THE Standard will be published at the office, 377, Pitt Street, every Friday afternoon, for the country post, and every Saturday morning, for the city. Agents will be supplied on Friday evenings. The Standard will advocate an enlightened and liberal policy in politics, and freedom from the trammels of Popery, the absurdities of Puseyism, and Ritualism, in Religion. In religious questions the principles of the Scriptures will be exclusively inculcated. Denominationalism will be carefully avoided. The object of the Standard will be to maintain and extend the principles of "our common Protestantism," that is, "our common Christianity," without favour to any of the Churches or sects into which the community is divided. The Standard belongs to no Church, unless to the church which is made up of all the Evangelical Churches. It will not depart from the broad platform of the Evangelical religion of the New Testament.
