DISCOUNTS BAD TIMES

H. E. BETZ, BRICK CONTRACTOR, HAS DONE RECORD BUSINESS PAST THREE YEARS

While others all round are complaining of bad times, bewailing the slump in business and regretting the dearth of money, H. E. Betz, the well-known brick contractor of 124 N. Kenwood street, has been doing a record business and thriving as though the land were passing through a boom period. Not that Mr. Betz is boasting of this himself; that is merely the impression left on the mind of the representative of the Glendale Evening News representative, after a brief interview with the contractor.

"During the past three years," said Mr. Betz, "I have completed 60 jobs of brick work. That is a record, even supposing some of the jobs were not of particularly large dimensions. Many brick contractors would think themselves very fortunate if they obtained six jobs in the course of a year. A large proportion of those jobs were of such size as to be termed substantial.

"Just at present I am quite busy. I completed this week the brick work of a new building in Tropico, on San Fernando road, in place of those small stores that were burned down some time ago. This property belongs to Mr. Deverian of Pasadena. It will be occupied by a restaurant and barber shop—the same tenants who occupied the old building. It is quite a unique lot, being a 50-foot front with 30-foot depth. I finished also some time ago my own large building at the corner of Brand and Acacia—a substantial business block.

"I am also busy on the brick work of a one-story building on Brand and Fifth, a 25x60 lot. The front of this building will be of enameled pressed brick. This is a building that will cost about $3000 when finished. It will be occupied by Mrs. Furbeck, the owner, who will utilize the front part of the building as a show room of her well-known and beautiful hand-painted china.

"I am also working on a one-story building in Burbank, the owner of which is W. S. Walker. This is a 50x60 building. It will contain three stores. All of them have been rented already. It is probable also that I will handle the Home Telephone branch building at Burbank. That will be a handsome building faced with tan tapestry brick and will cost $3500.

"J. H. Flower of Glendale is also on the eve of erecting a two-story building in Burbank at a cost of from $8000 to $9000. It will contain two stores, offices and apartments. It will be a desirable job and a credit to Burbank.

"In fact, there are reports of buildings to be put up everywhere practically. Approximate estimates are being asked on five or six new buildings at the present moment and they may start up any time. I have heard it said that there is to be building at Brand and Park, Tropico, and I could mention various other tentative reports.

"Generally speaking, things in the building line are much better than they have been for some time. During the past six months they have been gradually improving and during the past forty days they have distinctly taken a turn for the better. Building loans are easier of attainment. I do not look for any sudden boom in business; but I anticipate a gradual improvement such as we have been experiencing lately. As far as I am personally concerned what is called "bad times" has not affected me. I have, as you can see, had a phenomenally prosperous experience during the past three years in Glendale and its vicinity."

ELKS AT FILLMORE

Considerably more than 100 Elks and their friends left Glendale Sunday for the picnic at Fillmore. Arrived at their destination they found their Fillmore hosts waiting for them with autos. The whole party was whirled away rapidly to a pleasant oak grove, where all manner of provision had been made for their entertainment. Coffee, ice cream, lemonade, cakes and sandwiches of every kind comforted the hungry.

The Glendale band discoursed sweet music all afternoon. There was a ball game. Those who desired to swim were taken to a splendid swimming hole on the Sespe, 28 feet deep, with a sandy bottom. There quite a few sported themselves. The others drove all round the environments of Fillmore. The whole party returned to Glendale in the evening after a most pleasant day.

There never will be unanimous belief that anybody ought to be condemned on the evidence of New York gunmen.

MEET IN VALLEY

LA CANADA ASSOCIATION HAS PLEASANT BUSINESS AND SOCIAL GATHERING

It was a large and representative assembly that gathered in La Canada hall Saturday evening, on the occasion of the regular fortnightly meeting of the local association. The Rev. Dr. Brooks occupied the chair and called the meeting to order. After the minutes had been read the chairman stated that it was necessary to have a reception committee and therefore appointed Mrs. Tait, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Anderson, Miss Margaret Green, Mr. Edwin Cooper and Mr. Guidinger to act in that capacity. In doing so he said that undoubtedly the committee would deal with strangers and visitors in that spirit of affability, politeness and gladness with which they were just credited.

A communication from the Inland Waterways of California convention was laid on the table without action.

Mr. Brigham reported that the committee appointed to attend the meeting of supervisors had found much profit in being there and in meeting many of the most prominent public men of the county. The chief business was the matter of the highway bonds, the amount of which was by general consent increased from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. The supervisors will now call an election for the extension of the highway system. The report was accepted.

Mrs. Williams reported that mirrors had been purchased for the dressing rooms of the hall.

Mr. Brigham on the part of the executive committee recommended that (1) the hall be opened and lighted each meeting night at 7:30; (2) that the constitution and bylaws of the association be revised in particular as regarded the election of officials; (3) that the sale of refreshments on the nights of the meetings be put into the hands of a regular caterer; (4) that a definite movement be started to get new members; (5) that the annual fee for membership be $1 and that the year begin January 1, persons joining after that date being charged proportionally; (6) that members wear a badge of membership that would qualify them for admission to the gatherings and entitle them to a vote.

These recommendations were agreed to and it was left to the executive committee to put them into effect.

The chairman announced that Mr. Jackson would begin running a jitney bus next Tuesday to Lincoln avenue, fares 25 cents for round trip and 15 cents single; and to Montrose, fares 15 cents round trip, ten cents single. He expressed a hope that the community would profit by this arrangement.

It was announced that the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association had been postponed until a week from Friday, Aug. 6.

Mr. Granger, the secretary, presented a bill for $15 for rent of the hall. This was ordered paid.

Mr. A. T. Cowan, proprietor and publisher of the Glendale Evening News and the Tri-City Progress, who was present was asked to address the meeting, which he did briefly, expressing his pleasure at being present and stating that the policy of his paper was to advocate all that was best for the valley. The Tri-City Progress, he said, was a community paper, standing for the interests of the communities in the vicinity of Glendale where it was published. The interests of these communities was mutual and the Tri-City Progress was instituted to stimulate and further them.

The chairman said that at the beginning of a new society year it was to be hoped that the association would find itself established on a broad foundation. It should be the aim of society to set a wide range for programs and to have a variety of subjects; to avoid partisan politics and sectarian religion. The association was founded on the entire nature of man. Man, he said, was a social being and it was necessary for him to cultivate his social life. In this association there was ample opportunity to cultivate goodwill, joy, meekness and especially patience. The association would stimulate its members on many sides of their nature, remembering that man had physical as well as esthetic and intellectual wants.

Mr. Harold Brooks then gave a most interesting address on "The Meat Industry." Mr. Brooks' address will be published in this paper. Mr. Walter R. Cuthbert of Alhambra rendered in first-class style a piano "Impromptu" by Carl Motor, and later in the program gave with much taste and delicacy of interpretation a quaint "Canzonetta" by V. Hollaender.

Miss Opal Browne of Pasadena recited with considerable dramatic

WIN CLOSE GAMES

HIGH SCHOOL PLAYGROUND BALL TEAM WINS FROM CASA VERDUGO

It was a most interesting and exciting ball game that was put up by the Union High School Playgrounds team against the Casa Verdugo boys Saturday. Quite a large attendance gave heart to the players and the game was battled out with force and determination on both sides. Both teams were anxious to get into the fray.

The High School team, after a tough struggle with their worthy opponents, who showed many excellent qualities, came out winners by 7 to 4. The secret of this victory was the excellent hitting of the High School boys. With considerable generalship the High School sent in a series of lefthand batters who simply played havoc with the battery of the Casa Verdugo lads. The results of the systematic batting training that Mr. Julius Lehman, superintendent of the Union High School summer playground, has instituted are beginning to be seen in the confidence and accuracy of the High School batters.

Gabbage and Hastings pitched for the High School; the two Dewars and Page for Casa Verdugo. The game was opened by Gabbage walking and stealing second; Von Osdale out; Reese unassisted and Gabbage going to third. Morse out; Page to Reese. Gabbage scoring.

Central avenue sent its men in only to see them give a fine exhibition of fanning. M. Fishel, Reese and Westwood advanced and retired with no runs, no hits and no errors.

J. Fishel and Hastings scored two runs in the second. For Central Ave. Bidwell scored and Page's single to right scored R. and J. Dewar. Page was caught off first and Brown and Eckles fanned.

The third inning was uneventful for both sides. In the fourth High School scored nothing and Central Ave. scored one run on a steal by Bidwell.

In fifth Crandall for High School hit into a double play Dewar to Bidwell to Reese. No runs, hits or errors.

High school scored one run in the sixth. Van Osdale singled to center and stole second and third; Morse flied to Brown; Baker singled over second, scoring Van. Central drew a blank.

In the seventh inning neither side scored. In the eighth Van Osdale for the High School singled to center; Morse walked; Van Osdale stole third and Morse scored. Page was now catching and J. Dewar playing second; Baker was out. J. Dewar to Reese, Van Osdale scoring. J. Fishel singled down the third base line, scoring Morse. Fishel stole second and third. Phillips hit to Bidwell, who threw low to Page, Fishel scoring. Phillips out trying to steal second. Hastings singled to left. Crandall flied to J. Dewar. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Central Avenue went to bat with confidence, but failed to score.

In the ninth inning while there was a good exhibition of ball on both sides neither was able to alter the score which remained: High School, 7 runs, 7 hits, 4 errors; Central Avenue, 4 runs, 3 hits, 2 errors.

There is a healthy rivalry between the two teams that is likely to be productive of much excellent playing as the season goes on. Both teams are determined to do everything in their power to bring their forces to the highest pitch of perfection and the public will reap the benefit in games that will be worth witnessing.

SOCIAL WILL BE GIVEN

A social will be given by the members of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U. on Tuesday evening, August 3, at 8 o'clock, at the First M. E. church, corner of Third street and Dayton court. There will be a short program of music and readings in the auditorium of the church, after which games and refreshments will be enjoyed in the social hall.

All young people are invited to come and have a good time. The following is the program:

Organ solo, Prof. Laichinger.
Reading.
Violin solo, Miss Quackenbush.
Vocal solo, Prof. Laichinger.
Piano solo, Marian Carmichael.

power a touching tale "From a Far Country." Miss Henrietta Horn read an interesting paper on "The Social Center in the Rural School." This address is published in this issue of the Glendale Evening News.

This brought the formal program to a close. Ice cream and cake were then served and the gathering took on a pleasant social form.

WESTON SCORES AGAIN

Edward H. Weston of Tropico, who has made for himself a national reputation as a photographer in whom the artistic spirit is highly developed and who brings to his wonderful work an originality of conception and a perfection of execution that place him in the front rank of his art, has received another honor this year. The thirty-fifth annual convention of the Photographers' association of America, which met July 20 at Indianapolis, Ind., has awarded Mr. Weston salon honors, the highest award given. The London Salon of Photography gave him last June the honor of hanging five of his pictures. He was awarded first prize at the annual convention of the Photographers' association of America at Atlanta, Ga., last June. The photographic associations of Canada and also of the Northwest states awarded him similar honors.

The August number of the American magazine devotes nearly two pages to a portrait of Mr. Weston and a cut of his "little studio," and to a write-up of his work and his phenomenal rise in the art world.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS NOTES

Former residents of the Middle West will be pleased to learn that stockraisers are doing a prosperous business. We copy from the White-side Sentinel, published at Morrison, Ills., as follows:

C. W. Hanson of Ustick last week shipped a carload of young cattle to Chicago. There were 27 head in the load, averaging around 900 pounds, and they sold for $9 a hundred. The cattle brought $81 a head and Mr. Hanson received a check for $2100 for the load.

The yearlings marketed by R. A. Norrish at Chicago on Monday topped the market for that class of stock, the price paid being $10.05 per hundred, live weight. Mr. Norrish was well pleased with the sale and is satisfied with the returns from his experiment in feeding this class of cattle.

LITERARY THEFT

A few days ago the Evening News stated that it is a moral wrong for an editor of a paper to make use of original news matter without giving the paper from which the articles are copied due credit. Evening News articles, social, civic and educational, the preparation of which cost this office time and money, have been copied without even a "thank you." We hope this theft will not continue.

Glendale is a beautiful city, and can be still made more beautiful by keeping the weeds cleared off on vacant lots.

MAXWELL'S MESSAGE

R. GILHAUSEN COMMENTS ON FRIDAY'S LECTURE—SAYS WE'RE GOING FORWARD

Mr. Maxwell's address last Friday night, though open to criticism at some points was nevertheless a message that should be heard and heeded by every citizen of California.

The warnings as to the danger by floods and the future water supply for irrigating carries weight, coming from a man who has made a scientific study of the subject for some thirty years. He might have given more emphasis to the importance of giving employment to the great army of unemployed in doing this all-important work of reforesting the mountains and reclaiming the deserts. This great army of unemployed is a continual and growing menace to society. They live, consume and destroy wealth while society has to ever increasing her police force for self-protection, while they could be made happy and contented if given a chance to create wealth while conserving the interests of all.

In deploring the indifference and apathy of the people to great public dangers he reiterated the present unheeded warning that has been proclaimed from every pulpit and platform throughout the land of the grave dangers threatening the nation through concentrated wealth. Right here we think he went out of his way to misrepresent the Socialist movement by saying its object was to equalize wealth—the same old worn-out chestnut of dividing up the wealth equally among all. That can be answered in one sentence. We cannot make men equal, but we can give them an equal opportunity.

Mr. Maxwell stated that every man should have the product of his labor. That is a Socialist slogan, but it is meaningless when it does not carry with it the proposition of co-operation and the collective ownership of the resources of nature.

There are only three ways that man can accumulate great wealth. They are rent, interest and profit and these in turn mean but one thing and that is the one great fundamental wrong in our present civilization, namely, exploitation of human labor which means human life. Nothing but the collective ownership of the resources of nature and the machinery of production can eliminate this buying and selling of human life for the enrichment of the few. It is worse than blasphemy to profess to believe in a God and not believe in the brotherhood of man. That he created the sea and air, the coal and land as a heritage for all and tell me how a man can become a millionaire and grant justice to his brother man, but Mr. Maxwell says the remedy lies in putting every man on an acre of ground. Let's see—Japan has this system and still they are cursed with landlordism. Most of the people who cultivate the land do not own it; they have to support idle, parasitic landlords. China has followed this method for three thousand years. Do we want to take a backward step when it is easier to go forward?

Acres farming would eliminate all the gigantic labor-saving machinery and would bring in its place long hours of drudgery. In other words it would substitute the "man with the hoe" instead of the man with the upward look. No, Mr. Maxwell, we are not going backward. We don't even want to look backward. The dawn is ahead; we want more leisure for study and improvement instead of slavery and drudgery and when we are a race of freemen with brotherhood as the corner stone to that freedom men will not have to be urged and bribed to defend their country, for they will truly have a country to defend, for what matters it to the dispossessed millions without a home, without land, without even a job, whether one nation or another governs.

"Swing inward, oh! gates of the future,
Swing outward, ye doors of the past,
A giant is waking from slumber
And rending his fetters at last.
From the dust, where the proud tyrant bound him,
Unhonored and scorned and betrayed,
He shall rise with the sunset around him,
And rule in the realm he has made."

R. GILHAUSEN.

BE WIDE AWAKE

Men and women of Glendale are buying in Los Angeles articles of merchandise that are advertised in the city papers because they do not know that the Glendale merchants sell these articles. The Evening News and Tri-City Progress are the mediums through which wide awake merchants should advertise.

FOR THE PLAYGROUND

DANCE ON MRS. ELLA RICHARDSON'S TENNIS COURT BRILLIANT AFFAIR

One of the most successful social events that has been enjoyed this season was the charming dance given by Mrs. Ella Richardson in behalf of the Pacific Avenue playground, Saturday evening. The function had been well advertised with the result that a large and fashionable crowd attended. Mrs. Richardson had decked and adorned the spacious court with a profusion of flowers and shrubs. Sheltered and shut in as it is on all sides by screening shrubs and trees the court made an ideal place for a Saturday evening dance.

Under a perfect blaze of incandescent lights the decorations and adornments of the court looked like the trappings of some Arabian Nights scene. Everywhere were cozy nooks among the blossoms and comfortable seats and lounges on the veranda and elsewhere throughout the grounds from which the non-dancers were able to view the whirling crowd of delighted young people with advantage.

Mrs. Richardson was assisted in her duties as hostess by Mrs. A. S. Chase. The guests of the evening were charmed with the cordiality of their reception and with the preparations made for their entertainment. The dance music was the very best of its kind. The Thorp orchestra, consisting of F. E. Thorp, cornet; Miss Gertrude Thorp, piano; Miss Pauline Thorp, first violin, and Mrs. Stone, drums and bells, supplied rhythmical music to the merry dancers. One-step, tangoes, fox-trots and all the varied modern dances were indulged in to the profound content of the crowd. The beautiful evening added a charm to this al fresco affair and everybody voted it the nicest function of its kind they had enjoyed for some time. As this was a benevolent dance for the purpose of providing additional funds for the equipment and maintenance of the Pacific Avenue summer playground, it is pleasant to be able to note that quite a sum was obtained from the dance.

Mrs. Richardson will again throw open her grounds on the evening of Thursday, August 12, for a similar affair. An admission of ten cents will be charged on payment of which each one will be given two five-cent coupons which will be good at any concession inside the grounds. The proceeds are to go to the same good cause.

STRICT INSTRUCTIONS

Restrictions of the new game preserve law, forbidding hunting in a large part of the Sierra Madre range, are even more stringent than was supposed from first reports. The text of the law makes it unlawful to hunt, pursue, take, catch, kill, destroy, or even to have in possession any wild bird or wild animal, except such as are predatory, within the game preserve.

Predatory animals may be hunted in the game preserve only by persons having a permit so to do, issued from the Los Angeles office of the state fish and game commission. This means that a rancher living in the game preserve cannot shoot hawks, owls, bobcats or even ground squirrels on his own land without a permit unless he violates the law.

Applications for such permits must be made in writing to Forest Supervisor R. H. Charlton. The proper form of application can be secured from any forest ranger or other officer. Mr. Charlton says he will provide permits only for men owning or in charge of ranches, resorts or other lands within the preserve. The whole law is based on the principal that the state owns the game and ownership of land does not give any right to it.

Possession of game within the preserve is prohibited as a means of enforcing the law against hunting. It will be impossible to have venison or other game within the district and get by with the plea that it was killed outside the game preserve and is merely "in transit."

Carrying firearms within the game preserve is not forbidden by the law, but will be considered grounds for suspicion when the person carrying them does not have a hunting permit. Forest rangers and other officers have been instructed to warn all such persons of the terms of the law, and to enforce it strictly. While it is a state law, practically all the men in the government service have been deputized as state officers for the enforcement of the law.

The man in Glendale who thinks everybody in Glendale knows he is a resident of this city is as much deluded as the man engaged in the mercantile business here who thinks that everybody in Glendale knows of his place of business.

FIRST YEAR OF EUROPEAN WAR

What the world has lost during one year of European war is incalculable. It is impossible to compute the value of towns and villages destroyed, the crops ravaged and trampled into the mire, the destruction of productive industries and the slaughter of the best human element in the various countries. It is possible also only approximately to give totals of killed, wounded and missing. France, Russia and Austria do not give out their figures; Germany latterly has been concealing her losses. British losses are given out from month to month.

It is, however, possible to give estimates that come near the truth. Russia has been the greatest sufferer. Her hordes of half-trained men, drawn from a dozen different nationalities, ill-equipped, ill-fed and poorly clothed, have yielded themselves in droves like sheep, as might have been expected. Germany holds, it is estimated, 1,750,000 Russian prisoners, while altogether Russia has lost in killed, wounded and missing, 3,500,000.

Germany totals up the large loss of 2,300,000 men. Austria-Hungary, 1,900,000; Turkey, 230,000; France, 1,700,000; Great Britain, 480,000; Belgium, 260,000; Servia, 240,000; Japan, 1,210; Italy, 75,000; Montenegro, 30,000. Portugal in colonial fighting in Africa lost a few hundreds, and last comes the little republic of San Marino, which threw in its lot with Italy and which may have lost a few men.

Of course, a large number of those reckoned among the wounded recover and return to the front. The naval losses must be added to those given above and they are not available in full.

The war has cost up to date sixteen billions, five hundred millions ($16,500,000,000) in direct expenditure for military purposes. About 9,000,000 men have been put into the field by Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey, while the allies are credited with having marshaled about 13,000,000.

Still the world sees no immediate chance of putting an end to this criminal expenditure of the results of human production and of human life itself. The war is now costing about $45,000,000 a day, $2,000,000 an hour and $30,000 a minute. It is appalling to think that modern civilization should have come to this terrible shipwreck. On all sides it is admitted that Europe will be left in a pitiable condition when the war is over.

It is believed that the United States will profit largely by the war, at least in so far as she will become the money center of the world. Already the British are admitting that the financial center is shifting to New York and they are professing to believe that they are glad to get rid of the money incubus and prophesying that the United States will get as fat and as indolent as they were discovered to be when the war broke out.

Altogether the opening of the second year of the war finds but little progress made toward a settlement of the differences of the nations, and the various peoples are looking forward with awful anticipation to the new sum of death and expenditure that must be faced.

GERMAN GENIUS IN SONG

What wonderful developments German musical genius has made in the realm of song was displayed to advantage at the delightful Saengerfest in Los Angeles, given by the Great Pacific Saengerbund. To stimulate further interest in this charming kingdom of vocal music, both Kaiser Wilhelm and Emperor Franz-Josef of Austria gave handsome golden cups, which were the coveted honors of the festival. It is greatly to the credit of the singing section of the Los Angeles Turnverein Germania, of which Henry Schoenfeld is conductor, that it should have won the kaiser's cup and also the Austrian cup. San Francisco was second in this competition.

Los Angeles rightly extended its most gracious hospitality to its visitors and many a well-deserved tribute was paid to German musical genius, which has done so much for the world. Glendale is conscious that it has missed a great deal by the change that was made at the last moment in the arrangements of the Saengerbund to spend a day here and charm the citizens of this foothill community with its entrancing harmonies.

The world owes much to Germany for its music. The profound genius of Sebastian Bach and the valuable contributions of Schumann, Franz Abt and many others have laid on mankind a debt that only appreciation, gratitude and interpretation can discharge. The Saengerbund goes to Seattle next year and thus carries up and down the Pacific coast the humanizing influences of its inspiring choruses and its angelic solos. May it long continue its worthy career!

NEW POLAND MAY ARISE

It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. Poland, partitioned during the Napoleonic wars between Germany, Austria and Russia, seems in a fair way to regain unity both of territory and nationality. In the present war the Poles of Russia are arrayed against the Poles of Galicia and German Poland. Brother has been forced to kill brother, and another horror thus added to the terrors of the modern battlefields of Europe. No braver nation ever lived than the Poles. Europe owed them her deliverance from being overrun by the Turks and many a stricken field has testified to their valor and many a record in literature, music and painting and poetry tells of their other virtues and attainments.

Now, however, everything may be changed and Poland may arise from her ashes replete with new life and inspiration. Russia has promised that Poland shall have her freedom and an autonomy when the war is over and the Poles shall once more rule themselves and speak their own language without fear.

Poland has also another promise recently made her by the kaiser, who, in similar fashion, to encourage the Poles to fight, has promised that he will see the kingdom restored to its pristine position and glory. It looks, indeed, as if the Poles stood to win in either event.

Poland, however, is not likely to put too much faith in imperial promises, remembering how Napoleon the Great shamelessly permitted their country to be divided up and shared in the spoil, even after he had pledged his word that Poland should be free. It would, however, be a good thing if Poland were restored as a nation, and the world would rejoice to see the genius of the Poles given free expression.

SOCIAL CENTER IN RURAL SCHOOLS

The following was read by Miss Henrietta Horn at a meeting of the La Canada Valley Improvement association held Saturday evening, July 31:

The social center movement has been most vigorous in certain large cities and it has met a great need. People are realizing that it is poor economy to allow an expensive system of buildings and playgrounds to stand idle so much of the time and are putting the opportunity thus offered to good use. But the social center is needed equally as much in the rural districts. The dearth of amusement and the poverty of social meeting places in the country is one of its great drawbacks and a source of discontent, tending to draw people from the farm. The rural school can do much to remedy this lack, and at the same time increase its own efficiency. The last few years have seen scores of rural school houses and grounds reconstructed with a view to making them available for social as well as intellectual purposes. This movement is being rapidly extended in many states, and is one of the most promising forms of service opening up to the rural school.

"The school belongs to the whole people and can easily be made to serve the social as well as the intellectual requirements of its constituency. Instead of ministering to a very small proportion of the population a few hours each day, twenty days in the month for about three-fourths of a year, it should be of service to all people of its community whenever it can serve their needs."

The social relations in most communities, especially in the west, are not as close as in pioneer days. Inhabitants are more scattered and society is impossible in connection with daily work. "The old-time rural school occupied a large place in the social as well as the intellectual life of the entire community. For it was the center of much truly educational activity besides the formal exercises of the school. Here were held the neighborhood spelling schools, attended and enjoyed by old and young for miles around. Here the neighborhood debating society held its fortnightly meetings during the long winter periods, and discussed the great social and political questions that were agitating the young nation. School exhibitions afforded opportunity for training the oratorical powers of the ambitious youth who was later to win renown in the legislatures or in the halls of congress. The singing school was organized for the lovers of music. Here both old and young assembled to the jingling tune of the winter sleighbells and, amid song and speech and laughter, joined in a merry tune. Here new acquaintances were made, old friendships renewed, courtships begun and a thousand other advantages attained which are impossible without a common neighborhood meeting place and social center."

Churches have been more or less used for this purpose, but rarely does it happen that a church is supported by a whole community. Many do not belong to a church and others cannot co-operate; especially, if there be more than one. The church can be a social center, but never THE social center.

Many states have passed laws requiring the schoolboards to open the schoolhouses to the public when the public desires it. In California all public school buildings can be thrown open to any legitimate social use of the community, and provide that the state shall pay the heating and lighting expenses.

To make the people feel that the social center belongs to them, they should initiate all the work. Social center means entertainment, amusement, social functions, political and sociological discussions, and debate. If these centers are to succeed in a rural community their success must come through their ability to serve the farmer and his wife along the lines of thought and endeavor that appeal to him, for almost without exception the rural communities are engaged in some phase of agricultural work.

Along with this demand for rural social centers comes the need for a new kind of rural school. It is evident that the schools which served the purpose well during the last century will not now suffice. Times have changed. The world is on the move. New standards have arisen, and new demands are in force. We no longer go to war with the old flintlock on the Springfield, but with an automatic machine that will shoot several times a second for hours without ceasing. The rural school of today is apt to be a bad copy of a poor city school. They need to be ruralized and out of this new kind of school will grow the new rural social center. They need to become real laboratories of farm life where children study the things their parents are interested in and laboring with on the farm. This will tend to arrest the drift of the rural population to the cities, which is one per cent a year during the present generation.

The possibilities for educational extension through the rural social center are unrealized at present. It serves to bring the school and community together, to make the parents and teachers acquainted and shows parents the progress their children have made in school. Second, extension courses may be given in agriculture for the young men and in domestic economy for the young women. Third, extension lectures and farm-

LECTURE ON CZARISM

Lieut. M. Swartzkopsky, who was at one time a lieutenant in the life-guards of the czar, lectured Sunday evening in the Congregational church on "What Czarism Means to Civilization." The church was crowded, part of the audience being compelled to stand. The lecturer told of the dreadful scenes in Petrograd at the time when the people were shot down by the Cossacks when bearing a respectful petition to the czar, and their bodies lay to the number of 15,000 in the streets of the capital, eaten by dogs and subjected to every indignity. He told of his life in exile in Siberia and how he escaped, and showed graphically the danger he believes to lurk in czarism to the nations of the world. At the request of a number of teachers of Glendale the lecture will be given in the high school some day this week, the date of which will be advertised at once.

We get very little real happiness out of life unless we give useful service in some form.

RURAL SOCIAL CENTER

ers' institutes are given through the state universities. Classes and lectures are paid for by the educational authorities. The agencies which should combine in producing a program are five: The state university, the state agricultural college, the state board of health, normal schools and private colleges, and various organizations for promoting the different phases of public welfare.

In considering other possibilities for educational extension, there is civic debate. Old-time debates on live, current problems would elicit the interest of a community and give the best possible training in public speaking. Now that the county free library system, or the circulating library, has become so widely established, it often happens that the school is the only place where the books can be kept which proves a good plan. Surely the rural school of the future will constitute a library center for its community. Here will be gathered an adequate supply of the world's best books and magazines. These will need to cover a wide range of interests, for the farmer and his family must have wider intellectual interests than those that deal only with their vocation.

California boasts of her public schools and well she may, but, sad to say, her rural schools fall far below the standard set by many of the most progressive states in meeting the rural school problem. Facts go to show that our greatest problem in re-organizing the rural schools is not one of money. Better rural schools are one of the best possible economic investments, and there is always money available for a good investment. The really great problem now confronting us is a social problem—that of arousing the constituency of the rural schools and showing them the opportunities and possibilities that lie just ahead and guiding in a wise movement for better conditions. Let us then consider the social center in the rural school as one means by which these results may be accomplished.

JAPANESE AT THE FAIR

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 1.—While daring Japanese aviators dropped old coins from the Flowery Kingdom, a mile-long Japanese kimona parade wended its way through the San Diego exposition and Japan Day was fittingly celebrated July 31st. It proved to be one of the best of the special days given at the exposition and drew a crowd of 27,000. The celebration served to acquaint exposition visitors with the centuries-old customs of Japan, and it also gave them an insight into the brown men's progressiveness under the new regime.

Incidentally the ingenuity of the Japanese was shown in the dropping of coins from aeroplanes, or each package of coins was suspended from a miniature parachute which had a circumference of about the size of a saucer. With the immense aviation field lined with people standing several hundred feet deep, the Japanese staged in the program in the afternoon the games and events being typical of the country represented.

Just as the sun sank over the Point Loma headlands in a blaze of glory ten thousand Japanese lanterns strung in gay festoons throughout the grounds were lighted and there was a colorful air of Oriental splendor. From the lofty tower of the California building great festoons of imported Japanese lanterns swung in the breeze. At a late hour the great crowd of visitors filed out of the grounds, voting Japanese day as furnishing one of the most enjoyable of the exposition programs. Each visitor was given a souvenir.

Managers of the Eastland appear to have perverted a popular rule to make it read "Profit First."

A San Diego correspondent tells of a fence three and a half miles long and half a mile wide. Some fence.

MOVIE SALARIES

Through revelations made in a court action, the public learns what the stars of the movie world receive. The top-notch pay is $1500 a week, this ranging down to the comparatively humble $250. What proportion of these sums is stage money is not made public. If such salaries really prevail, they are absurdly out of keeping with salaries in general, or with the ability the actors display. However, this is a personal affair. A thing is worth, in a sense, whatever the owner can get for it, and if the subject of the barter is individual service, the rule holds good. There are few men in business life, however dignified and important their stations, who receive even $50,000 a year. The stated salary of the president of the United States, one of the leading figures in world affairs, is less than the income of one girl endowed with a winning manner and a comely face. Seems ridiculous, but it is all right, so long as the president and the pretty miss are satisfied. If a suggestion might be made it would be that the producers of films expend a larger share of the money they have to burn upon procuring scenarios, offer premiums for original ideas, replace a film that is worn by use as to endanger eyesight and even let subordinate actors partake in some measure in the general prosperity that seems to be part of the movie business.—Pasadena News.
