from local florists as well.

Sam Masten, formerly with G. C. Shaffer, has accepted a position with the Dupont Floral Co.

FASHION SHOW INCREASES DEMAND.

The volume of business increased somewhat during the past week, due to the "Fashion show," which opened September 27, and created a demand for palms, ferns and decorative plants as well as cut flowers. There were prizes for the best decorated window displays in various lines of merchandise, and the competition was keen. In some cases very artistic basket arrangements and pot plants were used to elaborate the effect. The supply of stock was short all during the week, selling as fast as it reached the market, and in some lines, especially roses, there was a noticeable shortage. Carnations are some better, dahlias are more plentiful, and with lilies and gladioli found ready buyers.

NOTES.

Henry Kusik & Co. report more business than the stock will accommodate, the demand being so heavy that they are sold down to the last flower at the close of the day. Good roses in all varieties are being received, chrysanthemums are improving, gladioli are keeping well up in the line and carnations are better, both in flower and stem. The lily of the valley seen at this establishment is exceptionally good.

W. J. Barnes has been very busy arranging the decorations for the fifty-second anniversary of the Emery, Bird & Thayer Dry Goods Co.'s store. This was followed up with special decorations for the fashion show week, and a large number of decorative plants were used on both occasions.

Arthur Newell reports excellent trade during the week, the special features proving a great stimulant to business. He had orders for a number of elaborate plant baskets for window decorations. The demand for house plants, especially small palms, is very heavy.

Wm. F. Gude.

Chairman Citizens' Committee Grand Encampment G. A. R., Washington, D. C.

At the M. H. Smith greenhouse stock in general is in excellent shape. He reports his chrysanthemums as being the best he has ever had, with buds and foliage both good. His begonias are reported as being very fine.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving excellent stock but report roses short of the demand. Carnations are of good quality and white and yellow chrysanthemums are more plentiful. The supply trade continues good.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., Inc., are cutting good roses, especially American Beauties. Carnations have improved and chrysanthemums are few but very good. Trade at this store is satisfactory.

Chas. Laundry is sending in some very good carnations, and will commence to cut his chrysanthemums in about 10 days. His begonias are looking fine.

Miss Lou E. Boggess, who has been on an extended trip, visiting many places of interest on the Pacific coast, will be back in her store about October 1.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting good roses and carnations, which are selling as fast as they are brought in. Decorative work is picking up fast.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held October 4 at Henry Kusik & Co.'s, 1018 McGee street.

Chas. Biederman & Son report good business, with a strong increase in funeral work.

The nurserymen have displays at the corn carnival being held at Electric park.

E. J. B.

New Haven, Conn.

The city of New Haven had an especially fine exhibit made by the park department. Gustave X. Amrhn, the superintendent of the department, was a man especially fitted to look after such an exhibit. In 1903 he was president of the society. Both he and Mr. Tracy, of the department, acquitted themselves with credit in the display made. There were some fine specimens of dahlias, Japanese lilies, varieties of phlox, tuberose and a variety of roses. There were also some large bunches of pampas grass, unusually fine specimens.

The annual flower show of the New Haven County Horticultural Society was held in Harmonie hall, September 16-17, and was a complete success, both in number and variety of blooms. The character of the dahlia display was especially good. The show was held under the most unfavorable weather conditions, but the public were not losers, because basket after basket of fresh blooms were sent in to replace those affected.

The largest display made, however, was that of John H. Slocombe, the dahlia specialist. It occupied the whole of the stage setting of the hall and towered 15 feet high at the rear. It comprised dahlias—a great variety of seedlings—and cosmos.

P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., showed some excellent specimens of dahlias and gladioli, making a very artistic exhibit.

John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., showed 80 large vases of gladioli, each vase a different variety—a wonderful exhibit.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., showed five varieties of the newer roses and a half-dozen varieties of phlox.

The Late William Murphy.

William Murphy, one of the best-known florists of Cincinnati, O., passed away at his home in that city, Monday, August 27, aged 58 years, having been in ill-health and under medical care for about a year. He was born in Illinois, but came to Cincinnati with his parents when he was about two years old. About 33 years ago he engaged in the florist business as a grower, and for the past 15 years has had a wholesale commission establishment.

Mr. Murphy was one of the first members of the Cincinnati Florists' Society and has at different times held nearly every office in that society. He was also superintendent of exhibits at the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, which was held in Cincinnati in 1909, and was superintendent of exhibits at the fall flower show held in his home city about two years later. He is survived by his wife, four daughters, and a son, W. Ray Murphy, who will continue his father's business.

Mr. Murphy was an industrious and painstaking man, whose efforts in his various lines of activity, merited the success he attained.

WIRE, annealed, as used by florists has been advanced in price 10 cents per 100 pounds.

THE fire risk at greenhouse establishments is greater during the fall than at any other time of the year.

WE are in receipt of advance sheets of the final premium list of the Cleveland flower show. For copies address Frank A. Friedley, 356 Leader building, Cleveland, O.

GLASS jobbers at a meeting held in Chicago, September 21, made no substantial change in prices of greenhouse glass which will continue practically the same as heretofore.

HARRY A. BARNARD, of Stuart, Low & Co., London, Eng., who was a visitor this week, says trade conditions in England are very satisfactory, considering the situation, and improving steadily.

President Welch Forecasts Prosperity.

It is becoming quite clear that business in every branch of trade throughout the country is slowly but perceptibly improving. The flower business not only presents a cheerful outlook for the coming season, but there is every indication that it will surpass the business transacted in the year 1912-13. While business is still at a low ebb, the corner seems to have been turned and the cool weather coming on will help materially to increase the volume of trade. A small but distinct increase in activity has taken place in the last few days. Money is extremely abundant, producers taking advantage thereof by improving and building larger and more up-to-date greenhouses, while on the other hand both wholesalers and retailers are experiencing a brisk demand for their goods. To crown it all, there have been less business failures in our line during the past season than for some years past.

The cotton and woolen mills throughout the country are running up to 85 per cent capacity. A fresh lot of foreign orders help to stimulate manufacturing. Woolen mills as a rule are busier now than they have been for years. The steel and iron industries are flourishing to an extent not experienced in a generation, manufacturers exporting from 40 to 60 per cent of the total product. Railroad earnings are materially better, reflecting more closely the present industrial activity. The improvement in the volume of bank clearings over that of 1912 and 1913 is a most hopeful sign. In New England they increased during August 15 per cent, the middle states 5½ per cent, while the country as a whole shows a healthy increase of about seven per cent. Back of all these lesser factors is the production of bumper crops, now a practical certainty.

With such encouraging conditions existing throughout the country it is only reasonable to expect increased business in commercial floriculture. Trade in cut flowers is no different to that in other lines. If a period of dullness is experienced it is but natural for improvement to follow, the principle of averages holding good in the sale of flowers as in the buying and selling of other commodities.

PATRICK WELCH,
President Society of American Florists.

Azaleas Coming.

With regard to fall shipments of azaleas and other plants from Belgium, we have been in constant cable communication with our connections in Belgium, Holland and London, but the arrangements have been made and upset so often that we feared to make any definite statement. Now we can say definitely that fall shipments will come. We review briefly the changes as follows:

First—From June to August the shipments were included with the British "Order in Council" goods, and shipments were embargoed by the British authorities and could not leave.

Second—During August, all arrangements were made with the British authorities, the embargo was lifted, permits were given to individual Belgium shippers on the understanding that payments for the shipments be made in England before the shipments left Belgium.

Third—Early in September, when shipments were ready to leave, the German authorities—learning that proceeds would not go directly into Belgium—prevented shipments from leaving Belgium.

Fourth—Now arrangements have been made with both the German and British authorities and shipments are now leaving Belgium.

The above refers exclusively to our own shipments—we cannot speak for all Belgium shippers, or all American consignees. Within a few days we expect to be able to advise you what Belgium shipments have already left Rotterdam.

McHUTHCHISON & Co.

Chicago Grand Floral Festival.

Recent appointments include committee of ways, means and audit with Peter Reinberg as chairman. The other members of this committee so far appointed are C. L. Washburn, N. J. Wietor, Phillip Schupp, Geo. Reinberg, E. C. Amling, Emil Buettner, F. Hoerber, A. L. Randall, Ed. Meuret and J. H. Kidwell.

August Poehlmann has been elected treasurer. The committee on lectures has W. J. Keimel for chairman and it is proposed to arrange for an elaborate series covering subjects of public interest with stereopticon views, this having been one of the taking features at previous Coliseum shows.

Arrangements are under way for an elaborate display of vegetables in which various nearby horticultural organizations such as those of Lake Geneva, Lake Forest, Winnetka, etc., will be the contestants.

H. B. Kennicott as chairman of the press committee is at work with his assistants preparing material for an elaborate publicity campaign in the local newspapers.

Guy W. French, chairman of the Florists' Club special premiums committee reports highly satisfactory results from his first day's canvass.

A. I. Simmons has been appointed chairman of committee on music.

August Koch has been appointed chief of the information bureau.

M. BARKER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Fourth National Flower Show.

The press and publicity committee had a meeting in the office of Chairman Therkindson, of the publicity committee, September 23, where the plan for general local publicity was agreed upon. Several poster stickers to be used in the correspondence of the several local firms were selected as well as the design for the premium list cover. It was also decided that a design should be worked up for window cards, posters and programme, this design to be used on all three with the idea of getting the advantage of the accumulative value of keeping one design constantly before the people. The press and publicity committee is made up of a man from each one of the Philadelphia papers, the thought in view being that having a man in attendance at each meeting the show will get publicity which it would not get otherwise.

Special lists of the numerous premiums offered by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have been issued and W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s list of special prizes for sweet peas will be ready shortly.

SUPPLY MORE THAN SUFFICIENT.

Although the general supply of stock in the market shortened very materially last week, there is more than enough to go around. It seems that a heavy frost is needed to get rid of outside stock, but if a heavy frost should occur, we would probably have a scarcity of stock in the market. The aster season is about at an end, but a limited amount of blooms of any quality at all are coming into the wholesale houses. Gladioli, too, are about over with for the season, but arrivals include some excellent blooms. Roses of all kinds are plentiful and are good, but with the condition of the market at the time of this writing it is impossible to clean up all of them. Carnations, too, are plentiful. Lilies are a little scarce, but the chances are the scarcity is temporary. Rubrums, however, are plentiful. Some very fine dahlias may be had. Other offerings include cosmos, lily of the valley and orchids.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett and C. J. Ohmer motored to Culver, Ind., the early part of this week.

C. E. Critchell has received a large supply of baskets for his fall trade.

J. T. Conger has gone to Chicago to take his mother to her home.

COOLER WEATHER HELPS MARKET.

The cooler weather during the past week has brought about a favorable change in business conditions. The supply of outdoor flowers has shortened considerably, causing a general rise in prices. Gladioli are nearly done for this year, and good flowers bring $3 and $4 per 100. Asters, also, are in short crop, but the demand is not very heavy. Roses sell far better than they did last week, the demand still being for white and the newer varieties, such as Ophelia, Hadley and Russell. Carnations are more plentiful and are daily improving in quality. During the last two days of the week, they brought from $1 to $2 per 100. Chrysanthemums are coming in larger quantities. Golden Glow is practically the only variety seen. They are in fair demand at $1 per dozen.

NOTES.

During the last week in October, there will be held a "country fair" at Mechanics building, under the management of Chester I. Campbell. Mr. Campbell offered $500 in cash prizes for the florist competition. The matter was taken up by the Co-operative Flower Market and they are doing all in their power to insure good competition. This is a fine opportunity for florists and growers to compete and advertise their stock in a profitable manner.

The first meeting of the season held by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club took place September 21. M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., was scheduled to address the club, but ill health prevented his being present. Henry Penn gave a very interesting talk on his trip to California. It was voted to have the annual banquet in February, 1916. There were interesting exhibits from W. A. Manda and W. N. Craig.

Percy Green, of Quincy, is seeking an injunction against the Fore River Ship Building Co. for damages from soot and smoke done to his greenhouses and stock. The case is still pending and his brother florists unanimously wish him success in his just cause.

Wm. Penn arrived from his visit to the Panama-Pacific exposition and the western states, Wednesday, September 22. He had a very enjoyable trip and is very enthusiastic about the profuse vegetation of southern California.

R. P. Christafferson, of Lowell, is shipping a fine cut of roses to H. M. Robinson & Co. at the Boston Co-operative Flower Market. His white and Dark Pink Killarney are especially fine.

F. L. Sly, of South Stoughton, has already commenced his shipments of single violets. They are coming even better than usual at this time and he expects to have some very fine flowers this season.

On Wednesday, September 22, Henry Penn gave to the hospitals of greater Boston 35,000 roses. He was highly commended by the daily papers for his generosity and thoughtfulness.

The Mishawum Flower Co. is cutting Chrysanthemum Golden Glow in quantity. The flowers are very good and find a ready market. F. L. W.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WINTRY WEATHER SHORTENS SUPPLY.

A change from the torrid heat of summer to the almost freezing cold of winter, with numerous windstorms, has shortened up the supply of all stocks, particularly roses. Outdoor stocks have been seriously affected by the change, and in consequence there remains only greenhouse stock to choose from. The crop of chrysanthemums is increasing slowly and prices are rather stiff. Merchants are holding their fall openings and occasion a demand for flowers, and a number of fall weddings and considerable funeral work has helped to offset the loss of business occasioned by the street car strike. Carnations are improving with the advent of cold weather and roses have improved wonderfully during the past few days.

NOTES.

The decorations for the opening of the Reed shoe store, September 22, carried out by Miss Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., were very elaborate. Huge baskets of Golden Glow and October Frost chrysanthemums arranged with Shawyer, Sunburst and Russell roses were very attractive and thousands of roses were presented to visitors.

A deal for the erection of a large building on Harrison street, by the Flick Floral Co. was closed last week. The deal involves $125,000. A lease has already been signed by the Ford Automobile Co., who will occupy the first floor when the building is ready for occupancy.

Miss Margaret Vesey gave a luncheon September 20 in honor of her aunt, Mrs. A. D. Morrison of Decatur. Covers were laid for eight at the English Tea Room and the floral arrangement was very attractive.

TRADE IN GENERAL IS ACTIVE.

The past week has been an ideal one for everyone. Flowers were good—even the belated asters tried to look good and the dahlias were most beautiful. The early chrysanthemums tried to crowd in but there was no demand for them and carnations are only called for by the casual buyer. The roses showed improvement daily, the cool nights and the care given them in the greenhouse being responsible for their good showing. Trade in this vicinity has been very active. There have been a number of September weddings calling not only for brides' bouquets but for palms and other accessories that the florist furnishes for the wedding. There have been three weddings of unusual size which called for elaborate displays of choice flowers both for the church decorations and the homes, and on one occasion the decoration of this city's swell club. The decorations for the three were arranged by S. A. Anderson. Aside from the numerous weddings, there have been several funerals of prominent people, one being that of one of the city's largest contractors and the display of flowers was of the best. Designs by W. J. Palmer & Son, Wm. Scott Co., Inc., and S. A. Anderson showed some choice stock, with those of other florists noteworthy both in arrangement and quality.

The meeting of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs at Syracuse was well attended, and while the results are not what was originally anticipated, the progress is encouraging and it will not be long before there will be a chair of floriculture and new greenhouses at Cornell University, with a building at the state fair at Syracuse for flowers, vegetables, fruit and all pertaining thereto, together with lawn flower beds and all that will make the state fair second to the Toronto exposition—and that is worthy of a visit from anyone within a radius of 200 miles of Toronto. Newport, R. I.

The dahlia show under the auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association was held on the association's grounds September 23-24, but owing to a heavy rain and wind storm just previous to the opening, the exhibition did not come up to the usual standard. It was a dahlia show exclusively, and the displays were arranged on tables in a tent.

In the amateur classes the amateurs were conspicuous by their absence, and while the school children came in strong with a varied assortment, the displays showed signs of having been hit by the storm. Some excellent blooms were staged by W. D. Hathaway, dahlia specialist of New Bedford, Mass.; Miss Fanny Foster (Jas. Boughtout, Gr.), and T. O. Richardson (Jas. Robertson, Gr.), of Newport.

In the open classes, W. D. Hathaway took first for the best six decorative, best 12 cactus, and the best display. T. O. Richardson got first for best 15 single red, white, and yellow and also for best vase of 15 cactus, pink and red. Miss Foster took first in best six cactus and best 15 single any color. The varieties and quality of blooms shown by the above mentioned exhibitors were remarkably good, and worthy of special mention. In W. D. Hathaway's display were some 40 varieties.

The best outstanding were counters of Kenmare, Sweet Briar, Crystal, Rev. T. W. Jamieson, John Riding, Stability, Yellow Crown, Advance, Kalif, Glory of Wilts, Faunus, Mrs. Douglas Fleming, Wellington, Nashoon Extase, and Marg. Bouchon. The best six decorative dahlias were La Colosse, Marjorie Field, Jeanne Charmet, Le Grand Manitou, Lucy Fevrier, Com. Rivoire. The best single dahlias shown were Newport Pride, yellow; Newport Jewel, red; The Bride, white. J. J. B.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Business continues to be good and stock is none too plentiful at this writing, neither is it exactly scarce but prices have advanced in certain lines to such an extent that it is a question with the buyer whether he needs the stock or not in orders or whether he should pay the price just to make a showing. While prices have advanced considerably they are not what one would call high for this time of the year nor high for the quality of stock in general that he is receiving. American Beauty roses are of the fine quality and are moving well in the longer grades but there seems to be plenty of the shorter lengths obtainable. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are moving well and in some instances are bringing unusually good prices in the longer stemmed grades. Roses in general are of fine quality and while they are in good demand there are plenty to go around if one is willing to pay the price asked. Carnations are improving in quality and have advanced in price but good stock is rather scarce and what few are reaching the market are cleaning up an early hour at good prices. Out-door stock has suffered considerably the past week from the rain and cold weather and the receipts of this class of stock is gradually dwindling and in another week will not cut much of a figure in this market.

Asters are none too good and the same stands good for gladioli although late stock is selling well at good prices during the scarcity of good indoor stock at low prices. Orchids are more plentiful and have taken a considerable drop in prices which is not due so much to the increase in the local supply as it is to the importation of blooms from the eastern markets. Gardenias are in good supply but seem to clean up well. Lilies are not as plentiful as they have been and the same may be said of good lily of the valley. Chrysanthemums are a trifle more plentiful but real good stock is scarce and is commanding good prices. The local wholesale stores will be open until 6 p. m. during the week days again after Friday, October 1, which all out-of-town buyers should bear in mind when ordering. The Chicago Grand Floral

Festival, to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14, 1915, is the principal topic of conversation in the market and from present indications it appears as if it will be one of the best shows that was ever held in this city.

NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. William John Ashley announce the marriage of their daughter Dorothy Margaret to Walter Martin Rupp, Wednesday, September 22. The happy young couple will be at home to their friends after November 1 at 3453 Janssen avenue. Mr.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel La Salle, next Thursday, October 7, at 8 p. m., when the amalgamation of the Chicago Florists' club and Cook County Florists' Association will be celebrated with a banquet. All members in good standing will receive a complimentary ticket from the secretary through the mails and anyone in arrears who would like to straighten up before the big doings should send their remittance immediately to Guy W. French, secretary, Morton Grove, Ill. The banquet committee consists of H. N. Bruns, chairman, A. T. Pyfer, N. P. Miller, George Asmus and W. J. Keimel.

The National Plant and Flower Company has been incorporated by Edward R. Newmann, George S. Plues and Martin Weiss with a capital of $10,000. The new concern has bought and already taken possession of the C. V. Abeele greenhouses at 1429 West Sixty-first street, consisting of 14,000 feet of glass. Some of the members of this concern, including Sam Freund, are interested in the Englewood Floral Shop, 703 West Sixty-third street. Harry Conn will manage both places, but the greenhouses and the store will be operated independent of each other.

George Perdikas, 407 South Wabash avenue, was suddenly taken sick last week and his condition became so serious that he was immediately removed to the German Hospital of Chicago, where he underwent an operation for rupture, Wednesday, September 22. His nephew, George Propps, is looking after the business during his illness and last reports from the hospital are to the effect that he is doing nicely and will soon be able to be about again.

Ronsley, the Florist, celebrated his first year in business at 106 South Dearborn street, Saturday, September 25, and is well pleased with the amount of business that he has enjoyed during that period. He has just remodeled and repainted his entire place, which greatly improves the general appearance of the store. Victor Young is now associated with him, which means that there will be two hustling young fellows on the job hereafter instead of one.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have been headquarters for gladioli all this week and the firm has had no trouble in disposing of one of its shipments of 5,000 blooms per day in addition to all the other stock sent in by the regular growers. Mr. Vaughan says that he has seen more new faces in his place of business this week than he has for a long time which leads one to believe that the fall season is opening in earnest.

There were two automobiles laden with floral tributes from the police department at the funeral of Detective Sergeant William J. Egan, often called "Big Bill" whose funeral was held Monday, September 27, and one of the prettiest pieces in the whole collection was a large wreath sent by those at the detective bureau bearing the words: "Our Pal," in red roses.

ity Exposition Company and fixed his bond at $2,500. Subpoenas were issued for the officers of the company to appear October 3 and answer to the petition in bankruptcy. The company is conducted a street fair at the foot of Chicago avenue.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg is back from an extended trip to the west, southwest and northwest, which included a visit to the Panama-Pacific and San Diego expositions in California. She reports having had a delightful time and is again attending to her duties at her wholesale store at 158 North Wabash avenue.

A. T. Pyfer says that the shipping trade has been unusually brisk at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store this week and that roses and carnations are cleaning up nicely each day. This firm is receiving a good supply of choice roses from the Pyfer & Olsem greenhouses at Wilmette.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is having a brisk call for a fancy grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which are coming from the Stielow greenhouses at Niles Centre and are cleaning up at an unusually good price.

Gust P. Constantino, proprietor of the Chicago Floral House, is again on duty at the store, after being on the sick list for some time. His brother George had charge of the store during his absence.

Henry Wittbold arranged the decoration for the Autumn Exposition at Marshall Field & Company's store, which began September 27 and will continue through the week.

James Psenicka cut his first carnations this season September 27, which is considerably later than last year, and as usual is shipping his entire output to Kyle & Foerster.

Chas. H. Fisk, 1581 Ogden avenue, and wife, have returned from a delightful visit in California, where they attended both the San Francisco and San Diego expositions.

Wm. Homburg has gone into the retail business for himself and is now located at 183 North Wabash avenue, where he has been open for business since September 23.

Miss O. A. Tonner, who, with her mother, has been visiting relatives in Minnesota, has returned from a well earned rest and is again in charge of her wholesale store.

F. W. Martin, 609 East Fortieth street, had a beautifully decorated automobile in the Thirty-ninth street business men's parade, Monday evening, September 27.

John Farmer is doing the buying in the market for Stollery Bros., 1046 Wilson avenue, while Manager George Stollery and wife are visiting at Green Bay, Wis.

The Art Floral Co., 7 West Randolph street, which was opened about a year ago by Sam Graff and Nate Lewis was closed by the sheriff, Tuesday, September 28.

Theodore Vogel has accepted a position as storeman with W. J. Smyth, 3101 South Michigan avenue, and will start to work next Monday, October 4.

John Bauscher, of Freeport, who acted as one of the judges at the state fair at Springfield, September 20-22, was here on a visit September 25.

W. N. Rudd left for Ithaca, N. Y., last week, where he places his youngest daughter, Phyllis, at Cornell University for the regular course.

George Manos, the Union Depot Florist, and wife, are visiting friends and relatives at Pittsburgh, Pa., and other cities in the east.

A. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y., visited several of the large commercial greenhouse establishments this week in this vicinity.

Oscar Metz, 5525 Harper avenue, has just bought a new seven passenger Oldsmobile and a Ford delivery car.

Ralph J. Southerton, of Highland Park, has a large lot of unusually fine cyclamens again this season.

Fred Scheel, of Shermerville, is sub-dividing 10 acres of his farm and is offering acre lots for sale.

C. L. Huffert, 4053 West North avenue, has returned from a few days' fishing trip at Fox Lake.

Wieter Bros. celebrated their twenty-first anniversary in the wholesale cut flower business September 24. W. H. Kidwell, who has been a regular customer all during that time, and N. J. Wieter took a day off and enjoyed themselves to their heart's content. Twenty-one years is quite a long time, but Harry Lubliner says he can well remember the day when Wieter Bros. first hung out their shingle. This firm has gradually established a nice paying business and today have one of the three largest greenhouse establishments devoted exclusively to cut flowers in America, the output of which is all sold at wholesale in their store in the great central market.

Robert Huehnchen, who assists his daughter, Mrs. Meyer, at her store, doing business under the firm name of the Humboldt Park Florist, was slightly injured when a Ford struck him as he was crossing the street at Randolph and Wabash avenue on his way to Zech & Mann's store, September 23. It keeps one so busy dodging the large cars nowadays that he cannot watch the many mechanical fleas as the new Moline-Knight's little tool boxes are commonly called.

Peter Reinberg's store is being overhauled and is beginning to look pretty neat in a new dress of white enamel. Carnations and roses are arriving in large supply at this house now and the receipts of Mrs. Chas. Russell especially are exceptionally heavy. Felix Reichling is well pleased with the way the shipping business holds up and stock in all lines is cleaning up at an early hour at this store.

The John Kruchten Co. is receiving a good supply of roses each day at its store and particularly noticeable is a fancy grade of Ophelia. Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauties. John Kruchten and wife will visit friends and relatives at Milwaukee, Wis.

Payne Jennings, secretary and treasurer of the Retail Florists' Co., is busy with his new duties and states that active service will be started to its members shortly after October 1, when a special effort will be made to increase the membership to over 100, so that the buying power will be of such importance that the organization will be recognized by all the dealers whom the company is anxious to get in touch with for mutual benefit. Mr. Jennings is confident that the organization can be as successful in co-operative buying, etc., just as well as dealers in other lines, and when the company is ready to do business along the new lines laid out, dealers will welcome it, for it will be more satisfactory to all concerned than individual buying in some instances in the past.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s new Foley greenhouses are rapidly nearing completion, and will be ready for occupancy soon and will be an addition to the rapidly growing plant department. Thos. Conlon, superintendent of the plant department, and his force of assistants have been busy shipping out stock all week, and an inspection of the houses shows a nice supply of azaleas that have been carried over and should be good property when placed on sale. Tony Gabel says that the demand for field-grown carnation plants is good, and it is surprising how many late orders are arriving. At the store the supply department is busy filling fall orders, and in the cut flower department some very fancy orchids and gardenias are now included in the daily receipts.

Judging from the many repairs that are being made in the Atlas building, it does not appear as if the structure will be torn down for many years to come, and the wholesalers that are located there are not worrying much about having to move for some time. The wholesale concerns that are doing business in the Atlas building are Peter Reinberg, Wieter Bros., Hoerber Bros., John Kruchten Co., D. E. Freres, George Reinberg, Erne & Kilngel, Kyle & Foerster, A. T. Pyfer & Co., O. A. Tonner, Chas. W. McKellar, Sinner Bros., Zech & Mann, Batavia Greenhouse Co., M. C. Gunterberg, Weiland & Risch, E. F. Winterson Co., Winterson's Seed Store and two retail concerns, Archie Spencer and the Atlas Floral Co.

Bassett & Washburn are now moving into their new quarters in the Le Moyne building, where the E. C. Ambling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. are now located, and their business address after October 1 will be 178 North Wabash avenue. The A. L. Randall Co. has the order for the new ice-box and when all the new fixtures are installed this firm will have one of the finest equipped wholesale establishments in the great central market. Their total floor space amounts to a trifle over 4,200 square feet, counting the main floor and the basement, which is considerably larger than their old quarters. Mr. Washburn extends a cordial invitation to the trade in general to visit them and inspect their new home.

W. P. Craig, with Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was in the city a few days this week on his way from Minneapolis, Minn., to St. Louis, Mo. He reports that the florists in the west are all making preparations for the fall season and are very optimistic in regard to the business outlook for the coming year.

Percy Jones and his able force of assistants are making a strong bid for the fall business and are on the job early and late at the store. This firm will have its usual supply of chrysanthemums to offer this season, which is one of the chief offerings each fall.

It is rumored that another wholesale firm is about to rent new quarters on the ground floor of the LeMoyne building directly north of Bassett & Washburn's new location across the hallway, further particulars of which will be announced later.

Ed. Siebrecht, proprietor of the Rosery Florist, had his grand opening at 6972 North Clark street, last Saturday, September 25, and was well pleased with the amount of business that he did.

Zech & Mann are featuring large quantities of white and yellow chrysanthemums at their store in addition to their regular line of stock.

F. J. Littleford, of the Austin-Littleford Nurseries, Downers Grove, visited his many friends in the local market this week.

J. A. Budlong is cutting from a nice crop of American Beauty roses, which are in brisk demand at the store.

The principal awards in the floricultural department of the Illinois state fair appeared in our issue of September 25, page 509. Later awards include the class of six orchids in bloom in which the A. T. Hey Floral Co., Maywood, was first and the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, second. Additional awards for cut flowers and floral designs are appended, including 16 entries for roses in which the Poehlmann Bros. Co., obtained nine first prizes and one second.

MARKET SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT.

There is a distinct improvement in the demand this week, winding up with very fair business for the season. The hot weather period has been broken, very cool nights being experienced the past six days. This has retarded the dahlias considerably, so that the market has cleaned up very well. Rose crops have little more than kept pace with the demand, the crops shortening up considerably, the quality is getting better, and when the weather settles, the market will see record shipments. Asters are passing as are gladioli, while each week sees new chrysanthemums, which promise to be very fine. Cattleya labiata is offered by a number of growers. With the quantity coming, prices are falling. There is no question that the market will be better supplied with flowers this season than ever before. A strenuous selling campaign by the retail florists is now the urgent need. Are they equal to it?

NOTES.

The flower show of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has come to be an annual event, increasing in importance each year. A record attendance is expected as crowds attended on the opening day, September 25, and bid fair to continue until the close, October 2. A cut flower sale, conducted by society ladies, together with refreshments, is a feature, the proceeds to go to help erect the Martha Washington memorial at Valley Forge. Henry A. Dreer furnishes the flowers gratis. A day spent here going over the extensive fields of cannas, dahlias, phloxes and other flowers cannot fail but impress the visitor with the great magnitude of this wonderful business, which does so much to beautify the homes in every part of the United States.

The wholesale flower center is rapidly developing in the block bounded by 16th and 17th streets and Ranstead and Ludlow streets. The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange opened its doors last week at 1625 Ranstead street. J. Duetscher and C. Glazer are the proprietors. Mr. Duetscher is the salesman for Thomas Young's gardenias and orchids in this market, while his partner has had considerable experience in New York commission houses. They are enterprising young men and should succeed.

Mrs. Anna A. Krueger, mother of Chas. Krueger, recently deceased, died Monday, September 27, aged 70 years. The flower stand in the Reading Terminal was sold by Mrs. Krueger only last week, the purchasers being Arthur Lanser and Frank Alter, who will continue the business under the name of the Reading Terminal Flower Stand.

Special dahlias, selected stock in large quantities, is the feature with the Leo Niessen Co. For the next two weeks they will handle them by the tens of thousands. Chrysanthemums and choice American Beauties are also features.

Edward Reid has passed up the aster for the chrysanthemum, all the early sorts being seen here in quantity. American Beauties, the first choice "Reid brand", are a factor.

Lawrence Peacock, the dahlia expert, will make an exhibit of his latest novelties at the October meeting of the florists' club and give the members an interesting review of dahlias and their culture.

Wilhelm, of Logan, will open his new store on Broad street above Rockland, October 2. The appointments are up-to-date in every respect and a largely increased business will no doubt result.

The Robt. Craig Co. was never so busy before at this season. Mr. Craig is very optimistic, saying, "we have the best and largest stock we ever had and I know we are going to sell it."

Dahlias are the specialty at the busy Berger Brothers' Central Market. Roses, choice lily of the valley and chrysanthemums are also features.

SLIGHT TRADE IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

While the market was not very active during the past week it was certainly some better than the preceding week. There were a number of weddings and a large amount of funeral work, which stiffened prices in several stocks, such as orchids, lilies and lily of the valley. While there has been no great rise in the price of orchids, they are moving more freely. On September 25, lilies sold for five and six cents per flower and lily of the valley for $4 per 100. If roses did not bring a much higher price, they moved better and the quality will improve with clear and cool weather, such as we are now having. The chrysanthemums are straggling in, but no great volume has yet arrived. On account of the dahlia show it is quite natural that the thoughts of the trade should, to some extent, have turned to dahlias during the past week. Both wholesalers and retailers were in evidence at the show, several of the latter, as will be elsewhere noted, having exhibits. Though business has been rather quiet in the wholesale district, it has had its thrills. The lamentable disaster of September 22 at Seventh avenue and 25th street, was near enough to create a sensation. Another cave in on Broadway at 38th street on the evening of September 25, has caused that thoroughfare to be closed indefinitely for 13 blocks. Not only the Broadway street car line, but also the 34th and 28th street cross town lines are tied up, which is causing inconvenience to the east side retailers who are numerous. In this connection it may be said that there can be no argument about the greatness of this city; it is so great that nobody needs to boast of it. There is, however, doubt in many minds relating to the mental calibre of some of the men who are now directing its affairs.

September 27.—Though the market opened quiet this morning, the prospects seem encouraging. A very cool wave struck this city last night, but there is good sunshine to-day. The supply of stock is about normal.

NOTES.

A very cool wave has swept away the heat and humidity that caused so much misery during the greater part of September, yet some people persist in talking and writing about it. A local scribe inflicts the following on the public, which he says was found inscribed on a piece of junk picked up in the ruins of Babylon:

"If, on the Mesopotamian plain,
Cain slaughtered Abel, did it he
Because the heat went to his brain,
Accompanied with humidity?"

Frank Good, formerly well known as a designer and decorator of this city, who for the past two years has been with F. H. Kramer, of Washington, D. C., is in this city on a business trip for Mr. Kramer. He tells us that Mr. Kramer had two and one-half acres of gladioli this season, mostly America, and that he had a total outdoor stock of flowers and plants of seven and one-half acres. We have known Fred Kramer as a hustler in the years ago.

The dahlia show and other business brought in a number of out of town visitors during the past week. We noted Richard Vincent Jr., and two sons, George L. Stillman, Louis J. Reuter and Mrs. O. P. Chapman of West-erly, R. I., and both members of the firm of McAlpin & McDonald, Boston. Arthur Luetchford, a landscape gardener of Rochester, N. Y., was also a visitor.

A meeting of the schedule committee of the New York Florists' Club was held at Secretary Young's office, September 27. Several previous meetings had been held and the schedule for the spring show will soon be ready. There were present at the meeting C. H. Totty, Wm. Duckham, James Stewart, Fred Atkins, Julius Roehrs, John Canning and Secretary Young.

William Stryker of Thompson's popular restaurant, which is much frequented by the florists of the wholesale district, is rejoicing over the safe return of Mrs. Stryker, who has been on a two months' visit with relatives at Dukenfield, Cheshire, England.

Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Inc., 34 West 28th street, have authorized us to make the following statement: "Meyer Othile having left the employ of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Inc., will in no wise interfere with the operation of said business."

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the evening of October 11. As usual, there will be a varied program and some fine exhibits of cut flowers are likely to be seen.

Charles Millang, of the Coogan building, is offering good gladioli, which were grown on his own farm. We are going out to learn how he does it at this season of the year.

There are rumors of a change in the personnel of one of the wholesale firms of this district, but we are not yet authorized to make public the names or particulars.

Robert Clifford, who for some time has been at the Hill Top Farm (Vanderbilt) Newport, R. I., has returned and is now on the staff of T. F. Galvin, Inc.

Secretary Vinson, of the general committee for the Cleveland, O., flower show, was in this city September 27 doing missionary work for that enterprise.

F. F. Salinger, who is well known a designer and decorator, has recently taken charge of the floral features at the Knickerbocker hotel.

The heavy rains that we are having every few days would seem to indicate that the fall season is upon us. This has been accounted as a semi-arid region for the last four or five years and during that time there has been much talk about the necessity of irrigation and dry-farming methods. We have had so much moisture, however, this summer, that such agitation has all died down for the time being.

The florists made elaborate displays for "Fashion night", September 24, but this event, as also the opening of the state fair, which took place on the following morning, was marred by a steady down-pour of rain.

Store keepers say that business is fairly good, quite as much being done as is usual for this time of the year.

Racine School Children's Flower Show.

School children of the city of Racine, Wis., competing in the annual flower and vegetable show, which was held September 11, under the auspices of the Racine Commercial Club, staged what was said to be one of the finest exhibitions of its kind ever held in that city. The displays came from gardens of the school children, and were grown from seeds given by the club last spring, and many of the exhibits would have graced a state fair. Great interest in the show was taken by the public, as evidenced by the large attendance, and it is expected that a large amount will be donated by citizens to stimulate greater interest in the children's gardens next year. One hundred and fifty dollars was given in prizes to the successful contestants this year.

In order to judge the vegetable gardens raised under the auspices of the commercial club, the judges visited 234 gardens in all parts of the city, and many children were found who had raised enough produce from their backyard plots to pay for their clothing, while others proudly exhibited bank accounts. Not only has the contest been a source of education to the children and worked out to their financial assistance, but it has done much to beautify the city at large and will become an annual affair. At the close of the exhibition all of the vegetables were given to the poor of the city.

The annual aster show given under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Club was held in conjunction with the show of the Racine Commercial Club and proved a big success.

Dickinson's the Largest Business.

Greenebaum Sons Bank & Trust Co., Chicago, in offering $500,000 six per cent gold bonds, first portion of total issue $1,500,000, secured by the Albert Dickinson Co., say the company, established 1855, has the largest seed business in the United States. Among other technical items the security of these bonds includes the following:

1. The security consists of ownership of land and buildings situated in the new southwest manufacturing district, comprising 70 acres, of which 60 acres are owned by the company. Improvements consist of new, reinforced concrete, brick and stone buildings, 420 x 420 feet, with connecting subways, being three stories, four stories and five stories and extending in sections 200 feet in height. Buildings are provided with covered unloading platforms for the handling of 100 cars at one time. The Dickinson railroad yard has a capacity exceeding 350 cars. Large steel tanks provide storage for 750,000 bushels of grain.

2. Ownership of land and buildings at southwest corner Clark and Sixteenth streets, on the L. S. & M. S. railroad, a smaller complete working unit.

3. Value of land, buildings and equipment as security conservatively estimated $3,285,000. Over double the amount of total first mortgage bond issue.

4. The bonds are the direct obligation of the company. All assets of the company are additional guarantee for prompt payment of the bonds.

5. The earnings of the company for the past five years average over three times the greatest annual interest charge.

Powdery Scab Quarantine Lifted.

The fact has been determined by the secretary of agriculture, as the result of investigations and surveys, that the disease known as powdery scab of potato (Spongospora subterranea) is largely limited by soil conditions, that the soil conditions of the southern and central states are such that the spread of the disease to those states is improbable, and that the disease now exists to a slight extent only outside of the states of Maine and New York, which were quarantined by Notice of Quarantine No. 14, dated April 25, 1914, and Notice of Quarantine No. 18, dated November 14, 1914.

Now, therefore, I, C. F. Marvin, acting secretary of agriculture, under the authority conferred by the act approved August 20, 1912 (37 Stat. L., 315), known as "The plant quarantine act," do hereby remove and revoke the quarantine placed by said Notices of Quarantine Nos. 14 and 18 upon the states of Maine and New York, and do also hereby revoke the rules and regulations governing the interstate movement of potatoes from areas quarantined for powdery scab, dated June 26, 1914, and all amendments thereto, such revocations to take effect on September 1, 1915.

Done at Washington this 30th day of August, 1915.

C. F. MARVIN,
Acting Secretary of Agriculture.

Lima Beans.

That there are 89,736 sacks of lima beans on hand in the warehouses of the Los Angeles district is the statement sent out by the Southern Pacific Milling Company's head offices. This was the amount on hand when the season opened, and since then there has been some movement, which continues, and is reported likely to greatly reduce the warehouse stock before the new beans begin to arrive, as the east increases its demand.

Of this big harvest in the warehouse Lompoc is credited with 182 sacks and Carpinteria with 241. During August 35,404 were shipped and only 860 received for storage. Ventura county has 2,244 sacks of large whites and 4,415 sacks of blackeyes in the warehouses.

The Ventura warehouses of the company report lima beans by the sack on hand as follows: Ventura, 6,419; Montalvo, 26,643; El Rio, 20,914; Saticoy, 13,869; Santa Paula, 199; Oxnard, 5,050; Camarillo, 31,205; Somis, 16,020; Moorpark, 3,254; Santa Susana, 284.

Contraband Seeds.

We learn that the French government is very keen on the question of war contraband and that several strong verdicts have been given against a few Frenchmen and foreigners living in France who have been found guilty of trading with the enemy through neutral countries. The issues of Le Journal and Le Matin of August 28 announce deals with the enemy through Switzerland and Holland in which contraband shipments were made of 45,000 kilogs of vegetable seeds from February to April, against 4,000 kilogs in the preceding season. Most of these shipments were made from St. Remy de Provence.

Crimson Clover Seed Supply.

There is apparently a larger supply of crimson clover seed on hand at the present time than in any previous year and much of it is of poor quality, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture. While this would indicate that the price should be normal or less than normal, it is rapidly advancing. The greater part of the crimson clover seed sowed in the United States is normally imported from France and Austria. In the fall of 1914 conditions of trade with Europe were such that there appeared to be danger of a short supply of seed for this summer's planting. The desire of the seed trade to secure as much seed as possible, together with the improvement in trade facilities with France during the winter and spring, resulted in the importation of 12,000,000 pounds during the year ending June 30, 1915, as compared with 7,500,000 pounds the year previous, and 1,500,000 pounds in 1910.

CRIMSON CLOVER SEED IMPORTATIONS.

Fiscal Year.	Pounds.
1910	1,552,000
1911	3,529,000
1912	3,406,000
1913	5,376,000
1914	7,524,000
1915	12,036,000

During May and June much seed of poor quality has been imported, more than 1,000,000 pounds made up of several lots, germinating from 29 per cent to 62 per cent. Farmers should therefore be sure of the quality of the seed they buy. Crimson clover seed of a bright greenish yellow color usually germinates well, while a brownish color indicates poor germination. All lots containing brownish or brown seeds should be carefully tested for germination to determine the proportion that may be expected to grow in the field under favorable conditions and the rate of seeding should be adjusted accordingly.

Imports.

During the week ending September 25 imports were received at New York as follows:

MacNiff Horticultural Co., 41 cases trees, etc., 47 cases bulbs.
 De Rubron Florist Co., 76 cases bulbs (Marseilles, France).
 Syndicate Trading Co., 10 cases bulbs (Rotterdam, Holland).
 Chas. Schwake & Co., Inc., 67 cases bulbs (Liverpool, Eng.).
 F. B. Vandegrift & Co., 13 cases trees, etc., 21 cases bulbs.
 J. M. Thorburn & Co., 90 barrels seeds (Glasgow, Scotland).

 Elliott Auction Co., 6 cases bulbs.
 P. Henderson & Co., 6 cases bulbs.
 H. H. Berger & Co., 6 cases bulbs.
 A. Rolker & Sons, 20 cases bulbs.
 R. M. Ward & Co., 227 cases bulbs.
 W. Elliott & Son, 56 cases bulbs.
 Burnett Bros., 42 cases bulbs.
 St. Louis Seed Co., 7 bags seed (Rotterdam, Holland).
 To order, 4472 cases bulbs, 303 packages seed, 6 cases trees.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Ritchie Bros., late of Ritchie, Brand & Co., have opened a flower and seed store at 840 Granville street, in the heart of the business district. The store at the opening, September 1, presented a very beautiful appearance. A large importation of bulbs is expected shortly. The firm will also handle seeds and supplies.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

ELIZABETH, N. J.—A new storage house, 30 x 60 feet, is being added to the establishment of the Elizabeth Nursery Co.

VALLEY CITY, N. D.—The Northwestern Nursery Co. is doubling its capacity, and is erecting a large packing shed and storage warehouse.

PATERSON, N. J.—Bobbink & Atkins of Rutherford, N. J., have purchased 50 acres of land near this city, which will be devoted to the culture of roses.

NEW CASTLE, IND.—P. J. Lynch is a candidate for congress on the republican ticket and his many friends in the trade wish him all success in the contest.

KALLEN & LUNNEMANN, of Boskoop, Holland, have promised a collection of the new European varieties for the American Rose Society's garden at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

FEARING the pest which destroys the mulberry tree, thereby menacing the silk industry, France has prohibited the importation of cut flowers from Italy between May 1 and November 1 each year.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Nurseries, Western Springs, Ill., visited the Storrs & Harrison and Kohankie establishments at Painesville, O., last week and reports their stocks in fine condition. Robert George, of the former firm, has been so busy this year that he had to forego his annual fishing trip.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH.—District Horticultural Inspector DeSelle has learned that unscrupulous fruit buyers are frightening growers into parting with their product at ruinous prices by representing that the department rules are so strict that their fruit is practically unmarketable. The buyers make a neat profit by merely sorting out the infected fruit.

Watson Breaks New Ground.

John Watson, for many years identified with the Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., has severed his connection with that firm and will start in the nursery business on his own account. During the past 10 years Mr. Watson has been prominently identified with various trade organizations and an officer in several or them, having been elected vice-president of the American Nurserymen's Association at the Detroit convention last June. Mr. Watson has a wide acquaintance in the business and will grow ornamentals for the trade exclusively. He will also sell fruit-tree seedlings and young ornamentals for nursery planting for one of the best growers, gardeners and packers among the French nurserymen, Manetti stocks for an excellent English house, azaleas and other things from the continent as soon as war conditions permit. Mr. Watson's address is Newark, N. Y.

Shade Trees for the City.

That the largest shade tree in the United States, as brought to light by the prize contest held by the American Genetic Association, should turn out to be the eastern sycamore is not surprising, say government foresters. The sycamore has long been regarded as the largest deciduous tree in North America and its range of growth is hardly second to that of any other broad-leaf tree; for it can be found from Maine to Florida, and as far west as Kansas.

The bestowal of the prize on a sycamore at Worthington, Ind., which is 42 feet 3 inches in circumference and 150 feet tall, draws attention to the fact that foresters are nowadays recommending the species especially for city planting. They say that long experience with sycamores planted in city streets has shown that the species is peculiarly able to withstand the smoke, dust, and gases which are usually an unavoidable complement of urban life. In addition, the sycamore is as resistant to attacks of insects and fungi as almost any species, and is a quick grower; at 10 years of age, a healthy sycamore usually is already large enough for shade as well as for decorative purposes. As for the latter, there is hardly any eastern species which is generally held so picturesque as the sycamore, with its strikingly mottled bark and magnificent stature and conformation, the sycamore has a marked individuality and can not be mistaken for any other species, either in the summer when the foliage conceals its structural form, or in the winter when the leaves are absent.

A common objection to the sycamore as a lawn tree is its habit of dropping its leaves before autumn. From this characteristic it is sometimes called a "dirty tree." Recently the forest service received a letter from a suburban resident who has a sycamore on his lawn. "My sycamore tree is very beautiful," said the writer, "until about the first of August, when its leaves begin to fall. Is there any remedy that I can apply to the tree to keep it from dropping its leaves so soon?" It was necessary to tell the correspondent that this was a characteristic habit of the tree. This drawback, however, is practically the only failing that the sycamore has, and it is offset by many desirable qualities.

On the other hand, there is little prospect of popularity, foresters say, for the valley oak of California, which was decided to be the largest nut-bearing tree in the United States, the contest unearthing a specimen in San Benito county, which is 37 feet 6 inches in circumference and 125 feet high. The valley oak is a very beautiful tree, but it attains maturity only after three or four hundred years; its wood is too tough, knotty, and otherwise imperfect to be good for lumber; the tree grows too slowly to be planted for shade or decorative purposes, and, being found only in California, it would have a small field of usefulness. Horticulturists say that the valley oak is not popularly considered a nut-bearing tree; for its acorns are not generally used for food, although, of course, they are edible. Foresters say that the chestnut and the black walnut are the largest nut-bearing trees in this country, and the contest did, in fact, unearth a chestnut near Crestmont, N. C, which is 33 feet 4 inches in circumference and about 75 feet tall.

The contest brought forth photographs and authentic descriptions of 337 trees in all parts of the United States, making a distinctly valuable contribution to existing knowledge of native trees. It was found that, in all probability, there is no living elm larger than "The Great Elm" at Wethersfield, Conn., which is 28 feet in circumference and about 100 feet tall, and is estimated to be 250 years old. Many remarkable specimens of species which ordinarily attain only small sizes were unearthed by the contest, furnishing new records of maximum growth. A sassafras was brought to light at Horsham, Pa., which is 15 feet 10 inches in circumference at four feet from the ground, whereas, for example, not long before this a Georgia town claimed that it had the largest sassafras tree in the world, though this tree was only something over seven feet in circumference. A white birch was found in Massachusetts with a girth of 12 feet 2 inches; a pecan was found in Louisiana with a circumference of 19 feet 6 inches, and a catalpa in Arkansas with a girth of 16 feet. The tallest tree found is a yellow poplar in North Carolina, which is 198 feet high and has a circumference of 34 feet 6 inches.

The value of the contest lies in its contribution of new information as to the maximum growth attained by deciduous species and the localities in which the different species seem to grow best. The relative sizes of the coniferous species are fairly well established, the bigtree of California, for example, being the largest in the world; but information on the size attained by deciduous trees in this country has been very incomplete.

MANKATO, MINN.—The Windmill Co. is installing a 15 H. P. electric motor to pump water for irrigation and fire protection.

FORT SMITH, ARK.—Ground has been broken for the erection of a handsome flower shop and conservatory by George Rye, florist.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.—The Long Beach Horticultural Society will hold its fall flower show October 20-23. Samuel Whitford, 1508 Appleton street is secretary.

GREENVILLE, S. C.—F. W. Woolworth & Co. have placed a contract with the Graceland cemetery greenhouses for 62,500 pot plants aggregating about $4,000, for sale in their chain of 5 and 10 cent stores.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, September 28.—Mushrooms, home grown, No. 1, 40 cents per pound; lettuce, cases, 7 to 10 cents; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; asparagus, 50 cents per dozen bunches; celery, box, 75 to 85 cents; tomatoes, baskets, 25 to 50 cents.

New York, September 28.—Celery, per bunch of 12 stalks, 12 to 40 cents; cucumbers, 35 cents to 75 cents per basket; mushrooms, $4.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 60 cents to 85 cents per package; radishes, per basket, 30 cents to 60 cents; lettuce, per 2 dozen crate, 25 cents to $1.50.

Lettuce Plants.

The season is here once more when lettuce plants claim our attention. While they are easily grown, and their requirements are very simple, they are also easily hurt and success is too often only partial. Every year there is a demand for thousands of lettuce plants, often from the best growers, proving that at times they fail to produce good plants, or fail to have them at the right time. While the instructions here given are not new, they will stand repeating. In the first place, if Grand Rapids is grown, do not cover the seed. If sown in rows, merely mark the rows $\frac{1}{8}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ inch deep, sow the seeds and pound down the earth with a piece of plank or a brick. To prevent displacing the seed by rough watering, cover with a piece of common cheese-cloth. This cheese cloth, while shading and protecting the seed, admits light, air and water and when the little plants lift the cloth it can be removed. The secret of sprouting lettuce seed is to keep them moist constantly from the start. As soon as well up, we go over the rows and remove surplus plants to prevent crowding. Lettuce seedlings in the dark months should not be softened by sprinkling—grow them as dry as possible to induce root action and a slow growth.

The proper time to plant over is as soon as the character leaf shows—and then the sooner the better. Our standard spacing is 2 inches by 2 inches, for this we have a marker with pointed pegs that punches 50 holes at once; we generally use two operators, one to drop the plant into each hole and the other to tighten the plant. To water we prefer a sprinkling can with a rather coarse rose; we want to flood the plants for an instant, enough so as to fill all the little holes with water. This will settle the earth around the roots and often no further water is given until the plants are ready to dig a month or five weeks later. Temperature is very important. The plants should be grown at least as cool as the permanent lettuce houses are kept, and a little cooler would be better. Plenty of air is needed, day and night. It seldom pays to close ventilators tight. In regard to light, lettuce plants demand a good house—all the light they can get. Last, but most important, control the green fly by regular spraying or fumigation. MARKETMAN.

Watermelon Diseases.

D. C. Welty, agricultural commissioner for the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, has departed with Prof. George M. Reed, botanist of Missouri Agricultural college, for the watermelon fields in southeastern Missouri. The watermelon crop in that section is one of the greatest grown anywhere in the United States, but during the last year, due to extraordinary climatic conditions or some other causes, a large percentage of the melons suffered from disease and in numerous instances as much as half of them were lost. The close co-operation of the railroad with the growers in raising and marketing their melons kept Mr. Welty in touch with the situation and he has sent numerous samples of the diseased fruit to the agricultural college to be examined. The two men will study conditions in the fields along the Iron Mountain lines at Morley, Blodgett, Diehlstadt and Bertrand. They are to have meetings with the growers at these places and confer with them as to the best plan for making next year's crop successful.

Up to September 1 the southeastern Missouri melon district shipped out over the Iron Mountain lines 1,168 cars of watermelons and the shipments are still going on. It is safe to say that the growers have lost at least 500 cars through melon diseases, the remedy for which Prof. Reed and Mr. Welty hope to find, in conjunction with the farmers engaged in the melon industry.

Providence, R. I.

TRADE IS SATISFACTORY.

The local market the past week has been very good. There have been some very heavy cuts of roses the past week, especially the red; in fact, there has been an extra heavy surplus of this flower. The aster season is about over at this time, and the growers are starting to bring in the carnations again. Gladioli are done with, and this flower is one that the trade will miss as it is a flower that can be worked in almost any shape and done quickly. Chrysanthemums are being shown in some of the store windows, but as yet there is no call for this flower. What few there are, are of good quality and make a good show in the windows. Funeral work has held out well and the cut flower trade has picked up wonderfully the past two weeks. Chrysanthemums are looking good everywhere, and from the present prospects there will be a good crop and plenty of them.

Willie Cohen is now located with Miss O'Connor, the florist, on Thayer street.

Hoffman of Pawtucket is cutting some very good carnations now.

Our HYDRANGEAS grown for delivery to our customers this fall. 40,000 of them in 6-inch pots. You can see for yourself what they are. The foliage is rich dark green, no yellow leaves. The branches are strong and thick, promising big heads of bloom.

Here are the prices—Otaksa, the staple, standard, salable sort, has made more money for florists than all others put together. Plants with 7 to 10 branches, $25.00 a 100; with 5 and 6 branches, $20.00 a 100; with 4 branches, $15.00 a 100.

The best of the French Novelties, Avalanche, Bouquet Rose, La Lorraine, Mme. Maurice Hamar, Mme. E. Mouilliere and Radiant, in the same sizes at $5.00 a 100 more for each size.

ALL in 6-inch pots. Consider the size, the number of flowering branches, the price and the quality of the stock illustrated in this photograph taken only a few days ago. A combination of good points that ought to bring your order by return mail. How many of these fine plants do YOU want?

Albany, N. Y.

At the recent garden contest, held under the auspices of the Albany Woman's Club, a handsome silver loving cup was awarded for the second consecutive year to Public School No. 21 for having entered the largest number of children in the contest. This school had 12 prize winners in the contest this year. The exercises took place on the large lawn in front of the Capitol and diagonally across Eagle street from the city hall. Mayor Joseph W. Stevens presented the prizes, the winners being announced through a megaphone by John T. D. Blackburn, Arthur L. Andrews, corporation counsel; Jacob Herzog, president of the board of education, and C. Edward Jones, superintendent of schools, assisted in distributing the prizes. More than 300 children were present and a very large percentage of them received awards. The firm of Louis H. Schaefer & Son, which supplied the seeds to the children, gave to each prize winner a ticket exchangeable at the Schaefer store for a bulb.

Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, reports business for the fourth week in September as steadily improving. Some extra fine American Beauties are coming in from the growers, and the

HYDRANGEAS.

Our hydrangeas grown for delivery to our customers this fall; 40,000 of them in 6-inch pots. The foliage is rich, dark green; no yellow leaves. The branches are strong and thick, promising big heads of bloom. Here are the prices: Otaksa, the staple, standard, salable sort, has made more money for florists than all others put together. Plants with 7 to 10 branches, $25 per 100; with 5 and 6 branches, $20 per 100; with 4 branches, $15 per 100. The best of the French novelties, Avalanche, Bouquet Rose, La Lorraine, Mme. Maurice Hamar, Mme. E. Mouilliere and Radiant, in the same size at $5 per 100 more for each size. All in 6-inch pots. Consider the size, the number of flowering branches, the price and the quality of the stock. A combination of good points that ought to bring your order by return mail. How many of these fine plants do you want? Jackson & Perkins Company, Newark, New York.

BUSINESS IMPROVING BUT BELOW NORMAL.

Business is on the upgrade and a little better than a year ago, but conditions are far from normal. The warm weather the past week brought roses in oversupply and a large number went out the back way. The stock for the time of year is excellent and the varieties never so complete. Russell, Hadley, Hoosier Maid, Ophelia, Shawyer, Stanley and all the older standbys can be had in quantity, and it looks as if all the growers had become cognizant of the fact that the newer varieties were most in demand. Carnations of fair quality are again plentiful and good Golden Glow chrysanthemums adorn all the show windows. No frost as yet, consequently a plentiful supply of out door varieties.

NOTES.

After an establishment of years on Yonge street, J. H. Dunlop has moved to 8-10 Adelaide street West, where he has much more commodious quarters. The store room is a revelation in white enamel with mirrored effect and everything in keeping with a first class establishment. The wholesale department occupies the second floor, where all ice boxes and benches have been placed for the expedient handling of orders. Roses predominate, and stock of very select grade is coming from the Richmond Hill greenhouses.

A new firm of rose growers are Ofield & Son, of Grimsby, Ont. Their present range contains about 100,000 square feet of glass and the entire plant is devoted to roses and chrysanthemums. They have gone in for the newer varieties, and are sending out good stock. Vegetables were formerly their line, but they think there are larger possibilities in cut flowers.

The non-arrival of the usual Belgian shipments has created a shortage of palms. Plant growers are working up large stocks of cyclamens, solanums and poinsettias to make up the shortage of azaleas for Christmas.

H. J. Mills, of Richmond Hill, has a fine crop of Russell, Ophelia and Stanley roses. The plants are in fine shape and show good promise for the coming season.

E. A. Crowhurst, of Humber Bay, is sending in quantities of his seedling white dahlia. This is a very large type of the show variety and is a true snowball.

R. Jennings, of Brampton, is sending in quantities of Golden Glow chrysanthemums. He is again shipping carnations of good quality.

Carl Grobba, of Mimico, is having quite a run on ferns. His houses are well filled with stock for the coming season.

Thos. Manton has very good late asters. Cattleyas and good general stock

Suggestions for Plant Growers.

Hydrangeas.

The hydrangea plants in the field should be now potted and made ready for winter quarters. If the plants have still a strong succulent growth they can be left standing out where the wood will be given a chance to ripen off. After potting they should be given a good watering that the soil may be settled around the roots, but after that the plants should be sparingly watered. The main object at this time is to harden the plants off and ripen them up. Never mind if the foliage wilts to some extent, for it is desirable that this should all drop off before storing away for the winter. A few frosts will be of benefit, but as the weather is uncertain they should be placed in a position where they can be conveniently covered and protected from a severe freeze. While it is desirous to harden up the wood and plump up the flowering bud, yet too hard a freeze will kill the bud. As soon as well ripened they should be placed in cool quarters where they will remain dormant until it is time to start them.

Bouvardias.

As the weather becomes cooler the pinching back of bouvardias should cease and the flowering shoots be allowed to grow. The plants should be well established in the bench or pots and making good growth. Give them a cool, light situation and with all the ventilation possible; these plants are of cool nature and relish plenty of good fresh air. If grown too warm, bouvardia soon becomes infested with insects and stops flowering, and the plants are quickly ruined. Keep the soil free from weeds and well stirred on the surface, and be careful not to overwater until the roots have filled the soil. Keep a lookout for both aphids and red spider; the aphids quickly cover the soft, tender growths, and if the weather is warm the plants become quickly infested with spider. Constant syringing and frequent fumigation is necessary to keep these pests in check and insure a good crop of flowers. Keep the plants tied up in shape that the stems may be straight and erect.

Early Firing.

"Economy is wealth." This maxim has been drilled into the young for generations, but false economy is waste. And to put off starting the fires until all the plants have cold feet, and have received a check that is going to take them two or three months from which to recover is false economy. As soon as the temperature in the house drops below the point at which it should be maintained, it well pays to start the fires. Many nights at this time of the year at 8 o'clock the temperature outside will be above 60°, but by morning it has dropped to 40°, and if the houses are closed the glass will be covered with moisture, the house cold and damp. This condition is not at all conducive to good growth, and gives the plant a check from which it often takes it some time to recover. It is far better and a money-making proposition to have the fires going and the proper temperatures maintained. The small expense of a little coal burned and the few weeks' wages of a night foreman that are necessary will be more than made up in the excellence of the crop. At this season of the year there will occur cold, stormy days when a little heat will be necessary to keep up the growing temperature all day. This is the time to look over all the piping and see if the boilers are working right. If steam heat is used see that none of the pipes have dropped from their fastenings and have made pockets in the circulation. If this has happened, fasten them up and straighten out the flows. Turn on the valves and see if they leak, and if they do repack them; in fact, it is good policy to repack all valves every fall, whether they actually need it or not, for they will require it before the winter is over. This early firing will also give the opportunity to spread sulphur and nicotine extracts on the pipes and keep the insects and mildew from getting a foothold. Looking at this question from all sides, early firing is an economical proposition and should not be neglected.

Cannas.

As soon as the frost kills the cannas, preparations should be made for the storing of the stock plants for next year. The tops should be cut off about six inches above the ground and removed from the field and not left lying around to attract cut worm millers. The roots should be dug and each variety should be carefully kept separate so that there will be no chance of their being mixed another season. Unless the weather is very severe they can be allowed to dry off a little before being housed, but if there is any chance of the night temperature dropping below the freezing point it is much better to get them under safe covering at once. Under a bench in a cool house is one of the best places to keep them during the winter months, but if the soil under the bench is inclined to be moist, boards should be placed running lengthwise of the bench and the canna roots placed upon these. They must, however, be looked over occasionally to see that they do not run too dry, for there is just as much danger of losing the plants by their drying up as there is by their rotting from an excess of moisture. In placing the clumps under the bench set each variety by itself and leave space enough between it and another variety that it will be impossible, no matter what may happen, for them to get mixed. Mark each variety with a label, written plainly and in full. It takes but a few seconds longer to write the name in full and abbreviations are to be deprecated; we have known cases where the man who always does things in a hurry to abbreviate the name so short that when he tried to read them six months later he could not make out what name he intended to write. This is often a case where "haste makes waste." Attach the labels in such a manner that they will not become misplaced or lost.

Cleaning Up After Frost.

Every spring, from all sections of the country, come reports of the great amount of damage being done by cut worms in the fields of many growers, and as they are very difficult to combat in the open ground, a great loss is consequently the result. While the cut worms are unsuccessfully fought in the spring, they can be overcome by a little labor spent in the fall. The moths lay their eggs in the fall on any vegetation that is left, either weeds or the refuse of the crops that is allowed to remain on the ground either standing or lying around. It is therefore clearly understood that the best thing to do is to clean up the field of all vegetation and burn it up or cover it with soil and make manure of it, and then plow the ground and turn under any small weeds that might harbor the eggs. Deep fall plowing pays anyway in the crop for the succeeding year, improving the soil, and if this small amount of work will get rid of the cut worms it will amply repay for all the labor and expense. Many use this old rubbish for the covering of tender stock, but leaves and straw are far preferable for this purpose. The vegetation that is left after being killed by the frost is too full of water and will lie too close, and after the fall rains, will make too compact a mass upon the plants which it is intended they should protect, and as the freezing weather comes on become a solid mass of ice. It is much better to put all this rubbish in a compost pile and cover it with earth. The fermentation will kill all the insects and their eggs, and it will make fine manure for pot culture, or if this is not done dry it out thoroughly and burn it. The appearance of the ground will be improved, the soil benefited and the worms killed by giving the field a thorough cleaning and plowing.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Daily Routine.

With the opening of the store the day commences, and will, too often, be in many respects, like those which have gone before. In many cases the work done is without system; some doing one thing one day and another the next. Early orders and the rush to get them out often interferes with the routine, and the day is half gone before the store is put to rights. After the early orders, if any, are out of the way, the water in the jars of the flower case or refrigerator is changed, the stock looked over and straightened out, and bad leaves and petals removed. When everything is returned to the case, it will be readily seen if the stock needs replenishing. All the passe stock should be put out of sight to be worked up if not too far gone, in designs.

Flowers must never be crowded together in a vase; there should always be enough vases on hand to allow for the proper handling of the stock. In the arrangement of the case, there should be sufficient room to allow of the removal or replacing of vases at any time without danger of damaging flowers in others. Carnations, roses and other flowers snap off on the slightest provocation and the cost of stock damaged in this way in crowded boxes during the course of a season is an important item, which would be reduced to a minimum by care in this respect. As far as possible when flowers are being made ready for the vases in the case, their heads should be laid evenly together, and the few straggly, long stems cut off even with the majority. These, when placed in the vase, present a neat, orderly appearance and are less liable to be damaged.

If the case is large enough, roses should have a section, carnations another, bulbous stock kept together, etc. In this way the box will present a much more attractive appearance than when the stock is mixed promiscuously. If possible have the vases in the various sizes all alike in color and pattern, as the display is then made much more effective. Painted or enameled fibre, glass, terra cotta or zinc-lined basket vases are all good. Some suit one situation better than another, depending on the decorations of the store and the roominess of the case.

With the case finished, a general clean up and arrangement of the vases of flowers and plants about the store is in order. All this work should be completed before nine o'clock, when the customers begin to make their appearance. At times when business slows up, the many little things that need doing should be attended to. Baskets and vases on the shelves soon get dusty and need continual looking after. They should all be gone over at least once a week. In the large department stores the first half hour of each day is given to dusting off stock and shelves by those in charge of the counters, and a force of scrub women go over the floors every night.

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY'S NEW YORK SHOW.
First Prize Table Decoration By Alfred Kottmiller, New York

There should be a method in dividing the force at the lunch hour, as a rush of business sometimes develops, which, with the store full of customers and phone bells ringing, a limited few, have a hard time in handling. Busy days come along when everybody is on the jump from start to finish; it is then that system and being prepared by having everything in order, and plenty of staple stock on hand, makes things run smoothly. Finding at the last minute that one is out of this or that staple is most annoying and causes vexatious and sometimes costly delays, that could have been avoided by a little foresight. When the lull comes is the time to get ready for the busy day, that the most can be gotten out of it. In many stores the early morning work described above, such as cleaning the flower case and vases is done at the close of business, thus moving the work of the next that far ahead. System saves labor, cuts the work almost in half; the head of a successful store is always a man of system and his daily routine has been gone over and over and tried out, until each hour of the day is so planned that little is left undone when the hour for closing arrives.

The man who will look over the mistakes of yesterday and determine not to make the same today, who will take up one department of his business and improve it, and give the same careful thought to another, will soon work out a system that will change the whole routine and give an impetus to his business that will produce surprising results. The McNeff-Swenson Co., Chicago.

The McNeff-Swenson Company has just moved into new quarters in the Transportation building, 608 South Dearborn street, Chicago, in the center of the printing industry, which enables them to get out their work in the shortest time possible. This firm is well and favorably known to the trade for it has been supplying many of the leading florists throughout the country with expert floral publicity in the shape of folders, etc. They have a colored folder design for all important occasions of the year where flowers are used and are now ready to mail samples of those pertaining to chrysanthemums, fall openings, fall announcements, fall flowers, Hallowe'en, November flowers, weddings, etc. L. D. McNeff, president of the McNeff-Swenson Co., calls attention to the fact that they only supply one florist in each city with their special service where several of the folders are contracted for and that while there is considerable territory open, new contracts are being closed each day and he is looking forward to the time when his firm will supply a florist in all the important towns in the United States and Canada with their business-building productions.

THE ROSE.

Early Fall Preparations.

An unusually warm period of weather for the middle of September has had rather a bad effect on the indoor stock; coming as it did after the cool weather of the first of the month, it has softened up the growth considerably, and reduced the size of the blooms also. At the same time, the weather has been suitable for painting outside and for other outside work such as mowing down the weeds, turning the manure and hauling sod for the winter's potting. The growers should not neglect to prepare some good compost for potting, using some good stiff sod soil, stacked up in layers with some good grain fed cow manure, fresh manure being good for this purpose, using about one-third manure to two-thirds soil, adding some ground bone to each layer of sod, mixed with some of the loose soil. The pile should be cut down about three weeks after composting and piled up again in a manner to shed the rain. Then turn again about three weeks later and if possible store it then, where it can be kept perfectly dry, and where it can be gotten out in good shape to work in any weather. We would also suggest protecting considerable manure from the weather for mulching and potting purposes.

The most important work indoors at this time is the tying and pinching or disbudding. The grower must bear in mind that during the months of October and November or during the height of the "trim" season, that there will be only a light demand for roses and to shape the cut with this in view. Very often this gives one the opportunity to get good size and vigorous growth on the plants, enabling them to produce profusely during the winter months when the prices are advanced, and even if the plants are well developed at this time, either old or young stock, care in the pinching, thinning, and disbudding, will be time well spent, not forgetting to tie, tie, tie, at every opportunity. Keep all of the foliage affected with black spot carefully picked off, and do not have the foliage wet at sundown. Syringe early and be sure to keep the walks in the American Beauty houses dry and everything clean as stated in our last article. Keep the air slaked lime sprinkled around freely; it is an inexpensive article considering the amount of good it does. One can also go back to the sulphur gun again until the cool nights come, then the sulphur pot and brush will take care of the mildew.

A few words in reference to some of the newer roses. Ophelia, though not grown so extensively in the east last season, has been planted generally this season and is looking good where seen. Russell, although not new, has been handled in small quantities south of Philadelphia, and has been more or less disappointing as a grower and producer. More of the popular variety is being grown from year to year with better results it seems, and it sure is a good one if one can do it well. Hadley has a number of favorites and is making friends right along and we are learning a little more about them all gradually. We found Prince E. C. De Arenberg a "corking" good red last season, beating Richmond as an early fall red, and also holding up good in the spring and early summer. It also seems to carry over good. There are many more varieties one could mention that are making good and that are still being experimented with and these we will try to mention later. The tendency, it seems, is to grow many more varieties these days, which after all, may be the right "dope," as evidently there has been an over-production of the Killarney type, and it has been a good thing, but even the good and grand old favorites must make room for varieties showing not nearly the class of the Killarneys, yet different. The public craves a change and it's up to the rose grower to see that this craving is taken care of in the rose line—and I think we are all doing our best. E.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Specimen Plants for Exhibition.

There is a lot of work still to be done on these large specimen plants to finish them up in the best possible condition ready for the shows. Many of the varieties are now budding, which means that the wood is also hardening up, and to be able to get them in shape as first class specimens, all the training and tying out of the branches should be finished up without delay, so as to give the plants plenty of time to shape themselves before the time comes to send them to the exhibition. There is not any set rule as to how these plants should be trained; it depends altogether on the condition of the plants and the aim of the gardener in charge of them. Growing chrysanthemum plants into large specimens requires the grower's personal study, and as one prominent chrysanthemum expert expresses it, "It is more than just growing a plant; it is the highest art of horticulture." Not every gardener has the facilities, or whose employer is willing or has the ambition for his gardener to undertake and give the necessary time to grow specimen chrysanthemum plants 14 feet or more in diameter, as featured in the excellent paper on this subject read at the annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America at Indianapolis, Ind., November 7, 1914. Every gardener who has the ambition to grow large specimens cannot start out better than becoming a member of the Chrysanthemum Society of America and get a copy of its last annual report containing this valuable article, worth many times more than the annual dues.

But to get back to our subject, the training of the plants is done mostly with wire rings and wire cross wires supported by wire stakes throughout the plant, the shoots being held in place by strong green thread. Smaller specimens are not trained out as formal, but are allowed to remain more natural with a wire stake at the center and some others throughout plant, and the shoots strung out with the thread the same as the larger plants, but whichever method is adopted, it should be done before the buds are very far developed so that the plant will not have to be worked over after it is well budded up.

Disbudding is another part of the work which is very important and should be attended to as soon as the buds are large enough to safely handle. The most beautiful specimens are those with large flowers true to form and color, and the only way to get the large flowers is to attend to the disbudding on time. Do not allow the plant to be overburdened with flowers and consequently small in size, but let the chief aim be—fewer in number, but higher in quality. Plenty of space for each individual plant is very essential to the well being and finishing up of these specimens; crowding them together so that the air cannot circulate well around each plant will cause the lower foliage to quickly go bad.

The watering of the plants, particularly at this time, calls for the closest caution. They take up lots of water, but it is a very easy matter to over-water them, and as the soil gets too much water the roots commence to go bad. They should be well watered when necessary and allowed to dry out well before watering again. Give plenty of fresh air on every favorable occasion, both day and night.

PRIZE GROUP OF PLANTS AT THE MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

Exhibition of the Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

While the plants are in a healthy, growing condition, liquid manure applied twice a week is very beneficial, but unless the plants are in the best of health, liquid manure may be real harmful, causing them to lose their leaves and become sickly. Get after the insects before they have a chance to get the upperhand, and the only way to do this is by attending regularly to the fumigating.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

This society held its annual dahlia show September 22-23, in Unity hall, Hartford. The entries were larger than usual this year, and the dimensions of the hall were hardly equal to the occasion, some of the exhibits having to be staged near the entrance on improvised tables. However, under the direction of Vice-President G. H. Hollister, who acted as superintendent of the exhibition, the arrangement was perfect and unequivocally proved to be the best dahlia exhibition ever held in the city of Hartford.

John F. Huss, superintendent for Mrs. James J. Goodwin, decorated the stage, for which he received the prize for the exhibit of most general merit. From New Haven, we had as exhibitors, Alfred E. Doty and John H. Slocombe; from West Haven, C. Louis Alling; and from Taunton, Mass., the pioneer dahlia grower, Henry F. Burt. There were also a number of growers for private estates around Hartford, among whom might be mentioned Niel Nelson and Nathaniel Slocombe, the latter of Farmington. The vegetable exhibit was unusually fine, John F. Huss carrying off first money for the largest display. There was also a fine display of fruit, Warren S. Mason, of Farmington, having things his own way in this department of the exhibition, and also in the best display of perennials, carrying off Knight & Struck Co.'s silver cup, valued at $25.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

This club supervised the floral exhibit for the fair association this season, featuring dahlias as its part of the exhibit. The McCallum Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. and H. F. Michell Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., all sent liberal displays of dahlias, and the latter company sent an assortment of phloxes and other perennials that were much admired. It was due to these firms that the club was enabled to fill the space assigned in the artistic manner it did. The table was 80 feet long by eight feet wide with a raised table of about 18 inches in width and that height from the lower table. This was decorated with wild smilax by I. Landis and Thomas Fries, the festoons and stringers making a handsome table for staging the dahlias. B. F. Barr added a few palms to add height and a very handsome basket of gladioli and chrysanthemums for the center of it. Frank Suter, being the only one who grows dahlias as a commercial cut flower in this vicinity, made the best local exhibit, and H. D. Rohrer had a very good collection. A. F. Strickler had some mixed bowls of short stemmed flowers.

In the amateur class David Rour staged a fine collection and secured all of the prizes for this section. Adam Felsing staged the best flowers of the show simply for exhibition, as he, while not a florist, acts as an agent for dahlias.

Frank Suter captured the cash prize for florists with the largest collection, and the silver cup for sweepstake prize.

Master Edward E. Rohrer, a grandson of H. D. Rohrer, captured first prize for three handsome baskets of straw flowers grown and arranged by himself.

The judge was S. S. Pennock of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., and after we left the dahlia section, it was almost a picnic for a florist to see what won prizes. Brides' bouquets, tied with a string, and composed of snapdragons and white ageratum; hand bouquets made of a bunch of anemones, also tied with a string; plateaus, consisting of an agate dishpan filled with short stemmed flowers as flat as the proverbial pancake, and so on ad infinitum. In competition with the B. F. Barr Co.'s handsome basket was a design made of marigolds in a frame two inches deep and 16 by 16 inches in size. This was made up by using different colors in the style of a patchwork quilt, and the wording of the schedule compelled it to have first prize and the basket second. This sort of thing we hope to be able to eliminate by another year if the fair officials appreciate our efforts this season enough to let us have a real hand in running the flower end of the fair.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Holyoke and Northampton Florists' Club.

The third annual flower show under the auspices of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club, will be held in Windsor hall, Holyoke, November 3-4. An especially good premium list has been arranged and liberal prizes will be awarded in nearly 50 classes. Premiums are offered in several classes for nursery stock, fruits and vegetables, in addition to the plant and cut flower competition, the main feature of the exhibition.

Indiana State Florists.

The monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at Anderson, October 5, with a good attendance. The business meeting was held in the auditorium of the city library. The discussions were lively and most interesting. After the meeting the association adjourned to the First M. E. church, where a bountiful banquet was served. J. S. Stuart acted as toastmaster and was followed by several of the members present in timely addresses on trade topics and business conditions. The visitors after auto rides to the greenhouses of the city expressed their hearty thanks to the florists of Anderson and left for home with the assurance that they had been participants in a highly instructive meeting where business relations had been strengthened and friendships renewed. Those in attendance were as follows:

NEW CACTUS DAHLIA GEORGE L. STILLMAN.

Boston:GENERAL SHORTAGE EXISTS.

The market this week took a decided change for the better. There was a general shortage of every line of stock. Gladioli and asters are practically done for this season, and as chrysanthemums have not become plentiful as yet, carnations and roses took the lead. The prices on roses were very satisfactory for the season. Nearly every variety found a good demand at from $2 per 100 up. American Beauties moved at from $4 to $35. Carnations also jumped in price the last of the week, $3 per 100 being easy to get for average flowers. In a few instances even $4 per 100 was obtained, the heaviest demand being for white varieties. Chrysanthemums Golden Glow, October Frost, Smith's Advance and Unaka have made their appearance. The demand for these is fair, prices being $1.50 per dozen on good stock. Lily of the valley is coming along good and sells very well at $3 to $3.50 per 100. The plant trade is becoming stronger. ferns, crotons and cyclamens being in demand.

NOTES.

The fruit and vegetable exhibition was held at Horticultural hall, October 2-3. The show was a success, both halls being utilized. It was very noticeable that the fruits, apples especially, were much better than have been shown for some time.

The new howling league will have its first meeting Thursday, October 7. The Boston Co-operative Flower Market team will bowl Henry M. Robinson Co.'s team; the Boston Flower Exchange vs. Carbone, and Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., vs. Penn.

R. E. Wadsworth Co., of Westboro, are cutting some very fine carnations. Pocahontas, Alice, Pink Delight and Matchless were noted as being extra good. They will have a large crop of chrysanthemums and pompons within a short time.

Patrick Welch reports a good increase in the volume of business. It is very noticeable that the stock in his store always is very fine. American Beauties were noted this week as being extra good quality.

John McFarland, of North Easton, has given Henry M. Robinson Co. the privilege of handling his entire cut during the coming year. His lily of the valley is looking very fine at present.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Boston Flower Exchange, September 27, a dividend of 15 per cent was declared for the past year.

Andrew Christensen, of Woburn, is in the market with carnations. He still has confidence in Queen, of which he still grows a large quantity.

F. L. W.

Pittsburgh.SUPPLY OF STOCK SHORT.

The market affords very little in the way of a variety of flowers to choose from at present, the only offerings being roses, American Beauties, dahlias and a few carnations and lilies, but roses are on the long end. Asters and gladioli are out of sight these days, and as the new crop carnations have not started blooming to any extent one has a hard job in finding staple flowers which he must have. Cool weather continues to be with us, and a rainy season can be looked for in the near future. A good frost last week nipped all the outside flowers around this territory, and it will not be long until it gets the dahlias down in New Jersey, the source of practically all the dahlias that are used in Pittsburgh. Chrysanthemums are coming in day by day, just a few at a time, Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost being the first ones. We may look for shipments of violets soon, but hope they will receive better treatment than they did last year.

NOTES.

The event of the week was a mammoth funeral job by Mrs. E. A. Williams for the Fleming funeral, consisting of a large blanket of solid orchids, also a massive cross of orchids and lily of the valley. These two pieces required 500 cattleyas and 1,500 lily of the valley alone, besides numerous bunches and wreaths of other flowers. Five hundred American Beauties were also used in sprays and vases. The entire force was compelled to work 36 hours, from Thursday morning to Friday evening, and Mr. Higgins tells us that the work sailed along with the "exactness and consistency of a twin-six Packard."

Walter Smith, formerly with J. S. Hennon & Sons, of Beaver Falls, is now in the employ of G. P. Weaklen Co. of South Highland avenue.

George McCallum is on the road selling florists' supplies in company with Ross Adgate, McCallum Co.'s traveling representative.

Ray Page, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is laid up in bed with a bad case of heart trouble.

The retail business of C. H. Cramer, Uniontown, has been closed, owing to bankruptcy proceedings. G. M.

St. Louis.

The closing week of the month was very dull. The counters of the wholesalers were filled. Asters seem to be about at an end, but a few gladioli are still seen. Carnations are plentiful, being hurt to a considerable extent by the warm weather. Roses are coming in good and bring fairly good prices when the stock is good. American Beauty roses are not so plentiful. Greens of all kinds are coming in.

NOTES.

Bob Newcomb, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, stopped over in this city on his return from San Francisco. He reports trade good and enjoyed two weeks' vacation with his parents, who live in southern California.

The Grand Leader Dry Goods Emporium had sales October 2, selling 2,000 cut dahlias from the national show gardens of Spencer, Ind., at 25 cents per dozen. Orders for different varieties of bulbs were also taken.

Paddy Patton, of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., is the king's jester. He is full of jokes, and when trade is dull we get the best and most original of them. He also has the honor of being a "southpaw."

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, motored in the first of this week with a fine batch of white and pink carnations. This is good stock and brings top prices.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kerber, who is a florist, won the prize for taking the largest number to Kirkwood in one vehicle, taking 75 persons from her home on Denny road.

At the Wandler Wholesale Floral Co. some very choice double tuberose stalks were seen, as well as a good supply in roses and carnations.

C. E. DeWeaver, who was reported sick and in a sanatorium, is, we are glad to state, out again and apparently as spry as ever.

Adolph Brox is a frequent visitor at the wholesale house, having a large and extensive trade. He is assisted by his wife and son.

Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney advertise special prices on orchids, 75 cents each, for corsages for the V. P. ball.

Orchids were seen at Geo. H. Angermueller's during the past week. Vesev's stock in roses is improving daily.

Will Young & Sons' west end location is building up fast, and fall trade is expected to increase their business. Joe Hauser is still in the market with his dahlias in red and yellow. He has also started in with violets.

Miss Newmann is back again at her post. Her store windows on Olive street are very artistically arranged.

Grimm & Gorly will have a floral booth at the coming fair to be held on the St. Charles rock road.

E. L. Rogers has removed his wire shop to more commodious quarters at 212 North Fifteenth street.

Hugo, Gustave and Rudolph Gross will furnish a good supply of violets this season.

The Bentzen Floral Co. had seven prominent society weddings this week.

F. C. Weber, Jr., is buyer for the store and attends the market daily.

A meeting of the growers will take place this week.

Tom Carr reports improved business conditions. W. F.

Minneapolis, Minn.

BUSINESS GOOD AND PRICES FIRM.

Business continues good with plenty of funeral work. Prices are about the same as last week's quotations, with stock a little more plentiful. Lily of the valley is the scarce item, and chrysanthemums not over plentiful.

NOTES.

A severe hail storm visited here, October 3, with hail two inches deep on the street. The only damage done was to 250 lights of glass in the greenhouse of J. J. West, 3009 Fourth avenue, South. All others report no damage to glass.

R. A. Latham has received a large shipment of palms and Whitman ferns which are finding a ready sale.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., is in town visiting the trade for a few days.

F. C. Smith, of Ashland, Wis., is in town buying stock for his store. He is also building a new greenhouse and remodeling his establishment. The J. C. Moninger Co. is furnishing the material.

Floyd Hill, formerly with J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., Council Bluffs, Ia., has been added to the store force at the L. S. Donaldson Co.

Will Bros. have sent in their first violets the past week which brought $1 per hundred, and there were not enough to go around.

Carl I. Lindskoog is getting his store and conservatory in shape, preparing for a larger amount of business than ever this season.

The "drys" had one of the largest parades ever held in Minneapolis and it was noted for the absence of the florists in line.

Oscar Amundson used a large amount of long stem American Beauties for the Mrs. Slocum funeral at Excelsior.

Rice Bros. are sending out some extra fine Russell and Ophelia roses. T. C. R.

Oklahoma City.

There has been a decided increase in the volume of business within the last week and florists believe that from now on, trade will improve steadily. Retailers are pushing the sale of bulbs vigorously, and with good results; the demand for small potted plants suitable for indoor winter window gardens is fairly good and will no doubt increase greatly as the season advances.

NOTES.

The State Civic Association, in conjunction with the City Federation of Women's Clubs, will hold a flower show, Friday, October 8, in the banquet room of the Lee Huckins hotel. There is an abundance of beautiful flowers available just now and a splendid exhibition is assured. Perhaps by another year the Oklahoma State Society of Florists will be in a position to put on a flower show. It is to be hoped so at least.

The state fair closed October 2. There was not a single exhibit in the floral department from the trade. The few prizes that were offered all went to amateurs. The city has been crowded with visitors during the course of the fair and the florists stores' transient trade was materially augmented thereby. S. S. B.

Cincinnati.

MARKET FIRM IN ALL LINES.

Business seems to be picking up, and with a shortened supply has caused a firm market in all available seasonable lines. Prices are better than they were, while shipping business as well as local business is good. Outdoor flowers are now almost completely out of the market. Dahlias and cosmos alone remain, and the next two weeks will probably see the last of these. Both asters and gladioli are at an end for this season. Receipts in roses are heavier than they were, and include excellent offerings in all seasonable varieties. The carnation supply is about the same as at the last writing. White, yellow and pink chrysanthemums may now be had, but are arriving in very limited quantities. Dahlia receipts are excellent. Other offerings include Easter lilies, rubrum lilies, cosmos, orchids and lily of the valley.

NOTES.

Geo. Bemer, formerly with the Avondale Floral Co., of this city, is now with A. Langhans, Wheeling, W. Va.

The regular meeting of the florists' society will be held Monday evening, October 11.

C. E. Critchell has been having some excellent early chrysanthemums.

Visitors: G. A. Beckman and wife, Middletown, O.; H. G. MacLellan, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Hammond, Ind.; S. K. Mayerhoff, representing the Pompeian Artware Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Los Angeles.

Theodore Payne, well-known seedman and nurseryman, of 345 South Main street, has been confined to his home, having been suddenly taken ill with what was at first supposed to be an attack of appendicitis, but which later proved to be inflammation in that locality.

All flower lovers have been invited to attend the dahlia show scheduled to be held at Laurie's, 280 West Montana street, Pasadena, October 8-9.

OBITUARY.

Matthew Macnair.

Matthew Macnair, prominent florist of Providence, R. I., died suddenly in that city September 29. He was walking on Weybosset street with his son, Charles, when he was stricken and died instantly. He had been in his usual good health for some time and his sudden end came as a great shock to his many friends.

Matthew Macnair was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1845, and as a young man became proficient in mill work in the textile industry. He came to this country in 1870 and was employed in the wholesale woolen trade in New York, coming to Providence a few years later, and entering the jewelry trade, being connected with Walter White & Co. for many years. About 25 years ago he entered the florist trade in that city, opening a shop on Westminster street, removing three years later to 322 Weybosset street, where he built up a large trade. About five years ago he opened up another store at 2 Broad street, where he was extensively engaged in floral work.

He was of a pleasing disposition and made many friends both in the trade and on the outside. He was a member of several civic organizations, a member of the Newburgh, N. Y., lodge of the Knights of Pythias, a director of the Bethany Home, was associated with the old Richmond Congregational church and later with the Beneficent Congregational church. Musically inclined all his days, both vocally and instrumentally, he knew many Scotch songs, and was a member of the Arion club. He always spoke happily of his association with Henry Ward Beecher and his associations with the choir of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, N. Y. He traveled extensively in Europe, purchasing his stock of plants personally there, and his palm purchases were among the finest ever seen in Providence. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Charles and Thomas, five brothers and two sisters.

H. A. T.

Anton Kacin.

Anton Kacin, aged 22 years, who for the past two years has been employed by P. F. McKenny, Fifth avenue and 42d street, New York, died in that city, October 3. Over a year ago he was thrown from a motorcycle and his skull was fractured. He was in a hospital for some months, but returned to work a year ago apparently in good health. The hot weather of September affected him and he laid off for a rest, intending to resume work October 4, but on that morning Mr. McKenny was notified of his death. He was born on the east side of New York, of Austrian parents. On leaving school at the age of 15 years, he was apprenticed to a retail florist and became an expert designer and decorator. He was genial and clever and made many friends.

A. F. F.

Mrs. Annie Thorpe Romaine.

Annie Thorpe Romaine, youngest daughter of the late John Thorpe, passed away at her home, Pearl River, N. Y., October 2, after a long illness. The funeral services were held October 4. She is survived by her husband and one son, a brother, John Thorpe, and two sisters, Miss H. Thorpe and Mrs. Margaret Thorpe Evans of Chicago.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The New Orleans Horticultural Society has been petitioned by the City Federation to hold a flower show this fall.

Cleveland Flower Show.

The general show committee, made up of chairmen of nine sub-committees, held a meeting at the Hollenden hotel, October 1, and received report of their secretary, M. A. Vinson, who had just returned from New York. He stated that all the men upon whom he called were enthusiastic regarding the Cleveland flower show and they promised we could look for a large delegation from eastern New York and New Jersey. While he was in New York, 10 additional trade exhibitors were secured, and a number of others will make their reservation during the present week. According to the floor plan of the Coliseum, which contains over 65,000 square feet, there are only 11 spaces left, and four of these are tentatively reserved. Special letters of invitation have been addressed to secretaries of nearly 100 florists' clubs in the United States, asking their members to come to Cleveland and that they appoint transportation committees to take charge of the details of arranging for special cars. This is just one of the many plans that the publicity committee is carrying out to insure the trade exhibitors of a large attendance from all over the United States. Those present at this committee meeting were: H. P. Knoble, general chairman; F. C. W. Brown, chairman decorations committee; Chas. Russell, chairman retail displays committee; H. P. Merrick, chairman trades display committee; Herbert Bate, chairman premiums committee; Frank Friedley, chairman exhibits committee; Geo. Bate, in charge of the advertising. Guy Bate of Newton Falls, chairman of fall exhibition committee of the American Rose Society, was present, calling while the meeting was in progress.

The star () that precedes nearly 100 classes in the final premium list signifies that in the classes so marked $5 in gold will be given to the section man or actual grower of the stock taking first prize in that class. In the non-commercial classes, a medal will be given instead of a cash prize. After the awards are made the exhibitors winning classes with () attached should register his grower's name or names with the exhibition committee as soon as possible to assist in the prompt distribution of these special prizes. Prizes of this nature have never been offered in connection with any previous flower show to the knowledge of the committee. Judging by the following list of trade exhibitors, this will be one of the most complete displays made for some time past. They are as follows: F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; C. Merkle & Son, and Mentor Nursery, Mentor, O.; Advance Co., Richmond, Ind.; B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.; Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.; C. H. FALL TRADE OPENING WELL.

If the last two weeks' business is any criterion the business this fall will be far above the average. Social functions and wedding decorations, besides considerable funeral work, have kept both wholesalers and retailers very busy; also the outdoor stock is fast coming to an end, the usual heavy supply has dwindled down to almost a trifle, and greenhouse-grown stock is not yet very plentiful, causing quite a shortage in supply, and a corresponding increase in the demand. The wholesale houses nearly every day this past week were entirely cleaned up of nearly everything except greens. A few early white and yellow chrysanthemums are on the market and meet with a good demand. Lily of the valley and orchids have been more plentiful, while Easter lilies were scarce. Roses, while quite plentiful, have been selling well, Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney, Ward and Sunburst all being in excellent condition, as to color and quality. American Beauties, especially the medium grades, are in good demand. Gladioli and dahlias are not nearly so plentiful and clean up daily. Larkspur, hydrangea, gaillardia, summer lilac, etc., have been in good demand. A few short asters are still arriving, but sell well for funeral work. Carnations are more plentiful and are daily improving in quality.

NOTES.

F. C. W. Brown will succeed L. F. Darnell as general manager and treasurer of the J. M. Gasser Co., and J. F. McLaughlin, formerly of Elyria, Ohio, will have charge of the wholesale store, which will be moved this week to their new quarters on Huron road between East Second and East Fourth streets.

Two hundred school girls and young women sold flowers on the streets down town, October 2, to raise money for the Marion Home for Working Girls. Several hundred dollars were realized. C. F. B.

Rochester, N. Y.

There has been a slight improvement in business the past week. Asters have been very scarce, a few frosty nights having thinned them out considerably and the remaining stock is small and rusty. There are still a few gladioli left and the price is high, but there are no other outdoor flowers worthy of mention. Roses are plentiful and the quality is good. Scott Key, My Maryland, Killarney, Ophelia, Sunburst and Mrs. Taft are all fine. Mrs. Aaron Ward is very short of stem at present. Harrisii lilies are rather scarce. Lily of the valley is plentiful but small. Cattleyas are very fine, but the demand is light. Carnations are now arriving, but the flowers are small and stems short. A few primroses have come into the market, but there are no other flowering plants. Boston ferns are excellent. There is inquiry for Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri, also smilax. Hardy ferns are good.

NOTES.

E. C. Armbrust opened a new store at 279 East avenue, October 1. The store force of S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, with whom Mr. Armbrust had been employed for some time, sent him a huge basket of American Beauty roses for the occasion, and a number of his former patrons and friends of this city visited his new store.

The Rochester Floral Co. had a very effective yellow and white window last week, consisting of white candytuft, yellow chrysanthemums and coreopsis.

Herbert Stringer returns from his wedding tour this week, having had a most delightful trip. The trade extends congratulations.

J. B. Keller & Sons had a stunning window recently, consisting of cibotiums and huge vases of yellow helianthus.

H. E. Wilson is installing one large display window instead of the two small ones heretofore employed.

Providence, R. I.

TRADE IMPROVEMENT CONTINUES.

Business conditions during the past week seemed to be better than usual. The appearance of the chrysanthemum is an indication that the fall season for the florists has arrived, and while the demand for them is light at present, better sales will come as the season advances. Asters continue to arrive in small lots and gladioli are done for and the demand for them has stopped. Floral work is in good demand and the sale of cut flowers is very satisfactory. The window decorations in the flower shops are very attractive at present.

NOTES.

At the funeral of Matthew Macnair, whose death occurred September 29, the floral offerings were many and elaborate. In all there were over 50 pieces, among them being a handsome casket cover of Hoosier Beauty roses, Easter lilies and maidenhair ferns.

The Lapham Floral Co., Pawtucket, has been chartered under the laws of this state, with a capitalization of $100,000.

TERRIFIC STORM WRECKS GREENHOUSES.

This city is just recovering from one of the most disastrous storms ever known in this country, but is fast resuming its normal condition, and in a few days visitors would hardly believe there had been a loss of practically two million dollars, the result of wind that blew for 14 hours at a velocity of 86 miles per hour and for a short time increased to 120 miles. The damage to trees in the parks and public playgrounds was enormous, but the wind seemed to have little effect on the out door palm, which grows here to a height of 50 to 60 feet. Many of the florists suffered heavily, several ranges being almost completely wrecked. The Athens greenhouses, 16 in number, and representing about 100,000 feet of glass, is practically a total wreck, the loss being estimated at $32,000. The establishment of J. A. Newsham was also razed to the ground, entailing a loss of $8,000. Uriah J. Virgin lost four large houses, but little of his stock suffered, and he estimates that $3,000 will cover his loss. The Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. estimate the damage at their establishment to be about $4,000, several houses being destroyed. E. A. Farley lost nearly all of his houses and Henry Cook also suffered heavily, the latter's loss being in the neighborhood of $3,000. Max Scheinux reports damage to the extent of $1,500 and A. Alost is also included in the list of heavy losers. W. Nelson also suffered severe damage at his range. Abele Bros., according to all reports, did not suffer as severely as the above-mentioned, and H. Kraak was also among the more fortunate, his loss being nominal. P. A. Chopin, C. W. Eichling and Chas. Eble are also to be congratulated in being among the fortunate ones who came through with small losses. The damage to the chrysanthemum crop was very great, but it is believed there are enough left to supply the demand.

FLORISTS who failed to get their French Paper White narcissus bulbs ordered of Holland peddlers are practically unable to secure them now.

WE noted some fine trusses of the new Yellow King Humbert canna at Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, this week. This is a sport of King Humbert with flowers in size and form exactly like the blooms of that variety except as to color, which is a good clear yellow with reddish spots.

Frost in the West.

The first general frost of the season prevailed the night of October 4 over western Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, northern and western Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas "Panhandle," according to reports received October 5. The weather bureau describes the frost in Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas as "heavy to killing." In other areas it ranged from light to heavy.

Chicago Grand Floral Festival.

At the regular meeting of the Chicago Grand Floral Festival executive committee, held at the Morrison hotel, September 30, much progress was made with flower show business, those in attendance being A. Henderson, W. N. Rudd, W. J. Keimel, August Poehlmann, Peter Reinberg, N. P. Miller, Geo. Asmus, H. B. Kennicott, August Koch and Robert Brenton.

Nic Wiator was elected vice-chairman of the ways, means and audit committee; E. F. Kurowski, chairman of the reception committee; Payne Jennings, chairman retail florists' committee; Robert Brenton, chairman special features committee, and A. Henderson, Geo. Asmus and N. P. Miller, committee of management.

Chairman Brenton has many novel attractions in preparation for this exhibition and it now seems certain these special features will draw large audiences.

Chairman Vaughan, of the poster committee, reports the fine poster in the hands of the lithographer will be ready in good season.

Chairman Keimel promises an unusually interesting series of lectures, along popular lines, with stereopticon pictures.

August Koch, of the west side parks, was elected chief of the information bureau.

Guy W. French has been appointed manager of the show.

MICHAEL BARKER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

New York Spring Show.

The schedule of premiums to be offered at the flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, April 5-12, 1916, has been issued and copies may be obtained on application to the secretary. The premiums offered are again on a very liberal scale and there are some notable additions to the classes. In the section for commercial flowers covering roses in pots and tubs there are three prizes offered for a display of rose plants arranged as a rose garden covering 500 square feet, respectively $500, $300 and $200. In this class last year there were but two prizes, $300 and $200.

Some important additions have been made to the classes covering bulbous plants. There is a class devoted to private growers, covering a display of bulbs in flower to occupy 200 square feet arranged for effect. Prizes in this class are $150 and $100. There is also a class open to all calling for a display of bulbs, etc., arranged as a Dutch bulb garden, covering 5,000 square feet, appropriate accessories permitted, with prizes of $250, $150 and $100 respectively.

In the commercial class, covering a display of cut roses covering 200 square feet, the first prize is increased to $250 and the second prize in the new schedule is increased to $200. Bougainvilleas are to be featured so as to form a distinct attraction among the groups of flowering plants, prizes of $75 and $50 being offered for a group arranged for effect covering 100 square feet. A new feature is a class for collection of new Holland plants covering 100 square feet with prizes of $50 and $25. Rock gardens are to be another important feature, a commercial class for such gardens covering a space 10 feet by 30 feet, suitable accessories permitted, having been introduced with prizes of $250 and $150.

A very full and complete exhibition in the trade section is practically assured, the contracts already accepted aggregating in value upward of $10,000. The entertainment features of the show will, it is expected, be of the usual high standard and fully in accord with the purposes of the show.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Floriculture at the University of Illinois.

Eight new students have enrolled in the course given in floriculture. One of the new members is doing graduate work in floriculture and the others have registered for the regular undergraduate work. This makes a total of 23 floricultural students of which eight are seniors, two juniors, four sophomores, eight freshmen, and one a graduate student. The courses given during the semester are as follows: Green house construction, with an enrollment of 31; commercial crops, with an enrollment of 5; amateur floriculture, with an enrollment of 43; garden flowers, with an enrollment of 31.

Several changes were made in the staff this year. W. K. Palmer of Berwyn, Ill., has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hutchinson, who now has charge of a 350 acre farm, recently acquired by the department of horticulture for nursery experiments. Mr. Palmer graduated with the class of 1913, when he received the degree of B. S. in floriculture. Immediately after graduation he secured employment with F. Dorner & Sons Company of Lafayette, Ind., where he gained considerable knowledge of the work as carried on by them. From Lafayette Mr. Palmer went to Morton Grove, Ill., to work for Poehlmann Bros. Co. From here he went to the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, where he received much experience in retail work. Besides having charge of the greenhouses, Mr. Palmer also has charge of the course in commercial crops. E. G. Lauterbach of Bushnell, Ill., has been appointed to succeed C. C. Rees as assistant to Mr. Peltier in plant pathology.

F. L. Washburn of Bloomington visited the experimental greenhouses September 29. A. G. H.

Syracuse Chrysanthemum Show.

The second annual chrysanthemum show, under the auspices of the Syracuse Florists' Association, will be held November 4-7 in a suitable hall, which will be selected by a committee appointed by Henry Youell, president. The committee comprises Hugh McCarthy, Werner Bultmann and Chester Harris. One-half of the net proceeds of the show will be devoted to some charitable association, which will be designated at a future meeting of the association. Mr. Youell says that the exhibition will be the best and largest ever conducted in that city.

European Shipments.

William Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., advises us, he has written the secretary of state at Washington, D. C., with regard to the delay and annoyance attending the shipment of Belgian and other European plants and we feel certain that letters from other importers and the tariff and legislation committees of the Society of American Florists, the American Association of Nurserymen and the American Seed Trade Association would stimulate the authorities to prompt action.

BELLE WASHBURN

Winner of the Silver Medal at the last Exhibition of the American Carnation Society, Buffalo, N. Y., January 27th and 28th, First Prize at the Illinois State Fair at Springfield, Ill., Sept. 22nd and 23rd.

IT has never been beaten at any exhibition. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, strong and stiff. We have never had a burst calyx, all flowers grading firsts and best of all it is a constant bloomer giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family. It has a very spicy odor much greater than the average Carnation. It comes in full flower by the 1st of December and then continues steadily through the balance of the season.

The present sharp competition in business requires the grower to plant a variety that always produces high-grade flowers, never bursts the calyx, has strong, long stems, is steady and continuous bloomer, no cropper. The color is the most brilliant red of any Carnation now in market. We have grown this variety for five years, it being one of our own seedlings, and we now have 30,000 plants benched in our greenhouses at Greggs of which 12,000 are for the cut flowers and 18,000 devoted to rooted cuttings.

We will have 100,000 strong, well-rooted cuttings guaranteed all first-class ready for delivery during December. The price of the rooted cuttings will be $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

STOCK CLEANS UP WELL.

Business has been good the past week and stock of all kinds is cleaning up well at fair prices. The shipping trade especially has been brisk and the local trade has also shown considerable improvement. American Beauty roses are arriving in splendid condition and the better grades are bringing $3.00 and $4.00 per dozen in selected stock. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are in good demand and clean up quickly at good prices each day. Richmond roses are more plentiful, but like all the other roses, there is no great surplus when the day's business is over. Roses in general are reaching the market in splendid condition, and very fancy stock is obtainable if one is willing to pay the price. Chrysanthemums are arriving in larger quantities, but there are none too many, and fancy stock is bringing as high as $2.00 and $3.00 per dozen. Gladioli have seen their best days and the receipts are gradually diminishing, although there is some fairly good stock still being offered. Lilies are moving well and the same holds good of lily of the valley, which is still commanding good prices. Carnations are improving in quality and while the supply is steadily increasing the receipts clean up well at good figures. The first sweet peas were offered this week, but the receipts are so small that they are bought up almost as quickly as they are placed on sale. A few violets are arriving, but the quality is nothing to speak of as yet. Orchids and gardenias are in fair supply, but are in good demand. Wild smilax is arriving in larger quantities and in splendid condition and is being used largely in store decorations this week. Ferns have advanced in price and the better grades are now bringing $2.50 per 1,000. The supply houses are busy getting things in shape for the fall business, and while trade was rather quiet in this line the past week, they will have their innings soon. Trade during September has been very good in the cut flower line, and much better than the corresponding month last year. The plant dealers also report a gain in business over

September of last year and from present indications it appears as if the season as a whole is going to be considerably better than last year, for everyone is making preparations for a busy fall, and with the fall flower show to help things along there is no question but what the trade in general can look forward to an unusually busy season. The show promises to be the biggest ever and everyone should place his shoulder to the wheel and help in every way possible, so as to make the work easier for the committees

NOTES.

Wm. Amling and son, Martin Amling, of Maywood, and Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, visited the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses at Joliet this week and brought back the report that Superintendent Peterson has the stock in splendid condition in the old range as well as the plant formerly operated by the Chicago Carnation Co. The trip was made purposely to inspect the new scarlet carnation, Aviator, which Mr. Amling has had the pleasure to see on several other occasions and which he is seriously thinking of giving considerable bench space the coming season. So far the Thompson Co. has sold over 50,000 cuttings for January 1 delivery and new orders are continually arriving. It is the firm's intention to run an excursion from here to their establishment at Joliet in the near future, further particulars of which will be announced later.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has had an unusually busy week in the cut flower department and the force was kept on the jump at all times to fill the many orders that were received. This firm is cutting a magnificent supply of stock of all kinds, particularly American Beauty roses, orchids and gardenias. August Poehlmann says that the September sales in the cut flowers, supply and plant departments, were much larger than last year, and believes that business will continue to be brisk throughout the entire season. The supply department is completely stocked up with goods for fall and winter use and T. E. Waters is now supplying his customers with a choice grade of ruscus.

Felix Reichling makes a trip out to Peter Reinberg's greenhouses about twice a month to see how his big brother Emil is coming along with the stock and to get a line on what he will have to dispose of before his next visit. He reports that everything is in splendid condition and that his firm will have plenty of stock to supply their customers with the coming season, unless something unforeseen happens in the meantime.

N. P. Miller, of Miller & Musser, is busy with matters pertaining to the coming flower show and is now ably assisted by Mrs. Losey with the clerical work. Mr. Miller is working early and late to do what he can to make the coming Grand Floral Festival a great success, and when he puts his shoulder to the wheel you can just make up your mind that there will be something doing before the last act is over.

The consolidation banquet of the Chicago Florists' Club and Cook County Florists' Association, will be held at the Hotel La Salle, Thursday evening, October 7, at 8 o'clock. The business meeting will be called to order at 7 p. m. sharp and the secretary says that he will greatly appreciate it if everyone will be on time so as not to delay the banquet.

F. S. McNeff, vice-president of the McNeff-Swenson Co., is the proud father of a baby girl, which also accounts for the smile that his big brother L. D. McNeff is wearing in the president's office. The McNeff-Swenson Co. is now located in new quarters in the Transportation building, at South Dearborn and West Harrison streets.

John Kruchten, of the John Kruchten Co., has returned from a business trip to Milwaukee, Wis., where he visited the Holton & Hunkel Co.'s greenhouses at Brown Deer. He reports that the stock in the H. & H. greenhouses is in splendid condition, as usual, particularly the Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty roses.

Robert C. Smallwood of A. N. Pier-son, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., stopped off here October 4 to visit the establishment of Weiland & Risch, at Evanston, to see their promising two new roses, Champ Weiland and Feamma, which will be on display for the first time at the Chicago Grand Floral Festival in the Coliseum, November 9-14.

The city baseball series opened Wednesday, October 6, and the usual custom of presenting floral offerings at the opening game was followed, which to the florist is the chief event of the contest. It seems that this year everyone is a Fed fan since Joe Tinker's boys captured the pennant in rebel league race.

Mayor Thompson has ordered that 7,152 dramshops in this city proceed to obey the Illinois Sunday closing statute, which means that this is the first time since the big fire that the sale of liquor must be stopped on that day, to begin at 12 o'clock midnight, Saturday night, October 9.

At J. A. Budlong's store the shipping trade has been so brisk of late that Manager Schnupp has been helping the boys out a great deal, and while he has a reputation for being an A1 office man, he can still keep step with the younger generation when it comes to filling orders.

Robert Northam misses the American Beauty roses at George Reinberg's establishment this season, which is the first time for a great many years that his firm has not grown them and which were discarded to make room for Mr. Reinberg's favorite rose, Mrs. Chas. Russell.

George J. Ball and family, of Glen Ellyn, are making a trip to Cincinnati, O., this week, over the automobile route in their Studebaker. They will visit friends at the Ohio city for several days, which is Mr. Ball's old home.

The Chicago Flowers Growers' Association is featuring a choice grade of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses from the Stielow greenhouses at Niles Center, which Paul Klingsporn takes great pride in showing the customers at the store.

The Atlas Floral Co. has a very pretty window display this week and it has become a habit with the people that pass by to see what Herbert Stone will have on display next.

Teddy Vogel, who is doing the buying in the local market for W. J. Smyth, is now comfortably located in a cozy flat at Fiftieth street and Evans avenue.

Henry Wehrmann of Maywood made several shipments of sweet peas to the E. C. Amling Co. this week, which to the writer's knowledge are the first of the season.

Hoerber Bros. are in good crop with roses and a good supply of all the old standard as well as many of the new varieties are included in their regular shipments.

George Perdikas, who underwent an operation at the German Hospital last week, is getting along splendidly and will be able to be about soon.

Ed. Vilter, who has been employed in the local wholesale market for some time, is the latest addition to the Zech & Mann store force.

Joseph Ziska & Sons have a large supply of doves on hand which are some of the best that they have ever offered.

It is rumored that the Panama-Pacific exposition will be reproduced in miniature at the Coliseum next January.

Erne & Klingel are still receiving a large supply of smilax, which has been one of their leaders for some time past.

M. W. Uhlschmidt, with Grimm & Gorly, East St. Louis, was a visitor in the wholesale market October 4.

The A. L. Randall Co. will be one of the exhibitors at the Cleveland fall flower show.

Robert Newcomb, with the W. W. Barnard Co., is in the city.

George Franks, with Thos. E. Franks & Son, of Champaign, dropped in to see his old friend, A. L. Vaughan, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., this week, when he bought a large supply of stock for a large wedding and home decoration that he has booked for this week. Chrysanthemums, pink and white roses and wild smilax will be used largely in the decoration, which is one of the best orders that he has received for a long time. Mr. Franks says that his father is still confined to his home, as he has been for the past three years, which means that he is looking after the business entirely, of which he is fully capable of doing, to obtain best results.

Percy Jones has added a new rose grower to his list of consignors which enables him to take care of a few more customers. H. Van Gelder and his ambitious assistants are making preparations to handle their large supply of chrysanthemums, which they will receive shortly, and which is a big item with them each fall.

N. J. Wieter says that trade is showing a big improvement at Wieter Bros.' store and is looking forward to a banner fall trade. This firm has had a brisk demand for Killarney roses, which they are cutting in quantity, and while the receipts are heavy they clean up quickly each day.

O. J. Friedman had an order for a beautiful casket cover of orchids and lily of the valley for the Cable funeral held last week, and which was one of the prettiest pieces that Victor Bergmann ever arranged.

Kyle & Foerster are receiving regular shipments of southern smilax, which they are prepared to deliver at a moment's notice.

The wholesale stores of A. T. Pyfer & Co. and O. A. Tonner are receiving a new coat of paint this week.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Bassett & Washburn are now located in their new store in the LeMoyné building at 178 North Wabash avenue, and as soon as the work under way is completed they will be in better position than ever to handle their ever-increasing business. Mr. Washburn has noticed a great increase in their city business since the firm moved and there is no question but what their selection of the present home will result in still greater sales. They have more room than they had before, but can use every inch of space they have to good advantage.

John Mangel's store looks magnificent since it has been remodeled and the new conservatory added. A large show case has just been installed, which is completely filled with new goods of all kinds which an up-to-date shop requires. He will have a large opening next week and is now stocking up for the event and when all the decorations are completed it will be a sight worth going a long distance to see.

R. R. Brenton, of Kennicott Bros. Co. and director of press publicity for the Grand Floral Festival to be held in the Coliseum November 9-14, and his committee held a meeting this week and are busy with the work allotted to them. Mr. Brenton is enthusiastic over his work and will prove to be the right man in the right place before the big event is over.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are supplying their customers with a fancy grade of roses and carnations and are cutting more heavily in Richmond, which are in good demand at their store. Mr. Pyfer is well pleased with the way trade is improving and could use more stock to good advantage right now and in the future.

Miss Elsie Jacobs and Herbert Dilg, of Morton Grove, were married in the blue room of the Hotel La Salle, Wednesday, October 6. Mr. Dilg, who is well and favorably known to many of the trade in this vicinity, will open a garage in Morton Grove in the near future.

H. E. Philpott came all the way from Winnipeg to attend the consolidation banquet of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association.

Miss Ludlow, of the flower seed department of Vaughan's Seed Store, has returned to her desk after an enjoyable vacation in the east.

D. Nicas has purchased the Paris Flower Shop, 11 East Jackson boulevard, from Peter Duris, taking possession September 30.

P. J. Foley is attending the Anderson meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana this week.

E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is back from an out-of-town business trip.

Vaughan's Seed Store has had a fine window display of all seasonable bulbs the past week.

George Wienhoeber has a large order for the Dunne wedding at Springfield, October 20.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SEASONABLE WEATHER AND GOOD SALES.

Business has shown a decided improvement during the past week due no doubt to seasonable fall weather. Funeral work has been heavy and the demand for flowers for weddings, receptions and fall openings has been unusually good, and indications point to a continuance of good business throughout the month. Outdoor stock is dwindling fast. Dahlias are fairly plentiful, while asters are scarce and small. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities, but are small, and chrysanthemums are showing up better each week. Pink October Frost is the latest arrival, and with Smith's Advance, Golden Glow, October Frost and Unaka are also in evidence, priced at from $2 to $3 per dozen. Roses are showing up splendidly as a result of the cool weather.

NOTES.

The decorations for the two large department stores of Wolf & Dessauer and the Gates Store last week were carried out by Miss Flick, of the Flick Floral Company. Chrysanthemums, roses and dahlias were used extensively, as well as a number of ferns and flowering plants. Pink October Frost and Golden Glow chrysanthemums were used in the decoration for Forty Hours' devotion at St. Patrick's cathedral last week by Miss Flick, and basket arrangements of Shawyer roses and chrysanthemums were the decorations for the opening of the new Morris Bank on Berry street, East.

E. C. Wenninghoff had a tasty decorated window last week of Unaka chrysanthemums and red and bronze oak foliage.

Mrs. C. D. Bradley of the Bradley Flower Shop is visiting relatives in Chicago. H. K.

Detroit Bowling.

The Detroit Florists' Club has inaugurated bowling as a feature in connection with its meetings, which will be held the coming season, the second and fourth Tuesday evening of every month. The games played Tuesday evening, September 28, were engaged in by 20 members and two visitors. The following are the scores:

GENERAL TRADE IMPROVEMENT.

A lower temperature, with more reasonable weather conditions, is having a beneficial effect on all the inside flowers, and also helped the situation by an improvement in the dahlias, which are now coming in in the best form of the season. They are likely to last another 10 days, by which time the chrysanthemums, which are already pushing forward, will claim the stage for their annual turn. There are roses galore, a full line of all the newer sorts, as well as the old favorites being offered, with prices according to quality, the newcomers seeming to share no better on account of their novelty than the others. There is a demand for good American Beauties and Russell, the latter selling up clean in its higher grades all the time. Carnations, now that the asters are done, are fighting for a place with the dahlias. The quality shows improvement daily; the short stems are a handicap. Snapdragon is offered freely by several growers; it is now an all-the-year-round standard. Cattleyas are blooming their heads off, this being true at least of the labiata family. They sell very low in quantity lots. Lily of the valley has shortened up considerably, there not being enough to go around the past week. Easter lilies have been good stock the past week, cleaning up well.

NOTES.

Karl Cortz, chief of the city store of the Jos. Heacock Co., says the retailer would be better off if he never saw a dahlia. There is no question that from the way he says it, Karl believes what he says. Samuel Lilley is also "agin" the outside flowers. "It's the man that builds the greenhouses that makes money for the retailer, and he ought to be encouraged." George Cook, of the Pennock-Meehan force, declares that the sooner the hard frost comes the better. While Edward Reid adds a fervent, Amen. With all due respect to the above opinions, which are with one exception from men who do not handle this flower, we question whether the dahlia interferes with the sale of other flowers at this season; its showy robust form and conspicuous coloring, together with its moderate price, puts it on a plane by itself, and many dozens find purchasers, who at this season like to have a few of these bright flowers about. They add variety and tend to keep the public interested; every purchase of flowers made, no matter how small, is a boost for the flower business, and in the light of what is before us the coming season let us all put our shoulders to the wheel to keep the wagon moving.

There was a very good attendance at the October meeting of the florist club on the evening of September 23, the feature being the talk on dahlias by L. K. Peacock, who when it comes to the lore of this popular outside flower, seems never to tire in keeping it to the front. There was a display of all the newer dahlias, many of them very fine flowers. The old officers of the club were all re-elected, as follows: George Burton, president; John C. Gracey, vice-president; George Craig, treasurer, David Rust, secretary.

The national flower show prospects look very promising; all the local committees are working with a will, while extra premiums and all sorts of inducements to encourage exhibitors are coming to the front, almost without the asking. Everything points to a record-breaking exhibition of all the country's best in plants and flowers. All that is needed is the generous response of the public, which the publicity committee are earnestly laying plans to secure.

Walter Davis, one of the chiefs of the Leo Niessen Co.'s force, has purchased the business of John McIntyre, the wholesale florist of 1711 Ranstead street, where he will continue and extend the trade to the best of his ability. Mr. Davis, who has had considerable experience, is withal a hustler, and should soon become a factor in this central wholesale district. He has our best wishes for his success.

The Leo Niessen Co., while they handle immense quantities of dahlias, have had to cut their orders down, their selling capacity getting ahead of

New York.

NO SURPLUS AND PRICES ADVANCE.

There is a better tone to the market and indications point to much better business. The weather, which has been cool during the past week, has cut down the supply of stock and there is no surplus. Practically every stock is selling at advanced prices. The market opened fairly active October 4, and there was no surplus of stock. If buying became heavy there would be a scarcity. As it is prices are higher. The average for special tea roses is $6 to $8 per 100, with exceptionally fine stock going to $10 and $12. On October 2 some carnations sold for $3 per 100, but the average price is lower. There is a marked increase in the supply of chrysanthemums, and good stock is now in and selling at $3 and $4 per dozen. Dahlias are the most plentiful, and on account of a light supply of other stocks, good dahlias sell well. In lilies, lily of the valley, bouvardias, tuberose and other minor stocks there is a good movement. October 1 and the next day brought very rainy and disagreeable weather, but it has cleared and is like Indian summer. Three steamers, the Megrez, Mizar and Noordam, are due here from Rotterdam, Holland. If azaleas are coming forward there should be some on these ships.

October 6.—The market opened active and prices are advancing. Special American Beauties are quoted at from $25 to $30, lily of the valley is bringing $5 and $6 and prices on carnations range from $2.50 to $3.

NOTES.

We are pleased to note that Charles A. Dards, a well-known and prominent retail florist of this city, has entered a protest against the way some undertakers and florists handle flowers at a funeral. As Mr. Dards pointedly says: "The feeling seems to be that the show is over; the florist has done his work, and the undertaker is in a hurry to complete his." Some years ago, in a neighboring city, the writer attended the funeral of a man of national reputation, who had been honored not only for his great and unselfish service to his country, but also for his unswerving Christian character. At that time, I protested through THE AMERICAN FLORIST against the reckless methods—reckless is a mild word—in which the flowers were handled. That criticism was not pleasing to several prominent florists. Flowers are ordered for a funeral through love, respect or sympathy, and there can be no argument on the question of undertakers and florists handling them with decency.

John Young visited the range of S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., October 1. He states that the stock in their greenhouses is in excellent condition. His company is receiving very fine stock of the rose, Francis Scott Key, from this range; also a new yellow seedling, No. 28, a yellow the shade of Hillingdon, but a great improvement on that rose. They are also receiving large shipments of fine chrysanthemums from Walter Ramm, Seacaucus, N. J., and fine lilies from Carl Woerner, also of Seacaucus.

Negotiations have been completed for obtaining as a free gift to the city the Dyckman house, at Broadway and Two Hundred and Fourth street, the last remaining Dutch farm house in the city. Mrs. Bashford Dean and Mrs. Alexander M. Welsh, daughter of the late Isaac Dyckman, have given the city five lots surrounding the house to be known as Dyckman park.

Harry C. Riedel has retired from the firm of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, 34 West 28th street, and will go into partnership with Meyer Othole in the wholesale business at 49 West 28th

The store of John S. Nicholas in the Grand Central Station is now very attractive with flowers and fruit. Minoa Nicholas, son of the proprietor, is active in the management of this store and is also pushing seeds and bulbs. Mr. Nicholas has another fine store on 42d street near Madison avenue.

Although good roses are now rather scarce, we have noted a fine supply at H. E. Froment's from the range of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J. Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Sunburst, the Killarneys and other varieties are prominent at this store.

Al. M. Rigo, formerly with Henshaw & Fenrich, of West 28th street, has opened a retail store at 810 Madison avenue. In the wholesale district, Al. was a hustler and doubtless he will keep it up as a retailer.

H. H. Burns, son of the well-known A. S. Burns of Woodside and Elmhurst, L. I., has opened a retail store at Madison avenue and 52d street. He is ably assisted by A. F. Falardeau, a well-known designer and decorator.

After a successful season, Christatos & Koster, have closed their summer store at West End, N. J., and are now devoting their undivided attention to their store at 717 Madison avenue, which is finely fitted up.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., are receiving exceptionally fine stock of the new pink seedling chrysanthemum from Frank Dmda, Farmingdale, N. Y. It will be shown at the next meeting of the florists' club, October 11.

In addition to a great variety of other stock, Paul Meconi, of the Coogan building, is now handling fine cattleya orchids from Thomas Young, Jr.'s Beechwood Nurseries, Bound Brook, N. J.

Chris Costos, an old and well known retailer of St. Nicholas avenue and 181st street, was stricken with severe illness September 30 and taken to Bellevue Hospital in a serious condition.

J. Walker Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa., was in this city October 2 showing samples of the very fine palm stock grown at the range of the Joseph Heacock Company.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

The local florists have little cause for complaint in regard to business. Work for both funerals and weddings has kept up well and everybody is on the move. Stock, such as it is, is plentiful, nothing special being seen with the exception of orchids and American Beauties. Prices have been exceptionally good for all stocks. Roses in variety have brought from $2 to $8 per hundred while American Beauties are quoted at from $8 to $25. Lily of the valley is coming in, but in limited quantity and other stock has to be used with Easter lilies, which sell at $10 per hundred.

NOTES.

Z. D. Blackstone seems to make a specialty of handsome auto decorations, for there is not an occasion in the way of local parades that some excellent handiwork from this establishment is not noted. In the parade in connection with the recent carnival, a huge lady slipper, made of 5,000 dahlias, arranged with Boston ferns and American flags designed by the Blackstone force, mounted on an auto truck, was a splendid feature. Another design by the same artists was that of a lighthouse on a large float. This arrangement was over 20 feet in height and was made up of dahlias and American Beauties, with a base of rocks and ferns. The whole was surmounted by a searchlight in operation.

The Leo Niessen Co. are receiving extra fine stock of American Beauties, and excellent orchids are also a feature here. Manager Schnell has no trouble in disposing of both.

E. Palmer, formerly in the employ of Z. D. Blackstone as a salesman, has accepted a position with the Hammond Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

Gude Bros. have been kept busy with decorations and arranged several attractive automobile features for the recent carnival parade.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR FUNERAL WORK.
 The Royal live stock show increased the demand for cut flowers to a high point, stock being used in many different ways, with the demand for corsages a good leader. American Beauties were also used in large quantities. The market in general during the past week has been a little better than the previous week, with unusually heavy demand for funeral work. Roses were more plentiful and dahlias were in the lead at all the shops. Carnations are more plentiful and better in quality, and gladioli are still to be seen. There was a good demand for decorative plants during the past week and the sale of pot plants is on the increase.

NOTES.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving fine stock of Mrs. Ward, Ophelia, Sunburst, Richmond and Killarney roses; also a few American Beauties. Carnations, both local and out of town grown, are coming in better. Dahlias in quantity are also a feature. The shipping and supply trade both show improvement, and the flower stock cleans up as soon as it is received from the growers.

Samuel Murray reports business good with plenty of funeral work. The window decorations at his establishment during "Fashion Show" week were especially artistic and attracted much attention.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving very good stock, especially in white roses. Their stock sells at sight and they have difficulty at times in getting enough to supply the trade.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. says out of town trade is picking up nicely. Stock at the greenhouses is looking well and they expect to cut heavily in a few days.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., President; Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., First Vice-President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fourth annual convention, June, 1916.

YELLOW and White Globe onion are very scarce items.

EARLY OHIO potatoes of good quality are in short supply.

VISITED Chicago: Chas. N. Page, of Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, Ia.

ONION SET growers in the Chicago district have had good drying weather the past week.

EARLY reports from middle south holly growers indicate a fair crop of berries and good foliage.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—The Ratekin Seed House has been incorporated. The amount of stock authorized is $75,000.

J. C. VAUGHAN is making a New England trip this week in connection with Illinois State Art Commission matters.

THE stiff frosts which occurred this week should stimulate bulb trade, both counter and mail. Local advertising may help.

GLADIOLUS bulb growers who have been waiting for frosts before digging may start now as frosts have been general this week.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Fall business in garden seeds has been good and farm seed business is opening satisfactorily according to reports of local seedsmen.

GENERAL business conditions in the bouquet green districts indicate that labor will be plentiful, and weather permitting prices should not go above a normal average.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, October 6, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.—W. J. Smart, formerly with the Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., is now with Vaughan's Seed Store.

PEAS in Idaho are a great disappointment, that is, late kinds. While the pods were freely produced they failed to fill, yielding not more than half they promised. The early varieties have turned out much more satisfactorily.

THE preliminary percentages of deliveries of leading sorts of green pod and wax pod beans reported from Michigan growing districts are very low and confirms the impression that 1916 prices will equal or exceed the high figures of 1915.

THE bulge on medium red clover seed worries the Indiana, Michigan and Ohio dealers who now bitterly deplore their lack of foresight in sizing up the late summer weather conditions with relation to the poor seeding of the clover plant in September. Thirteen dollars and 55 cents per bushel in Toledo, as against $8.80 in July, is a distinct shock to the seedsmen who has not yet secured his supply.

NEWARK, N. J.—Alexander Forbes, president of J. F. Noll & Co., who underwent an operation for appendicitis, has fully recovered his health. Business at this establishment is reported as improving.—Wilson Seed Co., Inc., states that there is considerable activity, especially in bulbs.

Chinese (Amoy) Narcissus.

First shipments of Chinese narcissus bulbs from Amoy arrived about October 1. It is understood that advance orders were filled short 50 per cent or less. This article is in good demand and future shipments to arrive are reported well sold up. These bulbs could have been secured in good time and presumably in full demand, had the American jobbers seen fit to meet the demands of the Amoy, Chinese growers, or their selling agents, who attempted to boost prices 50 per cent on the claim that production costs justified it. It is difficult at long range to analyze production costs or compare this item with similar Dutch and French growing costs. Nevertheless, the action this year and last year by the Chinese who control the bulbs seems to make it reasonably certain that wholesale prices must advance next year if prompt and full deliveries are expected.

New York Seed Trade.

Business is quite active at all the seed stores. Bulbs are the leading feature and they are selling well. At one seed store it was stated, October 1, that they were already sold out of some varieties of tulips. While there has been talk of a scarcity of Paper White narcissi we have not heard of any of the stores being out of them.

Peter Henderson & Co. report good business. During the past week they showed a fine collection of hardy flowers in their windows. Noteworthy was Lathyrus latifolius or perennial sweet pea. This form is better suited for a trellis plant than for cut flower, although its flowers are of no mean order.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has been selling bulbs in variety at auction, also hardy evergreens and a great variety of greenhouse plants. Business is very active with this firm.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. is making a very fine display of bulbs and other seasonable stock. A feature of their show windows is large plants of Celosia Pride of Castle Gould.

W. E. Marshall & Co. report business improving. Mr. Marshall has recently returned from a 10-day trip among the firm's customers.

The H. A. Bunyard Co., Uptown Seed Store, has recently received a large consignment of bulbs and reports good business.

J. C. Vaughan returned to Chicago September 30. The New York store is now quite busy. A. F. F.

Imports.

During the week ending October 2 imports were received at New York from Marseilles, France, as follows:

Vaughan's Seed Store, 219 cases bulbs.
R. M. Ward & Co., 106 cases bulbs.
A. Baldwin & Co., 56 cases bulbs.
Bernard & Co., 52 cases bulbs.
C. F. Meyer, 39 cases bulbs.
The S. S. New Amsterdam from Rotterdam, Holland, brought consignments of bulbs and plants as follows:
MacNiff Horticultural Co., 64 cases bulbs, 47 cases shrubs and plants.
Vaughan's Seed Store, 40 cases bulbs.

McHutchison & Co., 3 cases bulbs.
C. S. Smith, 32 cases trees, etc.
A. Murphy & Co., 6 cases bulbs.
R. W. MacNiff, 18 cases bulbs.
E. J. King, 122 cases bulbs.
C. F. Meyer, 4 cases bulbs.
Gray Bros., 41 cases bulbs.
St. Louis Seed Co., 4 cases bulbs and 6 boxes seeds.
To order, 2,374 cases bulbs, 47 cases immortelles, 95 cases trees, 603 cases shrubs and plants.

Potatoes Rotting.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 30.—(Special.)—Thousands of bushels of potatoes are rotting in the ground through southwestern Michigan and reports by commission men here say that the same conditions obtain in all of the potato growing sections of the north central states. The crop has been attacked within the last two or three weeks by the blight in the worst form known in 30 years and some growers are in danger of losing their entire output.

THREE "SUPERFINE" NEW SPENCERS FOR 1916

"Fiery Cross" "FIERY CROSS" is a most appropriate name for a most unusual novelty. During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, when Scotland was continually at war, the method employed by the chiefs to gather the clans to repel invaders was by means of a fiery cross, which was taken from hamlet to hamlet by the speediest man available. The fiery cross was simply a blazing pine branch.

"FIERY CROSS" has all the appearance of live fire, the color being a scorching fire-red, or scarlet, without any shading and which scintillates and glitters in bright sunlight, thus adding a glowing, fire-like sheen which radiates over the flower. Unlike most of the orange-scarlet varieties, it does not scorch or burn even during extended periods of intense sunshine, therefore it can be grown in all soils without shading. The beautifully waved and fluted flowers are borne freely in threes and fours, well placed on long stout stems.

"FIERY CROSS" was recommended for the Silver Medal variety of National Sweet Pea Society of England, July, 1914, which was awarded July, 1915. It received an Award of Merit at the exhibition held by the American Sweet Pea Society at the San Francisco Fair, June 10, 1915, as being the outstanding variety in the show. Also Certificate of Merit at the Sweet Pea Exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, June 23, 1915; and Silver Medal at the Seventh Annual Exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society, Newport, R. I., July 15, 1915.

Prices for "Fiery Cross" Sweet Pea.
In sealed packets containing ten seeds each: Per pkt., 25c; $2.00 per dozen pkts.; $13.75 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 packets or more, $12.50 per 100 pkts.

If 500 or more packets are ordered at one time and it is so requested, we shall print on the packets the name and address of the purchaser and supply free an electrotype of either the spray or single flower.

1878 "The President"* This will compete with "FIERY CROSS" as the greatest novelty of the year. It is wonderfully brilliant, in fact, it might be termed a glowing scarlet self. The flowers are of largest size, carried on strong, stiff stems, usually in fours, always beautifully waved even when well expanded and most harmoniously placed. It has been termed "the brightest color we have in sweet peas" and does not burn. "It is head and shoulders above anything of a similar color" and probably will never be surpassed in the orange-scarlet section. We were awarded Certificate of Merit for THE PRESIDENT by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, June 23, 1915, also by the American Sweet Pea Society at Newport, R. I., July 15, 1915, and have pleasure now in introducing this unusual novelty, simultaneously with our friends Messrs. Alex. Dickson & Son, the celebrated Rosarians, of Belfast, Ireland.

In sealed packets containing ten seeds each: Pkt., 25c; 5 pkts. for $1.00; $2.00 per dozen pkts.; $13.75 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 packets or more, $12.50 per 100 pkts.

New Spencer Hilary Christy

We were much pleased with this beautiful and distinct novelty in 1914 in the Essex cultures of our friend, Mr. Hugh Dickson, then President of the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain. The trial at Fordhook the past season has also been most satisfactory and we have great pleasure in now first offering the seed in connection with the originator. The plants grow strongly, bloom profusely, bearing flowers of good size and true Spencer type. The standard is frosted orange-cerise with crenulated fiery edge; wings rosy carmine, keel delicate fawny lemon. Its rich though subdued colorings are very chaste and refined.

In sealed packets containing ten seeds each: Per pkt., 15c; 2 pkts. for 25c; $1.00 per dozen pkts.; $7.00 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 packets or more, $6.25 per 100 pkts.

In sealed packets containing twenty seeds each: Per pkt., 25c; 5 pkts. for $1.00; $2.00 per dozen pkts.; $13.75 per 100 pkts. In lots of 500 packets or more, $12.50 per 100 pkts.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., President;
John Watson, Newark, N. Y., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

Texas Nurserymen's Association.

The fifteenth annual convention of the Texas Nurserymen's Association was held at Waco, September 28-29, and while the attendance was not as large as at some previous meetings, the session was without doubt one of the most businesslike, systematic and interesting in the history of the organization. President Wm. B. Munson, of Denison, after calling the convention to order, introduced Mayor J. W. Riggins, who warmly welcomed the visitors, and C. C. Mayhew of Sherman, followed and expressed the appreciation of the association for the cordial welcome extended to the members. President Munson delivered an informal talk in which he reviewed the work of the association during the year, referred to the publications of the association, urged that subjects assigned to members be handled so as to better benefit all, and suggested that the committee on publicity be continued. J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, reported for the legislative committee, and said that legislation in regard to inspection was in better form than ever before; also, that there now existed a much better feeling between nurserymen and inspectors, the former co-operating as fully as possible.

Much discussion of the stringent laws of Oklahoma, which acted as a hardship on Texas nurserymen, marked the opening session. The Oklahoma regulations were claimed to be discriminative, and while the members of the Texas organization did not object to inspection or other necessary regulation, the requirement of a heavy bond to solicit business in Oklahoma was objectionable and should not be demanded, and it was the general consensus of opinion that a uniform inspection law should be the solution of the situation.

J. H. Arbenz, of Sarita, spoke on the subject, "The Nurserymen's Interest in a State Board of Horticulture," and a committee was named as a result of the discussion which followed to carry forward the work of securing a state board of horticulture and securing as much of an extension fund as is possible.

The election of officers for the ensuing year, which was held September 30, resulted as follows: Wm. B. Munson, Denison, president; J. M. Ramsey, Austin, secretary-treasurer; E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney, member of executive committee of the Texas Farmers' Congress. The meeting place for 1916 will be decided later.

Many interesting papers and addresses were features of the meeting and were listened to with much interest, among them being the following: "The Best Methods We Have Found of Handling Palms, Citrus Trees and Other Tropical Fruits in the Rio Grande Valley," by W. D. Griffing, Port Arthur; "Notes on New or Little Known Ornamental Shrubs," by J. D. Baker, Fort Worth; "A Way to Plant Pecan and Persimmon Trees So They Will All Live," by E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney; "The Horticultural Outlook in the Texas Lower Coast Country," by J. H. Arbenz, Sarita; "Experiences in Hunting for Varieties That Bear Every Year," by F. T. Ramsey; "What Can We Do With the Unscrupulous and Irresponsible Tree Dealer?" by J. R. Mayhew; "What Is the Proper Ratio Between Retail and Wholesale Prices?" by J. M. Ramsey, Austin; "The Importance of the Correct and Truthful Naming and Description of Varieties," by J. B. Baker, Fort Worth; "Fundamental Causes of Enemies and Diseases of Trees and Plants," by Eltweed Pomeroy, Donna; "Choosing Varieties Best Suited to Each Zone or Locality," by J. S. Kerr.

Immediately following the adjournment of the meeting the delegates were taken in automobiles that had been provided by the entertainment committee of the Young Men's Business League for a drive through the city and parks, followed by a barbecue.

Among those in attendance at the convention were the following: President W. B. Munson, Denison; E. W. Kirkpatrick, McKinney; M. Falkner, Waco; Ed. L. Ayers, chief state inspector of orchards and nurseries, Austin; L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth; J. T. Osburn, Lindale; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie; G. W. Weaver, Swan; P. C. Moore, Tyler; J. M. Thompson, Waco; J. B. Baker, Fort Worth; A. C. Franklin, Rockdale; J. H. Arbenz, Sarita, H. E. Cannon, Henderson; M. S. Shamburger, and S. P. Ford, Tyler; W. D. Griffing, Port Arthur; C. C. Mayhew, Sherman; Tom Wolfe, Waco; John Gorham, Bosqueville; O. K. Phillips, Rockdale; J. M. Ramsay, Austin; W. D. Luffing, Port Arthur; J. L. Downing, Wichita Falls; J. L. Quicksall, Waco. Secretary H. Ivan Martin, Port Arthur, was unable to attend the meeting and a telegram conveying the regrets of the association was sent to him. M.

Humidity For Cucumbers.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What is the most desirable degree of humidity under glass? My cucumbers are not making satisfactory progress as I believe the hot weather dries out the houses too much. The temperature at night runs from 65 degrees to 70 degrees. It is my intention to secure a hygrometer to regulate the humidity.

K. K.

Louisiana.

During our long experience under glass, both with flowers and vegetables, we have never used a hygrometer, nor run across such an instrument in any establishment where commercial crops are grown. Hence, we cannot advise as to the value of the article; further, we wish to admit owning a considerable prejudice against any such mechanical aid. We believe that a good grower should be a living thermostat or hygrometer, and that he should be able to instantly determine what is needed the moment he enters a house. That is part of his experience and training and this quality is "non-transferable"—it cannot be bought nor sold, but it can be acquired by faithful attention to details, and close observation.

There are a few important principles which we must mind closely in greenhouse culture. One of these is atmospheric moisture. Some crops demand more and some less. One way to obtain moisture is to sprinkle the walk, the wall, and sometimes the glass roof; another way is to provide ample ventilation and depend upon the fresh air from outdoors to balance our moisture requirements. For example, rose growers generally prefer to use the hose to get their moisture, while carnation specialists prefer the fresh air treatment. As a rule, small houses need more attention with the hose than large ones. Another excellent rule to follow is to watch the drying up of a house. If a house is thoroughly dampened or syringed between 9 and 10 a. m., and by noon all traces of moisture have disappeared, a second application may be in order during the noon hour. If, however, the early morning application is partly carried past the noon hour a second syringing would be dangerous, as by carrying moist foliage into the night, we court diseases with most crops.

Cucumbers love generous treatment—plenty of nourishment in the soil, part of which must be humus; plenty of moisture in the ground and in the air; and also a fair degree of heat. While there are growers who maintain that cucumbers flourish in high temperature, we believe they are partly mistaken. Cucumbers do their best where the maximum temperatures are not excessive, say not beyond 85 degrees Fahrenheit. With a steady night temperature of 65 to 68 degrees, a soil full of humus and faithful attention as above, they should flourish. During the cool months, close attention must be paid to pollination, either by hand or by bees.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for over 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Some of the reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4,000 or 5,000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown in August in sandy soil, thinly broadcast, so that the plants grow short and stocky, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion. 1,000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5,000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery by express in good condition guaranteed. TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

The bright fall weather has already brought great revival of business in all lines, and the florists particularly, are rejoicing over increased business in their line. In many respects the past summer has been a hard one, with variable temperature—sometimes too hot and entirely too dry, and then an unseasonable coolness, altogether hard on the grower. Some of the trade report, however, that as far as business is concerned it has been the best all around summer they have ever had. The flower supply while not abundant through the hot period has been fairly good, and with the aid of outside shipments when the supply was short, all orders have been filled. Fall stock is looking well and chrysanthemums have already appeared on the market, small as yet, but some of the best of the white and pink varieties. Roses are coming in plentifully and some very good home grown varieties are shown over the counters. Carnations are abundant and are coming on rapidly. They are unusually good for this time of the year and there is promise of a fine crop. Fall bulbs have been put on sale and meet with ready demand. There are some lilies on the market and the supply of lily of the valley is plentiful.

NOTES.

The McIntyre Floral Co. is making quite extensive improvements at their shop on West End avenue. Over the store extension running to the street which was only one story high, they are erecting a pergola, which they intend to decorate in winter with evergreens, and in summer with vines and hanging baskets. They are also arranging for a cold storage cellar for cut flowers and a room for storage of wire designs in the rear of their building. Their flower stock is in fine condition and at present they are cutting an unusually fine lot of dahlias of many varieties and colors.

The Joy Floral Co. reports four good wedding decoration orders booked for next week and the other florists have good business in this line in sight. Thomas H. Joy, manager of this firm's uptown store, left October 2, for a business trip to Memphis, to extend already good business coming from that city. The shipping business is steadily increasing and the cities further south are getting the benefit of the surplus of the fine stock raised in this city.

Geny Bros. are cutting a fine lot of lilies, and have plenty of roses of the varieties Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Prince E. C. de Arenberg among others. This firm is putting in its own ice plant at the store. A good business throughout the season is reported and they have an ample supply of flowers to meet all demands.

GOODRICH
"GREENHOUSE" HOSE

Try Goodrich "Greenhouse" on your next order! That extra thick, extra tough wear-resisting cover—compounded to endure by the world's largest factory, the factory that builds the road-resisting treads found on Goodrich Automobile Tires—is giving months of service where other hose lasts but weeks.

Then, too, "Greenhouse" is not readily affected by kinks, twists, sharp bends—that cause other hose to leak, crack, break, split apart.

"Greenhouse" is, in addition, flexible and easy to work with. It saves time in use. Withstands high pressures, too. Any length desired in one continuous piece.

Suggestions for Plant Growers.

Dahlias.

Before the dahlias were through blooming they should have been carefully named and a label properly inscribed fastened to each plant that it is desired to save. As soon as the plants are killed by the frost they should be cut down and the tubers dug. Leave about six or eight inches of stem and firmly attach the label to this in such a manner that it cannot become loosened and lost. A good, dry cellar, either with a cement or earthen bottom, will keep them nicely through the winter, but it should be frost proof and not too near a boiler or heater. The tubers can be placed closely together and then covered with soil and they will come through the winter and the tubers be nice and plump in the spring. They should be occasionally examined to see that they are not getting too dry or shriveling. If this happens cover the soil with papers and then sprinkle the paper and the soil will absorb the moisture.

Gladiolus.

As soon as the frost has killed down the foliage the gladiolus bulbs should be lifted and dried off. Keeping the varieties separate, the bulbs, with the tops attached, should be laid out in layers either on a light, dry shed floor, or on boards in the open air where they can be protected at night during frosty weather. A set of boards or frame shutters spread along on the south side of a building make a very fine place to dry them off and fully ripen the bulbs. Have plenty of covering handy that can be thrown over them on cold nights. When thoroughly ripened the bulbs can be broken from the tops and packed away. Look the bulbs over carefully for any diseased spots and if any having these are found, keep them separate from the sound ones, for it is the prevailing opinion that the disease may be communicated to a sound bulb by coming in contact with a diseased one. Of the finer varieties and those which it is desired to increase, save all the small corms, and these can be planted to grow on in succeeding years to make flowering bulbs. There are so many new and meritorious varieties now being placed upon the market that the grower who has a market for gladioli should make it a point to use these, for the advance has been very rapid and many of the new ones are far ahead of the older varieties. This flower has forged rapidly ahead in the last few years as a cut flower, and with the improvement now going on is bound to retain its popularity.

Callas.

The calla bulbs that were planted in pots during August should now have a fine start and should be placed in the benches or pots where they are going to bloom. Make the soil good and rich—it can hardly have too much manure to get the best results, but do not use too fresh manure, have it partly rotted. If grown in pots and the bulbs are large give them a good size, nine or ten-inch is none too large, and pot firmly. After potting give the plants a good soaking and then withhold water until the plants have obtained a good foothold in the new soil, when they will require lots of water. Place them in a house where the temperature can be held at 60° at night if flowers during the winter are desired. Keep the plants tied up that the bloom may have straight stems. When cutting leaves be careful not to cut too low or the young flower that is enclosed in the leaf stem may be injured.

Mignonette.

As the weather grows cooler, the mignonette will begin to throw the long spikes that are so much desired by the best trade. The plants should be carefully kept tied or held erect for if they get bent over the stems will grow crooked and they are worthless. Growers adopt different methods for doing this. Some grow them in wire rings similar to the carnation supports, others cut short brush sticks which they set between the rows of plants and still others run wire lengthwise of the bench and tie strings across, making a square around each plant in which it will stand erect. Other wires and strings are added as the plant grows. Keep the plants growing very cool from now on; a house at about the temperature of a violet house, that is from 36° to 40° at night, will produce the finest spikes of flowers. When the flower spikes begin to show keep the plants well disbudded, allowing only the center flower to bloom and all the side shoots should be cut off. This will have to be done very early with the first bloom that sets, for as soon as it forms, three shoots will immediately start to grow at the base of the flower; these should be removed as early as possible that the entire strength of the stalk can go into the terminal flower.

Convention Garden at Houston.

We present herewith portrait of C. L. Brock, superintendent of parks of the city of Houston, who on the recommendation of R. C. Kerr, of that city, President Welch has appointed superintendent of the Houston convention garden in connection with the annual meeting of the Society of American Florists in 1916. Mr. Kerr writes as follows, referring to Mr. Brock and the convention garden work:

"Mr. Welch is making the appointment this year a little in advance as conditions in the south for planting are such as to justify an early beginning. I consider this of great advantage to the convention garden as we will have more time to work up our exhibits and give it more publicity. Mr. Brock's experience covers a period of many years. He is superintendent of the parks of the city of Houston, which has tracts of land that are now being laid out and when complete will make Houston the southern city of parks. Mr. Brock has displayed wonderful ability in handling this work. He has a large force of men at work which is accomplishing great results. We are fortunate in having in our midst such a man to handle this work. Our plans at present are to outline about 20 acres which are ideally laid out, having already natural lakes and natural drainage that make this an ideal place for the convention garden. Mr. Brock is now getting busy on his plans and more than likely will enroll as assistant Mr. Kessler of St. Louis, Mo., who is working in conjunction with Mr. Brock in laying out the other parks. He is a man of national reputation for work of this kind. Exhibitors who anticipate making a display at the convention should write Mr. Brock or myself immediately for full information."

WEBSTER, MASS.—John Larsen and Edward Gustafson, formerly of Cromwell, Conn., have purchased the greenhouse of E. C. Reibe and will take over the business at once.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo.—The most elaborate display of cut flowers ever shown in this city was exhibited September 24, the occasion being the formal opening of the new store of the Charles H. Heer Dry Goods Company. The Stokes Floral Company furnished the floral decorations for the tea room, rest rooms, reception rooms and offices.

Chicago Florists' Club.

One of the largest gatherings in the history of the Chicago Florists' Club was that of Thursday evening, October 7, on the occasion of the great amalgamation banquet of that organization and the Cook County Florists' Association, held at the Hotel LaSalle, when considerably more than 100 members sat down for the feast. The tables were handsomely decorated for the occasion with fine samples of the Mrs. Chas. Russell rose from French & Salm, Union Grove, Wis., and a variety of choice hardy perennials from Vaughan's Nurseries at Western Springs. The occasion was one of great rejoicing on all sides, every one present brimming over with merriment and good fellowship. There was some music on the cabaret order, but this was not half so sweet to the ears of those in attendance as the warmth and enthusiasm shown in the congratulatory terms of the various addresses. H. N. Bruus was master of ceremonies and called on Alex. Henderson to officiate as toastmaster. After reading a letter regretting the inability of E. G. Hill to attend, as he had not yet returned from the San Francisco convention trip, Mr. Henderson called on President Keimel, who had for his subject "Benefits of the Florist Club to the Trade." W. N. Rudd spoke for the Horticultural Society, requesting his hearers to lend all their aid in making a success of the coming show at the Coliseum, November 9-14. R. Salm gave a brief account of the Mrs. Chas. Russell rose which decorated many of the tables. P. J. Foley urged the members to hurry up and secure for the club a representative on the board of directors of the Society of American Florists. Guy W. French referred at length to the coming flower show and how easy it will be to make a triumphant success of it if everyone helps a little. Leonard H. Vaughan told of his early experiences in the trade. Geo. Asmus eloquently described many of the leading features of the Fourth National Flower Show to be held at Philadelphia, March 25-April 2. C. W. Johnson, secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, detailed the plans of the great Cleveland show of his society, scheduled for next month. N. P. Miller presented an excellent address on flower show work. C. C. Pollworth and H. E. Phillpot congratulated the members on the occasion, telling of the good which comes of unity in trade organizations. R. Brenton spoke on flower show publicity and A. T. Pyfer addressed the audience on carnations. Mr. Phillpot journeyed all the way from Winnipeg, Man., and Mr. Pollworth from Milwaukee, Wis., to be present on this occasion. August Poehmann was unable to attend on account of an accident to his auto on the way in from Morton Grove, the mishap, however, not otherwise serious.

At the brief business meeting which preceded the banquet the following were elected members: Otto Amling, Herbert A. Amling, Ernest C. Amling, Maywood; August A. Traeger, Bellville, and John A. Evans, Richmond, Ind. Applications for membership included Clarence B. LeMer, 3656 Ogden avenue; Peter W. Hoefelder, 3720 Ward street, and F. J. Littleford, Downers Grove. The proposition to enter a team in the Mercantile Bowling League was referred to Allie Zech, chairman of the sports committee, as was invitation of Cleveland bowlers.

Painting Yellow Pine and Cypress.

In answer to a question as to why paint does not wear well or remain firm on yellow pine and cypress when used on exteriors of buildings the Painters' Magazine in a recent issue, offers the following:

Yellow pine is of very sappy or resinous nature and wherever the direct sun strikes the exposed painted surface it draws the sap, which is bound to throw off the paint unless it is specially prepared to withstand the action or direct sunlight. When the pitch or sap is not plentiful and the wood well seasoned, coating it with shellac varnish before painting will in most cases hold back the sap, but the best precaution is to omit the use of shellac varnish and use instead a priming composed of equal parts by weight of white lead in oil (kag-lead) and dry red lead, also pure, beating this mixture up with two parts by measure of pure raw linseed oil and one part pure turpentine, using no drier whatever, as the red lead will act as such. When well mixed, strain through a sieve and apply on the same day as it is mixed. Have this priming of the consistency of thin paint and rub well into the wood. If the pink tint given by the red lead is objectionable, add a little lampblack. Mix your next coat stout if made from white lead and oil, but rub it out well.

We would suggest a similar mixing for the priming coat for cypress as that recommended for the yellow pine, with this difference, however: that the white lead in oil and dry lead mixture be thinned with six parts by measure of raw linseed oil, three parts of turpentine and one part of 90 per cent coal tar benzol, holding the paint fairly thin and rubbing in well. Then follow with stout paint, rubbed out well.

HUTCHISON, KAN.—John Stamm, who has been engaged in the florist business here for a number of years, has sold his range to Fay Smith and Leonard Marston. The latter will be the active manager.

Fourth National Flower Show.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 25-APRIL 2, 1916.

Chairman George Asmus of the national flower show committee has called a meeting of this committee to be held Tuesday, October 19, at 10 a. m., at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Philadelphia, Pa. At this meeting the schedules of the American Rose Society, the American Sweet Pea Society, the American Carnation Society and the American Gladiolus Society will be completed and other business relating to the show transacted. On the day previous to the meeting members of the national flower show committee anything which will advance horticultural interests. As the second preliminary schedule will go out shortly after the meeting of the national flower show committee, donors of special prizes should communicate their wishes to the secretary without delay.

The all important business of selection of a design for the show poster has been taken up by W. F. Therkildson and his committee, and the result of their efforts will be presented at the forthcoming meeting. Some novel plans for publicity are expected to be evolved by this committee.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.EXAMINING COMMITTEES.

President Wm. Kleinheinz announces the committees to examine new chrysanthemums for the ensuing year as follows:

Boston—Wm. Nicholson (chairman), James Wheeler, Alex. Montgomery. Ship flowers to chairman, care of W. J. Thurston, manager, Boston Flower Exchange, 1 Winthrop square and Opjs street, Boston, Mass.

New York—Eugene Dailedouze (chairman), Wm. H. Duckham, A. Herrington. Ship flowers to New York Cut Flower Co., 55 Twenty-second street, New York, care of chairman.

Philadelphia—A. B. Cartledge (chairman), John Westcott, S. S. Pennock. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, 1514 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Cincinnati—R. Witterstaeter (chairman), James Allen, Henry Schwarz. Ship flowers to chairman, Jabez Elliott Flower Market, care of janitor.

Chicago—N. J. Wietor (chairman), George Asmus, Wm. E. Tricker. Ship flowers to chairman, 162 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Shipments should be made to arrive by 2 p. m. on examination days to receive attention from the committee. Must be prepaid to destination and an entry fee of $2.00 should be forwarded to the secretary not later than Tuesday of the week they are to be examined, or it may accompany the blooms.

Seedlings and sports are both eligible to be shown before these committees, provided the raiser has given them two years' trial to determine their true character. Special attention is called to the rule that sports to receive a certificate must pass at least three of the five committees.

The committees will be in session to examine such exhibits as may be submitted on each Saturday during October and November, the dates of which will be October 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and November 6, 13, 20, 27.

Due to annexation and the changing of street names the secretary's address now is 2134 West 110th street, Chicago. CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

will meet the chairmen and members of the different local committees to talk over details of the work of preparation for the show, and if any member of the trade has a suggestion to make, either in regard to schedule or anything else bearing upon the conduct of the show, it would be well to communicate with the management in order that it receive proper consideration. As all know, the national flower show committee is composed of members of the S. A. F. and O. H. located widely apart, thus being representative of different communities, consequently it is not possible to have frequent meetings, and this opportunity to bring anything before the committee at this meeting should not be neglected.

Preparations in general are well advanced, and a great deal has been accomplished. Space in the trade section of the show is in good demand, reservations aggregating in value $6,000 or more having even at this early date been made. It is expected that every foot of space available for trade exhibits will be sold a long time ahead of the show dates. The greenhouse builders, plantsmen and others have made early selections of locations, and but a few of the choicer blocks of space are left.

The committee is now prepared to receive offers of special prizes from the trade, and others whose business brings them in touch with enterprises of this character. It need not be pointed out that the publicity to be derived from our special prize list is worthy of consideration by all; and again, there should be some feeling of pleasure resulting from a helpful effort in of Convention hall this summer have, as Robert Craig says, furnished good subject matter for publicity for the show, and it is to be regretted that the approaching frosty season necessitates the withdrawal of the crotons, the beds of which have daily attracted thousands. Looked at from every standpoint, the fourth national flower show bids fair to more than warrant the slogan that it will be "The Greatest Horticultural Event of 1916," and then some more.

Chimneys and Boilers.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What size square chimney is required for a round boiler with a 26-inch grate and 9-inch smoke outlet, coal to be used? In case it is desired to add another boiler the same size would the one chimney be sufficient for both? Should an open expansion tank be connected to the flow or the return? In the case of a hot water boiler, 49 inches from bottom to top, does the top of the boiler have to be level with, or below the lowest pipes or coil? What difference would it make if the top of the boiler was 10 or 12 inches above the lowest heat pipe or coil?

A. H. D.

A brick chimney, 12 inches square inside, would answer for two boilers with 9-inch smoke outlets. For one boiler, a 10-inch chimney would answer and an 8-inch chimney might be used if hard coal is to be burned, by increasing the height of the chimney.

We prefer to run the flow pipes downhill and as this will bring the highest point in the system near the boiler we would then connect the expansion tank to the flow pipes, thus doing away with any necessity for air-valves. In a downhill system the expansion tank may be connected with either flow or return pipes.

The higher the returns above the top of the boiler the better will the circulation be, and while fairly good results would probably be secured if the pipes are slightly below the top of the boiler, better results could be obtained if the boiler can be lowered. To some extent the same result may be obtained by raising the flow pipes.

In case it is necessary to keep the top of the boiler well above the returns, it will be well to place the system under pressure by attaching a mercury generator.

Belgian Plants.

One of the trans-Atlantic steamship companies says, in relation to the exportation of Belgian nursery stock, via Rotterdam to the United States, that it had been advised by its principals in Rotterdam to the effect that such shipments of Belgian nursery stock are allowed to be made, the value of which is deposited before December 31, 1915, in England. Furthermore, it will have to be shown before British authorities that the goods are actually of Belgian origin.

Correction.

George A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill., kindly advises us of an error in our report of the floricultural awards at the Illinois State Fair. In six-foot dinner table decoration with accessories Mr. Kuhl was awarded a blue ribbon four days in succession, Charleston Greenhouses second and the A. T. Hey Floral Co., third.

Orchid Hybrids.

We are in receipt of copy of a new issue of Sander's list of hybrid orchids, said to contain all the known orchids of hybrid origin, their synonyms and parentage, this new edition bringing the work up-to-date. The book of 158 pages is substantially bound and interleaved with blank pages for memoranda.

St. Louis.

IMPROVED MARKET CONDITIONS IN SIGHT.

At last we have had frost and outdoor stock has seen its last days. Roses and carnations, in fact, all flowers had disappeared from the counters of the wholesalers by noon, October 9. Carnations were quoted at two and one-half and three cents and roses three to eight cents. Smilax and all kinds of greens were in demand. Chrysanthemums, especially yellow, brought low prices, but good stock sold at fair figures. Dahlias are about over. Violets are poor, the blooms being small.

NOTES.

Mullanphy Florists will move into more commodious quarters at the southeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets about the end of this month. The store is westward and trade is moving in that direction. The store will be decorated in green and gold and will have large and handsome show windows. A balcony will be erected around the store furnishing office room and ladies' waiting rooms. Below is a very roomy basement where the selecting of stock and the storing of supplies will be taken care of.

O'Leary, the Florist, had a large chrysanthemum wedding, October 9, the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. furnishing the chrysanthemums.

George H. Angermueller is now starting to display his Christmas novelties. He seems to have a greater supply than ever before.

Grimm & Gorly had special decorations at the automobile show including a parkway and sunken garden.

Some fine orchids, lily of the valley and roses were to be seen at C. A. Kuehn's.

E. L. Rogers has remodeled and painted his new wire design shop and reports trade good.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. received a large consignment of Boston ferns recently.

The stock at H. G. Berning's was tip top and included extra fine roses and carnations.

Richard Frow, of Normandy, will be cutting some nice chrysanthemums in a week or so.

COLD WEATHER CAUSES STOCK SHORTAGE.

Stock is rather scarce at present, owing to the change of seasons and the recent cold weather, which has been accompanied by frost and seems to show no signs of letting up. Roses continue in the lead with dahlias running a close second. Carnations and lilies are also on the market, but are not plentiful enough to supply the demand there is for them. Chrysanthemums are beginning to put in their appearance a little more regularly but the shipments are small as yet. Outdoor flowers are about all gone although a few asters and gladioli are still to be seen.

George McCallum is concluding a successful trip on the road in conjunction with Ross E. Adgate of the McCallum Co., and will return the last of this week to take charge of the supply department for the winter season. On his return he will move into the city from Allison Park and will take up his residence on the north side with his mother for the winter.

The deepest sympathy of the entire trade is extended to Miss McKinley of Randolph & McClements, who has lately lost her mother.

CLUB MEETING.

At the florists' club meeting, October 7, the usual number put in an appearance and many live points of business were disposed of in good order. The committee in charge of the proposed flower exhibit, which was to have been held in the galleries of the Milwaukee Art Society some time next month, reported having interviewed most of the east side retailers and as the arrangements as planned by the Art Society were practically to be completely shouldered by said retailers, lack of space barring growers and wholesalers, the project for the present was abandoned. The judges of the 1915 Wisconsin state fair, all members of this club, in their report suggested that the chair appoint a committee of three growers, one retailer and one wholesaler, to completely revise the premium list on plants and cut flowers and report at the November meeting so work in form of co-operation with the Wisconsin state board of agriculture could be started soon to make the display more creditable and extensive at future fairs. The committee consists of Nic Zweifel, A. G. Kellner, J. Livingstone, C. C. Pollworth and H. V. Hunkel, with the latter as chairman. Letters from the general and bowling committees of the Cleveland flower show were read and from present indications Milwaukee will be fairly well represented which will include some of our crack bowlers. Detroit, please take notice. Mr. Spinti, of the firm of Kamp & Spinti Floral Co., of North Milwaukee and E. H. Kneif, 1905 Vliet street, were proposed for membership. The entertainment committee was instructed to arrange some kind of a social affair for the ladies in the near future.

C. B. Whitnall has volunteered to give us an illustrated talk, the topic to be announced later, and undoubtedly it will take place at the November meeting. At a later meeting, probably in December, Wm. Kennedy, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., will entertain with an illustrated talk on his recent visit through the west, including the Panama-Pacific and San Diego expositions.

NOTES.

Wm. Edlefsen, of Lorane, Oregon, accompanied by his wife, arrived in this city to make a prolonged visit with relatives and friends. Mr. Edlefsen is one of the pioneer florists of Milwaukee, who is now enjoying the fruits of his labor on a beautiful homestead near the Pacific coast. Even though he will be 70 next January, he seems to grow younger in looks and actions, a sure sign that the western air fully agrees with him.

G. F. Baerman, who a short time ago suffered the total loss of his grain, being destroyed by fire caused by an electrical storm, is confined to his bed with pneumonia.

Boston:

PRICES ABOVE THE AVERAGE.

During the past week there has been a shortage of flowers and consequently prices have ranged above the average for this time of year. Every day the market cleans up much to the satisfaction of the growers who are fortunate enough to be in crop. Carnations are very scarce and nearly any kind of flower brings $4 per 100, the demand being, however, for white varieties. Roses have been selling well also, from $4 per 100 up being the average price. Every variety finds a good market, but Hadley, Russell and Ophelia are the most popular. Chrysanthemums have commenced their season. Golden Glow, October Frost, Smith's Advance, Polly Rose and Unaka comprise the bulk of the shipments. They all find a very good market, $1 to $3 per dozen being received for first class stock. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are about the only kinds of stock which are still plentiful. There is a fine lot of Boston ferns being shipped to the markets now. They find very good demand. Business conditions, both wholesale and retail, have been very satisfactory and from all appearances a good fall trade is predicted.

NOTES.

Henry Zum Brunnen, of Anburndale, has commenced cutting his crop of chrysanthemums. He has very fine flowers of Unaka and Golden Glow; in fact, the best that have been seen in Boston this season.

George Hannon, of Dorchester, is able to be up after a 14 weeks' siege with inflammatory rheumatism. He is sending to B. A. McGinty, at the Co-Operative Market, a fine lot of Boston ferns.

Norris Comley, of Burlington, Mass., is cutting some remarkably fine roses. It is an interesting fact that the first heat he has had in the houses was this week and he sprays but once a week.

Joseph Fay has severed his connection with Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., after 15 years of service with the firm.

The Boston Co-Operative Flower Market will hold its annual meeting October 30.

In the bowling league, Bresnahan of the C. & R. team has the high pinfall record with a total of 335 for three strings. The team standing is as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Carbone	4	0
Galvin	4	0
C. & R.	3	1
Co-operative Market	3	1
Robinson Co.	1	3
Wax Bros.	1	3

TRADE ENJOYS WEEK OF ACTIVITY.

The past week has been one of activity among the retail trade, with weddings, dinners and funeral work, the latter playing a very important part in the week's business. Stock has been fair in supply and quality. Roses and dahlias are plentiful, but chrysanthemums and carnations are very scarce, with the quality poor. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias are good and find a ready sale.

NOTES.

The florists of this city and vicinity were very much surprised last week when it was announced that Joseph Streit, who for over 13 years had been superintendent for S. A. Anderson at his greenhouses, had decided to engage in business for himself and remove from Buffalo. Mr. Streit, or Joe, as every one knows him, has formed a partnership with Michael Bloy, of Detroit, Mich. They will have a range of houses for growing general stock as in Buffalo, which Joe will run, while Mr. Bloy will take care of the store, which is a fast increasing part of the flourishing business already established by Mr. Bloy. What is Buffalo's loss is Detroit's gain, for Joe will set a pace among the growers, bowlers or members of the florists' club that will keep all busy to follow up. His activity in everything for the benefit of all in floriculture was noted in this city and he will be greatly missed. The best wishes of all are with him in his new venture.

Wedding bells again pealed forth their music in the vicinity of S. A. Anderson's store, on Saturday, October 2, at 5 p. m., when Charles R. F. Felton, artist and decorator with S. A. Anderson, was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony. The charming lady, who has cast her lot with Charlie's, was Miss Mary Dawson. The wedding was a quiet one, only those absolutely necessary for the occasion being present, namely, the minister, Rev. Dr. Ross, one bride, one groom, one maid of honor, one best man, one automobile, a dinner for four at the Iroquois, and a trip for two to Cleveland, the "Sixth City." The happy couple will be at home, at 984 Elmwood avenue, after October 15. Congratulations from the florists are extended to the happy couple.

All stores on Main street have re-decorated their places and they are now the brightest and most attractive stores that can be found in any city.

TRADE BOOMS AS COLD WEATHER ARRIVES.

As previously reported, business continues to boom, and the cool weather is putting the necessary "pep" into all lines—cut flowers, plants and supplies. The frosts reported at various sections throughout the northern part of Ohio have failed to entirely eliminate outdoor stock, as witness the continued arrival of gladioli, asters, dahlias, larkspurs, lilac, monkshood flowers, gailardias and a few cosmos. Carnations are arriving in increased supply and gradually improving in size and quality. A few early single violets are seen. Chrysanthemums in yellow, white and pink are becoming more plentiful every day with yellow predominating. Orchids are more plentiful, while lily of the valley and Easter lilies are short of the demand. Roses are daily improving in quality, some extra fine Killarney, both pink and white, Shawyer, Sunburst and Wards, arriving. American Beauties still lead in popular favor, and the supply is just about equal to the demand. Southern smilax is used quite extensively, for fall decorations. Boxwood will soon be here. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

NOTES.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to C. J. Kirchner of the Kirchner Floral Co., 9005 Superior Avenue, who lost his wife, Friday, October 8. She died of tuberculosis after an illness of several years and was buried October 12 in Calvary cemetery.

G. R. Shearer, who has been with the Jones-Russell Co. for the past six years, leaves them to go into business for himself. Mr. Shearer was chief decorator and artist, making most of this firm's novelty baskets and art ware.

Visitors: John Walker, Youngstown, O.; E. J. Peat, Norwalk, O.; C. C. Taylor, Louisville, Ky., and Martin Reukoff, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

With the advent of cold weather, greenhouse men are demanding pipe clamps to repair split and broken pipes or wherever leaks are evident.

A farewell banquet was given Mr. L. J. Darnell, retiring manager of the J. M. Gasser Co., October 12.

Arba Fowles, of Oberlin, O., joined the force of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange October 11. C. F. E.

Cleveland Flower Show.

Among the many novel advertising plans being carried out by the publicity committee of the Cleveland flower show, is the use of the popular "poster stamps." These small stickers are reproductions, in miniature, of the poster cards used by the show and thousands of them are being added to the collections of the school children. It is the committee's aim to get the widest circulation possible of these stamps and a quantity will be sent to anyone, anywhere in the United States, upon request. The local growers and dealers connected with the show and all exhibitors will be provided with them for use upon their business correspondence between this time and the date of the show.

H. P. Knoble, general chairman, and Timothy Smith, of the admission committee, will confer with Superintendent Frederick of the Cleveland public schools this week to arrange for free admission of the school children on mornings during the show, beginning the second day. There are about 200,000 children enrolled in Cleveland's schools and the committee hopes to have each one take advantage of the educational features of the exhibition.

The private gardeners of Cleveland have become more enthusiastic than ever of the Cleveland show since the last meeting held at the Hollenden hotel. In addition to hearing a discussion of the plans of the premlum committee they were permitted to have the first peep at the Corrigan cup which arrived that day from the manufacturers. Eyes opened wide and there were expressions of delight at sight of this beautiful trophy, the largest and most valuable ever offered for a similar event in Cleveland. The private growers were unanimous in voting the work of the premiums committee satisfactory.

Permission has been granted the show committee to place bay trees along Euclid avenue from public square to the Coliseum entrance, during the exposition. Each bay tree will support a small card directing the observer to the show. The publicity committee expect to make this the most attractive and novel scheme of street advertising that has been used in the city.

The entertainment committee is busy with the plans for the varied entainment and arrangement of the business and semi-social program during show days. This committee is headed by G. W. Smith and his aids are, C. J. Graham, George Jacques, S. N. Pentecost, and F. C. Witthuhn. The rooms of the Cleveland Florists' Club, Hollenden hotel, will be the meeting place of the various organizations as well as the scene of many social events.

Providence, R. I.

MODERATE SALES OF MEDIOCRE STOCK.

Business the past week has been moderate, with several good days of floral work. Stock, such as it is, is plentiful, but nothing special is noted. Prices have been exceptionally good on all stock. Carnations, now that the asters are done with, are having a good call and the quality shows an improvement daily. Snapdragons will soon make their appearance from several of the growers. A few violets are arriving now, but the quality is nothing extra; the stems are short and the flowers small. Chrysanthemums are still moving slowly, with almost no demand as yet. The flowers are mostly small and of the Golden Glow variety. A few gladioli are still to be seen. This year the growers all seem to have a good stock of Boston and Whitmani ferns, and the call for them has been very steady, several of the stores running sales on the smaller ones that seem to be a success.

NOTES.

Mrs. Mary Conley, of the Updike Street Greenhouses, seems to be the only one that is cutting asters of any size just now. The quality runs very good, and she has no trouble in selling them.

A new greenhouse is being erected on the grounds of the Butler hospital, on Blackstone boulevard.

Swan Peterson, of East Providence, R. I., is erecting a new house on his place 20 by 100 feet.

AUTUMN BUSINESS OPENS WELL.

Autumn flowers with their bright cheerful colors seem most happily endowed by nature to relieve an otherwise rather gloomy and melancholy season. The general public of this city seem to be aware of the cheering effect of the gorgeous, colorful chrysanthemums judging from the way they are buying these beautiful fall flowers. Stock of all kinds with the possible exception of roses has been plentiful. Carnations are now of excellent quality but the demand is not very lively. Dahlias are still numerous. Bulbous stock is good this fall. Retail florists who stocked up on the colchicum bulbs report heavy sales. Florists here expect a brisk fall business until the first of the year and are confident that all records will be broken.

CLUB MEETING.

As a result of the favorable report made by the show committee consisting of Will Krueger and Ludwig Shiller, the Toledo Florists' Club at its last meeting voted to hold a fall flower show November 7-10. Since many of the local florists have decided to visit the Cleveland flower show which will be held immediately following the local show, this date was chosen so as not to conflict with the show of Toledo's sister city which has been working strenuously for success. A committee is now waiting upon those connected with the trade in an effort to create enthusiasm. This will be the first public flower show held by the local club. At this meeting the annual election of officers was held which resulted as follows: George Bayer, president; Harry Heint, vice-president; Arthur C. Kneisel, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Bayer has always taken an active interest in the Toledo Florists' Club, and has taken hold of his new duties with energy and zeal which promises a successful year for this thriving organization. A vote of thanks was extended the retiring officers for faithful work throughout the past year.

NOTES.

The Lindley Floral Co. threw open the doors of its new store to the public, October 9. The location on St. Clair street near Keith's theater is a splendid one as the beautiful store is passed by thousands of pleasure seekers daily. For the opening the windows were strikingly trimmed with many beautiful baskets, including gorgeous arrangements of King gladioli and flame colored dahlias, roses and lily of the valley. The display was admired by thousands. Miss Lindley, the proprietress of the new shop, was formerly employed at the Feniger Flower Shop on Adams street. Herself an able florist, she is being assisted by Henry Klunder, formerly manager of the Art Floral Co. until that firm retired from business, and recognized as one of the most capable men in the trade in this city.

Miss G. Winters, the able florist who has charge of the large houses of George Bayer is at Robinwood hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown due to persistent application to her work. Miss Winters is recognized as an expert violet grower.

Miss Patten has returned from a two weeks' trip to Atlantic city where she greatly enjoyed ocean bathing. While at the sea shore resort, Miss Patten had a narrow escape from drowning, but thanks to the ever present hero, she was saved.

A. C. K.

Frederickton, N. B.

After a cool summer with scarcely any warm weather, the harvest season is at hand, with weather conditions very favorable. The potato crop is far below the average, probably a third less, with prices on the local market of $2 per barrel and predictions have been made that the price will advance to $4 before spring. Spring root crops are generally good and greenhouse stocks are looking well. Carnations and chrysanthemums are just coming in. The demand for funeral work has been heavy, and asters which proved very good this year were used to excellent advantage in the designs. As we get most of our roses from Montreal or Ontario points, we notice that the old Bride and Bridesmaid varieties have been discarded for the Killarneys in pink and white, which when open are no better than the "dog roses" which as children we used to gather in the hedge rows across the sea. From our experience, the Bride rose was superior to the stock we are receiving now, when keeping qualities are considered.

The semi-annual exhibition held here two weeks ago was a great success, both financially and in the character of the displays, especially considering the war time disadvantages that exist in the province. In the classes for plants and cut blooms, J. Bebbington & Son were among the winners, being awarded a number of first and second prizes. This firm was also successful in the competition in the classes for vegetables, taking first prize for the best collection; also first for most popular potato grown in this section, namely Irish Cobbler.

OBITUARY.

George G. Goldbach.

George G. Goldbach, prominent retail florist of Lancaster, Pa., died at St. Joseph's hospital in that city October 6, aged 37 years. About 10 days previous to his death, he irritated a pimple on his arm, and soon after the member commenced to swell as the result of blood poisoning which caused his untimely death.

He started in the florist business in the eastern part of Lancaster about 17 years ago, at which time he built a fine range of glass, which he conducted in connection with a good retail business. This increased in volume until a down town establishment became necessary, and property was purchased at 141 North Duke street, where a conservatory and well-appointed flower shop was built and a thriving business resulted.

In addition to his wife and three children, he is mourned by a host of friends, for he was one of those rare characters who made friends with everyone he met and learned to know them. The Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Benevolent League, the Royal Arcanum, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Lancaster Lodge of Moose and the Lancaster County Florists' Club were all proud to have him as a member. The funeral was held in St. Anthony's church with requiem high mass and a very touching tribute to his sterling qualities as a man and brother was paid by Father Kaulh. Members of the florists club attended in a body and the numerous floral tributes, many of them unusually handsome, some being sent from friends in the trade from distant points, bore evidence of the high esteem in which he was held.

The business will be continued by Mrs. Goldbach, and the Lancaster County Florists' Club stand ready to a man to give her every assistance in its power.

SCHOOL GARDENS CONTEST AWARDS.

Ending perhaps the greatest beautification movement ever undertaken by the school children of any county in the United States, the judges in the Los Angeles County beautifying contest have filed their final reports, awarding a total of $8,000 in prizes to successful contestants. Inaugurated by the general committee as part of a campaign to beautify both the city and county for the reception of exposition-year visitors, 268 schools outside of the city of Los Angeles were enlisted in the contest, as well as 21 women's clubs and various municipalities. In each class, four prizes, ranging from $400 down to $75, with the addition of a grand prize of $1,000 for the municipality having the most beautifully decorated club grounds, which was awarded to Pasadena as the result of an ensemble of pretty school grounds, the East Whittier school also capturing the special prize of $400 for the best improvement in school grounds as well as first place in its class, and the Shakespeare Club of Pasadena won the $400 prize for the prettiest women's club grounds. A special prize of $25 was awarded to the Las Virgines school at Calabasas, where the teacher, Miss Mattie Wolfe, and her six pupils made a pretty garden in the barren foothill soil, regardless of the fact that the tiny workers had to carry water a mile to supply irrigation. Expenditures of more than $100,000 are estimated by the judges, E. H. Labee of Los Angeles, W. S. Kienholz of Pasadena and W. B. McQueen of Long Beach, to have been made by the competitors in the contest throughout the county, and in a number of cases included the erection of summer houses, pergolas and other garden features. As stated by the judges in their report, the benefit of the movement is inestimable and they have suggested in view of the small cost at which such permanently beautiful effects and educational advantages were obtained, that the work so auspiciously begun, be continued on a broader scale, and suggest a plan whereby every school in the county would eventually be a prize winner.

NOTES.

Charles A. Chambers of the Luther Burbank Co., San Francisco, is not only a horticulturist, but humorist and baseball fan as well. He is now propagating an infallible self-hitting bat, and is looking for the right kind of wood, which he will inoculate with fish oil from his golf fish which he is raising in Sweden and which have a tremendous kick in their tail.

The Broadway Florists are expecting large shipments of supplies from Chicago and Philadelphia in the near future. Dahlias, roses and chrysanthemums of exceptional quality were seen in their store this week. F. W. Nelson, formerly of the Washington Flower Shop, is now sales manager of this establishment.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. are making extensive improvements at their nursery. They now have one acre under path and are building two greenhouses, each 26 by 300 feet. The trial grounds comprise nine acres in addition to 15 acres used as sample grounds.

A. E. Hanson, who has been with Theodore Payne's store force, has taken a position on the road selling seeds and pushing the slogan "Sow Payne's Wild Flower Seeds and Help Nature Make California Beautiful."

Wright's Flower Shop is looking forward to excellent fall business. American Beauties and Killarney roses, with dahlias, water lilies and chrysanthemums are features at this store.

Mayor Sebastian has appointed a committee, called the "Lot Beautiful Committee," with owners of vacant property and convert such lots into rose and flower gardens.

The Darling Flower Shop reports the largest summer business in its history. Elegant stock in water lilies and chrysanthemums are displayed in the windows this week.

F. Lichtenberger is displaying some very attractive basket arrangements. He is also planning a big chrysanthemum display, when all colors are in.

Mrs. Johanssen, of the Johanssen Seed Co., who has been ill for six weeks, is recovering rapidly and will return to business soon.

J. W. Howell, the California Florist, formerly of Hollywood, is now located in commodious quarters at 702 West Seventh street.

The Pasadena Horticultural Society will hold its eighth annual flower show in Central park, October 28-30.

Local florists all report increasing business, and good winter trade is anticipated.

H. S. K.

Oklahoma City.

Florists report that business is very good. There is quite a call for wedding decorations and the transient trade is increasing steadily. Added to this, there has been quite a heavy demand for designs, both locally and from out of town, making altogether a busy week.

NOTES.

The flower show which was held October 8, under the auspices of the State Civic Improvement Association, was the finest and largest exhibition of flowers ever gotten together in this state, and was visited by thousands of people. Furrow & Co. made a choice display of roses and cyclamens, and Mrs. Eager, of that firm lent very valuable aid in arranging the numerous exhibits. In the afternoon Geo. Stiles gave an interesting talk on flower culture and incidentally donated a dozen narcissus bulbs to each lady present. H. S. McClenahan gave a talk on rose culture. It is an almost assured fact that we shall have two, if not more, flower shows each year from now on.

Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., was here on his annual visit this week. Lon Foster, manager of Furrow & Co.'s store, took him as his guest to the Advertising Men's luncheon. Mr. Foster put up a job with the toast-master and Mr. Mott was duly called upon. He rose to the emergency, however, and entertained the company with a very witty address.

Invitations have been received for the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, which will be held in conjunction with the fall show of the Cleveland Florists' Club at Cleveland, November 10-14. The show committee in that city evidently have a "live wire" in charge, but distance will prevent attendance from here.

Furrow & Co. have begun to cut chrysanthemums at their Guthrie greenhouses. The Stiles Co. will begin to cut within the next few days.

Visitors: A. S. Gray, and Mrs. Effie Byington, both of Chickasha, Okla. Mrs. Byington is connected with the Chickasha Greenhouses.

Brampton, Ont.

UNUSUAL DEMAND AND SHORT SUPPLY.

This city, the headquarters of the Canadian wholesale florists, is experiencing trying times as far as the trade is concerned, due to the heavy demand for flowers, and since frosts have killed the outdoor varieties, the supply is far from sufficient to fill orders. Roses are the main crop at present, and while a short time ago they were so plentiful that they were sacrificed, at present the supply is limited compared with the demand. The cool weather is of course responsible for this, although it has helped the quality, which is excellent. Lily of the valley is good stock, with none going to waste. Chrysanthemums are two weeks late.

NOTES.

The Dale estate has added a number of rose varieties this season and the list now includes Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Stanley and Sawyer, all of which are doing nicely and meet with ready sale. Richmond, American Beauty, Queen, Morgan and the Killarneys are still the old standbys. Cypripediums and carnations are coming into bloom.

R. Jennings' place is in its usual good shape. Chrysanthemums are the main crop at present and are in fair condition, although a number of the early ones have damped off. At present Unaka, Crawford, Pink, Bergman and Golden Glow are being cut. Carnations show great promise and have a fair crop of blooms at present. Violets look good.

Wm. Fendley has a good supply of carnations and violets and will make heavy shipments from now on. Chrysanthemums and greens fill the remaining houses, and the outlook for good crops of these is promising.

D.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The annual dahlia show of this society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., Thursday, October 7. Some very fine exhibits were staged and the competition in all classes was very keen. The class for table decorations was one of the main features of the exhibition and brought forth eight entries, all excellent. R. Jones was successful in taking first honors in this competition, with J. Adler, second and Harry Jones, third. Among other prize winners in the various classes were the following: Mrs. W. J. Matheson, Huntington, (J. Kirby, Gr.); Mrs. H. Darlington, Camaroneck, (P. W. Popp, Gr.); Mrs. C. D. Smithers (P. Charbonnard, Gr.); Mrs. F. S. Smithers (V. Cleves, Gr.); Mrs. G. D. Pratt (J. F. Johnstone, Gr.); F. W. Woolworth (W. D. Robinson, Gr.); W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, (J. Robinson, Gr.); J. B. Taylor, Jericho, (G. Wilson, Gr.); J. T. Pratt (J. W. Everitt, Gr.); Mrs. J. H. Otley (J. McDonald, Gr.); Mrs. H. L. Pratt (H. Gant, Gr.) The judges were James Bell, Thomas Griffin and William Vert.

USUAL AUTUMN BUSINESS.

The demand is only fair, but the usual autumn work fills in any gap caused by slack business. Heavy rains in September finished the aster crop, and all outdoor stock is practically through by this time. Chrysanthemums are in moderate supply and quality.

The Wichita exposition and wheat show, Oct. 4-15, has a splendid display of farm and orchard products. The apple, wheat, and corn displays are very extensive and of fine quality. Canada, the Wolf river country, and other districts outside the state, have large and elaborate displays. Chas. P. Mueller is a member of the board of directors of the exposition. He has charge of the decorations, both for the exposition buildings and the principal business streets, and has certainly handled the job very well indeed.

Double the floor space, modern front, central sky-light, equally good location and less rent, presented a moving proposition to W. H. Culp & Co., which they accepted, and are now located at 139 North Main street, directly across the street from their old stand.

W. H. C.

Minneapolis, Minn.

Business has been exceptionally good, but there has been a shortage of stock in nearly all lines and prices have taken a jump in consequence. Several of the stores report telegraph orders in many instances not filled, the answer being, "stock all sold."

The Minneapolis Florists' Club held its meeting at the L. S. Donaldson Co.'s greenhouses, October 5. There were about 50 members in attendance. At the election of officers, the following were chosen to serve for the ensuing year: J. G. Taylor, president; Hugh Will, vice-president; A. S. Rice, treasurer; Wm. Vasatka, secretary. The trustees are R. N. Rudlinger, Cal Rice, Max Kaiser and W. D. Desmond.

American Carnation Society.

A meeting of the board of directors will be held at Cleveland, O., Friday, November 12. The Cleveland Florists' Club rooms in the Hollenden hotel will be placed at our disposal and the meeting will be called at 4:00 p. m. Any of our members who happen to be in Cleveland at that time, are invited to be present.

A. F. J. BAUR, Sec'y.

Chicago Grand Floral Festival.

The regular meeting of the executive committee of the Chicago Grand Floral Festival was held at the Hotel Morrison, October 7, A. Henderson, W. N. Rudd, W. J. Keimel, Geo. Asmus, Guy W. French, E. F. Kurovski, Arnold Ringier, E. Kanst, Robert Brenton, Payne Jennings, N. P. Miller and M. Barker in attendance.

Routine business connected with the coming exhibition, to be held at the Coliseum, November 9-14, occupied the attention of the committee the greater part of the afternoon and reports from chairmen of the various sub-committees showed substantial progress. Manager French announced that a large number of special prizes have already been secured and others promised. Arrangements are being made for extensive exhibits from the various park systems and plans for Robert Brenton's novel flower dance feature are going well.

The name of Prof. H. B. Dorner, of the University of Illinois, has been added to the lecture program, his subject being "Garden Flowers" with an extensive exhibit of stereopticon slides, and E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., has promised a talk on garden roses.

Exhibitors in the non-competitive trade display will be given one trade ticket good the first day of the show for each square foot of space taken.

E. F. Winterson has been appointed chairman of the trade tickets committee.

M. BARKER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

STOCK IS SCARCE.

Stock of all kinds is very scarce and the market has cleaned up completely every day the past week at an early hour. The cold weather had something to do with the shortage of stock, but the cleanup was due principally to the great improvement in business both in this city and out-of-town points. The shipping trade has been remarkably good and the city demand was never so heavy the past six months as it was this week. The retail florists have been unusually busy with wedding orders and funeral work, not to mention the many store openings, receptions, etc. One of the prominent loop florists is very enthusiastic over the business outlook for fall and states that his sales last week were very encouraging and nearly 50 per cent better than those of the corresponding week last year. American Beauty roses are arriving in splendid condition and the fancy grades are bringing as high as $4.00 and $5.00 per dozen. Roses of all kinds are in short supply and have advanced considerably in price with not enough stock to fill all the orders. Mrs. Chas. Russell and White Killarney roses particularly are in brisk demand and are bringing good prices. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful but clean up quickly each day at better prices than heretofore. Lily of the valley, orchids and gardenias are having good call and clean up well at good prices with the exception of imported orchids from the east which have been sold as low as $25 per 100 at times. Sweet peas are a trifle more plentiful but there is still a shortage in this line and the better grades are now bringing $1.50 per 100. Gladioli have seen their best days and very little stock in this line is being offered. The heavy frost last week killed nearly all the out-door flowers which have glutted the market for months and while everyone is glad to see them out of the way, some of them could have been used to good advantage this week. Lilies are scarce and the same holds good for carnations be any too plentiful in certain lines for several weeks to come. The supply houses report a big increase in business this week and taken all in all everything points to a very encouraging season and which will without any question be much better than last year. The Grand Floral Festival to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14, continues to be the chief topic of conversation in the market and the closer the big event approaches the more boosting one hears and from present indications it appears as if it will be one of the biggest flower shows ever held in this city.

NOTES.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association, 176 North Michigan avenue, has leased new quarters in the Le Moyne building at Lake street and North Wabash avenue, in which the E. C. Amling Co., Bassett & Washburn and A. L. Randall Co. are now located and expect to occupy their new home by November 1, 1915. The change of location was decided upon at a meeting of the board of directors held at of the best locations in the Great Central Market. Those present at the meeting were: Edw. Muret, president; Fred Schramm, vice-president; Chas. McCauley, treasurer; George Weiland, secretary; Anton Then, Joseph Schoos, Rudolph Ellsworth, Fred Strelow and Paul R. Klingsporn, manager. Manager Klingsporn says that they will have about 4,000 square feet of floor space, including the basement room, and that their lease reads for five years, starting May 1, 1916. The store is an L-shaped one with an entrance at 181 North Wabash avenue and 31 East Lake street, and is directly north of the store occupied by Bassett & Washburn across the hallway. Another wholesale concern is figuring on space in the Le Moyne building on the ground floor, further particulars of which will be published later.

Frank Oechsli, 4911 Quincy street, has his stock looking in splendid condition, particularly the poinsettias and cyclamens. The neighborhood in the vicinity of his greenhouses is rapidly being built up with modern flat buildings and it will be only a question of a few years before his property will be too valuable for growing purposes. Mr. Oechsli has worked pretty hard in his day and he can remember the time when he first started in business when he could look out of his front window and see way beyond Lake street, which is impossible now, for the territory north of the greenhouses is well filled with new homes, and the same holds good for the land lying to the east and south. Some of the people in the trade still have an idea that he is located in the wilderness, for a downtown florist called him up the other day and wanted to know if he would go out and cut him a few oak sprays.

A. Henderson, chairman of the Trade Space Committee for the Grand Floral Festival, to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14, 1915, is well pleased with the way the space is selling and it appears as if the retail florists particularly will be largely represented, for several of the leading ones have already signed up for space for booths and many more are seriously thinking of doing likewise. The other lines are also well represented and there is no doubt but what every foot of space will be sold before the doors open. When one considers that this is the great central market and that there is always a large number of visitors at the time the show is being held, it is a splendid chance to make a display at such a low cost of 20 and 30 cents per square foot at one of the biggest shows ever held in this city. Those who have not already contracted for space would do well to do so as early as possible, so as to insure a good location.

The Cook County fair, which was to take place at Palatine, October 14-16, will be postponed until next year. This decision was reached by the members of the fair association at a recent meeting though an injunction had been granted preventing the state board of live stock commissioners from interfering with the fair. At the meeting a committee was appointed to draft a letter to be sent to the state board of live stock commissioners and the state veterinarian, expressing willingness to co-operate in stamping out the foot and mouth disease.

John Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, is having a fall opening this week and has his place fixed up in grand style including his new conservatory which is completely filled with plants and palms. Orchid plants in bloom play an important part in the decoration and if anyone wishes to see a beautiful retail establishment one wants to visit the Mangel store this week. Mr. Mangel has spared no expense in making the decoration complete and has every reason to feel proud of the showing that he is making.

The Fleischman Floral Co. has a new card which it is distributing and bears the words, "Ask your friends if they can say this fast, 'For Fine Fresh Fragrant Flowers For Friends Fone Fleischman.'" This firm is still hearing of the splendid Japanese window display that they made and afterwards sold and sent to Florence, Italy, and if the people insist upon talking much more about it the firm will probably have to consider making another along the same line.

The A. L. Randall Co. is busy filling orders for Zvolanek's winter flowering orchid sweet pea seed, for which the demand is exceedingly heavy. The demand for lily of the valley in the cut flower department is very brisk, according to Eric Johnson, and while they are offering a good supply there is none too much to go around.

The trade is again represented in the North Chicago Bowling League by a rattling good team, consisting of John Huebner, Wm. Lorman, Allie Zech, Fred Price and Peter Olsem. The season opened last week when the boys succeeded in winning two out of the three games played.

Miss Cecile Muno, daughter of John Muno, and Henry Steffen were married at St. Henry's church, Tuesday, October 12, Reverend J. Ruetershoff officiating. A reception was held at the home of the bride when the happy young couple were showered with costly presents.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a busy week with an early clean-up in stock each day. Mr. Vaughan says there were more strange faces in his store this week than there has been in any one week before and it is needless to add that they were all buyers looking for stock.

Geo. Asmus, chairman of the National Flower Show committee, leaves for Philadelphia this week, where he will confer with the various committees engaged in the work of the Fourth National Flower Show, to be held in that city, March 25-April 2.

Louis Wittbold and D. B. Dulmage made a trip to Ottawa this week to inspect the big greenhouse that the Garland Manufacturing Co., of Des Plaines, has just completed for Davis & Steiner of that city.

George Wienhoeber is making some very attractive window displays at his South Wabash avenue store and it is always a pleasure to walk out of one's way just to see what he is going to show next.

The Raedlein Basket Co. will have a large display at the Grand Floral Festival to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14, and have the honor of being the first one to contract for space.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a good supply of roses and carnations, but the demand for them was so great during the general scarcity of stock that it was impossible to fill all the orders.

F. O. Franzen, 5319 North Clark street, will have two decorated automobiles in the North Clark Street Business Men's parade, Thursday evening, October 14.

George Kaspar, 4005 West Twenty-sixth street, had a decorated automobile in the business men's parade in his neighborhood, Wednesday, October 13.

Wm. Wienhoeber, of the Ernst Wienhoeber Co., 22 East Elm street, and wife made an automobile trip to Madison, Wis., this week.

Wm. J. McKee has accepted a position as bookkeeper with the John Kruchten Co., entering upon his duties this week.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a big call for the assortment of 50 tumblers for $10.00 that the supply department is featuring, and new orders are arriving each day. This department is well stocked up with goods of all kinds for fall and winter use and is particularly strong on ruscus and cycas leaves. T. E. Waters will have a big display of supplies at the store during the week of the Grand Floral Festival to be held in the Coliseum, November 9-14, in addition to the exhibit that the firm will make at the show. In the cut flower department stock of all kinds is arriving in splendid condition, particularly American Beauty roses and is cleaning up well each day.

Bassett & Washburn are gradually getting things in working order at their new store, and when everything is completed they will be in a better position than before to handle their ever increasing business. Mr. Washburn received an album of views from his business partner, O. P. Bassett, of Pasadena, Calif., which were taken on his automobile trip from his home to this city and return.

Percy Jones is handling a large quantity of green goods of all kinds and will have his usual large supply of boxwood to offer as in former years. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance at this house, but the shipments that are arriving are only a small part of those that are to follow.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have added a chrysanthemum grower to their list of consignors, which accounts for the increased supply of this stock that they are now handling and which is cleaning up well each day.

M. Pekarek, proprietor of the California Floral Co., 3402 West Twenty-sixth street, is the proud owner of a new Buick passenger car.

CHICAGO, ILL.

The Bohannon Floral Co. had its fall opening, Wednesday, October 14, at 57 East Monroe street, which was a great success, the store being filled with customers all day, who responded eagerly to the attractive invitations that were mailed. The establishment was handsomely decorated in Bohannon's artistic style, which was in line with the new fixtures and decorative novelties that were added to make the event complete. The many wedding orders that this firm was called upon to fill during the week of the opening made it necessary for the force to work overtime, and for several evenings the entire crew was on duty until nearly midnight.

Ignatius Wieczorowski, who has been engaged in the florist business on Best avenue and later at 932 Wolfram street since 1871, died last week at the age of 69. He was born in Germany and came to this country at an early age and worked at his chosen profession almost up to the time of his death. He was well and favorably known and had a host of friends in the trade in this vicinity. The funeral was held from the family residence Saturday, October 9, and the remains were laid to rest in St. Adelbert's cemetery. He leaves a wife and one son, Alex, who is engaged in the florist business here.

A. Lange and his large force of assistants were unusually busy at the Lange establishment Saturday, October 9, when the sales for that day were the largest since Memorial day. On top of the many wedding orders and the rush of transient trade, Mr. Lange had orders for nearly a wagon load of designs for the Marx funeral held at Lake Forest the following Monday. His heavy advertising in the daily papers during the past week no doubt has had much to do with the great increase in his sales.

W. H. Kidwell & Son, 929 East Forty-third street, had five beautifully decorated automobiles in the Forty-third street business men's parade held Thursday evening, October 7. Advertising blotters were distributed during the procession by the Kidwell concern and everyone who had the pleasure to attend the carnival will agree that their showing was the hit of the parade.

The Red-Bud Flower & Sweet Shop, which opened about a week ago in the Masonic Temple, is presenting their customers with a twelve-page booklet, with an embossed cover, which contains the Love Language of Flowers and is one of the most beautiful advertisements that a retail store has ever issued.

Peter Reinberg is still filling a large number of orders for carnation plants, and during the past week the demand was so heavy that he sold out in certain varieties. Business at the store the past week was very brisk and stock cleaned up as soon as it was unpacked at high prices.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg has returned from a business trip to New York where she called on all her violet growers in the Rhinebeck district and where she completed arrangements to handle her usual large supply through her local wholesale store at 158 North Wabash avenue.

Fred Wolfram left October 9 for Toledo, O., where he accepted a position with Feniger's Flower Shop. He had the order for the June wedding at Oak Park last week which called for a large supply of cut flowers, principally roses and chrysanthemums.

Rheinold Schiller, with Schiller the Florist, 2221 West Madison street, has returned from a delightful trip in the east where he visited a large number of the prominent retail establishments in all the leading cities, covering all told over 3,000 miles.

Peter Duris is back from a business trip to Detroit, Mich., and is seriously thinking of opening a new retail store in the loop district.

E. G. Hill, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., called on the trade here October 9 on his way home from the Pacific coast.

H. N. Bruns has been given a verdict in the Burbank case on the second trial, the first having been dismissed.

Edw. Amerpohl, of Janesville, Wis., was a visitor in the wholesale market this week.

A. Henderson & Co. are unloading a car of giganteum lily bulbs this week.

Visitors: Henry M. Burt, Jackson Mich.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOR GREENHOUSE STOCK.

Outdoor stock, for all practical purposes, now is out of the market, and the greenhouse stock is meeting with a better and more active demand than for a time and is bringing better prices. Chrysanthemums are now coming into the market very strong and include good assortments of all of the early varieties. Roses continue plentiful and sell fairly well. More good carnations might be used. Easter and rubrum lilies generally clean up each day. Other offerings include lily of the valley, orchids and a few single violets. The supply of green is sufficient for all present needs.

NOTES.

During the past fortnight C. E. Critchell has been getting in many baskets and novelties for his fall and Christmas trade.

P. J. Olinger reports a very active demand for his roses and carnations.

Visitors: C. P. Brunner, Springfield, O.; Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Walter Gray, Hamilton, O. H.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—The finance committee of the city council is considering an appropriation of $5,000 for the beautification of the high school grounds. H. A. Jencks, landscape architect of New York, has presented plans.

BUSINESS SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT.

Business has improved to a marked degree the past week, the "coming out" teas being now in full swing. These functions open up the social season, creating a demand for flowers, particularly the high grade stock, which is most gratifying. It has been "overcoat weather" the past week, the nights having been very cool at times, in fact, very near to frost. All the outside stock, save the dahlias, are gone and the supply of these showy flowers has fallen off so that the public is becoming weaned, as it were, and will scarcely notice their demise. All the roses have shortened up considerably. American Beauties are more scarce, even one dozen at a time was a prize on Saturday last. Until the weather warms up there will be a great scurrying for stock the next week or so. Carnations are now good stock and sell up clean; the quality is improving and so also is the price, which is one-third to one-half better than two weeks ago. The only plentiful flower appears to be the cattleyas, which are offered low in quantity lots. Lily of the valley is scarce, only good buyers getting what they need. Chrysanthemums are very shy as yet. Unaka, a pink, is in, and Early Snow and Polly Rose are expected this week, as is fall cosmos, which has a week or 10 days of popularity just before the killing frosts. Autumn leaves are now to be had in good color and are largely used in window and store decorations.

NOTES.

The dahlia baskets of Penock Bros., exhibited at the last meeting of the florists' club, with their method of display seemed just like a section of their window. A special vote of thanks was given them. W. A. Manda's giant dahlias were a splendid feature and much appreciated by the members. The new essay committee have something new in store. Debates and real live questions "hot off the griddle" are to put new life into the meetings. Everybody come and get in the game.

The plant men are working overtime, getting out orders, particularly for out of town customers, who want their stock in transit before danger of frost.

The Joseph Heacock Co. reports an unusual run on kentias, more stock going out and future orders received than ever before experienced. They are cautioning their local trade to order ahead for this season's needs before it is too late.

Dahlias are still a feature with the Leo Neissen Co., although frost is expected at any time. American Beauties are leaders, the stock of the coming winter promising to be very large.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Exchange is handling some very choice Killarney Brilliant from Wm. A. Leonard, of Lansdowne, Pa. Orchids and gardenias are also specialties.

Edward Reid is very optimistic about the coming season, seeing signs of great prosperity. American Beauties, lily of the valley and cattleyas are features here.

A number of good wedding orders were handled the past week, at which the decorations were quite elaborate.

MARKED TRADE IMPROVEMENT NOTICEABLE.

All florists have found a marked improvement in business during the past two weeks, due largely to the beginning of the social season, in which weddings now figure largely. Garden flowers are still a factor, owing to the holding off of frost. Gladioli and dahlias have about run their course and there is a scarcity of flowers with which to replace them. Chrysanthemums are very tardy, practically all growers having timed their blooming for a later date than usual, making the demand for them strong and prices are high. Carnations are still in their first cutting and rather inferior. They command from 50 cents to 60 cents a dozen. The demand for roses exceeds the supply, and florists shops are kept well cleaned up. Violets are coming into market. Paper White narcissus,

ALL STOCKS SELL WELL.

While a number of retailers reported rather dull business during the past week, there was considerable activity in the wholesale district on account of a light supply of stock. Excepting chrysanthemums, which are arriving in greater numbers than a week ago, and orchids, which are in fair supply, every greenhouse stock is scarce. There is a fair supply of dahlias and they are selling well, first class stock selling up to $3 and $4 per 100. As stated, there is a fair supply of orchids but prices are advancing. Good lily of the valley has sold as high as $6 per 100, and indications are that the price may remain high for some time to come. While it is believed that there is yet a fair supply of pips in cold storage in this country, the uncertainty of future arrivals from abroad is causing those who have a supply to handle them carefully. The demand for American Beauty roses has not been heavy up to this time and the supply seems to be about equal to the demand. On October 9, several wholesalers who are usually well supplied with tea roses, were cleaned out before noon. The supply of carnations is not only light, but much of the stock is short and otherwise inferior, but it sells well, in fact, everything that has a passable blossom is selling. One hardened old buyer says, "they are selling lots of weeds." Granted that the public is not buying heavily, it must be remembered that every retail store must keep a stock, and in addition to the stores of this city, many buyers from neighboring cities and towns must be supplied.

October 11.—The market is active. Though there was an increase in the supply of chrysanthemums, they sold out well. The shortest tea roses are bringing $2 and $3 per 100 and special stock, in some varieties, is going as high as $12 per 100. Some selected American Beauties have sold for $30 per 100, but $25 is the average. Cattleya orchids, select, run from $35 to $40 per 100; oncidiums from four to five cents per flower. Carnations of any passable quality range from $1 to $3 per 100. There are very few gardenias on the market, but the few that are sell for from $2.50 to $3 per dozen. The weather is clear and bracing and the outlook is encouraging.

NOTES.

We are in receipt of the announcement that Riedel & Meyer, formerly of the firm of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, severed their connection with that firm October 1, and are now located in their new establishment, 49 West 28th street, fully prepared to offer the same unflinching service that has marked their efforts in the past. In this connection and with reference to an article that appeared in these columns, issue of October 2, we have been requested by Meyer Othile to make the statement that he was a partner and not an employe of the firm of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer.

On October 9, Myer, the Madison avenue and 58th street retailer, had seven wedding decorations booked for the near future, one of which was the Johannason-Walmer wedding, which took place in the Plaza hotel October 11. For October 16 he has the Leland-Orvis wedding, which will be solemnized at Saratoga Springs and will be a notable affair.

The Macniff Horticultural Co. has been doing an active auction business in boxwoods, rhododendrons, palms and hardy perennials and their auctions will continue on Tuesday and Friday of each week. They recently received a heavy shipment of Holland stock.

The New York Florists' Club met in its hall in the Grand Opera house building on the evening of October 11, President Bunyard in the chair. There was a good attendance and the meeting was interesting. Appropriate resolutions on the deaths of Samuel Thorne, L. W. Kervan and Edwin Lonsdale were read and adopted.

F. R. Pierson spoke for the flower show committee for the show to be held in this city in the spring of 1916. He reported progress and urged that efforts be made to secure special premiums and was optimistic relating to the ultimate success of the show. Trade space to the amount of nearly $10,000 has already been sold. A. L. Miller moved that a special committee be appointed to solicit special premiums.

A. M. Henshaw reported for the committee recently appointed by President Bunyard on transportation to the Cleveland flower show. The report was referred back to the committee with power to act. Advices were received from the Cleveland committee that there will be a bowling match at the time of the show. Cleveland extends a general invitation to everybody to attend the show.

Edward McCauley, of James Weirs, Inc., Brooklyn, was proposed for membership and Peter Gerlaid, New York, and A. S. Baldwin, Madison, N. J., were received as members of the club.

SUPPLY FALLS SHORT OF REQUIREMENTS.

Demand for stock was exceedingly heavy the last week, and the market was unable to meet the call. All stock was of exceptionally fine quality and brought good prices, roses selling from $1.50 per dozen up, chrysanthemums at $4 to $7 per dozen and carnations quoted from 75 cents to $1.50. The Royal stock show failed to benefit the trade to any appreciable extent, but funeral orders and decorative work was plentiful, and with cut flower orders for social events, everybody was kept busy. The first frost arrived last week, and as it was heavy, everything in the way of outdoor stock that was not covered was cut down. The flower beds at Swope park were emptied before the frost came and the plants given to the public.

NOTES.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower and Plant Co. report stock as being very scarce, not enough to meet the demand. They are cutting some very good chrysanthemums. Pot plant sales were quite heavy last week. Among the leaders in popularity were some very good cyclamens with quite a few flowers, and they sold fast. Hayes Riker, foreman at the Kellogg greenhouses, has been visiting a number of florists, including Tom Martin, the fern grower.

The Alpha Floral Co. has started a new plan for the benefit of its employees in the store, whereby 20 per cent of the gross increase in sales over the corresponding month last year is divided among the clerks. The interior of the store has been remodeled and presents a very attractive appearance, and the automobile has just come back from the shop repainted and looking bright as new.

H. Kusik & Co. report the demand for flowers in excess of the supply. They are receiving some extra good long-stemmed roses, American Beauties being especially fine in quality. Carnations are scarce, while chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Henry Kusik has returned from a three weeks' trip, during which he visited points in Montana, Nebraska and Iowa.

T. J. Noll & Co. report supply of stock far short of the demand, but the local grown chrysanthemums are coming in better and are quickly picked up. Roses are improving in quality and have advanced in price, and enough carnations cannot be secured to fill orders in full. Shipping trade has been exceptionally good, several large orders having been filled recently.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. are cutting good yellow and white chrysanthemums, and are also sending in a limited number of pink. Carnations are coming good with long stems and some good roses are also seen. Funeral work is reported as being heavy here.

Adolph D. Mohr has some nice looking poinsettias in 4-inch pots, and he says his stock of Begonia Lorraine is the best he has ever had. They are full of buds and look like winners for the Christmas trade.

Miss J. E. Murray reports business at her shop very good, especially in funeral work. Among her recent orders was one for a casket cover, in which 750 Ophelia roses were used.

W. J. Barnes has been having quite a run on house plants, a strong increase being noted in the demand for ferns, while blooming plants have also moved out well.

Arthur Newell has received a shipment of novelties in Chinese and Japanese ware, which are proving popular with the trade and meet with a good demand.

R. S. Brown & Son are cutting good white and yellow chrysanthemums, Shipping Boxes For Cut Flowers

You want a light, convenient box that won't crush.

H & D Corrugated Fibre Boxes are light, stiff and strong. Their double wall, dead-air space construction keep your flowers fresh.

H & D Boxes can be shipped completely knocked down, saving freight and storage. Only a moment's work to set them up. Metal cover-corners snap together, giving you the stoutest florist's box ever made.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

An interesting and well attended meeting of this society was held Friday evening, October 8, in Doran's hall, Greenwich, Conn., President W. J. Seely in the chair. Several new members were enrolled on the books and four new names were offered for consideration at the next meeting. The fall show committee reported progress and an attractive schedule is being arranged and valuable prizes of cash, cut glass, silverware articles, cups, etc., are offered as premiums. The exhibition will be held in the armory at Stamford, Conn., November 5-6. The competition for the J. H. Troy prizes for the best list of 25 garden roses, submitted in writing, was not concluded at this meeting. The winner will be announced at the next meeting. A meritorious and interesting display was on the exhibition tables. Robt. Grunnert was highly commended for a display of cosmos, roses, carnations and a specimen plant of Begonia Golden Shower. Thos. Ryan received honorable mention for a dish of Strawberries Superb. Carl Hankenson was highly commended for a fine vase of Chrysanthemum Glory of the Pacific. P. W. Popp was awarded a cer-

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Lester L. Morse and O. L. Coulter are preparing to make an eastern trip soon.

SOME onion set jobbers at Chicago are quoting 50-bushel lot prices for March 1. Yellows at $2, Whites, $3.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, October 13, were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.75 per 100 pounds.

BURPEE'S sweet pea list is out, the novelties offered including Fiery Cross and two new Irish Spencers, the President and Hilary Christie.

ONION SET growers in the Chicago district are not so much alarmed about the keeping quality of the yellows and reds as they are about that of the whites.

EUGENE SCHAETTEL, representing Vil-morin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, is making a tour of the United States, calling on his firm's American customers.

ONIONS are now up to $1.50 per 100 pounds at leading growing points in the west. This price if maintained should stimulate the demand for onion sets the coming season.

CIRCULAR No. 29, issued by the Alabama State College experiment station, describes a successful method of hastening germination of burr clover by soaking and scalding.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Fire in the warehouse of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., recently, caused a loss of between $40,000 and $50,000. The damage was fully covered by insurance.

WE have received from Secretary Kendel a copy of the proceedings of the American Seed Trade Association at the Thirty-third annual convention, held at San Francisco, Calif., June 22-24.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. E. McKenzie, of the A. E. McKenzie Co., Brandon, Man.; Max Wilhelm, of the Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kans.; Robert A. Shepherd, of the Bateman Manufacturing Co., Grenloch, N. J.; N. J. Burt, of N. J. Burt & Co., Burlington, Ia.

FIRST liftings of gladiolus bulbs in the west indicate, on all moist soils, a shrinkage in the large sizes of probably 40 per cent below a normal season's yield. Continued moist condition of the ground has been further aggravated by a heavy growth of weeds shading the surface.

SIoux CITY, IA.—State Representative J. S. Michael has purchased the M. H. Hayden farm, a tract of 160 acres north of Leeds, for $24,000. Colonization of the land by granting free rent to persons who will erect permanent cottages on the outskirts of the tract will be one method by which Mr. Michael expects to improve the property.

Dickinson Leases Tract.

Record has just been made of a lease by the Albert Dickinson Company, from the sanitary district of Chicago of a tract of about eleven and one-half acres of ground on the main channel, west of Western avenue and south of Thirty-first street, for a term of 99 years from October 1 at an aggregate term rental of $309,925.

The rental is provided for at the rate of $2,300 a year for the first five years, $2,875 per annum for the succeeding 45 years and $3,450 annually for the remaining 49 years. On a five per cent basis of capitalization the property is given a ground leasing valuation of $62,600. The terms of the lease provide for the erection within seven years of buildings to cost at least $150,000, of which buildings costing not less than $50,000 must be erected within five years. The property involved comprises part of the leasing company's large new plant, which covers more than 70 acres.

Iowa Seed Dealers.

At the annual convention of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, which was held at the Iowa hotel, Keokuk, October 6, the following officers were elected: Geo. Kurtzweil, of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, president; Mr. Ouren, of the Ouren Seed Co., Council Bluffs, vice-president; A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, secretary; Hon. John T. Hamilton, of the Hamilton Bros. Seed Co., Cedar Rapids, treasurer. The different seed houses of the state were well represented. Some new members were added and general good fellowship prevailed. The matter of a weekly letter to members of the association was presented by Henry Field of Shenandoah, and the measure was taken up and adopted, the secretary being authorized to issue this letter which will contain information of interest to the trade, the different members reporting to the secretary each week. The gist of these letters will be weather and crop reports, legislative news, long and short stocks, etc. The members were the guests of and were royally entertained by Tallbott Bros. Seed Co., of Keokuk. The secretary is now ready to hear from the members.

Russian Embargo Formally Lifted.

Washington, September 23.—The formal agreement lifting the Russian embargo against exports to the United States has been signed by Secretary Lansing and George Bakhmetoff, the Russian ambassador. Russian goods will be allowed to come to the United States consigned to the secretary of commerce, on condition that the Russian government is given satisfactory guarantees that the merchandise will not reach her enemies.

American firms must give bond covering the value of shipments. If any part of such goods is exported the bond will be forfeited and the firm involved will be prevented from securing any further Russian merchandise.

The arrangement is expected to release millions of dollars' worth of goods to American importers held up since the beginning of the war. The agreement will cover practically all goods of Russian production or manufacture. Vetch and other seeds are imported from Russia.

Imports at New York.

The steamer Noordam from Rotterdam, Holland, October 6, brought large consignments of horticultural products, including bulbs, boxwoods, palms, arancarias, rhododendrons and some azaleas. What azaleas we had an opportunity to examine seemed to be in good condition. As much of this stock is handled by brokers and forwarding agents, its ultimate destination can not be here stated. Some local growers were disappointed in not receiving azaleas, but another shipment is expected before October 16. From the Long Island growers there comes serious complaint of recent shipments of bulbs arriving in a rotten condition. We learn that one grower called in the Corn Crop Damaged.

The corn crop of the country is perhaps damaged the worst of all. Much of the territory will turn out with an unsatisfactory crop, according to reports now coming in. Cool weather and rains during the summer caused slow progress in the growth and later frost came along with more cool weather and ended even a hope of more than a moderate yield of merchantable crop. The late heavy frost put an end to anticipation of a large crop of well matured corn. Some authorities are of the opinion that there may be marketed too much damp corn even during the winter to carry it safely in store, when the hot weather comes on next season.

Forty-first annual convention will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June, 1916

The third Tuesday in October is national apple day.

BALTIMORE, MD.—J. G. Harrison & Sons, nurserymen of Berlin, Md., have opened a sales department at 507 North Howard street.

OWN ROOT ROSES on the Pacific coast, according to E. G. Hill, have seen their best days, budded stock giving far more satisfactory results.

BURLINGTON, IA. — Clarence Bock, proprietor of the Sunnyside Nursery, will donate 10 prizes of $2.50 each in the early spring planting campaign in this city.

HARTFORD, CONN.—W. W. Hunt & Co. were awarded first prize by the Connecticut Fair Association for their exhibit of evergreens and shrubs. Diplomas were also awarded them for display of boxwoods.

DALLAS, TEX.—The city park board has 60,000 shrubs growing now in the municipal nursery at White Rock and 40,000 of these are large enough for use in the parks of the city and along Turtle Creek parkway.

Nursery Cultivation in 1915.

The cultivation of nursery lands during the past season has been an extremely difficult problem, owing to the unusual weather conditions and there is considerable difference of opinion among nurserymen as to the cost of the work as compared with that of previous years. Some comments on the subject are presented herewith and we shall be pleased to have others from growers of nursery stock whose experiences during the growing season of 1915 have been out of the ordinary:

W. & T. Smith Co., Geneva, N. Y.—The wet season has not increased the cost of caring for stock this year, and while it has been impossible to keep the nursery as free from weeds as usual, it has not been necessary to cultivate as often, and it is estimated that the expense has been less than in previous years, even though it has been necessary to use more man labor and less horse.

Andorra Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, Pa.—This has been the most expensive season in the matter of cultivation for the excessive rain during the growing season allowed the weeds to get a heavy start and the ground was too wet to be harrowed. This necessitated an extra amount of hand labor and much slower team work with a consequently increased cost.

Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass.—Including both cultivating and hoeing, the cost of caring for the nursery this year has been one-third more than it was last season. Should the present wet and hot weather continue for some time longer, the increase in cost will exceed the above figure.

Baltimore, Md.—The Franklin Davis Nursery Co. finds the cost of cultivation about the same during a wet season as during a dry one. While it is harder to control the weeds during the wet periods, more cultivation is necessary during a drought. This year's cost has been about normal.

Morrisville, Pa.—The Wm. H. Moon Co. reports that cultivation goes on incessantly at its establishment, and by reason of an efficient force, cost of cultivation this year has been, it is believed, less than in seasons past.

Sarcoxie, Mo.—With 29 acres under cultivation in 1915 as compared with 25 acres a year ago, Gilbert H. Wild says, that due to the unfavorable weather conditions, his expense was double that of last year.

Lake City, Minn.—The Jewell Nursery Co.'s reports of cost of cultivation this year, show an increase of approximately 20 per cent over the average, due to excessive rainfall and necessity of fighting weeds.

St. Louis, Mo.—The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. says they had to buy sickles instead of hoes for their men this year.

J. T. Lovett, Little Silver, N. J.—Due to the wet season, cost of cultivation was one-third greater than in normal years.

Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, N. Y.—This year's cost of cultivation was greater than in normal seasons.

War Food Exhibition In London.

Ever since the great European war started, there has been a number of people who have been afraid that there might be a scarcity of food in the British Isles, owing to the sinking of ships carrying food stuffs from neutral countries. So far, however, one would scarcely think there was a war at all, so abundant seems to be the amount of food that finds its way into every market in the kingdom, and generally at very reasonable prices under the circumstances. Notwithstanding these facts, the proprietors of the Daily Mail newspaper conceived the idea that it would be wise to encourage the cultivation of home-grown food on an extensive scale, and for this purpose inaugurated a great exhibition of vegetable produce. This took place September 22-24 at Royal Horticultural hall, Westminster, London, and attracted a fair amount of interest. Something like 20,000 entries were received altogether, but it was quite impossible to stage anything like that number in the space available. A vast amount of produce was sent direct to various hospitals, the most noteworthy being retained for exhibition. Six classes were reserved for collections of vegetables, and a special one for potatoes, while others were allotted to such agricultural products as butter, eggs, cheese, jams, honey and wheat. Something like £1,750 were awarded in prizes, but it must be honestly said that far finer exhibitions of vegetable produce have been seen in London and the provinces for one-twentieth part of the money. With the exception of the classes for private growers and market gardeners, the standard of the exhibits in the vegetable collections was decidedly inferior. Very few of the exhibitors outside the professional ranks had any idea as to what constituted a really good potato, carrot, parsnip, beet root or turnip, and in each of these groups were to be seen the coarsest and worst types of their kind. Great, ugly, monstrous potatoes as big as a child's head, and turnips and beet roots larger than a football were evidently the acme of perfection to many, while miserable, stunted and shriveled parsnips and carrots were in evidence in many cases. Of course, none of these had the faintest chance of winning any of the generous prizes, and the only educational value they possessed was as an example of how "not to do" things. A vast amount of public money has been spent all over the British Isles for many years past in horticultural education, but, judging from the Daily Mail exhibition, most of it has been wasted so far as allotment holders and cottagers are concerned. These are a most difficult class of the community to teach even the rudiments of good gardening, and the exhibition in question shows how much education is still needed.

There was, however, one bright spot that stood out like a beacon amidst this vegetable squalor, and that was the onions. It was simply astonishing to see what magnificent specimens of this lachrimatory esculent came from all parts of Great Britain. Ireland, curiously enough, seemed to be conspicuous by its absence, except for the presence of Sir Horace Plunket, the chief of the technical instruction department in Dublin. The onions were simply superb, and if those who staged them could only have attained half or a quarter as good results with their other produce, the exhibition as a whole would have been one of the most marvelous vegetable displays ever placed before a critical public.

The potatoes, too, in the farmers' class were a wonderful and beautiful sight, and I have never before seen such a fine clean, healthy lot of tubers on the exhibition table. The British farmer evidently knows what a really good potato is, and he does not now make the mistake of displaying the huge unshapely masses that used to be looked upon years ago as evidence of great cultural skill. Many varieties were exhibited, and the judges must have been sorely puzzled in picking out the dish of 20 tubers that took the £20 prize. This went to Richard Allen, Knolton Farm, Ellesmere, Shropshire.

As to the classes in which the real professional gardeners entered the lists against each other, there was the keenest competition, and that between recognized champions. Nine distinct kinds of vegetables had to be staged, and the judges probably never had such a stiff job before in their lives to decide the winner of the first prize. Indeed, after the most patient pointing and scrutiny they at first came to the conclusion that the collection put up by the gardeners of the Duke of Portland (Jas. Gibson, Gr.) and Lord North (Mr. Janes, Gr.) were equally excellent; but as no "dead heats" were allowed, it was ultimately decided that Mr. Janes was the lucky first prize winner of £100, and Mr. Gibson (his former teacher) second, by half a point less, for £25—rather a formidable drop between the first and second prizes. Each exhibitor put up a splendid lot of cauliflowers, potatoes, onions, leeks, beetroot, celery, peas, beans and tomatoes, which must have come as a revelation of the gardener's skill to the amateur section of exhibitors.

Generally speaking, the exhibition was well worth holding, and the promoters are to be congratulated on their praiseworthy attempt to show that there are at least thousands interested in the production of vegetables, even if they cannot all hope to attain the perfection so ably and conspicuously demonstrated by gardeners who have made a life study of the art of cultivation. Los Angeles County Hort. Society.

At the regular meeting of the above society, October 5, the speaker of the evening, Dr. A. D. Houghton, taking as his subject, "Begonias," entertained the members with one of the most interesting and instructive talks ever heard at these meetings. He started out with the remark that he could make a good speech on anything that he knew nothing about, and ended by offering to answer any questions as to nomenclature, origin, cultivation and propagation of the begonia. Many fine specimens of foliage and blooms were brought in by James McGillivray, and the speaker used them as the basis of his talk. He laid strong emphasis on the fact that the begonia was within the reach of all and more should be planted, bred and studied. He has compiled a card index, in which he has classified every variety that he has been able to secure data on, which is without doubt one of the best records of the begonia compiled up to the present time. At the close of his splendid address, Dr. Houghton was tendered a rising vote of thanks, accompanied by three rousing cheers. Frank Lewin, rose grower, of Hawthorne, staged a splendid display of buds which covered one entire table. Lady Hillingdon, Peace, Gen. McArthur and Killarney were especially noteworthy.

Jacob Dieterich, who was to have been the speaker at the September meeting, was present and apologized for his absence and offered his excuse which was sufficient. He told of some things at the Panama-Pacific exposition that the other members had not mentioned. He told of the royal welcome extended to the florists from the south by the S. A. F. and the excellent representation that the south in turn made with the new rose, September Morn, together with other varieties exhibited by Henry W. Turner, and Chas. Gittings and his new fern. The only new plant that the speaker considered wonderful was the double hydrangea, and of this he spoke in great praise.

Winfield Hale and Wm. Wagner were proposed for membership, the applications receiving favorable action, and on motion of Mr. Felgate, seconded by Mr. Taylor, Dr. A. D. Houghton was elected to full membership in recognition of his interest in the society since its organization.

GOODRICH
"GREENHOUSE"
HOSE

Try Goodrich "Greenhouse" on your next order! That extra thick, extra tough wear-resisting cover—compounded to endure by the world's largest factory, the factory that builds the road-resisting treads found on Goodrich Automobile Tires—is giving months of service where other hose lasts but weeks.

Then, too, "Greenhouse" is not readily affected by kinks, twists, sharp bends—that cause other hose to leak, crack, break, split apart.

"Greenhouse" is, in addition, flexible and easy to work with. It saves time in use. Withstands high pressures, too. Any length desired in one continuous piece.

Newark, N. J.

While the Newark retailers agree that the season has not yet opened, all of them find something to do in funeral work and counter trade. At Phillips Brothers we found business fairly active. Their store, having been redecorated, is now very attractive.

A clever feature at Henry A. Strobell's store is the profuse decoration with Hydrangea paniculata. Mr. Strobell grows the flowers on his own country place. They are very large and the finest pink and white we have noted this season.

John Crossley, who has summered with his family at Atlantic Highlands, is back home and we found him busy with funeral work. He is handling exceptionally fine carnations for the season.

At the store of H. C. Strobell & Co., we noted very tasteful window decorations with plants in variety, one novel feature being a beautiful variegated pineapple plant.

At the store of Aug. C. Begerow, Inc., there are always good features. At their greenhouses they have a good crop of carnations and other stock coming on.

The next meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club will be held in the Kreuger auditorium, Belmont avenue, on the evening of October 21.

McLaughlin & Murphy have been reasonably busy and are looking forward to a good season's business.

At Wolfinger's many fine features in plants and cut flowers were noted.

Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club.

The dahlia show of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club, October 5, was a success beyond expectations owing to the quantity and quality of blooms from the Sewickley section. The remarkable improvement in these flowers was commented on by everyone. It was practically a private gardeners' meeting as there were no store men present, except representatives from the wholesale houses. Orchids were also shown, of extra good color and size. George Wessenauer stated that he wanted to remind everyone that it was a gardeners' club as well as a florists' club by bringing some remarkable specimens and a dozen different varieties and enough of them to go around. He gave a very interesting talk on the spraying of trees and cited many instances of making fruit trees "come back" and bear fine fruit again. R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., of White Marsh, Md., was the only outside exhibitor, who sent a magnificent collection of dahlias.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND BALANCE.

With the passing of all outdoor stock, the result of heavy frosts, business has profited considerably, and greenhouse flowers, especially chrysanthemums are much in demand. Roses are a close second with the quality everything that could be desired and the supply adequate. Carnations are showing a healthy increase in production, and while the blooms are of good size the stems are still short, but they are meeting with an increasing demand. There is no oversupply in any line, the demand and receipts being about equal.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. had the order for a large number of corsage bouquets for the Delta Gamma dance at Ann Arbor last week. Roses predominated. Miss Mildred Flick entertained at a dancing party at which the floral features were pleasing.

A. J. Lanternier is showing some splendid Chrysolora chrysanthemums. Business at this establishment is excellent, especially in decorative work and weddings.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting very fine stock of Chrysanthemum Pink October Frost, the first pink variety seen on the local market.

FAIR AND EXHIBITION.

The horticultural features of the fair, which was in progress here September 27-October 1, were of a high order. Charles G. Roebing, president of the John A. Roebing's Sons Company, permitted his noteworthy collection of orchids to be exhibited in horticultural hall. The Roebing conservatories probably cover the finest private collection in New Jersey. In this collection is a white orchid, C. labiata alba, said to have been originally valued at $600. There were also valuable specimens of other varieties. Another interesting feature of Mr. Roebing's collection was the platyceriums, or stag-horn ferns. "Over in Jersey" they call them the "bull-moose" ferns, which may serve to keep election day in mind.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, R. I., who won a number of prizes at the recent dahlia show in New York, also made a fine exhibit.

Arthur J. Farley, instructor of horticulture at Rutgers College, was superintendent of the horticultural department.

Martin C. Ribsam, a well-known Trenton florist, made a fine exhibit of dahlias. A. F. F.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

At the West Michigan state fair which was held here, September 20-25, Henry Smith was awarded 14 first premiums in the classes for flowers and plants. A visit to his greenhouses shows the chrysanthemum stock to be in excellent shape, the number being in the neighborhood of 15,000. Cuttings of Golden Glow began September 25, and the start has now been made on Smith's Advance, consequently there will be no scarcity of chrysanthemums at this establishment for some time. Roses and carnations are being cut in good quantities. American Beauties are doing well and giving a good account of themselves. Ophelia, 800 of which have been benched, is well liked and considered a good addition to the rose list. Good business is reported.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J.—John Hunter, the veteran grower of this city, has gone to California for his health.

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J.—The annual fall show of the Merchantville Horticultural Society was held October 1. A fine exhibit of perennials, staged by Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., was a noteworthy feature.

TORONTO, ONT.—The public opening of Dunlop's new store, Eight West Adelaide street, took place October 7. There was a large attendance of the firm's many friends, and the high grade stock exhibited, together with the handsome decorations, attracted many new patrons.

Suggestions for Plant Growers.

Roman Hyacinths.

The early Roman hyacinths should be well enough rooted to bring them into the houses. These early bulbs will require a little more heat than those that are forced later, when more time is given them to form good roots. A plan often adopted by growers of early bulbs is to place them under the benches on the heating pipes when first brought into the house. When hot water circulation is in use the boxes can be placed directly on the pipes, but with steam pipes it will be necessary to place pieces of wood or other material on the pipes, at least two inches thick, to protect the roots from the intense heat radiated by the steam pipes, and the boxes carefully watched to see that they do not dry out at the bottom. Make weekly plantings of Roman hyacinths in order to keep up the supply of flowers. Place some of the bulbs in bulb pans—a few of these will prove very satisfactory for house decoration, and if not used for this purpose the flowers can be cut the same as from boxes. It entails but little more labor to grow them in pots and at times they are very useful as a pot plant.

Poinsettias.

The crucial period in the growth of poinsettias is now at hand, and if the plants are in good condition there should be no difficulty in bringing them through all right. Steady firing can now be depended upon to maintain the proper temperature. Until the bracts are well formed, keep an even temperature and while these are forming avoid all draughts as much as possible. If the house is kept uniform at 60° at night with a rise of 10° during the day there will be but little trouble with the leaves dropping, but a fluctuating temperature will surely result in plants with bare stems. As soon as the bracts form tie the plants to stakes so as to support the flowers and have the plants erect. As many of the plants are used for home decoration a neat green painted stick adds to the attractiveness. The early struck plants and those that are grown in benches for cut blooms will be greatly benefited by a watering with liquid manure. Do not make it too strong at first. Begin with a weak liquid once a week and increase the strength, but after the bracts are fully out discontinue the watering with liquid manure or the color will be affected. The small plants should be placed in pans at once, if this has not already been done. They can be easily sized up now to make a fine appearance—a taller one in the center and shorter ones on the outside of the pan makes the best appearance.

Lilies.

The lily bulbs will soon be here and preparations should be made to handle them immediately upon their arrival. There is no time to waste in order to have this crop in the best of shape for Easter, especially with the bulbs that are imported from Japan. Whichever way the bulbs are to grow, whether in 4-inch or 6-inch pots, it is necessary to have pots enough on hand to pot them all up at once, and a pile of good, rich soil all ready, so that there will be no delay. The rapid potting of these bulbs by some growers is done as follows: The 6-inch pots are placed touching each other and then filled about half full of soil, the bulbs are then placed on the soil and the pot filled in nearly to the top and watered. This can be done in this manner very rapidly and there is but very little handling of either the pots or bulbs. After the bulbs are in the pots they should be buried outside until good, strong root growth has taken place; the success or failure of the crop will mainly depend on having the bulb make good roots early. A frame that can be covered during excessive wet weather is the best place for these plants until they are brought into the houses. If the weather becomes very cold and severe the frames should be covered with sash or the beds have straw or some other protection thrown over them. If kept cool the bulbs will make strong roots before the top starts to grow, yet the ground over them should not be allowed to freeze or damage will be done. The giganteums for Christmas should now be growing nicely and the buds should show about November 10. If they do not appear by that time a little extra heat will be necessary to have them in on time.

After Chrysanthemums.

The early chrysanthemums are now through flowering and the space that they have occupied should be made of use by a growing crop. The soil in which they have been grown should be removed. It is very seldom that a good crop of any flower can be grown in the soil that has produced chrysanthemums. While it looks to be all right and often has much manure in it that the chrysanthemums have not taken up, yet our experience has been that the soil will not grow a succeeding crop. It is better to throw it out in a pile where it can be subjected to the sweetening process of nature. The stock plants of the chrysanthemums can be selected and blocked up closely together and the surplus stock sold, and the space made ready for a following crop. Many growers frequently ask what can be grown to follow chrysanthemums. It depends greatly upon what the trade demands. Where the early frosts are not severe, the single violets are left in the field and planted in the beds, but in the northern section of the country the weather is often too severe, the plants being badly frozen and will not recover until mid-winter. Plant growers will require the space for the growing plants and the lilies where planted early can be moved into the benches. Sweet peas make a good crop in these beds for spring blooming. If the seed is planted in pots in October and then transplanted to the beds early they can be bloomed in March. There are a number of annuals that can be profitably grown, such as bachelor's buttons, and stocks, or early blooming herbaceous plants like Canterbury bells, and Coreopsis lanceolata, which will give an attractive assortment of flowers in early spring.

John Mangel's Opening, Chicago.

John Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, had a big opening this week which was announced in a four column advertisement in the Chicago Tribune, October 18. The new conservatory, 40x40 feet, built recently in the rear of the store, attracted large crowds, for it is the only one of its kind in the loop. The conservatory is completely filled with foliage and flowering plants so arranged that the moment one enters the place from the store a full view is obtained; the same applies to the view one gets from the hotel entrance, and particularly noticeable are the many orchids which play an important part in the decoration. Mr. Mangel has spared no expense in making the opening a success and had his able assistant, John Canger, select many rare plants during a special tour of eastern establishments. Only the rarer things not obtainable here were bought east, but the bulk of stock employed in the decoration was secured from local growers. Another feature that is attracting considerable attention in the conservatory is the large number of birds flying about, some fifty African finches being purchased especially for the occasion. While the new conservatory is the main feature of the opening the store is also handsomely decorated, and everyone who had the pleasure of visiting the Mangel establishment this week will agree that it is one of the best and largest displays that a local retail florist ever made. The proprietor is well pleased with the opening, and says that this is one of the best October weeks he has ever experienced.

Dunne-Corboy Wedding Flowers.

George Wienhoeber, 41 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, had a large order for the Dunne-Corboy wedding at Springfield, Ill., Wednesday, October 20, which consisted of nine bouquets and a flower girl's basket. The bridal bouquet was made of lily of the valley and gardenias, the maid-of-honor bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley, matron-of-honor, Mrs. Chas. Russell roses and lily of the valley, and the bridesmaids' bouquets, Killarney roses and lily of the valley. The flower girl's basket was filled with miniature roses and lily of the valley and the color scheme carried out was from the lightest to the darkest shades of pink. The bouquets were very artistically arranged and attracted much favorable attention at the wedding, which was held in the church of Immaculate Conception at 10:30 o'clock. The bride, Miss Eileen Dunne, is the eldest daughter of Governor and Mrs. Dunne, and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Corboy of Chicago. It is over 20 years since the historic statehouse of Illinois has boasted a bride, and naturally the general public is greatly interested in the event. Southern smilax and baskets of pink and white roses ornamented the home, and the church was decorated with white chrysanthemums and palms.

Even though Mr. Wienhoeber and his assistants were quite busy with the wedding order and their regular trade, they did not overlook an opportunity to decorate their window for the national apple day, October 19, when a large basket of the choicest fruit obtainable was handsomely decorated and occupied the center of the window display, which was banked with foliage plants and neatly decorated with cut flowers.

The Chrysanthemum as a Cut Flower.

The Autumn Queen is here now in all her glory, and for the time being is the leading feature wherever flowers are used. For all kinds of decorative effects they are unexcelled, their brilliant coloring predominating wherever used.

For basket work or clusters for the "coming out teas" they are very effective. Choice ribbons add a touch of refinement and the addition of some of the small flowered pompons in contrast to the large specimen blooms in the arranged piece is always noticeable and causes favorable comment. Where the order is not restricted to a price, branches of highly colored crotons will add much to the appearance.

TABLE DECORATIONS.

Table decorations of choice chrysanthemums are brilliant and attractive, arranged above the line of vision in the center, and in low rose bowls at the ends, with bright hued autumn or croton leaves on the cloth, a beautiful picture is presented. Where a low effect is desired, choice blooms may be cut off short and just the flower laid flat on the cloth on a ground of leaves as above described. This effect is novel and pleasing. The formal plateau is nearly always acceptable and is very often the only decoration.

ELABORATE DECORATION.

For an elaborate decoration over a buffet table, or as well for a dinner, long stemmed blooms rise from a small centerpiece with a rather slender standard, widening gradually until they reach the ceiling, where they are attached and spread out to cover a space as wide as the table below. When well worked out this decoration has a stunning effect, calling forth words of wonder and admiration from all who see it. For sprays for funerals there is nothing more effective than the chrysanthemum. White, pink and bronze used in separate colors with autumn leaves are very appropriate. The addition of other flowers, where the ribbon is tied, such as violets or other small flowers, or pompons of the same color, add variety and finish to the bunch.

CASKET SPRAY.

The chrysanthemum is admirable for a double casket spray, or one large enough to cover the entire top. Two large sprays with rounded ends are made and joined together closely at the stems. Other flowers can be added here, such as violets and valley, and appropriate large bows of ribbon. These center flowers are best stemmed on sticks and stuck in, there being plenty of foundation for them amongst the stems of the sprays. This arrangement can often be sold where the more elaborate blanket is declined on account of its greater cost. K.

Heating Conservatory.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Can you suggest the most practical way of heating a small, flat roof conservatory, 30 feet long by 14 feet wide, nine feet high on one side and seven feet high on the lower side? The house runs east and west. The south side is a solid brick wall the full height, while the north wall is about four feet brick and the balance glass. The ends are also brick about half-way up and the balance glass. The flat roof is also glass. The thermometer goes as low as 15 degrees below zero. Would a couple of small gas stoves be practical where the cost is 25 cents per 1,000 feet?

Maryland.

F. M. R.

Just where and how the piping should be arranged will depend upon the location of the doors and boiler if the house is to be heated with hot water, as will be advisable if an even temperature is desired in windy weather. While it might be possible to heat the house with two or three gas stoves, there would be danger that the plants will be injured by escaping gas. For a temperature of 50 degrees, we would run a 2½-inch pipe on the south wall about three feet below the plate. At the farther end, connect three 1½-inch pipes to be carried back along the south wall to the boiler and four others to run across the end of the house and back to the boiler along the east wall. If there is a door in the farther end of the house, the main flow may be raised so that the pipes across the end of the house may be carried over the top of the door. They may be combined in one 2-inch pipe.

THE CARNATION.

Autumn Requirements.

The passing of summer to autumn, with its moderately cold nights and bright warm days, creates an entirely different condition for the growing carnation plants. Before the first of October, everything necessary to put the heating system in readiness for use should have been finished up. When the outside temperature drops below 40 degrees, a little heat should be turned into the carnation houses; just enough to hold the temperature of the house at 50 to 52 degrees at night and 56 to 58 degrees during cloudy days, with the ventilators open just a little to promote a free circulation of air and guard against the temperature rising above the required mark.

At this season of the year it is necessary to give the closest attention to every detail in caring for the plants for them to be successful producers throughout the entire season, it not being cold enough to keep up steady firing day and night, which is an easier matter than having to shut the steam off and on so many times during the day and night. Carnation plants do not require any coddling for them to make their best growth, but will respond to every attention that is bestowed upon them, so pay strict attention to the airing so that there will not be any sudden rise or fall in the temperature and the same applies to the watering. Any time spent in making an examination of the soil before watering is time well spent, as it enables one to water only the parts of the beds that are in need of it and gives the roots a chance to keep up their active growth, whereas when the plants are given water at the roots in a haphazard manner, some parts of the bed become altogether too wet for the plants' welfare. The aim should be to work along with the idea of getting the soil in an even degree of moisture, and when we get it into this condition it will take water freely and dry out evenly, enabling the plants to make a strong, sturdy growth.

We hear of many complaints about stem rot being so prevalent among the carnation plants this season, but now that it is necessary to fire up a little, creating a drier atmosphere, together with the cooler weather, there should be a let-up in the spread of this disease. When the disease has been so bad as to carry off large patches of plants, it is best to make arrangements to change the carnation for something else because a bench of plants, with a big number dying out, cannot be made profitable under ordinary conditions.

The one very important thing is to be sure and look out for insects on the plants and keep them in check. A great deal of the spotted and diseased foliage can be traced to the ravages of some insect pest, and now, when the plants are not over-crowded with flowers, is the time to attend to the fumigating so that no insect can get the upper hand of the plants. It seems hardly necessary to call attention to the work of putting on the supports for the plants as all of this work should have been attended to directly the plants had become large enough to have needed supports, but any of this work not yet finished up should be attended to without delay. Profitable crops of flowers cannot be turned out from plants grown naturally without supports.

Disbudding and rubbing out a few of the side shoots are other details of the plants' care that must receive constant attention from now on. Some varieties have a great many more side shoots on the stems than others; every leaf clear up to the bud has either a shoot or bud along side of it, and these should be removed down to the length of the stem required, but not low enough to rob the plant of its lower growth shoots. Remove the side buds as soon as they are large enough to handle.

Stigmonose on Carnations.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Many of my carnation plants are affected like the one I am mailing you under separate cover. Will you kindly tell me the nature of the infection and how it can be controlled?

Texas.

L. C.

The carnation plant was badly infected with stigmonose and had the appearance of having received a very severe check. When plants are lifted after continued heavy rains, the older foliage will dry up much in the same manner as the plant received; also, the long continued wet weather, which has been general over most sections of the country this summer, is the cause of a great deal of the stigmonose disease among the carnation plants. The new growths on the plant appear to be coming out all right. With careful treatment the plants should recover as they become established in the bench, but do not attempt to push them very hard; let them come along gradually, paying close attention to their needs as regards water and airing. After the new shoots have made a little more growth, pick off the foliage that is affected with the dry tips and spots. Bear in mind that close conditions are one of the causes for the plants becoming infected. Growers, who are careless with the field culture and allow the weeds to overgrow the plants, generally have this trouble to contend with after the plants are brought into the greenhouse.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Autumn Care.

With the cool nights that ordinarily prevail in October, the need of fire-heat becomes apparent, for without it the greenhouses are much too cold and damp in the mornings for the welfare of the stock; in fact, a little heat is frequently needed soon after the middle of September, just enough to keep a proper growing atmosphere for the plants, and steam heating usually proves its convenience at such a time from the fact that it may be cut off as soon as the sun gets high enough to warm the houses, and turned on again at such time in the afternoon or evening as may be found necessary. Night temperatures may run rather higher at this period than during the winter, for the plants are still growing freely, and more or less of the young stock will take a shift at this season to carry it over until spring. This also arguing for sufficient warmth to encourage free root action.

Speaking in a general way, it may be said that the pinnate-leaved palms, in the commercial list, are more inclined to keep on growing in the late autumn than are the fan-leaved species, the kentias, cocos and arecas keeping in active growth after the livistonas and chamærops have gone to rest for the winter, and it may be remarked that after a plant shows indications of becoming dormant, it seldom does any good to try to force it into abnormal growth with unusual temperature at night, and for this reason it is wasted effort to give strong heat to such palms as Livistona sinensis or Chamærops excelsa after the middle of November, a night temperature of 55 degrees through the winter being better for these species than the night minimum of 65 degrees that is frequently given to cocos and arecas.

Livistona rotundifolia is more tender than its relative mentioned above, and 60 to 65 degrees at night seems to keep it in good condition through the winter, for it must be remembered that this palm is an East Indian plant, while Livistona sinensis came originally from China and probably not from the warmest portion of the latter country.

Phoenix canariensis is seen in less quantity of late years, and so long as the war continues there will be but small, if any importations of this plant, the stock of imported phoenix chiefly coming from France and Belgium in former years. There is doubtless some place for this comparatively hardy palm in decorating the halls of hotels and large apartment houses, but spring palms are much less in favor for public places than the kentias, even though the latter cost more money.

The best kentia for a generally useful palm is K. Forsteriana, but the best from an aesthetic point of view is K. Belmoreana, its graceful leaves, with their narrow leaflets, being truly beautiful. Kentia Canterburyana, the third member of the kentia group from Lord Howe's Island, is very little grown commercially, from the fact its large seeds germinate slowly and the plants themselves take a considerably longer period for development than the other two widely known members of the family. K. Canterburyana is found on higher ground than K. Belmoreana, and has been sometimes referred to as the "mountain palm" of its native island, and its native habitat has probably helped to fix its slower growing characteristic.

Still another palm, the seed of which is sometimes found mixed in with the seeds of kentias, is Rhapalostylis Bauerii, also known to older growers as Areca Bauerii, an attractive palm and one that may readily be grown in a cool house. The Rhapalostylis is not really a native of Lord Howe's Island, for it comes from Norfolk Island, but it is most likely that seeds have been carried to the former island, either by travelers or by the ocean currents, in much the same way that the common coconut, Cocos nucifera, has been distributed over a large portion of the tropical world.

Rhapis humilis was imported from Japan in quite considerable quantities some years ago, and in fair sized clumps was a useful palm to the decorator, but in common with its stronger growing relative, Rhapis flabelliformis, is not a quick money plant to the grower, and therefore seems to have passed from the market to a great extent.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Exhibition Cut Blooms.

These large specimen blooms for exhibition are fast unfolding their petals and must be given the closest attention to encourage them to attain their highest state of development. If we could depend on clear, cold, dry weather up to the time the blooms were matured, it would be easy sailing and we should not have to worry about spotted petals or dampness, but we are not going to be favored that way and will have to keep the houses as dry as possible by running a little steam through a line or two of the pipes, and regulate the temperature by ventilating according to the weather conditions.

The greatest care must be taken with the watering. The plants require watering when dry, but they should not be kept in a continued wet condition at the roots. Let them dry out a little between waterings; it will help the plants to develop the blooms and give them substance. Attend to the necessary watering by 10 o'clock in the morning, so that there will not be an excessive dampness when it comes time to lower the ventilators in the afternoon. It is far better to let a plant, or part of the bed run over night a little dry, than water in the afternoon. Anything that is likely to develop dampness or mold should be kept as far away from chrysanthemums in bloom as possible. I well remember the trouble caused by a lot of stock geraniums hurried inside after being nipped by frost and put underneath a bench of chrysanthemums. The frozen leaves of the geraniums developed a lot of mold and the chrysanthemums lots of spotted petals. Everything about the chrysanthemum house should be sweet and dry.

One of the reasons for keeping the place dry is that the blooms must develop slowly in a low temperature. Aim to keep the night temperature as near 50 degrees as possible, with a little steam running through one of the lines of pipe and the ventilators open a little all the time. One has to be guided by the weather conditions in regulating the day temperature. When it is cool enough, so that with little ventilation on, a few degrees above the night temperature can be maintained, then it is all right and the grower can regulate the temperature of the house by raising or lowering the ventilators according to the changing conditions of the weather, but there are so many days during the time the blooms are expanding that are more like summer days than fall, and the only thing to do when the days are so hot is to put a thin shade on the glass and ventilate freely whenever it is not too windy, but strong drafts blowing on to the plants through open doors and ventilators must be guarded against.

As soon as the steam heat is turned into the chrysanthemum houses, the red spider begins to be troublesome, especially so in the corners and sides of the house adjacent to the steam pipes. A great many times the red spider gets a foothold through the temperature being allowed to run up too high before shutting off the steam and opening up the ventilators early in the morning. Aphis are also very troublesome now that the plants cannot be sprayed on account of the advanced condition of the blooms, and the only way to combat these insects is to fumigate with the nicotine preparations regularly. It may be necessary to fumigate two nights in succession at first before cleaning the insects entirely out; then set aside one night a week for the regular fumigating night and strictly attend to it. It is a good plan to examine the blooms occasionally, as sometimes a bloom may be infested with aphis though appearing apparently to be all right from the outside. When the blooms get in such a bad condition it takes strong fumigating to clean them out.

Clematis Diseases.

The sudden dying of clematis plants, especially wherever the large-flowered kinds are grown extensively in America and Europe, has been noted for many years, and the cause and methods for prevention of this disease have recently been reported in the Journal of Agricultural Research of the United States department of agriculture, by W. O. Gloyer of the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva, N. Y. This investigator found that the primary cause of the dying of these plants is a fungus known as Ascochyta clematidina. Experiments have shown that the transferring of this fungus to healthy plants causes them to take the disease. The disease shows itself differently on various species. On hybrids grown in the field it is a stem-rot, while at the greenhouse where cuttings are propagated it is a leaf-spot as well as a stem-rot. On Clematis paniculata the disease takes both forms. The following methods for controlling this fungus are recommended:

There is less disease when the hybrids are supported while growing than when they are permitted to trail on the ground. In the case of C. paniculata, however, the selling price of this variety does not warrant incurring the expense of supports. The author in this case advises transplanting the plants from the beds to the open field after the first year and placing them far enough apart to prevent matting, which is always a condition favorable to the disease. The following spray applied lightly controls the disease on C. paniculata growing in the beds and on cuttings in the greenhouse: One pound of laundry soap and 6 pounds of sulphur to 15 gallons of water. The disease can be controlled on the hybrids in the forcing frames or in the greenhouse by the use of sprays. In all cases it is best to remove the diseased leaves and dead vines before spraying. It is particularly important to clear out such leaves and vines, especially if the plant is wintering outdoors, as the fungus is able to survive cold weather. This indicates also that the same beds should not be used for clematis during successive years.

The retail purchaser of clematis can prevent the dying of plants by taking proper simple precautions. The plants should be placed in good soil, well drained and on a sunny exposure. As soon as the new shoots have formed the old vine tissue should be carefully cut away close to the new shoots, removing all traces of the brown, discolored wood in which the fungus is to be found. Proper ventilation is obtained by training the plants to a strong trellis.

Cleveland Flower Show.

While it is unfortunate for the Cleveland flower show that the men of France are so busy trying to shoot Germans and Austrians that they are not giving their usual attention to the cultivation of flowers, it also is equally fortunate that this government has as a representative in France one who is a flower enthusiast. Ambassador W. G. Sharp, whose residence is Elyria, Ohio, has attended former flower shows in Cleveland. Consequently when the local committee wrote him to invite a display from France for the coming exposition he took a personal interest in the enterprise and in spite of the war and its consequences secured a representative display from the government and private gardens and greenhouses of Paris to send to Cleveland. A letter and cablegram received the past week from Mr. Sharp give assurance that a personally conducted exhibit will arrive in time for the show. There are many difficulties to overcome in sending this shipment across the Atlantic at this time and Mr. Sharp is depending upon some atache of the diplomatic service or an American returning home to take personal charge of the display and bring it safely through the blockades and past the submarines. While Mr. Sharp has not indicated in detail the selection of flowers that will be sent to represent the French growers, he had written of his hope of making a selection from the conservatory of President Poincaré.

The ambassador also has the cooperation of an official of the Comite Horticole Francais in selecting a display for the Cleveland show. The extensive mobilization of men in France has greatly interfered with flower culture and gardening throughout France; otherwise, Mr. Sharp gives assurance the French would send an exhibit that would stand out strongly as a feature in the show. There will be a particular interest in that which comes from the belligerent nation, however, since it will be understood by all visitors to the show that it was secured with some difficulty and only through the persistent effort of the American ambassador who is a lover of flowers and who never has missed an opportunity to attend the flower shows in Cleveland, or elsewhere, when possible to do so.

The illustration herewith shows greenhouses of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., wrecked by tornado, September 10. There was no insurance but fortunately no lives were lost. The wrecked houses have been restored and will be replanted shortly. The firm's old range was unharmed and roses, carnations and chrysanthemums in these houses are looking fine.

Fourth National Flower Show.

The national flower show committee of the S. A. F. spent Monday and Tuesday, October 18-19, conferring with the local committees. The entire work so far accomplished was heartily approved by them, the opinion being unanimous that in every branch the exhibition is in a better state of preparedness than any previous show. They are especially pleased with the work of the publicity committee through its chairman, W. F. Therkindson, who has secured promises of free publication of everything interesting in influential daily and weekly papers, magazines and bill board space at half or about cost rates. Publicity stamps for letters, packages, etc., are to be furnished free to all who will use them. The work of the committee culminated in a meeting of the florists' club October 19, which was splendidly and representatively attended by the flower of the trade and was enthusiastic to a marked degree. Chairman George Asmus presided. He made a fine address, showing the advantages to be gained by all the trade in cooperating. The committee had appropriated $30,000 to be spent in various ways in connection with the show. He felt sure it would eclipse anything that had been given before. President Welch told the craft of their great opportunity in this show; how anything they did in work and any money expended would be returned over and over again. He emphasized the importance of organization which could do so much more than by single endeavor, citing the work done by the California fruit growers because they worked together in pushing their goods. Robert Craig said they called him a dreamer when he advocated the national show, but he had lived to see it come true. He predicted a great success here.

C. H. Totty congratulated the local committee on the forwardness of their work, it being far ahead of any previous efforts. He urged the importance of going after the big men, the moneyed men of the community, who would be sure to join the work if properly approached. He saw not a cloud in the sky and was sure of a most successful exhibition. W. F. Therkindson outlined the work of his very important publicity committee, and the progress made fairly took the breath away from his listeners. He is certainly the right man for this work. He urged all who had stories to tell or interesting facts about plants, to send them with any others they have to the committee. Thos. Roland said that Philadelphia had secured in Mr. Therkindson for nothing what had cost the Boston committee $2,000, and the work was being better done. Every one should back up Mr. Therkindson, he urged, and help by giving the best that is in them, or they would not be doing their duty. He said he was sure Philadelphia was going to see a $50,000 show for 50 cents. Mr. Craig predicted great returns for all retailers who would put their best efforts forward. They must not enter for selfish but sentimental reasons. The New York retailers had profited greatly in this respect. W. F. Kasting declared the show would be a great educator and that all should co-operate, as all would be greatly benefited. The rich man should be interested. Make New York, Washington, Boston and all the large cities attend. He was satisfied that all previous shows would be outdone and then Buffalo would come next and excel this one. Adolph Farenwald waxed enthusiastic and was sure of a very great success. John Westcott, not so sure at first, was now heartily in favor; so many good men were pulling together that it would be the grandest show ever held. David Rust promised the aid of the horticultural society and looked forward to a wonderful show. H. F. Michell believed the way to do things was to do them. His firm had taken a large space and would work in every way to get others interested.

W. F. Gude was bursting with fervor for the show. He particularly emphasized the importance of indirect advertising which brought the people without their knowing why they came. He has enthusiasm plus and is a prince of boosters. John Young reported that over $7,000 worth of trade space had been sold and in referring to the value to exhibitors of the last New York show, all exhibitors had before the exhibition closed renewed their contracts for next year, a number taking larger space.

It was announced that Wm. Graham had been chosen superintendent of the show, which greatly pleased the members of the club, as in his selection the art of the exhibition is in the very best of hands, Mr. Graham being one of the best floral artists and decorators in this country. W. A. Niesson, Louis Burke, Mr. Logan and others who were called on, were to a man unanimous that the exhibition would come up to the expectation of the most enthusiastic.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society held a meeting in New York, President Pennock in the chair. The matter of the annual bulletin with the proceedings for 1915 was gone over, with the plan of making improvement in this publication, and the J. Horace McFarland Co., of Harrisburg, Pa., made a proposition to issue the same in a much better form than heretofore, and this proposition was accepted, and the same will appear after January 1, embodying the transactions of the year with colored illustrations. The matter of cost of affiliated membership was gone over with some detail. At present the affiliated membership is 10 cents for each member, and after careful consideration it was moved that the associate membership be changed from 10 cents to 25 cents per member; this change to be put into effect January 1, 1916.

The premium list for the exhibition of 1916, to be held in Philadelphia, Pa., at the national flower show, March 25-April 2, was submitted and gone over carefully, covering roses in pots and tubs, table decorations and blooms by commercial growers as well as blooms by private growers. The total amount of premiums to be awarded is $2,500. A special prize of $10 is offered by Secretary Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., for the prettiest exhibit of roses, the same to be decided by a vote of the lady visitors. The final adjustment of the schedule of prizes was referred to a committee consisting of S. S. Pennock and L. J. Reuter to arrange.

C. T. Tansill of the Washington test garden committee tendered his resignation and it was moved that Wm. F.

Gude, of Washington, D. C., be appointed to fill the vacancy and Mr. Gude has accepted the position. A new rose was reported for registration and the same was referred for proper consideration.

The details of the Cleveland flower show, to be held November 10-14, were carefully gone over and arrangement made to call a regular meeting of the society at that time, for the consideration of any matters pertaining to the best interests of the society. The Cleveland flower show has placed at the disposal of the American Rose Society the sum of $700 in prizes. There has been added to that a special prize of $25 by Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., for 50 blooms of Killarney Brilliant rose. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., offers $25 for the best 50 blooms of the rose Hadley. A silver medal, by Vaughan's Seed Store Chicago and New York, a silver cup by the Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., and $10 in cash by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., are also offered. The judges of the American Rose Society for the Cleveland show are Emill Buettner of Park Ridge, Ill., and John H. Dunlop of Richmond Hill, Toronto.
