THE INSATIATE Countesse.

The Countesse of Smenia discovered sitting at a Table couered with blacke, on which stands two black Tapers lighted, she in mourning.

Enter ROBERTO Count of Cypres, GUIDO Count of Arsena, and Signior MIZALDVS.

Mizaldus.

What should we doe in this Countesses darke hole?
She's sullenly retyred, as the Turtle:
Every day has beene a blacke day with her since her husband dyed, and what should we vnruely members make here?

Guid. As melancholy night masques vp heauens face,
So doth the Euening starre present herselfe
Vnto the carefull Shepherds glad some eyes,
By which vnto the folde he leades his flocke.

Mizald. Zounds what a sheepish beginning is here? tis said true, Loue is simple; and it may well hold, and thou art a simple louer.

Roberto. See how yond Starre like beauty in a cloud;
Illumines darknesse, and beguiles the Moone
Of all her glory in the firmament.

Mitid. Well said man i'the Moore, Was euer such Astronomers? Marry I feare none of these will fall into the right Ditch.

Robert. Madame.

Count Ha Anna, what are my doores vnbarr'd?

Mic. Ile assure you the way into your Ladiship is open.

Rob. And God defend that any prophane hand
Should offer sacrificedge to such a Saint.

Louely Isabella, by this dutious kisse,

That drawes part of my Soule along with it,

Had I but thought my rude intrusion

Had wak'd the Doue-like spleene harbour'd within you,

Life and my first borne should not satisfie

Such a transgression, worthy of a checke,

But that Immortals wincke at my offence,

Makes me presume more boldly: I am come

To raise you from this so infernall sadnesse.

Isab. My Lord of Cypres, doe not mocke my grefe:

Teares are as due, as Tribute, to the dead,

As feare to God, and duty vnto Kings,

Loue to the Iust, or hate vnto the Wicked.

Robert. Surc ease.

Beleeue it is a wrong vnto the Gods:

They saile against the winde that waile the dead.

And since his heart hath wrestled with deaths pangs,

From whose sterne Caue none tracts a backward path.

Leaue to lament this necessary change,

And thanke the Gods, for they can giue as good.

Isab. I waile his losse! Sinke him tenne cubites deeper,

I may not feare his resurrection:

I will be siuorne vpon the holy Writ

I morne thus feruent cause he di'd no sooner:

Hee buried me alique,

And mued mee vp like Cretan Dedalus,

And with wall-ey'd Ielousie hept me from hope

Of any waxen wings to flye to pleasure.

But now his soule her Argos eyes hath clos'd,

And

And I am free as ayre. You of my lxxe,
In the first flow of youth vse you the sweets
Due to your proper beauties, ere the ebbe
And long waie of vnwelcome change shall come.
Faire women play: she's chaste whom none will haue.
Here is a man of a most milde aspect
Temperate, effeminate, and worthy loue,
One that with burning ardor hath pursued me:
A donatiue he hath of euery God;
Apollo gaue him lockes, Ioue his high fronte,
The God of Eloquence his flowing speech,
The feminis Deities strowed all their bounties
And beautie on his face: that eye was Iuno's
Those lips were his that wonne the golden Ball,
That virgin-blush Diana's: here they meete,
As in a sacred Synod. My Lords, I must intreate
A while your wisht forbearance.

Omnes. We obey you Lady. Exit Guido and Mizald.

If. My Lord, with you I haue some conference. Ma. Rob.
I pray my Lord, doe you woo euery Lady
In this phraze you doe me?

Rob. Fairest, till now,

Loue was an Infant in my Oratory,

Ifab. And kisse thus too?

Rob. I ne'r was so kist, leaue thus to please,
Flames into flames, seas thou powrest into seas.

Ifab. Pray frowne my Lord, let me see how many wiues You'll haue. Heigh-ho, you'll bury me I see.

Rob. In the Swans downe and tombe thee in mine armes.

Ifab. Then folkes shall pray in vaine to send me rest.

A way, you're such another meddling Lord.

Rob. By heauen my loue's as chaste as thou art faire,
And both exceede comparison, by this kisse,
That crownes me Monarch of another world
Superiour to the first, faire, thou shalt see
As vnto heauen, my loue so vnto thee.

(hand,

Ifab. Alas poore creatures, when we are once o'the falling

A man may easily come ouer vs:

It is as hard for vs to hide our loue,

As to shut sinne from the Creators eyes.

I faith my Lord, I had a Months minde vnto you.

As tedious as a tull ri'dd Maiden head.

And Count of Cypers, thinke my loue as pure,

As the first opening of the bloomes in May;

Your vertues may; nay, let me not blush to say so:

And see for your sake thus I leaue to sorrow

Beginne this subtile coniuration with mee,

And as this Taper, due vnto the dead,

I here extinguish, so my late dead Lord

I put out euer from my memory,

That his remembrance may not wrong our loue Puts out

As bold-fac'd yomen when they wed another, the Taper.

Banquet their husbands with their dead loues heads.

Rob. And as I sacrifice this to his Ghost;

With this expire all corrupt thoughts of youth,

That fame-infatiate Diuell Jealousie,

And all the sparkes that may bring vnto flame,

Hate betwixt man and wife or breed defame.

Enter Mizaldus and Mendosa. Mizaldus

Guid. Mary Amen, I say: Madame, are you that were in for all day, now come to be in for all night? How now Count Arsena?

Miz. Faith Signior not vnlike the condemn'd malefactor,
That heares his iudgement openly pronounc'd;

But I ascribe to Fate, Ioyswell your loue.

Cypres, and Willow grace my drooping crest.

Rob. We doe entend our Hymeneall rights

With the next rising Sunne. Count Cypres,

Next to our Bride, the welcomst to our feast.

Count. Ars. Sancta Maria, what thinkest thou of this change?

A Players passion Ile beleue hereafter,

And in a Tragicke Sceane weepe for olde Priam,

When fell reuenging Pirrhus with suppos'de

And artificiall wounds mangles his breast!

And

And thinke it a more worthy act to me,
Then trust a female mourning ore her loue:
Naught that is done of woman shall me please,
Natures step-children rather her desire.

Miz. Learne of a well composed Epigram,
A womans loue, and thus't was sung vnto vs:
The Tapers that stood on her husbands hearfe
Isabell's aduances to a second bed:

Is it not wondrous strange for to rehearse
Shee should so soone forget her husband dead
One houre? for if the husbands life once fade,
Both loue and husband in one graue are laid.
But we forget our selues, I am for the marriage
Of Signior Claridiana, and the fine Mtis. Abigail.

Count. Arf. I for his arch-foes wedding Signior Rogero, and the spruce Mris. Thais: but see, the solemne rites are ended, and from their seuerall Temples they are come.

Mizal. A quarrell on my life,

Enter at one doore Signior Claridiana, Abigal his wife, the Lady Lentulus with Rosemary as from Church. At the other doore Signior Rogero and Thais his wife, Men- dofa Foscarii, Nephew to the Duke, from the Bridall, they see one another, and draw, Count Arfena and others step betweene them.

Clarid. Good my Lord detaine me not, I will tilt at him.

Rogero. Remember, Sir, this is your wedding day,
And that triumph belongs onely to your wife.

Rogero. If you be noble let me cut off his head.

Clarid. Remember o'the other side, you haue a maidenhead of your owne to cut off.

Rog. Ile make my marriage day like to the bloody bridal Alcides by the fierie Centaurs had.

Thais. Husband, deare Husband!

Rog. Away with these catterwallers.

Come on sir.

Clarid. Thou sonne of a Jew.

Quid Alas poore wench, thy husband's circumcis'd.

Clarid.

Clarid. Begot when thy fathers face was toward th' East,
To shew that thou would'st proue a Caterpillar; }
His Messias shall not saue thee from me,
He send thee to him in collops.

Arson. O fry not in choler so Sir.

Roger. Mountebanke with thy Pedanticall action,

Rimatrix, Buglers, Rhimocerso

Mend. Gentlemen, I coniure you
By the vertues of men.

Rog. Shall any broken Quacksaluers Bastard oppose him to mee in my Nuptials? No, but He shew him better mettall then ere the Gallenawfrey his father vsed. Thou scumme of his melting pots, that wert christned in a Cruoile, with Mercuries water, O shew thou wouldest proue a stinging As-pis; for all thou spitst is Aqua fortis, and thy breath is a compound of poysons stillatory: if I get within thee, hadst thou the scaly hyde of a Crocodile, as thou art partly of his nature, I would leaue thee as bare as an Anatomy at the second veiwing,

Clarid. Thou Iew, of the Tribe of Gad, that I were sure, were there none here but thou and I, would'st teach mee the Art of breathing, thou wouldst runne like a Dromidarie, Clar. Thou that are the tal't man of Christendome when thou art alone, if thou dost maintaine this to my face, Ie make thee skip on Ounce.

Mend. Nay, good sir, be you still.

Roger. Let the Quacksaluers sonne by still:
His father was still, and still, and still againe.

Clarid. By the Almighty Ile study Negromancy but Ile be reueng'd.

Ar. Gentlemen, leaue these dissentions,
Signior Rogero, you are a man of worth.

Clarid. True, all the Citie points at him for a Knaue.

Count. Ar. You are of like reputation Signior Cloridiana.
The hatred twixt your Grandfires first beganne,
Impute it to the folly of that age.

These your dissentions may erect a faction,

Like

Like to the Capules and Montagnues.

Mend. Put it to equall arbitration, choose your friends,
'The Senators will thinke'em happy in't.

Reg. Mir. He ne're embrace the smoake of a Furnace, the quintessence of minerall or simples, or as I may say more learnedly, nor the spirit of Quick-silver.

Clarid. Nor I such a Centaure, halfe a man, halfe an Asse, and all a Iew.

A sen. Nay, then we will be Constables, and force a quiet :
Gentlemen, keepe'em a sunder, and helpe to persuaue'em.

Mend. Well Ladies, your Husbands behaue'em as lustily on their wedding-dayes, as e'le heard any. Nay Lady-widow, you and I must haue a falling: you're of Signior Mizaldus faction, and I am your vowed enemy, from the bodkin to the pincase.
hearke in your eare.

Abig. Well Thais : O ! you're a cunning caruer: we two that any time these foureteene yeeres haue called sisters, brought and bred vp together : that haue told one another all our wanton dreames, talk't all night-long of young men, & spent many an idle houre, fasted vpon the stones on S. Agnes night together, practised all the petulant amorousnesses that delight young Maides, yet haue you conceal'd not onely the marriage, but the man: and well you might deceiue me, for i'le be sworne you neuer dream'd of him, and it stands against all reason you should enioy him you neuer dream'd of.

Thais. Is not all this the same in you ? Did you euer manifest your Sweet-hearts nose, that I might nose him by't? commended his calfe, or his nether lip ? apparant signes that you were not in loue, or wisely couered it. Haue you euer said, such a man goes vp right, or has a better gate then any of the rest, as indeed since he is proued a Magnifico, I thought thou would'it haue put it into my hands what ere't had beene.

Abi. Well wench, wee haue crosse fates: our Husbands such inueterate foes, and we such entire friends; but the best is wee are neighbours, and our backe-Arbors may afford visitation freely: prethee, let vs maintaine our familiarity still, whatsoeuer thy Husband doe vnto thee, as I am afraid he will crosse it i'the nicke.

Thais.

Thais. Faith, you little Iew, If I please him in one thing, hee shall please me in all; thats certaine. Who shall I haue to keepe my counsell if I misse thee? who shall teach mee to vse the bridle when the rynes are in mine own hand? what to long for? when to take Phisicke? where to be melancholy? why, we two are one anothers grounds, without which would be no Musick.

Abig. Well said wench, and the Pricke-song we vse shall be our husbands.

Thais. I will long for Swines-fishe o'the first childe.

Abig. Wilt'ou little Iew? And I to kisse thy husband vpon the least belly-ake. This will mad'em.

Thais. I kisse thee wench for that, and with it confirme our friendship.

Mend. By these sweet lips Widdow.

Lady Lent. Good my Lord learne to sweare by rote.

Your birth and fortune makes my braine suppose,

That like a man heated with wines and lust,

Shee that is next your object is your mate,

Till the foule water haue quencht out the fire.

You the Dukes kinsman, tell me I am young,

Faire, rich, and vertuous; I my selfe will flatter

My selfe, till you are gone, that are more faire,

More rich, more vertuous, and more debonaire:

All which are ladders to an higher reach:

Who drinks a puddle that may tast a spring?

Who kisse a Subiect that may hugge a King?

Mend. Yes the Camell alwayes drinks in puddle-water,

And as for huggings reade Antiquities.

Faith, Madam, Ile boord thee one of these dayes.

Lady. I, but ne're bed me my Lord: my vow is firme

Since God hath called me to this noble state,

Much to my greefe, of vertuous Widdow-hood,

No man shall euer come within my gates.

Men. Wilt thou ram vpr thy porch-hold? O widdow, I perceiue

You're ignorant of the Lo. ets leger demaine.

There is a fellow that by Magicke will assilt

To murder Princes inuisible; I can command his spirit.

Or what say you to a fine scaling Ladder of ropes?

I can tell you, I am a mad, wag-halter:

But by the vertue I see seated in you,
And by the worthy fame is blazond of you,
By little Cupid, that is mighty nam'd,
And can command my looser follies downe,
I loue, and must enioy, yet with such limits,
As one that knowes inforced marriage.
To be the Furies sister. Thinke of me.

Amb. Ha, ha, ha.

Mend. How now Lady, does the toy take you, as they say?

Abig. No, my Lord, nor doe we take your toy, as they say.
This is a childes birth, that must not be deliuered before a man
Though your Lordship might be a Midwife for your chinne.

Mend. Some bawdy riddle is't not? you long til't by night.

Thais. No, my Lord, womens longing comes after their marriage night. Sister, see you be constant now.

Abig. Why, dost thinke Ile make my Husband a Cuckold?
O! here they come.

Enter at severall doores Count Ars. with Claridiana: Guido, with Rogero at another doore, M. ndosa meetes them.

Mend. Signior Rogero, are you yet qualified?

Rog. Yes: does any man thinke ile goe like a sheepe to the slaughter? Hands off my Lord, your Lordship may chance come vnder my hands: if you doe, I shall shew my selfe a Citizen, and reuenge basely.

Clar. I thinke if I were receiuing the holy Sacrament
His sight would make me gnash my teeth terribly:

But there's the beauty without qaralell, To Abigall.

In whom the Graces and the Vertues meete:

In her aspect milde Honour sits and smiles:

And who looks there, were it the sauage beare,

But would deriue new nature from her eyes.

But to be reconcil'd simply for him,

Were mankinde to be lost againe, I'de let it,

And a new heape of stones should stocke the world,

In heauen and earth this power beauty hath.

It inflames Temperance, and temp'rates wrath :
What e're thou art, mine art thou wife or chaste:
I shall set hard vpon thy marriage-vow,
And write reuenge high in thy Husbands brow,
In a strange Character. You may beginne sir.

Mend. Signior Claridiana, I hope Signior Rogero
Thus employed me about a good office,
'T were worthy Ciceroes tongue, a famous Oration now:
But friendship that is mutually embraced of the Gods,
And is Ioues Vsher to each sacred Synod,
Without the which he could not reigne in heauen,
That ouer-goes my admiration, shall not vnder-go my censure.
These hot flames of rage that else will be
As fire mid't your nuptiall solitie,
Burning the edge off to the present Ioy,
And keepe you wake to terror.

Clarid. I haue not yet swallowed the Rhimatrix, nor the O-nocentaure, the Rhinoceros was monstrous.

Arsen. Sir, be you of the more flexible nature, and confesse an error.

Clarid. I must, the Gods of loue command;
And that bright starre, her eye, that guides my fate.
Signior Rogero, ioy then Signior Rogero.

Rog. Signior, sir, O Diuell.

Thais. Good Husband, shew your selfe a temperate man,
Your mother was a woman I dare sweare;
Noe Tyger got you, nor noe Beare was riuall
In your conception; you seeme like the issue
The Painters limine leaping from Enuies mouth,
That deuoures all hee meetes.

Rog. Had the last, or the least Syllable
Of this more then immortall eloquence,
Commenc'd to me when rage had beene so high
Within my bloud, that it ore-topt my soule,
Like to the Lyon when he heares the sound
Of Dian's Bow-string in some shady wood,
I should haue couch't my lowly limbe on earth,

And

And held my silence a proud sacrifice.

Cl. Slaue, I will fight with thee at any odds,
Or name an instrument fit for destruction,
That ne're was made to make away a man,
He meete thee on the ridges of the Alpes,
Or some inhospitable wildernesse,
Stark-naked, at push of pike, or keene Curtl-axe,
At Turkish Sickle, Babylonian Saw,
The ancient Hookes of great Cadwalleder,
Or any other heathen inuention.

Thais. O! God bleffe the man.

Lent. Counsell him, good my Lord.

Mend. Our tongues are weary, and he desperate,
He does refuse to heare: What shall we doe?

Cl. I am not mad, I can heare, I can see, I can feele,
But a wise rage in man, wrongs past compare,
Should be well nourisht as his vertues are:
I'de haue it knowne vnto each valiant spirit,
He wrongs noe man that to himselfe does right.

Catzo I had one, Signior Rogero, I had one.

Arsen. By heauen! this voluntary reconciliation made Freely and of it selfe, argues vnfaign'd
And vertuous knot of loue. Soe sirs, embrace.

Rog. Sir, by the conscience of a Catholike man,
And by our mother Church that bindes
And doth attone in amitie with God,
The soules of men, that they with men be one:
I tread into the center all the thoughts
Of ill in mee, toward you, and memory
Of what from you might ought disparage mee,
Wishing vnfaignedly it may sinke low,
And as vntimely births want power to grow.

Mend. Christianly said: Signior what would you haue more?

Cl. And so I sweare, you're honest, Onocentaure.

Arsen. Nay see now, he vpon your turbulent spirit,
Did he doo't in this forme?

Cl. If you thinke not this sufficient, you shall command me to be reconcil'd in another forme, as a Rhinatrix, or a Rhinosnoce.

Mend. S' blood, what will you doe?

Clar. Well, giue me your hands first, I am friends with you
I' faith: thereupon I embrace you, kisse your Wife, and God giue vs ioy.

To Thais.

Thais. You meane me and my husband.

Clar. You take the meaning better then the speech, Lady,
Roger. The like with I, but ne'er can be the like,
And therefore wish I thee.

Clar. By this bright light that is deriu'd from thee.

Thais. So sir, you make mee a very light creature.

Clar. But that thou art a blessed Angell, sent Downe from the Gods t'attone mortall men,
I would haue thought deedes beyond all menst thoughts,
And executed more vpon his corps:
Oh let him thank the beautie of this eye,
And not his resolute words or destinie.

Arsen. What saist thou Mizaldus, come applaud this Iubile,
A day these hundred yeeres before not truely knowne,
To these diuided factions.

Clar. No nor this day had it beene falsely borne,
But that I meane to found it with his horne,

Miz. I lik'd the former iarre better: then they shewd like men and Souldiers; now iike Cowards and Leachers.

Arsen. Well said Mizaldus: thou art like th' Base Violl in a Consort, let the other instruments wish and delight in your highnest sence, thou art still grumbling.

Clar. Nay, sweete receiue it, Giues it Abigail.
And in it my heart:

And when thou read'st a moouing syllable
Think that my soule was Secretary to't.
It is your loue, and not the odious wish
Of my reuenge, in stiling him a Cuckold,
Makes me presume thus fare: then read it faile,
My passion's ample, as our beauties are.

Abig. Well sir, we will not sticke with you.

Arsen.

Arsen. And Gentlemen, since it hath hap't so fortunately,
I doe entreat we may all mee'te to morrow,
In some Heroick Masque, to grace the Nuptials
Of the most noble Countesse of Smenia,

Mend. Who does the young Count marry?

Arsen. O sir, who but the very heire of all her sexe,
That beares the Palme of beauty from 'emall:
Others compar'd to her, shew like faint Starres
To the full Moone of wonder in her face:
The Lady Isabella, the late Widdow
To the deceast and noble Vicount Hermus.

Mend. Law you there, Widow, there's one of the last edition,
Whose Husband yet retaines in his cold trunk
Some little ayring of his noble guest,
Yet shea fieth Bride as the Moneth of May.

Lent. Well my Lord, I am none of these,
That haue my second Husband bespoken,
My doore shall be a testimony of it.
And but these noble Marriages encite me,
My much abstracted presence should haue shew'd it.
If you come to me, hearke in your eare my Lord,
Looke your Ladder of ropes be strong,
For I shall tie you to your tackling.

Arsen. Gentlemen, your answer to the Masque.

Omnes. Your honour leades, wee'l follow.

Rog. Signior Claridiana.

Clar. I attend you sir.

Exeunt omnes.

Abig. You'l be constant.

Maacet Clarid.

[Clar. About the Adamant, the Goates blood shall not breake
Yet shallow fooles, and plainer morall men, (me,
That vnderstand not vvhath they vndertake:
Fail in their owne snares, or come short of vengeance,
No; let rhe Sunne view with an open face,
And afterward shrinke in his blushing checkes,
Asham'd and cursing of the fixt decree,
That makes his light bawd to the crimes of men,
When I haue endued what I now deise.

Apolloes,

Apollos Oracle shall sweare me wife,
Strumper his wife, branch my false-seeming friend,
And make him foster what my hate begor,
A bastard, that when age and sicknesse leaze him,
Shall be a corsive to his griping heart:
He write to her, for what her modesty
Will not permit, nor my adulterate forcing,
That bushlesse Herald shall not feare to tell:
Rogero shall know yet that his foe's a man,
And what is more, a true Italian. Exit.

Finis Actus primi.

Actus secundi - Scena prima.

Enter Roberto, Lord Cardinal, Isabella, Lady Lentulus, Abigail, and Thais. Lights.

Roberto.

MY graue Lord Cardinal, we congratulate,
And zealously doe entertaine your loue:
That from your high and diuine contemplation,
You haue vouchsaf'd to consummate a day
Due to our Nuptials: O, may this knot you knit,
This individual Gordian grasp of hands,
In sight of God soe fairely intermixt,
Neuer be seuer'd, as heauen smiles at it,
By all the darts shot by infernall loue,
Angels of grace, Amen, Amen, say to't.
Faire Lady Widow, and my worthy Mistresse.
Doe you keepe silence for a wager?

Thais. Doe you aske a woman that question my Lord,
When shee inforcedly pursues what she's forbidden?
I thinke if I had beene tyed to silence,
I should haue bene worthy the Cucking-stoole ere this time.

Rob. You shall not be my Orator (Lady) that pleades thus for your selfe.

Ser.

Ser. My Lord the masquers are at hand.

Rob. Giue them kinde entertainement, Some worthy friends of mine, my Lord, vnknowne to mee, to lauish of their loues, bring their owne welcome in a solemne masque.

Abig. I am glad there's Noblemen in the Masque.
With our husbands to ouer-rule them,
They had sham'd vs elle.

Thais. Why? for why I pray?

Ab. Why? marry they had come in with some City shew else, hired a few Tincell coates at the vizard makers, which would ha' made them looke, for all the world like Bakers in their linnen bases, and meary vizards, new come from houlting. I saw a shew once at the marriage of Magnificeros daughter, presented by time: which time was an old bald thing, a seruant, 'twas the best man; he was a dier and came in likenesse of the raine-bow, in all manner of colours, to shew his art, but the raine-bow, vifnel of vrin, so we were all affraid the property was hang'd and lookt for a shower. Then came in after him, one that (it seem'd) feared no collours, a grocer that had trim'd vp himselfe handsomly: hee was Iustice and shew'd reasons why. And I thinke this grocer, I meane this iustice had borrowed a weather beaten ballance from some Iustice of a conduit, both which scales were replenish'd with the choice of his ware, And the more liberally to shew his nature,
He gaue euery woman in the roome her handfull.

Thais. O great act of iustice! well and my husband come cleanly of with this, he shall neere betray his weaknesse more but confesse himselfe a Cittizen hereafter, and acknowledge their wit, for alas they come short.

Enter in the Masque, the Count of Arsena, Mendosa, Claridiana, torch-bearers. They deliuer their shields to their senerall mistresses that is to say, Mendosa to the Lady Lentulus, Claridiana, to

Abigail; to Isabella, Guido, Count of Arsana; to Thais Rogero.

Isa. Good my Lord be my expositer to the Cardinall.

Car. The Sunne setting, a man pointing at it.

The Motto. Senso rament ipso Calarem.

Faire Bride, some seruant of yours, that here imitates
To haue felt the heate of Ione bled in your brightnesse,
But setting thus from him, by marriage,
He onely here acknowledgeth your power.
And I must expect beames of a morrow-Sunne.

Lent. Lord Bridegroome, will you interpret me?

Rob. A sable shield: the word, Vidua spes.

What the forlorne hope, in blacke, despairing?

Lady Lentulus, is this the badge of all your Suitors?

Lent. I by my troth my Lord, if they come to me.

Rob. I could giue it another interpretation. Me thinkes this Louer has learn'd of women to deale by contraries: if so, then here he sayes, the Widdow is his onely hope.

Lent. No: good my Lord, let the first stand.

Rob. Inquire of him, and hee'l resolute the doubt.

Abig. What's here? a Ship sailing nigh her hauen?

With good ware belike: tis well ballast.

Thais. O! this your deuice smells of the Merchant. What's your ships name, I pray? The forlorne Hope?

Abig. Noe: The Merchant Royall.

Thais. And why not Aduenturer?

Abig. You see no likely hood of that: would it not faine be in the hauen? The word: Ut tangerem portum.

Marry, for ought I know; God grant it. What's there?

Thais. Mine's an Azure shield: marry what else; I should tell thee more then I vnderstand; but the word is,

Aut precio, aut precibus.

Abig. I, I, some Common-counsell deuice. They take the wo-
Mend. Faire Widow, how like you this change? men and dance

Lent. I chang'd too lately to like any. the first change.

Mend. O your husband! you weare his memory like a death's-

For heauens loue thinke of me as of the man (head,

Whose dancing dayes you see are not yet done.

Lent. Yet you sinke a pace fir.

Mend. The fault's in my Vpholsterer, Lady.

Rob. Thou shalt as soone finde truth telling a lye, Vertue a bawd, Honesty a Courtier,

As me turn'd recreant to thy least designe :

Loue makes me speake, and hee makes loue diuine.

Thas. Would Loue could make you so : but 'tis his guise
To let vs surfeit ere he open our eyes.

Abig. You grasp my hand to hard i' faith, faire Sir, Holding her Clar. Not as you grasp my heart, vnwilling wanton, by the hand.

Were but my breast bare, and Anatomized,
Thou should'st behold there how thou tortur'st it :

And as Apelles limn'd the Queene of Loue,

In her right hand graiping a heart in flames,

So may I thee, fayret, but crueller.

Abig. Well Sir, your vizer giues you colour for what you say.

Clar. Grace me to weare this fauour, 'tis a Gemme

That vailes to your eyes, though not to th' Eagles,

And in exchange giue me one word of comfort.

Abig. I marry : I like this woer well :

Hee'l win's pleasure out o'the stones. The second change.

If a change is no robbery: yet in this change Isabella falls in loue

Thou rob'st me of my heart, sure Cupid's here, with Rogero when Disguis'd like a pretty Torch-bearer, the changers speak.

And makes his brand a torch, that with more sleight

He may intrap weake women: here the sparkes

Fly, as in Æna from his Fathers anuile.

O powerfull Boy! my heart's on fire, and vnto mine eyes

The raging flames ascend, like to two Beacons,

Summoning my strongest powers, but all too late,

The Conquerour already open's the gate.

I will not ask his name.

Abig. You dare put it into my hands.

Mend. doe you thinke I will not ?

Abig. Then thas to morrow (you'll be secret, seruant.)

Mend. All that I doe, Ile doe in secret.

Abig. My husband goes to Mucane to renew the Farme he has.

Mend. Well, what time goes the laker-farmer?

Abig. He shall not be long out, but you shall put in, I warrant you. Haue a care that you stand iust i'the nicke about sixe a clocke in the euening; my Maide shall conduct you vp, to saue

saue honour you must come vp darkling and to avoid suspition

Mend. Zounds hud winkt, and if you'l open all sweet Lady.

Abig. But if you faile to doo't.

Men. The Suane shall faile the day first,

Abig. Tie this ring fast, you may be sure to know.

You' i brag of this, now you haue brought mee to the bay.

Mend. Pox o' this Masque : would 'twere done, I might
To my Apothecaries for some stirring meats.

Tha. Me thinkes sir, you should blush e'en through your vizor.
I haue scarce patience to daunce out the rest.

Rob. The worse my fate that plowes a marble quarry :
Pigmalion yet thy Image was more kinde,
Although thy loue's not halfe so true as mine.
Dance they that list, I saile against the winde.

Thais. Nay sir betray not your infirmities, You'l make my husband iealous by and by.
We will thinke of you and that presently.

Guid. The spheares neer danc'd vnto a better tune.
Sound musicke there.

The third change ended

Isa. 'Twas musicke that he spake.

Ladies fall off.

Rob. Gallants I thanke you and Begin a health to your mistresses,

3. or 4. faire thankes sir Bride-groome.

Isa. He speakes not to this pledge has he no mistresse?
Would I might chuse one for him, but 't may be
He doth adore a brighter starre then we.

Exit Isabella

Exit Rob. Car.

Clara

Clarid. Candidi, Ergnos I beseech thee and lights

Mend. Come window, Ile bee bold to put you in.

My Lord will you haue a sotiate? Exit Thais. Lent. Abig.

Rog. Good gentlemen, if I haue any interest in you,
Let me depart vnknowne 'tis a disgrace

Of an eternall memory.

Mend. What the fall my Lord, as common a thing as can bee the stiffest man in Italy may fall betweene a womans legges.

Clar. would I had chang'd places with you my Lord, would it had benee my hap.

Rog. What Cuckold layd his hornes in my way?
Signior Claridiana you were by the Lady when I fell,
Doe you thinke I hurt her?

Cl. You could not hurt her, my Lord betweene the leggs.

Rog. What was't I fell withall?

Mend. A crosse point my Lord. (vnknowne)

Rog. Crosse point indeed; Well if you loue mee let me hence
The silence, yours the disgrace, mine owne.

Exit Car. & Mend.

Enter Isabella with a gilt Goblet and meets Rogero.

Isa. Sir, if wine were Nectar Ile begin a health,
To her that were most gracious in your eye
Yet daigne, as simply 'tis the gift of Bacchus,
To giue her pledge that drinks: this God of wine
Cannot inflame me more to appetite,

Though he bee to supreme with mighty loue;
Then thy faire shape. Rog. Zounds she comes to deride me.

Isab. That kisse shall serue
To be a pledge although my lips should starue.
No tricke to get that vizard from his face?

Rog. I will steale hence and so conceale disgrace.

Isa. Sir, haue you left nought behinde?

Rog. Yes but the fates will not permit.

(As Gems once lost are seldome or neuer found)

I should conuey it with me. Sweete good-night.

She bends to me: thers's my fall againe.

Exit

Isa. Hee's gon, that lightning that a while doth strike.

Our eyes with amaz'd brightnesse, and on a sudden Leaves vs in prisoned darkness. Lest thou art high,
My Images may well come from the Sky.

Anna, Anna, Enter Anna,

Anna. Madame, did you call?

Isab. Follow yond stranger, pierce hee learne his name:

Wee may hereafter thanke him. How I doate? Exit Anna.

Is hee not a God

That can command what other men would winne

With the hard it advantage? I must haue him,

Or shaddow-like follow his fleeting steps.

Were it as Daphne, and he followed chase,

Though I rejected young Apollo's loue,

And like a dreame beguile his wandring steps,

Should he pursue through the neighbouring groue,

Each Cowslip-stake should trip a willing fall,

Till hee were mine, who till then am his thrall:

Nor will I blush, since worthy is my chance.

'Tis said that Venus with a Satyre slept,

And how much short came she of my faire aime?

Then Queene of Loue a president he be,

To teach faire women learner to loue of mee.

Speake Musicke, what's his name.

Enter Anna.

Anna. Madame, it was the worthy Count Maffio.

Isab. Blest be thy tongue: the worthy Count indeede,

The worthiest of the Worthies. Truly Anna,

Hast thou pack'd vp those Monies, Plate, and Jewels

I gaue direction for?

Anna. Yes, Madame, I haue trust vp them, that many
A proper man has beene trust vp for.

Isab. I thanke thee: take the wings of night,

Beloued secretary, and post with them to Suenia,

There furnish vp some stately Palace

Worthy to entertaine the King of Loue:

Prepare it for my coming and my Loues,

Ere Phobus Steedes once more vnharneft be,

Or ere he sport with his beloued Theris,

The siluer-footed Goddesse of the sea,
Wee will set forward. Fly like the Northern winde,
Or swifter, Anna, fleet like to my minde.

An. I am iust of your minde Madaine, I am gone. Exit An.

Isab. So to the house of Death the mourner goes,
That is bereft of what his soule desir'd,
As I to bed, I to my nuptiall bed,
The heauen on earth : so to thought-slaughters went
The pale Andromeda bedew'd with teares,
When euery minute she expected gripes of a fell monster,
And in vaine bewail'd the act of her creation.
Sullen Night that look' st with sunke eyes on my nuptiall bed,
With ne're a Starre that smiles vpon the end,
Mend thy slacke pace, and lend the malecontent,
The hoping louer, and the wishing Bride
Beames that too long thou shaddowest : or if not,
In spight of thy fixt front, when my loath'd Mate
Shall strugge in due pleasure for his right,
Ile think't my loue, and die in that delight.

Exit

Enter at severall doores Abigail and Thais.

Abig. Thais, you're an early riser.

I haue that to shew will make your hayre stand an-end.

Thais. Well Lady, and I haue that to show you will bring your courage downe. What would you say, & I would name a partie faw your Husband court, kisse, nay almost goe through for the hole?

Abig. How? how? what wou'd I say? nay, by this light, what would I not doe? If euer Amazon fought better, or more at the face then Ile doe, let me neuer be thought a new-married Wife.
Come, ymasque her: tis some admirable creature, whose beautie you neede not paint. I warrant you, 'tis done to your hand.

Thais. Would any Woman but I be rebuted to her face?
Prerhee reade the contents: Know'st thou the Character?

Abig. 'tis my Hasbands hand, and a Loue-Letter:
But for the contents I finde none in it. Has the lustfull monster All backe and belly-stare'd me thus? What defect does he see in mee? Ile be sworne wench, I am of as pliant & yeelding a body to him, e'en which way he will, he may turne me as he list him-selfe. What? and dedicate to thee: I marry, heere's a stile so heigh as a man cannot helpe a dog o're it. He was wont to write to me in the Citie-phrase, my good Abigail: heere's Astonishment of nature vnpareld excellency, and most vne-quall rarity of creation: three such words will turne any honest woman in the world a whore; for a woman is neuer won till shee know not what to answer; and beshrew me if I yn-derstand any of these: you are the party I perceiue and heere's a white sheete that your husband has promist me to do penance in: you must not thinke to dance the shaking of the sheetes alone though their be not such rare phrases in't, 'tis more to the matter; a legible hand but for the dath or the (hee) and (as:) short bawdy Parenthesis as euer you saw, to the purpose, he has not left out a pricke I warrant you wherein he has pro-mist to doe me any good, but the Law's in mine owne hand.

Thais. I euer thought by his red beard hee would proue a Iudas, here am I bought and sold; he makes much of me indeed
Well wench, wee were best wisely in time seeke for preuen-tion I should bee loath to take drinke and die on't as I am afraid I shall that he will lye with thee.

Abig. To be short sweete heart Ile be true to thee, though a lyer to my husband: I haue signed your husbands bill like a Wood-cocke as hee is held, perswaded him (since nought but my loue can affwage his violent passions) he should enioy, like a priuate friend the pleasures of my bed: I told him my husband was to goe to Maurano to day to renew a farme he has,
and in the meane time hee might be tenant at will to vse mine, this false fire has so rooke with him, that hee's strauisht afore hee come I haue had stoned one him all red: dost know this?

Thais. I too well it blushes for his master points to the ringe

Abig. Now my husband will be hawkin about thee anon,
And thou canst meete him closely.

Thais. By my fayth I would bee loath in the darke, and hee knew me.

Abig. I meane thus: the same occasion will serue him too;
they are birds of a feather, and will flye together, I warrant thee

thee wench, appoint him to come: say that thy Husband's gone for Mawrano, and tell mee anon if thou mad'st not his heart-bloud spring, for ioy, in his face.

Thais. I conceiue you not all this while,

Abig. Then th'art a barren woman, and no marraile if thy Husband loue thee not: the houre for both to come is sixe, a dark time fit for purblind louers; and with cleanly conuayance by the niglers our maids, they shall be translated into our Bed-chambers.

Your Husband into mine, and mine into yours.

Thais. But you meane they shall come in at the backe-dores.

Abig. Who, our Husbandsnay and they come not in at the fore-dores, there will be no pleasure in't. But we two will climbe ouer our garden-Pales, and come in that way, (the chastest that are in Venice will stray for a good turne) & thus wittily will wee be bestowed, you into my house to your husband, and I into your house to my husband, and I warrant thee before a month come to an end, they'll cracke louder of this nights-lodging, then the Bedsteads.

Thais. All is if our Maids keepe secret.

Abig. Mine is a Maid Ile be sworne, shee has kept her secrets hitherto.

Thais. Troath, and I neuer had any Sea captaine borded in my house.

Abig. Goe to then: and the better to avoid suspition, Thus wee must inlist, they must come vp darkling, recreate themselues with their delight an houre or two, and after a million of kisses, or so.

Thais. But is my husband content to come darkling?

Abig. What not to saue mine honour? hee that will runne through fire, as hee has profest, will by the heate of his loue, grope in the darke, I warrant him he shall saue mine honour.

Thais. I am afraid my voyce will discover mee.

Abig. Why then, you'ad best say nothing, and take it thus quietly when your husband comes.

Thais. I, but you know a Woman cannot chuse but speake in these cases.

Aug. Bite in your neather-up, and I Warrant you,
Or make as if you were Whiffing Tobacco;
Or puich like me. Gods. so, I heare thy Husband Exit.

Thais. Farewell Wise-woman.

Enter. Mizaldus.

Mizal. Now gins my vengeance mount high in my lust.
'Tis a rare creature, shee'll do't i'faith;
And I am arm'd at all points. A rare whiblin,
To be reueng'd, and yet gaine pleasure in't,
One height aboue reuenge: yet what a slaue am I,
Are there not younger Brothers enough, but we must Branch one another? oh but mines reuenge,
And who on that does dreame
Must be a tyrant euer in extreame.
O my wife Thais get my breakefast ready;
I must into the Country to my Farme I haue
Some two miles off, and as I thinke,
Shall not come home to night. Iaques, iaques:
Get my Vessell ready to row me downe the Riuer.
Prethee make hast sweete girle. Exit Mizal.

Thais. So, ther's one foole shipt away: are your crosse-points discouered? Get your Breake-fast ready!
By this light ile tie you to hard fare;
I haue beene to sparing of that you prodigally offer
Voluntary to another: well you shall be a tame foole hereafter.
The finest light is when we first defraud;
Husband to night 'tis I must lye abroad. Exit.

Enter Isabella and a Page with a Letter.

Isa. Here, take this Letter, beare it to the Count:
But boy, first tell me; think'st thou I am in loue?

Page. Madam, I cannot tell.

Isa. Canst thou not tell? Dost thou not see my face?
Is not the face the index of the minde?
And canst thou not destinguish Loue by that?

Page. No Madam.

Isa. Then take this Letter and deliner it vnto the worthy Count, No, sic vpon him,

Come

Come backe againe: tell me, why shouldst thou thinke
That same's a Loue letter?

Page. I doe not thinke so Madam.

Isa. I know thou dost: for thou dost euer vse
To hold the wrong opinion. Tell me true,
Dost thou not thinke that Letter is of Loue?

Page. If you would haue me thinke so Madam, yes.

Isa. What dost thou thinke thy Lady is so fond?
Giue me the Letter, thy selfe shall see it.

Yet I should teare it in the breaking ope,
And make him lay a wrongfull charge on thee;
And say thou brok' st it open by the way;
And saw what haynous things I charge him with:
But 'tis all one, the Letter is not of loue
Therefore deliuer it vnto himselfe,

And tell him hee's deceia'd I doe not loue him.
But if he thinke so bid him come to mee,
And ile confute him straight; ile shew him reasons,
Ile shew him plainely why I cannot loue him.

And if he hap to reade it in thy hearing,
Or chance to tell thee that the words were sweet,

Doc not thou then disclose my lewde intent,
Vnder those Syrene words, and how I meane
To vse him when I haue him at my will:

For then thou wilt destroy the plots that's layd,
And make him feare to yeeld when I doe wish

Ouely to haue him yeeld; for when I haue him.
None but my selfe shall know how I will vse him.

Isa. Why dost thou come againe? I bad thee goe.

If I say goe, neuer returne againe, Exit Page.
My blood, like to a troubled Ocean,

Cuff'd with the Windes, incertaine where to rest,
Buts at the vtmost share of euery limbe.

My Husband's not the man I would haue had:

O my new thoughts to this braue sprightly Lord,

Was fixt to that hid fire Louers feele:
Where was my minde before, that refin'd iudgements:
That represents rare objects to our passions?
Or did my lust beguile me of my sence?
Making me feast vpon such dangerous cates,
For present want, that needes must breed a surfeit:
How was I shipwrackt? yet Isabella thinke
Thy Husband is a noble Gentleman, young, wise,
And rich: thinke what Fate followes thee,
And nought but lust doth blinde thy worthy loue:
I will desist. O no, it may not be.
Euen as a head-strong Courser beares way
His Rider, vainely struiuing him to stay.
Or as a suddaine gale thrusts into Sea
The Hauē touching Barke, now neare the sea:
So wauering Cupid brings me backe againe,
And purple Loue resumes his darts againe:
Here of themselves, by shafts come as if shot:
Better then I they quiuer knowes 'em not Enter count Arsenā, and a Page.

Rog. So fell the Troian wanderer on the Greeke,
And bore away his rauish prize to Troy:
For such a beautie, brighter then his Dana.
Ioue should (me thinks) now come himselve againe:
Louely Isabella. I confesse me mortall:
Not worthy to serue thee in thought, I swere,
Yet shall not this same ouer-flow of fauour
Diminish my vow'd duty to your beauty.

Isa. Your loue, my Lord I blushing proclaime it,
Hath power to draw mee through a wilderneffe,
Wer't arm'd with Furics, as with furious beasts.
Boy, bid our traine be ready, wee'le to horse, Ex. Page.
My Lord, I should say something, but I blush,
Courting is not befitting to our sexe.

Rog. Ile teach you how to woo,
Say you haue lou'd mee long,

And

And tell me that a womans feeble tongue
Was neuer turned vnto a wooing-string ;
Yet for my sake you will forget your sexe,
And court my Loue with strain'd immodesty,
Then bid me make you happy with a kisse.

If. Sir, though women doe not woo, yet for your sake
I am content to leaue that ciuill custome,
And pray you kisse me.

Rog. Now vse some vnexpect vmbages,
To draw me further into Vulcanes Net.

Ifa. You loue not me so well as I loue you.

Rog. Faire Lady, but I doe.

Ifa. Then shew your loue.

Rog. why in this kisse I shew't, and in my vowed seruice
This wooing shall suffice, 'tis easier farre
To make the current of a siluer-brooke
Conuert his flowing backward to his spring,
Then turne a woman wooer. There's no cause
Can turne the setted course of Natures Lawes.

Ifa. My Lord, will you pursue the plot ?

Rog. The Letter giues direction here for Paue.

To horse, to horse, thus once Fridace,
With lookes regardiant, did the Thracian gaze,
And lost his gift while he desired the sight.

But wiser, I, lead by more powerfull charme;

Ide see the world winnethee from out mine arme.

Exeunt

Enter at severall doores, Claridiana and Guido.

Gui. Zounds, is the Huritano comming? Claridiana what's the Cl. The Countesse of Sweuia has new taken horse. (matter?

Gui. Flye Phabus, flye, the houre is fixe a clocke.

Guid. Whether is shee gone Signior?

Cl. Euen as Ioue went to meete his simile.

To the Diueli I thinke.

Guid. You know not wherefore?

Cl. To say sooth I doe not.

So in immortal wise shall I arriue:

Guid. At the Gallowes. What in a passion Signior?

Cl. Zounds, doe not hold me tir:
Beautious Thais, I am all thine wholly.
The staffe is now aduancing for the Rest,
And when I tilt, Mizaldus aware my Crest.

Exit

Enter Roberto, in his Night-gowne, and cap, with Seruants, he kneeles downe.

Guid. What's here? the capring God. head tilting in the ayre?

Rob. The Gods send her no Horse, a poore old age,
Eternall woe, and sicknesse lasting rage.

Guid. My Lord, you may yet o'er take 'em.

Rob. Furies supply that place, for I will not; no,
She that can forsake me when pleasures in the full.
Fresh and vntird, what would she on the least barren coldnesse?
I warrant you she has already got

Her Braoues, and her Russians; the meanest whore
Will haue one buckler, but your great ones more.

The shores of Sicile retains not such a monster,
Though to Galley-slaues they daily prostitute.

To let the Nuptiall Tapers giue light to her new lust,
Who would haue thought it?

She that could no more forsake my company,
Then can the day forsake the glorious presence of the Sunne.

When I was absent, then her galled eyes

Would haue shed Aprill showers, and outwept

The clouds in that same o're-passionate moode:

When they drown'd all the world, yet now forsakes me;

Women your eyes shed glances like the Sunne;

Now shines your brightnesse, now your light is done.

On the sweetest showres you shine, 'tis but by chance,

And on the basest Weede you'l wast a glance.

Your beames once lost can neuer more be found;

Vnlesse we waite vntill your course runne round.

(And take you at sift hand,) Since I cannot

Enjoy the noble title of a man,

But after-ages. as our vertues are Buried whilst we are liuing will found out

My infamy, and her degenerate shame;

Yet

Yet in my life ile smother't if I may,
And like a dead man to the world bequeath
These houses of vanity, Mills and Lands.
Take what you will, I will not keepe among yon Seruants,
And welcome some religious Monastery,
A true sworne Beads-man ile hereafter be,
And wake the morning cocke with holy prayers.

Ser. Good my Lord: noble Master.

Rob. Disswade me not, my will shall be my King;
I thanke thee wife, a faire change thou hast giuen,
I leaue thy lust to woe the Loue of Heauen. Exit cum seruis.

Guid. This is conuersion, is't not? as good as might haue bin
He returnes religious vpon his Wiues turning Curtezian.
This is iust like some of our gallant Prodigals,
When they haue consum'd their Patrimonies wrongfully,
They turne Capuchins for deuotion, Exit.

Finis Actus secundi.

Actus tertij Scena prima.

Claridiana, and Rogero being in a readinesse, are receiued in at one anothers houses by their Maids.

Then Enters Mendosa, with a Page to the Lady Lentulus window.

Mendosa.

Night like a solemne Mourner frownes on earth,
Enuying that day should force her doffe her robes,
Or Phabus chase away her melancholly.
Heavens eyes looke faintly through her sable masque,
And siluer Cynthia hyes her in her Sphere,
Scorning to grace blacke nights solemnity.
Be vnpropitious Night to villaine thoughts,
But let thy Diamonds shine one vertuous ioue:
This is the lower house of high-built heauen,

Where

When my chaste Phaenice, in thine a'mong thoughts
So purely good, brings her to Heauen on earth.
Such power hath soules in contemplation.
Sing boy, (thought night yet) like the mornings Larke; Musicke
A soule that's cleare is light, thought heauen be darke. playes.

The Lady Lentulus, at her window.

Lent. Who speaks in Musicke to vs ?

Mend. Sweet, 'tis I. Boy leaue me and to bed. Exit Page.

Lent. I thanke you for your Musicke : now good-night.

Mend. Leaue not the World yet, Queene of Chastity,

Keepe promise with thy Loue Endirason,
And let me mee'te thee there on Latmus top.

'Tis I whose vertuous hopes are firmly fixt
On the fruition of thy chaste vow'd loue,

Lent. My Lord, your honor made me promise your ascent into my house, since my vow barr'd my doores,
By some wits engine, made for theft and iust :
Yet for your honour, and my humble fame,
Checke your blouds passions, and returne deare Lord :
Suspition is a dogge that still doth bite,

Without a cause, this act giues foode to enuy ;
Swolne big, it bursts, and poysons our cleare flames.

Men. Enuy is stinglesse when she lookes on thee.

Lent. Enuy is blinde, my Lord, and cannot see.

Men. If you breake promise, faire, you breake my heart.

Lent. Then come. Yea stay : Ascend. Yet let vs part.

I feare, yet know not what I feare :

Your Loue's pretious, yet mine Honour's deare.

Men. If I doe staine thy honour with foule iust,
May thunder stricke me to shew Ioue is iust.

Lent. Then come my Lord, on earth your vow is giuen.

This aide ile lend you. He throwes up a ladder of cords

M. Thus I mount my heauen. whic' she makes fast to some part Receiue me sweete. of the window, he ascends, and at

Lent. O me vnhappy wretch. top fals.

How fares your Honour? speake Fate-crosse Lord.

If life retaine his seat within you, speake ;

Else

The insatiate Countesse.

Else like that Seslian Dame, that saw her Loue,
Cast by the frowning billowes, on the sands,
And leane death swolne big with the Hellefont,
Inbleake Leanders body, like his Loue,
Come I to thee, one graue shall serue vs both.

Mend. Stay miracle of women, yet I breathe,
Though death be enter'd in this Tower of flesh,
Hee is not conquerour, my heart stands out,
And yeelds to thee, scorning his tyranny.

Lent. My doores are vow'd shut, and I cannot helpe you.
Your wounds are mortall, wounded is mine Honour,
If there the Towne-guard finde you. Vnhappy Dame,
Reliefe is periu'd, my vow kept, shame.
What hellish Destinie did twist my fate?

Mend. Rest ceaze thine eye-lids; be not passionate:
Sweet sleepe secure, Ile remoue my selfe.
That Viper Enuy shall not spot thy fame:
Ile take that poyson with me, my soules rest,
For like a Serpent, Ile creepe on my breast

Lent. Thou more then man, loue-wounded, ioy and griefe fight in my bloud. They wounds and constancie
Are both so strong none can haue victory.

Mend. Darke the world, earths-Queene, get thee to bed;
The earth is light while those two Starres are spread:
Their splendor will betray me to mens eyes.
Vaile thy bright face: for if thou longer stay,
Phabus will rise to thee, and make night day.

Lent. To part and leaue you hurt my soule doth feare.

Mend. To part from hence I cannot, you being there.

Lent. wee'll moue together, then Fate Loue controules,
And as we part so bodies part from soules.

Mend. Mine is the earth, thine the refined fire:
I am morrall, thou diuine, then soule mount higher.

Lent. Why then take comfort sweet, Ile see, on to morrow Exit

Men. My wounds are nothing, thy losse breeds my sorrow.
See now 'tis darke,
Support your Master, legges a little further:

Faint not bold: heart with anguish of my wound,
Try further yet, can blood weigh downe my soule?
Desire is vaine without abilitie. He staggars on, and Thus fals a Monarch, if Fate push at him. then fals downe.

Enter a Captain and the Watch.

Cap. Come on my hearts, we are the Cities securitie, Ile giue you your charge, and then like Courtiers euery man spye out: let no man in my company be a fraid to speake to a Cloake lined with Velvet, nor tremble at the sound of a gingling Spurie.

Watch. May I neuer be counted a cock of the game, if I feare Spurres: but be gelded like a Capon for the preferring of my voyce.

Cap. Ile haue none of my Band refraine to searcho a veneriall house, though his Wifes sister be a lodger there: nor take two shillings of the Bawd to saue the Gentlemens credits that are aloft: and so like voluntary Pandars leaue them, to the shame of all Halbardiers.

2. Nay the Wenches, wee'll tickle them, that's flat.

Cap. If you meste a Shenoiliero, that's in the grosse phrase, a Knight, that swaggeres in the streete, & being taken, I as no money in his Purse to pay for his fees, it shall be a part of your duty to entreate me to let him goe.

1. O meruailous tis there such Shenoilieros?

2. Some 200. that's the least, that are reueal'd Mend. grones.

Cap. What grone is that? bring a light. Wholyes there?

It is the Lord Mendosa, kinsman to our Duke.

Speake good my Lord, relate your dire mischance:

Lifelike a fearefull seruant fyes his Master,

Art must attonc them, or th' whole man is lost.

Conuay him to a Surgeons, then returne:

No place shall be vnsearch'd vntill we finde

The truth of this mischance. Make haste againe Exit the Watch.

Whose house is this stands open'd in, & search. Manet Captain.

What guests that house contains, and bring them forth,

This Noble mans misfortune stirs my quiet,

And fills me soule with fearefull fantasies.

But Ile vnwinde this Laborinth of doubt,

Else industry shall loose part of selves labour.
Who haue we there? Signiors cannot you tell vs
How our Princes kinsman came wounded to the death
Nigh to your houses.

Rog. Hey-day; crosse-ruffe at midnight. Is't Christmas?
You goe a gaming to our neighbours house.

Clar. Dolt make a mummer of me Oxe-head?

Cap. Make answere Gentlemen, it doth concerne you.

Rog. Oxe-head, will beare an action; ile ha'the Law; ile noe be yoakt. Beare witnesse Gentlemen, he cals me Oxe-head.

Cap. Doe you heare sir?

Clar. Very well, very well, take law and hang thy selfe, I care not. Had she no other but that good face to doate vpon? ide rather she had dealt with a dangerous French-man then with such a Pagan.

Cap. Are you mad? answere my demand.

Rog. I am as good a Christian as thy selfe,
Though my wife haue now new christned me,

Cap. Are you deafe, you make no answere?

Clar. Would I had had the circumcising of thee Jew, ide ha'
Cut short your Cuckold-maker, I would i'faith, I would i'faith

Cap. Away with them to prison; they'l answere better there.

Rog. Not too fast Gentlemen what's your crime?

Cap. Murder of the Dukes Kinsman, Signior Mendosa.

Amb. Nothing else? we did it, we did it, we did it.

Cap. Take heed Gentlemen what you confesse,

Clar. Ile confesse any thinge since I am made a foole by a knaue.
Ile be hang'd like an innocent, that's flat.

Rog. Ile not see my shame. Hempe instead of a Quack-saluer, you shall put out mine eyes, and my head shall bee bought to make incke-hornes of.

Cap. You doe confesse the murder?

Clar. Sir, 'tis true,

Done by a faith'esse Christian and a Jew!

Cap. To prison with them, we will heare no further,
The tongue betrayes the heart of guilty murder.

Exeunt Omnes.

Enter Count Guido, Isabella, Anna, and seruants.

Guid. Welcome to Pauy sweete, and may this kisse
Chase Melancholy from thy company;
Speake my soules ioy, how fare you after trauaile.

Isa. Like one that scapeth danger on the seas,
Yet trembles with cold feares being safe on land,
With bare imagination of what's past.

Guid. Feare keepe with cowards, aire-stars cannot moue.

Isa. Feare in this kinde, my Lord, doth sweeten loue.

Guid. To thinke feare ioy (deare) I cannot coniecture.

Isa. Feare's fire to seruencie,

Which makes loues sweete proue Nectar :
Trembling desire, feare, hope, and doubtfull leasure,
Distill from loue the Quintessence of pleasure.

Guid. Madam, I yeeld to you ; Feare keepe with Loue,
My Oratory is two weake against you :
You haue the ground of knowledge, wise experience,
Which makes your argument inuincible.

Isa. You are Times Scholler, and can flatter weakenesse.

Guid. Custome allowes it, and we plainly see

Princes and women maintaine flattery,

Isa, Anna, goe see my iewels and my trunkes

Be aptly placed in their severall roomes.

Exit Anna.

Enter Gniaca Count of Gaza, with attendants.

My Lord, know you this Gallant ? 'tis a compleat Gentleman.

Guid. I doe ; 'tis Connt Gniaca, my endeared friend,

Gniaca, Welcome to Paue, welcome faire Lady :

Your sight deare friend, is lifes restorative ;

This day's the period of long-wish'd content,

More welcome to me then day to the world,

Night to the wearied, or gold to a Mizer ;

Such ioy feeles friendship in society,

Isa. A rare shap'd man : compare them both together,

Guid. Our loues are friendly twins, both at a birth ;

The ioy you taste, that ioy doe I conceiue,

This day's the iubile of my desire.

Isa. He's fairer then he was when first I saw him.

This little time makes him more excellent.

Gniaca, Relate some newes, Harke you: what Lady's that?
Be open breasted, foe will I to thee. They whisper.

Isa. Errour did blinde him that paints loue blinde;
For my Loue p'ainely iudges difference,
Loue is cleare sighted, and with Eagles eyes,
Vndazeled, lookes vpon bright sunne-beam'd beauty:
Nature did rob her selfe, when shee made him,
Blushing to see her worke excell her selfe,
'Tis shape makes mankinde femelacy.

Forgiue me ~~King~~, 'tis my fate
To loue thy friend, and quit thy loue with hate.
I must enjoy him, let hope thy passions smother:
faith cannot coole blood, ile clip him wer't my brother
Such is the heate of my sincere affection,
Hell nor earth can keepe loue in subiecti on.

Gnia. I craue your Hours pardon my ignorance
Of what you were, may gaine a courteous pardon.

Isa. There needs no pardon, where there's no offence;
His tongue strikes Musick erauishing my sense:
I must be sodaine, else desire confounds mee,

Guid. What sport affords this Climate for delight?

Gnia. We'le hawke and hunt to day, as for to morrow Variety shall feed variety.

Isa. Dissimulation womens armour is,
Aide loue beleefe, and female constancy.
Oh I am sicke my Lord, kinde ~~Reuerend~~ helpe mee. Amide

Guid. Forfend it heauen, Madam sit; how fare you?
My lines best comfort speake, O speake sweet Saint.

Isa. Fetch art to keepe life, runne my Loue I faint:
My vitall breath runnes coldly through my veynes,
I see leane Death with eyes imaginary,
Stand fearefully before me; here my end
A wife vnconitant, yet thy louing friend.

Guid. As swift as thought, flie I to wish thee ayde. Exit.

Isa. Thus innocence by craft is soone betraid,
My Lord Gniaca, 'tis your art must heale me.

I am loue-sicke for your loue ; loue, loue, for louing :
I blush for speaking truth ; faire sir belecue me,
Beneath the Moone nought but your frowne can grieue me.

Gnia. Lady, by heauen, me thinkes, this fit is strange.

Isa. Count not my loue light for this sodaine change :
By Cupids Bow I sweare, and will avow,
I neuer know true perfect loue till now.

Gnia. Wrong not your selfe, me, and your dearest friend,
Your loue is violent, and soone will end.
Loue is not Loue vnlesse Loue doth perseuere,
That loue is perfect loue, that Loues for euer.

Isa. Such loue is mine, belecue it well-shap'd youth,
Though women vse to lye, yet I speake truth.
Giue sentence for my life or speedy death :
Can you affect me ?

Gnia. I should belye my thoughts to giue denyall,
But then to friendship I must turne disloyall :
I will not wrong my friend, let that suffice.

Isa. Ile be a miracle, for ioue a woman dyes, Offers to stab
Gn. Hold Madam, these are soule killing passions. her selfe.
Ide rather wrong my friend then you your selfe.

Isa. Loue me, or else by loue death's but delayd :
My vow is fixt in heauen, feare shall not moue me,
My life is death with tortures 'lesse you loue me.

Gnia. Giue me somerepite, and I will resolute you.

Isa. My heart denies it.
My blood is violent, now or else neuer,
Loue me, and like loues Queene ile fall before thee,
Inticing daliance from thee with my smiles,
And steale thy heart with my delicious kisses.
Ile study Art in loue, that in a rupture
Thy soule shall taste pleasures excelleng nature.
Loue me, both art and nature in large recompence,
Shall be profuse in rauishing thy sense.

Gnia. You haue preuil'd I am yours from all the world,
Thy wit and beauty haue entranc'd my soule :
I long for daliance, my blond burnes like fire,

Hels paine on earth is to delay desire.

Isa. I kisse thee for that breath, this day you hunt,
In midst of all your sports leaue you Rogero,
Returne to me whose life rests in thy sight,
Where pleasure shall make Nectar our delight,

Guia. I condescend to what thy will implores mee;
He that but now neglected thee, adores thee: Enter
But see here comes my friend, feare makes him tremble. Rogero

Isa. Women are witlesse that cannot dissemble. Anna,
Now I am sicke againe: where's my Lord Rogero? Doctor.
His loue and my health's vanish'd both together.

Guid. Wrong not thy friend, deare friend, in thy extreames,
Here's a profound Hypocrates, my deare
To minister to thee the spirit of health.

Isa. Your sight to me my Lord, excels all Phisicke;
I am better farre (my Loue) then when you left mee:
Your friend was comfortable to me at the last.
'Twas but a fit, my lord, and now 'tis past.

Are all things ready fit?

Anna. Yes Madame, the house is fit.

Gui. Desire in women is the life of wit Exeunt Omnes.

Enter Abigall and Thais, at severall doores.

Abi. O partner, I am with child of laughter, and none but you can be my Mid-wife: was there euer such a game at noddy?

Thais. Our Husbands thinke they are fore-men of the lury, they hold the Hereticke point of Predestination, and sure they are borne to be hanged;

Abi. They are like to proud men of iudgement, but not for killing of him that's yet aliuie, and well recovered.

Thais. As soone as my man saw the Watch come vp,
All his spirit was downe,

Abi. But though they haue made vs good sport in speech.
They did hinder vs of good sport in action.

O wench, imagination is strong in pleasure.

Thais. That's true: for the opinion my good-man had of en-ioying you, made him doe wonders.

A. Why should a weak man, that is so soone satisfied desire variety? Thais

Thais. Their answer is, to feede an Pheasants continually would breede a loathing.

Abigail. Then if We seeke for strange flesh that haue sto-mackes at will, 'tis pardonable.

Thais. I, if men had any feeling of it, but they iudge vs by themselues.

Abig. Well, we Will bring them to the Gallowes, and then, like kinde virgins begge their liues, and after liue at our pleasures, and this bridle shall still reyne them.

Thais. Faith if We were disposed, we might seeme as safe,
As if we had the broad seale to warrant it :

But that nights worke Will sticke by me this forty weekes.
Come, shall we goe visit the discontented Lady Lentulus?
Whom the Lord Mendosa has confest to his Chirurgion,
He Would haue rob'd? I thought great men would but Haue rob'd the poore, yet he the rich,

Abig. He thought that the richer purchase, though With the worle conscience : but Wee'll to comfort her, & then goe heare our Husbands lamentations, They say mine has compiled an vngodly volume of Satyres against women, and cals his booke
The Snarle.

Thais. But he's in hope his booke will saue him.

Ab. God defend that it should, or any that snarle in that fashion

Tha. Well wench, if I could be metamorphosed into thy shape,
I should haue my husband pliant to me in his life,
And soone rid of him: for being weary With his continuall mo-He'de dye of a consumption, (tion;

Abig. Make much of him, for all our wanton prize,

Follow the Prouerbe, Merry be and wise. Exeunt.

Enter. Isabella. Anna, and Seruaunts.

Isab. Time that deuour' it all mortalitie,
Runne swiftly these few houres,
And bring Gnats on thy aged shoulers,
That I may clip the rarest modell of creation.
Doe this gentle Time.
And I Will curl thine aged sluer locke,
And dally With thee in delicious pleasure,

Medea-like I will renew thy youth;
But if thy frozen steps delay my loue,
Ile poyson thee with murder curse thy pathes,
And make thee know a time of infamy.

Anna, giue watch, and bring mee certaine notice
When Count Gniaca doth approach my house.

An. Madam I goe.

I am kept for pleasure, though I neuer taste it.
For 'tis the vsuers office still to couer
His Ladies priuate meetings with her Louers.

Exie

Isa. Desire, thou quenchlesse flame that burnst our soules,
Cease to torment mee;

The dew of pleasure, shall put out thy fire,
And quite consume thee with satiety.
Lust shall be cool'd with lust, wherein ile proue,
The life of loue is onely sau'd by loue.

Enter Anna.

An. Madam hee's comming.

Isa. Thou blessed Mercury,

Prepare a banquet fit to please the Gods;
Let Speare-like Musicke breathe delicious tones
Into our mortall eares; perfume the house
With odoriferous sentes sweeter then Myrrhe,
Or all the spices in Panchaia:

His sight and touching we will recreate,
That his five senses shall bee five-fold happy.
His breath like Roses casts out sweete perfume;

Time now with pleasure shall it selfe consume.

*Enter Gniaca
in his hunting weedes.*

How like Adonis in his hunting weedes,
Lookes this same Goddesse tempter?

And art thou come? this kisse enters into thy soule.
Gods I doe not enuy you for know this Way's here on earth compleat, excels your blisse:
Ile not change this nights pleasure with you all.

Gnia. Thou creature made by Loue, compos'd of pleasure,
That mak'st true vse of thy creation,
In thee both wit and beauty's resident;
Delightfull pleasure vnpeer'd excellence.

This is the fate fixt fast vnto thy birth,
That thou alone shouldst be mans heaven one earth:
If I alone may but enjoy thy loue,
He not change earthly ioy to be heauens Ioue:
For though that women haters now are common,
They all shall know earths ioy consists in woman.

Isa. My loue was doleage till I loued thee,
For thy soule truly tastes our petulance,
Conditions Louer, Cupids Intelligencer,
That makes men vnderstand what pleasure is:
These are fit tributes vnto thy knowledge;
For womens beauty o're men beare that rule.
Our power commands the rich, the wise the foole.
Though scornegrowes bigin man in growth & stature
Yet women are the rarest workes of nature.

Gnia. I doe confesse the truth, and must admire
That women can command rare mans desire,

Isa. Cease admiration, sit to Cupids fealt,
The preparation to Paphoon daliance,
Hermonious Musicke breath thy siluer ayres,
To stirre vp appetite to Venus banquet,
That breath of pleasure that entrances soules,
Making that instant happinesse a heauen;
In the true tast of loues delicioussnesse.

Gnia. Thy words are able to stirre cold desire,
Into his flesh that lyes intomb'd in Ice,
Hauing lost the feeling warmth in blood,
Then how much more in me, whose youthfull veines,
Like a proud Riger, ouer-flow their bounds?
Pleasures Ambrosia, or loues nourisher,
I long for priuacy; come, let vs in,
°Tis custome, and not reason makes loue sinne.

Isa. He lead the way to Venus Paradise,
Where thou shalt taste that fruit that made man wise. Exit

Gnia. Sing notes of pleasures to elate our blood: Isa.
Why should heauen frowne on ioyes that doe vs good?
I come Isabella keeper of loues treasure,
To force thy blood to lust, and rauish pleasure. Exit.

After some short song enter Isabella and Gniaca againe, she hanging about his necke laciniouſly.

Gnia. Still I am thy captiue, yet thy thoughts are free:

To he Loues bond-man is true liberty.

I haue ſwomme in ſeas of pleaſure without ground,

Ventrous deſire paſt depth itſelfe hath drownd.

Such ſkill has beauties art in a true louer,

That dead deſire to life it can recouer.

Thus beauty our deſire can ſoore aduance,

Then ſtraight againe kill it with daliance.

Diuineſt women, your enchanting breaths

Giue louers many lives and many deaths.

Iſa. May thy deſire to me for euer laſt,

Not dye by ſuitet on my delicates :

And as I tie this Iewell about thy necke,

So may I tie thy conſtant loue to mine,

Neuer to ſeeke weaking variety

That greedy curſe of man and womans hell,

Where nought but ſhame and loath'd diſeaſes dwell.

Gnia. You counſell well, deare, learne it then;

For change is giuen more to you then men.

Iſa. My faith to thee, like rockes, ſhall neuer moue,

The Sunne ſhall change his courſe ere I my loue. Enter Anna.

Anna. Madam the Count Rogero knockes.

Iſa. Deare Loue into my chamber, till I ſend

My hate from fight.

Gnia. Luſt makes me wrencg my friend.

Exit Gniaca.

Iſa. Anna, ſtand here and entertaine Lord Rogero.

I from my window ſtraight will giue him anſwere,

The ſerpents wit to woman reſt in me,

By that man fell, then why nor he by me?

Fain'd ſighes and teares drop from a womans eye,

Blindes man of reaſon, ſtrikes his knowledge dumbe:

Wit armes a woman, Count Rogero come.

Exit Iſabella.

Anna My office ſtill is vnder: yet in time

Whers prone Maſters, degres makes vs climbe. Giude knockes.

Who knockes? is't you my noble Lord?

Enter Guido in his hunting weedes.

Guid. Came my friend hither, Count Guisica?

An. No, my good Lord.

Guid. Where's my Isabella?

An. In her Chamber.

Guid. Good: I'll visit her.

An. The chamber's lockt my Lord: shee will be priuate.

Guid. Lockt against me, my sawcy mallapert?

An. Be patient good my Lord: shee'll giue you answere.

Guid. Isabella life of loue, speake, 'tis I that calls. Isab. at her Isab. I must desire your Lordship pardon me. window.

Guid. Lordship? what's this? Isabella, are thou blinde?

Isab. My Lord, my lust was blinde, but now my soule's cleare
And sees the spots that did corrupt my flesh; (sighted,
Those tokens sent from hell, brought by desire,
The messenger of euertlasting death.

Ann. My Lady's in her Pulpit, now shee'll preach.

Guid. Is not thy Lady mad? in veritie I alwayes Tooke her for a Puritane and now shee shewes it.

Isab. Mocke not Repentance. Prophanation
Brings mortals laughing to damnation.
Beleeue it Lord, Isabella's ill past life,
Like gold refin'd, shall make a perfect Wife.
I stand on firme ground now, before on Ice;
We know not vertue till wee taste of vice.

Guid. Doe you heare dissimulation, woman sinner?

Isab. Leane my house good my Lord, and for my part,
I looke for a most wisht reconciliation
Betwixt my selfe and my most wronged Husband.
Tempt not contrition then religious Lord.

Guid. Indeede I was one of your familie once:
But doe not I know these are but braine-trickes:
And where the Diuell has the Fee-simple, he will keep possession
And will you halt before me that your selfe has made a criples?

Isab. Nay; then you wrong me: and disdaind Lord,
I paid thee for thy pleasures vendible.
Whose morcenary flesh I bought wth coyne,

I will

I will divulgethy balenefse, Iesse with speede
Thou leaue my house and my society.

Guid. Aleady turn'd apostate, but now all pure,
Now dam'd your faith is, and loues endure
Like dew vpon the grasse, when pleasure Sunne
Shines on your vertues, all your vertue's done.
He leaue thy house and thee, goe get thee in,
Thou gaudy child of pride, and nurse of sinne.

Isa. Raile not on me my Lord; for if you doe,
My hot desire of vengeance shall strike wonder;
Reuenge in women fals like dreadfull thunder.

Exit.

Anna Your Lordship will command me no further seruice?

Guid. I thanke thee for thy watchfull seruice past;
Thy vsner-like attendance on the staires,
Being true signes of thy humilitty.

Anna. I hope I did discharge my place with care.

Guid. Vshers should haue much wit, but little haire;
Thou hast of both sufficient: prethee leaue me,
If thou hast an honest Lady, commend me to her,
But she is none.

Exit Anna, manet Guido.

Farewell thou priuate strumpet worse then common.
Man were on earth an Angell but for woman.
That seauen-fould branch of hell from them doth grow,
Pride, Lust, and Murder, they raise from below,
With all their fellow sinnes. Women are made
Of blood, without soules, when their beauties fade,
And their lust's past, avarice or bawdry
Makes them still lou'd: then they buy venere,
Bribing damnation: and hire brothell slaues.
Shame's their executors, infamy their graues.
Your painting will wipe off, which art did hide,
And shew your vgly shape in spite of pride.
Farewell Isabella poore in soule and fame,
I leaue thee rich in nothing but in shame.
Then soulelesse women know, whose faiths are hollow,
Your lust being quenched, a blony act must follow.

Exit.

Finis Actus tertij.

Actus quarti Scena prima.

Enter the Duke of Amago, the Captaine, and the rest of the Watch, with the Senators.

Duke.

Justice that makes Princes like the Gods, drawes vs vnto the
That with vnpartiall ballance we may Poyse (Senate,
The crimes and innocence of all offenders,
Our presence can chase bribery from Lawes,
He best can iudge, that heares himselfe the cause.

1 Senat. True mighty Duke, it best becomes our places,
To haue our light from you the Sonne of vertue,
Subiect Authority, for game, loue or feare
Oit quits the guilty, and condemnes the cleare.

Duke. The Land and people's mine, the crime being knowne,
I must redresse my subiects wrong's mine owne.

Call for the two suspected for the murder
Of Mendesca, our ended kinsman. These voluntary murderers
That confesse the murder of him that is yet alive, Wee'le sporte with serious Justice for a while,
In shew wee'le frowne one them that make vs smile,

2 Sen. Bring forth the Prisoners we may heare their answeres

Enter (brought in with Officers) Claridiana, and Mizaldus.

Duke. Stand forth you vipers, that haue sack'd blood,
And lopt a branch sprung from a royall tree :
What can you answer to escape tortures ?

Rog. We haue confest the act my Lord, to God and man,
Our ghostly father, and that worthy Captaine :
We beg not life but fauourable death.

Duke. On what ground sprung your hate to him we lou'd ?

Cl. Vpon that curse layd on Venecian ieaalousie.
We thought he being a Courtier, would haue made vs Magnifiques of the right stamps, and haue plaid at Primero in the presence, with gold of the City brought from Indies.

Rog.

The insatiate Countesse.

Rog. Nay more, my Lord, we feared that your kinsman for a messe of Sonnets, would haue giuen the plot of vs and our wiues, to some needy Poet, and for sport and profit brought vs in some Venecian Comedie vpon the Satge.

Duke. Our Iustice dwels with mercy; be not desperate.

1. Sen. His Highnesse faine would saue your liues if you would see it.

Rog. All the Law in Venice shall not saue mee, I will not be saued.

Clar. Feare not, I haue a tricke to bring vs to hanging in spite of the Law.

Rog. Why now I see thou louest me; thou hast confirm'd Thy frindship for euer to me by these wordes.

Why, I should neuer heare Lanthorne and candle call'd for.

But I should thinke it was for me and my Wife.

Ile hang for that, forget not thy tricke.

Vpon'em with thy tricke, I long for sentence.

2. Son. Will you appeale for mercy to the Duke?

Calr. Kill not thy Iustice Duke, to saue our liues;
We haue deseru'd death.

Rog. Make not vs presidents for after wrongs,
I will receiue punishment for my sinnes.

It shall be a meanes to lift me towards heauen.

Clar. Let's haue our desert; we craue no fauour.

Duke. Take them asunder, graue Iustice makes vs mirth,
That man is soulelesse that ne'er sinnes on earth.

Signior Mizaldus, relate the weapon you kill'd him with, and the manner.

Rog. My Lord, your lustfull kinsman, I can title him no better, came sneaking to my house like a Promoter to spye flesh in the Lent: now I hauing a Venecian spirit, watcht my time, and with my Rapier runne him through, knowing all paines are but trifles to the horne of a Citizen.

Duke. Take him a side, Signior Claridiana, what weapon had you for this bloody act? what dart vs'd Death?

Clar. My Lord, I brain'd him with a leauer my neight our lent me, and he stood by and cryed strike home olde boy.

Duke. With seuerall Instruments. Bring them face to face.

With

With what kill'd you our Nephew ?

Rog. With a Rapier Leige. Clar. Tis a lye,
I kill'd him with a leauer, and thou stood'st by.

Rog. Dost thou think to saue me & hang thy selfe ? no I scorne it; is this the tricke thou said'st thou had'st it : I kill'd him Duke.

Hee onely gaue consent : 'twas I that did it.

Clar. Thou hast alwayes beene crosse to me & wilt be to my death. Haue I taken all this paines to bring thee to hanging, and dost thou slip now ?

Rog. we shall neuer agree in a tale till we come to the gallowes, then we shall iumpe.

Clar. He shew you a crosse-point, if you crosse me thus,
When thou shalt not see it.

Rog. He make a wry mouth at that, or it shall cost me a fall :
'Tis thy pride to be hang'd alone, because thou scorn'st my company, but it shall be knowne I am as good a man as thy selfe, and in these actions will keepe company with thy better's Jew.

Clar. Monster. Rog. Dogg-killer Clar. Fencer. They Bustle.

Duke. Part them, part'em

Rog. Hang vs, & quarter vs, we shall ne'er be parted til then,

Duke. You doe confesse the murder done by both.

Clar. But that I wou'd not haue the slaue laugh at mee.

And count me a coward, I haue a very good mind to liue, Absde
But I am resolute : 'tis but a turne. I doe confesse.

Rog. So doe I,

Pronounce our doome, wee are prepar'd to dye.

1. Sen. We sentence you to hang till you be dead :

Since you were men eminent in Place and worth,

We giue a Christian buriall to you both, (agree.

Clar. Not in one graue together we beseech you, we shall ne'er

Rog. He scornes my company, till the day of Iudgement,
He not hang with him.

Duke. You hang together, that shall make you friends,
An euerlasting hatred death soone ends,

To prison with them till the day of death ;

Kings words like Fate, must neuer change their breath.

Rog. You milce-monger, He be hang'd afore thee.

And't be but to vex thee.

Cl. He doe you as good a turne or the hangman, & shall fall out.

Exeunt. ambo guarded.

Enter Mendoza in his night gowne and cap guarded with the Captaine.

Duke. Now to our kinsman, shame to royall blood,
Bring him before vs.

Thett is a Prince is sacrilege to honour
'Tis vertues scandall, death of Royalty,
I blush to see my shame ; Nephew sit downe
Iustice that smiles on those, on him must frowne, Speake freely Captraise, where found you him wounded?

Capt. Betweene the widowes house & these crosse neighbours,
Besides an Artificiall ladder made of ropes
Was fastned to her window which he confest
He brought to rob her of Jewels and coine.
My knowledge yeelds no further circumstance.

Duke. Thon know'st too much, would I were past all knowledge.

I might forget my grieffe springs from my shame,
Thou monster of my blood, answere in breife
To these Assertions made against thy life.
Is thy soule guilty of so base a fact ?

Mend. I doe confesse I did intend to rob her.
In the attempt I fell and hurt my selfe
Lawes thunder is but death, I dread it not,
So my Lentulus honor be preferu'd
From black suspition of a lustfull night.

Duke. Thy head's thy forfeit for thy harts offence,
Thy bloods prerogatiue may claime that fauour,
Thy person then to death doomb'd by iust lawes.
Thy death is infamous, but worse the cause.

Enter. Isabella alone Gniaca following her.

Isabella. O heau'ns that I was borne to be hates slave,
The foode of Rumor, that deuour's my fame;
I am call'd Infariat Countesse lusts paramowre
A glorious Diuell, and the noble whore,

I am sick, vext, and tormented, O reuenge.

Gniaca On whom would my Isabella be reueng'd?

Isab. Vpon a Viper, that does get mine honour,
I will not name him till I be reueng'd,
See, her's the Libels are diuulg'd against me,
An euerlasting scandall to my name.
And thus the villen writes in my disgrace.

She reads. Who loues Isabella the insatiate,
Needs Atlas back for to content her lust,
That wandring Strumpet, and chaste wedlockes hate;
That renders truth: deceipt, for loyall trust,
That sacrilegious thiefe to Himens rights,
Making her lust her God, beau'n her delights.
Swell not proud heart, Ile quench thy grieffe in blood,
Desire in woman cannot be withstood.

Gniaca. Ile be thy champion sweet gainst all the world,
Name but the villaine that defames thee thus.

Isab. Dare thy hand execute, whom my tongue condemnes
Then art thou truely valiant, mine for euer,
But if thou fain'it, hate must our true loue seuer.

Gniaca. By my dead fathers soule, my mothers vertues,
And by my knight hood and gentilitie; Ile be reueng'd
On all the Authors of your Obloquie: Name him.

Isab. Rogero,

Gniaca. Ha.

Isab. What does his name affright thee coward Lord?
Be mad Isabella, curse on thy reuenge,
This Lord was kinghted for his fathers worth,
Not for his owne.

Fare well thou periu'r'd man, Ile leaue you all,
You all conspire to worke mine honors fall.

Gniac. Stay my Isabella, were he my fathers sonne,
Composed of me, he dies,
Delight still keepe with thee: goe in.

Isabella. Thou art iust;
Reuenge to me is sweeter now then lust,

Enter.

Enter Guido they see one another and draw and make a passe, then enter. Anna.

Anna. What meane you Nobles, will you kill each other?

Ambo. Hold.

Guido. Thou shame to friendship, what intends thy hate?

Gniaca. Loue Armes my hand, makes my soule valiant,

Isabellas. wrongs now sits vpon my sword,
To fall more heauie to thy cowards head,
Then thunderbolts vpon lowes risted Oakes:
Deny thy scandall, or defend thy life.

Guido. What? hath thy faith and reason left thee both?
That thou art onely flesh without a soule:
Hast thou no feeling of thy selfe and me?
Blind rage that will not let thee see thy selfe.

Gniaca. I come not to dispute but execute:
And thus comes death.

Another passe.

Guido. And thus I breake thy dart, her's at thy whores face,

Gniaca. 'Tis mist: here's at thy heart, stay, let vs breath.

Guido. Let reason gouerne rage, yet let vs leaue,
Although most wrong be mine, I can forgieue:
In this attempt thy shame will euer liue.

Gniaca. Thou hast wrong'd the Phenix of all women rarest,
She that's most wise, most louing, chaste and fairest.

Guid. Thou dorest vpon a diuell, not a woman,
That ha's bewicht thee with her Sorcerie,
And drown'd thy soule in leathy faculties,
Her vselesse lust has benumb'd thy knowledge,
Thy intellectuall powers, obliuion smothers,
That thou art nothing but forgetfulnesse.

Gniaca. What's this to my Isabella, my sinnes mine owne,
Her faults were none, vntill thou madest 'em knowne.

Guido. Leaue her, and leaue thy shame where first thou found'st it;

Else liue a bondslau to diseased lust,
Deuour'd in her gulfe-like appetite
And infamy shall writ thy Epiraph,

Thy memory leaues nothing but thy crimes,
A scandall to thy name in future times.

Guid. Pat vp your weapon, I dare heare you further,
Insatiate lust is Sire still to murder.

Guid. Beleue it friend, if her heart blood were vexs,
Though you kill me, new pleasure makes you next:
Shee lo'd me deerer, then she loues you now,
Shee'ld nere be faithfull, has twice broke her vow.
This curse pursues female adultery,

They'l swimme through blood for sinnes variety:
Their pleasure like a sea groundlesse and wide,
A womans lust was neuer satisfied.

Gnia. Feare whisps in my brest, I haue a soule
That bushes red, for rendring bloody facts,
Forgiue me friend, if I can be forgiuen,
Thy counsell is the path leads mee to heauen.

Guid. I doe embrace thy reconciled loue.

Gnia. That death or danger, now shall ne're remoue:
Goe tell thy Insatiate Countesse Anna,
We haue escap't the snares, of her false Loue,
Vowing for euer to abandon her.

Guid. You haue heard our resolution, pray bee gone.

Anna. My office euer rested at your pleasure,
I was the Indian, yet you had the treasure,
My faction often sweates, and oft takes cold,
Then guild true diligence o'er with gold.

Guid. Thy speech deseru's it there's gold, gives her gold.
Be honest now, and not loues Noddy,
Turn'd vp and plaid on whilst thou keepe'st the stocke,
Prethe formally let's ha thy absence.

Anna. [Lords farewell.

Exit Anna.

Guid. Tis Whores and Panders, that makes earth like hell,

Gnia. Now I am got out of lusts laborinth,
I will to Venice for a certaine time,
To recreate my much abused spirits,
And then reuisit Pani and my friend,

Guide.

Guid. He bring you on your way but must returne, Loue is Actna, and will euer burne.
Yet now desire is quench't flames once in height :
Till man knowes hel he neuer has firme faith.

Exeunt Ambo.

Enter Isabella running, and Anna.

Isa. Out scrich-Owle messenger of my reuenges death
Thou do'st belye Gniaca'tis not so.

Anna. Vpon mine honesty they are vnited.

Isa. Thy honesty? thou vassaile to my pleasure take that,

Strikes her.

Dar'st thou controule me, when I say no?

Art not my foote stoole, did not I create thee?

And made the gentle, being borne a begger :

Thou hast beene my womans Pander for a crowne,

And dost thou stand vpon thy honesty?

Anna. I am, what you please Madam. Yet 'tis so.

Isa. Slaue, I will slit thy tongue, lesse thou say noe

Anna. No, no, no Madam.

Isa. I haue my humour, though they now be false,

Faint-hearted coward get thee from my sight,

When villaine? hast, and come not nere me.

Anna. Maddam: I run, her sight like death doth feare me-Ex.

Isa. Perfidious coward staine of Nobility,

Venecians, and be reconcil'd with words :

O that I had Gniaca once more here,

Within this prison, made of flesh and bone,

I'de not trust thunder with my fell reuenge,

But mine owne hands, should doe the dire exploit,

And fame should Chronicle a womans acts :

My rage respects the persons not the facts.

Their place and worths hath power to defame me,

Meane hate is singleesse, and does onely name mee :

I not regard it, 'tis high bloud that swels

Giue me reuenge, and damne me into hels,

Enter Don Sago a Coronell, with a band of Souldiers and a Lieutenant.

A gallant Spaniard, I will heare him speake,
Griefe must be speechlesse, ere the heart can breake:

Sago. Lieutenant let good Discipline be vs'd
In quartring of our Troops within the Citie,
Not separated into many streetes.
That shewes weake loue, but not sound policie
Diuision in small numbers makes all weake,
Forces vnted are the nerues of wane,
Mother and nurse of obseruation.
Whose rare ingenious spright, fills all the world
By looking on it selfe with piercing eyes,
Will looke through strangers imbecilities:
Therefore be carefull.

Lieft. All shall be ordered fitting your command,
For these three gifts which makes a Souldiour rare,
Is loue and dutie with a valiant care Exeunt. Lieft. & Souldiers.

Sago. What varietie of women feeds my sight,
And leades my senses in a maze of wonder? Sees her
Bellona, thou wert my mistress till I saw that shape
But now my sword, Ile consecrate to her,
Leaue Mars and be come Cupids Martialist,
Beauty can turne the rugged face of warre,
And make him smile vpon delightfull peace,
Courting her smoothly like a femallist,
I grow a slaue vnto my potent loue,
Whose power change hearts, make our fate remoue.

Isabella. Reuenge not, Pleasure now ore-rules my blood,
Rage shall drown faint loue in a crimson flood,
And were he caught, I'de make him murders hand.

Sago. Me thinks 'twere joy to die at her command,
He speake to heare her speech, whose powerfull breath,
Is able to infuse life into death.

Isabella. He comes to speake: hee's mine, by loue hee's mine.

Sago. Lady thinke bold intrusion curtesie?

Tis but imagination alters them,
Then 'tis your thoughts, not I that doe offend.

Isa. Sir, your intrusion yet 's but curtesie,
Vnlesse your future humor alter it.

Sago. Why then Diuineſt woman, know thy ſoule
Is dedicated to thy ſhrine of beauty,
To pray for mercy, and repent the wrongs
Done againſt loue, and ſemall purity.
Thou abſtract drawne from natures empty ſtorehouſe
I am thy ſlaue, command my ſword, my heart
The ſoule is tri'd beſt by the bodies ſmart.

Isa. You are a ſtranger to this land and me,
What inadueneſſe iſt for me to truſt you then?
To coſen women is a trade 'mongſt men,
Smooth promiſe, faint paſſion with a lye,
Deceiues our ſect of fame and chaſtity:
What danger durſt you hazard for my loue?

Sago. Perils that euer mortall durſt approache.
Ile double all the workes of Hercules,
Expoſe my ſelfe in combat 'gainſt an Hoſte,
Meete danger in a place of certaine death.
Yet neuer ſhrinke, or giue way to my fate;
Bare-breſted meete the murderous Tartars dart,
Or any fatall Engin. made for death:
Such power has loue and beauty from your eyes,
He that dyes reſolute, does neuer die:
Tis feare giues death his ſtrength, which I reſiſted,
Death is but empty Aire, the Fates haue twiſted.

Isa. Dare you reuenge my quarrell, 'gainſt a foe?

Sago. Then aſke me if I dare embrace you thus,
Or kiſſe your hand, or gaze on your bright eye,
Where Cupid dances, one thoſe globes of loue,
Feare is my vaſſall, when I frowne he flies,
A hundred times in life, a coward dyes.

Isa. I not ſuſpect your valour, but your will.

Sago. To gaine your loue, my fathers blood, ile ſpill.

Isa.

Isa. Many haue sworn the like, yet broke their vow.

Sago. My whole endeouour to your wish shall bow.
I am your plague to scourge your enemies.

Isa. Performe your promise and enjoy your pleasure,
Spend my loues Dowry, that is womens treasure:
But if thy resolution dread the tryall,
He tell the world. a Spaniard was disloyall.

Sago. Relate your grieffe, I long to heare their names,
Whose bastard spirits, thy true worth defames:
He wash thy scandall off when their hearts bleeds,
Valour makes difference betwixt words and deedes.
Teill thy fames poyson, blood shall wash thee white,

Isa. My spotlesse honour is a flate to spite:
These are the monsters Venice doth bring forth,
Whose empty soules are bankrupt of true worth.
False Count Guido, treacherous Gniaca, Countesse of Gazia, and of rich Massino.
Then if thou beest a Knight, helpe the opprest,
Through danger safety comes, through trouble rest.
And so may loue.

Sago. Ignoble villaines their best blood shall proue,
Reuenge fals heauy that is rais'd by loue.

Isa. Think what reproach is to a womans name,
Honor'd by birth, by marriage, and by beauty:
Be God one earth, and reuenge innocence,
O worthy Spaniard, one my knees I begge,
Forget the persons, thinke on their offence.

Sago. By the white soule of honour, by heau'ns Ioue:
They die if their death can attaine your loue.

Isa. Thus will I clip thy waste; embrace thee thus:
Thus dally with thy haire, and kisse thee thus:
Our pleasures Prothean-like in sundry shapes,
Shall with variety stirre daliance.

Sago. I am immortall, O deivnest creature:
Thou do'st excell the Gods, in wit and feature.
False Counts you die, reuenge now shakes his rods:

Beautie condemnes you, stronger then the Gods,
Isab. Come Mars of louers, Vulcan is not here,
Make vengeance like my bed, quite void of feare.

Sago. My senses are intransit, and in this slumber,
I taste heau'ns ioyes, but cannot count the number. Ex. Ambo,

Enter. Lady Lentulus, Abigail and Thais.

Abigal. Well Madam: you see the destinie that followes marriage,

Our husbands are quiet now, and must suffer the law,

Thais. If my husband had bene worth the begging some Courtier would haue had him: he might be beg'd well enough, for he knowes not his owne wife from another.

Lady Lent. O you'r a couple of trusty wenches, to deceiue your husbands thus.

Abig. If wee had not deceiu'd them thus, we had been Trust wenches.

Thais. Our husbands will be hang'd, because they thinke themselu's Cuckolds.

Abig. If all true Cuckolds were of that minde, the hangman would be the richest occupation, and more wealthie widdowes then there by yonger brothers to marry them.

Thais. The Marchant venturers would be a very small com-panie.

Abig. 'Tis twelue to one of that, how euer the rest scape,
I shall feare a massacre.

Thais. If my husband hereafter for his wealth chance to be dub'd:

I'le haue him cal'd the Knight of the supposed horne.

Abag. Faith, and it sounds well.

Lady. Come madcaps leaue iesting, and let's deliuer them out of their earthly purgation; you are the spirits that torment them: but my loue and Lord, kinde Mendosa, will loose his life, to preserue mine honour, not for hate to others.

Abig. By my troth, if I had bene his iudge, I should haue hang'd him for hauing no more wit, I speake as I thinke, for I would not be hang'd for ne'er a man vnder the heau'ns.

Tha. Faith, I thinke I should for my Husband. I doe not hold the opinion of the Philosopher, that wrires we loue them best, that we inioy first: for I protest I lone my husband better them any that did know me before.

Abig. So doe I, yet life and pleasure are two sweet things to a woman.

Lady. He that's willing to die to saue mine honor, I'le die to saue his.

Abig. But: belecue it who that list, wee loue a liuely man I grant you:

But to maintaine that life, I'le ne're consent to die.

This is a rule I still will keepe in brest,

Loue well thy husband wench but thy selfe best

Thais. I haue followed your counsell hetherto, and meane to doe still.

Lady. Come: we neglect our businesse, 'tis no iesting,

To morrow they are executed leasse we repruie them,

Wee be their destinies to cast their fate.

Let's all goe.

Abig. I feare not to come late.

Exeunt.

Enter. Don Sago Solus with a case of Pistols.

Sago. Day was my night, and night must be my day,
The sunne shin'd on my pleasure, with my loue,
And darknesse must lend aide to my reuenge,
The stage of heau'n, is hung with solenne, black,
A time best fitting, to Act Tragedies,
The nights great Queene, that maiden gouernesse
Musters black clouds, to hide her from the world,
Afraide to looke on my bold enterprise.
Curs'd creatures messengers of death, possesse the world,
Night-Rauens; scritch-owles, and vote-killing Mandrakes.
The ghosts of misers, that imprison'd gold,
Within the harmelesse bowels of the earth,
Are nights companions: bawdes to lust and murder,
Be all propitious to me Act of iustice:
Vpon the scandalizers of her fame,

That

That is the life-blood of deliciousnesse, Deem'd Isabella, Cupids Treasurer, whose soule contains the richest gifts of loue:
Her beautie from my heart, feare doth expell?
They relish pleasure best, that dread not hell.
who, s there?

Enter Count Rogero.

Rog. A friend to thee, if thy intents be iust & honorable.

Sago. Count Rogero, speake, I am the watch.

Rog. My name is Rogero: do'st thou know me?

Sago. Yes slanderous villaine, nurse of Obloquie,

Whose poison'd breath, has speckl'd cleane fac't vertue,

And made a Leper of Isabella's fame.

That is as spotlesse, as the eye of heauen.

Thy virall threds a cutting, start not slaue,

Hee's sure of sudden death, heauen cannot saue

Count Rog. Art not Gniaca turn'd Apostata, has pleasure once againe

Turn'd thee againe a diuell, art not Gniaca? hah?

Sago. O that I were, then would I stab my selfe,

For he is mark't for death, as well as thee:

I am Don Sago thy mortall enemye,

Whose hand loue makes thy executioner.

Rog. I know thee valiant Spaniard, and to thee

Murders more hatefull, then is sacriledge

Thy actions euer haue bene honorable.

Sago. And this the crowne of all my actions,

To purge the earth, of such a man turn'd monster.

Rogero. I neuer wrong'd thee Spaniard, did I? speake

Ile make thee satisfaction like a souldiour Tell him all she

A true Italian, and a Gentleman: Plot.

Thy rage is treacherie without a cause.

Sago. My rage is iust, and thy heart bloud shall know,

He that wrongs beautie, must be honorus foe:

Isabels quarrell, armes the Spaniards spirit,

Rogero. Murder should keepe with basenesse, not with merits

Ile answer thee to morrow by my soule,

And cleare thy doubts, or satisfie thy wil.

Sago. Hee's warres best scholler, can with safety kill.
Take this to night, now meete with me to morrow, Shoote.
I come Isabella, halfe thy hate is dead,
Valour makes murder light, which feare makes dead.

Capt. The pistoll was shot here seize him, Enter Capt.
Bring lights, what Don Sago Collonell of the horse? with a band Ring the Alarm bell, raise the whole Citie, of Soldiers.
His Troops are in the towne, I feare treacherie:
Whose this lies murdered, speake blood-thirstie Spaniard.

Sago. I haue not spoil'd his face, you may know his villainy
Capt. 'Tis Count Rogero, goe conuay him hence,
Thy life proud Spaniard, answers this offence,
A strong guard for the prisoner, lesse the cities powers
Rise to rescue him. Begirt him with souldiours.

Sago. What needs this strife?
Know slaues, I prize reuenge aboue my life.
Fames register to future times shall tel
That by Don Sago, Count Rogero fell.

Exeunt omnes.

Finis Acti Quarti.

Actus quintus Scena prima.

Enter. Medina, the dead body of Guido Alias Count.
Arsena, and Souldiours. Don Sago guarded, Executioner, Scaffold..

Medina. DOn Sago quak'st thou not to behold this spectacle
This innocent sacrifice murdered noblenes,
When bloud the maker euer promiseth,
Shall though with slow yet with sure vengeance rest,
It is a guerdon earn'd, and must be paid,

As

As sure reuenge, as it is sure a deede:
I ne'r knew murder yet, but it did bleed.
Canst thou after so many fearefull conflicts,
Betweene this object, and thy guilty conscience,
Now thou art freed from out the serpents lawes,
That vilde Adulresse, whose forceries
Doth draw chaste men into incontinence:
Whose tongue flowes ouer with harmefull eloquence.

Canst thou I say repent this heinous Act,
And learne to loath, that killing Cockatrice?

Sago. By this flesh blood, that from thy manly breast,
I cowardly flucht out, I would in hell,
From this sad minure, till the day of doome:
To re-inspire vaine Esculapius.

And fill these crimson conduits, feele the fire
Due to the damned, and his horrid fact

Medi. Vpon my soule, braue Spaniard I belecue thee.

Sago. Occase to weepe in blood, or teach me too,
The bubbling wounds, doe murmure for reuenge:
This is end of lust, where men may see,
Murders the shadow of Adultery:
And followes it to death.

Medi. But hopefull Lord, wee doe commiserate,
Thy bewitch't fortunes, a free pardon giue:
On this thy true and noble penitence.
With all we make thee Collonel of our horse;
Leuied against the proud Venecian state.

Sago. Medina, I thanke thee not, giue life to him,
That sits with Rissus, and the full cheek't Bacchus,
The rich and mighty Monarches of the earth,
To me life is tentimes more terrible,
Then death can be to me, O breake my breast:
Draines and dying men may talke of hell,
But in my heart the seuerall torments dwell.
What Tanais, Nilus? or what Tigris swift?
What Rheus fierier then the Orax?

Although Neptolis cold, the waues of all the Northerne sea.
Should flow for euer, through these guilty hands,
Yet the sanguinolent staine would extant be.

Medina. God pardon thee, we doe.

Enter a messenger.

A shouer.

Mess. The Countesse comes my Lord, vnto the death :
But so vnwillingly and vnprepar'd,
That she is rather forc't, thinking the summe
She sent to you of twenty thousand pound;
Would haue assured her of life.

Medina. O Heauens !

Is she not wearie yet of lust and life ?
Had it bin Cressus wealth, she should haue died ;
Her goods by law, are all confiscate to vs,
And die she shall : her lust
Would make a slaughter house of Italy.
Ere she attain'd to foure and twensy yeeres ;
Three Earles, one Vicount, & this valiant Spaniard,
Are knowne to a beene the fuell of to her lust :
Besides her secret louers, which charitably
I iudge to haue beene but few, but some they were Here is a glasse, wherein to view her soule,
A Noble, but vnfortunate Gentleman,
Cropt by her hand, as some rude passenger
Doth plucke the tender Roses in the budde,
Murder and lust, the least of which is death,
And hath she yet any false hope of breath ?

*Enter Isabella, with her haire hanging downe, a chaplet of flowers on her head, a nosegay in her hand, Exe-

Isa. what place is this ?

Car. Madam, the Castle Greene.

Isab. There should be dancing on a Greene I thinke.

Car. Madam : to you none other then your dance of death.

Isa. Good my Lord Cardinall doe not thunder thus,
I sent to day to my Phisician,

And

And as he say's he findes no signe of death.

Card. Good Madame, doe not iest away your soule?

Isab. O seruant, how hast thou be trai'd my life? To Sago.

Thou art my dearest louer now I see,
Thou wilt not leaue me, till my very death.
Bless't by thy hand, I sacrifice a kisse
To it and vengeance: worthily thou didst,
He died deseruedly, not content to inioy
My youth and beauty, riches and my fortune:
But like a Chronicler of his owne vice,
In Epigrams and songs, he tun'd my name,
Renown'd me for a Strumpet in the Courts,
Of the French King, and the great Emperor.
Didst thou not kill him druncke.

Medina. O shamelesse woman!

Isab. Thou shouldest, or in the embraces of his lust,
It might haue beene a womans vengeance.
Yet I thanke thee Sago and would not wish him liuing
Were my life instant ransome.

Card. Madame: in your soule haue charitie.

Isab. Ther's money for the poore. Gives him monck.

Card. O Lady this is but a branch of charitie,

An ostentation, or a libera'l pride:

Let me instruct your soule, for that, I feare,

Within the painted sepulcher of flesh,

Lies in a dead consumption: good Madame, read

Isab. You put me to my booke my Lord, will not that saue me.

*gives n
booke.*

Card. Yes Madam, in the euerlasting world.

Sago. Amen, Amen,

Isab. While thou wert my seruant, thou hast euer said;

Amen to all my wishes, witnesse this spectacle:

Where's my Lord Medina?

Medina. Here Isabella. What would you?

Isab. May we not be repriu'd?

Medina.

Medina, Mine honors past, you may not,

Isab. No, tis my honor past,

Medina. Thine honors past indeed.

Isa. Then there's no hope of absolute remission.

Medina. For that your holy Confessor will tell you,
Be dead to this world, for I sweare you dye,
Were you my fathers daughter.

Isab. Can you doe nothing my Lord Cardinall?

Card. More then the world iweet Lady, helpe to saue what hand of man, wants power to destroy.

Isab. You'r all for this world, then why not I?
Were you in health and youth, like me my Lord,
Although you merited the crowne of life,
And stood in state of grace, assur'd of it:
Yet in this fearefull separation,
Old as you are. e'ne till your latest gaspe,
You'd craue the help of the Physitian:
And wish your dayes lengthn'd one summer longer,
Though all be griefe, labour and misery,
Yet none will part with it, that I can see.

Medina. Vp to the scaffold with her, 'tis late.

Isab. Better late then neuer my good Lord you thinke:
You vse square dealing, Medina's mighty Duke:
Tyrant of France, sent hither by the diuell. She ascends the Medina. The fitter to meeete you. Scaffold.

Card. Peace; Good my Lord in death doe not prouoke her.

Isab. Seruant low as my destiny I kneele to thee, To Saage.
Honouring in death, thy manly loyaltie:
And what so'er become of my poore soule,
The ioyes of both worlds euermore be thine.
Commend me to the Noble Count Gniaca,
That should haue shared thy valour, and my hatred:
Tell him I pray his pardon, and
Medina, art yet inspir'd from heau'n,
Shew thy Creators Image: be like him,
Father of mercy.

Medina

Medina. Head's man, doe rhine office.

Isa. Now God lay all thy sinnes vpon thy head,
And sinke thee with them, to infernall darknesse,
Thou teacher of the furies cruelty.

Card. O Madame: teach your selfe a better prayer,
This is your latest hower.

Isab. He is mine enemy, his fight torments me,
I shall not die in quiet.

Med. Ple be gone: off with her head there.

Exit.

Isa. Tak'st thou delight, to torture misery?
Such mercie finde thou in the day of doome.

Sould. My Lord, here is a holy Frier desires, Enter Roberto.
To haue some conference with the prisoners. Count of Cipres

Roberto. It is in priuate, what I haue to say, in Friers weeds.
With fauour of your father-hood.

Card. Frier: in Gods name welcome.

Roberto ascends.

Rob Lady: it seemes your eye is still the same, to Isabella.
Forgetfull of what most it should behold,
Doe not you know me then?

Isab. Holy Sir: so farre you are gone from my memorie.
I must take truce with time, ere I can know you.

Roberto. Beare record all, you blessed Saints in heau'n,
I come not to torment thee in thy death:
For of himselve hee's terrible enough,
But call to minde a Ladielike your selfe.
And thinke how ill in such a beauteous soule,
Vpon the instant morrow of her nuptials,
Apostasie and vilde revolt would shew:
With all imagine that she had a Lord,
Iealous, the Aire should rauish her chaste lookes:
Doating like the creator in his models,
Who viewes them euery minute, and with care,
Mixt in his feare of their obedience to him.
Suppose he sung through famous Italy,
More common then the looser songs of Petrarch:
To euery seuerall Zanies instrument,

And he poore wretch, hoping some better fate,
Might call her back from her Adulterate purposes:
Lives in obscure, and almost vnknowne life,
Till hearing, that she is condemn'd to die:
For he oncelou, d her, lends his pined corps,
Motion to bring him to her stage of honour
Where drown'd in woe: at her so dismall chance,
He claspes her: thus he falls into a trance.

Isab. O my offended Lord lift vp your eyes:
But yet auert them from my loathed sight.
Had I wish you inioyed the lawfull pleasure,
To which belongs, nor feare, nor publike shame:
I might haue liu'd in honour, died, in fame.
Your pardon on my faultring knees I begge:
Which shall confirme more peace vnto my death,
Then all the graue instructions of the Church.

Roberto. Pardon belongs vnto my holy weeds,
Freely thou hast it, farewell my Isabella.
Let thy death ransom thy soule, O die a rare example,
The kisse thou gau'it me in the church. heretake,
As I leaue thee, so thou the world forsake, Exit Roberto.

Clarid. Rare accident, ill welcome noble Lord:
Madam: your executioner desires you to forgiue him:

Isab. Yes and giue him too, what must I doe my friend?

Executioner. Madame: ouely tie vp your haire.

Isabella. O these golden nets,
That haue insnar'd so many wanton youthes,
Nor one but ha's beene held a thred of life,
And superstitiously depended on,
Now to the block, we must vaile: what else?

Executioner. Madame: I must intreat you blind your eyes.

Isabella. I haue liued too long in darknesse my friend:
And yet mine eyes with their maiesticque light,
Haue got new Muses, in a Poets spright,
They haue beene more gazed at then the God of Day:
Their brightness neuer could be flattered,

The Ingrate Conuict.
Yet thou command'st a fixed cloud of Lawne,
To Eclipse eternally these minutes of light,
What else?

Executioner. Now Madame: al's done,
And when you please, I'll execute my office.

Isabella. We will be for thee straight,
Giue me your blessing my Lord Cardinall:
Lo: d, I am well prepar'd:

Murder and lust, downe with my ashes sinke:
But like ingratefull seede perish in earth,
That you may neuer spring against my soule,
Like weedes to choake it in the heavenly harvest,
I fall to rise, mount to thy maker, spirit,
Leaue here thy body, death ha's her demerit.

Cardin. An host of Angels be thy conuey hence. Strike

Medina. To funerall with her body, and this Lords:
None here I hope can taxe vs of iniustice:
She died deseruedly, and may like fate,
Attend all women so insatiate.

Exeunt omnes.
Enter Amago the Duke, the Watch and Senators.

Duke. I am amaxed at this maze of wonder,
Wherein no thred or clue presents it selfe,
To winde vs from the obscure passages,
What saies my Nephew?

Watch. Still resolute my Lord, and doth confesse the theft.

Duke. Wee'll vse him like a felon, cut him off:
For feare he doe pollute our fonder parts.
Yet why should he steale,
That is a loaden Vine of riches to him,
Were adding sands into the Libian shore,
Or farre lesse charitie: what say the other prisoners?

Watch. Like men my Lord, fit for the other world,
They tak't vpon their death, they slew your Nephew.

Duke. And he is yet alive, keepe them asunder
We may sent out the wile.

The Tragical Comedy.
Enter Clairdiana and Rogero bound: with a

Frier and Officers.

Rogero, My friend; is it the rigour of the law
I should be tied thus hard, Ue vndergoe it :
If not, prethee then slacken; yet I haue deseru'd it,
This murder lies heauie on my conscience.

Claid. Wedlocke, I here's my wedlocke; O whore, whore, whore.

Frier. O Sir be quallified.

Claid. Sir: I am to die a dogges death, and will snarle a little

At the old Segnior, you are onely a Parentthesis,
Which I will leaue out of my execrations; bu first
To our quondam wiues, that makes vs cry our Vowels
In red Capitall letters, lo are cuckoldes, O may Bastard bearing with the panges of child birth, be Doubled to him; may they haue euer twins.
And be three weeke in trauell betweene, may thy be,
So Riuell'd with painting by that time they are thirty that it
May be held a worke of condigne merit
But to looke vpon'em, may they liue,
To ride in triumph in a Dung-cart
And be crown'd with all the odious ceremonies belonging to't.
May the cucking stoole be their recreation,
And a dongeon their dying chamber,
May they haue nine lines like a Cat, to endure this and more:
May they be burnt for witches of a sudden,
And lastly, may the opinion of Philosophers
proue true, that women haue no soules.

Enter THAIS and ABIGALL.

Thais. What husband? at your prayers so seriously?

Clary. Yes: a few orisons; Frier. thou that stand'st betweene
The soules of men and the diuell,
Keepe these female spirits away,
Or I will renounce my faith else.

Abig. Oh husband, I little thought to see you in this taking.

Rogero.

Rogero. O whore, I little thought to see you in this taking,
I am governour of this castle of cornets,
My graue will be stumbl'd at, thou adulterat whore,
I might haue liu'd like a Marchant.

Abig. So you may still husband.

Rogero. Peace, thou art verie quicke with me.

Abig. I by my faith, and so I am husband,
Belike you know I am with child.

Rogero. A bastard, a bastard, a bastard :
I might haue liu'd like a gentleman,
And now I must die like a Hanger on :
Shew trickes vpon a wooden horse,
And runne through an Alphabet of scurvie faces :
Doe not expect a good looke from me.

Abig. O mee vnfortunate !

Clarid. O to thinke whil'st we are singing the last Hymne,
And readie to be turnd off,
Some new tune is inuventing, by some Metermonger,
To a scurvie Ballad of our death,
Againe at our funerall Sermons,
To haue the Diuine diuide his text into faire branches:
Oh, flesh and bloud cannot indure it,
Yet I will take it patiently like a graue man.
Hangman, tie not my halter of a true lovers knot.
I shall burst it if thou doost.

Thais. Husband, I doe beseech you on my knees,
I may but speake with you. Ple winne your pardon,
Or with teares like Niobe bedew a.

Clarid. Hold thy water Crocodile, and say I am bound
To doe thee no harme : were I free yet I could not Be loofer then thou : For thou are a whore.

Agamemnons daughter that was sacrific'd
For a good winde, felt but a blast of the torments :
Thou should'st indure, I'de make thee swownd
Ostner, then that fellow that by his coniuinall practise
Hopes to become Drum Maior.

What saist thou to tickling to death with bodkins?
But thou hast laught too much at me alreadie, where Iustice O Duke, and let me not hang in suspence.

Abig. Husband: I'll nail me to the earth, but I'll Winne your pardon.

My Jewels, iointure, all I haue shall flye:
Apparell bedding; I'll not leaue a Rugges;
So you may come off feirely.

Clari. I'll come off fairely. Then beg my pardon,
I had rather Chirurgions hall should begge my dead bodie
For an Anstomie, then thou begge my life:
Iustice O Duke, and let vs die.

Duke. Signior, thinke, and dally not with heauen,
But freely tell vs, did you doe the murder?

Rogero. I haue confest it, to my ghostly father;
And done the Sacrament of penance for it.
What would your highnesse more?

Clar. The like haue I, what would your highnesse more?
And here before you all tak'to my death.

Duke. In Gods name then on to the death with them,
For the poore widdowes that you leaue behinde,
Though by the law, their goods are all confiscate,
Yet wee'll be their good Lord, and giue'em them.

Clari. Oh hell of hels. Why did not we hire some villaine to fire our houses?

Rog. I thought not of that, my minde was altogether of the gallowes.

Clar. May the wealth I leaue behinde me, helpe to damne her,
And as the cursed fate of curtezan,
What she gleanes with her traded art,
May one as a most due plague cheat from,
In the last dotage of her tired lust,
And leaue her an vnpyttied age of woe.

Rogero. Amen, Amen.

Watchm. I neuer heard men pray more feruently.

Rogero. O that a man had the instinct of a Lyon,

He knowes when the Lionesse plaies fals to him:

But these solaces, these women,

They bring man to gray haire before he be thirtie.

Yet they cast out such mistes of flatterie from their breath,

That a mans lost againe; sure I fell into my marriage bed drunke:

Like the Leopard, well with sober eyes would I had auoided it;

Come grane and hide me from my blasted fame; Exeunt Ambo

O that thou could'st as well conceale my shames with officers,

Thais. Your pardon & your fauour gracious duke Women kneele,

At once we doe implore, that haue so long.

Deceiu'd your royall expectation,

Assur'd that the Comick knitting vp.

Will moue your spleene, vnto the proper vse,

Of mirth, your naturall inclination:

And wipe away the watery chollored anger,

From your inforced cheeke.

Faire Lord, beguile

Them and your selfe, with a pleasing smile.

Duke. Now by my life I doe, faire Ladies rise,

I nec'r did purpose any other end,

To them and these designs.

I was inform'd,

Of some notorious error, as I fate in iudgment-

And doe you heere? these night workes require a Catseyes

To impierce delected darknesse: call backe the prisoners.

Clari. Now what other'troubled newes, Enter Clarid.

That we must backe thus?

and Rogero

Ha's any Senator beg'd, my pardon with officers.

Vpon my wifes prostitution to him.

Rog. What a spight's this, I had kept in my breath of purpose

Thinking to goe away the quieter, and must we now backe?

Duke. Since you are to die, wee'll giue you winding sheetes,

Wherein you shall be shrouded aliue,

By which we winde out all these miseries.

Signior Rogero, bestow a while your eye,

And reade here of your true wifes chastity. Gives him a Letter

Rogero.

Rog. Chastitie? I will sooner expect a Iesuites recantation :
Or the great Turkes conuersion, then her chastitie.

Pardon my leige, I will not trust mine eyes :

Women and Diuels, will deceine the wife,

Duke. The like Sir is apparant on your side, To tocher.

Clar. Who? my wife? chaste! ha's your grace your sense,

I'll sooner beleue

A coniuer may say his prayers with zeale,

Then her honestie. Had she been an Hermaphrodite

I would scarce hath giuen credit to you,

Let him that hath drunke loue drugs trust a woman,

By heau'n I thinke, the aire is not more common.

Duke. Then we impose a strict command vpon you :

On your Allegcance, reade what there is writ,

Clar. A writ of errour, on my life my liege.

Duke. You'le finde it so I feare.

Cla. What haue we here the Art of Brachigraphy? Looke out:

Thais. Hee's stung already, as if his eyes were turn'd on Per- fes shield.

There motion is fixt, like to the poole of Stix,

Abig. Yonders our flames, and from the hollow Arches,

Of his quick eyes, comes commet traines of fire :

Bursting like hidden furies, from their Canes,

Reades.

Your's till he sleepe, the sleepe of all

The world, Rogero.

Rogero, Marry and that Lethergie seize you, reade againe.

Clar. Thy seruant so made by his stars, Rogero. Reads againe.

A fire on your wandring starres Rogero.

Rog. Sathan, why hast thou tempted my wife? To Clarid.

Cla. Peace, seducer, I am branded in the forehead

With your starre-marke. May the starres drop vpon thee,

And with their sulphure vapours choake thee, ere thou

Come at the gallowes.

Rogero. Stretch not my patience Mañomet.

Clarid. Termagane that will stretch thy patience,

Rogero. Had I knowne this I would haue poison'd thee in the Chalice, This

This morning, when we receaued the Sacrament.

Clari. Slaue, knowst thou this? tis an Appendix to the Letter,
But the greater temptation is hidden within.

I will scowre thy gorge like a Hawke; thou shalt swallow thine ownestone in this letter, They bustle.
Seal'd and deliuered in the presence of.

Duke. Keepe them asunder, list to vs, we command.

Clari. O violent villayne, is not thy hand hereto?
And writ in bloud to shew thy raging lust?

Chais. Spice of a new halter, when you go a ranging thus like Deuills, would you might burne for't as they doe.

Rogero. Thus tis to lyewith another mans wife;
He shaibe sure to heare on't againe
But we are friends, sweet duke.

And this shall be my maxime all my life,
M A N neuer happy is till in a wife.

kisser.

Clari. Here sunke our hate lower then any whirlepoole,
And this chaste kisse I giue thee for thy care.
That fame of women full as wise as faire. kisse.

Duke. You haue saued vs a labour in your loue
But Gentlemen, why stood you so prepostrouly?
Would you haue head long runne to Infamy,
In so defam'd a death?

Rogero. O my Liege, I had rather rore to death with Phalaras Bull, then Darius like, to haue one of my wings extend to Atlas, the other to Europe.

What is a Cuckold learne of me,
Few can tell his pedigree,
Nor his subtil nature conifer.
Borne a man, but dyes a monster,
Yet great Antiquaries say,
They spring from our Methusala,
Who after Nahks flood was found,
To haue his Crest with branches crown'd,
God in Edens happy shade,
This same creature made.

Then to cut off all mistaking

Cuckolds are of womens making.

From whose shares, good Lord deliuer vs.

Clari. Amen, Amen.

Before I would prone a Cuckoid, I would indure a winters Pilgrimage in the Frozen Zone,

Goe starke naked through Muscouia, where the Climate is 90 degrees colder then ice.

And thus much to all married men,

Now I see great reason why

Loue should marry ielousie:

Since mans best of life is same,

He had neede preserue the same,

When tis in a womans keeping,

Let not Argos, eyes be sleeping.

The poxe is vnto Panders giuen

By the better powers of heauen.

That containes pure chastity,

And each Virgin soueraignty,

Wantonly she op't and lost:

Gift where of, a God might boast.

Therefore shouldst thou Diana wed,

Yet be ielous of her bed.

Duke. Night, like a Masque, is entred heuens great hall;

With thousand Torches vbering the way:

To Risus, will wee consecrate this Euening,

Like Misfermis cheating of the brack.

Wee'll make this night the day. Faire ioyes befall

Vs and our Actions. Are you pleased all? Excursus omnes.
