IMITATE OTHERS IN CHURCH WORK

Would Become Christians If Certain Others Would Do Likewise, Word

The propensity to imitate, which is strongly developed in the monkey, is also found in the genus homo, according to Rev. C. A. Cole's sermon last night at the Central Christian church. "It is to this trait that appeal is made in the Scriptures when we are exhorted to follow after those who through faith inherit the promises," he declared. "While doing as the Good Book implies, walking in the paths of morality and right and the formation of a worthy character is good, yet to pursue a course in life just because others are doing so is not doing it from the best motives, nor is it well pleasing to God. In our actions we should be animated by the principles of right and duty, and not be mere imitators. "There are too many of us living second-hand lives and taking our cue from someone else. What others say concerns us mightily. There are those who would become Christians if certain others would do likewise. There are others whose activities in the church are controlled by what they see others do.

Influenced by Others "There are those who used to attend both services of the Lord's day, who do not do so now. Why? Let the true answer be given and you will find it is because they are influenced by the conduct of others who think it is not necessary nor fashionable to go but once a day.

"There are those whose gifts to the Master's work are measured by what others give. They don't give according to their ability as was their vow to Christ, but according to the littleness of someone else. Others will give nothing because they can't give what some one else does.

"There are those who indulge in questionable pleasures because others so indulge. When confronted with evidence of their un-Christian conduct they exonerate themselves by saying, 'They all do it.' "Fashions are the curse of society—from the school girls who say, 'All the other girls have them' to the society matron with her furs and diamonds. We talk of the land of the free and the home of the brave, but there never was a slave more shackled, nor coward less brave to face the world 'out of fashion' than us Americans."

Armored Cruiser on Way to Near East

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The armored cruiser Pittsburgh, under command of Captain John V. Kelman, left the local navy yard at 10 o'clock today for the Near East. An extra detachment of marines has brought the ship's roster up to nearly 1,000 officers and men.

The Pittsburgh will proceed to Gibraltar by way of the Canary Islands and there pick up Vice-Admiral A. P. Long, commander-in-chief of the European station, who will transfer his flag from the battleship Utah. The destination of the cruiser is Constantinople. It is expected to remain in European waters for two years.

DUTY

The duty of a retail lumber yard does not consist only in selling lumber. To consider carefully the individual requirements of each customer, to recommend only those materials which satisfactorily fill those requirements. To conscientiously advise our customers on the various building problems that may arise. In addition to the above the use of our complete filing system is available, by means of which the prospective builder can get in touch with contractors, carpenters, builders, plasterers and cement workers. These are functions which this firm considers its elementary duties.

BIBLE CLASS IS WELL ATTENDED

'Jesus, the Preparer of the Heavenly Abode,' Sunday Sermon Subject

Every seat in the council chamber at the city hall was occupied yesterday morning during the session of the Men's Bible Class of the Presbyterian church.

Jesus, the Preparer of the Heavenly Abode, was the subject of the address by Rev. Keith L. Brooks. "We are to put no less a faith in Christ than in God Himself for He is the Son of God," he asserted. "Some are presenting Christ today as a teacher who taught about His Father's love, about morality, justice and truth. Yet the peculiarity of His call as it runs throughout the whole gospel record is that men should believe in Him and should honor Him even as the Father Himself. "Trust in Him is the secret of peace. It is useless to say to a man, 'Let not your heart be troubled' without saying 'Put your trust in Jesus Christ."

"In my Father's house are many abiding places. Here is a great truth clothed in simple words. Saved people are to be God's housemates. God is to have a home filled with many children. Heaven is not merely a state but a definite locality. The thought of God having a home for His own becomes more precious to believers as the years slip by.

Home Is Center Home is the center round which our affections turn. When home breaks up here, the man who has accepted Christ may know that the Father has a home above in which there will be perfect communion.

"Some say that Christ may be one of many ways to God but that a person may come by the way of nature or moral law. Men do not rise through nature to nature's God. In the words of nature the evidence of God's wisdom and power is seen. Nature points to God as an almighty and intelligent creator.

"Nature tells nothing more to a person who has not been enlightened by the Bible. For all we can tell by nature's laws a man may be no more to God than the moth that flutters a few hours and is gone forever. Before nature man feels his utter insignificance. As a man conceives of the vast, limitless void of space with its star systems and the grandness of creation about him, he feels that he is no more than an insect.

"There is much in nature to contradict the conception that God is love. There is disorder, calamity, the mystery of pain, sin and death. Were it not for the Bible revelation of God's love, displayed through Jesus Christ, man would never have had the idea that God is love."

RESIST EVIL, IS MESSAGE GIVEN

Becoming Bigger Christians, Subject of Sermon by Dr. C. M. Crist

"Becoming Bigger Christians" was the theme for Dr. C. M. Crist yesterday morning at the First Methodist church.

"Among the first things to be recognized is human responsibility," he asserted. "We must learn that evil, which is moral disease, is to be resisted just as much as bodily disease. To resist disease of the body one must improve his general health. Contagions are often escaped entirely by those who are in robust health.

"We do well to note that it is possible for one to decrease the soul's dimensions by ill-use or non-use, until he becomes a mere pigmy, and so is in constant danger. It is likewise gloriously possible to enlarge one's spiritual nature and become comparatively immune to all disease.

Soul Building "This matter of soul building is of supreme importance. The foundation is the first necessary element. The substructure must be sufficient for the superstructure. After the foundation, there is the process of building. It is stone upon stone. When conversion takes place it is only the beginning. After that there is a lifetime job of building.

"There is no easy method. There is an absolute demand on every moment. The process of building up a soul is the living every day as Christ requires. There must be the material, the work and the intelligence to produce the soul character that will stand the test of time and eternity. "Multitudes in their thinking and in their conduct, make God responsible for their successes or their failures. The day has come when religion should be put on a natural basis, and certain definite rules given for spiritual development."

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

War Grafters Immune! U. S. Needs Richardsons Sights Worth Seeing Fire Prevention Week

By Gil A. Cowan

HAVE you a friend who is a member of the American Legion?

Of course, you should have! Ask him for a copy of the recent issues of the American Legion Weekly, a national publication devoted to the interests of former service men. Therein you will find a series of articles by Marquis James about war profiteers that not only shock the senses, but actually name men and firms who made millions out of the world war to which they were not entitled. Yet Marquis James only deals in glittering generalities to a large extent, because graft and corruption were so rampant in the quartermaster, ordnance and air corps that it is difficult to describe it in less than wholesale terms.

The military intelligence division, during the war, was so sadly undermined that it could not deal with counter-espionage, much less graft. As an enthusiast in the intelligence division, however, I personally have heard investigators come back with reports on cases, in substance as follows: "Colonel So-and-so admits that $15,000 was overpaid on such-and-such a deal, but why spend time on it? Investigate this or that transaction in which $100,000 was collected—for you know that we cannot have our Major Blank accused, for he is the most important man in our organization."

I have seen ordnance officers hustled off to Europe to avoid investigation after they had "swung" contracts which meant death to any man who had the misfortune to fire the unsafe artillery.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker has called a type of airplane used by the American aviators nothing less than "flaming coffins!"

Tons of spoiled food were sent our soldiers! Secret service operatives were purposely fooled by "higher ups" while the loot was covered up!

Were it proper, instance after instance of enlisted men—trained detectives and newspaper men—could be mentioned who were forced to "lay down" for lack of funds, lack of transportation, lack of motor cars and, mainly, a lack of prosecution after they had turned in their reports.

There were other instances, too. Marquis James cannot tell about because he does not know, where senators' son-in-laws, actors and brokers, and New York bankers' representatives, attorneys and investigators were sadly needed as executives.

One captain in the service, a trained New York detective, was replaced by a Washington patrolman who rated a major—and not for the improvement of the service, either, is another intimate instance of what happened in the "Battle of the Potomac," fought at Washington in 1917 and 1918.

There was one sergeant in the intelligence service who rated a colonel in the national guards, who knew more about military affairs than nine-tenths of the general staff officers, yet he suffered for the necessities of life on $3 a month pay and was only too glad to get out of the army, his soul seared and conscience stricken by the waste of it all.

So read Marquis James' articles with the knowledge that nothing will ever be done, for where in war there was no man with backbone enough to stop it, in peace there is no man with nerve enough to tackle the job of settling the account with the grafters!

Thank heaven, in this great state of California there is one man who comes out flat-footedly against the grafters in this coming November election campaign. Friend W. Richardson, Republican nominee for governor, has thrown down the gauntlet to the "gangs" and by sheer strength and awkwardness he is going to see it through to a finish.

Not one promise of political position has Richardson made, but he declares he is going to run this state more economically with equally good results and we'll bet a hat he does it. It is too bad President Harding hasn't a man like Friend Richardson for attorney general.

Several Glendale parties journeyed to the Glenwood Mission Inn at Riverside yesterday.

There is a great place to go, folks, but half of the enjoyment is lost unless you visit the subterranean passages under that unique hostelry where hundreds, thousands, yes, maybe a hundred thousand relics of the early days are on display.

There is music, art and antiquity mixed in the solemnity of the mission that would take days to see and whole volumes of description.

One life size group of wax figures, representing Pope Pius X in his court, hundreds of other smaller figures and paintings by the score in sacred catacombs of early California, down beneath the court where you dine, that should not be missed by any man, woman or child as a part of a liberal education.

This is national Fire Prevention Week. Glendale firms are co-operating in calling this fact to your attention today. Give it a thought! Be careful! And be prepared for fires, like a snake, strikes when most unsuspected.

BLAMES NEGLECT FOR MANY EVILS

Rev. C. N. Calderwood In Sermon at Odd Fellows' Hall Sunday

"Neglect works havoc with the garden or the orchard, and it work havoc with man!"

This truism was uttered by Rev. C. N. Calderwood yesterday morning in Odd Fellows' hall at the services of the Congregational church.

"Degeneracy comes from neglect," he continued. "It is easy to neglect. Just take it easy, fold your hands and sleep; let things run their course. It is easy for the farmer or the school boy to neglect their duties. It is easy to drift.

"It is easy to neglect the salvation of our souls. Just ignore the soul. Think that there is nothing better in the world for you than what you have. This is soul neglect. It is Satan's most effective temptation.

"We know what neglect will do. The tendency of things is to level themselves. Let the building stand neglected long enough and it soon becomes a leveled ruin. Neglect the orchard and it will lose its full of seedlings. Neglect your mental faculties and you lose them. Neglect the soul by not recognizing it or by failure to train it and it withers away and dies. The soul is lost through neglect.

Quotes Thomas Carlyle "Thomas Carlyle has said that the way to see the strength and dignity of mankind is to look about and see the wrecks. See what man has fallen to and realize how far he has fallen. Make a man a beast and you can realize how great it is to be a man. As we realize the majesty and strength of the oak best when it is fallen, so we know what divinity there must be in man when we see him apparently without it.

"If in accepting the evolutionary hypothesis we mean that man through divine and human power has risen far above the level of animal existence, then by word 'degeneracy' we imply that man may revert to his original type—that he may lose the heights already attained by falling back to the level from which he came.

"There are degenerates in the gutter, but there are many more who may have fallen so low but who have fallen. They have lost something good that they once had. They have slipped back. They are nearer the beast than they once were. Their standards are lower and their spiritual stimulus is gone."

U. S. Decision Will Clear Liquor Cases

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Attorney-General Daugherty within a few days will render to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon an opinion which will clear up most of the involved questions which have arisen relating to liquor smuggling, it was learned today. An important part of the opinion will deal with the sale of liquor aboard vessels. The attorney-general has decided not to wait until the supreme court passes on the question raised.

The department of justice, it was announced today, will authorize the solicitor-general to expedite the hearing of the case of the British schooner Ruby which was seized off the Massachusetts coast last winter, inside of the twelve-mile limit with a cargo of liquor. Judge Morton at Boston, in which court a conviction was secured, under the "hovering act," has certified the case to the supreme court. The attorney-general holds that the government is anxious to aid in every way for an early decision by the highest court.

SON AT COLLEGE WRITES OF TOWN Mrs. Ella Richardson Has Letter Which Describes Charlottesville

Mrs. Ella Richardson, of 317 North Brand boulevard, has just received a letter from her son, John, telling of his arrival in Charlottesville, Va., where he has entered the University of Virginia in the freshman class.

He writes that he found the university a most interesting place with over 100 years of tradition back of the present campus and activities. He says that most of the old buildings are of the typical southern type, made of red brick with tall, white pillars.

In describing the town of Charlottesville, he says that the colored population is very great, and that in going about the business district one must be careful about getting into the stores maintained for the colored people.

Activities Not Started At the time he wrote the letter university activities had not begun. Registration was then being carried on, however. He hinted that strenuous times were promised the freshmen and that football activities would begin in earnest in a few days.

One of the pleasures of his arrival in Charlottesville he mentions as the courtesies extended to him by the Sigma Chi fraternity, to a chapter of which his brother Paul belongs at Leland Stanford university.

San Francisco Hit By Electrical Storm

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—The electrical storm which visited San Francisco and vicinity last night and early today was declared today to have been one of the most severe ever noted in the bay region.

Not since 1896 has a storm of such severity been recorded at this time of the year and the thunder and lightning was the first reported at this time of the year in six years.

One fire resulted in San Francisco, a bolt of lightning striking near a mattress factory. Reports from Vallejo said the lightning there short circuited the power lines.

Car Strikes Auto; One Killed, One Hurt

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—The automobile on which they were riding on the running board being side-swiped by a street car, Sigel G. Webb, 24, only son of State Attorney-General U. S. Webb, and Carl Hansen, a decorator, were swept to the street in Columbus avenue late last night and Webb instantly killed, Hansen is in a hospital in a serious condition.

Webb was swept under the street car. The automobile went nearly a block before it stopped. John Rhoades, the driver, was arrested, charged with reckless driving and later with manslaughter. Webb was formerly an army aviator, but recently had been practicing law.

MERCHANTS LOSE SUNDAY'S GAME WITH RIVERA

Visitors Ring Up Score of Eleven, Against Three for Glendale

Glendale ball fans were promised a real battle yesterday, and a good-sized crowd turned out with that end in view. What they witnessed was said by some to be far from a struggle. When the game ended and the results were known they found that the Glendale Merchants lost to the tune of a 11 to 3 score.

It appeared that "Rube" Ellis and his Rivera club had things their own way for the first few innings at least. The local boys were said to have failed to back-up Heidler's pitching, according to dope handed out on the lot; that, combined with what some of the players termed "luck" for the Rivera club is blamed for the result.

Harris pitched a good game of ball during the last four innings, holding the Rivera club down to no runs. The fielding of Wilson was also a feature of the game.

To Meet Paint Team
It is announced by Manager John A. Cobb that next Sunday the boys will meet the Cal-Pac Paints, which has been rated as one of the strongest in the industrial league. A game was scheduled with the Paints several weeks ago, but was called off when they expressed a desire to go to San Diego, instead of coming here for that day.

It is understood that Harris will pitch next Sunday's game.

The score for yesterday's game follows:

The World Over
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

With three series left to be played in the final dash for the Pacific Coast league pennant, the San Francisco and Vernon clubs began the race this week with noses even, each team having the same number of games won and lost for a percentage of .641. The series that is being played this week should prove easier for the Seals than for Vernon, so it would not be a matter of surprise if the former picked up the advantage of a game or so when next Sunday afternoon rolls around. San Francisco is battling with the more or less despised cellar team representing Sacramento while Vernon has a tougher job on its hands with Seattle which stands fifth in the league.

In its three former series played against Sacramento the San Franciscans won by lopsided scores of 5 games to 2, 6 to 1 and 6 to 1. On the other hand, Los Angeles has won two of the three series played against Vernon. These ended Vernon 4 games, Los Angeles 3 games, 3 games to 4, and

George Sisler and Rogers Hornsby Lead Two Major Leagues In Hitting, Cobb Gets An Even .400 for Season, Tying Record

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns and Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals of the same city are respectively hitting champions of the American and National leagues. Sisler finished yesterday with a mark of .415, Hornsby with .401, the latter being the first National league player to bat over .400 since Ed Delahanty turned the trick twenty-three years ago.

By getting a hit yesterday, Ty Cobb is made by some statisticians to bat an even .400 for the season, tying the major league mark held by Jesse Burkett, of having accomplished the feat in three seasons.

New York Yankees Finally Take Pennant

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—The New York Yankees finally clinched the American league pennant Saturday when they defeated Boston, 3 to 1.

Thwarted in their efforts to win the pennant during the two previous days by two of their former teammates, the Yankees fell on Ferguson, another former mate, in the first inning, and bombarded him off the mound under successive hits by Witt, Dugan, Ruth and Pipp. Pennock relieved Ferguson and held the Yankees to three scratch singles until the seventh inning when he was removed for a pinch hitter. Karr finished the game.

Hoyt started for the Yankees, but gave way to Bush in the ninth inning when the Sox were threatening. The score: New York.....3 7 2 Boston.....1 0 0

Hoyt, Bush and Schang, Gaston; Ferguson, Karr, Pennock and Ruel.

Rogers Hornsby Now New Home Run King

Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinals' second baseman, is the new home run king. Hornsby led all heavy hitters in both leagues and finished the season with forty-two homers. His nearest rival was Ken Williams, of the Browns, who finished with thirty-nine. Babe Ruth could only muster thirty-five homers for the season, finishing fourth. Tilly Walker of the Athletics, with thirty-seven was third.

During the season the National league players knocked out 529 homers and the American league players 525, a total of 1,054. Last year the Nationals had 460 and the American 477, a total of 937.

Girls presumably have ears, judging by the fact that they hear what is said of them.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of the city schools, and Miss Gladys Sharpe, vice-principal of Glendale Avenue Intermediate, were in Los Angeles Saturday morning where they attended the September meeting of council of the southern section of the California teachers' association, of which they are members.

John C. Bush, superintendent of Pasadena schools, and president of the council, presided.

R. L. Thurston, executive secretary, reported the enrollment of the association to be $239,000. The placement bureau which was opened in May and has been conducted through the summer months has placed seventy teachers, with a saving of approximately $4000, that would have been paid to agencies for commissions.

Place Many Teachers
Teachers have been placed in every county in the southern section excepting Inyo county.

Th chairman of the committee on legislation, Mr. Pope, superintendent of Santa Barbara schools, gave an interesting report on legislation, certification, tax laws and teachers' retirement laws.

One of the most important features of the meeting was a report from Mr. Newton, chairman on preservation of the initiative, who made a strong appeal to the members of the council to use all influence possible in their respective communities to insure a negative vote at the coming election on amendment No. 27 as this amendment, should it become a law, would practically repeal the initiative.

ARRESTED IN ERROR

JOHNNY BOYLE OUT OF GAME FOR FULL SEASON

Prominent Tackle Breaks Leg In Saturday's Game With Alumai Squad

The University of Southern California varsity football team, in defeating the alumni squad Saturday afternoon by a count of 20 to 0, won a contest that will undoubtedly prove to be the most expensive victory of the entire season for Coach Henderson. Johnny Boyle, the human juggernaut, who is ranked as one of the best tackles in the United States and who made Dan McMillan, California's all-American tackle, look helpless in last year's Trojan-Bear fracas, received such severe injuries in the second quarter of the game that he will be kept out of the lineup for the remainder of the season.

Boyle's accident was one of those inexplicable somethings that is bound to happen to a player some time or another. Johnny headed back just circled left end, a yard gain, being stopped on the varsity thirty-five yard line. However, Boyle was taking no chances of letting the "Eel" get away again and, playing what is termed as real football, hurled himself into the play. Being on a back just circled left end, he was expected an injury of any kind, but it was soon determined that Henderson's Goliath had suffered a broken leg and several badly strained ligaments.

Henderson Needn't Worry
Although U. S. C. didn't make any apparent attempt to submerge their opponents in Saturday's game a considerable amount of punch was exhibited on the Trojans' side of the field. The most noticeable instance of their ability came in the closing moments of the first half when the ball was carried within the shadows of the varsity goal posts, only to be cleared by Henderson's well balanced line. Jimmy Smith, captain and manager of the "has beans," intercepted a Trojan pass on the thirty-yard line, from where Charlie Dean bucked through in three trials to the three-yard line. Here the varsity line stiffened and held, the line plunging of Dean and Seals, and Phil Therman making but two and a half feet in four downs. From then on the undergraduates were never in danger.

That Henderson need not worry over the prospects of his line this season was demonstrated by the clever work put up by "Cannonball" Baker, "Hobo" Kincaid, Phil Therman, Gordon Campbell, et al.

Of the entire lot Baker is probably the Trojans' best bet, he being usually sure of several yards whenever the occasion arises. However, it is impossible to pick a team just after the first game of the season and especially when there is such an abundance of backfield material as has turned out at the Methodist institution this year.

Baseball Still King
Football is having a difficult time this year in trying to dethrone baseball as the leading sport. At least such is true in Los Angeles and San Francisco, where the Bears and Seals are battling for first place in the hottest race ever experienced in the Pacific Coast league. By taking both ends of a doubleheader from Seattle yesterday Bill Essick and his Bengaliers climbed up a game on the Seals and are now but one game from the lead.

But two more weeks remain to be played in the season's schedule, this week's series between Los Angeles and San Francisco here and Vernon and Oakland in Oakland looming as being decisive for one of the two leading teams.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Leslie Nunamaker, catcher for the Cleveland Indians, is free today to sign a contract which has been offered him to manage the Chattanooga team in the Southern league. Manager Tris Speaker gave him an unconditional release for this purpose.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Team for team and man for man, the New York Yankees outrank the New York Giants and should come home on the bit in the majority of games in the impending world series, confined exclusively to what incurable inmates of the "big town" for the second successive year.

"It isn't what you used to be, it's what you are today" is the refrain of a once popular song. That applies to the teams in question.

The Giants were the better ball club last year and won. They are nothing of the kind this year and should lose, perhaps before the limit of seven games is reached.

They suffer by comparison in five of the nine positions, but that hardly tells the story. In pitching alone, counted as only one position, but in reality more than 60 per cent of the game, the Giants are beaten to an inaudible whisper.

Even their so-called million-dollar infield is topped in three positions. In brief, the Yankees have been improved from season to season by trades, purchases and, in isolated instances, by individual effort. The Giants, meanwhile, have retrograded, particularly in pitching.

More polished and consistent club than the Yankees. They are better hitters, faster on the bases and, more versatile all around, but the margin of the Yankees' defensive superiority is so pronounced that it overcomes every other advantage.

Pitchers will always win a short series, and the Yankees have them.

Following is a comparison of positions:

Catchers
Wally Schang, who will handle all the games for the Yankees, is a better catcher than either Frank Snyder or Earl Smith, the Giant first stringers. Mechanically, Schang is no better than Snyder and doesn't think any quicker or more clearly, but he can get much more out of a ball club by his hustle and fight.

There is such a thing as a catcher keeping a team keyed up, for he handles the ball more than any other player and can inspire his mates by his fire and energy. In this respect Schang can do this; Snyder can not.

Smith doesn't figure. He is nothing but a mechanical catcher, equally dangerous with Schang and Snyder as a hitter, but not the best man in the world in a big series. Too irresponsible.

As a second-string proposition he tops Hoffman and De Vorner, of the Yankees, but neither of these latter will show, unless Schang is injured.

Wally is just as consistent a hitter as Snyder and will hit him just as far when needed. He gets our vote.

Pitchers
Nothing to it but the Yankees. They can muster Joe Bush, one of the league's leading pitchers; Bob Shawkey, who won more than twenty games; Carl Mays and Waite Hoyt, stars of the 1921 series and coming back to form after an indifferent season, and Sam Jones, likewise improved, against Nehf, J. Barnes, McQuillen, Scott and Ryan. It should be more than enough.

Traveling at their present speed, Bush should win two games and Shawkey at least one. That would leave a single victory to be divided among Mays, Hoyt and Jones.

The Giants' pitchers are not what they were in 1921. Art Nehf seems to have caved under the strain of carrying the club all season; Toney and Douglas are gone. McQuillen is a consistent loser, and Ryan and Scott are uncertain propositions.

Only Jess Barnes, who beat the Yankees twice last year, is a possibility to upset calculations. Jess has enjoyed a none too successful season, but it takes a curve ball pitcher to stop the Yankees, and Jess is all of that. For this reason young Jonnard, who has won six out of seven on the season, may not get by. He has nothing but a good fast ball.

If Barnes can repeat his 1921 performances and Nehf come back to his best, the Giants' stock would boom accordingly. These are "if" premises, however.

Infield
Offensively, the Giants carry the verdict by the same considerable margin; defensively, the Yankees enjoy a slight edge. Taking both departments together, the Giants are the pick.

At first base Pipp holds Kelly even in hitting and, judged on his present form, is a better fielder. At one time neither could go to his left for a batted ball, but Pipp has learned the secret somehow. Kelly has the better arm, but the opportunity to make use of it may never arise.

Ward is not as good as Frisch as a second baseman, cannot hit within forty points of him, is a club-foot on the bases by comparison and altogether loses caste when mentioned in the same breath.

A shortstop Scott is the best defensive man in the game, Bancroft having flopped a bit on his season's work. Banny will out hit his rival fifty points on the season, but will get no more hits in the pinches than Scott. And a world's series is just one pinch after another. Score this one for Scott.

Dugan was a good third baseman before he came to the Yankees. He is still in baseball now, bar none. Heino Groh has slipped in both hitting and fielding and is prone to injury.

If he does not play in the series Frisch will go to third and Rawlings to second, without affecting the status of the two infields to any extent. Ward and Rawlings are about even as second basemen, while Frisch at third is a better hitter and no as good defensively as Dugan.

Outfields
Give the decision to the Giants. Ranging across from left to right, you have Emil Meusel hitting .330, Stengel .354, Cunningham .347 and Young .325 in the Giant outfield as against Bob Meusel, .321; Witt, .305 and falling rapidly, and Ruth .321 by the latest available averages.

The danger always lurking in Ruth's bat, of course, counterbalances some of the difference in percentages, but the fact remains that the Giant outfielders are more consistent.

Taken individually, Emil Meusel covers more ground in left field than another Bob, cannot throw as well, but is a better hitter in the pinches, in fact, the best in the Giant array.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By H. NELSON, Manager Glendale Avenue Branch Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

Before the days of cooperative marketing, the agriculturists of California were at the mercy of speculators or brokers who would pay only minimum prices at crop times, when the market is flooded, holding for better prices when supplies were less plentiful. Through the establishment of cooperative marketing organizations, the growers of California are enabled to regulate the flow of commodities onto the market, taking full advantage of year round price tendencies rather than being forced to accept prices prevailing when the entire crop is coming onto the market.

The California cooperative growers' organizations, by decreasing unnecessary speculation in buying, distributing and marketing farm crops, have reduced the hazards in providing the necessary credit to growers. These organizations furnish the soundest possible contact between the producers and the institutions that finance the production and distribution of farm crops. They are able to standardize their products, cooperate with the trade, and sell in immense volume through creating larger markets and increase consumption by extensive advertising to present the desirability and value of their products to the public. These things were quite impossible to the independent grower who was compelled to accept what he could get for his crops. Often the returns were not sufficient to compensate his year's labor.

Cooperative banking, such as is now practiced by the First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, does much the same thing in the credit field that cooperative marketing has done for production. If an independent bank controls sufficient credit to care for peak demands, there is necessarily a long period when it has an over-supply of credit which cannot be profitably used.

On the other hand, if the stock of credit is reduced to that required in dull times, the bank cannot meet its community's demands during the period of production. The situation is similar to that which would exist if the markets could not be systematically supplied with oranges or raisins or other cooperatively marketed commodities, as they are through the various growers' organizations.

In cooperative banking, however, credit supplies are so regulated that as credit liquidates in one district it can be moved to care for the needs of another. Hence, funds which worked only four to six months a year under an independent system, work ten or twelve months, and consequently assist the production of twice as many commodities as before.

Furthermore, such a system puts bankers in close touch with the conditions in other areas and enables them to advise customers and grant credit in accordance with production tendencies throughout the entire territory for instance, rather than by conditions only.

Cooperative banking strengthens the cooperative marketing movement. A scientific banking organization is naturally interested in fostering scientific marketing principles, because each is attempting to promote the best development of the communities served.

In short, in many respects cooperative banking, such as is practiced by The First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, is simply the carrying into the banking field these principles which have made cooperative marketing of the agricultural products of California so successful.

Further, such a system puts bankers in close touch with the conditions in other areas and enables them to advise customers and grant credit in accordance with production tendencies throughout the entire territory for instance, rather than by conditions only.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants today stands at the top of all managers as pennant winners. He has managed the Giants since 1902 and since that time has won eight pennants in the National league and twice, 1905 and 1921, won the world's series, with another good chance of taking the honors in the series that starts October 4.

Born at Truxton, N. Y., April 7, 1873, McGraw played his first professional ball with the Ocean, N. Y., team in 1890. In 1892 he joined the Baltimore National league. From 1893 to 1900 inclusive he batted better than .300 in the National league and with his .390 in 1898 his best record.

In 1900 Baltimore sold McGraw to St. Louis, and the next year he jumped to the American league as manager of the Baltimore team. In 1902 he again jumped, this time to the New York Nationals as manager and has held that job ever since.

His pennant record with the New York Giants in the National league is as follows:

Year	W.	L.	Pct.
1904	106	4	.693
1905	105	48	.686
1911	99	54	.647
1912	103	48	.682

1913.....101 51 .664
1917.....98 56 .636
1921.....98 55 .641
1922.....93 58 .616

3 games yet to play.
In the world's series the record of McGraw's teams is as follows:
Year Team..... G. W. L. Pct.
1905 Phil. Amer. 5 4 1 .800
1911 Phil. Amer. 6 2 4 .333
1912 Boston Sox 3 2 .429
1913 Phil. Amer. 5 1 4 .260
1921 Chicago Sox 6 2 5 .333
1921 N. Y. Yanks 8 5 3 .625

1 game tied.
McGraw is now part owner of the Giants and in addition to his annual salary as manager, said to be $35,000, he also receives his proportionate share of the enormous profits of the New York club. Considering that originally he started his career, prior to entering the professional realm, as a ball boy at $40 per month, baseball has been good to "Mugsy" McGraw.

Don't you love to look over people's bookshelves? If one were left in a perfect stranger's living room for fifteen minutes, what a lot one could learn about what the family would be like from the room, the kind of furniture, the curtains, the wall paper, the condition of the room (rigid order, comfortable liveliness, objectionable disorder) and especially from the magazines on the table and the books on the shelves.

I Wanted to Know Them

At a charity bridge the other day at the home of a woman I scarcely knew, I conceived a desire to know that family. I was seated beside a table on which stood a rack of books and, while I waited for the game to commence, I glanced over them and found no parlor table collection, but a dozen books evidently bought to read and giving evidence of having fulfilled their destiny. And among that dozen there were several books I had been wanting to get hold of, and two or three old friends. When you meet a stranger and find that he likes and admires some friend of yours, the path to friendship between you two is immediately cleared. And so it is when you find someone who has made friends with the books you love.

AUTUMN STYLES IN NATURE TINTS

England's Dressmakers Decide Colors; Skirts Longer, and Sleeves Extreme

By ETHEL MARSHALL
For International News Service.

LONDON—Autumnal styles will harmonize with the autumnal decorations of nature.

This is the edict of England's fashionable dressmakers, who are just opening their fall fashion shows.

"The leading colors for the autumn are all the shades of nature at this season," said Reville, the court dressmaker.

"The leading colors for the autumn are all the shades of nature at this season," said Reville, the court dressmaker.

"A handful of autumn leaves will give most of the new tones—deep russet, copper beech, flame color, orange, and a new shade of ochre that looks like plane leaves in the September sunshine will be most prominent.

"There is also a quite new shade of blue that is something like an intense cornflower—a very rich color blending between pansy shades of blue and purple.

"The new line of fashion follows the line of the figure and is, in my opinion, much more feminine than some recent fashions. There is nothing grotesque about it.

"Waist lines are more normal—the new styles show no exaggerated 'waists' right up under the arms or down toward the knees.

"Skirts are longer without being too long, neither are they too short. A woman can study her individuality and style so far as the length of her skirt is concerned this autumn, and dress to suit it.

"One thing is that the autumn fashions demand a corrected figure. 'No well dressed woman can do without corsets this season; they are essential to give the natural contour of the new waist.' Monkey fur is being used extensively as a trimming, while a popular style has a real besque of fur about the hips. The revival of the basque on coats is interesting.

Extreme in Sleeves

Sleeves are in extremes, either being very much in evidence or non-existent. The mitten sleeve, which is long and tight-fitting and comes down well over the hand, is used on many coats and frocks and some afternoon gowns. There is a tendency to return to the old-time leg-of-mutton effect at the shoulder.

Many of the afternoon gowns are sleeveless. Apron tunics are popular.

Hats are for the most part small, toques worn by Queen Mary having their effect in the showing of numerous close-fitting models.

Altogether the autumnal styles indicate a gradual return to the styles of the day when milady was more modest than she has been wont to be in these post-war hectic days.

Woman Denies She Gave Husband Poison

Mrs. Maud C. Storick

DOWAGIAC, Mich.—"I wouldn't kill a dog for a measly $800," declares Mrs. Maud Cushing Storick, mother of three children and soon to be the mother of another, who will go on trial here soon, charged with the murder of her first husband, Claude Cushing.

Mrs. Storick, a striking brunette, member of several lodges and prominent in Dowagiac society, is alleged by the prosecution to have murdered her husband by administering small daily doses of poison over a period of two weeks in order that she might be free to marry another man. Another motive advanced by the prosecution for the alleged murder is Cushing's insurance money, said to have amounted to about $1,500.

Mrs. Storick married her present husband, Emory Storick, less than a month after her first husband's death.

"Well, let me tell you I could have had another man any time I pleased without going to the trouble of killing Claude Cushing, and his insurance only amounted to $800 after the funeral expenses were paid. I wouldn't kill a dog for a measly $800.

"All my trouble is due to Claude Cushing's mother and father. They are rich but old-fashioned. They wanted me to work in their dairy, do housework and raise children so their name wouldn't die out. I gave them three grandchildren. They were not satisfied. They wanted to conquer my spirit, but they haven't yet and they never will. If I get out of here may God have mercy on them."

Diet and Health By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Keys to the Calories"

THE PASTEUR TREATMENT

The definition of hydrophobia given in Rosenau is as follows: Rabies is an acute, specific, rapidly fatal paralytic infection, communicated from a rabid animal through a wound usually produced through biting.

Men contract the disease from some lower animal, usually the dog. The specific principle is contained in the saliva and the nervous system of animals suffering with the disease. The infection, therefore, may be conveyed by licking, provided there are open wounds in the skin.

Rabies exists practically all over the world. It had been eradicated from England on account of their muzzling and quarantine laws, but during the World War it was re-introduced by dogs that were carried in flying machines and so escaped the quarantine laws. Germany also has eradicated hydrophobia by its muzzling laws. In 1919, 45 deaths from rabies were reported in the United States.

Rabies is commonly supposed to be prevalent during the summer months but Rosenau states it is more prevalent in cold weather. After being bitten by a rabid dog, it takes a certain period for the virus to travel along the nerves to the central nervous system and multiply sufficiently to produce its poison effects. This period varies from 14 days to a year or more. (In the case of this long period the disease is probably latent—arrested but still alive. The average period in man is 40 days (it is apt to be shorter in children). Dogs 21 to 40 days.

The period of incubation depends upon the amount and the violence of the virus and upon the position and size of the wound. The nearer it is to the brain and spinal cord, the shorter the time. It has been proved that the bite of a dog is infective three days before the dog himself may manifest the disease, so a dog bite should be cauterized by nitric acid and other precautions taken, as I told you last week, and the dog locked up and watched to see if he develops the disease. If he does develop the disease then the bitten individual should immediately take the Pasteur treatment.

The Pasteur treatment has been proved to be an almost invariable preventive, so there is no need of hysteria arising from the bite of a dog, even though the dog be rabid, if the wound is properly treated and the Pasteur treatment given.

There have been cases of individuals bitten by dogs who have developed hysteria and some have gone through such stunts as barking and biting and other antics—none of them being characteristic of rabies.

I read of a case like this. A man was bitten by a small dog. The wound was cauterized and healed but his great fear brought on a state of hysteria of this type three or four days after. It was only when he was told by a physician in whom he had confidence that he was making a fool of himself, that the dog did not have hydrophobia, and that even if he had it was far too early for him to be showing any symptoms of it, that he fully recovered.

The Pasteur treatment depends upon the principle that the body manufactures a defence against disease if the disease is not too virulent. It consists of a series of injections of small portions of dried spinal cord of rabbits which have been given the disease. A small portion of the cord, about the size of a small dried pea, is very finely ground in a small amount of sterile salt solution until it is pulverized. This is injected into the tissue directly under the skin of the abdominal wall.

The first injection consists of a solution of a cord which has been dried a sufficient length of time so that the virus is very mild. After the injection, the body of the patient immediately begins to manufacture a defence against it. On succeeding days small portions of cords which have not been dried so long are used and the system continues to manufacture this defence, making it stronger all the time.

By the time the poison from the original bite is developed, the body has manufactured enough strong defence to neutralize it. If I were bitten by a rabid dog I certainly would take the Pasteur treatment, even though only 20 per cent of those bitten develop hydrophobia.

BLEACH FOR DELICATE SKINS

It is always difficult to find a good bleach for a really sensitive skin. Everything affects the delicate complexion apparently to its detriment. Its delicacy is both a charm and a nuisance.

Sun and wind affect the skin easily and the ordinary bleach is only an irritant. It is easy to find a mild cream, but the action of even the best cucumber cream is sometimes very slow. I know of no bleach as effective for this sort of complexion as starch.

I mean by this the ordinary white laundry starch that comes into every household in a paper packet or plain cardboard box, the cost of which is never more than a few cents a pound. A little bit, about a tablespoonful, should be melted in enough cold water to form a thin paste. The face should be washed with warm water and soap and rinsed with warm water so the pores are free from dirt, then a thick coating of the paste should be spread over the skin. It may be necessary to go over it two or three times in order to get a fairly thick coat. This should be left on half an hour. The starch is fairly drying so if the complexion is naturally too dry, after it is washed off, a little cold cream should be rubbed on. I frequently advise this starch treatment without the cold cream for oily complexions and enlarged nose pores.

Starch is a mild bleach and can be used every day or so with only good results. After exposure to the sun, or to a strong salt wind, it is splendid as a means of preventing freckles. It will also cool and bleach the redness that comes after even slight exposure to the sun, that every girl with a delicate skin dislikes so.

Dotty—Massage the leg that is the larger of the two until you bring it more to the size of the other.

Hazel—As you have increased your weight at the expense of your digestion you should not try to reduce again through exercises. Correct your diet first. Eliminate much of that starchy food and the sweets but do not cut them out entirely because you have built up all this fat through them and the stomach has been taught to expect such food. Every day eat less of this kind of food and add to it new foods that build up tissue. In a month or so you will no longer have this tired feeling and will be gradually coming back to normal weight. It will then be time to include your special exercises that will complete your restoration to perfect health.

They Say That

Sometimes a person is very anxious to give up an evil habit, but has to admit he cannot. He tries with power. He summons all his resolution and says staunchly, "I will not do so and so any more." But the habit only smiles to itself and waits. It knows will power will gradually ebb and ebb, that as temptation assails it in many forms and from many sides, it will grow weaker, its voice fainter, until finally it disappears and the habit once more reigns supreme.

After this experience is gone through several times, the one beset is apt to say, impatiently, "There isn't any use in trying," and hereafter indulgence is apt to go farther, for there is the self-excuse that he has done all possible, that he has made the good fight and failed, that there is no use in further effort.

Did the idea ever come that, instead of giving up the habit, let the habit do the giving up?

Queer proposition that, you will say. Of course, the habit will not do the giving up.

Wait a minute.

Once upon a time didn't you have the habit of kite flying or playing marbles or dressing dolls? Was there anything so engrossing? Could you do anything more to be desired than fly a kite or play a game of marbles or dress your dolls?

What happened?

Did you say firmly and determinedly, "I am going to break this habit of flying a kite," "I must stop dressing dolls?"

No. You simply got a new angle on life and the habit of kite flying and doll dressing gave you up. They vanished from your cognizance.

To be sure, these habits we form in later life seem of sterner stuff than the play habits of childhood. They seem to have more influence. But, after all, what are they?

Are they not thoughts, desires mentally entertained, in which we believe is some pleasure? Would they not give us up instead of our making such efforts to give them up and failing if we turned the searchlight of serious thinking upon them, gave our mentality a good cleaning and clearing on the subject of pleasure—in a word, if we got a new angle on life?

Would they not drop away from us as these childhood things drop away when we go on to bigger and better interests in life?

Anyway, if we have tried to give them up by will power and failed, why not try this method? It may bring some new views of life that may prove refreshing and worth while.

CARRY ON!

When Private Hanrahan went into the army he picked the ammunition train as a man's job of the sort he had been accustomed to on his road construction gang. His ideas changed slightly when the sergeant ordered him to toss big shells into an auto truck to be taken to the front.

Hanrahan walked around the shells, regarding them intently, but evincing no inclination to manhandle them. The sergeant, noticing his hesitancy, belted:

"Wot's matter? Scared of 'em?" "Scared of them nothin'," retorted Hanrahan contemptuously. "but, sarge, I enlisted for the duration of the war and I want to stick around until she's through duratin'." An' besides, tomorrow's pay day."

Macaroni au Gratin—Break one-half pound macaroni in short lengths and cook until tender (about twenty-five minutes) in plenty of boiling salted water. Make one cup of white sauce, season with salt and pepper, add one cup grated cheese and heat until cheese melts. Butter a pudding dish, place one-third the cooked macaroni on bottom, then a layer of white sauce, then put the remaining macaroni and white sauce and pour the melted cheese mixture over the top, so it will be well distributed through the dish, and brown in quick oven.

Waldorf Sandwiches—Pare, core, quarter and finely chop tart apples. Finely chop the tender heart stalks of celery. There should be equal measure of celery and apple. Parboil one green pepper, from which the seeds have been removed, and finely chop it. Mix all together, moisten with mayonnaise and spread between thinly sliced whole wheat bread.

Vegetable Soup—Cut one-third cup each of carrot and turnip, one-half cup of celery, one-half cup onion, and one and one-half cup potatoes into cubes. Cook the vegetables, except the potatoes, in one-third cup butter or beef suet ten minutes. Add two quarts water and the potatoes and cook very slowly, one hour. Add one tablespoon finely chopped parsley, one teaspoon salt, and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. A soup bone may be added if a richer stock is desired.

Rice Croquettes—Mix two cups of boiled rice, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one and one-half tablespoons butter, a few grains paprika and one well-beaten egg; cool mixture; take up two tablespoons full for each croquette, shape, dip in fine crumbs, beaten egg, and crumbs again. Fry in deep, hot fat; drain and serve with tomato sauce.

Carrots and Peas in Croustades—Cook washed and peeled carrots in boiling, salted water until almost done, then add one teaspoon sugar and one teaspoon butter; continue cooking until tender and almost all moistening has been absorbed. Add an equal measure of canned peas, two tablespoons melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper for each two cups of vegetables and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Apple Pie—Line a pan with paste. Pare, core and cut five tart apples in thin slices and fill the plate, being careful to fit the slices closely. Mix one-eighth teaspoon salt, two-thirds cups sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg, with one teaspoon lemon juice, and sprinkle over the apples. Dot over with two teaspoons butter. Wet edges of under crust, cover with upper crust, pressing the edges close together. Bake in a hot oven forty to forty-five minutes, or until fruit is cooked.

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF DIPHTHERIA WERE PARALYSIS

Weekly Health Talk No. 2
By Eble and Eble, Ds. C.

Diphtheria in itself is very dangerous but when its victim is bedfast for a long period, there may be as a further result of the weakness and relaxation, some spinal displacements resulting in after effects as bad as the disease. In one such case the victim became practically paralyzed after the disease had been cleared from her system.

When there is displacement of spinal joints, there is a narrowing of the spinal nerve opening which comes between all joints of the spine, and a pressure of the spinal bone on soft spinal nerve tissue which results in interference with the transmission of mental impulses. When this pressure is severe, results in paralysis. When it is only slight, the result is weakness and disease. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the alignment of spinal joints and remove the nerve pressure which is the cause of dis-ease.

PARALYSIS AFTER DIPHTHERIA OVERCOME

"We are the parents of Miss Leota Rhoades. From August 8 to mid-October we were quarantined for diphtheria. In this period our daughter was given 30,000 units of antitoxin and after getting up was apparently all right for a time and then she began losing her strength and use of herself until she was completely paralyzed. The physician said she would be that way for life. The chiropractor gave her fifteen adjustments and she began to walk a step or two at a time. She continued for a long time and now she is able to walk and work about the house and is doing fine in every way."—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Rhoades, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1335W.

CITY SWIMMING POOL Not Open at Night The municipal swimming pool isn't the same place it was during vacation days, says L. R. James, pool custodian, who was bewailing the fact that the city schools have taken his patrons.

With the approach of the fall and early winter a change has been made in the pool schedule and the pool will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock, but not at night. Just how long this schedule will be maintained rests with the city council and will probably be decided as the weather gets cooler.

SAYS WORLD IS ON WAY TO RUIN
 Rev. Edmonds Declares It Is America's Business to Help 'Other Side'
 "This old world is plunging headlong to ruin," declared Rev. W. E. Edmonds yesterday morning at the Presbyterian church.
 "You thought a few years ago we were in the last war and such could never happen again," he continued. "Now our papers bring us hourly a prospect growing worse and worse. It is, indeed, America's business what is going on over on the other side, and to have regard for the helpless before the unspeakable Turk. It's wrong to talk of our ocean boundaries and say it is none of our business."
 "A Call to Soul Winning" was the topic of the sermon. Its text was taken from the quotation, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields for they are white almost to harvest."
 "Jude calls himself the 'servant of Jesus Christ,'" remarked Rev. Edmonds. "The key-note of his epistle is service; service out of love and compassion and all built up on a foundation of intense earnestness. His word 'fire' suggests the idea of one caught in a burning building with hope of escape cut off.
 Saving of Souls
 "In this world we make much of any who save life at cost of heroic effort—to save bodies. What shall be said of those who have gone about saving souls for eternity?
 "Years ago a prominent minister went over to Scotland and preached in the pulpit which had been filled by McChyne. He asked an old member about the texts and the sayings of the great divine, but they were forgotten. But he could well remember the trembling hand laid upon his young head and the anxious words, 'I am very much concerned about your soul.' Is there anything like that love and compassion in your life?
 "John's gospel more than any other is the manual for soul winners. He reminds us that the higher up we rise in fellowship with Christ the wider out our sympathy extends and the lower down will we reach to find His lost treasures. Behold His love and compassion. He can touch the hidden spring of your life and open up its burden and give peace.
 "He asks us to lay aside trivial affairs and 'pull men out of the fire.' This shows His estimate of human life. It's an emergency call and can't wait."

MAKE FIRST SALE AFTER MIDNIGHT
 Monarch Auto Supply In New Home After Busy Hours of Moving
 To most Glendale people the announcement that the Monarch Auto Supply company would be open for business Monday morning in its new building at the southeast corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard street, meant most anytime after 8 o'clock this morning. But such wasn't the case, for the cash register in the new store rang out the first sale shortly after midnight with James Neill of 126 West Lomita avenue as the customer.
 After a busy day of moving the Monarch people realized that they had arrived "bag and baggage" in their new home, and they were just looking around in bewilderment wondering if they would ever find anything when Mr. and Mrs. Neill drove up to buy a Goodyear cord tire and have the honor of making the first purchase in the new store.
 Already at Home
 So, by this morning with the big Monarch electric sign installed in working order on the new building and the first sale almost twelve hours old, the Monarch folks were beginning to feel pretty much at home in their fine, large quarters.
 Of course there are the countless details of finding the right place for everything and conveniently arranging the stock, but all this was working out smoothly today and within a few weeks the Monarch Supply company will be one of the finest looking and best equipped shops of the kind in Southern California.
 H. M. Butts, F. A. Butts and R. C. Plume, the Monarch proprietors are receiving many congratulations on their new store and are now making plans for a formal opening.
 LEAGUE MAKES APPEAL
 A plea for a cot or single bed, to be donated for the use of an invalid, has been sent out to Glendale people by Mrs. L. W. Sinclair of the Welfare League. Mrs. Sinclair says there is urgent need for a cot or bed and that she is hoping Glendale people will assist her in finding either one to meet the need. A sanitary cot will not do, but either a small cot or bed will be desirable. Mrs. Sinclair can be reached by calling Glendale 232-J.
 The annual meeting of the Welfare League is to be held tomorrow night at the city hall. At that time Mrs. Sinclair will give her yearly report.

Local News

INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS
 At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor society at the First Presbyterian church last night, new officers were installed by Rev. W. E. Edmonds as follows: Miss Ethel Preston, president of Senior B.; Paul Edmonds, president of intermediates; Paul McCormick, president of juniors. Plans were made for a Halloween social to be given October 27.

PROMINENT NURSE VISITOR
 Miss Minnie S. Hollingsworth of Boston, Mass., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Roy R. Bennett, of 217 East Chestnut street. She is a graduate of the Massachusetts General hospital, training school for nurses and is well known among the nursing organizations of the east, being chairman of the private duty nurses' section of the American Nurses' association. Miss Hollingsworth plans to visit the hospitals of Los Angeles and Southern California and get in touch with the private duty nurses of this locality and the work they are doing.

GEORGE E. STAUB HURT
 George E. Staub of 341 Hawthorne street, sustained severe injuries Saturday when a scaffold upon which he was working, gave way and in falling his right arm went through a window. Three arteries were cut and a tendon severed.

First-aid was rendered by a companion, who made a tourniquet of a piece of wire, the only thing at hand, but which was of material aid, until he could reach the office of Dr. J. E. Eckles, where he was given surgical attention, and then taken to his home.
 Mr. Staub is a cement contractor and was engaged in working on a new garage that is now in course of construction by Roy L. Kent company, at the corner of Central avenue and Colorado street.

G. D. MCCONNELL HURT
 G. D. McConnell of the Builders' Hardware company of 631 East Broadway, has a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday morning in an accident that happened at the intersection of Central avenue and Lexington drive, when his automobile was struck by a passing machine with such force that it was overturned and Mr. McConnell was pinned beneath it.
 The driver of the other machine assisted in releasing him and R. N. Striker, who was passing, took the injured man in his machine to the offices of Dr. J. E. Eckles, where he was found to be suffering from a badly wrenched back and several minor bruises. The stranger, who was the cause of the accident, disappeared without leaving his name or license number with the victim.

DAUGHTERS OF 1812 MEET
 Mrs. H. E. Bartlett of 333 West Broadway entertained the members of the California Society of the Daughters of 1812 at the regular meeting of that organization, of which she is president, at her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. R. W. Meeker of Glendale is corresponding secretary of the society. Revision of the by-laws was taken up following the business session.
 A motion was unanimously carried deploring and condemning the use of the American flag by real estate men to advertise their land. Members were present from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Huntington Park and other nearby places. Mrs. M. M. Gale, a member of the Colorado society of the Daughters of 1812, and who is visiting in Glendale, was a guest.

P. L. HATCH IS INJURED
 P. L. Hatch, general manager of the Glendale and Montrose Railway company, has been suffering from an injury which he sustained Friday when the third finger of his left hand was caught between the wheel and brake beam of his car and severely crushed.

L. BOND IS RECOVERING
 L. Bond of 431 West Broadway is recovering from a peculiar injury that he sustained recently when a scaffold upon which he was standing, gave way and he fell eleven feet, striking with full force upon his chin. He also sprained his left knee, his left arm, and lost a tooth. He is held under the care of Dr. J. E. Eckles and is doing well. Mr. Bond is an employe of the Glendale Electric company.

SERIOUS OPERATION
 Mrs. F. W. Pigg, of 405 North Maryland avenue, underwent a serious operation at the Glendale Research hospital last Wednesday.

MAKES STATEMENT IN CASE
 The Glendale Evening News recently carried a story regarding the refusal of Stanley Derr, 1017 Colorado street, Eagle Rock, to sign a traffic ticket as requested by Glendale police. Mr. Derr states the facts as follows: Upon his refusal to sign the ticket he was taken to the police station. Later he signed the ticket, but the police refused to let him go with-out his first depositing $35 bail. He was held at the city hall until the bail was raised. The charge was reckless driving, he states.

LEAVE FOR SAN JOSE
 Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Stein of 128 South Everett street left this morning for San Jose to reside. Mr. Stein had been a detective sergeant of the local police department for some time and his resignation was accepted with regret by Col. J. D. Fraser. The vacancy is being filled by the promotion of Officer E. S. Boucher of 115 1/2 South Brand boulevard.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY
 A theatre party at the Glendale theatre and a luncheon later at the Oliver O. Clark home at 346 North Louise street Saturday afternoon celebrated the tenth birthday of Mrs. Clark's little daughter Dorothy. Eleven little girls enjoyed the affair.
 Red was the color used by Mrs. Clark in decorating for the birthday luncheon, a large bouquet of red flowers occupying the center of the table, while red favors marked the places.
 Those invited for the party were Ruth and Dixie Lane, Virginia Farrow, Catherine Henry, Ruth Mercer, Edith Wintersgill, Jane Criswell, Dorothy and Ruth Olsen and Mabel Collins.

ENTERTAIN INFORMALLY
 Complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Carpenter, whose marriage took place Saturday morning in Los Angeles, Mr. Carpenter's parents entertained informally Saturday night at their home at 925 North Louise street. The company included friends from Los Angeles, Eagle Rock and Glendale.
 Mrs. Carpenter was formerly Miss Alta Weight of Salt Lake City, Utah. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will reside at 334 West Wilson avenue.

OLIVE PIXLEY IN CHARGE
 Glendale claims as a resident Miss Olive A. Pixley, one of the three women in the United States, who conducts naturalization examinations. Miss Pixley, who resides with her mother, Mrs. Flora M. Pixley at 116 West Lomita avenue, has been connected with the office of Frederick Jones, Los Angeles naturalization examiner, for five years.
 Miss Pixley recently conducted an examination in the court of United States District Judge Bledsoe in which more than fifty foreigners were converted into American citizens.
 Mr. Jones' territory embraces California, Arizona and Nevada and Miss Pixley assists him in its administration.
 Miss Pixley is a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., and in addition to her duties in the naturalization department, she writes verse.

S. J. MILLS PLEASED BY BUSINESS OUTLOOK
 S. J. Mills, furrier, who opened business in Glendale early in September and is located with the Harriet Wilson Shop at 133 South Brand boulevard, says he is very much pleased with the large amount of work which has been brought to him not only by residents of Glendale, who are finding the local shop very convenient, but also by former customers in Los Angeles, Ocean Park and other cities.
 Mr. Mills for fourteen years was associated with a large Los Angeles fur house and has thirty-five years' experience as a furrier. Mr. Mills is assisted by his daughter, Mrs. J. B. Meade. Not only new furs, but the remodeling, re-lining and renovating of old furs and the making of coats and capes are included in Mr. Mills' work.

K. OF C. MEMBER DRIVE STARTED
 Rev. James S. O'Neill Urges Every Man In Parish to Join Organization
 Paving tribute to the Knights of Columbus organization and commending its aims and principles to his parishioners, Rev. James S. O'Neill in his sermon yesterday morning at the Holy Family Catholic church announced the launching of a membership drive by the Glendale Council, No. 1920, and urged that every man of his parish respond by becoming a Knight. Father O'Neill said in part:
 "I am going to take for my text the most terrifying enemy civilization has ever had to battle with, 'the Modern Character Assassin,' the 'thoughtless gossip,' the 'tale-bearer,' the 'heartless rumor,' the 'I heard,' the 'it was told to me on good authority,' the 'have you heard the latest scandal?'"
 Means of Protection
 The ancient Coliseum, with the wild and savage beasts tearing human beings to pieces, was not half so cruel as the modern character assassin of today. Our parish is no different from all parishes. They all have their anonymous letter writers, their enemies work in the dark. Now, there is only one way to put an end to the ravages of this monster. One way for decent, self-respecting people to draw the teeth of this dragon called 'Slander.' And the way is explained in the one magic word, 'Columbianism.'
 "There is only one fault with true Columbianism. It is the fault of modesty. They do not shout its principles from the house tops, and they should, for the world at large would better understand what Columbianism stands for. Take a look at the war record of the order. Everybody made happy, everything free, a 100 per cent record—clean record."
 Father O'Neill then quoted the late Cardinal Gibbons:
 "If I may single out one society without prejudice to the merits of others, I will name in particular manner that splendid organization, the Knights of Columbus. They are our joy and crown. They are the glory of Jerusalem. They are the joy of Israel. They are the honor of our people. Wherever calumny raises its false head they are ever ready, like true Knights, to smite the enemy. Whenever an appeal is made in the cause of religion or charity, they are always foremost in lending a helping hand."
 In closing Father O'Neill said: "Our council is starting a membership drive today and I sincerely hope and pray it meets with success. We have more than 600 registered Catholic gentlemen in our parish, who should be Knights of our council. As your pastor I am asking you to seriously consider a membership in the Catholic order of the Knights of Columbus soldiers."

POLICE CAR IN ACCIDENT
 Detective Sergeant W. J. Royle of 347 West Maple street was driving the police car north on Isabel street about 10 o'clock Saturday night. A Rathburn of 319 Pioneer drive was going west on Harvard street. The rear fender of Mr. Rathburn's car was damaged.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT
 K. Tahassasi of $10 East Chestnut street was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital last night with several broken ribs and a broken hip as the result of an accident.

OPENING RECITAL TONIGHT
 A general invitation has been extended to all Glendaleans to attend the opening recital of the fall season at 8 o'clock tonight at the Emerson School of Self-Expression at 730 South Glendale avenue.
 The program is to be given by Mrs. Retta King Nelson, teacher of voice, assisted by Dr. Pearl Anderson and Henry Biederman, advanced students of expression, who will give a one-act play, "Please Pass the Cream."
 It was announced at the school this morning that the guest cards had not been issued and that the general public was invited to attend this opening event.

THE T. D. & L.
 You will enjoy "Kindred of the Dust," a First National attraction which started a two-day run at the T. D. and L. theatre yesterday.
 You'll enjoy it for a number of reasons: it was produced by Raoul A. Walsh, who directed those successes, "The Oath," "Serenade," and many others; it was written by Peter B. Kyne, the famous author; the leading roles are taken by Miriam Cooper and Ralph Graves, and last, but not least, it is an Associated First National attraction.
 The director has not rested there; he has assembled one of the most capable casts ever found in one picture, and the result is perfect entertainment.
 Patrons of the T. D. and L. theatre are to be congratulated on their opportunity to see such films as "Kindred of the Dust."

THE GLENDALE
 "What's Your Hurry," or "What has Bobby Dunn?"
 In a preview at the Glendale theatre tonight he will show you his latest comedy, vying with Lee Moran in "Apartment Wanted," for honors in the fun films.
 News, Topics and Chats also are on the bill which features "The Heart Specialist" with Mary Miles Minter. She was a pretty "sob sister" on a big New York newspaper and tired of writing other people's love stories.
 So she started out to seek real adventure and a romance all her own. See what happened inside the sultan's harem—and later when she rescues a young millionaire from a closing net of intrigue, and lost her heart in the scuffle.
 It is a romantic drama a-tangle with thrills!
