THE DAILY BEE. THE TERUANTEPEC BOUTE.

The last advices from Mexico conveying troversy respecting the right of way acres the Tehuantepec route, by the annulling o the Tabunatepee route, by the annulling of all pravious grants, and the concession of a new charter in favor of the Louislana Company, renders the altimate, and, we trust, early completion of a road across the lathmus a matter of reasonable certainty. We conceive this project to be one which should inherest the business classes of the country in all directions. Though New Orleans will derive material and immediate benefit from the opening of the prejected highway, the connected of the Union possesses a legitimate concern in an enterprise that will abridge the distance from any of our ports to San Francisco upwards of a thousand miles, and that will give us the command of a route, the Eastern terminus of which will te situated within our own waters. Hence the Tehuantepee transit route is an under-

Hence the Tehnantepec transit route is an undertaking of a national character, and may properly appeal to the sympathies and as situance of the American people. North, South, East and West.

We have on previous occasions taken some paties to point out and demonstrate the immeasurable superiority of this route over all others existing or in prospect; but it is well that the subject should be frequently brought before the public, lest its paramount importance should be overlooked or forgotten. In the anneved facts and figures we avail ourselves freely of the labors of Major Hirrs, of the Washington Sitze, than whom a more persevering and abler advocate of the enterprise does not exist. The Stafers, of the Washington Sitze, than whom a more persevering and abler advocate of the enterprise does not exist. The Stafers, of the Ithmat, decrotes a long article to the subject. Considering first the feasibility of constructing a railroad or transit route to connect the two oceans, the conclusion is arrived at of its entire practicability. The latimus possessers advantages of which the Panama route is wholly destitute. While the latter is particularly unhealthy, and enjoys a temperature neither oppressive nor changeable. ENGLISH DIVORCE BILL. The new bill amending the law of divorce, which has recently passed the British Parklament, is one of the numerous flustrations furnished by history of the shewsed and reluctance which English law-givers invariably exhibit when required to reform ancient abuses. The intelligent reader is probably aware that prior to the passage of the new years of jurisdiction for granting divorce for causes arising subsequent to marriage was vasied exclusively in the House of Lords was the process was one of pretracted time and enormous expense, thus operating an effectual bar to divorce, except to the wealthy classes. Nor did the House of Lords wer issue a bill for divorce until the party

Nor did the House of Lords ever issue a bill for divorce until the party seeking it had first obtained damages in one of the Courts of law against the dishonorer of his name, and then procured a separation a mease et tore from an accessissic Court, Moreover, the remedy was confined exclusively to the husband.

The amended bill affords partial, but by no means entire relief from the grievances of the previous system. Its main features are thus described by the New York Mirror:

A CERIOUS WAY TO GET RESTED. It is a custom tour in Betwickshire, England, among women workers in the field, when their backs become much tired by bowing low down wine singing turnips with short shanked hoes, to be down upon their faces to the ground, abouting others to step across the lower part of their backs, on the lumbar region, with one look, acveral times, until all pair, of fatigue is general. Burton, in the "Frist Footsteps in East Alva", marked a very similar custom in females who load the cameign on feeting fatigue, and who the at the length, profes, stand upon each other's backs, on feeting fatigue, and who the at the toes, and rise like grants retreated. They cannot be called "possible fatigue, and who the at the toes, and rise like grants retreated."
