THE CALENDAR

The calendar is a method of identifying the passage of time and thereby regulating our civil life and religious observances.

Days, months, and years are based on astronomical periods. The day is the time it takes the earth to make one revolution on its axis, the month is associated with the period of rotation of the moon around the earth, while the year has to do with the rotation of the earth around the sun.

Many religious ideas and observances have been connected with the changes of the moon, and in ancient times the calendar took account of the moon rather than the seasons. From new moon to new moon is 29.530 days, and from one spring equinox to the next is 365.24219 days. Since the two are incommensurable, the modern calendar disregards the moon.

THE JULIAN CALENDAR

When Julius Caesar came to power, the Roman Calendar was hopelessly confused. With the advice of the Alexandrian astronomer, Sosigenes, Julius Caesar established the Julian Calendar. The length of the year was taken as $365\frac{1}{4}$ days, and in order to account for the $\frac{1}{4}$ day, an extra day was added every fourth year. From 45 B.C. each month has had its present number of days. In the old Roman Calendar which was based on the moon an extra month was inserted to straighten out the difference between twelve lunations, 354.37 days, and 355 days, which they called a year. This was inserted when necessary after February 23rd. In the Julian Calendar the extra day was added by repeating the sixth day before the Kalends (1st) of March, whence comes our word bissextile for leap year.

No very significant change was made till the reform of Pope Gregory XIII in A.D. 1582.

The Julian Calendar is known as the "Old Style" and after the change made by Pope Gregory as the "New Style"; the difference between the two is 13 days. The Calendar so arranged is known as the "Old Style" and is now used by the Eastern Orthodox Church in Russia, Ukraine, Syria and Palestine.

THE GREGORIAN CALENDAR

In that the Solar Year is 11 minutes, 12 seconds less than the Julian Year of $365\frac{1}{4}$ days, it followed in course of years that the Julian Calendar became inaccurate by several days, and in 1582 this difference amounted to 10 days. Pope Gregory XIII, at the suggestion of Aloysius Lilius, an astronomer of Naples, determined to rectify this, and devised the Calendar now known as the Gregorian Calendar. He dropped or cancelled these 10 days—October 5th being called October 15th—and made centennial years Leap years only once in 4 centuries; so that whilst 1700, 1800 and 1900 were to be ordinary years, 2000 would be Leap year. This modification brought the Gregorian year into such close exactitude with the Solar year that there is only a difference of 26 seconds, which amounts to a day in 3,323 years. This is the "New Style". The Gregorian Calendar was adopted in Italy, France, Spain, Portugal and Poland in 1582, by most of the German Roman Catholic states, Holland and Flanders in 1583, Hungary in 1587. The adoption in Switzerland began in 1584 and was not completed till 1812. The German and Dutch Protestant states generally, along with Denmark adopted it in 1700. British dominions in 1752, Sweden in 1753, Japan in 1873, China in 1912, Bulgaria in 1915, Soviet Russia in 1918, Yugoslavia in 1919, Romania and Greece in 1924, Turkey in 1927. The rules for Easter have not, however, been adopted by those oriental churches that are not subject to the Papacy.

The difference between the two "Styles" will remain 13 days until A.D. 2100.

THE JEWISH CALENDAR

The Jewish Calendar from the institution of the Mosaic Law downward was a lunar one, consisting of twelve months. The cycles of religious feasts commencing with the passover depending not only on the month but on the Moon; the 14th of the month of Abid or Nisan was coincident with the full moon; and the new moons themselves were the occasions of regular festivals; the commencement of the month was generally determined by observations of the new moon, but twelve lunar months would make but 354½ days, the years would be short twelve days of the true year and it was necessary that an additional month, Veadar, be inserted about every third year.

The modern Jewish Calendar is based on fixed rules and not on observation. A common year may contain 353, 354 or 355 days and the Leap year 383, 384 or 385 days. The intercalary month always contains 30 days and is inserted next before the month Adar which name and place it takes. Adar itself is called second Adar or Veadar. Tishri 1 is the Jewish New Year and it cannot be a Sunday, Wednesday or Friday. Tishri 1 is not necessarily the day of new moon but is governed by a mean new moon which is calculated from the value of a mean lunation. It is complicated as compared with the Gregorian Calendar. The intercalary month is introduced seven times in every nineteen years.

The identification of the Jewish months with our own cannot be effected with precision on account of the variations existing between the lunar and solar month.

THE MOHAMMEDAN CALENDAR

The Mohammedan Calendar is called also the Calendar of Hegira (i.e. Migration) and is attributed to the primary migration of Mohammed, the Prophet of Islam, on September 20th, 622 A.D. from Mecca, his native city in the land of Hejaz, Arabia, to the city of Medina in the north of the same land. In Medina the Prophet and Founder of the Islamic Faith died and was buried.

Each year consists of 12 lunar months, and since no intercalation is made the months go round the seasons in between 32 and 33 years. In civil life there seems to be confusion as to the beginning of the month and unless both the day of week and day of the month are stated it is impossible to give an exact interpretation to a date.

The year 1387 according to the Hegira Calendar began on April 10th, 1967, the year 1388 on March 31st, 1968 Gregorian.

CALENDAR REFORM

Reform of the calendar, so that it may be balanced in structure, perpetual in form and harmonious in arrangement, has long been under discussion.

In 1937, when an enquiry was made by the League of Nations, 14 governments approved in principle of The World Calendar. World War II delayed further action. In October 1953 India put a proposal before the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations which embodied The World Calendar.

At Geneva, in July 1954, it was unanimously decided to request governments of member and non-member states to express their views on the desirability of calendar reform.

On May 16, 1955, ECOSOC decided to extend the time for sending in replies for a year.

The World Calendar comprises equal quarters in which the first month of each has 31 days and the other two 30 days each. These quarters contain exactly 91 days, 13 weeks and 3 months, with 13 Sundays and 78 weekdays, while each month has 26 weekdays. The last day of every year, December 31st, is called Worldsday and is placed between Saturday, December 30th, and Sunday, January 1st. In leap years, to make up the quota of 366 days, Leapyear Day, June 31st, is similarly interposed between Saturday and Sunday at the half year. The calendar is thus stabilized and has the same day-and-date arrangement every year. Christmas always falls on Monday, Dominion Day, July 1st, on Sunday with observance on Monday.

Worldsday is designed to be a world-wide holiday dedicated to international good will. Leapyear Day would also be a day of rest.

The World Calendar is sponsored by the International World Calendar Association, now with headquarters in Ottawa (address P.O. Box 20, Besserer St.) A. J. Hills Chairman of the Canadian Affiliate has succeeded to the Presidency. Hon. C. Fraser Elliott, C.M.G., Q.C. is Honorary General Counsel, Charles Clay, B.A., F.A.G.S., is Consultant, and J. Avery Joyce, Ph.D., F.R.G.S., Representative at the United Nations.

The Association has consultative status with the United Nations as a Non-Governmental Organization. Through its affiliates and National Committees throughout the world the Association endeavours to advance its plan of calendar reform, which through ECOSOC was referred to members and non-members of U.N.

In April, 1956 the item World calendar reform was withdrawn from ECOSOC by request of the Association to give time to obtain additional support.

The change-over could be effected without disturbance when the Gregorian calendar commences on a Sunday, which occurred in 1967, Canada's Centennial Year. With The World Calendar, every year commences on Sunday, January 1st.

THE WEEK

The division of the week is found only among Aryan nations and in regions into which they have penetrated. The day is, for convenience, divided into 24 equal parts and is the period of a single rotation of the earth upon its own axis.

A Solar or Astronomical day commences at midnight, and is divided into two equal portions of 12 hours each—those before noon being termed (A.M.) those after noon (P.M.).

The Chinese week consists of 5 days, which are named after iron, wood, water, feathers and earth; they divide the day into 12 parts of 2 hours each.

The Anglo-Saxons named the days of the week after the following deities; Sunday, the Sun; Monday, the Moon; Tuesday, Tueasco (God of War); Wednesday, Woden (God of Storms); Thursday, Thor (God of Thunder); Friday, Freya (Goddess of Love); Saturday, Saturn (God of Time).

The word week is from Wikon (German); = change, succession.

Dominical Letter

The Roman Calendar makers placed the letters A.B.C.D.E.F.G. against the day of the year. The letter which stands against the Sundays is known as the Dominical Letter. In Leap year since no letter is set opposite the added day one letter appears for January and February and the letter preceding for the remainder of the year.

Example—

	A	B	C	D	E	F	G
	Mon.	Tu.	Wed.	Th.	Fr.	Sat.	Sun.
1968	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Jan	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Feb.	26	27	28	29
	A	B	C	—	D	E	F
Mar.					1	2	3

Jan. 7 (Sun.) is G. G therefore is the Dominical letter for Jan. and Feb. Since no letter is assigned for Feb. 29, Sunday from then on comes under the letter F, which is the letter for the remainder of the year.

Golden Number—The calendar for the phases of the moon is nearly the same every 19 years which is known as the Metonic Cycle. The Golden Number is its number in this Metonic Cycle. To find the Golden Number for 1968 add 1 to 1968 and divide by 19. The remainder, 12, is the Golden Number.

Epact is the age of the moon on some fixed day of the calendar year. (January 1 Gregorian Calendar).

Solar Cycle

In the Julian Calendar the days of the year recurred on the same days of the week in 7 x 4 years; 28 years was called the Solar Cycle. It is little used now.

The Cycle of the Indiction, is a non-astronomical cycle of 15 years. Following Diocletian's reconquest of Egypt in A.D. 297 a provincial census was taken and repeated every 15 years.

Julian Period

This is a combination of the Solar Cycle of 28 years, the Metonic or Lunar Cycle of 19 years, and the Cycle of the Indiction, 15 years. These are all supposed to begin on January 1 of the Julian Calendar which was 4713 B.C. The Julian days are numbered consecutively from Greenwich mean noon on January 21, 4713 B.C.

Under heading "1752-1800", and in line with the year of the century (59th), find the letter G. Index G is then the key to the whole of the Calendar for the year 1759, and this key shows that September 12th was on a Wednesday.

NOTE: The map is incorrect as regards Saskatchewan. According to the Time Act, 1966, the Province is divided on the meridian of 106° Longitude West, and all centres east of this line are on Central Standard Time the year round, and all centres west of this line are on Central Standard Time during the summer months and Mountain Standard Time during the winter months, except that centres west of the line may vote to adopt Central Standard Time the year round.

APPARENT, MEAN AND STANDARD TIME

Apparent Time. — By apparent noon is meant the moment when the sun is on the meridian, and apparent time is measured by the distance in degrees that the sun is east or west of the meridian. Apparent time is given by the sun dial.

Mean Time. — The interval between apparent noon on two successive days is not constant, and a clock cannot be constructed to keep apparent time. For this reason mean time is used. The length of a mean day is the average of all the apparent days throughout the year. The real sun moves about the ecliptic in one year; an imaginary mean sun is considered as moving uniformly around the celestial equator in one year. The difference between the times that the real sun and the mean sun cross the meridian (i.e. between apparent noon and mean noon) is the equation of time.

Standard Time. —

Owing to the great breadth of the Dominion the difference in solar time in various parts of the country is adjusted by the creation of Standard Time Zones, one hour in width, fixed between arbitrary lines running north and south, 15° of longitude apart, the time observed in each zone being an exact number of hours slow from Greenwich.

Example: When it is 8 a.m. by Pacific Time it is 12 noon by Atlantic Time and 4 p.m. at Greenwich. There are seven zones divided as follows, reckoning from Greenwich:

- | | |
|--|--|
| Newfoundland Standard Time | { Newfoundland, including Labrador, 3½ hours slow. |
| Atlantic Standard Time 60th Meridian Time | { New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and those parts of Quebec and N.W.T. east of the 68th Meridian, 4 hours slow. |
| Eastern Standard Time 75th Meridian Time | { Quebec west of the 68th Meridian and Ontario as far west as the 90th Meridian; N.W.T. between the 68th and 85th Meridian, 5 hours slow. |
| Central Standard Time 90th Meridian Time | { Ontario west of the 90th Meridian, Manitoba, easterly part of Saskatchewan and N.W.T. between the 85th and 102nd Meridian, 6 hours slow. |
| Mountain Standard Time 105th Meridian Time | { Western Saskatchewan (in winter); throughout Alberta and in N.W.T. between the 102nd and 120th Meridian, 7 hours slow. |
| Pacific Standard Time 120th Meridian Time | { Throughout British Columbia and in N.W.T. west of the 120th Meridian, 8 hours slow. |
| Yukon Standard Time 135th Meridian Time | { Throughout Yukon Territory, 9 hours slow. |

Standard Times as used by the railways in traversing these Zones are in general use. Solar time around the globe varies four minutes with each degree of longitude.

NOTES ON THE ASTRONOMICAL TABLES

The purpose of the following notes is to explain those tables which are not self-explanatory and to illustrate how they may be used for places other than those specified.

SUNRISE AND SUNSET (Pp. 10 to 16)

These tables give Standard Times of Sunrise and Sunset for the four Canadian cities listed. When Daylight Saving Time is in effect, of course, one hour must be added to the listed times. The calculations are for the upper limb (edge) of the sun and for the astronomical (sea) horizon. Accordingly the actual observation of Sunrise or Sunset will differ from the tabulated value if the observer is below or above the level of his visible horizon at the point of Sunrise or Sunset.

The listed times of Moonrise and Moonset have been calculated for places at the stated latitudes and for longitude 5 hours west.

To obtain the approximate times of Sunrise, Sunset, Moonrise and Moonset for other Canadian cities and towns proceed as indicated in the accompanying table. The errors for Sunrise and Sunset by this approximate method will seldom exceed 10 minutes in winter and summer or 4 minutes in spring, and for Moonrise and Moonset they will seldom exceed 15 minutes.

AZIMUTH OF THE SUN AT RISING AND SETTING (see table on page 17)

Only twice a year, namely about March 21 and September 23, does the sun rise and set more or less exactly in the east and west respectively. It is of interest and sometimes of value to know the position of Sunrise and Sunset at other times. The table on page 16 tabulates these positions in degrees east of north and west of north for Sunrise and Sunset respectively for a selection of latitudes and dates. For latitudes and dates other than those tabulated take simple proportions.

MAGNETIC DECLINATION

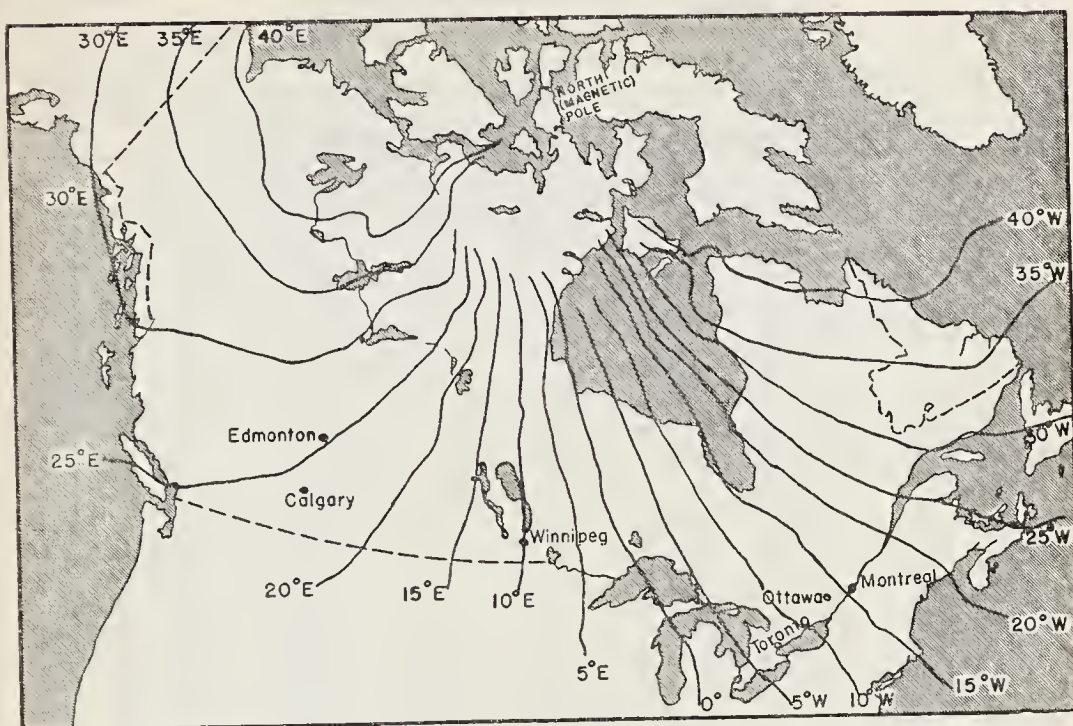

CHART OF MAGNETIC DECLINATION

A compass needle, even when unaffected by extraneous magnetic fields, does not in general point due north. The amount and direction by which its direction differs from true north is called magnetic declination or variation. The declination varies with the position of the observer and also varies slowly with time. The above chart gives the values of declination over Canada as of 1940. These values may be used for 1968 unless accuracy of better than 1° is required.

Example: What is the direction of the compass needle at the southern tip of Lake Manitoba?

From the chart this point is about $\frac{1}{4}$ of the way from the line of 10°E declination towards the line of 15°E declination. Therefore the declination is 11°E , i.e., the needle points 11° east of true north.

A large map of Canada showing lines of Equal Magnetic Declination and Annual Change in Canada for 1968 is obtainable from the Map Distribution Office, 615 Booth St., Ottawa 4, Price $1.00 each.

ASTRONOMY IN CANADA

Canada possesses a number of major observatories devoted to one phase or other of astronomical research. The Department of Energy, Mines and Resources of the Government of Canada operates three of these: the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, where position astronomy, the Canadian Time Service, solar and meteor astronomy are the principal activities; the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory near Victoria where 72-inch and 48-inch reflecting telescopes are used for astrophysical and galactic research; the Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory near Penticton, B.C., which possesses a 25 meter diameter parabolic reflector and two large low frequency arrays for radio studies of the universe. A 150-inch optical telescope, to be known as the Queen Elizabeth II telescope, is now under construction; it will be situated on Mount Kobay in British Columbia.

The University of Toronto offers specialized training in astronomy to students at both the undergraduate and graduate level. It operates the David Dunlap Observatory near Richmond Hill, which possesses a 74-inch reflecting telescope as well as several smaller optical telescopes and a number of radio telescopes of moderate size. Among its research activities are astronomical spectroscopy, studies of star clusters and galaxies and radio astronomy.

The University of Western Ontario offers honours undergraduate and graduate programs in astronomy. A 48-inch reflector is to be installed at a new observatory site 15 miles north of London in 1968. On the campus the University operates the Hume Cronyn Observatory which has a 10-inch refractor and smaller instruments. Research interests include photometry stellar spectroscopy, and radial astronomy.

Queen's University possesses several telescopes, both optical (including a 15-inch reflector) and radio, which are used for research and student training. Several other Canadian Universities have small observatories used for student instruction only.

The National Research Council conducts meteor research at the Spring Hill Observatory near Ottawa and research in radio astronomy at the Algonquin Radio Observatory at Lake Traverse in Algonquin Park where facilities are also provided for radio astronomers of Queen's University and the University of Toronto. A 150-foot steerable paraboloid is the major telescope at the Algonquin Observatory.

The Defence Research Board conducts research in radio astronomy related to defence problems at the Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment at Ottawa. Radio astronomical measurements are also made by the Alouette satellites in orbit.

Observatories devoted largely to amateur astronomical observations are operated by Centres of the Royal Astronomical Society at Montreal, Quebec and Winnipeg.

There are public visiting hours at some of these observatories. The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria is open on Saturday evenings from April 1st. to Nov. 30; the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, Saturday evenings, April to October inclusive; David Dunlap Observatory, Richmond Hill, Ont., Saturday evenings April 1 to October 31 by reservation, and Tuesday mornings throughout the year; Hume Cronyn Observatory, London, a schedule for the year is published each Fall; University of Saskatchewan Observatory, Saskatoon, open house every Wednesday evening; The Dominion Radio Astrophysical Observatory, Penticton, B.C.; Sundays, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. during July and August.

In addition to professional astronomers there are many amateurs in Canada who follow this interesting study. Most of these are members of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada (see index) which has 16 Centres across Canada and which welcomes as members all who are interested in the subject.

METEORS, METEORITES, AND METEOR SHOWERS

A meteor or "shooting star" appears momentarily in the sky when a particle from beyond the earth enters the earth's atmosphere at a high velocity. Most visible meteors are caused by particles smaller than a grain of wheat, and these small particles are completely vaporized in the atmosphere at a height of about 80 miles. A spectacular meteor, known as a fire-ball, is caused by a larger body which may fall to the earth's surface in one or more pieces. Particles seen thus to fall, or subsequently found by analysis to be of this nature, are called meteorites.

Meteorites may be divided into two main classes—the irons, which are almost pure nickel-iron, and the stones. Any meteorite is characterized by a dark, smooth crust caused by the fusion of the outer part.

Meteors may be observed on any clear, moonless night at an average rate of about ten an hour. At times there occur meteor showers, when meteors are seen with much greater frequency and appear to radiate from a particular part of the sky which is called the radiant. This is an effect of perspective, the radiant being the vanishing point of the parallel tracks of the meteors. Meteor showers usually repeat themselves annually, and have nearly always been associated with the orbits of comets. When the earth passes through or near the orbit of a comet it intercepts stragling particles which cause meteors. The principal meteor showers for the northern hemisphere are listed below.

The study of meteors and meteorites adds to our knowledge of the nature and origin of the solar system and also to our knowledge of the earth's outer atmosphere.

BANKS IN CANADA AND THEIR BRANCHES

BANK OF CANADA

Following one of the recommendations contained in the report made to the Government in 1933 by the Royal Commission on Banking and Currency, headed by the Right Hon. Lord Macmillan, P.C., K.C., there was enacted by Parliament in the 1934 session, Chapter 43 of the Statutes of that year, incorporating the Bank of Canada as a central bank of issue and rediscount. The institution opened for business on March 11, 1935.

The function of the Bank is "to regulate credit and currency in the best interests of the economic life of the nation." It has the sole right of note issue.

Until May 1st, 1940, the Bank was required to maintain a reserve in gold coin and bullion of 25 per cent of the amount of its outstanding notes and deposit liabilities. On that date, under the authority of the War Measures Act, the reserve requirement was suspended by the Governor-in-Council. At present, under The Currency, Mint and Exchange Fund Act, the Bank is not required, unless the Governor-in-

Council otherwise prescribes, to maintain a fixed ratio of gold or foreign exchange to its liabilities. The Bank now owns no gold. The Bank acts as the fiscal agent of the Government of Canada and, by agreement, may also act as banker or fiscal agent of the government of any province.

The management consists of a Board of Directors composed of a Governor, a Deputy Governor and 12 Directors, the Deputy Minister of Finance by virtue of his office being a member of the Board.

In 1938 an amending Act was passed providing that all Directors be appointed by the Government and that the entire capital of $5,000,000 shall be owned by the Government of Canada.

Since 1955, all profits of the Bank have been payable into The Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Directors, officers and employees of chartered banks and persons employed in the public service may not hold office as a Director.

THE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BANK

This bank provides financing, chiefly in the form of term loans, to new or existing businesses in Canada which may reasonably be expected to prove successful but might not otherwise be able to get credit on reasonable terms and conditions. The Bank is not intended to compete with the Chartered Banks and other lending institutions, but rather to supplement the facilities offered by these institutions.

It may lend to firms engaged in an enterprise in which is carried on any industry, trade or other business undertaking of any kind.

The Bank may accept any form of collateral security including real property, and its loans are usually for capital assistance rather than working funds, and for a period of several years.

The Industrial Development Bank is a subsidiary of the Bank of Canada, and was created by Act of Parliament on August 15th, 1944.

The authorized capital is fifty million of which forty-four million has been subscribed by the Bank of Canada and is fully paid. By virtue of its power to issue bonds and debentures and other provisions of its Act of Incorporation the aggregate of the total direct liabilities of the Bank, including bonds and debentures issued by the Bank, and of the total contingent liabilities of the Bank in the form of guarantees given or underwriting agreement entered into by it, shall not at any time exceed five times the aggregate amount of the paid-up capital and the Reserve Fund.

The President of the Bank is the Governor of the Bank of Canada. The Head Office is in Ottawa, and the General Manager's Office is in Montreal.

CHARTERED BANKS

Chartered banks in Canada are incorporated by Special Act of the Canadian Parliament and governed by the Bank Act (chapter 87 of the Statutes of 1966-67), which continues the charters in force until July 1, 1977. The Act specifies the business and powers of the banks and the types of transactions in which they may legally engage.

Banks may make loans on many types of security, or without security. They are prohibited from lending money upon the security of shares of the capital stock of a bank. They may lend on mortgages and hypothecs subject to certain limitations.

A bank is not permitted to issue or re-issue its notes payable to bearer and intended for circulation.

The new True way to bank

Here it is! Everything you need for your combination of True Chequing and True Savings accounts in a neat complimentary wallet. Including personalized cheques.

This new True way keeps your True Chequing account separate from True Savings. You leave enough in a True Chequing Account to pay your bills. You put the rest into 4½% True Savings. (If you already have a 3% Savings Account, you can convert it to True Savings.)

See how this simplifies your money planning. Come in and ask about the new True way to bank — and get your new True-blue wallet free.

Bank of Montreal

Canada's First Bank

Notes formerly issued by the banks for circulation in Canada and outstanding are redeemable by Bank of Canada upon presentation. Notes formerly issued by the banks for circulation outside Canada and outstanding are redeemable by the issuing bank upon presentation. Banks may issue subordinated debentures subject to certain limitations with the maximum amount limited in relation to capital and rest fund.

The shares of capital stock of a bank may have a par value of any multiple of $1 not exceeding $10 and in case of any new issue by a bank, its shareholders have certain clearly defined rights as provided in the Act. No liability attaches to the ownership of bank shares other than any amounts remaining unpaid in respect of the subscription price of the shares.

The Bank Act embodies many provisions designed for the protection of creditors and shareholders including requirements relating to minimum cash reserves, shareholders' audits by public accountants and Government inspection. No chartered bank in Canada has failed since 1923.

POST OFFICES AND RAILROAD STATIONS IN CANADA

Any Post Office is authorized to receive C.O.D. parcels and collect charges thereon, but only Offices printed in Italics can dispatch C.O.D. parcels. These Offices also issue and pay Money Orders. The Offices marked * are Savings Bank Offices. Places marked † are not Post Offices. Capital letters at right of Electoral District column indicate the Provinces and Territories of Canada thus: A, Alberta; BC, British Columbia; M, Manitoba; NB, New Brunswick; Nd, Newfoundland; NS, Nova Scotia; NWT, Northwest Territories; O, Ontario; PEI, Prince Edward Island;

Q, Quebec; S, Saskatchewan; Yu, Yukon Territory. A street address occurring in the centre column indicates the name of the particular sub Post Office for the city shown in column 1.

The numbers and names in column 3, opposite every place listed in column 1, indicate the Railway, Marine Shipping, or Air Line on which the place (or its nearest rail, water or air point) is situated. See list of Railways, Marine Shipping, and Air Lines on pages 78-87. For Express Companies, see pages 78-79.

WEIGHTS, MEASURES, AND STANDARDS IN CANADA

The Weights and Measures Act, R.S.C. 1952, Chapter 292, Sections 9, 12 and 13, establishes the standards of length, weight and capacity for Canada. Multiples or fractions in addition to those shown below can be found by referring to Sections 9, 10, 11, 12 and 13. The standard measure of length is the yard; one third of the yard is the foot; the twelfth part of the foot is an inch; and the cord contains one hundred and twenty-eight cubic feet. The standard measure of weight is the pound (avoirdupois); one-sixteenth of the pound is an ounce (437½ grains); one seven thousandth of the pound is a grain; a cental or hundred weight is one hundred pounds; a ton is two thousand pounds; an ounce troy is four hundred and eighty grains. The standard measure of capacity, for liquids or otherwise, is the gallon that contains ten Canadian standard pounds weight of distilled water weighed in dry air against brass weights of density 0.30346 of a pound per cubic inch with the water and air at sixty-two degrees Fahrenheit and the barometer at thirty inches. The quart contains one-fourth of the gallon; the pint contains one-eighth of the gallon; a bushel contains eight gallons; and the hundred and sixtieth part of the gallon by volume is a fluid ounce.

IMPERIAL MEASURE

The gallon, sometimes known as the "Imperial Gallon," contains 277.42 cubic inches. This compares with the American gallon of 231 cubic inches (liquid) and 268.80 cubic inches (dry). The more common comparison between liquid gallons places the Canadian about 20% greater in volume than the U.S. The common conversion fraction is 6 to 5 in favour of the Canadian gallon.

MEASUREMENT OF SHIP TONNAGE

Followed by the British Board of Trade; applying to all ships in the British Merchant Service, including Canadian registered vessels.

GROSS TONNAGE is the unit of volume containing 100 cubic feet in the internal volume of a vessel under the tonnage deck to which is added: (1) the 'tween deck space, if any, above the tonnage deck. (2) the volume of permanently closed-in spaces above the upper deck available for cargo stores, or for passengers and crew and (3) any excess of hatchways.

NET OR REGISTER TONNAGE. The Net or Register Tonnage is the Gross Tonnage as found above less deductions for crew space, stores, navigation spaces, allowance for propelling power and other deductions allowable under the Merchant Shipping Act.

DEADWEIGHT TONNAGE is the amount of cargo, equipment and effects on board, and is expressed in tons of 2240 lbs. each; or alternatively it is the difference in the displacement at a given draft and the displacement of the vessel "lightship" with water in boilers to working level and ready for steam but with none of the above mentioned items on board.

ELECTRICAL MEASURES

UNIT FOR THE MEASURE OF:
 Volt..... Electromotive Force (E.M.F.) or Electrical Pressure = the electromotive force that steadily applied to a conductor whose resistance is one ohm will produce a current of one ampere.
 Ohm..... Resistance = the resistance offered to the passage of a current of electricity by a thread of mercury 106 cm. long and 1 sq. mm. cross section at the temperature of melting ice.
 Ampere..... Current = the current 1 volt will drive through 1 ohm.
 Coulomb..... Quantity = 1 ampere flowing for 1 second of time.
 Microfarad.... Capacity = one-millionth of a coulomb at 1 volt E.M.F.
 Joule..... Work = energy required to drive 1 ampere through 1 ohm = 0.73756 foot-pound.
 (Energy is the ability to do work).
 Watt..... Power = 1 joule acting for 1 second = 44 foot-pounds per minute.
 746 Watts = 1 horsepower.
 Henry..... Induction = when the E.M.F. in the circuit is 1 volt while the inducing current varies at the rate of 1 amp. per sec.

TRUST COMPANIES AND LOAN COMPANIES IN CANADA

Trust Companies act as Executors, Trustees and Administrators under wills, or by appointment as Trustees under marriage or other settlements, as Agents or Attorney in the management of estates of the living, and as Fiscal Agent for municipalities and companies. A few companies accept appointments as Authorized Trustees in Bankruptcy. Some Trust Companies receive funds and deposits for guaranteed investments, and the loaning of such trust funds is restricted by law to securities authorized by the Trustee Act. The loaning of company funds is not so restricted.

The principal function of Loan Companies is the loaning of funds on first mortgage security, the money thus made available for development purposes being obtained mainly by the sale of debentures to the investing public and by Savings Department deposits.

THE TRADE MARKS ACT

1-2 Eliz. II Chap. 49

by CECIL C. KENT F.P.T.I.C. of

Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys and Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg.

(1) WHAT A TRADE MARK IS:—"Trade Mark" means a mark so used by someone as to distinguish the wares or services he sells, leases, hires or performs, from those of others. There are four kinds:

- (i) "General" marks: These, here so designated, are the most prevalent. Usually words including slogans, designs, and labels, they also sometimes consist of the distinctive surface treatment upon an article or its container, colour combination and arrangement for instance. Such a trade mark may, perhaps on occasion also reside in the "get-up" of premises or a distinguishing characteristic of same—a landmark, of a snack chain for example.
- (ii) Certification Mark: May not be used by owner. Owner may only license it to approved users. The well-known design of a ball of wool for pure woolen goods is an example. Many such marks are being adopted in franchising such as FRUIT OF THE LOOM for various dry-goods lines. A mark originally used by the owner (as in the example just mentioned) can be changed into a Certification Mark, and vice versa.
- (iii) Distinguishing Guises: These are trade marks on the shape of wares, containers, or mode of wrapping or packaging wares when the shape or mode is to distinguish from others—often thought of as the get-up of the wares (in distinction to the use of this expression in connection with services (see Sec. 1 (i)).
- (iv) Proposed Marks: These are marks not yet in use but intended to be in virtue of an application for registration having been filed. By such filing, one obtains an option upon the mark (see also Sec. 17). Note that an application for a Certification Mark (Sec. 1 (ii)) can also be filed as a Proposed Mark.

(2) REGISTRATION:—From the above it is correct to infer that "common law" trade marks according to at least Sec. 1 (i) can exist, i.e., without being registered. Suit may be brought to prevent confusing use (Sec. 7 (b) and Sec. 6) by another, especially for the "passing off" by one trader of wares so marked by him as if the wares of another. However, only by registration can a registered owner secure exclusive rights to his mark for the whole of Canada and bring proceedings for "infringement". By this is meant, obtaining a Court Order to stop using a confusing trade mark whether adopted knowingly or not. The reason is clear. Anyone, before adopting a trade mark can have a search made. The records of the Trade Marks Office are inspectable, unlike with patents, right from the time of filing an application to its registration. Other important reasons for registration exist. See particularly under Secs. 14 and 15. The term of registration is fifteen years renewable as long as in use. Before Proposed trade marks mature to registration, use of the mark in Canada must be shown to have commenced.

(3) "USE" IN TRADE MARK LAW:—To be a trade mark, it must be used—except under Sec. 1 (iv). Use has a particular meaning in Trade Mark law which is—that the mark must be so associated with the wares to which it applies by (a) appearing thereon, (or else on the packages containing same), or (b) being in any way so associated with the wares that notice of such association is given at the time of the transfer of the property in or possession of such wares, in the normal course of trade, to whom such property or possession is transferred (Act, Sec. 4). As to services, trade mark use arises from its display in performing or advertising the services. The distribution of trademarked samples was held not to be "use" according to the Act. An invoice identifying the wares by the trade mark was held "use."

(4) MAKING KNOWN:—If a trade mark is not used in Canada, it can be registered by a foreigner who has used it in a Country of the Union (see Sec. 9) on the basis of his having made it "well known" in Canada by (A) distribution of the wares in Canada, or (B)

advertisement of the wares or services in association with the mark (i) in printed publications circulated in Canada in ordinary commerce or (ii) by radio or TV received in Canada among potential dealers or users of such wares or services, (Act, Sec. 5). Being well-known locally in Canada has been held insufficient. It appears to be sound practice for such as well-known U.S. and U.K. retailers, hotels, etc., to secure trade mark registration in Canada of their firm-names as far as possible.

(5) ADOPTIVELY REGISTRABLE TRADE MARKS:—Under this heading is meant here those trade marks which qualify for registration promptly following commencement of use or making well-known in Canada. To be so registrable, the mark must not be "primarily merely" (generally, "principally and only") the name or surname of one who is living or has died in the last thirty years. Further it must not, as depicted, written or sounded, be either clearly descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive in English or French of the character or quality of the wares or services, or the conditions of, or the persons employed in their production, or of their place of origin. In addition, it must not be the name in any language of the wares or services, (Act Sec. 12 (1).)

Thus FORMO was found to be a surname on reference to a Canadian telephone directory and was refused registration. A word like JUICY would be "clearly descriptive" for apples. Misspelling would not make it registrable. GREAT SHAKES for a home milkshake package is by contrast memorable, suggestible, hence registrable.

(6) DISTINCTIVENESS:—Any contemplated departures from "use" as set forth under Sec. 3 should be discussed with experienced trade mark agents since the vital quality of "distinctiveness", the sine qua non of a trade mark, can be lost in many ways—and the trade mark absorbed into the common language. However, the Act provides that marks which cannot be registered promptly following the commencement of use as there described, may be registered when they can be proved by acceptable evidence to have become distinctive of the associated wares or services in the public mind. Thus, WEAREVER cookware, FORSYTH shirts, etc., are registered trade marks, (Act 12 (2).) Distinctiveness so acquired is often called "secondary meaning". Distinguishing guise trade marks (see Sec. 1 (iii)) can also only be registered when they have become distinctive, and then only provided the distinguishing characteristics for which an exclusive right is sought do not interfere with any utilitarian features that could limit unreasonably any art or industry.

And if a clearly descriptive mark has been registered in its country of origin, it will be registrable in Canada provided it is "not without distinctive character having regard to all the circumstances. . ." (Act Sec. 14).

(7) WHO MAY REGISTER:—(A) The person who first (i) uses the mark in Canada, (ii) makes it well known in Canada (provided he has used it in a Country of the Union—see Sec. 9), or (iii) filed a "Proposed Application" (Sec. 1 (iv)) provided it is not confusing with any (i) "trade-name" (firm-name) used in Canada or (ii) trade mark as discussed in Sec. 10. (B) The person who has applied for registration of his mark in Canada, provided (i) he has filed application for registration in his Country of Origin, (however the foreign application must mature to registration before the Canadian registration will be allowed to issue), (ii) the mark is not confusing as outlined in Sec. 10, and (iii) the mark has been used in some country. (C) The person owning the registered trade mark described in the last paragraph of Sec. 6 if not confusable with a prior Canadian registration.

(8) PROHIBITED MARKS:—No one may adopt a scandalous, obscene or immoral mark, nor one which is mistakable for the Royal or Vice-Regal arms, crest, etc., or words suggesting the approval or patronage thereof, or the arms, flag, emblem, uniform badge, etc., of Canada or of any province, municipality, university, military, police, or public authority or force thereof, or the well-known Red Cross (or these words) or "United Nations", etc. (Act Sec. 9). Permission for specific use is however provided for. No mark, or one misleadingly similar, which by ordinary and bona fide common usage has become recognized in Canada as designating kind, quality, quantity, destination, value, origin, or production date of wares or services may be adopted as a trade mark for wares of the same general class, or misleadingly used (Act Sec. 10).

(9) THE INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION:—This is the treaty referred to under the section headed "International Priority Protection" in the article on patents. In the Trade Marks Act it is referred to as "the Union". The full name is "The Union (or International) Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property". For trade marks, the priority period referred to from the filing date of the first application is six months, not twelve as for patents. "Country of Origin" where referred to in this article, or the Act, means the Union country in which the applicant (i) has a real business establishment, or (ii) if none, had domicile, citizenship or nationality.

(10) TRADE MARK OFFICE PROCEDURE:—This, undertaken following the filing of an application, is mainly to determine whether the mark is distinctive (see Secs. 5 and 6) which includes being not confusing with a prior application or registration. In many cases slight differences are enough to distinguish. As to surnames, when the mark is a frequent surname and also a common name, like SWAN, such have been registered. Since this example is in addition a rebus, the examiner would also search to make sure that no prior registration or application based on earlier use was on file for the design of a swan. If no objection is made the application is approved.

(11) ADVERTISEMENT AND OPPOSITION:—On approval the applicant is notified that the application may be advertised in the weekly Trade Marks Journal. Upon its exposure therein anyone wishing to oppose on the grounds provided (Act Sec. 37) may do so within one month from the advertising date. Opposition proceedings are beyond the scope of this article. However the Registrar decides in favor of the Applicant or the Opposer having regard to all the facts. From his decision appeal may be made to the Exchequer Court of Canada. Generally speaking he finds in favor of the Applicant in cases of low originality or/and relatively short use by the Opposer, or if in such cases the wares or services differ only slightly, i.e., AIRFOILS cf. AIRCOILS, both in the building products field; BLUE CHIP for alcoholic beverages cf. the same words for business-promoting gift warrants. By contrast, application for registration of TABLOID as applied to radio entertainment and education programs was rejected on the opposition of Burroughs Wellcome & Co. as confusing with its long and widely known nutritive and medicinal preparations of this name.

(12) REGISTRATION AND CONTINUED USE:—Valid registration depends on continued use thereafter, and if an application is refused on a registration which it is believed may have been abandoned, the Registrar may be asked to require by Notice sent to the registered owner, an affidavit as to whether the mark is still in use, and if not, when it was last in use. If an unsatisfactory reply, or none is received, the registration will be expunged, or amended perhaps so as no longer to be an obstacle.

(13) TRANSFER:—Trade marks may be assigned. If the mark is registered, the assignment may be registered upon receipt by the Registrar of evidence satisfactory to him of the same and certain other particulars (Act Sec. 47). Great care must be exercised however that the right of exclusive use goes with any such assignment, since distinctiveness may be lost in various ways, as for example through confusing use contrary to the Act by two persons.

(14) REGISTERED USERS:—Licences made in connection with certification mark registrations (see Sec 1 (ii)) need not be approved or recorded at the Trade Marks Office, although they will be accepted. However, the only safe form of "owner-usable" trade mark licensing, is presently believed to be strictly via all the specific "permitted use" provisions of the Act (Sec. 49), which include that this can be done only after registration of the trade mark. The Act (Sec. 50) implies that trade marks licensed otherwise than under the Act are invalid unless (a) so licensed before or within one year after July 1st, 1954 and between related companies, (b) the Exchequer Court declares that to hold such a mark licensed between unrelated companies valid will not adversely affect a third party who had acquired existing rights prior to the Act, or (c) the licensing provisions were conformed to by July 1st, 1955. The licensing provisions importantly include the submission to, and approval of the proposed licensing conditions between the registered owner and the licensee (called the "registered user") by the Registrar, and for the enforcement thereof. These will on request be preserved in secrecy, and are the only records of the Trade Marks Office relative to applications filed which are so preserved. In this connection, one instance of a galaxy of trade mark situations which may be prevented by full disclosure and consultation with trade mark specialists before a mark is adopted, is when the Canadian subsidiary of a foreign parent, licensed under the basic trade mark(s) of the latter, innocently has local trade mark modifications effected, and starts using the same without it being realized that this may place both the Canadian parent trade and the modernized version thereof in various degrees of jeopardy. For it is arguable that this course amounts to a constructive license by the parent to illegal use by the subsidiary, of the re-designed trade mark.

(15) LEGAL PROCEEDINGS:—Any Court may order that trademarked wares imported into Canada or distributed therein, or which are about to be, and which infringe the registered Canadian trade mark of another, may be put in custody until the issue is tried, with the Complainant putting up the required security for costs and damages.

The Act has two key sections expressive of the rights enjoyed by the owner of a valid registered trade mark; one, Sec. 19 creating "the exclusive right to the use throughout Canada of such trade mark in respect of such wares or services"; the other, Sec. 20, defining the offence of infringement of such rights "by a person not entitled to its use under this Act, who sells, distributes or advertises wares or services in association with a confusing trade mark or trade name". However, anyone can make bona fide use of (a) his personal name as a trade name, or (b) the geographical name of his place of business or any accurate description of the character or quality of his wares or services, except as a trade mark, and provided such is not likely to depreciate the good will value of the trade mark—which depreciation, in any manner, is also forbidden by any one, expressly under Sec. 22.

Further, if a person, in good faith is found to have been using a confusing (unregistered) trade mark or trade name before the filing date of an application for its registration by another (also in good faith) and a Court considers it "not contrary to the public interest to permit continued use of the first confusing mark or trade name within a defined territorial area concurrently with the use of the registered trade mark", it may so order on fair terms including a specified distinction between the marks, provided that the first user applies to register within three months thereafter.

From this section, notwithstanding its brevity, it is believed that some of the advantages of registration will be glimpsed, but with the heavy caution implicit in the provisions that "the registration of a trade mark is invalid if (a) the trade mark was not registrable at the date of registration; (b) the trade mark is not distinctive at the time proceedings bringing the validity of the registration into question are commenced; or (c) the trade mark has been abandoned; and . . . it is invalid if the applicant for registration was not the person entitled to secure the registration" (Act Sec. 18 subject to Sec. 17 which on technical grounds is beyond the scope of this article).

(16) MISCELLANEOUS:—Although several alternative trade marks are often filed as Proposed Trade Marks (see Sec. 1 (iv)) to test registrability (and this is sometimes recommended) nevertheless, it is often prudent to make various kinds of search before any filing, according to the circumstances. For instance; the fact a trade mark is abandoned does not mean it is not being used—and that the owner of it will not oppose when it is advertised (see Sec. 12). Or it may have been "made known" in Canada (see Sec. 4) for which reason a preliminary U.K. and/or U.S. search perhaps including common law trade marks there (of which there are very many) should be made. Searches are also sometimes advisably instituted among Corporation names in the Companies Branch at Ottawa, or in the corresponding branches of the provincial governments. Of course the most usual first search is that made at the Canadian Trade Marks Office.

In the sometimes very thorny problem of choosing a trade mark (or/and a trade name) many considerations enter. Space only permits reference to two: (i) the relative advantages and disadvantages of a trade mark which is included in the trade name, for instance "Shell" Oil Company, cf. "Imperial" Oil Company (ESSO); (ii) the wider inherent legal trade mark rights in coined words like KODAK cf. suggestive marks like FRIGIDAIRE, which latter are however, in view of their meaningful expressiveness, much less expensive to promote.

(17) PRINCIPAL FEES:—

For filing a trade mark application $25.00

For filing application for extension of wares or services 15.00
On application for registration as a registered user 20.00
On requesting advertisement 15.00
On filing opposition 10.00
On filing opposition evidence 15.00

(18) CONCLUSION:—The foregoing article is only intended as an outline of the Act, and is scarcely that as regards the case law standing behind the Act. It should therefore not be regarded as definitive of either the Act or the law, in regard to which only those who specialize in the subject and are registered as agents to practise at least in the Canadian Trade Marks Office, should be consulted. Copies of the Act may be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, price 35c and communications relating to trade mark applications should be addressed "The Registrar of Trade Marks, Ottawa".

THE INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS ACT

R.S. 1952 Ch. 150

by CECIL C. KENT, F.P.T.I.C. of

Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys & Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg

(1) INTRODUCTION:—The "miscellaneous" and indefinite extent of "industrial design" penetrates into all three of the other forms of industrial property statute law—patents, copyrights, and trade marks. This is what has made it so intractable to tidy legislation everywhere.

(2) WHAT INDUSTRIAL DESIGN IS:—There is no definition of this in the Act. By reference to its penal sections it has been concluded, by inference, that it must mean the "ornamenting of any article . . . to which an industrial design may be applied or attached". This wording has been admitted as very unclear and unsatisfactory. Nevertheless, until recently, it was construed literally—virtually for example, as by the application of "show-wood" to mass-produced chesterfields.

In three recent cases in the Exchequer Court of Canada however, a more "organic" interpretation to the above quoted words was given. In the last of these (Cimon Ltd vs. Bench Made Furniture Corporation) a most searching judgment was delivered in which the antecedents of the present Act were traced to their origin—namely to the comprehensive 19th Century definition of "industrial design" in Canada's first Act giving protection in this field, and which still stands up to the needs of modern Industrial Designers.

To be a registrable industrial design, it must not have been in use to the proprietor's knowledge at the time he adopted it, and he must so declare in his application. Also, a design is only an industrial design when more than fifty reproductions are made, or are intended to be. This does not include the units forming a single set. Industrial design subject-matter also includes printed paper hangings, carpets, floor cloths, or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, textile piece goods, or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, and machine made lace.

(3) THE SPECIFICATION:—Since, unlike patents, industrial design specifications do not include claims, the organization of the supporting disclosure, and its scope, depends very much on the subject-matter sought to be protected. To specify color, or texture of materials for instance would probably introduce a limitation to these characteristics. Moreover, the Registrar is subject to regulations, to attempt the avoidance of which may sometimes use up valuable time running against the twelve months of public use referred to in the next following section.

The examination is to insure that the subject-matter "does not so closely resemble any other design already registered as to be confounded therewith", and is not contrary to public morality and order. The subject-matter must also be sufficiently unitary to constitute an industrial design as applied an article. Simplicity of design is no barrier. However, applications have been rejected on a holding of entire absence of design subject-matter as such (meaning in our experience, the presentation of nothing but pure utility). This of course is not meant to convey that a machine tool, a tire or the like cannot be design-protected. Very many registrations issue on such as these, as well, for contrast, as on dresses, jewelry, etc.

With fair frequency, for reasonably sufficient protection, several registrations may be needed, either for (i) variably styled (or stylable) parts of a single article, or (ii) several stylistic variations of the complete article within its broad "design concept".

(4) REGISTRATION:—In order to be protected, the application for registration of the design must not only be filed, but must be actually registered, "within one year from the publication thereof in Canada".

Industrial design applications carry the same six months priority from the filing date in the first country belonging to The International Convention for Protection of Industrial Property as is referred to in Sec. 9 of the article on trade marks—but see the section headed "International Priority Protection" in the article on patents, for fuller treatment.

(5) INFRINGEMENT AND PENALTIES:—No one, without the written licence of the registered proprietor, may, with respect to either the whole or part of the design, apply it, or a fraudulent imitation of it, for purposes of sale, or the ornamenting of any article, or publish, sell, expose for sale, or use, any article to which such design or a fraudulent imitation thereof has been applied. Anyone who does so is liable for damages, costs and a penalty of up to $120. Action for such relief must be brought within twelve months from the cause thereof.

(6) MARKING:—"In order that any design may be protected" under the Act, it must be marked with the name of the proprietor on the article to which his design applies, together with the year of registration, and the letters Rd. (Act, Sec. 14 (1)). If a woven fabric, these marks must appear "on one end thereof", otherwise "at the edge or upon any convenient part thereof". Alternatively however, the marking requirements may apparently be met by an attached label "with the proper marks thereon" (Id. (2)). Marking as registered any article for which no design has been registered, or on which the registration has expired, carries the liability to a penalty of up to $30.00 for each offence.

(7) TERM OF PROTECTION:—The term of registration is five years, renewable for up to a further five years, with a maximum of ten years. However, during this period the design may qualify for "permanent" registered protection as a Distinguishing Guise trade mark described at Sec. 1 (iii) and at the end of Sec. 6, of the writer's article on trade marks, through having acquired "secondary meaning". Of importance also to keep in mind is the fact that, while an industrial design registration is only obtainable on the ornamental features of the product as visual ornamentation, sometimes patentable utility is also embodied in such ornamentation. For example many such common articles as chairs and tables may be patentably new, useful, improved and design-registrably ornamental—hence protectable in both these ways. The Ronson lighter is an example of the "triplicate" protection discussed in this section.

(8) DRAWINGS:—While good photographs are acceptable by the Office for industrial design application purposes, the Act and Rules expressly specify drawings and their dimensions, etc. Only black and white line drawings are clearly reproducible and sufficiently durable for their purposes. In the celebrated case referred to in Sec. 2 the Plaintiffs' registered design was illustrated by photos. However, it was noted by the Court that Counsel for both sides agreed that the photographs were sufficient, and added that "that question is not therefore in issue in this case although it does appear to me to raise a problem of some difficulty".

In view of such words, skilfully executed drawings in exact accordance with the Act and Rules are strongly recommended. Every aspect of the design should be revealed. The drawings should be accurately proportioned and shaded. Line-shading, stippling, and zippertone or the like may be employed. Since industrial designs in a large proportion of cases are the creations of professional industrial designers who are either good artists themselves or employ such persons, most patent agents will gladly instruct them as to what views precisely appear to be required. Otherwise the agent's own patent draftsman should be permitted to do the job for best results.

(9) DESIGN-CLIENT RELATIONS:—Subject to valid agreement, including one which is not in restraint of trade, the industrial designer has copyright in his submissions to the client, whether in two- or three-dimensional form. There is frequently conspicuous misunderstanding on both sides as to their respective rights. Accordingly more professional designers would be well advised to seek advice in the formulation of a flexible policy, and general forms of agreement suited to the classes of commission solicited.

The designer is entitled for instance to protect himself against depreciation of his reputation by permitting the cheapening of designs he has sold and which are known to be his. Therefore, one clause in his contract should provide that he may exercise suitable control in this respect. Behind this of course stands the need to agree on whether he is merely selling the design, or selling his copyright to it—even then the design may not be debased to the designer's disadvantage.

The confidential nature of graphic submissions disclosed should be written into the contract. Practices should be established to prove delivery and acceptance of creative proposals as far as seems practicable and necessary.

(10) CONCLUSION:—This article is only intended as an outline, and should not be taken as definitive of the Act or the law; wherefore a registered patent agent should be consulted. The Act is very unevenly drafted and has been harshly criticized for its shortcomings by the Courts. Nevertheless, as we have shown, in its central provision, i.e., what it is intended to protect, the Act has now been very considerably updated—and less by the stretching or distortion of inadequate language as by a reasonable construction of which in fact it was always capable.

It must be repeated that industrial designs, trade marks, patents, and copyrights frequently intermingle in various ways. An industrial design is a trade mark also when used "for the purpose of distinguishing, or so as to distinguish, wares or services". Just as imaginative word trade marks serve to make the product sound, and be thought of, as more than what it is (HALO shampoo, T-N-T popcorn . . .), so successful industrial designs make the product look like what it is for "only more so". In a word, as David Riesman, the well-known sociologist has said "glamour in packaging and advertising of products has replaced price competition"—a statement which can hardly be challenged.

CANADIAN PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS

by CECIL C. KENT, F.P.T.I.C. of Cecil C. Kent & Associates, Patent Attorneys and Trade Mark Agents, Toronto and Winnipeg.

PATENTABLE SUBJECT MATTER:

A Canadian patent is intended to be granted, in general, to the first inventor of any made thing, including a machine, or a process, method, or composition of ingredients, which is new and useful, or is an improvement in any of these.

The controlling statute is The Patent Act, (R.S.C. 1952, c.203). The term of exclusive use given by it is 17 years. During this period the protected subject matter must be marked "Patented, 1968" (or as the case may be). Penalties are provided for failure to do so (Sec. 80).

Grants of Letters Patent for inventions are assignable wholly or partly. But an assignment is null and void if not recorded before a subsequent assignment to another person. Exclusive royalty licences must be recorded.

PATENTS PENDING:

Between the time of making an application for patent, and the issue of the actual patent, the owner is said to have a "patent pending", and may so mark the invention, or else with the equivalent expression "patent applied for". Pending applications are secret. If a patent is refused it will so remain. The sole exceptions: If the number and title of a patent in a named foreign country can be supplied, the Patent Office will advise by a simple yes or no whether there is a corresponding Canadian application pending.

MANUFACTURE BEFORE PATENT ISSUE:

The average time which a patent application remains pending is two-three years. It is not infringement for another to manufacture the invention during this time. Since however the application is secret, such a notice as "patents pending" may be a useful warning. For good cause, such as fear of infringement, a Special Order may be obtained. By this means the prosecution of an application may be speeded up.

What has been made by another before patent issue, can be used and sold after issue without infringement. Therefore, whether the applicant should (a) allow his application to take its normal course, (b) seek a Special Order, or/and (c) keep his invention secret until the patent issues, will depend upon the invention, i.e., whether it is a low-cost short life consumer item, or a high-priced piece of capital equipment for instance.

Every country has its own patent laws, and all differ in certain ways. An inventor need not file his application in Canada first. He must however apply here before his invention has been in public use or on sale in Canada, or described in any patent or publication printed anywhere, for more than two years. He must also apply before a patent has issued to him upon it in any country, unless he filed in Canada within 12 months after filing his first foreign application. (In Italy for instance, patents issue automatically a few weeks after filing. In most countries where an examination for inventive merit is made, substantially more than a year usually elapses before issue.)

INTERNATIONAL PRIORITY PROTECTION:

Canada is a member of the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property. Most countries are signatories to this treaty including the U.K., U.S., all Europe except Albania, Japan, U.S.S.R., Mexico, Brazil, Australia and N.Z., etc. While not included, India and Pakistan have substantially similar agreements with Canada. New countries are continually joining. Its main provision is that if the first application is made in any member country, the applicant may by filing a corresponding patent application within the following twelve months in all other such additional member-countries as he wishes, obtain the same effective filing date in such additional member countries, as he would have had if he had filed such applications when he filed his first one. However, this privilege does not over-ride the public use, sale, or printed publication provisions of the last above paragraph.

PATENT TO A LATER INVENTOR:

To encourage public disclosure of inventions, or promptest possible application for patent, the Act provides that, notwithstanding what has been stated above, a patentee who is not the first inventor will not have his patent voided because another person can prove that he knew of, or even used, the same invention before the patentee, unless (i) that other person can prove he disclosed or used it in such a way that it became available to the public, or (ii) he had in fact filed a Canadian application within such a period that it should have come into conflict with the patentee's application so that priority could be awarded according to the Act, or (iii) such other person had filed abroad under the International Convention (explained above) before a patent had issued to the patentee, or (iv) the other person applied for patent within twelve months after the patent was issued to the patentee.

Any person whose patent application is refused in view of the invention having been covered by a Canadian patent granted under the Act, is to be refused unless the applicant, within a time set by the Commissioner of Patents, commences action to set aside the prior patent so far as it covers the invention in question.

IMPEACHMENT AND DECLARATORY JUDGMENT:

The Attorney General or any person interested may ask the Exchequer Court to declare void a patent, or any claim therein. And if any person has reasonable cause to believe that any process or article that, in general, he docs, or wishes to, make, use, or sell, might be alleged by any patentee to infringe his patent, such person may ask the Exchequer Court for a declaration that it does not or would not do so. However the person moving for the declaration asked must put up security for costs.

NATURE OF PATENT APPLICATION:

The Act and Rules require that the invention be fully and correctly disclosed in a specification, and if possible drawings as prescribed. In addition, important case-law influences this highly specialized task. Briefly, the structure, operation, and principle of a machine must be stated, including the best mode in which the inventor has contemplated the application of said principle. The description must be sufficiently clear to enable any person skilled in the area of the invention to make or use it. In a process, the various steps and their sequence must be set forth so as to distinguish the invention from others. The specification must particularly indicate, and at its end distinctly claim in explicit terms, the part, or things, improvement(s) or combination of these, of which the invention is believed to consist. If however any material statement is untrue, or the specification and drawings contain more or less than is necessary for their purpose, and this is wilfully misleading, the patent is void.

NATURE OF PATENT OFFICE EXAM:

After determination as to its class, the Examiner (one of a staff of some 170 mainly engineers and chemists) studies the claims of each application against the "prior art" (mainly prior patents, but also magazines and textbook, etc. publications) to see if such claims "read on" such prior art. To the extent they do so, obviously they fail to define anything new. He then reports his findings to the inventor's patent agent who in turn studies the cited prior art and either argues its irrelevance, or attempts to re-draft the claims so as to re-define what still appears to be patentable subject-matter.

SCOPE OF PATENTS:

It is important to understand that the Examiner does not compare the claims of prior related patents still in force to see if they read on the application he is evaluating. His duty is only to decide whether there is patentable "novelty" in the application over what prior patents, texts, etc., have described. It must therefore be explained that a prior patent still in force, especially its claim or claims, are sometimes broad enough to include the improvements described in a later perfectly valid patent. Then, if the invention of that later patent is manufactured, it may infringe the prior patent, and such infringement can be stopped.

Accordingly it is more correct to regard a patent not necessarily as an exclusive right to make, use, or sell the invention it protects, but to stop others from doing so. For example, when Bell invented the telephone, his patent "dominated" many improvement patents. And rightly, since but for such a basic patent, the telephone might not have been available to improve upon. Some licensed or assigned to Bell; for of course he likewise could not use the improvement-patents of others.

PRELIMINARY, INFRINGEMENT & VALIDITY SEARCHES:

Searches can be conducted at the Patent Office, and logically, when a new idea is conceived in germinal form, the first sort of search should be made to see if a patent of any scope appears obtainable. Since the existence of a dominating patent as described in the last above section is not too frequently encountered, a preliminary search is often enough, and the experienced patent agent can advise according to circumstances. The manufacturer, distributor, or importer however, often comes across lines which he knows he cannot patent, not being the inventor, but would like to take up. For such as these, the patent agent is often called upon to make an infringement, or "right to make" search. Unlike the preliminary search which can span patents and publications of several countries and covers the field regardless of time, the infringement search is made "in depth" only among those patents still in force in the country in which it is desired to make, use, or sell. Then, if an obstructing patent is found, again according to circumstances, a validity search may be embarked upon to see if it really ought to have been issued.

DIVISIONAL APPLICATIONS:

A patent is supposed to issue for one invention only (though several are often shown and described). And if the patent does issue for more than one invention, it is not invalid on that account.

To minimize initial costs, what in fact amounts to several distinct inventions are often included in an application. Usually the examiner specifies the lines of division in his first report, and requires that only one be elected for further examination. However, the non-elected remainder need not be "divided out" for filing as separate applications until the patent on the elected species is about to issue, provided the application was not allowed to lapse, and then renewed (as is permitted for cause shown) within a year. In that event, dividing-out, and the filing of a separate application for the additional subject-matter must be effected within the time allowed for revival.

PROVISIONAL PROTECTION OF INVENTIONS:

Provided an inventor only intends to patent in Canada, a "caveat" may be filed upon it at the Patent Office describing the invention as fully as possible. According to the Act if, during the year following its deposit, another files a patent application with which the caveat interferes, the Commissioner gives the caveator three months to file a patent application whereupon conflict proceedings described below will be instituted.

It should be particularly understood that the filing of a caveat gives no official international priority protection—and particularly no U.S. priority. Hence, if as in many cases the invention has greater commercial potential abroad, anyone who relies on the protection of his caveat and discloses his invention may easily lose his U.S. or other foreign patent rights. In contrast, by an expertly prepared British Provisional Patent Application, priority for one year may be obtained in Canada, the U.S., and all countries of the International Convention referred to above. Further information as to how the commercial prospects for an invention may be inexpensively tested by this means, or time gained to complete and prove an invention's merit, is outside the scope of this brief article, but may be obtained from any registered patent attorney or agent.

CONFLICT BETWEEN RIVAL APPLICATIONS:

Canada is one of the few countries that, in general, grant patents to the first inventor, and not the first applicant. However, in a conflict between co-pending applicants, the first to file appears usually to win. When a conflicting situation is established, both applicants file affidavits stating the date when they (i) conceived the subject-matter in dispute, (ii) made the first drawing, (iii) made first disclosure, and how, and (iv) took successive steps, and the nature thereof, to develop and protect the invention up to the filing date.

The Commissioner considers the affidavits, and decides to which is to be awarded priority. He then sends a copy of the affidavits of each to the other. Appeal from his decision lies by way of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

CHEMICAL PATENTS:

If the invention relates to substances prepared or produced by chemical processes, and intended for food or medicine, the substance itself may not be claimed as such, but only when prepared by the particular method or process essentially as particularly described and claimed. However, merely mixing ingredients is not chemistry, so in that case the product as such can be claimed.

REISSUE AND DISCLAIMER:

If a patent is defective or inoperative due to (i) insufficient description, or (ii) claiming more or less than was new, and the error was innocent and due to inadvertence, accident, or mistake, then, if the patent is surrendered within four years after issue, an amended patent will be issued if on re-examination this is justified, for the balance of the term. If reissue is refused, the original patent remains intact, and the record of the reissue proceedings remains secret. A disclaimer may be filed any time, and is for the purpose of removing any claim to invention which subsequently has appeared unjustified, provided it was innocently made in the first place by mistake, accident, or inadvertence.

COMPULSORY LICENSING:

The Commissioner of Patents may at any time require a patentee to transmit a return stating whether the invention is being worked commercially in Canada, where and by whom, and if not, why not. Failure to respond is deemed an admission that it is not being so worked.

The Attorney General, or any "person interested" may at any time after three years after the grant complain to the Commissioner that the patent rights have been abused, and ask for relief—in effect an order for a licence to manufacture, paying the patentee a reasonable royalty.

The Commissioner in considering the complaint, takes into account such factors as (i) the capability of the complainant to supply the public with the invention, (ii) whether, by reason of the nature of the invention, enough time has elapsed to permit Canadian manufacture, (and if he finds there has not, he will allow the complaint to stand over for an appointed period), (iii) whether the patentee has imported the invention instead of making it in Canada, (iv) whether he has attached unfair conditions to working of the invention in Canada, (v) etc.

The compulsory licensing provisions are expressly for encouraging and securing the greatest possible manufacture of patented inventions in Canada. The Commissioner has wide powers under these lengthy provisions, including revocation of the patent if necessary.

ATOMIC ENERGY; GOVERNMENT PATENT USE AND OWNERSHIP:

Any application believed to relate to atomic energy is first communicated by the Commissioner of Patents to the Atomic Energy Control Board. The Government of Canada may use any patented invention, paying reasonable compensation therefor, and subject to appeal by the patentee to the Exchequer Court for higher compensation.

Any invention "in instruments or munitions of war" made by a Crown or Crown Corporation servant etc., acting within the scope of his duty as such, must, if so requested, assign all benefits in it to the Government.

An inventor other than such as just mentioned, may also assign as stated, and be entitled to compensation. Persons making assignments or having knowledge thereof, are deemed to have information entrusted in confidence. Other provisions deal with secrecy. Sec. 15 provides that the Governor in Council, if satisfied that an invention relating to any instrument or munition of war, described in any specified application for patent not assigned to the Minister of National Defence, is vital to the defence of Canada, and that the publication of a patent therefor should be prevented in order to preserve the safety of the State, may order that such invention and application and all the documents relating thereto shall be treated for all purposes of this section as if the invention had been assigned or agreed to be assigned to the Minister of National Defence.

FALSE MARKING:

A fine of up to $200.00 or imprisonment or both is provided for marking as patented, with intent to deceive, that which is patented by another, or which is not patented (Sec. 81). Anyone who "in relation to the purposes of the Act, knowing it to be false, makes any false representation", is liable to a fine up to $500.00, or to imprisonment or both (Sec. 82). False use of expressions such as "patents pending" are suggested as within this provision, although no case has yet fallen to be decided.

INFRINGEMENT OF PATENT:

The patent owner may bring this action in the Exchequer Court of Canada, or the Provincial Courts, and obtain an injunction, delivery up for, or destruction of infringing subject-matter, costs, and damages or an accounting. If he is unsuccessful, only the former can declare a patent void, although the latter can do so as against the particular defendant. Patent rights do not prevent use of the invention in a ship, aircraft or vehicle of any country entering Canada temporarily, and employed exclusively for its needs.

A patent can be held valid and infringed, or not infringed, void as just stated, or invalid. Also, if containing two or more claims, one or more can be held valid and the rest invalid. Effect is then given to the patent as if it contained only the valid claim(s). A patent is presumed valid unless declared otherwise. The onus of proving this is on the defendant, and has repeatedly been held a heavy onus to discharge. Patents are upheld as far as possible.

APPLICATIONS OF JOINT INVENTORS, ASSIGNEES:

If more than one person inventively contributes to the actual invention, the application should be filed by such persons jointly. If the whereabouts of a co-inventor, or assignor is unknown, or if he refuses to apply or proceed, provisions exist to enable the other(s), or the assignee(s) to proceed without him. Joint inventors who are not under contract of service or the like to assign, should define their mutual rights and obligations, since, in the absence of agreement, each may work the invention independently, and legal uncertainties can also arise in the event of disagreement if assigning.

PRINCIPAL OFFICIAL FEES

Canadian patents have been printed since the issue of No. 445,931 in January, 1948. They can be obtained for one dollar. Photocopies can be obtained of older patents as indicated below.

On filing an application for patent.	$40.00
On grant of patent, payable within six months of allowance.	$70.00
On grant of patent, for printing, as part of the granting fee, for the first twenty five pages.	$20.00
On grant, an additional fee for printing as part of the granting fee, for each page over twenty-five.	$ 1.00
On lodging a caveat.	$10.00
On asking for a certified typewritten or photostat copy of patent with specification up to twenty pages excluding drawings.	$ 4.00

CONCLUSION:

All correspondence concerning patents should be addressed to The Commissioner of Patents, Ottawa. Applicants for patents are advised to retain a registered attorney or agent due to the specialized nature of the subject, and the fact that the validity and scope of a patent can depend materially upon this. Most are also registered to practise before the U.S. Patent Office. The patent law and practice of that country has not been included in this article, and is considerably more complex. The close economic ties between the two nations often make U.S. patents very important to Canadian resident inventors, which is another reason why only the advice of those authorized to practice before the Patent Office, should be sought.

The foregoing article is only an outline of the subject. It should not therefore be regarded as a definitive statement of either the Act or law. A list of registered patent agents for any area will be supplied by the Commissioner of Patents on request.

THE CANADIAN LAW OF COPYRIGHT

by HAROLD G. FOX, Q.C.

WHAT IS COPYRIGHT? Copyright, as its name implies, is merely the right to restrain copying. By the terms of the Canadian Copyright Act, which came into force on January 1st, 1924, copyright subsists in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work. The work must be original and its author must, at the date of its making, be a British subject, a citizen or subject of a foreign country which has adhered to the Berne Convention, or be resident within the British Dominions; and if in the case of a published work the work was first published within British dominions or in a country which has adhered to the Berne Convention. A work is deemed to be first published in such a country if published there and in some other country simultaneously. The last word is interpreted as allowing fourteen days interval between the publication in the two countries.

Publication means the issue of copies to the public. It does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art. Nor does the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art constitute publication of such works.

Copyright is defined by the Act as the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever, to perform, or in the case of a lecture to deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work or any substantial part thereof. Copyright as conferred by the statute includes the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish translations of the work, the sole right to convert from a dramatic work to a non-dramatic work, to convert from a non-dramatic work or an artistic work to a dramatic work, by way of performance in public or otherwise, to make records, perforated rolls, cinematograph films or other contrivances by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered; to reproduce, adapt and publicly present the work by cinematograph, to communicate it by radio communication, and to authorize any of these acts.

ORIGINALITY. The originality required by the statute relates to the expression of thought. The form in which the work is clothed should be original although the idea or concept upon which the work is based need have no originality whatsoever. Originality in copyright law means that the work must be in a form created by its author and must not be copied from any other work. An illustration of this principle may be furnished in simple terms by reference to copyright in paintings. An artist may paint a particular scene, let us say, in the Laurentian mountains. A second artist may set up his easel on exactly the same spot as the first artist and may paint exactly the same scene, as he sees it. Whatever similarity the two works may have is irrelevant. The second work is an original work and entitled to copyright. If, however, the second artist does not go to the scene itself, but paints his canvas from a view of the first artist's canvas, the second artist not only infringes the first artist's copyright, but is not entitled to copyright in his own work. The same principle, of course, applies to photographs.

In order to understand this principle it will be useful to refer to copyright in compilations and anthologies. An author may decide to write, as an example, a history of the Roman Empire. He cannot know that history other than by reading the sources, original and secondary. From these he compiles a work based upon the works of others, but to which he has lent an original character by his own mental labours, and is therefore entitled to copyright in that work. A second author may go to the same original and secondary sources and compile a like work. He is entitled to copyright in it and does not infringe the copyright of the first compiler provided he uses the first compiler's work fairly and only for checking the accuracy of his own without copying any substantial part of it.

LITERARY WORKS. Literary works are those which are expressed in print or writing such as books, maps, plans, tables and compilations. Copyright in a work includes the title of the work if that title is original and distinctive, but the mere taking of a title apart from any substantial part of a work does not constitute infringement. It is only when the title has become so far identified with a work as to mean that work and that work alone in the minds of the public, that such a taking can be restrained on the ground that the second work is passed off on the public as and for the first work.

DRAMATIC WORKS. Dramatic works include any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form or the combination of incidents represented give the work an original character. Copyright subsists not only in the actual words of the work but in the dramatic incidents created. In order to be protected as a dramatic work there must be some dramatic action. On this basis a dance step or piece of dramatic action may be protected by a written description of the acts of the performer. In that case there is a double copyright, one in the writing itself as a literary work and the other in the reproduction of the dance or drama, which is thus fixed in writing.

MUSICAL WORKS. Musical works are defined as any combination of melody and harmony, or either of them, printed, reduced to writing or otherwise graphically produced or reproduced. There is, therefore, no copyright in an impromptu until its notation has been fixed in writing or print by the composer. There then exists the right to restrain either its copying in printed form or its public performance.

ARTISTIC WORKS. Artistic works include works of painting, drawing, sculpture and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art and engravings and photographs. Engravings include etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints and other similar works not being photographs. An architectural work means any building or structure having an artistic character or design in respect of such character or design, or any model for such building or structure, but the protection is confined to the artistic character and design and does not extend to processes or methods of construction.

INDUSTRIAL DESIGNS. Certain works fall within the definition of artistic works but will not be subject to copyright owing to certain conditions. These are such works as are designs capable of being registered under the Industrial Design and Union Label Act, and used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by any industrial process. Designs which do not meet that definition are not industrial designs but artistic works and are subject to artistic copyright. A design is deemed to be used as a model or pattern to be multiplied by an industrial process when it is reproduced or intended to be reproduced in more than fifty single copies not together constituting a set or is to be applied to (1) printed paper hangings, (2) carpets, floor cloths or oil cloths manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces, (3) textile piece goods or textile goods manufactured or sold in lengths or pieces or (4) lace, not made by hand.

LITERARY OR ARTISTIC MERIT. In no case need the subject of copyright possess any degree of literary or artistic merit. It would be highly improper if copyright were to depend on the opinion of any court as to the presence or absence of such an elusive quality, depending solely on individual taste, value, or discretion. The writer of doggerel verse or the mystery novel is entitled to the same copyright as the winner of the Nobel prize in literature, and the author of the comic strip cartoon receives no less protection than do those whose works are hung in the galleries of the nation. In this regard the applicable maxim is De gustibus non disputandum.

IMMORAL WORKS. There is one minor qualification to the above remarks. The courts will not protect immoral, indecent, obscene, or blasphemous works. What falls within the scope of these terms is impossible of definition and must depend upon the susceptibilities and sensibilities of any court adjudicating upon the matter. Thus, thirty years ago Elinor Glynn's Three Weeks was held to be an obscene work disentitled to protection. Within the present decade Judge Wolsey, in the United States, promulgated his now famous decision holding that Joyce's Ulysses was not an immoral work and more recently, the High Court in England refused to find that Lawrence's Lady Chatterley's Lover was obscene. Tempora mutantur nos et nutamur in illis! It may safely be said in principle that a work which is not purely pornographic but is honest work endeavouring to create an atmosphere, to depict life or to delineate the author's or artist's concept of things as they are or ought to be, would not be held to be immoral and would be entitled to copyright.

OWNERSHIP OF COPYRIGHT. The author of the work is, in general, the first owner of the copyright. The author is the person who actually writes, draws, paints, carves, models, fabricates, or composes the work, unless he is a mere amanuensis or workman. A person who suggests the idea of a work is not its author or even joint author. A ghost writer, therefore, is the author of the biography which he writes and the possibly famous person of whom he writes and who supplies the facts and recollections upon which the biography is based is not entitled to any share in the copyright—unless, of course, there is an agreement to the contrary. It should always be remembered that copyright is a property right and, therefore, contracts can be made respecting its ownership and disposal.

A work of joint authorship is one produced by the collaboration of two or more authors in which the contribution of one author is not distinct from the contribution of the other author or authors. Joint authors, in general, own copyright in equal shares.

In the case of photographs the person or corporation owning the original negative from which the photograph is made is deemed to be the author and therefore the owner of the copyright. The same principle applies in the case of the owner of the original plate from which any records, perforated rolls and other contrivances for mechanically reproducing sounds were derived.

Where a plate or other original of an engraving, photograph or portrait is ordered and made for valuable consideration and pursuant to the order, then, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, the person giving the order and not the author of the work is the first owner of copyright. This is an important principle. In the case of a portrait painter, the subject who gives the order and pays for the portrait receives not only the finished portrait for which he pays, but the copyright in his portrait as well. In the case of photographs the same principle applies. But where the photographer takes photographs on speculation and then endeavours to sell them to the subject, it is the photographer who owns the copyright.

Where the author of the work is in the employment of some other person under a contract of service or apprenticeship and the work was made in the course of his employment by that person, the person by whom the author was employed is, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the first owner of the copyright. Where, therefore, a writer on a newspaper or magazine holds a position on the staff of that publication for which he is paid a salary, and writes, let us say, feature articles, the copyright in those articles belongs to the owner of the publication. If, however, an independent or free lance writer is retained to write a series of articles for which the owner of the publication contracts to pay him a certain sum of money, the copyright in those articles belongs to the writer and not to the owner of the publication, because the writer is under a contract for service and not a contract of service.

Where an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical, is written by a staff writer acting in the course of his employment and there is no agreement to the contrary, although the copyright in the article resides in the owner of the publication, the writer nevertheless has reserved to him a right to restrain its publication otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine or similar periodical. Thus a staff writer may contribute to his newspaper or magazine a series of twenty or thirty articles. It is then decided to publish those articles in book form. The owner of the publication cannot publish without the author's consent, and the author, not being the owner of the copyright, cannot publish without the consent of the owner of the publication. The only way publication can occur is by mutual agreement, and in such case it is presumed that the author will make his bargain to his best advantage.

There is a distinct cleavage between the intangible right known to the law as copyright, and the ownership of the physical embodiment in which that right resides. This is of particular importance in the case of artistic works. Many painters and sculptors are unaware of the fact that when they sell one of their works they do not necessarily part with the right to reproduce it or, in other words, to issue copies of it to the public. It must also be said that many purchasers of artistic works, particularly art galleries, national and otherwise, take an arbitrary view of the rights they acquire when they purchase an artistic work. Copyright is something entirely apart from the piece of canvas and pigment composing a painting and from the mass of bronze, marble or other material forming a work of sculpture. The sale of the physical object and the transfer of property therein do not of themselves transfer copyright. Copyright is a separate and distinctly existing right and can only be transferred by contract, express or implied. For this reason authors, artists, composers, sculptors and other creators of original works would be well advised to ensure that every sale of their works is made in accordance with a written memorandum. If such a procedure were generally adopted the present habit indulged in by art galleries of selling photographs and other reproductions of artistic works in their possession without compensation to the artist would promptly cease.

But, since the practice of selling photographs is to the publicity advantage of both gallery and artist, artists would be well advised to enter into an agreement with galleries to continue to issue photographs on a royalty basis.

TERM OF COPYRIGHT. The general term of copyright in works published and performed in public during the author's lifetime is the life of the author and fifty years after his death. In the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work or an engraving in which copyright subsists at the time of the death of the author, but which has not been published nor performed, nor in the case of a lecture, been delivered in public before that date, copyright subsists till publication or performance or delivery in public, whichever may first happen, and for a term of fifty years thereafter. It will thus be seen that copyright in unpublished works may extend almost indefinitely.

In case of works of joint authorship copyright subsists during the life of the author who dies last and fifty years after his death. The term of copyright in photographs is fifty years from the making of the original negative. In the case of records, perforated rolls, and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sound, the term is fifty years from the making of the original matrix, plate, or negative.

Copyright in Government publications is fifty years from the date of first publication. This term is provided by statute, but one would be well advised to remember that the Crown may well claim a prerogative right of copyright in perpetuity.

In all cases of published works the term of copyright is subject to a statutory right for any person to reproduce the work on statutory terms at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of works in which copyright subsisted on June 4, 1921, thirty years, from the death of the author. The statutory terms require notice of intention to publish and the payment of royalties calculated at 10 per cent of the published price of the work.

ASSIGNMENT AND LICENCE. Creators of original works may assign their copyright either wholly or partially and either generally or subject to territorial limitations and either for the whole term of the copyright or for any part thereof, and may grant any interest in the right by way of licence. No such assignment or grant is, however, valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner of the copyright or by his duly authorized agent. The owner of copyright may, therefore, split the right into as many component parts as he desires. He may assign or license the right to publish, to produce or to reproduce his work on one or a million occasions. He may allow reproduction in one or a dozen countries or in one or a thousand cities. He may assign or license to different persons the right to reproduce a work of art by photography and by colour process. He may license its reproduction to one person for a calendar and to another for a Christmas card. In fact there is hardly any limit that can be placed upon the dealings which a copyright owner may have in his copyright if he can find someone who desires a particular part of the right and is willing to pay for it.

Where part of the copyright is assigned, the assignee becomes the owner of that part of the right. If, therefore, the composer of a musical work assigns the right of public performance, the assignee can restrain everybody else from performing the work in public. He cannot, however, restrain the author or the person to whom the author may assign that particular part of the copyright from issuing printed copies of the musical score to the public.

An assignee or licensee is wise to register his assignment or licence in the Copyright Office at Ottawa.

DROIT MORAL. The moral right of an author is recognized by the Canadian Copyright Act which provides that, independently of the copyright and even after the assignment, he shall have the right to claim authorship of the work and to restrain distortion, mutilation or other modification in the work which would be prejudicial to his honour or reputation. The statute does not say who is to decide what amount or what quality of distortion, mutilation or modification would be prejudicial to an author's honour or reputation. This is a subject which has received wide treatment in the European and South American countries. There is no corresponding section in the British Copyright Act and, despite the quarter of a century during which the section has found its place in the Canadian statute, no case has been heard by the courts in which this section was invoked. It is interesting to speculate whether the reason for such lack of interest in the section lies in the honesty and integrity of Canadian publishers, performers and owners of other reproducing media or in the apathy and indifference of Canadian authors, artists, and composers.

FORMALITIES. Copyright under the Canadian Copyright Act is automatic and the author of a work need comply with no formality whatsoever in order that he shall possess copyright in his work. The statute contains provisions for registration of copyright but these are permissive only and no registration need take place. There is one minor point on which registration might possibly benefit the author but it is involved in such legal technicalities that it need not be discussed further. It may safely be said that an author is perfectly protected if he entirely neglects to register his copyright.

BERNE CONVENTION. Once a work is made, copyright subsists not only in Canada but throughout the British Commonwealth and all countries which have adhered to the Berne Convention.

UNIVERSAL COPYRIGHT CONVENTION. On August 10, 1962, Canada adhered to the Universal Copyright Convention. Provided that works first published in Canada bear the symbol consisting of the letter 'C' in a circle, the year of first publication, and the name of the copyright owner, copyrights will subsist in all countries which have adhered to the Universal Copyright Convention. The United States is a member of the Universal Copyright Convention.

INFRINGEMENT. Infringement consists in doing without the consent of the owner of the copyright anything the sole right to do which is by the Copyright Act conferred on the owner of the copyright. It will thus be seen that it is infringement, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, to issue copies of a work to the public, to perform it in public, to reproduce it in any manner, to make a translation of it, to convert a novel into a dramatic work, to convert a dramatic work into a novel, and so on. But it must be emphasized that copyright is not an absolute monopoly, but is only the right to restrain copying, and if some other person produces a similar work independently of the owner of the copyright, there will be no infringement.

Importation of infringing works constitutes infringement as well as their being made in the country. There are effective provisions in the Copyright Act and in the Customs Tariff Act for preventing importation of infringing copies.

The making of only one copy of a work will constitute infringement and it need not be an exact copy. A colourable imitation is sufficient. There must, however, be a substantial part of the work taken or a substantial part of the work performed in public. In one case the reproduction of the march Colonel Bogey consisting of so much as was played in twenty seconds was held to be an infringement. In another case dealing with the musical work Walking my Baby back Home sufficient was played to allow the court to recognize the tune, although the evidence was so conflicting that the plaintiff claimed that thirty-two bars had been played and the defendant claimed only five bars had been played.

There are specific provisions relative to infringement in cases of making records and other mechanical contrivances for the reproduction of sounds. They are somewhat complicated but, in general, they provide that the making of such contrivances shall not constitute infringement if similar contrivances have previously been made by, or with the consent of, the owner of the copyright, and the person who makes them gives notice of his intention to make them and pays the stipulated royalty of two cents per perforated roll or playing surface.

LAWFUL USE OF COPYRIGHT. By statute there are certain lawful uses of copyright and no person is permitted to complain if the use of his work is made under the following circumstances:

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purpose of private study, research, criticism, review or newspaper summary. The use must be fair. Thus in one Canadian case an entire article was printed in a newspaper as the basis upon which a criticism was printed following it. The court held that this was not fair dealing.

2. The author of an artistic work who is not the owner of copyright therein may use any mould, cast, sketch, plan, model or study made by him for the purpose of the work, provided that he does not thereby repeat or imitate the main design of the work.

3. Paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs may be made of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship if permanently situated in a public place or building. The same thing may be done in connection with any architectural work of art so long as such drawings, etc., are not in the nature of architectural drawings or plans.

4. Short passages from copyright published literary works which are not themselves published for the use of schools may be published in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter bona fide intended for the use of schools and so described in the title and in any advertisements issued by the publisher. But no more than two of such passages from works by the same author may be published by the same publisher within five years and in each case the source from which such passages are taken must be acknowledged.

5. A newspaper may publish a report of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a conspicuous notice affixed before and maintained during the lecture.

6. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work. Note the limitation to "one person." This precludes the public performance by more than one actor of even a small scene in a dramatic work.

7. Any musical work may be performed without motive of gain by the directors at any agricultural, agricultural-industrial exhibition or fair which received a grant from or is held under Dominion, provincial or municipal authority.

8. Any church, college or school and any religious, charitable or fraternal organization may perform any musical work without payment if done in furtherance of a religious, educational, or charitable object.

9. A report of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting may be published in a newspaper.

REMEDIES FOR INFRINGEMENT. In case of infringement the owner of copyright has two remedies. He may sue the infringer in the civil courts for damages incurred by him, as well as the profits made by the infringer, and may ask for the delivery to him of all infringing copies. Such an action is to be brought within three years after the infringement takes place. In addition, the owner of the copyright may prosecute the infringer criminally for his acts. This should give the copyright owner little, if any, personal satisfaction and no gain would accrue to him other than the satisfaction of personal animus. The first remedy is the proper one and is that which ought to be followed.

WORKS MADE BEFORE 1924. Copyright as we now know it came into effect with the new Canadian Copyright Act on January 1, 1924. But copyright subsisted in many works in Canada at that date, and in such cases they received copyright under the new Act by virtue of a special transition section. It would be difficult to express in any moderate space the principles upon which copyright subsisted in Canada prior to 1924. There was in existence a Canadian Copyright Act prior to that date which required registration and any work registered under that Act would naturally be the subject of copyright. But copyright might also have subsisted in certain works prior to 1924 which were not registered under that Act. We may state the position shortly as follows:

1. Copyright subsisted at the effective date (January 1, 1924) in all works then unpublished whatever their nature.
 2. Literary works published in the British Dominions were the subject of copyright whether registered or unregistered either in Canada or at Stationers' Hall in London.
 3. Dramatic works were protected as literary works in their printed form, but so far as their performing right was concerned copyright subsisted during the life of the author and seven years after his death, or forty-two years from the date of first performance of the work. If the work fell within that definition on the effective date copyright subsisted in that work provided it had not been first performed in a foreign country to which the Imperial International Copyright Act did not extend.
 4. Musical works enjoyed copyright in printed form as literary works, whether registered or unregistered and so far as concerned their performing right were treated the same as dramatic works.
 5. Artistic works were protected prior to 1924 only if they were registered under the then existing Canadian Copyright Act.
 6. Mechanical contrivances for reproducing sounds, if made before January 1, 1924, are by special provision treated as if the present Copyright Act had been in force at the time they were made.
- The above is not intended to be an exhaustive statement of the law of copyright prior to the commencement of the present Copyright Act. It is, however, of the utmost importance when considering works in existence before January 1, 1924 to understand what was their status at that effective date because the new Act contains a transition section which conferred copyright under the new Act upon all works in which copyright subsisted at the effective date. The first thing to decide, therefore, is whether a work was or was not the subject of copyright on January 1, 1924. If it was, no matter what the nature or term of the copyright to which it was then entitled, it is now entitled, generally speaking, to copyright as established by the new Copyright Act.

FUTURE LEGISLATION. The Report on Copyright of the Royal Commission on Patents, Copyright, Trade Marks and Industrial Designs was published on August 1st, 1957. Many radical changes in the law of copyright are proposed, but no bill has as yet been presented to Parliament. The above summary therefore sets out the law applicable at present until such time as a new Statute is enacted.

It is a matter of no little difficulty to endeavour to explain the principles of the law of Copyright within the short compass of this article. Many subjects have obviously been left untouched and there will naturally remain many pitfalls for the unwary. The intention of this article is to give to the author, artist, sculptor and composer, a very broad and general idea of the rights he possesses in his original creations. Those rights ought to be protected and their owners will find that an appreciation and understanding of those rights and an insistence upon their recognition will earn them respect in this commercial world, while at the same time according to them some measure of reward for their labours. Those labours have produced and are producing great works for the benefit and enjoyment of mankind and as a famous jurist said nearly two centuries ago, "It is wise in any state to encourage letters and the painful researches of learned men. The easiest and most equal way of doing it, is, by securing to them the property of their own works. Nobody contributes, who is not willing; and though a good book may be run down and a bad one cried up, for a time; yet sooner or later, the reward will be in proportion to the merit of the work. A writer's fame will not be the less, that he has bread, without being under the necessity of prostituting his pen to flattery or party, to get it. He who engages in a laborious work, which may employ his whole life, will do it with more spirit, if, besides his own glory, he thinks it may be a provision for his family."

SUMMARY OF PROVINCIAL SUCCESSION DUTIES ACTS

The attention of subscribers is respectfully directed to the relationships noted at the head of each table. The information given, while including the latest revisions, is only partial, is not interpretative, and legal advice should be sought in specific cases.—The Editor

ALBERTA

Under agreement with the Federal Government Alberta has vacated the succession duty field from April 1, 1947, although duties are payable on properties passing in estates for persons who died prior to that date.

Together with the other six Provinces which do not levy their own succession duties, Alberta receives from the Federal Government under the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act a payment of "basic estate tax" which is 75% of the Federal estate tax attributable to (a) property situated in Alberta, and (b) where the deceased died domiciled in Alberta, property (other than real property) situated outside of Canada passing to persons domiciled or resident in Alberta.

Under the new The Estate Tax Rebate Act, which came into force March 30, 1967, Alberta is the only Province which will rebate to the estate of a person dying on or after April 1, 1967, who was either domiciled in Alberta at death or being domiciled elsewhere in Canada had resided in Alberta for at least 183 days in each of the three years immediately preceding death, 75% of the estate tax payable with respect to such of the deceased's property which has its situs under the Federal Estate Tax Act, in the Province of Alberta.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Province of British Columbia re-entered the Succession Duty field on April 1, 1963 and duties are payable under that Act on properties passing since that date, as well as prior to April 1, 1947 when this Act was suspended under agreement with the federal Government. For list of exemptions from duty and rates of duty on such properties, please refer directly to the Assessor and Collector of Probate and Succession Duties, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C.

A Probate Fees Act applies to all estates after exemptions where the date of death is subsequent to April 1, 1947 on any property passing under a Will or intestacy and any enquiries thereto should be directed to the Assessor and Collector of Probate Fees, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C.

MANITOBA

The Succession Duty Act, being Chapter 201 of the Revised Statutes of Manitoba, 1940, in so far as it is applicable to the cases of persons who die on or after the first day of April, 1947, is hereby suspended but otherwise shall remain in full force and effect.

The suspension effected by paragraph (1) shall not be deemed to be a repeal of the Act therein mentioned, but that Act shall, to the extent herein provided, be inoperative and remain suspended until such time as the suspension herein enacted is terminated

- (a) by an order-in-council to that effect, or
 - (b) by an Act of the Legislature;
- and the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council is hereby authorized to make an order terminating such suspension effective on, from, and after, such date as may be fixed in the order.

ONTARIO

The Succession Duty Act, being Chapter 386 of The Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960

AGGREGATE VALUE

"Aggregate Value" which determines the normal rates of duty means the value at the death of the deceased of the property wherever situate passing on his death together with the value of all lifetime dispositions wherever made, where such dispositions are made on or after the first day of July, 1892, less allowable debts, reasonable funeral expenses, Surrogate Court fees, solicitors fees for obtaining probate or letters of administration to the extent of $100.00 and less the exemptions authorized by section 5 and specified below.

ESTATES EXEMPT FROM SUCCESSION DUTY

1. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $10,000.00.

2. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $20,000.00, where the only persons who participate are the following, or some of them, and any one of the persons mentioned in (a), (b), (c) or (d) does not receive more than $10,000.00.

(a) Any brother or sister of the deceased;

(b) Any descendant of a brother or sister of the deceased;

(c) Any brother or sister of the father or mother of the deceased;

(d) Any descendant of a brother or sister of the father and mother of the deceased.

(e) The persons mentioned, or referred to, in 3, below, and any lineal ancestor of the deceased.

NOTE: Where the aggregate value does not exceed $20,000.00, but a collateral receives over $10,000.00, the present additional rate only will apply but the present base rate will not apply.

3. An estate, the aggregate value of which does not exceed $50,000.00, where the only persons who participate are the following, or some of them: the grandfather, grandmother, father, mother, husband, wife, child, son-in-law or daughter-in-law of the deceased.

NOTE: See provisions of S.82 of the Child Welfare Act, 1965, (Ont.) 1965, C.14. "Child" is defined in Section 1 (d) of the Succession Duty Act.

DEPENDANTS' ALLOWANCE AND INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT ALLOWANCE

The Succession Duty Act was amended in 1959 by the Succession Duty Amendment Act to bring into the Act exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children and infirm husband of the deceased parallel to those in the new Dominion Estate Tax Act.

Section 2, subsection 1, of the Succession Duty Amendment Act, 1959 enacts a new subsection (1a) of Section 6 of the Succession Duty Act, now Section 7 (2) R.S.O. 1960 Chapter 386 Clause (a) of Section 7 (2) provides that no duty shall be levied on a dependant, when the total of the benefits to all dependants does not exceed the total of their individual exemptions. This total of individual exemptions has been defined as "Dependants' Allowance".

"Dependants' Allowance" means,

(i) where the deceased is survived by a wife and no dependent children, $75,000,

(ii) where the deceased is survived by a wife and a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the sum of $75,000 and $15,000 for each dependent child,

(iii) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband and one dependent child, $90,000,

(iv) where the deceased is survived by an infirm husband and more than one dependent child, an amount equal to the sum of $75,000 and $15,000 for each dependent child, or

(v) where the deceased is not survived by a spouse but is survived by a dependent child or children, an amount equal to the product expressed in dollars of $25,000 and the number of dependent children.

The following are examples of the operation of this Clause:

1. A man dies leaving an estate of $105,000 survived by a widow and two dependent children. Here the dependants' allowance is $105,000 and no duty is payable, if the estate passes wholly to these dependants or any one of them.

1a. A man dies leaving an estate of $150,000 with a widow and two dependent children; he leaves $105,000 among these three dependants. Here no duty is payable on the benefits to the dependants but the rest of the estate passing to other persons is dutiable as at present.

1b. A man leaves an estate of $150,000 again with a widow and two dependent children to whom he leaves the whole estate. Here duty is payable on the whole estate as at the present time, unless Clause b of Section 7(2) applies.

2. A woman dies leaving an infirm husband and four dependent children. Her estate is $135,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate goes wholly to these dependants or to any one of them.

3. A man or woman dies leaving five dependent children, and no surviving spouse, leaving an estate of $125,000. Here no duty is payable if the estate is divided among these children or goes to any one of them.

Clause b of Section 7 (2) provides that where the benefit to a "dependant" does not exceed the amount of his "individual dependant allowance" no duty shall be payable by him.

The amounts of the "individual dependants' allowance" are:

(i) in the case of the wife of the deceased, $75,000,

(ii) in the case of the infirm husband of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a dependent child, $75,000,

(iii) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is survived by a wife or infirm husband, $15,000 or

(iv) in the case of a dependent child of the deceased where the deceased is not survived by a spouse, $25,000.

INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION AND INCREASED INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION

The Succession Duty Act was amended by the Succession Duty Amendment Act, 1962-63 (which came into force on April 26th, 1963) to provide for a reduction in the duty otherwise payable by dependants. This was accomplished by the addition of a new subsection (2a) to section 7 of the Act.

"(2a) The duty levied on property passing on the death of the deceased to or for the benefit of a dependant and on him shall be reduced by an amount equal to the amount obtained by dividing the product of,

(a) the sum of the value of the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit on which duty is levied and of the value of all transmissions to him and of the value of all dispositions in respect of which duty is levied on him; and

(b) the amount of his individual dependant reduction or of his increased individual dependant reduction, if the greater,

by the sum of the value of all the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit, and of the value of all dispositions to him that do not come within clause p of subsection 1 of section 5."

A definition of individual dependant reduction and increased individual dependant reduction was added to the Act by the inclusion of clauses (da) and (cb) to subsection 8 of section 7 of the Act.

"(da) 'individual dependant reduction' means, in the case of a dependant, the amount obtained by applying to the amount of his individual dependant allowance the rates applicable under subsection 1 to amounts equal to the amount of his individual dependant allowance and by adding to the amount so obtained 15 per cent thereof, provided that, where the dependant's individual dependant allowance is less than $50,000, the rate to be applied to his individual dependant allowance shall be 2.5 per cent."

The "individual dependant reduction" is as follows:
Widow—$4,743.75.

Infirm Husband where there is at least one dependent child—$4,743.75.

Dependent Child where there is also a widow or infirm husband—$431.25, and Dependent Orphaned Child—$718.75.

"Increased individual dependant reduction" is defined in clause (cb) as follows:

"(cb) 'increased individual dependant reduction', in the case of a dependant where the deceased is not survived by a wife, means the sum of,

(i) the amount of his individual dependant reduction, and

(ii) an amount equal to the amount obtained by dividing the product of,

A. the amount of the dependant's individual dependant allowance, and

B. the sum of the amounts of the individual dependant reduction of dependants in whose cases the sum of the value of the property passing on the death of the deceased to him or for his benefit, and of the value of all dispositions to him that do not come within clause g of subsection 1 of section 5, does not exceed the amount of his individual dependant allowance, by the sum of the amounts of the individual dependant allowance of all dependants, exclusive of dependants mentioned in subclause B."

The following are some examples of the application of the new provisions for the reduction in duty otherwise payable by dependants:

1. AGGREGATE VALUE: $100,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to Widow. No other dependants.
DUTY: $100,000 @ 7.5% = $7,500.00
Surtax @ 15% = 1,125.00
$8,625.00
INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION:
$ 75,000 @ 5.5% = $4,125.00
Surtax @ 15% = 618.75
$4,743.75

Widow's duty reduced under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7 by Individual Dependent Reduction.

$100,000.00 × $4,743.75 = $4,743.75
$100,000.00

DUTY THEN: $8,625.00—$4,743.75 = $3,881.25

2. AGGREGATE VALUE: $100,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to widow. One dependent child who receives nil.

DUTY as in 1 above = $8,625.00

REDUCTION: Increased Individual Dependant Reduction of wife is: $4,743.75 + $431.25 = $5,175.00

Thus REDUCTION is: $100,000 × $5,175 = $5,175.00
$100,000

WIDOW'S DUTY: $8,625.00—$5,175.00 = $3,450.00

3. AGGREGATE VALUE: $150,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: Widow—$100,000.00
One dependent child—$35,000
One dependent child—$15,000

DUTY RE WIFE: $100,000 @ 8.0% = $8,000.00
Surtax @ 15% = 1,200.00

$9,200.00

REDUCTION: Widow's Increased Individual Dependant Reduction is $4,743.75 + $431.25 (Individual Dependant Reduction of child who is not dutiable) = $5,175.00

Widow's duty thus reduced by amount of $100,000.00 × $5,175.00 = $5,175.00
$100,000.00

WIDOW'S DUTY: $9,200.00—$5,175.00 = $4,025.00

DUTY RE DEPENDANT CHILD:

$35,000.00 @ 5.5% = $1,925.00
Surtax @ 15% = 278.75

$2,203.75

REDUCTION: Duty reduced by Individual Dependant Reduction being an amount equal to $15,000.00 @ 2.5% = $375.00

Surtax @ 15% = 56.25

$431.25

DUTY THUS: $2,203.75—$431.25 = $1,772.50

It will be seen from the above examples that if there are assets passing to or for the benefit of a dependant or dispositions to him that do not come within the provisions of clause g of subsection 1 of section 5 upon or in respect of which no duty is leviable the individual and increased individual dependant reductions are reduced proportionately.

EXAMPLES: Reduction in case of Foreign Estates and Ontario Estates with Foreign Realty.

1. FOREIGN ESTATE:
AGGREGATE VALUE: $75,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: All to widow, no other dependants
ONTARIO ASSETS: $20,000.00
DUTY: $20,000.00 @ 5.5% = $1,100.00
Surtax @ 15% = 165.00
$1,265.00

INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION:

$75,000.00 @ 5.5% = $4,125.00
Surtax @ 15% = 618.75

$4,743.75

WIDOW'S DUTY REDUCED under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7

$20,000.00 × $4,743.75 = $1,265.00
$75,000.00

DUTY THEN: $1,265.00—$1,265.00 = NIL

2. ONTARIO ESTATE:
FOREIGN REALTY:
AGGREGATE VALUE: $125,000.00
DISTRIBUTION: Widow—$110,000.00
ONE DEPENDANT CHILD: $15,000.00
FOREIGN REALTY: $20,000.00 (to widow)
DUTY: Widow $90,000.00 @ 7.85% = $7,065.00
Surtax @ 15% = 1,059.75
$8,124.75

Child $15,000.00 @ NIL
(Amount to child does not exceed his Individual Dependant Allowance).

INCREASED INDIVIDUAL DEPENDANT REDUCTION OF WIFE: (Individual Dependant Reduction of wife and Dependant Reduction of dependent child.)
$4,743.75 + $431.25 = $5,175.00

WIDOW'S DUTY REDUCED under provisions of subsection (2a) of section 7 by Increased Individual Dependant Reduction.

$90,000.00 × $5,175.00 = $4,234.09
$110,000.00

DUTY THEN: $8,124.75—$4,234.09 = $3,890.66

An additional "notch" provision is contained in the Act to cover the exemptions in favour of the widow, dependent children, and infirm husband of the deceased.

The "notch" clause is to be applied only after the reduction provided for in subsection (2a) of section 7 has been made and provides that:

1. The amount of duty payable by a dependant at no time exceeds one-half of the amount by which the benefit to the dependant exceeds the individual dependant allowance.

2. The amount of duty payable by the dependants at no time exceeds one-half the amount obtained by multiplying the total value of all property passing to or received by dependants minus the total dependants' allowance by the duty payable by the dependant and dividing by the total duty payable by all dependants.

For the purposes of the Ontario Succession Duty Act, the term "child" shall mean,—

- (i) legitimate child of the deceased,
- (ii) person adopted by the deceased,
- (iii) person to whom the deceased or the spouse of the deceased stood in loco parentis during the infancy of such person and the deceased while married to such spouse shall be deemed to have stood in loco parentis to a legitimate child of such spouse and to a person adopted by such spouse.

The Succession Duty Act was amended by the Succession Duty Amendment Act 1962-63 to provide for a 'notch' provision for collateral class beneficiaries. The 'notch' provision for collateral class beneficiaries where the aggregate value exceeds $10,000 but does not exceed $20,000 reduces the duty to one-half of the amount obtained by multiplying the amount passing to the beneficiary by the excess amount over $10,000 and dividing by the aggregate value. Where the aggregate value of the estate exceeds $20,000 there is an initial rate of duty and if a collateral beneficiary receives more than $10,000 an additional rate of duty as well. The 'notch' provision where the aggregate value exceeds $20,000 applies only to the initial rate of duty. There is no 'notch' provision for the additional duty. The 'notch' provision is applied to the basic duty only and the additional duty is then added to the reduced basic duty.

Note.—The phrases—"Amount passing to any one person", and "whole amount passing to one person", as used in above tables, include the value of the lifetime dispositions in favor of such person as well as the value of the property passing to him on the death of the deceased.

SCHEDULE OF RATES—STRANGER CLASS

Those in the stranger class are all persons not heretofore mentioned as being in the preferred or collateral class. Note: There is no additional duty charged to this class of beneficiary other than Surtax.

The Succession Duty Act was amended by the Succession Duty Amendment Act 1962-63 to provide for a 'notch' provision for Stranger Class Beneficiaries. The 'notch' provision for Stranger Class Beneficiaries reduces the duty to one-half the amount obtained by multiplying the amount passing to the beneficiary by the excess over $10,000 and dividing by the aggregate value.

Section 13 also provides that the applicant for probate, administration or other grant shall, at the time of making application, make and file with the Succession Duty Department an affidavit containing,—

In the case of an annuity, term of years, life estate or income which is not an interest in expectancy, the duty with respect to such shall be payable in a number of equal annual instalments equal to;—

- (a) the number of years
 - (i) of expectancy of life of the person who benefits, or
 - (ii) for which such annuity, term of years or income is to run, as the case may be; or
- (b) ten,

In the case of an annuity, term of years, life estate or income which is an interest in expectancy, the duty with respect to such, shall, if not sooner paid, be payable in a number of equal annual instalments as set out in Paragraph 2 above and such instalments shall commence one year after the date when such annuity, term of years, life estate or income commences to be enjoyed and for default in payment of any of such instalments, there shall be added thereto interest at the rate of 6% per annum from the date on which such instalment became payable, until payment.

ALLOWANCE FOR DUTY PAID IN OTHER JURISDICTIONS

For the purpose of avoiding double taxation on residents in Ontario an allowance shall be made for duty levied and paid on personal property situate in the jurisdictions mentioned below where the deceased owner died domiciled in Ontario, where such property passes to Ontario residents and where duty is levied on such residents, by Ontario, with respect to the transmission of such property. The allowance made by Ontario in such circumstances will be the amount of duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction; provided however that if the duty levied on such property by the foreign jurisdiction exceeds the duty levied by Ontario with respect to the transmission of such property, the allowance will be the amount of the Ontario Duty.

The jurisdictions concerned are as follows:

- (a) The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland;
- (b) The Union of South Africa;
- (c) The Commonwealth of Australia;
- (d) Eire;
- (e) The Dominion of New Zealand;
- (f) The other Provinces of the Dominion of Canada, save and except Newfoundland;

The allowance to be made by Ontario, as aforesaid, shall apply where the deceased died on or after June 21st, 1946 and with the object of relieving Ontario citizens as far as possible, in this respect, the allowance shall be applicable whether or not the foreign jurisdictions, or any of them, make similar provisions in converse cases.

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY—ONTARIO

A CONDENSED SUMMARY OF THE LAW OF INTESTATE ESTATES

All real and personal property which is vested in any person without a right in any other person to take by survivorship shall, on his death, whether testate or intestate, (notwithstanding any testamentary disposition) devolve to his personal representative as trustee for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto and, subject to the payment of his debts, and so far as such property is not disposed of by deed, will, contract or other effectual disposition, the same shall be administered, as if it were personal property not so disposed of.

A husband who, if The Devolution of Estates Act had not been passed, would be entitled to an interest as tenant by the curtesy in the real property of his wife, may, by deed or instrument in writing executed, and attested by at least one witness and delivered to the personal representative, if any, or if there is none, deposited in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall, within six months after his wife's death, elect to take such interest in the real and personal property of his wife as he would have taken if the said Act had not been passed, in which case the husband's interest therein shall be ascertained in all respects as if the said Act had not been passed, and he shall be entitled to no further interest thereunder.

The real and personal property of every man dying intestate and leaving a widow whether or not he leaves issue shall, where the net value of such real and personal property does not exceed $20,000, belong to his widow absolutely and exclusively. The term "net value" means the value of the real and personal property after payment of the charges thereon and the debts, funeral expenses and expenses of administration, including succession duty.

Where the estate of the husband consists in whole or in part of real property, such benefits shall not accrue to her and she shall only be entitled to her dower unless she elects to take her distributive share, as set out herein, in lieu of dower. The term "dower" means the right of the widow, for her life to one-third of the rents and profits from the real estate owned by her husband at his death.

1. By the provisions of the Devolution of Estates Amendment Act 1966, real property not disposed of, conveyed to, divided or distributed among the persons beneficially entitled under Section 21 of the Devolution of Estates Act (R.S.O. 1960 c. 106) by the personal representative within three years after the death of the deceased is, subject to the Land Titles Act or Section 58 (6) and (7) of the Registry Act, vested in the persons beneficially entitled or their assigns without any conveyance by the personal representative, unless the personal representative has registered a Caution in the registry or land titles office, and, if such Caution is registered the real property mentioned in the Caution does not vest for three years from the time of registration of the last Caution.

2. Under the provisions of the Devolution of Estates Amendment Act 1961-62, if the mother of an illegitimate child dies intestate with no surviving legitimate children or if an illegitimate child dies intestate, the child or the mother shares in the other's estate.

Subject to the above, the estate of a person dying intestate is distributed as set out below, according to the Devolution of Estates Act, R.S.O. 1960. It will be noted that where the widow takes a share, the net value of the estate is presumed to be in excess of $20,000. Where there is no widow to take a share, the net value of the estate is immaterial.

DISTRIBUTION

If the Intestate die leaving,—

1. A widow only, the widow gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and two-thirds of the residue. Remaining one-third of the residue equally to the next of kin of the deceased husband and those who legally represent them. For example, if the next of kin were a father, mother, brother and sister, or any of these and if there were children of a deceased brother or sister, the said one-third would be divided equally among all of these, save that the children aforesaid would take per stirpes and not per capita,—that is they would take equally the share which their father or mother would have taken had he or she survived the intestate. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-third of residue would go to the Crown.

2. Widow and one child or legal representatives of child, $20,000 and interest as above and half residue to widow. The other half to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. Widow and children and legal representatives of deceased children—$20,000 and interest as above and one-third of residue to widow. The other two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children, the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Widow and father or mother or brother or sister, $20,000 and interest as above and two-thirds of the residue to widow. The remaining one-third of residue to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die leaving,—

1. A husband only,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-half of the residue. Remaining half among next of kin of deceased wife and those who legally represent them and in same proportions as mentioned in No. 1 above. If there are no kindred to inherit, the said remaining one-half would go to the Crown.

2. A husband and child or legal representatives of child,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-third of residue. The remaining two-thirds to child or equally among legal representatives.

3. A husband and children and legal representatives of deceased children,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-third of residue. The remaining two-thirds equally among the children and the legal representatives of deceased children,—the latter taking per stirpes.

4. Husband and father or mother or brother or sister,—Husband gets $20,000 plus interest thereon at 4% from date of death until payment and one-half of residue. The remaining half to the father or mother or brother or sister.

If the intestate die without leaving a spouse, but leaving,—

(a) a child or legal representatives of child,—all to child or equally among the legal representatives.

(b) Children and legal representatives of deceased children,—equally among all,—the legal representatives taking per stirpes.

(c) Children by two spouses,—equally among all.

(d) Child and grandchild of a deceased child,—half to child and half to grandchild who takes by representation.

If the intestate die without spouse or issue but leaving,—

(a) A father, mother, brother and sister or any of these and children of a deceased brother or sister,—equally among all,—the said children sharing per stirpes.

(b) A father or mother, or brother or sister,—all to the one who survives.

(c) A grandparent or grandparents,—all to him or her or equally among these.

(d) Brother or sister of the whole blood and brother or sister of the half blood, equally among the two.

(e) Posthumous brother or sister and mother, equally among the two.

(f) Brother and grandfather,—all to brother.

(g) Grandniece or grandnephew and niece or nephew,—all to niece or nephew.

(h) Brother and aunts or uncles,—all to brother.

(i) Uncles or aunts children and brother or sisters grandchildren,—equally among all.

(j) Grandparent and uncle or aunt,—all to grandparent.

(k) Uncle and deceased uncle's or aunt's child,—all to uncle.

(l) Nephew or niece by brother or half-brother and nephew or niece by sister or half-sister,—equally among the two.

(m) Children of deceased brothers or sisters or children of deceased brothers and sisters,—equally per capita.

Note—Child Welfare Act, 1965, S. 82 (1); For all purposes the adopted child, upon the adoption order being made, becomes the child of the adopting parent and the adopting parent becomes the parent of the adopted child as if the adopted child had been born in lawful wedlock to the adopting parent.

Where the intestate dies without lawful heirs, all of his estate will go to the Crown.

THE QUEEN'S CIVIL LIST

Until George III. came to the throne in 1760, the income of the sovereign was derived chiefly from Crown lands and certain landed property. In the feudal ages these lands constituted a princely patrimony. In later times this Crown property was greatly reduced by lavish grants to royal favorites, so much so that at the accession of Queen Anne, Parliament endeavored to save the remnant by an Act (1 Anne, c. 8) which prohibited alienation of Crown lands, and enacted stringent provisions in regard to the length of the term for which they might be leased and the rents reserved.

Queen Anne, George I. and George II. derived the larger part of their income from their life-interest in the Crown property, but when George III. came to the throne he surrendered his life-interest in the Crown lands. It was turned over to the nation in return for a fixed Civil List of £800,000, subsequently increased to £900,000. George IV., William IV., Queen Victoria and Edward VII., on their accessions, surrendered their life interest in the Crown lands in return for a Civil List. The same course has been taken by each subsequent monarch on coming to the throne.

Certain hereditary revenues have also been surrendered to the Exchequer.

In 1910 the King's Civil List was fixed at the yearly sum of £470,000.

By the Civil List Act of 1937, the civil list for King George VI was fixed at £410,000 subject to certain abatements while the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall were vested in His Majesty.

The Civil List Act, 1952, fixed the Civil list for Queen Elizabeth II at £475,000, allocated as follows:

H. M. Privy Purse.....	£ 80,000
Salaries of H. M. Household.....	185,000
Expenses of H. M. Household.....	121,800
Royal Bounty, alms and special services.....	13,200
Supplementary Provision.....	95,000
	£475,000

This sum is subject to a reduction equal to a proportion of the net revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, so long as the Duke of Cornwall is a minor.

In addition to the Civil List as above, provision is made for other members of the Royal Family on a per annum basis as follows:—

Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother,	£70,000
The Duke of Edinburgh,	£40,000.
The Princess Margaret,	£15,000.
The Duke of Gloucester,	£35,000.

The revenue of the estates of the Duchy of Lancaster (which have been attached to the Crown since 1399), is paid over to the Keeper of Her Majesty's Privy Purse.

THE UNITED KINGDOM GOVERNMENT

The House of Commons, as now constituted (1965) has 630 elected members, with distribution of seats as follows: England 511, Wales and Monmouth, 36; Scotland, 71; Northern Ireland, 12.

The maximum duration of a Parliament is five years. Members receive a salary payment of £3,250 per annum, and travelling facilities between London, home and constituency on Parliamentary duties.

The House of Lords (July 1967) was composed as follows: Peers of royal blood 4; Archbishops 2; Dukes 25; Marquesses 30; Earls and Countesses 165; Viscounts 110; Bishops 24; Barons and Baronesses 679; total 1018 of whom 7 are minors, making the actual number in the House of Lords, 1032.

Peers receive no salary. They are re-imbursed the cost of such railway fees between their places of residence and London as they incur in attending Parliament; they are also re-imbursed other expenses, within a maximum of £4. 14s. 6d. for each day's Parliamentary attendance.

No title attaches to office in Cabinet or Administration. The title Right Honourable is given to all Privy Councillors. These are appointed for life, and every member of the Cabinet who is not already of the Privy Council is made a Privy Councillor.

The functions of the Secretary of State are discharged by four main administrative Departments of equal status, each under a Secretary responsible to the Secretary of State for the discharge of the duties of the Department. This day-to-day administration of the Departments is conducted in Edinburgh, but each Department has representatives in London for liaison and Parliamentary duties. This London Office is generally known as the Scottish Office, a term also used to describe the whole system of Scottish administration.

The Islands became fully self-governing in their internal affairs. Britain retains responsibility for their defense and external affairs.)

The Imperial Conference held in 1926 stated that the United Kingdom and the Dominions were "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or foreign affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations". The Statute of Westminster, 1931, abolished certain formal inequalities between the Parliament of the United Kingdom and the Parliaments of the Dominions.

WORLD ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

The United Nations is a world organization for the maintenance of peace and security and for the promotion of the welfare of humanity. The Charter was signed on June 26, 1945 and came into force on October 24, 1945.

Through a series of conferences, at Dumbarton Oaks (August-October 1944), at Yalta (February 1945) and at San Francisco (April-June 1945), the Charter of the United Nations was produced.

The main organs of the United Nations are: the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the International Court of Justice, the Secretariat. Subsidiary organs are established as and when required.

The General Assembly is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations; it has the right to discuss and make recommendations on all matters within the scope of the United Nations Charter and to discuss the powers and functions of other United Nations organs, which submit annual reports to it; and it considers and approves the budget for the entire Organization. All members—122 as of June 1967—are represented in the General Assembly. Each has one vote, and all votes are equal. Important questions—such as the maintenance of international peace and security, election of members to certain United Nations organs, membership in the United Nations, operation of the trusteeship system and budgetary questions—are decided by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting; others, by a simple majority. The Assembly meets regularly once a year, but special sessions may be held at the request of the Security Council or a majority of the members. The Assembly in November 1950 decided that if the Security Council, because of lack of unanimity of the permanent members, fails to exercise its primary responsibility for maintaining international peace and security in any case where there appears to be a threat to peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression, the Assembly may consider the matter immediately, in emergency special session—on 24 hours notice if necessary—with a view to making recommendations to Members for collective measures, including, in the case of a breach of the peace or act of aggression, the use of armed force when necessary to restore peace. Five special sessions—two on the question of Palestine, one on the situation in Tunisia, one on the UN financing, and one on Southwest Africa and peace-keeping operations of the UN—and several emergency special sessions—on the Suez crisis, on Hungary, on the situation in Lebanon and Jordan, on the Congo, and on the Middle East crisis, have been held. The Assembly deals with its work through seven Main Committees on which all Members have the right to be represented: First Committee (Political and Security, including the regulation of armaments); Special Political Committee; Second Committee (Economic and Financial); Third Committee (Social, Humanitarian, and Cultural); Fourth Committee (Trusteeship, including non-self-governing territories); Fifth Committee (Administrative and Budgetary); Sixth Committee (Legal). In addition, the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East and the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, among other bodies, report to the General Assembly. The Assembly has also established procedural, standing and other ad hoc committees. George Ignatieff is Canada's permanent representative at United Nations headquarters in New York.

The Security Council is composed of five permanent members, China, France, the United Kingdom, the United States and the Soviet Union and 10 non-permanent members elected by the General Assembly for a term of two years. The principal function of the Security Council is to examine questions endangering the maintenance of international peace and security, and to adopt and apply means to solve dangerous international situations or disputes. Each member of the Security Council has one vote. Decisions on procedural matters are made by an affirmative vote of nine members. On all other matters an affirmative vote of nine members, including the concurring votes of the five permanent members, is required (unless, in certain circumstances, a permanent member abstains from voting). Thus, the negative vote of one permanent member is sufficient to prevent the taking of a substantive decision. This is the "veto" power.

The Charter provides that a Military Staff Committee, consisting of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives is to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the regulation of armaments or possible disarmament.

On 11 January 1952 the General Assembly established the Disarmament Commission to replace the Atomic Energy Commission and the Commission for Conventional Armaments and to combine the work of both. The Disarmament Commission, since 1959 has been composed of all the members of the United Nations.

The Economic and Social Council is composed of representatives of twenty-seven Member States elected by the General Assembly for a term of three years. Its function is to study and report on social and economic problems throughout the world, and to suggest means for their solution. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote. It is authorized to enter into agreements with specialized agencies for the purpose of bringing them into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements are subject to approval by the General Assembly and the appropriate body of the specialized agency concerned. Agreements with the following agencies are in force: International Labour Organization (ILO); Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO); United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO); World Health Organization (WHO) International Bank for Reconstruction and Development; International Development Association (IDA); International Finance Corporation (IFC); International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO); International Monetary Fund (IMF); Universal Postal Union (UPU); International Telecommunication Union (ITU); World Meteorological Organization (WMO); and Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO). An agreement has also been authorized with the International Trade Organization (ITO) if and when that body comes into existence. Though establishment of ITO and the bringing into operation of the Havana Charter, on which it was to be based, have not taken place, one of the main objectives of that Charter has been embodied in an international commercial treaty, known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

An International Atomic Energy Agency, to promote the peaceful uses of atomic energy, was formally established in July 1957. The Agency's working relationship with the United Nations has been determined in an agreement approved by the UN General Assembly and the Agency's General Conference in the autumn of 1957. This agreement provides that the Agency shall report annually to the General Assembly, and in addition submit reports to the Security Council "when appropriate" and to the Economic and Social Council on matters within its competence.

The Economic and Social Council is aided in its work by several expert bodies, called commissions and sub-commissions, which keep international problems in their respective fields under review. These bodies cover such questions as statistical, human rights, social development, population, status of women and narcotic drugs. The Council has also set up regional economic commissions for Europe, for Asia and the Far East, for Latin America, and for Africa. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) also reports to the Council.

The Trusteeship Council consists of Members of the United Nations administering territories under trusteeship, those permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer trust territories, and as many other Members elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members in the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those which administer trust territories and those which do not. Its decisions are taken by a simple majority vote.

The Trusteeship Council examines reports on Trust Territories annually submitted by the administering authorities; accepts petitions and examines them in consultation with the authorities; and provides for special or periodic visits to the Trust Territories.

The International Court of Justice is the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It consists of fifteen judges elected for a term of nine years by the General Assembly and by the Security Council voting independently.

The Secretariat, under a Secretary-General appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council, serves the United Nations. It is organized into a number of administrative units. Four of these are known as Offices of the Secretary-General because the work they perform engages the Secretary-General's responsibility in a more direct and personal way. These are the Executive Office of the Secretary-General, the Office of Legal Affairs, the Controller's Office and the Office of Personnel. There are also two Under-Secretaries for Special Political Affairs. Three of the units are Departments. These are the Department of Political and Security Council Affairs, the Department of Economic and Social Affairs and the Department of Trusteeship and Non-Self-Governing Territories. In addition, there is an Office of Public Information, an Office of Conference Services and an Office of General Services. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) and the United Nations Development Programme, which replaces the previous Technical Assistance Board and the United Nations Special Fund, also have their offices at headquarters. A new organ of the General Assembly is the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development. Its function is to help promote and better the conditions of international trade, particularly with a view to accelerating the economic growth of developing countries.

The Office carries out the information program of the United Nations. It provides facilities for the diffusion of information about the United Nations by press, radio, television, film, photographs and other media. It also helps develop information activities to supplement the services of existing agencies on as wide a geographical basis as possible, and cooperates with governments and non-governmental organizations in spreading knowledge of the United Nations and its related agencies in schools and other educational institutions. It provides information services for the correspondents accredited to the United Nations.

Booklets, pamphlets and other publications on all phases of United Nations activities are produced in many languages by the Office. To "ensure that peoples in all parts of the world receive as full information as possible about the United Nations", the Office has established information centres and offices in many of the principal capitals of the world.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

9 Grosvenor Place, London, S.W.1, England

The Brussels Treaty, signed in 1948 by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom, provided for collective self-defence and for collaboration in economic, social and cultural matters.

On October 23, 1954, the Treaty was amended to include the German Federal Republic and Italy, thus making it a more effective focus of European integration. This arrangement came into force on May 6, 1955, and the resulting organization was known as "Western European Union".

It consists of a Council, meeting either at Ministerial level or, more frequently, at Ambassadorial level at the seat of the Organization in London; of an Agency for the Control of Armaments, set up to ensure that the undertakings given by the German Federal Republic not to manufacture certain armaments are observed, and to control the level of armaments of all seven Member states on the mainland of Europe; of a Standing Armaments Committee which deals with the production and standardization of armaments. Until 1st June 1960 when they were transferred to the Council of Europe, the Organization included a number of social and cultural committees set up to further collaboration between the Seven on such questions. There is also a Western European Union Parliamentary Assembly, which usually meets twice a year, composed of delegated members from the parliaments of all seven countries.

International secretariats serve the Council of W.E.U., the Agency for the Control of Armaments, and the Standing Armaments Committee.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ELECTORS IN FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

ELECTIONS FOR THE FEDERAL HOUSE OF COMMONS

According to the Canada Elections Act, and subject to certain exceptions, the general rule as to the qualifications of electors at a Federal election is that every person in Canada, man or woman, is qualified to vote and entitled to be registered as an elector on the list of electors for the polling division in which such person ordinarily resides at the time of the issuing of the writ ordering a Federal election in the electoral district if such person

- (a) is of the full age of twenty-one years or will attain such age on or before polling day at such election;
- (b) is a Canadian citizen or other British subject;
- (c) in the case of a British subject other than a Canadian citizen, has been ordinarily resident in Canada for the twelve months immediately preceding polling day at such election; and
- (d) at a by-election only, continues to be ordinarily resident in the electoral district until polling day at such by-election.

Among persons disqualified are prisoners, and persons under restraint owing to mental disease.

Whenever an election is ordered an entire new list of electors is prepared, according to the Canada Elections Act, under the general direction of the Chief Electoral Officer, and supervision of a returning officer who is appointed for each electoral district. There are two classes of polling divisions which are called Urban and Rural. Generally speaking urban polling divisions are those comprised in cities and towns of over 5,000 population, the other polling divisions are rural. In urban polling division, a pair of enumerators, representing different political interests, is appointed for each polling division. They make a house-to-house visitation immediately after the issue of the writ for the appropriate pending election, to secure the necessary information to complete a list of electors for their polling division. In rural polling divisions, the list is similarly prepared by one rural enumerator. Writs for a Federal election are issued about two months before the date fixed for polling day, except at by-elections when such writs may be issued about 6 weeks before polling day. Chief Electoral Officer, J.-M. Hamel, Ottawa.

THE VICTORIA CROSS

THE VICTORIA CROSS was instituted by Queen Victoria at the close of the Crimean campaign, 1856. It is a Maltese cross, made of gun metal, with a Royal Crest in the centre and underneath it an escroll bearing the inscription "For Valour", and is awarded, irrespective of rank, to members of any branch of Her Majesty's services, either in the Imperial Forces or those of any British dominion, colony, dependency or protectorate, the Mercantile Marine, nurses or staffs of hospitals, or to civilians of either sex while serving in either regular or temporary capacity during naval, military, or air force operations. It is awarded only "for most conspicuous bravery or some daring or pre-eminent act of valour or self-sacrifice or extreme devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy." For additional conduct of similar bravery, a Bar is added. The ribbon was formerly red for the Army and blue for the Navy, but is now crimson for all services. An annuity of £10 a year accompanies the decoration, plus £5 a year for every Bar granted; payable to ranks below commission ranks from the date of the act which concerns the award. Navy, Army and Royal Air Force regulations provide for the annuity to be increased to the maximum of £75, including any other pension from public funds where officers and other ranks are incapable of earning a livelihood by reason of age or infirmity occasioned by a cause outside the recipient's control. Since June 17th, 1943, the financial responsibility has been assumed by the Canadian Government, and the pound sterling is deemed to have a value of $5.00 in Canadian currency where this is concerned.

HONOURS (CANADA)

For some years after Confederation awards were made of a few hereditary honours and some knight-hoods and companionships in orders of chivalry, and this policy continued until the end of the first Great War.

On May 22, 1919, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Robert L. Borden, a resolution adopted by the House of Commons requested His Majesty to refrain from granting titular honours to Canadian citizens in the future. This policy was reversed in 1933 when, during the premiership of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, the Canadian Government recommended a number of such awards, which were duly granted on New Year's Day, 1934. Although titular honours were again conferred in 1935, the new administration which took office later that year under the premiership of the Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King revived the previous policy of the Government of 1919, and no titular honours have been recommended or awarded since that time.

On July 24, 1942, a Special Committee on Honours and Decorations reported to the House as follows:

- "As a result of their deliberations your Committee desire to make the following recommendations:
- (1) That His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada be eligible for the award of Honours and Decorations, including awards in the Orders of Chivalry, which do not involve titles.
 - (2) That His Majesty's Government in Canada consider a submission to His Majesty the King, of proposals for the establishment of an Order limited in number but not involving a title, for which His Majesty's subjects domiciled or ordinarily resident in Canada shall alone be eligible."

During the second Great War a large number of decorations were awarded to members of the armed forces and to civilians for war service; in 1943 the Canada Medal was instituted but no awards were made. On July 1, 1946 the last Canadian honours list terminated decorations for war service for civilians. No awards in orders of chivalry have since been given to Canadian civilians. Recommendations are made from time to time for the award to civilians of decorations in recognition of exceptional bravery.

In 1967 Prime Minister L. B. Pearson announced the creation of the Order of Canada.

THE ORDER OF CANADA

The Right Honourable L. B. Pearson announced in a statement to the House of Commons on April 17th, 1967, the creation of the Order of Canada. The Centennial of Confederation provided a particularly appropriate time to institute the Order of Canada and the first awards were made on July 6, 1967.

The Order of Canada comprises three awards which when worn by Canadians take precedence over all other awards except the Victoria Cross and the George Cross: (1) Companion of the Order of Canada (2) The Medal of Courage (3) The Medal of Service. The first list was made up of the names of 35 Companions of the Order and 55 recipients of the Medal of Service. As many as 50 Companions of the Order could be named in 1967, and up to 25 any year thereafter, but the number of Companions is never to exceed 150. The number of Medals of Courage that may be awarded is limited only by the high standards which the Order demands. The Governor General, Chancellor of the Order, may award the Medal of Service to a maximum of 100 persons in 1967 and 50 in any year thereafter.

The Order was conceived to fill the need for a distinctly Canadian system of honours and awards to be used as a means of recognizing outstanding merit, conspicuous gallantry or distinguished public service in all fields of endeavour. In conformity with its distinctly Canadian character the Order includes no titles and confers no special privileges, hereditary or otherwise. Awards are made solely on the basis of merit. A Companion of the Order of Canada is entitled to place the letters "C.C." after his name. A person to whom the Medal of Courage is awarded may use the letters "C.M.", and a Medal of Service holder may similarly place the letters "S.M." after his name.

The Governor General is, by virtue of that Office, Chancellor and Principal Companion of the Order and is charged with the administration of the Order. He is aided by the Advisory Council of the Order which comprises:

- a) The Chief Justice of Canada (Chairman)
- b) The Clerk of the Privy Council
- c) The Under Secretary of State
- d) The Chairman of the Canada Council
- e) The President of the Royal Society of Canada
- f) The President of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

The Secretary to the Governor General is, by his office, Secretary General of the Order and Secretary of the Advisory Council.

Any person or organization may make nominations for appointment to the Order by writing to the Secretary General of the Order of Canada at Government House, Ottawa. Nominations are placed before the Advisory Council for consideration so that lists of those nominees who, in the opinion of the Council, are of greatest merit can be submitted to the Governor General. Appointments to membership in the Order are made by the Governor General, with the approval of the Sovereign, under an Instrument sealed with the Seal of the Order.

Three conferences helped to pave the way for Confederation—those held at Charlottetown (September 1864), Quebec City (October 1864) and London (December 1866). As all the delegates who were at the Charlottetown conferences were also in attendance at Quebec, the following list includes the names of all those who attended one or more of the three conferences.

ESTIMATED POPULATION OF CANADA BY PROVINCES AT JUNE 1, 1967

The estimated population of Canada at June 1, 1967, was 20,405,000. This figure results from a population accounting which starts with the 1966 Census, adds births and immigration, and deducts deaths and an estimate of emigration based largely on United States and United Kingdom government statistics of immigration from Canada. For each province the same general method is used as for Canada. For purposes of estimating interprovincial migration, Family Allowances statistics are used.

The 1967 estimate is distributed by provinces as follows:

Canada.....	20,405,000
Newfoundland.....	500,000
Prince Edward Island.....	109,000
Nova Scotia.....	757,000
New Brunswick.....	620,000
Québec.....	5,868,000
Ontario.....	7,149,000
Manitoba.....	963,000
Saskatchewan.....	958,000
Alberta.....	1,490,000
British Columbia.....	1,947,000
Yukon.....	15,000
Northwest Territories.....	29,000

The arms are those of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, with a "difference" to mark them as Canadian, namely on the lower third of the shield, a sprig of maple on a silver shield. The crest is a lion holding in its paw a red maple leaf, a symbol of sacrifice. The supporters are, with some slight distinctions, the lion and unicorn of the Royal Arms; the lion upholds the Union Jack, and the unicorn the ancient banner of France.

The motto — A MARI USQUE AD MARE — "From sea to sea" — is an extract from the Latin version of verse 8 of the 72nd Psalm — "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

PETITIONS TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

A petition to the House of Commons must be presented by a Member, and such Member shall be answerable that the petition does not contain "impertinent or improper matter". One person may petition the House of Commons. Petitions may be either written or printed. When there are three or more petitioners, the signatures of at least three shall be subscribed on the sheet containing the prayer of the petition.

Long usage both here and in the United Kingdom has sanctioned the rule that every petition should commence with the superscription "To the Honourable the House of Commons of Canada in Parliament assembled". Then should follow the formula "The Petition of the undersigned humbly sheweth". The subject matter of the petition then follows in the third person throughout and each paragraph should commence with the word "That".

The conclusion should be the "prayer", briefly and clearly expressing the particular object which the petitioners have in view in coming before Parliament. The petition should close with the formal words "And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray".

Ministers of the Crown receive, in addition to the sessional and expense allowances as a member, a salary of $15,000.00 and a motor car allowance of $2,000.00 per annum, except in the case of a Minister without portfolio who receives a salary of $7,500, plus the sessional and the expense allowances provided to other members; the Leader of the Opposition receives a salary of $15,000.00 plus a motor car allowance of $2,000.00 per annum, in addition to his sessional allowance of $12,000.00 and expense allowance of $6,000.00 per annum.

The Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons receives, in addition to his annual sessional allowance of $12,000.00, a salary of $6,000.00, and an allowance in lieu of apartments of $1,500.00, as well as the expense allowance granted to other members of $6,000.00.

Each member of the Commons is also allowed actual travelling expenses between his place of residence or his constituency and Ottawa in every session.

In brief, a member of the House of Commons who has contributed or elected to contribute in more than two Parliaments 6% of his sessional allowance in respect of sessions in more than two Parliaments may become eligible for an annual retiring allowance equal to five-twelfths of the total contributions he has paid or has elected to pay, subject to a maximum of $9,000.00 per annum.

PARLIAMENTARY REPRESENTATION

The Parliament of Canada comprises the Senate, being the Upper House, and the House of Commons.

THE SENATE

Senators are appointed for life; must be Canadian citizens or British subjects and 30 years of age; must own lands worth net $4,000 in the province which they represent, and must be worth $4,000 above all debts. They must be residents of the province for which appointed or of the electoral division in the Province of Quebec.

The Speaker is appointed by the Governor-General.

The Senate as originally constituted at Confederation consisted of 72 members. Through the addition of new provinces and the general growth of Canada it now has 102 members, the latest change in representation having been made March 31, 1949, with the admission of Newfoundland to Confederation. By provinces, representation is as follows: Newfoundland 6, Prince Edward Island 4, Nova Scotia 10, New Brunswick 10, Quebec 24, Ontario 24, Manitoba 6, Saskatchewan 6, Alberta 6, British Columbia 6; total 102.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

The members of the House of Commons are elected by the people. The ordinary legal limit of duration for each Parliament is five years, sitting at least once a year. The Speaker is elected by the House.

By virtue of Section 51 of the British North America Acts, 1867 to 1952, and pursuant to rules laid down therein, a redistribution measure is enacted by Parliament after each decennial census to adjust the representation in the House of Commons.

The Representation Act, 1952, increased the membership in the House of Commons from 262 to 265, effective at the general election held August 10, 1953.

Accordingly representation in the House of Commons for the 26th Parliament is as follows: Alberta 17; British Columbia 22; Manitoba 14; New Brunswick 10; Newfoundland 7; Nova Scotia 12; Ontario 85; Prince Edward Island 4; Quebec 75; Saskatchewan 17; Northwest Territories 1; and the Yukon Territory 1; making a total of 265.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENCE PRODUCTION

The Department of Defence Production (DDP) is the exclusive authority for the procurement of goods and services required by the Department of National Defence. DDP also has the responsibility for ensuring that necessary production capacity and materials are available in Canada to support the defence production program.

The Department of National Defence (DND) establishes the needs, quantities, specifications, delivery and consignment requirements, and carries out inspection while Defence Production determines the method of procurement, selects suppliers, manages the contract and ensures performance.

The Department is being restructured to act as the procurement authority on behalf of all civilian departments and agencies other than the commercially oriented Crown corporations. To meet this latter responsibility there have been established within the Department a Canadian Government Purchasing Service and a Canadian Government Supply Service, the latter including a Canadian Government Repair Service. These elements are being developed to form a future Department of Supply. General inquiries should be addressed to:

The Secretary, Department of Defence Production, Ottawa, Canada.

REGIONAL PURCHASING OFFICES

The Department maintains Regional Purchasing Offices across Canada. Their main function is to purchase items such as food, hardware, building supplies, electrical equipment, barrack stores and other defence supplies or services of a local or urgent nature which are required by Canadian Armed Forces units, civil departments and agencies located in their vicinity.

These local offices maintain their own lists of suppliers and do not use those of Head Office in Ottawa. Suppliers wishing to tender in a specific area should contact the nearest Regional Purchasing Office. The locations are:—

CANADA-UNITED STATES DEFENCE PRODUCTION SHARING PROGRAM

The Department of Defence Production is responsible in Canada for the co-ordination and administration of the Canada-United States Defence Production Sharing Program. This program, which began in 1959, is aimed at co-ordinating the defence development and production programs of Canada with those of the United States in order to make the best use of the defence industrial resources of both countries for the benefit of the common defence.

The program provides Canadian manufacturers with the opportunity to supply a wide range of defence supplies and services purchased by the United States Armed Forces in free competition with U.S. industry.

Canadian manufacturers interested in the United States defence market, which is the largest tariff-free foreign market open to Canadian industry, may obtain information and advice by directing inquiries to:

The Director, International Programs Branch, Department of Defence Production, Ottawa, Can.

DEFENCE EXPORTS TO ALLIED AND FRIENDLY COUNTRIES OTHER THAN THE UNITED STATES

The Department of Defence Production, with the assistance of the Departments of External Affairs, Trade and Commerce and National Defence also pursues an active program of generating defence exports to allied and friendly overseas countries. The objectives of the Department embrace not only the sale of finished products of Canadian manufacture, but also the promotion of joint development and production with other countries of defence equipment which may meet Canadian and foreign military requirements.

The Department maintains DDP attachés at the Canadian Diplomatic Missions in London, Paris, Bonn and Rome, as well as at NATO Headquarters in Paris. In other overseas countries the Department is represented by the resident Canadian Government Trade Commissioner.

Inquiries should be made to The Director, International Programs Branch, Department of Defence Production, Ottawa, Canada.

CANADIAN COMMERCIAL CORPORATION

As outlined above, the procurement of defence supplies and services for the Canadian armed forces is carried out in Canada by the Department of Defence Production, which is also prepared to procure for other allied and friendly governments any defence requirements they may have in Canada. For this purpose, the Canadian Commercial Corporation, which is operated by the Department of Defence Production, was established to act as the contracting and procurement agency when other countries wish to purchase defence or other supplies and services from Canada on a government-to-government basis.

Specific inquiries relating to price and availability as well as requests for general information on Canadian defence products may be directed to:

DEPARTMENT OF FORESTRY AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT

161 Laurier Ave. W., Ottawa 4

The Department of Forestry was constituted on October 1, 1960, by the Department of Forestry Act (SC, c.41), under which the Minister provides for research relating to the forest resources of Canada and the utilization of forest products. He may also promote public co-operation in forest conservation, enter into agreements with provinces or persons relating to forestry, and conduct forest surveys and provide advice and assistance regarding forest management on federal lands. The Act also provides for the establishment and regulation of forest experimental areas on Crown lands.

By Order in Council of March 5, 1964, the responsibilities of the Minister of Forestry were expanded to include the powers, duties or functions formerly exercised by the Minister of Agriculture respecting certain rural development programs under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act (ARDA), the Maritime Marshland Rehabilitation Act, and the administration of the program of freight assistance and grain storage costs on western feed grains. On May 12, 1966, Royal Assent was given to the change in the name of the Act to Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA). Under this Act (originally constituted on June 22, 1961) aid is given to rural communities enabling them to adjust to the economic, social and technological changes which have affected their livelihood. The ARDA program is federal-provincial, each province being responsible for initiating projects, carrying them out, and sharing prescribed portions of the costs with the federal government.

The name of the department was changed to Department of Forestry and Rural Development under the terms of the Government Organization Act on June 14, 1966.

INDIAN AFFAIRS BRANCH

Prior to the passing of the British North America Act, the administration of Indian Affairs was the responsibility of several provinces. In 1867, it came under the jurisdiction of the Government of Canada. From January 1950 to December 1965, Indian Affairs were administered by a branch of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. In January 1966, a new department was formed whereby Indian Affairs joined with the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources under the joint title of Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development.

The Branch is composed of a headquarters staff at Ottawa, eight regional offices and 79 field agencies. Both headquarters and regional offices employ specialists in the field of education, economic development, community development, resource management, social welfare and engineering and construction. It works in close liaison with the Medical Services Directorate of the Department of National Health and Welfare to provide medical care to Indians.

It is the primary function of the Indian Affairs Branch to assist the Indian people to participate fully in the social and economic life of the country. Underlying duties of the Branch include the management of Indian reserves and surrendered lands, the administration of band funds, estates management, enfranchisement of Indians and the administration of treaty obligations.

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRY

The Department of Industry was established in July, 1963, to promote the growth, efficiency and improvement of manufacturing industries in Canada. The Department assists Canadian industries to adapt to technological changes and variations in domestic and export markets, aids potentially sound industries to overcome problems of growth and development and promotes industrial research and development activity.

In addition it creates and administers programs to strengthen economic development in areas of high unemployment and slow growth. It also performs a liaison function by keeping other government departments aware of the effects of legislative programs on Canadian industrial growth.

The Department has 10 operational branches, each concerned with an industry grouping: Aerospace Chemicals; Apparel and Textiles; Electrical and Electronics; Food Products; Machinery; Materials; Mechanical Transport; Marine and Rail; and Wood Products.

The National Design Branch is responsible for promoting and encouraging good design in Canadian industry.

Each of these branches is prepared to help companies with their industry development problems. Inquiries regarding the department's operations or requests for details of the programs outlined hereunder should be addressed to the director of the appropriate branch, Department of Industry, Ottawa, Canada. Information of a general nature not related to a particular industry or program may be obtained by writing to the Information Services, Department of Industry, Ottawa, Canada.

AREA DEVELOPMENT AGENCY

Area development incentives are presently granted to manufacturing or processing enterprises locating or located in a "Designated Area", with three main benefits available: (1) Development Grants in the form of cash or an equivalent tax credit of up to one-third of the capital cost of new machinery and equipment and new buildings; (2) Accelerated Capital Cost Allowances of up to 50% per annum, straight line, on new production machinery and equipment; (3) Accelerated Capital Cost Allowances of up to 20% per annum, straight line, on new buildings and significant extensions to existing buildings.

Grants will apply only to new or expanded manufacturing or processing enterprises located in a Designated Area and will be confined to machinery, equipment and buildings on a formula basis.

Inquiries should be directed to the Area Development Agency, Department of Industry, Ottawa 4, Canada.

AUTOMOTIVE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE

The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program for the automotive parts industry was introduced by the Federal Government on June 28, 1965.

This program grew out of the Canada-United States Automotive Agreement which provides for limited tariff-free trade in automobiles and automobile parts between the two countries. The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program is designed to give assistance to firms desirous of taking advantage of the new opportunities provided by the Agreement, but which are unable to do so for lack of sufficient capital for expansion.

The Automotive Adjustment Assistance Program is administered by the Adjustment Assistance Board. The board is authorized to make loans at six per cent to enable eligible manufacturers of automotive parts, tooling manufacturers and suppliers of materials to expand or modernize existing facilities or to acquire new plant and equipment, and for working capital. Loans for lands and buildings are repayable over a 20-year period, while those for machinery and equipment are made for a period not to exceed 10 years.

TARIFF REMISSIONS

Firms engaged in the manufacture of automotive parts may apply for tariff remissions on imported machinery and equipment used in the production of original equipment automotive parts, accessories and tooling when such machinery and equipment are not available from Canadian manufacturers in time to meet production schedules. They may also apply for remission of sales tax levied against such duty.

In order to obtain remissions of duties and sales tax, a firm must make an application to the Adjustment Assistance Board, which will examine each application to determine whether the machinery or equipment could have been obtained from Canadian producers within reasonable time.

Applications will be considered for machinery and equipment imported on or after August 1, 1965. Machinery and equipment imported before that date are eligible for consideration if they were for use initially in the production of 1967 model year requirements.

Inquiries regarding the Adjustment Assistance and Tariff Remission Programs should be made to the Secretary, Adjustment Assistance Board, Department of Industry, Ottawa, Canada.

PROGRAM FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY (P.A.I.T.)

This program was established by the Department of Industry in July, 1965. Its basic aim is to help industry upgrade its technology and expand its innovation activity by underwriting specific development projects which involve a significant advance in technology and which, if successful, offer good prospects for commercial exploitation. Assistance under the program is available to individual Canadian companies for development projects to be carried out and exploited in Canada.

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INCENTIVES ACT (I.R.D.I.A.)

The Industrial Research and Development Incentives Act, enacted in March 1967, is administered by the Department of Industry. The purpose of the Act is to assist Canadian industry to undertake new scientific research and development programs, expand existing ones, and provide well-equipped facilities for such work. The incentives are available to all taxable Canadian corporations.

Grants will equal 25 per cent of capital expenditures made by an applicant for scientific research and development carried out in Canada in the year, and 25 per cent of the increase in eligible current expenditures made by the applicant in Canada over the average of such expenditures in a base period consisting of the five immediately preceding years. Grants made under the Act are exempt from federal income tax and do not reduce the capital cost of assets for the purpose of claiming capital cost allowance under the Income Tax Act.

Copies of the Application for Grant form and a pamphlet entitled "Instructions for Making an Application for a Grant Under the Industrial Research and Development Incentives Act", which provides detailed information, instructions and formats to be used in conjunction with the Application for Grant form, may be obtained by writing to IRDIA, Department of Industry, Ottawa 4, Canada.

BEAM PROGRAM

The Building Equipment, Accessories and Materials Program (BEAM) has recently been established to assist productivity and efficiency in the manufacture and use of building equipment, accessories and materials. The Department of Industry, in co-operation with industry advisory committees, seeks the following objectives:

- Establishment of construction information systems to obtain, catalogue, keep up to date and transmit useful information about building products to manufacturers and users.
- Adoption of modular coordination.
- Industrialization of the building process by encouraging factory fabrication and pre-assembly of building materials and components.
- Wider application of the National Building Code, more adequate standards and improved methods of assessing new products and systems.
- Design improvement through design awards programs.

For further information on the BEAM program write: Director, Materials Branch, Department of Industry, Ottawa 4.

Inquiries concerning the P.A.I.T. and Incentive for Research and Development programs should be addressed to the director of the appropriate branch referred to above. If an inquiry does not relate to a specific industry it should be addressed to the Industrial Research Adviser, Department of Industry, Ottawa, Canada.

DEFENCE DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

The purpose of the program is to sustain technological capability in Canadian industry by providing financial assistance for the development of military equipment for export.

Under the program, costs of selected development projects are shared by the Department and the Canadian firm concerned and in many instances by the Government of the United States or one of our other allies.

Inquiries should be made to the director of the appropriate operational branch.

ASSISTANCE TO THE SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY

On January 1, 1966, a new schedule of subsidy payments on ship construction was inaugurated at a level of 25 per cent for a period of three years. Starting in the fourth year this rate will be reduced by two per cent each year until a subsidy level of 17 per cent is reached in 1972. The new subsidy rate will not apply to vessels or floating structures which are not considered to be vessels in the orthodox sense. The current 50 per cent rate of subsidy still applies for steel fishing trawlers.

Coincident with the introduction of the new subsidy rate, the Canadian content requirement in the administration of the subsidy has been withdrawn to enable the industry to take full advantage of the free entry provided under the Canadian tariff for various items used in ship construction. The accelerated depreciation of 33 per cent straight line for ships built in Canada has been continued.

THE NATIONAL DESIGN BRANCH

The National Design Branch is the operational arm of the National Design Council, whose object is to promote the improvement of design of Canadian products and to assist industry and business in the following ways:

Design Promotion in Industry

A series of industry-government co-operative programs is initiated annually consisting of: the selection of well-designed products manufactured in Canada; design clinics for achieving design improvement; and the promotion of well-designed products through awards, publicity, publications and displays.

Research and Development of Design

Important sectors of the Canadian economy are studied to determine significant product categories in which design improvement could be of benefit to the industries concerned. Design criteria are prepared in close co-operation with industry, business, the professions, and consumers, and can be used as a guide to industry in the design of new products.

Professional Development

Scholarships and grants are offered annually to encourage advanced training in industrial design, to assist research in design subjects and support the promotion of industrial design in Canada.

Canadian Register of Designers

A record of design services is maintained for the convenience of manufacturers and others seeking information on designers and design services available in Canada. The Register also helps them to locate designers with qualifications suited to their needs.

Design Library

A library of reference books and periodicals is available. Films, film strips, slides, and posters on design subjects are also made available to educational institutions, professional and other groups.

Exhibitions and Displays

The Department operates a Design Centre in Toronto at 131 Bloor Street West, whose purpose is to encourage and support new and improved product design, and to focus the attention of manufacturers, distributors, domestic and foreign buyers, and the public, on the merits of good design. The Centre contains a large display area and also features the Canadian Design Index, a design library and conference room furnished with audio-visual equipment. It is anticipated that a second Design Centre will be established in Montreal in the near future.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE

From Confederation on July 1, 1867, until May 17, 1918, Customs and Inland Revenue Acts were administered by two separate government departments known as the Department of Customs, constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 43), and the Department of Inland Revenue constituted by statute (31 Vic. Chap. 49). On May 18, 1918, by Order in Council these two Departments were amalgamated and combined under the name of the Department of Customs and Inland Revenue and under one Minister of the Crown.

On April 1, 1921, the name Inland Revenue was dropped and the Department of Customs and Excise constituted (11-12 Geo. V. 26).

The collection of Income Tax was placed under the control of the Minister of Customs and Excise on April 1, 1924, and by the Department of National Revenue Act (17 Geo. V. Chap. 34) the name was changed to the Department of National Revenue.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

The Public Service Commission was first established in 1908 under the provisions of the Civil Service Amendment Act, 1908 (S.C. 1907-08, Chapter 15) which introduced the principle of selection by order of merit as established by competitive examination. The Act did not, however, apply to positions outside of Ottawa. The Civil Service Act, 1918 (S.C. 1918, Chapter 12)—placed the entire service under the Commission. On April 1, 1962 a new Act came into force (S.C. 1960-61, Chapter 57) preserving the independence of the Commission and maintaining the fundamental principles of the merit system.

When the Public Service Employment Act (S.C. 1966-67, Chapter 71), March 13, 1967, came into effect the Commission was relieved of its responsibilities for classification, determination of pay and conditions of work, for consultation with staff associations on matters now the subject of collective bargaining. The major portion of its energies is devoted to staffing the public service (an expanded jurisdiction including the former civil service) according to the merit principle. It can delegate its authority wherever practical, though not its responsibility to Parliament. The Commission also hears appeals on appointments, demotion, or release, provides a central management consulting service and offers training and staff development services.

The Commission, which reports to Parliament, consists of a Chairman and two additional members, appointed by the Governor in Council. A Commissioner holds office during good behaviour for a period of ten years from the date of appointment, and may be removed during that period only by the Governor in Council upon address of the Senate and the House of Commons. On the expiration of the first or a subsequent term of office a Commissioner may be reappointed for a further term of ten years. A Commissioner may not hold any other office in the Public Service or engage in any other employment.

The general powers and duties of the Commission as laid down in the Act are: (a) appoint or provide for the appointment of qualified persons to or from within the Public Service in accordance with the provisions and principles of this Act; (b) operate and assist deputy heads in the operation of staff training and development programs in the Public Service; (c) engage competent persons to assist the Commission in the performance of its duties; (d) establish boards to make recommendations to the Commission on matters referred to such boards under section 6, to render decisions on appeals made to such boards under sections 21 and 31 and to render decisions on matters referred to such boards under section 32; (e) report to the Governor in Council upon such matters arising out of or relating to the administration or operation of this Act and the regulations as the Commission considers desirable; and (f) perform such other duties and functions with reference to the Public Service as are assigned to it by the Governor in Council.

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE

The Department became operational on December 3, 1892. Its work today is predominantly the promotion of Canada's export trade, although it performs some functions in the domestic commerce field in connection with standards. It is also responsible for tourism promotion.

In its export promotion activities it provides services to Canadian businessmen in two broad areas: trade policy and trade promotion. Its Trade Policy Service works to obtain for Canadian exports the best possible terms of access to foreign markets. The Office of Trade Relations is concerned primarily with tariffs and other government trade regulations in foreign countries, participating in the development and conduct of Canada's external trade relations. As a service to Canadian exporters it maintains and supplies upon request detailed information about rates of duty, import restrictions, documentation requirements and other government measures in foreign markets, and provides assistance in dealing with special problems in this field. The Office of Commodity Trade Policy carries out detailed studies of the needs and prospects of Canadian industries on a commodity, sector or project basis with a view to the formulation of trade policies.

The Trade Promotion Service involves three specialized Offices—Commodities and Industries, External Trade Services and Promotional Support Services—and the Financing and Aid Branch.

The principal concern of the Office of Commodities and Industries is to find Canadian sources of supply to match foreign demand. Close liaison with Canadian companies is maintained to develop the information on materials, products and services for export which forms the basis of departmental trade promotional and trade supporting activities.

The Office of External Trade Services comprises the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner Service, the overseas arm of the Department, responsible for trade promotion operations outside of Canada. The Office of Promotional Support Services is concerned with publicity, the Department's trade fairs and trade missions programmes, transportation as it affects foreign trade, export controls and the regional offices of the Department in Canada. The Canadian Government Exhibition Commission is an important part of this Office.

The Financing and Aid Branch is the focal point for the Department's interest in the relevance of export financing and Canada's Foreign Aid programme to the export of Canadian goods and services.

The Office of Tourism encompasses the Canadian Government Travel Bureau and the Tourist Industry Branch, and is the focal point for coordination and cooperation on tourist matters between the federal and provincial authorities, transportation and accommodation industries.

INCOME TAXES

(Imposed by Federal Legislation)

The Government of Canada levies income taxes on corporations and individuals in accordance with The Income Tax Act as enacted by Chapter 148, Revised Statutes of Canada 1952, as amended.

CORPORATIONS

Rates of tax applicable to taxable income for the year 1967 are as follows

18% on the first $35,000 of taxable income.

47% on taxable income in excess of $35,000.

Plus Old Age Security Tax of 3% of taxable income.

Certain corporations are required to pay a refundable tax based on 5% of a "Corporate tax base" for each taxation year falling within, or partly within, the period commencing 1st May 1966, and ending 31st March 1967. This tax together with interest at 5% will be refunded to the taxpayer in a subsequent period.

Where a corporation has taxable income earned in the provinces of Canada in a taxation year an abatement in respect of provincial taxes of federal taxes exclusive of Old Age Security Tax and before deduction therefrom of any amount in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes is authorized. The amount of this tax abatement for 1967 is equal to 10% of the corporation's taxable income earned in a province but not that earned in the Northwest Territories, the Yukon Territory or outside Canada, such taxable income in either case being determined in accordance with federal regulations.

Deductions—

Deductions which are allowed under certain circumstances in the determination of the taxable income of a corporation include:

Business losses incurred by the corporation in the five previous years and in the immediately following year.

Charitable donations up to 10% of income.

Dividends received from taxable Canadian corporations.

225,000	137,820 plus 75%	on next	175,000
400,000	269,070 plus 80%	on remainder

The tax calculated by applying the above table and reduced by an amount equal to 20% of the dividends (less appropriate charges) received from taxable Canadian corporations, is known as "basic tax".

The "basic tax" may be reduced by the following abatements or deductions, where applicable, in arriving at an individual's Federal Income Tax.

Abatement for Provincial Taxes:

Where an individual is subject to tax under provincial legislation and resided in a province on the last day of a year (or at date of death or date of departure from Canada) and had no income earned in the year outside a province the amount of the "abatement for provincial taxes" in 1967 is 28% of "basic tax" in respect of income earned in all provinces except Quebec and 50% of "basic tax" in respect of income earned in Quebec. Where the individual is subject to tax under provincial legislation and resided in a province on the last day of the year and had income earned in the year outside a province or if the individual did not reside in a province on the last day of the year but had income earned in the year in a province the amount of the deduction is an amount that bears the same relation to the "abatement for provincial taxes" that his income earned in the year in a province bears to his income for the year.

General Abatement:

All individuals may claim an abatement for 1967 equal to the lesser of $20.00 or 20% of the "basic tax".

Other Deductions:

Under certain circumstances an individual may be entitled to a deduction from tax in respect of payments he has made for foreign taxes or provincial logging taxes.

Individuals are also subject to an old age security tax of the lesser of 4% of their taxable income or $240.

Personal Exemptions

- $2,000 for married status.
- $1,000 for single status.
- $300 for each dependent eligible for family allowance
- $550 for each dependent not eligible for family allowance.
- $500 additional if taxpayer has attained age of 70 before year end.

$500 additional for a taxpayer who is 65 or over but under 70 and no Old Age Security pension has been authorized to be paid to him for any month in the year.

$500 additional if taxpayer is totally blind or confined throughout the taxation year to a bed or wheelchair and does not include the amount of remuneration for an attendant or care in a nursing home in calculating a deduction for medical expenses.

Other Deductions

Other deductions which are allowed under certain circumstances in determination of taxable income include:

Charitable donations up to 10% of net income.
 Medical expenses in excess of 3% of net income with exception of those for which taxpayer is reimbursed under Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

Every corporation must file a return within six months of the end of its fiscal year.

Limitations of space prevent complete reproduction of The Income Tax Act, which contains numerous exceptions and limitations to the content outlined above. It is, therefore, recommended that the reader refer to the Act in specific cases. Copies of the Act may be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Department of Public Printing and Stationery, Ottawa.

INCOME TAXES

(Imposed by Provincial Legislation)

All provinces of Canada (exclusive of the North West Territories and the Yukon) levy taxes on income of both corporations and individuals. With the exception of the taxes levied by the Province of Quebec and the tax levied by the Province of Ontario on corporations all taxes levied by the several provinces on income are collected for them by the Government of Canada under the terms of collection agreements entered into between it and the several provinces.

CORPORATIONS

In all provinces other than Ontario and Quebec the tax is levied on corporations having a permanent establishment in the province at any time in the year at a rate applied to taxable income earned in the province in the year computed in accordance with federal regulations. The 1967 rate for Manitoba, Newfoundland and Saskatchewan is 11% and for other provinces, exclusive of Ontario and Quebec, is 10%.

In Ontario tax is levied on corporations in accordance with the provisions of The Corporations Tax Act, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960, c.73 and amendments. In Quebec tax is levied on corporations in accordance with the provisions of the Corporation Tax Act, Statutes of the Province of Quebec, 1947, c.33 and amendments. Reference should be made to these statutes for details.

INDIVIDUALS

In all provinces a tax is levied on individuals who resided in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) and on individuals who were not resident in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the province during the year. Income earned in the province during the year is determined under federal regulations. Where the individual resided in the province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) and had no income earned in the taxation year outside the province the tax is computed as a percentage of the federal tax exclusive of Old Age Security Tax and before any deduction therefrom in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes. The 1967 percentage in Manitoba and Saskatchewan is 33% and for other provinces, exclusive of Quebec is 28%. Where the individual resided in a province on the last day of the taxation year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the year outside a province or where the individual did not reside in a province on the last day of the year (or on date of death or date of departure from Canada) but had income earned in the year in a province the tax is the amount that bears the same relation to the percentage of the federal tax, exclusive of Old Age Security Tax and before any deduction therefrom in respect of foreign taxes and provincial logging taxes, that his income earned in the year in the province bears to his income for the year.

For particulars of the tax rate in Quebec reference should be made to the Provincial Income Tax Act, Statutes of Quebec 1953-54, c. 17 and amendments thereto.

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Honorary Commissioner, HER MAJESTY QUEEN ELIZABETH II

In 1873 the North West Mounted Police was constituted (36 Vic. Chap. 35) to provide Police protection in the unsettled portions of the North West. In 1904 the title "Royal" was given to the Force. In 1920 the Dominion Police was amalgamated with this Force and the name changed to "Royal Canadian Mounted Police." The headquarters was moved from Regina to Ottawa and the Force may now be called upon to perform duties in any portion of the Dominion. In 1928 the Royal Canadian Mounted Police absorbed the Saskatchewan Provincial Police and in 1932 the Provincial Police Forces of Alberta, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were absorbed in like manner. During the year 1932, the Force also assumed the administration of the Preventive Service Branch of the Department of National Revenue. On August 1, 1950, the duties of the Newfoundland Rangers and certain members of the Newfoundland Constabulary were taken over by the R.C.M.P., and on the 15th of the same month the British Columbia Provincial Police were similarly absorbed. These arrangements were made by agreements between the respective Provincial Governments concerned and the Federal Government. The term of engagement in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is five years. Recruits are trained at Regina, Saskatchewan and Penhold, Alberta. At a recent date the Force had 158 horses, 29 Police Service Dogs, 231 Sleigh Dogs, 2167 cars, 241 trucks, 21 motorcycles, 21 aircraft, 62 boats, with a total strength of the Force, including Civilian Employees 10,411.

CANADA'S ARMED FORCES

The Canadian Armed Forces are controlled and administered by an integrated Canadian Forces Headquarters at Ottawa. The Chief of the Defence Staff is the senior officer of the forces and of this Headquarters. The Headquarters is organized under four Branch Heads—the Vice Chief of the Defence Staff, Chief of Personnel, Chief of Technical Services and the Comptroller General. In addition, there is a secretary to the Defence Staff.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY

The primary role of the Royal Canadian Navy continues to be anti-submarine warfare which is organic to all forms of maritime operations. Projects are underway to improve the capability of Canadian warships in other forms of warfare, particularly anti-air defence, fire support for land operations, defence against other warships and sealift for land forces. It is planned that the Canadian Maritime Force by itself or in conjunction with the maritime forces of our allies will have a good capability for the direct protection of Canada, as a contribution to NATO maritime forces, and for peacekeeping/peace-restoring tasks.

The Royal Canadian Navy comes under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff in Ottawa. The Commander, Maritime Command, at Halifax, N.S., exercises operational and administrative command of all ships, aircraft, submarines and Canadian Forces Bases assigned to Maritime Command on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. The Deputy-Commander Maritime Command, as Commander Maritime (Pacific), is located at Esquimalt, B.C., and exercises command and control of forces in the Pacific area. Included in Maritime Command are the following Canadian Forces Bases: Halifax, Esquimalt, Greenwood, Summerside, and Shearwater.

There are naval elements in the Canadian Defence Liaison Staffs at London and Washington. As a result of Canada's NATO commitments, officers with maritime experience serve on the staffs of: The Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, at Norfolk, Va., in the USA; Commander-in-Chief, Eastern Atlantic Area, at Northwood in the United Kingdom; and Commander-in-Chief, Western Atlantic Area, at Norfolk, Va. The Commander Maritime Command holds the NATO appointment of Commander, Canadian Atlantic Sub-Area.

With the continuing process of integration, officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy are also serving in other functional commands such as: Training Command, Materiel Command and Mobile Command. This re-organization has also resulted in the Canadian Forces Base concept whereby the support functions of the Navy, Army, and Air Force in a particular area have been amalgamated into one entity, the Base, which serves all services and commands in that location.

In September, 1967 the Royal Canadian Navy had 36 ships in commission. Two "O" Class submarines are now in service and a third is under construction in the United Kingdom. RN submarines are no longer serving on loan with the RCN.

Sea trials to evaluate the development hydrofoil ship HMCS BRAS D'OR are expected to start in 1968. TERRA NOVA is being fitted with new equipment for trials and a four-year conversion programme for the remaining 6 ships of the RESTIGOUCHE class will begin in 1968. Four new destroyer escorts, with helicopter capabilities, are scheduled to enter service by the early 1970's.

ROYAL CANADIAN SEA CADET CORPS

Admiral of the Sea Cadets, H.R.H. The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh

Organized December 16th, 1895 by the Navy League of Canada, Sea Cadet Corps were subsequently organized in various centres across Canada and, up to and including June 1st, 1941, these Cadet Services were operated by the Navy League. Following June 1st, 1941 the Royal Canadian Navy upon invitation of the Navy League of Canada became a joint partner with the league with respect to its Royal Canadian Sea Cadet movement, since which time the Royal Canadian Navy has assumed the responsibility of certain jurisdiction, training and supervision of Sea Cadet Corps, and the operation of summer training establishments, with the Navy League being responsible for administration and general operation of Corps and the providing of Corps training quarters.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN SEA CADETS

The Navy League of Canada, comprising 14 autonomous divisions under the National Council, sponsors the RCSCC, with the RCN being responsible for training, administration, and the furnishing of uniforms and equipment. There are 173 authorized corps in Canada, divided into seven Sea Cadet areas, supervised by 15 naval officers, responsible to the Commanding Officer, Naval Divisions at Hamilton, Ont. On Mar. 31, 1967 there were 10,143 Sea Cadets in Canada.

THE CANADIAN ARMY

ORGANIZATION

The Canadian Army is under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff and is controlled and administered by Canadian Forces Headquarters in Ottawa.

The Canadian Army comprises the Canadian Army (Regular) and the Reserves. The Canadian Army (Regular) consists of four Infantry Brigade Groups and those units required for command and control, training, administration and logistic support.

The Reserves include the Canadian Army (Militia), the Regular Reserve, the Supplementary Reserve, the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, the Cadet Services of Canada and the Reserve Militia.

The strength of the Canadian Army (Regular), was 42,646 officers and men as of June 30, 1967 and the strength of the Canadian Army (Militia) was 32,026 as of 31st July 1965.

OPERATIONS

In fulfilment of our military obligation under the North Atlantic Treaty, Canada has continued to provide ground forces, one Infantry Brigade Group, for the defence of Western Europe. The Headquarters for the Brigade Group is at Soest. In addition, Canada has assigned two Battalion Groups to the Supreme Allied Commander Europe for employment as part of Allied Command Europe Mobile Force.

These Battalions are located in Canada and can be air-lifted as required.

Canadian membership in the International Supervisory Commissions of Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia resulted in the Canadian Army providing 65 officers and men for Truce Supervisory duties.

The Canadian Army provides 9 officers to the United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan and 20 officers to the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine as well as a contingent totalling 880 officers and men to the United Nations Force in Cyprus. In addition plans are in being to be able to provide additional forces for service under or in support of the United Nations.

Canada is providing the Governments of Ghana and Tanzania with Armed Forces personnel to train and advise their military forces. The Canadian Army contributes 20 officers and men to the team in Ghana and 28 officers and men to the team in Tanzania. In Canada officers and officer cadets from Tanzania, Ghana, Zambia, Jamaica and Malaysia are receiving training in Canadian Army schools.

The Canadian Army is responsible for the conduct of those aspects of National Survival and Civil Defence operations which were assigned to the Department of National Defence by the Civil Defence Order, PC1959/656 as amended by PC 1963/993.

EQUIPMENT

The Canadian Army Equipment Development Program continues to concentrate on those fields particularly suited to Canadian capabilities and in which there are special Canadian needs. Canadian Army participation in materiel and non-materiel standardization programs with the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia and NATO continues. Additional agreements reached with allied armies affecting procedures and equipment enhanced their capability for cooperative operations.

The M113 Armoured Personnel Carrier has been introduced into service to provide the mobility required of modern land combat forces. Both light and heavy helicopters together with various types of fixed wing "conventional" aircraft continue to be procured in order to provide a better operational and training capability.

THE MILITIA

A District Commander may authorize members of the Militia to be paid up to 75 days pay in one year. The majority of militiamen, however, receive about 40 days of paid training at evening parades, week-end training and up to two weeks summer camp. Selected militiamen can be attached to regular force units for short periods.

THE REGULAR OFFICER TRAINING PLAN (ROTP)

The Regular Officer Training Plan is in effect at the three Canadian Services Colleges and at all Canadian universities and affiliated colleges which have contingents of the COTC. Training consists of academic and military studies, drill and physical training during the academic year; the summer term is devoted to practical training at military establishments.

THE CANADIAN OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS (COTC)

In addition to the Regular Officer Training Plan, units of the Canadian Officers Training Corps are maintained at Canadian universities to produce officers for the reserve components of the Army. University graduates who have been members of the Canadian Officers Training Corps are also eligible for commissions in the Canadian Army (Regular). Members of the COTC undertake the first and second phases of training of the ROTP three phase programme.

ROYAL CANADIAN ARMY CADETS

Colonel-in-Chief: The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh

Address—Canadian Forces Headquarters, Deputy Chief (Reserve) Ottawa.

The Army Cadet organization stems from the "Drill Associations" formed in Colleges and Schools during and after the American Civil War, 1861-1866. The first cadet corps, as such, date from the year 1879.

In 1942, the Department of National Defence expanded the Army Cadet organization, regularized the training, clothing and equipment. Officers of the Cadet Service of Canada, a sub-component of the Army Reserve with an establishment of 2,900, have, with assistance from the Canadian Army (Regular) the responsibility for the training and administration of Army Cadets.

In 1956 the establishment for Army Cadets was raised to 75,000.

The strength of the Royal Canadian Army Cadets as of Mar. 31, 1967 was 56,894 enrolled in 504 cadet corps.

Cadet summer camps are located at Aldershot, N.S., Farnham, P.Q., Ipperwash, Ont., Clear Lake, Man., Rivers, Man., Banff, Alta., and Vernon, B.C.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

The Royal Canadian Air Force officially sets April 1, 1924, as its birthday. The foundations were laid during the First World War when nearly 22,000 Canadians flew as members of the British Air Forces.

The Royal Canadian Air Force comes under the central authority of the Chief of the Defence Staff and is administered by Canadian Forces Headquarters at Ottawa.

The role of the R.C.A.F. is to provide operational forces for:

- (a) A contribution to the air defence of North America as specified by the NORAD agreements.
- (b) A contribution to the maritime defence of North America in conjunction with the RCN and United States forces as specified by NATO and Canada-U.S. agreements.
- (c) An air component to the NATO forces in Europe.
- (d) Airlift and support operations for the armed forces in Canada and overseas.
- (e) Air search and rescue and co-ordination of marine search and rescue in Canada and approaches thereto.
- (f) A contribution to National Survival Operations.
- (g) United Nations military operations, as agreed in each instance by the Government of Canada.

The organization includes 19 flying squadrons of the RCAF Regular and 6 flying squadrons of the Reserve. The Reserve squadrons are assigned a light transport and emergency and rescue role. Three of the Regular squadrons contribute to the air defence of North America as a component of NORAD; 6 squadrons are assigned to the NATO air forces of Western Europe; 4 squadrons are required for RCAF transport operations at home and abroad; 4 maritime squadrons operate in conjunction with the RCN and US forces as a contribution to the maritime defence of North America and one tactical support and reconnaissance squadron operates as required in Canada. The 19th squadron has been formed and will be active in 1968 in the Tactical transport role in support of the mobile forces.

Canada is providing the Governments of Ghana and Tanzania with Armed Forces personnel to train and advise their military forces. The RCAF contributes two officers to the Ghana Team and 54 officers and men to the Tanzanian Team. In Canada officers, officer cadets and airmen from Tanzania, Malaysia, and Jamaica are receiving training in RCAF training schools.

The strength of the Royal Canadian Air Force on 30 June, 1967 was 45,158 officers and men in the Regular Force and 847 in the Auxiliary Air Force.

Air Defence Command operates the Pinetree Line as an integral part of North American Air Defence Command (NORAD) and contributes to the manning of the Distant Early Warning Line. (DEW)

RCAF Reserve—The active sub-components of the RCAF reserves are designated as the Auxiliary and the Primary Reserve.

There are six Auxiliary Flying Squadrons. The squadrons are maintained to train a reserve of air-crew and operate in an emergency transport role.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR CADETS

Air Cadet activities in Canada are sponsored and administered by the Air Cadet League of Canada. The League is a voluntary civilian organization created solely for this purpose and was formed in 1940 to provide preliminary aviation training for potential members of the Royal Canadian Air Force. In peacetime the object of Air Cadet training is to produce better citizens through air-age education. The Royal Canadian Air Force works jointly with the League and provides training personnel, syllabi and equipment. During the war, the Royal Canadian Air Cadets reached a peak enrolment of 30,000. The authorized peacetime strength ceiling is 28,000 and the strength as of 31 May, 1967 was approximately 26,620 enrolled in 368 squadrons across Canada. Air Cadet Training is carried out in more than 250 communities, both large and small, from Newfoundland to British Columbia.

THE CANADIAN SERVICES COLLEGES

(For staff lists, see Index)

Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont.
Royal Roads, Victoria, B.C.

Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean,
Saint-Jean, Que.

The Royal Military College of Canada was founded in 1876 at Kingston, Ont. Royal Roads was established in 1941 near Victoria, B.C., as a school for naval officers. In September, 1948, both Colleges were constituted as the Canadian Services Colleges to provide a joint educational and training program for the three Armed Forces of Canada. Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean was opened in 1952 at Saint-Jean, Quebec, as the third member of the Canadian Services Colleges.

The role of the Canadian Services Colleges is to educate and train cadets for careers as commissioned officers of the Canadian Forces. Courses of instruction are designed to develop character, to provide a balanced and liberal education leading to degrees in Arts, Science and Engineering which can be granted by the Royal Military College of Canada, and to provide a broad basic military education. The tri-service program at Royal Military College, Royal Roads and Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean recognizes the fundamental qualities common to the training of officers in all branches of The Canadian Forces and thereby, seeks to weld a common understanding in matters of National defence.

On entry into one of the Canadian Services Colleges applicants are enrolled as Regular Force Subordinate Officers in the Canadian Forces. Provision is made for the entry of a limited number of:

(a) Dominion cadets—the sons of persons who were killed, died or are severely incapacitated as a result of service in a component of the Canadian Forces or the Canadian Merchant Marine during hostilities. Dominion cadets enter the Reserve Force and receive free tuition during the first academic year at a Service College.

(b) Reserve Cadets who pay tuition and other fees during the duration of the course.

On graduation from the Royal Military College of Canada subordinate officers are promoted to commissioned rank.

Educational requirements are senior matriculation for admission to the first year at the Royal Military College of Canada and Royal Roads, and junior matriculation for entry to the preparatory year at Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean.

Candidates must have reached their 16th, but not their 21st, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance with the exception of junior matriculation candidates for Collège militaire royal de Saint-Jean who must have reached their 16th but not their 20th, birthday on the first day of January preceding entrance.

THE DEFENCE RESEARCH BOARD

The Defence Research Board is the agency in the Department of National Defence responsible for scientific research. It was created in 1947 by an amendment to the National Defence Act. It provides through the Chairman scientific advice to the Minister and Associate Minister of National Defence and to the Canadian Forces.

The Board consists of a full-time Chairman and Vice-Chairman, five ex-officio members and a varying number of members selected from universities and industry appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The ex-officio members are the Deputy Minister of the Department of National Defence, the President of the National Research Council, the Chief of Defence Staff, the Vice Chief of Defence Staff and the Chief of Technical Services. The Chairman is the chief executive officer of the Board's research organization. He is a member of the Defence Council, which is the senior policy body of the Department of National Defence.

The research organization consists of eight research establishments in which an intra-mural program of research specifically oriented toward military needs is carried out.

The Board also conducts an extra-mural research program through grants-in-aid of research to universities. These investigations are usually basic in nature and seek to provide new knowledge in fields from which important military developments are likely to arise.

Support is also provided to industry with the object of promoting and strengthening the research capability of Canada's defence industry. This is a program of applied research of defence interest. It is financed on a cost-sharing basis with industry with each, government and industry, providing fifty percent of the funds.

International collaboration by the Defence Research Board in defence science is active throughout the western world. A very active quadripartite organization with Britain, Australia and the U.S. has been built up to ensure the fullest utilization of defence scientific knowledge, resources and facilities of these countries. In addition bilateral agreements with several NATO nations serve to enhance the interchange of defence scientific and technical knowledge in areas of mutual interest.

The Board represents Canada on a number of specialist committees through which NATO's scientific endeavours are progressed and coordinated. The Board also provides representation on the Commonwealth Defence Science Organization which fosters and promotes scientific exchanges between the countries of the Commonwealth. It maintains liaison offices in Washington, London and Paris.

CANADIAN FLAGS AND BADGES

FLAG OF GOVERNOR GENERAL

In 1930 King George V approved the design of a Flag for the Governor General of Canada that would be symbolic of the position of the Governor General as the Sovereign's personal representative. The Flag so approved is of the following description: "On a blue field, the Royal Crest,—the Imperial Crown proper, thereon a lion statant-guardant or, 'crowned proper'—subscribed 'CANADA' in black on a yellow scroll."

THE NATIONAL FLAG

The National Flag of Canada, otherwise known as the Canadian Flag, was approved by Parliament and proclaimed by Her Majesty the Queen on February 15, 1965, and is described as a red flag of the proportions two by length and one by width, containing in its centre a white square the width of the flag, bearing a single red maple leaf.

The Flag is flown on land daily from sunrise to sunset at all federal government buildings, airports, and military bases and establishments within and outside Canada, and may appropriately be flown or displayed by individuals and organizations.

The Canada Shipping Act provides that the National Flag is the proper national colours for all Canadian ships and boats; and it is the flag flown on Canadian Naval vessels.

THE ROYAL UNION FLAG

The Royal Union Flag, generally known as the Union Jack, was approved by Parliament on December 18, 1964 for continued use in Canada as a symbol of Canada's membership in the Commonwealth of Nations and of her allegiance to the Crown. It will, where physical arrangements make it possible, be flown along with the National Flag at federal buildings, airports, and military bases and establishments within Canada on the date of the official observance of the Queen's birthday, the Anniversary of the Statute of Westminster (December 11th), and on the occasions of Royal Visits and certain Commonwealth gatherings in Canada.

THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY BADGE

The badge originally was approved by King George VI in April, 1945 with nine maple leaves in the design. In July, 1952, Her Majesty The Queen approved a revision to the design to include ten maple leaves and in March, 1956, the St. Edward's Crown replaced the Tudor Crown design used prior to December, 1952.

The badge is described as follows:

"Within a garland of ten gold maple leaves, a dark blue cartouche edged in gold charged in the centre with a fowl anchor in gold; the whole ensigned by the Crown proper."

CANADIAN ARMY BADGE

The badge was approved by King George VI in 1947 and revised to introduce St Edward's Crown in 1954. It is for use by the Army as a whole on stationery, publications, and similar authorized use.

The badge is described as follows:

"Three hard maple leaves conjoined on one step upon two crossed Crusaders' swords points upwards, the whole ensigned by the Crown. (The maple leaves are red, the swords are natural colours, i.e. blades blue with guards and pommels in gold and the Crown proper)."

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE BADGE

The RCAF General Badge was approved by King George VI in January, 1943 and now includes the St. Edward's Crown in place of the Tudor Crown used prior to December, 1952.

The badge is described as follows:

"A roundel within a double circle inscribed with the motto "PER ARDUA AD ASTRA," the lower segment of the double circle charged with a single maple leaf; superimposed on the centre of the double circle and roundel an eagle volant affronté, the head to the sinister; below the circle a ribbon scroll bearing the words "ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE" and ensigning the whole, the Crown. (The roundel is light blue, the double circle and scroll dark blue, reverse of the scroll, red. The motto and title, edges of the scroll and the double circle, the eagle and the maple leaf is all in gold; the Crown proper)."

MANITOBA FLAG

The flag of the Province of Manitoba was adopted under The Provincial Flag Act, assented to May 11th, 1965. The Act came into force by proclamation on May 12, 1966. Approved by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, the flag design was prepared by the Garter King of Arms in accordance with heraldic laws and practice. The flag incorporates parts of the Royal Armorial Ensigns, namely the Union and Red Ensign; the badge in the fly of the flag is the shield of the Armorial Bearings of the Province of Manitoba granted by Royal Warrant on the tenth day of May, 1905.

Description:

A flag of the shade of red specified in the next following paragraph and the proportions two by length and one by width with the Union Jack occupying the upper quarter next the staff and with the shield of the armorial ensigns of the province centred in the half farthest from the staff.

British Admiralty Colour Code No. T1144 for nylon worsted bunting and No. T818A for other bunting.

NOVA SCOTIA FLAG

The official flag of the province of Nova Scotia is the blue cross of St. Andrew on a white field, with the Royal Lion mounted thereon. The flag was originally authorized by Charles I in 1625. In 1929, on petition of Nova Scotia, a Royal Warrant of King George V was issued, revoking the modern Arms and ordering that the original Arms granted by King Charles I be borne upon shields, banners and otherwise according to the laws of Arms. Since that time, the Nova Scotia Flag has been in continual use.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Prince Edward Island was authorized by an Act of the Legislative Assembly (Chapter II, Laws of Prince Edward Island, 1964). The design of the flag is based on the Armorial Bearings of the Province granted by Royal Warrant on May 30, 1905. The design of the Flag is that part of the Arms contained within the Shield, but is of rectangular shape, with a fringe of alternating red and white. The Chief and charge of the Arms occupies the upper one-third of the flag, and the remainder of the Arms occupies the lower two-thirds. The proportions of the flag are six, four, and one-quarter in relation to the fly, the hoist, and the depth of the fringe. The Flag was flown for the first time at 9 a.m., September 1st, 1964 on the anniversary of the 1864 Charlottetown Conference.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO FLAG

The flag of the Province of Ontario was adopted under the Flag Act of May 21, 1965. Approved by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, the flag design was prepared by the Garter King of Arms in accordance with heraldic laws and practice. The flag incorporates parts of the Royal Armorial Ensigns, namely the Union and Red Ensign; the badge in the fly of the flag is the shield of the Armorial Bearings of the Province of Ontario granted by Royal Warrant on the 26th day of May, 1868.

The flag is of the proportions two by length and one by width, with the Union Jack occupying the upper quarter next the staff and the shield of the armorial bearings of the province centred in the half farthest from the staff.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC FLAG

The official flag of the Province of Quebec was adopted by a Provincial Order-in-Council No. 72 on January 1, 1948. The flag thus adopted is generally known as the "fleurdelisé" flag. It is a white cross on a sky blue ground, with the fleur-de-lis in an upright position on the blue ground in each of the four corners of the flag.

SASKATCHEWAN JUBILEE-CENTENNIAL FLAG

Selected from entries received in open competition, the flag is to be used for Saskatchewan's sixtieth anniversary celebrations in 1965 and for the Centennial of Canadian Confederation in 1967.

The approved design consists of a yellow stem of wheat on the left and the provincial Coat of Arms in the upper right corner on a field of green and red. Golden yellow is the symbol of ripening wheat fields, green represents luxuriant vegetation, and red suggests the fires which swept the Prairies in early days before cultivation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FLAG

Certain Armorial Ensigns were recorded in the College of Arms on March 31st, 1906, and registered on May 3rd 1906. "Three silver and blue wavy bars from the bottom of which a shining half sun in natural colours, under the Union Jack bearing in the centre a golden antique crown"

During a visit to England in 1960 the Hon. W. A. C. Bennett located the original design of the flag at the College of Arms in London. The display of this flag was authorized by Order in Council dated June 20th, 1960.

FISHERY REGULATIONS, GAME LAWS, CLOSED SEASONS, LICENCES, &c.

The Canadian Government has the sole legislative authority over the fisheries of Canada, both coastal and inland, under which laws are made for the protection and conservation of the fisheries in all the provinces. The provinces, however, have property rights in the non-tidal fisheries. Over a period of years various arrangements have been made between the Federal Govt. and the provinces dividing the administrative (but not the legislative) authority over fisheries. Under these arrangements the Federal Government not only legislates but also administers the fisheries in all Canadian tidal waters except those of Quebec. In the non-tidal waters of Canada the Federal Government administers the fisheries of the Yukon, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. The non-tidal fisheries of the other provinces are administered by the provincial authorities who enforce, on behalf of the Federal Government, the Federal laws regulating the fisheries as such.

Fisheries in National Parks of Canada are under the administration of the National and Historic Parks Branch of the Federal Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa.

For further information as to fisheries regulations apply to the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa, or, in the case of National Parks, to the National and Historic Parks Branch, Ottawa. For information as to fishing licence fees in any area apply to the administrative authority indicated above.

GAME LAWS

Migratory birds are protected under a Federal law known as the Migratory Birds Convention Act, administered by the Canadian Wildlife Service, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa. Enforcement of the Act is carried out by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in co-operation with the provincial game authorities. This Act is based upon the Migratory Birds Treaty with the U.S.

With this exception, and except in National Parks, game laws are under the administration of the various provinces and territories.

A Federal law, the Game Export Act, passed in 1941, prohibits the export of game from any province or territory without permit from the province or territory. It has been proclaimed for all provinces and territories except Prince Edward Island.

Details as to closed seasons, licences, etc., are not given here, owing to the fact that regulations for the ensuing months are, in some cases, not available when this volume goes to press and where available are often subject to changes before the opening of the season.

Full information concerning the Federal laws mentioned above may be obtained by writing to the following address: Director, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa; and respecting provincial game laws by writing to the addresses given below:
