Was it difficult or easy to meet up with your editing group?

Anonymous participant #1:
     Difficult
Anonymous participant #2:
     The coordination didn't seem too difficult
Anonymous participant #3:
     mostly easy
Anonymous participant #4:
      fine
Anonymous participant #5:

It was pretty easy. Our group leader did most of the organizing and I suppose we could have helped out with that more, but since all of us went to the samr school it was easy to plan when to meet.

Anonymous participant #6:

difficult

Anonymous participant #7:

easy

Anonymous participant #8:

Not super easy just because our mentor didn't have a car and so we had to go to a cafe that was in a not very convenient location for either me or my partner

Anonymous participant #9:

Though it took some adjustment schedule wise, meeting up was doable

Anonymous participant #10:

it was hard to find a time we could both meet

Anonymous participant #11:

Varied based on the month

Anonymous participant #12:

fairly easy but I had access to a car and went closer to them to meet

What could the WOW! Organizers have done better?
Anonymous participant #1:
    Provide future opportunities
Anonymous participant #2:
    Honestly, nothing that I could think of. We all have different conflicting schedules, and if must be hard to work around them.
Anonymous participant #3:
    better variety of food
Anonymous participant #4:

Anonymous participant #5:
    I think that there could have been more instructional meetings. There were a lot of first time editors and I think it would have been easier for everyone to edit if they knew the basics of Wikipedia. For example, how to cite something on Wikipedia and what the exact steps are.
Anonymous participant #6:
    Helped us organize editing groups
Anonymous participant #7:
    Both my mentor and I are into computer science and I love learning from her. She is so informative and is doing some amazing things. It's great that she mentors me not just on how to edit wiki articles but also on one of my interests.
Anonymous participant #8:
    I think it was pretty well organized
Anonymous participant #9:
    Keeping potential SAT dates in mind! I think a lot of people were missing on the November 7th social b/c of the SAT, and I know there was a conflict with the Dec 5 SAT as well.
Anonymous participant #10:

made it easier to meet with the editing groups (open on weekends)

Anonymous participant #11:
    Maybe organized groups or meeting times based on availability?

Anonymous participant #12:
    I would say somehow push for more posts to be generated during the program.

    I really loved the reason why their was this program, however sometimes I felt like the meetings were a little long. I tried to stay for the full three hours but sometimes I just couldn't and felt bad about it. Maybe cut the time down a little bit?

What was your favorite part of this experience?

Anonymous participant #1:
    Learning about Wikipedia

Anonymous participant #2:
    I really enjoyed listening to the speakers' different topics and stories.

Anonymous participant #3:

learning more about Wikipedia (and the work that goes into it)

Anonymous participant #8:

I liked getting to know other people and learning how to edit on Wikipedia

Anonymous participant #9:

I enjoyed meeting new people and delving into material we all collectively shared a passion about. Personally, I feel like I'm very locked into the routine I have - go to school, see those people, go to dance, see those people. WOW provided a great way to break out of that routine and to bond with others.

Anonymous participant #10:

learning new editing skills and meeting new people

Anonymous participant #11:

Learning to edit! And bonding with my group.

Anonymous participant #12:

meeting my WOWgals!
