The northern mail of yesterday brought be no intellig of importance, except several ship wrecks that have occurred New York; and some fires in Buttimore.

The rumor was reiterated relative to the reju law of indemnity for our claims by the French chamber of deputien but this time it assumed a different phase-that the chamber had abruptly adjourned without considering that law. Bot this subject, as we undertook its discussion more in sorrow than anver: rather as a compelled duty that wo ewe to the citizens of the lower fairbourg in having their interests fairly advocated on the principles of equity, than from a desire apparently prevalent with our adversaries, Appear the better reason, to perplex And dash maturest counsels. Victory was indeed our object; but it was the vict of justice and truth, not of interested animosities.

Our remarks were so shamefully bandied and falsified. that we treated the replies with the silence of contemp or chagrin. This silence has now been singularly conki k of a jackage? The editor of a morning journal has crowed cockalorum for his protege of an afternoon paper; eily employed in throwing the whells at the slumbering lion; and the other sedulously engaged in entomologica researches on his own carcase. But the awakened penditure of the corporation for works of paving etc. done ed those done within the same period in the lower faudollars; and this we were enabled to do by authentic ridering that the city revenues from the upper faubourg during the time of this expense, fell far short of the expenditures incurred, we fairly inferred that that faubourg was indebted to the corporation. This was a conclusion so astounding to those interested, that they would not be persuaded however convinced; und therefore they must endeavor to falsify facts.

Our comperison was based solely on the contrast of two wards of the faubourg St Mary, and two wards of the faultourg tMarigny. This plan was too equitable and elucidatory to be adopted by our adversaries; but we cannot permit their subterfuge. Without extending (as formerly) our remarks to the comparative expenditures since the incorporation of the upper faucan judge of their accuracy who inspect the last annual message of the mayor. In that document it is stated that from April 32 till April 35, the expense for paving in the upper faubourg was $181,588 14; While for the lower, it was only $94,556 70, being a difference of $107,021 44; enterprize. and for the whole of the city, it was only $551,329 61, being a difference of only 369,741 47, wherewith to pave the whole of the city exclusive of the upper faubourg. It therefore appears that the expenses for paving in that sub-expenses necessarily incurred for the construction of the former vote of subscription to the stock of the company. The wharfs, etc. in the faubourg St Mary, the excess of drafts objects of the company are for the benefit of the city and from the city treasury for that faubourg in comparison with the lower, would be enormous. Yet the interested will always find cause of complaint.

Looking further, we find the same document specifies that the upper faubourg is indebted to the corporation, in rod stated. Here is the statement of MriPilie himself in his oficial capacity.

Did we choose to extend our researches further, we might easily make more exposures: and display the manifest abs irdity and injustice of reiterating complaints of sectional feelings against the members of the cay council Court from 1791 to 1799; the 2d contains reports of Lord representing the lower wards of the city. But we have Raymond; the 31, reports of cases decided in the King's not time nor Jesire to prolong this discussion; yet if we shall Bench, Common Pleas and Chancery of England, comthe again driven to it we may be tempted to represent what mencing with the Easter term 1933; and the 5th part will may not be consolatory to our opponents or their patrons.

But we were sorry to perceive that the mayor intellect. believed it necessary in his message then presented to give n admonitory cantion on the subject to the council. Be ore engaging the city (he wrote) in this chterprize, I think special to reflect maturely on the chances of success which it may have; and to examine with impartiality the argaments which have been used for and against."

The idea of the mayor is perfectly correct, although un mely and unnecessarily given; for it hald out a menace of is veto on an affirmative resolution of the council to engage he city in the project. The subject has already been maturely investigated; and when sanding before the legislature, We believe that one and only one speaker (at least in the enkte) attempted to prove the impracticability of the scheme nent of facts. And as to the utility of the messure as regards the salubrity and (by necessary consequence) the increase of pubulation and trade, there can be no doubt.

But the mayor mays it is mecessary to weigh the argusents used for and against the practicability and success of the enterprize. There were indeed arguments used agains oth in a triweekly namer chiled 'The Independent,' which vers perhaps more immediately alluded to in the message. rockyobbore; and would not be credued even by the credu- a bject, being predicated who'l, on the impracticability of

The outlines of a plan have been indeed deligerted by Mr Crozet, which indicate 'almost cor. tain success. The lands are to be divided into sections, in erspersed in all direct ons hy-properly constructed canale, which will flow into a reservoir; and thence by machine y, he waters will be discharged into the adjoining river or lake. That similar means have been successful to ensure similar objects, has been fully tested in France and strued into defeat; bet should any philosopher return the Roland : so that the plan cannot be considered as an idle for propelling the waters will depend on localities or condibecause the latter continued his rhap-odical membacities, tional circumstances; but petty canals worked even with a lion quietly sleeping after his repast; and our antagonist red plantations in various parts of Louisiana : and if success but as a monkey perched on a neighboring pole cracking ful on a small scale, why not on a much greater with pro nuts and muniching his kernels-white one paw was bu- per inschinery? Surely the probabilities here are taniamoun as used by the Independent, are beyond the question. Every experienced geologist or pratical agriculturiat is aware of the absorbent or infiltrating qualities of earthy soils; and tha penetrable by fluids. The process of filtration is therefore resev and ensured. No doubt that so long as mundation in the upper faubourg since its corporation, have exceed- prevails, filtration is prevented; but the inundation being prevented by levees and canals, filtration consequently prebourg by the enormous sum of upwards of 205 thousand vails:—Arat is plainly, the lands are reclaimed, metorated and rendered arable-pervious to Reat of fluids. The opacity or imperviousmess of soil is that the result of a continued cohesion of its particles; remove the causes of that cahe sion, and the opacity is destroyed. The arguments based on infiltration are therefore completely nullified.

It is not indeed very probable that the geological know ledge of his honor the mayor, or his coadjutor of the linde pendent, is superior to that of the most experienced engineers and agricultura ists of all countries, where inundated and marshy lands have been rendered arable; and it must be very singular that their hypothetical arguments should be placed in contraposition with irrefragable facts, us to the practicability of meliorating awamp lands.

And as to the success of the project, it is not very I kely that such intelligent gentlemen as those appointed commissioners of the company, would embark their property in the enterprize, if they were not fully convinced that they can bourg, we shall limit them to the past three years; as all effectively attain their objects by the means they may prefer. Those commissioners are Mestra T Barrett, C Genois, A B Roman, J Pilie, M'W Hoffman, F Gardere, J Hopkins, A Hoa, F Frey, J Forstall, J P Freret and J H Shepherd,
