CONSERVATIVE POLITICIANS WITH AID OF MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS GAIN CONTROL OF THE SPANISH BANK SANDS

Rogers Gives Lease to Vancouver Company Which Proposes Without Plant or Financial Investment to Charge Twenty Cents Per Cubic Yard for Sand of the Sea- shore in English Bay

SUPPLY MEN ARE UP IN REVOLT AND WILL FIGHT COMBINE IN LAW COURT ON FRIDAY

Vancouver, June 26.—Even the sands of the sea are not safe from the operations of political grafters. There has just come to light a deal by Conservative politicians of this city, aided and abetted by Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, and by H. H. Stevens, M. P. for the city of Vancouver, which for audacity throws into the shade anything accomplished in the palmiest days of Boss Tweed and his gang in New York city.

For years past, indeed, ever since there has been a Vancouver, the building supply men of this city have been in the habit of pumping sand from Spanish Bank in English Bay, off Point Grey. This is a sand deposit created by the action of the Fraser river and the tides combined, and it provides the only pure building sand within reasonable distance of the city.

The firm of Champion & White have been dredging this sand for twenty-two years; that of Thomas G. McBride & Company have been doing so for eighteen years past; and other supply men have been doing the same for a lesser time. The result has been beneficial in two ways. It has aided in keeping down the price of the sandbank and thus assisting navigation. It has given building sand to the contractors of the city at the lowest possible price and of the best quality obtainable on the Pacific coast. No one was being injured, except those who cast envious eyes upon the sandbank; and the city as a whole benefited.

This condition lasted for years. But the sort of men who are looking for easy money, the "Rufus Wallingfords" of Vancouver saw in Spanish Bank an opportunity for making money without working and so, through H. H. Stevens, M. P., they made application to the late minister of public works at Ottawa, Hon. F. D. Monk, for a lease of the sandbank so as to grab its money-making possibilities for themselves. But, to the surprise of the public, the application was ruthlessly rejected. And it must be added that when a similar proposition was put before Mr. G. H. Cowan, K. C., during his term of office as M. P. for Vancouver, he declined to endorse it or forward the scheme in any way.

But the scheme did not die heartily. With the disappearance of Mr. Monk from the public works department, they saw a chance of getting their plans accepted, and when Hon. Robert Rogers was made minister of public works they took to the credit of the gentlemen's disregard for the public interest when party friends had to be favored, and so the chief promoter of the enterprise, William John Pascoe, went to Ottawa, planted himself on the threshold of the public works department and put in an application for the leasing of Spanish Bank to the Silica Sand & Gravel Company, Ltd., as the organization of Pascoe and his associates is described in the provincial letters patent of incorporation granted to them at Victoria. The membership of the directors of the company is not known yet, but in addition to Pascoe, who acted as its agent in Ottawa, it has a Mr. Gunn as its secretary at its offices at 434 Robson street, Vancouver, and a Mr. Colvin Gray as one of its active members.

Pascoe did not stay in Ottawa for nothing. Aided by H. H. Stevens, he laid siege to Rogers, and his siege was rewarded by the signing, on April 2, 1913, of a lease granting to the Silica Sand & Gravel Company, Ltd., a licence to dredge and take away sand for building and other purposes from Spanish Bank.

Meanwhile the building supply contractors had been dredging away for sand on Spanish Bank, as usual, without any idea that the "get-rich-quick" men were busy; but they soon got a rude awakening. A week or so after the lease was signed at Ottawa, a rumor reached Vancouver that the grab had been made and telegrams of inquiry were sent to Ottawa by the Vancouver Gravel & Sand Association asking if the rumors were true that an individual lease had been granted to Spanish Bank to the detriment of the

TORNADO DAMAGES CROPS IN NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Nebr., June 26.—A tornado, accompanied by a terrific hail and rain storm in Central Nebraska last night, damaged crops in the little village of Keneasaw, 180 miles west of here and demolished several farm buildings. No lives were lost.

The hail pounded the crops into the ground in many places. Telephone and telegraph lines are down at Keneasaw, and meagre reports reaching here estimate the damage at $100,000.

FURS BRING $10,000.

Tacoma, June 26.—At the regular auction sale of Alaska furs yesterday, about $10,000 was realized. One silver fox pelt, said by dealers to be one of the most perfect specimens brought to the States in many months, brought $444. It was purchased by a St. Paul house. Mink brought $550 each. A lot of seven otter pelts went for $110.

FOREST FIRES ON KENAI PENINSULA

Washington, D. C., June 26.—Serious fires are raging on the Kenai Peninsula, Alaska, and are devastating forests on the public domain outside of the Chugach national forest, according to telegraphic advices to the bureau of forestry late yesterday. The extent of damage is not known here, but the fire-fighting force of the Chugach forest has been ordered on the scene. The Kenai Peninsula lies between the Chugach forest and the Aleutian Peninsula, and is not far from Kodiak island, devastated by volcanic ash a year ago.

JUMPED FROM CAR.

Rochester, N. Y., June 26.—Six foreigners jumped from the windows of a moving electric car yesterday when a fuse blew out, frightening them. The men fell under the wheels of the trailer. Two were instantly killed and two others were probably fatally injured.

PROTEST OF HINDUS RECEIVED AT OTTAWA

Hon. Dr. Roche Who Returns To-day is to Investigate Complaint

CONTINUOUS PASSAGE POINT RAISED AGAIN

Ottawa, June 26.—The department of immigration has received a resolution from Hindus in Vancouver protesting against the alleged exclusion of Hindu women from Canada, and asking that promises made by Hon. Robert Rogers to a deputation at the time he was minister of the interior be lived up to. Hon. Dr. Roche, who returns to Ottawa to-day, will investigate the matter.

Under the order-in-council of May, 1910, admission of immigrants who have come to Canada otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are native is prohibited. There is at the present time nothing in the regulations preventing the entry of Hindu women providing they comply with the above order-in-council by coming direct from their native land on a continuous passage. They would, of course, in addition, be amenable to the regulations that apply to other natives of the British Empire, and have to prove they are desirable emigrants suitable for life in the Dominion.

After the original influx of Hindus who came to British Columbia via Hokkaido a report showed that there were 5,300 Hindus in Canada. Unquestionably all of these are in the coast province. By the figures taken at the last census, in 1911, there were then less than half this number in the whole Dominion. Many of them had found climate and living in Canada too hard, and had migrated to California or had returned to their native land.

EXCLUSION BILL IS UP BEFORE CONGRESS

Representative Humphrey Plans
Revival of India in Same Class as Chinese.

Washington, D. C., June 26.—Exclusion of Hindus from the United States is provided in a bill introduced to-day by Representative Humphrey, by placing them in the same class with China, so far as entrance into this country is concerned. "Hindus are the most undesirable of any class of aliens, permitted to enter this country," said Mr. Humphrey.

"They have been able to get in without restraint by immigrating to the Philippines, residing there for a short time, and then coming over to this country. The bill I have introduced not only prohibits the coming into the United States directly from their own country, but also through the Philippine gateway."

Representative Humphrey has discussed the proposed legislation with the immigration bureau, and he believes they will not object to the enactment.

MEN MISSING AFTER DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Eight Italians Killed Five of Whom Cannot Now Be Found.

Kingston, Ont., June 26.—Eight Italians lost their lives in an explosion of dynamite which occurred at an early hour this morning in the construction camp of the C. P. R. about ten miles from Parham. Three bodies have already been recovered. The accident occurred on one of the company's short lines.

Michael Guire, Italian foreman, is missing. He was employed by Johnston Bros. contractors and about a dozen other Italians were working with him. They had started to prepare for a blast to take up some material, and just before the time to set off, a spark was generated and there was a terrific explosion. Some of the men were torn to pieces and others buried under tons of debris. Five men are missing in addition to those recovered.

KANSAS CITY UNIONS TO DECIDE TO-MORROW

Kansas City, Mo., June 26.—An agreement by representatives of all the city trades unions of Kansas City to call a general strike in compliance with the request of the local building trades council for aid in their conflict against the lockout of about 400 men, was decided on to-day. At a meeting of the industrial council Friday night definite action will be determined. If a general strike should be called about 10,000 men would be affected.

WITNESS ADMITS HE TESTIFIED FALSELY

Surprise Occasioned in Spiritum Trial at New Westminster This Morning

SAYS HIS STORY WAS INVENTED BY INDIAN

New Westminster, June 26.—A sensational incident occurred this morning in the Paul Spiritum case, which is expected to continue in the assize court until the end of the week. This morning at 11 o'clock Willie Vedan was giving evidence, being called as a crown witness, and was asked by Mr. Macneil for the crown, if he had ever gone hunting with Spiritum. He replied that he had not, and being asked why he had given a different reply to a similar question at the Vernon trial, he replied that what he had said at Vernon was not true, that the whole story he had related there was made up by "Thomas Jack, another Indian."

"I really forget what I did say at Vernon," said the witness, who speaks very fair English.

"Were you paid anything for your testimony?"
"No, I did not even get a drink," replied the witness, somewhat flippantly.

His lordship ordered the man into custody and suggested to counsel for the crown that it was a matter he might well take up. Mr. Macneil agreed to take up the question of starting a prosecution on a perjury charge at once.

This witness had followed another very unsatisfactory Indian witness, a young woman named Nancy Emma, who had also given evidence at Vernon regarding a meeting with two Indians, but said she could not identify the prisoners as one of them.

His lordship noticed a snifle pass between the accused and the witness, and asked the latter if she were related to Spiritum.

She said a moment later that she did not remember what she had said at Vernon. Her conduct in the box did not favorably impress the learned judge, who said as he dismissed her: "If you were a white girl I would commit you to jail."

MAY STOP SALE OF TORPEDO TO BRITAIN

United States Government Seeks Injunction After Re- fusing Chance to Purchase

New York, June 26.—Protection of naval secrets is the object of proceedings by the federal government for an injunction to restrain the E. W. Bliss Company from demonstrating to the British government the process of making and using the Bliss-Leavitt torpedo.

Judge Vesper, of the United States district court at Brooklyn, yesterday reserved decision on the question of granting the injunction as requested by the assistant United States attorney-general.

"This torpedo is the principal weapon of our navy," said the assistant attorney-general. "The right arm of the nation's defence calls on this court to protect its rights. The navy department recently received notice that the Bliss company intends to disclose the complete construction and observations of the Bliss-Leavitt torpedo to British interests. If this is done, any country can obtain the torpedoes in the market, an act which would do irreparable injury to the United States."

Counsel for the Bliss company contended that the only public right the United States government had in the torpedo was its share in the invention of the balanced turbine, a feature already known to all the naval world.

"We gave the government an opportunity to purchase the universal rights to the torpedo," he said, "and it did not take it."

THREE KILLED IN WRECK NEAR OTTAWA WHO WERE UNKNOWN ARE NOW IDENTIFIED

Railway Commission Sends Officers to Scene to Investigate; Public Inquiry Opened This Morning is Adjourned and Will Be Thorough

Ottawa, June 26.—The identity of the unknown woman killed in the Canadian Pacific wreck near here yesterday has been established. She is Mrs. H. McClure, 551 Sutherland street, Edmonton, and the unidentified boy and girl given in the early dispatches are her grandchildren.

At the scene of the wreck this morning the line had been cleared away to permit the passage of trains, but the coaches are piled up beside the track or lying side-on in the shallow bay of the Ottawa river. With the exception of one, the cars can be repaired, though they are badly twisted and strained.

The railway commission officers will start their investigation to-day but any reports they make are, under the regulations, confidential to the board. The public inquiry began at noon to-day, when the coroner's jury formally viewed the remains at Rogers' morgue and adjourned to take evidence when the witnesses shall have been summoned. Crown-Attorney Ritchie will watch the case on behalf of the crown.

It is understood that the inquiry will be a thorough one and conflicting reports as to the cause of the wreck will be thoroughly investigated. The section foreman denies that at the time of the accident repair work was proceeding at the point. He states that it was a considerable distance west of the wreck and that the track when gone over yesterday was in good condition.

The Toronto and Pembroke trains had passed over it a few hours before. It may be a matter of difficulty to determine the real cause of the disaster as the rails are badly twisted and the roadbed torn up while the undergear of the coaches is largely broken. Peculiar misfortune has attended some of the immigrant party who figure in the accident. On the way across, a child belonging to one of them was struck by a wave, hurled against a hatchway and killed. Another dislocated his ankle. For the remainder of the voyage the hatches were closed and there were few opportunities to get on deck.

The many injured at city hospitals are doing as well as can be expected, but as several were severely injured it is likely there will be more deaths.

Since yesterday over 15,000 people visited the scene of the wreck.

Scores of telegrams making inquiries and cables from England reached here. John Boyce, a passenger from Donaghy, gave a graphic description of experiences while being taken to St. Luke's hospital. He was standing at the end of one of the coaches, making some tea, when the crash came. He had taken off his boots and was enjoying his first me, when the next thing he knew he was struggling in the water. How he got there, he cannot tell, but surmises that he must have been thrown through the window. He sustained a severe gash, two inches long, under the right eye, besides being badly shaken up. The blow he received in the derailment of the train stunned him, and the cold water revived him sufficiently to enable him to get out of the river. He is reposing quietly at St. Luke's hospital. He was

GAME OF CARDS ENDS IN DEATH AND WOUNDS

Constable Killed and Assailant Wounded in Pursuit During the Night.

Salt Lake City, Ut., June 26.—His arrest caused by a woman, Giovanni Anselmo, a tailor, 23 years old, lies in the jail hospital ward to-day seriously wounded as the result of his attempt late last night to escape a cordon of police. Anselmo is believed to be the man who slashed Peter Masai with a razor and then shot and killed Policeman Thomas H. Griffiths, who had placed him under arrest.

Brandishing a revolver, Anselmo broke from the shed of a relative, where he had taken refuge, when Mrs. D. L. Cook led the police to the spot last night. A dozen flashlights outlined the fugitive and revolvers were fired. He fell screaming with a bullet in the groin. Another struck him in the breast, but a pocketbook prevented a mortal wound.

Anselmo escaped a crowd of pursuers yesterday after shooting Griffiths. Late last night Mrs. Cook, who had been watching for him, saw him enter the house of his uncle. She telephoned the police.

The trouble started with Masai in a saloon over a game of cards. Anselmo, who had been drinking, says he remembers nothing of shooting Griffiths.

APPOINTMENT CONFIRMED.

Ottawa, June 26.—At a cabinet council meeting this afternoon an order-in-council was passed appointing Arthur Melghen, M. P. for Portage la Prairie, to the position of solicitor-general. Another order authorized the issue of a writ for the necessary bye-election.

FLOODS OF LETTERS SENT ON CURRENCY

Americans Have More Varied Ideas on Matter Than Any Other Before Congress

PROPOSED TREASURY AS DIRECT BANKER

Union Pacific Head Makes Charge That Congressmen Are Impersonated

CLAIMED ABILITY TO GREASE THE WHEELS

Washington, D. C., June 26.—Officials engaged in the preparation of the new currency reform bill are convinced that Americans have more varied ideas upon the money question than upon any other before congress. Floods of letters have come to the House and senate currency committees and the executive departments since the general scope of the bill became known.

A representative of the People's Power League recently proposed to a senator that the treasury should issue money directly to citizens upon the value of land or property an individual might own. Another proposition was that building and loan associations should be taken in under the new currency plan, and have the same right as national and state banks, to secure the proposed new currency.

One scheme offered calls for a direct issue of currency, under proper safeguards, upon farm land values. Loans by the government to farmers at 4 per cent. on their land was proposed by another who suggested the government should get the necessary money for that by issuing bonds.

Several currency "experts" have recommended that the government make a straight-out issue of "flat money" secured by the general credit of the government.

A final revision of the administration currency bill was introduced to-day by Rep. Glass. The original for the retirement of the present national banknotes and their replacement by the new notes authorized by the bill, was replaced by the provision allowing country banks to deposit a part of their reserves was revised, and the federal regional banks were given the authority to fix the rate of discount, subject to the approval of the federal reserve board.

Robert S. Lovett's charge that men impersonating members of congress have been making demands on Wall street financiers, has stirred congressional circles to the depths. Lovett, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad, made such a charge before the senate lobby investigating committee last night, saying that men impersonating representatives had claimed to be able to "grease the wheels in Washington" for the Union Pacific merger dissolution.

While the lobby committee was in recess to-day, plans for following the trail Lovett disclosed were being taken up by members.

Justice W. Gerard, of the New York State Supreme Court, has been selected by President Wilson as ambassador to Germany. Justice Gerard was originally slated for Spain.

Free sugar in 1913, as approved by President Wilson, was accepted by the senate caucus late yesterday. Senator Shaforth's amendment for a duty of 1-2 cent a pound, Senator Thornton's amendment to continue the Underwood rates and all others were voted down.

MASQUERADED AS MALE TO ESCAPE INSULTS

Young Girl Leaves San Francisco Jail to Be Married This Morning.

San Francisco, June 26.—Sixteen-year-old Aileen Shaw of Eureka, who was arrested yesterday for masquerading in male attire, was led to-day from her cell in the city jail to the marriage altar by Joseph Sturges, the suitor whose search for a wife led to her arrest.

There is no disposition on the part of the police or anybody else to press a charge against her.

The reason the girl gave for wearing men's clothes was that as a girl she could not earn a living in San Francisco and be free from insult.

Eureka, Cal., June 26.—Aileen Shaw, the sixteen-year-old girl arrested yesterday in San Francisco for wearing men's clothes, has a former sweetheart serving a life sentence in San Quentin penitentiary on her account.

His name is George Clark, and he murdered Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baxter a year ago at Jacoby Creek to revenge a fancied insult to Aileen Shaw. Miss Shaw's home is in Eureka, but shortly after the conviction of Clark she went to Portland, Ore.

SUSPENSION ORDERED OF FEDERAL OFFICIAL

Authority From Washington Falls on Man Who Opposed McReynolds

San Francisco, June 26.—Clayton Harrington, federal investigator of white slave cases in the United States the evidence in the Digs-Caminetti cases and who called upon President Wilson to oust Attorney-General McReynolds from office for his action in the McNab matter, was suspended from office yesterday upon orders from Washington.

Just previous to receiving his suspension, Mr. Harrington had dispatched the following night letter to President Wilson:

"As a citizen of California I charge that officials in the department of justice, and of commerce and labor, in disregard of judgments of the courts and in violation of law, have prevented deportations in this state. I demand an investigation of these matters, complete information as to which is on file at Washington."

In a public statement issued last night Mr. Harrington says: "To sustain a Washington official whose decision he overrules and blame another for doing what he himself now orders done, is not only inconsistent and unjust, but is a humiliating evasion of the responsibilities of his high station."

"McReynolds' explanation is even more pitiable. His excuse is that the facts were not fresh in his memory, and blames McNab for not jogging it a second time. McReynolds needs a better memory as much as the president needs a better attorney-general."

HUGH KENNEDY Local Manager

CHAIRMAN DRAYTON HURRYING EXHIBITS

Six Weeks for Expert to Prepare List and Three More for Counsel

Ottawa, June 26.—With an indefinite adjournment, which the government counsel asked to be set as late as possible, the now famous Western rate case completed another phase yesterday. The cross-examination of W. B. Lanigan, western freight traffic manager of the C. P. R., was continued in the afternoon by Isaac Pitblado, of Winnipeg, and W. A. Macdonald, of British Columbia. At the conclusion of this, Chairman Drayton, of the Board of Railway Commissioners, told H. W. Whittle that the exhibits now being prepared by J. P. Muller, the American rate expert, would have to be hurried.

Chairman Drayton finally fixed the time for the presenting of the final Muller exhibits in the hands of counsel at six weeks. Three weeks later counsel must be prepared to submit their criticism, in which there must be outlined the principles upon which it is desired that the board should take action.

"We must have no more enlargements and no more excuses," declared the chairman.

Judging from the progress the hearing will be resumed about the middle of September. The chairman also made some remarks on the character of the evidence that has been put in both by the railway companies and by the opposing counsel. He outlined half a dozen particular questions that in his mind had important bearing on the case, and told counsel for both sides that these must be argued by the date, which would be fixed by him later, when the case came before the board again.

During the session Mr. Pitblado criticized the basis of rate comparisons taken by Mr. Lanigan in the C. P. R. exhibit. He said the exhibit was not a comparison between one movement and another. If these exhibits were to be any good, the actual rates people had to pay must be compared, and not the "spectral rates" Mr. Cowan had already referred to.

Chairman Drayton said that C. P. R. Exhibit No. 29 had nothing to do with actual traffic movements. He asked Mr. Pitblado's opinion as to whether the size of a point of destination affected the commodity rate thereto, but to this Mr. Pitblado was not prepared to give an answer. He stated, however, that he did not think it was possible to make a comparison between mileage rates.

Dealing with figures of population submitted by Mr. Lanigan it was contended by Mr. Pitblado that the figures do not mean anything unless reflecting on the earnings of the railways.

Mr. Lanigan thought that difference in population was at least an important factor in the consideration of the question of rates. He contended that a distributing condition on the Canadian side of the line differs from those on the American side because St. Paul and Minneapolis are in a larger sense distributing points.

Mr. Pitblado asked if it was not so that the Canadian railways have the advantage of carrying the bulk of the freight from the head of the lake to Winnipeg in trainload lots, the easiest kind of freight transportation.

Mr. Lanigan replied that Mr. Pitblado was working on a wrong theory. The long haul through unproductive territory between Fort William and Winnipeg, he said, was a disadvantage rather than otherwise to the railways. Later on he said that in arriving at proper conclusions as to rates it was not proper nor advisable to divide a railway into sections.

Mr. Lanigan admitted that in his comparison on revenue to be gained on earliest shipment of Canadian goods as between the C. P. R. and the Great Northern Railway he had not taken into account certain mileage rates in force between intermediate points on the Great Northern. Mr. Lanigan explained that these did not apply for the comparative distance quoted.

PRINCESS SUES FOR PRICE OF PORTRAIT

Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars is Sum Millionaire Objects to Pay for His Picture.

New York, June 26.—Sue is filed against James B. Haggin, aged millionaire mining man and horseman, by Princess Vilma L. Wolff-Parlaghy, noted as a portrait painter to royalty, claiming $25,000 alleged to be the price agreed upon for a portrait of Mr. Haggin, painted by the princess. Counsel for the portrait painter said he understood Mr. Haggin's reason for not wishing to pay the bill was that he had never understood $25,000 was to be the price charged.

The princess, however, the lawyer, declared, is quite positive that was the amount agreed upon here the nonagenarian horseman began to sit for his portrait on May 1. The canvas hangs at present in Mr. Haggin's residence here.

HONOR DEAD SOLDIERS.

Paris, June 26.—A monument was unveiled in the orchard at Hougomont, near Waterloo, yesterday. It was erected by the French in memory of their countrymen who were killed in that historic battle. The monument is an unobtrusive affair and is of upright shape, something like a gravestone. It is inscribed with Napoleon's words, referring to his men in the famous fight, "The earth seemed proud to bear so many brave men."

TEELS OF NARROW ESCAPE IN MOTOR

Mrs. Mann Who Was Hurt in C. P. R. Train Was in Danger Previous Day

Vancouver, June 26.—Her narrow escape from death when a bullet was fired into the observation car of a C. P. R. train at Mission on Saturday night last, was not the only exciting experience that Mrs. A. R. Mann, of Shaughnessy Heights, wife of A. R. Mann, head of the Northern Construction Company, has passed through recently. On Friday, near Kamloops, Mrs. Mann was in an automobile that met another car on a narrow turn on a mountain switchback, the second machine being within an acre of dropping hundreds of feet into a canyon, so unexpected was the meeting.

Mrs. Mann and her home guest, Miss Helen Stewart, of San Francisco, had gone up to Kamloops a day or two before to meet Mr. Mann there. On Friday they motored out to inspect the C. N. R. grade along the North Thompson.

"We were about ten miles from the city and were going along a switchback on the mountain road," said Mr. Mann to-day in describing the incident. "Suddenly, as we turned a corner we met another car sweeping down the road. Our driver drove his machine straight into the high bank. There was even then no room for the other one to pass, and it seemed to all of us in that fraction of a moment that the strange car would go over the edge. He was so close to us at the turn that there was no chance for either to stop. Luckily for him, however, the front wheel of his automobile locked with the front wheel of our car, and that held him up."

There was but a single occupant of the second car, a young man, who seemed somewhat frightened, as well he might have been, so narrow a shave from death had he. After some difficulty the cars were separated, and both went on their way.

Heroic Action of Marine Engineer Prevents Drowning in Burrard Inlet.

Vancouver, June 26.—But for the prompt and heroic action of A. Young Lanstell, a marine engineer, in diving to the aid of little Peter Basougie, the 8-year-old son of a railway employee, who fell overboard from C. P. R. Pier A shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon another name would have been added to the long list of those who have sunk in the depths of Burrard Inlet, as the little lad had disappeared for the second time, and was unconscious when rescued. After seizing the boy Lanstell was forced to swim over fifty yards to the tugboat Clayburn, moored nearby, where willing hands pulled them to safety.

According to the story of the lad he had been playing about the approach to the wharf for some time with a companion when he attempted to walk along a timber bulwark. After covering a short distance, his foot slipped, and in a moment he plunged into the water, which is over thirty feet deep.

Basougie's companion immediately shouted for help, and Lanstell, who resides at the Y. M. C. A. building, and who was looking for a position on the tugboats in that vicinity, immediately responded. Taking in the situation at a glance he made a high dive and succeeded in rescuing the boy.

STILL THE SAME PRICE

Strike conditions have forced us to buy our coal in other markets with the result that both freight and duty add to the cost, but in spite of this we are still supplying our customers at the old prices. After careful investigation on the ground we procured the best Coal obtainable and remember this—whatever the conditions, Painter service is always the same. Order in the morning and you get delivery the same day.

REAR-ADMIRAL WRITES ON JAPANESE SUBJECT

No Connection Between Status as Nation and Privileges of Immigration.

London, June 25.—The Times publishes a remarkable letter from Rear-Admiral A. T. Mahan on the subject of Japanese immigration, which especially mentions Canada, and is of particular interest to British Columbia. It brushes aside minor controversies, and deals broadly and with philosophical calmness.

Admiral Mahan writes in reply to an article by Sir Valentine Chibrel, The Chief Justice of the California Land Act, but the writer pointed out that the ultimate issue involved was whether Japan was entitled to rank among civilized nations whose citizens the public was ready to welcome.

Admiral Mahan holds that while Sir Valentine does not give a decisive reply to this question the whole tone of his paper implies an affirmative response.

Admiral Mahan continues: "In my own appreciation there is no necessary connection between the nation's status

MONEY LENDER MURDERED AND DIAMONDS STOLEN

Record of Persons Obtaining Loans Believed to Be Reason for the Crime.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 25.—Whoever murdered Charles E. Pendell, the wealthy money lender found dead in his office last night, knew of a secret pocket in his clothing and abstracted therefrom several thousand dollars. Diamonds worth about $4,000 also were taken, but the police were not certain to-day whether robbery alone was the motive for the crime.

With the diamonds and money there also disappeared from the loan-office a record book in which Pendell kept the names of those who borrowed of him, and the police say it may have been to gain this book that the crime was perpetrated.

The money lender was given no chance. He was hit with some heavy weapon and toppled over helplessly, and dying within reach of a loaded revolver that lay on his desk. The weapon that killed him was not found. A pillow was bound over his face to prevent an outcry.

The disappearance of the loan record book, supplemented by a statement of Harry Pendell, a son, that his father was threatened by a "Kansas rancher" who claimed to have been checked, prompted the detective department to search Garden, a farming community near Los Angeles, for a man who is known to have had trouble recently with Pendell. Pendell wore a pair of

ESTIMATE MORGAN'S ESTATE.

New York, June 25.—The whole of the J. P. Morgan estate has a value of about $100,000,000, according to an unofficial estimate here credited to Thomas H. Rush, counsel to Alan Comptroller Schner, who has been in Europe the last month examining the books of the Morgan houses in London and Paris to determine the value of the late financier's holdings.

A GREAT DELUSION.

From every quarter of this hitherto prosperous Dominion we hear the same cry. "Money is tight and enterprise is becoming difficult." And to think that for fifteen years Canada enjoyed unexampled prosperity and all the world was commenting on her marvelous prosperity.

SNAPPING OVER THE SPOILS.

The inevitable has happened in the Balkans. The victors are fighting over the spoils, and, crouching in his deep humiliation at Constantinople, the Turk will postpone his lamentations.

The present emuete, affecting principally Bulgaria and Serbia, has to do with the division of Macedonia. Before a shot was fired in the recent war a treaty was ratified between the two powers defining the claims of each sovereignty.

Fortunately the issues are not such as to involve any danger of a great European conflagration, the electrical zones of Albania and Scutari having been definitely provided for.

people of the greatest armies of history, and incidentally showing the Bourbon prince who rules at Sofia to be a man of exceptional genius and force of character.

CRITICIZING HORNE-PAYNE.

Until it is known definitely just what Mr. Horne-Payne said regarding Canadian municipalities and the money market, there is no occasion to fear a passion to tatters or shriek imprecations upon his head.

We observe that Hon. Robert Rogers has added a characteristic note of condemnation to the chorus. His reference to Mr. Horne-Payne is peculiarly roguish.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

An intrepid eastern writer makes the staggering declaration that there has arisen in England a strong agitation in favor of the dethronement of cricket as a popular pastime and the elevation of baseball in its place.

These requirements, they say, are precisely met by baseball. It has become quite popular in France, and now the Germans are taking it up.

But in England the revolution would be even more striking. Mortal imagination can scarcely picture league matches between Oxford and Cambridge, Eton and Harrow.

Agely to the umpire, as he calls an obvious ball a strike and growl "G'wan. The guy partly plunked me on the can."

BRITAIN IN EGYPT.

Why does Great Britain attach so much importance to the control of Egypt? The first answer to this question is that if Egypt is not British territory, the Sudan is partially so, and the power that would hold the Sudan must hold Egypt.

Another obstacle to Britain's withdrawal from Egypt even after it is ripe for self-government is the fact that it is the key to India.

This undoubtedly is the admiralty view, and from its standpoint it is the right one. Britain must hold Egypt, the Mediterranean and a safe short route to India at all costs.

Certain of the great powers of Europe are said to have their eyes on the trade of the Balkan States in the event of the trifling misunderstandings which seem to be chronic over there being eventually settled.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is reported to have said to a reporter at Ottawa that Sir Richard McBride is a wonderfully magnetic man.

Vancouver's supremacy remains unchallenged. Almost as much rain fell there in an hour or so on Tuesday as we have in the wettest month in the year in Victoria.

Among the Popular Songs in "The Belle of New York," the comic opera the Pollards will open their Summer season with at the Victoria Theatre next Thursday is "Teach Me How to Love." The chorus runs:

"Teach me how to kiss dear,
Teach me how to squeeze,
Teach me how to sit upon
Your simple Celtic knees,
Teach me how to coo dear
Like a turtle dove,
Teach me how to fondle you;
Oh! teach me how to love."

Land Registry Act Amendments.—A meeting has been called this afternoon of the Law Society, Land Surveyors' Corporation and the Real Estate Exchange, organized to take up the question of the desired amendments to the land act with regard to the registration of subdivisional plans, and the necessary formalities to be complied with before plans are accepted by the local authorities and the Land registry office.

Victoria Day Celebration.—The Victoria Day celebration committee has announced the balance sheet of the festival on May 24. It shows that the sum of $4,215 was available, made up of a balance of $629, a grant from the city of $2,500, and subscriptions of $1,195. The committee carries forward a balance of over $300, the principal disbursements being $975 for the horse and automobile parade, $925 for the regatta, $450 for music, and $350 for the street carnival.

Belton Avenue Laundry Permit.—In connection with the petition which has been lodged against the grant of a permit to H. Hodgson for a laundry on Belton avenue, and which is now under the consideration of city officials, Mr. Hodgson states that the protest lodged against the building's condition is due not to his neglect, but to the deprecations of boys in the neighborhood who have so destroyed the property and fittings that he cannot get a tenant to stay.

Met Sad Fate.—Mrs. S. V. Bowers, of this city, received word last night from her old home, Wichita, Kansas, that her brother-in-law, Raymond L. Taylor, while descending a stairway fell, his neck being broken. Mr. Taylor visited this city some years ago when the Elks held their convention at Los Angeles and intended making another visit here shortly. He was clerk of the district court for two terms and at the time of his death was a candidate for postmaster under the Wilson administration. Mr. Taylor was a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a member of the Mystic Shrine, an Odd Fellow and an Elk.

Emmanuel Ladies' Social.—A delightful garden party and social was held Tuesday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of Emmanuel Baptist church at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wood, 1694 Fort street. Miss May Wood acted as hostess, and the gardens looked charming with their swinging Japanese lanterns and gay bunting and flags.

The following assisted during the afternoon and evening in selling ice cream, strawberries, sea and other light refreshments: Mesdames Clements, Mierce, Eilers, R. Westcott, Rigby and the Misses W. Sherwood, Rigby, E. Eilers, Agnes Stevenson, Ma-beth Sheepwash and Violet Parfitt. The Emmanuel Orchestra was in attendance and supplied welcome music, a goodly sum being turned over to the Ladies' Aid fund as a result of the undertaking.

Left Horses Untied.—Harry Hobson, for allowing his horse to stand on Langley street on Saturday without being tied, was fined $5 this morning.

Proves a Lengthy Case.—Before the county court adjourned yesterday afternoon the case for the plaintiff company in the Dickey Manufacturing Company vs. Duncan E. Campbell had been completed. There was an adjournment granted until half past two o'clock this afternoon when the case for the defence will be opened by H. A. Maclean, K. C. It will follow the same lines as have marked the cross-examination of the witnesses for the plaintiff company, as to the Westholme Lumber Company being the contractors for the building and not merely the agents for the owner, as the case will date for postmaster under the Wilson administration. Mr. Taylor was a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a member of the Mystic Shrine, an Odd Fellow and an Elk.

It is the tea grown on the hillsides of the world-famous Nuvara Elynda district of Ceylon, used in "Salada" Tea that gives it that rich, uniform, delicious flavor.

Several Changes Authorized by Commission at Yesterday's Sitting.

The following transfers were made by the license commissioners yesterday afternoon: Pioneer Saloon, from Helen Hindmarsh to Katherine McCluskey and removal to the St. James hotel, Johnson street; Tourist saloon, from Edward A. OPENS SATURDAY
Scenic Railway at Gorge Park Will Carry Public for First Time Then.

The scenic railway at the Gorge Park will be formally opened on Saturday, when the attractive addition to the park will receive the public for the first time. There have been delays on account of bad weather, but the management states that it has not been required a permit from the Esquimalt inspector that the safety of the line has never been in question. It has, on the contrary, received official sanction. The line forms a route about a mile long, with an upper and lower heading in a loop, the highest point being about 80 feet above the level of the soil. It passes through a charming bit of the sylvan scenery of the park, and will be the only one north of the boundary in this section of the province.

ESQUIMALT PASSED BY LAW
Authorized Council to Go Ahead With $400,000 Sewerage Scheme.

Esquimalt council was authorized by a majority of the municipality's ratepayers yesterday to spend $400,000 in sewers. Balloting took place in the municipal hall and 217 votes were cast, of which four were rendered valueless by some improper mark thereon and 17 were cast for the by-law and 16 against. Money will now be raised as soon as arrangements can be made and the construction of that portion of the sewer which is to lead into the city's northwest sewer will be commenced.

The Turning Point at the Princess this week is one of the classic productions the company have yet put on. It is received with enthusiasm by well-filled houses.

Win Shield.—The Lieutenant-Governor's Challenge Shield, which is on view in the window of Messrs. Hibben, Government street, has been won by the Fairview Troops of Boy Scouts, Vancouver.

Pemberton Memorial Chapel.—Next Sunday the monthly celebration of Holy Communion will be held at Royal Jubilee hospital at 8 a. m., as well as the weekly service at 10.30. Church people living in the neighborhood, as well as the patients, nurses and members of the hospital staff, are expected to attend.

Provincial Exhibit.—The province will be represented at the following fairs this summer with the usual exhibit, in charge of W. P. Brandrith, the provincial commissioner: Winnipeg, July 15-25; Regina, July 28 to August 2; Toronto, August 7 to September 6; London, September 5-13; Ottawa (date will be announced later); United States Land Show at Chicago, November 20 to December 8.

Proves a Lengthy Case.—Before the county court adjourned yesterday afternoon the case for the plaintiff company in the Dickey Manufacturing Company vs. Duncan E. Campbell had been completed. There was an adjournment granted until half past two o'clock this afternoon when the case for the defence will be opened by H. A. Maclean, K. C. It will follow the same lines as have marked the cross-examination of the witnesses for the plaintiff company, as to the Westholme Lumber Company being the contractors for the building and not merely the agents for the owner, as the case will date for postmaster under the Wilson administration. Mr. Taylor was a thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, a member of the Mystic Shrine, an Odd Fellow and an Elk.

Left Horses Untied.—Harry Hobson, for allowing his horse to stand on Langley street on Saturday without being tied, was fined $5 this morning.

A LINE O' CHEER EACH DAY O' TH' YEAR

By John Kendrick Sangs

WORKING IT OUT.
Got a grouch on Somebody?
Go out in the wood.
Pick out some old sturdy tree,
Give it to him good.

Specify the things you'd say
If he was there.
Pile it on in fiery way.
Fit to scorch his hair.

Roar and ramp, and tear around;
Go it good and hot.
Fill the air with wrath and sound
Sending him to pot.

Then when later he comes by
Meet him with a twinkling eye,
And with cheery greeting say,
"Howdydo, to-day!"

FRASER'S DIARY FOUND

Tells, Among Other Things, of Famous Trip Down Fraser River.

His Honor Judge Howay, of New Westminster, one of the leading archaeologists of the province, has been informed by E. O. Scholefield, provincial librarian, who is now out of the city, that Simon Fraser's original diary has been discovered.

In the absence of Mr. Scholefield it is not possible to tell much of the subject, but the discovery is an important one, detailing as does the diary the record of the wonderful trip of Fraser down the river which bears his name.

The original diary was pledged to a gentleman in this city by his son, John Fraser, when he was a civil engineer in the Cariboo, and the diary subsequently was returned to Fraser's relatives in Ontario, but inquiries as to its ultimate destination proved fruitless.

With historians and antiquaries it has long been a debated point how much of

Sir Edward Grey, K. G., and the Story of Two Crises

(By A. G. G. in London Daily News.)

The war in the Balkans is over. The delegates of the belligerents are in London once more, not to engage in a long and profitless duel of cross-purposes, but to complete the formalities of peace. There are perils still ahead arising out of the conflicting interests of the allies, but the influences which have carried Europe safely over Niagara will not be unequal to the minor task which has still to be accomplished. We can face the future cheerfully, for the sky of Europe is clearer than it has been for years past. It is not merely that the long smouldering menace of the Near East is removed. That is an incalculable gain to peace and to humanity; but it is not the most important fact that emerges from the war. Far more significant is the rehabilitation of the concert of Europe, the recovery of a European public opinion that can override all individual interests, the demonstration of a collective sense of responsibility that can bear the greatest strain that is ever likely to be imposed upon the forces that make for peace. A victory has been won, not merely over the Turk; but over European jingoism. Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war, and the victory of European peace is the most splendid fact of the Balkan war.

In this victory it is agreed on all hands that the chief factor has been the cordial co-operation of Great Britain and Germany. That co-operation is the link that has re-established the concert. It has welded Europe into a whole, and has imposed its restraining authority upon Austria-Hungary and Russia, whose armies were mobilized for action almost throughout the war. And the key to that co-operation has been the detachment of Great Britain from Continental camps and rivalries. We have had a free hand and with that freedom we have preserved the peace of Europe.

November, 1911.

The full significance of this fact can only be realized by casting our minds back to a certain day in November, 1911. We had just emerged from the Moroccan crisis and the House of Commons sat grave and silent as Sir Edward Grey told the story of the peril through which we had passed. We had been on the brink of war, not for any British interest, but for French interests. Throughout the Moroccan episode our hands were tied. We were committed to back France in every phase of the affair, and France, at the instigation of M. Tardieu and the financial interests, exploited this fact to the utmost. She negotiated with Germany in 1909 and mysteriously dropped the negotiations. Finally, she marched an army to Fez and openly tore up the Agadir convention. Then followed the Agadir incident and the crisis with all its naval alarms and its talk of landing a British army in Belgium. Now France may have been right or wrong in this matter. That is not the point that concerns us here. The fact of importance is that we were committed to support her, regardless of merits. It may be said that it was a part of the bargain by which we gained a free hand in Egypt—that in fact we were simply fulfilling a contract. In some degree that is so; but on the other hand the expedition to Fez should have cancelled that contract. The real fact is that we were supporting France at that time, not on the specific question of Morocco, but in pursuance of a general scheme of foreign policy. It is that scheme which the Balkan war has profoundly modified.

"The Orbit of One Diplomacy."

What was it? There was a phrase which was much on the lips of Sir Edward Grey in those days and which he used in his speech that November afternoon. It had relation to the peril of all the nations of Europe being brought into "the orbit of a single diplomacy," and that orbit the orbit of Germany. He was under the dominion of a tyrannous nightmare. He saw France and Russia falling victims to the wiles of Germany, a continent united in antagonism to one power, and that power ourselves. To defeat that spectre of the mind became the controlling purpose of his policy. The price he paid was to support France and Russia in all their external activities. France tore up the Agadir convention and marched to Fez, and we assented. Russia tore up the Anglo-Russian agreement and destroyed Persian freedom, and we assented. We assented not because we approved, but because we desired to keep France and Russia out of "the orbit of a single diplomacy."

"The Balance of Power."

In that speech of November, 1911, Sir Edward Grey definitely declared for the abandonment of the historic foreign policy of this country. "Splendid isolation" was an idle dream and the power that attempted to adopt it would be "a public nuisance." The balance of power was the ideal, and in that balance we must have a place. Europe was in two camps, and we must in our own defence be in one of them. The implications of this policy were obvious and profoundly disquieting. It involved friendships, but also it involved hostilities. It meant that the entente with France had changed its character. It was no longer a friendship that all might share on the same terms; it was a friendship based on a fundamental antagonism. The new amity with Russia was charged with the same formidable significance. Henceforward our foreign policy would not be governed by our sense of the abstract justice of an issue, or even by regard for the British interests directly involved. It would be governed by the need of making the Triple Entente victorious in every tug-of-war with the Triple Alliance. The springs of British policy would no longer be in London; they would be on the Seine and the Neva. We should dance to the tune of M. Tardieu and respond to the falconer's voice of M. Hartweg. Our armies would move to the throbbings of a distant drum.

That was in November, 1911. The crisis had passed, but it had not cleared the air. It had only revealed a permanent menace that was inherent in our policy.

What is the position to-day? Again Europe has emerged from a crisis, but it has emerged not like two armies drawing off from an indecisive field of battle and ready to renew the encounter under favoring conditions. It has emerged with the most remarkable victory over European separatism that has been achieved in our time. And in that victory the principal factor has been Sir Edward Grey. He has bridged the gulf between the two camps. He has played the great role of the "good European." He has re-established the concert of Europe, and asserted the authority of the collective conscience over separate interests. He has restored the sense of a moral governance in the affairs of Europe which had seemed to be dead. In saying this, it is not intended to detract from the services of other men—notably of M. Sazonoff, whose loyalty to the cause of peace in the face of M. Hartweg and great internal difficulties calls for acknowledgment—nor is it intended to cast a doubt upon the good faith and desire for peace of powers other than this country. But without England and without Sir Edward Grey the concert could hardly have been reborn and certainly could not have survived.

The Change and Its Significance.

That the contrast between 1911 and 1913 indicates a change in the orientation of British policy is apparent. The nightmare has been exercised and the doctrine of the "balance of power" in which we are a part has visibly faded before the truer doctrine of a collective Europe of which we are the instigator. That doctrine is based on the realities of our position. We have no just place in any camp in Europe. Nature has divorced us from the continent. It has given us a "splendid isolation" in the seas and the corollary of that physical detachment is a political detachment. A policy of "splendid isolation" does not mean a policy of selfishness. We have nothing to gain on the continent and no interest to serve there except the interest of peace. It does not mean the desertion of friends; it means the inclusion of every nation in the circle of friendship so long as its purposes are consistent with the common interests of Europe. An understanding with Germany does not mean a weakening of our entente with France in so far as that entente is an expression of mutual and sincere friendship. It means anything more than that, if it involved us—as at one time it seemed to involve us—in an obligation to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for France and then to turn to Europe. The best service we can do to the continent is to keep out of it, to preserve our independence and freedom of action, to cultivate friendships, and to avoid entanglements. Napoleon at St. Helena said that England would remain invulnerable so long as she kept to the sea, but that she would be doomed if she sought to be a continental power. That saying has gained authority with the development of conscription and the continental armies. We can play no part in continental warfare without disaster, and yet a policy of continental entanglement must inevitably lead to the creation of a military weapon that will make that policy a reality. It is a vicious circle from which there is no escape except by keeping out of it altogether. Policy and armaments are in the relation of cause and effect, and if we wish to avoid conscription, we must avoid the policy that leads to conscription.

And in avoiding that policy we have the shortest and swiftest path to power. The influence of England on the continent has not for many years been so wide and so universal as it is today. It was recognized throughout the crisis that this country was playing a wholly disinterested part, and it was the moral effect of that conviction which made the concert a reality and enabled it to shoot Niagara. Sir Edward Grey has, at a bound, leap into the position of Moderator of Europe. That is the position which should be an inalienable attach to the British foreign secretary. But it can only attach to him so long as we remember that we are an island, that we have no part in the domestic quarrels of the continent, and that the balance of power is a vain and a mischievous snare.

Extension of Undertakings Along Waterworks Right of Way to Be Pushed.

It is the intention to strengthen the city work staff at Sooke Lake and Humpback as soon as possible. The water commissioner has sent out a quantity of supplies to the camps, and he expects the tents will be sufficiently advanced by the end of this week to provide for augmented working gangs on the lake.

It was lowered that before the lake was lowered it was the intention to get in the building material for the concrete dam at the southern end of the lake, for which some excavation work has already been carried out. For that purpose they would arrange for the cement to be carried by rail to Fitzgerald on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, and then in to the lake by motor or team, the material being taken by scow down where it is required in the same way as the sand and gravel required will be transferred from the deposits on the lakeside. The intention had been to use the Canadian Northern Railway to take material in, but owing to the delay in completing the line the city has had to make other arrangements.

The gangs, Mr. Rust said, are also to be supplemented at Humpback, and including the camps on the right of way, there will be from five to six camps in operation for the waterworks undertaking before many weeks have elapsed. A vigorous effort will be made to push the several sections of this work, which stretches over thirty-eight miles, ahead concurrently so that there may not be further delays in construction.

DOUBLE DISSATISFACTION

Peccolium Point in Arbitration Law Will Go to Court of Appeal.

The expropriation proceedings in connection with the waterworks are slowly taking form and a large amount of the necessary land has been acquired, a check being kept in the city solicitor's office by means of a chart, which in the Sooke waterworks cases, and in all the widening schemes for streets, is kept up to date by a series of colored pins which show at a glance how the position stands. This helps to supplement the documents in the many cases, and serve as an index to the position.

It is extremely improbable that the property at Humpback belonging to A. H. Harman, which was the subject of prolonged arbitration proceedings recently, will be settled up for some time, for while the owners are not satisfied with the finding of the majority of the arbitrators, the city will ask for a ruling from the Court of Appeal on the liability to compensate for alleged fouling of the creek through the property, which was stated to have occurred by reason of acts of employees of the former contractors, the Westholme Lumber Company.

EVEN MONEY NOW WAGERED ON SATURDAY'S LACROSSE FEATURE

Johnson Stars at Vancouver Practice; Tickets Are Going Well; Play Rain or Shine

Thought Vancouver is three games behind the Westminster twelve in the matter of victories to date, the wonderful showing of Boss Johnson, the Victoria youth who will guard the nets for the Vancouver twelve for the balance of the season, has switched the betting, and considerable money is now being wagered at even that the "Terminator" will win Saturday's game at Oak Bay. Boss Johnson went over to Vancouver Monday night, and on Tuesday evening's workout displayed the same keen eye that made him such a sensation in the amateur ranks. His work was the feature of the practice, and it is the acquisition of Johnson that President Jones expects will enable his team to grab off the Coast title.

Clean Game Looked For.

No word has yet been received as to officials for the big game, but it is expected that President Wellington will appoint Lester Patrick and Leo Sweeney to take charge of the contest. This pair worked well two weeks ago at Vancouver, and have a reputation for making the players stick to clean lacrosse. Professional lacrosse will have to be clean if it is to gain a foothold in the capital, and it is up to the Coast League to appoint officials who will make the players adhere strictly to the rules of lacrosse. The demand for reserved seats continues at the Pitt Rite Parlors, and there is little doubt that, given decent weather, four or five thousand enthusiasts will be on hand for the contest.

Royals Grand Team.

Lionel York, who is handling the match for Con Jones, has had the Oak

Bay arena stand thoroughly renovated and repainted, while a temporary fence has been erected round the playing field. This will give plenty of space for the autos, and no charges will be made for the cars, except the regular admission fee for the occupants. Westminster will trot out the same team that has won three straight games in the Coast series, and Manager Tommy Gifford looks for another win. The Seattle Inverness made a slight change since the season opened and are a wonderful aggregation of stick-handlers, their speed and team-work being their biggest asset. Con Jones, however, will shut his home a bit to secure the best results. Harry Hyland will be played at inside, while Hopsy Lalonde will figure at outside. Nick Capper and Bones Allen are substitutes. This means that if Billy West is moved out to centre, a couple of the present squad will be stepped down for the Victoria game.

Bruce Ridpath, manager of the Toronto hockey team and the best canoeist in Canada, is visiting the Coast cities. He is engaged in the sporting goods business and is on one of his regular trips to the Coast. He will probably take in the lacrosse game at Victoria on Saturday.

New Westminster will play three games in a row off the home grounds during the next fortnight. They meet Vancouver at Victoria on Saturday, and then come right back and play Vancouver on July 1 and 5 at Hastings park.

The C. N. R. team of Winnipeg intends coming West again to play for the Mann cup in the event of their winning the Manitoba championship this season.

Corry Hess was released yesterday by the Vancouver club.

ALLAN CLARKE TO PLAY AT VANCOUVER

Sam Lorimer will hold a final workout of his amateur twelve at the Royal Athletic Park to-night in preparation for the game on Saturday at Vancouver when the Victoria Lacrosse Club meet the V. A. C. team in a regular league fixture. Allan Clarke will replace Boss Johnson in the nets, and several other changes will be made. President Lorimer says that the team will introduce some new blood, and if the present team cannot win the title, they will start rebuilding the club at once.

The Lathers will meet the Oak Bays in a Vancouver Island League lacrosse match at the North Ward Park this evening, starting at 6.45. J. Dakers and J. Petterson will referee. The Lathers' team; goal, Mettridge; point, Baines; cover, Sherwood; first defence, Wilson; second defence, Moore; third defence, McKay; centre, Brown and Wall.

PATRICK SPRAINS ANKLE.

It is possible that Lester Patrick will not be able to officiate on Saturday at Oak Bay. He sprained his ankle while playing baseball Tuesday night at Beacon Hill, and is now laid up with the injury.

The Men's Own Cricket Team Plays Kirkham's at Beacon Hill at 6.30 this evening.

WINNER TO MEET THE TITLE HOLDER

Shannon or Rothus Will Get Bout With Joe Bayley; Good Card Friday

Joe Bayley is going to be a pretty busy youngster for the next month or so. Next Tuesday he meets Clarence Valse, the Renton lightweight at Brisbane Station Arena, and another bout has been offered the Canadian champion against either Clarence Rothus or Eddie Shannon, at Port Angeles on July 4. Local promoters are taking up the latter bout and there is a strong probability of the contest being pulled off on that date. Morris Condon is booking other bouts for Bayley and will keep his boy pretty busy during the next few months. Valse is being touted to win over Bayley next Tuesday, but the real money is going down on the local boy to win within the limit.

Eddie Shannon is confident of whipping Clarence Rothus when the pair clash at the Victoria Athletic Club smoker, on Friday night, at the Grand Street club rooms, but Rothus' local admirers can see nothing but a win for the former amateur star. Rothus will arrive in the city to-day and will work out at the gym to-night. Shannon is already here and worked out for a couple of hours yesterday afternoon. He has been working with fighting Dick Hyland at Vancouver and looks in far better shape than on his previous appearance here. This bout alone should pull a big house, but the management have secured another star contest in the meeting of Cyclothe Scott and Barney Mullen. This brace of middle weights will offer one of the toughest bouts ever staged in the city.

Big Crowd Expected.
Arrangements are being made to have the boxers examined in the ring by the V. A. C. physician, and no contestant who is not in the best of physical shape will be allowed to go on. Several hundred extra chairs have been secured to accommodate the crowd who will be looking for the Rothus-Shannon encounter and a bumper house is looked for. Members will be allowed to bring their friends and a special assessment has been decided upon to cover the cost of the tourney.

SOLDIERS DEFEATED STUDENTS' ELEVEN

An interesting match was played on the Garrison 2nd eleven and the Colgate School, resulting in a win for the soldiers by 78 runs. Needham, the captain of the winners, played beautiful cricket, making 125 not out, and was ably assisted by Read, who made 62 in good style. For the school Scott gave a grand display of batting, making 33, not out.

REMARKED ON THE SIDE

Boatman's Performance Shows Real Class.
When a youthful college hurler can step out of amateur ranks and hold a slugging Northwestern team down to three hits and one run in seven innings, it shows that this individual is some slab, artist. The Bees have apparently landed a youthful phenomenon in the person of Twirler Boatman, the former University of Washington star. With any kind of hitting, the youngster would have pulled yesterday's combat out of the fire. Covalenski, one of the best hurlers on Joe Cohn's staff, was on the firing line for the Indians and he held out hands to four paltry hits. Boatman, heaved in big league style, and was fairly steady for a green twirler breaking in, allowing only four passes. The win of the Tillikums over Tacoma keeps the Bees in fourth place, but Lynch's club will climb from now on. Vancouver and Portland had another off day because of the activities of the weather, and a corresponding drop in the bank accounts resulted.

Joe Bayley Gets Three Fights in July.
Starting out with his contest with Frenchie Valse at Vancouver on Dominion Day, meeting either Eddie Shannon or Clarence Rothus on July 4 at Port Angeles and hooking up for a bout with Freddie Welsh before the end of the month, is the hard programme that faces Canada's champion lightweight during the next five weeks. Bayley should win within fifteen rounds against Frenchie Valse, while he is also picked to win a certain winner over his opponent for the Fourth of July bout at Port Angeles. Bayley's meeting with Welsh will be the toughest nut that the local titleholder has yet had to crack. Manager Condon is grooming his charge for a jump into the limelight with the top-notchers, and if Bayley can go through his coming matches without meeting defeat he will have earned a reputation that will enable him to secure matches against the best lightweights in the world.

Canadian Tennis Classes With the Best.
Now that Canada's Davis Cup team has demonstrated its ability to uphold the honor of the Dominion in the series for the world's tennis honors, great interest is attached to the coming meeting of the Canadians with the Belgian team on July 10 and 12 at Folkestone. The winners of this match will meet the German-American winners in the semi-finals for the famous silverware. The finals will be played at the Queen's club the latter part of July. At the present moment, the Canadians are competing in the English tennis championships and here again are the wearers of the Maple Leaf acquitting themselves with glory. Messrs. Powell and Schweigert have won several matches in this competition and this pair must be considered as possible semi-finalists. G. A. Caridia and A. S. Lowe, England's foremost tennis experts, are touted to win, while Maurice McLoughlin, the California crack, is also winning steadily. Canada's tennis reputation is being well cared for and English critics have awakened to the fact that Canadians, in all departments of sport, must be recognized as opponents to be reckoned with.

"OUR BOY" WILL VISIT THE CAPITAL

Henry Peterson Comes From Seattle to Scene of Former Triumphs

Seattle, June 25.—Captain Henry Peterson, for many years the champion professional sculler of the Pacific coast, and now a prominent marine business man in San Francisco, is in Seattle on a visit after an absence of two years. Captain and Mrs. Peterson are now staying at the Frye hotel and are on their way to New York City to see two former famous scullers and old rivals of Captain Peterson, Billy Rice, coach of the Columbia crew, and George Lee, street commissioner in New York.

From Seattle, Captain and Mrs. Peterson will go to Victoria, where the captain was known at the height of his fame as "Our Boy." He has in his possession a handsome gold medal, inscribed "Henry Peterson, champion sculler of the Pacific coast, August 5, 1881, from his Victoria friends." This medal was presented to him by the then mayor of Victoria after he beat McLean at New Westminster. There was intense rivalry between the various cities in British Columbia and Peterson, who trained at Victoria, was in high favor, as his victory enabled the Victorians to clean a big pot of money, Toronto, which is a home of rowers, will be another place Captain Peterson will visit, as he has many friends there.

DETROIT WANTS TO BUY KANTLEHNER

Fielder Jones, president of the league, is also scout for the Detroit club, and he will go to Spokane this week to look over some players. Kehoe, of Washington, and O'Hara, for Cincinnati, have already done some scouting in this league, but if they closed any deals they were not made public. Dick Kinsella, representing the New York Giants, and Jim McGuire, of Cleveland, are headed this way, so Jones is going to get busy before they arrive. It is believed that Jones will close a deal for Kantlehner, the big southpaw of the Victoria club, for President Wattletoe said Sunday that he expected to dispose of the big fellow this week.

Bob Brown expects to make a sale this week by which Charley Schmutz, the Seattle boy, will get a chance in the big league. It is reported that the Chicago White Sox will get the big pitcher. He is going like a champion this year.

POLO MATCH WILL PROVE EXCITING

On Saturday July 5, the people of Victoria will have the opportunity of witnessing the final polo match of the first series between Duncan and the home team. The score now stands at one game to each team, and Saturday's game will be the deciding match. The residents of Victoria, it is expected, will turn out in large numbers to witness the match. A small charge will be made at the gate and help defray expenses, and the Polo club have arranged for a special street car service to take care of the public.

CONN SELLS INTEREST

Spokane, June 25.—The Spokane and Inland Empire Railway Company today became sole owner of the Spokane baseball franchise and team of the Northwestern League by purchasing the interest of Joseph Cohn, who has been president for five years. E. C. Farr, superintendent of the Spokane Traction Company, will on Saturday become temporary president of the baseball club, until an experienced baseball man is chosen.

LONG RANGES USED AT CLOVER POINT

At Clover Point yesterday afternoon five members of the Garrison Rifle Association and five of the Civilians had a friendly match over the long ranges. Conditions were fairly good, but change of light and wind were responsible for low scores. The Garrison were victorious by eight points. The scores are as follows:

Garrison	Civilians
M. G. Warder	R. M. Fox
P. D. Chapman	Capt. W. E. Mitchell
Q. M. S. Askey	S. Williams
Major Farley	Capt. D. Mcintosh

LOCAL TWELVE FOR VANCOUVER GAME

Jimmie Petticrow and Allan Clarke are the only changes that will be made in the Victoria team to play the Vancouver Athletic Club at the Terminal City on Saturday, the teams lining up as follows:

Victoria—Clarke, Sweeney, Dakora, Okell, Taylor, Johnson, McCarter, McGregor, Baker, Brynjolfson, Petticrow, and McDonald. Spares: Menzies, Ross and Lorimer.

Vancouver—Davis, Paynter, Burns, McCraig, Donahue, Matheson, McLaran, Guan, Murray, Crookall, Wright and Davis. Spares: Pascock, Geimour and Doig.

BROWN DECLARES IT'S ANYBODY'S RACE

"There are five clubs in the North-western League which have a good chance to win the pennant," says Bob Brown, the Vancouver magnate. "The only team which looks hopelessly out of it is Spokane, although from the developments in the last two weeks it looks like a fight between Seattle, Vancouver and Portland."

"Outside of its pitching staff, I consider Seattle weaker than it was last year. The Tillamooks have four great twirlers in Fullerton, Dell, Gipe and Meikle, while Cadman is a fine catcher. But they have had no accidents as yet, and Fullerton usually goes better in the early part of the season than later. If they continue to go as they have, no club is going to stop them, of course. But I don't consider the club as good as the one which won the pennant last year."

"Portland must be taken into consideration, but the Colts are handicapped on account of playing so many games on the road."

"I have a much better balanced team this year than I had last season, and this is one reason why I hope to be up close to the top when the season ends. Tacoma is another club which looks much stronger than at the start of the season."

Brown expects to close a deal this week for the sale of Pitcher Charley Schmutz to an American League club, probably Chicago. Schmutz will be kept for fall delivery. While the Vancouver magnate wouldn't state what club he is dicker with, it is almost certain to be the White Sox, as Comiskey still owns Jimmy Clarke, who was sold to the Sox last fall and wouldn't report. Comiskey raised the suspension of Clarke this spring when Brown needed pitchers, and in return for this favor Brown is probably willing to let Schmutz go at the end of the season.

PIGÉON MARATHON

A "pigeon Marathon" that will afford an unprecedented test of the homing instinct and endurance of the birds will be held soon in Europe, beginning day after tomorrow, under the auspices of the Briton Flying Club and the Belgian Pigeon Fanciers' Association.

The present record for homing pigeons is 1,072 miles, but the contestants in the coming "race" will have to do better than that. The feathered Marathoners will be released in Rome early Saturday morning. The birds, entered by English and Scottish fanciers will have to fly from 1,000 to 1,200 miles, and if successful they will establish a record. On the basis of previous performances, it is expected that the winner will reach the north of England or Scotland within three days, flying about 400 miles a day.

The English and Scottish racing pigeons, it is expected, will make the first leg of the journey along the coast of the Mediterranean. The barrier of the Alps is likely to prove fatal to many of the wing-wearers. Those that fly over or work around the mountains will encounter good "flying country" over France and across the channel to England.

Pigeon-racing is one of the most ancient of pastimes, and the birds were often employed as carriers by the ancients. It is recorded that Brutus and Hirtius corresponded by means of pigeons at the siege of Modena. As recently as 1871 a pigeon post was conducted between London and Tours during the siege of Paris, and forty-eight day mails and 1,186 night mails were dispatched by this method. Pigeon-racing began to be popular in England and America about forty years ago, and in a race from London to Spalding, in 1872, the winning bird traveled at a rate of a mile in ninety seconds.

The long-distance record for homing pigeons was made in 1899 by Adolph B. The flight was from Little Rock, Ark., to New York, 1,072 miles, but the bird occupied over seven days on the trip.

OLD COUNTRY CRICKET SCORES

London, June 25.—Following are the results of County Cricket games, started Monday and concluded yesterday. Yorkshire beat Warwickshire, by 89 runs, at Sheffield. Sussex beat Hampshire, by 155 runs, at Brighton. Middlesex beat Nottinghamshire, by an innings and 85 runs, at Lords. The winners scores included, Hendren (E.), 104, and Bell, 102, not out.

Lancashire beat Leicestershire by seven wickets in an exciting game at Leicester, the Lancashire eleven having to annex 100 runs in an hour in order to come out victors. Tyldesley (J. T.) made 109 for the winners.

Kent suffered their first reverse of the season, being beaten by Gloucestershire by six wickets, on the latter's ground, at Bristol. In Kent's second innings, Bennett bowled in fine form for the winners, taking eight wickets for 43 runs.

The following two games were started Saturday and finished Tuesday: Northamptonshire beat Derbyshire, by nine wickets. For Northamptonshire, Seymour (John) made 156, not out, and Thompson (G. J.) took six Derbyshire wickets for 25 runs.

The Essex-Bury match at Layton was drawn, the Essex high scores including P. Ferrin, 140, and Rev. F. H. Ottingham, 119, in the first innings, and 84 in the second.

MORE BIKE RACES AT THE WILLOWS

Seattle, June 25.—Robert A. Hiller, general manager of the Pacific Motorcycle Racing Association, has announced a program of seven motorcycle races to be held at Madison park on July 4, when singles and ported singles will be the principal machines used, with exhibition miles by noted riders using the twins. Colburn, Godfrey and Berrett, whom Manager Hiller claims are the three greatest motorcycle speed drivers on the Pacific coast, will participate in the races, as will other well-known riders.

Madison park is a well-banked half-mile track where racing is witnessed to better advantage for the spectators, and is a more sensational. Pettit, Fern, Mercer, Zwick, White, Crowder, Vosen and other noted Seattle riders will also be contestants. Hiller is now arranging a fall circuit for motorcycle racing which has proved a great success in Seattle and Victoria.

SURVIVE THE SECOND ROUND OF SINGLES

London, June 25.—E. P. Schwengers, Victoria, has with R. B. Powell, Victoria, survived the second round in the singles of the Lawn tennis championship at Wimbledon. Schwengers retired from the doubles in the first round.

TRAP TOURNAMENT

Victoria trapshoots will be prominent at the Vancouver Gun Club's annual tournament on Dominion Day. Only a few of the Capital City experts will make the trip to the mainland, and the matches will extend over two days, starting Monday and being continued on Tuesday.

For the opening day there will be ten fifteen-target events and seven fifteen-target events, and for the closing day one fifty-target event.

The fifty-target event will be for the amateur championship of British Columbia and open only to British Columbia trapshoots. The club will give $500 added money and special prizes to the value of $40 for high amateur and professional aggregate.

In the championship event the Allan trophy will go to the winner for one year. A gold medal also goes with this event, becoming the permanent property of the winner. All trapshoots are invited to compete.

JONES AS PASSENGER

Portland, June 25.—When Bob Burman, speed king, guides his 300-horsepower car around the Country Club track next Saturday or Sunday in an effort to lower the Pacific Coast mile record of 52 seconds set by Barney Oldfield, he will have as a passenger Fielder A. Jones, president of the Northwestern League. Jones will be Jones does not believe in betting on ball games, but he has wagered a dinner with J. E. Appleby that he will ride with Burman.

"I have never had a really fast ride," he admitted, "and when Burman sent word that he would take me as a passenger, I accepted."

MONTAMARA RACES

Tacoma, Wash., June 25.—Official practice on the Mountain view course, preparatory to the Montamara races on July 5 and 6, will begin at 5 o'clock Saturday morning. Harry Endicott and Hughie Hughes are due from Indianapolis today and Burman and Oldfield will arrive to-night. On Friday, the weather permitting, Tetelzoff, Dave Lewis, Burman, Hughes, Cooper and Endicott will drive to Olympia to pay their respects to Governor Lister.

TO-DAY IN PUGILISTIC ANNALS

1905.—Jack Johnson fought a 6-round, no-decision bout with Jack Munroe in Philadelphia. The black man had the better of the argument. Munroe had for a time laid claim to the heavy-weight championship by reason of his alleged defeat of Jim Jeffries in a 4-round bout staged in Butte, Mont., in 1905. He got so chesty about it that Jeff gave him a chance to make good in San Francisco a couple of years later. Munroe was knocked out in the second round. He was never more than a good second-rater, but for a time was taken seriously by the fraternity.

1903.—Jimmy Walsh defeated Jimmy Carroll in 11 rounds at San Francisco.

1909.—Sam McVey defeated Jim Barry, foul, in 15 rounds at Paris.

ARGOS ARE FASTEST CREW ON COURSE

Henley-on-Thames, June 25.—The Argonauts' eight had a full course trial last evening, and aroused great enthusiasm, everybody on the embankment running, riding or cycling with the crew from start to finish. Wright, who was accommodated on the new umpire's launch, shouted himself hoarse. Rowing thirty-nine strokes in the first minute, the crew never went below thirty-four. They reached the half way mark in three minutes and 30 seconds. They maintained their excellent form and pace over the second half, and covered the full course in 7 minutes 15 seconds. The crew were unopposed, and are at present the fastest grand challenge eight at Henley.

This morning the eight had a light work out, sprinting only for short intervals with Emmanuel College. Butler covered the last half of the course in 4 minutes 16 seconds.

SPOKANE RELEASED DALY

After the beating the pitcher Daly got in Tuesday's game at Spokane, Manager Powell decided that there was no use keeping him, and this morning a wire from that city states that he has been released to the Missoula Union Association team. Henry Fitzsimmons, the sensational Seattle Clara College infielder, whom Victoria was trying to land last year, has reported to the Spokane team and was expected to figure in to-day's game against the Bees. Rap Hogan beat the local management to Fitzsimmons by a few hours.

ST. MARGARET'S WON

St. Margaret's School yesterday defeated St. George's School in a series of tennis games in the presence of an enthusiastic gathering of spectators. The results follow: Misses K. McNamee and I. Wilson, of St. Margaret's School, defeated Misses M. Tennant and V. Leithwaite, 6-1, 2-5 and 6-3; Misses R. Jones and E. Ross defeated Misses V. Taylor and M. Verrinder, 6-4, 6-4; Misses D. Wilson and G. Jones lost to Misses M. Bloomfield and V. Errington, 1-6, 6-4 and 2-6.

WUFFLI TURNED BACK

San Francisco, June 25.—Johnny Wuffli, popular utility infielder of the San Francisco baseball team, has been released by Manager Del Howard, and goes back to the Spokane club of the Northwestern League. The change became necessary to bring the Seals down to the maximum limit.

HAIL AND FAREWELL TO A GREAT ACTOR

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson's Last Appearance as Hamlet at Drury Lane

The London Chronicle thus describes the farewell performance of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson as Hamlet yesterday:

Hail and farewell! In the long of things it is no when we have just broken up to the fact that Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson is our greatest living actor, that the time comes when our English stage is to know him no more!

All these years we have appreciated him in an unthinking, irresponsible sort of way. We have admired his splendid qualities, his dignity, his imagination, his charm, his refinement, his perfect equipment of voice and personality. But until a month or so ago the word "great" had been strangely withheld.

And now—is there any doubt of it? Upon any thoughtful member of the vast audience that packed Drury Lane last night to the last corner for Sir Johnston's last performance before an English audience the truth struck home—the loss that he means to our stage. Where else shall we look for this pure ideal of the actor's art? Where is another Hamlet to print itself unchallenged on the hearts and memories of a generation?

So it was an evening of doubled significance—of wonder and of praise, of passionate recognition as well as of loving regret. Probably there were hundreds of young people there who had never seen this greatest Hamlet of our time before. Certainly there are thousands still left who have lost a long-wished-for chance that never can recur.

Queen Victoria at Dawn.

Anyhow, there was no possible doubt about the determination of the happy multitude of London playgoers who have known him all along to give Sir Johnston the truest and most whole-hearted farewell tribute that any player has had since Miss Ellen Terry's benefit seven years ago. All earliest dawn the gallery queues began to gather, one lady turning up as early as 8 o'clock to wait 14 hours for the doors to open. As the morning wore on the old Drury Lane colonnade began to look like a huge open-air camp-stool club. Most of the gallery girls had brought their sewing, some crouched over books, and there were merry card parties here and there.

Now and again one found an old Lyceum gallery-boy consoling a day and a night to undying remembrance of the time when beauty was born in our theatre behind that old green curtain. The "boys" were often enough boys no longer, save at heart. They were not so many at first as the girls, but it was office-hours, not will, that forbade. They trooped up, sure as for the reserved seats, the whole house had been sold out at double prices by 2 o'clock, and could probably have been so several times over after that to judge from the besieging crowd. As opening-time drew near the line of carriages stretched far away into the purious of Covent Garden market. For sheer fashion the Forbes-Robertson farewell vied with any gala-night at the opera.

To this tremendous audience, bristling with enthusiasm, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson vouchsafed, as it proved, one of the finest performances of his own and Shakespeare's Hamlet that he has ever yet achieved. He looked a little worn and tired at first, but amidst the hushed eagerness of that breathless house the beautifully modulated voice never failed in a single subtlety of its music and meaning.

Sometimes quite apart from the play, which is exacting enough in all conscience on its own account—the tenacity must have been quite overwhelming. Yet, with amazing art and self-control, Sir Johnston managed to keep his Hamlet absolutely true to himself—free, natural, sociable, grave, gracious, poignant, passionate, loving and lovable.

Drury Lane For National Theatre?

At the end, after at least a score of huge wreaths and a beautiful knighting banner had been gathered in by the "Hamlet" and the roars of applause had ceased at last, Sir Johnston made a delicately graceful, deliciously unburdened speech.

He spoke not with sadness, but elation: "Why should I be sad when, at the dramatic moment of my career, my "Cing honor me?" He spoke with pride and hope of the present state of the London stage—"better served alike by actors and authors than ever it was in my young days." Amidst much cheering he announced that although his own farewell was irrevocable, Miss Gertrude Elliott would none the less appear again in London before very long.

Last, but not least, he suggested, with unconcealed significance, that "this noble theatre, haunted by the spirits of the great actors of the past, should be devoted, at any rate from time to time, to the classic drama, for which it is so eminently fitted."

SIR JOHN MOORE.

Proposed Memorial to Great Soldier at Shorncliffe.

Somewhat late in the day, since Sir John Moore died January 15, 1800, it is proposed to erect a fitting memorial to the hero of Corunna. The idea is that it shall be set up at Shorncliffe camp to mark the hero's association with that place, for it was at Shorncliffe that he trained the Light Brigade. It is hoped to erect in memory of Moore a library which shall serve as a Valhalla for the commanders and regiments of the Light Division, and should funds permit, a statue of Moore overlooking the very grounds on which he trained his troops.

A military library, which is urgently required at Shorncliffe, would be a particularly appropriate form for a memorial to Sir John Moore, who, though he passed most of his service in the field, was, like other great com-

A HANDY OVEN

Sets on Top of Gas Stove and Heats Up Instantly.

For baking quantities so small that the heating of the regular oven is unnecessary waste of gas, an Illinois man has patented an ingenious separate oven. This device is about nine inches square and five inch high and consists of two hinged sections, a flat bottom and a dome top. The oven sets on the top of the gas stove and heats up almost instantaneously. A toaster and a flatiron plate come with it. There are no holes in the receptacle.

WILL HEAT IRONS ALSO.

so the heat cannot escape, but the dome can be lifted if ventilation is required to brown anything. It is said that fatirons heated in this apparatus keep quite clean, as they are removed from the flame and not affected by soot or fumes. The oven can easily be carried about by means of its double handles.

LESS BOWEL TROUBLE IN VICTORIA

Victoria people have found out that A SINGLE DOSE of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-I-ka, the German bowel and stomach remedy, relieves constipation, sour stomach or gas on the stomach INSTANTLY. This simple mixture became famous by curing appendicitis and it draws off a surprising amount of old foul matter from the body. It is wonderful how QUICKLY it helps. ROYALTY AT THE WHEEL.

"The King never drives a motor car," says Capt. the Hon. Sir Charles Wentworth Fitzwilliam, the crown equerry, in an interview in the Motor, describing the royal garage.

"That does not mean he cannot, because he has taken a turn at the wheel, several occasions. He never drives on the highway, and he has never driven other than for the purpose of merely trying a car. On the other hand, the Prince of Wales drives, at Oxford and elsewhere, quite frequently."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By RUTH CAMERON

"Have you heard from Hilda lately?" I asked a neighbor of mine the other day, referring to a mutual friend.

"No, I haven't seen her nor heard from her for over a year," she answered with a tinge of sadness and bitterness in her tone. "Since I moved out here we seem to have drifted apart. I guess she's entirely forgotten her old friends."

Yesterday I happened to meet the mutual friend on the street, and our greetings were scarcely over before she had launched into eager questions about my neighbor. "It makes me very sad," she said, "that I haven't seen her nor heard from her for so long. But you know how busy one is, and how one gets out of touch even with those one loves the most. It isn't because I haven't thought of her, you may be sure. You know how much Mary always meant to me in college, and ever since then the thought of her has been a kind of tower of strength to me. She's so kind and fine and splendid every way that I like to think of her when I need courage for things. She is one of those people whom you are glad to know are in the world even when you don't see them or communicate with them."

And all the time the woman who was enraptured on that altar of loving reverence thought that her friend had forgotten her.

Of course, some people will say that if this busy woman had really cared for her friend she would have found time to visit her or write her.

Perhaps, and yet I'm not so sure. I think one may care a great deal for a friend and yet be so involved in the all-absorbing all-demanding business of daily life as to get out of touch with him or her.

I scarcely live through a week without thinking of a certain professor who did a great deal for me at college, and yet I do not see him or communicate with him from one year's end to another.

Silent friendships, like silent partners, may be a big force in spite of their silence.

Do not think you have lost your friends just because in the confusion and absorption of the day's demands you have fallen out of touch with each other. Real friendship goes farther below the surface than that. "Let the soul be assured that somewhere in the universe it should join its friends, and it would be content and cheerful alone for a thousand years," says Emerson. And that is a description of real friendship.

You think often of your friend. Doubtless he or she thinks as often of you. Some day you may be able to enter into more material communication, but for the present can you not be content to say:

"We both are busy and we seldom meet. Yet is our faith in friendship so complete

We can commune without the spoken word

And know the message by each heart is heard."

FUTURE OF POETRY.

The Possibilities of Freshness Are Growing Rarer and Rarer.

Edmund Gosse, lecturing on "The Future of English Poetry" before the English Association, said, as reported in the Times, that the principal danger to the future of poetry seemed to him to rest in the necessity of freshness of expression. With the superabundant circulation of language year after year, week after week, the possibilities of freshness grew rarer and rarer. The obvious, simple, poignant things seemed all to have been said. Each generation was likely to be more preoccupied than the last with the desire for novelty of expression. Accordingly the sense of originality, which was so fervently demanded from every new school of writers, would force the poets of the future to sweep away all recognized impressions. He thought that in consequence the natural uses of English and the obvious forms of our speech must be driven from our national poetry. In the new generations there was likely to occur less description of plain material objects, because the aspect of these had already received every obvious tribute. So also there could hardly fail to be less precise enumeration of the primitive natural emotions, because that also had been done already and repeated to satiety. Poetry as an art, in one shape or another, would escape from the bankruptcy of language, but it would only be at the cost of much that they at present admired and liked. That the continuity of the art of verse would be preserved. He expected to find the modern poet accepting more or less consciously an ever-increasing symbolic subtlety of expression. In his anxiety not to repeat what had been said before, and in his horror of the trite and the superficial, he would achieve effect by wrapping the truth in darkness. The domain of verse had been persistently

How to care for baby's delicate skin

Many mothers seem to forget that a baby's skin is much more sensitive, much more readily injured than that of an adult. They bathe the baby with soaps never meant for a skin of such delicate texture and then wonder why the skin becomes raw and irritated.

So little soap is used the first three or four years of baby's life that there is no excuse for not using the best. Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. Daily baths with its soothing lather keep baby's skin in perfect condition—away from itching, burning and smarting—leave the skin beautifully soft and smooth. Get a cake and try it today.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No substitutes at the price. Get the real one.

CUT ON NEW LINES.

At first sight this waist seems like any already laid aside, but there are new features in it. First, the waist itself is cut in one piece, the material being straight in the back, and slanting over the shoulders in the direction shown by the checks. Then the neck is cut quite low and the inner band of the collar is cut on the bias so that there is a continuous closely fitting curve in place of the angle that the ordinary shirtwaist shows at the joining of the collar and waist. The turnover collar is straight and several rows of stitching on the bias, under part of the collar, give firmness to the whole. New, also, is the idea of closing the collar and waist alike.

POLITICS IN THE HOME. The militant suffragists and Mr. Lloyd George between them have a great deal more to answer for than they get of, as the following story shows (says the Daily Dispatch). The eleven-year-old daughter of a well-known novelist said, it must be explained, disagreed most profoundly with his wife on the question of millinery and politics generally, was recently asked by her aunt, in the way aunts have, whether she would like to be married when she grew up. "Well," she replied, "I don't want to be very nice to be married. Father and mother are always quarrelling about 'Votes for Women and Mr. Lloyd George.'" "Oh, so, dear," said the aunt, "that's not quarrelling; that's arguing. It's quarrelling when people lose their tempers and go out and slam the door." "Yes," replied the child saddy, "that's it."

U. S. AMBASSADOR AND THE PILGRIMS

ROYALLY WELCOMED ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

Sir Edward Page Proposed the Toast to Uncle Sam's New Representative at St. James

The new American Ambassador was the guest recently of the "Pilgrims" at the Savoy hotel. The banquet hall was decorated on the most beautiful and lavish scale. Earl Roberts presided over a brilliant and numerous company, which included: Sir Edward Grey, M. P., the Earl of Aberdeen, Earl of Halsbury, Mr. Augustus Birrell, M. P., Lord Chylesmore, the Earl of Coventry, the Earl of Dartmouth, the Earl of Orkney, Sir Edward Poynter, P. R. A., Lord Strathcona, the Earl of Warwick, Lord Shaw of Dunfermline, Sir Ernest Shackleton, Lord Blyth, Lieut.-Gen. Sir E. B. Baden-Powell, Mr. G. McArthur Brown, Hon. Lloyd Bryce (American Minister to the Netherlands), Right Hon. A. M. Carlisle, Mr. Price-Collier, Lord Cowdray, Mr. R. Newton Crane, Sir Henry Dalziel, M. P., Sir Thomas Dewar, Mr. Hamar Greenwood, M. P., the Hon. John L. Griffiths (American Consul-General), Sir Herbert Harnsworth, Mr. Antony Hope Hawkins, Sir Edward Holden, Right Hon. Lord Justice Kennedy, Sir E. Ray Lankester, the Hon. H. Lawson, M. P., Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Claude Macdonald, Sir Newton Moore (Agent-General for Western Australia), Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M. P., Mr. Frank Page, Sir William Pender, Sir Frederick Pollock, Right Hon. Russell Rea, M. P., Sir W. B. Richmond, Sir Edward Russell, Mr. H. Gordon Selfridge, Hon. A. L. Sifton, K. C. (Premier of Alberta), Sir Richard Solomon (High Commissioner for South Africa), Sir Edgar Speyer, Major-General Sir Leopold Victor Swaine, Commander J. J. Symington, U. S. A. Naval Attaché, American Embassy, Sir G. W. Truscott, Colonel Sir Charles C. Wakefield, Sir Edmund Walker, Sir Algernon West.

fitting indeed that that welcome should be given at the earliest possible moment to the Ambassador of the United States by that assembly. They, of course, honored Dr. Page as the representative of a great and friendly nation in his dual capacity as Ambassador of the United States and an honored guest and friend. After festively referring to the death of Mr. Whitelaw Reid, Sir Edward went on to say that on the eve of celebrating the hundred years of peace between the two countries, it was fitting to remember that peace was based not merely on community of interest, not on kinship or religion or language, but on the foundation of a feeling of downright repugnance on both sides to that peace being disturbed. (Cheers.)

To Stop Appeals to Force.

"If," he said, "the Ambassador comes with proposals and a desire of his Government to find some way of making more remote the appeal to blind force between nations, he will find in this country and from the British Government a ready response. (Cheers.) Of all the great Powers in the world the United States is most fortunately placed in taking such an initiative. It is beyond the reach of menace or aggression from any neighbor in the American continent. It is fitting to remember that peace proposals came, they would come without the suspicion of having been inspired and without any feeling of pusillanimity or any national interest, or any desire to secure advantage in disparaging or placing at a disadvantage any other nation. (Cheers.)

In other words, such proposals could certainly be made in the face of the world at large with full dignity and with a good faith which was beyond suspicion. (Cheers.)

In conclusion, Sir Edward said in their good relations between the two countries they relied not only on treaties, not on the diplomatic skill of Governments, but upon right and good feeling. Whatever degree of friendship developed, he believed it was the wish of all that there should be a friendly feeling between the two countries which might serve as an example to all nations, but which should never be a menace to any. (Cheers.)

Century of Peace.

The American Ambassador, who was received with enthusiastic cheers, said he could not thank them adequately for their generous welcome. "You pay me this great compliment," he said, "as the representative of the President and the people of the United States; and on their behalf I thank you heartily. In turn, my errand here is to convey to you the respect and true friendship of the people of the United States. (Cheers.)

"In our dealing blood answers to blood, and our fundamental qualities of manhood are the same. It is an inspiring spectacle—and history can show no other such—these two great kindred nations, one on each side of the well-ploughed sea that unites them, standing at the end of a century of peace, liberty-loving as of old, and looking forward confident of the broadening of the bounds of freedom, yet regarding government as a living, ever-changing instrument of human progress made by man for man's advancement and not for the mere maintenance of any political creed.

"This is an augury for the progress of the world that shames all structures of society where man's life is stationary or where his philosophy is dipped in gloom." (Cheers.)

Referring to Mr. Bryce, he said he had made himself not only a persona grata to the government in America, but a persona gratissima to the people. We had made great strides in recent years in understanding one another. "We do like you very much," said his excellency, "and are very much like you."

As for the people of the United States, if he knew them and their history the tide of hope and buoyant expectancy had not before run so high in their blood for a hundred years as it runs now. He hoped to broaden his first-hand studies of government by observing our triumphal show at hand, for these were the finest fruits of our civilization and the thing that made England was her skill in ruling men.

Freedom must ever move forward, continued the Ambassador. Wherever she stopped on her way she was captured by somebody, freebooter or friend, and she was despoiled as often without malicious intent as with it. "If you will permit me," concluded the speaker, "to live among you to learn what I can as a working member of the great English-speaking democracy which, with local variations, has in every part of the world the same large aim—the aim to keep men free and to preserve the peace of the world—permit me to live and work as befits the great nation of uncommon common men for whom I have the honor for the moment to be the frank and friendly spokesman. I shall feel like a welcome visitor to my kinsmen." (Cheers.)

"The hundred years' peace" was proposed by Mr. Price-Collier, author of "England and the English," and responded to by Lord Shaw, chairman of the executive of the British Committee for Celebrating the Centenary of the Treaty of Ghent.

WORDS FOR THE WARM.

It is worth recalling just now (the Daily Chronicle says) that there is a quantity to be observed even in being warm. In an old volume for the instruction of youth a young lady declares herself to be "all of amuck of sweat" and is at once severely rebuked by her governess with "Hush, Miss! Hush! sweat, men perspire, but ladies only glow."

A BLOUSE SUIT.

Neil rose serge was used for the blouse which closes at the side front with black velvet buttons. Worn with it is a white linen collar with a tie of cream-white velvet, having a plait edge.

The skirt is of black and white checked material, slightly draped at the side. A broad-loop girde of black satin is worn.

Are You Drinking Pure Cocoa or Cocoa Mixed with Starch?

Cocoa is made by grinding cocoa beans and pressing out some of their fat or "cocoa butter". The removal of the excess fat leaves the cocoa more perfectly digestible.

A common way to cheapen cocoa is by adding starch.

A leading English physician says that starch added to cocoa reduces the "nutritious gluten and stimulating theobromine."

Lowney's contains no starch. It is as pure as cocoa can be made.

It is produced in our spico-and-span factory at Montreal. Lowney's Cocoa conforms with every requirement that goes to make cocoa wholesome and appetizing.

You will never learn how delicious cocoa can be until you have tasted Lowney's.

Sold by grocers. In tins—10c to 50c sizes.

To-day in B.C.

Do not the following facts, selected from many, give little promise for the future morality of British Columbia, from such shocking examples set before the rising generation by the McBride government, unless perhaps they serve as a warning?

His Minister of Education, charged with having given false information, in writing, in 1910, to the Legislature.

His education department, charged with having distributed the Governor-General's bronze medals in an unfair manner year after year; but he does not prevent it.

His education department, charged with having unfairly deprived a pupil of marks to which he was entitled at an entrance examination.

His government charged with having treated in a shameful manner the teacher who exposed the faulty method by which credit marks in drawing were awarded by the education department.

His Minister of Education, charged with "quibbling" in giving his answers to the Legislature in 1910.

His education department, charged with asking the pupils a question in arithmetic which could not be solved.

His Minister of Education, charged with having published false, injurious reports against teachers in the Annual Public School Reports.

His Minister of Education, charged with having given false information to the chairman of the Chilliwack School Board in 1908.

His Superintendent of Education, charged with having written a deliberate lie on February 4, 1913.

False Information

In 1908 the Minister of Education informed Mr. A. L. Coote, chairman of the Chilliwack School Board, that the Governor-General's bronze medals were given to places where there was the most competition at the High School entrance examinations.

Mean, Unfair, Unmanly

The above is one of those mean, unfair, unmanly things for which the McBride government is responsible. Mr. Coote believed that false story and went away perfectly satisfied. The McBride government thus escaped for the time, at the cost of that LIE. That very year (1908) Kelowna got a medal where only four passed; but none for Chilliwack, where 17 passed, both being cities with a high school. There were eight places that year with less competition than Chilliwack, which got medals. Table "B," 1908, shows five districts passed over in the first 15.

Scandalous Distribution

The districts printed in small letters in the Tables "B" are those which were entitled to get a medal in each of the past seven years on the principle of "most competition" but have been neglected. The districts in capitals got a medal.

The figures before the district indicate the amount of competition and those after are the marks obtained by the best pupil.

Money Talks

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS is ready to be paid over to the Revelstoke Hospital when anyone will prove on oath that the minister's denial in 1910 of the explanation given at Revelstoke concerning the distribution of those medals is THE TRUTH.

Injurious Reports

The following appears in the Annual Public School Reports for 1905-6 against a lady teacher who did not teach a single day of 1906 at that school. Keefers inspected April 26, 1906: "The tone of the school is poor; the children do little work and that poorly."

There are possibly a hundred such instances in that year's report alone of Inspector's reports standing against the wrong teacher.

Quibbling Answers

Q—Did several principals of city schools and other teachers (at a Provincial Teachers' Convention, held at Vancouver in April, 1904, with Inspector Wilson as chairman and Dr. Robinson present in the room) express dissatisfaction with the entrance examination questions?

A—The department has no official knowledge of the matter.

Q—Does the published report (printed by the government) of the Provincial School Trustee Convention held at New Westminster in 1907, state that Premier McBride said he would be pleased to carry out all their resolutions if he could?

A—The department has not a copy of the published report of the convention.

Pages 34 and 35, B. C. Journals 1910.

Q—Does the Public Schools Report for 1905-6 state that the teacher at Crofton during the school year was R. Offerhaus?

A—R. Offerhaus presumably taught at Crofton a part of the school year 1905-6.

The minister, instead of answering "yes" to those questions like a man and taking the consequences, replied in that evasive, quibbling manner.

Department Condemned

Judge Lampman decided that Anton Henderson's drawing-book had "no ruling" in it, consequently the department had punished him, though innocent, by taking away his marks at the entrance examination for alleged ruling.

Shameful Treatment

The teacher who proved by Judge Lampman's decision that the education department's method of giving marks in drawing was then so faulty that the better a pupil could draw the more liable he was to be condemned to the loss of his marks as a cheat, was penalized by the McBride government.

Pity The Premier

The premier, instead of insisting upon the following ten questions being answered, permitted his superintendent to forward a deliberate LIE.

They would have appeared on the Journals of the Legislature last January, if Mr. Parker Williams, M. L. A., had not been assured by someone that the Premier would have them answered.

The Ten Questions

1. Did His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, indicate the manner in which he wished his first ten bronze medals to be distributed among the school districts of this province in 1912? If yes, what was it?
2. Did His Royal Highness, the Governor-General, name the school districts to which his twelve additional bronze medals should be given in 1912? If yes, what were they?

The Deliberate Lie

J. N. Muir, Esq.

Education Office, Victoria, Feb. 4, 1913.

Sir:—Your letter of the 29th ult., addressed to the Honorable, the Premier, has been handed in to this office. I have carefully gone over the several questions which you submit to the Premier and am of the opinion that nearly all these questions can be answered by reference to the last Annual School Report, a copy of which I am forwarding to your address under separate cover.

I have, etc.

ALEXANDER ROBINSON, Superintendent of Education.

Premier Involved

On February 7th, I write to the Premier pointing out that the questions could not be answered as indicated, and asked for answers. I have not yet received them.

Degradation

The McBride government may thus for the time have escaped the degradation that a truthful answer to those questions would have set forth.

Cost a Lie

The cost is terrible to even think of—A LIE. Have not the trustees, the teachers, and the pupils of the public schools been insulted by the supine action of the Premier? Does he not deserve to be exposed as a male Premier, who has failed to exhibit those traits expected in A MAN?

On behalf of the pupils of the public schools of British Columbia.

"I ATTRIBUTE MY CURE SOLELY AND ENTIRELY TO TAKING 'FRUIT-A-TIVES'"

Hull, Que., Dec. 24, 1909.
"For the past twelve years, I had painful attacks of Dyspepsia. I could not digest my food and everything caused the most agonizing pain in my stomach. I also had a fearful attack of Constipation and at times, I had no movement of the bowels for two weeks. Three doctors attended me for two years and gave me all kinds of medicine, but did me no good. My weight came to only 80 pounds, and everyone thought I was going to die. Finally, I had the good fortune to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and as soon as I began to take them, I felt better. I persisted in the treatment and to my great joy I steadily improved.
Now I feel very well, weigh 115 pounds, and this is more than I ever weighed even before my illness. I attribute my cure solely and entirely to 'Fruit-a-tives' and can now praise them too much for saving my life. To all who suffer from Dyspepsia and Constipation, I recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' as a miraculous remedy."

HOW SOME SAWDUST LED TO CAPTURE DETECTIVE W. J. BURNS AND THE DYNAMITERS

Famous Sleuth Tells of the Unsavory Career of the McNamaras; Assassins by Trade

That a few grains of sawdust led to the downfall of the McNamaras and the other dynamite conspirators connected with the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers is one of the wonderful things related by Detective William J. Burns in his book "The Masked War," just published by the George H. Doran Company. The book tells the story of the running down of the dynamiters, a story not told in the court at Los Angeles because the McNamaras pleaded guilty to murder.

In this masked war the lives of over 100 persons were taken. Much property was destroyed. "The war with dynamite was a war of anarchy against the established form of government of this country. It was masked under the cause of Labor," Mr. Burns says.

"J. J. McNamara, the secretary-treasurer of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and his brother, J. B. McNamara, were pictured as martyrs, and great mass meetings and parades were held by Socialists and by workmen who were not Socialists to enlist the country's sympathy for them. An immense fund was drawn from the pockets of union men to pay Darrow and his advisers in the defence. A threat was made to call a general strike and tie up every industry in the United States so that the courts might be intimidated. A social revolution seemed at hand; but the martyrs who bring revolutions to a head are men with the good of humanity at heart, and the McNamaras were not of that kind.

"When J. B. McNamara was starting for the Pacific coast to blow up the Los Angeles Times building his brother, J. J. McNamara, insisted on his buying a round trip ticket so that he would save money. On another occasion, when J. B. McNamara reported at the international headquarters in Indianapolis, after exploding nitroglycerine in a nonunion plant without doing any vast damage J. J. cried with a profane utterance of the Saviour's name as prefix: 'Don't you know that stuff costs $130 a quart?' It would be hard for any man capable of the least degree of thought to picture J. J. McNamara as a martyr.

"With J. B. McNamara there was no such thing as conscience. He was deep in the dregs of immoral living, as was his brother, who directed him in his tours of murder and destruction. After destroying the Los Angeles Times building and its twenty-one occupants he enjoyed a long carouse on a hunting trip in Wisconsin; he never expressed any remorse for his act and continued his course as if nothing had happened. He started as a boy in a childish way that landed him in a house of correction, and as a young man he debauched himself so that when he was not murdering and destroying he was drinking and pursuing women. There could be no stuff of martyrs in that man."

Mr. Burns gives his idea of why he was not killed at one stage of the proceedings:

"When it was certain that the McNamaras were doomed, when my array of witnesses to back up the McManigal confession was scanned and found to be frightful for the chances of the defence a certain, once eminent gentleman of the Pacific coast—who later came upon disgrace—let it be known that only the withdrawal of Burns could save the accused men."

"Now this statement, coming from a man of education and some fame, a man deeply interested in the acquittal of the McNamaras, meant more peril to me than all the loud mouthed threats that might be made in every corner saloon from Los Angeles to New York. His suggestion would carry further than the commands of the McNamaras themselves. I had one of my operatives in touch with this gentleman—a fact which may cause him much surprise and disgust. That operative, a man of high intelligence, realized in a moment what that remark meant. It was the signal to go out and 'get' Burns. There was only one way, as I saw it, to have that order recalled. I sent the operative back to this gentleman to inform him that if anything happened to me the same thing would happen to him.

"But, my God! cried this gentleman from his swivel chair, 'some crank might kill him! I would not be responsible.'"

"My operative reported to me.

"With another message my representative returned to the office of the gentleman who thought that my withdrawal was the only hope of the McNamaras. He said:

"Mr. Blank, Mr. Burns asks me to tell you that if he is killed by a crank another crank will kill you."

"The suggestion about my withdrawal was hurriedly recalled."

The point of departure of Mr. Burns' investigation was a dynamite outrage at Peoria, Ill., on September 4, 1910.

"I always insisted that every criminal leaves a track—that many times Providence interferes to uncover the footprints left by the criminal. And so on this occasion one charge under a girder failed to explode, due to the fact that the dry battery used in the clock bomb lost its voltage. In this way we were able to determine the method used by the dynamiters for bringing about those simultaneous explosions, as through this clock working device they were enabled to set the explosion for 11 hours and 53 minutes and 59 seconds, which would give them plenty of leeway to escape.

They could thereby establish a perfect alibi. They figured on securing on the total destruction of the bombs, which would obliterate every vestige of evidence as to the character of the explosive used."

On the ground were a few grains of sawdust. "By gathering the bits of sawdust it was subsequently proved that it had been left there by the person who purchased the nitroglycerine from Fred Morehart of Portland, Ind., who sold it to a man who gave his name as J. W. McGraw. This man's description tallied exactly with that of a man seen in the vicinity and whom we traced to a hotel in Munich. We found his signature on the register and made a tracing of it."

J. W. McGraw turned out to be Orrie McManigal; but the detectives had to do months of hard work before they found that out.

Mr. Burns gives a partial list of eighty-three explosions which occurred from the time of the declaration of the strike of the structural workers in the summer of 1905 to the climax when the Los Angeles Times Building was destroyed with the loss of twenty-one lives.

There were no explosions or attempts to dynamite after the arrests. But in October of 1911 an attempt was made to blow up a Southern Pacific Railroad bridge near Santa Barbara, Cal., just before a train bearing the President of the United States was due to cross it. Thirty-nine sticks of dynamite with fuse attached were found in the bridge structure by a watchman.

"A careful estimate shows that to perpetrate all of these crimes between three and four hundred pounds of dynamite were lugged about the country in passenger trains to the imminent peril of thousands of innocent men, women and children.

"The cost of this warfare for both sides was tremendous. The actual cost in material and structures damaged or destroyed for one hundred explosions was figured at more than a million.

"The McNamaras were given and spent $1000 a month for two and a half years to finance the murder and destruction. That money came out of the pockets of the comparatively few men of the union who held jobs and from contributions of other men. The working union man was lured for at least $100.00 for the defence of the two McNamaras, who didn't work, but who spent the money of those who did work on drink, on women and for nitroglycerine and the hire of anarchists. The trial at Indianapolis, where forty-five union leaders answered the charge of conspiracy, cost the working union man $6000 a week. The trial lasted three months or more.

"What it cost in lost wages to the men who were ordered on strike and kept on strike during this period of warfare it is almost impossible to conjecture.

The Los Angeles explosion occurred October 1, 1910. An unexploded bomb connected with the outrage with that at Peoria. Burns got descriptions of the men who bought the explosive. One called himself J. B. Bryce. The other two were named Caplan and Schmidt and were members of the anarchist Home Colony about twenty miles from Peoria. Caplan's wife was a woman named Emma Goldman. The fate of the two men is a mystery. Mrs. Caplan while under subpoena as a witness was spirited away through the agency, Burns says, of Olat Tveitmo, secretary of the California State Building Trades Council, sometimes known as 'The Old Man.' She was taken away in a taxi and the cost of the trip was $250, which leads Mr. Burns to remark:

"Of course our investigators learned every detail of this spiriting away of the witness and, incidentally, we got hold of the chair and secured a statement from him. We learned a lot about taxi bills, money provided by honest union men who were being led by the conspirators. We learned that 'The Old Man,' Tveitmo, who was charged with directing the explosions on the Pacific coast, seldom walked. He always used a taxi and a certain special taxi and a certain chauffeur. This same chauffeur also saved Mr. Sam Gompers from ever stretching his legs, and was at the beck and call of Clarence Darrow, Job Harriman, Harrington, Rappaport and the rest of the crowd that assembled around Tveitmo in San Francisco prior to the trial. Everybody used a taxi except the man on the job with a dinner pail. Yet the man on the job paid the bills."

After the Los Angeles explosion J. B. McNamara went into the Wisconsin woods on a hunting trip and McManigal went along with him. Burns detectives were in the woods, too. Instead the two men as well as J. McNamara and other suspected men were constantly watched and the detectives even discovered where their explosives were stowed. That the trap was not sprung earlier than it was was due to the difficulty of getting sufficient evidence against J. J. McNamara, who was regarded as the brains of the conspiracy.

After the arrest of McManigal and the McNamaras the former confessed. Mr. Burns says:

McManigal is a man of medium height, rather dark complexioned, powerfully built and a type of citizen most men would hesitate to anger. His forehead is deeply indented and carries a heavy, ragged scar made by a fall he had when a boy. He is pleasant in his address and his English is good, although he never got beyond the public schools and always travelled with uneducated people.

"Preying on his mind all the time was the thought of his wife and children and their fate. He was genuinely disturbed about them, and had he been a single man I doubt whether he would have made the confession."

J. B. McNamara was frightened after the Los Angeles explosion and on one occasion lost his nerve. He was then at Ballagh, Neb., with Frank Eckhoff.

"The first day the two were in Ballagh together J. B. caved in and asked Eckhoff to kill him. He was seated in the kitchen of the boarding place, a Savage automatic gun hanging on his breast from a strap. He could have slipped the weapon from its holster and ended his life in a second, but he did not have the nerve to do it. "I want you to get out of here with me and kill me," he told Eckhoff. "You can say it was accidental and it will be getting me out of this trouble easily. I know they are going to get me!"

Eckhoff, who lived near the McNamara home, had known the family for years. He was frequently used both by J. J. and J. B. as an assistant in various jobs, and it was Eckhoff to whom J. J. McNamara made the proposition that he place a dress suit case filled with dynamite and a clock under the seat of a train and blow up his secretary, Miss Dye. This was during Christmas week of 1910. J. J. McNamara had tired of the woman and Miss Dye knew enough about his affairs to have hanged him. That it was a time of peace on earth and good will to men did not lessen the degree of murder in the heart of J. J. McNamara. He wanted the woman blown up in the train and explained to Eckhoff how he could set the clock and leave the train at a station before the explosion. The dynamite would have killed her, wrecked the train and killed many innocent people besides. He was willing to pay Eckhoff $200 for carrying out his orders and was sorry when Eckhoff backed out."

As to the ultimate purposes of the conspirators Mr. Burns says:

"The trails of the two McNamaras were from one dynamite and nitroglycerine cache to another and although I had but little time in which to indulge in an attempt at a sociological study of what was unfolding before me, as my men made their reports it was palpable that the conspirators had brought their activities to a point where at any moment the country might have been plunged into bloody revolution and anarchy.

"After his arrest, J. B. McNamara boldly declared to one of the Chicago detectives having him in charge that it was unfortunate that he had been caught when he was. 'If I had not been arrested so soon,' he told Detective William E. O'Callaghan, 'the working people would have had a chance to live. There will be a great and bloody war between capital and labor.'"

"Certainly it seemed that such a war was shaping, for enough explosives had been cached at different times by the McNamaras and their fellow conspirators to have equipped an army for operations against a warring nation. Again, J. B. declared that the destruction of the Los Angeles Times was not such a fatal matter and that the plan was to destroy the whole city of Los Angeles if the attacks on the paper emanating from that city did not cease."

Mr. Burns pays his respects to Samuel Gompers for the attacks the latter made upon him at the time when Gompers was publicly asserting his belief in the innocence of the accused dynamiters.

J. B. McNamara was sentenced to life imprisonment and J. J. McNamara to a term of fifteen years. "Nearly the entire executive body of the International was guilty of participating in the conspiracy of destruction and when we made the roundup the net brought forty-five ironworkers to the bar of justice," says Mr. Burns. "Thirty-eight were found guilty and sentenced to the Federal prison for terms of from one to seven years."

The only two men not accounted for are Caplan and Schmidt, and Mr. Burns quotes from a letter written by a woman, evidently an anarchist, in which she suggests a solution of their disappearance.

I went to Carmel Mission and a fruit ranch near there about the middle of October after the dynamiting of the Times Building.

Following the Carmel River up in the Flats and went to a house where lived a woman of stout build and a small sized man.

Was sent there by an old German priest of Carmel.

Had some conversation with the woman and the man left.

Was joined afterward by Schmidt and the boy of the Huber family. All were lodged in a camp up in Carmel Mountain. About November 1 there was war in the camp—a tragedy had taken place.

The camp had been dynamited, how or by whom I do not know. A man on horseback went there hunting. While he was there, it is my belief, two persons were dynamited, their bodies rolled in tarpaulin with stone sinkers and thrown into Carmel River to pass along the coast in the undertow north above Santa Cruz."

With the exception of the Fort bridge, the largest ever built by British engineers is now being made at West Bromwich for the Eastern Bengal railway. It will span the Ganges 120 miles above Calcutta, India, and consists of seventeen spans. The bridge will be the largest ever shipped from England.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

Sixty years a member of the House of Lords is the record of Henry John Moreton, third Earl of Ducie, who succeeded the Earl of Selkirk as father of the House of Commons. Lord Ducie was born eighty-six years ago to-day, June 27, 1837, the son of the second earl and a daughter of the second Lord Sherborne. He was a member of the House of Commons for Stroud before he succeeded to the earldom on the death of his father in 1905. He married a first cousin, Julia Langston, who died eighteen years ago. The Ducie estate, Torworth Court, in Gloucestershire, consists of about 14,000 acres.

While the Baronet of Ducie was created in 1837, the family has been prominent since the early part of the seventeenth century, when Sir Robert Ducie, banker of King Charles I. was sheriff and afterward lord mayor of London. He was made a baronet. A son, Sir William Ducie, was created a baronet in the Irish peerage. His only child, a daughter, married a Moreton, and her son was given the titles of Baron Ducie and Baron Moreton. The third Baron Ducie and Moreton became the first Earl of Ducie.

FEAR

By GEORGE WATNEY ADAMS

Fear is about the biggest bugaboo that falls on the human race. It sends out, for its red fire of destruction gets to the heart of more men and women than any other agency of evil. It is a force of fire that sooner or later is sure to burn the noblest soul to dust, if not mastered.

Fear is never without. It is always within.

Fear is inside of Yourself—if it is anywhere. Your job is to smother it out. And here are a few suggestions.

First, trust yourself. Then trust other people. And finally, trust God—for there is a God, somewhere, somehow. Where there is Trust, there can be no Fear.

No one can ever win so long as he fears his Success.

Lyttton inspiringly wrote: "He either fears his Fate too much, or his Deities are small. Who dares not put it to the test, To gain the lot of all." The conquering of Fear is the grand business of life.

At the moment that you feel no Fear, you begin to live!

The Lippy Warrior Fears no Fate; The efficient, courageous Worker Fears no task. He is unafraid of his Fear.

Oh, you who read this little talk, Fear NOTHING. The Purpose of a great World runs through you as it runs through all mankind. Smile and be assured by its Truth. This day is an important part of the whole. And you are an important part of this day.

Walk past Fear. It is easy. And you CAN.

THE SACRED CARAVAN.

Its Departure From Constantinople a Striking Ceremonial.

The ceremonial attending the departure of the Sacred Caravan is one of the last bits of Oriental color left in Constantinople. I have now seen it several times, however, and every year it seems to lose something. My first procession was my first, which also happened to be the last under a Caliph of absolute power to draw upon the public funds. And although I had a camera with me that time I was not allowed to use it. The conveyance I had encountered on the bridge was merely a preliminary of the true pageant, escorting the sources from the Ministry of Pious Foundations to Yildiz Palace. There, the presents, installed for two days under rich tents, were inspected by Abdul-Hamid and given into the custody of the Sultan's Eunuch. Then after an imposing religious ceremony the Sacred Caravan announced its march. For a humble spectator without the palace walls the first intimation of its approach was given by several carriages of palace ladies, who take an unofficial part in most public spectacles. Religious and military dignitaries also began sauntering down the road, which was bordered by soldiers, with an air of hovering after some important function. Presently a double line of cavalrymen came into sight, preceding more religious and military dignitaries on horseback. One of them was the Emir-ul-Hej, the official head of the caravan, with much gold embroidery on his long coat. His post, still an important one, was far more so in the days when the caravan was less certain to escape attack on the way. Some of the horses, particularly of the ulema, were led by grooms; others were followed by orderlies carrying big cloth bundles. The body of the procession was made up of an irregular crowd of priests, officers, eunuchs, palace servants, and nondescripts of various sorts, chanting at the top of their voices, followed by the big camel I had already seen and the palanquin. But there were eight other camels this time, of all sizes, down to a fluffy little white one that everybody wanted to get; and two children were immensely enjoying a ride in the palanquin.

LETTERS

While unobjectionable anonymous communications will be published, the name and address of every contributor must be given to the editor.

CARNIVAL SUGGESTION.

To the Editor:—The plan Mr. Horne for visitors during carnival week is an excellent one, but there is a class of people in Victoria, who have an inherited antipathy to "keep lodgers" under any circumstances (I must confess I am one) and would if practicable prefer to entertain guests during that week free of charge, as they would sufficient income to do not require to be supplemented in a good cause by such paltry amounts.

However, as this might be objected to by both sides, I wish to suggest a happy medium that I think would work.

Speaking in the first person, I certainly would like my guests to be unobjectionable in every particular, and when parting with them I would like personally to accept any remuneration. But, for example, I would ask them to pass, through the Victoria Times, to the wardens of St. Mary's church, where funds are urgently needed for improvements, what they thought their entertainment was worth to them. And maybe when all is said and done I would not be from a business point of view, a bigger fool than I looked when thus diverting this trifling sum from my own pocket, for I might have been all the time entertaining millionaires, a modern equivalent for angels, unawares.

ASIATIC PROBLEM.

To the Editor:—As I am in the same box as "British Born," whose letter appears in this evening's Times, perhaps a little sympathy would not be out of place.

Asiatic labor is becoming a very serious problem on the Pacific coast, and unless restrictive legislation of some kind is not speedily forthcoming, Canada will have to face a problem, the outcome of which may end in dire results.

People of all shades of opinion are beginning to realize that this problem is becoming very acute. All the Colonies can say against restrictive legislation of some kind is "Give us a remedy!" Now it is not up to us, the workers, to find a remedy, it is up to those men whom we put into power for such purposes to act immediately before it is too late. But what is up to the workingmen to do is this: To put the right men in power.

Fellow workers, I appeal to you to awake from your lethargy. Think of your future! Think of the future of your children! Speak against Asiatic labor every opportunity you get! Write against it when you can! Convince your fellow worker! Speak to your neighbor about it. Speak against it in the lodge, room, the work shop, office, etc. Write it on the floors and walls. Make the city and the province take notice.

To a Britisher death is preferable to life on a par with the Chinaman. What is there left to us? Our votes! The Ottawa buns, as you have seen, has often been manipulated by thieves, speculators and sneaky aristocrats, a golden lobby dictating its proceedings. We must dictate to them that when the workingmen have shown their will that "John" must leave our shores, and if our will is thwarted by fraud, cash, bribery and corruption and the like, then it will be up to us to make a clean sweep of the whole bunch and put men in their places whose watchwords shall be right and white.

"FAIR" FOR FAITHER.

In a train the other day (says a Glasgow News correspondent) I overheard two school teachers dwell with a certain fondness on the pranks of a boy whom they called "Jimmie." I could gather that this lad was full of sweet simplicity and a deep-rooted objection to education. Despite his dilatoriness, however, he was a general favorite.

One of the dominies, in whose class Jimmie now idles his time, remarked that on a recent morning the boy had handed in an exercise in arithmetic which by its neatness and freedom from errors simply howled "Father!" Jimmie was in a simmer of excitement to see what mark he would get. "In order to surprise him into saying something," the teacher had scribbled on the copybook "fair" instead of "excellent" as it should have been. A murmur of dismay was expected from the boy, but instead he chuckled with glee and remarked—"Oh, I'm glad! Father's only got 'fair' after a boy's bounce!"

Six-Jones says he gives employment to a large number of men.
Six-Jones he does—other people's bill collectors.

From "Mohammedan Holidays," by H. G. Dwight, in the July Scribner (Panama Number).
An instructor in mathematics was mounting a fast frequently betrayed by some homely saying of his. One day an undergraduate had performed some peculiarly useless and complicated process in arriving at the solution of a problem. When the instructor said: "This reminds me of a coat once owned by an old friend of mine down East. This coat was put out to pasture, after having been fed from its birth in a box-stall and watered at a trough in the yard. The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the coat would swim the stream to go up to the barn for a drink of water."

SHIP "MAINED" BY WOMEN.

There has sailed from Boston, U. S., the schooner Hiram, which is commanded and chiefly worked by women. The vessel, which is 100 years old, is commanded by Mrs. Georgia Orne, and the only man on board is her husband, who has signed as first mate under his wife, the rest of the crew being women. Mrs. Orne is not a suffragette, but she has owned and commanded the Hiram for some years. She is a good navigator and a daring and excellent sailor. Having had trouble with her crew of men last season, she determined to replace them with women. Mrs. Orne was at the wheel, and the doughty woman skipper gave her orders as sharply and accurately as any man could, while her female crew smartly executed them. There was a big crowd at the pier to see the Hiram off, and rousing cheers followed the vessel as she made her way out of harbor. Every steamer gave the schooner a salute, and old sailors declared that the Hiram was as well handled as any crew of men could have done it.

TO-DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

Robert Laird Borden, premier of Canada, was born fifty-nine years ago to-day in the little Nova Scotian village of Grand Pre, immortalized as the opening scene of Longfellow's "Evangeline." He was educated at Acadia Villa Academy at Horton, near his birthplace. At the age of nineteen he left Nova Scotia to become a teacher in the Glenwood Institute, in New Jersey. In the following year he began the study of law, and was called to the bar in 1876, at the age of twenty-four. He built up an extensive practice in Nova Scotia, and engaged in many important cases before the provincial and Dominion Supreme Courts and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He was made Queen's Counsel in 1891, president of the Nova Scotia Barristers' Society in 1893, honorary Doctor of Civil Law by Queen's University in 1903, and since then many other honors have been conferred upon him. He began his public career as member for the city and county of Halifax in 1896, and soon became a prominent figure in the House of Commons. Upon the resignation of Sir Charles Tupper in February, 1901, he was elected leader of the Conservative party. He became premier and president of the Privy Council in 1911, as a result of the Conservative victory in the election of September 21, 1911. Premier Borden's principal recreations are cricket, golf and tennis. Before becoming prime minister he was defeated in a memorable golf match with President Taft at Augusta, Ga., and it is rumored that he has been improving his game with the intention of seeking revenge when the former president of the United States visits Canada this summer. The premier married Laura, youngest daughter of the late T. H. Bond of Halifax, in 1889.

This is an anniversary of interest in connection with the recent revival of Canada's "national game," lacrosse. Thirty-seven years since "twelve Canadian gentlemen" and "twelve real live Iroquois" Indians visited England to play on the grounds of cricket clubs of the principal towns of Great Britain and Ireland, and, on June 26, played before the queen at Windsor. According to an account in the Graphic of the time, the Iroquois had "nothing especially Indian about their dress except tufts of feathers in their caps and tufts of hair in festoons round their bodies." These tufts were understood to have been substituted for "the correct thing"—as a concession to the prejudices of the whiteman. Each of the Indians had "an unpronounceable name," that of the captain—said to be the only English-speaking Indian of the team—being "Karonlare," meaning "Blue-spotted." "The game was a private one, and only one goal was played, which the Canadians won. The queen gave portraits of herself to the Canadians and the Indians along with the royal autograph." In their turn, the Indians presented the queen with a basket of birch wood, which she graciously accepted; and afterwards the two teams were entertained at luncheon in the castle.

SCRAP BOOK.

Birthday of Panama Canal and its Builders.

To-day may be said to be the eleventh birthday of the Panama canal, for it was on June 28, 1902, that the Isthmian Canal Act was approved. This measure authorized the president of the United States to accept the offer of the French Panama Canal Company to sell its abandoned works on the Isthmus, together with all its rights and titles to lands and harbor privileges for $40,000,000. Col. George W. Goethals, who, here, carried the "big ditch" between Atlantic and Pacific to the point of completion, will celebrate his fifty-fifth birthday to-morrow. Now that the canal is almost ready to fulfill its mission, a thousand questions concerning its management and its possible benefits have come up for discussion. While Atlantic coast cities have manifested little interest in the great project, the Pacific ports from San Diego to British Columbia and Alaska are in a fever of anticipation and preparation, and to a lesser degree the same is true of the cities along the Gulf of Mexico. In the opinion of a majority of experts, the west, and especially western Canada, will benefit most from the canal. It is predicted that a large proportion of the vast wheat exports of

The western provinces will be shipped by way of Panama, and the Canadian railroads have made elaborate preparations to handle business over the new route. Timber and mineral shipments, too, will go by Panama at a great saving in cost and time of transportation. Owing to the heat prevailing in the Panama district it is alleged by some investigators that shipments of citrus fruits from California to the east and to Europe by way of the "ditch" will be unprofitable.

"That the canal will be useless, as at present constructed, within 15 or 20 years is the prediction of Philippe Bunau-Varilla, who was prominent in the French company, set forth in a book just published under the title of "Panama; Its Creation, Destruction and Resurrection." The lock system, he declares, will have to be abandoned within two decades, and the project transformed at great expense into a sea-level canal. He severely criticises Col. Goethals and the other engineers for failing to provide for a transformation that could be accomplished without interrupting navigation. The lock system will fail, says Bunau-Varilla, for these reasons:

"First, because the difference between the dimensions of the largest ships now building and the locks is merely a strictly necessary margin. With larger vessels the locks will be inadequate to the needs of naval and commercial navigation.

"Second, the canal as now constructed is constantly menaced by destruction through the dangers to which the Gatun dam is exposed.

"Third, because of the danger that the canal will lack sufficient water because of its escape through fissures in the banks.

"Fourth, because the huge volume of traffic which will eventually flood the canal will absolutely require a free waterway.

Already the world has almost forgotten Wallace and Stevens, the predecessors of Goethals as engineers in charge of the "diggings," but they are entitled to share in the fame. It was Wallace who supplied the creative imagination for the big job, and it was his successor, Stevens, who recruited and whipped into shape the army of

FIRST THINGS

The first stereotype, or cast made from a form of types, was probably the invention of William Ged, of Edinburgh, who began using the process in 1726. However, this year marks the centenary of the introduction of the process in America by George Bruce, who was born 132 years ago to-day. Stereotyping was first used for printing the London Times in 1856, and the process is now general in all newspaper offices, as the rapid perfecting presses of to-day render it impossible to print direct from types. The name of stereotype was given to the process by a Parisian printer, Didot, in 1788. The stereotypes of William Ged were used only in printing books, and several of his plates are displayed at the Royal Institution in London. There also is to be found an edition of Saivert with an inscription which, translated, reads: "Printed at Edinburgh by William Ged of Edinburgh, goldsmith, not with movable types, as is commonly done, but with cast tablets or plates."

PRIVY COUNCIL MUST DECIDE LEGAL ISSUE

Court of Appeal Divided as to Closing of Vancouver Lane for Benefit of H. B. Co.

By the equal division of the court of appeal this morning a noted Vancouver case will go to the privy council for a final decision.

The company is putting up a building at the rear of its present store, which will front on Georgia street, and will give it a compact building from Granville street through to Seymour street.

Chief Justice Macdonald, in allowing the appeal, referred to the powers granted to the city to acquire real property for use as parks or squares, and to lease or sell this when no longer needed for that purpose.

There was no evidence that the lane was acquired in the way contemplated when the power of the council to lease or acquire property for parks or squares was cited.

The court being thus evenly divided the appeal was entered as being dismissed.

Edwards Mayer, of Bodwell & Lawson, made application to the court this afternoon for leave to appeal to the Privy Council and this was granted.

WILL INVITE DESIGNS

School Board Will Ask Architects to Submit Competitive Plans for Hollywood School.

The city school board, at a special meeting yesterday afternoon, decided to invite designs from architects for competitive plans for the Hollywood school, Chandler avenue.

The building will be of mill construction, and like the Burnside and Oaklands schools, now being built, will probably cost at $50,000.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Many Dwellings Are to Be Erected—E. & N. Terminals.

Building permits have been issued to W. A. McMoran for three stores, costing $3,000, on Cook street and Grant street corner, to be built from the designs of Jesse M. Warren; to V. Rolf for a dwelling on Seaview avenue, costing $2,000; to the Merchants' Trust and Trading Company for a lumber shed on Bridge street, to be built from the design of Spurgin & Wilkin at a cost of $2,900; and to J. H. Park for a dwelling and garage on Linden avenue, costing $4,500.

In connection with the buildings in progress at the western end of the Songhees Reserve for the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, a further permit was issued yesterday afternoon for the car shop, costing $15,000. E. R. Doe is contractor for the various sections of the terminals.

FLAW FREES DEFENDANTS

Four Chinese Let Off Because Law Does Not Cover Their Case.

That the finding of gambling instruments in a place alleged to be a gambling joint will not suffice for the conviction of persons who are charged with looking on, when there is no proof adduced of gambling having actually been carried on, was settled in police court this morning, and Magistrate Jay had to dismiss the charges laid against four Chinese—Gong Sing, Pong Poo, alias Ah Poo, Pong and Bo.

This result seems to be the outcome of the section of the Criminal Code dealing with the finding of gaming instruments as evidence of gaming being carried on not being specific enough.

His worship held the case open until this morning to give the crown an opportunity to submit arguments, but City Prosecutor Harrison admitted that he could not upset the point of law raised. He submitted, however, that the table taken from the room raised was proof that the place was used for the playing of don-gow, an illegal game.

W. C. Moresby, for the accused, left the case with the court.

"I would like these Chinese and all others to understand that the court does not express any opinion as to the game they were playing," said the magistrate, addressing Yip Wing, the court interpreter. "If they had been here charged with actually playing that game, the result might have been different. They must not think, because this case is dismissed, that the court thinks the game they were playing a harmless one."

APPEALS DECIDED

Judgments Rendered by the Court of Appeal in Six Cases Argued in Vancouver.

Judgments were rendered by the court of appeal to-day in six cases heard at the last sitting in Vancouver. The members of the court present were Chief Justice Macdonald, Mr. Justice Irving and Mr. Justice Gallihier. Mr. Justice Martin forwarded his judgments and these were read by the chief justice at the request of his lordship. The judgments rendered, in addition to those mentioned in other columns, were as follows:

Gray vs. Carruthers—Held by Macdonald, C. J., that plaintiff-appellant had not shown enclosure of property for a period long enough to give her possession by prescription, and therefore defendant was entitled to take possession. Appeal dismissed, Irving, Gallihier and Martin, A. concurring.

PRINCE DID NOT COME

Rumors That King George's Son Boarded Boat in Vancouver Incongruous Were Unfounded.

A rumor that H. R. H. Prince Albert, the second son of King George, was on his way to Victoria from Vancouver, aroused not a little interest among Victorians this morning, and early visitors to the Empress hotel and in the neighborhood of Government House kept a scrutinizing eye on all youthful looking persons who bore any distant resemblance to their idea of the prince.

As the prince is known to be in Canada, and was travelling about under military escort not long since in Ontario, it was quite natural for proud British Columbians to anticipate a visit from "Cadet Albert," as he was known during his eastern tour.

ACTED AS CONTRACTOR

Defence Opens Its Case in the Test Action Taken Over the Campbell Building.

The case for the defence in the test case of the Dickey Manufacturing Company vs. Duncan E. Campbell is being presented in the county court this afternoon by H. A. Maclean, K. C., on behalf of the defendant. The first witness was Charles A. Glocker, manager for Thomas Hooper, who was the architect of the building.

Mr. Glocker said that he had no authority to guarantee payments in Mr. Campbell's name, nor had he ever attempted to pledge Mr. Campbell's credit. It would have been out of place for him, he said, to suggest to sub-contractors that they could get their money in any other way than in accordance with the terms of the contract between the owner and the Westholme Lumber Company.

The witness said he had never interfered with the men on the work personally and never went further than the powers given to the architect by the contract. He stated that, under the contract, Mr. Campbell had claim against the contractors for $4,600, by demurrage, after making full allowance for loss of time through bad weather and other unforeseen circumstances.

TO USE COLORED LIGHTS

Street Cars Will Recognize Carnival—No Advertising in Programmes.

The finance committee of the Carnival met yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when it was decided, among other things, that the official programme should have no advertising matter whatever within its covers and that the Citizens' committee would get this out at its own expense.

It was also announced that the British Columbia Electric Railway Company had announced its intention of using colored lights in the street cars to advertise the carnival with its own colors, red and green, throughout carnival week.

The committee has appropriated a certain sum for the following out of that part of the programme in which the fire departments of the city will take part. Fire Chief Davis is looking after the details of the programme, and this feature promises to be of particular interest.

A letter was read to the meeting from the acting president of the Glasgow and District branch of the Scottish centre of the Royal Life Saving Society, thanking them for their invitation to attend the carnival, and while regretting their inability to be present, sending their best wishes.

Subscribers continue to come in slowly, among the latest being one of $100 from Messrs. Macdonald & Wilson, the builders. The official campaign for funds will close on June 30.

LOCAL NEWS

To Camp Free.—Capt. Villiers, acting adjutant of the 8th Fusiliers, now in camp at Sidney, has announced that all men who report for duty with the regiment between to-day and Monday, will be able to travel free of charge on the Victoria & Sidney railway.

Further Advance.—On account of the next date for the third payment by those investors who are taking up the city debenture stock in London being set for July 7, the comptroller expects to receive a further advance on the following day, as the underwriters having unwritten the whole of the stock, the money will be forthcoming promptly.

School Closing.—As part of the exercises which mark the closing of term at St. George's school, a musical programme was rendered by the pupils this morning. This afternoon the finals in the school tennis tournament were played off. To-morrow will be speech day and the occasion of the annual sports.

Accused of Theft.—Edward Spiker was charged this morning with having stolen $20 from William J. Taylor, in whose service he was. He pleaded not guilty and elected to take a summary trial. He got a remand until Saturday in order to get his witnesses, and bail was set at two sureties in $50. E. L. Tait is acting for the private prosecutor.

Opium Prosecution.—Yip Chung was charged in police court this morning with being in possession of opium, and See Fong with being in possession of opium prepared for smoking. They were arrested last night and the former got bail fixed by the magistrate at $50 cash. W. C. Moresby appeared for the men and asked for a remand, which was granted until Saturday. Cash bail to the amount of $50 was fixed for the two.

Last Case Reached.—The last case on the list before the court of appeal was taken up at noon, as soon as their lordships had concluded the giving of judgments. This is Lucas vs. the City of North Vancouver, and is an appeal from an order of Mr. Justice Murphy restraining the city of North Vancouver from transferring certain shares in the Burrard Tunnel Bridge Company, held by the city, to certain members of the council in order to qualify the latter as directors of the company.

Plumber Sues Builder.—Mr. Justice Gregory resumed the hearing of the suit of Hayward & Dods vs. G. C. Meagher this forenoon. In this case the plaintiffs sue for account due as defendant sue in respect of work done at "Blythholm," Linden avenue, and against the defendant alleges that it is a balance of a general account,

WILL RESIDE HERE

Miss Edna E. Blake and Mr. E. J. Down Wedded Yesterday.

A pretty home wedding took place yesterday when Edna Emmeline, youngest daughter of Mrs. A. J. Blake, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest J. Down, son of Mrs. and the late Mr. A. H. Down, of Plymouth, England, the ceremony taking place at the residence of the bride's mother, 849 Princess avenue, and Rev. Thomas Keyworth officiating.

The drawing room was prettily decorated with flowers, and the bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. W. A. Blake, looked very graceful in a costume of white serge trimmed with cloth of gold, and wearing a marionette hat. She was attended by Miss Marion Penhke, as maid of honor, while Mr. Frank Merrick, of Vancouver, acted as best man. The happy pair left for a tour of the British Columbia coast, which they will return in about a fortnight's time to take up their residence on South Hampshire road, Oak Bay.

HOPES AUSTIN LAST OF POET LAUREATES

James Douglas Says the Office Should Be Abolished Forever; Scarcity of Material

James Douglas, the well-known British writer, advocates in the London News and Leader the abolition of the poet laureateship. He says: "Let us hope that the late Alfred Austin was the last poet laureate, for the office has amply earned obsolescence. In 1859 Queen Victoria offered it to Tennyson in a letter from Windsor Castle signed 'C. B. Phipps.' In it the good Phipps stated that 'the ancient duties of this office, which consisted in laudatory odes to the sovereign, have been long in abeyance, and have never been called for during the reign of the present Majesty.' Why, then, did Queen Victoria desire to maintain the office? 'First, on account of its antiquity; and, secondly, because it establishes a connection, through her household, between Her Majesty and the poets of this country as a body.' The ingenious Phipps went on to say that in order to 'make the continuance of this office in harmony with public opinion, the Queen feels it necessary that it should be limited to a name bearing such distinction in the literary world as to do credit to the appointment.' For that reason Queen Victoria first offered the post to Samuel Rogers, who wisely declined it, and the crown then offered it to Alfred Austin, who, it is said, considered him unfit to receive any new office.

Tennyson took the whole day to consider, and at the last wrote two letters, one accepting, one refusing, and determined to make up his mind after a consultation with his friends at dinner. According to his own account in the Life of Tennyson, he would joke and say, 'In the end I accepted the honor, because during dinner Venables told me that, if I became poet laureate I should always when I dined out be offered the liver-wing of a fowl.' In a letter to the Rev. T. H. Rawnsley, he says he was advised by his friends not to decline it. 'If I, I believe,' he adds, 'scarce 100 a year, and my friend R. M. Milnes tells me that the price of the patent and court dress will swallow up all the first year's income.' It is evident that the thing tickled Tennyson's sense of humor. Rogers, it seems, lent Tennyson his court dress, which had also been worn by Wordsworth. 'The coat did well enough, but about the other parts of the dress there was some anxiety felt for the levee, as they had not been tried on.'

After Tennyson died in 1852 Mr. Gladstone and Lord Rosebery allowed the post to remain vacant for four years; but when the Conservatives returned to power in 1885 Lord Salisbury, with cynical sarcasm, appointed Mr. Austin as the successor of Tennyson and Wordsworth, and the new laureate pointed the jest by writing soon after that study in the art of sinking, 'James's Bids.' For the consummation of Lord Salisbury's practical joke, see the obituaries postum. Mr. Asquith is not a cynical jester like Lord Salisbury, and he is likely to follow the precedent set by Mr. Gladstone and Lord Rosebery. But it is not enough to allow the post to remain vacant until the next Unionist government comes in, and another Tory badling is appointed by another cynical Tory premier. Abolition is the right and proper solution of the problem. The matter is, doubtless, a delicate one, for the poet laureates is a member of the King's household, and the office could hardly be abolished without His Majesty's command or acquiescence. At the same time, it is probable that King George would be willing to accept the advice of the prime minister if he were to suggest that the continuance of this obsolete office had become undesirable and undesired.

Queen Victoria recognized the necessity of consulting public opinion, and if there were a living poet as great as Tennyson something might be said for the maintenance of the office. Tennyson at least was "such a poet as kings should honor and such a one as would do honor to kings." But what living poet satisfies these conditions? Mr. Rudyard Kipling might have been eligible, if he had not so irredeemably stamped himself a partisan as to make his appointment by a Liberal government impossible and by a Unionist government inexpedient. There are grave objections to the selection of other living poets. Some of them have disqualified themselves. Others are too unconventional to wear a mantle so conventional, for the office demands in its holder conventionalism in thought and in temperament. Tennyson, in spite of his artistic genius, was a sound and safe conventionalist. But respect for the conventions did not prevent the late laureate from being guilty of at least one dreadful lapse of taste. If we exclude from the possible candidates Mr. William Watson, Mr. Thomas Hardy, and Mr. Stephen Phillips, who is left? Only Mr. Robert Bridges, Mr. Yeats, Mr. Massfield, Mr. Newbolt and Mr. Alfred Noyes. Any one of these poets would shed more lustre on the office than Shadwell of Eusden, Whitehead or E. E. After Alfred Austin any one of them would seem less ridiculous. But it would nevertheless be an act of hardihood to choose one of them as Mr. Austin's successor. The proper and decent course is to abolish the office for ever.

EXTRACT FROM "BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL"

March 22, 1907.

"A Most Valuable Food"

At a time when the preparation of artificial foodstuffs is receiving more attention than ever before, and when new forms of easily assimilable fat to take the place of solid fat are being frequently brought to the notice of the medical profession, it is desirable that some of the older forms of administering natural fats should not be lost sight of. Among natural fats, butter, easily taken first place for nutritive value, which when combined with a suitable soluble carbohydrate, a most valuable food is produced.

The BUTTER SCOTCH which Messrs. Callard & Bower (Duke's Road, Euston Road, W. C.) have prepared for fifty years is such an article, which has the great advantage of being palatable, so palatable, in fact, that children are more likely to read restraining from excess than any persuading to take it. The BUTTER SCOTCH is stated to contain 11 1/2 per cent. of fat and 7 1/2 per cent. of sugar, and the results of an analysis which we have made recently of a specimen, substantially confirm these figures. Further chemical examination of the fat extracted showed it to be genuine butter fat. This combination can therefore be recommended, not only as a valuable aliment, but also as a very useful addition to the diet in suitable cases. In all the Principal candy stores in Victoria.

STOCK LIST YIELDS TO SALES PRESSURE

More Cheerful Feeling in Evidence in Domestic and Foreign Circles

(By F. W. Stevenson & Co.) New York, June 25.—Some discussion was accomplished today under cover of the street in Wall Street, and after it was announced from Washington that a satisfactory conclusion had been reached between the Attorney-General and railroad officials with regard to the Union Pacific dissolution matter and that that affair would be presented to the Circuit court before July 1st, the list yielded to selling pressure, then rallied moderately.

A much more cheerful feeling is in evidence in domestic and foreign circles, but the outcome of the July settlements and disbursements is anxiously awaited, and meanwhile it is not unlikely that the market will resolve itself into a sort of trading affair.

POWERS LIMITED

OF WATER BOARDS

Cannot Deal With Anything Other Than as the Law Gives Them Jurisdiction to Act

An important judgment was given by the Court of Appeal to-day which affects the jurisdiction of the boards of investigation formed under the Water Act of the province. This was in the case of Mrs. Evans vs. John C. and Robert McLeay, and was a direct appeal from the board of investigation. In rendering his decision in the matter, said the court was left to understand that Mrs. Evans had applied to the board under the Water Act for a license in substitution for a record hitherto held by her. It was determined by the board that she was not entitled to the license she asked for and her record was cancelled. The McLeays appealed from the board's further order allowing her the use of five hundred gallons of water per day under an easement created by her father.

His lordship said that he was of opinion that the board had no jurisdiction to declare the easement in question or to determine the common law rights of the parties. Jurisdiction was only conferred by the act on boards to deal with rights held under statutory authority, and there was nothing in the amendments to the act which had been cited to amplify the powers of boards. "All claims" meant only the claims upon which the boards of investigation had jurisdiction. With Mrs. Evans' easement the Court of Appeal had nothing more to do than had the board of investigation. There is no court would say nothing more on that point than that the board had no right to make such an order as it did. The appeal would be allowed, but it must be understood that only part of the order was set aside. The board had refused to grant Mrs. Evans a license and had cancelled her record. She did not appeal against this, and the only subject of the appeal, as to the grant of water under an easement.

TELL OF LAND VALUES

Evidence Taken in Arbitration Proceedings on Finklestein Property, Douglas Street.

Arbitration proceedings in the Finklestein property on Douglas street, where the city required a considerable frontage in connection with the widening of the East side, were commenced at the city hall this morning.

The evidence of Col. Currie, A. Wright and Land Purchasing Agent, A. G. Sargison covered largely the field of the effect on holdings in Douglas street northward from the city hall of the announcement of the purchase by the Hudson's Bay Company in the summer of 1911 of the St. John's Church property. It appeared that values continued to mount till December of that year and then remained stationary. It also transpired that corner property on Douglas street is worth one-seventh as much again as inside lots, or about 14 per cent. more. One witness said that in valuing property he would consider property alongside a school more valuable than that opposite it, because a school building and grounds caused a gap in the street which detracted from business. The claim of the solicitors for D. Finklestein was four-fold (1) value of land taken, (2) damage to other land, (3) cost of rebuilding property, (4) loss of revenue from the interruption to business. The solicitors, Bodwell & Lawson, were not satisfied with the city's offer of $13,000, based upon lots which had changed hands on the street, and had been partially acquired for the widening scheme. The property in question is near King's road, and 32 feet was required for the widening. They therefore appealed to the arbitrator, Hugh Kennedy for the city, J. J. Shillcock for the owner and R. S. Day, umpire.

E. V. Bodwell, K. C., appeared for the owner, and City Solicitor Robertson for the city.

NOTHING TO ARBITRATE

Island Mine Management Reply to Vancouver Board of Trade's Offer.

In their replies to the council of the Vancouver Board of Trade, which offered to arbitrate the differences between the mine-owners and mine-workers on Vancouver Island, the controller companies state that there is nothing to arbitrate and that interference at present is unnecessary.

The letter from the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir), says:

"We appreciate very much the spirit in which your kind offer of arbitration in the coal trade on Vancouver Island is made. As all our mines are now and have been for some time in satisfactory operation we have no differences with our employees to arbitrate."

In his letter, Thomas R. Stockett, manager of the Western Fuel Company, says:

"So far as this company is concerned there is nothing to arbitrate, the issue being solely—shall it turn its property over to the control and dictation of a foreign organization which is without status in Canada and not even amenable to its laws, and whose interests are inimical to the best interests of the workmen, the community and the company. This the company is not willing to do, nor does it consider the arbitration for arbitration. For the question one of your council and board, I may say that under this company's policy of dealing with its workmen as employees there has prevailed in this community an era of nearly eight years of industrial peace and prosperity that has worked for the good of all, and but for the presence of foreign agitators who caused the breaking of a working agreement between employer and employee (and without permitting the employees to have a voice in the matter) there is every reason to believe that industrial peace would have continued for many years."

A wealthy young woman from out West was recently wedded to a member of the nobility of England, and the ceremony occurred in the most fashionable of London churches—St. George's, Hanover Square. Among the guests was a cousin of the bride, a sturdy American as he might be imagined. He gave an interesting summary of the wedding when asked by a friend whether the marriage was a happy one. "Happy? I should say it was," said the cousin. "The bride was happy, the mother was overjoyed, Lord Sticklehead, the groom, was in ecstasies, and his creditors, I should say, were in a state of absolute bliss."

FORCES COMMENCE TRAINING AT SIDNEY

Four Regiments and Signalling Corps Under Canvas; Inspection Set for To-morrow

The brigade camp at Sidney opened under the brightest auspices to-day, the work of the advance parties having paved the way for the arrival of the main detachments. Not only were there more men in camp than at any previous time, but the arrangements have been so planned as to give the maximum of results from the training under service conditions.

The 88th Fusiliers and the eleventh section, signalling corps, entered this morning at the Victoria & Sidney railway depot.

Many citizens lined the sidewalks to see the forces march by. The Fusiliers appeared wearing their service uniforms and carrying their kits. Headed by the band, just recently formed, they marched through the streets to the sound of martial airs, arriving at the station where they boarded the special train.

The three matland regiments embarked at 11 o'clock on the Princess Royal at Vancouver with about 700 men from the sixth Connaught's Own, Vancouver; the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver; and the 104th Regiment, New Westminster and Chilliwack.

The officers commanding and the adjutants of the four regiments are as follows: Sixth, Major H. D. Hulme in command; Capt. Solator, adjutant; 72nd, Lieut-Col. R. G. Edwards, Lieut. Col. Godson, adjutant; 104th, Lieut-Col. Boulbee (former commanding officer of the Sixth); Capt. Smith, adjutant, and 88th, Lieut-Col. J. A. Hall; Capt. Villiers, acting adjutant.

The headquarters officers are: Camp commandant, Col. A. Roy, M. V. O., D. O. C. military district No. 11; orderly officer, Lieut. C. Tweedale, corps of guides; general staff officer, Major Gardiner, royal military college staff, and the following administrative staff: D. A. A. and Q. M. G., Capt. F. W. L. Moore, district staff adjutant; Major A. B. Carey, R. E., staff; G. C. Milson, D. O. C. staff; Capt. A. Bray, ordnance officer; Major C. N. Shanly, pharmacist; Major T. W. G. Bryan, intelligence officer, and Capt. W. G. Cummings, sanitary officer.

In addition to the militia present there are in camp detachments from the Fifth company of the Garrison Artillery, the Third Fortress company of the Royal Canadian Engineers, the Army Medical Corps and the Ordnance Corps.

To-morrow the regiments will be reviewed by the minister of militia, Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, and General Sir Ian Hamilton, G. C. B., D. S. O., inspector-general of the overseas forces. Apart from the tactical training which will be performed in camp under regimental commanders, the most important feature of the camp on this occasion will be the two days' manoeuvres under service conditions.

These manoeuvres will have in view the resistance of an attack on Victoria. The Red, or attacking force, will be composed of the two Vancouver regiments, and the Blue, or defensive forces, will include the Garrison Artillery, the 88th and 104th Regiments. The defence will consist of the infantry regiments, the intention of the latter being to hold the positions till the arrival of reinforcements. The Fifth Regiment will have for the first time field guns in use, and as the respective forces will bivouac on Monday evening, the main engagement should take place in the early hours of Tuesday morning somewhere in the neighborhood of Elk Lake or Christmas Hill. In order that the operations may be as realistic as possible, there will be no cessation of hostilities till late on Tuesday afternoon, while profiting by the experience of last Dominion Day, the training will be improved in several details.

It is the desire of the commandant that the first brigade camp since his appointment to this military district should be a success, and that the training should be of a thoroughly practical character. There can be no doubt that the site has been well chosen, and that the arrangements made lack nothing in thoroughness. Most of the headquarters officers arrived on the ground yesterday and took up their quarters.

By 5 o'clock this evening it is expected that the arrangements for the camp will be so far advanced that all units will have taken up their position in the parts of the camp allotted to them.

ARE ONLY TRUSTEES

Shareholder of Producers' Rock and Gravel Company, Secures Decision From Courts.

After hearing counsel in the case of T. A. Johnston vs. M. B. Carlin and H. B. Thomson, J. P. F., Mr. Justice Gregory yesterday gave judgment for the plaintiff, Mr. Johnston sued on his own behalf as a shareholder in the Producers' Rock & Gravel Company, and in the interests of the other shareholders, asking for a declaration that the defendants are merely trustees for the company in holding certain property on the Keating estate, and for an accounting of a portion of the property which has been sold.

W. J. Taylor, K. C., appeared for the plaintiff and Neil F. Mackay, M. P. P., for the defendants. The pleadings in the case disclose that in April, 1910, an option was taken by the B. C. Sand & Gravel Company for the purchase of certain gravel properties belonging to the estate of the late Andrew Keating, in the Esquimalt district. This was taken by Mr. Carlin's name as a director of the company and on its behalf. Later on there was an amalgamation of the B. C. Sand & Gravel Company and the Victoria Contracting Company into what has since been known as the Producers' Rock & Gravel Company, which assumed all the liabilities and took over all the assets of the two old

Are You As Good As You Were 10 Years Ago?

Wouldn't you like to be the man you were a few years ago; to have the same ambitious spirit, the same strength and vitality that you used to possess? Wouldn't you like to be free from pains and aches, and to feel that you are the equal in strength of any man of your age? You can be if you will obey the appeal here made to you.

All that you lack is vitality—new life. You are like an engine without steam—you haven't the motive power to keep the machinery of your body working properly. Anything that will restore your "steam" will make a new man of you. Drugs have been tried and failed. You know that Electro-Vigor cannot fail; it is electricity, and "electricity is life." That is what you require, and a few weeks' use of Electro-Vigor will give you health and happiness.

Electro-Vigor is a scientific device for saturating the human body with a powerful but soothing current of electric life, for hours at a time, without the least shock or burn or unpleasant sensation. It generates a constant, unbroken stream of electricity, which it sends coursing through every nerve and muscle of the body, restoring vitality and strength, and giving to its work as nature intended. When your body has sufficient electric energy to satisfy the demands of nature, weakness and disease cannot exist.

Men who are nervous, run down, weak and unambitious, will find that Electro-Vigor will quickly put them in good condition.

The man does not live who cannot be made a better man by the application of Electro-Vigor. Those who have used it say that it is the grandest invigorator of the age.

PRAISE FROM THE CURED.

Vancouver, B. C.

Dear Sirs—The Electro-Vigor has relieved me of all rheumatic pains in the shoulders and arms; also feet better every way. I will use it a while longer as the batteries are still strong. Thanking you for your kind inquiry, I remain,

Yours truly,

ROY HOOD,

Abbotsford, B. C.

Gentlemen—I have received much benefit from your appliance.

Faithfully yours, concerns. At that time the option was still held in the name of Mr. Carlin, and the B. C. Sand & Gravel Company had paid $1,000 in respect of it.

A further payment of $9,000 made after the amalgamation, and as the new company was not at the moment in a position to meet this Mr. Thomson advanced the sum of $10,000 to enable the Producers' Rock & Gravel Company to make this payment of $9,000 and to repay into its treasury the $1,000 which had been paid out by the B. C. Sand & Gravel Company. He did this by way of loan for one year, and at the end of the year, the Producers' Rock & Gravel Company being still unable to finance the matter, he made a further payment to protect the option, this being done in the name of Carlin and Thomson.

Mr. Thomson had been a director of the Victoria Contracting Company, and both were directors of the Producers' Rock & Gravel Company.

The prospectus of the amalgamated company as put in stated that the property in question was a portion of the resources of the company, and the accounts took cognizance of it as an asset.

The order made declares that the defendants are trustees and directed them to account to the company for the proceeds of a sale to Mr. Dawson of the property. The defendants have a claim against the company for the amounts they have paid out to the estate on account of this property.

That portion of plaintiff's claim which asked for a declaration by the court that the company had improperly paid debts of the Victoria Contracting Company to the amount of $68,000 was adjourned until after the long vacation.
