PREFACE

Although there are already quite a number of English-Chinese dictionaries in the market and new ones are appearing every year, the publication of the present work does not need more than a customary word of excuse, as, instead of being a mere duplicate or mutilation of any contemporary work, it is distinctively original—a pioneer, if such a term be allowable,—in a new line of English-Chinese lexicography.

The distinctive feature of this dictionary is that it aims “to kill two birds with one stone”: it is a dictionary in which, in addition to the usual information found in ordinary dictionaries, there are appended to almost every word a number of phrases and sentences showing at a glance how the word may be correctly used in its various special senses. Illustrative sentences are indeed made use of in some other dictionaries; but they form only an inconspicuous part, and are, as a rule, not so thoroughly and systematically dealt with as in the present work as to constitute a special feature by themselves and serve a definite purpose—an aid to composition. Moreover, the illustrative elements found in ordinary dictionaries are frequently broken sentences or phrases, which are sometimes rather misleading to the students who are not yet quite familiar with the use of words in their different senses. Some larger dictionaries published in the United States or Great Britain employ as illustration quotations from classical authors or the Bible. They are admirable in showing the historical aspects, the changes in the meaning, probably, of the words so illustrated, but they would hardly serve our purpose, as they generally are obsolete in modern English literature. In the present work, however, the illustrative part is composed of complete phrases and sentences that are easily understood and are expressive of the meanings of the words compatible with present-day usage. To further remove any possibility of misunderstanding, all the illustrative phrases and sentences are accompanied by Chinese translation, so that the student will not fail to grasp their exact meaning.

With regard to its special serviceableness as an ordinary dictionary, we need only point out that: (1) It contains more than 35,000 entries, all of which have been so carefully weighed and considered that the greatest possible amount of useful vocabulary has been introduced, while archaic and obsolete words and phrases are excluded as far as practicable; (2) The definitions and explanations have all been made as clear and simple as possible so as to give the greatest help to the users of the dictionary; (3) A very large number of words, English, American, as well as Japanese, have been consulted; (4) A large number of postwar new words and phrases, as well as new meanings of words, that are not found in most of our contemporary English-Chinese dictionaries, have been included in the work, so that readers of English will be able to run down a number of stumblingblocks that other dictionaries fail to remove for them. On other minor good features we shall not dwell; it is perhaps better to leave such features, of which we feel sure there are plenty, to be discovered by the readers themselves, than to boast of excellences that to most of them may seem non-existent.

A word, however, should be said as to the history of the present compilation. The plan for such a dictionary was started about fifteen years ago by Mr. K. Y. Chang, Mr. S. L. Chang, Mr. Tze-yun Lee, and myself. During this interval a number of friends have given us their valuable suggestions and have expressed willingness to collaborate, but have sooner or later dropped out, owing no doubt to the unusual heaviness of the task. After repeated attempts, dragged through long years, the work is at last brought out in its present shape. The plan of the work has thus been more than once revised, and it has no doubt profited by the changes made in the successive experiments. The actual compilation of the dictionary, as it is, has taken more than five years.

PREFACE

Grateful acknowledgments are made to the following gentlemen for their valuable suggestions and assistance:

SYMBOLS USED TO INDICATE PRONUNCIATION

讀 音 符 號

ACCENTS AND HYPHENS. The principal accent is indicated by a heavy mark (´), and the secondary accent by a lighter mark (˘), at the end of the syllable. Syllabic division is indicated by a short hyphen (-), except where this is replaced by an accent mark, or by a longer hyphen (—) used to join the members of words written or printed with a hyphen.

FOREIGN SOUNDS for which no special symbols are provided are represented by the nearest English equivalents.

PRONUNCIATIONS OMITTED. The accentuation only is given for some compound words, and for some derivatives ending in common suffixes like -ess, -est, -ing, -ist, -less, -like, -ness, -ship, if the pronunciation is perfectly regular and can therefore easily be learned from the separate parts. In other cases where a part or the whole of a pronunciation is omitted, it is the same as that of a word immediately preceding, and may be supplied from this preceding entry.

MODEL ENGLISH-CHINESE DICTIONARY

A

A (unstressed, ă; emphatic, ā), adj., or indefinite article. ① 一; 任一. ② 每; 各. 凡在漢音之前皆用 a; 例如 a bird, a youth, a wonder. 凡在 silent h- 及主音 (ū-, eu-, ew-, ou- 除外) 之前皆用 an; 例如 an hour, an eagle, a use, a eulogy, such a one. 但在不重讀音節中之 h- 之前有仍用 an 者; 例如 an histo'rian, an hypo'hesis.

【註】① a secretary and treasurer 係指一人而兼任書記會計者.

② a black and white horse 係指一匹黑白花斑馬; 若謂 a black and a white horse, 則指一匹黑馬與一匹白馬, 共有兩匹馬矣.

③ Give me a cup and saucer. He built a coachhouse and stable. 此兩句中, 因 saucer 及 stable 各爲 cup 及 coachhouse 之附屬物而成同一觀念, 故 a 字無須重復.

④ A rose is my favorite flower. 此句中之 a 字係誤用, 因其不指著薔花之一類也, 故須用 the 字代之.

⑤ He deems it no sin to steal a book or umbrella. 此句中之 a 字, 不可公用, 故 umbrella 之前應加 an.

⑥ I have a book; he has two. 此句中之 a 字係誤用, 因 a 字不可與其他數目字對用也; 故須用 one 字代之.

⑦ Mr. Smith called this morning. A Mr. Smith 作「有人以姓 S. 者」稱. 蓋言者記憶不清, 未能確指其名也.

⑧ We need a Washington to-day. Washington 前加一 a 字, 則專名變爲公名而指類似 Washington 之人物矣.

⑨ The man works three shillings a day. 此處 a 字作「每」字解.

a (ā), prep., a-, a- (ā-), prefix. 在; 於.

While their house was a-building, they lived in lodgings. 彼等之房屋在建築中時, 彼等居於旅館中.
