GATHERED UP.

We burn midnight oil to make this column, and the Reverse Journal gives us credit for it. Thanks Bro.

All things whatsoever ye could that men should do to you, do ye even so to them.—Christian Golden Rule of love.

Economy is wealth, but it is a kind of wealth that the rich man finds it hard to transfer to his son.

"He knows all the best people in town." "Why doesn't he associate with them, then?" "They know him."

Don't try out your new 50,000-candle power flashlight on the public, in town, go out in the country and compete with droids.

Don't argue with yourself about the difference between right and wrong; you know the difference without being convinced anew.

Reputation is what men and women think of us.
Character is what God and the angels know of us.
—Thomas Paine.

Don't go by a schoolhouse like a whirlwind; how would you like to have your own children placed at the tender mercy of a fanatic with an automobile for a weapon?

Why, that's a regular little printing press, isn't it? remarked the visitor. Yes, replied Mrs. Popkin. "Willie's made a gift to him on his birthday. What a complete little thing! It's self-inking isn't it? I don't know but Willie is."

Don't invite your friends for a drive and then begin to show off. Remember, their necks may be worth something even if you do not place value upon your own.

"I suppose you have made it a rule in politics never to forget a friend." "There's no danger of that," answered Senator Sorghum. "If a man has done anything friendly for you in politics, he never lets you forget it."—Washington Star.

Don't tell "fish stories" about the speed you make on the highway; people become prejudiced when they hear them. The teller of such stories is to be considered a liar.

It matters not how deep entrenched the wrong.
How hard the battle goes, the day how long.
Faint not—fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.
—M. D. Balceck.

Those who took vessels of oil, a permanent supply, were those who had the living reality of that which they professed who put into practice, into character, that which shone from their lamps.

At a local picture show a painter hung a notice under his highly prized landscape. "Do not touch with cane or umbrella." "Some one who was not an admirer of his works added to the notice, "Take an X."

Watchfulness consists in being prepared for every emergency, and every duty, as the wise virgin watched by having their lamps continually burning, and a full supply of oil to keep them burning.

St. Louis street car conductors have been ordered not to reply to a woman when she is angry. The order, of course, is for the benefit of unmannered conductors. The others know better without being told.

If any little word of ours can make one life brighter;
If any little word of ours can make one heart lighter;
God help us speak that little word, and take our bit of singling.
And drop it in some lonely vale, and set the echoes ringing.
—Selected.

AWARDS HIM THE CHAMPIONSHIP.
A Kansas City man who has lived to be seventy-five years of age, declares that he never touched liquor, never chewed tobacco, never smoked, never gambled, never told a lie, never entered a theater, never traveled a mile on a boat or on a train on Sunday, never has spoken unkindly to his fellow-man, nor lifted his hat to a woman. "Our opinion of that man is that he is the champion liar of the age."

HIS BLINDER.
Two students traveling through the country to procure their meals and lodging grants adopted the method used by the deaf and dumb. The extended slate had invariably produced good results.
"One noon they halted at the front door of a farm house. The housewife read the appeal on the slate. She looked from the one who carried the slate to his partner.
"Are you deaf and dumb, too?" she put to the latter.
"Yes, ma'am," replied the student soborly.

SALOONS CLOSE COLUMBUS DAY.
Despite the discovery of what was supposed to be a "joker" in the legislative bill making Oct. 12 a legal holiday, to be known as Columbus day, the licensing board at police headquarters here stated positively that the saloons will not be permitted to open on that day.
The board stated that Columbus day will be regarded exactly the same as other legal holidays despite the contentions of some that the omission of a clause specially forbidding the opening of saloons would allow them to do business legally.

Corn smut is different from that of small grains.—Burn the smutted ears and stalks if you can.

Gather pumpkins and squash before a hard frost and store away in a dry place—not in a damp cellar.

The New England Corn Show at Worcester in October, will be a great event. A Western visitor would be surprised to see what New England corn fields can produce.

A good growth of rice plowed in next Spring will give you more and better potatoes. But you'll have to get it right away or you won't have much growth to play under.

Some lands that pick apples do not seem to care much whether they break off the branches of the trees or not. After they have finished picking the fruit, they have just about finished the trees, too.

asked the little son of an agriculture professor, "Oh, my son," was the wise reply, "they are ploughs which have stood out in the furrows all winter."

Laid in your stock of dust yet for the winter? Don't forget it. Neglect is one of the worst enemies you have—almost equal to lice.—Try to avoid dampness in your houses, sure to bring disease.

To keep cooler for winter use after it is grown, the green crop is taken from the row the sooner it will keep, because fully manured cobs are most useful or marketed at once or lost from rot, quite sure to occur.

The "harvest moon" is so called from the fact that in the early autumn days when grain and fruit are being taken from the fields, there is hardly any mist, haze, intervening, between the close of day and the beginning of night.

A man with a small farm can use a spreader as well as any one, for the reason that he at least doubles the value of the manure. He will have to be more careful, however, in purchasing a spreader, as he is usually limited to one team and needs one that runs light.

Concrete floors are not to be recommended for a poultry house unless they are covered to a depth of 4 to 6 inches with dry soil or sand. In the first place, they are cold in winter, and in the second place, a fowl lying from the roost and lighting on a hard floor, is likely to injure its feet and huddle-foot is almost sure to ensue. Even a board floor should be covered with dirt, sand or deep litter.

Eastern farmers use fertilizers because they pay. It is not good practice to mix hen manure and straw. The manure contains lime and the manure organic nitrogen. A combination of these two means a separation of ammonia which escapes into the air. A better plan is to put the hen manure in the hill and broadcast the ashes. If mixed together in the soil there will be little loss, for the soil will absorb and hold the ammonia.

Cleanse the stable daily, ventilate perfectly, screen doors and windows, remove manure piles from the vicinity of the stable, feed fresh food each meal. Shade the horse's head when at work, but avoid a heavy wet sponge; if possible, mistle horse's sides thereby and is the most liable to stroke; where such combination can not be avoided, change horses often to afford as much relief as possible.

In choosing brood sows for the production of pork, it is a very important matter to select from prolific and strong legs and good feet. The individuals selected should be rather racy, with a straight back, a broad and deep body. It is not a developed teats. Do not breed them before they are eight months old, but feed them well before and after breeding so that they may become vigorous and well developed.

Many young horses "go over in the knee" to a small extent by standing on a floor that slopes downward from the manger. A young horse standing on a floor of this kind has his toes higher than his heels, and the continued strain on the back sinews of the forelegs becomes so severe that the horse's hind end comes to bend his knees slightly in order to ease the tension. He thus acquires the habit of standing with slightly bent knees whether he happens to be on an incline or on a level. The way to overcome this evil is to reverse the conditions.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest. By GENERAL CHARLES KING, Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

A romance of army life in the Indian country in Indian fighting days? Lanier, the self sacrificing hero who typifies Uncle Sam's military officers; Miriam, the sweet girl whose love he wins; Dora, the capricious little beauty who set a whole military encampment in a turmoil; and Brandon, young misjudged, but honest, who was the rival of the officer of the Cavalry.

THE SILENCE was sinking low beyond the feet of the four men on the porch. The flag at the old fort on the neighboring heights hung to the staff with scarcely a flutter, awaiting the evening salute of the trumpets and the roll of the drum. The young girl tilted restlessly about the vine covered porch of the roadside cottage. She laid the big binocular aside, a wistful, longing look in the dark and dreamy eyes.

"This girl of seventeen, in her dainty white frock, planned her dejected look down on the top step with two very shapely, slender, slippered feet displayed on the second ledge.

And then of a sudden the tears were shed again and the girl sprang to her feet. A little voice hailed her from within.

"Dora! Dora! Miss Dora—two on my part, at least—like enough to be twin handmaids."

"Dora! Dora! Miss Dora—two on my part, at least—like enough to be twin handmaids."

"Dora! Dora! Miss Dora—two on my part, at least—like enough to be twin handmaids."

stammered the argument, meaning the regulation item over at his quarters.

"There it is, sir, before your eyes. Mr. Lanier, at least can have no further use for it until a court martial acts on his case."

"Good Lord," thought Barker, "how can I go up to Bob and tell him to properly place him in arrest."

"But the colonel would brook no delay. "Direct Mr. Lanier to report to me in the afternoon," said he, marching in the direction of the quarters.

"Miss Arnold, may I offer myself as a substitute for the rest of this dance?"

"You know how sorry I am, but I cannot attend the dance, Mr. Trotter."

"You know how sorry I am, but I cannot attend the dance, Mr. Trotter."

GATHERED UP.

If thine enemy wrong thee, buy thy child a drum.

In some styles there is no change. Poor relatives are cut the same as last year.

The hand can never exert anything higher than the character can aspire to.—Emerson.

A man who does not know how to learn from his mistakes, takes the best school-master out of his life.—Beecher.

Eighteen thousand veterans took part in the latest Grand Army procession, but over 40,000 army and navy pensioners died last year.

A fool is unable to see his own faults. A wise man, seeing his own faults, is able to keep other people from noticing them.—Chicago Record Herald.

A speed maniac has sold his auto to pay the amount of his accumulated fines. The man in the street gets a sweet revenge.

If you worry, your wife thinks you're foolish. If you don't, she thinks you lack a proper sense of your responsibilities.

"I once saw a couple married in a den of lions."
"Did the groom seem scared?"
"Not any more than is usually the case."

"If I buy you a seat in the stock exchange will you agree to go to work?"
"I ain't crazy for work, dad. Make it a seat in the senate."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mariner (relating some of his active service adventures)—"An' me an' my mates was lost in the virgin forest—virgin, so to speak, because the hand of man had never before set foot there."

In life troubles will come which look as if they would never pass away. The night and the storm look as if they would last forever, but the coming of the calm and the morning cannot be stayed.

Phrenologist (examining subject)—"This bump indicates caution. I should say you are a cautious man."
Subject—"You're right there. I'm very cautious now. I got that bump falling down stairs."—From Woman's Home Companion for October.

The hobble skirt seems absurd enough to the present generation, but to those who remember the idiotic Grecian bend with which women forty years ago accentuated the peculiarities of the kangaroo, it looks like a safe and sane scheme of fastenment.

Judge Richardson said that the union men had no right to interfere with other employees. "No labor organization has a right to interfere with a non-union man in his work. Any man, in this country, has a right to whom he pleases at what wage he please."

AUTOMOBILE RECKLESSNESS.

When automobilizing was in the early stages of its development, and the possibilities of speed and power were yet unknown, the Vanderbilt cup races were excusable, but since it has been demonstrated that they are usually attended by loss of life, it can hardly be claimed that they are worth the while. The casualty list is quite too long to be put aside as a mere incident of a speed trial. Permits for future races should not be issued unless under conditions that will secure the safety of the spectators. The safety of the participants may be said to be a personal matter, but the public has a right to demand the prohibition of inhuman exhibitions, however willing those engaged may be to take the risks involved.—Lynn Item.

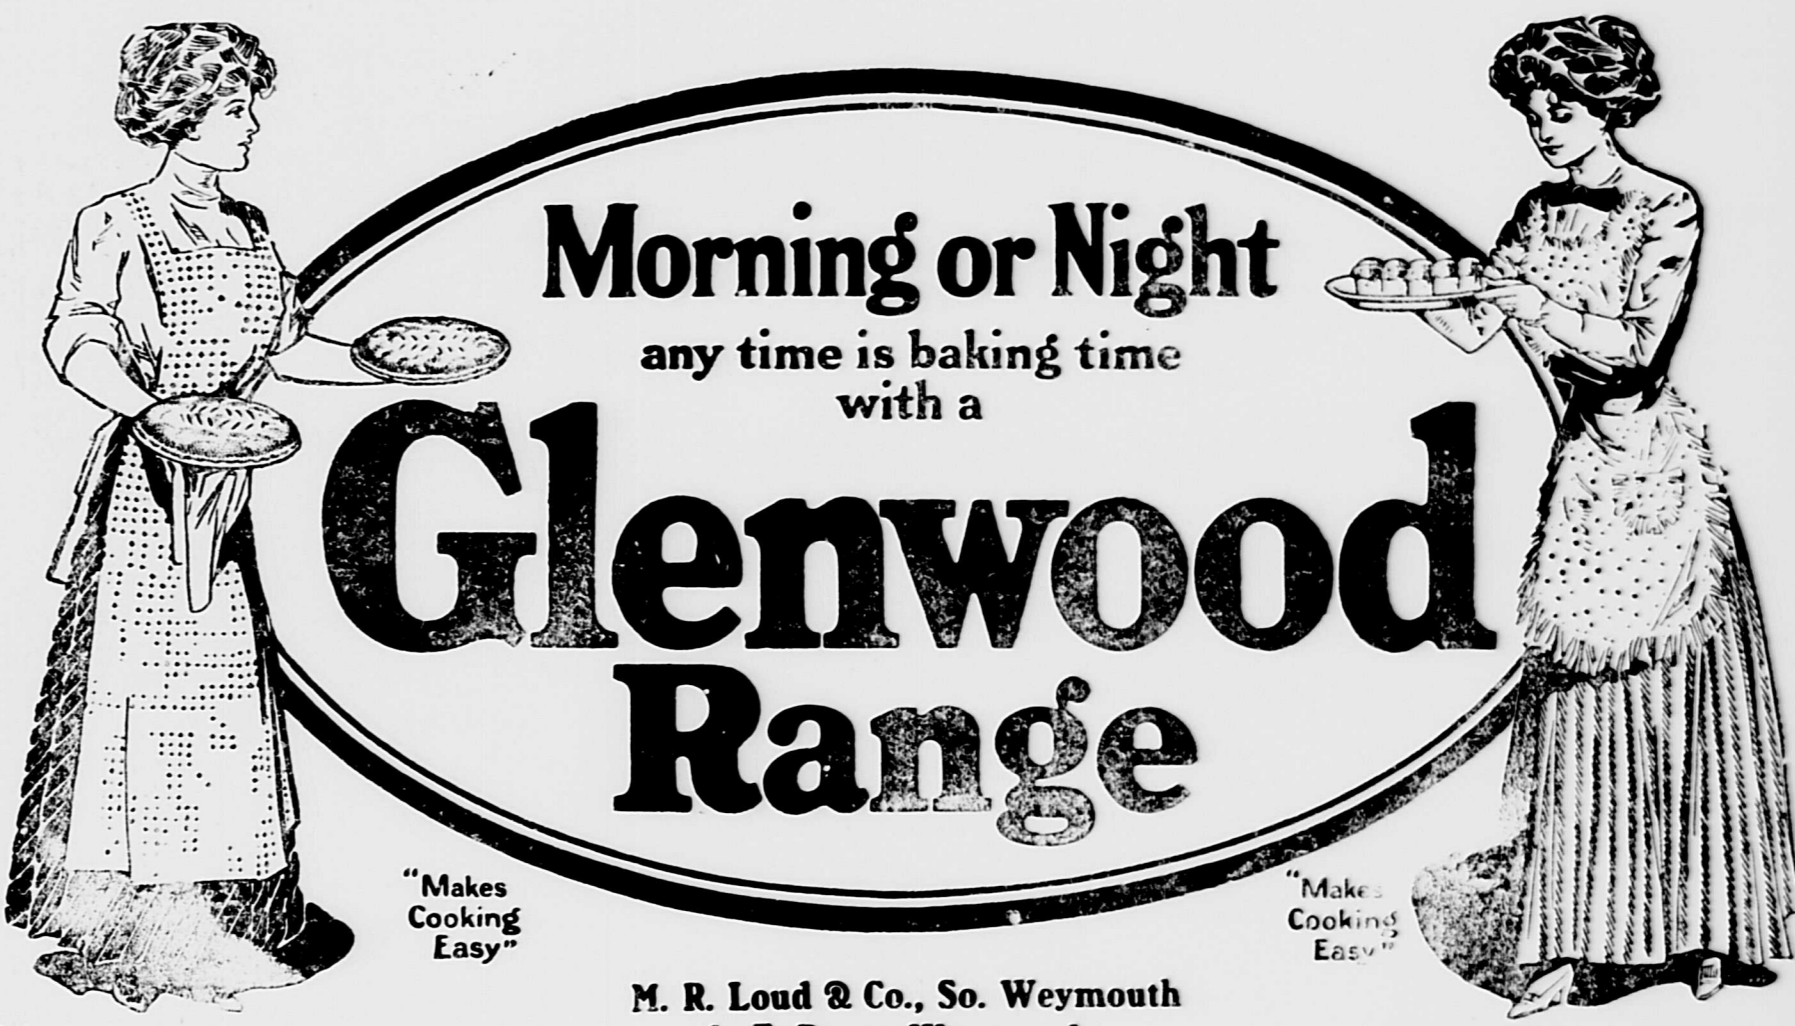

POLITE MR. HEARD.

Congressman John T. Heard of Missouri was one of the most polite and Chesterfieldian gentlemen ever known in the national house of representatives. On the day that the house passed a bill opening to settlement the Cherokee strip, Mr. Heard voted for the bill, and then was leaving the capitol when he met Mrs. Heckmann, who had been diligently lobbying against the bill. She asked: "What was done with the Cherokee strip bill?"
"It has just passed the house, madam," said Mr. Heard, holding aloft his hat and bowing low. "It passed by a vote of 142 to 108."
"So there were 142 railroad thieves, were there?" Mrs. Heckmann hissed spitefully.
"And only 108 cattle thieves, by the official count," replied polite Mr. Heard, as he passed on.

Professional Insect.
"Homeo and Juliet," with the original company, had reached its crucial moment.
Juliet was staggering about the stage, regarding her afflicted lover.
"Oh, cruel poison!" she wailed.
She raised her lover for a moment in her arms.
A wildly excited medical student in the gallery sprang to his feet.
"Keep him up, Juliet—keep him up!" he belted. "Till run out and fetch the stomach pump!"

A Run of Luck.
Violet—I never had such a streak of luck. He fell in love in Paris, proposed in Rome and bought the ring in Naples. Pteriot—Did your luck end there?

The Silver Lining.

ON THE FARM

This column is worth more than $2.00 a year to you. Subscribe for the Gazette.

Do not leave the old cabbage stumps sticking up out of the ground. They look slowly and breed fungous pests. Pull them up and burn them.

In the east probably the best opportunities are found in truck farming. Only a small tract of land is required and the returns are large.

Build the line fence strong enough to keep your own and your neighbor's stock on the right side but do not have it so high that it will prevent you from being neighborly.

When doing the tree planting, do not forget to put a few trees in a corner of the pasture fields in the corner of the fence pastured on the farm. Protect these for a few years and they will protect the stock for many more.

A variety of food adapted to egg production is all the egg stimulant the hens need. Cayenne pepper and other stimulants are worthless in their after-effects. You can rush them for a while with them but the day of reckoning will come when your hens will go "all to pieces."

No other branch of agriculture presents more advantages than dairying—disposing of the products of the farm as milk and butterfat. When the latter may be sold to creamery stations and the skim milk fed to calves and the pigs along with alfalfa, the products are greater than from almost any other form of agriculture.

Eggs are always cash. Plenty of eggs mean plenty of money. Hens that have the range of meadows and plowed fields require only a small amount of grain, are healthier and produce eggs that hatch thrifty chickens. But laying hens should be given all the grain they will clean up in the late afternoon—they should not go to roost hungry or without full crops.

Right now is the time to dispose of the superannated pet hen which has ceased to be sufficiently productive to pay for her keeping. A young hen or pullet may be fed until she is as fat as butter and will lay right along, but an old one, on the same keep, or even a good deal less, will get too fat and lazy, and will not produce enough eggs to pay for her room rent let alone her board.

Leaves gathered from the trees of our way sides and hills, neatly pressed, make adornment for our family rooms, the maple, the elm, the sumac, etc., afford leaves with great variety in colors, lending charm and cheerfulness to our homes. It makes pleasant employment for the young to gather beautiful and well-formed foliage for the beautifying of home apartments.

Do not let the summer milkers run down in condition and go into winter quarters thin in flesh. It will take a lot of feed to get them back into paying condition if they are allowed to get thin. This will cost more to keep them up by extra feed; besides, if given the extra feed in time, they will pay for every pound of it, with a profit added. Don't you see?—October Farm Journal.

A characteristic of the Guernsey is a very generous secretion of yellow coloring matter which pertains to the whole skin, but is seen especially where the hair is white, in the ears, around the eyes and about the udder. This gives a richness to the animal which is very noticeable and causes the butter produced to be of a higher color at all seasons of the year than that of any other breed. The udder and teats are large and admirably shaped and placed in selected specimens, but those and other dairy markings do not, throughout the breed, appear to be as fixed as in the case of Jerseys, which have been subjected to a longer course of careful breeding.

LOTTERY IN ITALY
 Gambling Under the Auspices of the Government.
THE DRAWING IN PUBLIC.
 An Eager, Excited, Turbulent Crowd Watches This Ceremony With Intense Interest—The Prizes and the Chances of the Players.
 King Humbert I. made the rules for the public lottery of Italy:
 First.—The public lottery is temporarily maintained by the favor of the state under the following laws.
 Second.—It is administered by the minister of finance, under whom the chiefs are chosen for their respective functions.
 Third.—The lotto is formed by ninety, numbered from 1 to 90, inclusive, five of which drawn by chance determine the successful.
 Fourth.—One can "play the lotto" in the following manner:
 On one number (very rarely played).
 On all five numbers (very rarely played).
 On two numbers—the "ambo."
 On three numbers, which is known as the "terzo."
 On four numbers, which is known as the "quattro."
 On five numbers (very rarely played).
 The winner is paid ten times and a half his outlay, when two numbers are played the winner is paid 350 times his outlay; when three numbers are played the winner is paid 5,250 times his outlay; when four numbers are played the winner is paid 69,000 times his outlay. Therefore if one has by any chance bought a No. 1 ticket and wins the four numbers (quattro) he wins $30,000.
 At 5 o'clock on every Saturday afternoon throughout all Italy the drawing of the lotto takes place. In Naples the ceremony is held at the end of a long, filthy alley known as the Impresca, back in a great courtyard, in full view of the people on the balcony of an old palace. From early in the afternoon a crowd of thousands of people has gathered to see the drawing. The streets are always so full of life that for this extra crowd the streets are closed. The cheer, there would seem to be no place. It is compressed of the very poor. The better classes watch for the telephone or the shouting of the numbers in the various banks in the city to discover their fate, but in the Impresca the crowd of people is dense as a shadow. There are many here who have paid their last cent for a ticket. There are many here who are in debt for the shoes they wear and will never be able to pay for them. But at the stroke of the church clock the blinds of the shop are closed, the Impresca is closed, and the drawing of the lotto is over. The numbers are called out one by one, and the crowd of people is dense as a shadow. There are many here who have paid their last cent for a ticket. There are many here who are in debt for the shoes they wear and will never be able to pay for them. TRAVELERS' TALES.
 Some That Were Discredited and Vindicated Long Afterward.
 Travellers' tales have often been accused of being mere flights of imagination, and in the past stay at home people have sometimes erred in treating travellers' tales with scorn. There was, for instance, the description by James Bruce in 1770 of the barbarous Abyssinian custom of eating raw meat from the living animal, which was ridiculed by everybody. Yet Bruce has recently been proved right. When Paul Du Chaillu explored equatorial Africa in 1851 and described the wonderful gorillas and the nation of dwarfs there he was discredited now, too, by the British Royal Geographical Society. Yet subsequent explorers amply vindicated his veracity. In the matter of discredited travellers' tales vindicated long afterward it will never be possible to beat the classic instance in Herodotus. He tells how King Nectaneus of Egypt commissioned certain Phoenician mariners to circumnavigate Africa if they could. They did it, starting from the Red sea and returning by the straits of Gibraltar after very many months. And he reported, says Herodotus, that in rounding the southern end of Africa they had the sun on their right hand. "I, for my part," he says, "do not believe this, but perhaps others may." In modern times that detail is precisely what proves that the Phoenicians did achieve the wonderful voyage. Such an "improbable" fact could never have been invented in an age which was not familiar with the equator.—Chicago News.

A DEED OF DARING.
Twenty-seven Lives Saved by One
 A historic case of daring and endurance rarely equaled in life saving annuals was that of the rescue of twenty-seven souls by one man in 1867. The fishing schooner Sea Clipper was driven ashore by a heavy gale on the rocky Spotted Islands at that coast and speedily went to pieces. Captain William Jackman, in charge of a fishing crew at these islands, had wandered about the coast and never before before saw the schooner and suddenly saw the whole tragedy enacted before his eyes. Hurrying to one companion boat, he plunged into the howling surf to save the crew. Each time he took a human being to safety, battling splendidly against wind and tide.
 Then help arrived, but no means was available for communicating with the vessel, so Jackman fastened a rope around his waist and made fifteen more trips, returning with a castaway on each occasion. It was then discovered that a woman had been overlooked in the rescue. She was on the shore, where, directing himself of her flannels, he wrapped her round her, as she was almost at death's door. She expired a few hours later, but lived long enough to thank her preserver for the noble efforts in her behalf.—Wide World Magazine.

Self-Reliance.
BY GAIN BRATTLE.
 Who is the man that best succeeds in life's uncertain race?
 Who, step by step, each rival leads,
 And takes the foremost place?
 It is not he who seeks for aid
 In every emergency,
 Who leans on self alone.
 He meets his troubles as they come
 As brave men meet their foes;
 He waxes stout in shivering rain,
 In dread of next year's snows.
 He lingers not where spendthrifts dwell,
 He lives short lives and dies;
 He holds, he saves, and always asks
 "His purse what he shall buy."
 No evil pleasures ease his toil;
 He saves no money for the future;
 For labor is his salt of life,
 And pleasure but his spice.
 He stints not gold when needs demands,
 Nor nicks his soul with doubt,
 When though he would "lay money up,"
 He also "lays it out."
 His acts are just, his pledge is kept,
 He tricks not, nor deceives;
 He deems that honest deeds are fruit,
 And empty words but vain.
 He will not bend the knee to man—
 He'll cringe, he'll kneel to none;
 The brave, the self-reliant man
 Kneels but to God alone.

BROUGHT UP HOT WATER.
The Friction of the Boat Made the Ocean Almost Boil.
 The steamship was speeding over seas with a record breaking list of passengers when one of the gay, young and inquiring girls who are found on every trip skipped up to the captain and asked:
 "Captain, are we really going fast? It seems as if we were just crawling."
 "Fast," answered the captain gruffly. "You're waiting for the water, nothing to see but water and sky you can't judge our speed, but my dear young lady, the friction of the boat is so great it makes the water hot as if it were boiling."
 "I don't believe that," giggled the girl, and the captain, with a great show of indignation, called for a rope and bucket to prove his words. These brought, he slung the pail down the side of the vessel directly under the draught of the gally, where hot water runs all day, and brought it up smoking, to the astonishment of the awestruck girl.
 "A long, lean Yankee who had been watching the performance then came forward and drawled, "Say, cap, that must make you change your course mightily often."
 "Change my course?" blustered the captain. "What would I change my course for?"
 "Well," said the Yankee stoutly, "so darn much friction as that must wear the ocean out at mighty quick."—Philadelphia Times.

Two Cheerful Liars.
 Two Americans were disputing as to which had experienced the greatest cold in winter. Said one: "In the part of Iceland where I was last summer the ground is frozen so hard all the year round that when they want to bury a man in they just sturpen his feet and drive him in with a pile hammer."
 The other replied: "Yes, I know that place. Didn't stay there long, but I found it not quite bracing enough for me. Went on to a small town farther north. The hotel where I was staying was caught in a blizzard, which was a top story. No fire escapes or ladders in that primitive settlement. Stairs causes burnt away. Expected, kept my presence of mind. Enkled my both out of the window and slid down the feller."—Truth.
Funny Stories.
 "It's hot," said the jovial man as he stepped on the red hot pavement on the hot side over to humor me. I have just stepped out with my archet, and he showed me three of the funniest stories I ever saw. If I hadn't been paying for them I'd have laughed myself silly."
His Little's Corn Hack.
 Mrs. Littler's, said her husband, between two news, our assessor senators, exclaims, "A row between two thorns!"
 "Nay, indeed," retorts one irate old gentleman, "say, rather, a tongue sandwich."—Life.

ON THE FARM

This column is worth more than $2.00 a year to you. Subscribe for the Gazette.
Here's a tip to go into dirty nest boxes. They won't do it if they can help it. Why don't you see to this, right off?
No matter how still the day, better take down your ladders at night. The wind may come up before morning and spoil a good ladder in no time.
If some readers have never raised chickens as a cattle feed they should certainly experiment with them and they will be more than repaid.
A good coating of whitewash on the inside of each house will help considerably in getting rid of vermin. Take several inches of dirt out of the houses and replace with new, clean earth.
When killed by the frost, mow off the asparagus tops and burn them. Then give the bed and the rhubarb plants, too—a thick winter overcoat of stable manure.
Happy is the cow whose owner gives a crop of manure. This is a valuable fertilizer for the field. Men would hardly undertake to test a cow for great production without manure.
Promiscuous cross breeding never leads to desirable results. It is only by persistent clinging to the characteristics of the breed that the best characteristics of the breed are materially improved.
There is one thing which all farmers who use chemicals should remember—These chemicals should be spread as evenly as possible. They are all concentrated, and will burn or injure vegetation if they are dumped in handfuls upon growing crops. They should be spread out all over the ground.
The cool nights remind us that cold weather is not far distant, and the poultry houses should be overhauled and repaired. The roof should be tight so that no rain or snow can fall through, and all cracks should be battened up so that no cold drafts of air may strike the fowls and cause them to catch colds and crop.
Too many farmers fail to see what benefits may be derived from good plowing. They fail to realize that the power is a machine to be respected. "Land well plowed is half worked." The soil should be brought up, pulverized, and exposed as much as possible to the sun and atmosphere. The failure to turn under trash invites trouble in the following treatment and retards growth to some degree.
Manure exposed for three months in an open barnyard during the winter and early spring lost nearly one-third of its total fertilizing value, as shown by chemical analysis. When such manure was compared with fresh manure a field experiment shows the ton of dry manure produced increase to the value of $2.15 as a year average, while the ton of fresh manure gave an average increase of $2.96 for the same period, showing a loss in effectiveness of 31 cents per ton, or 27 per cent.
The use of the artificial china egg is said to be a grand against hens acquiring the egg-eating habit. China eggs are used in the nests and are placed on the floor of the henhouse as well as about the yards. The hens become accustomed to seeing these eggs, and if they attempt to peck them they will learn that they can not be broken, hence they will be more apt not to molest real eggs. On large egg farms china eggs are used freely all over the grounds and in the houses.
Where corn constitutes the main food as is the case on most farms it is plain to see that it is not advisable to feed it in the same form all the time. With the feed grinder it is possible to mix the several ground grains in smaller quantities which one would hardly buy. Where poultry keeping is a part of the farm industry there will be found abundant use for the feed grinder and it will pay a good profit.
If one must, for any reason, store the winter manure for some portion of the winter, the bulk of its value will be maintained if stored in pits with cement bottoms, so that the liquid portions are retained, and the mass treated with kailit occasionally. The cost is small compared with the increased value of the manure. Try it this winter and you will become a convert to the practice.
Taking everything together, any comparisons that the country girl may be able to draw are favorable to the farm. She has been raised in the open air. The pigs and the calves and the chickens are her playmates. The colts will come when she whistles, for whoever heard of a country girl who couldn't whistle? She can name all the trees in the wood lot, and she knows the note of every bird that sings in their branches. Every day is full of sunshine, and she sings for the joy of living where air is free and room is not bought and sold.
There is nothing saved by fall setting of asparagus. Asparagus is a crop that is almost always set on fairly light soils. It is also one that is planted quite deep. That makes two reasons why fall setting should be avoided. First, the lighter the soil in which the crop is planted, the more readily the furrows will blow full some time during the winter, and if set on soils with a finer grain, that is, with some fine clay in it, then when heavy rains come, also freezing and thawing, will fill or partially fill the furrows. Then, too, this kind of soil is not exempt from blowing, particularly so when ground is frozen hard and bare and dry at the same time. What harm does this blowing do? Why, it smother the young plants and they die.

GATHERED UP.

Concentration is the secret of strength in politics, in war, in trade.—Emerson.
There is no better way of emptying the mind of evil than by filling it with good.
If you want to learn how to speak well, first learn to hold your tongue.
Don't sneer at the man with one idea. He may be very useful to the world, if the idea's a good one.
It is a wise man, whatever his age, that doesn't talk about his age at all but lets his work do the talking.
It is a maxim that no man was ever enslaved by influence while he was fit to be free.—Johnson.
We have noticed that when two boys are playing with a wagon the smaller boy is pretty apt to be the horse.—Atchison Globe.

White-Smith.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, High street place, an event of unusual interest occurred Thursday evening when the daughter, Dora Elizabeth a graduate of Boston University of the class of 1905, became the bride of Louis Edwin White of Mystic, Conn., son of
Mr. and Mrs. Edwin White of Pomfret,

REV. WALTER H. COMMONS.

New Pastor at the Congregational Church, East Weymouth.

Shortly after the resignation of Rev.
Emery L. Bradford, pastor of the Congregational church in East Weymouth, last spring, the committee of the church and society began to cast about for a available and right man to fill the vacancy. After a search of several weeks, it was suggested, was Rev. Walter H. Commons who had just resigned as pastor of the Shoe Industry.

It is evident from the reports from all parts of the country that climatic conditions have been controlling the boot and shoe trade, and while summer like weather has not accompanied the business has not accompanied it; in fact,
business has been much upset and mixed.

Thirty Fifth Anniversary.

Wompatuck Encampment, No. 18, I. O.
O. F. celebrated the thirty fifth anniversary of its institution on Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows hall which was attended by a large number of members and their families. A carload of Patriarchs and wives and daughters were present from Quincy. The famous Grand Encampment branch had assisted in furnishing the evening's entertainment, which was one long to be remembered. Following is the program:

HOME ENDORSEMENT.

Hundreds of Weymouth Citizens Can Tell You All About It.
Home endorsement, the public expression of Weymouth people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Weymouth reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, the writer assuming full responsibility for the opinions expressed.

My Dear Mr. Hawes:
In reviewing my subscription to the Gazette, the thought comes to me that I ought to say a word in commendation of your column, "On the Farm."
I like it very much and think it must be very helpful not only to cultivators of farms, but also to all who cultivate a little garden, or have a fruit tree or vine, or keep a few hens. That means that many of our citizens will find matters of interest in the column. I wish it might be extended so as to enlighten and encourage the citizens for more active and persistent efforts for organized cooperation in promoting the interests of agriculture and home life. The Agricultural society, the several village improvement associations, and the Grange, I believe, might be greatly helped by matters that concern them as organization and yet naturally come under the designation "On the Farm," taken in its broadest sense.

Republican Rally.

On the part of the Republicans this has not been an old time affair with bands of music, torch light and red fire parades but gatherings of the people to discuss in a calm and logical way the great questions of the hour and needs of the Nation and State and such was the rally of the Republican party of Weymouth at the Town Hall last night.

The speakers were Hon. John W. Weeks representative in Congress of the 12th Mass. District; Hon. Joseph Walker
speaker of the lower branch of the Mass.
Legislature; Hon. John D. Long, Ex.
Gov. Ex. Sec. of the Navy etc.; Hon. E.
J. Slattery of both branches of the Mass.
Legislature; Hon. J. Sidney Cushing of the Governors Council; Genl. L. Barnes and Mr. W. Croft.

The meeting was led by William J. Holbrook, chairman of the town committee.
Limited time this morning will not permit of an extended report. Mr. Weeks was the first speaker and spoke with interest and vigor of the leading features of the last session of Congress and the important work yet to be done. Mr. Walker followed with much valuable information in regard to the work of the Massachusetts legislature and also of the stirring work of Gov. Drippar along the line of his executive life. Gen. Long spoke to quite a length in regard to the present high cost of living.

Both Mr. Slattery and Mr. Cushing spoke of their intimate acquaintance with Gov. Drippar and his heroic courage in doing those things which he believed to be right and also urged the importance of the election of Mr. Barnes and Mr. Croft not only as a recognition of their worth but also as to its importance in keeping a good balance on the right side of the Senate and House.

Time at last was limited and Mr. Barnes and Mr. Croft were necessarily cut short in their remarks, which were along the line of getting out the voters of Weymouth on Nov. 8th.

Previous to the rally, Mr. Weeks and Mr. Walker were entertained by the Whale Island club for the purpose of giving those two gentlemen an insight into the importance of Weymouth Fore River and the River and its importance in pending in regard to them and Weymouth's part in the expenditures.

PIANOS WITH A SOFT, SWEET TONE

There is such a difference in pianos the wonder is that folks are not more prudent when they buy. Pianos all look alike on the outside when new, but all the important part, the fine mechanism, the heart of the instrument, is what counts in service. Three out of every four pianos sold in this vicinity sound harsh and tin-like after a few years of service. Here we sell the famous Mathusbeck Pianos with a rich soft tone that lasts forever. Come to the Quality Store and buy your pianos. It's for our welfare, it's for your welfare. Time payments to suit your convenience.
