

Exhibit 2750-A

2

DEF. DOC. #1643

Excerpt from "Nazi Conspiracy and Aggression"

VOL. VI, Page 887, 889

Translation of Document C-66

(Memorandum for ^dAmiral Assmann for his own use, signed "Raeder", 10 January 1944.)

I.S.O. Only

a. Barbarossa

.....

3. At that time (a 1 above), the Fuehrer was firmly resolved on a surprise attack on Russia, regardless of what was the Russian attitude to Germany, --- this, according to reports coming in, was frequently changing. The communication to Matsuoka was designed entirely as a camouflage measure and to insure surprise. Concern lest a note to Matsuoka which stated his telling Matsuoka the whole truth. He told me so at the time at a party!