

JOURNEY TO NEW YORK

MRS. ELLA RICHARDSON WRITES ENTERTAININGLY OF HER TRIP TO THE EAST

Mrs. Ella Richardson, who is at New York attending the National Convention of Women's clubs, is anxious that her numerous friends in Glendale should know how much she has enjoyed her trip to the East and what she met with on her way to New York city. She says:

"I have just arrived in New York city after one of the most pleasant trips it has ever been my good fortune to enjoy. The ladies who accompanied me were delightfully unselfish. There was not a self-centered thought among them. Everyone was in the very best of humor. Everywhere we were met with pleasant greetings from delegations of ladies who knew that the Southern California delegation was on the train. Flowers, badges, pins, acceptable articles of all kinds were showered upon us. Wherever it was possible owing to the time allowed for stoppage of the train, we were taken out for auto rides.

"At Chicago a reception and luncheon with rides to different points of interest were tendered us. Two years ago I had enjoyed this same round of sightseeing with my nephew, who became a resident of Glendale a few days before I came on this trip. To him—Harry Richardson, and to his wife—Tropico and Glendale owe gratitude for any good work I may have been able to do in connection with the playground movement.

"In Chicago I was taken to the city hall, where I interviewed the Playground Commissioner and was astonished to learn that, in the estimation of the Chicago playground officials no playground could be run, in any place, without an expenditure of $1000. This sum, they said, was absolutely necessary, no matter how small the attendance, and even if there were only one supervisor and no expense for equipment. I got all the literature they issue and was glad that I had not heard their opinion before I went into the playground work at Glendale and Tropico, otherwise I might have been discouraged.

"At Niagara Falls we stopped thirteen hours and were able to visit every nook and corner of that delightful spot. I had visited the Falls before, with my family, but it was a great pleasure to act as guide to the others of the party who had never been there before.

"At Albany we left our Los Angeles car. All the way up to that point we had enjoyed a most pleasant time, holding receptions in one car or another; making speeches, singing, shouting our different slogans and enjoying the delicious fruit sent us by different Chambers of Commerce in California. We had stacks of candy, nuts and other delicacies. Each lady of the party was presented also with a Glendale carnation.

"We had breakfast on the steamboat, the Robert Fulton, and enjoyed our trip down the river to New York. On the way we got a fine view of West Point, Vassar college and the palatial residences of the New York millionaires and billionaires. The Glendale delegation was the first to leave the boat and to reach the hotel where everywhere comfort awaited her, having been secured in advance for her by her thoughtful son.

"Monday night the California delegation met in the blue room of the hotel. Sixty-five were present. Tuesday the Astor hotel was swamped by the thousands of delegates who thronged its corridors for the purpose of getting their credentials. The hotel was headquarters for that work.

"I was given an invitation to a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J. Although the day was stormy with a fierce gale and driving rain, the trip was a merry one and well worth the time it occupied. Mr. and Mrs. Edison were charming. On returning I received a letter from a dear friend, a Bostonian, containing an invitation to the Harvard Class day. This is a privilege that money cannot buy. I accepted the invitation immediately.

"Tuesday night a 'Dramatic Evening' was given in compliment to the delegates and alternates of the Thirtieth Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the Hotel Astor. This was a charming affair, consisting of three short sketches: 'The Right to Live,' 'The Man in Front' and 'An Episode.' Miss Beverly Sitgreaves gave 'Impressions of Madame Sarah Bernhardt' and there were excellent songs and dances.

"You see that we have no idle moments. I hope everyone is doing everything to make the Peace Pa-

IN TUNGSTEN FIELD

SIBLEY PROPERTY AT GOFFS, CAL., SHOWS INDICATIONS OF RICH OUTPUT

Not long ago a new tungsten field was discovered at Goffs, Cal. This promises to be one of those steady, paying producers which are the delight of the genuine mining man. The new field is situated about thirty miles from Needles, Cal. Though in such close proximity to that justly celebrated hot climate, the new camp being 2500 feet higher in elevation is pleasantly cool at night no matter how hot it may have been through the day.

When the war in Europe broke out tungsten began to mount in value. It increased so rapidly in price that those who had supplies above ground made enormous fortunes out of them and a feverish race set in to find new fields. Atolia, the old reliable California tungsten field, is still producing and is rich both in scheelite in place and in placer deposits of scheelite.

Mrs. G. E. Carruthers of Goffs, the new camp, was recently a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sibley, 1517 Penn street. She says that her husband, who is interested in various properties there along with E. E. Fuller and H. R. Sibley and others, thinks that Goffs is to be a richer camp than Atolia. The scheelite ore is found in substantial ledges and runs to great depth. This ore, though not as high-priced as it was a short time ago, is still sufficiently valuable to make it certain that considerable fortunes will be earned by its fortunate discoverers.

H. R. Sibley and C. W. Frazier left Glendale some three weeks ago to inspect their properties at Goff. They are expected home within a few days and write that they are greatly pleased with the prospects at the new camp. The tungsten is high grade and there is every prospect that all connected with the mines there will realize comfortable fortunes out of them.

At present tungsten is used in a great many different manufacturing processes. The public is familiar with it in the shape of the tungsten electric lamp, which gives so brilliant a light. It is also used in processes of steel manufacture, giving to steel a peculiar hardness that cannot be imparted to it by other processes. Every day new uses are being found for this extraordinary metal and its value is certain to be augmented as time goes on.

AUTO TAX—A CORRECTION

SACRAMENTO, May 26, 1916.—The following letter has just been mailed by H. A. French, Superintendent Motor Vehicle Department, to the chairman of the board of supervisors of each county in the State:

At the recent State Convention of Supervisors held at Redding during the present week, a statement was made by a supervisor from Tulare county that his county had registered in 1915 4400 automobiles at an average license of $10.00, that Tulare county's share of the license tax was only $10,000, a like amount being received by the State, showing that the overhead expense of collecting $44,000 was $24,000.

This is the character of statement that is frequently used as an argument against the present method of collecting funds for the maintenance and repair of state roads. The statement is false in every particular. The facts, which can easily be verified, are as follows:

In 1915 Tulare County registered 3125 automobiles, not 4400. In 1915 the receipts from Tulare County were $35,543 and not $44,000. In 1915 the total share paid to Tulare county from the amount collected from automobile licenses was $16,334.86 and not $10,000. In 1915 the total cost of collecting Tulare's contribution to the Motor Vehicle Fund was $2873.28 and not $24,000. The cost of collection to Tulare County was $1436.64.

There is no protection of course against deliberate misstatements. The above correction is made merely for the purpose of setting right those who desire to be fair in the matter.

gent a success. In making our arrangements for the playground I hope we will be able to have interesting amusements to draw the children. We must also have a competent supervisor. I would like also to have a sewing machine and tools, so that all the children could be busy. I hope that every citizen of Glendale will awake to the good that can be accomplished in this direction by helping those who are getting up the Peace Pageant.

"Thursday, May 22, I am to go to Sing Sing to the Christian Science service there, with the Reader."

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

KALEM COMPANY TO FILM NEW SERIAL—MISS WEST MAKES GOOD SHOWING

The Kalem Film company begins this week the production of the new serial, "The Girl from Frisco." The first scene in this serial is entitled, "The Fighting Heiress." This serial seems likely to prove the best ever turned out by the Kalem. The whole company under the direction of Mr. Gage is going to Camarillo ranch, eleven miles south of Oxnard, where an immense prairie fire scene will be worked out, with dramatic vividness, herds of cattle, sheep and horses being used in a big stampede when the fire starts. In other scenes will be shown many sensational acts in connection with oil wells, mines and other California features.

PROUD OF MISS WEST'S WORK

Though Glendale was the smallest school represented at Hollywood Saturday night in the High School oratorical contest for the championship for Southern California, Ethyl West made a fine showing even though the decision was against her. Miss Terry, Mr. Root and Mr. Oliver, with an enthusiastic number of students, accompanied Miss West and were proud of her work. Pasadena High School with Cyril Cooper won with a scoring of seven points. Los Angeles, Lincoln and Glendale ran a remarkably close race for second place. The points were respectively 16, 18, 19, Los Angeles High with 16 receiving the silver medal. In the percentages, however, Glendale was higher than Los Angeles. The percentages were: Pasadena 95.58, Los Angeles 87, Lincoln 88.29, Glendale 89.12.

The orations, which were of a high order, were: "Pan-Americanism," Cyril Cooper of Pasadena; "War and Democracy," James Wise, Los Angeles; Andrew Furuseth, Sailor; Clarence Cleudinin, Lincoln; "A Plea for Vocational Education in California," Ethyl West, Glendale. Miss West's oration will be printed in a later issue of the News.

DEATH OF ROY ROBBINS

Almon Leroy Robbins, a camera operator for the D. W. Griffith Motion Picture company, passed away at the home of his father, Mr. Enoch Robbins, 580 East Broadway, Glendale, May 27, at the age of 36 years. The deceased was born in Champaign county, Illinois, June 12, 1880, but had lived in Los Angeles and vicinity for the past nine years. Besides his father he leaves surviving him four sisters, Mrs. Grace Hamilton and Mrs. May Peck of Glendale, Mrs. Hope Towers of Redondo and Mrs. Vera Belden of Los Angeles; two brothers, Earl Robbins of Imperial Valley and William of Illinois. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the Pulliam Undertaking chapel. Interment will be in Grand View cemetery.

Scheuner, of Glendale High School; Secretary, Miss Martha Bare, of Huntington Park High School; Treasurer, Mr. Milo Jamison of Lincoln High School.

ENDORSE THE PLAY

PATRONS AND PATRONESSES FOR ALUMNI PLAY ARE ANNOUNCED

The patrons and patronesses for the coming Alumni production, "The Voice of Conscience," to be given at the Palace Grand Theater June 2, have been announced:

Mr. G. U. Moyses, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson D. White, Mrs. Pearl Keller, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Packer, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Campbell, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. E. C. Frank and Mr. and Mrs. V. Price Brown.

These are the people who are endorsing and encouraging the repetition of the wonderful play by Mr. Owen Rhodes. Every one with the exception of Mrs. Hutchinson has already viewed the production when it was shown at the Palace Grand a short time ago, and it seems as if they can't say too much in favor of it. Mrs. Hutchinson has heard nothing but praise and she said, "I shall certainly not miss seeing a play which is being so widely discussed and which is receiving so much praise."

It is interesting to note that the majority of the people who enjoyed the performance of the "Voice of Conscience" so much will again do so June 2. It is the people who have seen the play that are the biggest boosters and have helped advertise it the most. And that is saying a great deal for an amateur play and brings you to but one conclusion, that every one should see it because it is worth while.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The minister, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, preached yesterday on the topic, "Cities of Refuge," taking for his text Ps. 46:1, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." A gentleman on his way to business every morning had for a long time been noticing a workman engaged day after day in chiseling a block of marble along the street where a building was being constructed and engaging the man in conversation he asked him, "Whereabouts in this building is this stone to go?" "I do not know," replied the workman, "I have not seen the plan. I just keep on chiseling." In the every day routine of our lives we are all workmen engaged in building a temple, the plan has been made by and is kept in the hands of the Great Architect; it is for us to just keep on chiseling. It is not for us to build into the foundation wood, hay and stubble, but to keep on chiseling on the solid rock, trusting to the Master who has made the plan. And this plan was made in the beginning, it was started in the Garden of Eden, it was being worked out when the Children of Israel were taken down into Egypt and when they were led out again. Nothing interfered with it, God was even willing to order the sun to stand still if necessary—nothing was ever too hard for Him for he was always working on the plan.

It was in furtherance of the plan that the Israelites established Cities of Refuge, six of them in the Jordan Valley and more to be established when necessary so that there should always be room. As soon as the man who had committed a crime set foot on the territory belonging to one of these cities, he was safe for the time, safe at least until he could be given a fair hearing. As set forth in the text, "God is our refuge" and when we go to Him we are safe. The names of these cities of Israel are very suggestive in their meaning as applied to the spiritual attributes of our refuge. Briefly stated their meanings were as follows: Holy, Shoulder or support, Fellowship, A strong power, Exaltation, Joy. The joy of the Lord is our strength, the grounds about the city are a safe refuge, holiness proceeds from the very touch of the garments of the Lord, He is "A very present help in time of trouble."

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, MAY 29, 1916

STATUS OF ORIENTAL WOMEN

In all ages of the world women have been one of the most potent forces. It would be to speak without thinking to imagine that the half of the human race that has in its hands the moulding of the children during the most important and formative part of their lives would not leave its impression on human history. It is as much or even more the case in oriental countries where women have always been noted for the unseen influence they have brought to bear on politics. No one can read the history of India or the dramatic story of the rise of Mohammedanism without perceiving that woman was a most potent factor in the wonderful drama of the East.

Had it not been for Kadajah, for instance, the wise, farseeing and motherly business woman who married the young Mohammed and believed in him when no other did, the story of Moslemism would have been different. Throughout all the entrancing history of the daring deeds of a handful of wild Arabs who conquered the whole of the eastern world the influence and the deeds of women shine conspicuous. Neither does Mohammed's Koran deny, as is often popularly supposed, that woman has a soul. Even if one knew nothing more than Mohammed's passionate declarations of love and respect for his first wife, one could understand that the eastern prophet could never have relegated woman to such a position. On the contrary woman has equal rights in Paradise.

In spite of all that is written just now about the modernistic changes in the position of women in Oriental countries there is no doubt that the creed of woman there is what it has always been. The traditional and inherent influences which have been wrought into the warp and woof of Eastern humanity are not to be easily eradicated. In Egypt, India, China and Japan, there is no indication that there is any likelihood of an emancipated future that will place woman on an equal footing with man.

It would be a fair presentation of the Oriental ideal with regard to woman to say that it is well represented in Longfellow's beautiful lines in "Hiawatha":

"As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is the woman;
Though she bends him she obeys him;
Though she draws him, yet she follows—
Useless each without the other."

Elizabeth Cooper, a lady who has studied the oriental customs at their source and who has been as much at home in the Moslem harem as in the Hindoo purdah, says that the seclusion of the oriental woman has helped to make her feminine, as it has naturally added to her inefficiency as far as any work is concerned that bears a similitude of masculine activity. Outside the home she has no power of gaining a livelihood and is therefore a wholly domestic creature.

It is not a pitiable inanity that keeps the Eastern woman content in her existence in a separate world; her peaceful seclusion is not that of a prisoner in a cell. It is not fair to judge the life of one race of men by the standards of another. East will be East and West will be West until the end of time. Both have much to learn from each other.

In Burma and Japan women are solving the question of self-support. They have been accorded great freedom in both these countries and have demanded the right to choose their own mates and regulate the laws concerning their home life. In both these countries the wife is accorded the right to divorce her husband. Property rights in both countries accord justice to women. The Western woman can bring to the East intellectual advancement and broadened life; the Eastern woman can give in return the charms of obedience, modesty and loyalty, priceless jewels in the crown of the world's womanhood.

VALUE OF PUBLICITY

"Keep on telling your congregation that you are the greatest preacher in the country and they will end by believing you," said a Methodist bishop once to a young preacher of mediocre talent. The advice was perhaps sarcastic, but the element of truth in it is very significant. Wonders can be accomplished by judicious publicity. A very great man may have his reputation seriously damaged and his usefulness impaired by the constant slurs of an undesirable publicity. The public to a great extent is ready to believe without examination what it sees in print. Damning with faint praise is only one of the thousand tricks by which a modern reputation can be killed and on the other hand mediocre men are kept continually before the public eye so that they assume proportions to which they are not entitled in public estimation.

Like every good thing publicity can be abused. It is, however, a good thing. "Does it pay to advertise?" The question is often asked even in these days when advertising has become a fine art and one may as well retire from business as not advertise in some form or other. The world cannot go backward. There are people who argue that the world was better before the era of automobiles and electric lights and telephones, but there are none who have the hardihood to assert that the world should go back to the era of the bullock wagon, the tallow candle or the once-a-year letter.

Even the warring nations of Europe at present advertise for men to fight their battles. Great a potentate as the kaiser considers himself he is constantly seeking and obtaining publicity in the American newspapers. He and his advisers thoroughly understand the value of a good press agent and they have thousands of them everywhere. Circumstances that might tell against Germany are smoothed over or denied outright by those expert publicity men. The attempt is made to create the impression that the Teutons are always winning and it is astonishing how far this campaign has been pushed.

When kings and emperors are advertising it is no wonder that the men of wide mentality in the business world long ago perceived the value of publicity, and have made use of the daily press to push their wares, advance their businesses and perfect their schemes.

Judicious publicity influences millions of minds in every land. These millions of minds are turned to the consideration of the same thing at the same time. In this way rapid fortunes are made. But whether the power of publicity is used to make fortunes or to influence the policies of the government or to induce the housewives of the land to buy some 10-cent article, it is powerful under each varying condition.

When business is bad is the time to advertise more than ever. It can be done successfully and confidence can be awakened and eventually restored by enterprising advertisers under the most adverse circumstances. This has been demonstrated over and over again. The public demand for all manner of commodities is always in existence and it only requires a little cleverness and ingenuity to secure a response to advertising under conditions that are adverse. It can be noted in connection with certain Southern California properties that they have been put on the market and sold successfully at advanced prices all through the times of depression. This is because they got the kind of publicity that was needed. Without that advertising they would still be in the category of marsh and desert. Advertising does pay and no business can do without it.

Several groups of girls who will take part in the great production are being photographed and the pictures will be used as advertising matter. Jones, Mrs. D. Devore, and Mrs. J. B. Emery.

GLENDALE FOOTHILLS

There was activity and movement at Casa Verdugo all Sunday. Several large parties from Los Angeles and elsewhere were visitors. The foothills were the attraction to many who came with cameras to secure views of the charming scenery. Among the parties that came as visitors was one of sixteen ladies of Los Angeles, entertained by Mrs. Newborn of San Francisco.

Among other visitors Mr. and Mrs. Sowl were pleased to receive one of their own relatives, Mrs. Nana Yorba, who arrived Sunday from San Francisco, for a stay of some days.

There was born to Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Burns, 1325 Dryden street, early Sunday morning, a boy.

Mrs. and Miss Seib of Los Angeles were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McRae, 1321 Dryden street.

Mr. W. D. McRae, 1321 Dryden street, returned home Tuesday, last week, from his work in Santa Clara district, where he is organizing Y. M. C. A. centers, in pursuance of his duties as field agent of that organization. He left again for the field Monday morning.

DANCER FOR PAGEANT

Mrs. Wayland Brown, who is superintending the production of the Peace Pageant, to be given June 10, has managed to secure the presence of Edith Lindsay, the famous 12-year-old dancer, who appeared all last season in the classical dances at the San Francisco exposition, and also danced in the great pageant at Monterey. Edith Lindsay has agreed to appear in the Peace Pageant simply as a favor to Mrs. Brown.

All concerned with this affair are anxious to express their sense of the kindness and liberality of Mr. Jensen, proprietor of the theater, in giving the association this benefit.

ELLA F. MEEKER,
President Intermediate P. T. A.

JOHN WOOLMAN'S CHOICE

My mind, through the power of truth, was in a good degree weaned from the desire of outward greatness, and I was learning to be content with the real conveniences that are not costly, so that a way of life free from much entanglement appeared best for me, though the income might be small. I had several offers of business that appeared profitable; but I did not see my way clear to accept of them, believing they would be attended with more care and cumber than was required of me to engage in. I saw that a humble man with the blessing of the Lord, might live on a little, and that where the heart was set on greatness, success in business did not satisfy the craving; but that commonly, with an increase of wealth, the desire of wealth increased. There was a care on my mind so to pass my time that nothing might hinder me from a most steady attention to the voice of the true Shepherd.—John Woolman's Journal.

THE BUILDING CRAFT

Our craft is the oldest in the world, the one that of all others has marked man's advance. It began when he progressed from the state of a dweller in trees and caves and gave proof of mind and soul, building himself a shelter with his own hands. From that time the history of civilization has been written by the builder and the proudest creations each boasts of are the structures man has reared through the builders' genius.—A. H. Shank.

CHEF A. L. WYMAN, WHO WILL CONDUCT THE GLOBE MILLS COOKING SCHOOL

Chef A. L. Wyman, who will conduct the Globe Mills Cooking School at 318 Brand boulevard, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, stated this morning that all would be in readiness for the first demonstration, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m.

Chef Wyman has had years of experience in the largest bake shops and hotel and cafe kitchens in the United States, as well as foreign countries. His methods are different from those ordinarily pursued by the ordinary demonstrator of cookery, inasmuch as they are practical, com-binning his knowledge of making tasty and inexpensive dishes with the materials that every housekeeper has at home, eliminating the theoretical and expensive methods which are of little use to the housekeeper of this age.

Housewives who attend this show can have special recipes prepared. Menus with their accompanying recipes will be given gratis to those who wish them for luncheon or dinner parties. All Chef Wyman's demonstrations will be made with electricity or the fireless cooker.

ON THE FRINGE OF THE FERN

On the fringe of the fern the moon-beam is yellow—
On the shore's dusky marge droops the gray-tassell'd willow,
From the bank's misty verdure the tide is retreating,
No breath the blue sheen of the river has ruffled,
No cloud the brown head of the mountain has muffled,
No sound the dim face of the landscape floats over,
Save the shrill, airy note of the lone moorland plover.
—By the bard of Tromond.

THE FIELDS DID LAUGH

The fields did laugh, the flowers did freshly spring,
The trees did bud, and early blossoms bore;
And all the quire of birds did sweetly sing
And told the garden's pleasure in their carolling. —Spenser.

It's enough for a man to understand his own business, and not to interfere with other people's.—Dickens.

TRAINING YOURSELF

Fathers and mothers are not perfect. Even if there is no flaw in their love, there may be in their wisdom. As young people grow toward maturity they sometimes discover weaknesses in their early training which are accountable for weaknesses in their character.

"My father ought to have seen to it that I didn't fool away my time in school," complained one young man, disturbed by the consciousness of incomplete preparation. "He used to give me a little talking to now and then when my reports were especially bad, but that wasn't enough. I needed a firm hand and he ought to have laid down the law so I wouldn't have dared to shirk."

A girl in college had a similar complaint to make concerning her mother's training. "At home mother always picked up after us girls. We'd come home from school and throw down our books and gloves and wraps all in a heap, and mother would sort out things and put them away, and in the morning everything would be in the right place. I never learned to be orderly. How could I with that sort of training? And now every roommate I get loses patience with me in no time."

Without any question these young people were right in their estimate of their home training. It was defective. But unfortunately a great many stop there, as this college girl evidently did. Why didn't my father and mother train me differently, is the cry. And an equally pertinent question is, Why do you not train yourself differently, now that you see the need of it?

It is true that habits of application and orderliness and the like are more easily acquired in childhood than later, and in this respect your task is harder than your parents' would have been. But on the other hand, you have a more willing subject than they did. To train one's self in the direction in which common sense and self interest point, is certainly easier than to train another person who is willful and reluctant.

It does not give a pleasant impression when young people sit down to lament their faults, and accuse their parents of neglect, instead of going to work to repair damages. Those who lack the ambition to train themselves, even when they see their own faults so plainly, would probably prove poor subjects for another's training.—Lorenzo Moret.

PLACE NO DEPENDENCE ON LUCK

There is scarcely a word in the English language that has created more mischief than that little word of four letters called "luck." Half the failures of life are ascribed to ill-luck, while most of the successes are attributed to good luck. Both theories are wrong.

It would be a good thing if every one starting out in the world for himself would strike the word "luck" from his vocabulary. It has nothing at all to do with successes or failures. No dependence should be put upon it. It has brought disappointment and utter failure to thousands who trusted to its power. Add a single letter to it and you have something worth all the luck in the world. That letter is "p." An ounce of pure pluck will carry you farther on the road to success than pounds of luck.

Those who "trust to luck" rarely have their hopes realized. Investigate the careers of men who are said to be "lucky in everything," and see if you do not discover that their successes have all been due to causes as remote from mere luck as the east is from the west.

THE OBSERVER OF BEAUTY

The man who gives his attention for years to horses can discern the beauty of a horse; no horse passes him on the streets whose points he does not narrowly and critically observe. The man who gives his attention for years to cravats and waistcoats is a connoisseur in these things; he observes the dress of every man he meets. And it is quite possible to form the habit of observing the beauty of grass and flowers, of delicate leaf and branching foliage, of cloud piles, and blue distances, of winding streams and willows and water courses. You can see these things if you think them worth looking at, worth giving attention to, and when you have formed the habit of seeing them, the heavens will declare to you the glory of God and the firmament will show you His handiwork.—Washington Gladden.

FROM "CALL OF KANSAS"

Sweeter to me than the salt sea spray the fragrance of summer rains;
Nearer my heart than these mighty hills are the wind-swept Kansas plains;
Dearer the sight of a shy, wild rose by the roadside's dusty way
Than all the splendor of poppy fields ablaze in the sun of May.

Gay as the gold poinsettia is, and the burden of pepper trees,
The sunflower, tawny and gold and brown, is richer to me than these.

And rising ever above the song of the hoarse, insistent sea,
The voice of the prairie, calling, calling me.

—Esther M. Clark.

TEAM WORK

Jim Pinkney, a young colored man from the remote hill district, whose knowledge of wheeled vehicles had been confined to an occasional "lift" from a passerby, left his native heath and journeyed to the nearest town in search of work. He was strong and his apparent willingness led to his immediate employment in the livery stable, where he was set to work greasing the axles of a carriage. In a remarkably short space of time he reported the task finished.

"Lokk here," said his new boss, "d'ye mean to say you've greased all four of them wheels already?"

"Well, boss," rejoined the new hand, "Ah've done greased de two front ones."

"And why haven't you greased the two hind ones?"

"Ah jes' though so long as dem two front ones goes all right, de hind one jes' got to foller."—Exchange.

CHOOSE THE GOOD

Men deliberate and hold numberless difficult opinions about beauty, and they seek after it in many different ways, although ugliness is thereby rather attained. Because we cannot altogether attain unto perfection, shall we therefore wholly cease from learning? By no means. Let us not take unto ourselves thoughts fit for cattle. For evil and good lie before men, therefore it behooveth the rational man to choose the good.—Albrecht Durer.

As sure as ever God puts his children in the furnace
He will be in the furnace with them."
