PRESENTATION TO DANIEL TOOMY

Has Resigned as Foreman of Fitting Department at Hartt Shoe Factory.

(From the Daily Gleaner, Frederickton.)

Mr. Daniel Toomy, who for the past ten years has been foreman of the fitting department at the Hartt Boot & Shoe Co.'s factory, has resigned his position with that firm and will leave for his former home in East Weymouth in a few weeks. At the factory yesterday Mr. Toomy was presented with a handsome travelling bag and the following address read by J. C. Miller: Mr. Toomy—On behalf of the employees of the fitting department, it is my pleasant duty to express to you our hearty appreciation of the good will that has always existed between us. In you we have always found a true friend as an efficient foreman. Since coming amongst us we have always felt the deepest respect for you and I can assure you it is with sincere regret that we learn of your departure. We trust you will bear for us the same kind remembrance as we can assure you that every employee will have for you. We ask you in conclusion to accept the accompanying gift as a slight token of our friendship and esteem. We also wish to convey through you to Mrs. Toomey, our very best wishes for happiness in her new home.

Mr. Toomey made an appropriate reply. Since coming to this city Mr. Toomey has made many friends, who will regret his departure. Mrs. Toomey, who is a Frederickton lady, will be much missed in the musical circles of this city, in which she has always taken a prominent place, being a member of St. Dunstan's choir for some years.

Mrs. Sarah J. Thayer.

Mrs. Sarah J. Thayer widow of E. Monroe Thayer died at her home on Franklin street Friday afternoon after a long illness. She was a member of the First Baptist church. She leaves three daughters Mrs. Emma Taylor, Mrs. Mabel Tutman and Miss Annie Thayer. The funeral took place from her late home Monday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. F. B. Cressey of Cambridge a former pastor of the Baptist church here. The bearers were Albert Attwood, Reuben Tirrell, William H. Pray and Charles T. Bailey. The interment was at the Village cemetery.

Mr. William Kelley, Dead.

William Kelley, a former resident of East Braintree, died at the City hospital, Quincy, Saturday of pneumonia, aged 48. He recently underwent a serious operation for appendicitis which left him physically weak. He was well known throughout the state in labor circles of which he was a pioneer and was largely responsible for the unionizing of the employees of the local street railway. He took a prominent part in all labor affairs in Quincy and was often called to assist labor organizations in Boston and vicinity. He was for some time president of the Quincy Central Labor Union. He was employed as a conductor for years on the street railway and had been president of the Street Railway Union. He was a democrat in politics and at the time of his death was president of the Quincy Democratic committee and a member of the Democratic State Central committee. He was known as one of the best orators in Quincy.

Mr. Kelley is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Ida White of this town, also a son and a brother, John Kelley, claim agent of the street railway. The funeral took place Tuesday morning from his home, 14 Delorff street, at St. John's church and was one of the largest attended funerals held in Quincy for years. The interment was in the family lot at St. Francis Xavier cemetery, Weymouth.

Old Colony Club Musicales.

The annual musicale of the Old Colony Ladies Club took place last Thursday afternoon, in the Union church, South Weymouth. A large gathering of members and their friends were present to listen to a delightfully rendered program, given by Mrs. Margaret Pearson Moss, violinist; Miss Marion Lawrence Moorhouse, cello; Mrs. Jennie Hooking Hunt, pianist, and Frederick Kennedy, tenor. After the concert, Mrs. Day, the district nurse from Rockland, gave a very interesting talk. Nearly eighty people signed the paper to start the District Nurse association. Everything points toward a successful campaign to make this association a great enterprise in Weymouth.

The next meeting of the club will be held in the Universalist church next Thursday, April 9th, when an illustrated lecture will be given by Mr. Edward Avis on "Our Wild Song Birds."

Fatal Accident.

James H. Neilligan died at the Quincy hospital at noon Monday, from injuries received shortly before midnight Sunday at the Braintree station. It was his custom to spend Sunday with relatives in this place, retiring to Brockton Sunday night. Just how the accident occurred cannot be learned authentically, but it is believed that he was attempting to board the 11-19 train for Brockton at Braintree and lost his footing, falling under the cars. He was found by Officer Jeremiah Galvin. Dr. F. L. Doncott happened along and rendered first aid. At the Quincy hospital it was found that the right leg had been almost amputated and the left foot crushed so badly that amputation was necessary. Deceased was born 48 years ago, and was a son of the late John Neilligan. For years he had been employed at the George E. Kelth factory in Brockton and made his home with his brother, John Neilligan in that city. He is survived by three other brothers, William Neilligan of Brockton, Frank and Peter Neilligan of this town, and four sisters, Mrs. Michael Shea of Quincy, Mrs. Delia McDermott of North Weymouth, and Misses Margaret and Julia Neilligan of this town. He was unmarried. The funeral took place Wednesday morning. Rev. J. B. Holland celebrated mass. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

Hathaway-Hatton.

A very pretty home wedding took place Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Hatton, 234 Washington street, when their daughter, Miss Bessie Hatton, was married to Mr. John Hathaway of Whitman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert P. Watson pastor of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree, in the presence of a large number of the relatives and friends of the couple. The bride's sister, Miss Minnie Hatton, was bridesmaid and Mr. William Remick was best man. The bride wore a costume of white satin and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid's dress was of pink silk and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Guests attended the ceremony. A reception followed from New York, Boston, Brockton, Whitman, Abington, Quincy, Braintree, Rockland and other places. The couple received many handsome and costly gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway left in an auto after the reception for Whitman, where they will reside.

SIXTH ANNUAL FAIR.

Pond Plain Improvement Association Entertains Large Number in Music Hall South Weymouth Last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Baby Show a Feature.

For the benefit of its fund to erect a suitable building for the use of the association, the Pond Plain Improvement Association held a three days fair in Music Hall, South Weymouth last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

In spite of inclement weather on the closing day, the fair was a grand success, and a tidy sum was netted for the use of the association. The sales tables were handsomely decorated and were well stocked. They were in charge of the following members of the Ladies Auxiliary: domestic table, Mrs. Wilfred Dunn, Mrs. George Perry, Miss Angle Paine, Miss Elizabeth Lussay, Mrs. Charles Mason, Mrs. Frank Proctor, and Mrs. Fred Belcher; fancy table, Mrs. Eva Blanchard, Mrs. Samuel Ware, Mrs. William Lindsay, Miss Grace Kelley and Miss Edie Kelley; candy booth, Mrs. Frank Kent, Miss Hester Swan, Mrs. Guy Hart, Mrs. Elizabeth Denbroeder, Mrs. Henry Brown and Miss Helen Perry; mystery booth, Mrs. Leland Winchcomb, Mrs. Ellis Kelley and Mrs. Louis Morgan; children's table, Mrs. Ernest Dunham, Mrs. William Foutler, Mrs. Frank Quinn, Mrs. Ralph Denbroeder and Miss Marion Belcher; ice cream booth, Mrs. James L. Nesbitt, Miss Ruth Nesbitt and Mrs. R. A. Denbroeder; grocery table, Mrs. Frank Proctor, Miss Ruth Dunn, Miss Marion Proctor and Miss Dorothy Marden; candy wheel, Mrs. William Moore.

The committee in direct charge consisted of the officers of the association: W. H. Robinson, president; J. B. Denbroeder vice president; J. L. Nesbitt, treasurer; Harold Proctor, secretary and George E. Perry director.

The entertainment on Thursday evening consisted of vocal and instrumental music, character impersonations and select readings by Herbert A. Clark. On Friday afternoon a baby show was held. The prize for the youngest baby that could walk was awarded Ruth Hatfield. Robert Burrell captured the award for the baby lightest in weight under two years of age and Barbara Winchcomb got the prize for the heaviest under two years of age. The prizes were strings of beads, while each mother of the prize winners received a banquet of carnations.

In the evening Prof. Arthur Chevallier and son appeared in a program of magic stunts. On Saturday night Scott and Bayd's original two man minstrel show was presented with great success.

Gas Standards.

By Ralph Gardner, in charge laboratory, Old Colony Gas Co.

March 24th, 1914. In order to protect the public from poor gas, the legislators in the various places where gas is used, have been obliged to set certain standards of luminosity and purity.

The impurities which are restricted or excluded are those which when burned are injurious to health or property. The reasons for setting a standard of luminosity is easily understood. The unit for measuring the intensity of light is the candle power. One candle power is the amount of light given out by a standard candle weighing one-sixth of a pound and burning 120 grains an hour.

The state law of Massachusetts requires that the gas light shall be equal to a light given out by sixteen such candles or sixteen candle power. It also requires that there shall be less than 30 grains of sulphur and 10 grains of ammonia per hundred feet. No sulphuretted hydrogen is allowed.

In order that the state can see that this law is being carried out, every gas company is obliged to set up, at a distance of at least one-quarter of a mile from the works, a machine for testing the candle power, known as a photometer. The distance is made a quarter of a mile because the composition of gas will not change materially after it has reached that distance. The state inspectors carry their own apparatus for detecting the impurities.

The state has three of these inspectors who go around and test the gas of every gas company at least once a month. In companies which have a very large send out, they make a test oftener. If the gas of any company is found on three consecutive inspections or on three inspections made within a period of thirty consecutive days to be below the standard of luminosity or purity, a fine of $100. is imposed, unless such defect is in the opinion of the commissioners due to an unavoidable cause or accident.

First Report Well Received.

At the session of the New England Southern Methodist conference, held in Willimantic, Connecticut, last Thursday, Rev. George G. Scribner, a former pastor of the M. E. church in East Weymouth, read his first report as superintendent of the Norwich district. In commenting on the report the Brockton Times had the following to say: "The first report of G. G. Scribner, who was unexpectedly taken one year ago from Attleboro, and placed over the Norwich district, was such a well written report and showed such a grasp of the situation as to awaken prolonged applause and lead Bishop Hamilton to remark 'Pretty good for a boy.' Mr. Scribner is one of the youngest men ever to have held such an office in this conference."

Town Business.

At the regular meeting of the Selectmen on Monday, A. P. Worthen Esq. was appointed Town Counsel; Russell H. Whiting, surveyor and civil engineer; F. Wilbur Loud, inspection agent; Waldo Turner, building agent; M. R. Loud, inspector of buildings; Patrick Butler, chief of police; John L. Maynard, superintendent of streets.

Attention of the Bay State Street R. R. Co. called to conditions of water at the Weymouth Heights station and paving at Bicknell square.

P. J. Walsh, Ozro Estes and B. C. Bailey were drawn as jurors.

John H. Tower declined to serve on the committee to investigate the Fire Department and D. M. Kidder was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The Light & Power Co. ask to locate 13 poles on Iron Hill and other streets and a hearing will be had on the petition Monday, April 13.

The Tel. & Tel. Co. are asked to remove wires from unused poles on Water street and the Light & Power Co. will remove the poles.

The rental of the Town hall for various uses was placed in the hands of the local Selectman, Henry E. Hanley, and the janitor.

Mary E. Chandler and others were granted permits to hold dancing parties in Oddfellows hall, South Weymouth from April 1st to July 1st.

Geo. E. Bicknell filed a request for permit to store gasoline on his premises, 24 Prospect street and a hearing will be had on the same, Tuesday, April 21st.

The selectmen began the annual inspection of the roads, sidewalks, culverts and bridges on Tuesday and for the sake of improved improvements it is a pity the snow, slush and mud did not stay a while longer.

The committee appointed at the annual meeting to investigate the Fire Department and its need had a joint meeting with the selectmen Tuesday evening, and organized, with the choice of D. M. Kidder, chairman, and Frank E. Loud, secretary. Work will be begun at once and an elaborate report of the whole system may be looked for, but in the mean time several million dollars worth of homes and factories in East Weymouth are at a hazard for want of facilities with which to handle the apparatus now in commission and all by reason of (?)

High School Notes.

Miss Harriet Tirrell of Northfield Seminary, visited school on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Chandler Atherton, the inventress of the Chandler method of shorthand writing, addressed the members of the shorthand division, on the Chandler System, on Wednesday.

The editorial staff of the annual school paper has been appointed as follows: editor-in-chief, Miss Florence Pray; associate editors, Miss Ruth Hollis; and Miss Helen Hunt; alumni editor, Miss Dorothy Hainan; school notes, Fred Abel; athletics, Ralph Talbot and Wallace Whittle; business manager, Ralph Talbot; assistant business managers, Napoleon Bergeron and Malcolm Canterbury.

Baseball practice was resumed this week with not as many candidates reporting as desired. Fellows ought to remember that the greater the competition, the greater the power of the team, and accordingly come out and practice. Even though they might not stand any chance of making the nine, it is in this matter, no-one else will. Those who can't make the team should encourage it and never forget that a "knocker" always remains on the outside of the door.

There is some doubt over the opening game scheduled with Thayer Academy, but the management will know in a few days whether it will be cancelled or not. TALBOT '15.

CAPTAIN CHARLES W. HASTINGS AT REST.

Charter Member of Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R. Passes Away Last Thursday Night.

Captain Charles W. Hastings for 35 years, state commissioner of state aid and pensions, passed away last Thursday night, March 26, after a lingering illness, at the age of 83 years.

Mr. Hastings was born in Schenectady, N. Y., the ninth of a family of ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Hastings.

When he was fifteen years of age he came to Boston and worked in the Dickinson type foundry. After this, he engaged in railroading in Springfield, coming to South Weymouth in 1851, to accept a position with his brother-in-law Albert Tirrell, a prominent shoe man.

Mr. Hastings was representative to the general court from Weymouth when the Civil War broke out, and he resigned in order to go to the front.

He enlisted in Company H 12th Mass. regiment on April 25, 1861. This regiment was composed mostly of Weymouth volunteers. Mr. Hastings was at once made lieutenant. He served with honor throughout the war and was promoted to a captaincy on the field. It was Mr. Hastings's regiment that immortalized "John Brown's Body Lies Mouldering in the Grave," by singing it as the companies marched through the streets of New York and Baltimore on their way to the front.

Mr. Hastings saw active service in the battles of Antietam, The Wilderness, Second Bull Run, Fredericksburg and Petersburg. On his return from the front Captain Hastings again took up his position in the shoe business.

When the metropolitan police commission was established by the state he was made clerk and he retained the position until the commission was disbanded. He served Secretary of State Henry B. Pierce as clerk and was then appointed by Governor Talbot as commissioner of State aid. In 1879 Gov. Crane consolidated the office with that of commissioner of pensions and Mr. Hastings was continued in charge. He resigned in 1910.

Mr. Hastings was a member of the Loyal Legion and a charter member of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Fannie Rogers and his second Miss Marion E. Daggert, both of South Weymouth. Both have died. He is survived by two sons, Edward R. Hastings and Alfred W. Hastings of South Weymouth and one sister, Mrs. Alfred Tirrell of South Weymouth.

Funeral services were held from the Universalist church in South Weymouth last Sunday afternoon, with an extra large attendance. Among those present were Past Commander John E. Gilman of the Mass. department of the G. A. R.; George Kimball, secretary-treasurer of the 12th Mass. Regiment association and Maj. Gen. S. S. Sumner U. S. A., retired. The members of Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R. attended in a body and the Loyal Legion was represented by a delegation.

Rev. William Wallace Rose, pastor of the Universalist church, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. L. Weston Attwood, a former pastor, who gave the eulogy. The G. A. R. burial service was conducted by members of Post 58. The interment was in Highland cemetery. The bearers were the following members of the G. A. R.: John M. Whitcomb, George Ringles, Christopher Blanchard, Frank Derby, Maj. F. A. Bicknell and Isaac Walker.

The floral tributes were many and extremely beautiful.

W. R. C. Notes.

At the meeting of Reynolds W. R. C. in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, last Thursday afternoon, a life-sized framed portrait of Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook, P. D. P., who is also a past president of Reynolds W. R. C., was presented to the corps and placed on the walls of the headquarters. Mrs. Carrie Loring, P. P., chairman of the committee of arrangements, presented the picture, which was accepted in behalf of the corps by Mrs. Agnes Baldwin, president of Reynolds W. R. C.

Loyal Order of Moose.

The campaign for 100 per cent increase of membership which has been under way in Weymouth Lodge, No. 1299, Loyal Order of Moose, during the last three months, came to an end on Tuesday evening, when 64 applicants were initiated into the secret circle with the full ritualistic ceremony. The work was performed by Lewis M. Beach, dictator; Harry W. Vogell, vice-dictator; George F. Mitchell, prelate, and Walter M. Sweet, past dictator, assisted by the military branch of the Lodge under command of Capt. Newland H. Holmes. This makes the membership of Weymouth Lodge, 207, and seventh more are to be initiated at the next meeting, who were unable to be present. A large delegation from Quincy Lodge, No. 413 were present, and were much pleased with the ritualistic work.

An audience of over 100 attended the smoke-talk given at Loyal Moose hall, on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Lodge. The speaker was Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, who told of his recent tour through the countries of Central and South America, with the Chamber of Commerce party. Mr. Kincaide had exceptional opportunities to observe the manners and customs of South America and has the faculty of expressing most interestingly the features which appeal to the average man.

This is the first of a series of educational talks under the auspices of the Moose for the benefit of the members and their friends.

CLEANINGS ON BEACON HILL

Real Work of the Legislature Is Still Before It

WARM WEATHER STIRS SOLONS

Privileges of Public Must Be Curtailed If Sessions Are Not to Be Strung Out—Biennial Election Talk Revived—Licensing of Lodging Houses a Troublesome Question

Great pressure is being brought to bear upon the various committee chairmen at this time to discharge from their lists the bills that according to the bulletin are there awaiting action.

There are over 1000 matters still in committees, although the committee hearings are almost over. This situation means that the real work of the general court is still in front of it, because the bills which have not been acted upon are likely to be those over which the most difficulty arises.

If there were no more than the bills over the railroad and tax questions it would be task enough for the average legislature.

President Coolidge of the senate and Speaker Cushing of the house have now served notice upon their chairmen that every possible matter must be discharged at once. The house is holding morning sessions and the senate will soon begin to do so.

Hot Weather Activity
But people interested in legislation do not begin to get fully active until the warm days come. Then it is harder than ever to keep down to business.

Editor Bridgman of the State House Bulletin, who has been on the job for a great many years, remarked the other day that the business of one session has increased about tenfold in the last fifteen years.

The answer of committee chairmen to the pressure of their leaders is that to hasten means giving bills hardly any of the consideration that is demanded.

That some cure must soon be found is getting more apparent every day. While there is much reluctance toward the policy of curtailing the privilege of the public, unless there is a cure the sessions will run into August each year.

Leads to Biennials
This situation has led of late to more talk of biennial elections. That is one of the important constitutional amendments that soon will be before the general court. But the movement against it is likely to be considerable. And inasmuch as the resolve will have to get a two-thirds majority of the house it does not seem likely that it will go through.

But that it would cut down by one-half the present feverish political activity of the commonwealth there can be but little doubt. Those who oppose biennials say that this activity is a good thing and prevents political disturbances of a less desirable kind.

Souther a Live One
Representative William O. Souther of Cohasset is getting a reputation of being a very live wire. Mr. Souther is a young man but he is one of the most active assessors of his town as well as a member of the general court.

By reason of his town office he was last year brought into conflict with the office of the tax commissioner, which raised the assessment of Cohasset as it did in the case of other towns. Therefore, when Souther went to the legislature he introduced a bill to take from the tax commissioner the power to raise assessments.

He has pushed that bill with all possible zeal. He took before the committee on taxation about 150 people representing other cities and towns who object to the leaving of this power in the hands of the commissioner. The bill has got to be one of the red hot measures of the session.

It is one of the measures that is lying in the files of the committee on taxation awaiting action. But Souther keeps right on through the legislature and says that no matter what may be the action of the committee he will get it through the general court.

Licenses For Lodging Houses
The proposed licensing of all lodging houses in the state is another one of those troublesome questions that might keep a legislature in session right through the summer. It interests in a very personal way a great many people.

The proposal is by no means a new one. Several years ago it was presented and fought out before committees. Lodging house keepers from everywhere came up to protest against it.

But now the students of social questions say that the lodging house is a fruitful cause of the social evil and that it ought to be drawn under some kind of public supervision.

Under the bill proposed there is no fee provided, but the keeper of a lodging house may have to keep a register with correct information about every one of his lodgers, and may have to submit at any time to police examination.

Accompanying this measure is another one which provides that a search warrant may be good for thirty days, thus giving the police a right to collect evidence against any house which they may have under suspicion.

What is "Legitimate"
Far more subtle in character is a little bill which amends the law providing for the arrest of pipers, fiddlers and persons of bad character. It is a very ancient statute and is so quaintly worded as to cause a smile when read. But the amendment proposed by the white slave commission makes a material change in the statute so that it reads that any person who accosts a person of the opposite sex "without legitimate reason" may be arrested without a warrant.

This throws it upon a court to say what a legitimate reason is. Hundreds of persons who have no immoral intent accost persons of another sex whom they do not know upon some trivial cause, and yet the reason might not be called legitimate. It might be advice of a stenographer to a passing newsboy to wipe his nose.

The members of the committee on social welfare who have the bill say that the purpose of the bill is distinctly meritorious, and yet, as drawn by the experts, it might result in curious consequences. The stenographer, for her offense, if it is an offense, might be sent to jail for a couple of years.

Rallying Around Walcott
Friends of Dr. Walcott of the board of health are watching the proposed plans for reorganization of the board with care. That the governor intends to make some radical suggestions is shown by his invitation to Dr. Biggs of New York to come over and explain the workings of the New York board of health.

The unfortunate part of it is that Dr. Walcott, who has a national reputation for his health work, has been made the object of attack by thoughtless persons who have recommendations to make. The result is that almost any plan that might be proposed is now somewhat involved with the personal question.

This was shown the other day when the cancer commission resolve was defeated in the senate. It happened that the petitioner for the resolve was not friendly to Dr. Walcott. One senator who supported the resolve tried to explain that it did not mean an attack upon the state board of health and praises Dr. Walcott for the work accomplished.

The Unemployed
The problem of the unemployed is wearing itself out with the coming of warmer weather. The presence of the problem has been impressed upon governor Walsh, who has called one conference upon the matter and has talked with many people about it.

If the governor could suggest raising by taxation money for the purpose of relieving distress it might be simple. But that is quite unconstitutional, and it might not be wise from an conservative point of view even if it were constitutional. Organized labor, for instance, has not looked with favor upon such a scheme. It has distinctly showed hostility to the plan for state-owned factories for taking over those who cannot secure work, for the reason that a state-owned factory would be a competitor of a privately owned factory. The suggestion of a state farm is far more practicable, but that has before it all of the difficulties of organization.

Meanwhile the associated charities say that the amount of distress is not large compared with other years.

Characteristic Letter
It was a characteristic letter which Calvin Coolidge set out the other day to the chairmen of his committees who did not show up at a conference which he had called.

It read this way:
"You are one of twelve senators who did not appear at the meeting at noon today."

It was a reminder from a real leader who wanted his supporters to feel that his interest in them was constant and abiding. And it will probably have a good effect upon subsequent meetings.

Expensive Measures
Few men who voted a year ago to put the widows' pension act upon the statute books had much realization of the cost. As a matter of fact it is now estimated that within a very few years the cost of the act will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000 a year. This money is paid by the boards of charity in cities and towns and reimbursed to the cities and towns by the state.

It is now costing the city of Boston around $300,000 a year. This is one of the increases in the cost of running the city and state that has greatly elaborated upon the problems of officials these days. It is only one of a number of things.

Take the bill providing for two weeks' vacations for laborers. That bill has just been signed by Governor Walsh. It is estimated that it will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000 a year in Boston.

Curley in Opposition
For every city and town in the state, therefore, it might be expected that some time the cost of this bill alone might amount to $1,000,000. The bill has a referendum, but there can be no doubt but what it will be quite universally accepted. Mayor Curley of Boston, however, opposes the act.

Commissioner Rourke of public works says that if the act is accepted he will give the laborers their vacations in midwinter. That statement, however, was promptly met with the remark from a labor man who overheard it that labor would try to have the vacations granted in the summer time.

Storm Gods.

Storm gods in the mountains have ever been the inspiration of some of the world's best poetry and of fascinating legends in that literary storehouse—Asiatic, Egyptian and classic mythology. And, by the way, many students are now looking beyond the Aryans, beyond the Egyptians, beyond all Greeks, Romans and Latins, to a vast civilization antedating their most ancient histories—looking to now sunken Poseid.

All phenomena in nature, such as lightning, outbursts of rain, hail and snow in summits and ranges of peaks, all marshaling of huge mountain clouds for elemental war—earthquakes, cyclones, hurricanes, waterspouts at sea, huge waves beating over land as destroyers, outbursts of sulphurous and asphaltic flames from the earth, apparitions in the sky, as meteors, fireballs, bolides, comets, eclipses of the sun and moon—these all were supposed to be caused by an intelligence ruling each, and they were persons higher than man and called gods.—New York American.

Seven Ways of Spelling "E."

Dealing with some objections to spelling reform Mr. William Archer told the Society of Shorthand Teachers in London that there was not a single letter in the English language to which only one sound was attached, nor was there a sound which was represented by only one letter. If they took the "e" sound in "bed," they, he said, would find it spelled seven different ways in as many different words, for exactly the same vowel sound occurred in "head," "many," "leopard," "said," "says" and "pepper." When a child asked why "proceed" and "recede" were not spelled in a similar way, nobody could possibly give him a reasonable answer.

The word "sovereign," Mr. Archer said, was so spelled today because of its supposed connection with the word "reign." As a matter of fact, there was no connection between the two and the proper spelling was that which Milton used—i. e., "sovrain."—London Spectator.

Systematic Birds.

"Doubtless," said the professor of natural history to the returned traveler, "you have picked up many strange bits of information regarding the animals and birds of the countries you have visited."

"A few," answered the traveler "The most interesting thing I ever heard, however, was a story I got in Africa. It seems that a year or so ago a representative of a rubber stamp house went through there and lost his sample case, containing all kinds of office stamping apparatus. It appears that some ostriches found his sample case, broke it open and swallowed the samples."

"I see nothing odd about that. Ostriches will eat anything."
"Yes, but now every ostrich egg that is found there is seen to be numbered and dated!"—London Tit-Bits.

Selenium.

Little as selenium is known outside the scientific world it is not a rare element. Rather it is widely distributed. It is a permanent ingredient of sulphur, and as such was known to the alchemists of ancient times, although they did not observe its character as an element. From the chemical standpoint it is classed as a metalloid.—Harper's Weekly.

KIDNAPED BY AN AIR MAN

Novel Experience of a Retired Sea Captain

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"Ho-hum!" yawned Captain Lew Phinney as he tipped back in his chair and scanned the heavens with a calculating eye. "I reckon it's going to rain, Lindy."

Mrs. Phinney looked up from her stocking basket and her thin nose curled scornfully.

"Seem's if I hadn't nothing better to do than to watch the weather I'd find something," she complained.

The front legs of the captain's chair struck the piazza floor with a sudden jarring sound. His good natured face was dark with anger.

"Lindy," he said solemnly, "when I came back from that last voyage to Cuba, with malarial fever eating the life out of me, we decided that we had money enough to keep us comfortably off the rest of our days. I ain't had no reason to change my mind about it, and as for lazing around, you ain't fair to me.

"SAFE AS A ROCKING CHAIR WITH ME," HE BOASTED.

"I'm up at dawn every morning, and if I get my chores all done by 8 o'clock and am ready to help you with yours, why, I'm entitled to loaf the rest of the time if I want to, but I don't really do much loafin'." he went on anxiously. "You remember, Lindy, I made $15 last month selling fish. If you'd only consent to my going into business with Ham Terrell we could make a tidy sum in that boat building place of his. And"

Here Lindy Phinney interrupted with shrill objections to her husband's investing any part of his savings in the boat building business, although it was well known that Ham Terrell was rushed with orders and could make money "hand over fist" if he only had sufficient capital to work with.

At last the captain jammed his blue cloth cap on his bald head, and, with a last indignant glance at his wife, he trotted down the path.

Soon he came to the end of the road which had terminated in a wide rolling field flanked on all sides by tall woods. In the middle of the grassy field was a large monoplane, resting lightly on its four rubber tired landing wheels. Fussing around the machine was a young man clothed in a snug fitting aviator's suit with a helmet pushed back from his carryot hair.

The aviator spied the captain at the same moment, and he came forward with outstretched hand and a most engaging smile of welcome.

"Well, Captain Phinney, how do you do?" he asked heartily.

"Middling well. How are you?" asked the captain dazedly, for he had no recollection of the stranger. "I reckon it's one of them fresh summer boarders that used to guy me last year," he muttered to himself.

"Fine—fine—you got my message, eh?"

"Message?" echoed the captain.

"Why, yes. I sent a boy down to your place asking you to come up here and try a trip in my new aeroplane—some beauty, eh?"

"I never got your note," returned the captain slowly. "I reckon it came after I left the house. Funny you should invite me to take a ride with you, because, hang it all, young man, I can't remember a thing about you—so there!"

The youth laughed cheerfully.

"Don't blame you a bit—there's so many redheaded chaps in the world," he said easily. "But I used to go fishing with you last summer, and I remember you said once that you'd sailed everything except an airship and you'd like to try one. So as I was flying over Squirrel harbor I thought I'd stop off and take you for a sail. Want to go?"

"Well, thunderation, Mr.—what's your name—eh?"

"Fales—Archie Fales, captain."

"Oh, yes! Well, Mr. Fales, I'd like to go mighty, so I would. No danger, eh?"

Fales laughed. "Safe as a rocking chair with me," he boasted. "You're as light as a feather, captain, and I'm teaching of a skeleton myself, so I'll be all to the good. Then there's that neat little aluminum cockpit where you can sit, and the seat for it is right behind."

Archie Fales buckled a strap around the captain's waist and started the motor. Then he climbed into his own seat, placed his hands on the control wheel, and in three minutes they were rocking over the uneven ground and rising obliquely to spiral upward until they reached the desired height.

Just as they lifted from the ground there came a shout from beneath, and Captain Phinney looked over and down to see the horrified upturned face of his wife, calling indistinguishable words after him. Her hands were outstretched, and behind her there ran scattering forms of men, women and children. So, after all, Captain Phinney's first flight into the blue sky was witnessed by a crowd of awed on-lookers.

"I'm all right, Lindy!" called the captain as they flew up. But Lindy Phinney didn't hear a sound save the ominous droning of the monoplane's engine as the machine bore her husband away.

"By the Lord Harry, that's not a bad way to get rid of a nagging wife!" muttered old Samuel Flood as he stumped past the weeping Mrs. Phinney. Although the words were not addressed to her, Lindy heard them, and their dreadful import stilled the tries on her lips and sent her scurrying home to hide her fear and grief behind her own doors.

So she had nagged Lew into flying away from her. Perhaps he would never come back again! She was glad that she had heard from a neighbor of the projected flight. If she had not done so she would never have believed that her husband would have entered the flying machine and gone away without a farewell word. If he ever came back—well, she hoped her tongue had had a lesson. Never again would she nag him, for he was entitled to the rest that he had earned.

While Linda Phinney mourned her husband almost as if he had indeed died—for she had little faith in his return alive from this mad expedition—the monoplane had risen perhaps 500 feet in the air and was skimming along like a huge swallow above the village of Squirrel Harbor.

"This is some sport, eh, captain?" asked Fales, bending down to shout the words above the whir of the motor.

"Ye-e-es!" roared the captain. "I dunno as I can stand such an almighty lot of it, Mr. Fales."

Fales laughed. The captain only caught the tail end of the sound, but it made him turn around and look into the face of the aviator.

Beneath the concealing helmet, Fales' face looked sharp and white and peaked, and there was an evil grin dying away on his thin lips.

"Don't turn around that way unless you want a spill," he called sharply.

After that Captain Phinney sat with thoughtful eyes fixed on the distant hills which they were rapidly approaching. Squirrel Harbor and the blue waters of the sound had long since disappeared, and they were flying over a desolate, uncultivated region.

The captain felt a touch upon his shoulder. The machine had slowed down and was almost drifting along in the air current. Fales' face was close to his, and his eyes were distinctly dangerous.

"Captain Phinney," rasped Fales sharply. "I'll thank you for that $5,000."

"Five thousand dollars!" bellowed the captain. "What do you mean, you lunatic?"

"You know what I mean," retorted the other with deadly intensity in his tones. "I want the $5,000 that you were going to deliver to Jeremiah Fenwick this afternoon in payment for the schooner Isabelle. Hand it over!"

"I tell you I haven't got it!" insisted the captain. "I ain't got five thousand to invest in a rotten tub like the Isabelle! She ain't worth five hundred!"

"Shut up!" screamed the aviator through his teeth. "Now, see here, old man, no more fooling, understand? I brought you up here to get that five thousand, and if you don't give it to me—well, just look below there!"

Captain Phinney glanced over and shuddered. Below were the wicked rocks of Devil's hollow.

"If you don't—over you go!" laughed Fales harshly. "That's what I brought you up here for!"

"You did, eh?" blazed the captain wrathfully. "And how'll you explain the murder, eh?"

"Accident, regrettable, but unavoidable! Now that you understand my terms, captain, shell out!"

Captain Phinney laughed. "Young man, I reckon you've overreached yourself. Somehow you had word that Captain Phinney was going to Jeremiah Fenwick's to hand over $5,000 cash in payment for an old tub of a vessel. Well and good. Most any loafer in town knows that Captain Phinney always pays in cash for every deal he makes. Somebody tipped you to that information, and you waited there in Jeremiah's field thinking to waylay Captain Phinney, induce him to go for a ride with you in this thing-umbob and then hold him up for the money. After you got the money there would be a regrettable accident. It was a grand scheme, but you made one mistake in the beginning."

"Well," sneered Fales. "It wasn't that you didn't draw the money out of the bank, because my pal saw you do it, and"

"The mistake you made," smiled Captain Phinney over his shoulder. "was that you tackled the wrong Captain Phinney. The one you wanted to rob is my brother, Captain Ben Phinney. He's got oceans of money and can afford to lose $5,000. I'm only poor Captain Lew, his younger brother. There's my name writ inside of my card from the lodge. See?"

Fales saw and turned a sickly yellow. There was a murderous look in his eyes.

"Over you go anyway!" he screamed angrily. "You'll tell this tale up and down the streets until!"

"Stop a minute!" bellowed Captain Phinney, turning suddenly in the slackened belt. His right hand flew up and rested on his left shoulder, and Fales looked into the round, blue barrel of a very efficient looking revolver.

"Get down to earth—quick!" ordered the captain in his quarter deck voice.

Fales snarled and reached forward. There was a report, and the upper part of his helmet was blown from his head. He darted back, his pale blue eyes starting with fear. He looked ridiculous with stiff locks of carryot hair sticking up through the torn helmet.

"You—old—bandit!" he gritted.

"You going to take me back to Squirrel Harbor?" roared the captain angrily.

Without a word Fales' feet pressed the rudder bar, and the monoplane circled widely and turned toward the southeast. As they fled toward home Captain Phinney observed the face of the aviator with growing surprise and recognition in his own ingenious countenance.

"Ding bust it!" he suddenly yelled. "I've placed you at last, you cheap kidnaper! You're Jeremiah Fenwick's nephew—the one who stole $500 from him and ran away to study aviation. I guess you've studied it, too, and now you're studying how to get a whole lot of money without much effort. Well, young feller, here's my proposition: You land me safe and sound in Squirrel Harbor and I'll not say a word about this matter."

"I'll keep mum about it to everybody except my brother Ben, and I'll swear him to secrecy, too, provided that you spread these here wings of yours and fly away from these waters as far as your money will take you, see? If you don't, by cricky, I'll telephone to Nick Wayland, and he can write up the hull business for the New York newspaper he works for. Now what?"

Archie Fales scowled down at the determined little man behind the gun.

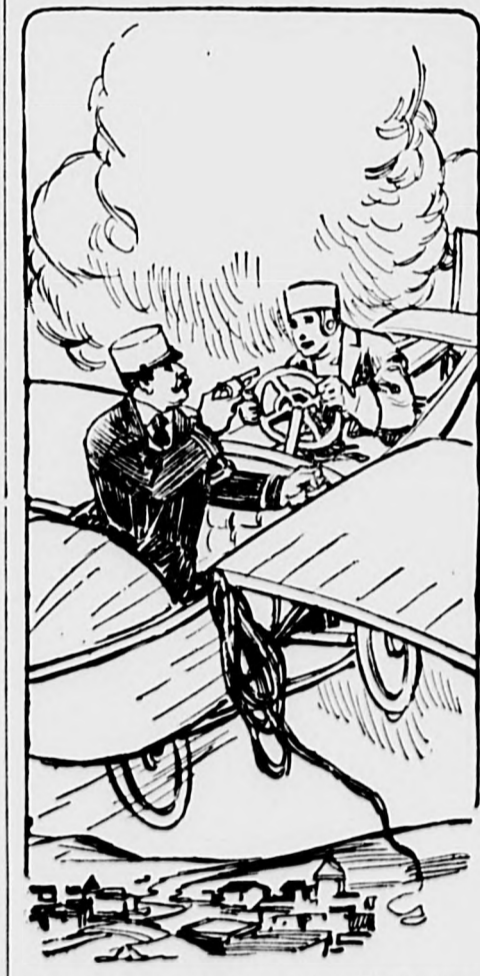

"You win," he said sullenly.

"You'll keep away from these waters?"

"Yes. You can bet I'm not going to place myself in a hazardous position," muttered Fales. "I've been offered a job in California, and I guess I'll take it."

"I advise you to," returned the captain heartily. "You'll find it a heap healthier out there than it is around here," he added significantly.

In silence they flew the rest of the way back to Squirrel Harbor, and it was a very much subdued aviator who shook hands with Captain Lew Phinney and saw him stilly alight in Jeremiah Fenwick's field. A dark youth in leather jacket and helmet was waiting there. He glanced surprisedly at the old sailor and stepped into the seat just vacated by the captain. The motor whirred, the monoplane glided away to rise for her flight, and the little crowd of villagers who had been waiting there for Captain Phinney's return gathered around his gallant little figure.

"GET DOWN TO EARTH—QUICK!" ORDERED THE CAPTAIN.

His keen eyes roved around in search of Lindy.

"She's gone home," volunteered somebody. So, after he had told them that he had had a most interesting trip in the air, but that he preferred the solid ground under his feet, next to a rolling deck, Captain Phinney sought his home.

Lindy welcome him back as one from the dead, and so noticeable is the change in her attitude toward her husband that many a henpecked husband of Squirrel Harbor threatens to take an air trip in hope of a cure for nagging wives. But Captain Phinney smiles secretly when he thinks of that thrilling ride and how narrow had been the margin that separated him from death in the old quarry.

Lindy's first words to him were:

"Oh, Lew, I've sent word to Ham Terrell that you're coming over to buy an interest in the business!"

FROM OTHER PLACES.

Let us not be so afraid of the "High Tax Rate" bug-bear that we handicap progress, health and happiness. There are much worse evils than high taxes.

On the other hand, let us provide for the most needed and see that we have value received for our expenditures.—Dedham Transcript.

Congratulations to the teachers who by their unflinching effort, succeeded in getting the vote of the town for a raise in their salary. Well may they enjoy their reward.

That the annual Town Meeting in a town of 2600 voters should have an attendance of only 300, indicates lack of interest, disgust at Town Meeting conditions or hopelessness of stemming the tide toward extravagance, incompetency and selfishness.

Taxpayers should realize that the remedy is in their own hands, and regardless of political belief, should get together and show more interest in the Town Meetings.—Natick Bulletin.

Braintree has always been famous for her town meetings and the one held last Monday evening was remarkable for the celebrity with which the business was dispatched, all the articles, fifty in number, being disposed of at one sitting. This rapid fire method of appropriating the Town's money is hasty, ill advised and dangerous and should not meet with the approval of the citizens.—Braintree Observer.

Every first class man possible to get has been put at work, and many firms are looking for good men. There are of course some granite cutters out of work, but as one manufacturer expresses it, there is not a first class man that is idle and there will be plenty of work for them all of the season.—Quincy Patriot.

The possibility of the return of former Congressman Samuel L. Powers of this city to the scene of his former triumphs at Washington, is being received with great satisfaction by his many friends. Mr. Powers would be a strong candidate and make a most influential member of Congress. Here's hoping he will agree to become a candidate again.—Newton Graphic.

If Revere cannot have a city charter and cannot be annexed, what is the remedy for the town's troubles? Perhaps it will be provided in the commission form of government that is now talked of for towns, as well as for cities. At present there is no such law, but there may be one in the near future. If the city charter idea is to be abandoned for the present Revere must find some other method of conducting its affairs in the very near future. Attempts to make new by-laws have been defeated for several years and there is little likelihood of relief in that direction.—Revere Journal.

Tribute.

In loving memory of our sister, Emma M. Goodale, who passed away suddenly at Daytona, Florida, March ninth, 1914. I cannot say, and will not say That she is dead, She is just away! With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand, She has wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming low very fair. It needs must be, since she linger there, And you—oh you who the wildest, yearn For the old time step, and the glad return, Think of her, faring on as dear, In the land of There, as the land of Here, Think of her still as the same, I say, She is not dead—She is just away.

Columbus.

Christopher Columbus was not, from all accounts, a Jew. Columbus was an Italian. Among the officers and sailors there was a Jew named Luis de Torres, an Irishman named William Harris, and an Englishman of the name of Arthur Laws, or Larkins. The rank and file of the men were Portuguese, Spaniards and Italians.

Venomous Mexican Scorpions.

There are several varieties of scorpions in Mexico, some of them exceedingly venomous and others little feared. In the neighborhood of Tepic the virulent centurus gracilis abounds, but it is little known about the more northern state of Sonora. It is one of the most venomous creatures in the world.

The guests while waiting for supper were highly entertained with organ selections by Mrs. F. C. McDowell. At 7:30 o'clock, 150 guests seated themselves at bountifully spread tables, decorated with flowers. A delicious menu of turkey, cranberry sauce with all the vegetables, cakes and pies were served by an able corps of men. A social hour followed the supper. The proceeds of the evening will be given to the Church Painting fund.

First Church, (Old North) Notes

One Exception.

Little Mary was, coloring pictures with her Christmas set of paints. She used a tint that failed to please and exclaimed: "Oh, I didn't mean to do that! However, what's done is done and can't be undone—except shoe laces."

A Spring Po'm
 The Spring has come, the Winter's went, The winter of our discontent; But one thing we must not forget, In Spring the spring is always wet.

Soon we will hear froglike strains From pools formed by excessive rains; And soon our thoughtful mothers dear, With some spring tonic will appear.

Don't spend your coin for useless drugs. But save it for some parlor rug; In Whitcomb's Graham Bread invest, Then will kind Nature do the rest.

His Graham Crullers do much good, Whenever you want a change of food; His Hermits too reveal a truth, And we commend them for our youth.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.
 Rev. John Ford, of this town, who has been studying in Rome for a few years past, returned home recently, and last Sunday officiated at the service in the Catholic church at the Landing.

Saturday evening officers Gardner and Thomas raided the saloon of Eugene Moran, at South Weymouth, and seized 205 bottles of lager beer, two gallons of whiskey and some ale.

The work of erecting the new Masonic hall is progressing and the structure is beginning to assume an imposing appearance. It is hoped that the Odd Fellows will soon concert measures for the erection of a hall on the lot recently purchased for the purpose.

We learn from good authority that the prospects for business in our boot and shoe factories for the next run are very encouraging, and that one manufacturer states that there will probably be no cessation of work in his factory for a year to come.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.
 A meeting of the members of Division 9, A. O. U. was held in Temple of Honor hall last Thursday evening, for the purpose of forming a corporation, and the following were elected as officers: President, William Tobin; clerk, Thos. B. Reed; treasurer, Daniel Reidy; board of directors, William Tobin, J. A. Connell, Edward F. Cullen, Daniel Reidy and John L. McKiver.

The tree committee of the South Weymouth Improvement society have set out about 900 trees, making a row on each side of all the principal streets. They have cared for the young trees, replaced those which have died, trimmed those of larger growth, issued bulletins on "Tree Planting," and "Arbor Day," and have protected the trees from injury by horses, boys, telephone companies and building movers. Their work in the future will be principally to keep good what has already been accomplished.

Z. L. Bicknell Hose Co. No. 2 held their annual meeting last Monday evening and voted to change the title of the two first officers from fireman and assistant to captain and lieutenant. They then elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Captain, Edward Fahey; lieutenant, W. J. Dunbar; clerk, E. Q. S. Litchfield; steward, A. J. Osgood; engineers of steamer, Henri Humphrey; 1st ass't, W. T. Rice; 2d do., C. T. Humprey; 3d do., D. P. Lincoln.

The March meeting of the Historical society, which was also the adjourned annual meeting, was held at Tufts Library on Wednesday evening, March 27. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John J. Loud; vice president, Herbert A. Newton; recording and corresponding secretary, Samuel W. Reed; treasurer, Charles T. Crane; librarian, Miss Carrie A. Blanchard; executive committee, the above and Dr. C. C. Tower.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO.
 Today is the 1st of April and yet no move from either Electric Railroad Co. We thought it smelt a little railroadly while back but the scent is growing cold.

The supper celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the incorporation of the East Weymouth Savings Bank, will be given in Masonic hall Monday night, at 7 o'clock.

In response to the invitation to all interested in baseball to assemble at Argonne hall, about forty were present last Friday evening. P. E. Corridan was chosen chairman and Jerry Sullivan, secretary. It was voted to form a base ball association with a fee of $1, and a committee of seven were appointed to secure signatures.

Richard B. Smith, a veteran of the late war, answered to the roll call call of the Great Captain last Saturday night and after four years of patient waiting for slow paralysis to complete its work, left the ranks of those who wait here below and joined the Grand Army above.

"What one has done others may do" and it would seem that if our Weymouth Club, Business associations, and Improvement societies would only "get a move on" we might secure some of the plums that are falling to other towns. What a blessing it would be to this town if we could secure a business that would employ 800 hands with a pay roll of $6000 and upwards per week!

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.
Weymouth People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.
 The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Disordered kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back may ache, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.
 You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Weymouth proof of their merit.
 Mrs. Thomas Fryer, 56 Phillips street, Weymouth, Mass., says: "I can speak highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, having used them both here and in England and I own my present good health to them. Occasional use of Doan's Kidney Pills keeps my kidneys in good shape. What I said some time ago recommending Doan's Kidney Pills holds good."
 For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
 Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Auto Stolen.
 On opening his garage last Saturday morning Elmer E. Leonard of Commercial street East Weymouth discovered that thieves had stolen his touring car during the night. The car was used Friday night and was put up about eleven o'clock. Sometime later than this, the night gate tender at the Commercial street railroad crossing saw the auto come out of Mr. Leonard's yard and start towards East Weymouth. It is said there were two men in the car at the time.
 When Mr. Leonard discovered his loss he notified the police and the car was located in Brockton, deserted on account of burned out bearings. No clue was obtained of the thieves.

Webster's Home Squadron.

A few days before his death Daniel Webster wished to leave his sick-room once more to look upon the little paradise which his taste had adorned about his mansion. Dressing himself with the utmost care, he went through the house on the arm of a servant and finally reached the library. The night before there was a terrific storm, and the great statesman expressed solicitude for the safety of the fishermen off the coast. As he looked from the window his eye fell upon a number of pleasure boats which had been moored to a little mound in the artificial pond in the rear of the house. "Well," said he, "the home squadron is safe. I think I will go back." It was his last playful remark. He never left his room again.

Quick Change.

"I would rather see my daughter married to a poor man whom she really loved than to the richest man in the world if she didn't care for him."

"Well, you get your wish. I saw her about ten minutes ago eloping with one of your underpaid clerks."

"Good heaven! Where? Speak, man! Maybe I can head them off before it is forever too late!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

When Children Were Marketed.

In selling their children the Japanese in the famine stricken districts are following a custom that has not always been unknown in England. In the year 1017 King Canute found it necessary to issue an edict forbidding English parents to sell their children to the Irish as slaves, in accordance with their pleasing habit.

A Round Robin

It Proved to Be a Boomerang to Its Signers

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Reforms are seldom accomplished all at once, and when they are they rarely hold good. The citizens of Jintown found their efforts to dispense with the vigilance committee and establish a regular court of law attended with difficulty. As one of them expressed it: "We was between fire and water. We was burned up if we kept still, and if we jumped we'd be drowned."

Jintown—now Jamestown—has developed into a beautiful city, with schools and churches innumerable, but in the days when gun law had become unbearable the principal buildings in the town were devoted to gambling houses, in which an apology for liquor was sold at 25 cents a drink. In these places every man was armed, and whenever a dispute arose the only question was which disputant was the quicker on the trigger. This state of affairs attracted desperate characters, and the town was rapidly going from bad to worse. A secret meeting was held among the best citizens, at which twelve men were selected as a vigilance committee to clear the town of rascals. By a vigorous course of lynching and shooting it got rid of all the bad characters except one, but four of the twelve had been eliminated.

The bad character left, Pete Hollister, was not to be intimidated. The only way to get rid of him was to kill him, and the vigilance committee had found that method declaiming its own ranks. Four of the remaining vigilantes had been killed, leaving four men who had become tired of the work. Meanwhile a court had been organized and brought to a state of tolerable efficiency. It was easy enough to convict a person guilty of breaking the law on sufficient evidence, but it was not easy to get the party into court if he would not come willingly. It certainly was not easy to get Pete Hollister there, because he would not go willingly, and any one trying to take him by force was sure to get killed. The four men remaining on the vigilance committee held a meeting to consider means of eliminating the desperado. It was agreed that if Pete could be got out of the way there was only Bill Cundiff remaining, and Bill was not considered a very hard case. It was even thought that he might be converted to a supporter of good order.

In some way Cundiff got wind of the movement to get rid of Hollister, and one day he asked one of the committee how much would be given for the desperado's scalp. The other members were consulted, and each man subscribed $50 for the purpose. Cundiff said that to do the job was worth more than that, but if they would take the responsibility jointly with himself he would consider the proposition. He said he didn't wish to be tried for murder in the newfangled court that had been organized and must have some guaranty. The best guaranty he could have would be an order to do the job signed and sealed by the committee.

After a good deal of deliberation the four men remaining on the committee signed a round robin instructing him to "make away with" Peter Hollister and agreeing to pay him the sum of $200 for the job. At the time the arrangement was made the intended victim had gone to an army post near by to look, as he expressed it, "for scabs among some of them sojers." Before Cundiff started on his errand of mercy—such it was considered by the citizens of Jintown—the committee offered to pay him in advance the money that had been subscribed for the job. But Cundiff said he wasn't sure he could "get him" and his conscience wouldn't permit him to take pay for a job he hadn't done.

The committee was much pleased at this, feeling encouraged to hope that after Hollister had been put out of the way Cundiff would make an excellent citizen. An election for mayor had been called, and some were in favor of running Cundiff for the office. The rumor that he might be a candidate reached his ears, and he stated definitely that he proposed to reform and didn't consider any man reformed who had anything to do with politics. This added to the growing confidence that was being built up in the man who was to do for Jintown what Charlotte Corday did for France.

When Cundiff, covered all over with knives, pistols and Winchester rifles, rode out of Jintown on his errand in behalf of law and order he was given an ovation. There were by this time many respectable women in the place, and they, their husbands and their children turned out to wish the reformed man success. Handkerchiefs were waved in him by the women, while the men fired salutes from their revolvers. Cundiff was seen to draw his shirt sleeve across his eyes, which was considered evidence of those intense emotions that are usually a part of the reformation of a wicked person.

They were destined to meet with a surprise. Not two hours after Cundiff's departure he returned, and riding beside him, still in the flesh, was Pete Hollister. A chill passed over the citizens of Jintown, most of whom saw the entry from their windows and did not go out to welcome back the man they had sent off with such enthusiasm. Hollister reined up before a small group on the street and said:

"I have business with four prominent citizens of this town—Martin Shaw, Nathan Parker, Thomas Warren and George Urner. I would like to confer with 'em and would be obliged to any citizen to tell 'em that I'll wait for 'em at O'Neill's tavern. Say that it's not a question of shooting, but of law."

After saying this the speaker and his attendant rode on to the tavern, where they dismounted. The gentlemen mentioned—the four members of the vigilance committee who had signed the round robin—were informed of the invitation and after consultation concluded to accept it, having been assured that they were wanted not on a matter of gun practice, but of law.

"Gents," said Hollister, drawing a paper from under his shirt, "I have here evidence of a conspiracy on your part, with Bill Cundiff, to murder me. Bill, havin' shown signs of reformation lately, instead of committin' the deed, comes to me repentant and with tears in his eyes hands me this yere agreement to pay him $200 for my scalp. He finds me likewise repentant for my many sins and disposed to abandon gun law and leave these yere questions to the courts. Therefore it is my painful duty to swear out a warrant agin you four gents, to be dealt with by the courts in the regular way."

There was a grim silence on the part of the men who in trying to be saviors of Jintown had walked into a trap and, according to law, would be punished by death or imprisonment by the courts they had taken so much pains to establish.

"Owin' to the tenderness of my heart," the desperado continued, "and the reformation goin' on in my bosom, I don't want to be hard on you. My duty as a reformed citizen is plainly to let the law take its course. But you gents bein' disposed to help us who are tryin' to turn from our wicked ways—Bill Cundiff kin testify to that—and some of you havin' families, I wouldn't mind a pecuniary consideration instead of seelin' you suffer. In the first place, Bill, who was too conscientious to take the price of my blood, should be rewarded for right doin'. Five hundred dollars would be a small sum for so much resistance to temptation. In the second place, if your scheme had worked I would now be sleepin' in the valley, with the long grass wavin' over me and coyotes scratchin' for my bones. All these should be paid for. But, rememberin' that there's no great wealth in the town, I'll make the figures reasonable. Call my share $1,500."

The signers of the round robin asked how long they would have to accept or decline this generous proposition and to raise the money if they accepted it and were given three days, at the end of which time the warrant would be sworn out. Then they retired for consultation.

Advancing civilization brings many problems. Here was a problem with a paradox. A villain was about to use a court of justice as an instrument for the condemnation of men who were working to eradicate crime. What was to be done? After consultation the round robins sent a message to ask the two reformed men if, on the payment of the sum demanded, they would leave the town, never to return. The reply was that, having reformed, they would prefer to remain and Cundiff had decided to run for mayor.

While the deliberations were going on it happened that a young man who had served an enlistment as an electrician passed through the town on his way to a large mining center that had acquired civilization, where he was to be employed putting in electric lights and different devices made practicable by electricity. Hearing of the dilemma that confronted the citizens of Jintown and especially the round robins, he volunteered to show them a method by which they might get rid of the two villains without danger to themselves. They offered to pay him liberally for any device that would bring about that end, but he declined to receive money for such a purpose or to work it himself.

During the three days that the round robins had been given to come to a decision and raise funds the electrician worked nights, and no one saw what he did. He was engaged in laying wires from an empty cabin to the house of one of the remnants of the vigilance committee, Martin Shaw. When the time was up, after explaining his device to Mr. Shaw, he withdrew from all participation in the scheme.

On the third day after the return of Hollister and Cundiff they were invited to the deserted cabin in which the electrician had been at work to receive the first installment of the ransom that had been levied on the town. The four citizens most interested were in the cabin, at the other end of the wires, where they could see plainly the place to which the rascals had been invited. Citizens were warned to keep away from the cabin and regarded the warning. Hollister and Cundiff went into the cabin prepared for them and found a bottle and two glasses on a table. They poured out a tumbler of liquor each, raised their glasses and were drinking when the floor rose up, they were tossed a hundred feet in the air, and when they came down they had ceased to be terrorists to Jintown. The cabin had been undermined and a charge of dynamite kindled by electricity.

That ended the reign of terror with which Jintown had been afflicted since

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

A hen cannot lay an egg unless she has the food with which to make it. Grain alone cannot make many eggs.

It is conceded by all experienced breeders that for the first three days of the young pig's life its dam should be fed very moderately on thin slop.

Whole corn is a good feed for setting hens. Water, grit and dust baths should also be provided.

If a man is going to succeed in the hog business or any other business he must give it some thought and some attention.

Dirty nests and dirty floors mean dirty eggs, and dirty eggs never fetch the highest prices—neither do washed ones.

Mating birds with two extremes of color will never produce a medium color. Both sides of the mating should be as near right as possible.

A mixture of salt and ashes thrown about the roots of growing cabbages before they were attacked by the insect which causes "clubroot" prevented such disaster but it did not check the progress of the disease when begun.

Now, if you have no currents for a breakfast relish, plant some this spring. They are easy to grow, are a sure crop, barring accidents, and make all sorts of excellent things, besides being as beautiful as flowers.

A farmer will rise at 4 o'clock in the morning to feed and milk the cows, will carefully clean out the stalls and prepare beds for the cows, and his work does not end till late, but he will not do so much work for the hens, yet the hens will pay five times as much profit in proportion to labor and capital invested as the cows.

Select the field for sugar beets with reference to the quality of the surface and subsoil, conditions of drainage and the fitness to follow the preceding crop. Plow thoroughly and deeply in the fall if possible. Make the seed bed firm below as well as near the surface. Plant in the spring as soon as the soil and weather conditions are right.

Seed must be covered with soil in order to germinate and take deep root. Germinating on or only a fraction of an inch below the surface will result in a poor stand unless the spring and summer following the seeding turn out damp. The average summer following spring seeding of clover will kill the young crop unless the young plants have rather deep rooting.

When seed corn is in perfect condition the kernel will furnish its entire contents toward the support of the young plant, but if it has been injured, only a small part of its contents may be used by the growing plant. In other words, corn may contain vitality enough to grow, yet be too weak to produce a healthy stalk; in such case a shortage in yield would not be due to a poor stand, but to the lack of crop vitality.

Fine pure-bred animals will turn out to be no better than scrubs if they are neglected or mistreated. In fact, the highly bred animal will suffer from neglect and mistreatment even more than a common animal, yet it will respond better and become much more valuable under good treatment. It has been bred for generations for good qualities, but only through good feeding and good general handling will these best qualities be brought out.

Important facts for fruit growers are that orchard land may be made to pay double and the fertility of the soil maintained without extraordinary effort. While the trees are coming to maturity land earns nothing for five or six years unless there is a plan of vegetable raising when a return of $100 an acre is easily secured and the soil is benefited by the necessary cultivation. Unless such a system of cropping is established a nonbearing orchard is apt to be neglected, and this results in waste of time, investment and land.

Dairying is the very best business known to the farmer, writes a correspondent of the Iowa Homestead. It is the only means of farming known whereby the skilled man can take a poor piece of land and make it grow richer year after year. The longer he follows it the more fertile the land becomes from the products of the farm itself. It is no case of robbing your neighbor's farm of its fertility to build up your own. The longer this is followed the richer and more intelligent the farmer becomes.

The best farmers and breeders are now using good grade mares and mating them with pure bred stallions of the same line of breeding. The resulting foals are animals of high grade and superior quality. The special breeder uses nothing but pure-blood, pedigreed, registered dams and sires. The demand for pure-bred stallions and mares is already very great, while it is increasing and will increase for years to come. The scrub in the horse line is doomed. Future horses of this country will be animals of merit.

"Doing Europe" in Olden Days. Clare Howard in "The English Travelers of the Renaissance" tells us that the serious aim of the traveler in and before Elizabethan days was to become a "complete person." This could be achieved only by coming into contact with the learning and life of the continent, particularly Italy—the flower of the renaissance—and as the seventeenth century advanced of France, which then became the arbiter of manners. The discomforts, dangers and risks of travel in those days were colossal. The dirty, insanitary inns were death traps, and "many an eager tourist lay down with smallpox before he had seen anything worth mentioning."

The term "grand tour," Miss Howard tells us, was used for the first time by Richard Lassels in 1670 in an English book for travelers entitled "The Grand Tour of France and the Giro of Italy." She traces the causes involved in the decadence of the grand tour, to which the decline of the courtier and the foundation of chairs of modern history and modern languages at Oxford and Cambridge contributed.

Washing Day in Sicily. The Sicilians have the reputation of not washing themselves overfrequently, but if they are remiss in this respect they more than make up for it by washing their garments—washing, in fact, being a perennial occupation among the women. The songs of the women folk as they scrub the clothes of their husbands and children outside the doors of their homes, if living in a city, or in some brook or running stream if living in the country, are a noticeable feature of lower class Sicilian life. The long spikes on the prickly pear leaves and aloe plants make splendid natural pegs on which to dry the clothes, and in all the rural districts you will see them thus utilized, but if they do not happen to be sufficiently handy the clothes are often stretched out upon the mountainside to dry. The occupation and recreation of most of the poorer women may be summed up in three words—washing and gossip.—Wide World Magazine.

How Pythons Settle Quarrels. It was in October, 1894, that the big python at the zoo fell into the deplorable error of swallowing his companion, a snake only a few inches shorter than himself. A similar disaster is reported from Bombay, where for some years two large Indian pythons had occupied a cage in the museum of the Bombay Natural History society. There was some misunderstanding between them over a partridge, for they were found so tightly entangled in each other's coils that the utmost endeavors of peacemaking keepers failed to effect a separation, and they were left to settle the matter according to their own lights. Next day there was only one very stout python visible. These large reptiles evidently know but one way of settling a quarrel.—London Sketch.

Strange was. Many are the eccentricities to which wills have borne testimony from time to time. The Earl of Portarlington left instructions that he should be buried with all his rings on his fingers. The late Earl of Orkney stipulated that he should be taken to the cemetery in an old fashioned hearse, so that the coffin could not be seen and that no flowers should be placed on his grave. He also left word that his coronet would be found by his nephew and successor "in a cellar" of his house.

A Vienna millionaire, who died recently, left a sum of money with which to defray the cost of twelve months' electric lighting, not only of his vault, but even of the very coffin in which he was buried. Less particular was the Frenchman who asked that his body should be thrown into the sea a mile from the English coast. He was, too, so disgusted with his own country that he would neither be buried there nor allow any of his relatives or fellow countrymen to benefit by his death. He left the whole of his money to the poor of London.—London Globe.

The Ship's Rat. The black rat is the ship's rat, and it travels from country to country. The animal is found universally over the Monte Bello group of islands, even on the small outlying islets which are never visited, on which it occurs most abundantly. Its presence is attributed to a schooner which was wrecked some twelve years ago, for it is well known that this rat is a good swimmer. It is curious to find that this animal, which is now so rare in its native countries as to be looked upon as a great curiosity, should usually be one of the first species to populate new lands where it is comparatively free from competition. Driven from all civilized countries by the brown rat, it has taken to the sea, being better adapted for a life on board ship than its otherwise victorious rival.—P. D. Montague in Geo graphical Journal.

Pulmonol (PAYNE)

READ THIS!

"In May, 1910, several doctors told me I had tuberculosis. I spent over four months in the Loomis Sanitarium, but returned in just as poor condition as when I left the city. My physician had heard of Pulmonol, and prescribed it. Since I have taken the first bottle I have attended to a strenuous business (not missing one day). I am so much in earnest and so sincere about the wonderful value of Pulmonol that I feel as if any consumptive who hears of it and refuses to take it is as foolish as a drowning man who heaves a life-line thrown to him.

"Having a public position (Public school teacher) I would rather not sign my name, but anyone desirous of further investigation concerning my statement I refer to my physician, W. Fletcher Stone, M.D., 401 West End Ave., New York, N. Y.

Pulmonol is guaranteed free of alcohol, opiates, oils and syrups that upset the stomach. We ask only a trial to prove its truly wonderful properties. We invite investigation. PULMONOL CHEMICAL CO., N. Y.

Know Paint. There's a paint-education in this advertisement. Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put-on; that's the job. The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing. The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing. Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to lose perhaps half of your money. Devote 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devote 10 days; the other 15. Devote about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way. But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other. DEVOE. Everett Loud, East Weymouth; M. R. Loud & Co., South Weymouth, and A. J. Sidelinger, North Weymouth, sell it.

Think it Over. Our colleague at the adjacent desk has just cogitated this: If a man has nothing, he must do something to have anything. But if a man has something, he needn't do anything to have nothing in a very short time.—Boston Transcript.

Know Paint. There's a paint-education in this advertisement. Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put-on; that's the job. The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing. The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing. Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to lose perhaps half of your money. Devote 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devote 10 days; the other 15. Devote about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way. But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other. DEVOE. Everett Loud, East Weymouth; M. R. Loud & Co., South Weymouth, and A. J. Sidelinger, North Weymouth, sell it.

Think it Over. Our colleague at the adjacent desk has just cogitated this: If a man has nothing, he must do something to have anything. But if a man has something, he needn't do anything to have nothing in a very short time.—Boston Transcript.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

PASTOR'S RECEPTION.

A Chapter in the History of the Union Church of Weymouth and Braintree.

The Union church of Weymouth and Braintree added one more to the many pleasing events in its history last Friday evening in a formal reception to its newly elected pastor, Rev. Albert P. Watson, Mrs. Watson and their daughter, Miss Louise Watson.

The affair was under the immediate supervision of Mrs. Harriet Voorhees and Mrs. E. H. Bolles. The plans were well arranged and admirably executed from the start to the finale.

The decorations were under direction of Irving Bates and an air of ease, comfort and sociability prevailed everywhere.

The receiving line consisted of Deacon and Mrs. Charles T. Crane, Rev. and Mrs. Watson, Miss Helen Louise Watson, Deacon and Mrs. Henry F. South, Superintendent of the Sunday school, C. E. Mayo and Mrs. Mayo and with a beautiful floral arch above them and a bank of foliage and flowers behind, the picture was decidedly beautiful.

A good corps of ushers got busy and the cordial greeting received by Mr. and Mrs. Watson must have been decidedly cheering and encouraging to the recipients. Refreshments of ices, cakes and other dainties were served in the banquet room with Mrs. Baxter Hayward, Mrs. Albert E. Avery, Mrs. Geo. D. Bullock, Mrs. Thomas A. Watson and Mrs. Frank O. Wellington in charge.

Both during the reception in the parlors above and dining room below, Mrs. Charles E. Merchant's orchestra furnished excellent music and pastor and people must feel that a bright future is before them.

Danger in "Scorching."

An eminent doctor says he has found a cyclist's pulse to beat as high as 250 times a minute immediately after making a fast mile. This illustrates the danger of "scorching."

Samuel Orcutt Dead.

Samuel Orcutt, age 82 years, a long time resident of East Weymouth, died last Saturday night at his home on Main street, Cohasset.

Mr. Orcutt was engaged in the shoe business in this town. He was an interested worker in the temperance cause, being a member of Mechanic's Temple of Honor and the Reform club. Besides his wife he leaves two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Grover of Hill street, East Weymouth, and Mrs. S. A. R. Pratt of East Mansfield.

Funeral services were held last Tuesday afternoon at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grover of East Weymouth. Rev. John Moore of the Congregational church in Beechwood officiated. Mrs. Eveline Pillsbury sang. The bearers were Charles H. Pratt, W. J. Grover, S. A. R. Pratt and Carl Manuel. Interment was in the Fairmount cemetery.

Mr. Dennis Griffin.

Mr. Dennis Griffin died at his home on Elliot street Monday after a long illness, aged 78. Deceased is survived by his widow, a daughter Mrs. T. F. J. Dalton with whom he had made his home for some years past and a sister Mrs. Joanna Craddock of Neponset. Deceased was for more than a quarter of a century in the employ of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. The funeral took place from the church of the Sacred Heart Wednesday morning and was largely attended. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. B. Hollan. The bearers were Thomas Fitzgerald, Thomas Cassidy, Richard Seelye, Nicholas F. Scollard, George Briggs and Simon Delorey. Interment was in the family lot at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

Tree That Lightning Avoids.

Natives of South Africa have said regarding the mopane tree, which is often struck, "lightning hates it," but they say that the morala tree is never touched.

Monday Club.

The Monday Woman's club held its regular meeting on Monday afternoon, April 6th, in Odd Fellow's hall, East Weymouth. Mrs. Arthur V. Harper presided. Mrs. Harriet B. Voorhees, chairman of the district nurse committee, gave a most encouraging report in regard to their progress.

A committee from the club was appointed for clean-up week.

The entertainment of the afternoon was in charge of Miss Edith Ruth Marshall of Cambridge, who gave solos on cello, xylophone, hand bells and musical lyre, assisted by Edwin B. Powell, violin, and Miss Harriet B. Westcott, piano. There were readings and impersonations by Miss Hazel G. Browne. These entertainers constitute what is called The University City Club Entertainers. They give a fine programme of great variety, splendidly adapted to their audience and received continuous applause during the afternoon.

A cake and candy sale was held during the afternoon in charge of Mrs. William Wheaton assisted by Mrs. Meizar Burrell.

Village Study Club.

The Village Study club met last Monday night in the Fogg Library building, South Weymouth, with Bates Torrey presiding.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Mary H. Courtney. It consisted of the reading of Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with the parts taken by H. H. Joy, Miss Ruth N. Tower, Rev. W. W. Rose, Mrs. J. H. Tirrell, Miss M. Agnes Hulbrook, Miss Helen F. Richards, P. H. Tirrell, H. S. Stowers, Mrs. M. R. Abbott, Miss Minnie B. Joy, Miss Helen E. Courtney, Miss Hester Swan, Mrs. Charles F. Bates, Mrs. Bates Torrey, Mrs. James Grant, Miss Helen Reed, Mrs. William A. Wagner and Mrs. Benjamin Courtney.

A paper on the subject "Shakespeare or Bacon, Which?" was read by Miss Rachel F. Hawes.

PLAY BALL.

Weymouth High School Nine Looks Like Fastest Team in Years. To Open Schedule Tomorrow.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, the batteries for today's game will be—" etc., etc. Tomorrow, weather permitting, the baseball season will be ushered in, in this town when the Weymouth High school nine opens its 1914 schedule with a game with Thayer Academy of Braintree.

The local high school squad have been working out daily for the past three weeks at Garfield park, Weymouth, and the squad this spring certainly looks as formidable as any for several years.

Captain "Toby" Fraher is in mid-season form right now and bids fair to be the sensation of schoolboy baseball this year behind the bat. He is as steady as a clock, a grand batter, fine thrower and above all has the brains of a Carrigan. Condrick, the "rookie" catcher, should make a fast understudy to Captain Fraher.

At the first sack Mills Baker and "Red" Reis are having a merry tussle with honors about even to date.

At the keystone position "Hope" Gorman from last year's nine and Richardson are fighting for a regular berth. Gorman, on account of his experience, looks like the regular at second, but Richardson is a classy ball tosser and may land the position during the first few weeks of the schedule.

At short Russ Riley looks like the goods playing a much faster game than at any time last year.

Third base will be taken care of by "Scoot" Gloster. "Nuff Ced." He is in a class by himself at the hot corner.

In the outfield several new candidates have come to the front and Coach Cosgrove and Captain Fraher have a problem on their hands to select the best trio to guard the outer gardens. Vender, from last year's team looks like a fixture in centerfield, but it is a question who will fill the other two positions.

In the box, the team is much better off than was hoped for. The veteran, Ray Condrick, is rounding into shape slowly and will not probably pitch for a couple of weeks yet, but in the meantime the team will have the services of Callahan and Conny Condrick. Callahan looks like a find and has the necessary benders. Conny Condrick is a good south-paw, but to date is unable to get his control going. Warm weather should help materially. Langford from last year's champion Hunt school nine is rounding into form rapidly and when the balmy spring days arrive, should be able to win several games for the team.

Manager Anthony Cassese has arranged a fine schedule of games and a successful season is expected.

Tango Party.

A largely attended Tango party was held in the Masonic Temple, East Weymouth last Friday evening under the direction of Mrs. Burgess Spinney and Miss Mildred Gibson. Maxim's three piece orchestra furnished music during the reception from 7:30 to 8 and also for the dancing until 12 o'clock.

The matrons were Mrs. S. B. Totman, Mrs. E. E. Merchant and Mrs. Joseph Chase Jr. Refreshments were served during the evening. Guests were present from the Weymouths and several surrounding towns.

Easter at Trinity Church.

The celebration of Easter at Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, Weymouth, will begin on Sunday at 10:30. This will be Easter service with sermon, Holy Communion and special music by vested choir in the new choir seats. At this service the white altar cloths and hangings, the vestments of the choir and choristers will be dedicated. At 4 p.m. there will be a baptismal service and at 7:30 p.m. will be held the Easter festival of the Sunday school, with the singing of carols recitations by the children and address by Rev. William Hyde. The church will be decorated with potted plants, callas and flowers.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the North Weymouth Cemetery Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Pratt on Sea street, North Weymouth, last Tuesday afternoon. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Elizabeth B. Pratt, president; Mrs. Alice Drew and Mrs. Lottie Sampson, vice-presidents; Mrs. Alice Ames, secretary; Mrs. Lillian Curtis and Miss Susie Pratt, assistant secretaries; Mrs. Clara Taylor, treasurer; Mrs. Stella Page, Mrs. Abbie Beals, Mrs. Clara Taylor, Mrs. Mary Cushing, Mrs. J. H. Goodspeed and Mrs. George Clark, directors.

Town Business.

At the Monday meeting of the Selectmen Charles L. Merritt was appointed to represent the town at a forestry convention to be held the 18th inst. at Worcester. Chief Butler was ordered to make an investigation of places holding license as victualers and see that they are equipped for the business conducted and according to laid down rules.

William J. Gaughan, Mathew J. Vent and Edward J. Moore were appointed as special police; Henry W. Burr, public weigher and J. H. Sherman, surveyor of wood, lumber and bark.

A water drain on Pleasant street has become a matter of complaint and Selectman Hanley with street superintendent Maynard are a committee of investigation.

On April 21 a hearing will be given the Light & Power Co. on its petition to locate ten poles on Main street and eight on East street, and on the 27th, a hearing to Herbert W. Robbins, Russell G. Hunt and Patrick Casey to sell gasoline.

Complaint was filed with the Selectmen of disorderly conduct around Central square, and Police Officer Fitzgerald has been detached for duty there.

On a request from a number of citizens the use of the Town Hall has been granted for a series of meetings for the purpose of bringing before the people a plan for a district nurse system in town.

Contract has been signed with C. A. Batson for the completion of the lock-up at East Weymouth.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the School Board held at the Town office on Wednesday evening the following assignment of schools was made:

The High school will be under the immediate supervision of the chairman, C. P. Whittle and the secretary, P. H. Tirrell.

The Athens and the Adams, A. H. Alden, Hunt, Lincoln and Tufts, C. P. Whittle. Shaw and Pratt, Theron L. Tirrell.

Bates, Hollis and Pond, Mrs. Sarah S. Howe.

Howe, Prince H. Tirrell, Washington, Humphrey, Jefferson and Franklin, E. E. Leonard with a prospect of the Franklin being opened for two or more grades at the beginning of a new year.

Reed Cemetery Association.

The annual meeting of the Reed Cemetery association will be held at the Hose House, Nash's Corner on Saturday evening April 18th at 7:30 o'clock. All persons interested in that ancient resting place of many of the pioneers of Weymouth are invited to attend.

The directors are trying to keep the grounds somewhat in keeping with the spirit of age and ask for a little financial aid in doing so; yet that little is as much needed as the large sums which go to other grounds. Kindly send $1.00 to Charles A. Loud the treasurer South Weymouth and thus make yourself a life member of the association. There are thousands of you who decended from those whose remains are there.

George M. Lincoln Dead.

New York, April 7, 1914. George M. Lincoln died this morning in the Post Graduate hospital, following an operation.

He was born in Hingham, Mass., March 13, 1846. For many years he was a prominent figure in the carpet trade of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, being connected with some of the largest concerns in this country. Previous to his retirement some years ago, he was associated with the John Wanamaker Co. of New York. He was a musician of considerable note, being an accomplished violinist, who was much sought after in his earlier days, playing with "Ole Bull" at the Peace Jubilee, and with some of the most prominent amateur organizations around Boston. He will be remembered by many Weymouth people as leading violinist of the old Weymouth Oratorios, formerly held in Clapp's Hall.

Annual Meeting of Universalist S. C. North Weymouth.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Sewing Circle of the Universalist church, was held in the church parlors on Wednesday, April 8th. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Samuel Drew; vice-pres., Mrs. D. A. Jones; secretary, Mrs. G. A. Ames; ass't. sec., Mrs. E. R. Sampson; treas., Mrs. John Taylor; auditors, Mrs. F. M. Kittredge, Mrs. E. H. Kavanaugh; directors, Mrs. G. W. Nash, Mrs. R. T. Vining. It was voted to postpone the next regular meeting on account of the May Breakfast, which will be held on Friday, May 1st.

Quite So.

The man who never laughs at himself misses many a chance for a good giggle.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING.

Boom Weymouth! Clean Up, Paint Up and Build Up Weymouth.

The drizzling rain of Wednesday evening did not prevent a fair number of people from assembling at the Clapp Memorial building for the April meeting of the Board of Trade.

The first feature was a maple syrup supper. This novelty was enjoyed by about fifty members, who seemed to have good appetites for buckwheat cakes, maple syrup, maple sugar, cakes and many dainties along that line.

The business meeting which followed was of more than ordinary interest and progress was made along several lines. Records of the last meeting were read by the secretary, W. H. Pratt and approved. The treasurer, Geo. E. Bicknell, made a very encouraging report of the financial situation. M. E. Hawes for the committee on membership reported seven new names which were balloted for and elected.

Geo. E. Bicknell for the committee on signs or markers of boundary lines for the purpose of notifying people when they were in the corporate limits of the town suggested that a sign should be placed at the Quincy Point bridge, the Back River bridge and at the boundary line on Main street, South Weymouth and Abington. This called for discussion of the need of signs in other places. A motion however to place the three signs as recommended by the committee, as a beginning of the work, prevailed and a sum not to exceed $90 was appropriated for the purpose.

The topic of the evening was along the line of "Clean Up and Paint Up" movement now so prevalent and William E. Thayer was called upon for remarks. Mr. Thayer is a member of several Boston and State organization which have this work in hand and gave much valuable information as to what had been done and what it was proposed to do in the week beginning May 3d and on motion of Lewis C. Hunt $50 was appropriated and a committee consisting of Walter L. Bates, P. J. Deriz, John L. Maynard, J. R. South, F. H. Holmes, F. L. Doucett and Ralph B. Loud was appointed to further the Clean Up and Paint Up movement.

D. M. Easton spoke of the coming celebration in Weymouth, England of the departure of Gov. Endicott for these shores and of the significance of that event to the Weymouth we now occupy and are so justly proud of. Mr. Easton paid a tribute to Hon. Louis A. Cook whom Weymouth has selected as its representative in England and moved a fund be raised to defray the expenses and a committee consisting of D. M. Easton, A. C. Gerstley, John L. Maynard, Geo. L. Newton, Ralph M. Loud and Frank H. Holmes was appointed to solicit the funds.

Mr. Cook for the committee on parks, play grounds and bathing places, spoke of the importance of securing certain property on our shore front even if it became necessary to take it by right of eminent domain. The meeting now drifted back to Clean Up and Paint Up which was discussed until a late hour by Messrs. Worthen, Hanley, Bradford Hawes, Sheehy and others and no doubt there will be something doing in Weymouth from May 3d to the 10th as it is proposed to have the work begin by appeals from the pulpits on Sunday, the 3d and continue to Saturday which will be Children's day.

Ladies Auxiliary to King Cove Boat Club.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat club held a whist party last Saturday night at the club rooms. The prizes were taken by Mrs. Henry Miller, 1st ladies, and Mrs. Ida Noyes, consolation for ladies. The 1st men's prize was taken by John Wolfe and the consolation by J. J. Rudolph. This weather may not feel like spring to all, but Mr. Rudolph firmly believes that spring is here. His prize last Saturday evening was in the nature of a snake confined to a small box, and when he saw that snake, Mr. Rudolph decided that winter has departed for parts unknown. Tonight the Auxiliary will hold its semi-monthly meeting with Mrs. Henry Miller of Pratt avenue.

Special Services.

Palm Sunday was observed in the immaculate Conception church, East Weymouth; Church of the Sacred Heart, Weymouth Landing and St. Francis Xavier church, South Weymouth, last Sunday, with special services, which included the blessing and distribution of palms. Weymouth Council K. of C. attended St. Francis Xavier church in a body. During the past week special services have been held in the above churches in observance of Holy Week. All the services have been extremely well attended throughout the town.

Women Taking Unusual Interest In Legislation

DEATH OF ANTI-CIGARET BILL

Had Been Assured of Ample Support When It Reached Engrossment Stage—Tension In House Largely Created by Anti-Sectarian Resolve Which Touches On Delicate Subject

The feminist movement has grown stronger at the state house with the caress of spring weather. While the ladies were not able to convince the legislative committee on legal affairs that the lady cop bill was a good thing, they have been working throughout both branches to put the measure through. They are also pushing ahead on the bill to provide that lady judges may be appointed. They have a measure to provide for more latitude in the appointment of widows as administrators of estates, and the legislative committee of women lawyers is in evidence in the halls of legislation.

While the suffrage resolve went triumphantly through the legislature they are already at work for the passage of the resolve next year, and it looks as if they were to be successful. This week Mrs. Charlotte Smith is making her annual impassioned appeal to the committee on taxation for the taxation of bachelors who have arrived at the age of 35.

The ladies were prominent in the fight over the anti-cigaret bill, which met an unfortunate end in the senate after having been ordered to a third reading.

"It won't be many years before there will be more women in the legislature than there are men," exclaimed one of the suffrage leaders the other day in a burst of confidence to a member of the senate.

"That we have the energy and ability is universally admitted. The vote on suffrage shows that we have made good."

Somebody Got Busy

The quick fate of the anti-cigaret bill was a source of astonishment to the friends of the bill. In the last hours of its life it was attacked by Senator McCarthy, who claimed that the amendments placed on the bill by its friends had weakened it so that the bill had better be killed.

The bill said, when it came out of the committee, that a boy or girl who had cigarets in possession should be adjudged a delinquent child. This was changed so that the child would have to knowingly have them, and even then the court might not adjudge him a delinquent.

It took snappy work on the part of somebody to make an end of it, for there had been placed on record the votes of twenty senators for the bill when it went to its engrossment stage.

Grade Crossings

There is a new grade crossing bill in the house which practically relieves cities and towns of the present burden of wiring out grade crossings. The bill got a favorable committee report and looks more promising for passage than it has in prior years. It has been in the legislature about every year since the old apportionment was made.

Foxy Charlie Dean

Senator Charlie Dean of Wakefield is certainly fooling a lot of people this year. He is deeply interested in the taxation question, as he always has been. But in the senate he is so unobtrusive as to cause comment.

Dean is rather a good student of legislation and he is a hard worker. When he really begins to open up in the senate upon his favorite subject he is likely to attract some attention, particularly inasmuch as there are probably few in the upper branch who will be capable of holding up one end of a debate with him.

So far Dean has reported in the senate the bill to shift the burden of soldiers' exemptions from the cities and towns to the state and the bill to tax stock transfers.

Cushing Again?

Since the rebuke which Speaker Cushing administered to the house there have been increasing rumors among his friends that he will again seek to be elected to the house for the purpose of again becoming speaker.

If this suggestion is true it is a big piece of news, because it brings material changes in the plans of quite a few men who have been quietly sizing up the speakership for the past few years. Two of the most promising candidates for Mr. Cushing's job are Channing Cox of Boston and Thomas W. White of Newton.

There is a tense situation in the house and there has been one ever since the beginning of the year, when the speaker was elected over the Progressive-Democratic combination.

The Class Question

The presence of the anti-sectarian resolve in the legislature has done much to create this tension. The resolve provides for an amendment to the constitution so that never can money be paid to private schools by the state. This means that if the resolve goes through it will at no time be possible for the state to aid parochial schools.

Of course this touches upon a pretty delicate subject and it is causing quite a strong undercurrent of class feeling on both sides. The speaker naturally is regarded as belonging to one class. And this is all the more accentuated from the claims that are being made by so-called A. P. A. men that they were active and successful in bringing about the election of Mr. Cushing as speaker this year.

There is no way of proving that this is so, or that it isn't so, but either way one takes it the talk is having a decidedly acrid effect upon the house deliberations. It accounts for such incidents as that one which led to the rebuke which the speaker administered when his accent was imitated by somebody during the call of the calendar.

As to Railroads

The railroad committee is completely at sea over the railroad situation. So far the entire question seems to have been up to the governor and the federal authorities except for the Hampden bill, which is urged by Boston bankers as a means of helping them out of their financial troubles.

On the representation that the Hampden had a lease with the Boston and Maine they put millions into the project. According to the report of the public service commission the road cost about $299,000 a mile when the average cost of railroad building in Massachusetts is $65,000 a mile. Then the Boston and Maine rejected the tentative agreement made between Mr. Mellen and Mr. Gillett of the Hampden. And now the bill provides for a lease arrangement under which the Boston and Maine may operate the Hampden and thus turn the investment into a live one.

Just now it is a dead one.

Hughey Will Have Spats

Hughey O'Rourke, whose smoked glasses were the feature of the suffrage debate in the senate, now wears 'em regularly and says that he is going to add a pair of spats when the days get warmer. Hughey is making good in the senate, even if he no longer has so good an issue to talk about as the old lifting jack bill which went through a couple of years ago after Hughey had made a ten years' fight on it. People said that the passage of the bill would retire Mr. O'Rourke from public life. But not so. He is one of the most optimistic of legislators, votes for reform quite frequently, makes but few speeches and then good ones, and, for the most part, listens modestly to the debate. Verily, Hughey is a wise man. Wait till he gets the spats.

Don't Believe In Signs

Organized labor doesn't believe in signs. Just why this is so is quite difficult to see. But ever since the bill struck the senate, permitting the legislature to pass laws regulating the display of advertising signs, there has been an unusual amount of activity. The Boston Central Labor union has passed resolutions against the sign resolve, and the labor men have whetted their knives for it.

The sign resolve introduces a new principle into the police power. It adds the cultivation of beauty to the cultivation of health and morals.

It can't get through the legislature. The senate has decided that question already.

The Spotter Bill

The railroad spotter bill is in the house with a favorable report from the committee on legal affairs. There is going to be a big fight over the measure. The trainmen say that now they are being discharged upon the evidence of detectives who size up their doings. They want a hearing before any discharge can be had.

On the other hand, the principal stands out that any employer ought to have the right to hire and discharge and that this is an interference with the right of contract. The railroad says that the bill will make it almost impossible to discharge any men hereafter.

When the bill first came out of the committee it carried a severe fine and jail penalty. This penalty has since been stricken out. But as the bill stands it is making plenty of trouble.

Boston Charter Fight

The good old days of fighting over the Boston charter are due again. There is an active machine back of the bill which divides Boston into districts for the election of municipal councillors and this is the measure over which the scrap is bound to come.

Behind this measure is Mr. Lomasney with a strong line of men in all the three parties. On the other side are the Goo-Goods.

The committee on metropolitan affairs, which has the district bill and the so-called Curley bill, will send both into the legislature.

The Marriage Bill

The new marriage law will have to be perfected before it goes through the legislature. The bill as it stands provides that marriages shall be void for insanity, feeble-mindedness or disease.

Then it says that the children of the party capable of contracting marriage shall be deemed to be legitimate. But they are not to be the legitimate children of the other party. How this may affect property rights is an interesting question unless the bill should be amended to provide that the children shall be the legitimate issue of both parties.

Conductors' Punches Are Registered.

"The passenger on a railroad train when he has his ticket punched probably does not know that the punch mark used by the conductor is one of 17,000 different designs," remarked Frank E. Brown, an old time railroad man. "On the big railroads there are no two punches that have marks designed alike, and the interstate commerce commission by examining the punch mark can trace the ticket punched on to the conductor, train and road upon which the ticket was given. To get a punch a conductor has to sign seven papers before it is delivered to him. There used to be an old couplet, Mark Twain wrote it, which ran: Punch, punch, punch with care. Punch in the presence of the passengaire."

"In the old days the railroads—that was before the days of the interstate commerce commission—didn't care what kind of punches their employees used, but today it is different. Every punch is registered, and every mark is different."—Washington Post.

Fire Beds.

In fall, winter and spring, when the nights are very cold on the desert, prospectors, adventurers and all others who have occasion to sleep in the open find the "fire bed" a feature of outdoor craft which will enable them to sleep in comfort on a cold night. To make a fire bed a trench is dug in the sand six or seven inches in depth, about three feet wide and six feet long. The sides of this pit are banked up with the sand taken from the trench. The pit is then ready for the fire, which is built extending the full length of the pit, so that it will warm both the banked sand at the sides and the bottom of the pit. When the sand has been sufficiently heated the large, blazing sticks are thrown out, leaving all of the live coals in the pit; these are covered with about four inches of sand. This bed will retain the heat all night, and all that is left to be done is for the sleep seeker to lie down and wrap himself in a blanket, if he has one, and go to sleep in comfort—Independent.

Use insect powder freely to exterminate lice when necessary.
Our American breeds fatten very readily making them ideal market poultry.
A good many chick hatches are given a bad start by feeding too soon. Let them wait 36 to 48 hours. That's nature's way.
Given proper care and attention, the hen is the most valuable incubator for the farmer.
You will save dollars by this hint if you are troubled with mice gnawing your harness. Place a lump of salt near the harness and the mice will not gnaw them, since it is the salt the mice want, not the leather.
Pruning of shade trees should begin when they are planted. Practically all of the pruning should be confined to the removal of the lowest branches until the top is about ten feet above the ground. If the terminal fork, one part of it should be cut off and so should branches in the crown that interfere with one another.
The measure of a dairy cow's real value is the net profit she makes above the cost of feed. In dairying the unerring law of retribution is in active operation. The liberal soul of the liberal feeder waxes fat, and his pocket-book does not shrink and flatten if his cows have the opportunity of satisfying their dairy capacity on suitable feed.
A harness should be cleaned at least once a year. This is one of the slack time jobs that should not be neglected on the farm. In cleaning harness, the job is better done thoroughly; if only half done, it might almost as well not be done at all.
A crop which averages returns of from $100 to $125 per acre, which is not seriously affected by wet or dry seasons, and which needs replanting only once in five years, should have attracted more attention than it seems to. This is the average return from the peppermint farms of northern Indiana. The fields are started from roots secured from old growers. They are dug, placed in sacks and then transplanted to the new field.
To get at the Brown Tail Moths, the experts advise at this time of year that their winter web should be burned. By burning them now the caterpillars are destroyed before they emerge. It is a very easy matter to burn these webs when found on trees. By such action you may be saving not one, but hundreds of trees.
How many people realize that apples and pears can be grown as dwarf trees which will come into bearing when only two or three years old? Such is the fact, and has been known among horticulturists for a long time. Several of the other fruits can also be dwarfed. Instead of a tree that requires a space, 36 feet by 40 feet, and does not bear any fruit until six to ten years old, you may plant a little apple tree in a space only ten feet by ten feet and begin to get apples from it the second or third year after planting it.
If properly cared for, ducklings are easily raised, and should be full grown at ten to twelve weeks. Their care differs from that of chickens, and the first principles of duck culture should be learned before the hatch is due. If brooders are used, be careful not to over heat them. Also keep brooders very clean, with fresh straw in plenty—they must have dry sleeping quarters.
Soak potatoes to be used for planting for at least two hours in water to which has been added one pound of formalin to each thirty gallons of the water. Something longer soaking will usually do no harm, especially if the potatoes have not begun to sprout. After treatment, cut and plant in the usual way on land free from scab. Land that has grown scabby potatoes or any root crop should be planted to other crops for two or three years before again replanting to potatoes.
We are cowards all. We will strike and inflict pain if we are dead sure the opponent can not possibly strike back, but we politely step back and give consideration when another fellow our size is one of the party. It is so easy to strike a horse, a cow or a hog when we know positively that the animal can not strike back. Usually half a dozen smarting blows are thrown in for good measure after the first one has been struck.
One of the best fields of corn the writer saw last summer was on land fertilized with manure from beef cattle fed on cotton seed meal to balance their corn ration. The owner of the corn field and beef cattle was enthusiastic over the problem of making and using large quantities of manure. He believed, and fully demonstrated his belief that purchasing and feeding concentrates to live stock are a means of making money with the stock and at the same time of materially increasing crop yields of the farm with the manure made by the stock.

The value of the droppings of live stock depends to a great extent upon what the animals eat and how they are bedded. It is said that wheat bran when fed to live stock has a manurial value of about $11 per ton. Clover and alfalfa hay have about the same manurial value as wheat bran, while that of linseed meal and cotton seed meal runs much higher. Some experienced stockmen and farmers claim that the manurial value of cotton seed meal after being eaten and digested by dairy cows or beef animals has a manurial value equal to the common price of the meal.

The Wear in Furs. The durability of furs varies enormously and has little relation to price. For example, ermine and chinchilla, both of which fall in the rare fur class, stand respectively at twenty-five and fifteen in a table where skunk is seventy and beaver ninety. In this table sea otter, with its water hairs, is taken at a hundred. Here is the list in full:
Sea otter 100 Musquash 33
Beaver 90 Gray lamb 29
Sable 75 Nutria 27
Mink 70 Ermine 25
Skunk 70 Lynx 25
Persian lamb 65 Squirrel 25
Baum marten 65 Chinchilla 15
Sable 60 Broadtail 15
Fox, black, silver 40 Caracal kid 10
Stone marten 40 Mole skin 7
Opossum 37 Rabbit 5
The durability of furs is reduced by artificial coloring. The baum marten, which in a natural state stands at sixty-five in the table, is only forty-five after tinting.—London Times.

Restoring Crape. To restore a crape veil place a folded sheet on a table and to it pin the veil carefully and straight; do not stretch it a particle. Dissolve one teaspoonful of granulated sugar in one pint of boiling water; wet a clean cloth with this and lay it lightly on the crape. Have an iron very hot; go over the wet cloth as though ironing it, but do not let the iron touch it; continue until the cloth is nearly dry. Then wet the cloth again and continue the same process until the entire veil has been gone over. The crape will be full of deep crinkles and as crisp as new, no matter how old and flat it was when you began. Small pieces of crape for trimming can be renewed in the same way. The crape should be shaken and brushed to remove all traces of dust before starting the restoring process.—New York Sun.

Not Time In a Mile. A Washington horseman tells of an over-anxious owner and a particularly conscientious rider at a recent meet at Pimlico. The owner had issued full orders as to the way a horse was to be ridden in a certain race. The jockey was a diminutive dandy. The original orders were supplemented by provisions for all manner of emergencies, all of which somewhat bewildered the jockey.
"See heah, boss," he finally said, "dis heah race is only one mile. I can't do all them things you tells in jest one mile."—Exchange.

Games. Games are not meant for idle people who have nothing to do but study them. Their true use is as a relaxation for the man who is doing some serious work in the world and is doing it hard enough to make games the occupation of a holiday and not of his best strength and time.—Elson Young.

Curious Ball Play. A ball club in a regular game made six hits in one inning, one of them a triple, and yet not a single run crossed the plate. This terrific bombardment with freakish result was pulled off in the first inning of the game. The first man to face the pitcher smashed the ball to the corner of the lot for a triple and was thrown out at the plate trying to stretch his hit into a home run. The second batsman swatted a single and, like his predecessor, tried to make an extra base and was heaved out at second. The third batsman and the fourth and fifth also singled, filling the bases. The sixth man at the plate hit the ball between first and second base, and the runner who had been on first was hit by the batted ball, retiring the side without a run scoring.—Chicago Tribune.

Her Game Blocked. The timid looking little woman on the car noticed that her purse was not in her bag, where she had placed it. Instead it was hanging from her arm on a chain—hanging in full view where it would tempt the nimble fingers of the pickpockets assigned to that beat. With great forethought she picked up the purse and started to put it in the bag. But the purse didn't go in, because it was attached to the arm of the persimmony faced woman standing next to her. Of course the woman with the bag stopped right there and dropped the stranger's purse.
"You'd better let that alone," spoke up the persimmony faced woman. "I've been watching you ever since you got on, and you needn't think I didn't see what you were trying to do."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fresh Air. There is throughout the civilized world an increasing knowledge of the value of sunlight and of fresh air. Benjamin Franklin in 1754 wrote: "Physicians have discovered that fresh air is beneficial to those who are ill. Perhaps in 100 years they will find it does not hurt those who are well." It has taken over the century prophesied by Franklin, but at last boards of health, bureaus of charity, trustees of schools, commissions on housing, intelligent bodies in all phases of civic life urge the need of securing all possible sunlight and fresh air.—Exchange.

A DARING PATRIOT
Feats of a Little Known Hero of Revolutionary Times.
JACK JOWETT'S BRAVE RACE.
It Saved Jefferson and the Virginia Assembly From Capture by Tarleton's Dragoons and Gave General Washington Valuable Information.
Most of the Revolutionary heroes have been immortalized in song or story, but there is one whose fame has never spread, as it should, beyond the region of his birth. His name was Jack Jowett. In the little city of Charlottesville, Va., there is a tablet on the building that stands on the site of his old tavern. But that simple bronze is the only memorial of his name and deeds.
In Revolutionary days young Jack Jowett kept the Swan tavern in Charlottesville. He was a patriot at a time when patriotism was dangerous, for Cornwallis was in possession of tide-water Virginia, and Tarleton and his cavalry were sweeping back and forth over the inland counties.
In June, 1781, the Virginia assembly abandoned Richmond, which Cornwallis threatened, and came to sit in Charlottesville. Among its members were such men as Patrick Henry, Richard Henry Lee and Benjamin Harrison, and the governor was no other than Thomas Jefferson. One bright morning when the state assembly was in session Jack mounted his thoroughbred mare and rode out to look over his farm outside the town. As he rode along he caught through the trees a glimpse of a British uniform flashing down a crossroad. He put his horse over the low stone wall and confronted the rider. It was one of Tarleton's troopers.
With a big pistol pointed at his head, the Englishman thought it wise to obey Jack's command to turn in at the gate of a nearby house and change clothing with him. Under threat of death the soldier divulged the fact that Tarleton was in the vicinity. Jowett at once galloped away in search of the enemy. The day passed without result, and Jack stopped at an inn to take a few hours' rest.
In the night he heard the tramp of horses and, looking out of his window, saw that the yard was full of British soldiers, led by Tarleton himself. The troopers entered the tavern and sat down to drink and talk, quite unconscious that an enemy was on the stair above listening to every word. From their conversation Jowett learned that Tarleton commanded an advance guard that was halting to wait for the rest of the troop. Then they planned to dash on to Charlottesville and capture the Virginia assembly.
Jack Jowett set out at once in the cool of the dawn. Once he was chased by some troopers who trotted in from the pike that crossed his path, but his bay mare soon outpaced theirs. Like the wind he raced through lanes, over low stone fences, up the side of the hill to beautiful Monticello, the home of Governor Jefferson. He warned Jefferson of the approach of the British, and then, with a fresh horse, he dashed down the steep mountain road into Charlottesville. Rushing into the hall where the assembly was in session, he called to the members to flee, for Tarleton's dragoons would soon be at their heels. In a few moments the hall was empty, and the members were on their way across the mountains to Staunton, where they would be safe from pursuit.
Jack rode on to his tavern, but found there a wounded officer of the Continental army—General Stevens. He dressed the sick man in a suit of his own clothes, carried him downstairs and put him on the fresh horse, with bags of corn in front and behind—the very picture of an old farmer going to the mill. Side by side Jowett and Stevens rode out of town, which by 10 o'clock was in the possession of Tarleton's men. Pausing as he reached the top of a hill, Jack saw his own tavern in flames.
The British, who had reason to suspect the young man in a uniform, set out in chase of him, but Jack's horse was again too speedy for them, and he got safely away to Washington with the news that Tarleton was no longer acting in support of Cornwallis—a bit of information that was of the greatest value to the commander of the Continental army.
To Jack Jowett's quick wit and daring the author of the Declaration of Independence and many another hardly less famous patriot owed their liberty and perhaps their escape from a traitor's death upon the scaffold.—Youth's Companion.

A Marshal's Retort. It is on record that the Prince of Orange, filled with rage because he had been beaten at Fleurus, Louze, Steinkerke and Neerwindt, alluding to the Marshal of Luxembourg:
"Can it be that I shall never beat that hunchback?"
"How does he know that I am a hunchback?" said the French marshal. "He never saw my back; I always saw his."

Misgivings. "I want to go to my glazier's, only he gives me a pane."
"And I would like to go to my grocer's, but he'll give me a weigh."—Baltimore American.

The senior Senator from Massachusetts ascended another round in the ladder of fame yesterday in his address on the Panama Canal question which is now agitating the entire world. To Henry Cabot Lodge a nation's honor and justice to its 95,000,000 people, in preference to financial gain to a limited few, is larger than any party which has ever existed.

Surprised Explorer.
 An African explorer found a very modern American sewing machine being operated by a woman in a native village in the heart of the dark continent.

Took His Chance.
 "I suppose, my poor man," said the woman missionary, "that you never had a chance." "I certainly had, mum," replied the convict. "I took it, and that's why I'm here."

The Fact Remains

No amount of misrepresentation by the peddlers of alum baking powders, no juggling with chemicals, or pretended analysis, or cooked-up certificates, or falsehoods of any kind, can change the fact that has been found by the official examinations to be of the highest leavening efficiency, free from alum, and of absolute purity and wholesomeness.

Royal Baking Powder is indispensable for making finest and most economical food.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-TWO YEARS AGO.
The East Weymouth Savings Bank has declared a semi-annual dividend of 24 per cent.

The Catholic Fair opens in the Church of the Immaculate Conception next Monday evening, and a fine array of useful and fancy articles will be for sale.

Rev. W. H. Bolster, who has been preaching at this village (South Weymouth) for several months past, and having lately received an unanimous call from the Union church, was publicly installed as pastor of that church on last Wednesday evening.

At the Parish meeting of the second Congregational Society on Monday evening, C. W. Fearing was chosen moderator, and Edward Lewis, parish clerk. The following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year:—prudential committee, Lewis W. Paine, Gilman B. Loud and Henry A. Thomas; treasurer, Francis A. Fearing. The ladies of the society have over $1200 to be used in upholstering the audience room of the church, and this work will begin at an early date.

TWENTY-NINE YEARS AGO.
Work is still in a dull condition.

A car load of gates and hydrants for the water works arrived at this station (East Weymouth) by freight, on Wednesday.

Arrangements are nearly completed towards the formation of a South Eastern Base Ball League, comprising clubs from Fall River, Taunton, Brockton, South Abington, Plymouth, East Weymouth, Quincy and Braintree.

Rev. F. P. Chapin, pastor of the Old North church for the past twelve years, read his letter of resignation of the pastorate last Sunday, deeming it for the interests of the society that there should be a change.

A meeting of the East Weymouth Improvement Association was held in the vestry of the Methodist church on Monday evening last. Besides some unimportant routine business the following vote was passed, which is of interest to all property owners whose premises are not already bordered by shade trees.

It was voted that the committee ascertain the price at which trees of various sizes may be obtained at wholesale; and that the public be notified that anyone desiring trees set along the front of their premises, by simply paying the cost of the trees at the wholesale price, can have them properly set by the Association, without further expense to themselves.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.
At the annual meeting of the East Weymouth Savings Bank Corporation, Z. L. Bicknell was chosen president; vice-presidents, Joseph Totman, N. D. Canterbury; clerk and treasurer, John A. Raymond.

The funeral of the late Benjamin F. Shaw, whose death at the Mass. General Hospital was noted last week, took place from his late residence at Shaw's corner, last Saturday afternoon, Rev. Merrill Blanchard officiating.

On Thursday next, April 18, the new Unitarian church, East Weymouth, will be dedicated for worship. There will be service at 2:30 in the afternoon, at which the Rev. Charles G. Ames, successor to the late James Freeman Clarke, as pastor of the Church of the Disciples, Boston, will preach the sermon.

The Weymouth Improvement Association, President G. E. Porter in the chair, held its annual meeting at Engine hall, Monday evening. The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: president, G. E. Porter; vice do., J. W. Hart, J. F. Dwight, C. P. Hunt, Mrs. A. W. Clapp, Mrs. Francis Ambler and Miss S. A. White.

The annual report of Treasurer Jos. A. Cushing of the M. E. church, for the year ending March 31, 1889, made by him last Sunday, showed the total receipts for the year, including cash on hand March 31, 1888, to have been $8,215.26, and the total disbursements during the year for all purposes to have been $8,155.98, which leaves cash on hand $59.28.

Ought to Paint.

I ought to have painted last year, but I hate to pay $2 a gallon.
I've got to paint this year; I'll take a little more paint; I suppose 1 gallon in 10; and a little more work, I suppose 1 day in 10.
My job would have cost last year about $50; it is going to cost this year $55.
$5 gone! I suppose I'll be the same again if I wait again.
What if paint goes down to $1 75 a gallon? $2 50 on the job!
I shan't wait; what a fool I was!
DEVOE.
Everett Loud, East Weymouth; M. R. Loud & Co., South Weymouth, and A. J. Siddinger, North Weymouth, sell it.

Harp Newton's Gold Mine

Maiden Foils the Plans of a Robber Band

By JAMES A. RELLOCH

Dorine Way stood in the doorway of the schoolhouse and smiled a good night on her scholars as they filed past her into the sunshine of the autumn afternoon.

When the last one had gone Dorine returned to the schoolroom where two boys were sullenly conning their neglected lessons.

Davie Blair and Reddie Conklin were her black sheep, and Dorine often sighed when she thought of them.

Suddenly Davie held up a grimy hand and wriggled impatient fingers. "I will hear your lesson now, Davie," said Miss Way. "You may come, too, Redmond."

When the hastily gabbled recitation was over, the two boys were dismissed. Dorine heard their feet clattering about the bare entry as they found their hats, and Davie's voice arose in eager invitation to his pal:

"Say, Red, wanter come with me? I'll show you where Harp Newton's cached the gold he's been taking out of his mine. I saw him the other day when he didn't know. I'm going to tell my father about it, and—well, all that had used to belong to my father once upon a time and"

"THERE IS ONLY ONE CLAIM AND ONLY ONE MAN!" CRIED SIDNEY.

Davie's persuasive voice died away as the two boys left the schoolhouse, but Dorine could guess the import of Davie's remarks. Davie's parent, Jake Blair, was the bad man of the little western mining town. Yet such a clever bad man was he that he rarely had to pay the penalty of his misdoings. Jake Blair was a desperate character, and there were several killings laid at his door, but not one charge had ever been proved.

That little Davie was no worse than he was seemed a miracle in the eyes of the young schoolteacher. The boy's careless words to his chum, Reddie Conklin, revealed that the father's evil life had influenced that of the son.

Then there were Harp Newton and his little gold mine. Harp was from the east, and his great faith in the barren little claim, which wisecracks declared to have been "salted" by its former owner, was a matter of secret jest among the town loafers.

One would not openly laugh at Harp Newton. He was too big and brawny, and there was a steady glance from his cool gray eyes that could turn aside undue familiarity. He talked about his claim as if he actually expected to take gold out of it, and suddenly within the past few weeks he had grown grim and silent concerning his affairs.

"Getting wise to how he's been stung," remarked Peter Hagen, the proprietor of the corner hotel.

Dorine Way had known Harp Newton ever since she had arrived in Mountain Gap, three months before. He boarded at the same house, Miss Flanagan's select boarding house, and the two young strangers were deeply interested in each other.

Davie Blair's big brother, Sidney, was also interested in the pretty schoolteacher.

Dorine closed her desk and put on her jaunty hat. She picked up her sweater and after locking the schoolhouse door walked slowly down the winding trail that led away from the town. Although it was growing late and the shadows were lengthening, Dorine felt that she must try to locate Harp Newton and tell him that his secret was known to Jake Blair and thus put the young prospector on his guard.

Harp had not been at the boarding house for several days. It was understood that he was camping on his claim for some unexplained reason. Harp Newton's claim was on Eagle Ridge, three miles beyond the town, and Dorine could see the black outline of the ridge against the orange flame of the sunset.

"I must warn him," murmured Dolorine, clenching her hands tightly. "If Jake Blair should surprise him, there might be shooting and he"

Lorine was thinking of Harp all the way to his little camp. There was a sweet, unspoken, half understanding between the young man and the girl, and so precious and airy was the delicate fabric of the dream that each hesitated to shatter it by spoken words.

"I wonder where he is," murmured Dorine to herself when she reached the point in the road where the trail branched off to Eagle ridge.

At that moment a man's tall figure detached itself from the shadowy trees and advanced toward her.

For an instant Dorine thought it was Harp Newton himself, but when the man laughed she recognized the voice of Sidney Blair. Involuntarily she shrank back, for she feared and detested the man.

"Good afternoon, Miss Way," grinned Sidney, sweeping off his wide-brimmed hat. "You're sure going off the trail."

"Good afternoon," returned Dorine quietly. "I am taking a little walk. One gets tired of the main trail."

"One gets tired climbing up Eagle ridge," laughed Sidney insolently.

Dorine flushed angrily. "I should not think that you had occasion to tax your strength in that direction," she said coolly. "I understand that there is only one claim on the ridge."

"There is only one claim and only one man!" cried Sidney hotly. "So I know where you're bound, my pretty girl, but if you value the life of that young—young blockhead you'll keep away from the ridge or I will know the reason why. You may laugh at me, Dorine Way, but if I can't have the girl I want I'll have something—the next best thing is gold and plenty of it!"

Young Blair paused and bit his lip, conscious that he was betraying himself to the schoolteacher. His handsome face was distorted with jealous rage, and his great hands opened and closed nervously.

"Very well," said Dorine quietly, and she turned about and went meekly back along the trail, but as soon as she had turned the corner by the big bowlder, where she was out of sight of the young desperado, she slipped around into the shadow of the undergrowth and crouched there, hidden from view.

It seemed hours to Dorine before she heard voices coming up the trail. The sun had set, and it was dark now, but she had chosen well in hiding behind the big bowlder, for it was at the summit of a long rise of ground, and pedestrians invariably paused there to regain breath after the climb.

The voices came nearer, and finally there came the sound of footsteps that halted beside the big bowlder. Dorine listened keenly, hoping for news that would be of interest to Harp Newton.

She guessed that the Blairs had found out that Harp was getting some gold out of his much ridiculed mine, and the sharp-eyed Davie having discovered Harp's hiding place for his precious find, the news had been passed along to his big brother and his father. Result—the Blairs would possess themselves of the gold if they had to kill Harp Newton in the attempt.

She must save Harp Newton! That was the warning Dorine whispered with stiff lips as she listened behind the big bowlder at the top of the rise. The speakers were Jacob Blair and Sidney, his son.

"The little Davie's keen as a fox," were the first words Dorine heard. "I tell you, Sid, if the lad has put us on to something big it will be one grand thing for the little feller. We'll send him to college, eh?"

"You can try—if he ever gets promoted out of the first reader," sniffed the older brother scornfully. "See here, dad, the kid says Newton's cached his stuff behind the waterfall in the gap. He says there was a lot of it. Shall we take it tonight or wait until he digs out more?"

"Bird in the hand, you know, Sid," cautioned the older man.

"That's right. Then it's tonight?"

"Yes, we can come back about 1 o'clock. Things will be pretty quiet then. If we make good you better get away with the gold and I'll join you later with the kid. Remember, Sid, no gambling with that stuff. If you do!"—Dorine did not hear the rest of the threat, for the men walked on and left her alone there in the darkness with all the horrors of the lonely trail before her.

She shrank from the task, but she loved Harp Newton, and she shuddered at the very thought of what would happen if Sid Blair and his father carried out their evil plans.

Dorine flew down the trail, her stout stick over her shoulder, her sweater buttoned tightly around her so as not to impede her movements. At the branch of the trail she turned and plunged into the darkness of the path that led up to the ridge.

It was rumored that bears had been seen in the ridge woods, and when there came the sound of crashing twigs Dorine's heart stood still, and she clung panting to a young sapling.

"Who is there?" asked a man's deep voice, the voice of Harp Newton.

"Is that you, Harp?" quavered poor Dorine.

"Yes. Is it Dorine?" He was coming toward her gropingly. "Where are you? What are you doing here, child?"

Dorine panted out her story, and Harp's muttered ejaculations revealed the seriousness of the situation. When she had finished he said to her:

"Dorine, you've risked your life to come to me tonight. I've had a surprise for you. I was going to tell you when I came to tell you the story of my love—I have struck it rich on the ridge—richer than I ever dared dream about, and I'm trying to keep the matter secret until a big man from the east, who is interested with me has time to come out and investigate.

"But, child, we're going to be rich—millions, if you please! I've been sneaking the gold behind the waterfall, and now I've got to get it out before the Blairs get here. You must get away—out of the danger zone."

"Can't I stay near by? If anything should happen to you, Harp, some one you love should be there," said Dorine bravely.

Harp held her close to his heart with softly murmured words; then he led her swiftly, silently to a little grotto close to the waterfall. The grotto was screened by clumps of thorny chaparral, which made an effective barrier. The waterfall was opposite the grotto, and Harp told her that he would conceal himself in the cavity behind the waterfall, and from that dripping vantage point he could disable his enemies if they approached. But before doing so he took care to remove the heavy bags of ore from the hiding place and conceal it in a new and safer place known only to himself and Dorine.

Then with a few last instructions to the girl Harp went silently across the moonlit space toward the waterfall. One hour passed, another and still another.

Dorine heard footsteps coming along the trail; they passed up to the crest of the ridge where Harp's camp was situated. It was evident that the marauders were searching for the young prospector.

Then for awhile the silence was broken by the tinkling rush of the waterfall behind whose shimmering veil Harp Newton was hiding with gun in hand.

Again the crackle of twigs, and the tall shadows of two men, stepping cautiously, advanced across the lighted space.

"How in thunder are we to get behind the waterfall?" growled Jake Blair.

"Make a dash for it. It's only a thin sheet of water, and once past it we're safe," retorted Sidney.

Dorine shuddered at the man's words. Safe, when behind that waterfall lurked death!

There was the whispering sound of cautious feet moving through the dead leaves under foot, muttered imprecations from father and son, then a swift rush, drowned by the murmur of the waterfall.

In the moonlight she could see only one form standing on the brink of the stream.

"All right, Sid?" she heard the old man's voice below.

An answering hail came back from the cave behind the waterfall, and a sickening fear rushed over Dorine. If Sidney Blair was safe something had happened to brave Harp Newton, and without Harp Newton life seemed very blank to Dorine Way.

Now there was another splash, and the place before the waterfall was empty. There were subdued sounds of a struggle, muffled shouts and finally silence.

Dorine hid her face in her hands and shuddered.

All at once Harp's voice sounded beside her.

"Come, Dorrie, girl. I've got the two rascals trussed up slick as you please, and I guess it's a job for the sheriff. I'm going to tote that ore away now and send the sheriff down to the waterfall after the Blairs. By tomorrow morning I should hear from Linwood.

"THE DORINE MINE" SAID SHE.

and with everything O. K. the work on the Dorine mine can go on safely and satisfactorily."

"The Dorine mine?" questioned Dorine as they trudged up the trail toward the town, Harp pulling his ore on a drag hastily constructed from saplings.

"After my future wife," smiled Harp, pressing her hand. "And don't make it very far in the future, Dorrie. I'm jealous of all those pupils of yours."

"You mustn't be," began Dorine, and then she cried remorsefully: "Poor little Davie Blair! He has no mother, Harp. What will become of him?"

"I'll take him on at the mine after school hours," said Harp, "and we can find a home for him."

But that was not necessary, for when morning broke the sheriff and his posse discovered that Jacob Blair and his son had vanished from the cave behind the waterfall, and a search of their home revealed the fact that they had taken little Davie along as well as all their valuables.

ORIENTAL CARPETS.

Some of Those Made of Kashmir Wool Strongly Resemble Silk.

Generally speaking, the carpets of India can never excel those of Persia, as the materials used in the former are not of the same superior quality as those employed in the latter country. The wool of which many of the best carpets are manufactured is obtained from Kashmir. Sometimes carpets which are mistaken for silk are really of an extremely fine quality of wool known as "pashm." This is obtained from the goats of Kashmir and grows close to the skin, being protected by the long and coarser wool. It is as smooth and lustrous as silk and is used for the beautiful soft shawls for which Kashmir is famous.

Peculiar methods are employed by the Indian weaver in converting his original design into a textile. Instead of working from a colored drawing or diagram, the weaver has the pattern translated on paper into rows of symbols, each of which expresses the number of stitches and the color. With this written "key" in his hand the head weaver sits behind his subordinates and dictates the pattern to them, one row at a time, all through the breadth of the carpet.

These weavers—generally small boys—sit in front of the warp strings and tie in the requisite number of stitches of each color as called out to them by the reader from his ciphered scrip. These boys, who perform the actual process of weaving the pile, follow day by day the dictations of the head man, knowing nothing of the pattern they are preparing, but gradually building up in a mechanical way the carpet on the strings before them.—Argonaut.

TRIALS OF A PARSON.

Efforts of Some of His Flock to Keep Him Meek and Humble.

Do not be a parson unless you are blessed with a strong sense of humor and a thick hide, advises an English clergyman in Pearson's Weekly.

I was asked by a friend who had been offered a living near me to go and see the vicarage and church and report. I did so, and the clerk showed me round. As we neared the end he turned to me and said:

"Be you our new parson, sir, if I may make so bold?" I assured him that I was not. "I be main glad to hear that, sir," he said, with relief. "We've always had good uns so far!"

In a scattered parish I called upon an old couple about tea time. "Would you like a cup of tea?" the housewife asked. I confessed that I should like it very much. The dear old soul prepared one and kept apologizing because she had no jam or cake. I assured her that it did not matter in the least. "Well, sir," she said, brightening, "after all, tisn't as if you was one of them that feed high. Any one can see that."

One more. A friend of mine had got a job for a man who had been for a long time out of work. I guessed he was getting pretty shabby, so I looked up a suit—we were much of a size—and took it round. The man's wife took it, and I waited in the room, ready to be overwhelmed with thanks. She came back and said:

"My husband thanks you kindly, sir, but he don't hold with parson's clothes. But if you've got anything as 'd suit a man he'll have a look at it!"

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific requirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is—fit for the post?"

"Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can"

"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so. I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

A Football of Fate
It Was Kicked Into Many Holes
By F. A. MITCHEL

Bill Somers was probably as much of a football of fate as any man who ever lived. Bill was kicked all over the world. He began as a cabin boy on a ship fitted out for relief of a north pole expedition and spent some time among the Eskimos. Next he was in the heart of Africa trading in ivory. At twenty-five he had made a lot of money and thought he would stay at home and enjoy himself; but, like Sindbad the Sailor, he soon grew tired of quiet and embarked on another voyage.

He bought a vessel and stocked her with cotton goods, such as are used among the common people of eastern countries with warm climates, and started for Asia, intending to exchange them for silks and other goods used in America, but was wrecked in a typhoon off the coast of Ceylon and had nothing left but the dripping clothes in which he was thrown upon the shore.

We next hear of Bill in Peking, China. He didn't seem to do much planning, or, if he did, fate paid no attention to his plans, but kept on kicking him, and he kept on rolling. Like an ordinary ball, he occasionally got into a hole where it looked as if he would remain and rot. But he was always kicked out and recommenced his bounding and rolling both over the land and the sea.

In Peking he found an old, wheezy steamer of about 200 tons burden that had been worn out tramping over the waters, and he concluded to buy her. Where he got the money does not appear, but the probability is that her owner was so anxious to get her off his hands that he was glad to take Bill's note for the amount of the purchase secured on mortgage. The new owner did what he could by way of repair and started down the Peitang river for the gulf of Pechili.

What Bill was going to do with his steamer doesn't pertain to this story. It wouldn't be interesting to follow his intentions, because he never succeeded in carrying anything out.

Captain Somers on this voyage down the river and across the gulf had with him an English engineer, Tom Hooper by name, and a heathen Chinese deck hand whose name was so unpronounceable that he was obliged to submit to the conventional English name of Charlie. Charlie, like most Chinamen, seemed very stupid, but also, like his countrymen, was very sly. As for the engineer, he was as obstinate as Englishmen usually are and as hard to kill.

Captain Somers and his crew passed out of the gulf between Port Arthur and Tengehau, rounded Shantung and found themselves in the Yellow sea. Quite probably they were going to Japan, but this doesn't matter, for before reaching the coast of Korea Somers got a kick which sent him in another direction.

About noon, when Bill was at the wheel—indeed, Bill was always at the wheel, and Tom was always at the engine—he heard something snap below and a fizzing of steam. Up came Tom, showed his face in the companionway and said that one of the small steam pipes had burst. Meanwhile the propeller ceased to turn, and the boat, the Siren, lay helpless. Why Bill had given her that name is beyond comprehension, for she was the ugliest craft in Chinese waters.

Leaving the tiller, Bill went below with the engineer, and the two stood gazing at the exploded pipe, wondering how they were going to repair it without tools or machinery. Bill had congratulated himself on being able to buy the Siren without a cent of money, but now saw how, after all, the seller had got the better of him.

However, Tom hunted through a box of odds and ends and found a bit of pipe that he thought he could put in its place of the exploded one, and there was a soldering jet aboard. But it was necessary to put out the fires in the furnace before anything could be done. Bill concluded to "dump" the furnace, since it would be easier to light a new fire if freed from the remains of the old one. So they followed this plan, and Tom began work on replacing the broken pipe.

Tom had been working some time. Bill had gone into the furnace, which had cooled sufficiently to admit him to make an inspection. The Siren was drifting. Suddenly Charlie came running down into the furnace room, with his eyes standing out of his face and his complexion the color of clinders. Bill looked out through the open furnace door.

"Cap'n," gasped Charlie, "p'lates!"
"What?"
"P'lates!"
"Git out o' this!" growled Tom. "We're busy."
Charlie wrung his hands and continued to cry "P'lates!"
"I wonder if he doesn't mean p'lates?" cried Bill.
"Yes," cried Charlie, "p'lates!"
Bill sprang out of the furnace box and, followed more slowly by Tom and Charlie, ran up on deck. There, several miles away, was a small craft of a Chinese cut pointing straight for the Siren.

"How do you know she's a pirate?" asked Bill of Charlie.
Charlie could not speak enough English to make a reply, and even if he could have replied he couldn't have explained what he knew simply by intuition or experience.

So many holes had Bill been kicked into that he had become accustomed as soon as he rolled into one to set his thinking apparatus to work to discover how to get out. No sooner was he convinced that Charlie was right than he got down below the gunwale to his eyes and told the others to do the same.

"There's no use in their learning how many of us there are, what is our condition or anything else we can help their knowing till they reach us."
The three men watched the approaching craft, one of them, and one only, Bill, revolving in his brain different plans for escape.

"There's only one hope for us," he said presently. "If we can hide they may think the boat deserted. What they'll do then nobody knows. We'll have to take what comes. Perhaps, not finding anything of value aboard, they'll go away."
"Idel!" exclaimed Tom. "Where hare we goin' to 'ide?"
"There's only one place—the furnace. If they don't look in there we're all right. If they do it's all up with us."

All three, stooping as they went, shuffled down the companionway to the furnace. Charlie pulled open the door and went in first. Tom and Bill stood each waiting for the other. It was not politeness that caused one to defer to the other, but pride. Each wished to be the last to shun the danger.

"Go ahead!" snapped Tom.
Realizing how hard a Briton is to move, Bill yielded. Tom entered last and pulled the door to behind him.
"You lunatic!" exclaimed Bill. "What did you do that for? We're penned in. We can't open the door from the inside."
"But if we'd left the door unlatched they'd 'ave got us," replied Tom.
There was no use arguing the point. If they were not discovered by the pirates they might possibly be boarded by some one who would release them. It was not long before they heard a babel of voices on deck and knew the Siren was being searched for loot. After exploring the upper part of the boat they came down into the engine room. Only Charlie understood what they said, and the others dared not ask him. When the boarders had discussed the matter of finding the Siren deserted they all ran upstairs together.

After awhile a sound was heard that destroyed hope—the sound of an engine boring. The pirates were scuttling the ship.
Whoever was doing the job was some time about it. Gradually the sounds above ceased, and it was evident that most of the pirates had gone, leaving the man below to finish the scuttling. All became still except the sound of the boring.
"Charlie!" said Bill.
"What?"
"You bawl out that one of your heathen gods is in here and if the bloke doesn't light out he'll be struck dead!"
Charlie did as required. The man addressed, as soon as he heard a voice coming from the bowels of the ship, ran upstairs. There he talked excitedly with another man, and the two came part way down to the furnace room and listened. Bill ordered Charlie to repeat what he had said, and Charlie told the listeners that he was the most ferocious of the Chinese gods and if they didn't let him out he would visit them and theirs with fire and sword even to the tenth generation. This produced the effect desired, and the door was opened. Bill sprang out and seized one of the Chinamen, while Tom followed the other nearly to the deck. Both were secured and bound.

The danger now was that the pirates would get tired waiting for the men they had left for the scuttling and return. The auger had been left in the hole it had been making, and there was nothing to fear from that. Bill went up the companionway, keeping out of sight, to reconnoiter. The first thing he saw was a boat the pirates had left for the men who were to scuttle the liner, the second was the pirate craft moving away under full sail, and the third was a Chinese government police boat chasing her.
Bill shouted the good news to Tom and Charlie, who came running up the companionway to see for themselves. Their narrow escape from drowning locked in the furnace room was turned to exhilaration at watching the police boat chase the pirates. The former having nothing but sails to propel her and the latter having steam, the chase was a short one. The police quickly overhauled the outlaws, and as soon as this was done the men on the Siren got out a tattered United States flag and hoisted it, union down, as a signal of distress, whereupon the police boat came up alongside.

The two pirates aboard the Siren were put on the police boat, and the disabled boat was taken in tow. Then all started for Peking. Reaching that city, the outlaws were turned over to the proper authorities, and on the day of their execution the three men who had been locked up in the furnace room went to see the job done.

Somers in narrating the adventure says that it was the worst hole fate ever kicked him into, and he doesn't see how there can be a worse one. When he started from Peking again he had found an opportunity to sell the Siren for a profit, and after paying the price agreed on to the astonished mortgagor he went on rolling down into British territory, where he invested his equity and, striking a good thing, instead of rolling farther, accumulated a small fortune.

A number of the members attended the 35th Annual Convention held in the Shawmut church, Boston last week. Lue Stuart Wadsworth received the endorsement of the convention, her name to be presented at the National Convention as the next Massachusetts candidate for National President. Mrs. Colley lost her hat which was quickly rescued by a gallant young man, and Mrs. Mahoney did not see her watch by the fire alarm. Nina B. Lovejoy, a Past I. and I. Officer, who was present is now very ill with pneumonia. Corps 102 hopes for her speedy recovery.

The following post card showers were voted at the meeting; to Quincy Spear and Mrs. Mary C. Howley, East Weymouth and Mrs. Elinor Burrell, Elizabeth, New Jersey.

D. P. Laura I. Smith has appointed Mrs. Carrie F. Loring as Dept. Inspector. She was formally received at the last meeting and her dear mother, was escorted to a seat of honor beside her. This dear old lady of ninety summers, who has been away all winter, told how glad she was to be "home again." She presented the Corps with a set of table mats made by her own hands, which have lost none of their skill.

The President's report of the convention was enjoyed by all, and she also reported calling on Mrs. Maria Richards, who is in poor health.

WEYMOUTH HIGH WINS.

Opening Game of the Season With Thayer Academy Last Saturday Results In 6 to 0 Victory For Crimson and Gold.

In the opening game of the season, the Weymouth High School nine pinned a shut-out on the Thayer Academy nine of Braintree, last Saturday afternoon, on Garfield Park, Weymouth, by the score of 6 to 0.

The day was better for football than for baseball. However, both teams played fine ball and the wind seemed to bother the spectators more than the players.

The Weymouth High nine got to Hanson for hits when they were needed, while Langford, who was in the box for Weymouth, only allowed five scattered hits and struck out 15 men. Langford's pitching and Capt. Fraher's catching were features for Weymouth, while Gallivan excelled for the visitors. The summary:

Town Business.

At the meeting of the Selectmen on Monday, quite a bit of the time was devoted to listening to the arguments of salesmen of street oil and other devices for laying dust and saving road surface, but no contracts were made and in the mean time the gale was having a merry time with the dust.

J. Q. Hunt was appointed Fire Engineer for Ward 2 and Wallace H. Bicknell for Ward 3.

Mr. Brofy of Simmons Bros., Boston, was given a contract of $3500 of concrete sidewalk work.

The bond of J. H. Stetson for $25,000 as Town Treasurer, was approved with the National Surety Co. of New York as surety.

Russell H. Whiting was authorized to furnish the Town Council, A. P. Worthen, with copies of his work for use in connection with his official duties as Town Council.

Samuel A. Doble was granted permit to move a building from the Abington line on Main street to Pond street, and Henry C. Pratt a permit to hold a dance in the Town Hall.

The Weymouth Light & Power Co. asked for permit to erect 5 poles on Main street, 7 on Phillips street, and 23 on Winter street, and a hearing will be given on the petition at the Selectmen's office, Monday, the 27th.

Mr. Worthen reports a finish to the James J. Naughten case. This is a case in which Mr. Naughten claimed damage to the extent of $1400 for errors in tax titles to lots which he bought at collectors' sales. There were 74 items in Mr. Naughten's claim and it was first tried before Winfield S. Stevens of Newton as commissioner, where 54 of the claims were wiped out, from which Mr. Naughten appealed and took it to Supreme court where 4 more were wiped leaving but 16 out of 74 and an award of $182.61.

The committee of the Board of Trade, appointed to solicit funds to defray the expenses of Weymouth's delegate to the celebration at Weymouth, England, of the departure of Gov. Endicott in 1628, are "on the job" and meet with ready response to their solicitations.

Obituary.

Mrs. Andrew J. Vining.
The friends of Andrew J. Vining of San Francisco, who was a native of South Weymouth, were pained this week to learn of the death of his wife.

Mr. Vining was the son of Martin Vining, and lived during his boyhood on Pleasant street. He served in the army during the Civil war, after which he located in San Francisco, where he has been identified with the best interests of the city and where he has held many of the highest positions of trust in fraternal and civic circles.

The floral tributes at the funeral were profuse and extremely beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held. The services were conducted by the pastor who performed the marriage ceremony just forty years ago. One of the bearers was Mr. James Russell, formerly a resident of South Weymouth.

Miss Nellie A. Grout, Dead.
The news of the death of Miss Nellie A. Grout at the home of her brother in East Bridgewater, last Friday, came as a surprise to her former friends in East Weymouth. Miss Grout was for several years the efficient principal of the Washington school, where she won for herself the esteem and respect of teachers and pupils, for her faithful, earnest work. Funeral services were held Sunday, at her brother's home in East Bridgewater and on Monday at her own home in Hopkinton.

Chambers—Roberts.
A very pretty home wedding took place Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roberts, 116 Hillside street, East Braintree, when their daughter, Miss Sarah Helen Roberts was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Chambers. The parlor was prettily decorated with palms, ferns, flowers and potted plants and the couple stood beneath a large floral bell while the ceremony was performed by Rev. Nelson A. Price, pastor of the Methodist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few friends of the couple.

Miss Louise Locke was bridesmaid and B. E. Killian of Weymouth, best man. The bride wore a handsome costume of white satin and carried a bouquet of brides' roses. The bridesmaid's dress was of pink silk and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. A reception followed the ceremony and was attended by many of the friends of the couple. On their return from the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Chambers will reside in East Braintree.

Elliot Cowdin Lambert, aged 51, the late husband of Annie Thompson Lambert, formerly of Weymouth, passed away at the home of his brother in New York City, last Thursday, where he has been for several months a patient sufferer from cancer of the liver.

Mr. Lambert was superintendent of the Amoskeag Mills in Manchester, N. H. at the time of his death. He was a native of New York, but had passed a large part of his life in Manchester. He graduated from Yale college in '86. It was his ambition to learn the cotton manufacturing business and with this object in view he entered the employ of Amoskeag Mfg. Co. where he has risen until he held the position of head of the cotton department of the great concern.

Mr. Lambert came from a medical family. His father, Edward W. Lambert was a physician of national repute. His three brothers, Dr. Samuel, Dr. Alexander and Dr. Adrian, are all well-known medical men.

Mr. Lambert is survived by the widow, who formerly was Miss Annie M. Thompson of Weymouth and to whom he was married eighteen years ago, also two children, Mary and Edward.

Mr. Lambert was a member of the Manchester school board. He served as a member for several terms and for a time was clerk. He was also a representative in the general court for several sessions.

Early in January, Mr. Lambert's condition became so serious that it was deemed advisable for him to go to New York, which he did, undergoing an operation at the hospital there, from which he rallied so as to be up and about, walking and driving, and it was anticipated that he would return home by the first of April.

Mr. Lambert undoubtedly knew for a long time that a fatal disease was upon him, but he never lost hope, nor did he ever wear an air of gloom or despondency. In the legislature, as a member of the fish and game committee, he was unremitting and enthusiastic in his endeavours to improve the conditions of New Hampshire.

Mr. Lambert was very fond of society, possessed a polished personality, a genial temperament and affable and kindly manners. He brought to Manchester eighteen years ago, a wife, who made a delightful acquisition to Manchester's society, and who quickly took a prominent place in assisting at various functions, both public and private.

All the Difference.

CLEANINGS ON BEACON HILL

Big Problems Interwoven With Capital and Labor

THE QUESTION OF ELECTIONS

Strong Movement Against Initiative and Referendum—Contention Over Draconic Taxing Policy—Important Questions Put Up to Supreme Court—Drunkness as a Disease

Seven big problems are looming up before the legislature out of the chaff of about 3000 petitions. These problems can be clearly outlined now as the two branches plunge into the last half of the session.

These problems may be briefly stated as relating to election changes, taxation reform, drunkness, immigration, pensions, railroads and health. All in one way or another affect the ever present problem of labor and capital and are in some manner or another phases of it.

Elections

The question of elections is sharply brought out by the presence of two measures. One is for biennial elections and the other is for the initiative and referendum. A third less important one is the bill wiping out party enrollment at primaries.

There is a good deal of a puzzle of the initiative and referendum. Several measures were heard before the committee on constitutional amendments, but there seems to be a general idea that Senator Clarence Hobbs is going to draft the measure. Inasmuch as he is not partial to the principle of it, there may be some difficulty in getting the bill out.

It appears that there is a strong movement being organized throughout the state against the initiative and referendum, because letters against it are literally pouring in upon senators and representatives. It is said that Joseph Walker of Brookline has the text of a new measure which he will have in the hands of Senator Hobbs within a very few days, so as to relieve that senator of trying to draw a bill that he doesn't believe in. It is expected that the committee on constitutional amendments will report the resolve.

It will provide in substance that upon petition of a large number of voters a law may be placed before the people for acceptance if the legislature declines to enact it.

Taxation Policies

There are now two clearly defined taxation schools before the legislature. One is that sharp enforcement laws should be enacted, giving the tax commissioner sweeping power in the assessment of taxes. To this school the governor belongs and he says that if such laws are not passed it may be impossible to bring people to a realization of the necessity of a constitutional convention or a constitutional amendment providing for a low rate of taxes upon securities. Such securities are now taxed in home cases for one-half the income they yield and the result is that for many years a goodly part of them have escaped taxation altogether.

The other school contends that a drastic taxing power is given to a central authority it will surely drive the last of intangible personality out of the state altogether.

The first is the view of the central taxing authorities. The second view is the one nominally held by assessors. Most of the members of both schools are willing to see a change in the constitution providing for lower taxes on intangible property.

To the Court Again

The principle tax business of the legislature this week is with the questions which are again going to be put up to the supreme court asking if lower taxes cannot in some instances be levied without the constitutional amendment.

Governor Walsh has explained that he has good legal opinion that there is a chance of getting these questions answered affirmatively by the supreme court, although years ago similar questions were answered in the negative.

But the questions are now drawn upon the comments of members of the court upon the old questions. The answers are expected back from the court in the course of three weeks.

Penalties

Meanwhile the committee on taxation has under consideration the recommendation of the governor that there be passed an act compelling property owners to make a sworn return under heavy penalties, the recommendation that there be an affidavit of the selling price in deeds of real estate and one or two others.

One measure from the tax commissioner which has been reported favorably gives the tax commissioner the right to examine persons under oath as to the amount of property in the estates of decedents. Another measure, which would give the same commissioner the right to revalue estates, in other words to act as assessor in each case where he might find the assessor has not valued them high enough, has been reported adversely.

It may be said that the history of tax enforcement favors the view of the town or city assessors rather than of the governor, inasmuch as drastic enforcement in Ohio and in portions of Massachusetts has usually resulted in driving the property away.

Drunkness

The drunkness problem takes the state far away from its policy of centuries. It proposes to regard drunkness no longer as a crime but as a disease. Therefore there would no longer be any arrests for drunkness. Instead there would be tribunals to study the cases brought before them and determine whether the patient should not be sent to an institution.

In connection with this there is proposed a new hospital for delirium tremens in Boston, which the experts say is highly necessary.

Judge Murray of the Boston municipal court is a hard worker in the reform of the drunkness laws, and he is confident that if the legislature does not put through the whole body of laws this year, that it must in the near future do so.

Immigration

The problem of the handling of immigrants is still in the hands of Senator Bazely's committee on immigration. The principal feature of the commission's report is the establishment of a permanent immigration commission, or board, which shall have rather a free hand in the care of immigrants.

One of the principal difficulties under the present lack of laws is the advantage taken of immigrants by unscrupulous promoters who sell newly arrived immigrants worthless securities.

But such a permanent board would not stop here. It would inquire into the habits of foreign workmen, their homes and the health conditions under which they live, and the education of them and their children, with particular emphasis upon the instruction which shall be given in the customs and ideals of American citizenship.

In the big volume which is just out upon the subject an interesting diagram is printed showing the increase of foreign-born residents of the state since 1870. Then it was about one-third the population of the state. In 1880 it was one-half. Now it is considerably more than one-half.

The days of the Puritan control of the state passed long ago.

Pensions

The outlook is not too promising for any pension legislation this year. The trouble is really that the pension commission, which undertook to introduce reforms, proposed too sweeping a change.

The attempt has been made to put the entire pension system upon a contributory plan. That includes the present non-contributory classes as well as the present contributory classes. The only class exempt was the supreme court judges, and it was found to be unconstitutional to put them under the new plan.

The police are making war against the pension plan, because they say that it places the old men at a decided disadvantage in respect to their present condition.

Hearings are now being opened upon the matter and James McConnell, the Boston attorney, who was chairman of the commission, is going over the new plan in detail.

Railroads

The feverish anxiety over the future of the Boston and Maine is just beginning to creep over the railroad men in the legislature. Robert Washburn is not satisfied with the board of trustees proposed for the Boston and Maine, which trustees are to hold the stock of the Boston and Maine now held by the Boston Railroad Holding company. His choice would be Ex-Mayor Logan of Worcester and Public Service Commissioner Anderson, whom he calls "Bolls" for a pet name. This is about the only humor in the entire situation.

It is as yet uncertain whether the trustees may hold the stock without an enabling act of the legislature, but it is generally held that such an act will be necessary and one is being framed in consultations with the railroad attorneys and the committee on railroads.

The possibility of a receivership for the Boston and Maine is much talked of, and it may be that no attempt will be made to have the enabling act passed until this possibility is eliminated.

Health

The health situation centres around the proposed reorganization of the state board of health, for which a plan is being formulated by the governor, United States Surgeon General Kerr and the members of the health committee.

But an agreement among those who are planning to reorganize does not mean the passage of the bill by any means, because the friends of the present board of health must be satisfied that no injustice is done to Dr. Walcott, who, for many years, has been at the head of the board.

This is a ticklish matter and a hair might upset all the plans. The present board is unpaid, and the first principal of reorganization is the creation of an unpaid board.

WEST POINT DISCIPLINE.
Its System of Demerits and the Sunday Morning Services.
The rigor of discipline at West Point does not leave behind many memories of hazy college days. There are no week end larks, for, constantly under the surveillance of the officers, the cadets are never permitted to leave except under military orders. If they ride to the adjoining town, Highland Falls, they must not dismount or let their feet touch any soil outside the reservation.
How severe the system of regulating the standard of the several cadets is may be learned from the fact that some 18,000 acts of each appointee are "marked" during his four years' course, any one of which must be passed as good or given one or more demerits. "Late at roll call" incurs one demerit; "absence from duty," ten marks; "slight untidiness in dress," one; "inattention at drill or other duty," five, and so on. If in six months out of some 2,000 events a hundred demerits accumulate the unfortunate student is dismissed from the academy.
At half past 10 every Sunday morning the cadets gather in front of the stone barracks, as trimly kept as any Fifth Avenue mansion, and form in line, with faultless uniforms, natty white belts and sash, and march up the hill to the chapel service. It is something of a walk, as some of the puffing visitors observed on reaching the summit terrace. Silently and in perfect time and order the cadets change formation and file into the chapel under rows of historical regimental banners, some of which had seen service nearly a century ago. Some of the old stands of colors were threadbare, but the field of blue always remained with its story of a nation's development, bearing constellations of from thirteen to forty-eight stars in their imperishable fields of blue.
The cadet choir marches down the aisle singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and the ringing voices of those 500 cadets once heard can never be forgotten. The finale, the Dresden hymn, as sung by the West Point choir is an event that musicians from all parts of the world come to hear. The services throughout were impressive and conducted with military precision.—National Magazine.
Love in a Hickory-nut.
A hickory-nut is named, then cracked. If the kernel is withered, love has grown cold; if it is broken, the loved one is untrue; if it comes out whole, all is well.
Modesty.

ON THE FARM
Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.
Broody hens should be moved to the permanent sitting nest at night.
Rubbish and brush in the orchard yet? Gather and burn at once, and thus destroy harboring places of insect, fungi and other pests.
Profitable farming and gardening calls for more thought put into the business, but it also calls for considerable labor, and that given at the right time.
Asparagus is one of the best single crops one can grow requiring only a full appreciation of demands as well as difficulties. Once properly set and cared for it is good for 20 years. Rhubarb, if liberally fed, should give a gross return of $500 to $600 per acre yearly.
Fill a medium sized sprinkling can with water, add three or four spoonfuls of kerosene and two spoonfuls of kero-sene. As soon as the insects begin their work on the rose bushes, stir mixture well and sprinkle bushes.
While the immediate result of transplanting is always to check growth, the ultimate results of proper and careful transplanting are usually beneficial. It makes possible better care of the plants while young; a more compact and better branched root system is developed.
Dairying has made Wisconsin farmers rich and famous. They are the leaders in the production of milk, cream, butter and cheese. Their dairy cattle now total more than a million and a half. The total cash sales from these good cows, including the sale of breeding stock, run up to more than $1,000,000,000 a year.
When judging the capacity of a cow it is important to notice the efficiency of her digestive organs by studying her handling qualities, see whether her hide is soft, pliable, of medium thickness, and covered with a soft, silky coat of hair, which indicates that the organs of digestion are in perfect working order.
There are several ways of eradicating weeds from our fields. The chief methods are: Good rotation of crops, clean tillage, cleaning up waste places on the farm, and planting clean seed, and the greatest of these is planting only clean seed. Home grown seed is generally the best and the most economical to plant.
When a branch is removed the cut should be made smooth and as close to the axis of support as possible. Never leave a stub, no matter if it is only a half of an inch long. A shade tree is so valuable that it is entitled to a careful pruning. Do the work correctly, even if it takes a little longer time.
For fodder or silage, corn may be planted rather close, but for grain make the planting far apart in the row, or only a few stalks to the hill where the field is check-rowed. Every year corn yields prove disappointing because the corn plants stand too thickly in the rows. Give space and get big ears.
There is no question that there is less infectious material outside the barn than within it. When we stop to consider therefore, the highly stimulated resistance on the one hand and the less exposure to infection that there is in the open air on the other, can we avoid the conclusion that our animals, and particularly our young animals, are safer in the open air than they are in the barn?
The first step in planting the new corn crop well, before a furrow is plowed, is to secure good seed. Good seed to plant must be good seed for perfection and grain from the show point of view, and it must be more than this. It must be seed grown in your own immediate neighborhood, or at least not far away. Corn is unlike some other seeds in this respect; it will never do its best until it becomes acclimated.
Much is being said at the present time about intensive farming. The farm vegetable garden, if properly handled through all the growing season, is a good example of intensive farming on a small scale. Counting the average low selling price of vegetables on the home market, it is easily possible to make the garden yield a gross profit of from $200 to $500 per acre.
From the fact that the garden soil grows weeds so well is a good indication that it will grow large crops of useful vegetables and fruits. Weeds will rob the soil more than good crops. In spring in ordering seeds and planning the garden, plans should be made for a full succession of crops from the earliest spring till the last growing weeks of autumn. It is economy in every way to keep the soil producing, every square rod of it, all through the growing months.

HYPOCRISY IN LARGE PACKAGES Stole Livery of Heaven to Serve Devil In.
HYPOCRITE IS EVERYWHERE.

Man Loves Gold and Hates to Be Imposed Upon by Counterfeits—Goods Shipped in Plain Packages—Many Local Merchants Deficient in Knowledge of Advertising.
[Copyrighted, 1914, by Thomas J. Sullivan.]
The first hypocrite was the man who stole the livery of the court of heaven to serve the devil in.
Some people speak as if hypocrites were confined only to religion, but they are everywhere, people pretending to wealth when they have not a sixpence, assuming knowledge of which they are ignorant, shamming a culture they are far removed from, adopting opinions they do not hold and pretending honest business roles which are far from the legitimate.
As a man loves gold, in that proportion he hates to be imposed upon by counterfeits, and in proportion as a man has regard for that which is above price and better than gold he abhors that hypocrisy which is but its counterfeit.
Lying before the writer is the acme of hypocrisy. It is a catalogue of one of those mail order houses, and on one page three sewing machines are advertised. The first is declared to be the "most perfect sewing machine on the market," the second is said to have "more good sensible ideas than any other," while the third is praised as being "the most superior sewing machine on the market."
Now, which of these machines really is the best? Which of them is as good as the one your retailer sells and guarantees? Can any reader of the above triumvirate of ads. tell? Most assuredly not.
The lesson should be plain to all who receive these catalogues. They contain glowing descriptions of goods, but the senders of money do not know what they are going to get for their money when they send it to a mail order house.
Goods in Plain Packages.
Were it not so serious it would be amusing to read some of the smooth arguments the catalogue houses advance to their readers in an effort to induce them to send in orders. They say that goods are sent in plain packages because many merchants who buy of them to sell again object to having their name appear on the boxes. We know we are safe in saying there is not one single merchant in the whole United States who ever ordered any goods from these concerns. The statement is made in an effort to make the consumer believe that he can buy as cheaply as his local merchant can.
But printed matter that will sell goods is within the power of almost any local retailer. Most all the expert advice is little more than empty generalizing about nonessentials. It is not literature, remember, but advertising, that you want to write. Knowledge of words and type and the ability to write fine introductory paragraphs and striking headings are not to be despised, of course, but the facts, not fancy ways of saying them, are what induce the people to spend their money in the local stores.
The merchant's knowledge of his store, his goods and the people is more than an offset for any lack of ability to coin catchy phrases or to use technical language in telling the printer how he would like to have his advertising look.
When the merchant sits down to write his ad. he should imagine that his hardest customer to sell to is seated on the other side of his desk. He should write what his talk would be if he were determined to make a sale to that customer when in the most obstinate of moods. He should write it all down, then lock it in his desk for a few hours, later cut out all the superfluous words and print the facts without any trimmings.
Personality Brings Trade.
The nearer the local merchant can come to making his advertising sound like his talk the more effective it will be. Personality is what brings and holds trade; personality secures to your competitor trade likewise difficult to wean away from him.
The modern retail merchant must make sure that his displays in his windows and in the store itself are such as will interest women. A general variety ought to be shown, with prices clearly indicated in plain figures. Make inspection easy and then let shoppers inspect undisturbed, for in this manner many new wants will be developed in the minds of the shoppers. The merchant or salesman who stands over a shopper and attempts to press a sale invariably annoys the customer and hastens his or her departure.
The merchant who has not advanced with the times must come to a full realization at once that many changes are necessary before he can hope to compete resultfully with retail mail order houses, and the first and principal change is the manner in which his stock is displayed, and in the process of this arrangement he must take into consideration the fact that men have almost completely ceased to figure in the day to day purchases of household necessities.

LINCOLN'S STATEROOM.
The President Thought He Had Shrunk in Size Overnight.
In "The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln" Mr. F. E. Browne includes an amusing anecdote told by Admiral Porter about the president's short visit to the front in the latter part of March, 1865. Mr. Lincoln had changed his quarters from the River Queen to the Malvern, Admiral Porter's flagship, which was then lying in the James river, near City Point. Admiral Porter says:
The Malvern was a small vessel with very poor cabin accommodations and was not at all fitted to receive high personages. She was a captured block ade runner. I offered the president my bed, but he positively declined it and chose to sleep in a small stateroom outside the cabin that my secretary occupied. It was only 6 feet long by 4 1/2 feet wide, a very tiny place to hold the president of the United States, but Mr. Lincoln seemed pleased with it.
When he came to breakfast the next morning I asked how he had slept. "I slept well," he answered, "but you can't put a long sword in a short scabbard. I was too long for that berth." Then I remembered that he was over six feet four inches and that the berth was only six feet! That day while we were away from the ship all the carpenters were put to work. They took down the stateroom partitions and enlarged the room to eight feet by six and a half feet. A mattress four feet wide was put in the new berth.
Nothing was said to the president about the change in his quarters, but the next morning he came out of the room smiling and said, "A miracle happened last night. I shrank six inches in length and about a foot sideways. I got somebody else's big pillow and slept in a better bed than I had on the River Queen." He enjoyed it greatly, but I think if I had given him two fence rails to sleep on he would not have found fault. That was Abraham Lincoln in all things that related to his own comfort. He would never let you put yourself out for him under any circumstances.

A NAVAL COMEDY.
Surrender of the Spanish Gunboat Calao at Manila.
On the afternoon of the 12th (May 12, 1898) a small Spanish gunboat came steaming up Manila bay, directly toward the American fleet. The surprise of the people in the fleet was great; this little vessel seemed so confident and friendly. Finally one of our ships fired a shot across her bow. This did not seem to make any difference to her, for she kept on just the same. Then we saw an officer go alongside from the flagship.
We found out that evening that this vessel was the Spanish gunboat Calao and that she had been cruising in the southern part of the Philippines for a long time and had not heard about the war, and, the time of her cruise being finished, she was now returning to Manila. The officers and men had been looking forward to this for a long time, because in Manila they were to find their wives, children, parents, friends, theaters, clubs, hotels, newspapers and all the things that make sailors look forward with happiness to getting home. They saw a great many ships in the harbor flying the American flag, but this did not give them any uneasiness, and when the first gun was fired by the American ship they did not notice that the shot came across the bow of their own ship, and thought it was simply the first gun of some salute.
But when the second shot was fired and they heard the whizzing of the shell they knew something was wrong. And when the American officer came on board and told them that every ship in the fleet was destroyed and that they themselves were prisoners of war their feelings of joyful hope went through a change that, let us hope, few of us will ever know.—From Admiral Bradley A. Fiske's "War Time in Manila."
Microscopic Engraving.
Perhaps the greatest feat of microscopic engraving was accomplished by a Jewish farmer in Alberta, who prepared an address of welcome to the Duke of Connaught. The address was inscribed in Hebrew on a grain of wheat and contained no fewer than 300 letters. So fine was the lettering that a microscope was necessary to read the inscription with any ease.—Liverpool Post.

AND TRANSCRIPT

FRIDAY, APRIL 17, 1914

The crisis in Mexico which was expected this week, has rolled away. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Huerta will exchange salutes to the flags of their respective nations and the people will wait a few days for the next episode.

W. R. C. Celebrates Patriots' Day.

A beautiful supper was served in the lower G. A. R. Hall on Tuesday, April 14th, at six-thirty o'clock by the following committee: Mrs. Caroline Sewall, Mrs. Myra Nadell, Mrs. Della Caulfield, Mrs. Grace Abbott, Mrs. Eunice Rowell, Mrs. Emma Lord, Mrs. Sarah White and Miss Sarah Cushing. Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts, Ernest Vaughan, scoutmaster were guests, a delegation from the G. A. R. under Com. Culley, and also several guests from out of town.

At the close of the banquet a pleasing program which had been arranged by the P. I. Mrs. Margaret Culley, was carried out. A piano duet was the first number by Edna White and Helen Bates, solo dances by Helen Linneman, a graceful little miss of twelve; Grace Gooding, a talented member of Tent No. 32 gave vocal selections, which were well received, and Edna Newcomb also sang. At this time Mrs. Culley turned over to the president for further presentation, a beautiful bunting flag, which the president gave into the hands of the scoutmaster with appropriate remarks. He assured the Corps that the troop appreciated the kindness of all, and their three cheers and rousing "tiger" were proof. The entire company sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

The following squads gave a demonstration of the work they do in connection with their slogan "Be Prepared." Rescue drill, Scouts Allison, Glover, Barrie, Newcomb, Harlow and Richards. Resuscitation drill, Scouts Barrie and Dutton. Stretcher drill, Scouts Lewis, Lord, Glover and Barrie. Truly the "boy of today is the man of tomorrow." One verse of "America" sung by the audience closed a very pleasing evening.

High School Notes.

There will be no school on Monday, the day set aside for the celebration of Patriots' Day. When the scholars return to school, they will be confronted by "exams." Of course most of them will spend all day Monday in preparing for the tests. In this column, several weeks ago, the name of Miss Margaret Reidy was omitted from the Board of Editors of the School paper. Miss Reidy holds the double honor of being an associate editor and the valedictorian of her class at the same time.

A debate between the two English divisions of the Junior class, on the exemption of American coastwise shipping through the Panama Canal, will be held immediately after "exams."

The picture of the entire school was taken on Monday, on the lawn in front of the school.

For the first time in its history, a fire drill was practiced in the school on Monday.

At the last meeting of the recently formed "W" club, Leo Fraher was elected president, and Harold Gloster secretary-treasurer. There are about twenty-five members so far, only those who have earned their "W" at some sport being eligible to join.

The members of the Senior German class gave a party to the members of the Junior German class on Wednesday. The affair was enjoyed by both classes, especially the boys of the Senior "Germans."

At South Boston today the second baseball game of the season will be played. A practice game with the Carmen is being arranged and may come off some time next week. Reginald Bates and Clarke Page have been appointed assistant managers of the team.

Paint Nov.

If you ought to have painted last year and waited, how much do you think you made?

You'll buy an extra gallon this year. There's $5 or $6 for paint and labor. You think you won't, but you will; you can't stretch paint.

It is always so: the longer you wait, the more paint and wages. Besides what paint is for. What is it for?

WHITCOMB'S

Union Literary Circle.

The Union Literary circle met at the home of Miss Jessie MacGregor, Tuesday evening, April 14th. As this was the annual business meeting, the circle was called to order by the president, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, Rev. Wm. Hyde; vice-president, Miss Arvella Smith; secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucy M. Crane. The appointment of committees was left to the president.

After some discussion it was thought best to change the date of the closing social to the 12th of May instead of the scheduled date, May 26th. This closed the business meeting and the circle turned its attention to the principal matter of the evening, "Primeval Astronomy." Mr. Hyde, who has made a study of the subject, gave the results of that study, showing that from the beginning of history, all nations have used the same signs to designate the stars, borrowing the one from the other, until the earliest of all where they are traced to the heavens themselves, and were thus placed by the Hebrew people as prophecies of the coming Redeemer.

The next meeting of the circle will be held with Mrs. H. C. Newman, Tuesday evening, April 28th. Subject, "Russian Art and Music," by Mrs. R. L. Hunt.

OLD JAPANESE ART

Swords of Perfumed Steel That Cannot Now Be Made.

MARVEL OF A CRYSTAL BALL

Rubbed Into a Perfect Sphere by Hand. It Would Be Difficult to Duplicate It With Modern Machinery—Legend of the Secret of a Swordmaker.

Steel made more than 800 years ago, with a sweet odor put in so that the metal still retains the scent—that is one of the secrets of an old Japanese sword maker described by Reginald F. St. Pere Valle of London.

Mr. Valle actually owned a sword of scented steel one time, but it was stolen from the office of his lawyer several years ago.

"The perfume was delicate and pleasing," he said. "It is not the only sword of the kind in the world.

"The scent is actually a part of the steel. The sword was incased in a wood sheath, which gave forth no odor.

"I entertained a group of Sheffield steel men at my home several years ago and just as a surprise for them I had the sword on the table.

Playing cards in their make-up are akin to the calendar. The two colors are red and black, which answer to the equinoxes.

"Steelmakers," I said. "There is some real art in making steel; let us see you equal that." They could not, of course.

Mr. Valle said that there are hundreds of mechanical tricks of the Japanese artisans of hundreds of years ago which have been lost.

"I have in my home a crystal ball six inches in diameter," he said. "It is as round as a billiard ball; it will stand any test for roundness.

He told of one cabinet started by one man for the prince who employed him but who failed to finish it. He died and the prince died.

"There was one swordmaker who had the trick of making a dagger with a very hard steel point, which gradually grew softer toward the handle.

"The secret lay in the temperature of the water he put it in after heating it. No one could discover how hot the water was or how long he kept the mass in the water.

"He had several young men working for him, and one of these men, a trickster, was anxious to learn the secret.

"The old man wheeled and struck out with his sword. He cut so quickly that he severed the young man's arm before the young man's nerves could convey any idea of the temperature of the water to his brain—or so they say.

One of the old swordmakers had the peculiar knack of making swords which, of themselves, continually searched for trouble.

"One of my friends bought this sword," said Mr. Valle. "He was explaining its peculiar nature to some of us. One of the men laughed at the superstition.

TAMED THE PIANO.

An Unmusical Variation in One of Gottschalk's Concerts.

Gottschalk, the pianist, was noted for his enormous physical strength almost as much as for his brilliance as a pianist.

He was in concert playing on a piano that was built on a new model, one of the peculiarities of which was that the tip of the keyboard cover projected farther over the keys than in most pianos.

This repeated rapping of his knuckles at last began to have an irritating effect on him, as the audience could plainly see.

The reason for this is that at 2,000 miles from the center the body is on the surface of a sphere of 2,000 miles radius.

What causes weight is the mass of matter combined with distance from the center. A globe of 2,000 miles radius contains one-eighth as much matter as a globe of 4,000 miles radius.

Now, suppose we drop this body to the very center of the earth and see what it would weigh. All the matter of the earth is now outside it and can exercise no attraction whatever upon it.

DISCIPLINE AT SEA.

Penalties and Privileges Aboard Ship in Former Days.

Some remarkable advice to seafarers is given in an old Portuguese book published for the guidance of mariners.

The ship's clerk, a privileged person who acted as bookkeeper, purser and cargo master, was liable to be branded in the forehead, to lose his right hand and to forfeit all of his property if he made a wrong entry in the ship's book.

WEIGHT OF A BODY.

How It Decreases as It Goes Above or Below the Earth's Surface.

Everybody weighs more at the surface of the earth than it can at any other point. Its weight diminishes as it is removed above the surface or below it.

Thus a body weighing 100 pounds at the surface of the earth, which is approximately 4,000 miles from the center, would weigh only twenty-five pounds at a point 4,000 miles high.

If we drop the same body half the distance to the center of the earth or to a point approximately 2,000 miles below the surface it will weigh fifty pounds.

The reason for this is that at 2,000 miles from the center the body is on the surface of a sphere of 2,000 miles radius.

Why he does this is plain. He knows very well that it would be useless to plant good seed in wornout soil. It's his wish and intention to make a profit on his investment in seed and labor as well as in soil, and this, of course, could not be accomplished if the soil were not fruitful.

Bleeding Home Communities.

Today there are hundreds of thousands of American citizens who are bleeding their home communities by taking out of the channels of local trade the money needed to transact business and sending it to dealers who do not and who cannot by any possible means return it to do its proper and necessary work in local business circles.

The big city mail order houses that sell goods at retail through the medium of catalogues to farmers and others all over the country buy nothing from their customers. They invariably exchange goods for money, never money for goods.

These are all plain and evident truths, are they not? We would ask this very same farmer, who would be insulted were he charged with neglecting to keep his soil enriched to the highest possible degree.

Farmer Planted in Community. The farmer plants seed in the soil, and in order to produce results he must keep that soil fertilized.

Literary and Musical Pillage.

Bernard Shaw's defense of literary "pillage" was anticipated by his fellow countryman, Balfe, the composer of "The Bohemian Girl," who used to borrow generously from other people's scores.

A Japanese and His Wife. A lady residing in Pasadena was recently asked by her Japanese gardener for the three d'ya's wages due him.

TWO WELL KNOWN UNPOPULAR MEN

The Soil Robber and the Community Robber.

SOME FARMERS ROB LAND.

Which is the Greater Robber, the Farmer Who Robs His Soil or the Man Who Robs the Community?—A Glorious American Privilege—Time to Pause and Consider.

There are many and various kinds of robbers loose today in this land of plenty, but perhaps the two most unpopular of them are the soil robber and the community robber—the farmer who robs his land of its producing strength and the consumer who robs his community of its dollars.

The high grade, successful farmer is the one who increases rather than diminishes the fertility of his land. Every year he changes his crop with that one object in view. He subscribes for and reads very carefully the agricultural reports, paying particular attention to the reports on experiments made by advanced and progressive farmers.

Why he does this is plain. He knows very well that it would be useless to plant good seed in wornout soil. It's his wish and intention to make a profit on his investment in seed and labor as well as in soil, and this, of course, could not be accomplished if the soil were not fruitful.

Pause and Consider.

The parallel drawn between the two cases has a tendency to give the community robber a chance to pause and consider.

He should give the matter very serious attention and thought and endeavor to figure out a method by which he can increase its wealth, just as the honest farmer increases the richness and productiveness of his soil.

Pause and Consider.

He should give the matter very serious attention and thought and endeavor to figure out a method by which he can increase its wealth, just as the honest farmer increases the richness and productiveness of his soil.

In this way only can a large and substantial community be attained.

FOILED THE MAJOR

He Had to Flee at the Last Battle of the Revolution.

A FIGHT WON WITH A BROOM.

The Engagement Was Short, Sharp and Decisive, and in It the Patriot Spitfire, Mistress Day, Earned the Right to Her Title and to Fame.

The last battle of the Revolution was not at Yorktown, nor was it any of the many small skirmishes that occurred after the surrender of Cornwallis and before the formal declaration of peace in 1783. The last battle was of the nature of a duel, and it happened on the day the British evacuated New York.

The great day that was to see the last of King George III.'s regiments leave these shores finally arrived. The British army was to board the ships that lay in the harbor. Washington and his troops were waiting at Kingsbridge and McGowan's pass to take possession of the city immediately on their departure.

Major William Cunningham, the British provost marshal and commander of the prison on the common, gave one last look about his office, tossed the key on the table and went out into the sunlight, slamming the door behind him with much unnecessary violence. His infamous reign was over. There were few forms of cruelty that he had hesitated to practice on the luckless Continental prisoners in his charge. Among the mildest were the contamination of their drinking water by throwing rubbish into the well and the appropriation and sale of their rations for his own profit.

The friends and relatives of his victims were flocking back to the city triumphant, and it behooved Major Cunningham not to linger. So he left the prison, turned into the common, and crossed it to gain Broadway. He strode along muttering curses under his breath. At the corner of Broadway and Murray street something caught his eye. He stopped, hesitated, then turned aside and hastened down Murray street.

"What audacity! What monstrous audacity!" he thought. But it was like that rebel spitfire, Mistress Day. He would teach her one final lesson.

He reached the Day house, which was a tavern near Greenwich street, opened the gate and shook his fist at the Stars and Stripes that fluttered from a tall flagpole, as if waving a triumphant welcome to the Continental troops.

Wrathfully he seized the halyards and began to pull the flag down the pole. There was something about the action that soothed his ruffled feelings. He would at least take back to England with him one captured rebel banner. But he had reckoned without Mistress Day!

From her kitchen that patriotic woman heard the creaking of the pulley on her flagstaff. She tiptoed to her front windows and peeped out. She knew the major only too well, and she determined to prevent this final outrage. She flew back to the kitchen and seized her broom.

In the meantime, with his back to the house, the major was hauling away vigorously. A few more jerks and the flag would be within his grasp. Bang! His hat suddenly flew off and went scuttling down the yard. In his astonishment he continued to pull mechanically on the halyards. Bang, whack! The major saw many times more than thirteen stars, and the powder flew from his wig in all directions. He dropped the rope and turned about, purple with indignation.

"Woman, do you realize what you are doing?" he roared. The broomstick was in the air again, and the major dodged. Whack! It struck him squarely across the bridge of his nose, and the field at once became ensanguined.

The bleeding officer now began to take hasty counsel with himself. He was late for the embarkation, the American troops would soon be upon the ground, his hat had received an irreparable dent, his wig was in the wildest disorder, his regimentals were stained with marks of the bloody affray, his head was yet spinning from contact with Mistress Day's weapon, and there were unmistakable signs that Mistress Day's arm was by no means weary! Some warning bugle notes from the Battery decided the matter. He turned about and strode off, picking up his damaged headgear on the way. Mistress Day, smiling contentedly, returned to her kitchen to continue the baking and brewing for the evening festival.

It took the major some time to remove the evidences of conflict before he appeared at the Battery. He must have been hard put to it to explain his lateness and his disheveled state to his superior officer. His career after his return to England continued to be disreputable. He was executed for forgery eight years after he left New York. As for Mistress Day, the woman who flew the first American flag in the evacuated city and who fought and won the last conflict of the Revolution, she deserves a wider fame than she has enjoyed.—Youth's Companion.

After many banquets the actual transfer of the vessel took place on Dec. 30, 1856, when the American flag was replaced by the British. And now comes the tragedy. The admiral had no sooner come into the possession of the vessel than it proceeded to break it up on the good old principle of public economy!—London Chronicle.

A TRAP FOR MARINERS.

Salmadina Bank, Off Colombia's Coast, Is a Perilous Shoal.

One of the most dangerous places for navigation is the Salmadina bank, which lies just outside the harbor of Cartagena, Colombia. Many vessels have come to grief on the treacherous sands of Salmadina in the past, and because of the impossibility of keeping buoys on it the shoal is a constant menace to ships plying those waters.

This dangerous bank is about four miles long and two miles wide. There is scarcely more than twelve feet of water over it at any time. The sea is usually smooth in that part of the Caribbean, and unless there is ground swell enough to cause waves to break on the reef there is nothing to warn the navigator that he is approaching this shallow spot. He may have his lead going and get plenty of water one minute and be bang up on the shoal the next.

The lighthouse people will probably never be able to put buoys on Salmadina that will stay there. They are invariably carried away in the terrific hurricanes that periodically sweep these waters. So it seems as if Salmadina was a bad spot put there for the permanent torment of shipmasters.—New York Sun.

Penalties For Sabbath Breaking.

Sabbath breaking in Dundee was an expensive business in former times, to judge by the table of fines, etc., drawn up by the local Guild of Bonnetmakers in 1665. For traveling or drinking in a tavern on Sunday the fine was fixed at 40 shillings for each offense. For "hanging out bonnets, clothing or fish to dry—penalty for bonnets, 6s. 8d.; for clothes, 4 shillings; for fish, 3 shillings. Carrying water from the well or washing meat thereat in time of sermon, penalty, 8 shillings; gathering kail in time of sermon, penalty, 5 shillings; going to neighbors' houses in time of sermon without lawful excuse, such as sickness, penalty for first fault, 12 shillings, and for second twice as much, with rebuke before the craft, and for the third, summons before the kirk session."—London Chronicle.

China's Millions.

Any figures for the population of China must necessarily be more or less unreliable, inasmuch as the census man is not much in evidence in the land of the Celestials. The estimate, which is probably somewhere near correct, is 402,700,000. As to whether the millions of China will ever become thoroughly modernized in the sense that the Japanese are remains to be seen. The Chinaman possesses plenty of good sense and there seems to be no valid reason why he should not some time "catch on" to things and forge ahead with the rest of the folks.—New York Journal.

FATE OF THE RESOLUTE.

British Economy and the End of Franklin's Exploring Ship.

The story of how the brave little exploring ship the Resolute was found by an American vessel in Davis strait after a thousand mile cruise from Melville island without a soul on board is easily the most captivating in the history of arctic exploration. The Resolute, locked in the ice, was abandoned on May 15, 1854, sorely against the will of her captain by advice of the leader of the Belcher-Franklin expedition. The reappearance of the vessel on Sept. 17 caused a great sensation, and the United States brought the vessel with great ceremony to Cowes in order to present it to the queen of England.

The queen, the prince consort and others of the royal family then at Osborne House inspected the vessel, which had been carefully repaired and all the original furniture retained in position down to the smallest trinkets. The American skipper traced before her majesty the thousand mile course of the vessel and expressed his belief that Sir John Franklin was still alive, living among the Eskimos.

After many banquets the actual transfer of the vessel took place on Dec. 30, 1856, when the American flag was replaced by the British. And now comes the tragedy. The admiral had no sooner come into the possession of the vessel than it proceeded to break it up on the good old principle of public economy!—London Chronicle.

The Comforter
A Story of President Lincoln
Founded on Fact
By F. A. MITCHEL

When the great struggle between the northern and southern states came on Allan Fitz Hugh, twelve years old, was at school in Virginia, he was a boy of delicate physique, but was full of fire, and, hearing that Abraham Lincoln was coming southward at the head of an armed force, was much troubled because he was too young to shoulder a musket and repel the invader. He found it difficult during those exciting times to attend to his studies, and had it not been for the influence of his mother, whom he dearly loved, he could not have been kept at school at all.

In those days the passion attending war ran high on both sides. The songs, the gibes, the speeches and what was written concerning the great struggle were very bitter and usually far from the truth. In the north it was "We'll hang Jeff Davis on a sour apple tree," and in the south President Lincoln was called "the baboon." The northern schoolboy conceived the idea that President Davis was an ogre, not realizing that he was an educated gentleman, had commanded a regiment of United States troops in the war with Mexico, had been a United States senator and secretary of war. The southern schoolboy considered President Lincoln a wild man from the western woods who delighted in bloodshed. Children whose minds are not developed must concentrate upon one head in any movement in which they are interested. So Allan's thoughts dwelt upon Mr. Lincoln, embodying in him the whole northern army, which was to him a terrible horde coming down to destroy the south.

When Allan was fifteen he begged his mother to let him go to fight for the Confederacy. Naturally she clung to her son, and the matter was compromised between them in this wise: If the war was not over in another year Allan was to enlist with his mother's consent. Many boys of his age, both in the north and in the south, broke away from parental restraint and enlisted without permission. Food for powder was in demand, and the recruiting officers often winked at the fact that the recruits were under age. But Allan was his mother's only child, and, being of an extremely affectionate disposition, the bond between them was doubly strong.

So Allan continued at his studies, though he read more about the battles that were being fought than the subjects treated of in his textbooks. He lived in Richmond and at one time had listened to the roar of cannon during the seven days' battles that had been fought between Lee and McClellan. His admiration for soldiers wore away some of his bitterness against the Federal generals, but President Lincoln was still the embodiment of his repugnance for the northern people. The two heads—Davis of the Confederacy and Lincoln of the Federal Union—throughout the war continued to represent the bitter antagonism felt by either side.

In the early spring of 1865 Allan Fitz Hugh came to be sixteen years of age, and his mother reluctantly consented to his doing his part to fill the gaps in the southern ranks made by northern missiles. When the time came for him to leave his mother he was seized with a foreboding that he would not see her again. It is questionable which suffered the more at the parting, mother or son.

Allan enlisted in time to take part in one of the last battles of the war. He saw a dark line of blue on the edge of a wood behind earthworks. With the Confederate line of battle he moved toward it. Suddenly a storm burst in his face. He felt himself collapse and sank down on the ground.

His companions in arms went on, but were soon driven back and over him, leaving him there with a stream of blood flowing from his side.

Later he was picked up by a Federal ambulance corps and placed on a stretcher. He believed himself to be dying, and, oh, how terrible not to be able to bid his mother good-by!

"Mother!" he cried. "Oh, mother!"

A tall, spare man in citizen's apparel heard the wail and directed the carriers to put down the stretcher and, kneeling beside it, asked tenderly:

"What can I do for you, my poor boy?"

"You are a Yankee. You will do nothing for me. I wish to send a message to my mother, but it will never reach her."

"Give me your message and I promise you that I will send it for you."

The next morning Mrs. Fitz Hugh heard of the battle and knew that her son had been in it. While she was wondering what might have been his fate a man rode up to her and gave her a message, stating that it had come by flag of truce.

Starting for the front at once, the anxious mother succeeded in bringing her boy home. He hovered for some time between life and death, then began slowly to recover. Not long after this Richmond was evacuated by the Confederates, and President Lincoln went down there from Washington. When he was riding through the street on which the Fitz Hughes lived Allan was propped up in an easy chair on pillows, and his mother pointed out Mr. Lincoln to him.

"Oh, mother!" exclaimed the boy.

"What is it, Allan?"

"He's the man who comforted me when I was carried off that dreadful battlefield, and he sent you my message."

The funeral took place this morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart. Rev. J. B. Holland celebrated mass. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

Baseball Notes.

Good boy George Langford! Fifteen strike-outs, five hits and no runs is some pitching in the opening game of the season.

It seemed strange to see "Ken" Nash racing around the infield last Saturday afternoon giving decisions on the bases. "Ken" is generally seen cavorting about shortstop, gathering in all kinds of hits headed for the shortfield. After last Saturday's exhibition Representative Nash is as good an arbitrator as he is at several lines.

Poor judgement cost the Thayer boys two runs at least last Saturday. With men on second and third and two out Gallivan singled to left field, and then in his hurry to get to second on the throw in failed to touch first base. Umpire Nash was right on the job and promptly declared the side out.

Carl Loud is at Lehigh this year and will probably play in the field with Tom Keady's bunch of collegians. Loud was at Brown last year and played left field.

"Nixon," sporting writer for the Brockton Times, has the following to say in regard to Langford's exhibition last Saturday: "The performance of Langford of Weymouth High in fanning 15 Thayer academy batters in the first game of the season is a creditable one. With Condrick and Langford going well, Weymouth will make them all hustle this season."

Reginald Nash of Nash's Corner, captain of the Brown University baseball nine, put up a star game against the Providence International League team last Saturday. "Reg" annexed two hits, one of them a double, scored a run and accepted one chance in the field. Nash is playing in center field.

CLEANINGS ON BEACON HILL

Business of General Court is Dragging Heavily

FEW IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED

President Coolidge of the Senate Expected to Be Candidate For Higher Honors Later—Mystery in Ways and Means Committee—Currency Bill Will Soon Reach Governor

An observer remarked the other day that with all the business before it, the legislature had not so far this year enacted any important measures and had passed none with the possible exception of the woman suffrage resolve.

This does not mean that there have been no essential measures put through. The appropriation bills now run considerably over ten millions, and these are probably more than essential. But what the speaker referred to was questions of big policy.

The business of the general court still drags heavily. The railroad and taxation questions which are the most important of all are waiting.

Chairman Macleod of the public service commission, is now in consultation with the governor upon the traction problems. The proposed tax reforms are tied up for the time being with many conferences. Meanwhile the bitter feeling in the house continues and the senate has hardly enough business to keep up its circulation.

Higher Honors?
The one leader of clear judgment is rapidly being developed at the state house. He is President Calvin Coolidge of the senate. The way that Coolidge is being backed up in the senate is cause for comment throughout the state house. His quaint speech and sound sense are in refreshing contrast to the general wildness of prejudice and opinion. Coolidge will probably be president of the senate for another year, but if he is not a strong candidate for higher honors it will surprise a lot of people.

The Candy Bill
The confectionery industry of the state is in an uproar over the bill which forbids the use of glucose or corn syrup in the manufacture of candy.

The little bill went quite a long way in the legislature before the parties most interested in it began to sit up and pay attention. Then the representatives of the candy industry had a meeting and decided to write to everybody in the legislature. They have faithfully kept to their program and the bill is blocked.

Ways and Means Mystery
There is a little mystery hanging over the ways and means committee on each branch. And Chairman Tom White of the house committee says that there will shortly be a surprise. It is thought that he means that there will be a surprise when the state tax is announced. This announcement is not made until the last day of the session when the last appropriation bill has been made up. The expectation now is that the state tax will not be kept at the $10,000,000 mark. It was $8,000,000 last year. But the fixed charges of government by reason of recent legislation have mounted to an extent that the financial experts are puzzled at the final possibilities.

Co-operative Bank Bill
The co-operative bank bill which is just leaving the house brings promise of rather a lively time before it gets through, if it does get through. The present law leaves no opportunity for a shareholder in such a bank to keep his shares in it after they have matured in value. The new bill gives this right. Some of the co-operative banks which do not wish to do this, object on the ground that it will create a special savings class and may cause litigation by reason of the possible pooling of the shares by the holder.

The counter argument made by the banks which want the change is that it takes a period of about ten years for such shares to mature and that the banks have made so much money that they can well afford to continue to pay 5 per cent upon such shares, and that furthermore, an investor of ten years standing is not the ordinary savings bank investor, but a more careful and more conservative person.

Modern Theory Jolted
The first veto message of Governor Walsh to the legislature created widespread interest because of the idea which was contained in it.

His excellency said that to appoint excise boards of various cities, imposed too great a burden upon the chief executive. The only two cities in the state which have license boards appointed by the governor, are Boston and Fall River. The vetoed bill provided for such a board for the city of Chelsea.

Governor Walsh is an exceptionally busy governor, for he has attended not only to the administrative duties of his office, but has also shown himself liberally in various parts of the state where he has delivered many addresses upon state matters. A governor who devotes so much time will find no time in the day for leisure. Nevertheless, there is a striking note of home rule in the Chelsea veto in strong contrast with the rather modern theory of loading up a chief magistrate with responsibility and not taking it away.

The Currency Bill
A really important measure which will soon reach the governor's office is House 7, which provides that trust companies may take advantage of the federal reserve currency bill.

This is by no means a popular question, but the advantages of it ought to be more generally understood, because of the big increase in business opportunities which it creates.

The federal reserve currency bill aims at the introduction of foreign banking methods into this country. The present banking of the United States is ridiculed abroad. It rests principally upon the ability of the mercantile borrower to meet his notes. Abroad the note is accepted and signed by the buyer and deposited in the bank which discounts it.

Here our federal reserve banks will take an accumulation of these mercantile notes and hand back to the discounting bank the equivalent in gold. A rate board will check the volume of discounted notes by fixing the rate at a sufficiently high figure.

Now the federal reserve bill applies only to national banks. But the Massachusetts bill comes forward and gives the domestic trust company the same right to join the federal reserve banks as the national banks.

Libraries
In many sections of the state it would be a great convenience if citizens of one town had the right to borrow books from the library of an adjoining town. It is not infrequently the case that a person in a country district lives nearer to the library in an adjoining town than he does to the library in his own town.

The free public library commissioners, therefore recommend legislation permitting the use of libraries by non-residents and citizens of other towns on such terms and conditions as the trustee of the lending library may in reason prescribe.

How to Reach Aliens
How to get books into the hands of aliens, is the problem discussed by the commissioners. They think it can be done with a more adequate system of state aid. Under existing legislation direct aid is now granted to towns with a valuation of less than $1,000,000 which can, unaided, make adequate provision either for school work or for a foreign-speaking population; and there are towns above that valuation where the tax rate is already so high that no increased appropriation for the library can be expected, and where the needs of younger members of the community and of new comers from foreign lands cannot be met without injustice.

Waterways
The board of harbor and land commissioners points out the necessity for the development of the waterways of the state. It shows that of the six hundred millions and more of property invested in manufactures about two-thirds is so situated as to require waterway transportation. Governor Foss was much interested in the waterways question. This and taxation drew from him many incisive messages for legislation.

Leader Timilty
If anybody doubts who is the real Democratic leader in the senate and one of the two greatest at the state house, he has only to follow the actions of James P. Timilty of ward 18, Boston.

Between Timilty and Lomasney, there is the widest possible difference. Timilty seldom speaks, never attacks, is not witty. Lomasney speaks a great deal, attacks freely, is clever in repartee. Timilty is close to the powers that be. Lomasney is against them. The two men, however, have a good understanding and work smoothly together. Neither is fond of Mayor Curley. It was Timilty who absolutely prevented the mayor's police salary bill from gaining admission to the legislature.

What Timilty wants from the committee on rules gets without very much trouble. When the committee on rules is against Timilty it is because they are willing to get a trimming.

To Kill Tax Bill
Senators Ward and Fisher of the senate ways and means committee are both against the Carr bill which redistributes the losses of towns by reason of the exemption of veterans from taxation. The amount of redistribution is $150,000. But of this sum the city of Boston is forced to pay about $45,000.

The attitude of these two senators makes it reasonably certain that the exemption bill will not go through the senate, although many of the small towns benefit by the redistribution.

Don't Vote Together
Senator Cox and Senator Burbank are the two Progressive senators. But they so rarely vote together that when they do land on the same side of the fence it is enough to cause a ripple of surprise. They have discovered as most men do when they come to the legislature that almost everything they are called to vote upon does not wear any party label at all. They have found that the party lines are so wiped out that it would be hard to distinguish one man's party from another man's party, except for a few test votes or party votes that are taken on questions that are chiefly of political importance.

Test For Hydrochloric Acid.

A curious mishap gave us a very delicate test for hydrochloric acid in the atmosphere. In a north of England locality many houses have curtains of the cream color produced by methyl yellow, popularly known as "dolly" cream dye and to science as "the sodium salt of meta-amido-benzene sulphonic acid-azo-diphenyl-amine." Some of these cream colored curtains suddenly changed to heliotrope. Investigation showed that an accidental escape of hydrochloric acid from a neighboring alkali plant had discolored the curtains, and the dye became a most useful test.—London Globe.

"What do you understand by the term political influence?"
"Political influence," replied Senator Sorghum, "is usually something that a lot of people come around and tell you they brought to bear after you have succeeded in landing a job."—Washington Star.

HIS DREAM MATERIALIZED.

Curious Incident in the Career of Novelist S. R. Crockett.

One morning the postman brought to S. R. Crockett, the novelist, a letter from the editor of the St. James' Gazette containing a small check as payment for a contribution. Mr. Crockett knew that nothing was due to him, that he had been paid for all articles, and—remarkable man—he did the check up in an explanatory note and returned it to the editor.

The next day back came the check from the editor—remarkable man—with a note saying it was due. The St. James' Gazette had published an article from the pen of Mr. Crockett which had not been paid for, hence the check. Again Mr. Crockett—remarkable man—returned the check, and still the remarkable editor re-forwarded it, this time with the article cut out of the columns of the St. James' Gazette.

Now comes the curious feature of the incident. When Mr. Crockett clapped his eyes on the article he was astonished to find it one of his dreams materialized. One night, going to bed extra tired, he dreamed that a good idea for a St. James' Gazette column had occurred to him, that he then and there sat down, wrote it and posted it. Next morning he remembered his dream and made up his mind some day to write the article exactly as he dreamed he had written it, when, to his astonishment, came article and check from the newspaper. Few writers earn checks while asleep.—London Standard.

AVERTED THE DUEL.

Valor Vanished With the Choice of Weapons and Conditions. Representative Borland of Missouri gives an account of the challenge to a duel which occurred in Louisiana, supposedly among the last challenges of that environment in the state. The affair was between a gentleman who belonged to one of the oldest families there and a sturdy blacksmith of Georgia who had become a man of political influence.

The gentleman took offense at some remarks of the Georgian and sent him a challenge. The powerful blacksmith was nonplused.

"I know nothing about this dueling business," said he, "and I positively will not fight."

"You must," urged his friend. "No gentleman can refuse."

"I am not a gentleman," replied the honest citizen of Georgia. "I'm only a blacksmith."

"But you will be ruined if you do not fight," continued his friends. "You will have the choice of weapons, and you can choose so as to give yourself an equal chance with your adversary."

"The giant requested time in which to consider the matter and ended by accepting. He sent the following reply to the Louisiana gentleman:

"I accept, and, in the exercise of my privilege, I stipulate that the duel shall take place in Lake Pontchartrain in six feet of water, sledgehammers to be used as weapons."

"As his adversary was about five feet eight inches in height and the blacksmith was seven feet, the conceit of the latter so pleased the Louisiana gentleman that he declared himself satisfied, as he was one who could appreciate a joke as well as perpetrate one, and he declared the duel off"—Exchange.

CLEANER CITY UP TO WOMEN

Those of Better Class Worst Offenders.

DON'T BLAME UNTIDY MAN.

Virtue and Cleanliness Can't Be Legislated Into People—We're Mad on the Subject of Making Laws and Quite Indifferent to Enforcing Them.

By MRS. E. R. HEWITT,
President of Women's Municipal League,
New York City.

The women who don't meet their own little responsibilities are often the very ones who are on the lookout for bigger ones.

It's a bore to see that our own ash cans are of the right size, and it's so much more interesting to bustle about and make the public conscious of its responsibility about something.

Women of the better class are the worst offenders, because we know what we ought to do, and we don't do it. Somehow we feel outside of the law. The poor are made to feel its restrictions much more sharply.

Cleanliness is an instinct with women that has survived in spite of the fact that we are all fundamentally lazy and many are untidy. It has survived, I think, because it makes for health. I don't blame the men for being untidy, because it isn't their fault. We haven't brought them up properly, and nature didn't make them so to begin with. We haven't been stern enough with them. For one thing, we don't make them ashamed to look us in the eye when they come into the house just after throwing a cigar away in the street before entering. We don't object to their lazy ways so long as they don't bring the stumps in with them. There you have the root of the whole matter—we don't, any of us, feel our own responsibility in the little things that go to make our streets dirty, our city a bad example of municipal sanitation.

You can't legislate virtue and cleanliness into people, but just now we are mad on the subject of making laws and quite indifferent to enforcing them. We are not law abiding citizens; we are chronic breakers of the law. We adore the order that we find in European cities and wonder why we can't have it here. That order is imposed from authority above; here it must come from within if it comes at all. If we don't like that kind of self government we may go and live elsewhere, but while we are here we must abide by our self made rules if we would have order and good health. Enforcement of the rules of sanitation lies with the woman at the head of the house.

The Woman's Municipal League is making propaganda for a cleaner city by disseminating information about the rules and regulations which we would follow if we tried to be law abiding citizens. It is divided into sections, each of which is captained and organized like a separate county in a state and through which the work is being done. One of the most recent activities of the league was the measuring of ash cans, which revealed a very distressing state of affairs—to wit, that the greater number were oversized and only imposed upon the city's ash can dumper a harder task than his should be.

SPREADING GOSPEL OF CLEANLINESS.

The scope of cleanup day in New York City is being widened. A special hygienic program for schoolboy athletes prominent in cleaning up the town has been arranged as follows:

Go to bed at 8 o'clock after a thorough wash and a cold splash over chest and trunk. Scrub teeth and gums well. Have clothes and books ready for the morrow.

Open bedroom windows at top and bottom.

Get up not a minute later than 7 o'clock. Go through a two minute drill and hygienic exercises. Clean face and neck and scrub hands. Finish up with a big cold splash and hard rub all over. See that feet and legs are clean and rub them hard to get them into condition. Brush teeth and gums thoroughly.

Breakfast and all meals: No coffee, no tea. Drink milk a little at a time. Chew all food to a pulp. Ask your teacher what foods to avoid. No smoking.

Before school look yourself over. Am I clean from head to toe? Are all my clothes clean and in order down to the skin? Do I stand up like an athlete?

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

Forty-SIX YEARS AGO.
Annual Meeting, W & B. M. F. I. C.—At the annual meeting of the Weymouth and Braintree Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the following persons were chosen Directors for the ensuing year:—Appleton Howe, Freeman P. Howland, Naaman L. White, Elias Richards, Thomas B. Porter, Elias S. Beals, Zachariah L. Bicknell, Richard A. Hunt and Joseph R. Frazier. At a subsequent meeting of the directors Naaman L. White was chosen president and Elias Richards, secretary and treasurer.

Forty-five years have changed the scenery spanning the area of half a mile circumference, now known as Columbian square. Then the principal and we think all the mansions were those of Dea. Samuel Torrey, Widow Doct. James Torrey, Capt. Benj. Derby, Doct. Appleton Howe, Josiah Blanchard and Elliphalet Load, Esq. Forty-five years ago, from Meeting House Common, south, up Union street, nothing but standing trees and rough pasture land were discernable to the vision.

Twenty SEVEN YEARS AGO.
At the Selectmen's meeting yesterday the following were appointed as Engineers of the Fire Department:—Ward 1, Wm. O. Collyer; 2, Frank D. Thayer; 3, Charles E. Bicknell; 4, W. H. Hocking; 5, Otis Cushing.

A large and enthusiastic number of yachtsmen and gentlemen interested in home yachting gathered Wednesday evening at Capt. Whitmarsh's helthel for the purpose of organizing a club. It was voted that the name of the club be the Monaquot Yacht club.

The nominating committee appointed by the chairman reported the following list of officers for the year: Commodore, J. F. Sheppard; vice commodore, G. H. Bicknell; fleet captain, Andrews Lane; treasurer, E. P. Worster; secretary, F. T. Hunt; measurer, William Maybury.

It is proposed to take immediate steps in the direction of obtaining permanent quarters for the club, and we hope to see a new yacht club house on our shore this year, with a club flag floating from its staff.

Twenty-FIVE YEARS AGO.
People are already busy with the care of their lawns and gardens, and the coming summer promises some nice results in landscape gardening.

Herring have commenced to run up the river in large numbers, 17,000 being taken early Saturday morning. Many are sent to Boston, to be used for bait.

In company with a host of friends of Henry A. Thomas, Esq., of South Weymouth, we extend our congratulations to him in his appointment to the responsible position of Superintendent of Mails in the Boston post office—a position for which he is abundantly qualified by long experience in that department.

The result of the vote on the Constitutional Prohibitory Amendment in this town last Monday, was nearly in accordance with the estimates of those who had devoted attention to the matter by inquiry as to the standing of a majority of the citizens, which indicated a small plurality against the amendment. The result by wards was—

	Yes	No
Ward 1	138	101
Ward 2	241	236
Ward 3	109	213
Ward 4	85	103
Ward 5	105	143
Total vote	678	896—1474
Majority for No, 118.

Symbolism in Japan.
When a child is born in Japan the parents put up outside the house the sign of a fish or a doll, according as it is a boy or a girl. The fish represents a being who has to swim against the stream and make his way in the world. The doll stands for one who is there to be petted and made much of.

Not Ideal.
"You and your wife never argue?" "Never," replied Mr. Meekton.
"What an ideal state!"
"Perhaps it isn't so ideal. I sometimes fancy Henrietta hasn't enough respect for my opinions to bother about arguing with me."—Washington Star.

Something Like That.
"Herr Schmidt is so fat that he can't get near enough to his counter to sell goods."
"I'm! Sort of a corporation in restraint of trade."—London Answers.

Might and Mane.
Tom Hood, the punster, once described the meeting of a man and a lion, and in doing so he said, "The man ran off with all his might and the lion with all his mane."

Time to Call a Halt.
When the busy man gets to the point where he can't sit down for an hour and do nothing, it's time for him to take a vacation.—New Orleans Picayune.

Weymouth Gazette AND TRANSCRIPT

FRIDAY, APRIL 24, 1914

Arbor day is almost here. Have you selected a tree and place to put it? You may not sit in its shade or see the birds nest in its branches; even future generations who enjoy it may never know your name but you will leave behind a world which has been enriched by your act.

The Reading Chronicle says "taxes are the cheapest thing we pay for now-a-days considering the returns. Possibly that is true but for a nickel, in Weymouth, one can ride eight or ten miles on the trolley lines and see the finest landscape of hill and dale, streams and forest, villages and hamlets, public and private buildings to be found on the map and all for a nickel.

As a state Massachusetts stands at the head of the 48 states of the nation in its expenditure of money for, so called, improvements and it is well to ask now and then how far will we go, what are we leaving for posterity, etc. Parks, boulevards, reservations, mammoth state buildings, asylums and philanthropic institutions make a good show and speak well for the progressive spirit of the "Old Bay State" when not analyzed too closely, but figures just issued by the Department of Commerce Bureau of the Census at Washington make one sit up and think. In 1890 the total debt of the state was $31,381,000 and in 1912 had increased to $117,803,000. In 1890 the per capita debt $6.87; in 1912 it had risen to $22.78. Comparing the state of Massachusetts with the total for the 48 states, we find that taking the entire debt (less sinking fund assets) for the 48 states, the per capita according to the latest report is $3.52 or $19.26 less than the per capita debt for Massachusetts.

BATES' OPERA HOUSE.

Three Nights, Commencing Thursday, April 30.

Lorne Elwyn, the actor who has several plays in his repertoire, and has played the leading part in all of them, is this season carrying a better acting company than ever, heading his own company, under the management of W. L. Gallagher. Manager Bates has secured this company for 3 nights, April 30, May 1 and 2. The first play to be produced will be the "Cowboy Millionaire," Western comedy drama, filled with many a laugh and many a tear. Mr. Elwyn well known to every theatre manager and patron in the county as always having a good show, and this time there will be no mistake made. The prices are so cheap for a good company and play that it is better to come to the theatre, than to stay home and burn lights and coal. A big double show will be given every night. Vaudeville and a play of reputation will be given each night. Miss Nell Scott Lynn plays the leading parts. Mr. Lawlor will sing new songs each night.—Advertisement.

Mad at Paint.

25c a gallon for paint is about $2.50 on the average job, and lots of men waited last year for that; but they didn't reckon; they got mad; wouldn't pay it.

There are times to get mad and refuse to pay; but when one's property needs protecting is no time to get mad and not paint.

Besides, it costs more to get mad and wait than to paint.

Getting mad doesn't do any good to your property; paint does it good by keeping out water; no water no rot; no paint, some water and rot; and a little rot is more than enough to make a man liberal towards his painter and paint.

Paint costs not a cent. All the paint in the world, so long as it keeps out water, costs not a cent.

BOY SCOUT'S OUTING.

Five Troops Hold Enjoyable Field Day at Lovell's Corner Last Monday.

On Darrick's grounds at Lovell's Corner last Monday, a field-day was held by Troop 2, Boy Scouts of America, of East Weymouth, John A. MacFaun, scoutmaster; Troop 4, of North Weymouth, Rev. R. H. Dix, scoutmaster; Troop 3, of Lovell's Corner, Frank Blanchard, scoutmaster; Troop 1, of Weymouth Landing, Ernest Vaughan scoutmaster, and Troop 3, of Wollaston, George Brown, scoutmaster.

Over a hundred Boy Scouts of America took in the exercises, while the Campfire Girls of Lovell's Corner, with parents and friends, were special guests during the afternoon.

At nine o'clock camp was established. Then came a flag-raising and the "salute to the colors." After this a scout council was held and instructions given.

Several baseball games were played. Troop 2 defeated Troop 1, 5 to 2; Troop 4 won from Troop 1, 6 to 1, and Troop 2 beat Troop 3, 2 to 1. The result gave the East Weymouth Troop the Scout championship of this town.

At 12:30 the boys prepared and ate their dinner in true scout style by the campfires.

After dinner the first-aid relay race was held and won by Troop 3, as was also the stretcher race.

In the hare and hounds race Scout Rae went the limit and got back into camp without being caught. Scout Tisdale was captured while on the run, and two scouts were lost for awhile, but finally struck the highway and returned to camp.

The closing features were a battalion drill and dress parade, reviewed by a G. A. R. veteran.

After camp was broken, a program was given in the Porter Methodist church with addresses by John Conlan of Hyde Park, and Past Commander E. A. Smith of Gen. James L. Bates Camp S. of V.

"America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were sung and the tenderfoot badges were presented. The Scout oath and law were repeated and the "salute to the flag" was given as the closing event of a very enjoyable day's outing.

Universalist Men's Club.

The annual ladies' night of the Universalist Men's club, North Weymouth, was held on Monday evening, April 20th.

At six o'clock a supper was served to about 100 members and friends. After the banquet an entertainment was given in the church. It consisted of a lecture by Mr. Charles Johnson of Quincy on "George Washington." "The Star Spangled Banner," "Marching Through Georgia," "America," sung by Mrs. Jessie Buffum, and selections by an orchestra, John Tower, cornet; Charles Brown, violin; Percy Ames, violin; Harold Raymond, flute; Mrs. John Taylor, organ.

The committee in charge was: F. H. Torrey, C. C. Howland, S. G. Dunbar, I. W. Morgan and A. W. Gardner.

This was one of the most successful and enjoyable ladies' nights ever held by the club.

WORDS FROM HOME

Statements That May Be Investigated. Testimony of Weymouth Citizens.

When a Weymouth citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Weymouth resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

Fred Simpson, blacksmith, Hingham Center, Mass., says: "I had to do heavy work and found I needed a medicine for backache and irregular kidney action. I have always depended on Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve me of the trouble and they have never failed. I consider them the best medicine on the market of that kind. The praise I gave Doan's Kidney Pills a few months ago, still holds good."

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

The best results in natural hatching will be obtained when the hens are set on the ground.

Potato and turnip peelings boiled and mixed with the morning feed are excellent for laying hens.

Never leave a broken egg about the poultry house. Not only will it induce the egg eating habit, but it is a breeder of lice.

Horses are not deaf, so do not shout at them. Neither are they blind. Their hearing and sight are just as keen as ours and very often keener, as they frequently see and hear things long before we can see and hear them.

Overfeeding, overcrowding, and lack of ventilation cause much loss among amateur poultry keepers. A large per cent of the chicks die and those that survive are runty and under-sized.

Black knot.—A fungus, the spores of which are carried from tree to tree by the wind, is the cause of this disease. The same fungus also affects plums. Cut out and burn all knots before leaves appear in the spring. See that the knots are removed from all plum and cherry trees in the neighborhood.

Geese do not mate as other fowls and it is therefore advisable to procure them several months before the laying season arrives. If possible, buy stock that is at least one year old and mated.

The value of kindness to animals can scarcely be estimated in money, yet it is true that kindness does pay a decided profit to the stock owner who knows how to practice it among his creatures. Any intelligent stock owner will tell you that the above is true, says Practical Farmer.

The ground can be too loose to plant sweet clover in. Pack it hard after sowing. If you could tramp it in with stock it would be all the better. It does well even in alkali soils.

Apple tent-caterpillar.—The insect hibernates in the egg state. The eggs are glued in ring-like brownish masses around the smaller twigs, where they may be easily found and destroyed. The caterpillars appear in early spring, devour the tender leaves, and build unsightly nests on the smaller branches. This pest is usually controlled by the treatment recommended for the codling moth. Destroy the nests by wiping out when small.

Do not neglect to examine the currant and gooseberry bushes and look for the white eggs of the currant worm and the larvae of the currant sawfly. If you find any, dust the leaves, top and under sides, with finely powdered hellebore, when the foliage is wet, or put a heaping tablespoonful in a gallon of water and apply.

The cabbage root worm is the larval stage of a fly about the size of a common house fly. It is a white maggot, pointed at the head, footless, the body gradually increasing in size toward the hinder end, where it is squarely cut off. When full grown it is about one-third of an inch in length. For a remedy it is recommended to dip the roots of the plants in a compound of one part kerosene emulsion to twelve or fifteen parts of water at the time of planting.

The eggs of the psylla are laid principally during April and commence to hatch early in May, or when the cluster-buds are beginning to separate at the tips. Most growers spray much earlier than this for the San Jose scale, but by postponing the treatment of pear orchards until the blossom clusters are well advanced one may deal a very effective blow against the psylla, and with the same treatment combat the scale.

The world does not stand still. Farmers in general are making much more money from their poultry than they did in the past. Some farmers and poultry men are now building small cold storage plants of their own, and they are preserving eggs by other means to be held and sold when prices are high. The time is not far off when many farmers will have cold storage plants to make them independent of depressed prices in perishable food products.

To establish a herd of a race of hogs of health, constitutional vigor, large size and high prolific qualities, the breeding males and females from infancy must be given abundance of exercise in open pastures for all the year and a large variety of feeds. The time to begin to make a hog is when it is a little pig. Little pigs of both sexes, to be grown for breeding purposes, must be kept healthy and be made to grow in size, but they must not be allowed to put on surplus fat.

Corn and other feeds are gradually becoming more expensive every year. Forage crops are economical feeds. Rape, cowpeas, rye, clover and alfalfa not only mean cheaper feeds for hogs, but the hogs pasturing on them are bound to be healthier and more vigorous. One year or one generation may not show much difference, but several years of pasturing and rotation of pastures will tell. Healthier, larger and more prolific hogs will be the result.

Subscribe now for the Gazette and Transcript. It will cost you less than four cents a week to get this department.

"Bob" and "Cob" in Money.
Most people would know what was meant by the term "bob" when speaking of money. But would they be able to say offhand what a "cob" is or was in a similar connection? It was used in polite circles in the seventeenth century, for it occurs in a letter from the Earl of Essex—"So my wife gave her a cob, for which she seemed very thankful"—printed in the new volume of the "Camden" series, the editor of which gives the information that the cob was "a piece of money the value of which varied from 4 shillings to as much as 6 shillings in 1675."—London Chronicle.

No Chance to Elope.
Girls in New Guinea have little chance to run away. Their parents force them to sleep in a little house on the topmost branch of a tall tree, then the ladder is removed and the slumber of the parents is not disturbed by fears of an elopement.

Clean Up! Destroy All Rubbish Piles

CLEAN UP AND SAVE BABIES' LIVES.

Dirt fattens flies and kills babies! Dirt in itself, such as rubbish and other waste, does not directly cause disease unless it contains organisms impregnated with contagion. But dirt of any kind is a breeding spot for flies and other vermin which act as direct carriers of contagion from sick to healthful persons.

A great majority of the deaths of the young, particularly during the summer, are due to infection by bacteria. In order for these great enemies of mankind to thrive there must be means for their growth, and dirt is the culture field or breeding place.

The germs which enter milk or other food are deposited by flies through the means of circulating dust or otherwise. Sunlight, the removal of garbage and the use of plenty of soap and hot water are the best means of reducing this source of danger.

Now, everybody get on the job and clean up this town. Be a life saver and preserve the health of the babies.

BEWARE OF FIRE DANGER IN CLEANUP PROGRAM.

Be careful of conflagrations in the enthusiasm of the cleanup period.

In many towns last year ash piles were dug into the ground and covered with clean earth, cans and rubbish were piled in the alleys, while old leaves, papers and brush were burned on the vacant lots.

On many occasions these cleanup fires assumed large proportions and threatened adjoining property, requiring the calling out of the fire department.

HOW ONE HUSTLING WESTERN CITY CLEANED UP.

Here is what a hustling city of the west did in its cleanup campaign: Forty thousand children forsook their toys, shovels and rakes to help parents clean up the back yards.

Women volunteered their services in the crusade to make it the cleanest city on the map. Commercial clubs made personal canvasses of their respective districts.

Everything prepared for the opening of the campaign, when the city teams began to cart away the dirt.

Rubbish not piled left, to be hauled later at householders' expense.

FUMIGATION WOULD BE PART OF CLEANUP WORK.

Just now the insect destroyers of human happiness are hiding in "cellars, vaults and other dark, damp shelters," waiting for a good fat chance to lay the eggs for the first summer bug crop. It is of the utmost importance to catch the destroyer of summer bliss and happiness before the breeding season begins.

All the feminine provokers of cuss words which, according to all scientific report, bear out the theory recently advanced by Kipling concerning the female of the species can be put out of the deadly class just about this time of the year if destroyed in their hiding places.

Fumigation is the best method known to science to kill the hibernating pests. Fumigation should therefore be a part of the regular work of cleanup week. Neglected flowerpots, buckets, barrels, broken china, chicken pans, water troughs, a gutter and a water spout are a few of the places in which insects breed and should be removed.

Mexican Love of Flowers. There is one unflinching charm about Mexican houses, writes H. Hamilton Fyfe in the Daily Mail. That is the charm of flowers. All Mexicans love flowers. Their homes present to the street bare, unlovely walls, with barred and close curtained windows. Very often, though, you get a glimpse as you pass the open door of a patio where the sunlight flickers on green leaves and vivid blossoms. Always you may count upon such an interior even if you cannot see it.
