Lumber Trade Grows Even Better and That is Good For Victoria; Esquimalt Undertakes to Step Out

LUMBER TRADE GOOD AND MARKET STRONG, say the headlines over this week's report of conditions in the American Lumberman.

Whatever is news on the lumber market is of vital interest to Victoria—especially when it is good news. So here is this week's summary of conditions in the industry: "A big spurt in exports is reported by Douglas fir manufacturers. Bookings by mills reporting to the West Coast Lumbermen's Association during the first week of this month totalled 30 per cent. above normal and 5 per cent. above production. Of these bookings 57 per cent. were for water shipment—32,000,000 feet for domestic delivery and 35,000,000 feet for export.

"California remains a big customer and the Atlantic seaboard seeks stocks eagerly. "Mill stocks are in poor condition and prices strong.

In the Eastern markets to which this Coast ships, it is set down that "mill stocks are badly broken following the recent heavy buying; prospects are that much construction will be carried on through the winter."

One difference between the pessimist and the optimist is that the pessimist may be damned hereafter, but the optimist is damned now.

Esquimalt is lining up in the front ranks of the "Forward March" columns. Traders of that historic district last night at their Board of Trade dinner, by what they said and their spirit, showed that "civic spirit there has developed, teamwork is blossoming, leadership is crystallizing, faith has been restored" and that Esquimalt is looking forward to the bigger things that are to come.

Esquimalt is thinking and talking of things that are going to mean much to Victoria as well. They are things that are almost certain to come, but their coming can be advanced and made certain by the exercise of a little activity, civic co-operation, confidence and determination.

First among these really important things for the whole lower island which Esquimalt is talking of, is the West Coast road. It will have to come sooner or later. Esquimalt wants it to be sooner. The road means much towards the start of development of the immense resources of the West Coast district.

Mr. Pooley is right when he says that "if it is not built, it is very probable that the commerce which does develop there will be controlled from Vancouver in a manner similar to the control by the Mainland of the northern sections of Vancouver Island." Victoria should not overlook that.

There is also a belief in forward-looking Esquimalt that there should be more lumber mills on the southern part of this island, around Esquimalt and Sooke Harbors. There will have to be mills somewhere to handle the timber which is beginning to come out of the West Coast, Esquimalt points out. Victoria Harbor has room for no more and Esquimalt is out to get those mills instead of taking chances on allowing them to be erected on the Mainland and the raw material towed past our doors for manufacture elsewhere.

OBSERVERS WATCHING FOR ELECTION SIGNS IN THE OLD COUNTRY

London, Oct. 27.—The Protectionist kite flown at Plymouth by Premier Baldwin and by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has set political circles buzzing with excitement and speculation as to when the Premier intends to sound the opinion of the country on such a radical departure from Great Britain's established free trade policy.

Opinion so far holds that an election—if there is one on this question—will be fixed for the early Spring of 1924, before the budget is submitted to Parliament. One reason for the choice of this time is that the budget is bound to be an unpopular one inasmuch as it will not, according to Chamberlain's recent statement, provide for any reduction in taxation. The Government would not be likely to risk facing an electorate disgruntled by an unpopular budget.

BANTING REGRETS BEST'S WORK NOT FULLY RECOGNIZED

PERJURY CHARGE LAID IN DRUG CASE

Frank Fernandez Charged Following Denial on Witness Stand

Arising out of statements said to have been made by Frank Fernandez, under cross examination at the resumption of the police drug hearing this morning in the City Police Court, Fernandez was indicted for perjury. The development came with startling suddenness. A man giving the name Schreiber stood forward at the request of C. L. Harrison for the Crown. Fernandez was in the witness stand. Crown counsel suggested to witnesses that Schreiber drove witness and informant No. 1 to Beacon Hill Park on the morning of August 24. Witness denied it, and reaffirmed that he was certain that Schreiber had not driven him to the park at all. The question arose out of cross examination bearing on the identity of the informant No. 1. "Was that not an absolute falsehood you told the court?" Crown counsel asked witness later. Fernandez was silent for a moment then said: "I protected the man, that is all." Confronted with Schreiber, witness admitted that he had been driven to the park by the man. Then ensued a period of examination of witness by the Court, in which Fernandez repeated that he had been told by a moment then said: "I protected the man, that is all." Confronted with Schreiber, witness admitted that he had been driven to the park by the man. ## BRITISH OVERSEAS DELEGATES BACK FROM ANTIPODES

Sir William Windham and Settlement Party Aboard R.M.S. Makura

Sir William Windham, Miss G. S. Sprott and H. F. Marriott, British Overseas Settlement delegates, returned from Australia and New Zealand aboard the Makura this morning after nine months touring of the various states of Australia and New Zealand in the interests of land settlement and with the object of conferring with the State Government on questions of reception, welfare and allotment of British settlers. The party spent four months touring New Zealand, and five months in Australia, Tasmania, Smuts and our British colonies. Sir William, speaking of the various schemes for settling British immigrants pointed out that the group system was by far the most popular. In general the Australian plan of land settlement includes the group system, the apprenticing of young men ranging from the age of sixteen to twenty years of age, or by parents or relatives making application for passage privileges from the Government and holding themselves responsible for finding the new settlement.

URGENT ORGANIZATION IN FIGHT AGAINST UNION OF CHURCHES

Rev. W. F. McConnell Opens Campaign For Anti-Unionists

Victoria has made the starting point of a great campaign, which will extend throughout Canada, for the purpose of educating the people of the Presbyterian Church in matters pertaining to the plans for Union of that body with the Congregational and Methodist denominations in a nation-wide Church of Canada. "We are to abandon this great church of ours and see ourselves and our church merged with other denominations, into one, thus losing at the same time our individuality and our freedom," he asked. "Or are we going to stand together, insisting on our rights?" Mr. McConnell stated that he was in Victoria to educate the people of the congregations in those matters which affected them directly, and their churches. He was here, he said, in the capacity of an organizer in the great national campaign against the plans for the merging of Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches. The unionists are weak in that they have tried to keep the people in ignorance as to the basis of union, and as to the definite steps of the programme for this union, the speaker asserted. The anti-unionist on the other hand, he said, is trying to educate the people. Furthermore, he asserted, the people of the church have been, generally speaking, ignorant of the facts of the case, but when they have had the matter put before them in an open manner, the anti-unionists, or those in favor of the preservation of the Presbyterian Church, as they prefer to be called, will be willing that the question be left with the people, and be put in the form of a referendum.

URGE ORGANIZATION IN FIGHT AGAINST UNION OF CHURCHES

(Continued from page 1) In the past, the speaker stated, there have been plebiscites, and the numbers of those disapproving the union have been increasing since the first was taken. In 1911

there were 50,000 persons who were classed as anti-unionists, and 112,000 in favor of the union. In 1915, there were 13,000 voters against the union, 112,000 for the union, and 150,000 who did not vote at all.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

"We have been treated as outcasts by the unionists," the speaker continued. "But we are a democracy, and we like fair play." He pointed out that the matter rested with the people of Canada for decision and not with a few unionists and patriots. The fact that, so far, in the history of the struggle for church union, it had been with the few for the settlement of a question, rather than with the many, was lamentable, he stated.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Make a family supply of really reliable cough medicine. It is prepared, and saves about $2. If you have a severe cough or chest cold, accompanied with a sore throat, tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with cough and you want quick help try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any drugist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and the bottle has the plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 14 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief. You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that makes business. It loosens phlegm, soothes the inflamed throat and soothes and soothes the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds. There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteeing absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co. Toronto, Ont. (Adv.)

BUILDING FIGURES UP TO THE GRADE

$39,000 Worth Started in Victoria Last Month, Report Shows

Last month $39,000 worth of building was started in Victoria, figures secured by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau from the building inspector's office show. This year public and private buildings run to $800,000 and the big improvement is being maintained, the data gathered for The Monetary Times of Canada indicates.

Among the other noteworthy features secured for this purpose are as follows: Business began to improve at the end of April and showed a slow but steady increase until well into the middle of June, when the influx of tourists immediately improved conditions all around. Eighty-two tourists visited Victoria this year. Many of these only stayed a few hours, but the great majority remained in the city for a week or more, and large numbers over a month.

Estimating the new money brought in by these travelers at $10.00 per day, a great deal more came into the city is shown by the brisk trade in women's shoe stores and restaurants; during July and August all the leading hotels, flats and apartment houses were full.

Many of these tourists definitely stated that they were returning shortly to take up their permanent residence in Victoria, bought property and settled down within a week of their arrival here. Others are coming in every day. In at least a couple of instances sales of high-priced property have resulted. The general commercial outlook is considered good, merchants as a class being optimistic for the future.

Business Jumps The Sidney Rubber Roofing Company states that business this year is thirty per cent. better than last, and that the outlook is most encouraging. A large biscuit factory reports business excellent and the outlook good.

The city treasurer states that the annual city taxes are being met better than last year, and that the general outlook among the citizens is optimistic. Real estate dealers report that all good houses are now being quickly rented, and that many more inquiries are being received for property, and many sales resulting.

The Publicity Bureau is receiving an ever-increasing number of inquiries from intending settlers, over the present time are in better shape than last year, and that the future outlook is decidedly good. Building shows a decided and steady improvement. This year already buildings, public and private, run to a total of over $600,000, last month alone showing well over $39,000.

Sir William Windham spoke of the system by which immigrants were assisted to the various States overseas. He stated that the British Government had entered into agreement with the Australian and New Zealand Governments to grant 8000 acres of land to each settler. This was to continue over a period of fifteen years. Not only is assistance given for the passage out to the various States, but also for the purchase of land and the establishment of themselves properly in their new surroundings.

(Continued from page 1) changed with the exception of straightening out and extending some of the boundary lines. Comox will be cut in two, the island part remaining to constitute the new Comox riding. The Mainland part, which includes Powell River, will go to make up the new riding to be known as Coast. This will run up along the coast as far as Prince Rupert, taking in the rural part of that district south of the city. Vancouver City proper will retain its present size of six members. This representation is based on a present voting strength of 10,000. The increase in the representation of the greater city, however, will be in proportion to the size of the constituencies and the creation of a new constituency of Point Grey. South Vancouver will still have one member but the size of the constituency will be reduced so that it will have 6,670 voters instead of over 10,000 at present. About 4,000 voters in Burnaby are to be deducted from Richmond. Then out of this will be taken the new constituency of Point Grey, embracing the municipalities, which will have a total voting strength of between 5,000 and 6,000. By this shuffling the districts immediately surrounding Vancouver city will have nearly equal voting strength. North Vancouver will be given greater representation proportionately, by taking off about 18 or 20

ALDERMAN TODD RETURNS FROM HIGHWAY OPENING

There are now 200 miles of paved road connecting Seattle with Portland, states the alderman, and these are very good roads, where grades are over four per cent. Long winding steep slopes abolish the old time steep grades. I remember in 1910 when it used to take from two to three days to do the journey from Seattle to Portland by car. We came up from Portland to Seattle, a distance of 200 miles, in 6 1/2 hours," stated Mr. Todd.

The farmers all along the route are highly pleased with the road. They disposed of their products to tourists passing by, and already this is proving a lucrative business for them. They display small fruits, vegetables and other products right on the road side, and sell them at wholesale price. The result is that many farmers are cleaning out their stock without having to travel to market. The road is also advantageous to those who go to market, people being able to go in and out of town with comparative ease.

TO MAKE NEW RULES FOR CATTLE TRADE

British and Canadian Representatives Are to Meet
 Admission of Canadian Cattle into Britain Will be Their Subject

London, Oct. 27.—Representatives of the British and Canadian Governments are to meet to determine if some basic standard agreeable to both countries cannot be reached for the admission of Canadian cattle into Great Britain.
 When the subject was before the Economic Conference yesterday both Premier King and Hon. George F. Graham spoke in the presentation of the Canadian case. Their main contentions were:
 1. That the British act of Parliament had not completely carried out the agreement reached between the British and Canadian Governments in 1914.
 2. That the act restricted the cattle to be admitted to store cattle, although the act had a clause providing for the admission of breeding cattle by a standing order of the Board of Agriculture.
 3. Breeding cattle, however, were not admitted because the Board of Agriculture refused to issue the necessary standing order.
 The point was taken that not only were the present regulations unfair to Canada but they were interpreted differently at different ports.
 A Bad Impression
 Mr. Graham argued that the present interpretation of the regulations was apt to cast a stigma on Canadian cattle. Stockers were classed as fat and had to be slaughtered under the Disease of Animals Act. This in itself created a bad impression. In addition these half fattened cattle were sold as Canadian beef, thus injuring Canada's reputation.

 Premier King said Canada was very grateful for the removal of the embargo, observing that in recognition of it the rate of goods imported directly through Canadian ports. He strongly urged a revision of the cattle regulations.

To Be Investigated
 Presenting the British case, Sir Robert Sanders, president of the Board of Agriculture, admitted a case had been made in regard to the regulations, which would be investigated. He claimed, however, that the agreement between the British and Canadian Governments regarding the embargo had been carried out.
 Respecting the admission of breeding cattle, he stressed the position of the Old Country livestock man. He suggested the exchange of pedigree livestock, a suggestion that was welcomed by the conference generally.

SOCIETY TO AID SCOTTISH SETTLERS ON PRAIRIES

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—The current issue of The Canada Gazette contains notice of the incorporation of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society. The objects of the society are to be carried out through Canada and elsewhere, without share capital, and the headquarters will be at Red Deer, Alta.
 The avowed objects of the society are to assist and encourage immigration to rural lands in Canada, particularly from Scotland; to train such settlers in practical farming; and to aid them by loan or otherwise in establishing themselves permanently.

COTTON INCREASE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Government Hopes to Make Production One of Country's Biggest Industries

London, Oct. 27.—Premier Smuts, of South Africa, told a deputation of the Empire Cotton Growers' Association yesterday that his Government hoped to make the production of cotton one of the biggest industries in the state, and that he gratefully accepted the offer of the association to send a staff of experts to South Africa to assist in the developing of the project.

ACQUITTAL WAS OUTCOME OF TRIAL

Vancouver, Oct. 27.—E. J. Donohue was acquitted in the assize court here last night of the series of charges laid against him by the Britannia Mining & Smelting Co., of which he was formerly general manager. The jury was out for only a few minutes.
 Mr. Justice Gregory had told the jurors that he would without hesitation have taken the case from the jury had not the defence by its attitude indicated that the accused wanted a clear vindication. He expressed the view that certain details of the charge did not deal with acts which are illegal, and false entries as a director, and conviction of $1,127.

GRAIN COMMISSION ASKS FOR FACTS

Inquires if Dr. J. H. Grisdale Correctly Reported
 He Was Said to Have Stated Canadian Grain Mixed in United States

Montreal, Oct. 27.—Chairman Turgeon, at yesterday afternoon's session of the Grain Inquiry Commission, called attention to the reported remarks in London of Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture of Canada, who was quoted as having said in an address in London, referring to the difficulties attending the export of wheat to Great Britain: "One of the difficulties is a lack of direct transportation from the producer in the Dominion to the consumer on this side of the water. Much of the Canadian wheat passes through United States channels, and in transit is meddled with and loses a great deal of its quality, while some Americans gain a considerable sum of money. It is possible there will be direct transportation for Canadian wheat in the near future."
 Chairman Turgeon said the commission had sent the following cable to Dr. Grisdale:
 "Papers here report you saying at Canadian Chamber of Commerce that Canadian wheat meddled with in American channels, resulting in loss of quality and gain to some Americans. Matter important to this commission. Can you furnish particulars?"

Do YOU know what LINOLEUM Really is?

EVERY woman should know what linoleum is, what it is made of and why it is unquestionably a most sanitary and health promoting floor for her home. She can then buy with assurance and obtain genuine linoleum.

Ground Cork and What it Means to Linoleum

You have used corks in the home in various ways. Take up one now and squeeze it. It responds to the pressure exerted by your fingers, but once this pressure is released it immediately resumes its former shape. Throw it into a basin of water and it tosses about lightly riding the surface of the water without absorbing a drop. It is entirely non-absorbent. Take a knife and whittle it—its softness is different from that of anything else, and yet, withal it is tough. Is it any wonder that, when finely ground and employed as a primary ingredient of genuine linoleum it retards moisture, ensures a resilient tread, and wears and wears indefinitely?

Oxidized Linseed Oil is a Wonderful Material

Most people have observed the filmy substance that gathers over a neglected pot of paint when the lid is removed. This is really oxidized linseed oil, or oil mixed with oxygen. It is tough and rubberlike, yet soft and pliable. When produced in a modern oxidizing plant and added to ground cork and other important oils and gums it brings to linoleum added springiness and toughness. It is decidedly germicidal, the very feature that modern housewives should insist upon when buying a floor covering. This pure product of flaxseed, grown in the Canadian West, is specially compressed and scientifically treated for use in making linoleum.

Strong Burlap makes a Tough and Lasting Backing

Everyone knows why good rope is strong—because of the hundreds of long, tough fibres that are closely and tightly woven together. Burlap, made of similar long fibre jute, grown in India, is used as a base for genuine linoleum and makes a secure, non-tearing ground-work for the cork, oxidized linseed oil and other important materials that are firmly pressed into this backing of burlap. So great is the pressure exerted by the huge rolls employed in the manufacture of linoleum that the linoleum "mix," just described, and the burlap, become as one. If you look closely when buying, you will readily observe this important feature and can then understand why it is so highly important. And more—the burlap used in making Dominion Linoleum and Oilcloth is of the highest quality.

Dundee, Scotland, is the seat of the burlap weaving industry and affords the world a major part of its burlap supply. This shows the weaving looms at work.

This exact reproduction of burlap, magnified, imparts a favorable idea of the strength embodied in this fibrous material, used in making all genuine linoleum and oilcloth.

Send us your name and address and we will mail you an attractive rug folder in four colors.
 Address: Dominion Oilcloth & Linoleum Co. Limited, Montreal.

Other Important Points that make Linoleum Better

Among the important raw materials used is Kauri Gum—the fossilized sap of the New Zealand pine. This is generally dug out of the ground, as shown in the illustration, and when refined and added to the linoleum surfacing mixture it further enhances its worth. After the plain linoleum is rolled it is cured and seasoned in a large curing room, but when patterned linoleum is desired the design must be printed by passing the goods through huge printing machines which print the pattern automatically before curing. The designs originate, of course, in the designing department, where new and pleasing combinations are being continually evolved, for transfer to the huge printing blocks.

Why You should Insist on getting Dominion Linoleum

Great care is taken to maintain a high standard of quality in making all grades of DOMINION LINOLEUM and OILCLOTH. In every instance they are of approved standard, and destined to impart long and satisfactory service. When you buy, first ask for "DOMINION," then look for the strong burlap back, as shown in sketch and for our trade mark down at right. Finally, as an additional safeguard, look for the natural cork edge; all genuine Dominion linoleum has it.

CHARLES PROTEUS STEINMETZ

When the hand of death fell upon Charles Proteus Steinmetz yesterday morning the world said farewell to one of the most remarkable men that this progressive age has produced.

By all the laws of nature and circumstance the generation which this great scientist led in wonderment down an ever lengthening avenue of accomplishment never should have heard of Steinmetz at all. For as soon as the mind of his misshapen body could perform its normal function this youngster who was destined to scale the top-most rung of the ladder of fame awoke to the consciousness of his deformity.

But parental instinct did not err. Young Steinmetz was sent to college and it was not long before the mind in the making began its figurative blanketing of physical shortcomings. Then with Nature's unexplainable whim an unimportant subject of a hidden ruler Steinmetz found himself confronted by the crudity of an empty pocket. So he came to the United States and demonstrated in the practical field of electricity that irresistible mastery which had lifted him head and shoulders above all his fellow students. And from early triumphs that seem child's play at this stage of scientific progress Charles Proteus Steinmetz steadily and surely applied himself to the task of startling the world and did it. But the mind—the ruler—wore out the subject.

What new secrets Steinmetz would have bared if the Grim Reaper had not beckoned him the world will never know. The great public of the Universe must remain in wonderment and remember the "electrical wizard" for what he was and did. His achievements are his epitaph.

THE LEGISLATURE AND IMMIGRATION

One of the most important questions with which the Legislature will be called upon to deal at its forthcoming session will be that of immigration. It ought to be possible to approach the subject and discuss it without anything in the nature of party heat or useless recrimination. The peopling of this Province is of paramount importance and every member of the House might well exercise his intelligence in advance of the debate that Mr. Pattullo may be depended upon to initiate.

What is meant by a suitable settler will always furnish material for discussion; but we shall hope that the old idea that only the sons of farmers can make successful farmers has been put to sleep for all time. There is no more reason why a farmer's son should make a success of agriculture than there is justification for expecting only the sons of lawyers to be brilliant as legal advisers. And in this connection it is refreshing to know that a British newspaper with such influence as The Daily Telegraph is able to yield among the general public of Britain is pointing out that new ideas on emigration must be accepted on the other side of the Atlantic—as well as overseas—before the Empire Settlement Act meets with the success once so confidently anticipated.

The Telegraph takes the right view when it declares that "if the right type of emigrant is to be secured in this thickly settled, highly industrialized country, we must banish the impression that it is only social failures who can be expected to move overseas." On the other hand it very properly points out that "we must banish the picture that migration means a life of unmitigated hardship" and get rid of the error that "emigration is only for the very young men and women drawn exclusively from the countryside."

When the Royal Commission on the Natural Resources of the Dominions was sitting in Australia in 1913 it received plenty of evidence which went to show that the town lad in the Commonwealth "will learn his work quicker than the country lad will if he wants to go on the land." He is described in the report by one or two witnesses as a "bit handy" and with "a bit of go" in him. With this much as a basis he is found to be easily adaptable to rural life and quick to accommodate himself to its ways and requirements. Canada can similarly point to successful farmers who came from the Old Country without any experience in farm work.

It should be the purpose of the Legislature therefore to tackle this problem on lines so practically recognized by the London journal quoted above. To stick out for a process of hand picking will get British Columbia nowhere. The people on the other side must be told the truth continually and told that there is hard work for all comers, work that may be discouraging for a while, but work that will pave the way to a comfortable competence. Nor should it be forgotten that the temporary misfit or disgruntled settler will not go back home. He will find his level and become an asset.

WHEN WILL THE ELECTION BE?

In view of Mr. Baldwin's pronouncement it is evident that there will be no material alteration in the fiscal policy of Britain as long as the present Parliament lasts. The Conservative Party was obviously entitled to be told where its leaders stood upon this interesting point. He has now made his position perfectly plain and it would seem to follow that the way is clear for another election with tariff reform as the Government's rallying cry. How long it will be before the people are to have another opportunity to express themselves upon the subject will depend entirely upon how sincere the Premier is in his belief that the present industrial condition of Britain is attributable to the lack of protection. Is there any other interpretation that can be put upon his Plymouth speech? Meanwhile Mr. Bonar Law's pledge will hold good.

LET THERE BE LOCAL FAITH

When the advertising which Victoria has obtained during the present year shall be assessed at its end it will be found that 1923 has surpassed anything that has gone before. Its numerous conventions have furnished more than ordinary opportunity for personal examination of the neighborhood and the amount of publicity—in many parts of the world—which has followed these gatherings would total more columns of newspaper space than most people imagine. All this must bring grist to the mill and speed up the various progressive movements that are already promising this neighborhood an era of prosperity that will shock those hardened pessimists who require a long ladder to climb out of their despair. What is wanted now is a campaign of confidence at home. People who have been here have only one opinion about Victoria. They look upon it as one of the choicest spots that either the New or the Old World has to offer to mankind. Each member of this community must realize the truth of it. Talk it and let every stranger know that local pride in these surroundings equals every particle of outside enthusiasm.

Note and Comment

That is an excellent plan which gives the school population of the community an opportunity to learn what manufactures are being carried on in their midst.

There is no truth in the statement that Mr. Bowser intends to make no reference to the Government's borrowings during the course of the legislative session which will begin on Monday.

We have it on good authority that the member for Esquimalt proposes to describe in detail the intricacies of prune juice manufacture when he makes his contribution to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne a few days hence.

Mr. Lloyd George is in favor of trying to meet the French point of view in connection with the suggested reparations conference. This will have to be a prime consideration in any deliberations that may take place as a result of the decision of the United States to lend her aid.

The Prince of Wales is wearing a lounge suit and a bowler hat on his present visit to Scotland and the word has gone out that top hats and frock coats will not be necessary at receptions. We can quite understand that after a period as Lord Renfrew of Alberta—he would spring a cowboy "lid" if he felt that others had them as well.

Latin dictionaries and copies of one of those compact collections of Latin phrases may be distributed among the members of the Legislature this session if one of the prominent members of the House decides to enliven the discussions of the affairs of the Game Conservation Board in his usual pleasant manner.

Some Thoughts for To-day

 And beseech listening. Shakespeare.

But, indeed, we prefer books to pounds;
 And we love manuscripts better than florins;
 And we prefer small pamphlets to bar horses. Isaac Disraeli.

I cannot love as I have loved,
 And yet I know not why;
 It is the one great woe of life
 To feel all feeling die. Bailey.

Yes, while I stood and gazed, my temples bare,
 And shot my being through earth, sea, and air,
 Possessing all things with intensest love,
 O Liberty! my spirit felt thee there. Coleridge.

Our Contemporaries

FRANCE ON HER WAY.
 Chicago Tribune:—French policy of late has been marching triumphantly toward its objectives, whatever they may be. We do not know where France is going, but she is on her way. We can recall no moment since the fall of Napoleon at which French power and prestige seemed so great as it is now. She has incomparably the mightiest engine of land war existing. All conditions considered, we doubt if her army was ever so powerful relatively and absolutely.

WORTHY OF HIS HIRE.
 Daily News:—The real stumbling block to the progress of modern education comes not from "unpatriotic" teachers (who are performing a difficult task with extraordinary devotion and ability), but from the point of view which Dr. Weldon represents—the point of view that the central purpose of modern education is to turn out virtuous clerks who can spell correctly and write a clerical hand, and that for this high and noble purpose it is sufficient to engage patriotic teachers at the wage of a farm laborer.

LONGSHOREMAN'S STRIKE

To the Editor:—The longshoremen of this city are raising an awful howl against the men working the boats during their so-called strike, and calling the said men "scabs." These men are not scabbing, in view of the fact that the union is limited to a small few, who have corralled all waterfront work. Their organization is a selfish one, pure and simple. Able-bodied citizens with dependents cannot get work on the boats, as the union is closed to them. As extras they get on at times, but should Mr. Longshoreman turn up, the man is put off and the Mr. steps in. To my knowledge several of these extras have tried for years to join them, but cannot gain admittance. These said men are working the boats now. Can you blame them? They have no respect for the union, knowing it's a farce. A union should be open to qualified members at all times. Any trade organization is open. Take the engineers, for instance, anybody can get a ticket provided he's got the necessary qualifications, and the union welcomes him. That's a union. But anybody who can longshore find that union closed to him. What right have they to limit their numbers? Therefore, I maintain that a man has every right to work the boats if the job is offered him, and not stand down for a selfish, greedy few, who have as their motto, "I love me."

YOUNG SON OF W. R. HEARST HERE

Comes With Bride in Chartered Yacht En Route to Vancouver

George Hearst, son of William Randolph Hearst, the American publisher, and his bride, whom he recently married in San Francisco, arrived in the city this morning on the chartered yacht "Terminon." He is accompanied by Donald E. Charles, who is the newspaper expert of the Hearst publications and who is managing his tour.

Mr. Hearst breakfasted on board the yacht, in which he has visited various places on the coast, and immediately proceeded for a drive around the city. It was his intention to leave in a few hours for Vancouver, Mr. Charles stating on his behalf that Mr. and Mrs. Hearst were delighted with the city.

INTERVIEWS TWO MORE APPLICANTS

No Time Yet to Prepare Recommendation on Comptrollership

Two hours more were spent by the Civic Finance Committee to-day in considering the applications for city comptroller, interview which were held with candidates from Yorkton, Sask., and Revelstoke.

The committee asked a great many questions, and had intended to consider the subject with a view to a report but was unable to do so owing to lack of time, so that the issue will be discussed again on Monday.

Mayor Hayward said it was very doubtful if the committee would be ready to report on Monday evening. They are determined to make a thorough investigation before a recommendation is made.

Applications for the post of city writing inspector, for which there are eleven applicants, will be considered at a meeting on Monday morning.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The civic Court of Revision will re-open at the City Hall on Tuesday.

J. T. Crowder, of Vancouver, will speak on Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, at the Dominion Hotel on the personal property tax.

Under the auspices of the Cloverdale Parent-Teacher Association a concert was held last night at the Cloverdale School.

Membership card of the University Extension Association can now be secured from any member of the committee and an extra large supply has been placed in the hands of Miss Helen Stewart at the City Library.

An illustrated lecture was given by Henry Masters, assisted by John Gough, at the Craigflower School last evening under the auspices of the Saanich Public School Athletic Association.

In a brief session of the City Police Court to-day on local matters Herbert Peovo and James Gasby were each fined $20, charged with being drunk in public as a first offence under the provisions of the Liquor Act. Both accused pleaded guilty. Constables Woodburn and Littlefield were fined $10 each for being drunk in public. Albert Mar was further remanded on a charge of overtaking a street car when that vehicle was stopping for passengers.

DAWSON PIONEER WILL LOCATE IN CITY SHORTLY

E. Schink, pioneer grocer of Dawson, Y.T., arrived at the Dominion Hotel to-day, seeking to locate a home here for his family.

Mr. Schink, who went into the Yukon in 1898, and for several years was secretary of the Dawson Liberal Association.

He plans to spend the Winters in the south, returning to his business each Summer.

He states that the Yukon is showing considerable development in spite of the loss of population due to the transition from placer to quartz mining. Keno Hill properties are very promising, and a number of new companies are going into the field. Dawson, he says, has reached the point when its population is all employed, and will begin recovery after a long up-hill struggle.

PROTEST SPECIAL SEWER DEBT VOTE

Ratepayers of Saanich Oppose Special Poll Next Month

Objection to a special election to authorize the repayment of the Northwest Sewer debt by Saanich to the city was expressed in a resolution adopted at a meeting of ratepayers of Wards Two and Seven, held last evening at Tillicum School.

The resolution said: "Whereas it is stated that the municipality of Saanich owes the City of Victoria the sum of $43,000, and whereas, no evidence has been produced at any time by any agreement, nor any by-law endorsed by the electors of Saanich, that the municipality owes the debt, or that they were a party to the contraction of any obligation;

"Therefore be it taken that committee be appointed to confer with the Ratepayers' Association with a view of having a committee of the Central Ratepayers' Association, the Saanich Council, and the City Council of Victoria to investigate all agreements, by-ratified by the ratepayers' electorate, and that the submission of any by-law be deferred until the election in January, so that any liability may in time be settled satisfactorily.

"The Saanich Council has ordered the by-law to be submitted at a special election on November 17.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN BY NEW PARTY

Provincial Party Preparing to Contest Many Seats

The Provincial Party will have a candidate in every riding in British Columbia except those where bona fide labor men are standing. J. W. McIntosh, ex-M.P.P., told The Times this morning at the Dominion Hotel.

Mr. McIntosh is here to watch the opening of the session of the Legislature, and more particularly to make plans for meetings in some sections of the Island which have not yet been reached in the propaganda of the party.

Mr. McIntosh stated that the leader of the party, General A. D. McLean, would speak in Victoria, Esquimalt, Sidney, Ladysmith, Nanaimo and Port Alberni in the course of the next series of meetings. He says the organization is developing well, and will be a factor when the Provincial election takes place.

Reviewed Board's History

To bring the purpose of the gathering to the attention of the 150 members and guests present, Capt. R. P. Matheson, secretary of the board, outlined its history. Starting in 1920, as a merchants' association, the organization had sought the best opportunity which Esquimalt offered for industrial development. The goal of industrial prosperity for the municipality remained the chief aim when the association finally grew into a board of trade, and the first step to its realization came with the appointment of an industrial committee.

Trade With Orient

Briefly reviewing the work of this committee, Capt. Matheson called attention to the continuous growth of United States imports of raw materials from the Orient for manufacture. He considered that British banking and financial systems established throughout the Orient had more influence and covered more territory than those controlled by the United States, and he believed that those British systems should be used in order to develop Oriental trade with British Columbia and the western sections of Canada.

"If the United States found it profitable to import Oriental materials and manufactures, then it should be increasingly advantageous for similar manufactures on Vancouver Island."

B.C. Timber for B.C.

R. H. Pooley, M.P.P. for Esquimalt, stated that the development of the West Coast road in order to open up the fertile districts of the San Juan valley and Port Renfrew. With proper transportation facilities to these sections the southern portion of the Island would share in the commerce which would result from the development of the timber industry. The speaker also touched upon the possibilities of Shawinigan, which, he stated, possessed the only vineyard in British Columbia.

The possibilities of the lumber industry in Southern Vancouver Island inspired Mr. Pooley with the idea that steps be taken to prevent the exploitation of British Columbia's timber resources by American interests. He cited the case of a man who recently sought to obtain timber rights on crown granted lands in the Province to supply the raw material for a $200,000 mill which is to be erected in Bellingham. The people of Canada said Mr. Pooley, should protect their rights and see to it that lumber grown in Canada was manufactured in Canadian mills.

Oriental Problem

Alderman Sargent of the Victoria City Council, after congratulating the board on its progressive spirit and desire for co-operation, deplored the presence of so many Orientals in the sawmills of the Island. He expressed the opinion that instead of the ten per cent of white labor employed in some of the local mills there should be at least fifty per cent.

Hon. F. A. Pauline, Speaker of the Legislature, as member for the Saanich constituency, heartily concurred in Esquimalt's bid for industrial progress. He predicted the time when Esquimalt would be a familiar name throughout the world not as a naval base alone but as an industrial centre.

Power and Water

The co-operation of the B.C. Electric Railway Company in an development along commercial lines was promised by S. J. Halls, an official of that company. His company believed so implicitly in the value of this Island that of its total investment of $60,000,000 over $10,000,000 was invested on Vancouver Island. At the present time the company was supplying 20,000 commercial horsepower to the city of Victoria and was meeting an increase of approximately 15 per cent in the next few years.

H. O. Kirkham, representing the Retail Merchants' Association of Victoria, spoke on taxation problems, dealing particularly with the inequities of the personal property tax.

Water problems were briefly touched upon by E. R. Halsall, manager of the Esquimalt waterworks, who urged the public to investigate the system of water charges and the benefits accruing from a well-arranged water supply before leveling objections at the company. He appealed for greater co-operation between the users and the company with a view to the prevention of misunderstandings.

Brief Addresses

Brief addresses were also given by Mrs. H. P. Hodges, who drew attention to the needs of young people and skilled artisans from Canada to the United States, and urged the development of commercial and industrial undertakings in order to keep these people for Canada; George I. Warren, of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, who reiterated the association's desire for co-operation; Mr. Taylor, of the Sidney Board of Trade; Mr. Miller Higgs, of the Sooke Harbor Development Association; and C. F. Bangfield, of the Victoria West Brotherhood, who each brought greetings from their respective districts and expressed their readiness to assist in any concerted effort for development along industrial lines.

Councillor Macleod of Saanich introduced the proposition of a returned man who, after fighting for his country, found it impossible to obtain employment and had to leave the country to find work; Rev. Lockley was the final speaker on the programme, and in a convincing address reviewed the many matters af-

Esquimalt Board of Trade Celebrates Birthday With Optimistic Gathering

A clarion call to all sections of southern Vancouver Island to co-operate in rousing public interest to the need for further industrial development in this district was sounded at the annual banquet of the Esquimalt Board of Trade, held in the Sailors' Club last evening. The gathering marked the second birthday of the organization and was attended by representatives of Victoria and the adjoining municipalities, service and business organizations and others interested in the development of the community.

Rev. Father Silver, president of the board, was in the chair, and the honor of cutting the handsome birthday cake made by "Mother" Rannas of the Sailors' Club fell to Mrs. H. P. Hodges, vice-president of the Kuntz Club.

VICTORIA STEAM LAUNDRY ASSET TO LOCAL INDUSTRY

Modern Plant is Equal to That of Any in Western Canada

The Victoria Steam Laundry during the past week received 1,500 people looking over the plant while proper transportation facilities in connection with the visitors' week staged simultaneously all over the United States and Canada.

There has been a big crowd at the work inspecting the various processes through which clothes go before they are returned in the city.

The Victoria Steam Laundry lays claim to as much floor space at their plant as the making of many employees and as many delivery autos as all other laundries combined in the city. Its machinery is declared to be as up to date as that of any laundry in Western Canada, and laundry is shipped to this plant from as far East as Calgary. From the Cariboo on the coast and from Port Alice on the Island.

The plant represents an investment of $150,000, and regularly employs 100 people, with a payroll of over $5,000 a month. The advantages of such an establishment as the Victoria Steam Laundry were brought out by the visitors, who are impressed by the pleasant surroundings and ideal conditions under which the employees work. Cleanliness was one of the outstanding features that immediately created an impression, and the care with which the work was performed by well trained experienced workers satisfied the visitors that they could trust the most delicate garments to the care of the Victoria Steam Laundry with safety.

The sanitation arrangements were a surprise to the visitors, who immediately created an impression, and the care with which the work was performed by well trained experienced workers satisfied the visitors that they could trust the most delicate garments to the care of the Victoria Steam Laundry with safety.

TEEN-AGE GIRLS IN MASS MEETING

Miss Fountain, Girls' Work Secretary For B.C., Was Speaker

Last evening there was gathered in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church a splendid group of teen-age girls, under the auspices of the Victoria Girls' Work Board. The president, Mrs. A. J. Daniels, acted as chairman. Prayer was offered by Miss Gladys Elliot, one of the Baptist leaders. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Gertrude Thorpe, president of the teen-age department of First Baptist Church. This was followed by brief comments by Miss Helen Henderson. In the absence of Mrs. C. Bishop, honorary president of the board, Mrs. George Guy spoke a few words of welcome to all and gave a beautiful message to the girls. Some of the newer C.G.I.T. songs were sung and then Mrs. Daniels introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss Annie Fountain, B.A. of Vancouver, the recently appointed girls' work secretary for B.C. Miss Fountain told the girls that there was unity in the girls' work, that there were no denominational lines, that they all had one aim, that striving for the fourfold life—to grow in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. She urged the girls to keep before them the best and highest ideals, closing with a fine story portraying the upward quest for the fourfold life. A C.G.I.T. group of girls from Wesley Church contributed greatly to the programme with a two-part chorus, and later part of the group sang beautifully in Welsh. One of the most pleasing features of the evening was a piano solo by a young Japanese girl, Miss Lily Washington. Miss Mrs. Downard also sang with much feeling. Mrs. Guy moved a vote of thanks to the official board of the First Baptist Church for the use of the building and to all who took part on the programme. In connection with the visit of Miss Fountain to Victoria, there was held on Wednesday evening, in the Y.W.C.A. a supper meeting of leaders of girls. This gathering listened with deep interest to Miss Fountain's words of encouragement to all who endeavor to guide the path of teen-age girls. Several leaders registered their sympathy with the Provincial Girls' Work Board, thereby linking their organizations with a nationwide movement. It is estimated that there are in Canada this year over 30,000 teen-age girls, following the splendid programme of the Canadian Girls in Training. Miss Fountain will speak in Wesley Methodist Church at the service tomorrow morning, and at the Centennial Sunday school to-morrow afternoon.

REVIEW'S MASQUERADE SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR
The second annual Halloween masquerade ball held under the auspices of Royal Review, No. 18, W.B.A., in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, proved a very enjoyable affair, about 200 guests taking part. A wonderful array of costumes of every variety and design was presented a difficult problem for the judges, Mayor and Mrs. Hayward, assisted by Mrs. Crocker, president of the Victoria Women's Institute. Mr. Arthur Manson made an efficient master of ceremonies. Charles Hunt's orchestra furnished excellent music, and the Chamber of Commerce caterers provided a dainty supper for each guest. The general conveners, Mrs. Stephen and Mrs. Schmels, assisted by Mrs. Dineley, Mrs. Pollock and Mrs. McIntyre, are extremely grateful to all who assisted in any way to make this affair a success. A darky wedding caused much amusement, about twenty guests from Keating taking part. A serpentine melody dance and a moonlight waltz were also enjoyed. The prizes were awarded to the following: Best fancy dressed lady and gentleman, Mr. and Mrs. Leeman, as an Oriental couple; best sustained character, lady, Mrs. F. Walsh, as a witch; sustained character, Mr. Soucie, as a zulu; advertising costume, lady, Mrs. L. Schmels, as Aunt Jenima, Pancake Flour; gentleman, Mr. Schmels, advertising Ormond's, Ltd.; national costume, lady, Mrs. Crothall, Spanish dancer; gentleman, Mr. W. P. Glover, Irishman; best comic lady, Mrs. Spavin, as Susie; gentleman, Mr. Welch, as a negro tramp. The three prettiest prizes were won by Miss Aldred, Miss Beckett and Miss Keiser. Mrs. Duncan was awarded the prize for the best costume representing Stevenson's home chocolate. The tombola prizes were won by: 1. Mrs. Snelling; 2. Mrs. Schmels; 3. Mr. McKay; 4. Mr. A. Hafer; 5. Mr. Peterson; 6. Miss Jones. The prize for the W.B.A. member selling the most tickets, was won by Mrs. Walter Frier.

HOSPITAL DRIVE TO COMMENCE SOON
His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor is extending his patronage to the drive which the Board of Directors of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital are organizing with the assistance of other interested bodies in the city.

LEAVING TO RESIDE ON MAINLAND

Mrs. R. S. Day is leaving Victoria to-day for Vancouver, where she will in future make her home. During her long residence in this city, Mrs. Day has been closely identified with a number of social and philanthropic organizations, being prominent in the I.O.D.E., the Local Council of Women, the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and the now defunct Next-of-Kin Association. Her election to high office in each of these bodies at various times reflects the general recognition of her unusual executive ability. Mrs. Day has also been a valued supporter of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital, of which board her late husband was chairman at the time of his death.

SOCIALLY PERSONAL AND

Mrs. Fleming, of this city, has been on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. J. T. Fowler, at Coldstream, near Vernon. Mrs. H. Schofield, M.P.P., and Mrs. Schofield, of Trail, are registered at the Empress Hotel, having arrived to-day for the session. Mrs. Clarke, of Vancouver, who is lecturing on Sunday at the Church of Revelation, will, during her stay in Victoria, be the guest of Mrs. M. L. Smith, Blanshard Street. Mr. J. F. Armstrong, of this city, who has recently been visiting in Cranbrook, on his way home from Montreal, is now the guest of Mrs. F. P. Armstrong, 516 Hoover Street, Nelson. Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, who are registered at the Empress Hotel, have made an extensive motor tour from their home at North Bay, where Mr. Ferguson is a pioneer. They came by way of Milwaukee, and the Yellowstone Trail. Mrs. R. M. Winslow, formerly of this city, who has recently resided at Vernon, has reached Prince Rupert, to join her husband, who has been appointed sales manager for the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Company. Mrs. M. Webster, of 349 Beckley Avenue, announces the engagement of her youngest daughter, Evelyn, to Mr. Roy MacDonald Sharp, youngest son of Rev. and Mrs. J. Sharp, of this city. The marriage will take place early in November. Mrs. K. Caddell, of 1052 Johnson Street, announces that Wednesday, the following guests: Mrs. W. A. Dodd, Mrs. F. Swinger, of Lethbridge, Alta.; Mrs. J. Harris, Mrs. F. Harris, Mrs. D. Taylor, Mrs. P. Taylor and Mrs. Musgrave. After tea a delightful time was spent in music and games. Mrs. Alex. J. Fraser was a hostess at bridge on Thursday afternoon at her home on Joan Crescent, Craigdarroch, when her guests included Mrs. R. P. Rithet, Mrs. A. N. Mouat, Mrs. C. F. Hill, Mrs. W. Dick, Mrs. F. W. Jones, Mrs. J. A. Turner, Miss Hartland, of Toronto; Mrs. W. Fleet Robertson, Mrs. W. F. George, Mrs. Hammond King, Mrs. J. Ashworth, Mrs. Schwartz, Mrs. J. O. Wilson, Mrs. Brough, of Toronto; Mrs. Carley, Mrs. E. W. Wilson and Miss Galletley. Mrs. Keating and Mrs. R. H. Oliver presided at the tea table. Complimentary to Miss Tottie Day, who is leaving next Wednesday to reside in Vancouver, Major Hughes entertained at bridge and mah jong in the officers' mess at Wood Fort Barracks last evening. Among those present were Miss Day, Major and Mrs. Wright, Major and Mrs. Cobbett, Major and Mrs. Edwards, Captain and Mrs. Bishop, the Misses Eileen Graveley, of Vancouver; Edna Humber, Jennie and Nellie Turner, Betty Gray, Alice Nash, Dinky Coe, Captain Thackray, Major Grant, Colonel Greer, Messrs. Gow, Jimmy Gray, Maurice Carmichael, Charlie Cox, Ken Rycarmur and Russell Turner. No executive or general meeting of the Canadian Legion will be held next week. The next meetings will take place on November 5 and 7. Members are requested to bear these dates in mind and arrange to attend these meetings as matters of importance will be dealt with.

YOUR HOME AND YOU
By HELEN KENDALL
A BOUDOIR LAMP

It was the daintiest, merriest boudoir in the world, anyway. A bride made herself lovely in it every day—and again for the evening. Its walls were paneled in blue sky. At least it looked like blue sky with floating pearly clouds. Her puffy girlanded bed was covered with rose-colored silk having pearly sunburst lights in it, and there was an old rose velvet carpet on the floor. But perhaps it was the lamp which hung from the electric light fixture in the ceiling that was the most charming of all. The fixture itself was one of those uninteresting three-lamp clusters under a white porcelain disk, and it had been painted a gaudy, gaudy, gaudy blue. It was so made a part of that dainty, airy room. The bride herself made it. She got several yards of crisp tulle in pale rose, palest lavender, and a white that looked like silver when it was illuminated—yes, just like frosty silver. These three pieces of tulle were cut into graduated strips, the lavender beneath them the rose over the lavender, and the white over all, like a mist. The strips were sewed together, folded, and fastened spiral fashion to a plain foundation of heavy net, stretched on a framework that enclosed the cluster of lamps. The diffused light came down softly, the blue, lavender and white, entirely concealing the lamps themselves, and sending light out through the tulle as well as between them. For delicate prettiness it was the finishing touch to a boudoir that seemed breathed from a fairy wand instead of the outcome of modern industry.

POLICEMEN CHOOSE THURSDAY FOR BALL

Brilliant Annual Function Not to Conflict With Hockey

The tenth annual ball of the Victoria Police Mutual Benefit Association will be held at the Armories on Thursday, November 22. This date has been very considerably chosen by the police in place of the usual Friday, in order not to conflict with the hockey series, and they feel confident that the change will meet the convenience of all those who have so generously supported them in past years. The police ball is one of the outstanding functions of the social season, and the "men in blue" are exerting every effort commensurate with their reputation as excellent hosts. There is every indication that the 1923 ball will outrival its predecessors in brilliance and success.

BAZAAR FOR HOSPITAL

On November 8 in the former offices of Dr. Fraser, on Douglas Street, a bazaar and sale of work is being held by the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital. With the following members of the Auxiliary in charge of the various booths, the bazaar is already an assured success. General conveners, Mrs. E. P. Moody and Mrs. Savannah; fancy work, Mrs. Bone and Mrs. Haynes; novelties, Mrs. L. A. Genge, the chapter regent, was assisted in the organization of the dual affair by an enthusiastic and energetic committee, while Mrs. J. Hobden Gillespie directed the tea and supper arrangements. The committees were much gratified at the financial result of the affair and expressed their sincere thanks to Mrs. Sutherland for her generous hospitality and cooperation.

DAUGHTERS OF PITTY ANNUAL BAZAAR

On Saturday, November 3, the Daughters of Piety will hold their annual bazaar in the Nurses' Home, in aid of the children's ward of the Jubilee Hospital. The sale will be formally opened at 3 o'clock, by Mrs. Herman Robertson and it is hoped all friends of the hospital will liberally patronize the various stalls. Miss Bannerman, who has charge of the tea, has arranged a charming musical programme. Fortune telling will be a special feature, and a beautiful beaded bag and large cake will be raffled. The conveners of stalls are as follows: Fancy work, Miss Lovell; baby wear, Mrs. McKay; home cooking, Miss Roberts; novelty stall, Miss Brandon; candy, Miss McAdam; aprons, Mrs. McElin; bags, Miss Sylvester; white elephant, Miss Tait.

T. B. VETERANS' BALL

Second Annual Function to Be Held on November 29 at Alexandra Ballroom. His Hon the Lieutenant-Governor and Brig-General J. M. Ross are among the patrons of the second annual ball of the Tuberculous Veterans' Association to be held Tuesday, November 29, at the Alexandra Club, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, Auxiliary to T.V.A. This will be one of the outstanding events of the season. Dancing will be from 9 to 2, Heaton's orchestra rendering latest numbers. A limited number of tickets are available and can be purchased at David Spencer's music store, or any of the committee, or by phoning the chairman, 6517R.

Science Means Saving In Washing Woolens

FABRICS, like people, have their peculiarities. We know that to meet these needs of your clothes specialized laundering methods must be used. Woolens have their "peculiarities." Woolens—your blankets, flannels, underwear and sweaters—unless washed the right way, soften, shrink and "felt." The reason is simple—because these woolens are the product of animal life and of the very same texture as our finger nails and hair. Here is the method we use in the washing of your woolens—it is prescribed by the Laundryowners' National Association: "Prepare bath by running into washer ten inches of water in inside cylinder. Adjust temperature to 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Add neutral soap and run washer until suds are formed. Place woolens in washer and run fifteen minutes. Remove woolens by spinning basket (to withdraw water) and spin for one minute after full speed is obtained. Discharge suds from washer, and run in fresh water of same temperature as used for suds (use thermometer); replace woolens in this bath, and rinse three minutes. Place woolens in spinning basket, and run for two minutes after speed is obtained. Dry at ordinary room temperature. (Woolens should not be dried at high temperature.) Why cling to work, worry and uncertainty? Your laundry can hardly be expected to know these important details, for this is practice resulting from long study by experts. It is this practice which distinguishes our professional service from ordinary domestic labor. TRY THE "NEW METHOD WAY." Phone 2300 and one of our Route Men will call. Macy and Baird Company Present Gripping Drama of Alaska

A rugged story of life on the outskirts of civilization is presented by the Macy-Baird Stock Company at Pantages Theatre this week-end in "The Law of the North," with Allan Wishart, who has made a study of the hardy characters of Alaska, taking a leading part in his own production. situations with a clever mixture of humor. The leading lady, Miss Jean Rose, and Marcette McKay, has a role which gives her scope for some talented dramatic acting in conjunction with Edward Baldwin, a fugitive from justice, which role is capably filled by the author, Allan Wishart.

P. A. Dale has a difficult part, which he handles well as Pierre Vallois, who champions the heroine. Speck Leitch as usual is the comedian of the piece, and as Toby Barnum well upholds his reputation as the laughter marker of the company. John Dale as Andrew McKay.

"Merry-Go-Round" Can be Seen For Last Time To-day

Sometimes what seems bitter to us may turn out to be the greatest good fortune in life, for the "Merry-Go-Round" of fate may jerk us from one coveted position, whirl us to a far corner of the world stage, and there bring a desired purpose to fruition by a chance twist of circumstance.

The "Merry-Go-Round" is running quietly, smoothly and most efficiently. He who thinks he need not ride would do well to see the motion picture, "Merry-Go-Round," the "Universal Super-Jewel," which is being shown at the Dominion for the last time to-day.

The remarkable story told in this photodrama of love and war concerns a girl of the lower classes, a work-drive organ grinder of the Prater, Vienna's "Coney Island" amusement park, and a proud young count, a scion of one of the "leading families" and right-hand man to the Emperor Francis Josef.

Miss Philbin for the excellence of her work. The queer things that fate does to those who seem most settled in their worldly niches are shown, not simply as the "unexpected," but as the logical results of certain forces working toward certain ends. All the surprise developments in "Merry-Go-Round" have their meaning, both to the plot and to the mirroring of natural forces and psychological influences, which is the purpose of the story.

Those who don't like stories that are all theme and no romance need not fear "Merry-Go-Round," for its love story, the very essence of the picture is a gripping heart drama.

ROYAL VICTORIA

An Indian attack on a prairie caravan is one of the big scenes in "Pioneer Trails," a Vitaphone special production, which will be shown at the Royal Theatre for the last time to-day. David Smith, director of the picture, has reproduced in this sequence one of the more famous Indian massacres, preserving carefully every historical detail.

FOLK SONG RECITAL TO OPEN SEASON

Mme. Wood Jess, American Artist, to Sing For Musical Club

Intense interest is being shown in the forthcoming concert to be given by Madam Grace Wood Jess, America's leading interpreter of folk songs, on Monday evening, October 29, in the Empress Hotel ball-room.

This will be the opening recital of the Ladies' Musical Club's season, and will be open to the public. As the programme, which will consist of plantation melodies and folk songs, all given in suitable costume, will prove a most interesting and unique one, it is hoped that a crowded house will greet Madam Jess on her first appearance in Victoria.

The recital will begin at 8.30 p.m., and as members presenting 1923-24 tickets will be admitted free, it is hoped that they will endeavor to be early.

PLAYHOUSE

To-night will be the last opportunity which lovers of this great drama will have to see what was probably the most popular play in which Sir Henry Irving appeared. As Matthias, the character represented by the great actor, Francis Compton is seen at his best, his rendering of the part being probably the best work of his career. He is ably supported by Miss Peggy Dundas as Annette, Herbert Leslie as the Court Judge, Miss Agnes Burton as Catherine, Clifford Winterston as Christine, George Durham as Hans and the Mesmerist and Miss Winifred Macgillivray as the Nurse.

CAPITOL

It cannot be said that Gloria Swanson never had any stage experience. In "Zaza," an Allan Dwan production in which Miss Swanson appears in the stellar role and which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre, the star appears in the title role, that of a show girl at a popular French cabaret. Mary Thurman appears as Florianne on the same bill. H. B. Warner is Miss Swanson's leading man. Among others in the support are Ferdinand Gottschalk, Lucille La Verne and Rip Hatch. Hal Rosson was cameraman.

COLUMBIA

The Los Angeles shipbuilding industry plays an important part in Marshall Neilan's new production "The Stranger's Banquet," a screen adaptation of Donn Byrne's colorful novel, which is showing at the Columbia Theatre to-day.

In the past few years the shipbuilding industry at San Pedro has grown to such an extent that it compares favorably with the leading ports of the country. There, with thousands of workers supplying the "atmosphere," Mr. Neilan pictured some of the most dramatic situations in Donn Byrne's book.

Originals Will Present a Brand New Production

The world-famous band of Canadian soldier entertainers, the "Originals" (old "Dumbells") are coming to Victoria with a brand new production, which has been styled "Pepper Pot of Pep." The revue spells PEP in capital letters and is one continuous volcano of music and merriment from the rise of the curtain to the close of the last brilliant number in which they all appear without their costume characteristics.

"Rapid Fire" is the name of the new revue which will be presented at the Royal Victoria Theatre next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. The title of this show is certainly significant of the entertainment, for the twenty-five different numbers come in such rapid succession that one naturally thinks of a machine gun in action. As such, the numerous cloths of the enter-impersonators wear. Jock Holland is a marvel in his display of different gowns. One can hardly believe when he sees the most attractive—the beautiful white toilette he dons for the "Out West" episode in "Monty of the Mountains," the gorgeous gold sequin gown and wide of white silk in which he makes such a stunning picture as Catherine the Great of Russia, or the delicate mauve dress he wears in his own particular character number. Fred Fenwick is another of the boys who knows how to grace female raiment and he surely looks fetching in several of his "Creations." Gene Pearson, the much-heralded newcomer to this group this season, becomes in his transformation a "girl" of the ingenue type. He is very convincing in voice and appearance in both "Carmina" and as the old-fashioned "girl" of the crinoline and pantalolet period. This admirably suits his magnificent natural soprano voice, which is used with such telling effect in "The Last Rose of Summer." Alan Murray in his "Value Originals" and as the match girl in the "Garden of Karma" makes him an excellent exponent of the art of terpsichore, who gives thought to the grace and symmetry of motion. And this isn't half of it.

BRILLIANT VIOLINIST AT CAPITOL

Not since its opening, now about three years ago, has the Capitol had a more brilliant performer than is the clever young American violinist, Viola Wasterlain, now filling a two weeks' engagement at this house. Prior to her visit here, Miss Wasterlain played at the Capitol at Vancouver, where her success was instantaneous and it is not saying too much when it is stated that the young artist is carving great and additional triumphs in the Capital city. Her violin playing is of the highest order, and for so young a performer she makes an unusual appeal to her listeners. Technically equipped, her breadth of tone, pure style, rhythmic feeling and abounding tempera-

Cougars Will Have Capable Reserves

Six or Seven Players Will Battle For Honor of Playing "Sub" on Hockey Team This Year; Lester Patrick Will Protect Himself Against Failure of Reserves; Carson Thompson, of Okotoks, Alberta, and Harold Hart, of Weyburn, Sask., Have Signed to Tryout

In order to make sure that his substitutes this year will be able to jump into a game at any time and maintain a pace close to that of the regulars, Lester Patrick, manager of the Cougars, is beating the bushes in an effort to secure and develop some youngsters who may, in a few years, develop into Fredericks, Haldersons, Foytons and MacKays.

Lester intends to bring about six or seven players here to compete for the vacant berths of subs. He has already got his hands on several promising lads, but still has his ear to the ground in the hope that he will get some more good tips.

This morning the Cougar mogul announced that he had succeeded in getting Carson Thompson, an Alberta amateur, to come to the coast for a tryout. Thompson played with Okotoks in the Alberta Amateur League last year and showed the greatest promise of any boy in that loop. He is a forward, nineteen years of age and is husky, fast and willing to learn.

Looks Very Good Thompson will be here about the end of next week ready to show Lester just what he can do. Scouts who tipped Manager Patrick off to Thompson, claim that he has the makings of a very capable player. Another young recruit whom Lester is banking on is Harold Hart, of Weyburn, Sask., whose birth certificate shows him to be twenty-one years of age. He is a forward who comes highly recommended by the amateur heads of Saskatchewan. Hart played with Weyburn last year and showed a dash which augurs well for his success in higher company.

Subs Have Failed In the past couple of years the failure of the subs to deliver has really cost Victoria the race. Last year it was thought by all when the curtain went up that the Cougars were for once ready to battle, with their reserves of proven merit. But it developed as the race progressed that the only sub that could be depended upon was Jocko Anderson. At the outset Jocko was the sure of himself due to the change of climate and new conditions, but he bit his stride in mid-season and could be dropped into the gutter. He out the attack and defense. Wilf Loughlin and Tommy Dunderdale were expected to be good men for five minutes or so, but they once seemed to be able to settle into their old form and as a result spent most of their time on the bench. Dielal showed flashes of speed, but he did not seem to be able to stock the pace for more than a few minutes.

This year the subs will have to play for their players. Just because they are signed does not mean that they have a job for the winter. They will have to go out on the pond, show their stuff and fight all through the training period for places.

They'll Have to Fight Among those who will be here to workout for places on the utility roll will be Jocko Anderson, Clem Trihey, Bill Speck, Harold Hart and Carson Thompson. It is possible that one of these youngsters may show form right off the bat and win a regular berth, in which case one of the older stars may have to do the bench-warming. Billy Gibson is slated to take Eddie Oatman's place, but he may not be able to eclipse one of the other boys and may have to wrap himself in a blanket and look on.

Other players are to be given tryouts and announcements are expected next week as to who has come to terms with Manager Patrick. The fact that there will be competition and not just enough players for the berths will cause some spirited work-outs. There will be fire and pep, which was missing in some of the previous training periods, and it will all help to put the entire team in

Critics Are Asking Whether or Not Walter Hagen Is Slipping From Top

Either Walter Hagen, for years the hot shot among American professionals; is fading from the championship picture or else he is beset by one of the most vicious, two-handed jinxes in the long and turbulent history of the sport.

Hagen, twice winner of the American open and once winner of the British open, may still be the best golfer in the works, but Gene Sarazen, 22-year-old Italian, who came up from nowhere a year ago to win the national title, wishes to register a dissenting vote.

If beating Hagen repeatedly over a fairly extended stretch of time is sufficient to establish one as the pre-eminent golfer of the country, then there is nothing left to do but to usher Sarazen into the throne room and invite him to sit in the big Morris rocker over there by the bay window.

Gene Won Three In the course of some 14 months' play Sarazen and Hagen have come together in four important matches, and in three of them Hagen was beaten. A three-out-of-four verdict leaves little room for controversy, no grounds at all for a recount. Sarazen either is a better player than the Rochester homebred or else he is destiny's favorite child in matches between the two.

Sarazen began to assert himself a year ago at Stoke when he won the open championship for the first time, scoring a 68 on his last round for a winning total of 288, a dramatic stroke ahead of Bob Jones, the amateur, and John Black, the coast pro. Hagen was fifth in the list. Later in the year Sarazen accomplished what no other professional had ever done before; he won the Victoria title for the first time, scoring a 68 on his last round for a winning total of 288, a dramatic stroke ahead of Bob Jones, the amateur, and John Black, the coast pro. Hagen was fifth in the list.

It was about this time that the Hagen feud developed. As holder of the British title Hagen was matched with Sarazen, holder of the American title for what was termed the world's championship. It was a 72 holes match and Sarazen won after being two down at the end of the first day's play.

This year Sarazen gave Hagen what amounted to a return bout under similar circumstances and again beat him. Subsequently they came together in the finals of the professionals' annual match play championship and for the third time Sarazen carried away the main honors.

Hagen, noted for his fine fighting qualities, has met his equal at least in the colorful Italian. Sarazen showed he was a fighter at Stoke last Summer when he came back after an indifferent morning round and shot a 68 to win the championship. He further showed his courage by coming from behind to beat Hagen in the special match, and again in the P. G. A. finals when feating Hew Paterson in the finals, 1 up. A. S. Musgrave won the first flight from Louis York, 3 and 2. In the second flight, McInnes and Baird have yet to play off in the semi-finals, and the winner will play Carow Martin in the finals.

By winning this competition Mr. Waghorn received the handsome challenge cup presented by Chaltoner & Mitchell some years ago, which he retains for one year, he will also be given a miniature cup by the club, which he will retain.

Sunday School League to Open Wednesday, Nov. 7

Four Games Slated For the Opening Night; Champs Will Appear in Opener

The Sunday School basketball will open here on Wednesday, November 7, four games have been slated for that night. All the games this year will be played in the Trades Hall, Broad Street. On the opening night the First Presbyterian senior men's team, city champions, will clash with the Metropolitan five. This should be a thriller for an opener, as the Mets are rumored to have some new material and will be right out after the title this year. The First "Pres" boys will have practically the same lineup as last year, "Red" Hastings being the only new colt in the fold.

In the girls game the seniors from the Metropolitan Church will meet Christ Church, and this should be a battle royal, as the girls have been practicing hard and both teams will be anxious to cop the opening game.

Boys Hope to Repeat In the intermediate boys the James Bays, last year's champions, will stack up against the Falcons. The Bays are quite confident that they will be able to repeat their feat of last year.

The final game of the evening will be staged between the intermediate girls from St. John's and the Excelsiors.

The Sunday School League schedule up till November 14 is as follows: Wednesday, Nov. 7—Senior Girls, Christ Church vs. Metropolitan; Intermediate "A" Boys, James Bay vs. Falcons; Senior Men, First Presbyterian vs. Metropolitan; Intermediate Girls, Excelsior vs. St. John's.

Saturday, Nov. 10—Senior Girls, Fidelity vs. St. Andrew's; Intermediate "A" Boys, Adams vs. Centennial; Senior Men, Onwego vs. James Bay.

Wednesday, Nov. 14—Senior Girls, St. John's vs. Excelsior; Intermediate "B" Boys, Comets vs. Falcons; Intermediate "A" Boys, Onwego vs. St. Mary's.

Mrs. Philbrick Wins Another Golf Title Beating Mrs. Parry

Mrs. Philbrick annexed another golfing honor yesterday afternoon when she disposed of Mrs. W. Parry by six up and four to play in the finals for the championship of the Victoria Golf Club. A couple of weeks ago Mrs. Philbrick won the city ladies' title and at that time she defeated Mrs. Parry in the finals by three and two.

Mrs. Paterson defeated Mrs. Heisterman in the first flight final. At the conclusion of the competition Mrs. A. C. Burdick, the donor of the handsome cup, which is emblematic of the ladies' club championship, presented the prizes.

Mrs. Philbrick retains the cup for one year. She also won a box of golf balls and a box of golf balls was awarded to Mrs. Parry, the runner-up, and Mrs. Paterson, the winner of the first flight.

Dave Shade Wins Battle on Points From Billy Wells

New York, Oct. 27.—Dave Shade, of California, won the judge's decision over Billy Wells, welterweight champion of England, after 15 rounds of fighting in Madison Square Garden last night. Shade weighed 147 pounds and Wells 146. The fight was one-sided and uninteresting. Shade taking virtually every round and striking his opponent at will. Shade's punches, although seeming to lack steam, inflicted punishment on the English champion who tried to spar with Shade, was struck by an automobile here yesterday and seriously injured.

One Hundred Senior Golfers In Tourney

Great Interest Is Being Taken In First Championship of Senior Northwest Golfers' Association, Which Will Open Here on November 6; Players Coming From Portland, Seattle, Spokane, Tacoma, Vancouver and Everett; International Match As Well

One hundred golfers will be here the week after next for the first championship conducted by the Senior Northwest Golfers' Association. The players are coming from all parts of Washington, Oregon and British Columbia and one of the keenest and most enjoyable competitions that has ever been staged here is looked for.

Although only organized a few months ago the Senior Northwest Golfers' Association has found great favor among the golfing fraternity of the Northwest. In order that those who have passed the fifty mark might still participate in a championship, the Senior Golfers' Association has sprung into being.

Play Opens November 6 The championship will be held at the Victoria Golf Club, commencing November 6. Eighteen holes will be played that day and another eighteen the following day. The golfers with the lowest gross score for the thirty-six holes will be crowned the first champion of the association and will become the possessor of the handsome Barnard Cup, presented by Senator Harry Barnard, president of the association.

On Friday, November 9, the first international match will be played. Fifteen holes will be played in the United States and a similar number representing Canada will play for the beautiful trophy presented by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

Five hundred dollars' worth of prizes will be up for competition during the championship. It is expected that many members of the association, other than those taking part in the play, will be here for the tournament. The membership now totals 167 and applications are being received every day.

City League Opens Nov. 19 The regular schedule of the league will commence on Monday, November 19, and on account of the local alleys being in use in the meantime it was decided to organize the sudden-death tournament. It is expected that eight teams will compete for the city championship, namely, the Printers, Elks, Moose, Denholm's and the Printers, Stocker's and the Commercial Travelers.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. D'Arcy; secretary, Frank Youngs; treasurer, Mr. Shepherd.

Following is the schedule for the sudden-death tournament: Thursday, November 1: Arcades vs. United Commercial Travelers. Friday, November 2: Weller's vs. Printers. Monday, November 5: Denholm's vs. Colonist. Tuesday, November 6: Winners of Friday play winners of Monday. Wednesday, November 7: Winners of Tuesday play winners of Thursday. All matches to be played on the Pemberton Bowling Alleys.

Eight Teams Will Compete in City Bowling League; Sudden-Death Tournament

Eight strong teams will take part in the City Bowling League, it was decided at the annual meeting held last night in the Pemberton Building. The first game will be played next Tuesday evening when the opening gaps in a sudden-death tournament will be played. The following teams are entered: The Colonist, Weller's, Arcades, United Commercial Travelers, Denholm's and the Printers. The Arcades and the Travelers will clash in the first match of the tourney.

A matter of interest that was brought up at the meeting was the advisability of the local league becoming affiliated with the "Northwestern International Bowling Congress, which it was also decided that either one or two teams would take part in the Northwest Bowling Tournament, which will be played at the end of the season in Vancouver.

Future For Game Is Very Promising One

Canadians of Future May Be Able to Enjoy Same Delightful Hunting Expeditions As Their Forefathers Did When They Were Able to Bag Vast Quantities of Game; Wise Precautions Taken Will Result in Restocking of Game Now Nearly Extinct

When the white man first came to the North American continent, one of the attractions, not least among the many which appealed to those early settlers, was the great abundance of bird life, which not only afforded pleasure to both eye and ear, but was also a definite and unfailing source of food. Since then, the hunting and killing of game birds has been continued by succeeding generations, though the meat now obtained is no longer one of the principal means of subsistence. Men of to-day hunt more particularly for the sport of hunting and for the sake of the recreation afforded by an outing in the unspoiled outdoors. Many a tired business and professional man looks eagerly forward each year to his annual excursion to the woods, where, with his gun, he may spend a week or two of pure joy, away from all the cares and worries of his daily life, back in civilization, returning after his brief sojourn in the wilds, rested and strengthened, with renewed ambition to perform his share in the big world's work.

The early hunters brought back with them large bags of game. Then the bags grew smaller, and gradually it became evident to thinking men that our game birds were in danger of extermination if the decrease in their numbers was to continue. In fact, a number of species, once plentiful, have actually become extinct. These include the Eskimo Curlew, the Labrador Duck, the Passenger Pigeon and the Carolina Parakeet. Others, such as the Whooping Crane and the Trumpeter Swan, are in exceedingly grave danger of extinction at an early date.

Of Value to the Farmers

While probably everyone will admit the great need for preserving game birds as a natural asset, not everyone, perhaps, is fully aware of the value to the farmer, and, indirectly, to all humanity, of the insect-eating birds, because of the immense quantity of injurious insects destroyed each year by their agency. Should their numbers become reduced to a marked extent, it would be observed in the damage to field crops, and in the damage to fruit crops, by insect pests, damage which is estimated to amount to millions of dollars annually in Canada alone.

Many Canadian species of the game and the insect-eating varieties, spend the winter months in the southern United States, or pass through the United States, in the course of their migration, and come back again in the Spring to propagate. It therefore became evident some years ago, that any measure, taken with a view to the protection of Canada's migratory birds, must be carried out in co-operation with the United States, if it was to be effective. The utility of protecting birds in one part of the country, only to have them killed in another, was also recognized by the United States authorities, who, in 1913, enacted their Federal Migratory Bird Law, which gave uniform protection to migratory birds throughout the various States of the Union, with equal open seasons fixed in accordance with local conditions.

Uniform Protection

There was now uniform protection throughout the United States, and conservationists, both of that country and of Canada, immediately took steps urging the necessity for an international treaty for the protection of migratory birds. Their efforts were finally crowned with success when, in August, 1916, the "Migratory Birds Convention" was signed by the representatives of Great Britain and the United States. This treaty provides for the absolute protection in both Canada and the United States of game birds during the Spring months and of insectivorous birds throughout the year. It also provides for an open season of three and a half months, during which the sportsman, wherever he may live, is free to hunt game birds, fully aware of the fact that he is not being discriminated against, and that he has an equal chance at the birds with all other sportsmen in either country. Regulations setting forth the dates for the open season, and the seasons for Canada, may be obtained from J. B. Harkin, Commissioner, Canadian National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, by whom the Dominion Act based upon the treaty is administered.

Will Observe Centenary of Rugby Thursday

London, Oct. 27.—A match of international interest will take place on Thursday afternoon at Rugby, when the centenary of rugby football will be observed. A team selected from England and Wales will meet a team selected from Scotland and Ireland, and a match of exceptional brilliance is anticipated.

The announcement that there will be only 2,000 tickets available for the general public has already caused some heartburning, for there are more than ten times that number who are keenly anxious to secure the pastebards and have reasonable claim on such.

Must Educate Hunters

As most of the provinces have amended their game laws to conform with the Migratory Convention Act, thus making it possible for them to enforce the terms of the treaty within their respective territories, the principle was to be maintained, in this connection, is the education of the people to a knowledge of the law and its benefits and the encouragement of a sympathetic attitude towards bird protection. At the same time it has enforced the law in remote sections and in some provinces.

A very important means by which the Act is enforced is through the medium of a large force of honorary game officers, including farmers and professional men and farmers and fishermen, and the fact that their numbers are steadily increasing is most encouraging for the future welfare of Canada's bird life.

Future Is Promising

The prospect for the future is most promising in every way. Although it is not possible to say that game birds are abundant, and it is certain that, due to the wise precautionary measure which has been taken in the passing of the Migratory Birds Treaty, Canadians of the future will be able to enjoy the

SHOCK-PUNCHING IS NOW BEST METHOD OF DISPOSING OF OPPONENT IN RING

THIS IS DEMPEY'S "SHOCK PUNCH" HE DELIVERS IT WITH EITHER HAND.

Short, Snappy Blow Will Usually Cause Man Hit To Fall Forward and Out

There are three different kinds of blows used in boxing, and the ability to use one of these better than anyone else ever did, makes Jack Dempsey the greatest heavyweight champion since gloves have been used in ring contests and Queensbury succeeded the old London Prize Ring style of fighting. First of these was the jabbing, wearing down style, once used by Jim Corbett and others who followed the old English hit and get away style. This was good enough for a fast man to use when finish fights were sixty rounds with Peter Jackson, dancing and jabbing, and the referee finally stopped the bout when half the crowd had gone home and the other half was asleep. He used the same style to beat John L. Sullivan, who was worn down by his own rushes and Corbett's constant fire of light, fast punches. The same style was useless against rugged Tom Sharkey, who rushed in headlong and paid no attention to boxing, and it didn't much more than annoy big Jim Jeffries.

The next style of hitting is the heavy, crushing punch that is driven clear through and delivered with a tremendous muscular effort, a "push punch" that knocks a man back. It was a good enough punch for Jeffries, who was stronger than any other man I've ever seen in a ring. It was a good punch for John L. Sullivan, who ran in to swing his right like a club. Sharkey, Willard, Jack Johnson and many other powerful heavyweights often used it.

The Shock Punch

The third kind of punch is the shock punch, as used by Dempsey, Bob Fitzsimmons, Peter Maher, Carpenter, Stanley Ketchel, Mike Gibbons, and a few others who had the knack of delivering a sudden one-punch knockout.

There's a great difference between a shock punch and a push punch. The shock punch is driven with tremendous effort and delivered only at the instant of impact. It is not driven through like a push punch. A man hit with this kind of punch with a shock punch falls forward. A man hit with a push punch, no matter how hard, falls backward.

Bob Fitzsimmons was a practitioner of the delivery of short blows with shock effect. He often delivered knockouts with blows that seemed to travel only a few inches. Fitz used to say he could knock his man out with a six-inch blow.

Dempsey is the first heavyweight since Fitzsimmons who has this trick of shock-punching. I have seen Dempsey in many fights. The only man I ever saw fall backward after being hit by Dempsey was Fred Fulton. This was because Dempsey knocked Fulton out with a left hook in the body, and as Fulton fell forward, straightened him with a left hook on the chin. Fulton was then out, and falling forward again when Dempsey shot over a right to the jaw for good measure, and this last blow upset Fulton and sent him over on his back.

Morris Was Right Out

Dempsey hit Carl Morris one blow in New Orleans and Morris fell forward on his face. When he rolled him over they found that Carl's tongue was coated with resin from the floor. He fell with his mouth open.

Dempsey knocked Firpo down nine times in the two rounds fought at Polo Grounds, September 14. Every time Firpo fell forward, usually landing on his hands and knees, but sometimes going flat at full length. He fell forward in the knockout.

Every Dempsey blow that dropped Firpo was so short that even from the press seats at the ringside, it was hard to see how Jack was putting the giant down. Each punch was a short hook, driven only a few inches. Bob Fitzsimmons never knocked his man down with shorter blows. The shock punch, short and snappy, isn't as spectacular as a full arm swing or a long driven straight right, but it is the greatest working punch in pugilism. The body is not driven far behind the punch, and doesn't swing forward after the delivery.

Down to Stay
Dempsey says that the shock of the button the same way Sharkey would

Hornsby, Sensational Player of St. Louis Cards May Pass to Either Giants or Chicago Cubs

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The latest sensation in the National League concerns a right hook delivered by Rogers Hornsby against the jaw of Branch Rickey, manager of the Cardinals.

Of course, Rickey was not on the receiving end throughout the flat battle, for reports have it that after Hornsby challenged with the first blow there was a wild exchange of hooks and uppercuts that only came to a finish when players in the clubhouse separated the two battlers.

And the final result is that Hornsby, admired for years by the manager of the Cardinals, held up by Rickey as one of the most ideal players he has ever met in his career, will be put on the auction block this winter.

Reports were circulated yesterday that Hornsby is to go to the Chicago Cubs but this was later denied. Imagine the scrambling to the pit to bid for Rogers Hornsby! What sweet words for John J. McGraw and the Giants.

For whenever anything is offered for sale, who in the league has a chance in competitive bidding against the Giants? No one.

Sarazen Reveals Inside Stuff on Mashie-Niblick

Shows Why the Shot Fails and Tells When and When Not to Use it

By GENE SARAZEN
The mashie-niblick or niblick shot is not really very difficult, yet many golfers make this shot much harder than it is. If you can only get into the habit of following the club-head to do most of the work on it, you will find it quite simple in its execution. And if you once learn to play this club correctly and efficiently you will find it a great stroke-saver.

While discussing the use of the mashie-niblick I think that it is well to point out when you should take a straight-faced club such as a mid-iron. There is less chance of error with either of these clubs than with the mashie-niblick, and the shot is simpler.

For one thing, if you have a straight shot into the green, and you are within easy pitching distance, never use the mashie-niblick. Use either your mashie, or, if you are quite close to the green, take a straight-faced club such as a mid-iron. There is less chance of error with either of these clubs than with the mashie-niblick, and the shot is simpler.

But there are occasions when only a mashie-niblick or niblick can be used. If you have to pitch over a trap or if you have to get the ball out of a bunker, you will, of course, have to resort to the niblick, although there are some traps out of which you can emerge easier and get greater distance with a mashie or iron.

All of this will of course depend on the lie and the distance of the trap from the green. But if you have a mashie-niblick for a chip from just off the green is just suicide!

Don't Quit on the Stroke

In playing a mashie-niblick from off the turf it is well to take a fairly open stance. In addressing such a shot I generally stand with the feet about twenty inches apart and with the right toe about seventeen inches from the ball, the left being twenty inches from the ball.

Grip the club very tightly, with the hands well on top, and on the back-swing take the club very straight and high. As you swing through, the club will fall very slowly. You should never hurry the swing with a niblick, because that kind invariably means a topped shot.

Avoid all body sway. This is one of the main reasons why so many players miss this shot. The body should always be standing firm when playing this shot, and pivoting, too, should be avoided. All of the work in swinging the club is done with the arms.

Another reason why so many fail on this shot is because they quit on the down-stroke. In other words they fail to hit through; consequently there is no firmness or character to the shot. The height of the back-swing will regulate the distance of the shot, but in each and every case you must hit through, taking turf and finishing with the hands well out in front.

For Getting Out of a Trap

In addressing the ball you should stand well over it and be in a fixed position before you swing. Needless to say, the club must be tilted to the ball throughout the swing.

This is one of the shots in golf where the less body action there is, the better will be the shot. Now when you come out of a bunker be sure first of all to take a good look at the lie. The cardinal rule on all trapped shots is make sure to get out. But there are times, as I said before, when you might use a mashie or an iron to better advantage than your niblick.

When playing out of the sand do not keep the eye on the ball but on the sand an inch or two behind the ball. Unless the trap is shallow and hard always take sand in playing this shot. It is the only safe and sure method of getting out of a trap. Lay the face of the club well back and cut across the ball.

Another point to remember about playing bunker shots at an angle is to make sure you are standing firmly on your feet before you swing. Many players play this shot somewhat carelessly, and when they swing the club their feet slip from under them, spoiling the shot.

have fallen on his nose. Jeffries broke three of Sharkey's ribs but Sharkey finished the twenty-five rounds.

I saw Gus Rubin knock Tom Sharkey out nine times in the National Sporting Club of London. Each time Sharkey fell backward. One punch would have done the trick if it had been a Dempsey shocker.

It is impossible for a slow man to deliver a shock punch. He can only hit a heavy, crushing blow. That's why wrestlers never make good boxers. They push—they don't snap—their punches.

Saskatoon Angling For Sprag Cleghorn and Berlanquette

Saskatoon, Oct. 27.—Crescent stock took quite a leap on the local hockey market to-day when it was reported that Newy Lalonde, the Saskatoon manager, had secured the services of Sprag Cleghorn and Berlanquette, a defence man and a left winger respectively, from the Montreal Canadiens.

The report of the signing of these two players came from semi-official sources, and could not be confirmed through any of the new owners who are all away on a hunting trip. Should the report be correct, and there is every reason to believe it is, the Crescents will provide stronger competition in the Western Canada Hockey League than was expected.

The regular line-up would read something like this:—Hainsworth, goal; Cameron and Cleghorn, defence; Lalonde, centre; Cook, right wing; Berlanquette, left wing.

Orders were sent to all players under contract with the Crescents to report here on November 12 for training. In case there is no ice in the local rink they will proceed to Vancouver to go through their training

WOMEN TO ENTER BRITISH CABINET SOON?

Labor's Choice of New Chief Is Regarded as Prophetic

Miss Margaret Bondfield's Election to Highest Office Starts Discussion

NO DOOR SHUT TO SEX

Ability of Women to Share Burdens as Well as Pleasures Recognized, She Says

THREE ARE M.P.'S ALREADY

Lady Astor and Mrs. Wint-ringham Have Many Friends on Labor Benches

London, Oct. 27.—Is Britain soon to have a woman cabinet minister, especially if a labor government comes into power?

The recent election of Miss Margaret Bondfield as chairman of the general council of the Trades Union Congress, considered to be the highest and most influential position in the Trades Union world, is not only an indication of British organized labor's devotion to one of its staunchest and ablest champions, but is prophetic of the desire of the labor leaders to shut no doors on women of ability.

There is as yet no woman labor member in the House of Commons, although a number have aspired to such a position, and on more than one occasion a feminine labor candidate has been defeated by a narrow margin.

Of the three women members of Parliament, two are Conservatives and one is Liberal. But Lady Astor, Conservative, and Mrs. Wint-ringham, Liberal, have much in common with such women as Miss Bondfield, and Lady Astor, in particular, has many friends on Labor benches and works in close co-operation outside the House of Commons with labor members in many of her philanthropic undertakings.

The third, Mrs. Mabel Philipson, formerly a very popular actress on the London stage, is almost a die-hard Conservative.

The election of Miss Bondfield has struck the imagination outside the Labor ranks as much as inside and nowhere more than in the women's organizations throughout the country. To those who have followed the British labor movement closely in the last few years Miss Bondfield's election comes as no surprise, for more and more the women in many of her philanthropic undertakings.

It is due to her persuasiveness that thousands of votes were cast in behalf of the Labor party in the last general election, though she was beaten when she stood for Northampton against one of Lloyd George's Ministers in the Parliamentary elections of 1920. Incidentally she is a confirmed optimist.

Born in Somerset, she began working at the age of 13, and her knowledge of conditions among shop workers is second to none in this country. Thus her appointment is a recognition not only of her abilities, but her lifelong devotion to the cause of the workers.

Miss Bondfield represented Great Britain's thousands of shop workers and saleswomen at the international conference at Bern in 1918, at the French trades union congress in Paris the same year and at the labor convention in Geneva in 1920. At this last place she was elected to the executive committee of the International Federation of Working Women, of which she is now British vice-president and whose president was Mrs. Raymond Robins, of America.

She also was a British trades union congress delegate to Russia in 1920. She is a member of the central committee on women's training and employment and secretary of the National Union of General Workers. It's a long journey from being a

BRITISH SAM COMPERS

PRINCESS DECLARES BRITISH HOLD KEY TO SCRIPTURAL PROPHECIES

London, Oct. 27.—Princess Alice and Countess Athlone, second cousin to King George, have come into prominence by appearing on the platform this week in a conference on the "British Israel movement." The central idea of this organization is that the British race holds the key to Scriptural prophecies, being descended from one of the Ten Tribes of Israel.

Princess Alice, forty years old and a granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is daughter of Prince Leopold, the Duke of Albany. She was married in 1904 to Prince Alexander of Teck, who during the war took the title Earl of Athlone.

Premier W. F. Massey, of New Zealand, also is a believer in the "British Israel movement" and has appeared in support of the princess at the week's conference.

In religious circles generally this movement has about as much influence as Joanna Southcote's box, and few men of scholarship attach the slightest weight to its theories. Since the war, however, it has achieved a certain vogue, and during the last year a number of its members have joined to link up in a world federation.

BUTTERFLIES TO BE KEPT ALIVE ON ICE

London, Oct. 27.—A thousand butterflies will be kept in cold storage in the London Zoo this winter for their own safety. Hitherto the Zoo specimens have been allowed to find their own winter retreats in the outdoor butterfly enclosure, but many were blown away and few survived.

This year they will be housed in an ice box and a few will be taken out periodically and allowed to revel among flowers sprayed with diluted hofey and bathed in artificial sunlight.

Europe More Intent on Sabotage Than Air Progress, Says H. G. Wells

Girl Students Best in Oxford, Says Farnell

Vice-Chancellor, After Career of Veto Edicts, Criticizes Undergraduates

TOO MUCH TROUBLE WITH MEN, HE ASSERTS

Modern City no Longer Desirable For University, He Thinks

London, Oct. 27.—Dr. Richard Farnell, who as vice-chancellor of Oxford University during the last three years has figured in the limelight far more than any of his predecessors, has concluded his term of office with a broadside at Oxford undergraduates in which it is intimated that women students are much cleverer than men.

The vice-chancellor gained notice by his continual application for a veto upon the college activities. He banned Grand Guignol plays, closed two organizations, known as the Bullingdon Club and the Blue Riband, placed certain cafes out of bounds, objected to a lecture by Miss Maud Royden and forbade speeches by Dr. Marie Stopes, the birth control advocate, and George Lansbury, the Labor leader.

He also called in the police to analyze supposed poisoned chocolates sent him and was informed that the white powder found in them was only tooth powder. Now, in leaving, he says: "The women students give us hardly any trouble at all. When they ask for a few privileges or relaxations we find it very difficult to refuse them. As for the young men, naturally they give us trouble and concern. We may reluctantly admit that the modern city of Oxford is no longer such as our former rulers desired it to be—a desirable place for a university."

Dr. Farnell's successor is Dr. Joseph Wells, whose banning proclivities toward undergraduates have not been tested as yet.

PRINCESS MARY LEADS ENGLISH RACING WOMEN

London, Oct. 27.—More English women are actively identified with horse racing or interested in it as a sport this year than ever before. Princess Mary, since her marriage to Viscount Lascelles, has taken a keen interest in it, no doubt because her husband has a racing stable.

Before her marriage she was seldom seen at any of the big turf events and it was taken for granted that while the King and his sons might be enthusiasts and the King the owner of a fairly large string of horses, his daughter, like her mother, cared little for horse racing.

But the Princess now frequently attends the principal meets and seems to be almost as keen about it as her husband.

Among the well-known women who actually have racing stables are Lady Douglas, whose horses are trained with Lord Astor's; Mrs. Arthur James, whose horses are trained in Lord Derby's stables; Mrs. Adam Scott, Lady Nelson, Lady Nunburn-horne, Mrs. C. Stevens, Lady Torrington, Mrs. Peel, whose horse won the Grand National; Mrs. Rudd, Mrs. N. Brownless, Mrs. E. J. E. Dixon, Lady Watts and Mrs. S. Whitburn.

PRINCESS TO STAR

Princess Helena, Countess of Rumania, who created a stir in European court circles by announcement of her intention to go upon the stage, says she will visit America in the near future in the guise of a footlight celebrity.

"Aspirin Jag" Makes British Doctors Worry

London Newspapers Campaign Against Latest Drug Evil

London, Oct. 27.—"Aspirin is becoming a menace to the health of the nation," declares The Daily Express, which with several other newspapers is conducting a crusade against the indiscriminate use of this drug.

It is declared the sales of aspirin have increased enormously in Great Britain since the war and that nine people out of ten have now substituted the little white tablets for whatever nostrums they used to favor.

ENGLISH WOMEN WILL VISIT DISTANT LANDS

London, Oct. 27.—Expeditions to remote corners of the globe soon will be undertaken by two English women.

Miss L. E. Chessman, curator of insects at the London Zoo, will make a 20,000-mile journey to the South Seas as one of a party of eight scientists aboard the yacht St. George, of the Scientific Expeditionary Research Association.

The voyage will last ten months. Besides Miss Chessman, who will study insect life, the party will include experts in geology, biology, botany and marine biology.

Half Civilized State There Halts Advance

Noted Author Despairs of Improvement of Transportation For This Generation

GIANT AIR TRUST URGED AS SOLUTION

But Europe Morally Incapable of Getting Together, He Finds

By H. G. Wells

Noted British Author and Advanced Thinker.

London, Oct. 27.—It is probable that the first adequate and successful inauguration of air transport will be in North and South America, but it is in Europe that the needs and possibilities are greatest.

Were it not for the short-sightedness and petty conservatism of the Europeans, it is in Europe that flying might first become the usual method of travel for distances of over three hundred miles.

Europe is so cut up by channels, sands, bays, Zuyder Zees, Adriatics and Baltic Seas and the like, she has so clumsy an ill-planned railway network, planned upon national lines to restrict road movements across frontiers, that she calls aloud for the aeroplane to save over these vast obstacles and tangled confusions.

But the chief intent and occupation of European administrators nowadays lies in making the railway—and making life insupportable for other Europeans, and naturally flying presents itself to them chiefly as a provocation to international sabotage.

Most of the air services we hear about in Europe are hopelessly inadequate to the needs of civilized people who want to travel conveniently and beautifully. They are uncomfortable, unpunctual, dangerous, ridiculous—in view of what might be—pitiful.

It is absurd to think of an air tour of Western Europe as it would be to think of an automobile tour of the Balkans and Asia Minor. The countries concerned are not sufficiently civilized to allow of such methods of transport.

Occasionally one sees maps in the newspapers showing the most wonderful network of air routes all over Europe, London to Moscow, Manchester to Constantinople, and so on. Any travel bureau will hand the credulous enquirer neat little handbills of air services showing how we may breakfast in London and dine in Berlin and so forth. Let the credulous enquirer try these services. He will find a few tired and badly overhauled machines run by companies with entirely insufficient supplies, plying in a mood of hectic uncertainty over some of these routes.

On others the only thing worth soaring will be soaring premises. And he will find very little hope in the future of any better services. I tried an air tour of Europe this Summer. I did not warn any of the new companies concerned that I meant to write about them. I went as an ordinary passenger. Let me tell my experiences very briefly. I started with a ticket for Berlin from London and my first flight was to Amsterdam. I started on a perfect day for flying. But as we approached the Channel it became evident that we were not going to cross the water, but that we were swaying round to Lempne. Something had gone wrong. We landed at Lempne. The aviator apologized; he had an oil-leakage. Matters were patched up and we got up again in a few minutes. There the oil-leakage was worse than ever, and we could not have gone much further. A head wind or a sudden storm might have got us into serious trouble. We had been flying in a machine that had not been seriously overhauled, an overworked machine, and we had not had any serious trouble.

FEMALE JEKYLL-AND-HYDE EVEN Baffles Royalty

HELEN VERA MACLAREN

Bournemouth, Eng. — After having worn the contrastingly uniform that England puts on its female criminals, after having reddened her hands with the work that women have to do in British prisons, Helen Vera Maclaren ran away from her past, ran just sixty miles away, and blossomed out in society, radiant in silks and jewels, fascinating in conversation, courted and petted by society leaders, and presented to the royal family itself.

It's one of the most amazing things ever recorded in a British court, one of the things that proves that truth is always stranger and more dramatic than fiction. A regular Raffles, this woman was also a regular female Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Two-Sided Nature There was the one side of her that the members of the great English families knew—beautiful, charming, an accomplished dancer, a social success. And then there was the other side of her that the police knew—the woman who simply couldn't keep her hands off other people's property.

Her husband, with haggard face, sat in court here and for the first time heard the real story of his wife's past. Up to that time it had been a sealed book to him. And so the woman who was his love for her that, her lawyer announced, he had fully pardoned her, and when she is released from prison, he will help her patch together the fragments of her life.

She was arraigned here on three separate charges to all of which she pleaded guilty—stealing £46 from one wealthy woman and a fur coat valued at £60 from another, and finally stealing clothing valued at £42 from a local shop.

It was stated she came of a respectable family which was not very well off. The girl had expensive tastes and stole to satisfy them. The fact day for flying. But as we approached the Channel it became evident that we were not going to cross the water, but that we were swaying round to Lempne. Something had gone wrong. We landed at Lempne. The aviator apologized; he had an oil-leakage. Matters were patched up and we got up again in a few minutes. There the oil-leakage was worse than ever, and we could not have gone much further. A head wind or a sudden storm might have got us into serious trouble. We had been flying in a machine that had not been seriously overhauled, an overworked machine, and we had not had any serious trouble.

Crashed Bank Before Caused Nickle Gloom

Ontario's Attorney-General Has Unhappy Memories of the Failure of Farmers' Bank

In future years, when the Home Bank crash will be but a thing of history and a subject for reminiscence, Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., Ontario's Attorney-General, will be cherishing the memory of the role which he is now playing as the director of the Government's prosecution against the bank officials. Such a memory, however, will not be the only one centring about wrecked banks which Mr. Nickle will be carrying with him.

W. F. Nickle

In the collapse of the Farmers' Bank in 1919 he figured in a manner that was less public, but which, for purposes of his personal recollection, was equally impressive. A year or so before the suspension of the Farmers' Bank Mr. Nickle had a client who had contracted to purchase two shares of the bank's stock but who wished to set aside the contract. He instructed Mr. Nickle to fight the matter in the courts, but judgment there went against him, and he was forced to buy the shares.

"Thirteen" Unlucky Is Belief of Premier King

Old Superstition Upsets an Ottawa Dinner Party of Cabinet Ministers

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada, and the members of his Cabinet are evidently superstitious of a dinner party of thirteen. Just before Mr. King left Ottawa for England to attend the Imperial Conference now in progress, he was the guest of honor at a dinner party at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club given by the members of his Cabinet. When the dinner was about to start it was found that the gathering totalled exactly thirteen, as six of the Ministers were away.

There was a hurried conference, and the Premier and Dr. King, Minister of Public Works, came out of the private dining-room where the farewell dinner was to be held and began to look around. The first person they saw was A. F. Macallum, commissioner of works for the city of Ottawa, a member of the club. The two Kings whispered together and while doing so kept glancing at Mr. Macallum. Present Dr. King approached Mr. Macallum and explained the dilemma the cabinet was in.

"Better come on in and have dinner with us, Mac," said the Premier. "Delighted to have the honor," said Mac, and in he went as the lucky fourteenth.

When the dinner was over Mr. Macallum left amid a chorus of thanks led by Canada's Premier.

Editor's "Snappy" Hint Stars Peppy Duchess

Story Featuring the Interesting Lady, However, Has Never Seen the Light of Day

Whether W. J. Duhlop, of the Toronto University extension department is a writer matters not a jot. What does matter specifically is that he knows what writers need and want and caters to their needs accordingly. During the recent course held in journalism at Toronto University, many of the class literally patted "W. J." on the back for selecting one of the "brass hats"—J. Vernon Mackenzie—to lecture on "Style in Journalism."

There were country editors, newspaper men and women, journalists, cub reporters and a sprinkling of well-known feature writers among the 120 registrants taking the week's course. That elusive something termed "style" which all of us seek, turned out simply to be good breeding in the art of writing. Vague, truly; still it may simplify it by the following anecdote related by the speaker:

"Chatting one day with a young author in my office, I told him the theme was good but the writing sloppy. 'Take it home, re-write it, make the introduction snappy.' 'One of the secrets of successful journalism is to make the opening sentence attract the reader. Days went by, weeks too; finally the re-written MS. lay upon my desk. Imagine my surprise when the opening sentence read: 'Oh, h—l,' said the duchess, who previous to this had taken no part in the conversation.' The author could hardly be accused of not taking literally the suggestion to make it 'snappy.'"

WHERE ELEPHANTS GO TO DIE

The statement has been made many times that no white man ever has seen the body of an elephant that died from natural causes either in Africa or India, and where they go when they feel the summons is one of the secrets hidden from the most persistent students of natural history.

One of the stories on that subject is that there is a secret graveyard in the mountains in the interior of Africa, entrance to which man has not discovered, to which the elephants soberly journey to find their tomb, and varied stories have been told of the millions of value to be found there if venturing man could but find the elephant sleeping grounds.

Meighen's Absent Mind Often Led to Dilemmas, His Forgotten Car Tickets Meant Many a Walk

But His Green Fedora at a Friend's Funeral Was One of the Best of the Ex-Premier's Forgetful Moments.

Wherever Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative opposition in the House of Commons, has been, stories of his absent-mindedness are told in those places with not a little enjoyment.

In his student days in Toronto, he was often a guest at the home of W. A. Clarke, the veteran clerk of York township. Mr. Clarke recalls how "Arthur" and members of the family would attend some class function and on breaking up to go home the future Premier sometimes would suddenly express a fervent desire to walk. Before getting home he would discover that he had left his scarf or his rubbers, or both, behind. Soon the ladies learned that the young colleger often came out leaving his pocket money on the dressing table and his cuff links in the other shirt, so they usually held a good-natured inspection before they accompanied him. They would promptly lend him some car tickets when on winter nights after eleven o'clock he would fumble in his pockets and then suggest they walk home.

He taught in the high school at Caledonia before he graduated in law and went west. He was a prime favorite and much in demand. Often when invited for Thursday dinner he would turn up on Wednesday for the engagement. Later in the evening, when merrily reminded that he had been invited for Thursday instead of Wednesday, he would cheerfully assure his hostess he would come the next evening, too.

During his premiership he came up from Ottawa to attend the funeral of his friend, Capt. Tom Wallace, M.P., of Centre York. They both entered Parliament at the same time. Some calls were made in Toronto in the morning, and in the afternoon, on the way to Woodbridge, Senator William Sharp, who was along, found the Premier wearing the usual old green fedora. On arriving at the Wallace home, Senator Sharp appealed to his nephew, Col. Carson McCormack, to find a silk hat that would fit the Meighen head. Col. McCormack promptly annexed the silk hat of Capt. J. C. Boylen. It was passed over to Mr. Meighen, and Capt. Boylen rejoined his friends wearing a green fedora.

As the church burned down the morning Tom Wallace died, the public service, was held in the Orange Hall. Premier Meighen headed the procession to the hall and then on to the cemetery. There, after the interment, he and Capt. Boylen met behind a tombstone and exchanged greetings and hats.

A Popular Clergyman

A recent visitor to London was Dr. Charles Aik, who, though an Englishman, has been minister of the First Congregational Church, Kansas City, since 1919. "People have queer ideas about Kansas," he said. "I remember when one of the 333,000 inhabitants was dining in London, a woman asked him to tell her something about the 'manners and customs of the country.'"

"Well," he replied gravely, "when I was caught I was quite wild and sitting in a tree." "On one occasion I was asked to preach at Des Moines, Iowa, but a terrific thunderstorm drowned my voice. The following day the papers came out with 'huge headlines: 'Crowds Assemble to Hear the English Preacher—Thunder Drowns His Voice—Audience Highly Pleased.'"

The Hearse Was Speeding

"Peekskill," related Chauncey Depew, the eighty-nine-year-old American man of affairs, recently, "is my home-town, and there I was once pallbearer at a funeral. The procession to the cemetery had been moving at the usual solemn pace when suddenly we were surprised at the accelerated motion of the carriage. Pretty soon it came near upsetting. Looking out, we found that we had run into a ploughed field and were going furiously across it."

"I put my head out as far as it would go and yelled, 'Sam, are your horses running away?' 'No, sir,' replied Sam. 'Well,' I said, in astonishment, 'what are you driving across this ploughed field for?' 'Why, sir,' was the reply, 'the horses attached to the hearse have bolted, and as it's the custom in this town for the bearers to follow the hearse I am doing my best to keep up with the corpse.'"

Baron Theophile Meyendorff, who, before the war and the revolution, was one of Russia's wealthiest noblemen, has had to take up miniature painting for a living. He has had success. His work is sought by society. It is really credited with being of a high standard. Photograph shows him in his Paris home at work.

Deskaheh Dramatic on European Jaunt

Chief Levi General of Brantford Indians Discusses "Wrongs" of Race in Geneva

Levi General, of Tuscarora, near Brantford, Ont., or, to give him his native title, Deskaheh, chief of the Six Nations Indians, has recently been in London and Geneva seeking justice. He has been getting lots of publicity. Under the caption, "Red Indian Plea for Justice," the London Sunday Express gave an interview with him and printed his picture. "I am coming to find justice in the world," declared Levi ingenuously, as in "a few passionate sentences" he explained the object of his quest, declaring that the Iroquois were an independent people whom the Canadian Government was not treating right.

Deskaheh

Even more interesting was the publicity he obtained in the French paper, Le Petit Parisien. Right on its front page this famous newspaper carried a one-column cut of him, feathers and all, similar to the picture here reproduced, and, in addition, a dispatch about him from its special correspondent in Geneva under the heading, "Great Chief of the Iroquois Comes to Defend at Geneva the Rights of His Brothers."

The dispatch tells how he had come to present the grievances of his race to the League of Nations and went on to describe the ceremonial costume which he wore, a long buckskin vest embroidered with colored beads and a diadem of eagle plumes.

The dispatch gives a brief account of the Six Nations' fight for "autonomy" and then concludes by quoting Deskaheh to the effect that "All we are asking is to die in peace in our own country."

W. F. Engelmann

W. F. Engelmann, a Chicago engineer, shown above, claims to be perfecting a machine for mechanical sculpturing which will put faithful reproductions of living people in bronze or marble within the reach of all. Mr. Engelmann declares that only a few minutes' sitting will be required to record the features, which will then be reproduced in any material desired.

Maeterlinck Ready To Enjoy Life Now

Going to Give Up Work and Simply Rest

Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian poet and playwright, who recently celebrated his sixty-first birthday, has lately paid a flying visit to Brussels. From an interview in Le Soir it appears that M. Maeterlinck intends shortly to sever his connection with the theatre and the cinema, contenting himself merely with arranging for the forthcoming Paris production of some of his new plays. After that he will take a complete rest, because, he says, "I want only to enjoy life without having that weight of a performance to be given up owing to the fact that honey melts 'pitilessly' in the torrid climate of the Cote d'Azur."

His Courage Oozes Away

At a recent dinner Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the following story. The bridegroom and the best man were at the altar awaiting the bride. The former became very white and seemed about to faint. "What's wrong with you, Jack?" asked the best man; "your face is like chalk. Has he lost anything? Has he lost the ring?" "No," came the reply, "but I doot I've lost my enthusiasm."

Miss McPhail Admits Being Very Unhappy

When She First Went to Ottawa—Slams City Women and the Senate

Miss Agnes Macphail, member of Parliament for Southeast Grey, quite possibly has the rural point of view in many things, as might be expected of a representative of the United Farmers of Ontario, and a recent journey half-way across the continent has not changed her opinions in the least. In a recent interview—given under protest, as most of her interviews are—she said she had been tremendously impressed with the profound ignorance of city women upon matters of economic interest, as compared with the attitude of the rural woman.

"In spite of the multifarious duties attendant upon farm life," said Miss Macphail, "the country woman devotes her little leisure to reading and discussing the important questions of the day, instead of playing bridge or mah jong, or attending the movies."

First and foremost, Miss Macphail has always been a farmer. Her first session in Parliament was no picnic. Even now she does not like her job; but at first! In her own words:

"Frankly, it was a miserable time, and I was intensely unhappy. Some of the members resented my intrusion. Others jeered at me, while a very few were genuinely glad to see a woman in the House. Most of the men made me painfully conscious of my sex by standing up every time I entered the lobby, until at last I felt obliged to tell them I would have to keep away unless they treated me as one of themselves."

Miss Macphail now admits that when first she went to Ottawa, in her innocence, she imagined it was her duty to sit through every minute of the session. As a result she listened to every dreary speech, drowsed out by the poorest speakers, being in many cases the only interested listener. A wiser woman now, she concentrates her attention on matters which may be of benefit to her constituents and her party.

Whatever may be the ultimate result of her entry into political life, it is at least fairly certain that Miss Macphail will not gravitate to the Senate. She does not hesitate to say so in these forcible words:

"I would certainly hate to see a good woman wasted there. It is a useless institution, and appointment to it would be like being placed on the shelf prior to burial!"

Hands of Great Pianist Insured for $30,000

Famous Mile. Lenglen Uses Left Hand to Shake Hands, to Safeguard Precious Right

Mile. Lenglen, the world's champion woman tennis player, takes the greatest precautions to guard from possible damage the hand with which she makes her wonderful drives and volleys. She even shakes hands with her left hand in order that her right may escape the slightest harm.

As she is an amateur she would suffer no financial loss if, by some injury, she were prevented from playing tennis again; otherwise she might follow the example of other notable people and take out a heavy insurance on the limb which has brought her to the topmost pinnacle of lawn tennis fame.

Famous dancers and instrumentalists are almost invariably protected by some such policy, since the slightest injury to a knee or finger might cause the cancellation of a contract and the consequent loss of thousands of dollars.

For in many years Fats Waller's paid $4,000 a year in premiums against injury to his hands, which were insured for $50,000. He had separate policies for his fingers, thumbs, eyes and toes, and on one occasion when a damaged finger nail prevented him from appearing at a concert he was paid $5,000 compensation.

Kubelik, the great violinist, has his "bow" hand insured for $10,000 against injury and for $50,000 against permanent disablement.

Favlova is said to protect her beautiful limbs by a most comprehensive insurance policy. The disablement of a single toe of her dainty foot might cost the underwriters no less than $30,000.

It might appear to be impossible to insure such an intangible thing as a voice, but Mme. Patti, who was one of the pioneers of this form of protection, was invariably insured for $5,000 a performance. Since then her example has been followed by many famous singers.

Omar Suffers Eclipse

"Have you ever changed your mind?" an English paper recently asked H. de Vere Stoopole, the well-known novelist, and he replied: "I have changed my mind about Omar Khayyam and his poetry. I am sick of the Jug of wine beneath the bough, and the bowls, Paradise snow, and the life's shadow show, and the whole bag of tricks. I prefer even dear old Longfellow and Wordsworth banging the big drum to the tune of 'Life is earnest, Life is what's-its-name.' Omar, whom I used to love, leaves me defeated—he can't pump me up any more. His stuff seems stucco. Bire in cham, page bottle, falsity decked in flowers—also sugary, and I've lost my sweet tooth."

Poet Discovered in a Doss-House

The Sudden Rise to Fame of W. H. Davies, the English Tramp Poet; Mr. St. John Adcock Tells the Romantic Story in His New Volume, "Gods of Modern Grub Street"; Masfield and Wells Also Rose from Humble Beginnings

By Professor W. T. Allison

A St. John Adcock, editor of the English "Bookman," occupies one of the commanding positions in the literary world. For more than forty years he has been a hard-working London journalist. He has spent most of his days in Fleet Street and in the Strand. For a generation he has watched literary movements from his eyrie in Warwick Square, within a biscuit toss of Paternoster Row. It must be twenty years since he was in the office of the "Bookman," Sir Robert Nicoll's assistant in the editorship of "The Bookman," and, on the recent death of the poet, he was promoted to the headship of that influential journal, which enjoys a circulation not only in the Motherland, but in all parts of the British Empire. But Mr. Adcock's pen has not been employed solely in contributing to the pages of that organ of sane literary criticism. He is the author of a number of volumes—essays, poetry and short stories. As an anthologist he has gathered the best collection of war poems by English writers and has in hand a volume which will contain a comprehensive selection of lyrics by poets of the Empire. Not should it be forgotten that he has written introductions to numerous volumes by other poets and essayists and as a weekly contributor to the Boston Transcript he has for years been in touch with the American public in touch with currents of thought and book news of the Old World. One of his hobbies has been the collection of literary landmarks of old London. No man knows this subject better than Mr. Adcock, as his charming volume, "Famous Houses of Literary London," bears witness. In view of all his activity and this intimate association with literary London, it is in a better position to supply us with biographical data and critical judgments respecting present-day English authors than the editor-in-chief of the "Bookman" could account a warm welcome will be extended by book-lovers the world over to his new volume, "Gods of Modern Grub Street" (Macmillan Book Company, Toronto). In this handsomely printed book, which is illustrated by Hoppe's excellent photo portraits of Masfield, Wells, and other poets, Mr. Adcock has given us his impressions of the personalities and work of thirty-two well-known writers. Thomas Hardy is accorded the premier position in the biographical and critical essays on the following: Belloc, Bennett, Herford, Buchan, Byrnes, Davies, Deane, Moore, Drinkwater, Farnol, Galworthy, Hawkins, Hutchinson, Sheila Kaye-Smith, Kipling, Locke, McKenna, Mackenzie, Masfield, Mason, Maugham, Maxwell Merrick, Milne, Noyes, Oppenheim, May Sinclair, Swinerton, Walpole, Wells and Zangwill.

THE DISCOVERY OF A TRAMP POET
That romance has not quite disappeared from the literary story is evident from Mr. Adcock's story of the rise to fame of William Henry Davies, the tramp poet. Davies was born at Neversham, Devon, in 1870. He had little schooling and was born with a distaste for work. In his twenties he inherited from his grandfather an investment that produced eight shillings a week. Emigrating to the United States, he became a "Wearry" and spent several years in roaming here and there as a gentleman of the high road and the box car. At length his career as a tramp was cut short by the outbreak of the first world war, which he was attempting to jump at Renfrew, Ontario. He emerged with his life, but lost one of his legs. After a long session in a hospital, he took his way back to England, took up his residence in a cheap lodging-house in Southwark, lived on his eight shillings a week and commenced to write poetry. When he had composed enough poems to fill a volume he tried to wheedle the trustees of his investment for twenty pounds towards the cost

COULD HARDLY DO ANY WORK
But Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound This Woman Feels So Well

Keesville, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. I was so much troubled with female weakness I could hardly do any work. I saw your advertisement in the Sun, and I bought six bottles by taking it I am now troubled as I was. I am gaining strength and getting fleshy. My female troubles have vanished and I have never felt so well. The Liver Pills are the best I ever took. If you think my letter will encourage other sufferers you have my permission to use it as an advertisement."—Mrs. SARAH BLAISIE, Box 177, Keesville, N. Y.

Doing the housework for the average American family in some task adds many women lose their health in so doing. If you as a housewife are troubled with backache, irregularities, are easily tired out and irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

"Morte d'Arthur" after he had gone up to his garret to bed. It was a harsh apprenticeship, that on sea and on land, but it broadened his outlook and his sympathies and fitted him to be, as he was presently resolved to be, the interpreter of "the men of the 'attered battalion'".

"He had had revelation of the lies. Creaking the truth men never choose to know. He could bear witness now and cleanse his eyes. He had beheld in suffering; he was well."

WELLS WAS ONCE A DRAPER'S CLERK
Another great writer of our day who rose from humble beginnings and who fought his way upward by sheer will-power and unflinching effort, was the poet, John G. Wells. As a boy of thirteen he was a draper's clerk, but he found ways and means to obtain an education, graduating as a B.Sc. at the South Kensington School of Science. He became a lecturer and tutor to some university correspondence classes and worked so hard as a teacher that his health broke down. His first literary effort was a text book in biology, but soon he began to contribute essays and sketches of a light and humorous trend to The Pall Mall Gazette and other London papers. Twenty-eight years ago his first successful book was published, "The Stolen Bacillus and Other Stories," and from that time his career as a professional writer began. From the vantage point of personal acquaintance and friendship, Mr. Adcock gives this vivid picture of the most vital novelist, practical idealist, and wide-sweeping humanitarian of our time. He is one of those authors who happen to be in themselves exactly what they seem in their books. Unaffected, alive with energy, and with a humorous wit, it is an amusing object lesson to see him seated at a public dinner next to some distinguished philosopher learning that himself, younger but looking older, with no sign of his imaginative powers, his far-seeing vision, his originality, and his sense of humor, is really a young man in the gravity, reticence, aloofness that are supposed to denote superior intellect. In a manner, his quick gestures, his high, not unpleasant voice, but his keen grey eyes, with their gleaming wit, and the smile of them, look out from under a broad massive forehead that prevents his appearance from being commonplace.

RAMBLES ROUND VICTORIA OUR SCENERY AND ITS HISTORY

By ROBERT CONNELL

VII.
The car dropped us at the Outer Wharf terminus, where the site of the Chemical Works is still marked by a low wall of brick and rubble. With a glance at the glaciated rocks between the Dallas Hotel and the wharf, we passed on to the Breakers, a narrow path stretches itself from an interesting rock mass. The surfaces, still showing the scratches, grooves and curved, exhibit also in a very clear manner the processes which attended the solidification of a great part of our local rocks. Here the coarse dark Wark diorite which constitutes more than half of the rock-foundation of the City of Victoria, is seen as it was shaped by the invasion of the pale hard rock of the Esquimalt peninsula opposite. Containing much quartz, this is known as granodiorite and it approaches the composition of a granite. The effect of this invasion upon the darker diorite is very plain. The older rock was broken up into fragments which vary in size from many feet to less than an inch, and the younger rock in which they have set as in a cement. Crossing both kinds of rock and therefore younger in age, are dykes of black granite, the younger rock in which they have set as in a cement. THE TRAMP LEAPS INTO FAME
Although Mr. Adcock is so modest that he does not say he was a journalist, I happen to know such was the case, for when I was in London in 1914 he took me for a stroll through the streets of the city and pointed out the doss-house to me and told me the story. He wrote to the book and suggested they should meet at the Victoria Hotel, where he would help you to identify me," wrote Davies in reply, "I will have a copy of my book sticking out of my pocket the day you see me in my adjourned to Finch's, a tavern in Bishopsgate Street Within. Davies told his strange yarn, all about his tramp life in America and his experiences in the London Daily Mail, and his journalistic instinct told him that perhaps here was a real good story.

THE DISCOVERY OF A TRAMP POET
That romance has not quite disappeared from the literary story is evident from Mr. Adcock's story of the rise to fame of William Henry Davies, the tramp poet. Davies was born at Neversham, Devon, in 1870. He had little schooling and was born with a distaste for work. A SAMPLE POEM
BY DAVIES
William H. Davies has never made a fortune out of his poetry, but he is able to live in the country near London in comfort in a quiet way. He has taken his place as one of the foremost nature poets of our day. "He writes of Nature," says this kindly critic who discovered him, "with an Elizabethan candor and fantasy and a natural, simple diction that is an art in Wordsworth." His unstudied simplicity and natural logic of his poetry are exemplified in his oft-quoted little poem:

LEISURE
What is this life, if full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare?
No time to stand beneath the boughs
And stare as long as sheep or cows.
No time to see, when woods we pass,
Where squirrels hide their nuts in grass.
No time to see, in broad daylight,
Streams full of stars like skies at night.
No time to turn at Beauty's glance,
And watch her feet, how they can dance.
No time to wait till her mouth can
Enrich that smile her eyes began.
A poor life this if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.

ONCE A BOWERY BAR-KEEPER
Mr. Adcock selects as the five most typically modern poets: Kipling, Hardy, Wilfrid Gibson, Siegfried Sassoon and John Masfield. He is disposed to give first place to the last named writer. And, highly respectable as Masfield is today, there was a time when he was just about as much of a down-and-outer as any man in the land. He was a tramping apprentice to a realist as a tramp in America. "He was not reared in cotton wool nor matured among the competitive decora of office life," says Mr. Adcock in a concise and accurate account of Masfield's earlier adventures. "From a training vessel he went to sea in the merchant service, and then, in the company of a sailing ship and has put some of his old shipmates into his ballads and some of them and some of their years into a 'Mars' Haul' and a first novel, 'Captain Massard'—quitting the sea, he went tramping in America, picking up a livelihood by casual work about the country, and finally settled down to serve behind a bar in New York, escaping from the noise and squalor and drudgery of it at night to solace himself with the

A Pretty Sea Flower
I had the good fortune to find one peculiar species of Hydroids, a tiny greenish lump on a piece of pink seaweed. Suspecting what it was, I placed it in a small collecting bottle of sea-water and had the least doubt of seeing it expand into a pale green flower form. Imagine a pale green flower, five-eighths of an inch in diameter, with eight pointed rays, each of which bears a little group of stamen-like tentacles, each with a little round knob on top. At the base of the curve between each pair of rays is a little dot-like process. The mouth in the centre has four velvety

Off in Full Cry Upon the Eternal Question at a Dinner Party

"But, surely!" exclaimed the Hostess, looking defiantly and searching through the cut flowers of the centerpiece, so that her eye could not find the five men on the table, "one must admit that women are men's equals in every way!"

The Lady-with-the-Bust tossed her head and the five men, with the upward glance that stands for innocence. She said nothing, waiting for a cue as to what to answer to be.

Meantime, the Chief Lady Guest, known to be in suffrage work, was pinching up her lips and getting her phrases ready, like a harpioneer waiting to head a line of everyfinner.

There was a similar grunt from the Heavy Business Friend of the Host, almost as broad and thick as the host himself, who had just come in from coming. He proposed to stand by his

Heavy Host and Heavy Friend
The five men that sat amongst and between the ladies received the challenge of the Hostess's speech and answered it each in his own way.

From the Heavy Host at the head of the table there came a kind of deep grunt, nothing more. He had heard it all in his own way.

There was a similar grunt from the Heavy Business Friend of the Host, almost as broad and thick as the host himself, who had just come in from coming. He proposed to stand by his friend, man for man. He could sympathize. The Lady-with-the-Bust was his wife.

But the Half Man with the Moon Face, who was known to work side by side with women on committees, and who came talking to "Comrades," echoed, "Oh, surely!" with deep emphasis.

The Big Moment
The Smooth Gentleman, there for business reasons, exclaimed with great alacrity, "Women equal! Oh, rath!"

Last of all the Interesting Man with Long Hair, known to write for the magazine—all of them—began at once. "I remember saying some years ago to Mrs. Pankhurst—" but was well cut off by the hostess, who said out very much further at one time, and indeed the matter of which they are composed was deposited in the sea and the rocks of the coast, and present coasts. The ceaseless activity of the ocean, especially in the winter, has cut back the deposits, first to the rocks of the coast, and then there until these projecting buttresses became the protectors of the cliffs behind. Had the sea alone operated on the coast the cliffs could not have been such steep, but there have also been at the minute streamlets of the rain, which not only cut into sloping surfaces, but percolating through the surface of the soil weakened the cohesiveness of the matter below, and by the wedging power of frost and heat bring down the masses of the cliff edge. The prevention of this is one of the chief plant offices.

Beacon Hill Park
We left the shore at the corner of Beacon Hill Park. Here the cliffs are rising to the north and east, and the point eastward, the last before the point of the Vancouver Volcanics, adds its presence to the number of rocks. The ground slopes upward to the park flagstaff, well covered with broom. All along this part of the coast the rocks are of the same variety. An interesting example is the horse chestnut now opposite the junction of the two roads. A very sea breeze is blowing, and the wind has made a close roof across the pavement, and the line of these tops is continued in a series of steps down the wooded crest of the cliff. A finer situation for a park could hardly be, at once a windswept heathland, a shady forest and a grassy meadow. The advantage should be taken of its peculiar opportunities of situation and temperature to have here a garden of Vancouver Island wild flowers would be at once a great attraction to visitors, and an exception to the character of those who are well worthy the consideration of the Island Development Association, and I commend it to their attention.

The Female Head
Here the Interesting Man, who had been silent longer than an Interesting Man can, without apology, began.

"I remember once saying in London to Sir Charles Doosey—" but the Chief Lady Guest refused to be checked.

"We've been gathering some rather interesting statistics," she said, speaking very firmly, syllable by syllable, "on that point at our Settlement. We have measured the heads of five hundred factory girls, making a chart of them, you know, and the feet of five hundred domestic servants."

"And don't you find—" began the Smooth Gentleman.

"No," said the Chief Lady Guest, firmly, "we do not. But I was going to say that when we take our measurements and reduce them to a scale of a hundred—I think you understand me—"

"Ah, but come, now," interrupted the Interesting Man. "There's nothing really more deceitful than anthropometric measures. I remember once saying (in London) to Sir Robert Bittell, you know—"

Sir Robert's Frank Opinion
Here everybody murmured, "Oh, yes," except the Heavy Host and his Heavy Friend, who with all their sines were honest men and for an frank opinion, your very frank opinion—"

But here there was a slight interruption. The Soft Lady accidentally dropped a bangle from her wrist on to the floor. Now all through the dinner she had hardly said anything, but she had listened for twenty minutes (from the grapefruit to the fish) while the Interesting Man had told her about his life in Honduras (it is pronounced Honduras), and for another twenty while the Smooth Gentleman, who was a lawyer, had discussed himself as a pleader. And when each of the men had begun to speak in the general conversation, she had looked deep into their faces as if hanging on to their words.

So when she dropped her bangle she was the first to get it, and the other three made a sort of struggle as they sat. By-the-time it was recovered and replaced upon her arm (a very beautiful arm), the Interesting Man was

In speaking of the pea family last week I made no reference to the sweet pea, perhaps one of the most delightful of garden flowers, running the rose very closely in the race for popularity as well as for beauty of color shades. Sweet peas, as we know them now in all their infinite variety, are of comparative modern development. Bacon does not refer to them in his essay "On Gardens," though he admits the sweet scent of bean flowers. At any rate, Bacon knew them, for he wrote:

NEWS AND OPINIONS OF THE PROVINCES

Times Sunday School Lesson

By REV. LESLIE PIGEON, D.D.

WORLD-WIDE PROHIBITION World's Temperance Sunday

The passages before us define very clearly the attitude of the servant of God to prevailing evil. The Psalm chosen shows that it is his duty to shut it personally. In God's intention the writer is inspired with a hatred of wickedness. Iniquity is always an abomination to God, and those who draw near to Him must be without His abhorrence. This applies to one's own personal conduct, and also to his relations with others. God's people must take their stand on the side of righteousness whenever the issue arises, otherwise they are not obedient to His law.

The second passage, Proverbs xxiii 29-35, applies this principle specifically to the drink evil. It dwells on its insidious and treacherous character, and on the utter wickedness it brings when men fail to detect its real nature. The experience of the Western world affords innumerable illustrations of the truth of the fact that it is probable that there has not been a family in the land untouched by the curse of drink directly or indirectly. The effect of its insidiousness is growing up unfamiliar with its ravages, and therefore not brought to guard against them.

The responsibility that this places on the shoulders of the state for the modern liquor traffic is, therefore, quite specific. When the state by license given to individuals, or directly under its own authority, provides facilities for the sale of intoxicants, it is held to be responsible for the consequences.

The question then for practical men is this: Is prohibition effective? Does it decrease or does it aggravate the liquor habit? The writer had considerable experience years ago in the extension of the prohibitory principle over small areas. Under what was then called Local Option we could see clearly how the principle worked out in every case the removal of the facilities for drinking led to a decrease in the amount of intoxicants consumed. It was proven most conclusively that people who would drink if a barroom were open before them, would not go a block to get liquor. When the bars were closed the money that had previously been wasted there began to be spent on the necessities of life. Groceries, etc., reported larger sales, better cash payments, and a generally advanced state of living. Those who visited the homes of the people and could see at first hand the result, reported the greatest improvement in places where liquor drinking had been a habit.

Experience shows that it is much more effective when the law is applied over wider areas. Dr. Ernest Thomas, the brilliant scholar and writer, gives the following facts regarding the operation of the prohibition law:

1. Under prohibition there is first of all a great reduction of all kinds of evil associated with liquor.

2. That after a few years of reaction come to organized action and there is a falling off in the improvement.

3. That this reactionary movement spends its force and the main movement is resumed.

The movement frustrated from the experience of Ontario. "Rural Ontario was mainly dry before the enactment of the Ontario Temperance Act. The cities did not vote the rights of local option except in a few cases. They would therefore be the centres of resistance to prohibition imposed by provincial law. But the statistics show that while the rural rate has varied only from seventy to twenty-five since 1914, the last prevalence of the rate has fallen from 300 to seventy. But the drop in the city rate was mainly in the year of the enactment of the O.T.A. War conditions had led to a decline from 300 to 200. The end of the war brought about a general relaxation of moral and social discipline. This was seen everywhere in 1919, but became conspicuous in 1920, when the repeal of the war orders threw the frontiers open to imported liquor. As soon as the province was able, by referendum, to vote the prohibition law, it was under the Canada Temperance Act.

Since 1917 at the time of the world-wide celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Reformation the recognition of Reformation Sunday has extended until ministers and congregations of nearly every Protestant denomination set aside the day for special mention and special observance.

The Lutheran Church, with 90,000,000 adherents throughout the world, leads in its observance, and it is predicted that at least nine-tenths of more than 15,000 Lutheran churches throughout the United States and Canada will celebrate Reformation Sunday this year. In many cities local and county special programmes are being arranged for mass meetings and general gatherings of the Lutheran people on either Sunday, October 28, or Wednesday, October 31.

Impetus has been lent to the observance of the day this year because of the successful and friendly gathering of delegates from forty nations, many of them political and racial enemies, last August at the time of the first Lutheran World Convention at Eisenbach, Saxony. This great convention meeting, in a spirit of brotherhood fostered by a common faith, provided through the appointment of an international continuation committee for further development of common understanding and action among the diversified synodical and racial groups of Lutherans throughout the world.

Locally, in Grace English Lutheran Church, Blanshard Street and Queen's Avenue, Reformation services and also anniversary services celebrating the third anniversary of the reorganization of Grace congregation will be held to-morrow at 11 a.m. In the evening Rev. A. Engeström, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, Vancouver, B.C., will preach the sermon.

At the evening service Rev. Engeström will make an address, and Rev. P. E. Balsler will deliver an historical address.

Organizer to Speak—Rev. W. F. McConnell, organizer for the Dominion of the Presbyterian opponents of church union, will preach at St. Andrew's Church to-morrow morning at 11 a.m. In the evening he will speak at St. Columba Church at 7.30 p.m.

St. Aidan's and Gordon Head—Divine services will be held at St. Aidan's Church, Mount Tolmie, to-morrow at 11 a.m., and Sunday school at 10 a.m. At Gordon Head the services will be at 7 p.m. and Sunday school at 2.30 p.m.

Carl B. Wetherell, Pacific Coast field secretary for the American Unitarian Association, will this evening meet the congregation of the First Unitarian Church at a social gathering to be held in the church hall at 8 p.m.

EDUCATION WILL BE SUBJECT OF SERMON

Dr. Clem Davies to Deal With All Phases of Modern System

The subject for the Sunday evening sermon at Centennial Church will be "Education." The pastor, Dr. Clem Davies will preach upon this topic, touching on the phases of the modern educational system, and discussing the recently prominent subject of religious nurture in the public schools. The sermon will be a response to many requests for such an address and also to many questions received lately in the church quarters. Even so, the worst period under prohibition was never held as bad as the best record under the old system. And even this record is being broken. The descent has already well begun to the low levels of the war.

These facts speak for themselves. The teaching of Scripture is that it is the duty of a city to put down evil of this sort. Experience under modern conditions shows that the principle of prohibition succeeded in that the injury caused by this enemy of modern society greatly diminishes when the state sets its foot against it.

The duty of the state becomes clear in such a case, and that is to follow the method already proved effective in dealing with this situation.

REFORMATION DAY WILL BE OBSERVED BY CITY CHURCHES

Reformation Day, October 31, falling on Wednesday this year, the preceding Sunday, October 28, will be recognized by Protestant churches throughout the world as Reformation Sunday. It was on the last day of October 400 years ago, in 1517, that Dr. Martin Luther, a priest, dissatisfied with certain practices in the church, prepared a list of ninety-five statements or "theses" which he nailed to the church door at Wittenberg, Germany, which was his charge.

Dr. Luther, professor of theology in the university at Erfurt, had through a long life of study of doctrine and church conditions reached certain conclusions. He felt that the popular contrast and golden rule, interpreted with the items, after which lunch will be served.

The Lutheran social by the Luther League of the English Lutheran Church will be held in the social rooms of the church, Blanshard Street and Queen's Avenue, Wednesday, October 31, at 8 p.m.

The Bishop of Columbia will preach in St. Michael's Church, Royal Oak, next Sunday morning, October 28. Divine service will be held at 11 a.m.

To-morrow morning at 11 a.m. Mr. Wetherell will occupy the pulpit at the First Unitarian Church, the subject of his address being "Acceptance or Rejection."

ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH

The Bishop of Columbia will preach in St. Michael's Church, Royal Oak, next Sunday morning, October 28. Divine service will be held at 11 a.m.

CHURCH SOCIAL

The Lutheran social by the Luther League of the English Lutheran Church will be held in the social rooms of the church, Blanshard Street and Queen's Avenue, Wednesday, October 31, at 8 p.m.

REINCARNATION

A public meeting will be held in the rooms, 101 Union Bank Building, on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Victoria Theosophical Society, when the subject "Some Thoughts on Karma and Reincarnation" will be presented and discussed.

THE SPIRITUAL FREEDOM OF THE CHURCH

Old conflicts have a habit of recurring in new settings, and principles have to be reaffirmed with clearer definition in view of certain counter claims and threats to spiritual freedom of the Church needs apparently to be enunciated again in all modern settings. The subject of the church's freedom of worship, discipline and government, including the right to alter add or modify her constitution and church formulae . . . and to determine and declare what these are, and to unite with other Churches; always in conformity with the will of God, and also with the safeguards of deliberate action and legislation in such cases provided by the Church herself, acting through her courts, shall be the sole judge." (The emphasis is mine).

PIONEER LADY OF METHODISM

MRS. EBENEZER ROBSON

The late Mrs. Robson was the widow of the first president of the British Columbia Methodist Conference, and was married in Victoria in 1860 to Rev. Ebenezer Robson, who had arrived here the year before. She was away from the ministry. From 1860 to 1881, when she returned, and during the closing years of her life made her home with her son, Ernest, a pioneer newspaper man and legislator.

ANNIVERSARY OF KNOX CHURCH TO BE OBSERVED AT SOOKE

Twenty-five years ago, on the 28th Sunday in October, 1898, the first service was held in the then newly erected Presbyterian Church in Sooke, and the congregation is making arrangements to fittingly commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their church-opening on Sunday, October 28.

Lowering the Cost of Living....

PPRICE is not the real test of economy—You can best reduce the cost of living in your home by purchasing goods that are standard in quality—that will give you longer service and greater value.*

A SURE test of quality merchandise is this: “Do you see it advertised consistently and persistently?” If you do, it is good value. No sane merchant or manufacturer would continue to spend good money advertising poor merchandise. When he urges you to buy his product, he is staking his good name on your satisfaction. And he can't afford to lose!

In addition to the news of changing conditions in Germany, something approaching a scare was created the first of the week by suggestions of a policy of inflation by the British Government.

JOSEF HOFFMAN, famous pianist, arriving in New York after his Summer in Europe.

RHINELAND SITUATION.—Scores were killed and hundreds injured during the Rhineland riots recently. Photograph shows the separatist demonstrators leaving the station at Düsseldorf, where they arrived on special trains provided by the French.

MOST BEAUTIFUL?—Miss Sandrini, Parisian girl of Italian origin, is considered by many artists as being the most beautiful model in the world. The photo above explains why.

MARY GARDEN says she now weighs just 120 pounds, which would make her the lightest of all prima donnas.

HARRY BATSTONE, who starred for Queen's in the Rugby match with University of Toronto on October 21.

Y.M.C.A. SECRETARIES IN STRICKEN AREA.—Among the Christian workers from Canada in the earthquake zone in Japan are the above Y.M.C.A. workers. Left to right: George S. Patterson, National Secretary, stationed in Tokio; he was formerly boys' secretary in Toronto; Herbert S. Snoyd, formerly stationed in Toronto and now in Yokohama; George E. Truman, of Strathroy, stationed in Nagasaki.

PROF. MEM-O-REA, who has been endeavoring for several days to locate the bodies of Stanley Crang and Harold Munday in the vicinity of Honey Harbor, Ontario, by means of lime-filled loaves. So far there have been no results.

"PLAYS MARY."—Miss Marie Mayer, who has played the part of Mary Magdalene in three productions of the Passion Play at Oberammergau, now is a student in New York. Born in Oberammergau, she appeared in the play the first time when but a baby.

PREDICTS TROUBLE.—European civilization in South Africa is threatened by cheap native labor, according to Gen. Hertzig, Nationalist leader.

SIR EDWARD CECIL MOORE, the Lord Mayor of London, will receive a baronetcy on his retirement from the Lord Mayorship.

SCHOOL DAYS By DWIG

PASTOR'S SOUL-SAVING ALLY.—Rev. E. H. Sawyer, as Abraham (left), and his giant Bible with the woman to the right stepping from its pages in the role of Hagar. Garbed as were the people in the time of Genesis, the preacher's characters emerge from the pages of the Testament, which measures some eight feet in height, and in their flowing robes and long hair, vividly portray whatever lesson he has in store for his congregation. He plans to go on tour to bring the story of the Bible more forcibly before the people of all lands.

Limerick Vance Misses His Dance!

Entries for the Limerick Contest this week exceeded all previous records and set up a new high mark of over one hundred, excluding all rejected entries. Miss Kathryn Johnson, a twelve-year-old reader, of 1476 Gladstone Avenue, won the weekly award of one dollar offered for the event. "The appearance of the weird goblin," stated the prize-winner, "so upset poor Vance, the crusader, that it shattered his nerve at a glance."

Indeed, Vance had a very unhappy time of it on the way to that Hallowe'en dance. All contestants agreed that Vance did not get to the dance at all. Over fifty little readers saw that the goblin took away his sword and his lance. One little reader cunningly ended the unequal combat by stating that the goblin "punctured his horns with the lance." Two little readers, boys in each case, thought Vance had been struck in the seat of his dignity with his own lance, and there were a great many other delightful suggestions.

Through it all Vance lost his horse, his armor, and saw nothing of the dance, which must have been a very merry affair from the way proceedings commenced while guests were on their way there. The goblin emerges victorious, which is a nasty habit goblins have when they encounter mortals at night. Of course, this goblin was probably one of Vance's class-mates, but that makes no difference when it all happens on a very dark night and in a lonely place. Then Vance was not used to the armor, let us suppose, and failed to secure the moral support from it that it was said to have furnished to the knights of old.

A feature of the entries this week was a large proportion of excellent lines from little readers between the ages of six and seven years. Not only on account of their age but also by virtue of the brilliance of their ideas these are worthy of special mention in a class by themselves.

Under this heading come lines submitted by—Bonnie Hill, Marie Sander, Bob Eccles, Muriel McClellan, Geoffrey Raven, Alice Turnbull and Willie Gornall.

LAST WEEK'S WINNER

A dauntless crusader was Vance
Enchanted for a Hallowe'en dance.
But his legs went wobblin'
Because a weird goblin
Shattered his nerve at a glance!

My name is: Kathryn Johnson.
My age is: Twelve years.
My address is: 1476 Gladstone Ave.

In the senior division of the contest excellent lines were submitted by Gilbert Margison, Kathleen Burt, John Gornall, Barbara Ingledew, Vera Cookman, Elsie Eccles, Catherine Hodson, Gladys Gloves, Edith Hill-Tout, Edward Hill-Tout, Helen Mitchell, Ruth Graves, Stuart Kennedy, Thomas Johnson, Muriel Small, Iris Vye, Frederick Guest, Helen Paterson, Maud Whitbread, Elaine Shephard, Olive Barker, Dorothy Taylor, Dorothy Humphries, Na Paterson, Deborah Aish, Bessie Milne, Roberta Stringer, Willie Sluggott, Robert Gornall, Pauline Mountaint, Elsie Greenidge, Thelma Vye, Mary Wormald and Jean Earl.

Of course, there were a great many more entries, but those mentioned are the cream of the weekly postbag. This week there is a slight change in the rules and that is whereas before it was stated that all entries must be accompanied by an individual coupon, no brothers and sisters or children living under the same roof may submit one entry each of a "family coupon." For instance, if six children live in a home, only one entry may be submitted. This rule applies only to those under the same roof. Individual entries from separate addresses must each have their own coupon, as before.

The other rules of the contest remain unchanged. Try and get your entry in by early on Wednesday in each week, for unless that is done it makes the judging very late and there is danger of being left out of the page on Saturday. Take as many sheets of paper as you require to write your answer and write legibly. The contest, as always, is open to children of sixteen years of age and under. The contest is judged in relation to the entry as a whole, the age of the contributor, and the merit of the answer. Obviously it would be impossible to give a prize for every good answer, so that the best one alone can be recruited. In special cases, last week was a case in point, there was a "second-best" which runs the winner very closely and in that case the judges reserve the privilege to award a consolation prize.

Award about the Limerick itself. Examine the second line of the verse and see how it rhymes and how long it is. Then make your answer rhyme with that line and of according number of syllables. The pictures are given to you as guides as to the intention of the rhyme, but you can make any climax you wish, providing that it is within reason, from the pictures themselves.

What Froggie Saw in Orchardland

Those who have been in Fairyland will know that the Fairies and the Goblins have been bitter enemies for many, many years. Indeed, so far does the feud go back that neither the fairies nor the goblins of this age could tell you how it all started. It is not to be wondered then, that when the Goblins claimed to have caught a fairy stealing the apples there was excitement in both camps.

Now the Goblins wanted to try the fairy in a court of their own, but because they could not trust any of their own tribe they had neither lawyers nor judges. So it happened that the complaint of the Goblins was laid before the Fairy Queen, who appointed the Sunflower Fairy to try the case. In due course the little Fairy accused the other—the theft was brought before the court.

Goblin witnesses told of seeing her walking in the garden at an hour when all the Fairies should have been in bed. The fairy ran up to the apple tree and shook the stem until an apple fell down. Then seizing the apple she ran off into the orchard. Then came the owner of the orchard, or rather the Goblin manager, for of course the owner was a mortal and could not appear. The Goblin chief said that the tree had nine apples on it that morning and now had but eight. Things in fact began to look very black against the poor little Fairy when there was a stir in the corner of the courtroom and out stepped the East Wind.

Now the East Wind was neither Fairy nor Goblin but one of the Royal Messengers used with his brethren the North and West Winds, to carry messages for the Queen of the realm, Nature. The East Wind said he was passing that orchard on the day in question and saw two Goblins up in the tree. Now as the Goblin manager had said that his men had not been in the orchard that day, the words of the East Wind created a sensation. Further, said the East Wind, as he was leaving the orchard to make way for the South Wind behind him he saw one Goblin jump down from the tree.

Then came the South Wind, who said he saw and Goblins standing on the ground below the apple tree and another in the branches of the tree itself. As he passed, said the South Wind, he heard one call to the other, "Not that one—take the big red one!" Thereupon, continued the South Wind, the Goblin in the tree had reached out and plucked the largest and reddest apple on the tree.

"You have no proof," shouted the Goblin. But they were wrong, for who should come next but a frog who saw the whole thing. "I was sunning myself under the apple tree when I heard voices overhead. I looked up and there were two Goblins in the tree. I think I could identify them now," said the frog, commencing to question and suddenly there was a commotion in the back of the courtroom and two goblins were discovered trying to get out of the place. In short, they proved to be the thieves. The little Fairy was acquitted, and the Goblins sent off home with a very bad defeat. They only had the old falsehoods but they had been found out. The two guilty Goblins were ordered to be spanked, a sentence which they do not like. "I was more than willing to carry out."

To thank the East and the South Winds with friend Frog for their kindly intervention, the Fairies held a great ball. Each Fairy brought gifts to the guests of honor. The East Wind was given a perfume of roses; the South Wind was presented with the fragrance of the honeysuckle. What did the Frog get? Why, the very best apple for his trouble, for his hurry to leave the Goblins did not tarry to take the stolen fruit, and the fairies did not touch it.

This is one reason why to-day when the Wind blows from the North, South, East or West it carries with it the scent of flowers, for fairies of every flower, have been firm friends with the Winds. Borne on the strong wings of the Wind, the Fairies often go for long long journeys. True, we cannot see them, but we know they do, because when we examine the flowers in daytime all the fairies are gone.

At sunrise the Wind steps along to each garden and picks up the fairies for the daily ones. The fairies say good-bye to the Winds and nestle down in the flowers to sleep until the Sun awakens them again. It is a very workable arrangement for the Fairies make the Wind a welcome guest at every place, while the Fairies have a wonderful ride every day over the world.

You may not believe it, but the birds know that Fairies travel all over the world and that there is not a child anywhere that they do not know watch. Good children have warm friends in the fairies, while children not so good cause the tiny Fairies great anxiety. Every time you are cross a Fairy, somewhere every time you smile a Fairy somewhere near at hand is having a hearty laugh.

Be contented and merry, and the Fairies will be your friends for life, be a cross-patch and they will leave you severely alone. If the Fairies desert you then the Goblins claim you as a friend, for these are bitter enemies and what the Fairies do not claim the Goblins grasp.

IMPARTIALITY

"I got this daylight savin' dispute all settled, I have," said Bunkum, the head bookkeeper.
"You have?" yawned the third assistant cashier.
"Yeah, my idea, it's this: Let's get the boss to have standard time in the morning and the daylight savin' after lunch, huh?"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.
What Stopped Her
The old Scottish butcher noticed that one of his customers had not been visiting his shop lately and he made it his mind to ask her the reason for her falling off when he next saw her.
"Why do ye no buy your meat off me noo?" he asked when he met her a few days later.
"Weel," replied the old woman, "the last I got frae ye I could hae sold my bits w' it."
"An' why did ye no sell?" asked the other sarcastically.
"So I w'd if I could hae got the tacks to go through it," was the sharp reply.—Answer.

Make Reading Your Hobby

Some of the world's greatest men started life in humble surroundings, without the advantages of education or sufficient funds to permit of the ordinary privileges that fall to the lot of the average child. Many, in fact, grew up in the ranks of the under-privileged class, and a few know what it was to go from morning to night on food that would not suffice us for one meal.

Having nothing, these men learned early to appreciate the privileges which many are inclined to regard as "rights." They had little schooling, and what they learned had to be gleaned from such books as came their way unexpectedly. In many cases as boys they worked from daylight to dusk for a small pittance and the savings—from even this meagre source were expended in the purchase of books. These they bought at second-hand stores, long after all others had thrown them away. But because they had to work for that privilege, they boys were spurred by an ambition to get the most out of everything they read. Thus it is that we find men from the most humble surroundings rising with brains so clear and so well informed that they command the position of leaders in any community that harbors them. Little reader, if you had to work all day in a mine, a factory or mill, you would appreciate what it meant to have access to books. In this country, however, such is the system of education that all children have free access to books.

Should we appreciate the privilege less because it is a "right"? Rather we should be thankful that we have ready access to knowledge and to use it more earnestly and more willingly day by day. From a ton of knowledge springs a little wisdom. Wisdom is the radium that we refine from the pitchblend of books, experience and all that constitutes knowledge. Wisdom is the highest achievement that can be won by mankind.

The second week in November will be celebrated by our friends across the border as "Children's Book Week." The object of the continental-wide movement is to encourage a love of books among little people who have these books at their hands. Libraries, schools and book stores through the country will be asked to make a special plea on behalf of the book.

Reading, outside of school hours, where it is a necessity, is largely a matter of habit. To be fond of books does not imply that one is a "book-worm." But the habit of reading, formed in early life, will lead to a long life of pleasant moments passed in the company of great men's thoughts.

The present-day generation has no monopoly on the wisdom of the world; many of the wisest men of all lived in other ages, and their works are handed down to us after many years. What happens in this day and age we learn by experience. What took place in former years we must acquire through the medium of the book, which is from the experience of others of an older age.

A "trashy" book is not worth the trouble taken to read it, and knowledge of what is worth reading will come the more readily by forming the habit of reading. A good book, be it history, classical literature or fiction, will teach something that is worth while. Reading is one of the most instructive and pleasant hobbies that can be formed and one that can be used to cover many an idle hour with a cloak of romance or adventure at the will of the reader.

What books do you read? What are your favorite stories? What books are on your list to be read in the long days of Winter shortly to hand? Now is the time to draw up your programme for the rainy days ahead. Text books cover every topic that is taught in school, but to this you should add a programme of home reading of wise selection. Ask your parents to help you in this or any librarian. The advantage will be yours, so yours be the initial effort. Act to-day.

Remember the Robins

Out in the garden behind the quaint old stone house two robins sat gossiping on the limb of an apple tree. "It's cold these mornings," remarked one. "Yes, and food is getting scarcer," agreed his companion. "I wonder if the house-dwellers are going to feed us again this Winter?" mused the first bird. "Well, they have thrown out crumbs to us every year, and last year they were kind enough to put out hot meals almost every day," said his companion with more hope.

The robins passed on to other topics of conversation, but what they had said had been enough to make one small boy very thoughtful indeed. The little fellow had been sitting under that apple tree and had heard every word the robins had spoken. Indeed, perhaps that was why the robins mentioned their problem at all. Running into the house the little boy told his mother what he heard and asked what he could do about it. "We must not disappoint the robins," he urged in closing.

To cut a long story short, this is what the house-dwellers did—Over the food bins which contained corn and other grain foods for the chickens, they pasted a placard which read, "Remember the Robins." Every day, Tommy, for that is his name, would fill a big scoop with grain for the fowl and would then fill a little tin for the wild-feathered denizens of Nature's realm. On his way to the chicken house Tommy would scatter the grain for the birds.

After a few days Tommy noticed that the robins were joined by the sparrows, the sparrows were followed by quail and in a very short space of time that garden came to be known to the wild birds as the home of the house-poor who thought of the other inhabitants of their world.

Every morning the birdies breakfast would be served in this fashion. When the weather grew still colder the grain was replaced with a portion of the hot mash that were then fed to the fowl. The robins and sparrows were particularly fond of this mash, but of course, they would not have got any from the chickens which used to drive them away from their share. So it was that a separate and special birdies' lunch counter came into existence.

It was only natural that after the thoughtfulness shown by the house-dwellers that the birds should remember their friends and benefactors. So it was that the birds next Spring stayed long in that garden, making its paths resound to the lilt of their merry songs. They played tag in and around the flowers, flew up and down the length of the garden.

Then the birds built their nests there in the limbs of the apple trees and what a tole it was to watch the little fledglings learning to fly. In short, for a few scattered handfuls of grain the house-dwellers reaped the benefit of a host of little creatures, each anxious to show their gratitude for the thoughtfulness of these mortals.

Tommy says, "Remember the Robins" is not patented nor copyrighted; it is open to every house-dweller in the whole world. The robins are hoping that Tommy's example will be followed by every little child in the country. When you lie tucked up in the depths of a warm and cozy bed at night think of the birdies hunched up with cold under the bough of some tree through which the rain whistles on the edge of a keen north wind. Surely a hot breakfast is their due!

What Tommy Ted Saw

The Cowboy
The Sandman Story
For To-night

Mrs. Tabby had three very frolicsome kittens, who bothered their mother greatly by getting into mischief. So when one day she came upon them sitting round a bowl of milk on the floor in the pantry she was much surprised.

"Why, what in the world is the matter?" she asked.
"The three kittens put up a warning paw that she was not to speak but keep very still. "We are watching that can," whispered one very softly in her mother's ear.

Mrs. Tabby looked at the can standing on the shelf and her eyes opened wide. "Is there a mouse inside it?" she asked, hoping that her heedless children had at last taken some notice of her attempts to teach them to catch mice.

"No," whispered kitten, "it is a chicken. We heard cook say there was chicken in there and she guessed it would keep for dinner. We are going to catch it when it jumps out."

"It must be a small one to be in that can," thought Mrs. Tabby. And while she knew it was wrong to catch chickens running about the pantry, there had never been a word said about chickens in a pantry, so she licked her mouth with her pink little tongue and sat down with her children to watch the can.

Every puss started blinking once at the can and each hoped it would be the one to catch the chicken when it jumped out, as it was sure to do. What chicken would stay inside the pantry with the cover open?

"Of course the kittens could have jumped up on the shelf, but they had been taught better manners than that by Mrs. Tabby. And Mrs. Tabby herself had never been trained when a kitten never to jump up to the pantry shelves.

But thought they watched without blinking, not a sign of a chick did they see. "He must have gone to sleep," said one kitten, "can't jump up there, mother, and just look in the can!"

Mrs. Tabby promptly boxed her child on the ears for even thinking of such a thing. "You are a little pig!" she said. "Just then along came Toby the dog. He poked his nose in at the door and looked a second without speaking. "Mouse?" he asked, when no one noticed him.

"No, chicken," replied Mrs. Tabby. "Where?" inquired Toby, looking around the pantry.
"In that can," said Mrs. Tabby. "We are waiting for it to jump out. We are going to catch it!"

Toby put his nose between his front paws and laughed. Then he lay down on the floor and rolled over, kicking his legs as if he could not laugh hard enough. "Oh, dear," he exclaimed at last, "the very funniest thing I ever heard of!"

"Why, you silly pussies, the chicken in that can is not alive. It is canned chicken, all chopped up and ready to eat. My, my, out that is funny!" Mrs. Tabby looked very indignant for a second, then she purred to her children and led them out of the pantry.
"We want to catch the chicken," they all meowed.
"You will catch a good whipping if you don't follow me this minute," said their mother, walking across the kitchen to the door.
Mrs. Tabby pushed her three children out of the doorway and sent them running toward the back, and when she had them in there all alone she told them never to come near the chickens, all chopped up and ready to eat, unless she saw a mouse in the pantry.

Features For Smaller Folks

Chink From China

Here is another of those funny little stuffed dolls to make. "Ingy-ching-wing-wong."

To make him up into one of the dolly family from all nations, you take a smooth piece of yellow or unbleached muslin about 8 by 9 inches, and transfer this pattern onto it. If you have no carbon paper through which to trace, it can be done by blacking the back of the paper with a soft lead pencil and then marking over all lines same as if the carbon paper were used.

Next embroider all the lines marked. His lips are solid red, the long running stitches that trim his tunic are any bright color, perhaps they match his cap and the shoes are also worked solid as shown. All the other lines are outline stitch, the chop-sticks two rows right together, his nostrils are tiny French knots, and his eyes may be solid in black.

Now his queue is not embroidered. It is twelve strands of black yarn turned under and sewed firmly on at the top, and braided in strands of four each into a real pigtail. It is a good idea to cut and sew Chink all up before his queue is put on him. Turn the finished sides in and stitch firmly around, all but his feet. Turn again and stuff with cotton. A strip of cardboard, 1 1/2 by 6 1/2 inches just fits in, and adds stiffness. Last thing, finish across his feet and the new doll will be all ready to make his home in the toy box.

Children too small to sew this doll can make and color this for paper doll, or big Junior high school girls who have paints and enamels could do them on Sanitas.

GIVING HIM FIRST CHANCE

"You've got plenty of nerve. The idea stealing my chickens and then trying to sell them to me!"

"Well, sah, I thought you'd pay a better price for chickens you'd raised than I could get for 'em. You'd know what you're buyin'."—Boston Transcript.

Make It Yourself

A Clock Shelf

A clock shelf is a convenient thing for the kitchen or laundry room and this drawing shows a very practical and easily made one.

It is made of 1 inch material and consists of a top and two brackets, cut as here pictured. You can follow the sizes given or not as you choose. Fasten the brackets to the top piece with finish nails in the positions indicated by the dotted lines. A screw-eye is screwed into the under side of the shelf top, just inside of each bracket, and these eyes slip over a couple of nails or screws driven into the wall in corresponding positions. This fastens the shelf to the wall good and solid, yet easy to remove for cleaning.

"Pop," inquired little Clarence Lillywhite, "what am a millenium am?"
"Sho," said the parent, "Doan you know what a millenium am a child? It's jes about de same as a centennial, on'y it's got mo' legs."

Knife Box

You boys probably do not have to "set the table," but your sister or mother or the maid does, about one thousand and ninety-five times a year, and anything that helps to make boles about 2 inches each way from the center, and then chiselling out. Before nailing in the partition, tack a piece of black felt over the bottom of the box. Finish by varnishing or painting.

THE DIFFERENCE
"Pop," inquired little Clarence Lillywhite, "what am a millenium am?"
"Sho," said the parent, "Doan you know what a millenium am a child? It's jes about de same as a centennial, on'y it's got mo' legs."

SOME GAMES YOU CAN PLAY ON HALLOWE'EN

Mystic Writing
Here is how one hostess amused her guests at the dining table. A bowl of nuts was passed (English walnuts); all the lights were out except candles and "jacks" placed in the corners of the room and on the mantelpiece. Each guest took a nut, cracked it while the hostess repeated in solemn tone:

"Hold above the candle what you find within.
Careful not to scorch it—that would be a sin."

The tightly rolled bit of paper was apparently blank until held over the candle flame, when a weird message appeared. The writing had been done with lemon juice, and nothing but heat will make it visible. An ink capers ready prepared for just such capers. Some of the prophecies were these: "You'll be married within a

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Hopis

The Hopi Indians of the Arizona Desert are descendants of the ancient cliff dwellers, of whom it is said no one knows who they were nor whence they came. They are an inoffensive, hospitable people, and were forced to inhabit the places they do by their enemies.

They live in terraced houses in almost inaccessible places on the high mesas. The terraces are built two or three stories high, each story being set back from the one below, thus giving a part of the roof of the lower story to be used as a courtyard or playground for the children.

The position of the Hopi woman is high in more senses than one. These houses are owned and built by the women. She owns the house and receives her husband into her home; the children take their clan name from their mother instead of their father. The corn, melons, squash and other vegetables, when deposited in the house by her husband, belong to her. She is queen in her own home, and on equal terms with her husband.

The young maidens dressed in their picturesque blanket robes and ornaments of beaten silver, are pleasant to look upon. All Indians have a great many symbols, and every Hopi girl of marriageable age twists up her shining black hair in a wheel-like whorl over each ear, to symbolize the blossom of the squash. When she marries she parts her hair, and wears it in doubled braids, one on each side of her head, to symbolize the fully developed squash fruit.

MANUFACTURERS PROTEST LICENSES

Consider Fees Operate inequitably; Some Revision Promised

Mayor Hayward told the aldermen in public works committee yesterday that it would be desirable before the end of the year to take up with the collector of licenses some of the inequalities which had developed in the administration of the trade license regulations, with a view to remedy next year.

The matter was mentioned when the following letter was read from T. J. Goodlake, secretary of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association:

"I am requested by the Victoria branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to call your attention to an inequality in schedule C of the above by-law, particularly as it applies to manufacturing businesses included in group D. A comparatively small business employing nine hands is thereby charged the same for a license as the largest plants in group E, namely, $200 per annum, while if ten hands are employed the charge is actually larger, being the maximum for group D, namely, $250 per annum.

"On the other hand, small businesses included in groups D and E are both charged at a much higher rate than manufacturing businesses with similar staffs comprised in some of the other groups.

Manufacturer's Position

"I have further to point out to you that a manufacturer often has a considerable investment in land and improvements thereon on which he already pays his share of taxation, and that he distributes large sums in wages whereby many other persons are enabled to make their contributions to civic expenses. It therefore does not seem equitable that he should be called upon to pay the same license fees as a wholesaler, perhaps in a much larger way of business, who in any case is importing stocks of goods manufactured elsewhere. Still less does it seem right that such a selling agent for a foreign factory who does not carry stock, but is nevertheless the means of large quantities of goods being imported into the city, should entirely escape payment of a business license. In many cities it is the practice to grant large concessions to manufacturing plants in the way of exemption from city taxes, free water and power and so on. The manufacturers whom I represent are not suggesting that such practice would be good business for the city, but they do claim that they are entitled to as much consideration as possible in the comparatively small matter referred to, and I have to ask you to give earnest consideration to the possibility of exempting manufacturing plants entirely from any but a nominal license fee. In any case, it is hoped that you can undertake a revision of schedule C of the by-law with a view to removing inequalities already pointed out."

HEAR REPORT ON LOCAL MOTOR CAMP

Trustees Show How Management of Camp Has Been Conducted

Aldermen were not well satisfied with the financing of the Auto Tourist Camp, Curtis Point, when statements were laid before them in public works committee yesterday afternoon.

The case was presented by the trustees, F. Waring, W. J. Clubb and H. P. Johnson, who were accompanied by the secretary, Harold Palmer.

It developed that the trustees, while providing considerable improvements, had several bills unpaid, and allowing for the payment of the rent of the leased land up to next May, when revenue will begin again, they are about $1,500 in the hole. Two of the items were particularly challenged during the discussion.

Chairman F. Waring said he feared that when he appealed to the aldermen early in the year he was over-sanguine. It was impossible to give a glowing financial account, although the trustees had been as economical as possible. He proceeded to read from a statement prepared by the secretary, Harold Palmer. The most careful economy had been exercised in the purchase of supplies, the report said. From May 16 to September 1, 509 cars had entered, and since the closing six others had used the camp facilities. There had been received during the season, $1,447 from those parking cars, also $249.50 from concessions and from the V.I.A.A.

Work had been done in clearing and grubbing land, in building an additional kitchen, in providing toilets, floating baths, drainage, and similar accommodations. Mr. Waring stated that the speaker presented accounts showing bill amounting to $1,562.09, against which there were considerable outlays which would be necessary in 1924. As they knew, the camp had brought a very large sum of new money into Victoria, and of great benefit. They had had $104.67 in-hand, but against it during the winter would accrue $200 in rent, Mr. Waring explained.

Then he answered a number of questions with regard to the incurring of the liability. In reply to Alderman Sargent he stated that the trustees had estimated a larger number of cars than those which came, in view of the opening of the additional ferries. Mr. Waring also answered a number of questions with regard to the sewerage at the camp, and whether it was the most economical system.

Alderman Leeming said a bill for over $500 from one of the tourist trade committee, who acted as engineer, was surprising, when the aldermen believed the committee was acting voluntarily.

Mr. Waring agreed that he was "flabbergasted" after he saw the amount, when the budget had been based on about $130 for engineer's fees.

Two aldermen declared that the auditor's fee also was too large. Alderman Sargent believed that the trustees had good cause to be disappointed. The distribution of $45,000 had been of some benefit to Victorians, as Mr. Waring had argued. "I think the engineer's bill is exorbitant, and the auditor's fee is absurd," remarked the alderman. "I believe that some of the expense should be met by those who benefited by the effort."

Alderman Andros expressed the opinion that when the trustees were doing city work, as they were, they should have asked for the assistance of the city engineering and auditor's department to give them technical advice.

"This duplication is objectionable to the average taxpayer," said the alderman.

Alderman Sangster said there was no criticism of the trustees, but he could only suggest that they should take back the bills of the engineering and auditing sections, and try and get them reduced.

Alderman Sargent added that the boathouse contract was excessive, and Mr. Waring replied that quite a lot of work had been necessary, more than they expected.

Alderman Sangster's suggestion was then adopted.

PROTECTION OF CITY'S WATERFRONT

Engineer Lays Blame on Vessels; Recommends Beach Patrol

Blame for the washing back of garbage on the Dallas Road waterfront was placed on passing steamers in a report made to the public works committee of the City Council yesterday by the city engineer.

Mr. Preston was asked to reply to a statement on the subject from the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, which had drawn attention to the situation as the cause of complaint by tourists.

The engineer placed the responsibility on passing vessels and recommended the only effective remedy to be that of a beach patrol. In order to make such patrol effective he recommended a sum sufficient should be placed in the estimates next year, a course the council approved.

Aldermen Gillespie and Andros both remarked that something must be done, the former declaring that the shore drift of garbage on the breakwater was very noticeable from the decks of incoming steamers.

Alderman Schofield waterfront residents declared to him that the garbage was dumped at the wrong time and tide.

LOOK FOR GOOD ATTENDANCE AT CEMETERY OPENING

Religious ceremonies to dedicate these areas which will be used by certain denominations in the new Royal Oak Cemetery will be planned in connection with the opening on November 25, Mayor Hayward told The Times today.

He pointed out that there will be a difference in administration as compared with the Ross Bay Cemetery plan. The land will not be sold outright to a denomination, but the Burial Board will contain control, subject to the requisite authority from the denomination whose burial is taking place in consecrated soil. In that way the board will always control its prices of land, and will be able to make the two plots sustain the upkeep, should there be a serious fluctuation in the number of interments.

The opening date has been set for a public half holiday, in the hope that there will be a large attendance.

TO HAVE ANGLICAN CHURCH BUILDING

Tenders Will be Invited For Building at Langford at Once

An enthusiastic meeting of the parishioners of Langford, with the bishop and vicar in attendance, was held in the Langford School, on Thursday evening.

Bishop Schofield informed the meeting, that owing to the exertions of the vicar, a very substantial gift of money had been received for the church building fund, and that with the sum now in hand, he felt the time had come for Langford to have a church.

The meeting, which was well attended, received the news with evident pleasure, and in accordance with the wishes of those present, as representatives of the district in general, the church building committee will proceed within the next few days to call for tenders, the intention being to proceed with the erection of the church forthwith.

SCHOOL LESSONS AT FACTORIES

Innovation Delights Scholars of Public Schools of Victoria

To the delight of the school children, over two hundred pupils of the public schools yesterday journeyed to different factories for object industrial lessons as a result of the arrangements of the Industrial Group of the Chamber of Commerce with the school authorities. The innovation is for the object of giving the youngsters a knowledge of the extent of Victoria's industries and oral and written competitions will follow in a competition for a handsome silver cup presented by the group. Ninety-seven children from South Park School learned something about the manufacture of paint at the B. A. Paint Company's works. Seventy-five journeyed from Victoria West School to the Sidney Roofing Company's plant. Thirty-eight from North Ward School went to the Victoria Bed and Mattress Company's works; fifteen from George Jay School to the Western Abrasive Company and twenty-four more from the same school went to Shelly Bros.

His Catarrh Yields to Vicks

British Columbia Man Greatly Relieved By New Salve
