MADALYNE WAS URGING BURCH

Note Reveals She Wanted Burch to Tell Where He Was Aug. 5

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—The note that Madalynne Obernichter gave Arthur C. Burch in the county jail was admitted in evidence at the Kennedy murder trial today after a battle between opposing attorneys.

His admission was a victory for the Burch defense, inasmuch as it destroyed the presumption, left with the jury Friday, of a conspiracy between Mrs. Obernichter and the man jointly accused with her of killing John Belton Kennedy.

WOMAN IS FREED SHOOTING CASE

Charged Carney Killed as He Attempted to Break in Home

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—That Wilfred Carney of Huntington Beach, who was shot under mysterious circumstances last Saturday, came to his death as a result of an attempted assault on Mrs. Homer Pyron of Santa Ana, was the final verdict of the coroner here today, following an inquest at the Moneta avenue undertaking parlors.

Mr. and Mrs. Pyron both testified at the inquest. Only the facts of the shooting were revealed, however, the wielder of the death gun withholding the conversation that ensued prior to the fatal shot.

Carney, according to the verdict, had come to the Pyron home and had sought admittance through the front door.

Mrs. Pyron, the inquest showed, raised the front window and fired at the intruder, who died shortly after the shooting. The mother of the dead man was the only other witness to testify at the inquest. She repeated the statements made to her by her dying son following the affair.

The body of the slain man is being held at the Moneta avenue parlors, pending instructions from the mother, who was to have completed arrangements for the disposition of the remains following the inquest.

Mrs. Pyron was freed from legal responsibility for the shooting by the coroner's verdict.

A FORGERY PARIS, Jan. 3.—The alleged correspondence between Japan and France regarding a Siberian policy was today officially declared a forgery by the foregoing office.

GIRLS WIN DURING 1921 IN BIRTHS IN GLENDALE

Over 300 Births in This City During Year Just Closed

The gentler, weaker sex, or man's left rib, or whatever you will, wins again. This time it is in the matter of births in 1921. There were nine more girls born in Glendale during the year 1921 than there were boys. There were 303 births in Glendale during the year, 147 of which were boys and 156 girls.

Checking up the birth records proves an interesting hour's work. It takes on the aspect of a contest. While boys led in January, girls came back strong during February; the boys win again in March, but in April the girls took a flying leap to the head of the column and maintained this lead until June, when the boys again came into their own. This supremacy of the boys over the girls on the birth records during the month of June no doubt evens up for the supremacy of the gentler sex in the matter of June weddings. From June on, the race was practically even until the last two months of the year, when the girls beat the boys by the small margin of nine.

NEGRO SLAYER IS IN COUNTY JAIL

Admits Killing But Will Make No Statement of Reasons

J. H. Ronsse of Los Angeles is dead and John Allen, a negro deputy sheriff, is being held in the county jail as the result of a shooting affray at La Crescenta Lodge at 3 a. m. New Year's morning. Details of the shooting or the reasons for the act could not be learned from Allen, who merely admitted to Glendale officers, Captain McGuire and Patrolman Nunn, who made the arrest, that he shot Ronsse.

SECOND PRIZE IS GIVEN GLENDALE'S FLOAT IN ROSE TOURNAMENT

Most Original Design in Parade at Pasadena Is General Talk by Newspapers and Thousands Who Saw It Monday

PORTLAND, OREGON AWARDED FIRST PRIZE

Wonder Is Expressed as to Why Glendale Was Passed Up by Unknown Judges in a One-sided Contest of Beauty

Now that the Pasadena Tournament of Roses is over and Glendale was awarded second prize, after the parade, the newspapers and even the designer of the Portland float, which won first prize, unanimously awarded the first prize to Glendale.

In discussing the tournament and the awards, City Manager Reeves explained in part when he said: "There is no reason why the judges of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses should remain anonymous. Their decisions are based on the rules of the Tournament of Roses and not on sentiment but upon the merits of the respective contestants. There are only two points to be considered in awarding prizes and they are, first, originality of design and second, the amount of flowers used in carrying out the design. According to these rules, Glendale's entry was the logical winner of first prize and according to popular sentiment it was a large majority winner."

The float entered by Portland was unique and artistic, but if judged according to the points that are supposed to govern the awards it had no chance at winning the first prize.

According to newspaper accounts of the parade the float entered by Glendale was the only one considered as worthy of detailed description and the newspapers were unanimous in awarding first prize to Glendale. According to people who witnessed the parade, even the Pasadenans acknowledged the Glendale float surpassed any other entry in originality in design and the quantity of flowers used as well as in general beauty.

DESIGNER FLOAT HURT AT PARADE

L. B. Chobe's Arm Broken While Working on Glendale Float

L. B. Chobe, who designed the beautiful float which represented Glendale in the tournament of roses at Pasadena, Monday, and who accompanied it to the scene of his triumph, paid dearly for the honors accorded him. While making some adjustment under the float while it was at rest in Pasadena, he started to crawl out from under, thrusting out his right arm and a passing automobile ran over his wrist, breaking the large bone.

Chobe was brought to Glendale where it was set and he is resting comfortably. His only compensation is the knowledge that his floral creation was every acclaimed as one of the most beautiful that has ever graced the Pasadena parade, and in the opinion of many observers should have received first prize.

MINISTER IS PAYING GIRL FOR JILTING

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 3.—Rev. Thomas Hansen left his parish at Elkhorn, Ia., rushed to Des Moines, and arranged with Agnes Rosenkeld, Council Bluffs, Ia., for payment of $5000 damages for her jilted love. The young minister laid down $1000 in cash and promised to make good the remainder in "time payments." The breach of promise suit filed here climaxed a long and soulful love affair, according to the girl, who says that Hansen persuaded her to attend the Northwestern Bible School, Minneapolis, to better fit herself and become his wife. They were to have been married last October, she said, but he fell in love with another girl and jilted her.

CORRIGAN PROVES IN MARRIAGE OF HIS RICH UNCLE

Local Man Not Guilty of Charges Made by Many Ladies

Robert J. Corrigan, of the advertising force of the Glendale Daily Press, is a busy man today. No less than 14 phone messages came to the Glendale Press office this morning all asking for "Bob" Corrigan, and all with a feminine voice on the other end of the wire.

Robert J. (Bob) Corrigan of the Los Angeles Examiner—that paper's circulation manager, became married Saturday night, to start the New Year right. An account of the purchase of a glory ticket that resulted in the Examiner's office opening for "Bob" Corrigan, and all with a feminine voice on the other end of the wire.

It appears that Robert J. Corrigan of the Glendale Press advertising staff is a nephew of the benedict of the Examiner, and was his best man when the Examiner man led Judge Baird to the home of Miss Dorothy Hall and then there, with malice aforethought, an open heart and careful mind, persuade, insist, and otherwise urge said Judge Baird and Miss Hall to join him in a three-cornered, triangular affair that resulted in its last analysis, in the aforesaid Miss Hall becoming the then and there bride of the aforesaid R. J. Corrigan of the Los Angeles Examiner, in the presence of the persons aforementioned.

The Glendale Press Corrigan was really an innocent bystander in the matter, but upon his head comes all the grief, as is usually the way the innocent bystander is treated.

FRED JARRET GOT SEVERAL HITS IN NEW YEAR GAME

Got Lit Up With Liquor and Lit in Street and Police Court

Beside several healthy wallops from Jack Thomas, Fred Jarret spent Sunday and Monday in the Glendale jail and this morning was fined $25 in police court for looking too long on the wine, or rather, moonshine, while it was red, or whatever color moonshine is at its worst.

According to Captain McGuire and Officer Nunn, who arrested Jarret early on New Year's morning, the young man was drunk and disorderly. It is alleged he insulted Mrs. Jack Thomas, proprietress of the White Inn. He accused Mrs. Thomas, who was about to enter a machine driven by her husband, and received several healthy wallops from the lady before her husband could get out of the machine and take part in the fray. When Thomas got into action it is said that he hit Jarret with such force that Jarret was knocked into the street.

In police court this morning Jarret pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly, and after a severe lecture was fined twenty-five dollars.

CITY GROWS FASTER THAN ANY OTHER

Glendale Goes Over Top and Beats Any City in Country PER CAPITA GROWTH Over Half Million New Buildings in Month Just Closed

When the year 1921 ended Glendale closed the largest year's building in the history of the city. Building permits totalled $5,103,625 and for the month the total was $505,884. This record for the year 1921 has not ended with the ending of the year as indicated by the first day's business of the new year.

Each day during this morning at 7:50, William May was standing at the door and had been standing there for some time so determined was he to receive the first building permit for the new year. He made it good by taking out two permits for houses to cost approximately $3000 each that he is to build for F. L. Gleason. Mr. May had been planning on filing the first building permit for the year for several days and it is rumored that when the sun came peeping over the hills this morning Mr. May started down to the city hall to make sure that no one else would beat him to the honor.

Glendale's gain in population as shown by the number of water and light meters installed during the year shows a large gain over the previous year. On November 30, 1921, there were 6050 water meters in use in this city and 6910 light meters, during the month of December there were 106 water meters and 180 light meters installed, making the totals 6156 water meters, and 7090 light meters in use. The meter records for the year show a gain in water meters of 1342 and 1740 light meters, a total gain of 3082 meters. All together the year 1921 has been a good year for Glendale and the indications are that 1922 will be just as bright and prosperous.

According to the charge on which he was arrested Frazier drove across traffic in disobedience to the orders of a traffic officer. ### LOVE NEVER FAILS THE BELIEVERS

Rev. Edmonds T. A. K. e s
Love as Theme of New Year Sermon

In spite of rain a full congregation gathered at the Presbyterian church for the New Year's day service. A brief resume follows of the sermon by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds.

All of us feel that we want this year to be the best year of our life. Then choose you the best thing. Take for the year this motto: "Love never falleth." There are many things that do fall—health, honor, strength, friends, etc. God said to Abraham, "I will never fall thee."

There are three clusters of characteristics of what love is. The first is passive—suffereth love; the second is negative, endureth; the third is active—love does. The first suggests that the largest part of love's life is to suffer. But love takes the keen edge off; it sings and bears it. But come quickly to the negative things, the "not." There are a number of them in the character of love. First its innocence: not the innocence of the babe, but of the full-grown man who has been through the world; it rejoices not at another's fall, has no jealousy. And love's modesty: it yearneth not itself. Pride is the most abhorrent sin to God. You are only a sinner saved by grace; with no glory bit in the Cross. And love's manners: it "doth not behave itself unseemly." It makes a true gentleman and lady under all circumstances. And love's aim, "seeketh not her own," never terminates on one's self; if it does, it ceases to be love. And the temper of love: it is not provoked; it is something else in us, not love, that is provoked. Had Christ failed here the world would have been lost. And the memory of love: it "thinketh no evil;" the original has it, "keepeth no account of evil." And the eye of love: it rejoices not in iniquity. You have heard, "O, I knew he wouldn't stand!" "I told you so!" One member suffers, "ye which are spiritual restore such a one."

Now it would seem that love is mostly "do not" those hurts that cannot be undone. These four active things it does: it loves to bless, it is kind, it rejoices in the truth. It believeth all things, every good thing it hears. It hopeth all things, with the heavenly art of living by faith.

But pre-eminently love is the best thing, and it should be as queen of all graces in our lives. Men seem to think love is a weakness. No, it is a strength. It will accomplish anything it undertakes, and it makes any burden light. It does what money cannot buy; it is the main-spring of life. Love is the substance of all righteousness, holiness, duty and obedience, and constitutes the key to everything in Christian life.

The evening service was featured by the choir's rendering of the cantata which stress of weather had deferred—"The Christmas King." It was given exceedingly well, and was listened to by a very appreciative audience.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Yardage figures on the 1922 East-West football game, which resulted in a scoreless tie at Pasadena yesterday, show that Archie Nisbit, California fullback, saved his team from defeat by his masterly exhibition of kicking.

They also show that Washington and Jefferson was 50 per cent stronger on straight football than the Bears. For every two yards gained by California from scrimmage, the Presidents gained three.

The eastern 11 made eight first downs against two made by the "Woner team."

Passing, regarded as the copy-right property of the Berkeley team, also showed an edge in favor of the Pennsylvanians. They gained 30 yards on their sole successful shoot, while Andy Smith's team piled up a grand total of 00.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 3.—N. J. Billings, supervisor for the Wallowa national forest, in Oregon, is apparently one of the most patient men in the world. He has just completed a survey census of the wild life in his district and has discovered that hunters overlooked 2935 deer in that domain. In addition to the deer there were 240 bears, 249 elk, and 70 sheep registered, with the places of residence and family record.

The report, by districts, contains a detailed account of the bear, deer, elk and mountain sheep, known personally and by hearsay, by Billings.

"I was sorry I couldn't get a chance to count the rabbits," Billings apologized in a report footnote, "but I was just a little too slow for them to get anything more than a passing acquaintance." He estimates, however, that there are only about 3,000,000 of the long-eared citizens of his domain—jackasses included.

For the first time for three weeks Mrs. Hardup happened to be in when the landlord knocked at the door.

Looking through the window, she exclaimed to her little son Willie: "Well, hi'm 'm out."

But the caller, seeing her feet as the door was opened, said: "Oh, all right, my lad, but next time she goes out tell her to take her feet with her!"

YOUNG WIFE NOW SEEKS HIS PARDON

Governor Stephens Receives Petition Signed by Hundreds

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—With his young wife faithfully awaiting his release from Folsom prison, David F. Douglas, serving a term in Folsom for the theft of $20,000 in jewelry from a San Francisco firm eight years ago, faces the prospect of securing his freedom. After the San Francisco robbery, Douglas went east, where he was arrested for passing a fictitious check and sentenced to 10 years in Leavenworth prison.

While in the prison, his efforts saved the prison from a disastrous fire, and as the result the president granted him a pardon. Douglas then voluntarily returned to California, pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to Folsom. At the time of the San Francisco robbery he was 17 years old. Before being arrested the second time he had married a Los Angeles girl, who is making a silent battle to secure the release of her husband. Douglas is now 25 years of age.

Governor Stephens has received a petition signed by the justices of the state supreme court, recommending the release of Douglas. The matter is being taken under consideration. Douglas is the son of Charles S. Douglas of Freeport, N. Y.

ENTERPRISE IS SHOWN BY JACK

Enterprise in the truest sense of the word is shown in the many improvements that are being made to the interior and exterior of the club by its new manager, Jack V. St. Clair. From the moment that Jack took over this garage there has been something doing every minute. Jack formerly ran an automobile repairing establishment in connection with the Westinghouse Battery Service, where he made many friends by his cheerful manner and the excellent type of workmanship that he turned out. When he moved over to his new quarters Jack took all of his old customers with him and since that time he has made many friends.

The improvement that Jack has been making to the Club garage consists, among other things, of a beautiful lawn in the parkway on Colorado street in front of the garage. There are two sections to this lawn. The larger is 12x50 feet. In the center of this lawn is a beautiful century plant, which is surrounded by a number of golden cactus, arranged in diamond shape. In the lawn toward either end is a Himalayan cedar, which adds greatly to the attractiveness of the feature. Both of the sections of the lawn are surrounded by a border of greenery. The smaller section of lawn is 10x12 feet and in the center of this is a bird Himalayan cedar. This lawn feature was installed by Mr. Grant of the Eagle Rock nursery, and is considered one of the most attractive in Glendale. Within a day or so a potted camphor tree will be placed on either side of the entrance of the Club garage.

RED PEPPER WAS HIS OWN METHOD

COLMA, Cal., Jan. 3.—Constable A. D. Landini has gained fame locally as a "Red Pepper Detective." Repeated complaints that wreaths and flowers placed on the graves of Greenlawn cemetery had been stolen led to the adoption of the unusual form of stinging. Landini placed red pepper in a decoy bunch of roses placed on an imposing tomb. Later, on a local flower stand he saw a similar bunch of roses, and in his excitement, sniffed them vigorously. His subsequent fit of coughing almost permitted Michael Devenenzi, proprietor of the stand, to escape.

He wasn't what one might call a polished gentleman, but he took a great interest in the local school in England, and sometimes dropped in to put a few questions to the children.

"Now," he said, on one occasion, pointing to the smartest boy in the class, "Wot's the capital of 'Olland?"

"H!" came the reply like a flash. And even the teacher's scowl failed to suppress the snigger that went rippling through the class.

JACK ROUNSEY IS SLAIN BY NEGRO

Tragedy at La Crescenta Early on Sunday Morning

LA CRESCENTA, Jan. 3.—As he alighted from his machine to enter the La Crescenta lodge at 2 o'clock Sunday morning Jack H. Rounsey, special deputy sheriff, was shot and killed by John Allen, a negro. According to Allen, he shot in self defense. Police records show that Mr. Rounsey was unarmed. Allen fired five shots into Rounsey's body, it is stated, when he refused to recognize him. The Glendale police were summoned Sunday morning by the report of the shooting and found Mr. Rounsey in a dying condition. He had five bullets in his abdomen and died on his way to the Glendale sanitarium. The body was removed to the Jewel City undertaking parlors.

The slain man was a member of the Elks' lodge of Glendale and was in the American army during the Boxer uprising in China. He has been superintendent of the La Crescenta Mutual Water Co. for ten years. He is survived by a father and mother who live in Seaside and a brother Julius Rounsey of Los Angeles.

Big Pardon—The business block at the corner of Brand boulevard and Lexington is being erected by C. R. Bassell instead of by W. C. Glassell, as reported in Saturday's Daily Press. It will have three storerooms on Brand and two on Lexington.

PAIN GONE! RUB SORE, RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Rub pain away with a small trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oil."

Stop "dosing". Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappears and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.—Adv.

WILLING WORKERS BAND PRESIDES AT T.D.L. THEATER

New Year Service at La Crescenta Community Church

LA CRESCENTA, Jan. 3.—The Willing Workers were in charge of the New Year's services of the Community church Sunday morning. Miss Edith Bush presiding. The program, which was of much interest included singing by the class, prayer by Rev. H. A. Kelso, recitation by Miss Elizabeth Jones, duet by Misses Jessie Conlin and Elizabeth Jones. The election of officers of the Willing Workers was held at the Manse last Friday evening. Miss Edith Bush was elected president, Miss Louise Czerniski, vice president and Miss Beatrice Volker, secretary and treasurer.

Ex-Congressman James McLeichen and Douglas McLeichen were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bissell.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Culberson entertained at dinner Sunday, the honor guests being Mrs. Culberson's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cook of San Francisco. Places were numbered for twelve.

The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Jennings Young on Honolulu and Los Angeles avenues, was the scene of one of the most enjoyable affairs of the week-end, when they entertained some thirty guests at a dance and buffet supper last Saturday evening. The affair was in the way of a house-warming as Mr. and Mrs. Young just moved into their new home. The rooms were brilliant with holly and Christmas greenery. Many of the guests were from Los Angeles and Glendale.

One of the most pretentious affairs of the holiday season was given by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brombacher of Honolulu avenue last Saturday evening, that day being the thirty-second wedding anniversary of Mr. Brombacher, father and mother of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brombacher. The rooms were gay with yuletide decorations. Several vocal selections by Arnold de Plants and a song and dance by Miss Alma Garvin were some of the enjoyable features of the evening. Supper was served at midnight. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Brombacher, the honor guests and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shockley, Mrs. Leo Wright, Misses Gertrude Zimmer, Alva Garvin, Frances Shockley, Emily Brombacher, E. Wilson, Flora Shockley, Messrs. H. L. Glaze, W. C. Allen, George Garvin, E. L. Bonless, C. G. ### NORMA TALMADGE WOMAN SUICIDE WAS MISS M'NOWN

The Wonderful Thing Is New Picture for Star of Screen

Norma Talmadge's latest production, "The Wonderful Thing," offered as the attraction at the T. D. & L. theater today and tomorrow, is from the stage success of the same name by Lillian Trimble Bradley and Forrest Halsey, and begins in the aristocratic circles of England and ends on a hog ranch in Iowa—actually the Bradley-Harbold ranch, the largest producer of porkers in the country. The role of Catherine Mannerby Truesdale, leader of the opposition against the admission of the daughter of the American Hog King into the socially prominent Mannerby family, is played by Mrs. Lydia Hoyt, one of the younger of the ranking society matrons of New York, Newport and Washington.

"The Wonderful Thing" was adapted for the screen version by Herbert Brenon and Clara Beranson, and the production itself is another in the series of those starring Miss Norma Talmadge, and directed by Mr. Brenon, a combination which has resulted in some of the best pictures yet made by this popular star. Miss Talmadge portrays the role of Jacqueline Boggs, the French-converted daughter of the American Hog King. "The Wonderful Thing" comes into her life when she meets Donald Mannerby, the oldest son of an impoverished aristocratic English family, who is an incorrigible flirt.

His love-making, done without any serious intent, arouses real love on her part. An act of a weak younger brother makes the raising of a large amount of money by Donald an imperative matter, and even while despising himself as a cad, he marries her for her wealth. She is ideally happy for a time and Donald learns to love her; and then she discovers his real object in marrying her. Pride causes her to leave him, but the story ends happily in her own home in Iowa.

Harrison Ford plays the role of Donald, and in addition to Miss Talmadge and Mrs. Hoyt, others in the cast are Howard Truesdale, Robert Agnew, Ethel Fleming, Mabel Bert, Fanny Burke, Walter McEwen and Charles Craig.

WOMAN SUICIDE WAS MISS M'NOWN

Insurance Policy Reveals Name of Omaha Woman as Mother

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—Mrs. N. W. Sheldon, manager of the Viaduct hotel, Kansas City, today stood as the only person in San Francisco able to shed light on the identity of Betty Montgomery, Los Angeles actress, who was believed to have leaped overboard Sunday from the steamer Yale while en route to San Francisco from San Pedro.

Mrs. Sheldon said she first met Miss Montgomery in Kansas City and that recently the girl had been training to become a nurse in New York and Los Angeles. Telegrams sent to supposed relatives have not been answered, police said.

OMAHA, Jan. 3.—Betty Montgomery, actress, whose real name is believed to be Beth McNow, sister of R. A. McNow of Omaha, is reported to have leaped to her death from the steamer Yale en route from Los Angeles to San Francisco, according to word received by McNow. San Francisco police sought relatives on the theory that the girl's real name was Montgomery until an insurance policy made out to Mrs. R. L. McNow, her mother, was found in her trunk. The mother now lives in Portland, Ore., McNow said today.

LEGION NOTES

Jealous of the "honors" bestowed on Grover C. Bergdoll, a man describing himself as P. E. Saylor, Genesee, Ida., is seeking official recognition of his self-imposed title of "super-slacker" of the United States." He has written Gov. Hart, Washington, asking that his name be placed at the top of the slacker list.

By moving from city to city and changing his name, the man declares he laughed at the draft. By purchasing a soldier's discharge and war medals, he adds, he has enjoyed all the glory of an A.E.F. hero. "You ought to hear me tell the girls about the battles I was in," he writes. Federal agents and American Legion men of the West are searching for him, to bestow additional honors.

Pekingese dogs wearing expensive coats while ex-soldiers sit shivering on park benches aroused the ire of the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, Congregationalist minister of Brooklyn, during the American Legion's attempt to get overcoats for needy ex-service men. Rev. Cadman advocated taking the coats off "these overdressed promoters with poodle dogs on a string and wrapping them around the half-frozen backs of our boys."

To live up to the town's long winter evenings, the American Legion post of Strathcona, Minn., challenged the citizens to a whist tournament. The final game of the series lasted until 3:30 a. m., the ex-soldiers winning.

Suspension of immigration for three years has been advocated at a hearing before the house committee on immigration by John Thomas Taylor, vice-chairman of the American Legion's legislative committee. A bill to so suspend immigration is pending.

GOVERNMENT TO FOLLOW ITS DUCKS

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 3.—What Bertillon is to criminals, the United States Biological survey is to ducks. Some time ago this government department loosed a flock of game ducks whose legs were decorated with fifty little aluminum bands. The gentlemen in the department loosed to discover how far a duck would stray) where it might nest, and where some gunner's gun might drop him—or her—in a lonely lake.

Last week a hunter killed a hen mallard and turned in the first leg band retrieved since the start of the experiment. It bears the number 27 and is being checked to determine where the duck was turned loose. It was not one of the ducks turned loose in this district.

EDITORIALS

By the People

Editor Glendale Press:—I'll second the motion. Whoever it was that thought of a bus on Verdugo road, to meet the yellow car line, was certainly thinking well. A bus line on Verdugo road will mean considerable to the commuters in general, mainly a reduction of fare.

The P. E. has had connections with the S. P. Yes, but that is no sign that they can charge steam car fares and get away with it. Are the people of Glendale going to pay steam car fares for P. E. service? Not if they all feel the same as those with whom I've talked. If this thing is allowed to go ahead, remember you are paying for the opportunity of endangering your life as well as your pocketbook. In the first place, when boys were compelled to walk around the Ivanhoe bridge, why were they charged a full fare? Furthermore, why isn't there a concrete bridge there? This very same thing is likely to happen again.

Let the P. E. put on more cars, make them more comfortable, have a concrete bridge put in, or do what they will, the fare is still too high. We should not stand for it. What they need is competition. Since Glendale maintains the right to operate a means of transportation, why not now?

Let's get busy meeting the yellow car at Verdugo road, and as soon as possible get our own car line in operation on Glendale avenue. The bus can fill in our temporary needs and compete with these P. E. fares. The carline on Glendale avenue is really what we need, and I see no reason why both could not be kept up. Glendale is growing rapidly, and these things will add considerably to its growth. You never could tell an easterner that it was a real town if it did not operate a car line of its own.

Now, Mr. Glendalian, let's have your help in pushing this matter. We don't want people to be steered away from Glendale because of high transportation rates. If you believe in a greater Glendale, prove it.

E. M. UNWIN.

Editor Glendale Press: This little note is one of compliment to Glendale and especially to L. W. Chobe, for the most beautiful float that has been entered in the tournament of roses by our city in years.

Perhaps forty of the folks here at the laboratory went to Pasadena yesterday to see what the judges could see, and every one with whom I have spoken told me that the remarks of those near them all favored our float. In other words, the man on the street judged the array and gave the praise to Glendale—even if the judges didn't.

Might it not have been that they were astounded to find so beautiful a display of roses representing Portland so far away from us, and that their impressions were influenced by this astoundment? Don't forget also that Pasadena depends upon good will for its business and there is no better advertisement than good will plus news in the papers. Might not the judges have subconsciously felt this way, and visualized the front page stuff in today's Portland papers?

Of course, it is difficult to decide between two beautiful things, as doubtless some of the men folks have found many times, but when every thing is considered—not merely the beauty and lines, but the spirit, the allegorical value, originality and ingeniousness, I feel sure that the judges would have to look a great deal farther to find a float that would excel the one from Glendale. My compliments to Mr. Chobe, designer! I have decided that it was by far the most beautiful of the best and the most educational float in the parade. And of course that counts, doesn't it? If he wants it, I will give Mr. Chobe a putty medal to make up for the chagrin at being ousted by our friends from the north.

Truths in Epigram

Many a man fails to become a thinker for the sole reason that his memory is too good.—Nietzsche (1844-1900). A lover without indiscretion is no lover at all.—Hardy (1840—). Truth is the secret of eloquence and of virtue, the basis of moral authority; it is the highest summit of art and of life.—Amiel (1821-1881).

THE WRONG BRAND

In celebrating the holiday season in New York, nine persons were poisoned, so far as reported to the coroner at this writing. The severity of the poisoning is indicated by the disposition of the cases. Others, victims, perhaps of smaller dosage, or out of bottle less deadly, are at the hospital. Some hope to recover their sight. Others realize that they never again are to see the sun shine.

Wood alcohol, basis of much of the liquor hawked by bootleggers, is a deadly stuff. Often it kills. Frequently it destroys the optic nerve.

Celebration of a holiday by the method of getting drunk is a system that always has lacked logical support. This was true even in the days when the label on a bottle indicated the character of the bottle's content. Emphasis is laid upon the defectiveness of the orgie, by the circumstance that now it may be indulged in, not at the mere risk of an uncomfortable headache, but that the risk of a distressing process of dying, also is involved.

It may be assumed that the person deliberately swallowing a draught of wood alcohol while fully aware of the danger, and willing to incur it, could drop out of his accustomed haunts without creation of a very deplorable gap in the social structure. However, there ought to be some finer and more effective way to discourage the bootlegger than by permitting him to kill off his patrons.

The nine deaths in New York make a strong temperance plea. Poison is just as fatal elsewhere as in the metropolis.

RULES OF WAR

Elihu Root says that someone must move to amend the rules of war. No amendment, however, could be regarded as effective unless its tendency was towards ultimate abolition of war.

War is in no sense a game of courtesy. War is wargery. Once loosed, there is no artificial limit to be set to the current of its passions. Its purpose is to kill and destroy, and it will kill and destroy by every means that desperation can suggest, and ingenuity contrive.

Suppose that a nation were at war under restriction as to methods legitimately to be employed. It might, for instance, have placed a taboo on submarine attacks on merchant ships; might have said that no resort should be had to poison gas. Nevertheless, if the power in opposition employed these instrumentalities, there could be no escape from responding in kind, with defeat the only alternative.

The only rule for war that promises much for the stability of civilization, is the rule that war shall cease. Nations can bring about, if only they will, the conditions making this rule possible. In order to do so, they will have to drop the idea, held by each of them, that in some way it has rights superior to the rights of the rest. They will have to settle their disputes at court. Why not? Individuals find this possible.

So long as nations avoid a common understanding; so long as statesmen of scrambled brains, frantic over the thought of an alliance, are permitted to influence opinion, there will be wars. Rules of conduct then will be futile. Wars will conduct themselves as the exigencies demand, and without consulted prepared code of etiquette or honor.

BAN ON SUBMARINES

It is evident that England is not to have any way in regard to limitation of submarines. This type of fighting craft seems to have proper uses as a police agency. That the number to be retained by each nation should be reduced proportionately strikes the observer as being as reasonable as a reduction of battle ship strength. To the latter reduction, suggested by the United States, the other powers gave ready assent. The proposition came so suddenly that it deprived the diplomats of breath for an instant, and they had to ask time for consideration. When they had recovered their breath they endorsed the plan.

The precise differences that sway the judgment to a contrary conclusion touching the submarine question, from that reached easily concerning battleships, are better understood, it is fair to assume, in the conference than outside. A little prejudice naturally is created favorable to the British contention by the fact that the newspapers are venomous in their opposition.

There is an indisposition to accept the views of these papers in this particular situation; in other relations also, but they are the same. They are the same papers that advocated the sinking of the Lusitania, which was the work of a German submarine. Civilization certainly objects to use of the submarine for the murder of women and children.

Not to permit all nations to have whatever number of submarines they desire, is an endeavor to keep these craft out of mischief, would be a waste of words and energy.

WATSON IN HIS GLORY

Senator Watson continues to garner statements that, if verified, would uphold his charges that American soldiers abroad were killed at the whim of any officer who chanced to feel out of humor. It is fair to state that at this stage of proceedings the evidence is not such as would be given credence in any court.

The thing that militates against it most strongly, aside from the circumstance that the officers were American, and civilized, is that men come forward readily with statements that if true, they never would have made an effort to suppress. On the contrary they would have proclaimed them at the first opportunity. If afraid to do this while in uniform, they must have done it the instant they re-entered civilian life.

That soldiers, black or white, were hanged without due trial, the people of this country are not prepared to believe. That the few executions appearing of record constitute the entirety of army executions, they still are convinced.

Slackers had to be dealt with severely. Some of them are now being coaxed out of seclusion to display their hurts. Deserters from the firing line, have on occasion in this war or any other, been shot on the instant, to keep their example from demoralizing the troops.

Officers are not accorded the right to send offenders to the gallows without due and formal trial. Any officer guilty of such conduct would himself be tried for a capital crime.

Watson will have to produce proof, or be deemed to be raving, as is his habit and his delight.

THE MERCHANT MARINE

In a recent interview Charles M. Schwab said he regarded the merchant marine as a bulwark against financial depression in America. The thought of this successful man finds expression coincidental with the organized effort to strengthen trade on the Pacific ocean. It is unconsciously a strong endorsement of that plan.

The ocean trade, particularly as it concerns directly the interests of this part of California, might have reached much larger proportions if business men of capital had given the subject earlier attention. For a long time the fact that harbor facilities were available was ignored as a factor in actual business. The harbor looked well on a map. It produced a good effect when mentioned in a prospectus; but it was not extensively used. There seemed, in truth, but small inclination to use it. Its existence was employed to teach the railroads to be reasonable. They made their tariffs under pressure of an implied threat that if the tariffs failed to suit, there would be water competition. The harbor was effective as a club to be held over the rail carrier.

After the close of the war, after the long period during which the harbor had been devoted almost solely to war purposes, capital appeared to wake up. Business at the docks grew mightily. Southern California capital put on a line to the Orient. The harbor was forced into general recognition as an important agency in the world of traffic.

Now comes the plan of a combine taking in all the ocean carrier lines plying out of the ports of this coast. The government is anxious to back it. Cooperation is promised from every point. The Pacific coast, too, regards the merchant marine as a barrier against depression, and will help to build it high and strong.

Boll weevil threatens the cotton crop of Arizona. If prices of the staple are to be no higher than last year, the hungry weevil might as well be permitted to take its fill.

A receiver for the Ku Klux Klan has been asked. The request comes tardily. The promoters of the organization seem already to have received everything in sight, and probably they did not receive it with any idea of loosing their grip on demand.

McGUFFEY'S READER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Some time ago there was a news item to the effect that Henry Ford was scooping around Cincinnati looking for McGuffey's First Reader.

Mr. Ford said that McGuffey's Readers were the source from which he gleaned the greater part of his education. And now he claims to be the proud owner of the whole series from the First to the Seventh.

When he went into a big book store and asked for McGuffey's First Reader, the clerk said, "We sold the last one twenty-five years ago," and referred him to the American Book company, which used to publish the McGuffey series and might possibly have one left.

Ford plodded over to the American Book company's quarters, where the general manager received him and informed him that "there are only three unsold McGuffey's First Readers in existence. We have two here and one in New York. I would hate to part with one of them."

After establishing his identity, however, and arguing a bit, Mr. Ford was able to capture a copy of the book he desired.

This exploit will be read by a good many thousand people in this country with peculiar interest, particularly those who are on the shady side of fifty and who received their education in the public schools.

The writer of this speaks from first-hand experience, but he makes the statement that a good part of the mental furniture of these persons is due to McGuffey's Readers. You may talk all you please about the influence of Thomas Jefferson, or Poe, or Hawthorne, or any other of the men of letters, or of propaganda of former times. None of them equals McGuffey.

For the simple reason, that he it was who had a great part in shaping the minds of the little boys and girls in school fifty years ago.

Napoleon is reported to have said that if he could write the songs of the people he did not care who made their laws.

With even more force it might be said that the man who composes the Second, Third and Fourth Readers of the public schools does most to shape the nations of the coming generation. It is a common ambition to desire to influence one's fellowmen. The popular novelist, the editor of a newspaper, the magazine writer, the preacher, the statesman and the holder of high office, each has his throne of power. Each does something toward controlling the Zeitgeist. But he who selects the first impressions that are going to be made upon the minds of children, in and under their teens, is more powerful than all. While this is a self-evident truth, it is one that we continually neglect and overlook. If we would spend half the energy in choosing the reading matter for public school children which we spend in disseminating heated propaganda, we should be far more successful.

THE LISTENING POST

Not long ago Edison gave out a list of questions. Aimed to discover the mental furnishings of the persons who sought to answer them: We say mental furnishings, because knowledge is the furniture of your mental establishment.

And there are well-furnished mentalities, ill-furnished mentalities, half-bedroom mentalities, attic mentalities and unfurnished rooms.

Depending on what kind of a mental-house furnisher you are. For there are various kinds of people.

There are those who think. Those who hear and remember and think they think. Those who merely swallow. Those who hear and forget as quickly.

Perhaps the best mental furnishings are in the minds of those people who have had to struggle to acquire knowledge.

Their mental furniture is the old-fashioned, hand-made kind. And their mental furniture is of real mahogany or walnut or solid oak.

Not the veneered and highly varnished kind. Not enduring for all time.

Edison's questions had to do with facts of science and geography and chemistry and physics and politics.

Because the well-informed person should know the general facts of those subjects. He should know for instance the gaseous basis of water.

That is a simple fact of chemistry. And water is such a usual substance that you really ought to know what it is made of.

For you drink it many times a day. And it seems a pity not to know something more about it than the simple fact that it is wet.

And quenches thirst.

And then it is well to know where things are produced.

What are the principal capitals of the world. Facts with reference to the every day life of people and the world.

Because it makes you a better citizen of the world.

And yet there is such a thing as knowing a lot of things and not knowing some very important things that are right near at hand.

Social things, we might call them. Like knowing when some friend is ill.

That is an important thing to know. Because you might do something for him.

Or the family. Send him some flowers and cheer him up.

But if you do not know the fact of his illness, you are not moved to do some simple acts of kindness.

And then there are children in various parts of town.

Questions might be asked to test your social impulse and fitness.

Such as how many of them are well nourished, in a general way.

How many are not.

And the reasons for undernourishment. And the effects of the same condition.

And what can be done to help. All important social facts.

And there are other questions we might ask.

The boy a little distance down the street, for instance.

Did he have turkey for Christmas? And did some good friends remember him with simple gifts?

Or did he believe Santa Claus had forgotten him?

There are many things in life we ought to know to be socially well informed.

And the learning of them makes for greater sympathy.

Broader understanding. Better humanity.

You, for instance.

Was there anybody you might just as well have gladdened at the holidays that you did not think of?

Is there anybody today who stands in need of help you can render?

An occasional social catechism helps sometimes.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Beauty Clear and Fair—By John Fletcher (1579-1625)

Beauty clear and fair, Where the air Rather like a perfume dwells; Where the violet and the rose Their blue veins and blush disclose, And come to honour nothing else:

Where to live near And planted there Is to live, and still live new;

Where to gain a favour is More than light, perpetual bliss— Make me live by serving you!

Dear, again back recall To this light, A stranger to himself and all! Both the wonder and the story Shall be yours, and the glory: I am your servant, and your thrall.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Scientists intimate that they have a method of predicting temblors. All they have to do to verify this is to predict, and occasionally they are bound to be right.

A San Francisco bandit used acid on his victim. Evidently the rules of banditry need amendment as badly as the rules of war.

Drinking of wood alcohol continues, but with constant change in the personnel of the drinkers.

After his period of seclusion Debs seems inclined to go to the other extreme.

Californians who emerged from the wet spell with the same umbrella they entered it, believe the world has grown better.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WHERE THE PRINCESS GOT OFF

[Detroit Free Press]

The other day Princess Catherine Radziwill was arraigned in a New York court on a charge that she had "jumped" a hotel bill of $1239. Her attorney, perhaps because he had nothing better to offer, asked the court to be considerate of his client because she is of royal blood and closely connected with diplomatic circles. The plea was an odd one to be offered in an American court when the theory upon which the government of this country is founded is that the princess has exactly the same rights as any other woman and no more. Moreover, it is a plea that would not have been received with any favor in many countries where a legalized aristocracy flourishes. In England, for instance, the courts have little mercy upon scrapegrace members of the titled classes. They go to jail just as readily as the common herd go. All of that being so, it is a little hard to see why any privilege in an American court should be accorded to a princess of fact if gained her precisely nothing at all.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Curtailement of acreage has been suggested by the secretary of agriculture. The managing director of the Farmers' National council takes exception. He seems to be right.

Benjamin C. Marsh, the director in question, says that millions of people are starving in the world, and millions are underfed in the United States. Both statements undeniably are correct. To keep down the food supply would not seem to be the prompting of wisdom.

There is much talk, and there are many published theories as to the habit of eating too much. Most of this is mere foolishness. The individual who eats too much pays a personal penalty. This may be in the unwelcome gift of fatness. It may be in dyspepsia. In either case the individual has to compensate for his own greed.

In the Christmas just past, in this region of abundance, humane folk on the lookout for families needing the contribution of a dinner, or an order for groceries, were amazed at the poverty that came to the prompting of wisdom.

While the world needs food, it would seem to be the mission of the farmer to produce food. He may be taking a long chance now as to getting direct profit. Perhaps in the future, the collective intelligence of Americans will be able to devise a method of distributing produce so that it may reach the point where the demand is keenest.

To cease producing food, on the ground that it lacked sense to care for that already produced, would be a queer plea for any nation to make.

Three men riding in an expensive auto draw up to the curb as a woman is passing. They halt her and demand her money. She is a hard-working woman, a wage earner. She has but little with her, about two dollars, every cent of which she needs.

Trembling she yields this pittance. The scurvy knaves, too low for classification in print, filthy paltrons that they are, take the money, clamber back into the expensive auto, and disappear.

It is a wonder that such creatures do not hate themselves to the point of suicide, hate each other to the pitch of murder.

The intrinsic meanness of the petty criminal is more than an unpleasant spectacle. It is the symptom of utter and hopeless depravity.

The trio guilty of this despicable act are not fit to live. The happiest outcome all around would be for them to resist arrest and be killed in the operation.

Protest against the erection of a church, on the ground that the presence of the institution would disturb the peace, must be set down as new.

Whatever a church may have been known to accomplish, the feat of disturbing the peace hardly could be found in its list of achievements.

Such a charge would have to be based on the clamorous summons of the bells announcing the time of worship. Only a few churches ring bells at hours that could be regarded as unseemly. The church that has excited opposition in the present instance is not among offenders in the respect mentioned.

A recent victim of reckless driving happened to be a young woman of wealth. Of course financial standing does not accord any special right to immunity. The driver, speeding along at will, never thinks of estimating the financial worth of the prospective victim.

However, the slaying of a wealthy young woman is less likely to be regarded as a passing and easily to be forgotten incident than would the slaying by similar means of, say, her laundress.

This ought not to be the case, but it is. Perhaps when there has been full realization that a law to protect the laundress is necessary, if the lady who hires the laundress is to be made safe, something more will be done to shield both from assault by the homicidal idiot of the highway.

Hearst is still making frantic efforts to get into the good graces of France. He never was in the good graces of that country much. He had managed to get by without being specially hated by the French.

He did not realize the wisdom of letting well enough alone. Finally he outraged the feelings of a courteous people to the extent that they thrust him out altogether. It is pitiful to see him try to worm his way back.

While he is in the squirming agonies of vain endeavor, a French paper scores him mercilessly for his baseless charges against France. It goes so far as to rebuke his paid writers—"termed rather his valets."

Well, Hearst deserves all he is getting of censure, and the Hearstlings ought to come in for their share.

Soviets state that they cannot trade with Germany. One of the reasons given is the reluctance of Berlin to admit soviet emissaries. Berlin has a right to be cautious. Wherever such emissaries have been allowed to enter, they have acted as the agents of discord, have sedulously poisoned public opinion, and tried to get the justly celebrated "bloody revolution" started on its sanguinary way.

Charles M. Schwab advocates economy. Everybody should save money, he says.

Before this advice can be expected to sink very deep, and alter the complexion of human conduct greatly, a span will have to elapse during which Christmas bills may be squared.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

If this didn't happen to be a true story I think I would have to invent it. But Life's stage manager has spared me the trouble. The only item in which it varies from reality is in certain devices made use of to shield the identity of the hero.

"See that man?" a friend asked. Of course, I saw him. Elderly, gray haired, a lined face, eyes that seemed a bit tired and yet which—inconsistently enough—sparkled. Well set up, back straight, pace lively.

"Mighty fine looking old man," I said. Then I heard the story. Not long ago that old man was dying. Literally dying. The only reason why was that no one cared any more. His sons and daughters loved him, of course—of course they loved him. But no one remembered what he had done. No one recalled that in his time this old man had cut something of a figure in the world. Then a wise person who wanted some publicity came to town. The Wise Person had heard of the old man and looked him up, planning to ride into the first pages on the old man's back. He found the old man dying.

"This is what he did," said the Wise Person to the world next day on the first pages. "This is how he did it. Yet people have forgotten. They pass him by."

Those first page stories popped that dying man out of his bed. In ten days he was almost well again. Thin, of course, and a little pale, but going strong. Then some one told good old Champ Clark of the forgotten hero, and Champ Clark loaned himself to the kindly deception. He looked up the old man, and begged to see his guest at the Capitol, that Champ Clark's friends might see the gallant survivor of a more gallant age looked like in the flesh. Champ Clark said a few kindly words from the floor, while the old man, blushing and beaming, bowed from the gallery.

It saved that old man's life. He had thought himself forgotten and useless and on the shelf, and suddenly he found himself alive again and admired and praised. Since then, thanks be, he has played more than a man's part. His country has cause to be thankful that he did not die forgotten.

There's a moral in this story somewhere.

TWO FACES GIVEN

Interesting Sermon by Rev. Preston at Pacific M. E. Church

Although rain greeted churchgoers Sunday, many went out and heard excellent sermons, one of which was that of Rev. Harley G. Preston, pastor of the Pacific Avenue M. E. church, who in part said:

"Ye have not passed this way heretofore. I remember seeing in a hardware store several years ago the name 'Janus locks'...

The name January is therefore very suggestive. It is a fit reminder to us all that the beginning of the new year—the opening of this January month—is an appropriate season for scrutinizing our past and forecasting our future.

The strong tendency at this season is to look only forward and not backward. Many would defend this and say that there can be no value in looking back, but an earnest gazing into the future.

Many people see no value in backward glances. They constantly quote Paul's words about "forgetting things that are behind, reaching forth unto things before."

"We are not to despise the past. There is a true sense in which it can be said that our forward course can only be made straight and direct and successful by looking backward."

Rudyard Kipling says: "If only myself could talk to myself as I knew him a year ago, I could tell him a lot."

"Of the things he ought to know," "Looking backward—this is all right and has its value—but the real duty is that of going forward."

Let us not forget it, dear friends, that whether in the field of art, in the field of sport or in the still more serious game of life the secret of all excellence is to play the game better today than we did yesterday.

EVERY MAN HAS HIS OWN PLACE

Sunday Sermon by Dr. Funk at Lutheran Church

"Every Man His Place" was the subject for the New Year's sermon by Dr. Funk at the Lutheran church Sunday morning.

The children of Israel were engaged in a great conflict against the Midianites. But while the Midianites are as grasshoppers for numbers the Lord assured Gideon that the 32,000 were too many to go against the enemy.

"We are not to despise the past. There is a true sense in which it can be said that our forward course can only be made straight and direct and successful by looking backward."

Let us not forget it, dear friends, that whether in the field of art, in the field of sport or in the still more serious game of life the secret of all excellence is to play the game better today than we did yesterday.

Second Prize Given Glendale

 list that the Pasadena Tournament of Roses was a pageant for Southern California and that the prizes were for civic floats from the southland. If this is true, many Glendaleans are anxious to know why a northern float was awarded the prize? If it is not true they want to know.
 A suggestion made several months ago by a prominent Glendalean and quoted in the Glendale Daily Press at the time seems very appropriate at this time. This Glendalean said: "Why should Glendale allow Pasadena to have all the glories attendant upon that city as the home of the annual Tournament of Roses? Glendale is public-spirited enough and certainly has sufficient ambition and 'pep' to arrange and put over a pageant that can at least equal and to my mind surpass the Pasadena affair. Glendale could arrange an annual pageant similar to the Tournament of Roses or the orange shows of San Bernardino and Anaheim that would be just as popular as these pageants and would bring as much glory to the city."
 This suggestion was made some time ago when the plans for the float to be entered in the Tournament of Roses were under discussion and are being revived today by many Glendaleans in their discussion of the pageant yesterday and the apparent disregard for rules governing awards.

 hair fern, 50 bunches; brown pom-pom chrysanthemums, 24 bunches; sweet peas for lettering, 120 bunches.
 Little suggestive touches were added by a "for rent" sign on the eastern house, followed by the words, "Southern California," and also by a weathervane between the two houses indicating east and west.
 As stated, it was worthy a first prize and would have received that award but for the fact that Glendale carried off first honors the two years previous. As it was the first went to Portland, Ore., Glendale receiving the second trophy.
 Saturday night, in spite of rain, members of the Chamber of Commerce headed by Secretary James A. Rhoades and Mrs. Rhoades, Assistant Secretary Sanders and Mrs. Sanders, representatives of the Business Women's Club, and other citizens equally loyal to Glendale, gathered at the garage on Maryland where the float was made, to assist in its floral decoration, and more of them appeared Sunday to help with the big project which might never have been completed but for such public spirited, unselfish work. It was a community affair, and the community responded nobly with money and services.
 Today it is on view at the corner of Brand and Broadway; that corner of Glendale may have the opportunity to view it at leisure and exult in its beauty.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS
MRS. PEARL CARVER
 Death claimed a woman of more than ordinary powers when Mrs. Pearl Carver of 121 West Maple avenue passed to the Great Beyond, leaving a husband and four children, and was laid to rest in the Masonic plot of Forest Lawn memorial park, on Thursday, December 29.
 She was but 49 years of age and was born in Salina, Kan., the daughter of E. and Minerva Perdue. In Lyons, Kan., where her youth was spent, she became prominent in church and musical circles. After her marriage to Archie A. Carver she went with her husband to Seville, Ohio, where their four children, Vera, Selma, Elma and Edward, were born, and where Mrs. Carver identified herself with the Presbyterian church, the Friday Club and the Eastern Star, of which last named organization she was organist for a number of years.
 She became ill in 1920, soon after she and her husband and family reached Glendale, and never recovered. She is survived by two brothers to whom her death is a great grief.

THE BARTON BEDTIME STORIES
 THE POOR RED DOG IS DISAPPOINTED.
 By JOHN BARTON
 (Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Tommy, Tommy!" exclaimed Louise Thomson very excitedly. "We can catch that squirrel! I know where she's gone!" He pointed to Tad Coon's hole in the hickory tree by Dr. Muskrat's pond. Sure enough that's right where Chatterer's widow was hiding.
 "What for?" Tommy Peete wanted to know.
 "Because the scar on her leg couldn't be anything else but a bullet wound. Then we can prove that the hunter who brought my red dog here was really shooting your game. Don't you see? And maybe I could keep the dog."

 But Tommy shook his head. "No, we can't. I asked my Dad. We've got to give it back when he comes for it because we took it away from him—it wasn't just a stray. Besides, that squirrel wouldn't be happy in a cage. My rabbit wasn't, nor your coon, and they didn't have anything the matter with them like she has."

 "I know," answered the other little boy, giving the dog an extra hug the way he did every time he thought of being parted from it. "I know. It would be mean, wouldn't it? Specially when she's lame. I say, Tommy, you give me a boost and I'll shin up and put some corn and stuff in her hole so she won't have to come out for ever and ever so long." And that's exactly what they did.

Might as well give your money away. If you don't the income tax collector will get it next year.

GLENDALE HOME IS ASKED FOR TWO FINE KIDDIES

Parents Unable to Care for Them Properly at This Time

Is there a family in Glendale that would like to brighten the home by taking one or two children and giving them a home? Glendale Post No. 127 of the American Legion is seeking a home or homes for the Sousa children, ages 2 years and 3 years. Their father is a disabled World War veteran and is unable to work. Their mother is employed at the Thornycroft sanitarium and is unable to care for them, and the Legion has been requested to find good homes for the little ones. This is a chance for Glendaleans to do their bit now that the world war is over to assist the men who gave of their health and were willing to give their lives if necessary for the country. The matter of finding a home for these two children was discussed at the regular weekly meeting of the Glendale Post Friday and it was decided to make an appeal to the people of Glendale in an attempt to locate the little ones at once. ## FIVE BOY SCOUTS ON 35-MILE HIKE

Five boys, members of Boy Scout troop No. 1, left last Tuesday for Ford truck for Mt. Baldy. They were Goldburn Danner, Richard Ryan, Bob Searle, Roy Gagam, Massaru Horri and Scoutmaster Robert Taylor. They all took blankets and food and camped in the truck. It was their intention to drive up to Camp Baldy, but due to the heavy rains the roads and bridges were nearly all washed out, so Wednesday night the five boys left for Camp Baldy on foot, taking their blankets and food with them. Mr. Taylor remaining in camp. They arrived there about 11:30 p. m., remaining all night, and left Thursday morning for the summit. They found it was too late to reach it so had to turn back. However, they reached snow and was in it up to their knees. They had a good time taking pictures and making snowballs, however. The party returned Friday afternoon after having a fine trip and hiking 35 miles.

FASTEST GROWING CITY IN SOUTH

Final business for the year in the office of Building Inspector Marek put the record for 1921 buildings permits well over the top. When the office closed at noon today the total for the year was $5,103,625 and for the month was $505,884. This is the best year for any Southern California city in many years and Glendaleans are proud of the fact that Glendale is the "Fastest Growing City in the West."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and is designed to bring the present color and luster of your hair. Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen in a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

ALL I CAN SAY
Old Fellow, I'm sorry—that's all I can say. The Lord only knows why it happens this way. I'm not much on claiming the eternal plan Is clearly unfolded; I'm only a man Who's wondered and pondered and stumbled and groped, And struggled and suffered and finally hoped That out of it all would come sometime the way Old Fellow, I'm sorry—that's all I can say.
If sympathy comforts, I offer my hand And all that clasp means; I know you understand.
If friendliness cheers you, I'll come with a will And sit with you sometime, just quiet and still. If there's any service at all I can do I wish I might know and could do it for you. If longing could soothe it, 'twould not last the day. But, well, I'm just sorry—that's all I can say.
I've had griefs, Old Fellow, had griefs of my own. And, what friends may say, we must bear them alone. But maybe there's comfort, when hope seems at end. Not in hearing or seeing—just having a friend. I can't say the plan of it all will unfold. I know it is bitter and lonely and cold In your heart, but Time heals grief somehow and someday. And now, I'm just sorry—that's all I can say.

MASKED BANDITS TORTURE WOMAN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Three masked bandits held the family of C. F. Churchill prisoners in the Churchill home on North Bunker Hill avenue for three hours early today, and tortured members of the family with red-hot irons and clubs, according to a report to the police department. Churchill and his wife reported to the police that they were sitting in the front room of their home when three masked and armed figures invaded the room. They demanded that Mrs. Churchill give them $500. When she refused, one of the bandits struck her viciously and knocked her to the floor. Churchill flew to his wife's assistance, and was pounced upon by the invaders, who beat him unmercifully. The thieves again questioned the couple as to the whereabouts of their money. Unable to gain the information, from them and applied them to the chests of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill. The Churchill's two daughters, Florence and Mildred, in company with J. J. Jaquay, returned to the home at this time. They were immediately held up at the point of guns and marched into the "torture room." The thugs forced Mrs. Churchill to disrobe, according to the police report, under threat of attacking her daughters if she refused to comply. Churchill, injured, again sprang to his wife's assistance, and was clubbed to unconsciousness with a revolver butt. The bandits started a systematic search of the house. Under a carpet in the bedroom they found $400. Mildred Churchill, one of the daughters, attempted to interfere. "Shut up or I'll knock your teeth down your throat!" one of the bandits told her. Other threats were made. The men remained another hour and then fled, threatening to return and murder the entire family if the police were notified. The flying squadron was dispatched to the Churchill home immediately following a telephone call for aid. The neighborhood is being secured. Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were removed to the Receiving Hospital. They are seriously injured and burned, surgeons said.

WAIT AT CHURCH WEDDING PUT OFF

Society Leaders Disappoint Crowd at Fashionable Church
CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Chicago still gasped today over the failure of the wedding of Miss Mary Landon Baker and Allister McCormick to materialize. Miss Baker and McCormick, leaders of Chicago's younger set, were to have been married yesterday. The fashionable Presbyterian church was crowded with guests—Chicago's social elite. As the appointed hour grew near, the introduction of the wedding march was played. Then there was a pause. The march was started over and over again. The Rev. John Timothy Stone arose and advised the hushed assemblage. He said: "Owing to a sudden indisposition of Miss Baker, there will be no wedding." At the Baker apartment, Miss Baker "was under the care of a physician and could not be seen." McCormick is the nephew of Harold F. McCormick, head of the International Harvester company, who was recently divorced by his wife, the daughter of John D. Rockefeller.

CONFERENCE TO TALK NEW LAW

Building Ordinance to Be Discussed During Week Here
A conference of all architects and engineers of Glendale will be called some time during the week at the city hall to go over a proposed building ordinance. The ordinance was to have been passed at the last meeting of the council but action was deferred in order to give the architects and engineers an opportunity to read and discuss it. Contractors have already discussed the new ordinance at a meeting held last Tuesday in the city hall. The new ordinance will take the place of the present building ordinance and is designed to bring the present ordinance up to date. Under the present law there is no provision made for the Class A reinforced concrete and steel buildings. The new ordinance will provide for such buildings. Other sections of the ordinance will remain practically unchanged. The change for permits to build the average home will not be increased and the requirements will remain practically the same. Trouble comes to those who haven't time to wait.

the druggist, says.

Prescriptions—We use great care in filling them. We call for and deliver them.

Prescriptions have first call at my store.

Don't try to wear out a cold or a cough; it can't be done. It was a cough that carried him off and a coffin they carried him off in. Try Broadway Pharmacy first. More than 5000 items. Drug stores now keep most everything but drugs. My drug store is no exception.

My two dollar Hot Water Bottles are really worth two hundred cents, but I don't think they are worth one cent more. I guarantee them against any imperfections and they ought to last one or two years at least, if not mistreated with boiling hot water.

Fast, free, furious delivery.
